IOAC-2 leads TSB Volleyball

IOAC 2-74 stayed one game ahead of HHC, TSB in the Blue division of TSB volleyball league by downing HQ, 4th BN, in action at Briant Wells Field House last week.

IOAC 2 beat 4th Bn. in two straight matches, but not without some difficulty and a lot of work. In the first match it was close all the way, but IOAC-2 had the extra effort to take a 16-14 decision.

The second game was a replay of the first. IOAC-2 jumped ahead, was challenged, but took another 16-14 victory. The defeat dropped 4th Bn. into third place in the Blue division.

RSVP lends hand

Some 14 members of the Retired Senior Volunteer Program (RSVP) in Columbus are presently working for Army Community Service, one of their volunteer stations. They instruct Army personnel and their dependents in American history and language for the citizenship test on Saturdays.

There are some 185 members in RSVP. The program has been in the city for almost a year, four years nationally. Non-profit agencies that need volunteers are identified and then the volunteers are located. They are then paired off with a service that they'll enjoy and do well in.

RSVP is funded by the federal government and the city of Columbus. Its main purpose is to get senior citizens re-involved in community projects.

HHC, TSB maintained its grip on second place by nipping 14th Co. HHC barely managed to trip them up in the first game, taking a 15-13 squeaker. A more decisive performance in the deciding game was good for a 15-9 win. The losers remained winless and fell into sixth place.

The U. S. Marine Corps team jumped into third place, winning two games by forfeit over IOAC-4 team 2.

WAC believes women should work where they're qualified

Diana Laue believes that if a woman is qualified to do something, she should be allowed to do it. Today's Army is proof of the fact that a woman can do almost any job that a man can do, except those that are directly combat-related.

Sp4 Laue, who is assigned to the 11th Special Forces Support Battalion at Ft. Meade, Md., is an Army Reservist who has it made.

She is attached to the WAC unit at Ft. Myer, Va., and lives in the Tri-Service Barracks in Arlington. She works in the Pentagon on active duty for training as a clerk-typist. And now she's Airborne!

She graduated from the Airborne Course at Ft. Benning on Saturday, April 8. Last December she enlisted in the 11th Special Forces Battalion when she found out women could go Airborne.

Diana, who is 25 years old, comes from a family with four brothers who have all served in the Navy, and in 1967 she enlisted in the Navy and served two years as a clerical yeoman.

She wanted to attend draftsman's school, but was turned down flat. "A thing like that was unheard of at the time," she said. She got out of the Navy in 1969.

When she entered the Army Reserve in 1972, she found that things had changed somewhat. She served in the 352nd Civil Affairs Unit in Riverdale, Maryland, and the 63rd ARCOM (Army Reserve Command) in California.

She completed her five jumps before graduation, on April 6, and will now go back to work in the Pentagon to await orders sending her to parachute rigger school at Ft. Lee, Va.

She knew the Airborne Course is physically demanding, so she started training, by running and doing exercises, two months before she came here. Her training has paid off; she is in fine shape physically, and shows no wear and tear at all from the rigorous conditioning she received.

"In fact," she said, "the training and discipline really conditioned me. I'm in better shape now than ever before." Always athletic, she enjoys all types of outdoor sports and may try skydiving later.

"I couldn't have learned to jump without the Army instruction," she added. "Jumping from a plane in a sports parachute club just isn't the same."

After completion of rigger school, she will report back to the Pentagon for active duty for training, and serve as a parachute packer during weekend Reserve drills. She feels that the opening of Airborne training to women in the Army represents a big step forward.

The instructors, generally speaking, treated her pretty well. "I didn't see any training that a woman in good physical shape couldn't do. It's all a matter of conditioning."

3/7th sponsors explorer scouts

There is one other dimension to belonging to the 3rd Bn., 7th Inf. than being assigned to a STRAF unit, its officers and NCOs also sponsor Post 27 of the Explorer Scouts.

The Explorers are composed of both civilian and military dependents, with most belonging to the Baker High School ROTC Unit.

Working to improve their handicrafts, they were out in full force at Ft. Benning during their spring holidays. Part of the handicrafts to be improved were the compass and map reading problems. Under the supervision of LT James L. Linderman, LT William D. Miller and SSG Vasco McRae of Co. D, 3rd Bn., 7th Inf., the Explorers moved out across Craston Hill on their map and compass problems, part of the adventure training prepared for them.

"They are really good at this and they seem to enjoy every minute of it," stated LT Linderman as the first group of Explorers completed the problem.

"This beats just setting around doing nothing," Harold W. Massie said.

"Yes, its good to get outside," concluded Wayne R. Wittite, sitting down to lunch.

The battalion assumed the sponsorship for the post last October and rotate the sponsorship from one company to another each quarter.

HOW TO CUT BACK WITHOUT CUTTING DOWN.

You want a luxury car but can't afford the luxury of poor gas mileage. Get a Volvo 164. It gives you air conditioning, lets you sit on leather, and offers almost as much front legroom as a Cadillac de Ville. And still gets about 50% better gas mileage than most comparably priced domestic sedans.* Test drive our 164. For a luxury car, it's an economy.

"Grow with books"--library week theme

The 17th annual observance of National Library Week will be held April 21-27.

The official slogans for this year's nation-wide campaign are "Get It All Together - At Your Library" and "Grow With Books."

The campaign will stress the values and pleasures of reading and wider use and support of libraries.

The Recreation Services library staff has scheduled activities throughout the week to acquaint the military community with the library facilities at Ft. Benning.

Main Post Library will hold open house on Sunday, April 21, from 2-5 p.m. Mrs. Darrell Robertson will give a puppet show and story hour for the children at 2 p.m. Branch Library No. 5 located on Sightseeing Road will have open house on April 23 from 1-6 p.m.

Martin Army Hospital Branch library extends an invitation to the public for a coffee hour on April 24 from 9-11:30 a.m.

On April 26, the Sand Hill branch will have a coffee hour from 10 a.m. till noon. The Kelley Hill branch will have coffee hour from 2 to 5 that afternoon.

1/29 surprised with new driver

The truck drivers and mechanics of the 1st Bn, 29th Inf (PIONEERS), TSB, motor pool received a genuine surprise when they were told to come out and meet the newest member of their truck driving staff.

When Nola Breefand, a 27 year old WAC walked up to the group of men and said, "Hi, I'm the new truck driver," there were several open-mouthed stares from the PIONEER crew. After getting over their initial shock, the men made Nola feel right at home and welcomed her to the motor pool.

Ms. Breefand, who calls Sacramento, California her home, has looked forward to being a truck driver for some time. "I've worked at quite a few jobs," said Nola, "but they all grew quite boring after a while." "I wanted something with a little excitement in it, different from the routine jobs - secretary, bookkeeper, and all that."

"I approached my recruiter in Sacramento," Ms. Breefand continued, "and he suggested the idea of driving a truck. It appealed to me immediately, and I joined the WAC's several weeks later."

Nola has been assigned to Hqs and Spt Co. of the PIONEERS, making her the second WAC to join the famed support unit, since its re-organization.

Ms. Breefand, despite being a member of the fairer sex, will have her work cut out for her, and will receive no special considerations, because she is a woman. According to MSG Eugene Shaw, her immediate supervisor, "PFC Breefand will be treated just like any other G.I. that works here. Her primary duty is that of truck driver, but she will have the additional responsibility of dispatching track vehicles from the motor pool."

Shaw, the Battalion Motor Sergeant, went on to say, "PFC Breefand also has a secondary MOS of clerk-typist, and perhaps will be used on occasion in this capacity, but for the most part, she'll be just another truck driver."

BAYONET
CALL 545-4792

DEAR BAYONET

Is it possible for a creditor to obtain a soldier's address after he has departed his parent unit in the vicinity that the creditor is located? PVT PH DEAR PVT. PJ

Yes, it is possible for your address to be obtained by your creditors after you have departed the scene. Your creditor may get your address from your former command or he may receive it from the Enlisted Record Center. If you are planning to skip town without paying your bills, don't. The Army takes a dim view of such action.

DEAR BAYONET

Has the tuition assistance program provided by the Army been eliminated? PFC WS DEAR PFC WS

No, the Army has not eliminated the tuition assistance program. The program provides seventy-five per cent of the tuition cost at an accredited college or university.

All interested parties may report to the Education Center and make an application for the program. Once the application is approved the individual must pick up a schedule of classes from the university that the individual is interested in attending.

DEAR BAYONET

Why is Project Transition being phased out? kd

DEAR KD

Project Transition is in the process of being phased out because Congressional approval has been withdrawn. Congress has directed installation to phase out the program by 31 May 74.

DEAR BAYONET

Why isn't it permissible for a person to turn right on red on Post if the intersection is clear of traffic. Specialist RH

DEAR Specialist RH

Turning right on red on Post is permitted at certain defined intersections, for example the Custer Road, Benning Road intersection. At other intersections USAIC Reg. 190-5 precludes turning on red. Georgia State law formerly prohibited motorists from arbitrarily turning right on red at intersections and the Provost Marshal adheres to state law in this instance. However, the State law has changed recently concerning turning right on red off post.

The Provost Marshal Office is in the process of a staff study to determine what intersections on Post that will permit motorists to turn right on red.

DEAR BAYONET

How long will it take for a former soldier to receive his GI benefits after he completes his tour of service? PFC WS

DEAR PFC WS

It depends upon the initiative of the individual. After you have made application an accredited university or college or Technical school and the Veteran Administration receives your certificate of enrollment, the process takes about six to eight weeks before you receive any monetary benefits.

Patriot soldiers buy wreath for Dr. King

Soldiers of the 1st Bn. (Mech), 58th Inf. (Patriots), 197th Inf. Bde. donated money to buy a wreath for the grave of Rev. Martin Luther King Jr. and selected a soldier to place the wreath on the grave during memorial services on the sixth anniversary of Dr. King's death.

PFC Jim Brown placed the wreath. Brown, of the Cbt. Spt. Co., 58th, was among four 197th soldiers who participated in the memorial service. 2Lt. James M. Johnson, SSG Walter Crenshaw and Sp4 Bob Thomas also participated in the memorial service.

This was the second consecutive year that the Patriot soldiers made small individual contributions to purchase a wreath for the historic gravesite in Atlanta. The idea originally came from a race relations seminar.

Family practice service is changing

THE FAMILY PRACTICE CLINIC No. 2, Martin Army Hospital, is changing to an all-volunteer service.

There have been an excess of families assigned to the clinic in the past year. Surveys have shown that one family physician can offer proper medical care for approximately 500 families. The doctors in the clinic now are responsible for approximately 1,000 families each.

The families now assigned to the clinic have first priority. Each family in the BLUE GROUP will be given an application form to fill out on a first-come first-served basis. Volunteers will be accepted until the appropriate number of families is achieved. Any family assigned to the clinic at this time that does not wish to participate will be allowed to return to the Outpatient Clinic in the hospital annex, Building 396. Their records will be returned to the record room in the hospital annex, Building 396. If the desired number of families is not attained from the BLUE GROUP, families from other color groups will then be given the opportunity to participate in the program. Applications can be obtained at the Family Practice Clinic No. 2, Martin Army Hospital, June 1, 1974 will be the cutoff date before applications are accepted from non-BLUE GROUP families.

Monday, April 15, the Family Practice Clinic No. 2 will be located in the "B" Wing of the 9th floor in Martin Army Hospital.

The clinic will be open from 8:30 to 11:30 a.m. and 1 to 4:30 p.m., Monday through Friday. All non-emergency problems who come to the clinic on a walk-in basis will not be seen, but will be given an appointment for a later time.

During normal duty hours individuals with acute problems, other than those of a true emergency, should call the clinic, and discuss the problem with a physician or nurse. They will advise you as to whether to come to the clinic or to continue some form of self-treatment. At nights and weekends, individuals with acute problems should call the information desk at Martin Army Hospital, 544-2041, and identify themselves as members of Family Practice Clinic No. 2. The information desk will take the information and have the Family Practice physician "on call" return your call.

Individuals with "true" emergency problems should go immediately to the Martin Army Hospital Emergency Room.

Now big car owners have something to turn to.

TOYOTA

"Small Car Specialist For 40 Years"

The Corona was redesigned to be solid, roomy and comfortable. So now big car owners have something to turn to.

We re-engineered the '74 Corona and gave it a big car feel. With a longer wheelbase. Steel unit body construction. Steel beams in the doors. Steel-reinforced fenders.

We made it comfortable. With more head and shoulder room than before. And powerful enough to handle freeways, even with options like air conditioning.

In a test conducted by Nationwide Consumer Testing Institute, people gave up their big cars to drive Coronas for three weeks* Around town. On the freeways. The way they normally drive.

And whatever big car you drive—coupe, hardtop, 4-door or wagon—we can match it with a Corona. The logical replacement for your big car? See what you think. At Maloof's Motor Company

In a 3-week test conducted by Nationwide Consumer Testing Institute, Dr. John C. Fletcher and 39 other big car drivers gave up their big cars for all-new Toyota Coronas. Dr. Fletcher's opinion? AWOL's down at 197th

197th units avoid awol's for a year

By C.B. Hoover

No AWOLs for a full year has resulted in smiling faces in Company A (Admin.), 197th Spt. Bn., the 298th Signal Plt., and the 179th Military Intelligence Det. as each of these 197th Inf. Bde. units completed a full zero AWOL year.

"Being in a Unit-of-Choice has afforded me and other volunteers the opportunity to achieve job satisfaction," explained PFC Tommy L. Oglesby, morning report clerk for the 179th MI Det., "and has improved the moral which helps keep men from being absent without leave. The commander also recognizing the accomplishments of each individual and rewarding him for his performance has definitely helped the unit."

Individuals to each other in our detachment and the assurance that each soldier is treated as an individual has helped eliminate AWOLs," stated SFC James J. McKibbins, 1SG, 179th MI Det.

Soldiers of Co. A, an administrative unit which provides personnel and equipment for administrative, finance, legal and information services for the brigade, expressed their views of what has helped minimize AWOLs.

"The section chiefs are the key to having no AWOLs," CPT Norman L. Nolde, commander of Co. A, 197th Spt. Bn. commented.

"They are the commander's channel of communications to each individual soldier in the command and lend a personal touch to command."

SSgt Hayward H. Carter

NCOIC of the personnel action division of the Adjutant General Section explained, "The individuals working in AG have a chance to see the end product of their work and the purpose behind their jobs. Working in the personnel field also makes our people more familiar with the regulations and how they are more aware of their

"Ft. Bliss here we come!" is the word in the 1st Bn. (Mech), 58th Inf. (Patriots) as elements of the battalion prepare to leave the green, green grass of home at Ft. Benning to commence desert and mountain training at the Texas post.

"This training is a part of the brigade's specialized operational readiness training which has been in the planning stage since the fall of last year," explains LTC T. Haines Hill, of the 197th Inf. Bde. S3. "It will insure that the line companies of the brigade's mechanized battalion receive experience and training in a desert environment."

The initial face-to-face coordination with the 3d Armored Cavalry Regiment (ACR) and officials at Ft. Bliss was made by LTC Hill in March. The 3d ACR is stationed at Ft. Bliss and will provide training for the battalion's cadre personnel at its Recondo School and also participate in field training system works and how they could be hurt by going AWOL."

