The officers' and soldiers' wives of the 265th Aviation Co. took a tour of the company and Lawson Army Air Field March 23. Captains James Davis and John Picot briefed the wives on the mission, duties and importance of the 265th.

CW2 Thomas Brooks Jr. led the tour. A VIP Chinook and a standard Chinook were viewed as was the maintenance area of the hangar and the control tower on the airfield. Capt. Ruford Fowler explained the mobility of the unit.

The wives then saw the link trainers and several tried their skill at flying by instruments. Lacking the proficiency of trained pilots, a few "crashed."

After the tour the ladies met their husbands for lunch in the company mess hall.

Msgt. Eugene Winchester was honored by the officers and NCO's of the 605th Trans. Co. and their wives at a lunch-top at King's Pond Recreation Center. After the meal, Capt. Monty Fishery introduced the "Big" Group. First Sgt. Donald Lang introduced Maj. Irvin Travis, Capt. Berchard Shipley and CW3 Bryce Gordon. Maj. Travis presented Winchester the Air Commendation Medal, the Aviation Command Certificate of Achievement and a fishing rod from the men of the 605th.

The officers and wives of Aviation Command held a hall and farewell in the Fountain Room of the Officers Club. Welcomed to the unit by Col. Robert Grow were Lt. Col. and Mrs. Jerry Hahn, Maj. and Mrs. Frank Shaw, Capt. and Mrs. James Fuhst, Capt. and Mrs. Raymond Hitchcock, Capt. Roger Bowers, Capt. John Pepe, 1st Lt. Neal Corson and CW2 Jerry Hart.

Among those leaving the Command were Capt. and Mrs. Joseph Gryder, 1st Lt. and Mrs. Peter Gallimore and CW2 Joseph Deschaine who were presented with plaques and charms for their wives. Also leaving the Command is Lt. Col. James Miller who will take a position in the Directorate of Plans and Training. In addition to the plaque, Col. Grow gave Miller a scroll listing his achievements. Col. Grow also presented Mrs. Miller with a charm and a silver platter and expressed appreciation for all the help she has given to the wives of the Command.

The home of Mrs. Nelson P. Conover was where the ladies of Combat Support Group held their monthly coffee April 6. Hostesses were Mrs. Conover, Mrs. Larry Tucker and Mrs. Thomas Waraska. In a short business meeting, the new "first lady" — Mrs. James T. Dunn — welcomed guests and newcomers and said good-bye to departing members. Guests were Mrs. James F. Hornum and Mrs. T. A. Vandenberg. Newcomers were Mrs. James L. Badger Jr., and Mrs. Curtis L. Lamu, both of the Artillery Committee. Leaving were Messadmes Gerald S. Johnston of the artillery committee, Donald R. Danielson of the NBC committee and Richard S. Fye, our former chairman, now of Staff Group. The next coffee will be held May 5.

A "hall and farewell" luncheon was held April 4 in the Corridor Room of the Officers Club for the officers and wives of the Artillery Committee. After lunch, Lt. Col. A. E. Stipe, committee chairman, welcomed Maj. and Mrs. Lamu and Mrs. Vandenberg, a guest of Capt. and Mrs. Ernest LeVasseur. Leaving were Capt. and Mrs. Robert W. Ebert and Capt. and Mrs. Gerald S. Johnston.

'Shake and bakes' pass into history at Fort Benning

BY MARTIN McWILLIAMS
The last "instant NCO" candidate is gone from Fort Benning. He's been replaced by a Noncommissioned Officer Education System (NCOES) student with temporary duty pay in his pocket.

NCOES "is meant" to establish a professional development school program for career NCOs "like we have for officers," according to a post spokesman.

The new program reflects a drive for increased professionalism at all levels in the post-Vietnam Army.

The program will feature basic, advanced and senior courses, mirroring officer basic, advanced and command and general staff or college level courses.

The NCOES innovation has come to Benning on the heels of the departing Noncommissioned Officer Candidate Course (NCOCC), variously known as the "shake and bake" or "instant NCO" program.

NCOCC, a child of the Vietnam War, was "an idea that worked," one colonel said, "but now we don't need it anymore."

The program was born out of the Army's need for large numbers of skilled junior noncommissioned officers — corporals and sergeants — to lead squads and fire teams in combat.

Since Army training methods could produce nowhere near the required number of experienced NCOs in the time available, young infantrymen were brought to Benning as soon after basic training and schooled in skills and leadership techniques it once took years of experience to learn — hence the nickname, "instant NCO."

Graduates of the 11-week course went to statistics for three months, and then, almost always, to Vietnam.

Between Sept. 5, 1967 and Mar. 13, 1970, 26,058 "instant NCOs" pinned on new stripes at Benning, and most went on to the fighting where they were, by all accounts, invaluable.

Now the fighting is much diminished. The Army no longer needs the stream of trained young leaders required when a half-million men were in the field. Yet the value to the Army of NCOs schooled in a particular combat skill was proven.

Vietnam-oriented NCOCC has been phased out in favor of an NCO school system operating under "an entirely different concept," said Lt. Col. Mike Lyman, chief of systems engineering for the Directorate of Instruction at the Infantry School.

NCOES is an attempt to "create a Department of Army school system for NCOs like we have for officers," Lyman said.

Each Army service school will have its own system. The Infantry system is taught at Fort Benning.

Benning's Infantry School teaches 8-12 week basic and advanced courses in four combat specialties. A senior course geared for highest-level NCO training, encompassing all Army branches, is soon after planning stages, said

Lyman. Eligible for the basic course are soldiers in grades E-4 and E-5 — a few "outstanding" E-3s — who are found highly qualified for career status through annual skill tests and commander recommendations.

Most come to Benning from units at other posts and return to those units once their NCOES class graduates, while other stop off at Benning for the course between assignments, Lyman said. All are on temporary duty (TDY) and receive extra pay.

All basic students receive seven weeks of instruction in general subjects such as leadership, map-reading, weapons, first aid, and infantry-related subjects. Students then receive one to five weeks of instruction in their specialty — rifle squad leader, mortar squad leader, direct fire (anti-tank) squad leader or operations-intelligence specialist.

An E-3 who graduates will be hired to E-4. If an E-4 is top graduate, he gets E-5. There are no other promotions (almost all NCOCC grads were promoted, some jumping two grades), but other benefits include 42 promotion points, or as many as five for each course week — opposed to one or two for most enlisted courses.

Advanced students will take either a course designed to prepare them to be infantry first sergeants or high-level operations and intelligence specialists.

It is planned that eventually every qualified NCO will get to this course. Lyman said, but only the most senior and highly qualified will have a crack at early classes. Advanced classes will be filled with only E-7s for some time, Lyman said.

The first of the new courses graduated at the end of March, and both basic and advanced courses are "in full swing now," Lyman said. Each class can hold 300, and several cycles are expected to be at Benning at once, but post spokesmen refused comment on the number of students programmed for the near future.

The Benning courses have not finalized such an agreement.

End of an Era

The graduation of 82nd Co., 8th Sth. Bn., The School Brigade (TSB), Class 1272 (11B) on March 13 marked the end of an era. This graduation signified the termination of the Noncommissioned Officer Candidate Program at Fort Benning. The last and 26,058th graduate to walk through the stage in Marshall Auditorium was Sgt. Donald W. Yoens. He received not only his certificate of graduation but also was presented with a "Follow Me" Plaque by CSM James A. Scott, the guest speaker in commemoration of this significant event. (Photo by Staff Sgt. Steve Matize).

Avn. Cmd. waves goodbye to Beaver

BY NEAL CORSON
After a long and distinguished career, the Beavers have left Fort Benning, Arizona, there to be sealed and left in the dry desert air against the day their country may once again call them forth to serve. Will that day ever come? Or is the Beaver one of the last relics of a bygone era, a throwback to the days when the wings of Army Aviation were stationary?

The Birdog, the flying jeep of Korea, is no more. The Calhoun now flies in Air Force blue. The Helo will soon retire, replaced, as were the others, by helicopters.

Although it was a bright, warm April morning, the small group gathered at Lawson Field wore an air of sadness. They had come to say their final respects to an old friend and faithful friend, an airplane that was more than a piece of machinery.

The crews were there, and the pilots, one of whom expressed his belief that the Army had not seen the last of the Beaver. The day would come, he said, when the Army would realize the need for this aircraft.

During its long tour of duty at Benning, the Beaver has performed a variety of missions. It has been an instrument trainer, a cargo transport, a courier and VIP ship. Representatives of the Airborne Department, the Ranger Department, the Pathfinder Committee, and the Sport Parachute Club were on hand to pay their respects, for the Beaver has served them all equally well.

The U-6A Beaver, built by De Havilland of Canada as the DHC-2, was originally designed for operations in the wilds of Canada. The final design for the aircraft was largely influenced by a survey of some 80 bush operators working under all climatic and geographical conditions. The prototype Beaver flew for the first time on August 16, 1947, only ten months after the design work was begun. The aircraft was type certified by the Canadian Department of Transportation on March 12, 1948.

The Beaver's military career began in 1951 when it was selected by the Army as the result of a finished product competition with eight other airplanes, all of American manufacture. Designated the L-20, the Beaver replaced the older Ryan L-17 for the transportation of equipment, supplies, and troops near the battle front.

Since that time, the Beaver has served the Army well with over 600 individual aircraft flying under all conceivable conditions in war and peace, in combat and in support.

And now the Beavers are gone. But they are still remembered by those who flew them, and by those for whom they flew.

NCO, wife turn lot into playground

With a little hard work and plenty of phone calls, a Fort Benning NCO and his wife have helped turn an unused foliage-covered lot near their home into a playground for youngsters.

"I want our children and other children of the neighborhood to have a nice place to play," Mrs. Theodore Nestor said of the new McFalls Recreation Area. "They needed a playground."

The Nestors took — and received — help and equipment from members of the U.S. Army Infantry Board, with which Sgt. Nestor is a career counselor. The volunteers, offering their spare time and muscle power, cleared the field of brush and debris using axes, shovels and sickles. Then, a swing set and monkey bars was installed.

The efforts of Infantry Board personnel attracted additional assistance. Volunteers from other post units who live in the area chipped in, and bulldozers and tractors were brought in to clear and level the site.

Nestor named his wife as the driving force behind the project.

"Without her work," he said, "I doubt that much would have been done."

Mrs. Nestor believes that much still is left to do.

"We plan to build basketball and volleyball courts," she said. "And after that, who knows."

Eastern's Leisure Class. Is it better than standby?

Standby

If you wait, it's 50%.

Leisure Class

If you wait, it's free.

Eastern has a new way for you to fly. Besides First Class and Coach and Standby, Eastern has Leisure Class."

Leisure Class costs you the same as you'd pay for coach (¾ regular fare). But we don't guarantee you'll get on your scheduled flight.

If you do, it's the same as Coach. But if Coach is full, you may fly First Class. Without paying anything extra. And, if the whole plane is full, you won't get on at all. And that's the good part.

Because then you get your money back. And we put you on our very next flight that has seats available, and fly you free of charge.

Now, our lawyers would get nervous if we left this out: Leisure Class does not apply when you're on official government business and your ticket is being paid for by a government agency.

Nor to some reduced fare tickets. Nor to the Air-Shuttle, nor Bermuda, Jamaica, Mexico and Bahama flights. Nor when the originally scheduled plane is grounded due to adverse weather conditions, equipment failure or equipment substitutions.

In order to qualify for a free ride, you must present your Leisure Class ticket at the boarding gate twenty minutes before flight time.

And, if you have to wait, it will be anywhere from several minutes to several hours.

But if you've got more time than money, you probably won't mind that at all. Call Eastern or your base JAMTO office.

They have all the details.

"The Wings of Man" is a registered service mark of Eastern Air Lines, Inc. The number of Leisure Class tickets per flight is limited.

Springer Ballet Company to present spring show

The Springer Ballet Company will present its annual spring performance April 28-30 at Columbus' Springer Theater. The program will be "Scandinavian Spring," "Western Suite," and "Graduation Ball."

Tickets will be on sale at the Springer box office starting April 24. "Scandinavian Spring" features the music of Norwegian composer Edvard Grieg who is well known for turning the folk music of his native land into a deep emotional experience in his compositions.

Fans of TV westerns will recognize the sounds of "Western Suite," which combines the theme from favorite cowboy shows with a bit of low-down music.

Wives turn on to soldiering

Mrs. Dennis J. Lott seems ready to hit the combat trail.

"Hard hat" Melody Cox appears quite comfortable in this tanker helmet.

Wives of soldiers in the 197th Support Bn. were liberated from their household duties to take part in their husbands' work during Wives Day activities April 7.

The day, which was designed to give the ladies a better understanding of their spouses' jobs, began with a short briefing by Lt. Col. Hollis D. Messer, battalion commander. Messer welcomed the wives and informed them of the mission of the unit and its future goals.

Also on the day's agenda were tank and armor personnel carrier rides and a display of equipment used by the battalion, including an M60A1 tank, M551 Sheridan tank and an armor vehicle landing bridge.

Each wife received a 197th Support diploma for having completed an abbreviated tank crewman's course and were dubbed "Honorary Tankers."

The wives seemed to like the experience in soldiering. Said Mrs. Berry Winfield: "I really enjoyed the opportunity to see what my husband does in the Army and where he does it."

The event was climaxed by a steak dinner with all the trimmings.

Pitch, hit, throw contest announced

Registration for the official major league baseball pitch, hit and throw competition sponsored by the Phillips Petroleum Company is between April 15 and June 4 according to Sam Probet, of the Columbus Parks and Recreation Department.

Boys nine through 12 accompanied by a parent or legal guardian may register for the contest at participating Phillips Dealers. Contestants will be divided into the four age groups 9, 10, 11 and 12.

The age of each entrant as of Aug. 1, will determine the age of category in which the boy will compete. Winners of local contests may advance to district, division and national competition.

In the pitching event the boys will try to throw a baseball into a target positioned 46 feet away. Each boy will have five pitches. Forty points will be awarded for each pitch into the target.

The boy will be scored on how far he can hit the ball on the fly during the hitting contest. He must toss the ball into the air and then hit it.

In the throwing competition each boy will field a stationary ball on the ground then throw it from an infield position to home plate. He is scored on how close his ball lands to the home plate target.

Local competition in the contest will be held at Golden Park from June 10-18. District competition will be held June 17-18 with the division contest set for June 24-25, July 1-2 and July 8-9.

The eight finalists will compete for the National Championship at the Major League All-Star Game at Atlanta Stadium July 25.

The 197th champs will now enter competition for the Post Championship at Brian Wells Field House to be played during next week, starting Monday.

Two games will be played each night. Game times are 7 p.m., for the first game and 8 p.m. for the second. The Post Championship will be decided Friday night. For additional information phone 545-9925.

The captain of the 2-10th Field Art., Volleyball team stated that "the competition will be rough but we are in preparation to try and gain another victory for the Brigade."

The Post tournament includes all units from Fort Benning competing for the championship. Each team will have a shot at the championship but only one team can be victorious.

The participation has been exceptionally well by the spectators and it is hoped that the Post Tournament will be just as successful. All of the post personnel are invited to attend the Post Volleyball Championship.

Davis leads marksmen in victory over AF

SFC Charles D. Davis of the U.S. Army Marksmanship Training Unit grabbed the championship of the Monthly Open Running Bear Match here April 7 and led his teammates in a clean sweep over an outclassed Air Force team. He compiled 1,112 for the top spot.

Davis, a promising Olympic candidate in the moving target competition started the two-day match Thursday with determination by taking the Slow Run event with a 284 and established a two point lead over top Air Force contender, SSG Robert Yeager of Lackland AFB, Texas.

Yeager, former National Champion, topped the field in the Fast Run with his 270 but Davis was just one down and won the day's aggregate with his combined 553.

He continued to increase the lead spread as he dominated the action Friday and was 11 points ahead of Yeager, his nearest rival with 548.

Final results gave Yeager the runner up spot for the meet with 1,100 while Maj. (Ret) Willis Powell of Columbus was 26 down for third place.

Davis, in musing his way into the championship circle, set a new National record in the Slow Run competition Friday with his 31. This beat the old mark held by Air Force Sgt. (ret.) Franklin Tossas by two points.

Following this action, Davis led his Army teammates into the team Championships also as they mastered the Air Force contenders. The Army team of Davis, SFC Edmund O. Moeller Jr., SSG William J. May and Sgt. James Reiber put a winning combination of 1,423 together to beat the Texas team's effort by 47 points.

The dual meet between the Air Force shooters and the Fort Benning marksmen served as a preliminary run for the Interstate Matches which start Tuesday at the post ranges. In these contests, a week-long series of matches, the nation's best marksmen from all the services are pitting their skills and seeking championships in Shotgun, Pistol and Rifle with many divisions in each.

Send Jim Koger to Alaska with a truck load of refrigerators and six weeks later he will probably be a rich man. In other words, he knows how to push a product that people feel they don't particularly need.

In spite of his chances for success, however, Koger isn't interested in selling refrigerators to the Eskimos. His bag is baseball and Columbus—not Alaska—is his target. As General Manager of the class AA Columbus Astros, Koger has the task of drawing customers to Golden Park this summer in an all-out campaign to revitalize interest in major league baseball. Thus far his efforts look good.

Season ticket sales have surged this winter, and Koger sees the turnstiles turning much more often this year than last season when the local club recorded a dismal 19,000 or so fans. And like most baseball executives today, the energetic Astro general manager understands that it takes more than baseball to lure the fan to the park nowadays.

"We plan to give away something every night," Koger explained recently, "and the fans are going to see more than just baseball. . . a night at the park is gonna be fun." Included in the plans are free gifts ranging from hams to brand new automobiles. A good looking lass in hot pants will be on hand to hand out the prizes, and occasionally a sky-diver will jump into the park, land on second base and pass out gifts to the spectators.

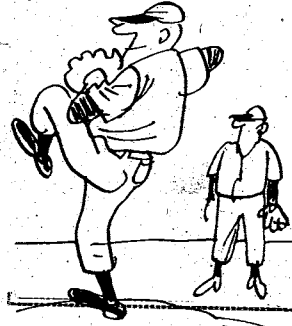

Koger also announced that ten cent beer night has been slated for each Thursday the Astros are in town. Of special interest to Fort Benning personnel, Koger has declared every home Wednesday as "Fort Benning Night," when all military folks will be admitted at discount prices. Alop plans are underway to honor special groups and units on Fort Benning on their special Wednesday nights. More will be written about this at a later date.

Although there will be many side attractions at Golden Park this summer, baseball will still be the number one item. And while the Astros limped through a dismal last place finish a year ago, the situation looks much improved this time around. Plenty of new faces will be on hand to greet Columbus fans tonight when the Astros kick off their 1972 home schedule.

Among the newcomers will be the manager Jackie Brandt, a former major league outfielder who played at Columbus some eighteen years ago. Although this will only be Brandt's second year as a professional manager, he brings a lot of baseball savvy with him. Included in his career are stints with the Giant and Oriole organizations. Reports from the Astros spring training camp at Cocoa, Fla., indicate that Brandt has instilled confidence in this year's edition of the Astros, something they surely lacked last campaign.

With the cooperation of local residents, a night at the old ball park will indeed be fun. The energetic Koger has gone all out to ensure that Golden Park will be an entertaining place this summer.

All that's needed to complete the picture is for the local population to come out to the ball park and support the Astros, and of course, have a good time in the process.

Army changes team handball plans

The Special Services Sports Section of the Third U. S. Army has announced a change in plans for the format of the Army Team Handball Championships that involve cancellation of future home and away from home league games.

Plans were changed because of the schedule for the National Team Handball Championships to be held in New York City, May 29-28.

Third Army intends to enter a team in this tournament. As scheduled the Third Army League would not have been completed in time to select All-Star players to play on the Third Army team.

The new plan formulated by the Army Sport Section calls for a round robin type tournament to be played at Briant Wells Field house from April 24-28. Nine teams from major installations in the Third Army Area are expected to field teams for the tournament. The winner of the round robin tournament will be declared the Third Army Team Handball Champions.

Twenty players in the round robin tournament will be selected to form the Third Army team to participate in the National Championships. Those selected will remain at Fort Benning for practices and training sessions no longer but could use additional players and coaches until the time for the New York Tournament.

Orienteers finish 2nd in team competition at S.I.U. Championships

Fort Benning's Orienteering team claimed second place in team competition and fourth, fifth and eighth place in the Elite Men's Class last Saturday in the Southeastern University Orienteering Championships at Little Grassy Lake, Carthage, Ill. The Quantico Marines took the first three places and won the team competition with a time of 4:13:14. Benning's second place time was 4:55:12.

Don Kennedy led Fort Benning in the Elite Men's individual competition, finishing fourth with time of 1:24:24. He was followed by Ed Strabel in fifth with 1:35:24, John Beck, eight, 1:43:55, Don Stanley, 14, 2:02:15, Dale Aberle, 18th, 2:03:18, and two more.

Lifesaving devices required

Effective Monday, U.S. Coast Guard regulations for lifesaving equipment on recreational boats will be expanded to cover row boats, canoes, sailboats and motor boats. Former regulations pertained solely to motor boats.

Under authority of the Federal Boat Safety Act of 1971 the Coast Guard has ruled as follows:

No person may use a boat less than 46 feet long unless there is at least one of the following aboard for each person: Life preserver, ring life buoy, buoyant vest, buoyant cushion or a special purpose water safety device.

Just to have such gear aboard will not satisfy the regulation. It must be readily accessible and in serviceable condition.

Each item must be Coast Guard approved with legible markings to its effect.

The Doughboys have fielded a good team in the Army League. Anyone interested in competing for a position on the team should call the Special Services Sport Section, 545-1516.

Notes

BY BILL KLOEB

Several weeks ago this column carried information concerning a predator and vermin control program being conducted by the Fort Benning Fish and Game Unit. It also voiced my opinion that the squirrel and pigeon populations on post should be reduced.

I expected to get static about doing away with some of the pigeons and squirrels but wasn't at all prepared for the many complaints about the control program.

Some people apparently got the idea that everyone would be taking to the woods in a gigantic open season on anything that is warm and moves. Sorry if I gave that impression. It isn't the case. Only personnel from the Fish and Game Unit participate in this program. These people have been specially selected and trained in wildlife and other ecology matters. They frown on the idea of anyone else getting into the act and the Post Regulations prohibit it.

Some people objected to the list of predators. That is understandable. The word has a bad sound in our language. Actually predators are not all bad. Some of them do more good than harm. They perform a good and necessary service in keeping wildlife populations in balance not only when their numbers are in proper proportion to the population of other wildlife. Maintaining this balance is the only purpose of the control program on post. There is no intent to wipe out any species unless it is the wild dog. Fish and Game people know the reserves better than a lot of people know their back yards. They know what the wildlife balance should be and predators are not bothered if they are not upsetting that balance.

The main effort in this program as stated previously is the control of animals who are potential rabies carriers. The number one object is the wild dog. Most of the effort in the program is expended to eliminate these man made nuisances who have at times been a threat to the safety of humans who have crossed their paths in the woods.

Some people get up tight any time any part of nature is changed. They feel that if left alone nature will cure all of her ills but sometimes nature gets on a course that requires outside help. Many years ago, before we humans established the requirement for so much built up real estate, threatened species could just move out of areas where their existence was threatened. History of certain extinct species shows this didn't always work even when there was plenty of room for migration. Today our wildlife is restricted to smaller areas and as time passes will become even more restricted. Eventually their areas will be reduced until they are practically living in a zoo. Management is required to maintain a proper balance of animals in a reduced area. Sometimes it is necessary to eliminate a certain number of a certain species for the benefit of the overall population.

There are more deer in the state of Georgia today than there were at the turn of the century. Herds had been decreasing as settlers took up more and more land for cultivation. Those animals remaining had been forced into areas unable to support their numbers causing additional decreases because of disease and starvation. The conservation men began a program to improve habitat for the deer and move deer to areas better able to support them. Today because of this management deer are plentiful and on the increase each succeeding year.

The Georgia and Alabama Conservationists are currently conducting a similar program for the turkey whose numbers have decreased in recent years. These type programs are being carried out in all parts of the earth. Polar bears are being relocated in Alaska, lions, tigers and other large animals in Africa but it can only be done on a selective basis. Sometimes the conservationist must improve the available habitat and take other measures to improve conditions of wildlife where they exist. Control programs are a necessary part of this management.

Benning's handball team plays for 931st support

The Fort Benning Handball Team held an exhibition team handball match at Westberry Field last Friday in an effort to gain support for the little known sport. The event was hosted by the 931st Engr. Gp. with over 300 people from the 931st in attendance.

According to the team captain, Steve Justice, the purpose of the match was to familiarize people with the sport and the fact that Fort Benning has a handball team in active competition with teams from other forts.

Two squads of the Fort Benning team gave a demonstration of team handball before the start of game. Team handball is similar to soccer with the exception that the hands are used instead of the feet.

The game ended in a tie. High scorers for the blue squad were G. Gooden with four points, M. Johnson, A. Engbretsen and J. Dougherty all had one point apiece. High scorers for the white squad were R. Whitley with four points, L. Johnson with two points and H. McBeed with one point.

TOT TOWN Campaign Promises!

Fund campaign underway for Tot Town Nursery

A new fund campaign is now underway to help finance the construction of the proposed Tot Town Nursery Annex.

The Nursery Annex will be located near Martin Army Hospital. Construction is scheduled to begin later this year, and the Nursery Annex is scheduled to be completed sometime in 1973.

As part of the fund drive, tickets will be sold to Fort Benning personnel, military and civilian, until Armed Forces Day, May 20. The tickets are available through unit representatives on Post, as well as at the Main PX, the Commissary, Martin Army Hospital, and the Hospital Annex.

Personnel participating in the fund campaign may be eligible for some really "fantastic" gifts:

First, a 1972 Chevrolet Monte Carlo hardtop sedan. The car is a two-door model, air conditioned, fully carpeted, and with Rally wheels and a vinyl top and interior.

Second, a 14-foot Monark Mark I fishing boat, equipped with a 50-horsepower Evinrude Motor and a Moody Deluxe Trailer. The boat is fiberglass, and has two anchor-mates, with 16-pound mushroom anchors, Astro-Turf carpeting, and an Electra Fell Ranger II Trolling Motor.

The boat can be used for shunting as well as fishing. It has a Raytheon Fatohm Meter, a six-gallon fuel tank, and a fish storage compartment. It also comes with batteries and an electric starter.

Third, a 550cc Harley-Davidson Trailbike with all accessories. The bike's color is British Racing Green.

Other gifts are two Winchester Model 1400 Automatic Rifles, two color television portables, and three stereo systems.

Winners need not be present in order to obtain their gifts. If the individual is no longer in the service or is transferred to another station, he may designate another individual to pick up his gift, or he may arrange to pick it up himself. All winners will be notified.

Educators visit post

Twenty-two educators from Georgia and Alabama visited Fort Benning Monday and Tuesday for briefings on the modern Army volunteer program and on opportunities a soldier has to continue his education while in service.

The 22 visiting educators were given briefings by the Instructional Methods Division and the General Educational Development office. Also, the group visited Columbus College and Georgia State classes taught in Infantry Hall and the Individual Learning Center.

One of the highlights of the visit was a tour of the 19th Infantry Brigade and its volunteer units.

Other areas covered in the discussions were the activities of the Infantry Center and School, problems in contemporary leadership, the goals and programs of the Modern Volunteer Army Project, and recruiting efforts in the high schools.

Gen. Gorman will explain these aspects as the vehicles maneuver in front of Infantry Hall. Following his discussion of the mechanized infantry of the past, he will discuss mechanized infantry of the present, noting that 50 percent of all Infantry battalions are mechanized. As M-113 armored personnel carrier will then drive in front of Infantry Hall as an example of a mechanized infantry of the present.

The future will be represented by appearances of an M13 Bree Buggy equipped with an anti-tank weapon. This vehicle is currently undergoing tests by the Infantry Board.

Two vehicle simulators, Husters, will also be displayed. One Huster is being used as a troop transport vehicle and the other is being tested as a carrier of anti-tank weapons. These commercial vehicles are being considered for adoption by the Army.

Following Gen. Gorman's remarks, Gen. Patton is expected to speak. The two generals are then scheduled to enter an M-113 and drive to the entrance of Infantry Hall where they will disembark.

The two World War II vehicles will then be positioned in their permanent resting places.

The technical aspects of the ceremony are being handled by the Infantry School's Command Maintenance Department headed by Col. Leonard R. Daems.

To put special emphasis of the ceremony, Maj. Gen. Orvin C. Talbot proclaimed Monday as "Mechanized Infantry Day."

2-10 Arty cleans-up Park

On April 3, 11 soldiers of the 2nd Battalion, 10th Field Artillery went to Valdosta, Ga. to help the residents of the community repair parks that need renovating.

The soldiers who helped clean up the recreation sites put in a total of 56 man hours. The men were working under the supervision of Mr. Dave Christian, Director of Parks and Recreation areas of Valdosta.

In addition to repairing the recreation sites the men helped plant new shruberies throughout the city. With the summer season setting in the Director of Parks and Recreation Areas felt that it would add to the city's beautification.

Mr. Christian stated that the 11 men were a tremendous asset to the project. The entire city of Valdosta is grateful to the men and to the 19th Infantry Brigade.

931st has Army's first Human Resource Office

BY RAY CARR — The establishment of the Human Resources Office in the 931st Engineer Group (Combat) in mid-February with a Chaplain as the primary staff officer (S6) is another 'first' in the Army.

This was according to information obtained during a visit last week by Chaplain Lt. Col. William Smith, Chief of Identification and Rehabilitation Branch, Drug and Alcohol Abuse Control Division, Headquarters CONARC.

Col. Robert Standley, 931st Engineer Group Commanding Officer, felt that the separate bodies organized to handle drug abuse control, relations, soldier councils and Human Self-Development Planning Units required by AR 609-9 could best be handled from one office. He felt that problems in these areas are all 'people problems' and that because of the professional training and experience required of a Chaplain he would be an ideal person to head this office. While the work might necessarily include a religious dimension, the Chaplain would be primarily a staff officer.

The USAIC Chaplain Col. Albert F. Ledebuhr gained concurrence from the Chief of Chaplains (Maj. Gen.) Georhard Hyatt and Fort Benning Commanding General, Maj. Gen. Orwin Talbot and a six-month model test experiment was begun. Upon completion of this experiment a recommendation will be considered to implement the successful program on a post-wide basis.

Chaplain (Maj.) Raymond Caulder, at the time serving as Administrative Chaplain in charge of funds and supplies, was selected to be the Human Resources Officer at Group level. He also serves as an advisor, trainer, and resource person at battalion and company levels. Of his work in this unique position, Chaplain Caulder said, "... this job provides tremendous challenges and opportunities for not only dealing with symptoms of soldiers' problems but of helping them find real solutions to them. The work is not that of a chaplain in the traditional sense but it is very relevant in helping to find answers to many problems facing young men in today's Army."

In addition to his undergraduate and seminary training, Chaplain Caulder has a Master's degree in Education and Psychology. For nine years prior to entering the Army in 1967 he taught in the public schools and School of Education, University of S.C. in Columbia, South Carolina.

The program will have three overall effects. One will be to give each patient a personal physician, and another will be to provide the patient with access to a physician by telephone 24 hours a day. The third effect will be to restore the primary function of the Emergency Room, which is the handling of life-threatening cases, such as heart attacks, accidents, and the like. Patients will be assigned a physician on their initial visit to the appropriate clinic or when their initial clinic appointment is made. All patients who already have a personal physician will be permitted to continue seeing him.

Advance information regarding specific groups to which patients will be assigned is now available and is being distributed. Further information may be obtained by calling the Chief, Administrative Support Branch, Department of Clinics, 546-3321.

Each Family Care Group in the Pediatric Clinic will be available at the Hospital Annex during the hours 9 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. and 1 p.m. to 4:30 p.m., Monday through Friday.

Appointments can be made for the Pediatric Clinic by calling the Central Appointment Desk, 544-1064. In addition, a pediatrician will be available from 6:30 a.m. until 8:30 p.m. in the Adult Outpatient Clinic, Monday through Friday, as well as on Saturday from 9 a.m. to 11 a.m. to see pediatric patients.

Under the Family Ambulatory Care System, each patient will have a personal physician. If illness arises after duty hours, patients may contact their physician or pediatrician by calling the Information Desk, Martin Army Hospital, 544-0291, which will notify the appropriate physician to call the patient.

GIGANTIC!

HOUSE OF SATISFACTION!

WHAT IS VOLUME SELLING?
Volume selling is being introduced here and it's going to take a little time to get used to it. But once you do, you'll see why it's the best way to buy a car.

WHY AREN'T ALL DEALERS VOLUME DEALERS?
First, you must have the product. Second, it takes more hours of work on the part of advertising and management to get personal and individual attention, keep cars down, and be willing to sell for a lower price than generally accepted by other dealers. It takes the time and hard work that very few are able to give.

WHAT ABOUT SATISFACTION AFTER THE SALE?
With today's complicated automobiles and power accessories, you can't do without a dealer who can give you customer professional service. It's very difficult to find one who can give you the kind of attention that is non-transferable. Thoroughly trained, well equipped, staff of 200 sales and service men, with the rest of our staff helping you, make our service with all the rest of our products best and most dependable.

CAN YOU AFFORD TO BUY FROM A DEALER THAT CANNOT COMPLETELY SERVICE YOUR CAR?
Some dealers will not take the time and effort for the price of a few Chevy and without the ability to completely handle service problems. Use the pre-purchase check sheet we've before you, please, to see if you're getting the best deal.

Headed by Lt. Col. Margaret M. Mack, there are four field medical services officers in charge of 36 cooks, 2 meat cutters and 2 bakers. They are responsible for serving an average of 1,269 meals daily.

Because of the wide assortment of diets needed for the patients, the food services officer is charged with writing his own menus. Not only must he prepare the "normal" menu, but he must arrange for such special diets as liquid, 1,000 calorie, 1,500 calorie, high protein, low fat, low sodium, low residue, diabetic and bland.

Florence Nightingale is credited with establishing the first diet kitchen to serve clean, nutritious foods for sick and wounded soldiers during the Crimean War. Since those days the food services program has expanded greatly to where the cost of food to Army hospitals exceeds $14 million yearly.

MAH brings back family doctor

Fort Benning's new Family Ambulatory Care System (FACS) will be put into operation May 1, giving Fort Benning personnel and their dependents more personalized health care service.

Military retirees and their dependents, as well as dependents of overseas sponsors Waiting Wives also will come under the new program.

Under the system, persons eligible to receive health care service at Fort Benning will be placed in one of four colored-coded groups.

Group A, color code "Yellow," will include Troop Medical Clinic No. 1 personnel and all their dependents. Group B, color code "Blue," takes care of Troop Medical Clinic, No. 2 and dependents.

Group C, color code "Pink," handles Troop Medical Clinics No. 3, No. 4, and No. 6 and their dependents. Troop Medical Clinic No. 9, the Stockade, and Marine Army Hospital will be served by Group D, color code "Green."

All retired personnel and their dependents, as well as dependents of overseas sponsors, will be assigned according to the last digit of the sponsor's Social Security number.

Dependents of sponsors with terminal digits 1 and 2 will be assigned to Group A (Yellow, and terminal digits 3 and 4 will come under Group B (Blue). Group C (Pink) will cover terminal digits 5 and 6, and Group D (Green) includes terminal digits 7, 8, 9, and 0.

During off-duty hours, a physician assigned to any of the five groups may be reached by calling the Information Desk, Marine Army Hospital, 544-2041, which will notify the physician to call the patient.

This same number, 544-2041, can be used to reach a pediatrician assigned to any group for children aged 12 and under during off-duty hours.

All active duty personnel will continue to be seen in the Adult Outpatient Clinic from 8 to 11 a.m. and from 1 to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday, and from 9 to 11 a.m. on Saturday. A physician assigned to each Family Care Group will be available in the Adult Outpatient Clinic during those times.

Dependents and retired personnel can also make appointments to see their own doctor by calling the Central Appointment Desk, 544-1064, from 8 to 11 a.m., from 1 to 4 p.m., and from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. Appointments can also be made for 9 to 11 a.m. on Saturdays.

Children under age 13 will be seen by a pediatrician assigned to each Family Care Group in the Pediatric Clinic at the Hospital Annex. The Pediatric Clinic will be open from 8 to 11:30 a.m. and from 1 to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Appointments for the Pediatric Clinic can be made by calling the Central Appointment Desk, 544-1064. A pediatrician will also be available from 8:30 to 8:30 a.m. in the Adult Outpatient Clinic Monday through Friday and from 9 to 11 a.m. on Saturdays to see Pediatric Patients.

Personnel and dependents who become ill at night or on weekends are requested to call the Information Desk before coming to the Emergency Room except in the case of a real necessity. The physician may be able to save a trip to the Emergency Room, which will then be able to handle true emergencies more readily.

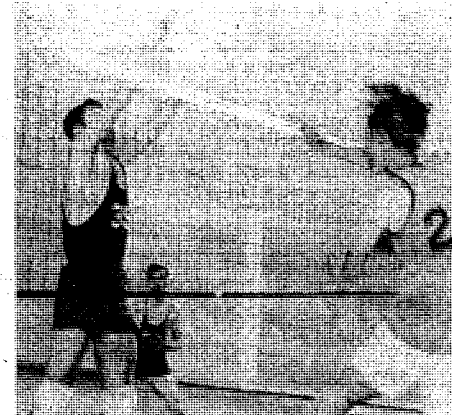

Maj. James F. Grow, who is in charge of the Family Ambulatory Care System, states, "The program will not be perfect at the start. We will need cooperation between patients and physicians to make it work."

"The Family Ambulatory Care System is a step in the direction of personalizing outpatient care in our clinics," Maj. Grow added. "MEDDAC will send someone to each unit to brief active-duty personnel on the system."

Personnel authorized to use the system will be issued a medical ID card, color coded to their group.

Mechanized Infantry Day honors WWII vehicles

Hair raising shot

EPC Mark Levin (at right) of the 168th Inf. fails in an attempt for a point as Capt. Wayne Smoot of 185th, 2nd Bn. 10th Field Artillery, blocks the shot during competition for the 1971 Infantry Brigade's volleyball championship, won by the 24th. Smoot is now on tour as a member of the AB-Army volleyball team. (Photo by Rick Wasser.)

Two World War II personnel carriers were retired here Monday and permanently displayed in front of Infantry Hall.

Brig. Gens. Paul F. Gorman, assistant commander of the U.S. Army Infantry School and George S. Patton Jr., assistant commander of the U.S. Army Armor School, Fort Knox, Ky., were present for the ceremonies.

Honored, were M-2 halftrack and an M-75 armored personnel carrier.

"The halftrack, which served with the 54th Infantry, part of the 10th Armored Div., in world war II, was provided by the Infantry Museum. It served in the battle of Bastogne in December 1944. Former members of the 54th Infantry include Vice-president Spiro T. Agnew and former Secretary of the Army Stanley Resor.

"The M-75, which was recovered by the Command Maintenance Department was the first fully enclosed, fully armored personnel carrier. It saw duty with the 35th Infantry.

In his remarks, Gen. Gorman noted how the Infantry School was surrounded by symbolism, the Ranger Tab, the Airborne and the Aviation wings, all signs of accomplishment and professionalism. Missing, he said, was a symbol recognizing mechanized infantry, noting that more than half of all infantry units are mechanized.

Gen. Patton, who served with the 11th Armored Cavalry Regiment in Vietnam, said, "There are only two branches of the combat arms that actually close with and destroy the enemy, and that is the infantry and the armor."

He said the future was secure for both arms as they both seek new and better ways to improve their mobility.

Gen. Patton, who started his career as an infantryman at Fort Benning, said both arms depended upon one another for survival. Having served with all the Infantry battalions in the 1st Division, he said "I never found them wanting."

Fort Benning's only mechanized unit, the 1st Bn., 88th Inf., was represented at the ceremony by the present day armored personnel carrier, the M-113 and a color guard.

"The mechanized infantry of the future was represented by an XR-911 dune buggy equipped with a TOW anti-tank weapon. The vehicle is capable of speeds up to 80 mph.

Two combat vehicle simulators (CVS) were also on display. One is used by the Infantry School to train leaders to think at 20-30 mph, while the other is being tested as an anti-tank weapon carrier. It was armed with a Dragon.

Alaskan National Guard sends seven to Fort Benning

By EDITH SIMMONS and DAVE MCQUEEN

Seven Alaskan National Guardsmen are attending Infantry Officer Candidate School at Fort Benning.

These men have a "hodge-podge" of interests — one is a motorcycle racer, another a seal hunter, and another is a "50 Bowler."

Officer Candidate James Lee Race finds himself in an unusual position in OCS. As a platoon sergeant (E-7), he is now receiving orders he is used to giving.

Candidate Race is a member of Company A, 3rd Battalion (Mech), 29th Infantry, Alaskan National Guard, Ketchikan, Alaska. He is the platoon sergeant and acting platoon leader of the 1st platoon which is made up of men living in and around Ketchikan.

Race is quite interested in the National Guard. He has put in 12 years of service, the first three in the Army Reserve. The two months prior to entering OCS were spent as a full-time receiving sergeant for the National Guard.

Race volunteered for OCS because "I felt I can do more for the company as an officer."

While in OCS and after receiving his commission, Race will face some problems. He is the oldest man in his OC company. At 31, he is even older than the company commander.

Race had to get two dispensations from the Army before he could come to OCS: one from a doctor and one from the Army, because of his age. Also, he will be going back to his platoon to be the platoon leader where everyone has known him as sergeant, but he doesn't see any real difficulty in the situation.

Race became interested in going to OCS through the encouragement of his Company Commander, Capt. Richard Blasen, but it wasn't until just recently that he was able to arrange things so he could go.

Race has found many aspects of OCS interesting. Being an older man, and having spent some time in the service, he has found some of the younger men coming to him for advice. Also, he has had many duties assigned to him because of his position in the National Guard. He is the SOP (Standard Operating Procedures) officer, the area beautification officer, and has other responsibilities as well.

A lover of motorcycles, Race has raced in many a motorcycle event locally. Most of his free weekends are spent at the race track. His daughter, Pam, 8, likes to ride with her father, and the whole family likes to go out for a picnic at the track.

Race hopes to take an armor course at Fort Knox soon. He plans to bring one of his motorcycle down and do some amateur racing while in school there.

Race hasn't decided whether to stop his service at 20 years or not — he is keeping an open mind to the extra 10 years. He likes the Guard — always has.

Three of the Alaskans presently attending OCS are Eskimos. Sebastian Kasayul, Jack Lee Hopstad, and Robert Hoffman come from the 2nd Scout Battalion, 29th Infantry. All three are from Bethel which is 400 miles west of Anchorage. With 2500 people, Bethel is the largest town in a 400 mile radius and serves as the trading center for the area.

Kasayul is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Willie Kasayul of Scammon Bay. He graduated from St. Mary's High School in St. Mary's in 1969. In October, he joined the National Guard. Although a store clerk, Kasayul spends a great deal of time hunting and fishing. Because survival in this part of Alaska is difficult, many people hunt and fish to supplement family livelihood. Kasayul was out hunting "as soon as I could lift a rifle," the technique of seal hunting is his specialty.

Kasayul hopes to receive training later as an aircraft mechanic for the Guard.

Jack Lee Hopstad finished Bethel High School in 1968. Presently, he is studying electronics technology at the University of Alaska. Like most Alaskans, Hopstad also hunts for the family table. His favorite game is duck and geese. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. Olaf N. Hopstad.

Edelbrock SINGLE QUAD HI-RISER MANIFOLDS

In the process of producing power on every degree, an engine is much like a big air pump. It pulls air in through the carburetor, combines it with the fuel in the cylinder, and then disposes of it through the exhaust. Any air you can increase the performance of the engine. The Edelbrock Hi-Riser Intake Manifold is the key to this. The purpose of performance manifold installation is to improve the flow of fuel vapors from the carburetor system to the cylinder. More and more air is drawn into the cylinder, resulting in more power. With Edelbrock manifolds, you can improve your engine's performance. Hopstad likes OCS but he is looking forward to his graduation on April 28 so he can get out of the Georgia belt.

Like the other two, Robert Hoffman requested OCS. Hoffman graduated from Bethel High School, Hoffman works as a truck driver. He spends much of his spare time hunting and fishing. He explained that pike fishing is the big fall and spring sport in the area. Men and women all come out to catch these fish for sport and subsistence.

His parents are Mr. and Mrs. Edward Hoffman. In discussing their National Guard training, Hopstad pointed out that the Alaskan unit holds drills on week nights during the winter. These extra drills permit the men to be free during the summer months when everyone must be out working to earn the next winter's living.

The other three Alaskans are also vigorous outdoorsmen in addition to their daily activities.

Originally from Florida, William McBride went to Alaska after finishing five years in the Air Force. He had worked as a jet bombardier in the Air Force. McBride learned to fly in 1966 and went to Alaska thinking there were more flying jobs there. He learned to fly helicopters while working for a private firm. A Civil Air Patrol volunteer in Anchorage, McBride has flown several search missions for downed planes.

McBride has been a member of the 3rd Battalion, 29th Infantry since September, 1971. Because he likes flying, McBride is self-employed as a bush pilot. He takes hikers out to the bush and returns for them at a specific time. He is associated with Pioneer Guides and Outfitters in Chitina, Alaska near the Wrangell Mountains.

Enthusiastic about Alaskan hunting, McBride offered to discuss finances, accommodations, and expectations with prospective hikers in the 3rd OC Company.

McBride's wife, Harriet, lives with their two children in Eagle River. Ronald Taylor came to Alaska in 1964. He joined the Guard in 1964 and became a full time employee in 1966.

Taylor's duty assignment is with the 10th Ordnance Platoon (Maintenance) in Anchorage. He works as the Senior Electronics and Communications Repairman and Calibration Technician. Before this, he had been a journeyman meat cutter, and mountain climber.

Alaskan

Taylor's training is as lengthy as his duty title. He has had extensive courses in electronics repair at Ft. Gordon, Monmouth and Richardson, and at Aberdeen Proving Grounds. His education does not end there; he is also a history and business major at Anchorage Community College.

When not working or studying, Taylor enjoys downhill skiing and mountain climbing. John Phelps is an eleven year member of the National Guard. Until 1964, he worked in transportation. At that time, he became a full time employee and went to the 10th Ordnance Platoon (Main). Phelps is automotive su-supervisor in the combined support maintenance shop.

One-quarter Indian, Phelps was born in Alaska. He attended Seward High School in Seward. He is married and has two children. Phelps is a member of the famed 50 Below Club. This means he has been out on an overnight field trip when the temperature was below zero. Phelps commented that trying to finish everything assigned had increased his effectiveness and efficiency by 200 percent.

Phelps holds one of the 17 Army Commendation Medals awarded to Alaskan National Guardsmen. McBride and Taylor in discussing the OCS program, agreed on its value and importance. McBride felt the "nine weeks of leadership wouldn't be enough" ... He was pleased with the training in handling problems. Phelps commented that trying to finish every-

Pioneers help rebuild Cussetta High School

BY WILLIAM BALA
Soldiers from the 1st Bn., 29th Inf. have completed a domestic action project at Cussetta High School which was ravaged by fire last year.

The project, part of the 197th Infantry Brigade's continuing domestic action program, involved renovation of some structures, erection of prefabricated buildings for temporary classrooms, landscaping and construction of a recreation site for the students.

In addition, the soldiers build a new basketball court to replace the one which was inadequate due to age and size, as well as having a dirt surface.

The officials honored the men and the battalion commander, Lt. Col. Edmund F. ...

May 19 71st Inf. Division colors to be retired

The colors of the 71st Infantry Division, an Army unit that distinguished itself during World War II combat, will be retired in ceremonies at Fort Benning at 11:30 a.m. on May 19.

All soldiers or former soldiers who served with the division are invited to attend the ceremony to be held on York Field in front of Infantry Hall.

Three former commanding officers of the division are being invited to attend the ceremony, including Brig. Gen. (ret.) Paul L. Freeman, who was commanding general of Post 2000, and Brig. Gen. (ret.) Clarence W. Clapsaddle, Colorado Springs, Colo., who was a major commanding a division artillery battalion during the fighting in Europe.

Fort Benning has been designated as home stations for the 71st Infantry Division by the Department of the Army to assure continued awareness of the history, traditions and achievement of inactive regular Army divisions. Other Army installations are being designated home stations for other inactive divisions.

The 71st Division was activated on June 15, 1942, and was transferred to Fort Benning on May 15, 1944. The division departed for the European Theater of Operations on Jan. 26, 1945, and distinguished itself by winning two battle streamers: Central Europe and Rhineland.

Soldiers of the division were noted for penetrating to the easternmost points reached by Allied Ground Forces prior to VE Day.

The division was inactivated on 12 March 1946, at Camp Kilmer, N.J. It was reactivated on Oct. 10, 1964, at Fort Richardson, Alaska, where it participated in the Korean War.

Drug Abuse Week big success

Tri-City Drug Abuse Prevention Week began officially Friday April 14 with the signing of a proclamation in Mayor J. R. Allen's office in the Government Center.

Mayor Allan, Maj. Gen. Orvan C. Talbott, post commander, and Mr. Jim Langley, representing Mayor John M. Anthony of Phenix City, participated in the signing ceremony, which took place at 10 a.m.

Capt. Jim Stanford, Executive Director of CODAC (Community Organization for Drug Abuse Control), Mr. Bobby Ledford, President of CODAC, and Capt. John Rusin, Maj. Geo. Talbott's aide, and the aide's wife, Capt. Jo Rusin, who works in the Drug Abuse Control Office at Fort Benning, were also present.

Abuse Prevention Week was "to let parents learn as much about drugs as kids know today." The proclamation states that Drug Abuse Prevention Week was "organized by CODAC to conduct a concentrated Prevention Through Education program," and that "all citizens, civilian and military, are urged to take advantage of the various programs being conducted."

Stanford gave a few highlights of Tri-City Drug Abuse Prevention Week, which ended last week. Activities scheduled for the Columbus-Fort Benning-Phenix City area included two Family Problem-Solving Seminars, one at Marshall Auditorium at Infantry Hall, and one at Fine Arts Hall Auditorium at Columbus College.

Representatives of CODAC spoke at various civic organizations during the week, including the Columbus and Phenix City Lions Clubs and the Phenix City Rotary Club, as well as the Muscogee County PTA Council.

Presidents of all high school classes in Columbus toured the Drug Intervention Group (DIG) Center, located next to the Health Department. This group included approximately 28 students.

According to Stanford, one of the purposes of Drug Abuse Prevention Week was "to let parents learn as much about drugs as kids know today."

Minority ROTC enrollment surges

Why would a black college student enroll in ROTC now that the draft is apparently dying? Without the threat of induction as an incentive, one would expect ROTC enrollment in general — and especially minority enrollment — to wane, but that is hardly the case in the Third US Army Area. In fact four more institutions in the Southeast will begin new ROTC programs next fall — two predominantly black colleges — and other black schools are negotiating for cross-enrollment agreements. This unexpected progress is not really an enigma, however, to those who have watched the scene closely.

The Army is changing for the better, and no one is more aware of its increased professionalism and improved "lifestyle" than minorities. Poor pay, unreasonable haircut policies, unnecessary pass and travel restrictions, 6 and 7 day work weeks, and "make-work" are museum pieces in the Modern Volunteer Army (MVA) and minorities are noting this with interest.

Within the past two years the salary of a second lieutenant has increased by about 10 per cent, and Army Regulations have been revised to allow afro-style haircuts which do not restrict the wearing of proper headgear. Old travel restrictions no longer apply to Army members in the continental US, and the five-day work week has been implemented on all posts.

When the Army talks of its strides in race relations, college students tend to label it propaganda. But when such organizations as the National Urban League (NUL) and the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP) begin to talk about opportunities for minorities in the Army officer corps, the skeptical sit up and listen.

Sound-off

Follow Gloria Steinem into combat?????????

While Congress and some members of the Women's Lib may be thinking along the lines of arming women and sending them off to war, most of the soldiers quizzed at Fort Benning feel a broom and mop are more suitable tools.

"Sound Off's" question this week was two-fold—first, what would they think of fighting along side of women and second, what would their reactions be to following a woman into combat.

Sgt. Michael K. Klein

Sgt. Michael K. Klein, Hqs. and Hqs. Co., 197th Inf. Bde., said he didn't think the idea of co-ed platoons would work. But he had a different reason. "If one of the women were to be injured, I'd just feel differently about it than if a man were to be shot. I'd feel kind of helpless. There are just too many complications that could arise."

Confronted with a woman platoon leader he said he would follow her. "I've followed a lot of different types before. Might as well give a woman a chance," he said.

Sgt. Willie G. Cheatham, Hqs. and Hqs. Co., 197th Inf. Bde., said he didn't think the idea of serving with women was so hot. "It's just not a woman's role to go out and fight the enemy. I could see them staying back at the barracks cooking, cleaning and providing companionship though," he said.

Sorg said he would give a woman platoon leader a better chance before seeking a transfer. "After all, she would outrank me."

Pvt. Timothy A. Kannon, 4th Casual Co., said he didn't think arming women would be a good idea. "I realize the Viet Cong use women soldiers, but I just don't feel this is their place in society."

"Some women may think it is, but I think there are still such things as jobs for men and jobs for women, and fighting a war happens to be a man's job. Let the women stay home and fight among themselves."

Kannon said he would fight anyway he could to avoid serving in a platoon led by a woman.

SSGT. Willie G. Cheatham

The one lone dissenter on the question was SSGT. Willie G. Cheatham, Hqs. and Hqs. Co., 197th Inf. Bde. "Yes, I'd go into combat with them. I think it would be a definite morale factor for the troops. Some women are just as good in combat as men, and I think they have proven it in other armies," he said.

As for the women platoon leader question, he said he would feel badly about having one. "After all, she must be qualified to have gotten to that position," he said.

Q—Are active military personnel permitted to put political-oriented bumper stickers on their privately-owned vehicles?

A—According to DOD directive 1344.10, inclusions 1, paragraphs 2-3, active duty servicemen may display political stickers on their private automobiles. However, they cannot place a large political sign, banner or poster (as distinguished from a sticker).

"I'm ahead in the Army."

Sergeant Mike Kelly may not get rich in the Army but he's not doing badly.

"I like the way the Army is coming up with the money situation. The bonus, definitely. I got $10,000 and 30 days for six years. Picture me with that much money."

"I wanted to do something different. And the Army said okay. So I picked radio mechanic and got it."

"There's the other benefits too. Free medical care. Dental work. Any legal assistance."

"And I have lots of time to do the things I want. And the retirement. I've thought a great deal about it. Sit around at age 37 and draw half of whatever I make in rank. That's not bad!"

Sergeant Kelly figures the Army offers just about all the things a man needs.

Plenty of opportunity for job satisfaction. With all the hundreds of jobs in the Army there's bound to be a dozen or so that'll give you the kind of self-fulfillment you're looking for.

Money. You'd have to make almost twice as much as a civilian to duplicate what you get in Army pay and benefits. And the checks keep coming. Steady. Whether you're sick or well.

With regular promotions and bonuses to look forward to. And you also have somebody taking care of everyday things. Like housing. Dental and medical care. Commissary and post exchange privileges. Low-cost life insurance. Plus one of the best retirement plans ever made.

Your Army Career Counselor has a whole book of job, duty station and training opportunities that add up to the good life. Talk to him about it. He'll give you lots of reasons for staying in.

Sergeant Kelly has good reasons for staying in.

Six of the youngsters were awarded coloring books and crayons for finding special prize eggs. In addition, each child received a handmade Easter basket, filled with holiday candies.

Mrs. Victor E. Arndt, the club's welfare chairman, coordinated the affair with Mrs. Richard Slaughter of Buzza Vista's Community Developers with help from Mrs. Ronald Brinker. Clothes donated by the Ranger Department and the post Thrift Shop were presented to Mrs. Slaughter for the Home Aid Center.

The Easter baskets were made by Mrs. Alvin L. Hemmigan and Mrs. Jerry Barnhill.

CATHOLIC WOMEN OF THE CHAPEL

Since Vatican II, an attempt has been made to revive several celebrations observed by the Catholic Church. The Agape ("Feast of Love"), which disappeared about the eighth century, is one of these. The CWOC enjoyed an Agape at their April meeting. Sister Joan Kist and Mrs. Donald Rodriguez were responsible for the liturgy used during the ceremony. The 12 participants included Claire Hooley, Kathleen Cook and Mrs. Henrietta Hansen, who were out of town guests of CWOC.

Wives fund helps patients, employes

The ladies of the MEDDAC Officers Wives Club are involved in fund-raising activities for the benefit of patients, military personnel, and civilian employes at Martin Army Hospital.

The club's Welfare Fund Committee has been buying items which — although not authorized for government purchase — make patients more comfortable and the jobs of employes easier.

This is how the program works: members of MEDDAC suggest that a particular article be purchased. The recommendations are submitted to the club's executive officer, and a priority list is drawn up. Although the committee makes the final selection of items, Capt. Kenneth Kremek, the welfare project officer, actually makes the purchases.

Some of the items bought by the welfare fund are already in use, with the hospital's Pediatric Ward a particularly lucky recipient. A recliner rocker for parents who need to stay near a seriously ill child, high chairs, infant seats, feeding cups, fork and spoon sets and children's cloth books all were purchased by the committee. Plans are also underway to obtain children's pajamas as well as pictures and drapes to decorate the ward.

School ladies to hear home economist speak

"The Creative Wife," a program by Lee Parker, a professional home economist from Overseas Service Corp. will be presented to three wives groups on 2 to 4 in May. The group are the Officer Candidates wives of the 5th Bu. May 1 at 7 p.m., the 2nd Stu. Bn. May 2 at 9:30 a.m. in the battalion mess hall and the Student Brigade May 3 at 11:30 a.m. in the Supper Club.

The Pediatric Ward has not been the only section to benefit from the club's efforts. Occupational Therapy has received hearing aids for children. In addition the wives Welfare Care Program Committee awards monthly to a deserving enlisted person or Storm-sewers.

Especially designed for military wives, this program will feature new recipe ideas, household hints, personal appearance tips and suggestions for gracious entertaining. Slides featuring international dishes made with convenience foods will be shown. Many free samples and recipe booklets will be

OWC tours homes, holds election on busy April day

BY CAROL MAY

The Officers' Wives' Club had a big day April 12 with a coffee in the Main Ballroom of the Officers' Club and a tour of Benning homes.

After a welcome by Mrs. Richard B. Soles, new president, several OWC officers were elected for the 1972-73 term. Those chosen were Mrs. Walter F. Root, president; Mrs. Bill May, 1st vice-president; Mrs. John Stillman, 2nd vice-president; Mrs. Charles Reidenbach, 3rd vice-president; Mrs. Traft Ring, recording secretary; Mrs. John Hammond, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Warren Williams, treasurer; Mrs. Norman Batten, assistant treasurer; and Mrs. Alvin Wilson, custodian. The OWC Choral group presented several songs.

After the election, 300 ladies took a bus trip to eight residences at Fort Benning, Riverside, home of the commanding general, was representative in pale pastel shades and accented by spring bouquets of tulips, azaleas, dogwood and iris. The ladies were invited by Mrs. Orwin C. Talbot to view all areas of the home. The Marshall House, official residence of retiring dignitaries, was another popular stop as was the antique-filled home of Maj. and Mrs. James Stone. Mrs. Stone had artfully combined Victorian and Korean designs into a decor of pink and blue. The ladies, conscious of the problems of moving, were impressed by the massive headboard of an antique bed the Stones found in Kansas.

Sunny bursts of yellow greeted the visitors to the home of Capt. and Mrs. Alvin Hennigan on North Valdez Court. Shiny glass and acrylic textures complemented the vibrant reds which decorated the house. The floral valances and spread in their child's bedroom combined with white wicker furniture to give the home a freshness in design.

The Craig Drive residence of Capt. and Mrs. William Logan contained surprises throughout—a bound's toilet furnished living room accented with bright red-orange in the pale blue and white, hand-quilted bedspread in the master bedroom. The kitchen was a cook's dream with "real" cloth flower cutouts on the cupboards, round tablecloth and curtains. A clock above the table added to the antique flavor of the home.

Lt. Col. and Mrs. James Miller's residence on Miller Loop was laden with unusual objects. A French Farmer's clock, circa 1780, and a three-piece set of a porcelain china and matching pieces were admired. Mrs. Miller is proficient in candlemaking

Gold Star Wives plan for July convention

The monthly meeting of the Chattanooga Chapter of the Gold Star Wives of America was held April 12.

Mrs. James Wright read an information letter from the Black Coalition of Columbus and the wives unanimously supported attending the Coalition's next meeting. Mrs. Billy Nave, chapter president, discussed progress of the planned National Gold Star Wives convention in Columbus this July. The conventioners will have lunch on the Callaway Barge and will have an opportunity to see the National Ski Show. After the conclusion of business, E. Page Barger told the women how to select candles and make them last longer.

Sorry, wrong China!

Capt. An Gwo Kao of IOAC class 8-72 raised a few eyebrows when he announced at a dinner recently that he was from Red China.

After the low rumble subsided he explained that at the last dinner he attended he was introduced as "Capt. Kao from Red China" and decided to make the mistake himself this time.

Kao, who actually is from the Republic of China, was one of 19 Fort Benning Allied officers and their families who attended a church dinner April 12 sponsored by the St. Luke Methodist Church in Columbus.

The dinner was highlighted by a meal of barbecued chicken, eggplant, cole slaw, rolls and iced tea as well as interviews with many of the officers present who represented Columbus from Iran to Nicaragua.

The evening concluded with the following wish to an officer from the Republic of Vietnam: "God speed to you and your country."

Citizenship classes still open Spaces are still open for the Army Community Service citizenship classes for dependent wives which began last Saturday.

The class covers basic information required for the citizenship examination, including development of the Constitution, the branches of the Federal government and their responsibilities, state and local government and political parties.

Classes will meet for the next five Saturdays at 10 a.m. in the Post Welcome Center (Building 83). A $1.50 textbook deposit is required.

Mrs. John Scheitler is coordinator for the course, which is only part of the preparation for citizenship. At the last class, a representative from Legal Assistance will explain the formal citizenship process.

AUSA

BY RANDY BOOSE
The Association of the United States Army (AUSA) dedicated to the premise that a strong mobile Army is vitally essential to our national defense.

CIVILIANS SUPPORT ARMY TOO

Most soldiers are aware of the post wide membership drive going on for The Association of the United States Army but few realize that the AUSA reaches into the civilian community.

Sixty businessmen from the Columbus-Phenix City area volunteered their time to canvass other businesses for new members of AUSA. Already, the civilian drive that started the 8th of April has signed over 200 new members. This puts the civilian total membership less than 200 members away from their goal of 1,000.

Every year the civilian membership in AUSA grows. This year's drive is well ahead of last year. Mr. Charles Daley, chairman of the civilian drive and 1st Vice-President of AUSA, has worked hard to make the drive a success.

The close link between Fort Benning and the surrounding communities was displayed when the mayors of Columbus and Phenix City signed a joint proclamation which declared April 5th "NATIONAL Day's" Mayor General Grein C. Talbot, post commander noted at a recent AUSA meeting that Fort Benning is rated as having one of the best relationships between an Army post and the surrounding civilian population.

AUSA is an organization for anyone, civilian or military, who is interested in fostering this type of atmosphere. Often AUSA's national objective of promoting a strong national defense overshadows the activities that AUSA carries out on the local level to foster good civilian military relations.

Two $600 ROTC scholarships are awarded each year to the most deserving Phenix City and Columbus high school student participating in the ROTC program, by the local AUSA chapter. The chapter also sponsors an annual ROTC drill competition at Fort Benning with high school teams throughout the Southeast competing. At Christmas the chapter contributes $500 to project "Save a Toy," which support other domestic activity projects as they arise. Recently they participated in and supported Columbus' "Jobs for Veterans" program.

Another program recently initiated to keep the Army and the community in tune with each other is the sponsorship by AUSA of three young military men in the Columbus and Phenix City Jaycees.

AUSA's social functions bring the towns people in contact with all ranks of military personnel. The club picnic brought over 4,000 citizens on post, not only for a good time, but also to witness Ranger and Airborne demonstrations. Another well attended AUSA affair is the George Washington Dinner Dances.

AUSA offers several practical advantages for the individual member. Sixty per cent of the membership fee to AUSA goes towards a year's subscription to ARMY magazine. ARMY magazine keeps its readers informed about the Army and what AUSA does for you and for the Army. You also become eligible for special group life and hospital insurance. The members of AUSA can find out what the Army is doing for them and what they can do for the Army, while they support an organization that is working for a "MODERN, MOBILE, MOTIVATED ARMY."

197th TSB LEAD POST MEMBERSHIP DRIVE
Maj. Gen. Talbot, post commander, kicked off the post membership drive on April 4th with a meeting of all major company commanders to stress "keeping the soldier informed about AUSA," so they will understand the importance of their membership in AUSA.

The School Brigade and the 197th Infantry Brigade are working towards AUSA's goal of a strong chapter, as they lead total memberships submitted by any unit to this date. The drive lasts through June. Join today.

140 ROTC Cadets sample Fort Benning's Army life

One hundred and forty ROTC cadets representing 135 colleges and universities throughout the continental United States are at Fort Benning to learn the "facts" about the army and the infantry.

ROTC cadet Cres Curtis, Clemson University, receives a close look at hand to hand combat from Sgt Ronald Piz of the leadership department. Curtis was one of 135 cadets visiting Fort Benning to learn just what Army life is all about.

cadets began visiting Fort Benning today with a welcome by Brig. Gen. Paul F. Gromann, assistant commander of the Infantry School and the presentation "I am the Infantry."

Highlights of the tour will include a leadership briefing, informal visits with lieutenants to learn what type of duties they combat arms as a career, cadets will also have a chance to visit officers in other branches.

The cadets' first introduction to Fort Benning occurred yesterday when they were given a motor tour of the post by their escort officers. The escort officers are Infantry Officer Advanced Course students who are a group of 40 cadets during their three-day tour stay.

Two weeks ago a similar tour was conducted for 135 students. Capt. Paul I. McCarthy Jr., project officer for the cadet tour said the reaction from the last group of students was most favorable. "Of the 50 questionnaires we have received from the cadets, they are, without exception, favorable," he said.

The cadet visit program was conceived by the ROTC Committee, headed by Col. William T. Guthrie, director, nonresident instruction — ROTC affairs department.

Although other service schools are involved with ROTC cadet visits, "none of the other schools are as deeply involved as Fort Benning's Infantry School," Col. Guthrie stressed.

"Due to the support mission of the Infantry School, we feel the ROTC cadet input to the combat arms is vitally important to the United States Army and we are concerned that Fort Benning interest dovetails National interest," Col. Guthrie said.

Four years ago there may encounter a newly-commissioned officer, ranger skills, and airborne demonstrations.

The cadets' first introduction to Fort Benning occurred yesterday when they were given a motor tour of the post by their escort officers. The escort officers are Infantry Officer Advanced Course students who are a group of 40 cadets during their three-day tour stay.

When the ROTC committee was formed more than two years ago, it was noted that only six per cent of the cadets elected infantry as a career choice. Booklets and a film were early attempts at recruiting more infantry prospects. Although enjoying a moderate success, it was determined that the personal approach would be best.

Last year a pilot program was initiated with cadets from the southeastern United States. Proving successful, it was decided to expand the scope to include students representing all colleges and universities throughout the continental United States.

One change was made from the pilot program — instead of limiting the scope of the tour to be infantry, cadets are now given a chance to find out about other branches of the Army by speaking with officers from those branches at Fort Benning.

Upon completion of the tours, students are urged to return to their campuses and spread the word (that it like it.) to their fellow cadets.

Soldiers political rights

By law, certain restrictions and prohibitions have been placed on political activities by members of the Armed Forces. Some of these restrictions protect the individual's rights and others establish political activities.

Army Regulation 360-61 states that any activity that could be interpreted as associating the Department of the Army or any element thereof directly or indirectly with a partisan political cause or candidate must be avoided.

Regarding individual voting rights, regulations provide that officers and noncommissioned officers are forbidden to attempt to influence the voting choices of any person and members of the Army while on active duty may not use their official positions or influence for the purpose of interfering with an election or affecting its course or outcome.

Soldiers may express their opinions privately and informally on all political subjects and candidates, and within regulations, they may even become candidates for public office.

But soldiers are not permitted to participate in any way in the management of a political candidate or political campaign. They are not allowed to make political speeches, write political articles for publication, or undertake any other political activity to influence the outcome of an election for themselves or others.

Officers and noncommissioned officers may not require members of the Army to march to any polling place or require them to cast a vote in person or by absentee ballot.

Whether or not to vote is up to each individual, and so is the decision as to which party and candidate he will vote for.

Being a soldier is an important part of being a good citizen. So is voting. And the best citizens — soldiers or civilians — cast their votes after careful consideration of the issues and the candidates.

Officer's Club schedules spring tennis tournament

A spring tennis tournament sponsored by the Officers' Club will be conducted from April 29 to May 7.

All club members are eligible to enter the tournament. There will be no entry fees and prizes will be awarded winners, according to Capt. Leigh Fairbank, tournament director. Deadline for submitting entries is 5 p.m. April 28.

Championship play will be conducted in men and ladies' singles and doubles and in mixed doubles. These singles players facing their first match will be entered in Class A competition.

"Show Me," a new love and concern musical about Jesus, will be presented by the Tucker Singers of the First Baptist Church of Tucker Ga., at the Main Post Service Club Sunday night at 6. Admission is free.

The musical includes 24 songs written by Jimmy Farris. The singing group consists of 40 young people and a 10-piece band.

The story, which tells of one boy's search for faith, uses satire to point out some of the "inadequacies" of modern organized religion.

AUSA sponsors rifle, drill team competition

Nearly 600 high school ROTC cadets from the southeastern United States will invade Fort Benning, May 4-6 to participate in the annual Association of the United States Army (AUSA) sponsored rifle and drill team competition.

The 591 students scheduled to attend will be representing schools from the Columbus area as well as 28 out-of-town high schools, some as far away as Balboa and Cristobal High Schools in the Canal Zone. Spencer, Carver and Hardaway High School will be sending teams to participate in the rifle competition. The three drill teams from Columbus schools have yet to be selected.

Although a Columbus school has never won the rifle or drill competition, a local school has usually been able to place in the top five. Last year Baker High School's drill team placed ninth out of 31 schools, a high for the local schools in recent years.

Instructors from the U.S. Army Infantry School will judge the drill competition scheduled for York Field. Marksmanship judges will come from the U.S. Army Infantry Center's Marksmanship Detachment. Rifle competition will be conducted on Parks International Range. Both competitions will be conducted on May 4. An awards ceremony will follow the competition.

During the cadets' free time, a tour of Fort Benning will be conducted. Cadets will view such demonstrations as rangers, airborne and scout dogs.

Post playhouse is 'home' for aspiring entertainers

Story and Sketch
By TOM TEGTMEYER

If you've had past experience in electronics, art design, singing, dancing or acting, the Fort Benning playhouse and entertainment center wants your talent.

The playhouse, located behind the Infantry Museum, is where the Dramatizers, the post's aspiring theater and entertainment center wants your talent. This contest offers not only monetary rewards—$25 to the top three winners—but the chance to audition for the 3rd U.S. Army Soldier Show Unit at Ft. McPherson, Ga.

The Entertainment Center is staffed by three paid professionals and several volunteers. The entertainment director is responsible for shows, music and for sponsoring traveling groups which come to Benning. Assisting him are two permanently assigned entertainment coordinators.

The Dramatizers, the post's "little theater" group is open to all persons—military and civilian—interested in participating in live theater. The club charges no dues to its about 75 members. Elections are held every six months; the current president is SSGT. Beau Stark.

Club meetings are held Monday evening at 7:30. In addition, a Theater Workshop is conducted Saturday from 9 to 11 a.m. Taught at these sessions—which are open to all persons, at least 16 years old—are voice technique, breath and body control, stage craft, scene design and monologues.

The Dramatizers put on about four plays a year which are chosen by club members. Just completed was "Blithe Spirit," which won best play, best actress and best set design in the 3rd Army Tournament of Plays. The club's next scheduled performance will be Shakespeare's "A Midsummer Night's Dream" May 11 to 13 and 18 to 20.

The Dramatizers spend about two months producing a play—including six weeks of rigorous evening rehearsing. Each play has a one week run.

Participating in drama at Fort Benning can be as profitable as fun. It can lead to college and graduate level scholarships. These are available through the Army entertainment scholarships and awards programs conducted in coordination with more than 10 universities and theaters. Three Fort Benning personnel already are involved in these programs, which are open to military directors, designers, technicians, publicists, playwrights, actors, actresses, instrumentalists, vocalists and teachers.

More than 100 people are involved in the dramatizer production. Theseus and Egeus are typical of Shakespeare's time.

"Dream" will open May 11 at the Benning Playhouse for a three day run, then will return the next week for four performances. Admission is free and curtain time is 8 p.m. There will be a children's matinee each Saturday. Make advanced reservations to ensure adjacent seating.

Shakespeare work dubbed masterpiece

"A Midsummer Night's Dream"—Fort Benning's Dramatizers next production—is recognized as William Shakespeare's first masterpiece. His previous comedies had developed comic scenes, lines or characters but "Dream" was the first to have all three in one play. "Dream's" realism lies with its treatment of the characters' question the place of love in life. For the playgoers of the Elizabethan era, romanticism and gentle wooing were the natural means of expressing love.

The play's setting reflects the conflicting attitudes of the world as seen by the Elizabethan. Although part of "Dream" takes place in an ancient Greek court, its occupants are English country people typical of Shakespeare's time.

SOUL SOLDIER (Rated PG)—This picture, starring Rafer Johnson and Lincoln Kupatrick, relates the heroic part played by black Americans in the expansion and settlement of the Western frontier. It's the story of the all-black U.S. 10th Cavalry, who kept an uneasy peace with the Indians, Texans and Mexicans while patrolling the U.S.—Mexican border.

THE LITTLE ARK (Rated G)—Based on a true story, the film recounts the experience of two adopted youngsters caught in the disastrous 1953 floods in Holland. The children, an 11-year old Malaysian girl and a 10-year old Dutch boy, set out in search of their stepfather. The youngsters—accompanied by their pet cat, a rabbit and a crippled rooster—begin their adventure when they are picked up by a gruff sounding fishing boat captain.

For 1971-72 season Local orchestra to give last concert

The Columbus Symphony Orchestra, which presented its final concert of the 1971-72 season at 8:30 p.m. May 8 at the Fine Arts Hall at Columbus College.

The orchestra will perform three numbers from different periods and styles: Vivaldi's concerto, "Capriccio Espagnole," and "New England Triptych."

Vivaldi's Concerto in D minor was written in the first half of the 18th century and reflects a less burried time, though still containing the spirit of its Italian composer. The flashy "Capriccio," written by the Russian composer Rimsky-Korsakov, embodies all the gaiety and warmth which a native of the chilly north may envision the climate of Spain.

"New England Triptych" by contemporary composer William Schuman, heard of Lincoln Center in New York, is based on the works of William Billings, the earliest American to make music his profession. This three piece set captures the boisterous, deeply ruggedness, deep religious faith and patriotic fervor of young America.

Soloist for the evening is young baritone Samuel Timbarico, who teaches at Auburn University. Timbarico, who didn't know he could sing until he was 20 years old, competed in the national finals of the Metropolitan Opera auditions.

His selections will include the "Toreador Song" from Bizet's Carmen, "Serenade" from the opera Don Giovanni by Mozart, and three well-known songs by Richard Rogers "You'll Never Walk Alone," "If I Loved You," and "Climb Every Mountain."

Tickets for this performance may be purchased at the symphony box office from 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday thru Saturday at 1100 3rd Avenue in Columbus (corner of 11th Street) starting May 5. The evening of the performance may be purchased at the box office.

For additional information on tickets call 323-5069.

Shaving isn't fun. But it doesn't have to be unpleasant either. A lot depends on the tools you use. Take shaving cream. You need a shaving cream that's moist. Because its moisture that makes your whiskers soft and easy to cut.

Rise has enough moisture to do just that. Slowly it seeps moisture into your beard and holds it there for as long as it takes you to shave.

Actress attends opening of new Kelly Hill theater

Fort Benning's newest theater opened on Kelly Hill Wednesday in a ceremony highlighted by a visit from Miss Brenda Dickson, an actress and a member of Bob Hope's troupe.

The half-million dollar theater, designated No. 4, replaces Kelly Hill theater No. 9 and can seat 500 persons.

Col. William D. Latham, post chief of staff and Col. Edwin L. Kennedy, 197th Inf. Bde. commander spoke at the opening while Miss Dickson entertained soldiers attending the first night program.

PFC Alan W. Rees of Co. C, 1st Bn. (Mech), 58th Inf. brigade Soldier of the Month for April, was chosen to escort Miss Dickson around the bridge Wednesday and at the opening.

"I never thought I'd get a chance to escort a Hollywood star," Rees said. "Being soldier of the month was a great honor, but this makes it even sweeter."

Post theaters and bowling facilities offer relaxation

By TOM TEGTMEYER

The strain of living in a cramped barracks with many other people could be a perfect subject on which to write a book entitled, "How To Lose Friends and Aggravate People." We all know that we have felt this strain ourselves many times and have had to refrain from doing something we might regret later.

In an effort to help save friendly relationships and also to provide some interesting entertainment for all military personnel and their families, the recreation branch of Special Services sponsors two especially noteworthy activities that have enjoyed tremendous popularity.

There are five motion picture theaters on post and the parking room is minimal. Depending on the picture being shown, it is either 35 or 50 cents.

On main post theater, No. 1 is located at Wold and Ingersoll Streets. There are two showings daily, a Saturday afternoon performance for children, and a Sunday afternoon showing. There is ample seating space, as the theater holds over 1,400 people.

A second theater on main post, Theater No. 2, is located at Wold and Anderson Ss. It also has two evening shows and added Saturday and Sunday matinees. This theater seats 376 patrons.

The new Sand Hill Theater No. 3, is located on Scott Avenue at 13th Street. It features the latest in equipment, comfort, lighting, lobbies, restrooms, and a food bar. This theater, which seats 1,000 people is considered the family theater for the post; here are always good seats, the atmosphere is one of relaxation, there is lots of parking room and just adjacent to the theater is the first showing of movies on post is most often here.

The theater is easy to get to, being only a 10 to 12 minute drive from Martin Army Hospital. There is one evening performance at 7 p.m. on Sunday, Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday.

Theater No. 5 is a World War II theater, but it is kept clean and it is furnished with modern equipment and a modern wide screen. This theater is located on Hourglass Road, South Harmony Church. At this theater there is one evening performance at 7 p.m. three days a week: Sunday, Wednesday and Friday.

A brand new theater is opening soon at Kelley Hill. This theater will be designated No. 4 and will seat 500 people. The modern facilities here will rival those found at the Sand Hill theater.

These theaters provide an average of approximately 12 different movies a week on post, all of which are given appropriate publicity.

The "Army Theaters Weekly Movie Guide" is distributed all over post, in the theaters, commissary and on bulletin boards. The movie schedule is also printed in the Rayonet each week and in the Daily Bulletin.

There are two bowling centers made available to the personnel stationed at Fort Benning. One is on Main Post, located across the street from the Arts and Crafts Center at Eckel St. and Sightseeing Rd. This facility has 24 lanes, a Pro shop, lounge and a snack bar.

The Kelley Hill Bowling Center has 12 lanes, a resale outlet for bowling equipment, a snack bar and a lounge. This center is utilized primarily by the troops of the Kelley Hill area, but does have league and open bowling from 12 p.m. to 11 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Both of the centers have all night bowling on Friday and Saturday nights from 12 a.m. to 6 a.m. and this has proved to be very popular. The snack bars featuring sandwiches and chart orders are open during all the operational hours. The lounges also have packaged and draft beer.

The Main Post Center sponsors a Junior bowling program each Saturday morning at 8 a.m. This Junior program for ages 8 and above, begins each year in September with free bowling instructions for all juniors who wish to participate.

Army dominates interservice shooting competition

Army shooters, hosting the 12th Annual Interservice Shooting Championships here April 11 through 15, took 12 of the 15 individual fields of competition and nine of the team championships from a large field of mixed service and civilian competitors.

In nearly every department, the Army champion shooters ruled supreme.

Led by Maj. Lones Wigger, USAMTU, the Army shooters captured five of six individual rifle events, all the moving target contests, the two air gun matches and two of the four international pistol matches.

The Army's solid wall of victories was breached only by Army Reserve 1st Lt. John Winger, Clarendon Hills, Ill., who took the Army Rifle match and Air Force champion shooters who took two international pistol contests.

