

Who said you'll never get rich...?

Military personnel and civil service employees at Fort Benning will receive fatter pay checks this month.

Military pay will increase 7.2 per cent and civil service pay will be boosted 5.5 per cent. The new rates went into effect Jan. 1.

The pay boost will increase the total monthly military and civilian payrolls at Fort Benning by approximately $1,110,000, a spokesman in the Finance and Accounting Division said.

The pay raise will mean that E-1 recruits will get a $19.50 per month increase in basic pay, O-1s will get $25.70, E-5s with six years service will get $30.90, O-4s with eight years service will get $70.20, and three-star generals and admirals will get $176.10.

The senior enlisted man of each service will move up from the current $1,185 a month to $1,270.50. The only military people who won't get the 7.2 per cent increase are the chiefs of each service, who are already receiving the legal maximum of $3,000 a month in basic pay.

The bill signed by President Nixon does not directly mention military pay. It provides that the civil service pay raise that the President wanted to start next July was to start on Jan. 1. But it limits the civilian raise to the guideline figure established by the Pay Board for American wages in general — 5.5 per cent.

Existing law provides that military pay shall be raised an equivalent amount each time civil service pay is raised. Because only a portion of military compensation — basic pay — is being raised, the basic pay must go up 7.2 per cent to be equivalent to the 5.5 per cent increase in civil service salaries.

First post baby of the new year

Number one

The first baby born in all active duty military family in the Columbus area was born at Maxwell Army Hospital at 4:48 a.m. on Jan. 7, 1972. The parents are Capt. and Mrs. Willie E. Tripp, M1 G, Houston 24, Fort Benning. Tripp is assigned to the 22nd Aviation Company.

The baby, John Wesley Tripp III weighed in at six pounds and eight ounces. He was welcomed home by his 2-year-old sister, Mikinda. John, he will receive the $100 savings account offered by the National Bank of Fort Benning to the first baby born to a military family at Maxwell Army Hospital or one of the Columbus area hospitals.

SOLDIERS magazine features the New Year

You'll know what it's all about when you peek inside the cover of SOLDIERS each month during 1972. If New Year's resolutions are your thing, make just one more. Resolve to involve yourself in the fast-paced article, "Rolling and Rapping," and join SOLDIERS magazine as it plunges into 1972 on a motorcycle journey through out changing Army. It's the story of two BM who roamed 9,000 miles during the last three months of 1971 searching for what the modern Army's all about. Their story is an account of what these 22-year-old motorcycle missionaries discovered about today's Army. They whizzed through more than 50 towns "and cities across America, and their conclusions command the attention of every GI. Change gears and you're in the middle of another January edition feature. This time it's about Chinese New Year with President Nixon's trip to China coming next month, you'll want to wax conversant with things Chinese.

What better way than to learn how the Chinese usher in a brand new year with a very prolonged bang. It's in color, too. Another explosive article is "Easy Start, Hard Stop," your ticket to the Army's official magazine's continued rap on now gut issues. In this case it's drugs, must reading for every guy who thinks "it can't happen to me."

And just to prove there's another way to fly, read "Curse You, Red Baron." It's a real trip into post-glacial where a bunch of airline pilots and men of assorted professions relive World War I aviation. They fly World War I habit, "Easy Start, Hard Stop."

Post plans boat club

The Special Services Recreation Branch announced that during January, an attempt will be made to establish a Fort Benning Boat Club. The club, consisting of Fort Benning personnel and their dependents, will enable boating enthusiasts at Fort Benning to meet on a monthly basis to enjoy their hobby.

The club will stress boating safely, outings, trips, boating clinics and any other activity that the members desire. An organizational meeting will be held in January 1972, date and place to be announced in the Daily Bulletin. All boating enthusiasts are encouraged to attend. Ownership of a boat is not a pre-requisite for membership in the club as only an interest in boating activities.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

For a different taste, dilute condensed beef consommé with an equal amount of tomato juice. Blend well and serve hot or chilled with chopped olives or parsley.

If you are keep-dip in holiday cookies, keep them crisp by putting a fresh slice of bread into the cookie jar every other day.

A half cup of grated tart apple added to a meatloaf mixture adds moisture and a luscious flavor to this family favorite.

If you buy economy size boxes of frozen vegetables or shellfish but can't use all the contents at one meal, drop the bag a few times on a cement floor or sidewalk and remove as many loose pieces as you need.

The Ukrainian Christmas, which falls on January 7, traditionally starts with bread and honey to symbolize the good things of life.

Recycling can help save...us!

Recycling can be, will be, and is a very important part of conservation of our natural resources. The term RECYCLING refers to the reuse of materials which is mostly referred to as junk or trash. This includes glass, metals of all types including cans, and paper. These are the major resources areas at which recycling is directed.

One of the major reasons for recycling is the conservation of our natural resources. It would be naive to believe that our natural resources can last forever, particularly at the rate at which we are now using them. For example, experts predict that at the present rate of consumption, our aluminum resources will be exhausted in 50 years. That isn't very long. Luckily, aluminum is one of the many materials which can be reasonably recycled.

One of the largest uses for aluminum is the production of cans for our drinks. These cans are easily recycled if people are willing to cooperate. These cans could be segregated from the other trash and deposited in a recycling container. These containers are becoming more and more available as people are beginning to see that they are needed. Here at Fort Benning there is a recycling point by the commissary on Main Post. It can be easily located by following the signs that are placed in front of the commissary. People at Fort Benning are urged by the Office for Environmental Management to separate their trash and bring it to the recycling point. This includes glass, tin and aluminum cans, and paper.

Europe has already been faced with a shortage of resources and people are doing something about it. To many Europeans, recycling is an everyday chore and a household job. With them it isn't optional, but a necessity, and we can learn much from their methods. For instance, the French produce a small automobile which is made entirely from recycled material.

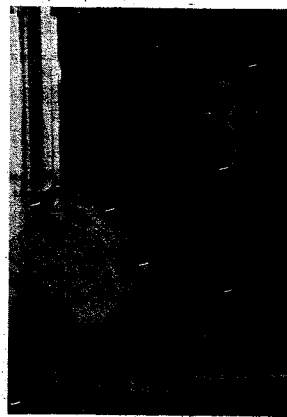

Another major concern for recycling is the growing need for landfills to handle the mountains of trash. It is estimated that proper recycling can cut by 70 per cent the need for landfills. Mismanaged landfills are sources of river and stream pollution, not to mention the unsightly aspects. Areas which were one time landfills, have been known to crack open, exposing its contents. This is not only unsightly but is potentially dangerous to anyone who may fall into one of these crevices.

Post landfill

This is a crevice which has opened up in an old landfill here at Fort Benning. Exposed are broken glass and rusty metal cans. The rain washes this material toward rivers and streams and many of the crevices are very deep.

This particular crevice was about 30 feet in length and six to eight feet in depth. Needless to say it is a potential danger around populated areas and this landfill is located near the Main Post.

Miss Frances C. Dozier, Infantry School librarian retires after 28 years service

Infantry School librarian retires

The Infantry School librarian who has seen the number of volumes more than triple in the twenty years she served there—retires today.

Frances C. Dozier said she plans to return to her mother's "Victorian home" in Dawson, Ga., and renovate the upstairs into a combination library and sitting room, "after shelving her last book here."

Miss Dozier—a graduate of Georgia State and Emory University—came to Fort Benning in 1949 after teaching in several Georgia high schools. Her first assignment was to organize a library for the Parachute Training Regiment. She was one of only two women assigned to the regiment; the other was the service club director. The regiment's lion cub mascot was chained outside their quarters, she recalled.

The regiment was located in the Alabama training area and library supplies were located on Main Post. The ferry trip across the river—and such problems as long lines of military vehicles with priority—sometimes took half a day.

After the war, Miss Dozier helped catalog books being returned from the Pacific area. From 1948 to 1951 she was chief librarian in the Special Services Library System at Fort Benning. During that time, she consolidated seven separate libraries into a unified system. From 1951 to 1958, she was assistant to the librarian of the Infantry School Library. Since 1958 she has been library director in the Infantry School.

In 1951, the library had some 50,000 volumes. Now the count is 175,000 volumes and growing daily. "The number of books is now almost capacity," Miss Dozier said. "There are plans to expand the library."

"The library" has changed a great deal since I came here in 1951," she added. "One of the biggest has been the addition of non-military books to the library's collection."

Miss Dozier might be characterized as the librarian's librarian. She finds that her present duties don't allow her enough time for reading at work. So she keeps books by her bedside and reads a great deal at home.

It's the 'in thing'

This country is probably more susceptible to fads and passing fashions than any other country in the world. It's the communications systems available. A "happening" or "new style" on the West Coast is immediately known by everyone on the East Coast at practically the same time. Because of communications, events can sometimes snowball into something big in a hurry. In many cases, these events become an "out thing" just as rapidly.

People like to be part of the "in crowd." Being an individualist or separate thinker seems to be out of style. Talk to a man individually and you get one line of thought. Talk to him when he is part of a group and you get something entirely different. This situation sometimes causes a lot of different and inaccurate decisions by those who have responsibility and authority to provide for different groups of individuals.

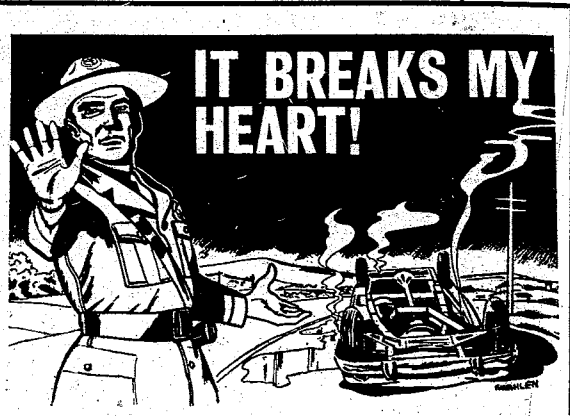

Beer in the barracks, probably the most publicized privilege in the new VOLAR Program, was a prime example of planning based on incorrect information. Beer dispensing machines were installed in buildings all over Fort Benning. Young soldiers wanted to be able to drink beer in a home-like atmosphere.

Several months after installation the concession owners were petitioning for permission to remove most of the machines. Soldiers weren't using these machines enough to make it pay for the concessionaire. Now, most of them have been removed without any real concerted objection on the part of the soldiers.

When left on their own as individuals they proved they really didn't want the beer by not patronizing the machines. It's human nature to take some course of action just because someone else is doing it, even though a person will go along with a group even when he really wants something quite different. Fortunately, everyone doesn't think the same. The ones who have the courage to think and act differently usually have the most against the current. The effort they expend is in gaining something they want, not what someone else wants. Many times, the crowd decides they didn't really want what they said they wanted in the first place.

What they really wanted was what the independent thinker now already has. Sometimes it's not too late and the one who followed the crowd eventually arrives at his goal. Other times it's too late... his goal remains unobtainable.

Maybe you're one of them. Well-

Maybe you're one of them. Are you one of those people who call me on the telephone or write me a letter to tell me my troopers are stopping motorists and giving them tickets for "no reason at all?" I wouldn't know — you never gave your name!

You tell me you're a good citizen and a safe driver just using the Interstate for what it was intended — speed. And that "dumb cop" gave you a ticket.

You break my heart! I hope the next time you're tearing down the road at 85 m.p.h. that trooper catches you again. I hope he gives you another ticket and the traffic judge takes your license away.

I hope he catches you before you smash into a concrete bridge abutment at 85 m.p.h. and he has to pry your lifeless body out of that crushed speed machine.

I hope we can teach you a lesson with a ticket so maybe you won't cause a wreck and kill somebody else. You really break my heart telling me you don't have time to go to court about that ticket. I wish you could come with me to the scene of a wreck sometime.

I wish I could make you stand and watch a man write in the gravel on the shoulder of a highway while he waits for an ambulance that will be there too late to do anything but carry him to the morgue. I wish I could make you help separate the bits of bone and flesh of a whole family off the asphalt and into baskets.

You'd vomit — just like my troopers do, but then you'd think differently the next time you climbed into that car of yours.

You said you were driving safely when the trooper stopped you. The road was clear and there was no harm in edging over the speed limit a few miles per hour — you said.

I'm really impressed with your ability to judge road conditions. I'm only sorry that a trooper wanted to place a few months ago when a small truck with four children had a blowout at over 80 m.p.h. The truck had slowed him down, and his children would still have a father and his wife a husband.

Oh, am I getting you mad again? That man might have been mad if the trooper had stopped him. He might have written me a letter. But he'd be alive.

You letter doesn't bother me, friend. What bothers me is that you apparently haven't learned your lesson. You're probably going to get back behind the wheel of your car thinking you own the road and nothing can happen to you. You don't think about the other people on the road who want to go on living.

And you gave your kid driving lessons? You? Then he's probably gotten a couple of tickets too. It's no wonder he weaves in and out of traffic, speeds, and leaves stripes of burning rubber at stop lights.

I hope we can catch him too, mister, before we have to call you and your wife to come identify his body at the morgue. I don't want to watch you crying and wishing you hadn't let him have the car until he learned to drive maturely.

And you say you want my troopers to let you off with a warning. What you really want is for us to stop doing our jobs.

You want us to let you go until you meet another guy just like yourself — head on!

I wish you could come with me to a wreck and see the seared body of a victim after the fire department has finished its job of extinguishing 15 gallons of gasoline. I wish you could go with me to her home and help me tell her husband that his wife isn't coming home because some idiot ran her off the road while trying to pass her. I want you to help him explain why mommy won't be home.

There's still because you got the ticket and have to take home the broken words to go to court.

Lt. Gen. Connor addresses Ranger class graduation

Fifty-eight days of rigorous training came to a happy ending for the 127 officers, 46 soldiers, 5 Allied students, and 1 Marine of Ranger Class 6-72, as they were awarded their Ranger Insignia at graduation ceremonies at Todd Field, 16 December 1971.

Highlights of the ceremony came in two parts. First was the address to the class by Lt. Gen. Albert O. Connor, Commanding General, Third United States Army. The graduation was then closed out with a High Altitude Low Opening sky diving exhibition by Capt. Chuck White, Paratrooper Committee, Ranger Department.

Special presentations of the William O. Darby Award, Glass guidon, and award from the Association of the United States Army were made to each of the class Distinguished Honor Graduates. The Officer Distinguished Honor Graduate was 2nd Lt. Raymond D. Drummond, from the 62nd Airborne Division. P. Bragg N. C. who scored a total of 888 points out of the possible 1,000. The Enlisted Distinguished Honor Graduate was SSGT. Leo Brown, Co. D, 10th Special Forces, Ft. Devens, Mass., who scored 868 points. Brown has served two tours in Vietnam and holds awards of the CH, ARCOM, Air Medal, Bronze Star and Bronze Star with V.

There are five Honor Graduates recognized for having attained a minimum of 850 points; Capt. William J. Filippini, Capt. Mark E. Taylor, Capt. Vincent Trevino, 2nd Lt. Jeffrey B. Jones, and Capt.

Bruce M. Archibald from Canada.

The other Allied students, awarded their tabs and Leadership Pins from the Infantry School, were Capt. Mohamed A. Shabri, Saudi Arabia; 1st Lt. Mohammed D. Said, Jordan; 1st Lt. William J. H. Stutz, Canada; and 2nd Lt. Antonio E. Santa Cruz, Brazil.

One member of the Marine Corps to graduate was Sgt. James W. Reininger. Specially honored by promotion to the rank of Sp4, under the provisions of AR 600-50, for their successful completion of the Ranger course were Craig N. Gower, James L. McCloskey, and Dale P. Stannard.

Aloud-talking Huey

FORT BELVOIR, Va. — Friend and foe know about the helicopter's vast satellite, but now it can also talk!

In a way, yes, says the Army's Combat Development Command (CDC) in disclosing a unique airborne loudspeaker system called (what else) ALOUD. This is a double-bank of speakers and amplifiers mounted in the UH-1H ("Huey") to broadcast messages in psychological warfare and civil operations.

The "airborne talker" was tested recently by a project team at CDC's Experimental Command at Ft. Ord, Calif., where it was employed in three different flight patterns at several altitudes.

Four-man listening teams were placed at surveyed positions along a 66,000 meter course to record their levels of reception during straight, banking or hover flights from 2,000 to 5,000 feet altitude. Actually 12 different flight-and-altitude combinations were flown requiring about 118 hours of flying time.

While the hover mode gave ALOUD the best reception, it is the most dangerous for the Huey. Banking flight, especially at 2,000 and 3,000 foot levels, was more acceptable in the CDC analysis.

Retirement safety guide available

Most accidents to the elderly happen at home, but a great many potential hazards can be eliminated through safe design and furnishings, according to a new "Retirement Safety Guide" published by the National Retired Teachers Association and American Association of Retired Persons.

Adequate wiring and electrical systems and flame-retardant fabrics in home furnishings can reduce the hazard of fire, the greatest threat to home safety, the Guide notes.

The booklet offers a room-by-room analysis of ways to prevent other household accidents, including tips on how to use color to call attention to dangerous areas.

"Painting top and bottom steps on stairways a light color makes them more visible at night," the Guide suggests, "and painting medicine containers with bright splashes of color helps to designate which ones are for external use and which ones are to be taken internally."

Prepared as a comprehensive safety manual for older persons, the booklet also includes information about traffic safety for the elderly, both as pedestrians and drivers, and advice on how to prevent burglaries and guard against "door-to-door salesmen" who misrepresent products and prices.

The "Retirement Safety Guide" is offered free to all interested older persons as a service of the two Associations, the nation's largest organizations dedicated to helping older Americans achieve retirement lives of independence, dignity and purpose.

The Associations conduct a vigorous legislative representation program and sponsor many member services to help older persons stretch retirement incomes and maintain active involvement in community and national affairs.

Income reports due soon

ATLANTA — Georgia Veterans Service Director Pete Wheeler this week is reminding the more than 55,000 Georgia veterans and dependents who are on the Veterans Administration's pension rolls that they have only a short time remaining in which to file reports on their 1971 income.

Wheeler said, "The deadline for notifying the VA about personal income is Jan. 15, 1972. The VA must have the information on income by that date in order to determine the pension amounts for the coming year."

In a memo questionnaires are mailed each year on Nov. 1 to provide pensioners ample time in which to complete the forms and return them to the VA for processing. All pensioners, however, are not required to return the income questionnaires. New legislation which became effective this year eliminates this requirement of veterans and widows receiving pensions, and parents receiving dependency and indemnity compensation (DIC) payments, provided they are at least 72 years old and have been on the pension rolls for at least two consecutive years. Income questionnaires were not sent to persons meeting these requirements.

But to those who must submit information about their income, Wheeler urged them to do so promptly. "Failure to complete and return these questionnaires by Jan. 15," Wheeler warned, "could result in a suspension of payments, or a repayment of some benefits to the VA."

Any veteran or dependent wanting assistance in completing the questionnaires should contact the nearest office of the Georgia Department of Veterans Service.

197th in Orange Bowl Parade

A marching unit from Fort Benning's 197th Infantry Brigade participated in the annual Orange Bowl Parade in Miami, Fla. last Friday night.

Members of C Co. 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry, commanded by Capt. Jerome E. Wicker, left Ft. Benning December 29 to participate in the parade. The men were the first marching unit in the parade.

low a unit from the 197th to march in the parade.

Early in December Sp4 Daniel E. Barfield, a recruiter for the Miami area, began action toward obtaining permission to allow the 197th to march in the parade. He contacted Messer and discussed the possibility of having a unit march in the parade.

Messer stated that the project is "another program in a continuing effort to present the Army to the public."

The 68 men that marched in the parade stayed at Homestead AFB. After participating in the parade Friday night they attended the game Saturday night as guests of the Orange Bowl Committee.

Lt. Col. Robert W. Faulkner, commanding officer of the 1-29, stated that the "men" were impressed at the prospect of marching in the Orange Bowl Parade." He also stated that it was difficult to "select from many qualified and enthusiastic men as to who would march in the parade."

The parade marked the first time that the honor guard company has had an opportunity to exhibit itself to the public over television. Messer said that he was "very pleased at having the opportunity to show the 197th Inf. 3de unit to the national television public."

Post's Thrift Shop does good business

The Post Thrift Shop is open to everybody. Servicemen and civilians. Residents of Fort Benning and Columbus. Men and women.

Likewise, anyone may donate items to the Thrift Shop. In fact, donations are eagerly sought. Consigning articles for sale, however, is reserved to active military personnel and their adult dependents, retired military personnel and civilians with an authorized Fort Benning Identification card.

The Thrift Shop is a thriving business. Between $12,000 and $15,000 in merchandise is available to customers every day. Its yearly sales range from $50,000 to $90,000 — with 85 per cent of this amount returned to consignors in the form of "profits."

Much of the remainder goes to charitable cases. The Thrift Shop gives about $600 each month to the Fort Benning Officers Wives Club to be used toward welfare and scholarships.

The Thrift Shop, however, needs volunteer workers if it is to continue to serve the public. Faye Cochran, chairman of the Thrift Shop board and OWC 2nd vice-president, puts in more than 40 volunteer hours a week in various programs. She already has a dozen regular helpers, but needs more.

AIT students drive tanks

Advanced Individual Training (AIT) students who enlisted in the 19th Infantry Brigade under the Unit of Choice Option are presently undergoing training by Co. H, 69th Armor, 19th Support Battalion in tank driving.

The training exercises are in three phases, the first consisting of tactical driving. Tactical driving gives the soldier experience on how to maneuver the vehicle. The second phase of training is operational driving which instructs the individuals on the basis of tank driving and third phase consists of night driving using infra red equipment.

The course on tank maneuverability is the first time that individuals from AIT have been trained at Fort Benning for such exercises. More instruction is being planned on teaching the student the basics of driving. Being the first time that such training has taken place here the course will be emphasizing the techniques of different types of formations depending on the terrain.

Dick Gregory speaks to Ft. Carson soldiers

FT. CARSON, Colo. (ANP) — Dick Gregory, noted comedian and peace activist, has been appointed leader of what he calls the "human rights" movement, added the Army to the long list of audiences when he appeared before a packed field house at Ft. Carson, Colo.

Gregory expounded on what he sees as evil in the world, spending two-and-a-half hours before a crowd of 4,500 black and white soldiers.

It was Gregory's first speaking engagement on a military installation. He had served previously for 18 months in the Army.

Gregory was invited to talk at Carson by the post commander, Maj. Gen. John C. Bennett, and the post Racial Harmony Council. Other civil rights speakers who have spoken at the mountain post in the past year are Julian Bond, LeRoi Jones and Corky Gonzales.

Gregory recommended: "Lay off the pot, the alcohol and the hard stuff. We don't care about the old degenerates; they'll die pretty soon. It's the young slimy degenerates that we've got to look out for."

"Read the constitution of the United States," he said. "It's the most beautiful document ever written. Read it and make sure it works for the black people as well as the white."

"And forget about violence," he said. "It can't work as a long-term solution."

Gregory later spoke to the Racial Harmony council. "Look at this council as something bigger than here; it might be the solu-

Gingerbread man cookies

- 4 cups enriched flour
- 1 tsp. ginger
- 1 tsp. baking soda
- 1 tsp. salt
- 1 tsp. cinnamon
- 1 cup butter, softened
- 1 cup firmly packed light brown sugar
- ½ cup light molasses

Stir together dry ingredients. Cream butter and sugar until light and fluffy. Blend in molasses. Gradually add flour mixture. Mix thoroughly. Chill until firm, 1-2 hours. Divide dough into quarters. On large, ungreased baking sheet roll each quarter out one-eighth inch thick. Cut with 5-inch tall gingerbread man cutter. Remove dough between cookie cutouts. Reroll excess dough on another baking sheet. Bake cookies in preheated oven at 375 degrees for 7 to 8 minutes or until firm from baking sheets. Cool completely, decorate as lightly browned. Cool slightly before removing desired.

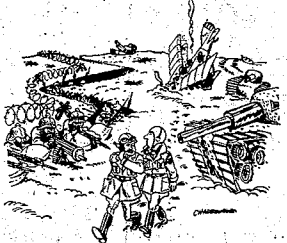

Makes 4 to 5 dozen cookies.

Frontiersman flick stars Harris as bitter trapper

Appearing in previous film roles as a whaling ship, a debonair spy, a king with a song on his lips and a lordly savage, Richard Harris portrays a character entirely different from any he has ever played before in Warner Brothers' "Man in the Wilderness," which opens on Sunday at a local theater.

Peamed for a second time with producer Sanford Howard in a follow-up to "A Man Called Horse," Harris plays Zachary Bass, a blasphemous frontiersman embittered by the tribulations that have haunted his steps from orphanage to whaling ship to the brink of death in the snowy glades of the uncharted Northwest Territory.

A member of a party of expeditionaries trapping and stealing furs in the land of the hostile Arrikara Indians (about 1820), Bass is manhandled by a grizzly bear and left to die by his fellow trappers. His indomitable will, leathered by hatred, keeps him

Gen. visits 197th

Gen. John L. Throckmorton, commander-in-chief of the U.S. Strike Command (CINCSTRIKE) at McMillan Air Force Base, visited Fort Benning and the 197th Infantry Brigade Thursday, Dec. 16, to make a speech and wish his son, a member of the Brigade.

At the Infantry School, Gen. Throckmorton addressed the graduating class of the Infantry Officer's Advanced Course 6-71.

At the 197th Infantry Brigade's Central Training Command (CTC), he addressed his son, Capt. John L. Throckmorton Jr., an instructor in the Brigade's recently begun AIT program for unit-of-choice enlistees in the 197th.

Capt. Jay C. Copley, who commands CTC, briefed Gen. Throckmorton on the conduct and objectives of the AIT program.

Gen. Throckmorton was accompanied by Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbot, Fort Benning commander; Lt. Col. Robert K. Strickland and Col. Clair L. Book, Gen. Throckmorton's special military assistant.

alive. Making his own clothes and weapons, Bass fights the animals and Indians for food as he dogs the expedition 600 miles bent on revenge.

A man who has never been aware of his true self, Zach Bass' communion with nature helps him to discard the taking of revenge, and he restructures his life.

Harris sees "Man in the Wilderness" as "a movie in which a man is reborn through the life forces of nature," and the character of Zach Bass as "a man in search of himself."

Hope entertains troops with troupe

Filmed highlights of Bob Hope's 21st Christmas entertainment troupe and the American servicemen will be aired Jan. 17, by NBC when it presents "The Bob Hope Christmas Show," a 90-minute color special.

Giving troops all over the world what they want—entertaining American troops is nothing new for Hope. Each year he tours military installations, he sees familiar faces from different times and places.

Beginning in 1941 and throughout World War II, he presented shows in the South Pacific and Europe. In 1948, he began his annual Christmas tours which have continued each year except a short period during the 1950s when health reasons prevented him from putting on shows.

Nabors, who starred as Gomez Pyle in the CBS-TV show "Gomez, Pyle, USMC," now hosts his own CBS show, "The Jim Nabors Hour." Nabors is also a noted singer as well as comedian.

Drug abuse, a major contributor to poor morale and in some cases addiction and even death, is one area that is being tackled at Fort Benning.

The Benning House, a half-way house for both alcoholics and drug addicts is another home of rescue designed to help today's troubled soldier. Here the soldier can learn to deal with his problems as long as he complies with the house rules of no violence, and no drugs. Everyone is expected to take part in group activities and to demonstrate his willingness to keep off drugs.

The Benning House can become home to any soldier who volunteers for the exemption program. The soldier who is a resident actually works with his unit during the day, but he lives in Benning House. "In short," says Jim Henry, Benning House assistant, "we ask him to give up his leisure time for his own rehabilitation."

Just how many Fort Benning soldiers are involved with drugs? According to a Provost Marshall's report prepared by Capt. James R. Lucas, no more than five per cent have actually experimented with heroin and, of those, only a few have become addicts. "It is backed up by Lucas' report which estimates that only one per cent or less of the soldiers abusing drugs are actually addicted to the hard drugs.

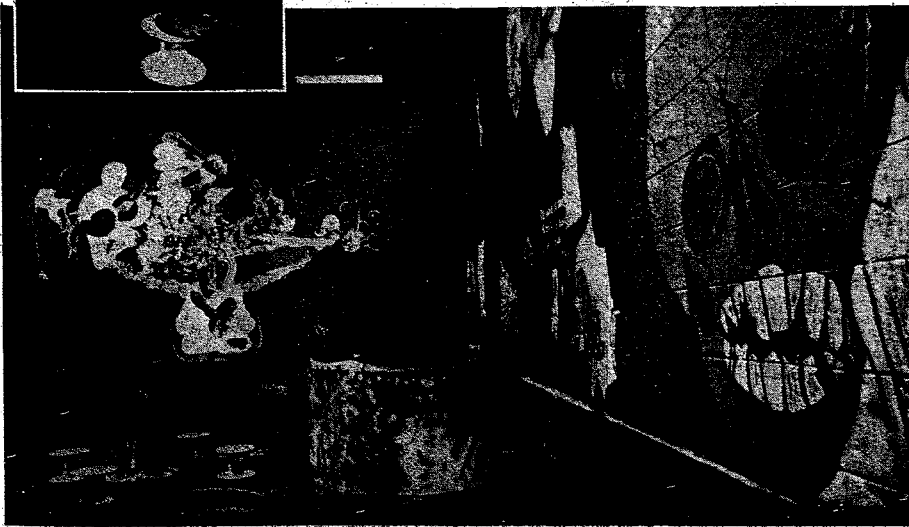

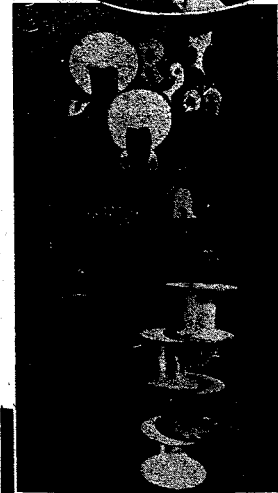

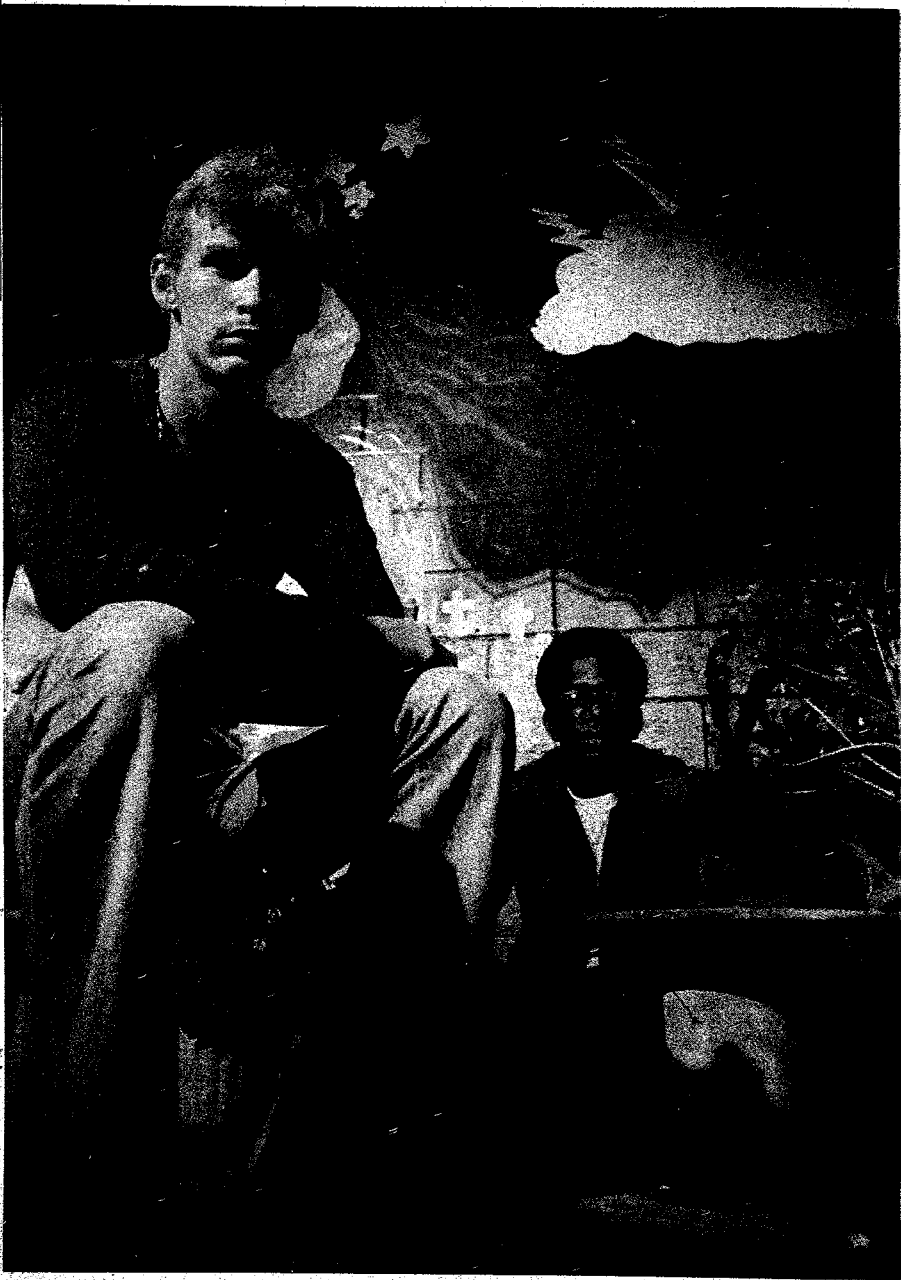

The Benning House staff say they see very few drug addicts, rather they see and treat the drug abuser. He seems to be the major cause for concern. He relies on drugs to help him deal with his problems, but he can be salvaged and returned to a useful and more meaningful life.

One method used by the Benning House staff is the mandatory participation in interaction groups at least three times each week. The basis for these groups is the "Synonym Game." Maj. George Trick, chief of Benning House explains the game by saying: "There are no particular assigned roles in the group. Participants are free to say what they want to say and do what they want to do. It's a process of presenting an image of yourself and having it challenged by other group members."

The game was designed to help people view themselves for what they really are, and to give them added insight into their problems. "Our society," says Trick, "needs to break down its set roles and let the people be what they really are, human beings. More importantly, the game is built on trust, an experience most of these kids have never had. Most of these kids," says Trick, "are afraid to have fun or to handle stress when they are in a band. So, I'm trying to create a learning environment that's fun. Then maybe some of these kids might not need drugs for an outlet when they realize they no longer need drugs to make themselves happy. The majority of these guys have never had any fun in their lives that wasn't connected with a needle or a pill."

When asked if Benning House and the "fun philosophy" worked, Trick recalled a recent trip to the Infantry Center Rest Center at Destin, Fla., when one "resident" surprisedly exclaimed, "Man, I had a ball building a sandcastle and I wasn't even high."

"That statement," believes Trick, "in itself, is worth our whole existence."

Home is where the mind is...

By Roger Pavey

The sound of a popular rock band echoed within the inner walls of Fort Benning's new spot. The words were simple, "come on people—now smile on your brother; everybody get together—try to love one another right now," and the soldiers fell right at home.

"This place is unreal. I just can't believe the Army is really like this," said one astonished soldier. The place everybody is talking about is Fort Benning's Coffeeshouse, a modern "hangout" for today's upright soldier. Here the soldier can relax and relieve his tensions by expressing himself in any way he wants.

It is hoped that the coffeeshouse will help ease problems for today's young soldier. Rap sessions on any subject flow with ease inside the cavernous black room. Important thoughts and messages from the soul are painted in all sizes and colors in the walls of the coffeeshouse. Little feet lead the way to popular expressions of the day. Fluorescent paint is as easily obtainable as popcorn, entertainment, punch and coffee, FREE.

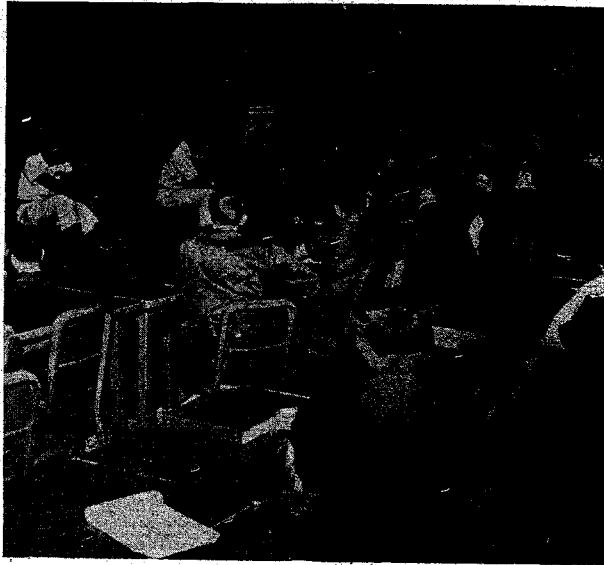

"We're trying to emphasize the individual and his creativity here," says Chaplain (Capt.) Bob H. Mask, head of the new spot. "The Army de-personalizes the individual and here we can personalize it for him. The way we can do this," says the chaplain, "is to give him a chance to express himself."

Expression, as one can see by the various graffiti inscribed on the walls and floor, is the soldier's key to freedom of the mind. Here a soldier—white, black or even psychedelic, can rap on any subject his mind wants. All the hang-ups, problems or prejudices can come out, thus giving the soldier a sense of needed tranquility.

The Coffeeshouse is indeed a strange place to visit. It brings to mind the college coffeeshouses of the pre-Beatle days. Then the students sought freedom of expression through spontaneous entertainment. Those were the days of Bob Dylan, and Woodie Guthrie; now the music is a little more sophisticated and the problems of the times are a little more dramatic, but the spirit remains.

Here relaxation is the theme and expression is the tool. The soldiers of Fort Benning built the Coffeeshouse themselves and it's their place to scream, laugh, rap, sleep, cry, or just create. Here the opportunity is theirs and theirs alone. For Chaplain Mask and his band of volunteers have "personalized" the Army for the patrons of the Coffeeshouse.

By Roger Pavay

Race relations, one of the more popular topics of conversation discussed at the many rap sessions taking place at the Coffeehouse, is being met head-on by the soldiers of Fort Benning. The Race Relations Coordinating Group (RRCG) headed by Maj. Tyrone Fletcher and the Equal Opportunity Officer, Robert Galer, has a massive program to ease racial tensions at Fort Benning.

The RRCG grew out of a 1969 staff study ordered by Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbot, post commander, to determine the extent of racial tension, if any, on post. When the study group discovered that the possibility of a confrontation did exist, immediate action was taken to reverse the trend. All units began to schedule regular meetings with their commanders in order to bring the problems out into the open.

The first meetings were effective in making unseen problems visible to both commanding officers and soldiers, but they failed to eliminate racial tension among the troops in all cases. Thus the Infantry Center set up its Moderator Training Program to take up the existing slack in the area of understanding racial problems.

The first meetings were effective in making unseen problems visible to both commanding officers and soldiers, but they failed to eliminate racial tension among the troops in all cases. Thus the Infantry Center set up its Moderator Training Program to take up the existing slack in the area of understanding racial problems.

This new course of instruction was set up to give designated soldiers, regardless of race or rank, the basic skills needed to improve communications among the troops. It is felt that both seminars and rap sessions at the various levels of command would be the tools needed for an effective race relations program.

The five-day course, with a new class starting each month, spans a wide range of related topics. Students are trained in the use of audiovisuals, group psychology, and modern techniques of instruction.

The Moderator Training Program also incorporates one of the more popular trends in modern education, role-playing. Just as its name suggests, role-playing is a realistic form of acting out a theme or an idea that is being taught. Much like theater or stage, each person in the class is assigned a specific character to portray. He is then encouraged by the class to give his own interpretation of the role as he has encountered it in real life.

At the end of the session both officers and enlisted men are able to see themselves as others see them. They observe both the good and bad qualities of everyone in the room. The lesson each participant learns, while taking part in role-playing, helps to eliminate the doubts and misunderstandings that cause so much dissension and racial strife.

This is the toughest part of the moderator's job. He has to identify and control racial problems that may arise in the class. He must identify trouble and find the cause before it gets out of hand. Once the student has a clear picture of the existing problem, it is hoped that the student will learn to deal with it with an open mind and a sense of fairness no matter how heated the class becomes.

Group members agreed that in order to absorb the new material, prejudice and long-held beliefs have to be put aside. One member, Pvt. Larry Henderson from Watts (district of Los Angeles), said, "I thought I had all the answers. I was down on the system. Now I'm not so sure. At least I've got some doubts about my doubts, and that's something."

Pvt. Sgt. Larry Sparks Jr., a black man from Birmingham, Ala., felt that even after 18 and a half years in the service, I've learned a great deal from the moderator class. If you want to lead, you've got to know what the kids are thinking. After all, they're the majority of the men in uniform.

Although Fort Benning's Moderator Training Program deals primarily with black-white tensions, (the most likely basis for conflict) the program is very flexible. Moderators are able to apply their moderating skills towards other groups as well, such as, problems within other ethnic groups. Hopefully the pilot program here at Fort Benning will be instituted at other Army installations in an effort to soothe ethnic relations.

SUBJECT: The Army Suggestion Program Special Campaign

All Fort Benning Personnel

- In the first six months of this fiscal year, adopted constructive ideas for improvement in Government operations, submitted by military and civilian personnel at Fort Benning, accumulated savings in tax dollars an excess of 1.2 million. This impressive record is indeed a source of great pride for all of us.
- During this period of conversion to an all volunteer Army, available manpower resources will continue to be curtailed. Our Third Army commander has requested a special campaign during the month of January for solicitation of MANPOWER SAVING IDEAS (MSI).
- To insure campaign success and maximum improvement in our operations, I would ask that each of you redouble your efforts in reviewing all practices, procedures, tasks or assignments to identify for substitution of your MSI. Our best effort is essential in the conservation of one of our most vital resources - manpower.

Avn. Cmd. supports IBOC

Realism is what the USAIS demands. While training a cadette must be exposed to the situations he is likely to find in combat. Recently the 197th Aviation Company supported an IBOC exercise. The task at hand was the pickup and insertion of squad size elements into enemy territory.

This exercise, for the 197th Aviation Company began many days prior to the training schedule dates. First priority was given to the selection of a suitable pickup site. The location had to be similar to those found in Viet Nam and still comply with safety requirements. The next area to be tackled was that of the communications procedures and requirements and finally the assigning of pilots and crew chiefs.

The exercise was very impressive. Coordination between ground elements and the aircraft was conducted by means of a man-packed PRC-25 radio, just as it is so often done in combat. The location was confined and remote. Pick-ups and insertions were conducted using the same methods the UH-1 pilots had used during their tours in Viet Nam. With help from marginal weather and 20 MPH winds, these young officers were given an idea of what to expect on their first actual insertion into enemy territory.

Brandt named manager of Astros

COLUMBUS, Ga. — Jackie Brandt, an outfielder here back in 1954 when the club was then a member of the Sally League, has been named manager of the Columbus Astros for the 1972 season and thus becomes the second skipper to be named for the new year in the Southern League.

Earlier this month the Charlotte Hornets named Johnny Goryl as their manager for the coming campaign.

The 37-year old Brandt, who hit .313 here in 1953 games in 1954, piloted the S.C. team in the Western Carolina league last year. The announcement of Brandt's appointment was made by Jim Kroeger, general manager of the Columbus Astros.

The 1971 Columbus team was piloted by Cliff Davley and the Astros finished in the cellar league.

After leaving Columbus, Brandt spent a total of 11 seasons in the major leagues.

The new Columbus skipper played in the majors with St. Louis, the New York Giants, San Francisco, Baltimore, Philadelphia and Houston.

Meanwhile the new Charlotte manager, Goryl, was manager of the Lynchburg club in the Carolina league this past year and prior to that in a major league.

Harry Warner, Charlotte manager who directed the Hornets to the Dixie Association championship last year, has been named manager of the Minnesota farm club at Tacoma, Wash., a class-AAA club.

Meanwhile the Southern League is still without its eighth member for the 1972 season. Apparently the other league member will be either Meigs or Asheville, either team working with the Baltimore Orioles.

Knoxville recently rejoined the league, working with the Chicago White Sox who last year worked at Asheville. Bill Reep, who served as general manager here last year, has been named to the same post with the new Knoxville team.

Southern League play is scheduled to get underway next year on April 11th and the state will close out on August 31st. The teams will play a 140-game schedule.

Pony Club members receive C, D ratings

Seventeen members of the Benning Pony Club recently received C and D ratings during competition at the Fort Benning Hunt Club.

The riders were presented certificates by Mrs. Paul Gorman, wife of Brig. Gen. Gorman, assistant commandant of the Infantry School.

Receiving C ratings were Patricia Schneider, Cindy Thomas, Betsy Johnson, Janet Guthrie and Betsy Tully. D ratings were awarded to Mary Boyd, Renee Gibson, Karen Phillips, Barbara Lewis, Kitty Boyd Kim Dillon, Karla Hurdle, Joan Kennedy, Sherry Cameron, Cindy Wurman, Tammy Kendall and Jasm Batten.

Competition was limited to Inspections, dressage and stadium jumping and cross country oral and written tests.

The Benning Pony Club, with a membership of 42 riders, was formed in 1955 and is a member of the U.S. Pony Club. Membership ranges from 8 to 18 years of age, with a maximum age of 21.

The aim of the Pony Club is to educate young riders on the proper care of their pony and to teach proper riding techniques. Membership in the club is open to all dependents of active duty and retired military personnel.

Three Lakers named to West All-Stars

NEW YORK (AP) — Guards Jerry West and Gail Goodrich and center Wilt Chamberlain of the record-breaking Los Angeles Lakers were named Monday to the West Team for the National Basketball Association's 22nd annual All-Star Game.

West and Goodrich, the scoring heroes in the Lakers' 14th straight winning streak, will be in the starting line-up for the game Jan. 18 at Los Angeles while Chamberlain will play behind Kareem Abdul-Jabbar of the Milwaukee Bucks.

The starting forwards in voting by sports writers and sportscasters in the 17 NBA cities, will be Spencer Haywood of the Seattle SuperSonics and Bob Love of the Chicago Bulls.

Lt. Col. Hayes new 197th deputy

New to the 197th Infantry Brigade is Lt. Col. Aldric Hayes, Deputy Brigade Commander, from Sneads, Fla.

Before being assigned to the 197th Hayes was the commanding officer of Hq. Detachment, 2nd Training Brigade, USARC at Ft. Benning, Ga.

Hayes joined the service in Oct. 1951 in Ala. after graduating from the Tuskegee Institute, Tuskegee, Ala., with a bachelor of science (BS) degree.

While being in the service Hayes has been stationed at many Army installations. When asked what his best duty assignment has been he said that "the finance school at Ft. Benjamin Harrison, Ind., was quite unique in that I served as the Director of the department of Military Science. At the time it seemed quite unusual but it has become one of my best duty stations."

Hayes has also been stationed in the Republic of Vietnam with the U.S. Military Assistant Command Hayes, Deputy Brigade Commander, from Sneads, Fla.

In Sept. 1968 Hayes was assigned to Fort Benning as the assistant executive officer of Hq. Detachment, 2nd Training Brigade. He also held the position of executive officer and commanding officer of the same Brigade.

Hayes is succeeding Lt. Col. Henry Doctor, former deputy brigade commander who is now Chief of project YOLAR at Fort Benning.

Hope's troupe brings troops music, laughs and girls

One of America's few black country and western with RCA only six years singers. Pride has been but has become one of that organization's biggest selling recording artists. Harris' acting career began at the London Academy of Music and Dramatic Art. After a successful stage career he made his first screen appearance in "Shake Hands with the Devil." Although he returns to the stage from time to time, Harris has devoted most of his energies to films as a singer and actor. "The Red Desert," "Cromwell" and "A Man Called Horse." Soutful in sound and appearance, Sunday's Child entertained the troops with a rare blend of singing and choreography. Composed of three teenagers from Portland, Ore., the group showed why it has made it in the soul, rhythm and blues fields.

The Deb Stars, all professional actresses selected for the show by Hollywood makeup artists and hair stylists, drew plenty of "oohs" and "aahs." Deb Stars of past years have included Raquel Welch, Jill St. John, Anne Francis and Susan St. James (LRF).

Berrigan Play Inspiration to Gregory Peck

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "I am a Catholic," said Gregory Peck, "I was raised as a Catholic, in a very strict way. But in my later years I found myself going to church less and less—mostly for Christmas and Easter and a few other occasions each year. I had drifted away from the Church, as they say."

"I have asked myself why, and the best answer I can come up with is that the Church offered me no intellectual stimulus. It concerned itself with matters of theology and presented little for the mind."

In a rare moment of introspection, Peck explained why he was attracted to "The Trial of the Catowine Nines," the play written by Father Daniel Berrigan. It concerns the trial of Berrigan, his priest friend Philip and seven others on charges of burning draft files in Cantonville, Md.

Peck is producing the film version of the play, using most of the cast who appeared in it at the Mark Paper Forum here and in New York. The stage director, Gordon Davidson, will make his debut as a film director. The film is being made by Peck's Melville Productions on a budget of $250,000.

"When I saw the play here, I was greatly affected by it," said the actor. "It seemed to me to be a great deal to say, not only about the Vietnam war, but about other things as well. Particularly about activism."

"The Berrigan brothers could have spent their lives in contemplation and service to the Church. But their consciences were deeply stirred by what they believed to be an immoral war, and they chose to break the law to make a point."

Peck admitted that the movie is likely to be condemned by some people while being praised by others. "That doesn't concern him. He has been that route before.

"It seems like a modest matter to speak out against antisemitism now," he remarked. "But it was considered daring when we made 'Gentleman's Agreement' in 1947."

"My own agent advised me against it. He said, 'I think it would be bad for your career to play a Jew on the screen. You're just establishing yourself now, and a lot of people will resent the picture. Anti-Semitism runs very deep in this country.'

"All of us concerned with the picture—Darryl Zanuck, Moss Hart, Ella Kazan and the rest of the cast—were convinced we were doing the right thing. And 'Gentleman's Agreement' was not only a big money maker, it went on to win the Academy Award."

"To Kill a Mockingbird" also dealt with a social issue. It was a big success. I showed that in the South

Post gets Army's first all-volunteer unit

C Company, 1st Battalion, (Mechanized), 58th Infantry (Patriots) of the 197th Infantry Brigade officially became the Army's first all-volunteer unit on Monday.

Capt. Frederick W. Heath, company commander, has been in charge of the 217-man unit since late Sept. when unit-of-choice volunteers were arriving to replace draftees leaving the service.

The soldiers in C company, nicknamed the "Cougars," all enlisted under the 197th's unit-of-choice enlistment option which guarantees them a 15-month stabilized tour of duty with the unit.

Part of the Army's goal of attaining all-volunteer status by 1973, the 197th's program is ahead of schedule and is projected to boost the Brigade to the goal by mid-1972.

C company, in addition to becoming the first all-volunteer unit in the brigade and the Army, was one of the first companies to engage in Advanced Individual Training (AIT) of the brigade's unit-of-choice enlistees. Many of the enlistees joined the Brigade after Basic Combat Training (BCT), are given AIT by the 197th and stay for the remainder of their 15-month tour of duty. Others, who take AIT at other posts, also stay with the 197th for the rest of their initial duty.

C company's 152 unit-of-choice soldiers are comprised of 87 men who took AIT at other posts and 65 who are nearing completion of the unit's AIT program.

Capt. Heath remarked that, "The big advantage of having AIT conducted within the unit, is that once the training is finished the unit remains cohesive because the soldiers are still part of the unit which trained them."

Soldiers in C Company reflect Capt. Heath's appraisal of the program and embellish his remarks with their views on the Army and the VOLAR program.

PFC. William Sorenson of Deland, Fla. said of the "Cougar" company and the 1-58th Infantry, "People treat you right here. If you have a problem you can ask someone about it and you can get it solved." Of the unit's role in training men at Fort Benning he added, "It helps you to learn more about the military and dealing with people."

"I like the VOLAR deal and the way it works in this unit," said another member of C Company, PFC. Richard Mercier. He said the unit's training, "keeps us conditioned and ready for any assignment."

A 13-year Army veteran from Parma, Ohio, SFC. Paul J. Reid likes being with an all-volunteer unit because, "they (the soldiers) know they are in the Army because they want to be, which makes them interested in their jobs and willing to be taught."

Reid believes VOLAR will work "as long as you look out for the soldier's interests and have them do what they should be doing."

The 1-58th Infantry's Headquarters Company and A Company are also conducting AIT for the brigade's unit-of-choice enlistees.

The Army's first all-volunteer unit, C Company, 1st Battalion (Mechanized), 58th Infantry (Patriots) of the 197th Infantry Brigade, formed for its first work call on Mon. Jan. 10.

Post soldiers to get additional schooling opportunity

Fort Benning personnel may be eligible for further schooling under a recent change made in the Army Civil Schooling Program.

A keystone in the new program is a new DA policy which states, "To provide the Army with the degree of expertise needed to meet its requirements and to perform a variety of missions, personnel will require increasing civil education. This is in consonance with advances in technology and the ever increasing need for communication and cooperation with the civilian elements of Government and with industry."

Revised educational goals for military personnel were also approved as follows: (1) All commissioned officers will have baccalaureate degrees and 20 per cent of all career commissioned officers will have graduate degrees; (2) All career warrant officers will have associate degrees before they reach 15 years service; (3) All enlisted men will have a high school education as soon as possible after entering the service and career NCOs are encouraged to complete two years college equivalent study before they reach 15 years service.

To provide increased opportunities for officers and enlisted personnel to participate in full time college work at the undergraduate and graduate levels, the following changes to the time authorized for study under the Degree Completion Program (Often called the "Bootstraps" program) described in Army Regulation 621-5 are announced:

- (1) Enlisted personnel and warrant officers will be authorized up to 18 months for the completion of baccalaureate or advanced degree requirements.
- (2) Commissioned officers will be authorized up to 18 months for completion of a baccalaureate degree. Priority will go to officers who can complete degree requirements in the least amount of time. Up to 15 months will be program remain unchanged. For example, application procedures as stated in Army Regulation 621-5 are still the same:

Certain portions of the degree completion authorized for completion of an advanced degree in a discipline for which the officer's career branch has a requirement validated by the Army Educational Requirements Board. Officers obtaining advanced degrees under the later provision will be subject to an immediate utilization assignment after their schooling and follow on re-utilization assignments.

Post to play major role in Army-Air Force test

BY JIM SWINK

Fort Benning will play a major role in a joint exercise, Operation Brave Shield I, involving some 7,000 U.S. Army and Air Force personnel. The exercise will begin Jan. 11 and is scheduled to end Jan. 28. The advance party of some 400 troops will start arriving at Fort Benning Jan. 15.

Operation Brave Shield I is a STRIKE directed exercise designed to demonstrate the capability of the U.S. Army and Air Force units. This will be the first official joint exercise under the direction of the U. S. Readiness Command.

In this exercise, U. S. Readiness Command forces will participate in a strategic deployment using the final staging area.

On Jan. 14, unconventional warfare forces will be inserted into the assigned operational area at Ft. Stewart. After a simulated time lapse, the main participating force will be strategically deployed to the final staging area at Fort Benning. On D-Day, Jan. 21, an airborne assault will be conducted with follow-up air-lifted operations. These operations will be supported by tactical air power. The following two days of the exercise will include ground and airborne assault operations to locate and defeat aggressor forces. These aggressor forces personnel will be provided by Ft. Bragg, N.C. About 45 C-130s and numerous C-141s and helicopters will be involved in main body troops will be bivouacked at Fort Benning for two days before making the assault at Fort Stewart.

Major training objectives of Brave Shield I are to exercise joint procedures for strategic air movement with emphasis directed toward deployment of an assault helicopter company and an air cavalry troop by military airlift C-141 aircraft; deployment of a light armor company (M551 Sheridan) and a Vulcan Battery (Mobile Anti-Aircraft weapons); and organization and operation of a theater level airlift control element at Pope Air Force Base, N.C., as the continental U.S. onload base for the Army Forces. These forces will be flown to a simulated overseas base for final staging. This final staging base will be Fort Benning.

From Fort Benning, the parachute assault will be flown to the objective area, Ft. Stewart, Ga., to conduct a parachute assault. The parachute assault will be made by 1,200 members of the 82nd Airborne Division.

Units other than Fort Benning that will be taking part in Operation Brave Shield I are the 33d Tactical Fighter Wing from Eglin Air Force Base, Fla.; the 35th Tactical Fighter Wing from Myrtle Beach Air Force Base, S.C.; the 175th Tactical Fighter Group (Air National Guard) from Baltimore, Md.; the 82nd Airborne Division from Ft. Bragg, N.C.; and personnel from Ft. Stewart, Georgia.

The exercise director for Brave Shield I is Maj. Gen. Hubert S. Cunningham, a former Infantry Center Chief of Staff. He is now Director of Operations, J-5, United States Readiness Command.

The joint task force will be commanded by Brig. Gen. Edward C. Meyer, assistant division commander, 82nd Airborne Division. The Air Force commander will be Brig. Gen. Jack Bellamy, commander of the 42d Tactical Fighter Wing, Holloman Air Force Base, N.M.

Forward . . . march

Ready to begin marching, members of C Company, 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry of the 197th Brigade stand near a palm tree and a float at the start of the Orange Bowl Parade in Miami, Fla. The men led the December 31st parade down the main streets of Miami.

3:56.9 miler

IOBC student smashes PT test mile, 4:23

By Martin McWilliams
World-class miler Chuck LaBenz — in the guise of an IOBC second lieutenant — smashed Fort Benning's Physical Training Test mile record by almost a half-minute during a routine test last week.

The 23 year old Arizona State graduate erased the old mark of 4:51 with a 4:23 effort, despite his combat boots and a slow start.

"I might have been able to do better, but I got caught in a crowd at the start, and my first lap was slow," remarks, LaBenz.

He does better, of course, in track flats; his personal best in the mile is 3:56.08.

"Could be break four minutes in boots?"

"No way. You can really feel the difference; you just can't relax with boots on." LaBenz' budding career as a middle-distance man has earned him a clutch of Arizona schoolboy and state records. He regularly competes against the best milers in the world, and is a familiar sight to fans who follow track on television. He's a good bet for next year's Olympics at Munich.

"I've already begun training for the tryouts," says Chuck. "I like to work out twice a day, up to 20 miles a day." He usually runs after his Infantry Officers Basic course training day is over, but will also run in the early morning if time allows.

Does the cool weather bother him? "Cool? It's very warm here." He doesn't even always wear a sweatshirt. "The humidity is unbelievable here," he adds.

Since coming to Fort Benning, Chuck, a six-footer, has dropped from 170 to about 150 pounds which he considers a good competition weight.

Now working on his time, he doesn't feel that his mark of 3:56 represents his peak.

LaBenz hopes to stay in the Army and run track. The Special Services program "offers a great opportunity for me, and I feel that I could do well for the Army," says LaBenz.

He would like to wear the Army's colors at the Olympics, in fact.

Chuck feels that middle-distance records will fall in the next year's Olympics. The 1,500 meter record will go by a full second, he expects, simply because there are so many top milers around.

Even if the great Jim Ryan were to regain his old form, "he won't be the factor he was," notes Chuck, "because there will be so many (three or four) right there with him."

Will the 3:50 barrier be broken in the near future? "There are quite a few people capable of breaking it right now; it's just a combination of the right place at the right time — with the right motivation," reasons Chuck. "I think a sub-3:50 is very possible . . . but maybe not this year."

Officer Candidates from the 50th Co., 5th Bn., TSR, help pack canned food which was donated by the 50th Company for the Fort Benning Community Services project. Emergency Food Locker Program.

50th OC Co. helps AER

The 50th Officer Candidate Company, 5th Student Battalion, The School Brigade (TSB), made it a point to 'give' this past Christmas holiday by organizing a canned food collection for the Emergency Food Locker Program.

Kernit Price, Student Council President, was informed of this particular Community services project at Fort Benning by Chaplain (Capt.) Philip J. Casibary and through their combined efforts 178 cans of assorted canned goods were donated to the Food Locker project.

Community Services has implemented the assistance program to aid dependents of active duty personnel with financial problems. The program is well used and food resources are often exhausted at the end of each month.

The case of 50th Company included a contribution of money which was used to rebuild toys and buy food for needy service families.

Christmas was also a little brighter for the patients at Marine Army Hospital where decorations were donated by each of the six platoons of the 50th Company.

Employment for vets a nationwide effort

By GEORGE GINGLELL

It may be news to some that employment for returning military veterans is becoming a problem. We are advised that Fort Benning is discharging around 75 veterans per day. In the near future, that figure is expected to increase to 300 discharges per day. These men are usually between 20 and 24 years old. Most will return to homes in this part of the Southeast. They, like the rest of us, have to earn a living. A nationwide effort is about to be launched to promote the employment of veterans. In some cases, it may mean that business people will have to make room to provide jobs for these men. While business has been somewhat below top level, here and there, the prospects for the coming year are apparently more hopeful than they have been recently.

As the war winds down in Vietnam, every community will be faced with the problem of jobs for veterans. They will need employment soon after discharge. Some of them, like veterans from other wars, will band together and form their own businesses. They will seek out and find needs that no one else in the community is properly filling. Local businessmen can help in that type of situation, too.

We would call upon every employer to give this matter serious consideration. Our veterans deserve that much. And more. Many of these young men will have usable skills, many will be trainable. When they have an income, they are contributing members to the local economy. When they don't, they are a cost factor in the local economy.

Let's give these former fighters a fighting chance to make their ways back to useful civilian life.

Segregation dead, legally speaking

Twenty years ago, an executive order outlawed racial segregation in the U.S. armed forces. That directive was designed to usher in a new era of equal opportunity for all Americans in uniform, to end unequal treatment and forced separatism based on race and color.

Segregation, legally speaking, was dead in the military. But this simple order did not alleviate many of the difficulties caused by segregation. Orders, it seems, can change institutions more easily than it can men's minds — and hearts.

The mind is the origin of man's likes and dislikes, including his likes and dislikes of people. These feelings are the result of one's experiences and environment. Everyone is guilty of some kind of prejudice, whether he wants to admit it or not.

Prejudice cannot be controlled by regulations or executive orders. Although military service can alter a person's views tremendously, many deep seated convictions never can be erased. Two people can wear the same uniform and even be in the same unit but feel uncomfortable together. Soldiers on both sides of the color line say, "I'll do it, but I don't have to like it." These feelings, which breed unrest and frustration, often lead to harsh words, fights and even riots.

Suspicion and distrust are frequent by-products of this relationship. Take one statement made by a black soldier in a race relations seminar: "When an MP sees a group of white soldiers standing on a corner he passes it off as a bull session. When he sees a group of Mexicans standing there he figures they might cause trouble so he keeps an eye on them. When he sees a group of blacks he immediately assumes that something is brewing and that he'd better break them up."

Fear is a particularly important factor. A white soldier sees the black power salute as a threat to his way of life or as defiance to the establishment. A black hears the world "boy" and takes it as an insult to his pride and manhood. Many whites worry that black citizens want to change society to suit their own needs.

Many whites are genuinely confused by "black presence" of the past decade. They can't understand why the young soldier of today is so demanding. They can't understand why he prefers to be called "black" rather than "Negro" or "colored." Most if all they can't understand that the black drive toward unity is not a return to segregation, but simply a recognition of brotherhood and an effort to attain a distinctive black identity.

The black soldier wants to be recognized for what he is and what he has the ability to do. He wants to be an integral part of the establishment. Whites and blacks may work together from 8 to 5, but they still live in a totally different society.

The military is attempting to establish and maintain a line of communication between these now separate worlds. Misunderstanding, mistrust and fear of change must be rooted out and eliminated.

The military establishment must do its best to insure that it is representative of all cultures, that it is a true "mixing vat" of interests. For example, military clubs should offer all modes of entertainment. The black soldier does not like country and western music because it reminds him of something he'd rather forget. Similarly, the average white soldier does not prefer soul music because he does not completely understand or identify with it.

Once we produce an establishment that reflects everyone's needs and likes, people will have less reasons to form parochial groups. Once such groups dissolve, the color line will become a "telegraph" line for communicating, integrating and learning. The black soldier will find that his white brother is — a brother. The white soldier will learn about the black culture he now finds so strange.

Success depends on both commanders and their men. The commander must sponsor programs that will have wide appeal in his unit. His men, in turn, must approach these activities in good spirit and with open minds. Commander's Call occasionally should include a program in which men can speak out on racial matters troubling them. Dayrooms should have adequate black literature. Post exchanges, commissaries, movies and clubs should offer material of interest to all segments of military society.

Above all, we must remember that good race relations are an individual responsibility. We must search our consciences. Open our minds. Learn. Accept. Sacrifice.

We can — and must — meet the challenge. But most important, we must understand. (W.F.J.)

Expectant parents class begins Feb. 1 at MAH

Pregnancy and childbirth are normal, satisfying happenings. It is believed that through a thorough program of education, the expectant father and mother can be prepared both physically and emotionally to make childbirth and parenthood a satisfying and rewarding experience.

The Army Health Nursing Service, in conjunction with the Obstetrics Department, Martin Army Hospital, is beginning another series of Expectant Parents' Classes on Feb. 1, 1972. The series consists of four classes, each two hours long, on the first four Tuesday nights of each month. Classes are held in the conference room on the second floor of Martin Army Hospital.

The sessions improve your knowledge of pregnancy, childbirth, and newborn babies. Movies, slides, short talks, and discussion groups help to explain the physical structure of the male and female, reproduction, body changes, signs of labor and infant care.

The first class includes prenatal care, psychological aspects of parenthood, and exercises. The second class is labor and delivery, the third is Martin Army Hospital procedures and a tour of Labor and Delivery, and the fourth is infant care, with a special session on breast feeding. It is best to start with the first class in the series and continue with the same group; however, if you should miss one class, you can make it up in the next series.

Particular care is taken to make each expectant mother and father aware of forthcoming events.

Vinegar clean

To remove hard - water, mineral accumulation from glass or ceramic coffee-makers — such as coffee-makers — boil the utensil in a solution of half water, half vinegar, then rinse.

Cork out

One should use adhesive tape rather than cork to cover the bottom hole of salt and pepper shakers because tape is easier to remove.

Red Cross course offered at Benning

Military dependents, 18 years of age and older, who are interested in becoming Red Cross volunteers, may now apply to attend the organization's basic training course.

Interviews are being held at the Red Cross field office located in Vibbert Street at Ingersoll. To make an appointment call 545-4122, 6577653 or 688-8289. The course begins Jan. 24.

Due to transfers, the number of volunteers has shrunk and new personnel are badly needed.

The course is rarely offered more than three times a year — and is required for all potential volunteers.

HAVING HIS CAKE. . . . With wife Jean looking on, CSM George H. Hamill slices out a chunk of birthday cake to celebrate the addition of another year to his life. The brief party took place in the headquarters of 2nd Bn., The School Brigade, to which Hamill is assigned.

Tangy beans and chops will tickle your taste buds

With the right amount of seasoning, this dish of brick oven baked beans and pork chops will tickle your family's taste buds.
1 22-oz. glass pot brick oven baked beans
1 8-oz. can barbecue sauce
1/4 cup red pepper sauce
1/2 cup garlic powder
1/2 tsp. salt
1/2 tsp. pepper
1 medium onion, sliced
1 tsp. cooking oil
1 8-oz. can crushed pineapple, drained
1/4 cup cornflake crumbs.

Combine beans, barbecue sauce and red pepper sauce. Place half of this mixture in a rectangular baking dish (6 inches by 9 inches by 2 inches). Dust the chops with a mixture of garlic powder, salt and pepper. Fry the chops and onion in the oil until browned. Add these to the dish of beans and cover with remaining beans. Put crushed pineapple on top and sprinkle crumbs over it. Bake at 375 F. for 50 minutes. Makes four servings.

Girl scouts taught outdoor skills

Several Fort Benning Girl Scouts spent a day learning the basics of outdoor crafts at Camp Hide-away recently.

Ten members of Boy Scout Troop 287 set up a course of nine stations in which they taught the girls different skills needed in outdoor situations. These consisted of backpacking, lashing, knots, knife and ax safety, cooking camp crafts and gimmicks, fire building, first aid and trail signs.

The girls, who were divided into groups of five, received about 20 minutes of instruction at each station.

The girl scouts were from Troop 129 and Junior Troop 185. Their leaders included Mrs. Nelson Newcomb, Mrs. James Hill, Mrs. Terry Hill and Mrs. John Bates.

Along the fem line

By Carol May
Thank you for continuing to contribute to the "Fem-Line" over the holidays. Wishing you a belated "Happy New Year," please give us your understanding as we strive to print your news. We always welcome your suggestions to help us improve our column. Help make this the best "news year" possible by thinking of "Fem-Line" when you want publicity.

OWC
Scholastic achievement awards will be offered again this year by the Officers' Wives Club of Fort Benning. Students whose mothers are members of the OWC may apply on or before Jan. 31. Newly arrived officer families also are eligible. Applications will be available in February at the high schools in the Columbus area. For more information call Mrs. W. Strong, chairman of the awards committee at 945-4220.

197TH
The ladies of the 2nd Bn., 104th Field Arty., entertained the ladies of the 197th Inf. Bde. at a Christmas tea, Dec. 15 at the Supper Club from 1 to 3 p.m.

Mrs. James Wurman welcomed Mrs. Edna Kennedy, wife of Col. Kennedy, 19th commander to the tea. This was the first brigade "ladies" function since Col. and Mrs. Kennedy came to the brigade. Other special guests were Mrs. R. S. Fye, Mrs. Paul Gorman, Mrs. William Stewart, Mrs. Perry Hope and Miss Deborah Wurman. The Infantry chorus performed several musical selections, including Christmas carols and contemporary songs, during the tea.

Banquet tables were formed in a cross and covered with five-length red tablecloths. Live poinsettias, fresh holly branches and mistletoe furnished the centerpiece for the tables, and a white dove was suspended from the ceiling over the centerpieces. A variety of finger foods, hot tea, coffee, eggnog and punch were served. Fresh holly branches and mistletoe were arranged around the punchbowl. Christmas decorations were placed throughout the Supper Club, and a large Christmas tree, decorated with red and gold balls, was placed on the stage. Christmas music provided a festive atmosphere.

The tea, which was sponsored by the ladies of the 2nd Bn., was headed by Mrs. Wurman and assisted by Mrs. Robert J. Thomas and other ladies of the battalion.

The mood was festive and the atmosphere enhanced by colorful Christmas decorations at the December coffee for the wives of Headquarters, 197th Inf. Bde.

Mrs. Ronald Pruitt was hostess, and Mrs. Robert Ariyoshi co-hostess. The ladies welcomed the new brigade commander's wife, Mrs. Edwin Kennedy. Also joining the group were Mrs. William Harbour, Mrs. Milton Perkins, Mrs. William Sansome and Mrs. Kevin Riley.

Hand-knit miniature red stockings filled with peppermint cans were presented to the ladies by Mrs. Pruitt. The table was covered with a holiday red cloth and plates were filled with cookies from the hostesses' favorite recipes. A silver bowl of punch added to the festive atmosphere of the table.

Mrs. Robert Orland conducted the business meeting. Mrs. Fredrick Bissell, Christmas bazaar chairman, reported that the group project was an outstanding success. Mrs. Pruitt extended thanks to the ladies for bringing gifts that were distributed to underprivileged children to make their Christmas brighter.

Special guests were Mrs. Sylvia Fawcett, Mrs. James Wurman and Mrs. Hollis Messer. Leaving was Mrs. David Hoh, wife of the brigade chaplain, Maj. Hoh will be assigned to Main Post.

AVIATION COMMAND
A Christmas coffee was the December function for the ladies of the 197th Aviation Bde. It was held in the home of Mrs. R. D. Berry, with Mrs. Jimmy Edwards co-hostess.

The centerpiece on the table was a Christmas tree covered with salami, cherry tomatoes, shrimp and olives accompanied by avocado and cocktail dips. Eggnog, punch, coffee, and Christmas cookies also were served.

Some company ladies brought along their favorite handmade Christmas decorations and explained how they were made. An egg and Christmas cookies shaped styrofoam festooned with red haws were among items displayed.

Mrs. Edwards, on behalf of the ladies presented Mrs. John Stillman with a silver tray as a farewell gift.

The highlight of the morning was the exchange of gifts which each lady brought.

Next month's coffee will be held in the home of Mrs. Joseph Gwyder on Jan. 19.

The officers' wives of the 66th Trn. Co. met at the home of Mrs. Monty. The next coffee will be held in the home of Mrs. Edward Damon, Jan. 12 at 10:30 a.m.

The officers' wives of the 66th Trn. Co. met at the home of Mrs. Monty. The next coffee will be held in the home of Mrs. Edward Damon, Jan. 12 at 10:30 a.m.

LEADERSHIP DEPT.
Brown Hall was the scene of the Leadership Committee's annual Christmas party, Dec. 15. Approximately 50 people attended with each couple bringing a covered dish for dinner. A large, gaily decorated tree brightened the stage. After dinner Lt. Col. Billy E. Rutherford, committee chairman, played Santa Claus. Each man brought a gift to exchange and every one opened his gift in front of the gathering.

Approximately 20 ladies from the Leadership Committee attended a coffee, Dec. 14 at the home of Mrs. Martin W. Heinicke. Christmas decorations adorned the house. The women exchanged gifts and brought canned goods for donation to Army Community Services.

Mrs. Heinicke used identical wreaths to decorate the table from which tea, hot tea, coffee and gaily decorated Christmas cookies were served.

Mrs. Billy E. Rutherford, wife of the committee chairman, welcomed Mrs. Michael Cooper and Mrs. Jack Daniels. The January coffee will be an evening function. Further information will be furnished at a later date.

The officers and ladies of the Leadership Dept. held a Christmas formal at the Main Officers Club, Dec. 17. Honored guests were Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Orwin C. Talhott.

Christmas carolers, snowflakes, mistletoe, and a giant snowman made by Capt. Barry Gasked of the Leadership Committee decorated the ballroom. In the Fountain Room the tables were decorated with silver lanterns, green programs and white napkins tied with red ribbons.

The evening was highlighted by surprise visits from Sgt. James A. Jones, presented gifts to persons at the head table. After dinner, dancing was held in the ballroom.

Be sure and plan to attend the Leadership Dept. coffee in the Normandy Room of the Main Officers' Club, Jan. 18 at 7:30 p.m. A demonstration by students of the Roger Williams International Music Center will be given. Reservations must be received by your respective reservations chairman no later than Jan. 14. Flyers will be sent out shortly.

INFANTRY AGENCY
The Infantry Agency celebrated the opening of the Christmas season with a formal dinner-dance at the Supper Club sponsored by the Combat Materiel Div. Col. and Mrs. Robert H. Seigrist and Col. and Mrs. William C. Carter III welcomed guests to the affair.

Newly assigned personnel were Maj. and Mrs. Bruce Davis, Maj. and Mrs. Thomas Pope and Lt. Peter J. Carpenter. Leaving were Maj. and Mrs. Larry G. Riddick and Lt. Col. Truman C. Johnson. A baby cup was presented to Maj. and Mrs. R. Jones to commemorate the arrival of Kimberly Annwy.

The Supper Club decoration, which was guided by Mrs. John I. Daniels, consisted of red cloth, holly and pine boughs. The Infantry Chorus presented a short program of seasonal songs. Appreciation was extended to Col. and Mrs. John I. Daniels who were responsible for the event.

AIRBORNE WIVES CLUB
The officers' wives of the Airborne Dept. held their monthly coffee at the home of Mrs. Robert Tulley, with Mrs. Gregg Walls as co-hostess.

Keeping in the spirit of Christmas, Mrs. Tulley decorated her home with holly and pine boughs. The women were served sherry and a variety of festive foods and refreshments.

Concerning business for the new year, Mrs. S. Carlsson and Mrs. S. Kintzer will work at the Thrift Shop in January, and plans are in progress for a February luncheon at the "Down the Hatch" restaurant.

TSB
The Fort Benning Supper Club was the setting for the IOAC Class 272 Christmas party, Dec. 15, sponsored by the wives of the first platoon.

Special guests were Mrs. C. Chesapeake, Mrs. Billy C. Phillips and Mrs. Jay A. Yurchuck. A fashion show was presented by Mrs. Priscilla of Matthew's Modeling were Mesdames B. Floyd, D. Burley, C. Bond, G. Castings, W. Dixon and S. Gilbert.

Christmas was the theme of the brunch. On each table was a holly bread cookie house banked with holly, which was given as a prize.

JEWISH SISTERHOOD
The next meeting of the Jewish Sisterhood of Fort Benning will be held at Mrs. Sheldon Staller's home at 12-A Arrowhead Rd. Jan. 17 at 7 p.m. A Purim party and plans for a special project will be discussed.

WEAPONS DEPT.
The officers' wives of the Weapons Dept. held their annual Christmas tea at the Main Officers Club, Dec. 15. The Benning Room decorations and the voices of the Infantry Chorus reflected the sights and sounds of the festive season.

A short meeting was conducted by Mrs. Jack Comm. Newcomers from the A and M Committee were Mrs. Donald Riley, Mrs. David Rodriguez and Mrs. Charles Sharp. Leaving were Mrs. David Radcliffe and Mrs. Ronald McLean.

Do seat belts help... yes!

Everyone on post knows of the campaign by the safety office to encourage all personnel to wear their seat belts at all times while driving. There is no one fault to this only those who have found through personal experience the value of the seat belt will take heed to these life-saving warnings.

Through personal contact with impending death and the knowledge that a certain precaution has prevented death, a person learns the need for safety implements.

In order to best exemplify the need for seat belts and to impress upon the readers the urgency in relaying this message, here is a personal narrative as related by Lt. Stuart M. Slatman, Dept. of Non-Resident Instruction, USAF.

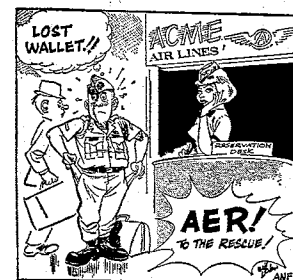

"There I was driving on Georgia Highway 85 W. near Shiloh, Georgia, just east of Pine Mountain. It was dark and the road was still wet after a recent rain. I was traveling at the posted speed of 50 MPH. The road is a two lane blacktop. Suddenly as I approached the crest of a hill I saw there was a car in my lane heading directly at me. I swerved hard right to avoid a fatal head-on collision, and the other driver roared by. My car went into a skid and started back across the roadway toward the opposite lane. The next thing I realized was that my car was turning over at 50 MPH. The car rolled two and one half times and landed upside down on the road shoulder of the opposite lane. I found myself sitting upside down listening to the noise of my engine running. I turned off the key to disengage the electrical circuits in the event gas was leaking somewhere. I unbuckled my shoulder and my lap belts and crawled out the rear window. All the doors were jammed shut. The car was almost totaled. My only injury was a slight whiplash caused from the sideways movement of my head during the roll overs.

The State policemen indicated that I most certainly would have been killed had I not been buckled in. I owe my life to wearing safety belts. You better believe I'm a believer in safety belts."

From the account listed above, a classic example of durability and necessity of seat belts is explained. Need more to be said?

(Editors note: This is the sixth in a series about project transition.)

By Thomas Tertmeier
Going to ETS soon? Don't have a trade or skill to put to use on the outside, or would like to acquire another? Project Transition can give you job experience and training needed to fill job openings awaiting you on the outside.

David Schmitz, representative of the Portland Cement Association, Skokie, Ill., is at Fort Benning teaching all applicants the concrete masonry trade. This course consists of eight weeks of concentrated study, both in the classroom and in the field. Classroom studies include background information labor unions, job opportunities, courses in mathematics, sampling and testing of concrete and design and job responsibilities.

The next phase of the program is in the field. The pre-apprentice cement masons are put to work on jobs on past facing actual job problems and hours... usually hours and hours. Jobs are long and hard,

No project is complete until it is finished. Project Transition's Cement Masonry Course students learn this as well as other specific jobs during the 220 hours of classroom and field training they receive. (U.S.)

Project Transition for short timers sometimes going into the wee hours of the morning. Then the men must again be on the job at 7 a.m. the next morning. This field work continues for six weeks.

The men who are good enough and wish to be in the advanced course can stay with the program and act as assistant foremen on the job sites. In this way, Schmitz can spend his time over many jobs instead of being able to supervise only one job at a time.

At present, there are 17 to 20 men enrolled per course. More courses are to be added which will be for a period of six weeks of training in the cement masonry trade.

After a man graduates from this course, he is told how to acquire a job and he is given a diploma and a personal letter. In most areas of the country, when the man goes to work, he is given credit for six-months of his apprenticeship of three years.

He can expect to make anywhere from $4-9 an hour. This again depends on the area of the country in which he wants to work.

Arm-straining work is nothing new for these members of Project Transition's Cement Masonry Course who many times pour concrete late into evening. The trainees are given a complete and accurate background in masonry work.

Tax commissioner addresses AFMA

By Carl F. King
Remember Houser, tax commissioner for Columbus Consolidated Government, addressed members of the Armed Forces Management Association last Friday concerning "Tax Inequities."

The address which took place during a luncheon at the Supper Club of the Fort Benning Officers and Camp Mess was given in a candid manner. "Our government as it stands today is run by the people, by the clever, and for the rich," Houser claimed.

The tax commissioner stated that the U.S. is headed towards an "insurance state" whereby government will ultimately gain more control over certain functions of our lives. "One trend I don't like," says Houser, "is that the further you get from local government, the further you get from having a real voice." He talked about money going from local and state governments to the federal government emphasizing that the chain becomes distorted because "when money comes back to local government from the federal government there are oftentimes too many strings attached."

Three main taxes are used to produce money for government spending; (1) income tax, (2) state sales tax; (3) ad valorem taxes—any tax charged on personal property according to the fair market value on that property. Houser said that these three taxes are fair in that they meet the criteria for a "good" tax: a tax which has a broad base—touches a lot of people—a tax which must touch people by their ability to pay; and a tax which is inexpensive to collect.

One of the major inequities Houser sees is homestead exemption which gives a person a $10,000 reduction in taxes on a home of $10,000. "It cost more to put paperwork through the computer," Houser commented. The old age exemption is doubled, but only if the man and wife have a total income of less than $4,000 annually.

They give a disabled veteran an exemption of $10,000. "All a disabled veteran has to do to get this exemption is get a letter from the Veterans Administration to the effect that he is totally with the loss of both legs or both arms. The man is given an overcoat with the sleeves cut out," Houser maintained.

"One of the biggest inequities in the tax system is a tax that is easy to collect from some and difficult to collect from others," Houser contends. The state of Georgia used to tax furniture but people failed to report in some in-

Post ecology club formed

By Rob McIlvaine
Marriage Trees, the Recycle Point, a post-wide ecology symposium, the night of open burning off post, conservation projects... these were just a few of the topics confronted at last week's meeting of CURB, a recently formed ecology club at Fort Benning.

Composed of officers and enlisted men, CURB is very much alive to the ecology question. The group encourages constructive criticism to generate a variety of solutions for every problem cited; in a way, "picketing" with a purpose rather than a pickaxe.

As prescribed by regulation, the club's minutes are forwarded through appropriate channels for consideration. They hope to touch off a concern for a particular issue, that may lead to corrective or preventive action. In any case, CURB affords an "innovative and imaginative staging area" for those who wish to contribute toward environmental improvement; "involvement rather than armchair conjecture" appears to be the watchword.

Last week's meeting keynoteed that innovation and imagination. There was considerable talk about recycling, particularly the fate of the Recycle Point here on post. The consensus of opinion suggested that the point is appreciated and should prove successful if more widely used.

Post-sponsored self-help programs for the Columbus community were discussed enthusiastically.

Helicopter change

Out goes the old OH6 and in comes the new OH58

By Richard D. Norman
The Army's new observation helicopter, the OH58, has taken over the job of the OH6 helicopter at Fort Benning. The OH58 is a single, turbine-engine helicopter that can be used for observation, target acquisition, armed reconnaissance command and many other missions.

When armed, the OH58 provides the ground forces with a capability for armed reconnaissance and observation when a high degree of mobility is required. This helicopter is readily adaptable to the utility task at the combat level. It is capable of continuous daily operation in forward areas, with maximum availability to the tactical commander.

The Aviation Command has 14 of the OH58 helicopters and is training

Fort Benning aviators to fly them. The Standardization Section course requires three days of ground school and a minimum of 10 hours flying time. There have been 20 officers complete this course since October with six additional finishing each week. Currency rides for previously qualified aviators has increased the Fort Benning total to approximately 70 "R-10-Accs."

Ramblin' round...

By Rob McIlvaine

Sunday afternoons are perfect for braving Benning's boundaries and seeing what lurks in Columbus aside from pawn shops, used car lots, and traffic congestion. Actually, you can find a great deal to do and much of it free.

The Columbus Museum of Arts and Crafts, Inc. at 1251 Wynnton Road is well worth the pilgrimage. During the winter months the museum is open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday and on Sundays 2 p.m. to 5 p.m. There is no charge for admittance.

A visit to the museum offers a wide display of paintings, prints, antiques, fine porcelains, and ivories to dioramas of the Yuchi Indians, complete with beautifully preserved artifacts.

Amid this array you can discover a fine old gun collection that evokes the antique and the unique, 18th Century children's toys, and travelling exhibitions that change monthly.

The Jan. exhibition features the works of Rudolf Jeger. They include an intriguing collection of avant garde tapestries and silk screen prints that project a refreshing slant on the Biblical angel.

Another feature of the museum is the Philip Harris Giddens Gallery of prints and etchings. The gallery devotes itself to a lucid explanation of print making that is "highlighted" by some fine examples of Giddens' work.

There's a lot more to see at the museum, certainly but we'll leave that to you to discover. Its main attraction is quiet, good taste, and that attraction for excellence in artistry that inhabits a fine museum, large or small.

NOTE: The Columbus Museum of Arts and Crafts is planning to offer a continuing sale of select used books and magazines. They hope to amass a collection of art books, first editions, and other rarities through community participation. Proceeds will be used for museum improvement. Donations may be made during regular museum hours.

Parental training class starts March 2 at MAH

The best way to bridge the parent-child credibility gap is to communicate. Yet how do you know when you are communicating with your child and whether or not you are being effective? The answers are found up in the Parent Effectiveness Training (P.E.T.) course which begins March 2 at Martin Army Hospital (MAH).

The eight-week course is intended for military parents (active duty and retired) of school age children who will meet one evening a week for a three hour class at the main hospital. Four staff members of the MAH Mental Hygiene Department will act as course instructors.

Parent Effectiveness Training (P.E.T.) is designed to promote an approach toward child-rearing more enlightened than the traditional models. As opposed to the authoritarian, permissive, and reward and punishment methods, P.E.T. focuses upon the human relationship between parent and child. Its ultimate goal could be called a mutually communicated appreciation for the individuality on both sides of that relationship.

To achieve this goal, P.E.T. develops certain basic counselor skills necessary to effective communication. The skills are actively discussed and practiced in a workshop setting. Students are also assigned role playing situations in which the parent get to perceive parent-child encounters from both sides.

A valuable technique discussed and hospitally applied is mutual problem-solving in which the parents are taught how to

Bekim Fehmiu greets Candice Bergen in "The Adventurers"

Yugoslav is first international star to come from a Communist country

When Bekim Fehmiu was chosen to play the role of Dax Xenos in Paramount Pictures' "The Adventurers," he became the first Communist country actor ever elevated to international screen stardom.

Fehmiu, who was born in the historic city of Sarajevo, Yugoslavia, in 1936, was first offered the role in the film version of Harold Robbins' novel on a conditional basis. Producer-director Lewis Gilbert was so convinced that Fehmiu was right for the film, he promised the actor the job if he could learn English fluently in three months. Fehmiu led the next week for London to begin his studies and accomplish the job before the deadline.

"The true measure of Fehmiu's achievement is not merely that he speaks Mid-Atlantic English like a university graduate," Gilbert said, "but that he also knows more about the contemporary London idiom than I do. In addition to daily lessons with both an English tutor and a famous dramatic coach, he spent his free time sitting around London's pubs and nightclubs, talking to people of every class and absorbing their speech and mannerisms."

Gilbert, who launched Michael Caine to international stardom in the movie "Alfie," credits his wife, Hilda, with the discovery of Fehmiu. While waiting for her husband to finish a business conference in Paris, Mrs. Gilbert went to a Champy Express theatre to see the Yugoslavian film, "I Even Met Happy Gypsies," which had won the 1967 Special Jury's Award at the Cannes Film Festival. She was so captivated by Fehmiu's powerful performance that she insisted Gilbert see the film the next day. He was equally impressed with Fehmiu's performance.

"The Adventurers," which Gilbert prepared for nearly two years before beginning actual production, is now playing at the Panavision Color-at-

Benning theater group to present 'Blithe Spirit' in drama contest

"Blithe Spirit" Noel Coward's farcical treatment of mysticism and the spirit world, will be the Fort Benning Dramatizers' entry in this year's 3rd U.S. Army Tournament of Plays.

The production will open Feb. 28 and open nightly through March 4 at the post playhouse.

Under director Dennis Seely, who adds a touch of arts degree in theater from LaVerne College, Calif., the cast features Lanie Russell as Ruth, the current Mrs. Condomine; Terri Seely as Elvira, the spirit of the first Mrs. Condomine; Barry Carter as Charles Condomine; and E. Lister as Gross as Madame Arctai.

Seely will be assisted in his directing duties by Beau Starr, who has professional theater background. The play's Victorian setting is being depicted by Jeffrey Grandel and costumes by Diane Stark and Cecilia Fiala. Proprietary mistress is Sue Cross, lighting designer, Jim Hickey and producer, Roy Lohmer.

The 3rd Army tournament is an annual theater competition among military installations in seven southeastern states.

The event is sponsored by the entertainment branch of Special Services.

All military personnel are eligible to enter. Entry forms can be obtained at any service club on post.

Three $50.00 cash prizes will be awarded to the top three acts. Both solo and group competition, in a wide variety of categories are permitted. Singing, dancing, acting and instrument playing are among the categories.

Synopsis

SOMETIMES A GREAT NOTION (Rated GP)—A drama about contemporary family life of lumberjacks in Oregon's timberlands. Paul Newman stars as the head of a lumbering family trying to deliver contracted wood during a labor dispute.

SCARS OF DRACULA (Rated R)—In a nasty mood, villagers set fire to Dracula's castle. Damage is slight and our favorite fanged friend is unharmed. Needless to say, the rest is a bloodbath, with hats ripping, village women and slashing local priests, bloods being found in cribs and a v.m. p.i.r.e.s.s, who abandoned the cause, getting stabbed to death by the King of Blood himself.

THE OWL AND THE PUSSYCAT (Rated R)—In her first non-singing role, Academy Award winner Barbara Streisand plays a kooky, would-be actress and part-time prostitute, and George Segal co-stars as a timid bookworm with whom she becomes involved. The poo group—Blood, Sweat and Tears—provides the musical soundtrack.

SUPPORT YOUR LOCAL SHERIFF (Rated G)—Drifter James Garner wants to go to Australia, but instead takes the thorniest job of sheriff in the lawless Western town of Calendar, where mud and bullets are slung in an equally fast tempo. The film also features Joan Hackett.

Miss Streisand is 'cat' in 'Owl and Pussycat'

There probably is not a single movie-goer, radio listener or television viewer in America today who is not aware of Barbra Streisand's spectacular way with a song or comedy line.

Miss Streisand has always described herself as an actress who sings and currently, in "The Owl and the Pussycat," playing at post theaters, she appears as an actress alone. It is her first non-singing role.

As "the pussycat" of the film's title, Miss Streisand plays a zany would-be actress and part-time prostitute. George Segal, starring with Miss Streisand in the production, is "the owl," a timid bookstore clerk who spends his spare time writing flamboyant novels nobody wants to read.

"The Owl and the Pussycat" is Miss Streisand's first film since "On a Clear Day You Can See Forever" and "Hello, Dolly" which, like her "Funny Girl," were multi-million dollar musicals. Her debut film, "Funny Girl," won Miss Streisand not only the A.C.E. in Y Award for best performer of the year but numerous other awards.

Miss Streisand's list of honors, without counting night clubs, theatre boxoffice and television specials, include such items as the Golden Globe Award, several Grammy awards, Cue Magazine's "Entertainer of the Year" award and the National Association of Theatre Owners' designation as "Star of the Year."

Year." Recently, the Friars Club named Miss Streisand "Entertainer of the Year," making her the second woman to be so honored in the 65-year history of that all-male theatrical organization.

Give Pete Rozelle and associates an A-plus in clairvoyance for selecting New Orleans as this year's Super Bowl city. Had Miami been chosen as the site of Super Bowl VI, it would have caused the biggest uproar in Texas since Santa Anna captured the Alamo.

Dallas Cowboy fans figure they have enough worry about without the Dolphins owning a home field advantage. And besides, since the game's inception in 1967, NFL moguls have vowed to keep it on a neutral field.

The first NFL-AFL contest was played in Los Angeles, but unenthusiastic fans forced the front office to move the game to Miami. The New Orleans Chamber of Commerce then convinced Rozelle and company that the Mardi Gras city had as much to offer as Miami, and the selection committee decided to alternate the classic between the two cities.

New Orleans had just been awarded an expansion franchise and posted no threat to the NFL title holder Miami was the newest addition to the old AFL family and was considered by the NFL as the weakest link in a very weak chain. All in all, it looked as if the selection committee had at its disposal a permanent warm weather site for its annual Super clash.

Well, the NFL still has New Orleans, but it had better look somewhere else for an alternate city. Thanks to the football genius of Don Shula, Miami has virtually been eliminated from immediate consideration as the host city for the Super Bowl. The Dolphins are not only one of the finest teams in pro football, but one of the youngest as well. In all probability Miami fans will be watching their future Super Bowl games on television.

What is really incredible about the Dolphin's story is the short time it took to pick the depot of the despair to the top of the AFC. For as recent as two years ago, even super seeress Jeanne Dixon would have hesitated to pick Miami as a Super Bowl rep in 1972.

But in all fairness to those who make their lives gazing into crystal balls, et al, that was BS (before Shula).

When the talented Shula came south from Baltimore it caught the sports world completely by surprise. No one expected Shula to abandon the Baltimore Colts for the lowly Miami Dolphins.

Any similarity between the Dolphins BS and the Dolphins of today is completely coincidental. Most important, the attitude has changed. Shula's young charges have convinced themselves that they can play for keeps with the best the NFL has to offer.

And the best the NFL has to offer is what they will be up against January 16 in New Orleans. Coach Tom Landry's Cowboys are a precision line club which executes offensively like a perfectly programmed computer. Defensively they simply execute. Period.

The famed "Doomsday Defense," anchored by perennial All-Pro tackle Bob Lilly, is an awesome combination of muscle, experience and football expertise. The Dallas defenders have demoralized more than one poor quarterback in their time at the NFL title.

While the Cowboy defense is indeed superb, its offense is equal in ability. When Landry decided to go with ex-Navy ace Roger Staubach as his permanent quarterback, good things started to happen for the Texans. With Jolly Roger in control the Cowboys have won nine in a row, including playoff wins over Minnesota and San Francisco enroute to the Super Bowl.

The man who makes the Dolphins' go is Bob Greise a five year vet who came into his own this past campaign. The Purdue alum was voted the NFL's top quarterback this season, barely edging Staubach in the voting. Dolphin observers credit Paul Warfield with having the most to do with Greise's new-found stardom.

Warfield arrived in Miami almost as quickly as Shula. Before he had unpacked his bags, Shula conferred with Dolphin general manager Joe Thomas and offered the Cleveland Browns a number one draft choice for the talented Warfield. Much to everyone's surprise the Browns snapped up the offer and Warfield was on his way.

Warfield gave the Dolphins the necessary long all threat. With the former Ohio State star in the lineup, de-

Father of eight coaches baseball

SFC William Armstrong is an instructor at the 191st Basic Leadership Course, but after duty he is the coach for the "Little Bucks," which is a little league baseball team sponsored by the Fort Benning Youth Activity Center.

Armstrong, who is assigned to HHC, 831st Engr. Gp., has been coaching little league baseball for 13 years. With a family of eight children ranging from the age of three to 13, he is kept pretty busy but he always finds time for the other children who make up the ball teams.

Armstrong entered the Army in 1954 and has served in many capacities, one of which was a Fire Chief in Alaska. During a particular year in which he was Fire Chief the fire loss was down to an all time low of $75 for the entire year.

The 13 year veteran, who calls Columbus his home, plans on attending Columbus College upon his retirement from Military Service. His main objective is to teach physical education.

For a man who has spent most of his life in the Military he is rather unusual. He is not your average run-of-the-mill E-7. He made this statement about himself "I am probably the most unusual E-7 you have ever met, in fact I am probably the most unusual E-7 in the entire Army." His ideas and concepts of how a coach should be run go hand in hand with the concepts of the Modern Volunteer Army. He had this to say about VOLAR "I think the Modern Volunteer Army is a very fine thing. I don't think the length of a man's hair makes one iota of difference as far as his very fine thing. I don't think the length of a man's hair makes one iota of difference as far as his very fine thing. I don't think the length of a man's hair makes one iota of difference as far as his very fine thing."

Some players even had a ready-made reason for their long string of defeats.

"Last year the company officers were on the team," Broshart said. "That lost it all right."

With a young boy steadily growing to the age where military service will certainly be a question in his life Armstrong had this to say "The military service will have to be his own decision. My making a career out of it should not influence him in any way. I can advise him and help him make his own decision, but I can't expect him to make the military a career for my sake or to please me."

SFC Armstrong is a man with a determination to accomplish every goal he sets. He feels that if we are going to change the wrong in this world to right, we have to reach the children, and sports is one way of doing just that.

BY BILL KLOES

Several fishermen have reported that the white bass are running in the Chattahoochee River. Apparently they like a lot of other fish, animals and fowl whose activities are influenced by the weather have become confused during the siege of warm weather we have had for the past few weeks.

The white bass normally move up the Chattahoochee from the large impoundment lakes during the early spring of these years. Most years the first signs have not been reported until late February or early March. They begin the annual spawning run when the water temperature is between 55 and 62 degrees.

The fish is white with black stripes. He is further distinguished by his cousins in the bass family by a humped back. The fish rarely exceeds 10 pounds and smaller catches run less than a pound. The Georgia state record is 4 pounds, 14 ounces. Two fish of this size have been caught and recorded. Both were taken at Lake Lanier.

If the weather holds warm and the fish continue to run this will be a good opportunity for fishermen who haven't been doing so good to get back some confidence. The white bass will do this. It is easy to catch during his spawning run. He is so accustomed to be securely hooked himself when a novice fisherman forgets the little detail of setting the hook.

Don't get the idea that there is no sport to white bass fishing. When you get one on the line you'll know it. He puts up as good a fight as any of his bass cousins and will fight until you get him landed.

He goes for a small minnow or if you want to use lures many different kinds will do the job. Small leadheaded bait jugs or bucktails in yellow or white are popular along with small flashing spoons or smaller plugs such as the thimble or rapala.

The best places are behind some obstacle or cover that breaks the speed of the water. Areas behind rocks, logs or fallen trees are good. A place where the current swirls behind an outcropping of the shore is usually a hot spot. It's best to throw the lure or bait beyond one of these areas and then drag it through the current to the quiet water.

There is usually a strike just as the bait comes into the quiet water.

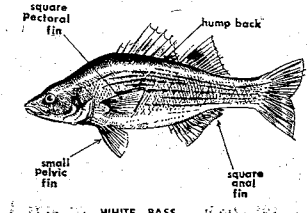

It doesn't make any difference where you go on the river. Any place where it flows through the reservation should be good as long as the run lasts.

Awards Presentation There were no changes in the top standings of the Rod and Gun Deer Hunt Contest last week. Lt. Col. Brandt Grubbs and Sgt. Charles Wallace are still first place winners and John E. Smith and Ronnie Cavins are holding the runner-up positions.

The winners of the contest will receive a Remington Model 1100 Automatic Shotgun and the second place winners will get Mosberg Stiggins at an awards party to be held at the Rod and Gun Club next Friday (Jan. 21).

Someone hunter who registered a deer in the contest but did not win one of these prizes will also win a Remington Model 1100. Other members present will have a chance to win door prizes.

Ridley Bell, station manager and host on the WRBL-TV-3 Sportsman's Lodge Show will present the awards at 7 p.m. All members are invited to spend the evening at the club.

Orienteering team ties for second with Florida in Peach Marathon

The Fort Benning Orienteering Team and Florida Track Club tied for second place in the team competition in the Peach Bowl Marathon, held at Atlanta, Ga., Dec. 18, 1971.

Don Kennedy and Dale Aberle of the Fort Benning Orienteering Team finished sixth with a time of 2:29:09 and twelfth with a time of 2:38:21, respectively.

Over 150 competitors started the 26.22 mile run with 102 completing the course.

The competition, sanctioned by the Amateur Athletic Union and the United States Track and Field Federation, was sponsored by the Atlanta Track Club, Inc. and the Peach Bowl Football Game Committee.

Third Army announces sports program for '72

The Third U. S. Army Headquarters has announced the Army Sports Program for 1972.

Objectives of the program are to emphasize competition at the lowest possible echelon of command to encourage maximum individual participation, enhance morale and support the Army and inter-divisional sports efforts.

The program establishes competition in all major sports played in this country. The Third Army Special Services Office has scheduled Army Competitions in 16 separate sports.

Installation commanders are responsible for the organization of small and major unit intramural competitions.

This year team handball, men's softball and basketball played at Army level will include league competition. Each installation in the Army Area will field a team to play in either the Eastern or Western Division of the Army League. Fort Benning teams will play in the Western Division.

Other teams in the division will be from Ft. McPherson, Ft. McClellan, Ft. Rucker, Ft. Campbell and Redstone Arsenal, Ft. Bragg, Ft. Jackson, Ft. Gordon, Ft. Stewart, Hunter Army Airfield and Atlanta Army Depot teams will play in the Eastern Division.

Army champions will be determined by double elimination playoff games played by the top two teams of each division.

Tennis and boxing champions will be determined by single elimination tournaments. Volleyball and flag football championships will be determined by double round robin competition.

Team and individual bowling champions will be decided by a scratch tournament and golf champions by a medal play tournament.

Squash, handball, horse shoes, badminton and padel ball championships will all be determined by double elimination tournaments.

With the conclusion of the New Years festivities, the Avn. Cmd. Basketball League, began its second half play. The H. Q. Lawson Operations Detachment Team got off on the right foot with a convincing victory over USAID, 45-34. Also among this weeks winners was the 931st Aviation Platoon who defeated 205th by a forfeit.

The HQ Lawson operations Detachment team recently suffered the loss of two starters Mike Adams (11.3 average) and Rick Adams (7.2 average). However, the proper adjustments seem to have been made. H.Q.L.D. scored 61 and 45 respectively and the loss of those two starting players. The 696th, while leading the league with a perfect 6-0 record, is only 4th in team scoring.

There promises to be plenty of excitement and action during the second half of this league. Game times are 2:30 p.m. and 3:45 p.m. every Tuesday and Thursday.

Fort Benning Military Police will join the Columbus Police Department and participate in National Crime Prevention Week, February 6 through 13th. The annual event is sponsored by the Columbus Exchange Clubs and seeks to encourage a greater respect for law enforcement agencies and everybody's stake in a crime-free environment. This year will mark the second time Fort Benning M.P.'s have been included in Crime Prevention Week. This year's theme is "Don't Let It Happen" and will focus upon basic security measures that should be taken to prevent crime. At Fort Benning publicity of the event will be conveyed via bumper stickers on M.P. sedans, sign boards and handouts.

Atlanta Boy Scouts visit Orienteers

The Fort Benning Orienteering Team conducted an orienteering clinic for the benefit of the Boy Scouts of America Troop 621 from Atlanta, Ga. Saturday. The Boy Scouts were hosted by the Fort Benning Explorer Post no. 383 throughout the weekend. The clinic, sponsored by the Ranger Department, was presented in the Classroom a (tblg 4833) Harmony Church and on Todd Field. The training presented included demonstration and use of the compass, basic map reading techniques, orienteering techniques training. At the conclusion of the instruction, the Boy Scouts and Explorers competed in a cross country orienteering event. In addition to their primary mission of competing in interservice orienteering competition, the Fort Benning Orienteering

NEW GENERATION
by Drexel®
the most trusted name in furniture

This youthful group gives you all the rich, warm beauty of walnut veneers and pecan solids . . . plus all the practical protection that in the past was only possible with plastics. It's true, real top-quality wood with finished surfaces so tough they're impervious to perfume, finger-nail polish, airplane glue, hot coffee and liquor. And highly resistant to burns, stains, grease, ink and scratches! And the prices? Kind to even the strictest budgets!

Air Force personnel unload one of the 22 Huey helicopters shipped to Fort Benning on C-119s as part of a joint Army-Air Force exercise entitled BRAVE SHIELD I. Numerous flights are being made daily from Pope Air Force Base, Ft. Bragg, North Carolina, to Lawson Army Airfield in support of this exercise which has activated over 4000 men.

Former post Chief of Staff heads test

The United States Readiness Command's first training exercise BRAVE SHIELD I is in fullswing at Fort Benning.

The exercise Commanded by BRAVE SHIELD I is Maj. Gen. H. S. Cunningham, U.S. Army, Director of Operations, J-3, United States Readiness Command. Gen. Cunningham was the Chief of Staff here at Fort Benning from 1966 to 1968, when he departed for Vietnam, and was assigned here previous to that, as part of the Staff and Faculty of the Infantry School.

A total of over 4,000 men from various bases across the country have been assembled here for the preparation phase of the airlift exercise which will end at Ft. Stewart, Ga., the end of this week.

In the preparation of receiving this many men and all of their equipment, Fort Benning has expended total energy in supplying the troops and their commanders with the best available quarters and transportation and making all recreational facilities available to the men. Sanitation facilities have been dispersed over the bivouac area at Fiske Range and shuttle busses are arriving and departing the bivouac area every hour. These busses carry the men to and from all areas of the post.

The 4,000 men at Fiske

Maj. Gen. H. S. Cunningham, former Chief of Staff, Fort Benning from 1966 to 1968, is now here as the commander for a joint Army-Air Force exercise entitled BRAVE SHIELD I. Gen. Cunningham is now assigned as Director of Operations, J-3, United States Readiness Command.

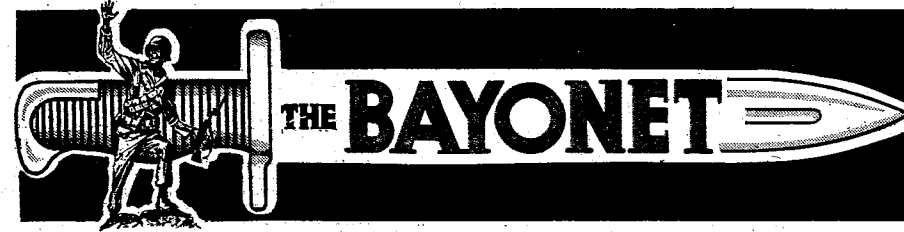

Range are camped in an area 300 by 2,000 meters, now densely covered by tents, vehicles and men. The post exchange has set up a mobile PX in the bivouac area so that any items the men might need, i.e. shaving gear, toiletries, will be readily available to them without traveling to the main post.

At Lawson Army Airfield, where the Airlift Control Element is headquartered, operational facilities have been set up and this is the hub of all airlift activities during this exercise. To date, 67 missions have been flown, bringing in over 1417 men and 122 tons of cargo in C-119s.

These flights originate at Pope Air Force Base, Ft. Bragg, North Carolina, and lead at Lawson Air Field and return to the Pope air field.

The 82nd Airborne has supplied 20 Huey helicopters so far and more are expected this week. Four Cobra gunships will arrive tonight to participate in the exercises.

The 82nd has also supplied many Sheridan Light Armored Reconnaissance Vehicles.

Security director explains storm warning system

BY ROB MCILVAINE
The torrential rains that bombarded Fort Benning and the Chattahoochee Valley last week during the tornado alert brought with them a lot of confusion as well as wet feet.

When the sirens went off people ignored them and went about their business or, if their reflexes were high and memories keen, dove for cover. Few of the post's 40,000 daily inhabitants appeared to be aware of the Severe Weather Alert System handled by the Directorate of Security, the agency for severe weather activities.

There are two sets of instructions or plans maintained by the Directorate of Security explaining the alert system. For military dependents, there is USAIC Pamphlet 500-1, dated July 16, 1968, entitled "Storm and Air Defense Instructions for Dependents. Guidance for military and civilian personnel is contained in Appendix 9, Annex I, USAIC Basic Plan, dated Sept. 15, 1969. This pamphlet is available from Family Housing.

Essentially, both existing plans are designed to afford Fort Benning residents and employees maximum safety in the event of severe weather. This protection, is dependent upon a thorough understanding on everyone's part of the alert procedures and appropriate actions. The Storm Warning Color Code contained in both plans (see cut-out illustration on this page) is crucial to the understanding. Hopefully, last week's experience will encourage greater familiarity.

But behind the Color

Code, pamphlets, and numbered plans exists an intricate observation and alert system that is operational 24 hours a day. It begins with Detachment

10, 15th Squadron, United States Air Force Air Weather Service at Lawson Army Airfield. Detachment 10 serves a threefold function involving flight forecasts, post forecasts, and weather guidance for conduct of the Infantry School's tactical problems. Manned solely by Air Force personnel, the detachment is not in the business of activating the alert system; they supply only meteorological information. SEE WEATHER Page 29

School enrollments rise under G.I. Bill

School enrollments in Georgia under the G.I. Bill continued their upward trend in Nov., scoring an 18 per cent increase over Oct. and a 22 per cent hike over Nov. 1970. A. W. Tate, Director, Atlanta Veterans Administration Regional Office, reported today.

Tate said 27,545 veterans and servicemen trained in

Nov. compared to 23,518 in Oct. and 22,969 in Nov. last year. Of those in training in Nov., 13,072 were in college, a 25 per cent increase over a year ago.

The 12,966 veterans and servicemen in training in Nov. below the college level were 17 per cent more than for the same month last year, Tate noted.

On-the-job training edged up only slightly to 1,317 in Nov. from 1,448 in Oct., but this was a 37 per cent increase over the 1,105 in training in Nov. 1970.

Sizeable enrollment increases also were recorded during November in VA's Dependents' Educational Assistance (DEA) program. At 1,161, enrollments were up 83 per cent over Oct. and 8 per cent over Nov. last year.

Tate explained that DEA is for wives, widows and children of veterans whose deaths or permanent, total disabilities were service-connected. Wives and children of servicemen missing in action or prisoners of war for more than 90 days also were brought under the program by legislation enacted last year.

The 406 disabled veterans enrolled in vocational rehabilitation programs in Nov. were 66 per cent increase over the 244 in training in Oct. and 8 per cent more than in Nov. 1970.

Pioneer day approaches for 29th Inf.

Pioneer Day is approaching the 1st Bn., 29th Inf., 19th Inf. Bde. This is the day when all former members of the 1st Bn., 29th Inf. are invited for a reunion to see the battalion.

The first member to arrive for the occasion was an early bird, Mr. George Ivy of Phenix City, Ala., accompanied by his son Donald.

LTC Robert W. Faulkender, commander of the 1st Bn., 29th Inf., welcomed Ivy to the unit on Jan. 6.

Ivy was a member of B Co. where he participated as a member of the original Test Platoon. The platoon participated in tests given them by the Infantry Board at the beginning of July 1968. The Test Platoon was renamed the 501st Parachute Co. after the test were given. The 501st Parachute Co. has since then been remembered as the pioneer Parachuting unit of the U.S. Army.

While Mr. Ivy visited his old unit he was shown the many changes that have taken place since he was last here. He was shown the many ways that VOLAR had taken the place of the "Old Army".

Mr. Ivy stated that he was very impressed at the many changes that had taken place while he was no longer stationed with the old unit.

The 1st Bn., 29th Inf. is hoping that more former members of the unit will participate in the activities of Pioneer Day. Any former members of the unit are invited and urged to attend the Pioneer Day activities.

Bagging litter
Free litterbags may be obtained from the Environmental Management Division in Bldg. 274 or at the post recycling Point, adjacent to the main commissary parking lot.

The Point is open weekdays from 7:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m., and 9 a.m. to noon. Saturdays, Newspapers, glass and aluminum cans can be turned in during these periods.

Alan Skinner, a third Clean Air Caravan technician, begins checking the Fort Benning vehicle's exhaust emission. The instruments used are designed to measure the amount of hydrocarbons

Expert cyclist urges safety

By Steve Maize

"Motorcycling is becoming more popular each year," said Capt. Lloyd D. Rions, an expert rider from Calif. and currently attending the Infantry Officer Basic Course (IOBC), 24th Co., 2nd Bn., The School Brigade (TSB).

"With the increased popularity of motorcycling as sport and recreation, a greater emphasis must be put on safety and sensible riding," stated Rions. He is not merely pointing out a well known fact but can speak from extensive experience in riding and appreciating a motorcycle, including membership in the United States Motorcycle Association (U.S.M.A.) and a devotion to competitive cycling.

Rions mentioned that too often kids get on bikes and make a lot of unnecessary noise and will dig up lawns and fields with large treaded tires ("teach-bies"). For those who enjoy unfiltered exhausts and like to turn corners just barely in control, there is the race track.

Rions fully supports the use of USMA sanctioned tracks. "Here the man and machines are classed correctly and the track itself is staffed and maintained by qualified personnel," affirmed Rions.

Rions has distinguished himself in the amateur cycle riding circuits. In Calif. he has raced in motocross events (a race over natural terrain) at Salinas, Saddleback Park, and a Hare and Hound race from Barstow, Calif., to Las Vegas, Nev. (148 mi.). Rions owns two cycles, a 175 cc Yamaha and a 250 cc Husky, but prefers the smaller-engined bike. "In the low-power races, the skill of the rider, his ability to handle and control his bike, is more important than the brute power larger class cycles rely upon," observed Rions.

Motocross racing is preferred by Rions over the Scramble (where the track has definite boundaries, a hard packed surface, and an overall emphasis on slaps time). In either method of competition, the men must be in top physical shape as well as have their bikes correctly tuned and maintained. Fatigue is the big opponent in racing and skill and alertness are elements that cannot be neglected for a second.

Before Rions entered the Army he received his degree in Economics from Monterey Peninsula College, Calif. His Army career took him first to Ft. Bliss, Tex. for Basic, then AIT at Ft. Gordon, Ga., and ultimately to Vietnam where he received a direct commission.

"I enjoy riding in my spare time," said Rions. "But I still wish that cycles were more accepted on the roads. Groups like the 'Holl's Angels' have given most people the impression that motorcycle riders are bums and shouldn't be allowed the use of public roads. Unfortunately, people with this attitude have forced me off the road more than once."

Ecology and safety are the areas of bike riding that Rions likes to emphasize.

Post takes part in clean air caravan

By Rob McIlwaine
The post Motor Pool participated in an exhaust emission test at the Cross Country Plaza Shopping Center last week.