"The type of unit the men are in," commented SFC O. J. Walker, NCOIC of the In and Out processing division, "and the fact that they volunteered for the type of work they are doing has lent to job satisfaction which is a major factor contributing to no AWOLs."

LT. Frederick Masel, executive officer of the 198th Sig. Plt. expressed the view that, "The new man orientation and interview by the commander where incoming personnel are informed of the mission of the unit, the commanders policies, and asked about any personal problem they may have has helped relieve the AWOL problem."

"Another factor is that the 197th Inf. Bde. is a Unit-of-Choice organization and most of our soldiers are from this general area. This means most soldiers can go home on weekends and relieve any tensions they may have."

because of range restrictions," said LTC Theodore B. Voorhees, the commander of the "Patriots"

The advance party of the "Patriots" consisting of some 30 maintenance personnel, cooks, armorers and soldiers selected to attend the 3d ACR Recondo School, will leave Ft. Benning on April 25 under the command of Major Gale R. Zink, the battalion S3.

The advance party will establish final coordination with the 3d ACR, Ft. Bliss officials, and officials at McGregor Range Camp where the unit will be billeted and trained. Personnel travel to Ft. Bliss will be by U. S. Air Force C-130 aircraft.

Savings bond rally kicks off Thursday

The "Kickoff Rally" for the 1974 Person-to-Person Savings Bond Canvass will be 3 p.m. April 25, in Marshall Auditorium. All military and civilian personnel are invited to attend.

Savings bonds will be given to four lucky people in attendance at the Rally.

Mr. E. G. Sparks, President and Chairman of the Board, National Bank of Fort Benning and Volunteer Chairman for US Savings Bonds for Chatahoocchee County, Georgia will be the guest speaker. There will also be a film presentation.

The goal of the campaign is to inform all military and civilian personnel of the benefits offered by the Savings Bond Program. Each unit and directorate will appoint a canvasser to contact the individual members.

What is the benefit of the military bond allotment program for the soldier? This is a savings plan that can be used by the service member to systematically invest a set amount of money each month in savings bonds. Savings bonds are purchased at 75 per cent of face value. Bonds may be purchased in denominations of $25, $50, $75, $100, $200, $500 and $1,000.

Savings bonds now pay an interest rate of 6 per cent and mature in only 5 years. Savings bonds are a secure investment.

Savings bond information is available from appointed canvassers and from local banks. For information concerning preparation and submission of DA Form 1341-2 required to start a bond allotment, contact your unit bond officer.

Kendrick and Baker take JROTC honors

The JROTC Rifle and Drill Team Competition was conducted at Ft. Benning's Parks International Range, April 13 at 9 a.m. Seven rifle teams from local high schools participated in the annual AUSA-sponsored event.

Kendrick High School won first place with 1,087 points. Team members were William Spear, William Childers, Larry Brown and Marvin Jackson. Their coach, MSG Joe Diaz, said that they will defend their championship every year.

Second place was awarded to Spencer High with a score of 1,087, and Columbus High came in third with 1,080 points. The top individual, was John McNally, from Columbus High, who received the award for his performance in scoring 295 out of a possible 300 score.

The JROTC Drill teams from Baker, Kendrick, Carver, Spencer, Columbus, Hardaway and Jordan High Schools displayed drill skills in the afternoon at Columbus High's Lakebottom Parade Field. An all girls drill team from Kendrick High was the highlight of the competition.

First place was awarded to Baker High with a score of 674 points. The competition included personal appearance, military bearing, control coordination and degree of difficulty of movements.

Second place was awarded to Kendrick High with a score of 631 points and Carver High came in third with 602 points. Spencer, Columbus and Jordan placed in 4th, 5th and 6th places. Cadet Corporal Flowers Brown, from Jordan High, took top honors as the best drilled individual.

ACS seeking donations

With the PCS season just starting, the Lending Closet at Bldg 83, the Welcome Center, is currently undergoing a revamping.

Personnel who have just arrived at Ft. Benning, or are preparing to depart, will be able to check out kits containing dishes, glassware, pots and pans. Each kit will have enough to provide a family of four with the necessary utensils; each kit must be checked out and returned as a whole unit. The loan period will be for one month.

In order to have enough kits in supply for the summer PCS season, the Lending Closet Committee at ACS is seeking donations of pots, pans, dishes, and glassware. As you are spring cleaning or clearing things out for your own PCS, please remember that many families will be in need of these items until their household goods arrive, or while waiting to leave after their goods have been picked up.

Any articles that you would like to donate may be dropped off at McGraw Manor or Lavoie Area Community Life Centers, or Bldg 83, the Welcome Center. Further information may be obtained by calling LT Marsh at 545-1601/1633.

AER passes halfway point

The Army Emergency Relief Fund Drive in progress since mid March moves into its final phase terminating at the end of this month. The goal for this years drive is $17,500 of which approximately $9,958 has been collected as of April 12.

Funds collected from the drive will be used by AER to assist active duty and retired military personnel in need of financial aid. This assistance is provided in the form of no interest grants or loans to the service-enabling him to meet whatever monetary situation he may be facing. The proceeds for these grants are provided solely through contributions and the annual fund drive.

According to Maj. Frank Shehulski project officer for the campaign at Ft. Benning one of the main problems that has been encountered thus far is that some project officers have been lax in turning in contributions. All collections should be turned in to the AER office in Building 83. This will enable the fund directors to get a better idea of what has been gathered for the fund.

The average soldier might ask at this point. When would I need help from AER and how could they help me? The service provided by Army Emergency Relief are designed to help an active or retired soldier or his dependents meet any unforeseen financial crisis which may be confronting him. The fund is important to all the members of the Army family as no one is safe from the spectre of an unforeseen financial disaster.

Speaking on AER Major Shehulski said "The AER is a way the Army helps its own. As soldiers we are obligated to each other regardless of rank. By donating to the Army Emergency Relief Fund we demonstrate this obligation to our fellow soldiers and also assure the funds will be there if we should someday need them. It is my belief that donations to AER should be a voluntary thing rather than something forced, however a person should want to donate to this valuable service."

Letter to the editor

Dear Sir:
Would it be feasible to enlist the aid of your publication in an attempt to locate former members of the 65th Infantry Division of World War II? We do not have a complete roster, and many on our list have since changed addresses; therefore we are exploring any channel open to contact former members.

Dear Editor
I am the wife of an officer serving here at Ft. Benning and I would like to warn others of a man and institution that have victimized my husband. Though my husband was and is under a handicap in that he had not had the opportunity to obtain his degree he still must face the possibility of a RIP. Even though he has been taking courses all along he was still a long way from getting his degree. Several months ago my husband, through a "friend", heard of an offer Trinity Christian College was making that would evaluate my husband's credits from other schools; and based on the credits, my husband would be given several end-of-course examinations and should he pass he would be given his degree in Business Administration. My husband paid $500 for the privilege of participating in the program. After my husband had received his "degree" a notice was published in the Daily Bulletin warning everyone of Trinity Christian College. My husband then checked with the Education Center to see if the school was legitimate. He was told that this school was not accredited and my husband's "degree" in all likelihood would not be honored. Shortly thereafter he received notice from personnel that his "degree" was being stricken from his official records because the institution was not accredited. Even though my husband has made this mistake and has fallen into a trap, I would like to warn others so they will not fall prey to this shame. My husband should have known that you don't get something for nothing. I would like to advise other members of the military to check with their Education Center and their unit commander prior to entering such a program.

Tornado season — not a jolly time

by TERRY RAGAN

'Tis the season — but not to be jolly. Dixie's tornado season is upon us and with it the possibility that a twister might hit Ft. Benning. If that happens, do you know what to do? No, don't panic; don't lie down and die. Don't jump into the car and attempt to drive away from it all; you'll just get blown back to where you started.

First, just OPEN YOUR EARS. For those of us who live on Ft. Benning, three steady 2-minute siren blasts will sound if a tornado is forecast to occur within 1½ hours. That's time enough to get you and your family ready — like rounding up supplies. Dig out your copy of USAIC Pamphlet 500-1 for all the particulars. The pamphlet also lists the emergency shelters for every dwelling on post. Learn where your shelter is.

Okay, you say. So what happens if you didn't hear the warning? Or maybe that tornado just decided to touch down unannounced. RELAX.

You're still ahead of the game if you recall — as hard as that may be in a crisis situation — that you're safe as long as you're near the most structurally sound parts of your quarters away from doors, windows or the walls that make up the outside of the house. That lets out: all upstairs rooms, any area near a window or door and any area near an outside wall (unless that entire wall is made of brick, concrete or other relatively indestructible material). That lets in: closets, pantries (if the pantry is the walk-in type) and entryways to rooms. Sit or lie down and wait it out. What if you're outside? No problem. Find a depression in the ground — a hole, a ditch, a sewer — and lie down in it. Statistics are on your side — if that's any consolation; tornadoes tend to bounce along and rarely bounce directly into a depression in the earth. Most of the danger of a tornado is not knowing how to deal with it — not knowing how to "stare it in the face." Every dwelling on post should have USAIC Pam 500-1. If yours doesn't, call the housing office or drop by and pick one up.

Could George Washington have had someone like this on the other side of the Delaware motivating him? Theresa White is waiting at Navarre Beach, Florida. All ashore that's going ashore!

Battered child syndrome...

One of most serious social problems today

Francis P. Rossiter

The battered child syndrome is the diagnosis used to identify a child abuse case.

Child abuse is one of our most serious social problems today. It is also one of the most difficult to correct. The real tragedy is the battered child whose injuries, delving far beyond the visible scars, last a lifetime. Physical injury heals in time. Emotional scars seldom do.

Here at Ft. Benning we are fortunate to have a "Child Protective Services Council." This multidisciplinary group consists of representation from Pediatrics, Psychiatry, Legal Branch, Health Nurse, Social Services, Juvenile Branch of the Provost Marshal and representation from the Family and Children's Services of Muscogee and Chattahoochee Counties. A USAIC regulation requires compliance with the existing Georgia statute and establishes the reporting procedure. The above panel combines its various resources of talent to identify the problem, protect the child and rehabilitate the family unit where at all possible. Recommendations and follow-up information are provided the judicial branch of the respective counties. Records are maintained on all cases and progress recorded. When transferred to other posts this information is made available to the Protective Services Unit at the receiving installation.

Parents who injure infants and small children exist in all levels of society, rich and poor, of high or low intelligence. They show a wide range of psychiatric states from nearly "normal" to seriously ill. To some degree all parents expect children to behave well and satisfy parental needs. Scolding and spanking are commonly used to discipline children and teach proper behavior. The abusing parent is different in that his demands are much too great, very much too early, and his exaggerated discipline causes injuries.

Abusing parents have often been raised in this same pattern, repeating with their children what happened in their own earliest years. Their own parents subjected them to extreme demand, criticism, lack of appreciation, and disregard, often accompanied by severe physical punishment. Consequently they have grown up feeling unloved, inferior, fearful of authority and unable to believe in considerate help from others. They lead needy, somewhat isolated lives. They feel it useless to turn to their families or other adults for help in time of crisis and hence turn to their infants for comfort and reassurance. They were brought up believing children should take care of parental needs. In this situation where the abusing parent is yearning for appreciation and consideration and turns to his infant for it, attack occurs because the infant cannot possibly meet this excessive need.

Management requires protection of the child either by removal from the home or placing a protective helper in the home. More important in long-range treatment is changing the parental style of child rearing. Although difficult to treat, abusing parents can be helped to develop a better self-image plus an ability to seek help from other adults at times of stress.

Identification of abused or neglected children is more easily made by the informed physician who recognizes situations and conditions which alert him as to its possibility. It is often difficult to be absolutely sure, so the law was written as to clearly make suspicion adequate cause for reporting.

Correlation of history and physical findings is extremely important. Often the story given by the parents is inconsistent with the degree of injury or they may be unwilling or reluctant to give information. A delay in seeking medical help for a serious injury should arouse suspicion. A chart review will often show many emergency room visits for "accidents." The parents may display inappropriate concern despite a serious injury.

Beyond the physical injuries, the child may show signs of general neglect. Poor hygiene, malnutrition, anemia and failure to thrive may be noted. The child who is frequently abused may appear withdrawn, irritable and interact poorly with parents.

Hospital admission and thorough medical assessment may reveal fractures in various stages of healing, indicating that they were inflicted at different times. A coagulation survey will most times be normal, despite the history that the child "bruises easily."

This is one disease that does not require penicillin or sulfa, but requires involved people. These children cannot wait. Their needs are immediate. For them, tomorrow may be too late. To further emphasize the importance of identifying and reporting suspected cases of child abuse, it has been estimated that approximately 50% of children under the age of three years who are abused will be dead or severely brain-damaged within a year if their present environment is unchanged.

It is the responsibility of the physician, the social worker and the judicial to assist and rehabilitate the parents, attempt to preserve the family unit, and to protect the child from further harm.

(544-3102). You will need to identify yourself, but your identity will be kept confidential. Once contact has been made, appropriate action will be taken and when necessary coordinated with the Child Protective Services Council.

Child abuse has been proven to occur on a large scale regardless of sex, age, race or economic level. There is something that every individual can do and that is care personally. Caring means human involvement and helping. Won't you please do your part in helping us to prevent child abuse and/or neglect?

Please help prevent child abuse

Who abuses children? The list is as far reaching as the number of people with whom children have contact, i.e., parents, siblings, other relatives, friends of parents, baby sitters, playmates, etc.

If it appears to you that someone next door, across the street or anywhere in your community is abusing or neglecting a child, how can you really tell if you do not hear the scream? The guidelines for recognizing a possible case of abuse and/or neglect may be evidenced when several of the following factors are observed:

If the child:
Seems unduly afraid of the parents,

Is kept confined in a crib, playpen or home and/or unsupervised, Shows evidence of repeated skin or other injuries which are inappropriately taken care of,
Appears undernourished,
Is notably destructive and aggressive; passive and withdrawn.

If the parents:
Seem to be very much alone and do not utilize resources available when the stresses of parenthood get to be overwhelming,
Make no attempt to explain the child's most obvious injuries or offer absurd and/or contradictory explanations,

Have unrealistic expectations of the child that it should be mature beyond its years,

Through the course of conversation, indicate that he/she were reared in a motherless, unloving atmosphere; that he/she grew up under conditions of harsh discipline, therefore rear their children in the same manner.

When child abuse/neglect is evidenced, what should you do? Notify one of the following:
Chief, Army Health Nurse, MAH (545-5431).

Emergency Room, MAH (Pediatrician on-call) for off-duty hours

Range Patrol

No glory, just a mission which is vital

Hollywood gave us "Dawn Patrol" — TV gave us "Rat Patrol" — and today, in real life, Ft. Benning's Range Division provides us with Range Patrol. There's no white scarves fluttering in the wind and no glory-hungry raids upon enemy convoys, but the mission of Range Patrol is a vital one.