1st Lt. William F. Beard staked the Army team roller into action when he grabbed the championship of the English Prone Match with his impressive 586. Then Wigger added the Smallbore Free Rifle and the Standard Rifle titles and Captains Larry R. Bassham and Carl Jooss claimed the Free Rifle and the Air Rifle crowns.

Wiggers unprecedented Standard Rifle mark of 886 was seven more than the present World Championship mark and set a new National record.

Individual victories continued as SFC Charles D. Davis and Sgt. Donald Haldeman wrapped up victories in Running Bear and Clay Pigeon while Capt. James Whitaker grabbed the Skeet title to make it a clean sweep of the moving target competition for the Army shooters. The Army champions are all from the USAMTU.

Only in the handgun field did the Army shooters seem to falter as they divided honors equally with a band of hard shooting Air Force marksmen.

In the four guns of international pistol competition, Air Force captured the Free Pistol and Standard Pistol championships while the Army handgunners settled for the Rapid Fire Pistol and the Center Fire Pistol crowns. SSGT. Jimmy L. McCauley took the Rapid Fire with his 590 while SFC Hershel Anderson won the Center Fire Pistol title with a 591.

Air Force Champion handgunners were impressive in their achievements as the Free Pistol mark of 564 hung up by TSgt. Arnold Vitabe, a member of the 1968 Olympic team, tied the Interservice record held jointly by SFC Hershel Anderson and MSgt. Emil Heugatter, each of the Army Marksmanship Unit.

Then the Standard Pistol title won by TSgt. Hubert Legg of San Antonio, Tex., and Lockland AFB with 581, was just one off the National record.

In the Air Pistol competition, Anderson set a new National record with his 383 while Capt. Carl Jooss took the Air Rifle match with his 360, making it a clean sweep in the Air Gun competition.

Army shooting teams were not so successful as they managed to win only nine of the 15 scheduled events. The Air Force claimed three team matches while the Army Reserve extracted a like number.

The Army Reserve Smallbore Rifle teams ran rough shod over the competition in the early stages of the week-long series as they took the English Prone Match, the Smallbore Free Rifle and the Standard Rifle Championships.

The Air Force picked up their first team championship when their Clay Pigeon team outperformed an aspiring Army team by two birds to win the Trap title and then added two more victories with wins in the Standard Pistol and Running Bear matches.

In the Skeet match, Capt. James Whitaker served up two consecutive days of 99 birds each to win the crown. His 198 mark set a new national high. He also led his Army team to new record heights with their combination 585 score. The team included Whitaker with 149, Capt. Kenneth Gilbert and Sp4 Louis Sembrowich with 146 each and Capt. Ronald Petty with 144.

41st claims TSB title in volleyball playoffs

41st Company, 4th Bn. (Airborne), The School Brigade (TSB), carried their winning streak through the TSB Championship Volleyball match by defeating top contender, 50th Co., 5th Bn. (Officer Candidate).

The powerful 41st Co. returned to the '72 Volleyball Season with last year's personnel. The '71 Season saw 41st Co. capture the Post Level Championships and third place in the Third Army competition.

The TSB championship game was held April 12 in the TSB Gym. The well matched teams traded points up until the final second when 41st gained the advantage. Both teams boasted skill and speed with W. Jacobson leading the 50th Co. and S. Maze backing up the 41st (and selected the "Most Valuable Player" in the TSB play-off game).

41st Co. was able to maintain a consistently strong game while 50th Co. tended to fluctuate between powerful and weak play. Both teams, however, had to fight for each point they scored.

41st Co. wound up the TSB Volleyball Season with a 14-1 record, suffering their only defeat to 50th Co. (13-5 final standing), and will now move on to the Post Level Championships.

Smoot selected for All-Army volleyball team

Capt. Wayne Smoot of the 2nd Bn., 10th Field Artillery, 197th Infantry Brigade has been selected to play as a member of the All-Army volleyball team which began its annual tour this week.

He was chosen during a successful season as a member of the 2-10th Headquarters and Service Battery Brigade championship team which is competing for the post title.

Commonly regarded as a "one man team" by his peers and opposing teams, Smoot specializes in a driving "spike shot" that bears down on opposing players, preventing a safe return shot.

Smoot, a native of San Jose, Calif., led the team to an undefeated season as the team captain. He practiced with the All-Army team for two weeks before joining the team for its tour of Army posts.

Stops on the volleyball junket include Ft. Ord, N.J., Redstone Arsenal, Ala. and Ft. Rucker, Ala. as well as the completion at Fort Benning on April 29.

ROD AND GUN CLUB

Notes

By BILL KLOEB

Turkey hunting in Georgia and Alabama has been the last few years. The reservation has been no exception. There have been so few turkeys reported that most hunters have given up hunting them as a bad deal. Last Saturday morning I was out at the Rod and Gun Club and had the chance to see two birds taken from the Sand Hill Area.

Two captains from the 28th Co., TSB were the fortunate hunters. The appearance of the two, Gill Bledsoe and Peter Massmann was evidence that the kills were well planned. Both were completely outfitted in camouflage clothing and had done a good job on their faces and hands. Both gobblers were beautiful and weighed a little over 17 pounds on the Rod and Gun Club scales. This was field dressed weight. Complete the birds would have gone about 20 pounds.

The captains weren't very definite about the area where the birds were taken. According to them there are more out there and they hope they will be there again next year.

These two birds prove there are turkeys on the reservation. Anyone who wants one will have to be willing to expend some effort and will have to move fast. The season closes in the Georgia portion of the reservation today and in the Alabama portion April 30.

Easter is no doubt some parents who are having some extremely unpleasant second thoughts about the cute rabbits, ducks or chickens they gave the children for Easter. Generally these live gifts don't respond to the affection of the children and become another responsibility of the parents who would like to find an easy way out of the situation.

There are several alternatives for these parents. They can search out someone who is willing to take them off their hands. It would have to be someone who raises this type animal or fowl for a living because there are very few people who want to add to an Easter pet collection. The ducks may be accepted by the caretakers of one of the local cemeteries for decoration on their ponds. Parents can advertise for new owners in the "free column" of the local newspapers or as a last resort those who are authorized to use the services of the Post Veterinarian may bring their pets Thursday.

After you have disposed of the pets tell all your friends about the trouble they caused. It may keep them from making the mistake next year.

Rod and Gun Membership More than 1500 hunters or fishermen have joined the Rod and Gun Club in the two weeks that the 1972-73 memberships have been available. This seems to be an impressive figure but its down from last year at the same time. Last year the club had more than 4000 regular members, nearly 1500 dependent members and 78 limited members.

Active duty and retired military personnel, Department of the Army civilian workers and retired civilian workers who retired from positions at Fort Benning and their dependents are authorized to join the club. Certain disabled veterans are also authorized regular membership. Civilians not otherwise qualified may become limited members.

Regular memberships at $5, dependent memberships are $1 and limited members pay $8. Applications for membership may be made at the club headquarters located on First Division Road about a quarter mile south of Highway 27.

The club contributes substantial amounts to the post conservation effort each year. Last year the contributions of the club exceeded $8,000. Members enjoy a multitude of varied privileges. The club sites counter is well stocked with all types of equipment used by hunters and fishermen. The prices are competitive with other outlets in the area. Members can also buy minnows, worms and other type baits. Boats located on ponds throughout the reservation may be rented. Electric trolling motors, paddles and seat cushions are also available.

The club operates a snack bar from 11 a.m. until 8:30 p.m. and a beverage bar is open from 10 a.m. until 9 p.m. Food and drink carry out service available.

Other activities of the club include sheet and trap fangue, grocery ranges, a family picnic area and various hunting and fishing contests open to club members.

TSB families enjoy kite day

The old adage, "go fly a kite," was taken literally by the School Brigade (TSB) members and families as they turned out en masse to do just that.

The First Annual TSB Kite Flying Day, held April 8 on Blue Field (Main Post), provided TSB Families and friends with the challenge and fun of piloting kites of all descriptions through the clouds over Fort Benning.

Although poor weather threatened to hamper the day's festivities, a steady wind blew plenty of support for the kite competition.

The 5th Battalion (Officer Candidate) was well represented with 51st Co. winning the contest for the "Best Homemade Kite," "Longest Flying Kite," and "Kite Farthest Out." Lt. Col. Gordon Hunt, 5th Bn. commander, accepted the trophy for the "Battalion with the Largest Kite" (which was the product of 50th Co., a monster of paper and wood that actually got off the ground).

TSB Kite Day also lent a helping hand to the Fort Town Nursery Fund Drive by selling raffle tickets. Everyone enjoyed the fun-filled TSB Kite Day as it started off with an exhibition scrimmage of the Fort Benning Handball Team and concluded with prizes for exceptional kite aviators.

NCOES student trains for Olympics

"I try to run 20 miles a day," explained PFC Wilfredo Rios, "eight to ten in the morning and eight to ten in the evening."

No, this isn't a new PT program invented by a Drill Sergeant but, instead, is a self-imposed training routine that Olympic Track runner, Wilfredo Rios, had upheld while training. Rios, currently a student in the Non-commissioned Officer Educational System (NCOES), 81st Co., 8th Bn., The School Brigade (TSB), represented Puerto Rico in the '68 Olympics in Mexico City.

Becoming olympic material" is not an easy matter and Rios tells of his goal to excel as a runner: "I was too small for high school football so I channeled all my efforts into track. My speed was good but my endurance was better and I naturally concentrated on the mile and cross-country events."

In Lawton Eisenhower High School, Lawton, Okla., Rios set a standing state record four minutes, 15 seconds mile and, when graduation day rolled around, Rios was confronted with a choice of 10 college scholarships.

A long lineage of Baptist ministers in his family (two brothers and two brothers-in-law) prompted Rios to choose Oklahoma Baptist University. In college he competed in the Kansas Relays, Texas Relays, and the Drake Relays and won an "All-American" title. He was the only freshman to hold a place in the National Association of Inter-Collegiate Athletics (NAICA) Top 15 Track Standings and, also a freshman, placed second in the NAICA meet in Sioux City, Iowa.

Rios' Olympic career started at the end of his Sophomore year in college. Because he had lived in Puerto Rico, he decided to try to represent his home in the 1968 Olympic Games. Rios told of his successful attempt to qualify for the games in Mexico City: "I needed a 4:08 minute mile to qualify and I was running in a qualification relay. My first quarter mile went by in 59 seconds and the next two quarters clocked in between two and three minutes respectively. Everything was going well until I looked around to check my position. This is when I collided with another runner and fell. With my qualification at stake, I jumped up and poured it on to the finish.

PFC WILFREDO RIOS

"That summer I trained for high altitude in Alamosa, Colo. With the American Team. Here I roomed with Pat McMahon who had placed second in the Boston Marathon and came out in the top three in the '68 Olympic Marathon. I also had an opportunity to train with Tom Von Rueden, one of the fastest mile and half-mile runners in the world."

After three months of training that required Rios to run eight to ten miles in the morning, work on 220 and 440 yard sprints in the afternoon, and to top-off a 'well rounded' PT session with another eight to ten mile run that evening, Rios entered the Olympic heats in Mexico City. Unfortunately, a top contender match including Tim Rion (world record mile holder of 3:51 min.) and Kip Keino (the gold medal winner in the '68 Olympics) eliminated Rios from further trials.

Undaunted and still a potential runner in the '72 Olympics to be held this summer in Munich, Germany, Rios trains daily at Fort Benning and is hoping for an opportunity to compete.

Benning lady golfers capture prizes

More than 60 lady golfers from Georgia, Alabama and Florida participated in the one-day Ft. Rucker-Enterprise, Ala., Invitational Golf Tournament held at the Enterprise Country Club April 11.

Four of the eight Fort Benning golfers competing, captured prizes in the 18-hole event.

Mollie Ross was runner-up in the first flight competition and Marge Tidmarsh won the first flight consolation prize. Maggie Daems won the second flight, Bobbie Keatssey third flight and Pat Thomas was first in the fourth flight competition. Mrs. Thomas also won the prize for the low number of putts taken during the round.

Ex-Golden Knight getting jumping bug

For some men parachute jumping is a job, for others it is a sport, but to CWO Gerald Bourquin of the Aviation command, it's an art.

Bourquin was recently assigned to the 197th AVY Co. as a Cobra Standardization pilot. Prior to his attending flight school he was a member of the Army's famed Golden Knights Parachute Team. A Master Parachutist with over 1800 jumps, he holds a license no. 22, making him one of the first men in the United States to achieve this degree of proficiency.

During his tenure as competition team leader, the Golden Knights set 22 world records for accuracy and style and performed on several occasions for such shows as Wide World of Sports and The Big Picture. Said Bourquin, "I attribute all our successes to a team effort." In 1964 Bourquin, then a staff sergeant, proved himself in individual competition by winning both the Overseas Parachute Championship and the National Style Championship, which included both civilian and military competitors.

To compete in the National Style Championship, one must be familiar with three different series of maneuvers, each of which requires six changes of direction during free-fall. After the jumper leaves the aircraft, a panel is displayed on the ground which tells him which of the three series he is to perform. These maneuvers must be completed in as short a time as possible. Additionally, the parachute must be deployed between 25 and 30 seconds after leaving the aircraft. Opening earlier or later will cost points. How does Bourquin describe his contest as "tough."

Bourquin enlisted in 1951, served in Korea in 1952, went airborne in '57, and started skydiving in '59. He served with the Golden Knights from April 1960 until Aug. 1965 when his promotion to Sergeant First Class required him to leave the team. Since he could no longer jump from aircraft, he decided to fly them. After receiving his wings Bourquin spent a year in RVN with the 158th Assault Helicopter Co., 3rd Avn. Bn., as a Cobra Instructor Pilot at Hunter Stewart, then returned to Vietnam as a member of a Cobra training team.

Bourquin hasn't jumped since he started flying in 1966 but he says "the jump bug is setting in" and he plans to get back in harness with the Sport Parachute Club here at Fort Benning.

Bourquin is married and the father of four children.

Orienteers climb closer to Olympics

Specialist Four Don Kennedy of the Fort Benning Orienteering Team, Patroling Committee, Ranger Department, is one step closer to the Olympic Games as he ran the World famous 26 miles 385 yard Boston Marathon in two hours, 27 minutes and 33 seconds Monday. His time on the Amateur Athletic Union certified course qualifies him for the Olympic trials in Eugene, Ore.

Previous to this Kennedy has bettered the two hours and 30 minutes qualifying time on two uncertified courses, the Peach Bowl Marathon and the Eglin Air Force Base Marathon. Kennedy placed 32nd out of 1220 runners including nine women, Lieutenant Governor, a member of the House of Representatives and a Police chief.

Sergeant Kevin Kraszek, who placed third in the 1971 All-Army Orienteering Trails, also ran in the marathon and placed 88th in a time of two hours 42 minutes and 28 seconds. This was 11 minutes faster than his previous best time. The winning time was turned in by Markker Salminen of Finland with a time of two hours 15 minutes and 39 seconds. Last year's both Alvaro Nuja of Columbia placed 24th.

Both Kennedy and Kraszek frequently ran more than a hundred miles a week around the Ranger Department's Harmony Church area in preparation for the marathon and the 1972 Orienteering Season.

Beginning June 9 the post team will play in the Western Division of the Third Army League. Other teams competing in the division will be Forts Campbell, McPherson, McClain, Rucker and McClellan Arsenal.

Ft. Bragg, Ft. Jackson, Atlanta Army Depot, Ft. Stewart, Hunter Army Airfield and Ft. Gordon will play in the Eastern Division.

Pioneers march for 'Dimes'

Citizens of Greenville, S.C. marched with Army representatives on April 6 to raise nearly $30,000 through contributions for the annual March of Dimes campaign to support research and therapy for crippled children.

Capt. Donald Monk of the 1st Bn., 28th Inf., 19th Inf. Bde. and SFC James Ryals of the Greenville Army Recruiting Station led the march, with the 1-28th's "Pioneer Wagon" marchers.

Each marcher asked a citizen of Greenville to contribute to the March of Dimes for each completed mile of the 20-mile course. Harold Ludwig, a Greenville television newsmen and project chairman for the Pledge Walk, termed the project "a success in participation on the march and through contributions."

Mountain Ranger Camp renamed Camp Merrill

Eleven members of World War II's Merrill's Marauders attended the dedication ceremony renaming the Mountain Ranger Camp as Camp Frank D. Merrill. The Ranger Camp was renamed Saturday, April 8, in honor of Brig. Gen. Frank D. Merrill, commanding officer of Merrill's Marauders in the Burma Campaign in World War II.

Lt. Col. Everett M. Von Jiri, commanding officer of the Camp, spoke of the similarities of terrain faced by the Rangers at the Mountain Camp to the rugged terrain faced by the Marauders in Burma.

Brig. Gen. Paul F. Gorman, assistant commander of the Infantry School, made the formal dedication renaming the camp.

Mr. John K. Benfield, of York, S. C., and chairman of the Merrill's Marauders Association, with the help of Lt. Col. Von Jiri, unveiled the "Rock," a monument with the dedication plaque mounted on it. Other members of the Merrill's Marauders who were able to attend the ceremony were: Thomas J. Mariani, Island Park, New York; Vito J. Wiegand, Miami, Fla.; Robert D. Bateman, Pa. Locks, Fla.; Anthony Colombo, Massapequa, N. Y.; Raymond Lyons, Ridgewood, N.J.; George M. Rose, Portsmouth, Va.; Phillip Blaine, Stratford, Conn.; Paul Patten, New York; and C. Agner, Columbia, S.C. Prior to the ceremony, Cadet Thomas Gerber gets wet as he tackles Benning's LRC.

Junior ROTC Cadets visit fort Benning

"The soldier said ready, then there was a clang as we reached the top of the tower and the long glide downward was ended with a big bounce as we made our landing," explained a slightly shaken Victor Hill as he extracted himself from the Airbornes' Buddy chute ride.

The Airborne demonstration was just one of the many events scheduled for Hill, and over a hundred of his fellow Junior ROTC Cadets from the Sarasota, Florida area, who visited Fort Benning last week as guest of the 197th Support Battalion, 197th Infantry Brigade.

After a welcome speech by Battalion Commander, Lt. Col. Hollis D. Messer, the first day of activities for the cadets began with tank rides followed by demonstrations of an Armor Vehicle Launching Bridge (AVLB), M561 Sheridan tank and Armor Personnel Carriers (APCs). Later in the day the cadets viewed the Airborne Pine Ridge is number seven in the Mackles' unbroken chain of community design and building successes.

Basic to this growth are happy residents and homesite purchasers convinced their long term real estate investment with Deltona and the Mackle brothers are sound. We invite you to investigate the founders of Pine Ridge. First, you will learn that the Mackles are the planners and builders of Deltona, a community of over 9,000 residents, lying midway between Orlando and Daytona Beach on I-4. This was the first community begun by The Deltona Corporation in 1962. Marco Island, 104 miles west of Miami on the Gulf of Mexico, was the next Deltona community, followed by Spring Hill, 45 miles north of Tampa - St. Petersburg; Citrus Springs, 28 miles southwest of Ocala; the all manufactured home community of St. Augustine Shores, four and one-half miles south of St. Augustine; and Sunny Hills, 30 miles north of Panama City.

The Mackle brothers who head the New York Stock Exchange listed Deltona Corporation of Atlanta, have been builders for their entire careers. They are Frank E., President and Chief Executive Officer, Robert F., Chairman, and Elliott, now retired but still available for consultation. Their father, Francis E., founded the business in 1908.

Famous Key Biscayne off Miami was one of the numerous Mackle communities prior to the founding of The Deltona Corporation in 1962. The Mackles have built thousands of Florida homes. They were officially commended by the Florida legislature for their contribution to the growth of the Sunshine State as early as 1959.

Mackle building innovations are famous, too. They were the first to adopt a policy of the limited community which means once the boundaries are laid down they'll never be extended. The result is a proportionately greater demand for the limited supply and an optimum community size.

They created the concept of coordinated growth, which means you can build when you want to - this year, next, or ten years from now. Your homesite will be ready when you are and so will supporting community facilities.

They were the first to install central water mains for all homesites, thereby eliminating the need for tedious, costly well drilling. A regulated utility will supply fresh water to your homesite.

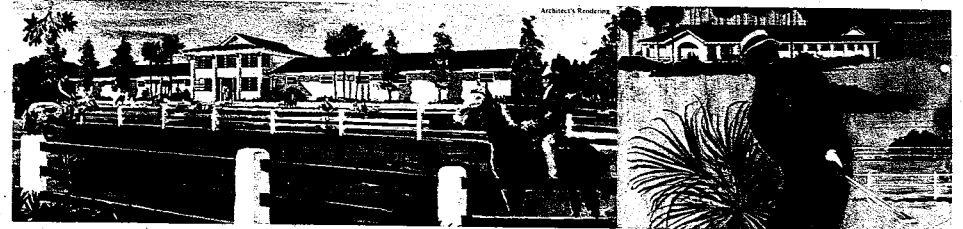

In addition, life insurance protection, at no added cost to the purchaser, gives eligible homesite buyers coverage up to the total amount of their contract balance (not in excess of $10,000) with no physical examination.

No builders know Florida as well as the Mackles and they personally examine thousands of acres every year. Only the best land meets their stiff requirements. At Pine Ridge... they flew over, walked through it, and seeped across it before they decided to add it to the Deltona family of Florida communities.

They are men who understand the importance of the purchase of a home or homesite and they feel the responsibility of fulfilling their customers' Florida dream. They have achieved an international reputation for delivering what they promise.

You may want to talk with people who have already purchased land and homes from the Mackles. So, we'll be happy to furnish you a phone book of our Deltona Community.

Call anyone you choose and ask about the Mackles. They're old hands at making people's dreams come true.

If you ride... If you don't ride... it's everything you ever dreamed of.

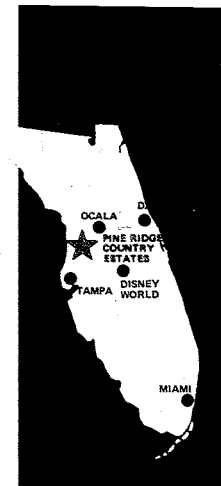

Here's your chance to own your own personal "ranch" up to approximately 3½ acres (400' x 600') - and stable your horses right on your property if you like, or take advantage of a central stable and paddock area.

New Pine Ridge Country Estates will offer the horse man 28 miles of equestrian trails that wind their way through gentle, rolling countryside. Trails lined with towering pines and oaks and strategically placed parks beckon you to relax under clear blue skies surrounded by the reassuring warmth of the Florida sun. Yes, spacious Pine Ridge will let you spread out with elbow room and breathe deep.

But there's more to new Pine Ridge... for people who love golf and Florida's zesty and healthful indoor-outdoor lifestyle. Plans call for Pine Ridge to have its own par 72 golf course. For those who like to take their exercise pedaling, eight miles of bikeways are planned.

Fishing? Legend has it the nearby Withlacoochee River is one-third water, two-thirds bass, or if your mood is for something more strenuous take on tarpon, marlin or snook in the Gulf, just 15 miles away. And Pine Ridge is less than two hours drive (85 miles) from Disney World. That should keep all the kids - big and little - happy.

The land itself compels a spirit of exploration. Central Florida's fine profusion of trees, foliage and wild flowers are yours to enjoy twelve months of the year!

And homesites on this magnificent terrain are of a suitable size for individual home designs and living styles.

Pine Ridge is no house upon-house community - because no one can own less than one acre homesite. Pine Ridge was planned for people who want good neighbors with similar interests, but not too close. Pine Ridge will be big enough to be heard from - 11,000 acres - but about 5,000 homesites will clearly limit the supply of property.

The Deltona Corporation has deed restrictions to assure the maintenance of the beauty and quality of the community. To further protect owners equity in this prestige community a non-profit service corporation will be established with all Pine Ridge property owners as members.

There's nothing like Pine Ridge Country Estates in all Florida - whether you ride or not.

Fill out and mail the attached postpaid card and get the whole story on this unique new community today - without obligation.

Pine Ridge Country Estates

Pine Ridge has been planned in the tradition of all the previous Mackle and Deltona Corporation successes. Its masterplan proposes a community recreation center, golf course and sites for parks, schools, churches and shopping facilities.

And it's all for approximately 5,000 owners. The largest homesites will be about 5½ acres (400' x 600'); the smallest — one acre (175' x 250'). And with assured privacy like this, you can see why homesites won't last long.

Then, too, it's sure to interest people who have travelled and vacationed the world over — who might settle anywhere but who will choose Pine Ridge for its spacious charm and unique concept. For retirement, it offers every chance to start a new life. For a second home, relaxation and privacy are assured. As a long term real estate investment a major plus factor is the low ratio of homesites to available land.

There's nothing like Pine Ridge in all Florida. It offers all the rewarding lifestyle you've dreamed of. Pine Ridge Country Estates, created by the Mackles — good people to build your future with. Right now, fill out and mail the postpaid card to learn more.

You'll receive — without obligation — the full facts on this newest Mackle-built community.

931st recruiting begins May 1

By RAY BASSETT

The 931st Engineer Group (Combat) will become one of the first Units of Choice in the Army and the second at Fort Benning when the Unit of Choice Recruiting Office officially opens May 1.

Unit of Choice recruiting in the 931st is unique in that a man can enlist for three years and be guaranteed one of 79 military occupation specialties (MOS) and a job requiring that MOS somewhere within the 931st. He will also be assured of a 16-month tour with a 931st Engineer Group unit after completion of basic and advanced training. This will be one of the first times that Unit of Choice recruiting has been initiated for non-combat MOSs.

SFC Vandorn, top non-commissioned officer of the 931st recruiters is presently observing the 197th Infantry Brigade recruiting program in order to obtain useful data for the 931st Unit of Choice plan.

This plan is an effort to meet the commitment of an all-volunteer Army while keeping high standards of the new recruits. The recruiting target is to enlist men with high school educations or more.

Capt. Jerry Herman, recruiting officer, said the 931st should have great appeal to prospects since it offers "something of value to everybody."

Some of the varied jobs include those in administration, finance, military police, personnel transportation, maintenance, engineering, ordnance, and public information.

The Unit of Choice recruiting office is organized into four branches. A management branch, headed by SFC Gerald Tate, will coordinate the training the recruits receive from the time they enlist, complete schooling, and then are assigned to a unit within the 931st.

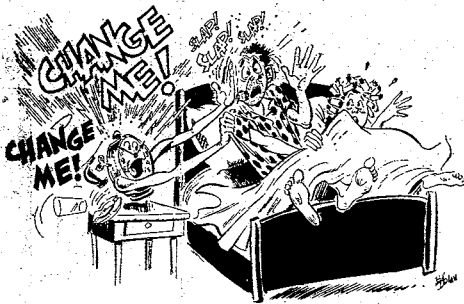

The job of "selling" the program will be handled by a Civic Actions branch. This branch, led by 1st Lt. David Bryson, will undertake community improvement projects to establish a unit identity for the 931st and gain "acceptance" by local communities. The Public Information Office will work closely with this branch getting local news coverage of the projects in television, radio and newspapers.

The information office will also assemble a pamphlet showing examples of typical jobs, available recruiting page 31

Skins of water mecatsas are displayed by Sgt. Michael G. Maser, a former lumberjack from Prospect, Ore. He devised a snare for the snakes from plans he had seen in an outdoor magazine.

The snare consists of a pole with a wire noose at the end which is slipped over the snake and pulled tight. The skins will be used for bathtubs.

Kon-Leaky expedition provides adventure for post Airborne students

By RICH MCDOWELL

A Chinook helicopter is scheduled to extract a captain, seven sergeants and specialist fourth class today, ending a 13-day river adventure.

The "Kon-Leaky" expedition reached the Gulf of Mexico Tuesday following a 10-day raft trip down the Chathahoochee River from Fort Benning.

The soldiers are members of Lt. Col. James L. Anderson's 5th Student Battalion (Airborne), Student Brigade. They undertook the 244-mile voyage as part of the U.S. Army's adventure training concept. The river expedition culminated a month of training for the operation. During that time the 15-man assault rafts were continually plagued by accidents and leaks, thus the name of the rafts, "Kon-Leaky I and II."

Under the leadership of Capt. Leonard B. Scott III, the crew departed Bradley Landing April 15. The most trying part of the voyage occurred when they reached the Gulf of Mexico. Crossing from the mainland to the outer islands.

The expedition had to use its gasoline motor to make it across. High waves nearly tossed the trail craft onto the top of the lead craft.

The trip was made easier by utilizing various skills of the crew. Sgt. Philip J. Salome, Boston Mass., rigged two sails from ponchos for the lead raft. The men traveled in the lead raft, pulling the equipment in the trail craft.

When a wind was blowing the men were able to take it easy, maneuvering the craft by adjusting the sails. Salome even made paddling easier.

At the start of the voyage, the men paddled Ranger-style, facing the bow of the craft. He suggested the men face the stern and row the raft as in a row boat.

A former Oregon lumberjack Sgt. Michael G. Maurer devised a means of capturing the water mecatsas hanging from branches along the river's edge.

stew from the snake meat and the hides were tanned and preserved with sun-dried lotion. They will be made into bathtubs.

Scott said one of the purposes of the expedition was to teach the men self-reliance. "From that standpoint, this mission is a success," he said.

The expedition was resupplied only once and then it really didn't need it, according to Scott. Besides the snake meat, the men also caught rabbits, fish and oysters.

"They leave C-rations and dehydrated food to supplement their diets."

The sergeants are all recent graduates of the non-commissioned officers course and airborne school. Being short of cadre, Anderson put in a request to keep some of them in his battalion. "I recognized the fact that I have some outstanding soldiers that would prove a definite asset to our unit," he said.

The specialist is a clerk in the headquarters and headquarters company of the battalion.

Ranger's emphasize safety

By RICH MCDOWELL

Quilman, Stewart and Union Counties cover 65 square miles. Each of those miles is uniquely rugged. Yawning chasms waiting to swallow unsuspecting students, snake-infested swamps and the ever present "wait-a-minute" vines which gleefully pluck at uniforms, weapons, arms and legs, maddening frustrated soldiers the more they struggle.

Despite these obstacles, the Ranger Department's patrolling committee is able to send through nearly 10,000 Infantry School students yearly with few if any serious accidents. Even during the past year when nearly 20,000 students were attending the course, injuries were limited to a few broken bones and heat casualties.

Lt. Col. Frank H. Scott, patrolling committee chairman, attributes this safety record to the officers and non-commissioned officers who run the programs.

Direct responsibility falls to the captain who is the principal instructor for the field exercise which lasts from three to five days, depending upon the type of class — Infantry Officer Basic, Officer Candidate or Non-commissioned Officer.

The officer controls the problems from the tactical operations center (TOC) set up in the county in which the problem is running. He is aided by an assistant instructor (SI), senior control officer and instructor non-commissioned officer.

These four must oversee an average of 200 students per class. Each class is divided into 8, 2-25 man patrols. Two ranger instructors accompany each patrol.

Not only is the cadre responsible for students, but there are usually about 50 aggressors from the 197th Infantry Brigade which must be positioned. Operating from the TOC, the principal instructor and his staff monitor each patrol via tactical radios. By knowing the status of each patrol, they are able to assign various missions, students and aggressors alike.

Missions during a typical exercise include a helicopter insertion, night ambushes of vehicular and foot targets, daylight reconnaissance, air raids on radio relay sites, radar installations and missile sites.

"This is by no means the easiest duty at the Infantry school, making sure more than 200 students get to the right place at the right time, but the officers and men on the patrolling committee do an outstanding job," Scott said.

Nor do the duties only involve the three to five days the students are in the field. A great deal of preparation must go into each problem.

3. I call upon each person at Fort Benning to give thoughtful consideration to the great rights secured to him under the Constitution and to recognize the attendant duties and responsibilities these rights entail.

Army pays $17,000 in Incentive Awards

Over $17,000 has been paid out by incentive awards in the first nine months of this fiscal year to personnel, military and civilian, who have submitted suggestions that have been accepted by the Army.

Many of the suggestions have enabled the government to save $800,000 per year, although suggestions receiving awards do not necessarily have to save money if it will improve morale, health or safety.

The purpose of the Incentive Awards Program is to provide a means for the individual to make productive changes, make suggestions to save materials, manpower and money.

Quality ideas for improvements are always needed in every organization, actively or shop, and most employees simply want to know how to develop a good idea, one that can be put to use quickly and can also get them some kind of reward.

It is important to understand what a suggestion is and what it is not. A suggestion is a proposal for improving a specific thing or process in a specific manner. First, the subject or the problem must be clearly understood and identified. Second the solution must be spelled out in detail.

Many thoughtful suggestions submitted miss the mark because they are not specific about the problem or the solution. It could be helpful to consult a supervisor, getting details about the background and functions of the suggestion subject.

A suggestion can not simply be a verbal arrow which points to a problem and hints at a solution, leaving it to the imagination of the evaluator to find the right solution.

Play ball - It's later than you think

Last Saturday was a beautiful day. The weather was ideal for just about any outdoor activity. I had my usual golf game and plans for working in the yard after that.

About 8 a.m. my 18-year-old son joined me in the kitchen for a cup of coffee. We talked awhile and I began to think that it had been some time since we had actually done anything together so I suggested going fishing in the afternoon at about 4 o'clock. There was a rather embarrassing pause after the suggestion then he said he was sorry but would like to take a rain check. He had other plans for the day.

The small talk just about came to an end and after a few minutes he announced he had to get ready to go out.

My feelings were hurt as I sat there alone. I thought he had acted selfish but then I began to think back a few years and my thoughts didn't do anything to make me feel any better. I was thinking how often a small boy had wanted me to do something with him and I had made other plans.

At one time he had been a bug about fishing. When he was eight or nine hardly a week went by that he didn't ask me to take him. We went a few times but it was really amazing how many turn-downs he took before he stopped asking.

Eight or nine years old was cub scout and little league time. His mother was active in the cub scout program but I wasn't much help in the little league activities. Some of the time he was given a ride to practice or a game but most of the time he walked or bummed a ride from a neighbor. Attend the games? I just didn't seem able to find the time. I came up with the usual excuses of conflicting interests and a heavy work load whenever someone wanted a coach or official. During this time it seems I was also pretty busy whenever he wanted to play catch or throw a football around in the yard.

He had always been interested in shooting and hunting. When he was 11 years he got a .22 rifle for Christmas. We spent a great Christmas afternoon out shooting at targets. When he was 14 he got a 410 gauge shotgun for his birthday and we spent the following Saturday hunting rabbits. I remember those days but can't remember many other times that we went out together to use those guns. I was too busy, usually with activities I'd planned with grownups. The guns are in a rack in the den now. They haven't been used for several years.

I was always interested in how he was doing in school. At report card time that is, I could never understand why he didn't get better grades. Between reports I'm afraid I wasn't much help. Of course the "new math" gave me one good excuse. We didn't have that during my school days. When it came to the more complicated stuff like algebra I wasn't much help either. It had been so long that I'd forgotten. As far as the other subjects were concerned I'd always considered that all a student had to do was pay attention in class and read the assignments.

He never lacked for many of the material things in life. I bought him baseball gloves, footballs, basketballs, fishing tackle, guns and an assortment of other things a growing boy needs or thinks he needs. I even bought him an automobile when he became old enough to drive. The car was bought for selfish reasons on my part. If he had a car of his own he wouldn't be using mine or taking my time to haul him around.

In looking back I can see that during his entire growing period I tried to substitute material things for the time and interest I should have been investing. Now him an automobile when he became old enough to drive. I can see they were a poor replacement for an active interest in what he was doing and how he was doing, and how he was doing.

Selfish? No I guess he wasn't really being selfish. He's an adult now. He has his life to lead. I didn't give him any real reasons to want to share it with me. (D.K.)

Sound-off Moon landing!!! Who cares????

The moon may still be popular with lovers, but for soldiers of Fort Benning, interest is on the wane — at least as far as moon explorations are concerned.

"We've already had people walking on the moon. Let's go and do something different for a change, like build a space station or something other space project. As it is, it is a waste of money," said Pvt. Reynaldo Parameo, 40th Casual Company.

Spl Mike A. Johns, also with project transition, said he too felt better ways to spend money could be found. "I think we should worry about problems here on earth, such as poverty."

A lone dissenter was Pvt. Randy L. Mason, 49d Co., 4th Stu. Bn (airborne). He said he was to find out about the moon and what we spend to find out is worth it. Besides, I think the government has enough money to go around.

Another indication of just how much attention is paid to space exploration is none of the men knew all three names of the astronauts (most knew none of the names) and none could recall the name of the first man to set foot on the moon — can you?

"One project I can think of off-hand is to improve troop living conditions in Germany," he said. Lindley added that he did not advocate a complete halt to all further lunar explorations, but just a slow down or, "why can't they find a way to do it cheaper?" he asked.

Defensive Driving Week begins April 30-May 6

The National Safety Council named the week of April 30 through May 6 as the first annual Defensive Driving Week.

The defensive driving program is a driver improvement project designed to teach the common pitfalls of driving and how to avoid them. The eight hour course is required of anyone driving a military vehicle or any soldier under 26.

The Fort Benning Safety Office teaches the course in two four hour segments. The instruction covers collisions and how to avoid them, the proper technique of passing, and the mystery crashes. The course is taught with the belief that driving is a skill that can be improved by training, practice, and experience.

The National Safety Council developed the defensive driving program in the face of the rising traffic fatalities. Annually, 55,000 people die on the American highways. Estimates predict that the 2 millionth person will die in a crash in January, 1974. Meanwhile, drivers are destroying billions of dollars in property and injuring over 2 million others each year.

Fort Benning began teaching defensive driving in January, 1968. Since then, 12,000 have had the course. This figure makes Fort Benning one of the leading military trainers. At the moment, Fort Benning is the only agency in the area qualified to train defensive driving instructors. The Safety Office taught the course to the Columbus Police Department. Now, the police teach their own course and are planning to expand their effort.

The motorcycle safety class is taught each Monday morning at 8 in Building 1806. Students may call 546-1369 to enroll. Riders should bring their bikes and safety gear to class.

Two hours of classroom instruction discuss animated situations; the legal requirements for cycle operation on post; the natural laws of gravity, centrifugal force and impact; and handling the cycle in bad road conditions.

During the last hour, riders must demonstrate their skill in turning and maneuvering, in negotiating difficult roads, and in crossing railroad tracks. Riders must also show proficiency in coordination of clutch, throttle, shift and brake.

Cap. Michael McCarthy, supervisor of the defensive driving course, discussed the surge of motorcycle popularity. There has been a 355 per cent increase in motorcycle sales in the last 15 years. Even so, McCarthy says "Unfortunately, there's a serious misunderstanding about motorcycles, created out of ignorance. Those concerned with motorcycle safety attempted to suppress motorcycles instead of training drivers properly."

McCarthy pointed out that 85 per cent of motorcycle accidents are caused by a four-wheeled vehicle hitting a motorcycle. Further statistics McCarthy quoted showed that 7 per cent of all motorcycles in-olved in accidents had riders with less than 10 hours' of driving experience. No state requires a learner's permit for a cycle rider. The Columbus area does not have a school or person teaching proper motorcycle technique.

What should I spend on a music system?
... probably $459
At the Sound Center we sell and service a variety of carefully chosen stereo music systems, ranging in price from about $200 to several thousand dollars. If you come in and specify the price range that you are interested in, we'll tell you what we recommend, and why we recommend it as the best choice for your amount of money.
However, if at the Sound Center think that the question "What should I spend?" deserves a straight answer. Without knowing anything about you, we're willing to risk such an answer. You probably should spend $459. Why are we so sure? The system we have for $459 is not just a good value (although we do think it's actually the best value available in this field of equipment), it's just a question of it being "good for the money." Our $159 Advent/Garanti/Sony/Blanton system, is unique among all other systems that can be put together. It's a stereo radio/phonograph system that is nothing less than the right, completely satisfying choice for most people with a demanding interest in music and sound, at a price far lower than such a system would have cost just a few years ago. See this system and the many other components on display in our store today!

Scouts take part in rally

Doughboy Stadium was the setting for the Fort Benning Neighborhood Girl Scout Rally April 28.

Brownies, Juniors, Cadettes and Seniors from Benning troops participated in songs and games while each Troop had a table displaying items made at things done this year. At the Juliette Low World Friendship Day Presentation, representatives from each troop donated their troop's contribution to this fund, which brings Girl Scouts and Girl Guides from many lands together at international camps and gatherings. The fund also helps to start new Girl Scout and Guide organizations.

BY CAROL MAY MEDDAC

The nude encounter group was a reporting job for Marian, but her friend, Soralee, was looking for just another diversion in her life. Are women today, blessed with more free time than ever, risking everything for such experiences? This is a question raised in Touching by Gwen Davis. The book was chosen by the MEDDAC Wives Book Club because of the many Soralees in our society.

The Book Club found it easier to identify with Marian who was shy and unsure of herself than with the other members of the encounter group. Some did not agree with the picture of Soralee as the adoring friend Marian presented her. They thought her fate was inevitable and predictable. After all, the two friends did drive separate cars to the top of the mountain.

The Book Club met at the home of Mrs. Charles Gately April 6. The next selection of the Book Club is Invisible Man by Ralph Ellison, the story of a southern black's search for success and identity. The group will meet with Mrs. Donald Bush May 3.

Army is good experience for German enlistee

BY KERRY COX

"I've been in the United States of America for two years and six months, of which, two years and four months have been spent serving in the Army," explained Sp5 Michael G. Wilming, not in a bitter tone but rather one of appreciation.

Wilming came to the U.S. from Marburg, Germany in August of 1969. "I wanted to visit my two sisters, who at that time were living in the Columbus area," stated the Young Soldier, "and at the time I registered with the Immigration office they informed me that I would be eligible for the draft if I wanted to become a permanent resident in this country."

"Facing the draft did not bother me because I wanted to live in America and considered the military as a legal obligation, and since I had no previous military commitments, I made the decision to enlist," said Wilming.

And like so many other recruits, the young man entered Basic Training at Ft. Knox, Ky. "It was quite an experience for me to meet so many, many different people from all over the country and I found that people tended to be a little nicer and understanding," reflected Wilming, "but always they asked the same question: what are you doing here, which was very hard for me to understand, since I was serving in the Army for the right to live here."

With AIT completed, the new private received orders for Fort Benning, where he was assigned to Headquarters and Headquarters Company of the 197th Support Battalion, 197th Infantry Brigade.

A group of 83 Reserve Officer Candidates set a precedent two weeks ago by cleaning up an old cemetery near Alexander City, Alabama.

Saturday, April 15, the candidates and their company commander, Capt. David E. Leslie, were transported by helicopter to their campsite, which was near the cemetery. The candidates are students in the current 9-week Officer Candidate Course for National Guard and Reserves, which graduates May 1.

May-June INFANTRY reaches short timers and lifers

Whether you're a "short timer" or a confirmed "lifer," the May-June issue of INFANTRY is for you.

Articles include a glossary of Army slang and a humorous "Guide for Action Officers," in addition to more serious looks at the "Force-Oriented Defense" and the Army's "Night Attack Doctrine." Ever wondered why you have to "hump" a seventy-pound pack all day? Read "The Light Infantry is too Heavy" for some ideas on cutting down the load; and, don't miss "Infantry: Rolling Against the Punch" for a look at the latest types of vehicles which will save the "grunts" a lot of walking in the future.

Since we will probably be outnumbered in any future conflict, says Col. Ben S. Malcom, we must "roll against the punch" by using superior mobility. Vehicles which will provide this mobility include the GOER family of articulated vehicles, for easy cross-country movement; the XR31, the Army's "Dune Buggy" the T25RT, an all-terrain vehicle ideal for small tank-busting teams; and the M1CV, a possible successor to the M113.

In "Force-Oriented Defense" Lt. Col. Robert Carmichael continues to develop the concept, introduced in the March-April issue of INFANTRY, of a new tactic of defensive warfare which trades space not for time, but for enemy vehicles. Using successive attrition sectors in depth, the force-oriented defender will be able to wear down his opponent to the point where more traditional forms of the defense can be employed.

Shifting to the attack, Capt. Robert L. Hicks suggests that "Our Night Attack Doctrine" is "Outdated." With the development and use of STANO (Surveillance, Target Acquisition, Night Observation) devices, he argues, the current method of stealthy night attack stands a very poor chance of succeeding. Instead, let's use all of our available assets, including our own STANO devices and illumination, to maximize our combat power in the night attack. As every Infantryman knows, both attacking and defending are easier when not burdened with a pack or other heavy equipment. Perhaps packs could be collected into squad or platoon bundles, and brought in at dusk by truck or helicopter. In any event, logistical planning should, whenever possible, provide transportation for

Infantry Board tests new wet weather equipment

The U. S. Army Infantry Board is currently in the final stages of testing a new light weight wet weather parka and trousers, which may further reduce the load of the individual soldier.

This expanded service test is one of many evaluations on soldier apparel currently being conducted at the Infantry Board which will hopefully ease the strain on the Infantry soldier.

In addition to the lighter weight, other advantages are making the new wet weather gear a hit with most test soldiers. The test item is two pounds lighter than the standard equipment, and unlike the standard equipment, does not have suspenders, bib, or hood trim. The test parka and trousers also contain slash thru pockets which allow the individual to easily reach inside of the rain suit to the inner clothing. The standard rain gear contains pockets, but does not allow access to the clothing beneath.

Test plans for the project have called for "worst casing" the test environment by subjecting the item to rugged Infantry activities. If the test equipment can stand up to this testing, it should withstand anything that the combat support or the combat service support soldier might dish out.

Various troop units are involved in all stages of testing so that their diverse areas of activity may provide the most complete and accurate data possible in regards to durability, reliability, maintainability, troop acceptance, and functional suitability. The 568th Float Bridge Co., the 2nd Bn. (M) Artillery, 1st Bn. 58th Infantry (MECH), plus a platoon of selected personnel from the Infantry Board have all contributed to the test data.

Since October when the testing began, the test parka and trousers have been worn by test soldiers participating in a 20-mile march in a r.c.h., a 15-mile march, and in helicopter "on and off" loading exercises. In both rain and sunshine it has been worn by soldiers negotiating a 600 yard obstacle course and personnel whose particular duties preclude the war of the poncho." He cited such examples as vehicle detail and other areas where the poncho hampers the soldier's ability to use his arms freely.

To insure quality, testing is also being conducted at the U. S. Army Arctic Test Center, Ft. Greely, Alaska, and Aberdeen Proving Grounds, Aberdeen Maryland. Testing at the Infantry Board is scheduled to terminate in May. A final test report reflecting the Infantry Board's conclusions and recommendations will then be sent to the U. S. Army Test and Evaluation Command Headquarters in June.

PX to offer free black beauty tips

DALLAS — Cosmetics counters throughout AAFES will soon be featuring a free beauty tip booklet for black customers.

The booklet, "A Beauty Guide for Black Skin Tones," features a wealth of information to help black patrons get the most out of their cosmetics.

Published by the Army and Air Force Exchange Service, the guide was written with the cooperation of highly recognized beauty experts Miss Maria Davalos and Mrs. Theolina Lucena of a leading cosmetics house.

Published by the Army and Air Force Exchange Service, the guide was written with the cooperation of highly recognized beauty experts Miss Maria Davalos and Mrs. Theolina Lucena of a leading cosmetics house.

An AAFES spokesman explained the guide is not aimed at selling any particular brand of cosmetics. It is merely to serve as a helper to point the way to products that will suit each patron best.

"The booklet is quite detailed and covers all phases of makeup from treatment and foundation through the application of mascara," he said. It also has charts of cosmetic shades recommended for the various skin tones.

"There are some 36 different skin tones common amongst black people," he stated. "These tones range from near black to some white and the variety of products available often proves bewildering to our customers."

"We have a worldwide training program for our personnel in the stores," he mentioned. "We have also broadened the categories of black-oriented products."

"Although AAFES cares about the needs of all customers, we continuously strive to satisfy those all-important particular requirements as well," he said.

Body guard

Body guard... a soldier in a military uniform... appearing Sunday at post theater No. 2. The Western adventure stars Clint Eastwood as an American mercenary who wants to join Mexican revolutionaries fighting French occupation of their country.

Coming to the screen

KIDNAPPED (Rated G) — Robert Louis Stevenson's novel comes to the screen with Michael Caine as Alan Breck, a young rebel who opposes English rule of Scotland; Lawrence Douglas as David Balfour, whom Breck saves from being shipped to America; Jack Hawkins as the cunning Captain Hoseason, who's murder for a penny. BORN TO WIN (Rated R) — A peek into the world of those who depend on the needle and spon-; a con man (played by George Segal) who raises money for his habit by various schemes, his estranged wife who sacrifices her married life and children for a place in the drug scene and an East Side swinger who is charmed and deceived by Segal. SKIN GAME (Rated PG) — No one could claim there was racial prejudice in the play of two pre Civil War artists (portrayed by James Garner and Lou Gossett). Gossett pretends to be Garner's black slave (he's actually a free Northerner) and allows himself to be "sold" from town to town. Both men naturally hit the road once they've found a victim to "touch."

Awards ceremony scheduled today at York Field

Four soldiers will receive awards today on York Field at the Monthly Awards Ceremony. The awards will be presented at 10 a.m. to 1st Lt. John H. Bonn, WO Thomas C. Hobbs, Warrent Officer Jack E. Zody, and Chaplain (Capt.) Thomas R. Fraker.

On March 15, 1971, he was leading an emergency resupply mission in Laos and was able to destroy numerous enemy positions and silence over seventy enemy soldiers.

Thomas Hobbs will receive the Distinguished Flying Cross for heroism while serving as a helicopter pilot in Vietnam. He provided cover for an emergency resupply mission, and was able to support the successful extraction of a group of aviators downed by enemy fire. Hobbs is now assigned to the 197th Aviation Company.

Jack Zody, now assigned to the 899th Transportation Company, will receive the Distinguished Flying Cross for heroism while flying an observation airplane near the Demilitarized Zone in Vietnam. He initiated an attack on a suspected enemy rocket launch site, and was able to stop an enemy rocket attack on an American fire support base by destroying the enemy's rockets.

Chaplain Thomas Fraker will receive the Soldier's Medal for heroism demonstrated when he prevented a soldier from committing suicide on Sept. 28, 1970. Chaplain Fraker climbed the 250 foot tower on Ebanks Field, and after more than an hour accompanied the man down to the ground.

Smooch, pooch and the Tramp. The animated cartoon feature — which is returning to the screen after seven years — will be at Post theater No. 4 Sunday.

Art exhibit to be held at Plaza

A sidewalk art exhibition is scheduled to be held Saturday and Sunday at the Cross Country Plaza Shopping Center on Macon Road.

Sponsored by the Columbus Artist Guild, the exhibit is an attempt to focus attention on the quality of artwork in this area.

Artists from Georgia and Alabama will be competing for $100 in prize money.

In the past art buyers have found the show a popular place to purchase works for their homes and places of business because of the wide variety of media and art types available. These have ranged from inexpensive prints to high priced oils and water-colors.

INFANTRY

Everybody in the "Green Machine" uses slang expressions — some amusing, some cutting. Lt. Col. Bob Chick ticks several of each in his article on "Army Slang — Picturesque or Pungent?" Slang is a familiar part of Army life, from the first day of Basic until retirement or ETS, and this article should give all of us a new viewpoint on some old expressions. If you think of high level staffs as vast hives of purposeful activity, computerized to the "nth" degree, check Lt. Col. Joseph C. Wilson's, "Guide for Officers." As the low man on the totem pole, to action officer has to be quick to survive, and this article provides tips on all the tricks of a very nerve-wracking trade.

That's INFANTRY for May-June. Along with our regular departments, these articles help make this the best issue of INFANTRY. "The professional magazine for Infantrymen." Get your copy of the booklets or PX, available now.

Recruiting

maintain close liaison with the 197th Infantry Brigade. A final element of the 931st Unit of Choice Recruiting Office and part of the advertising campaign, will be "The Van," a mobile display telling of the diverse career opportunities available to young men within the board framework of the 931st Engineer Group. This van, the branch of S Sgt Great T. Williams, will be spearheaded by a team of eight recruiters working in Georgia, Florida, and Alabama. A rock band composed of soldiers from the 931st will be a periodic feature of the van and will also perform on scheduled visits.

Brenda Dickson visit USAMTU

MISS BRENDA DICKSON, Hollywood movie Starlet, visited the champion Army marksmen of the U.S. Army Marksmanship Training Unit when she toured Fort Benning units April 19 and got acquainted with the many activities of the infantry post. During the evening, she cut the ribbon at the Premiere opening of the new Kelly Hill theater, signed autographs and raised morale of the many young infantrymen who came to view the opening movie "Hot Rock" in which Miss Dickson starred.

While at the Marksmanship Unit, Miss Dickson tried her hand at shooting the various guns used in Army International competition. National Women's Pistol Champion SSgt. Barbara Hile and MSgt. Samuel Hunter guided her through a short indoctrination of pistol shooting on Phillips Range while MSgt. Byron Akers gave the young lady a few pointers on skeet shooting at the shotgun range.

Country Club schedules golf tourney

The Fort Benning Country Club Spring Handicap Golf Tournament for men will be held on the Pine Side Course from May 7 to June 29.

All men members of the club who have an established handicap are eligible to enter the event.

Participants will be assigned flights according to handicap. Each competitor will be required to play on 18 hole match each week until eliminated or declared winner of the flight. When all flight winners have been determined they will be paired against each other. The player winning all of his matches will be the club handicap champion.

Interested players may register at the Country Club Golf Pro Shop. Call 545-4120 for additional information.

Orienteering team plans spring championships

The Fort Benning Spring Orienteering Championships, sponsored by the Fort Benning Team, Patroling Committee, Ranger Department, will be held at 12 p.m. May 14 at Victory Lodge.

Orienteering is a form of Cross Country running using a map and compass. The participant navigates through the country side locating control markers. The runner pits his skill against time, nature and the outdoors.

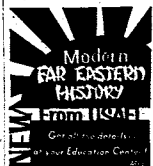

Orienteering is for the person who finds boredom in just simply running. The mind becomes completely absorbed with solving the navigational problems presented to the competitor as he moves along the course.

Orienteering offers something for everyone; young people, old people, male, female, the ardent runner and the casual jogger. The four courses are designed to challenge everyone and discourage no one. If you have never orienteered before, don't worry; we will teach the fundamentals of compass and map use with a clinic and movie at 10 p.m. Sunday morning.

So if you don't have a compass, don't fret, one will be available for the meet.

If you are the type of person who enjoys being outdoors, jogging, hiking, and merely a nature lover, Victory Lodge is the place to be on Sunday, May 14. For further information please contact Lt. John Heck at 545-6021.

ROD AND GUN CLUB Notes

BY BILL KLOEB

Don't forget to set your time pieces one hour forward as of 2 a.m. Sunday, April 30. Daylight saving time goes into effect at that time. The operating hours of various facilities at the Rod and Gun Club go into effect based on the new time this Sunday morning. The management hopes these new hours of operation will be responsive to the requirements of the greater part of the membership and provide adequate service in all departments. If the new hours aren't convenient let your representative on the board of governors know about it. The facilities are run for the convenience of members and if they don't meet your requirements a change should be considered. No one will know you are not satisfied unless you say something.

The new hours 8 a.m. until 6 p.m. will keep the sales counter for baits and equipment and rentals open one hour longer in the evening. This should give purchasing people time to get out to the club to make purchases after working hours.

The beverage bar will operate from 10 a.m. until 9 p.m. The food counter will be open from 11 a.m. until 6:30 p.m. Both facilities provide "take out" service.

Fishing Rodeo

The Eufaula, Ala. Chamber of Commerce will sponsor the 9th Annual Alabama Fresh Water Fishing Rodeo at Lake Eufaula May 12 through 14.

Last year more than 1,600 fishermen from 15 states registered for the tournament held on the lake fast becoming known as the hottest bass spot in the south. The participation in the event this year is expected to be the largest in the nine-year history of the tournament.

Prizes will be awarded for four species of fish found in the impoundment. Several prizes will be awarded for the largest bairn, crappie, white bass and large mouth bass.

Competition is expected to be keener for the complete fishing rig valued at $2,865. This award will go to the fisherman registering the biggest large mouth bass. Other prizes for each category will include fishing boats, motors, rods, and reels and other fishing equipment.

A special event will be held for children under 14 years of age. Children will receive trophies for winning catches and will also be eligible for competition in the Rodeo competition.

The official weighing station will be located at the Chewalla Marina and will be operated by official judges from the Alabama Fisheries Division. Anglers who desire to participate must register before noon, Friday, May 12. There will be a $3 entry fee for adults and a $2 fee for children.

Tickets may be purchased at most of the sporting goods shops in Eufaula or may be ordered direct from the Eufaula Chamber of Commerce, P. O. Box 347, Eufaula, Ala. 36027. Brochures giving details on the Rodeo are also available at these locations.

New B.A.S.S. Club

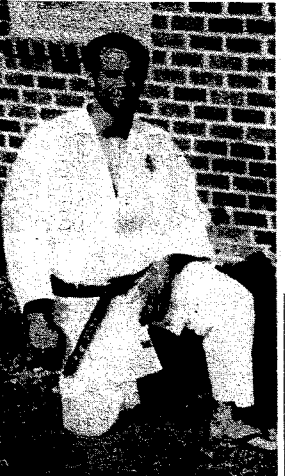

A group of dedicated bass fishermen are organizing a chapter of Bass Anglers Sportsmen Society (B.A.S.S.) on post.

B.A.S.S. is a national organization with more than 75,000 members, in more than 200 chapters throughout the United States.

Major objectives of the organization are to promote bass fishing, and combat pollution and corruption of the waterways and impounded waters of this country. During 1970 alone the club filed more than 200 lawsuits against individuals and organizations in the United States who have allegedly violated laws.

Bass angling is promoted through local, regional and national fishing contests open to all members and publication of a club magazine named Bass Master. The reading matter in this magazine is devoted almost exclusively to bass fishing. Nationally known experts share knowledge acquired over many years with other members of the club in informative articles on bass fishing all over the country.

The local group which now numbers eight anglers is looking for more fishermen interested in joining a local B.A.S.S. Club. They will hold an organization meeting in Room 247, Infantry Hall at 8 p.m., May 2. In the meantime, bass anglers can get more information from Lt. Col. Parris at 545-4241 or Sgt. Johnson at 545-1141.

Sergeant Roy Smith was going for more than the bonus when he reenlisted.

"The $8,000 helped. But part of my reason for staying in the Army is I can get the rest of my college credits for a degree. I've got 2 years in already.

"I enjoy the job I'm doing now as a drill sergeant. But I'd also like to try military intelligence. And eventually get to go to OCS.

"It's all there. It's completely up to me and my qualifications for it."

Sergeant Smith views the Army as one big opportunity for a guy who wants to get ahead.

There are job and educational opportunities. In advanced electronics. Cryptography. Foreign languages. Data processing. Communications. Traffic analysis. And lots more. And travel opportunities. In Europe. Korea. Hawaii. Alaska. Panama. And the time to enjoy it. To live it. In a way no tourist ever could.

And the opportunity to save money on all the everyday things.

Like free housing. Free dental and medical care. Commissary and post exchange privileges. Low-cost life insurance. Plus one of the best retirement plans offered by any employer. Anywhere.

It's all here. It's up to you. Your Army Career Counselor has a whole book of job, duty station and training opportunities just waiting for you. He'll give you lots of reasons for staying in.

Sergeant Smith has good reasons for staying in.

43rd Engr. building pipe culvert

The soldiers of B Co., 43rd Engr. Bn. (Const.), 501st Engr. Gp., are presently constructing a 130 foot corrugated metal pipe culvert at the junction of Red Mill Creek and River Road. When completed the culvert will allow double-lane traffic to cross Red Mill Creek.

The culvert will carry off water that drains from approximately 1,500 surrounding acres. This area is subject to periodic flooding and erosion. The culvert is designed to prevent the flooding and erosion which makes portions of the River Road at times impassable to even single lane traffic. River Road is an access road to all of Fort Benning southern range and training areas.

Two platoons from B Co., the 1st Platoon (a construction platoon) and the Earthmoving platoon, are providing the men and equipment for the project. B Co. soldiers contributing their skills include: Sp4 David Blueyes, Sp4 Bruce A. Bellele, Sp5 Carl B. Dozier, Sp5 Patrick Fyke, Sp4 Jesse Rivers and PFC Leroy Smith.

Rangers sponsor Quitman open house

The Third Annual open house sponsored by the Ranger Department will be held on Saturday May 13 at Union Control located in Quitman County, Georgia approximately 50 miles from Fort Benning. Union Control is one of the headquarters used by Sub-Committee "B," Patrolling Committee in the training of IOBC, OCS, and NOBES students. The control headquarters is located within a 100 year old farm house structure situated 12 miles west of Hwy. 27 on the South Lumpkin-Georgetown road.

The open house activities serve to further support with the civilian communities, to acquaint them with the training mission of the rangers, and to familiarize them with equipment used by the students on their realistic Patrolling missions.

USMA admissions differ from civilian colleges

Fort Benning dependents seeking an education at the U.S. Military Academy face a major requirement that differs from the usual admission procedures of a civilian college. He needs a nomination. This is simply permission from an authorized source to be examined for appointment to the Academy.

Eligible members of the Regular Army and other men on active duty may gain a nomination through application to the United States Military Academy Preparatory School at Fort Belvoir, Va. They must attend the ten-month school, which prepares them academically, physically and militarily to be eligible for an appointment to the Military Academy, located at West Point, N.Y.

Nominations for men not on active duty in the Army are allocated by law generally to members of Congress and the Secretary of the Army.

Nominations are also available through the Army's allocation, which in addition to men on active duty in the service includes categories such as sons of career military personnel, sons of deceased or disabled veterans, graduates of Honor Military and Honor Naval schools, and sons of persons awarded the Medal of Honor.

Once he receives a nomination, an applicant must undergo examinations to determine his academic, medical and physical aptitude. If he is determined fully qualified, the candidate can be considered for a cadetship, which is an appointment to a specific vacancy in an upcoming freshman class at the Military Academy.

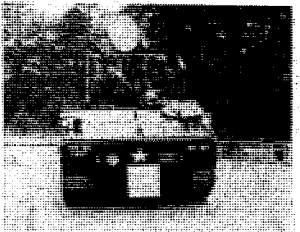

For those men on active duty in the Army who must attend the Military Academy Preparatory School, the requirement is the same. They must then be under 21 years old on July 1 of the year they attend the Preparatory School. —Marital Status. He must never have been married. —Age. He must be between 17 and 22 years old on July 1 of the year he is to be admitted to the Academy. His record must show that he is responsible, trustworthy, and financially stable. —Motivation. He must have a strong desire to become a cadet and pursue a military career. —Scholastic. His secondary school record and college entrance test scores must show adequate preparation for the Academy. —Physical. He must be physically fit.

Patriot soldiers have family day

Soldiers of the 1st Battalion (Mechanized), 8th Infantry (Patriots), and their families held a picnic April 22 in conjunction with the April "Family Day" affair.

Heavy rain and high winds cast a dim shadow over the morning, however the sun broke through by noon in time for nearly 600 people to turn out for the affair.

The picnic was held at Patriot Field with music during the afternoon being provided by the "Forever Forward Combo" from the 197th Infantry Brigade.

A delicious meal which included a barbeque and chicken was served.

At 1 p.m. the festivities began with track and field events, volleyball games, children's games and armored personnel carrier and jeep rides. Throughout the afternoon the children were entertained by a clown who presented them with hats and ice cream.

What at first appeared to be a rainy morning turned out to be an outstanding "Patriot" family for the soldiers and families of the 1st Battalion (Mechanized), 8th Infantry.

TW's okay for travel

Travel uniform regulations for officers and warrant officers are being eased.

The Army Uniform Board has now approved of the short-sleeve, tan summer uniform for travel. Until now, officers have been required to wear the green uniform while in a travel status during the summer months.

The Uniform Shop in the Main Post PX area carries the polyester-rayon (tropical worsted) tan uniform for purchase. This does not mean khakis. The polyester-rayon uniform is a civilian made uniform which has been approved for military use.

The new summer-wear policy will be included in a change to AR 670.5.

MTU trips to Mexico to grab share of medals

U. S. Army champion shooters in a Pre-Olympic Training Trip to Mexico City April 18 through 21, grabbed the lion's share of the medals and four of seven championship events in International competition with 125 other top ranking marksmen from 11 South and Central American nations. Five shooters, three from Denmark and two from Switzerland also competed in the International series of matches.

Participating in Pistol, Shotgun and Rifle competition, the U. S. Army shooters won championships of both the International Pistol events, Three-Position Smallbore Rifle and 500 Meter Free Rifle but lost both Shotgun contests and the English Prone Rifle to other nations. Leading the U.S. efforts and Olympic title hopes, Maj. Lones Wigger, Carter, Mont. and the U.S. Army marksmanship Training Unit, grabbed two of three rifle championships when he posted the leading score of 1,156 in the Three-Position event and 1,145 in the 300 meter Free Rifle.

U. S. shooters claimed all three medals in both of these events with Capt. Lanny R. Bassham capturing the runner-up but matches while Capt. Boyd Goldsby, took third with 1,144 in the Three-Position and Maj. standing Latin marksmen from "South of the Border." John Foster placed third with 1,119 in the 300 meter event. All three rifle marksmen are from the U.S. Army Marksmanship Training Unit.

In the English Prone Match, Mexican Champion Smallbore shooter Ernesto Montoyaer dropped only two shots from the ten ring as he posted a championship score of 188 in the 60 shot contest. This equaled the present world record.

Runner-up and third place behind this near perfect exhibition of record shooting was Bassham with an outstanding 595 and Wigger with 594.

National Indoor Pistol Champion Msgr. Emil Heugatter started the U. S. Pistol shooters on the road to victory with his win in the Free Pistol competition. Heugatter in posting a 581 for the championship, best out of 20 other top national handgun entries.

One point back in runner-up, another U.S. Olympic aspirant, Sgt. John Seinski, posted a 560 while Herchel Anderson, Pan American Silver Medalist, placed third with 545. All three shooters are from the Army Marksmanship Unit.

The other U.S. handgun victory fell to SFC James McNally of the Army Marksmanship Training Unit. He won the Rapid Fire Pistol match with his commanding 889 while the second and third places fell Cuban entries.

County Saddle Club plans horse show

The Metropolitan Animal Shelter Auxiliary in conjunction with the Muscogee Saddle Club will present a horse show May 6 at the Columbus Municipal Fairgrounds. The events will begin at 10 a.m. and will last the entire day. Visitors may come and go at will, although refreshments will be available on the grounds.

Entered in the forty-three events will be Tennessee Walking horses, quarter horses, and various gaited classes. The show is produced by a professional horse organization, Southeastern, and will draw entries from the entire Southeast area.

Proceeds from the sale of tickets and refreshments will go toward the building of a badly needed animal shelter in Columbus. Tickets may be purchased through the service clubs, and are fifty cents for all military personnel.

A medal of honor recipient and two men who have received the distinguished service cross were memorialized Monday when Command Maintenance Department, USIA's named three buildings in honor of these individuals.

Honored were Ssgt. Robert R. Young, medal of honor recipient, 1st Lt. Robert S. Hutchinson II, and Sp4 Richard L. Bosworth, DSC winners.

Young was awarded the medal of honor posthumously for his actions on Aug. 21, 1968 while a member of C Co., 1st Bn, 5th Inf. Div. On that date he assumed command of his platoon after the acting platoon leader was killed, directing the platoon in its defense against an estimated regimental-size enemy force.

When the platoon received fire orders to withdraw, Ssgt. Young remained behind to cover the withdrawal.

Capt. Walker B. Haddigan, company operations department who was a tri-geode staff member at the time and was later later commander of C Co., unveiled the sign, naming the Technical Training Center building "Young Hall."

Young was the son of Mrs. Marilyn H. Young and brother of Margaret Davis, 1117 Pueblo St., Odessa, Tex.

Hutchinson received his posthumous DSC for actions he was involved in on Feb. 16, 1968, while a member of A Co., 2nd Bn, USACID, Fort Benning, 28th Inf. Div. On that date Hutchinson's platoon came under intense fire by a Viet Cong battalion.

Effectively using his armored personnel carriers (APC) and leading several assaults on the enemy, the force was defeated. Capt. A. G. Norris, commanding offer of the student brigade, dedicated Hutchinson Hall, Col. Norris is Hutchinson's father and commander just prior to the time the action occurred.

Hutchinson Hall is the Command Maintenance Department's Headquarters building.

JCOC's to visit post May 9-10

The Secretary of Defense's Joint Civilian Orientation Conference (JCOC) comprised of 64 civilian conferees will visit Fort Benning Tuesday and Wednesday, May 9-10.

During their visit to Fort Benning the conferees will be joined by approximately 25 businessmen from the Defense Orientation Conference Association, an organization composed of persons who have participated in a previous JCOC.

Also to be at Benning with the group are national leaders of four veterans organizations.

In addition to Fort Benning, the JCOC conferees will visit the U. S. Air Force Academy, NORAD, Strategic Air Command, U. S. Marine Recruiting Depot, the Navy's Atlantic Command, and the Pentagon.

Each command visited by the group will present a program designed to provide the conferees with an overall understanding of its mission and capabilities and how it contributes to the total defense effort.

The conferees will also have an opportunity to meet with and exchange ideas with servicemen and servicewomen of all ranks.

All expenses for personal services, food, billeting and other items related to the JCOC are defrayed by the conferees.

The group is scheduled to arrive at Lawson Army Airfield at 6:15 p.m. Tuesday, May 9. A reception will follow in the Main Officers Open Mess at 7 p.m.

Wednesday, May 10, the visitors will receive briefings on Infantry Center and Infantry School activities, and on the 197th Infantry Brigade.

An Airborne demonstration at Buhanks Field at 11:05 a.m. is also on the itinerary, followed by a visit and lunch at the 197th Brigade starting at noon.

After lunch the conferees will travel to Victory Pond for a Rangers in Action demonstration. The group will depart Fort Benning from Lawson Army Airfield at 3:30 p.m.

The 931st Engineer Group came under the unit of choice program on May 1 and on May 3 it enlisted its first soldier. He is Delwyn C. Corbit of Montgomery, Ala., a former special-ist in the fourth class who served three years in the Army before getting out and trying civilian life again for a year and a half. Reading about the modern army and deciding the educational benefits were for him, Corbit signed up for the 931st Engineer Group as a communications specialist. He is being assigned to the 6th Maintenance Battalion of Montgomery, Ala. His new battalion commander, Lt. Col. Ellis O. Atkinson Jr., was present for the swearing in ceremonies in Montgomery Wednesday. Corbit reports for duty Monday as a PFC. He enlisted for three years.

931st Unit of Choice recruiting under way

The 931st Engineer Group one of the Army's largest Engineer Groups, is now recruiting under the Unit of Choice program.

An individual enlisting for the 931st will be guaranteed a job of his selection, plus a 16 month stabilized tour of duty with a 931st Engineer Group unit after completion of basic and advanced training.

This plan is an effort to meet the commitment of an all-volunteer Army while maintaining high standards for the new recruits. The recruiting target is to enlist men with high school educations or higher. To achieve an all-volunteer Army many changes have taken place at Fort Benning and within the 931st to create a more appealing life to todays soldier.

Greater emphasis is being placed on career opportunities within the 931st. Men are needed in engineering to build the roads and bridges which insure the mobility for the Army, in personnel to manage records and Automatic Data Processing equipment, in finance, administration, ordnance, automotive maintenance and to work as policemen maintaining law and order. This program will provide an individual useful career preparation and skill achievement while being stationed in a unit close to his home.

One big step taken at Fort Benning to achieve an all-volunteer Army was the construction of semi-private living facilities for soldiers by the 43rd Engineer Battalion (a part of the 931st). Soldiers are now allowed to decorate their rooms in good taste to suit themselves.

Probably the next favorite among the soldiers is the elimination of Kitchon Place. Civilians now perform See Recruiting page 25

Canadian general visits post's Infantry Board

The U.S. Army Infantry Board recently played host to one of our neighbors from the Land of the Maple Leaf on his recent visit to Ft. Benning.

Brig. Gen. George C. Brown, Chief of Staff Operations, Motorized Command Headquarters, Canadian Forces was accompanied by Col. Charles B. Thomas, President of the Board, on a tour which acquainted him with the latest developments in Infantry Hardware.

The Infantry Board, a test activity of the U.S. Army Test and Evaluation Command, tests all weapons, equipment and vehicles designed for use by the Infantry.

During his two day visit, Gen. Brown received background information and was briefed on the XM47 Dragon anti-tank weapon test. The man-portable Dragon is a light weapon, yet is powerful enough to destroy both enemy armored vehicles and other battlefield targets.

The General, along with Maj. MacIntosh, Canadian Liaison Officer and Capt. McKee, also of the Canadian Forces, viewed firing demonstrations at Farnsworth Range on the M163 grenade launcher, the M16 rifle, and the XM191 flame weapon, better known as the FLASH. McKee impressed everyone with his skill in firing the M16 and XM191. Members of each Test Branch of the Board were on hand to answer any questions the General might have pertaining to their particular division activities.

The demonstration was completed with Gen. Brown taking a "test drive" in the XR-311 "Dumboggy" presently undergoing an Expanded Service Test.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

by Bill King

Patience for salad should be dressed while still warm — to absorb maximum flavors. Mix with other ingredients and chill well before serving.

Legend says that the forerunner of badminton was a game played by tipsy medieval banquet guests, who stuck feathers from the dinner fowl into corks from the wine bottles.

Store brown sugar in a wide-mouthed jar with a screwtop, to keep from hardening.

Folded dinner napkins should be placed with the open side next to the plate so that the diner may easily take up the napkin by the bottom-right corner.

Here's a nutritious idea for burgers that teens will especially go for: mix a half cup of finely chopped walnuts into each pound of chopped meat.

All family members will enjoy our thoughtfully-prepared quality dinners at KING'S PIZZA ON CALL. We hope to have the pleasure of serving you soon.

240 ROTC cadets begin Ranger training June 9

"RAIN - J A R R R." screams from future officers will echo again from Georgia mountains this summer.

Cadets from West Point and the Reserve Officers Training Corps (ROTC) will switch from academic studies to Ranger training. The West Pointers will be participating for the very first time in the coming months. Offered to ROTC cadets for the first time last summer, the program attracted so much interest that its size has been doubled for this year.

Approximately 480 ROTC cadets as well as a score of cadets from the Military Academy will train between June and September. The ROTC cadets offered for Ranger training in lieu of the ROTC advanced camp.

The first increment of 240 cadets will begin Ranger training at Fort Benning on June 9. The second increment will start on June 30.

The cadets will undergo the same Ranger training as other soldiers. However, their Program of Instruction (POI) has three additions: firing for qualification, participation in a National Defense seminar and a briefing by members of the Office of Personnel Operations, Department of the Army. The training is in three phases: preparatory, at Fort Benning, followed by physical conditioning, combative exercises, road marches and confidence tests; mountain, in north Georgia, which teaches fundamentals of small unit tactics in conventional war; and jungle, at Eglin Air Force Base, Florida, which stresses unconventional warfare.

Successful completion of the challenging training entitles the cadet to wear the coveted Ranger tab: visual evidence of his leadership, determination, resourcefulness, self-confidence and self-discipline.

Cadets may also earn Airborne wings. Airborne training is available to ROTC and West Point volunteers. About 550 Military Academy students will become qualified parachutists before the summer is over.

Last summer over 900 ROTC cadets pumped their wings and a similar number is expected for this year's training. ROTC cadets attend Airborne School whenever they can take three weeks off from college study. They must pay their own expenses to and from the school as well as all living expenses while away through the course. There is no charge for the valuable training they receive.

Sgt. Don Hisson of the 26th Aviation Company returns to the surface following a dive in Victory Pond, Hisson, a native of Daytona Beach, Fla., is the senior instructor of the Fort Benning

Post scuba divers check out murky Victory Pond

BY RICH MCDOWELL

While their peers were making a 24 1/2 mile raft trip down the Chattahoochee River, other members of the 4th Student Battalion (Airborne) were checking out the murky waters of Victory Pond.

Recent graduates of the six week scuba course conducted at Fort Benning, the men were practicing for a night dive which is a requirement for their advanced degrees in scuba diving.

The scuba training, as is the river expedition, is in part of Lt. Col. James L. Anderson's program of getting members of his battalion into various forms of adventure training.

300 post personnel in the past 10 months.

Due to its availability as a training vehicle, it was felt that scuba training would be a worthwhile project for some members of the 4th battalion to participate in.

Capt. John C. Woodhager, commanding officer of the 43rd Co., and an assistant instructor, said "This is just another way for a man to get to know himself. It is quite a challenge to be underwater for any length of time. It can really start to get to you, the walls start to close in on you."

For other personnel interested in some adventure training on their own, another scuba class begins with a sign up and introduction in classroom 4 of Infantry Hall, Tuesday at 7 p.m. Classes are limited to 13 persons, about that many were turned away from the last class because of the interest in the program, according to Hisson.

The course is open to men and women. In fact Hisson welcomes husband-wife teams. "My wife is my best diving partner," he said. There is no limit on the number of

Sound-off WACs discuss lib movement

Women's lib is marching and the Equal Rights Amendment is being ratified by the states. In a recent Sound Off column, men protested the idea of fighting beside women.

Today, Sound Off went to the WACs and asked them about fighting beside men and about coed barracks.

PFC DARLENE LEE

PFC Darlene Lee is a typewriter operator with the Directorate of Communications-Electronics. "I don't think it would be such a bad idea," she said. "Girls already go to fighting zones in non-combatant positions so getting into the thick of things wouldn't be such a big step. The only problem would come when men felt they had to take care of us. Also, many girls would chicken out of unpleasant duties on the excuse that they're girls."

"Coed barracks could be interesting. I say that even though I'm married. But it could get out of hand," she added.

SP4 TERRI MCCORMICK

Another WAC felt the whole thing was absurd. "Combat isn't a woman's place and coed living is for colleges — not the Army." SP4 Terri McCormick said she joined the Army for the training and travel opportunities.

Sgt. Patricia Casey is a dental hygienist in the Bernheim Clinic. "Personally, I couldn't do it because I couldn't kill anyone," she said.

Miss Casey went on to say that if a woman wanted to fight, she should be permitted to do so because "women are known to be vicious—look at Lucretia Borgia." As for the coed barracks question, she said, "I believe in equal rights but I know the average WAC and the situation could be rather dangerous."

Dep. McLean's "American Pie" song laments the passing of the good old days. Many customs are falling by the wayside in our mass-produced, rapid transit, synthesized society, but every now and then one seems worth saving.

Such a custom is demonstrating proper respect for the national flag. Any public ceremony is crowded with people who obviously don't know the traditional and legal way to honor the flag. They jam hands in pockets and maintain their work-day slouches.

For most, this posture is not willful disrespect but lack of knowledge. Many schools no longer drill children in the proper formalities; many people forget the rituals during long periods of disuse.

Reverend Henry Ward Beecher once said, "A thoughtful mind, when it sees a nation's flag, sees not the flag, but the nation itself." From June 14, 1777, when the first Continental Congress adopted the Betsy Ross design, the American flag has symbolized the vitality of American ideals.

SP4 Terri Swinklink is a dental assistant. "I don't think women have a place in combat. I wouldn't know what to do." She would be willing to serve in a combat area while doing her job. "Good dental work is hard to find in a combat area."

Coed barracks don't excite her. Besides presenting a lot of problems, she just doesn't approve of the idea. "Women feel more at ease with other girls and would be uncomfortable in an area meant to be their private relaxing place."

ARE AMERICAN IDEALS BEING EATEN AWAY? 'Bye, Bye Miss American Pie'

Dep. McLean's "American Pie" song laments the passing of the good old days. Many customs are falling by the wayside in our mass-produced, rapid transit, synthesized society, but every now and then one seems worth saving.

Such a custom is demonstrating proper respect for the national flag. Any public ceremony is crowded with people who obviously don't know the traditional and legal way to honor the flag. They jam hands in pockets and maintain their work-day slouches.

For most, this posture is not willful disrespect but lack of knowledge. Many schools no longer drill children in the proper formalities; many people forget the rituals during long periods of disuse.

Reverend Henry Ward Beecher once said, "A thoughtful mind, when it sees a nation's flag, sees not the flag, but the nation itself." From June 14, 1777, when the first Continental Congress adopted the Betsy Ross design, the American flag has symbolized the vitality of American ideals.

In these recent days of disunity, the flag has been waved and reviled by dissenters from all sides of the political arena. Let's remember that the flag is non-partisan. Old Glory represents "life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness" guaranteed to 208 million Americans.

Respect for these goals is not old-fashioned, silly, or unimportant. The summary below comes from Public Law 823 as enacted by the 77th Congress. This law specifies the proper method of showing respect in several circumstances.

When indoors, civilians (or military when not in uniform) stand at attention for the National Anthem, for the raising or lowering of the flag, for posting of the colors, and when the flag passes in review or parade.