Sponsored by the Atlantic Richfield Company and dubbed by the Clean Air Caravan, the two-day test was requested for Columbus by the Chattahoochee Valley Tuberculosis and Respiratory Disease Association.

Fort Benning was invited by the Columbus group to send a vehicle down to the shopping center for one of the free evaluations. City government was also asked to participate. Members of the post Environmental Management Division were on hand to act as observers.

The Clean Air Caravan, a sort of emission laboratory on wheels, uses some sophisticated instruments to determine the acceptability of a vehicle's exhaust. They are based on the Sun non-infrared principle and measure the hydrocarbon (HC) and carbon monoxide (CO) content of emission. Readings are taken when the engine is accelerated to 2500 revolutions per minute (RPM) and while it is idling. The Atlantic Richfield technicians also check the vehicle's air cleaner for serviceability.

The Motor Pool sent an M715 one-and-a-quarter ton truck. As initially tested the technicians found that the vehicle was emitting too much carbon monoxide. After a few minutes of carburetor adjustment, however, the technicians brought the emission down to well within the safety zones prescribed by state and federal laws. These laws, by the way, apply equally to both trucks and passenger cars. The Clean Air Caravan has been in over 30 states and countless cities on the east coast and in the middle west. In 1972 they plan to visit the western states. The technicians here last week are now in Texas and from there will return to California.

Alan Skinner, one of the Atlantic Richfield technicians who conducted last week's test, explained the idea behind the caravan. "We're trying to demonstrate to the public," he said "how simple maintenance can sharply reduce engine exhaust to an acceptable level."

Skinner along with the other technicians sincerely believes that the sooner the public fully understands how really easy it is to control emission, the sooner clean air will return to the nation's highways.

A motorcycle rider loses control of his bike as he tries to turn with too much speed. Capt. Lloyd D. Rions, an expert cyclist and IOBC student, stresses that this type of fall can be avoided by riding in a safe and sensible manner.

Post Chief of Staff to retire Jan. 28

Col. Jim D. Keirsey, Fort Benning's Chief of Staff, will be succeeded on Jan. 17, by Col. Willard Latham, former commander of the 197th Infantry Brigade.

Col. Keirsey, who is to retire Jan. 28, has been the chief of staff since Dec. 1968, and has been in service since Sept. 1940.

A native of Oklahoma, Col. Keirsey received a direct commission in June, 1941. During World War II, he served with the 45th Division in Europe.

In Vietnam, Col. Keirsey served as senior advisor to the 21st Division of the Army of the Republic of Vietnam as a part of MACV.

The colonel came to Fort Benning from Ft. Belvoir, Va., where he served as commanding officer of the Combat Support Group, Combat Development Command.

At Fort Benning, Col. Keirsey commanded The Student Brigade from August, 1964, until he became the chief of staff.

Col. Keirsey, whose hometown is Durant, Okla., will live at 3008 Avenida St., Columbus, Ga., with his wife, Barbara, and his four boys, Dan, Kent, II, he served with the 45th Division in Europe.

Recycle the Bayonet, don't burn it!

Byline Bayonet Solitaire, a game of personal integrity

By Chaplain (Maj.) Ward Hagin

As almost every child can tell you, Solitaire is a game of cards played by one person. There are a good many variations of the game, all of them equally valid.

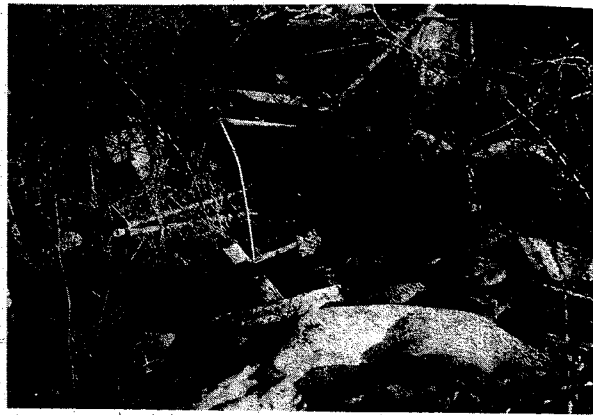

Actually, Solitaire is a game of personal integrity. You can cheat and no one will be the wiser. Surely no one can be hurt if no one else knows about the cheating. You might even feel that no one cares whether you cheat or not.

But this is not exactly true, because a simple game of cards might just be a mirror of our attitude in another kind of Solitaire, one played with a deck of cards but which is also a game of personal integrity. It is the game of life.

I realize that life is not as simple as a game of cards. In life we have much stronger drives and urges that tempt us to cheat, the rules of morality and character. But just as a little cheating in a game of cards leads on to more and more disregard and disrespect for firmness and for the rules of the game, so also we reach a point of crass immorality in our life if we give in to every whim and fancy that bends over so slightly the rules of social behavior.

The drives and urges that plague us need not be destructive to our character. They can be transformed into creative forces. We can rise and stand head and shoulders above the struggles of life. Many great men have been great men because of the personal control and self discipline that they have practiced. By resisting the urge to bend rules or to cheat, even though no one else would have been the wiser, they became men of honor.

Who knows if you cheat at Solitaire? You at least do. Who is deprived of strength of character and self respect every time he gives in to temptations and cheats in his moral standards? The man who cheats himself in the game of life.

Trash

Discarding, another form of littering, is prevalent about the housing areas. More the result of absent-mindedness than intentional polluting, discarding can be prevented through reliance on the post refuse facilities. Tragically, most pollution is the result of absent-mindedness.

Police call keeps menacing blight out

By Rob Melvaine and Jim Swink

One of the proudest assets to be found at Fort Benning is that beautiful stretch of landscaped flanking Benning Boulevard that greets you as you come through the main entrance. Yet, were it not for a daily and meticulous police call, even this area would fall prey to one of the most menacing forms of blight ever to hit the post: Littering.

Illegal dumping has long plagued the post and has increased sharply in recent months. The formula would appear to be "Where there's tall grass, there's generally someone's trash and trash." Said to say, the Environmental Management Division (EMD) suspects that some of this dumping is being done by local civilians and not the military populace. Officers, however, are difficult to prosecute unless they're caught redhanded. Yet ascertaining the identity of the offender through examination of the waste material affords EMD some leverage in preventing a recurrence.

There are no scapegoats around for another kind of littering on post, discarding, for a lack of a more explicit term. Discarding involves a rare subtlety than just plain dumping since the waste has the doubtful appearance of having been left and forgotten.

Vacant lots behind family quarters seem to have an irresistible attraction for this type of littering, particularly the ones in the Battle Park and Custer Terrace areas. Lots that abruptly drop off into a ravine or small valley seem to be the most vulnerable. They generally contain a varied assortment of old bicycle tires, screens, boards, charcoal burners, and a sundry assortment of cast-off household items. Their proximity to the quarters conveys a clear implication as to who the culprits are.

There is absolutely no excuse for discarding when it is such a simple matter to use the post refuse and garbage collection service. Scheduled pickups are made twice a week in all residential areas; special pickups may be arranged for collection of packing debris or waste after a cleaning session by calling 545-7794, the Refuse and Collection Section, Director of Facilities and Engineering.

Stream dumping bridges both dumping and discarding. Technically speaking, stream polluting involves the "...releasing of foreign or polluting material in a large or small stream." The most conspicuous — and correctable — instance of such polluting at Fort Benning can be found around a motor pool that operates a steam cleaning device for military vehicles. The oil, grease, and grime washed from the vehicle finds its way to a drain and that drain invariably empties into a small nearby stream. Due to a quirk of nature called gravity, that stream runs down hill and will in time meet up with the Chattahoochee River. When that steam cleaning device is operating there is bound to be more grease and oil flowing down the stream than water. When it's not operating the stream level drops revealing traces of oil lines along its grime-encrusted banks.

The solution is simply a matter of command emphasis: Unit commanders must perform frequent checks of motor pools to insure that oil and grease constituents are discarded in the correct manner. This is all it takes to help prevent stream pollution.

The EMD people are doing a lot to help correct these problems but their power is limited; they can only make suggestions. Despite the forcefulness and validity of these suggestions, they fall on deaf ears unless people are aware of their grave implication. That implication is clear to anyone who has lived in a large metropolitan city — clear also to anyone who has lived or tried to live on the peripheral wasteland of an industrial area. There may be economical and sociological reasons for such practices. Littering and pollution are an incensed and callously stupid waste of an all too precious commodity, man's dwindling environment.

Civil Service Commission sets rules for alcohol, drug abuse

The Civil Service Commission has announced guidelines for prevention, treatment and rehabilitation programs and services for alcoholism and alcohol abuse and drug abuse among civilian government workers.

According to the Fort Benning Civilian Personnel Information Bulletin, the guidelines were established in accordance with a Public Law (91-165) approved in Dec. 1970.

Department of the Army is expected to publish a regulation implementing the Civil Service Commission directive. A local program will be based on the Army Regulation. In the meantime the provisions of the Civil Service directive will provide the following guidance in the treatment and rehabilitation of employees with alcohol problems.

Alcoholism is recognized as a treatable illness. Alcoholism is defined as an illness in which the employee's job performance is impaired as a direct consequence of the abuse of alcohol.

An employee having an illness or other problems relating to the use of alcohol will receive the same careful consideration and offer of assistance that is presently extended to employees having any other illness. No employee to whom the program applies will have his job security jeopardized by his request for counseling or referral assistance.

Medical records of employees with drinking problems will be preserved in the same degree of confidence as all other medical records.

Sick leave will be granted for treatment or rehabilitation on the same basis that it is granted in any other illness.

According to the Civil Service Commission letter, a drinking problem exists when an employee's use of alcoholic beverages interferes with the efficient and safe performance of his assigned duties, reduces his dependability or reflects discredit on the service.

Supervisors will play a key role in making the program effective. They should be keenly aware of any change in an employee's performance which takes the form of poor workmanship, errors in judgment or absenteeism. This awareness is vital to the early identification and rehabilitation of a worker with a drinking problem. The guidelines stress that the program is to be carried out as a nondiscriminatory procedure aimed at rehabilitation. However, failure on the part of the employee to accept the assistance offered through the program or to otherwise correct performance should be dealt with through normal disciplinary procedures.

Any employee who suspects that he or she may have an alcoholism problem even in the early stages is encouraged to voluntarily seek counseling and information on an entirely confidential basis by contacting his supervisor or the Management Employee Relations Branch, Fort Benning Civilian Personnel Division, telephone 545-5743 or 545-7283.

Studded tire laws outlined

Good tire treads are important at any time of year, but especially so when pavements are slippery.

The ultimate in stop and go traction in deep snow and glare ice conditions is provided by reinforced tire chains. Snow tires are effective in loosely packed snow, but are of little help on ice. Studded tires improve stopping and pulling ability on ice.

The majority of the states now over have some limitations on the use of studded snow tires. Hawaii, Louisiana, Minnesota, and Mississippi completely ban their use. Effective April 1, Utah will do the same.

Other states permit only limited use of studded tires: Alaska, Arizona, Arkansas, California, Idaho, Connecticut, Delaware, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Montana, Nebraska, New Jersey, New York, North Dakota, Oklahoma, Oregon, Rhode Island, Virginia, Washington, West Virginia and Wisconsin.

Some 20 states have no laws regulating the use of these tires. Service members planning trips to other states should check that state's regulations concerning studded tires to determine the type of tread to use in slippery conditions.

Survivors aid outlined

A veteran should know exactly what benefits his survivors are entitled to upon his death, the Veterans Administration cautioned today.

Family documents, such as military discharge papers and birth and marriage certificates, should be kept where they are protected from fire and theft, but readily available.

Good advice, VA states, is for the veteran and his wife to discuss openly the locations of these papers and where to turn in the event of his death.

Veterans service organizations, as well as VA offices, can be of immeasurable assistance in times of death.

Other important documents that should be safeguarded include separation papers, death certificates, divorce decrees and guardianship or child custody evidence, VA says.

G.I. insurance policy numbers, VA "C" numbers for all VA correspondence, commercial insurance policies, Social Security numbers and naturalization papers are all important in claiming benefits.

Hunting for trouble

This season, hunters have been blamed for vandalizing and stealing property from objective sites in the Arkman-Winninger Range complex. If this continues the area may be placed "Off-Limits" to hunters.

Berliners-donuts minus holes are deep-fried treat

5 1/2 to 6 1/2 cups enriched self-rising flour
2 packages dry yeast
1 cup water
1/4 cup milk
1/2 cup sugar
1/4 cup oil
2 eggs
1/2 cup mince-meat fat for deep frying confectioners' sugar
sugar and icing (optional)

Stir together 2 cups flour and yeast. Beat water, milk, sugar and oil only until warm, stirring to blend. Add liquid ingredients to flour mixture and beat until smooth, about 2 minutes on medium speed of electric mixer or 300 strokes by hand. Add eggs and beat 1 minute on medium speed or 150 strokes. Stir in more flour to make moderately stiff dough. Roll out lightly on surface and knead until smooth and satiny, about 8 to 10 minutes. Place in lightly greased bowl turning to grease all sides. Cover and let rise in warm place (80 to 85 degrees) until doubled, about 1 1/2 hours. Punch down. Divide dough in half; shape into balls. Cover; let rest 10 minutes. On lightly floured surface, roll each half to circle 1/4-inch thick. With 2 1/2-inch cutter, cut 48 circles. Place 1 teaspoon mince-meat filling on half the circles. Top with remaining circles; press to seal. Let rise in warm place until doubled, about 30 to 45 minutes. Fry in preheated 375 degrees deep fat until golden brown, turning once, about 2 minutes on each side. Drain on absorbent paper. While still warm, shake in sugar or glaze with confectioners' sugar icing. Makes 24 donuts.

VA outlines widow benefits

Widows of veterans who remarried and were widowed a second time are eligible to have their VA widow benefits restored, but the Veterans Administration reports that there has been no great rush of applications.

Pensions, VA explained, are paid to needy widows of veterans who die of causes not related to military service. The amount of the monthly payment varies with the income of the widow and her number of dependents.

Compensation, known officially as dependency and indemnity compensation or DIC, is paid to widows of veterans who were killed in service or who died of service-connected causes. If a widow drawing either pension or DIC should remarry, the VA payments are discontinued under a law enacted in August 1970. VA officials explained that there are no statistics on widows returned to pension and compensation rolls because the rolls change constantly, and a count is kept only by the number of "cases."

(Public Law 91-376), the payments can be restored if the subsequent marriage is dissolved by divorce or death.

The Member of the Wedding by Carson McCullers was the January selection of the MEDDAC Wives' Book Club. The club met at Mrs. Paul Kaufman's home on Lumpkin Road.

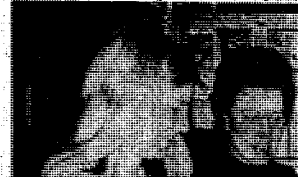

A brief sketch of the author's life was presented by Mrs. Lazzlo, who mentioned that the book was partly autobiographical. The Book Club members compared the early adolescence of the girl, Frankie Addams, to their own teenage years and found many similarities. Many incidents in the book showed the loneliness felt by the adolescent, who is left out of adult events.

The next selection of the book club is Radical Chic and Mau-Mauing the Flak Catchers by Tom Wolfe.

Aviation Command wives visit Lawson facilities

Wives don't often get the opportunity to investigate their husband's job, but a recent Aviation Command officers wives coffee was combined with a tour of the Command's facilities.

Approximately 20 officers' wives attended the coffee in the VIP Lounge at Lawson Army Airfield. At a brief business meeting, Mrs. Jeffrey Fillion, whose husband recently took command of the 16th Aviation Co., was welcomed to the group. Leaving is Mrs. Jon Stillman, whose husband has been reassigned as executive officer of 1st Bn. 29th Inf., 197th Inf. Bde.

The wives were introduced to Lt. Col. James Miller, airfield commander, who conducted the tour. Radar, telemetry and other weather forecasting equipment were demonstrated to the ladies by Air Force MSgt. H.A. Book, 16th Weather Sq. The wives also viewed the flight planning area and operations area where aviators record their flight plans.

Maj. George Twigg, commander of the 265th Aviation Co., accompanied several ladies when they boarded a VIP Chinook.

The wives then climbed the Control Tower of the Airfield and saw demonstrations of the radar equipment and weather facilities. From the dome of the tower the ladies watched a light observation helicopter land.

After completion of the tour, the ladies lunched with their husbands in the Corridor Room of the Officer's Club. After lunch, Mrs. James Miller received a surprise birthday cake.

Free drivers licenses available for Ga. vets

ATLANTA — Almost without exception, the first benefit for which most Georgia veterans apply when they return home is the free lifetime driver's license.

Georgia Veterans Service Director Pete Wheeler said, "To qualify for a free driver's license, a veteran must have been a resident of Georgia at the time he entered military service and also a legal resident of the state when he applies for the license." Despite some reports to the contrary, the license is absolutely free. There is no charge whatsoever unless a veteran wants his picture to appear on his licence. In that case there is a fee of fifty cents.

First offered as a token of appreciation to Georgia veterans of World War II, the license has since been made available to those veterans who served on active duty during the Spanish-American War, World War I, the Korean War and the war in Vietnam. In addition, proof of actual participation in the Lebanon and Berlin crises will qualify a veteran for the free license.

A considerable number of veterans' dependents also might be eligible for the free drivers' licenses. "Under certain conditions," said Wheeler, "a surviving spouse of a veteran may qualify for a free license. Also the spouse of a veteran still living but so disabled that he cannot drive, possibly could be eligible."

Eligibility for a free driver's license may be established at any office of the Georgia Department of Veterans Service. The actual license may then be obtained from the Department of Public Safety.

CHAMPUS defines policy

Earlier this year, officials of the Civilian Health and Medical Program of the Uniformed Services (CHAMPUS) announced that expectant mothers eligible for CHAMPUS benefits are authorized dental care if, in the opinion of the attending physician and dentist, the dental care is necessary during the pregnancy to protect the health of the expectant mother and the unborn child. In response to numerous inquiries that have been received by OCHAMPUS regarding the scope of dental care which is authorized, OCHAMPUS officials have announced the following guidelines:

Dental care required to eliminate infection which might prove detrimental to the health of the expectant mother or unborn child is authorized to include extraction of teeth, endodontics, periodontics, restoration of carious teeth, oral hygiene treatment and those diagnostic procedures necessary to provide the aforementioned care.

Gold restorations are authorized, but only if the doctor is unable to adequately restore the tooth by means of amalgam or another accepted dental material other than gold.

If a tooth is extracted during the pregnancy, OCHAMPUS will also authorize the replacement, by means of a prosthetic appliance, (a dental plate or bridge). However, the replacement of teeth that were missing prior to the pregnancy is not authorized unless the absence of the teeth will result in nutritional deficiencies through an inability to chew properly which could seriously compromise the pregnancy. If a prosthetic appliance is provided to replace teeth not extracted during the pregnancy, written justification for this care from the physician and dentist must be submitted with the claim. Replacement of teeth when authorized, must, of course, be accomplished by the most economical means that will adequately restore the dentition.

Statements of charges for authorized dental care must be submitted to OCHAMPUS, upon completion of treatment, on DA Form 1082 and must be accompanied by a statement from the patient's obstetrician verifying the pregnancy and giving the estimated or actual date of delivery. Preauthorization for dental care is not required. Authorization for dental care ends with the termination of the pregnancy, with the exception that those teeth extracted during the later stages of pregnancy may be replaced within a reasonable time subsequent to the termination of the pregnancy.

Security belongs plan for it!!

Saving is not the easiest thing to do, especially in the Army, but with the new pay raise, everyone could have one or more savings bonds taken out of his salary without missing the money.

The Savings Bond is a form of savings that earns money as long as it is held. The interest rate of 5 1/2 per cent is compounded semi-annually to a maturity date of 5 years and 10 months. All bonds are automatically extended for a 10 year period, at the same rate of interest, if the holder does not cash them. . . in fact, many bonds issued since 1961 have not ceased earning interest.

Bonds are not only a good investment for savings reasons, but they also underwrite $54.4 billion of the national debt.

Bonds will be replaced if lost or stolen. Interest is guaranteed, and is non-taxable until cashed; then taxable only for federal purposes. No state or local taxes apply to bonds.

A bond program is an easy way of saving, with the price of the bonds being taken out of the pay check before being paid. Money not in the hand cannot be spent; also, after a 60-day hold, bonds may be cashed at any time before or after maturity.

A $5.00 bond-a-month program started for a child at birth will, at 18, supply $6,787 towards his or her college education. And a $100 bond a month program for 15 years and 10 months, towards retirement, can be converted to Series H Bonds to yield a monthly interest of $104.64.

Bonds for education, retirement or just saving; . . . bonds are a good investment.

Savings-minded soldiers plan future with bonds

Three enlisted men who have recently entered the Savings Bond program have agreed to tell the Bayonet their reasons for buying bonds:

"I'm saving for civilian life — for things I want to buy later," Cpl. Jerre W. Conrad, NCO Candidate in 82nd Company, The School Brigade, talks about the $75 bond a month he has taken out of his pay. "I'm saving bonds for my children's college education for when I get married and have children."

Cpl. Conrad, of R. Rt. 5, Logansport, Ind., says that he would continue buying bonds after he gets out of the service, mainly since, "I believe in bonds. I've been buying bonds since I was 11."

Cpl. Herman F. Brugger, also 82nd Company, is taking a $100 bond a month. He says, "I have some things I want to buy later, after I get out."

Brugger, of 3436 Jackson, Deerpoint Heights, Mich., thinks that he will keep buying bonds. "Perhaps not as regularly, but I want to keep saving."

Cpl. Gregory L. Brohman, also of 82nd Co., who is also taking a $100 bond, feels that, "This is the only way I can save. I guess I'm a spender. . . It feels good to have some (money) put away."

Cpl. Brohman, of R. Rt. 1, Deer River, Minn., also said, "I hope to be able to keep saving bonds regularly in civilian life; I won't spend bonds."

Boy Scout camporee includes orienteering

The Ranger Department will host a camporee for the Boy Scouts of the Fort Benning District this weekend.

The camporee will include an Orienteering Clinic to be held in the Ranger classroom, Bldg. 4833 and an over night campout near Todd Field.

Explorer Post 333, sponsored by the Ranger Department, will assist the Fort Benning Orienteering Team in presenting the instruction. The instruction will include a demonstration in use of the compass, basic map reading and orienteering techniques. At the conclusion of the instruction, the scouts will participate in a competitive cross-country orienteering event. In addition to conducting an orienteering clinic for the Boy Scouts, Explorers and other interested groups, the team instructs orienteering to Infantry Officer Basic Course, Officer Candidates and Non-Commissioned Officer Candidates students. The Fort Benning Orienteering Team also competes in National and International competition.

The Fort Benning Orienteering Team has cordially accepted an invitation from the Boy Scouts of America to present orienteering to Explorers at the 1972 National Explorer Olympics to be held at Colorado State University, Ft. Collins, Colo. in June.

The Fort Benning Orienteering Team is presently accepting applications for membership on the team.

Individuals that have experience in orienteering or cross-country running that would be interested in "trying out" for a position on the team should call Capt. Strabel (545-9021). New personnel that earn a slot on the Fort Benning Orienteering Team will be trained to compete in the upcoming competitive season in events being held in different parts of the United States, Canada and Sweden.

Engineers help post exercise

It sometimes seems that Engineer units go unnoticed while the combat units receive much of the acclaim and credit. In reality, the Engineer units play an important role of support for the combat-ready units.

This week the Engineers have been called upon to assist Operation Brave Shield I, which is designed to demonstrate the capability of the U. S. Army and Air Force.

From the 831st Engr. Gp., several units are involved in the massive tactical operation.

The 67th Maint. Bn. is providing the key element of the Engineer commitment. It will contribute a Contact Maintenance Team which includes three wheel mechanics and a supervisor. The battalion will also provide three five-ton tractors with trailers.

The 83rd Engr. Bn. will provide other vital equipment and the operators in the form of two 1,000 gallon water distributors, two cranes and three large dump trucks.

The 590th Engr. Co. (FB) is supplementing the undertaking by providing three trucks and drivers to haul the necessary cargo.

Ramblin' round? Try Westville...vintage 1850

The streets are muddy and rutted, some buildings are complete, others merely frames full of lumber and sawdust, hammering and sawing fills the air, a snack bar is nowhere to be found... This is one view of an ambitious attempt to step back into the brave old world of 1850 Westville.

Westville is a reenactment of an earlier Georgia when survival hinged upon hard work, ingenuity, and raw courage. The blacksmith, doctor, carpenter, farmer, weaver and others all interlocked to form a community that was largely self-sufficient.

Began in 1968 by Westville Historic Handicrafts, Inc., a non-profit corporation composed of residents of Columbus and Lumpkin (Stewart County), Georgia, the project is far from finished, and proud to be that way. Buildings are in varying stages of restoration, some plans are as yet undetermined. Funding is a continuing battle, yet this all adds to the compelling character and excitement of Westville.

There's a lot left to dream about, to work to do about, to hammer and sawing delicate and saving delicate.

To get to Westville from Fort Benning, you go out to the entrance and follow Route 27 straight to Lumpkin where signs are posted that lead you right to the project. It's open seven days a week from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Saturday and on Sunday from 1 to 5 p.m.

Admission is $2.00 for adults and $1.00 for students. Tickets are valid for a three-month period which means that you can come back for another visit on the same ticket anytime within three months of your first visit.

The project sits on a fifty-acre stretch of wooded land on the outskirts of Lumpkin. At present it includes 17 structures that range from the polished elegance of the McDonald House to the more than 100 houses whose unfinished state is Westville in a microcosm.

Pottery making, quilting, smithing, fire place cooking, and basket making are a few of the activities that provide Westville a realism and vibrancy that distinguish it from a static display. Each one of the activities is performed by a skilled craftsman who explains the details of his craft. Some may even give you a free sample such as an iron book from the blacksmith's forge or a piece of gingerbread from the Maret Farm Complex.

Perhaps the best way to

As far as Westville is concerned, those decades between Miss Pearl and Jeff Griffin are just so many years and this seems to apply to everyone else associated with the project. They all seem to be joined by that same spirit of independence and integrity that stitched the age they're working so hard to commemorate.

suggest the diversity and harmony that is essential to the uniqueness of Westville is to briefly describe two of its resident craftsman. First of all, there's nearly forgotten world of manners and customs that are a delight to revisit. Although as decidedly old-fashioned as the quilts she makes, Miss Pearl's humorous insights into past and present are just as timeless and enduring.

Several decades divide Miss Pearl from Jeff Griffin, a potter who works at the Gordy Pottery Shop. An ex-Army officer, Jeff developed an interest in pottery while stationed at Fort Benning. Some of his very first work was done in our craft shop. After the Army he decided to devote himself fulltime to pottery and studied under D. X. Gordy, a Master Potter and founder of the Westville shop. Jeff aspires to become an artisan like Mr. Gordy and confesses that he's "still got a lot to learn." To watch his left wheel is to sense his humility.

Postal service offers tax book

A booklet giving information on how to fill out Federal tax returns is on sale beginning this month at 15,000 post offices across the country, the Postal Service announced today.

"Your Federal Income Tax" was written by the Internal Revenue Service and contains many examples illustrating how the tax law applies to actual situations. A special feature of the booklet is a sample, fill-in return, Form 1040, keyed to pages where explanations can be found.

Another popular IRS publication, "Tax Guide for Small Business," will also be available at a limited number of first-class stations at 75 cents a copy. This publication answers many questions businessmen have about Federal income, excise and employment taxes and also contains a 1972 tax calendar with due dates for various tax and information returns and payments.

McQueen reviews

Characterization weak in 'Klute' but plot interesting

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first in a series of reviews of motion pictures appearing at Fort Benning Bookers. The reviews will be written by a member of the post information office.

KLUTE. Starring Jane Fonda and Donald Sutherland.

Sutherland portrays a home town private eye named Klute who is sent to the big city to find a friend who has disappeared. His only lead is Bree — played by Jane Fonda—a former high-priced prostitute who is tapering off just to support her attempts at acting and modeling.

Bree has been receiving obscene letters and phone calls, apparently from the missing man. This also may have been the same man who once hired her and tried to beat her to death.

The film follows Klute in his investigation and shows how he wins Bree's acceptance.

the prostitute, for example, could have been much better. It was as if she never wanted to get involved with her role. In a ditto to certain lines were spoken out of character. Especially the profanity.

On the other hand, several scenes with Miss Fonda were good. Her visits to her psychiatrist — slip in shots which attempt in a novel but weak way to explain the actions and emotions played in the film — are an accurate portrayal of a prostitute's personal trials and tribulations.

That is, if one can include a prostitute going to a psychiatrist in the first place. In any event, she gave a good example of soul searching while on the psychiatric couch.

One of Miss Fonda's best scenes in the film, however, was a professional visit to an old gentleman in the garment district of New York City with little dialogue and with no touching, she performs a beautiful scene, telling him he's the greatest man in the world and that just to be near him is all a girl could want.

Donald Sutherland plays an insipid character in Klute. His emotions are too extreme — either very subtle or very violent — seldom in between. The only strong point one could make for Sutherland's characterization is that he was consistent.

New York City is not treated well in the film. Alan J. Pakula, producer and director of the film, went to great lengths and into great detail to reveal the seamy side of the city. He showed the rotting docks, the garment district, the slums — even a man who, with the enthusiasm of Charles Dickens' knitting woman by the gutter, watches police pull a stilette out of the river. There is, of course, a few shots of opulence:

Wheat farmer downs 'Red Baron' in high flying WW I picture

On April 21, 1918, a Canadian wheat farmer turned pilot named Roy Brown turned his guns on a German Albatross triplane in the skies over occupied France, and blasted the aircraft and its occupant, an aristocratic 25-year-old German. Manifested von Richthofen, from the skies forever.

This date marked not only the death of Germany's national hero, but also was a symbolic turning point in the character of modern warfare. The end of the concept of glory and honor and the beginning of the concept of air war as a dirty, killing business.

Manfred von Richthofen, or "The Red Baron" as he was popularly known, was the last of the "gentleman warriors" — latterday knights of the Round Table, aristocrats who fought with chivalry and died, whenever possible, with matching plumb.

Roy Brown entered the war at a time when such manners were very much the order of the day. He found these manners absurd and rebelled against them. Brown thought the object of war was to kill people — as quickly and efficiently as possible and by whatever means necessary.

The story of these two men, their conflicting ideologies, their aspirations and their battles in their air is told in the motion picture "Von Richthofen and Brown" starring John Phillip Law as the Red Baron. Don Stroud portrays Brown, the Canadian Ace. The movie was produced by Gene Corman and directed by Roger Corman in color for release by United Artists. John Corringham wrote the screenplay. It is now playing at local theatres.

Also in the cast are Karen Huston as Ilsa, a Wagnerian beauty, who sings Von Richthofen's praises and then seduces him;

Corin Redgrave as Lancelotti, Brown's pilot instructor; Barry Primus as the youthful Hermann Goering; Peter Masterman as Oswald Boeckler, Von Richthofen's instructor; Hurd Hatfield as Fokker, the German aircraft designer and Tom Adams as Wing Commander Owen, Brown's commanding officer.

"Von Richthofen and Brown" was filmed in Ireland, principally at Weston Airport, outside of Dublin. Production preparation began months before a camera, actor or film technician arrived on Irish soil. The reason for this was the difficult task of assembling in quantity the antique aircraft of the First World War and putting them in working order for the picture.

Libraries' books

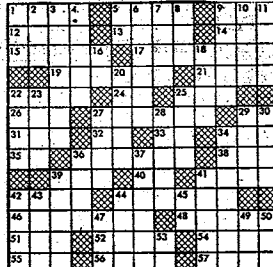

The post Special Services libraries offer books on a wide variety of subjects. Here are some of the newer ones:

Books That Changed America, Robert B. Downs. A discussion of 26 works that have influenced America's culture and civilization. The social and scientific sciences are emphasized.
Men and Women: The Poetry of Love, selected and edited by Lois Usher-meyer. Love as featured in more than 250 poems. The writers speak for both the famous and not-so-famous, for those who have fallen in love and out of it.

The All-American Dollar, Joe Durso. An examination of the commercial side of professional sports. Without losing any of its charm and romance, the author traces pro ball from its simple past to big business present.
The Warsaw Document, Adam Hall. Another espionage novel by the author of "The Quiller Memorandum."

Treasury of Humor, Isaac Asimov. A harvest of the author's favorite anecdotes, jokes, puns and scandalous verse — and how to tell them effectively. Asimov also tells about his experiences on the podium and at parties as well as his philosophy on humor and life.
Who Owns America, Walter J. Hickey. The former secretary of interior argues that the country's resources — air, mineral, water and public lands — belong to the people not to a special few.
The Khaki Mafia, Robin Moore and J. Lee Collins. A fact-based novel about a Mafia-like conspiracy that brings corruption and scandal to the operation of U.S. Army clubs. More

To prove the wetness of Rise, this man shaved without using any water.

And he actually got a smooth, clean shave.
 The reason he got such a clean shave is the moisture in Rise.
 A lather needs moisture, needs wetness, so your beard won't dry out beneath it.
 And you can't buy a lather that's water thin Rise.

Slowly it seeps moisture into your beard and holds it there for as long as it takes you to shave.
 The point we're trying to prove is this:
 If your foam can get so smooth, clean shave using Rise with no water, imagine what you can do using Rise with water.

Synopsis

See No Evil (Rated GP) — Sarah, an attractive young girl who was blinded by a near fatal fall from a horse, had adjusted well to her handicap — until a series of macabre events plunge her into a terrifying situation. Alone and helpless in a darkened world, she is stalked by a maniacal killer. Sarah is played by Mia Farrow.

The Touch (Rated R) — The eternal triangle — Swedish style — is the theme of Ignar Bergman's first English language production. Bibi Andersson portrays a housewife who is content with her "secure" life — until she realizes what she's been missing when an American archeologist comes in the scene. Unfortunately, the new love is neurotic, Gentle and considerate at some times, he becomes angry and physically abusive to others. Finally the husband — who's getting the worst of the deal — draws the line.

The Best House in London (Rated X) — Victorian morals are the target of this satirical comedy about London's high-life, low-life and love-life. David Hemmings stars in the dual role of a playboy libertine and ardent protector of "fallen-women." Joanna Pettet appears as his reformist girl friend who wants to open a hostel for these unfortunate, and George Sanders plays an aristocrat who devises a novel plan for solving London's prostitution problem. No one under the age of 17 will be admitted to this picture.

The Omega Man (Rated GP) — The year is 1977. In the streets of Los Angeles, abandoned cars and bodies are stamped on sidewalks and against buildings. Two years earlier Russia and China destroyed most of mankind in a germ war. Now the Family, albino-like survivors of the plague who are visible everywhere and cannot stand light, threaten to wipe out the remnants. Two men not infected by the disease — a medical researcher played by Charlton Heston and a black hippie portrayed by Rosalind Cash — try to stop them.

Criminal Affair (Rated GP) — A top criminologist, aided by an astute understanding of the criminal mind and goaded by a money-hungry mother, plots to make the Boston Albany National Opera not so entertaining for the rich. With the help of a band of musical thieves and a gorgeous but unsuspecting assistant, the prof — played by Rossano Brazzi — plans to lift $2.5 million in jewels on opening night.

Dramatizers to offer workshop

The Fort Benning Dramatizers will sponsor a theater arts workshop, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., on Saturdays at the post playhouse.

The workshop will be open to all servicemen, dependents and civilians interested in developing their theatrical talents. All persons will have first-hand experience in this field as urged to come.

No prior experience is necessary. The Dramatizers are an amateur theater group not a professional organization. Their goal is to cultivate an appreciation for the theater on post and in the community.

The workshop will feature lectures, seminars and practical exercises. Topics to be covered include play reading and interpretation, stage movement, set design, stage construction, sound, make-up, costume and a public reading of the subjects at this week's workshop will be stage movement and improvisation.

Workshop members also will participate in putting on Noel Coward's "Blithe Spirit," Fort Benning's entry in the 3rd U.S. Army Tournament of Plays. For further information, call the playhouse at 545-5017.

He also has acted in three movies and a large number of TV commercials.

The nine-year member of Actors Equity served his apprenticeship with several East coast theaters—Yarmouth Playhouse in Cape Cod, Mass.; Barter Theater in Abington, Va.; and Montebrook Dinner Theater in New Jersey.

Reviewer says war novel lacks detailed characters

LIGHTER THAN A FEATHER, David Westheimer, Little Brown and Co., 1945.

This World War II novel ponders what would have happened if Japan had not accepted the unconditional surrender in 1945. The book's title is taken from the Japanese warrior maxim, "Duty is heavier than a mountain but death is lighter than a feather."

In a series of vignettes viewed through the eyes of both the invaders and defenders, Westheimer has authentically recreated the battleground complete with costumes and props. It is like watching a meticulously made movie shot on location. That is also what is wrong with the story. You can forgive a movie for not including certain details because of the limits of time and the medium, but you expect more from a book. Westheimer's characters are never given enough time. The author was trying to tell so much he could spend only a few pages on each character. Just when Westheimer had breathed enough life into his sketch to make the people human, the character was either killed or the scene cut. Perhaps this was just one more way for the author to tell us that war is wasteful.

There are very few stereotypes among his players which made the short episodes ever more annoying. Yet he chose to begin the American side of the story with a personality usually restricted to grade B war movies. He is a loud, bragging machinergunner who only lacks chewing gum and a Brooklyn accent to complete the picture.

More memorable, probably because they are less familiar, are the Japanese. We see the kamikaze pilots, peasants, intellectuals and one young American-born Japanese girl who was deported from an intern camp at Santa Anita race track in California.

In one of the last episodes Westheimer explores the warrior philosophies that produced such things as kamikaze and "banzai charges." A Japanese sergeant named Yoshida, personifying the reluctant soldier, is guinea-pigged because he was captured. Through a series of interrogations by the American psychological war section, Yoshida is shown that his values are a result of militaristic propaganda. Their attempts to motivate Yoshida into cooperating are similar to those, according to press releases, used in the Chien Hsi program in Vietnam.

Ocean voyager tells of travels

The man who was explorer Thor Heyerdahl's second-in-command during a 37-day, cross-Atlantic expedition addressed the annual membership meeting of the Columbus Museum of Arts and Crafts Monday.

Norman Baker, the navigator and only American on the eight-man, multi-national crew, discussed the difficulties of building and sailing the papyrus ships on which the men traveled. The journey was taken to pursue an anthropological theory that Egyptian or Moroccan adventurers voyaged across the Atlantic in similar craft 4,000 years ago.

First ATT class here since 1970 holds graduation

Three units from Fort Benning's 197th Infantry Brigade today graduated Advanced Individual Training (AIT) students at the post's Sand Hill Theater, marking the first such graduation in nearly two years.

The soldiers, all unit-of-choice enlistees trained by the 197th, were from the 1st platoon, D company, 1st Battalion, 28th Infantry, the TOW Weapon Platoon of the 1st Battalion (Mechanized), 58th Infantry and the 1st platoon, H company, 6th Armor, 197th Support Battalion.

Col. Edwin L. Kennedy, the brigade commander, Major Gen. C. Talbot, commander of Fort Benning and Col. Willard Latham, Chief of Staff of the Infantry Center, were present at the ceremony.

Gen. Talbot presented each of the 54 graduating students with a certificate. Col. Latham gave awards to the honor graduate, Pvt. William R. Coker, 21, of the Canal Zone in Panama and to Pvt. Gerald K. Wilson, 21, of Prognone, S.C., the high-point member on the physical fitness test.

Both soldiers are from the 1st platoon, D company, 1st Battalion, 28th Infantry.

The class was the first to be graduated from AIT at Fort Benning since Feb. 1970, when Gen. Talbot also officiated at the graduation ceremony. The students graduated at that time were housed during their training in the same Sand Hill area in which their latest graduation was held.

Overall responsibility for the 197th Brigade's AIT program is held by the brigade's Central Training Command, headed by Capt. Jay C. Copley.

The 11-week AIT program consists of three phases. The first concentrates on general military subjects, including weapons, land navigation and patrolling.

During the second phase students learn military tactics, especially at the small unit level, while the third and final phase provides the trainees with specialized training in accordance with their Military Occupational Specialties.

USAMTU keeps on trucking

Grand Championship claimed by Moeller

SFC Edmund O. Moeller Jr., of the U.S. Army Marksmanship Training Unit (USAMTU) overcame a nine point deficit in the Tri-Service International Running Race meet and grabbed the Grand Championship Sunday when he posted a grand aggregate of 1064 for the two-day moving target meet.

Moeller, winner of the U.S. International Shooting Championship Running Boar Matches in Phoenix, Ariz. last May, vaulted into the lead and started strong Sunday morning despite the intense cold. He captured the slow runs with a 299, surpassing his mixed field of Marine and Air Force competitors and one civilian. This with his 278 Saturday, gave him the slow run aggregate of 577. SFC Charles Davis, a companion shooter who topped the field in the slow runs during the first day's shooting, took the runner up spot with 558 while SFC Norman Skarpsness was in third with 546.

In the fast runs, SSgt. Robert Yeager of Lackland AFB, San Antonio, Tex., former National Champion and winner of the first day's aggregate scoring, took the course when he fired a 362, Sunday to give him a 518 aggregate in the fast category. Maj. (Ret.) Willis L. Powell, of Columbus, a former member of the USAMTU, took the runner up spot with his 515 aggregate while Moeller placed third with 507.

Yeager, two points behind Moeller in the grand aggregate, posted a 1062 for runner up honors in the two day meet. Following his first day's lead, the ten degree temperature and biting wind caused the former champion to falter and he dropped 12 points to Moeller in the slow runs from which he never recovered. Davis placed third in the overall showing with 1058.

In team competition, the U.S. Army "Blue" won the action with the combined efforts of Moeller, Davis, Skarpsness and SFC William R. Lee. They compiled a 1412 composite score. The team is sponsored by the USAMTU.

Nation's top Handgunners compete in Meet

Some of the Nation's top handgunners will be converging on post to participate in three of the new year's first pistol tournaments. The first of these matches, a three-day indoor meet, will start tomorrow and run through Sunday. Other tournaments will run through Tuesday.

The five day pistol marathon will pit the cream of the handgun world in competitive matches for national championships, recognition and honor. In the first tournament, an NRA National Indoor Sectional Championships, recognition and honor. In the first tournament, and NRA National Indoor Sectional Championships, recognition and honor. Aiming for new records

SFC Bonnie Harmon, winner of the 1971 CISM military rapid fire pistol match, will be one of the 20 countries competing in the 15th Annual Pan American Invitational Rifle match Feb. 7-11 in Panama.

Riflemen capture two of three team events

Five members of the U.S. Army Marksmanship Training Unit (USAMTU) International Rifle team competed in the Knoxville Annual Invitational Three Position Rifle tournament Jan. 15 and 16 where they captured two of the team events and secured the individual position contests. The matches were fired on the Knoxville Volunteer Rifle and Pistol Club ranges.

Capt. Larry R. Bassham of the MTU who led the Georgia team effort, placed all 40 shots in the ten ring for a perfect 400 in the kneeling match to take capture that event and added a kneeling match victory of 398. The standing event was taken by Capt. Edward L. Schumaker, officer in charge of the MTU rifle team who posted a 362. He also placed second in the prone

MTU to coach South, Central American teams

Twenty Champion shooters and Ambassadors of Good-Will from the U.S. Army Marksmanship Training Unit prepare to fly south Jan. 29 on their annual mission of conducting a marksmanship coaching clinic for Central and South American countries rifle teams.

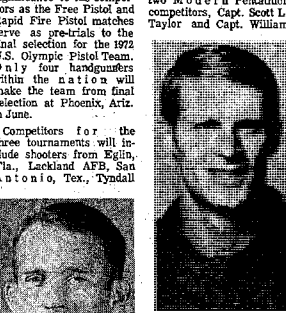

The clinic and coaching mission is associated with the annual Pan American Invitational Rifle Matches held in the Panama Canal Zone and conducted by the U.S. Army Forces Southern Command.

The distinguished Champion rifle shooters and ambassadors are guests of the four-day rifle match which is held Feb. 7 to 11 on Empire Range, Canal Zone.

One of the major contributing factors to the success of the annual rifle matches is the exceptional guidance rendered by the U.S. Army shooters.

During the period of Jan. 31 through Feb. 4, the USAMTU coaches will conduct pre-match rifle clinics, check weapons and perform last minute armor duties for the competitors. Then during the three remaining days prior to the actual competition, a USAMTU coach will be assigned to each country's team and will be working as a coach and instructor on the range assisting in polishing the finer details of successful marksmanship prior to the four-day matches.

BY JOHN DAVIS

Although the now famous "Bill of Complaints" leveled against Leon "Bud" Carson says otherwise, the deposed Georgia Tech mentor is actually guilty of only one crime — he promised goods that he couldn't deliver.

Before the season began Carson was advertising the '71 edition of Yellow Jackets as his best ever. Naturally when the Engineers slumped to a 6-6 mark this fall disappointed alumni took offense.irate Technicians retaliated by drafting a 43 page "Bill Of Complaints" accusing Carson of everything but wife-beating.

The controversial "Bill" stated that Carson couldn't instill confidence in his players, supposedly, a communication's gap had developed between the head coach, his assistants and some of the Tech players. In other words, disgruntled alumni were looking for anything and everything to present to the Tech ruling body.

Had Carson made good on his pre-season predictions, however, the Tech Alumni Association would have voted him man of the year. When a coach produces a winner he is the most popular man in town. But when a coach predicts great things — especially coming off a 9-3 campaign — and barely breaks even, he's only asking for trouble.

Unfortunately, Carson thought he had good reason to be optimistic. The nucleus of his fine '70 team was returning, and highly touted quarterback Eddie McAshan was back for his junior year. Defensively, rugged Smylie Gobhart was back at his familiar and position, and a talented array of defensive backs were also on hand.

Then Tech ran into South Carolina on opening day. Quite a few eyebrows were raised when the Gamecocks upset the Jackets in a night clash in Columbia, but there was still no blood in the eyes of the alumni. A convincing win over Michigan State helped some, but the on-again off-again Engineers were embarrassed by lowly Army and tempers flared once more.

Tech rosters then realized that Carson was on the ropes. Even though the Jackets were able to salvage four of their final five games, the Tech boss was trading on precarious thin ice. Then, on the flooded surface of Atlanta Stadium on December 30, the University of Mississippi whipped the coup de grace.

The 4-18 whipping administered by the Rebels in the rain-soaked Peach Bowl contest was the final straw. Disgruntled alumni now began work on the infamous Bill, and Carson was dismissed January 8. For the first time in its proud football history, the Georgia Institute of Technology had fired a head coach.

Carson's reign lasted only five years, but it probably aged him 30 seasons. As he admitted at his farewell conference, he had never had the complete support of the alumni and administration. And besides, he was faced with a schedule that caused him nightmares.

Carson faced powerful Notre Dame four times and Southern Cal twice. He also had three years of Illinois and Beasley (Auburn), plus five years each of Tennessee and Georgia. His Tech career mark was an even 500, 27-27.

Aircraft inspector teaches scuba diving

When most aviators talk about the wild blue yonder, they mean the sky. Not so with Sps Donald M. Hissom, aircraft technical inspector 265th Av. Co. He feels the world of blue water has just as much to offer. Hissom is president of the Fort Benning Scuba Club and a diving instructor for the Fort Benning Special Services Division.

Hissom has been a certified diver for over two years and last year was awarded his Instructor's Certificate from the Professional Association of Diving Instructors through Columbus College. As a result of his excellent performance, Hissom was voted a charter member of the Columbus College Underwater Sportsman Association.

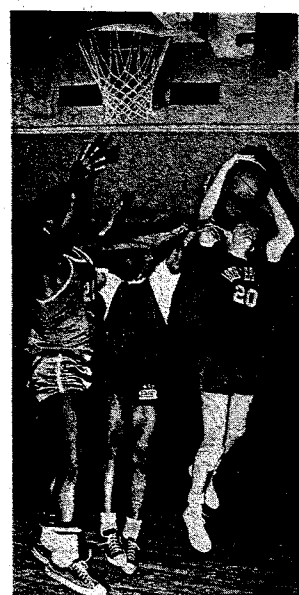

Scuba diving can be an exciting and safe sport. The beginner first needs training in the use of the equipment and then must gain knowledge of underwater safety procedures. Scuba diving instruction is available at Fort Benning through the special services branch. Classes are held in the Briant Wells swimming pool on Wednesday evenings. All participation is encouraged.

Upon completion of the 42 hour course, the student must pass written and practical examinations. Then as a qualified diver you'll be free to explore the magic of the "deep blue sea."

For further information concerning the scuba class, contact Hissom at 868-5124.

ROD AND GUN CLUB

Notes

BY BILL KLOEB
The 1971-72 deer seasons for Alabama and Georgia are now finished. The official count of deer taken on the reservation was a total of 517. This exceeded by 25 the number taken last year.

The Georgia side of the reservation produced 394 buck and 108 doe. There were only 45 deer taken on the Alabama portion of the reservation according to the official record. Of these 35 were buck and ten were doe.

The leaders in the Rod and Gun Club Deer Hunting Contest remained unchanged during the last week of the hunting season. As a matter of fact all of the leading entries were placed on the books early in the season. The largest deer registered in the contest was taken on opening day.

Lt. Col. Brandt Grubbs registered the largest deer. His entry weighed in at 176 pounds. The 163-pound entry of John E. Smith held up for the second place prize.

Sgt. Charles Wallace and Ronnie Cavins each registered deer with ten countable antler points. The ties in the antler contest were to be broken by the weight of the deer so Wallace ended up with the first prize based on his 166-pound entry. The deer entered by Cavins weighed 146 pounds.

Grubbs and Wallace will receive Remington Model 1100 Automatic shotguns and Smith and Cavins will each receive a Mossberg Box Action Sluggun.

The presentations will be made at the Rod and Gun Club this evening at 7 p.m. Ridley Bell, host of the Sportsman's Lodge Television Program, aired on WRBL-TV 3 each Saturday at 6 p.m. will make the presentations.

At that time all persons who registered a deer at the club during the contest will have a chance to win a third Remington gun. The lucky winner of this prize must be present at the club this evening when his name is announced. All club members are invited to attend.

Hunting Areas Shrink

Over the past few years hunters and hunting have been getting a hard time. Some ecologists have made them willians who are a threat to the wildlife of the country and the available hunting areas have been shrinking up at an alarming rate. Some of this shrinkage is due to population expansion but some of it is a direct result of the action of a small percentage of thoughtless hunters.

Many land owners have closed their property because they have become tired of having fences cut, gates left open, livestock killed or scared half to death and suffering from countless other losses caused by hunters on their property.

Hunters all over the country are getting up tight about this. They say that a few slobs are ruining things for everyone. They are right too.

Local Problem is Serious

We have the same situation at Fort Benning. The primary purpose for the real estate on the reservation is to provide areas for military training. The units and departments that conduct this training are in a position similar to the private landowners. They go along with hunting, fishing and other activities as long as they don't interfere with the primary purpose for the land.

Unfortunately a few thoughtless people are giving a large group a bad name and if not stopped they will be causing them to get a hard time. These people are over-damaging or destroying training areas and equipment in the training areas or making off with material for their personal use.

During this hunting season individuals have removed materials from training areas and used them for construction of deer stands and blinds, destroyed training sites an shot-up signs and other training aids.

You can see the results of all kinds of vandalism all over the reservation but one of the prime targets has been the Nininger-Ardman Hange complex, an excellent hunting area. If these acts continue this area and probably more on the reservation will be placed off limits.

Law enforcement officials can't adequately cover all parts of the reservation at all times. This situation requires the help of all hunters. If this vandalism isn't stopped hunting may be stopped. It will be your business. See the 1972-73 business plan below; its too late.

197th rips TSB, claims first half championship

The 197th Infantry Brigade defeated TSB 92-60 in a special playoff game on Jan. 13 to claim the post championship for the first half of the season.

John Black of the 197th led all scorers in the game with 27 points, 19 of which he netted in the first half when the 197th grabbed a 46-29 lead.

John Halverson and David Weber of the 197th followed in scoring 18 and 16 points respectively. Hunter had 12 points for TSB.

Basketball players needed

Several player positions are open on the Fort Benning Basketball Team. The team plays teams from other posts in the Third Army area on a home and away from home schedule.

Interested individuals may obtain additional information from Ssgt. Eamon at 545-4393 or the Special Services Sports Section at 545-1216.

Tom Kiles and James Dougherty of TSB (11 and 23 respectively) and David Weaver of the 197th await the outcome of rebounding action between their teammates in first half action of their play-off game. The game was played on Jan. 12 at the Kelley Hill Field House and the 197th won the game 92-60.

Doughboys dump McPherson twice

The Fort Benning Basketball team traveled to Ft. McPherson last weekend to take two games from the McPherson team in the Third Army Western Division League play.

The two wins gave the Benning Doughboys five wins with five losses in league play and a third place position in the Western Division.

Ft. Campbell leads the league with eight wins and two losses, Ft. McClellan is in second place with seven wins and three losses, Rodstone Arsenal is in fourth place with four wins and six losses followed by Ft. Rucker with a three and five record and Ft. McPherson with one win and seven losses.

The Doughboys play Ft. Rucker two games at Briant Wells this weekend.

The first game will start this evening at 7:30 and the second game tomorrow afternoon at 1 p.m.

As an added attraction this evening the Fort Benning WAC Basketball Team will play an exhibition game with a girls team from the Columbus Recreation League. This game will start at 6 p.m.

Co. C leads 931st basketball league

Company level basketball is bouncing right along in the 931st Engr. Gp. Company Level Basketball League.

Co. C of the 1st C, 43rd Engr. Bn is in the leading position with a record of 7-4. The 153th MP Co. is running a close second with a 6-0 record. HEC came from last place to tie with 588 1st Lt. Co. and Co. A, 43rd Engr. Bn and Co. B, 43rd Engr. Bn for third place, by an outstanding winning streak of 4 consecutive wins. The fourth place position in the league belongs to the 588th Engr. Co. and fifth place is a two way tie between 688th Ordnance Co. and 18th Replacement. The sixth place position is a two way tie between Co. C, 568th S and S and D Co., 43rd Engr. Bn. The first place position is also a tie between 533rd Trans.

12,000-mile motorcycle tour. Reitmeier and Speegle spent three months riding around the country talking to the youth about changes which have taken place in MVA.

Army cyclists wind up MVA tour

WASHINGTON (ANE) — The Army's two recruiters on wheels, Sp4 Dave Reitmeier and Sp4 Mike Speegle, rode up to the Pentagon recently, signifying the completion of their nationwide motorcycle tour, telling it like it is about today's Army to youths along the way.

Riding to high school parking lots or to recruiting stations on their Harley Davidson motorcycles, Reitmeier and Speegle left a trail of good will on behalf of the Army. On the way, they rapped and visited with youths and local citizenry on any subject from the draft to the drug problem.

Using a motorcycle banarstorming tour to inform the public of the strong points of the Modern Volunteer Army was an idea of Reitmeier's while both he and Speegle were enrolled in the Nuclear Weapons Electronics Specialist Course at Redstone Arsenal, Ala. The two were the top graduates in their class.

"I first got the idea when I came into the Army and saw that they were serious about changing things for the better," Reitmeier explains. "So, I figured that young people across the country would believe a couple of guys their own age more than they would newspaper stories about the MVA."

Receiving the go-ahead from his local chain of command, Dave was sent to the Pentagon where he presented the idea to Lt. Gen. George J. Forsythe, special assistant to the chief of staff for the MVA, and Brig. Gen. Robert M. Montague Jr., deputy special assistant for the MVA.

Although not a cycle buff, Speegle agreed to accompany Reitmeier and the two departed New York Sept. 29 on a 12,000-mile tour which took them to 30 states.

Reception of the Army's motorcycle minstrel was friendly. "Better than 95 per cent of the reception has been extremely favorable," Reitmeier commented upon the trip's completion. "We never had any bad receptions."

Cycle stunts or impromptu conversation on the streets usually loosened up any apprehensive on-lookers or less than receptive audiences.

"The kids were skeptical," Dave reflected. "We tried to leave them with the feeling the Army must be doing something. We made them aware there are changes."

"If I got one person to go down to a local recruiting station and see what it's really like, I would consider the trip a success," he added.

Speegle shares similar feelings. "I'm interested in the change that's happening," he added. According to the specialists, the Army never tried to tell them what to say to the people they met during their travels.

ROTC cadets tour Benning

Nine Reserve Officer Training Corps (ROTC) Cadets from Wofford College, S.C., toured Fort Benning and the Officer Candidate School (OCS), on Jan. 17.

In the OCS Area, The School Brigade (TSB), the tour incorporated an explanation of the Infantry Officer Candidate School (Hall of Fame (Wife Hall) where notable soldiers and public officials were pointed out.

The Cadets were shown the 51st Co. Area, 5th Bn, TSB, including an inspection of the individual living quarters, offices, and a first hand look at the mess hall complex with dinner as guest of the 51st Co. Candidates.

The OCS program of academic and physical requirements were explained to the nine ROTC Cadets and, at the end of the day, the visitors had a better understanding of the role of OCS and Fort Benning in today's Army.

data to the Directorate of Security, the decision-making pool.

Aided by weather maps, radar, altimeter instruments and teletype machines hooked into local and national weather services, the men of Detachment 10 are well seasoned for their round-the-clock vigil. Capt. Franz Westemeier, Detachment Commander, has been watching Benning's skies for the last three years. MSgt. H. A. Book, his NCOIC, is on his second tour here. Together with a handful of able enlisted men, they keep the post alert to nature's latest caprice.

Capt. Westemeier explained that his operation has a "predictive capability" of from one to two hours in advance of oncoming severe weather conditions. To make their predictions, the detachment combines national forecasts with information obtained about local conditions. A prediction is never made unless there is definite instrumentation at hand to back it up.

A point that Capt. Westemeier wished to make for the benefit of his operation during a possible emergency is that they again concerned the exact role of the detachment. "We're not strictly a forecasting agency to Directorate of Security," he explained, and have nothing to do with activating the warning system." In other words, if severe weather should threaten, don't call the detachment to ask "what color it is." Consult the Color Code and listen for the warning sirens or, if absolutely necessary, call the Directorate of Security's office for instructions. They are the ones who are prepared to invoke the appropriate emergency conditions.

To gauge familiarity with the alert system and perhaps the profit gained from last week's experience, the Directorate of Security will conduct a test of the Severe Weather Alert System during the week of Jan. 24-28. The sound of the sirens will sound and vehicular notification will be in effect. At that time commanders, supervisors, and sponsors of military dependents are to insure that "all personnel are a thoroughly familiar with the meanings of storm notification procedures."

Last week may very well have generated the concern necessary to learn what to do in the event of an actual storm emergency. After all, that concern could mean the survival of some pretty irreplaceable possessions, one's family.

USAMTU awards trophy

MURFREESBORO, Tenn. — A large rifle marksmanship Championship Trophy was presented to representatives of the Ohio Valley Conference by the U.S. Army Marksmanship Training Unit (USAMTU) January 14 in ceremonies at the Middle Tennessee State University.

Representing the Marksmanship Unit and presenting the trophy was Capt. William A. Morris, USAMTU adjutant. Charles Murphy, University Athletic Director and President of the Ohio Valley Conference, accepted the trophy which will be used as a rotating championship trophy for the winner of the conference shootout each spring.

In conjunction with the award ceremonies, the MTU presented a small-bore rifle clinic for the University's rifle team. Lt. Robert K. Mitchell and 1st Lt. Alan E. Anderson, members of the USAMTU International Rifle Team, conducted the clinic.

Simon, Garfunkel Album Was Biggest '71 British Seller

LONDON (AP) — The leading British music journal reports that Simon and Garfunkel's "Bridge over Troubled Water" was the most popular album of 1971 in Britain.

The gravel-voiced British singer Rod Stewart sold the most single records, the Melody Maker says. Stewart's "Reason to Believe" and "Maggie May" topped British pop charts for six weeks in a row, the weekly said.

Proclaimed the most popular artists was the British group T. Rex. Their "Hot Love" was the fifth best-selling single record of the year.

In second places were Albums — "A Diddy Williams' Greatest Hits" singles — "Knock Three Times" by Dawn; artists — Dawn.

Reductions backed by NAB committee

The NAB Television Code Review Board has approved in principle a proposal by the ABC Television Network to reduce by about a third the amount of non-program material seen in children's weekend programming.

Although the ABC proposal recommended that the reduction in non-program material take effect with all new children's programs commencing September 1972, the amendment adopted by the board would delay the reduction until January 1973 but would include returning as well as new weekend children's programs.

"We are pleased that the board agrees in principle with our proposal. It is important that this industry — the networks and stations — take responsible steps and this proposal is such a step — to upgrade the quality of television for children."

The amendment will be referred for approval to the board of directors of the "Television Board of the National Association of Broadcasters."

VOLAR report is hopeful

By WENDELL COCHRAN (EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first in a series on MVA by Wendell Cochran.)

A hopeful report on the possibility of a volunteer army went to higher headquarters from Fort Benning this month.

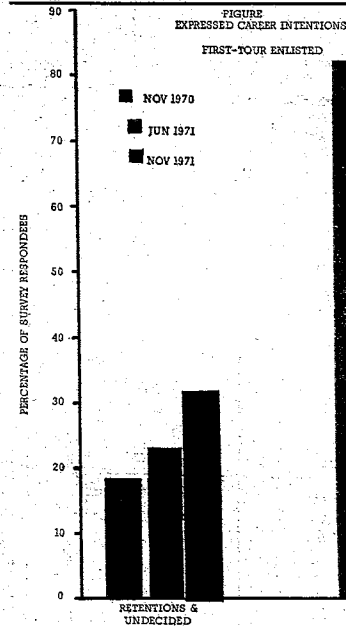

"If current momentum continues there is real hope that a truly volunteer situation can perhaps, in fact, be created within the time frame established," Maj. Gen. Owen C. Talbot, post commander, wrote in the Semi-Annual VOLAR Evaluation Report.

The report covers the period from January through December 1971. Fort Benning was one of the first three posts in the Army to be given the task of developing policies and practices that might lead to a Modern Volunteer Army.

In October 1970 Army Chief of Staff William H. Westmoreland, announced that the Army would move toward the all-volunteer goal of the President by attacking these three areas of service life:

- Enhanced professionalism;
- Improved service at recruitments;
- Increase public esteem.

Since November 1970, Fort Benning has been working toward these goals. One measurement of success is the 1971 Infantry Brigade's Unit of Choice recruiting program that has been so successful that the brigade has temporarily suspended enlistments for combat arms jobs.

This semi-annual report is the most comprehensive yet compiled on the Modern Volunteer Army experiment at Fort Benning. And it is less cautious in its enthusiasm for the VOLAR test than earlier reports.

Post recycles scrap

By ROB MCCLAIN

Ever stop to wonder what happens to all the old tank treads, wall lockers, helmet liners, rags, shell casings, trucks, broken furniture, and other used materials spawned by Fort Benning?

If you have, someone has probably mentioned the Property Disposal Office in a vague way and let it go at that. "Property Disposal? ... Well, they must do something with the stuff; their job is pretty self-explanatory, after all."

New tax laws affect many post personnel

By CARL KING

Fort Benning personnel will realize only a small increase in their take home pay as a result of changes in the Federal income-tax and Federal Insurance Contributions Act (FICA), better known as "Social Security." In some cases, there may be no increase at all. The pay raise not only puts people in higher income tax brackets, but new federal tax tables permit proportionately higher deductions than in past years.

Previously, many taxpayers compensated for the inadequate deductions by decreasing the number of personal exemptions they showed on their form W-4. (Employee's Withholding Exemption Certificate). With the implementation of the new withholding rates, this should no longer be necessary. As a result, many may find it practical to file new W-4s claiming their normal number of personal exemptions.

SOCIAL SECURITY TAX CHANGES

The 1972 Social Security Tax will be deducted at the rate of 5.2 per cent on the first $9,000.00 of wages paid. This particular change will only affect those whose annual pay exceeds $7,900.00, the amount Social Security was taxed against in 1971. This is an increase from 1971 on wages earned from $7,900.00 to $9,000.00. So, for personnel that were used to having their FICA taxes taken out by Sept., Oct., these personnel will be paying further into the calendar year. For those whose FICA was paid for the year 1971, the 5.2 per cent will again be taken out of their pay starting the end of this month.

THE NEW DEDUCTION SYSTEM

According to Circular E, Department of the Treasury, Internal Revenue Service for 1972, two principal changes most common to military personnel are: (1) The value of a withholding exemption has been increased to $750.00 and (2) A new "Special Withholding Allowance" is treated as an exemption for withholding purposes.

Col. Boettcher is new Deputy Chief of Staff

High points in the life of Col. Louis "Jack" Boettcher include Annapolis in 1940 and the Office of the Chief of Staff of Fort Benning in 1972.

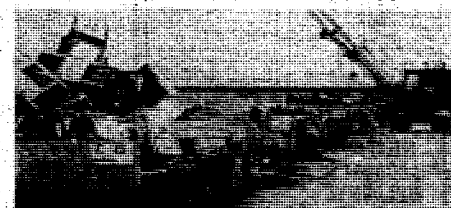

Col. Boettcher did not have a change of heart in mid-career, however. He graduated from Annapolis High School in 1940 and then went on to the U.S. Military Academy. This week he was appointed Deputy Chief of Staff of the U.S. Army Infantry Center at Fort Benning.

The appointment will be effective on Feb. 7. Col. Boettcher replaces Col. Charles Thebaud, who will assume the duties of Assistant Commander, U.S. Army Infantry Center and Fort Benning.

The new Deputy has been associated with USAF for the past four years. Prior to this appointment he served as executive officer of the 3d Brigade, 9th Infantry Division.

Col. Boettcher graduated from the Fort Benning Advanced Officers Course in 1959. His awards include the Bronze Star, Army Commendation Medal with Oak Leaf Cluster and General Staff College in 1959. His awards include the Bronze Star, Army Commendation Medal with Oak Leaf Cluster and the Combat Infantryman's Badge.

He is married to the former Betty Jean MacLean and has four children: Leslie, 21; Jay, 18; Bruce, 17; and Sydney, 15. The youngest and oldest are daughters.

From slugs to nuts, bolts to washers, scrap metal passes through Property Disposal Office at Fort Benning. The junk of the military is broken down into different kinds of scrap. Around 100 different kinds of scrap impurities from the metals.

Many post families feel 34.1 per cent raise in insurance

Due to the extensive use of health care benefits, many Fort Benning families will see a 34.1 per cent increase in rates for the National Federal Employees Health Benefits Program (FEP) of Blue Cross Blue Shield.

The increase, which became effective Jan. 1, 1972, was requested only after Blue Cross and Blue Shield experience showed that coverage for federal workers will result in a loss of more than $60 million in 1971.

The choice was obvious: raise rates or cut benefits. To meet the health care protection needs of federal employees in Blue Cross and Blue Shield, it was decided to offer the same high level of protection, which is possible only if a rate increase is granted.

The increase was proposed by Blue Cross and Blue Shield and accepted by the Civil Service Commission in accordance with its understanding of federal wage-price freeze guidelines.

Under FEP, the largest voluntary health care program in the world, federal employees nationally are offered two types of benefits — services or indemnity; and two types of coverage — high or low option.

The Service Benefit plan (provided by Blue Cross and Blue Shield) pays in full for all covered services. The Indemnity Benefit plan (provided by the commercial insurance industry) pays a fixed dollar amount or an established percentage of hospital and physician charges. Other programs are available in certain locations.

Of 2.2 million persons covered under FEP, more than 5.1 million did not get under chosen Blue Cross and Blue Shield. And they have chosen high option by more than nine to one.

Since FEP began in July, 1960, benefits and their use have increased dramatically. Among the important FEP benefit expansions by Blue Cross and Blue Shield in the high option program are an increase in the number of benefit days in the hospital from 120 to 365; the provision of usual, customary and reasonable charges for covered physician services; and full hospital benefits for maternity care instead of an allowance.

Coverage of confinement for nervous and mental disorders has been increased from 30 to 365 days under the basic high option program, and supplemental benefits have been expanded to include outpatient hospital care, collateral visits with the patient's family, group psychiatric therapy and services of a mental health team.

In the early years of FEP, costs and use of services were relatively stable. No rate increase was necessary for Blue Cross and Blue Shield for the first four years since then, however, both costs and use of benefits have substantially risen.

Particularly noticeable has been the use of outpatient diagnostic benefits, which have increased substantially since they became a part of basic benefits in 1968.

During 1970, Blue Cross and Blue Shield paid out $80 million in total benefits to FEP enrollees, an increase of 35 per cent over 1969. They estimate that benefit payments for 1971 will increase another 31 per cent to more than $720 million.

However, Blue Cross and Blue Shield rate increases averaged only 8 per cent a year during the first 10 years of FEP.

To help improve the situation, Blue Cross and Blue Shield have begun steps to ensure proper utilization and pricing of all benefits. They include intensified screening and monitoring of claims; to negotiate bases of charges for insured laboratory services; and to improve administration of usual, customary and reasonable charges by physicians.

Army offers trial look

FT. JACKSON, S. C. (ANF) — "Try it, you'll like it," the Army's newest recruiting approach, begins Feb. 1, when an experimental selection station opens at Ft. Jackson, S. C.

The program hopes to increase Army job satisfaction by helping prospective recruits to find their areas of strongest interest compared to the Army's needs, prior to enlistment.

Patronized after the British accession system, the program will allow prospective Army enlistees to get a taste of military life under no obligation.

Some 100 prospective soldiers will spend 3 to 4 days at the center each week undergoing physical and mental testing, talking with qualified people in specific military occupational specialty areas of interest and interviewing with Army career counselors.

Talking to men already trained in the Army is expected to help potential enlistees make a better decision whether to enlist or go home from the center.

Besides letting the individual get a look at the military way of life, the test program will afford the Army a chance to evaluate its potential members as well.

The environment will be designed to leave the prospective recruit with a good impression of the Army whether he joins or not.

Community and school leaders will be encouraged to participate in the orientation also, to further their understanding of the Army program.

The six-month test program will be extended to other installations if successful at Ft. Jackson.

VOLAR... Forever Forward

The 197th Inf. Bde, went "FOREVER FORWARD" in a recent Armed Forces exhibition held at Lauderdale Hill Mall in Fort Lauderdale, Florida.

Part of a program to assist recruiters, the 197th's Forever Forward Combo, featuring rock and soul music, presented a different sound from a different Brigade to admiring viewers. The Combo consists of volunteers who have played professionally before entering the service.

Also on program was the 51st Scout Dog Team, posing the dogs through their poses and answering questions about the team, along with a VOLAR display about the 197th and Fort Benning as a Volunteer Army Post.

The 197th Support Battalion was committed to participation in the exhibit early in November when Lt. Col. Hollis D. Meeser, the unit's commanding officer, and SFC Daniel W.

Davis, of the Fort Lauderdale recruiting station, met with officials from the mall. At that time Mr. Andrews, mall manager, and public relations director Miss Bobbie McQuaid expressed a desire to have the 197th take part in the exhibition.

According to Davis, "the response at the mall was just great and a real boost to recruiting in the Lauderdale area. I hope it will become an annual affair."

DAVE McQUEEN Twenty-seven military personnel have been arrested since Jan. 17, 1972, for driving under the influence of alcohol (DUI). Seven of these personnel were arrested by a special group of police officers of the Alcohol Safety Action Project (ASAP), whose main concern is protecting people from the drunk driver.

ASAP is a unit of the Columbus Police Department supported entirely by federal funds. The unit is made up of 16 regular police officers, three sergeants and two directors of Lieutenant Jim Weatherington.

The ASAP unit was implemented on Jan. 17, and has made 49 arrests for DUI, seven of them military.

Conviction of DUI carries a normal fine of $127.00, although the judge has the discretion of setting the fine from $1.00 to $250.00, plus a term of up to 90 days in jail.

Also, possibly starting with the Feb. 7, court date, convicted DUI's will be required to attend a rehabilitation program at the Traffic Information Program (TIP) School, classes for which are anticipated to start Feb. 28. Both classes of DUI's will attend, the social drinking driver and the problem drinking driver (those whose Blood-Alcohol concentrations exceed 30 percent and/or have had previous DUI offenses).

TIP School will require the DUI to assess his drinking and driving habits. The school will be 10 hours, 24 hours a night, one night a week for four weeks.

The problem-drinking driver will be under a special probation during this period, and will be sentenced according to the results of testing during the period.

Conviction of DUI in the Columbus courts can also bring disciplinary action for military personnel. The ASAP unit patrols Columbus from 5 p.m. to 3 a.m. every night, working 40-hour, 4-day week. The unit has a total of 50 on 40 hours of intensive training by experts in fields such as report writing, implied consent, intoximeter operation, conducting psychomotor tests, identification and apprehension of DUI drivers, interviewing and interrogation court testimony, legal elements of DUI, search and seizure, several mock trials, attitude and communication skills, and a review of community agencies treating alcohol problems.

Each officer of the ASAP unit was required to pass a proficiency test to determine his level of understanding of the training. In addition, ASAP conducted four hours of training to non-ASAP police officers to introduce them to ASAP and some of the latest training information.

The ASAP unit patrol all areas with special attention to areas that have proven to have a high incidence of drunken drivers. The patrols, though have been instructed that they are not to wait in the parking lots of clubs for a drinker who has behind the wheel. Lt. Weatherington said, "If my men are in a parking lot and see a drunk heading for his car, I have instructed them that they will arrest him before he gets to the car."

The unit's main concern is the DUI, but they are still members of the Columbus Police Department and will perform in that manner. In most cases, the driver who is pulled over by a member of the ASAP unit who has committed a moving violation which would cause him to receive a ticket, it is when intoxication is suspected that the special equipment and training goes into action.

The devices used to determine Blood-Alcohol Concentration are the Alco-Syr Preliminary Screening Test (a small glass tube containing a crystalline reagent - the "balloon" test) and a portable electronic device which analyzes a breath sample digitally (this device is not in service yet but may be field tested here on a voluntary basis). Neither of these devices is admissible as court evidence, but the results will determine whether to bring the driver in for testing on the Photo-Electric Intoximeter or Blood sample which are admissible.

Maj. Gen. Talbott gets scout award

Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott, commanding general of Fort Benning, received the Distinguished Eagle Scout Award at the Annual Chattahoochee Council of the Boy Scouts of America Adult Appreciation Banquet held at Callaway Gardens last night.

Lt. Gen. John M. Wright Jr., comptroller of the Army, former commander of Fort Benning and a previous recipient of the Distinguished Eagle Scout Award, presented the award to Gen. Talbott.

The nomination is reviewed by a subcommittee of Distinguished Eagle Scouts who are members of the National Court of Honor and recommendations are made to the National Court of Honor for approval.

After receiving approval, the award is, whenever possible, made in the local council by a recipient of the Distinguished Eagle Scout Award.

The National Court of Honor, itself, is a body of men organized by the Boy Scouts of America to award national Boy Scout honors to deserving people. Gen. Wright presented the Distinguished Eagle Scout Plaque and Eagle Pendant to Gen. Talbott before the assembly of more than 300 scouting and military representatives from the Chattahoochee Valley area.

This is the first Distinguished Eagle Scout Award to be presented by Take Stock in America.

Judge talks to post students

Judge Aaron Cohn, judge of the Juvenile Court for Muscogee County, spoke recently to a group of approximately 700 students of Faith School on post.

Mr. John A. Shutelesworth, principal of Faith School, invited Judge Cohn to speak to the students on the problems that bring youngsters into the courtroom.

Judge Cohn spoke on the problems faced by youths who seek to gain acceptance of their group by breaking the law, and a group that breaks the law to protect the generation gap.

After speaking to the students, Judge Cohn accepted questions from the students. Some of the questions asked were, "What facilities are there for kids who break laws?" "Can you (the juvenile court) take someone away from his parents?" and "How did most you be sent to (the juvenile court)?"

Judge Cohn answered these questions by talking to the students of the juvenile home, a school facility that takes care of children sent there - some who move on to Foster Homes. He also said that a child may be taken from his parents if it is deemed necessary for the child and that the age limits placed on the court depend on the crime.

Judge Cohn answered as many questions as time would allow, and after the convocation was dismissed, a group gathered with him to continue with the questions.

Post dependent receives coveted JROTC award

Cadet Lt. Col. Max L. Waldrop Jr., son of Lt. Col. and Mrs. Max L. Waldrop, Fort Benning, received the coveted Legion of Valor Bronze Cross in ceremonies held at Columbus High School last Monday.

The award, given for outstanding achievement in the Junior Reserve Officers Training Corps, is only the fourth of its kind to be given in the Third Army area.

The Bronze Cross is sponsored by the Legion of Valor of the United States of America, Inc. The Legion is composed of servicemen who have distinguished themselves in combat by winning either the Medal of Honor, the Distinguished Service Cross, the Air Force or the Navy Cross.

When asked how he felt about the award, Cadet Waldrop said, "Naturally, I am very honored. My plans are to major in business administration at the University of Mississippi, then make a career of the Army. I hope to be a sergeant in the future."

Waldrop's nomination for the award was placed before the national organization's selection committee by a military-faculty board headed by Maj. (Ret.) William G. Newbold, director of Army instruction for the Muscogee County School District. The board, convened at each high school, had previously selected outstanding JROTC cadets for designation as "Superior Junior Cadets."

"Superior" cadets were chosen on the basis of excellence in military and academic scholarship, military and scholastic leadership, and demonstrated qualifications of discipline, courtesy and character," Newbold commented.

First Sgt. T. G. Reynolds, senior enlisted instructor at Columbus High School, cited young Waldrop's "versatility and overall ability" and praised his "dedication to duty." Reynolds said that the cadet would continue to demonstrate his ability to lead men.

High School, said, "I have known Max for the past three years. During this time he has impressed me with his dedication to principle. He ranks in the upper five per cent of his class academically and has maintained an "A" average while at Columbus High School."

Dollar further commended the cadet stating, "He is involved in his classroom activities and his judgment is highly respected. He is emotionally stable, reliable, dependable and consistently trustworthy. His achievements indicate he is dedicated to self-improvement."

Newbold felt that Waldrop had already reached one of the highest goals sought by military or civilian leaders, that of "leading by example."

A veteran holder of the nation's second top award, Maj. (ret.) Robert F. Blumhagen, representing the Legion of Valor, presented the award during a special assembly. Blumhagen, currently a sergeant-instructor at Benning County School District winners of the Legion's Bronze Cross and other major decorations for valorous combat action during WWII.

Gen. Talbott warns of backsliding in MVA

Major Gen. Orwin C. Talbott sounded a real alarm this month when he warned that any backsliding at this point could have detrimental effects on the outstanding progress made toward a Modern Volunteer Army at Fort Benning. (see story page 1)

The general was, undoubtedly, referring to the possibility of fund reductions that might cause suspension of some, costed programs. And if the number of men assigned to Fort Benning is reduced drastically while the number of assigned missions are not, there could be serious impacts on such popular items as the five-day work week. But none of these things are in the hands of those at Fort Benning.

One item mentioned by Gen. Talbott is in our province, however. And that is the post commander's call for "more personnel enthusiasm at all levels." After all, it was this enthusiasm that has carried VOLAR to its high levels at Fort Benning. The extra funds and the innovative programs merely greased the skids.

But, now is not the time to rest on past-week laurels. Now is the time for all professionals to exert all their energies toward making the Modern Volunteer Army a success. Nothing less will be sufficient. Fort Benning has no room for summer soldiers. WRIC

IS THERE LIFE ON MARS?

Scientists are now studying what one of them has called "an information explosion" about the planet Mars. For the first time an American spacecraft is gathering data about a neighboring planet while orbiting that planet. And Mariner is taking the closest look yet at Mars.

After a 167-day trip from Earth, Mariner 9 fired its rocket engine on Nov. 13 to brace it into an egg-shaped orbit around Mars. At its high point above the planet, Mariner's altitude is 17,000 kilometers (10,700 miles). At its low point, where it takes most of its television pictures, Mariner swoops to within 1,200 kilometers (750 miles) of the Martian surface.

On its 90-day basic mission, Mariner will:—hurl back to Earth some 25 to 30 billion bits of scientific information about Mars—more than 15 times as much data as previous flyby spacecraft have reported.

—Take about 60 television pictures a day for a total of more than 5,000 pictures, hundreds with a resolution able to discern objects the size of a football field.

—Take scores of TV pictures of Mars' two tiny moons which orbit the planet within the orbit of Mariner.

—Map more than 70 per cent of the entire Martian surface.

—Study the temperature and composition of the planet's surface with infrared instruments.

—Study the composition and structure of the atmosphere with an ultraviolet instrument.

—And determine the structure and pressure of the atmosphere by measuring changes in Mariner's radio signal as it disappears and reappears behind the planet.

The three scientific instruments carried by Mariner are visually aligned with the Mariner's TV cameras on a swiveling scan platform. Said one scientist, "Not only are we examining Mars in detail on a daily basis, but we plan to correlate data from the instruments to derive more than the sum total of the parts."

The instruments will view Mars in early summer in the southern hemisphere and in early winter in the North.

Mariner's orbit is enabling it to take repeated looks at specific areas on Mars and to study the many features that, through Earth telescopes, appear to change with time. Some of these are:

—The appearance of a seasonal change in color of the planet's surface, called by some scientists the "wave of darkening," the nature of which is in dispute.

—Changes in the polar caps and cap edges.

—Nightside atmospheric and surface fluorescence.

—Atmospheric haze.

—White "clouds" in non polar regions.

—Dust clouds and dust storms.

"The discovery of the century," according to some scientists would be finding some form of life on Mars.

Mariner will not be able to do that but it is expected to provide some clues as to whether Mars appears to be hospitable to life forms.

Those first pictures of Mars taken in 1965 showed the planet to be cratered and barren, somewhat like Earth's Moon. The south polar cap, for instance, is deeply cold, down to -240 degrees F. and made up completely of frozen carbon dioxide. At the equator, Mars ranges from a low of -45 degrees F. to a high of about 65 degrees.

But Earth telescopes have detected traces of water vapor on Mars. And in an Earth laboratory, scientists using simulated Martian soil, atmosphere and ultraviolet radiation have produced three organic compounds believed to be the precursors to biological molecules—primitive Earth.

Mariner 9 does carry a water vapor detection instrument. And biologists talk longingly of discovering a low, damp spot on Mars which could harbor some kind of primitive organism.

While Mariner could provide some clues, it will remain for the landing of Viking on Mars in 1976 to make the final determination.

The scientific information about Mars returned by Mariner 9 will not only be examined by experts on the red planet but by experts on another planet—Earth— as well.

Benning traffic flood affects environment

By Rob McVayne and Barry White

Fort Benning stages a daily auto show that makes the area at the New York Coliseum look like a pit stop.

Like a persistent flood tide, a continuous stream of traffic enters and leaves the post in the morning and late afternoon in numbers keynoting the salesmanship of Columbus auto traders. Sadly, most of them have only one passenger, according to a recent Environmental Management Division (EMD) vehicle occupant survey.

EMD reports that 78.19 per cent of all incoming vehicles (excluding motorcycles) were occupied by one person, 18.07 per cent by two persons, and only 05.74 per cent by more than two persons. A total of 6,884 vehicles were checked that fell into one of the three categories. Conducted Aug. 19, 1971, the survey gaged traffic between 6:45 a.m. and 8:15 a.m. EMD observers were stationed at critical entrance points to provide inclusive data of all traffic entering the post.

The survey reflected the glaring indifference toward most people seem to feel toward their environment and its wholesale abuse. Basically, that abuse centers around the exchange of polluted air (that enriched with hydrocarbons and carbon monoxide) for clean air via the internal combustion engine. A vehicle performing fine tests were checked that fell into one of the three categories. Conducted Aug. 19, 1971, the survey gaged traffic between 6:45 a.m. and 8:15 a.m. EMD observers were stationed at critical entrance points to provide inclusive data of all traffic entering the post.

A further instance of this wasteful indifference was revealed when the survey found that most of the double-occupant vehicles consisted of one dependent and a sponsor taking the latter to work. The vehicle would return home and come back on post in the afternoon to pick up the sponsor. A lot of time is wasted, too, when you consider how long it takes to get off post in the morning.

Okay, if unnecessary pollution does exist, how do you avoid it? The answer to that is easy to state in theory but difficult to effect in practice, thanks to the human element that caused it all in the first place. One solution is consolidation in the form of car pools.

An amazing number of student officers, for example, groggily leave the same housing area, drive to Infantry Hall in the morning, and return to the same housing area in the evening. Why can't they get together and form four- or five-man car pools? It would drastically reduce the influx and exodus mess and contribute to a cleaner environment. The suggestion has been made before and we're just making it again but MORE PEOPLE OUGHT TO TRY IT.

Another suggestion bandied about frequently is to ride a bicycle to work. It can be done and those who do it deserve commendation but the number of cars streaming by makes it kind of hair raising. Perhaps bicycle paths leading to and from main post from the housing areas would make a difference. Sounds like a good idea for the ecology group.

Ecology, conservation, environmental concern all can no longer be considered an abstraction, for it is an individual problem thanks to the severity of escalating environmental abuse. Consequently, personal convenience ceases to be private and the expressive attitude of the air we all breathe. Expressing a little thought, concern and effort can make that air a lot sweeter.

43rd Eng. gets new CO

The 43rd Engr. Bn., 931st Engr. Gp., received a new commanding officer last Friday in change of command ceremonies at the Sand Hill theater.

Lt. Col. Richard J. Rappaport replaced Lt. Col. Beverly McGruder, who was the 43rd's commanding officer since June, 1970. Under McGruder's command, the Engineer battalion completed several major construction projects. The most noted effort was the 43rd's completion of the Volapartition project which provided semi-private living quarters in the place of non-private open bays.

The 43rd also constructed and repaired a bridge and dam washed away by floods at the Chattahoochee Council Scout Reservation near Columbus. The battalion also constructed a temporary dyke, named Cooper's Curve, at the intersection of Custer Rd. and the Lindsay Creek Bypass on the reservation.

More recently, the Engineers have begun extensive construction of a modern equipment and clothing testing facility for the Infantry Board at Titus Range.

McGruder left the 43rd to head the 501st Engr. Gp. Unit of choice program, which will become operational shortly.

Rappaport comes from the U. S. Army Strategic and Analysis Group, Bethesda, Md., where he was the Branch Chief, Strategic Forces Study for the last year and a half.

He has been a ROTC instructor at Washington and Lee Univ., Lexington, Va., and the Deputy District Engineer at the Wilmington, N.C., district office.

In addition, he was a staff officer with the Public Works and Utilities Division, Economic Development Department, and Chief, Engineering Division, Public Works Department of Civil Administration, Office of the High Commissioner, the Ryukyu Islands.

As executive officer, the 43rd's new commander served with the 92nd Engineer Battalion at Ft. Bragg, N. C. and Vietnam. This is his first permanent assignment at Fort Benning.

Along the fem line

BY CAROL MAY

Since this is a "turn-overline" for Fort Benning personnel, I would like to explain what Fem-Line is trying to achieve. The five-girl staff strives to bring the weekly activities of Fort Benning women to you, through "The Bayonet." By distributing your news in the yellow boxes outside the main commissary and the Custer Terrace commissary, you help your unit get publicity and give us your support. You also may bring news to 2015 Madden Ave. If I may be of assistance to you call 545-2826. The weekly Fem-Line deadline is Wednesday noon.

OWC

Scholastic achievement awards will be offered again this year by the Officers' Wives' Club of Fort Benning. Students whose mothers are OWC members by Jan. 31 may apply. Newly-arrived officer families also are eligible. Applications will be available in February at Columbus high schools. For more information call the chairman of the awards committee at 545-4220.

CATHOLIC WOMEN OF THE CHAPEL

The Catholic Women of the Chapel will meet next Friday at Main Post North

Chapel. Recitation of the Rosary will be at 9 a.m. Confessions will be heard before Mass.

After mass, the ladies will adjourn to the chapel annex and join the Protestant Women of the Chapel and the Jewish Sisterhood, who will be guests—Major George J. Trick, a member of the Benning House staff, will be guest speaker. Ladies who want additional information may call Mrs. George Schneider at 545-1947. All women in the Fort Benning community are welcome to attend.

1971 DFW: BDE.

The ladies of HQ, 197th Inf. Bde., began the new year with a coffee in the Corridor Room of the Officers' Club, Jan. 12. Mrs. John B. Lockard and Mrs. Stephen Fitzgerald were hostesses.

After refreshments were served, Mrs. Edwin Kennedy suggested that the ladies introduce themselves and give a brief resume to better acquaint newcomers with the group.

Mrs. Robert Orkand made the following announcements: Handmade items, priced less than $10, are needed for "The Talent Tree," which opens Thursday. Volunteers are needed to help with the deer party. There will be an OWC luncheon

Feb. 9 at the Supper Club with Mrs. Sara Spano as guest speaker. The ladies of 1st Bn., 28th Inf., will sponsor a brigade luncheon March 15 at the Officers' Club. A letter thanking the ladies for Christmas gifts donated to underprivileged children was received from John D. Howber, director of the Harris County Dept. of Family and Children Services.

Newcomers to the group were Mrs. Aldric M. Hayes, wife of Lt. Col. Hayes, deputy brigade commander; Mrs. Robert D. Parker; Mrs. Michael Puckett; Mrs. Richard Stinson; and Mrs. Richard Brannon.

Leaving the group was Mrs. Frederick Bissell. She will remain in Columbus while her husband serves a tour in Korea. The next coffee will be Feb. 9 at the home of Mrs. Edwin Kennedy, 109 Eames St., Fort Benning.

Mrs. Larry Aaron and Mrs. Wayne Smoot entertained the ladies of 2nd Bn., 10th Field Arty., at a coffee in the OWC Lounge, Jan. 11.

The bottle table, covered with red cloth, was decorated with large wooden numerals for the year 1972 which were painted in a red, white and blue design. The numerals were surrounded by greenery and red carnations. The hostesses served coffee cake and a sandwich loaf among other delicacies.

Lt. Col. James Wurman, battalion commander, spoke to the ladies about the organization, functions and aims of the unit.

New arrivals in the battalion are Mrs. James Pongonis, Mrs. Roosevelt Adams, Mrs. Edward Kelly, Mrs. Edward Erick, Mrs. Kenneth Meredith, and Mrs. Martin Johnson. Miss Andrea Balog, sister-in-law of Mrs. Robert Balog, was a special guest. Departing ladies were Mrs. Richard Stinson, Mrs. Gary McLeod, Mrs. James Tindall, Mrs. Kelvin Ross, Mrs. Arnold Morrall and Mrs. John Preston. The ladies were presented gifts as tokens of their time with the battalion.

BBOD

At the home of Mrs. John Lawrence, hostess for the Arillery Committee wives' monthly coffee Jan. 13, ladies received "red-hot" name tags to remind them that their husbands aren't the only ones who make "fair pay."

Much to the dismay of the group, the array of refreshments included sausage rolls and mild sauce appetizers.

Mrs. Paul Baug and Mrs. John Seitz are leaving the group; although Mrs. Raisig is not leaving Fort Benning. Welcomed to the group was Mrs. Ernest LeVasseur.

LEADERSHIP DEPT.

The officers and ladies of Hqs. Leadership Dept., USAIS, met at the home of Col. and Mrs. William B. Steele for their monthly banquet farewell.

After a social hour, a buffet dinner was served on a table centered with the unit's crest flanking a large brunois snifter.

After dinner, Col. Steele said good-by to Capt. and Mrs. William E. Smith, Capt. John R. Otford Jr., and Capt. and Mrs. Victor J. Russell. Smith and Otford are returning to civilian life, and will be going to the Conditioning, Combatives and Leadership Committee of the Drill Dept.

Coming to Headquarters from the Leadership Committee were Capt. and Mrs. Henry C. Gunter.

DPCA

The ladies of Directorate of Domestic Activities held their first monthly coffee the new year Jan. 5, at the OWCy Club.

Mrs. James Hoover and Mrs. Robert Hartley were the hostesses. Mrs. Leon R. Livingston Jr., wife of the director, conducted the business meeting and welcomed Mrs. Charles Reidmuth, Mrs. Proven Jensen and 2nd Lt. Christine Oehm to the Directorate. Special guests were Mrs. Lois F. Livingston, mother of Col. Livingston; and Mrs. Gordon E. Hunt, mother of Lt. Col. Gordon M. Hunt.

Mrs. Malcolm Beer, wife of the adjutant general, invited all women to the Ladies' Golf Association luncheon, Feb. 23 in lieu of the regular DPCA coffee next month.

Each lady is urged to make reservations for the OWC luncheon, Feb. 9, at that unit coffee. Calling her unit reservation chairman before next Friday. You may also make a reservation by calling Mrs. Victor Arndt at 687-5311, Mrs. James Hoover at 545-2069, Mrs. Fowler Johnson at 587-2100, or Mrs. Gordon Hunt at 645-7349.

Units should turn in reservations for one of these in the groupings by flag designating the particular facility represented and a sandwich to the ladies by Feb. 8.

A change of command keynote luncheon, Jan. 19 for wives and officers of the Artillery Committee.

Lt. Col. A. E. Stipe, the new chairman of the committee, presided. Lt. Col. Paul J. Raisig with moments of his tour with the committee. Raisig is chairman of Staff Group, BBOD. Mrs. Raisig received a St. Barbara's medalion.

Maj. and Mrs. John A. Seltz are leaving for the Armed Forces Staff College in Norfolk, Va.

Welcomed to the committee were Capt. and Mrs. Ernest A. LeVasseur and Capt. and Mrs. Gerald Sharpe.

HQ. CAD.

The officers' wives of Hqs. Cad. held their monthly coffee, Jan. 12. Mrs. John Ball entertained the ladies in her home.

Mrs. Bruce Fraser welcomed new arrivals. Mrs. Harry Truitt and Mrs. Leroy Holloman to the group. The ACS service project was discussed. A social hour followed the short business meeting.

MEDDAC

Christian Campaglia, the assistant general manager of the Fort Benning exchange system; and James Cunningham, the general manager of the commissary, spoke at the January luncheon of the MEDDAC Officers' Wives Club. The luncheon was held at the Supper Club, Jan. 14, with the invited guests from the Departments of Preventive Medicine and Dermatology, and Dental Clinic. Mrs. LeVasseur served as hostesses. The hostess chairmen were Mrs. William Dinniss, Mrs. Harold Plank and Mrs. Gerald Olson.

Campaglia and Cunningham showed the group a picture of the proposed exchange complex scheduled to be completed in 1972.

A question and answer period about the PX and commissary followed the talks.

The luncheon's decorations depicted the theme of the day. Each round table was covered with a gold cloth and centered with a representative group of goods from one of the branches of the PX or commissary. Included were a variety of goods in the groupings by flag designating the particular facility represented and a sandwich

Post to recognize prayer breakfast

The idea of a national prayer breakfast dates back to 1962, when members of the Senate and House prayer groups established an annual breakfast with the President for the purpose of recognizing the moral and spiritual values on which the nation was founded.

For the past several years, armed forces personnel at home and abroad have held similar observances, and last year more than 100,000 servicemen on 800 ships and installations joined the commander-in-chief, in celebrating the event.

Nurse ready for counseling

An Army health nurse will be available for family planning counseling Tuesdays and the first and third Thursday of each month from 1:30-4 p.m.

Counselors will provide information and instruction to persons interested in contraception. Individuals choosing methods which require a doctor's prescription will be referred to the GP-CXN clinic.

Counselors are located in room 902 of Martin Army Hospital. No appointment is necessary. For additional information, call 545-5431.

Patients listen to music show

Martin Army Hospital patients were treated to a musical entertainment show recently.

The show featured singing and dancing by an all-girl group called "The Hericaines," and music by the "Southwestern Winds" directed by Neil Edwards.

The program was arranged by Alan Goodman, director of public relations for the Georgia Southwestern College in Americus, Ga.

After the show, members of the group visited patients on the ward who could not attend the performance.

Columbus police visit 197th racial seminar

Unique, inspiring, worthwhile, these were the attributes commonly ascribed by over 130 members of 1-58th Infantry (Paratroopers) after attending a race seminar Jan. 22 which, for the first time, involved two Columbus policemen. Ray McPhaul and Marc Crandel, in the discussion phase of the seminar.

1st. Col. Stephen R. Pawlik, battalion commander, asked for police assistance hoping to foster a better working relationship between the civilian-military community.

Discussion at the seminar was lively with a variety of subjects being discussed; the legality of certain afro-type combs, police apprehension policies, and the new Alcohol Safety Action Program.

Most members attending the seminar agreed that better feeling and understanding resulted from the policeman taking an active part in the seminar.

Sgt. Edward Phillips, HHC, stated, "This is without a doubt the finest seminar I have attended. I believe that a lot of the inherent distrust between the civilian and military community was bridged by this seminar."

Maj. Myron Davis, battalion S-3, said there was a more favorable turnout and a better exchange of ideas than he had witnessed in any of the previous race seminars he had attended.

Patrolman McPhaul was amazed at the response and interest shown by the "Paratrooper" soldiers. He stated, "I believe a lot of military-civilian tension could be eased if more of these seminars were conducted. Basically, the distrust that now exists is the result of ignorance. Once both sides get together and recognize that their roles are dependent upon one-another, a greater social harmony will exist. The city of Columbus was a great deal to the Fort Benning soldiers for their patronage. And, the soldiers are indebted to the conveniences they offer them," McPhaul said. Curtis McClung, Columbus police chief, was pleased with the outcome of the seminar. "This was the first time that the police department was called to perform such a support mission," McClung said. "I hope other units will capitalize on the exchange idea and have similar functions in the future."

AUSA

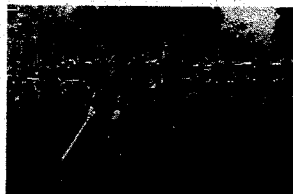

CSM William T. Mixon, United States Army Infantry School, has been named chairman of the George Washington's Birthday Dinner Dance to be held Feb. 18 at the Harmony Church Field House. Proceeds from the event will be used to finance the local Association of the United States Army chapter's continuing program of providing ROTC scholarships.

CSM Mixon, who became the Infantry School Sergeant Major during July of 1971 and who has been a strong supporter of AUSA stated: "I plan to make this one of the best social events any soldier, NCO, or officer has seen at Fort Benning." He has already been credited for successfully coordinating the AUSA annual picnic, which when held this past October was attended by more than 500 members.

Since the cost of the tickets has been decreased by half this year to $3.50, CSM Mixon expects as many as 700 civilian and military members to be in attendance. Included in the price of the ticket will be three cocktails to be served prior to the dinner. This year reservations may be made for an entire (12 seats) table for a unit, business; social group or friends. On tap for entertainment will be a combo from the 283rd Army Band and se-tions by the Infantry Chorus. Also there will be a special appearance by the "Old Guard" Rifle and Drum Corps and the U.S. Army Drill Team. These are the Army's finest marching units with a history predating the Constitution of the United States. This performance on the floor of the Harmony Church Field House will be open the public with no admission charged to view their demonstration. Events begin at 7 p.m. with a cocktail preceding.

February designated scout month

Scout Sunday, scouting displays in local areas and the anniversary of the Boy Scouts of America — all are a part of Boy Scout Month.

Scout Sunday, on post, will be held on Feb. 13. National Boy Scout Sunday is Feb. 6, but it may be changed on the local level so as not to conflict with Communion or other church activities.

Scouting displays will be placed in Building 4 and the Main Post Shopping complex and several local stores off post.

Also during the month of Feb., the Boy Scouts of America will celebrate the 62nd anniversary on Feb. 8. The BSA were founded in 1910. The Chattahoochee Council of the BSA covers 14 counties, two in Ala., Lee and Russell, and 12 counties in Ga. As of Dec. 31, 1971, the Chattahoochee Council supports 8,666 scouts, Boy Scouts, Cub Scouts and Explorers, in 468 scouting units. There are approximately 2,000 adults in the program. There are seven districts in the council with a professional staff of 11 men under the supervision of Mr. Russell P. McClean, scout executive. The Chattahoochee Council Scout Reservation has two camps, Camp McKenzie and Camp Looney.

VA employs 31 MOH winners

The Veterans Administration employs 31 winners of the Medal of Honor, the nation's highest award for valor on the battlefield.

One of them, the Rev. Charles J. Lileky, the only living clergyman to hold that medal. Currently, Father Lileky is chaplain of the Drug Dependency Unit at the Brooksville, Ohio, VA Hospital. He served 30 months with an infantry division in Vietnam where he won both the Medal of Honor and Distinguished Service Cross.

Twenty-four of the Medal of Honor winners are in the VA Contact Program, which advises veterans of their entitlements under the G.I. Bill, aids them in developing claims for compensation for service injuries, assists them in looking for jobs, and offers guidance in many other areas.

At the end of Nov., VA had a total of 84,261 veterans on the payroll, 12,277 of them Vietnam era veterans, out of a total VA work force of 180,000.

Program's new system helps trainees learn faster

In a simulated tactical situation, low yield nuclear devices have been unleashed upon major cities in the southeast and alien paratroopers have been dropped in the Macon area.

Immediate retaliation steps include the mobilization of a striking force from Fort Benning.

To the 1st Bn., 29th Inf., 197th Inf. Bde, falls the task of taking and securing an enemy radar and communications relay site in Dublin, Ga., 50 miles east of Macon.

The situation, devised as a field training exercise (FTX) is a major part of the Advanced Individual Training (AIT) received by the "unit of choice" enlistees of the Army 197th Inf. Bde.

A 14-man Long Range-Reconnaissance Patrol, composed of 12 AIT students and two training NCOs from Co. D, 1-29th Inf. left Ft. Benning Jan. 17 to be the advance party into Dublin.

For the 12 students, the exercise comprises one week out of a nine-week AIT program. The week is termed "Adventure Week" and is their final week of training. It incorporates everything the students have learned in the previous eight weeks.

Their five-day adventure started with an airlift by CH 47 (Chinook) helicopter from Fort Benning to Warner Robins AFB, followed by a twenty-mile trip down the Ocmulgee River in an assault boat to Bonair, Ga., and then by the use of land navigation a 45-mile march into Dublin.

The patrol was subject to ambushes by simulated aggressor forces (fellow troops from the 197th) and culminated in an assault on the "communications site" located at the National Guard Armory in Dublin.

Field training exercises of this type are typical of the adventure training now being received by the volunteers of the 197th Inf. Bde.

While the emphasis of the FTX is still placed on the traditional escape, evasion and land navigation, new areas of interest in the field of domestic action are being stressed.

Differing from the previous types of advanced training received by Army enlistees, soldiers under the "unit of choice" program in the 197th become permanent party members of their unit and train with the men they will be working with for 18 months.

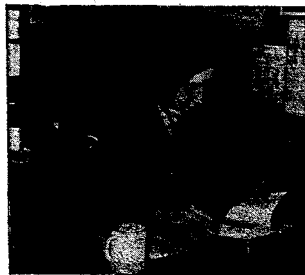

According to 2nd Lt. Charles T. Wilson, weapons platoon leader for Co. D, and officer in charge of the field training exercise, the trainees actually learn faster under the new system and since they are a part of the unit, they learn to work with the officers and senior NCOs sooner and often more efficiently than those who have been assigned to a unit or a permanent change of station from a regular training center.

Pvt. Jeffery Smith moves in under "fire" on security forces at the Armory.

Major Chester Frandness from the Dublin National Guard Armory and Pvt. Charles T. Wilson (left) inspect a patrol team from Dublin as the three patrol of operating in their assignments. Following the exercise, the patrol was subject to ambushes by simulated aggressor forces.

Head WAC

Sgt. Mary Headden does not mind being the only female working in a building full of men.

The beaming WAC from Atlanta is a stenographer in the 197th Infantry Brigade's headquarters building at Kelley Hill. One of only three WACs assigned to the brigade, she is the most recent arrival to the unit.

She enlisted on her 18th birthday in Nov., 1969 shortly after graduation from Sequoyah High School in Atlanta. She received basic training at Ft. McClellan, Ala. and was trained as a stenographer at Ft. Benjamin Harrison, Ind.

Mary joined the Army because she believed it would "allow her individuality to show." She is content with her present life style and "would not trade it for any other."

Pressfree uniforms to be evaluated

WASHINGTON (ANF) — Tests will be made next summer of two types of lightweight and pressfree summer uniforms to determine the Army's standard summer uniform.

The U.S. Army Materiel Command's (USAMC) Natick Laboratories, Natick, Mass., has procured 2,000 uniforms for testing. Half are 50 per cent cotton and the other half are 65 per cent polyester and 35 per cent rayon.

USAMC's Test and Evaluation Command personnel will test the two kinds of fabrics for durability, comfort and ease of maintenance.

The polyester and rayon blend, of similar color to present summer khakis, has been sold in some post exchanges for the last three years.

Turned gloom to comedy Old house gave Coward inspiration for 'Blithe Spirit'

BY EDITH SIMMONS
"Old May 64, the play was finished and — the dreading archness and false modesty — I will admit that I knew it was witty, I knew it was well constructed, and I also knew it would be a success."
That's Noel Coward talking about "Blithe Spirit". This comedy is the Benning Dramatists entry in the 3rd Army Tournament of Plays.
"Blithe Spirit" opened during the London blackout in 1941. For five years, it delighted audiences hurried by war. In addition to the London troupe, Coward took road shows of the play throughout England and Scotland. Since then it has enjoyed several revivals.
"Blithe Spirit" turns to the spirit world for its basis. A quiet seance releases a horde of headaches for Dr. Bordman and his second wife when the doctor's deceased first wife chooses this opportunity to return and stake her claim. With the revival of interest in occultism, it is appropriate that this entertaining play to bring this entertaining play to life again.

In his autobiography, Coward said that the ghostly ideas of the play came to him while visiting his old home. As he wandered through the deserted house, he could feel memories pressing him. With the hand of an artist, he turned the gloom into a comedy.
Noel Coward was a man of many talents and interests. A turn-of-the-century baby, he hurried into fame in 1924 with production of the social drama "The Sign of the Cross" as a writer and actor grew Sandy Duncan applies some all American arm-twisting to make a point with Tony Roberts in the comedy, "Star Spangled Girl," now showing at a local theater. Miss Duncan plays a patriotic "transplant" from a small town who gets involved with two big city, underground newspaper publishers and tries to convert them to her views.

Hard sell

ganda Office. After the fall of France, he devoted many trips as a public relations agent for the British government and performed one-night stands in countless small cities and towns. Additionally, Coward entertained troops in Great North Africa, and the Middle East and Australia.
If you're interested in helping to put on "Blithe Spirit," drop by the Benning Playhouse any evening or come to the Dramatists' workshop at 9 a.m. This week's topic will be set design and construction. Everyone is welcome. For further information, call the Playhouse at 645-5687.

CHAMPUS to reduce rejects

Proper completion of the claim form (DA Form 1089-2) is essential to permit fiscal administrators of the Civilian Health and Medical Program of the Uniformed Services to process claims for outpatient, medical care promptly.
CHAMPUS fiscal administrators reject thousands of claims each month because the claim form is improperly completed. CHAMPUS officials note that errors, most frequently made involve item 5, requiring identification card data, and failures of the beneficiary or his authorized representative to sign the form in item 13.
Proper completion of the claim form the first time permits the CHAMPUS fiscal administrator to process the claim promptly and accurately and to avoid delays in payment. CHAMPUS beneficiaries are being asked to do their part by carefully following the instructions printed on the reverse of the claim form.

Libraries' books

The Communists have been in power in China for more than 20 years. President Nixon soon will visit China. How much do you know about China? The following books about the world's most populated country are available at post libraries:
Report from a Chinese Village and China: The Revolution Continues, Jan Myrdal. In these two works the author discusses one of history's most important social movements from the viewpoint of the Chinese people themselves.
Anatomy of China, Dick Wilson. An analysis of China's social, cultural, makeup—with a look at economic and political factors—that influence the country's governance.
The United States and China in World Affairs, Robert Blum. The author argues that myth, prejudice, half-truth and ignorance long distorted American opinion and policy toward China.

Synopsis

THE SEVEN MINUTES (Rated R) — A young book store clerk is arrested for selling an erotic novel called "The Seven Minutes" on grounds that it is obscene. What should have been merely a routine misdemeanor is blown up by self-seeking politicians into a grandiose circus of a trial in which the book itself becomes a "defendant."
THE GRISSOM GANG (Rated R) — In a spoof of a typical 30's gangster flick, Irene Dailey plays a tough-as-nails, female gang leader who combines the qualities of Mammy Yokum and Ma Barker. Her son, Slim, is a simpleton with brute strength who gets a crush on a kidnap victim's girlfriend. He tries to become his mistress by saying that the other boys want to kill her once the ransom is collected.
COMETOGETHER (Rated R) — Tony Anthony portrays a stuntman working in Italy who picks up two American tourists — played by Lucanna Paluzzi and Rosemary Dexter — in his flashy sportscar. Each of the three has a shadow in his background. Miss Paluzzi is being kept by an older man. Miss Dexter is recovering from the emotional effects of an abortion. Anthony, the sole survivor of his unit in Vietnam, returned home to find his sweetheart married. A triangular love relationship soon develops.
CACTUS FLOWER (Rated GP) — From the international stage of comedy, Walter Matthau appears as a playboy dentist who pretends to be married and Ingrid Bergman as his office nurse and baby-sitter.
FRAGMENT OF HEAVEN (Rated GP) — David Hemmings stars as an ex-drug addict and writer who is visiting his charitable aunt — when the old lady is murdered. Upon investigating, he discovers that Auntie wasn't so charitable after all. Instead, she was part of a blackmail ring.

Throwing the book at him

Wayne Mauder and Eddy Williams bustle to a meeting of the Strength Through Decency League in the picture, "The Seven Minutes," now appearing at post theaters. In the film, Mauder plays a lawyer hired to defend a small town bookkeeper accused of selling an obscene novel.

Mia Farrow's performance strong

SEE NO EVIL starring Mia Farrow. See No Evil is a murder mystery - suspense thriller with a twist. Mia Farrow plays a blind girl named Sarah who lives with relatives. She spent six weeks in a hospital after losing her sight in an accident with her horse. The film follows Sarah as she gets used to her odd surroundings without sight. The film also follows a man in a pair of cowboy boots, a man whose face isn't shown, a man who takes affront at insults imagined or real, and plots and carries out the murder of Sarah's aunt, uncle and cousin. The most suspenseful part of the picture is when the blind girl comes back to a house she believes is empty, but has three bodies scattered around. The film also gives the viewer several leads to the identity of the killer. Mia Farrow's presentation of the blind girl is very good. She portrays a person of unusual strength in that after only six weeks of blindness, she is almost ready to resume a normal life. She does not give herself time to waver about meeting her boyfriend, and even talks herself into riding a horse again. The director proves himself a master of suspense by placing Sarah in a house with bodies lying around, bringing her almost to the point of discovery and then backing away, by having Sarah almost stepping on a piece of broken glass instead. Mia finds an I.D. bracelet left behind by the killer and tries to escape when he comes back for it. Sarah's escape is eventful, riding a horse out a gallop through a woods she can't see, being swept off the horse by a branch and running barefoot in random directions in woods and meadows, mud, and brush, cutting off the hope - or the fear - that someone would answer her.

Hershey to receive Patterson Award

February 11 will be a memorable day in the career of 2nd Lt. Charles Hershey, a soldier from Mass., who is receiving the Patterson Award. The award is presented to a member of the U.S. Army Infantry Center who has distinguished himself in the line of duty. Hershey was recommended for the award by his superior officers. He is currently stationed at Ft. Riley, Kan., and is a member of the 3rd Infantry Brigade. He is a graduate of the Infantry School and is currently serving as a platoon leader. He is a highly decorated soldier and has received several awards for his service.

February is vote sign-up month

Soldiers at Fort Benning expecting to vote through use of an absentee ballot this year should register to vote during the month of February. Armed Forces personnel are covered by the Federal Voting Assistance Act of 1955 and the Voting Rights Act of 1965 and amendments to both. During Feb., members of the Armed Services should find out their home state's voting requirements and take steps to register in order to take advantage of the above legislation. Voting standards and procedures vary from state to state but in most, registration and absentee balloting may be obtained through submission of the Federal Post Card Application for Absentee Ballot (FPCA). In states where the FPCA does not apply, a request for the state's forms which can then be used to obtain registration. The voter's home state is the only state he can legally vote in an election when legal residency is established in a other state for the required amount of time. Also, short and flexible residency requirements now apply for the election of president and vice-president under changes made in 1965. The Department of Defense has created the required services to enable the FPCA to all eligible personnel.

Post's health claim delays can be avoided

Many of Fort Benning's CHAMPUS beneficiaries can help prevent delays in claims payment by not withholding receipts and itemized statements until the end of the fiscal year.

Officials of the Civilian Health and Medical Program of the Uniformed Services are encouraging beneficiaries to submit their claims for payment of authorized outpatient medical care bills to their state fiscal administrators on a regular basis after the annual deductible has been satisfied.

The annual outpatient deductible requirement is $50 in charges for one beneficiary and not to exceed $100 per family for two or more beneficiaries who use the program. After the deductible requirement is met CHAMPUS pays for 80 pct. of the authorized outpatient care for dependents and active duty personnel and 75 pct. of the charges for retired personnel, their authorized dependents and survivors of active duty or retired uniformed services personnel.

The deductible must be met each fiscal year (from July 1-June 30) but CHAMPUS officials noted that holding claims until the end of the fiscal year and then submitting them in quantity will cause considerable delay in payments.

Benning's own WAC cagers tip-off against Ft. Rucker tomorrow

BY MIKE KELLER
Anyone who thinks that Fort Benning's sports scene belongs solely to men won't be around when 13 post WACS team. And these female cagers tip off their regular season play at Briant Wells Field House this weekend with a two-game set against Ft. Rucker. Game time is 12:30 p.m. Saturday and 1 p.m. Sunday.
The WACs hope to bounce back from last week's 22-10 exhibition loss to the women of the Columbus Recreational League. The contest was not as one-sided as the final tally suggests. The WACs battled to a 9-7 half-time lead but were able to muster only one foul shot for the remainder of the game.

Yet, even if these girls are not models of cage perfection, their enthusiasm, determination and hustle cannot be faulted. Their practices are as hectic and spirited as any held by men.
The players cheer every shot that is attempted, scramble spunkily around the floor and show little reluctance to avoid unkindly jesting.
"Girls aren't dainty and delicate," team manager Gayle Morgan said. "We enjoy being toughies."

"I don't expect the team to reach its peak until the 3rd Army tournament," Padron said. "But, right now, we're ahead of schedule. We have a strong starting line-up and have progressed further than I thought. This team has two strong points: aggressive defense and ability to move the ball."
Pat Cagle, team captain, is even more impressed with the squad.
"We're the best in basketball the WACs have had at Benning," she said. "Everyone seems to be keeping going. Despite the optimism, this team is riddled with a number of weak spots — not the least of which is their lack of knowledge about cage fundamentals."
Some girls prefer to "swish" a ball than use the backboard to bank the shot. Others throw the ball as if they were handling a football and can't make a lay-up unless they're alone under the basket. And still others have difficulty executing the type of precision plays necessary to a successful cage squad.
"Some of the players can't understand why they cannot dribble and walk, dribble and walk," Miss Morgan said wincing slightly from the pain of a pulled muscle in her leg.
Miss Cagle pointed out another problem inherent to female ball clubs.
"Temper is the biggest headache for girls," she said. "They just flare up. Sometimes I get so mad myself that I'd just as soon turn around and punch somebody."