"The mission of the range patrol is a fairly simple one", stated Ed Burroughs, Chief, Range Division. "It is to assure maximum and safe utilization of ranges and terrain for training and recreational purposes."

Approximately 160,000 acres of the Benning reservation are used for the training of soldiers. During normal duty hours, the range patrol attempts to cover most of that area

Soldiers of the 197th Inf. Bde's 72nd Engr. Co. are hard at work building a prisoner-of-war (POW) compound.

Now, what does the 197th need with a POW compound?
It can all be summed up in one word: training. The compound will be used to provide training to every brigade soldier in the principles of the Code of Conduct, the Geneva Convention, escape and evasion, and counter-interrogation techniques.

This type of training is considered essential since, during time of war, there is a possibility of capture.

In addition, a high correlation between performance and survivability of a soldier and the training he receives has been noted in earlier POW experience.

The brigade's 179th Military Intelligence Det. will run the compound which will expose "Forever Forward" limits and the dangers he might face.

Maps of the post showing restricted areas are maintained at three locations — Range Control, Provost Marshal and the Rod & Gun Club. Persons planning to hunt, fish, hike or camp out on the reservation should check one of these maps before leaving.

Range patrol is also concerned with safety procedures being applied by personnel conducting live firing or other training exercises. Range patrol assures that road blocks or road barriers are properly placed on access roads into these training areas.

The efforts of the Range Patrol, other elements of Range Division, and all military personnel at Ft. Benning have combined to create an enviable safety record.

Posted signs of danger or warning as to dud ammunition or live firing is a clear enough message to all.

SUPPORT BATTALION 197th INF BDE

The Ladies of the Spt Bn, 197th Inf Bn, marked the last days of winter with an evening coffee keyed to the theme of "Windy Weather". Special guest speaker for the evening was Cpt Patrick Easton, USAF, chief meteorologist with the Air Force weather-watch detachment station at Lawson Field. The ladies were treated to an informative and enjoyable explanation of meteorological capacities at Ft. Benning, and Cpt Easton offered some easy to remember safety guides for severe weather.

Mrs. Richard Bell was the guest of Mrs. Ellis Morris and co-hostesses Mrs. Mel Taira and Mrs.

Gregory Ganslen. Refreshments and a brief business meeting completed the evenings activities at the home of Mrs. Ganslen.

LEADERSHIP DEPARTMENT

The ladies of the Leadership Dept. were in for a nice change of pace in April-lunch at the Red Lobster. The event was sponsored by the Contemporary Subjects Committee Wives, with Mrs. James S. Tarpley and Lt Nancy J. Zizunas as the hostesses.

A warm welcome was extended to Mrs. Dale E. Sherrod. Mrs. Edwin M. Frazier, Sr. was recognized as the new Hospitality

Chairman. 1st BN 29th INF

The ladies of the 1-29 Inf held a coffee at the home of Mrs. Jesse Wheeler. Maj Geoffrey Ellerson, the battalion S-3, gave the ladies a brief history of the "Pioneers" from the early days to the present and now the ladies understand why "We Lead the Way". Those welcomed were Mesdames Robert Howard, Harry Logan and Charles Shaffer. Farewell trays were presented to Mesdames Herbert Strasser, Jack Petri, Joseph Smith, John Rudd, and Paul Bedard.

The 478th Avn. Co. (Heavy Helicopter) performed its first tactical support mission recently, since being reactivated when four 105 mm artillery pieces and a gamma goat were moved for the 2-10 Arty. Bn.

The 2-10 Arty. Bn. was participating in a field training exercise to climax a unit training program that is bringing the battalion to a combat ready condition. The movement of the artillery and equipment tested the 2-10's capability to properly position, rig, and coordinate the move.

Both of the four-man crews in the CH54A flying cranes received combat experience in Vietnam. However, many of the troops in the 2-10 are not experienced in combat and the movement by air exercise contributed to their training readiness. The mission commander, Cpt. Curtis A. Laird of the 478th Avn. Co., stated that the mission was very well coordinated and the troops conducted themselves like seasoned veterans.

The CH54A Flying Cranes are ideal for sling-load missions because of the 18,000 pound "load" capacity and a 100-foot winch cable. During sling load operations the CH54A is controlled by the crewman in the aft pilot position. He actually faces to the rear of the helicopter and has a set of controls for hovering and winching.

Broadway group to perform
An Israeli Broadway group will perform a light musical revue at Marshall Auditorium at 8 p.m. May 1 and 2.
The revue, which is free, is entitled "To Live Another Summer, To Pass Another Winter" and has performed at other military installations and civilian communities. Staged by Hanan Goldblatt and musically arranged by David Krivoshei, the musical has already appeared in more than 100 communities and New

Polly plants light poles

By J. B. Davison

With the majestic grace of a great lady, "Polly," the flying crane came to help the American Legion of Dahlonga put up their baseball lighting system. Nestled in the pastoral splendor of the north Georgia mountains, the Army is no stranger to this community. Camp Merrill, the mountain Ranger camp, is nearby.

Never has the Army's presence been felt or more appreciated as with the arrival of the flying crane in the sky above the town. "Polly," or Army 18420, is a CH-54A, better known as a "flying crane." A Viet Nam veteran Polly makes her home at Ft. Benning, as a member of the 478th Avn Co (HH). There are eight other cranes assigned to the 478th.

Mr. Jack Roberts, the manager of the lighting project for the American Legion, in concert with LTC Guillery, Mountain Ranger Camp Commander, requested the giant helicopter. After coordination with various agencies the 478th Avn Co. launched the mission. The entire town looked on as "Polly" lifted each 90-foot pole. Each pole weighs 9,700 lbs - no problem for the crane which can lift as much as 18,000 lbs.

As each pole was lifted, Ranger Camp personnel guided it to its correct position in prepared holes. Communications from the ground to the aircraft was provided by elements of the 187th Pathfinder Platoon.

The Pathfinders, along with personnel of the 478th Avn Co (HH), rigged each pole for lifting. The mission was controlled by Maj. Jerry Watson, 478th commander. The aircraft crew consisted of CW3

Noel Winner, CW2 Ed Jones, CW2 William J. Meyer, SP 6 Bernard J. Satagaj, and SP 5 Robert A. Marek.

Both the U.S. Army and the civil community of Dahlonga benefited from the 478th's project-the Army's image has been enhanced and the town has a new baseball park with lights.

Why should I join AUSA?

"Why should I join the AUSA?"

"What do I get for my $10 annual dues?"

"After all, there aren't that many social events, and when they have one it costs more money. Where does all the money go?"

These are all comments which will be heard between now and June 21 when the annual AUSA membership drive climaxes.

Convincing a young soldier that he needs AUSA is sometimes about as easy as convincing him that he should start saving now for his old age. Laying out money now for either program is not as easy as it is to lay out for more tangible needs such as entertainment.

Well, the simple truth is that AUSA was not organized as a social organization with a goal of entertaining its membership.

Primary objectives are to promote national defense, the Army and the welfare of members of the Army. To accomplish these goals the association must have a large enrollment of military persons and civilians who believe these goals deserve support.

It all comes back to the point that there is strength in numbers. This can even be seen at the local government level. One citizen has far less impact than a room full of citizens supporting the same issue. By the same token a large membership in AUSA assures the organization of a powerful and respected voice in informing the nation on important Army issues.

However, AUSA is not an official lobby organization in the sense of hiring professionals into pressuring certain congressional groups. AUSA works to inform the people at the grass roots and thus enlist their assistance in supporting the needs of the Army and the people in the Army.

By so doing, AUSA supports you with the method considered to be most effective for getting the job done. Each chapter works at developing an honest rapport with its congressional representatives and continues to inform them of goals and needs of the Army.

You will find that civilian and military members of the Columbus-Phenix City-Ft. Benning chapter enjoy a close relationship with key congressional leaders from this area.

But, you probably want some examples of how AUSA helps the soldier. Here are only a few:

—Equality in Pay. AUSA support appropriate action to obtain:

—Equality in computing, for retirement purposes, inactive reserve service prior to 1958.

—One-time recomputation to Jan. 1, 1972 levels of military retired pay for personnel with pre-1958 service when they reach age 60.

—Repeal of that portion of the Dual Compensation Act which pertains to retired regular officers employed by the federal government.

—Revised aviation career incentive pay system based on equal risk and responsibility.

—All feasible support for non-command-sponsored service. Families in overseas areas to overcome of the dollar.

RESEARCH, DEVELOPMENT, MODERNIZATION

AUSA believes that in this period of mandated reductions in strength, the combat effectiveness of both men and equipment must be maximized and that a small Army must be reequipped continually with superior equipment. The AUSA believes among the most urgently needed items for the Army are:

—A field army air defense system to defeat the project 1980 air threat.

—An improved tactical utility helicopter capable of carrying an infantry squad with greater speed, survivability and reduced mission costs.

—A modern main battle tank having increased survivability, mobility and firepower.

—An armored, mechanized combat vehicle to give infantry the option of fighting mounted, with superior mobility, firepower and survivability.

MISSING IN ACTION

AUSA supports the federal government in its continuing effort to secure a prompt and responsible accounting for all personnel missing in action in Southeast Asia.

DEPENDENT EDUCATION

AUSA urges the federal government to recognize its responsibility for quality primary and secondary education of the dependents of federal military and civilian personnel, and to provide the necessary long-range committed budgetary support to federally impacted school districts and DoD overseas dependent school systems.

HEALTH CARE

AUSA supports action to provide adequate and equalized medical and dental care to dependents of active duty personnel, retirees and their dependents through a combination of military facilities and a revised CHAMPUS program, with contributory costs held to a minimum.

GOVERNMENT HOUSING

AUSA supports strongly additional worldwide family, troop and transient housing programs, and urge that special efforts be made to undertake leasing or similar arrangements in areas where construction of government housing is neither feasible nor desirable.

COMMISSARIES, POST EXCHANGES

AUSA supports expansion of the facilities of commissaries and post exchanges, and believes these services should provide adequate personnel to properly maintain efficient operation.

STRENGTH OF THE ARMY

AUSA vigorously urges that the authorized strength of the Army be maintained at a minimum of 800,000 in the active Army and 660,000 in the Army Reserve and National Guard, each being supported by a Department of the Army civilian force of appropriately proportioned size.

So when you get down to it, you do need to belong to AUSA. You are a professional in a professional Army. You need to belong to a professional organization which is looking out for you. And, most importantly, you should be an active member.

Remember your voice counts when it's added to all the others. But, by itself it may be only a whisper.

TSB wins mess awards

Best Dining Facility Awards for unit and post-level competition have been falling on TSB like raindrops recently.

On Friday, April 5, Col. Kendrick Barlow, Assistant Commander of Ft. Benning presented all the post dining facility awards there are to present to units of TSB.

The 1-29th Inf Bn was the next stop as the post best dining facility for a small unit was presented to Co. E. Col. Barlow again made the presentation. After several congratulatory remarks he awarded the trophy and letters of commendation to SFC John Stablam, Mess Sergeant.

In a strange twist the best dining facility on Ft. Benning for March didn't win its own unit award.

Co E won the TSB award for February. Therefore, it was submitted as the candidate for the March Post Award. However, while Co. E was winning sneaked up and won the TSB best dining facility award for March. Col. Goodson passed to SFC Clinton Edwards Mess Sergeant and his mess team the plaque signifying their victory, and gave to each person an individual letter of commendation.

197th to get new CSM.

A farewell Review will be conducted on Presidential Field at 4 p.m. 22 April as CSM Harvey Parrish relinquishes the position of Command Sergeant Major of the 197th Infantry Brigade to CSM Nathan G. Hoover Jr. for a new assignment at Ft. Meade, Md.

During the Vietnam War, CSM Hoover served two tours of duty with U. S. units in Vietnam. From November 1966 to October 1967 he served with the 199th Infantry Brigade and was with the 1st Cavalry Division from June 1970 till March 1971.

CSM Hoover will be vacating the top enlisted position with the 2nd Battalion, 69th Armor in order to take the job with the brigade headquarters.

CSM Hoover entered the Army 27 years ago, and has participated in two wars.

He saw action during the Korean War from June 1952 to July 1953 with the 7th Infantry Division.

Parrish, who has been the 197th Infantry Brigade's Command Sergeant Major since March 8, 1972 has been reassigned to Ft. Meade as the Command Sergeant Major of Army Readiness Region III.

The ceremony will be conducted by the Brigade Noncommissioned Officers and the public is invited to attend.

One man survives EIB

When 34 Infantrymen from TSB made their initial bid for the Expert Infantryman's Badge (EIB) last week, only one man survived the rugged tests and was awarded the coveted badge.

PFC David Vincent, sole survivor of the group's endeavor for the EIB, is a member of the Demonstration Platoon of Company D, 1st Bn., 29th Inf., TSB.

The PIONEER rifleman credits his Ranger Training with the great success he had in his bid for the Expert Infantryman's Badge, "I really don't know if I could have survived the whole test without the benefit of previous Ranger training."

PFC David Vincent of Company D, 1st Bn., 29th Inf., TSB, was the only one of 34 examinees to pass the rigorous examination for the Expert Infantryman's Badge, given recently to members of TSB. Vincent is an Infantryman with the Demonstration Platoon of the PIONEERS. (PHOTO BY RICK WASSER)

"I found the EIB test to be similar to both Basic Training and AIT in that you are shown how to do something by instructors, and then tested on that particular part of the test," said Vincent.

"But the major difference between the EIB and Basic," said Vincent, "is that the EIB tested you on the finer points of an Infantryman's training, whereas in Basic Training, it was just that—basic."

"Another difference in the Infantry tests," continued Vincent, "is that in Basic Training you could come closer to the right answer and still pass the test; not so with the EIB — you had to be exactly right or you failed."

PFC Vincent also gave a lot of the credit to Infantry School instructors in helping him pass the exam for the badge. "The USAIS instructors were just great," he said, "but also very strict in their grading. But that's what made the test such a tremendous challenge," he added.

The rigorous Expert Infantryman's Badge exam consisted of all phases of an Infantryman's training to include first aid, weapons proficiency, land navigation, physical ability, and a host of other military subjects.

For PFC Vincent, the hardest portion of the EIB was the phase on Land Navigation. "I had a little trouble with identifying the different types of signs on the Land Navigation test, but that was because I wasn't as familiar with them as I could have been. I put more emphasis on the other parts of that test during my preparation for the EIB."

Vincent had a lot of praise for the instructor of the Land Navigation classes, CPT Timothy Gregory of the Leadership Department. "I'd venture to say," Vincent comment, "that CPT Gregory knows more about Land Navigation than any single person in the entire United States Army."

WE WANT ONE SUBSTANTIAL INDIVIDUAL IN THE SOUTHEASTERN UNITED STATES TO START HIS OWN BUSINESS SELLING CHOICE REAL ESTATE IN FLORIDA.

An unusual offer from Royal Palm Beach Colony, Inc., one of Florida's largest community developers. A multi-million dollar corporation listed on the American Stock Exchange. No fee is involved. No Real Estate experience is required.

Royal Palm Beach Colony, Inc., is currently developing totally planned communities throughout the State of Florida. These communities are of particular interest to military personnel who are retired or about to retire.