For outdoors ceremonies, civilians stand at salute. Men remove their hats and hold them at the left shoulder with the right hand over the heart. If not wearing a hat, a man simply puts the right hand over his heart. Women use the same method of respect but are not required to remove hats. (ES)

Voting info 1972

BY EDITH SIMMONS

Just as spring turns a young man's fancy to the traditional topic and it turns politicians to campaigning. During May 14 states will hold primaries and 13 will conduct presidential and state preference primaries in June.

Early birds are Alabama, Missouri, Columbia, Indiana, and Ohio which voted May 2. Tennessee voted May 4. On May 6, Texas and North Carolina will go to the polls. Nebraska and West Virginia vote on May 9. Maryland and Michigan hold primaries May 16.

There's still time to vote by absentee ballot in Kentucky, Oregon, Rhode Island, and Arkansas. Arkansas votes May 30 and the other three go to the polls on May 23. For each state you must submit a Federal Post Card Application for an absentee ballot. These may be obtained from your unit voting officer.

California, New Jersey, New Mexico, and South Dakota are holding primaries June 6. These primaries will have ballots for presidential preference choices and state candidates.

Iowa, Mississippi and Montana will have state primaries on June 6. June 13 will be polling day for South Carolina and Virginia in their state primaries.

Maine will conduct its state primary on June 13. New York's presidential preference primary will be held June 20.

For each of these primaries, you must submit a Federal Post Card Application to the county registrar of your home of record.

NRI-ROTC

to have picnic

The Noresident Instruction ROTC Affairs Department is planning a day of sunshine and fun for all Department personnel. The annual outing will be at King's Pond on May 12.

Festivities begin at 2:30 p.m. and will include volleyball, horseshoes, fishing, boat rides. There's a playground for the children.

Cost for a whole family is $10. Operations Section needs to know how many to expect so get your word in.

The forms are with your unit voting officer.

DID YOU FORGET? Election fever has caught you and you want to vote in your state's primary. But, oh, sadness, the date for the election is past or you missed the registration deadline.

Don't moan yet. November is still a long time away. You may register for the fall general elections by submitting a Federal Post Card Application (FPCA) to the county registrar in your home county. The FPCA is a request for an absentee ballot but most states accept it as registration request also.

These cards are available from your unit voting officer. He can explain any dubious areas on the card and will have the correct address for you to send it to. Don't let this election get by you. NOW isn't too early.

Post soldiers tear down old house

Ten soldiers from the Personnel Control Facility have taken up home wrecking in their spare time. They are tearing down an old house to salvage the reusable materials.

The materials will be used to build a youth fellowship center near the Christian Fellowship Church in Columbus, Ga. The Center will be run on the same basis as the Halfway House at Fort Benning.

Sponsoring the project are Columbus Mayor J. H. Allen and Brother Claude Pritchett of the Christian Fellowship Church. Pritchett is a retired veteran who organized four drug centers while serving in Vietnam.

All of the volunteer workers have had previous experience in carpentry, masonry, and plumbing before entering the service. They began tearing down the live room house last Wednesday morning.

Several groups have given support to the workers. The mess halls donated lunches, the engineers hard hats, the church soft drinks, and one of the transportation companies loaned a truck.

New School Secretary greeted at hail, farewell

Col. and Mrs. William Steele were welcomed to the Infantry School's Office of the Secretary at a hail and farewell at the Main Post Officers Club

Rankin House is scene of OC 'midway' party

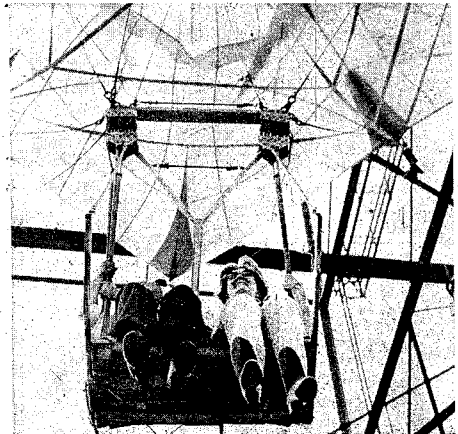

BY STEPHEN H. DARE
One of the most unusual parties in the history of the School Brigade was held Saturday evening by the officer candidates of 51st Co.

The party, which marked the candidates attainment of intermediate status in the program, was held at the Rankin House, a century-old historical home located in Columbus. While at the party, 300 candidates, wives and guests viewed the relics of history in the house—the authentic gas chandeliers, antique pictures, furniture and musical instruments.

The dress for the party was informal. Gentlemen wore sports jackets or suits and ties, while their dates came in cocktail outfits. The informality of the dress and atmosphere carried over to the party. Two hands provided listening and dancing music on the rear patio area of the house, while the melodies of a strolling Troubadour entertained those relaxing in the front lawn cafe. There were W. C. Fields and Abbott and Costello movies on the front lawn, as well as a special movie written, produced, directed, acted and narrated by the 51st Co. wives club. Couples seeking food, drink and relaxation were treated to the facilities of the outdoor cafe, a German buffet and their choice of beverages from open bars located throughout the party site.

Also on hand was the "God-send" of most OCS classes—a catered "poppy" truck, which came up to the party of the Rankin House midway through the evening.

The ladies were pleased with the finished look and amazed at the skill and speed with which Mrs. Ingram used the cosmetics.

Mrs. Bernice Williams, a new member, was welcomed to the evening. Mrs. William E. Gorman and Mrs. Milton Perkins will be hostesses of the next coffee May 17.

Improved security responsible for decrease in crime

BY SUSANNE BOSTICK

On most Army Posts, responsibility for crime prevention and "law-and-order" rests with the Military Police headquarters, in reality if not on paper. But at Fort Benning, matters have taken a different turn as a result of a Commanders' Conference held in January of this year. Command emphasis was placed on dispersing responsibility for crime prevention among the major unit commanders, thus lifting some of the burden off the shoulders of the Military Police.

Capt. J. E. Lucas of the Military Police Investigation Section has helped to formulate the current plan of action for decreasing crimes on post. He notes that since the plan was put into effect, "Crimes committed have taken a definite downward trend, especially when compared with the same period for last year."

"While some of the decrease in crimes can be attributed to the last year's loss in strength, this is not the only reason. Previously, the number of personnel stationed here had decreased from 50,000 to 30,000 without corresponding decrease in the number of crimes committed."

Lucas attributes the decreased crime rate to the change in emphasis that has taken place. "When major unit commanders are directly responsible for the crime rate in their units, they are more likely to see that the individual soldier gets the word," he states. With improved security practices, the number of thefts and larcenies has decreased visibly.

The new plan divides the post into six major areas, including The School Brigade, Headquarters Command, Aviation Command, the 58th Engineer Group, 197th Infantry Brigade and MEBDDAC. Each major unit commander in these areas is responsible for a specific geographical section of the post, and has the duty of seeing that the crime rate is kept to a minimum in his particular area.

"The Provost Marshal keeps each major unit commander advised daily on the state of crime within his area," according to a memo prepared for Third Army Headquarters, and provides "recommendations and courses of action to reduce these crimes which are of major concern."

The memo continues, "A pawn shop recovery team assigned to the Military Police Investigation Section is used to make contact with local pawn shop dealers to recover stolen property and identify persons who pawn stolen property." Provost Marshal personnel also conduct physical security checks of unit areas to point out security deficiencies and conditions which are conducive to crime, the memo states.

The Provost Marshal has an anonymous basis, and all information is kept confidential and given to the military police, who take follow-up action. Crime patterns in the Columbus community are often reflected at Fort Benning, so the Military Police work with the civilian police force in attempting to prevent crime, and in many cases capture offenders.

All these efforts are part of a continuing program to keep the Fort Benning crime rate down. The Provost Marshal is experiencing some success in his new unit-command program, as evidenced by the decreased number of robberies and larcenies.

WE KNOW... there are plenty of people who need banking services, but just can't come to the bank.

Ranger instructors return from hot desert training

BY RICH McDOWELL
Twenty-one Ranger instructors returned from the deserts of New Mexico and Texas Tuesday after putting another class of students through the rigors of desert training.
These instructors are part of a cadre which was formed by the Ranger Department in February 1971. At that time in an operation billed Arid Fox I, the Ranger Department sent officers and men into the deserts of the southwest to become proficient in desert survival and tactics.
The recently completed class of ranger and airborne soldiers was the third one put through this training by the Ranger Department personnel. This class consisted of a company from the 75th Rangers at Ft. Hood and a company from the 82nd Airborne Division at Ft. Bragg.
The Ranger cadre is currently used on a "will call" basis, units wanting to send soldiers through this training contacting the Ranger Department and arranging for a class, ac-

Women work into shape

By RICH McDOWELL
The sign reads: "Off Limits, Women Only."
Lurking behind the rope-off entrance to Briant Wells Field House each Tuesday and Thursday morning there are about 50 women of all sizes and shapes. "Exercise, one, two, three."
Not only has the exercise craze swept the officers and men of Fort Benning, but the distaff side has found that keeping in shape can be fun and rewarding.
Although they may never replace Jack LaLanne on television, recreation specialists Wilson Howard and Albert McGruder turn out a much more physically fit women — no resting during commercial breaks here.
Beginning at 9 a.m. the women are sent on their laps around the gymnasium. Then it's upstairs to the exercise mats, or torture chamber as some women fondly call it. From here the cracks of aching muscles and the groans of the newer women, not yet used to holding the exercise mats, or torture chamber as some women fondly call it. Benning Dog Committee trains all-purpose dogs

Military dogs can perform a variety of functions in today's Army. But a group of trainers from the Scout Dog Committee is working with "a different breed of dog."
Capt. Roger H. Sellers, Chairman of the Scout Dog Committee, and four handlers are training and testing what they call "all-purpose dogs." These animals can take the place of the different types of dogs presently in use.
Working with Sellers are PFC's Robert Dahlman, Douglas Libby, Willie Turpin, and Gonzalo Ramirez. Mr. Nicholas Montanaroli and Mr. Robert Primm of Southwest Research Institute are the civilians in charge of the project.
Southwest Research Institute in San Antonio, Texas procured the dogs from civilian owners, trained them for about a year, and placed them under contract to the Army. The Land Warfare Laboratory at Lackland Air Force Base in San Antonio asked Sellers and the Scout Dog Committee here for help with training the dogs.
Sellers and his trainers made several trips to Lackland over the past year to set up training facilities and assist with the actual training.
The project is a feasibility of present, not a full-fledged program. The Army is evaluating these dogs and their performance to determine whether they should be the beginning of a new phase of military dog training.
The five dogs now under contract are being trained for a variety of tasks. These include scouting for punji pits, hidden booby traps, and mines and tunnels. They are also taught to search out caches of hidden material, to track personnel along a path about four hours old, and to guard and attack on command.

For actor Cambridge, it's all in black 'n white

To actor Godfrey Cambridge, the hardest part of making a white man was enduring the makeup that had to be applied every day.

Cambridge had to sit in the studio makeup department a minimum of two hours each day while the cosmeticians to transform him into a white person were applied. After a day's shooting, he wearily plopped into the same chair to be returned to his natural color.

Veteran makeup man Ben Lane handled the transformations. For weeks before the filming, Lane tried out different greases, oils and paints on Cambridge. The final makeup blend was an orange tone which subdued Cambridge's dark pigmentation sufficiently to permit the application of makeup that would make him look "white." In addition, Cambridge wore a wig of medium brown hair and matching eyebrows.

More difficult for Cambridge than the physical transformation were the acting gymnastics the actor had to endure in changing from a black to a white, then back again. Yet, in spite of complaints about the discomfort, Cambridge was enthusiastic about the film.

"A black going to a role like this could do more for settling racial unrest than a thousand promises and lectures," he said. "In this picture, all of us, both black and white, take a good long look at ourselves.

"There's nothing better in the world than laughing at yourself. And when you think that I can play a white man one moment like it, then turn around and be myself and like it, it's wild."

"Watermelon Man" will be at post theater No. 3 Thursday at post theater No. 3 Thursday.

S-O-R-T-S means MONEY

All Fort Benning personnel are being urged to support a program to increase the number of valid suggestions made during the month of May.

The campaign, which has been named SORTS (Save Our Resources Through Manpower), is being conducted with the goal of obtaining at least one constructive idea from everyone who works at Fort Benning.

A Military and Civilian Champion will be selected based on the number of valid suggestions submitted during the campaign. Supervisors, foremen, managers, and commanders have been asked to review all elements of responsibility and identify specific tasks or problem areas where improvements are needed.

"During the past ten months of this fiscal year, less than 5 per cent of Fort Benning personnel had participated in the Army Suggestion Program," states Brig. Gen. Paul F. Gorman, acting commander. They received cash awards totaling $30,000, and were responsible for accumulated savings of over $800,000 in manpower and materials.

A real 'Dream'

Director Beau Stark puts together a flat frame to be used as part of the scenery in "A Midsummer Night's Dream," the Fort Benning Dramatics' next production. The Shakespearean play will be on stage at the post playhouse 8 p.m. May 11-13 and 18-20. There will be a matinee performance May 13 and 20 at 2 p.m. Admission is free, and group tickets may be reserved.

YOG-MONSTER FROM SPACE (Rated G)—Yog's a body of dust particles which have the ability to invade and take over the bodies of both animals and men. This strange creature gets to Earth by over-croaching an unmanned rocket probe bound for Jupiter. During his stay here, Yog impersonates an octopus, crab, jungle turtle and man. Naturally, it takes a liking to this planet and decides to conquer it.

HANNIE CAULDER (Rated R)—After a dismal attempt to rob a small Mexican bank, the three brutal and morose Clemens brothers ride to an isolated relay station run by peaceful settlers. They kill the man of the house, rape his wife (played by Raquel Welch) and set fire to the place. After buying her husband, Miss Welch takes rifle in hand and sets out to hunt down the killers. She gets some help from a bounty hunter who teaches her how to use a gun. The skill of the lady gunfighter is soon tested first against 12 Mexican bandits, then in a showdown against the Clemenses.

POSSESSION OF JOEL DELANEY (Rated R)—Shirley MaLaure portrays a sophisticated divorcee who is called to the aid of her younger brother in what seems to be a routine case of drug use. Instead, she finds herself sucked into the world of the occult and supernatural and faced with the horror of spiritual warfare.

Director Beau Stark has appeared in two off-Broadway plays — "A Woman of No Importance" and "Murder to be Arranged." The pageantry and large number of comic moments make "Dream" his favorite Shakespearean play. In fact, he made his professional debut in "Dream" in 1964.

Stark believes "Dream" is especially appropriate for the Dramatizers because its large cast has attracted many new members. The play also has encouraged young people to participate in theater arts, as 60 children are involved in the production.

Stark, member of Actors' Equity for nine years, served his apprenticeship in several East Coast theaters — Yarmouth Playhouse in Cape Cod, Mass.; Barter Theatre in Abingdon, Va. and Meadowbrook Dinner Theatre in New Jersey.

Stark's wife, Diane, is designing and making the costumes for "Dream" at the Atlantic Cabaret Theatre, both in Annapolis. A math major at Western Maryland College, he designed lights for the school theater. Gagnon also taught electronics and lighting design to underprivileged children at an arts camp in New Bedford, Conn.

Charles and Valerie Sheik, professional dance teachers from New York, choreographed the dance routines in "Dream." The Sheiks and their two daughters, Erin Lei and Robin, will perform a faty round in Act II.

Post OC's clean-up orphanage grounds

A caravan of Officer Candidates from the Second Orphanage, 51st Company (OC), 5th Student Battalion (OC), The School Brigade, pulled up the driveway of the Ann Elizabeth Sheppard Orphanage on Saturday morning, April 15.

They were not on Army business. In distinctly un-military clothes that included dungaree cutoffs and sleeveless T-shirts, these scout-to-be officers, organized and directed by Candidates Sidney Peelle and Stephen Biesinger, donated their free time to aid in the clearing of the wooded area on the orphanage grounds.

Helped by eager youngsters, the second platoon spent the morning chopping, cutting, and dragging away three tractor-loads of weeds and vines that had infested the woodland along the house's outer perimeter. Dead trees and fallen timber became a substantial load of firewood by way of axe and chainsaw, and much sweat glistened on hacks hit by the bright rays of a sunny spring weekend.

Lunch for the group came from the candidates and their wives who provided fried chicken, potato salad, soft-drinks, cupcakes and cookies for dessert. After the meal in the facilities' modern, spacious dining room, the candidates and children moved to the outside recreation area where they played the at-

Benning haven for rare Red-cockaded woodpecker

The piney woods of Fort Benning are a haven for a rare and endangered bird species, says Sp4 Kemp Jones of the Environmental Management Division, (EMD) DFAE.

The red-cockaded woodpecker, listed by the U. S. Bureau of Sports Fisheries and Wildlife as being endangered, seems to thrive here, notwithstanding man's arms, mortar, and artillery fire. EMD has created some 129 den trees of this rather remarkable bird.

The red-cockaded woodpecker is quite unusual in that it makes its home only in large, living pine trees. This excavation in the trunk of the tree makes the den easy to identify due to the heavy resin flow that proceeds.

The bird is endangered because its habitat, old-growth pine woodlands, is being destroyed. But Fort Benning, due to its long-rotation forestry program, still enjoys a plenty of this type of woods. Thus, the woodpecker survives.

EMD is attempting to insure the further survival of the red-cockaded woodpecker. The personnel of the Division, in cooperation with the Forestry and Wildlife Branches, DFAE, are now locating and marking the bird's den trees to protect them from cutting and other molestations.

Active den trees are being marked with two red bands at breast height and trees reserved for future dens are marked with one red band. Hopefully, by these efforts, the red-cockaded woodpecker will, unlike many wildlife species, be with us for a long time to come.

Rennolds leads 'Blues' in open pistol tourney

THE BAYONET, FORT BENNING, GA., MAY 5, 1972—PAGE 19

SFC Harold Renolds of the U. S. Army Marksmanship Training Unit grabbed the Grand Aggregate Championship of the Monthly Open Pistol Tournament here last weekend and let the Army "Blues" team in a clean sweep of the Three-Gun matches when he posted a score of 2,649-118X.

Renolds, the 45 Caliber Pistol and Service Pistol National Champion, led the field of mixed Army, Army Reserve, Air Force and civilian competitors after placing in all but four events in the 16 match tournament. He won five matches, was runner up in three and placed third in four events.

Behind the champion by just three points was SFC Ronnie Harmon who posted 2,646-129X for runner-up honors while stable-mate SFC Roger Willis fired a 2,640-118X for third overall.

Harmon, record holder of the Military Rapid Fire Pistol event in CISM competition, was in the winners circle an equal number of times with Renolds, winning five events overall, which accounted for his top showing.

Championship for the individual sub-aggregates showed MSgt. Robert Whitacre of the Army Marksmanship Unit and one of the top handgunners in the nation, taking the 22 Caliber Pistol series with his 891-83X. The second series, the Center Fire Pistol Matches, were taken by Renolds with 883-86X while Harmon fired the 45 Caliber Pistol top score with his 833-83X.

In the team matches, the Army "Blue" four man team dominated the action and made a clean sweep by taking each of the 22 Caliber, Center Fire Pistol and 45 Caliber Pistol Championships. They won the matches with 1,178, 1,181 and 1,178 scores. In addition, the "Blues" added the 45 Caliber Service Pistol Championship to their long skein of wins when they posted the high score of 1,152 to take that event also from their aspiring competitors.

The "Blue" team fielded by the U. S. Army Marksmanship Training Unit included top shooters Whitacre, Renolds, Harmon and Willis.

Over 80 top rated competitors from the South-eastern area of the nation swapped shots in the weekend Three Gun 2700 Aggregate Championship. Among these, five civilians and one woman posted some of the outstanding scores. Ssgt. Barbara Fife, Laper, Mich., and the Army Marksmanship Unit's M. A. M. were in her better days on the shooting line when she posted a 2,600-109X. Barbara is the present National Women's Pistol Champion and has held the National Women's Rifle Championship on six different occasions.

Joseph S. Sargis, Columbus Director of Safety, was among the civilian competitors in which Madison Collins of Atlanta took the top score with his 2,496-50X.

The Fort Benning Open matches served as a warm-up and preliminary to the Southeastern Regional matches and the all Army matches which will be held here May 18 through 20 and May 22 through 27.

ROD AND GUN CLUB

Notes

By Bill Klob

The beautiful weather we enjoy at this time of the year entices a lot of people outdoors to enjoy camping trips, fishing, picnics or just a walk in the sun.

The sun also awakens many wildlife creatures who have been in hibernation during the cold months. Thousands of snakes are among the creatures who can't resist the warm weather.

The name invokes feelings of revulsion in some and fear in others. Most people think all snakes should be killed wherever they are found. Some of the most exciting and memorable moments of a picnic are when someone discovered a snake and everyone gathers to kill it with a stick or rock.

True nature lovers don't indulge in these activities. They know the snake won't bother them if they don't bother it and the snakes do more good than harm for their environment.

Most of the snakes found in this area are of the nonpoisonous type but we also have an abundance of poisonous snakes. With the exception of one, all of the poisonous snakes belong to the pit viper family. These snakes are distinguished by their octagonal shaped head and deep hollows or pits over their eyes.

The vipers inject poison into their victims through two long hollow fangs on either side of the upper jaw.

The coral is the poisonous snake that is not of the viper family. He is small, brightly colored and had to chew on his victim to inject his poison. He has a black snout and his body is covered by broad black and red bands separated by narrow yellow bands. While biologists list him as a native of this part of the country he is rare in this area. He prefers the warmer climates to the south.

The viper type snakes found in this area are the rattlesnake, copperhead and the water moccasin.

There are many varieties of rattlesnakes in the United States. We have three in the southeastern area. The diamond back, timber and the Carolina pygmy. All have the telltale octagonal shaped head, hollows or pits over their eyes and rattles that give a buzzing sound when they are disturbed. Rattlesnakes are shy. If you let them alone and give them the room they will slip away. They are dangerous when cornered or surprised.

The coloring of the copperhead is beautiful but the ugly viper type head detracts greatly from his overall appearance. He is distinguished by broad chestnut red bands alternated by deep copper bands. He is not very large. A big snake will be about four feet long. You might find him anywhere. He seems to divide his time between dry areas and swampy land.

Water moccasin are probably more numerous in this area than any of the other poisonous type snakes. This one is also of a different disposition. The other snakes are willing to let people alone if the people will let them alone. Not the moccasin. He has been known to take aggressive action. You will find him along the banks of any pond or stream in this area. He's a good swimmer and seems to enjoy the warmer water near the banks.

The moccasin looks deadly. Grown snakes get to over four feet in length. He is dark brown with dark olive colored bands of color interspersed throughout his length. He is sometimes called a cotton mouth snake. He got this name because the inside of his mouth is whiter than that of the other snakes but as far as I'm concerned anyone close enough to make this distinction is too close.

From all reports there are an unusually large number of snakes in our area this year. The warm winter no doubt allowed more to survive the cold weather.

Considering the number of people who go into the boonocks each summer and the number of people who are bitten by snakes provides some reassuring data. The chances are astronomical against any one individual being bitten. The odds can be bettered considerably if just a bit of caution is exercised. Watch where you walk, don't stick your hands anywhere until you're sure the hole or area doesn't shelter a snake and if you do see a snake don't bother him. Give him a chance to escape. AND DON'T SWIM OR WADE IN PONDS OR STREAMS. THIS IS ASKING FOR BIG TROUBLE.

Sgt. Mike Kelly, leader of the Ft. Benning rifle team, aims his M16 rifle during a training exercise. Kelly is the only member of the team who has muscled his way to a perfect 500 point score on the physical combat proficiency test.

Baseball starts for YAC leagues

Nearly 500 spectators turned out for the opening day ceremonies of the Fort Benning Youth Activities baseball season.

The ceremonies held on Green Field, Main Post Tuesday, featured performances by the 233rd Army Band, an invocation by Chaplain (Maj.) Robert M. Horne, an address by Col. Bruce Fraser, commanding officer of Headquarters Command and commissioner of the Youth Activities baseball program and a color guard furnished by Den 8 of the Fort Benning Club Scouts.

After the playing of the National Anthem by the 233rd Army Band the first game of the season began. The game, played by the White Sox and Cubs of the Doughboy League ended with the score 8 to 6 in favor of the White Sox.

Youth activities will operate five leagues this Summer. The Biddy and Pee Wee Leagues will each field six teams, the Doughboy League will have eight teams 15 will have four teams. The girls league will play softball and the Pony League four teams. A girls' league to age and the boys leagues will play baseball. Games will be scheduled each evening from Monday through Friday. Games will be played at the Green Field Diamond, Norton Court located on Carpenter and Edwards Streets, Main Post and Twin Fields located on Ouster Road just opposite the intersection of Ouster and Craig Roads. All games will begin at 4 p.m.

3 determined soldiers beat the odds in PT test

BY C. J. SIRAKOWSKI For their spirit and determination, the three men were awarded a plaque and a three day pass.

Physical training hasn't always been popular with the soldier, but on March 24, PFC Gennie Lucks, PFC Rex Sawyer and PFC William Brenner, all soldiers of Co. A 1st Bu. (Mech), 88th Inf. (Paratroopers) showed their determination to beat the game.

For nine weeks a soldier is put through the schooling and training that is necessary to learn the skills of his newly found trade. At the end of this training he is tested to find out how much he has retained from all of this training. The PT (physical training) test is divided into five categories, so in order to max the test he must excel in all five areas.

The PT test has always been the soldier's nightmare. In order to max it, a man must handwalk eighty-four bars on the horizontal ladder, crab-walk forty meters in sixteen seconds, do fifty sit-ups in one minute, run, dodge and jump an obstacle course and run two miles in fourteen minutes.

The odds of an average man to max a test like this is two hundred to one, but three Patriot soldiers from the same platoon achieved the goal they set out to do.

"I'm ahead in the Army."

Sergeant Mike Kelly may not get rich in the Army but he's not doing badly.

"I like the way the Army is coming up with the money situation. The bonus, definitely. I got $10,000 and 30 days for six years. Picture me with that much money.

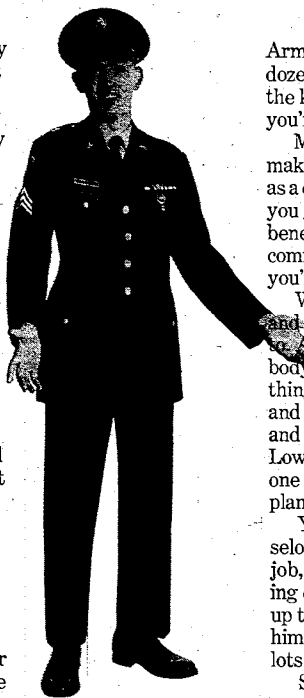

"I wanted to do something different. And the Army said okay. So I picked radio mechanic and got it.

"There's the other benefits too. Free medical care. Dental work. Any legal assistance.

"And I have lots of time to do the things I want. And the retirement. I've thought a great deal about it. Sit around at age 37 and draw half of whatever I make in rank. That's not bad"

Sergeant Kelly figures the Army offers just about all the things a man needs.

Plenty of opportunity for job satisfaction. With all the hundreds of jobs in the Army there's bound to be a dozen or so that'll give you the kind of self-fulfillment you're looking for.

Money. You'd have to make almost twice as much as a civilian to duplicate what you get in Army pay and benefits. And the checks keep coming. Steady. Whether you're sick or well.

With regular promotions and bonuses to look forward to. And you also have somebody taking care of everyday things. Like housing. Dental and medical care. Commissary and post exchange privileges. Low-cost life insurance. Plus one of the best retirement plans ever made.

Russia included Top marksmanship team plans trip into three European countries

A U. S. Army Marksmanship team will be making a pre-Olympic training trip into Europe this month where they will participate in shooting matches in Russia, Sweden and Germany.

The team, made up of 13 elite marksmen, includes handgun, rifle and moving target competitors. They will depart Monday by Military Air for Frankfurt, Germany, for their first competition, a two day match, against Swedish marksmen Thursday.

In Stockholm, Sweden, rifle shooters will be competing against both the top Swedish and Finnish rifle marksmen in 300 meter Free Rifle and Three-Position Smallbore Rifle.

The team will be led by National Three-Position Rifle Champion Maj. Lones Winger, Carter, Mont.

Simultaneously with the rifle competition, handgun shooters will be competing against select Scandinavian pistol marksmen in Free Pistol and Rapid Fire Pistol while Running Bear shooters will be in Eskilstuna to shoot against champion moving target marksmen.

Following the matches in Sweden, the American marksmen will journey to Moscow to meet the best of Russia at the site of the 1968 World Championships. Russian shooters presently hold the World team records in Running Bear, Free Rifle, Free Pistol and Smallbore Rifle competition. The final matches for the traveling U. S. team will be fired in Germany where American Rifle and Pistol marksmen will square off against Germany's best in Wiesbaden. Other top European competitors will also participate in the Wiesbaden matches with the Army marksmen.

U. S. moving target shooters will be competing in Running Bear against the Europeans in Dortmund, Germany, simultaneously with the Wiesbaden rifle and pistol matches.

The three-week European training trip will present an opportunity for the select U. S. competitors to compete with and observe championship techniques used by the best of the European shooting world prior to competing against these outstanding world competitors in the 1972 Olympic Games at Munich, Germany, in August and September.

This will be the final training for the U. S. Army shooters prior to their entering the U. S. International Championships at Phoenix, Ariz., in June where the U. S. Olympic team will be selected.

600 girls need a home

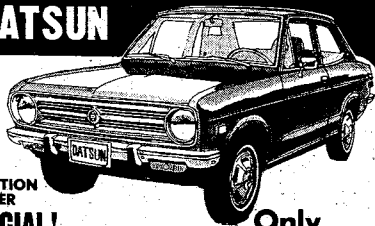

Two months ago, Capt. Gary Dolan in Fort Benning's Protocol Office needed 600 girls to date the West Point cadets at the annual June hop here. The hop is part of the First Class (seniors) trip to major installations before choosing their combat arms.

Now Dolan needs officers and their wives to lose some of the girls overnight. Approximately 300 out-of-town girls are coming to the June 9 hop. And many of these girls will need overnight accommodations.

Volunteers to house the girls must be an officer and his wife who can take two or more girls. The hosting couple does NOT have to live on post. The hop will close at midnight on June 9 when the cadets return to their billets. The hosting couple will take their guests at the Officers Club at the end of the hop.

JCOCs wind up Fort Benning visit

The Secretary of Defense's Joint Civilian Orientation Conference (JCOC) comprised of 64 civilian conferees visited Fort Benning this week.

During their visit the conferees were joined by approximately 25 businessmen from the Defense Orientation Conference Association, an organization composed of persons who have participated in a previous JCOC. Leaders of four national veterans groups also were at Benning.

In addition to Fort Benning, the JCOC conferees will visit the U.S. Air Force Academy, NORAD, Strategic Air Command, U.S. Marine Recruiting Depot, the Navy's Atlantic Command, and the Pentagon.

All expenses for personal services, food, lodging and other items related to their visit are paid for by the conferees themselves.

The various commands visited by the JCOC's will present a detailed program outlining each of their missions and their capabilities and its contribution to the total defense effort.

While at Fort Benning the conferees had an opportunity to meet and talk to servicemen and servicewomen of all ranks.

Sickle-cell anemia clinic to open June 1

Martin Army Hospital announced the opening of a sickle-cell anemia clinic for the diagnosis and treatment of sickle-cell anemia in the dependents of Black soldiers starting June 1.

One out of every ten black persons carry the hereditary factor for sickle-cell trait. The sickle-cell trait factor does not, in most cases, cause any illness and never causes low blood counts (anemia). But if both parents have the sickle-cell trait factor and both pass these on to their children, sickle-cell anemia occurs. This is a serious illness for which there is no cure. However, new forms of treatment are being tried and show promise to reasonably early development. This disease usually causes low blood counts, episodes of pain and a shortened life span. Parents will want to know if their children have this disease.

Sickle-cell anemia is a disqualifying disease and so individuals suffering from this condition are screened out of military service during their induction physical examination. Individuals with sickle-cell trait are perfectly fit for duty since a single sickle-cell trait factor does not usually produce any illness. Soldiers desiring to have their blood tested for the sickle-cell trait factor are requested to make an appointment to have this test performed by phoning 544-3221 or 544-2700. The test is simple and requires only a few minutes to perform. All soldiers who have a positive blood test for sickle-cell trait will be notified by mail. Instructions for having dependents tested will be mailed to any soldier having a positive test. Soldiers having a negative test will have a report sent to their health records.

Individual testing and counseling will be available for those families in which both the husband and wife carry the sickle-cell trait factor.

Post implements improved 'Dental Care System'

The Army Dental Corps has developed a new program to close the growing gap between oral health needs of the Army community and Corps' ability to fill the need.

Col. Justin S. Zack, post dental surgeon, said he is pleased that plans and facilities are being completed to implement a new training program for dental therapists.

The Improved Dental Care Delivery System will increase the Corps' treatment capability. The system will use Oral Health Care Delivery Teams composed of dental officers and dental therapists performing expanded duties.

Col. Zack said, "As the amount of dental officers at Fort Benning decreases due to the zero draft, Fort Benning personnel will not experience a drop in quality or quantity of dental services." According to Col. Zack, the implementation of the dental therapist program will maintain the standards of the dental service.

In the new program, the dentist works with a team of four dental therapists. He diagnoses the problem and decides on the proper treatment. The dentist carries dental procedures to the point where the therapists can complete the treatment. When the therapists have finished, the dentist returns to check the results.

Use of dental auxiliaries began in New Zealand nearly 50 years ago. Pre-school and elementary school children there are provided necessary dental care by specially trained auxiliaries. The program is supervised by dentists who make periodic inspections of each clinic.

Several Southeast Asian countries have borrowed the idea and created programs to fill their dental needs. The United States Public Health Service conducted a five-year study in giving dental assistants expanded functions. The Dental Manpower Development Center learned that an Oral Health Team could greatly increase daily productivity by more than 104 per cent. This increase was attained without reducing the quality of service rendered.

The Army conducted its own pilot program at Fort Bliss, Hood, and Lewis. Results indicate that expanding the duties of the dental assistant increases the efficiency and productivity of the dental officers, without reducing the quality of service.

The Improved Dental Care Delivery System will increase the Corps' treatment capability. The system will use Oral Health Care Delivery Teams composed of dental officers and dental therapists performing expanded duties.

Post Regulations prohibit swimming or wading in ponds, lakes, streams and other bodies of water on the reservation. The only places authorized for these activities are the post swimming pools.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

by Bill King

Here's a tasty topping for over-ripe grapefruit cocktail to a cup of whipped cream, add a teaspoon each of Worcestershire sauce, ketchup and lemon juice.

If you're out of lemons, remember you can substitute 2 tablespoons of bottled or canned lemon juice for the juice of one fresh lemon.

Always brown meat before saucing it. Otherwise, the salt will draw out meat juices and prevent proper browning.

Generally speaking, when a recipe calls for cooking an ingredient in salted water, it means about a half-tablespoon of salt per quart of water.

When Marco Polo described a banquet given by Kubli Khan for 20,000 noblemen, he pointed out that only 6,000 could be seated at tables, and the rest had to sit on carpets.

Sgt. Dale Aberle (left) of the 1st Battalion (Mechanized) 58th Infantry (Patriots), 197th Infantry Brigade points at Camp Takabatee where the camp's new orienteering course is located.

SSgt. Richard L. Hines, 1st Bn, 58th Inf. discusses an upcoming domestic action program with Miss Marion Blakeley, a typing instructor at Cusseta.

CG nominates two 197th soldiers for 'award'

SSgt. Richard L. Hines from the 1st Battalion, 58th Infantry and Sgt. Dale A. Aberle from the 1st Battalion (Mech), 58th Infantry (Patriots) have been nominated by the Commanding General of Fort Benning for the Junior Chamber of Commerce of the United States' "Outstanding Young Man of America" Award.

Hines a holder of the Army's Silver Star Award has distinguished himself throughout his military career in terms of leadership and devotion to duty.

Hines works in the S-5 Section of the 129th as the Non-commissioned Officer

In Charge (NCOIC) of domestic action.

In this position the sergeant has been responsible for establishing an athletic and self-help program for the underprivileged young citizens of Elizabeth City, Virginia, Woodland Park, Kentucky, and a Farley Homes.

Hines is presently involved with the city of Cusseta in a High School renovation project. This project includes the construction of a basketball court, painting inside and outside of all school buildings, landscaping and the erection of a flag pole.

In addition to the Silver

Star, Hines has been awarded the Bronze Star Medal (with V device), the Army Commendation Medal (with Oak Leaf Cluster), the Purple Heart (with two oak leaf clusters), the Vietnamese Cross, the Vietnamese Service Medal, the Air Medal and two Good Conduct Medals.

Aberle from the 1st Battalion (Mech), 58th Infantry (Patriots) has distinguished himself in the Army through personal courage. Active in track and field events during his high school days, Aberle established a record in the mile run at his high school which still stands.

Upon entering the Army he completed basic training, AIT and airborne training following which he was assigned to the Republic of Vietnam as a combat infantryman.

While on patrol in that country during November of 1969 he incurred extensive third degree burns on his right leg.

After being examined by Army physicians he was informed that he would never be able to run again and that he would only be able to walk only after extensive remedial therapy.

Upon reassignment in CONUS he was sent to the 1-58th where he became the legal clerk. It was at this time that he began exercising and started running again.

Though painful at first, his strength began to come back. As he puts it "after the first couple of miles, the pain didn't bother me very much."

Aberle led the 1-58th Infantry in all athletic events thereafter. He was virtually a one man team in capturing the Commanders Trophy in the 197th Infantry Brigade competition. He won four events in a period of less than three hours, including the half mile and long distance running events.

In addition to his local track victories, Sgt. Aberle began to take an interest in the newly imported sport of orienteering, a military sport largely dominated by the Scandinavian countries where it originated. It combines aspects of long distance running with the military specialty of map-reading. To win, the contestant must complete a compass course over all natural obstacles in the area.

His successes in this sport include: the winning of the All-United States Army Competition and the North American Orienteering Championship.

197th completes domestic action program in Florida

BY KERRY COX

The 197th Support Battalion, 197th Infantry Brigade, recently completed, along with Florida's Dade County Schools and Community, a unique three-way venture. So unique that Dade County officials proclaimed the week as "197th Week."

Men and equipment volunteered by the 197th undertook the task of constructing a new athletic field for the Dade County Senior High School, which contains a track, baseball diamond and a football field.

The group of eight soldiers from the 72nd Eng. Co., 197th Spt. Bn., spent this past week in Carol City completing the new athletic complex as part of the Army's philosophy of "training with a purpose," in which service units join hands with community groups to solve local problems.

Numerous Civic Domestic Action projects have been launched by the 197th Spt. Bn., but this is the first one in the Dade-County area to involve a school system.

The project came about in the early part of April when 2nd Lt. Dale B. Kays, 72nd Engr. Co., met with officials representing Carol City Senior High School and the community. At this time it was expressed by John Bryant, school coordinator for the project, to have the 197th participate in the project.

On April 22 the soldiers, under the direction of Kays and SSgt. Perry Dent, began work on the track aspect of the complex, involving grading and placing a crushed rock base, donated by a local business.

Later in the week work began on the baseball diamond with fill brought in to level the area and renovate the entire infield, including the construction of a new pitchers mound.

The final phase of the project, completed last week, consisted of roughing in the site of a future football field, including the grading and crowing the field area for drainage.

During the soldiers stay in the Dade County area, local citizens offered them cookouts and picnics during their free time. Some of the soldiers were treated to a home style dinner after church services on Sundays.

"It has really been great working down here for the community of Dade County, they have been really nice to us, both the students and their parents," commented Sgt. Mark Pfoel, duster operator.

MAH Nurse Clinician Course Army's first

The Nurse Clinician Ambulatory Care Course, the first program of its kind in the Army, was initiated at Martin Army Hospital, by the Surgeon General's Office in February, 1972.

It has been estimated by competent authority that there presently exists a shortage of 50,000 physicians for the size of the population in the United States. It is estimated that this disposition will grow worse in the future due to the rapidity of population increase associated States.

The Army Medical Service also suffers from this physical shortage. It looks at this time as though with the elimination of the draft, the doctor draft will also be discontinued. Should this occur, there will be an even more severe shortage of physicians and dentists throughout the military with a relatively small increase in the number of medical students graduating from medical schools throughout the United States. In an attempt to meet and alleviate this impending problem, the Chief of Staff of the Army has recommended expanding the roles of auxiliary medical personnel and increasing their numbers in order to relieve the physician both of his administrative involvements and of the need for providing care for the less seriously ill and/or injured.

The purpose of the course is to prepare Army Nurse Corps Officers to function as nurse clinicians in the ambulatory health care setting. As nurse clinicians, the ANC officer will be able to provide an added dimension to the comprehensive care of the patient, working closely with other members of the "Health Care Team" in the newly evolving and expanding Ambulatory Health Care setting.

This program is but one part of a new and exciting concept in Army Nursing called the Army Nursing-Contemporary Practice Program (AN-CPP). The purpose and goals of this comprehensive program are:

First, to increase the soldier's satisfaction with the health care provided for himself and his family.

Second, to provide Army nurses with more satisfying and challenging professional training.

Sound-off

Do you plan to re-enlist?

Honest, no force nor coercion was used. There were no first sergeants standing by with detail lists. And, the soldiers Sound Off talked to this week were picked on a random basis — the first five spotted, the first five talked to.

The question, "Do you plan to re-enlist, and if so, why?"

Coker was undecided. With more than a year to go, he felt it was too early to decide but he has talked to the re-up sergeant. The benefits attract him.

Sgt Jerry Evans feels he will probably re-up. He comes from a military family and feels the military life is alright. "I know I like the Army and I can get my college education this way."

PFC Joe Reid was the only one who didn't plan to re-up. He felt "WOLAR" is OK but I don't want to be obligated that long."

PFC Carlton Ellis

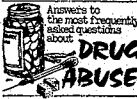

PFC Carlton Ellis, from HHC, 19th Inf Bde, said "Yeah, I'm planning to re-up." Ellis was concerned that he couldn't get a comparable job and pay in the civilian world without taking time out to go back to school. He's checking the schooling available to his college degree. He is taking advantage of the unit-of-choice program which will keep him here at Fort Benning near his family for at least 18 months.

PFC Edward Boyd

Sgt. Thomas Williams had just re-upped not too long ago for six more years. He had no special reason. "I just like the Army and my job." When he first enlisted, he stayed in because "it couldn't get any worse, it had to get better." Now, he doesn't see an outside job that offers the same pay and benefits with the responsibilities he's now holding.

THIEF!

Honesty, best policy in PX system

An attractive young woman walks into the Army post exchange carrying a large handbag. She pauses to pick up a shopping bag, checks the price on various items and browses around the store for awhile.

Some inexpensive items are dropped into her shopping bag, but other, more expensive items slip into her purse. There are other customers nearby, but no one seems to notice the shoplifter in action.

She pays for the inexpensive items and departs the store, thurled once again at having ripped-off the PX.

But as she enters the parking lot a man asks her to step into the manager's office. The woman's purse is emptied across his desk. There is a used billfold—and an expensive bottle of perfume, two pairs of pantyhose, a slip, two neckties and a rechargeable electric razor.

"I'm sorry," she says, as the military police are contacted. "I'll give it all back."

The young lady would indeed give it all back. She could also lose her PX privileges and perhaps even be tried in Federal court.

Although the Army and Air Force Exchange Service (AAFES) has experienced much less shoplifting and employee pilferage than civilian stores, the organization still has to account for substantial losses after each major inventory.

A conservative loss estimated for all United States commercial business in 1971 was projected to be $1 billion. Some attribute the increasing loss trend to the moral regression of segments in our society, general public apathy, permissiveness, the continuing trend to ward overpopulation and a tendency not to get involved.

Hq. AAFES was forced to recognize its own losses and decided to get involved, and soon.

In January 1970, a security office was staffed with military and civilian personnel having law enforcement and security backgrounds. Exchange Regions and transportation ports across the United States were provided with security specialists to reduce mounting inventory losses.

The security men visited many exchanges and selected certain AAFES employees for training in the art of detecting shoplifters and dishonest employees. Often local military or security police joined in the training.

The newly designated inspectors provided management with eyes and ears on the scene, and the effect is already evident.

For instance, in the past year, 6,300 shoplifters of all ages and ranks were detected. More than $43,000 worth of merchandise was recovered. During the same period, 300 dishonest employees were caught and $117,000 in goods was retrieved.

And while these statistics indicate improved security, to no one but the potential thief knows how much deterrent force the hint of a plainclothes man or television camera might have on crime.

The security force realizes that the majority of AAFES customers are honest to the penny. The goal, however, is to keep everyone honest: customer and employee alike. (Reprint from AFPS).

200 ROTC students see Patriot life

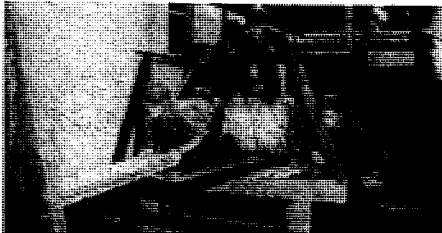

More than 200 ROTC students from Tuskgeege Institute, Tuskgeege, Alabama, visited the 1st Battalion (Mech), 58th Infantry (Patriots) April 27.

Escorting the group of students was MSGT (ret.) George O. Prince, who retired from the Army while serving with the 1-28th Infantry. Prince has been the ROTC instructor at Tuskgeege Institute since his retirement.

The students arrived at the battalion headquarters at two o'clock, where they were greeted by Lt. Col. Stephen R. Pawlik, the battalion commander. Upon their arrival, Lt. Col. Pawlik gave the students a brief orientation and talked with them about the functions of mechanized infantry unit, and what the Modern Volunteer Army concept had to offer the individual soldier.

After their meeting with Lt. Col. Pawlik, the students were divided into five groups and given tours by the company commanders through their respective areas. The tours lasted approximately an hour and enabled the students to see an ordinary room barracks, an arm room and the armament of a mechanized unit. The students then went to the mess halls where they had snacks and a discussion with the company commanders.

While the students were bussed to the battalion motor pool they were met and briefed by CW2 Felix Del Toro, Battalion Maintenance Officer.

COMPANY OPERATIONS DEPT.

The officers and ladies of Company Operations held a formal reception at the Officers' Club April 26 for Col. Herbert Frandsen, new director of the Company Operations Dept., and his wife.

The Frandsens are not new to Fort Benning. Since July 1970 Col. Frandsen has been Secretary of the Infantry School.

After being in the Department only two and a half weeks — and having seen 18 officers leave — Col. Frandsen was happy to welcome Capt. Jerec Atchinson, a returnee from the Republic of Viet Nam, who has been assigned to C Team of the Company Tactics Committee. The Land Navigation Committee was best for the evening.

The ladies of Company Operations welcomed their new first lady, Mrs. Joan Frandsen, with an informal tea April 18 in the Corridor room of the Officers' Club.

The tables were decorated with pink tablecloths and pink roses and gladioli. Mrs. Frandsen was introduced individually to each lady. The women of Headquarters were hostesses.

USAMKTU

The monthly coffee for ladies of USAMKTU combined business with pleasure as Mrs. James M. Clawson and Mrs. David W. Blaszkiv received a baby shower. The event was held April 26 at the home of Mrs. Ralph R. Fuller. Fourteen ladies attended.

The name tags — made of yellow and white cloth dippers — were the work of Mrs. James M. Clawson. On the table were a white lace table cloth trimmed in yellow, a yellow teddy bear centerpiece holding an umbrella and candlesticks of yellow and white.

Mrs. Ralph Fuller, the hostess, served donuts, raspberry sauce, miniature muffins, coffee and tea. A hostess table had as a centerpiece a pink and blue replica of a baby and cradle in the tree top.

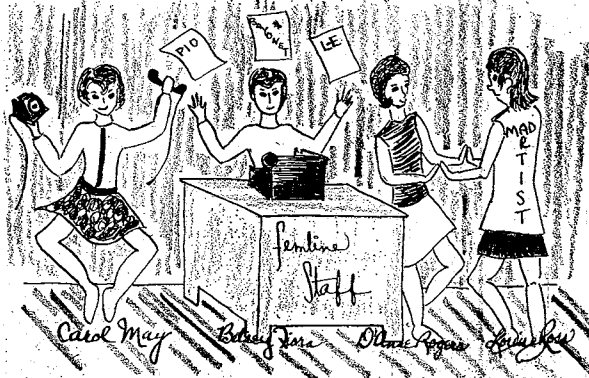

LEADERSHIP DEPT.

The officers of the Conditioning, Combatives and Drill Committee were hosts of a ball and farewell at the Lawson Field Officers Club April 28.

Gaily colored crepe paper balls hung from streamers which criss-crossed the ceiling. An arrangement of fresh flowers was the centerpiece for the refreshment table.

A buffet of sweet and sour meatballs, chicken drumsticks, roast beef and biscuits, finger sandwiches and beef barbecue was served.

Special guests were Col. William B. Steele, departing department director, and his wife. After opening remarks by Lt. Col. Billy E. Rutherford, Mrs. Steele was presented a scrapbook containing photos and mementos of events which had taken place while she and her husband had been with the department. Rutherford then presented Col. Steele with a leadership plaque and a portable bar.

The Supper Club patio was the scene of a Leadership Dept. brunch May 2. Hostesses were the ladies of the Leadership Committee and Conditioning, Combative and Drill Committee. Name tags and place cards were made by Mrs. Robert Bonthuis and Mrs. Joseph M. Bryan.

Kitchen items such as fondue pots, cookbooks and salad bowls served as table centerpieces. The program of the brunch was home entertaining made easy by Joan Faber, a home economist for the Columbus gas light company. Miss Faber showed how to make check-board sandwiches, vegetable flowers, penzance pizza and Scandinavian pinwheels.

Mrs. Robert Farris was presented the flower centerpiece, a snack tray went to Mrs. Alan Schoenack and a fondue pot to Mrs. Joseph Pavera.

Rangers go "Leap festing"

Approximately 250 Rangers and members of their families attended a recent "Leap Fest" staged by the Benning Ranger Committee at Lee Drop Zone.

Activities during the day included sky diving, junior jump tower, rides for the children in an armored personnel carrier provided by C Company, 1st Battalion, 8th Infantry, 197th Infantry Brigade, and a picnic-style lunch.

Among those attending the "Leap Fest" were Col. David E. Grange, Ranger Department director, and Col. Aubrey G. Norris, commander of The School Brigade, and their wives.

Craig Mickel, son of Lt. Col. and Mrs. Larry S. Mickel is ready to leap from the junior jump tower. Checking his harness is 2nd Lt. James Hofstetter, Ranger student.

The "chow" line at the Ranger "Leap Fest" had heavy traffic during the day. Approximately 200 persons passed through.

MSG and Mrs. Moore were among more than 250 persons who enjoyed the recent Ranger "Leap Fest." Moore is chief of the Ranger Patroling Committee.

pads is 75 cents per day with no time limit. Camping areas also rent for 75 cents a day with no time limit.

Lewis Bestland, manager of the recreation area, said that he has never had to turn away campers because of lack of space.

"There is room in other areas than camping sites to put up tents, park trailers and campers," he said. "The only reason I've had to turn away people is that the recreation area does not allow them."

Among camping facilities are community picnic tables and barbecue pits for outdoors cooking.

A dormitory complete with refrigerator, TV and pool table is available for groups of single enlisted personnel from Fort Benning, who come down under unit reward programs. During the off season, individual units at Benning may use the dormitory.

Those individuals who like deep sea fishing or other water sports may use the area's boat rental facilities.

Boats come in all sizes. The "Follow Me," a 38-foot deep sea fishing boat with an eight person capacity, is one. The boat is used summer and winter for trolling off shore. Fishing excursions last from a half day to a full day depending on the type of fishing.

The recreation area marina also has many other smaller rental boats: 15 small fishing boats with outboard motors, two 16 foot ski boats, two 18 foot boats for fishing in the Gulf of Mexico, and four catamarans — twin-hulled sailing boats.

The recreation area has a place in which military personnel can — at their own risk — store their boats and trailers while at the facility.

Beach lovers won't be disappointed either as there is plenty of room for vacationers to lay in the sun without the fear of being trampled by a pack of youngsters. And there are also no boats allowed in the roped-off swimming area.

So when you're planning a summer vacation, remember Destin.

Fort Benning personnel who thirst for outdoors life can have this desire quenched at the Infantry Center Recreation Area at Destin, Fla.

The recreation area, in use for over 30 years, is located on the Choctawhatchee Bay adjacent to Fort Walton Beach, Fla. Fourteen acres in size, it has facilities to please the most ardent outdoorsman.

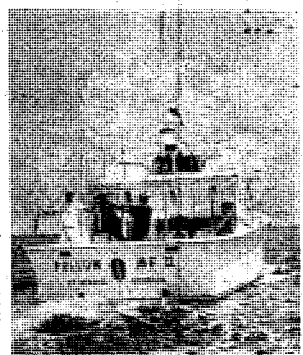

A five hour drive from Fort Benning, the area offers completely equipped cabins of various types and sizes, trailer parks, camping sites, a bath house, snack bar, deep sea fishing boat, row boats, outboard motors, ski boats, beach area, barbecue pits, picnic tables, fishing rods and reels, marina facilities and other outdoor sports equipment.

Fifteen military personnel are assigned to Destin to do the administrative and maintenance work associated with the operation of the facility; assignment of cabins and camping spots and repair of marine equipment. It's not as soft a job as one might think, especially during the "on season" from June to the first week in September.

Housing facilities include 14 air-conditioned cabins and one trailer. The two-bedroom cabins can accommodate eight persons and the three bedroom cabins, 12.

Reservations for the cabins during the winter season (September through May) are taken on a priority system. Active duty personnel assigned to Fort Benning have first priority; retired servicemen, second and other military personnel and their dependents, third. During the summer season, reservations are determined by a post wide drawing.

The 10 trailer pads available have use of city sewage, electrical hookups and water facilities. These pads cost $1 a day with a 15 day limit. Trailer parking off time than now to take a long look at the United States Army Reserve.

Pay increases recently approved by Congress can add $44.48 to your income for one weekend's work a month if you train with a unit of the Army Reserve. That's the new pay scale —almost double what it used to be—for an Army Reserve private first class. All other junior enlisted men and women and first and second lieutenants also are enjoying pay hikes. The new weekend pay for first lieutenants with only three years service, for example, is $106.96.

And if you've recently been discharged from active military service, you come into the Army Reserve with your old rank —and the new higher pay. For example, the weekend pay of a sergeant with three years of service is $54.84 and $18.80 is what a corporal gets after two years of service.

No matter what your Army Reserve rank may be, you have opportunities for promotions—with even higher pay; training in new skills, and service to your community and your country.

In order to boost your income by these several hundred dollars a year, you're required to go to meetings in your hometown throughout the year. And each summer, you attend Annual Training away from home for two weeks, for which you receive full pay for your rank. The rest of the time's your own—like any of your neighbors'.

If the United States Army Reserve sounds like something special, it is. You can find out more by contacting the citizen-soldiers of the Army Reserve in your community. Look up their phone number in the white pages directory under "U.S. Government."

You may find as they have, that "it pays to go to meetings."

CWO (ret.) Brayton M. Davis, 3030 Luckie St. is number one in two categories of the Rod and Gun Club May Fishing Derby.

Brayton registered the largest bass and bream so far this month. He took the bass from Averett Pond. The 5-pound, 9-ounce catch went for a black flip tail plastic worm. The bream, weighing 1-pound, 13-ounces was caught on a pink worm at Kings Pond.

The Rod and Gun Club holds a fishing contest for members each month of the year. The member registering the largest bass, bream or catfish each month receives a prize worth about $15. The rules of the contest are few and simple. The member must register his intent to enter the contest each time he goes fishing. Registration must be accomplished at the club sales counter. The fish must be taken from one of the post ponds and brought to the Rod and Gun Club for entry and weighing.

Club Operating Hours

The word concerning operating hours for various facilities of the Rod and Gun Club have not reached all the members according to Tom McCollough, custodian of the club. People keep turning up at odd hours. Odd at least to the extent that the club is not open when they come around. Maybe the hours don't satisfy the requirements of these members. They should and if they don't they should be changed. The club aims to satisfy the membership and if they aren't satisfied they should let their representative on the board of governors know about it.

The club operates the snack bar from 11 a.m. until 6:30 p.m. and the beverage bar is open from 10 a.m. until 9 p.m. each day. Carry-out service is available at both facilities.

The sales counter is open from 8 a.m. until 6 p.m. Monday through Friday and from 6 a.m. until 5 p.m. on Saturdays, Sundays and holidays. Boats located in various ponds on post, electric trolling motors, cushions and paddies are available for rent at the sales counter. Minnows, worms, crickets and other popular baits are available for sale. The counter also carries a variety of lures, rods, reels and other fishing needs.

The club has four skeet ranges and a trap range for use by members. These ranges are in operation four days a week. They are closed on Monday, Tuesday and Thursday. The ranges are open and an attendant is on duty from noon until 2 p.m. on Wednesday, Saturday, Sunday and holidays. They operate from 3 p.m. until 10 p.m. on Friday.

The club also operates four field archery ranges and has a very active archery group. These archery ranges have just been renovated and are ready for use. The archery ranges are open every day. Any member can use the facilities any time during regular hours.

The club sales counter also sells Georgia Hunting and Fishing licenses and is the only agency authorized to issue the Post Hunting and Fishing permits.

Alabama Fishing Rodeo

Some of the local anglers may be interested in entering the Alabama Fresh Water Fishing Rodeo at Lake Eufaula this weekend. The event will start at noon today and run through Sunday.

First prize for the largest bass and the largest crappie will be 15-foot fishing boats complete with a 5-horsepower motor. Many other prizes will be offered for bass, crappie, and bream catches.

Fishermen who want to participate must register before noon today. Registration may be made at any of the sports shops in the Eufaula area or at the Eufaula Chamber of Commerce.

Entry fee is three dollars for adults and two dollars for children under 14 years of age. There will be special events for children.

All catches must be registered at the Chevalina Marina by 2 p.m. Sunday afternoon to be eligible for prizes.

Country Club has temporary greens

Golfers who play the Fort Benning Country Club Pine Side Course began to use three temporary greens last week.

This week comes from Dan Morgan, Country Club course superintendent. According to Morgan, the greens on the number 2, 4 and 5 holes are the large practice green located behind the clubhouse were torn up and the turf replaced by a Bermuda hybrid grass.

The new turf will be of the same type as that planted on the greens some ten years ago. The reworking program was made necessary by the invasion of foreign type Bermuda grasses in an original turf, known as Tifgreen 228. The Tifgreen turf, a mutation of several type Bermuda strains developed at the Tifton Agricultural College at Tifton, Ga., was the result of experiments to find a grass that would provide a smooth and consistent putting surface. The mutation also had a deeper green color, low growing habit and was able to withstand a lower cutting height and cold dormancy without dying than other type grasses.

Theoretically the Tifgreen 228 turf placed over the greens should be beginning to grow again and the winter grass planted last fall is beginning operations to be surfaced with sod taken from the regular green. According to Morgan these temporary greens will have to be used from six to eight weeks. After that time the new surface will be usable but it will probably take about three months before the greens are in top shape.

According to Morgan a single growing sprig can spread to cover an area of about three square feet in a single growing season. During the warm growing months the difference can easily be detected by an experienced man but when the Bermuda is dormant there appears to be no difference in the various strains. During this dormant period the spread of foreign grasses is helped each time the pin setter digs up a plug containing foreign grass and moves it into an area not already infected.

Morgan has selected this time to rework the greens because it is one of the two periods of the year when the greens are not in top condition. At this time the dormant Bermuda grass is beginning to be constructed in the front of the greens to be reworked. These greens will be surfaced with sod taken from the regular green. According to Morgan these temporary greens will have to be used from six to eight weeks. After that time the new surface will be usable but it will probably take about three months before the greens are in top shape.

Gasdek runs 3 miles before meet to warm-up

By Rich Medowell
How does a person warm-up for a three-mile race under the hot Georgia sun? If he is Capt. Barry D. Gasdek, he warms up by running three miles under the noon sun. "I forgot about the heat and ran my usual noon workout," he said following the race.

Gasdek was the overall winner of the run for the three-mile race Tuesday. His time was 17:58, an average of less than six minutes a mile. At that rate he could have received the top score in three consecutive mile runs in the army's physical fitness test.

Gasdek is not built along the lines of most long distance runners. At 5-11, 230 pounds, he is built more along the lines of an all-state guard which he was while playing football for Indiana University, Indiana, Pa.

"I saw this short, stocky runner take off at this fast pace and I just knew he wouldn't last more than a mile," said Lt. Col. Frank H. Scott who finished close behind Gasdek and is built more along the lines of the typical long distance runner.

"Then at the end of two miles when he was still going strong, I was still waiting for him to fade, but he never did," Scott said.

Gasdek has been an athlete nearly his entire life. In college he wrestled and ran track beside playing football. In track he put the shot, threw the javelin and ran the two-mile event. He was also a distinguished military graduate in the ROTC program.

In the army he maintains his athletic condition by running two or three miles four or five days a week and working out.

Following his stint in the advanced class where he earned a masters degree in guidance and psychological services. His philosophy on running is also his philosophy on life. "If you put your mind to it, you can do just about anything. That's the big thing about running. You have to convince yourself that you can make the run and not only make it, but make it in a certain time," he said. He stresses that those who want to get into shape and stay there cannot be fair weather runners. "If it rains you still run."

Eastern's Leisure Class. Is it better than standby?

Standby
If you wait, it's 50%.

Leisure Class
If you wait, it's free.

Eastern has a new way for you to fly. Besides First Class and Coach and Standby, Eastern has Leisure Class.

Leisure Class costs you the same as you'd pay for coach (75 regular fare). But we don't guarantee you'll get on your scheduled flight.

If you do, it's the same as Coach. But if Coach is full, you may fly First Class. Without paying anything extra. And, if the whole plane is full, you won't get on at all. And that's the good part.

Because then you get your money back. And we put you on our very next flight that has seats available, and fly you free of charge.

Now, our lawyers would get nervous if we left this out: Leisure Class does not apply when you're on official government business and your ticket is being paid for by a government agency.

Nor to some reduced fare tickets. Nor to the Air-Shuttle, nor Bermuda, Jamaica, Mexico and Bahama flights. Nor when the originally scheduled plane is grounded.

And, if you have to wait, it will be anywhere from several minutes to several hours.

But if you've got more time than money, you probably won't mind that at all.

Call Eastern or your base JAMTO office. They have all the details.

*The Wings of Man is a registered service mark of Eastern Air Lines, Inc.

The number of Leisure Class tickets per flight is limited.

130 participate in 'Run for Fun'

More than 130 men and women, boys and girls ran for fun on Stewart Field, Tuesday.

Rusty Bliss, a 17-year-old junior at Baker High School, won the featured 5-mile open event and paced a relay team of high schoolers to first place. The lanky red-head who runs the two-mile at Baker, is the son of Lt. Col. and Mrs. Don Bliss of the weapons department. Bliss' time was 31:57. The time for the four-mile relay was 21:08.

Iron man for the day, was Capt. Barry D. Gaskdek of the leadership department. He had the best time in the three-mile run as he won his age group with a 17:58 clocking. He later finished fifth in the five-mile event.

Mrs. Bernard J. Grifard, wife of Capt. Grifard, won the women's one-mile race. Her time was 8:25. Mrs. Grifard, who began running 10 months ago is a member of the run for fun program. She has 44 miles to her credit.

"I like to run with my husband," she said. He has 500 miles.

Ladies' golf

Ross bombs Simmons to become champion

Mollie Ross defeated Vera Simmons in the final match of the Fort Benning Ladies Golf Group Spring Handicap Tournament to become the 1972 champion. Sequel Wood was winner of the championship flight consolation competition.

Lee May was winner of the first flight, Mary Magner took runner-up honors and Maggie Daems won the consolation flight.

Second flight first place went to Helga Brooker, Alice Keifer won second place and Denise Gee won the consolation flight.

The nine-hole group held a one-day tournament on May 3. Annette Hoover was the winner. Kris Jacobs won runner-up honors and Sonja Gaskins won the consolation flight. Betty Fritchard won the losers tournament played May 3.

Awards were presented at a luncheon held in the Fort Benning Country Club Ballroom at the completion of play. The next event for the ladies will be a two-day

Also running in the one-mile event was Holly Grange, eleven-old daughter of Col. and Mrs. David E. Grange Jr. Col. Grange is director of the Ranger Department. Holly's time was 10:13.

Winner of the 36 to 40 year age group was Lt. Col. Frank H. Scott, chief of the Ranger Department. Scott not only won this race, but he also ran with his four sons and was a participant in the five-mile run.

The 51st OC Co was well represented at the run. Candidate Neal K. Kiewit won his age group in the three mile run in the 25 years and under category. Two relay teams from the company finished third and sixth and three candidates finished sixth, seventh, and ninth in the five-mile event.

Maj. Patrick F. Cantan from the post information office won the three-mile, 31 to 35 years age group category. The winner in the senior division was SFC Lawrence V. Eazy from the airborne department's tower committee.

Members of the winning relay team were Bliss, Bruce Boettcher, son of Col. and Mrs. Louis H. Boettcher, deputy chief of staff; Terry Butler, son of 1st Sgt. and Mrs. Joseph H. Butler, 51st OC Co.; and Chuck Hunt, son of Lt. Col. and Mrs. James Hunt, Company Tactics. The first two boys are Baker High School students, while the latter two are Spencer High School students.

Four dependents who attended Spencer also placed second in the relay event. Receiving a award for finishing in the first six spots in the five-mile event were Bliss; Sps William Mellars, 18th Replacement Co.; CW-2 William Voss, 381st Aviation, Sect.; Lt. Col. Joan Salvan, French Liaison officer; Gaskdek; and Candidate Lawrence.

Trophies and medals were awarded to the top contestants. Everyone who completed a race received a certificate of completion.

The run for fun day was the idea of Capt. Ed W. Strabel, a member of Fort Benning's Orienteers. He said the idea to hold such an event came to him when he saw an article in the "Bayonet" which noted the lack of running events at the post.

Strabel said this was one reason for organizing the run. "My other reason was to correct the orienteering championships," he said. This run will be held Sunday.

Strabel who will soon be leaving Fort Benning said he hoped that the event could become an annual affair.

Post orienteers win at Bragg Championships

The Fort Benning orienteering team captured three of the top four places at the Fort Bragg Orienteering Championships held on May 3 and 5.

Two Fort Benning orienteers, Sgt. Dale Aberle, 1971 All-Army Champ and Spi Don Kennedy, duelled each other for the top spot. On the first of competition Aberle edged out Kennedy by just 9 seconds on the rain-soaked 10,000 meter course.

The second day Aberle managed to increase his slim lead to more than a minute and a half with a combined time of 2 hours 39 minutes and 46 seconds to Don Kennedy's time of 2 hours 41 minutes and 24 seconds.

Both Benning team mates outdistanced their nearest competitor, Sps Lewis Groese of Ft. Bragg who turned in a time of 2 hours 50 minutes and 58 seconds. Injury-plagued Dennis McCullough of the Fort Benning team turned in excellent times both days and placed fourth with a total time of 2 hours 59 minutes and 15 seconds and appears well on his way to a complete recovery.

Spi Don Stanley, who had an outstanding time on the second day of competition, said the team goal was to not only win the championships but also to gain experience navigating over flat features terrain in preparation for the All Army and Interservice Orienteering Trialls coming up in June and July.

Some shorttimers are 'long' again

The Department of Defense (DOD) has announced suspension for a minimum of 30 days of a special program instituted in 1971 for the release of certain officers and enlisted men before their normal term of service expires.

The suspension is applicable to those personnel whose adjusted release dates are currently scheduled to occur on or after May 18 and prior to July 1, 1972.

The action is being taken because the strength reductions imposed by the Congress have been accomplished and retention of these members is necessary to meet current manpower requirements and to assure combat readiness.

Other early release programs will not be affected by the action. These would include the 150-day early release of Vietnam returnees, 30-day early release of other overseas returnees, 90-day early release for return to school or seasonal employment, early release for compassionate reasons, and early release due to unfitness or other qualitative reasons.

The Department of Defense estimates that approximately 30,000 personnel will be affected by the action.

A spokesman said figures on the number of officers and enlisted men to be affected, at Fort Benning will not be available until records of individuals who were due to be discharged during the period extending from May 18 to June 30 are screened. Personnel to be extended will be notified as soon as possible.

Platoon tactics instruction takes on new NCO look

Planned segregation exists in the Infantry School. The non-commissioned officers subcommittee of the platoon tactics committee, company operations department, practices segregation on a daily basis. Not one of the committee's instructors are officers. They are all non-commissioned officers.

"What better way is there to teach a soldier how to be a squad leader and a platoon sergeant than by using men who once held these positions?" Maj. Lee B. Wilson, subcommittee head asked.

"Sure an officer can read the manual and teach from the book, but there are a lot of things a soldier needs to know that just are not in that book," Wilson said.

Agreeing with Wilson is 1st. Sgt. Robert F. Baugher, a 21-year veteran.

Baugher notes that committed experience on the subcommittee, charged with teaching tactics to noncommissioned officer education system students, totals a couple of hundred years. The junior man has been in the Army four years and was a squad leader in combat.

"We teach the students how to do it," Baugher said. "We get down in the dirt with the man and do it with him until he can do it himself. I just wish I had had someone teach me some of the 'tricks of the trade' when I was coming up through the ranks like we are doing for these soldiers," he said.

The instructors in the NCO subcommittee attend a two-week lane advisor course which qualifies them to teach students in the field, especially as they follow them on field training problems. They also attend the instructor training course to become qualified in platoon instruction.

A new 10-point grading system for the students while in the field was devised by this committee, according to Wilson.

"By using an individualized test and no answer sheet for each student, the lane advisor can pay closer attention to what the man being graded is doing without worrying about filling out a piece of paper each time the student does something. That way he can become involved with the man, teach him how to do it."

"Then when there is a lull, the advisor can take his checklist out and answer the yes and no questions in a very short period of time," Wilson said.

Post observes 22nd Armed Forces Day

The 22nd Annual observance of Armed Forces Day will include activities throughout the southeastern United States conducted by major units of Fort Benning. President Richard Nixon stated in his 1972 Armed Forces Day message that it is "a special day that gives us the opportunity to pay tribute to the soldiers, sailors, airmen, marines and coast guardsmen who so ably protect our freedoms and insure our security."

As a tribute to our freedom and our support for Armed Forces programs, the 197th Inf. Bde will support Atlanta Shopping Center demonstrations with drill teams, scout dog demonstrations, combo and static displays. These demonstrations will be rotated between three shopping centers in Atlanta.

Fair Housing Law halts discrimination in VA home loans

A veteran who buys a home with Veterans Administration financial assistance must, under the new Fair Housing Law, certify he won't discriminate in his future sale or rental because of race, color, religion or national origin. A. W. Tate, Director, Atlanta VA Regional Office, said today.

This is one of the policies inaugurated in the VA and the Department of Housing and Urban Development are commemorating the event by calling attention to progress for a GI loan ward implementation of the law.

Citing another fair housing measure adopted by VA, Tate said Administrator of Veterans Affairs Donald E. Johnson noted "a builder, developer, broker or sponsor who refuses to sell an eligible veteran a new home can be barred from further participation in the GI home loan program, if it is determined refusal was based on race, color, religion or national origin.

"Further, lenders can be denied participation in the program," Johnson pointed out, "if they turn down an application for a GI loan for either new or existing housing from a credit-worthy, eligible veteran for the same discriminatory reasons."

Veterans were urged to file written complaints with VA regional offices if they believe they were denied purchase of a home with a GI loan because of discrimination.

For further information contact the VA Regional Office in Atlanta or your local veterans service organization representative.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

by King

Soft-shell crabs are in peak season now. Your family will love them sauteed in butter to which slivered, blanched almonds have been added.

Pretzels, like graham crackers, can be used for a crumb crust. In a 9-inch pie plate, mix 3/4 cup of coarse pretzel crumbs with 1/2 cup soft butter or margarine and 3 tablespoons of sugar. Press into shape and chill before filling.

Bechamel sauce, a classic addition to meat or vegetables, is named for Louis de Bechamel, an attendant to the court of Louis XIV, who often served it at royal banquets.

Peel fruits and vegetables as thinly as possible, or merely scrub them with a vegetable brush. The vitamins are usually more concentrated near the skin.

Westphalian ham is deservedly expensive, but a little goes a long way. Try very thin slices with cream cheese on thin black bread.

Former soldier has change of heart, enlists for 931st

BY NEIL DANIEL.
What does a man, young, serious and ambitious, do in today's world? One such young man found his answer last week.

PFC Delwyn C. Corbitt reported to the 12th Replacement Detachment to begin processing in the 6th Maintenance Battalion, 931st Engineer Group (CBT) as the first enlistment under the Unit of Choice Recruiting program.

Corbitt was born and grew up in Panama City, Fla. He attended Rutherford High School in Panama City, Fla. After he graduated from high school, Corbitt left home to join the army. Interested in electronics, he enlisted for three years as a communications specialist with the Army Security Agency.

His army career was brief. He applied for admission to the Officer Candidate School and was accepted. Just at this juncture though, the army found itself with a surplus of young officers and Corbitt was offered a chance to get out. Today, he regrets having made that choice.

"If I had known what it was going to be like, I never would have done it," he commented yesterday.

Still, Corbitt retained his ambition. He was determined to work his way through college, for he realized that education was a prime prerequisite in any formula for success.

Marrried to a girl from Dothan, Ala., Catherine, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Long of Dothan, Ala., Corbitt decided to go back to school. His plan was to study for a degree in electronics while working to support his new family.

He did manage for a while. Attending Florida State University, he was doing quite well, even

Post recycles waste oil; saves resources, money

The waste oil reclamation point is a prime example of recycling to save resources.

Located behind Building 388, the waste oil reclamation point collects used petroleum oil from all the motor pools on post. The collected oil will be used to supplement fuel oil No. 6 used for heating.

Fort Benning consumes more than 100,000 gallons of automotive oil each year. Of this, over 31,000 gallons was being returned to Property Disposal for sale to scrap dealers.

The move to reclaim this oil was started by Col. David Conrad, director of facilities and engineering, after seeing a study by the American Petroleum Institute of facilities engineering, after seeing a study by the American Petroleum Institute and references from the Office of Chief Engineer.

Designed by Mr. Hilton Robert, chief of mechanical engineering, the recovery system is a push-button device. Button A calls a near-by operator who records the deliverer and the amount. The second button, B, starts the pump. Button C stops the pump.

The person making the delivery needs to insert the hose of the pump into the barrel before starting the pump. After the oil is in the collection drum, the deliverer returns the hose to a holder.

All parts of the system have been recycled from some other area. The pump had formerly been used in a Sand Hill service station which is now closed. The pipe and stand were recycled from a World War II aviation oil dispensing point. Only petroleum based oils can be collected. This includes engine, transmission, and differential oils.

Major sources are the motor pools, craft shops, and maintenance areas. However, military families may contribute their used oil. The station is open from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Oil should be free of large particles before bringing it in. Dirt collected during normal use is not objectionable.

The collected oil will sit long enough to allow impurities to settle. The best oil will be skimmed off the top and mixed with fuel oil No. 6 to meet winter's heating demands.

Fuel oil No. 6 is the lowest grade of oil available but it has the highest heating value. In an average winter, Benning requires 720,000 gallons of No. 6 for heating and the demand will increase. Using waste oil will reduce the amount of No. 6 which must be purchased and taken away from the decreasing national supply of oil.

PFC Marvin Prais, from HRC, The School Brigade, pushes the A Button at the waste oil reclamation point. He had just read the simple instructions posted in red over the button box. (Photo by Phillip Reid)

Lt. Col. Ellis Atkinson, Commanding Officer of the 67th Maint. En., helps "Aboard" the 931st Engr. Gp. first enlistment under their new Unit of Choice Recruiting Program. BY KENNETH ROHMPPLE.
Martin Army Hospital has been selected to conduct the first Family Practice Residency Program for medical officers in the Army Medical Department.

The training program which begins July 1, will consist of three years of closely supervised training following completion of a medical school and will prepare the doctor for a career in the newly recognized specialty of Family Practice. This specialty will concern itself with the primary medical care for all age groups within a family. A physician engaged in Family Practice will generally provide the bulk of all health care needed by a family. He will refer to other health agencies or medical specialties only as needed.

The Family Practice Residency Program must not be confused with the recently instituted Family Ambulatory Care System (FACS) at MAB. FACS is a method of health care delivery designed to provide more efficient and more personalized outpatient medical care at MAB. The Family Practice Residency Program is designed to train physicians who will provide comprehensive medical care for all family members.

Martin Army Hospital is desirous of having Fort

Benning families, both active duty and retired, volunteer to receive their medical care in the Family Practice Residency Program. ALL FAMILIES ELIGIBLE FOR CARE AT MARTIN ARMY HOSPITAL ARE ELIGIBLE TO PARTICIPATE IN FACS.

(3) Active duty family selections will be proportional to the size of the sponsor's unit. If your family desires to participate in this program you may pick up applications at any of the following locations: Martin Army Hospital, Orthopedic Appointment Desk, Medical Surgical Clinic, MAH Information Desk, the Hospital Annex, Outpatient Clinic, Pediatric Clinic or Ophthalmology Clinic. Applications may be picked up at

The selection of families for participation in this program will, whenever possible, be on a first come - first serve basis. The following selection criteria - which must be met for reasons that will be obvious as you read the criteria - will be used and will determine whether or not the first come-first serve philosophy can be applied.

(1) Families expected to be at Fort Benning two years or more at time of selection will make up approximately 75 per cent of the selected families. The remainder of families will be those from the group expected to be at Fort Benning less than two years, or indeed less than one year.

(2) Selection of volunteers will proportionately reflect the existing percentage of enlisted, officer and retired families served at Martin Army Hospital.

BY FREEDOM FOUNDATION VALLEY FORD, MARYLAND 22181

one of these locations or at the office of the Chief, Administrative Support Branch, Department of Clinics, in Building 386. All applications will be returned to one of these locations. Additional applications will be available at Troop Medical Clinics, Dental Clinics, the Commissary, the P.O., Barber Shop and the Beauty Shop.

The first families selected will be chosen from the applications on hand as of June 1. These families will be notified and provided with additional information concerning their participation in the program before July 1. Please keep in mind that families will be gradually added throughout the remainder of 1972 and the early part of 1973. As families are added, they will be notified and provided with all necessary information for participation in the program.

If you volunteer for this program, please continue to obtain medical care in the normal way at Martin Army Hospital until you are notified that you have been selected for participation in the Family Practice Program.

Sound-off

Is everyone insane??

Two assassinations and one attempt shocked Americans three times in the past four years.

What is wrong with American society that such events are now almost commonplace? Soundoff this week talked to past personnel to learn what they thought of "the state of the nation."

"This is a very sick country," said SFC Donald Elkins of the communications department. "I think we are suffering a spiritual breakdown. There exists an 'anything goes' form of living and this is what is creating our problems."

"We have thrown off our Christian heritage which taught responsibility and respect for others. Instead of being constructive we have become destructive," he said.

Elkins pointed to the home as the root of this breakdown. "We just aren't teaching discipline in the home," he said.

He also said he did not feel that politicians were doing all they could to turn the tide of permissiveness.

Albert McGruder of special services said he thought there was too much leisure time and too much money. "Instead of sitting around idly thinking of had to do we need to put our leisure and money to constructive uses?" he said.

McGruder said he felt the mass media could better serve the public by putting a bit more emphasis on the good that is done. "We need to have more togetherness among the people and if the press would cover such events we would be much better off."

Wood, Communications Elect. Dept. said stricter laws were needed to stem the tide of unrest. "Criminals are more apt to try something when they think they have a chance to get off with little or no punishment" he said.

He too traced a great deal of the trouble to the home. "When I was a kid and said 'no' to my dad I could expect to get it," he said. "Today the parents are giving into the kids, they don't need to work for anything so therefore they don't appreciate it as much. They don't appreciate America like they used to."

Sgt. Randall R. Baker, S33rd Trans. Co., didn't think the country was all that bad off, but did note that there seemed to be a lessening of discipline in the home.

"Parents are not as strict as before, we need to 'tighten up somewhere,'" he said.

Staff Sgt. Johnnie F. Laney, communications department said he felt local law enforcement needs to be tougher and gun control putting a bit more emphasis on the good that is done. "We need to have more togetherness among the people and if the press would cover such events we would be much better off."

Knowing

(Editors note—This poem was the third prize winner in the Penn. State Schuylkill Campus poetry contest.)