Doughboys split series with Rucker

The Fort Benning Doughboy basketball team split a two-game series with the Ft. Rucker Flyers last weekend.
The Flyers won the first game played at Briant Wells Field House Friday evening by 62 to 79. The Doughboys evened the series on Saturday afternoon by scoring an 83 to 73 victory.
John Black was high scorer for the Doughboys with 25 points in the Friday game and 30 in the game on Saturday. Hand had 18 points in the game played on Saturday.
The Fort Benning Doughboy basketball team split a two-game series with the Ft. Rucker Flyers last weekend. William Russell, James Sturdivant and Elbert Tarran also scored in double figures.

HHC wins 197th cage championship

HHC, 1st Bn., 29th Inf. defeated Co. C, 43rd at the Kelley Hill Field House Monday to win the battalion championship of the 1st Bn., 29th Inf. The two teams tied for the unit lead with identical 3 and times. If a girl really wants to learn a sport, she'll catch on fast."

Ralph Padron is one man who will agree with that. He's their coach. Padron also is an assistant coach of Headquarters Command's brigade-level basketball team. He finds women easier to coach than men.
"Girls really don't know that much about basketball and are very open in suggestion," Padron said. "In addition, girls are more spirited, more cooperative and more willing to learn."
Both Padron and his players expressed confidence that they could win a championship for Fort Benning.

"I don't expect the team to reach its peak until the 3rd Army tournament," Padron said. "But, right now, we're ahead of schedule. We have a strong starting line-up and have progressed further than I thought. This team has two strong points: aggressive defense and ability to move the ball."
Pat Cagle, team captain, is even more impressed with the squad.
"We're the best in basketball the WACs have had at Benning," she said. "Everyone seems to be keeping going. Despite the optimism, this team is riddled with a number of weak spots — not the least of which is their lack of knowledge about cage fundamentals."
Some girls prefer to "swish" a ball than use the backboard to bank the shot. Others throw the ball as if they were handling a football and can't make a lay-up unless they're alone under the basket. And still others have difficulty executing the type of precision plays necessary to a successful cage squad.
"Some of the players can't understand why they cannot dribble and walk, dribble and walk," Miss Morgan said wincing slightly from the pain of a pulled muscle in her leg.
Miss Cagle pointed out another problem inherent to female ball clubs.
"Temper is the biggest headache for girls," she said. "They just flare up. Sometimes I get so mad myself that I'd just as soon turn around and punch somebody."

Padron blamed the team's exhibition defeat on a loss in poise and lack of teamwork.
"They're biggest difficulty is knowing when to go and what to do in a given play," Padron said. "And they still don't know the importance of a good pass. In addition, our inexperience hurt. We've been working together for only three weeks, while our opponents have played for three years."
The players themselves are relatively "green" — sports-wise. The team does have a handful of old pros. Miss Cagle, who scored a majority of the squad's points in the exhibition game, has been playing basketball for 9 years; and Cathy Chisholm, who led the team in rebounds against Columbus is equally talented. But most of the members are rookies.
Padron is attempting to meet this problem by holding rigorous workouts. He schedules three evening practices a week, each an hour and half in length. And he thinks the sessions are doing good.

"Our first practice was very disorganized," he said. "Now I can call a drill and the girls usually know what to do. In any event, they're dedicated. Girls could have a better time during off-duty hours than practicing."
"If the players agree they didn't let an...
"Everyone is willing to work two or three hours a night if it's necessary to get us ready for a game," Miss Cagle said. "On last year's team everyone got tired after 45 minutes and wanted to quit. This year, we don't quit!"

Faced with a furious challenge, a WAC player clings desperately to the ball.

ROD AND GUN CLUB

Notes

BY BILL KLOEB

Sgt. Charles Wallace and Lt. Col. Brandt Grubbs received Remington automatic shotguns as first place winners in the Rod and Gun Club deer hunting contest. John E. Smith and Ronnie Cavius were the winners of the Mossberg sluggings offered as second place prizes.

SFC James R. Liverett was the winner of the third Remington gun. His name was selected from the names of all members who had registered a deer kill at the club during the deer hunting season.

Ridley Bell, host of the Sportsmans Lodge television program aired on WRBL-TV3 each Saturday afternoon at 6 p.m., presented the prizes at a presentation party held at the Rod and Gun Club last Friday evening. Some of the Friday night proceedings will be shown around prize winners will be interviewed during the program tomorrow.

Small Game Contest

Club members who failed to score during the deer contest will have a chance to get some Rod and Gun Club loot next month.

The club will sponsor a small game contest to run from Feb. 1 through 29. All club members in good standing and qualified dependents of club members may enter the contest.

The small game involved is quail, rabbit and squirrel. A total of nine prizes will be awarded. Three prizes will go for each type of game. First place winners will receive Remington model 600 pump action shotguns, second place winners will get 10 boxes of shotgun shells and the third place winners will receive $25 merchandise certificates to be used at the club sales counter.

To qualify for a prize hunters must take one daily bag limit of any of the three species. Game must be taken on the reservation.

Winners of the contest will be determined at the Rod and Gun Club at 7:30 p.m. March 2. Winners will have to be present at that time to claim prizes.

Complete details concerning the contest may be obtained at the Rod and Gun Club, located on First Division Road about one quarter mile south of Highway 27.

Club Membership and Permits

The cost of membership in the Rod and Gun Club has been reduced for the remainder of the hunting-fishing year.

A regular membership is now $2, dependent membership is 50 cents and the fee for limited members is $4. These memberships will be good until March 31, when all memberships must be renewed.

Hunters and fishermen can make the Rod and Gun club a one-stop affair as far as licenses and permits are concerned. The club is the only place that is authorized to issue a post hunting and fishing permit and they also have the required state licenses.

What Would You Do

Soldiers hate police call. They especially dislike having to pick up the trash that was thrown away by someone else. Supervisors know this and will go to great lengths to avoid having to issue orders for a special police call. Personnel using the recreation areas, ponds and woods on the reservation should keep this in mind. The easiest way to be sure someone doesn't litter an area is to keep them out of the area.

Hunters, fishermen and other people who like to use these types of areas that are within a training area which is the responsibility of some post unit or Infantry School Department complain that these areas are listed Off-Limits during periods that they are not actually being used for training.

This may be true but put yourself in the position of the individual responsible for the area. Would you be anxious to open the area if it would mean an extra police call for your troops?

Until all of the "guests" using training areas show an active interest in keeping the training facilities, aids and equipment in these areas intact and the police of the area in good command, the "off-limits" sign will remain open.

Annual boat show begins today

Columbusites get another chance to see what the 1972 boating season will bring when the Columbus Marine Dealer's Association sponsors its 15th annual boat show, approximately 100 boats will be on display on the inside and outside of the Auditorium.

Participants in the event will be Fort City Marine, Leon Jordan Marine, and Miller-Averett Marine.

According to Butch Jordan, head of this season's boat show, approximately 100 boats will be on display on the inside and outside of the Auditorium.

As an additional benefit, local fishermen will be able to get a few tips from some of the more prominent bass fishing sportsmen in the area, who will be conducting various fishing clinics.

"We're not trying to sell fishing products, but we will be able to try and answer any questions that the people might have as far as fishing is concerned," commented Jordan.

About the "various" type fishermen that will be present at the boat show, Jordan said, "We'll have a variety of boat types open."

The show will begin Friday afternoon at 1 p.m., and will run until 9:30 p.m. on that day and Saturday. On Sunday, the show will begin at 1 p.m. and will end at 7 p.m. that night.

The latest in 1972 trailers and loading equipment will also be on hand for the public's enjoyment.

SPORTS

BY JOHN DAVIS

When Sandy Koufax was voted into baseball's Hall of Fame last week, a writer reminded the ex-Dodger great that he was the youngest man ever to be inducted into the coveted Hall. The man with the gifted left arm immediately gave the reporter a quick lesson in mathematics.

"In order to be the youngest guy ever selected to the Hall of Fame means you had to quit early," quipped Koufax, obviously thinking of the many good years that an arthritic condition had robbed from him.

When Koufax stepped down in 1966, he was a mere 31 years of age. Baseball scientists have determined that the average hurler reaches his pitching maturity around his thirty second birthday, so Koufax was denied at least five good seasons.

As a matter of fact, had it not been for the arthritic elbow of his talented pitching arm, the gifted southpaw might well be preparing for his tenth 20 win season instead of being enshrined into the Hall of Fame. For in his short lived but brilliant prime, the tall left hander was as good as the game has ever produced.

Koufax won 26 contests in 1963, the first year of his four prime seasons. The final three years of his career he averaged 24 wins a season, and his earned run average was microscopic, as he allowed less than two to a game. He also hurled four no hitters during this period; one a perfect game against the Chicago Cubs.

Had Koufax been afforded the opportunity to pitch against his own club — the Los Angeles Dodgers — his record would have undoubtedly been even more impressive. Although the Dodgers won three national league flags during the Koufax golden years, they still remained one of the most anemic hitting teams in baseball.

With Koufax on the mound every fourth day or so, LA had a stopper in its pitching rotation. The Dodgers great that even with their purchase lineup, they weren't going to spiral into a prolonged slump.

So at 36, the slender Jewish left-hander from New York became the youngest man ever to be selected into baseball's Hall of Fame. He was voted in on the first ballot by the Baseball Writers Association of America, the pollsters who determine who will be admitted to the Hall of Fame and who will not.

Two other greats were immortalized at the same time as New York Yankee star Yogi Berra and Early Wynn, the last hurler to win 300 games in a career.

Berra played 18 seasons with the Yankees, and was a mainstay on the last New York "dynasty". Berra was preceded into immortality by the famous Yogi Berra stories. For example, a friend was passing through New York in the middle of the night and gave Berra a call. After several rings a sleepy voice on the other end of the line answered, "Sorry to wake you at this hour Yogi," said the friend apologetically "but I was passing through town and wanted to make sure I talked with you." No need to apologize," Berra said, "I had to get up to answer the phone anyway."

And so it went with Berra, unquestionably one of the most colorful participants to ever play the diamond sport.

Besides winning 300 games in his long career, Wynn also posted five 20 win seasons. His best year, perhaps, came in 1954 when he was the ace of the Cleveland-Indian pitching staff. Even though the Tribe dropped a disappointing four straight to the New York Giants in the World Series, the '54 edition of the Indians was one of the finest baseball teams ever assembled.

When the trio is formally inducted this summer at Cooperstown, New York, the selection committee can rest assured that his choices were good ones. In fact, Yogi Berra summed up his career with a statement that was as simple as it was profound.

197th leads post basketball league

The 197th Inf. Bde. team remained undefeated and first in the second half of the post-wide basketball league season with a 4 and 0 record.

In action at Briant Wells Field House on Jan. 17, TSB, lost its second game of the half by a score of 107-89 to the 52nd Eng. Gp. The second game of the night saw the 197th defeat MEDDAC 78-65. The big men for the 197th were John Black, game's high scorer with 29 points, and center John Halverson who chipped in 20 points. Kelley Hill Field House, the 197th scored the second highest point total of the season by bombing winless HQ. Cmd. 118-76. Joe Johnson was the big man for the 197th in the first half as he scored 20 of his game high 32 points, the best performance of the season. James Patterson scored all of his 19 points in the second half to provide a spark for the team. He scored the 197th's first 13 points in the second half.

The last game of the week MEDDAC beat TSB 76-68 and moved into second place, dropping TSB to fourth.

In the first game played at Briant Wells Field House last Monday night MEDDAC beat HQ Cmd. 76-68 to strengthen its hold on second place.

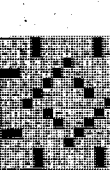

The second game of the night saw the 197th with only a 35-33 lead at half-time, but it came alive in the second half to defeat TSB by a 74-60 score. The game's high scorer was John Black of the 197th with 29 points. His first 3 points came on 3 straight foul shots. John Halverson also hit in double figures for the 197th with 12

Woody Field, (25) of the IOAC 1-72 "A" team and James Tucker, (32) playing for 47th Co. are up for a jump ball during the TSB Company Level Championship game played Dec. 5 in the TSB Gym. IOAC 1-72 "A" came out on top defeating 47th Co. with a score of 70-37. 47th Co. 4th Bn. (ABN), played a strong game but was never really able to get an advantage over the well organized IOAC team. Strigethy, 25 points, and Neswacheny, 22 points, sank the most baskets for IOAC 1-72 while Tucker assisted the 47th Co. with 18 points.

Unbeaten 931st teams head for showdown

Two teams remain undefeated in the 931st Engr. Gp. company-level basketball league, in spite of winning streaks by the fourth and sixth place contenders.

C. C. 43rd Engr. Bn. leads the 12-team league with eight wins, followed by 180th M.F. Co. with seven victories.

The 598th Lt. Maint. Co. is steadily remaining in third place, with its 5-3 record. HHC has won five out of its last six games to rise to its 5-4 record after losing its first three games of the season. Close behind in sixth place is Co. D, which has been victorious in three of its last four contests on the hardwood. Co. D's record now stands at 4-5.

The two league leaders will face a showdown Monday night at Kimbro when the undefeated teams will face a showdown Monday night at Kimbro when the league's best team.

Two teams vie for Avn. Cmd. championship

The Aviation Command Basketball League will end Feb. 2 and the championship team will represent the Aviation Command in the Post Tournament.

During last weeks play, 609th and USAIB won their games by forfeit over the 89th on different days. The H-Q-A-A-O-D team soundly defeated the 205th by a score of 63-37. The 81st Avn. Plt. team had to withdraw from the competition due to a reduction in personnel.

With only two games remaining for each team, it looks as if the championship will be decided between the 609th and HQ-LAOD.

The 609th is currently leading the league with an 8-0 record and HQ-LAOD records stands at 7-1. These two teams play one another for the final time today at 4:30 p.m. If 609th wins, they will be the champions. Otherwise, a play-off game will have to be scheduled to determine the champions.

In their first meeting of the year, the 609th won by two points. Last week, 609th lost their leading scorer, Matherne, who had a 17 pt. average. HQ-LAOD on the other hand seems to be getting stronger as the season progresses.

Spectators are reminded that games are played Tuesday and Thursday at 2:30 and 4:00 p.m. All games are held in the Briant Wells gymnasium.

Tax

Each employed single person and each married person whose spouse is also employed are entitled to one special withholding allowance. This allowance may not be claimed by either husband or wife when both are employed or by any employee who has two or more concurrent jobs. For further details, see Form 4, Employee's Withholding Exemption Certificate, revised December 1971.

Of the several methods devised by Internal Revenue Service for employers to withhold income taxes, the Army has elected to use the percentage method. It to be computed monthly based on the employee's current withholding Exemption Certificate, Form 4. This method will insure that the exact amount of income taxes will be deducted throughout the entire year provided employee's Form 4 is properly filed. To give military personnel an oversight of the percentage method the following examples are offered:

EXAMPLE 1: An E-6 with over ten years service, married with two children claiming a total of four exemptions with a base pay of $41.50. Four exemptions x $62.50 (amount allowed per month for each exemption) equals $250.00 (base pay) minus $250.00 (total exemption) equals $0.00 taxable wages which fall into the percentage wage bracket of over 17.00 but not over 276.00. This indicates a 17.50 plus 16 per cent of the excess, over $17.00, $21.00 equals 171.00 equals $120.50 plus 16 per cent plus 17.50 equals $36.78 total monthly deduction.

EXAMPLE 2: A major with over 14 years service, married, with three children, with a base pay of $122.00 per month, five x $62.50 equals $312.50 minus $312.50 equals $0.00. The percentage bracket $506.00 to $1,404.00 equals $4.16 plus 34 per cent of ($312.50 minus $506.00) $21.50 equals $5.16 plus $4.16 equals a total of $9.32 monthly deduction.

EXAMPLE 3: An E-5 with over three years service, single, claiming only himself as an exemption with a base pay of $41.50, $41.50 minus $62.50 equal $-21.00, the percentage bracket $17.00 to $276.00 equals $44.63 minus 21 per cent of ($348.00 minus $17.00) $31.90 equals $6.58 plus $44.63 equals a total of $51.20 monthly deductions.

In the event personnel in the above three examples were eligible and filed a new Form W-4 claiming the "Special Withholding Allowance," the monthly tax deductions would change to: Example 1—$26.78; Example 2—$12.14; and Example 3—$39.09.

According to CW-3 Wesley E. Gibson, deputy finance officer, it is not mandatory for personnel to have filed the new Form 4 to be eligible for the "Special Withholding Allowance" when filing their 1972 income tax returns. "Personnel who are eligible and desire the Special Withholding Allowance credit for their current pay should file the new revised Form 4 and have it sent by Morning Report Transmittal (unit priority room) to the Finance and Accounting Office," Gibson said.

The new income tax rates became effective Jan. 18, 1973. The 1973 tax rates continued only up to Jan. 15.

197th AIT enjoys Adventure Training

Advanced Individual Training (AIT) students of H Co., 197th Spt. Bn., 197th Inf. Bde. recently spent four days on an Adventure Training exercise at Lake Seminole Park, Georgia.

As part of the Adventure Training program the soldiers camped in the park's wilderness area and underwent such training as map reading courses and escape and evasion training. The soldiers also had a chance to fish and enjoy the boating offered by the park. In addition, park superintendent, Mr. Emaste C. Johnson, treated the group to a home style fish fry.

On the last day the group was flown out by Chinook helicopter, familiarizing the soldiers with helicopter air lifts.

VOLAR

ment of VOLAR goals and that the promise of continued progress toward these goals is reasonable to expect."

Some of this evidence includes:
—A 13 per cent decrease in the number of first-term enlisted men who say they definitely will leave the Army at the end of their obligation.

—An increase in overall re-enlistments, despite several changes in re-enlistment criteria and quotas during the reporting period.

—An increase in the number of officers requesting extensions of active duty and Regular Army appointments and a decrease in the number of officers requesting release from active duty. One item that makes this particularly significant is the special policy during the year that gave some voluntary induction officers the chance to leave the service early.

—An increase in the number of personnel who believe that Fort Benning is one of the best posts in the Army.

General Tabb inserted one note of caution in his letter accompanying the report. "Having completed 18 months of the VOLAR experiment it is considered appropriate to reemphasize that the most critical times lie ahead," he wrote.

"Any significant change or discontinuation of favorably accepted VOLAR innovations can be expected to prove extremely counterproductive to the program and success achieved will undoubtedly be jeopardized. Further success in attaining the goals of the Modern Volunteer Army depends that the momentum attained thus far be maintained. This is recognized as a major challenge in that reduction in the size of the Army will require increased personal enthusiasm at all levels," the general told his superiors.

Next, discipline and MVA at Fort Benning.

Military Review marks 50th anniversary in February

FORT LEAVENWORTH, Kan.—The Feb. issue of Military Review, the Army's professional journal, marks the magazine's 50th anniversary in two articles in the edition are related to its half century of publication.

One is Brig. Gen. S. L. A. Marshall's article, "Genesis to Revelation," Gen. (ret.) Marshall, U.S. Army Reserve, is the author of the "Instructor's Summary of Military Articles" during the half century. Included are responses of former editors, dating back to 1922 when Maj. Gen. Charles A. Willoughby, US Army, retired, was the first editor whose name appeared on the publication.

Col. Blackburn is on the staff of the Kansas State Historical Society and is a member of the board of the Military Review. His latest article, "Cantonment Leavenworth 1827 to 1860-90, and Bringing Up the Rear," is his personal memoir.

The second article commemorating this 50th anniversary is by Col. Forrest B. Blackburn, US Army Reserve, also a frequent Review contributor. His article, "Military Review, 1922-1972," goes to primary sources to recapitulate the development of "The Instructor's Summary of Military Articles" during the half century. Included are responses of former editors, dating back to 1922 when Maj. Gen. Charles A. Willoughby, US Army, retired, was the first editor whose name appeared on the publication.

Other articles in the Feb. issue include one by Daniel H. Newton, US Army, in his article, "The Development of the Army's Volunteer Draft: An Alternative to the Draft Lottery." Capt. Newton now is in the office of the Special Assistant for the Modern Volunteer Army at headquarters, Department of the Army, in Washington, D.C.

Eighteen-year-olds might be able to choose from three options: enlistment, exemption by paying their share of the cost of eliminating the draft, or remaining subject to the draft. This is the gist of an idea presented by Capt. Morris Janowitz, "The Decline of the Mass Army"; "A Historian Looks at the Army" by Russell F. Weigley; "Where Does the Army Go From Here?" by Arnold M. Kuzmack; "US Tactics in Vietnam" by Lt. Col. Zeno B. Bradford, Jr., US Army; and "The Armed Services Associate Degree Program: A Proposal" by Capt. Abbott A. Brayton, Army National Guard.

Digests of previously published articles from other magazines are interspersed among the original works. The Military Review is published monthly at the US Army Command and General Staff College here.

Drug souvenirs can cause trouble

Sometimes a "fun thing to do" can lead to a lot of fun. Or, a lot of trouble. Like, bringing home an old "pot pipe" that you picked up in Vietnam or at that little shop in Bangkok.

Especially if the pipe is a "wood" model. Whether you used it or not makes no differences to the men and women of the Bureau of Customs who daily go through military baggage and find these little pot pipes with traces of the drug still in the bowl.

When that happens, the owner of the pipe suddenly finds himself the center of a lot of attention. Attention which could keep him around the port of debarkation for several days while the pipe is examined. Questions are asked.

Questions from the agents of the Bureau of Customs: Questions from the military authorities. And, perhaps questions from other government agencies concerned with halting the importation of drugs and drug-related items into the United States.

Seizure reports show that in recent months the small pot pipes are one of the top list of items which are confiscated from military baggage. Some of the pipes which have been seized have heroin residue in the bowl, some have traces of marijuana, and some are just suspicious looking enough to get the owner held up for a couple of hours. Hours he could be spending on his way to his home or to his next duty station.

But the pipes are not the only things showing up in baggage. Customs officials are finding and holding the owner for further investigation — such small things as marijuana seeds, cigarettes with marijuana in the tobacco, Demarol and Darwin, said amphetamine pills in all shapes and sizes.

The suspicious of the men and women dedicated in their fight against drugs of all types. And here again, some souvenir-hungry military men will find himself being asked to "step into the office for a moment, we have a few questions to ask."

There are other things turning up in the baggage of military men. Like firearms. A good rifle is a useful item to have in Vietnam, but when one turns up in bold baggage, it becomes the object of much interest. And the guy who walks up to claim the baggage suddenly finds himself on "center stage."

So, if you're really interested in souvenirs, stick to the perfumes, or the ivory carvings, or some of the other items which are legal. If you do, the only question you'll have to answer is: "Is this your baggage, it's been cleared."

Nix on stereos

The Post Exchange recently announced that it has been ordered by the Army and Air Force Exchange Service to stop selling stereo components.

The change affects the sale of all single speakers, receivers, turntables, and tape decks, including cartridge and reel to reel cassette units. Only self contained units with a price limitation of $30.00 will be authorized for sale.

Drugs and booze

Rap sessions on drugs and alcohol are held in the Main Post Services Club Wednesdays at 1:30 p.m.

The Fort Benning Chapter of Alcoholics Anonymous meets in Bldg. 2214 in the Airborne area Mondays at 7:30 p.m. For more information call 542-2742 or 1114.

130 Boy Scouts try Orienteering

The Ranger Department of the U.S. Army Infantry School and the Fort Benning Orienteering Team played host to approximately 130 Boy Scouts at an orienteering meet held at Todd Field last weekend.

The 130 boys, representing 20 patrols of seven Boy Scouts Troops, spent the weekend at an orienteering clinic and camp-out. The boys made camp on Saturday and spent the afternoon learning the basics of orienteering.

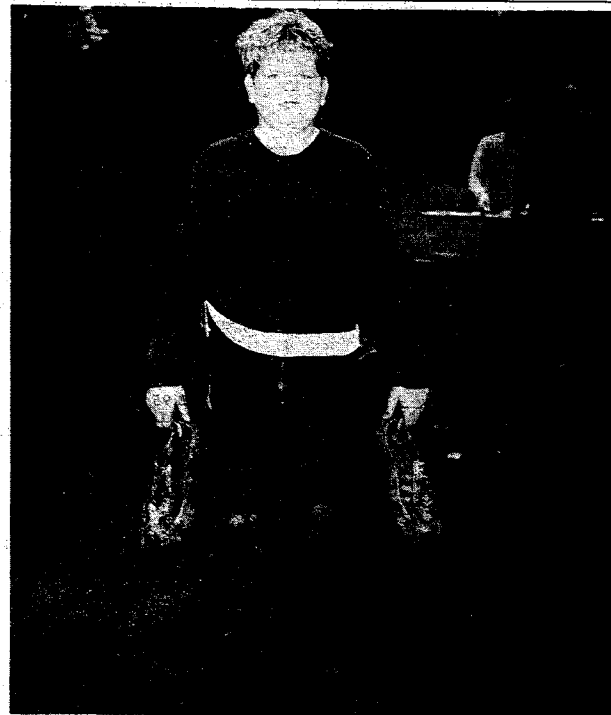

Sunday, the boys broke camp and navigated one of four orienteering courses available at Todd Field.

The object of orienteering is to find marked posts in a defined area with just the use of a map and a compass. Scoring is done on accuracy and speed.

The scouts went out in teams of two boys.

The best team was Wally and Jeff Newcomb of Troop 237, Headquarters Patrol junior staff. The best Patrol was the Panther Patrol of Troop 237, having the best time average.

Billy Millar, a member of Boy Scout Troop 54, finishes the orienteering course with shoes in hand. Billy says, "Both feet stuck and I walked out of 'em."

But skeptics remain

General denies VOLAR is detrimental to discipline

EDITORS NOTE: This is the second in a series of articles regarding the status of the Modern Volunteer Army at Fort Benning.

By WENDELL COCHRAN

The issue of discipline has placed the Modern Volunteer Army experiment as much on trial as any new second lieutenant taking over his first platoon.

But, after more than a year of testing, the program seems more like a first lieutenant. No harm seems to have been done, but there still are a lot of skeptics. (Even the skeptics don't always agree — see next week's Bayonet.)

Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbot — in the Semi-Annual VOLAR Evaluation Report forwarded to higher headquarters last month — outlined the situation in this manner:

"The sum total of information on military discipline at Fort Benning during the period of the VOLAR experiment shows that while discipline has, in fact, not been affected negatively and may have gotten somewhat better, there are large numbers of enlisted personnel who show an unexplainable and possible emotional response regarding deteriorated discipline. No indicators have been isolated to reinforce opinions that discipline has suffered since VOLAR."

As it has been throughout the MVA experiment, the state of discipline at Fort Benning will continue to be monitored.

It is understandable that anyone with a deep concern about the Army's ability to achieve its missions — and most professional soldiers share this concern — would want a highly disciplined force.

General William C. Westmoreland, Army Chief of Staff, anticipated this concern when he announced the Modern Volunteer Army program at the 1972 convention of the Association of the United States Army.

"Nothing is considered sacrosanct except where military order and discipline . . . the soul of the Army that insures success on the battlefield . . . are jeopardized. In this, we cannot and will not yield. We will continue to hold to the principles that have traditionally guaranteed this nation a loyal Army," the Chief of Staff declared.

Post RRGG receives black history journals

BY RAY JONES
"I think it's the greatest."

With these words Ronald Coleman, president of Black Educational Systems of Columbus, described the recent donation of two series of Negro history journals to Fort Benning's Race Relations Coordinating Group.

The volumes were presented compliments of the Association for the Study of Negro Life and History at the request of Mr. Coleman. George Starke, vice president of the United Publishing Corp., came to Fort Benning Jan. 27 to make the presentation.

With him was Miss Monica Gangless, director of public relations for the company. Maj. Tyrone Fletcher and Robert Gayler accepted the valuable collection of books on behalf of the Equal Opportunities Office.

"The race relations group," Coleman commented at the ceremony, "has long had a need for an accurate, authoritative reference source in the black studies area. With these books we've certainly fulfilled that need."

The first series which now belongs to the Army is the 66-volume Journal of Negro History, 1916-1971. The set encompasses more than 26,000 pages of written material, continually updated since the association's founding in 1916, and is footnoted with both primary and secondary sources.

It has a retail market value of $1,000.

The second series is the 12-volume International Library of Negro Life and History, a compendium of factual information on Black history "not generally available in one place" according to Starke.

This set is heavily illustrated; curriculum directed for school use, and geared for easy reading.

Its retail market value is about $200. "These works were primarily written by Black scholars, historians and educators," Starke stressed at the presentation. "They recount authoritatively events, ideas, disappointments, aspirations and successes of Blacks throughout American history."

"They're aimed for students, parents, teachers, librarians and any other interested in history's missing pages."

Both sets are currently recommended by the National Education Association, the Federal Library Commission and many state, county and local boards of education.

Muscouge County, in fact, is presently evaluating the books to determine whether to use them in their own black studies program.

Speaking of the gift, Fletcher said that he is extremely gratified and expressed thanks to Dr. Charles Wesley, executive director of the Association for the Study of Negro Life and History, for his part in securing the donation.

He added that he intends to make the books available for use by all base personnel.

"These books are a great plus for both the fort and the community," Coleman asserted, "while the presentation was completed."

"This city has undergone a tremendous experience here with school desegregation. Increasing interest in Black studies should help in solving that problem and similar problems in the community."

"We always talk about the 'need for' action, but something positive is rarely done. This is something positive."

Since its founding in 1915 by Dr. Carter G. Woodson, The Association for the Study of Negro Life and History has aimed to document those "positive accomplishments and contributions made by Black Americans." The Association maintains that its purpose is to furnish "history's missing pages."

WELL DONE—Outgoing Fort Benning Chief of Staff Col. Jim Keirsey was awarded a plaque by the Columbus Chamber of Commerce upon his retirement from active duty Monday. James Key, executive vice-president of the First National Bank, who was recently appointed president of the Chamber of Commerce, is shown here making the presentation to Col. Keirsey and his wife, Barbara. Col. Keirsey's name was also added to the Military Affairs Committee Honor Roll Plaque at the Chamber of Commerce.

Col. Jim Keirsey retires

Col. Jim D. Keirsey, former Fort Benning Chief of Staff, retired Jan. 31, in a ceremony in Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott's office.

At a later ceremony, Gen. Talbott presented Mrs. Keirsey a Certificate of Appreciation for Patriotic Civilian Service. The Certificate was signed by Gen. Albert O. Connor, commanding general of the Third U.S. Army, Fort McPherson, Ga. Col. Keirsey, who was succeeded as chief of staff by Col. Willard Lettam, former commander of the 197th Infantry Brigade, received the Distinguished Service Medal, and was given an award from the Columbus Chamber of Commerce. Col. Keirsey had been the chief of staff since December, 1968, and has been in the service since September, 1940.

A native of Oklahoma, Col. Keirsey received a direct commission in June, 1941. During World War II, he served with the 49th Division in Europe. In Vietnam, Col. Keirsey served as senior advisor to the 1st Division of the Army of the Republic of Vietnam as a Part of MACV.

The colonel came to Fort Benning from Ft. Belvoir, Va., where he served as commanding officer of the Combat Support Group, Combat Development command. At Fort Benning, Col. Keirsey commanded the Student Brigade from August, 1964, until he became the chief of staff.

Col. Keirsey, whose hometown is Durant, Okla., will live at 3008 Avondale St., Columbus, Ga., with his wife, Barbara, and his four children—Dan, Kent, Kristan and Hank.

The colonel has been previously awarded the Silver Star with two Oak Leaf Clusters, the Legion of Merit with one Oak Leaf Cluster, the Bronze Star Medal with Oak Leaf Cluster and the Air Medal with six Oak Leaf Clusters.

Education goals promise increased enrollment

By RAY JONES
The Army's revised educational goals promise an upsurge in enrollment at local institutions. The new standards were publicized after registration had occurred for the winter terms at Columbus College and Georgia State. Nevertheless, a total of 618 Fort Benning enlisted men, warrant officers and officers are presently enrolled in full or part-time programs at the two schools.

Leonard Ozley, director of education on post, anticipates "an increase on the entire program" next semester when those who need courses or degrees to meet the Army's new goals really start to register en masse.

According to Ozley, 33 of Fort Benning's personnel earned degrees during 1971, including eight baccalaureates and 27 Masters degrees.

However, there are still more than 3,000 officers and enlisted men whose formal educations fall short of announced standards.

According to the revised goals, all officers should have bachelor's degrees and at least 20 per cent, master's degrees. All warrant officers should have associate degrees before completing 15 years' service.

Enlisted men, the goals state should have high school diplomas as soon as possible after entering the service and career non-commissioned officers at least two years of college study before completing 15 years of service.

How do personnel at Fort Benning measure up to such guidelines?

Ozley reports that more than 650 officers are probably now thinking about going back to school. Specifically, 403 have more than two but less than four years of college, and 64 have less than two years.

There are 162 warrant officers who have high school diplomas but less than two years of college.

As for enlisted men, 1,367 in the grades E-1 to E-3 lack high school diplomas, while 789 in the grades E-4 through E-9 have not completed the 12th grade.

Ozley believes that new regulations pertaining to education provide "extremely valuable" opportunities for soldiers of all ages and grades to join in academic programs. The Degree Completion ("Bo-oltrap") Program now permits all enlisted men, warrant officers and officers to take up to 18 months to get associate and bachelor's degrees.

Army Regulation 621.5 outlines the specifics of the program.

All persons interested, Ozley says, should contact their unit personnel officer. Educational counseling is conducted at branch offices and at the main office in Building 35.

Getting in the swing of the annual "49'er Party" sponsored by the Fort Benning Chapter of the Organization of Daughters of the United States Army (DUSA) are: Mrs. William R. Guthrie, DUSA chapter president and chairwoman of this year's party; and Maj. Bernard Muller-Thym, the party's project officer. Proceeds from the event will go towards the construction of a nursery annex at Fort Benning.

AUSA dinner-dance, $3.50

49'er party brings back memories of the old west

By BILL DIEHL
The romantic days of Jesse James, roaring cowpoke saloons and the rush to California for gold "in them that mountains" will be recaptured the night of March 4 at the organization of the Daughters of the United States Army's (DUSA) annual "49'er Party" at the Fort Benning Main Officers Club.

This year, the swinging doors will open at 6 p.m. and the "old West" games, ruse and entertainment will last until 3 a.m. Can-can girls and other beauties will enliven the festivities. Food will be plentiful for those wishing the dinner meal, snacks and midnight breakfast at "Maggie's Chockwagon."

Those attending the gala event are encouraged to come in costumes characteristic of the "old West"

Judges will select the most appropriate, most humorous, best female, best male and best couple costumes.

Mrs. William R. Guthrie, president of the Fort Benning Chapter of DUSA and chairwoman of the 49'er Party, says that the party is a worthwhile benefit which combines business with pleasure. The event annually provides funds for the DUSA project which contributes the most to current needs of all Fort Benning families.

"Tot Town Nursery, soley our responsibility for over 14 years, is our big on-going project," Mrs. Guthrie says. "As our military families at Fort Benning grow, so must we in our singular support of them."

Mrs. Guthrie adds that this year all party proceeds will be contributed toward the establishment of a nursery annex, to be located near Martin Army Hospital.

The paint brushes of enthusiastic decorators, and the lacy garters and show costumes being run up by busy housewife-turned-seamstresses are part of the preparations for a social function which Mrs. Guthrie and her co-workers describe as one whose purpose follows the old tradition "the Army takes care of its own."

Volunteer entertainers are in great demand for the party. Musicians, acrobats, comedians, singers, dancers or variety entertainers who would like to contribute to the evening of rollicking old West entertainment should contact Mrs. Susan Flippin at 762-022 or Mrs. Mary Sappenz at 565-261-3691 as soon as possible.

ASAP scoreboard includes soldiers

ASAP is one of several well-known Army acronyms. It means "as soon as possible." But it's quickly taking on a new meaning, and one which affects the entire community. ASAP in this case stands for "Alcohol Safety Action Project."

ASAP is a 20-member Columbus police team with a mission to get the drunk driver off the road and then follow through with a program to rehabilitate him.

The project is proving successful, with well over 100 drunk driver arrests. Some soldiers are involved.

The drinking driver has always run the risk of getting caught. Statistics show he is the man most likely to cause accidents, which attract policemen and ambulances. With ASAP in action, the risk is even greater. So great, in fact, no betting man would accept the odds.

Drinking drivers have habits that invariably identify them as drinking drivers. They speed . . . or they crawl. They misjudge caution lights . . . and run red lights. They jerk the steering wheel to correct direction, instead of a smooth turn. And there are others.

The ASAP team know these symptoms. These well-trained enforcement officers need not "trap" drivers by staking out drinking spots and resorting to other schemes to catch the drinkers, as it has been rumored. ASAP is a scientific approach to the problem of the drinking driver.

Military personnel can best support this worthwhile community effort by heeding the old adage, "If you drink, don't drive." (A.W.G.)

V.I.V.A. cares

VIVA wants everyone to know

BY RAYMOND JONES

One of the many organizations formed to spur interest in the plight of American prisoners of war and men missing in action, VIVA (Voices in Vital America), has announced the distribution of both bumper stickers and wrist bracelets to attract attention to the cause.

Mrs. Eugene Murdock, Fort Benning coordinator for the POW-MIA Families Committee in Columbus, says she hopes the committee's campaign will encourage others to "write even more letters to our government, foreign governments, Hanoi and our allies."

The bracelets, she asserts, encourage "more personal concern" for the POW-MIA problem. Each comes inscribed with the name of a missing or captured soldier, and those who wear them are encouraged to correspond or become personally acquainted with the soldier's family.

VIVA is a non-profit, non-political national organization.

The local committee, Mrs. Murdock reports, is "doing its best" to generate interest in the bumper sticker-bracelet program so that more Americans will become aware of the tragedy of soldiers forgotten in Southeast Asian prisons.

"We don't exist to advocate any one war policy over another," she says, "only to make people aware of this ongoing dilemma. We just want more people to let him (the President) and others know that they're concerned."

Mrs. Ben Purcell and Mrs. John Hill are leaders of the Columbus committee.

The bracelets and bumper stickers will be available at the Main Post Commissary and the Custer Terrace Commissary today and tomorrow (Feb. 3-4), Mrs. Murdock said.

Are you putting me on?

Feb. SOLDIERS focuses on the Army's drug scene

CAMERON STATION, Va. — Topping the menu of the Feb. issue of SOLDIERS are five feature articles that will bring you up-to-date on the Army's continuing fight against drug abuse. "Battle Plan for Drugs," "Getting Clean," "Rap House," "Don't Get to Wang" and "Lingo of the Drug Scene" constitute provocative reading for every GI.

There's a switch in pitch when the Army's official magazine presents "Consciousness 4," a penetrating look into the world of transcendental meditation, better known as TM.

What is TM? It's been around for at least 6,000 years but to contemporize, experiments at the Harvard Medical School, at Stanford University and at the University of California at Los Angeles confirm that many physiological changes take place during transcendental meditation.

Also, it isn't easy to get Americans to the polls, even though 1972 is an election year. "YOU—the Voter" is aimed right at you, not the other guy. It presents need-to-know information on how you can cast your vote even though you're far away from home. Yes, soldier—your vote does count. And to show you that you count too, catch "Barracks Go Mad" and "Add A Little Love," two features about how Army living is on the upswing.

These and many other features are the main bill of fare but the trimmings are just as tempting. "Editor's Choice" will generate a chuckle. "What's New" and "Soldiers Databank" spotlight what's going on in your Army and give you hard facts you can use. "Write On!" features the best of letters sent to the editor and then a funny thing happens on your way through the magazine — "Unofficially Speaking" laugh-tested cartoons.

That's SOLDIERS — at your unit soon. Read on.

'Patriot' wives active in unit affairs

"Behind every great man," the prophet says, "is a woman."

In the 1st Bn. (Mech), 88th Inf., women play an active role as the wives of soldiers participate in unit activities.

The "family concept" of organization within the 1st Bn. is unique at Fort Benning and is an effort by the battalion to keep the wives informed about their husband's jobs and privileges afforded them as dependents.

"What we want to do," said Lt. Col. Stephen R. Pawlik, commander of the 1st Bn., "is make it possible for the wife to communicate with her husband about his work and to make her feel that she is a 'Patriot' too."

The "Patriots" is the nickname of the unit. Activities for the wives include participation in sports and social activities and the opportunity to take part in a soldiers wives organization.

The organization is an informal group that meets once monthly. It is attended by the wives of the senior and junior enlisted personnel and the wives of company commanders.

The purpose of the club is to inform the wives of the facilities available to them on post and to familiarize them with the battalion.

The club is the result of the efforts of Mrs. Pawlik.

"I was amazed," Mrs. Pawlik said, "to find that some of the junior enlisted wives, especially those who live off post, often are unaware that they are eligible to use post facilities."

Mrs. Pawlik added that she hoped the club would help to create a better understanding of Army life among wives.

The meetings are flexible in content and include anything the women would like to learn about the Army of the 1980s.

At a recent meeting, A. J. Coote, post deputy special services officer, spoke about the special services facilities available for soldiers and their dependents.

The next meeting, to be held Feb. 17, will be a luncheon in one of the battalion's mess halls.

MAH gets accredited

Admiration of facilities and medical care from an examination by the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals has brought certification of Martin Army Hospital.

A hospital needs a yardstick to measure the success of its various activities. To provide a measuring stick, the medicine and hospital professions have developed a nationwide hospital accreditation program. This program sets up carefully designated standards for every area of activity in an average hospital. The philosophy of this program is to look at the hospital from the patients' viewpoint—to safeguard the patient's life and health.

The recommendation for Certification of Martin Army Hospital was made only after an intensive survey on December 1-2, 1971. The survey team consisted of a physician, a nurse, and an administrator. At an exit briefing, the members of the survey team expressed admiration of the facilities available for medical care and the manner in which it was delivered.

Put a little oil in a deep, square pan like one would on a cookie sheet. Cook noodles in boiling water 10 to 15 minutes. Rinse noodles in cold water before making casserole and drain well. Spread some sauce, then add layers of lasagna noodles and ricotta cheese. Cut brick cheese into small squares and spread around. Then add layers of grated cheese, meat sauce, noodles and ricotta cheese and repeat process until beans are used up. However, make sure the sauce ends up on top and be certain to put foil over the concoction. Bake for about one hour at 375 degrees. Remove the foil immediately after removing from the oven, but don't serve for about 20 minutes to make for easier slicing.

Put hamburger, onions and garlic in pan and brown well. Add salt, pepper and parsley when almost brown and put in basil and oregano. Keep browning until dark, then add tomato paste. Put tomato and tomato juice in big square pan. Add meat sauce pan and put on lid. Simmer for 2 1/2 hours. Water might have to be added to the mixture.

Food editor to address wives club

Sara Spano, the food editor of the Columbus Ledger-Enquirer, will be guest speaker at the Officers' Wives Club luncheon.

The event will begin at noon in the main ballroom of the post Officers Club, after which the ladies will go to the Sapper Club for lunch. Mrs. Spano's remarks of Company Captain chicken will be featured at the meal.

The attendance price is $2.75. Reservations may be made through one's unit reservations chairman or by calling Mrs. Gordon Hunt at 245-7349.

The ladies of the Infantry School's Company Operations Dept. will sponsor the luncheon.

TSB wives hold Benning tours

The wives of the Infantry Office Basic Course Class 12-72 met at Olsen Hall, recently to acquaint new members with Fort Benning and Army life.

Earlier ladies of 25th Co., 2nd Bn., The School Brigade (TSB), took a bus tour to familiarize the 40 club members with main post facilities and provisions. At an orientation coffee after the trip, the wives learned of items of interest not covered on the tour. Contributing to the information session were Lt. Col. John L. Jones Jr., commander of the 2nd Bn.; Chap. (Maj.) Franklin C. Frost, Donald W. Bullock of 25th Co.

Sponsors of the orientation coffee were Mrs. John L. Jones Jr., Mrs. John Moscrip, Mrs. Donald Bullock, Mrs. Gary Dodson and Harry Logan.

Sweater hint

If the sleeves of a child's sweater are completely worn, stitch around the sleeve opening and crochet it with matching or contrasting yarn. The finished product will go well with long-sleeves blouses and shirts.

NOO WIVES' CLUB
 Mrs. Orwin C. Talbot held a morning coffee for the NOO Wives' Club of Fort Benning in her home, Jan. 19. Welcoming the ladies were Mrs. Les Talbot who are co-hostesses Mrs. Paul Gorman and Mrs. Willard Latham.

The ladies saw Riverside which is a historical spot in our area, as it was a plantation before and during Civil War days. Gene and Mrs. Talbot have decorated Riverside to reflect this era of American history.

The dining room had a serving table set with imported linen. In the center was an arrangement of white daisies, red tulips and white baby roses. Mrs. Gorman and Mrs. Latham served the ladies.

The ladies of the NOO Wives' Club would like to thank Mrs. Talbot, Mrs. Gorman and Mrs. Latham for the lovely time—with special thanks to Mrs. Talbot for inviting them to her home.

PANHELLENIC
 The Fort Benning Panhellenic Organization held its monthly meeting Jan. 21 at the home of Mrs. Peter Christensen.

The president, Nancy

Schumacher, presided at a brief business meeting. The outcome of the group's Christmas project was discussed. The group helped an area family celebrate Christmas by providing presents and food for a Christmas dinner. Preliminary plans also were made for a couple's dinner to be held in March. A monthly bridge also was discussed.

The next meeting will be held Feb. 18 in the home of Mrs. Les Brownlee. Those wishing to attend are urged to call Mrs. Schumacher at 687-3701 or Lynne Lovelace at 687-4167. Meetings are held the third Friday of each month.

RANGER OFFICERS' WIVES' CLUB
 A breakfast of spring was given by the women of the Benning Ranger Officers' Wives' Club at a luncheon held at Kyrne's Department Store Jan. 20.

A spring fashion preview offered suggestions to freshen up any spring wardrobe. A lively array of spring colors and prints accentuated fashions in sportswear, dresses, coordinatess, after-dinner dresses, formals and maternity wear. Some of the latest designs were represented along with various lengths and exciting fabrics.

Hostesses for the luncheon were Mrs. Gene Cole, Mrs. Donald Hudson, Mrs. John Inselman and Mrs. Walter Ross. Special guests were welcomed by Mrs. Gene Cole.

Special guests were welcomed by Mrs. Gene Cole.

An arrangement of red and white carnations was centered on the refreshment table, and the ladies enjoyed a selection of cream puffs, eclairs, finger sandwiches, cookies and sausage biscuits. Mrs. Victor Costler poured the coffee and Mrs. James R. Childs served lemon tea. Name tags of white satin music notes were used. Table decorations of black cylinders covered with red notes and music bars with a base of red and white paper flowers were made by Mrs. Price Morgan Jr., Boyd and Mrs. William Duncan.

New members were Mrs. Thomas Johnson, Mrs. Wendell Duddy, Mrs. Gene Cole, Mrs. Martin Cooke, Mrs. Jack Petri and Mrs. William Gerhards. Leaving were Mrs. Russell Andrews, Mrs. Dennis Boyd and Mrs. William Duncan.

Members of the Ranger Officers' Wives' Club said good-bye to Mrs. James E. Price at a special coffee in her honor, Dec. 28. The coffee was held in the home of Mrs. Donald Rable and sponsored by the board members of the club.

A silver serving tray was presented to Mrs. Price by club members in appreciation for her help during her stay at Fort Benning.

LEADERSHIP DEPT.
 The sound of music floated from the Normanly Room of the Main Officers' Club, Jan. 18 as 35 ladies of the Leadership Dept. attended their monthly function. Hostesses were the ladies of the Conditioning, Combatives and Drill Committee.

A color theme of black, white and red was used in decorating. An arrange-

Mrs. Victor Costler poured the coffee and Mrs. James R. Childs served lemon tea. Name tags of white satin music notes were used. Table decorations of black cylinders covered with red notes and music bars with a base of red and white paper flowers were made by Mrs. Price Morgan Jr., Boyd and Mrs. William Duncan.

New members were Mrs. Thomas Johnson, Mrs. Wendell Duddy, Mrs. Gene Cole, Mrs. Martin Cooke, Mrs. Jack Petri and Mrs. William Gerhards. Leaving were Mrs. Russell Andrews, Mrs. Dennis Boyd and Mrs. William Duncan.

Members of the Ranger Officers' Wives' Club said good-bye to Mrs. James E. Price at a special coffee in her honor, Dec. 28. The coffee was held in the home of Mrs. Donald Rable and sponsored by the board members of the club.

A silver serving tray was presented to Mrs. Price by club members in appreciation for her help during her stay at Fort Benning.

LEADERSHIP DEPT.
 The sound of music floated from the Normanly Room of the Main Officers' Club, Jan. 18 as 35 ladies of the Leadership Dept. attended their monthly function. Hostesses were the ladies of the Conditioning, Combatives and Drill Committee.

A color theme of black, white and red was used in decorating. An arrange-at the home of Capt. and Mrs. Thomas Jensen.

Mrs. Edward Damon sponsored the monthly coffee of the 38th Aviation Squadron at her home on Jan. 12. Damon served finger sandwiches, coconut cake, assorted cookies, tea and coffee to the ladies.

Mrs. Henry Price, Mrs. Herbert Broadus and Mrs. Clarence Cotton—working wives—were able to attend since it was decided at a previous coffee to hold such events at night.

A business meeting was conducted by Mrs. Dick White, "The Talent Tree" and the ACS Emergency Food Locker were discussed.

The ladies made plans to furnish prepared dishes for the family of SFC Franklin D. Thrift whose wife is recuperating from surgery. The wives extended their wishes for a speedy recovery to Mrs. Thrift.

The officers and wives of the 93rd Aviation Squadron met for Beef 'n' Bubbles at the Supper Club, Jan. 14. After an evening of dinner and dancing, the party went to the home of Capt. and Mrs. Dennis Patterson for a nightcap.

the 197th Aviation Co. met at the home of Mrs. Joseph G. Grier for their monthly coffee. Mrs. Gryder served finger sandwiches, pound cake, nuts, "Trader's" punch and coffee.

Mrs. Joffre Filion conducted the monthly business meeting. The wives organized a hospitality committee with Mrs. Grier as chairman, Mrs. Roy B. Berry and Mrs. Tyrone Chamberlain as members.

The next monthly coffee will be held at the home of Mrs. Clyde Scott, Feb. 15 at 10 a.m.

Aviation Command officers and wives held a hall and farewell at King's Pond Recreation Center, Jan. 22.

Newcomers were greeted to the unit by Col. Robert Grow. The new arrivals were Capt. and Mrs. Robert Cole and Mrs. Gene G. Con, Capt. and Mrs. Bentley Humphrey, Capt. and Mrs. William Ipek, Capt. and Mrs. Jovita McCinnis and Capt. and Mrs. James Robinson.

Baby cups were presented to Capt. and Mrs. Clayton Cole and Capt. and Mrs. George Clark. Twin boys were born to Capt. and Mrs. Charles Pahn, Jan. 22.

Leaving the command are Maj. and Mrs. Jon Silliman, Capt. and Mrs. Bill Bryant, Lt. and Mrs. John Wood, CWO and Mrs. Edgar Carter, CWO and Mrs. Terry Bailey, Capt. and Mrs. Russell Maugans and Capt. and Mrs. Fred Herrick.

Col. Grow presented retirement scrolls to Lt. Col. Darrel Nelson and Lt. Col. Robert Duval-Nelson who will retire in North Carolina, Davell in the Columbus area.

DPT
 Approximately 25 ladies of DPT met at the home of Mrs. Max L. Waldrop for a coffee, Jan. 19. The coffee was for Mrs. Wilhelmina Adams, wife of the Director of Plans and Training, who is leaving.

Arranged around a cante, decorated in yellow and white, were home baked doughnuts, cookies, other finger foods and coffee.

After a short business meeting, Mrs. Roy R. May Jr. presented Mrs. Adams with a crystal and sterling centerpiece as a remembrance of the ladies.

The ladies of the Infantry Board assembled at the home of Mrs. Larry Adams on Austin Loop for a short hour before going to the Villula Tea Garden in Soles, under Jan. 19. After a luncheon, Mrs. Charles Thomas gave the latest notes from the OWC members.

INFANTRY AGENCY
 The ladies of the Infantry Agency had their first coffee of the new year at the Country Club, Jan. 19. The hostesses were Mrs. Bruce D. Davis, Mrs. Eugene R. Darbonne and Mrs. Wade H. Whitley.

The centerpiece at the main table was made of large green, yellow and white paper flowers.

Mrs. Robert Siegrist welcomed Mrs. Robert H. Adams and Mrs. Gary D. Warhoff. Special guests were Mrs. Jean G. Salvan and Miss Lisa Darbonne.

59TH INF. BDE.
 The ladies of the 59th Inf., 197th Inf. Bde., held their monthly coffee, Jan. 13, at the home of Mrs. Myron Davis.

Two guests joined the group for the evening: Mrs. Edwin Smoot, wife of the brigade commander, and Mrs. Michael Brooks, a house guest of Mrs. Cecil Calloway.

Mrs. Stephen Pawlik extended best wishes and a farewell tray to Mrs. Steve Cardoza, who is leaving.

Mrs. Davis provided a dessert buffet for the ladies. The bright paper flowers, which served as name tags, seemed to lighten the rainy evening.

After a short business meeting, Mrs. Kennedy offered to hold the February coffee at her home.

USAMKMTU
 A luncheon in honor of Mrs. Robert Piper was held by the ladies of the USAMKMTU, Jan. 21. Her husband, Col. Piper, commander of the USAMKMTU, will retire from military service in the near future.

Hostess for the luncheon, which took place at the Main Officers' Club, was Mrs. Charles Keaton. Assisting her was Mrs. Chesley K. West.

A floral centerpiece adorned the head table. A selection of tossed salad, beef rouladen, green beans and apple cobbler was served.

The ladies gave Mrs. Piper an engraved silver bread tray and a silver mint dish as expressions of their best wishes and their admiration.

Judo medals hijacked

Three members of the Fort Benning Judo Club captured third place in their respective weight classes at the Orlando Florida Invitational Judo Tournament on Saturday. However, they returned to Fort Benning without their Olympic type, double bronze medals.

The plane carrying the medals to be presented at the Florida Judo Association sponsored tournament was hijacked to Cuba and there were no awards available to be presented to any of the competitors. The third place honors went to Lt. James Tucker in the 100 pound class, 12. Don Whitfield in the 154 pound class and Tom Heculin in the 14 year old lightweight class.

The Fort Benning Judo Club, with over 300 participants and 193 registered belt holders, is one of the largest Judo Clubs in the United States. An interesting and highly competitive schedule is on tap for the coming months. Included are the Georgia State AAU Championships on Feb. 13 in Decatur, Ga., a training clinic at Fort Benning in March to be conducted by members and coaches of the last US Olympic team; the National Championships and Olympic tryouts in late April; the Junior Olympics in May; and the National Training Camp with world champion Anton Geesink as guest instructor and the Junior National Championships in June.

With recent reductions in the strength of the armed forces more emphasis will probably be placed on the combat readiness of the remaining units. One such unit that finds its manpower dwindling and its commitments remaining unchanged is the 56th Engr. Co. (FB), 531st Engr. Gp.

Last week the 56th conducted a field exercise for training and evaluation purposes. The exercise was routine for most of the officers and NCOs but proved informative for the enlisted men, especially for the men who are new to the company since their last exercise. The reason why many of the men must undergo this on the job training is that there is no bridge building school in the Army. The men are trained as combat engineers and then receive further training upon assignment to the 56th.

Capt. John A. Dallen, company commander, noted that there were no major problems encountered during the exercise and that he was satisfied with the performance of his men.

The training period, Jan. 25 - 27, covered the installation of three types of bridges. A light tactical raft was assembled across the Chattahoochee River at Bradley Landing. This type of bridge consists of inflated rubber rafts covered with metal bulk and linked together. A spanning bridge was erected last Wednesday at Fryer Field. This bridge is used to span short distances and is one of the strongest bridges the Army has. During another phase of the exercise a foot bridge was set up across Victory Pond.

197th Pioneer Day slated for Feb. 29

By WILLIAM BALA
For the members of the 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry, 197th Infantry Brigade, the saying "Wagon Ho," is taken literally. The men are presently making last minute preparations for "Pioneer Day," which is scheduled for Feb. 29 in the 1-29th Infantry area. The preparations now in effect deal with the remodeling of a 1909 Army Escort Wagon that the battalion has obtained from the infantry Museum.

The Escort Wagon was borrowed from the Infantry Museum on Jan. 13 on the basis that it is an indefinite loan. It was loaned to the 1-29th Infantry for the purpose of display on "Pioneer Day" and for Unit-of-Choice recruiting.

Capt. Robert G. Meyers, "Pioneer Day" project officer of the 1-29th Infantry, coordinated with Dr. W. Mahan, the director of Westville, Ga., to have the wheels of the Escort Wagon sent to Westville, located two-miles south of Lumpkin, for repair.

The repair job is presently being performed by Mr. George Cobb, the blacksmith at Westville. Cobb was given the task of repairing the 1909 Army Escort Wagon because of his previous experience in restoring antique wagons. Cobb has worked on wagons as old as the 1800s and 1909. The purpose for having a "Pioneer Day" is to have all former and present members of the battalion get together for a reunion. Former members will remember what the 1-29th Infantry was like in the past compared with how it is operated under the Modern Volunteer Army (VOLAR). Present members will learn from former members how the battalion operated before VOLAR was activated.

Post tests 'The Dragon'

Early last week a powerful stranger invaded Fort Benning, nicknamed "The Dragon." It began its long and vigorous training to become airborne qualified.

The dragon is neither man nor beast, but a new light anti-tank weapon which, if it proves successful, might some day replace the 90 mm recoilless rifle.

The Dragon would likely still be a nuisance to those crewmen responsible for "humping it," but its improved accuracy should help compensate for any inaccuracy in transporting it across country.

More properly called the "XM47 Surface Attack Guided Missile System," the Dragon is a portable, wire-guided, antitank missile which has a disposable launcher and reusable tracker unit.

The gunner just pulls the trigger and keeps the crosshair of the sight on the target until impact. The Dragon has a longer effective range than the 90, but its most attractive feature, according to those who developed it, is the unique manner in which the infantryman can attack and destroy a moving target.

The recent airstrip was the first in a series of tests to determine if the Dragon can be used effectively with airborne units. The Army hopes, however, to eventually deploy the weapon with all types of rifle platoons.

Agencies presently evaluating the Dragon are the Combat Developments Command Infantry Agency.

Savings Bonds - a new way to keep up with the Jones'

By RAY JONES
Despite his recent pay raise, Lt. Jones is worried — not only about finances generally, but about the rising cost of higher education.

"When they say college costs are skyrocketing," he says, "you naturally think it's an exaggeration. But I've just finished school and I know, regretfully, that it's true."

Lt. Jones' formal education is taken care of, but because he's planning to marry and raise a family shortly, he's already starting to think about what education may cost 20 years from now and what he's going to do about it.

That's why he's investigating Savings Bonds.

"I was lucky enough to attend a small private liberal arts college and I'd like my children to do likewise. But the way costs have risen, even since I started, that take some real planning."

"It cost about $3,000 a year. Now it's over $4,000. And they're planning another tuition raise next year."

"The unavoidable conclusion," he adds, "is that I've got to start saving."

now, under a regular, enforced plan. It's that simple.

Savings Bonds, Jones contends, are one of the best plans going.

"You never see the money, but it's there years later, when you need it. And I know, when those college bills start coming, I'll need it."

There's one other advantage, Jones pointed out, that a lot of people never think about, interest on Savings Bonds is not subject to certain income taxes.

"Over a long period that makes a difference, too."

According to Sgt. Ronald Neal, Co. C, Headquarters Command, who sells bonding savings programs, interest on 2-year bonds is not subject to any state or local income taxes. And, if bonds are kept in the child's name, no interest need be paid as long as his or her total income remains below $1,500 annually.

"That's just another good reason to start a program now," Neal commented. "If think anyone in Lt. Jones' position would agree."

Lt. Jones agrees.

Sgt. Larry Keenburg is still there's appearance as he has been ordered to Sgt. Larry Keenburg but is in reality stunned in amazement at the beauty of Keenburg's work. Keenburg's specialty, seen here, is making concrete bases which will support hand grenade targets on the new Clothing and Equipment Testing Facility being built by the 43rd Engr. Bn. on Titus Range.

43rd Engr. resume work on test course

By RAY BASSETT
Co. C, 43rd Engr. Bn., 31st Engr. Gp. resumed work on the Clothing and Equipment Testing Facility at Titus Range. The ambitious undertaking will hopefully be completed by late April.

Titus Range is part of the Kumaj Range Complex and will be used to evaluate the performance of soldiers and their equipment while the men regulate a 2,000 foot test course.

Monitoring equipment, similar to the type used in elementary systems in space, will feed data gathered during the test into computers. The computers, housed in vans on the range, will correlate the information and give almost instantaneous results.

All three platoons of Co. C are involved in different phases of construction. Some of the work, such as clearing and leveling the land, was accomplished in September when the 43rd was on an Operational Readiness Training Test. The bulk of the work done this week was making forms, pouring and finishing concrete. These concrete slabs will serve as bases for pressure pads, photo cells and a mobile van housing a computer and other electronic equipment.

1st Lt. Norman L. Hall, construction officer of Co. C, stated that the greatest handicap to completing their task was the recent rains and the possibility of future rains. Several feet of access road had to be regressed and the rain washed ruts filled. Rain was threatening last Friday as the men rushed to finish the concrete work before the range turned into a quagmire.

Another problem faced by the Engineers was the interruptions which delayed their efforts. The first delay was the Christmas holidays, very little work could be done as the battalion was on a half-day work schedule. Preparation for an JG inspection was the second delay.

Other work yet to be completed includes the building of a maintenance shed, sanitary facilities and platforms for power generators.

The final phase of construction will be completed when the testing equipment is relocated on Titus Range from its present location at Ft. Lee, Va.

It was soon clear that General Westmoreland did not believe that going away with some Army conditions — for instance, the pass limitation map above the sign-out book and "dry" barracks — would jeopardize military order and discipline.

First sergeants, company commanders and others in the middle manager level of Army command were shocked. Over the years they had been expected to know the whereabouts of every man in the company every hour of the day. Now, there were no pass limits, no bed checks, no reveille.

A man now could not go around the world, so long as he appeared by work call the next day ready to perform his duties. And he didn't have to ask anyone for permission. Even if the man didn't leave post, he could stay in his room and drink all the beer he wanted.

Using their training and experience as a frame of reference, these middle managers predicted that the Army discipline was about to go up in flames. Fortunately, they have been wrong. The AVOL rate at Fort Benning has dropped since the advent of VOLAR in November, 1970. Barracks beer machines have, in most instances, been colossal flops.

But still, many middle managers, and lower ranking soldiers, too, believe that discipline is getting worse at Fort Benning.

For example, in May, 1971, 12 per cent of the soldiers surveyed believed that VOLAR had caused discipline problems. This figure had climbed to 21 per cent by November.

In November, 36 per cent of the soldiers in grade E-4 and below saw a decline in discipline, twice as many as in May. Non-commissioned officers (E-6 through E-9) shared the convictions of their lower ranking colleagues, though to a lesser extent.

The November survey turned up a decline in the number of officers who said discipline had deteriorated. In May 46 per cent of the officers said that discipline had fallen off, compared to 42 per cent in November.

Those who held the opinion that VOLAR has not harmed discipline have the facts on their side. But these facts have not been able to dissuade the doubters.

And it is apparent that written and spoken assurances will not convince many that discipline problems have decreased with VOLAR.

On April 6, 1971, General Talbot emphatically stated: "Disciplinary standards have not been relaxed. On the contrary, in return for these increased privileges, the soldier is expected to exercise higher, not lower, standards of discipline."

personal discipline and professionalism through higher standards in every aspect of the service experience."

Yet, in two surveys conducted since that letter — with its mandate to officers and noncommissioned officers to enforce high standards of discipline — there were great numbers who said that discipline had deteriorated.

Lt. Col. Henry Doctor, VOLAR project chief, offered one possible explanation.

"Part of the problem is no doubt one of definition. What a sergeant sees as declining discipline may not be interpreted as such by us," he said.

He reminded all those in leadership positions of their "duty to set high behavior standards and see that they are met."

Synopsis

GOING HOME (Rated GP) After 15 years of excitement in the Arabian Desert, the young Prince of Persia returns to a masculine homecoming. As a child his son played by Jim McManis, who saw the old man stab his mother to death in a drunken rage.

CHANDLER (Rated GP) CHANDLER, a tough, unkept private eye with a mind sometimes blurred by booze, is hired to haul the world-weary mistress of a powerful crime tycoon. Chandler — portrayed by Warren Oates — falls in love with the woman he's trailing, then discovers he's been used as a patsy for the syndicate.

WALKABOUT (Rated R) — Two youngsters — a teenage school girl and her little brothers — are stranded in the Australian outback after their father sets fire to their automobile and shoots himself. The children run across an Aborigine boy in a similar spot. Engaged in a ritual of revenge, the native lad is required to travel alone through the wilderness and survive off the land. BY BOB MCILVAINE

Fifty years is a long time by anyone's reckoning, especially when it comes to something as diverse as an infantry post. All the faces, details, events . . . they all seem to fade into a cloudy haze for most.

Fortunately, some do remember, and can relate, with just a few words and a yellowed photograph or two, the mood and atmosphere of the times.

M.Sgt. (ret.) Wallace S. Scott was at Fort Benning in 1922 and he has never forgotten what it was like. His memory is almost bard-like, recalling not just stale facts and dates but, more importantly, the people and values. With a grin and a chuckle, he eloquently depicted those rough-hewn days for the "Bayonet."

THE MOOD

"Back then, your buddies would really take care of you. You had to depend upon each other more then, I suppose. Why, men would even write to their previous officers for help on an assignment or some personal problem. Sure, there were lots of tough times, but there was lots of fun, too."

"BUILDINGS AND GROUNDS"

Paved roads, like permanent buildings, were at a premium here in 1922. When it rained, the post seemed to be awash in a russet ooze. During the dry season when the wind kicked up the dust everyone would say that "Georgia was passing in review."

Building 35 was really the center of things and was nicknamed "The Big House." The present location of Infantry Hall was a sanitary fill.

Olsen Hall, the first quartel built at that time, belonged to the 29th Infantry Division. The 83rd Field Artillery Battalion and most of the other units on post lived beneath canvas. According to Scott, "You had to build your own barracks to get out of the tents."

THE SCHOOL

The infantry school was almost as active then then as it is now. Almost if not more than the nine-month advanced course, a nine-month company officers course, and several National Guard courses.

There were a lot of allied officer students in attendance then, too. They were considered foreign students then, however, since "ally" and "alliance" were terms naively thought to have ended with the Great War of 1918.

TO WALK OR RIDE

Transportation was normally by foot since only the officers could afford cars in those days. Students relied on the "Dinky Railroad" to get to the firing ranges. They generally made war with apprehension, though, since the train could "jump the track according to who was the engineer and how he felt that day."

The horse was still popular in the early '20s although fast becoming more of a status symbol than a mode of conveyance. Horse-shows, riding clubs, foxhunting, and polo were the main sources of entertainment, if not obsessions. At one point Fort Benning had as many as five polo teams.

The officers appeared to regard horses as essential to Army life in 1922 as they were a century before; at least they gave that impression with their dress. Jodhpurs and riding boots were standard fare. They even wore their spurs in the office. Scott laughingly recalled that they did that ". . . to keep their feet on their desks."

Enlisted men assigned to machine gun or howitzer units did not share in the equestrian fancy, however, since K.P. was topped by "S.P." or stable police on the hate chart. Mules also threw in their share to compound the G.I.'s misery.

THE WORKADAY WORLD

There was a five day work week then, too, but Saturday was reserved for maintenance and inspections. Footlockers were a problem for most because of the meticulous rolling, folding and arranging demanded. Scott said he used to earn an easy $5 per man for setting them up, thanks to his "spit 'n' polish" tour in the Philippines.

The duty day began at "0600" with some pretty strenuous exercise that usually convinced everyone to be up just a bit beforehand to "get comfortable." After breakfast, work would begin and end at "1720" with an hour for lunch. Then as now, the food was determined by luck and the dedication of the mess sergeant.

THINGS TO DO

Since there were no bowling alleys, gymnasiums nor craft shops, entertainment required a lot of group effort and initiative. Scott remembers that there was plenty of it in those days. There would compete in field meets that were as much fun for the spectators as they were for the participants.

Names like "Big Bertha" Bertelman and W. W. Cornog highlighted the football scene with a ferocity worthy of those early gridiron days. Baseball was equally popular and included both inter-unit games and roving sandlot or "pick-up" encounters as far afield as Richland, Buena Vista, and LaGrange.

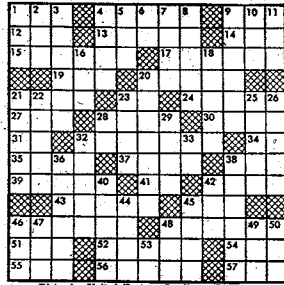

Of course, Fort Benning had its share of the Nickelodeon Era with celluloid appearances from Wallace Beery, Lionel Barrymore and Douglas Fairbanks. They were closely rivaled, though, by post theatrical productions that ran the gamut from Gilbert and Sullivan to Shakespeare. Scott said this gave the "post characters" a chance to perform before a larger audience.

Fort Benning has come a long way since 1922 despite the wear of five tumultuous decades. Yet the spirit alive then appears to be still around. The next fifty is pretty much up to us.

ASSORTED TRIVIA — Nebraska's Bob DeVaney was shunned not only by the nation's leading college coaches but by his own conference as well. Iowa State's ohmy Mayors was named mentor of the year in DeVaney's own loop, the Big Eight. Paul (Bear) Bryant, whose Alabama team was crushed by Nebraska 38-14 in the Orange Bowl clash on New Years Day, edged out DeVaney for the voting on the national level. Fritz Tarkeynton now has the opportunity to silence his critics. In his ten years of pro quarterbacking, the Georgia alumnus has never played on a real contender. Critics have labeled Tarkeynton a loser, saying the scrambling veteran always wins the ones he is supposed to lose and loses the ones he is supposed to win. Given a new lease on life with the Minnesota Vikings, Tarkeynton is playing with a bona-fide winner for the first time. Tarkeynton led the Vikings in 1967 after a clash with coach Norm Van Brocklin. He had been with the Vikes since they were formed in 1961 and suffered miserably during the early years. The Giants traded for the colorful signal caller after their fortunes hit an all time low. Tarkeynton was brought in from the competition for the Jets Joe Namath. Broadway J's and company were siphoning customers from the Giant's box office, and Tarkeynton, it was hoped, would return the Giants as the number one attraction in New York. It worked for a while, but the season was short lived. Giant rosters were again becoming hostile, and before Tarkeynton was peddled to Minnesota, New York had announced that it was moving to New Jersey, possibly in time for the 1973 season. The new NFL rule which allows freshmen to play on varsity teams next year may take on special meaning for the University of Mississippi. School boy superstar Stan Bounds of Valdosta, Ga. will be eligible for full-fledged SEC competition this fall and many observers consider the gifted signal caller likely to take over the Rebel reins right away. Bounds, was acclaimed the best prepster in the land last season, as he quarterbacked Valdosta to the nation's high school championship. He passed for slightly less than 300 yards in leading his team to an undefeated campaign. What makes his statistics even more impressive is the fact that he averaged only 25 minutes playing time a contest. By halftime Valdosta had usually turned the game into a rout and the starters were ready for the final half to keep the score down. He ended one of the biggest recruiting wars in state history when he cast his lot with Ole Miss, in mid-December.

In an exhibition basketball game played at the Kelley Hill Field House on Jan. 18 the 1971 Inf. Bde. team defeated the Columbus College Junior Varsity 89-80. It was a close game all the way with Columbus taking a 41-40 halftime lead. High scorer for the game was "Speedy" Gilstrap of Columbus with 30 points. The Junior varsity team is 3 and 0 in its regular season play and has defeated TSF team twice in the Atlantic Coast Conference. This year, even weak sister Clemson is showing signs of improving, and has already sprung a couple of surprising upsets. North Carolina, Virginia, N.C. State, and Maryland were all ranked in the nation's top twenty at one time this season. And when you include ACC drop out South Carolina, its hard to find a tougher region than the Atlantic Coast.

Look for the National League's Western Division to tighten up this summer. San Diego is the only entry that doesn't figure as a contender. Other choices are the LA Dodgers and Houston Astros. Both clubs figure to be stronger than San Francisco, last year's division champ. The reason? Off season trades. LA acquired Frank Robinson from Baltimore of the American League and Houston pulled off some real stunts. The Astros added Cincinnati's Tommy Helms and Lee May to improve their infield, and then picked up Dave Roberts — one of the best pitchers in the business — from Atlanta to bolster their mound staff. Two months before starting time, the Astros loom as the team to beat in the senior circuit's western division.

The NFL's newest addition is unnamed as yet, but Atlanta fans are free with the suggestions. One thought is the Atlanta area should be dubbed "The Piedmont" as officials scolded of the idea, saying that it would be the same as calling a football team "The Footballers." Another suggested, "Joe Crackers," (As in Georgia Cracker). The front office hasn't commented on that one.

Notes

BY BILL KLOEB

In the past few years fishing tournaments have become more and more popular. Large prizes have lured expert fishermen from far places to compete in tournaments previously reserved to local sportsmen.

These experts, or in some cases professionals, have demonstrated the ability to make a short recreational trip and estimate of strange waters then go out during a tournament and catch the type of fish local fishermen have dreamed of taking from the same lake or reservoir.

This ability has not been completely appreciated by the local folk. They see a lot of large fish pulled up on the docks and the reaction has been bad. The locals say the tournaments are ruining their fishing areas. Some biologists who have studied the problem say this isn't so but there are arguments for either side.

The Bass Anglers Sportsman Society (BASS), a 59,000 member organization with headquarters in Montgomery, Ala., has been one of the prime boosters of the National type fishing tournament. They are of the opinion that the tournaments have not hurt the fishing in impoundments where they have been held but have come up with a program designed to relieve the fears of those who do.

BASS will pioneer a national program named "Don't Kill Your Catch." It will be tried for the first time at the Florida National BASS Tournament to be held on Lake Kissimmee from March 9 through 11.

Fishermen competing in this and other tournaments sponsored by BASS will be required to register their catches alive. The fish will be placed in a specially constructed aerated holding tank to insure a high rate of survival. With maximum cooperation from contestants BASS officials are of the opinion that 95 per cent of all bass caught during a tournament can be returned to the water and survive.

Bass officials have requested contestants to use properly aerated live fish wells in their boats and have appraised major boat builders of the requirement for these type wells in tournament style and bass fishing boats.

New Boat Owners

According to all reports the boat show held at the Municipal Auditorium last week was a big success. There are no doubt quite a few new boat owners in the area and a lot more people who have decided to take the plunge in the near future.

Owning a boat these days involves a lot more than putting up the purchase price. There are Federal and State laws that establish many other requirements. There are registration requirements, safety equipment requirements and laws that regulate the movement of boats from your home or storage area to the water. Then there are the regulations concerning the operation of the boat in the water. The number of pleasure boats is growing at an amazing rate. With the growth in numbers also comes an increase in the regulations. Today these regulations have become more complicated than those issued for the operation of an automobile. It makes boating more complicated but it's necessary for the safety of the people involved in the sport.

There is Help

Fortunately the boat owner is not on his own. There are organizations that specialize in the sport. One organization of this type is the Muscogee County Power Squadron located in the Naval Reserve Training Center on Victory Drive.

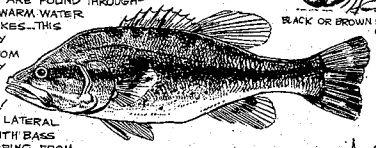

The Squadron offers free classes of boat owners and prospective boat owners. Their classes include all the information a boater needs to develop good boating practices and safety.

Power Squadrons are found all over the United States and local membership is universally recognized. Courses are highly organized and presented by competent instructors using the latest in training methods and equipment. The organization also offers the opportunity for boat owners to compare opinions and experience with other owners.

The Post Special Services Recreation Section is organizing one of these clubs for Fort Benning personnel. This is a chance for boat owners to start out with a new organization. There will be an organization meeting of the new club in Classroom No. 1, Infantry Hall at 8

2 Benning Barracudas named Georgia All-stars

Two swimmers on the Fort Benning Barracuda Swim Team were named as members of the Georgia Amateur Athletic Association All-Star swim team at the Georgia 100 Swim Meet held at Forrest Park, Ga.

John Misiek, swimming in the 11 to 12 year group for boys and Linda Borden in the 11 to 12 year age group for girls were nominated to this select group because of accomplishments in Georgia AAU sanctioned swim meets during 1971.

During the 100 meets in which 35 swimming teams from five states in South East participated Paul Borden of the Barracudas placed first in the Medley yard breaststroke for boys 13- to 14 years old and established a new meet time record.

During the meet the Barracudas 13 to 14 years old boys relay team placed first in the Medley Race and second in the Free Medley race. Jonathan Warren, David Messer, James Kelley and Randy Messer swam on the relay team. Paul Borden, Jonathan Warren, James Kelley and Randy Messer were members of the free relay team.

In individual competition John Misiek placed third in the freestyle and backstroke, fifth in the breaststroke events and sixth in the individual medley race.

Randy Messer was fourth and Jonathan Warren was sixth in the freestyle event for boys 13 to 14 years of age.

Feb. marks recruiting for BSA

Recruitment for the Boy Scouts of America is presently in the beginning stages at Fort Benning. Feb. marks the month for getting new members for the boy scouts.

During the month members at Fort Benning will be participating in the many activities that are taking place for the drive to recruit new members for the boy scouts.

One of the activities that is taking place during the month is the Pinewood Derby. This derby is a demonstration of the participation that boys in the scouts have. Fun, excitement, and adventure are just a few of the characteristics that the boy scouts find in participation in the Pinewood Derby.

General Ralph Haines visits Fort Benning

Gen. Ralph E. Haines Jr., commanding general of the Continental Army Command, Ft. Monroe, Va., visited Fort Benning Tuesday through Thursday of this week.

Wednesday the general addressed the Infantry Officers Advanced Course classes in the Marshall Auditorium of the Staff Hall. Following the presentation, an official luncheon was held in the Normandy Lounge of the Fort Benning Officers Club.

Gen. Haines graduated from West Point in 1935 with a second lieutenant's commission in the cavalry. He then served in various tour assignments in Texas and the Philippines before taking part in the Second World War. During the war he served in the Mediterranean Theater as Assistant Chief of Staff, Operations, II Corps, participating in operations which resulted in the capture of Rome and the breaching of the German Gothic Line above Florence.

Since the war, Gen. Haines has graduated from the U. S. Army Command and General Staff College of the U. S. Army War College and the U. S. Army Management School.

Past assignments include: Commander, 1st Armored Division; Commanding General, III Corps and Fort Hood; Vice Chief of Staff, U. S. Army; and Commander in Chief, U. S. Army, Pacific.

The general's decorations include the Distinguished Service Medal with Oak Leaf Cluster, the Legion of Merit with second Oak Leaf Cluster, the Bronze Star Medal, the Army Commendation Medal and the Combat Infantryman Badge.

His foreign decorations include the Czechoslovak Medal for Merit, First Class; the Knight Officer, Crown of Italy, and the Italian Cross for War Merit and Medal of the War of Liberation.

As Commanding General of CONARC, a post he assumed in Nov. 1970, Gen. Haines is also Commander in Chief of Army Forces, U. S. Strike Command and U. S. Army Forces, Atlantic.

NCO's effort receives youngsters' thanks

Youngsters in the Haygood Recreation Club at Columbus are still thanking Ssgt. Willie C. Ingram for his help in renewing their activities program.

Ingram, domestic action NCO for the 1st Bn., 29th Inf., 197th Inf. Bde., began his efforts in June of 1971, aided by many of the unit's soldiers. During the summer, troops from the 1st of the 29th, working with members of the Haygood area community, cleaned dilapidated parks, repaired playground equipment and showed the children how to use the renovated recreation areas and equipment.

Since then, Ingram has organized youths in the community into leagues for basketball, football, etc. In the process, he helped to reinstate a senior youth team which had been prevented from league participation due to a rule violation. One member of the team said that, "without Ingram's help we would still be wishing to play in the league."

Ingram now coaches an industrial league team and acts as adviser for the younger age groups. He feels that the community "has received a morale boost with the addition of an organized program such as this basketball league."

Ingram and Ssgt. Richard Hines, also of the 1st Bn., 29th Inf., received honors and congratulations from Columbus Mayor J. R. Allen at a recent public meeting at city hall for aiding in the city's recreation program.

Human Resource office created

BY ROY BASSETT
For the first time ever in the Army, a new concept in staff offices is being implemented at the 891st Engr. Gp. with the establishment of a Human Resources Office.

The new Human Resources Office, 56, was organized to bring together existing staff functions directly related to the individual soldier and his well-being. Explained officer Capt. Robert Fullerton, The office consists of Race Relations, Drug Abuse, VOLAR, Public Information Office.

Fullerton said the idea for the consolidation of the office's under one roof came from Col. Robert J. Stanley, 591st Engr. Gp. commander. Fullerton added that it's the first time ever that an office of this type has ever been put into use.

Fullerton said there has always been a need for a Human Resources Office, but added that recently more emphasis has been placed on Drug Abuse, Race Relations and VOLAR, therefore necessitating the formation of a consolidated office.

One of the most sensitive subjects handled by the new 56 is Race Relations. Two seminars are conducted in each unit of the 891st every quarter. Fullerton said, at which time soldiers and their supervisors are given the chance to discuss their feelings and opinions about each unit's particular racial situation.

In most cases, Fullerton said, alleged racial problems turn out to be little more than misunderstandings when aired and discussed at the seminars.

Referring to his role as VOLAR officer, Fullerton said his task was to see that there is no backsliding by commanders and that soldiers understand their responsibilities under the VOLAR program. He explained that the VOLAR plan has been implemented with success within the 891st and has been accepted by soldiers and commanders alike. Occasionally, however, he said, complaints and questions do arise, so the staff uses the Benning Plan as their guideline in answering queries.

The Public Information Office is related to the other three 56 functions. Fullerton said, in that success of VOLAR, Drug Abuse and Race Relations programs rely heavily on soldiers awareness that the programs exist. "These programs will not be utilized to their fullest potential," he concluded, "without the support and participation of the soldiers in this unit."

Cute tip

Our weekly Playboy bunny is not one to turn "thumbs down" on having parties. But she warns all her soldier-admins not to combine drink with driving. Columbus authorities are cracking down on intoxicated motorists in their ASAP program — and stiff penalties can be expected.

Post mess stewards compete for award

Fort Benning soldiers eating in Army dining facilities will notice a little extra effort being put into the preparation of those gastronomic treats, and the two judged best in the nation will compete against each other during the week of Feb. 11-17, 1972.

Units based in Vietnam and Eighth U.S. Army will be in a different category, "Best Combat Area Dining Facility Category."

Each installation in Third U.S. Army will select and nominate its best large and small unit dining facility. Starting with Ft. Campbell, Ky. in Jan. 25, Maj. Curtis S. Smith, Food Service Officer, and Miss Donald P. Robinson, Food Supervisor, Headquarters Third U.S. Army, will visit each installation and select the best.

Selection will be based on the quality of food served, efficiency of food preparation and a service and other technical considerations.

The Aviation Command spotlight is turned today upon an often overlooked area, the 187th Pathfinder Detachment. The unit's mission is to provide day and night navigational assistance and airfield guidance and control for Army aircraft. They are additionally responsible for all parachute supply drops in support of USAF.

As their name implies, the Pathfinders spend much of their time in the field. An operation that starts at 8 a.m., for a group of IOBC students, may start as much as 24 hours earlier for the Pathfinder team in support.

In Vietnam, it was a great feeling to come into a strange landing zone and hear the voice of a Pathfinder telling you it was all clear. Although, there are no enemy ambushes to worry about, there are natural hazards to cope with. The pathfinders solve many problems by guiding aircraft into new areas, making them aware of hazards during descent, and providing ground guidance to shutdown areas.

The pathfinders really earn their money during the hours of darkness when aviators must rely primarily upon the guidance given by the pathfinders on the ground. This unit is not located in Vietnam.

WANT more rank and better duties while you are in the service... or a job you can be proud of when you get discharged? Want a man-sized paycheck, too? Then, the opportunity of a lifetime awaits you in the dynamic world of electronics.

Every year there is a growing need for electronic specialists... so, if you really know your electronics, the choice of jobs is wide open in this fascinating field.

What Can I Do?

Getting your training isn't as difficult as you might think. Many people feel they need a college education to specialize in electronics. But they're wrong.

In fact, a high school diploma isn't even needed!

You can train right now on off-duty hours with the special courses of the Cleveland Institute of Electronics. With CIE, you study when you want... where you want. Our step-by-step lessons make learning easier, even for men who once had trouble studying.

Since 1934, CIE has specialized in home study courses in electronics. We're "No. 1" in our field and currently have some 50,000 active students.

One sergeant received a $9,558 bonus because of his increased electronic skills. Let CIE show you how you can quality for choice assignments and higher rank if you decide to stay in... or a more rewarding civilian life upon discharge.

FCC License or Money Back

Whatever your goal, an FCC License can help you reach it faster. It opens the door to exciting jobs that pay up to $12,000 a year or more.

And CIE's home study courses can help you prepare for your License exam. They're so successful that we back our license-preparation courses with this famous Warranty: you get your FCC License upon completion of your course or we refund your tuition in full!

Legal assistance chief explains new tax laws

BY BILL DIEHL

In the past, many Fort Benning taxpayers had to compensate for inadequate monthly deductions in their income tax by decreasing the number of personal exemptions they showed on their form W-4 (Employee's Withholding Exemption Certificate). By claiming fewer exemptions, they had enough tax taken out of their monthly checks to pay their federal income tax for the year.

But effective Jan. 16, new federal tax tables permit proportionately higher tax deductions than in past years. With the implementation of the new rates, it should no longer be necessary for a taxpayer to claim fewer exemptions. Many may find it practical to file new W-4s claiming their normal number of personal exemptions.

Each single person, and each married person whose spouse is not also employed is entitled to one "special withholding allowance." This allowance may not be claimed by either husband or wife when both are employed or by any employee who has two or more concurrent jobs. Capt. Steven Lenke, chief of legal assistance at Fort Benning, advises all Fort Benning taxpayers to file the new W-4 form as soon as possible. "Until they do, they won't be eligible for the special withholding exemption," Lenke said.

Lenke stressed that, when filling out the new W-4, military personnel must insert their LEGAL ADDRESS in the box which calls for "Home address." "We find that there is a good deal of confusion about what constitutes a legal address," Lenke said. "A legal address requires physical presence in a state, plus the permanent intention to remain in or return to that state when absent from the state," he explained.

Lenke added that a soldier who wants to change his legal residence must meet three requirements: he must be physically present in the state to which he wishes to change his residence; he must intend to remain in or return to that state when he's absent; and he must intend to give up his old legal residence.

"It's important to insert your legal residence rather than your present home address, because at the end of the year, the W-4 form (Statement of Earnings and Taxes Extracted) will be sent to the address on the W-4 form," Lenke said.

A source of confusion among military personnel who file 12 deductions when filing their federal tax return is clothing deductions. According to Mrs. Samuel E. Johnson, taxpayer service representative at the Internal Revenue Service in Columbus, "Officers and enlisted men can claim only their purchases of fatigue uniforms as a tax deduction.

"Both officers and enlisted men can itemize their cleaning and laundry bills," Mrs. Johnson said, "but they need proof of spending — receipts for all the bills they wish to claim as deductions."

Bob Hope's visit to help raise funds for museum

BY BILL DIEHL

Comedian Bob Hope is coming to Fort Benning and Columbus March 16 to help raise funds for the construction of a new National Infantry Museum at Fort Benning.

Col. (ret.) W. J. Higgins Jr., executive director of the Infantry Museum Association, Inc., said that although the details of the comedian's visit are still being developed, tentative plans include daytime appearances on post and an evening benefit performance at the Columbus Municipal Auditorium.

Higgins said that Hope's coming visit is the result of a joint invitation by Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott, post commander; Mrs. Richard B. Stoltz, president of the Fort Benning Officers Wives Club; and J. W. Woodruff Jr., Columbus civic and business leader and president of the Infantry Museum Association. The three requested Hope's support of the ongoing national campaign to raise $6 million for the new museum.

Campaigning for the project was initiated at Fort Benning last spring. During a 10-week fund drive, Fort Benning personnel contributed over $80,000 — exceeding the post campaign goal by nearly 25 per cent.

Higgins said he would like to express his "long overdue thanks" to all the Fort Benning contributors and campaign workers for their participation in the post fund drive. "The remarkable success of the Fort Benning campaign bodes well for success of the national campaign," he added.

Campaigners will begin soliciting funds for the new Infantry Museum this month in 14 major cities. Among the members of the National Advisory Council of the National Infantry Museum who are lending their support to the campaign are Gen. Matthew B. Ridgeway, Sen. Strom Thurmond and DeWitt Wallace, editor of Readers Digest.

Higgins said that Hope's coming visit to Fort Benning and Columbus will "serve as a bellringer for the national campaign." He added that Hope, who recently returned from his 21st overseas Christmas trip on behalf of U.S. servicemen, has been a "friend of the soldier all his life."

"Bob Hope is coming to the home of the infantry in behalf of a project dedicated to the memorialization of the American Infantryman. By acknowledging the project right at the start of our national fund-raising campaign, he'll be giving the entire effort a tremendous boost," Higgins said.

Post blue-collar workers receive 5.5 per cent raise

By BILL DIEHL, Federal Government employees in Labor, Trade and Craft occupations at Fort Benning will receive a pay raise retroactive to Nov. 14, 1971. The new wage averaging 5.5 per cent, for the post's civilian blue-collar workers was issued Feb. 3 by the Department of Defense (DOD) Wage Fixing Authority.

According to Lt. Col. William G. Axum, post finance and accounting officer, "the earliest the employees can expect to receive the raise in their checks will be Feb. 17. Finance is waiting to receive the new wage scales from DOD."

The pay rates in the new schedule are based on a survey of rates paid by private industry in the Columbus, Ga. area. Each year, the Coordinated Federal Wage System (CFWS) makes a local survey of about 30 area industries to find out how much the industrial laborers, tradesmen and craftsmen are making. CFWS then submits its findings to DOD's Wage Fixing Authority, which uses the findings to determine the new pay scale for the Columbus wage area employees.

The current raise, based on the CFWS survey completed last Aug. would normally have gone into effect Oct. 17, but was held up by the wage price freeze until Nov. 14.

Among the regular workers affected, pay increases range from 11 to 25 cents per hour — the average raise being 17.4 cents. For example, general laborers, WG2, will go from $2.01 to $2.12 per hour; motor vehicle operators, WG6, from $2.39 to $2.73; and brick masons, WG10 from $3.54 to $3.73.

Among leaders, the average hourly increase will be 18 cents, and among supervisors, 38 cents. As a result of the raise, the bi-weekly civilian payroll on post will increase by $33,500, with an annual increase of about $271,000. The retroactive pay over seven pay periods amounts to $24,500.

Of the Fort Benning's nearly 4,900 civilian employees, 2,416 will receive the retroactive pay raise. The general services employees, whose pay is based on national rather than local survey, received a 5.5 per cent raise effective Jan. 9 this year.

Henry B. Gentry, chairman of the local wage survey committee, said the pay schedules for blue-collar civilian employees fluctuate greatly from one geographical wage area to the next. "Federal Government employees working at Fort Benning may be getting as much as 80 to 90 cents an hour less than those working at other Government employments with the same jobs in Atlanta," he said. "The reason is that the industrial workers in Atlanta wage area are getting that much more than the industrial workers here," he explained.

In addition to Fort Benning, the principal activities in the Columbus wage area to which the new pay schedule applies are: Maxwell Air Force Base, with 707 employees; Craig Air Force Base, 280 employees; Gunter Air Force Base, 183 employees; National Guard Technicians, 181 employees; and Veterans Administration, 327 employees.

Lt. Col. Pawlik goes to Naval War College

Lt. Col. Stephen R. Pawlik, commander of the 1st Battalion (Mechanized), 80th Infantry (Paratrooper), 19th Infantry Brigade, has been selected to attend the Naval War College at Newport, R.I., in June.

Once a year five colonels from the Army and five captains from the Navy (equivalent to a colonel in the Army) are selected as exchange students. Members from the Army will attend the Naval War College and members from the Navy will attend the Army War College at Carlisle Barracks, Pa.

Pawlik entered the service in 1952 as an enlisted man and later attended Officer Candidate School. He was graduated from St. Benedict's College in Atchison, Kan., in 1957 with a bachelor of arts degree in political science.

The Naval War College operates on an international plane. It employs political relations with international knowledge in the military. The main function of the College is to educate the students on military tactics and theories of war.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

by Bill King

A wide old Gaelic rule for a properly brisk cup of tea: Always bring the pot to the kettle, not the kettle to the pot.

When preparing stew or casserole for the freezer, shorten cooking time slightly to allow for additional cooking when the dish is reheated.

Many people confuse Mexican cooking with Spanish. If you visit Spain, remember that if you order a tortilla, you'll get what we know as an omelet.

Whipped cream mixed with a bit of prepared horseradish is delicious for dipping for green peas 'n' ham soup.

For extra nutrition, when a recipe calls for a breadcrumb coating, use whole wheat instead. Especially tasty with chicken.

Early outs head for post transfer point

If you're stationed at Fort Benning and looking forward to an "early out," it's a certainty that you'll pass through the "Transfer Point" immediately before release.

You should plan to spend some time there — delays are common and virtually unavoidable — but in any event you should be out by the end of the day.

According to M.Sgt. Albert Griffin Jr., NCOIC at the transfer point, departing soldiers are usually out between 8 and 10 p.m., provided they report reasonably early in the morning.

"That's just how long it takes," he explains, "we complete the final processing cycle. We have to coordinate all records and pay on that final separation date."

Fortunately, Griffin reports, the first of the year rush is mostly over now — a rush which kept the staff of the Transfer Point office up all day and all night many nights. He is pretty sure that "the volume will not be as great in the future."

"In Jan. we packed seven months of releases into one," he commented. "Now people are still coming in, but it's cooled off quite a bit."

He has nothing but praise for his co-workers: "These people have unquestionably done a great job."

The reasons for the overflow crowd at the Transfer Point was a recent Department of the Army decision to release more men than originally planned during Fiscal Year 1972.

Griffin estimated that about 150 men a day passed through his office during the heaviest days of the January rush. About 1650 or more passed through altogether in January.

Most all were from Fort Benning, though a few were returning from overseas assignments.

49'er Party needs 500 volunteers

Five-hundred volunteers are needed to run booths at the annual "49'er Party," to be held Saturday night, March 4 at the Main Officers Club.

Maj. Edward Macejka, chairman of the games committee, said "Anybody looking for a really fun night should call Capt. Bill Duval at 545-2252 or 688-4532 to volunteer. The booths can be manned either by individuals or couples, so any couples who want to volunteer are urged to do."

Proceeds from the traditional event, sponsored by the Daughters of the United States Army, will go toward the construction of a Tot Town Nursery annex.

Macejka said that all who wish to participate should call Capt. Duval by Monday, Feb. 14, with their preferences for the kind of activity they want to run.

General Talbott awards DSM to Col. Keirsey

Col. Jim D. Keirsey, Fort Benning's retiring chief of staff, was presented the Distinguished Service Medal by Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott, Fort Benning commander, in a ceremony honoring his retirement held Jan. 31.

Gen. Talbott presented the award to Col. Keirsey, explaining that "... few officers below the rank of general attain this award ..."

The Distinguished Service Medal (DSM) was created in 1918. This decoration is awarded to persons who, while serving in any capacity with the U.S. Army distinguished themselves by exceptionally meritorious service to the government in a duty of great responsibility. It may be awarded for combat or non-combat service.

The Meritorious Service Medal, an intermediate award between the Army Commendation Medal and the DSM, was created by Executive Order in January, 1969, and is awarded to members of the Armed Forces of the U.S. who have distinguished themselves by outstanding meritorious achievement or service. This award is the one that will be awarded more often, making the DSM a more prestigious honor.

Well done

Marine drill team to be here Feb. 29

Two units of the U.S. Marine Corps from the Marine Barracks, Washington, D. C., will perform precision drill maneuvers at Fort Benning, Feb. 29, 1972.

The United States Marine Drum and Bugle Corps and the U.S. Marine Corps Silent Drill Team will perform at Kelly Hill at 9:30 a.m. and York Field at 12:00.

The task of perpetuating the image of the razor-sharp "parade ground" Marine, in a variety of public appearances, falls to the United States Marine Corps Silent Drill Team.

The team, comprised of 24 Marines from the Marine Barracks Guard Company, maintains the year-round capability of performing a ten-minute precision drill entirely without verbal command. A unique feature of this drill is the rifle "inspections" in which the inspector standing six feet from the line of armed troops, executes a series of spins and tosses of the ten-pound M-1 rifle.

Always in great demand, both groups have performed at a variety of civil affairs, historical celebrations, sports events, reunions and other local, national and international events and ceremonies.

During the summer months, the Marine Drum and Bugle Corps and the Silent Drill Team regularly perform Friday evening at 9 p.m. in the Evening Parade held at the Washington Marine Barracks, and Tuesday evenings at 7:30 p.m. in a memorial ceremony conducted at the Marine Corps War Memorial (Two Jima Monument) in Arlington, Virginia.

Competitive running need to spur interest

There's a whole lot of running going on at Fort Benning.

The foot traffic on the highways, by-ways and paths has steadily increased over the past couple of years. The runners and joggers are run out there for many and varied reasons: "I run to keep my weight down," "I want to live to be a hundred," or "I hate to, but I know it's good for me."

Since the "Run For Your Life" program has started, over 11,000 military persons and dependents have signed on. All this was done voluntarily. And they've run 440,550 miles.

Fort Benning has led the Army in giving increased personal responsibility to the individual soldier in a less restrictive VOLAR environment. "Run For Your Life" is a prime example of a program enabling each participant to work at his own pace toward a personal goal. The goal may be to run a mile for a mile run, getting down to a certain weight, or the satisfaction of staying in peak shape.

It is encouraging to see efforts throughout all echelons of the Infantry to re-emphasize the importance of physical fitness. It is hoped that all individuals will make a periodic assessment of their personal fitness and then strike out on a suitable program.

Recognition is an important part of the post-wide "Run For Your Life" program. Certificates and patches are issued to those who pass particular mileage plateaus; but perhaps some fresh ideas for recognition of joggers are due. How about some long distance runs for competition and due recognition for the winners?

The winner of a running contest need not be the fastest. After all, speed is not the desired objective of all joggers. So how about a "joggers' rally"? The fastest can does not win in a sports car rally. Participants must pace themselves past specific checkpoints at certain times. It might prove difficult for joggers to try the same, since they do not have a built-in speedometer or odometer—but it would be challenging.

Orienteering is already established as a competitive approach and this sport has had a tremendous resurgence during the past few years. Its popularity is still gaining, particularly at Fort Benning.

The Boston Marathon has long been a mecca for joggers. Two years ago, Ron Hill of England ran the race (26.2 miles and 385 yards) in the current record time of two hours, 10 minutes, 30 seconds. Behind the winner there were also 582 who finished within 3 hours, the required time to earn a much coveted certificate of accomplishment. If you can jog a mile in eight minutes, and keep the same pace for 25 more miles, then you can gain this recognition yourself.

With all the running that is going on around here there would probably be good logistical interest in a military marathon or joggers' rally sponsored by any unit, club, or department. (PFC).

Hair Today... Gone Tomorrow?

WASHINGTON (APPS)—It's still butch wax and a stiff brush versus hair-spray and a teasing comb in many hair barracks duels these days, despite the new liberal haircut policies of most services.

Young hair enthusiasts often counter criticism with a display of historical paintings showing hard-fighting, pony-tailed Revolutionary War soldiers behind a long-tressed general on a white horse.

The critics may quibble that those long-haired soldiers were only wearing wigs. But for the most part they'd be wrong. They looked like wigs with all that white powder on them, but for the man in the ranks in those days it was probably his own hair, smoothed in grease and flour.

By 1799 it had become such a problem with the Army sense of neatness that Major General Alexander Hamilton set down standards for uniform and appearance that were designed to clean up the hair and shorten the pony tail.

Two years later Brigadier General James Wilkinson called for short hair and ruled that no whiskers were to grow below the bottom of the ear. It was resisted but the ranks conformed.

"Neat Trimmed" eventually made a comeback in 1853, but the military eventually arrived at white sidefalls after some trench troubles with lice and the like during World War I.

The loss of long greasy locks caused a mild stir among the duck-tailed crowd of the Korean War era, but regulations allowed a mini-tail and fancy pompadour. Most service policies seemed more concerned with skin showing around the ear, tapered neck and sideburn length than with the hairdo's height (assuming one could still wear headgear properly).

Ivy leaguers fit nicely into the military mold and it wasn't until the age of Aquarius that the military returned to spitting hairs.

Today, most of the hairy problems are solved with a little compromise from both sides. On the Marine Corps side today will be fighting with sideburns. There are wigs in all colors and styles these days for every head and some of the other body parts as well. A naked chest can even be remedied.

A reverse problem arose before the new regulations were applied to the reserve and national guard troops. Some of the long hairs there bought short-haired wigs to hide under during their weekend duty tours.

The taste will be revised and the young long hairs of today will be fighting with the peeped pates of new society that finds them "old fashioned establishment ragheads!"

The individual gets things done

The next time you go to a meeting organized to get something done or to right a real or imagined wrong listen to the so called "jerk" who gets up near the end of the meeting and begins to harangue the group on what it should do and how to do it.

He may be right. That doesn't keep him from being obnoxious and disliked.

He has sat through numerous speeches which have done everything but come to grips with the problem and offered workable solutions. He feels that he would rather have the group angry with him for speaking than go home and gripe to himself. After all he had listened to the other speakers who really didn't say anything constructive.

Too many decent, pleasant, popular people go along with the tide because they don't want to be abrasive and have others feel they are trying to cause trouble. These citizens sit back and reap the benefits obtained by the "jerk" who is willing to buck the tide and bring up some unpleasant truths. They really don't want to get involved if it means upsetting the apple cart or a risk of incurring the displeasure of others.

Most of us would be ashamed and embarrassed to get up at a meeting and tell people that they are talking circles around the problem. It takes a particularly hard shelled personality to oppose the general trend. After all we are pussy-footing too. We wait until we get home and gripe to ourselves. This may produce heartburn or ulcers but not much else.

This attitude of the majority isn't restrict-

Post drug team answers life and death questions

BY ROB MCILVAINE

Poor Man's Hash, Texas Tens, West Coast Turn Arounds, and LBJ's are descriptive expressions of the drug idiom. But what are they and what can they do? The answers could mean the difference between prevention and a bad abuse, life and death.

The Drug Education Team (DET) of the Post-Post Marshall's Office has been working the drug scene to delineate that difference for the last four years. Cheating death of easy prey is DET's mission.

The team conceals its preventive message primarily via a roving class that reaches 50 cities, 25 units, unit classrooms, and high school auditoriums. A display board with confiscated drugs and Truist-made implements, a slide projector, and a graphic film depicting the bitter side of drug abuse are the only teaching aids involved. Candor, integrity, and conviction drive home the presentation itself. The combination is provocative.

DET consists of two articulate, multifaceted M. I. Ray Jaklitsch and Larry Hendrickson, who run the hour and a half long class as well as the drug education Team in Building 215. To keep attuned to the latest developments in spanning prevention and abuse on the drug scene they attend conferences and seminars on national and local level. Such exposure enhances their communication function by keeping their message timely and pertinent.

Officially, that communication function is defined as the education of the people in the legal aspects of drugs, in the identification of types of drugs being abused, and in the punitive and rehabilitation methods which are currently being used to curb the number of abusers.

In practice, DET strives to dispel "the mystery, intrigue, the whole aura of the drug culture."

Cutting through that mystery and intrigue before a contemporary audience is not easy. If you want more of a response than nodding heads and smiles. Eschewing the "shaking flag of authority" approach as naive and unintentionally offensive, DET tailors its approach to the individual.

Why do you think they call it dope?

More rap than pap, Ray Jaklitsch, the other half of the Drug Education Team, holds his own before a Drug Abuse Class recently presented to a Basic Leadership students at Sand Hill. The hour and a half instruction spells out the difference between the various types of drugs and their disastrous characteristics without sounding like Big Brother. (Pfc. by Gumble.)

audience. Yet whether that audience happens to be a group of young enlisted men going through the Basic Leadership Course at Sand Hill or a high school class off-post, it is credited with maturity and intelligence. Jaklitsch and Hendrickson both believe, and rightly so, that such an approach is vital to credibility.

Nor do they allow the technique of their medium to obscure message integrity. Throughout their presentation, the subject, drug abuse, radiates its implications and dangers with total, almost total clarity.

Staggering facts like "one pure ounce of LSD can send 300,000 people on an eight to 10 hour trip" are casually mentioned to stimulate and maintain audience attention. Another fact dropped with almost subliminal subtlety "... now medically proven that marijuana can trigger a pre-lusid trip." You don't have to be an expert to grasp the frightening significance of that.

After the lecture that isn't a lecture and just before the film, a question and answer period ensues that pretty well gauges the class's success. The exchange is real and challenging; the questions of the audience validate the sophistication and intelligence initially credited the audience. Spectators are neatly parried thanks to the hand-drawn sketches are justified a bit, too, thanks to the inexorable truth "that drug abuse kills."

A comeback employed by Jaklitsch to combat the inevitable shotgun query, "Would you ever try hard drugs?", that typified the team's cool was, "You don't have to have syphilis to know you don't want it."

If you want to find out more about the Drug Education Team and drug abuse, dial 345-716-G or D-0-0-2. You'll get a pre-recorded message that describes some particular drugs and their characteristics.

Good news for all publicity chairmen and others interested in getting their news in the paper. We've managed to make your job easier. Now you have to put only ONE typed copy of your article in the Penline boxes at the commissaries or leave it in my mailbox at 205-B Madden Ave. Don't give up if you can't find the yellow box in its usual place at the Main commissary; it's outside on the shelf. And our new deadline is Wednesday evening. We hope these changes will make it easier and more convenient for you to get news to us.

OWC NEWS
The commanders' wives' meeting will be held Monday at 1 p.m. in the Corregidor Room of the Main Officers Club.

The OWC "Sew It Yourself" fashion show in May is not that far away. If you want to model your own outfit, get busy and sew for the show.

NCO WIVES CLUB
The ladies of the NCO Wives' Club meet monthly after lunch for luncheons, teas, coffees and breakfasts. They work with crafts, participate in bowling and in many worthwhile projects.

Club members attended a luncheon, Jan. 15, at the Black Angus Restaurant at which they had a chance to see the "fruits" of their efforts.

The Rev. Ray White, who is associated with the Listening Eye School in Columbus, was guest speaker. Also attending the luncheon were some of the children from the school, enabling the ladies to see how the youngsters have progressed as a result of the support from clubs such as the NCO wives. The club has a special interest in this project and members have been contributing monthly toward support of the school. Hostesses for the buffet style luncheon included Mrs. Thomas Beach, Mrs. Oscar Rubio and Mrs. William Doe. Mrs. Frank Carpenter was a guest.

New members are reminded that the business meeting is always held on the second Wednesday of each month; the luncheon, the third Wednesday; and the breakfast, the fourth Wednesday. New members may receive a schedule of all monthly functions by contacting Mrs. Walter Cunningham at 681-5453 or Mrs. Eugene Sides at 645-8888.

LADIES' GOLF ASSOCIATION
"County Club Living" will be the theme of a special luncheon sponsored by the Ladies' Golf Association.

Mrs. Malcolm Baer, president of the LGA, has announced plans for the luncheon which will be held at the Supper Club, Feb. 23. All ladies who are members of the OWC, or a guest of a member, may attend this Luncheon-Fashion Show, which will begin with sherry at 11:30 a.m. The luncheon will be held at noon, followed by a variety of new spring wear.

The luncheon costs $17.50. Join the ladies for lunch and select your new spring wardrobe.

For reservations and cancellations please contact one of the following ladies:

Mrs. Jerry Wilson at 545-3928, Mrs. Frederick Keller at 687-1600, Mrs. Reid Kennedy at 545-3280 or Mrs. Emmit Simmons at 683-4084.

The deadline for reservations or cancellations is next Friday. Please telephone as early as possible as a large attendance is expected.

BBOB

Hearts and flowers set the mood for the Feb. 2 coffee of the Combat Support Group wives. The event was held in the Banning Room of the Main Officers' Club and was sponsored by Mrs. Hinton V. Crockett, Mrs. George E. Fiedl and Mrs. Thomas P. Ross.

Mrs. Richard S. Fye conducted a brief business and announcement period, during which Mrs. Richard L. Arnold was welcomed to the group. Mrs. Arnold is not only new to this group but to the Army, as she wed Capt. Arnold, Jan. 27.

Mrs. Fye presented farewell charms to Mrs. Paul J. Raisig and Mrs. Henry F. Gaipin.

A daughter was born to Capt. and Mrs. Anthony V. Nida, and to Capt. and Mrs. Franklin A. Bachrach.

The ladies were reminded of the Ladies Golf Association luncheon-fashion show Feb. 23; the DUSA 49'er party, March 4; and the BBOB luncheon, March 9.

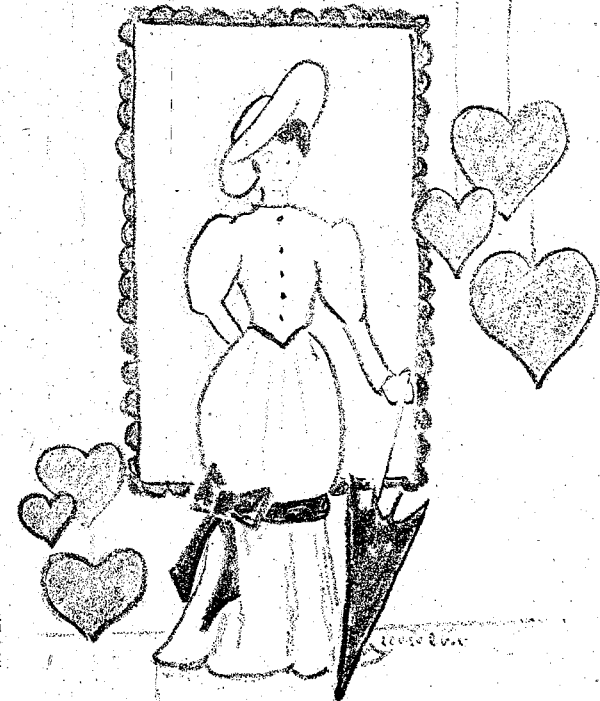

Guests attending the coffee were Mrs. Lawrence L. Mowery, Mrs. James F. Henriot and Mrs. Guy S. Meloy.

TSB

The January Inneborn of IOAC 272 was held in the Supper Club, Jan. 23. The ladies of the second platoon sponsored the event.

Hats designed by the ladies decorated the tables, carrying out the theme "Hats Brought Time." Dresses and hats dating from 1896 to 1967, were modeled. Costumes were original period in style and hats were copies of those displayed in the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York. They were provided by the Sperry and Hutchinson Green Stamp Co.

Special guests were Mrs. Billy C. Phillips and Mrs. Bruce W. Drigley.

Happy Valentine's Day

MRS. SIMMONS

At 3rd Army level

Former resident is 'wife of year'

Linda Moore Simmons, who served as publicity chairman of Fort Benning's NCO Wives Club for six months before moving with her husband to Ft. Jackson, S.C., has been named the 3rd Army's "Military Wife of the Year."

Mrs. Simmons, wife of SSgt. Paul T. Simmons of the 138th Military Police Co. at Ft. Jackson received the announcement by saying, "I was shocked. I never expected to go this far and am very honored that the committee at 3rd Army selected me."

Simmons and the couple's three daughters — Lori, 11; Janie, 9; and Paula, 3 — attended the ceremony Jan. 28 at which Maj. Gen. William S. Coleman, Fort Jackson commander, presented Mrs. Simmons a certificate signed by Lt. Gen. Albert O. Connor, 3rd U.S. Army commander, in recognition of her honor.

Mrs. Simmons was chosen from a field of 11 nominees and will represent the 3rd Army region in competition at CONARC level. She was named Fort Jackson's "Military Wife of the Year" from among 14 wives in December.

Mrs. Simmons is heavily involved in numerous post and community activities, among them the National Kiltie Foundation, the Army's "Project 100,000," Army Community Services and English Improvement Courses for foreign nationals, which she started on post.

While at Benning, Mrs. Simmons taught citizenship classes for Army Community Service, in addition to her work as NCO wives publicity chairman from August 1970 to February 1971.

Mrs. John Costello may not look like a recruiting sergeant, but she is interested in enlisting volunteers — for the Red Cross. Mrs. Costello is secretary of volunteers at the Fort Benning ARC field office, and all ladies who want to experience the satisfaction of helping others are urged to call her at 544-2122.

ACS seeking volunteers

Like the Army itself, the post's Army Community Service is looking for volunteers. The group, which is almost entirely dependent on volunteer workers, presently has openings for 40 persons. An ACS orientation-training session will be held Saturday between 9 a.m. and noon at the Infantry Center Welcome Center, Bldg. 83. Those interested in learning more about the organization may call Mrs. Charles Merrill at 545-1223 or 1833. ACS has eight committees, each performing a different function. Those on the Administrative Committee serve as receptionists and do light clerical work. Those on the Social Service Committee conduct interviews and follow up on cases dealing with social work.

Post pupils sink teeth into dental contest

Fort Benning elementary school pupils artfully "recited" their knowledge of dental hygiene in their annual dental health poster contest this week. The event was in recognition of National Children's Dental Health Week, which ends today. Participating in the competition were youngsters from grades three through eight. Pupils who made the best poster in each grade were awarded an electric tooth brush.

Winners were as follows: Tracy Brownlee, third grade, Dexter School; Chuckie Burch, fourth grade, Melrose School; Wendy Kurlimer, fifth grade, Wilson School; Brett Walls, sixth grade, Edward A. White School; Billy Cargio, seventh grade, Faith School. Carolyn Hanson, eighth grade, Faith School. Each post school also cited three additional pupils from each grade.