These new and developing Florida communities offer a wide range of marketing opportunities to the individual we are seeking. All with property and/or shelter ready to sell to military personnel. Homesites starting at $3,995, homes from $27,950, condominiums from $22,240.

This message is addressed primarily to those who have experience in selling to military personnel, retired or on active duty.

If you have had a successful record in selling to active or retired military personnel and are confident you can sell homesites, homes and condominiums on the installment plan to the "military" market, we believe you may be interested in discussing the possibility of becoming our exclusive representative in your area.

No fee is involved, and previous experience in the field of real estate is not required. We will continually guide you and advise you. We are willing to invest in you, if you are the man (or woman) we are seeking, and if you are willing to invest in yourself.

If you are financially comfortable and would like to become even more so, write to Mr. Joseph Rossi, Vice President Sales Royal Palm Beach Colony, Inc. 8101 Biscayne Boulevard, Miami, Florida 33138.

OFF DUTY REVIEW COURSES

The Army Education Center announces a change in the dates for the H104 English course offered by the Harmony Church Education Center. The new date for the class will be 7-9:15 p.m., beginning April 22. Classes will be held each Monday and Wednesday evening in the Harmony Church Education Center. There is no cost for the course. For more information or enrollment call 545-6931, or stop by any Education Center and talk to one of the Education Counselor.

PRE-MARITAL SEMINAR

The monthly Pre-Marital Seminar, sponsored by the Fort Benning Chaplain's office, will be held Sunday, April 21, from 2-6 p.m. at the Infantry Center Chapel Annex, located in Bldg. 101. Couples of all faiths who are planning to marry or who have been recently married are encouraged to participate.

Topics of discussion will include the religious, moral, social, emotional, physical, and economic aspects of marriage. The seminar is supported by the Protestant, Catholic, and Jewish Chaplains on post and will fulfill the requirements of some denominations for pre-marital counseling.

PREKINDERGARTEN REGISTRATION

The Fort Benning Pre-Kindergarten registration will be held April 24, from 9-11 a.m., at Patch School located on the corner of Baltzell and Lumpkin Rd. This registration will be for the 1974-75 school year beginning in September. Pre-Kindergarten will offer one class for three-year-olds with the option of attending classes two or three days a week. In addition, there will be the regular five day sessions for both three and four-year-olds. For more information about the registration, contact Mrs. Delbert Lefel at 687-2404.

COMMISSARY STORE NOTICE

Customers are urged to immediately start bringing their own containers to the Commissary Store to package the purchases they have made. Paper bags are critically short nation-wide. Any container that a customer may provide for purchase will help. Old paper bags, shopping bags, barracks bags, boxes, or other containers, if clean, can be used.

FINANCE OUTPROCESSING

Personnel should take action to change pay options and allowances upon receipt of Permanent Change of Station orders instead of during finance outprocessing. This will ensure that changes will be effective on date desired. This will also help you expedite your outprocessing through finance.

In the past five years I've written many Rod and Gun columns but I never before came by as much static as I did from a recent column on the cost of Post hunting and fishing permits.

A few people wrote nasty letters and made telephone calls when I suggested that someone do something about thinning the pigeon population on post. Pigeons are dirty birds and carry disease transmittable to man but I found the pigeons have a lot of friends at Ft. Benning.

More nasty letters and telephone calls resulted when it was suggested that the squirrel population on main post be reduced because the squirrels were harmful to the song bird population. The squirrels eat the eggs from the birds' nests whenever they get the chance. When I suggested the reduction of the squirrel population I learned there are also a lot of squirrel lovers on post.

But this was nothing compared to the reaction about the hunting and fishing fees. When I wrote that the fees now being charged to fish and hunt don't amount too much, I was thinking in the singular. I found there are a lot of fishing and hunting families on post. And I found that the cost of fishing and hunting for these families can get into the hardship area.

One retired sergeant who disagreed violently backed his position with the following facts. "I draw just under $200 retired pay each month. My job brings in an additional $110 a week. About $600 before deductions. My wife, two sons and I fish in the catfish ponds. That's about the only recreation we can afford. We eat fish a couple times a week. With my income it's a necessity. I don't have the money to lay out for the permits I need. Four state fishing licenses would cost $13. Then the fishing permits for post would come to $12.

"That would be bad but when you add $40 more for annual permits to fish in Victory and Twilight Ponds the whole total comes to $65. I just can't cut that. I've been a member of the Rod and Gun Club for 11 years but there's no way I could come up with the additional $8 it would cost for me and my family to be members this year."

Granted, this man had the toughest tale of all but there were others who weren't much better off.

Not The Lone Ranger

I had never looked at the permit situation from this man's position. Now I can see that there will probably be quite a few families in this predicament. It may be that the $10 fee will take these two ponds off the list of those popular with families on post. It costs money to maintain these ponds but it would seem to be a poor expenditure if a lot of fishermen will have to stop fishing there because of the cost of fees. Maybe the full fee for the head of the family with a reduced fee for other family members could be considered or a modification of the creel limits might insure that the fishing pressure wouldn't be too heavy for the ponds. Both ponds have been popular with families in the past.

There is no doubt that Roy Johnson of the Fish and Game Division was right when he figured that catfish ponds would be popular on post. As of last Sunday approximately 1,600 people had brought post permits. More than 400 or about 25 per cent of these individuals had also purchased permits to fish in the post catfish ponds. Last year more than 9,000 people obtained post permits. If this percentage holds up there is no question that the catfish ponds will pay their own way. I'm glad to see this trend but the idea that some families might be priced out of their favorite recreation bothers me.

Things getting tough but Judo Club still dominates

"Things are getting tougher," so stated Coach Tom Keaton. Tough they may be but the Ft. Benning Judo Club continued to dominate the Georgia Junior Olympics winning 16 of 42 medals.

"Two years ago, only five clubs competed and we won 27 medals. Last year about nine clubs entered and we took 23 medals," continued Coach Keaton. "This year 18 clubs were entered. We did well in taking 16 medals. Significant to me is that we took 1st place in every division in age 13 through 16 except 16 Heavyweight, and we had a 2nd and a 3rd in that division."

The clean sweep of 1st place began with Jeffrey Dean, 13 light; Clarence Fox, 13 heavy; Charles McAllister, 14 light; Danny Jones, 14 heavy; Ronnie Wesley, 15 light; Jesse Chewning, 15 heavy and Mark Keaton in the 16 light class.

Also winning medals were Guillaume Salvan, 2nd, 10 light; William Fox, 2nd, 11 light; Michael Sutcliffe, 3rd, 11 light; Randy West, 3rd, 11 heavy; and Frank Stewart, 3rd place in 12 light division.

Other winners were Terry Caballero, 2nd, 15 light; Skip Schmidt, 2nd, 16 light; Don Mansman, 2nd, 16 heavy and Jonathan Dean, 3rd in the 16 heavy division.

Following Junior Olympics competition, open competition for men, women and girls was held. Again Ft. Benning dominated the action taking 14 of the 30 awards.

In Senior Division, Mark Keaton won 1st and Terry Caballero 2nd in the 139 lb. class. Alex Hynd was 1st and Danny Jones 3rd in the 154 lb. competition. Other winners were Jesse Chewning, 2nd, 176 lbs. and David Jones 3rd in 205 lb. class.

Debbie Chewning took 1st and Terry Mammond 3rd in the Lightweight class of the Womens Division.

Ft. Benning girls dominated the lightweight and mediumweight classes in girls competition. Cristol Chewning, 1st; Barbara Jones, 2nd and Theresa McAllister 3rd in lightweight. Debbie Chewning, 1st; Tessie Pierce, 2nd and Cindy Stewart 3rd in medium weight.

Exhibition matches were held for 6, 7 and 8 year olds. Michael Downes was 1st and William Fox was 3rd in 7 light competition. Michael Cain was 3rd in 7 heavy class. Second place in 8 light went to Susan Sutcliffe.

Michael McAllister captured 3rd in 8 Heavy competition.

3/7th trains for city combat

Elements of the 3rd Bn., 7th Inf. (Cottonbalers), 197th Inf. Bde., began Combat-in-Cities training last week in a return to conventional warfare which had somewhat fallen by the wayside during the Vietnam War.

The training consists of learning the techniques of obtaining a foothold and taking control of a fortified city.

For the exercise, the "Cottonbalers" went to the Harmony Church area where a "mock" city has been set up in old billets.

A small element of men, portraying the enemy forces, were placed in the city while the "friendly" forces were taken to the other side of a wooded area for instruction in principles and techniques of the operation.

Once on the outskirts of the city, the "friendly" forces maneuvered into prescribed formation for combat - in - cities operations. Firing as they approached, the "friendly" soon secured a foothold and quickly took control of the entire city.

Engrs. turn rock quarry into a training site

Co. A, 43rd Engr. Bn., 36th Engr. Gp., recently re-opened a rock quarry to be used as a training site. The 43rd Engrs. have decided to use the site for training soldiers in rock processing and quarry machine operation.

PFC John F. McCumber, Co. A, 43rd Engr., stated "My job consists mainly of operating a quarry machine; a 75 ton rock crusher, used in reducing the size of the larger rocks to be used in the 'jaw crusher'; a machine used to get the desired size of rock needed for each job."

McCumber explains, "During our last Field Training Exercise (FTX), I had a chance to assist on jobs such as test drilling and blasting at the quarry, to see how much of the rock was usable." He went on to say, "Because of the quarry site being used as a training area a man can now learn more jobs and be more efficient in his primary mission."

The quarry site was formerly used to produce rock for post projects and building roads. Before the quarry was closed the 43rd Engrs. used their own men and machines to get the rock they needed for projects. This process soon became too expensive. Since the quarry was closed due to the high cost of producing the rock, the 43rd found it more economical to purchase the necessary rock from a civilian contractor.

Explorers looking for members

The Explorer Post No. 142, sponsored by the 145th Avn. Bn. at Ft. Benning, doesn't offer the usual fare of merit badges and jamborees conjured up in most people's minds at the mention of the Boy Scouts of America. Rather, it offers a varied but pragmatic program of instruction and, appropriately, "exploration" into the field of aviation, as well as some of those outdoor and civic activities.

Currently, members attend four meetings per month: two classes on everything from the aerodynamics of flight to pre-fighting an aircraft (usually taught by an FAA accredited instructor so that the time counts towards the 40 hours ground school required for a private pilot's license) and two business meetings. The troop has toured facilities at the Columbus Municipal Airport and Lawson Army Airfield and plans to go to Atlanta in the near future. Of course, it's far from being all work. The Post gets together for bowling nights, hikes, car washes, and community activities. And yes, you women's equal rightists, Post No. 142 is coed.

For further information you may contact the Post's advisor, WO Dan Hixon, of the 121st Aviation Company, at 687-4401.

Betty, one of this area's more popular go-go dancers, helped out at the opening of FE Benning's newest NCO club recently. Located in the south Harmony Church area, the club will serve soldiers of the 1st Bn. (Mech), 58th Inf. (Patriots), 72nd Engr. Co., 2nd Bn., 69th Armor and 197th Spt. Bn. (Photo by Bob Thomas)

New club opens at Harmony Church

A new non-commissioned officer's and enlisted men's club (annex six) opened recently in the south Harmony Church area, for the soldiers of the 197th Inf. Bde., living and working in that area.

PFC Thomas E. Hayes, of Co. A, 1st Bn. (Mech), 58th Inf. (Patriots) stated, "I think having a club in this area is a very good idea. With a club here we won't have to go to Kelley Hill or main post just to get to one."

SP4 Steve Pierce, Company B, 1st Bn. (Mech), 58th Inf. (Patriots) said, "Having a club here is one of the best things that happened around here. I think it will help improve the moral among the troops and also give us something extra to do."

SP4 Dale B. Wilson, of the 72nd Engr. Co., comments, "I think having a club in the Harmony Church area will benefit the troops who live here. Some of them do not have transportation of their own and the shuttle bus stops running around midnight. But with this club, just about everyone is in walking distance."

SP4 Brian S. Payne, also of 72nd Engr. Company said, "I think putting a club here is the best idea they have had since I have been stationed out here. Having go go girls makes it even better. With a club in this area I don't have to worry about going off post and taking a chance on getting picked up."

Howdy, Bub. Child abuse? Good God in heaven, have I seen any cases of Child Abuse? The most heinous crime known to the civilized world has knocked on my office door 'most every day the forty-odd years I been practicin' medicine.

Folks bring in they's younguns all bruised an' stove up, an' give me a tale 'bout how the tyke got away from them, an' fell down a flight of stairs, or they wuz inna other room, an' he pitched outta window.

Them folks think that jes 'cause I'm for hire, I ain't 'sposed to see nothin', but they's koein' the wrong row when they 'spect me not to report 'em to the 'thorities. The abusin' of a youngun is kinda a hard crime to prove, 'cause them parents ain't goin' to cooperate none, but it can be done.

I recollect a case I seen 'bout six months ago, these, so-called parents, brought in this three year old boy, an' 'tole me that they had gone out to a party the night afore, an' when they came home, found this boy all beat up an' the babysitter gone.

Well, I want to tell you that youngun wuz a sight to see. He had bruises all over his body, his right shoulder wuz scrunched down some, both eyes wuz black, an' his face wuz all puffy an' swell up, an' he couldn't put no weight on his left foot.

I wuz so mad that the gorge rose up in my throat so's I wuz havin' trouble gettin' my breath, an' my hands wuz clenched so tight they hurt. I examined the boy, an' ordered x-rays an' urine test based on my examination. I tried to be gentle, but an expert had had first crack at him, an' everthin' I did wuz painful to the lad.

When I got the x-rays an' urine test back I seen that his right clavicle wuz busted, they also wuz a crack in his left ankle bone, an' he had some blood in his urine. None of these findings surprized me, and I ordered the boy put into the hospital so's we could get him patched up.

His daddy didn't like that none, but I tole him that either the boy goes in now or the sheriff would be over to their house later, an' on top of that, I'd swear out a complaint onna assault charge 'ginst him an' the missus. He began to sputter an' spout 'bout how he didn't have nothin' to do with hurtin' the boy, but I minded him that he didn't bring in the lad 'til this mornin', an' how did he sleep last night? He shetup then when he seen that I wasn't goin' to put up with none of his sass.

Well, the long an' short of it all wuz that we got junior into the hospital 'n commenced to put casts on his fractures, an' get some medicine into him for his bruised kidneys, an' sech like.

When the sheriff questioned the parents 'bout the incident, the missus broke down an' 'tole the whole story. It seems that daddy came home all likkered up, an' 'mad at the world 'cause he lost his pay to some out of town checker shark, an' began to beat on the boy, jes 'cause he wuz aplayin' with his daddy's bowlin' trophy. The ole man hit, kicked, an' punched on the lad 'til he wuz frazzled out, an' then collapsed onna bed 'til the next mornin'.

When he an' the missus seen the blood in the boy's urine, they figured he'd better get im seen afore he really got sick, an' caused more trouble. Well, daddy got three years in the Slam, an' mormma got six months in the County Correctional, an' the boy got a new home that wuz full of love 'n unnerstandin'.