When we awoke, we were surrounded by fog. The air was still, the jungle unnaturally quiet. Dripping from the trees, the early morning dew was the only sound that broke the silence. The fog, the dew, and the wet earth chilled us to the bone.

As we began to check our weapons, Groans and muffled curses replaced the silence. Like phantoms, our shadowy forms seemed to float above the red earth. Suddenly, without reason, we could feel them. Ears listened, eyes strained, breathing stopped, Neck hairs stood on end. Instinctively, we knew that they were there.

As the lieutenant told us his plan, The old sergeant watched him intently, listening. Mysteriously, he seemed to see. His tired, over experienced eyes looked puzzled; Like he was seeing something familiar but elusive, Something known but unknowable. As we walked away, I turned to look at them.

Fasting each other unsmiling, The sergeant had placed his hand on the lieutenant's shoulder. Standing there without words, they knew. Quietly, they began to smile.

Alberis, the point man, glanced furtively As he moved slowly along the trail. Overhead and from the sides the vines Grabbed at us, snagging and tangling. On the ground, the dead leaves Curled and snapped under our feet. Somewhere, ahead of us, We knew that they were waiting.

In back of the bamboo, not far away. They sat quietly, knowing that we had come. Crouching in a hole with his sergeant. The young lieutenant grinned nervously. Bending over, he whispered to the old man, "But they know that we are here," he thought, "But they don't know where. Soon . . . soon they will know."

Simultaneously, we heard the explosions And felt the pain.

We watched Alberts fly backward And the lieutenant disappear in the smoke. Screaming came from the rear: Pleas for the medic, cries of rage. The old sergeant looked back at us; Our frightened eyes were saying to him, "Please, oh please get us out of this, Sarge." "Please God, make them stop shooting." Slowly, he stood. Then he said at us, "Follow me; Follow me."

Just as suddenly as it had started, it was over. Slowly, like a cool damp blanket, The fog began to wrap around us. The sergeant stood sullenly, Leaning lazily on a tree. Looking down, he was watching two ants Fighting angrily over the cold rice. Left by the men who had ambushed us. "God damn ants," he cursed. He'd be crushed them with his rifle butt.

TRANSPO 72 features Rangers

TRANSPO 72, a massive transportation demonstration equivalent to the Paris Air Show, gets under way at Dulles International Airport in Washington, D.C., May 26.

One of the highlights of the two-hour show will be an arms exchange drill in which each day will be a Rappel and STABO Extraction Demonstration

586th Engr. diving team comes back

The 586th Engr. Co. (Plumbing Bridge) diving team returned last Monday from a successful exercise in Morrison Springs, Fla. Under the watchful eye of Sp5 Charles W. Roper, the team instructor, the men, led by 1st Lt. John J. Powers, completed a deep water training dive.

The dive was part of the realistic and practical training program typical of units within the 331st Engr. Gp. (CBT), aimed at maintaining combat readiness and the men taking part were required to perform several tasks under simulated conditions. Roper reported that the dive was "a complete success. The men performed well and the water was fine."

Roper has been diving since 1958 and was trained at the Coastal School of Diving in Oakland, Calif., while Powers, has a great deal of experience as a diver. The other members of the team are Sp5 Tommy D. McKay and Sp4 Roger R. Garner.

Since the establishment of the diving team, they have aided in the recovery of military property lost underwater.

Although civilian oriented in concept, TRANSPO 72 has allotted the U.S. Army fifteen minutes during each air show for a helicopter precision demonstration team presentation. Providing an interesting addition, the Rappel and STABO Demonstration Team will demonstrate techniques used by U.S. Army Rangers to insert or extract personnel from areas when an aircraft is unable to land.

The Rappel and STABO Demonstration Team will consist of Army Rangers Capt. Gregory A. Wheeler, SFC Troy H. Rocha, SFC Alfred J. Crowell, SSG Eugene Spencer, SSG Edward W. Lowell, and SSG Leonard F. Fletcher of the Benning Ranger Committee, and Sgt. Larry D. Floyd of the Parachute Packing Unit.

The Team will utilize a U.S. Army UH-1H Helicopter flown by CW2 David R. Bailey, A-C, CW2 Gary S. Arnold, Pilot, and Sp5 Charles O. Lee, Crew Chief, of the 19th Aviation Company located at Fort Benning. The Team will rappel from a height of 120 feet using standard nylon climbing ropes.

Rappelling techniques have been taught as an integral part of Ranger Training ever since the training program was instituted. However, in recent years special emphasis has been placed on helicopter rappelling to augment the procedure for ascending cliffs or steep slopes. In many combat situations it has become necessary to pick up personnel from locations which would not permit an aircraft to land. For this reason the STABO extraction rig was developed.

The STABO extraction rig consists of a 147' specially packed nylon rope and a harness assembly worn by the person being picked up. A helicopter can hover over a waiting individual at an altitude of approximately 125 feet and lower the nylon rope pack with a weight attached. Once the rope has been attached to the individual's harness, he is raised straight up until clear of the area. The helicopter then resumes normal flight.

In addition to the Rappel STABO Extraction Demonstration, a special narration will be delivered by a Ranger Department personnel.

Sister Joan takes religious education position at Dix

BY SUZANNE BOSTICK
Sister Joan Kist, who has directed Fort Benning's Catholic Religious Education Program for the last six years, leaves here tomorrow to take a similar position at Fort Dix, N.J.

Sister Joan, a member of the Community of the Missionary Servants of the Blessed Trinity, was the first nun to be hired on a full time basis with the Army as a civilian. She was active in youth programs, family and marriage counseling, and work with the West WAC detachment here. She also organized the Catholic Activity Program for teens, and helped to form a folk-rock group — the "God Squad" — which performs on post.

The Catholic Religious Education Program she headed includes lectures, pre-Sacramental classes, adult discussions groups, and training for both parents and children. The Fort Benning program was chosen as a model for Third Army religious education because of its success.

Sister Joan also has given annual workshops in religious education at 3rd Army installations. She was made an honorary member of the 1st Cav. Div. when it was here and the unit sponsored her last six months of graduate school.

Sister Joan holds the National Certificate for Catechetics from Catholic University in Washington, D.C. She inaugurated Vacation Bible School for children at the Catholic Religious Education Center at Fort Benning.

Bible class to be held

Registration for the 1972 Protestant Vacation Bible School will be held May 31 and June 1 and 2 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Post Religious Education Center.

The school is for children of Fort Benning families four years of age through those completing the eighth grade. Classes will be held June 12-18 and 19-21 from 8:30 to 11 a.m. at the Center.

Teachers, secretaries and persons with musical, dramatic and artistic talents are needed to augment the school's program. Prospective volunteers are asked to call Mrs. John Waldrup, director of religious education, at 545-4331 or 7432 or Mrs. R. H. Stegert at 545-3300.

The Religious Education Center is located in Bldg: 2806, Dixie Road.

Lots for tots

NCO wives hold ball

The NCO Wives' Mothers Day Ball to raise money for the Tot Town Nursery Annex was held in the Sand Hill NCO Club May 12.

Entertainment was provided by Charlie Rankin, a Kansas City comedian, and the Billy Okaye Band from Columbus.

Catholic priest to give lecture

The Rev. Raymond J. Devettere, a Catholic priest from the Archdiocese of Boston, will speak on "The Freudian Father and Christian Children" Monday evening at 7:30 in the Infantry Center Chapel Annex.

Rev. Devettere's lecture will be the final in a series sponsored by the Religious Education Commission of Fort Benning's Catholic Parish Council.

A question and answer period will follow Rev. Devettere's address, and refreshments will be served.

Rev. Devettere, who is on the faculty of Boston's St. John's Ecclesiastical Seminary and is chairman of the philosophy department of the city's Emmanuel College, has conducted numerous retreats and workshops for the Army and Air Force. He also has had many works published in philosophical, pastoral and religious journals.

"In any program I tried to initiate," she said, "I received full support. I also was impressed by the sacrifices military people are willing to make for their convictions and their church. I never had any problems getting volunteers for programs, and this was a real revelation to me."

"I was able to gain the trust and acceptance of young people here so that they were able to relate to me as a person and not in just a religious capacity," she said. "A symbol of this trust was that teenagers often would bring their parents to talk with me. Talking-out problems in the presence of another person often helped to ease the communication barrier between parents and their children."

Sister Joan also counseled a number of runaway teenagers last summer and helped reunite them with their families. She said her most vital counseling, however, has

ARMED FORCES DAY MESSAGE

It is particularly significant that as we celebrate the 22nd annual Armed Forces Week, we look in retrospect at the last year's accomplishments. For it is these facts that Fort Benning personnel have dedicated their efforts and shown professional competence to meet the challenge of the future. The Modern Volunteer Army program, for example, has proven more successful than originally anticipated and clearly demonstrates the Army's ability to convert to a volunteer status, a particularly gratified by the support Fort Benning personnel gave this significant concept.

Our ability to meet the challenges of MYA is in keeping with the Infantry's historic record of achievement. It is in keeping with the commitment we owe our nation.

As members of the Armed Forces, we pledge our steadfast loyalty to the support of freedom. The purpose of Armed Forces Day is to pay tribute to those servicemen who live this ideal and willingly serve their country in uniform.

I join a grateful nation in saluting you on this day.

First disposal classes graduate

The graduations of property disposal classes on May 5 and 12 marked another first for Fort Benning. This is the first time the class has been taught at a Third U. S. Army installation.

Purpose of the course is to relate the Defense Utilization and Disposal Program to the operation and management of a property disposal activity. A team of instructors from the Army Logistics Management Center, Ft. Lee, Va., taught the course to students from all Class I installations in Third Army, the Marine Corps Supply Center in Albany, Ga. and the Ammunition Alabama Army Depot.

Mrs. Helen Verrier of the Property Disposal Office, Fort Benning, was the distinguished graduate of the second class. She had one of the highest academic averages ever attained in the course.

197th shoots up Camp Shelby??

Soldiers from Fort Benning's only Armor unit, the 89th Armor, 197th Support Battalion, 197th Infantry Brigade, have spent the last three weeks "shooting it out" at Camp Shelby, Miss.

Utilizing the Armor ranges at Camp Shelby, members of H. Co., 69th Armor 197th Spt. Bn., have been undergoing extensive day and night live-fire training. Held periodically, this type of training enables the soldier to remain proficient in his profession as a tankier.

On their arrival the soldiers were informed of the type of living at Shelby, "old Army", which included open bay barracks, bunk inspections, and long hours of training. "At first I thought it might be rough going, but in order to train properly you have to separate yourself from everyday living and concentrate on doing the best job you can," commented PFC Jack Johns.

Beginning with the first day, the soldiers learned their commitment of a tough training schedule, receiving lectures and demonstrations on the fire tables to be used, along with classes in organized maintenance preparation and set up.

With their basic orientation completed, the soldiers advanced to the ranges, where they began the night firing portion of the training. Using tracer rounds the tankiers were able to judge and correct their firing pattern and "zero in" on targets in preparation for the high explosive range.

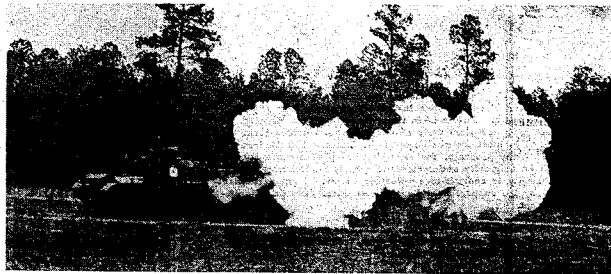

The actual firing of the 90 MM high explosive rounds took place in the second week. Using simulated targets of obsolete equipment, varying in size, the ranges were made comparable with what could be found in combat. "When I was going through ATT at the Support Battalion, older soldiers talked of how important it was for a good tank crew to be able to pin-point a target and zero in, they were right," explained PFC James Thornton. "It's not as easy as it looked."

During the firing, each tank had an observer to aid in the detection of where the rounds were landing and to advise the crew on adjustments, plus keep a mental note to who was hitting, so when night came and the men returned to the "cement tents" he would make heroes out of fired soldiers.

"This type of training, where the troops get a chance to learn about the coordination that it takes to be an effective combat tank force, is an important part of their achievement of professionalism," stated Capt. Thomas Petty, Hq. Co. commanding officer, "the men have worked hard and obtained outstanding results because of it."

Like many of the soldiers, Sp4 Charles Trimmer held the opinion that, "the three weeks were a real experience, and an essential part of soldiering," but very happy they brought along the "cook" SFC Willie B. Sanders to prepare the meals.

Also taking part in training exercise and giving support to the activity were soldiers from the 56th Mechanized Infantry of the 197th Infantry Brigade.

AUSA

BY RANDY BOGGS

The Association of the United States Army (AUSA)—dedicated to the promise that a strong mobile Army is vitally essential to our national defense.

MEMBERSHIP DRIVE REPORT

AUSA has received fine support from both the civilian and military communities as the membership drive passes the halfway point this week.

Already the USA Marksmanship Training Unit has posted 100 per cent membership. It boasts all 128 of their assigned personnel as AUSA members. They were awarded a plaque in recognition of this honor at the last AUSA Board Meeting.

Many other units on post are shooting for the 100 per cent membership goal. The School Brigade leads in total membership input with over 700. It is the outstanding efforts by the project officers and NCO's, involved in recruiting members, that is helping to make the drive a success to one. The success of the drive is important to give the chapter a strong voice in supporting the Army.

Charles Daley, chairman of the civilian membership drive, received congratulations from the AUSA National Headquarters for passing their goal of 1,500 members. Daley commended the work of the people who went out and canvassed for AUSA on a volunteer basis. "We are privileged to help the Army in any way we can," he said, "and I think AUSA is one of the best ways a civilian can show his support for the Army, and of course for Fort Benning."

AUSA EVENTS

General Cocklin, director of Public Affairs, National Headquarters, AUSA, was on hand at the May 10th Board Meeting, to answer questions about activities on the national level.

All AUSA members are invited to attend the general membership meeting to be held May 23 at the Supper Club, Fort Benning Officers Open Mess.

The meeting will be highlighted with a talk by Gen. (Ret.) Lyman L. Lemnitzer, former Chairman of the Joint Chief of Staff and Supreme Allied Commander in Europe. He served on active duty for 49 years before retiring in 1969.

Tickets for the event can be obtained on post at the Information Office, room 694, Infantry Hall, or downtown at either the Phenix City or Columbus Chamber of Commerce.

DID YOU KNOW?

AUSA has started a Group Long-Term disability Insurance Program for its members. Its purpose is to provide a definite income to assist with family expenses when the wage earner is totally disabled or unable to work.

52nd OC's buy POW bracelets

Last week, 52nd OC Co. 5th Bn. TSB purchased "Prisoner of War" bracelets to express their support to over 1,500 Americans who are either prisoners of war or missing in action in Southeast Asia.

The bracelets are dedicated to the P.O.W.'s and are inscribed with the name and date captured of an American P.O.W. The men of 52nd Co. are determined not to remove the bracelets until the day that the Red Cross is allowed into Hanoi.

P.O.W. bracelets are distributed by Voices in Vital America, a nonprofit, non-political national student organization dedicated to progress and freedom, which they believe can only be achieved and maintained by rational and responsible action.

MTU instructs police

The Game and Fish Division of the Georgia State Department of natural resources has announced minimum keeper size limits for certain species of fish caught in waters within the state.

The only regulation affecting the local area is the minimum size for bass.

The minimum size for largemouth bass taken throughout the state is 12-inches. There is also a 12-inch limit on Flint River smallmouth bass caught in the Flint and its tributaries.

There is no minimum limit for bream or catfish. Small fish of these species may be returned to the water at the discretion of the fisherman. Small bream will often die after returned to the water but catfish have a good chance for survival. Any fish an angler intends to return to the water should be handled gently. Before handling the fish wet your hands. Carefully remove the hook and place the fish back into the water. Some people literally throw them back. This reduces their chances for survival.

Bass and catfish can easily be immobilized while the book is being removed by applying pressure at certain points. To make a bass hold still place your thumb in its mouth then wrap the first finger of the same hand around the lower jaw of the fish. Apply pressure and the fish will not move. Grasp a catfish just forward of the tail fin. Wrap your entire thumb and first finger around the body of the fish and squeeze. According to biologist this paralyzes nerves that must function to allow the fish to move. Removal of hooks from any fish of these types will prevent a lot of fin scratches and cuts and cause less damage to the fish. The other minimum limits pertain to trout.

There are very few, if any, trout in this part of the state. The trout streams are all found in the mountainous area in the northwestern part of the state. This area where the headwaters of the Chattahoochee River are located are really a sportsman's paradise. Hunting is excellent and is just about the only area in the state where black bears can be found. For fishermen there are countless streams and several large impoundments.

Georgia has more than 700 miles of streams with trout. This is a lot of distances but there are also many anglers who indulge in the sport. According to figures furnished by the Game and Fish Division there are nearly 400,000 fishermen who fish in the state for trout. If they all decided to go fishing on the same day there would be more than 550 fishermen for every mile of waterway.

Trout thrive best in clear, fast running streams. Efforts to produce them in any other type environment have always fallen short of expectations. This part of the state is just too flat and the streams are too sluggish to provide proper habitat. There are also many pollution factors which isn't so great in North Georgia which has a much smaller population per square mile.

Just about all of the streams in the Georgia trout area are intensively managed. The state has developed a very effective stocking program and open season, creel and size limits are established for each individual stream and in some cases these factors will vary in different parts of a stream. All regulations are based on the conditions of the stream which may be evaluated several times a year.

The trout seasons run through the summer months. Keeper size varies from 10 inches to 22 inches with most of the streams having a keeper size of 12-inches. Waters Creek, located in the Chatstate Wildlife Management Area has the 22-inch minimum size limit. Actually it's being operated as a trophy trout stream. Any trout of 22-inches or more is worth the price of mounting. There are fish of this size in the stream. Several were taken recently on the opening day.

Anyone intending to fish for trout needs a trout stamp. These cost $2.25. They are available at the Rod and Gun Club. The club has information concerning opening seasons and facilities available in the areas adjacent to these streams.

The mountains of North Georgia are beautiful all year long. The summer weather is ideal—cool at night and warm during the day. Seems like a trip would be a very enjoyable, inexpensive vacation for a family that has a camper or if you don't own a camper, rent one of the camper-trailers from Post Special Services.

Maj. Jon Stillman (L) and Maj. Ronald Formulak maneuver between obstacles in the run, dodge and jump competition during the semi-annual Army Physical

Majors score 500 in 197th PT test

In the 197th Inf. Bde. 4 p.m. signals the start of daily physical training activities conducted as an integral part of the unit's schedule.

While the activities vary in nature, including running, softball, volleyball and strengthening exercises, each soldier and officer is ultimately expected to prove the value of this daily activity by his performance on the Army Physical Fitness Test (APFT).

Officers in the brigade participate in the test semi-annually and use 400 points as their personal minimum score (the DA standard is 300) in order to attain a better-than-average score (although 300 is acceptable).

At the most recent conduct of the test the worth of this theory was proven, as each battalion and separate unit in the brigade surpassed 400 points as an average for officers taking the test.

Maj. Ronald Formulak, S4 for the brigade and Maj. Jon Stillman, executive officer of the 1st Bn, 28th Inf., attained maximum scores of 500 points on the test. For Formulak, the perfect score was his second in success-sion.

Both officers attribute their perfection to the daily physical training program. Maj. Stillman remarked that he always tries "to attain the highest possible score without being overconfident." He added that, "Being in charge of the battalion's physical fitness program is an impetus for setting the example."

Maj. Formulak believes that "constant practice on all aspects of the physical training test" is the key to attaining perfection.

"$8,000 helped."

Sergeant Roy Smith was going for more than the bonus when he reenlisted.

"The $8,000 helped. But part of my reason for staying in the Army is I can get the rest of my college credits for a degree. I've got 2 years in already.

"I enjoy the job I'm doing now as a drill sergeant. But I'd also like to try military intelligence. And eventually get to go to OCS.

"It's all there. It's completely up to me and my qualifications for it."

Sergeant Smith views the Army as one big opportunity for a guy who wants to get ahead.

There are job and educational opportunities. In advanced electronics. Cryptography. Foreign languages. Data processing. Communications. Traffic analysis. And lots more.

And travel opportunities. In Europe. Korea. Hawaii. Alaska. Panama. And the time to enjoy it. To live it. In a way no tourist ever could.

And the opportunity to save money on all the everyday things.

Like free housing. Free dental and medical care. Commissary and post exchange privileges. Low-cost life insurance. Plus one of the best retirement plans offered by any employer. Anywhere.

It's all here. It's up to you. Your Army Career Counselor has a whole book of job, duty station and training opportunities just waiting for you. He'll give you lots of reasons for staying in.

Sergeant Smith has good reasons for staying in.

Why are you staying in?

Pioneers compose rifle drill team

The 1st Bn., (Pioneers), 29th Inf., 197th Inf. Ede. has added another feather to its cap of Fort Benning image builders with the creation of the Pioneer Drill Team, a precision marching unit.

Composed strictly of qualified volunteers from the battalion, the team performs a full repertoire of marching and rifle maneuvers for military and public audiences.

The 18-man unit, led by 2nd Lt. Howard Lavey and SFC Leslie Dockery staged its most recent demonstration for approximately 800 boy scouts at a camporee in Bainbridge, Ga. at the invitation of the Regional Boy Scout Council.

The Pioneer Drill Team complements the 1-324th 51st Inf. Pil. (Scout Dog), Honor Guard and Pioneer Wagon as keepers of Fort Benning's positive public image.

Each is called on to appear before military and public functions to demonstrate particular skills.

The Honor Guard has long been a prestigious addition to official ceremonies on and off the post while the Scout Dog Team has amused and amazed military and civilian audiences throughout the Southeastern United States with its jumping, running and maneuvering scout dogs, trained at Fort Benning.

The battalion's Pioneer Wagon, a 1909 Cavalry Escort on loan from the Infantry Museum, accompanies all official battalion activities, on and off post, and has appeared in Greenville, S. C. and Savannah, Ga. for displays.

The Pioneer Drill Team spent this week of May 15-19 in Atlanta displaying its skills in commemoration of Armed Forces Day.

Army marksmen win team laurels

U. S. Army handgunners banded together to win the team laurels in the Fiesta of Five Flags Pistol Tournament Sunday at Pensacola, Fla., but lost the individual championship.

SFC Roger Willis, a relative new shooter with the U. S. Army Marksmanship Training Unit, started off strong in the Three-Gun series when he took the 22 Caliber Pistol sub-aggregate with his commanding 899-80X and the Center Fire Pistol on the adjoining target which cost him 40 points which would have given him 2,651.

Coming through with the best individual aggregate, former National Champion, Marine Warrant Officer Francis Higginson of Quantico, Virginia, posted a combined score of 2,641.31X, to take the Grand Championship. Top Army shooter, SFC Bonnie Harmon was down six points for third overall.

In the team competition, the U. S. Army "Blue" team led by Willis combined their talents for the first place honors with a winning aggregate of 3,504-142X. They won three of the four team events scheduled.

Wyoming cadets run, run, run

From Fort Benning to Laramie, Wyo. and back was the equivalent distance run by members of the Army ROTC at the University of Wyoming this year.

Under a program similar to the Infantry Center's "Run For Your Life" sixteen members of the corps of cadets and three of the ROTC staff members participated in the voluntary running program.

The running in Laramie was somewhat different than found in Georgia. The biggest difference was the 7,200 feet elevation and the strong winds blowing off of the nearby mountains. Most of the running had to be done within local gyms because of the cold and snow conditions between October and April.

Three staff members running were all Infantry officers assigned to the ROTC unit. Majors Ralph E. Newman, David D. Paulsen and Clayton A. Pratt led the way for the cadets.

It is expected that this program will continue at Wyoming with an increase in the Army ROTC program.

YAB plans Field Day

The Youth Activities Branch (YAB) of the Special Services Division will hold a Youth Day at the Youth Center May 21 to publicize the various programs planned for the coming Summer season.

Activities which will begin at 1 p.m. will include an inter-team swim meet featuring members of the Barracuda Swim Team, Judo and gymnastic demonstrations and a T-Ball Little League ball game.

Girl Scouts will display camping equipment and Boy Scouts have planned sack races and other activities. A teenager dance combo will play until the close of activities at 5 p.m.

Booths for each program planned for the Summer will be set up in the Youth Center area. These booths will be manned by individuals who will provide information concerning the activity and accept registrations.

Medical Bn. bowler wins city championship easily

Dick Mulliniks, a 177 average bowler assigned to the 34th Medical Battalion, won the Columbus Bowling Association city championship by a comfortable margin in the annual tournament completed last Sunday.

Mulliniks turned in a scratch total of 1,831 pins early in the tournament and no one was able to threaten his leadership throughout the matches. Ruben Bolen posted a total of 1,704 pins to take the runner up position.

He not only won the scratch-ball events, which is emblematic of the city championship. He won the singles title and the handicap-all-events title with his average of 201 pins per game.

Mulliniks posted a 1,957 score for the handicap-all-events title and collected 702 pins to win the singles event. He posted a 558 score for his doubles efforts and 684 pins in his singles games for his 1,813 scratch total.

This was the first time all three titles were taken since Bobby Mognis accomplished the feat back in 1966.

Mulliniks succeeds Jim Cantrell as city champion. Cantrell wasn't able to get it going and finished the tournament with a 1,750 pin total.

In other events Damon Campbell and Jim Watkins took the doubles championship with 1,228 pins and Kink Dilleshaw, Sam Adams, Rex Raines, Bernie Fussell and Jim Watts won the team championship with a total pin fall of 3,662.

Trophies and awards will be presented during the annual meeting of the Columbus Bowling Association meeting to be held at the Gas Light Company Auditorium this Sunday.

Orienteering introduced to students

Orienteering is rapidly becoming an integral part of military training. To this end, Capt. Jack Dawson, company commander, 4th Co., 4th Sd. Bn. TSB set up an orienteering course which is to be used by the Airborne students for adventure training during zero week. The course is used to increase the student's ability to read a map and to increase his endurance for running long distances. The course is 2.6 miles in length with seven control points. The course is located in the 14th Co. area and is close at hand to all the battalions in the brigade.

Hunt Club to note Armed Forces Day tomorrow at 9 a.m.

Armed Forces Day 1972 will be celebrated tomorrow, May 20, at Fort Benning with the Hunt Club's Spring Horse Show. The show will be held on French Field, at Running Ave. off 1st Division Road, beginning at 9 a.m.

At 3 p.m., the drawing for the door prizes in connection with the fund-raising campaign for the Tot Town Nursery Annex will be held on French Field. The drawing will be conducted during an intermission in the Horse Show.

Holders of award-winning tickets need not be present for the drawing ceremony. Winners may pick up their prizes at the Community Activities Association Office on the second floor of Building 89, Vibbert Avenue, on Monday, May 22.

A list of all winners will be published in the USAIC Daily Bulletin. The site for the event, which is open to the public, had been previously announced as York Field.

Door prizes to be awarded at the drawing include a 1972 Chevrolet Monte Carlo, a 14-foot Monark Mark I fishing boat with motor, a Harley-Davidson trail bike, two 20-gauge Winchester Model 1400 automatic rifles, two portable color television sets, and three stereo systems.

The Horse Show, which is being sponsored by the Hunt Club, will begin at 9 a.m. Ribbons will be offered in 19 different classes, for 1st through 8th place. A person may enter as many events as he wishes.

In case of inclement weather, the show will be held on Sunday, May 21. This will be determined by the Show Chairman. The public is invited to attend the Horse Show, although only military personnel, their dependents, and Fort Benning civilian employees are eligible for prizes in the drawing.

Traffic accidents could kill your Memorial Day

The Grim Reaper will be stalking the highways this Memorial Day weekend looking for more victims for his bloody scythe.

While military personnel and their families enjoy the first three-day weekend of the summer the risk factor involved in traveling will be greatly increased. Each year, 55,000 people die on the American highways and thousands of others are injured and crippled needlessly.

This month alone, five people from Fort Benning have died in automobile accidents. On May 2, Sgt. Benjie Bumgarner struck a road barrier with his motorcycle and died of internal injuries. A dependent child died after a hit-and-run accident May 3. Sp4 Howard Burks died in Tennessee on May 11. May 16, Sp4 Michael Provan lost control of his car on 1st Division Road and flipped three times. Pvt. Willie Simmons died early Saturday, May 20, as the car he was riding in went out of control on a curve.

The Post Safety Office has several recommendations for people traveling this Memorial Day weekend. By not speeding, by not driving recklessly, by obeying the rules of the road, and by yielding the right of way when in doubt, the Safety Office estimates 65 per cent of traffic accidents can be avoided.

Many drivers invite danger when they pass on blind curves, when they drink and drive, when they follow too closely, or when they outride their reflexes and road conditions.

In any case, the harm of accidents can be reduced by wearing seat belts.

Have a safe Memorial Day weekend.

Benning planning July 4 Carnival

Fort Benning is planning a Fourth of July Carnival for this year, with all proceeds going to a benefit Community Activities.

This year's Carnival will feature a parade with every major unit on Post represented, as well as a number of door prizes. Activities will be held on Saturday, July 1 with York Field and Infantry Hall as the main locations.

Aviation Command will hold a skydiving exhibition, and rides on various motor vehicles and the Airborne Towers will be offered. A Battle of the Bands, talent show, and beauty contest will be held in the evening, along with a fireworks display to top the Carnival off.

Door prizes will include a 1972 Buick Riviera, a 1972 Corvette, a trip to Nassau for two (or equivalent cash), a Panasonic color portable TV set and AM-FM radio, a Bell and Howell cassette player, and a Crag reel-to-reel tape recorder. Savings bonds or cash will be awarded as prizes for the Battle of the Bands and beauty contest.

All profits from the Carnival will go to the Community Activities Association, which supports the Youth Activities Council, Army Community Services, the Red Cross Nursery Fund, nursery care for children of volunteer workers, the School Dental Health Program, and the "Run For Your Life" Program. Tickets went on sale Tuesday, May 23 at a cost of 50 cents each.

Memorial ceremonies

A Memorial Day Ceremony will be held at 10:30 a.m. on May 28, at the Fort Benning Cemetery.

This event will be followed by a flag pole ceremony in front of Infantry Hall at 11:45 a.m. The public is invited to this event. A benediction will be given at 12:00 p.m.

Maj. Gen. (ret.) Robert F. Worden, USAF, will be the guest speaker at the graveside ceremonies. Gen. Worden will place a wreath on the tomb of the unknown soldier. All graves will be decorated with miniature U. S. flags. Tapes played by a bugler and a benediction will conclude the ceremonies.

The flagpole event will include a 21-gun salute and raising the flag to full staff. A benediction will be given at 12:00 p.m.

If it rains the ceremonies will be cancelled. However, the 21-gun salute will still be conducted and the flag raised to full staff.

All 12 tons of it M-3 tank is a real 'honey' of a mascot for 197th unit

By KERRY COX
Soldiers from the 197th Infantry Brigade, never claimed they were great collectors, but they held the title to the largest bundle of "honey" at Fort Benning, and possibly the world, weighing more than 12 tons, standing 14 by 7 feet tall.

Dubbed by the British in 1941 as "honey," the bundle is actually an American M-3 Stuart tank used in World War II and now a member of the 66th Armor and "mascot" of the Support Battalion.

Still operable, she has been retired from active military service, and now

Thin chunky peanut butter with honey and use as a topping for chocolate or coffee ice cream.

Chill a can of condensed beef consommé about 4 hours. Then quickly dice the jelled consommé with a sharp knife. Alternate layers of consommé and sour cream in parfait glasses topped with chopped dices. A cool delight!

Knights serving Alfonso XI in 14th-century Spain were banished from his court for a month if caught with garlic on their breath.

When wrapping poultry or chops in foil for the freezer, pad any sharp joints with a piece of crumpled foil.

An egg with a dull finish is usually fresher than one that is somewhat shiny.

spends her time performing such duties as, the official greeter for the battalion, acting as overseer for change of command ceremonies, serving as a point of interest for visiting Boy Scouts and giving "Santa" a ride to the Annual Children's Christmas party, along with posing for numerous photographs as she stands guard at battalion headquarters day and night.

The start of her career got under way in the 1960's when she became the first American light tank brought to Egypt during World War II, though she was only used as a trainee.

After undergoing improvements, she saw desert action with the British forces under the Lease-Lend program, against the Germans at Sidl Hozag, Libya in November of 1941 as part of operation Crusade. She performed so well that the British nicknamed her "honey" which she has retained during her famous career.

In 1942, after more improvements for speed, she was reclassified as the M-5 Stuart and entered combat at Casablanca during the Allied invasion of North Africa. Additional duties included reconnaissance in France and Italy with the last of her fighting done at Normandy.

Until the mid-sixties she was a resident of Aniston Army Depot, Aniston, Ala., when members of the 4th Battalion, 688th Central Postal Directory (now part of the 197th Spt. Bn., 197th Inf. Bde.) discovered her existence and brought her back to Fort Benning to be restored and designated as their "mascot."

Since then, she has seen action as the main feature in Change of Command

545-KASH answers pay woes

Pay problems? Fort Benning's finance division is adding new services to help ease one of the main remedies of the soldier — his pay.

A telephone number whereby a soldier can call in his pay inquiries and extended hours are two of the major innovations, according to Capt. Robert A. Young, chief of the pay and examination branch.

The telephone number for pay inquiries is 545-KASH. Students, with the exception of advanced course students who use the KASH number, should dial 545-4170.

For Fort Benning personnel who have a pay problem but can't get to the pay office during duty hours, the finance office is open to handle all pay problems except in and out processing and travel on Wednesdays from 6-8 p.m.

Student pay is now handled in buildings 83 (in and out processing) and 85.

For permanent party personnel and advanced course students, the pay system is once again consolidated and is now handled by a customer service team.

Records for everyone are now alphabetized instead of being divided up by units, according to Young.

Live fire area picked

Fort Benning officials have announced that a portion of the post training area bounded on the west by 10th Armored Division Road, on the north by Mason Road, on the east by Moore Road and on the south by Buena Vista Road, has been designated a live fire training area.

When firing is being conducted, 10th Armored Division Road will be closed from Buena Vista Road to Mason Road.

UNZIPPED MAIL IS TROUBLE

Whenever an unzipped letter goes, trouble follows. Use a strapping operation — at your local Post Office alone. Then extra steps along the way. Don't hold up mail service. Use ZIP.

Memorial Day

The War for Independence . . . the Civil War . . . World War I & II . . . Korea . . . Vietnam . . . so many lives have been lost in the service of our country. As we honor those dead today, many of us may feel disgraced at the world's failure to achieve a lasting peace. But to cease striving for that peace would be the greatest dishonor we could bring to the memory of our dead. Let us rather "take increased devotion to that cause for which they gave the last full measure of devotion . . . that government of the people, by the people, for the people, shall not perish from the earth."

Some unloaded weapons produce injuries, deaths

People kill, not guns. This is the by-word of the American Rifle Association in its fight against restrictive gun control laws. People kill, not guns is also applicable at Fort Benning. Only here, the statement should be expanded to foolish and careless people kill and maim, not weapons. Last year there were 14 reported accidents involving fire arms and ammunition at Fort Benning. One was a fatality. So far this year there have been four accidents involving post personnel. One was a fatality. Last year the fatality occurred when an individual was demonstrating that his weapon was empty. It wasn't. This year an individual was playing Russian roulette with a revolver. He lost. Death is a fearsome even more so. Most soldiers survive their carelessness with weapons and ammunition; but not without paying a price. The cost may be an eye, a few fingers, a smashed foot, a perforated gut. Why the accidents? Because there are foolish soldiers, because there are careless soldiers. It is an act of foolishness to add extra powder to a blank to increase the charge. It is foolish to tamper with grenade and artillery simulators. Yet just such acts cause accidents on the Fort Benning post yearly. It is careless to carry loaded weapons, to dismount vehicles with loaded weapons and it is both foolish and careless to point a weapon at a "buddy." Yet again, all these acts were the cause of someone being wounded or injured during the past year. Who will be the next patient at Martin Army Hospital because he wanted to check the inner workings of a simulator, or because he failed to clear his weapon after use. Will it be you? What about your children. What kind of safety habits are they being taught? Think about it. And especially think about it next time there is a weapon in your hand.

CG breaks ground for new Fort Benning Mall

Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott, Fort Benning commander, turned the first shovel of dirt Monday afternoon during ground-breaking ceremonies for the Fort Benning Mall and said the new facility "is dedicated to the welfare of the people of Fort Benning." Gen. Talbott was assisted in the ceremony by Col. James P. O'Callaghan Jr., Third U.S. Army Engineer; Col. H. L. Strohacker, Savannah District Engineer, and Murray DeMoss, president of Pearce, DeMoss, and King, contractors for the mall. The Mall will include a commissary, post bookstore, nursery, bowling alley and service station. Pearce, DeMoss and King, of Decatur, Ala., were low bidders for the facility, citing a figure of $5,286,719. This includes the use of terrazzo floor in the commissary and I.D. check room in lieu of vinyl asbestos tile. Still to be let is a contract for a pylon and sign to cost approximately $12,300. The new complex will cover approximately 205,000 square feet, with exterior covered walks and smaller facilities housed separately. It will be built of masonry and steel frame construction. Other work to be done will include plumbing, electrical, central heating and air conditioning, along with necessary site development, paving, grading and installation of exterior utilities. Work is scheduled for completion within 486 calendar days. The new Mall is located on Marne Road near Sante Fe Road in the vicinity of the leg of the Lindsay Creek Bypass now under construction. Project manager for the initial development and planning stages of the Mall was Lt. Col. Gerald F. Wilson, who is currently assigned to Vietnam. Gen. Talbott highly praised Col. Wilson for his "missionary" work on the project, and said "we all owe him a great debt." The general also expressed appreciation to Lt. Gen. Albert O. Connor, Third Army commander, and others for their assistance in getting the Mall started. As a result of the modernization and concentration of facilities a way from main post, some of the post traffic problems will be solved. Col. Conard, representing Gen. Conner at the ceremony, called construction of the Mall a "milestone" and said it will be one of the finest and largest in the country. Col. Strohacker, in brief remarks, pointed out that financing of the Mall is unique. "Not a cent of appropriated funds is being used," he said. DeMoss also spoke briefly, stating that the Mall is "indicative of a progressive command." Captain (Col.) Albert F. Ledebuhr gave the invocation during the ceremony and music was provided by the 283rd Army Band.

Horse show sponsored by 197th Inf. Bde. unit

By WILLIAM BALA Equestrian enthusiasts participated in the Armed Forces Day activities at a Horse Show held at French Field on May 20. The sponsoring unit for the Horse show was 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry, 197th Infantry Brigade. The Horse Show started its activities at 9 a.m. with all ages admitted to the various classes. In each class ribbons were given to the first through fifth place winners. There was a total of 19 classes in which the participants were able to enter if they met the entrance requirements. The requirements consisted of an age limit and an entrance fee of two dollars. The various classes ranged from equitation, with many varieties, to Laundry Racing. The sponsoring unit, commanded by Lt. Col. Robert Faulkender, provided the man power needed to replace the fallen burdies. The unit also set the obstacles on the field in order that the jumpers would have a variety of jumps to make. The 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry also contacted the Baker High School Reserve Officer Training Corps (ROTC) to provide a Color Guard for the activities. The Color Guard was representing an Explorer Scout Post. Horses for the activities were provided by the Fort Benning Horse Stables if the participants did not own a horse.

Willie Johnson, all from C Co., 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry, 197th Infantry Brigade, set up a jump hurdle for the Armed Forces Day Horse Show held at French Field on May 20. The 1-29th Infantry sponsored the Horse Show and furnished the men to help with the required work. (Photo by William Bala)

Sound-off

What about gun laws??

"People kill people with guns but it takes a person to make a gun work." That seems to be the common reaction of the sound-off column question - "What do you think of current weapons legislation?"

Kirkman, custodian of the rifle and pistol club, said the legislation is currently on the books to do what needs to be done. "More legislation will not help. What we need to do is enforce the legislation we have on the books."

"If you go to the extreme advocated by some and do away with all handguns, the only person who is hurting is the honest man as he is the only one who would comply with this legislation."

"The nut who is bent on killing someone is going to come up with a weapon one way or another, be it a gun, bow and arrow, or lead pipe," he said.

Sgt Fred D. Arnold, 189th MP Co., said he felt handguns were too accessible. "You can buy a cheap handgun almost anywhere, or have one made. I'm not sure how Europe and England do it, but they must have some pretty restrictive handgun legislation because you don't hear of them having all this trouble," he said.

Mainly, Arnold said he felt those buying guns should be checked more thoroughly. "Other than that I haven't given it much thought," he said.

"What we need to do is enforce what we have on the books," said MSgt. Calvin A. Morse, 189th MP Co. "And if we pass more laws, then we ought to do away with laws that are no longer applicable," he said.

Morse also agreed that a closer scrutiny should be made of persons purchasing band guns.

Lysergic Acid Diethylamide does not go in your car battery.

PRD David C. Greenwald

PFC David C. Greenwald, 189th MP Co., said he thought it would be good if all handguns could be done away with, with the exception of those used for sport or target practice.

Before you leave, read this

Monday has been proclaimed Memorial Day, a holiday in which we memorialize the members of our Armed Forces who gave their lives in the defense of this country. For many of us living today it will be a day of tragedy for we will explore from the nation's number 3 killer, traffic accidents. Annihilated by the "Wheels of Tragedy" which keep rolling day and night and usually accelerate during holiday periods.

The tremendous tragedy caused by traffic accidents could be eliminated by the combined efforts of the 100 million or so motorists licensed to operate motor vehicles throughout the country. But instead of getting better, the continuous slaughter, or to put it more bluntly, murder and suicide on our streets and highways, grows worse with each passing year. To help you visualize the seriousness of the matter, during 1971, two million living, breathing, and laughing human beings were seriously injured, and over fifty thousand others were killed in traffic accidents. An equivalent death toll at sea would require the sinking of twenty one giant ocean liners with all hands aboard. In the air, it would require about 500 jet airliners or crashes about every month or so every week. This appears to be a hopeless problem, but it really isn't when properly analyzed. A conservative estimate fixes the cause of at least 85 per cent of all traffic accidents on driver errors - mistakes drivers themselves could avoid by not speeding, by not driving recklessly, by obeying the rules of the road, and by yielding the right of way, even when in doubt.

Perhaps the above statistics are not getting it into first base in jarring you into realizing the appalling risks in highway travel. It is most difficult to translate dry statistics, such as these, into a reality of the blood and agony and the savage mutilation caused by vehicle accidents. To give a true picture of the whole horrible scene of the highway traffic toll would require motion pictures and sound effects. These would be needed to adequately depict the flailing, pointless efforts of the injured to stand up; the queer grunting noises; the steady panting, groaning of a human being with pain creeping up on him as the shock wears off. The picture would portray the slack expression on the face of a man dragged with shock, staring at the Zephyr in his broken leg; the efforts of a child's body after his bones are crushed inward; a realistic portrait of a hysterical woman with her screaming mouth opening a hole in the blood that fills her eyes and runs off her chin. Some of the minor details of these standard, everyday, every hour, sequels would include the raw ends of bodies protruding through flesh in compound fractures; and the dark red, oozing surface where clothes and skin have been flayed off. The role players in this ugly picture for the most part are motorists with a mere pretension for going places in a hurry, and taking a chance or two along the way. If ghosts of the accident victims could be put to a useful purpose, every bad stretch of road and a lot of the good ones, would greet the oncoming motorists with groans and screams and the spectacle of a dozen or so corpses of all sizes, sexes and ages, lying horribly still on the bloody ground.

Collision, turnover, or sideswipe, each type of accident produces either a shattering dead stop or a crashing change of direction and sends the occupant continuing in the previous direction and at the original speed, every surface and angle of the car's interior immediately becomes a hattering, tearing, projectile aimed squarely at him. Inescapable, unless he was at least wise enough to prevent minimizing injuries through the use of a seat-belt. Some authorities have said that the effects on the occupants of a colliding vehicle is like going over Niagara Falls in a barrel full of iron spikes.

A highway patrolman described an accident in which two vehicles hit head-on in a swirling, grinding smash that sent them crashing into three other cars. Seven were killed on the spot, two died on the way to the hospital, and two more died later. The patrolman remembered the scene far more vividly than he wanted to - the quick way the doctor turned away from a dead man to check a woman with a broken back, the three bodies from one car so soaked with oil that they looked inhuman; a man walking around and babbling to himself, oblivious of the dead and dying, even oblivious of the dagger-like river of steel that stuck out of his blood streaming wrist; a pretty girl with her forebeard laid open, lying hopelessly to crawl out of a ditch in spite of her smashed hip. A first class massacre of that sort is only a question of scale and numbers - eleven corpses are no more dead than one. Each shattered man, woman, or child who went to his grave the more than fifty thousand chucked up last year had to die a personal death.

It's hard to find a surviving accident victim who can bear to talk. After coming to, the groaning, searing pain throughout his body, followed by learning that he has both collar bones smashed, both shoulder blades splintered, his right arm broken in three places and three ribs crushed, with every chance of serious internal ruptures. But the pain can't distract him, as the shock wears off, from realizing that he is probably on his way out. He can't forget this, not even when they shift him from the ground to the stretcher and his broken ribs bite into his lungs and the sharp ends of his collar bones slide over to stab into each side of his screaming throat. When he lies stopped screaming, it all comes back - he is dying and he hates himself for it. That isn't fiction either. This is just some of you reading this article may feel, for you may be one of the many who will die this year in traffic accidents. If you think this is exaggeration, last fiscal year nineteen soldiers and two civilian employees of Fort Benning were killed in traffic accidents. Twenty-six soldiers died the year before. Sixteen soldiers have died so far in this fiscal year. This sounds like small numbers, but when they involve the lives of human beings they become astronomical.

Everytime you pass on a blind curve, everytime you hit it up on a slippery road, everytime you step on it harder than your reflexes will safely take, every time you drive with your reactions slowed down by a drink or two, everytime you follow the man ahead too closely, you are gambling a few seconds against blood and agony and sudden death.

Take a look at yourself as the man in the white jacket shakes his head over you, tells the boys with the stretcher not to bother and turns away to somebody who isn't dead yet. After visualizing this, buckle up your seat belt and take it easy. Drive Defensively - always exercising the three "C's" of a Defensive Driver - Concentration, Control, and Courtesy. When you drive, concentrate on the job of driving your vehicle safely. Control that which you can control, yourself and your vehicle. Exercise courtesy, be willing to give and take, analyze situations, foresee what is going to take place, and keep in the clear, allowing the other fellow to move on. These actions give you a good chance of having a safe and happy Memorial Day weekend and being available for duty on Tuesday, May 30, 1972. Let your motto be "Drive to Live and let others live as well."

DA team inspects 197th dining hall

A three-man team from Department of the Army (DA) evaluated the 197th Infantry Brigade's headquarters dining facility May 17 as part of the Army-wide competition for the Philip A. Connelly Award for excellence in Army Food Service.

The 197th dining facility, competing in the category for those serving 100 or fewer, is the first unit from Fort Benning to be considered for the fourth annual award. Representing the Third Army area in the contest, the facility was selected from the top dining facilities at Fort Benning to qualify it for consideration as the best in the Third Army area.

Two other dining facilities in the Army are competing against the 197th for first prize in the "200 and under category." The Third Army representative for dining facilities serving more than 200 in Battery B, 4-8th Arty., XVIII Airborne Corps, Ft. Bragg, N.C.

Their evaluation emphasized such operational characteristics as sanitation, preparation and cooking of food, storage of rations, displaying proper health certificates, attitude and appearance of dining facility personnel, administration and improvements in the dining facility and reaction of troops to the food served.

Although limited in their post-evaluation comments because the competition is continuing, members of the evaluation team indicated a favorable impression of the dining facility operation during the day's three meals.

Beginning with the breakfast meal the evaluation team scrutinized each aspect of the dining facility operation during the day's three meals.

Each dining facility reaching this stage of the competition will receive a plaque.

Wives show they know how to sew at show

From patchwork skirts to beachwear, the ladies of the Combat Development Command Infantry Agency and the Non-resident Instruction-ROTCAD Department proved recently that professional dressmakers aren't the only ones talented with needle and thread.

In a "Sew It Yourself" fashion show at the Supper Club, the ladies displayed a wide array of up-to-date fashions and sportswear and casual dress as well as a large variety of fabric materials and colors.

The clothes ranged from hot pants to formal evening gowns. Those attending the show seemed impressed by the work of the designers, and "oh's" and "ah's" were heard throughout the Club as the models strolled along red-carpeted runway.

The hit of the show was a formal gown and coat modeled by Mrs. Paul Schui, wife of the German liaison officer at Fort Benning. Mrs. Schui's gown was yellow with a delicate hand-beaded design around the neckline and hem of the skirt. Her coat was made of blue trevita lined with white stain and accented by rhinestone and pearl buttons.

Mrs. James P. Hughes, who has had experience on television and radio programs, commented the show.

Wade first graduate of weapons course

Staff Sgt. Richard L. Wade is the Infantry School's first graduate of the Light Weapons Instructor's Course (LWIC) tryman NCO basic correspondence course.

Brig. Gen. Paul F. Gorman, assistant commander of the Infantry School, presented the diploma to Wade during a recent ceremony in his office.

Wade enrolled in the 152-hour course on Nov. 1, 1971, and completed his studies five and a half months later with his last examination on April 17.

In presenting the diploma, Gen. Gorman noted that while residence courses were important, it is the correspondence course that will reach more students and keep them abreast of changes in the military as well as proficient in their soldier skills.

Wade demonstrated that the mechanics of the course are there and that they are practical and will work," Gen. Gorman said.

Wade said discipline was the key to finishing the course as fast as he did. "I usually studied about three hours a night at home, sometimes eight hours. It wasn't any trouble since the subject matter dealt with my military specialty (MOS) and I found it interesting."

The 11-year veteran said he finished about a third of the course during a 30-day leave in February when he worked on his course about six hours a day.

His overall average for the course was a 92 or excellent rating. Wade noted that his last MOS test was 143, 23 points higher than his previous best. "I definitely learned from this course," he said.

Wade who holds a general education degree from the Army is now enrolled in the precommission correspondence course. He is once again taking 30 day leave to get started on it.

Wade, who has spent 31 months in Vietnam, is also working on furthering his civilian education. He is taking college education level examinations, five of which are equivalent to one year of college.

Wade is currently assigned to the Leadership Department's conditioning, combatives and drill committee as a physical training instructor.

And what does the Yawkey, West Va. native do in his spare time. He reads, "I like to read history and geography to relax," he said.

And here...

Fort Benning soldiers eligible for West Point

Each soldier at Fort Benning who is unmarried and meets the age requirements can become a West Point cadet.

One thousand young men enter the United States Military Academy yearly. Of this number, most are recent high school graduates, but several are men who have served in the military.

These former soldiers help maintain a link between West Point and the Army and join a certain military leaving to the class, according to Academy spokesmen.

To assist the soldier in making the transition from the military life to an academic schedule, the Army founded the United States Military Academy Preparatory School (USMAPS), Fort Belvoir, Va.

USMAPS assists the soldier with instruction in academic and military subjects and by physically conditioning him for the West Point entrance examination.

While attending the prep school, the soldier will retain rank and receive normal pay and allowances.

The school year lasts from August to May. Classes are in mathematics and English and participation in sports is required. The soldier's military training continues with emphasis on discipline, responsibility and initiative.

To be eligible, a soldier must be a citizen of the U. S.; of good moral character; at least 17 years old and not more than 21 years old on July 1 of the applicable year; married and not previously married; a high school graduate; and be in good physical condition.

A soldier must also have enough time remaining under his enlistment contract to assure active duty through July of the following year in which he applies.

Briefings are presented at Fort Benning to familiarize soldiers with the academy and prep school. Qualified soldiers who are interested in the program should check with their unit commander or USMAPS project officer.

Former 'brone buster' turns Personnel clerk

A former bronco buster is now riding filing cabinets.

The man is Sp4 William C. Barber, a records clerk with the 504th Personnel Services Co., 301st Eng. Gp. It was bronco riding that helped the Kissimmee, Fla., native pay his way through college.

Barber became a rodeo enthusiast at 16 when he climbed aboard his first "bucker." During his high school days he won the Barback-Bronco Rider State Championship.

At Sulross State University, Alpine, Tex., Barber was able to put his rodeo skills to work, earning his way through college until he obtained his degree in Hangar Animal Science. While in college he won Championships for the Southwestern Region, Intercollegiate Rodeo Association.

Upon graduating from college he taught the sixth grade at Eagle Pass School, a school for children of migrant workers.

Barber is now looking forward to when he will leave the Army and be able to get back to being a cowboy. He plans to return to Kissimmee with his wife, Leigh and four-month-old son, Clayton, where he intends to operate a cattle ranch 15 miles east of Disney World.

In the meantime, Barber will be keeping his rodeo hand in shape as he represents the 301st Eng. Gp. in rodeos throughout the southeast.

Post Rangers enjoy beach at Panama City

Sixteen Explorer Scouts from Post No. 333, sponsored by the Patrolling Committee, Ranger Department, enjoyed a weekend of fun and sun last week on a campout in Panama City, Fla.

The explorers traveled by car with their six sponsors to Magnolia Beach Campground on Friday evening, arriving at 11 p.m. Upon arrival at the campgrounds, the explorers were treated to some practical exercise on setting up their tents in the dark. Many were surprised at the results as the sun came up Saturday morning.

During the day the explorers walked the beaches of the gulf and bay, played football and volleyball, and enjoyed the sun and surf. Typical of most people on their first trip to a beach for the season, they over estimated their exposure time to the sun.

By day's end, most of the explorers were well camouflaged against the red sky of the setting sun. The explorers continued to enjoy the many attractions of Panama City during the evening, including the many amusement parks and a full moon over the gulf. After a good night's sleep, partly spent by fighting off mosquitoes and trying to gently brush sand off sunburn, the group returned to Columbus early Sunday afternoon.

"$8,000 helped."

Sergeant Roy Smith was going for more than the bonus when he reenlisted.

"The $8,000 helped. But part of my reason for staying in the Army is I can get the rest of my college credits for a degree. I've got 2 years in already.

"I enjoy the job I'm doing now as a drill sergeant. But I'd also like to try military intelligence. And eventually get to go to OCS.

"It's all there. It's completely up to me and my qualifications for it."

Sergeant Smith views the Army as one big opportunity for a guy who wants to get ahead.

There are job and educational opportunities. In advanced electronics. Cryptography. Foreign languages. Data processing. Communications. Traffic analysis. And lots more. And travel opportunities. In Europe. Korea. Hawaii. Alaska. Panama. And the time to enjoy it. To live it. In a way no tourist ever could.

And the opportunity to save money on all the everyday things.

Like free housing. Free dental and medical care. Commissary and post-exchange privileges. Low-cost life insurance. Plus one of the best retirement plans offered by any employer. Anywhere.

It's all here. It's up to you. Your Army Career Counselor has a whole book of job, duty station and training opportunities just waiting for you. He'll give you lots of reasons for staying in.

'The Godfather' coming to Benning

"The Godfather," the movie which depicts the violence and brutality brought by the battles of organized crime, begins a five day run at post theater No. 1 tomorrow. Times of the show will be 6:15 and 9:30 p.m. with 2 p.m. matinee Saturday and Sunday. The picture also will be at theater No.

3 June 1-3 and theaters No. 2 and 4 between June 4 and 20. The movie stars Marlon Brando as the head of a powerful Mafia "family" which maintains iron grip over its community. When Brando rejects the suggestion of a rival organization that the syndicate start peddling heroin, a vicious gangwar breaks out. After Brando is wounded by an assassination attempt, his eldest son takes over. But the young man's violence proves, vengeance-filled leadership only grows more bloodshed and gangland style murder. Admission price is $1.50 for adults and 75 cents for children.

"This was the price the Army-Air Force Motion Picture Service in Atlanta sent us," said Capt. Jerry Johns, post theater officer. "We have no control over it." He added, however, that the Army had great difficulty obtaining the film as early as it did and had to agree to the higher admission charge.

"Love Is," the 1972 3rd U.S. Army Soldier Show, will be at Fort Benning June 8 and 10. The show will be at Theater No. 3, June 8, and at Marshall Auditorium in Infantry Hall, June 10. Both shows will be at 7:30 p.m. Free tickets may be obtained at the Fort Benning Playhouse, the Main PX, the Commissary, Theater No. 1 and Marshall Auditorium. Highlighting the show will be Odeli Hobbs singing "Never Been to Spain," Leon Johnson singing "First Time Ever I Saw Your Face," and Helen Brown singing "Maybe This Time." Other numbers include "Way of Love," "Heart of Gold" and "A Cowboy's Work Is Never Done."

All members of the show's cast, band and technical crew are from installations in the 3rd Army area.

Dade, Fla. residents say, 'thanks 197th'

Students, teachers and administrators at Dade County Senior High School—who might not agree on other subjects—joined in acclaim of the 197th Inf. Bde. soldiers who built a new athletic field for the school. "It's a great deed, one which will benefit not only the school but the community as a whole," physical education instructor Ray Coleman said. Student George Logan agreed: "I really dig it. I play varsity sports and this new complex will enable us to stomp the competition."

"The 197th soldiers have done a fine job of giving the students something more than just a plain old field," said co-ed Penny Williams. "I think all the students are thankful to the soldiers and the Army for what they have done." Barbara Stawhagen, another PE teacher, believes that the brigade's community project will boost the school's sports program. "Thanks to the soldiers, students will enjoy a wider range of physical education instruction. Many of the girls I teach can't wait to use the new facilities."

But school principal Sam Furde perhaps summed up the general feeling. "At first this seemed like a dream to us. Words cannot express the many thanks this school owes to the 197th personnel who participated in this project. Dade County High School will long remember the 197th and what it has done."

Ex-pro griddier is now Pathfinder

Pro football is one of the most popular spectators' sport, but it is the rare individual who has had the Calgary Stampede, as SSGT. Edward L. Warren of the 187th Pathfinder Detachment.

Because his college class had not yet graduated, 1969 found Warren ineligible to play professionally in the United States. The Pittsburgh Steelers therefore sent him to Calgary, Alberta, where he joined the Calgary Stampede, a Canadian professional football team.

Pro football in Canada differs in several important aspects from the game as it is played in the United States. For one thing, the field is larger, measuring 110 yards by 60 yards. The additional ten yards in either direction allows much more room in which to maneuver. This is particularly important as blocking is not allowed beyond the line of scrimmage.

There are other differences as well. In Canadian football, there are only three downs for ten yards. Punt returns must be run back. And finally, in Canada there is one additional means of scoring which is not available in the states: A punt into the end zone is worth one point.

A Canadian team is allowed only 12 Americans who must play at least 50 per cent of the time. The remainder of the team must be Canadian.

Because of the short season in Canada—from June to September—the game schedule is more demanding. A Canadian team usually plays two, sometimes three, games each week as opposed to the American schedule of one game per week. According to Warren, the most important factor to a Canadian player is his physical condition. If he is not in excellent condition prior to the first game, he will be hard pressed to make it through the season.

In September 1969, following his first season as a pro, Warren returned to his hometown, Yuba City, Calif., and enlisted in the Army. While stationed in Germany in 1961 he played for the 8th Division, which won the European championship that year.

Finance blasts HHC in 931st softball

Fifteenth Finance captured their third consecutive victory Tuesday evening by shutting out HHC, 18-0, in 931st softball action at Gowdy Field on Main Post.

The red and gold clad clerks completely stumbled error prone HHC from the start. Finance controlled every aspect of the game scoring five runs in the first inning behind power hitters such as shortstop John Pope and center fielder Bob Warner. Finance never let up adding on to the total for five innings were the game was halted because HHC had not yet scored or even got a man past a second base.

Winning pitcher for Finance was Mark Berset pushing their record to 3-0.

ROD AND GUN CLUB

Notes

BY BILL LOEB

From time to time we read about some mammal, reptile or bird that is on the verge of extinction but usually the species in question is some exotic type that lives in distant areas.

Now the Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife Service, Department of the Interior, has declared a local bird to be one of the species in danger of extinction. The bird is known as the red-cockaded woodpecker (Dendrocopos borealis). Originally his habitat extended from the southeastern Atlantic to the southeastern At-Texas. His species is in jeopardy because of the requirements of modern civilization. The open pine forests containing mature trees have been drastically reduced by logging operations and the clearing of land for pasture and farm land.

The red-cockaded woodpecker is a small bird measuring about five inches from beak to the tip of his tail. He has a white underbody, black back and wings marked by white bars and spots and a white head with a red stripe running from his beak to the back of his neck. The red stripe has the appearance of a cockaded hat and it is from this distinctive marking that the bird gets its name.

This species of woodpecker prefers open pine forest areas. He makes his nest and roosting place by excavating cavities in living pines that are infested with a fungal disease commonly known as red heart. According to foresters, this disease is associated with trees that are old and beyond the age and size when pine is normally harvested. How the woodpeckers know of the presence of this disease is unknown but, in almost every instance, the bird has hollowed a nest in infested trees.

Nests and roost trees are easily detected. The birds peck many small chips through the bark and into the sapwood for several feet above and below the next entrance. This causes resin to flow freely. The resin makes the nest hole easy to locate and, according to some people who have studied the birds' habits, forms a protective area to keep insects and small animals from climbing into the nest. When the resin no longer flows freely around the entrance the birds either desert the tree or excavate a new hole in another part of the tree.

The cockaded woodpecker is not at all migratory by nature. Small colonies of the species may remain in the same area from birth until death. This sedentary nature has worked against the bird finding new habitat suitable for its existence. The reduction of suitable habitat areas and early logging of pine are the primary reasons this species has become rare in certain areas.

Fort Benning and adjacent areas have considerable numbers of these birds. This is attributed to logging procedures that spare a certain percentage of the type trees the birds require for nesting areas and the planned burning program which keeps the underbrush relatively clear in most parts of the reservation. But the situation becomes more complicated when you consider that elimination of red heart fungus in pine trees is one of the objectives of managing forests. Elimination of this growth could eliminate the red-cockaded woodpecker.

The Post-Environmental Management Department (EMD) has accomplished considerable research on the situation of this woodpecker on the reservation. Colonies of the birds have been located in just about every part of the reservation. These colonies vary in size. Some have only a few birds but 17 birds were counted in one colony. There are no doubt numerous other colonies located by the Management Division. Personnel on excursions to the field doubtlessly see the birds too. The EMD would like to have this information. Call 546-2812.

Those where birds have built nesting or roosting places have been marked by two red lines located about chest high. Trees in the immediate area that would make suitable nesting places have been marked with the red line. The forestry section will not allow these trees to be cut. Special efforts will also be made to keep the underbrush in these areas clear.

Marksmen face European gunners

STOCKHOLM — (With the U.S. Army Marksmanship Unit training in Europe). U.S. Army champion marksmen flew into this Scandinavian capital city on their European training trip initiated a three pronged offensive and rapidly established a beach head in the annals of Swedish marksmanship history.

In six competitive matches, including pistol, rifle and Running Bear events, in which Finland, Norway, Denmark and Sweden gathered shooting forces to match the visiting American gunners, the U.S. marksmen garnered the big share of the laurels and championships.

1st Lt. John Witter, Clarendon Hills, Ill., led the American victory charge, when he grabbed all three International Rifle matches fired here. He took the 300 meter Free Rifle over 40 Scandinavian and U.S. Army competitors with his combined three-position aggregate of 1,147. In his aggregate scoring, he picked up the top score in the prone and kneeling matches with his only loss coming in the standing event where he dropped to third behind the outstanding marksmanship of companion shooter, Capt. Larry R. Bassham and Maj. John Foster, both from the Army Marksmanship Unit, Fort Benning, Ga. who posted 360 each. This gave them runner-up and third place in the aggregate with 1,139 and 1,131 respectively.

Writer continued to be unbeatable as he fired championship caliber scores. He took the English Prone Match with his 598 where he was closely contested by Maj. Louis Wigger, National Smallbore Position Champion, who was one back for the runner-up spot while Foster gained the third place laurels with his 593.

In the final Rifle match, the Smallbore Three-Position match, Witter again surged into the lead at the termination of the prone and kneeling events. He lost the first event to companion shooters Bassham and Wigger with their 3986 but he charged back into the forefront in the kneeling with his 378 and then captured the aggregate with his 1,160, just five off the World record. Bassham was three down for the runner-up honors while Wigger claimed the third spot with 1,148.

This week the American shooters are in Moscow competing in smaller pre-Olympic matches with Russian marksmen. Russian shooters hold the Smallbore, 10th-viviant and team World records, the Free Pistol records and Running Bear Team World titles. The Americans will compete in Germany prior to returning home the last of May.

New shooter wins Regional match

SFC George Floyd of Boston, Ga., and the U.S. Army Marksmanship Training Unit, a relatively new shooter on the competitive scene, grabbed the championship of the Southeastern Regional Service Rifle match Saturday. He punched out a 974 of a possible 1000 points in the five match tourney.

Failing to take any one of the individual matches, although he was down just one point in two and three in one, Floyd depended upon his steady shooting to win the top prize.

In the five match series, MSGT. James L. McQueen, All Army Champion, captured the first slow fire event from the 200 yard line with his 1972X white Tennessee National Guardsman MSGT. Rolland J. Spuring of Rockwood, Tenn., took the second slow fire event from the 200 yard line by placing all 20 of his shots in the ten ring for a 200-10X.

Taking top honors in the long range matches, MSGT. Robert Lancaster, Frametown, W.Va., and the U.S. Army Marksmanship Unit, posted a 198-12 in the first 600 yard event and 195-10 in the second to outstrip the large field of 275 mixed Army, Army Reservists, National Guard and Police marksmen.

This gave him a total of 933-22X. James Cunningham, one of the top civilian competitors in big bore rifle from Columbus, Tenn. as a member in the first match but faltered in the second.

940 USMA Cadets to arrive June 7

Approximately 940 cadets from the U.S. Military Academy Class of 1973 will arrive at Fort Benning Wednesday night for three days of Infantry training.

The Benning stop is a part of an annual orientation tour for Academy cadets to give first class, or seniors, a look at the various branches of the Army.

Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbot, post commander, will officially welcome the cadets to Fort Benning at 7 a.m. Thursday at Victory Pond prior to a Rangers in Action demonstration.

Thursday, Friday and Saturday will be full days of training activity for the cadets. This year's class will be involved in more "hands on" training than those of previous years. Blacquevoix demonstrations are being held to a minimum.

For training purposes the cadets will be assigned to one of five groups so that several of the Infantry School's training facilities can be utilized simultaneously. However, all of the cadets will receive the same training, but on different schedules.

During the three day period, the cadets will be involved in Airborne refresher training, airborne raids, unmechanized Infantry squad assault course, Infantry anti-armor training, and the Leader's Reaction Course. Cadets who are Airborne qualified volunteers will jump during one of the training exercises at Lee Drop Zone.

Thursday night the entire class will be at Camp Darby for an Infantry Branch forum and cook-out. The annual hop will be held Friday night at the Main Officers Open Mess.

The cadets are scheduled to depart from Lawson Army Sunday after the noon meal.

The parents of two of the cadets in the Class of 1973 are from Fort Benning. They are Buckner Lee Garrison, son of Col. and Mrs. Frank L. Garrison, 402 Yeager St., and Robert Busill Tully Jr., son of Col. and Mrs. Robert B. Tully, 502 Zuckerman Ave. Col. Garrison is attached to the Third Army Student Detachment, and Col. Tully is director of the Airborne Dept.

Col. Welch retires after 750 jumps

Thirty-two years of soldiering ends today (Friday) for Col. Lamar A. (Bill) Welch.

Welch, who served his last eight years as director of Fort Benning's Airborne Department, will be honored at 4:30 p.m. today with a retirement parade. Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbot, post commander, is scheduled to be the reviewing officer.

Two teams of sky divers will climax the ceremonies. One team will pass an engraved baton which will be presented to Col. Welch. The other team of four men will form with one man drifting off from the rest to represent Col. Welch's departure.

Two formations of about 100 officers and men each, will stand behind the reviewing stand. Personnel making up these formations will be from the airborne department, 4th student battalion (airborne), riggers, and airfield control personnel.

Col. Welch, a graduate of The Citadel, Charleston, S.C., enlisted in 1939.

During World II, Col. Welch served with the 1st Bn., 424th Inf., 106th Div. at the Battle of the Bulge where he was seriously wounded.

He was senior advisor to the Nung Div., song Mao in South Vietnam, 1955 to 1956. He also served as Deputy to the Commanding General, U.S. Army Advisory Group, Vietnam, from August 1962 to 1963.

Col. Welch is a graduate of the Armed Forces Staff College, 1955; and the National War College, 1958.

Col. Welch, during his 22 years as a paratrooper has made 750 static line jumps, nearly 700 of which he says were made with the 109,000 students who attended the airborne school while he was director. One of these students was his son, Joe, who later served with the 173rd Airborne Bde. in Vietnam.

Of all those jumps one nearly cost him his life. He had a double malfunction. "I hit like a bullet. If one of my NOCs hadn't yelled, 'Col. Welch, prepare to land,' I would probably have been a goner," he said.

Several changes were made to the methods of teaching the art of jumping from airplanes while Col. Welch was Fort Benning's "Mr. Airborne."

Col. Lamar A. Welch, Fort Benning's Airborne director for the past eight years, retires today after 32 years in the Army. Col. Welch has 750 static line

Col. Orkand to command 'Patriots'

The 1st Bn. (Mech), 88th Inf. (Patriots) will change commanders June 4 when Lt. Col. Stephen R. Pawlik relinquishes command and Lt. Col. Robert E. Orkand assumes command of the unit in a ceremony at 11 a.m. at Warner Range.

Lt. Col. Pawlik assumed command of the battalion in October, 1970. During his duty as commander the 1-88th attained several "firsts" in the Army.

In late 1970 the 1-88th became the first TOE unit in the Army to have soldiers trained to operate the TOW weapon system. Nearly this year the battalion's C company became the Army's first unit to achieve all-volunteer status under President Nixon's Modern Volunteer Army program.

Recently, the unit's D company has been involved in the testing of the Dragon weapon, earning the nickname "Delta Dragons" for its work.

Lt. Col. Pawlik is a graduate of St. Benedict's College, Atchison, Kan., and the Army's Command and General Staff College.

Before being commissioned a cadet through Infantry Officer Candidate School, Pawlik was a Sergeant Major and was Sergeant Major at the Korean theater of operations.

He served in Vietnam as a battalion and brigade operations officer in the 25th Infantry Division. He has served in the Office of Personnel Operations with the Department of the Army in Washington, D. C. before assuming command of the 1-88th in October, 1970.

Lt. Col. Pawlik was executive officer for the 197th Infantry Brigade and received several decorations including the Silver Star with Oak Leaf Cluster, Legion of Merit, Distinguished Flying Cross, Bronze Star Medal with Oak Leaf Cluster and "V", Meritorious Service Medal, Air Medal with 26 Oak Leaf Clusters and "V", Purple Heart, two awards of the Vietnam Service Cross of Gallantry with Gold Star and the Combat Infantryman's Badge and Parachutist Badge.

Lt. Col. Pawlik leaves his command in the 197th Infantry Brigade prior to his next assignment to the Naval War College, Newport, R. I.

Lt. Col. Robert E. Orkand, like Pawlik, assumes command of the 1-88th following duty as brigade executive officer. Commissioned through Infantry OCS in 1968, he served overseas tours in Korea, with the Berlin Brigade and in Vietnam as battalion operations officer and executive officer of the 1st Bn. (AM) 7th Cav., 1st Cavalry Division (AM).

He is a graduate of Columbia University, New York, N. Y., and the Command and General Staff College, at Fort Benning, Lt.

Col. Edwin L. Kennedy, brigade commander, as reviewing officer. The 28rd Army Field Band will provide appropriate music for the ceremony. A reception will follow the ceremony on Warner Range and the public is invited to attend.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

by Bill King

Beets will keep color and flavor better if cooked with the pot lid on, and if a little lemon juice is added near the end of the cooking.

Try adding coned pineapple chunks and broken walnuts to your favorite recipe for chicken salad.

Before creaming shortening or butter, rinse the bowl out with hot water to lighten the job.

Meats and poultry to be browned should be as dry as possible. Blot away any dampness with paper towels before adding meat to the skillet.

This is the time of year to pick up any basil plants at the florist or the nearest Italian grocer. Fresh basil will open up a whole new world of cooking delights.

450 ROTC Cadets to attend summer Ranger training

BY RICH McDOWELL
More than 450 College Reserve Officers Training Corp ROTC cadets will have a chance to become U. S. Army Rangers before the summer is over.

The first increment of about 240 cadets will begin Ranger training at Fort Benning, Ga. on July 5. The second class will begin July 26. Those cadets successfully completing the rugged 63-day course will earn the coveted Ranger tab. Cadets finishing at least six weeks of the program will meet their summer camp requirement.

The summer camp is a requirement of all ROTC cadets who plan to become commissioned officers in the Army. The special Ranger school classes for ROTC cadets is a substitute for summer camp.

Only a limited number of cadets can go through the course. Each college is given an allocation to fill with students being selected by their professors of military science, according to Capt. James S. Roach, U. S. Army Ranger School instructor.

Roach said those cadets selected for the program must be volunteers, highly motivated, and be in good physical shape and able to pass the combat proficiency test and water survival test.

Alternates are also selected to fill in vacant slots that may arise. Roach noted that many of the alternates travel to Fort Benning at their own expense in case a cadet should fail to appear, or drop out during one of the first two days of training. "That's motivation," he said.

As in summer camp, the Army pays the transportation cost for the cadets selected for the program. The cadet also receives a salary equal to one-half that of a second lieutenant's while he is attending the course.

The Ranger course the cadets go through is the same as that operated by those already in the armed forces. There are a few minor changes, such as extra time spent on learning and firing the M-16, but basically the 1,061 hours of training the cadets receive will be the same, according to Roach. Lt. Col. Karl V. Hurdle, chief of the Rotating Ranger Committee, noted that in six weeks of summer camp the cadet receives 264 hours of training. "There is no time for extra-curricular activities here in Ranger School," he said.

"Ranger School" is a real test for these people. It is an experience they have never been exposed to before and will probably be the most challenging thing they will encounter in their lives," Hurdle said.

Although the cadet attending Ranger school may not receive such instruction as mortar training and tank tactics as his counterpart in summer camp will, Hurdle said the cadet will receive all the tactics instruction he can handle.

And yet tactics instruction is only a side benefit of Ranger School. "The main purpose of Ranger School is to teach leadership. This is taught by placing each man into leadership positions during times of stress. And you would be surprised at the stress that can be created by fellow cadets who are tired, cold, wet and hungry. It can really get tight," Hurdle said.

Hurdle noted that it is times such as those that a cadet learns about himself, learns that he can accomplish more than he thought humanly possible. "As a result of this training he will be a better officer because he has a better idea of his limitations and those of others," he said.

Although the ROTC cadets may be lacking in military knowledge when they start the course, Hurdle said this is compensated for by their high degree of motivation. "Last year's cadets did an extremely fine job," he said. And just what is this thing called Ranger School?

Ranger School is divided into three stages. The first stage is at Fort Benning, Ga. where 4 a.m. physical training sessions, 1½ mile conditioning marches, map and compass courses over hill and dale and tactical training courses prepares the student to go into the mountain and swamp stages of the program.

The student writes exam the one receives is given at Fort Benning. It is designed to see how much tactics instruction the student learned during his first three weeks. There is also a practical exam on patrolling techniques. The compass course is also a graded test for the students as is how well he performs during the physical fitness training. The first of three peer reports is filled out here. It is filled out by buddies in the man's squad — no holds barred.

While a student may feel his tactical officer or the instructor part of the line, there is no feeling the man he spends 24 hours a day with. And every law of war may be brought out in these reports.

Having learned to write his operations order, the basics in patrolling, and how to navigate using a map and compass, the student moves to Camp Frank D. Merrill in Dajlong, Ga. Here students learn basics in mountaineering and patrolling begins in earnest.

Long night marches across crazy mountain tops with deadfall waiting to trip the unsuspecting Ranger, mountain laurel lurking to reach out and snarl the tired student serve to test the mettle of these men.

The combat atmosphere stressed in the mountains is that of conventional warfare with the Ranger students infiltrating enemy lines to raid and destroy enemy installations or gain information pertaining to terrain and enemy targets.

Moving to Eglin, Fla., the students enjoy a short respite for their feet as they learn about automobile and water operations. Then it is back into the field.

This time it is the swamps of western Florida. Here as in Vietnam, the student is confronted with a counter-guerrilla phase of combat. Wading through uncharted water to their arm pits, the students get an early taste of what combat in Southeast Asia can be like.

During these three stages the student is placed into various leadership situations. Normally he is given four chances to prove his worth.

There are three basic situations on which a student will receive a leadership grade as a patrol leader. One phase is the planning stage. Here the patrol leader must organize his patrol and insure that he is able to issue a clear, concise patrol order, which, when properly executed, would accomplish the assigned mission.

Not only is the student graded on his operations order, but he is also graded on how well his men are prepared, are they properly equipped, do they know what the plan of attack is, were they properly released into the swamp as river crossing, immediate action drills and actions on the objective.

The movement phase is a test of how well the patrol leader can navigate. Not only must he be able to find his way, he must also maintain light and noise discipline in his element and take the correct formations during movement. At halts he must insure that his men are properly dispersed and alert for the enemy. The third grading stage is the execution phase. Here the patrol leader is confronted with taking an objective. The lane advisor assigned to see if the student makes a proper leader's reconnaissance of the objective, how he places his security, his crew served weapons, what type of contingency plans are issued and most important, how well and vigorously he executes his plan of attack.

Assistant patrol leaders also receive grades on his duties which parallel the patrol leader's grading phases.

In the early stages of training, the Ranger students operate in small units such as a six-man long-range patrol. They then graduate to squad sized units, section of 18 men, a platoon and eventually a company.

This enables the student to develop his leadership techniques with smaller numbers of men so he can gain confidence in himself before being charged with leading larger units.

For a student to receive his Ranger tab, he must pass at least half the patrol he leads. He must also score a certain number of points on the graded phases at Fort Benning.

That the cadet Ranger school is well received is indicated by student response from last year's classes. The common comment was "Ranger School taught me a lot."

Are you putting me on?

Snakes alive! Watch your step when in the woods

If you're waiting to leap into summer fun, better watch where you land. There may be a snake in your path.

Suppose you do make a misstep? Military safety experts at posts across the nation contradict each other in their snakebite "Do" and "Don't" lists. One "bio-environmental engineer" says "Don't make any cuts on or around the bite." Another expert says "Cut into the puncture and allow the blood to flow. As much as 50 incisions may be necessary to free the system of poison."

One of the two also warned against applying any sort of tourniquet. "Tourniquets cause gangrene," he said. The other specialist said, "Apply a tourniquet about two inches above the bite between the bite and the heart. Do not apply the tourniquet so tightly that circulation is cut off. In order to test, place your fingernail under the tourniquet; you should feel a faint pulse beat."

Both agree that the snake should be taken back for inspection, but a third source warns against handling freshly killed venomous snakes.

The most practical advice is avoid the bite in the first place. Here are some tips:

Remember that snakes are probably more afraid of humans than humans are of snakes. Given the chance snakes will usually avoid an encounter.

—Learn to recognize the poisonous snakes in the area you are entering. Avoid killing harmless snakes.

—Avoid walking around after dark. Many venomous snakes are nocturnal and will travel farther at night than during the day. If you must walk at night be sure to wear boots and carry a good light.

—Avoid caves, open tombs and know snake den areas. Snakes live in protected areas which may be the habitat of other small animals. They may be found in considerable numbers in caves and open tombs during the hibernation period which, for most snakes, extends from early fall until spring. They may also seek out these same areas during the summer months.

—Remember that most snakes avoid direct sunlight, and that they are most active at moderate temperatures.

—Remember that poisonous snakes may be found at high altitudes, and that they can climb trees, bushes and fences.

—Walk on clear paths as much as possible. Avoid tall, grassy areas of heavy underbrush or ground covering. Wear protective clothing when entering such areas.

—Avoid swimming in snake-infested waters. Most land poisonous snakes swim well and may, under unusual circumstances, bite while in the water. Sea snakes are not uncommon in the Indo-Pacific area and, while most species are docile, some may bite when handled or disturbed.

—Avoid sleeping on the ground whenever possible.

—Avoid walking close to rocky ledges, and give snakes a wide passage if encountered.

—Avoid hiking alone in snake-infested areas.

—Avoid horse-play with live or dead snakes.

—Don't put your hands or feet in places you cannot look and don't turn them in places without first looking. Don't turn or lift a rock or fallen tree with your hands. Move it with a stick, or with your foot if your ankle and leg are properly protected.

—Don't put your sleeping bag near rock piles, rub-

Sound-Off

Planning to hit the ballot box?