Dental health is a no-nonsense activity at Fort Benning elementary schools. Information on the subject is disseminated to pupils year-round. In addition, post dental personnel visit classrooms biannually for dental demonstrations and to supervise the self-application of a special preventive toothpaste.

Many classrooms receive follow-up dental education from teachers, and schools are supplied with both books on dentistry and a set of dental educational transparencies. These training aids, as well as the preventive paste, are provided by the Community Activities Association. Listed by school, here are the other pupils recognized in the poster contest:

Melrose School: Robby Flinn, Jeff Lovell, Brenda James, Robin Berman, Janice Lee Peppers, Mike Hawkins, Saritchee Yarrano and Grand School: Roy Grabe, Steven Felt, James C. Jones, James J. Jones, Janice Johnson, Janet Hall, et. David Powell, Donna Bowler.

IOBC's help Pow's, MIA's

By STEVE MAIZ
In order to create more concern for the men who are prisoners of war (POW) or Missing in Action (MIA), Capt. Jay A. Aliff, Tactical Officer for the 24th Co. 2nd Battalion, The School Brigade (TSB), has launched the newly arrived Infantry Officer Basic Course (IOBC) Class 14 into a POW-MIA awareness program.

For the first time at Fort Benning the organization, Citizens Assistance Program for POW-MIA Families (a non-profit, non-military association), was invited by Aliff to an indoctrinating station (IOBC) to solicit the help and concern of indoctrinating officers.

The POW-MIA Citizens Program operates to generate a genuine human concern for those men captured or missing in Southeast Asia. So far, an estimated 1700 men are being held while only 599 men have been released. The program aims to not only keep people aware of a tragic situation but to actually help. By signing letters addressed to North Vietnamese officials, the Assistance Program hopes to bring the pressure of public opinion to persuade the North Vietnamese and National Liberation Front to release the names of their prisoners and, ultimately, the men themselves.

A bracelet which bears the name of a soldier POW or MIA is presented to Aliff by Mrs. Eugene Mardock, wife of the Provost Marshal, Col. Eugene J. Mardock, and a local volunteer for the Citizens Assistance Program for POW-MIA Families. These bracelets serve as a visible token of the wearer's concern for the POW-MIA problem.

197th Artillery participates in battalion size FTX

BY RAY CHESNUT

The 2nd Battalion, 10th Field Artillery completed its first battalion size Field Training Exercise (FTX) in over five years, Jan. 30.

Differing from previous FTX's, the operation included the entire battalion and afforded the men the opportunity to carry out tactical situations typical of an artillery battalion in the field.

Previously, the 2-10th's Artillery mission of supporting the Infantry School had called for the battalion to conduct various operations on the company level that were designed to fit the needs of the school.

The battalion was alerted Jan. 17 to be prepared to go to the field, and early the 18th they began to move out. After a thorough equipment check, the firing units conducted a daylight reconnaissance of the area of operation and occupied the firing positions.

The tactical situation was new to many of the soldiers as nearly 200 of the men were newly arrived "unit of choice enlistees" including 60 advanced individual trainees.

While in the firing positions, various fire missions were conducted, many of which are generally not used in support of the Infantry school.

During the hours of darkness Jan. 19 the battalion completed a night occupation of a position which included a blackout road march, the firing of several defensive concentrations and other type fire missions.

Careless hunters warned

Hunters who fail to take proper safety precautions may find themselves under fire but not from other hunters.

Capt. Cassius Sherwood, safety officer for the U.S. Army Infantry School, last week reported that two hunters were recently spotted in the impact area of one of the post's active artillery ranges. They were spotted, in fact, by a forward observer who was scanning the area just prior to approving a practice fire mission.

The order was postponed, as artillerymen are not permitted to move out of their firing positions until the target area is clear of all personnel.

Such near accidents are not common, but they have happened more than once at Fort Benning. Fred Young, assistant post safety officer, says he is aware of four specific instances of trouble with sportsmen on the artillery ranges.

The best safety precaution, according to Sherwood, is for hunters and fishermen to check the post's range maps before planning any outdoor expeditions. Maps are located at the Provost Marshal Office (Bldg. 215) the Rod and Gun Club (Bldg. 4650) or the Range Control Office (Bldg. 2622).

Local Cub Scouts sponsor big Pow Wow

The largest Cub Scout Pow Wow Day ever conducted by the Chattahoochee Council of the Boy Scouts of America was held Jan. 22 at the Infantry Hall.

Some 250 adults attended the event, which was scheduled for all men and women registered in Cub Scouting, prospective adult leaders, and Den Chiefs.

The Pow Wow was organized by members of the 831st Engr. Gp., and was hosted by the Fort Benning District, Chattahoochee Council of BSA.

Lt. Col. Garrett V. Sidler, executive officer of the 831st, said he believed the event was the largest ever held by the Council. He said the event's success was due to a large part to the participation by adult scout leaders from the Fort Benning District.

The Pow Wow accomplished its primary goal which was to instruct scout-oriented adults in general scouting procedures. Specific subjects discussed included pack administration, crafts, games, puppets and the management of Webelos Dens. This instruction aroused the interest of prospective scout leaders.

Dick Smith and "masterpiece."

Make-up artist faces job of molding head

It took make-up artist Dick Smith three months of preparation to "age" Dustin Hoffman 121 years for a scene in "Little Big Man" now showing at post theaters.

But although it occupies only a few minutes of screen time, Smith considers the job his "masterpiece" of the 25 years he has worked as a make-up artist and consultant.

"I have to work with the delicacy of a surgeon," Smith said of the ways he is able to mold and delineate faces to achieve changes in looks. In Hoffman's case, Smith made certain every wrinkle was anatomically accurate, that every piece of skin was a close duplicate of the way it looks on an old man's face.

Unlike rubbery Halloween masks, Smith's make-up is designed to move with the face, to enable the actor to express emotions and to function in his characteristic.

"I did a lot of research on how to make someone look 121 years old," Smith said. "I have an enormous reference file of portraits," Smith said. "It has to simulate as closely as possible the natural look of an actor."

No amateur in his profession, Smith won an Emmy Award for his make-up of Hal Holbrook in the TV special, "Mark Twain Tonight."

Synopsis

Friday
Little Big Man (Rated GP) — Dustin Hoffman appears alternatively young, then aged, as he plays various periods in the life of a 121-year old crusty vagabond of the West, who claims to be the sole survivor of Custer's Last Stand.

Saturday
The Next Victim (Rated R) — When Julie Ward and her career diplomat husband arrive in Vienna, she recognizes the car of one of her old lovers parked outside the hotel. A sex fiend who attacks young girls and kills them with a razor is loose in the city, and Julie suspects her former flame of the crimes. Her fears worsen when her girlfriend is brutally murdered — and she is almost impaled by an underlayer spear gun.

Sunday
Song of Norway (Rated G) — Set among the mountains and fjords of Scandinavia and starring an international cast, this picture spotlights the life and music of composer Edward Grieg.

Set for 'Blithe Spirit' almost ready

BY EDITH SIMMONS
Before the curtain rises on the Dramatizers' production of "Blithe Spirit" more than 20 people will have contributed to the design, direction, costumes, sound and publicity for the performance.

With less than three weeks until opening, the heads of the various crews say that their areas are nearly ready.

Coordinating all activities is director Dennis Seely. He is responsible not only for training the actors but also for insuring that all supporting tasks are completed in time for the dress rehearsal. Seely earned his theatre degree from La Verne College in California, where he directed a production of "Blithe Spirit" and designed sets for several other shows.

Beau Stark is assistant director and chief of the set construction crew. Stark has appeared in two off-Broadway shows, several films and numerous TV commercials. He founded the President of Monterey Players and participated in more than a dozen Special Services shows. He

Spectacles 'open eyes' for actor

Actor Dustin Hoffman is hardly unassuming in real life, but in his latest picture, "Straw Dogs"—he plays a withdrawn, bespectacled American mathematician.

And he says that the minimalist, steel spectacles required by the role make him feel like a different man.

"These glasses make me feel quiet and studious," Hoffman said. "Maybe I should wear them more often."

"Straw Dogs" is the story of a young couple who move to an isolated Cornish village in search of an idyllic life — only to have their hopes startlingly and violently disrupted.

also is the director of the theatre workshops held Saturday mornings in the Playhouse.

Diane Stark and Cecile Faldon designed and made the period costumes for "Blithe Spirit." Mrs. Stark was an art major in college while Mrs. Faldon is an experienced seamstress and decorator.

As for set designs, Jeff Grandel has recreated the stately parlor of an English country house. Grandel was a technical theatre major at Central Michigan University and won several awards for his designs. With the Dramatizers, he has directed the "Wizard of Oz" and "Carnival."

In charge of house arrangements, seating and tickets is Lloyd Bradley. "Blithe Spirit" was the first Dramatizers production for this member of Infantry Chorus.

If you're interested in the theatre, drop by the Evening Playhouse as plenty of help still is needed. The topic of this Saturday 9 p.m. workshop is scene interpretation.

'Cactus Flower' a study of repartee

CACTUS FLOWER starring Walter Matthau, Ingrid Bergman and Goldie Hawn. This is the lighthearted story of a Playboy dentist, played by Matthau; his secretary, Miss Bergman; and his mistress, Goldie Hawn. The dentist, not wanting to marry his girlfriend, at least not right away—

pretends to have a wife and three children. And when he breaks their "anniversary" date, the heart-broken Miss Hawn decides to commit suicide. She is saved, however, by her neighbor, a budding young writer of plays. Stunned, Matthau decides to marry the girl, but he first has to "divoce" his non-existent spouse, whom Miss Hawn is demanding to meet. The solution to his problem is the straightforward, prudish secretary-assistant, who agrees reluctantly to play the sacred role. And the dentist even provides her with a temporary "boyfriend" in Jack Weston, who portrays a loud-mouthed, unemployed actor.

Servicemen to perform in Family Pops Concert

When the Columbus Symphony Orchestra presents its Family Pops Concert in Marshall Auditorium at 8 p.m., Feb. 22, Fort Benning will be well represented on stage. Two members of the orchestra are Army personnel and five others are wives of soldiers.

In addition to its regular subscription series. The next subscription concert will be in March and will feature violinist Andrew Galois. For information or tickets call 325-5805 or write to Columbus Symphony Guild, P. O. Box 5381, Columbus, Ga. 31906.

The film is a study of the art of repartee, with all the brilliant people babbling brightly. Everyone tries to be a comedian, and no one wants to play the straight man. At one point Matthau, seeing Miss Hawn on a ladder in the record about where she works, says "Do you always stand up there like that?" to which she replies, "No one around here ever looks. They're all classical."

Miss Bergman's portrayal of the reluctant secretary hopelessly in love with her boss equals her many superior performances in the past. Most of her laughs are brought about through sight gags such as her-

Post soldier relaxes by horsing around

BY RAY CHESNUT

"People get bored in the Army," the speaker at a Central Training Command (CTC) seminar said, "because they do not look for different things to do."

PFC Philip J. Dick, a member of the Honor Guard from the 1st Bn., 24th Inf., 197th Inf. Bde., took these words to heart. "I have been in the Army six months," said PFC Dick, "and my father military life is nothing new to me, but it was starting to get a little boring."

Remembering the speaker's words, the private continues, "one day as I was riding on the bus to Main Post we passed the post stables and riding club. I thought to myself, 'that is different.' So I signaled to get off the bus, went in and rented a horse."

BSA month features Pinewood Derby

BY RAY BASSET

Now that February, Scouting Month, is upon us efforts are being made to increase participation in scouting events during the coming months.

One of these efforts is a Cub Scout training campaign conducted by Capt. Ken Donhue of the 931st Engr. Gp. Donhue is presently conducting sample "Pinewood Derbys" at local elementary schools with the help of Sgt. Donald L. Ostrom and Sgt. Theophilus Jones, both of the 197th Inf. Bde.

The "Pinewood Derby" is an elimination type soap box derby on a miniature scale. The scouts buy model racers in Kitford and build their own personal racers. They race their racers in Feb. and begin den level competition in March. The final Chattahoochee Council elimination races are held in April.

After observing the boys reactions to these sample derbys, Donhue believes that this approach is very effective in promoting scouting. It has become necessary to install a rope barrier to keep the enthusiastic boys away from the tracks, said Donhue. Donhue stated that the original idea to attend local schools in an attempt to increase scouting support came from Lt. Col. Garrett V. Sidler, executive officer of the 931st and long time scout leader. Donhue has had prior experience in organizing and leading. He was a company commander in the Republic of Vietnam and is presently commanding Cub Scout Pack Number 217.

Jackson, S.C., 29207.

The horse, a 7 year old mixed breed named Granite is trained for barrel jumping and racing. "He can jump," said Dick, "but I cannot—not yet anyway."

Father, son make assignment here a 'family affair'

By Rob McIvaine

Thanks to the power of coincidence, the Allies of 2nd Evacuation Hospital suggest that the Army can be "A Family Affair."

Sgt. Eugene R. Allan, a medical technician, and his son, Sgt. Danny E. Allan, another medical technician, are both members of 2nd Evacuation hospital's First Platoon.

Father Allan, a 22-year-old career man, draws the line at one point. As Alan's platoon sergeant, familial coincidence ends with the duty roster.

Needless to say, a lot of ribbing greeted Sgt. Allan when his son was assigned to the unit. To the refrain of "Allan brought his own replacement with him," with "I've been with the 2nd Evac so long that I just couldn't bear to go without leaving a name-sake behind to remind them all of me."

Upon his retirement in Feb. Sgt. Allan will make his home in Columbus. He hopes to enter the field of hospital administration.

replaced with him." with "I've been with the 2nd Evac so long that I just couldn't bear to go without leaving a name-sake behind to remind them all of me."

Upon his retirement in Feb. Sgt. Allan will make his home in Columbus. He hopes to enter the field of hospital administration.

Sgt. Allan has been in the Army since July, 1970; in time, he hopes to enter the new Physicians Training Program.

When asked if he had noticed any significant changes since he entered the service, the young Allan replied that he had. "Getting rid of the little Army."

Sgt. Allan has three brothers who are also in the Army. Two share his choice of the Medical Corps.

139th, Co. C capture 931st championship

The 139th and Co. C will represent the 931st in the USAF company level basketball play-offs to be held at Briant Wells Field House on Feb. 14.

The 139th M.P. Co. swept the 931st Engr. Gp. company level basketball league with an undefeated record of ten wins.

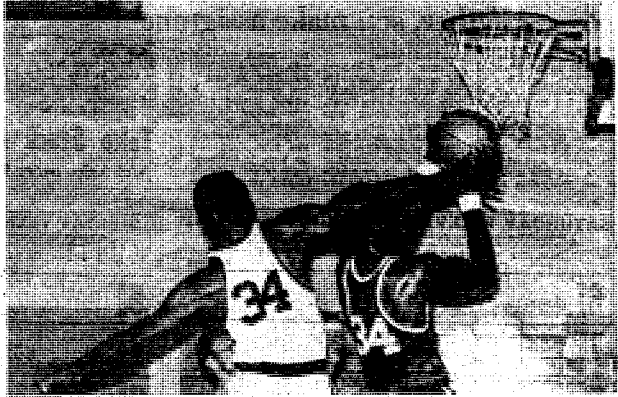

Co. C, 43rd Engr. Bn. held on to second place with a win by forfeiture from Co. B, 43rd Engr. Bn. Co. C's record is nine wins against two losses.

The 598th Lt. Main finished in third place with a record of eight and three.

The 608th Ord. Co. and Co. D, 43rd Engr. Bn. tied for fourth with a six and two record. There was a three way tie for fifth place between HHC, 381st Co. A and Co. C 56th S and S Bn. The 568th Engr. Co. has six wins with a four and five record. The 1st Reg. Det. has seventh place with a record of four wins against seven losses. The 52nd Trans. Co. has a record of one win and seven losses while holding eighth place. Co. B, 43rd has the ninth place spot with a record of one win and ten losses.

WAC cagers breeze by Ft. McPherson twice

FT. MCPHERSON, Ga. — Kathy Rigole shattered a post scoring record for WACs as Fort Benning's female cagers breezed by outclassed Ft. McPherson, 30-11 and 23-16, here last weekend.

The dual victories extended the team's win streak to three and established Benning as a serious contender for the 3rd Army women's WAC basketball playoffs at Ft. McClellan, Ala., later this month.

Riding on the momentum of their comeback triumph of the previous week, the Benning girls easily dominated both contests—although they got off to a slow start in each.

McPherson stayed close for most of the opening half of the first game, but with two minutes left Cathy Chisholm snapped the impasse with a four point scoring spree. Miss Chisholm helped to make still another basket to give the visitors a 14-5 edge as the teams headed for the locker room.

In the second half, Benning ran amok on the court. Miss Rigole led the outburst with a sizzling 10 point performance. Her total for the game—15 points—represented half of the team's "production" for the day and set a new post scoring mark for WACs.

Others contributing to the winning cause were Miss Chisholm with eight points, Pat Cagle with four and Daisy Jackson with three. Miss Jackson also controlled the boards for nine rebounds, while Miss Chisholm and Miss Rigole snared six each. Miss Cagle and Pinkie Houser both had four steals, and Miss Chisholm three.

Doughboys divide cage series with Campbell

The Fort Benning Doughboy team split a two game series with the Ft. Campbell Eagles in 3rd Army Western Division League play last weekend.

The Doughboys playing on the Campbell court won the first game 79 to 68 but dropped the second game 78 to 68. The split series left the two teams in a tie for third place in the Western League with records of 9 wins 7 losses.

High scorers for the Doughboys in the first game played on Friday were Dale Overman with 26 points, Elbert Tarrant with 10 points and James Sturdevant with 14 points. In the second game played on Saturday Overman and Tarrants scored 13 points, Sturdevant 12 points and Mike Forte was high scorer for the team with 16 points.

Tom Smith scored 26, Harry Winkler 22 and Lonnie Taylor 8 points for the Eagles in the first game while Larry Carter scored 24 points, Winkler 23 and John Bode 17 points during the Campbell win on Saturday.

There were place changes in Western Division as a result of the team standings in the games played last weekend. The fight for first and second place lightened up and now four teams in the division have chances for first or second place.

The league leading Ft. McClellan team dropped two games to Redstone Arsenal to narrow their lead. They now have a record of 11 wins and 5 losses. Redstone is all but mathematically out of the running with 8 wins and 8 losses.

Ft. Rucker took two games from Ft. McPherson to bring their record to 9 wins 6 losses and just a few percentage points ahead of Fort Benning and Ft. Campbell. Rucker has an additional advantage in that they have two previously postponed games to make up with the last place McPherson Team winners of only one game in League Play.

The Doughboys will have a chance to get a tie for first place when the Fort McClellan team comes to Benning for a two game series at Briant Wells Field House this weekend. The first game is scheduled to start at 7:32 p.m. tonight and the second game will begin at 2 p.m. tomorrow.

Miss Jackson set the tone for the second contest when she flicked the opening tip-off to teammate Chisholm, who sunk it for the game's first score. After trading baskets for 10 minutes, Benning once again broke the event open with a six point explosion. A follow-up of a missed shot by Miss Rigole sparked the drive, and when Paulette Brown picked off an errant McPherson pass, Miss Houser converted it into another Benning score. Miss Cagle added two foul shots with 40 seconds remaining to give the squad an 11-5 halftime lead.

McPherson battled to stay alive in the second period as the home WACs rallied to within three. Despite foul trouble, Benning's offense quickly flamed the door—to the delight of a small but enthusiastic band of followers, led by bugle-blowing Carl Eby, who accompanied the team to Atlanta.

Miss Jackson tipped in a missed free throw, Miss Brown sunk a five foot set shot from the corner and Miss Cagle landed a 13 foot jumper. With five minutes left Benning enjoyed an 11 point bulge and coasted the rest of the contest.

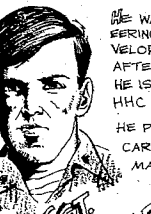

Benning scoring was evenly spread. Miss Cagle led with seven points, Miss Rigole and Miss Chisholm netted five and Miss Jackson, Miss Houser and Miss Brown scored two. Miss Jackson once again captured rebound honors with eight, edging Miss Chisholm who snagged seven. Miss Rigole and Miss Cagle had four steals apiece.

The triumphs gave Benning WACs more victories this season alone than they earned the last three years. The double win was not totally without cost, however, as guard Houser injured a tendon in her right foot.

Nevertheless, she is expected to start in the first of a two game series this weekend with the Columbus Recreational League. Benning girls will be seeking to avenge an earlier 22-10 setback to the downtown teams. Game times at Briant Wells Field House will be 6 p.m. Friday and 12:30 p.m. Saturday.

Army marksmen take 10 of 16 events in Marine Monthly Pistol Tourney QUANTICO, Va. — U.S. Army handgunners from Fort Benning, invaded the Marine stronghold here Sunday and breezed by ten of the 16 individual Marine Corps monthly Open matches of the Marine Corps Monthly Open Three-Gun Short Course Aggregate Pistol Tournament.

The Army shooters depended on the shooting of five of its top shooters to bring home the rewards. In addition the Army teams pooled their efforts and took each of the three team matches and one of the runner up spots while the outclassed Marines managed to take the two second place team awards and the other six place individual awards.

The champion Army handgunners, all from the Fort Benning Marksmanship Training Unit, included top leading tournament contender for 1972, SFC Hershel Anderson who won the first three tournaments held at the Georgia Infantry post this season. He was assisted in the Army assault by MSgt. Emil Heugalter, who won the first match and pointed the Army team toward victory, Ssgt. Jimmy McCaulley, MSgt. Robert Whitacre, Ssgt. John Sienicki and SFC Enoch Harmon. In through his persistent pressure, reclaimed the prize for the Marines when he compiled a total score of 2666-107X while Anderson was in runner-up with 2283-943X. Whitacre took the third spot with his 2648-86X.

The Army "Blue" team, fielded by the U.S. Army Marksmanship Training Unit, captured the 22 Caliber pistol match with 1187-56X, breaking the existing National record. The Marine "Scarlet" team from Quantico placed second with 1176-42X.

In the Center Fire team competition the Army "Gray" a sister team of Army "Blue," forged to the front and placed first with their 1161-64X while the Marine "Scarlet" man-

USAMTU holds clinics for Junior ROTC cadre

Four two-man International Rifle teams from the U.S. Army Marksmanship Training Unit (MTU) conducted Smallbore Rifle clinics at each of the Columbus high school indoor ranges this week.

The Army marksmen presented two hour periods of intensive instruction and a range technique demonstrations at each of the seven city high schools. Special emphasis was placed upon proper body positioning, breath control and sight alignment.

The clinics conducted by the Army's Championship Run program extends goals

The running goals established for the proposed Army-wide "Run For Your Life" Program are encouraged to continue running and submit records to the Leadership Department as they attain these mileage goals:

- 1,000; 2,500; 5,000; and 10,000 mile awards.

In order to permit timely presentation of awards and patches, all participants in the "Run For Your Life" Program are encouraged to continue running and submit records to the Leadership Department as they attain these mileage goals.

marks men for Junior ROTC cadre instructor groups and shooters served as preparatory sessions for a series of future city-wide high school ROTC Smallbore Rifle tournaments to be held at the Army Marksmanship's Parks International range. These forthcoming matches include the Feb. 19 TAMCO Match in which each of the Columbus High school varsity teams compete with the Tampa, Florida High School ROTC Shooters and later Herb Atkins match, American Legion match and AUSA ROTC Rifle and Drill team competition.

Conducted annually, "The marksmanship clinics have materially assisted our shooters and improved their scores," reported Maj. Bill Newbold, Director of Army ROTC instruction for Muscogee County School District.

197th Inf. Bde. wins cage title

The 197th Infantry Brigade basketball team won the Fort Benning Basketball Championship at Kelley Hill Field House last Monday night with a convincing 107-85 bombing over the 931st Engr Cp.

The win gave the 197th the second half lead which meant they had won both halves of the league's season and automatically on the Post Championship.

The 197th grabbed a 43-40 lead at halftime, then broke the game with 33 points in the final seven minutes of the contest. The 931st just could not come back.

High scorer for the game was John Black of the 197th with 34 points. Ervin Goodwin had 19 before he fouled out, and John Halverson added 16 more for the 197th.

The high men for the 931st were Tim Russell with 18 points and Elbert Tarrans with 16. They provided the bulk of the scoring for the 931st.

There were two games played at Briant Wells Field House on Feb. 2 which lead to this championship clash. In the first game the 931st crushed TSB by a 96-59 score. The nightcap saw the 197th keep its one game edge over the 931st with a 73-32 victory over HQ Cmd. The halftime score was only 37-13.

According to coach Kelly Boyum, "the team worked real hard and kept in good shape, and since the players were in better condition than the other teams, they were able to run the ball and score more often on the fast break." These facts plus a lot of team spirit and a great team effort made the 197th the winning team it was. Coach Boyum felt that the turning point of the season was after the team lost its first game and there was a change of player personnel.

In the last game of the season played at Briant Wells, also last Monday night, MED-DAC defeated HQ Cmd 78-63.

609th, HQ-LAADO to represent Avn. Cmd. in Post tournament

The last week of play in the Aviation Command Basketball League found the 609th and HQ-LAADO teams victorious in two games each.

The 609th defeated the 197th and 205th by scores of 43-36 and 35-32 respectively. HQ-LAADO defeated the 197th 45-46 and the 399th for forfeit.

By virtue of their perfect record (11-0), the 609th will represent the Aviation Command in the Company Post Tournament. In second place was the HQ-LAADO team with a 9-2 record. Both losses were suffered at the hands of the 609th and both games were decided by a total of 5 points. Finishing in third place are the 197th and USAID with identical 5-6 records. Next is the 205th with a 4-7 mark and the 399th posting a 2-9 record.

The competition was tough and enthusiastic throughout the entire season. There was enough action in each game to get even the most die-hard spectator involved in the shouting and roaring. Many will be looking forward to next year's league action.

370 mile relay conducted by soldiers

A 370 mile relay to the Daytona 500 at Daytona Beach, Fla. will kickoff here Feb. 16 with 15 soldiers in the running.

The runners, all members of Fort Benning's 2nd Bn., 10th Field Artillery, were selected from a total of 60 soldiers who volunteered for the three-day joggling-aunt.

Each of the 15 participants will complete approximately 24 miles of the relay by running a mile "leg" in sequence with the others. When not running, teammates cheer encouragement from an accompanying vehicle.

Hershey receives Patterson Memorial Award today

By BILL DIEHL

In today's small Army each man counts extra. High officer must be able to carry out the country's military policy and make the most of resources to meet problems that have not vanished in obedience to wishful thinking.

This will be the message today of Mrs. Robert P. Patterson to an assembly of Infantry Officer Candidates and military and civilian dignitaries who will gather at Marshall Auditorium at 11 a.m. to honor 2nd Lt. Charles Hershey, the recipient of the 1972 Patterson Memorial Award.

She will tell Hershey that, because of the prevailing attitude toward the military, today's Army, more than ever before, needs leaders with courage, insight and alertness to bring out the crucial issues which, though better hidden now than in World War I and II, will determine our fate and future as a nation.

Mrs. Patterson will present the lieutenant an engraved service pistol and a monetary award. These are made possible by a memorial trust fund set up by friends of Robert P. Patterson, Secretary of War under President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Hershey, currently stationed at Ft. Riley, Kan., graduated from 3rd Company, 8th Student Battalion, The School Brigade, in May, 1971 with an academic average of 94. He attained a 92 rating in leadership ability during the demanding 23-week course. He was selected for the Patterson Award by Maj. Gen. Orvis C. Talbot, commander of the Infantry School, from a group of honor graduates during the year.

At the ceremony, Gen. Talbot will introduce Lt.

Gen. Hugh M. Epton, Director of Military Support, Office of the Chief of Staff, Washington, D. C. Representing the Secretary of the Army and the chief of staff of the Army, Gen. Epton will present to Hershey a "follow Me" plaque and the Robert P. Patterson Memorial Award Certificate. Gen. Epton is certified as military aid under Secretary of War Patterson.

Among the dignitaries coming to Fort Benning for the Patterson Award ceremony will be Maj. Gen. Leonard S. Woody, commander of the 12th U. S. Army Reserve Command, Birmingham, Ala.; Col. Richard E. Cavazos, Hershey's brigade commander at Ft. Riley; and Lt. Col. John W. Gheen, Hershey's battalion commander.

Others planning to attend the Patterson Award ceremony are Samuel Silverstein, who served in France with Patterson in World War I, and Mrs. Silverstein; and Mrs. Peter Finucane, widow of a member of Patterson's Company in World War I. After the ceremony, there will be an official luncheon for Mrs. Patterson at the Supper Club.

Plans for Mrs. Patterson include a briefing on the Infantry Museum. She is a member of the National Advisory Council to the Infantry Museum Development Program.

Before the ceremony, Mrs. Patterson will visit

Former post commander addresses Ranger grad

Lt. Gen. (Ret.) Robert L. York, a former Commandant of the Infantry School, returned to Fort Benning to address Ranger Class 772 in graduation ceremonies held at Todd Field, Jan. 27.

The 178 officers, 27 soldiers, and 2 allied students were happy to receive their Ranger tabs, marking the successful completion of 58 days of rigorous training.

Gen. York pinned the tab on the class Distinguished Honor Graduate, 1st Lt. Michael E. Cusak, Airborne, HALO, and the Special Forces Officer Course, is presently assigned to 10th Special Forces Group, Fort Devens, Massachusetts. Besides the Ranger tab was presented the William O. Darcy Award, class garrison, and award from the Association of the United States Army, and a letter of commendation from Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott, post commander.

Gen. York also pinned the tabs on 1st Lt. Kunjara Arawat; 2nd Lt. Samsuguk Tiwivruun, Thailand and PFCs James D. Brown, Peter F. Maish, and Conrad J. Martin, who were also promoted to Sp4 under the provisions of AR 600-200.

The class had seven hono- graduates, so honored for attaining scores in excess of 850 points of the possible 1,000. They were 1st Lt. Gary G. Hollbrook, and 2nd Lt. John L. Anderson, Roby W. Crouse, Dean L. Danielson, George E. Hale, John A. Spears, and Timothy A. Wray.

The ceremony was closed out with a HALO skydiving demonstration by Capt. Joseph Moore and Capt. Chuck White of the Ranger Department. A balloon, passed between two jumpers while in free fall, was presented to Gen. York.

AFMA speaker

A. J. McClung, Columbus mayor pro-tem, addressed members of the Armed Forces Management Association Feb. 2 at the Supper Club of the Fort Benning Officer Club. McClung spoke on the new consolidated government; past, present, and future. "The major portion of our work thus far, has been primarily trying to get the government organized," McClung said. Trip to Atlanta for 197th track drivers

The 1st Battalion (Mech), 58th Infantry (Paratroopers) has initiated a new program which gives an outstanding "Track Driver of the Month" award for his exceptional knowledge and performance in the operation of armored vehicles.

Lt. Col. Stephen R. Paulk, commanding officer of the 1-58th Infantry, came up with the idea because "I feel that through this program the incentive for being the 'Track Driver of the Month' will pick up the maintenance level on the tracks tremendously."

Paulk stated that, "a mechanized battalion consisting of a hundred tracks cannot exist without proper maintenance of its tracks." This was the purpose for giving recognition to the soldier who works on the armored vehicles. If the soldier is recognized for his accomplishments it has been proven through history that he will strive to obtain the best results possible.

Month" is Sgt. Howard S. Holland, from B Co., 1-58th Infantry. Holland will be presented a plaque to display upon his armored vehicle for one month and an extra award will be given by the Fort Benning Reward System. The special award is an all-expense paid weekend trip to Atlanta. The Reward System is a program in which one man from each battalion on Fort Benning is given the opportunity to win an all-expense paid weekend trip to Atlanta.

The system provides transportation to and from Atlanta, a place to stay and $25.00 spending money. In order for a soldier to receive a "Track Driver of the Month", he must score exceptionally well on a written examination and successfully pass a strict driving test. The vehicle used by the driver must pass a maintenance and safety inspection before the driving test can be issued.

The soldier that scores the highest in all three areas wins the honor of being called the "Track Driver of the Month."

The first man to receive the honor of becoming "Track Driver of the Month" was Sgt. Howard S. Holland.

DA file to let you know how you stand with Army

BY BILL DIEHL

If you are a senior NCO, an E-1 through E-6 in intelligence or a special category or a W-1, E-6 or higher, you have a special file at the Pentagon in Washington, D. C., that can tell you "if you stand" with the Army.

It is called the "Office of Personnel Operations (OPO) Career File" and it contains the information of the Department of the Army (DA) career managers. Basically, two types of information are found in OPO files — good and bad. Career managers must know this information when considering individuals for promotion and assignment entries in the OPO files include:

- DA Form 20. This is a "true copy" of the QUALIFICATION Record, not a photo-reproduced version. Individuals should insure it is complete, up-to-date, and accurate. Any changes made to field Form 20s must be sent to DA on a Report of Change (DA Form 2887). If these changes are late or wrong, the career file Form 20 cannot be correct.
- Enlisted Efficiency Report (EER) and Enlisted Evaluation Data Report (EEDR). These tell career managers how well an individual knows his MOS and how well he actually does the job.
- Enlisted Preference Statement. In the Modern Volunteer Army, individual preferences are getting more consideration. This is an important document in the Career File.
- Full-length photograph. A new photo is required every five years by AR 60-50. The individual is checking his file should insure that his picture is current and complimentary.

The only bad things an individual can find about himself in his OPO Career File are those which have been authenticated by his commanders and forwarded through channels. A bad debt letter, for example, cannot go into the file until it has been judged void by a CO. The key word is "official" and the rules are outlined in AR 640-88.

Individual brings an authentic record that is not in his OPO Career File, he can have it put in his file on the spot. This Pentagon file is not the same as the Army 20. Files kept at the Army Personnel Support Center, Ft. Benjamin Harrison, Ind. Nor is it an official or field Military Personnel Records jacket. It is simply a tool for the DA career managers.

Enlisted persons in the categories mentioned who want to pursue their career files should go to the Senior Enlisted Control Division interview room (1C-72) at the Pentagon from 8 a.m. until 4:30 p.m. Mondays through Fridays. Or you can delegate authority IN WRITING for a friend to review your file. It's important to sign the written authority because your signature will be checked against the one in your file.

Post blood donor receive heart-shaped tabs

Obtaining blood donations for home emergencies is not very difficult here at Fort Benning. Msgr. Lewis M. Mimms, MCOIC, Office of Plans and Training at the Army Hospital, stated that every Thursday, which is blood donation day, approximately 300 men will donate blood. From what the sergeant says, about 95 per cent of all donor applicants are accepted for donation. The other 5 per cent have qualities in their blood which makes it undesirable for donation.

The School Brigade (TSB) is only one of the participating major units on post, but they are distinguished themselves over the past year by donating over 4,500 units of blood. Other commands participating in the program are:

Headquarters Command, USAIC; 51st Engineers; 197th Infantry Brigade and the Women's Army Corps.

Many times a rare blood type will be needed at Martin Army Hospital for emergencies and they will call the Office of Plans and Training to locate a donor with that type of blood.

On these occasions they will call TSB because of two basic reasons. The number of men assigned to TSB and because the men are still in training and must likely have not been overseas and have fewer chances of being rejected.

"The cooperation from TSB is tremendous," said Mimms. "If we call for a certain number of donors, many times they will send twice the needed amount."

The School Brigade developed a great deal of pride through their blood donation participation. The post commander, Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbot, has authorized an emblem in the shape of a heart to be worn by all donors as part of their daily uniform. This tab signifies the wearer as a "Volunteer Blood Donor" and "A very special person." Since these tabs were initiated last November, approximately 600 have been distributed.

The Office of Plans and Training asks that anyone wishing to donate their blood to their respective units and they in turn will contact the hospital and notify them as to how many men are to donate from their unit. Each unit has a special time on Thursdays when transportation to and from the donation point will arrive at their company area and it is at this time that all donors will travel to the donating center located at Bldg. 5009 Kelly Hill. After the donors are finished, they are transported back to their units.

The Blood Donation Program here at Fort Benning is set up so that the surrounding community can draw on it during any emergencies. This is a reciprocal agreement in which both parties repay the units they borrow.

Shade tree workshop to be held

Amateur horticulturist, self-made landscape artists and just plain tree lovers will have an opportunity to learn more about shade trees at the First Annual Columbus Area Shade Tree Workshop to be held at Ft. Benning, Columbus, Mar. 3.

The public has been invited to attend this one-day workshop sponsored jointly by the Georgia Forestry Commission, Columbus Parks and Recreation Department and the Columbus Council of Garden Clubs.

The six-hour workshop will begin at 8:30 a.m. with "coffee" and close at 4 p.m. with a one-hour break for lunch at noon.

Native Tree Identification, Suitability of Various Trees for Urban Planting, Control of insects and diseases harmful to shade trees, and basic tree surgery techniques will be some of the topics of the presentation.

There will be no charge for attendance at the workshop. A catered Bar-B-Que lunch will be available at the workshop site. The charge for the lunch will be $2 per plate. Personnel desiring the lunch are requested to contact the Georgia Forestry Commission, Box 4111, Columbus, Ga. 31904 or Steve Sanford at 563-2248 as soon as possible.

Deadline changed

Due to the upcoming holiday the deadline for the BAYONET will be noon today. Your cooperation will be greatly appreciated by the BAYONET staff and better insure the running of your articles.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

Shelled nuts keep best if stored in a plastic bag in the refrigerator before or after opening.

Vary your favorite cold slaw recipes by using Chinese cabbage and adding sliced stuffed olives and chopped tomatoes for eye-appeal.

Whether you grind it yourself or have the butcher do it, you'll get better burgers if the beef is ground coarsely, and not once.

A pinch of powdered annatto adds a nice taste to deviled eggs.

On September 15, 1976, the day British troops landed in Manhattan, the top British officers were invited for sherry and cokes by Colonial sympathizer Harry Murray, whose husband Robert was a Tory. Mrs. Murray's diversionary tactics enabled Gen. George Washington to meet his troops for the next day's battle.

SHELBY HI-RISER INTAKE MANIFOLDS

Each Shelby intake manifold is designed by Ford performance experts having years of world-wide racing experience. Each Shelby manifold has been refined by flow-bench testing and proven on Autopart Products' Dyno. Many have dominated the winner's circle at international races in the U.S. and abroad. Used in conjunction with Ford or Holley carburetors, these manifolds will deliver a healthier performance boost for any Ford engine. We give our recommendations on application and mating carburetor for each manifold. Follow our guide and you'll be more than satisfied with their performance.

SINGLE 4-BARREL INTAKE MANIFOLD, 221-302 cid ENGINES
Great combination for street and track. The intake manifold that kicked off the hi-riser craze. Balanced ports for each intake port and the area under the carb are designed to create a low-lift air flow to all cylinders. Keeps mixture at proper velocity to ensure uniform delivery to each cylinder at all times. Mounts a 600 cid Holley carb to your 221-302 cid engine. 71 cc carb, high-horsepower, just add a carb and head.

#9068, for 221-300-289-302 cid Ford, Mfg. Lit #123.00 Your Cost: $50.00

DUAL 4-BARREL INTAKE MANIFOLD, 221-302 cid ENGINES
Required for Trans-Am, ladder top, etc. This race-proven unit used in 1967 Mustang that captured the Trans-Am Championship. Combines with racing carb and headers for maximum output. The Holley 600 cid carb sets up the Shelby manifold and boost power output on 221-302 cid engines by 43-53 hp. Depending on carb used. Progressive helixes and fuel jet make installation a breeze. Three-hour your money and get top benefits when you open the one car.

#9025, for 221-300-289-302 cid Ford, Mfg. Lit #123.00 Your Cost: $72.50

SINGLE 4-BARREL INTAKE MANIFOLD FOR 351-CLEVELAND ENGINE
Great for street, strip and track. This is the most powerful for the mustang market. A large runner, tapered throat that provides passage big enough to permit with the 351-Cleveland. For street and strip work, use the 780 cid or 850 cid Holley carb. The 351-C is the one to use.

#9249, for 351-C, Standard carb on 2V heads, Mfg. Lit #130.00 Your Cost: $65.00
#9250, for 351-C, Standard carb on 4V heads, Mfg. Lit #130.00 Your Cost: $65.00

SINGLE 4-BARREL MANIFOLD FOR 351-WINDSOR ENGINE
Production Shelby GT-350 manifold gets it on. This "Challenger 351" manifold was used on the Shelby GT-350 with terrific results. The 351-C has a 4-cylinder composite-designed tapered runners for proper gas velocity and uniform distribution. Our dyno tests indicate best air-velocity results on a 351-Windsor engine with 280 carburetor. For racing, the 850 cid (84971) is recommended. Manifold has race construction built to tolerate the usual problems of poor timing and lean mixtures common with many aftermarket high-performance manifolds.

#9201, for 351-W 60 Ford (84971 heads covered), Mfg. Lit #133.00 Your Cost: $97.50

SINGLE 4-BARREL MANIFOLD FOR 352-426 ENGINES
Special Cobra Jet Power for the big-block Ford. Designed especially for the 426 Cobra Jet engine, the 352-426 with helix ports results in the 426 Cobra Jet engine. The 352-426 with helix ports results in the 426 Cobra Jet engine. The 352-426 with helix ports results in the 426 Cobra Jet engine. The 352-426 with helix ports results in the 426 Cobra Jet engine.

#9406, for 352-390-427-428 cid Ford with standard carb, Mfg. Lit #175.00 Your Cost: $97.50

SINGLE 4-BARREL MANIFOLD FOR 429-460 ENGINES
Thunderbolt and the Super Cobra Jet. This great manifold for the 429-460 cid engines has been carefully designed to deliver more air to the 429-460 cid engines through the 780 cid Holley carb on these engines. Stock engine drive on this manifold mounting.

#9202, for 429-460 cid with standard carb, Mfg. Lit #150.00 Your Cost: $75.40

Seat belts reduce driving handicap

Private motor vehicle drivers continue to handicap themselves to a point where the odds shift to the side of the Grim Reaper.

They undertake long and arduous trips without allowing for sufficient travel time or adequate rest. They drive while fatigued, often all night after a full work day, and they drive while under the influence of alcohol, which does nothing good for responsiveness or reaction time.

They often operate vehicles with worn tires, or they mix radials with other type tires. Perhaps worst of all they do not use available seat belts. They gamble with their lives and the lives of others—a bad too frequently they lose.

Many of the post-mortem stories read basically the same. For example, a soldier had been up for 18 hours before starting a trip that he knew would take all night (it didn't take that long due to an unplanned ending). In addition, he drank a little beer and two highballs before departing. He failed to buckle his seat belt. Thus, the stage was set. He had imposed enough handicap on himself to prevent survival. Unfortunately, just before his car departed the highway and started a series of rolls. On the second roll he was thrown out of the car and killed when the car rolled over him.

All indications are that he would have survived had he remained in the vehicle. Score: Grim Reaper—1, Handicapped Driver—0.

Here are some facts: Since July 1, 1971, 58 Fort Benning soldiers have been seriously injured and 12 others have been killed in privately owned vehicle accidents. Investigations revealed that the number and extent of the injuries could have been significantly reduced and the majority of the deaths could probably have been prevented through the use of seat belts. Don't we ever learn to go with the odds?

With so much evidence in favor of seat belt effectiveness in preventing death and reducing the severity of an injury, it is difficult for safety people to understand why the driving public has been so lax about using seat belts.

Today seat belts are available to three out of four passenger car occupants. And in approximately half of the installations shoulder harnesses are available. In spite of this fact, usage is surprisingly low—somewhere between 25 per cent and 40 per cent of the people use their seat belts, while a lot fewer use their shoulder harnesses.

Happy Holiday

Monday will be observed as a National holiday, Fort Benning, as well as most Federal offices in the Columbus area will be closed but will open for business as usual on Tuesday.

At odds as to whether federal military employees would celebrate Lincoln's or Washington's birthday as a National holiday, a compromise was developed whereby employees would celebrate the third Monday in February. So, when you wake up Monday morning you can turn to your roommate, friend or loved one and say — "Happy third Monday in February."

Through rain, sleet, and snow...

Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbot, Post Commander, seated in the mud and rain, is instructed in firing the training device for the XM-47 Surface Attack Guided Missile System, the DRAGON. This new anti-tank weapon is the subject of the first Expanded Service Test (EST) conducted by the Army. Gen. Talbot visited the DRAGON Test Directorate at Harmony Church, and inspected the DRAGON testing conducted by the Infantry Board.

BY ROB MCLVAINE
Sgt. Will O. Biggert, 988th Military Police Company, has been selected as Fort Benning's Military Policeman of the Year.

Biggert will join his civilian counterpart from the Columbus Police Department at a banquet in the Raiston Motor Hotel this evening honoring the military and civilian Policemen of the Year. A commemorative plaque and a cash award will be presented to each of the winners.

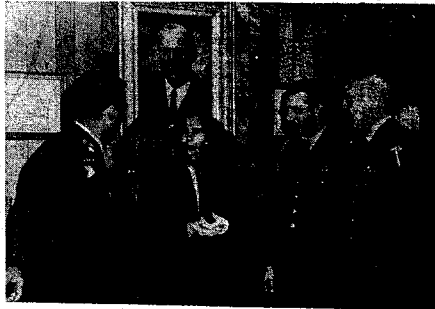

The Columbus Exchange Clubs will host the event. It will also climax the celebration of National Crime Prevention Week Feb. 6-12 by the post and the civilian community.

Biggert, a native of Koochisno, Miss., was among seven top Fort Benning M.P.s considered by a board especially convened to select the Military Policemen of the Year. Nominations for the honor were made by all sections and platoons serving the Provost Marshal Office.

Like most members of the M.P. contingent, Biggert has learned to be versatile during his tour at Fort Benning. Patrolman, investigator, desk sergeant, and VASGAR operator describe the gamut of duties he has held here at one time or another. In any case, they have meant keeping the peace and combating crime in a field where "your attitude makes all the difference."

Upon completion of his obligation in Aug. 1973, Biggert hopes to return to college and major in police science. He plans to seek a professional career in crime prevention.

Mrs. Albert P. Patterson

Lt. Col. Donald E. Bliss, left, commanding officer of the 5th Battalion (OCS), welcomes Mrs. Albert P. Patterson, Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbot, right, Fort Benning commander, and 2nd Lt. Charles Hervey to Wigle Hall for a tour of the OCS Hall of Fame. Mrs. Patterson was at Fort Benning last week to present the 20th annual Paterson Award for being selected as the top OCS honor student to take the course between Oct. 1, 1970, and Sept. 30, 1971. The award, named in honor of the late Secretary of War Albert P. Patterson, was presented in ceremonies in Marshall Auditorium. A picture of the late Secretary is shown in the background.

Mini-Parks constructed by 197th

In a combined domestic action effort, the United States Army Reserve unit in Greenville, S. C. and a rifle platoon from D Company, 1st Battalion, 28th Infantry, 197th Infantry Brigade are presently involved in building three "Mini-Parks" in the downtown Greenville area.

The program, originally designed to complement the recruiting effort in the city has gained full support from the Down Town Association of Merchants who are hosting the platoon and are footing the bill for housing the soldiers.

In preparation for the arrival of the troops, the city's mayor proclaimed the time spent on the project as "Army Week." In addition, the local merchants sponsored a beauty contest and selected a "Miss Army" to preside over the activities.

The project began Feb. 13 when the platoon from the 197th arrived in Greenville. Their efforts are augmented by the local Reserve unit, which is an engineer outfit, and is in charge of land clearing for the operation.

Activities for the platoon include—physical training in the morning to include a run to the city's courthouse for a flag raising ceremony followed by a day's work in the parks, interrupted at noon when a local restaurant brings lunch out to the work site. The work day is followed by a retreat ceremony at the courthouse and the evening meal which is provided by another of the city's restaurants.

Dollar Coins Return

WASHINGTON (APPS)—The Bureau of the Mint is now accepting orders for the new Silver Proof and Uncirculated Eisenhower Dollar coins that are being produced at the United States Mint Office in San Francisco, Calif.

Order blanks are available at post offices and most banks across the United States. However, collectors have been told that they may have a "several month" wait before receiving their purchases.

Uncirculated silver dollars, according to Mint officials, are of high quality and their production is limited. Orders for the uncirculated coins, which sell for $3 each, are being directed to three locations. Inquiries regarding the uncirculated coins should be addressed to Bureau of Mint, Nonmarket Service, Washington, D.C. 20226.

Proof coins are jewel-like coins of high relief, struck twice by special polished dies. The Eisenhower proof coins, which sell for $13 each, are also being produced in San Francisco and carry the "50" mint mark. All correspondence regarding proof coins should be addressed to U.S. Assay Office, Nonmarket Service, 50 West St., San Francisco, Calif. 94102.

The coins will be sent to buyers by first class registered mail. Any inquiries about delivery dates should include the buyer's order number and the cancelled check. Payment must be by check or money order. No cash orders will be accepted.

The Mint expects to coin 200 million silver Eisenhower dollars by next July. Nickel-clad and 10 per cent lighter than the former silver dollars, they are expected to be gobbled up by Westerners who have been using Canadian dollar coins to augment their supply.

Mints at Philadelphia, Denver, and San Francisco will produce a record 9.2 billion coins in six denominations in the fiscal year 1972.

In the Nation's early years the United States Mint in Philadelphia was volved in melting sea kettles, nails, and the heads from powder kegs, to produce enough copper coins to meet America's demand for small change.

By the time production of silver dollars stopped in 1935, the coins had long been unpopular in Eastern states, where people objected to the weight of the "mule metal." But the coins have continued in demand in the West, where "hard money" traditionally took precedence over paper.

Chief supporters of the Eisenhower dollar coin, according to National Geographic, have been casinos and vending-machine manufacturers.

Automatic dry-cleaning machines with a slot for dollar coins are expected to make their first appearance next year.

PROFESSIONALISM!

Army continues to stress professionalism

Don't let some recent news reports concerning the revised Basic Training Program (BCT) mislead you.

It is not true, as some writers have concluded editorially, that "the old Army" is taking over again and that many of the modern volunteer Army (MVA) programs are on the way out.

The truth of the matter is that it has been decided that the BCT program, with its mission of converting young civilians into basic soldiers, requires greater emphasis on physical conditioning, weapons trainings and discipline, as well as greater emphasis on "hands-on" training and the use of some advanced instructional techniques.

Some of the lessons learned in experiments at one BCT post — Ft. Ord — have been incorporated in the program. On the other hand, such experiments at Ft. Ord as beer in the barracks and cubicalizing the barracks have been rejected from BCT ONLY as being unproductive.

BCT will be made more interesting, more challenging and tougher in order to prepare soldiers better for their subsequent responsibilities. And, it should be noted, that several of the tougher BCT changes resulted in part from suggestions by BCT soldiers themselves.

Soldiers involved in BCT make up about four per cent of the Army strength. The remaining 96 per cent of the Army — the Army into which successful BCT soldiers will graduate — will continue to benefit from those programs which have been validated by VOLAR tests and/or enunciated under the MVA philosophy.

For example, the Army will continue first and foremost to emphasize professionalism across the board through improved personnel procedures, educational programs, dynamic training, higher standards of discipline and leadership, and more challenging duty.

Also, the Army is committed to improve the environment in which men live and work to include better barracks, better quarters, better food, better facilities, the elimination of unnecessary irritants and the elimination of make-work and non-military duties wherever possible.

There has been no move backward. BCT has been revised, toughened and improved, and the Army as a whole continues fully committed to the wide range of forward-looking programs approved and enunciated by the Chief of Staff in the past two years.

The move toward a modern Army will continue, be assured of that. (BW)

TSB safety program

The School Brigade (TSB) has launched an all-out Safety Campaign that will hopefully encourage drivers in the Brigade Area to employ good driving habits both now and over the holiday weekend. A special emphasis has been placed on the use of seatbelts with the aid of printed flyers and parking lot signs. 2nd Lt. Reggie L. Baumgardner, HHC, TSB, secures one of the many seat belt "reminder signs" that have been made and distributed in the TSB Area. (Photo by Steve Malce.)

Buy, sell at art boutique

Fort Benning personnel now have the opportunity to buy and sell artistic items at the new art boutique, the "Talent Tree."

Paintings, handwork and ceramics are but a few of the articles in the shop. At present the boutique offers homemade ties, free-wheel pottery, mosaics, oil paintings, hand-knit and hand-embroidered baby clothes, crocheted vests and rings, s'ghans, reblown glass bottles, decoupage and sunbonnets. A special feature is a seasonal table which now displays special Valentine and Easter gifts.

Once the idea for such a shop was conceived, the "Talent Tree" took four months to complete. In this time, much paperwork was done, permission for the project and use of the building was obtained, renovation of the shop was finished and consignments were received. Most of the work was done by volunteers from the Fort Benning Officers Wives Club, assisted by post friends. Civilians as well as servicemen are welcome to come in, browse and buy.

197th ladies entertained at home of Mrs. Kennedy

Mrs. Edwin Kennedy, first lady of the 197th Inf. Brigade, recently entertained the ladies of Headquarters at her Fort Benning home on its Earnes Avenue.

Mrs. Ronald Formlak welcomed special guests Miss Linda Marks and Mrs. Frederick Bissell as well as newcomers Mrs. James A. Howell, Mrs. Gary Bueslet, Mrs. Larry Aaron, Mrs. Robert Balog and Mrs. Radames Toro. Leaving were Mrs. Ronald Pruitt, Mrs. John R. Lockard, Mrs. Seven Cox and Mrs. Arthur Wilkinson.

During the function, Mrs. Kennedy displayed a 197th scrap book covering many social events and reminders of the past year. Mrs. Robert Orkand announced that there will be a brigade luncheon, March 6 at the Supper Club of the Main officers' Club, sponsored by the ladies of Headquarters at the 1st Bn., 29th Inf. She also said that Mrs. Lee Parker, a well known traveler from Washington, D. C., will speak on the "Creative Woman."

Hope to be guest at OWC luncheon

Comedian Bob Hope will be guest of honor at an Officers Wives Club luncheon, March 18, at the Main Post Officers Club.

Tickets for the luncheon — which cost $3.50 — will be sold on two dates. Only those persons who held OWC membership by Jan. 21 will be eligible to buy the first set of tickets at 1 p.m., Feb. 26, in Officer's Hall. The remainder will be available to all OWC members, at 10 a.m., March 4.

Sales will be on a first-come, first-served basis and will be limited to one ticket per member. Buyers must have their OWC membership cards and Officers Club cards at the time of purchase. Tickets will be color-coded to designate the dining area in which one will be seated, to indicate the door by which to enter the club and to serve as name tags.

Mrs. Gordon Hunt, OWC reservation chairman, suggests that ladies use the east parking lot of Infantry Hall, located off Edwards Street. Signs at the main entrance of the building will direct them to the ticket sales location. For further information on reservations, call Mrs. Hunt at 545-7349 or Mrs. Powell Johnson at 892-5122. Those interested in OWC membership should phone Mrs. Norman Batten at 545-5329.

That evening, Hope will hold a benefit performance in support of the National Infantry Museum Development Program and the Eisenhower Medical Foundation at 8 p.m. in the Columbus Municipal Auditorium.

Tom Wolfe is a reporter with a talent for telling his books about people and events. There was some argument as to whether his "Radical Chic" and "Mau-Mauing the Flak Catchers" was a satire or just a good job of reporting. The MEDDAC Wives' Book Club enjoyed reading and discussing these two different stories, preferring "Radical Chic" to "Mau-Mauing the Flak Catchers."

The group liked the vivid descriptions in "Mau-Mauing. They agreed that the "flak catchers" were certainly not appreciated. The group liked the vivid descriptions in "Mau-Mauing. They agreed that the "flak catchers" were certainly not appreciated.

attended their last monthly luncheon, Feb. 8, at the Black Angus Restaurant, on Victory Drive. The hostesses for the occasion were the staff wives, headed by class social chairman Mrs. David W. Kummer.

The honored guest was Mrs. Trepagnier and Mrs. Art Hurtado was the guest of Mrs. Richard J. Meadove.

The centerpieces for the head table was a jump boat filled with fresh flowers. Placed on steamers across the tables were unit patches belonging to their husbands.

A skit entitled "The Marvelous Maneuvering and Methodical Managing of the Military Man and His Massive Wardrobe" followed the buffet lunch. The skit depicted the various military and casual attire worn by husbands on and off duty.

Bake goods were contributed to the main post service club, Feb. 20. The month's activities will end Wednesday at 9:30 a.m. with breakfast and games in Cress Hall. Hostesses will be Mrs. Joseph Todd (545-7827), Mrs. Donald Case (545-8337) and Mrs. Thomas Brevlin (545-1340). Reservation deadline is today.

After the skit, Mrs. Kummer presented "diplomas" to each wife for having successfully completed the chore of nagging and pushing her obstinate husband through physical training, studies, numerous exams and other career course exercises. Mrs. Kummer then gave all the staff ladies a gift to express her thanks and appreciation for their support through the past nine months.

The NCO wives' Club started the month with a volunteer coffee call at Martin Army Hospital, Feb. 2 and 9. They also held a monthly business meeting, Feb. 9 in the Top 5 Club, and a luncheon, Feb. 16, at the Red Lobster Restaurant.

Leon Sharon of Checkmate Security and Capt. Floyd Guthrie of the Sheriff's Department presented a program on drug abuse and home security. The ladies were shown how to identify drugs by samples and smells.

The ladies from the NCO Ceramic Shop spent many hours preparing for an evening of Ceramic Bingo, Feb. 16. This "potluck affair" was held at the Sand Hill NCO Club and will help provide scholarships for worthy high school seniors this spring.

OWC NEWS
The Officers' Wives' Club found out "What's Cooking" at their Feb. 9 luncheon at the Supper Club. Mrs. Sara Spano, food editor for The Ledger-Examiner, entertained the ladies with a humorous account of her adventures and misadventures as a part-time globe-trotter. Mrs. Spano also discussed some favorite local recipes which were printed in the programs, including "Country Captain," the main course at the luncheon.

Mrs. James W. Key, wife of the president of the Columbus Chamber of Commerce, was the honored guest. Special guests were the wives of allied officers: Mrs. Sosa, Argentina; Mrs. Vuylsteke, Belgium; Mrs. Muzzi and Mrs. Remo, Brazil; Mrs. Falda, France; Mrs. Kimlin, Iran; Mrs. Mae Ann Leagilla, Ireland; Mrs. Barabona, Guatemala; Mrs. Jensonrud, Norway;

Gold Star Wives learn about 'better business'

"When you're in doubt, find out," was the theme of "Valvatore Spano's program at the monthly meeting of Gold Star Wives, Feb. 20.

Spano, a representative of Columbus's Better Business Bureau, told the service widows about a few of the thousands of inequities the BBB handles every year. Of particular interest to the ladies was the city's policy on door to door salesmen. Spano said that every door to door salesman is required to get a permit from the chief of police and must abide by a 7 p.m. curfew.

After Spano's presentation, new officers were elected. Winning second terms were president Mrs. Billy J. Nowe, vice president, Mrs. Richard R. Hostikka; recording secretary, Mrs. Jack Gell; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Nelson Jefferson; treasurer, Mrs. Willie Stephens; and chaplain, Mrs. Fred Jackson. The officers will sponsor the National Convention of Gold Star Wives of America, Inc. to be held here, July 7-10. This will be the first National convention to be held in Columbus.

The affair will begin with a social hour at 11:30 a.m., followed by lunch at noon. A fashion show will feature golf, tennis and swim attire; outdoor beach costumes; and a variety of new spring fashions — including both day and evening wear.

Reservations must be made today with one of the following women: Dot Kennedy (545-3290), Betty Wilsona (545-3295), Vera Sirmmons (588-4084) or Vera Ketter (687-1603).

Activities offered by NCO wives

Fort Benning's NCO wives who want to do something more than the same day-in, day-out routine of house cleaning have a solution at hand. They can join the post NCO Wives Club.

The club offers ceramics at the group's Lawson Field club house. It has monthly "coffees" for Martin Army Hospital patients, makes homemade pastries for servicemen, sponsors community welfare and service projects and has family picnics and dinner dances.

If you want to take part in this organization, simply contact any member. All NCO wives are eligible to join, whether they have been here a year or just moved to the Fort Benning vicinity. Wives of NCO's stationed overseas who live in this area can become associate members.

Former 197th Sgt. Maj. recalls 'old army'

By WILLIAM BALA
Sgt. Maj. (Ret.) Clyde Hildreth, former member of the 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry, 197th Infantry Brigade, will be unable to attend the "Pioneer Day" ceremonies, February 29, so two members of the 1-29th Infantry went to see him.

At the present time Hildreth is staying at Columbus Nursing Home suffering from arthritis.

The old veteran spent 12 years of his 39 year military service with the 1-29th Infantry. He was stationed with the battalion in 1921 when it was called the 1st Battalion 29th Regiment.

When Capt. Robert G. Myers, "Pioneer Day" project officer of the 1-29th Infantry, and Sgt. Maj. John F. Adams, of the 1-29th Infantry, went to visit the old soldier he was "utterly astounded."

The visit was quite unique from any other visit in that a sergeant major of the old Army in was greeted by one of the Volunteer Army (VOLAR).

"Old memories of the Army are brought back to me by the ideas and past performances of my career," state Hildreth.

The old veteran entered the Army in 1929. It was hard for him to enlist because at that time one had to be 21 years of age and he was only 20. He lied about his age and the Army accepted him.

"It was hard to make it in the Army back then compared with the way men get into the service today," said Hildreth.

The thing that remains the same is that a person must be a man to get in the Army.

"Being 82 years old it would seem hard to remember past occurrences, but Hildreth's mind is as sharp as any others," said Adams.

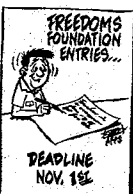

The visit was quite rewarding for the members of the 1-29th Infantry in that they were informed of the past performances of the battalion. Hildreth explained all the procedures that had taken place while he was in the battalion and Adams acknowledged his information by telling him what is taking place now.

Hildreth admitted that he was not informed as to what was taking place in the Army with VOLAR in affect so Adams explained exactly the purpose of an all-volunteer Army.

The veteran mentioned that the old Army tried it for awhile and then "was forced to change back to drafting men for the service." "VOLAR will probably work out fine if Uncle Sam doesn't run out of money," said Hildreth with a chuckle.

Hildreth also mentioned that he "enjoyed serving in the Army." "If I could still be in the service I would, but it would probably hinder the service now more than helping it."

The old soldier's son, Charles Hildreth, also served with the 129th Infantry, but not as the "backbone of the Army" but as Lt. Col. He is presently retired and now lives in Columbus.

Bible thief sees the light

Among the thousands of letters that come to Fort Benning, there is occasionally one that contains a spark of human interest. One such letter arrived from a soldier who, while stationed here three years ago, stole three copies of the "New Testament" from the Main Post Chapel.

All three Bibles recently were mailed back to the chaplain's office. Accompanying them were two letters of "testimony."

"I am a sinner who had to repent," the one-time thief said. "And I hope these three copies will be put to meaningful use."

The chaplain's office assures that they will.

49'er Party proceeds earmarked for Nursery Annex

BY BILL DIEHL
Proceeds from this year's "49'er Party" to be held Saturday, March 4 at the Main Officers Open Mess will go towards construction of a new nursery near Martin Army Hospital.

The project and party are sponsored by the Daughters of the United States Army (DUSA) who also run the existing Tot Town Nursery near Edward A. White School. DUSA has sponsored and managed the nursery since 1957.

According to Mrs. William R. Guthrie, president of the Fort Benning chapter of DUSA and chairman of this year's party, one of the primary functions of the organization is to help fill the needs of the Army community at Fort Benning.

"And right now the need is greatly expanded nursery facilities," she said.

The nursery's 35 employees currently care for an average of 8,000 to 9,000 children each month — feeling about half that number, Mrs. Guthrie said, that although troop strength is down, the nursery population is increasing steadily — due to the influx of young families on post. (Last year, the average number of children cared for per month was 6,000. In one month last spring, the number jumped to 7,500.)

Tot Town, the only DUSA-sponsored nursery in the Army, is open to all personnel entitled to use the dependent facilities at Fort Benning and to civilian employees of the post. The non-profit nursery provides free diaper service, a car pool to four of the post's schools, and supervised play.

Volunteers for Fort Benning community groups (A.C.S., Red Cross, Boy and Girl Scouts, the wives' clubs and chapel groups) expect a 15 percent discount on nursery fees.

Mrs. Guthrie said that the popular use of Tot Town has increased the value of the nursery to the Army community, and has also proved the need for a new annex. The annex, to be built near Martin Army Hospital, will be a great convenience to mothers for shopping trips and medical appointments, she said.

Construction of the new annex will cost $120,000. Last year's 49'er Party raised $7,000 toward the project, and Mrs. Guthrie hopes the March 4 party will raise another $10,000. She said the rest of the funds must be raised with the help of other groups on post.

The Fort Benning chapter of DUSA has a long history of helping Army families on post. In 1932, the first infant resuscitator for an Army hospital (and the first in the entire southeast) was funded by the chapter as part of its sponsorship of the pediatric and OB wards at Martin Army Hospital. More recently, DUSA's contributions have included $1,000 to the Community Activities Association; $500 for a local volunteer achievement award; and $450 to the dependent dental clinic for special equipment needed for more extensive child dental care, especially for handicapped children.

The funds for all these beneficial projects comes from the party each spring. The general theme of the 49'ers has been used for several years and has proved to be greatly successful.

Fort Benning's DUSA chapter dates back to 1929. About 40 Army wives and daughters of Army officers, formed an organization designed to enable them to retain their family identity after marrying and to meet with friends in each civilian or military community where they were currently living. In 1932, a national headquarters was established in Washington, D.C., and chapters are now widespread from posts and cities in the United States, Germany and Japan.

Membership in the Fort Benning Chapter of DUSA is open to all daughters or granddaughters of active duty or retired officers in any of the services. Mrs. Guthrie said that there are, no doubt, many wives in the area who are eligible for membership but are unaware of DUSA's existence. In past years, she said, this chapter has had up to 60 members, but is currently carrying out its projects with 27 members.

The Daughters of the United States Army also sponsor the Junior Army Daughters (JADA), a group of high-school-aged girls whose fathers are officers in the Army — active, retired or deceased. This organization is mainly a social one with monthly luncheon meetings, shopping trips, and its biggest annual event is the Christmas formal. In keeping with their Army tradition, however, the JADA members also lend a hand in community and even international benefits.

JADA is responsible for running the Country Store at this year's 49'er party. Miss Lynda Jo Thomas, president of JADA, is committee chairman for the Country Store. Chairman of the March

Six colonels retire, ending 180 years of service

Six colonels who have retired or are in the process of retiring from the army at Fort Benning, have been in military service for a combined total of 180 years.

Col. Jim D. Keirsej, former Chief of Staff of The Infantry Center, retired Feb. 1 after 31 years service, and Col. Willis J. Adams, former Director of Operations and Training, whose retirement became effective Feb. 1, had 30 years in the Army.

Col. Robert F. Hatcher Jr., deputy post commander will retire Feb. 29. He had been in the Army since 1941.

Col. Paul A. Walnes, chief of the Supply and Service Branch at Martin Army Hospital, had accumulated 28 years of service prior to retirement on 26 January.

Col. James M. S. Strickland, who leaves the service March 1 after 31 years service, is chief of the Environmental Management Division on post.

And Col. Robert M. Piper, who was commanding officer of the U.S. Marksman and Training Unit, has been in the Army since 1941. He retires March 15.

Col. Keirsej had been in the Army since September 1940. He received a direct commission in June 1941 at Camp Barkley, Tex.

During World War II, he served with the 6th Division in Europe, and during a tour of duty in Vietnam, he was a senior advisor to the 21st Division of the Army of the Republic of Vietnam.

Col. Keirsej came to Fort Benning from Ft. Belvoir, Va., where he served as commanding officer of the Combat Support Group, Combat Development Command. At Fort Benning, he commanded the Student Brigade from August 1968 until he came chief of staff in December 1968.

Col. Hatcher will serve as Deputy Post Commander until his retirement on 29 Feb. '72. He entered the service in August 1941 at Ft. McClellan, Ala.

He had served tours of duty in Japan and Germany, and was a advisor, Division and Training Center, Republic of Vietnam from July 1961 to June 1962.

He came to Fort Benning in July 1966 from an assignment in Europe and was named deputy post commander in July 1969.

Col. Willis J. Adams was director of Operations and Training for The Infantry Center when he retired Feb. '72. He was commissioned in the National Guard in July of 1940 and entered active service in September 1940. He served with the Eighth Infantry Division in Europe from July 1944 to May 1945.

Col. Adams was a U.S. Advisor to the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization in Bangkok, Thailand from 1966 to 1968, when he was assigned to Fort Benning.

Col. Robert M. Piper entered service in 1941, when he was commissioned after graduating from the university of New Hampshire. During World War II, Col. Piper served with the 508th Parachute Regiment in Europe, making four combat jumps. He joined the 40th Infantry Division in Korea in 1953, where he commanded the 1st Battalion of the 160th Infantry Regiment.

In 1967, Col. Piper joined the military Assistance Command in Vietnam and was deputy in the Training Directorate and later assistant senior advisor to the Vietnamese II Corps at Pleiku.

In July 1968 he assumed command of the newly organized Candidate Brigade of The Infantry School, and in April 1970 was assigned to the Marksman and Training Unit.

Col. Paul A. Walnes was serving as chief of the Supply and Service Branch at Martin Army Hospital when he retired Jan. 26.

Col. Walnes enlisted in the Army in June 1941, attending the Medical Service Corps Officer Candidate Course in 1943. He served in the Army until 1946, when he was released from active duty in January 1955.

He returned to active duty in September 1948. During his career he has served in Panama, Italy, Korea and Germany.

Col. James M. S. Strickland, who retires 1 Mar., '72, has been serving as chief of the Environmental Management Division.

He entered the Army at Camp Jackson, S.C., in July 1940, and commanded an anti-tank company with the 13th Infantry, Eighth Division, during its move to the European Theater of Operations in December of 1943.

He was assigned to Korea in 1953 and served as commander of the Third Battalion, 9th Infantry Regiment, 2nd Infantry Division.

Col. Strickland came to Fort Benning in June 1971 after a tour of duty in Puerto Rico, and was assigned to the post he held at retirement.

Bob Hope tickets go on sale Feb. 23

BY BILL DIEHL

Tickets to the March 16-18 Bob Hope appearance at a golf green Higgins Columbus Municipal Auditorium will go on sale at this kind of arrangement, as it allows him to be close to his audience. "None of the effort to raise funds for construction of a new National Infantry Museum at Fort Benning.

Mrs. Richard Stoltz, president of the Fort Benning Officers Wives Club (OWC), said that the tickets will be sold at several of the "heavy-traffic" areas on post, probably at Infantry Hall, the PX-Commissary area and Martin Army Hospital.

Tickets will also be available through special services channels, said Mrs. Stoltz. Col. (ret.) W. J. Higgins, executive director of the Infantry Museum Association, Inc. said that Hope will be the guest of honor at an OWC luncheon on March 16, but that the remainder of the comedian's afternoon plans are still under study.

The evening appearance in Columbus will be presented "in the round," with Hope performing from a central stage about the size of a golf green. Higgins said Hope prefers this kind of arrangement, as it allows him to be close to his audience. "None of the effort to raise funds for construction of a new National Infantry Museum at Fort Benning.

Mrs. Richard Stoltz, president of the Fort Benning Officers Wives Club (OWC), said that the tickets will be sold at several of the "heavy-traffic" areas on post, probably at Infantry Hall, the PX-Commissary area and Martin Army Hospital.

PTA to meet

The next meeting of the Baker High School PTA will be on Feb. 23, 1972 at 8:30 p.m. in the school cafeteria. The meeting will feature a discussion on "Parent-Teacher Relations" led by Chaplain (LTC) Richard Nybro of Fort Benning. Chaplain Nybro is a graduate of the American Institute of Family Relations and is a communications expert. All parents of Baker High School students are urged to attend this meeting.

Earn a pass

A five day pass will be granted to any enlisted person who is responsible for the reenlistment of an inductee or first term soldier.

Childbirth preparation class offered

Private classes in the Lamaze method of childbirth preparation now are being offered in this area.

The five, two-hour weekly classes are held in small groups. Expectant mothers or couples should begin the course approximately eight weeks before the baby is due and will need their doctor's permission to enroll.

For more information call Mrs. Muriel Hiltnerbach at 545-1338 or Mrs. Marie Imai at 545-5446.

In the Lamaze Method the young woman learns the physical and emotional processes involved in labor and delivery and practices controlled relaxation and a series of exercises and breathing techniques that minimize discomfort and help make childbearing a joyful experience.

This type of childbirth training is named after Dr. Fernand Lamaze, a French obstetrician, who began applying the learned response theories of the Russian scientist Pavlov in the 1930's. Instead of reacting to labor contractions with fear and anticipating pain, the expectant mother learns to react by breathing at a different rhythmic rate for each phase of labor.

Sometimes called "psychoprophylaxis," the Lamaze Method was introduced in this country in the early 1950's and has become increasingly popular. It has been described sometimes as "natural childbirth," but this is a confusing term. While lower animals rely on instinct to give birth, humans beings learn about the process from other persons. Lamaze training teaches a woman to use her body effectively — and if she is physically prepared — she can be more receptive to what can be a profound and beautiful experience.

Psychoprophylaxis does not necessarily allow childbirth without medication. Medication is often helpful to improve relaxation and need not impair a woman's awareness or affect her baby.

Lamaze training begins the last two months of pregnancy. The first classes concentrate on preparing the expectant mother or couple for their experience by discussing basic anatomy and physiology as well as each step of the process of labor and delivery. This alleviates unnecessary fear and apprehension. Special physical exercises to strengthen the muscles used most during pregnancy and childbirth are undergone.

Next, the classes focus on conditioning the body to perform effectively during labor and delivery. A woman learns to completely relax all muscles not used during childbirth as tension can increase pain and cause fatigue. She does this by learning and practicing a series of relaxation exercises which give her knowledge of and control over the various muscle groups in her body. Secondly, she learns to control the pain of childbirth by creating a new stronger center of concentration which diminishes her awareness of uterine pain. This is possible by concentrating on various techniques of breathing which are related to the different stages of labor. The controlled relaxation and appropriate breathing techniques enable the mother to minimize the discomfort of childbirth.

Command, General Staff College changes curriculum

Several changes in curriculum and instructional method go into effect this August at the US Army Command and General Staff College (CGSC).

Of the 1972-73 academic year will take part in seminar and discussion group classes with a lower student-to-teacher ratio, students will receive a greater choice of courses and new stress on individual research.

In addition, students will be required of the instructors, and the CGSC graduate can look forward to an enhanced image for his diploma.

At the CGSC, where the Army prepares its most promising field grade officers for all aspects of command, the following changes are in store:

— a streamlining of the common curriculum, the body of courses required for all CGSC students;

— a new "professional elective" program in which the student can learn more about areas of interest to him than the present common curriculum can teach;

— modernized and improved educational methods, including seminars and smaller class sizes, plus two-hour blocks of instruction to replace three-hour blocks;

— improved equipment, especially for the school's closed-circuit TV system; in-service training and escalating standards for the college's instructors.

The changes have been encouraged in a series of studies and surveys, beginning with the Haines Board of 1966. At that time, Gen. Ralph Haines, now Commanding General of the U.S. Continental Army Command, said the allocation of 10 per cent of school time to electives was, at best, just a start.

Last month, in a new report on Army Officer Education, Maj. Gen. Frank Norris further encouraged the CGSC to go beyond the "one-course, one-curriculum" system. This accords with the Army's current tendency toward increased specialization among officers.

A recent survey of Army generals and another survey of this year's CGSC class also showed strong support for the electives concept.

The common curriculum of seven required courses will be trimmed to occupy just 60 per cent of the year's study. One course is being cut two-thirds in hours, and three others will be one-third shorter. Some of the reduced course materials will be reassigned, and some will be transferred to one of the 10 new professional electives.

The electives represent the most extreme change, covering in depth: advanced tactics, logistics, joint operations, management, high staff, security assistance and intelligence.

During the first semester, study will be 50 per cent common curriculum, with other time allocated to guest speakers, individual study and an "associate elective." (One associate elective will be required each semester, as is the case this year.)

The heavy stress on common curriculum during the first semester will ensure that officer students cover prerequisites of the professional electives.

During the second semester, only 40 per cent of the officer student's time will be spent on common curriculum. Each student will study four professional electives, two each term.

Instruction in the electives will be given by the same four faculty departments that teach the common curriculum: Command, Division Operations; Larger Unit Operations; and Joint, Combined and Special Operations.

Helping in the effort to improve the student-teacher ratio is the fact that next year's CGSC class will be 20 per cent smaller than this year's — about 1,100 next year. The number of officer students from allied nations is expected to remain the same, representing somewhat less than 10 per cent of next year's class. Each class also has several students from the other American services.

It is hoped each student can have a "meaningful research experience" during his CGSC study, and individual work will be emphasized. The stress will be on problem solving instead of skill training.

The CGSC faculty, meanwhile, will still be drawn in large part from recent graduates, but higher standards are due for instructors in terms of professional experience or education. Instructors in the management electives, for example, will be required to have advanced management degrees. In addition, more will be expected of faculty in combined training and education.

Dr. Ivan Birzer, CGSC educational advisor, has stressed that the mission of the college is still to prepare commanders for the Army in the field. But it is hoped the changes will satisfy the need for specialization as well as enhance a more meaningful help make the CGSC experience.

Your girlfriends can get you pregnant faster than your husband.

Scientists who look like these "over-the-hill" fellows have discovered that you can get pregnant faster than your husband. In fact, they've found that women who have sex with older men get pregnant faster than women who have sex with younger men. So, if you're having trouble getting pregnant, you should consider having sex with an older man. It's not just a joke, it's a fact. And if you're a man, you should consider having sex with a younger woman. It's not just a joke, it's a fact. So, if you're having trouble getting pregnant, you should consider having sex with an older man. It's not just a joke, it's a fact. And if you're a man, you should consider having sex with a younger woman. It's not just a joke, it's a fact.

Unreadable address may slow one's tax return

"Where is my refund?" is a question asked by thousands of taxpayers every year. For many, the answer is that the refund is held up because the Post Office cannot deliver the check. One reason is that the taxpayer's name or address is unreadable on the return. This can be avoided by using the pre-addressed label on the return filed. Taxpayers should peel the label off the outside of the tax forms package and place it on the return filed. Good records can save claimed deductions. In addition to saving tax dollars, good recordkeeping makes preparation of the tax return a much easier task.

Rankin House grabs mood of 19th century

Tendrils of Spanish moss cling to oaks standing sentinel on the lawn. Freshly painted grillwork weaves a delicate filigree about the lower veranda of the house. A flying balcony juts from the second story to accent mangled-tailor brick. In the soft morning mist curls through a tree canopy as fishermen stroll to a day of catfishing on the banks of the Chattahoochee.

For an instant, the stillness of 1850 seems to haunt around Rankin House. Described as an "historic house museum of 1850-1870," Rankin House is on the corner of 14th Street and Second Avenue in Columbus. The house recently was restored by the Historic Columbus Foundation and is one of the main attractions of the weekly Heritage Tours. The interior of Rankin House has been returned in mid-19th century

WAC's offer summer trial

The Army has established the College Junior Program to evaluate your potential as an officer in the Women's Army Corps and let you experience on-the-job whether such a career is the one for you. This program provides four weeks of summer training as a Cadet Captain at 149 other college juniors at Ft. McClellan, Ala. Transportation is paid by the Army. Meals, lodging, uniforms, and a month's salary of approximately $360.00 are provided the trainees. At the end of four weeks you may then choose to end your association with the Army or, if you qualify, elect to be part of the Student Officer Program. The Student Officer Program pays $426.00 a month during your senior year in college and entitles you to

McQueen reviews

Hoffman's acting, director's artistry stand out in film

EDITOR'S NOTE: Reviewer Dave McQueen is a leave of absence. This week's article has been contributed by another member of the post-information Office.

Heaven and earth are ruthless and treat the myriad creatures as straw dogs that deserve to be crushed.

BY ROB McVAYNE
Can a pacifist survive in the face of heckling, intimidation and brute assault without falling prey to the same instincts? Sam Peckinpah ("The Wild Country") has modeled a chilling negative to the question in his latest comment on the human condition, "Straw Dogs." The intelligent, moody, and nihilistic David has been given a great deal of material to trim enough in those areas to earn an "A" rating. Yet you needn't subscribe to the movie's message to admire Peckinpah's artistry as a director and Dustin Hoffman's superb performance as David, the baited pony who checkmates with a vengeance. The scenario is framed against England's bleak Cornish countryside and centers around an isolated farmhouse a mile or so from a Hertfordshire village. David, a young American mathematician and his wife, (Susan Hunt), have rented the farmhouse. David is a young man with a different reason for his refusal to take a stand in the world. As an outsider and the husband of an unbridled snowbird, David attracts the jibes and jeers of bullies

Plan pinochle contest Sunday

The Main Post service club will sponsor a double-deck pinochle marathon Sunday. Registration will begin at 1 p.m. on the day of the event, and a briefing on house rules and other information will be held a half hour later. A trophy will be awarded to the person with the highest score, and a prize to the runner-up. For additional information call 646-404 or 125 between 1 and 10 p.m. daily.

to turn him over to the mob who has sworn to "tear 'em up." Defeating the mob in a fight crystallizes David's philosophy into a fighting stand against the lousy, yelling, "this is where I live," he inacts a vengeance defense that is fascinating for its blood-curdling precision.

David's coming of age is Peckinpah's sledge hammer expression of the "Straw Dogs" theme; the whole movie leads up to that point like a sizzling time fuse. If the movie had been cut after the last shotgun blast, all would have ended well. Unfortunately, it doesn't.

Post personnel to appear in Springer production

Six members of the Fort Benning community are helping to produce the production of "ROSE MARIE" in the Spring Theatre Company. The production is an extravaganza musical comedy of the 1920's. With book and lyrics by Otto Harbach and Oscar Hammerstein II, the theatrical elan and spirit of the Spring Theatre Company, and the refurbished grandeur of the old opera house as ingredients, "ROSE MARIE" should prove the stuff of an enjoyable evening.

"ROSE MARIE" will run through Feb. 26 with an 8:30 p.m. curtain time; there will be a special matinee this Sunday at 2:30 p.m. For reservations and information, call 327-3682.

Uncle Remus had origin in Atlanta newspaper

Newspapers have been the stepping stone for many great American writers. Among the best was Joel Chandler Harris, whose tales of Uncle Remus, a simple and uneducated slave who became a local teacher, Walt Disney found the Remus characters to be resoundingly successful. He also added a human element to the cast in James Baskett as Uncle Remus; Bobby Driscoll and Luana Patten in juvenile roles; and Lucille Watson, who played the character through the years.

The columns soon appeared in book form, were translated into 16 languages and became best sellers surpassed by only six world classics.

In the movie, "Song of the South," now playing at a local theater, Walt Disney found the Remus characters to be resoundingly successful. He also added a human element to the cast in James Baskett as Uncle Remus; Bobby Driscoll and Luana Patten in juvenile roles; and Lucille Watson, who played the character through the years.

McDaniel in other parts.

'I see the light'

Sandy Duncan shows they Roberts that there is a slay side to her personality in "Star Spangled Girl," now showing at post theaters. This picture concerns the adventures of a patriotic-minded, small town girl who got mixed up with a couple of underground newspaper publishers.

Synopsis

the big city and gets involved with two underground newspaper publishers, who fall in love with her despite her "outmoded" views.

MAKING IT (Rated R) — Kristofer Tabor plays a smugly self-sufficient high school student who knows that his mother's weekend "street trips" are really romantic rendezvous. But when Mom's fiancée is killed in a car crash, leaving her pregnant, Kristofer arranges for an abortion.

DESPERATE CHARACTERS (Rated R) — Kenneth Mars and Shirley MacLaine portray a childless couple who lives in a renovated brownstone near Brooklyn Heights. Their relationship has decayed over the years and the two find themselves trapped in an existence they merely tolerate.

A TOWN CALLED HELL (Rated R) — This little hot spot brings together a revolutionary priest who has returned to his calling, a vengeful woman who offers gold for the murderer of her husband, a fanatical colonel who vows to track down a revolutionary hero and a brutal bandit who launches forays throughout the countryside.

Director sees play as applicable

To director Dennis Seely, one of the fascinating aspects of "Blithe Spirit" is its applicability to any period.

The play — the Fort Benning Dramatizers' entry in this year's 3rd Army Tourna ment of Plays — reveals that man is protected from his real existence by an insulated shield. A second theme of the production is man's ultimate victory over the female.

Seely developed an interest in "Blithe Spirit" during his junior year in college. At that time, he had to choose a play to produce as his senior thesis project. Class discussion led him to Noel Coward.

He began his research by reading Coward's two part autobiography, "Present Indicative" and "Future Indefinite." After deciding on "Blithe Spirit," Seely read extensively about spiritualism.

participation in competitive speaking. As part of his speech training, he was sent to the college theatre. Four years later, Seely earned his bachelor of arts degree in theatre.

During that time, he acted in a number of plays including "The Good Woman of Setzwan," "Zoo Story" and two productions of "A Midsummer Night's Dream." Seely's main interest, however, was in the technical aspects of theatre.

He designed sets for "Fumed Oak," "No Exit," "American Dream" and "A Midsummer Night's Dream." Besides his college work, Seely participated in productions at the U.S. International University School of the Performing Arts and at the Old Globe Theatre in San Diego, Calif.

Seely's work earned him membership in Alpha Psi Omega, the national honors fraternity for drama majors.

VA selects hearing aid models for '72

The Veterans Administration has announced its selection of hearing aid models for Contract Year 1972.

The models, to be issued to approximately 8,000 veterans in 1972, were chosen from samples designed to correct the three groups of hearing loss most common to the veteran population.

The VA evaluated the various models by acoustic and electronic testing and assigned a performance quality rating to each. After price factors were taken into consideration, aids were chosen on a "cost-per-point of quality" basis. Additional hearing aid models were also selected on the basis of clinical need for those veterans with hearing problems that cannot be corrected with conventional aids.

VA officials said individuals with hearing problems should take into account the following factors concerning the agency's hearing aid program:

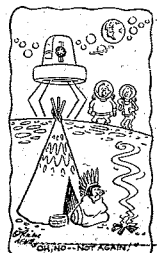

There is no "best" hearing aid for all individuals. Aids that test well for one individual may not test well for someone else. VA's general advice to a person with a hearing disability is to seek professional guidance in obtaining the aid best suited to the particular problem.

Primarily, VA provides hearing aids only to veterans whose hearing disability is the result of military service. For further information these veterans should contact their nearest VA office or hospital.

Doughboys split series with McClellan, slip to fourth

The Fort Benning Doughboy Basketball team lost the first game but came back to win the second game of a two game series played against Ft. McClellan last weekend.

The split series dropped the Doughboys to fourth place in the team standings in the Western Division of the Third Army Basketball League.

Lawrence Varndoe and Ben Colsten of the McClellan team each scored 26 points to lead McClellan to a 99 to 91 victory in the first game played at Briant Wells Field House Friday evening. High scorers for the Doughboys were John Black with 26 points, John Sturdevant with 12, Elbert Tarrents and Carlton with 11 points each and Dale Overman with 10 points.

Tarrents was high scorer for the Doughboys in their 89 to 67 win on Saturday. Tarrents scored 28 points, Black 18 points and William Russell 15 points for Benning while Campbell contributed 18, Varndoe 14 and Jim Ward 13 points for McClellan.

In other Western Division games played last weekend Ft. Campbell won two games from Ft. McPherson and Ft. Rucker two from Redstone Arsenal.

McClellan leads the Western Division with 12 wins and 6 losses, Rucker is in second place with 11 wins and 6 losses, Campbell is third with 11 wins and 7 losses and Benning fourth with 10 wins and 8 losses. Redstone Arsenal and Ft. McPherson, the other two teams in the division are out of the running for the championship playoffs to be held at Ft. McClellan Feb. 27 through March 3. Redstone has 8 wins and 10 losses and McPherson has won one game out of 15.

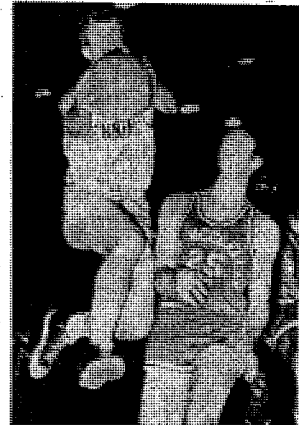

This weekend the Doughboys play two games at Briant Wells Field House against McPherson. The first game will start this evening at 7:30 p.m. The second game at 1:30 p.m. tomorrow afternoon.

In other games this weekend Rucker will play two games against McClellan at Ft. McClellan and Campbell two games against Redstone at Redstone Arsenal.

McClellan leads the Western Division with 12 wins and 6 losses, Rucker is in second place with 11 wins and 6 losses, Campbell is third with 11 wins and 7 losses and Benning fourth with 10 wins and 8 losses. Redstone Arsenal and Ft. McPherson, the other two teams in the division are out of the running for the championship playoffs to be held at Ft. McClellan Feb. 27 through March 3. Redstone has 8 wins and 10 losses and McPherson has won one game out of 15.

MTU captain wins rifle championship of indoor tournament

MELBOURNE Fla., — Capt. Boyd D. Goldsby of the U.S. Army Marksmanship Training Unit and Little Rock, Ark., grabbed the Grand Aggregate Championship of the Four-Position Sectional Open Indoor Rifle tournament Sunday while he and his team mates captured three of the four individual matches and the team championship.

In the team events, the U.S. Army "Black" quartet compiled a winning combination of 1597 of a possible 1600 to grab the championship crown from a surging Patrick AFB Airman team. An Army team from Ft. Bragg N.C. took third place honors with 1584. The winning team included Schumacher, Beard, Mitchell and Goldsby.

Forty mixed civilian, Army Reserve and Army competitors swapped shots in the NRA Registered Open Sectional to determine the Championship event and an attempt to capture the National Indoor Championship. The latter honor will not be determined until all the scores from sectionals all over the nation have been compared at the National headquarters later this year.

The Fort Benning based Smallbore rifle team was denied in only one position event, the sitting match, when W. West of Florida topped the large field and beat out Schumacher by one X with his 200-18X. Goldsby was a close third with 199.

The Georgia squad started off strong in the weekend tourney when three of its marksmen, Sp5 Burke Pinnell, Beard and 1st Lt. Robert Mitchell, slammed a perfect 20 shots into their targets for a 200 - 20 X to take the prone event.

Dominating the action, the Army marksmen continued to crowd the victors stand as Goldsby took the second match, the standing event, with his 193 and then Schumacher made it a day when he came on strong with his 200-15 in the kneeling match.

A considerable number of people who use the reservation for hunting and other type recreation can't read a map or don't bother to look at one. Range Control Personnel, Game Wardens and other officials who have responsibility for activities in various outlying areas on post continue to find people where they interfere with training or run a great risk of becoming casualties.

Recently many man hours of training time were wasted because two outdoorsmen wandered into one of the active artillery ranges. The artillery was all set up and ready to fire a practice fire mission when an alert forward observer noticed the two in the impact area. The fire order was cancelled and artillerymen moved down range to remove the safety hazards.

These men came mighty close to a frightening or maybe even a fatal experience. Any military man who has been responsible for safety during a firing exercise of any type knows this can be an aging experience without any unusual or foolish events. It doesn't take too many incidents of this type to make officials start figuring ways to reduce the amount of liability which might be placed on their shoulders if someone is injured or killed. This usually involves additional, time consuming work for the personnel in charge of firing and a more restrictive use of the real estate. — More guards, extend the safety fan and keep the range area off limits.

Another case where the outdoorsman has cut his own throat: Anyone using real estate on the reservation must keep in mind that the primary purpose for having these areas is to conduct military training. Everything else must be subordinate to this mission. When recreation interferes with training the recreation must go. Consider too the individuals who are responsible for the safe conduct of training. Promising military careers have been ruined by accidents on ranges.

Check These Maps

People who use the woods, streams and ponds on the reservation must learn to check Range Maps before they go into an area. An area that is open today may be closed tomorrow. Maps are posted every day and they must be checked every day before going into the field. When an individual finds an area open the boundaries of the area should also be ascertained and all activities restricted to these boundaries. It's not enough to know these boundaries on the map, you must be able to recognize them on the ground. There are many dud and other dangerous areas on post. Wandering around aimlessly or lost is dangerous.

The Post Range Control maintains three maps which show areas that are open and closed. These maps are located at the Rod and Gun Club, Bldg. 459, Harmony Church Area, The Range Control Office, located at Bldg. 2621, on Main Post just off Dixie Road and the Provost Marshal Office, Bldg. 215, on Wold Avenue, Main Post.

Check one of the maps each time you go into the field. Wondering whether or not the area you are using is cleared can take a lot of enjoyment out of the days fun.

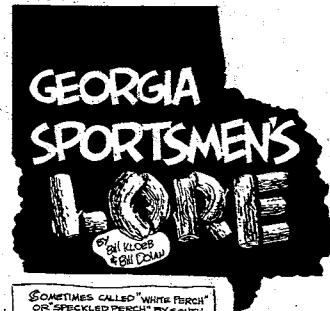

Small Game Contest

According to Tim McClellan, club custodian, more than 300 hunters have registered for the Rod and Gun Club Small Game Contest. Of course all of them haven't qualified for a chance at one of the prizes. McClellan says about 80 hunters have bagged enough game to get their name in the box.

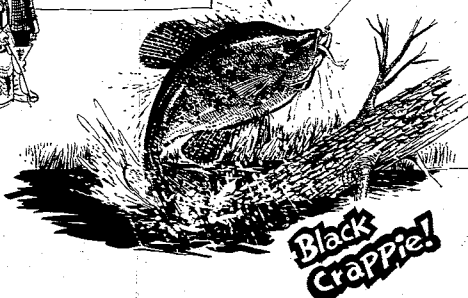

The Rod and Gun Club is offering three Remington pump-action shotguns, $75 in merchandise and 30 boxes of shotgun shells to winners in the contest.

To be eligible for one of the prizes a member must register 12 quail, six rabbits or eight squirrels at the club during the month of February. All of the game does not have to be registered at the same time. Hunters may register any portion of the requirement on any day during the month.

Prize winners will be determined and prizes awarded at 7:30 p.m. March 3 at the Rod and Gun Club. Anyone interested may obtain additional information by calling 545-6029 or visit the club, located on First Division Road about one quarter mile south of Highway 27.

Post mess steward makes dining hall ship shape

By BILL DIEHL
A trip to the mess hall of the 54th Personnel Service Company, 931st Engineer Group (CBT) is a sensory experience that goes beyond the scent and taste of Army chow.

Thanks to the efforts of one of Fort Benning's unusual artists and craftsmen, SFC Raymond Hoffman, it is a visual experience as well.

In the past few months, Hoffman, mess steward of the 23rd Replacement Company (which has consolidated mess facilities with the 53th), has conducted a one-man mess hall beautification program. A mess steward by trade, Hoffman has used his avocational talents for painting and model ship-building to turn the 54th mess hall into one of the most pleasant dining areas on post.

Eight of Hoffman's large original landscapes line the walls, providing diners with an atmosphere of mountains, lakes and forests.

Handcrafted models of old sailing ships — sloops, frigates and galleons — grace the shelves on pillars throughout the messhall.

"Although Hoffman is pleased with his paintings, the ships are his pride and joy. 'I built them all from scratch, without the use of kits or models,' Hoffman said. 'My materials consist of bits of balsa wood, toothpicks, string, and old window shades for the sails. I work from pictures and paintings of historical naval boats, and make my models as accurate as I can.'

Hoffman, who in his military career has spent three years in the Seabees, three years in the Navy Reserve and 22 years in the Army, said that once he "gets going" on a ship, he has a hard time putting it down. "Most of my models take an average of three days to complete," he says. The mess steward said he doesn't plan to retire "until they make me," but is looking forward to the day when he can devote all his energies to his hobbies.

"I never took an art or craft lesson in my life, but I believe it's my obligation to improve what I consider my God-given gift before I leave this world. Once I get out of the Army, I intend to go to art school in Columbus for a while, and eventually open up a little hobby and art shop somewhere in the Columbus area," Hoffman said.

Although Hoffman says he's not sure how much his boats and paintings are worth and "doesn't really care too much about it," he's proud to have been able to produce them so cheaply for the messhall.

Everybody coming to or leaving Fort Benning has an opportunity to eat in the mess hall Hoffman has decorated. The 23rd dining facility located in Bldg. 75-B across the quarter from the Welcome Center is open to all transient personnel and their families in a PCS status. Food costs and dining hours can be determined by calling 545-3653.

He has "given most of my stuff away to friends and relatives. I'm always surprised when someone finds me he actually wants to decorate his house with something I've done — but I'm pleased at the same time," he admitted.

Nuclear attack simulated

By WILLIAM BALM
In a simulated field training exercise last week, low yield nuclear devices were unleashed on a number of major cities in the southeast.

Members of the 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry, 197th Infantry Brigade were called in to secure an enemy radar and communications site in Albany, Ga.

The community of Albany was very gracious towards the men of the 197th. Following the mock war the men were offered rides to see the sights of the city. Also a steak dinner was enjoyed by the public and the men of the 1st Bn., 29th Inf.

While traveling down the Flint River the men performed search and destroy operations that led them to Andersonville Prison Camp. The members of the 1st Bn., 29th Inf. executed liberation procedures which led to the freedom of the men that occupied Andersonville Prison.

Finally landing in Albany, the 75 ART soldiers were approximately two miles from the National Guard Armory. A reconnaissance patrol was sent out to recon the area. Eventually finding the enemy holding the Armory the attack plans were made.

The ART troops overpowered the enemy and were able to restore peace to the cities in the Southeast.

The five day expedition ended Feb. 10 with an airlift by CH 47 (Chinook) helicopter.

Pioneer Day slated for Tuesday

BY RAY CHESNUT
Nearly 150 years of history will be celebrated by the 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry, 19th Infantry Brigade Feb. 29 at its "Pioneer Day Celebration."

Honored guests at the celebration will be former members of the 1-29th who will be arriving from all over the southeast for the occasion.
Highlighting the day's festivities will be a sports car rally, a scout dog demonstration, an old Army equipment display, an antique automobile display and a rock combo with Go-Go girls in the evening, as well as many other static displays including an equipment display of prototype equipment under test by the Infantry Agency, and a track vehicle display.

The Fountain City Chapter of the Antique Automobile Club of America will provide the antique cars for the celebration. On display will be more than a dozen old cars, including a 1929 Duesenberg Town Car, several Model "A" Fords, a 1938 Rolls Royce Town Car, 1949 Cadillac Convertible, a 1919 Harley Davidson Motorcycle with side car, and several others.

The automobiles are all restored to original condition and will be on display throughout the day. The club members will be available to answer questions concerning the cars.
In preparation for the Pioneer Day celebration, the 1-29th has adopted the nickname of the "Pioneers" and has received from the United States Army Infantry Museum a 1909 Army Escort Wagon and has had it restored to be used as a permanent Pioneer Day celebration, at battalion headquarters.

Schedules of events for Feb. 29, 1972:
7:30 A.M. — 5 P.M. Antique Automobile Show (1st Battalion Display Building)
8:30 A.M. — 1 P.M. Equipment Display (1st Battalion Display Building)

Marine Drum and Bugle Corps here February 29

The United States Marine Drum and Bugle Corps and the famed Marine Corps Silent Drill Team will be appearing here at Fort Benning Feb. 29.

The Drum and Bugle Corps and the Drill Team are visiting here as part of their East Coast tour, appearing at various bases performing "Stirring music and precision drill." They will travel from February 28 to March 4.

After their scheduled appearance here, the Marines will continue on to Paris Island, S. C.

The Marines will appear at Presidential Field, in the area of the 1971 Infantry Brigade at 9:30 a.m. and York Field opposite Infantry Hall at 12:00 p.m. Their exhibition perpetuates the image of the razor-sharp "parade ground" Marine.

The 90 some Marines are stationed at Marine Barracks, Washington, D. C., the "Oldest Post of the Corps." They are entrusted with the Marine Colors by virtue of their age and historic importance. The men stationed there perform many duties including security details for the President of the United States, appearing in the Evening Parade and Marine Corps War Memorial ceremonies and operating the Marine Corps correspondence school, the Marine Corps Institute.

The Drum and Bugle Corps is under the direction of Warrant Officer Gary L. Losey.

Marine Drum and Bugle Corps

The United States Marine Drum and Bugle Corps, shown executing one of the many intricate maneuvers of the famous Color Ceremony, will appear Feb. 29 at Fort Benning for a performance at York Field. Precision drill and exciting musical arrangements are combined in the 38-minute Color Ceremony, which the internationally-famous Corps has performed at a variety of civil affairs, historical celebrations, sports events, and other local, national and international events and ceremonies.

Bob Hope tickets available today

Admission tickets for the Bob Hope benefit, to be held at 8 p.m. March 16 in the Columbus Municipal Auditorium, will go on sale today at Fort Benning.
The tickets will be available throughout major troop units and at ticket booths at the following locations and times: Infantry Hall, 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.; Main Post Exchange — 11 a.m. to 3 p.m.; and the entrance lobby at Martin Army Hospital — 10:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m.

The booths will be operated by members of the Non-Commissioned Officers and Officers Wives Clubs. The tickets will be sold on Feb. 25, 28 and 29 and March 1 and 2.
Ticket prices will range from $5 to $15.

New museum needed to handle old Infantry relics

BY BILL DIEHL
Moving into the new U. S. Infantry Museum, currently scheduled to open to the public in 1976, will be a mammoth task for John E. Hunter, curator of the present museum at Fort Benning. But Hunter is looking forward to it.

"The present museum, a converted barracks, has several drawbacks from the curator's point of view," Hunter said. "Because of the size of this museum, we can handle only a fraction of the 14,000 artifacts and 200,000 documents and photographs we own," he commented. "Only 15,000 square feet are available for displaying exhibits requiring 40,000 square feet."

"The building is not climate-controlled, and temperatures within it range from 40 degrees on a cold winter morning to 25 degrees on a hot summer afternoon. "This has an adverse effect on both visitor comfort and artifact preservation," Hunter said.

Economically, Hunter said, the new museum will probably bring tourists to the Columbus-Phenix city area in substantial numbers.

"Military museums have a record of drawing large crowds," Hunter explained. "Attendance last year at the Air Force Museum in Dayton, Ohio, was more than 90,000 people. About 300,000 visited the Patton Museum at Ft. Knox."

"At Fort Benning, 49,253 visited the present Infantry Museum in 1971 — an increase of nearly 67 percent over 1970.

Fort Benning's new Infantry museum, to be built east of Infantry Hall on seven acres donated by the Army, will cost $6 million. A national fundraising campaign, conducted by the Infantry Museum Association, Inc., will begin solicitations in 14 major cities throughout the nation this month.

Comedian Bob Hope is coming to Fort Benning and Columbus March 16 for a benefit performance which will help raise funds for the new museum.

Col. (ret.) W. J. Higgins Jr., executive director of the Infantry Museum Association, said that by appearing at the "Home of the Infantry" to acknowledge the project dedicated to the memorialization of the American Infantry campaign."

man, Bob Hope will be giving a tremendous boost to the beginning of our national campaign."

Overseas tour policies changed

WASHINGTON (ANF) — Several policies regarding overseas assignments have been changed by the Department of the Army.

Effective April 1, 1972, personnel serving overseas will be permitted to request a voluntary extension of their overseas tours up to a maximum of five years.

Effective July 1, 1972, individuals will be required to have sufficient service remaining to complete the full overseas assignment tour to be eligible for transportation of dependents overseas.

Effective July 1, 1972, career personnel issued assignment instructions will be required to have sufficient service to complete the full overseas tour. Other personnel will be required to have a minimum of 12 months of service remaining, as of the date originally scheduled for them to report to the overseas replacement station or port-of-entry as specified by the assignment instructions.

Volunteers for duty in the Republic of Vietnam or Korea serving overseas will be required to complete at least 18 months of the normal tour in the line of duty and 12 months after arrival of dependents, whichever is longer, before departing the overseas command for Vietnam or Korea.

The current provision which permits personnel to volunteer for duty in Vietnam in a military occupation (specific and presently held) will be eliminated.

Officers and warrant officers serving in stabilized positions will not be permitted to volunteer for overseas service (except for Vietnam) until they have completed at least five-sixths of the stabilized tour. They will not be reassigned until completion of the stabilized tour.

197h tests Dragon

The "Delta Dragons" of the 1st Battalion, 58th Infantry Brigade have been given the task of testing the XM47 Surface Attack Guided Missile System (Dragon Missile) at Fort Benning.

D Company of the 1-58th Infantry, nicknamed the "Dragons" were selected by the Infantry Board to do the testing because they are a TO&E mechanized rifle company with both leg and track capability typical of the units that would use the Dragon Missile in the field.

The Dragon is a portable, wire-guided, anti-tank missile which has a disposable tracker unit.

Testing procedures for the missile include a four-phase program to be carried out over the year.

Phase one is the actual testing of the weapon to see if all test equipment will work.

Phase two includes determining that kind of training the Dragon gunner will need and how to incorporate it into the unit as a replacement for the 90mm recoilless rifle.

Soldiers of the 1st Battalion, Delta Company, 1st Battalion, 29th work on the Domestic Action project at Greenville, S.C. The unit is part of the 197th Infantry Brigade.

Pvt. Claude L. Liggins, left, and Pvt. Joe K. Goodwin, right, are clearing away debris on one of the Greenville recreation sites.

197th joins civilians in "Project Together"

Twenty-six soldiers from the 197th Infantry Brigade have received widespread recognition for their participation in "Project Together," a joint military-civilian effort to build three new recreation areas in Greenville, S.C.

The men, all from the 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry, were cited Tuesday by the Greenville City Council, and Thursday the State Legislature in Columbia, S.C., adopted a resolution in their honor.

The soldiers are scheduled to return to Fort Benning this weekend.

During the past two weeks, they have worked side by side with Reserve unit soldiers from Greenville, many high school and college students and city employees on the recreation sites.

The Benning soldiers began landscaping the areas last week following bulldozing and grading work by elements of Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 391st Engineer Battalion of the U.S. Army Reserve in Greenville.

Sites on Spartanburg Street, Sullivan Street and in the Nicholson area of Greenville are involved in the "Project Together" work. Each site will provide a recreation center for children, including playground equipment installed by the soldiers. A baseball field has been surveyed on the Sullivan Street site.

Part of the project's financing was provided by a federal grant from the department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD). The remainder of the cost is being paid by the City of Greenville and the Downtown Greenville Association (DGA), a group of Greenville business executives, and sizable material contributions are being made by individual merchants.

The city is providing billeting, breakfast and dinner for the soldiers and Greenville eating firms are providing lunch.

The 197th unit planned the project

Pvt. Jesse Shepard raises the guidon of the 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry in Greenville.

in conjunction with David Gibbons, executive director of the DGA and SFC Jim Ryals, an Army recruiter in Greenville. SFC Ryals obtained the help of the Army following a talk with a unit officer about Greenville's need for assistance in building the parks.

Local high school students and ROTC students from nearby Furman and Bob Jones Universities assisted the soldiers and Army Reservists during the weekend.

All of the soldiers from the 197th Brigade working on the project are unit-of-choice enlistees in the Army and recent graduates of the 197th's new Advanced Individual Training (AIT) program.

The troops are scheduled to leave Greenville Feb. 26 to return to Fort Benning.

Soldiers from the 197th Infantry Brigade involved in the domestic action project at Greenville, S.C., have dinner provided by the City of Greenville. The city also provided billeting for the 26 soldiers.

Drug program is tested

FT. BRAGG, N.C. (ANF) — SPARTAN PATHFINDER, an experience in the wilderness, is a new rehabilitation process being tested at Ft. Bragg, N.C., for stockade inmates and drug-dependent personnel.

Developed by Headquarters XVIII Airborne Corps and the U.S. Army John F. Kennedy Center for Military Assistance, SPARTAN PATHFINDER is designed to provide self-confidence and self-awareness for the potential rehabilitates.

Similar to the civilian OUTWARD BOUND program, SPARTAN PATHFINDER uses the challenge of adventure for an extended period of time to help character development.

Groups of 12 volunteers, usually made up of equal numbers of inmates, drug-users and interested enlisted men, go out on each cycle. The selectees are chosen by a panel of medical officers, a Judge Advocate General Corps officer and a correctional officer.

To date, three groups have undergone the SPARTAN PATHFINDER program. For assessment purposes, the duration of the program for each group varied from 14 to 26 days.

Full evaluation of the program will be done after the next cycle completes the training in February.

Preliminary evaluation of program participants indicates stockade inmates have a greater desire to face stress situations and return to active duty than do their drug-dependent counterparts. The inmates also are more willing to accept the challenges of the program.

Submitted to the outdoors for periods of one to four weeks, each soldier is exposed to the elements of nature, camping and hiking while relying only on personal and group resources.

Stressing self-understanding, compassion and a commitment to serve others, the program also includes instruction in rock climbing, rappelling, first-aid, fire fighting and survival training. In addition, each participant in SPARTAN PATHFINDER must negotiate a confidence course, a six-mile run, a three-day survival course with minimum gear, expeditions in land navigation and water crossings.

Special Forces Groups also have used the same concept to help physically disabled, wounded and retarded children.

Project referral

Military personnel who are registered with Project Referral are invited to visit the referral counselor in Room 291, Section A, Building 83.

The Job Order Summary for the period Dec. 11, 71 through Jan. 10, 72 is now available for registrants and personnel who plan to retire within the next six months.

IT'S AN OBSCENE PHONE CALL—FOR YOU!

The phone company has begun a new campaign designed to make obscene and annoying phone calls a thing of the past. One aspect of the campaign involves the use of new electronic equipment to quickly trace the origin of an obscene phone call, making it easier to catch the offender. Some types of equipment can be activated without the offender's knowledge while the call is still in progress. Other types can insure that a number is traced after the call has been completed.

- The second aspect of the campaign emphasizes the public's role in discouraging obscene or annoying calls. The phone company suggests the following guidelines for handling such calls:
- Never divulge information about yourself to unknown callers; many have dialed at random and don't even know who you are.
 - Instruct your children and baby-sitters never to talk to unfamiliar callers. Teach them to ask for a number so somebody can call back later.
 - If a caller remains silent or makes an obscene remark, quietly hang up. An obscene caller probably wants an audience; he won't have much fun performing for a dead line.
 - If obscene or annoying calls are repeatedly received, call the phone company and the police. The federal government and the 50 states now have laws against such calls. The phone company has the equipment to track down the offender; the police have the power to arrest him.

More people should get into ecology

There's been a lot of preaching lately about recycling solid waste in an attempt to generate some concern about the plight of our troubled environment. Despite all the hoop-la and haranguing, there seems to be only a dedicated few actually involved in positive action.

The post seems to be doing what it can through the Property Disposal Office and the vigilance of the Environmental Management Division. Engineer trucks have even started sporting anti-littering bumper stickers.

The Ecology Club (CURE) and the Environmental Workshop have rallied several post residents to channel concern and forge a little concrete action.

Yet there doesn't appear to be much foot in the way of activity among the staff sections and agencies that honeycomb the Infantry Center.

At the risk of blowing its own trumpet, the Information Office has been doing something that should prove positively contagious. For the past month, it's been recycling all of its used newspapers and scrap papers.

Approximately 250 to 300 pounds of paper have been carried off to the Post Recycle Plant each week during the run of the project. To make the transfer, it takes half an hour, a shopping cart (to get the papers down to the back entrance), a POV, and the cooperation of everyone in the office.

When the project first started there were the usual chukches of disbelief but in time the ribbing soon gave way to habit. Now recycling has become straight routine, much to the amazement and gratitude of the Infantry Hall cleaning team.

We're not so naive as to suggest that every office and section preserve its weekly output of scrap paper for a lightweight recycle run. That would only contribute to the traffic problem anyway.

Yet it would appear feasible to establish a central collection point for scrap paper generated by the combined offices and sections of each floor in Infantry Hall. Transfer to the Post Recycle Plant could be made each week on a rotating basis.

If a united effort begins here, it could spread to other major office areas around post. In time everyone could develop the habit of preaching less and practicing more the popular dictum, "Give a Foot—Don't Polke." (R. McJ.)

Emphysema:

A smoker's habit

By Lt. Col. Sidney H. Curtis, USAF

Pulmonary emphysema is a chronic, progressive lung disease which was almost unknown a generation ago. It produces breakdown of normal lung tissues, reducing in lungs which are less efficient than normal in providing oxygen to the body.

What does that mean? Very simply, it means a person with emphysema is always short of breath, is able to perform no exercise, and eventually can't even care for himself. The disease is progressive — that means it gets relentlessly worse, and can never be cured. Medical research has proven that a person with emphysema loses up to 6 per cent of his lung efficiency EACH YEAR, once the process starts, and as long as he continues to be exposed to the agent which produced his disease.

Cigarette smoking causes emphysema. This is a fact — no question about it. Other things can also cause it, but ordinarily one can't avoid those other things, but you can avoid exposure to cigarette smoke.

The relationship between emphysema and the number of cigarettes smoked isn't as constant as that in lung cancer. Anyway, there's really little to choose between being eaten up by cancer or dying of lack of oxygen, is there. It's really easier to simply stop smoking.

Old war stories liven up post reenlistment

By RILL DIEHL
Reenlistment may not be so dull and routine — it might depend somewhat on how good a war story is used to start things off.

War stories! All soldiers at Fort Benning hear their share — especially when things get slow at work.

And that's what happened in the Office of the Director of Instruction in Building 4 a while back. SFC Robert L. Horan, operations sergeant, was telling Capt. Jesse A. Hines, college program coordinator, about the time he got wounded while serving with MACV near Moc Hoa in 1971.

"Yep, that was a bad day at black rock," Horan said, setting the mood. "I was walking along near the border with a company of ARVN's (South Vietnamese Army soldiers), enjoying the sunshine and listening to the birds sing, when the guy in back of me suddenly sneezed."

Hines stifled a yawn and politely said nothing.

After passing dramatically, Horan continued. "He happened to be checking the safety on his 45 just about the time his nose started to tickle — and when he sneezed, his pistol went off!"

"Did you get hit?" Hines asked.

"Yep — square in my right thigh," Horan said with a grimace. "Well actually, it wasn't SQUARE in the thigh," he admitted slowly, "but it did hit me. I was hurt bad enough to hit."

Hines had heard a lot of war stories, but none had been quite as sorry as this one started out to be. He knew he'd be working with Horan for quite a while, though, so he decided to hear him out.

"What happened then?" he asked, feigning excitement.

"Well, a boat was going down a nearby river toward our basecamp, so I got on. After riding a couple of miles on the boat, I got off and got picked up by a jeep . . ."

"Hey, funny you should mention that," Hines said, suddenly recalling one of his own experiences.