Good health to your and yours

145th is combat ready

Elements of the 145th Avn. Bn. (Cbt.) completed their Operational Readiness Training Test this past week.

Participating in the problem were the 121st Avn. Co. (AH), the 609th Trans. Co. (ADS), and the 187th Pathfinder Plt. Present, but not graded in the ORTT, were HHC, 145th Avn. Bn. (Cbt.) and elements of the 36th Engineer Group Aviation

197th takes care of its own

"The Army Takes Care Of Its Own" and soldiers of the 197th Inf Bde are doing their part to continue that tradition.

Two weeks remain in the Army Emergency Relief (AER) Annual Fund Campaign and all units of the "Forever Forward" brigade have passed the halfway mark in achieving this year's objective.

The 2-10th has already surpassed the objective set for the unit, while the 72nd Engr Co has almost doubled its objective.

"As long as men know it's for a worthy cause there is no problem getting contributions," states 2LT Henry Bazemore, AER Project Officer for the 72nd Engr Co.

Army Emergency Relief is the army's way of assisting its personnel and their families when a financial emergency exists. Help comes either through an outright grant or by a non-interest bearing loan which may be repaid in small monthly installments.

The contributions of the "Forever Forward" soldiers are merged with the post's AER Fund for soldiers' use in case of an emergency. It also enables AER to cover disbursements for assistance world wide.

Last year AER assistance was given to 394 brigade soldiers in the form of loans, with 7 receiving grants.

Platoon. The 121st Aviation Co. performed a variety of missions with 21 aircraft, 17 UH-1H Hueys and 4 AH-1G Cobra gunships. These missions consisted of FM radio homing, communications wire laying from aircraft, aircraft night illumination using the Mark 45 aircraft flare, and radioactive detection missions following a simulated nuclear blast.

Elements of the 187th Pathfinder Plt. were inserted into landing zones by both airborne and helicopter rapel missions conducted by the 121st Avn. Co.

The Pathfinders then provided air traffic control for several airmobile combat assaults into simulated "hot" Landing Zones.

The 609th Trans. Co. (ADS) conducted maintenance related missions and demonstrated proficiency in simulated aircraft recovery operations. Elements of the 609th performed actual field maintenance when a rotor blade of a UH-1H Huey changed for the 121st Avn. Co.

Ground control dons steel pots

With the speed of light strange voices are heard in the sky:

"This is Eelbeck GCA, how do your copy?"

"This is Tiger 121, loud and clear."

"Tiger 121, this will be a precision approach to Runway 27."

Such conversation would lead one to think a jet was on an instrument approach to a large international airport; but in fact, it is a UH-1H 'Huey' making an approach to a tactical field surrounded by malicious aggressors.

The ground control approach (GCA) personnel were active participants in the recent 145th Aviation Battalion "FTX".

For the first time the GCA personnel of HHC donned their steel pots to join everybody else in navigating the problems of field life.

A ground controlled approach is a radar system designed to talk pilots down in bad weather when a visual approach by the pilots would prove disastrous.

SFC Gary Johnson, assisted by SP5 Steve Nichols and SP4 Jerry Nichols (not related), set up the complicated apparatus in a matter of hours with little difficulty. "This is a new experience for all of us," explained SFC Johnson,

SFC Gary Johnson of HHC, 145th Avn Bn, performs some fine tuning work in setting up the GCA radar. The GCA approach is the same type of approach that an aircraft would receive at a regular airport. (Photo By D. M. Brown)

"but things are going very well."

These people are part of the Terminal Control Section which is an organic part of HHC, 145th Avn. Bn. The professional way these people accomplish their mission in absence of more sophisticated equipment was verified by the pilots who have to rely on the accuracy of GCA's work.

No photo finishes 197th winds up ATT's

"The final Army Training Tests (ATTs) for units of the 197th Inf. Bde. were concluded last week and no unit has to say, 'wait till next year.'" They are all 'WINNERS' having successfully passed the rigorous testing," says Col. William B. Steele, the brigade commander.

The last two units to be tested were Tp. A, 15th Cav. and the 2nd Bn., 69th Armor. The three day testing period for the cavalry troop commenced on Monday, April 15, and was concluded on Wednesday, April 17. The armor battalion commenced its four day testing on April 17. It was concluded April 20. The primary purpose of each ATT was to evaluate the units' ability to perform assigned missions under simulated combat conditions. Evaluations of personnel actions and serviceability of equipment were also conducted.

Commanded by CPT. Robert L. Steele, Tp. A, 15th Cav. has been rated combat ready in training, along with the tank battalion.

"The realism sometimes missing in other field exercises was really present in this test," commented SFC Norman Rousseau, the platoon sergeant for the 1st Plt., "the fast movement of the test and constant pressure from the aggressor force was of tremendous benefit of our unit. We learned a lot."

"The problem is well rounded and the unit has been confronted with a variety of challenges that has made the training more realistic. The men in the unit are well motivated because of this realism and have reacted like true professionals," concluded LT Thomas G. Clark, platoon leader of the 1st Plt.

The 2nd Bn., 69th Armor, commanded by LTC Warren J. Walton, was forced to display its 'speed and power' as the aggressor force provided by the 1st Bn. (Mechanized), 58th Inf. applied pressure on the tankers during their testing.

"This is my first ATT," said PVT Gary Hashett who just recently joined Co. A of the tank battalion after completing advance individual training at Ft. Knox, "and I am getting to know what being a tanker is all about. It's not easy but I think we can handle the situation."

SGT Silas Ford, a tank commander in Co. A, SGT Ford's tank driver, PFC William E. Chavis, was quick to agree. "We have been in the field many times running our own problems and we would somehow know what to expect. But this time its different. The aggressors are full of tricks. We have to stay on our toes."

"The troops put their best into this test. They were enthusiastic and security conscious," stated LTC Walton, who went on to praise the often forgotten support troops, personnel. They took good care of the troops," he very pleased with the concluded.

GI rides 50 miles for local hike-bike

Sp4 Angelos Taylor of Ft. Benning biked over 50 miles Saturday, April 20 at Flat Rock Park in the Hike-Bike for the Columbus Association for Retarded Citizens. The Hike-Bike was sponsored by the Junior Women's Club of Columbus.

Taylor, who is assigned to the 18th Repl. Det. works at the Adjutant General Casualty and Survivor Assistance Section.

Sp4 Taylor, who is 23 years old, has been bicycling since last year. He joined the service in February 1971, and has participated in a number of bicycle races since April 1973.

Last year at Auburn University, he placed 13th in an official race of 100 riders. He has also won several unofficial races, and has chalked up over 100 miles at a stretch. Last September he bicycled from the Tennessee-Alabama border to Columbus in 16 hours. He plans to enter the Hamilton Ridge Rally at Pine Mountain, Ga. in May.

He said the trail at Flat Rock Park was a rough one, and several bicyclers, including himself, had trouble with wheels coming apart and brakes wearing out on the steep hills

Taylor rode a 10-speed Czechoslovakian bicycle with narrow French tires and took along four spares in case of accidents.

3/7th gains experience on LR course

Throw the rope! Hold that board! Splash! A soldier goes into the water. These were some of the sounds heard as the men of the 3rd Bn. 7th Inf. 197th Inf. Bde. underwent the Leaders Reaction Course last week.

"The soldiers seem to be in a very high state of moral as they go through this course," commented SGT. Robert E. Grice of Co. B.

provides each soldier an opportunity to identify his physical and mental potentials while demonstrating leadership qualities in organizing and controlling small unit tasks and accomplishments," commented CPT Stephen C. Darrah, the Assistant S-3 of the 3rd Bn. 7th Inf. PFC. Vernon M. McKellar, Co. B, stated, "Going through this type of course is good training, it makes you think about what you are doing at all times. If you don't keep your mind on your job you will be unable to pass this course."

"It sure makes you keep your mind on what you are doing. I think every man in the brigade should get the chance to go through the course. It would give them a feeling of what a real challenge is like," said PFC Benard T. Lowery.

SGT. Grice concluded, "This is one of the best courses that I have ever taken. I am sure each soldier would get some very memorable experiences out of it. I think the Brigade should schedule this type of training more often."

MAJ. Edwin M. Frazier, the Officer in Charge of the Leaders Reaction Course, described the course as, "Designed to develop an individual's leadership ability, to look at himself and others in their abilities, then put into practice what they

3/7th plans May 2 Organization Day

Organization Day activities for the 3rd Bn., 7th Inf. (Cottonbalers), 197th Inf. Bde. are scheduled for May 2 at the unit's picnic area at 1st Division and Ivy Roads.

The soldiers of the 3/7th will be celebrating the organization of one of the Army's most historic units. The unit dates back to 1798. It was during the Battle of New Orleans in the War of 1812 that the unit received the nickname "Cottonbalers" when, outnumbered, they held their position against the British behind a breastwork of cottonbales.

competition for both individuals and companies of the 3/7th. Heading the list and perhaps the all time favorite will be the tug-of-war competition.

Other contests include a tire changing contest for company commanders and their drivers, a wheel barrow race, baseball and football throws and a potato sack race. The climax of the competition will be a reveille drill for the ISGs and command sergeant major.

The program will begin at 11 a.m. with a non-commissioned officer's review and a picnic lunch will follow at 11:30 a.m.

A number of exhibitions are planned, including a judo demonstration by CSM Jessie Cheung. The Ft. Benning Sky Diving Club will present a sky diving demonstration, the scout dog unit of TSB will perform a scout dog demonstration and the Infantry Chorus is scheduled to sing.

Awards will be presented to the winners of the events at 4 p.m.

Law Day celebrated this month

May 1 has been declared Law Day USA by joint resolution of Congress and Presidential proclamation.

"Young America, Lead the Way" is the slogan selected for this year's observance.

"Today's young men and women will be our leaders tomorrow," stated CPT James McGuone, Defense Counsel, Staff Judge Advocate Office. "Law Day is an effort to give young people a better understanding about law, so they may see for themselves the significant role that law plays in improving society."

The annual nationwide event is not a "lawyers' day," but rather an occasion for honoring the place of law in our lives, for learning how the law and the legal system operate, and for examining how the law can better serve the people and nation.

To this end, Law Day programs are scheduled for the Ft. Benning Dependent School System. The Faith School student body will observe a mock trial during an assembly on April 29. An essay contest based on the Law Day theme is being conducted. All Dependent School students are eligible to enter. On May 1 the essay contest winners will be featured at assembly programs at all dependent schools.

"We can be justly proud of America's youth for they are playing an ever active role in the continuing growth of our Nation," said MG Tarpley in a Law Day proclamation. "I am confident that our young citizens will carry out the responsibilities that will soon be thrust upon them with great credit to our country."

New traffic regs. coming

By May 1st, summer is not quite here but the new post traffic regulations will be.

The biggest change to the regulation is the implied consent provision. What this means is that driving privileges on post implies consent to a blood alcohol test if stopped by the Military Police for any violation committed while driving. Refusal to take the test means a mandatory six-month suspension of post driving privileges.

Commanders and supervisors are reminded that they must keep a card file indicating registration of POV's belonging to their assigned personnel.

Doing what needs to be done is the best way of overcoming a problem. Our country is now in a fuel shortage, so the U.S. Army and The School Brigade are doing what they can to Other new items in the regulation require headlights to be on whenever it is raining, foggy or at any time visibility is restricted. Also suspension systems on POV's must not be more than two inches above or below the manufacturers specifications.

Suspensions of post driving privileges will become more numerous and of longer duration. For example, suspensions may be given for repeated parking violations.

Individuals may obtain copies of the new traffic regulation at Vehicle Registrations Bldg. No. 83, or from your major unit activity.

Suggestions, support wanted

Officer's Club has new manager

Glenn Johnson, a veteran in club management, has assumed the post of General Manager of the Ft. Benning Officer's Open Mess. He brings a lot of experience with him from Ft. Meade, Md. and the Hqs., Eastern Region, U. S. Army Club Management Agency.

He is supervisory club management specialist at Ft. Meade serving as deputy to the Eastern Region commander, U. S. Army Club Management Agency since October 1973.

Prior to that he had served from 1969-1973 as Open Mess supervisor at Third U. S. Army Headquarters at Ft. McPherson, Ga. His experience also includes management of a private civilian club in Atlanta from June 1968-September 1969.

Johnson is a retired Chief Warrant Officer with experience in several club management positions. He managed the Ft. Jackson, S. C. officer's club from 1955-58 and managed the NCO Club at Scofield Barracks, Hawaii from 1958-64.

In 1961 he was assigned to Ft. Benning as a food service advisor to the 11th Air Assault. During that time, he was a member of the Ft. Benning Officers Club.

In 1965, he was transferred to Ft. McPherson, where he managed the officers club, and in January 1967 he retired from the service after more than 20 years service.

"I hope to restore a number of services that have recently been eliminated at the Ft. Benning Officers Club. We also hope to improve the quality of food and service at the lowest possible prices," Johnson said.

"I am familiar with the officers club at Ft. Benning, since I have had numerous dealings with the club in my previous jobs. I will make a concentrated effort to improve the facilities and service here."

He added, "I solicit comments and suggestions from the general membership, and request their support in making this operation a success."

"It is a tremendous challenge, but this club system has great potential, and I feel that with the help of LTC Robert K. Hartley, the Installation Club Manager, we can make a success of it."

Hartley plans to build the image of the officers club, and also hopes to eventually reduce the dues.

"The club is financially solvent," he said, "and we will be able to spend money to improve the service, decor, and atmosphere."

"We plan to do this by hiring an executive chef, and reinstating maitre d'hotel service in the officers club. We have already installed an elaborate salad bar, and we are providing nightly entertainment in the Fountain Room along without a la carte service."

"Eventually we will be able to have formal meals, with a full seven course and five wines. This will require the use of an executive chef, of course."

Johnson is a member of the Club Managers Association of America, the International Military Club Executives Association, and has attended numerous courses in club management, both military and civilian.

He was an honor graduate of Food Advisor School at Ft. Lee, Va., in 1962, and attended the American Hotel and Restaurant Course for Installation Club Managers along with LTC Hartley in 1972. He is also a 1966 graduate of the Club Managers Course in Open Mess Management, Ft. Lee, Va.

"He's happy and I know he's happy."

Pat Fundum's husband, Gene, works as a Personnel Specialist. He's just reenlisted, but that was no surprise to her.

"Actually, it wasn't something we had to discuss. He knows how I feel about the Army.

"I like it here. The shopping. The activities. The services. And the people we've met.

"But what's more important, I know he likes his job. He's proud of the way he's advanced. And he's always saying there's no way he could have moved up as fast as a civilian.

"Neither of us would say that the Army's right for everyone. But it's right for us."

"C" CO., 2/29th Inf.

"Yes. It's convenient. Like the Bowling Alley. It's inexpensive. I also like the staff that works at these places. They are very helpful. I feel that brochures should also be given to incoming personnel as a means of letting them know what is available and where these facilities are located."

CW2 JIMMY J. HODGETT
121st AVN. CO.

"Yes, I find the facilities available at Fort Benning adequate and enjoyable for the whole family as far as fishing and outing, I live on post and I find those facilities convenient for me. The parks are well stocked and maintained."