Politicians have been clamoring along the campaign trail since January but Sound Off wondered if the average GI has been listening. We asked soldiers if they were planning to vote and why.

Sgt. Michael O'Neal is registered and "every dad's ready plans to vote." His choice are "Seay, 29, O'Neal, assigned to the directorate of personnel and community activities, explained his conviction this way: "I have always voted; it's my privilege as a citizen."

Sgt. Jimmy Robinson, of 14th Co. 3, The School Brigade is not registered and does not plan to vote. "The issues are unstable and no one knows exactly what they (the candidates) stand for," he said.

Sgt. David Seay says, "I'm not registered and I don't know if I will. I've never voted before but have been following the campaign and know who my choices are." Seay, 29, is with Co. D, Hq. Cnd. Sgt. Don McDonald, 14th Co. TSB, is planning to vote in his home town of Los Angeles. He says, "It's because I should. It's my duty; I think everybody should."

"It's pretty important right now that everyone voice his opinion," said Sgt. Bruce Ratch. "Our democratic process is undergoing a period of tribulation. To uphold that process, citizens should vote." Ratch is with the Morale Committee of the Infantry School.

bish piles or the entrance to a cave.

—Don't sit down without first looking around carefully.

—Don't gather firewood after dark.

—Don't step over a log if the other side is not visible. Step on it if first.

Infantry Board tests Dragon affect trainer

As moving targets speed back and forth down range, soldiers peck them with live M-16 rounds. An air conditioned van containing a million dollar computer feeds back information concerning hit-miss target data. An XR-31, TOW equipped, Dunebuggy of the continuous operation of the Dragon affect trainer is used by the Board. The Defense Facility Scenario, the Attack Facility, Quick Fire Facility, and the new Clothing and Equipment Test Facility (CETF) represent major advances in the use of computers to improve the reliability of testing. Maj. Alan B. Phillips, of the Methodology and Operations Branch, noted that automated data processing plays a large part in the data collection and analysis on these facilities.

The PDP-15 computer, for example, used during the demonstration at Grif would Range (Defense Facility) schedules target sequence, conducts a round count, records target hits and correct light level. It then collects and stores this data.

The demonstration concluded as guests divided up into groups where "hands-on" displays and individual briefings were conducted on the PDP-15, the XM-47 Dragon, and new lightweight load-carrying equipment.

"What is an Army Wife?" was the theme of a luncheon May 23 at the Main Officers Club by the wives of Infantry Officers' Advance Course 578.

Using small dolls, Mrs. Susan Nodoroski decorated the tablet with scenes depicting an Army wife's life, such as getting married at the post chapel or

As for entertainment, the wives presented a skit portraying the trials of the Army spouse.

Mrs. Augustina Gomez was hostess of the luncheon. Honored guests included Mrs. Orwin C. Talbot, Mrs. Paul F. Gorman, Mrs. Kendrick B. Barlow, Mrs. A. G. Norris and Mrs. Jules C. Trepagnier.

Soldier is Boy Scout executive

The motto "To God and my Country" means a great deal to PFC William St. Clair, presently with HHC, 19th Infantry Brigade. The reason for such strong feelings is that St. Clair is a Boy Scout executive as well as a soldier.

St. Clair is a National Guardsman serving with the Iowa Military Academy, Iowa. His job with the National Guard is a tedious one that absorbs a small part of his original interest. He is the Academy Historian. He is presently stationed with the 19th to fulfill his military obligation.

Throughout his adult life St. Clair has had an interest in the welfare of boys growing up. His plans Army in helping the Boy Scouts on outings contribute to the maturing of boys knowledge of patriotism," states the strong minded patriot.

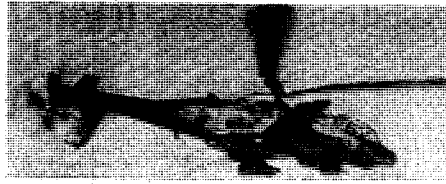

"Being a Boy Scout district executive doesn't place me working hand in hand with the boys, but it does place me in a position where I can most benefit them," states the young historian. "This position places me where I can submit ideas for the best needs of the boys and carry them out further than if it was just a scout master."

St. Clair recalls reading articles which try to tie the United States Army and the Boy Scouts together and states that "there is a parallel between the two. However, both strive to obtain citizen development, character development and physical and mental fitness."

In today's world it is often wondered if there is any patriotism left. "Yes there is patriotism in both the Army and the Boy Scouts. The Boys in such organizations as Youth Clubs, as well as Boy Scouts, need the patriotic feelings they have. The Army in helping the Boy Scouts on outings contribute to the maturing of boys knowledge of patriotism," states the strong minded patriot.

St. Clair was born in Bismarck, N.D. His wife, Barbara, is waiting in Cedar Falls, Iowa for his return from active duty. On June 28 he will rejoin his wife and continue his work, both as an historian and a Boy Scout District Executive.

During the meeting T. G. Reeves, prominent Columbus businessman and a charter member of the Citizens and Military Council, also was honored. Reeves, confined to his home due to illness, was cited by Gen. Talbot over a special telephone hook-up.

Gen. Talbot also read a letter to Woodruff from Gen. W. C. Westmoreland, Chief of Staff, United States Army, commending Mr. Woodruff for his efforts in support of the Army through radio, television, the AUSA, and the National Infantry Museum Board.

RIF hits Aviation's '218'

Old "218" didn't quite make it to 20 years of service before she was retired by the Army. But she came close. She entered active duty on May 22, 1953 at Ft. Leonardwood, Missouri, and retired on August 18, 1971 at Fort Benning, Georgia.

Her first PCS assignment was Gary Air Force Base, San Marcos, Texas, where from December 7, 1954 to September 10, 1957 she taught Army Fixed Wing Aviators the finer points of flying helicopters. Although she remained under Army control, her instructor pilots were Air Force Officers assigned to transition Army Aviators to helicopters. Of course, everyone knows who taught the Air Force to fly. And now, Air Force helicopter pilots are trained in Army schools by Army instructors. But in the early fifties, when "218" was beginning her career, Army helicopter pilots were few and far between.

On October 22, 1967 she reported for duty at Fort Rucker, Ala., where she continued to serve as a transition trainer. After a little over a year, she was again reassigned, this time to Ft. Lewis, Washington, where she remained until July, 1964, when she was sent to Ft. Wolters, Texas. Here she was back in her element, training future Army Aviators. She remained at Ft. Wolters until June of 1969, when she was transferred to Lawson Army Airfield at Fort Benning for her final active duty assignment.

At Fort Benning she helped the Airborne and Ranger Departments train pathfinders. She helped non-assigned aviators maintain their proficiency. And lastly, she trained men who had learned to fly other helicopters to fly the OH-13.

Her full name is S1-14218, but her friends call her "218." She is an OH-13 helicopter, with a most impressive service record. She accumulated 4988.15 hours of flight time and survived 49 major inspections. At the time of her retirement from the active lists, she was on her sixth engine.

But she is not leaving the Army entirely, having accepted a position with the Infantry Museum. To help prepare her for her new role, a few of her friends, Tech Inspectors from the 699th Trans. Co., set up their own "Project Transition" in the 6924th Hanger. There she is being repaired and re-painted. A hard working old gal like "218" deserves to look her best when going out in public.

Post honors fallen soldiers

Two ceremonies marked Memorial Day at Fort Benning May 29, the Nation's 104th observance of the day of recognition for fallen American soldiers.

In a memorial service at the post cemetery, Maj. Gen. (ret.) Robert F. Worden, USAF, spoke of this day as a "day of dedication to the future." He paid honor to the men who had died "preserve freedom, to enlarge it, and to pass it on to the future."

After concluding his remarks, Gen. Worden placed a wreath on the tomb of an unknown soldier.

The playing of taps and a benediction by Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Francis J. Dolan concluded the ceremonies.

At Infantry Hall, a flag-raising ceremony included a 21-gun salute. The flag, which had been flying at half staff since reveille, was raised to full staff.

Col. Charles Thebaud, assistant commander of the Infantry Center, spoke briefly before the flag was raised.

Benediction by Chaplain Dolan closed the day's ceremonies.

Brady Johnson of 419 Timberlane Drive, Columbus, groundskeeper for the General's quarters at Fort Benning, tackles one last pruning job before he retires. General's groundskeeper retires after 18 years

Brady Johnson, who retired May 25 after 31 years of Civil Service, kept the grounds for the Commanding General's quarters here for 18 years.

In the years he has cared for the lawn at Riverside, Johnson has worked with and for 12 generals and their families.

Johnson was born on what is now the Fort Benning Reservation near the Chattahoochee River in August of 1908. As a young man, he worked with Maxwell Brothers Manufacturing Company in Columbus for several years.

When he came to Fort Benning to work in early 1951, the only position interesting to him was keeping the grounds. During the next years, he tended grounds for quarters and the main buildings on post.

In June, 1954, Johnson moved to the General's quarters as a grounds leader. Previously, he had been going there twice a week to care for the lawn.

In tending the grounds for historic Riverside, Johnson has been responsible for choosing and planting all shrubs and flowers, planning the seasonal upkeep, as well as the ordinary chores of mowing, pruning, clipping, and weeding.

Although he plans to increase his hunting and fishing, Johnson says "I'll be lonesome without the job." He especially enjoyed working with the general because he found them more beautiful than any other flower.

Johnson estimated he has pulled 40-50 million weeds during his tenure at quarters No. 1, and mowed 50,000 miles of grass.

At a special retirement ceremony held on the post at Riverside, Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbot, post commander, thanked Johnson for his special contribution to the beauty of Fort Benning. Gen. Talbot expressed the appreciation of all those who had lived in Riverside, visited there, or passed by, for the special charm and beauty of the grounds.

Carr shoots pictures, not bullets

The 831st Engineer Group (CBT) is recognized as having within it many varied MOS's (Military Occupational Specialties). Yet most of the occupations that come to mind whenever the word engineer is mentioned usually include the ones which are directly connected with construction. Heavy equipment operators, carpenters, drivers, bridge builders, and engineers are most prominent, while those jobs which are less directly related fail to gain our attention.

One such lesser known vocation of an engineer unit is the Still Photographer, and one of the lesser known photographers in the 831st Engr. Gp. is Sp4 Raymond E. Carr.

Before entering the Army, Carr was chief photographer at Kimberly Oaks Inc., where some of his major projects included the production of several color slide shows and motion pictures.

His present photography with his love for the sea, Ray was fortunate to become skipper of a forty-foot motor yacht, the Elephant. Consequently, this experience led to his acquisition of his primary MOS, 61B30, commonly known as a Seaman. After basic training at Ft. Campbell, Kentucky, Carr graduated from the Seaman School at Ft. Eustis, Virginia. He was then assigned to the 831st Engineer Company (FB).

Sp5 Shower selected for 'Soldier' award

Sp5 Carl J. Showers was the Soldier of the Month award winner for the month of April for Headquarters Command.

Showers was recommended by his Section, Headquarters Personnel and selected by his company commander, Capt. Michael Biedie, a Company, to represent his company.

He appeared before a Board of NCOs comprised of one Sergeant Major and four First Sergeants to be evaluated for the honor.

Based on his outstanding performance as promotion clerk as well as possessing and applying the many leadership traits necessary for an outstanding soldier, Showers was selected for the honor.

Showers, who is originally from Ridgely, West Virginia, entered the Army in 1961. After completing Basic Training at Ft. Jackson, Showers was assigned to the Pentagon as a clerk-typist for two years.

Upon completion of his first assignment, he re-enlisted for a three year tour in Germany, where he served with the 7th Army Support Command, working as an administrative specialist.

Following his tour in Germany, Showers left the Army on a temporary disability, during which time he attended Shepherd College in Shepherd's Town, West Virginia.

After completing four years of college with a major in Economics, Showers re-enlisted in the Army and was assigned to Ft. Benning.

In his own time, Showers is taking a pre-commissioned course from the Infantry School where he just made the honor roll for the completion of over 100 hours in one quarter.

He is also taking the Administrative Specialist course through the Adjutant General's School, Ft. Benjamin Harris and is hoping to attend OCS in the near future.

43rd Engr. repair broken water duct

The men of Delta Co., 43rd Engr. Bn., 831st Engr. Gp. (CBT) recently completed a project to repair the outfall line at Sewage Plant No. 3. The outfall line is a 200 yard duct that carries water, which has been purified, from the plant to a nearby stream.

This duct was ruptured in several places, necessitating immediate repair in order to maintain its serviceability, a job which the 43rd undertook to perform.

In all, the engineers installed about fifty feet of pipe, terra-cotta and corrugated metal, and constructed a concrete head-wall at the point where the duct joins the stream, in an effort to stave off any further damage to the duct.

Guitarist finds show work as much as play

PFC David Reddie, lead guitarist in the 3rd Army Soldiers' Show, is one soldier who feels that working long hours and constantly being on the road are worth it.

Reddie is a 21-year-old native of McLean, Va., drafted in January 1971, he was serving with the 197th Inf. Bde. when he auditioned for the Soldiers' Show. He was a supply clerk at the 197th.

After he learned to play the guitar largely on his own, he and a group of friends formed a band which played for local high school dances, fraternity parties, teen clubs and private parties in McLean.

Since joining the Soldiers' Show he has entertained in Florida, at the Florida Institute of Technology, the Veterans Hospital in Miami and Homestead Air Force Base. He also has been to Ft. Campbell, and Ft. McPherson, Ga. with them.

Reddie said, "getting to play the guitar is something I really want to do, and the experience is worthwhile."

Setting up the equipment and tearing it down after every show is hard work and the group keeps long hours. It is on the road constantly during the tour, often at night.

The Soldiers' Show entertains a dinner meeting of the Civilian and Military Council held at the Post Officers Club May 25. The show will be at Fort Benning again June 8 and 10.

The next auditions for the Soldiers' Show will be held after each performance — June 4 at Sand Hill (Theater No. 3) and June 10 at Marshall Auditorium. Each performance begins at 7:30 p.m.

A change was made to the way the troopers fall. He now tucks his chin and looks at the ground, pulling his risers into the wind just before impact.

Padding at the base of the skull was added to the airborne helmet. Since this was added in 1968, there have been no serious head injuries.

But what Col. Welch is most proud of is the fact that ROTC juniors can now enroll in the airborne school to become qualified paratroopers while still students. He also notes that last year 800 Point cadets went through Airborne School, another first.

"What I'd really like is to be starting over again as a second lieutenant," he said. "I hate to see it coming to a close."

In case of inclement weather, ceremonies will be held in Marshall Auditorium.

ROD AND GUN CLUB

Notes

BY BILL KLOBE

According to reports from game and fish agencies in the southeastern states, the reign of the large mouth bass as the prime trophy objective of anglers may be numbered. If plans and projects work out it should be replaced by the striped bass in the near future.

This species, sometimes called rock fish, often is confused with the white bass or striper as many people call it. The two are cousins and similar in configuration, but the striped bass is much larger. White bass, most abundant in the rivers of the southeast during the early spring season, usually weigh about two pounds. The official state record catch is 4 pounds, 14 ounces. The state and world records for the striped bass are the same: 63 pounds. Catches of 20 to 25 pounds are not uncommon.

Originally the striped bass lived in salt water and ascended fresh water streams to spawn. In the southeast they use the Savannah, Ogeechee, Altamaha, Oconee, Autilia, St. Mary's, Flint and Chattahoochee Rivers and sometimes are found more than 150 miles from salt water. The fish spawn in running water and their eggs hatch while floating down stream. Young fish usually return to salt water the same year.

Several years ago many people thought the construction of large dams would be a threat to the rock fish population. However, it was found that these fish could spend their entire lives in fresh water and reproduce in this environment. Game and fish agencies made plans to increase the numbers of these fish in the impoundments formed by the dams. South Carolina was the leader in this project. The young striped bass originally stocked in Georgia impoundments came from hatcheries in South Carolina.

Georgia hatcheries produced their first fingerling fish that was raised from an egg taken from a female striper in 1969. The first stocking of fingerlings were placed into Lake Blackbar located on the Flint River between Cordele and Americus, Ga. Involved were 11,500 fish, or an average of three fish per acre of water.

The first fingerlings raised in Georgia came from the state hatchery at Richmond Hill, and hatcheries at Dawson and Rome, soon became active in this area. Since, the Fish and Game commission has expanded the operation to nearly every hatchery in Georgia. The southern division of the American Fisheries Society joined the program in 1969 bringing along much needed federal funds. With this added aid the project grew, and it is estimated that more than nine million fish were stocked in Georgia waters during 1971.

A fingerling rock fish will weigh three to four pounds in just a few years. Minimum size limit for the fish in Georgia is 10 inches. Fisheries have—in addition to their stocking project—been studying how the fish are getting along.

The striped bass will also improve the fishing for other game fish. Its terrific appetite and potential size allows him to devour large rough fish. He can eat largemouth fish that can't largemouth bass which up to now has been the largest deterrent to a large rough fish population.

Since the project to build fishable populations of rock fish in man made impoundments began, millions of striped bass have been added to Georgia waters. And the species seem to be adjusting to the new environment and reproducing. Catches up to five-pounds are being made from reservoirs that received the initial stockings. In a few years fishermen can look forward to catching rock fish of twenty pounds or more as routinely as they hook three or four pound large mouth bass.

The stocking program will continue until studies show that all the large impoundments have adequate numbers of fish large enough to be caught. This fish also may be usable in smaller impoundments such as private lakes and ponds.

The whole project opens new realm for fishermen, providing they have the patience to abide by regulations and not endanger the success of the work accomplished so far.

ARC offers safety hints to fishermen

EDITOR'S NOTE: Before Fort Benning anglers can bait their hooks they must first cough up $4.25 for a Georgia state fishing license and an on-post permit. For an additional $5 a fisherman can join the Rod and Gun Club which entitles him to purchase fishing and hunting equipment and rent rowboats at the Club.

The American Red Cross has begun its annual effort to keep the nation's 62 million fishermen from accidents as they wade into the 1972 fishing season. "Fishermen are exposed to a wide variety of accident hazards which can be avoided if the right safety precautions are taken."

Orienteers capture title in Canada meet

Led by team captain Sp4 Don Kennedy, the Fort Benning orienteers won the unofficial team title at the Guelph, Ontario orienteering meet.

The largest of the spring season with more than 500 competitors, attracted teams from Sweden, Canada and the Marine Corps.

Sprinting the last 300 meters uphill, Kennedy won the unofficial team title at the Guelph, Ontario orienteering meet.

Other top finishers were Capt. Jon Nolan, 13th and Sp4 Eli Malmberg, 16th.

Of the 10 orienteers from Fort Benning who entered the run, nine finished. This was an accomplishment in itself as the Swedish team finished only seventh, the Marines sixth and the team from Ft. Bragg, fourth.

The team now enters the "polishing phase" for the All-Army trials scheduled June 13-14.

The top Army orienteers then will travel to Sweden to compete for four weeks of intense training for the inter-service and C.I.S.M. (Council of international military sports) championships.

said Charles W. Russell, acting national director of Rod & Cross Safety Programs. "Of the 7,300 persons who drowned last year, nearly two-thirds did not intend to be in the water but fell in accidentally. Many of these were fishermen who tumbled in from piers, shores and boats."

To help prevent drowning and other accidents among the nation's fishermen Russell offered these safety suggestions: Know how to swim, know basic first aid, and include a first aid kit in your gear.

Listen to the weather forecast so you can dress comfortably and take necessary precautions in event of bad weather.

Take along needless items, such as extra gear, a pocket knife. Slow down as well as all fishing tackle in a covered container when not in use.

Tell someone where you plan to fish and approximately when you will return. Take a friend or two along for company and safety.

Avoid fishing in waters where there are swimmers and scuba divers nearby. Do not go barefoot. Fish, fins, broken glass, nails or other debris can injure your feet. If you are fishing from a boat, do not wear fishing boots or waders.

If you are wading, move cautiously to avoid slipping into deep water or stepping and falling on hidden rocks in fast-running water.

Extracting the hook from a fish's mouth can be dangerous since some varieties of fish have teeth that can lacerate a hand or fingers severely. If you get snagged by a hook, cut it from the line, put a dressing around the injured area, and see a doctor promptly.

In snake-infested country, watch where you step, where you sit and where you put your hands (ANF).

Benning judo club not falling down in membership

BY RICH McDOWELL
The slap of a body bouncing off the floor echoes against the wall as an angry voice cries out in a strange oriental tongue.

Some alien chamber of horrors? Not quite. It is Fort Benning's judo club in action. The club, largest in the U. S. Army, boasts 375 members. Of these, 75 are seniors (17 years and up) while the rest are in the junior (6 to 16 years) bracket. Of the 34 junior members, 297 are registered belt holders. Head of the club is Lt. Col. Charles T. Keaton, chief of the environmental management division. Keaton attributed the size of the club to success. That success presents itself in the number of tournaments in which the club has entered.

In the senior mens category, four qualified for the regional championships by winning the district (Georgia) championships. One contestant, 1st Lt. Jim Tucker of 4th Co., 4th Stu. Bn. (Airborne) went to the national championships and placed in the top 10.

Tucker said he was told by national committeemen that if he could practice more (most judo contestants practice about six to eight hours a day prior to tournaments), he probably would have finished in the top three. Tucker competed in the 205 pound weight class.

In the juniors category, 23 won awards in the district meet. Of these 15 went to the regional meet (North and South Carolina, Tennessee, Alabama, and Georgia) where eight captured awards.

At the southeastern championships which included teams from the region plus Mississippi, Florida and Louisiana, the club picked up 15 awards. Soldiers interested in joining the club should come to Briant Wells Field House Mondays or Wednesdays from 6 to 8 p.m.

Keaton said they will receive individualized attention to help them catch up with the rest of the class.

Once soldiers learn the basic moves achieving proficiency is a matter of work, Keaton said. "A man can become as good as he wants," he added.

The Airborne Department Skydiving Team returned here recently with a national first place award in their chutes.

In Relative work, a three or four man team makes a formation or pattern before opening their chutes. The Fort Benning team formed a three pointed star by holding hands in free-fall, breaking, doing a summersault and forming the star again. The Airborne Team formed two stars on one jump and three stars on another to win first place. The Military Nationals included teams from the Air Force, Marines and

Dunebuggy wins in big surprise

Sgt. Tom Dence surprised spectators at the recent Chaugas Auto-Cross Sports Club Race as he sped through the half-mile obstacle type course in a winning one minute and 31 seconds.

The surprising part of the victory was that Dence who is assigned to the Field Equipment Test Branch of the U. S. Army Infantry Board, drove the only military vehicle in a race which included number of sports cars.

Dence's vehicle, the XR-311 "Dunebuggy" which currently is being tested by the Infantry Board, negotiated the "S" type track without knocking down a single rubber pyramid. The vehicle was entered in the "A" modified class.

"The spectators couldn't believe that a military vehicle could negotiate the course," Dence said. "They laughed when we first drove it on the track but sure changed their tone after they saw how the vehicle performed."

The race, which was held at Layte Field near Kings Pond, pitted 60 cars in various classes.

MPs surge in softball

The 18th Military Police Co., the post's defending slow-pitch softball champions are again on top of their league with a 4-0 record.

A powerful offense and stingy defense are the marks of this year's team. While a veritable more than 16 runs a game, the MPs have held their opponents to less than five runs.

Leading the hitters is Rudy Scott with a .509 batting average. He is followed by Steve Allen and Tim Russell who supply the home run punch with five and three home run trippers respectively.

Greg Chestnut, a former member of the 1968 NCAA Midwest Regional College Champions, is team coach. He attributes the team's record to "enthusiasm and teamwork."

Chestnut notes that the season is far from over, saying "we still need to get past 15th Finance and 50th Personnel Co." but he believes the team should be thick in the fight for the post championship.

'Honey' passes in review during mounted change of command ceremony

Lt. Col. Hollis D. Messer concluded eighteen months of duty as commander of the 197th Support Battalion, 197th Infantry Brigade, Friday, when he relinquished his command to Lt. Col. Watha J. Eddins Jr., in unique ceremonies at Warner Range at Harmony church.

Unique in the fact that the presentation of the troops, to the reviewing officer, was conducted in a mounted review, with Armor and Engineer units from the Spt. Bn., participating, preceded by Messer and Col. Edwin L. Kennedy, Brigade commander, trooping the line atop the battalion's mascot, "Honey," a restored M-3 Stuart tank used in World War II.

"Even though today marks the formal removal of my name from the active roll of the 197th Support Battalion, it does not remove my name from the roll of those past members, who hold the 'Every Ready Support' battalion in such high regard," stated Messer in his final speech before the battalion. "I leave your ranks today carrying with me a lasting respect and admiration for your performance and those ideals of professionalism which you hold so sacred."

In concluding, Messer added, "the highest compliment I can bestow on you, is to address all of you here today, as a battalion of professionals, which is a title not easily earned or freely bestowed, because the Army that you represent is a complex and demanding institution, and during times of stress and occasional setbacks, along with the opportunities, you have met the challenge with vigor and intelligence, obtaining remarkable results."

Messer arrived at the 197th Inf. Bde., in August of 1970 to assume duties of Brigade S.S. In October

1970 he became the Brigade Executive Officer and served in that position until assuming command of the 197th Spt. Bn. During his command, the 197th Spt. Bn., was reorganized to incorporate the battalion headquarters, headquarters detachment, G and H Companies of the 69th Armor and the 72nd Engineer Company, in one central location, at Harmony Church, to aid in its primary mission of supporting the United States Army Infantry School and Center, and insure the success of the modern Army concept.

155 ROTC Cadets go Airborne!

BY DALE WILSON

"It's really wonderful," exclaimed a beaming cadet after completing another jump from the swing landing trainer at Eubanks Field.

The cadet, Frank E. Hillburn, Poteet, Tex., is a student at Texas A and M University and is attending jump school along with 155 other Reserve Officer's Training Corps (ROTC) cadets.

ROTC cadets who undergo airborne training are required to pay most of their own expenses as the course is offered only to volunteers, in addition to their six week summer training camp.

In spite of the fact that he had to pay his own way to Fort Benning, cadet Hillburn insisted that he thought the trip was well worth the expense.

The ROTC airborne training program has been in effect since 1970, explained Capt. Edward M. Chamberlain, operations officer for the Airborne Department. Since the corps' inception, more than 1,000 Army, Navy and Air Force ROTC cadets have attended jump school.

In addition to the basic airborne training program, the jumpmaster course was recently opened to ROTC cadets who are jump qualified, added Chamberlain.

Chamberlain is not surprised at the number of volunteers for airborne training, in spite of the conditions that cadets face on most college campuses.

"These men are generally in their third or fourth year of ROTC training," he explained, "and they are highly motivated."

The cadets have a seven per cent lower attrition rate than regular army volunteers. According to Chamberlain, the reason for this is that ROTC volunteers are generally better informed, more physically fit and better motivated than their regular Army counterparts.

The schools are fairly selective in that they insure candidates are physically qualified before they arrive at Fort Benning," declared Chamberlain.

What about the students? Why did they volunteer? What are their impressions of airborne training?

Cadet Karl Roesser is a junior at Wisconsin State University in Madison and comes from Milwaukee, Wis. "I volunteered because the cadre at school were jump qualified and I was impressed," admits Roesser. He adds that the training is "definitely" worthwhile.

"Airborne training will help to secure me a regular Army commission," said Cadet William A. White, Cleburne, Tex. White is a student at Texas A and M University, at College Station, Texas A and M is represented by some 100 cadets at Fort Benning.

Patrick M. Oatley of New Orleans, and a senior at Tulane University in that city, explained that "I just wanted to jump." Like most of his classmates, Oatley found that jumping from the 350-and 34-foot towers was "easy."

Cadet William M. Jarvis of San Francisco, Cal., and a sophomore at the New Mexico Military Institute, spoke for most of the cadets when he said, "we have good cadre, they are men who really know their jobs."

Like several other cadets, Jarvis will go on to Ranger training when he completes jump school.

Independence Day parade to feature eras of military history

The Infantry, "Queen of Battle," has traditionally played a large role in the history of the United States and its battles.

At Fort Benning this July 1, the Infantry will play an equally large role in the Independence Day Parade. Units from all over the Post will be dressed in costumes representing various eras of American military history.

The Revolutionary War, in which the Infantry survived the famous winter at Valley Forge, will be depicted by soldiers from the 19th Infantry Brigade. The 19th will also provide soldiers dressed in uniforms worn during the various Indian Wars, the War of 1812, and the Mexican War.

The 81st Engineer Group (Combat) will represent the Civil War. The most important Infantry engagements during the Civil War were the Battles of Vicksburg and Gettysburg, with the Battle of Gettysburg generally recognized as one of the turning points of the war.

The Spanish - American War will be depicted by Headquarters Command and the Medical Department Activity will represent the Infantryman of World War I.

The Infantry School will furnish soldiers representing USAIS from the post-World War I era until the present, including the Korean and Vietnamese conflicts.

The parade, which will take place on York Field in front of Infantry Hall beginning at 11 a.m., will also include companies from each major unit on Post. The theme of this year's activities is "The Glorious Challenge — 150 Years of Freedom."

After the parade, a large-scale fly-by of military aircraft will be conducted over York Field. After the opening ceremony, the carnival will open and will remain open until 7 p.m. There will also be equipment displays on Gardner Field next to York Field, as well as free rides on military vehicles and the Airborne Jump Towers on Eubanks Field.

'Love Is' Sunday

"Love Is." this year's 3rd Army Soldiers Show, will perform Sunday night at the Infantry Hall's Marshall Auditorium as part of its tour of the Southeast. Curtain time is 7:30. Admission is free. After the show, audition will be held for additional cast members of this year's show. Only military personnel are eligible to audition. The cast of the 1972 show consists of enlisted men and women from the 3rd Army area.

Col. Latham selected for Brig. Gen.

Col. Willard Latham, Fort Benning chief of staff, has been selected by the Army for promotion to brigadier general. He is one of 82 placed on the promotion list.

Col. Latham has been at Fort Benning since February 1970 when he assumed command of the 19th Infantry Brigade. He was promoted to first colonel in March 1970 and was named chief of staff of the Infantry Center in November 1971. He assumed his present duties in January 1972.

Benning to offer summer jobs to 350 area youths

This summer, Fort Benning will hire 350 youths between the ages of 16 and 21 to fill office type positions.

Arthur Medlock, chief of civilian personnel division, stated that 350 youths will be employed at Benning from three different sources of manpower.

The Georgia State Employment Office in Columbus has interviewed 45 youths to work as aides in the Infantry School for the summer. These people will work in supportive jobs throughout the Infantry School, as trade and craft helpers, and in community service areas.

The Neighborhood Youth Corps will supply about 250 employees to Fort Benning. The youths hired under this program work a limit of 45 hours per week in various jobs.

The new College Co-Op Program is also being initiated this year. In this program, 50 college students chosen from interviews at their colleges will be given summer jobs which coincide with their studies in school.

Auburn, Columbus College, Tuskegee Institute and Fort Valley State College are the schools participating in the new program, Medlock added.

The supervisors of summer personnel have been given a four hour course in youth supervision. This course is given before each summer season and is mandatory for all personnel supervising summer workers.

The salary for the summer worker is provided from federally appropriated funds. Seventy-five per cent of the College Co-Op program is funded with Learning center stops worrying

Post students can stop worrying about studying all night to pass exams. Much of the information needed is available at the Individual Learning Center (ILC) located in classroom 22 of Infantry Hall.

The quiet, carpeted classroom creates an atmosphere conducive to learning. Along with the relaxing atmosphere, there are 50 individual learning booths, one booth per student. Each booth is equipped with an audio cassette tape player; operated with a 35mm slide projector and a student responder. Some have color or television that play video tapes. Using the responder, students can answer multiple choice questions. If the incorrect answer is given, portions of the program can be reviewed until the correct answer is obtained.

There are presently 144 different subjects which are divided into four categories. The first area is military subjects, with topics ranging from weapons and tactics to military history. The second category consists of enrichment subjects such as vocabulary, logical thinking and math. The third is decision problems. This category gives practical situations that require a response by the student. The last category is recordings of guest speakers who have visited the Infantry school.

Cadet at Wisconsin State University, where he is a Junior, and is undergoing Airborne Training at his own expense.

Area youths to visit post for encampment

Approximately 400 boys from the Columbus Area will take part in the Domestic Action Summer Resident Encampment, to be held at Fort Benning starting Monday, and continuing through Aug. 12.

The purpose of the encampment is to provide Columbus Area boys, ages 9-13, with what may be their only opportunity to attend a summer camp.

Each week during the period, except the week of July 4, approximately 50 boys will be brought to Fort Benning to participate in the encampment.

The boys will be picked up each Monday at 9 a.m. in Columbus, and will be returned home at 9 a.m. each Saturday. During their stay, the boys will live in two barracks in the Harmony Church area.

During the week, the youngsters will have games, sports, swimming and library privileges. The boys will take tours of Fort Benning facilities and they will be able to see Ranger and Airborne demonstrations. They will also be taken to Fryar Field where they can watch Airborne students make their qualifying jumps.

The Columbus Recreation Department will be responsible for the planning, organization and supervision of the encampment. The funding of the project will be coordinated between the Columbus and Federal Governments.

Fort Benning is providing billets, mess facilities, transportation, recreational facilities and equipment, emergency medical and dental service, telephone service and fire protection. Also, the Chaplain Division will provide on-call services.

All Fort Benning personnel involved have volunteered their time and services to make the boys' visits interesting and enjoyable.

Post band battle slated for July 1

Columbus, Phenix City, and Fort Benning bands will have a chance to win a $300 or a $150 savings bond at this year's Battle of the Bands.

The Battle of the Bands will take place at 1 p.m. on July 1. It will be part of the Independence Day Activities scheduled for Fort Benning, and it is open to all bands in the area.

Each band will be judged for technical excellence, showmanship, originality, and selection of material by a panel of five judges. The bands will have 15 minutes each to perform on stage.

The Battle of the Bands will be held in Marshall Auditorium on the day of the Carnival. It will last for two hours.

In addition to the Battle of the Bands, a beauty contest and talent contest will be held that afternoon. The beauty contest will take place from 3 p.m. until 4:30 p.m., and the talent contest will be held from 4:30 p.m. until 6 p.m.

The day's activities will open with a parade on York Field at 11 a.m. Every major unit on Post will be represented, and various units will also be dressed in costumes depicting American military history.

At noon the opening ceremonies will be held on York Field. Immediately afterward, the Midway will open, and will remain open until 7 p.m.

In addition to several game booths and equipment displays, free vehicle rides and Airborne-Tower rides will be offered. Refreshments of all types will be sold at the Carnival, including beer.

Following the Battle of the Bands, the beauty contest, and the talent contest, the 288rd Army Band will play for a short period. A skydiving exhibition and an Aviation Command fly-by will follow.

The drawing for major door prizes will be held at 8:50 p.m. Awards will be presented to contest winners, and Maj. Gen. Gravin G. Talbot, Commanding General, will deliver his remarks.

The last event will be a fireworks display, which will begin at 9:30. Tickets are now on sale for 50 cents each to all military and civilian personnel at Fort Benning, as well as retired military and civilian workers living in Columbus.

Ticket holders do not need to be present to win the door prizes.

ROTC Cadets to start summer Ranger course

Approximately 240 Reserve Officers Training Corp. cadets from colleges throughout the country will arrive at Fort Benning over the weekend to begin a demanding nine-week Ranger course.

The cadets volunteered for the course in lieu of the regular six weeks of summer camp. Those who complete the course will be awarded the coveted Ranger tab, as well as receiving credit for summer camp.

Impressing by the cadets is scheduled to begin at 1 p.m. today and will continue through Sunday morning. Cadets who have impressed will see a Rangers in Action Demonstration Saturday at 5 p.m.

Before beginning the Ranger Course on Thursday the cadets will be given arms training.

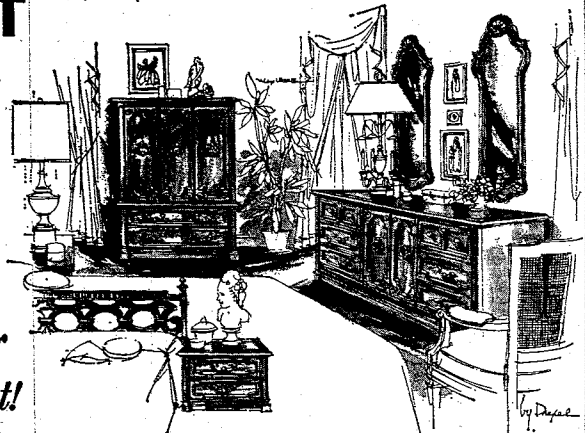

The first increment of cadets will complete the Benning phase of their training on July 3 and will depart for the mountain phase at Dalton, Ga., on July 5. The second increment of cadets will begin impressing June 30.

Family life in our time

Family life is the most important factor in influencing the life orientation of people. It is a place of dynamic interaction between all its members. There are tensions, inconsistencies, and many unpredictable things in every family group. Nevertheless, it is the place where the functions of protecting, nurturing, educating, and liberating have always been performed in one way or another.

Unfortunately, many people are fearful that the very existence of the family is being endangered because a number of external changes in the pattern of family life have taken place in our time. The chief change has been the transition from the "extended family" which involves an extended kinship relationship which holds grandparents, aunts, uncles, brothers, sisters, and other relatives in a solidified social, economic, and religious group. Traditional values and ideals were maintained. Under the impact of social, economic, and housing changes, the "extended family" has largely given way to the "nuclear family" — a husband, a wife, and two and one-half children living together as a complete family unit.

It is obvious that the modern family has lost many of the tasks that it formerly performed. It is no longer the center of economic activity; the function is performed by business and industrial institutions. The modern family is no longer the continuing center for educating children; various educational systems do most of the serious education of children in our society. In spite of these facts the family continues to be a primary factor in life. Why? Because it remains the most basic place to experience affection, mutual concern, and respect which can be defined as love. Love, understood in this way, continues to be the basis for happiness in the modern family.

A thoughtful person should not waste his time bemoaning external changes in family life. Rather, he should direct his energies toward making the fact of change work for him. He does this by concentrating his efforts on the fundamental functions of the family rather than the constantly changing life styles of family living. The functions which the family performs are still the basic source of the emotional qualities, range of imagination, vocabulary, and attitudes of the human being. When it does these things well, the change from an "extended family" to a "nuclear family" fades into unimportance.

The fact of change will continue to exert pressure upon the patterns of family life. Technology and specialization will undoubtedly continue to take over many of the specific tasks formerly performed by families. But nothing will replace the family as the "primary community of humanization" of persons. The family remains the place which concentrates on personal wholeness and individual dignity so that it prepares a person to live creatively in the ever changing modern world. By keeping our energies focused on this basic function of family life we can be certain that the family life of the future will be a deeper and richer experience than those of the past.

Army celebrates 197th anniversary

Next Wednesday, June 14, is the 197th anniversary of the Army. It is also Flag Day.

It was on June 14, 1775, that the Second Continental Congress authorized the establishment of the Army as the first U.S. military service. The Congressional resolution read:

"Resolved, that six companies of expert riflemen be immediately raised in Pennsylvania, two in Maryland, and two in Virginia; that each company consist of a captain, three lieutenants, four sergeants, four corporals, a drummer or trumpeter, and sixty-eight privates. That each company, as soon as completed, shall march and join the Army near Boston, to be there employed as light infantry, under the command of the Chief officer in that Army."

A committee, which included George Washington, was named to draw up a draft of rules and regulations for the government of the Army. And so, our Army was born.

The new Army endured much and suffered bitterly in those early days. At Valley Forge, in the terrible winter of 1777, General Washington and his ragged soldiers waged a decisive battle — not against the British, but against cold, hunger, despair, and disease, lacking everything except courage and fortitude, qualities which enabled them to rally and finally force the British surrender at Yorktown in 1781.

Since that historic moment, the Army has compiled a magnificent performance record — protecting the American way of life against every threat, while remaining ever loyal to the people and the government it serves.

The Army exists for one purpose: to serve the American people in defense of their liberty and freedom. General Westmoreland, Army Chief of Staff, defined this role, saying:

"The Army belongs to the people, and it is made up of the people. It draws its officers and soldiers from every walk of life — from every part of America. The Army is a cross section of our free society."

Gen. Westmoreland, in his anniversary message to the Infantry, continued: "Its members have fought with valor each time our national security was endangered and have won on battlefields worldwide the right for the Infantry to be known as the 'Queen of Battle.'"

"The courage, determination, endurance, and pride traditional to the Infantryman form a firm foundation for the Army in this dynamic and challenging period of our military history."

The Army depends on citizen support for the purchase of arms and equipment, to do its job, and, even more important, it depends on public moral support — an essential for highest morale and efficiency.

The Army draws its strength from society. But this is a two-way street. While the Army's military contributions to the Nation are well known, its proud nonmilitary contributions are no less important.

In nation building, for example, the Army can be credited with mapping and surveying the land west of the Appalachians, and with conserving and managing water resources that contribute to the production of electrical power, food control, and an ample water supply.

In medicine and health, for instance, the Army pioneered in conquering typhoid and yellow fever, in developing a means of water purification through chlorination, and in the use of X-rays.

In the area of new products, it was the Army that pioneered in the development of freeze dried foods, and opened the way for the use of miniature electronic components in communications equipment.

As an aid to civilian communities, the Army today is providing, in some areas, helicopter ambulance evacuation of automobile accident victims, and offering assistance to victims in natural disaster areas, including evacuation and distribution of food, clothing, and medical supplies.

These few examples illustrate the Army's continuing contributions to our society, and show its distinct role in making our country, and the world, a better place in which to live.

From that day nearly two hundred years ago — June 14, 1775 — until the present time, the soldier has been the guardian of our heritage of freedom. The 138 streamers on the Army's battle flag were put there for deeds of bravery, sacrifice, and service to country.

Today, the Army is doing its part to maintain our military heritage, as its increased involvement in community affairs clearly indicates.

These words from the code of the U.S. soldier express his belief in his country and his willingness to serve it:

"I am the American soldier. For the American people, my family, my fellows, my sons to come — I carry on. Born of explorers, colonists, hunters in deer skins; schooled in the wilderness, fighting for our continent — I carried on for the rights of man. Wherever I was needed, wherever I was called, I stood and delivered, I marched, wherever I was America on the march."

On Flag Day, we march to the tune of the drummer's beat for peace, rallying around the flag which is the symbol of the independence and freedom which our Army is pledged to protect. — SB

Sp4 Jobity chosen for 'Soldier' award

It is January and the beaches are crowded. The water is clear and warm, the surf high and strong. The sun is directly overhead. Beautiful bikini-clad girls are to be seen everywhere while children, old men and women join in having fun. Such a scene would hardly be called normal even for Miami Beach in January, but to Sp4 Jeffrey Jobity (3688 MP Co.) 931st Engr. Gp., soldier of the month, the sun in January is an ordinary sight.

Jobity was born on the island of Trinidad in the British West Indies. He attended Belmont Boy's Secondary School in Port of Spain, the largest city in Trinidad, from which he graduated in 1964 with passes in the General Certificate of Education from Cambridge University at Ordinary Level. He then entered the John S. Donaldson Technical Institute to pursue a course in Engineering Technology.

In 1967, he began working with the M.V.'s of a Tooth Company. He spent two years with this company and, turning down a position as supervisor, Jobity migrated to the U.S. Here he studied Dental Technology in New York and in June he was drafted into the Army.

Jobity looks on the U.S. as "a place where a man can, if he is willing to work hard, make his dreams come true." Freedom to him is most important and in the U.S. he has found the freedom that he loves. He believes that "there a man is free to do whatever he wants, within limits of course, with a minimum of outside interference."

In the Army, he considers the duty. "The U.S. is my new home and I have a responsibility to it. It has given me many rights." Although he is not yet a citizen, he intends to become one "as soon as the law allows."

New York City is where he intends to settle when he leaves the Army. The city fascinates him and, as he says, "you can find, in New York, anything you want." Jobity and his wife, who is also from Trinidad, are presently residing in Columbus.

Post school system to hold Multi-Ethnic workshop

By DAVE McQUEEN

The Fort Benning School System is holding a workshop this summer for post-teachers to study Multi-Ethnic relations. The purpose of the workshop is to acquaint the participants in the area of Multi-Ethnic studies and to work on new ideas to be implemented in the schools curriculum. Also, the workshop is intended to fill the need of teachers to deal with different cultural backgrounds.

The three-week workshop will start Monday with a course orientation and a luncheon at the Officers Club. The speaker at the luncheon will be the Reverend J. Howard Edington, pastor, First Presbyterian Church, Kilgore, Texas. Rev. Edington will speak from the topic: "Something There is That Doesn't Love a Wall."

The Fort Benning School System is the first dependent school system to attempt a concentrated program toward Multi-Ethnic studies. Teachers within the school system have worked with Multi-Ethnic studies on their own, but this is the first attempt for a coordinated effort towards teaching.

Each morning, the participants will meet, hear speakers and to view materials and films. Each afternoon, the students will break down into discussion and task-force groups to devise ways and means of implementing facets of the workshop in the school system.

Also available to the participants are books, papers and films for extra information.

New exhaust regs out

Does your car exhaust smoke? Is your muffler less than effective?

According to a recent addition to Post traffic regulations (USAIC REG 190-5, change 3, 26 April 1971), no gasoline powered vehicle on which the exhaust emission control devices have been disconnected or which emit visible smoke for more than 10 seconds or 1000 feet, may be operated on Fort Benning. In addition, all vehicles operated on Post must be equipped with a muffler in good working order.

These provisions are applicable to both military and private vehicles.

Grand carousel at Six Flags will give you a whirl

ATLANTA, Ga. — The one brightly-painted horse that carried millions of youngsters on one of the world's largest carousels, again are launching at Six Flags Over Georgia, a 200-acre historically-themed family entertainment center here.

The 64 year old carousel, with its 70 hand-carved wooden horses and four the work of John Zalar, one of America's finest wood sculptors of the 19th century. The carousel also has four-henry, battle-armed replicas of the horses from the King Arthur era. A carousel with more than one such armored horse is rare.

Complete with sparkling glass-mirrors, bright crystal lights and calloped music, the carousel overlooks Six Flags.

In its history the carousel has been ridden by such personages as Al Capone and the cronies, William Randolph Hearst and President Warren G. Harding.

The carousel is suspended from a twenty-four centpole and is 352 feet in circumference.

Six Flags over Georgia is a 15 minute drive from downtown Atlanta on Interstate 20 West. The park is open daily during June, July and August but only on weekends in the spring and fall.

Tickets, which may be purchased at the front gate, cost $5.75 for adults and $4.75 for children under 12. Youngsters less than 3 years old are admitted free. Tickets are good for one day and cover all rides, shows and attractions at the park.

Three individuals from Fort Benning were presented gifts last weekend from the Teen Club for their help in establishing a better place for the teenagers to gather.

The gifts were presented to Col. Robert J. Stanley, commanding officer of the 301st Engineer Group, Mrs. Albert F. Ledebuhr, wife of Post Chaplain, Col. Albert F. Ledebuhr and Lt. Col. Hollis D. Messer, former commanding officer of the 197th Support Battalion, 197th Infantry Brigade, by the President of the Teen Club, Hank Keirsey.

When the park was razed in 1968 to make way for a housing development, the carousel was purchased and moved to Galesia, Ill., where the colorful, ornately designed horses were stored and nearly forgotten in a local warehouse. Last summer, Six Flags Over Georgia discovered the old carousel and purchased it. After a laborious 900-mile journey by train the carousel arrived at its new home.

For more than six months, the Six Flags staff worked to remove the thick layers of old paint that had accumulated on each horse throughout the years. It took 26,000 man hours to completely refurbish the carousel for the sixth season opening of Six Flags.

An outstanding feature of the carousel are the four 11-foot gondolas or "flower chariots" which are Shooters' paraphernalia behind the 600 yard line on McAndrews Range during All-Army Matches.

All-Army matches a big operation

Scenes from the recent All-Army Championship matches which were concluded here the last of May reveals that there is much more to the marksmanship game than the champions and their championship scores which are the highlights of the daily stories.

The All-Army matches are a big operation. The management of nearly 500 marksmen for a week by the Match Director, Lt. Col. (Ret.) Ed Burroughs, is a gigantic task in itself besides the intricate and demanding putting the scores on the scoreboard.

Successful statistical operation which is the backbone of the daily score keeping in the matches is based largely on the experienced marksmanship veterans of the U.S. Army Marksmanship Training Unit. These men maintain signs above the benches to guide the way to a successful shooter when they manage the bench and firing lines on the rifle ranges, coordinate firing times and operations, manage the target operation and other pit details and run the overall rifle range operation. Through their many years of experience and proven tournament procedures, the U.S. Army's highest qualified marksmen and then give them further training toward meeting and beating champion service and civilian contemporaries at the National Matches in August at Camp Perry.

Match officials during the All-Army matches are busy with registration, categorizing each shooter according to old or new status, determining level of shooting skill, obtaining home towns, category of shooter whether National Guard, Reserve, Army area, assignment of shooters to relays or squads to accommodate the many shooters in each match, range control through the use of relays, relaying while comparing notes with fellow shooters and receiving counsel from coaches, checking target hits down-range through the shooters scope, getting a gun re-worked in the invaluable mobile gun shop by the unbranded gun technician, moving into position on the firing lines where some shooters use ingenuity by improving with converted golf carts or little red wagons to carry the heavy shooting paraphernalia, husband and wife teams in which the wife is actively supporting her mate's team and concern. This all goes toward the championship matches.

ROD AND GUN CLUB Notes

BY BILL KLOER

The Georgia Game and Fish Magazine a publication of the Georgia Game and Fish Department has published the winning entries of the 1971 Georgia Big Fish Contest.

New records were established for four species of fish. The state record for the largemouth bass which is also the world record still belongs to George Perry of Brunswick, Ga. His 22 pounds, 4-ounce catch made back in 1933 seems to become more entrenched as each year passes.

The 1971 winner of the largemouth bass category went to one of the many ladies who now claim fishing as their primary hobby. Mrs. Annie Malcolm of Hampton, Ga., an Ambassador 500 reel and a matching rod for the 16-pound, 4-ounce prize she took on a black-tail worm. Before he mistook the fliptail for a meal the fish was swimming around in a small lake near Talmadge, Ga. The runner up in the largemouth category also came from this same lake. He was caught by Erik Buchhart and tipped the scales at 14-pounds, 11-ounces.

The Pflueger trophy for the largest white bass caught during 1971 went to J. M. Hobbs of Atlanta. He landed a record shattering 8-pound, 1-ounce beauty from Lake Lanier on the 6 of last year. The catch was a new state record but fell a mere three ounces shy of tying the world record.

Mrs. Shirley Layender of Athens, Ga. also received a Pflueger outfit for the black crappie she took from a small private lake near Athens. The blackie went 4-pounds, 4-ounces. No world record but a new state record and big enough to be the largest black crappie registered in the contest last year.

A 3-pound leuciscus near sunfish also known in these parts as a shellcracker earned a Georgia rod reel for John S. Reid of Montezuma, Ga. He used a pink worm to entice the prize fish from McKenzie Lake. He took his prize during the early part of August.

The prize was awarded to John F. Madrox of Phenix City, Ala. registered the largest bowfin during 1971. His 15-pound, 12-ounce catch was registered as a new state record for that species and he received a Georgia Master Fisherman Certificate. He took the rough fish from the Walter F. George Reservoir.

One prize was awarded for trout. David Harper of Ellijay, Ga. won his prize for the 12-pound, 8-ounce brown trout he took from one of the many trout streams in North Georgia. His prize may change his fishing habits. He won a Pflueger halibasting outfit, hardly ideal equipment for trout fishing.

The 37-pound channel catfish Kermit Deloach took from the Altamaha River was just two pounds lighter than the state record but big enough to earn him an Ambassador 500 reel and Garcia rod. He made his catch on July 11.

The Georgia Sportsmen's Federation and the Georgia Game and Fish Magazine hold this contest each year. Prizes are awarded for six categories of fish. Anglers taking the largest black bass, white bass, crappie, bream, mountain-trout and catfish are awarded prizes put up by the various fishing equipment manufacturers. Winners of the bass fishing contest also have their names engraved on a permanent trophy provided by the Garcia Company.

Anyone who has a valid Georgia State Fishing License is eligible to enter the contest. There is no entry fee for entering but certain procedures must be accomplished before the catch can be registered and verified.

Fish must be weighed and measured at an office of the State Game and Fish Commission or at a weighing station of the Georgia Sportsmen's Federation or if these facilities are not available the catch must be weighed and measured in the presence of two witnesses who can verify the figures and sign the entry form. The form must also be attested by a Notary Public, local law enforcement agent, a wildlife ranger or other responsible agency. Personnel working at the Rod and Gun club can perform this function and assist anglers in preparing entries.

There are several pieces of information that should be of interest to fishermen in the list of winners, places the fish were caught and the time of the year they were caught. Women got a good percentage of the prizes, some big fish were taken from some small bodies of water and all the record catches were made during the summer months. The quantity of fish caught during the hot weather may be smaller but the records indicate the quality stays pretty high.

Golf tourney winner

Gladys Fowler (R) receives the Fort Benning Officers Wives Club Golf trophy from Mary Jane Baer, club golf treasurer. Mrs. Fowler had a low net score of 144 in the two day - 36 hole medal play tournament. Barbara Standley, Mary Cannan and Mia Harris were tied for second place with scores of 144. In sudden-death play-off Mrs. Standley took second place, Mrs. Cannan third place and Mrs. Harris fourth place. Beth Tucker won fifth place with 146 and Pat Tully fifth place with 148. So-ja Gaskla won the nine-hole tournament.

139th undefeated in 931st softball

The 139th MP Co. 931st, continued its undefeated season in slow pitch softball compiling a 6-0 record and 26 straight wins including last season league and tournament play.

Last week action saw the MP's defeat A Co. 43rd Engr. by a score of 13-5. The game was highlighted with five home runs by the MP's off the bats of Tim Russell (2), Willie Avent (2) and Mike Forte (1) and a sparkling double play by Forte to Hank Apletar to Avent.

The next game saw the MP's blast B-Co. 43rd Engrs. by a score of 18-2 with every team member getting a hit and Fred Broxton going four for four and scoring 4 runs. Rudy Scott stills holds the high team average with .722 and is also 6-0 as the team pitcher.

Team statistics show 101 hits in 31 innings and a team batting average of .375, and 18 home runs. The stingy cops have held opponents under five runs per game while present records show the MP's holding down opponents hits to seven per game.

The team coach, Greg Chestnut, commented that, so far, the team has not really had to exert itself.

Chestnut, a former member of the 1969 NCAA Midwest Regional College Champions, is looking forward to the matches against 15th Finance and 524th Pers-Svc Co. as being decisive. Still, he is confident of his team's ability.

Marksmen go to Phoenix with high Olympic hopes

Army marksmen from the U. S. Army Marksmanship Training Unit left Wednesday for Phoenix, Ariz., where they will compete in the 12th U.S. International Shooting Championships which starts today. Top gunners of the U.S. Army Marksmanship Unit along with the best civilian, Reserve, National Guard, Navy, Air Force and Marine shooters will be swapping shots as they vie for top laurels. As competitors in the annual championships, the shooters will have a second and more important goal in mind, that of selection to the U.S. Olympic squad, in addition to winning national target shooting titles. A total of 34 shooters — four rifle, four pistol and six moving target — will be picked for the Olympic squad on the basis of scores fired in the matches at Phoenix. The squad will include individual competitors for two rifle, two pistol, two shotgun, one running deer event and six moving target shooters. Fresh from victories they gained in the Interservice, Southeastern Regional and a European training trip, the Army marksmen are going into the "big" matches at Phoenix with a highly-boned quality and fresh confidence in their favor gained from these competitive experiences. They also display a high competitive spirit to win and make the coveted Olympic selection to Munich. The initial competitive event at Phoenix will be a three-day 300 yard S&W match with the two top places having the distinction of being the first members to fill berths on the U.S. Olympic squad.

"$8,000 helped."

Sergeant Roy Smith was going for more than the bonus when he reenlisted. "The $8,000 helped. But part of my reason for staying in the Army is I can get the rest of my college credits for a degree. I've got 2 years in already.

"I enjoy the job I'm doing now as a drill sergeant. But I'd also like to try military intelligence. And eventually get to go to OCS.

"It's all there. It's completely up to me and my qualifications for it." Sergeant Smith views the Army as one big opportunity for a guy who wants to get ahead.

There are job and educational opportunities. In advanced electronics. Cryptography. Foreign languages. Data processing. Communications. Traffic analysis. And lots more. And travel opportunities. In Europe. Korea. Hawaii. Alaska. Panama. And the time to enjoy it. To live it. In a way no tourist ever could.

And the opportunity to save money on all the everyday things.

Like free housing. Free dental and medical care. Commissary and post exchange privileges. Low-cost life insurance. Plus one of the best retirement plans offered by any employer. Anywhere.

It's all here. It's up to you. Your Army Career Counselor has a whole book of job, duty station and training opportunities just waiting for you. He'll give you lots of reasons for staying in.

Sergeant Smith has good reasons for staying in.

Special Services plan golf tourney

The Post Special Services Division has announced that a four ball golf tournament will be held at the Sand Hill Golf Course this weekend.

The tournament, featuring stroke play in which two players playing as partners record their lowest individual score for each hole will consist of 18 holes played on each day. After the first 18 holes teams will be assigned to flights according to scores. The champions and eight winners will be determined by the low score for the entire 36 holes.

Entry fee for the tournament will be $10 for each team. All active duty and retired military personnel and their dependents over 16 years of age are eligible to enter the tournament. Entry fees will be used to provide tournament prizes. The winning team will receive a trophy. Flight winners and other winners will receive merchandise awards redeemable at the golf pro shop.

Special awards will be presented to the golfer whose tee shot is closest to the hole on No. 2 during the first 18 holes of play and to the one closest to the hole on No. 4 during the second day of play.

Registration for the tournament may be made in the golf pro shop. Entries will be accepted until 8 a.m. the first morning of the tournament.

Golf clubs, pull carts and electric carts are available on rental basis from the golf pro shop.

For additional information call the golf professional at 644-1101.

Weekend thrills found on drag strip

Drag races are fun to watch—but it's much more fun to participate. At least, that's the opinion of PFC Everett W. Banks, a typist in the Administration Office of the 197th Avn. Co.

Banks, who entered the Army in Oct. 1969, says he has always been interested in this sport, but he didn't try racing himself until six months ago. Together with two friends from Atlanta, his home town, he has purchased a 1971 Chevrolet Camaro, which they have completely reworked for the highly specialized competition of the drag strip.

Drag racing is primarily a contest of rapid acceleration. From a standing start, the drivers accelerate their cars throughout the length of a quarter-mile straight track. This type of contest requires a maximum of power, which Banks' Camaro is prepared to deliver. The original Chevy engine, rednecked to 454 cubic inches, has been outfitted with a Crappe miller a m shaft, TRW pistons, aluminum heads, and Holly 4500 carbs.

Banks and his friends race in the pro-stock class of the National Hot Rod Association. They have trucked their car all over the NDRA Division III area, racing in Florida, South Carolina, Tennessee and other states throughout the Southeast.

Banks has already collected some prize money and is confident that the future holds more of the same. In any event, it certainly beats hanging around the barracks on the weekend.

Benning soldiers needed to assist Army's physicians

The Army Surgeon General's Office recently announced that the Army Medical Department is seeking qualified enlisted applicants to enroll in the Physicians' Assistant Program. For the first time, enlisted members assigned in overseas areas will be eligible to apply.

The program, a 72-week course of instruction, trains medically-skilled enlisted members to be physicians' assistants. At the completion of the course, the members will be appointed a warrant officer in the U.S. Army Reserve. The first group of 40 warrant officer candidates began training at the Medical Field Service School, Brooke Army Medical Center, Fort Sam Houston, Texas, in February of this year.

44 cadets to receive Army orientation June 10

Thirty two U. S. Military Academy cadets and 12 Reserve Officers Training Corps cadets are scheduled to receive training with the 197th Infantry Brigade and the 931st Engineer Group under the Army Orientation Program (AOT) beginning June 10. The AOT program was established to provide the cadets with first hand knowledge of the duties, responsibilities and living conditions of a junior officer in the Army. They will receive practical experience as junior officers in an active Army unit, participating in the command, training, administration and logistical functions performed at the platoon and company level. The program also exposes the cadets to the on-duty and off-duty environment of the junior officer and increases each cadet's leadership experience.

Vets, Army's best advertising bet

DALLAS — Any serviceman who has been around a little while will tell you that the benefits of the military. Medical care, travel, education and promotion are just a few of the many reasons a service career is attractive. In Korea he would keep an eye out for the truck he knew would bring the makings of a real field exchange, regardless of the situation. Lebanon in 1968 — the tense Berlin situation in 1961 — the Cuban Crisis of 1962; AAFES was always on the scene. Today, of course, the men in Vietnam again look to AAFES for the same services they've come to expect in combat and crisis conditions. In fact, AAFES regards its operations in Vietnam as the single greatest challenge since World War II. For the first time, AAFES has undertaken to supply the troops in combat with merchandise and services completely underwritten and financed from exchange funds. In Europe, Alaska or any of several other "desirable" areas, our servicemen today is probably accompanied by his family. And all are aware of the role the Exchange Service plays in their day-to-day lives. The field soldier, too, knows he can count on AAFES. Manuevers of every type are supported by the big, well-stocked vans that serve as mobile exchanges. And while he's in the field he'll work on a man's job, he knows his wife can shop in the comfort of an exchange outlet much like the commercial department stores. Or maybe she'll visit her AAFES beauty shop. The lady after a movie or dance, they'll probably enjoy a soda or hamburger at an exchange cafeteria, snack bar or vending machine. Certainly the military Army and Air Force Exchange Service is high up on the list. Just ask any veteran.

931st career counselors honored

Career Counseling is at once one of the most misunderstood and important jobs in the Army. But many a soldier, beset by problems and indecision, has found a friend in his Career Counselor. As SFC John Beck, senior Career Counselor, 31st Engineer Group, puts it, his job occupies a place "halfway between the Chaplain and the I. G. Sergeant." Last week, the 31st Engineer Group's Career Counselors were formally honored. In a brief ceremony, they all received Certificates of Achievement. They were praised for "enthusiasm and esprit de corps, indicative of their devotion to the mission of the 31st Engineer Group (CBT)." Coming in for special mention was SSG Orville E. Short, who achieved 350 per cent of his objective. What was especially notable about SSG Short's effort was the fact that his primary duty is as truck master for the 323d Trans. Co. and he only serves as Career Counselor as additional duty. SSG Short's main function is to serve as a liaison with the 331st Engr. Gp.

Loretta Bonds, left, Dianne Emerson in car, Patty Poole in bikini and Jody Sutherland accent the sleek lines of the 1972 Corvette automobile to be awarded some lucky individual at the Fort Benning Carnival July 1. Other prizes include a 1972 Buick Riviera automobile, color television, AM-FM Radio, portable tape recorder, cassette player and a trip to Nassau for two persons.

Carnival donations earmarked for numerous Fort Benning activities

Army Community Services, Youth activities, and the Preventive Dentistry Program are just a few of the activities that donations to the Independence Day Carnival at Fort Benning will be used to support.

According to Mr. James Schoonover, Secretary-Treasurer of the Army Community Activities Association (ACAA), "The purpose of the Carnival is to raise money for ACAA." ACAA provides nursery care for Red Cross Volunteer hospital workers, and the "Run for Your Life" Awards.

Army Community Service includes the Army Relief Society, personal, marital, and child behavior counseling, and Financial Home Management Counseling. The Big Brother Program, Hospitality House, the Emergency Food Locker, the Handicapped Children's Program, and Citizenship Classes are also sponsored by ACS.

Donations to the Carnival are 50 cents each, and entitle the buyer to be eligible for a number of door prizes which will be awarded at the Carnival.

Among the door prizes to be awarded are a 1972 Buick Riviera, a 1972 Chevrolet Corvette, a trip to Nassau for two or its cash equivalent, a Panasonic color portable TV set, a Panasonic AM-FM radio, a Bell and Howell cassette tape player, and a Craig reel-to-reel portable tape recorder.

The carnival will take place on Saturday, July 1, at York Field and Infantry Hall. Activities will open with a parade on York Field at 11 a.m., followed by an opening ceremony at noon.

THE FAT'S IN THE FIRE — the pentagon shaped building in Washington has once again discovered fat. Anyone who has been in the Army for more than a year has heard the story... get rid of the fat... over and over. Usually however, the cry dies down after a short while and the overweight go back to punching new holes in their bellies.

This time it looks like the Army means business. A revised weight control regulation, AR 600-1, which was effective June 1, says that fat GIs who lack interest or have a bad attitude toward shrinking their waistline are heading toward trouble.

If you find that you're one of those jolly fat fellows in green, Main Post Gym has just the program for you. Weight room, handball, paddleball and a shiny new Sauna Bath. You might try pushups at the dinner table also, you know... back away from.

The Army celebrates 197th year

Well on the way to what will be a major bicentennial birthday celebration in 1976, The Army Wednesday celebrated its 197th year of service to the nation.

At Fort Benning a number of activities marked the anniversary, including a reception for officers and their wives at the Main Officers Club and a similar event for noncommissioned officers and soldiers and their wives at the Main NCO Club, Crain Hall.

Happy hour parties were observed at other clubs on post. Other activities included golf tournaments at the Fort Benning Country Club and the Sand Hill Golf Course.

The day was declared a partial holiday by Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbot, Fort Benning commander.

Can your wife lift 450 pounds? Then use seat belts!

FT. MONROE, Va. — If your wife can lift 450 pounds, then all I need to say to you is beware of family arguments and I wish you good luck and good health in your marriage. If your wife can't lift 450 pounds, then be aware that you're risking your child's life every time she holds him on her hip in a moving automobile.

In a sudden stop (like a rear-end collision at 10 mph), a small child will generate a sudden force of more than 450 pounds. This is enough to tear him out of the average wife's arms and hurtle him into the dashboard or windshield like a fresh egg — with much the same results.

We get all too many of these injuries in our emergency room. Are people just careless? Can they be unaware of the great forces that are generated in sudden crashes from relatively slow speeds? Do they assume it can't happen to them?

A recent survey on this post showed less than half the people driving automobiles were wearing seat belts. There have been tons of publicity on the value of seat belts in the prevention of death and injury but people still ignore this lifesaving device.

I won't bore you with all of these statistics, but remember if you're in any auto accident you stand a 76 per cent chance of injury or death if you don't use seat belts, compared to 30 per cent chance of injury, if you are wearing them. The use of a "can seat" which hooks over the back of the front seat is useless in protecting the child in anything other than a normal stop. In the sudden stop of a collision, the seat and child will smash into the windshield or dashboard.

Little children present a special problem because they are difficult to keep under a standard auto seat belt. This is a "can seat" which hooks over the back of the front seat is useless in protecting the child in anything other than a normal stop. In the sudden stop of a collision, the seat and child will smash into the windshield or dashboard.

When you buy a car seat for your little one, make sure the seat conforms to the Federal Vehicle Safety Act 213 (for seats) and 209 (for harnesses). If it does it will say so proudly. These seats protect your child as your own seat belt will protect you — if you use them.

No matter how good a driver you are there's always the other idiot who can kill you or your family by his own criminal negligence. Get the odds in your favor by using your seat belt every time you drive.

240 ROTC Cadets challenge rugged nine-week summer Ranger Course

Approximately 240 Reserve Officers Training Corps cadets, the first increment of more than 450 ROTC cadets from colleges throughout the country, have begun a challenging nine-week U.S. Army Ranger course here.

The cadets completed processing, witnessed a Rangers in Action Demonstration and received arms training prior to the actual start of the Ranger Course.

The Benning phase of their training will be completed by July 2 and the cadets will depart for the rugged mountain phase at Dahlonega July 5. The second increment of all ROTC cadets will begin inprocessing June 30.

Those cadets successfully completing as much as six weeks of the program will meet their summer camp requirement. Cadets who finish the strenuous 63-day course will be awarded the coveted Ranger tab.

The special Ranger school classes for ROTC cadets is a substitute for the summer camp requirement placed on all ROTC cadets who plan to become commissioned officers in the Army and Reserve Components.

Selection of volunteers for the Ranger program is accomplished by the professors of military science at each college, from a limited allocation, according to Capt. James S. Reach Jr., senior tactical officer.

The Army pays the transportation cost for the cadets selected for the program. Each cadet also receives a salary equal to one-half that of a second lieutenant's while he is attending the course.

The Ranger course the learning and firing the M16, but basically, the 1,061 hours of training the cadets receive will be the same, according to Roach. The cadets will receive extensive training in hand to hand combat, conditioning marches, physical training, mechanical courses, terrain association, aerial photograph reading and survival training throughout the course.

Lt. Col. Karl V. Hurdie, chief of the Benning Ranger Committee, said: "Ranger School is a real test for these people. It is an experience they have never been exposed to before and will probably be the most challenging thing they will encounter in their lives."

"The main purpose of Ranger School is to teach leadership. This is taught by placing each man into leadership positions during times of stress. And you would be surprised at the stress that can be exerted by fellow cadets who are tired, cold, wet and hungry. It can really get tight," Hurdie said.

Although the ROTC cadets may be lacking in military knowledge when they start the course, Hurdie said this is compensated for by their high degree of motivation, and one of the children held an umbrella over it.

"Several offers were made to pay Dr. Nash," continued Saunders, "but he just smiled and said 'that's OK!'"

Nash treated the stricken animal for shock, then took it to the post veterinary clinic where Pvt. Michael K. Young and Spt Gordon H. Helfert assisted him in treating the dog.

Regrettably, there was no owner to claim the dog. It was just an unlikely stray that had been hit by a car.

"I had to turn it over to the Muscogee County Dog Pound," sighed Nash.

However, most of the people on the scene were impressed by the compassion shown by the veterinarian.

"With all the swipes that everyone seems to be taking at the military now," declared Saunders, "little acts of kindness like this can't help but show a little bit how valuable our military is to the community."

Post vet helps injured dog

This is the story of a not so average act performed by a not so average soldier: Capt. Kenneth C. Nash, a veterinarian at Fort Benning, was just before 9 o'clock on a rainy evening in May. The Nash family was preparing for dinner when there was a knock on the door.

Mike Sanders, the resident manager of the Holly Hills Apartments, was standing in the rain. He told Nash that there was an injured dog on Oakley Drive. The Columbus police had been notified, but had not responded to the concerned citizens' calls for help.

When Nash arrived on the scene, he saw a large congregation of children and adults who had gathered around a small black and brown female mongrel.

"We were scared to move her out of the street," Saunders said in a letter to Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbot, post commander. "So we covered the dog with newspaper to keep her warm, and one of the children held an umbrella over it."

"Several offers were made to pay Dr. Nash," continued Saunders, "but he just smiled and said 'that's OK!'"

Nash treated the stricken animal for shock, then took it to the post veterinary clinic where Pvt. Michael K. Young and Spt Gordon H. Helfert assisted him in treating the dog.

Regrettably, there was no owner to claim the dog. It was just an unlikely stray that had been hit by a car.

"I had to turn it over to the Muscogee County Dog Pound," sighed Nash.

However, most of the people on the scene were impressed by the compassion shown by the veterinarian.

"With all the swipes that everyone seems to be taking at the military now," declared Saunders, "little acts of kindness like this can't help but show a little bit how valuable our military is to the community."

Buckled shoes are out

Fort Benning soldiers who are wearing black "slip on" shoes or those with buckles in the place of Army low quarters are literally walking into a uniform violation.

According to AR 670-5, which governs proper use of the uniform, low quarters must be "of the adopted design." A picture accompanying the regulation shows a shoe with laces.

Other requirements are that low quarters must be black and made of leather or polymeric material with leather finish. Patent leather finish is not permitted.

The regulation also states that plain toe shoes, blucher, oxford, chukka boots or footwear of similar commercial design which meet the above specifications may be worn.

"Similar commercial design, in this instance, means that shoes with laces must be worn," a spokesman from the Post Directorate of Personnel and Community.

Infantry Board shows post students value of computers

BY DOUG WIENER

Most people today know the big part computers play in the activities of most large businesses and industries. Hopefully, the fifth and sixth grade pupils at Edward A. Willie Elementary School also have a better understanding of computers, thanks to the special instruction they received recently.

Spt's Logan Hughes and Tom Wagner, both Mathematics Statistics Assistants working in the Methodology Branch of the Infantry Board, were given the opportunity to instruct the grade schoolers on this subject which isn't ordinarily found in the pre-high school curriculum.

Although some of the topics covered, such as, computer usage, programming logic, and occupations related to computers, sound rather complicated for the elementary students, Hughes claims everything discussed was on their level. "We used a non-technical approach."

It all started back in March when both men volunteered to take over Mrs. Elizabeth Martinson's fifth grade class for an afternoon. When other teachers discovered how well Mrs. Martinson's students enjoyed the class, Hughes and Wagner were asked to return to instruct each of the two sixth grade classes.

Two desk-programmable calculators were borrowed from the Infantry Board officers and used during the instruction periods to give the students a basic idea of simple computers. Each child was then given the opportunity to work a simple problem on one of the machines.

Teaching is not a new experience for Hughes or Wagner. Both taught junior high school mathematics before entering the Armed Services, and each man stated that he plans to make teaching a career after leaving the Army.

When asked what he felt the major advantage was to this type of practical classroom experience, Hughes stated, "It is important in education to motivate kids whenever you can. They are motivated when they try something different. Kids get bored with textbooks. That is why it is good to get away from them sometimes."

Local boys to attend camp at Benning thru Aug. 12

This week marks the first session of summer camp for 50-600 boys from the Columbus area. The camp has been named SSM, or Summer Action-Maneuvers.

The youngsters, who are between the ages of 9 and 13, are attending the Youth Summer Residential Camp Program, which is a Domestic Action Program organized by local civilian agencies and supported by the Department of the Army.

Fifty boys will stay in the barracks at South Harmony Church each week between now and August 12, except for the week of July 4. The first group, which arrived June 12, came from the Harris Playground in Bibb City, Columbus. Like the other boys who will attend, they were selected by their playground directors.

The Lower Chattahoochee Community Action Agency provided the funds for the project, which will cost a total of about $10,000, according to Mr. A. J. Conde of the Special Services Division, Directorate of Personnel and Community Activities, which coordinated the Fort Benning phase of the project.

Fort Benning resources provided the housing and food for the campers, as well as recreational facilities such as use of the gymnasium, pool, athletic fields, library, and movies. Medical and dental services and on-call chaplain services are also being provided by Fort Benning.

The Columbus Recreation Department is responsible for the planning, organization, and supervision of the camp, as well as transportation to and from the area each week and reimbursement for supplies used.

Sound-off

Do you understand the election system?

Since this is election year, Sound Off took the opportunity to find out if the average person understands the election system. We asked 21 people, "Do you know the purpose of the Electoral College and do you think it is effective?" Five had answers.

SP4 Steven Nancarrow, 10th Co, 1st Battalion, TSB, says no. Nancarrow said, "From what I've been told and read, people don't have that much to say when voting. The big people, the ones in the Electoral College, actually choose the President." He continued with the thought "Everybody's patriotic and votes but it doesn't count much. The electors from the states do not have to vote the way their states did. The president should be elected directly."

know more about what's going on than most of the people who are voting. The way they elect the president is a little bit different than they should be.

Sgt. John Cashin feels the Electoral College has a purpose but says "Right now, I think it is inaccurate. The way they have the vote distribution figured out, the votes are one-sided." Cashin is in Co. B, 1st Battalion, 50th Infantry.

EDITOR'S NOTE:

Each state has a number of electors equal to the number of its senators and congressmen. These men meet the first Monday after the second Wednesday in December to vote for the President and Vice President. The ballots are sent to the President of the U.S. Senate and opened in a joint session of Congress on January 6. If no candidate has a majority, the House of Representatives selects the President. Each state delegation then has one vote.

The framers of the Constitution developed the Electoral College to balance the interests between the large, populous states who would carry any direct vote, and the numerous small states who would control a vote in the House.

SP4 Lionel Miles of the 7th Co, 7th Student Battalion spoke briefly: "I think each person's vote

"I'm TIED UP NOW, TRY CALLING 545-0000 OR 645-????"

Professionalism is not complacency

In an atmosphere where professionalism is so avidly stressed, both military and civilian personnel at Fort Benning should more actively accept the challenges presented by their job.

So many times routine duties are plagued with a mass of paperwork or a chain of command that is not responsive to the immediate requirements. In order to get anything accomplished on some tasks, it takes the proverbial "boot of the commander."

How many times have you called a department or an office only to be given a phone number — or several phone numbers — of another person that MIGHT be able to give the requested answer? All too often, you find yourself calling back to the original contact for the needed information.

While people are hesitant to admit that hard work is gratifying, virtually no one finds contentment in having nothing constructive towards which to apply their labor.

Troops in the field complain when they spend idle time. Because time is priceless commodity, anyone that fails to make proper use of every minute is failing his job and himself.

"Lost, yesterday, somewhere between sunrise and sunset, two golden hours, each set with 60 diamond minutes. No reward is offered, for they are gone forever."

What is there in human nature that leads us to procrastinate, to rationalize that "it's not my duty to perform such a job?" Could it be sheer laziness?

Complacency in job performance has no place in either the civilian community or the military. There is little reward, intrinsic or external, for satisfaction with the status quo. Most people would agree that job satisfaction is achieved by becoming involved, by putting forth an effort beyond the common call. Yet in reality, their achievements fall short of their goals.

Where the testing ground for a volunteer Army has been remarkably landscaped, cultivation of our assets — our manpower — is imperative. If we continue to feed our complacency, progress will undoubtedly be stifled.

Each of us must do our part. We must reach out to one another in mutual support. For in the final analysis, it is within the realm of military support that our missions and objectives can best be accomplished.

We are all part of one team. With that realization, isn't it time that we put forth a concerted effort to make that team the best in the Army, C.F.K.

Appearance reflects Army's image

The United States Army is proud of its history and heritage and wishes to continue its warm friendship and allegiance with the citizens of this country.

The individual soldier is the Army's best public relations agent and as such is expected to present a good and honorable image of the soldier to the public.

We as soldiers, whether draftees or enlistees, should do our best to counteract bad publicity which the Army has been subjected to in past months. We should know that we are in extension of the American public, that our arm is coiled only for the defense and protection of our country.

This country was instituted through the courage and persistence of our soldiers and has protected our freedoms won through our early baptism of blood.

Today's soldier, following in the footsteps of his ancestors as the builders of our democracy, is a professional dedicated to his chosen profession. He wants his job to command the same "respect" as the jobs of non-military professions. . . and rightly so. In asking this "respect," he projects an image of professionalism and honor.

This "respect" is not provided free. Every soldier in our Armed Forces is expected to lay his life on the line in defense of American tradition and ideals.

Do you as a soldier hold up your portion of our image? The way you dress and act reflects the attitude of the Army as a whole. (PT)

CONARC releases POV accidents survey statistics

Everybody invariably knows something about how accidents are caused, but how many of us people know who the "other guy" they should watch out for is?

An in depth survey conducted by Conventional Army Command (CONARC) provides the latest information on the seriousness of the privately owned vehicle (POV) problem in the United States.

In CONARC's Privately Owned Vehicle Accident and Fatality Analysis, statistics of calendar year 1970-71 POV fatalities are given.

In 1970, there were 332 POV deaths, as compared to 388 in 1971. Passengers accounted for 99 of the total in 1970, 104 in 1971. Pedestrian deaths hit the 33 mark in 1970, but went up to 35 in 1971.

Of the 210 "at fault" drivers who died in 1970, 131 perished in accidents at night, while the remaining 79 met death in daylight crashes. The 1971 figures are much the same, of 229 "at fault" drivers, 145 died at night, 74 during daylight hours.

Enlisted men are involved in a predominantly larger number of accidents than officers, with personnel in grades E-1 through

E-4 accounting for over one-third of all accidents involving fatalities.

Oddly enough, no sergeants major were involved in fatal accidents in either year.

Fifth Army has the highest death count among drivers with 101 in 1970, and 92 in 1971. Third Army was next with 86 fatalities in 1971, 77 in 1970. The lowest death rate is in Sixth Army where only 18 drivers died in 1970 and 23 in 1971.

According to the survey, the majority of accidents occur after duty hours of post. The majority of accidents involving military drivers are caused by the operator speeding, not taking the proper safety precautions, falling asleep at the wheel, driving in the wrong lane or crossing the centerline, or failing to yield the right of way. An interesting note is that of the 794 military sustaining disabling injuries in which seat belts were installed in the vehicle, 777 drivers and passengers were not wearing the available restraint devices.