"I flew a helicopter in Vietnam for the 8th of the 1st Cav — Squadron as a matter of fact. It was there in the same area in the same year you were, I'll never forget the day I was returning to the basecamp in the Charlie-Charlie (command control helicopter) when I got a call that an American had been wounded. So I swooped in to pick him up."

"When I landed, the joker got out of a jeep and walked to the helicopter. Talk about being MAD! I cooled off, though, when I saw that the guy was bleeding — I probably would have asked to be dusted off too."

"Yeah?" Horan said. "You don't happen to know what month that was, do you Hines?"

"MARCH? Say, you don't think . . . it couldn't be that you were the one who picked me up," Horan exclaimed.

Hines took a long look at Horan. Suddenly the aviator broke into a grin.

"Well I'll be a son of a gun. The last time I saw you was when you were lying in a puddle on the floor of my helicopter."

Last Friday, Capt. Hines officiated at SFC Horan's reenlistment ceremony at Lawson Army Airfield.

"His war stories get Hines all the time," Hines said.

and so the story went.

and so the story went.

Cowboy, Indian team up to teach scouts pet care

Two Fort Benning soldiers recently showed the garb of cowboy and Indian in passing out tips about pet training and care to a group of post girl scouts.

Richard Hopfer of 1st Bn. TSB, and Sgt. Donald Ackley, 51st Co., 197th Inf. Bde, provided the colorful instruction to 25 scouts from Fort Benning Troop 76.

Hopfer, clothed in warrior wear, began the program by demonstrating an original Indian dance. Hopfer, who is part Indian, is a member of the Boy Scouts' Order of the Arrow. He was awarded membership in this selective group in recognition of his 10 years of work educating scouts in the lore and culture of the American Indian. After the dance, Hopfer and Ackley performed a cowboy-Indian skit with the use of a trained scout dog named Snoopy. After this performance, Ackley demonstrated — with the assistance of Snoopy — various tricks and techniques of basic obedience which can be taught to a pet. Snoopy showed his mastery of both extensive traveling with different handlers of which Ackley is the latest. The Girl Scouts also were shown how to provide proper care and affection to pets. A tour of the 17th Company's kennel area ended the day's instruction. The training was designed to help the girls earn the scouting Pet Badge. The training they received from Hopfer and Ackley satisfied about half the requirements for the badge.

Scouts plan cookie sale

Today marks the opening day of the annual Girl Scout Cookie Sale. This event is the only money raising project conducted by Fort Benning Girl Scouts.

There will be sales booths at the following locations: main PX area, main commissary, main post theatre one-half hour prior to Saturday matinees, National Bank of Fort Benning on Fridays, Custer Terrace shopping area, Martin Army Hospital PX, 7-11 Quick Shop, Kelly Hill PX and Sand Hill PX.

All booths will be open during normal PX operating hours Saturdays and Sundays. Friday sales will be conducted from 4 to 6 p.m.

In addition to the sales booths, a Cookie Caravan will drive through post housing areas on the three Saturdays of the sale. The caravan will visit the Custer Terrace area Saturday, Main Post and the Wilson School area will be covered March 4, while the NCO Capehart housing area and the newly opened quarters in Benton Heights will be hit March 11.

A new package for Girl Scout Cookies is being used this year. It is twice the size of previous boxes and will cost $1 each. The cookies are available in many flavors: chocolate and vanilla assorted sandwich cookies, chocolate mint, peanut butter, butter flavor and pecanites. Cookies will be sold by Junior, Cadette and Senior Scouts. Brownies made the posters promoting the Cookie Sale in order to earn "Brownie Booster" badges.

All profits made from the sale of the cookies will be used to obtain improved camping facilities and equipment, including those at Fort Benning's Camp Hideaway.

COMPANY TACTICS

The officers' wives of Company Tactics held a coffee recently for the Company Operations Dept. in the Officers' Club's Corridor Room. Included was a program on hypnosis and auto suggestions by a speaker from the Fountain City Hypnosis Center in Columbus. The speaker pointed out that hypnosis is not a mysterious power, but a combination of one's confidence working together with suggestions to improve communications with one's inner strength. In this way hypnosis can help develop such things as motivation and self-discipline, he explained.

Attending were Mrs. James Hunt, the new head of Company Tactics and Mrs. Robert Lomax Jr., the new head of Land Navigation. Also there were Mrs. Bohdan Barylak, Mrs. William S. Chairsell, Mrs. Joseph Morgalis and Mrs. Scott Youngblood. Leaving the department are Mrs. John Cecatto, Mrs. Jack Guehrler, Mrs. William A. Hopkins, Mrs. John Martindale, Mrs. Ed Suloff and Mrs. Albert VanWinkle. Guests were Mrs. John Romba; Mrs. Larry Lattimer, guest of Mrs. Samuel Boozer; Mrs. Patrick Griffin and Mrs. Dennis Wash, guest of Mrs. David Rippelo.

Valentines and "do-dos" set the theme for a fun-filled evening at Kings Pond, Feb. 12, for the Company Tactics Committee of the Company Operations Dept. After the pot luck supper, Lt. Col. Jim Hunt, committee chairman, thanked Mrs. Charles Möller, Mrs. Pete Roundsville and Mrs. Gerald Marlowe for planning the event and welcomed the "Follow Me Travelers" Square Dance Club of Fort Benning, who not only presented exhibitions but gave everyone a chance to "swing their partner."

Caller Sonny Cook of LaGrange informed the guests that square dance classes are being held at Patch School Wednesday evenings at 7:30 p.m.

Special guests were Col. and Mrs. John Osteen and Lt. Col. and Mrs. E. P. Snyder.

NOO WINES' CLUB

The monthly breakfast of the NCO Wives' Club was held Jan. 26 at Crain Hall.

No formal dress is required for this free function, which is usually buffet style.

If you would like to attend any of the club's functions and if your husbands are E4 and above, you may become a member. Contact any club member for information, or call Mrs. Franklin Henry at 689-0627 or Mrs. Anshy Callicote at 545-5650.

Club officers are Mrs. Henry Guilbeault, president, 689-2291; Mrs. John Dyer, first vice president, 545-2940; Mrs. Julian Smith, second vice president, 545-7888; Mrs. Thomas Besch, outgoing recording secretary, 544-3209; Mrs. Gen. Fitzgerald, corresponding secretary, 544-1548; Mrs. Donald Case, treasurer, 545-5727; and Mrs. Joseph Todd, assistant treasurer, 545-7627. These ladies will be glad to provide any information about functions.

A former member, Mrs. John Baker, has returned to the club. Mrs. Baker was a very active member of the club until she and her husband moved to Germany last year.

Mrs. Rex Smith, a club member; and Mrs. Besch, recording secretary, received going away trays as a token of appreciation for their services.

DIO

Lavender and purple colored the Mirror Room of the Officer's Club for the DIO Ladies' Luncheon recently. Mrs. Robert Yokum and Mrs. W. H. Myers were hostesses. Lavender candles in coffee cups surrounded by purple forget-me-nots graced the luncheon table and were presented as gifts to Mrs. J. D. Miller, Mrs. A. B. Owens and Mrs. Glen Anderson.

Others attending were Mrs. John Sagul, Mrs. Norbert Otto, Mrs. J. Parker, Mrs. Lester Hargraves, Mrs. Bush, Mrs. W. E. King and Mrs. Wayne Fair.

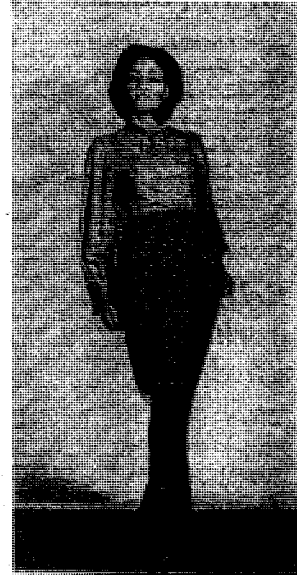

TSB

Mrs. Neil A. McLean III sponsored a dessert Feb. 11 for the ladies of IOBC 11-72. The 30 guests enjoyed their last "fem" party. The class graduated the next day.

6TH MAINT. BN.

Unit togetherness was the theme of the Valentine coffee for the ladies of the 6th Maint. Bn. Hostesses were Mrs. Patrick McLaughlin and Mrs. Larry Marler of the 533rd Trans. Co. and the battalion staff respectively.

Mrs. Margaret Adams, wife of the unit's command sergeant major, presented a Valentine to the ladies.

Miss. Sherrisse Adams of 6th Maint. Bn.

cer and a former model, presented the how's and why's of displaying a "charming image." Mrs. Moss, a talented seamstress, showed pictures of her wedding attire which she personally designed and made. In addition to modeling and sewing, Mrs. Moss is a ceramic stylist.

New members were Mrs. Glenn Anderson, Mrs. Thomas Bolt and Mrs. Kenneth Matheny.

Committees were established to plan a covered dish dinner in March and a gala Easter egg hunt.

The affair ended with the presenting of a Valentine theme prize to Mrs. Thomas Jenkins of the 608th Ordnance Co. The next coffee will be held at the home of Mrs. Julius Drew of the 608th.

ARTILLERY COMMITTEE-ABOD

The ladies of the Artillery Committee held their monthly coffee on the evening of Feb. 10 at the home of Mrs. Leonard D. Hardy. A Valentine theme was repre-

Bullseye shooting

Berlin crisis brings Avn. Cmd. chaplain to the Army way

BY RONALD HESLOP
The Berlin Wall was one of the catalysts which brought Chaplain (Maj.) Robert M. Horne into the U. S. Army chaplaincy. Chaplain Horne is assigned to the USAIC Aviation Command.

"I really didn't think about becoming a chaplain during the four years that I was an enlisted airborne electronics equipment repairman in the Air Force. I didn't even think about it when I was studying in seminary. But then the 'Berlin Wall' crisis erupted, and the Army put out the call for chaplains. It was then that I decided."

Aviation Command's enlisted quarters, in the hope that he can be more accessible to the men and be closer to their problems.

He was assigned to the Aviation Command just recently, in Sept., 1971, in addition to the normal duties of a chaplain, he has started an evening counseling session that is based on the "group dynamics" principle. He is also very involved in pre-marital counseling. Chaplain Horne feels that the lack of knowledge of what to expect from a marriage, and the problems encountered during the first few years of marriage, are two major causes of divorce. His counseling sessions cover many of the aspects that the "two can live as cheaply as one," advocates seem to overlook.

Chaplain Horne likes the one to one relation that exists in the Aviation Command. "It's easier to understand a soldier if you understand his job."

The soft-spoken white headed Chaplain was reviewing his years in the military, which have taken him to Europe, Korea, Japan, and Southeast Asia.

"After receiving a Bachelor of Science degree in Social Studies at Centenary College, and the four years in the Air Force, I decided to study at the Columbia Theological Seminary in Decatur, Ga. I'm still going to school in Atlanta, working on a Master's in Pastoral Counseling."

Chaplain Horne has an office located near the

Since you have to shave every day, you may as well get a comfortable one.

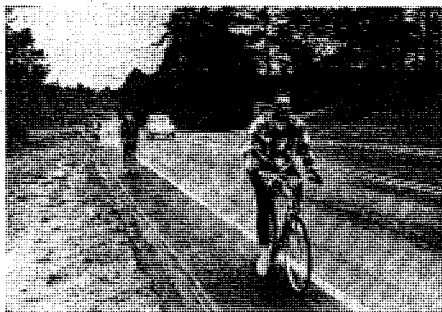

Shaving isn't fun. But it doesn't have to be unpleasant either.

A lot depends on the tools you use. Take shaving cream. You need a shaving cream that's moist. Because it's moisture that makes your whiskers soft and easy to cut.

Rise has enough moisture to do just that. Slowly it seeps moisture into your beard and holds it there for as long as it takes you to shave.

Rise. It can't make shaving fun. But it can make it comfortable.

Post bicycle club formed

George Washington's birthday dawned depressingly last Monday, but the gloom and drizzle was ignored by most post residents. A few stragglers, however, met at the 4th Student Battalion's TSB Airborne Chapel to charter the Fort Benning Bicycle Club.

Brainstormed by Lt. Col. Jim Anderson, commanding officer of the 4th Student Battalion, and organized by PFC Dennis Grimes, the battalion's PIO, the club tackled a road - trip hike to Victory Pond as the first leg of its history.

Variety in age and equipment described the whistlers as they set off on the 24 mile journey.

Col. Anderson on a 10 speed brought along his three girls, Janet, Mary Ellen and Terry as well as Ricky Waugh, son of Col. David E. Waugh, Martin Army Hospital. The girls jockeyed balloon tires bikes and Ricky straddled a three speed.

Sp6 Jim Glass, 12th Company, TSB, brought along his 2 speed and PFC Dennis Archer, 24th Med. Bn., 2d Evac. Hospital, peddled a 10 speed job. Oh yes, a BAYONET staffer struggled along behind on a 15 speed touring bike to stockpile some exercise integrity.

Upon reaching Victory Pond, the cyclists downed hot soup, hot dogs (self-cooked over an open fire), and some homemade Danish pastry, compliments of the 4th Student Battalion. The return trip was made in just under an hour and a half with warm sunshine predicting an early spring (?)

Col. Anderson wants to enlarge the club's membership and activities. Programs will be staggered to accommodate both the Advance and Basic Class.

He's still pedaling!

Non-military personnel from the Columbus community would also be welcome to participate.

Outings to recreational areas on and off post would be staged to allow wives and young children to join cyclists for picnics, fishing and general outdoor fun.

The next "meeting" is planned for the first week end in March. Look for a Daily Bulletin notice next week or contact PFC Grimes at 548-2401 for further information.

A challenging footnote: Terry Anderson, age seven, finished first on the run home. The BAYONET staffer on the 15 speed? He's still pedaling!

Post youth elected to National Society

Ronald Keith Miller, 17-year-old son of Lt. Col. and Mrs. Russell C. Miller, 503 Lumpkin Road, Fort Benning, has been elected to The Society of Outstanding American High School Students.

To be elected to the group, a student must have achieved academic excellence and have displayed leadership in extracurricular and civic activities.

The youth, a junior at Spenser High School in Columbus, is one of the students being considered for $800,000 in college scholarship funds available this year through the group's National Awards program.

Lt. Col. Miller is chairman of the Training Management and Techniques Committee of the Infantry School.

Actress shines in star-studded role

—McQueen reviews

STAR SPANGLED GIRL, starring Sadie Duncan.

Based on Neil Simon's play, this is the story of how a sweet, young Olympic swimmer and hide-the-bomb conservative gets involved with the editor and writer of an underground newspaper.

After moving to Los Angeles, Miss Duncan finds herself living next door to the offices of the Nitty Gritty, an underground rag that attacks most of her "true blue" American beliefs. She also finds that the writer, played by Todd Susman, has fallen in "love-at-first-sight" with her.

Keeping up with Susman's antics to impress Miss Duncan is the editor-publisher of the newspaper (Tony Roberts) who steals food from the grocery store and offers his landlady flight lessons, water-skiing, surfing and no-bound conservative get-together parties in exchange for rent.

Miss Duncan has a fresh vitality that shows on the screen. She convincingly expresses bewilderment at the society outside her conservative background. Her paradoxical expressions catch the viewer by surprise and create much of the comedy in this film.

Roberts acts the part of a petty rogue, one who steals a little, but makes it seem all right. He is as much a staunch liberal as Miss Duncan is a die-hard conservative.

Susman, although a liberal, does not express his views except in the ways he tries to show his love for Miss Duncan. He is an adolescent — suffering a most severe case of "puppy love."

Susman plays a difficult comedy role — the comic relief. While in the throes of love, he shows an alpacatic style — spills paint on Miss Duncan's cat, breaks up her apartment with a mop while trying to help her and delivers a present to her at the YWCA, causing a situation reminiscent of a Keystone Cops episode.

There are some heavies in the flick, such as the printer who wants his money and threatens to do bodily harm to the two journalists.

The film blends the politics of hard-hat conservatism and stout-hearted liberalism with the trials and tribulations of love.

The only problem with the film is that it violates the old maxim that "crime does not pay," even in the movies.

Student revolts featured in post library selections

What inspires the outbreak of youth rebellions from Columbia to the Sarabene? Fort Benning special services libraries have several books on this topic.

Great State: What Happened and Why, James Michener. A detailed account of the events that took place at this Midwestern University during the first four days of May last year.

The Greening of America, Lewis S. Feuer. In a history of student dissent from early times to the present, the author offers a key for understanding what brings about such rebellions and how best to cope with them.

"Picnic," written by William Inge, is a domestic drama set in Kansas in the early 1960's. It ran on Broadway, starring Ralph Meeker and Janice Rule and later became a movie with William Holden and Kim Novak.

The Whole World is Watching, Mark Gerzon. Whether they call themselves hippies, revolutionaries or activists, the watchdog of many college students today is "change."

The Uncommitted, Kenneth Keniston. A study of alienated youth. The author probes why a group of talented and privileged young men should reject the basic values of their culture.

I lived Inside the Campus Revolution, William Diller. At a recent Federal Subversive Activ-

ties Control Board hearing, the author, a supposedly avowed Marxist and high ranking member of the Students for a Democratic Society turned out to be an FBI informer. For 4½ years he organized and led campus revolts as the Bureau's "most valuable" student undercover agent.

Auburn to hold 'Picnic'

Tickets are now on sale for "Picnic," to be presented by the Auburn University Department of Theatre Wednesday through Saturday.

Curtain time is 8 p.m. Students with I.D. cards will be admitted free. General admission is $2. All seats must be reserved through the box office in the Music Annex Building or by calling 826-4154.

For ghostly humor, see Dramatizers' 'Blithe Spirit'

Make-up artist Bill Hand demonstrates his talents on a volunteer during a Dramatizers workshop. Workshop classes, which teach theater techniques from acting to costuming, are offered Saturday mornings at 9....

Noel Coward's "Blithe Spirit" will be the Fort Benning Dramatizers entry in this year's 3rd Army Tournament of Plays.

Judges will consider direction, set design, acting, costuming, makeup, publicity and house management in determining the best production in the 3rd Army area and the $1,000 first prize.

The Dramatizers selected "Blithe Spirit" as a "comic relief" from its more somber and controversial productions of last season: "A Man for All Seasons" and "Blues for Mister Charlie." The humor and sophistication of Coward's classic drawing room "four-de force" also affords a greater range for creativity in design and costuming.

"Blithe Spirit" will debut at the post playhouse 8 p.m., Feb. 29 and run through March 4. Tickets are free and may be obtained at the door prior to curtain time.

Glorinda Davis looks as though she could use a little help—or an additional arm—as she assists in painting the Dramatizers set.

The dramatic Madame Arcati—played by Eda Monahan—may be the most successful woman that will allow the drama, but the Blithe woman "Blithe" is living around the theater in a playhouse.

The vital link, communication, gets strong emphasis during the exercise. Here an IOBC student coordinates further plans with his men. The students quickly found out that "commo" makes or breaks an attack or ambush.

After a successful raid, student leaders assemble to take stock of gains and losses with Patrolling Committee instructors offering a critique of what went right and what went wrong during the attack. Students are then on their own to go over enemy data and get a fix on their plans.

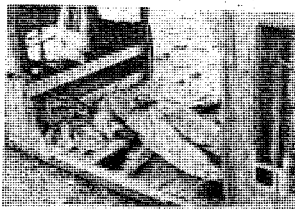

Thought not exactly reminiscent of "The Charge of the Light Brigade," the missile site was captured with a spirit and verve that did credit to the fine atttude most IOBC classes display during the two and half day exercise.

IOBC students go Ranger, Ranger, Ranger...

Three IOBC officer students are seen waiting to spring an ambush on an enemy patrol alleged to pass through the vicinity. Once successfully executed, the ambush segment of the problem enforces the value of using good intelligence techniques.

An old H-34 fuselage, a complaint soldier, and a moulage kit to simulate an intestinal wound make the scene for the site of a friendly "downed aircraft." IOBC students are required to "recon" for the aircraft using navigational techniques and to effect a "MEDEVAC" or medical evacuation.

BY ROB MCLVAINE

"Enemy troops have just captured all of Florida and are now moving through southern Georgia. We're going to insert small numbered units behind their lines and disrupt the enemy's communication, get a fix on their immediate plans, and throw them off balance 10 n g enough to buy time for a frontal assault. A major concern is their missile capability; we've got to knock them out. Okay, it's up to you. . ."

Sound like another "What If" piece of speculative fiction from the pulp factories? It didn't to members of IOBC Class No. 1172 recently as they married up with the Ranger Department's Patrolling Committee for a two and a half day tactical exercise in Quitman and Stewart Counties, Georgia.

Beneath parchment skies with chill winds singing through towering pines, the IOBC's tasted realism and felt a faint gut rumbling as tactics, security, and noise discipline defined themselves in practice.

With seasoned instructors from Sub-Committee B, the honchoes of this particular problem, the officer students engaged in an airmobile assault, a night ambush, a daylight raid, a reconnaissance patrol, and an airmobile extraction. After each segment of the problem the instructors provided a critique that let the students know how they scored. Error was expected during the Quitman-Stewart exercise; its presence there may preclude its happening elsewhere.

Two highlights of the problem occurred during 'D plus one,' or the second day, when the fledgling warriors raided a missile site, conducted an ambush, and reconned for a "downed aircraft."

The credibility gap had been narrowed down pretty convincingly.

A jumble of miscellaneous scrap was converted into some fearsome looking enemy strongholds thanks to a lot of off-duty hammering and painting, imagination, and the Ranger's limitless scrounging prowess. A "recycled" H-34 fuselage portrayed the "downed aircraft."

Yet the most activating shot of realism was supplied by the aggressors; the enemy, whose spirit and attitude decide the fate of every problem. Maj. Donald ("The Rock") Hudson, Sub-Committee B's chief, informed "The Bayonet" that "Fifty per cent of the success of all conducted exercises depends upon the aggressors."

On this particular battle-day members of Company B, 1st Battalion, 50th Infantry, 197th Brigade donned green fatigues and peaked helmet to confront the relentless IOBCs.

"Keep 'em moving, keep 'em thinking" would appear to be the committee's philosophy of instruction during the tactical exercise with enthusiasm, responsible concern, and authenticity as guideposts.

All was not bliss, however, amongst the IOBC's according to one recent scholar from Academe who was over to remark to Major Hudson at one point, "Next time, why not let us be the aggressors. They have more fun."

Auburn to offer concert featuring piano soloist

The Auburn University Orchestra, under the direction of Edger Glyde and featuring Hubert Liverman as piano soloist, will give a concert Monday in the Student Union Ballroom.

The performance will begin at 8:15 p.m. The public is invited. There is no admission charge.

The program will include the Fugue in D Minor by Johann Sebastian Bach; Franz Schubert's Symphony in B Minor (the unfinished Symphony); and Frederic Chopin's Concerto No. 1.

Liverman, an assistant professor of music here, will play the solo piano part of the concert. During his 25 years on campus he has performed many solo concerts.

Glyde, a professor of music and acting teacher, also has been at Auburn for 25 years. He has played and conducted violin and orchestra concerts through the years.

The University Orchestra comprises some 40 members, including students and faculty.

"The Symphony in B Minor" which will use two flutes, two oboes, two clarinets, two bassoons, four horns, two trumpets, three trombones, tympani and strings, contains only two pieces — thus its "Unfinished" nickname.

The same instruments will be used in the Chopin Concerto with the addition of the solo piano part.

One of many ideas that makes Army great

By WILLIAM BALA

A 370 mile relay to the Daytona 500 at Daytona Beach, Fla., ended Sunday with fifteen soldiers exhausted.

"The runners were all members of the 2nd Bn, 10th Field Arty., 197th Inf. Bde. and were selected from a total of 60 soldiers who volunteered to participate in the three-day trek to Daytona.

While passing through such cities as Albany,

Tifton and Valdosta, Ga., the men were greeted by cheers from the people of Lake City, Starka, Palatka and Bunnell, Fla. "The roar of the crowd seemed louder in Daytona Beach than any other city," stated one of the jaunting relay runners.

The purpose for jogging by Daytona was to support the 197th's Unit of Choice recruitment plan. It is to show the people of the different communities that the Army is always thinking of ways to please the soldier.

One member of the runners stated that, "This is one of many ideas that makes the Army a great organization."

The relay was another of the 197th's "adventure training." This type of training is different than the normal training in that the man is supposed to have more excitement doing different exercises. Adventure training was started to give the soldier a change from the everyday routine.

The relay to Daytona Beach was kicked-off Feb. 16 at the 2nd Bn., 10th Field Arty., 197th Inf. Bde., picnic area. Col. Edwin L. Kennedy, brigade commander, gave the order for the relay to begin.

Lt. Col. James W. Wurman, 2-10th Field Arty., battalion commander, was the first man to get the relay under way. His first run marked the first two miles of the relay leaving 368 more miles to go.

Each participant in the relay ran approximately 24-miles by alternating in sequence with the others. When the individuals were not running they were recuperating and cheering their teammates from an accompanying vehicle.

While the members of the 2-10th Field Artillery were in Daytona they attended the Daytona 500 at the Daytona International Speedway.

Three of the runners passed very close to their homes. They were Sgt. James Hinger of Blakely, Ga.; PFC John Stay of Glenwood, Fla.; and PFC Kenia Droz of Jacksonville, Fla.

Other runners were: 1st Lt. Pat Kelly, 1st Lt. Ed Erick, Sp4 John Anderson, Sp4 Jesse Monroe, PFC Johnny Ingram, PFC Wesley Lee Jr., PFC Edwin E. Blane, Pvt. Franklin Short, Pvt. John Bittorf, Pvt. Roosevelt Ingrams and Pvt. Albert Bennett.

WACs travel to McClellan for 3rd Army playoffs

By MIKE KELLER

Fort Benning's WAC basketball team climaxes its season next week when it squares off against girls from six other posts in the 3rd Army WAC playoffs at Ft. McClellan, Ala.

Also participating in the tournament—which begins Monday—are Forts Gordon, Jackson, McClellan, Rucker, Bragg and McPherson. Each team will play a five-game "round robin" schedule, and the squad with the best record will be champion. Ties will be settled by a one-game playoff.

Benning coach Ralph Padron rates his team as an underdog in the match.

"I think we have an outside chance to take it all," he said. "McClellan, Jackson and Gordon have the best teams; they're the ones we have to beat."

Padron said that Benning's prospects are hurt by the fact that this post has comparatively fewer WACs than some of its competitors. He also fears that the girls—despite their lackluster 2-4 record—may be overconfident.

"Benning never before has experienced a winning WAC basketball team," Padron said, pointing out that the squad's three victories so far this season equal the WAC's total wins for the previous five years.

"As soon as we won a few games, the girls started talking 'championship,'" he said. "And after clobbering McPherson twice, they had a mental meltdown against Columbus."

"We have a solid starting line-up, a consistent defense and a balanced scoring attack," he said. "We don't rely on one player to carry us. If someone has a bad game, another will pick up the slack."

This is borne out by the even spread in team-scoring. Pat Cagle leads with 27 and 30 points, but close behind are Cathy Chisolm with 27 and Kathy Rigole with 26.

Padron said that his squad's defense—once organized—is nearly impregnable. But he conceded that at times it has been porous.

All hands on

Columbus' Robin Song (No. 28) witnesses as she joins a teammate and WAC opponent in scrambling for a rebound during a game.

"I don't want this to happen" in the playoffs. I want the team to play every game as if the time were at stake. Because it is."

Padron seemed confident that Benning's WACs will hold their own on the court.

"Few of our opponents were able to penetrate our zone defense after it was set up," he said. "But a lot of points were scored against us by fast breaks and quick lay ups. In addition, we gave up a lot of cheap points by making too many fouls."

Padron had particular praise for "rebound queen" Daisy Jackson, who leads the team in that area.

"On the boards, I'll match her against anybody," he declared.

Eleven WACs will "suit up" for the tournament. One new player will be Donna Goins, who Padron said would contribute needed strength to the team's reserve.

Benning has a better team than his record indicates as three of its four reserves were inflicted by the Columbus Recreation League. Against 3rd Army foes Rucker and McPherson—both playoff opponents—the local WACs were 3-1. The Columbus League cannot participate in the McClellan tournament.

Padron has taken steps to insure that his team will be ready for the championship series. "We have drilled, drilled and drilled," he said. "You'd be surprised at all the lay ups they've been making in practice. I've been emphasizing good shooting as well as the fast break and the ability to move the ball."

Padron said that he has a better team now than the one with which he started.

"At the beginning of the season, too many girls tried to hog the ball," he said. "But I stressed that basketball is a team sport and no one girl can win a game by herself."

The feminine gamers will warm up for the 3rd Army contest with a match against the officers of the WAC Co., tonight at 8 p.m. in Briant Wells Field House.

Prize winners of the Rod and Gun Club Small Game Contest will be determined and prizes will be awarded at the Rod and Gun Club next Friday evening at 7:30 p.m.

All club members are invited but only club members who registered 12 quail, six rabbit or eight squirrels at the club during the month of February will be eligible to win one of the prizes. Individuals must be present at the club to claim their prize.

The club will award a Remington Pump Action Shotgun to the first place winners in the quail, squirrel and rabbit categories. Second place prizes in each category will be ten boxes of shotgun shells and third prize $25 in merchandise from the club sales counter.

Hunters still have a few hunting days left to qualify for one of these prizes. Anyone interested may obtain complete details concerning the contest by phoning 545-6028 or visit the Rod and Gun Club located on First Division Road about one quarter mile south of Highway 27.

Hunting Season Ends

Next Tuesday will just about wind up the 1971-72 hunting season for most of the hunters in this area. After Feb. 28, Georgia hunters will be able to hunt raccoon and opossum but all game seasons in Alabama will be closed. Of course, hunters in both states can look forward to the spring turkey seasons. The officials of both states have indicated that they will have an open season for turkey but neither have announced the opening and closing dates.

All things considered I guess you could say that the 1971-72 hunting season was an unusual one.

During the first few weeks of deer season it seemed that hunters would clean off the reservation. Then we ran into a surge of hot weather and the size of the weekly kills fell off to practically nothing. During the latter part of the season the weather got back to normal for awhile and the number of deer taken increased again. At the close of the season 517 kills were registered at the Post Fish and Wildlife Unit Check Point in Harmony Church. This was 25 more deer than had been registered during the 1970-71 season. The Georgia portion of the reservation produced 472 animals—384 bucks and 108 does. The Alabama side produced 43 animals—25 bucks and 18 does.

Alabama and Georgia both had split dove seasons based on the number of open days allowed by the Federal authorities. Alabama split its allocation into two open seasons. Georgia split the allocation into three periods. If the split seasons helped hunters to take doves they are keeping it to themselves. Just about everyone I talked to said this year was about as bad for doves as last year and everyone claimed that was lousy too. I believe we had our share of doves in this area during the open seasons but it seems that there are just too many hunters concentrated in the feeding areas for anyone to have a really good hunt.

Quail hunters are like fishermen. I never know who to believe them but the consensus is that we had a good quail season. The weather was pretty good. A lot of birds down in the bottoms but for most of the season there seemed to be plenty of birds if you went to the right places.

Squirrels seemed to be plentiful on the reservation this year. Here again the hunter had to know where to look. The heaviest squirrel population has always been in the older quarters areas. Humble areas adjacent to the quarters areas and hardwood areas in bookies seemed to be alive to the animals early in the morning and just before nightfall.

Frustrated Rabbit Hunters

Rabbit hunters were probably the most frustrated group on post. Rabbit season opened Nov. 15 for the Alabama portion of the reservation and on Nov. 20 on the Georgia side but hunters were not permitted to hunt with dogs until after the deer season closed in early January. To most rabbit hunters hunting rabbits without dogs is just like hunting raccoon without coon hounds or quail without a couple of good bird dogs. For them it was a short season that really didn't start until after the deer season ended. Until that time they had to be satisfied with watching the quail hunters work their dogs and listening to the baying of the coon hounds but once they had the use of the dogs they had plenty sport. There was no shortage of rabbits. As a matter of fact the hunters may not have taken as many as should have been taken to put the population in balance with the habitat.

AN INTERESTING SPECIES OF GEORGIA WILDLIFE—THE JACKALOPE (ANANIAS PEROMYSCUS) ON GOOD AUTHORITY IS REPUTABLY THE PRODUCT OF A MISALIGNANCE BETWEEN NEAR-SIGHTED JACK RABBIT AND A SMALL ANTELOPE. LITTLE IS KNOWN ABOUT THIS CREATURE, BUT IT IS SAID TO BE ONE OF THE FASTEST RUNNERS IN THE WORLD. SINCE BOTH ANTELOPE AND RABBIT DON'T LIKE THE SIGHT OF IT AND TRY TO DO IT BODILY HARM, IT FEEDS EXCLUSIVELY ON BEES AND SMALL BIRDS WHICH IT OVERTAKES FROM BEHIND WHILE IN FULL FLIGHT. THE ONLY KNOWN METHOD OF CAPTURE IS TO SHOOT 50 FEET AHEAD OF A SPEEDING ROAD-RUNNER WHICH HAS JUST BEEN PASSED BY A JACKALOPE.

BUT BREEDS ONLY ONCE IN A LIFETIME... AND THIS IN ITS 1ST ADULT YEAR, SINCE THE YOUNG ARE BORN WITH HORNS AND THE MOTHER DOESN'T WANT TO GO THROUGH THAT AGAIN... THE ONLY PORTION OF THE JACKALOPE THAT IS OF USE IS THE HORN WHICH MAKES A FINE CAN OPENER...

THE LAST KNOWN SIGHTING OF A JACKALOPE WAS MADE BY THE ARTIST AND SEVERAL OF HIS FRIENDS WHO WERE RETURNING FROM A LATE PARTY AT THE CLUB IN 1971-72.

Running Boar team competing with USAF

A four-man Running Boar team from the U.S. Army Marksmanship Training Unit is in San Antonio, Tex. this week competing in a dual meet with a Lackland AFB team.

Sponsored by the U.S. Air Force, the three-day NRA registered tournament features a 20 shot Slow Run and a 30 shot Fast Run each day to make up the standard 60 shot International Shooting Union course 600 aggregate. In addition, a four man team match is fired each day which will include the first 20 shots of each run.

The 1900 Grand Aggregate Individual Championship and the Team Championship will be determined from the three days composite scoring. In addition, there will be a Slow Run aggregate and Fast Run aggregate champion.

Doughboys finish third in division

The last place Ft. McPherson basketball team faced two games to the Fort Benning Doughboys last weekend but the two efforts were not quite enough to take the Doughboys to the second place position in the Western Division of the 3rd Army Basketball League. Fort Benning ended the season with a 12 won-6 loss record, only one game behind the 13 win-loss record of the second place Ft. Campbell team. In other Western Division games played last week and Ft. Campbell won two games from Redstone Arsenal while Ft. McClellan won two from Ft. Rucker. The wins for McClellan and Campbell gave them the necessary win-loss records to qualify them for the 3rd Army playoffs being held at Ft. McClellan next week. Ft. McClellan was the first place position in the Western Division. They had a 14 win - 6 loss record. Standings of other teams in the Western Division were: Ft. Rucker, 10 wins-8 losses; Redstone Arsenal, 8 wins-12 losses and Ft. McPherson, 1 win against 17 losses. McClellan and Campbell will compete with Ft. Jackson and Ft. Bragg, the first and second place teams in the Eastern Division in the double elimination playoff tournament at McClellan to determine the Army champions. Jackson won the Eastern Division title with an 18 win-2 loss record, one game ahead of the second place team, Ft. Gordon, with 13 wins and 3 losses. Other team standings in the Eastern Division were: Ft. Gordon, 12 wins-8 losses; Hunter Army Airfield, 8 wins-12 losses; Ft. Stewart, 5 wins and 12 losses and The Atlanta Army Depot with an official record of no wins and 20 losses.

Handgunners meet for pistol tourney

Many of the nation's best handgunners converged on post yesterday to participate in two pistol tournaments conducted by the Fort Benning Rifle and Pistol Club. The action started with a two-day invitational tournament at Phillips Range which featured competition in Free Pistol, Rapid Fire Pistol, Center Fire Pistol and Standard Pistol along with team action in each event. The competitors will be comparing scores in a three-gun 270 Aggregate and Service Pistol tournament tomorrow and Sunday of the shooting series. Among the handgunners here is the Michigan State Police team which won the National Police Championship at Camp Perry, Ohio last August. This team is led by a team from the Third Army Marksmanship Unit, a Ft. Bragg, N. C. team, a Ft. Rucker, Ala. entry, an Air Force team from Eglin AFB, Fla., a post team from the U.S. Army Infantry Center and the National Championship team from the U.S. Army Marksmanship Training Unit. Civilian competitors entered are Allen Fuford of Vienna, Ga., Neil Foster and Dr. William Davis of Atlanta, Ga., Dr. M. V. Anderson, Warner Robins, Buddy Rosberry, Cobb, Ga., and State Trooper John Farley of Americus, Ga. Farley and Fuford are members of the Georgia Sport Shooting Association team which won the National Pistol team Championship at Camp Perry.

USAMTU rifle team travels to Quantico

National Smallbore Rifle Champion Maj. Lones Wigger of the United States Army Marksmanship Training Unit, winner of the January Fort Benning Three Position Competition of Champions meet, will be leading a top-Smallbore Army rifle team into the Quantico Sectional Indoor Open Rifle Championship tournament this weekend at Quantico, Va. The match features four-positions of competition with an 80 aggregate championship and team matches sponsored by the Quantico Rod and Gun Club. Host team for the tourney will be the Quantico Marine team, Army marksmen will be competing with over 50 of the nation's best smallbore rifle position competitors. These will include besides the Marine team, some outstanding collegiate entries and a couple of good junior rifle teams. The Alexandria, Va., based Junior Rifle "Acorn" team which includes the top contenders in that class of competition, will be swapping shots with the Open contenders. In addition, an Army Reserve team has indicated an intention of competing in the Sectional meet. The Army team entering the weekend NRA sanctioned match will include Maj. John Foster, Capt. Larry R. Bassham, Capt. Carl Jooss and 1st Lt. Robert A. Gustin. The results of the Quantico Match will be forwarded to National Headquarters in Washington, D.C., where they will compete for the National Championships with other sections throughout the country.

These top competitors will be meeting again at Phoenix, Ariz., in June when they compete for positions on the U.S. Olympic Rifle Team. Four individuals will be selected to the team which will represent the U.S. in the Olympics at Munich in August and September. Pre-Olympic trials U.S. Army Marksmanship Unit's Trap and Skeet teams have received an invitation to participate in the Southeastern United States Pre-Olympic trials to be held in Goodland, Fla., today through Sunday. The final two days shooting of the 300 three-day meet serve as a basis for selections to the Olympic trials which are to be held in Phoenix, Ariz., in June. The normal procedure, marksmanship officials indicate, is for the top 100 and above the outstanding marksmen at the Southeastern meet who lost 100 and above the last 200 birds to receive invitations to participate in the Phoenix matches.

Mrs. Hattie recalls forty years of 49'er parties

BY BILL DIEHL
Those who have attended Fort Benning's traditional "49'er Party" in past years hold fond memories of the event.
But one lady undoubtedly has more and fonder memories than anyone else. Her name is Mrs. Hattie Weeks, and she's been attending 49'er parties for almost forty years.
"You bet I'm going to come this year," says Mrs. Weeks, who in her 84 years has been the daughter, wife, and mother-in-law of retired Army officers. "I may not be able to stay all night like I have in other years, but I'll be there," she adds gaily.

Affectionately known as "Mrs. Hattie," Mrs. Weeks holds the distinction of being the oldest member of the Daughters of the United States Army (DUSA) at Fort Benning.

Mrs. Weeks says she attended the first annual 49'er party "sometime in the early thirties" and has been attending them ever since. "The party used to be held in the old Polo Club until the building was destroyed by the big tornado that tore up the post in about 1954. The tornado tossed the roof of the Polo Club right into my backyard at 300 First Division Road, where I lived for 30 years," Mrs. Weeks chuckles. "After

"I recall one of my costumes in particular," she reflects. "It was one of those years when I was quite a bit younger—in the '50's, I guess—when I came to the party dressed up prettier than Astor's pet cow. I was supposed to be a farmwoman—had on a big old sunbonnet, a long flannel dress, and the damndest shoes you ever saw. They were those old high-topped shoes. One of the heels was missing and the shoelaces were gone, so I used twine to tie them up," she giggles.

"But that wasn't all. I carried a gun in one hand and had a bottle of whiskey tied to a string in the other. What a time I had that night!"

The outfit won Mrs. Weeks one of the many costume prizes she has taken home from 49'er Parties over the years.
"As I recall, I got pitched by one of the sheriffs and thrown in the jail with a bunch of can-can girls the night I wore that costume," she muses.

Mrs. Weeks says she's looking forward to seeing all the costumes at this year's 49'er Party. "The costumes are only a small part of the fun, but I've always gotten a big kick out of them," she says.
"I may not come in a costume this year—I'm getting a little old. But like I said, I'll be there."

This year's 49'er Party will be held Saturday night, March 4 at the Main Officers Club. Proceeds from the DUSA-sponsored event, which will rock the club until 3 a.m., will go toward the construction of a supplementary annex to Fort Town Nursery.
Chairman of the party include: Mrs. Charles Meyer, Margaret Mackay; Mrs. Edward Mackay and Maj. Larry Tucker, tickets; Mrs. Richard Eye and Mrs. William Gehrards, publicity; Mrs. William Filippini, Maj. William Sawcyn and Maj. Michael Constabile, entertainment; Mrs. Walter Root and Capt. Edward Sealey, decorations; Mrs.

Craig Parker and Capt. Robert Martin, supply and property; Mrs. Robert Tully and Col. William Guthrie, parade; Mrs. Walter Brinker and Capt. Thomas Cucchi, cigarette girls; Mrs. E. E. Gerhards and Maj. Sawcyn, judging; and Mrs. William Gehrards and Capt. Charles Brown, parade. Mrs. Guthrie is chairwoman of the party.

Infantry Bd. has dining-in

BY ANTHONY MORREL
The history of the U.S. Army Infantry Board, one of the oldest tenants at Fort Benning, was highlighted at a Dining-in held at the Officer's Open Mess on Feb. 17.

The traditional formal dinner function aimed at promoting morale and esprit de corps within an organization, was attended by more than 50 members of the Infantry Board. Major General Charles P. Brown, the new Commanding General of the U.S. Army Test and Evaluation Command, the Infantry Board's parent headquarters, was the guest of honor.

Col. Charles B. Thomas, current president of the Infantry Board, was the principal speaker. Commenting on the improvements of Infantry Board testing technology over the years, Col. Thomas said, "We no longer have to rely on the human eye and the error-prone pencil in our deliberations. With our statisticians, analysts, sophisticated instrumentation and computer-ers, we have kept pace with the increasingly complicated technology found in today's weapons and material."

During the two-hour ceremonial dinner, the distinguished lineage of the Infantry Board was featured. Established in 1903 at Ft. Leavenworth, Kan. to "express their opinions on subjects relating to the operation and equipment of the Infantry arm," the Infantry Board was moved to Camp Benning in 1919.

Although the Infantry Board has been known by different names during its 69 years in existence, it was the first and only agency created by the War Department whose sole function was to consider "the improvement of the Infantry."

The diversity of the Infantry Board testing in its more than 3000 test projects since its creation is illustrated by such projects as: The Phillips Pack Saddle in 1920, Spad Leggings in 1923, Saddle's, Carpenter's and Wheelwright's Chest in 1935; and Low Silhouette Vehicles in 1944.

tem, the DRAGON. Throughout the Infantry Board's 50-year history, many distinguished Infantrymen have served as members. Among these are Generals of the Army George M. A'shall and Omar Bradley and General Courtney Hodges.

WILBUR SCHOOL, 'A BUILDING FOUND ON POST'

BY TOM TEGMEYER
Fort Benning educational system for dependent service children has eight elementary schools, and perhaps the one with the most interesting history is Wilbur School, located in the Custer Terrace housing area.

In June of 1962, when the 600 units of Custer Terrace were 50 per cent complete, Brig. Gen. Marcus B. Bell, then Assistant Chief of Staff, G-4, and Col. James F. Turcotte, then head of the Post School Board, conferred about the probable school facilities, and school enrollment that could be expected in September of that year.

The necessity of a school in the housing area was definitely indicated. It was also decided that it would be over a year before the school facilities at Fort Benning could be expanded. Because of the necessity of a school and the lack of available help to build one, Gen. Bell developed a plan for the construction of a school within the Custer Terrace Housing area, but on land that was completely unused for military purposes. In developing this plan, Gen. Bell assumed that no money nor appropriations could be received from the Army, and that upon its completion the school would become Fort Benning Post property.

Col. Jordan informed Gen. Bell that he would five whatever assistance Gen. Bell felt was their share, and that they would be glad to do it as a contribution to the post, since it would definitely enhance their housing project.

The Post Engineer, Col. McDonough, agreed to provide as much assistance as he could, but would be limited to the supplying of utilities, incense, fuel, water, and sewage.

Making a survey of salvage materials and equipment, Gen. Bell and an assistant designated three buildings that contained excellent salvage materials and located considerable plumbing and heating equipment. The Stevens and Wilkinson Company, which had designed the 600 Custer Terrace units, agreed to provide the plans for the school free of charge.

Gen. Bell spent a day in Atlanta with the Stevens and Wilkinson Company, and decided on how that particular school design could be used for the Custer Terrace School, taking into consideration the salvage materials which were available. Gen. Bell provided the architects with a topographic map of the area and from this they prepared the floor plan and plot location of the building.

After the Jordan Company performed all the survey work, stockade labor was utilized to clear the site, and the engineers school would be the most given them.

Gen. Bell contacted Mr. G. Gumby Jordan, president of the Jordan Construction Company, and enlisted the aid of Jordan the building as their share in the project. Salvaging of the three buildings was done under the supervision of a selected officer and two NCOs also utilizing stockade labor.

The state will finance and build a six-story annex to the University of Georgia library to house the late state senator's works. Contributions from the campaign will be used to provide the building with special furnishings and equipment, and to employ a staff of competent personnel to catalog, store and maintain the records.

Department of the Army military and civilian personnel throughout the world will remember the late Senator for his accomplishments with the powerful United States Senate Appropriations Committee which he chaired for 16 years of his 50 years in public service. Individuals desiring to contribute to the Russell Memorial Library can do so by sending a check to the Richard B. Russell Foundation, c/o J. A. Dorsey, P.O. Box 465, Atlanta, Georgia 30302. Brochures and pledge cards are available at the Community Activities Association office, Building 89, Fort Benning.

Funds needed for Sen. Russell Mem. Library

A campaign to raise funds to preserve the personal and public papers of the late Senator Richard B. Russell is being undertaken by the people of Georgia and the many friends made throughout a total of 50 years in public service.

Election Central

BY CARL KING

EDITOR'S NOTE: Election Central will be appearing weekly for the next few weeks in the Bayonet in order to keep Fort Benning personnel informed of their right and responsibility in voting this election year.

Due to the lowered voting age of 18, there will be more Fort Benning personnel eligible to vote this year than in any previous year.

Along with any privilege comes too, a responsibility. Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott, post commander, has encouraged all commanders and staff department directors to provide guidance and assistance to eligible personnel and their dependents concerning voting. "Every eligible citizen should be encouraged to exercise his important franchise to vote," Gen. Talbott said.

The Voting Program here at Fort Benning is under the direction of Maj. William Davis, assistant adjutant general.

According to Davis, 28,000 Federal Postcard Application Forms (FPAF) have been distributed to voting officers in all major commands.

The worth of the FPAFs is twofold. They can be used to request an absentee ballot. Or, in some states, they can be used to register for the upcoming primary. "Individuals wishing to vote in state primaries and the November general election are encouraged to contact their unit voting officer for applications," Davis said.

USAC Circular 608-20 outlines the program which is relevant to the Fort Benning community. "In this program, a four-phase campaign plan is outlined.

Phase I consists primarily of organization, designating voting officers, and emphasis on publicizing the individual State primaries.

Phase II includes ascertaining within each major unit all eligible voters and counseling them concerning the voting requirements of their particular states.

Phase III is designed to encourage eligible personnel to send for absentee ballots for the November elections. An Armed Forces Voters Day will be established during this phase which should serve to make Benning personnel more aware of their responsibility to cast a vote.

Phase IV will principally involve completing and mailing ballots. Voting statistics will be compiled for each command and submitted to higher headquarters.

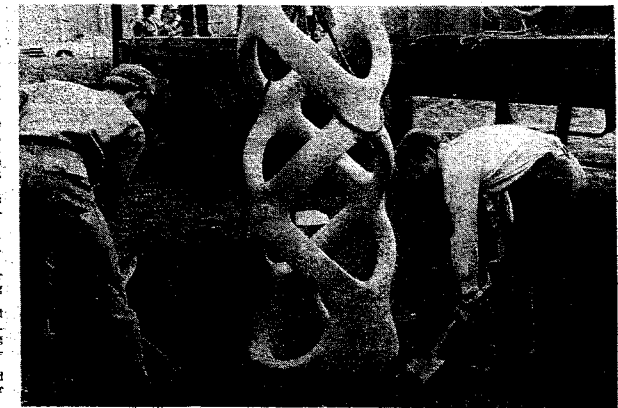

While voting programs and articles written in newspapers and magazines about voting serve to shed light where before there was darkness, it still remains an individual responsibility to cast the final vote. Next week look for Registration requirements, an article which will better explain registration requirements, in the various states.

197th Domestic Action Program is large success in Greenville, S.C.

A group of soldiers from the 197th Infantry Brigade have returned to Fort Benning in a happy mood following two weeks of domestic action build-up at parks in Greenville, S.C.

The contingent from the 197th was the largest of its kind ever sent by the unit to engage in its domestic action program, which was begun a year ago. Capt. Donald Monk of the 138th, and project officers for the 197th's portion of "Project Together," said the effort "boosted the troops' morale and enhanced the Army's image with the civilian community in addition to helping the city's recreation program."

Ten reservists from A, B, C, D and E companies of the 1st Bn., 29th Inf., 1st Regt., 188th Basic Combat Training Division worked at the Spartanburg site, installing fences and digging foundation holes for the from the project, according to Joe Beam, director of parks and recreation for the city of Greenville. "Without the Army's help on this project," said Beam, "we would have missed the deadline for installing the playground equipment and subsequently lost the federal money designated for the playground construction."

The playground sites, at Sullivan St., Spartanburg, S.C. and in the Nicholtown area of Greenville, were dozed and graded by reservists from HHC, 391st Engineer Bn.

Sgt. Jonathan Payne, a Vietnam veteran serving with E company said the project, "gave us a chance to obtain necessary practical experience to prepare us for our annual summer camp duty."

"The soldiers were well received by the citizens of Greenville," he said, "and they were more than happy to wear their class 'A' uniform's while off-duty due to the warm reception they received when seen in uniform by Greenvilleans."

While in Greenville the soldiers were the subject of "U.S. Army Weeks," as proclaimed by Max M. Heller, mayor of Greenville and John J. Dulles, city manager.

The unit was also the recipient, along with the other parties involved in "Project Together," of a congratulatory resolution presented before the South Carolina state house of representatives and state senate on February 23.

Post personnel help make training film

BY JIM LOVEADY
WHITE SANDS MISSILE RANGE, N.M.—With the assistance of Fort Benning personnel White Sands Missile Range's Pictorial and Processing Division completed filming of a new training film here in the desert "Patrolling in Desert Environments."

The 30-minute movie, believed to be the first of its kind for the El Paso Southwest, was filmed in conjunction with a field exercise conducted by a company of the 56th Infantry from Fort Benning. The ranger unit jumped here from C-141 aircraft Feb. 8 to begin a two-week test of a new desert training program for airborne troops at Fort Benning.

According to Lt. Col. James E. Price, technical director for the film, the exercise captured by White Sands cameras is designed to teach Army airborne desert techniques of terrain warfare and survival.

"The film will emphasize techniques used in desert tactics, radio communication, tracking, first aid and personal hygiene," he said.

During the two-week training session, the troops jumped twice from C-141 aircraft. The first jump heralded their arrival, while the second was the beginning of a special three-day exercise that saw a micro-wave relay station near Elephant Mountain, just west of Oro Grande, N.M., fall to the rangers.

The airborne troops, along with Lt. Col. Price returned home Friday Feb. 18, leaving behind five personnel.

While scenes in the training film included most members of the ranger company, Lt. Col.

Price indicated Captains John C. Grimstay, James A. Takacs and David L. Harrigan, SFC Gilbert Hunter and Sgt. Patrick W. Acree, all of Fort Benning, are the principal actors in the movie. They will remain temporarily at White Sands Missile Range to complete filming the movie.

The film's producer, David Ploss of El Paso, estimates the new movie will be ready for troop issue throughout the Army by early fall.

Other White Sands personnel with major roles in the filming of "Patrolling in Desert Environments" were: Dave Barrio, El Paso, who served as director; Jerry Warner, Las Cruces, film editor; and Specialist 5 Leo B. Pleasant, WSMB, first cameraman.

The Fort Benning Chapter of Alcoholics meets in Building 2314, Airborne Area every Monday evening at 7:30 p.m.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

by Bill King

For nutrition and a good, nutty taste, sprinkle wheat germ into the crumb mixture for meat loaves or stuffings, or into the crumb crust for a pie.

Are you fond of braised or baked stuffed artichokes? Try mixing some minced Greek olives into your favorite artichoke stuffing.

When making chocolate pudding, add a pinch of powdered cloves for a spicy taste.

For a diet salad dressing, mix undrained canned tomato soup with 2 tablespoons of lemon juice and a ¼ cup of water. Season to taste, adding some grated onion and prepared mustard.

It's Leap Year, and any bachelors who haven't yet been claimed might heed Swift's advice: "But lest your kissing should be spaffed, your onions must be thoroughly bair'd."

Bachelors have been known to pop the question after a fabulous meal of KING'S PIZZA ON CALL. There's something special about our great food and service!

Poncho pouch ends folding blues

Did ya' ever have your poncho fall out behind you on a march or tear a hole in it while wearing it in a field exercise? Well read no further because if it has happened to you read on "cause help's on the way."

Since early 1970, the Army Sounding Board for the Individual Soldier, a part of the U.S. Army Combat Developments Command Infantry Agency here at Fort Benning has received a large number of suggestions recommending changes to the poncho. Among them were numerous ideas for rolling, folding and protecting the poncho when worn on the pistol belt.

The old type poncho was first folded, then looped on the pistol belt and then tied down using the waist draw string. Using this method the poncho still fell off or became unfolded. The poncho is easily punctured and torn when the Soldier moves through dense terrain or when he leans against sharp or abrasive surfaces. The new lightweight poncho is even worse in this respect since it has no waist drawstring to tie it to the pistol belt and is still exposed to punctures and tears as it is not issued with a protective cover.

The Infantry Agency, in conjunction with the Land Warfare Laboratories, has developed a prototype pouch for carrying and protecting the poncho. Although the poncho pouch has not yet been approved by the Department of the Army, the Infantry Agency hopes to get in the hands of the troops by late 1973, or sooner.

If you have suggestions and ideas for better combat clothing and equipment for the individual Soldier, send them to The Army Sounding Board for the Individual Soldier (TASBIS), U.S. Army Combat Developments Command Infantry Agency, Fort Benning, Georgia 31905.

900 attend AUSA ball

BY RANDY BOOSE. George Washington would have felt right at home during the AUSA Dinner Dance, held in honor of his Birthday, Fri. Feb. 18, at the Harmony Church Field House.

The "Old Guard" File and Drum Corps supplied the atmosphere and part of the entertainment with their Revolutionary dress and music of that era. Combined with the United States Army Drill Team and the Fort Benning Infantry Chorus it was a well rounded and enjoyable show.

George Washington would have also appreciated the theme of the night, patriotism. Maj. Gen. Dr. Win C. Talbot, post commander, who was a special guest, congratulated the AUSA on its high standards of patriotism and support of the Army. Other guests included Columbus Mayor J. R. Allen Airplanes seem to fascinate kids of all ages. Recently three Fourth grade classes, from Loyd Elementary School were able to visit the Aviation Command. The classes, taught by Mrs. Martha Harding, Mrs. Helen Lithant and Mrs. Wanda Haynes, were allowed to look at, climb in, and watch take off's and landings of most of the various types of aircraft in the Command's inventory.

Promotions slowed

WASHINGTON (ANP) — The Department of the Army has announced a change in promotion policy for temporary first lieutenant, AUS and chief warrant officer, AUS. Authority to promote fully qualified officers to these grades will continue to be decentralized to designated field commanders. However, time-in-grade requirements for promotion to first lieutenant or chief warrant officer will gradually be extended.

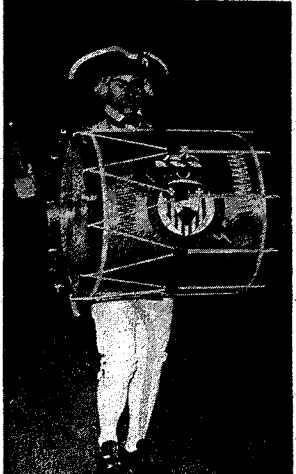

Beginning April 1, 1972, a transition period will begin, increasing the time-in-grade requirements from the present 12 months to 18 months after Jan. 1, 1973.

Continuation of the present policy beyond April 1 would have provided first lieutenants and chief warrant officers in excess of the Army's needs. It also would have been inconsistent with promotion schedules of other officer grades and senior noncommissioned officer grades, all of which have been curtailed.

The time-in-grade requirement for second lieutenants and warrant officers dropped to 12 months on Nov. 1, 1966 as part of the build up in the Republic of Vietnam. Prior to June 1, 1966, the requirement had been 18 months.

Second lieutenants and warrant officers who have demonstrated that they are fully qualified will attain eligibility for promotion to first lieutenant or chief warrant officer as follows:

Officers with dates of entry on active duty as 2LT or a WO1 as shown below:	Attain eligibility for promotion to 1LT or CW2 on dates shown below:	Time-in-grade requirement:
1-15 April 1971	1-15 April 1972	12 months
16-30 April 1971	16-30 May 1972	13 months
1-15 May 1971	1-15 July 1972	14 months
16-31 May 1971	16-31 August 1972	15 months
1-15 June 1971	1-15 October 1972	16 months

Support Bn. has Scouting Sunday

Boy Scouts from Troop 39 and soldiers from the 197th Spt. Bn., 197th Inf. Bde., recently celebrated "Scouting Sunday" together in activities held at the Support Battalion.

"During the month of Feb., the Boy Scouts of America set aside this Scout Sunday as a means for the scouts to fulfill their obligations to God and Country," explained

Col. John R. Walker, district chairman of the boy scouts in the Fort Benning area.

The first order of the day for the young scouts was "straight ahead to the mess hall," where they were treated to an appetizing breakfast by their Big Brothers. Acting as big brothers were soldiers from the Support Battalion who sponsored the scouts during the day's events.

Following breakfast the scouts attended religious services at the Harmony Church Chapel, where they took an active part in performing the services under the direction of Chaplain Lacey.

The scouts, under the supervision of their big brothers, were then given tank rides around the Battalion area, followed by an adventurous day with the 197th Support Battalion.

"I feel that the soldiers who acted as big brothers will agree with me when I say that we enjoyed having the scouts in our troop 39 visit the Battalion and invite them to return soon," commented Lt. Col. Hollis D. Messer, commander of the 197th Spt. Bn.

PX explains Gold Shield

DALLAS — In this day of spiralling costs, Army and Air Force Exchange Service customers can still find exceptional savings.

That's the word from an exchange spokesman who suggests that patrons be on the lookout for merchandise that bears the AAFES Golden Shield.

What does the Gold Shield mean? "It means that AAFES has lent its symbol to a carefully tested product that compares to the best in its field," the spokesman explained.

Gold Shield products are purchased by AAFES for worldwide requirements, according to the spokesman. That results in special rates, to be passed along to the customer at the time of purchase.

"AAFES is very careful about use of its shield of excellence," the spokesman said. "The customer can be assured that every item has been painstakingly tested for value and quality."

For that reason, merchandise to carry the shield has been restricted mainly to electrical products such as can openers, mixers, blenders, toasters, coffee makers, shavers, griddles, corn poppers, knives, irons, heating pads, blankets, hair driers, curlers, make-up mirrors, floor polishers, vacuum cleaners, toothbrushes and oral hygiene units.

Other merchandise to carry the Gold Shield includes: anti-freeze, spark plugs, blots, recording tape, garden hose, charcoal, bicycles, luggage, men's and boys' underwear, toilet kits, vitamins and batteries.

Byline Bayonet Museum to mark ideals of infantry

The physical need for a new Infantry Museum at Fort Benning is obvious. Space limitations in the present museum allow for the display of only a fraction of the museum's myriad weapons and equipment used in past wars. Most of the museum-owned artifacts are gathering' dust in three gloomy warehouses which, like the museum itself, are converted barracks.

The new Infantry Museum, for which a $6 million national fund-raising campaign is under way, will be more than simply a spacious structure which will allow for the display of all museum-owned artifacts. It will be a national living monument to the memory of American Infantrymen and to the ideals for which they have fought and died.

More than half the people in this country are or have been military, or military dependents. Men from all walks of life have spent unforgettable portions of their lives fighting for their country and the freedom it offers them.

The new museum will fill a long-overdue need to honor these valiant people with a fitting memorial. And nowhere in America is there a better place to build a magnificent museum that honors the fighting men of our nation's history than Fort Benning, the undisputed "Home of the Infantry."

We wholeheartedly support the efforts of those who have worked or are working to make the new museum a reality. And we laud the contribution of comedian Bob Hope, who will appear in Columbus March 16 for a benefit performance to help raise funds for the museum. By supporting the development of a new National Infantry Museum, he will immeasurably to insure the future exaltation of the men to whom he has shown so much dedication in his lifetime. (B.D.)

You Can Quit!

Stewart-Watson Field or the "track" as some of Fort Benning's so-called PT enthusiasts refer to it has been heavily populated in recent weeks. As one jogs around the track he can not help but see a few stragglers or walkers for they constantly get in the way. But... the most terrifying of sights is to see those same PT enthusiasts light up as they leave the "track." Little wonder there are so many stragglers and walkers; let alone deaths.

Smoking is perhaps the most serious and widespread health problem among post personnel. Fifty percent of officers and up to 70 per cent of enlisted personnel are habituated according to recent figures.
Cigarette dependency is a known, overwhelming cause of disability, disease, and death in the United States. Persons who smoke lose one-third more man-hours because of illness than those who have never smoked. The Public Health Service estimates that smoking leads to 300,000 premature deaths a year in the United States alone.

The ready availability and low cost of cigarettes, and certain social pressures and tensions, encourage smoking activities among servicemen. Many persons do want desperately to "quit," but frequently do not know where to start.
One educational and rehabilitative anti-smoking program has been developed and used successfully by military physicians and dentists. It consists of a Hospital Phase and a Community Phase.

The Hospital Phase includes encouragement of hospital team members not to smoke before patients; the education of staff and patients to the hazards and psychology of smoking; the controlling of tobacco sales within the hospital confines; the cessation of smoking in reception and treatment areas; the effective use of anti-smoking posters, films, pamphlets, buttons, paperweights, and other persuasive teaching aids and devices; and individual counseling of patients by well-informed health professionals during routine physical examinations and during regular out-patient visits.

The Community phase includes preventive educational efforts extending to base homes, schools, church groups, and clubs; the use of a "berglass teenage smoking mannikin," "Smoking Sam" to motivate children and adults;

Smoking Sam actually smokes and "inhales" a real filter cigarette by means of a built-in tubing system and a pumping apparatus. The tars and nicotine are accumulated in two one- quart glass lungs filled with angel hair which are located in Sam's hollow back.

The circulating smoke is realistically expelled through his nose. The tars quickly turn the artificial lungs black after only a few packs of cigarettes. During the demonstration, the bottles are removed and the children can look at the blackened lungs and smell Sam's breath.

A loudspeaker is built into Sam's chest and by means of a tape recording a two-way conversation between the doctor and the mannikin is carried out.

Many patients will stop smoking after individual counseling alone, whereas others seem to need the support and guidance that only a group can offer.
Therefore, a group therapy smoking withdrawal clinic, the Five-Day Plan to Stop Smoking, is also offered as part of the program's Community Phase. This plan consists of five consecutive evening sessions of one and a half hours duration. It is a copyrighted, worldwide public service program that has been conducted under the auspices of the Seventh Day Adventists since 1959.

Some clinics have taken the basic course and adapted it to the military situation. The plan is not religiously oriented (it is more like Alcoholics Anonymous) and it has been tailored to meet the needs of the group.
Lectures, films, demonstrations, and group discussions, including personal experiences used to help the patient understand his habit. A buddy system and daily personal control booklets are considered vital parts of the plan. It also features the use of substitute tension relieving devices and a special fruit and liquid diet.

The plan also advocates increased physical activity. Exercise methods are used to help the patient understand the psychology of the smoking habit and to teach him the best means of reshaping a life without cigarettes.

No matter what the final results, physicians believe that the program is a success because it has increased the overall awareness of the problems and solutions to the cigarette smoking habit.

Historic Westville gets Connie award

BY ROB MCILVAINE
Last Friday evening was warm and redolent of spring at Lumpkin's Westville, the historic recreation of Georgia and the 1850s. It was the perfect time for some dedicated people to receive the coveted "Connie" award.
Presented by the Society of American Travel Writers (SATW) Conservation and Preservation Committee and presided by the Connie singles out individuals and organizations whose efforts to preserve "what is best in America" displays the most courage and conviction.

Michael Frome, chairman of SATW's Conservation and Preservation Committee and an eloquent environmental activist in his own right, made the presentation to Dr. Joseph B. Mahan, executive director of Westville Historic Handicrafts, Inc. The latter organization is composed of local citizens and interested individuals whose devotion and pioneering independence have made the 1850 village a reality.
The ceremony was delightful and in keeping with ungarish beauty of Westville. Lanterns led the way from the main gate to the Academy Building where the presentation was made. Tassels, candlelight picked out a mood of simplicity and peace with some old presidential daguerotypes, a tip-top table, and a few side chairs connoting a sense of rural 19th century America.

Just prior to the presentation of the award, Duke Jackson, harpischoordist, and Janet Freeman, violinist, both from the Music Department of Georgia Southwestern University, performed a few classical selections. The main piece, a Vivaldi sonata, competed with the haunting cry of a Westville nightingale, a self-appointed soloist for the evening.
In his address, Frome urged the members of Westville Historic Handicrafts, Inc. to avoid commercialism and not let "mass tourism" detract from the "personal experience" now so inherent to the project. According to Mr. Frome, efforts to preserve the American landscape can sometimes incapsulate our heritage, rendering it cold and accessible.

As yet and hopefully, never in the future, the charm of the 1850 village is far from cold or inaccessible. The old handicrafts such as quilting, basketmaking, and pottery making thrive at Westville in an atmosphere that is totally friendly and restorative to a momentary escape from the Modern Age.

Boy Scouts honored March 5

The Boy Scouts of America in the Fort Benning District will hold their annual Court of Honor on March 5, 8:30 a.m., in Marshall Auditorium, Infantry Hall.

This ceremonial event will honor those scouts who have earned various positions in the Scouting Program. The men who have attained Scouting's highest order will be promoted to the rank of Eagle Scout by Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbot, Commanding General of Fort Benning.

Col. A. G. Norris, Commanding Officer of The School Brigade and BSA District Chairman, will present the Leader Awards.

The Order of the Arrow Indian Dance Team will open, and close the Boy Scout program with ceremonial dances.

Workshop scheduled

A four-day human relations workshop will be held at Fort Benning's Main Post Chapel Annex starting March 14.

Attending will be four chaplains from Fort Benning, one from Fort Rucker and one from Homestead Air Force Base. Also taking part will be 10 junior officers and non commissioned officers who are key participants in human relations activities on post.

The purpose of the workshop will be to improve communication skills of chaplains and other selected individuals, who work closely with people. Problem areas to be emphasized are drug abuse, racial tensions and changing life styles of young Americans — as they affect the military community.

Rain fails to damp 49er enthusiasm

Rain dampened the costumes but not the spirits of participants in last Saturday's 49er Party parade at Fort Benning.

Twenty-one prancing horses and their costumed riders from the Hunt Club, a covered wagon drawn by two gray mules and a straw-loaded fabled wagon carrying a band from the gold rush era brought a touch of the old West to several sleepy bouding areas around post.

The purpose of the caravan was to herald the coming 49er Party, to be held tomorrow night from 8 p.m. to 3 a.m. at the Main Officers Club.

drenched the streets just before the parade left the Hunt Club at 10 a.m., and the spectators were undaunted as the participants, children and dogs, excited and awed by the unusual sights and sounds, raced along the sidewalks to keep up with the horses. Friends were a bit more reserved, but they were out too — rubbing the sleep from their eyes as they called to the riders.

Before the parade began, a costume-judging contest was held in the main corral of the Hunt Club. Col. and Mrs. Charles Thebaud and Col.

Hope it's good

OWC initiates Hope visit

Which does Bob Hope prefer — entertaining a lady at lunch or lunching with 800 entertaining ladies? You can find out when Hope is the guest of honor at the Officers' Wives' Club luncheon March 16 at the Main Officers' Club.

The idea to invite Hope to Fort Benning and Columbus was initiated by the OWC, said Col. (ret.) William Higgins, deputy director of the Infantry Museum Association. But only the support of Maj. Gen. O. W. C. Talbot, post commander, and Higgins enabled the visit to become reality. A joint invitation to Hope was extended by Gen. Talbot; James W. Woodruff, president of the Infantry Museum Association; and Mrs. Richard Stoltz, president of the OWC.

The initial sale of tickets for ladies who were OWC members by Jan. 31 took place Feb. 26. This Saturday from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m., the remaining tickets for the luncheon will be offered to all OWC members, regardless of their date of membership. All sales will be on a "first come" basis. There are 20 tickets available for the Main Ballroom, 350 for the

'Duty day with God' set

The 197th Infantry Brigade will conduct two "Duty Day with God" programs Thursday.

Kelley Hill personnel will attend the program between 8:30 and 11:30 a.m. in the Kelley Hill Chapel, while those in the Harmony Church area will hear it from 1:30 to 4:30 in Harmony Church Chapel No. 1.

Col. Edwin L. Kennedy, 197th commander, said that he hopes the program will inspire growth in the individual soldier's moral life and his faith in God.

Added Chap. (Maj.) William D. Harbour, 197th chaplain: "The purpose of the program is to assist each person to incorporate religious beliefs into his daily life. This is how religion becomes relevant to the individual."

The Rev. John Campbell, chaplain of St. Louis University, will lead off the religious activity with Columbus College senior; and Phil and Sheri Jarrell, professional entertainers who frequently perform at the Kelley Hill Coffee House.

Small group discussion leaders will be The Rev. Robert H. Collins, pastor of the Bethlehem Lutheran Church; The Rev. Max Barlow, pastor of the Asbury Methodist Church; and Campbell.

"THE CREATIVE WIFE"

"THE CREATIVE WIFE," a program by Lee Parker, a professional home economist from Overseas Service Corporation, will be presented to several Fort Benning women's groups March 6-9.

Especially designed for military wives, this program will feature new recipe ideas, household hints, personal appearance tips, and ideas for entertaining and hosting. Slides featuring international dishes made with convenience foods will be shown, and free samples and recipe booklets will be provided for all attending.

Schedule for the program is as follows: 19th Brigade, March 6, Luncheon, Main Officers' Club; Company Operations, March 7, Luncheon, Supper Club; Weapons Dept., Aviation Command, March 8, Luncheon; BBOD, March 9, Luncheon.

For reservations, contact your unit reservation chairman.

AVIATION CMD

The Headquarters and Company commander's wives met in the home of Mrs. James Miller for their monthly coffee. A selection of cakes and pastries were served. Mrs. Robert Grov was welcomed to the command. Mrs. Jerry Hahn from the 68th Medical Co. also was welcomed. Several upcoming projects were discussed.

The officers' wives of the 831st Aviation Platoon held their monthly coffee in the home of Mrs. Luther Russell, Feb. 16. Appetizers were served as well as strawberry shortcake.

The ladies of the 69th Trans. Co. met for their monthly coffee in the home of Mrs. Berchard Shipley, Feb. 15. Arranged around a Valentine centerpiece of hearts and flowers were finger sandwiches, individual strawberry shortcakes, coffee cakes, nuts and minis. Coffee and soft drinks also were served.

Attending for the first time were Mrs. George Clardy, Mrs. Stephen Poole, Mrs. Gary Stanley and Mrs. Jack Zody. Mrs. Thomas Jensen was presented an engraved baby spoon from the ladies of the 69th.

Mrs. Irvin Travis conducted the business meeting. Plans to tour the company area March 7 at 10:30 a.m. were discussed. The tour the ladies will meet their husbands for lunch in the Officers' Club.

The wives also discussed a planned joint brunch by the ladies of the 19th Aviation Co. and the Weapons Dept. The brunch will be held in the Supper Club, March 8, beginning at 10:30 a.m. The featured speaker will be a representative from the Overseas Manufacturing Corporation who will present a program on the "Creative Wife."

The wives of the 28th Aviation Co. met in the home of Mrs. John Pickett for their monthly coffee. An assortment of brownies, nut tarts and cookies was served along with coffee, tea and soft drinks.

Mrs. George Twigg welcomed Mrs. Peter Delvers and Mrs. William McRae. The ladies then discussed the upcoming joint brunch by the 19th Aviation Co. and the Weapons Dept. After the business the ladies played pinocle.

Mrs. Clyde Scott sponsored the monthly coffee of the 19th Aviation Co. in her home, Feb. 16. Mrs. Ray McCall was co-hostess. The theme of Valentine's Day was reflected in the refreshments which included a Red Velvet valentine cake, cookies and miniature candy hearts.

Mrs. Joffre Filion II said good-bye to Mrs. Alvin Chapman and proceeded with the monthly business meeting. The ladies formed committees to organize the brunch which they will co-sponsor with the Weapons Dept.

After the business meeting, the ladies watched a demonstration by a representative of household products.

LEADERSHIP DEPT.

The officers' wives of the Leadership Dept. held a potluck Supper at the home of Mrs. Billy E. Rutherford, Feb. 1. Hostesses were the ladies of the Leadership Committee. Forty ladies attended.

A Valentine theme was used, and name tags of red and white hearts were made by Mrs. Yvonne Harrison. The centerpiece for the main table was red and white rosette candles. A floral arrangement of red and white carnations adorned the dessert and salad table. Red fruit punch and hot coffee were served.

Mrs. William B. Steele welcomed the ladies and hailed Mrs. Thomas M. Gardner and Mrs. Dean R. Loftin. Special guest was Mrs. Robert J. Rodgers, mother of Mrs. Jack Humphries.

WEAPONS DEPT.

The ladies of Weapons Dept. toured Hickory Farms

Hurry up and wait

These ladies exchange pleasantries while waiting to buy tickets to the Bob Hope benefit, March 16. More than 200 women purchased tickets within an hour at the Infantry Hall sales location last Saturday, causing long lines to be the rule rather than the exception.

at Cross Country Plaza, Feb. 16. The women tasted domestic and imported cheeses and received suggestions on how to serve them. Decorative baskets and ornaments were displayed in the exhibit. Hostesses for the event were the ladies of the 31st Subcommand, Small Arms Committee.

The ladies of Headquarters held their February coffee at the home of Mrs. Ronald Mooney. The A and M Committee ladies held their monthly coffee at Mrs. James Stone's home. Plans for the next department function—a brunch scheduled March 8 — were discussed. Leaving were Mrs. Donald Vest, Mrs. Bobby Downs and Mrs. Gary Degels.

The ladies of the Mortar Committee were entertained one evening this month in the home of Mrs. James Stacy. Mrs. Jack Conn was a guest. Leaving the committee were Mrs. Michael Eastley, Mrs. Bruce Bittman and Mrs. Kellius Bordeaux. The monthly Small Arms coffee was held at the home of Mrs. Paul Gutfrie, with Mrs. William Bowden as co-hostess. Newcomers were Mrs. Ron Grae, Mrs. Michael Sexton and Mrs. Scott Weingeroff. Leaving the committee were Mrs. Robert Patterson, Mrs. Dave Hyland and Mrs. Timothy Broberg.

"Anyone for peanuts?" was the thought of the day Feb. 15, for the ladies of the Department of Plans and Training. Approximately 25 women met at Tom's Foods, Ltd., in Columbus for a tour of the plant. The ladies watched the different phases of candy making, from start to finish, and learned how peanuts are shelled, roasted, salted and packaged.

After the tour, the ladies had lunch at Spano's Restaurant. Mrs. Raymond H. Robinson gave the latest OWC news, including the March OWC Luncheon, featuring Bob Hope.

Mrs. Lee C. Smith Jr. and the ladies of Plans and Operations Div. arranged the tour and luncheon.

AIRBORNE WIVES

The officers' wives of the Airborne Department held a farewell luncheon for Mrs. Robert H. Anspaugh Feb. 9 at the Country Club. Hostess and co-hostess were Mrs. Robert W. Kintner Jr. and Mrs. Michael R. Barnes. Served were cocktails and a lunch of consommé, chef's salad and red marble cake for dessert.

Red and white carnations decorated in a Valentine's theme were the table's centerpiece. A crystal glass bowl arranged with artificial flowers was presented to Mrs. Anspaugh, whose husband retired from the service this month. Also leaving was Mrs. Bruce J. Wicks, who was presented a bracelet charm.

Thrift Shop workers for next month will be Mrs. Leonard S. Cody and Mrs. Harry L. Ikner. Mrs. Jack C. Helms will welcome the wives in March at her home on Austin Loop.

BBOD

A "hail and farewell" luncheon was held in the Mirror Room of the Main Officers' Club Feb. 22, for the officers' and wives of the Artillery Committee.

After lunch, Lt. Col. E. Skye, committee chairman, welcomed Capt. and Mrs. James Badger. Leaving were Capt. and Mrs. R. A. Snyder. Baby cups for the daughters of Capt. and Mrs. J. P. Baillieger and Capt. and Mrs. Gerald S. Johnston were presented. The committee newlyweds, Capt. and Mrs. Richard L. Arms, received a silver tray from BBOD and a pair of silver goblets from the committee.

RANGER OFFICERS' WIVES

Drug abuse and alcoholism were the topics of discussion at the Benning Ranger Officers' Wives luncheon at the Supper Club, Feb. 17. Chap. Anthony Lozvaly, "Benning House" advisor, was guest speaker. He held the women about some of the experiences and thoughts that confront a person working in the fields of drug abuse and alcoholism. Long-winded discussions of the types of drugs being used, their effects and how the Army, through such organizations as the Benning House, is attempting to aid men overcome addiction. Also discussed were some of the reasons for drug and alcohol abuse. The use of encounter sessions toward rehabilitation was an important topic of the meeting.

Also at the luncheon, a new amendment concerning the election of board members was added to the constitution.

The decorations for the luncheon reflected a valentine theme with red and white ribbons, napkins and lace centerpieces. The hostess for the luncheon was Mrs. William Sweeney.

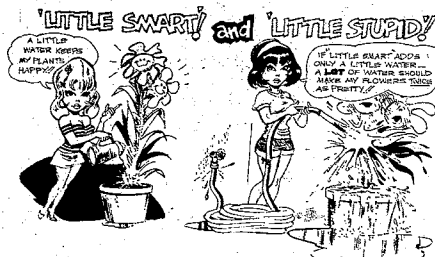

Mrs. Robert Mayor welcomed two new members from Operations: Mrs. Richard Wandke and Mrs. James Roach.

INFANTRY AGENCY

The ladies of the Infantry Agency had their February coffee at the home of Mrs. Robert A. Thompson. The other hostesses were Mrs. Robert J. O'Neil and Mrs. John S. Shiba. Hot cranberry punch was served along with coffee, sandwiches and cookies.

Mrs. Robert Siegrist welcomed Mrs. Robert G. Glick, Mrs. Thomas L. Pope and Mrs. James H. Cook. Special guests were Mrs. Edward W. Dawney and Mrs. Jean C. Selvan. Mrs. John Gibbs had a new baby girl, Andrea. Mrs. Bruce Davis is the new Hospital Chairman.

Mrs. Wayne Burton announced that the OWC Choral see Fem-line, page 17.

How does your garden grow?

BY ROB McILVAINE
That yearly resurgence, spring, is in the air. In the evenings and on the weekends a lot of pot residents can be seen peddling bicycles, folding deck chairs, and looking quizzically at their winter-worn lawns. Some are even now preparing to stake out a few flower patches and spruce up the trellises for the roses and morning glories that will soon be "abloomin'".

In an effort to warn and to warn the appreciative and seasoned green thumb, Sp5 Michael Williams, Preventive Medicine Activity MAH, has furnished the following guidance. It is part of a three phase series designed to let everyone know how to use intelligently the pesticides and insect repellents designed to keep gardens and foliage free of blight.

BASIC GUIDELINES FOR THE CONTROL OF PESTS IN THE HOME AND GARDEN

Some general precautions and tips:

A. Pesticides are toxic chemicals used by man to rid himself of certain pests. Therefore, all pesticides are dangerous if misused.

B. Decide what the problem is before purchasing pesticides, and then purchase only what is needed, both in quality and in quantity. Give some consideration to relying on nonchemical controls; they may be just as effective and less toxic.

C. (Label here) The above label means what it says. Follow it. Do the pesticide will do the job you wish it to. Another important point to consider is disposal of unused pesticides. Disposal can be a major problem for the gardener and homeowner since most pesticides break down chemically very slowly and leave a high residue. This residue can be harmful to the plant, pets, and children. Again, purchase and use only what you need.

D. Apply only the amount needed or called for in the instructions on the label. A little might do a lot of good but a little more might KILL the very plant you are trying to save or protect. Remember the following rule: "Overzealous application of pesticide might have a severe adverse effect."

E. When in doubt about what to use and how much call in an expert. The county agent, agricultural Extension Service, has printed information to advise the gardener on what to do. Preventive Medicine here on post will do what it can also.

PESTICIDES DO NOT WORK MIRACLES—THEY KILL PESTS — DON'T BE A PEST.

49ER PARTY! TO-MORROW

BY BILL DIEHL

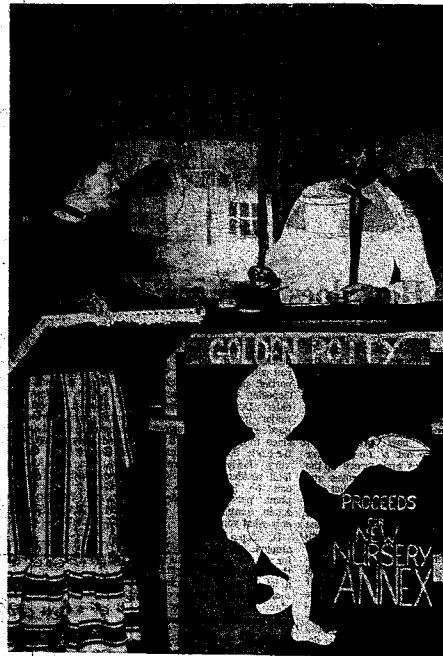

When the swinging doors open at 6 p.m. tomorrow at the Main Officers Club, the 49er Party—the biggest rip-roaring social event of the year at Fort Benning—will get under way.

And what a night it will be. For nine solid hours, the gaiety and glitter of the gold rush days will fill every room of the club. Can-can girls, games galore, costume judging and surprise entertainment will rock the rafters until 3 a.m. Prairie vittles from Maggie's Chuckwagon, "white elephant" gifts from the Country Store and drinks from "old West" saloons throughout the club will be readily available to all partygoers.

Although it is the biggest event of the year, the 49er Party is also the most informal. Those attending are urged to wear costumes characteristic of the 1849 era. Prizes will be awarded for the most appropriate, best female, best male, most humorous and best couple costumes.

Capt. Robert Martin suspiciously watches Mrs. William Filippini as she prepares to win one of the many games of skill that will be played by partygoers tomorrow night. (Photo by Anne Anthony)

For more than two months, 15 committees have been working long hours on their extensive preparations for the big night. Today, the plans to make this the best 49er Party ever are in the final stages of completion.

Maggie's Chuckwagon is ready to roll. Maggie will be serving such dinner delights as chuckwagon chili, chicken in the bucket, ole' hoss' thief hamburgers and rustler's barbecue from 6 until 11:30. A manhandler's breakfast of steak n' eggs, hash browns and toast will take over at 12:30.

Fort Benning's top entertainment acts are in final rehearsal. Female and unidentified male can-can dancers are adjusting their garters in preparation for their leg-boosting, eye-opening routines. Singers and musicians are tuning their voices and instruments, and skit groups from all over post are trying to get through their acts for the last time without giggling.

Volunteers from every unit at Fort Benning are prepared to operate the many brain-teasing games of skill that tested the mettle of the gold rushers.

Gaming tables, huge wall murals, a "mile-long" bar, swinging doors, the vishing well and the many other decorations that will magically transform the club into the Gold Nugget Saloon are on the trucks.

The cigarette girls have their tobacco in the trays, the ticket-takers are headed for the doors. The party is nearly under way.

To the crew who have worked on the 49er Party, the first creak of the rustic swinging doors will signify the culmination of weeks of hard work and a very special kind of camaraderie.

To the partygoers, it will mean the start of the most exciting and memorable night of the year.

And to all the people at Fort Benning, it will mean the beginning of another step towards the construction of a much-needed supplementary annex to Fort Town Nursery. That's where the proceeds will go.

McQueen reviews

Mitchum's role in 'Ryan's Daughter' his best in years

RYAN'S DAUGHTER starring Robert Mitchum, Trevor Howard. Directed by James and Sarah Miles.

This is the poignant love story of a young girl, played by Sarah Miles, a middle-aged school teacher, Robert Mitchum; and a young British officer, Christopher Jones.

The film takes place on the West coast of Ireland during the First World War. The Irish revolt is in full swing with the Germans supplying guns and ammunition to the rebels.

Sarah Miles, the daughter of a tavern keeper and an unknown informer to the British, marries Mitchum but finds more excitement and love with the newly arrived crippled officer.

This is one of Mitchum's best roles in recent years.

Trevor Howard plays the hard bitten priest who carries the conscience of the village on his shoulders. He performs his role with the harshness and love of a Victorian father. He brings conviction by all means available, including knocking down a belligerent with his fist. Acused of taking advantage of his priestly robes, he says, "That's what they are for."

Director David Lean catches on film the beauty of the Irish countryside and the beauties of love as well as the fury of a betrayed people.

The cold beauty of the storm plays against the courage of the townspeople who brave its wrath to rescue weapons destined for the Irish resistance. Even the lowliest of these people show their regard for their nation with acts of bravery.

Lean's characters all have deficiencies: the major, a crippled leg; the idiot, a crippled body; the teacher, crippled passion; Ryan, lacking scruples; the lovepeople, lacking compassion; and Ryan's daughter, lacking understanding.

All of the "lacks" shown in the film are explained, but it tends to weigh down the story on this aspect, giving the impression of an imperfect work.

which doesn't match the decency shown in other parts of the picture. — by Dave McQueen

To servicemen, dependents Discount cards available for Florida's Disney World

Fort Benning servicemen and their dependents are now eligible to join Walt Disney's Magic Kingdom Club, an organization which provides its members with substantial discounts at Florida's Walt Disney World.

A. J. Conte, deputy special services officer, said that a free membership card is available at the recreation office in Doughboy Station on the main post. One family membership card will be issued upon request to each of Fort Benning's active duty or retired military personnel. The cards will be offered through December.

"Anybody planning a trip to Disney World or Disneyland should take advantage of this opportunity," Conte said. "Membership in the Magic Kingdom Club can save an individual or family a good deal of money on a trip to either of these places."

For example, an adult seven-day ticket book, which includes one day's unlimited use of the Walt Disney World transportation system (monorail, watercraft, and trolleys) has a face value of $9.89. Magic Kingdom Club members can purchase the book for $4.50. For a child (three to 11 years old), the same book, sold to the general public for $6.60, costs a member $3.50.

"We don't sell the ticket books here," Conte said. "We just issue the free membership cards to those who want them. The membership cards are then presented at the gate of either Disneyland in California or Walt Disney World. It is here that the discounts are given."

Situated 20 miles southwest of Orlando, and encompassing more than 2,500 acres, Walt Disney's World includes six major attractions.

Librarian knows score when writing play music

How does one write the entire musical score for a play if he can neither read music nor play a single musical instrument?

It isn't easy, but Jim Norman, assistant librarian at Columbus College and a frequent actor of the Springer Theatre Company stage, created the music for the children's play, "Just So Stories," by Aunand Harris.

The play, which is presented by the Springer Children's Theatre and the Columbus Museum of Arts and Crafts, will be shown at 5 p.m. today and at 2:30 p.m. tomorrow and Sunday.

Although he can play no instruments and has had no voice lessons, Norman has been writing songs for over a dozen years. And he refuses to admit that writing music for this particular play was difficult.

"The lyrics were already in the show," he said. "They were so good all I had to do was just read them, and they came to me just like that." He snapped his fingers.

Norman had a music education theory course while in undergraduate school at the University of Tennessee but even though he knew the tune he wanted he still had to rely on the girl who lived across the hall from his apartment to come over and play his music.

"While she knows it completely self-taught. While at Tennessee and later while working on his master's degree in library science at Florida State University, Norman sang in a few choral groups.

"I was working on my music casually all this time," he said.

Patriots dump Leadership, take company ege title

B Co., 1st Bn., 58th Inf. built up an early 15-point lead, then coasted to a 68-62 victory over the Leadership Dept. to capture the post company level basketball championship Thursday.

The B Co. "Patriots," representing the 197th Infantry Brigade, held a 40-25 margin at halftime but Leadership rallied to close the gap to nine, 55-46, at end of the third quarter.

Champion 'Patriots'

The Leadership cagers continued to press in the final period but time ran out.

John Black, John Halverson and Ervin Goodwin led scoring for the Patriots. Black netted 27 points, Halverson, 18 and Goodwin, 12.

Billie May, David Decker and Robert Quesenberry topped the Leadership team. May had 14 points while Decker and Quesenberry each had 12.

The Patriots victory was their second of the day against the Leadership Dept. Earlier they came out on top 79-74. In this game the Patriots also stepped off to an early lead and were ahead 43 to 34 at half. But Leadership rallied and knotted the contest at the end of the third quarter. However, they were unable to keep pace with the Patriots during the last period. John Halverson of B Co. led scoring with 23 points.

The Patriots won four games to take the championship. They defeated D Company, Hq. Cmd.; Co. C, 43rd Eng. Bn. and the Leadership Dept. twice during the double elimination tournament.

Leadership Department bested the 608th Trans. Co., 139th M.P. Co. and the 197th Support Bn. to enter the finals.

After the Patriots clinched the championship, Col. Willard Latham, post chief of staff, presented trophies to team members from both squads.

He also presented trophies to the champion and runner up teams of the Infantry-Center brigade level basketball tournament, completed Feb. 7. The 197th Infantry Brigade captured the top spot while Medical Activities came in second.

Runner-up Leadership

Orienteer qualifies for Olympic tryouts

SP4 Don Kennedy of Fort Benning's Orienteering Team qualified for the Olympic tryouts this spring by taking first place in recent orienteering competition at Eglin Air Force Base, Fla.

Kennedy crossed the 26-mile, 385-yard course in 2 hours, 26 minutes, 59 seconds, 26 minutes, 59 seconds under the time required for the Olympic tryouts, to be held in Eugene, Ore.

Kennedy led Benning to a clean sweep of the first five places in the Eglin competition, part of the first annual running festival held there. Teams from the Air Force and Marines competed against the soldiers.

The event was sponsored by AFJ and the Knoxville Track Club and sanctioned by the Amateur Athletic Union and U.S. Track and Field Federation.

Special heart-shaped plaques were awarded to winners of each class, and trophies were presented to the winning teams. Each of the finalists also received a certificate of participation.

Other Benning winners were Capt. Ed Strabel, second, 2:44:45; Capt. Joe Nolan, third, 2:48:15; Sgt. Dale Aberle, fourth,

2:46:04; and Sgt. Kevin Krzeszki, fifth, 2:53:08.

Fifteen races were scheduled. Young enthusiasts, boys and girls ages 7 and under, traversed a one-mile course while the endurance-minded completed a 26-mile marathon.

The 24-hour marathon is a relay race conducted on a 1/4-mile track. Each member of a 10-man team runs one mile, then passes a baton to the next team member. The objective is to run as many miles as possible in a one-day period.

The world record is held by the U.S. Olympics training camp team which completed 295 miles and 269 yards.

Post handball team takes on Rucker

BY BILL KLOEB

The Fort Benning team Handball squad travels to Ft. Rucker this weekend for a two game series in the opening contests of the 3rd Army Traveling League's Western Division.

Next weekend the Doughboys go to Redstone Arsenal for a two game set then host Ft. Campbell at Doughboy Stadium March 17 and 18 in their first home games of the season. The 3rd Army League is composed of a Western and Eastern division.

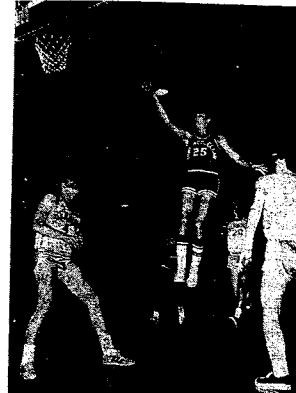

Along with Fort Benning in the Western are Forts Rucker, Jackson, McPherson, Campbell and Redstone Arsenal. Forts Jackson, Bragg, Stewart, Gordon, Hunter, Army Airfield and the Atlanta Army Depot are in the Eastern.

Each squad will play two games at home and two away against the other teams in their division. Upon completion of league play the top two teams in each division will compete in a double-elimination tournament here to determine the 3rd Army champions.

Team handball is comparatively new to the United States and to the Army sports program. The game originated in Scandinavia early this century and spread rapidly throughout Europe. It was an event in the 1952 Olympic competition. The United States has fielded teams in the Olympics but has never made creditable showings. Last year team handball was added to the Army sports program to build a pool of trained athletes to represent this country in future Olympic trials.

The game is played indoors or outdoors on an area about the size of a basketball court. In playing, one uses skills developed in basketball, soccer and volleyball. Goal nets are similar to those used in ice hockey. An inflated leather ball approximately five inches in diameter is moved by dribbling, passing, hitting or by striking with the hands. It may not be kicked.

Although tall men have an advantage in the game, agile smaller players can be effective. The tempo of the game is similar to that of ice hockey and is seldom interrupted by time out periods and penalties.

Delivering the mail

Jim Ward (25) of McClellan shoots for two games Fort Benning in a series that cost the Doughboys two games, 96-88 and 111-104. The games were played last month.

Skeet shoot-off on tap

The Rod and Gun Club will hold a skeet shoot-off March 18 and 19 to select a team to represent the club in the Georgia Skeet Association sanctioned shoot next May. The shoot will consist of 100 birds using the 12 gauge shotgun, the first day and 100 birds using the 20 gauge shotgun the next. The five shooters with the highest aggregate scores will make the club team. All members of the Rod and Gun Club are invited to compete. For additional information call 545-6622.

Hammerin' Hank will play his 19th Major

Post swimmers excel in Pensacola meet

Five team members earned high individual honors as the Fort Benning Barracuda swim team took fourth place in the "senior" and "age group" competition at the Pensacola Winter Invitational Swim Meet in Florida last weekend.

The Barracudas also scored their first place finishes, a fifth place finish and a sixth place finish in the medley relay events.

Robert Kenyon was high meet scorer in the competition for boys 15 to 17 years old. He took first place in the 50 yard freestyle, 100 yard freestyle and 200 yard freestyle individual events; second place in the 100 yard breast stroke and 200 yard freestyle races and third place in the 100 yard butterfly and 100 yard backstroke events.

Randy Messer was the third highest scorer among boys 13 to 14 years and made a Georgia All-Star time of 24:29 in the 50 yard freestyle race and also placed first in the 100 yard freestyle race and fourth place in the 100 yard backstroke and 200 yard freestyle races.

John Mistak scored high in his age group and in the senior scoring. He was runner up in the 11 to 12 category and third in the senior division scoring. He captured third place in the 100 yard freestyle and backstroke events and fifth in the 200 yard freestyle and 200 yard freestyle races and third place in the 100 yard butterfly and 100 yard backstroke events.

David Messer achieved a Georgia All-Star time in the 100 yard breaststroke event for boys 13 to 14-1:09.8.

Jonathan Warren scored points for the Barracudas in six events. He was first in the 200 yard freestyle, third in the 100 yard backstroke, fourth in the 100 yard freestyle, fifth in the 50 yard freestyle and 100 yard butterfly events and sixth in the 200 yard individual medley.

Other Barracuda swimmers were made in the day meet at the Pensacola meet in the 50 yard freestyle and 200 yard freestyle races. In the 100 yard backstroke, third in the 100 yard butterfly, fourth in the 100 yard freestyle and 200 yard individual medley and third in the 200 yard freestyle races.

David Messer achieved a Georgia All-Star time in the 100 yard breaststroke event for boys 13 to 14-1:09.8.

Atlanta slugger defying age in race to beat Ruth's record

Hank Aaron's race with time to beat Babe Ruth's career home run record of 714 reached another milestone this Feb. 5, when Aaron celebrated his 38th birthday.

The Braves' slugger defied age last season by having his best big league year ever. He led the Braves club in RBI with 118, hit .327 and finished second in the league in homers with 47. It was the first time that Aaron hit as many as 47 homers in a season. Ironically, Ruth also had just one 47-homer season, and the next year (1927) he hit 60.

Hammerin' Hank will play his 19th Major League season in 1972 and will report to spring training just 75 homers away from Ruth's amazing career mark. Aaron also enters the 1972 season just 20 home runs away from the all-time career record for homers with a single team, set by Ruth at 659 with the Yankees. All of Aaron's 659 career homers have been with the Braves, while Ruth divided his 714 among the Red Sox, Yankees and Braves.

Here are a few facts about Hank Aaron:

He was the top vote-getter among all players for selection to the Major League All-Star teams the past two years. He collected 1,119,516 votes from his fans last season.

Handball clinic set

The sports section of Fort Benning's special services will hold a team handball clinic at the Harmony Church Field House Wednesday and Thursday to prepare officials, coaches and players for the post major unit team handball competition.

The two day clinic, which will start at 1 p.m. each day, will stress rules and playing techniques. Major units may send as many men as they want to the two sessions. Individuals interested in attending the clinic should contact unit sports officers or call 545-1616 for additional information.

Handgunner Heugatter captures 3 pistol crowns

MSgt. Emil Heugatter seemed to possess the keys to the gunner's throne when he won three of the four championship crowns in the two-day International Invitational Pistol Tournament at Phillips Range Thursday and Friday.

Heugatter, national indoor pistol champion from the U.S. Army Marksmanship Training Unit, rolled up 549 of a possible 600 points to outdistance his international competitors in the first free pistol match. SSGT John Sinciski, a companion marksman who fired an identical 549, led the tie-breaker and settled for the runner-up position, while SFC Hershel Anderson claimed the third place honors with 546.

In the second match, Heugatter again edged the field when he took the center fire crown with 597. He needed every count though, as SSGT Jimmy McCauley, also of the Marksmanship Unit, was just one point behind his total. MSgt. Robert Whitaker also fired a 596 for third place.

Heugatter again breezed by his competitors during the second day of competition and captured the standard pistol crown with 599 and led his team to victory in that event.

In the four competition matches in the international tournament, Heugatter lost only the Rapid Fire Pistol set which was claimed by companion shooter McCauley who blazed a near record score of 921.

The highlight of the latter match was the record-breaking performance of John T. McNally, 16-year-old son of SFC and Mrs. James McNally of Young McCauley, a sophomore at Columbus High School, fired a new junior national mark of 590 into the Rapid Fire targets as he finished fourth overall. The three marksman shooters outpointing the youth was his father, Whitaker and McCauley. All three shooters are from the USAMTU.

The U.S. Army "Blue" team, led by Heugatter, won the standard pistol match and the Free Pistol contest, while McCauley led another Army team to victory in Rapid Fire Pistol and Center Fire Pistol competition to make it a clean sweep for USAMTU's fiefdom teams.

Boars victorious

Three new civilian records were established simultaneously by Maj. (ret.) Willis L. Powell of Columbus, who he posted a 278 in the slow runs and 284 in the fast runs to win his category. His 527 International Shooting Union aggregate also was a new national mark. Powell is former Running Board marksman with USAMTU.

In individual achievements between the two service teams, the big prize went to the Air Force. SSGT Robert Yeager of Lockland Air Force Base, Tex., captured the first days aggregate of slow and fast runs with a composite 547, while Davis and Moeller of the Army fired a 545 and 545 respectively.

Moeller came back strongly on the second day and captured the day's aggregate with 537 — and with it the fast run aggregate with 527. The Slow Run aggregate went to Yeager who beat out Davis by one with 562.

Sheet shoot held

Capt. Kenneth Gilbert and Sp4 Donald Haldeman, shotgun shooters with the U. S. Army Marksmanship Training Unit, each posted the high three-day aggregate in the Southeastern Slow and Clay Rifle (ret.) Willis L. Powell of Columbus, who he posted a 278 in the slow runs and 284 in the fast runs to win his category. His 527 International Shooting Union aggregate also was a new national mark. Powell is former Running Board marksman with USAMTU.

Leading the bird shooting for three straight days with scores of 98, 97 and 96, Gilbert finished the 300 bird event eight points ahead of his nearest rival, former Marksmanship shooter Tony Rosetti of Biloxy, Miss. Frank McCartney of Bloomfield Hills, Mich., posted a 281 for the third place honors. Haldeman, leading all the way, had a near perfect day of shooting the 99 of 100 birds and followed with a 94 and 96 for a winning combination 282.

Maj. Gordon Horner, an alternate on the U.S. Army Marksmanship Training Unit, each shooting championships, won the second spot with 279.

Claiming third place in the Clay Pigeon matches was Maj. James Clawson of USAMTU.

By winning, the Fort Benning soldiers have assured themselves of an invitation to the final tryouts for the U.S. Olympic Team to be held in June at Phoenix, Ariz. The National Rifle Association usually extends such invitations to shooters winning a berth in the Florida match.

Spring Turkey Season

Hunters interested in turkey will be glad to hear that Alabama and Georgia spring gobbler seasons have been announced. Hubert Handy, game-management chief of the Georgia Game and Fish Commission, said that the Georgia season will open March 25 and close April 22, while Alabama's will open March 20 and close April 30.

Each hunter will be allowed to take one gobbler from the reservation. Appropriate hunting licenses are required. Anyone hunting on the Georgia portion of the reservation must possess a Georgia big game stamp.

All kills must be registered at the post fish and game unit check point in Bldg. 5883, Harmony Church.

Fishing Time Is Here

The time has come for even the fair-weather fisherman to leave his armchair and television and get some fishing action.

White bass are running in the Chattahoochee and bass and crappie are beginning to move out of the deep water. They all are hungry and looking for good spawning areas. Most of the female white bass are heavy with roe, some of them appear ready for spawning.

Many activities are planned to help fishermen enjoy their hobby. Every year the number of fishing contests seem to increase. This year is no exception.

The Rod and Gun Club sponsors a fishing derby every month. Fishermen registering the largest bass, prize and catfish for each month are presented a prize. Merchandise certificates of $15 or the equivalent in fishing equipment are awarded winners in each category.

To be eligible for prizes, fishermen must be members of the Rod and Gun Club, register at the club before going fishing, make their catch from one of the named ponds on post and register the catch at the club.

SFC James Jolly of ISB was the winner of the February bass contest. He registered a four-pound, five-ounce catch from Kings Pond. CWO (ret.) Brynton Davis of 3089 Lochie Street brought in the largest herring, weighing eight-ounces. His catch also came from Kings Pond.

The crutten prize went to SSGT (ret.) Frank Lee of 437 Old Mason Road. His five-pound, eight-ounce catch came from Twilight Pond.

Interested anglers can get additional information about the fishing derby from the Rod and Gun Club. Call 545-6028 or visit the club on First Division Road.

Another local event of interest to fishermen is the Second Annual Bass Fishing Derby from 7 a.m. to 5 p.m. March 25. The rodeo, sponsored by the Georgia-Alabama Bass Club, is held at Lake Oliver in conjunction with Columbus Festival Days activities.

Black, largemouth, spotted, red eye and small mouth bass will be featured. Entry fee is $5 and numerous prizes will be awarded. Entry blanks may be obtained at the Rod and Gun Club, sporting goods stores and bait shops in town or by writing the Georgia-Alabama Bass Club, P.O. Box 1396, Columbus, Ga. 31901.

Fishermen who catch trophy specimens can register it in several other contests. Each year the Georgia Sportsmen's Federation and the Georgia Fish and Game Magazine jointly sponsor a large fish contest. Prizes are awarded for largemouth and white bass, crappie, herring, mountain trout and catfish.

Another popular contest is held by Field and Stream magazine with hundreds of prizes for both salt-water and fresh-water catches.

You don't have to be a professional fisherman to make your recreation pay for itself but you do have to get out of that easy chair.

ALL club members are invited to attend the presentation of awards at the Rod and Gun Club this evening at 7:30.

The winners of the club Small Game Hunting Contest will be announced and Col. Robert Duly, club president, will hand out awards.

Winners of the quail, rabbit and squirrel contests each will receive a Remington Pump Action shotgun, second place winners, 10 boxes of shotgun shells and third place winners, 15 gift certificates redeemable at the club sales counter.

There are 97 types of squirrels to be found in the United States but most of them are variations of the Red, Gray or Fox Squirrel. The Red Squirrel inhabits the northern parts of the country. The Fox Squirrel the mid-west and the Eastern United States. Although grain and nuts and acorns are his favorite foods, he considers birds eggs a delicacy. USAMTU to participate in Florida pistol tourney SFC Hershel Anderson of the U.S. Army Marksmanship Training Unit, winner of the two 2700 aggregate pistol tournaments here this year, leads a team of Army handgunners in a similar match in the Palmetto Pistol Tournament today at Miami, Fla.

The Fort Benning contingent will compete against some of the finest handgunners in the southeastern United States.

Featuring both individual and team action, the tourney, which is being fired on the Dade County pistol range, will include both a 2700 aggregate grand championship in three-gun competition and a standard pistol and rapid fire pistol match in international phases.

The three day tourney will pit the best of the Navy, Air Force, Marine Corps, Police teams and civilian competitors for the top individual crown and team laurels.

Eight matches, including the .22 caliber pistol and center fire pistol sub-aggregates will be fired. Today nine hundred points are possible in each category.

Tom Landry is a man who practices what he preaches. The Dallas Cowboy head coach, who spends much of his spare time working with Christian-atheist youth groups, has to believe in the spirit of forgiveness as he continues to turn the other cheek to Duane Thomas.

Thomas, you may recall, tongue-lashed Landry last summer during a dispute, resulting in the star running back being temporarily traded to the New England Patriots. The most printable insult hurled at Landry was "plastic man." Doubtless, he was called much worse.

Thomas found New England no more to his liking than Texas, however, and his career as a Pat was short-lived. With Calvin Hill's knee a question mark, Landry and the Cowboys decided to forgive and forget. They remembered Thomas as the gifted rookie who enjoyed a brilliant season in the fall of '70. The embarrassing and bitter memory of '71 vanished, and the controversial running back was back in a Cowboy uniform before the season began.

Thomas regained his old form midway through the season and helped the Cowboys capture two football World Titles. Even the bitterest Thomas critics must admit that without the super runner in the lineup the Cowboys would have been derailed long before Super Bowl VI.

While his performance remained superb on the field, his off-field image still needed work. He refused to talk to the press and even shunned his own teammates. Nevertheless, Landry remained loyal to his Cowboy buddies.

"Duane works as hard as anyone at practice," Landry said on numerous occasions. "While I don't necessarily agree with his actions, it is his business how he conducts himself off the playing field so long as it isn't detrimental to the ball club or himself."

After the Cowpokes turned back Miami 24-3 in New Orleans in January some of the hostility towards Thomas seemed to diminish. Landry even hinted that he and his problem child might be on the verge of negotiations. Dallas fans were anticipating a Landry/Thomas summit meeting much the way the rest of the nation was celebrating the Presidential junket to China. Perhaps the heated hostility between the warring factions could be settled after all.

Unfortunately, the parley never came to pass. Thomas was sent to that when he and his younger brother were picked up for possession of marijuana in late January. After pleading guilty to the charges, the two were given five year probationary sentences by a Texas judge.

Admirably, many of his teammates — including some who continually urge youngsters not to experiment with drugs — rallied to his side. So did Landry. Although Thomas was guilty, Landry, who is on record as detesting drugs, nonetheless elected to stick by his fallen star. The Dallas coach more likely is waiting for NFL commissioner Pete Rozelle to take him off the book.

Rozelle, the omnipotent czar of pro football, has remained silent on Thomas' future. The league's stand against drug abuse is well known so it is safe to assume the commissioner will reprimand Thomas in some manner. Until he does, Landry will probably continue to turn the other cheek.

If Thomas were an injury plagued linebacker or mediocre running back would Landry be as understanding? After all, the spirit of forgiving can only go so far.

College offer swayed Angelo to Montreal

"The Los Angeles Dodgers offered me a contract but I turned it down because my college education was excluded," explained EFC Steve Angelo, a Track Vehicle Mechanic student in the 15th Co, 1st Bn., The School Brigade (TSB). "However, the Expos did include college and this one important factor swayed my decision to play for Montreal."

Angelo spent three of his high school years on the Monte Bello Varsity Team, Calif., where he racked up a .444 batting average and captured the title of Most Valuable Player in the Pacific Coast League. Needless to say Angelo was not in his third base position and, when Pro-contract offers came in, he dropped out of East Los Angeles Junior College after one semester and signed with the Montreal Expos. Angelo has played in the Minor Leagues for three years prior to entering the Army National Guard.

In June of '69, Angelo started to play for the Sarasota Expos, Sarasota, Fla., a Rookie Team in the Gulf Coast League. He did an impressive job which was highlighted in the Gulf Coast Pentamant "Game." There was a man on second base against Angelo and the score was tied. With a 3-2 pitch against me, I know this had to be my big chance." As luck and skill would have it, Angelo connected with a double which broke the tie, wrapped up the game for the Sarasota Expos, and won for him a place on the Gulf Coast League All-Star Team.

Now beginning his second year of pro-ball, Angelo graduated to the Class "A" Northern League (South Dakota) where he would establish a .309 average and lead the league in total hits.

"Much of our time in the Minors was spent learning the styles and techniques of the 'old pros' from the Pros personally," mentioned Angelo. "Evel Williams, a very enthusiastic teacher, showed me some tips on hitting and Cincinnati's Rusty Bister on also helped me with fielding and infield play."

A big boost to Angelo's career and confidence came when he was selected to play in the Winter Baseball League. This club is a collection of the promising players from the Minor Leagues who for two months in Florida, compete against major league players. Here Angelo managed to make an impression in a crucial game where impressing people was very important.

Anderson leads in match

SFC Hershel Anderson, one of the top handgunners in the nation and a Pan American Gold Medalist, surged into the lead Saturday to win the Monthly Open Handgun Tournament with a two-day combination of 2650-132X.

The U.S. Army Marksmanship Unit's master gunner started the two-day gun aggregate tournament by taking the first gun series — the 22 caliber sub-aggregate, — with a near record 894-47X. He then faltered in the center fire pistol series and fell behind front runner MSGT. Emil Heugatter, a competition shooter, who garnered 894-50X.

In the home stretch, Anderson overcame much of the deficit but managed only second in the 45 caliber pistol series.

Anderson started strong by taking the 45 caliber slow fire match with a 193, one point ahead of SFC Bonnie Harmon, the ultimate winner of the series, but failed to place in the timed fire match. In the final result, Harmon edged his three, taking the series sub-aggregate with an 883-42.

Anderson's 886 in the 45 caliber pistol series vaulted him into the top position of the Grand Aggregate, seven points ahead of Heugatter, who seemed destined to win after taking three of the four international pistol matches in the tourney's head-to-head Three-Gun event and then captured the Center Fire

Harmon's ETS is BAYONET'S loss

By RAY BASSETT

Many people consider serving in the Army sometimes far from home as one of the most friendships help to ease the time and ease the homesick feeling.

One such friendship came to a temporary end this week as Sps Keith Harmon hid farewell to his friends and left the Army to pursue his career in photo journalism.

Harmon was an information specialist with the 81st Engineer Group and will be remembered for his articles that were published in the BAYONET. Many of Harmon's feature articles received acclaim for their truthful and thought-provoking material.

Harmon was employed as a news reporter before entering the Army. He covered events throughout the San Francisco area for the Berkeley Daily Gazette and later worked as a feature writer for The Independent in Richmond, Calif. It was during the time of anti-war marches, demonstrations against the Oakland Induction Center, and campus disorders in the Berkeley area that Harmon was motivated into writing his most socially significant articles. He was often mistaken for a student as he attempted to stay close to the action in order to get the best possible coverage. Many times his efforts to give unbiased reports were rewarded with tear gas because of his previous experiences Harmon had little trouble with the CE training in basic training.

After being enlightened in the Army way at Ft. Lewis, Wash. Harmon attended the Department of Defense Information School at Ft. Benjamin Harrison, Ind. Upon his graduation from the school he was sent to the First Signal Brigade in Vietnam. While his official title was US Army Combat Correspondent he saw very little of the fighting. He was mostly involved with reporting the mission of the signal brigade which was the operation of an intricate communication network. This communication network theoretically allowed a soldier in the field to talk to someone in the United States via satellite. Harmon saw much of South East Asia in his travels to outlying regions of the communications system.

While in Vietnam Harmon's articles and photographs were published in Pacific Stars and Stripes, Army Times, Army Reporter, MACV Observer, The Communicator, and The Juggled Sword.

When asked what he has contributed to the Army,

197th Hq. Co., earns Third Army's Best Mess Award

This pair of hands belongs to Sp6 Bobbie Roblison as he shows the proper cutting technique. The procedure is part of the everyday ritual at the Headquarters Co. Mess Hall for the preparing of cold cuts for soldiers who want a quick snack.

BY CARL KING

What a hamburger and french fries? Or would you rather have the main course dinner?

A description of a downtown restaurant? No, this is the new Army mess hall in the Modern Volunteer Army. And it's one of the reasons the mess hall at Headquarters Company, 197th Infantry Brigade just won the Third Army Best Mess Award.

SFC Theodore Furnish, mess steward at Headquarters Company, seems to think his mess hall won the award for more than simply giving soldiers a choice between short orders or a full course dinner. The hefty mess steward attributes the win to "a lot of help from everyone. With six totally different jobs to perform, it takes a consolidated effort... each man doing his part," Furnish emphasized.

A unique feature of the Headquarters Mess Hall is that monthly meetings are held in which representatives from all ranks make suggestions and recommendations to improve the facility. In this way, legitimate complaints are aired and corrective action begins, according to Furnish.

SFC Mizell Patton, assistant mess steward was particularly cheerful about winning the award. "The work these men do... they deserve an award. Even the kitchen police (KP) personnel do an outstanding job in this mess hall. It was a team effort. Each man did his part and it contributed to the whole," Patton said.