CPT JOHN RAYER
TSB

"In the last few months I have not used any recreational facilities here at Benning. I have in the past used them. I don't understand why more people don't use them. I feel that the facilities that are available are very adequate. The facilities that are available are being well maintained."

Do you use the recreational facilities offered by Fort Benning?

SP/4 LARRY HANKS
"C" CO., 1/29 Inf.

"Yes, I do. I have used just about all of them. After duty hours, I like to go down and participate in sports. I go to the recreational facilities as a means of physical training, and sometimes for just plain enjoyment. I do feel that these facilities could use more advertising. More people need to know what is available."

PFC RONALD M. BAPTISTE
"A" Co., 1/58 Inf.

"Yes, I do. When I'm not doing anything and I have a little change, I go to occupy my time. I feel that the recreational facilities available at Fort Benning are very inexpensive. The times of operation are also convenient for me because they are open after I get off work."

SSG DOUGLAS DAILEY
HHC, 4TH STUDENT BN.

"Yes, I'm just accustomed to using the one's on post. Why should I go off post when I have the facilities here. Like the Bowling Alley, the lanes used to be 45, but I would consider them inexpensive compared to the ones down town. I feel there should be more available for dependents to use. We could also use bus service for kids to these facilities that are available."

Letter to the editor

Dear Editor:

Well, once again the wizards of Recreational Services have shuffled and re-shuffled the hours of the Arts & Craft Centers, this latest change, being about the sixth different time in two years.

It isn't so bad trying to keep up with the hours of operation of the facilities, unless you are one of the unfortunate ones that miss out on the latest change and arrive at the Craft Shop only to discover that the doors are locked tight.

What is really sad is that the hours get progressively worse for the active duty soldier — instead of staggering them to suit HIS needs.

This latest change which opens the facilities during the week one hour later — at 2 o'clock — adds strength to the claim that the Craft Shops are primarily civilian oriented.

Those soldiers that once found it possible to utilize the various craft centers for an hour during lunch will now find it unlikely that their supervisor will extend their chow break to commence at 2 o'clock!

What puzzles me about the latest shuffle, is that the craft instructors arrive at their jobs at one o'clock anyway — so that they can get in an eight-hour day. What they occupy themselves with from one until two, is anyone's guess.

I think what is needed, is a survey among the major units on post, to see what hours the SOLDIER would like to have the Craft Centers open, rather than staggering the hours to suit the needs and whims of the civilian employees of the various facilities.

Sign us, SOLDIERS FROM TSB.

EIB test—"Toughest test in the Army"

"There were times I thought there was no way I could pass it," said Cpt. Jerry D. Jackson, Co., 11th Co., 1st Bn., TSB, in describing how he felt while taking the test for the Expert Infantryman Badge, one of the toughest tests in the US Army. CPT Jackson, along with two others, 2LT Melvin L. Johnson, XO of 10th Co., 1st Bn., TSB and PFC Daniel Vincent, Co. E, 1st Bn., 29th Inf., TSB, were awarded the coveted badges by BG William R. Richardson, Assistant Commandant of the Infantry School.

CPT Jackson spent many nights studying for the test as his duties as company commander kept him busy during the day. "I had a basic knowledge of everything on the test, but I still had to gather my thoughts, decide how to study, and then find the proper reference material."

The E.I.B. test is very

STAR student tours Benning

Richard H. White of Kendrick High School, the Muscogee County STAR student, was on a tour of Ft. Benning Monday, April 22, along with thirty-four other STAR students and STAR teachers. His STAR teacher is Mr. David Barfield.

There were a total of 22 students and 13 teachers on the tour, as well as tour guides from the Georgia Chamber of Commerce, which sponsors the STAR student program. The students were selected on the basis of their Scholastic Aptitude Test scores from each Georgia high school.

They competed for the title of district STAR

AUSA to sponsor drill meet

The Columbus-Phenix City-Ft. Benning Chapter of the Association of the United States Army will sponsor the 7th annual Southeast JROTC Rifle and Drill Meet to be held at Ft. Benning on May 4.

The rifle match competition will be at Roosevelt Range. Team and individual drill competition for men will be conducted at York Field. Gardner Field will be the site for women's drill competition. All events are scheduled to begin at 8 a.m.

Better than 800 JROTC cadets from throughout the Southeast will tour Ft. Benning on Friday and then begin competition the following day.

involved technically. In addition to lengthy written tests, performance tests are required in subjects such as First Aid, Weapons Proficiency, Military Intelligence, Demolitions and Mines, and Land Navigation. Also, the soldier must complete a 12-mile road march in under three hours, and pass the advanced physical training test with a minimum of 400 out of 500 possible points.

"While I was taking the E.I.B. Test, I got gradually more confident," said CPT

Johnson. "There were many others who would get unsure of themselves, and they dropped out. Some expected to get by on what they learned in Basic Training, and there was no way you could do that."

2LT Johnson liked the challenge of the test and the chance to be in the field. "Being an Airborne Ranger, I get tired of pushing papers around as an executive officer. This gives me a chance to get back into the field." He found land navigation to be the hardest part for him, but on the whole, the entire test wasn't too difficult. "There wasn't anything on the test we hadn't had before. Most were flunked for missing very minor points of a particular performance test. One thing was certain, above everything else, you had to remain alert and mentally awake."

Get involved

Good law enforcement needs our help

The first of May 1974 has been set aside by Presidential decree for national observance of Law. The purpose is to let the citizens of the United States take the time to rededicate themselves to the principles of Law. The laws have been set up to protect the people from those who take their personal desires above the rights of others.

We often take for granted the protection of the law or the individuals in the law enforcement agencies. Regardless of your personal feelings of the Law of the individuals who enforce it, we are the first to holler for help from the police.

Let us take time to reevaluate some of the responsibilities we as citizens have towards the law and for you potential law breakers let's take a look beyond the punishments dealt out when you are caught.

You as citizens of this country, or members of a community have many responsibilities; to uphold the law. You have the responsibility to report any infraction of the law to the proper authorities. Why? Because you may be saving a neighbor or someone from being ripped off. Yes, we hear that people don't want to get involved, but what better way than to set the example to feed the nation involved.

Your involvement may get you a good deed in return. The individual you save from being taken could be the same person that reports a law breaker to the police and saves you from being the victim in a crime. Far fetched? It could be but they say involvement breeds involvement.

You are the best judge of your character and your capabilities of accepting responsibility. If you feel that you are able to handle responsibility then start now without someone handing it to you and do your thing.

Now let's take a look at what you potential crime breakers face, the penalty under the law and the price you pay after the law is satisfied.

So you know this dude who never locks his locker and leaves his cash and valuables laying around. Easy rip off, Right? But did you think of the price you might have to pay if you get caught?

It's not just the reduction to E-1, the total forfeiture of pay, the dishonorable discharge or Bad Conduct discharge. It's what can happen after all that is over. The price also includes the embarrassment of your family, the possible loss of jobs and voting privileges.

That's right a DD or a BCD can keep you from holding many jobs because of what employers consider a high risk factor. You most likely will not be able to get a job that requires you to be bonded. Also you lose personal pride if your friends find out, and you bring unnecessary embarrassment on your family and loved ones.

Do yourself a favor and think before you try and get ahead by stealing.

NCOWC ELECTIONS

The Fort Benning Noncommissioned Officers' Wives' Club will hold their elections for the administrative board for 1974-75 on May 8, at the regular business meeting.

The nominees running are Mary Houseal for president; Doris Musgrove and Norma Goodwin for first vice-president; Eula Segrest, second vice-president; Martha Jackson, treasurer; and Rita Flagg, corresponding secretary. These offices and others that still need to be filled will be voted on. Anyone interested in running for an office, please call the head of the nominating committee, Doris Musgrove, 561-2927. Be sure to attend this meeting and assure the people of your choice are elected.

BOX SOCIAL

All NCOWC members are reminded of the Box Social being held April 27 at 7 p.m. in the Club house. The members are to bring a decorated box with dinner enough for two which will be auctioned off to the highest bidder.

Hostesses for the event are Wanda Villagomez, 689-2817 and Beverly Vines 687-8959.

LOCAL NCOA SPONSORS LUAU

The "Follow Me" chapter of the NCOA and the "Followettes" are sponsoring an afternoon family Luau on May 4, at the Elks Club. The cost is $4 for adults, $2 for teens from 10 to 14 and children 4-9 are $1. Tickets may be obtained from MSG C.E. Robke, 687-8645; SFC Bill Payton, 561-8183; Mrs. Vivian Fehr, 687-8278 or Mrs. June Brubaker, 687-8208.

The luau is open to all current members and prospective members of the NCOA.

GOURMET COOKING SEMINAR

The Columbus Chapter Spring Gourmet Cooking Seminar of the Epicurean Society of America will feature Chef Leo Buraghi of Brennan's Atlanta, sharing many of his recipes for Brennan's famous creole dishes and flaming desserts.

The Seminar, set for 10:30 a.m.-12:30 p.m., Monday, April 29, at the Gas Light Company of Columbus, 1421 4th Ave., will include a demonstration-lecture, followed by a tasting during which members will be given an opportunity to sample the specialty dishes for which New Orleans is noted.

The Seminar menu will feature Crepes Welch, a specialty being created especially for Epicurean Society members; Brennan's green salad, Seafood Creole and Brennan's famous flaming Bananas Foster.

Fee for the Seminar is $2.50 for Epicurean members and $5 for non-members. For reservations, contact Mary Shannon, Columbus Chapter Director, at 327-9655.

Pioneers to have command change

LTC Robert M. Brumback will relinquish his command of the 1st Bn., 29th Infantry (PIONEERS), TSB to LTC Kenneth S. Pond at a formal ceremony at York Field on April 30th.

LTC Brumback has served as the Executive Officer of the School Brigade, Assistant G-3, 25th Infantry Division in Vietnam, Military Operations Analyst for the Military Joint Chiefs of Staff in Washington, an instructor for the Ranger Department of USAIS, Deputy Commander of the 196th Inf Bde in Vietnam, and as a Ranger Company Commander.

LTC Brumback, is a graduate of Park College, Parkville, Missouri, and the Command and General Staff College, he has been awarded the legion of Merit, the Air Medal, Bronze Star with B device and two oak leaf clusters, and the Army Commendation Medal.

While under the command of LTC Brumback, the PIONEERS have earned an unprecedented record of outstanding School Support. In addition, the 1-29th dining facilities have won numerous awards for food excellence, and in late 1973, the PIONEERS were selected to form The Demonstration Platoon — a crack group of men from Company D that will travel the world teaching Infantry tactics to other soldiers.

LTC Brumback will leave the 1-29th Infantry with a record of accomplishments seldom equaled by any commander in so short a period of time, and he has epitomized the PIONEER slogan of WE LEAD THEWAY, during his command.

WHO WHAT WHERE

By JACKIE ROBKE
3rd BN 7th BN

The "Cottonbalers" held an Easter Egg Hunt April 13th for the dependent children of the battalion, sponsored by the NCO's of the battalion.

There were four age groups ranging from toddler to ten years of age. In each group one "golden egg" was hidden among the gaily colored eggs. These were the prize eggs; the children winning prizes were, starting with the youngest to the oldest, Wayne Kuputi, Lorraine Walton, Karen Reeves, and Christine Olmstead.

Refreshments were served and a good time was had by both young and old. A special thanks to Mrs. Charles Arnecke, the officer wives and NCO wives for lending a helping hand.

36th ENGINEER GROUP

The officers of the 43rd Engineer Battalion recently held their monthly social event sponsored by Co D and the Pioneer Association. This month's theme was "Hail and Farewell" dedicated to the officers departing and arriving. A buffet type dinner was served at a local restaurant with a brief ceremony following.

Plaques were given to three officers leaving the battalion; CPT Richard H. Beiter, CPT Gabriel S. Belmont, and 2LT Robert P. Royer. The wives were presented with momentos for their support and service during their husband's tour with the 43rd Engineers.

BBOD

The regular hail and farewell of Staff Group, Brigade and Battalion Operations Department, USAIS, was an unusually busy affair. Hailed were CPT Herb Williams and wife Suzy, MAJ Ward Hunter and wife Ginny and CPT Ken Overturf and wife Greta. Also, welcomed to Staff Group was James Matthew Bopp, new son of MAJ and Mrs. James Bopp.

The group said farewell to LTC and Mrs. Russell

Miller, MAJ Sidney Horton, who was honored with the Legion of Merit on the occasion of his pending retirement. Both he and his wife, Greta will be sorely missed, as will be MAJ and Mrs. San Santa Ana. CPT and Mrs. Bud Kohler were farewelled from Staff Group. CPT Kohler will be in BBOD Operations Division. LTC Douglas Boling and wife Constance were farewelled. LTC Boling will be chief of PSD in DPCA.

The group adjourned to the Supper Club for dancing and socializing.

197th names April Soldier of the Month

PFC Michael D. Williams, Co. D, 197th Spt. Bn., was recently named the 197th Inf. Bde. Soldier of the Month for April.

Williams, a native of Lubbock, Tex., works as a fire control instrument repairman in the armament section of the 197th Spt. Bn's maintenance company.

The 20-year-old's job involves the maintenance of the fire control systems on the tanks of the 2nd Bn., 69th Armor and Troop A, 15th Cav. "It is an interesting, job," Williams explained. "I've always been interesting in tinkering around. The systems I work on are part electronic and part mechanical, so I've learned quite a bit about both."

Williams was graduated from Monterey High School in Lubbock in 1971 and attended Texas Technical University prior to enlisting.

"Right now I'm not exactly sure if I'll go back to school when I leave the Army, or if I'll reenlist," Williams stated. "Working with equipment of this type is a definite challenge. Each day is different. You're always doing something new."

Let GAC put a jingle in your dufflebag.

The way prices are going right now—you may need more money than you thought you'd need. GAC wants to lend you all the money you'll need to help beat prices and to buy the bargains you want before they're gone. You don't have to make a lot to borrow a lot at GAC. The size of your loan depends on many things: the bills you have or have had. What you own or want to buy. The kind of work you do. And, because you wear a uniform, the kind of work you do rates very high with GAC. A steady income makes it easier for you to get a loan. But, more important, GAC wants to serve you because you serve your country.

Whatever your needs, whatever the reason, let GAC put a jingle in your dufflebag.

Ripoffs

Beyond the gates, they're waiting

Story by Bruce Andrea
Art by Bill Dolan

It's payday — It's Friday — you've earned a chance to sip a few, meet the girls, but some "goodies" you couldn't afford last time and just unwind. Where you go depends on what you're looking for.

Beyond the gates of Ft. Benning, among the majority of okay people in mainly reputable stores, bars, theaters and car lots, are some keen-eyed hustlers just waiting to separate you from your hard-earned money. And except for the Provost Marshal occasionally placing a business off-limits, no one is going to tell you which places to frequent.