Artist receives recognition

SFC Paul A. Kuntz is a noted artist who has received little credit for his ability. Kuntz is the Re-Up NCO for RHC and has designed many Re-Up posters which are distributed throughout the group. While many have seen his work, Kuntz has managed, till now, to keep himself in the background. He was responsible for the "Pick A Star," "Travel" and "Education" posters.

His latest creation, though, features his "doodiebug," a small life-model foreign car, with a large key fixed to the front. The theme of the poster will be "She is the man with the key." The man with the key is, of course, Kuntz.

Pancakes and sausages will be served. This breakfast is free to members and $4.85 for guests. Deadline for reservations is June 23. The hostesses for the event are Mrs. Josa Trevino, 544-1650, Mrs. Gerald Fitzgerald, 544-1590, Mrs. David Albridge, 1888-5601, and Mrs. Jimmy Bacon, 545-3147.

Post Rangers cook up 'survivor dinner' for 940 USMA Cadets

Over 900 USMA Cadets were guests at a "Survivor Dinner and Forum" last Thursday evening at Camp Darby, the Ranger Department's training area east of Cassa.

Sponsored by the Patroling Committee, the dinner and forum gave the cadets an opportunity to relax and enjoy a meal of fine Ranger delicacies and to have informal discussions with infantry officers and NCO's.

Upon arrival at Camp Darby, the cadets were broken down into groups of ten, with each group assigned an officer and NCO from the Infantry School. The groups were guided to eleven stations set up to demonstrate survival techniques. Among the displays at each station were underground fireplaces, instant cookers, simple crane roasting pits, fish traps, snares, and jerky drying racks. A short briefing was presented at each station explaining how to obtain and prepare edible plants and animals in a survival situation. The main meal planned for the cadets was Long Range Patrol rations, but most seemed to prefer the varied delicacies prepared by the cadres of the Patroling Committee. Maj. Gen. Talbot visited the stations with Col. Grange, Director of the Ranger Department, and sampled the menu of gourmet delights which included grilled rattlesnake and venison, roasted rabbit, racoon, chicken, and catfish; corn on the cob, cyskers, jerky and some famous Ranger Siew (The ingredients of which are a highly prized secret) To accompany the meal the cadets had cokes, keg beer, and tasty, home-brewed sangria tea.

Throughout the evening the cadets had the opportunity to informally discuss any aspect of military life with the Infantry School guides and Ranger cadre. Capt. Joe Tye and SFC James Ferrell, project officer, and NCO for the dinner, both agreed that the entire evening was well received by the cadets. Judging from the lack of food left at the stations departed at nine that evening, the future officers of the Military Academy at least had gained an appreciation for the finer aspects of Ranger living.

"Duster" provides enlistees with OJT

"This weapon really does a good job," states Sgt. Michael Crouse, a Btry, 2nd Bn., 10th Field Arty., an instructor for the M-42 Twin 40 millimeter Self-Propelled Automatic Weapon (SRAW), otherwise known as the "Duster."

The most interesting to Crouse are unit-of-choice enlistees for on the job (OJT) training in the Military Occupational Specialty (MOS) 16F, light air defense artillery, Duster crewman.

The Duster was built in 1942 as an anti-aircraft weapon. With the Vietnam Conflict underway the Duster was ordered overseas, not only as an anti-aircraft weapon but also as an anti-personnel weapon. The change of its present status started in 1967 when the ground troops in Vietnam were in desperate need of heavy equipment. The Duster was called upon and accomplished its mission.

"The Duster received its name due to the great dust screen it created on its many missions in Vietnam," mentioned Crouse. The light air defense artillery piece was not the only track to create a dust storm, but because it was the lead vehicle in scouting patrols the other vehicles had to "eat dust."

The Duster is a track vehicle that has a strong fire power. It fires 200 rounds of ammunition a minute from a four round clip. Each track has a crew of six. It has an accurate firing range of eight kilometers or approximately five miles. "The weapon is outstanding against ground troops," said Crouse. The instructor served in Vietnam as a Duster crewman. He stated that "it is one of the most efficient weapons against ground troops that the United States Army has."

Army now offering $1500 to enlist for combat MOS

WASHINGTON (ANF) — A 90-day test program which offers a bonus of $1500 to persons enlisting in designated combat arms military occupational specialties (MOSs) has been announced by the Department of the Army effective June 1, 1972.

Presently, an individual enlisting for one of the designated MOSs incurs an obligation of four years in order to receive the bonus. The amount of the bonus accord the terms of enlistment may be subject to change in the future.

Because combat arms enlistments under this program are controlled by quota, the program may be stopped from time to time according to manpower needs.

The enlistment bonus will be paid to persons who initially enlist for one of the designated combat arms (infantry, armor and field artillery) MOSs on or after June 1, but not later than Aug. 31, 1972. They must meet the criteria described in Table 5-39, AR 600-210.

Eligible for the program are: initial enlistees; reserve components personnel not on active duty who enlist in the Regular Army if they have not previously received or are not currently entitled to a reenlistment bonus; prior service personnel if they have completed not more than three years active service and have had a break of more than three months following their last separation.

An individual is entitled only one enlistment bonus and will not be paid both an enlistment bonus and a reenlistment bonus for the same period of service. Neither is the bonus payable to inductees who enlist at the reception stations, although individuals who have received their draft notices may enlist for the bonus up to 10 days prior to induction.

Non-prior service personnel and non-MOS qualified prior service personnel will be paid the bonus upon award of a designated MOS. MOS qualified prior service personnel will be paid the bonus at their first permanent duty station.

Details of this test program are contained in DA Message 271402314572.

Post NCO places in photo contest

A Fort Benning NCO placed third and fifth recently in two categories of a statewide photographic competition sponsored by the Georgia Professional Photographers Association (GPPA).

SFC A. L. Pendleton, staff photographer for the U.S. Army Marksmanship Training Unit, won the camera honors with pictures of a woman weeping at a wedding and a church at Georgia's Callaway Gardens. The two categories were "formal wedding" and "fine arts."

The more than 400 entries in the competition were judged by a panel of nationally-known photographers.

Pendleton said he had not expected to place; he was not on hand in Atlanta when the winners were announced.

"When I came in, I first sifted through the stack of rejects looking for my work," he said. "When I didn't find it, I knew I must have won something."

Pendleton credited his wife, Sandra, with providing the inspiration he needed to take the prize, saying "she was indispensable."

Pendleton also was honored recently for his photographic talents by the Georgia State Conference of GPPA in Atlanta. The 16-year Army veteran and his wife have been GPPA members since 1967. The Pacific Command named Pendleton the "most outstanding photographer in the Far East" in 1963 during a two-year stint with Pacific Stars and Stripes.

Pendleton's work has appeared in numerous publications, including THE BAYONET, Army Magazine, Army Times and the Columbus Ledger-Examiner.

He presently is studying for his masters degree in photography at Columbus College.

Race Relations Team back from Ft. Sill

The post Race Relations Team has started teaching and research since 1968. The instructor training course away from home for the first time classes were held at Fort Sill, Okla., in late May for 36 instructors from various western installations.

The training prepares instructors to lead race relations classes at their installations. Taught in seminars, the course develops an awareness of the history, culture, and problems of various minorities. Discussions cover methods of recognizing and dealing with various forms of racism, with ways to improve understanding, and with preventing racial problems.

Fort Benning has been the proponent agency for all race relations training and research since 1968. The Team prepares classes and material for training new instructors and for race relations seminars.

Before and after

Soldiers of the 1st Bn. (Mech), 88th Inf. (Paratro), 197th Inf. Bde., recently saw an automobile impact demonstration. The battalion watched a 1965 Corvair fall 215 feet from a helicopter at Todd Field West. The demonstration was staged to show the soldiers what excess speed could do to a car. The car hit the ground with the same impact as one traveling on the ground at 30 miles-an-hour. Before the car was demolished, Capt. Joseph Brand, Bn. S-2, told the soldiers what was going to happen in terms of a second and what a car and victim would experience in an accident on the ground. Brand said, "This accident could happen in seven tenths of a second." Following the demonstration, the soldiers examined the car and saw proof of what they had been told about the impact of a speeding automobile.

VA relaxes lost proof policies

A lost birth certificate or marriage license no longer poses the problem it once did for veterans seeking veterans benefits. A. W. Tate, Director, Atlanta Veterans Administration Regional Office, reported today.

He said less formal proof of marriage and birth are now acceptable, under a regulation initiated last October, when this information is needed to establish claims for many benefit payments.

A veteran's or a widow's certified statement of marriage is now sufficient for applications for compensation and education benefits for veterans, widows and orphan children, provided neither he nor his wife have been married before, and VA has no contradictory information on file, Tate said.

Prior to the change in regulations, VA required all statements of marriages and births to be supported by formalized documentary evidence.

A certified statement is acceptable also regarding the birth of a child of a veteran's marriage, and as proof of age and relationship, Tate said. For further information contact the nearest VA office or your local veterans service organization representative.

Sgt. Garnet Walls works on his "friend," a '41 ton jeep that has helped him win the title of 197th Brigade driver of the month three months in a row. (photo by Kerry M. Cox.)

Sp4 Walls wins Driver of Month

"A lot of people consider it an everyday job, but in order to pass the numerous inspections and to keep your vehicle performing right, you have to give just a little more effort," related Sp4 Garnet Walls. Walls, stationed with the 197th Support Battalion, 197th Infantry Brigade, has proved his point, that an extra effort helps, by winning the battalion driver of the month competition three months in a row.

"I was real pleased with winning the battalion title of driver of the month, but I considered the brigade competition the real challenge," explained the young driver, of G Company.

"The rewards that I have received from both the battalion and brigade ($25 Savings Bonds and three day passes) have been a real incentive to me. It makes my job important and shows me that the people who oversee the drivers have respect for our job," said Walls, "this, I feel, gives the soldier the incentive to give that little extra to achieve the title of driver of the month."

In explaining the competition, Walls commented that "most people do not realize that these tests consist of written exams, actual driving courses and vehicle inspections."

197th selects Miss SARA for safety

The 197th Infantry Brigade has instituted a new safety program called the Safety Awareness Reduces Accidents (SRAA) program.

As a constant reminder emphasizing the safety program a MISS SARA has been selected to show the need to obey traffic laws. Gerry Nitz, a civilian employee at Fort Benning, has been chosen to be MISS SARA. She is also an honorary member of the 197th for accepting the title MISS SARA.

In a recent letter sent to all commanders in the Brigade, Col. Edwin L. Kennedy, Brigade Commander, emphasized the necessity for all troops to keep the need for traffic safety.

Each year traffic violators are apprehended by the law and dealt with severely. Laws were meant to be obeyed and enforcement of the laws is a necessity.

The SARA program has been instituted into the brigade to lower the rate of traffic accidents. Spot checks are held to check whether or not individuals are wearing seat belts. If the motorist is wearing a seat belt at the time the check is made he can earn from one to five dollars. Also the program has instituted into each battalion safety talks. Along with the talks are films showing the necessity of safety and what can happen if traffic laws go unheeded.

Since you have to shave every day, you may as well get a comfortable one.

Shaving isn't fun. But it doesn't have to be unpleasant either. A lot depends on the tools you use. Take shaving cream. You need a shaving cream that's moist. Because its moisture makes your whiskers soft and easy to cut. Rise has enough moisture to do just that. Slowly it seeps moisture into your beard and holds it there for as long as it takes you to shave. Rise. It can't make shaving fun. But it can make it comfortable.

Benning recycles recyclable paper

Fort Benning delivered 37,630 lbs. of recyclable paper to State Paper Box Co. of Columbus. The paper had been collected from individuals and units by the Post Recycle Point, operated by Environmental Management Division, DFAC.

Though the post has been recycling paper and cardboard from the printing plant, commissary, and PX since 1967, this was the first major delivery of post-consumer recyclable paper. Besides saving an estimated 160,000 lbs. of timber from the woodsman's axe, reprocessing this kind of paper will eliminate much of the massive amounts of energy and chemicals and water and air (odor) pollution — used in the manufacture of paper from raw wood.

Irving Cohen, General Manager for State Paper Box Co., pointed out that paper recycling helps not only to keep down the price of building lumber, but also, in making lumber more available, spurs the building industry.

Thirty seven thousand pounds is only a very small part of what paper recycling can do for the building industry. Recycling is a solution to the problem of America's diminishing resources. The post recycles

931st night at Golden Park

OUT!!!

With a dusty slide, Lt. Col. Richard J. Rappaport (center on ground) tags another policeman. The umpire calls "Out!", as Dallas Müller, 3rd Baseman, moves in to cover the play.

931st - 4-3

A team, made up of officers and WCOs, from the 931st Engr. Gp. challenged and defeated a team from the Columbus Police Department 4-3 in a four inning exhibition softball game held in Golden Park (home of the Columbus Astros). The event was billed as a "doubleheader," with the Astros playing a regular league game after the exhibition game.

Pitching for the Engineers was Col. Robert J. Stanley, commanding officer of the 931st. The Engineer's shortstop, 1st Lt. Edward A. Urban, was the bright spot for the 931st as he carved out two singles in two times at bat along with being errorless on the field.

Both teams provided attractive bat girls which added to the evening. Serving as bat girls for the Engineers were Ilana Pruitt, Sandy Stratford and Debby Roberts, daughter of MSgt. Leonard Roberts (coach of the 931st team).

The evening was anything but boring as Maj. Alvin T. Turner, Adjutant for the 931st Engr. Gp., announced the game provided several colorful comments that were "not necessarily policies of the U. S. Army."

Some of Maj. Turner's remarks included a brief outline of the 931st's Unit of Choice Recruiting Program along with a play-by-play account of the action on the field.

The 931st's "Recruiting Van" was also on hand to show the people in attendance the diversity and variety of jobs available in an Engineer unit. The van has played a valuable role in the 931st's Recruiting Program and has toured Georgia, Alabama and Florida.

The 931st Engineer Group Night was topped off as Col. Stanley threw in the game ball to start the Astros game, and a little fatigued, settled back into his seat to enjoy the ball game, this time as a spectator.

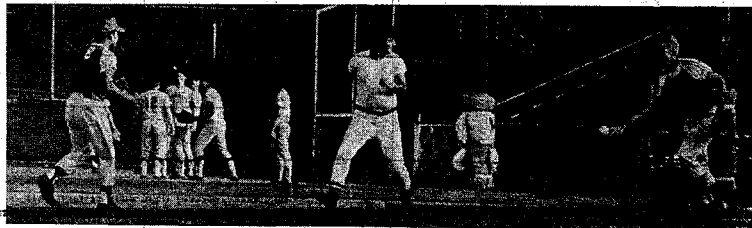

Need a bat?

Three important reasons why the 931st defeated the policemen. Miss Ilana Pruitt, Miss Sandy Stratford and Miss Debby Roberts were the bat-girls for the Engineers. With these girls on their team, the 931st Engineers were the favorites from the outset.

Which way?

Which way to run seems to be the big question in this policeman's mind as he is caught in a pickle by Maj. Jack D. Yates (R) and SPS Santiago Menchaca (L). Helpless, he was soon picked off between bases, an easy prey for the Engineers.

All wet!

The state of Georgia has a new organization dedicated to the preservation of bass fishing and the maintenance of waters that will provide good habitat for these fish. It's called the Georgia Federation of BASS chapters.

It will seem odd but the origin of the organization was in Montgomery, Ala., and the sponsoring organization was the Bass Anglers Sportsman Society (BASS).

BASS is a national organization devoted to the preservation of bass fishing. It counts more than 87,000 members in numerous local chapters throughout the country. Georgia has more than 30 of these chapters who belong to the national organization.

The basic purpose of the organization is to provide a framework which the Georgia bass anglers can quickly and effectively respond to threats against the Georgia bass population. The organization will facilitate organized campaigns against any legislation that could lower the quality or quantity of bass waters, unrealistic fishing regulations or any number of other activities that threaten the bass fishing.

BASS feels that to preserve bass fishing more people must become interested fishermen organized to preserve bass habitat will insure that the sport will live for future generations.

There are other benefits people other than bass fishermen will realize from the efforts of the new federation. Improving bass fishing waters will help clean up the state rivers, creeks and lakes. Fishermen other than bass fishermen will also reap the benefits. Boating enthusiasts and swimmers will also benefit. In fact anyone in the state has to benefit a little bit when pollution is eliminated.

The BASS has a reputation for being a leader in any move to improve the ecology. The Society has filed more than 280 separate anti-pollution suits against some of the nation's largest industries to prohibit them from fouling up the nation's waters with refuse.

Ray Scott, president of BASS said "We fully expect the Georgia Federation of BASS Chapters to become the first line of defense against water pollution, canalization and other threats to quality waters in the state of Georgia."

The first meeting of the new organization saw the appointment of five Georgians to the founding board of directors, the adoption of a constitution and by-laws and a declaration of goals.

All of the men elected to the board of governors have long records as champions of our ecology in general and the specific objective of improving bass fishing in the state known as the best bass fishing state in the nation.

The first president of the organization is Emory Posey, an engineer and outdoor writer from Macon. Members of the board include Tom Ellis of Austell, Ga., a credit company supervisor, Victory Warner of America, an anesthetist and Gene Pendley of Dalton, Ga.

The new federation will provide additional activities for bass fishing. They plan to conduct several fishing tournaments each year. One of the events will be known as BASS Youth Week. This event will introduce youngsters to the sport of bass fishing. Several other tournaments for members of Georgia chapter will also be planned. The big one will be an annual Georgia BASS Chapter State Championship Fishing Tournament in which the six top anglers of each of the affiliated chapters will compete for the state championship and the right to represent Georgia in the National Team Fishing Championship which is similar to the Bassmasters Classic held for professional fishermen each year. These activities will be an addition to programs now in effect. Each BASS chapter conducts several tournaments for members each year. They also undertake projects designed to improve fishing in their local area. Meetings provide a forum for discussions of fishing techniques and of stories about the big one that got away.

There are several chapters of BASS in the Fort Benning area. The newest one is the Fort Benning Chapter recently organized on Post. This Chapter has only been in operation a few months but already numbers more than 20 members. Anyone interested can get more information from Lt. Col. Farris, 595-9412.

Bragg retains tennis championships

Fort Bragg veterans took their second straight Third Army Tennis Championship in the 1972 matches held at Ft. Gordon, Ga. last week.

The Bragg team accounted for 19 points during the tournament. Ft. Gordon was the second place team with 14 points and Ft. Jackson was third with 11 points. The Fort Benning team scored their only two points in the tournament when the WAC doubles team of Marcella Kaplan and Suzette Serra took runner up honors in the ladies doubles competition. Winners of the event were Janice Lathouwers and Hazel Brown of Ft. Gordon.

Dale Schwicker of Ft. Bragg lost the mens singles title he has held for several years when he lost out in the final matches to George Amaya of Ft. Gordon.

The Bragg men's doubles team of Schwicker and Lanhart Schuerman of Bragg also had to relinquish their 1971 doubles title when they lost the final set to Lewis Weisser and Walter Eisman of Ft. Jackson and had to settle for runner up honors.

Leroy Stanley of Ft. Bragg was successful in his defense of the senior mens championship he won last year. He defeated Frank Caneda in the final match to duplicate last years play. Caneda was also runner up in this division last year.

Stanley teamed with Joe Love of Ft. Bragg to win the mens senior doubles championship over Caneda and Phillip Avery of Ft. Gordon.

In the womens singles competition Janice Lathouwers was successful in her defense of the championship she won last year. Hazel Brown of Ft. Gordon took the runner up position.

"I'm ahead in the Army."

Sergeant Mike Kelly may not get rich in the Army but he's not doing badly.

"I like the way the Army is coming up with the money situation. The bonus, definitely. I got $10,000 and 30 days for six years. Picture me with that much money.

"I wanted to do something different. And the Army said okay. So I picked radio mechanic and got it.

"There's the other benefits too. Free medical care. Dental work. Any legal assistance.

"And I have lots of time to do the things I want. And the retirement. I've thought a great deal about it. Sit around at age 37 and draw half of whatever I make in rank. That's not bad!"

Sergeant Kelly figures the Army offers just about all the things a man needs.

Plenty of opportunity for job satisfaction. With all the hundreds of jobs in the Army there's bound to be a dozen or so that'll give you the kind of self-fulfillment you're looking for.

Money. You'd have to make almost twice as much as a civilian to duplicate what you get in Army pay and benefits. And the checks keep coming. Steady. Whether you're sick or well.

With regular promotions and bonuses to look forward to, and you also have somebody taking care of everyday things. Like housing. Dental and medical care. Commissary and post exchange privileges. Low-cost life insurance. Plus one of the best retirement plans ever made.

Your Army Career Counselor has a whole book of job, duty station and training opportunities that add up to the good life. Talk to him about it. He'll give you lots of reasons for staying in.

Sergeant Kelly has good reasons for staying in.

Why are you staying in?

Former marksman wins Olympic berth

PHOENIX, Ariz. — The first two members to be selected to the 1972 U.S. Olympic Shooting team won their berths Sunday in the final day of the Skeet competition in the U.S. International Championships at the Phoenix Trap and Skeet range here.

Top choice for the U.S. Olympic entry fell to Tony Rosetti of Biloxi, Miss., a former shooter on the U.S. Army Marksmanship Team, who compiled a resounding 294 total of a possible 300 birds to take the Skeet Championships in the 12th U.S. International Shooting Championships. Runner up and filling out the two-man Skeet slots to the 1972 Olympics, was captured by (ret.) Air Force Sgt. Jack Johnson who posted 292.

A close third place in the high scoring competition fell to Capt. James Whitaker, Entree, N.M., and the Army Marksmanship Training Unit who also compiled a 292 in the three day shoot only to suffer disappointment in the shoot off. Whitaker, a recent star on the Skeet horizon won the Interservice International Championship at Fort Benning in April with his near perfect shooting of 198 birds of a possible 200. He will serve as an alternate for the two-man Olympic squad.

For Rosetti, winner of the 1971 U.S. International Championships and a Silver Medalist for the Pan American team at Cali, Colombia, this will be his first attempt for Olympic laurels.

Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbot, Commanding General, buys the first book of tickets for the Fourth of July Carnival from Debbie Kazmarek, daughter of Command Sgt. Maj. Alfred M. Kazmarek of the 5th Student Battalion.

All major units on Post will be represented in the parade. Several units will be dressed in costumes depicting various eras in American military history, including the Revolutionary War, the Civil War, and Spanish-American War, and World War I.

The theme of this year's Carnival is "The Glorious Challenge — 100 Years of Freedom." As the United States nears its 200th birthday, the role played by the Infantry in keeping our country free is being emphasized.

After the opening ceremony the Midway will open, with game booths, vehicle and Airborne tower rides, equipment displays, and refreshments. The Midway will remain open until 7 p.m.

The Battle of the Bands will be held from 1 until 3 p.m. in Marshall Auditorium. Area bands will be able to win a $300 or $150 savings bond by performing for 15 minutes on stage. A panel of five judges will pick the first- and second-place winners.

From 3 to 5 p.m. the Beauty Contest will take place in Marshall Auditorium. All single girls in the area between the ages of 16 and 24 are eligible to compete for the title of "Miss Fort Benning." Prizes will be a $200 savings bond, for first place and a $100 savings bond for second place.

Five judges will select the winners in the Beauty Contest. Competition will be in street clothes, swimsuits and evening clothes.

The Talent Contest will be held from 4:30 to 6 p.m. in Marshall Auditorium. All categories of acts may enter the contest, which will also have five judges. A $100 bond will be awarded for first place, and a $50 bond for second place.

Anyone wishing to enter the Battle of the Bands, the Beauty Contest, or the Talent Contest should contact Roy Lethnar at the Fort Benning Special Services Entertainment Center, 545-5067. The contests are open to anyone in the area.

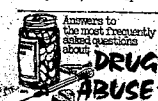

At 8:15 p.m. a skydiving exhibition will take place and at 8:30 p.m. a large-scale fly-by will be held.

The day's activities will close with the fireworks display. Admission to the Carnival is free, and everyone is urged to attend and bring their families.

Safety!

Balloons with a safety motto were placed on nearly 1,500 vehicles by members of the 4th Student (Airborne) Battalion. The project was part of a safety campaign prior to the start of the Memorial day weekend. As vehicles of battalion members were inspected, a balloon would be fastened to the car.

Motto on the car was "Today's Army wants you to stay alive, buckle up."

The 931st Engineer Group Headquarters was used as a model of an operating Army Engineer unit to a group of visiting NCOES (Non Commissioned Officers Education System) Students.

The NCOES is part of the Army's efforts to obtain the dynamic leadership necessary for a modern Army. The students came to observe the 931st's role in actual operation and to see the principles that they had learned in the classroom put into practice.

"We don't do anything for ourselves, we don't have the time."

After the briefing the students were divided into eight groups to visit the staff sections which included S-2, S-3, S-4, S-5, S-6, S-7, S-8, S-9, S-10, S-11, S-12, S-13, S-14, S-15, S-16, S-17, S-18, S-19, S-20, S-21, S-22, S-23, S-24, S-25, S-26, S-27, S-28, S-29, S-30, S-31, S-32, S-33, S-34, S-35, S-36, S-37, S-38, S-39, S-40, S-41, S-42, S-43, S-44, S-45, S-46, S-47, S-48, S-49, S-50, S-51, S-52, S-53, S-54, S-55, S-56, S-57, S-58, S-59, S-60, S-61, S-62, S-63, S-64, S-65, S-66, S-67, S-68, S-69, S-70, S-71, S-72, S-73, S-74, S-75, S-76, S-77, S-78, S-79, S-80, S-81, S-82, S-83, S-84, S-85, S-86, S-87, S-88, S-89, S-90, S-91, S-92, S-93, S-94, S-95, S-96, S-97, S-98, S-99, S-100.

IPSD displays skills for handicapped

The citizens of Albany, Ga., watched the 51st IPSD (Infantry Platoon Scout Dogs), 197th Infantry Brigade, Dog Obedience Club of Albany, present a dog demonstration June 11 for the handicapped children of the Southeast Georgia Easter Seal Rehabilitation Center.

Two members of the Easter Seal Society, Patricia Richardson and Connie Myers, contacted Lt. John M. Hutchinson, Commanding Officer of the 51st IPSD, and requested that the scout dogs present a demonstration for the handicapped children.

"Katie" attacks Ssgt. David McIntyre as 1st Lt. John Hutchinson, commanding officer of the 51st IPSD, and requested that the scout dogs present a demonstration for the handicapped children. The dog is seen while out on a patrol.

While presenting the dogs Hutchinson stated that, "All military dogs are not trained to be killers. Most dogs are trained for searching techniques, whether it be for booty traps or for the enemy while out on a patrol."

The first exercise the dogs initiated was the squad column, fire teams abreast. The exercise showed the procedure a scout dog goes through while searching for a booty trap.

Other exercises shown by the dogs were: the sentry dog demonstration, the off-leash obedience and the obstacle course that the scout dogs are trained on.

During the exhibit Hutchinson explained to the spectators the mission of the scout dogs. He recalled the history of the dogs, the types of military dogs, their procurement and the method of training the dog encounter.

All proceeds obtained from the demonstration went for the benefit of the patients at the Southwest Georgia Easter Seal Rehabilitation Center. The center is in charge of helping 36 counties in the Southwest Ga. area.

Stewart graduates 1st in Leadership School

Sgt. Jerry W. Stewart, a member of the Intermediate Leadership School at the Central Training Center at Kelly Hill (Patriots), 197th Infantry Brigade, graduated number one in a two week course of the Intermediate Leadership School at the Central Training Center at Kelly Hill (Patriots), 197th Infantry Brigade, designed for Junior NCO's and gives insight in solving problems of Army and personal nature. Also the school teaches basic training skills. The school gives instructions in physical trainings, how to instruct, and drill and ceremony.

The students were graded on a merit system basis. "1st Lt. William Benline, officer in charge of the school, was a major factor for me in passing the course. He came in after hours to review materials and answer questions that the students were wondering about," said Stewart.

Stewart felt the most beneficial part of the school was the instructions on leadership. The tactical assistant coordinator, NCO's, Ssgt. James Carter, Ssgt. Robert Smith, and Ssgt. Curtis Miller, applied the discipline at the school.

ROTC Cadets find Ranger training rough and tough

BY DALE WILSON
Reserve Officer's Training Corps (ROTC) cadets undergoing Ranger training have found their ranks thinning out at the end of nearly three-weeks of rugged training.
Of the 251 cadets who processed in for the nine-week course, only 221 remained when the group moved on to Camp Darby for a 13-day bivouac.

The loss of 30 cadets is not unusual. The training program conducted by the Ranger Department is one of the most demanding to be found in the Army.
The cadets were required to successfully complete a basic physical fitness test and a combat water survival test before beginning the course. The combat water survival test has three events. First, the cadet enters a pool fully clothed, with web gear and weapon, then swims 30-meters. In the second event, each man is required to submerge to the bottom of the pool, removing his web gear before resurfacing. Finally, the cadets are required to leap blindfolded from a 10-foot high diving board with their weapons and swim to the side of the pool, a distance of 10-meters.

The cadets began training June 12, with physical training, a welcome from Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbot, post commander and an introduction to small arms training.

Monday, despite rain and strong winds, the cadets were required to navigate a rugged, eight-lap, 10,000-meter course. According to Maj. William R.

The newly elected officers will begin their terms July 1.

July 1st carnival features midway

This year's Giant Midway at the Independence Day Carnival will include more games and booths than ever. The Carnival is being held on York Field and inside the Infantry Hall, with the Midway located on York Field.

After the parade and opening ceremonies Saturday, July 1 beginning at 11 a.m., the Midway will open. Included in the games will be baseball, basketball, and football throws; darts and balloons, and add-up darts; the Wheel of Fortune, the Girl Dunk, the ring and cane, ring and block, and the ring and bottle; and the ball and cat and Penny Pitch.
The Midway will remain open until 7 p.m. During the afternoon, a Battle of the Bands, Beauty Contest, and Talent Contest will also be held in Marshall Auditorium. The Battle of the Bands will begin at 1 p.m., the Beauty Contest at 3 p.m., and the Talent Contest at 4:30 p.m.

At 8:15 p.m. there will be a skydiving exhibition, followed by a large-scale fly-by of military aircraft. Afterward, the drawing for major door prizes will be held in Marshall Auditorium, and the door prizes and awards for each of the three contests will be presented to the winners.

The day's events will close with a fireworks display at 9:30 p.m. This year's parade will be different from see CARNIVAL, page 25

Gen. Abrams nominated for new Chief of Staff

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon announced Tuesday that he will nominate Gen. Creighton W. Abrams, now the commander of U.S. forces in Vietnam, to be Army chief of staff.

He will replace Gen. William C. Westmoreland, 58, who is retiring on June 30 with the rank of four-star general.

Meanwhile, Nixon also announced that he is reappointing Adm. Thomas H. Moorer, 60, for another two-year term as chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

No successor for Abrams in Saigon was announced. Nor was there any decision yet on when Abrams will be leaving his post in Vietnam.

tary changes have carried out their responsibilities and commands "with great distinction." And, he said, Gen. Westmoreland will be appropriately honored in the next few weeks not only by the President but by the military.

Aides to Westmoreland said he has not decided on his retirement plans as yet but has indicated that he would not be interested in any overseas assignment. This presumably would rule out his undertaking any diplomatic mission of the sort often carried out by retired generals.

Zeigler said it was not unusual to reappoint a chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff and that Moorer's predecessor, Gen. Earle G. Wheeler had been reappointed by former President Lyndon B. Johnson. The law permits a two-year term for chairman, plus one two-year renewal.

The appointment of Abrams came as no surprise. It had been expected.

He took over from Westmoreland as commanding general of the U.S. Army in Vietnam six months after the start of the Tet offensive in 1968.

Westmoreland, a native of Spartanburg County, S.C., was reported by Zeigler to have no immediate plans for any government service after his retirement.

Zeigler said that the decision of when Abrams will leave Vietnam is "being worked out." And he said he expected to have information about a successor there "at a later time."

The new commander in Vietnam is expected to be Army Gen. Frederick Weyand, who has been Abrams' deputy for nearly two years.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

Sliced bananas add a different touch to Sunday breakfast. Sprinkle them with lemon juice after slicing to keep them from discoloring.

Seasoned, buttered artichokes need no improvement—unless it's a sprinkle of dill.

A la mode, when used to refer to meats, means the meat was marinated, and probably cooked in the marinade.

Slow-boil cooks food just as quickly as hard-boil without dissipating the vitamins, or lessening texture or flavor.

Torrone, the popular Italian nougat candy, originated in Cremona in 1441, when it was featured at a royal Italian wedding. It was named "torrone" because it was shaped like the famous tower of Cremona.

Post lieutenant holds one-man art exhibit

BY EDITH SIMMONS
Air Force "brat," Army lieutenant, and a college artist. Artist, pre-med student. This is not a new version of the "Doctor, lawyer, Indian chief" nursery rhyme — just a list of various ways to describe 1st Lt. Douglas Odum. Odum opens his one-man art show at the Talent Tree on Fort Benning June 15. The show will run through June 29.

When talking about how he got started painting, Odum says "I must have inherited it. My mother paints and decorates homes for her friends. Odum's father was a career officer in the Air Force.

A natural interest in art was reinforced by art courses at Harding College in Searcy, Ark., and the University of Arkansas. He completed his design course at the Memphis Academy of Fine Arts in Memphis, Tenn.

Odum entered his first show in 1962. Since then, he has won prizes in the Carrel Arts and Crafts Show (Calif.), the Blue Grass Arts Show (Ky), and the Little Rock, Arkansas Student Art Show. In addition, he has won many merit awards and honorable mentions.

Odum used to paint strictly in oils but changed to watercolors after visiting Rex Brant's School of Watercolors at Corcoran High School in Mar. Calif. He says this is the most difficult medium to work in because "I might do a 100, but only get 10 good ones".

For working in watercolor, the paper must be dampened, then stretched. The color is washed on and the detail is started before the sheet is dry. The painting has to be in the artist's mind before he starts. A colorist like Odum, "once you get the hang of it, watercolor is faster. One can be done in a couple of hours."

Odum also does pen and ink drawings because they sell faster. He says, "As a man, artist, I have to worry about money." If an artist is halfway good, he can work for an advertising agency or any large product firm and make a living.

However, he continued, to be really successful as an artist it requires going to the shows. Here, the local competition is tough. There are a lot of good artists around and local artists can sell more cheaply than out-of-towners who must meet traveling expenses.

Odum's military service began in 1966. He spent three years in Vietnam in 1970 as an instructor in the Pathfinder Company, 1st Special Forces and received a battlefield commission. He came to Fort Benning in 1970 as an instructor in the Pathfinder Company, 1st Special Forces and received a battlefield commission. He came to Fort Benning in 1970 as an instructor in the Pathfinder Company, 1st Special Forces and received a battlefield commission.

The challenge of being a medic in Special Forces interested him in medicine. For the last two years, Odum has been attending Columbus College night school to get courses required for medical school. He hopes to attend Georgia Medical School if he doesn't go into medicine. He will do anatomical design for medical texts and research papers.

Odum and his wife Linda met in Vietnam in 1968. She was working with the Red Cross after graduating from the University of Minnesota. They now have a son, Geoffrey.

469 USMA Cadets volunteer for Summer Airborne training

What are you doing for the summer? Swimming, playing golf, lounging around? Four hundred and sixty-nine United States Military Academy cadets have volunteered portions of their summer to the rigors of Airborne training here at Fort Benning.

These cadets, 37 first classmen and 432 second classmen, are in their first week of training, assigned to the 4th Student Battalion, 44th and 46th Companies. Maj. George M. Seckinger, Office of Military Instruction, West Point, attributed the large number of Airborne cadets to the popularity of Airborne training at the Academy. According to Seckinger, the cadets are notified ahead of time about the choice for additional summer training. Till now, the choice was limited to Airborne, but the addition of desert, jungle, Ranger and far north warfare training has reaffirmed the popularity of Airborne by the number of cadets who have indicated a preference for it.

The cadets choosing certain training must pass a rigorous physical test before qualifying for the training. This test is given at the Academy and its requirements usually exceed those specified by the Airborne, Ranger or other units offering the training. In this way, the cadets who do not meet the set requirements for physical conditioning will be weeded out before leaving for the training facility. This pre-selection promotes a low rate of student attrition and upholds the tradition of Academy excellence.

In addition to the Airborne training, there are 12 Academy cadets now attending Ranger training here at Benning. This course, offered to the cadets, has a limited number of openings, so there are only 3 men selected from each regiment of the senior class, (1st classmen) to attend the course. The student body elects the men to represent the academy at the course. The criteria for selection is physical conditioning and leadership ability, coupled with academic achievement.

There are 250 men per regiment in each class, so the 12 men selected are of the highest calibre and respected members of their class.

For the cadets who have a short training period, as those in Airborne, after graduation they will participate in Army Orientation Training in which the cadets are sent to various parts of the United States and Europe, Panama and Hawaii, performing normal duty functions.

Post Vet Clinic to reopen July 5

The Veterinary Clinic will reopen on July 5 for the outpatient treatment of spinal pets. Hours of operation will be from 1 to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday. For any treatment other than immunizations, appointments should be made by calling 545-4444. Immunizations will be given during regular clinic hours on a first come first served basis and appointments are not needed. Facilities are not available for surgery or hospitalization of animals.

The clinic is located in building 265 at the end of 10th Division Road. It was forced to discontinue the treatment of private owned pets on April 1 this year due to a critical shortage of personnel.

Women urged to vote

Is Women's Liberation passing Fort Benning wives by? Voting is the most effective way an American wife can express her opinions and preferences, but many post wives are not yet registered.

Although most primaries are over, it is not too late to register for the general election in November. Military wives and all 18-year-olds are urged to register by filling out a Federal Postcard Application Card. These cards are available from the election boards of all 50 states and from post voting counselors. (Every unit has one). Counselors can help fill out cards correctly and insure it is addressed properly.

Area boys start SAM

The Summer Activities Maneuver (SAM) project for youngsters from the Columbus area began June 12 in the Harmony Church area of Fort Benning. The first group consisted of 44 boys ranging from 12-15 years of age from the North Highlands area. The group represented the first of 400 boys scheduled to stay at Fort Benning for one week. The boys were chosen by Columbus playground directors and members of the Columbus Recreational Department. These persons and soldiers from Fort Benning will act as counselors and supervisors for the boys. The soldiers will also provide information as well as guides for them. The SAM project is part of the Lower Chattahoochee Community Action Agency program.

Sound-off

Visiting a park this summer??

This year more Americans than ever will hit the vacation trail. As urban dwellers flee the city heat, they find the national and state parks are limiting the use of the parks. Sound-Off asked the typical soldier what he thinks of this.

Sgt. Donald Butkus says "We ought to have more parks. I have heard they are starting to cut down parks near the large cities. That's bad. We should increase the number and size of our parks. Don't destroy what we have. The city people need to get out of cities for rest and relaxation -- our parks are the best place!" Butkus is with 101st Airborne, Pathfinder.

Sgt. Stephen Sage, from 10th Co., 1st Bn., said "I approve because I think it's necessary to prevent overcrowding and destroying the parks. I wish everybody could go through but this can create problems."
Pvt. Alan Dickinson spoke out from 88th Company, TSB. "I say it depends on the people in New York State. A park was destroyed by 5000 'hippies'. Now, I don't disapprove of 'hippies' but the parks are for everybody. It takes more than 20 years to replace a tree. The parks must have restrictions."

Sgt. Glenn Harris says "everyone should be able to go. They should use it as they see fit." He's with the 1st Co., TSB.

LIFER'S WORLD

My WEIGHT PROBLEM IS GLANDULAR, WHAT'S YOURS?

Physical readiness is essential

Now, the war against fat really seems to be getting on its feet in an attempt to rock the ranks of complacent, nonprofessional fat soldiers. For the sake of a working all-volunteer Army the anti-fat man campaign better be successful to hold the desirable first termers and to obtain new recruits.

It's pretty hard for young trim soldiers to take orders without question or respect their superiors when they are fat. It's equally hard for the recruit to believe the man behind the podium instructing wartime examples to back up training doctrine when he's anything but a slim soldier.

Whatever the misconception may be, beer-guts are not a mark of distinction. Look through any fashion magazine. Not one fat man will be found modeling clothes. Many good actors and actresses have found themselves without fans when their waists have expanded. Likewise, few overweight first sergeants are respected by anyone.

The number of excuses drummed up to avoid taking daily PT must number in the thousands. Everything from heart disease, bad backs, war wounds, and gland problems have been used by evasive soldiers. True, there are those men who suffer from such problems but the number is limited, and of those afflicted, few go unmentioned with the passing of time. Otherwise, they would probably face a medical discharge.

Other common excuses are "I had a beer for lunch and I can't take PT when I've been drinking," "I have to pick up my car at the garage," "It looks like rain, I better get right home and cover my blue ribbon tomatoes," "My lens came out of my glasses and I can't see without them," or the classic, "I have an appointment."

There is also the staff officer or clerk who reads newspapers or shoots the bull for seven hours, then uses his piled up desk to evade PT.

Many diseases are linked with PT but none compare with GHEEN ROT. Green Rot is physical and mental complacency. More men die for the lack of physical fitness than because of it. Men and women live to see great grandchildren because of it. People have fewer colds or flu when their body resistance is kept in tone because of it. Heart attacks occur less often when office workers are prepared physically for deer hunting season.

Of all the professions in the world, why then does the soldier have to be forced into taking PT? Why does it take a chief of staff to enforce, what should be, the spirit of their unit? Whatever the cause may be, each soldier should be motivated enough on his own to use both initiative and maturity to reduce and stay in shape. It's pretty sad when a soldier can't even make it around a quarter-mile PT track in tennis shoes and shorts.

Physical readiness of all individuals of any unit in the Army is a COMMAND responsibility. . . at ALL levels. But does setting-the-example apply only to commanders? It applies to any officer or enlisted man above the grade E-1. We all have the responsibility. (W.W.B.)

197th tanks turn on!

BY KERRY COX

For the team that beats the others cold, men from the 197th Support Battalion, 197th Infantry Brigade's maintenance shop really "turn it on."

What they "turn on" and "tune up", are the tanks used by units of the 66th Armor, 197th Spt. Bn., in support of Fort Benning's Infantry School.

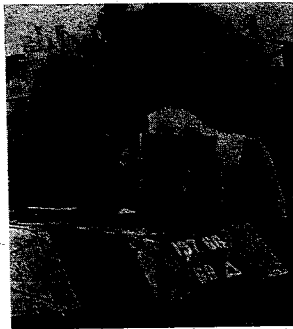

Utilized in tactical problems, for the students by the instructors of the Infantry School, the tanks undergo constant usage. This usage constitutes the need for the tanks to be in excellent mechanical condition to fulfill the mission of the battalion in support of the Infantry School.

Often working with pressing deadlines, in order to return the tanks to the field in operable condition, soldiers from the 197th Spt. Bn., maintenance shop have made a name for themselves because of their brilliant efforts to duty and job performance.

"More than once I've seen the soldiers in the shop give up their off-duty time, at their own request, because certain deadlines had to be met," related CW2 Robert Meiller, a maintenance technician.

"That kind of loyalty is hard to find, but they have it."

Even though they work with such large and time-consuming objects as tanks, that require special tools, equipment and training, the soldiers perform the repairs everyday, with little or no fanfare, because "it has to be done."

"It might be an everyday job to some, but to us, no, because we do it well."

In relating to the role played by the soldier in battalion maintenance, former Battalion Maintenance Officer, Opt. Walter Farr, commented that "these soldiers, even though sometimes the unit was understrength, constantly met the deadlines, whether it be replacing an oil filter or overhauling an entire engine."

The feeling of pride, in what might be considered an everyday job, was expressed by one of the maintenance personnel, PFC Terry Dennison as,

PFC Larry Ball checks the inspection plate, making sure the tank has undergone the proper repairs. Photo by Kerry M. Cox.

It doesn't cost anything to spend the day in the park. If you have to put the car some distance away and walk, it's a hassle."

Sgt. Philip Blaid says "If we have parks, we must have regulations. People will destroy them through simple negligence. They don't care. Some will do it because the rules exist." He is with 72nd Engineers, 197th Infantry Brigade.

Pvt. Jerry McLawhorn "I don't approve," says Pvt. Jerry McLawhorn, Co. B, 1st Bn, 88th Inf. "Kids have to have something to do, some place to go to see nature if they're from the city."

Off-hour flights. A great way to get on our flights.

Flying military stand-by is a great way to save 50%.

It's also a great way to have to wait and wait and wait until there's an available seat ready. Eastern has a better way.

If you take one of Eastern's early morning off-hour flights, there's a very good chance there will be a seat waiting for you rather than you waiting for a seat.

(Since less people fly during the early morning hours, there are more seats available during the early morning hours.)

So on your next leave, leave early on one of Eastern's off-hour flights to Atlanta.

At Atlanta, switch to any one of our other early morning flights, connecting you with any one of over a dozen destinations.

And because the military travels best on a full stomach, we'll make sure you get a good hot breakfast before you reach your destination.

Again, just one of the many ways in which Eastern continues to serve the military service.

So, call Eastern or your JAMTO office for all the details. You'll be leaving a little earlier, but then again, your leave will be a little longer. (We also figured that with the extra time to spend you could use the extra money to spend.)

New officers installed at NCO wives dinner

The NCO Wives held their Installation Dinner Dance at the Sand Hills NCO Club on May 27. This annual affair climaxed the reign of the 1971-1972 officers and chairmen.

The outgoing board of officers hosted the affair for all members and their husbands, and guests. The evening started with a cocktail hour in which hot and cold hors d'oeuvres were served along with a champagne punch.

The 1972 officers were presented a corsage each of pastel roses and the 1973 officers were given corsages of spring flowers.

The club was beautifully decorated in pastel colors. Streamers of crepe paper held fans and huge balls in various shades of pink, purple, blue, green, and white.

The silver to be presented to the 1972 officers and chairmen was displayed on a long table with revolving color wheels picking out the iridescent colors from it.

A delicious meal of roast beef and trimmings topped with apple pie was enjoyed by everyone.

Highlighting the evening was the presentation of silver to all the 1972 officers.

Pioneers sponsor coffee, post tour

The 1st Bn., 29th Inf. "Pioneers" sponsored a coffee and bus tour of Fort Benning facilities for wives of unit soldiers on June 14.

Lt. Col. Robert W. Faulkender, battalion commander, said that the purpose of the coffee and tour was to inform the wives of the facilities at Fort Benning has to offer and to provide them with some insight about Army life.

Faulkender added that the occasion also gave them an opportunity to meet other wives, and to learn something about their husband's work.

The wives assembled at Ft. Co. mess hall for a brief orientation and coffee, then saw a film about the 1971 Infantry Brigade. After the film, the wives and Faulkender discussed a wide variety of subjects, ranging from commissary prices to ammunition details. The tour of Fort Benning included visits to the Rod and Gun Club, the Sand Hill Theater, the Custer Terrace post exchange, Martin Army Hospital and the hospital annex. The wives also were briefed on Army Community Service by Mrs. Charles Merrill and Mrs. Jim Hunt.

Capt. Lacy Tyler was the OIC of the tour; Sgt. Robert Parr, the NCOIC, and Sgt. Willard Pierson, the guide.

OWC
BEE WITH US is the invitation slogan adopted by the new OWC Program Committee to be adapted to the monthly club functions. Mrs. James E. Stone, Chairman of the Program Committee has named Mrs. Ronald Davis as her Co-Chairman. Other members include Mrs. James Hughes, Mrs. Robert Thompson and Mrs. Paul A. Gutrie. In recent weeks the committee has been diligently at work making plans for an action packed, fun-filled year ahead.

The opening tea Sept. 13 will offer members an opportunity to register for lessons in arts and crafts, for activities of their choice, or for volunteer work in the field of their interest.

Fashions will be featured at the October luncheon, with our own army wives as models. A shopping spree in October, as well as the November state, followed in December by a super Christmas "Bazaar" at 544-1196 to sign up.

The January tea will offer another chance to sign for the courses you desire. A good old country-style tasting bee with special entertainment will highlight February, followed in March by a luncheon with a guest speaker, as well as our nomination of officers.

Election will be included April 11 with our traditional tour of homes, and the OWC year will come to a close with an Hawaiian Luau, at which the new officers will be installed.

Gracing these occasions and soon to be familiar to all will be our bee, representing our slogan BEE WITH US. Talented artists Mrs. Randolph Bragg, Mrs. O'Connor, Mrs. Walter E. Farr and Mrs. Thomas Ross offered sketches of personality bees and the winning bee is still undetermined.

Army wives' talents are legendary, but often pass unrecognized in new surroundings. If you have talent you are willing to share with others, contact our 2nd vice President in charge of activities Mrs. Jon Stillman, so that she can include you in the year's activities. Her number is 544-1196. If you need to teach or experience candle-making and cake decorating, we need an instructor, and an organizer willing to play occasionally at our gatherings.

TSB to celebrate 30th anniversary June 29

The School Brigade will celebrate its 30th year of providing the U. S. Army with highly trained, professional infantrymen, this June 29.

During the past 30 years, the brigade has changed in name and composition many times. One thing has remained constant, however, and that has been the brigades efforts to maintain the highest standards of instruction and the best possible support for the infantry School.

Prior to 1942, The Infantry School taught and administered all students at Fort Benning. The Infantry Service Command had the responsibility of administering and housing instructors and permanent party.

With the coming of World War II, sharp increases in the number of personnel resulted in the formation of the Student Training Brigade on June 29, 1942. The brigade consisted of two officer candidate regiments, a student officer regiment and a training unit for radio and tracked vehicle maintenance.

At the close of World War II, the Student Training Brigade divided to one training regiment and OCS was inactivated. Not until the Korean War was OCS revived along with the Ranger program.

In September 1955, the Student Training Brigade became The School Brigade (TSB) with two student officer battalions, one officer candidate battalion, one airborne battalion, and one ranger battalion. Since then changes have taken place within the battalions and new battalions were added. However, the mission of TSB, to provide the best possible infantryman, has remained unchanged.

Throughout its history TSB has been called upon time and again to do close to the impossible, as the Army adapted to the demands of war and peace and has constantly refined its weapons and training techniques. Each time the brigade has passed the test and produced the best soldier possible, which is a tribute to its foresight, planning, and dedication.

Five area boys to try scouting

Five Columbus area boys who have never enjoyed the adventure of boy scouting will do so this summer as a result of contributions made by soldiers in the 197th Infantry Brigade.

The 197th is providing the funds, through contributions, to send the boys to a Boy Scout camp as part of an overall program sponsored by a Columbus children's agency to allow disadvantaged children who have not been involved before, an opportunity to be Boy Scouts for a week.

Each of the 197th's four battalions and the brigade headquarters company is sponsoring one youth for the program.

DA finalizes senior NCOES

Retired officers announce meet

The Chattahoochee Valley Chapter of the Retired Officers Association will hold their June business meeting in the Benning Room of the Main Officers Open Mess at 7 p.m. June 29.

Items on the agenda will include a report by the retired officers on the Fort Benning Commanding General's Advisory Council, a report by the chairman of the committee organized to nominate officials of the organization and discussion of plans for a Pool Party to be held in July.

The Retired Officers Association is a national organization with regional and local chapters throughout this country and overseas. Retired commissioned and warrant officers from all the uniformed services are eligible for membership.

The local chapter was organized to provide retired officers opportunity to participate in a forum for the discussion of matters of local and national importance affecting military retirees, maintain contact with the military establishment and to promote legislation in the best interest of retirees and the nation.

Additional information may be obtained by calling Lt. Col. (ret.) Woodrow Laws, 697-0272.

FT. MONROE, Va. (ANF) — Plans for the highest level of the Non-commissioned Officer Education System (NCOES) at the senior level course, have been finalized.

The senior level NCOES classes will commence in early 1973 at Ft. Bliss, Texas. The classes will be open to all E5s meeting certain prerequisites. The course will train the E5s in the duties of command sergeants major and other responsible positions.

Previously, basic and advanced level courses were announced for lower ranking NCOs. The senior level course completes the three-level instruction concept of the NCOES.

Selection guidelines for the senior course will be rigid. E5s must be between their 13th and 23rd years of service, inclusive, and have an unblemished evaluation score which is currently at least 100.

E5s with over 23 years of service will not be passed over. Department of the Army will convene boards to screen E5 records and to award, where deserved, constructive credits which will be equivalent to attendance at the course.

DA will select just four per cent of those eligible for the course for each class. Two classes of about 22 weeks length will be conducted each year during the spring and fall. Initial classes will number 150 students but will increase to 200 as space becomes available.

Students will master 800 hours of academic instruction in the course. Largest areas of instruction will be in the areas of leadership and management and in the communicative arts.

Army policies and procedures, administration and logistics, contemporary problems, military law and justice, command and staff functions, division operations, combat service support and joint and combined operations will all be important phases in the curriculum.

Religious program scheduled
How faith in God can ease marital and family problems will be the theme of an address by author Joyce Landorf at Fort Benning Sunday. She will speak at the Infantry Center Chapel at 9:30 a.m., Indian Road Chapel at 11 a.m., and the Retreat Coffeehouse at 8 p.m. Her topic will be "The Need to Love and Be Loved." The post chaplain's office is sponsoring the program. Mrs. Landorf, who frequently supplements her presentations by singing and playing the piano, has spoken at military installations, colleges, churches and civic clubs around the world. Her book, "His Stubborn Love," tells how her conversion to Christianity helped her to overcome desperate difficulties in her own life.

Orienteering champ makes Swedish plans

Sgt. Dale Aberle has literally run for his life—with stunning success—for the last three years.

Told that he might never again walk normally following a combat injury in Vietnam in 1969, Aberle, the 1st Bn. (Mech), 50th Inf. (Paratrooper), 197th Inf. Bde., ignored the warning and immediately began running—however painfully—until his legs were perfectly conditioned to long distance jaunts.

Since then he has become an expert and champ on at the growing sport of orienteering—land navigation over extended distances for competitive elapsed time.

He swept to victory in the Army's first Orienteering Championship last year, the North American Orienteering Championship in Athens, Ohio earlier this year and last week the second Army Orienteering Championship.

Aberle was one of 29 servicemen participating in the contest at Ft. Knox June 13-14. In addition to the Fort Benning Orienteering Team, competitors in the meet also represented Ft. Belvoir and Ft. Bragg.

Aberle described the orienteering course at Ft. Knox as "very hilly and thickly wooded," he said that the course was 8,700 meters long the first day and 9,500 meters the second.

"The combined energy output of running of these courses," said Aberle, "is equal to about an 18-mile run." He added, "The mental pressure of the map reading aspect of orienteering, combined with the difficulty in maintaining a sufficient speed over rough terrain makes orienteering as exhausting a sport as I've ever tried."

Aberle's next orienteering competition will be in fastest combined time for the two courses.

Aberle's next orienteering competition will be in Sweden on June 31. There he will compete with 19 other American servicemen in the Swedish Orienteering Championship.

The top seven American qualifiers from this meet will be entered in the Combined Interservice Military Olympics (CIMO) also to be held in Sweden at a later date.

Aberle has also extended his expertise in the orienteering field to domestic action. At Camp Tukabatchee near Montgomery, Ala. he supervised the layout and construction of the first orienteering course ever to be built at a U. S. Boy Scout camp.

He has also worked on a similar project at Central High School in Phenix City and in other local areas.

ROD AND GUN CLUB

Notes

BY BILL KLOEB

Several fishermen have complained about the recent reduction of the daily creel limit on catfish taken from Twilight Pond. The old limit was ten catfish daily and the new limit established earlier this month reduces the limit to six per day.

These limits are not established to curtail the fun for fishermen. Each time a creel limit is established there has been a lot of thought and figuring before it's announced. The number of fishermen fishing the pond and stream, the number of fish in the water, the size of the fish, plans for additional stockings and a lot of other considerations influence the creel limit for a particular body of water. That's why the limits aren't the same all over the reservation.

In the case of Twilight Pond the main considerations in the decision to lower the creel limit were the number of fishermen fishing the pond and the number and size of fish in the pond.

Twilight has become one of the most popular fishing ponds on post. It has been intensely managed since it was built and opened a few years ago. Whenever the pond is open to fishing there are fishermen on the pond and they do catch fish. Quite a few of them get the limit every time they come out and they come out often.

Surveys of the fish brought out of Twilight show that most of the fish go about 3-pounds with some going 12 and 13-pounds. It doesn't take too many fish of this size to provide all the fish a family can use. About 15-pounds of fish should satisfy just about any fishermen. To take more would just cut down on the quality of fishing in a short time.

Maybe at a later date it will become expedient to raise the creel limit but at this time a lower limit will be better for all concerned.

Rabies Control Program

The Post Fish and Wildlife unit is conducting a program to control the populations of animals on post who are potential rabies carriers. Several cases of this dread disease have been reported in counties neighboring the reservation. The number of troops training in the field and the numbers out in the reservation woods make it imperative that adequate measures be put in effect here on post. The primary targets of the Wildlife program are wild dogs and cats. Other animals involved are the fox, raccoon, bobcat and skunk, all carriers of rabies.

Traps have been set on the reservation to keep these species under control. The traps have been placed throughout the reservation but not within one-mile of any housing or cantonment area, or within one-mile of any reservation boundary. Personnel are requested not to molest these traps. They are checked on a planned basis by Wildlife personnel. During this period it will also be dangerous to have pets roaming loose in the woods and fields.

The program does impose some inconvenience but is a necessity to the health and welfare of the command.

Look But Don't Touch

A trip to the woods at this time of the year can be most interesting. Children especially can learn a lot about our wildlife. This is the season when most animals and birds reproduce.

Anyone who has been listening has heard the call of the quail all over the reservation. Some can even be heard in the quarters areas. The calls were mating calls. Now most of the quail have paired up and it won't be long before there will be young quail all over the place. Its too bad all of them won't live but quite a few are destined to fall prey to some snake, bird or animal.

Animals are also reproducing at this time of the year. There are large numbers of baby rabbits, squirrels and other small animals and the female deer, the largest animal inhabiting the reservation are beginning to drop their foals.

A youngster can learn a lot about nature at this time and its interesting for anyone to watch the progress of a nest full of baby birds or animals. This is great if people would only look. Some have to touch, too. Some even go farther and separate the young from the "older" bird or animal. They take it home. Some people

'Blue' pistol team acclaimed champs

A. U. S. Army "Blue" Pistol team fielded by the U.S. Army Marksmanship Training Unit was acclaimed National Indoor Pistol Champions this week.

The news came from the National Rifle Association headquarters in Washington, D.C.

The Championship SFC Hershel Anderson, SFC Hezekiah Clark, MSgt. Robert Wilacre, and MSgt. Emil W. Heugatter Jr., had posted their winning 1170 score in the 1200 Point Sectional Indoor Pistol tournament held at the Infantry Post in January.

Scores posted by the team members in winning their national title showed Wilacre leading closely pursued by Clark the drive with his 285-14X, with one less X and Anderson down one point for a 284-14X. Former National Indoor Pistol Champion Heugatter, experienced gun difficulty and posted a 286 to round out the championship aggregate.

Four Orienteers with All-Army team

Fort Benning's orienteers placed four men on the All Army Orienteering Team at the All-Army Orienteering Trials conducted at Ft. Knox, Ky., on June 13-14.

Taking top honors in the two-day event was Sgt. Dale Aberle, whose cumulative time of three hours, 32 minutes and 13 seconds was nearly an hour and 20 minutes faster than the runner up.

Aberle, who is a member of the 197th Inf. Bde's 1st Bn., 88th Inf. (M), is attached to the Ranger Department's Patroling Committee. This is the second straight year that Aberle has taken top honors in the orienteering championships.

Other members of the Fort Benning team who placed are: Sgt. Donald Kennedy, who finished third in the Ft. Knox trials; Capt. Edward W.

Strabel, fourth; and Sp4 Eli Maldonado, ninth.

The four men will leave Fort Benning for Washington, D.C. on June 24, where they will join other members of the All-Army Orienteering Team before continuing on to Sweden to participate in the Inter-Service Orienteering Meet. According to Capt. Strabel, the team's chief opponent in the inter-service meet will be the Marine Corps team.

The team which emerges as the victor in the inter-service meet will remain in Sweden to participate in the Military World Championship Orienteering Meet, which will include military orienteering teams from throughout the world.

The Fort Benning orienteering team is directed and trained by the Ranger Department.

think they are being kind when they find a baby animal or bird alone and take it home to raise. This doesn't work out. The young thing usually dies in a few days and if it is one of the exceptions that live becomes like a fish out of water for the rest of its life. In almost every instance that someone thinks the young has been orphaned the parents are somewhere nearby waiting for the humans to go away so they can get back to caring for the young.

Be sure that when you take youngsters to the field that they just look and don't touch.

Dean, an evaluator for the Ranger Dept. of the men were out until 3 a.m.

Upon completion of the bivouac at Camp Darby, which features survival training and patrolling exercises, the cadets will move on to Camp Merrill at Dahlgren, Ga. for three weeks of mountain training and then to Eglin AFB, Fla., for jungle training.

This is the second year that ROTC cadets have been allowed to participate in the Ranger training program.

The program incorporated one class of ROTC cadets last summer. The cadets were so successful that two classes are scheduled for this year, said Dean.

Dean is an ROTC instructor at the University of Pittsburgh in Pittsburgh, Pa. He is at Fort Benning serving as a special evaluator with the Ranger Dept.

Along with Lt. Col. William T. Palmer, Appalachian State University in Boone, N. C., the chief evaluator, and Sgt. Maj. Thomas C. Gentry from Auburn University in Auburn, Ala., Dean heads a team of 16 special evaluators.

The purpose of having special evaluators for the cadets, said Dean, is to make it possible to see how the cadets undergoing Ranger training compare with other cadets taking the regular six-week summer camp at Ft. Riley, Kans.; Bragg, N. C. Lewis, Wash. and Indianow Gap, Va.

SFC Bonnie Harmon victorious in Fla.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. — Bonnie Harmon, U. S. Army Marksmanship Training Unit, coasted to an easy victory Sunday as she won the Three Gun 2700 Grand Aggregate Championship of the Florida State Pistol tournament here with his 2,622.8X, 18 points ahead of his nearest rival.

Jumping off to an early lead, the Champion won three of four 22 Caliber Pistol matches, the 22 Caliber sub-aggregate, the Center Fire National Match Course and the Center Fire sub-aggregate on his way to the grand prize.

From this vantage position, he coasted into the championship circle after failing to win any of the 48 Caliber Pistol four-match series.

Making a late bid for honors, National 48 Caliber Pistol Champion, SFC Harold A. Reynolds, Sterling Heights, Mich., and the U. S. Army Marksmanship Unit, won the 48 Caliber Pistol sub-aggregate and then added the 48 Caliber Service Pistol championship to his belt. Only the first series counted toward the three-gun championship.

ships but his late charges carried him into the run-up spot behind front runner Harmon.

In team competition, a U. S. Army "Western Blue" squad captured the 22 Caliber Pistol match but failed to stop the championship onslaught of the U. S. Army "Blue" team fielded by the Army Marksmanship Training Unit, which won the Center Fire, 45 Caliber Pistol and the Grand Aggregate Championship of the team competition.

DA announces tighter controls on RA officers

WASHINGTON (ANP) — The Department of the Army is beginning to place controls on Regular Army (RA) officer strength to keep it within the ceilings prescribed by Congress.

Over the past 10 years, RA officer strength has increased so that, under current policy and procedures, the statutory ceiling would be exceeded in 12-18 months. The present statutory strength for RA officers is 48,506, exceeding the Army Nurse Corps and Army Medical Specialist Corps.

In order to manager RA strength within the current limits, the Army has instituted the following policy changes; there will be:

Operation Friendship Slated

Sixteen businessmen and educators from Lake Charles, La., Armed Forces Commission will arrive at Fort Benning Thursday, June 22, on a two-day "Operation Friendship" tour as a part of the U. S. Army Orientation Tour Program. They are scheduled to arrive at Lawson Army Air Field at 4:45 p.m.

The tour, which ends Saturday morning, will include briefings on Infantry Center and Infantry School activities; a visit and luncheon at the 157th Infantry Brigade; several demonstrations and a tour of the Infantry Museum.

Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbot, post commander, will officially welcome the group Friday morning at Infantry Hall.

Gen. Talbot's representative for the tour will be Col. Charles C. Thebaud, assistant commanding officer.

Scheduled to participate in the tour are Col. (ret.) William C. McClanahan, chairman of the Armed Forces Committee; Col. (ret.) A. V. Murphy; John Stewart, an attorney; Andy Sherman, public relations executive; Rodney Gaulteau, public relations; Ed Prendergast, radio and TV executive; Jim Dillon, bus sales executive; Glen Blun, contract officer; Arthur Gayle, insurance executive; Gary McKennon, motel manager; Jack Doland, McNeese State football coach; Louis Tornabene, school system purchasing agent; Robert J. Christ, postmaster; Dr. Richard L. McInnes, University; Ed Lively, public relations, and John Nicolson, high school principal.

Accompanying the group will be Maj. Edward C. Alton, chief Public Information Officer, Fifth U. S. Army, and Lt. T. I. Varnum, commander, 38th Public Information Detachment, Fifth U. S. Army.

no appointments in over-strength branches except for newly commissioned officers;

no appointments in over-strength year groups except for Army Medical Department (less Medical Service Corps), Judge Advocate General and Chaplain Corps, (A year group consisting of all officers entering active duty in a given fiscal year);

no appointments in over-strength year groups with a branch;

no tender of RA appointments to in-service officers with less than three years active federal commission service, except for officers of the Army Medical Department (less Medical Service Corps), Judge Advocate General and Chaplain Corps.

Basically, the sources for newly commissioned RA officers will be limited to West Point graduates, selected Distinguished Military graduates from Reserve Officer Training Corps (ROTC) and selected ROTC scholarship students.

A permanent RA selection board will convene semiannually to consider applications from basic branches of the Army and the Women's Army Corps. Selection boards for Army Medical Department, Judge Advocate General and Chaplain Corps will continue to operate under current policies.

A change to AR 601-100 (Appointment of Commissioned Officers in the Regular Army) will be published approximately July 1, outlining the detailed policy changes and revised procedures for processing of RA applications.

In the meantime, details of this new policy are outlined in DA message 061225Z June 1972.

Something IS fishy about these recipes

Put a touch of the exotic in your summer menus with these two seafood dishes from south of the border and the trans-Pacific:

REDFISH MEXICALI
 2 lbs. redfish filets, or other fresh fish filets

1 Tbsp. salad oil
 2 Tbsp. soy sauce
 2 Tbsp. Worcestershire sauce
 1 Tsp. paprika
 1/2 tsp. chili powder
 dash liquid hot pepper sauce

Place filets in a single layer, skin side down, on a well-greased broil-serve platter, 16 x 10 inches. Combine remaining ingredients. Pour sauce over filets. Broil about four inches from source of heat for 10-15 minutes or until filled with steam, when tested with a fork. Baste once during broiling with sauce in pan. Garnish with lemon wedges. Makes six servings.

Broiled Catfish Hawaiian
 2 lbs. catfish filets or other fish filets, fresh or fresh frozen
 1/2 cup pineapple juice
 1/4 cup steak sauce
 1 Tsp. salt
 Dash pepper

Skin filets and cut into serving-size portions. Place fish in a single layer in a shallow baking dish, combine remaining ingredients and pour over fish. Let stand for 30 minutes, turning once. Remove fish, serving sauce for basting. Place fish on a well-greased broiler pan. Broil about four inches from source of heat for four to six minutes. Turn carefully and brush with sauce. Broil four to six minutes longer or until fish flakes easily when tested with a fork. Serves six. (This recipe has approximately 80 calories in each serving.)

This is Lt. Col. Betke's first tour of duty at Fort Benning and accompanying him are his wife, son and daughter.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

by Bill King

If possible, chill any ingredients — flavorings, dressings, etc. — that you plan to mix with whipped cream. This will keep the whipped cream from liquefying.

Brown a sliver of garlic in butter, remove and then fry the breakfast/eggs. Add a delicious taste that most people can't identify!

To the ancient Greeks, thyme was a symbol of great activity because the bees of Mount Hymettus buzzed so busily around clumps of thyme as they gathered their nectar for honey.

It's easy to make cheeseburgers on an outdoor grill. Just put the cheese slice between two thin burger patties and seal the edges before broiling.

For a change, take your favorite potato salad recipe — the one with onions, pepper, hard-cooked eggs and dressing, etc. — but use chilled cooked rice instead of potatoes.

You'll always find exciting new taste treats whenever you dine at KING'S PIZZA ON CALL where only the finest ingredients are used in every dish. Hope to see you soon.

Independence Day Carnival set for Saturday at York Field

This year's Independence Day Carnival at Fort Benning will be the biggest and best ever. It will start tomorrow, July 1, with a parade on York Field beginning at 11 a.m.

Featured in the parade will be soldiers from every major unit on Post, as well as soldiers dressed in uniforms representing various periods in America's military history. At noon the opening ceremony will be held on York Field, and immediately afterward the Carnival Midway will open.

Included in the games on the Midway will be baseball, basketball, and football; throw darts and balloons; and add-up darts; the Wheel of Fortune, the Girl Dunk, the ring and cane, ring and block, and the ring and bottle; and the ball and cat and Penny Pitch.

The Midway will remain open until 7 p.m. During the afternoon, a Battle of the Bands will be held in Marshall Auditorium from 1 to 3 p.m. Area bands will compete for $300 and $150 savings bonds, and each band will have 15 minutes to perform on stage. Five judges will select the winners.

From 3 p.m. to 4:30 p.m., a Beauty Contest will be held in Marshall Auditorium. Girls between the ages of 16 and 24 will compete for the title of "Miss Fort Benning," with a $200 savings bond going to the winner and a $150 bond to the runner-up. Five judges will rate the contestants in evening gown, swimsuit, and street clothes competition.

From 4:30 to 6 p.m., a Talent Contest will take place in Marshall Auditorium. Talent acts of all types will compete in the show, and $100 and $50 savings bonds will be awarded to the 1st and 2nd place winners.

After the Talent Contest, a skydiving exhibition and an aviation fly-by will be held on York Field. Afterwards the drawing will be held for major door prizes, and awards will be presented to contest winners.

Door prizes this year include a 1972 Buick Riviera, a 1972 Corvette, a trip to Nassau for two, a Panasonic portable color television set, a Panasonic AM-FM radio, a Bell and Howell Cassette tape player, and a Craig reel-to-reel portable tape recorder.

After the awards are presented to contest winners and the door prizes have been given out, a fireworks display will close the day's events.

Other attractions at the Carnival will be equipment displays and free rides on the Airborne Towers. Admission is free, and there is something for every member of the family.

VOLAR as a word dies today

By EDITH SIMMONS

The famed acronym, "VOLAR," coined 18 months ago in an Army move toward a zero draft, will come to an end at Fort Benning and 12 other installations after today.

But the Modern Volunteer Army Program (MVAP), under which the Volunteer Army (VOLAR) experiment was conducted, will continue to enhance professionalism and improve military life Army-wide. Many of the innovations tested under the VOLAR experiment at Fort Benning and other posts have already been adopted for use in the MVA, and others are expected to follow.

The functions of MVA, formerly under direction of Project VOLAR, will now be handled by the Infantry Center's Director of Personnel and Community Activities.

Under Project VOLAR, many improvements were tested and evaluated at Fort Benning. The more notable of these improvements have received a great deal of public interest and comment especially in the Third Army area where Ft. Jackson, S.C.; Ft. Bragg, N.C.; and Ft. Campbell, Ky., were also involved.

The VOLAR improvements indicate the Modern Volunteer Army is willing to introduce measures to enhance Army life and increase professionalism among soldiers.

Notable among the changes are:

—Civilian labor to relieve soldiers from such support details as kitchen police, grounds maintenance, and garbage collection.

—Increased services supplemented by civilian labor to improve personnel services and medical-dental treatment.

—Improved food services, to include "short order" options.

—Partitions in troop barracks.

—Free on-post transportation via shuttles.

—Unit-of-choice retraining programs to allow young men to select a specific unit and be guaranteed a 16-month stabilized tour with that unit. The 17th Infantry Brigade and the 931st Engineer Group at Fort Benning are both in the unit-of-choice program.

Has the VOLAR program at Fort Benning been successful? Lt. Col. Henry Doctor, chief of the post's Project VOLAR, answers that question with a resounding yes. As an example, Doctor cites a 30 per cent favorable change in enlisted men's career intentions during the past 18 months.

"A base survey in November, 1970, revealed that 52 per cent of first-term enlisted men were definitely not considering re-enlisting," he said. "In May of this year, this year this number had dropped to 52 per cent."

He also pointed out that since January, 1971, a sampling of men who re-enlisted were asked if VOLAR had affected their decision, and that 71 per cent answered affirmatively.

The 17th Infantry Brigade also has been cited as another example of the success of VOLAR. The 17th became the Army's first all volunteer unit after the unit-of-choice program was started.

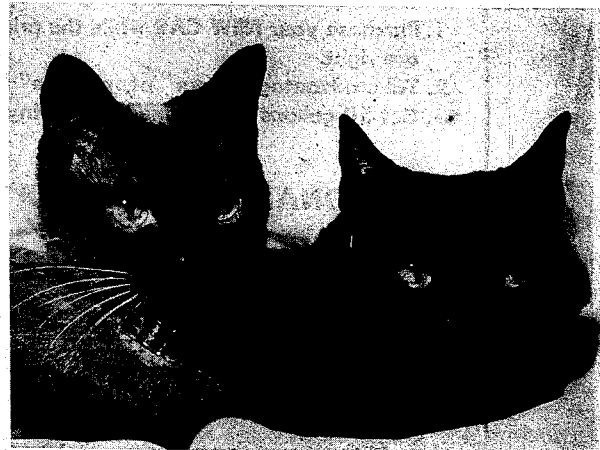

Under unit-of-choice and other VOLAR innovations, the 17th has recruited 2,400 men for its own ranks in less than a year, and recruited another 1,000 for other jobs or units.

Since May, 1972, when the 931st began unit-of-choice recruiting, it has filled half of its ranks with volunteers.

Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbot, Fort Benning commander, who has been a guiding force in the VOLAR program, also credits the young men of the 17th for the recruiting success. "Without question, the best recruiters by far were the young soldiers of the 17th themselves," Gen. Talbot said. "They liked what they were doing... they liked the way they were being treated as men under VOLAR... they liked the challenge of their duties sufficiently well to talk their buddies and contemporaries into enlisting in large numbers."

In discussing the end of the VOLAR experiment, Gen. Talbot has stressed that the changes he brought about were not being dropped. He said, "We must make our VOLAR practices and procedures a permanent way of life at Fort Benning."

G.I. benefits limited while traveling abroad

Veterans planning to travel or reestablish residence abroad should bear in mind certain limitations on their rights to benefits. H. W. Piper, Assistant Director, Atlanta Veterans Administration Regional Office, advised today. For example, medical care is available overseas only to veterans with service connected disabilities who are American citizens. Eligible veterans should apply to the American Embassy or Consular Office in the host country.

Before traveling outside the United States a veteran should ask for a statement of his service connected conditions from the VA Office which has his medical record. The statement should be presented to the Embassy or Consular Office with application for medical benefits.

In an emergency, however, an eligible veteran is entitled to VA-paid hospitalization if he notifies the Embassy or Consular Office within 72 hours after hospitalization. Notification of outpatient treatment must be made within 15 days. In the Republic of the Philippines, both veterans with service connected disabilities and wartime veterans with non-service connected disabilities are eligible for hospital care and treatment at the Veterans Memorial Hospital. Just as is true in the continental United States, veterans with non-service connected disabilities can take advantage of this benefit, on a space available basis, only if they are unable to defray expenses. Retired servicemen are eligible for medical benefits from military hospital and clinics.

Piper also noted that G.I. home loans are not available to veterans living in foreign countries. This restriction does not apply to veterans living in Puerto Rico. Veterans living outside the United States (except in "blocked" countries) may receive compensation and pension checks, however.

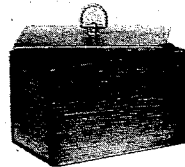

But veterans traveling in foreign countries should, if possible, maintain a state-side mailing address to insure prompt receipt of checks, Piper suggested. Eligible veterans are permitted to attend foreign schools, but only if VA approves them, and the courses lead to degrees.

For further information contact the VA Regional Office in Atlanta or your local veterans Service Organization Representative.

Sound-off Should voting be mandatory??

Ho hum, another election year. Although envelopes will be stuffed, billboards plastered and radios and TVs swamped with ads, millions of American citizens will stay away from the polls. Sound off asked soldiers if they thought voting should be mandatory.

Sgt Napoleon Turner, Personnel Control Facility, says no emphatically. He says "You shouldn't force people to do something they don't want to do." He suggested, "Candidates for office ought to encourage people to get out and vote. If candidates can't get the voters out, they don't deserve to be elected."

Sgt Roman Kern also feels people shouldn't be forced to vote. He says "Voting is a right, but if you don't choose to use that right, they can't complain. People shouldn't be forced into something they don't want to be involved in." Kern is with Company C, Headquarters Command.

Sgt James Wright is beginning to feel mandatory voting might do some good. "If required to vote," he says, "people would still take the candidate they wanted. Then, after the election, if they didn't win, they would have the right to complain." Wright is assigned to the Personnel Control Facility.

Sgt Bob Zimmerman is also against required voting. "First of all," he says, "voting is a matter of conscience. Anyway, not everyone has the capability of selecting. Some lack the knowledge and the interest to vote."

This guy had a nice set of chrome reverses. Nonetheless wheels are made to roll, not the car.

Slow down!

It's your life so keep on living it

As the bottle is tipped during the Fourth of July holidays, many will fall into the collective category, "It's my life. If I want to get blown away, it's my business."

For many citizens, the breath of life will be snuffed out... their journey will end with the crackle of glass. A curve in the road ahead will appear as a straight line. The soft shoulder of the road will suddenly cease screaming wheels, and the pavement will run red with the excitement of the moment.

But it really doesn't matter... it's my life. Another car will veer as a small child frolics by the roadside. His life too, may unexpectedly end. But, it's my life.

Passengers in vehicles will chide the driver for taking unnecessary chances while under the influence. The driver may retort with an abrupt turn that takes him over an embankment. Again, the ripple of metal and the ominous whisper, "What does it matter — it's my life."

There are so many forms of rationalization for the drinking driver that it would take an era to number them. Some enjoy the fleeting "high." Others thrill in a "getaway" notion.

Consideration for others is all-too-often subordinate to self. We must be conscious that our actions can cause hardship and stress for others.

As professionals, we dedicate our lives that others may enjoy freedom without tyranny. That same professional disposition must manifest itself when we are behind the wheel.

Sure, it's my life — but that doesn't give me license to neglect common sense. (CK)

Sublime superlatives supercede sagacity

Specialist Shortz during his tenure with the 512th "Rebel Rousers" Battalion has performed his duties as chief technician in a superior manner. He was directly responsible for the rapid replacement of parts indispensable in the expedient operation of the 512th Powder Room.

While heavily engaged with the normal everyday tasks confronting him, Specialist Shortz exhibited great zeal and dedication to duty by rapidly and astutely emptying overfilled pencil sharpeners. It is with resolute pride and admiration that I forward this letter of appreciation which will be made a part of his permanent file.

The overused and much abused "Letter of Appreciation" is as much a part of the military as olive drab footlockers. It's as if men about to enter civilian life were incapable of standing on their merits without this ego-inflating manuscript accompanying their job application.

Enlisted personnel and officers have sought this sooty sheet as if their future expectations for greatness were at stake. As PCS and ETS approach, I've watched job performance slow to a standstill as some personnel wait breathlessly for this pseudo-superlative-scattered literature to be formally presented at routine office get-togethers.

Men fail to get deserved awards because the commander failed to fill out the necessary paperwork in the prescribed increment of time. As a passing thought, the commander compensates for his prostration by a bastily-typed appreciation letter.

Letters of appreciation should be given as a result of job performance, not as a means to job performance. The should be authored by the commander or his representative and not delegated to a clerk typist as a routine function.

If a man truly deserves awards because the commander failed to fill out the necessary paperwork in the prescribed increment of time. As a passing thought, the commander compensates for his Children at play

Have you noticed all the new faces around post? Jimmy and Jane and Tom and Sheila are out of school for the summer. Summer time is fun time. No more school, no more studying, just playing and laughing and running and jumping. The endless ball games, and don't forget the post-swimming pools. Summer time is happy time for any school aged child. Most children will wish they didn't have to go when that time comes in September when the schools open their doors for that first day. Most children won't want to go, but a few will wish with all their hearts that they could be there, and some won't know when that day comes. One child has been killed by a car. That's B e a i n g s l a s e J a n e .

Isn't one enough — isn't one too many?

It's no good to anyone to be in the right if a child is injured or killed when he gets into the street. Let's be extra cautious this summer.