The award-winning mess hall will now be in contention for the Philip A. Connelly Award, an Army-wide award for excellence in Army food service. They will be competing with only 12 other mess halls in the entire Army. As stated by formal Army regulation, the purpose of the award is to acknowledge excellence in the operation of appropriated dining facilities.

Observations from judges in previous contests showed that some of the common faults found in Army mess halls are: (1) Cooks frequently were not using aprons; (2) there were insufficient amounts of glassware, silver and dishes to support troops; (3) griddle items such as hot dogs and hamburgers were being prepared too far in advance of serving time.

SFC Richard E. Hamilton Jr. summed up the feelings of most members of the mess team. "I think the Third Army Award is great, but I sure hope we win the All-Army Award," Hamilton said.

SFC Richard E. Hamilton Jr., mess steward at Headquarters Company, 197th Infantry Brigade checks the barbecued ribs. He is displaying one of the safety precautions that helped the mess hall win the award. The ribs are being prepared in the oven door to let the smoke escape.

STABO rig used to air lift wounded personnel

By TOM TEGTMEYER

The fearless soldier is most typically associated with either the Rangers or the Airborne, both of which spend many hours in the pursuit of physical fitness and dedication to duty.

Hanging from a helicopter flying at 40 knots at 800 ft. is definitely put in the category of fearlessness and dedication. Lt. Col. Karl V. Hurdle, Chairman of the Ranger Committee, and Maj. Powell A. Johnson, Team Chief, Ranger Committee, did just this Feb. 22 as they took the first ride at Fort Benning in the Stabo Rig.

The Stabo rig is an innovation which is to be used for the airlifting of wounded personnel or stranded personnel which cannot be evacuated by means of a helicopter landing.

As the helicopter hovers approximately 150 feet above the area, a deployment bag filled with 10 pounds of sand is thrown from the chopper. This bag trails behind it 147 feet of nylon rope and metal fasteners which are then attached to a harness worn by the person to be "extracted."

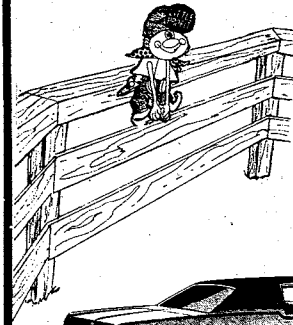

The harness is similar to those used for parachute jumping and is completely safe. With the two extracted men airborne, each holding on to the other to keep stability in flight, the ride seems to be quite thrilling. Johnson, when asked what it was like, said, "Fantastic experience!" Lt. Col. Hurdle also enjoyed the ride but noted that once, when they got tured around backwards, he had a definite feeling of nausea.

Maj. Paul R. Tafum, Battalion Ranger Committee, who was coordinating Fort Benning's novice flight and use of the Stabo, has tremendous faith in all of the equipment used. The lines, harnesses, fasteners and all other pieces of the rig, no matter how small, are given a thorough examination after each use. The rig itself, noted Tafum is packed by the riggers of the Airborne Department. After the rigs are packed, they are not touched by anyone until put into use. With this type of security and application of safety procedures, there is very little chance of any malfunction of the equipment.

Charles Condomine, Sgt Barry Carter, discusses with his disabbling wife, Ruth, Lanie Russell, the possibility that the ghost of his first wife has come back to haunt him. This scene from the Fort Benning Dramatizer's production of Noel Coward's "Blithe Spirit" is an example of the production that captured the award for best play in the Third U.S. Army Tournament of plays. Lanie Russell also won Best Actress Award. (Photo by Richard Rowland)

Blithe Spirit wins Third Army tourney

BY EDITH SIMMONS

The Fort Benning Dramatizers have captured the $1,000 first prize in the 1972 Third U. S. Army Tournament of Plays for their production of Noel Coward's ghostly farce, "Blithe Spirit."

Tournament judges visited the production March 2. Dr. Baldwin Burroughs, director of drama at Spellman College, called the show "thoroughly delightful." A "beautiful set" was the opinion of Mrs. Joan Lewis from Morehouse College. The third judge, Mrs. Lela Kennedy, Atlanta's first lady of theatre, was impressed with the lovely costumes, the period set and the promotion setup.

In addition to the grand prize, the Fort Benning Playhouse group won two other first place awards. Mrs. Lanie Russell was recognized as Best Actress. As Ruth Condomine, ac-ording to Dave McQueen, Bayonet reviewer, she did a fine job of ignoring the presence of the people on the stage she supposedly could not see. Mrs. Russell's fine comic performance was not her first appearance with the Dramatizers; in the past two years, she has appeared in six Playhouse productions. She had leading roles in the musicals "A Funny Thing Happened On The Way To The Forum" and "Carnival."

The other first prize was earned by 1st Lt. Jeff Grandel. To win the award for best set designer and technical director, Grandel designed and built a parlor for an English country house. He used several special techniques to create ghostly effects — flying vases, falling books, etc. Grandel's work has won recognition before. In his senior year at Central Michigan University, he was honored for his outstanding contributions to the college theatre, especially in set design and construction. While with the Dramatizers, Grandel designed sets for "Carnival," "A Funny Thing Happened On The Way To The Forum" and director and designer for "The Wizard of Oz."

First place awards were presented to other entries in the Tournament. Fort Jackson won awards for Best Actor, Director, and Lighting. Recognized for Best Supporting Actress was Fort Rucker. Fort Bragg captured the prizes for Best Supporting Actor, Costumes, Stage Manager and Publicity.

With part of the prize money, the Dramatizers will prepare the 1972 Third U. S. Army Tournament of Plays Awards Banquet. The banquet will be held March 25, at the Sand Hill WCO Club. Invitations to the banquet are sent to each Third Army post that had an entry in the Tournament.

INFANTRY Magazine features mobility in new issue

An elite infantry is a prime need of the U. S. Army. Vice Chief of Staff, Gen. Bruce Palmer explains this fact in an interesting and analytical feature in the newest issue (Mar-Apr.) of INFANTRY Magazine.

Rolling on a theme of Infantry Ground Mobility, the issue also features a "Dune Buggy" that may soon be in the Army inventory; a Past, Present and Future look at ground mobility (illustrated with pictures and drawings of vehicles of yesterday, today and the future); an all-terrain vehicle that goes anywhere — across steep terrain, mud, snow or water; MICV, and a forward area transporter; a suggested change in defensive tactics steeped in rapid maneuver.

Rounding out the magazine is a hard charging race relations piece; another absorbing article by that master, MG A. S. Newman, and an article thrusting into military humor. These, regular features and more combine to form an outstanding issue.

The magazine's drive on the mobility road starts with an article by Capt. David Pearson, "Ground Mobility: Past, Present, and Future." Starting with the motorized infantry divisions of 1942, the author traces the development of infantry fighting vehicles and mechanized units through the armored infantry battalions of World War II and present-day APC's to the MICV concept of the near future — rolling on a theme of Infantry Ground Mobility, the issue also features a "Dune Buggy" that may soon be in the Army inventory; a Past, Present and Future look at ground mobility (illustrated with pictures and drawings of vehicles of yesterday, today and the future); an all-terrain vehicle that goes anywhere — across steep terrain, mud, snow or water; MICV, and a forward area transporter; a suggested change in defensive tactics steeped in rapid maneuver.

ment to the concept of Infantry mobility on the battlefield — we may all become very familiar with them soon.

Rounding out the discussion of mobility, Lt. Col. Robert Carmichael and Maj. Joseph Keys, Brigade and Battalion Operations Department of the Infantry School, present an article, "Defense Requires Mobility," proposing new tactics for use on the battlefield. Mobility, they say, is more a state of mind than anything else; we must have our concept of the defense on the idea that territory is less important than the Raw mushrooms can be kept up to a week if refrigerated on a cookie sheet, covered with a damp towel.

Here's an easy go-along for baked ham slices: thin prepared horseradish with applesauce, according to your taste.

If you find anchovy fillets a bit too salty, soak them in a little milk before using them in a recipe.

Lightly oil the cup before measuring honey or syrup, and you'll have less of a clean-up job later.

It's believed fondue originated in the early 18th century, when Swiss peasants concocted this lovely dish to make good use of bread, cheese and wine, their most plentiful commodities during the winter months.

Organic gardening talk to be held March 16 at MAH

BY ROB McILVAINE
If you are interested in starting a garden the organic way, plan on attending the Organic Gardening Symposium at 7:30 p.m. March 16 in the Martin Army Hospital Conference Room.

Interested members of the Fort Benning community and experts from Columbus and Atlanta will be there to discuss gardening "the natural."

Dr. Agatha Thrash, a pathologist from the Columbus Medical Center, will deliver a talk entitled "Why Organic Foods are Better, Medically Speaking." Dr. Thrash is also associated with The Staff of Life Foods Store in Macon.

Mr. Richard Smallridge, vice president of Pollution Control Aides headquartered in Atlanta, will discuss the pros and cons of fertilizers that are non-organic and organic.

Mr. Neal Womack of Womack's Nurseries in Columbus will discuss companion planting for a combination vegetable and flower garden. Mixing flowers and vegetables in the right pattern can produce a very attractive arrangement both environmentally and aesthetically.

Mr. Womack will tell how it can be done.

Environmental activists from Fort Benning have been doing a lot lately to generate some positive concern about the life gardening. Dr. Agatha Thrash, a pathologist from the Columbus Medical Center, will deliver a talk entitled "Why Organic Foods are Better, Medically Speaking." Dr. Thrash is also associated with The Staff of Life Foods Store in Macon.

1,000 attend I-29th Pioneer Day

BY RAY CHESNUT

Nearly 1000 people were on hand to participate in the 1st Battalion 29th Infantry, 197th Infantry Brigade's celebration of Pioneer Day Feb. 29.

Guests at the celebration included former members of the 1-29th who arrived from as far away as Winter Haven, Fla.

Highlights of the days activities included a scout dog demonstration, an Antique automobile display by the fountain City Chapter of the Antique Automobile Club of America, a sports car rally, and a unit wagon dragging contest.

In his observance of Pioneer Day, the "Pioneers" of the 1-29th Infantry marked over a century and a half of tradition and service to the United States of America.

Three regiments have borne the designation 29th Inf. since 1919. The first being constituted in that year, the second in 1861 and the third in 1926. It is from the Third Regiment that the present 1-29th evolved.

The present unit, activated in 1901 at Ft. Sheridan, Ill., moved to the Philippines in 1902 to assist in communications, use of automatic and semi-automatic weapons, field navigation and other pertinent areas. The first AIT class graduated Jan. 14, 1972 and each Monday now sees the beginning of another class. All advanced training conducted at Fort Benning is Central Training Command (CTC), USAIS.

In 1919 at the time the United States Army Infantry School was being founded, the 29th Inf. received orders to move again, this time to Fort Benning.

Their mission was to be available at all times to demonstrate realistically the correct manner in which to execute these things being taught by the Infantry School, the mission carried by the unit to the present.

For 24 years the unit performed the mission of demonstrating new infantry tactics and techniques, and over the years they adopted the motto "We lead the way."

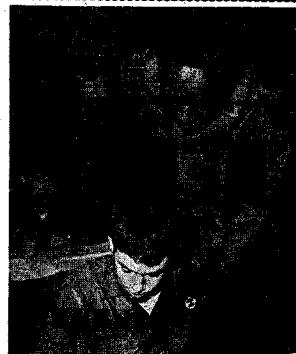

With the United States entry into World War II, the 29th moved to England and later deployed in France where it took up the mission of securing the famous "Red Ball Express" highway and main supply route for allied forces from northern France to the front.

With the enemy breakthrough at the Battle of the Bulge, the unit moved to Belgium to assist in re-securing the area.

With the outbreak of the Korean Conflict, the 29th was attached to the 25th Inf. Div. and became involved in some of the heaviest fighting of the war in the vicinity of Chiruju and Masan while the U.N. forces were consolidating their position on the Pusan Perimeter.

In November, 1954 they returned to Fort Benning. Throughout the 1-29th's history of supporting the Infantry School, the unit developed and perfected tactics made necessary in the modern warfare of today's Army.

197th Unit of Choice enlistees receive infantry training

The concept of the "Unit of Choice" enlistment has added a new facet to Fort Benning life.

After troops who enlisted for the 197th Infantry Bde, have completed Basic Combat Training (BCT), they travel to Fort Benning for their Advanced Individual Training (AIT). The courses taught are all of the combatant type, but future plans call for courses to be taught in non-combatant fields as well. The training period is for 9 weeks, and it is diversified with classroom study and field exercises. Course agenda calls for study in communications, use of automatic and semi-automatic weapons, field navigation and other pertinent areas. The first AIT class graduated Jan. 14, 1972 and each Monday now sees the beginning of another class. All advanced training conducted at Fort Benning is Central Training Command (CTC), USAIS.

U.S. pro racing team to appear at 197th

The United States Racing team, composed of 16 of the top professional drag racers in the nation, will make a personal appearance in the 197th Infantry Brigade area March 15 at 1 p.m.

The drivers will have their cars on static display at Mustang Heights on Kelley Hill and will make demonstration runs if conditions permit.

Accompanying the team will be Linda Vaughn, recognized as "Queen of the Racing World" and "Auto Racing's Golden Girl." The racing team also will have their cars on display at Grand City in Phenix City and at Shops in the Cross Country Shopping Center in Columbus on March 14.

Wednesday night, March 15, the team will race at Ft. Benning raceway starting at 8 p.m.

Team members include two world champions in Ronnie Sox, Earl Barton, N. C. in a 1972 Barracuda; Bill (Grumpy) Jenkins in a Winternational; and a man y

Colleges relax vet admissions

By ROGER PAVEY
Estimated Time of Separation or more commonly referred to as plain old ETS has hit many of Fort Benning's servicemen.

With DA's various policies and drops an uncommon amount of soldiers have made their way to transfer point and into the civilian world. Once signed-out of the Army the veteran must fend for himself in the cold, cold and now, jobless outside. But...

Help is on the way not in the form of jobs, but education. Schools around the country are slowly relaxing their admissions policies for veterans and in some cases opening the door completely.

One such school is Duquesne University located in Pittsburgh, Pa. It was recently announced by Dr.

Franz B. Gross, dean of the school, that all veterans may apply for admission to either the graduate and undergraduate schools irrespective of grade point averages, in either high school or college.

Under this new program all veterans with a high school diploma or its equivalent are eligible for admission to the undergraduate school. Candidates for master's degrees will be accepted in the field of their undergraduate study or related areas. However, Gross emphasized that acceptance depends upon full undergraduate preparation in their area of academic concentration. The new master's degree policy applies to all academic divisions with the exception of the psychology and English departments.

A smattering of schools across the country are also unlocking the once closed doors. Many school have not openly stated that all veterans will be accepted, but have said that vets will be put in a "special admissions category."

Other schools similar to Duquesne's admission policies are the University of Massachusetts, Fordham College, Manhattan College, Stevens College, McKentrie College, Campbell College, and Henderson College. These schools, however, do not accept a master's degree candidate.

Other schools, such as the University of Florida, officials are quickly coming to the realization that the 20 to 21 year old veteran is much more mature than the average 17 or 18 year-old high school senior.

Thus giving the veteran a second chance, but more importantly a step in the right direction. Although college does not directly insure employment it none-the-less helps a great deal when looking for a job. Just ask the thousands of vets who daily knock-on doors only to have that very door slammed in their faces.

Byline Bayonet Nothing but the truth

BY CHAPLAIN HAROLD ESSLINGER

A man once employed a genealogical expert to trace his ancestry. When asked to suppress the fact that the man's grandfather had been electrocuted for murder, the expert refused, but agreed to tell it in more elegant language. He reported that the grandfather had always had a great interest in electricity, and at length came to occupy the chair of electricity in one of the large institutions of New York State. He said that the man "died in harness" and gave his life for electricity. Every word was true, but the account gave a false impression.

There are many ways of being dishonest, ranging from a small boy's telling a deliberate lie to his mother, to a man's reporting a false income to the tax collector. One can be dishonest by keeping silent when a courageous word would correct a false impression. Even a lifted eyebrow can create a wrong impression, though we say no word at all. We can be dishonest by telling only a part of the truth, and thus convey a distorted idea of the facts. We can also be dishonest by saying words which, taken by themselves, may be strictly true, but which will result in the wrong conclusions being drawn.

We hear that "honesty is the best policy," but he who acts upon this principle because of policy only is not an honest man. Such action implies an ulterior motive that gives character to an act. To be truly honest, one must be so at heart.

VD is No. 2 communicable disease

There's an old saying, in the service: "getting VD is no worse than catching a bad cold." Unfortunately, there's a little more to it than that.

In truth, venereal disease is a far more dangerous health threat, a cause of blindness, deafness, sterility, paralysis, insanity, and death.

It's also a very common health threat—the second most prevalent communicable disease in the United States according to officials at the Public Health Service's Center for Disease Control in Atlanta, Ga. Nearly 725,000 cases of VD were reported to health authorities in FY 1971 (as opposed to about 350,000 cases in FY 1967). Because not all cases are reported, officials estimate the actual number of VD infections to be closer to two and a half million.

These figures indicate that the United States is in the midst of a serious national health problem—a problem caused not by inadequate medical technology, but by widespread ignorance and apathy. Despite the supposedly new sexual awareness, a great number of people continue to catch and transmit VD, even though it's been recognized as a health hazard for centuries.

LONG HISTORY

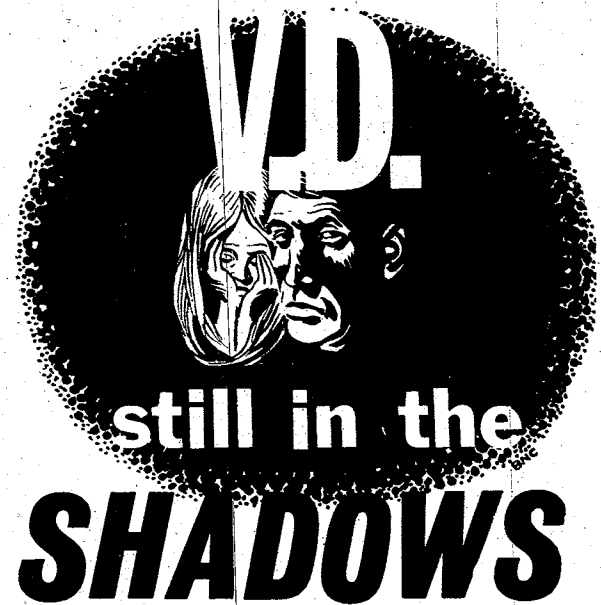

Of the two main types of venereal disease, syphilis (pox, sif, Old World, hard) has the oldest recorded history. Although its origins remain a mystery, syphilis has been traced to Europe in the late 1400's. Some experts believe the disease was introduced to Europe at that time by the crew of Christopher Columbus, after their second voyage to the new world. Other experts think the affliction was always present in Europe, but that a new, more virulent strain developed, at the time of the Columbus voyages.

Then, as now, syphilis was known by many slang terms. In France, it was called the Naples disease after an outbreak of cases was noted following a French invasion of that city. In Naples, it was known as the French Disease for the same reason. The English called it the Spanish Disease or the Great Pox.

Nobody took the credit for syphilis, but a lot of people were infected. Among the supposed victims—Henry VIII and Ivan the Terrible.

GONORRHEA

Gonorrhea (clap, strain, the whites, a dose), the second main type of venereal disease, also has a long and notorious history. It was first thought to be an early stage of syphilis — it took years before it was diagnosed as a separate disease. When doctors finally did isolate the gonorrhea symptoms, they discovered that the disease was more widespread than syphilis.

The early confusion over syphilis and gonorrhea probably arose because both diseases are contracted in the same manner — through intimate sexual contact with an infected person. But they are definitely not the same disorder — they're caused by different germs.

Syphilis is caused by cork screw-shaped microorganisms called spirochetes, which enter the body through mucous membranes or breaks in the skin. After rapid multiplication, the germs are spread throughout the body by the blood stream and the lymphatic system.

Primary syphilis, the first detectable sign of the disease, usually develops within 10 to 90 days after exposure, a sore called a chancre, appears at the place where the microorganisms entered the body. The sore is usually painless and may go unnoticed. After a short period of time the chancre will disappear, but the disease is still active in the body.

Secondary syphilis usually appears no later than six months from the original exposure. A rash resembling a heat or food rash, is the most likely sign. Sometimes, this rash is accompanied by mouth sores, headaches, fever, and loss of hair. All symptoms, like those of the first stage, disappear without treatment.

The secondary stage may last up to two years. The disease will then enter into a period of latency (showing no visible symptoms) lasting many years. During this time, the disease attacks the body internally. When symptoms reappear, damage to the heart, nervous system, skin and bone structure is already well-advanced.

SOME SYMPTOMS

Gonorrhea is caused by the bacterium gonococcus. Upon contact with an infected person, the gonococcus enters the body through the urethral membrane and begins to multiply.

Within eight to ten days after exposure, a man will notice the first visible signs of infection — a severe burning pain when urinating and a thick yellowish pus-like discharge from the sex organ. Most women, however, experience no noticeable symptoms.

Although gonorrhea does not exhibit its progress in well-defined stages like syphilis, it can lead to serious

James Furr speaks on decreasing term insurance

By CARL KING
James B. Furr, regional director of sales for a large life insurance company, spoke to members of the Armed Forces Management Association (AFMA) March 2 at their monthly luncheon at the Supper Club of the Fort Benning Officers Club.

The major theme of the insurance man's talk was decreasing-term life insurance is the most advantageous type of insurance to buy.

Other topics of discussion were common mistakes people make in both planning and executing their financial affairs, wills, trusts, and life insurance.

"It's amazing how many people recognize the need for making out a will but fail to do so," Furr said. For those people who have not made a will, Furr recommended they at least should make out a completely handwritten will and have it witnessed by a disinterested party. "Most states recognize this type of will. Probably the best way of preparing a will, is with the aid and advice of a competent lawyer," Furr stressed.

In comparing military and civilian lawyers' ability to draw up an equitable will, Furr stated, "the civilian lawyer is generally better because he is more specialized."

James Furr

For people who have legal property which they desire to hold on have been, Furr recommended the setting up of a trust. He cautioned members to locate a bank that "has a good trust program" stating that trusts are available to anyone who wants to use them... but the best trusts are "living" trusts because they can provide some degree of tax saving.

The difference between two types of "living" trust was explained as, "one type can be revoked (before the person drawing up the trust dies) while the other type cannot be revoked. Once an "irrevocable" trust is set up, nothing can change the initial guides set forth in the trust."

Common Modes of Saving

"It is a crime if a person has not learned to put a small portion of what he makes into some form of savings," Furr emphasized. He pointed out that real estate purchase was an excellent hedge against inflation and that some of the conservative mutual funds were good for those persons not wanting to get too enrolled in investment.

Lastly, Furr related that life insurance was not particularly the best means of saving but that it was necessary for insuring one's family would have a "best egg" in the event of the death of the head of the household.

Basic Insurance Information

"Basic insurance rates are figured depending on age," Furr said. "Obviously, the older we get, the more our probability of dying. Thus, insurance rates rise as one's age increases." Furr advised members that they should be skeptical of companies paying dividend payments. "Most dividend payments are but a small return of money you have put into the insurance program," Furr commented.

"The agent that does you a favor is the one that advocates term insurance," Furr said. He told the audience they should put the extra money (the difference between whole life insurance and term insurance cost) into some conservative savings. These savings, he contended, would grow much faster than the usual five per cent growth of insurance bidding.

"Buy a piece of the rock... that's sheer nonsense," Furr chided. "Try getting a piece back out of the rock."

"The best value in life insurance is term because you can take the excess and start a scheduled savings program," Furr ended.

physical complications if not detected and treated early. After some time in the body, the disease can spread to the joints (causing a crippling gonorrhea arthritis), and to the eye membranes (causing blindness). Or it can remain rather localized, causing strictures in the urinary tract.

SIMPLE TREATMENT

Fortunately, detection and treatment of both syphilis and gonorrhea are relative simple and reliable medical procedures. Detection requires no x-rays or complicated surgery — for syphilis, a blood test is sufficient; for gonorrhea, a thorough physical examination does the job. Treatment for both diseases is usually a "one shot" affair in which a large dosage of penicillin is injected by needle into the body. Oral Penicillin cannot be administered because it does not allow an effective amount of the drug to be absorbed into the body.

No amount of modern wonder drug, though was put a stop to syphilis and gonorrhea infections, unless people are educated enough to seek help. This is where the real VD problem begins. And this is where the effectiveness of medical technology ends.

West Point cadet and "date" enjoy last year's Hop.

Calling 600 girls.

Capt. Gary Dolan needs for the Pointers at the four-hour dance. Dolan of the Fort Benning Protocol Office is organizing the annual West Point hop to be held at the Officers Club in June. Each year members of the West Point senior class visit all major installations in COMUS before choosing their combat branch. The girls will be dates for the Pointers at the four-hour dance. Any single girl, 17 to 25, can "invite herself" by calling Dolan at 645-6026, 1811 or 7112. Those who live outside the Columbus area, may call collect. Information wanted includes a girl's name, age, height, home address and phone number.

Gold Star chapter to gather

The Twin City chapter of the Gold Star Mothers will hold its monthly meeting at 7 p.m. Tuesday in the Sears Garden Civic Center at Columbus Square. All mothers who have lost sons or daughters in combat as a U. S. war or conflict are invited to attend.

At the meeting delegates will be elected to the Departmental Convention to be held in April in Greenville, S. C. Members are urged to make items for the convention bazaar to help defray convention expenses. Bring the articles to Mrs. E. R. Smith, chapter president.

Lutheranism origin subject of workshop

The origin and history of the Lutheran Church will be discussed Sunday at 6 p.m. in a "denominational workshop" at the post Religious Education Center.

The speaker will be Chap. (Maj.) David W. Hoh. He will also conduct a question and answer period.

A course in the "Art of Christian Relationships" will begin April 5. The course, which will be taught by Chap. (Maj.) Richard Nybro, will meet at 7:30 p.m. Wednesdays for eight weeks.

This course is designed to help Christians explain the church as a fellowship of redeemed and the Redeemer and to learn how to support and strengthen each other.

The Protestant religious education program also includes two adult Sunday School classes which meet at the Religious Education Center on Dixie Road Sunday mornings from 9:30 to 10:30.

Girl Scouts to celebrate 60th year

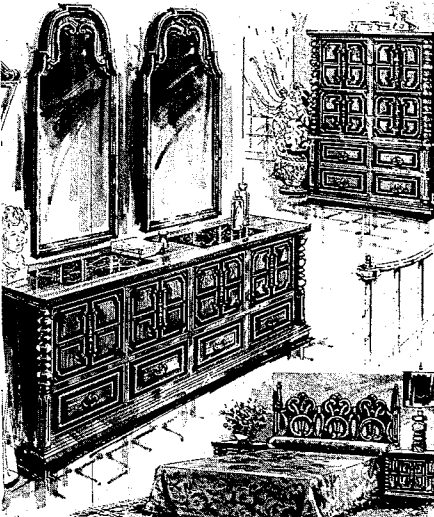

Sunday marks the 60th anniversary of the Girl Scouts of America, and Fort Benning's 500 female scouts will note the event by attending Chapel.

Catholic scouts have been invited to take part in a Mass at 5 p.m. Saturday in the Main Post Catholic Chapel, while Protestants can participate in 11 a.m. services the next day in the Infantry Center, Eightysecond Road, Indianhead Road, Kelley Hill, Sand Hill No. 4 and Harmony Church No. 2 Chapels. Members and leaders of 26 troops will be involved.

Next week also has been designated Girl Scout Week. More than 32 million young ladies, men and women have belonged to or been affiliated with the U.S. Girl Scouts since Juliette Gordon Low formed the first troop in 1912. The organization now boasts 4 million active members.

Distaff Hall is 'home' to Army widows

"For an Army widow, the death of her husband leaves her socially adrift regardless of her financial means," Col. Julian Lindsey of the Army Distaff Foundation said here recently.

Addressing a group of commanders wives and OWC members at the Main Post Officers Club, Col. Lindsey, assistant to the Foundation's president, said that the demands of military life have led service wives from place to place, preventing them from becoming part of one American community.

The Foundation attempts to alleviate this "rootlessness" by providing Army widows with a place to live. Its Distaff Hall, located in the nation's capital, is "home" to 350 widows of Army career officers and is designed to meet the social and psychological needs of the aged.

Although most occupants of Distaff Hall are financially independent, about 40 of the women receive charity in some form. The Fort Benning OWC annually donates funds to the Foundation to aid widows who are unable to provide for themselves. Additional information about the organization can be obtained by writing The Army Distaff Foundation, Inc., 6200 Oregon Ave., Washington, D.C. 20015.

The Hall, which is situated on a 16-acre landscaped ground, is divided into individual, furnished housing units, which include a living room, bedroom and bath. All but 50 units contain a kitchen. The women may decorate their surroundings as they wish.

Every possible service and facility - from beauty shops and seamstress to commissaries and in-lodging rooms - is available. The ladies also have easy accessibility to Walter Reed Army Hospital.

NCO WIVES' CLUB
 March started with coffee calls at Martin Army Hospital March 1 and 8. On the latter date, the monthly business meeting was held in the Top 5 Club. Monthly reports and current business events were discussed. New members and guests were welcomed.

Margaret Perry, home economist from the Georgia Power Company will be the guest at Wednesday's luncheon at 1 p.m. in Morrison's Cafeteria. Mrs. Perry will give economical and convenient ideas for decorating the home, especially the kitchen, and some new recipe suggestions. Reservation deadline for the luncheon is Monday.

March 19 is the date for Bakery Bingo at the Service Club. The NCO wives donated 10 cakes a month to this affair.

Breakfast and games will be held in Crane Hall at 9:30 a.m. March 19. Reservation deadline is March 17.

LEADERSHIP DEPT.
 Approximately 35 couples from the Leadership Dept. attended a hall and farewell at the Lawson Field Officers' Club Feb. 11.

A valentine theme was used in decorating, with red hearts hanging on streamers from the ceiling. Chicken drumettes, chicken livers, ham and biscuits, meatballs and chips and oil filled the hors d'oeuvre table.

After wedding remarks by Col. William B. Steele, department director, committee chairman presented baby cups and medals.

Hosts for the evening were Maj. Alfred Coke and the officers of "B" team, Leadership Committee.

Mrs. James D. Williams and Mrs. Larry L. Owen were hostesses for a Washington's birthday coffee Feb. 15. Twenty-five ladies of the Leadership Committee attended.

Name tags were in the shape of George Washington silhouettes and the centerpiece for the refreshment table was a cherry tree. Hot tea and coffee, cherry tarts, cheese puffs, carrot cake and orange cookies were served.

During the business meeting Mrs. Billy Rutherford reminded the girls of the 48er Party at the Officers' Club March 4, and of the OWC luncheon March 16.

Leaving was Mrs. James Charkius who received a scroll. Hostesses for the March coffee will be Mrs. John Turnage and Mrs. Thomas Harrison.

THE JEWISH SYNAGOGUE
 The Jewish Sisterhood of Fort Benning held its monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. Leslie Cohen Feb. 22. A demonstration of Fashion 2-20 was the program for the evening. The next meeting will be held March 20.

PANHELLENIC
 The monthly meeting of the Fort Benning-Panhellenic Organization was held Feb. 19 in the home of Nancy Brownlee. The co-hostess was Lynne Lovelace.

Plans were made for a couple's buffet next Friday at the Ralston Hotel. The monthly bridge group met Wednesday in the home of Nancy Schumacher. New members — Ethyl Carbow, Tommye Byington and Louise Ross — were welcomed.

Those interested in joining Panhellenic should contact Mrs. Schumacher at 687-3370 or Mrs. Lovelace at 687-4107.

WEAPONS DEPT-AVIATION CMD
 Champagne punch, eggs benedict and guest speaker Lee Parker were part of a brunch by the ladies of the Weapons Dept-Aviation Cmd. Wednesday morning at the Supper Club. The tables were covered with pink cloths, and the center decorations were live tree branches. Red, pink and white spring flowers were scattered among the branches.

Miss Parker entertained the ladies with lively commentary and helpful hints. Her program, "The Creative Wife," was designed especially for military wives and featured new recipe ideas, household hints, personal appearance tips and suggestions for entertaining and hosting.

TSB
 The ladies of IQAC 1-72 will hold their fifth wives' function in a luncheon March 14 at the Supper Club. "Carousel" will be the theme. Among the special guests will be a musical ensemble from Columbus College, who will perform pieces from the well-known musical, "Carousel."

197th INFANTRY BRIGADE
 The ladies of the 197th Support Bn. held their monthly coffee the evening of Feb. 24 at the home of Mrs. Edwin Kennedy, wife of the brigade commander.

Mrs. Hollis Messer opened the evening's business by thanking Mrs. Kennedy for having the event in their home. The special guest of the evening was Mrs. Aldrick Haynes whose husband is deputy commander of the 197th.

Mrs. Messer welcomed the new ladies of the battalion. Mrs. Richard Rockwell who is coming from Ft. Rucker, Ala., and Mrs. Thomas Rodeman whose husband is the new SS. Leaving was Mrs. Robert Sorenson who now is living in Atlanta where her husband will be attending college. Thanks were given to the wives who served as Thrift Shop volunteers. Anyone else who can offer their free time is asked to contact Mrs. Michael Lynch.

Columbus Festival Days are coming soon. The brigade will need 10 volunteers. The OWC Luncheon Thursday features Bob Hope. Get your tickets fast so you won't be disappointed.

 The monthly coffee of 1st Bn., 29th Inf. officers' wives was held Feb. 17 at the home of Mrs. Donald Monk. Co-hostess was Mrs. Stephen Sharp.

Plans were made for Monday's Brigade luncheon which the battalion sponsored at the Supper Club. Plans to officially designate the battalion "THE PIONEERS" also was discussed. PIONEER DAY was held Feb. 29.

Mrs. Robert Faulkender welcomed Mrs. Jon Sullivan, the wife of the battalion's new executive officer.

The ladies of 1st Bn. (Mech.), 58th Inf. held their monthly coffee Feb. 17. Mrs. Edwin Kennedy, wife of the brigade commander invited the ladies to her home for the evening. Mrs. Kennedy served homemade pound cake and fresh strawberries for refreshments. Scrapbooks containing memorabilia of the brigade ladies' activities during the past several years were on display. Be sure to examine these books if you get the chance.

The ladies graciously discussed their plans for the Presidents' Birthday weekend outing planned by the battalion officers and their wives. Final information about the Destin, Fla. trip was handed out.

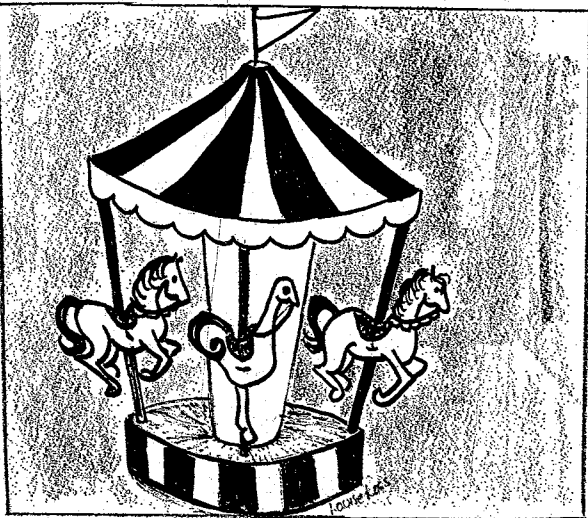

Mrs. Stephen Pawlik conducted a short business meeting. She welcomed Mrs. Herbert Strasser into the 138th. Leaving was Mrs. William McDonald.

Mrs. Aldric Hayes, wife of the deputy brigade commander, was the special guest of the evening.
 Mrs. Robert Thomas and Mrs. Mike Crook honored Mrs. James Wurman, wife of Lt. Col. Wurman, commander of the 2nd Bn., 16th Field Arty., at a farewell luncheon in the Corregidor Room of the Fort Benning Male Officers' Club Feb. 23. Mrs. Wurman will remain in the area while her husband attends several schools prior to going overseas.

Special guests were Mrs. Ronald Pruitt, Mrs. John McNeill, Mrs. Richard Slinson and Miss Deborah Wurman. Also attending were the wives battalion officers.
 The dining tables were covered with red cloths, and in the center of the head table was an arrangement of white carnations. Shrimp creole, salad, sherbet, iced tea and coffee were served after the sherry hour.

Mrs. Thomas presented Mrs. Wurman with a silver chafing dish as a token of Mrs. Wurman's friendship with the ladies of the battalion. In thanking the ladies, Mrs. Wurman recalled her many pleasant experiences with the battalion.

Mrs. John Routon and Mrs. Wayne Brussett entertained the ladies of the 2nd Bn., 16th Field Arty., at a recent coffee in the home of Mrs. Routon.

The ladies of IQAC-72 will be "aroused" for their Tuesday luncheon — "Carousel" — in the Supper Club.

Sales pitch

McQueen reviews

'Something Big' is nothing much

SOMETHING BIG starring Dean Martin and Brian Keith. This is the story a Pennsylvania man who comes West to prove himself. After four years, he has finally found something big to do, but to do it he needs a Gatling gun.

Keith plays Col. Morgan, a cavalryman who is retiring after 30 years and is waiting for his wife to come out so they can return East together. Martin needs a big man for his plan, and the one who can get it for him is Albert Salmi, who portrays a desperado wanted everywhere except the New Mexico Territory. Salmi does not want money for the big gun; he wants a woman. So Martin finds him one — the colonel's wife. For Martin, it's his usual Western role: the good hanger, with a bit of bewilderment thrown in to characterize the part. Martin shows little feeling or warmth in this picture. He seems to say, "I'm Dean Martin playing a cowboy and that's enough." Keith performs better, but it's not one of his best roles either. His action could best be described as disorganized. Keith at least makes a character of the colonel; Martin doesn't even accomplish this. Honor Blackman, who plays Keith's wife is ordinarily a competent actress. But she does not give a lot of effort to the film, vacillating and making the viewer puzzle over her emotions and reasons. Besides the total breakdown in acting, the film produced and directed by Andrew McLaglen — has some good points. One is the impression of space. In many films, the viewer gets the feeling that a person could ride from town to town on horseback in an hour. But McLaglen tried to show how long it takes to travel from one place to another in the old West. The movie's plot was as disorganized as Martin's shooting. It was a loose conglomeration of ideas that were not tightened up. In addition, some characters are totally unnecessary to the story. Like the two man-hungry sisters who lived on the New Mexico side of the border and are thrown into the film every time it is thought a laugh is needed. Much like a seedy Army mess sergeant might haphazardly lose ingredients into a stew. In short, "Something Big" is like the six-shooter of a gunfighter no one wants to challenge. It always has enough ammo — but nothing to shoot at.

also are required to give performances on weekends at churches, social functions and similar activities. The chorus averages 12-15 shows a month — including tours at such places as Ft. Rucker, Miami, Fla.; Birmingham, Ala.; and Atlanta. They have given concerts for dignitaries, including Gen. William Westmoreland.

Since you have to shave every day, you may as well get a comfortable one.

Auditions to be held

Shaving isn't fun. But it doesn't have to be unpleasant either. A lot depends on the tools you use. Take shaving cream. You need a shaving cream that's moist. Because it's moisture that makes your whiskers soft and easy to cut. Rise's has enough moisture to do just that. Slowly it seeps moisture into your beard and holds it there for as long as it takes you to shave. Rise. It can't make shaving fun. But it can make it comfortable.

Big doings are on tap for Columbus this weekend of March 24, 25 and 26 in the way of home and garden tours, a flea market, puppet shows, arts and crafts exhibits and an antique show.

For the sports-minded, the fisherman can look forward to the second annual Bass Fishing Rodeo on Lake Oliver, and basket-ball buffs can take in the Columbus-Bibb Invitational at Omer Auditorium in Bibb City.

The whole potpourri of events is titled the Columbus Spring Festival Days and it's sponsored co-jointly by the Columbus Council of Garden Clubs, the Historic Columbus Foundation Inc., the Georgia-Alabama Bass Club, and the Dept. of Parks and Recreation.

The home and garden tours will last from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday and from 1 to 5 p.m. Sunday. They will take in such historic and architectural points of interest as "The Foxy," "The Famberton House," and "The Springer Opera House. A Saturday evening tour from 7 to 10 p.m. will focus on three of the finest formal gardens in Columbus. Tickets for both tours will be available Saturday at the Municipal Auditorium on Victory Drive, the departure point for tour buses.

The Antique Show and Sale, sponsored by local dealers, will be held at the Fine Arts Bldg. directly behind the Municipal Auditorium. While awaiting the tour one can browse through displays of cut glass, period antiques and old guns.

Small fry and bargain hunters can sample cotton candy and fatty apples at the Salisbury Fair, which will be held on the median of Broadway between 4th and 5th Streets and will last from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday and from 1 to 6 p.m. Sunday. Some renowned and not so renowned artists and sketches also will be there. The Bass Fishing rodeo will be held Saturday from 7 a.m. to 5 p.m. Prizes will be awarded for first through 10th places. All ages can fish, but participants under 18 casting from a boat must be accompanied by an adult.

The Columbus-Bibb Basketball Invitational at Omer Auditorium in Bibb City will be the scene Friday and Saturday night of feasting, drinking and fund-raising. The invitational will feature top players from high schools and colleges across the country. Play will begin at 7:30 and 9:10 p.m. both evenings.

Oldee but goodde
This turn of the century garb is a far cry from today's mod styles, but it was good enough to win second place in costumeing for the Fort Benning Dramatizers in their comedy "Bibbs Spirit." The play itself won first place in this year's 3rd Army Tournament of Plays. Diane Stark and Cessie Patton designed and made the costumes for the production.

Three Arts to present 'Promises'
The Three Arts League will present the hit Broadway musical "Promises, Promises" March 21 at 8:30 p.m. in the Three Arts Theater.
The show is based on the Oscar-winning movie "The Apartment."

Synopsis
Willard (Rated GP) - Unable to relate to his aging mother or his tyrannical boss, lonely Willard befriends some rats and takes his two favorites, Socrates and Ben, to work with him everyday and hides them in a storeroom. Unfortunately, his boss discovers the two pets and kills gentle Socrates. However, rebellious Ben escapes and Willard, who has the power to communicate with and command the rodents, returns that night with an "army" led by Ben to confront the "old man."

3 In The Attic (Rated R) - The story of student No. 192200261, better known as Paxton Quigley - who is missing from Willard College for Men. He is being held captive in an attic by three gorgeous coeds from nearby Fulton College for Women.

The Gang That Couldn't Shoot Straight (Rated GP) - The head of a South Brooklyn Italian gang - played by Lionel Stander - is always afraid of being gunned down or blown up. He has his wife start the car and hides under a table until he hears the motor. One of Stander's lieutenants resents him running the show and with the help of assistants arranges a series of capers, killings and kidnappings designed to sink his wily-milly leader.

Red Guard, Apache chief tell stories in new books
New books at special services libraries:

Providence Canyon has beauty unmarked by man

BY ROB MCLVAINE
 Want to spend a pleasant Saturday or Sunday in the country viewing natural beauty unscarred by the heavy hand of commercial enterprise? Providence Canyon just outside Lumpkin, Ga. is pretty much like it was after the sea receded from the southeastern part of the country.

Dr. Alvin L. McLendon of the Columbus College Geology Department said that the phenomenon was formed during the latter part of the Cretaceous Period — 70 million years ago.

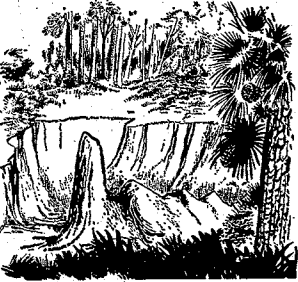

You can still find fossilized evidence of sea life in the Lumpkin area although not in the canyon itself. Since the canyon walls are composed of various types of clay, iron ore and large amounts of sandstone the effect has been too soft to preserve fossils.

McLendon said that Providence Canyon's antiquity was first recognized in 1859 by Sir Charles Lyell, an eminent 19th century English geologist, during a field trip to the Southeastern United States.

On a clear day, the color pattern reflected by the canyon walls is breathtaking to geologist and tourist alike. Purples, reds and shadow blues interplay to produce a spectacle that ranges from vibrant majesty in the early morning to subdued splendor in the late evening.

To speak of only one "Providence Canyon" is misleading since there are actually 15 individual canyons that cover the 1078 acre area. Recently acquired by a state land acquisition act, the canyon-complex was turned into a Georgia State Park and officially opened last July.

Robert F. Baxter, the park's superintendent, has the job of maintaining and protecting the canyon area

Benning tops Rucker

The Fort Benning Doughboy handball squad had an easy time in winning their opening games in the Third Army Handball League at Ft. Rucker last weekend.

The Doughboys defeated the Rucker Flyers 20 to 5 in the first game played Friday and also won Saturday, 21 to 9.

The Doughboys were originally scheduled to meet the Redstone Arsenal team at Redstone this weekend but Redstone withdrew from the league, leaving Benning with open dates. Next weekend the Doughboys will play their first league games at home when they take on the Ft. Campbell Eagles in Doughboy Stadium. The first game is scheduled to start Friday at 6:30 p.m. and the second on Saturday at 10:30.

The Doughboys are playing in the Third Army Team Handball League which has been divided into two divisions. The Benning team is in the Western Division along with Ft. McCasperson, Ft. Campbell, Ft. Rucker and Ft. McClellan. Ft. Bragg, Ft. Jackson, Ft. Gordon, Ft. Stewart, Hunter Army Airfield and Atlanta Army Depot make up the Eastern Division of the league.

The teams within each division have been scheduled to play two home games and two games away from home with each division team during the period March 3-March 6. Upon completion of the scheduled games the two teams in each division having the best win-loss records will meet here for a double elimination tournament.

Special Services offer facilities for the whole family

By TOM TEGTMEYER

How many times during your stay at Fort Benning have you used the vast amount of special services supplied for you as a member of the military family?

Now that the amount of personnel is at the lowest level since the early 1950s, there is little chance that there will be congestion if you wish to use our facilities. In no other community of people could you have so many outlets just waiting for you to take advantage of — and this at rock-bottom prices, or for free.

Maybe you don't know what sports you would like, or wish to compete in. There are ample activities made available by Special Services — basketball, volleyball, softball, handball, football, bowling, swimming and diving, tennis, golf, scuba diving, judo, boxing and squash. Facilities include the Field Houses, and Gymsnasiums, the indoor and the outdoor pools, the stadium and the golf courses.

The Briant Wells Field House and indoor pool is located on Ingersoll St. Main Post. For the information of the women, the indoor pool is open strictly for them, hours of enlisted personnel and officers during the hours of 9 a.m. and 10:30 a.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays. All that is needed for entrance to the pool is an I.D. card and each woman may bring if she likes, a guest.

The field house is also open to women only at the same times on Tuesday and Thursdays. Offered are sports such as volleyball, handball or paddleball, badminton and swimming. Rigorous exercise can also be obtained through physical training, tumbling and exercise or by toning up muscles lifting small weights.

There are no arrangements to be made to take advantage of the facilities. All that is needed is proper exercise clothing, gym shoes and a towel. Any equipment needed can be checked out of the equipment issue room in the field house. There is also a Sauna Bath for your convenience. There are instructions posted on its use, and showers are being installed in the bath area for your convenience. Special Services requests that you observe two things; there are no children allowed, so please do not bring them in the mornings; and the pool and field house must be closed at times because of Ranger Training.

It will be best for you if you call the field house, 545-5602 before you get a sitter.

From 11 a.m. on, the swimming pool is open to military and dependents, with children nine and under allowed only if they are chaperoned by an adult on a one to one basis.

The hours for the pool and field house are: Oct. through April, Monday through Friday, 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. and 6 p.m. to 8:30 p.m.; Saturday, 9 a.m. to 7 p.m.; Sunday, 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. During the period, May through September, it is open on Saturday only, 9 a.m. to 7 p.m.

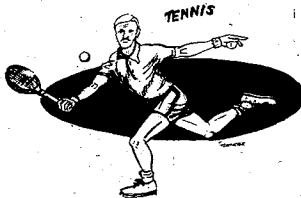

The Seuba Club has jurisdiction over the Briant Wells pool every Wednesday night from 6:30 p.m. to 8:30 p.m., during the winter season and the Carey Pool, located on Lavoye Ave. in the Airborne Area on Main Post in the summer on Wednesdays.

CSM Kenneth M. Cox, one of the seuba diving instructors, noted that classes which run up to six weeks, are going on constantly so you may join at anytime. The classes start one after another and there is no usage fee to be paid by those participating. There is a limit of 30 students per class so that each instructor has more than ten individuals to supervise. The other instructors are SFC Kenneth P. Castleberry and SFC Don Hesson. There are four lighted courts on Anderson St., on Main Post and two lighted courts in the rear of the Service Club on 4th St., Sand Hill. Any equipment can be obtained at the Briant Wells Field House on Main Post or the Kimbro Gym at Sand Hill.

Golf is traditionally a great favorite during the warm summer months, and is also played by those dedicated few in the winter. The Sand Hill course is located on 14th St., Bldg. 3791, phone 644-4131. It is open all year round. This is a nine-hole course with a driving range, pro shop and snack bar. It is open in the winter from 8 a.m. to dark, Monday through Sunday, and 8 a.m. till dark, Monday through Friday during the summer. It is open 7 a.m. till dark on Saturdays, Sundays and holidays during the summer.

Clubs, pull carts and electric carts are available for rent. Golf clinics are held in the summer for women to include dependents are enlisted women. These clinics are announced, but you may call the club at the listed phone number to find the dates of them. All clubs and driving range balls are free during the clinic as is one round of golf after the clinic.

The services supplied for military personnel and their dependents are for the use of all. Take advantage of what we have and have a ball.

ROD AND GUN CLUB

Notes
 BY BILL KLOBE
 Winners of the Rod and Gun Club Small Game Contest were presented awards at the club last Friday evening.

SFC Charles R. Acker, TSB, SFC Jimmy Olmstead, 1st Bn., 29th Inf., and Col. (ret.) Oliver M. Smith, 2419 Wise Street were the winners of the Remington Pump Action Shotgun.

1st Sgt. (ret.) Joseph Kinder, 861 Baxley Way, Sgt. (ret.) Robert Cox, 1527 Bowman St., and Ssgt. Lewis W. Burgess, 139th Military Police Company won $25 merchandise orders.

Sgt. (ret.) Griffin Walker, 4969 Bonnybrook Court, SFC Leon J. Roy, The School Brigade and another unidentified member each won 10 boxes of shotgun shells. Tom McCullough club custodian would be very happy if this last individual would claim his prize so he could get his bookkeeping straight.

Turkey Shoot-Swap Day
 Don't throw away that old rod or reel or any other type fishing equipment you no longer need.

The Rod and Gun Club will hold a "Swap Day" at the club April 8.

Bring your old fishing equipment or any other type sporting equipment for that matter. Someone else may want it and he may have something you want in return for your discards.

On the same day the club will hold a Turkey Shoot on the club skeet ranges from 10 a.m. until 4:30 p.m. Turkeys weighing from 10 to 12 pounds will be given as prizes.

While you are at the club you can purchase your 1972-73 state hunting and fishing licenses and obtain your post hunting and fishing permits. Both items are required to hunt or fish on the reservation. You can buy a state license at several places in town but the Rod and Gun Club is the only facility authorized to issue the post hunting and fishing permits. Plan to get them all at one stop.

Skeet Shoots
 The Rod and Gun Club will hold two skeet shoots at the club skeet ranges on March 18 and 19. One will be a shoot-off to select a team to represent the club in a Georgia State Skeet Association Shoot to be held in Macon, Ga., June 15-18. The other will be held to provide all club members an opportunity to establish their classification in the National Shooters Association.

Each shoot will consist of 100 birds on Saturday and 100 birds on Sunday. The shoots will be fired concurrently. All members of the Rod and Gun Club are invited to participate.

For additional information call Lt. Col. John A. Smith Jr., at 544-3413 or the Rod and Gun Club.

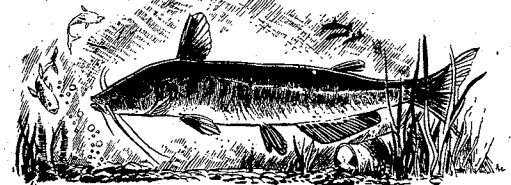

Letter Letters
 Now that the weather is getting a bit warmer more and more people will be taking it outdoors.

Spring is the best time of the year for picnics and other outdoor recreation. Mosquitoes and other bugs have not multiplied to any great extent and everything seems new and fresh. It would seem that these conditions would be conducive to the production of projects to make things look better but unless there is a change from last year there are going to be a lot of people who not only don't improve the area but leave each area they use needing a good police call.

Litter bugs will have to be more careful this year. Personnel of the Environmental Management Division have become litter sleuths. When a littered area is discovered they go through the litter examining papers and other items with the objective of determining the owner of the litter. When this can be determined the responsible units or individuals receive a letter requesting they clean up the mess they shouldn't have left in the first place.

You can help the Environmental Management Division clean up the post and make it a better and safer place to live by reporting the location of dumping areas, old wells and other unsightly areas to the division. They would like to have these areas located by map coordinates but if you don't have a map don't let that stop you. Just call 545-4292 and give them a verbal report.

Soap Box Derby entries begin

Ronnie Crosby, son of Capt. and Mrs. R. F. Crosby has been named the first official entry in the 1972 Columbus Soap Box Derby sponsored by the Columbus Jaycees and a local Automobile Dealership.

The 11-year-old Marshall Junior High School student met with Clayton Parrish, Bill Heard and Alton Russell of the Jaycees and signed the first entry blank to open registration for the local event which is the first elimination contest for the National Soap Box Derby to be held at Akron, Ohio.

All Soap Box Derby entrants are required to manufacture their own automobiles for competition in preliminary events and the national competition.

Crosby will be competing for the third year in the local event scheduled for July 23. He placed seventh in last year's race and will receive awards or prizes.

The contest is open to all boys and girls age 11 through 15. According to Russell there is no deadline for entry which may be made at the Bill Heard Automobile Agency. The agency will hold weekly clinics at the downtown dealership to assist contestants in building entries.

Johnny Neumann stunned southeastern conference basketball followers last spring by signing with the Memphis Pros after a fantastic soph campaign. Neumann, who averaged better than 40 points a contest with Ole Miss, signed for a reported million dollars with the "Pros," wrecking the Rebels chances for their first SEC title ever.

The NBA Atlanta Hawks stole 7-0 Tom Payne from Adolph Rupp at Kentucky, and according to the venerable Kentucky mentor, robbed the Wildcats of a good crack at the national title. More recent developments revealed that the Carolina Cougars signed Western Kentucky's Jim McDaniel prior to the NCAA season last winter, forcing the Hilltoppers to forfeit their third place finish in last years' tourney. The Pittsburgh Cougars did likewise with Villanova's Howie Porter and the Wildcat's mumpusop spot in the NCAA finals went for naught.

Unless a merger between the two leagues transpires soon, the money and player wars will likely continue. The pros have a free minor league system in college basketball, but unless they alter their technique and leave the underclassmen be, they will have to come up with another farm source for their players. In all probability colleges will not keep spending great sums of money on prospective athletes only to have them ston long before graduation day.

SPORTS

BY JOHN DAVIS
 Like a thief who uses the night for protection or a traitor who is ashamed to show his cowardly face, the American Basketball Association held its annual draft last week as one might expect, in secret.
 There was no honor among the thieves this time, as the draft proceedings were so hush-bush even the participating teams were unaware of each other's selections. Following the clandestine session, however, some of the selections leaked to the press and as might be expected, an underclassman was the first player chosen.

The ABA has been robbing colleges of non-seniors for the past two years so when the Carolina Cougars picked North Carolina's star junior Robert McAdoo, as the first pick in the secret draft, it hardly came as a surprise. The league established a precedent of drafting underclassmen when Denver Rockets selected Spencer Haywood after he had enjoyed a brilliant junior season at the University of Detroit. Haywood claimed extreme hardship, thus opening the door for future signings.

Following in Haywood's wake, Michigan State's Ralph Simpson abandoned his collegiate career to sign with the already thriving Rockets. Simpson, who comes from a poverty-ridden family stated at the time of his signing that he wanted to use his bonus money to get his mother off the welfare rolls. A study 10 months later revealed that the Rocket's ace forward is sporting a shiny new Cadillac while his mother still collects her welfare check each month.

After the ABA made it clear that it intended to ratify college underclassmen on a regular basis, the National Basketball Association decided to get in on the act also. Perhaps in self defense the NBA installed the "hardship clause", a nebulous ruling which allows a non-senior to turn professional if he can prove extreme financial hardship. Unless an athlete's father happens to be president of General Motors, his chances of turning pro under the hardship clause are excellent.

Prior to the money war-and now underclassman war-being waged by the two leagues, a college athlete was off limits until the class with which he entered college had graduated. If he decided to drop out of school or quit the team, he still couldn't turn pro until four years had passed.

Now, the greedy leagues-especially the ABA-can't even wait until the college season has ended to begin its vulture-like antics. Marquette University, was unbeaten in 22 games and a definite contender for the NCAA crown before the New York Jets raided its All American pivot man, Jim Chones, a 6-11 junior and the mainstay of the Warrior attack, inked his name to a Net pack less than a month before NCAA tourney play was scheduled to begin, erasing all hopes for a Marquette national title.

Johnny Neumann stunned southeastern conference basketball followers last spring by signing with the Memphis Pros after a fantastic soph campaign. Neumann, who averaged better than 40 points a contest with Ole Miss, signed for a reported million dollars with the "Pros," wrecking the Rebels chances for their first SEC title ever.

USAMTU post victories around the nation

PHOENIX, Ariz. — A strong U.S. Army squad of International Rifle competitors stormed into the championship circle the first day of the 1972 Annual Roadrunner Prone Championship tournament Saturday and then held on grimly Sunday to win the Grand Aggregate Championship of the matches.

Capt. Carl Jooss, Westerville, Ohio, and the U.S. Rifle team won the 1600-point aggregate with his 1600-146 while runner-up honors fell to Marine WO David Boyd of Quantico, Va. another of the top prone shooters in the nation.

In the eight individual hand and rapid fire sitting at the 200 yard range stripe along with a 300 yard prone rapid fire event and two "long range" 600 yard prone slow fire matches, the tournament's scheduled action will complete the individual competition on the first day and the team action the final day.

As the "kick-off" of the Service Rifle competitive season, the week-end San Antonio tournament will witness the large field of shooters from an All Army Reserve squad, an Army National Guard team, each Army area teams, several post teams, a USAF team and the big Marine squad from Quantico, Va.

A my Marksmanship Training Unit, topped one of his two days 320 shots from the ten ring as he slammed a winning 319-19X into his target for the grand prize.

The Army's eager top shooters claimed all three places in the 320 aggregate when Capt. Larry R. Bassham and Sp4 Burke Finnell, companion shooters of Jooss, placed second and third with 319 each. Bassham captured the runner up spot with his five more X than Finnell, when he placed 262 of his shots in the very center of the bullseye.

In the first day Iron Sight matches, the Army marksmen took three of the four prone matches and the aggregate with their impressive 1539 scoring. Each, Bassham, Finnell, and Jooss fired the magic winning score but Bassham led in the number of Xs with his 132 to 129 for Finnell and 117 for Jooss.

It was a different story Sunday in the Any Sight competition as the prone top shooters ran into rough going. They failed to take any of the four matches as the score sheet became a matter of showing the winner with the most Xs. In each of the Any Sight matches, almost half of the competitors placed all of their shots in the ten ring for the possi-

ROTC Ranger program returns

BY WENDELL COCHRAN

The ROTC Ranger program that proved so popular last summer will be expanded this year, it was announced recently.

Two classes of 240 ROTC Reserve Officer Training Corps cadets will attend Ranger school this summer. Last year — in its first running — the Ranger program attracted more than 1200 volunteers for a single 240-man class.

Cadets who volunteer and are selected to come to Fort Benning will not have to attend the regular six-week ROTC Summer Camp, providing they complete more than six weeks of the Ranger course.

Lt. Col. William Palmer, professor of military sci-

Kloebe, who currently works in the information office, only celebrated his birthday every four years. Last Tuesday members of the information office held a party to honor Lt. Col. Kloebe's birthday. For his dedication in writing the "Red and Gun Club" column he was presented a cork shooting rifle, which by the way is the only weapon which can effectively bring down the highly elusive Jackalope. AUSA to kick-off drive for local membership

MEMBERSHIP DRIVE. A membership drive for AUSA will be conducted in Columbus, Phenix City and Fort Benning during April, May and June.

The civilian phase will be kicked off on April 6, according to membership chairman, Mr. Charles Dalry. On that date approximately 50 civilian members will conduct a door-to-door campaign in the downtown business district to recruit members.

The military membership drive will be directed by the Chief of Staff, Col. Willard Latham.

Present membership is 3,800 military and 1,500 civilians. AUSA's goal is to again be "The Biggest and Best Chapter at the annual convention."

Did you know? People wishing to obtain information concerning AUSA should contact Sp4 Randy Boose, your new AUSA representative by phoning 345-4792.

New commander for 2-10th

Lt. Col. Curtis F. Hogan assumed command of the 2d Bn., 10th Field Art., 197th Inf. Bde. in a ceremony at Presidential Field in Kelly Hill March 3.

Hogan received the unit's colors from Lt. Col. James W. Wurman who is departing the 3-10th for a six-week temporary duty assignment at Ft. Bragg, N.C. prior to arriving at his ultimate assignment in the Headquarters of the Military Assistance Command (MACV), in the Republic of Vietnam.

Hogan comes to the 2-10th from the Headquarters of the Department of the Army in Washington D.C. He is a 1955 graduate of Northwestern State College of Louisiana whose military education includes graduation from the Associate Field Artillery Battery Officers Course in 1959; the Field Artillery Career Course in 1961; and the Command General Staff College in 1968.

During his career, Hogan has served with the 2d Missile Battalion 60th Artillery as a platoon leader in 1959, Battalion S3 with the 4th Missile Battalion (Nike-Hercules) 61st Artillery from 1963-1965, battery commander of the 4th Missile Battalion (Nike Hercules) 61st Artillery from 1962-1963, and was the chairman of the Artillery Committee Brigade and Battalion Department at Fort Benning from 1963-1964.

'Ranger Walks'

At 8:20 a.m. on Feb. 25, a ranger team from the Patrolling Committee, Ranger Department, USAIB, departed Guzman County, Ga. on a 42 Kilometer cross-country march, which terminated at 9:50 a.m. Feb. 27, at the Ranger Department Headquarters.

The ranger team was comprised of Maj. Donald L. Hill, Capt. Jimmy Rogers, Lt. Henry Mitchell, Lt. Morris Price, SSGT. John Stephens and SSGT. Gary Cuptit, all members of Sub-Committee "B", Patrolling Committee.

The ranger team carried all the necessary gear to sustain them throughout the period. Three radio checks were made daily with the Patrolling Committee Headquarters and required the locations of the team to the nearest eight digit coordinates.

Not only did the march provide ideal adventure training, but also included physical endurance at its best and training in land navigation over unfamiliar terrain. Without a doubt more "Ranger Walks" are in store for the Patrolling Committee.

In ceremonies held last week in Col. Robert J. Staudley's office Spt Mark Karl B. Crews, Sgt. Glen Brandsgaard, Sps Kenneth L. Coleman, Specialist Five David B. Conrad, Charles Moore, and Sps James S. Spivey, and Spt Russell Thomas.

AUSA

By RANDY BOOSE

The Association of the United States Army (AUSA) — dedicated to the premise that a strong mobile modern Army is vitally essential to our national defense.

The Columbus, Phenix City, Fort Benning chapter of AUSA has initiated another program to open communications between the local community and the Army. AUSA is currently sponsoring Army personnel for membership in local Jaycee groups.

Capt. John Davis is representing the Army as a new member of the Phenix City Jaycees. The Columbus Jaycees have two new faces as a result of this AUSA action. They are Capt. Thomas Curtin and Sp4 John Johnson.

Davis is presently post Community Relations Officer. It is a job already vital to enhancing civilian-Army relations. His expertise is being put to good use as he coordinates tomorrow's group of Jaycees through the Army's Basic Leadership Reaction Course. He was impressed with the "high caliber and sincerity of the men involved in Jaycees work," Davis said. "I am looking forward to working with these people, they are taking positive steps towards bettering the community."

As a Career Course Graduate and Registrar of the Infantry School, USAIS, Curtin feels his background in personnel will be an asset in his new role with the Jaycees. He is interested in the Vietnam Veterans programs and expressed a desire in working with some of their committees, and in becoming involved in their programs. Some of the events that he mentioned are supporting ticket sales for the Bob Hope Benefit Concert, the recognition of Young Educator and Young Businessmen of the year, and the auction in April where the proceeds go to the needy.

Not only will these three representatives discover what the Jaycees are all about, but they will be able to let them know what innovations are taking place on post and what problems the Army faces. A man equipped to let these young businessmen know how the soldier feels is Sp4 Johnson. He is currently President of the Post Soldiers Council, which is a counseling board for what the young soldier thinks. He has attended several Jaycee meetings as a visitor but received his final acceptance last week. He will be attending an orientation meeting in late March which explains what the Jaycees stand for and what they do. Once he becomes familiar with their organization he wants to have a voice in presenting the soldier's view and affecting activities directed for their benefit.

The linking of Army people with the civilian population by AUSA is in keeping with the aims of the Army expressed by Secretary of the Army Froehke at the AUSA National Convention last year. He placed emphasis on "enhancing the Army image and opening communication channels with youth, young businessmen, and the academic community." This latest effort of mixing Army personnel and civilians is an extension of the semi-annual meetings between local Jaycees and junior officers, where such things as the Army's leaders training techniques and the problem of drug abuse are discussed.

If your child is buying lots of model airplane glue—ask to see the airplanes.

Glue sniffing is discussed on page 26 of the Federal source book "Answers to the most frequently asked questions about drug abuse."

Forage your lunch from Post greenery

BY TOM TEGMEYER
Natural spices, herbs and greens are not used as often in a family's diet now as they were many years ago when the variety of available foods was small.

But natural foods are still available if persons are willing to spend some time and energy finding them. One outdoor-oriented family, after purchasing the book — "Slaking the Wild Asparagus" — found outdoor fun, family participation and an abundance of natural vegetation.

Once one knows where to look, wild berries, elderberries, raspberries, mulberries and an assortment of others can be located. Jellies and preserves can be made from these. The leaves of several plants can be used for a variety of appealing dishes. The elderberry, the blossom of the elderberry, is easy to find and is plentiful at Fort Benning. The large, white clusters of

Handcrafts on display at museum

About 120 handcrafted art objects — including jewelry, holloware, flatware and decorative accessories — are on display at the Columbus Museum of Arts and Crafts.

The exhibit items were entries in the National Craft Competition sponsored by the Minnesota Museum of Art in St. Paul. Craftsmen from all regions of the country contributed the works, which the public may view thru March 22.

Going on display Sunday and lasting thru April 2 — will be 40 oil paintings, watercolors and drawings by Donald McAdoo. Acclaimed by critics as one of the South's top realist painters, the Decatur, Ga. resident, paints full time at his studio when not visiting rural areas of the nation.

This exhibit is on a tour of major museums in the Southeast.

Now bring on a plain hot dog

The "super supper" program of HHC, last Feb. (Meef.), 58th Inf., 197th Inf. Bde., which features typical types of cuisine, has had a "wonderbar" beginning.

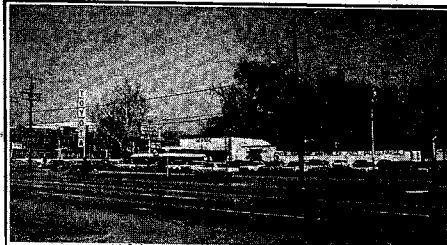

Under the supervision of mess steward Joseph A. Dampier, Sp6 Robert Kenoyer, Sp4 Jimmy L. Rose and Sp4 Glenn Thompson produced an authentic German-style meal for about 60 unit diners.

The menu included schnitzel, sauerbraten, German potato salad, sauerkraut and free beer. Among those sampling the Continental fare were CSM J. J. Gallagher, bridge sergeant major; and Sgt. Maj. Hans J. Küllmer, Gorman liaison NCO to the Infantry School, and his family. Capt. Frederick E. Byard, HHC commander, is planning Southern-style cooking for March's "super supper," and perhaps one in April.

small blossoms are delicious in bread, waffles or biscuits. They also can be fried as doughnuts in a flour, egg and baking powder batter after which they can be coated with powdered sugar.

The gaudian, better thought of as a nuisance in lawns, is another good ingredient in many dishes. The young leaves of this plant can be used as greens; the crown (the part between the leaves and root) is good in salads and the roots can be used for dessert toppings, mixture in ice cream and snacks.

Wild pecans, black walnuts and hickory nuts, all of which can be foraged in and hickory nuts, all of which can be foraged in this area, can be used for dessert toppings, mixture in ice cream and snacks.

Scouts see Indian dance

Members of the 197th Infantry Brigade and TS3 helped more than 70 Cub Scouts and their leaders of Fort Benning Pack 38 celebrate the 62nd anniversary of scouting at the annual Blue and Gold Banquet and Band Hill last Friday night.

The sponsoring agency, IHG of the 197th Infantry Brigade, was joined by members of the 62nd Co. 4th St. Bn., TS3 in providing a varied entertainment agenda for the boys, including skits and an authentic Indian ritual dance.

Sp4 Richard Hooper of TS3 performed the dance which depicted an Indian brave growing up, followed by a ceremonial presentation of a buffalo being killed.

SFC Fred Proske of TS3 acted as emcee for the banquet as he last as a cubmaster.

Registration requirements

Each election year, many military personnel miss their chance to vote. Voting requirements are simple. You must be a U.S. citizen, 18 years of age, a resident of the locale, and have completed the registration process. Most servicemen merely failed to register—the first simple step in the voting process.

Veteran dog handler receives high award

BY EDITH SIMMONS
 MSgt. Reinard Booth has been awarded the Meritorious Service Medal for outstanding work in the training of Army tactical dogs.

In presenting the award, Col. John L. Hester Jr., of the Infantry School's Company Operators Department referred to Booth as the "No. 1 man in the U. S. Army on this subject." He further stated that it is hard to measure Booth's contributions to the training of military dogs.

Booth has been chief instructor of the Military Dog Committee of the Company Operations Department since April, 1967. During this time, he has also been on temporary duty in Vietnam to check on dogs and has given technical assistance to various training projects involving tactical dogs. Booth also headed up the 8th Army Stryker Dog Detachment in Korea, the Stryker Dog Course at Lackland Air Force Dog Training School, and the Stryker Dog Training Branch, USAFUR. In 1958, he led the training force to Korea and familiarized their infantry with the use of dogs. Turkey borrowed his services to start their sentry dog program. He also has taught many Vietnamese soldiers sentry dog training techniques. Both got into the tactical dog program by accident. He had heard of the Canine Corps during World War II, but it wasn't until he got to Korea in 1952 that he stumbled into the program.

Before entering service in 1950, Booth had been a commercial fisherman. His job was to locate schools of fish for catching. Because of this experience as a "scout," he was offered the Dog Company. Thinking the Dog Company was the Heavy Weapons Company which would be located behind the lines, Booth accepted an "easy duty" assignment. Two weeks later, he was leading patrols.

At that time, Scout Dog Platoon of the 26th Infantry was the only dog detachment in the Army. Booth is justifiably proud of their record for in over 1,000 patrols, they never led a group of men into an ambush. The 26th credited with reducing the casualty rate of accompanied patrols by 55 per cent. Booth's most embarrassing moment in dog handling occurred during his second Korean tour. He walked up on an untrained dog that was not properly secured. The dog jumped, Booth broke the first rule of dog handling and jumped back. The dog followed. Booth tried to go over a barbed wire fence. The dog left the field with the seat of Booth's pants.

According to Booth, the "big things is that each one has his own personality." To be effective, a trainer needs experience with many different dogs. The food reward system is used to train dogs but the techniques must be flexible to fit the individual dog. Learning about the individual dog and working with him in combat develops an intense closeness between dog and handler. Booth feels this closeness is partially responsible for the Medal of Honor, the numerous Silver and Bronze Stars his handler students have won.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

by Bill King

Add fun and protein to a Saturday soup lunch for the children. Cut fanciful shapes from cheese slices and float them atop vegetable or tomato-riche soup.

If you're caught short when you need an ounce or square of unwrapped chocolate, substitute 3 tablespoons of cocoa mixed with 1 tablespoon of softened butter.

"Bubble 'n' squeak" is the appropriate name! early Irish-Americans gave to left over corned beef and cabbage sauteed until crisp.

Mix a cup of currant jelly with 2 tablespoons each of grated lemon peel and finely chopped mint (1 tablespoon if using dried mint). Grease with lamb roast or chops.

Dinner candles will burn slower and look pretty longer if you freeze them first.

Fort Benning marks 170th anniversary of West Point

Fort Benning will honor the 170th anniversary of the United States Military Academy with a dinner in the Main Ballroom of the Fort Benning Officers Club tomorrow evening.

The Founders Day Dinner will be hosted by the West Point Society of Fort Benning and Columbus. All graduates and former cadets of the Military Academy and graduates of the Naval and Air Force Academies are invited.

Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbot, post commander, will make the opening remarks. There will also be comments from the oldest and the youngest graduates of the Academy in the Fort Benning area.

Guest speaker for the "stag" dinner will be Lt. Col. Peter M. Dawkins. He is presently assigned to the Staff of the Special Assistant for the Modern Volunteer Army in the Office of the Chief of Staff of the Army.

Dawkins, in addition to many other coveted titles, was the Helmsman Trophy winner in 1963. While at West Point, he distinguished himself by being the only cadet to hold the four top positions of the Academy at one time. He was Cadet First Captain, the 6th Army football team captain, a Distinguished Graduate (top 5 per cent of his class), and President of his class.

While under a Rhodes Scholarship, Dawkins earned a Bachelor of Arts and a master of arts degree from Oxford University. Recently, he spent two years at Princeton University in the Woodrow Wilson School of Public and International Affairs, and earned a master of public affairs degree.

Airborne students work toward Parachute Park

The 4th Battalion (Airborne), The School Brigade (TSB), has discovered a valuable piece of "real estate" within the boundaries of the Airborne Area.

Just across Sightingseeing Road, opposite the Main Post Bowling Center, is a small pine forest that, up until now, had never been used and rarely noticed. Nestled in the shadows of tall pine and oak trees is a fair sized creek complete with waterfall, innumerable settings for picnic tables, and even an area large enough for a football field.

Development of the area came about during the last Christmas Holiday. 4th Co., 4th Bn., had a group

Overweight track club organized

BY DAVE MCQUEEN
"Fat don't care who it's on," says SSGT. Aaron D. Foster, Military Dog Committee and former 240 pounder. He has recently organized a new club for military and civilians who want to loose weight.

Foster formed the club, called "The Overweight Track Stars," on Feb. 22, and he already has 10 members with more people having called him expressing interest in his program.

One of the plans that the sergeant has for the future is a modified Orienteering Course that the Fort Benning Orienteering Team has promised to set up so that the Overweight Track Stars can practice running an Orienteering Course.

Foster does not restrict his club to male personnel. He now has two women in his course and expects more to join soon.

Anyone interested in joining the Overweight Track Stars may call Foster at 565-1069 during duty hours or his home phone, 544-4405. Anyone may join, man or woman, military or civilian.

Part of the responsibility for this has been race relations seminars which are held by various units for the benefit of all soldiers. In these sessions, soldiers can voice their opinions about unsatisfactory situations from the military and civilian communities.

The 1st Bn. 58th Infantry has been holding these seminars for over a year, and Lt. Col. Stephen Pawlik, commander of the 58th, noted that since that time, there have been no race related problems within his unit. He believes that the chance for soldiers to air their grievances reduces their hostilities and lessens the chance for open resentment.

Present to answer any inquiries from the soldiers and officers of the 58th at the most recent session were Columbus City councilmen Dr. Robert Wright and Mr. Roy Turgeon. Both these gentlemen have varied interests in the unit but for separate reasons. Mr. Turgeon is a retired Major who served as the executive officer for the unit, and Dr. Wright is a black councilman who represents a district that is primarily black and therefore is very interested in any black soldier's problems within the community.

Lt. Col. Pawlik explained that this rap session was designed to reduce racial hostilities. This was the time to find out if there were racial prejudices in the battalion, company or in the community of Columbus. Lt. Col. Pawlik stated that former sessions had brought up subjects such as PX hours and the variety of items

1-58th conducts race relations seminar

Race relations within the Army has come a long way since the days of segregated platoons and units. BY CAROL MAY

The NCO Wives Club and the Officers Wives Club joined hands to support the ticket sales for Thursday's Bob Hope benefit. Mrs. Henry Guilbeault of NCO Club and Mrs. Richard Slietz of the OWC made the first benefit sales in the post exchange Feb. 24. By uniting the wives groups in a single effort for The Infantry Museum Fund, Benning's ticket sales quota has been met. Thanks to the ladies for their enthusiasm and cooperation.

ODDLP

February 16 was the date of a tour of Livingston's Van and Storage. Upon arrival, the ladies were greeted by Cliff Livingston and served coffee by members of his staff. Livingston presented the ladies with a check for their favorite charity. The next ODDLP gathering will be in March at the home of Mrs. Harvey Foster.

NCO WIVES CLUB

The scholarship committee is gathering material to select the two educational grants to be given away in May. Applications are being sent to high schools in the Columbus-Phenix City area. To be eligible for the grants one must be a graduating senior and a dependent of an active, retired or deceased NCO.

The nominating committee for this year will be announced at the March business meeting. These ladies will select candidates for the 1972-73 board of officers. The general election will be in May and the new officers will take over in June.

Many ladies work with ACS, and others are Red Cross volunteers. They spend part of each week serving the Army community.

The Service Club sponsors Bakery Bingo on the third Sunday of each month. Ten cakes are donated as prizes by club members. Many Fort Benning soldiers have a chance to enjoy a little home cooking as the winners usually divide their prizes at the evening's end.

You are invited to join the NCO Wives' Club and attend the group's three remaining monthly meetings. Also, if you're looking for something to do, volunteer for an extra activity. For further information, call Mrs. Anthony Gallachio at 545-5620, Mrs. Franklin Henry at 689-0627 or Mrs. Guilbeault at 689-2391.

The club's February luncheon was held in a Columbus restaurant Feb. 16.

Guest speakers were Leon Sharon of the Checkmate Detective Agency and a captain from the Sheriff's Department.

Sharon gave the ladies pamphlets on various methods available for home security and drug identification. The captain showed slides identifying drugs, their methods of use and their effects. At the end of the program, the ladies viewed two display cases of drugs and drug paraphernalia.

Returning to the club was former member Mrs. Sarah Stephens. Receiving silver trays this month were Mrs. Betty Dyer, first vice president; Mrs. Julie Fitzgerald, corresponding secretary; and Mrs. Fran Kitchen, assistant publicity chairman. These ladies are going to new posts with their husbands and families.

BBOD

The Benning Room of the Main Officers' Club was the scene of the monthly coffee of the Ladies of Combat Support Group March 1. Hostesses were Mrs. George W. Auz Jr., Mrs. Donald R. Daniel and Mrs. Howard B. Robbins.

The table was decorated with a centerpiece of spring flowers, which was given to Mrs. Richard L. Arnold. Mrs. Richard S. Fye, group chairman, welcomed special guests Mrs. Lawrence L. Mowery, Mrs. Guy S. Meley and Mrs. James F. Hemminger. Three new members — Mrs. Gerald W. Sharpe, Mrs. James Badger and Mrs. Richard Saunders — were welcomed to the group. Leaving was Mrs. Robert A. Snyder.

Announcements were made on the OWC Bob Hope luncheon Thursday and the BBOD Formal April 20. The next coffee will be held April 5. Mrs. Nelson P. Conover, Mrs. Larry Tucker and Mrs. Thomas J. Waraksa will be hostesses.

Staff Group wives held their monthly coffee March 2 in the home of Mrs. Paul J. Raisig Jr., wife of the new chairman of Staff Group. A St. Patrick's Day theme was highlighted by a centerpiece of green carnations and Irish potatoes. Hostesses were wives of the Training Management and Technique Committee: Mrs. Russell C. Miller, Mrs. David W. Foner, Mrs. Robert E. Cuyler, Mrs. James E. Mitchell, Mrs. William Erwin, Mrs. Michael J. Cooner and Mrs. Roger Hewitt.

Mrs. Raisig conducted a short meeting, welcoming Mrs. Cooner and saying good-bye to Mrs. Hewitt, Mrs. Erwin, Mrs. Jerry Wall and Mrs. Joseph Benham. Staff Group officers and their wives attended a hall and farewell luncheon March 3 at the Fort Benning County Club. At the luncheon, Lt. Col. Paul J. Raisig welcomed Capt. George Sisson and Capt. Tom Pasching to Personnel Committee, Capt. Harold Guthrie to Training Management Committee and Lt. Col. Jacques H. Michienzie to Operations Committee. Leaving Staff Group were Lt. Col. and Mrs. Edward L. Harris, Maj. and Mrs. Jerry Wall and Capt. and Mrs. Joseph Benham of Logistics Committee, Capt. and Mrs. Robert Jenkins of Personnel Committee; and Capt. and Mrs. James Walsh of Intelligence Committee. Also scheduled to depart soon is Mrs. Pam Chandler, secretary to Staff Group.

The wives of Training Management and Techniques Committee held their first monthly evening coffee March 8 in the home of Mrs. John M. Herold.

OWC

The spring Atlanta trip will be April 25. Buses will leave the Officers' Club at 8 a.m. and will return that evening. The $6.50 tickets will include a fashion show and box lunch at a department store and an afternoon tea. For more details, call Mrs. Russell C. Miller at 545-4738 or Mrs. Jack Cummings at 545-2488.

The OWC Choral group needs you. No auditions necessary — one only must enjoy singing. The group meets Fridays in the Main Post Chapel Annex. Call Mrs. Billie Burke at 545-1497.

First Lt. Doug Odum will be in the OWC Lounge Saturday with his pencil, watercolor, and charcoal sketches. Call Mrs. Miller at 545-4738 for more information.

MEDDAC

John Fowles' use of words and his main character in "The French Lieutenant's Woman" made his book enjoyable reading for the MEDDAC Wives' Book Club. The club met at Mrs. Haskell Ziperman's home at 307 Ballzell March 1.

The French Lieutenant's woman remained a mystery to the discussion group, even after they finished the book. The members found it difficult to understand why Sarah schemed as she did to capture the English gentleman — then sent him away after a brief attachment. It was suggested that she was possibly using him to achieve a goal that she had attained — made him suffer. Although Sarah was not popular among the Book Club members, they begrudged her a certain admiration.

The author used epigraphs throughout the book and the club found these delightful. They thought his style of writing was confusing at times but his command of English was so good that they could understand why the book was on the best seller list.

The next selection of the Book Club is "Touching" by Ralph Ellison. The group will meet with Mrs. Charles Gatty April 5.

'Hats funny!'

The wearing of hatty bonnets topped off a Leadership Dept. luncheon March 9 in the Corridor Room of the Main Officers Club. Art prizes made by Mrs. Douglas Emery and Mrs. Edward Flara were awarded to Mrs. Billy Rutherford for the funniest hat, Mrs. Charles Ostly for the most original and Mrs. John Huffman for the best. In addition, Mrs. Thomas Harrison won the flower arrangement on the head table. Twenty-two women attended the event, which was sponsored by the Ladies of Headquarters.

586th get feet wet

BY RAY CARR

Last week, a team of scuba divers of the 586th Engr. Co. (FB) got their feet wet for the first time. Cold as it was, the five divers braved their way into the frigid Chattahoochee River. 1st Lt. John Powers, Sp5 Charles Roper, Sp5 Tommy McKay, Sp4 Roger Garner and Sp4 James Wright all made the plunge into the murky water. Various exercises, such as plotting compass courses and drawing maps of the underwater landscape, were completed by the five divers.

New in the company, Senior Diver Roper says that he was pleased with the progress of the other divers and hopes to make a regular program in which the divers active in their field. Powers, the officer in charge, stated that this first dive was only the beginning of the monthly dives to come. Powers also stated that the diving OIT program will coincide with the unit's 70th E. requirement. Certified diver Garner said, "that it is his goal to find deeper and clear water to dive in so as to use to its fullest, his newly acquired skills."

Senior diver Sp5 Charles Roper and certified diver Sp4 Roger Garner make last minute checks on their equipment before they start their underwater survey of the landscape. 1st Lt. John Powers, Sp5 Tommy McKay and Sp4 James Wright remain a raft to keep an eye out for the divers in the water and to prepare their equipment for their dive. (Photo by Raymond Carr)

Indian guides to visit post

A group of fathers and sons from the YMCA Indian Guides in Atlanta will visit Fort Benning March 11-12.

When the group arrives, they will be greeted in Marshall Auditorium by Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbot, Fort Benning commander. The film, "Spirit of Fort Benning," and the tableau, "I Am The Infantry," will be presented.

Saturday afternoon the group will see a number of displays. Scheduled activities include an aircraft static display at Lawson Army Airfield, a display

5,000 attend 49'er party

Mrs. William R. Guthrie, chairman of DUSA, said the attendance was well up over last year's mark of 3500. Although the exact amount is not yet known, she feels that the group came close to its goal of 10,000.

Over 5,000 people attended the Annual 49'er Party in the Officers Club on March 4. Sponsored by the Daughters of the United States Army, the party benefits went to the Tot Town Nursery.

Mrs. Guthrie credited the efforts of the committee chairmen for making the party a success. These 26 people spent most of their free time for two months coordinating plans for entertainment, decorations, and cleanup. For many, it was the first experience in such a large project.

In addition to the committee chairman, 900 people staffed the various booths and games during the evening. The costume contest was judged on originality of idea and suitability to the western theme of the 49ers affair. The Best Couple category was won by Capt. and Mrs. Frank Peabody. Mrs. Susan Grubbs was chosen Representative Female and Capt. Bob Lord, Representative Male. The Most Humorous Costume was worn by Capt. Jesse Reynolds. Capt. William E. Johnston designed the most Original Costume.

Mrs. Guthrie described the Party as the only one of its kind during the year. It was a purely social function structured for people to enjoy themselves.

931st finds a new way to jog and jog

By RAY BASSETT
If on some occasion you find yourself in the vicinity of the 931st Engr. Gp. at Sand Hill don't be surprised to see a disorganized group of soldiers running along the roadway, come to an abrupt stop, complete a series of strenuous exercises and then resume their jogging.

The activity is called "Vita Parcours," the latest Swiss exercise fad invented by Erwin Weckmann in 1968. The 931st Engr. Gp. is incorporating the event into its new physical training program. While programed exercising and jogging are not new, this concept is unique in that it can be tailored to the individual soldier. Instead of having to run in formation and do calisthenics to the pace of an instructor, participants in the Vita Parcours work at their own pace.

The name of this new craze is derived from Vita, a Swiss life insurance company which finances the construction of the courses in Switzerland and from the French word Parcours which means course.

The 931st course will cover about one and a half miles with 12 exercise stations set up along the way in flat smooth areas. The exercises are patterned after the Army's Daily Dozen with the most difficult ones near the start of the circuit.

The decision to use the Parcours was made by Rangers build good relations with residents

By ROB McILVAINE
How would you like to have hours of NOO, OG and KODC students wandering over your vegetable garden or flower patch in the wee hours of the morning?

We, residents of Stewart, Quitman and Randolph counties have been pulling up with this sort of thing from the Ranger Patrolting Committee since 1966 and without complaint. In fact, they appear to enjoy the company.

"A put-on," you say? No way, for rural Georgians mean what they say. People in Lumpkin, Cuthbert, or Coleman call it like it is and they don't take to gimmicks.

A lot of effort and "plain dealing" has gone into the making of this relationship. The Rangers have, with common sense and respect, moulded a rapport with the tri-county area that would make a flashy public relations expert green with envy.

Over 146 property holders are involved and not one has found fault with the Army nor commented unfavorably on "tactical use" of their land.

Oh, there have been some knocked down fences and a few mistakenly "biterated" cows but that sort of thing is accepted with fine understanding. Often, the citizens decline to accept reparation, preferring to chalk it up as he would the mishap of a clumsy guest.

The Patrolting Committee also has "maneuver rights" on sizeable chunks of land belonging to three major lumber companies in the area, Burgin Lumber Company, Georgia Craft, and St. Regis Lumber Company. So far there's been nothing but positive thinking about the Army's treatment of the valuable timberland.

Jack D. Harris, area manager for Georgia Craft, has been observing the Ranger's occupation since its start. He recalls their move into Bell Bottom, the vicinity of Providence Canyon, and how they literally abided to what was until then "totally inaccessible territory," Bell Bottom, by the way, got its name because of its most fabled occupant, the rattlesnake.

At that time, the Rangers were using as much as 27,000 acres of woodland in "totally inaccessible territory," Bell Bottom, by the way, got its name because of its most fabled occupant, the rattlesnake.

Though now operating on a far less grandiose scale, the Rangers still continue to consider aspects of the civil affairs their presence. Whether it involves the mammoth holdings of a major lumber company or Tommy Green's few acres of cornland, the same attitude and policy applies.

Capt. Walt Ross, the Patrolting Committee's S-5 officer, is the "diplomat at large" for the region. Every Monday or Tuesday, "God willing and the motor pool don't fail," he sets off on a 150-175 mile reconnaissance and "listening" tour.

He begins with the lumber companies and gradually wanders his way through a medley of forest rangers, tower guards, park superintendents, store keepers, farmers, local residents and just about anybody who might meet the "soldier boys" on their families, nocturnal and otherwise, — or anybody who just wants to talk.

Ross is not running for office nor is the Patrolting Committee out to set an all-time record in community good will. Rather, the whole effort tries to reach a balanced mutual understanding. When Bob Baxter over at Providence Canyon tells Ross "Thanks for stoppin'" he means it.

When the kids along the road and plowman in the field wave a friendly hello they mean it.

Perhaps the Patrolting Committee has a lesson for us, too.

Pest control highlights house and garden care

By ROB McILVAINE

One of the clamors raised by newly arrived district members at Fort Benning invariably centers around those dark brown, crawling things found scurrying around the kitchen floor and elsewhere. Actually, every area has its own bag of natural eccentricities and Georgia's insect peccadillo is small price to pay for the many climatic (wait) and recreational opportunities available here.

But since "bugs bug," this week's lesson in House and Garden Care from Sp5 Michael Williams, preventive medicine activity, Martin Army Hospital, is devoted to indoor pest control. With a little effort and family cooperation, Georgia's insect life can be returned to its natural habitat, "The Great Outdoors."

Pest Control in the House — Cockroaches, Silverfish, Waterbugs. A basic sanitation in the house is the best way of keeping pests from invading the family living area. Here are some tips:

— Check your grocery bags for insects before storing the groceries in the cabinet.

— Adequate and speedy disposal of garbage helps keep pests out of the house. The use of plastic bags or specially designed garbage liners with insecticide will last for an extended period of time.

— If an insect problem develops: — Make sure you are following the above steps. If you are and the problem persists, call pest control (Insect and Rodent Control, 546-3224; Preventive Medicine, 546-3877) and request to have your quarters sprayed.

— It is best to have a thorough job done once rather than put up with a mediocre job that must be repeated three or four times during your residence.

NOTE: When the spray team arrives have all cabinets empty of dishes, pets, pans, and food stuffs. Have these items covered completely. Let the team have the whole house to preclude insects from having an area to retreat to. The team will not be authorized to spray carpets or furniture because of possible staining damage.

Allow the insecticide to dry on the cabinets and sprayed area, especially around base boards. You should then line the area with treated paper, available in Commissary, and then replace utensils and food stuffs any dishes specked with insecticide should be washed thoroughly before storage.

— The residual action of the insecticide will last from two to six weeks and should kill all cockroaches that come in contact with it. Do not wash your cabinets and base boards for a month after the spraying. However, continue to maintain a high degree of sanitation. Due to the life cycle of these pests, a second spraying may be required after 30 days to catch the initial spraying. The odor of the insecticide will last for approximately one to two hours. It may be advisable to take an extended coffee break next door.

C. Other insect problems, such as fleas, ticks, and house flies — Fleas and ticks, generally associated with pets, are the responsibility of the owner. The Veterinary Activity will give assistance and/or advise if needed. A good bath once a week, a flea collar, and treatment of the pet's sleeping area should prove an effective deterrent policy.

— To combat house flies, a good aerosol spray used with a little common sense is recommended. — Summer mosquitoes can also be controlled by the intelligent use of these sprays. N.O.T.E: mosquitoes breed in standing water. You should empty all pools and other water containers when not in use.

Election central

Primary dates

Dixville Notch, New Hampshire has 17 voters. Tuesday, the morning of the New Hampshire primary, they all turned out just after midnight to vote. Dixville residents take pride in having the first returns in the state each election year.

For any registered voter, the state primary is an important part of the election process. The parties need votes to indicate which candidates, issues, and policies appeal to the voters. For a voter, the primary is the last chance to effect his party's actions before the general election.

Most states have state and presidential preference primaries. Because each state has different registration requirements and dates for filing, military personnel should check with their unit voting officers for the specific requirements of their home states.

State dates are as follows:

POW-MIA week starts March 26

President Nixon, as authorized by Congress, has set aside the week of March 26 through April 1 as National Week of Concern for Prisoners of War-Missing in Action. Sunday, March 26, is designated as a National Day of Prayer for the 1,700 men of all services.

The purpose of the week and its activities is to demonstrate the support and concern to "forcibly" protest the inhuman treatment these men are receiving at the hands of the North Vietnamese, in violation of the Geneva Convention."

Mrs. E. J. Murdock, head of the local Citizens Assistance Program for POW-MIA Families, revealed that plans for the local observance will be announced next week.

In the meantime, Mrs. Murdock said that POW bracelets are for sale in Infantry Hall lobby during the noon hour, in 24th Co. TSB by Capt. Ajiffi, and at her home on main post. The citizens also have Easter cards with a prayer and a POW message.

Anti-drug message in movie labeled 'scare tactic'

BELIEVE IN ME starring Michael Sarrazin and Jacqueline Bisset. This is a drug story which follows the downfall of Sarrazin and his girl friend played by Miss Bisset.

Sarrazin is an intern in a New York hospital, an accomplished pianist — and a speed freak. He is kicked out of the medical profession for stealing drugs and for being absent at an obstetrics delivery when twin babies died for lack of attention.

Sarrazin uses speed in every way imaginable; he pops pills, sniffs powder, even shoots it under his tongue. He owes his pushover $500, and after losing his job, he peddles dope on the street. Sarrazin uses all the platitudes. Like most

"know-all" drug fiends, he has an excuse for his habit. "I'm a doctor," he says. "I'm doing what I'm doing. Speed won't hurt you. I'm not on heroin." He introduces "uppers" to the girl, and she makes the fastest fall in history, going from popping three diet pills one day to shooting speed the next. She keeps walking in on Sarrazin when he is taking drugs, acting horrified when she asks for some of the same. It's all not very realistic and the acting doesn't help matters either. Sarrazin plays a weak character, which he makes even weaker by his performance. Miss Bisset does just one notch better. The other major character — the drug pusher — is a stereotyped "bad guy" from the word "go." He's all untrustworthy, he does not accurately portray the personality of most true "pushers" — most of whom must at least build up some kind of working rapport with their clients to hold their trade. As a commentary against drugs, the film does accomplish its mission, providing the viewer is susceptible to scare tactics. Because that's basically what this movie is.

That Ole Spring Fever...

By CARL KING

Have you noticed a new vibrance in the boss's morning greeting? Funny, how a mere change in the weather brings new life to people as well as plants and other animals.

An old decayed stump out in the yard now houses a chirping sparrow. The whistling winter wind whose edge was sharp as a fresh-honed axe gives way to a balmy breeze that escalates the senses, invigorates awareness and creates a euphoric urge to engage in outdoor activities.

These are some of the changes one sees and feels as he travels around Fort Benning this time of the year.

Heavy coats have been shed. Indeed, one small school child literally dragged her coat home. It appeared too warm to wear it—and too heavy to carry it. She seemed most cheerful though, as she skipped along the sidewalk, sang to herself, and continued to drag her coat. Don't worry Mom, another $20 next year will take care of the matter.

Aside from the apparent "change in feeling" brought on by Spring, the new season is easily perceived by the human eye.

Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbot, post commander, can be seen on his daily jaunt around quarters No. 1. With the new emphasis on physical training at Fort Benning, Gen. Talbot runs in the early morning hours so that his normal duty hours are not interrupted.

"It's becoming increasingly difficult to find an available tennis court on post," Capt. Leonard Scott, 4th Student Battalion, said. "The once empty courts are usually filled to capacity from early morning till late at night."

ty from early morning till late at night."

The surge of Spring was also seen at Wilbur Elementary School. A class on physical conditioning, in the form of sit-ups, was being conducted by a fourth grade teacher. The class was obviously glad to be outdoors. Laughing, in-between the "huffs and puffs," was prevalent as the children went to the up" position, then "down."

Driving around post makes one vividly aware that Fort Benning personnel are sensing the warmth of the new season. There is a hidden excitement as a young housewife, Mrs. Curtis Starr, plants a new garden outside her quarters. "It was just too beautiful to stay inside," Mrs. Starr said. "In a couple of months, we hope to have our own fresh vegetables."

In another housing area, Mrs. William Kurtz was seen re-packing the boat after a weekend on the lake. "You should have been with us," it was absolutely delightful," Mrs. Kurtz said.

While Spring stimulates outside recreation, it has its complacent side. SSG John Smith and his daughter, Deborah, chose a leisurely pace—that of fishing in the Upatoi Creek just below Martin Army Hospital. It's possible that Smith gave a fictitious name . . . the effects of Spring are upon us.

Department, studied his habits to determine the reasons for this change in attitude. He returned to work from Capt. Phil Reid, the 1st Battalion's Training Coordinator.

Fort Benning's training units are different in character than those of the other units in the Army. The units are different in character than those of the other units in the Army. The units are different in character than those of the other units in the Army.

1-29th helps blood bank

Answering a call for help from the Marion County Hospital in Buena Vista, nearly 20 soldiers from the 1st Battalion 29th Infantry (Pioneers), 197th Infantry Brigade volunteers to donate blood to the hospital March 9.

The Hospital's plea for blood donors went out in order that the hospital could maintain its quota of blood donations to the Red Cross and continue its eligibility for use of the Red Cross Blood Bank.

According to a hospital spokesman, the Marion County Hospital has only two doctors and serves five counties around Buena Vista. It has a 200-pint quota to maintain yearly to continue its eligibility for Red Cross Blood.

"We normally do not have any trouble meeting our quota," the spokesman said. "But, today (March 9) when the Red Cross people are here, our Baseball team is playing a tournament game and many of our regular donors are out of town supporting the team."

Ouch!

Jaycees tackle Leadership Course

Fourteen Jaycees from Columbus and Phenix City tackled the rigorous Leaders Reaction Course taught by the Leadership Department USAIN.

Lt. Col. Billy E. Rutherford, chairman of the Leadership Committee within the department, welcomed the group. He explained that the course is given to officer candidate, Noncommissioned officer candidate, and infantry officer Basic classes. The Leaders Reaction Course is designed to let the students be evaluated while they demonstrate the characteristics and problem-solving abilities of leaders. The Jaycees were given eight of the courses 16 tasks to solve. Each of the tasks involved working over 4 ft. of water. The group completed four which is considered above average. "We" was the initial reaction to the course. After driving off, several of the Jaycees were willing to complete the course.

Big Red One meets March 23

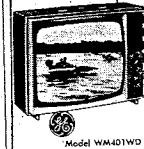

You may have recently reflected on your last tour of duty with the "Big Red One" and wondered where some of your old buddies were. Well, the opportunity to find out will soon present itself. We would like to personally invite you to attend our next meeting.

Col. John Seigle, representing the Society of the First Division Foundation, will talk about the current status of the fund. Col. Seigle, who was recently assigned to head C O m b a t Arms Training Board will also speak on the scope, purpose and objectives of the Board.

We will have a short discussion of the chapter's future activities and Lt. Col. Bill Ham will will have all the latest information about the officers' dinner in New York to take place in April. Put the following information on your calendar so that you'll be able to join us: DATE: March 23 1972. TIME: 5:30 p.m. PLACE: Parachute Officers Lounge (Bldg. No. 2155 directly across the street from the Lawson Field Officers Club) REFRESHMENTS: Free Beer and Snacks.

Poison prevention week, Mar. 19-25

BY LUIS PLA
 Search out the dangers and destroy the possibility of an accidental poisoning. Lt. Col. Luis L. Pla, Chief of Pharmacy Service, Martin Army Hospital advised as National Poison Prevention Week begins March 19-25. This eleven annual observance, proclaimed by President Nixon, has as its theme this year "Search and Destroy."

 "Some people will think only of the military use of this term," Lt. Col. Pla said, "But the principle has application in reducing the number of accidental poisonings among children."
 "For example, children are curious. They see, they touch, they taste medicines on the bedside table, drain cleaner on the floor, furniture polish left on the table. Search out these dangers, destroy the possibility of a poisoning happening."

 The Chief of Pharmacy Service referred especially to the need to keep medicine cabinets locked and cleaned out. Almost every household has at least one and sometimes many bottles or containers of medication that are not needed or used. "Many people save excess medication in the hope they will be able to use it again in the future," he said.

Racing Queen visits Benning

Miss Linda Vaughn, "Queen of the Racing World" and "Auto Racing's Golden Girl" and 16 members of the U.S. Racing team visited Fort Benning Wednesday.

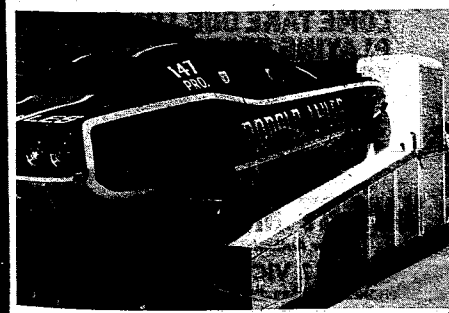

The team which is composed of some of the top professional racing drivers in the country made personal appearances in the 197th Brigade area as well as putting their cars on static display at Munsan Heliport.

Wednesday night the team raced at the Phenix City raceway and put on a thrilling show in their dragsters which had up to 800-horsepower.

Linda who is a Georgia girl herself said she felt right at home at Fort Benning. "Only last week in Los Angeles on a TV show an announcer commented about my southern accent," said racing's golden girl.

Sp4 David L. Fryrekar, USAMTU, must feel like a king as he stands beside Linda Vaughan, "Queen of the Racing World." Linda along with 16 members of the U.S. Racing team were at Fort Benning Wednesday displaying their hardware.

The Fort Benning Fish and Game Unit began a vermin-predator control program on post this week. The program is conducted annually to control populations of birds, animals and reptiles harmful to the post fish and game population.

The program, which continues through Sept. 1, will be in effect throughout the reservation but traps will not be placed within one mile of quarters areas or reservation boundaries.

During this period it will be extremely dangerous for pets to run loose unattended or to accompany personnel on fishing, hiking or other outdoor activities.

The list of vermin and predators is a long one but this program will concentrate on raccoon, skunks, fox, bobcat, wild dogs and feral cats. These animals are potential rabies carriers and could be a threat to the wellbeing of the human as well as the animal population.

The great horned owl, scree, sharpshinned hawk and coopers hawk are among the birds listed as predators. The coach whip snake, chicken snake, copperhead snake, rattlesnake, coral snake, several species of water snakes and turtles are among the reptiles considered detrimental to game and fish population.

All of these animals, birds and reptiles are on the vermin-predator list for good reasons. The hawks, owls and crows are harmful to the small game and bird population. They raid birds nests for eggs, feed on the young and in the case of the smaller animals will also feed on the adults. Skunks, raccoons, wild domestic cats, bobcats and most of the snakes eat countless birds, birds eggs and small animals each year. The wild dogs usually form packs and account for many losses in the deer population. The water snakes and turtles are a real menace to the fish population.

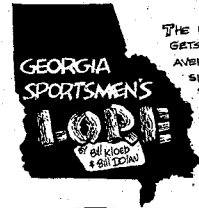

Squirrels and Pigeons
They are not in the same category as the predators listed, but in my opinion the squirrels and pigeons on the Main Post should come in for some population reduction this year. The squirrels can be seen all over the quarters areas on post and I've watched several pigeon flocks grow from a few in number to nearly a hundred over the past few months.

The squirrels are cute and give the post a park like atmosphere but they like to eat birds eggs and have the ability to climb to the highest nests. Some people object to shooting these animals but I wonder if they have noticed the small numbers of song birds in the quarters areas. There are not many and their numbers are bound to decrease proportionately with the increase in the squirrel population. This is a case where you can't have everything. It is conceivable that a squirrel population explosion could wipe out the bird population.

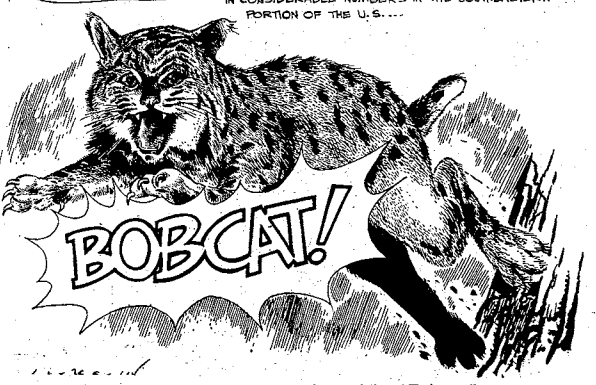

Pigeons are dirty birds. I can't see that they contribute anything to the post. As these flocks continue to grow the birds will become a real nuisance. They build nests in buildings, dirty all over the place and in addition are carriers of nocardiosis a respiratory disease easily transmitted to humans. The thousands of these birds that are costing municipalities thousands of dollars to control were able to multiply because the city fathers listened to pigeon lovers a few years ago.

Wild Dogs and Cats
The problems caused by two predators are man-made. People who think they are kind hearted take dogs and cats out to the uninhabited parts of the reservation and turn them loose. It seems easier or more humane to turn them loose than to kill them. These domestic cats and dogs become wild and take a heavy toll on the wildlife population. The cats become as skillful in hunting as the bobcat and the dogs gather into packs and run down deer. Figure how much food a dog needs to exist from day to day and you can get an idea as to how much game several wild dog packs will kill in a year.

If you have a pet of any kind and have to dispose of it don't take it to the woods. If it doesn't die of starvation a lot of game will have to die to keep it alive. Take the animal to the Post Veterinarian Building 255, Main Post. He will try to find another home for it and if this isn't possible will have it disposed in a humane manner.

Orienteering team needs members to go to Sweden

Have you ever thought about a trip to Stockholm, Sweden? If you are a middle aged or older track or cross-country runner, permanently assigned to Fort Benning, you have the opportunity to go on an expenses paid trip to beautiful, sunny Sweden for 45 days. The Army is going all out in this year's CISM (Military Olympics) competition, and the Fort Benning Orienteering Team sponsored by the Ranger Dept., is conducting training to prepare for the trials, which will culminate in Sweden with the CISM Championships. The Fort Benning Orienteering Team presently has seven members that are preparing for the trip. The team is looking for five more individuals to be trained for the upcoming events. Men selected will be assigned to the team on a special duty basis — exempt from normal military duties until the end of August. The team lives in special barracks and conducts vigorous daily work outs. Individuals interested in adventurous training and competition who would like the chance to travel to Europe can obtain additional information by contacting the Fort Benning Orienteering Team at 548-6821.

MEDDAC posted playoff wins over TSB and 331st Engineer Group to obtain the second place rating in the brigade level league. The team consisted of Dale Overman, captain, David S. Davis, player-coach, and players — James Sturdivant, Mike Keating, Jerry Stulz, Mike Shell, John Jones, Slade Howell, John O'Brien and Ray Temple.

Doughboys vs. Campbell in handball battle

The Fort Benning Doughboy Team Handball squad will play a two game series against the Ft. Campbell Eagles at Doughboy Stadium this weekend. The first of the Third Army League games is scheduled to start at 6:30 this evening. The second game will be played at 10:30 tomorrow morning. The series against Campbell will be the first home games scheduled for the Doughboys who have a record of two wins and no losses. In the opening series of Third League play the Benning team defeated the Ft. Rucker Flyers 20 to 5 and 21 to 9 in games played at Rucker.

Anderson wins again, Tampa, victory sight

SFC Hershel Anderson, Fort American Gold and Silver Medalist of Army Marksmanship Training Unit, claimed the Grand Aggregate Championship Sunday of the National Mid-Winter Pistol Tournament at Tampa, Fla. over a select field of 278 of the nation's best military, civilian and police hand-gunners. Anderson posted 2,642-128X to take his new Mid-Winter crown, two points better than his nearest competitor, former National Pistol Champion, Martin Francis Higginson of Quantico, Va. Third place honors was taken by John Johnson, a Florida hand-gunner with 2,633-112X. Anderson also led the Army "Blue" team into the winners circle in three of four—the team matches by taking the 22 Caliber Pistol and Center Fire Pistol matches over a persistent Marine Corps "Scarlet" team, outpacing them by six in the initial match with 1,176 and by two in the Center Fire with 1,172. The "Blue" team then took the 45 Caliber Service Pistol championship with their combined 1,146 score. A sister team, the Army "Gray" grabbed the remaining team championship, the 45 Caliber Pistol, with their 1,170, again one point ahead of the grasping Marine "Scarlet" team.

In winning the top individual prize of the four days of handgun competition, Anderson found himself continually being paced and edged by one and two points in the various sub-aggregates. But like the distance runner he put it together coming down the home stretch and broke the tape ahead of his many aspiring competitors.

Saturday bicycling, a perfect day

BY ROB MCLVAINE
Despite the overcast and the morning cold, Fort Benning's Bicycle Club saddled up March 4 for a day-long ramble to watch the Sport Parachute Club sky drive at Fryar Field.
After a few en-route pit stops for the benefit of a reluctant string ray bike, the cyclists were soon met by blue skies and spring-like warmth.
Once over the Alabama line and on 101st Division Road, a few camper-borne fishermen off for a day's casting on the Upatoi supplied the only other traffic. With the exception of stirring wildlife and the "grunts" of less experienced club members, all was quiet. Utterly and blissfully quiet.

At Fryar Field, the Sport Parachute Club got ready for their first "lift." To the fascination of everyone, a jumble of altimeters, valves, lines, and parachutes linked with the airborne slang to reveal the intricate and thrilling world of the skydiver.
Soon a "popped-smoke" and rotor throb signaled the arrival of a Huey helicopter that would carry the enthusiasts aloft for the initial jump. The manfester read Anderson, Moore, Oncken, Kelly, and Albinowski; the five checked each other out thoroughly prior to boarding. With skydivers, the buddy-system is a halloo ritual.

After the takeoff, excitement charged the air as the droning helicopter spiraled heavenward to 3000 feet. Squinting through the sun's rays, the grounded cyclists and other spectators waited expectantly to catch a glimpse of the divers.
Nothing. Then, suddenly, a speck, growing larger as the first went up, "There's the cry one!" The speck grew and was followed by more. Soon the stark outline of a man appeared with legs up swept. He floated and revolved like a feather caught in a gentle wind.

In an instant, a successive pop and up swept echoed down as chutes opened to slow the figures to earth. The red, yellow, green, and white canopies were like so many circus tents descending down an azure blue backdrop. The event was a complement to the skydivers' courage and breathtaking style.
A perfect day.

MTU splits honors with Marines, blasts Air Force, wins in Calif.

Army, Marines battle in Texas

The U. S. Army and Marines divided the honors Sunday at Camp Bullis, San Antonio, Tex. In a dual "big bore" rifle meet in which the Army champion shooters took the team honors while the "leathernecks" took a squeaker in the individual championships.
Featuring 200, 300, and 600 yard range competition, the Texas tourney's initial match was a slow fire "off hand" rifle meet at the shorter range in which the Marine's MSgt. R. E. Martini won the nod with his 1974.

chez of the Quantico, Va., Marine S shooting team, out-pointed McQueen by one to take the big prize with his composite 976-32x. Sanchez, a narrow victor in the earlier slow fire aggregate, took that by a similar margin also when he posted a 398-13x, one point ahead of McQueen.
The Army shooters in a team effort forged into the championship circle and grabbed the first and second place honors for team competition. The U. S. Army "Blue" team of McQueen, Stephens, SFC Charles D. Davis and SFC William R. Lee triumphed over a large field of entries and posted the winning score of 1949-92x, 18 points over the Marine effort. The U. S. Army "Gold" team posted a 1955-52x for the runner-up honors, also out-distancing the frustrated Marines at 1931-52x.

Both the "Blue and "Gold" Army teams are fielded by the U. S. Army Marksmanship Training Unit with Veteran Coach, MSgt. Roy Combs leading the winning team and SFC Paul Parker, coaching the Gold Team.

also won the team Grand Aggregate Championship, thus making it a clean sweep over the Air Force competitors, with their three day total of 4,206. The Air Force, in runner-up position, was 60 points down.
Davis, leading his nearest competitor, Air Force SSGT. Robert Yeager, Lauchland AFB, Tex., by 22, was behind the first day, but from then on took command and climbed into his dominant leading position.

In the overall scoring, Yeager posted 1,602 for the runner-up honors, while Maj. (Ret.) Willis Powell of Columbus was three points back for the third place slot.
Davis posted 538, 546 and 540 in his drive for the three day championship but his final day was the first day in which he took the high days aggregate.
Yeager won the nod the first day with Powell surging into the lead for the second day. Davis was pressing all the time and although different individuals beat him out, by the end of the second day, his grand total was out front by 13 points. From there, he held on and added a 9 point spread to his dominating position.

In the final days shoot, Davis started his drive by taking the slow runs with 288 while Air Force MSgt. Robert Dickens took runner up with 278. This was almost a repeat from the previous day when he won with 283 while Powell was second with 264.
In the fast runs Yeager won the competition only the first day with Powell taking the second day and Davis winning the third day.

The Air Force team jumped off to a severe point lead in the first day's shoot but from there on it was Army all the way. The Army team in addition to Davis, included SFC Edmund O. Moeller Jr., SFC William R. Lee and Sgt. James Reiber. The team is fielded by the U. S. Army Marksmanship Training Unit.

Calif. victory

EL MONTE, Calif.
A pair of Shotgunners from the U. S. Army Marksmanship Training Unit, Fort Benning, grabbed the championship and runner-up honors in the three-day 300 bird international Championship completed here Sunday.