One professional to another

As a professional soldier don't be outclassed by another "pro" — the prostitute. Though in some circles labeled as a victimless crime, prostitution is strictly another fast-buck racket. Don't kid yourself that play-for-pay girls are in business for anything else. They can and they will set you up to be rolled or bilked. One lady-of-the-evening admits, "It's the guy who treats you nice who gets rolled quicker than the rest 'cause I figure he's weak." Fraudulent offers of feminine companionship are numerous. It could be a ride for you to a deserted place where force is used to take your money.

Another technique involves a newly acquired friend who insists that both he and the victim count the "fish's" money before entering a place of questionable repute, in order that the soldier will have a witness in the event someone steals his money. As added protection, the friend may persuade the "mark" to place the money in an envelope which the owner can conceal on his person. Of course, while the friend is counting the money and placing it in the envelope, a sleight of hand substitutes a wad of newspaper for the money. A more direct approach results in the con artist taking off at a dead run with the money as soon as he has it in his hands.

Neon signs emit a bouncy message, "Topless Dancers," "Exotic Dancers" and "All-Girl Entertainment." This is where you will find many of the younger soldiers. The large volume of GI trade in bars and night clubs goes to those not requiring a cover charge or coat and tie, but offering clean, neat surroundings and live entertainment. Most are reputable but as one dancer put it, "The only reason any of us dance topless is so guys buy more beer and try to get the girl to sit with them so they can buy her a drink."

The lower class bars have few regular GI customers. If a GI is smart he'll stay out of clip joints where the waitresses are there to con him into money for the juke box, to play the pin ball machines or to buy them drinks.

Aces up

The humorous portrait of a gambler with cards up his sleeve and aces sticking out of his hat has a real life-counterpart. The gambler who cheats at cards may be a member of the Armed Forces but is more often a civilian. His sole support is derived from crooked gambling. Some have been discovered unlawfully dressed in military uniform gambling in barracks or in service men's club on military installations.

Using extra decks of cards, marked cards, loaded or weighted dice, magnets and "shiners" the crooked gambler will take your money with ease.

Still another category of gyp artist is the carnival huckster who shows up in significant numbers just off post. His game may change slightly from year to year, or take on new trimmings, but its basic purpose remains the same — to make as much money as possible in the short time available. With such innocent titles as football, cat throw, milk bottle throw, and dish games, capitalizing on the strong appeal of something for nothing mouthed by a fast-talking huckster, there is little difficulty finding enough suckers.

Some of the games are simple such as the old milk bottle game. The object of this game is to knock a pyramid of bottles off a stand with two balls. However, the bottles are weighted differently. To produce a winner, all the operator has to do is place the light bottles on the bottom and the heavy ones on the top. After a little encouragement with lesser prizes — and perhaps a side bet — the fleecing begins. The heavy bottles are now placed on the bottom and the light bottles end up on the top.

The latest con-game

Beware of the anonymous telephone caller who identifies himself as a bank auditor and states he's trying to straighten out your account.

He's the most up-to-date version of a flim-flam artist.

First, he'll ask about the amount you have in your account. Then he'll get you to identify your accounts and where you bank.

Eventually he'll get around to asking you to draw out your cash so he can close the account and start over in a correct manner. His object: to get you to turn over your cash to him. When you do, you've been flim-flammed.

Don't be a sucker. Bank auditors don't call customers and inquire about accounts. If you get such a call, get in touch with your bank. Or call the law.

Unscrupulous businessmen

Unscrupulous businessmen have always found the serviceman an easy mark. They have become experts at devising impressive letters of indebtedness to commanding officers of individuals who balk at payment of high interest rates and padded contracts. Their experience has shown that many servicemen will pay unwarranted debts in order to avoid the embarrassment provoked by those debt-complaining letters.

Instances of hidden fees being added to the purchase price of automobiles and motorcycles are common. Often, the low prices quoted in flashy advertisements are nothing more than "come-ons" and when the time for final settlement arrives, the price is substantially higher. These additional charges may emerge under any number of descriptions — labor, dealer's and handling charges, official charges, carrying charges, insurance and credit charges.

Automobile sales is one of the largest sources of complaints. Other questionable practices are selling rebuilt cars as new or "demonstrators," encouraging buyers to sign blank contracts in order to "expedite the transaction," turning back speedometers and obtaining loans for buyers which as much as triple the cost of the car as listed in the Market Guide.

Ever been offered a 2-carat diamond ring for 100 dollars? Sounds like a real bargain. Chances are the diamond is fake or the ring is stolen property. Whichever, you as the buyer are a loser. Always be suspicious of "bargains" and control that urge to get something for nothing.

From the B-girl and con man to the unscrupulous loan shark and unethical businessman, soldiers are repeatedly finding themselves on the losing end of deals. You often hear stories about other servicemen being victimized by these swindlers, but are confident that it will never happen to you. Don't kid yourself! We have all been had at one time or another. Know what you are doing, seek informed advice and use your good common sense.

The atmosphere around Ft. Benning assists opportunists who are bent on promoting the soldier's dollar. They know that soldiers are going to spend a lot of money, especially around payday. They know the soldier sometimes isn't very cautious about how he spends his money and he's going to be easy to get drunk. Consequently, he'll be easy to beat out of his money.

Have a good time but don't be a sucker

It's expected that soldiers are going to have a good time. And that's great. But be selective where you go and with whom.

If a place is off-limits to soldiers, it's not because the Army doesn't want you to have fun; it's because the place has a history of doing you in, violating health standards or practicing racial discrimination. Whatever the case, you stand to be the loser.

Jackie Davis knows that safety in the water is important and on behalf of the 17th Inf Bde., she would like to remind everyone to swim with a buddy. (Photo By C. B. Hoover)

Soldiers will be warned

To prevent unnecessary hardships on enlisted personnel scheduled to lose flight status, The Military Personnel Center has issued a policy statement requiring that to such personnel receive 120 days advance notice. Enlisted personnel or crewmember or noncrewmember flying status prior to their involuntary removal from flight duty are involved in the loss of entitlements. According to a MILPERCEN message, the 120-day notice policy is designed to insure that "maximum consideration and advanced planning prevail" in all situations.

where enlisted personnel may involuntarily lose flight pay. The message emphasized that the notification is critical in the Center's efforts to lower inequities and to allow enlisted personnel receiving flight pay sufficient time to make adjustments.

Tips for turnpike travel

HQ TRADOC, Ft. Monroe, Va. — Shortly after WW II when super highway construction in the US was stepped up, the term "highway hypnosis" was coined. This phenomena may occur in daylight, but it most frequently occurs at night and results directly from driver weariness. The brain misinterprets images picked up by the eyes. The only tried and true method to successfully combat highway hypnosis and associated fatigue is REST.

Travel on turnpikes is much safer than on rural roads. Recent National Safety Council figures indicate that over 45,000,000 miles are traveled between fatalities over turnpikes whereas only 15,000,000 miles are traveled between fatalities over rural routes.

Here are some driving hints for expressway safety:

—Keep a full gas tank, check the tires, study the map before you start and be sure you know your correct exit.

—Upon entering an expressway, speed up in the acceleration lane so you can match the speed of through traffic and blend right in.

—Don't stop and never back up. If you miss your exit, go to the next one.

—When passing, use your turn signals.

—Read the signs; they are few, but important.

—Never slow down drastically in the traffic lane.

—When leaving the expressway, slow down in the deceleration lane to ramp speed.

Road phantoms occur frequently in this era of super-roads so before you start seeing phantoms, stop and rest. Tomorrow is another day.

CABINET MAKING CLASS

A class in cabinet making is scheduled to begin May 14 and end June 13. Classes will be conducted on Tuesday and Thursday evenings from 6-10 p.m. in Craft Shop No. 7, located in Bldg. 334, Main Post. Registration limited. Pre-registration will be held May 1-11 in the Arts and Craft Center located in Bldg. 2783, Main Post. For more information call 545-2342.

MAC AUTHORIZATION

Army sponsored travelers (including dependents) must have a MAC Transportation Authorization (MTA) in their possession when reporting to the aerial port of embarkation for overseas flights. This also applies to those individuals port called to commercial terminals. The Installation Clearance Record should contain the requirement for personnel to clear Post Transportation. The Post Transportation Office must enter the MTA number on the clearance form. Personnel that arrive at the Transportation Office by 8 a.m. will receive expedited service in issuance of MTA.

EXPECTANT PARENTS COURSE

An Expectant Parents Course, for retired and active duty personnel and their wives, will begin Tuesday, May 7, in the second floor conference room in Martin Army Hospital. The course consists of four classes. The classes will be held each Tuesday from 7-9 p.m. Interested prospective parents may register for the course by calling the Army Health Nursing Service at 545-5431 or 545-4041.

OCCUPANTS OF FAMILY QUARTERS

Complaints are being made that pets, owned by occupants of family housing, are being allowed to roam the housing areas resulting in the destruction of garbage bags that have been placed out for pickup. Trash is being scattered in the housing areas and sanitation is becoming an increasing problem. Ft. Benning Regulations states that owners of pets are responsible for preventing their pets from becoming a public nuisance. Pets that are declared a nuisance will be removed from the Ft. Benning Reservation upon direction of the post Commander.

AIRLINES FARE FOR MILITARY PERSONNEL ON LEAVE

Effective May 1, all military leave travel will be at a fare level of 75 per cent of the Jet Coach or Standard Class and will require a seat reservation at all times. The present Military Standby Fare at one-half fare will be discontinued. Members should check rules of all airlines they plan to use prior to travel. The change in fare structure does not alter the rules as to eligibility. The member traveling on leave must present a valid ID card and sign a statement that travel is at member's expense while on authorized leave. The reduced fares may not be used while in a duty status.

RETIREMENT PHYSICAL EXAMINATION

Service members are reminded that physical examinations for the purpose of retirement should be completed 90 days prior to scheduled retirement date. To insure completion of this action, the retirement physical should be started 180 days prior to requested retirement date. For more information call 545-5766.

OT clinics --

One of the most complete right here

By Cpt Paul Ellsworth

The Occupational Therapy Clinic at Martin Army Hospital is organized and functions under expanded concepts which places it among the most modern and complete OT clinics in the Army.

"Our function is to restore, reinforce and enhance performance abilities of all our patients," states CPT Paul D. Ellsworth, Chief of Occupational Therapy at MAH.

Reference to occupation in the title is in the context of man's goal-directed use of time, energy, interest and attention. It's fundamental concern is the development and maintenance of the capacity throughout the life span, to perform with satisfaction to self and others those tasks and roles essential to productive living and to the mastery of self and the environment.

Treating the youngest age group of patients is the director of the Perceptual Motor Dysfunction program and various other pediatric services, CPT Judith S. Riggan, who works with pre-school age to adolescent children. Her services include appraisal of the child's development, treatment of cerebral palsy children, and the evaluation, treatment and school consultation for dependent children with specific learning disabilities who are presently enrolled in the Ft Benning and Muscogee County School Systems. Working with over seventy children in the learning disabilities program, CPT Riggan explains, "Although this treatment is offered to some degree by other Army installations, the comprehensiveness of the MAH program is outstanding."

Occupational therapist CPT James Boyd assists patient Mrs. Lois Earls in exercise activity as part of stroke rehabilitation program.

The therapist asserts that success is achieved when the child not only acquires basic learning skills, but can satisfactorily apply those skills in daily living. Case histories of CPT Riggan's patients show striking examples of students who had been failing but now perform average and above average work. The therapy is carefully coordinated between the parent, teacher and the therapist to accomplish this.

A distinctive service of the OT Clinic is the Physical Disabilities Program, supervised by CPT James R. Bond, who offers individual therapy and coordinates staff members who treat patients in the clinic, on the wards and in the patient's home. Patients with physical injuries to hands, arms, head and shoulders are treated by utilizing therapeutic activities to increase strength, range of motion and coordination. The clinic serves an average of 40 patients in this category weekly.

One of the most active areas of the section is the ward treatment program. A staff member makes twice daily visits to patients in traction, confined to bedrest or in isolation wards, and to pediatric patients, giving supportive treatment to some twenty five patients daily in this program.

A new service of the section is the cardiac and stroke rehabilitation program. The aims of these programs are to avoid the weakening effects of long hours of bedrest required for these patients and to promote a positive, hopeful and realistic emotional outlook. Outpatient treatment includes a home exercise program, activities of daily living training, vocational assessment and counseling activities to include work simplification techniques.

The rehabilitation of upper extremities amputees is supervised directly by the clinic supervisor. Patients are treated for approximately two months, based on healing time and time of adjustment to the artificial arm or hand, before function is regained.

Of great value to the neuropsychiatric patients of the hospital are the clinic's Daily Living Skills seminars. Daily two hour classes are conducted by CPT Ellsworth covering all aspects of emotional disorders, concepts of self assessment, communication skills, sex identification and reality testing. CLINIC USES "TREAT THE WHOLE MAN" CONCEPT.

CPT Ellsworth states that, unlike the other members of the health profession who deal primarily with the treatment of specific ills, his clinic places its primary emphasis on the health components of each patient and stresses the concept of treating "the whole man".

"For example, if we are dealing with a paraplegic patient who has lost the use of both his legs, we are concerned with his ability to effectively adapt to his environment in a total way. We promote better living skills such as teaching him how to dress himself and how to use a wheel chair. We attempt further to promote a healthy psychological adjustment within the scope of his disability."

Occupational therapy assistant SP4 Jesse Isaac helps this 5 year old child improve developmental skills.

Told he'd never walk Aberle back in the running

SSG Dale Aberle has literally run for his life — with stunning success — in recent years.

Told that he might never again walk normally following a combat injury in Vietnam in 1969, Aberle, of the 1st Bn., 29th Inf., (PIONEERS) TSB, ignored the warning and immediately began running — however painfully — until his legs were perfectly conditioned to long distance jaunts.

Since then he has become an expert and champion at the growing sport of orienteering — land navigation over extended distances for competitive elapsed time.

He swept to victory in the first two Army Orienteering Championships and also won the North American Orienteering Championship in Athens, Ohio in 1972.

Scuba Club Notes

Bill Orr was elected President of the Ft. Benning SCUBA Club during the April monthly meeting.

The club also announced that a SCUBA course of instruction will begin on May 15. The cost will be Aberle has also extended his expertise in the orienteering field to domestic action. At Camp Tukabatchee near Montgomery, Alabama, he supervised the layout and construction of the first orienteering course ever to be built at a U. S. Boy Scout camp. He has also worked on a similar project at Central High School in Phenix City and in other local areas.

But for the last two years, Aberle has dropped out of competitive orienteering. "I really haven't had much time to keep up with my orienteering," said Aberle. "I've gotten married since my last competition and now I'm about to become a father," he beamed. "Also, since joining the PIONEERS, I've had to devote a lot of time to my new job."

Aberle, formerly with the 1/58th Patriots, is now

a reenlistment counselor for Co. C (Airborne-Ranger) of the 1-29th Inf. TSB. "I really enjoy working with people," stated Aberle, "and I like telling the men in my unit about the benefits they can receive by reenlisting, either for their present duty assignment, or another station in the U. S."

Now that Aberle has settled down in his new job, he has his sights set on competitive orienteering once more. "I've never quit running altogether," Aberle stated, "because I like to stay in shape." "But things are settling down at home and on the job," he continued, "so I'm going to look into running in the next Army Orienteering Championship."