CHILDREN AT PLAY — PLEASE LEAVE THEM THAT WAY. (DOM)

Lt. Gen. Zais assumes command of Third Army

FORT McPHERSON, Ga. — Lt. Gen. Melvin Zais assumed command of the Third United States Army recently in ceremonies held at Ft. McPherston. Honor Guard and formal assumption of command ceremonies were hosted by Lt. Gen. John J. Tolson III, deputy commanding general, United States Continental Army Command, Ft. Monroe, Va.

Gen. Zais came to his new assignment from the staff of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, Department of Defense, where he was the Director for Operations (J-5). During his 33 years of active duty, Gen. Zais has commanded a battalion, a division and a command in combat, as well as three regiments in peacetime. Paratrooper, combat infantryman, and Army aviator, his career has been centered on troop duty, repetitive command assignments, and high level personnel and operations staff duty.

native of Fall River, Mass., Gen. Zais entered the Army as a second lieutenant in 1937 following his graduation from the University of New Hampshire. After completing one year of active duty, he returned to civilian life and served as a Professor of Military Tactics at Tennessee Military Institute at Sweetwater, Tenn.

In 1940, he was recalled to active duty and assigned to the staff and faculty of the Infantry School. While there he volunteered for an assignment with the 501st Parachute Infantry Battalion, the original paratrooper battalion in the Army. His service with this battalion began his close relationship with airborne units that has characterized his career.

In 1943, he was selected to command the 3rd Battalion of the 517th Parachute Infantry Regiment, 17th Airborne Division. He led this battalion from cadre training at Camp Mackall, N.C. to combat in Italy, France, Belgium and Germany, as well as three regiments in peacetime. Paratrooper, combat infantryman, and Army aviator, his career has been centered on troop duty, repetitive command assignments, and high level personnel and operations staff duty.

Gen. Zais' post WWII service emphasized command and troop duty, high level staff, and schooling.

In 1952, he was an advisor to a Turkish brigade and accompanied that unit to Korea. Following his Korean service, he commanded the 503rd Parachute Infantry Regiment, 82nd Airborne Division, Ft. Bragg, N.C., and the 16th Airborne Infantry Battle Group at Ft. Campbell, Ky.

Gen. Zais' assignments in Vietnam include service as deputy commanding general of I Field Force; assistant division commander of the 1st Infantry Division; commanding general of the 101st Airborne Division; and XXIV Corps commander.

His decorations and awards include three Distinguished Service Medals; two Silver Stars; three Legions of Merit; two numerous foreign decorations; and the Distinguished Flying Cross; the Bronze Star Medal; 25th award of the Air Medal with "V" device for valor;

the Joint Service Commendation Medal; two Army Commendation Medals; the Purple Heart; and numerous foreign decorations. He has earned the Distinguished Infantryman's Badge the Master Parachutist Badge, and the Army Aviator Badge.

An enlightening piece of information

Many Fort Benning personnel are unaware of the dangers of lightning. If you fall into this category you should take a few seconds, read this article and take heed of the recommended protective measures to take if caught in a thunderstorm.

In this country alone, lightning will strike and kill hundreds of people, injure thousands and cause property damage, which will reach losses into the millions of dollars. The toll taken by lightning has been on the increase the past few years, probably because of the increasing number of people who use the open areas for recreation.

The Lightning Protection Institute has stated that lightning will strike 6,000 times per minute somewhere on earth. Every time there is a strike, a powerful interchange of electric current takes place between earth and sky. Each bolt of lightning contains up to several millions of volts.

Thunderstorms build up tremendous electrical potential. The charges are either all positive or all negative. On the earth, immediately below the thunderstorm, opposite charges of equal potential gather. These charges attract each other and when they become great enough to overcome air resistance, they come together. This is referred to as "lightning."

Lightning seeks the path of least resistance; usually striking objects nearest the cloud mass. It is for this reason that isolated trees and those that tower above other trees receive many lightning strikes. People standing in open areas, particularly on high ground are also good targets. In some locations, and particularly in dry weather, lightning will run along the ground for some distance to seek a good conductor. Thus people near wire fences, communication lines, or large masses of metal such as vehicles or field weapons become very good targets for a strike.

Let me hasten to add that a good place to shelter yourself is in a motor vehicle. Rubber tires "ground" the vehicle.

In some cases where people have been struck by lightning, they receive a massive charge and are killed outright, while others are only temporarily stunned and paralyzed. Prompt use of resuscitation and treatment for shock may restore breathing in these cases. It is most important that a person stupified by lightning get medical treatment as quickly as possible.

There are certain things you should know in the event that you are caught in a thunderstorm. The most dangerous time is just before the storm when dark clouds appear and the air feels charged with electricity. Observers have reported that in many death cases, it was the first stroke of lightning which killed a victim.

If you are outdoors and your hair begins to feel as though it were standing on end, fall flat on the ground immediately. Get into a ditch or other depression, if possible, for you are a prime target for lightning. Some dangerous places to be caught during a thunderstorm are on a beach, in a boat, on high open ground, on a golf course, under an isolated tree, near a wire fence or communication lines, or riding on top of equipment.

The following safety precautions are based on the characteristics of lightning:

1. Avoid flat, open fields or bare hills:tops. If you are unavoidably caught in such a situation, lie flat on the ground, thus reducing the "target height" and chances of being struck.

2. Avoid single, isolated trees or poles in large open spaces, or if in a wooded area, avoid the highest trees.

3. Avoid large masses of isolated metal in open fields (i.e., mounted guns, field pieces, wire fences, and vehicles (except rubber tired vehicles which usually prevent injury, because the tires insulate the vehicles from the ground.)

4. Do not huddle together in a group if you are caught in a flat open space on a bare hilltop. Scatter to reduce the attraction of lightning to a mass of bodies.

5. Avoid standing near outer walls, waterpipes, wiring, or tall chimneys. (Buildings do afford some protection from lightning, particularly if grounded or if the outer walls and roof surfaces are wet.)

6. Disconnect the lead in wire to switchboards and telephones unless a tactical situation prohibits.

7. Do not lie underneath a vehicle. Due to the insulating effect of vehicle tires, a body under a vehicle may become the path of an electrical charge from the vehicle to the ground. Get away from the vehicle or get inside, if possible.

8. Disperse quickly if in a crowd on bleachers, especially if the bleachers are metal or metal supported.

9. Get off or out of the water immediately upon the approach of a thunderstorm.

10. Avoid carrying golf clubs over the shoulder or taking cover under isolated trees if caught while playing golf.

11. Avoid carrying weapons over the shoulder while hunting or training during approaching storms.

If you practice these precautions, nature's artillery is not apt to select you as its target.

Fact Talk

The world's first military aircraft — a Wright "Model B" — was flown at Fort Myer, Virginia, on 3 September 1908. The pilot, Orville Wright, under contract to provide two heavier-than-air machines to the Army.

If you like the convenience and the flavor of freeze-dried foods, you can thank the Army's Natick Laboratories in Massachusetts. The Army pioneered the freeze-drying process for fruits and other foods, originally used by our Astronauts and now available in almost every supermarket in the land.

Left-right . . . left, right . . . it's a lot easier today because the Army's Quartermaster General — during the Civil War — started issuing boots to fit left and right feet. Before that, the same boot had to fit either; and afterward, the nation's footwear industry was never the same.

Law enforcement agencies throughout the country have adopted a plastic material developed by Army research to facilitate the recording of fingerprints.

Army scientists have invented a way to change waste paper into food and other useful products. They have developed a strain of enzymes that breaks down cellulose into glucose (sugar), using a process that won't contaminate the air at the same time.

Chicken feathers into goose feathers? That's what the Army did, with a special treatment to soften feathers and give them other characteristics of waterfowl down, so they can be used in pillows, sleeping bags and comforters.

In 1788, the Army needed weapons, and Eli Whitney got the job, giving the Industrial Revolution a strong push along the way. Whitney laboriously hand-crafting each musket, when he found the parts identical, so they could be interchanged, and that was one step toward mass production. Do you know it today?

Exercise of the Week

In a continuing effort to improve physical fitness among pudgy post personnel and give a little nudge to those overweight soldiers who do not fall within the new AR (40-501) the BAYONET will print an exercise of the week.

The first such exercise is the Knee Bender. The purpose of the exercise is to measure the strength and endurance of the leg muscles. The starting position for the Knee Bender involves spreading the feet less than shoulder width apart, hands on hips, thumbs in the small of the back, and elbows back.

When performing the exercise one should start with a knee bend and at the same time bend slightly forward. The waist and thrust the arms between the legs until the extended fingers are about six inches apart.

The bend is approximately a three-quarter bend. From the knee bend position the exerciser then recovers of the starting position by moving his body upward, straightening the knees, and returning the hands to the waist.

From the hip . . .

June's showers have brought to the BAYONET winner Ursula Janis. Says Ursula, "I don't dig overweight guys and I see where the Army doesn't either." This disturbed lass is right, DA has just released a regulation (AR 40-501) which outlines the max weight for any given height for today's soldier.

Ex-member of Old Guard leads Pioneers drill team

The 1st Battalion, 3rd Infantry, known as the "Old Guard," has gained much recognition as it accomplishes its mission as the official drill and ceremony unit for all White House affairs.

This unit is recognized as one of the top drill and ceremony outfits in the Armed Forces and boasts of some of the Army's finest soldiers.

One former member of the "Old Guard" is 2nd Lt. Howard B. Levy, a platoon leader in Co. C, 1st Bn., 20th Inf., 157th Inf. Bde., Ft. Benning's Honor Guard Unit.

While with the "Old Guard," Levy participated in more than 200 burials as a member of the unit's drill party. These include the burials of President John F. Kennedy, President Herbert Hoover, and General Douglas MacArthur. He was also an escort in President Lyndon Johnson's inaugural parade in 1965. Levy, who served with the "Old Guard" from October 1962 to August 1966, volunteered for the unit while in Advanced Individual Training (AIT) at Fort Polk, La.

SUBJECT: Independence Day Safety
ALL FORT BENNING PERSONNEL

- Our nation celebrates one-hundred and ninety-six years of independence on 4 July 1972. Originally, the celebration featured public meetings, parades, hometown band concerts, picnics and recreational games. Americans now celebrate the Fourth of July as a family holiday of fun and recreation.
- Unfortunately, thousands will be injured and several hundred killed as they congest the highways seeking this fun and recreation. This dire prediction by the National Safety Council will come true. The Infantry Center shared in the grief and suffering of last year's Independence Day tragedies when two of our soldiers were killed in a traffic accident, and one soldier drowned. These three needless deaths are grim reminders to all of us to exercise a full measure of moderation in our holiday activities.
- If you must run the risk of highway driving, plan your trip carefully, fasten your seat belts, obey traffic laws and drive defensively. Swim only in approved areas protected by lifeguards. All can enjoy an accident free holiday period if each person will think and act safely.
- I urge all Fort Benning personnel to avail themselves of the many fun and recreational activities on the post at our Independence Day Carnival, scheduled for 1 July. It offers a full program of exciting events and entertainment.

Periods of American military history will pass before the eyes of spectators at Fort Benning's July 1st parade in the form of 197th Inf. Det. soldiers dressed in authentic uniforms and carrying replicas of original equipment.

The 210th will provide a glimpse of the American servicemen of the Mexican-American War period. The artillerymen will be dressed in uniforms of the era and will have in their entourage an artillery piece of the period, pulled by horses.

The 1st Bn. (Mech), 96th Inf. (Patriots) will represent the Revolutionary War era wearing three-cornered hats and the accompanying uniforms of the day while carrying replicas of the muskets used by the Continental Army.

In addition, the 210th will provide an equipment display for spectators at the parade. The static display will consist of a 106mm howitzer (towed), 160mm howitzer (towed), 160mm howitzer (self-propelled), 6 inch gun and M-42 DUSTER weapon system.

A float showing an American military fort of the Indian War period will highlight the 197th Support Battalion's regiments.

197th hosts 50 Boy Scouts

More than 50 Boy Scouts and their advisors, from Clanton, Ala., took part in activities at Fort Benning, this past weekend, as guests of the 197th Support Battalion, 197th Infantry Brigade.

Part of the Army's program to support Boy Scout activities, the scouts participated in an itinerary familiarizing them with the 197th and Fort Benning.

After a welcoming speech by Battalion Commander, Watha J. Eddins Jr., the first day of scheduled activities began for the scouts with them undergoing the Leadership Reaction Course (LRC).

"The leadership course was really tough until you managed to find the right way to do it," expressed boy scout Greg Gray, "but the real fun was watching your buddy fall into the water."

Later in the day the scouts were given tank rides in the battalion area along with a demonstration of an Armor Vehicle Landing Bridge (AVLB), M551 Sheridan tank and Armor Personnel Carrier (APC).

In the evening the scouts were transported to Kelley Hill for a movie in the newly constructed Kelley Hill Theater.

On Sunday morning the scouts took part in church services at the Harmony Church Chapel and attended the "after church cookout" sponsored by the 197th Spt. Bn. and the 50th Inf. (Patriots).

Lawson Alert Section guides post aircraft

When one thinks of an airfield, military or civilian, one tends to think in terms of runways, control towers, and hangars. But there is considerably more to the operation of an airfield than would appear on the surface. One of the least obvious but certainly one of the more important jobs at Lawson Army Airfield is that of the Alert Section.

One of the primary functions of the Alert Section is to guide transient aircraft from the active runways to the proper ramp for parking or refueling. For post aviators this poses no problem. They are familiar with the layout of the airfield and can readily follow the directions provided by Ground Control. But at an Airfield such as Lawson AAF, with a high density of transient traffic and aviators who are unfamiliar with the field, Ground Control is not enough. Being told to turn off at the Charlie taxiway and follow the Kilo Taxiway to the Blue Ramp is little help to an aviator with no idea where these places are located.

To avoid confusion, members of the alert section meet aircraft on the active runway in their yellow trucks with the rotating lights and the "Follow Me" sign and guide them to their proper location. In addition to providing guidance for aircraft, the Alert Section patrols the Airfield at frequent intervals to insure security. They also perform safety checks of the airfield lighting system, making sure that the approach, runway, and taxiway lights are all operational. Any treatment other than immunizations, appointments should be made by calling 566-4484. Immunizations will be given during regular clinic hours on a first come first served basis and appointments are not needed. Facilities are not available for surgery or hospitalization of animals.

The clinic is located in Bldg. 285 at the end of 18th Division Road. It was forced to discontinue the treatment of privately owned pets on April 1 this year due to a shortage of personnel.

967,000 vets utilizing current G.I. Bill

An estimated 967,000 veterans and servicemen were training under the current G.I. Bill on the June 16th anniversary of the bill, the Veterans Administration reported today.

Administrator of Veterans Affairs Donald E. Johnson said the total is nearly 15 per cent more than a year ago, and 33 per cent above two years ago.

Johnson noted that a trend of increasing enrollments has already accounted for 3.3 million trained under the current G.I. Bill, compared to 2.3 million during 13 years of its predecessor, the Korean G.I. Bill.

The estimated 967,000 veterans and servicemen in training on the sixth anniversary of the current G.I. Bill include 490,000 attending colleges and universities, and 380,000 training below college level, 97,000 of them taking on-the-job training.

When final statistics are in, VA officials expect enrollments during fiscal year 1972 to reach nearly two million.

The sixth anniversary of the current G.I. Bill also found an estimated 34,000 wives, widows and children training under VA's Dependents' Educational Assistance program, a seven per cent gain from a year ago.

In addition, an estimated 17,000 service disabled veterans will be in vocational rehabilitation programs, a three per cent increase from a year earlier.

VA pays veterans with no dependents $175 a month while they attend school full-time under the G.I. Bill. Veterans with one dependent are paid $306 monthly; with two dependents, $320 monthly; and those with more than two dependents receive an additional $18 monthly for each dependent.

To be eligible for VA education benefits, it was explained, Post Korean veterans (service after Jan. 31, 1953) and servicemen on active duty must serve at least 181 days, any part of it after Jan. 31, 1955. Veterans separated for service-connected disabilities are eligible, regardless of length of service.

Information on benefits is available at the Atlanta VA Regional Office and from representatives of local service organizations.

19TH INF. BDE —
"A TOAST TO YOU"

A garden of grapes was the backdrop for "A Toast To You," a cheese and wine tasting afternoon, sponsored by the ladies of the 19th Support Bn. for the 19th Brigade wives at the Supper Club on June 21. Guests entered the garden through a door marked by a wine press and welcoming poster and bordered with grape-laden trellises. Colorful wine posters from California covered the paneled wall and trellises of huge grapes flanked the speaker's podium. A large cluster of purple grapes and wild grape vines hung from the central chandelier.

Hostesses from Support Bn. served six types of wine and six varieties of cheese. For non-drinkers there was also fruit punch available. Each hostess had information for the guests about her particular wine and cheese. Also provided were booklets about serving and cooking with them.

The highlight of the afternoon was the special table featuring a cheese and broccoli fondue made on the spot and served by Mrs. Buzz McGee, nutrition specialist with the University of Georgia Extension Service, and Miss Wanda Tussing, church chairman of Dairy Council, Inc. They also had literature and information for the guests.

Mrs. Edwin Kennedy, wife of the 197th Infantry Brigade's commanding officer, welcomed everyone and introduced the honored guests for the afternoon. Mrs. Paul Gorman, Assistant Commandant of the Infantry School; Mrs. David Conard, whose husband is the Director of Facilities and Engineering for Fort Benning; Mrs. Robert Standley, wife of the commanding officer of the 325th Engineer Group; and Mrs. Henry Doctor whose husband is the Fort Benning VOLAH Director. Newcomers to the Brigade wives' group, also introduced by Mrs. Kennedy, were Mrs. Charles Arndt, wife of the new Brigade executive officer; Mrs. Robert Orkand whose husband recently took command of the 1-58th Infantry; and Mrs. James Eddins, whose husband is the new commander of the 197th Support Bn.

Mrs. Eddins, representing the hostesses group, thanked these ladies for their special efforts in arranging this afternoon: Mrs. George Gull, invitations; Mrs. Dale Kays, flyers; Mrs. Emil Farr, decorations; Mrs. Michael Petty; reservations and program; Mrs. Michael Lynch, door prizes; Mrs. Richard DeSpain, club arrangements and menu; Mrs. Dennis Lott and Mrs. Ronald Tyre, music; and Mrs. Wendell Dillon, name tags and overall coordination.

As the final event, gifts were given. Included as gifts were a hand-woven purse by Mrs. Michael Petty and an original etching by Mrs. Wendell Dillon, both members of the Support Bn. The crowning gift of the afternoon was a wicker picnic basket containing three types of wine and two varieties of cheese.

HEADQUARTERS COM-

X-ZEE (Rated R) — Features Elizabeth Taylor as a divorced wife, Michael Caine as her disfigured husband and Susanah York as the owner of a fashionable boutique who proves to be everything Miss Taylor is not. It looks like another marriage may wind up on the rocks, until Liz discovers something slightly amiss about Susanah up for the kill.

TWINS OF EVIL (Rated R) — For veteran horror flick fans, Twins of Evil has everything: curses, vampires, telepathy and cults. Peter Cushing stars as a leading member of a puritan brotherhood dedicated to discovering and eliminating a curse that has brought death to many villagers. Cushing's twin nieces are orphaned and come to live with their uncle. The local constable and his terrified servant (Dennis Price) perform vampire rites and, through the use of telepathy, entice the twins to join their murder cult.

HANDS OF THE RIPPER (Rated R) — Eric Porter stars in the role of a progressive psychiatrist in Victorian London who rescues from prison and adopts a 12-year-old girl (Angharad Rees) in hopes of finding a cure for her disturbed mental state. The movie proves to be a mistake when the girl initiates a blood bath that sets London on its ear. Without provocation, she murders a prostitute, a famous clairvoyant, a housekeeper and others. Finally, she attempts the murder of her benefactor, then joins his son and fiancée on the way to the Whispering Gallery of St. Paul's Cathedral, where the macabre drama is ended.

197th soldier loves to handle snakes

While most people are deathly afraid of all snakes, Sgt. Thomas Lohse of B Btry, 2nd Bn., 10th Arty., 197th Inf. Bde., welcomes the chance to handle them.

Lohse, a unit-of-choice enlistee and prior serviceman, first became interested in snakes while serving in the Republic of Vietnam on his first tour of duty.

The Milwaukee, Wis. native finds special fascination in poisonous serpents. As he explains it, "There is an air of mystery about them."

What began as a hobby for the returning Vietnam veteran actually blossomed into a profitable business. In four months, the Lohses, Thomas and his brother Bill, had collected several hundred snakes.

They sold a few skins to tourists and even stuffed some of their own snakes to sell. Among the snakes are about 100 cottonmouths, Lohse's favorites. He finds them "very quick and irritable but easy to tame."

On occasion, he has milked the cottonmouths and sold the venom to a commercial laboratory in the Milwaukee area. The milking procedure involves grasping the snake at the back of the head and forcing him to secrete venom.

As he attempts to bite a wooden bar which is placed behind his fangs, this venom is used to make anti-toxin to treat persons bitten by snakes.

"According to Lohse, an ounce of the venom is worth about $300 to one of these laboratories." "But he noted, "it takes the venom of about 180 snakes to produce a single ounce.

Although he found this hobby profitable, Lohse re-entered the Army, "because it offers more in the way of job satisfaction and career development."

Lohse does not encounter many snakes in his current job as a炊事兵 with Fort Benning's only artillery battalion.

He adds, however, "I often hunt them down in the woods for fun - just the non-poisonous ones, mind you, because I like to

Retired Army Open House slated July 1

Retired Army personnel and their dependents are invited to the 1972 Retired Army Open House to be held here July 1. This is in conjunction with this year's Independence Day celebration being held at York Field.

Retired personnel may sign guest registers at the Main Officers Club or the Senior Noncommissioned Officers Club. The club personnel will have directions for all post facilities and the Carnival.

Another register will be available in the Retirement Services Center, Classroom 50, Infantry Hall. The Center will have on-the-spot assistance for the retirees concerning questions about rights, services, and benefits, from the Veterans Administration, Social Security Administration, Department of Defense, and Department of the Army. In addition, the retirees may have up-to-date pamphlets containing useful reference material.

The Open House is being sponsored by the Adjutant General's office.

Retirees and their families are also invited to enjoy the Independence Day Carnival on July 1. The celebration will be held in front of Infantry Hall. Festivities open at 11 a.m. with a parade of military uniforms dating from 1783 to Revolutionary War. There will be numerous static displays of Army equipment and weapons, Army aircraft, and a parachute demonstration.

For the less military minded, there will also be a band contest, beauty contest, talent contest, and many game booths and food concessions on the midway.

USAMTU fills seven Olympic berths

A victorious U. S. Army shooting team, led by Col. William H. Harper, returned to the Infantry post this week from Phoenix, Ariz., where they captured half of the Olympic berths and a large share of the honors bestowed by the National Rifle Association in the 12th U. S. International Shooting Championships.

Shooters from the U. S. Army Marksmanship Training Unit were selected to fill seven of the 14 berths on the 1972 U. S. Olympic Team through the elimination trials held at the Phoenix Black Canyon Range and Trap and Skeet Club ranges.

Firing against a select field of 1,200 of the nation's best military and civilian marksmen, the shooting prowess of the Army marksmen captured six championships plus one tie for first which was lost in a shoot off, six runner up spots and six third place positions of which one was a tie for second.

Three-day Free Pistol competition with 1,633, six points ahead of his nearest opponent, Marine Reserve Cpl. Sgt. Jimmy Dorsey of Spokane, Wash.

Anderson's victory gave the Army their first Olympic berth and he followed this achievement with a tie in Standard Pistol at 579 with Marine Lance Cpl. James Comely only to lose the championship in a shoot off.

Following Anderson, six other Fort Benning marksmen joined the ranks of the elite and prestigious U. S. Olympic Team which will be representing the nation and competing for medals in the Olympic Games at Munich, Germany in August.

Of the seven Army marksmen, SFC James McNaely joined Anderson as the other pistol shooter by taking runner-up in the Rapid Fire Pistol competition to place on the coveted team while two Running Boar shooters were selected, two riflemen and one shotgunner.

The two Running Boar marksmen were SFC Charles D. Davis of Hazard, Ky., who won the event at Phoenix with his 1658 and SFC Edmund O. Moeller Jr., Moulton, Tex., runner up who posted 1625 for the three days aggregate.

The rifle marksmen making the team included National Three Position Smallbore Rifle Champion, Maj. Lones Wigger, Carter, Mont., who won the 300 Meter Free Rifle match with 3,387 and Capt. Larry R. Bassham, Evleess, Tex., who was runner up in the Three Position Smallbore Rifle event.

Lone J. Gage Shotgunner to join the Olympic parade was Sgt. Donald Haldeman, Souderton, Pa., who claimed the runner up spot in Clay Pigeon (Trap) with his 283.

Matches won by Army Marksmanship Unit shooters which did not involve Olympic selection included the Air Rifle match which was won by Wiggers with 293 and Ladies Smallbore Pistol which was won by National Women's Pistol Champion, SSG Barbara Ellis, Lapeer, Mich.

Experiencewise, in world wide competition, the seven Army shooters included on the Olympic team, includes two former Olympic competitors, three World Games, three Pan American and two CISM shooters.

Besides the seven Army shooters, the U. S. Olympic team includes Tom Roseth, Bldox, Miss., (former Army Marksmanship shooter) who won the Skeet event; Marine Reserve Cpl. Sgt. Jimmy Dorsey, Spokane, Wash., runner up to Anderson in Free Pistol; Marine Lt. Col. William McMillan, a one point winner of the Rapid Fire Pistol over McNally; Air Force 2nd Lt. James Poindexter, Bradbury, Calif., winner of the Trap Match; Army Reserve 1st Lt. John Writter, Clarendon Hills, Ill., (former shooter with the Army Marksmanship Unit) winner of the Three Position Smallbore Rifle match; Air Force MSGT (Ret.) Jack Johnson, San Antonio, Tex., runner up in Skeet and California civilian marksman Vic Anzer, winner of the English Match.

Of the latter competitors, McMillan and Writter are the most experienced, having both fired in the Olympics and Pan American Games.

By BILL KLOEB
Beginning next weekend the Rod and Gun Club Skeet Ranges will feature an elimination type turkey shoot in what may be the last-ditch effort to keep the ranges in operation.

As most members know the skeet and trap ranges have never been a money making proposition. In fact operating them has been a money losing operation since they opened several years ago.

The sad fact is that skeet and trap are pretty expensive hobbies. The club has always held the price of shooting to the lowest possible fee but even this has not attracted enough shooters to make the ranges pay their way.

It's a little difficult to understand. You would think that in the state that claims to be the quail hunting state of the Union there would be quite a few hunters who would be interested in improving their wing shooting. There is the other bird which is also plentiful in Georgia and Alabama. The dove requires an expert wing shot. Apparently these two birds are so plentiful in the area that any novice can get enough shots each time they go out to bring home his limit.

In any event according to Lt. Col. John Smith Jr., chairman of the club skeet committee this financial problem will be just about the last effort to keep the ranges open and it's not going to last too long if it's not successful. So if you are one of the people who would like to see these ranges remain open now is the time to act. Later will probably be too late because the subject will no doubt be high on the list of those items to be discussed at the next meeting of the board of governors.

According to Smith the elimination contests will work this way.

Ten shooters are required. Each will pay the attendant one dollar. A group leader will be chosen and he will determine the course to be fired. Each man will then fire at one clay pigeon with those missing their shots being dropped from the competition. This is repeated until one man remains. The shooter eliminating all other competitors will win a 10- to 15-pound turkey or an equivalent amount in cash. Groups or individuals may compete as many times as they desire as long as a dollar is paid by each individual for each contest. Shooters will also be required to furnish ammunition or purchase ammunition from the attendant.

This competition will begin the weekend of July 8 and 9 and continue during each weekend at least during the month of July. The ranges are open from 1 p.m. until 6 p.m. on Wednesdays, Saturdays and Sundays. These elimination type contests will only be held on Saturday and Sunday. They will not preclude anyone coming out to shoot a regular round of skeet at any time the ranges are in operation.

A shooter does not have to be a member of the Rod and Gun Club to participate in the competition. Anyone can come out to shoot. If the ranges are to be kept open the regular shooters are going to have to come out to shoot this month and they are going to have to bring friends out too.

Some shooters may not think this plan will work. They may have a better idea. If anyone does they can contact Lt. Col. Jones at 544-5995. He will be very receptive about anything that could improve the operation of the ranges.

While we are on the subject of money losing operations we should mention the other facilities and services provided by the Rod and Gun Club. The club as a whole has not been doing too well financially for the past year. There have been a few added expenses that the club has had to absorb from operating revenues and the cost of everything has gone up and up. The club is trying to hold the line on charges for merchandise and services but lately it has been a bad proposition.

In order to make money or even to break even the club had to have business. Bait has to be sold, hunting and fishing equipment has to be sold, boats and accessories must be rented and the skeet ranges and snack bar must have customers. The business just hasn't been there. Greatly the post is now down to one of the lowest strength figures in a long time, but the cost of operations goes on. Members must support the club if it is to continue to be a going operation.

Maybe you don't like the way it's being run. If you have better ideas the board of governors would like to hear from you. It's your club and should meet your needs. If it doesn't and you don't speak up, who will know?

Off-hour flights. A great way to get on our flights.

Flying military stand-by is a great way to save 50%.

It's also a great way to have to wait and wait until there's an available seat ready.

Eastern has a better way. If you take one of Eastern's early morning off-hour flights, there's a very good chance there will be a seat waiting for you rather than you waiting for a seat.

(Since less people fly during the early morning hours, there are more seats available during the early morning hours.)

So on your next leave, leave early on one of Eastern's off-hour flights to Atlanta.

At Atlanta, switch to any one of our other early morning flights, connecting you with any one of over a dozen destinations.

And because the military travels best on a full stomach, we'll make sure you get a good hot breakfast before you reach your destination.

Again, just one of the many ways in which Eastern continues to serve the military service.

So, call Eastern or your JAMTO office for all the details. You'll be leaving a little earlier, but then again, your leave will be a little longer.

(We also figured that with the extra time to spend you could use the extra money to spend.)

The Fort Benning Soccer Team holds practice sessions at Stillwell Field at 5 p.m. each Wednesday and Friday. Personnel desiring to play on the post team are invited to attend.

"$8,000 helped."

Sergeant Roy Smith was going for more than the bonus when he reenlisted.

"The $8,000 helped. But part of my reason for staying in the Army is I can get the rest of my college credits for a degree. I've got 2 years in already.

"I enjoy the job I'm doing now as a drill sergeant. But I'd also like to try military intelligence. And eventually get to go to OCS.

"It's all there. It's completely up to me and my qualifications for it"

Sergeant Smith views the Army as one big opportunity for a guy who wants to get ahead.

There are job and educational opportunities. In advanced electronics.

Cryptography. Foreign languages. Data processing. Communications. Traffic analysis. And lots more. And travel opportunities. In Europe. Korea. Hawaii. Alaska. Panama. And the time to enjoy it. To live it. In a way no tourist ever could.

And the opportunity to save money on all the everyday things.

Like free housing. Free dental and medical care. Commissary and post exchange privileges. Low cost life insurance. Plus one of the best retirement plans offered by any employer. Anywhere.

It's all here. It's up to you. Your Army Career Counselor has a whole book of job, duty station and training opportunities just waiting for you. He'll give you lots of reasons for staying in.

Sergeant Smith has good reasons for staying in.

Why are you staying in?

MPs squeeze by 586th Lt. Maint.

Larry Wiseman did in under the tag at home in the final inning to give the 139th MPs an 8-7 win over the 586th Lt. Maint. Co. in 81st softball action.

The other MP runs were scored in the second when Jim Lucas and Steve Allen started things off with singles followed by a walk to Willie Avard. Successive hits by Wiseman, Lip Cuthbertson, John Hammell, Mack Aptekar and Ruby Scott did the damage.

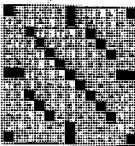

586th threatened throughout the game scoring five in the second and then two in the third to tie things up. An unassisted double play by Jose Morrell and a double play from Scott to Aptekar to Avard however kept the Maintenance Co. from scoring in the succeeding innings.

The victory boosted the MP record to 8-1, one-half game behind league leading 15th Finance.

Female reporters mix business with pleasure

By SUSANNE BOSTICK

and EDITH SIMMONS
Being a female reporter is not all work and no play, sometimes assignments can combine business and pleasure. A good example was the West Point Hop, which was attended both as reporters and as dates for two of the Cadets.

We were a little apprehensive when we received the assignment; we had heard of the mass gathering of local girls for these Hops, and the confusion involved in finding your date. To, neither of us exactly knew what to expect from a blind date with one of the famed Cadets; they had reputations for being "above" the average girl.

We relaxed, though, as we learned of plans for this year's Hop. Small groups of girls were to meet at the homes of officers living on Post; the officers and their wives would introduce us to our dates when they arrived, and from there we would proceed to the Officers' Club.

This was a vast improvement over previous years, when the girls and their dates had to search each other out after arriving at the Hop. This year some of the pre-date nervousness was out of the way before we arrived at the dance.

All this had been organized by the Protocol Office, which is in charge of arrangements for the Cadets each year, and Capt. Gary Deagan, the Project Officer for this year's Hop.

We endured a lot of teasing during April and May, just as we had expected. As the evening approached, we alternated between excitement and resignation, but by June 8, the excitement had won out.

At 7 p.m. we arrived at the homes of Lt. Col. and Mrs. John Jones, and Lt. Col. and Mrs. James J. Kelly. Our dates, Cadets Richard Crum (Edith's) and Robert Brown (Susanne's), didn't exactly fit our image of what a Cadet should be.

Richard Crum is actually a very typical college guy straight out of the Midwest from a small Kansas town, he says he chose the Point "because it seemed like the right place to go." Cadet Robert Brown, of Rochester, New York is all-Army and on his mind about physical fitness. Although an academic major as such is not possible at West Point, electrical engineering is his chosen elective field.

The Hop itself is part of the annual tour taken by the rising seniors at the Academy. They visit several major installations to get an insight into the requirements and rewards of serving in various branches. Since Fort Benning is the base of the infantry, this is an important stop for the Cadets.

After meeting our dates, we were taken to the Officers' Club for the Hop. Two bands kept things rocking. The General Assembly Show played inside the Supper Club, and the Second Time Around performed on the patio. Free food was abundant, and beer and drinks flowed.

The Club was packed with Cadets in their starched white coats, their dates in long and short dresses of every description, and Fort Benning officers and their wives and dates. As everyone relaxed, conversation bloomed, and there was much milling about and mixing and mingling of couples.

There were Cadets and girls of all kinds at the Hop the common denominator was youth. Not surprisingly, the Cadets don't come across as the stuffy young men they are supposed to be; what they are is bright, active, and extremely army-oriented. The decorations at the Club were beautiful, and the whole affair was a huge success. For such a large gathering, those in charge must have worked very hard, but their efforts were certainly worth it.

JROTC camp held thru July 1

The first Junior Reserve Officers' Training Corps (JROTC) summer camp in the Southeast is being held here June 18 through July 1.

More than 150 JROTC cadets from Noble, Ala. are attending the encampment. They are being hosted by the 931st Engineer Group who are furnishing quarters and mess facilities. The cadets are paying for their own meals.

The two weeks of training will include physical conditioning, weapons qualification and firing with the M14 rifle, the M59 machine-gun, and the 106 recoilless rifle. Cadets will also gain compass experience on the day and night courses.

Another important phase of the cadets' training will be in principles of leadership. During their stay, they will take the leaders reaction test which is given to all leadership courses taught at Fort Benning. In the test, groups of 10 cadets will attempt to solve 15 different problems typical of Army leaders in actual combat situations.

Major Gen. Orwin C. Talbot, post commander, welcomed the cadets in a brief speech June 18.

June 24-25 is parents' weekend. Parents will eat in the mess hall with their sons, tour the post facilities, attend a church service, and be honored by a parade on York Field Saturday morning.

July Military Review features 'Congress in Conflict'

F. T. LEAVENWORTH, Kan. — The July issue of Military Review, the Army's professional journal, has nine original articles, a reader forum and digests of previously published articles from other magazines.

In "Congress in Conflict: Enlarging its Role in Defense and Foreign Policy," Stanley L. Harrison describes how Congress is trying to reassert its position. Mr. Harrison is a Fellow of Public Affairs, conducting research and writing in the national area under a two-year grant awarded by the Hoover Institution on War, Revolution and Peace at Stanford University.

Today, he says, Congress is seeking to reverse the trend that foreign policy making is the sole area of the President. Congress has presented a rising challenge to the office of the Presidency itself. In order to reassert itself to the degree it seeks equal partnership, Congress must begin to put in order its own priorities and bring its powers and competence into play. "Early Retirement: Is It Worth the Price?" by David Nesenholz, a State of Texas Fellow in the Lyndon B. Johnson School of Public Affairs in Austin, examines whether retirement after 30 or more years is more desirable for the Armed Forces than retirement after 20 years in terms of return on investment, utilization of productive capital, and the expense involved.

Events following the Hungarian uprising of 1956 are discussed by Dr. Peter J. Gosztony, head of the Swiss East European Library in Bern, Switzerland, in "Hungarian Workers' Militia," his third article for the Military Review.

When Soviet troops intervened in the Hungarian uprising of 1956, they encountered fierce resistance from the Hungarian labor organizations. To counteract the image of Hungarians as workers throwing rocks at Russian tanks, the government of János Kádár formed the Hungarian Workers' Militia a paramilitary organization. The Kadar government claimed that the workers' militia proved that the working class unconditionally supported the post-revolutionary regime. The author says that, in fact, the workers' militia consisted of previous few workers, and he describes its membership, uniforms and equipment, command and control, and mission and training.

The six other original articles in the July issue of Military Review are: "Armies and Societies: Three Case Studies — The New German Army by Army Lt. Col. William I. ment, of the Soviet Miltary Policy" by Army Lt. Col. John G. Pappageorge; and "QUILT — A Quantitative Approach to Determining an Enemy's Most Probable Course of Action" by Army Maj. George D. Livingston Jr.

"The Military Outlook: Southern Africa" by Dr. Lewis H. Gann; "Clausewitz in the 1970's: The Dilemma" by Martinus Corps Col. George W. Smith; and "Israeli Helicopter Forces: Organization and Tactics" by Army

Maj. Thomas J. Marshall. The Military Review is published monthly at the U. S. Army Command and General Staff College here in close association with the U. S. Army War College, Carlisle Barracks, Pa.

43rd Eng. construct carnival game booth

As units of Fort Benning prepare for the upcoming July 31st carnival, C Co, 43rd Eng. Bn, has put its two vertical construction platforms to work on constructing the game booths and refreshment stands for the midway.

With construction and set up time as critical factors, it was imperative to use a modular form of prefabrication. Keeping in mind the requirements of the game booths and refreshment stands, the personnel of C Co, under the direction of 1st Lt. Michael S. Taylor, produced a design for a basic modular panel six feet wide and eight feet high.

With this design, it became only necessary to marry the interior portions of the panels to allow for counter space and drink dispensing machine needs of the booths. Accordingly, crews were put to work, cutting the lumber and building the panels for assembly. Other crews set up an assembly line to put together the finished panels.

Capt. Joe M. Dietzel, C.O., C Co, 43rd Eng. Bn, indicated that the modular design and the spirited reaction of his two platoons to assembly-line construction enabled the company to complete the nearly 450 panels in record time.

"Two very important additional benefits of the design other than efficient construction" he pointed out, "were the ease with which the panels can be transported and the ease of setting up and dismantling."

Pseudofolliculitis causes racial misunderstandings

Misunderstanding is the cause of many racial problems in the military. One question that has arisen is, "Why are some black men allowed to wear beards while the rest of us are forbidden?"

It's not what some people are calling it—reverse discrimination. It's a medical problem common to young men and particularly to black men and it's called pseudofolliculitis. This disease, also called ingrown beard, is a chronic, pimple-like inflammation of the beard area, particularly along and below the jawline and on the throat and, once started, may be cured by letting the beard grow and proper hygiene.

Not caused by shaving as some people think, ingrown beard is caused by the way a man's beard grows. The black man's beard grows in a curved follicle and describes a short arc so that a beard hair comes right back in contact with the skin. The end of the beard may just slide along the skin until a harmless coil has formed but it may also penetrate the skin and be driven through the stratum corneum, the epidermis and into the dermis (three layers of the skin).

tion occurs and usually a simple abscess develops and is aggravated by the presence of skin bacteria. This is the disease, pseudofolliculitis or ingrown beard.

Once the disease has started and been diagnosed, the cure is relatively simple: don't shave. Allowing the beard to grow results in a temporary worsening of the disease as the hair penetrates deeper into the skin, but in approximately 4 to 6 weeks the hair will begin to pull back out of the abscess.

Eventually the hair pulls completely free of the skin and the abscess fades away after the disease has run its course which usually takes from two to three months.

Resumption of shaving does not mean a certain return of ingrown beard.

and, in fact, sticking to a rigid schedule of shaving is the basic preventive measure in combating ingrown beard.

Using a very low setting on an adjustable razor and shaving often enough so that the hair does not grow long enough to complete its arc and dig into the skin is recommended. Shaving with a low blade angle, it is almost impossible to cut the skin or over the tops of bumps or pimples which must be particularly avoided by black men. It is sometimes recommended that they leave a light stubble.

Scrubbing the beard area daily will help to dislodge any hairs that might be cutting into the skin and they can also be freed manually with a sharp toothpick. They should not be plucked but left until the next shave.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

Mix some fresh, chopped mint leaves into orange marmalade for a pleasant accompaniment to roast lamb or chops.

Put several dime-store magnetic hooks on the side of your metal barbecue grill to hold potholders and light barbecue tools.

Thick canned foods such as tomato paste or breakfast hosh will come clean out of the can if you open both ends, scrape the food off one lid and use the other to push the contents out.

Carob powder, a popular substitute for cocoa or chocolate, comes from pods also known as "St. John's bread" because it is said that this saint lived on them in the wilderness.

If you store eggs large-end-up before hard-cooking, the yolks will be centered nicely for the best-looking deviled eggs.

ROTC Cadets take mountain training

A group of 214 Ranger students—202 ROTC cadets and 12 cadets from the U.S. Military Academy—opened the mountain phase of their training Wednesday at Camp Frank D. Merrill in Dahlonega, Ga.

The second group of 221 cadets are now in the Benning phase.

Of the 251 cadets who started the rugged Benning phase of Ranger training 214 successfully completed the course.

At Camp Merrill, the cadets will be split into two groups—one concentrating on patrolling and the other learning rappelling and other mountain techniques. Midway through the mountain phase, the groups will change training schedules.

Cadets who complete the mountain phase at Camp Merrill on July 26 will move on to the Ranger Camp located in the swamps at Eglin Air Force Base, Fla. for the final phase of their nine weeks of training. The 66 cadets taking the course who are Airborne qualified will jump into the Florida camp.

The Florida phase features such training as individual tower rappelling techniques, water and airborne operations, river navigation, and field training exercises.

The first of two cadet classes being trained will graduate in ceremonies at Fort Benning in August.

Cadets who successfully complete the nine-week course will be entitled to wear the coveted Ranger Tab. Cadets who complete six weeks of the course will be given credit for ROTC summer training.

The Ranger program is designed to teach small unit tactics and techniques to junior officers and non-commissioned officers through the conduct of arduous field operations in difficult terrain. A definite broadening of leadership abilities is also realized as a benefit of the course.

Students not only operate as an information gathering agency, but learn to develop and employ a combat intelligence of their enemy and immediate area of operations. Stress is placed on individual and small unit security and tactics in mountainous warfare against a regularly organized aggressor.

609th's cola can plane flying high at Pentagon

The "DSB Special", an aircraft designed and built by Direct Support Platoon "B" of the 609th Trans. Co., has been "transferred" to the office of the director of Army Aviation in Washington D.C.

The aircraft's design was the idea of Amanda Rose, wife of CW2 Victor Rose of the 609th Trans. Co. The aircraft was built, without blueprints, in three days by CW2 Steven L. Brandon and Specialist 5 George L. Ball, Joseph W. Bushlock and Thomas N. Fallock.

The airplane was constructed of sheet metal, wood, cola cans and safety wire. The aircraft sports a six foot wingspan and the fuselage is four feet in length. The empty weight of the "DSB Special" is 50 pounds. It is powered by a cola can radial engine driving a two-bladed wooden prop and armed with aluminum cola can machine guns with a cyclic fire rate of one round a year. Fuel capacity is six colas. The "DSB Special" requires a crew of one small Beagle dog.

Gen. William T. Maddox, director of Army Aviation, first observed the aircraft.

Gen. Maddox was so impressed that he decided to present the aircraft to him as a memento of his flight hours.

National conventions are a riot . . . ?

"Do you think the national convention system is an efficient way for the parties to choose their presidential candidate?"

PPC Richard Abrams says "I think it's a good idea because it makes the candidates go from state to state. If a candidate can get 25 votes more than the other fellow, he should have the whole state's votes because majority rules. Conventions are a good idea since they select the nominee on the basis of what the candidate has done. I would like the candidates to visit military installations. Average soldiers get no chance to meet or see these men." Abrams is with the 4th Company, TSB.

Pvt. Michael Moonenham doesn't have as much faith in the system. He says, "Machinery controls the conventions. The conventions are not well run — remember the riots of the last Democratic convention? Meetings should be held in secret and the results announced." He too, is with the 4th Company.

PPC James Renfro is with the 68th Ordnance Company. "I think it's a waste of money," he says. "Money spent on $1000 dinners to raise money for campaigns could be better spent elsewhere. Besides, if they hold conventions, what's the purpose of voting?"

According to Pvt. Fred Collins, "the electoral college really selects the president. Choice of delegates and candidates is not really in the hands of the majority of the people. A direct national primary is the only way to give the power to the people. This way, strength of the large cities' vote would overcome the country people's vote." Collins is with the 49th Company, Airborne.

Sgt. Anthony Barone Jr. says "I think the conventions are a good idea. They pool all the people who know what they want to do and have worked to get there from the different districts. They are the most knowledgeable to work out a platform to stand on." He works with the 7th Company, TSB.

New International Signs

OLD	NEW	OLD	NEW

In an effort to help reduce the number of traffic accidents and fatalities, the United States is changing to international road signs. Adopted at the 1968 United Nations Conference on Road Traffic held in Vienna, the signs became standard throughout European nations and other major countries of the world. These pictorial signs are easier to understand than present signs.

People comprehend symbols faster than words, and this factor could be a life saver on the roads. The new signs should completely replace present signs by the end of 1974.

Safe driving is not a matter of luck. Experience shows that there is a sound and practical method of driving — the Defensive Driving Concept — that will enable you to stay out of the majority of accident situations. Driving is a skill that is improved by training, practice, experience, and by attitude. People with top skills continue to practice. The professional bowler or golfer will practice for hours even though he is at the top of his game. Why don't drivers practice too!

Accidents DO happen, of course. But it is people who make them happen. Many of them need not have happened if the driver had observed safe driving practices — if the driver had adapted his driving to suit local conditions. Nor is it always the "other guy." Remember, for him YOU are the other guy.

Know your legal residency status

As a member of the U.S. military, it is important for you to be fully aware of your legal residence in order to vote by absentee ballot.

The State, city or county (township) in which a person lived before entering military or Federal service usually is considered his legal residence for voting purposes unless he later establishes residence elsewhere.

Time spent in such service counts in meeting local residence requirements. For example, if a State requires a minimum residence of two years and a person lived in a State for one year and served in the Armed Forces or overseas as a foreign service officer for one year, he will have fulfilled the State's two years' residency requirement.

For a U.S. citizen temporarily residing overseas, his legal residence is the State in which he had previously designated his legal residence, or if no such designation had been made, in the State from which he departed, provided that the State involved permits a citizen to retain his legal residence while temporarily living in a foreign country.

The voter's home State remains as the only State in which a person has the legal right to vote unless certain conditions of residency in another State are met and the person desires to, or must under voting laws of his former home State, establish his legal residence there. In any case, a person has voting rights in only one State. Whenever he satisfies residency and other requirements of one State and decides to adopt this State as his legal residence, he forfeits his voting rights in the State he formerly claimed as his legal residence.

The Federal Voting Assistance Act recommends to the States that they permit members of the Armed Forces to acquire legal residency in a State notwithstanding standing residence on a military installation within the State. The right to establish legal residence in a State while living off a military installation was affirmed in a 1966 United States Supreme Court case, Carrington v. Rash. In 1970, the United States Supreme Court held that Federal employees, who are treated by the States as residents, and who have a vital interest in electoral decisions, could not be denied the right to vote by reason of their residing on a Federal enclave, Evans v. Goman. Most States, therefore, now allow a serviceman to become a legal resident of the State, notwithstanding his residence on a military installation.

Servicemen who intend, in good faith, to become legal residents of the State where they are stationed should personally contact the local election officials concerning that State's election laws pertaining to registration and voting. The serviceman should be aware, however, of the effect that the establishment of a voting residence has on his personal affairs, such as State income and inheritance taxes, divorce, adoption, automobile registration, etc. In the event the serviceman is denied the right to register and vote because he lives on a military installation, he should contact the nearest legal assistance office for appropriate guidance.

Should a member of the Armed Forces not know his legal residence, or is unsure where his legal residence is, then he should seek advice from his voting counselor, or the legal assistance officer.

Are you putting me on?

Remember the 4C's when buying a diamond ring

Traditions may be changing, but marriage is here to stay. An estimated two million happy couples will say "I do" this year and four-out-of-five of the brides will go down the aisle wearing a diamond.

To many, however, the buying of the diamond is a mystery. They do not know what qualities of the diamond determine its price, or if they are getting their money's worth from the purchase.

If there's an engagement in your immediate future you are faced with the decision of whether to surprise your girl with the ring or ask her help in selecting it.

There is still something romantic about surprising her with the diamond, and if your time is limited, shopping for it by yourself might be a necessity.

However, with the great variety of styles available, many girls like to have a say in choosing their diamonds. If you decide to shop together, first visit the jeweler by yourself, and select a few diamonds in your price range. The jeweler will be happy to put them aside, and show only those pre-selected diamonds when you and your fiancée come in together.

Whatever the case, know your diamonds before you buy one. Size alone does not determine a diamond's price. Even two diamonds the same size have different qualities of clarity, color and cut. That's why prices vary.

The most important thing is to consult a reputable diamond expert, and will be happy to point out how the Four C's — carat weight, clarity, color and cut — affect the value and beauty of each diamond he shows you.

Carat weight is the unit of measure in diamonds. The word carat comes from the Oriental carob seed which was once used to balance the scales in a dollar, the carat is divided into 100 points. Thus a 50-point diamond, the average size of an engagement ring, weighs half a carat.

Small diamonds are more plentiful in nature than large ones, and as with everything else, rarity increases value. A one carat diamond might cost three times as much as a half carat stone of the same quality.

Clarity in diamonds is judged by the absence of inclusions or imperfections, such as carbon spots or bubbles.

Under the Federal Trade Commission rule, a diamond is "flawless" only if it shows no inclusions to the trained eye when magnified ten times. Other diamonds are valued according to the number, kind and location of the inclusions. If the inclusion does not interfere with the passage of light through the diamond, it will not affect the gem's brilliance, but will lower its price.

Diamonds come in every color of the rainbow, but most are clear white with tints of the colors around a king of warm body color. In fact, diamonds have been classified into more than 240 different shades of white.

Diamonds reflect colors around them. The best way to see a stone's true color is to look at it sideways, through the thickest part, against a white background. The whiter the white, the greater the value.

Out is the process by which a diamond is changed from a rough to a faceted stone. When each of the facets or little planes are polished onto the diamond at a precise angle, the diamond is at its fiery best. Any lack of precision in positioning the facets will affect the diamond's beauty and price.

Cut also refers to the shape of a diamond. The round or brilliant is by far the most popular cut for engagement rings. Other shapes gaining in favor are: the oval, the boat-shaped marquise and pear shapes which cost slightly more than the round, oval and emerald cuts.

Before you buy, look at as many diamonds as possible. Decide what you want. Then in a key purchase according to the Four C's and the advice of a reputable jeweler.

Checks, loans can be real 'bummer'

Writing checks is a convenience that many people abuse. Carelessness and failing to understand the system used by most banks causes this trouble.

The case of the returned check can be brought about through a misunderstanding about the account system.

Most banks use a system referred to as "delayed posting." Under this system, checks and deposits are posted to an account on the next business day following their presentation or receipt at the bank. These entries are predated, however, to correspond to the actual date upon which the check was presented or the deposit received.

If a check is written with the belief that a forthcoming deposit will provide funds for payment, that deposit must reach the bank on the same business day that the check does.

It would be more correct to say that the deposit must reach a particular branch of the bank in which you maintain your account on the same business day that the check does. A deposit made to your bank at a branch other than the one where your account is located will ordinarily not be posted to your account until the second business day following its receipt.

The reason for this delay is that the deposit will be routed through the bank's main branch before reaching your branch. You can avoid this result by notifying the teller at the time of making the deposit where your account is located. He will route your deposit directly to the correct branch.

In addition to the poorly timed deposit, some people overdraw their account by incurring service charges. Most checking accounts are based upon a plan which entitles you to write a certain number of checks without a service charge — if you maintain a specified balance in your account throughout the month.

As the balance in your account increases, the number of "free" checks you may write also increases. The difficulty arises when you write more checks than you are authorized for the lowest balance maintained during the month. At this juncture, service charges are posted to your account for each additional check.

A schedule of service charges may be obtained at your bank. Knowledge of its contents will insure that you maintain an appropriate balance to avoid service charges, or at least are aware of these charges.

Some checking accounts have been overdrawn, through a misunderstanding of the conditionally accepted deposit. This situation arises when a deposit is made by a check drawn upon an out-of-town bank. Not being able to verify immediately if the check will be honored, the bank will accept the deposit on the condition that none of the funds will be drawn upon until the check deposited clears the bank on which it was drawn.

Another major problem that confronts the average GI is the personal loan.

There are few of us who have not had a friend or relative with some financial difficulties. Perhaps they've approached you for help. Or, you offered to lend them enough money to ease them through the crisis.

Maybe you have asked a huddy to help get a harassing creditor off your back. Think back . . . what were the results of those transactions? Too often the outcome is a buddy who avoids you in the company area, or a once helpful relative whose only feeling for you now is bitterness.

Loans between acquaintances and the resulting problems have confronted man since he learned to get into debt. This same problem, troublesome as it is in civilian life, can be worse in the military. The often close living conditions, the strong friendships that exist and the likelihood of frequent moves add thorns to an already prickly problem.

Another important and often misunderstood fact is that the Army cannot help you collect the loan should it be unpaid. Your company commander can do little more than encourage the borrower to repay the loan. Your only remedy in the event of your borrower's default is a civil action that will cost you time and money. What then, as a serviceman, should you do when confronted by a friend or relative who seeks your financial help? The best advice is not to lend money.

If, however, you decide that you want to lend your buddy money, go to your commanding officer for advice. There, a promissory note can be written and all parties concerned can sign with greater assurance than with just a handshake or a glorified I.O.U. in which you think you have covered all the angles.

A promissory note is an unconditional promise in writing made by one person to another, signed by the borrower who agrees to pay on demand or at a future date a certain sum of money to the lender.

But, the promissory note is merely written proof that a loan was in fact made. It does not guarantee that you will be repaid. It gives you a legal basis upon which to begin collecting money from the borrower when the note becomes due.

The legal assistance officer can advise you on all aspects of the proposed loan to include interest, collateral and taxes. For example you may object to charging interest to a friend because you want to help him, not make money. But interest, even the most nominal amount is like a label which says, "This isn't a gift, it's a loan." Interest proves that you intend the loan as a loan, not a gift in disguise. That becomes important if the loan never gets repaid and you attempt to write it off as a bad debt on your income tax return.

Keep in mind that the cost of loaning money on your own can be very high in terms of dollars and friendship. The answer: See your legal assistance officer for advice and help.

Wearing Army uniforms could be very 'uncool'

The turned-on generation might not consider wearing authentic U.S. Army blues and greens such a mellow happening if they knew they could be letting themselves in for a bad trip.

According to a DA message outlining penalties for misrepresentation of a military uniform or part of a uniform, an unsuspecting youth (or vet) may find himself cooling his jets in a very unattractive jail.

In the case of an active duty soldier, misrepresenting a uniform is also a direct violation of Army Regulation 700.5. This could mean up to two years' confinement and a dishonorable discharge. In lesser cases, the fine could be as much as forfeiture of one month's pay and or one month in confinement at hard labor.

For civilians and veterans not authorized to wear uniforms, laws will vary from state to state, but the federal laws call for a fine of $10 to $250 and or up to six months behind bars.

Many installations throughout the United States will soon begin enforcing the law prohibiting the unauthorized wear of uniforms and parts of uniforms, so keep in mind that you MAY NOT wear, with civilian clothes, the class A uniform blouse; insignia to include shoulder patches, unit crests, rank, "U.S." and branch distinctions.

From the hip . . .

Susan George is very upset because many of her soldier friends haven't registered to vote. Says Susan, "DOD has set up an information service for voting officers so they can get the necessary information to the troops." The service is called "Voting Action Line", and voting officers can get quick assistance by calling AUTO VOTE 224-777 or (202) 634-

Exercise of the Week

Still feeling stiff after last week's exercise? Good, that shows you're in as bad a condition as you thought you were.

In order to promote your physical fitness, here's an exercise designed to firm up those sagging belly muscles: the Turn and Bend.

The starting position for the Turn and Bend is a side straddle with the arms over the head. The exercise is a four-count exercise performed at a moderate cadence.

On the first count of the Turn and Bend, turn your trunk to the left and bend forward over your left thigh, attempting to touch your fingertips to the ground, outside the left foot. Repeat the exercise straight, no shamming now! On successive repetitions, attempt to touch further and further to the side.

Turn and Bend

will be held on the thirteenth day of an ROTC-Ranger Course.
The ladies were escorted by Capt. Colin Quigley, of the BHC, to Camp Darby, on June 22, where Lt. Col. Karl V. Hurdle briefed them on the objectives of the BRC and the training ROTC classes receive from the Ranger Department. He explained how the students have over 1000 hours training during the nine week Ranger Course.

Major Powell A. Johnson took over with a description of the training given at Camp Darby and the demonstration that the class and ladies were to view.

The demonstration was meant to highlight classroom instruction on patroling. The small patrol was on a reconnaissance mission. They would observe the objective, withdraw, reinforce and return, as a combat patrol, to destroy the objective.

Each step the patrol made was narrated by SFC Oscar Rubin, while Capt. Alvin L. Hennigan Jr. and SFC Willie W. Snow simulated the voices of the patrol leader and his men.

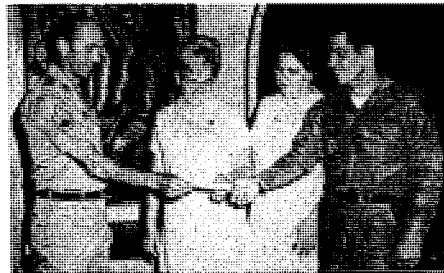

The demonstration ended after the realistic raid and destruction of the objective. The ladies were then taken to Camp Darby Headquarters to view the snake pits and watch themselves on a video tape taken by SFC Raleigh Thomas, during their briefings. The video tape camera is used as a training aid by the Ranger Department.

The ladies left Camp Darby with a new knowledge and appreciation of the unit their husbands work for.

Provost Marshal initiates helicopter surveillance patrol

A program of helicopter surveillance has been initiated by the Provost Marshal in an effort to reduce larcenies, robberies, breaking and entering, assaults, and destruction of government property.

USAC Aviation Command, in cooperation with the Provost Marshal's Office, is furnishing a helicopter equipped with high intensity lights capable of flooding a large area or pinpointing single objects.

The helicopter operates on an unannounced schedule, and while flying covers the housing area, Main Post, high incident areas, outlying ranges, ponds, and other secluded spots. A Military Policeman acts as an observer in the helicopter, from which he is able to communicate directly with Military Police vehicle patrols.

This provides an immediate response when unusual or criminal activity is spotted. The Military Policeman may also be utilized to make apprehensions or render assistance as necessary.

The program is designed and operated in hopes of providing a safer community in which the personnel of Fort Benning may work and live.

The Provost Marshal helicopter prepares to take off for a surveillance tour of Post in an effort to reduce larcenies, robberies, breaking and entering, assaults, and destruction of government property.

Primary missions outlined by Post Veterinarian

By JOHN POWELL

Recently the Veterinary Activity was forced to curtail some of its services due to a critical shortage of personnel.

The first activity that was discontinued was the treatment of privately owned pets of military personnel. This action was based on a list of priorities directed by Headquarters, Department of the Army, CONARC and Third United States Army. Although the closing of the pet clinic was well publicized, the Veterinary Activity received numerous telephone calls from pet owners requesting treatment. Many of these callers, a few of whom became irate, did not understand why we could not treat their animals. A frequent query was "what does a Veterinarian do if he doesn't treat animals?"

Even when the clinic was operating, many people could not understand why it was open only two hours a day. A common question was "what do you people do the rest of the day?" Since so many people are not aware of the scope of Veterinary Activities in the Army, it is believed that a short description of the composition and mission of the Veterinary Service might be of interest to the personnel of Fort Benning.

The Army Veterinary Corps is one of the smallest corps in the Army, consisting of approximately 1,000 officers, all of whom are graduate Veterinarians. These officers are assisted by approximately 2,000 enlisted technicians, who are divided into two MOS, 91T and 91A. The 91T is a Veterinary Specialist who assists the veterinary officer in the care and treatment of animals. The 91A is a Food Inspection Specialist. About 90 per cent of the 2,000 technicians in the Veterinary Service are food inspectors.

Although one of the primary missions of the Veterinary Service is to provide Veterinary Care for animals, the animals referred to are government owned animals and not pets. These military animals range from the Scout, Mine and Tunnel and Tracker dogs that are trained here at Fort Benning, the Scentry Dogs used by the Military Police and the Calson horses at Fort Meyer that are used in ceremonial funerals at Arlington Cemetery to the mice, rabbits, guinea pigs, monkeys, and other animals used in research projects. As a matter of interest, more than one fifth of all the officers in the Army Veterinary Corps are involved in some capacity in medical research.

A second primary mission is the prevention and control of zoonoses or animal diseases to which people are susceptible.

There are many such diseases although some of these occur only rarely. Rabies, Tuberculosis, Brucellosis or Undulant fever, Chlamydia and Rabbit fever, Psittacosis or Parrot fever and Plague are some of the more familiar ones.

Control of such diseases requires immunization of susceptible animals, and people when necessary, and close surveillance of all animals on the military reservation, including military animals, privately owned animals and even wild animals. Pet clinics such as the one at Fort Benning are fringe benefits from this particular primary mission. In order to provide as large a sample of animals as possible for disease surveillance and since required immunizations are usually provided, the Department of the Army has authorized limited treatment of privately owned pets where the Post Commander concurs and where adequate resources, including personnel, facilities and equipment are available. A 1500 g g no charge is made for services at these clinics, the owner is required to pay for the medicines and other supplies that are used.

The third principal mission of the Veterinary Service is food inspection. The Army and Air Force Veterinary Services are responsible for assuring the wholesomeness of all the food purchased for all of the Armed Forces. This includes the food issued to troop messes, sold in the Commissary or Post Exchange or served in the open messes and requires about 75 per cent of all the efforts and resources of the entire Veterinary Service. To prevent duplication of effort and yet maintain careful surveillance of all foods utilized, requires careful and frequent examination by military food inspectors and close coordination and cooperation with the Food and Drug Administration, US Public Health Service, US Department of Agriculture and other similar Federal and local health agencies throughout the United States and in foreign countries wherever food is purchased for the US Armed Forces. Inspection begins with sanitary inspections of processing plants. The food itself may be inspected through processing before and after shipment, during storage and finally at the time of issue to the mess hall or unit if it is sold in the Commissary Store.

The Veterinary pet clinic will be reopened on July 25 from 1-3 p.m. See Vet. page 21

Catching it

Jack Klugman (L) takes things philosophically during a madcap session with moustached Bob Newhart in "Catch 22" appearing at theater No. 4 tonight. The movie, a satire of all-things military, tells of life in a U.S. bomb group in the Mediterranean during World War II.

Coming to the screen . . .

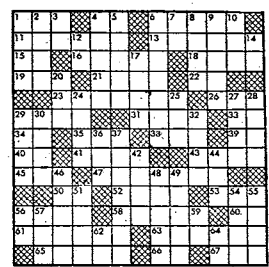

THE NIGHTMOMERS (Rated R) — The Nightmovers is a terror-filled saga of death and evil surrounding Stephanie Beachcom and Marlon Brando and two orphaned children on a dreary English estate. As a drunken, satirical reprobate, Brando takes over the minds of the impressionable kids until they are possessed by his crude ravings of sex and death. They begin to re-enact what they have learned, and the scary events leading up to the final grisly murder should be a treat for horror flick fans.

THE GROUNDSTAR CONSPIRACY (Rated PG) — George Peppard is featured in the role of a super-patriotic security agent whose job it is to find the forces behind the sabotage of a top secret government space project. The saboteur manages to escape the explosion, though mangled beyond recognition. After capture and a delicate operation, including plastic surgery, Michael Sarrazin is brutally interrogated by Peppard and then allowed to escape, hopefully to lead the government to the enemy organization.

RED SKY AT MORNING (Rated PG) — How do you talk man-to-man to a kid who's grown up too fast? What happens when a wife has a "kind friend" to help her forget? When temptation beckons, is the pleasure worth the punishment? What happens when teen-agers suddenly find their fun and games aren't child's play anymore? These questions are posed in Red Sky At Morning.

Show-Off: George Kelly comedy feature event at Auburn

"The Show-Off" a comedy by George Kelly, will open Monday, for five days in the Auburn University Little Theatre on College Street. It is a production of the Auburn University Department of Theatre. Curtain time is 8 p.m. and all seats must be reserved. The comedy, under the direction of Dr. A. C. Harrison, head of the Department of Theatre involves the struggles of Aubrey Piper to satisfy his enormous egotism, at the same time preserving his self-respect in the presence of discouraging obstacles. In 1924 "The Show-Off" made Kelly the "talk of Broadway," and the play was recommended for a Pulitzer Prize. It lost, but the following year his "Craig's Wife" did win the coveted award. In the cast are Mary McMurtry of Auburn as Clara; Kathie East Moore of Auburn as Mrs. Fisher; Reta Bitler of Decatur as Amy; Henry Cadenhead of Greenville as Frank; Richard Bradley Smith of Waynesboro as Mr. Fisher; Wayne Moore of Auburn as Joe; Leo Jackson of Billings, Mont., as Aubrey Piper; Jim Bradley of Bessemer as Mr. Roberts; and Yale Shure of Adina as Mr. Gill. DA adopts OPMS

WASHINGTON (ANF)—The Department of the Army has adopted a new concept for officer career development known as the Officer Personnel Management System (OPMS). OPMS means that every officer will have an equal opportunity for career progression. He will have more control over his own career and will be able to point himself to advancement in areas in which he is best suited.

The officer's career decisions and Army-directed selections together will enable the officer to compete for stars based on his own ability, dedication and professional development.

Under OPMS an officer's career will be developed in three phases. The first two years, or company grade development phase, will be similar to the present system, with officers acquiring their branch qualification as their primary skill.

During the next ten years—the field grade development phase—the officer will concentrate on broadening his branch qualification and developing an additional skill. By this time, the officer will have identified his primary and secondary skill areas.

George Peppard stars as the head of a top secret government space project in "The Groundstar Conspiracy" appearing at post theater No. 1 Saturday at 11 p.m.

Convention time is here

August 20, a candidate must receive 674 of the 1,346 delegate votes. Each state gets two delegates for every Congressional district that cast 15,000 or more votes for the Republican presidential candidate or Congressional candidate in the last election, plus four at large delegates. States that voted for the last Republican presidential candidate, elected a Republican senator or governor or hold a Republican majority in their delegation in the House of Representatives are rewarded with an extra six at-large delegates.

BY EDITH SIMMONS
H. L. Menckel once said, "There is something about a national convention that makes it as fascinating as a revival or hanging. It is vulgar, it is ugly, it is stupid, it is hard upon both the higher cerebral centers and the guttural maxims, and yet somehow, it is charming."

held its first convention in 1856. A convention has three major functions: nominate candidates for president and vice president, prepare a platform of party principles and unify the party for the campaign.

Delegates to the conventions are selected according to state party rules or state laws. The number of delegates allotted to each state is decided by the party.

At the Democratic National Convention, which opens in Miami Beach, Fla., Monday, there will be 3,106 delegate votes. To win, a candidate must muster 1,599 votes, a majority. A state receives 3 delegates for each Electoral College vote. The remaining 1,386 votes are distributed among the states on the basis of how they voted for the Democratic presidential candidate in the last three elections.

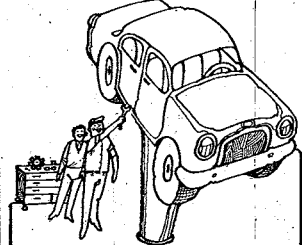

To receive the Republican nomination in Miami, the franchise in the early 19th century brought in an influx of voters interested in helping select their party's candidates. In 1852 the Democrats copied the idea of a national convention of party members from the Antislavery Party. The Republican Party, born out of the Kansas-Nebraska Dispute of 1854, much of the actual work of the convention is done by committees, rather than on the floor. The Credentials Committee certifies which delegates are the official representatives to the convention from each state. The

Vet

Monday through Friday. Although the veterinary activity is still below average strength, every effort is being made to maintain or improve on the care provided for both military and private owned pets as well as to provide a better and more comprehensive foot inspection service at Fort Benning. One of the major factors permitting the reopening of the clinic is the outstanding support of the Red Cross Volunteers. With the help of these more timely and more comprehensive care can be provided for animal pets. Pet owners too can help by calling 545-4464 for appointments rather than waiting in without one. This frequently will save considerable time and also will allow the doctors to better schedule their time in order to take care of their other missions.

Vivian Hill of the Bi-City Merchants girls softball team slams the ball as the girls beat TSB 5-4 at Gowdy Field of June 28.

Peanuts, popcorn and girls upset TSB in softball action

The TSB softball team competed against the Bi-City Merchants girls softball team in a six inning game June 28 at Gowdy Field.

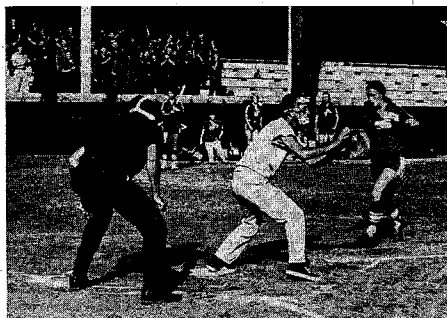

TSB was leading 4-0 at the end of the fifth inning with runs scored by Sgt. Maj. Emory D. Wise, Capt. Jay V. Aliff, and Lt. Col. Robert I. Farris. In the sixth inning, the girls scored a run, then with the bases loaded, Pam Gunther drove in three runs with a line drive to center field and then stole home making the final score 5-4.

After the game the girls were escorted by the officer candidates of 53rd Co., 5th Bn., to the 53rd Co. mess hall where the girls enjoyed supper.

After the TSB, Bi-City Merchants girls softball game, held at Gowdy Field on June 28, contestants line up to congratulate each other.

CSM Norris W. Curry, 8th Bn., TSB, waits for the ball as Pam Gunther comes in home.

BY BILL KLOEB

"Last year about this time the most popular word in the news and conversations was "ecology." Everyone was writing about it and everyone was talking about it. It seemed that every individual and organization had a sure cure for cleaning up some part of our environment. In one way or another all the local areas and the nation or the world for that matter was going to get "cleaned up."

A lot of organizations, national and local were formed to promote the improvement of some element or segment of the air we breathe, the food we eat, the water we drink and the places we live or use in our way of life today.

A lot of suggestions were made by influential people and organizations and long lists of things an individual should or shouldn't do were provided to improve the situation. The newspapers, magazines and other publications went without a television or radio ad telling the public what to do or what not to do to improve our world.

The "clean up" was going to be a great project. Fish and wildlife were going to be saved for future generations, forests restored, rivers and lakes made as pure as they were when the first settlers came to America and even the air was going to be breathable again.

Then, as quick as the whole thing had started it seemed to stop. It seems to me it turned out to be similar to the old project of building the tower of Babel.

A lot of people and a large number of organizations all had their own ideas as to the solution for the problems. Trouble was that they didn't agree and in many cases the cure put forth by one spelled sure death for the program another was trying to promote. Industries claimed elimination of waste products they dump into waterways would cost so much they would have to charge more for their products. Agencies who wanted to dredge waterways to make them more usable ran into heated objections from those interested in marine life. Those who would like to drain swamps ran into similar objections from wildlife conservationists. Automobile manufacturers who were blamed as the main contributors to air pollution claimed that to put equipment on newly manufactured automobiles would drive prices out of reach of most prospective buyers.

So the problem wasn't solved last year. Granted a lot of good did come of the big publicity program. After the various factions have compromised and each one is able to complete as much of his project as the other can live with this will be a better place to live.

We ordinary people can't do too much about programs that need approval of the Congress or the President's signature but we haven't done too much about the problem over which we can all exercise some control.

People still litter the landscape with trash that should be placed in a proper container. You can still drive down a road and see discarded cans, bottles and paper that someone tossed from an automobile, visit a recreation area and see the evidence from a previous picnic or visit a shopping center and have to wade through ankle deep trash to get from the parking lot to the stores.

It's hard to believe but all of this littering is done by a very small percentage of the population. I know none of my acquaintances litter and I'm sure yours don't either. At least they claim they don't. Maybe they do and don't realize that they are doing it. Maybe they would appreciate it if the next time you see them drop a drink can, bottle, paper wrapper or other item somewhere they shouldn't you picked it up and handed it to them with a gentle reminder. Of course there are people who have very poor memories. They won't remember next time and will drop their trash again where its most convenient for them.

If these people who can remember would do a little picking up behind these worthless types it would make our public places look a lot better and in the long run will save a lot of money. Help of any kind is costly these days and unless the tax payer does his part to keep our environment in order the tax payer will have to pay to have someone else do it.

Sometimes Betty Zimmerman pulls out of her driveway in an unusual fashion, with the front wheels off a foot of the ground.

Fastest woman in town

Martin Army Hospital Headquarters has on its roster of clerical employees one speedy woman—and it's not her typing that's fast—it's her driving. Mrs. Allen B. Zimmerman, or Betty, competes with the men at the Phoenix City Dragstrip weekly.

Betty has posted numerous wins at the local quarter-mile in various cars. She started out in 1969 with a Mercury Cyclone 330 called "Zim's Zapper". Her husband, Buck, preferred working on Chevys, however, so she switched to a Corvette in 1971 and competed with it until it was stolen.

Presently she is driving a 327 cubic inch '69 Camaro which turns the quarter-mile in 12.50 seconds, making it the fastest streetable, small block Chevy in town. Betty is known for her quickness off the lights and her incredible consistency on the runs. And this combination is hard to beat. We might add that she does not drive an automatic—all of these cars are equipped with four-speed transmissions.

Racing is a family adventure at the Zimmerman house. Her husband, Buck, does all of the mechanical work on the cars and her pit crew consists of her four sons—Ronny, Wade, Paul and Tony.

Recently they have acquired another '69 Camaro. This one has a 454-cubic inch engine and it will run in the A-M-O divided class. The record for this professional class is just under ten seconds. This car will be on the track as soon as money and preparation time allows. And then Betty will be the "Fastest Woman in Town."

"The vast majority of the actions initiated have already proven to be extremely valuable and are today a vital part of Fort Benning's continuing program to build a better Army. Happily only a few of the experimental (VOLAR) projects initiated during the past 18 months have been discontinued. . . Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbot"

Career intentions soar -- MVA

The front-page box headlines, "MVA — Here to Stay," should be welcome news for the soldiers who benefit from the many changes wrought by the 18-month VOLAR experiment at Fort Benning.

It means most of the actions initiated during the VOLAR experiment are worthwhile, mean something to the soldier and will continue in the Army's program to That Fort Benning has enjoyed tremendous success reach draft-free status.

In achieving the stated objectives of VOLAR cannot be doubted. Look at the evidence.

Back in November 1971 just prior to when it all started, a survey conducted here showed that only 18 per cent of first-term soldiers asked had intentions of making the Army a career. In May 1972, a month before the VOLAR test ended, 48 per cent of soldiers asked intended to make the Army a career. (see graph.)

HHC dining facility

197th second in world competition

When does it count to be second — best? It counts when your dining facility is named runner-up in competition for the Fourth Annual Phillip A. Connelly Award for excellence in Army food service for the best dining facilities serving 200 or fewer.

The honor has been bestowed upon the 197th Infantry Brigade's Headquarters Company dining facility, following strenuous series of evaluations at the Brigade post, Army and world levels.

The 197th Brigade's dining facility, having reached the highest step of any Fort Benning unit to represent the post in the contest's short history, was voted-out for the top spot by the U.S. Army Security Agency Communications unit at Camp Drake, Japan.

At the convention the representatives will discuss food service techniques and problem areas with experts in the field as well as being recognized for their achievement in the Connelly Award competition.

Evaluations in the competition began January 24 and were completed late in May. The evaluation team representing the Department of the Army (DA) for the final scrutiny consisted of Mr. Mitchell M. Malin, a food service expert from the Globe Food Service Co., Maj. James A. Blinn, Quartermaster Corps and Capt. Thomas F. Nelep, Medical Service Corps.

Part of an Army-wide program to acknowledge excellence in the operation of appropriated dining facilities, the contest program is being recognized for their achievement in the Connelly Award competition.

July SOLDIERS Magazine features the GI paycheck

CAMERON STATION, Va. — Soldiers are getting bigger paychecks these days but many find there's still too much month left over at the end of the month.

SOLDIERS, the Army's official magazine, comes through in July with articles designed to help GIs stretch their hard-earned bucks.

Consumer champion Ralph Nader, who is famous for telling it like it is, explains in an exclusive interview what is being done to protect consumers and how the military could get into the consumer picture.

Anyone who's looking for wheels should check out "So You're Buying a Car." This article by an auto magazine publisher tells how to decide what kind of car — mini, maxi or muscle — will suit your needs and be within your budget. It also includes tips that can save you money when you're shopping for financing and insurance.

"You Owe It to Yourself" covers personal financial planning and debt management with tips and a work sheet for building a budget that will cover your needs without drowning you in debts.

"Your Personal Legal Eagles" tells about the expert help on all kinds of legal problems that's available free to soldiers through their post legal assistance offices.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

by Bill King

When buying lettuce, check the stem and first to make sure it is firm and crisp, with no cracks or discoloration.

Until the early 18th century, it was thought that sugar was obtainable only from the sugar cane. Today it comes from many other sources, such as corn, sugar maples, grapes and beets.

Speaking of beets, here's a cool vegetable idea: chill corned sliced beets and mix with crumbled blue cheese just before serving.

Fruit juice mixed with a carbonated soft drink makes an unbeatable thirst quencher. For less dilution, freeze the juice into cubes and fill glasses with your choice of soda.

Keep frank in their original package in the refrigerator no more than three or four days, or they will lose flavor.

If summer weather sometimes gets you down, cool off with a relaxing dinner at KING'S PIZZA ON CALL. You will enjoy our quality food and friendly service.

Army Chaplaincy to celebrate 197th birthday

The Army Chaplaincy, which officially came into being 197 years ago, will celebrate its birthday on July 23 of this year. Fort Benning will observe the Anniversary on both Saturday and Sunday at all chapel services.

To understand a nation, large or small, medieval or modern, is to understand its basic philosophy. What is the heartbeat of a culture? What is the core of its obsessions? What are its motivating drives? To answer to these questions one must turn to the religion of that nation to see whether or not it gives stability, faith, encouragement, vision, and spiritual sustenance. America came into being as a great nation, not because of its political powers, not because of its artistic contributions, not because of its financial wizardry, but she holds the place she does under the sun because of its financial wizardry, but she holds the place she does under the sun because of the faith which sustains her. Basically, we, as Americans, are no different from other people. We may be taller or shorter, may be. All people around the world have dreams and aspirations, hopes, frustrations, longings. These are within the self. That is one dimension. Each individual is cogitant to a greater or lesser degree of similar traits in the people of the society of which he is a member. That is another dimension. But it is psychologically impossible to live in a darker or lighter, stronger or weaker, as the case completely flat world, a two-dimensional world. There must be a third dimension. There must be more than "the within" and "the around." There must be "the above." For unless an individual has within himself that which is above him, he may soon yield to that which is below or beneath him. Dedicated and consecrated Soldiers of God, fighting against almost insurmountable odds, have brought us to our present status. The question is not, "Do we have religious leaders in the military service?" but, "Has history proven that these religious leaders have accomplished the tasks to which they individually and collectively have been called, and has that calling resulted in a more stable and fruitful America?" An affirmative answer must necessarily be given. From the chaplain's point of view, there never was a time when the opportunity for spiritual leadership has been more in evidence. On the other hand, the support which has been given to the Chaplaincy around the world by those in authority is unprecedented.