Despite the adverse shooting conditions, Capt. Kenneth Gilbert and Sp4 Louis Sembrowich, posted scores of 271 and 284 to lead the field.
Gilbert, a veteran shotgun artist from Ellisville, Miss., established a strong beach head with his first day lead and then maintained his margin to capture the championship. Sembrowich, a relative newcomer to the international scene from Hartford, Conn., outgunned the remaining veterans to claim the runner-up spot. The shooting conditions were extremely poor in the Los Angeles area which accounted for the many low scores and the below par showing of the many talented and veteran 12 gauge marksmen.

Receives 'Master Wings'

CWO Billy E. McGlothlin recently received "Master Army Aviator Wings," a distinction few men can claim.

In order to wear the wings of Master Aviator, McGlothlin needed 3,000 flying hours, a Special Instrument Certificate, and 15 years on flight status. He said, "The hours were easy (he has 5,000, but the 15 years was an awful long time.)"

McGlothlin, who claims Uler, W.V. as his home, began his aviation career in February of 1957. He has held jobs dealing with all aspects of Army Aviation. He is currently assigned to the Standardization Section of the Aviation Command and is the Chief of Instrument Training. He is dual rated and a Standardization Instructor Pilot for both rotary and fixed wing aircraft. In this capacity he flies with the instructor pilots to insure that they are performing their duties satisfactorily.

McGlothlin is married, has three children and 24 years of military service.

The second project was with the Naval Ordnance Laboratory at Ft. Lauderdale, Fla. One CH-47 and four crewmembers, Capt. Darrell Spicer, CWO Harry Davis, Sp6 Harry Frasier and Sp6 Wayne Kelsheimer, were selected to participate in the testing of a Free Fall Mine Vehicle. The test vehicles were suspended beneath the helicopter and the floating mines were then dropped from them.

All members were praised for their professionalism and enthusiasm. Frasier received individual recognition for his recommendation of an alternate method of suspending the test vehicle beneath the CH-47. His method was far superior to the one previously being used.

TSB Safety Program

The School Brigade, (TSB) Safety Program has been in big gear with continuing efforts to impress drivers with the importance of their seat belts and safe driving.

Despite signs, flyers, and safety briefings, the most effective method of getting drivers to practice safe driving habits is to offer a reward.

Post museum gets exhibit

On June 18, 1778, Sir Henry Clinton began to move his 13,000 British troops from Philadelphia toward New York, intending to initiate a more vigorous campaign against the Americans. Washington's army followed by a more northern road, seeking a chance to give battle under favorable circumstances. General Maxwell's brigade of Jersey militia was sent as an advance element to make contact with and harass the British column. The Jersey Continentals made contact with the British flank elements commanded by Cornwallis in the Freehold and Monmouth areas. At this time a series of skirmishes ensued.

No, this is not a history lesson for the troops, it is a prologue to the action seen in a new diorama which was presented to the Infantry Museum recently by 2nd Lt. David B. Lotts, Support Co., 1st Bn., 114th Infantry, New Jersey National Guard. Lotts presented the diorama in the name of all the officers of that unit.

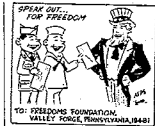

The diorama itself depicts the spirit of one of the encounters between the British and American forces. The English have just started to camp for their noon meal. The men have set their muskets aside and are relaxing when a unit of the Third New Jersey Regiment strikes. This exhibit catches the first moments of the skirmish.

The exhibit was hand made by Lotts at a cost less than $300. This cost is only that of materials used, not the long hours (over 150) or the labor needed to perfect the impeccable miniature.

Lotts is not new to buildings there, he has completed eight or nine of them since he was in high school. He noted that the biggest problem he en-ture for a "similarity" illness," Lt. Col. Pia reported. "However, the medicine usually ends up lying around until the patient forgets that illness it was for or until it has deteriorated so much that it will not be effective. In fact, it may have become dangerous."

The Medical and Pharmacy Staff of Martin Army Hospital offers the following advice for poison-proofing the home:
 — Always read the label and take medicine only in the amounts stated.
 — Always store internal medicines separately from those for external application.

— Give prescription medication only to the patient for whom it was prescribed.
 — Check medicine cabinets regularly, discarding medicines no longer used. Flush unused drugs down the drain and rinse the container before discarding.
 — Turn lights on when taking or giving medicines. Too many containers feel the same in the dark.
 — Never leave medicine on furniture or counters; always return it to a safe storage place after use.

Don't bring contraband back from overseas

WASHINGTON — It seems that somewhere in every organization there's a small group of people who don't get the word on the latest happenings, no matter how you put the word out.

It's the same in the Armed Forces. Uncle Sam has been saying: "Don't bring contraband back to the States with you, because if you do, you'll get caught." And, men and women working for Uncle Sam overseas and in the States have been doing just that — catching GIs who try to smuggle in drugs, drug-related items, and other contraband.

The word seems to have filtered down to the troops in Vietnam and Thailand. Records show that the number of "hits" racked up by postal and U.S. customs inspectors on mail from that area has gone down drastically in the last few months. That's good news, since a lot of coming back from that area of the world doesn't want to spend any extra hours in a customs office statewide trying to explain away that "one little roach holder or water pipe I wanted as a souvenir."

$35,000 raised by Hope

A crowd of about 1,500 persons jammed into Municipal Auditorium in Columbus, Ga., for a Bob Hope benefit performance to raise funds for a National Infantry Museum and the Eisenhower Medical Research Fund.

First estimates were that the benefit grossed approximately $35,000.

Hope was performing on behalf of a campaign headed by Winthrop Rockefeller, former governor of Arkansas, and J. W. Woodruff Jr., aimed at building a $5 million museum at Fort Benning as a memorial to American Infantrymen.

Fund campaign officials said the fund campaign is slightly behind schedule but that ground breaking ceremonies for the new structure are planned July 4 at Fort Benning.

Among those attending the Bob Hope performance were four former Infantrymen from Chicago who flew to Columbus to help further the drive and to present two items to the collection of Infantry memorabilia collected already.

An original drawing of one of Bill Mauldin's famous World War II cartoons, and the prototype model of a World War II walkie talkie radio were given Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbot, Fort Benning commander, by the group.

The four were Brig. Gen. (ret.) John C. Brogan, Col. (ret.) Robert G. Brugh Jr., both corporation drive chairman; Col. (ret.) Mel Klaffter, individual drive chairman for Chicago, and Capt. (ret.) Thomas A. Lewis, general chairman of the Chicago area drive for the museum.

Comedian Bob Hope is welcomed by Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbot, post commander, upon his arrival at Lawson Army Airfield, Fort Benning. Mr. Hope was here to perform at the Columbus Municipal Auditorium in conjunction with United States Army Infantry Museum fund drive. The proceeds from his appearance will go to both the Infantry Museum fund and the Eisenhower Medical Center fund. (Photo by Phillip Read)

Jewish Passover starts March 29

The Jewish Festival of Passover will be observed from sundown March 29 to sundown April 6, at the Jewish Center at Fort Benning.

Evening services will be held at the Jewish Center, Bldg. 2622, at 8 p.m. on March 29 and 30, and at 8 p.m. March 31, April 4 and 5. Morning Services will be held at 9:30 a.m. on March 30 and 31, and April 1, 3 and 5.

As home hospitality is an integral part of the Passover Holiday, the Jewish Welfare Board will provide home hospitality in Columbus and Atlanta for servicemen from Fort Benning.

Commanders are authorized to excuse from duty military personnel who desire to attend these services. Leaves or passes may be granted to Jewish personnel for the purpose of attending Passover Services.

For further information, contact the Jewish Chaplain's Office, at 545-7843.

TO: Soldiers and Families of Fort Benning

1. The President has designated the week beginning 26 March as "National Week of Concern for Prisoners of War and Those Missing in Action." We at Fort Benning should be particularly anxious to participate in this outward display of concern for these brave American fighting men and their families.
2. The stated purpose of the National Week is to demonstrate support and concern for the people of the United States and to forcefully protest the inhuman treatment our MIA/POWs are receiving at the hands of the North Vietnamese, in violation of the Geneva Convention.
3. From Georgia alone there are 44 POW/MIA members. Nationwide, some 1600 Americans are somewhere in North Vietnam. We owe those people and their families our support and prayers.
4. I strongly urge our military families and the civilian workforce at Fort Benning to participate fully in local activities to observe this occasion, beginning with chapel services on 26 March for the National Day of Prayer.

Infantry School celebrates 54th anniversary March 31

March 31 will be a holiday for a majority of the Infantry School's faculty, staff, and personnel in honor of the 54th anniversary of The Infantry School at Fort Benning.

Classes will be suspended, except for the Infantry Officer Basic Course, Airborne School, and Florida Ranger Camp.

April 1, 1907 is the actual date of the founding of The Infantry School's predecessor, the School of Musketry, at the Presidio of Monterey, California. This marks the Infantry School 65 years old, but it has actually been located at Fort Benning since 1918.

From 1907 to 1912 the original School of Musketry remained at Monterey, moving to Ft. Sill, Okla., in 1917. The next year, 1918, Camp Benning, became the home of what was then called the Infantry School of Arms.

In 1922 Camp Benning became Fort Benning, and with its new title came the status of permanent post. During the post-World War I years, expansion continued.

 ned in spite of the fact that "the United States had long been suspicious of a large standing defense establishment," according to an official pamphlet published by the Infantry Center in 1968, and was even more so after World War I, the war to end all wars," was over.

The three castrates and the old home of the Infantry School, then Building 35, were built between 1925 and 1936. With the American entry into World War II, the Infantry Officer Candidate Course Program was begun in 1941 to train Infantry leaders.

When the Korean War broke out, the Infantry School saw new growth with the addition of the Ranger Department in 1953 for intensified field training of both officers and enlisted men.

Cutbacks in strength and Infantry School personnel followed the end of the Korean conflict, at least until Vietnam. Then the OCS and other programs were stepped up as the Infantry School once more fulfilled its wartime mission of preparing Infantrymen for battle.

In 1964 the Infantry School moved to its present location in Infantry Hall.

BY DOUG WIENER

It is nighttime and dark, very dark. Two men stand side by side, waiting for instructions. Neither man can see clearly for more than three feet. Yet they are about to begin a test, comparing different types of load-carrying equipment and will be observed almost as if it were daylight. How can two men, virtually blinded themselves in the darkness of night be seen by others carrying out such a test?

The answer lies just meters away where several men, watching a T.V. monitor see everything perfectly. This is all made possible because of a highly technical and scientific sounding device called a low level silicon diode videocon tube. This device, attached to a low level light T.V. camera, produces a high quality picture which essentially turns night into day for those behind the camera.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

by Bill King

On this side of the Atlantic, a prune is a dried plum — but in France the same word means a fresh plum. Freeze any bacon you can't use up in a week. If merely refrigerated, it may lose its delicate flavor and take on a sooty taste.

Just before baking brown 'n serve rolls for Sunday breakfast, slit them and fill with a mixture of brown sugar, chopped nuts and grated orange peel.

Pot-Saver: if you plan to reheat the roast later in the oven, wrap leftover potatoes and vegetables in foil packets so they can be reheated the same way.

American cookery was born in the New England colonies, where it wasn't unusual to see a woman carrying a cookbook under one arm and a Bible under the other.

Presidential proclamation

Safe return hoped for POW-MIA's

"1,683 American servicemen and some 50 U.S. civilians are now either missing in action or being held captive by North Vietnam and its allies. At the end of this month, the first men to be taken prisoner will begin their ninth year in captivity. This is the longest interval ever endured by American fighting men; it is also one of the most brutal.

The POW-MIA story of this long and difficult war is a tragic one:

The enemy continues adamant in his refusal even to identify all the Americans being held. He continues to flout the Geneva Protocol of War Convention which establishes minimum humane standards for treatment of prisoners — a treaty to which North Vietnam is a signatory, just as are South Vietnam and the United States and 108 other nations. He continues to block impartial inspection of the prison camps. He continues to deny restriction for seriously sick and wounded prisoners. He continues to ignore the prisoners' right to regular correspondence with their families.

And so these families suffer in agonies hardly less than their men suffer in the flesh. They live in a nightmare of unending anguish and gnawing concern. Many cannot even know whether their loved ones are still alive; those who do know this much must live with their additional knowledge of the cruel conditions in which the prisoners exist.

Each new chapter in this outrage has stiffened the American people's determination to see justice done. We have stood and will continue to stand united as a nation in our concern and compassion for the prisoners and missing men. We mean to see this matter through. The concern for the prisoners' plight, moreover, has spread to the people of goodwill around the world — and we may be confident that their humanitarian efforts, though so far rebuffed as callously as our own, will still continue as steadfastly as our own.

The United States has spared no effort — by diplomacy, by negotiation, by every other means — to secure fair treatment of our captive sons and brothers and to obtain their ultimate freedom.

As we set aside a special week of national concern for this continuing tragedy, and a special day of prayer for its resolution, we do so with a determination to persist in this effort — for principle, for peace, for the sake of these brave men and their parents and brothers and sisters and wives and the children some have never seen.

Now, therefore, I, Richard Nixon, President of the United States of America, as requested by the Congress in Senate Joint Resolution 183, do hereby designate the period of March 26 through April 1, 1972, as National Week of Concern for Prisoners of War-Missing in Action, and Sunday, March 26, 1972, as a National Day of Prayer for the lives and safety of these men.

I call upon all the people of the United States to observe this week with such appropriate ceremonies and activities as will stir and sustain widespread concern for the missing men and prisoners, nourish the patient courage of their loved ones, and — above all — hasten the day of their safe return to home and freedom.

In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand this tenth day of March, in the year of our Lord nineteen hundred seventy-two, and of the independence of the United States of America the one hundred ninety-sixth. Richard Nixon."

Laird proclaims Week of Concern

"President Nixon has proclaimed the period March 26 through April 1, 1972, as a national week of concern for American prisoners of war and missing in action, and Sunday, March 26, 1972, as a national day of prayer.

The Presidential proclamation accompanied the signing of a joint House-Senate resolution passed by the Congress of the United States. During this national week of concern, thousands of U.S. military personnel throughout the world will participate in commemorative activities and pay special tribute to the continuing sacrifices of our captured and missing men and women. At the Pentagon, the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, Admiral Thomas H. Moorer and I will participate in a special ceremony on Wednesday, March 29, together with representatives from the Army, Navy, Air Force and Marine Corps. In these actions, we join with President Nixon, our Commander-in-Chief, the Congress, and the Ameri-

POW-MIA week schedules National Day of Prayer

President Nixon, as authorized by Congress, has set aside the week of March 26 through April 1 as the National Week of Concern for Prisoners of War, Missing in Action.

FRIDAY, March 31—All post churches will hold a National Day of Prayer for these 1,680 men.

Mrs. E. J. Murdock, coordinator for the local Citizens Assistance Program for POW-MIA Families, has announced post activities planned for the week.

SUNDAY, March 26—National Day of Prayer for the POW-MIA. All citizens are asked to pray for these men. Post churches will reserve a pew to call attention to their absence.

MONDAY, March 27—All citizens, schools, businesses are asked to fly the American flag to honor the POW-MIA.

TUESDAY, March 28—All citizens are requested to burn their car headlights during the day and their porch lights at night. This will call attention to the darkness the POW-MIA lives in.

WEDNESDAY, March 29—All local radio stations have been requested to dedicate one of their entire shows to the POW-MIA.

THURSDAY, March 30—Details and bumper stickers will be passed out at the Officers Club, the Country Club, Main Post Cafeteria, and the NCO Support Club from 1100 to 1330.

FRIDAY, March 31—All citizens are requested to write at least one letter expressing concern for the POW-MIA. These letters can be addressed to: any U.S. Senator or Congressman, Washington, D.C. President Don Duc Thang, Office of the President Hanoi, North Vietnam President Nguyen Hu Tho, President of the National Liberation Front Hanoi, North Vietnam The Honorable Andre Gromyko, Minister of Foreign Affairs Moscow, USSR

In addition to these special activities, there will be several on going events. POW bracelets and Easter cards with a POW message are now being sold in the Officers Hall lobby during the noon hour by Capt. Michael Montier, in 24th Co. TSB by Capt. Jay Albrit, and at Mrs. Murdock's home at 600 First Division Road, main post. Decals and bumper stickers will be available at Main Post Theater No. 1 each evening during POW Week.

The post billboards normally used for safety messages will carry POW-MIA messages during the week.

In setting aside this week of National Concern, President Nixon saluted the POWs and their families. The President remembered that this month will begin the ninth year of captivity for some of these men. He blamed the North Vietnamese for not allowing inspection of the prison camps, for not repatriating the seriously sick and wounded, and for not allowing prisoners to correspond regularly with their families.

Nixon promised the continuing determination of the American people to secure fair treatment for these men and their eventual return home.

Easter provides seasonal search

While soldiers still combat an elusive enemy in Vietnam, at home the pressures, to a degree, have subsided. At least the majority of newspapers are no longer belaboring their disgust at a "senseless" war.

It's difficult to watch the rebirth of flowers, the fresh greenery appearing on thousands of a sure's plants — then think of bloodshed, of race discrimination, of unequal educational opportunities, and of pollutants ruining the air.

As "Peter Cottontail comes hopping down Benning's buxny trail," there emerges a theological thirst, a quickening of the sense to find the omnipotent force that guides man's behavior. Whatever one's belief or conception of destiny, Easter provides a search that is only apparent, for some, during this time of the year.

The death of a man dedicated to peace is still relevant today. His teachings are of "Brotherhood, of Love, of Hope and of Faith." These qualities are still virtues today, still sought by the majority of the world's occupants.

It is particularly appropriate that President Nixon proclaimed the period March 26 to April 1, 1972, as National Week of Concern for Prisoners of War-Missing in Action.

"I call upon all the people of the United States to observe this week with such appropriate ceremonies and activities as will stir and sustain widespread concern for the missing men and prisoners, nourish the patient courage of their loved ones, and — above all — hasten the day of their safe return to home and freedom," President Nixon said.

This should be the essence of our energy for Easter 1972. Whether it be a prayer or in deed, our resources should be channeled to assist these men who are certainly in a position less fortunate than our own.

As a minimum, Fort Benning personnel should attend the Honor Ceremony for POW-MIA scheduled next Wednesday on York Field at 3 p.m. A 30 gun salute will precede a reading of President Nixon's formal proclamation.

Easter pets make summer pest

Every year just a week or so before Easter some stores begin to feature the sale of colored baby chickens, ducks and rabbits as Easter gifts for small children. Each year thousands of parents buy these "cute pets" for their children and each year the poor pet suffers the same fate.

They are smothered, squeezed, choked and generally manhandled with well meaning small fry until they finally die. Some do live and after the novelty has worn off for the children the parents are stuck with the care of the "pets." They dirty all over the place and are soon banished to the outdoors where more die from exposure to a bad situation which should never have existed.

Some are hardy creatures and live despite all manner of manhandling and exposure. Parents who purchased these hardy types are the ones in for the most trouble. They are stuck with some unresponsive, untrainable and bothersome "pets" that haunt them long after everyone else has forgotten Easter and started planning a summer vacation. The Easter pets pose an additional problem here too. Who wants to take care of a chicken, rabbit or duck for a couple of weeks while the owner is enjoying a vacation?

Chickens, ducks and rabbits are very low on the intelligence scale for birds and animals. As a matter of fact they have pretty bad reputations. Most groups have heard expressions such as "dumb bunny," "Dumb duck" and when used as slang, the word "chicken" is anything but complimentary. These terms were originated by farm people who knew their animals. Chickens, ducks and rabbits are not demonstrative. They won't show affection like a dog or cat. They aren't good at learning tricks and they can't be taught to talk. At best they might be trained to come to someone who is going to feed them.

Nevertheless they can feel pain, are uncomfortable under adverse conditions and deserve a better fate than that of being a temporary Easter pet.

There should be laws against selling these birds and animals. Parents should think twice and then think again before buying them. The kids enjoy them for a very short time, the bird or bunny doesn't enjoy the situation at all. The only ones who really get anything out of the whole thing are the parents and all they get is trouble. (BK.)

Someone is trying to kill our . . . NATIONAL SYMBOL

WASHINGTON (APPS)

— The killing of 48 eagles in Wyoming recently has alarmed naturalists fighting to save them from extinction in North America.

About 20 bald and golden eagles were killed by poison bait, and another 28 were electrocuted when they landed on power lines. And although they are protected by federal law, at least three golden eagles were shot by hunters.

The great birds that once were seen over most of the United States are found today chiefly in Wyoming, Montana, Idaho and California, the National Geographic Society says. Some spend winters in Texas and New Mexico.

CONTINUE TO DWINDLE

About 800 pairs of nesting eagles remain in the United States, the Assistant Secretary of the Interior Nathaniel Reed reports, and their future is uncertain.

In 1967 researchers found only 18 pairs of golden eagles in a 1,500-square-mile area of Montana, or one pair for every 70 square miles. Poisons and hunting continue to take their toll, and conservationists had hoped Wyoming's remote canyon might provide a refuge.

At least 20,000 golden eagles were shot by hunters using light planes in the 20

EYESIGHT LEGENDARY

By the time an eagle is four weeks old its sight is eight times sharper than a man's. Its remarkable eyes can focus far telescopic almost to microscopic vision, and a mature golden eagle can detect a rabbit fully half a mile away.

The eagles suffer unfairly for their reputation as hunters. Ranchers blame them for allegedly preying on sheep. But studies indicate the birds live mainly on rabbits, squirrels, snakes, and smaller birds and rarely on sheep.

A survey in Scotland showed that in a region producing some 4,000 sheep in five years, only seven became meals for eagles. There may have been lambs that died at birth, for eagles will feed on carrion.

Naturalist John Craighead reported in the September 1967 issue of National Geographic that observations of the remains of 800 animals found in 38 series in Montana disclosed only two lambs, and these may have been dead before the eagles flew off with them.

The golden eagle's chance of making a comeback remains slim. The birds mature at five years and may live more than 40. But a pair produces less than two eggs in ten years, and not all of these hatch.

Some eaglets die in falls from cliff tops. Other eaglets die because they are slight on power poles, cross the wires by flapping their six-foot wings, and electrocute themselves.

Bob Hope entertains 500 ladies at OWC function

More than 500 women nibbled finger sandwiches and sipped champagne and greeted as they waited to meet Bob Hope at the Main Officers Club March 16. Among the ladies were Mrs. Orwin C. Talbot, wife of the post commander and OWC honorary president; Mrs. Richard Stoltz, OWC president; and Mrs. Bill May, publicity chairman. Mrs. Talbot, in a red, white and blue ensemble, was halting Mrs. Stoltz, who was wearing a navy straw hat, while Mrs. May was in beige linen with a horsehair braid that trimmed with pink flowers.

Hope accepts gift from Mrs. Stoltz.

Up on arriving, Hope, who was accompanied by Gen. Talbot and James W. Woodruff Jr., president of the National Infantry Museum Association, good-naturedly signed autographs for the crowd that had gathered around the club entrance. There was a wave of applause as Hope entered the main hall room of the club, and he was escorted to a front table where the OWC board members were seated. Gen. Talbot and Woodruff followed, increasing the number of males present, except for the Officers Club staff, to three. Mrs. Stoltz thanked Hope for his years of dedicated service. "You see a few hundred women here, but if you look closely you'll see the wives of the millions of soldiers you've entertained for so many years," she said. She then proposed a toast to Hope, and 500 glasses went up. Hope seemed surprised and touched, but muttered "Don't throw 'em."

Along the fem line

BY CAROL MAY

The March 18 tea honoring Bob Hope itself was a triumph for the Fort Benning OWC. What was equally impressive to this writer was the manner in which Mrs. Richard Stoltz, club president, and her board members reorganized the event when it was learned that Hope would not be able to reach Fort Benning until late Thursday afternoon. The board members decided to hold a high tea, then telephone the 500 ladies scheduled to attend the event. With an amazingly low percentage of cancellations — mostly due to baby sitting problems — the wives at Fort Benning responded with "May I help call?" or "What can I do?" Not one woman answered with less but encouraging words for her caller. The enthusiasm and support for the change on such short notice spurred OWC members even more into making "Bob Hope any" a success. Never has the saying "the Army wife always come through when the chips are down" been better exhibited than this. Congratulations to all women who made the job easier.

An interesting note for the ecology-minded woman: Recycling at Fort Benning in February saved 67,000 acres of trees.

Interest in a tour of homes and gardens? Like antiques? Have a sports-minded husband? These are just a sample of the delights in store for you today through Sunday in Columbus' annual Spring Festival 10 days in Salisbury Park, the median of Broadway between 4th and 9th Streets.

Daytime tours to homes and gardens in the locale of the city's historic district are scheduled Saturday and Sunday from 10 a.m. - 5 p.m. Buses depart from Municipal Auditorium and this is included in the $4 tour cost. The evening tour is from 7:30 to 10 p.m. Saturday. This is a one night only event, with buses leaving Golden Park. It costs $3. The combined tour fee is $5.

The Salisbury Fair hours Saturday are from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. and from 1 to 5 p.m. Sunday. Featured will be a flea market, arts and crafts displays, a puppet show and art show especially for the young and a magic program for all ages.

The Antique Show and Sale Saturday from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. and Sunday from 1 to 6 p.m. will be in the Fine Arts Bldg. behind Municipal Auditorium. Browners are welcome, there will be a $1 entrance cost. A large selection of antiques, ranging from china to furniture, will be offered.

For all ages, the second annual Bass Fishing Rodeo on Lake Oliver Marina in North Columbus, will be Saturday from 7 a.m. to 5 p.m. Entry fee is $5. Also of interest to men is the Columbus-Bibb Invitational basketball game in Comer Auditorium in Bibb City with teams from Atlanta, Montgomery and a dozen other cities participating. Admission is free for adults and 50¢ for children.

Mrs. Justin Zack, welfare chairman for the OWC, has presided over events from activities at Martin Army Hospital to the scholastic achievement awards. The OWC is a working organization and nowhere is this better shown than in the welfare committee. Proceeds from the annual Christmas Bazaar and other OWC activities support the welfare fund. Benefiting from the committee efforts: Martin Army Hospital — coffee call, ward parties, lectures, pediatric ward, child guidance clinic, and nursery; at Christmas, money to the Teen Club for a tree and two families sponsored by the OWC through ACS; the Georgia Rehabilitation Center of Warm Springs, Ga.; the scholastic achievement awards; ACS; the Listening Eye School; the Soldiers, Sailors, Marines and Airman's Club; and flowers for the POW-MIA services at the post chapel. The details of these activities will be published at the end of this year.

The spring Atlanta trip will be April 25. Buses will leave the Officers' Club at 8 a.m. and will return that evening. The $4.50 tickets will include a fashion show and box lunch at a department store and an afternoon tea. For more details, call Mrs. Russell C. Miller at 545-4738 or Mrs. Jack Cummings at 545-2485.

The OWC Choral group needs you. No auditions necessary — just a love of singing. The group meets Fridays in the Main Post Chapel Annex. Call Mrs. Billie Burke at 545-1497.

Outstanding student achievement awards for military dependents are being offered by the OWC, with an April 15 application deadline. Mothers must have been OWC members by Jan. 31. Further information may be obtained from local high school guidance counselors. Six $500 awards and six U.S. Savings Bonds for alternates — are to be presented.

"The Talent Tree" is open Monday for consignments from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. The public is invited to shop and buy on Tuesday and Thursdays and the first and third Saturdays of each month at the same times. Dial 545-ARTS for more information.

A country store theme has been chosen for the renovation of the Thrift Shop. And every Saturday morning at 11, one will find a busy group of men and women painting and beautifying the shop.

The interior of the annex has been painted and renamed "The Bargain Barn." Look for "The Corn Crib" while you're there too.

Hours: Every Tuesday and Thursday, 10 a.m.-9 p.m.; the first Saturday of each month, 9:30 a.m.-12:30 p.m.;

the first Tuesday night of each month, 7-9 p.m. Truck pick-up every Monday morning on post for large items. All civilians welcome to shop and buy. Information: 545-4996. February's profits were $300.28.

A Newcomers' Welcome Coffee is scheduled April 20 at 9:30 a.m. in the OWC Lounge. These have proven successful get-togethers for officers' wives arriving at Fort Benning. This coffee is especially for ladies who arrived since January. Watch for more details in Fem-Line.

Mrs. Norman Batten announced that the OWC membership total, up to March 1, is 1,839.

Any young lady from 17-25 years of age who is interested in attending the West Point Hop at Fort Benning June 9, contact Capt. Gary Dolan in the Protocol Office, Bldg. 4, telephone 545-4664.

DPCA The wives of the Directorate of Personnel and Community Activities met at the Country Club for their monthly coffee. Mrs. Eugene Murdoch and Mrs. Donald Rodriguez were the hostesses. The decorations followed a St. Patrick's Day theme. The centerpiece was arranged with green carnations and the individual tables were adorned with shamrocks and leprechauns. Newcomers were Mrs. Thomas Fraker, Mrs. Duane Anders, Mrs. Donald Gilbert and Mrs. Larry A. Freedland.

The wives of IOAC 2-72 attended a brunch Feb. 22 at the Supper Club followed by a fashion show from a local store. Each table was covered with a red tablecloth and the centerpiece was formed from a tee-shirt. Mod banners in red, white and blue hung from the lights.

Alan Astin, a store employee, described each outfit modeled. The wives were surprised to see three brave husbands — Capt. Mickey McChisley, Capt. Bill Rader and Capt. Larry McAfee — parade down the runway as models. Special guests were Mrs. David W. Kummer and Mrs. Richard W. Wade. Four belts, eight tee-shirts and a gift certificate from the store were presented by Astin.

GOLD STAR WIVES A coffee for the Chattahoochee Valley Chapter of the Gold Star Wives of America Inc. was held Wednesday at the home of Barbara Hostikka. The officers for the chapter, who were elected or re-elected last month, will take their positions in May. They are: president, Nan Nave; vice-president, Barbara; recording secretary, Becky Gell; corresponding secretary, Claudette Jefferson; treasurer, Pat Stephens; chaplain, Rosemary Jackson.

The Southeast Regional Conference of Gold Star Wives will be in Orlando, Fla., April 22-23. Reservations must be received by April 1.

LEADERSHIP DEPT. Easter come early for the ladies of the Conditioning, Combatives and Drill Committee at a coffee in the home of Mrs. Bill May March 9. The gold-clothed table was centered with a cherry blossom branch from which Easter egg candies hung. Pastries were served with coffee and coffee.

Special guests were Mrs. William Steele, wife of the department director, and Mrs. Edward Fira, wife of the executive officer. Mrs. May led a discussion of events for the rest of the month and April. A hall and farewell was planned for 1st Lt. and Mrs. Timothy Love tomorrow and a joint meeting of the NCO and officers' wives of the committee in April was discussed. Contributions were sought for the ACS food locker and volunteers signed for the Thrift Shop. The projected OWC events for the rest of the year were reviewed.

Good-byes were said to Mrs. Love, who will be leaving the department this month.

CATHOLIC WOMEN OF THE CHAPEL The April meeting of the CWOC will be a completely new experience at Fort Benning, and all women in the parish are invited to attend. The usual first Friday activities will be replaced by an Agape—Feast of Love.

The Agape is related to the Eucharistic Banquet representing the union of Christians in Christ's love. This event will be celebrated by a meal, suitable prayers and the mass—all of which will take place around a banquet table. The celebration will be conducted at Main Post Chapel Annex at 10 a.m., April 7.

Reservations must be made by noon April 3 by calling 545-1947 or 545-3397.

Free nursery service at Tat Tot Nursery will be available to those wishing to participate in this celebration.

BEOD Pots of gold on the tables and advice on how to make your family feel like a million dollars were the theme of the BEOD luncheon.

IOAC ladies take spin on 'Carousel' at luncheon

"Carousel" was the theme as the ladies of Infantry Officers Advanced Course 1-72 turned out en masse for a luncheon on March 14 at the supper club.

It was the IOAC wives' fifth function of the year. Invitations were shaped in the form of an old-fashioned carousel with a pumped air of 1920's elegant prancing pony. Elephants sketches were on the programs and a variety of carousel animals adorned the place cards of special guests. Miniature carousels at each seat contained favors.

The room decorations coordinated the theme of the luncheon. The main attraction was a carousel, which was supported by a semi-circle of poles on the edge of the stage. A high stepping horse colored with pastel shades was affixed to each pole. Two topiary trees adorned the entrance to the Supper Club and two more were at the sherry tables. White trellises, covered with large and colorful flowers and leaves completed the garden effect. Centering the center of each round table was a small pastel carousel with a variety of animals.

After a luncheon of beef roulade in white sauce, special guests Professor Rufus Whidden and Dr. Andrew Gallos of the Columbia Symphony performed several musical selections, including excerpts from the musical comedy, "Carousel."

Other special guests were Mrs. Orvin C. Talbot, Mrs. Paul F. Gordon, Mrs. A. G. Norris, Mrs. Richard S. Fye, Mrs.

Louis Boettcher, Mrs. Ralph Livingston, Mrs. Jules Trepagnier and Mrs. Richard Stoltz. Also attending from the orchestra were Mrs. Maurice W. Stein and conductor Harry Kruger.

It's curtains for them

Mrs. Robert Vangh (L) and Mrs. John McCalla hang curtains in the "newborn" nursery at Martin Army Hospital as part of project by the ladies of Infantry Officers Advanced Course 7-1, 3rd platoon. The 30 women who worked on the nine-month project not only did the sewing but also raised money to buy the materials by selling note and recipe cards.

AF ladies face LGA

The Ladies Golf Association will meet the Maxwell Air Force Base lady golfers in the Home and Home Tournament April 4 at the Fort Benning Country Club.

The $6 entry fee will cover cart rental, luncheon and prizes.

The shotgun tee-off will be at 10 a.m. Benning ladies are asked to be on the course by 9 a.m. Winners will receive the Home and Home trophy. Full handicap will be used.

Those who played at Maxwell in November will have priority to play with the Maxwell ladies here. Others will compete against the whole field.

focal points of the BBOD Spring luncheon March 9 at the Supper Club. This luncheon was sponsored by Mrs. Richard S. Frye and the ladies of Combat Support Group. After lunch, Mrs. Lawrence L. Mowery, introduced special guests, Mrs. Orwin Talbott and Mrs. Paul Gorman, to the group, along with Miss Lee Parker, representative from the Overseas Service Corp. Miss Parker spoke on the "Creative Wives" and introduced helpful hints for meals and entertaining through the use of slides. All the wives went home with bags full of goodies donated by Miss Parker.

Prior to the demonstration, Mrs. Mowery said good-bye to Mrs. Paul J. Raisig, and the group chiefs' wives introduced ladies whose husbands were new to BBOD. Mrs. Russell Miller discussed the many activities coming up during the Columbus Festival Days. The next BBOD luncheon is in May.

There was a hint of spring at the Artillery Committee wives' coffee March 9. A bouquet of purple mums, white daisies and baby's breath centered on the serving table.

The coffee was held at the home of Mrs. Mirt Lunsford on Dial Street. Highlight of the evening was the welcoming of Mrs. James Badger and Mrs. Curtis Lamm.

It was announced that Mrs. Robert Kimbrough won a special prize at the BBOD luncheon March 9 for her suggestion to bake a meatloaf in a Bundt pan. In serving the inverted loaf on a platter, stuff the center with celery and carrot sticks and green pepper strips. Other ideas for the center are mashed potatoes or other cooked vegetables.

HQ CMD

The Officers' Wives' Club of Hq. Cmd. held their monthly meeting and coffee at the home of Mrs. Dean Schult.

After a short social hour, Mrs. Bruce Fraser directed the business meeting. The ladies were reminded of Craft Night to be held in Mrs. Michael Biddle's home. Invitations to join the Command's bridge group were extended. Mrs. Dean Schult was congratulated on winning the Georgia State Duplicate Bridge Tournament, as was Mrs. John Ball for the recent publication of her book.

Mrs. Fraser presented farewell gifts to Mrs. Floyd Likens, Capt. (Mrs.) Susan Snyder, Mrs. James Root and Mrs. David Wilson.

St. Patrick celebrated

Officers and senior civilians of 3RD ROTC Affairs Dept. and their ladies celebrated St. Patrick's Day March 17 with a buffet dinner in the Fountain Room of the Main Officers Club.

Leaving the department were Capt. and Mrs. Ted Jagosz, Capt. and Mrs. Milton Snow. Welcomed was Mrs. H. C. Ferguson of Bedford, Ohio, who is visiting her son-in-law and daughter, Lt. Col. and Mrs. John A. Seddon.

In a surprise feature of the evening, the committee presented humorous birthday greetings to Col. William R. Galbreth, department director, whose birthday fell on St. Patrick's Day.

Partygoers then went to the Supper Club where they danced to music by "The Life Cycle."

Red Cross basic class to be held

A basic training class for Red Cross volunteers will be held here April 11 from 7 to 10 p.m.

Military dependents at least 18 years old are eligible to attend. To register for the class, call Fort Benning's American Red Cross Office at 545-2122, 2123 or 689-8289.

Assignments, available to volunteers in civilian positions at Martin Army Hospital, the outpatient annex, the dental clinics and the veterinary clinic.

OC wives talk ecology

The OCS Wives Club of 51st Co. discussed environmental control at an organizational meeting Feb. 15.

The company's tactical officers were the ladies' guests. After the meeting the wives took a guided tour of the barracks.

At the last meeting the following officers of the newly organized club were elected: chairman, Shirley Ellis; co-chairman, Betty Chapman; treasurer, Elaine Patrick; publicity chairman, Betty Schimml; hospitality chairman, Nancy Wallace.

Consolidated arms room saves 931st Engr. money

BY RAY BASSETT
In the face of current cutbacks in military spending and personnel strength the Army has increased its efficiency in order to maintain its commitments.

One example of these money saving efforts is the 931st Engr. Co's Consolidated Arms Room. It is located in the Harmony Church area near the 43rd Engr. Bn.

The major factor in deciding the location of the arms room, according to Maj. Jack D. Yates is the 331st S2 officer, was the strict security procedures in the area of the 43rd. The Harmony Church area is protected by road barricades with armed guards and a roving patrol, both provided by the 43rd.

The arms room building itself is surrounded by a chain link fence topped off with barbed wire. The windows are covered with steel grates which are bolted through the concrete block wall with the ends of the bolts brazed over so that the bolts can not be removed. The existing doors were reinforced and covered with metal sheeting.

The internal security is handled by a team of permanent guards. They are on duty 24 hours and off duty 48 hours and work in three man shifts. During their tour of duty the guards are required to make an hourly telephone communication check to the Officer of the Day. There is also a radio used for back-up communication.

There are six units of the 931st which are presently using the facility. They include HHC 331st Engr. Gp., 568th Engr. Co. (FB), 608th Ord. Co., Co A and Co. C of the 33rd Engr. Bn. and HHC 67th Maint. Bn. The arms room now accommodates over 1000 M-16 weapons and is in the process of expanding to eventually contain almost twice that number.

One remarkable fact about the conversion of the existing building into the arms room is that the work was done mostly by non engineer MOC personnel.

197th travels to Carabelle, Fla., for domestic action

Members of the Support Battalion, 37th Infantry Brigade filled and leveled land in connection with a newly erected community school in Carabelle, Fla.

The area will include a playground and a football field to be used by the students of the school and the citizens of Carabelle as well. "Without the Army's help," said the city's Mayor, Mr. Wilburn Messer, "we would have been unable to complete the project on our own before school opens this fall."

Work done by the Spt. Bn. was completed by the 72nd Engineer Company under the direction of 1st Lt. Charles Smith.

The lieutenant and seven engineers from the 72nd employed the use of a bulldozer, a front end loader and two dump trucks from the unit's motor pool. To augment their work, Franklin County, in which Carabelle is located, provided two more dump trucks in order that the earth scooped by the loader could be moved more rapidly to fill the lowland areas.

Future plans for the site include a botanical garden, baseball diamond and a quarter-mile track for field events.

Upon arriving in Carabelle the soldiers received a warm welcome and were greeted by "southern hospiality" by the citizens. "My community and I are very grateful to the Army for sending the men and equipment to this small town," said Mayor Messer. "We really appreciate it."

Ice house not so cool anymore

BY CARL KING

"This ole house is a gittin weary. This ole house is a getting old. This ole house lets in the rain. This ole house lets in the cold."

Such is the case for the old Fort Benning Ice House. Constructed in 1921, the building used to be the Post Ice Plant. Now, the building (numbered 232) on Upton Avenue between Gillespie and Delta Streets is being demolished. Almost a legend since it was constructed before the Post was designated Fort Benning, the old Ice Plant must now make way for progress.

Wallace Storey, chief, building and structures branch, said that in addition to once supplying ice blocks to all the Post mess halls, the Ice House was used as a meat and vegetable storage facility. "Back in the 30s, the Post Commissary was right next to it," Storey commented.

According to Joe Radecki, chief of real property, directorate of facilities engineering, Post mess halls use to store the ice supplied to them by the Ice Plant in large water boxes. They chipped the ice as they needed it.

"As time went on, Building No. 100 was constructed (1941) to accommodate the requirement for more storage room," Radecki said. "Then, in 1966, another extension to Building No. 100 was constructed." With the approval of this extension, the old Ice Plant, Building, No. 232, was destined to be demolished.

Today, modern mess facilities have their own ice-making capabilities. At the old Ice Plant, the roof has deteriorated beyond economic repair. The old core-type insulation is loosening from the walls and the coil pipes, through which ammonia was pumped, are rusting creating a possible safety hazard.

Shakespeare once said, "All the world's a stage and all the men and women merely players. They have their exits and their entrances, and one man, in his time, plays many parts."

The old Ice Plant played an integral part at Fort Benning, . . . now it must be destroyed.

Scout unit visits post

The 197th Infantry Brigade will host ninety-one Explorers of the Allegheny Trails (Pennsylvania) council, Boy Scouts of America for their 1972 Explorer Air Encampment.

The annual encampment will be held from April 2 thru 8 at Harmony Church.

The Explorers and their five leaders will be housed and trained by the 197th Central Training Command. This training will include Airborne, Ranger, Leadership, Escape and Evasion, Adventure Training, and Orienteering.

Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Tabolt, Post Commander, will welcome the explorers to Fort Benning at Lawson Army Airfield upon the arrival.

Passport applications accepted

The Fort Benning Branch Post Office, Main Post, are accepting Regular (or Tourist)-type passport applications. This does not apply to service passports for personnel on official orders.

Applicants for regular passports may get the application form in person or by calling 545-5177. The completed form with supporting documents must be returned personally by the applicant. A wife or husband to be included must appear with the passport bearer and sign the application.

Supporting documents include acceptable evidence of citizenship (US birth certificate, previous passport, naturalization certificate), identification (driver's license, military ID), two identical photographs (commercial type 2 1/4" by 2 1/4" or 3" by 3"), and the required fees ($12 check or money order).

Voting in Georgia

Eligible military personnel may register and vote in Georgia under two different programs.

Mr. Ben Collins of the Columbus-Muscogee Voter Registration Office urges military personnel to consider the transitional nature of their assignments before establishing voting eligibility outside their home state. In Georgia, a registered voter is automatically subject to Georgia's income and ad valorem tax laws.

The first program is the regular voter registration drive. To be eligible a voter must have resided in Georgia for one year and in the county for six months. Bar racks addresses are not acceptable as permanent addresses.

The other program is for 30-day transfers. Individuals who transferred 30 days before the national election may request their voting privilege be transferred to Georgia. Such people may vote only in the national elections. Anyone using this option is also subject to Georgia tax laws because registration is considered a statement of intent for permanent residency.

The Muscogee-Chattahoochee county line crosses Fort Benning. People in Muscogee County should register at the Board of Registrars, 200 Second Avenue, Columbus. This includes Custer Terrace, Sand Hill, and Battle Park. The office is open 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays.

Residents of Main Post, Kelley Hill, Martin Army Hospital, and Harmony Church areas are living in Chattahoochee County. For these people, registration is held in the Chattahoochee County Courthouse in Cusseta. Hours are Monday through Friday, 9:00 to 5:00, and Saturday, 9:00 to 12:00.

The state primary is August 8th. Registration for this must be done before June 16. For the general election, September 18 is the last day to register.

From Alaska? Want to Vote? See your unit voting officer.

Live in Kelley Hill? Want to vote? See your unit voting officer.

Each major command has a unit voting officer responsible for distributing information about the upcoming elections. The voting officer has information about each state's registration and voting requirements, dates of state primaries, and the Federal Post Card Application to be used in requesting absentee registration and ballot.

Area veterans could lose GI education benefits

Many area veterans could lose part or all of their GI educational benefits if they don't act promptly, the Veterans Administration warned today.

Those whose benefits are in danger were discharged between Jan. 31, 1955, and June 1, 1966. For these veterans, eligibility for VA educational assistance payments for GI Bill schooling expires on May 31, 1974, whether they are enrolled at that time or not.

The expiration date is fixed by a 1966 law which, for the first time, extended eligibility for education benefits to Post Korean veterans with service after Jan. 31, 1955. Each veteran has eight years in which to use his benefits. Normally, the eight years are computed from the date of his release from military service. But because the benefits were not available until June 1, 1966, when the law became effective, the eight years start from the date the benefits became available to those discharged before that date.

Certain types of training, authorized for the first time on August 31, 1967, are not affected by the 1974 expiration date. Included are flight training, apprentice and on-the-job training, and farm cooperative training. These forms of training are available under the eight year policy until August 31, 1975, or eight years after discharge, whichever is later.

VA records show that when the 1966 law became effective June 1, it made over four million veterans eligible for benefits and of this number, about 3,000,000 have not used their benefits or have used only part of them.

About 300,000 of this group are in training at the present time. Total enrollment under the GI Bill in January of this year was over one million bringing to three million the number of beneficiaries who have received training under the current GI Bill.

Veterans earn one and one-half months of educational benefits for each month of military service, up to a maximum of 36 months. Those who served 18 months or more are entitled to the full 36 months.

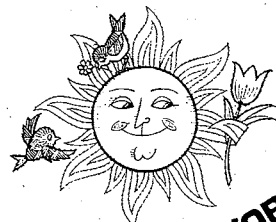

VA currently pays veterans with no dependents, attending school full-time, $175 a month. Those with one dependent receive $205; with two dependents, $230; and those with more than two dependents, $13 for each dependent over two.

To qualify for educational assistance, Post Korean veterans and servicemen currently on active duty must have served at least 31 days, any part of it after Jan. 31, 1955.

Veterans separated for service-connected disabilities also are eligible for payments, regardless of length of service.

VA urged veterans interested in educational benefits — especially those whose benefits expire in

USAIB

SFC Nathaniel S. Webber, of the Infantry Board, has been awarded the Bronze Star Medal. Webber received the citation while serving as a member of the 36th USAIB Individual Training Battalion from Jan. to July 1971. He was assigned to the training committee as a combat subjects instructor.

The Certificate of Achievement has been awarded to Sgt. Philip L. Carlson by Lt. Col. Donald W. Albert of General Equipment Test Activity, Ft. Lee, Va. Carlson was cited for serving as supply sergeant, Combat Effectiveness Test Facility, Camp Pickett, Va. during the period of April 15, 1970 to Dec. 30, 1971. Carlson is presently performing duties as supply sergeant for Headquarters and Headquarters Co. of the USAIB.

Sgt. Claude N. Pereira has received the Certificate of Achievement for serving as Console Operator, Combat Effectiveness Test Facility, Camp Pickett, Va. Pereira, presently serving with the Infantry Board, was cited for his ability to process data, write programs, and apply his overall knowledge of console operation.

Soldier of the Month

A recent graduate of the 1978 Spt. Bn., 191th Inf. Bde., Advanced Individual Training (AIT) program under the Unit of Choice enlistment option, was given the Soldier of the Month award for the month of March at battalion and brigade level.
PFC DONALD R. GOLDSMITH, H. Co. 69th Armor, won the Battalion award by defeating three other soldiers in competition for the title and the right to enter the brigade competition.
For Goldsmith's efforts he was awarded a three day pass, $25.00 Savings Bond and two tickets to the Bob Hope show.

In the brigade competition Goldsmith came out on top against four other soldiers, winning another $25.00 savings bond and having his name eliminated from the duty roster for a 30 day period.
The young private is from Pellon, S.C., where he was active in sports earning letters in baseball and basketball from Pellon High School.
Soldiers who enter the soldier of the month competition undergo intensive review and evaluation on their knowledge of military bearing and current events.

1-58th recreation program incorporates game variety

Soldiers in A company, 1st Battalion, 58th Infantry, 197th Infantry Brigade who formerly shunned the unit's planned recreational activities have recently become enthusiastic over a revamped recreation program which includes a variety of sports and games.
SFC Fred A. Van Peski, company 1st Sgt., initiated the new program when he realized that the majority of soldiers in his company were either avoiding recreation or participating unwillingly.

"Most of the soldiers disliked the usual volleyball, football and softball program as being boring," said Van Peski.
"They were looking for activities with more variety and which they had not tried before," he added.

So Van Peski, a licensed deep-sea diver and sports enthusiast, decided to develop a sports program which would serve the soldiers' interests and recreation requirements.
He began by instructing the men in the fundamentals of chess during off-duty time in the unit dormitory. A few weeks later he had to conduct tournaments to meet the demand for playing the game by interested soldiers.

Van Peski also organized hunting and fishing groups as part of the initial development. His plan called for each activity group to be led by an expert in the activity being pursued. These experts, also members of the company, serve as guides and advisors to the novices.

The program's objective, according to Van Peski, "is to have the men try to have one or more to the point of proficiency."

The program has been aided by the Army's special services. Van Peski has obtained fishing boats and shotguns through special services. He has also used the USAIB recreation facility at Destin, Fla. to instruct some of the men in deep-sea diving and marine biology.

Since its inception, the program has become so sophisticated that it has been incorporated in the 1-58th's monthly social calendar.
Van Peski attributes the program's success to "the total involvement of all the soldiers committed to the recreation program."
According to this aquatic recreation enthusiast, "Everyone has his bag. I'm just trying to help him find it."

Principal to evaluate two schools

The principal of Fort Benning's Richard G. Wilson School has been asked to serve on a committee to evaluate two elementary schools on Robins Air Force Base outside Atlanta for initial accreditation in the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools.

Mary H. Sherriek is the second member of the administrative staff of Fort Benning schools to be named to the committee. Pearl M. Bratonecke, the principal of Edward A. White School, joined at an earlier date.
The evaluations will be made April 17-19.

Scouts plan clean up

The Fort Benning District of the Boy Scouts Troops will be involved in cleaning up the Custer Terrace area as a part of the Boy Scout's Project SOAR (Save Our American Resources).

The Scouts, expected to number close to three hundred, will meet in the valley behind Wilbur

School at 9 a.m. tomorrow to begin the clean up campaign.
This special project is in addition to the areas assigned to each Boy Scout Troop as a part of SOAR, an ecology movement in which the Boy Scouts try to set the example for the grownups.

Anyone who is interested in ecology and would like to help the Boy Scouts clean up the environment is invited to join them tomorrow morning.

The Scouts will be supported by personnel from the 197th Inf. Bde. and by vehicles supplied by the Transportation Motor Pool, which are supplying trucks to haul away refuse gathered by the workers.

Since you have to shave every day, you may as well get a comfortable one.

Shaving isn't fun. But it doesn't have to be unpleasant either. A lot depends on the tools you use. Like shaving cream. You need a shaving cream that's moist. Because it's moisture that makes your whiskers soft and easy to cut. Rise has enough moisture to do just that. Slowly it seeps moisture into your beard and holds it there for as long as it takes you to shave. Rise. It can't make shaving fun. But it can make it comfortable.

McQueen reviews

Best place for gangland satire is bottom of the river

THE GANG THAT COULDN'T SHOOT STRAIGHT starring Al Pacino, John Cazale, John Cazale and Lee Van Fleet.

The film attempts a satirical view of 20th Century Mafia leadership, but Al Pacino probably could have written a funnier script in his more mundane moments. At best, this flick is a poorly slapped-together farce, one which even the Three Stooges could not be proud. It was a rebash of every trite joke ever made about gangland.

And although the story takes place today, the gang chats in the lingo of the 1920's and 30's down to the "hey, boy, hey."

The whole thing had an air of the ridiculous. At any time the viewer expects the Keystone Kops to appear throwing custard pie. If they had, they probably would have stolen the show. Because of human character measured up to the performance of the picture's best actor — a fully-manned lion, who was used to extract protection payments from unwilling businessmen and to give heart attacks to rival gang leaders.

Certainly the King of the Beasts did a better job than Orbach, who played Kid Sally Polombo, a lieutenant in the Brooklyn organization, who after being relegated to the humiliating job of chauffeur by Big Tony decides to unseat the old man — in a bloody manner, naturally. The trouble with Orbach is that he attempts to be cute and comes off as well as an amateurish ham who feels the best way to please an audience is to act silly.

Orbach, far from the brains and push behind the coup d'etat try, takes his cue from his Momma, played by Lee Van Fleet. Despite her sexuality, Mama cooks well, makes sure Orbach's hands are clean and gets reluctant accounts to co-operate simply by kicking her sharp-edged kitchen knife. Van Fleet is the best of the lot and even attracts a few chuckles, which are sorely needed.

Italian-Americans, who want to shed the Italy-Mafia stereotype, won't be happy with this one. There's pizza-eating, thick Southern European accents and a statue of St. Anthony, complete with psychedelic lights, at which Big Tony prays for the demise of his enemies.

The show also includes an Agnew-esque job at the press, which glorifies the Gang War and even holds up a police raid because one TV channel hadn't showed up.

In a capsule, this movie is best typified by its title; it's way off mark. If only Hollywood had produced one gang film too many, this ought to do it.

Columbus tours set for this weekend

A tour of homes and gardens — sponsored by the Columbus Council of Garden Clubs and the Historic Columbus Foundation — will be among Columbus' Spring Festival activities Saturday and Sunday.

Daytime tours Saturday will be from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. and Sunday from p.m. to 6 p.m. Columbus' Historic District will be a feature of the daytime downtown tours. The Pemberton House, the 1885-1890 home of Dr. John S. Pemberton, will be open during the festivities. A kitchen apothecary shop is a feature of this house.

The Walker-Peters-Langston House, an 1828 house-museum; No. 13 Seventh Street, an 1836 Town-house renovation open to the public for the first time; and the Springer Opera House, an example of 19th Century theater architecture in the South will highlight the downtown tour. The outlying daytime tour takes visitors to the Green Island Hills section where contemporary homes are situated on rolling wooded sites. Five homes will be opened for the occasion.

The Salisbury Ftr. located in the Historic District, will have events for the entire family, including a flea market and crafts show, children's art and carnival entertainment. Exhibits from Westville, Hamilton on the Square, Six Flags over Georgia, and the Columbus Museum of Arts and Crafts will be on display. Musical entertainment will be provided by local school bands and choral groups.

The Saturday evening tour will be from 7:30 to 10 p.m. This tour will visit the interiors and formal

Military reduction for overseas flight

Is your husband going overseas? Now, you may be able to join him without going broke.

Auto tags

These airlines - Trans World, Pan American, and Northwest-Orient have announced reductions in overseas fares for military dependents. This reduction applies only to dependents whose sponsor is stationed overseas or who has orders sending him overseas. To purchase a ticket, the dependent must present a copy of the sponsor's orders and a DD Form 1580. Because savings are more than 40 per cent, the airlines require the ticket to be purchased at the time the reservation is made. Taylor Owen, manager of the Airlines Ticket Office, suggests that anyone planning to travel under this program come to the Ticket Office well in advance to get complete information on fares, visas, and flight schedules.

Top marksmen gather for 3rd Army tourney

Top rifle and pistol marksmen of the Third Army area will gather on York Field, Fort Benning at 9 a.m. Sunday to participate in opening ceremonies for the 1972 Third U.S. Army Rifle and Pistol Championships.

Upon completion of a welcome address by Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbot, Banning commander and rifle instructions concerning the championships, pistol shooters will begin firing at Phillips Pistol Range and rifle shooters at McAdams Rifle Range.

During the following six days more than 219 rifle and 174 pistol shooters representing Active Army, National Guard and Army Reserve units and installations throughout the Third Army area will compete for individual and team honors. The tournament will terminate with an awards ceremony on York Field at 3 p.m. April 1. Gen. Albert O. Connor, commanding general, Third U.S. Army, will be guest speaker and present the awards.

Pistol shooters will compete with the .22 caliber pistol, center fire pistols and .45 caliber service pistol. Rifle shooters will fire the M14 and M16 service rifles. This will be the first year the Army tournament has included competition with the M16.

Shooters competing for individual awards will be divided into novice and open classes. Shooters who have previously competed in this type match will be assigned to the open class. Shooters who are firing in this type tournament for the first time will shoot in the novice class.

The Infantry Center has entered 26 shooters in the tournament. SFC Haygood Tatum, coach of the pistol team will have 11 shooters and SFC Donald Tabor, coach of the rifle team, will have 15 shooters.

Capt. Ted Bowling, SSGT. David Anderson, Sp5 Nolie Ulmer, SFC Arpad Tamas and SSGT. Larry Crow will fire the pistol in the novice class. SSGT. Edward McMillan, Sp5 Jack Myers, SFC Billy Bowers and SSGT. Jack McChukin will compete in the open pistol competition.

Sgt. Ronald Nixon, Sp4 Duane Popejoy, SSGT. Jimmy Belcher, Franklin Burt and SSGT. Okey Green will compete as novice rifle shooters. SSGT. Castilian Maldonado, SSGT. William Duncan, SSGT. Dadie Price, SSGT. Paul Abbott, SSGT. James Smith and SFC Harold Fuller will fire in the open class.

Top shooters in the Army Championships will receive additional training in preparation for the All-Army Championships to be held in May. Specially selected shooters in the All-Army competition will have a chance to compete in the National Championships to be held at Camp Perry, Ohio in July and could advance to the Council International du Sports Militaire Championships and the Olympic Championships to be held next autumn.

Marksmanship units warm-up for tourney

The Fort Benning rifle and pistol tournament will be fired today and tomorrow. The March tournament match features a warm-up match for the Third U.S. Army Rifle and Pistol Championships which begin Sunday.

According to Thomas Kirkman of the Rifle and Pistol Club most of the rifle and pistol shooters in the past tournament are scheduled to shoot in the Third Army Tournament. More than 100 rifle and pistol shooters from Active Army, National Guard and Army Reserve units and installations throughout the Third Army area will compete for trophies and match points awarded at the completion of the two day event.

Fort Bragg, Lee, Rucker and Stewart of the Tennessee and North Carolina National Guard have entered rifle and pistol teams. Eglin Air Force has entered a pistol team. There will be two rifle and pistol teams representing Fort Benning. The United States Army Marksmanship Unit and the Infantry Center Marksmanship Unit will each field teams. Entries in the two day match include many shooters with national reputations. Entries in the rifle matches include James McQueen, U.S. Army Marksmanship Training Unit, James Cunningham, a Civil Service Worker at Fort Benning, James Fletcher a member of the North Carolina National Guard and Daniel Karmann, Ft. Bragg, Indianapolis. Well known pistol entries include Hershel Anderson, Emil Heugater and Robert Whiteacre of the U.S. Army Marksmanship Training Unit, Archie Theasent of Ft. Lee and Elmer Meyer of Ft. Bragg, 1971 Third Army individual pistol champion. Meyer will also defend his title in the Third Army Tournament next weekend.

Doughboys hand Campbell 2 defeats

The Fort Benning Doughboy team handball squad won two games from the Ft. Campbell Eagles in the first home games of the season played at Doughboy Stadium last weekend.

Banning took the first game played on Friday evening by the score of 13 to 11. The Doughboys scored 13 points to 5 points for the Campbell team in the second game played Saturday morning.

The two wins give the Doughboys a record of 4 wins against no losses and first place in the Western Division of the Third Army Team Handball League.

Benny McPherson is in second place with a 3 win 1 loss record. Campbell is in third place with 3 wins and 3 losses. Ft. McClellan has 2 wins and 2 losses and Ft. Rucker is in last place with no wins against 6 losses.

ROD AND GUN CLUB

Notes

BY BILL KLOEB

The second annual Lake Oliver Bass Fishing Tackle will open at 7 a.m. tomorrow morning. This one day tournament is open to just about anyone who has a valid Georgia Fishing License and provides proper area to fishermen who register the largest largemouth, redefy, spotted and smallmouth bass prior to the close of the contest at 5 p.m.

The entry fee is $5. Several prizes will be awarded for each type of fish. Entry blanks may be obtained at the Rod and Gun Club and sporting goods stores and bait shops in town.

Spring Turkey Seasons

The Georgia Spring Turkey season opens tomorrow morning at sunup. Alabama hunters have been after the coveted game since last Monday. The Georgia season will close April 22 and the Alabama season on April 30.

Each hunter will be allowed to take one gobble from the reservation. Appropriate hunting licenses are required. Anyone hunting on the Georgia portion of the reservation must possess a Georgia Big Game Stamp. Georgia sportsmen hunting after March 31 will be required to have 1972-1973 Georgia State licenses.

All hunters are cautioned to check a range map to make sure the area they intend to hunt is open for hunting. These maps are located at the Rod and Gun Club, First Division Road, Harmony Church Area, The Post Range Office, Building 2621, Main Post and the Provost Marshal Office, Building 215, Main Post. Usual areas are off-limits because of conditions that make them unsafe for hunters. Don't hunt in a dangerous area.

All personnel going into the woods should make sure someone knows the area they intend to use but turkey hunters like to do more and it becomes even more important that someone knows which part of the post they intend to hunt. Putting out this information could save the hunters life in the event he has an accident while hunting.

Preliminary reports indicate that there are not too many turkeys on the reservation. The last few seasons have been very disappointing and there are no indications that this season will be any different. Bad seasons have dulled the enthusiasm of a lot of hunters but each year there is some difficulty never prepared blinds. Should this happen again this year we hope those involved will be reasonable about the problem and solve it in a gentlemanly manner.

March Fishing Contest

The standings in the Rod and Gun Club March Fishing Contest bear out that fishing is getting better. The leading entries are the largest the club has had in quite a few months.

SFC (ret.) Robert J. Pinkley, 4337 Roman Drive registered the largest bass. His catch came from Harps Pond and weighed in at 7 pounds 15 ounces. Pinkley was using a black plastic worm at the time he hooked into this one.

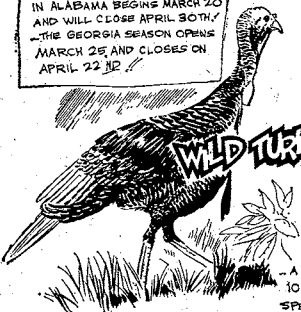

Bream fisherman will have to get resourceful if they intend to get any of the bream prize money in the future. SSGT James L. Stevenson has returned to the post and is assigned to the Third Ranger Company. Before he left for an overseas tour Stevenson was always in the running for the bream prize and won it several times. His entry for this month is a 12-ounce catch from Hedley Pond but if he runs to form he'll probably have a larger one before the month is finished.

SFC (ret.) James Marbury, 2504 Lumpkin Court leads the catfish contest with a 15-pound 3-ounce monster he took from Victory Pond. This is the second largest catfish ever registered in the Rod and Gun Catfish contest. The largest, an 18-pounder, was caught at Victory by SFC Edward Pile during the summer of 1970. There are some catfish in Victory larger than either of these fish. Several years ago the Post Fish and Game people put about 30 flathead catfish weighing more than 20-pounds into Victory Pond. It was estimated that the largest fish would weigh well over 20-pounds at that time. There have been reports that fishermen have hooked into fish that broke up equipment but to date there have been no reports that any of these fish were caught. It can be assumed that they are still in the pond but its going to take some oversized equipment to get them out.

Weapons experts review improvement of M-16

Some of the nation's foremost weapons and ammunition experts attended a three-day conference at Fort Benning last week to consolidate studies for the development of the M-16 Service Rifle into a National Match Rifle. Hosted by the U.S. Army Marksmanship Training Unit (USAMTU), the conference which represented the four sister military service weapons testing and proving commands, exchanged information on work accomplished and development of the weapon.

Lt. Col. C. E. West, USAMTU ordnance and shop officer, was chairman of the 14 man conference and led the discussion on the weapon improvement.

The experts poured over disassembled weapons in the USAMTU shops March 15 to point out short comings in the original weapon as a match rifle and describe improvements which have been advanced or developed to overcome these deficiencies. "The conferees, which included top marksmen, gunsmiths, and weapons technicians of the military services and industry today, are laying the groundwork toward an improved version of the veteran combat rifle into match potential", West reported.

Examples of the disassembled hardware were scrutinized by the professionals in shops as they sought to come up with a "throughout" weapon for national match use. The problems reviewed ad-

BY JOHN DAVIS

When the Florida State basketball team was introduced to the nation on television Saturday afternoon, many viewers doubtless thought their sets were on the blink. Fearing before the eyes of the nation—in living color nonetheless—was the Florida State quintet—black, living color. There was not a white face to be seen among the starting five.

Granted there are many predominantly white schools across the land which start all blacks, but there are few in the same category as FSU. It must be remembered that the Seminoles are based in the North Florida city of Tallahassee, which is within easy cross burning distance of rural South Georgia. It must also be remembered that Tallahassee, hardly a bastion of liberalism, is the capital city of the state which gave George Wallace a sweeping victory in its recent presidential primary.

Thus, it hardly seems likely that the Seminoles should be an all-black aggregation. And that's the problem—neither do many of the alumni. Disgruntled grads have taken offense to the Seminoles cage program, and the main target has been coach Hugh Durham. A native Kentuckian, the fiery mentor has been under vicious attack from critics of his recruiting program. Durham retorts by pointing to his outstanding worksheet, noting that he has placed FSU on the basketball map. Durham contends that as long as you win, the customers should be satisfied.

In spite of his winning record, however, the volatile coach has not been ultra successful in selling his product. He has been accused of employing mercenaries—of stripping FSU of its identity. He is also under fire for his "unbecoming" actions both on and off the court. Two years ago Florida State was placed on probation because of irregular recruiting practices and the finger was pointed directly at Durham. Consequently, the NCAA ruled that Durham could not be personally involved in recruiting for an indefinite period.

Earlier this year, the Seminoles dropped a forfeit contest to Hawaii because Durham refused to leave the court after a verbal battle with a referee. At least one major club has indicated it will not schedule FSU again because of the Seminoles rowdy and unruly antics. Another coach expressed dissatisfaction at Durham for "running up the score." But Durham factions in the sunshine state claim the coach's unorthodox methods are embarrassing to the school.

Doubtless, some of the criticism being hurled at Durham is racial in nature. However, much is not. One FSU supporter said he didn't mind if the Seminoles were black, green, red or orange. His only quibble was that Durham went out of state to sign his players. Usually, only one of the starting five hails from the state of Florida, and the fan base hates because the state produces outstanding black cagers. For instance Howard Porter, who starred at Philadelphia's Villanova University for three years is a sunshine state native. So is Sam McCall.

McCall's is a touchy subject around Tallahassee. He led his high school team to the state championship two years running and averaged better than 30 points a contest while doing it. The Pensacola prepster was heralded as a "Black Peter Maravich," and was sought by almost every major college in the country. The letter header signed a letter of intent with the Seminoles but something happened. FSU coaches and fans were ecstatic over the prospect of McCall's coming to their school when he suddenly announced he was going to Oral Roberts University, an up and coming basketball power located in Tulsa, Okla. Thus, another bad mark for Durham.

But even with all the criticism and fire Durham has faced recently, he has remained loyal to his position. Only three other coaches in the nation have accomplished. He has steered his team to the finals of the NCAA tournament and at the time of this writing, stands—mathematically at least—as good a chance as anyone bringing home the championship.

Even if the Seminoles happen to upset North Carolina and (more than likely) UCLA to win the NCAA title it is doubtful Durham will be accepted with open arms. He is either ahead of the times with his program, or unfortunately for him, simply ahead of the wrong place in his "Black Experiment." The time is drawing near for Durham to discover if the end does indeed justify the means.

Ft. Jackson sweeps 3rd Army basketball

FT. MCCLELLAN, Ala. — The men's and women's teams from Ft. Jackson, S.C., swept the Third Army Basketball Tournament played here Feb. 28 through Mar. 3, as the two teams went undefeated on their way to the crowns.

The men, led by former Harlem Globetrotter Tommy Long, had victories over Ft. Campbell, Ky., 77-62, Ft. Bragg, N.C., 116-92, and in the final game of the tournament, Ft. Bragg again, 118-107. Long proved his ability as a showman basketball player as he scored 33.51 and 42 points for an outstanding 42-point average for the tournament.

Understandably, he was selected as the tournament player for the tournament, and was also outstanding player of the Eastern Division, Third Army Traveling League.

Outstanding player in the league's Western Division was Larry Campbell, Ft. McClellan. Campbell's team was routed early in the tournament, drawing defeats by Ft. Bragg, 122-88 and Ft. Campbell in a 89-88 overtime tilt.

The women from Ft. Jackson ended the tourney with a 6-0 record, chalked up wins from Ft. Gordon, 88-54, Bragg, 88-21; Benning, 26-12; Rucker, 25-23; McPherson, 25-17 and McClellan, 25-16.

All-stars in the Women's Division were Linda Cotton of Ft. Gordon, Louise Fife, Ft. Jackson, Charlie Kinman of Ft. Rucker and Velma DeGeronimo of Ft. McClellan.

Infantry Board tests new loadcarrying equipment

BY DOUG WINNER
Lightening the load of the combat infantryman has been close to the heart of the Infantry Team at Fort Benning over the past few years.

Since the initial publication of the requirements document for a system Lightweight Individual Combat Clothing and Equipment (LINCLOC QMR), the Infantry Board has tested a number of items developed under the LINCLOC CONCEPT.

For the past two months, the Infantry Board has been testing a new system of lightweight loadcarrying equipment proposed to replace the current M56 equipment and the standard lightweight and tropical rucksacks. The basic fighting load components of the new system do not differ significantly from those of the standard equipment. The major innovation is that the system provides each individual with a series of three combat packs (large, medium, and small) plus a lightweight aluminum pack frame which can accommodate any of the three packs, or be used for carrying bulky items such as five-gallon fuel and water cans, ammunition, and rations.

The idea behind the 3-pack concept is to give the individual soldier and his commander the capability of tailoring combat loads as may be required by the terrain, weather, or mission.

Troop support for the test has come from the 1st Bn., 58th Inf. (Mech.) and two cycles of Ranger students. The troops seem to favor the test equipment by a good margin thus far. They like the lighter weight, and the release feature built into the test packs.

1st Lt. E. Steinfant, test officer for this project, states that troop preference, and his comments and observations are very important. "It's the individual test soldier," he states, "that provides the raw data necessary to evaluate the human engineering aspect of a piece of equipment."

And how important is human engineering? Steinfant thinks it very important. "When you consider a piece of equipment that goes on man's body, and may have to stay there for a long time, human engineering becomes critical."

American Finance may be able to put more money in your pocket every payday!

Loans up to $2,500 on your terms!

Beginning next payday, you may be able to keep more of the money you earn. There could be more cash in your wallet... and you wouldn't feel that "end of the week" squeeze. You could have extra money for the things you want and need... and you could pay for them with cash, out of your own pocket or purse.

Now, you may be able to pay off your bills with a Loan from American... and pay it back with just one payment a month. In many cases, that payment can be a lot less than you are paying now. Following is a typical list of bills, together with the monthly payments on each one. You can see what they add up to.

Alongside, put down your own bills for the same things. With each bill, put down your monthly payment. Note that we've left room for additional bills and payments. Next, add up your bills and your payments. You'll see why you have so little of your paycheck left to use as you like.

And when you check the Repayment Chart we've also included, you'll see that a Loan from American for $1,071.09 would pay all the bills listed... and that it could be paid back at just $65.00 a month for 20 months. That's a lot less than the present payments of $180.85 add up to, as you can see.

Item	Monthly Payment	Typical Total Due	Your Monthly Payment	Your Total Due
Appliance	$ 16.50	$ 132.00	$	$
Clothing	8.30	91.30
Credit Card Charges	38.00	256.00
Furniture	54.27	162.81
Insurance	11.53	138.36
Present Loan	40.00	240.00
Medical/Dental	12.25	96.75
Totals	$180.85	$1,067.22	$	$

You can use the Repayment Chart to figure how much money you want to borrow to pay off your bills. (Choose the number of payments you want to make and see what your monthly payment will be). Select the plan that will be easiest for you.

As you will note, you could probably be paying out less money each month than you're paying on your bills right now... which means you'd have more money left in your pocket or purse every payday. Which is good.

How do you ask for a Loan from American? Easy. Just fill out the short Money Memo, sign and mail it... today. We've listed the American offices in your area. Send your completed Money Memo to the one that's best for you. We'll do the rest.

YAC needs players for team handball

The Post Youth Activities Council (YAC) is looking for boys 13 to 17 years of age to form a team handball team to represent Fort Benning in the Third U.S. Army Youth Team Handball Tournament to be held this summer.

Boys who are interested are asked to meet at the Youth Activities Gym at 6 p.m., Tuesday, February 28 and also invited to the meeting.

This will be the second youth team handball tournament held by the Third Army. The tournament held here last year included teams from Active Army, Army Reserve and National Guard units and installations throughout the Third Army Area. The site for the 1972 tournament is now known at this time but will probably be at Ft. Gordon or at Benning again sometime in June.

Team handball is comparatively new to the United States and to the Army sports program. It originated in Scandinavia early in the century and spread rapidly throughout Europe. In 1931 it was accepted as a team

Moeller leads MTU in assault on AF

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. — SFC Edmund O. Moeller Jr., Flatonia, Tex., and the U. S. Army Marksmanship Training Unit, Fort Benning, Ga., vaulted into the lead during the final day of the Air Force Invitational Running Bear match here to win the Grand Aggregate Championship. He posted a two-day aggregate of 1,118, nine points ahead of his nearest competitor, SFC Charles D. Davis, a competition shooter, who was leading all competitors through the first day.

In taking the championship Moeller also took the second day aggregate and in doing, established a new National record with his 520 BBU score (International Shooting Union). Moeller started slow Thursday and was edged by Davis in the opener, a Slow Run match, when Davis fired a 285 in his 285. From there on, he got in the groove.

In the Fast Run, Moeller began to get his range and he came through with a 274. Behind Moeller for the two day meet, Davis posted a total of 1,106 for the runner up while Yeager compiled 1,065 for third.

With this victory, Moeller ranked up his second championship this season. He won an earlier match in January over a field of Marine, Air Force and civilian opponents.

In addition to the grand prize, Moeller also won the two day Fast Run aggregate with his 518. Davis took home the honors in the Slow Run aggregate with a 574.

The Army and Air Force Running Bear shooters, some of the best of the nation's moving target marksmen, will be strong contenders for the two vacancies on the U. S. Olympic team to go to Munich in August.

Post to get new shopping center near hospital

A new post community shopping center is to be built at Fort Benning. Estimated cost of the facility will be between $5,000,000 and $10,000,000.

The Savannah District Army Engineers have scheduled a bid opening at their headquarters in Savannah, Ga., on April 6 at 3 p.m.

The job calls for constructing an integrated multi-type building which will contain a commissary, post exchange, bank, bookstore, and nursery in addition to a central mall with exterior covered walks and smaller facilities separately sited. Total square footage of the buildings is approximately 260,000 square feet.

The facility will be of masonry and steel frame construction. Other work will include plumbing, electrical, and central heating and air conditioning, along with all necessary site development, paving, grading, and exterior utilities.

THE ENGINEERS ALSO ANNOUNCED THE SALE OF SEVEN BUILDINGS, LOCATED ON THE FORT BENNING MILITARY IN-

STALLATION. They will be sold to the highest bidder "as is" and "where is." All removal and restoration work must be completed within 90 days after notice to proceed is given.

The property offered for sale and removal includes a small arms repair shop with corrugated walls, 25'4" by 54'2", for a total floor area of 1,372 square feet; a wood frame battalion headquarters building, 28'4" by 63'2"; a general storehouse, 46 feet by 120 feet; also of wood frame construction; and a smaller storehouse, 25'4" by 32'2".

Other buildings include a flight control tower of wood frame construction, 15' by 15', for a total of 225 square feet; and enlisted men's barracks, wood frame with a floor area of 4,720 square feet, 29'6" by 90 feet; and an enlisted personnel mess building of wood frame, 72'9" by 23'0", totaling 1,837 square feet.

Prospective purchasers may inspect the property by contacting the facilities post engineer.

Bids will be opened in the Engineers' headquarters at Savannah, Ga., on April 5 at 2 p.m.

Booze and drugs

Rap sessions on drugs and alcohol are held in the Main Post Service Club every Wednesday at 1:15 p.m.

The Fort Benning Chapter of Alcoholics Anonymous meets every Monday at 7:30 p.m. in Bldg. 2254, Airborne Area.

clean-up project at Dowdell Knob adjacent to the Roosevelt State Park area with the help of 2nd Lt. David Loucks, a 51st Co. TAC Officer, who has noticed the need for a through clean-up of some of the park's most scenic areas. Literally truckloads of refuse were collected and properly disposed of by the 51st Co.

Nearly 50 volunteer candidates mustered up their "spit shine" skills and combed the park roadides for tin cans, bottles, and other assorted items of trash that were discarded by tourists and sightseers.

Our economy champion.

The Datsun 1200 Sedan is our lowest-priced car. And it's a champion in its own way, too. It's one of the most economical automobiles you can own: around 30 miles per gallon. The 1200 has lots of other things going for it, too. Safety front disc brakes. Full-vinyl interior with bucket seats. Four-speed fully-synchronized stick shift. (3-speed automatic transmission optional.) Whitewalls. Steel unibody construction. And lots more, all included at no extra cost. If you're going to buy an economy car, buy our economy champion. Easter Sunrise service planned

Easter Sunrise Service at Fort Benning will be held at Gowdy Field, April 2, at 6:30 a.m. Chaplain (Col.) William V. Goldie of the Office of the Chief of Chaplains in Washington, D. C. will be the guest speaker for the ecumenical service. Chaplain Goldie is scheduled to speak on the subject of Easter and Christ's triumph over death. His sermon is entitled "Christ Rose."

The service will start promptly at 6:30 a.m. with a procession onto the field. Included in this procession will be the seven chaplains participating in the service, Col. Leon Livingston, who will read the epistle, and color guards bearing the colors of the United States, the Infantry Center, the Christian flag and colors of individual units.

The ceremony will include various selections played by the 283rd Army Band and a variety of religious songs sung by the Infantry Chorus and the Infantry Center Chapel Choir.

After Col. Livingston's reading of the epistle and prior to Chaplain Goldie's sermon, Chaplain Dolan will read the gospel.

Preceding the benediction of the service, the Infantry Chorus and the Infantry Center Chapel Choir will unite in singing the "Hallelujah Chorus."

The choir will be in place at 6:15 a.m. and services will start with the church call at 6:28. The field will open at 5:30 a.m. for the convenience of those who wish to attend. In case of inclement weather, the service will be held in Marshall Auditorium, Infantry Hall.

Post honors POWs-MIAs

Approximately 300 persons attended a special ceremony held Wednesday on York Field to honor American prisoners of War (POWs) and those missing in action (MIAs) in Vietnam.

The ceremony was held in conjunction with a national Week of Concern for Prisoners of War and Missing in Action proclaimed by President Nixon for March 28-April 1.

The ceremony began with the reading of President Nixon's proclamation by Col. Malcolm E. Baer, post adjutant general. Following the reading, Chaplain (Col.) Albert P. Ledebuhr gave a special prayer in which he asked that spiritual, physical and moral strength be given to the more than 1,600 men who are either listed as POWs or MIAs in Vietnam. He also asked that patience be granted to their families who "sit and wait and wonder."

Col. Willard Latham, chief of staff, spoke on behalf of Maj. Gen. Orvin C. Talbot, Fort Benning commander, who was off post on official duty.

Col. Latham called the POWs and missing men "modern examples of the heroic dedication and sacrifice that have made this nation great." He called upon citizens to "express our support and our grave concern by taking the time to write to the leaders of Hanoi or the leaders of governments friendly to Hanoi, and while making no political comment, demanding the release of POWs and conformity with the Geneva Convention agreements.

Col. Latham asked that "our concern not stop here" and reminded the audience that the goal is to reunite the prisoners with their families and country.

A 59-gun salute closed the York Field Ceremony.

In dedicating this week to concern for the POWs and MIAs, President Nixon pledged in the proclamation read at Wednesday's ceremony continued efforts by the American people to secure fair treatment for the prisoners and their eventual return home. He blamed the North Vietnamese for not allowing inspection of the prison camps, for not repatriating the seriously sick and wounded, and for not allowing the prisoners regular correspondence with their families.

After the President's proclamation was released in Washington recently, comments on the Week of Concern were made by Secretary of Defense Melvin Laird and Adm. Thomas H. Moorer, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Secretary Laird said "we once again express to North Vietnam our united determination to demand compliance with the provisions of the Geneva Convention relative to the treatment of prisoners of war."

Adm. Moorer extended the sympathy and encouragement of all Americans to the families of the POWs and pledged an unwavering effort to make their safe return a reality.

In other Week of Concern activity, Mrs. E. J. Murdock, post coordinator for the local Citizens Assistance for POW and MIA Families, announced that all post churches will hold silent prayer for the POWs and MIAs during Good Friday services today. For Saturday, she requests that all concerned citizens write a letter to any or all of the following:

- Any U. S. Senator or Congressman
Washington, D. C.
- President Ton Duc Thang
Office of the President
Hanoi, North Vietnam
- President Nguyen Hn Tho
President of the National Liberation Front
Hanoi, North Vietnam
- The Honorable Andrei Gromyko
Minister of Foreign Affairs
Moscow, USSR.

Awards banquet honors Dramatizers' 'Blithe Spirit'

The Third Army Tournament of Plays Awards Banquet was held Saturday, March 25, at the Sand Hill NCO Club in honor of Fort Benning's entry, "Blithe Spirit," which won Best Play Award.

Dr. Baldwin Burroughs, director of Drama in Atlanta's Spellman College, and one of the judges for the tournament spoke to the gathering of personnel from the six posts entered in the Third Army Tournament. Dr. Burroughs explained the decisions the judges made in the selection of each play.

Col. Willard Latham, chief of staff, USAIC, addressed the diners and welcomed them to Fort Benning, thanking them for their involvement and participation in the Army theater programs.

Mrs. Lila Kennedy, first lady of the Theatre in Atlanta, and Mrs. Joan W. Lewis, a teacher at Morehouse College, Atlanta, presented the awards won in the Tournament.

Silver platters were awarded to the actors and actresses, director, assistant director and crew chiefs for the winning play, "Blithe Spirit."

First place awards were presented to: Fort Benning: 1st Lt. Jeff Grandel, Set Designer and Technical Director; also for Best Actress in the Tournament, Mrs. Lanie Russell, for her role of Ruth in "Blithe Spirit." Fort Jackson—"Star Spangled Girl"—Best Lighting, Sp4 Thomas Koch; Best Actor, Sp4 Stanton Edgehill and Sp4

Robert Smith; and Best Director, Mr. Tom Tobin. Fort Bragg—"Our Town"—Best Costume, Betty Formyduval; Best Supporting Actor, Mr. Howard E. Shelby; and Best Publicist, James A. Blum; Fort Rucker—"The Sign in Sidney Brustein's Window"—Best Supporting Actrix, Sp5 Louise Dibble. Sgt. Robert E. (Bear) Stark Jr., Entertainment NCO at the Fort Benning Playhouse, and director of the next production, "A Midsummer Night's Dream," was the Master of Ceremonies for the evening.

Rangers set dining-in

The Ranger Department is planning the first Non-commissioned Officer Dining in at Fort Benning. This precedent setting dinner will be at Sand Hill NCO Club on April 3.

The purpose of a dining in is to bring the people of the department together and build esprit de corps. An NCO dining-in will develop prestige and dignity for the noncommissioned officers—a goal of the Modern Army Program.

A dine-in as a formal "stag" dinner is a throwback to the regimental mess in the British Army. The highlight of the evening is the Punchbowl Ceremony. The punch bowl is filled with various wines representing campaigns the unit has participated in.

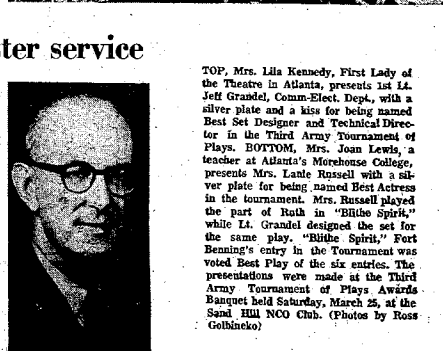

For the Rangers, the first campaign was the French and Indian War.

Because the Ranger NCO dining-in is a first for the post, several honor guests will attend the dinner. Col. David Grange, Jr., director of the Ranger Department will head the guest list. Joining him will be Bob Williams, CSM of Third Army, John Lavote, CSM of the Infantry Center, William Mixon, CSM of the Infantry School, and Basil Plumley, CSM of the School Brigade.

Three other men will also be special guests of the Ranger NCO's. SGM (ret.) John Bittoris was one of the original instructors of the Ranger Department in the early 1850's. He was CSM of the Infantry School before his retirement. MSG's (ret.) Vernon Harris and William Brennan both made many contributions to the early development to the Ranger Dept.

Vet Clinic hours reduced April 1

Due to an acute shortage of personnel, the Veterinary Clinic is reducing its hours of operation effective April 1.

The clinic will be open from 1 to 3 p.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays only. Services available are being reduced from outpatient care to registration of pets and immunizations only.

The clinic was formerly open from 1 to 3 p.m. Monday through Friday, as soon as an adequate number of veterinary technicians become available, outpatient care and the former hours will be resumed.

Appointments are not necessary for immunization and registration of pets at the clinic. The clinic is located in Building 265, and further information may be obtained by calling 545-4444.

Chap. Goldie to speak at Post Easter service

Chaplain (Col.) William V. Goldie, Director of Personnel and Ecclesiastical Relations, Office of Chief of Chaplains, Department of the Army, Washington, D.C., will be the guest speaker at the Fort Benning Easter Sunrise Service this year.

The service will be held April 2, 1972 at 6:30 a.m. at Gowdy Field, Main Post.

A native of Albany, New York, Chaplain Goldie is a graduate of Columbia Bible College, Columbia, S. C., and the National Bible Institute, New York City. He served as the Assistant Pastor, First Baptist Church, New York City, and as a missionary in the Philippines. Chaplain Goldie first entered service in July 1943, returning to the civilian ministry in November 1964. He entered the service again in June 1961 and has served continuously since that date.

He has served in Korea, Germany, Vietnam, and the United States. His assignments have included: U.S. Army Combat Developments Command Chaplain Agency; U.S. Army Chaplains School; Staff Chaplain, U.S. Army; Vietnam; and, presently, the Office of the Chief of Chaplains, Department of the Army.

Chaplain Goldie has been awarded the Legion of Merit, the Bronze Star Medal with "V" for Valor, and the Army Commendation Medal (three awards). He and his wife, Ethel, have two sons, Richard and James. Chaplain and Mrs. Goldie live in Arlington, Virginia.

Hunt for eggs

The Kelley Hill service club will hold its annual Easter Egg Hunt Sunday at 2:30 p.m.

Any individuals that wish to take part should contact the service club by Saturday at 544-3079 or 544-3079.

Post commanders attend communication workshop

Another first for Fort Benning took place on March 20, 21 and 22 at the USAIC Recreation Center, Destin, Florida.

The "first" was the Dynamics of Communications Workshop for Senior Staff Officers and Commanders. A project of the Directorate of Personnel and Community Activities, the workshop was coordinated by the Post Chaplain's Office.

The Communications Workshop was conducted by Roland Reed and Charles di Salvo, Associates, two New York psychologists, and by Michael Dinoff, Director, Psychological Clinic, University of Alabama.

Arrangements were supervised by Chaplain (Col.) Albert F. Ledebuhr, and Project Officer Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Richard Nybro.

"The session was a year in planning, and received support from the Chief of Chaplains Office, Department of the Army, USAIC Special Services, and from our own Commanding General," stated Chaplain Ledebuhr. The workshop was attended by senior officers from The Infantry Center, The Infantry School, and various Post commands and activities. A total of 22 colonels participated.

From The Infantry Center came Col. Willard Latham, Chief of Staff; Col. Henry Hutchison, Director of Industrial Operations; Col. Leon R. Livingston Jr., Director of Personnel and Community Activities; Col. Roy R. May Jr., Directorate of Plans and Training; Lt. Col. Frederick A. Peper, Directorate of Security; and Col. Albert F. Ledebuhr, and Lt. Col. Richard Nybro, Office of the Post Chaplain.

Attending From The Infantry School were Col. John H. Burner, Assistant to the DAC, USAIC; Col. Walter H. Root Jr., Office of Doctrine Development, Literature, and Plans; Col.

William B. Steele, and Lt. Col. Jim I. Hunt, Leadership Department; and Lt. Col. Elliott P. Sydnor, Company Operations.

Col. Bruce H. Fraser, Headquarters Command; Col. W. L. H. Harper, U.S. Army Marksmanship Training Unit; Col. Cesar A. Lopez, Martin Army Hospital; Col. John E. McCleary, U.S. Army Combat Developments Command Infantry Agency; Col. Robert J. Standley, Commander, 331st Engineer Group; Col. Silas M. Crase, Dental Activity, USAEMEDBAG; Col. Aldric M. Hayes, Deputy Commander, 187th Infantry Brigade; and Col. James F. Kelly and Lt. Col. James A. Volkman, Dental Activity, USAEMEDBAG.

CG gets award

The Army Commander's Award for the implementation of an improvement in productivity by the Maintenance Division, Directorate of Industrial Operations, was presented Friday, March 24th, to Major General Orwin C. Talbot by Major General George B. Pickett Jr., deputy commanding general, Third Army.

The award is made semi-annually to the commander achieving the most outstanding results from a management improvement project. Final selection by Third Army was based on first year savings and benefits totaling $38,075.

The improvement, developed as a Cost Reduction Program action, concurred increased productivity resulting from analyses of data accumulated by the Semi-Mechanized Production Planning and Control System.

Before the improvement project was implemented, monthly summaries of labor utilization were not available. Existing data did not provide for an abbreviated yardstick of performance; manhours expended by work centers, and assessment of direct and indirect labor availability and usage were difficult. Due to insufficient data, manpower management was not being practiced to the fullest potential.

After implementation of the improvement project, meaningful manhour data was developed and categories of labor utilization were identified with particular emphasis directed to efficient resource usage through the monthly review of labor data.

The new data enabled managers to direct personnel capability to meet critical mission demands in areas of common skills. Each shop foreman now has a chart enabling him to compare the present productivity of his workforce with prior productivity, thus allowing him to develop better procedures, improve methods and equipment usage, and improve scheduling. This has resulted in a more effective labor effort and a reduction in the unit repair time.

Expectation barrier basis for racism

By Chaplain (Capt.) James Anderson

"Brown-eyed people are cleaner than blue-eyed people. They are more civilized than blue-eyed people. And they are smarter than blue-eyed people." And so said the teacher, Mrs. Jane Elliott, to her class of third graders. At the beginning of a two-day experiment, Mrs. Elliott constantly praised the brown-eyed group in her classroom, pointing to their accomplishments as proof of their superiority. At the same time, the blue-eyed children were told that mistakes were to be expected from their type.

Mrs. Elliott found that the brown-eyed group excelled. When the blue-eyed group fell behind she said, "It is just what you can expect from blue-eyed children." The brown-eyed group was given special privileges in reward for good work. Scholastic achievement soared even beyond what was expected. The blue-eyed children fell into a pattern of failure and depression.

Mrs. Elliott was concerned that the experiment was having a bad effect on the blue-eyed group. She decided to continue the work, reversing the roles. The brown-eyed found themselves the inferior group. Their self-esteem and superiority was threatened. Their performance dropped dramatically. The reverse was true of the blue-eyed group.

Mrs. Elliott asked the children why they believed her assertions about superiority and inferiority. They answered that they thought eye coloring made a difference.

How does this relate to everyday living? I don't think it is unfair to say that people tend to behave the way we expect them to and accomplish what they think is expected of them.

Mrs. Elliott tells of another teacher who found a series of numbers on her desk ranging from 120 to 140. The teacher assumed that these were the IQ scores of her students. That semester her students excelled, the grades were very high. The principal complimented her on the outstanding job she was doing. "But it's only to be expected from such superior students," came the reply. "Why you yourself gave me the list of intelligence ratings."

The truth was that the cards contained the students' locker numbers.

Can we use these fascinating lessons in our lives? The third graders did. They became more compassionate, less aggressive and more considerate. Grades improved. The children felt they could do something to make the world better.

I see a great promise for our future if we can put these lessons to work. The expectation barrier is a basis for racism, a foundation for our failure to improve, the start of "you can't teach an old dog new tricks," a factor in many of our social and personal problems.

Once we have broken through this expectation barrier, I feel we will find a new basis for freedom. We will see patterns of behavior change as the third graders' behavior changed. New records of all sorts will be broken.

ARE YOU A SECURITY RISK?

WASHINGTON (AP) — A stranger befriends you at a bar or a ball game and seems quite interested in your military career. He asks to meet you again and you chuck him off as just a nosy extrovert. Perhaps, but he might also be a "spotter" — a kind of talent scout for espionage prospects.

Hold back that guffaw. It doesn't happen only on TV. Servicemen and Federal defense employees are potential intelligence targets. What to you are mundane matters may be important fragments of a valuable espionage picture.

Even the espionage operative may not know his worth, but other trained experts on his team will be able to analyze the information and use that "routine bit."

The "spotter" probably won't have a foreign accent and in fact may be as fluent as you in American lore. He'll concentrate on your favorite subject — you. To further cement relations and set himself up as one of the good guys, he may produce a family snapshot. Whatever his play, he'll use a personal touch to achieve his purposes.

He wants to know your potential as a source of information. That you don't have direct access to what he wants may not be imperative to him. He may be able to force you to that. He can accomplish that by exploiting some weakness you may have. Do you owe money? Are you disgruntled? Do your long drives to fast cars, exotic cars? Do you drink to excess and have a drug hangup? What are your views on social and racial issues? Any weakness can be used as a blackmail.

Your "spotter" may turn you over to another agent or he may start your involvement by asking you to provide unclassified items that, on the surface, may appear to be harmless favors. He'll see that you are well paid even though the material is even useless to him. The payment, however, underscores the illicitness of the relationship. If you have allowed yourself to be entangled in this far, the attempt will become less friendly.

His demands will become greater and the meetings more secretive. He may play you for a long period or use you for one big job when you're caught and your "friend" is unmasked it will be you.

In the case of the contact in the bar, used as an example in this article, your duty stands clear. You are required to report the attempt to collect any classified or unclassified information in any unauthorized person by other than official channels. That includes any request for biographic information on military personnel (even years), directories, roster, or performance data on military equipment.

If you have any suspicions, report them promptly and forget them. Let the professionals handle it from there.

who bears the weight of sentence. He probably has dignified immunity and the worst that happens to him is he is asked to leave the country.

What can you do to avoid this fate? To begin with, security regulations require that you immediately report any contact, intentional or by chance, with the representative or employee of any government whose interests and activities are hostile to, or against the best interests of the United States.

That may sound very legal and full of courtroom legalese, but you don't have to prove the intention of the person you contacted.

In fact, authorities urge you not to take any actions on your own. Your only requirement is to report your suspicions to your supervisor, your commander or security officials.

Old timer was 'jack of all trades' in service career

By RICK WASSER

Stanley Sharp remembers the 'old Army' as "choker houses, campaign hats and wrap leggings. Sharp entered the service in 1930. He attended almost every school the Army offers. His jobs ranged from electrician to mess sergeant. His Columbus home is testimony to his many talents. The paintings in his home all bear his name. He also made all his own furniture.

Sharp, who retired in 1953, spent his last three years with 2nd Bn., 1st Field Arty., 197th Inf. Bde. He joined the 3-101st at the time of the transition from horse-drawn howitzers to motorized vehicles. Sharp attended motor school and became an instructor on motorized vehicles for the unit. He remembers how the 'old timers' gripped about the transition and vowed that the motorized unit would not last and the horses would be back. But the 3-10th didn't go back to horses and now has the most up-to-date equipment in the Army.

On the Modern Volunteer Army (MVA), Sharp said, "It's a great thing to me, the ideal Army is a small one with highly trained soldiers and modern equipment. I foresee even greater results than already shown through MVA. Still, the small minority of troublemakers have to be eliminated. Gri-pers are detrimental to the Army and not needed. He said there are things that do not need changing.

"First, I don't think bear in the barracks is necessary to MVA. A soldier can buy beer on post within walking distance and it isn't an essential part of the barracks. Next, in the 'old Army' we had quartermaster saving a soldier's money in a safe in the barracks. It is a good idea to have a safe in the barracks. The uniform doesn't make the soldier. If you ask me, a soldier is born, not made."

The next Red Cross nursing service education program will be held at 10 a.m. April 10 in the fourth floor classroom of Martin Army Hospital. All registered nurses in this area are invited to attend.

Lt. Col. John A. Smith, assistant supervisor of the anesthesia section of the hospital, will give a lecture on dissociative anesthesia.

One need not volunteer time to the Red Cross to attend this program.

Columbus to honor secretaries

"Better Secretaries Mean Better Business" will be the theme of this year's Secretary Week, April 22-29.

This week is designed to focus attention on secretaries in business, industry, education, government and other fields, and to remind secretaries of their responsibility to their employers and professions. April 26 has been designated Secretaries Day.

To denote this week, Columbus' Fort City Chapter of the National Secretaries Association (International) has prepared a slate of activities.

Spanish dish good for cold days

Sopa cuartito de hora
This nutritious soup — an old Spanish dish — can be put together in 15 minutes and makes a perfect hot meal for chilly days:

- 1 pkg. (8 oz.) frozen chicken livers, thawed and chopped.
- ½ lb. raw shrimp, shelled, deveined and chopped.
- 1 medium clove garlic, minced
- ¼ tsp. saffron
- ¾ cup Spanish olive oil
- 1 can (10½ oz.) condensed onion soup
- 2 soup cans water
- 1 hard-cooked egg, chopped
- ¾ cup cooked rice
- 1 tsp. chopped parsley
- 4 slices bread, cut in cubes.

In large saucepan, saute livers, shrimp, garlic, and saffron in ¼ cup olive oil until done. Add soup water, egg, rice and parsley. Heat; stir now and then.

Meanwhile, in skillet, heat remaining olive oil; add bread cubes. Saute gently 7½ cups or 4-8 servings.

NATIONAL BANK OF FORT BENNING

MEMBER FDIC

AUSA

BY RANDY ROOSE
The Association of the United States Army (AUSA) is dedicated to the premise that a strong mobile Army is vitally essential to our national defense.

BOARD MEETING NEWS
The principal agenda items of a presentation of plans for the annual membership drive to be conducted in April, May, and June.

Mr. Charles Daley, chairman of the civilian AUSA membership drive announced that the civilian drive for AUSA members will begin April 5th with a breakfast at the Ralston Hotel, to kick off a one-day canvass of Phenix City and Columbus business of 560 volunteer workers.

Col. Willard Latham, Chief of Staff, leads the military portion of the drive. It will start with a meeting of all commanders from the major units on post with Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbot, post commander, to discuss activities to boost military membership.

This year's goal is to have 5,500 members. Col. (Ret.) Jacob Riley, president of the local chapter, said, "This figure will put our chapter in contention to remain the biggest and best chapter awarded at the National Convention."

Daley also noted the success locally of the "Vets Hotline" to help find employment for Army veterans. To date it has created 777 job referrals and placed 180 veterans in jobs.

On hand to discuss the ROTC Rifle and Drill Meet that AUSA sponsors every year was Maj. (Ret.) William G. Newbold. He praised the chapter on their fine support of local ROTC units and hoped that the National Chapter is taking note of it. This year the drill events will be held at York Field and the rifle events at Parks Range. Contestants will come from ROTC units throughout the Southeast and the Panama Canal Zone to compete in the May meet.

Three people from the U. S. Army Material Command branch were on hand to answer questions before and after the meeting about experimental items that the Army is designing to "better equip today's soldier." Col. John Enos, liaison officer for AMC, said at the meeting that "our job is to inform the soldier that the research and development people are constantly working to improve their lives. We need more suggestions from them, and we need to know their preferences." He noted that many of the changes being made are initiated by ideas from the soldiers. In display was a suit of body armor that the Army has perfected after five years search. Another item of interest to many soldiers were the new and improved food rations they had on display.

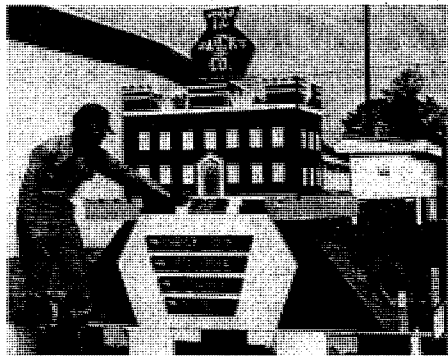

GEN. TALBOT COMMENTS
Gen. Talbot invited all board members to the scheduled activities being planned on post as part of "National Week of Concern for POWs-MIAs."

He also asked the local chapter to "help the Army reopen channels of communication with the local groups and familiarize them with exactly what is veteran VOL-AR."

Gen. Talbot noted the success of the recent AUSA Dinner-Dance and the Bob Hope performance. He commended the civilian sector for their fine support of these functions.

DID YOU KNOW?

1. AUSA has 4,700 members locally.
2. Membership costs only $7.50 per year.
3. Membership entitles you to a year subscription to Army Magazine plus you become eligible for special group life and hospital insurance.

Ssgt. Collins R. Johnson puts the finishing touches on the 72nd's new 'castle.'

'New look' given to 197th Bn.

BY KERRY COX
At the 197th Support Battalion "Spring Passport," thanks to the 72nd Eng. Co.

This unit has given the battalion a new look for spring with various projects that are improving the soldiers' habitat.

"It gives you a feeling of pride when you can show your family where you live, especially if it has a well kept look and the general appearance that someone cares where and how you live," said PFC Donald B. Guid-smith, whose parents recently visited him at the battalion.

The plans for the development and beautification projects were the combined effort of CSM Nathan G. Hoover and 1st Sgt. Ralph Hall of the 72nd. "The first task we wanted to undertake was the parking lots," Hall said. "There, improvement benefits both the soldier who lives at the battalion and those off post.

In improving the parking lots the engineers leveled, graded and fenced in the lots, facilitating more parking and improving the security of privately owned vehicles.

The engineers also completed the project restoration of the roadways, filling in and leveling them, while the weather had done damage.

"While the main work group from the company was improving the battalion, another group of soldiers was improving the appearance of the 72nd,"

Hall said. "They erected a new 'castle' under the direction of Ssgt. Collins R. Johnson and improved old signs in the company area."

In the future the 72nd will improve the landscape and do grading, leveling and reseeded.

As one soldier of the 72nd, Ssgt. Clifford Beach said, "Maybe no one comes up to you and says thanks, but when they look at the improvements that will affect them, I think they say a silent thank. And that's fine with me."

Cheyenne completes demanding test program

The AH-66A Cheyenne helicopter, which recently completed two years of successful flight and weapons development testing at the Army's Yuma Proving Ground in Arizona, stopped here today enroute to Hunter-Liggett Military Reservation for a six-week Army operational evaluation.

"Few other military aircraft have been subjected to a more demanding program of development and testing than the Cheyenne," said A. Carl Kotchian, as he spoke to Van Nuy plant employees who were on hand to meet the Cheyenne.

"I am happy to tell you," Kotchian said, "that the Cheyenne has passed its tests with flying colors, meeting or exceeding Army flight performance requirements and Army weapons systems specifications. We believe this is the finest attack helicopter in the world and that from a development standpoint, it is now ready for production."

The Hunter-Liggett bound helicopter, one of three Cheyennes used in development testing at Yuma, flew the 771 mile trip from the Proving Ground to Van Nuy non-stop.

"The Cheyenne will demonstrate its effectiveness in a simulated battle-ground environment and its ability to survive hostile fire from a variety of anti-aircraft weapons during the new Army tests at Hunter-Liggett. The test course there, as well as the target vehicles and installations, will be instrumented to transmit firing accuracy and "hit" data to a central computer for rapid collection and analysis," Kotchian declared.

"No other helicopter can match the Cheyenne's maneuvering agility," he said. "You can fly it flat out at altitude or on the deck. It flies sideways at more than 40 miles per hour and backward at 35 miles per hour, and its reversible pitch propeller enables the pilot to slow it from high speed to hover within 10 seconds or to sustain a constant speed in a dive," Kotchian explained.

Larry Smith, described the Cheyenne's extensive weapons and testing development program at Yuma, saying "Altogether Cheyenne has fired almost 78,000 rounds of ammunition, including 30 mm cannon, 40 mm grenades and 7.62 caliber rounds. In addition, Cheyenne crews have launched more than 120 TOW missiles and almost 1200 2.75 inch rockets."

Cub Scouts hold Derby

March 25, 2000 enthusiastic spectators gathered to watch 70 Cub Scouts of Pack 27 participate in the Annual Pinewood Derby. The Pinewood Derby was held at the Dexter School auditorium and was sponsored by the 6th Maint. Bn.

The atmosphere of the school auditorium was like the Indianapolis 500, which was created by black and white striped shirted officials, checkered flags and the loud roar of the crowd as the boys raced their home made miniature cars down the track. Registration and weigh in stations were set up to insure that all cars met raceway qualifications.

I and Scott Sidler, Webelos II. First, second and third place winners received handsome trophies and all other participants received plaques for their days work at the Annual Pinewood Derby.

Senior Candidates Terhane and Rohrbough demonstrate the proper hand salute to two members of the orphanage.

OC's help local orphans have fun

Senior Status in Officer Candidate School is a time when one can give OCS seven days a week and devote his weekends to varied things. One of these is to help local orphans. The 50th Company, Commanding Officer, 50th Company (OC), and candidates from his company are participating in the 5th Student Battalion Program "OC's for Youth." On March 16, Maj. Boone and Jacobsen visited the Anne Elizabeth Shepherd Home to discuss the possibility of candidates sponsoring activities involving themselves and children from this private orphanage.

The Anne Elizabeth Shepherd Home began in 1845 as a home for destitute and orphaned girls. In 1924, Col. W. S. Shepherd left his home to the orphanage with the provisions that the name be changed to honor his mother. In 1964 the home was opened to boys. The orphanage is presently located on thirty acres in the north end of Columbus.

Plans were made to allow the children to participate in the first annual TSB Kite Flying Day and Picnic scheduled for March 25. Eight Senior Officer Candidates from 50th Company met with the boys from the Orphanage ping-pong games. A tour of the Infantry Museum was then conducted. Bowling was the main activity planned for the afternoon and at 2 p.m. the party met at the Post Bowling Alley. A prize was awarded for the best score of the day. 50th Company had planned for these children to participate in recreational activities and tour the many facilities of Fort Benning. But, it was much more than just this to all who were involved. It was an opportunity for Candidates to become involved in the community. For the children it was a day spent with a big brother.

Senior Candidate Maske was able to visit the Fire Department with his group. The youths were allowed to inspect the various vehicle and equipment. Senior Candidates Horn and Southwick took their children to Lawson Field where they played on the "Boston Boomerang," a WW II parachute Transport Plane. Around noon the individual groups met at 50th Company where everyone ate lunch. The youths were enthusiastic about eating in the Mess Hall with the Candidates and they eagerly exchanged stories about their morning activities. After lunch, the Candidates and children went to the Dayroom of 50th Company and they participated in pool and

Absentee ballots

The Federal Post Card Application (FPCA) for the Absentee Ballot is the official way to request an absentee ballot in your home state.

Most states accept the FPCA as an application for registration as well as for the ballot. However, using the FPCA is not a guarantee of voting privileges. Some states will require the absentee voter to fill out special State forms.

Only a few states let one FPCA serve for all elections in that year. But one FPCA may never be used by more than one person. Spouses and dependents eligible to vote must fill out their own forms.

The General Services Administration, which distributes the forms, makes several suggestions for its completion.

1. Print carefully by hand or use a typewriter.
2. Fill in all the required information legibly.

3. The applicant's name must be shown twice—once printed or typed and once in the applicant's handwriting. Anyone may fill out the card but only the applicant may sign his name in the signature block.
4. Street and number or rural route of the applicant's place of residence must be complete. Include the name of your county. This speeds State action on the application.
5. Military and government addresses are often confusing to civilians. Print or type these clearly to prevent confusion.
6. Legal voting residence must be a place where the applicant actually lived. If you have more than one address in the state, give the last, most current one.
7. Many states require the FPCA to be certified. Members of the Armed Forces can have this done by a commissioned officer unless the state permits a noncommissioned or warrant officer's attestation.

8. Before addressing the FPCA, check the state's mailing instructions. In some cases, the card goes to the State election official; in other states, it goes to the election board, a county clerk or an auditor.
9. Mail the FPCA as early as the state permits. Incidentally, the FPCA may be sent free of postage if deposited in a Postal Service depository.

Next week, Election Central will take a look at the Presidential Preference Primaries.

Caribbean treasure hunt, history of black baseball featured in sports books

Books on sports at special services libraries: Fisherman's Digest, ed. Erwin A. Bauer. A treasury of fishing facts and information. The best fishermen in America share their secrets and tell you how to catch more, bigger and better fish.

Shooter's Bible. For new hunters and shooters, the latest models and equipment available for the old timer, the latest technical information and specifications for all models.

Golfer's Digest, ed. John May. A digest of golf information, history, course architecture, nostalgia, humor, records and statistics.

Diving for Sunken Treasure, Jacques-Yves Cousteau. One of the world's great ocean explorers describes his expedition to the Silver Bank, a coral reef in the Caribbean where the crew of the Calypso searched a centuries-old shipwreck for its secrets and a possible fortune in silver and gold.

The Encyclopedia of Sports, Frank G. Menke. The Olympic games, The America's cup matches, the World Series as well as record makers on the diamond, the gridiron, the basketball and tennis courts, the hockey rinks and soccer fields, the ski slopes, the concrete roads and in the ring all are included in this updated volume.

The Racing Sports Car, Anthony Pritchard. The story of epic races, bitter duels and exciting cars by an author who has personally witnessed many of the marvellous.

Only the Ball was White, Robert W. Peterson. The story of blacks in baseball is told from old sports publications, the black press and interviews with players. From the early black teams of Cool Papa Bell and Andrew ("Rube") Foster to the postwar integration of major league teams, Peterson traces black history of the sport.

Snowmobiles and Snowmobiling, James J. Tuile. The color of America's fastest growing winter sport—snowmobiling—is captured in this volume.

SONY COMPLETE AUTOMATIC STEREO SYSTEM!

AM/FM RECEIVER, SPEAKERS, CASSETTE PLAYER/RECORDER, TURNTABLE

You have it all taped with this complete, very automatic stereo system. Hear it! You'll know it's a SONY! The HP225/SS210. An unlikely name. But what it can do is very likely. Like: tape record up to one hour of low distortion sound directly from the FM stereo/AM/AM tuner on the built-in, slot-loaded cassette player/recorder unit. Like: permanently tape those precious wax discs directly from the BSR 4-speed, automatic/manual turntable. Like: put your own sounds on tape with an optional stereo microphone. Of course, you don't have to tape everything. You can hear pre-recorded cassettes, records, or broadcast music from even the weakest signals through the 2-way speakers in cased walnut cabinets. All very likely in a system that's very, very likeable. SONY

Synopsis

FRENCH CONNECTION (Rated R)—Gene Hackman and Roy Scheider play two narcotic detectives who investigate a heroin case on the trail of a hero-in supposedly being smuggled in from Marseille, France. One of the highlights of this picture—which has been nominated for eight academy awards—is a hair-raising automobile chase by Hackman as he pursues a killer on an elevated train.
DIRTY DINGUS MARRIAGE (Rated PG)—A mule-drawn stagecoach out West stops at a way station. Dingus Mager, a sly character with larceny in his heart and soul, takes the opportunity to rob one of the passengers played by George Kennedy. Kennedy reports the incident to the female mayor of the nearby town, who moonlights as a local madame. Her Honor makes Kennedy sheriff, and the new lawman immediately puts out a $10 reward for the capture of his tormentor. But he really doesn't have to go to the trouble as Dingus also is wanted by the U.S. 7th Cavalry and Chief Crazy Horse and his tribe. Frank Sinatra is Dirty Dingus.
BANANAS (Rated PG)—Overriding from guerrilla warfare to sex warfare is spoofed as Woody Allen portrays a humbling young Manhattan misfit who decides to quit his super-automated job to join the Revolutionary forces of a shaky Latin American dictatorship.

Dramatizers select cast for 'Dream'

The east of the Fort Benning Dramatizers' next production, "A MIDSUMMER NIGHT'S DREAM" has been announced by Sgt. Robert E. (Beau) Stout, director. The leading members of the cast are as follows: Sgt. Linton Cross III, Sgt. Thomas Berg, Sgt. Thessens, the Duke of Athens. Mrs. Sadie Cylar, a Columbus elementary school teacher, as Hippolyta, the Queen of the Amazons. Sp4 William Hand of the Matcon Co., Martin Army Hospital at Benning, as Bottom. Mrs. Lanie Russell, dependent, as Helena. Sps Dale R. Hoyt of the post Theater Point as Bottom, a weaver. Sgt. E. Linton Cross III of the Fort Benning playhouse, as Oberon, king of the fairies. Mrs. Sheila Plank, dependent, as Titania, queen of the fairies. Ken Sanders, dependent, as Puck, a mischievous fairy. Although all speaking roles have been filled, openings remain for young people as fairies, elves, dancers and ladies and gentlemen of the court.

Persons also are needed as seamstresses, carpenters, lighting technicians, sound technicians and for "all purpose" jobs. Anyone interested in working in or for the production should come to the Fort Benning playhouse, 3122, 1227 behind the Infantry Museum. Further information can be obtained by phoning 545-2622.

Rehearsals for "Dream" are held week nights at 7 and meetings of the Dramatizers Monday evenings at 7:30.

When Mrs. Don Cummins paints Easter eggs, she doesn't limit herself to the hen variety. She also decorates the eggs of geese, turkeys—and even ostriches. Mrs. Cummins will give a lecture and demonstration on her "egg art technique" at the Columbus Museum of Arts and Crafts Sunday at 3 p.m. The Scottsboro, Ala. resident also models driftwood, makes apple head dolls in old Indian style, produces tree ornaments out of milkweed pods and makes "Italian porcelain" from natural gum balls, artificial fruit and paper flowers. The museum is located at 1251 Wynston Road.

Sgt. Wilfred Meuse, NCOIC of 17th Company Mess Hall, sees that two of his guests honor for the Super-Day are well fed. They are (left to right) PFC Danny Martin and PFC Roy Carson, recent re-enlistees.

'Super-Meals' honor soldiers

A "Super-Meal" is SFC Wilfred M. Meuse's way of showing what today's modern Army program has to offer the average soldier. They are Meuse's idea, and he opened MCOIC of this Mess Hall at 17th Company, 1st Student Battalion, TSB, prepares "Super-Meals" at least twice a month. The most recent Super-Dinner, which took place on Wednesday, March 22 at 12 p.m., honored four soldiers who were re-enlisting on the same day.