The chaplain of today has become large in stature because he has proven, not only to himself, but to the world, his deep devotion to God and His church, and to the nation which he serves. To that end men wearing the Cross or the Tablet, representing the Protestant, Roman Catholic, and Jewish faiths, have gone to the ends of the earth, have circled the globe, from the Arctic to the Antarctic, through the skies and under the seas, and among the young American in uniform. He has even gone so far as to give his own life in this dedication. Certainly, there is no higher calling.

As we celebrate the 197th Anniversary of the Chaplaincy, it might be well to rehearse briefly its rise and growth into its present maturity. On July 29, 1775 the Second Continental Congress passed a resolution. This resolution set the rate of pay for chaplains, and it was in this authorization of the Pre-Revolutionary War Period that the Army Chaplaincy had its modest beginning. Through our many years of illustrious American history, Army Chaplains have carried on their service of dedication, often under the most extreme hardships and danger. 291 Chaplains have carried on their service of dedication, often under the line of duty including 11 chaplains who were killed or died in Vietnam. These men were killed on the battle fields or died from wounds or other causes.

What does he do, this clergyman in uniform? Does he spend his time parading his piety, singing psalms and mumbly prayers? The testimony of millions of men and women who have served in the Army will substantiate his status as a man among men. He is not only a dedicated soldier, loyal to the country which gave him birth, but consecrated in a peculiar way to serve all men and all women, all races and all creeds, on the highest level conceivable. It is no wonder that he has increased in stature, and it is no wonder that the chaplain holds a most coveted place in the American culture of today.

Army's progress is our responsibility

Every soldier who has been in a leadership position knows that one of his responsibilities as a leader is the welfare of his men.

As the Army strives toward increased professionalism and a volunteer Army, it has already taken new actions to help insure the overall welfare of everyone.

This is particularly true at Fort Benning. There are units and sections which have been formed just in the past few years to insure that the Army carries out its responsibilities for the social betterment of all.

The Environmental Management Division was formed in May 1971 and has set a fine example in ecology awareness which will, in the long run, benefit the entire community.

The post has also taken progressive steps to foster better race relations and in providing help for the alcoholic and the drug addict. The Benning House is open to persons seeking help or advice on alcohol or drugs.

The Race Relations Coordinating Group was formed in March 1970 and the trained moderators in all units are leading a post-wide campaign to break down the barriers of prejudice. They haven't found all the answers, but just learning a few of the right questions is a big step forward.

Looking out for the welfare of each individual soldier is a big job — for the squad leader, for the company commander, for all leaders. Fort Benning is setting a good example.

The small unit leader may not be qualified to deal directly with the variety of complex problems of the post-generation soldier, but he does have the services of these type units to help him carry out his responsibilities.

Sound-off "Are consumer protection agencies protecting the buying public from misleading advertising, poor quality merchandise at high Prices and business malpractice?"

Are you getting what you paid for?

SP5 KENNETH CHEUVRONT

SP5 Kenneth Chevront says "I think they probably are. You can see articles in the paper about stuff they've caught and are working on. People are working on tricky packaging and false advertising. I don't know how well they are doing but American made items are probably wrapped more carefully than others." Chevront is with Co. B, HQ command.

SP4 James Beard, 49th Co., TSB, says "I suppose they're doing as well as they can. It's like trying to row up a large stream without a paddle." Pvt. David Butler, also with 49th Co., says "I think a lot of junk is sold. The only way to stop it is to get hold of private individuals who are doing this and stop them. Law enforcement should carry this."

SFC Charles Lyons is assigned to 14th Co. TSB. He says, "They do a good job in some ways but they have no means to enforce it. They are doing as well as they can. I think only legal power can put manufacturers and make them behave. The best reading material around for prospective buyers is Consumer Reports — they do good surveys of merchandise. They don't care what they say about whr'm."

SGT. JOSEPH SZABO "Partially," says Sgt. Joseph Szabo, "they protect consumers but not completely. Some products have high prices but very poor quality. Companies should be penalized for shoddy products. It would make them stop and think." He is with 82nd Co., TSB.

The 26th Amendment

"The right of citizens of the United States, who are eighteen years of age or older, to vote shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any State on account of age." U.S. Constitution, Amendment XXVI.

On the last day of June, 1971, the Ohio Legislature ratified the 26th amendment to the Constitutional amendment, passed in record time, enables an additional 11 million people to exercise the privilege of voting. Of this 11 million, approximately 675,000 are members of the Armed forces.

Political rights of servicemen

One frequently hears that Americans surrender their political rights when they put on a uniform of their country, that servicemen are mere servants of the people and not entitled to say how they are governed or by whom.

This is rubbish. To be sure, military persons cannot engage in the full range of electioneering enjoyed by civilians. And they are barred in certain cases from participating in certain political activities—those favoring a particular candidate or party.

But the distinction between what a civilian can do politically and what a serviceman cannot is narrower than many things. Here's some of the "dos" and "don'ts" set forth in Defense Department Directive 1344.10, the military's guidebook on political activity:

—A serviceman can express political opinions providing he is speaking for himself and not for the armed forces.

—Political rallies are not off-limits to GIs as long as they don't go in uniform and are not acting as an official representative of their service branch. But troops can neither address such gatherings for partisan reasons nor march in political parades.

—Military members can join political clubs. They can't hold office in these organizations, distribute political literature, conduct political opinion polls nor participate in car pools to bring partisan votes out to vote, however.

—A serviceman can hold a part-time, non-partisan civil office, elected or appointed, providing it doesn't interfere with his military duties. He can even serve as an election official under certain circumstances. But military personnel cannot run for partisan federal, state or local offices, take part in political campaigns nor use their authority to influence the outcome of elections.

—One GI can urge another to vote, but cannot solicit campaign contributions from him or from a civilian government employee.

—Service members can paste political bumper stickers on their private automobiles—but not large political signs or banners.

—Lastly, a serviceman can contribute to a political party or committee, but not to a candidate himself. These rules may seem to split hairs. But they are as designed to protect troops from being politically pressured by their superiors as they are to restrict them.

More importantly, GIs are losing very little in the practical sense. The difference between donating to Candidate X or the Committee for the Election of Candidate Y is small. Servicemen are free to attend political rallies, but less than 10 per cent of the American people ever exercise this right. And the number of persons whose minds are changed by campaign speeches, signs or stickers is minuscule. Political rhetoric, as we all know, is cheap.

If a serviceman really wants to demonstrate his political muscle, his best bet is to send for an absentee ballot. This way, he'll have more political punch than at least one-third of the civilians in this country. At least this number never bother to vote. (MJK)

Nurses complete training

The Army Nurse Corps officers who completed the course of study were: Major Joan Soell, Captain Marguerite Stierly, Captain Norma Griffiths, 1st Lt. Patricia Bean, 1st Lt. Edward Bryant, 1st Lt. Carolyn Campbell, and Lt. Mary Greenwald and 2nd Lt. Patricia Thron. The course of study was designed to prepare first level nurse clinicians to work interdependently with the physician to provide preventive, diagnostic, therapeutic, maintenance, and rehabilitative health care to selected patients in the ambulatory care setting. This and other similar programs preparing nurse clinicians in the field of obstetrics-gynecology and pediatrics are part of a new effort by the Army Medical Department to meet increasing needs and demands for a better health care delivery system.

Eastern's Leisure Class. Is it better than standby?

Eastern has a new way for you to fly. Besides First Class and Coach and Standby, Eastern has Conditional Reservations, Leisure Class.

Leisure Class costs you the same as you'd pay for coach (3/4 regular fare). But we don't guarantee you'll get on your scheduled flight.

If you do, it's the same as Coach. But if Coach is full, you may fly First Class. Without paying anything extra. And, if the whole plane is full, you won't get on at all. And that's the good part.

Because then you get your money back. And we put you on our very next flight that has seats available, and fly you free of charge.

Now, our lawyers would get nervous if we left this out: Leisure Class does not apply to some reduced fare tickets.

Nor to the Air-Shuttle; nor Bermuda, Jamaica, Mexico and Bahama flights. Nor when the originally scheduled plane is grounded due to adverse weather conditions, equipment failure or equipment substitutions.

To qualify for a free ride, you must have your Leisure Class ticket at the boarding gate 20 minutes before flight time.

The number of Leisure Class tickets per flight is limited. And, if you have to wait, it will be anywhere from several minutes to several hours.

But if you've got more time than money, you probably won't mind that at all.

Call Eastern or your base JAMTO office for details.

Rip off!

Every 34 seconds in the United States a car is stolen. In numbers alone, this means that one of every 89 registered cars in this country was stolen in 1971.

Auto theft, the nation's most costly involving property, is one of the biggest industries in the United States. It has become refined to the point that prospective "customers" order a desired make, model and color which is then stolen, repaired and delivered — often with forced title papers and with motor vehicle identification numbers changed or altered. This process often takes less than 24 hours.

The "hottest" item in the catalogue seems to be the Chevrolet Impala. Based on percentages, this model was stolen more often than any other car in 1970. Chevrolet sedans and hardtops are the highest on the list and, in some major cities, the average life expectancy of unaltered Corvettes on the street is approximately 30 minutes. Lincoln, Cadillac and, to some degree, the Chevrolet Camaro are relatively conspicuous in appearance and are usually sold far from where they are stolen. Some wind up in Mexico and other Latin American countries and some in Canada.

Stolen cars are involved in automobile accidents at a rate 200 times greater than the accident rate for cars driven under normal conditions. Further, stolen cars are used in other crimes and, in many instances, they make other crimes possible.

Individuals under the age of 18 are involved in approximately 94 per cent of the automobile thefts in this country, according to the National Automobile Theft Bureau (NATB). Those under 21 years of age are responsible for nearly 80 per cent of car thefts. If the age group includes those 25 and under, it accounts for approximately 96 per cent of the cars stolen, in the United States.

In too many cases — 80 per cent as a matter of fact — stealing a car isn't very complicated, nor does it require sophisticated mechanical ingenuity or stealth. The theft simply gets in the car and drives away, because it has been left unlocked. In half of these cases, the owner has cooperated with the thief by leaving the keys in the car.

Authorities across the country agree that only 20 per cent of all cars stolen are stolen for profit or gain. In fact, this approach, whereby engine parts, radiators of recovery with minimal damage are fairly good. If the car is stolen by a professional or an "order taking" thief ring — which is becoming increasingly frequent — the chances of seeing it again are slim.

E-4, E-5 promotion slow down

Time-in-service (TIS) criteria for promotion to grades E4 and E5 are being extended effective Jan. 1, 1973.

In accordance with Department of Defense limitations, TIS requirements will be 21 months for promotion to E4 and 33 months for promotion to E5.

Present guidelines allow promotion to E4 and E5 after 12 and 31 months respectively.

The latest enlisted promotion policy doesn't change Army thinking regarding early promotions. To provide career motivation and incentives and to recognize soldiers with strong potential, early promotions will continue. Up to 35 per cent of E4 and 25 per cent of E5 promotions may be accelerated as an exception to the new guidelines.

Further details are contained in DA Message 151314 June, 1972.

Exercise of the Week

Grass drills can be executed in a short period of time. The drills may be inches from the ground. Spread them apart as far as possible, then close them together. Open and close the legs as rapidly as possible.

If you think this is fun, and would like to learn more grass drills, turn to Chapter 2, Part II in DA Field Manual 21-20.

Grass drills are an excellent substitute for running when time is a factor.

This week's exercise is taken from the Army's Grass Drill Two. The exerercise, the Leg Spreader, is performed from the back position. Raise the legs so that the heels are 10 to 12 inches in the down of recorded history, there was a commander whose troops were grumbling about the physical training. He's being said some. Too easy, declared others. So, in an attempt to regain the men's interest, the commander invented grass drill.

Radio club takes part in testing

The Chattahoochee Radio Club participated recently in an emergency communications test held under the direction and with the assistance of the Fort Benning Military Affiliated Radio System (MARS) personnel.

Named the Chattahoochee County Field Day, the purpose of the Field Day was to find out how well the Radio Club could perform under emergency conditions. Utilizing emergency power sources and working low output radio, the club was required by American Radio Relay League (ARRL) rules to operate continuously for a period of 24 hours, keeping in constant contact with amateur radio operators outside of the Chattahoochee County area.

Using generators as a power source and using a low output of 200 watts maximum, the Chattahoochee Radio Club was able to make contacts with fellow Amateurs and operators as far as Belgium, the British Commonwealth, South Africa, South America and Japan.

For the test, the radio club operated on the Amateur frequency covering the 10, 20, 40 and 80 meter radio bands.

Army divers 'hooked'

The underwater world has long been described by some as one of the last frontiers. Today, men are slowly making inroads into this vast unknown. Divers have reached depths of 1,000 feet and men have spent days living beneath the waves.

A little less spectacular, but of equal importance, are the men who work regularly under the sea. Equipped with gear ranging from simple snorkels to elaborate rebreathers these men carry out many tasks which differ from the ordinary in one respect: they are performed underwater.

Attached to the 88th Engineer Company (Load Bridge), 301st Engr. Gp., is such a group of men. Their main function is to act as a recovery team for the company. Equipment lost underwater is their responsibility.

In addition, the team acts as water safety personnel for any activities at Victory Pond. Sp5 Tommy McKay, one of the divers, remarked that "in the water, panic is a sure killer." He has had more than one close call "but a cool head is all you need."

To him, teamwork is one of the most essential factors in any dive. "Your life often depends on your buddy."

EER—The Army's invaluable management tool

The importance of attaining a high score on an individual's Enlisted Occupational Specialty (EOS) test cannot be overemphasized.

No longer can an individual ignore taking his PMOS test without seriously jeopardizing his future career. Failure to obtain a PMOS score will result in the individual not being eligible for promotion or reenlistment and could cause him to be subject to involuntary release under the provisions of the Qualitative Management Program.

The MOS test together with an individual's average Enlisted Evaluation (EER) score make up an individual's MOS Evaluation Score (ES). The importance of attaining an ES of 100 or higher is of paramount importance. Receiving a score of 100 to 109 permits an individual to be promoted with a waiver no waiver permitted for a score of 99 or less. Having a score of 100 or higher also exempts an individual from reenlistment controls and gives a man 60 promotion points. MOS Evaluation Score falling between 70 and 99, while receiving an individual's MOS, make him ineligible for promotion.

The necessity to study the references listed in the MOS study guide prior to taking the annual PMOS test should be made readily apparent to all when looked at in this light. The study guide should be available 90 days prior to the month of testing, such as February for May testing. Individuals who have not received their study guides should contact their commanders and/or personnel staff noncommissioned officers to obtain copies.

After an individual has taken his MOS test, the results are published by the U. S. Army Enlisted Evaluation Center, Ft. Benjamin Harrison, Ind., utilizing USAEEC Form 10. This form, titled Enlisted Evaluation Data Report, is sent to the individual through his commanding officer or supervisor, who is responsible for counseling the individual on the meaning and impact the report has on career development. The commander or supervisor must attest that he has counseled the individual by signing the form.

In those cases where various scores are below certain levels, additional action is required to be taken by the commander or supervisor. Handing the report to an individual and asking if he has any questions, does not constitute counseling. One copy of the form is provided the individual, and one copy, the original, is filed in the 201 file.

The Enlisted Evaluation Data Report is an invaluable management tool and guide to the commander-supervisor and the individual as to his strengths and weaknesses in various subject matters. Section III shows the individual what subjects he needs to work on the hardest in order to improve his knowledge.

In Section II, the individual's average EER score is shown as is the average score for all personnel of the same grade so that he can make a comparison as to how he stacks up with his contemporaries Army wide.

Recreation a hit with 197th men

Soldiers of the 197th Inf. Bde. have a veritable recreational paradise at their disposal.

One of the main attractions is the Kelley Hill Service Club, where a soldier can play pool, ping pong or just relax and watch television.

The Hideaway, the 197th's nightclub, now features go-go girls nightly and a live band on weekends. PFC John Cree of IHIC, 1st Bn., 29th Inf., aptd., "The go-go girls really live up the place — I could sit and watch them for hours."

A popular late night attraction is the Kelley Hill bowling alley which features all night bowling at reduced rates on weekends.

Sgt. Lester Yamaguchi of the 1st Bn., 58th Inf., is an avid movie goer and finds the prices just right. "I try and make it to the show every night now that they have built that new theater on Kelley Hill," Yamaguchi said.

"On Saturday nights I always go see the movie and afterwards head for the bowling alley for a few beers."

"At midnight I start bowling and finish up about 3 a.m.," he added. "The great thing about it is that I only spend three dollars the whole night."

For soldiers with a creative aptitude, the Kelley Hill Craft Shop offers a variety of crafts.

Included in the facility are photography, lapidary, leather work, woodwork and pottery making.

For SSG Bruce Saicer of IHIC, 197th Inf. Bde., "The leather shop provides a means for me to express myself creatively. I like to design my own belts and come up with a truly unique piece of work."

At the Kelley Hill swimming pool, soldiers can take a dip in the pool or lay in the sun and admire the scenery.

PFC Robert L. Evans of D Co., 1st Bn., 29th Inf., a lifeguard at the pool said, "This is the greatest job a guy could get in the Army. Of course it's only for the summer, but I really enjoy it here because I love to swim."

Though Kelley Hill doesn't have a golf course, soldiers of the 197th have no difficulty getting to the nearby Sand Hill course, which offers a nine or 18-hole game and a putting green. For those not statistically inclined, golf carts may be rented for a nominal fee.

PFC Steven Schuppener of B Btry., 2d Bn., 10th Art., spends much of his time at the golf course and said his game has improved 100 per cent since joining the Army.

Many of the soldiers think there is plenty to do in the 197th Inf. Bde., without going downtown. When asked how often he went downtown Schuppener said, "Never, there is enough to do in the 197th and really no need to go into Columbus."

Quite a few people are going to do without a vacation this summer because of a lack of funds. They are going to turn down a chance to have a lot of fun for just a little bit more than they would have spent had they stayed home.

More and more Americans are finding that a vacation in the outdoors can be inexpensive and fun. For personnel at Fort Benning the cost seems so little that you can't afford not to take advantage.

Military personnel can rent a complete camper from the Special Services Recreation Branch for $17.5 a day. The only thing needed is a one and seven eighths inch trailer hitch on your car. The trailers sleep six, are equipped with cooking stove, ice chest, sink and a large water storage bottle. They can be rented for periods up to 30 days.

Special Services also has boats for rent with 14' aluminum hulls and a 20 hp outboard motor comes with the boat. Paddles, anchors and other gear are included too. They rent for $2.25 a day and may be kept for periods up to seven days. For $4 a day you have a place to cook, sleep and water transportation.

Plenty of Camping Spots
Finding a place to camp is no problem in this area. The real problem is narrowing your selection to the river, lake or shore you want to visit then picking out the exact spot where you want to spend your vacation.

Those who want to stay close to home could use the Special Services camping ground on Uchee Creek on the Alabama side of the reservation, a spot on the Walter F. George Reservoir or Lake Oliver. There is no real reason to go out of the state. The guide to camping spots in Georgia lists more than 30 camping areas on rivers, more than 30 spots on the Georgia lakes and reservoirs and more than 40 along the seashore. If you prefer you can visit the Okefenokee Swamp. The list includes five camp sites in the swamp area. You can get the brochures listing these areas from the Georgia Welcome Center located at 1000 Victory Drive in Columbus.

Most military men are required to spend some time in camps and bivouacs so roughing it shouldn't present too much of a problem for them. They already know a lot on how to make life in the field more livable but it's doubtful that their standards will provide enough comfort for the other members of the family. A pleasant camping trip takes a bit of planning. The public libraries have a multitude of books on the subject. These books provide solutions to just about any kind of outdoor situation from the treatment of sunburn to the building of a picket line.

One especially good book is entitled Campers Digest. It was written by Cecil Coffey, a man who has spent a good part of his life in the woods. You can order it from Gun Digest Company, Northfield, N.J. The price is $4.95 but the book is worth it as a permanent reference in your outdoor home.

Retired Military Catcher
Three retired military men made fishing pay dividends last month. John H. King, 4608 Longview Drive, SFC Jack Maple, Route 5, Phenix City and SSGT. F. W. Malner, 1623 Benning Road each won $15 dollars in merchandise competing in the Rod and Gun Club June Fishing Derby.

King won the bass contest with a 6-pound, 1-ounce catch from Kings Pond, Malner took the catfish prize with a 15-pound, 6-ounce monster from Victory Pond and Maple had the largest brim with a 13-ounce catch he made at Kings Pond.

Each month the Rod and Gun Club runs a fishing derby. The contest begins on the first day of the month and runs through to the last day. Members who register the largest bass, bream or catfish receive an order worth $15 in merchandise from the club sales counter. One member may win one category or he could win in all categories.

The rules of the contest are few, easily understood and faithfully followed. The contest is open only to members of the Rod and Gun Club authorized to fish on the reservation. The member must register his intent to enter the contest at the club each time he goes fishing. All fish entered in the contest must be taken from ponds located on the reservation and brought to the club for weight verification. Catches made after the club has closed for the day may be brought in the next morning.

Post introduced Olympic Orienteering

Four members of the Fort Benning Orienteering Team, from the Patrolwing Committee, a part of the Department, introduced orienteering as a competitive event at the 1972 Explorer-Olympics held at Colorado State University, Ft. Collins, Col., from June 26 through June 29.

Five clinics and three competitive events were held, which exposed hundreds of explorers and advisors to this challenging and fun sport. In addition, a special seminar was given to the National Sports Advisory Panel of the Program Division, U.S.A., which was chaired by Casey C. Conrad, Executive Director of the President's Council on Physical Fitness and Sports. At this meeting it was decided that a much greater emphasis would be placed on orienteering at all levels of scouting and in the Explorer program.

John J. Hix was assisted by Dennis McCullough, Werner Meserth, and Donald Stanley, who were instrumental in organizing and conducting the orienteering competition. Eleven support personnel were provided by Ft. Carson, Col., to assist in conducting the orienteering events. This was the first time that the sport of orienteering has had nationwide participation in the scouting program and the interest and enthusiasm displayed by the competitors promises to increase its popularity.

Five other members of the Benning Orienteering Team are presently in Stockholm, Sweden, preparing for competition in the U. S. Interservice Orienteering Meet and the C.I.S.M. Championships. They have been training since the beginning of July with Swedish military orienteers at the Regimental level in order to become thoroughly familiar with Swedish maps and terrain. The Army team has been running two practice courses per day of approximately 7000 meters each.

Those Army orienteers who qualify in the Interservice competition against the Marines in mid July will remain in Sweden through August for the C.I.S.M. Championships. Ed Strabel, the Fort Benning Team's OIC, rates several of Benning's orienteers as having an excellent chance at making the Interservice team.

Post Doughboys vs. Rucker Flyers

The Fort Benning Doughboy softball team has two league games scheduled against the Ft. Rucker Flyers this weekend.

The first game will begin at 7 p.m. this evening and the second at 10 a.m. tomorrow morning. Both games will be played at Gowdy Field.

The Doughboys and Flyers are currently in a tie for second place in the Western Division of the Third Army Softball League with records of three wins and three losses. Ft. Campbell, leads the league with a five wins and one loss.

15th Finance wins

Second baseman Dewey Bourgeois seventh inning single driving in Mike Alameda propelled 15th Finance to a 6-5 triumph over Co. A, 43rd Engr. at Gowdy Field Tuesday night.

Finance remains as the only undefeated team in 331st softball with an unblemished 10-0 record. "I don't wanna bat" was the reaction of Bourgeois just before stepping up to the plate and pounding a solid shot to right field to drive in Alameda. Finance trailed 5-3 going into the bottom of the seventh. Rob Jackson led things off with a single followed by another single by Mark Berset coupled with an error advancing both runners to second and third. Alameda then grounded to short but another error brought Jackson and Berset in to even the score, 5-5. Bourgeois then singled driving in Alameda to end the game.

Finance led things off in the first when John Pope tripled driving in Max Scott, their only run until the sixth.

Meanwhile Co. A scored two runs in the second and three in the third to lead 5-1.

Bourgeois led off the sixth with a king hit to second on a bobbled ball. Dave Austin then drove in Bourgeois on a single followed by another hit by Tony Mass bringing in Austin.

Mark Berset claimed the win from the mound for Finance.

Judo enthusiasts host tournament

The Fort Benning Judo Club will host Judo enthusiasts from all over the Southeast in a tournament slated for this Saturday at Briant Welles field house.

For the benefit of those who are unfamiliar with the sport, an exhibition which the major points to watch for in a match will be emphasized.

Competition is scheduled to begin at 11:30 a.m., highlighted by the appearance of several top-notch contestants who are fresh from battling in the National Judo Championships.

The Fort Benning Club hopes to add more laurels to its winning record in tomorrow's contest.

Sixteen team members recently returned from Camp Olympus, the Judo training camp at Capon Ridge, West Va., where they ate, slept and spoke Judo for one week. A guest instructor at the camp was Anton Geseinik, Olympic champion and three-time World Champion.

Lt. Col. Charles Keaton, club instructor, feels that the intensive instruction has given his pupils a decided edge over the competition.

Admission to the tournament is free and the public is invited to attend.

Military dependent receives scholarship

Marcus A. Nerone, son of Lt. Col. and Mrs. Francis A. Nerone has been named as one of three dependents of Army active duty personnel who have won three week scholarships to attend tennis clinics this summer.

The scholarships were awarded to the three Army dependents submitting the best essays on the subject "Why I would like to represent the United States in international sports competition".

The scholarships, each worth approximately $600 were offered by Arthur Ashe, Charles Passarelli and Stanley Smith all of whom became nationally known as tennis players during Army duty.

The contest, originated by Ashe, Passarelli and Smith was part of a national program to encourage young people to participate in the sport.

Nerone, who won the 14-year-old group tennis championship at Carlisle Barracks, Pa., this summer, has chosen to attend the Wayland Academy at Beaver Dam, Wis.

One of last year's winners, Ricky McCormick, will face a new and diversified field of past MASTERS Champions, one event specialists, and some new, up and coming competitors.

In the men's overall division, McCormick will contend with Alan Kempton, past MASTERS' titlist from 1967 and 1969 and the only man to ever use a forward somersault off the jump in a trick event and Frankie Deas, former 1968 champ. Liz Allan Shetter, formerly Miss Liz Allan and the only slder to ever win a MASTERS' division title five years in a row (1966-1970) will compete in the women's division.

Barbara Cleveland, who chalked up first place honors in the 1971 Nationals, 1971 Capon Open, and 1972 Cape Coral Open, will be trying to carry on her winning streak. Similarly, there is more hot competition for this year's women's honors: Christie Freeman is an ace slalomist and trikester who won a gold medal in Bonafas, Spain, at the 12th world water ski championship; Lisa St. John is equally strong in all three events and placed first overall in the California State, California World Cup, Western Regionals, Fall River Contest; and the Nationals: Vicki Johnson of Odessa, Fla., is a strong jumper who placed fifth overall in 1st year's Nationals, and Linda Leavengood from Coral Gables, Fla., is another strong jumper holding records in the girls and junior girl's divisions.

McCormick, on the other hand, faces an even larger field of entries. Foremost, perhaps, is Mike Snyderhood who has dominated the tournament scene for the past five years. With the exception of the MASTERS, Snyderhood has won every major tournament in water skiing. He will be back this year to pursue the MASTERS' title for the fourth time.

But all contestants for the Men's titles are not over-all competitors; some entrants will compete in only one event; however, they are highly skilled in their particular area. Kris LaPoint is generally conceded to be the best slalom skier in the world today. He holds the record at 2 1/2 buoys at 38' off, and consistently turned perfect runs at 38' off in 17 sanctioned tournaments this year. Russ Siffler had a strong year specializing in and winning the event in last year's California World Cup in tricks. LeRoy Burnett is another west coast slalom specialist who placed well in West Coast competition.

Practice trials for this year's MASTERS will begin on Wednesday. Competition starts today and the finals will be held on Sunday, July 16.

This year's schedule of events runs as follows:

FRIDAY, JULY 14

9 a.m. — All slalom
12:15 p.m. — All Trick riding
2:40 p.m. — All jumping

Retired officers' July Schedule

The Chattahoochee Valley Chapter of the Retired Officers Association has scheduled two chapter meetings for the month of July.

The first, a business meeting will be held in the Benning Room of the Main Officers Mess at 7 p.m. July 18. The primary item on the agenda of this meeting will be to nominate and elect chapter officers for the coming year. A nominating committee appointed at a previous meeting will present a slate of nominees after which nominees will be accepted from those members assembled. Officers will be elected by the voters of a majority of the members attending the meeting.

The chapter has also scheduled a cocktail party and social hour to be held on the Supper Club Terrace at 6:30 p.m., July 21. All retired officers and warrant officers and their ladies are invited to attend. This event has been scheduled to provide retired personnel an opportunity to renew old acquaintances and make new ones. The chapter officers elected at the July 18 meeting will be introduced. The Retired Officers Association is a national Organization with regional and local chapters located throughout the country and overseas. Retired commission and warrant officers from all of the uniformed services are eligible for membership.

For additional information concerning the local chapter call Lt. Col. Woodrow Laws, 687-4273.

Avn. Cmd. hosts Cleveland boys

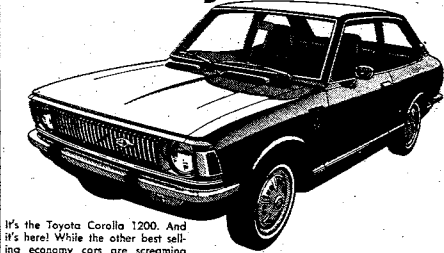

The Aviation Command recently hosted a tour group from St. Anthony's Church in Cleveland, Ohio. The group of seven high school boys was accompanied by father John Leahy who operates the Home and who is also the Director of Primary Education for the Diocese of Cleveland, and by a counselor, Louis Kassar, for whom this was the second visit to Fort Benning.

After he and his brother escaped from Hungary during the revolution, Louis Kassar settled in Cleveland. He joined the Army and took Basic Training at Harmony Church in 1967. He is now working on his Doctorate in Clinical Psychology as well as assisting at St. Anthony's.

The group was brought to Fort Benning by Chaplain (Capt.) Jim Shull, a Catholic Priest who, prior to joining the Army, worked at St. Anthony's.

The tour of the airfield was arranged by the Aviation Command Chaplain (Maj.) Robert M. Horne and began with a static display of aircraft in the 121st Assault Helicopter Squadron's Hangar then

Valley Schools seek children

Valley Schools, a non-profit, tax-exempt institution invites military personnel with mentally retarded or emotionally disturbed children to enroll their children.

The school serves both mentally retarded and emotionally disturbed children, and is approved under the Civilian Health and Medical Program of the Uniformed Services (CHAMPUS) for dependents of active duty, retired or deceased personnel. This means that dependent children who are handicapped by mental retardation or an emotional or nervous disorder can attend Valley Schools, Inc., with 75 per cent of the costs paid for by the Army. The remainder of the cost is paid for by the serviceman according to his grade.

At the present time there are four boys at the school who are sponsored by CHAMPUS. These boys are dependents of either active duty or deceased personnel from Fort Benning.

Monthly tuition at the school is $150 for the day program and $30 for the residential program. The first unit of the school is now being developed. The age range is eight-16 years, and boys can stay at the school 24 hours a day, seven days a week, during the year round with visits home on weekends and during vacations.

The students are individually tutored on a one-to-one basis by their teacher. A full schedule of academics, recreation, and farm-gardening is provided. There are several farm animals at the school. Vocational skills are taught to those boys who would profit from them.

The first unit of Valley Schools can accommodate 16 boys (10 resident and six day) with tentative plans extending to 30 students (boys and girls). There may be as many as 15 separate units in the near future in both Georgia and Alabama. Each unit will have a maximum of 10 residents. A "home-like" atmosphere is the goal of the school as contrasted to the cold institutional setting found in many state hospitals. Persons desiring information should call 322-7194 or write to Valley Schools, Inc., P. O. Box 1676; Columbus, Ga. 31902.

THE BAYONET, FORT BENNING, GA., JULY 14, 1972—PAGE 27

There is another way of saying this: In November 1971, 82 per cent of first-term soldiers asked meant get out of the Army. In May 1972, this percentage had dropped to 52 per cent. Significantly, the trend continues, and VOLAR gets the credit. Actually, 70 per cent intention survey stated VOLAR influenced them to stay in the Army.

Perhaps the most persuasive indicator available which reflects the success that Fort Benning has achieved during Project VOLAR is the number of soldiers who re-enlist for their present duty assignment. In other words, these soldiers like Fort Benning, their units, and their jobs enough that they elected as their option UPON re-enlistment a choice to remain at Benning, their specific unit, and in their current job. During the first six months of the experiment (January - June 1971) an approximate monthly average of some 25.7 per cent elected this option during July - December 1971, this approximate monthly average increased to some 71.8 per cent and during the final six months of the experiment, the soldiers re-enlisting to stay at Fort Benning increased again to some 72.2 per cent.

These surveys show that massive positive changes in attitudes have occurred among soldiers as a result of VOLAR, in expressed career intentions and in actual re-enlistment performances. These positive changes have not impacted on discipline or capability to do the job.

Annual AER Fund Drive continues through Sept. 10

The fund drive for Army Emergency Relief and the Army Relief Society began July 15 at Fort Benning, and will continue through September 10. The goal for this year is $20,000, according to Mr. James Schooner, Secretary-Treasurer of the Community Activities Association. Army Emergency Relief furnishes financial assistance to Regular Army personnel and their dependents who are unable to cope with financial difficulties. The Army Relief Society exists to help needy widows and orphans of Regular Army personnel. The Army Relief Society was founded in 1900, and Army Emergency Relief was incorporated in 1942. The two were joined in 1955 through an Operating agreement. Both agencies operate primarily on funds which come from voluntary contributions from members of the Army.

Widows and orphans of extended active duty Reserve Component or Army of the United States personnel are also eligible for assistance from Army Emergency Relief. Scholarships are provided by both the Army Relief Society and Army Emergency Relief.

Unassigned officers are being appointed for all units on Fort, and contributions should be made by each individual at his place of duty. Checks should be made payable to the Army Emergency Relief Fund.

Units who need Army Emergency Relief of Army Relief Society assistance should contact the first sergeant or the chaplain. Then the post AER Officer, Gen. Richardson, who is Officer is not available.

New AC arrives July 24

An honors ceremony for Brigadier General William R. Richardson, who has been named assistant commander of The Infantry School, will be held on York Field Monday, July 24, at 4:30 p.m.

In the event of inclement weather, the ceremony will be held in Marshall Auditorium. The reviewing officer will be Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott, post commander.

Participating in the ceremony will be Co. C, 1st Bn, 29th Inf. Bde., including the color guard; Hqs, 2d Bn, 10th P. A., 197th Inf. Bde., and the 282d Army Band. Gen. Richardson, who is See AC page 24

71st Infantry Div. colors retired today

The 71st Infantry Division, a division which gained much glory and honor fighting in Europe during WWII will have its colors permanently retired here at Fort Benning today.

An honors ceremony for the division is scheduled for 11:30 a.m. on York Field with Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott, post commander as the host officer.

Gen. (Ret.) Paul L. Freeman Jr., former commander of the 71st and past Continental Army Command (CONARC) commanding general, will be the reviewing officer.

Gen. Freeman from May 1958 to April 1960, was the commanding general here at Fort Benning and it was through his proclamation that the Infantry Museum, now housed temporarily in Bldg 1231 was established in 1959.

The colors of the 71st will be put on display in Infantry Hall, until the completion of the planned new Infantry Museum. At that time, the colors will be given a truly permanent and fitting resting place.

The 71st division was deactivated and formally retired in Sept. of 1956 at Fort Lewis, Washington, but with the inception of a new National Infantry Museum here at Benning, the 71st colors are being transferred here to a new and permanent home.

The 71st was originally activated at Camp Carson, Colorado in July of 1945, and first entered combat in March of 1945 by secretly relieving the 106th Infantry Div. on its front south of Bitch, France. Actions stemming from their deployment initiated a drive which was included in the breakthrough of the Siegfried Line.

In the end of March, 1945, the division was moved to reinforce the Third Army and plunged across the Rhine River under cover of a smoke screen at Oppenheim and from there continued its participation in what was to be the final blitz across Germany. East of Mansau, the division ran into the 8th SS Mountain Division "Nord", astride the communications of the XII Corps. In an eerie fight which started when contact was gained by elements of the 71st Cavalry Troop (Mech), the battle grew to major proportions with every battalion of the division committed and all supporting elements enveloped for the first time in an assault. The fighting culminated in the complete annihilation of the German Di- See 71st page 18

Col. Standley is succeeded by Col. Thompson

A Change of Command Ceremony for the 931st Engr. Gp. was conducted on Marne Field on July 20 at 2 p.m. Col. Robert J. Standley, who has been Commanding Officer of the Engineer Group since June 1970, relinquished the command to Col. James M. Thompson.

Born in Boise, Idaho, Col. Thompson is a 1950 graduate of the United States Military Academy from which he was selected as a Rhodes Scholar. He continued his studies at Oxford University in England where he earned a Master of Arts Degree in Political Science and Economics.

Col. Thompson is also a graduate of the Command and General Staff College (1962) and the Army War College (1963).

His decorations include the Joint Service Commendation Medal, Meritorius Service Medal and the Legion of Merit.

Col. Standley has been in command of the 931st Engineers since the unit became a major command on Fort Benning.

Benning campaign slated for ailing Columbus boy

Fort Benning is sponsoring a fund-raising campaign for a Columbus boy who is scheduled to receive open heart surgery.

Twelve-year old Danny Gilbert will undergo the intricate operation at the Columbus Medical Center within the next five or six days. He is currently undergoing tests at the Medical Center.

In order to raise the needed funds, the Columbus Astros baseball team has dedicated their Aug. 6 game to Danny. Eighty per cent of the funds received from the first 2,000 tickets sold will be put into the fund. After the initial 2,000 tickets, all proceeds from ticket sales will be put in the fund.

"We only want to pay our expenses," Astro business manager Jim Koger said. "We are proud that Fort Benning and Columbus citizens are joining hands to raise money for Danny."

Fort Benning will be handling ticket sales and providing pre-game activities for the 2 p.m. game. All personnel are asked to participate by buying tickets.

The campaign originally started with members of the Chase Memorial Baptist Church trying to find a way to provide funds to Danny's mother and her three children as there is no father in the family. According to a spokesman at the church, "the family definitely is in the needy category."

Columbus Mayor J. R. Allen kicked off the effort by making a personal donation. When the Columbus Astros were contacted, they immediately dedicated the Aug. 6 game with Asheville, N.C., to Danny.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

by Bill King

Next time you barbecue meat, reflect that grilling was a favorite cooking method of ancient Romans because they believed it made the meat purer, and thus more acceptable to the gods.

A little chopped pimiento and green pepper will add both color and crunch to hot buttered succotash. For a cooling cocktail, mix vodka with bottled tomato-corn juice, a pinch of dill and lots of ice. Did you know the Russian word, vodka, means "dear little water"?

Keep a small plastic bag inside your recipe box. When using a favorite recipe, insert the card so you can keep it free of food spots.

When choosing a cantaloupe, remember that the ideal melon is sweet-smelling and the rougher the netting, the better.

You'll know you've made a wise choice once you've visited KING'S PIZZA ON CALL to sample our fine food. We look forward to serving you and your family soon.

5th Bn., TSB sponsors five

The 5th Bn. of the School Brigade has collected $150 from its officers and enlisted men to send five-low-income, disadvantaged children to Boy Scout Camp this summer.

The Boy Scouts Organization has offered to host approximately 100 children if sponsors can be found. The cost of sponsoring a child is $30. These children are not scouts and therefore are not assisted by scout funds. They all come from homes receiving Aid to Families with Dependent Children and foster homes of the Department of Family and Children Services.

The Drill Team from Co. C, 1st Bn., 29th Inf., 197th Inf. Bde., highlighted ceremonies at the 197th night at Golden Park. The drill team, commanded by 2nd Lt. Howard Lavy, put on an exciting show for Astro fans and received a tremendous round of applause.

197th has night at Golden Park

The home team lost the baseball game but the home fans won big in the entertainment department when the Columbus Astros hosted "197th Infantry Brigade Night" at Golden Park on July 12.

Two demonstration units, the 51st Inf. Pln. (Scout Dog) and the Pioneer Drill Team from the 197th Inf. Bn., 29th Inf., performed prior to the game between the Astros and the Birmingham Athletics.

1st Lt. John Hutcheson, leader of the Scout Dog team, held the public address system's microphone and described the action as his seven dogs and handlers showed the spectators conditioning and obedience drills as well as sprints through the obstacle course designed to demonstrate each dog's speed and agility.

Then the Pioneer Drill

Team, marched on to the field, impressively clad in its starched khaki uniforms with shining black boots and helmets accented by white gloves, pistol belts and bayonet scabbards.

Led by 2nd Lt. Howard Lavy and SFC Leslie Dochery, the well-disciplined drill team, handling its M-14 rifles with precision through a variety of movements, held the audience's full attention.

Repeated applause answered each drill, marked by the simultaneous clicks of rifle bolts on the stadium's turf and the intermittent commands to begin each movement.

Following the performance members of the drill team and Scout Dog Team joined the spectators for the second half of the show — the baseball game.

Wisconsin high school girl tests the Airborne heart

ees at Fort Benning, Ga., but Claire Fritsche from Milwaukee, Wis., has been with airborne train-

Claire is a National Science Fair winner who was invited to the Seminars of the Army in week last week on a research project in aeromedical research. She visited Fort Benning last week.

The project was devised to test man's response in stress situations. Col. William Schane, director of aviation medical research, Aeromedical Research Laboratories, Ft. Rucker, Ala., is directing the project. Heart rates of free fall parachutists are studied to see how the body adjusts to life threatening situations.

Claire, who just graduated from Nicolet High School in Milwaukee, first entered the Southeastern Wisconsin Science Fair sponsored by the Milwaukee Journal Company and Marquette University. She won the grand prize and a trip to New Orleans to compete in the International Science and Engineering Fair.

Claire's project involved preventing ozone induced injury to bean plants by using a vitamin E substance. Her work earned three prizes in New Orleans. The Fair judges awarded her third place in the botany division. Eastman Kodak gave her an honorable mention for her use of photography in documenting changes in the bean plants. Her third award was the Army invitation and an Army sponsor-trip to Japan to exhibit her project.

An interest in pollution and its effects led to the development of the project. More than a year was spent working on it.

This fall Claire will enter Iowa State University at Ames, Iowa, to continue her scientific studies. She's planning to go to medical school in the future.

According to Claire, working with the Army in this project has been invaluable because "I've never experienced so many different types of things—so learned so much in such a short time." She has been fascinated by parachuting and the different insights Dr. Schane has given her into the various possibilities for medical research.

Although an outstanding student, Claire is not a bookworm. She enjoys all the water sports and is impressed with Georgia's warm weather. In high school, she worked in the theater arts and biology club, and on the yearbook art staff. She was also a member of her church choir, and Catholic Youth group.

Claire's parents are Dr. and Mrs. James Fritsche, 650 North Beech Tree, Milwaukee.

"This is the way to the lab," Claire Fritsche explains. Claire is a National Science Fair winner who was invited to the Seminars of the Army in week last week on a research project in aeromedical research. She visited Fort Benning last week. (Photo by Edith Simmons)

Sound-off: 'How would you prevent the increasing number of traffic accidents?'

Should everyone take driver's Ed??

PFC Michael Brooks

PFC Michael Brooks says "Well, they're doing a good job in Harmony Church. More MPs are stationed out there and the battalion commanders are cracking down on bad drivers with suspensions of driving privileges. I think the battalion lost four people in one week not long ago. In the civilian community, everybody should be required to take driver's education and safety classes before driving. Stiffer punishments should be given out for traffic violations and seat belts should be pushed more." Brooks is assigned to Co. C, 1st Battalion, 58th Infantry.

Sp4 Steven Ketchum

Sp4 Steven Ketchum is in CO. B, 1st Battalion, 28th Infantry. He says, "Simple. Crack down on drunken drivers. Too many drunks are let go too easily."

PFC Robert Thompson says "It's a good question. They say there's a million accidents a year and 50 per cent are caused by liquor drivers. There's enough places around here that aren't safe; some intersections are a real mess. A good way to avoid accidents is not to drive more than necessary." Thompson is with the 53rd OC Company.

Pvt. Aubrey Holmes

According to Pvt. Aubrey Holmes, "There should be more MPs deterring traffic. Too, most people are given DM's (delinquency reports) when the MPs speed themselves. Some areas on and off post should have the speed limit cut down. Traffic lights in four-way stops would make them safer." Holmes is with HQ Co., 31st Engineer Group.

The Autumn of our years??

WASHINGTON (APFS)— Autumn's colorful foliage may show more than ever that 1972 is a bad time to be a big city tree.

Air pollution, salt to melt street snow, unbanked buildings, even bright street lights, are among trees' newly discovered enemies and threats, which already include smothering vapors, ravenous insects, food-poor soil, and disrespectful dogs.

Tree experts think the autumn foliage will show the price trees pay for being man's neighbors, the National Geographic Society says.

Leaves in many cases will turn unnaturally brighter earlier, or duller and browner than ever. Tougher trees stoically may not show any special changes.

Frost is Overrated

Foliage changes color for a variety of reasons, but botanists, naturalists, and foresters are quick to push Jack Frost and his legendary paint brush out of the tree.

Frost has little to do with the beautiful reds, browns, golds, oranges, scarlets, and yellows that start transforming America's hardwoods in early September. In fact, frost and freeze that strike trees still green often kill the leaves, turning them brown instead of their customary bright colors.

Decreasing daylight as the fall days shorten starts the leaves turning. The tree gradually stops producing the plant hormone, auxin, causing corky cells to grow at the base of the leaves, plugging the circulation links with branches and trunk.

Production of the leaves' food-making green pigment, chlorophyll, stops and it begins to fade away. As it disappears, yellow pigments called carotenoids and xanthophylls — previously masked by green chlorophyll — are revealed. They give characteristic yellow colors to willows, aspens, poplars, beeches, hickories, elms, and ashes.

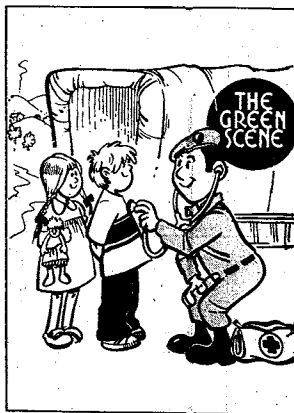

As soon as circulation is blocked, leaves no longer can pass on the sugars they make for the tree. The sugars build up in the leaves and produce bright red anthocyanin pigments, which give fall dress to many maples, hawthorns, plums, dogwoods, oaks, and black gums.

Street Lights and Smog

Street lights, acting like daylight, often trick nearby trees into staying green longer than usual. Heat radiating from unbanked buildings can scorch shade trees unseasonably brown. Salt spread to melt snow from winter streets contaminates the soil and by late summer many leaves turn brown around the edges.

Air pollution from incinerators, factories, and heavy automobile traffic hurts trees most.

Some smog gases destroy chlorophyll, usually causing brown to fleck the leaf or spread from its center. By eliminating the green chlorophyll, these pollutants can cause leaves to reveal their hidden autumn pigments earlier and even more brightly than usual. It may be the mask of death.

Got A Gripe?

Where were you when the lights went out? If you feel slighted, you should. Fort Benning was the setting for the new GREEN SCENE V, but no one is using k or else it's the world's best kept secret. GREEN SCENE is the series of short films which feature soldiers in action and topical information about and for today's soldier. Boy, have you got a gripe. Let your commander hear it, then see it and vice versa.

Soldier builds model wagon

Sp4 Larry Lee of C Co., 1st Bn., 28th Inf., 197th Inf. Bde., helps the "Pioneer Spirit" to survive in the battalion by building model wagons in his spare time.

The wagons show the traditional sizes and shapes that were put in use during the western days. The wagons are built to a 1:50th scale of the original specifications for the 1909 cavalry escort wagon the 1-28th uses as its official symbol.

Lee became interested in building model wagons when he first arrived at the battalion. "I have always been constructive with my hands and when I saw the battalion's escort wagon it created thoughts within me that made me want to help the battalion in its "Pioneer Spirit," stated Lee.

Lee, a native of Myrtle Beach, S.C., first became interested in building models at the age of twelve. "The idea of building models came to me while walking along the beach," stated the young wagon maker. "I noticed a piece of driftwood that had a peculiar look. That's when I started to create things with my hands." The model builder arrived in the 197th as a unit of choice enlistee. He is now a member of the Honor Guard of the 1-28th.

55th Infantry a 'forgotten' unit

From the Ft. McPherson News
The feats of bravery and accomplishments of the Massachusetts 54th Regiment during the Civil War have become well known. The 55th, however, another black Civil War regiment from Massachusetts, has been unfairly pushed into a background role due to its limited participation in combat.

The 55th Regiment of Massachusetts Volunteer Infantry was in May 12, 1863 at Readville, Lt. Col. N. P. Hallowell and Capt. A. S. Hartwell were designated as commanders of the regiment attaining the ranks of Colonel and Lieutenant Colonel. While stationed at Readville, the regiment received instructions in various tactics and military subjects. On July 18, 1863, the Governor of Massachusetts, John A. McAndrew, presented the regiment the Massachusetts state colors and the Ohio colors.

The regiment departed on July 21, 1863 for Folly Island, S.C. where they would experience isolated incidents in skirmishes with enemy troops. Upon arriving in the area, the regiment established camp and prepared the necessary defensive fortifications while awaiting further orders.

During the month of Feb., 1864, Company F of the 55th was serving with a battery that took part in an expedition to John's Island, S.C. They were under artillery fire and were reported as having performed their duty faithfully. Companies D, E, G, H, and some men from Companies B and I were sent on an expedition on May 21 to James Island. There they were confronted with the enemy and engaged in several skirmishes prior to reaching their objective.

On July 1, 1864, Company D of the regiment was deployed near James Island and engaged in skirmishes. They deployed into a line and advanced under severe enemy fire and captured several twelve-pounder Napoleon guns. Several of the shells were found and used against the retreating enemy.

The regiment had enlisted as the Massachusetts Volunteers, the same as other regiments of her quota. The Governor of Massachusetts had authorized the officers of both the 54th and 55th Volunteer Regiments to promise their men the same pay and treatment as white troops. Some discrepancy developed, but after considerable debate, the government agreed to pay the regiment as originally promised. On Oct. 7, 1864, the payment of the regiment to Aug. 3 was completed.

It is interesting to note that the enlisted men of the 55th Regiment had sent a total of $60,000 home to their families after getting paid. The post sutler or post exchange officer had sold items to the men on credit, and lent money to them without security. According to a regimental officer, there wasn't a single case where a man with the regiment refused to repay his debts. The men of the 55th also raised $1,100 without the aid and suggestions from officers to supply their hand and drum corps with new instruments.

Credit must be given to Governor John A. McAndrew for his unusual interest and untiring efforts to secure equal pay and treatment for his black troops. This copy of a telegram he sent illustrates his earnest intention at that time.

"The 55th Regiment continued to experience contact with the enemy on Nov. 30, 1864. The regiment was in the vicinity of Honey Hill, S.C. and was in formation advancing toward the village of Grahamville. Around noon, the regiment engaged the enemy in skirmishes.

When the firing started, the 55th was ordered to form a line in the field and proceed in a double column forward. Some of the companies moved ahead in a desperate charge and during the last charge, the regiment experienced several casualties. Capt. Crane and Col. Hartwell were wounded and several noncommissioned officers sustained injuries."

On the morning of Dec. 1, the regiment again marched toward the line. Six companies of the regiment engaged the enemy on Dec. 5, after finding several Confederate soldiers in a church; an exchange of fire occurred. Later, the regiment arrived at Ft. Thunderbolt near Savannah on Jan. 12.

On the morning of Feb. 10, the regiment advanced toward the enemy which was composed of the Charleston battalion under Maj. Manigault. As the regiment advanced, they captured seven prisoners, and, on Feb. 19, 1865, news was received that Charleston was evacuated. Provost guards from the regiment were assigned to Charleston and later the rest of the unit took up garrison and defensive duty there.

Fact Talk

Do you dig those low-profile tires on your jalopy? Well, you can thank the Army Ordnance Corps, which developed low-profile tires to increase the traction on military vehicles.

The 62-million American families who watch television daily (is yours one?) are using several products derived from Army research. The integrated or printed circuits which bring the sound and picture were conceived by the Signal Corps.

When you watch tonight's newscast and see a weather picture from space, remember that the Army pioneered the communications satellites, the weather satellite's film or television cameras, the missiles used to put satellites into orbit and even weather reporting.

Army research funds helped develop the artificial kidney device now responsible for saving and prolonging the lives of thousands of people across the U.S.

In 1906, the Army Engineers were given responsibility for completing the Panama Canal. The canal was opened for traffic on August 3, 1914, and has proved one of the most significant trade routes of the century.

The Engineers are also the ones who carved the 1,500 mile ALCAN Highway from the United States to Alaska in a mere eight months' time.

Participating in any of these activities is not only beautiful, but can be fun for the entire family. But, don't start off keeping those sit-ups.

Pesticides cause careless death

Parathion, pyrethrum, crab grass killer, or ant bait — which pesticide is usually not poisonous to humans? The answer is pyrethrum, a pesticide made from a certain species of chrysanthemum. The others contain harmful chemicals that, if inhaled or absorbed through the skin can be fatal. Even in small amounts.

Although figures are not available on the number of deaths from insecticide or pesticide poisonings, the National Safety Council estimates that 50,000 or more persons, usually children, are victims of nonfatal poisonings each year.

A council representative points out that spilling a few drops of any agricultural or household pesticide on a child's shirt, hand, or face can cause serious damage. Some children, especially those who are allergic, may experience severe allergic reactions, such as hives or asthma.

Exercise of the Week

If daily exercises have become boring, why not give some of the recreational activities at Fort Benning a try.

Golfing, tennis, softball, basketball, bowling, archery, weightlifting, these are all sports that can be played on post.

Briant Wells Fieldhouse, 1000 S. St. Stephens St., is equipped with basketball and handball courts, weightlifting equipment and an indoor swimming pool.

There is also a new Mini Golf Gym off Sighting rd. with saunas baths and new recreational facilities including basketball courts, handball courts and weightlifting equipment.

The Special Services Golf Course and Driving Range in the Sand Hill area is open to all military personnel, both officer and enlisted, and their dependents. Also, the Officers' Open Mess operates a 36-hole golf course for members of the officers' club.

The Hunt Club, near the intersection of Stonewall and Marne Roads, is open to all personnel and their dependents. Horses are equipped with English style equipment may be rented.

For personnel with a little extra courage and energy, why not give the Fort Benning Sport Parachute Club a try? The present membership is composed of jumpers varying in degree of ability ranging from student anticipation the thrill of their first jump to veterans of more than 2,000 free-falls.

Participating in any of these activities is not only beautiful, but can be fun for the entire family. But, don't start off keeping those sit-ups.

First NCOES class slated for early 1973

The Army Chief of Staff has given the go ahead for the senior course of the Noncommissioned Officers Education System (NCOES). This highest of the three levels of NCOES will be held at Fort Bliss, N.M. It will be a 22 week course of about 22 weeks duration. It will prepare noncommissioned officers in grade E-8 for duties as command sergeants major and for other positions of increased responsibility. As the Army War College is for officers, this school will be the capstone of professional educational development for noncommissioned officers.

The first senior NCOES class will begin early in 1973. Unlike the basic and advanced levels of NCOES, which are taught at the various service schools, the senior level will not be retained by the Army Ordnance Corps, which are as yet unutilized, at Fort Bliss, Texas. Two classes are programmed for each year, beginning with a student body of 160, expanding to 200 as more academic space becomes available.

CONARC is designing the course to be attractive to student families as well as to attending noncommissioned officers. Normally, students will attend the senior course while en route from one station to another. Married students will be encouraged to bring their families. Classes will be programmed to coincide with the fall and spring semesters of student children's schooling. A generous number of family quarters will be reserved at Fort Bliss for use by senior NCOES students, and will be available upon their arrival. Student wives will be welcome participants in orientations lectures, and a variety of recreational and social activities. Room and geographical bachelors will find quarters within easy walking distance of the academic complex. The total effort of the course will be directed toward creating an overall educational experience which is new, challenging, stimulating, and rewarding.

Selection for the senior course will be competitive. To be eligible for the course, noncommissioned officers must be in grade E-8, and serving in the 15th and 22nd years of service and possess a current EES of 100 or better. DA will select just over four percent of all eligible E-8s to attend each class, making this opportunity for selection.

Officers competing for attendance at the senior service colleges. The career progression of highly qualified E-8s who currently have more than 23 years of service will not be retarded by missing Senior NCOES. DA will convene a board to screen the records of such noncommissioned officers and, where deserved, they will be granted constructive credit equivalent to senior course attendance.

The senior course is planned to provide interesting subjects of study and considerable intellectual challenge. Students will find that much of their time will be spent in small discussion groups and seminars. Case study methods will also be employed. Distinguished guest speakers from a broad range of agencies in the civilian, governmental, and military sectors will be scheduled to provide firsthand insights into many facets of today's changing world. A significant block of instruction, concerning the leadership and management of people, will, among other things, bring students abreast of current thinking in the behavioral sciences. Emphasis will be placed on dealing with contemporary problems.

Rather than being aimed toward particular Army specialties, senior NCOES will be purely branch independent and broad in scope. It will cover functions and operations of various national governmental agencies, the other services in a joint role, and major Army headquarters and commands.

The Army and the Alcoholic

BY PAT D.

(Pat D. is a SFC retired after 20 years in the Army. For most of those 20 years Pat was a problem drinker. He is now an active worker in one of CON-AR's post alcoholism programs.)

My Name is Pat, I am an Alcoholic.

I became alcoholic during my 22½ years in the Army, not deliberately — it just happened. Project #15 has asked me to share some of my experiences with those involved in the program, those who may be in the process of becoming alcoholic, but especially with those who through a misguided sense of loyalty, understanding or compassion may be contributing to someone's alcoholism.

I would like to make it clear that these are my opinions only. I am not speaking for any group or other individuals. What I say is the truth, spoken without reservation. At times it may seem I don't care about an individual's career. As an ex-careerist I well understand the importance of the career, but I believe a man's life is more important than his military career.

Although I often used to be the only one of my men excusing to drink, I do not blame the Army for my being an alcoholic. I did the drinking, and I became the alcoholic. I do feel, however, that the Army unknowingly contributes to drinking problems by permitting them to continue. As an alcoholic who bent the rules for 22½ years to fit my own drinking patterns, I honestly believe that if I had been forced to obey the rules, written and unwritten, I could have made more of my career and contributed much more to the Army.

I joined the Army at age seventeen and it was love at first sight; not because I didn't have a happy home but because I was cut loose from a lot of constricting bonds like being home at a certain time, or going to church on Sunday. I found that being in the Army granted me certain liberties not allowed in civilian life, especially in regard to drinking. I also found that commanders were quick to excuse my many "minor" infractions, especially when it came to being intoxicated.

In thinking back, I feel these "understanding" commanders helped me to establish my drinking patterns. When I got into difficulty involving drinking, the CO was light on me and told me to "learn how to drink." In fact, I don't think anyone mentioned not drinking or that I might be drinking too much, until I had been in the Army eleven years and was already a compulsive drinker.

During this time I was continually getting into trouble and drinking was invariably involved and usually the cause. A look at my records would have revealed that I was a good soldier when I didn't drink. (I might point out here that we alcoholics sensed that we're preparing ourselves for drinking by making sure that we're in good standing at the time of the spree. We knew that this "good work" would be considered when we had to answer for our acts.)

During the early portion of my service career I accumulated my share of Article 104's (15 and 2) and dug my share of "six bys," levelled dirt under the barracks, scrubbed mess hall doors with rifle patches and cleaned a few grease traps. I also had two summary courts. Before I was twenty-one years old I had been moved from Fort Riley, Kansas to Camp Hood, Tex., because drinking was giving the Army a bad name. I received my last company punishment in 1952 when I was found in a mess hall and charged with the minimum punishment of reduction in grade and restricted to post for one weekend. Numerous other incidents followed: Once I woke up in a railroad car where I'd passed out and found I was a day late from a pass. I was not even reprimanded for this career; I missed the check without even an oral reprimand when others lost a stripe for the same offense. It was during this tour that I made three stripes and was heard to brag that I'd made three stripes even though I should have been reduced at least twice. I reiterate that no one suggested to me I stop drinking, or that I might have a drinking problem.

I'm not telling you this to brag or be funny, but to present examples of how commanders unknowingly contribute to progressive drinking patterns by not taking disciplinary action when it is due. I refer to constant warnings that commanders give to their troops who never follow through. If I had been disciplined properly trouble episodes, I might not have taken so long to do something about my problem. Other alcoholics I know agree that they did not do anything about their drinking until they were forced to. Alcoholics I know who were in the military agree that if many of their commanders had taken a stripe when they threatened, that action might have helped them realize that they were not going to be allowed to continue their problem drinking.

I was a personnel sergeant for most of my military career and enjoyed my work, mostly because I was dealing with people and their problems. I also think that in performing these types of duties I was continually trying to make up for my own guilt feelings. I had the reputation for never turning anyone down when they had a problem and I would spend many of my own off duty hours taking care of others' problems (usually at the club). I always kept something good going for me in case I got into hot water.

Unfortunately for my family, my reputation never suffered too badly and I was able to continue by progressive, destructive drinking. My wife pleaded with me for help, but they all agreed to be a family matter and agreed with me that she was not following "protocol" in coming to them. She went to chaplains who agreed with me about a man's "holy" right to have a few beers in the club after a hard day's work. Of course, neither the CO nor the chaplain looked far enough into the problem to see what happened after the "few beers" or the kind of family situation caused when the husband always has a "few" rather than going home. As long as a man performs his job well, even passably, my commanders prefer to leave the family alone and ask the wife to leave the Army alone.

How far should a commander go when a man's family is concerned? If there is a problem in a man's family and his commander is made aware of it, then it's the commanders DUTY to look into it. Let's not forget our motto, "The Army takes care of its own." If a man is not taking care of his family, it is the Army's business.

The majority of career soldiers' wives are "RA" or their husbands and are well aware of what "is done" and what "isn't done." If a wife complains to her husband's CO you can be sure, in the majority of cases, that she is doing so out of desperation.

One of the most common signs of problem drinking is family suffering; wife or child beating, gambling, indecency and being constantly short on money for food and clothes. When this happens the commander has a responsibility to take action. Other indicators directly affect the commander such as reports of "failure to report," AWOL, poor work performance, excessive time off to take care of personal business (like going to court), etc. If we look at the percentages, in the majority of these cases, alcohol has been a major part of the problem.

This brings up another problem. How does a young officer confront a soldier old enough to be his father? My answer is simple. Discuss the problem, not the age difference. Ask: What is the problem? What caused the problem? What is going to be done to solve the problem?

Many commanders patronize and respect their career soldiers and are reluctant to "punish" into the personal life of their "elder" men. Don't lose sight of one very important fact: Soldiers respect commanders for their leadership, not their age. A sergeant major salutes a second lieutenant the same way he salutes a general and their respect comes from actions, not years of service.

I would like to make a plea to anyone in the Army, or anywhere for that matter, that may have someone under their supervision with a drinking problem. Make that person aware that you recognize it. This is the first step in his recovery, since he probably doesn't recognize it himself. Recovering alcoholics usually admit they were the last to recognize the fact. I'm not suggesting a witch hunt, but I am asking you to look closely into the kinds of problems mentioned in this article, especially where there is NO DOUBT that alcohol is involved. You may not be the most popular person for awhile, but if your heart is in it, popularity does not necessarily have to attend your efforts. I am simply asking you to help save lives threatened by alcoholism.

Before I go any further I would like to dispel some doubts and explain my enlightened remarks on the subject of alcoholism. Any sobriety I have can be attributed primarily to God and His operation of Alcoholics Anonymous. Through them I have learned to live a much better life than I had ever imagined in my wilder drunken dreams. I have, through AA, learned to work a program of recovery from compulsive drinking by keeping what used to be a very complex life to a very simple one based on the undeniable fact that one can live but one day at a time, and that day well lived will prepare me for any to follow and will enable me to look back on those passed with no regrets. I have learned that through excessive, abusive, compulsive drinking, I have contracted the disease of alcoholism and that I can never touch a drop of alcohol again as long as I live. This is to say I cannot drink unless I want to go back to the living hell I experienced as a result of my compulsive drinking. But most important for me, AA has taught me that I must accept this "banquet of consequences" as the reward for my own actions in drinking. This I do accept with no regrets because I have a new life each day I wake up. I am able to tell my family and friends that I don't have to take that drink to start the day and then worry about all those people who are going to smell it on my breath and hope to hell that the CO is in a good mood in case he is one of those who

Basic training revisited

POR committee helps soldiers remain ready

BY NEIL DANIEL

Basic training is an experience that no soldier is likely to forget. During those eight long weeks, he learns the Army way and is taught the skills which convert him from civilian to soldier. His body, too, is trained to respond to any demands made upon it, and by the time he graduates from basic training, he is physically fit.

Retention of all this new knowledge however, poses a problem. The primary mission of the soldier is to maintain himself in a constant state of combat readiness, a task which is difficult to do in a peacetime Army. Then, too, new discoveries are constantly being made, new methods adopted and the soldier must keep abreast with all this.

It is this gap in the army's training program that the Permanent Overseas Replacement training Committee (POR) is designed to fill. They are responsible for ensuring that the individual soldier is combat ready by providing courses covering all the information he received at basic training in addition to any new methods or information which he is required to know.

This training is given on a weekly basis, with the course totaling forty hours a week. SFC Paul E. Brown, the NCOIC, estimates that the committee handles an average of some 75 men weekly. "On occasion, we may have to train almost an entire unit," he said.

The committee is part of the 21st Engineer Group, and in keeping with the Group's motto, often handles soldiers from other units on post.

During the course, the men receive classroom instruction as well as practical field exercises; one of these exercises which generally unpopular is the trip to the gas chamber which is part of the class on chemical warfare. The P.O.R. course continues each week with a physical fitness test (PFFT) which the men approach with unusual enthusiasm. The test consists of the run, dodge and jump, the low crawl, the horizontal ladder, grenade throw, the acid test, and the mile run.

At the end of the week, the men are thoroughly reacquainted with all that they learned in basic training in addition to new ideas and methods.

Post soldiers donate blood

The Army has long enjoyed a reputation for taking care of its own. CW3 Bryce J. Gordon of the 609th Trans. Co., Avn. Cmpl., couldn't agree more.

When his brother, Robert, of Brownsville, Pa., was in urgent need of blood for open heart surgery, the men of the 609th Trans. Co. and the 67th Maint. Bn., Gordon's former unit, were quick to heed the call.

Those individuals donating blood were: SSG's Roger N. Stubbs and Edward L. Outlaw, SSG's Van E. Hertlein and Edward L. Molloy, and SFC's Odavie Buford Jr., Otto W. Graber, David R. Murchison, Sergio Panton, and Kenneth R. Venier, all of the 609th Trans. Co., and Lt. Jack L. Hadley, SSG, Richard J. Roy, and SFC William E. Crosson of the 67th Maint. Bn.

Winnie the Pooh Dramatizers schedule a children's favorite

A "cast of contrasts" is a good description of the newly announced cast of the Fort Benning Dramatizers' summer production of "Winnie the Pooh."

Perhaps the greatest contrast is in the relative ages of the oldest and youngest cast members. The eldest is 29-year-old Rick Kiernon, who is the narrator of the story of Pooh and his friends. Separated from Rick by 22 years is one-year-old Amy Gross, who plays one of two skunks, the other skunk is played by Kiernon's daughter, Denise.

Another contrast is in experience. For some, like Amy, this is a first exposure to the theater, but for others, such as Mrs. Luanne Russell, who plays Kanga, and Dave Hoyt, who has garnered the lead role of Winnie the Pooh, these roles are but the latest of many here at Fort Benning and elsewhere. Mrs. Russell's latest credits include her role as Helena in "A Midsummer Night's Dream" and her award of Best Actress in the Third Army Tournament of Plays winner, "Blithe Spirit." Dave Hoyt's latest role was as Bottom the Weaver, the lead Rustie in "Dream."

One of the most appealing contrasts is in the relative ages of the oldest and youngest cast members. The eldest is 29-year-old Rick Kiernon, who is the narrator of the story of Pooh and his friends. Separated from Rick by 22 years is one-year-old Amy Gross, who plays one of two skunks, the other skunk is played by Kiernon's daughter, Denise.

ing contrasts is in the make-up of the cast in regard to status and rank. There are officers, such as co-director and designer, 1st Lt. Jeff Grandell, who was technical designer for "Dream" and "Spirit," and there are enlisted personnel, such as the other half of the directing team, Sp5 E. Linton Gross III, who played Oobon in "Dream."

Also, there are dependents such as Steve and Ricky Waugh, who play Christopher Robin and Roo, respectively. Steve played Flute and Ricky played an Elf in "Dream." And there are civilians in the play, such as Martha Woodham, who plays Rabbit, and Randy Macchia, who plays Eeyore. Martha played a Greek Lady of the Court, and Randy played The Duke of Athens, in "A Midsummer Night's Dream."

Listed simply, the rest of the cast consists of: Leanne Gomez as Piglet, she played Pusselossom, a fairie in "Dream"; Leigh

Coming to the screen . . .

Patton (R rated PG)
This is a "top - hatted - barbed" portrayal of the legendary Gen. George S. Patton. As he really was: flamboyant, profane, a battlefield genius whose rebellious personality earned him distaste and the loss of his command. George C. Scott won an Oscar for best actor in the title role.
Dream (Rated R)
Hold on to your hair! Psycho fans, Alfred Hitchcock is back. Freddy, the latest release from the pucker purveyor of melodrama, features Jon Finch as a former RAF pilot who is accused of a series of axe murders in London. Finch is convicted of the murder of his ex-wife and his sweetheart barmaid (Anna Massey). He escapes from jail seeking revenge.
The Man (Rated G)
This exciting movie brings Irving Wallace's best seller to reality upon the untimely death of a President of the United States in an accident which also claims the life of the Speaker of the House. As Vice-President, chronically ill Lew Ayres (who knows he has but months to live) presides the accession oath. Constitutionally next in line as an elected Senator is the President of the Senate, Pro Tempore (James Earl Jones), a black, who becomes the first non-caucasian Chief Executive. With a few months remaining in the unexpired term, the Secretary of State (William Wisdom) and a powerful senator (Burgess Meredith) contrive to manipulate the President during the interim. How he reacts and asserts himself as a leader make powerful action and drama.

CG takes tour of engineer site

Major General Orwin C. Talbot inspected the Red Mill Creek job-site of Company B, 43rd Engineer Battalion (Coast) July 11.

Talbot's helicopter brought him to the south area that was the site of actor John Wayne's 1965 hit movie, "The Green Berets."

Company B is presently working to upgrade River Road in the vicinity of Red Mill Creek. In recent years, the road has been nearly impassable during the winter months. Completion of the Combat Efficiency Training Facility (CETF), however, made the year round use of River Road necessary. CETF was also constructed by the 43rd Engineer Battalion.

In addition to the road improvements and erosion control along River Road, the project's other major feat is the installation of twin 72 inch diameter culverts, each 130 feet in length and nearly 30 feet below the road surface. The tremendous drainage capacity of the culvert is due necessary due to the 150 acre watershed that drains into Red Mill Creek.

At the intersection of the creek and River Road there once was a timber bridge. John Wayne left it a smoking heap of rubble when he demolished it with explosives during one of the films memorable scenes. The bridge was never replaced, and a "temporary" by-pass was constructed around the site. The by-pass has been a bottle-neck on River Road ever since, and the old culverts were inadequate.

Records have shown that the 71st Division penetrated to the eastern-most point reached by Ground Forces of the Western Allied Armies prior to VE Day. On the river Rhine the division met and exchanged compliments with the Russian 5th Guard Airborne Division. The division was finally moved to Augsburg, Bavaria where it assumed an occupational role until ordered to return to the United States in March of 1946, where it was deactivated at Camp Komer, New Jersey.

The division was reactivated in October of 1954 to act as an Infantry Division in Alaska and stayed there until deactivated again in 1956 at Fort Lewis, Washington, where the colors were retired formally.

The division has been commanded successively by Maj. (then Brig. Gen.) Robert L. Spraggins, Maj. Gen. Eugene M. Landrum, Maj. Gen. (now Gen.) Willard G. Wymann, Maj. Gen. Arthur A. White, Maj. Gen. James F. Collins, and Gen. (then Maj. Gen.) Paul L. Freeman.

ROD AND GUN CLUB

Notes

By BILL KLOBE

Some of the Rod and Gun Club members have decided to put a little zest in the club lounge activities. Jim Erwin has lined up a combo to play from 7 p.m. until closing time tomorrow evening. He has three men besides himself who will provide country western music for those in attendance. Erwin only knows the other players by first name but says they are well known around the club. They go by first names of Sam, Earl and Ed. Plan to come out for awhile tomorrow evening and see what they have to offer. There could also be some additional impromptu entertainment. It could be an opportune time to tell the better half that you plan to spend all day Sunday on one of the local ponds or down at the river or convince her that both of you should get out and try for one of the $15 merchandise orders the Rod and Gun Club is going to award to winners of the July Fishing Derby.

It seems that one fisherman is getting about all of the action this month. Warrant Officer (ret.) Brayton Davis, 3030 Luckie Street has held the lead in the bass contest all month. He started early with an entry weighing a little over five pounds, surpassed his own mark with an eight-pounder and now tops the list with a lunker weighing nine-pounds, seven-ounces. He has been having quite a bit of success at Harps Pond.

SFC (ret.) Angelo Flores, 241 Springfield Drive leads the catfish contest with a six-pound, nine-ounce entry he took from Kings Pond.

SFC Howard Dobbs, 1359 Starlike Street is the current leader in the bream contest. Dobbs caught his twelve-ounce entry at Snellings Pond.

Except for the bass the leaders seem to be a bit on the small side for this time of the month. Certainly someone will take a bigger catfish from Victory or Tule Light Pond before the month is finished and Patterson Pond should be good for bream that will top the 12-ounce entry now leading the contest. Seems someone should do a bit better for July. It could be you. You don't know if you are lucky if you don't try. If you do try and don't win the effort could still come to some good. Your fishing this month could be a good reconnaissance for the contest in August.

The Rod and Gun Club sponsors a fishing derby every month of the year. The contest begins on the first day of the month and ends at midnight of the last day of the month.

Prizes, usually merchandise orders good for $15 at the club sales counter are awarded to the fisherman entering the largest bream, catfish and bass in the contest.

The rules of the contest are simple. The contest is open only to members of the Rod and Gun Club who are authorized to fish on the reservation. The member wishing to enter the contest must register at the club each time he goes fishing. All fish registered in the contest must be taken from one of the ponds on the reservation. All catches must be brought to the club for weight verification. Catches made after the club closes may be brought in the next day.

Water in the ponds of the reservation had just reached maximum temperature for the summer. It doesn't seem that we could get weather any hotter than it has been for the past week. Most people are beginning to feel the effects of the heat and a lot of them are staying inside in air conditioned homes rather than brave the effects of a July afternoon.

The fish have been going through the same conditions. They have been moving closer and closer to the deeper water and now most of them have taken up summer homes in the deepest part of the lakes and rivers. Up until now they have been willing to make daily visits to the shallows along the shoreline to grab off a good meal. Now they will be content to stay in the deeper, cooler water and depend on what it provides in the way of food.

You can just about put your top water plugs away for the remainder of the summer. Take your choice of bait or artificial lures but whatever you use fish it at the bottom in deep water. Try putting a split shot about eight or ten inches above your hook. Rig the float so it will slip freely along the line. This will insure that any bait you use gets to the bottom.

Olympic send off

U. S. Army Olympic marksmanship competitors flank Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbot, Fort Benning Commanding General, July 14, following a ceremony in his office in which he recognized the top Army marksmen and gave them a "send off" to the Olympics at Munich, Germany. The seven Army contenders make up half of the U. S. Olympic shooting team. From L. to R. (with their specialties) they are: SFC Herchel Anderson - Free Pistol, Maj. Lones Wigger - 300 meter Free Rifle, SFC James McNally - Rapid Fire Pistol, General Talbot, SFC Charles Davis - Running Bear, Capt. Larry R. Bassham - Three Position Smallbore Rifle, SFC Edmund O. Moeller Jr. - Running Bear.

Three marksmen make CISM team

Three U.S. Army marksmen blazed a trail into the top three slots for the five-man CISM International du Sports Militaire (CISM) Rifle TEAM July 15 when they led the top selectees of the combined four military services in the three day CISM match "tryouts" at Fort Benning.

Two Marine shooters filled out the five man team. Capturing the number one spot on the U.S. Rifle Team, Capt. Larry R. Bassham, Fort Worth, Tex., at the Army Marksmanship Training Unit, compiled a three day aggregate of 2,470 of a possible 2,700 points with his bull rifle over the 300 meter range.

Behind Bassham and taking second and third place, companion Army Marksmanship Unit shooters Capt. Boyd Goldsby, Little Rock, Ark., and Maj. Lones Wigger, Carter, Mont., filled out the Army's one-two-three punch with their 2,465 and 2,463 respectively.

The fourth and fifth shooters to make the prestige team were C. W. O. David I. Boyd and SSGT. Jerry Boswell, Marine shooters from Quantico, Va. They posted three day aggregates of 2,431 and 2,437.

A sixth shooter or alternate team member slot was filled by Capt. Edward Schumacher of the Army Marksmanship Unit who compiled an aggregate of 2,432.

The five rifle shooters will join the five pistol shooters previously selected in June competition at San Antonio, Tex., to make up the combined

Doughboys take two from Ft. Rucker in 3rd Army softball

The Fort Benning Doughboys won two games from the Rucker Flyers at Gowdy Field last weekend to take undisputed possession of second place in Western Division play of the Third Army Softball League.

The first game, played Friday evening was a pitching duel between Frank Baker of the Doughboys and Frank Ordway of the Flyers with Baker turning in a one hit performance to take the win.

The game ended with the score 1 to 0 in favor of the Doughboys. The Benning run came in the second inning when Emerson Cooper of the Doughboys stole home on an error by the Rucker catcher. The play was set up when Cooper opened the inning with a hit to center field, advanced to second base on a walk to Dale Kayes and to third on a sacrifice by Barry Stahl.

The second game played Saturday morning was a slug fest with the Doughboys winning 12 to 3. Ed Marshall started the game for the Doughboys but was replaced by Frank Baker after two and one third innings. Marshall did not give up any runs but was extremely wild, allowing five bases on balls and throwing two wild pitches. Baker who was credited with the win gave up three runs on four hits and a base on balls.

The highlight of the game came in the fourth inning when Trinidad Rivera, of the Doughboys, hit a 263 foot home run.

While the two wins broke a tie for second place with Fort Rucker it did not get the Doughboys any closer to first place. The Campbell eagles won two games from the Ft. McClellan Blues last weekend to keep a comfortable hold on first place.

Current league standings are: Campbell 7-1, Benning 5-3, Rucker 3-3 and McClellan 1-7.

The Doughboys will be idle in league play this weekend.

MPs stop Finance in 931st softball

The 138th MP Co. proved themselves in the clutch last Thursday by defeating previously undefeated 15th Finance, 9-7 at Gowdy Field to remain in the race for the 931st Softball Championship.

The game left 15th Finance a scant half game in front of 138th with the MPs playing Tuesday night while Finance was idle. 84th Personnel is also still in the race having an 8-2 record.

The MP's broke open with 5 runs in the first inning on 6 successive hits. Singles by Don Munter and Steve Allen followed by two doubles off the bats of Fred Broxton and Jim Lucas. Lip Cuthbertson singled and Tiny Lockett brought him in with the third double of the inning.

The MP's scored another run in the 2nd inning when Rudy Scott tripled and Mike Forte doubled. Scott also pitched and played an outstanding defensive game making some tough plays on the mound.

Finance scored a run in the second but the MP's got it back in their third. Two runs in the third by Finance tightened the score 7-5. The MP's got 2 more runs in their half of the 4th on 2 walks and a 2 run single by Broxton. 15th Finance rallied in their half of the 4th scoring 4 runs before the cops finally put out the fire.

Defense proved to be a factor in the last 3 innings as both teams kept each other from scoring for the final 3 innings.