The four re-enlistees were Sgt. Samuel Yearite, PFC Danny Martin, PFC Roy Carson, and Sp4 Carlos Quiñones.

Meuse makes these meals available free to his own unit and at a nominal charge to any soldier on Post who wants them. His purpose, he says, is "to improve the soldier's morale so that he will want to stay in the Army."

The meals, however, are not a function of the Post Re-Enlistment Office. They are Meuse's idea, and he obtains the food through ration savings from food funds. "It's available to any mess sergeant who wants it," he emphasizes.

His menu for the Super-Dinner on March 22 was plentiful and good, and the meal was well-attended. In addition to the four re-enlistees who were guests of honor, Col. A. G. Norris, Commanding Officer, The School Brigade, was in attendance.

Lt. Col. John R. Walker, Commanding Officer, 1st Student Battalion, was also present, along with Maj. Gaill N. Batten, Executive Officer, 1st Student Battalion, and Capt. Joseph F. Rex, Jr., Post Re-Enlistment Officer.

Army emphasizes higher education

Within the next ten years, the Army plans to raise the education level of its members to new highs.

New goals for formal education were recently approved by the Army's Chief of Staff. These new goals will be published as the minimum standards for each category of personnel indicated.

All commissioned officers will have baccalaureate degrees and 20 per cent of all career commissioned officers will have graduate degrees.

All career warrant officers will have an associate degree before they reach 15 years of service.

All enlisted men will have a high school education as soon as possible after entering the service. Career noncommissioned officers are encouraged to complete two years of college equivalent study before they reach 15 years of service.

These objectives are designed to bring every member of the Army to a level of his maximum performance potential. The philosophy is that education is a lifelong process and continuing education is essential if military personnel are to achieve maximum creativity and leadership ability.

The new goals will serve as a basis for establishing programs at all Army Education Centers to provide these services. It is Army policy that educational services be available and to encourage all personnel to develop educationally.

Benning honors USMA cadets

Fort Benning honored the 17th anniversary of the United States Military Academy with a dinner in the Main Ballroom of the Officers Club on March 18. Sponsored by the West Point Society of Fort Benning and Columbus, the dinner drew 160 graduates of the Military, Naval, and Air Academies as guests.

Lt. Col. Peter M. Dawkins was guest speaker for the "stag" dinner. He is presently assigned to the Staff of the Special Assistant for the Modern Volunteer Army in the Office of the Chief of Staff of the Army.

Dawkins was concerned that everyone, whether military or not, should be able to establish goals for living and to carry them out. Achievement of goals is the result of setting appropriate priorities.

Because of his assignment, Dawkins can appreciate many changes in the Army. He credits these changes to a drive for professional soldiers.

Dawkins has been continually impressed with the Point's ability to teach men how to establish priorities in demanding situations.

Two other speakers were featured on the evening's program. They were the oldest and the youngest graduate in the area.

The oldest graduate is Brig. Gen. James B. Crawford from the class of 1911. In 1914-18 and 1939-54.

Gen. Crawford was a math instructor and the graduate manager of athletics. His comments were remembrances of the Academy in the early years of this century and his problems in keeping members of the Army football team qualified for play.

2nd Lt. Roger L. Duckworth is the youngest graduate. Duckworth, who graduated in 1971, gave a rundown on major changes in the Academy during his four years. Changes in the plebe system have caused many older graduates to worry about the quality of graduates but Duckworth feels that cadets show the same spirit and motivation which are the hallmark of the West Point cadet. Further, he states that new privileges have engendered a new sense of responsibility in cadets.

Doughboys down Ft. McClellan

Fort Benning traveled to Ft. McClellan last weekend and won two games from the McClellan Blues in team handball.

The Doughboys won the first game by 13 to 7 and the second game 24 to 10. The victories gave the Benning squad undisputed first place in the Western Division of the Third Army team Handball League.

Ft. McClellan holds second place in the Western Division with a record of four wins and one loss. Ft. Campbell is in third place with three wins against four losses and Ft. Rucker is in last place with six losses and no wins.

This weekend the Doughboys are on the road again for two games against second place Ft. McClellan. The following weekend the Doughboys begin an extended home stand at Doughboy Stadium with two games scheduled against the last place Ft. Rucker Flyers.

With the competition of the two games against Mc-

Person this weekend the Doughboys will have finished the first half. Each team in the division is scheduled to play four games against all other teams in the division. Two games are scheduled home games and two games away from home. The Benning team has played most of its games away from home during the first half of league play so most of the games during the second half of league play will be held at Doughboy Stadium.

Upon completion of league play early in May the two top teams in the Western and Eastern Divisions will meet here for a double elimination tournament to determine the Third Army Champions.

The Fort Benning team needs more coaches and players. Players should have skills similar to those developed in volleyball, basketball and soccer. Tall players have an advantage but there are requirements for smaller agile men who can develop expert team play. The tempo of the game is fast and is seldom interrupted by time out periods and penalties. Players must be in top physical condition.

Individuals interested in joining the Doughboy as players or as coaches should contact Bill Harrell at 545-1516.

197th volleyball title up for grabs Tuesday

The battalion playoffs for the 197th Inf. Bde., volleyball tournament have now begun. Next on the agenda will be the competition for the Brigade Tournament.

Each battalion in the brigade has a representative team to compete for the brigade title. The Brigade Volleyball Tournament will be held Tuesday at the Kelly Hill Gym. The winners of the Brigade Volleyball championship will be awarded trophies for their top performance by the brigade commander, Col. Edwin L. Kennedy. Also, the coaches of the teams will be awarded trophies for their extreme guidance of the outstanding team.

The next phase for the winners of the Brigade Championship will be to compete in the Post Tournament. The Post Tournament will be held during the week of 17-21 in April. The competition for the Post title will be held in the Briant Wells Field House. The winners of this title will then be awarded trophies. The winning coaches of this competition will also be awarded trophies.

Aberle leads Orienteering in Ohio, defeats North American Champion

Sgt. Don Kennedy of the Fort Benning Orienteering team springs for the finish line at the Ohio Orienteering Championships.

Pistol match won by Heugatter

The Fort Benning Orienteering Team got a quick jump on everyone as the competition season opened on March 19, in Athens, Ohio. Fort Benning's All-Army Orienteering champ, Sgt. Dale Aberle, crossed the finish line first, defeating the North American champion, Sgt. Larry Long of the Marine Corps.

Aberle navigated over the rugged 760 meter course in one hour 20 minutes and five seconds. Long finished second while Capt. Ed Strabel, Benning team captain, finish third.

Sgt. Don Kennedy, Capt. Jon Nolan and Lt. John Heck, also of Benning finished fourth through sixth respectively. Sp4 Maltonado, also of the Fort Benning Orienteering Team, competing in his first major orienteering meet, finished seventh.

The director of the Ranger Department, Col. David E. Grange, who has over all responsibility for the team, attributed their success to the rigorous, intensive training program conducted throughout the past winter. During this program, daily runs were conducted over extended distances. Lt. John Heck, a member of last year's All-Army Team, said the team's ultimate goal is to compete in the CIMM Orienteering Championships being held in Sweden this summer.

The Orienteering team, assigned to the Ranger Department, is presently accepting applications from anyone who is interested in becoming a member of the team. Applicants must have experience in distance running at high school level or higher, or prior experience in orienteering. Personnel accepted will be permanently assigned to the team. Inquiries may be directed to Capt. Strabel Phone 525-0021.

MSgt. Emil Heugatter, National Indoor Pistol Champion, forged into the lead and claimed the championship of the two day Pre Third Army Pistol matches completed here Saturday.

Heugatter, topping the field of mixed area military and civilian marksmen, posted a composite score of 2,644-129X to claim the prize. He beat out his nearest competitor SSgt. John Sinski, a companion shooter from the U. S. Army Marksmanship Training Unit, by six.

In his match to the championship circle, Heugatter captured the 45 Caliber Pistol sub-aggregate with an 884-49X total and was four of the individual matches in the Three-Gun tournament.

Tourney runner-up Sinski, won the 22 Caliber Pistol sub-aggregate while SFC James McNally took the Center Fire Pistol top spot.

In the team matches, the Army "Blue" squad won the 22 Caliber and 45 Caliber Pistol matches while the Army "Gray" won the Center Fire event. Both teams were fielded by the Marksmanship Unit.

The 45 Caliber Service Pistol championship was taken by the Army "Red" team sponsored by the Ft. Bragg Marksmanship Unit.

ROD AND GUN CLUB

Notes

BY BILL KLOEB

A hardy, aggressive fish that walks on land has invaded three southern states and fish biologists and conservationists are worried that the species will have a serious and lasting adverse effect on the native fish populations.

State officials claim the walking catfish-clarias-batrachus — has spread from Florida to Georgia and Alabama with the aid of pet shop owners and tropical fish dealers who have found the fish to be a hot sales item.

The fish is a native of South-east Asia illegally imported to this country. According to Game and Fish officials the walker is well established in Florida. Eradication programs used so far have had little or no effect on the propagation of the species. When a pond or other body of water that this fish is using is poisoned he merely leaves the water and walks to another pond nearby.

Individuals who collect exotic fish have aided the migration into Alabama and Georgia. The walking catfish have been purchased in Florida and brought north. There have been some unverified reports of sightings of the ambling catfish as far north as South Carolina.

Biologists say the walking catfish has a diet practically identical to bass, bream, shellcracker and crappie, the primary fresh game fish of the south. They say he eats the young of these species and just about takes over their favorite habitat in a short time.

Clarias batrachus moves over land by flipping his tail and winking his spiny pectoral fins. Its gills permit it to breathe air and remain out of water for extended periods. It has no known natural enemies and multiples rapidly reaching a maximum length of about 18 inches.

The walking catfish is not the only unwanted visitor that could move into Georgia and Alabama from the near tropical climate of Florida. Pop-eyed giant toads from South America, monster mollusks from Asia who have an appetite for house pets and the ravenous flesh eating piranha from tropical waters are just a few that have been introduced into Florida in one manner or other, increased their numbers and have started to spread north.

Some like the giant toad are merely nuisances. Others like the giant snails present a danger to plant life and sometimes the safety and health of humans and animals.

The giant toad is an ugly thing to behold. He looks like a miniature prehistoric monster but is harmless except for an internal poison which is only detrimental when the reptile is eaten.

The giant mollusks or snails are a potential danger to all kinds of plant life and their diet seems to require some ingredient contained in ordinary house paint.

Residents in Miami, Fla. where the more serious multiplication of the snails has occurred reported that they stripped the paint from the inside and outside walls of their homes.

The snails grow to be about a foot long and carry their home on their backs. The shells reach a diameter of five inches. According to biologists the snails can reproduce without mating and even worse from the standpoint of those trying to eradicate them they are not considered a delicacy by the gourmet set.

The piranha is the most feared aquatic creature which has come to Florida from foreign waters. A population explosion of this species could wipe out the Florida sea side vacation industry. This fish will attack humans and animals entering the water. They are capable of taking bites as large as a man can take out of an apple and a large school has been known to devour an entire carcass in a matter of minutes.

At the present time the state of Florida has the big headache from these undesirable creatures but their past performances indicate a great potential for migration and propagation. Like the fire ant they could become real problems over a large part of the country. Anyone sighting what he believes is one of these or any other strange animal life should relay this information to the Fish and Wildlife Unit. Early action in the eradication of these unwanted visitors could be extensive and expensive projects at a later date.

Judo Club places ten in top three positions

The Fort Benning Judo Club won a first, eight second and a third place finish in the South Eastern Invitational Judo Championships held at Jackson University, Fla. last weekend.

Frank Dean scored the first place finish for the Benning team in the heavy weight class for boys 15 years old.

Second place finishes were made by Alphonso White in the mens senior 151-pound class, Charles Williams in the heavy weight class for 15 year old boys, Paul Liggett in the 15 year old light weight class, Will Smith in the heavy weight class for boys 14 years old, Mark Keaton in the light weight class for boys 14 years old, Ronnie Westley in the 13 years old heavy weight class and Harold Says in the light weight class for boys 12 years old.

1st Lt. Elizabeth Sprosty placed second in the open division for women.

David Doty placed third in the light weight class for boys 12 years old.

YAC needs coaches

The Fort Benning Youth Activities Council (YAC) needs coaches for baseball and softball teams.

YAC is organizing four boys' and one girls' league for the coming summer season. The boys league will play baseball and the girls league will play softball.

Boys leagues will include a biddy league for ages eight and nine, a pee wee league for ages 10 and 11, a doughboy league for ages 12 and 13 and a pony league for ages 14 and 15. Girls from ages 9 to 15 will be eligible for the girls' league.

The Post Information Office is interested in contacting reporters to provide publicity for league activities.

Personnel interested in coaching should contact Willy Dunham, 545-3803. Personnel interested in reporting league activities should contact Bill Kloeb, Post Information Office, 545-4622.

Covington leads MTU to championship

A new service rifle star loomed on the horizon Saturday when Sgt. Tommy R. Covington, Knoxville, Tenn., and the U.S. Army Marksmanship Training Unit grabbed the Grand Aggregate Championship of the Pre-Third Army high power rifle at Fort Benning composite score of 783-89.

Covington, who returned last month from a tour of duty in Korea, not only won the grand prize, three of the four individual matches, and one of the two sub-aggregates in the week-end heavy area tournament but beat out the present Army Champion, MSgt. James L. McQueen, by two points in the final showdown.

The Tennessee high power rifle marksman lost only in the 300 yard rapid fire prone match where MSgt. Clinton Stephens, a competition shooter, reigned, and again in the rapid fire aggregate where the Army champion held court.

Covington started off strong and latched on to the top place in the initial match, the 200 yard slow fire contest and followed this victory with a win in the 200 yard rapid fire sitting match. In the latter, he dropped only one shot from the ten ring and placed 14 of 20 shots in the bullseye.

A total of 103 talented marksman swapped shots for the top prize on Me-

Nebraska educators visit Post

BY SUSANNE BOSTICK
Twenty-two Nebraska educators, both military and civilian, will be attending a Fort Benning March 21 through March 23.

They were accompanied by six representatives from the National Guard Bureau, the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, and the United States Air Force Association. The educators visited Fort Benning to observe the educational facilities and methods at the Infantry School. Their primary mission was to get ideas and assistance for their own areas of instruction.

Fort Benning was selected for the visit because of its top-ranking Instructional Methods Division within the Infantry School. The visit was arranged by the Nebraska National Guard Bureau with the concurrence of the National Guard Bureau in Washington, D. C.

Special Projects and Operations Division, USAF, and Protocol Division handled the Fort Benning itinerary for the visitors. They toured the Infantry School facilities and attended briefings held by various school sections under the Director of Instruction.

Visits by civilian educators are arranged quarterly by Special Projects and Operations Division, but this is the first one that has brought educators from outside the Southeast and at below college level to Fort Benning.

Most of the educators were from Lincoln and Omaha, Nebraska. The group included Brig. Gen. D. G. Fenterman, Deputy Adjutant General, State of Nebraska; Dr. Leonard Hill, Chairman, President's Commission on Adult Education; Mr. Jack McBride, Director of Educational Television, State of Nebraska; Mr. William Stucker, President of the Institute for Education and Technology; Col. Gordon Williams, Senior Army Advisor, State of Nebraska; Maj. Darrell McKee, Military Training Officer; Capt. Stanley Heng, Special Training Projects; Lt. Tom Henderson, PIO Director, Military Department of Nebraska; Dr. Ann Campbell, President, University Women of American and Administrative Assistant to the Superintendent of Lincoln School System; Dr. Eldon Heskett, Director of Student Services, Lincoln, Nebraska; Dr. Milton Hassell, Staff Officer for Project S U N, University of Nebraska; Mr. Del Mier, Director, General Services Division, Department of Administrative Services and Telecommunications; and Mr. Ed Schwartzkopf, Chairman, Board of Regents, University of Nebraska.

The Nebraska educators also included Mr. Bob Reier, Work Study Counselor, Lincoln School System; Mr. Buford Jones, Coordinator for Distributor Education, Lincoln School System; Mr. Robert Law, Coordinator for Trades and Industry, Lincoln School System; Mrs. Jennifer North, Miss Margaret Billings, Mr. Don Darnell, and Mr. Jerry Homberg, Student Counselors, Lincoln High School; Mrs. Marie Arnot, Director, Division for Community Affairs, Lincoln, Nebraska; and Mr. Joseph Mosley, Coordinator, Neighborhood Youth Program, Omaha, Nebraska.

According to Maj. McKee, one major purpose of the visit was "to show how the National Guard and civilian educators can come together to benefit youth, especially young men about to enter college."

McKee coordinated arrangements for the trip with Mr. Tom E. Hill of the National Guard Bureau in Washington and Gen. Fenterman, Deputy Adjutant General, State of Nebraska. He also stated that he felt the trip "would help the National Guard carry out its mission of community assistance" by bringing together the military and civilians.

Military Review features ground power after Vietnam

Seven original articles appear in the April issue of the U.S. Army's professional journal, the Military Review.

In "American Ground Power After Vietnam," Lt. Col. Zeb B. Bradford Jr., U.S. Army, suggests new guidelines for ground force development in the emerging period following Vietnam.

These guidelines are intended to cope with the problems of designing and employing small active volunteer forces which have inherently limited capabilities.

Col. Bradford's aim is neither to make it easier to enter into a sustained war, nor to suggest nuclear weapons as a means of compensating for the limitations of ground power, rather, it is to provide choices other than even less desirable alternatives.

Maj. John F. Meahan III, U.S. Army, takes a close look at "Soviet Manuevers — Summary 1971" in his article and notes the training activities which lead up to the annual combined arms maneuvers.

With dual goals of realism and psychological strain frequently in conflict, Soviet maneuvers generally approximate the ideal in realism which is the overriding concern.

Meahan concludes that such realistic and demanding exercises maintain the vigor of a state of high readiness, fully prepared for virtually any eventuality.

Gen. Cao Van Vien, Chief, Joint General Staff, Republic of Vietnam Armed Forces, says in "Vietnam — What Next the Strategy of Isolation" that in the four years following the Communist 1968 Tet offensive, the crisis has been reduced essentially to a war of logistics.

Dr. Edward Bernard Glick, professor of political science at Temple University, Philadelphia, studies the military world, Alfred Thayer Mahan, in "The Influence of a Historian on History."

Alfred Mahan may not have been a truly outstanding naval officer when on active duty, but after his death he was called the "first philosopher of sea power."

Dr. Glick analyzes Mahan as a historian and the events that led to his becoming one. In Dr. Glick's opinion, regardless of Mahan's faults, he is probably the most influential military writer the United States ever produced. He made the writing of naval history more than a mere recounting of sea battles

Benning helps fight drug abuse

BY SUZANNE BOSTICK

Benning House, the first combined drug and alcoholic treatment center on any Army post, will hold an open house this Sunday from 1 to 3 p.m.

The open house is part of a valley-wide emphasis on drug abuse prevention and control, "Tri-City Drug Abuse Prevention Week" begins today, and ends April 15, and will involve personnel from Fort Benning as well as the Columbus Jaycees and local police departments.

Today at 10 a.m., a proclamation announcing Tri-City Drug Abuse Prevention Week was signed in Mayor J. R. Allen's office by Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbot, pest commander, Mayor John M. Anthony of Phenix City, and Mayor Allen.

On Saturday, a Drug Abuse Prevention Display will be on view at the Main PX from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. The display will include actual confiscated drugs, and will be staffed by the Provost Marshal Drug Education Team, the Post Chaplain Office, and the Drug Abuse Control Office.

Also on Saturday, the Columbus Police Department will sponsor a display at Columbus Square for the civilian community.

On Sunday, Benning House will be open to all Post personnel from 1 to 3 p.m. visitors will be taken on small group tours, and will have a chance to talk with staff members and see various phases of the Benning House program. Refreshments will be served.

On Monday, April 10, the Columbus Police Department Display will move to Cross Country Plaza from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. CODAC (Community Organization for Drug Abuse Control) speakers will be featured on Monday at a luncheon of the Phenix City Rotary Club.

A post-wide Family Problem-Solving Seminar will be held April 11 at 7 p.m. in Marshall Auditorium, conducted by Chaplain (Capt.) Thomas Fraker. The seminar will attempt to increase communication between families through open discussion. Also on April 11, the Phenix City Police Department will sponsor a display at Grant's in Phenix Plaza from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

A ribbon-cutting ceremony for the Community Organization for Drug Abuse Control will be held at 9:30 a.m. on Tuesday, April 12. The ceremony will take place in CODAC's office downtown in the Ralston Hotel. Participating will be Mayor J. R. Allen and other local dignitaries.

At 7:30 p.m. on April 12, a second Family Problem-Solving Seminar will be conducted by Chaplain Fraker at Columbus College's Fine Arts Hall Auditorium. This seminar is open to the public, and admission is free.

On April 13, the Phenix City Police Department display will be located at Howard Brothers Discount Store from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The presidents of all local high school classes will tour the Drug Intervention Group Center, located next to the Health Department, on April 14.

Members of CODAC will appear before various PTA meetings in the valley during Drug Abuse Prevention Week, as well as local television and radio shows.

The Community Organization for Drug Abuse Control grew out of the Mayor's Commission on Drug Abuse, which was appointed by Mayor J. R. Allen in April 1971. The commission recommended to the Metro Council in August 1971 that an area agency be created to combat the growing drug abuse problem in the area.

In November 1971, representatives of several community organizations began meeting to discuss possible courses of action, and in January of this year CODAC was formed as a subsidiary of the Columbus Jaycees.

AUSA Day Celebrated Wednesday

Mayor J. R. Allen of Columbus and Mayor John M. Anthony of Phenix City the well-being of the entire community. Both proclaimed last Wednesday as Association of the United States Army (AUSA) Day. The local chapter of AUSA, has contributed to the well-being of the entire community. Both men praised AUSA's scholarships, help to charitable organizations and sponsorship of patriotic events.

Allen and Anthony expressed the pride of local civilians in Fort Benning's accomplishments and their support of the Army. This day is one of the finest public relations efforts of the twin cities.

Charles S. Daley, first vice president of AUSA, announced a concentrated membership drive was held "We do it our way." The membership campaign started with breakfast at the Ralston Motor Hotel.

AUSA is a non-profit, educational organization. Members — civilian and military — firmly believe that a thoroughly professional Army, supported by the American people, is essential to national defense. Activities are dedicated to keeping the Army's goals before the people and to benefiting the military-civilian community.

SUBJECT: The Army Cost Reduction Program

All Fort Benning Personnel

Infantry School makes changes

Several major changes in Infantry School administrative positions were announced this week.

Col. William Steele is moving from director of the Leadership Department to become Secretary. He is replacing Col. Herbert Frandsen, who is moving to the directorship of the Company Operations Department.

Former Company Operations Department director Col. John Osteen has been reassigned to Thailand. Replacing Col. Steele in the Leadership Department is Lt. Col. Billy Rutherford, who was serving as chairman of the Leadership Committee.

1. Fort Benning personnel have generated savings totaling over twenty million dollars since the Army Cost Reduction Program was initiated eight years ago. These savings were the result of individual management improvements and suggestions throughout the installation. The success we have enjoyed is the direct result of the positive attitude and pride in professionalism which exists among our personnel.

2. Just as new challenges face us in all walks of life, we encounter new challenges in support of the Cost Reduction Program each fiscal year. Reductions in manpower and money make it imperative that we remain constantly alert to detect and implement improved methods of management.
3. The Cost Reduction Program affords us an opportunity to demonstrate the positive actions taken each day to improve management and conserve resources. The program's success depends on the enthusiastic support of commanders, intermediate supervisors and especially the personal support of each individual assigned to Fort Benning.
4. I earnestly solicit your continued support and ask that you exert a special effort during the 4th Quarter of Fiscal Year 1972 to assist as in again demonstrating that Fort Benning has a truly outstanding Cost Reduction Program.

Col. Steele accepts secretary position

Col. William B. Steele, director of the Leadership Department, announced at a recent briefing of his department that he would assume, temporarily, the position of Secretary of the Infantry School.

Col. Steele announced that Col. Herbert L. Franzen, current secretary, would be taking charge of the Company Operations Department. He also said that Lt. Col. Billy E. Rutherford will be acting director of the Leadership Department in his absence.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

by Bill King

For homemade nut butter, blend unsalted peanuts, cashews or almonds, or half cut at a time, with 1 or 2 tablespoons of oil (just enough to reach the desired consistency). Add a dash of salt and a speck of sugar to taste.

Does your plastic wrap stick to itself when you try to unroll it? Try keeping it in the refrigerator.

A tiny dash of caraway seeds added to liver or kidneys before sauteing will lend a nice flavor.

When making baked custard, put a marshmallow into each custard cup before pouring in the mixture. The kids will love this surprise ending!

17 officers inducted in OCS Hall of Fame

Seventeen officers, including two major generals, were inducted into the Infantry Officer Candidate School Hall of Fame yesterday at Wigle Hall.

The two general officers who were inducted, but did not attend the ceremony, were Maj. General Maurice W. Kendall, director of Inter-American Region, office of the Secretary of Defense, Washington, and Maj. Gen. Lee M. Paschall, director of Communications and Electronics, Department of the Air Force, Washington.

Four of the officers to be inducted attended the ceremony. They are Col. Charles H. Dalton III, commanding officer of Headquarters Command, U. S. Army Training Center, Ft. Jackson, S. C.; Col. William H. Harper, commanding officer, U. S. Army Marksmanship Training Unit, Fort Benning; Col. Patrick J. McDonnell, deputy commandant, Southeastern Signal School, Ft. Gordon, Ga.; Col. Paul N. Simon, Headquarters U. S. Army Electronics Command, Ft. Monmouth, N. J.; Col. (ret.) Kenneth J. Hallinan, St. Louis, Mo.; Col. Phillip L. Mason, Office of the Chief of Public Affairs, Headquarters Sixth U. S. Army, The Presidio, San Francisco, Calif., and Col. (ret.) Francis R. Pursell, Chicago, Ill.

Other officers inducted but did not attend are Col. Charles E. Conrad, chief of the Ordnance Branch, Office of Personnel Directorate, Office of Personnel Operations, Washington; Col. David J. Hornstein, Office of the Comptroller of the Army, Washington; Col. Wayne J. Yoe, Army Inspector General, Headquarters 1st U. S. Army, Ft. Meade, Md.; Col. John E. Tyler, chief of plans, Headquarters United Nations Command, U. S. Forces, Korea; Col. George W. Everett, chief of staff, U. S. Army Strategic Communications Command, Ft. Huachuca, Ariz.; Col. (ret.) Arthur H. Kennedy, South Bend, Ind.; Col. Marlin E. Thrasher, U. S. Army Combat Development Command, Experimentation Command (USADMXC), Ft. Ord, Calif., and Col. Raymond S. Webster, U. S. Army Element, Office of the Secretary of Defense, Washington.

To be eligible for the OCS Hall of Fame an officer must have reached the rank of colonel, received the Medal of Honor, distinguished himself in civilian life or been nominated for the honor by the command of the Infantry School, Ft. Benning, Ga., and Col.

IOAC racers

IOAC students drives 'Super Stock Car'

Capt. Chris Seammun, a student in Infantry Officer Advanced Course No. 2-72, can lay claim to an unusual hobby: driving a "Super-Stock Car."

Since last October, he and a friend, Jim Parker of Columbus, have been partners in a racing venture that has won them about $350 in prize money to date.

That's not bad for a hobby, especially when you consider that they are still racing in amateur class. The car that wins this prize money is a 1966 Chevrolet Bel Air, with a 283 cubic inch engine, and 220 horsepower.

Seammun and Parker race in Super Stock Class "R", one of 32 classes in their Super Stock Eliminator Bracket. There are 3 such brackets in the National Hot Rod Association. Super Stock racing is a type of drag racing which involves a 1/4 mile track instead of the standard circular stock car track.

Their biggest race so far has been the Gator Nationals, held March 18 and 19 in Gainesville, Fla. Out of 160 cars entered in Super-stock category in the race, only 32 could qualify to run, and their car was number 3 out of those 32. They went all the way to the semifinal category in the elimination races, and were among the last 4 cars in the race.

Coming up this weekend, April 8 and 9, is the World Championship Series Points Race in Phoenix City. On Saturday, they will try to set a national record for ET (Elapsed Time) on the quarter-mile track.

The current national record for ET is 12.15 seconds. They have beat this record several times already with 12.87 seconds, but never yet in a World Championship Series race.

Seammun, who comes from Bettendorf, Iowa, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold E. Seammun of Bettendorf. He has always been interested in cars and racing, and has been racing, one way or another, since high school.

He and his partner hope to go all the way to the World Finals this October in Amarillo, Texas, and the race this Saturday will hopefully start them on their way.

ROTC drill competition in March

Soldiers from the 27th Support Battalion recently took part in the first annual Gadsden County High School ROTC drill competition held March 24 and 25 in Quincy, Fla.

"Participating as judges, the soldiers rated the students on basic army drill and ceremonies along with fancy drill," explained Capt. Walter E. Farr, one of the judges from the battalion.

Even though plagued by inclement weather, ROTC units from Quincy, Chattahoochee, Havana, and Greensboro participated in the event, with the James A. Shanks High School drill team, from Quincy winning over-all. This win entitles the unit to participate in the State competition May 13, held at the Florida Institute of Technology, Melbourne, Fla.

"Each unit was rated on a point system, for the way they prosecuted the various regiments connected with drill and ceremonies, at both the platoon and squad levels," said CSM Richard S. Davis, assistant to the director of Army instruction in Gadsden County.

"The first drill of its kind in the area, was set up in Gadsden by Davis to create interest on the part of the students and to promote ROTC training in the community.

"The judges were extremely professional, did an outstanding job, and it is, in my opinion, that the weather been good, this would have been the nearest to perfect of any function that I have seen," commented one recruiter in the area.

Those soldiers acting as where; Farr, and Lt. William Raymond and Grego-judges from the Battalion 72, Nephew.

Georgia veterans get benefits

Benefits paid to Georgia veterans and their dependents in 1971 totaled more than $77 million dollars. According to Georgia Veterans Service Director Pete Wheeler this represents an increase of almost 9 per cent over the 1970 total.

In an address Saturday morning to the statewide Spring Conference of the Disabled American Veterans, meeting in Savannah and attended by veterans from all over Georgia, Wheeler said, "These benefits were paid to veterans, their dependents and survivors in recognition of the veterans' period of military service to their country."

"Many people do not realize that the effects of a war do not end when the last shots are fired. The effects of a war on the lives of its participants may continue forever, often worsening as the participant ages."

As an example, Wheeler cited the 22,000 World War I veterans living in Georgia today whose average age is 78. He said, "The infirmities of old age coupled with wartime disabilities make the need for medical care and hospitalization become more acute everyday."

Wheeler mentioned another group of veterans with increasing health problems. He said, "Georgia has about a quarter of a million World War II veterans with an average age of 50, and that's the point in life when disabilities and age just naturally tend to increase the need for services."

Emphasizing the need for improved care facilities for veterans, Wheeler said, "About 2,000 veterans are returning to Georgia every month. And there is a greater percentage of disabled veterans coming home from the Viet Nam War than in any previous year." He credited this Susanne Vossfeldt of Columbus, Miss. Columbus, U. S. A., receives an official invitation to the West Point Military Academy (Class of 1971) Hop June 8 at Fort Benning. The invitation is presented by Capt. Gary E. Dolan, Fort Benning protocol officer, in behalf of Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott, post commander, and Mrs. Talbott. Miss Vossfeldt will be one of many area young ladies attending the hop, a highlight of the cadets' annual visit to Fort Benning. Any single girl between the ages of 17 and 25 can "invite herself" to the hop by calling the Protocol Division at Area Code 404, 545-4622, 1811 or 7112. Those who live outside the Columbus area may call collect. Information wanted: name, age, height, home address and telephone number. Along with each invitation extended will be a street map of Fort Benning and the address of the officer and his wife who will sponsor the young lady, who will meet her cadet date at their sponsor's home at 7:30 p.m. on June 8. Go ahead for the presentation to Miss Vossfeldt, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Vossfeldt, were two members of the Academy golf team, Cadet Andy Andrews, Petersburg, Va., and George Jackson, team captain from Houston, Tex. Grant amnesty to draft dodgers???

"What would you do about the draft dodgers who fled to Canada if you had the power?" was the question asked of eight Fort Benning soldiers.

Try as he might the reporter could find no one willing to grant amnesty to the draft dodgers without extracting some form of payment from these men. Some started out by saying they would do nothing, but as they thought about the question, they would all decide the men could not be allowed to go entirely free.

"Getting too lax on offenders on people who do whatever they want to do. I would give these draft dodgers a second chance."

"I just wouldn't let them come back into this country," was the only comment Pvt. Daniel K. Duval, 3rd Ranger Co., had for the question.

PFC James H. Kaster, 4th Co., 4th Student Bn., would make the draft dodgers serve a two-year tour of duty in the armed forces but would not force them to carry a weapon. "I would place them in a branch such as the medical corps," he said.

Sps Rickey T. Fujino, 53rd Co., 5th Student Bn., said that since the man has to live with his own conscience, that should be punishment enough. However, he did add that some thought should be given to having them serve their country in some manner, such as the Peace Corps.

"I feel all these people will return eventually so this question will need to be resolved eventually." Pvt. Jon M. Watson, 5th Co., 5th Student Bn. said, "I would not grant these men amnesty. They went against a responsibility each of us has to serve our country. These individuals should not be allowed to come back into the country and if they did I would punish them in some way. Our country is PFC Russell T. Howard, 3rd Ranger Co., said, "I wouldn't do anything about the draft dodgers as long as they didn't try to come back to this country. If they do come back I would kick them back out. They don't deserve to live here."

SSGT Charles F. Lewis, Aerial Employment Committee, BEOB, said, "I don't feel you can make a decision at this time. It is still entirely too emotional an issue and I think we should wait until the war is over and people have calmed down some."

Cpl. Ruben Cash Jr., Hqs. Co., 1st Bn., 22d Inf., said he would not grant amnesty to the draft dodgers. "I might give them a chance to serve in the armed forces now, but if they did not accept this offer, I would send them to jail."

Sgt Florencio Ramirez, B Btry, 2nd Bn., 10th Arty, said he would induct the men into the armed forces as soon as they returned to this country.

Army completes self-appraisal

The following is a reprint of an article in the New York Times by Gen. William C. Westmoreland, Chief of Staff of the Army.

In a recent column on this page, I provided an assessment of the Army as it is today and mentioned briefly some of the measures we are taking to revitalize it as we enter the post-Vietnam era.

The Army has just completed an intense self-appraisal, closely re-examining its most basic assumptions and practices and holding no aspect of Army life sacred. The results of that analysis are now being translated into varied programs to build an increasingly dynamic, professional Army — an Army with challenges that will attract and retain a cross-section of our society's most capable young Americans. These programs are designed to relate traditional military values to a rapidly changing American society. Thus, the time-proven ingredients of discipline and professionalism are still the basis of today's — and tomorrow's — Army.

To strengthen professionalism throughout our ranks, we are emphasizing the theme "back to soldiering." We are eliminating "make-work" jobs and releasing soldiers from nonmilitary duties so they can participate more fully in their scheduled training or operational tasks. In this regard, we are hiring civilian personnel to assist in kitchen police (KP) and to maintain our buildings and grounds.

As we free more men for training, we are improving the quality of the training they receive. Junior commanders are being charged with more training responsibility and given additional authority to determine the best way to attain their performance objectives. We are employing new, imaginative techniques for providing realistic experiences to soldiers, thereby better preparing them for the ultimate test of combat. "Adventure training" is being emphasized at the small-unit level to develop in peacetime the personal qualities of courage, stamina, and self-confidence. Soldiers are participating in mountaineering and other such activities that challenge as well as instruct. Recently, an Army Special Forces team retraced the route of the Lewis and Clark expedition. Exciting and somewhat dangerous, this type of training tests each soldier's resourcefulness while adding to his self-reliance.

Although the Army of the future will be smaller, the quality of the individual soldier will be higher. We are examining our enlisted force and screening out those whose performance of duty and attitude are inadequate. At the same time, those who meet our standards will be able to benefit from a comprehensive and progressive education program.

As I travel throughout this country, I find our Army recruiters especially enthusiastic about these education programs which offer opportunities to many of our nation's young people who would otherwise have fewer chances to develop their potential. Soldiers may now acquire skills that will permit them not only to advance within a military organization but also prepare them for contributing to society when they return to civilian life.

The success of our efforts to build a more professional Army will ultimately depend on the quality of our leaders. Since a leader's effectiveness is based to a large extent on knowledge of his significantly lengthened command tours for officers, and plan to stabilize assignments for senior noncommissioned officers. To bring out the best in the individual soldier, we are revising leadership instruction consistent with principles and procedures derived from new studies in behavioral science.

For our officer corps, a major restructuring of career management is in progress. We are developing a new Officer Personnel Management System which will encourage officers with special skills in staff work or technical fields, such as logistics and automatic data processing, to develop fully their potential, while providing opportunity for those talented in command to concentrate in that area. We have an officer corps that is exceptionally rich in both practical experience and academic accomplishment. Nearly 82 per cent of our Regular Army officers already hold baccalaureate degrees and over 20 percent have advanced degrees. For our NCO that of the officer corps, which will provide professional corps, we are organizing a school system, similar to education training at key points in an NCO's career.

I would like to add that our emphasis on enhanced professionalism extends to the Reserve Components. Besides instituting programs similar to those in the Active Army, we are improving the equipment and facilities available to our Reserve and National Guard units. I think it should be apparent that we hope to make service in the Army today a meaningful period in the soldier's growth as a person and as a citizen. Our focus is on people and their professional and personal development because, in the final analysis, our Army's strength in battle will be determined by the will and ability of the individual soldier, the competence and compassion of his leaders, and the esteem in which the American public holds its fighting forces.

ROTC Cadets visit Benning

More than 140 Reserve Officer Training Corps (ROTC) cadets arrived at Fort Benning Thursday for a first-hand look at the training and living environment of an army officer.

The visit is part of a continuing Infantry-ROTC recruiting program being conducted by the Infantry School.

The cadets, following a tour of the post, attended an informal dinner at the Officers Open Mess Supper Club. This morning in Marshall Auditorium they will be officially welcomed on post by Maj. Gen. Orvin C. Trabott, post commander.

Cadets will be broken down into groups of four for their remaining time at Fort Benning and each group will be escorted by an officer from one of the Infantry Officers Advanced Course classes. Where possible cadets will be matched with escort officers who are ROTC graduates from the same school.

While at Benning, the cadets will observe young officers performing the duties they could expect to receive if entering the Infantry branch.

While on post the cadets are paying for their billeting and meals.

43rd Engr. build four test ranges

Co. C of the 43rd Engr. Bn. has been working hand in hand with the Infantry Board on a projected Dragon Expanded Service Test. The Dragon is an anti-tank weapon which is in the testing stages and the 43rd Engr. Bn. has been assigned to construct four test ranges to test the new equipment.

The four ranges are North Ruth Range, South Ruth Range, O'Brien Range and Carmouche Range. North Ruth Range is the only range of the four that has been completed and the other three have been given completion dates for the near future. All four of the ranges will under go extensive trenching for moving target tracks, electrical wiring systems, demolition pits and numerous types of benkers. All in all the men of the E and M Platoon have done an outstanding job on the construction project.

197th starts "Clean Up Kelley Hill"

BY WILLIAM E. BALA

The 197th Infantry Brigade is currently working on an ecology project behind the Kelley Hill Gym. The project involves restoring an old drainage system that has deteriorated through the years.

The equipment and manpower is provided by the 72nd Engineers, 197th Support Battalion. The project is expected to be completed by the 10th of April.

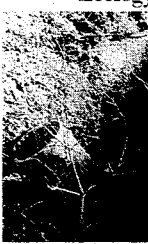

The project was started as part of a 197th Infantry Brigade program to help "Clean Up Kelley Hill." The ecology system is working "very well with this project, because the men seem to be closer related when they are working together," stated one soldier working on the project.

In late March the project was started to clean the environment within the 197th. All members are involved with cleaning up the area to make Kelley Hill a better place to live.

One of the bulldozer operators of the 72nd Engineers stated that "ecology is really an amazing project when men strive to accomplish the best results for the good of the brigade."

The ecology program within the 197th also includes repairs the Munson Hallport. Members of HHC have worked on this section of the ecology program during their physical training at the end of the day. "This project may not be involved with any sort of adventure training but it shows that the Army is trying to make the atmosphere that the soldier lives in a little better than what it currently is," stated one of the volunteers from HHC.

Each week brings something new in the Thrift Shop's renovation program. The red barn doors and rustic sign in the main building reflect the Country Store theme. "The Bargain Barn," converted from the Annex, is ready for items to be placed. Pitch in and help Saturday at 11 a.m. The Thrift Shop also will be open tomorrow from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. for business.

During the months of January and February, Fort Benning recycled enough paper to save the equivalent of all the trees in the median strip between the Main Gate and the MP station from being buried in a landfill.

If you are not already, help recycle paper. Bring cardboard boxes and newspapers (but not magazines or wax coated paper) to the recycling center one block southwest of the Commissary.

OWC

Sam Pate, biology and ecology teacher at Hardaway High School, will show color slides and discuss the relationship of wildlife to man at the OWC Environmental Workshop at 10 a.m. Tuesday April 11th in the OWC Lounge. Everyone is welcome. For further information call 545-5925 or 689-2035. The Environmental Management Div. sponsored the workshop last Tuesday.

OWC Classes provide continuous activity for members. Call Mrs. R. C. Miller at 545-4739 to find how to sign up.

The Spring Atlanta trip will be April 25. Buses will leave the Officers' Club at 8 a.m. and will return that evening. The $6.50 tickets will include a fashion show and box lunch at a department store and an afternoon tea. For more details, call Mrs. Russell C. Miller at 545-4739 or Mrs. Jack Cummings at 545-4797.

The Commanders' wives meeting is changed from Monday to April 17 at 1 p.m.

RED CROSS VOLUNTEERS

You see them everywhere... at the outpatient clinics, in specialist clinics at Martin Army Hospital, shopping for patients at the PX, helping with patient recreation, at the dental clinic, in the veterinary clinic, at the dependent schools. They are American Red Cross Volunteers. Why not be one of them? Register for the next basic training class to be held Tuesday evening from 7 to 10. Call the Red Cross Office at 545-2122, 2124 or Jean Campbell at 689-6289.

6TH MAINT. BN.

Dreary Monday was filled with comic laughter March 6 when the ladies of the 6th Maint. Bn. were called for a "come as you are" coffee. The affair was sponsored by Mrs. E. O. Atkinson, wife of the commanding officer. The dress and hair styles were, to say the least, different from most other coffees.

The monthly coffee was held in the home of Mrs. Julius Drew with Mrs. Tom Bolt as co-hostess. Green decorations reflecting St. Patrick were throughout the house.

The feature of the evening was a stork shower for Mrs. James Coston. The business meeting was short, consisting of final plans for the covered-dish dinner and the battalion's Easter egg hunt.

New members were Mrs. Albert Biddle and Mrs. Tom Boll.

INFANTRY AGENCY

The ladies of the Infantry Agency had a brunch at the Country Club March 16. Hostesses were Mrs. James P. Hughes and Mrs. Douglas M. Hughes. Green cloths covered the tables in honor of St. Patrick's Day and the main table had a centerpiece of yellow and white daisies. Mrs. James Hughes offered the blessing before the brunch at which ham, scrambled eggs, sweet rolls and coffee were served.

Mrs. Robert Siegrist welcomed Mrs. John E. Korhonen, Mrs. Joseph Binkiewicz and Mrs. William J. Robertson.

The theme for the brunch was "Greenery in Action" and the guest speaker was Mrs. Gary Warahoff. Mrs.

DIO LADIES

The Mirror Room of the Main Officers' Club was where the DIO ladies held a luncheon for Mrs. Charles W. Rock, whose husband is retiring.

Table decorations of green and white carnations graced the table with a St. Patrick's theme used in the name tags. The centerpiece was given to Mrs. John S. Sagul. Hostesses for the luncheon were Mrs. Sagul, Mrs. J. W. Marlon and Mrs. J. L. Todd.

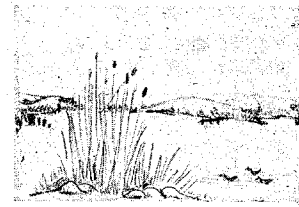

Mrs. Rock was presented a silver relish dish and an engraved recipe box. The newcomers—welcomed and presented a plant by Mrs. Robert E. Hall—were Mrs. Henry Hutcheson and Mrs. L. Stevena.

AVIATION CMD

The officers wives of the 608th Aviation Co. had an opportunity recently to see how hard their husbands work.

Prior to a tour of the company, the wives met in the 608th recreation area for refreshments and a brief orientation by Capt. Berchard Shipley. Maj. Irvin Travis joined the group for a tour of the administrative area. They also saw the supply area and office section and were impressed by the security measures in these areas.

The tour continued by bus, first stopping at the motor pool. The wives then were driven to the 608th hangar where they viewed various sections including Avionics and the maintenance shops. The ladies also saw a demonstration of the computer equipment in the 608th area.

The wives then went to the Officers' Club where they met their husbands for lunch.

LEADERSHIP DEPT.

Engineer Hall at Sand Hill was the scene when the officers and wives of the Leadership Committee held a hail and farewell March 18. A buffet supper of lasagne, salad, garlic bread, assorted desserts and coffee was served. Organizing and cooking the dinner were Mesdames Billy Rutherford, Robert Boothby, John Turnage, Roy Burns, James Williams, Mack Holt, Jack Humphries, Mack Rogers and David Petrusa.

Lt. Col. Rutherford followed Capt. and Mrs. Michael O'Reilly to the committee. Farewell wall plaques were presented to Capt. Harold Sluder and Capt. Kenneth Hogan who are leaving the service. A baby cup was presented to Capt. and Mrs. Rogers.

Easter baskets filled with candy eggs decorated the home of Mrs. Billy E. Rutherford as the officers' wives of the Leadership Committee held a coffee March 21. Co-hostess for the evening was Mrs. Thomas Harrison.

Name tags were shaped like rabbits. Coffee, punch and assorted cakes were served. A cake in the shape of a rabbit decorated the refreshment table. The cake, which was given to Mr. James Williams, was made by Mrs. Harrison. Also receiving gifts were Mrs. Jack Humphries and Mrs. James Wolfe.

During a short business meeting, Mrs. Rutherford told the women that Mrs. Roy Burns would be taking over while the latter's husband, Maj. Burns, was temporary committee chairman.

RANGER OFFICERS' WIVES

Officers of the Fort Benning Ranger Dept. and their families had a spaghetti dinner at King's Pond Lodge March 13. The outing was sponsored by the wives as a money-raising project for their "welfare fund."

On the menu was spaghetti, salads, garlic bread, homemade pies, beer and tea. A touch of the "Gay Nineties" was added by the straw hats of the bartenders.

In charge of the committee was Mrs. James T. Hill. Mrs. Powell A. Johnson was head of ticket sales; Maj. Johnson, the serving; Capt. and Mrs. Gary L. Gresh, beverages; Mrs. William B. Sweeney, salads and pies; and Mrs. Richard M. Horn, fliers. Mesdames Hill, Horn, Alvin L. Henning and David E. Grange cooked and Captain Richard M. Egan, James F. Walsh, Alvin L. Henning and Charles D. Young helped serve and tend bar. SFC Jimmie L. Jackson also contributed to the party's success. The evening was climaxed by a silent outdoor film of an ROTC class going through the Ranger Course.

The Ranger Officers' Wives' Club met March 22 for business and brunch in the Main Officers' Club. New officers were elected: Mrs. Alvin L. Henning, president; Mrs. Jerry R. Barahill, 1st vice-president; Mrs. Joseph M. Jakubowski, 2nd vice-president; Mrs. Gary L. Gresh, 3rd vice-president; Mrs. Thomas W. Ellis, secretary and Mrs. Wendell O. Doody, treasurer.

Mrs. David E. Grange, wife of the director of the Ranger Dept. presented the outgoing officers with silver phone-dialers as well as thanks and appreciation. Adding to the "springtime" decorations of yellow, green and white and the dogwood blossoms were the hats of many ladies. Mrs. Frank H. Scott was awarded the floral centerpiece for having the most beautiful hat. Mrs. Gene W. Cole received a gift certificate and an "egg" filled with Easter goodies for the funniest hat. Mrs. Karl V. Hurdle and her mother, Mrs. Riley, were judges.

There were no new members; leaving were Mrs. Joseph Dingo and Mrs. Frank E. Peabody. The ladies received silver card trays and the good wishes of the club. The outgoing board members planned and decorated the brunch.

Presidential primaries analyzed

BY EDITH SIMMONS

Every four years, American voters award the big prize in American politics... the Office of the President of the United States.

The election road is a difficult one. Serious candidates try to win large blocks of delegate support before the nominating conventions meet. This support is gained two ways: candidates may receive pledged votes from state party conventions; or, if the state party chooses, it may hold a presidential preference primary to determine whom it will support.

This year, 24 states are holding presidential primaries. No other election year has seen so many.

For the 12 Democratic candidates, the primaries are the proving grounds for their chances. New Hampshire has only 20 delegate votes but its primary support carries the psychological impact of being first. Here, Sen. Edmund Muskie got 14 delegates and less of the popular vote, (48 per cent). Sen. McGovern took 6 delegates and a surprising 97 per cent of the vote.

Florida had the first big primary. Seven leading candidates put on their track shoes. Alabama Gov. George Wallace got 73 of the delegates. Sen. Humphrey ran a distant second with 18 per cent of 6 delegates.

Muskie gathered back some of his lost ground in Illinois when he captured 69 delegates away from Mayor Daley's slate of uncommitted conventioners. Sen. McGovern could only take 13. The other candidates weren't running that day.

Wisconsin was another field day for the voters, press, and candidates. The delegates turned away from Muskie and gave McGovern 30 per cent of their support. That 30 per cent gave McGovern 54 of the state's 67 delegates. Gov. Wallace and Senator Humphrey ran a close second and third with 22 per cent and 21 per cent. Muskie took 11 per cent and Senator Jackson 8 per cent.

Florida and Wisconsin have dampened the chances of several candidates but not their hopes. Although Mayor John Lindsay has announced his withdrawal, Reps. Shirley Chisholm, Wilbur Mills, and McCarthy are still holding on to their plans.

The big tests for everybody's hopes will come April 25. Massachusetts and Pennsylvania go to the polls then. The Bay Staters have 102 delegates and the Quakers 170. A weak showing here will erase the chances of several candidates.

A candidate chooses the primaries he will enter for

Columbus College

Education financing available for GI's

Finding money to finance your college education is easy with veterans and servicemen these days.

If you are currently serving in the armed forces or are a veteran of military service, you may qualify for one of five programs.

Servicemen and veterans of military service are all eligible for aid from the Veterans Administration.

Soldiers must first apply to the college of their choice, and once accepted, they may then apply for VA benefits, either through their college or local V.A. office.

Clark Aldridge, director of financial aid placement at Columbus College, advises prospective students to apply early for benefits, however, because administrative processes generally take six weeks before the first payments arrive.

But under a new "package plan" of the Veterans Administration, applicants mail in one envelope their application forms, separation papers (DD214 form) if discharged, and a paper from the college certifying their acceptance for enrollment.

Formerly, applicants had to wait for word from the V.A. that they were "eligible" for benefits. This certificate had to be verified by the institution the student attended and sent back to the V.A. before any assistance was received. With this step now eliminated, the administrative process takes from three to four weeks.

Another time-saving procedure now employed by the V.A. eliminates the need for copies of marriage licenses and birth certificates for dependents. The information is simply entered on the application form. In certain cases, however (as in the case of multiple marriages or adopted children), verification is necessary.

Benefits vary for each person but the basic entitlement for a single full-time student is $175 per month. Payment goes up to $205 per month if the student is married, $250 per month if married with a child, and $13 per month for each additional dependent.

If not enrolled full-time, benefits decrease accordingly, and if an active serviceman enrolls, his benefits are limited to the price of tuition and fees alone. He gets no living expenses.

Anyone who has served at least 181 days of continuous active duty in the armed forces, and who does not hold a dishonorable discharge, is entitled to V.A. benefits.

Currently, some 600 veterans are taking advantage of the G.I. Bill on the Columbus College campus alone. Many of these are enrolled at the Fort Benning campus extension. In addition, servicemen may find they are eligible for Social Security and V.A. dependent benefits if they are under 22 and still in school.

Many may also qualify for state loans and scholarships if they are residents of Georgia and do not live on post.

Other options available for the active serviceman include the predischARGE education program (FRPE), the degree-completion program, the military tuition assistance program, and the Army Education of Civilian Institutions plan.

While graduates of the Airborne School, 4th Bn. TSB, are busy polishing their jump boots, a few non-graduates have to contend with the "white jump boot" or, in other words, a leg cast. In order to recognize the efforts of these unfortunate few, the 4th Bn. presented a certificate, the White Jump Boot Award, to those who were unable to complete the jump course. The trophy that accompanies the award is, naturally, the injured man's cast. 1st Lt. William Sheppard, XO, 4th Co., and originator of the award, presents Sgt. Michael Rader with a "White Jump Boot" certificate on March 1. Pictured (L-R): Sgt. Douglas Nitzkowski, Sgt. Michael Rader, 1st Lt. William Sheppard.

158th officers given soldiers

Ever so tall and diligent they stand as if on continuous vigilance against any threat. Revolutionary soldiers? Minute men? No, these are actually plaster replicas of the "Patriot" soldier, now used as farewell gifts for departing Patriot officers of the 1st Battalion (Mech), 50th Infantry.

The need for a unique departure gift was noted by the battalion commander, Lt. Col. Stephen R. Pawlik, immediately upon his assumption of command. Departure gifts to this time consisted of the usual caps and pen sets which were tucked away by the receiving officers soon after their departure.

Lt. Col. Pawlik saw the plaster soldiers at the Fort Benning Garden Store, and realizing their uniqueness, detailed the Battalion Executive Officer to secure suitable mountings for the plaques and prepare them for presentations. The result — a gift far removed from any other presented by any other unit in the Army.

Presentation of the Patriot plaques is now standard and is expected to be a long standing tradition for the future.

Getting out? Come back in again. As an officer.

If you're getting out, and thinking of going to college, think about Army ROTC.

Right now the thought of military service is probably the farthest thing from your mind. But things change. People change. Times change. And four years from now, coming back into the service as an officer might look pretty good.

Your active duty time can serve as credit for the first two years of ROTC. And the $100 a month subsistence allowance can go a long way toward solving your college money problems.

And when you graduate as a second lieutenant, you'll have several options. Going on active duty for two years or more. Or taking active duty for training for 3-5 months and then serving in the National Guard or Army Reserve.

All options mean officer's pay, retirement plan, and other benefits.

If you decide on a civilian career, Army ROTC will give you the management experience and leadership qualities that employers are looking for.

Whatever your decision—whether you stay out, or come back in again—ROTC can make a big difference. Think about it.

Army ROTC. The more you look at it, the better it looks.

Pennsylvania Explorer Scouts visit Fort Benning

BY RAY CHESNUT
"OK men, when you get off of the airplane pick up your bags and fall in on the yellow lines."
These words, familiar to Army personnel, marked the beginning of a week of adventure and training for nearly 100 Explorer Scouts from the Allegheny Trails Council of Explorer Scouts from the Pittsburgh, Pa. area.

The week of April 2-8, termed the Army Explorer Air Encampment is an annual event made available to the boys at their own expense during their spring break from high school.

Hosted by the 197th Infantry Brigade, the Explorers whose ages range from 14-18 through the course of the week are being familiarized with various aspects of Army life to include six weeks and ranger tactics, orienteering, leadership, escape and evasion, and adventure training.

Upon their arrival at Fort Benning the scouts were divided into two platoons and placed under the guidance of four non-commissioned officers from the Brigade's Central Training Command.

At the request of the Explorer Council, the training schedule is patterned after Basic military training and is rigorous in nature, with military discipline being stressed in all aspects of the week's work.

For the boys, the work day begins at 6 a.m. with a reveille formation followed by physical training and breakfast at seven.

After breakfast, there is an inspection and police call before moving to the training areas.

Candidates usually enter several primaries although success is not indicative of success at the convention. In fact, examples of such turnout abound. In 1968, Estes Kefauver beat Truman decisively in the New Hampshire primary but lost the convention to Adlai Stevenson. Again, in 1968, Eugene McCarthy embarrassed President Lyndon Johnson in New Hampshire, but still lost the nomination.

The presidential preference primary developed between 1910 and 1920. Political reformers were attempting to give the party rank-and-file more voice in the choice of presidential candidates. Before, 1910, the primary had been used to nominate candidates for state and political offices. The first such primary was held in 1842 in Crawford County, Pennsylvania. Like many primaries to follow, this one was a reaction against corrupt party bosses who had been selecting the candidates.

Primaries are governed by the same laws that control general elections. A voter is entitled to his full constitutional rights when voting in a primary. Ballots are printed at state expense and carry names of all properly registered candidates. The secret vote is administered by people sworn to conduct the election by law. Voting in the primary can be "open" or "closed." In a closed primary, only registered party members can vote. In "open" primaries, any qualified voter can vote but he must indicate which party's primary he is voting in.

Looking for a Career?

Look into our Basic Systems Course—career training in the fastest growing field of the 70's!
Approved for Veterans Educational Assistance Benefits

Opportunities in Systems Analysis:
183% more systems analysts will be needed in the 70's, according to the U.S. Department of Labor. That's the highest occupational growth rate in the nation—an increase of 380,000 job openings—and it could mean an ideal career for YOU! What are the benefits of a career in systems?

Good Pay:
The average pay for a junior systems analyst is over $11,000 per year. Senior systems men are now averaging between $13,400 and $20,000 per year.*

Challenge and Self-Fulfillment:
As a Systems Analyst, you are a generalist, not a technician. You become an employer's key influence in management planning, profit improvement, and the effective use of information technology. You are one of a new breed of management strategists whose problem-solving skills are in the greatest demand in virtually every type of large organization today. And most important, systems analysis is becoming a key skill for advancing to upper management positions—so you'll want this vital skill in your credentials.

Use Both On-duty and in the Future!
If you plan to leave the service, the Basic Systems Course will prepare you for an exciting career when you separate. (You can apply for veterans educational assistance benefits after 181 days of active duty.) But if the service is your career, this course will improve your management skills now—and prepare you for a second career when you retire.
Find out how the Basic Systems Course can help you break into this exciting field. Clip and mail the coupon today!

The Rod and Gun Club is the central point for outdoor activities of more than 5,000 men, women and children at Fort Benning.

The clubhouse, located on First Division Road in the Harmony Church area, provides a relaxed and rustic setting for reliving exciting moments of a hunting or fishing trip. Here members relax while they recall the details about the large buck they didn't get or the big bass that got away. Mounted deer heads, turkeys, ducks, various species of fish and rattlesnake skins decorating the club walls offer lasting proof of successful trips to the woods and waters of the reservation.

Members of the club enjoy numerous conveniences that make outdoor recreation more enjoyable. The lounge is a handy place to pick up a quick sandwich or hot meal before taking to the fields and a good place to relax over a cool drink at the end of the day.

The club sales outlet stocks all types of fishing bait and accessories, shotgun shells and other hunting equipment and has a rental service that allows members to go first class with a minimum expenditure of money.

Members may rent club owned boats located on most of the reservation ponds. Car top boat carriers are also available for fishermen who want to fish a pond that has no boats. Boat paddles, electric trolling motors, batteries and life preservers are also available on a rental basis.

The club operates four skeet ranges, a trap range and two field archery ranges. Local, sectional and state shoots have been held on these ranges.

The club sponsors various types of hunting and fishing contests for members. Each year big deer and small game hunting contests are held. The club also sponsors a monthly fishing contest. Prizes are awarded for the largest bass, bream and catfish. Fishing derbies are held over the weekends of various holidays. Turkey shoots, ham shoots and swap days are some of the other activities available to members.

The club does more than enhance outdoor recreation for members. Members actively participate in conservation and ecology programs to improve the fish and wildlife conditions on the reservation. This year the club contributed more than $8,000 toward the Fish and Wildlife program.

The Rod and Gun Club is the post agency for the sale of state hunting and fishing licenses and issue of the post hunting and fishing permits.

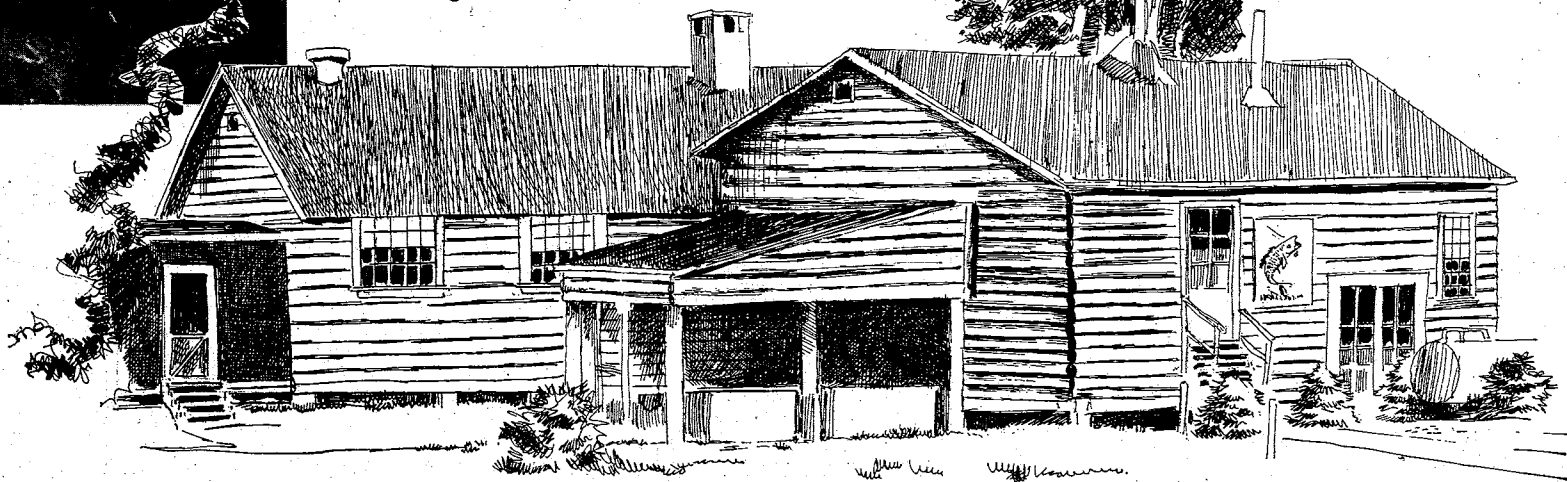

Membership is open to active duty and retired military personnel, civilian government employees working or who retired while working at Fort Benning and their dependents. Civilians not eligible for a regular membership may obtain a limited membership. The limited membership entitles the member to participate in all activities related to the trap and skeet ranges, archery ranges and the clubhouse.

Membership fees are $5 for regular members, $1 for dependents of members and $8 for limited membership. The membership year coincides with the time period of the Georgia State Hunting and Fishing Licenses and the Post Hunting and Fishing Permits which are in effect from April 1 to March 31 of the following year.

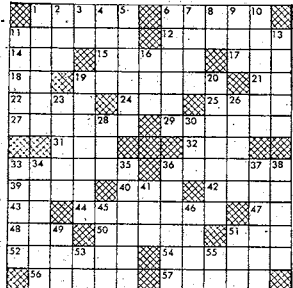

The 1972-73 Rod and Gun Club Membership Cards, Post Hunting and Fishing Permits and Georgia State Hunting and Fishing Licenses are available now. For the next few days Rod and Gun Club personnel will have these items in Infantry Hall, Bldg. 35, the 197th Brigade and the Post Commissary and Post Exchange. They may be obtained at any time at the Rod and Gun Club located on First Division Road in the Harmony Church Area.

Sp5 Tobin wins $25

Sp5 Timothy L. Tobin was awarded first prize in the Easter Sunrise Service Poster Contest, sponsored by the Fort Benning Coffee House.

Tobin received a check for $25.00 from Capt. (Chaplain) Robert H. Mask at the Coffee House on March 30. Chaplain Mask is Director of the Coffee House, a project of the USAIC Chaplain Division.

Sp5 Tobin is NCOIC at the Nonresident Instruction Department, USAIS. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Tobin, of Route 2, Box 469, Sanford, Florida.

Patriots test drown proofing

March 20, two platoons (1st Plt., A Co. and 1st Plt., C Co.), of the 1st Battalion (Mech), 8th Infantry (Patriots), 197th Infantry Brigade, were the first units in the Army to take Drown Proof Training.

Drown Proofing was developed at the Georgia Tech University. The Army decided to adopt the plan to train men how to prevent drowning caused by panic-stricken individuals.

The training is taught by 1st Lt. Joseph M. Bryan of the Quartermaster Dept. of the United States Army Infantry School. The training is divided into eight 1 1/2 hours of instructions. The first block of instruction includes a film for the introduction into the course. The second block concerns giving individuals actual training at the pool in Briant Wells Field House.

The third block of instruction is held in a classroom to teach the students the basic principles for undergoing such exercises. At the end of the training the men are given a two-part examination, first to float in water with a depth that is approximately ten feet for more than thirty minutes. The second phase makes the men travel across the length of the pool with their field gear attached to their persons.

In May the training has been scheduled to be taught to all AT students located at Fort Benning, Ft. Ord, Calif., Ft. Jackson, S.C., and Ft. Polk, La.

Benning House

According to James Stanford, CODAC's Executive Director, its stated purpose is "to coordinate all drug-related (including alcohol) efforts by the many organizations and agencies working in the field of drug abuse control within the Tri-City Area."

The Fort Benning drug abuse control program consists of inpatient care at Martin Army Hospital, and a two-month treatment period at Benning House. Maj. George Trick, Benning House Director, sees the program there "not as a permanent cure, but as offering the soldier who uses alcohol or takes drugs a choice of lifestyles, and an exposure to another way of life."

The Fort Benning alcohol program was established in March of 1970, and the resident drug treatment program was added in June 1971, making the combined program the first of its kind in the Army. The criteria for successful treatment is that the patient spend the better part of 30 days without taking drugs or alcohol.

According to Trick, Benning House is "a learning environment, where people can learn to live responsibly, meaningful lives they can enjoy. We try to expose them to choices in behavior, so that they can control their own destiny, at least in part."

Interservice matches features 150 shooters

Fort Benning will be the scene of highly contested interservice rivalry Tuesday when the 12th annual Interservice Shooting Championships commence.

Sponsored by the Continental Army Command, the 64 match shooting marathon will see the top Air Force, Navy, Marine, and Army marksmen square off for the top laurels.

The nation's best marksmen from all the services will be pitting their skills seeking championships in rifle, pistol and shotgun with the many divisions in each category.

All total, the eight day tournament will feature competition in Smallbore Rifle, High Power Rifle, several types of handgun matches and moving target competition of Running Boar, Skeeet and Trap.

Tourney officials estimated that upwards of 150 military shooters will participate in the hotly contested matches.

One day of practice will be offered the competitors to become accustomed to the ranges, and familiar with the terrain and wind characteristics prior to the matches. Practice for Smallbore Rifle will commence April 10. Free Pistol, Standard Pistol, Running Boar Air Pistol, Clay Pigeon and Rapid Fire Pistol competitors will all practice that day also. Other competitive events will offer practice sessions interspersed with the earlier firing of scheduled matches.

The annual marksmanship event conducted by the U.S. Army Infantry Center will be terminated April 15 with an awards ceremony. Daily individual winners in Trap, Skeeet, Running Boar, Rifle and Pistol will be announced with the individual aggregate and team championships to be announced as they occur.

Doughboys lead handball league, face Rucker twice this weekend

The Fort Benning Doughboy team handball squad begins an extended schedule of home games in the Western Division of the Third Army Team Handball League with two games against the Ft. Rucker Flyers this weekend.

Inclement weather was the cause for postponement of two games scheduled with Ft. McPherson last weekend. The playing field was not in suitable condition according to officials at Ft. McPherson where the games were scheduled to be played.

The idle weekend left the Doughboys with a six win no loss record in the Western Division of the Third Army League.

Benning's unblemished record keeps them in possession of first place in the Western Division. McPherson holds second place with a record of four wins and one loss and three postponed games to be played at a later date. Ft. McClellan holds third place with four wins and four losses, Ft. Campbell is in fourth place with three wins and four losses with one postponed game remaining to be played.

The games scheduled last weekend marked the completion of the first half of Western League play. During the first half most of the Doughboy games were played from home. Games scheduled for the second half of league play will see the Doughboys playing most of their games at Fort Benning.

The two games against the Flyers this weekend marks a departure from previous scheduling of home games. Until now all home games have been played at Doughboy Stadium. In the future games will be scheduled on fields located in various areas of the post to make it more convenient for troops to attend. Troop units billeted in the areas where the fields are located will sponsor the game and plan varied activities in conjunction with the games.

The first of the two game series against Ft. Rucker will be played on Westberry Field, located on the South-East corner of Custer Road and the Highway 27 overpass. The 981st Engineer Group will sponsor this game which starts at 4 p.m.

The second game of the series will be played tomorrow at 9 a.m. The school Brigade has been designated sponsor of this game to be played in front of the grandstand on French Field. French Field is located just off First Division Road in the officers quarters area.

Sponsorship of these games is not intended to indicate that the games are solely for the entertainment of the troops of the sponsoring unit. Everyone is welcome and encouraged to attend all of the games.

Guardsman, reservist win individual honors

A National Guardsman from Tennessee and an Army Reservist from Alabama won top individual honors in the Third Army Rifle and Pistol Championships held here last week.

Sgt. Edwin R. Boucher, Tennessee National Guard won the open pistol championship at Phillips range while Sgt. Maj. James H. Lamon, 526th Eng. Gp., Montgomery, Ala. was shooting his way to the rifle championship at McAndrews Rifle Range.

The Tennessee National Guard Team won the Pistol Team Championship and the Ft. Bragg Blue Team won the Rifle Team Championship.

Novice competition for shooters who had never fired in a match at this level went to two shooters from Ft. Bragg, the rifle championship to 1st Lt. Gregory Drake and the pistol championship to SFC Joe Bowman.

Individual and team winners were determined by aggregate scores of all matches fired during the six day meet.

In the individual rifle competition Roland J. Spurling, Tennessee National Guard, captured top honors with the M 16 Rifle. SFC Raymond C. Cruise 108th Division, N.C., won the off-hand competition and SFC Harold Fuller, Fort Benning won the rapid fire aggregate. Lamon the individual champion was high scorer with the M 14 Rifle and in the firing at 600 yards.

Boucher was the top firer with the .45 caliber and center fire pistols. SSGT Larry Farmer, Ft. Bragg won the combat pistol competition and Elwood W. Krueger,

Swap day scheduled

The Fort Benning Rod and Gun Club will hold a "Swap Day" and Turkey Shoot on the club grounds tomorrow.

Anyone having equipment of any type they want to trade for something else is invited to bring it out to the club. The swapping will continue as long as participants remain.

Winners of the Turkey Shoot will receive frozen turkey weighing from 10 to 12 pounds.

ROD AND GUN CLUB

Notes

BY BILL KLOBE

Swap Day at the Rod and Gun Club tomorrow has generated a lot of interest. It's a good chance to get something you want or need for something you don't want that is just taking up space.

According to Grover West, coordinator of the project, people plan to bring in all kinds of items from sports equipment to antiques. Just about anything you can imagine. West says he doesn't care what you have. Someone else will probably want it and give a good exchange.

Al Kane has some children's fishing rigs his kids have outgrown. Dave Long is thinking about bringing out some early American weapons to trade. Ray Roll has a shotgun he can't use, and John Gause has a car-top boat he doesn't need. I don't know whether he will be out or not but according to reliable informants, a former Rod and Gun Club president has a lot of lures in his tackle box that have never enticed a fish. His excess equipment alone could make the day a success.

Bill Dolan, the Information Office artist, has just been bitten by the fishing bug. He needs a complete outfit. He would probably trade some of the originals of his Georgia Sportsmen's lure drawings for fishing equipment. Dolan will probably be the best mark there tomorrow. He thinks a hula dancer lure is a come-on attraction for a carnival side show.

You don't have to hang around all day if you have something to swap-but it promises to be a day for a lot of fun. Bring the family and make a day of it. There is plenty of picnic space.

TURKEY SHOOT

The club is also holding a turkey shoot tomorrow. Winners in the shoot will receive frozen turkeys weighing from 10-12 pounds. Participants may use personal shotguns or guns provided by the club. All ammunition will be furnished by the club.

A close shot pattern is one of the big factors in winning in a turkey shoot. The closer the pattern the better chance the contestant has to win providing he can hit the target. A couple of exceptional weapons showed up at the last shoot. According to reports the weapons were loaned from one shooter to another all day long and accounted for a good number of turkeys. It caused some hard feelings that still exist and if the practice continues will cut down quite a bit of the interest in these shoots. I hope that individuals who have this type weapon will use them to win themselves a turkey or two then take the guns out of competition tomorrow.

CLUB MEMBERSHIPS-LICENSES

Everyone hasn't had a chance to renew club memberships, get the 1972-73 Post Hunting and Fishing Permits and the new Georgia State Hunting and Fishing Licenses. Tomorrow will be a good time to get these items. They will be available at the club sales counter.

Cost for the Georgia Hunting License is $4.25, the Fishing License is $3.25 or you can buy a combination Hunting-Fishing License for $7.25. Those who intend to hunt-turkey, deer or bear will need a Big Game Permit. The price of the Big Game Permit is $3.25.

Hunters and fishermen must pay a $1 administrative fee for issue of the Fort Benning Hunting and Fishing permit.

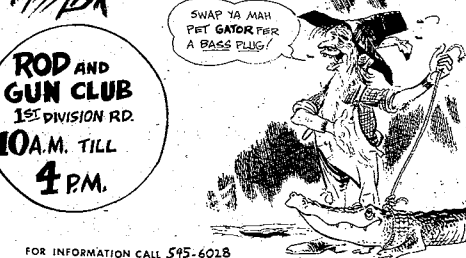

A regular Rod and Gun Club membership is $5, memberships for dependents of members are $1 and the limited memberships are $8.

The 1971-72 Georgia Hunting and Fishing Licenses and Post Hunting and Fishing Permits expired March 31. Individuals authorized to hunt and fish on the reservation who intend to exercise this privilege on the Georgia portion of the reservation must have the 1972-73 Georgia licenses. Anyone intending to hunt or fish anywhere on the reservation must have a 1972-73 Post Hunting and Fishing Permit.

Active duty and retired military personnel, Civil Service workers at Fort Benning, and retired Civil Service personnel who were employed at Fort Benning immediately prior to retirement and disabled American Veterans having a service connected disability of not less than ten per cent are authorized to become members of the Rod and Gun Club. Citizens not otherwise eligible for membership may purchase limited memberships.

By ROGER PAVEY

SPRING FEVER a phenomena that seems to strike everyone on or about the third week in March breaks out into a cold sweat for the true baseball fan around the first week in April.

I guess it's a throwback to my childhood but the tossing of the first ball still brings chills to my spine. It also brings back many memories and legends of years past. It signifies the end of searching the winter sports pages little blubs about baseball. But more importantly the first week in April makes me remember.

Its sort of strange but I can see The Babe rounding third and coming home for the 60th time, Vander Meer's back to back no-batters, Gehrig's tear jerking retirement, Vic Wertz's expression when Mays caught his 500 foot out, Tom Coney whiffing 21 in a 16 inning game, the public in Forbes Field, Piersall's antics, Mel Allen's voice, The Clippers 57th game, Tracy Stallard's infamous pitch, the broken clock in Fenway Park, the sound of Feller's fastball, Bill Evens fling with immortality, Murders Row, The Splendid Splinter's gestures, Dusty Rhodes' hot streak, Bobby Thompson's 275 foot blast, Cookie Lavagetto proving Bill Evens was mortal, Yogi's hug, Dizzy Deans toe, Mantle's famous knees, Gil Mc Dougal's comebacker. I can even remember guys like Dick Gerrert, Ted Lepeto, Sultcase Simpson, and good old Pumpsie Green. I've personally witnessed a few of these feats, but the others are drawn from Grandpa's stories, a couple of old film clips, and studying Sporting News and Who's Who in Baseball instead of English and Arithmetic.

Foolish you might say but to the baseball fan it's his world. He clings to the memories of famous events and often visualizes himself actually being there when something spectacular happens. The fan thrives on the roar of the crowd and the piercing shriek of the screaming vendor. He swears everything tastes better at the ballpark, but deep down he knows the real reason. He's so excited that his senses become intensified and even raunchy smelling cigar smoke adds to the flavor of his cold ballpark hot dog. He's in his own world.

Yes, with the coming of April brings the rebirth of the dormant baseball fan, for he feels the game as if it were some tangible object. His hands feel the sting of the 40 degree temperatures as if he were actually swinging the bat on a cold and damp afternoon. He feels for the catcher and his stoved fingers as well as for the 37 year-old pitcher with his seemingly 68 year-old arm. The fan also feels the tear in his own leg muscle as he watches a player fall and clutch his thigh as he writes in pain. He also feels the dejection of being sent down to the minor leagues, for he has also experienced defeat.

By mid-June the cold weather is gone and the fan finds himself sitting in the centerfield bleachers in sweltering 90 degree heat. He gladly slams his air-conditioned house for a chance to be at the park. Anyway he's got his ice cold beer to keep him cool, and by the time the seventh inning stretch comes around heat has no effect on him at all. His tired back aches and his white t-shirt is drenched much like the player's flannel uniform. By the game's end his voice is hoarse and though his team has lost he strains his scratchy voice in their defense. "G—d—seats," he mutters, "as he picks the first of many splinters from his sweat soaked head.

By the end of September he knows the season is rapidly drawing to a close, for he now only needs a few hours to keep him cool, and his once fiery baseball isn't quite so wet by the ninth inning. Chilly breezes blow empty hot dog wrappers around the infield, as well as the bright orange autumn leaves. The faithful bleacherite also detects a bit of timidity among the outfielders as they shy away from the already dented fences.

October brings the World Series and "his" team has once again fallen flat, for he is now resigned to not being "his" sport on TV. "Naas," he says grumpily, "These G—d—hot dogs taste lousy and I know this beer has been watered down, and what the hell its too damned cold in here to watch a game!"

$1,000 highlight bass tournament

The Association of Florida Bass Clubs has announced that the annual Lake Seminole Invitational Bass Tournament will be held April 23 Headquarters for the one-day event will be Seminole Lodge, Sneads, Fla.

Chaplain in TSB is preaching CO

BY RICH MCDOWELL

When it comes to counseling his troops, Capt. Virgil Cocke should possess plenty of expertise. Cocke, commanding officer of the 12th Company, 1st Battalion, The Student Brigade, is also a lay minister, affiliated with the American Lutheran Church. "He exemplifies his faith through a personal concern for the individual soldier," said Chaplain (Capt) Randolph G. Spry, airborne chaplain, who has worked with Cocke.

A top athlete in high school, Cocke became affiliated with the Fellowship of Christian Athletes (F.C.A.). His desire to work with young people led him to volunteer as a camp counselor for the Ford Foundation for mental retardation.

Attending San Jose State College, he graduated with a degree in Criminology and Administration, serving briefly as a law enforcement officer for the San Jose City Police Department. Maintaining his affiliation with the F.C.A., he said it was through this association that he realized that a strong spiritual foundation in determining values was important in the development of the whole man. "It was then that Christ became more vital in my life," he said. Entering the Army in 1967, Cocke attended OCS, being commissioned in 1968. Although he was accepted by Princeton University's Divinity School, Cocke turned down the chance to remain in the Army. Currently he is hoping to be sent to Florida State University where he wants to pursue a masters degree in international relations. Playing an active role wherever he is, Cocke helps out the chaplains at Fort Benning and has conducted services for the Salvation Army in Columbus.

While in Vietnam he was an advisor to a Vietnamese Ranger Company where he worked with the local Buddhist orphanage, obtaining clothes, toilet articles and educational materials from his home church in Santa Cruz, Calif.

Presently he is working in the Boy Scout program and sponsoring a child through the Korean Foster Child program.

Education

PREP pays up to $175 per month for tuition, fees, books, and supplies of servicemen enrolled in classes leading to a high school diploma or taking remedial courses leading to acceptance into a regular college program.

In addition to this monthly allotment, the serviceman still receives his full basic pay and authorized allowances.

Under the degree-completion program, students also receive military pay while placed on temporary duty status. The student agrees to bear all expenses for his education but may use his V.A. benefits.

Applicants to this program, which is open to commissioned officers, warrant officers, and enlisted personnel, must remain on active duty for two years beyond completion of the program. They must be able to complete their required resident courses within one year.

Enlisted personnel and warrant officers incur no service obligation under the military tuition assistance program, but commissioned personnel must agree to remain on active duty for two years following completion of the course. To be eligible, warrant officers and enlisted personnel on active duty must be able to complete the approved course prior to their ETS or release from active duty. The Department of the Army pays 75 per cent of tuition and fees, regardless of whether or not the applicant is an in-state resident, for persons attending off-duty classes at an institution accredited by a regional education association in work leading to a baccalaureate or higher degree. Tuition is not authorized for any course for which the serviceman is receiving total or partial reimbursement which comes from the Federal Treasury through other programs or agencies. Those enrolled in the Army Education at Civilian Institutions program must complete their training within two years. The army trains a man to do a specific job and pays all expenses incurred in the training. An enlisted man selected for training for one year must extend his service commitment for three years prior to his training or for six years if his training period extends for more than one year. Commissioned and warrant officers agree to remain on active duty for two years for each year of the schooling or fraction thereof, but obligate themselves for at least three years. Enlisted personnel and warrant officers are authorized up to 18 months for completion of a baccalaureate degree. For further information about any of the programs listed above, contact the army education offices located on post.

Ranger NCO's hold first dine-in

BY RICH MCDOWELL

Ranger Department noncommissioned officers broke tradition last Monday night when they conducted the first dine-in to be held by NCOs in the history of Fort Benning.

Although precedent setting for NCOs, the dine-in was nothing new as far as Rangers are concerned; the first on record occurring on Sept. 5, 1916 when a company of Rangers accompanied Gov. Alexander Spotswood to the top of the Appalachian Mountains to drink a toast to King George's health.

The men later descended to the Shenandoah River where, between volleys of shots, they toasted the King again and added toasts to the Prince and Governor.

The toasts consisted of champagne, burgundy, claret, sherry, rum, caviar, and cider to name a few. The Rangers also conducted a "putting" ceremony. This was done by making a punch from wines emblematic of campaigns in which Rangers participated. Going into the punch were French wine from the French Rangers of the Mexican War; Mountain Brew for John Mosby's Confederate Rangers; German wine for Darby's World War II Rangers; and Riesling wine for the Rangers of the Korean and Vietnam conflicts.

Guest speaker for the dine-in was Charles Black, associate editor of the Columbus "Enquirer." Black described the NCO corps as the backbone of the US Army.

The honor guard for the posting and retiring of the colors consisted of Sgt. Boyd W. Bowers, Sgt. Barnett J. Horner, Sp4 Steven R. Bensinger, Sp4 Jerome Joyce and Sp4 Mark W. Longendorf.

Guests at the dine-in were Ranger Department Director Col. David E. Grange, 3d Army CSM Bob Williams, USAIC CSM John LaVoie, USAIC CSM William Nixon, and TSB CSM Basil Plumley.

Other guests were retired MsMgt. William Brayman and Vernon Harris. Brayman was with the Rangers in 1952 when they were being trained as Airborne Rangers.

Rolf shoots second ace

Ray Rolf zeroed in on second hole-in-one in a two week period when he clubbed last Tuesday.

Rolf used a three wood on the 108-yard hole to record his third hole-in-one in a lifetime of golf. His second hole-in-one came about two weeks ago when he aced the 181th hole on the Country Club Lake Side. He made his first ace years ago during World War II.

Blair Ford was witness to the recent ace. Others to vouch for Rolf's latest feat were Cal Roush and Harris was with the Rangers in 1962 when they were being reorganized into their present form.

Purpose of the dine-in, according to SFC Roger Yrusaka, was to promote esprit among the NCOs of the Ranger Department. "And this," he said, "we did with great success. Each man walked a little taller when he left the dine-in Monday night."

SUBARU IS AN UNUSUAL SMALL CAR

ROAD TEST— "Most other cars in the class will cruise very well at 55-60 mph, but once above 65 mph, they become fussy and noisy. The Subaru's quiet range extends to 70 mph or even higher!"

MOTOR TREND— "All the tributes of its competitors with almost none of their hassles; front wheel drive with front wheel drive feeling; small car size without small car ride or performance; four cylinder economy without four cylinder vibrations; and best of all, $2500 car value of less than $1900 car price!"

"IT'S LIKE THIS. THE SUBARU IS MAYBE THE BEST SMALL SEDAN BEING MADE IN THE WORLD TODAY!"

Foster visits Post

Major Gen. Hugh F. Foster, U.S. Army Electronics Command and Ft. Monmouth visited the Communications-Electronics Department on March 23 to discuss tactical communications matters with Col. Robert D. Sweeney, the department director.

During his visit, reception was held to provide members of the department an opportunity to meet with Gen. Foster and discuss Communications-Electronics equipment development.

Gen. Foster explained that the Electronics Command (ECOM) was responsible for research, development, testing and procurement of new communications - electronics equipment for the army. He also emphasized that ECOM was vitally interested in finding ways to improve tactical communications and lighten the load of the fighting man on the ground. To accomplish this, ECOM must constantly evaluate data received from the using infantry units. After evaluating the engineers and technicians take over and develop an improved version of the Communications-Electronics

USAREUR changes family housing

To better equalize housing opportunity, the U.S. Army, Europe will return to assigning family housing on the basis of the sponsor's date of departure from the United States, USAREUR headquarters has announced.

The change, which becomes effective May 1, follows an evaluation of the "Point" System that has been used on a trial basis for the past year. Under this system, assignment priority was based on the sponsor's date of rank as well as the date he departed the U.S. The department of the Army had authorized the one-year test.

The new policy will better equalize the housing opportunity between the senior and junior grades in each category of housing, officials explained. "At the same time it will more equally distribute the burden of off-post living, which has become increasingly expensive," a spokesman said.

USAREUR has approximately 41,000 family units. More than 23,000 additional families, including some 12,000 authorized Government housing, live off-post.

USAREUR major commanders and housing officials took part in the evaluation. They cited frustrating waiting lists and the impact of the "Point" System on the Junior grades in each category as the major shortcomings. Letters from individuals were also considered.

Also being implemented under the new policy will be the minimum percentages of quarters assigned to each rank in each housing category. With the new across-the-board assignment, quarters based on the date of departure from the United States, these guaranteed minimums are no longer necessary.

Commitments made to family sponsors under the present policy will be honored, housing officials said. For example, sponsors now in the top ten percent, or frozen sum, of the assignment list for each housing category will not be displaced. Also sponsors given outstanding or deferred travel to government quarters under the present policy will be moved into the frozen zone.

Other sponsors on the waiting list, however, will be repositioned according to the date they departed the United States.

The new policy also will serve to eliminate waiting lists, provide more equitable housing opportunity and ease administrative problems.

In other changes, the new policy will eliminate housing opportunity for obligated four officers who cannot complete the full overseas tour and Warrant Officers, W-4, will be assigned to Army Grade housing (Category IV) instead of Field Grade (Category III) housing. This is in accordance with Department of the Army policy which categorizes Warrant Officers with Company Grade Officers for housing purposes. Category III housing for obligated personnel will remain divided into Category VA for paygrades E-7 through E-9

Post auction sale starts April 19

April 19, the Defense Surplus Sales Office in conjunction with the Fort Benning Property Disposal Branch will conduct a Local Auction Sale of surplus property offering 300 catalogue items.

Some items are new, some used, and some scrap is included. The property may be inspected from Wednesday, April 12, until including day of the sale, Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Items on sale the 19th include one Dump Truck, one ambulance, two Stacks and Platform Trucks, eight Van Trucks, three Pickups, one Carryall, one Panel Truck, retail merchandise fixtures, service station equipment, catria equipment, compressors, thirteen cash registers, household and office furniture, appliances, heaters, fans, refrigerators, steam presses and many more items.

Bidders must be present to buy the items on the day of the sale. Items bought must be paid for and removed not later than Wednesday, Apr. 26. No bid deposit is required. Registration for bidding will begin at 8 a.m. Eastern Time, Building No. 467. The auctioneer's chant will begin promptly at 9 a.m. with Item No. 1. No outside hand carried, telegraphic, nor telephonic bids will be accepted.

Capt. Laury R. Bassham of the U.S. Army Marksmanship Training Unit is the defending Champion and Interservice Record holder of the Three Position Army Rifle 300 meter event with his 556. He will be seeking to renew his championship in the event in the Interservice Championships next week.

Family ambulatory care starts May 1

BY SUSANNE BOSTICK

May 1, Martin Army Hospital will begin a new system of outpatient health care. Tabled as the Family Ambulatory Care System (FACS), the program is part of a continuing effort to increase personalization of health care at Fort Benning.

The new system is an amplification of the "We Care" program. It is designed to provide more personalized service with physician consultation made available by telephone 24 hours daily, 7 days a week.

Family Ambulatory Care will be available for all personnel assigned to Fort Benning and their dependents, all dependents with sponsors residing elsewhere who are authorized care at Martin Army Hospital, and all retired personnel and their dependents.

The plan provides for the patient population to be divided into four basic Family Care Groups, who will be provided primary medical care around the clock. Each sponsor will be assigned to the same group as his dependents.

Active duty personnel will continue to receive their general outpatient care in the Troop Medical Clinics, and all dependents age thirteen and over will receive care in the Adult Outpatient Clinic at the Hospital Annex. Children aged twelve and under will still be seen in the Pediatric Clinic at the Annex.

Retired personnel, their dependents, and dependents of sponsors residing elsewhere will also be assigned to a patient care group. Within each Family Care Group, each patient will also be assigned to a specific general physician or pediatrician according to his or her age.

This is so that each patient requesting an appointment will be able to have it with his personal physician. Patients who elect to be seen in the Outpatient Clinic or Pediatric Clinic on a walk-in basis may do so. However, they may be unable to see their physicians without a long delay, or they may not get to see him at all, since he will normally be busy seeing his regular patients.

Operating hours of all clinics will remain unchanged. Troop Medical Clinics will remain open from 7 a.m. until 4:30 p.m., Monday through Friday, and from 7:30 a.m. till 11:30 a.m. on Saturdays. For adult dependents aged thirteen and over and for retired personnel, a physician assigned to each Family Care Group will be available in the Adult Outpatient Clinic during the hours of a.m. to 11 a.m., 1 p.m. to 4 p.m., and 6:30 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. Monday through Friday, and from 9 a.m. to 11 a.m. on Saturday to handle urgent problems.

Appointments can also be made for these hours by calling Central Appointment Desk, 544-1064, from 8 a.m. until 4 p.m., Monday through Friday. For children age twelve and under, a pediatrician will be available for

Brig. Gen. Gorman to honor Mech. Inf. Monday in Inf. Hall

Mechanized Infantry will be honored Monday at 4 p.m. when Brig. Gen. Paul F. Gorman, assistant commandant of the U. S. Army Armored School, Ft. Knox, Ky., presides at ceremonies dedicating two World War II armored vehicles. Assisting will be Brig. Gen. George S. Patton Jr., assistant commandant of the U. S. Army Armored School, Ft. Knox, Ky.

The two vehicles, an M2 half track personnel carrier and an M-75 armored personnel carrier will be permanently emplaced on concrete slabs in front of the Infantry School following the ceremony.

Participating in the event will be the 23rd U. S. Army Band and a color guard from the 1st Bn., 56th Mechanized Infantry.

Gen. Gorman conceived the idea to give more recognition to the role played by mechanized infantry in the past, present and its role in the future.

The two vehicles to go on permanent display were selected for their historical significance. The M2 half-track was selected because it was the vehicle which enabled infantry in armored divisions to be 100 per cent mounted, an improvement on the Nazi mechanized infantry concept.

The M-75 was selected as it was the first full-tracked vehicle which was also completely covered and armored.

Patriots take adventure training

Eliminating an aggressor force from a hilltop and a 23-kilometer forced march in eight hours proved to be "all in a week's work" for 3rd Pk., D Co., 1st Bn., 56th Inf.

The training was a culmination of the men's Advanced Individual Training. In keeping with the "adventure training concept," the final four days were run on a mission basis, with the platoon being issued an initial mission and additional orders coming in by radio.

The platoon, lead by 1st Lt. Jerry D. Edwards, was trucked to its initial staging area. From there it was all on foot. Headquarters would issue an order and the platoon would move to carry it out. One early order was a river reconnaissance. Then came the order to attack "Dragon Hill 481." The enemy was sighted.

After a leader's reconnaissance of the objective,

Edwards issued the operations order. The platoon moved out. Moderate resistance met the platoon as it advanced on the hill. Resistance stiffened as the men closed in on the top. After two hours of fighting the enemy was defeated.

But no rest was in sight for this platoon: No sooner had the men secured the objective and reconstituted than they were sent out to set up ambushes for any enemy forces still in the area.

Vehicle saluting reg is clarified

A Third U. S. Army supplement was recently issued clarifying an Army Regulation dealing with policies and procedures for the rendition of salutes.

The supplement states that when military personnel are acting as drivers of a moving vehicle, they will not initiate or return a salute. However, the practice of saluting officers who can readily be identified as drivers or passengers in military or civilian vehicles is considered an appropriate courtesy and will be observed.

In connection with saluting while in civilian attire, except under conditions such as sports or recreational participation where the exchange of salutes would be clearly inappropriate, soldiers are encouraged to render the salute upon recognition of officers regardless of attire.

Special Services opens new post music center

Musicians looking for an instrument, a place, or a group can find them at the new Special Services Music Center located in Building 1624.

The Music Center has over 100 instruments, a classroom, two practice rooms, and 3 instructors available to help aspiring musicians develop their talents.

Capt. Perry Hopf, assistant special services officer, is proud of the center for it is another first for Fort Benning. To the best of his knowledge, this Music Center is the only one of its kind in the Army.

The Center will promote, plan, and produce musical entertainment by the soldier for the soldier. To encourage participation, lessons will be offered in the form of a class. The class will be held on Tuesdays from 7 to 9 p.m. The tuition must be paid before the first class and cannot be refunded if the student drops out.

A class must have 7 students before it can start. The fee is $5.00 per person. The time is 7 to 9 p.m. on Tuesdays.

Sunday marks Medical Corps' 25th birthday

The Army Medical Specialist Corps, newest of the six components of the Army Medical Service celebrates its 25th Anniversary Sunday.

An office commemorating the silver anniversary will be held in the MAH Officers Mess Tuesday from 2-4 p.m.

Consisting of the Physical Therapy Section, Occupational Therapy Section, and Food Service Division, the Corps was founded as the Women's Medical Specialist Corps. Men were commissioned into the corps in 1955 and the name was changed to its current designation. Today there are 573 members in the corps, 228 of whom are men.

The physical therapist's mission is to get to the patient as soon as possible to increase the patient's chances of regaining normal functions early. A highly trained individual, the physical therapist must be knowledgeable in the fields of anatomy, physiology, kinesiology and the physiologic effects of various treatments.

This knowledge enables the therapist to skillfully apply such physical treatments as heat, cold, light, sound, water, electricity and exercise to the patient depending upon his needs.

The therapist must also possess the ability to adapt and change the treatment as the patient's needs change.

At Martin Army Hospital (MAH), the physical therapy department is headed by Lt. Col. Corinne L. Strong. She has three therapists working for her who are assisted by five specialists. The department handles about 190 patients daily.

Capt. Judith S. Linton heads the Occupational Therapy Department. She has one other therapist and three specialists working for her. About 90 patients are handled daily by this department.

Occupational therapists are concerned primarily with functional — physical and psychosocial. Work-related skills in the form of arts and crafts, activities of daily living, work and play, are utilized to assist the patient in relearning lost skills or to take the patient's mind off his own problems, channeling his energies along more constructive lines.

To help the patient reach his full potential in respect to physical, social and economic independence, the therapist uses activities to test and evaluate behavior and the functional capacities of the patient to determine changes and progress. He may use them to promote strength, range of motion or coordination to encourage more appropriate interpersonal relationship or to provide a medium for self-expression.

All the skills possessed by the physical and occupational therapists would be useless if the patients were undertreated and undernourished. To see to it that the patient is neither of these is the function of the Food Service Division. See Medical page 28

New theater

Topo Swope and George Segal are romantic complements of Robert Redford in the diamond-heist comedy thriller "Hot Rock" which opens at the new Kelley Hill Theater April 19.

Kelley Hill gets new theater

Kelley Hill theater No. 4 will celebrate its Grand Opening at 7 p.m. on Wednesday, April 19. The new theater has seats for 500 people. Construction of the half-million dollar facility took eleven months. Cost of the theater was met by the Army and Air Force Motion Picture Service. Post funds prepared the site.

The Grand Opening will be attended by several guests. The Chief of Staff, Col. Willard Latham, will make some remarks and receive the theater key from Mr. Robert Quick. Quick is the Chief of the Army and Air Force Motion Picture Service.

Senior staff officers, unit commanders of the 197th and other personnel from AAFMPs will attend the ceremony.

A special guest at the opening will be Miss Brenda Dickson. Miss Dickson starred in the movie, "Death Master," and accompanied the Bob Hope Christmas Show to the Far East. She will participate in the opening ceremony, visit several troop units and Martin Army Hospital during her stay.

"The Hot Rock" is the first film scheduled in the new theater. On pre-release, the film stars Robert Redford and George Segal. Tickets will be on sale at 6:30 p.m. on April 19th. The 197th Infantry Brigade Combo will be playing nearby.

Sgt. Keith C. Craig Jr., instructor for the Ranger Department, holds the Marine Corps Close Combat Outstanding Student Plaque which he was awarded for being best student at the course. Brig. Gen. Paul F. Gorman (left), assistant commandant of the Infantry School, and Lt. Col. John H. Blair, Marine representative to the Infantry School, presented the plaque to Sgt. Craig. (Photo by Phillip Reid).

Absentee voting

BY EDITH SIMMONS

When 88 million American voters go to the polls in November, few eligible Army voters will be among them. Away from their home states, these people will vote by absentee ballot.

Every vote in an election is important. Even if your chosen candidate loses, analysis of vote distribution will affect policies and legislative goals of the winners.

The complete record of close elections is to be long to examine here. It is important to note, however, that absentee votes can change the outcome. In 1960, John Kennedy was leading in the returns from California. When the absentee vote was counted, Richard Nixon gained enough to carry the state and the electoral votes.

The first administration to put importance on soldier voting was that of Abraham Lincoln. Several states approved absentee voting for their soldiers that year and set up procedures to handle the votes. Some historians felt that soldier voting assured Lincoln of reelection.

Absentee voting drifted into disuse until 1944. No policy of encouraging soldiers to vote was enacted. During World War II, Congress passed the first Federal soldier voting law. It waived all requirements for registration by military personnel during time of war. About 30 per cent of the eligible military cast ballots that year.

The Federal Voting Assistance Act of 1955 provided for absentee voting in peace and war.

This year, 89 per cent of all Army personnel will be eligible to vote. The 26th Amendment, which lowered the voting age to 18, caused the great increase.

Col. Elliott to retire after 31 years service

Col. Glenn P. Elliott, Chief of the Range Division, The Infantry Center, Fort Benning, will retire April 18 with 31 years of active Army service.

From Montevallo, Alabama, Col. Elliott attended Montevallo High School and the University of Alabama for a degree in arts and sciences.

Elliott entered active duty in February, 1940. Since then, he has served in Europe, Korea, and Thailand. In Vietnam, he acted as Senior Advisor and Deputy for Territorial Security, Delta Military Assistance Command, during 1970-71.

Col. Elliott has spent many years working with Army missiles. He served as the logistics officer for the Antiaircraft and Guided Missile Center, Ft. Bliss, 1952-54, and at the Army Air Defense Command, Colorado Springs, Colorado, 1960-63. His career includes several "firings". Elliott commanded and deployed the first Army Missile Unit overseas, the 228th Field Artillery Missile Battalion in Europe, in 1957. When he returned, he activated and commanded the first Field Artillery Redstone Battalion at Redstone Arsenal, Alabama. Again working with Redstone missiles, Elliott helped launch the first guided missiles to have nuclear warheads in the free world. This was on Johnston Island, 1952.

Col. Elliott's service has been recognized on many occasions. During his career, he has been awarded the Legion of Merit with 2 Oak Leaf Clusters, the Bronze Star, the Army Occupation Medal with one Oak Leaf Cluster, the Joint Services Commendation Medal, the Army Commendation Medal with one Oak Leaf Cluster, the Army Medal 2nd Class (earned in Vietnam), and the Distinguished Service Medal, 2d Class (earned in Vietnam). Thailand awarded Elliott with the Service to the King Medal and made him an honorary Senior Aviator of the Royal Thai Army, 1968.

Col. Elliott is married to Chantjiri Nithakorn of Thailand. His son, Glenn Jr., lives in Kettering, Ohio, and his daughter Mrs. Jerry Goodrich is in Midland, Texas. Col. Elliott's aunts and uncles — Mr. and Mrs. Henry Cobb, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Cobb, and Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Cobb — reside in Decatur, Georgia.

After retirement, Col. Elliott plans to live in Leadville, Colorado or Santa Rosa, Calif.

Sound-off Baseball strike lingers on

The baseball players' strike was the topic of this week's Sound Off column.

At the risk of deflating the egos of owners and players alike, the comment of Pvt. Clifford A. Durham, 40th Casual Company, was fairly predominant among Fort Benning soldiers. His comment — "Strike, what strike?"

Those who did know about the strike were not all well informed about what the strike involved, although they were more than eager to voice their opinion. Most of the men interviewed, though the strike was over salaries, mentioned the name of Vida Blue.

SSgt. Robert L. Wills, also of B Btry, said he felt the players should receive more of a pension than they did in the past. "I can see a man with at least 10-12 years getting about $300 monthly but for only two years service, that's ridiculous," he said. Wills also said he felt the strike was badly timed, that the players should have gone on strike at the end of last season for their, show of force. "That would give the owners a chance to recognize that the players were serious and begin negotiations at that time," he said.

PFC Duvald E. Dobbins, PFC Donald E. Dobbins, B Btry, 2nd Bn., 10th Arty, said he felt that the ball players were right for striking. "They put their lives into this game and they should get something out of it in the end," he said. "I'd sacrifice seeing baseball for one season if the ball players benefit," he said.

PFC Jeff A. Frazier

"An ignorant idea," is how Jeff A. Frazier, B Btry, described the strike. "For men who are supposed to love this sport, they sure have strange ways of showing it," he said. "I'd give my left arm to play the game."

Pvt. Richard H. Glenn, 40th Casualty Co., disagreed. "If I were them I'd go on strike too. It's just like any other organization, and like any organization, they should remain on strike until they get what they want," he said. Glenn said that as much as he will miss the games, he is behind the players.

Pvt. Rodent L. Haggerty, 48th Co., 4th Stu. Bn., took a middle of the road view. "My brother plays ball too and I think the players were justified going on strike, however, I think they have carried it too far," he said. "It seems to me that a compromise could have been reached by now. If they don't play ball soon, there will be a lot of disappointed people, at least in my home town," he said.

Whitaker said, "I think these men are seeking too much all at once, that they should go into it more gradually."

If you play with fire...

BY KENNETH W. GIBNEY

How many times in your military career, be it two years or twenty, have you heard "We have no racial problems here at Fort-Lock-in-the-Wilderness?" From that sort of a situation, you walk into a latrine, and the platitudes described there tell another story. You hear comments in the barracks, and see proof of the opposite almost everywhere you look. And you wonder who is trying to fool whom around here.

The fact remains that humans are always human, whether you are working in the military, or in civilian industry — if you're living in Watts, Shaker Heights, or Nantuxent, Kans. Racial prejudice is something we have all learned to cope with across America.

Maybe it's because of the way we were raised, or because of a bad experience we once had. Perhaps it is no more than man's basic mistrust and suspicion of other men, and of things that he doesn't understand.

Racial tensions and racial problems are much like a forest fire. Dry timber, weather conditions and so many campers put together in one place, can destroy thousands of acres of timber for many years to come.

The more obvious solutions are to dampen the timber, or to reduce the number of campers in the area. But when this cannot be done, a special effort must be made by every camper in the forest. That doesn't necessarily mean that no one, can light a match, but that whenever fire is used, it must be administered with extreme caution. It takes the cooperation of everyone.

Think twice. Think twice before you say or do anything that will inevitably cause more harm than good. Think twice about the people in this country, black and white. Think twice about the generations of young people that we are training today, who will lead this country tomorrow. If you think the world is complicated, confusing, and in a sorry state of affairs today, compared to 20 years ago, think what it will be 20 years from now.

You are the key to these problems. All the legislation in the world won't help anything, if you're not willing to try. If you want to see a world where your children can grow in peace and harmony, then now is the time to act. Now is the time to temper your emotions, to try to understand. Let our courts be the judges of who is guilty of a crime.

If you can't understand, or if you don't want to make the effort, then either get out of the forest, or quit playing with matches. America's future is in your hands.

Fort Benning mess halls react to recycling plea

BY SUSANNE BOSTICK

Mess Halls 1 and 2 of Headquarters Command, USAIC, have jumped wholeheartedly in the conservation of resources at their "Do It Yourself Guide to Ecology," they have initiated programs aimed at recycling their cans, cardboard and glass.

With the opening of the Post Recycle Point, SFC Herzie Dixon, food service supervisor, Mess Hall No. 1, saw the opportunity for the re-use of materials that had been previously discarded.

Dixon noted, "I became aware of the need for recycling through news articles and television, and I thought the Mess Hall was a good place to start." He estimated that a approximately 200 lbs. of cardboard and 50 lbs. of metal are sent to the recycle point each week.

SSgt. Charles Davis, food service supervisor at Mess Hall No. 2, has followed Dixon's lead in recycling his discarded materials. "Very little effort was required to collect and segregate the material for recycling," he remarked. "This makes it an easy and simple way of disposing of used materials."

Capt. Martin Van Craft, Commanding Officer of Hy. Co., Hq. Command, and Dixon's Co., has lent his full approval to the new project. Van Craft hopes to reuse as many materials as possible.

The personnel in both mess halls are completely in favor of the recycling program. The new method of disposal creates no extra work, and they feel it will cut down on the amount of land used to bury the discarded materials.

The Headquarters Command recycling effort is one of the first attempts by a major unit to use the recycling facilities available at Fort Benning.

These recycling facilities come under the direction of the Environmental Management Division. Headquarters Command recycling effort is one of the first attempts by a major unit to use the recycling facilities available at Fort Benning.

EMD suggests a three-fold "battle plan" to fight the war on pollution. Ecological awareness, accompanied through self-education, is the first stage. With the flood of articles and specials in the media, anyone can learn at least enough about the state of the ecology to get an idea of what he as an individual can do about it.

This is the next stage in EMD's "threefold battle plan" — individual action. In their "Do It Yourself Guide to Ecology," they define certain problems and suggest individual action to remedy these problems.

Noise is the first problem discussed in the EMD pamphlet "Ecological Information." Much has been made lately of "noise pollution"; but what can each of us ordinary people, with no lobbying power, do to remedy these problems?

For a start, EMD suggests: "Keep your vehicle's muffler and tailpipes repaired, especially if you are a motorcyclist. Bus drivers and bus rodders, avoid running your vehicles at excessive speeds in populated areas. Become familiar with your vehicle."

DDT and other pesticides are tackled next. DDT, "a persistent pollutant," has been banned from use by Denmark, Sweden, Finland, Great Britain, Hungary, Germany and the Soviet Union according to EMD. "Several states in this country have also prohibited its use," the pamphlet states. What can you do?

You can reduce your use of pesticides and herbicides, first of all. When you must use them, read their labels carefully and follow all instructions; they are there for a reason in every case. Wash thoroughly or peel all fruits and vegetables to remove any traces of pesticides. Use fly paper and avoid no-pest strips; they emit harmful vapors that are absorbed by your family, and your food.

EMD suggests ways to conserve electrical power. Turn off unnecessary lights, and minimize your self by taking short walks, than longer ones, so that you can get along without air-conditioning.

"Cars account for more than 60 per cent of all air pollution in the United States," states the pamphlet. "Ecological Information."

SFC Herzie Dixon, food service supervisor, Headquarters Command Mess Hall No. 1, accumulates waste material for their recycling program. The mess hall delivers over 300 lbs. of waste material to the post recycle point each week.

Mrs. Ben Purcell (L) accepts a $111 from Mrs. Thomas R. Conklin to be used to publicize the plight of American servicemen who are prisoners of war and missing in action in Southeast Asia. Mrs. Conklin represented the wives of IOBC 14-72, which held a bake sale March 20 to raise the funds. Looking on is Mrs. Eugene Murdock, a coordinator for the Citizens Assistance Program for POW-MIA Families, to which the money was donated. Mrs. Purcell's husband is being held prisoner by the North Vietnamese.

Wife likes hospital for 5 good reasons

Mrs. Aubrey Smith decided that it was time she repaid Army hospitals for the assistance they've given her for more than two decades. So she brought her twin sons, Thomas Lloyd and John Patrick, and "one of their birthday cakes to the Labor and Delivery section of Martin Army Hospital on the youngsters' eighth birthday recently.

The wife of MSGT. Smith of the post Marksmanship Training Unit had good reason for the culinary gift — in fact five of them. The couple has had nine children, and five were born at MAH.

April 9-15 proclaimed Foster Children Week

Gov. Jimmy Carter joined President Nixon and the governors of the other states this week in proclaiming April 9-15 Foster Children Week in Georgia. Expressing his gratitude and admiration for the 1,700 families in Georgia who are caring for the state's more than 3,000 foster youngsters, the governor said that "the love and nurture of kind and wise foster parents is the best hope for children who are victims of their own family's misfortunes. Children in foster homes are hurt children. When they don't get the help they desperately need, they often are damaged emotionally for life."

The Governor appealed to all Georgians to accept the responsibility for "our" children and to become advocates of improved and expanded foster care services. Stating that there are an estimated 3,000 Georgia children who need care outside their own homes, he urged families to consider becoming foster families and asked for volunteers to help children in foster care develop socially, emotionally, and physically.

In order to qualify for foster youngsters, a family must be able emotionally to make room for another child and have enough living space for the addition of a new member. Interested families should contact one of the following agencies: county Dept. of Family and Children Services, Child Service and Family Counseling Center in Atlanta, Georgia AGAPC in Atlanta (Church of Christ).

Post store to feature delicacies

The Main Commissary has added a gourmet section featuring such delicacies as anchovy paste, fondue mixes, artichoke hearts, crab, cannelloni tea and herring.

The section, which has been open about four months, was set up once before, but had to be discontinued because of the difficulty in maintaining an adequate supply of products.

This time, a local food distributor is handling the supply, and stock will be rotated to offer a greater variety to customers. Col. Canington, commissary manager, said that the section will be expanded if demand warrants it.

Twelve ladies to compete in NCO wives' election

The NCO Wives Club nominating committee has compiled a list of candidates for the group's general election in May. Nominated for president are Mrs. James Dixon and Mrs. Robert Smith. Tapped to compete for other positions are Mrs. Charles Spenser, first vice president; Mrs. Milton Jumper, Mrs. Jose Laguna and Mrs. Jimmie McNeely, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Charles Lee, recording secretary; Mrs. DeCosta Whitehead, treasurer; and Mrs. Richard Erick and Mrs. Juan Trevino, assistant treasurer. The new board of officers for 1972-73 will be picked from these candidates and others whom might be nominated from the four. All active members of the NCO Wives Club will be eligible to vote.

A Woman of the Year also will be chosen. The recipient of this honor, which may be awarded to any member for her work this year, will be revealed at the club's installation dinner dance May 27. Members of the nominating committee were Mrs. Walter Cunningham, Mrs. Anthony Callachio, Mrs. Walter Pearson, Mrs. John Baker and Mrs. David Aldridge.

OCs, families watch Rangers perform

April 5 was a "red letter" day for The School Brigade's 51st Officer Candidate Co. They witnessed a "Rangers in Action" demonstration with their wives and children on hand to see the performance.

Every obstacle used in the three-part demonstration actually are employed in the Ranger course. The first demonstration consisted of different techniques of self-defense. Some of the wives found the mountaineering demonstration the most impressive part of the program. The Rangers rappelled down a tower and from a helicopter. It was explained that a Ranger team could be inserted onto the field in less than 20 seconds.

The final portion showed various ways to transport a team of nine men across a body of water. The wives and candidates who watched the exhibition expressed admiration for the Rangers and said that Ranger training could make a man a skillful and competent soldier.

Before the demonstration the wives had a bake sale for the candidates. Upcoming events include a "super supper" in the mess hall next Friday and the company's 12th week party the following evening.

Mrs. William T. Raines and Mrs. Edward L. Schumacher were co-hostesses of a March 22 breakfast in the Main Officers Club.

Welcomed were Mrs. Richard L. Pope, guest of Mrs. Raines, and Mrs. John R. Foster and Mrs. Lones W. Wigger, who have returned to the unit.

Mrs. Raines created a centerpiece of long stem flowers and slender grass protruding from a large floral egg base. About 16 ladies wore Easter egg name tags. Fruit salad, omelets, sausages, biscuits and street rolls were served with coffee and tea as beverages.

Centerpiece of gladiolas, mums, daisies and baby's breath graced the head table. Mrs. Pope won the floral centerpiece in a drawing at the end of the breakfast.

OWC

Does your swimming suit reveal bulges that winter clothes hid? Do you feel a need to exercise but can't get started? Join the OWC Slim and Trim class and look and feel better. This will be the last chance to join a class before fall. The seven-week class begins April 24. Classes meet twice a week and morning and evening sessions are available. Unlimited use of the exercise machines is included in the $7 fee. Call Mrs. Richard L. Slaming at 627-7297 for information.

When a building project is planned, such as the new shopping mall, it is usually good to make an environmental impact study. Leo Schladsensky, chief of Utilities and Pollution Control, recently attended a seminar in Atlanta on this idea and will discuss it with the OWC Environmental Workshop at 10 a.m. Tuesday in the OWC Lounge. Everyone is welcome. For further information call 545-5925 or 589-2055.

The spring Atlanta trip will be April 25. Buses will leave the Officers' Club at 8 a.m. and will return that evening. The $6.50 tickets will include a fashion show and box lunch at a department store and an afternoon tea. For more details, call Mrs. Russell C. Miller at 545-4739 or Mrs. Jack Cummings at 545-4797.

Outstanding student achievement awards for military dependents are being offered by the OWC. Deadline for applications is April 15. Mothers must have been OWC members by Jan. 31. Detailed information may be obtained from local high school guidance counselors. Six $500 awards and six $250 Savings Bonds for alternates are available.