With only a few months until the next Army meet, Aberle will have his work cut out for him, preparing for the rigorous sport. But if in fact, he does make it to the next Army Orienteering meet, it won't be long before the word is out — Aberle is back!

PROVEN PERFORMANCE HOW IT WORKS

- Genuine tri-flow design with helm-holtz tuning chamber
- High noise attenuation and large volume transfer chambers
- Patent pending design permits high engine speed exhaust gases to bleed through perforations in tuning chamber passage tube.
- Back pressure reduced by "cunala" effect of high velocity exhaust in outlet tube, creating vacuum in tuning chamber.

Gummidge match between Infantry and Artillery

The PIONEERS from the 1st Bn, 29th Inf., TSB have issued a serious challenge to members of the 2/10th FA, 197th Inf. Bde., and that challenge has been accepted.

Rather than having a gunnery competition, as one would assume from the units involved, the PIONEERS have invited the 2/10 to participate in the second recorded gummidge match in U. S. history.

And what exactly is gummidge? Well, the game is similar to football, hockey, lacrosse and soccer. The major difference is that noone knows much at all about the game, so much is ad-libbed.

On each team, there are 13 players — eight "pules", similar to forwards or linemen, four "storneys," similar to backs in football, and one "reek" who is similar to a goalie in hockey.

The game is played on a 200-yard field, appropriately known as a gummidge field, which is divided in half by an area known as the middleground, and has two "garfs" (goals).

The game is played with a "slurf", which is a leather ball approximately the size of a cantaloupe and filled with any material that will give it a weight of four to five pounds. In the olden days, the ball was made of a pig bladder stuffed with chicken fat.

The "slurf box" is a box 4x3x3 placed at the center of the field upon which the slurf sits to start the game. Two pules go at the slurf with their "rifts" (sticks with playing nets on the end) and face off much as in hockey.

The "reche" is the official, whose job it is to keep order and see that all rules are obeyed. He is equipped with a six-foot hollow aluminum pipe called a "pleche" with which he enforces the rules by slamming an infractor on the knees.

A gummidge match begins with a face-off at the slurf box, after which the team in possession of the slurf may charge the foe's goals with the slurf in their rifts. Passing may take place between storneys and pules until a shot is made on the goal, which may or may not be stopped by the reek.

When a goal is scored, the players may then take a break for some refreshments. The game is timed, and ends after four "fenwicks", or whenever everyone gets good and ready to quit.

Injuries are frequent in a gummidge match, mostly in the knees as a result of a rule enforcement by the reche. There is also a rash of morning sickness at gummidge matches, and often disorder breaks out when a storney calls an opposing pule a dirty word.

After each match there is the "gummidge banquet", a social event which features mirth and merriment. In fact, the gummidge banquet takes place whether the match itself does or not.

Penalties in gummidge are plentiful, primarily because the players have little else to do. One of the punishments handed out by the reches is blowing in an offender's ear for one second with the pleches while he sits on the slurf box and is jeered by all the other players.

Another penalty meted out is one which has a player and the opposing reek strike the offender on any part of his anatomy for roughing him at the goal.

Sir Cedrick will travel from Virginia to present the winner of the match with the Stanton Cup. He will bring with him, two leches to officiate the match.

Spectators are encouraged to cheer for the team of their choice and to bombard the opposing team with water-balloons at their discretion.

The match between the King and Queen of battle — the PIONEERS and the 2/10 should prove to be exciting and fun for everyone. A pre-game parade will begin at the polo field near Zuckerman and Yeager Streets, followed by the match itself, which commences at 1:00 in the afternoon on April 27th. Why not come out to the polo field and witness the first gummidge match ever at Ft. Benning.

WITH THIS BUYOFFER AD GOOD THRU APRIL 23rd

Some members are having a little difficulty adjusting to the new hours of operation for various facilities of the Rod and Gun Club. Here they are again. The pro shop is closed all day Monday, open from 11 a.m. until 6 p.m. Tuesday through Friday and from 6 a.m. until 4 p.m. Saturday and Sunday. The Snack Bar is closed all day Monday, open from 11 a.m. until 1 p.m. on Tuesday through Friday and closed on Saturday and Sunday. The bar is open from 11 a.m. until 9 p.m. each day of the week. All facilities of the club will close for inventory on the first workday of each month.

After talking a bit with Roy Johnston, chief of the Post Fish and Game Unit I have a much better idea as to why the price of the permit to fish in the catfish ponds was set so high. According to Johnston, there are approximately 60 acres of water in the two ponds. Biologists recommend that the fish be fed special food at a rate of 25 pounds of food per acre per day. The Fish and Game unit has cut this figure down. They feed about one-third of this amount each day. They feed at the ponds for 35 weeks of each year. That gets to be a pretty heavy price with the food running at about $230 per ton. I can see where quite a few permits will have to be sold before these two ponds reach a break even point.

Johnston also pointed out that an annual fee of $10 is very reasonable when you consider the price a fisherman has to pay to fish in ponds that are privately owned. The going price at most of the privately owned ponds is based on the catch the fisherman intends to take home. The going rate is 75 cents a pound. When you consider the size of the fish in Victory and Twilight Ponds its easy to visualize a days catch going over the cost of the annual fee just about each time a fisherman goes fishing.

River Fishing

While I was talking with Johnston he mentioned that he had a query concerning the need for a post fishing permit while fishing in the Chattahoochee River. Since I had had a couple queries on the subject myself I checked it out with the Hunting and Fishing Enforcement Section of the Provost Marshal Office. According to a member of that section a permit is needed if you are fishing from the through the reservation providing they are not connected to a bank that is a part of the reservation. If you were in a boat and the boat was tied to the bank or on a wharf fastened to reservation property you would need a post permit. If you are in a boat floating free in the river you don't need a post permit.

April Fishing Derby

More fishermen are getting out and bigger fish are being caught at the post ponds. The leading catches this month are by far the largest entered in the club fishing derby this year.

SSG. Jesse Waugh, Hq. Comd. leads the bass contest with a 7-pound, 8-ounce entry he took from Snellings Pond. He was using a flitail plastic worm.

CWO Gordon Snead (ret.) Smiths Station leads the bream contest with a 1-pound, 2-ounce catch he made at Kings Pond. Snead was using crickets for bait.

ISG John Zebreski (ret.) 4005 Bowman Street, registered a 16-point, 12-ounce catfish to lead the catfish contest. Zebreski was using beef for bait at Twilight Pond.

TSB girls stand undefeated

If the Atlanta Braves could score runs like TSB girls softball team, they'd have the pennant wrapped up by mid-July. The TSB girls crushed their first two opponents 21-4 and 15-3 respectively. Those victories, coupled with a forfeit win in their opening game, means a spotless 3-0 record and puts them at the top of the league standings.

The first unfortunates to happen in front of TSB's booming bats was the Phenix City ladies team. Phenix City actually jumped to a 4-2 first inning lead, but they couldn't put a run across for the rest of the game. TSB, however, could do no wrong. They scored three runs in the second to take a 5-4 lead, and exploded for 11 runs in the fourth inning, highlighted by a two run home by Constance Pierce that carried nearly 300 feet.

TSB powered 4 home runs, three by Pierce who had 5 runs batted in, and one by Pat Cagle who had a phenomenal 10 RBIs in a 5 for 5 performance. The winning pitcher was Constance Pierce who gave up only 3 Phenix City hits.

To prove it was no fluke, the girls came back two nights later and bombed CB&T 15-3. There wasn't a home run hit, but TSB played a balanced, controlled offensive game and had several sparkling defensive plays to choke off CB&T rallies.

In the fifth inning, CB&T had the bases loaded with one out. The CB&T hitter lofted a short fly into center field that looked like a sure hit that would score two runs. However, center fielder Yvonne Font came charging in from deep center, caught the ball on a dead run, and fired it to the second baseman to catch the runner off base for an inning ending double play. Pinky Houser was winning pitcher, giving up 6 hits and 3 runs, only one earned run, and striking out three.

TSB girls in two games have blasted out 36 hits, 36 runs, 2 triples, 2 doubles, 4 home runs and a team batting average of .461. With vital statistics like those, the TSB girls team is obviously in pretty good shape.

YAC baseball suffering lack of participation

Three strikes and you're out! Old Father Time has just called strike one on the Youth Activities baseball program.

Following three weeks of registration it appears that the program will flounder and suffer delay due to a lack of participants.

The ambitious plans of Youth Activities call for league competition in four age categories. To date, not enough boys have signed up to form one league, much less four.

It is very important that registration be done early. Before the season can begin the boys must go through try-outs and then be drafted by team coaches. This procedure will assure that talent is evenly distributed.

Perhaps the registration fee has turned people off or at least made them hesitate to sign up. Sad fact of life — the days of something for nothing are gone. There's an overall scarcity of funds. Ask any organization or agency on post. Then too — having to put out a few dollars certainly has not hurt the Little League programs in civilian communities.

Youth Activities will provide uniforms, baseballs, bats, game officials and awards. The total cost is slightly staggering. Again, funds are simply not available to cover the complete cost.

Registration will continue until May 15 but don't wait until the last moment to do so. Register early, so this year's program can start on time with well-balanced teams providing exciting times for the children.

Parents may register their child at the Youth

Activities office in Building 394 (Doughboy Stadium). For further information call 545-1902/3850.

Howdy, Bub. Things ain't changed much since last week, but there is a few things you should be knowing about.

They got a new edition of the Patient Medical Advisor out at the post over at the printin' plant, and them folks 'spect that the printin' process will be done this month. You folks with the old edition, get ready to shuck that copy, 'cause they added two new treatments for you so's you won't have to come out some cold nite for an upset stomach or a minor case of Poison Ivy.

Speakin' of poison, I sure hope you are akeepin' your cold pak medicines up outa reach of them younguns. You know how you was when you as a lad, always acimbin' and areachin' for things that your daddy had to swat you for; I sure remember.

Billy Bob was in to see me last week, said he had a raging case of the whim-whams. Well sir, Billy Bob and I really had to go around. I personally, gave him his'n copy of the Patient Medical Advisor.

I had to show him in my desk copy right there on page 16 and 17 was the recommended treatment for his ole whim-whams and I told him to keep outa my office and quit taking up other sick people's time for something he coulda treated himself for.

Billy Bob got his back up right away, asayin' it was his right to be treated whenever he thought he needed it. I allowed that was a pure fact, but I also pointed out to him the full waiting room of folks that really had something wrong with themselves. Billy Bob calmed down when he seen that all these folks looked a lot sicker than he felt. He left after we made a date to get together for some checkers. 'Ole Billy Bob's still looking for his first win over me.

Now don't you folks make the same kinda mistake 'ole Billy Bob made, 'iften there is somethin' that you can take care of yourselves at home, well by the Almighty, get to doin' it. Howsomer, 'iften, you got something that's really botherin' you and you don't show what to do, well sir, you jump in your flivver and have your 'ole man drive you to see me, so's I can get your proper treatment and not have you to miss that Sunday go-to-meetin' picnic. All us doctorin' folks are here to take care of you when you ain't got the sap to take care of yourselves.

Well, listen, Bub, I got to get to trottin', Billy Bob just called and he's on his way over here for that checker game I promised him. Y'know, that 'ole Billy Bob will never learn his lesson, he's a natural born loser. Good health to you and yours.

Interservice shoot slated

Fort Benning will be the setting for drama in marksmanship April 28 as each of the four service's select shooting teams converge here for the 14th Annual Interservice International Shooting Championships.

Sponsored by the United States Army Forces Command, the 50-match shooting marathon will see the top Air Force, Navy, Marine, and Army marksmen square off for top laurels.

The nation's best marksmen from all the services will be pitting their skills against each other for recognition in rifle, pistol and running target categories and their various divisions.

The six day tournament will feature individual competition in English (Prone) Match, Smallbore Rifle, both position and free, Standard Rifle, Air Rifle, 300 Meter Free Rifle, Army Rifle, Running Target, Free Pistol, Rapid Fire Pistol, Air Pistol, Center Fire Pistol and Standard Pistol. Team matches will also be held.

Tourney officials estimated that over 10 military marksmen would compete in the highly contested matches. Already there are 48 rifle, 46 pistol and 13 running target competitors entered.

Preceding the matches, smallbore rifle shooters may compete in a two day Champion of Champions International Outdoor Position Rifle tourney April 27 and 28. Handgunners may compete in a Five Gun International Pistol tourney. Both of these tournaments serve as preparation for the prestigious Interservice International Championships.

In addition, shotgunners will be competing in the Zone Four NRA Clay Pigeon Championship.

Israeli B'way Group Due Here

An Israeli Broadway group will perform a light musical revue at Marshall Auditorium, Fort Benning, at 8 p.m. on May 1 and 2.

The revue, which is free, is entitled "To Live Another Summer, To Pass Another Winter," and has been performed at other military installations and civilian communities. Staged by Hanan Goldblatt and musically arranged by David Krivoshei, the musical has already appeared in more than 100 communities and New York night clubs. The original group performed at the Helen Hayes Theater on Broadway.

The program of songs and dances ranges from the traditional Chassidic all the way to Israeli rock. It traces the history of Israel from the time of Noah up until now.

Asst Cmdt Sweeps Finals

Once William Richardson was a "bird" colonel. Now he wears the star of brigadier general. But he hasn't forgotten about "birds," birdies or if you must, shuttlelocks, as he swept to the post championship in badminton.

Richardson bested Loyd Hutchinson in the finals of singles competition in the USAIC Badminton Tourney. Richardson then teamed with Stephen Darrah to win the doubles competition from the team of Loyd Hutchinson and Nikki McCarthy.

Stephen Darrah changed sports but not his winning style as he was declared singles champion in squash defeating Gruffrey Prosch in the finals.

"Inadequate communication creates 'gaps'"

Inadequate communication creates "gaps" between individuals and between groups, sets up invisible walls between them and effects a more or less fragmented society. The establishment of effective communications is the most dependable way to close these "gaps" and to strengthen human relations at all levels of our society.

To effectively communicate ideas to listeners, a speaker must know thoroughly the facts he would present and he should express them in the most understandable way. Communication involves not only an exchange of thoughts but also an exchange of feelings. To be a good listener one needs to be aware of the emotions of the speaker, and the effective speaker must be alert to recognize the feeling response of his listeners to his words so that he can proceed accordingly with his speech.

The listener may have to work harder to pick up the speaker's message if the latter is excited, afraid, angry or otherwise emotionally overwrought.

Communication procedure usually includes six messages, anyone of which can be the basis of misunderstanding, i.e., what you MEAN TO SAY, what you ACTUALLY SAY, what the other person HEARS, what the other person THINKS HE HEARS, what the other person REPLIES and what you THINK HIS REPLY IS. Communication may deteriorate or break down entirely during any one of these steps.

Our inability to communicate properly is due partly to our frame of reference which gives us personal perceptions of ourselves and situations that others do not share. We cannot communicate with others unless we share a common frame of reference. Psychological distances also restrict the easy flow of communication. Typical of these are management - labor, college administration-student, and parent-child relations.

The failure to recognize semantic problems can also hamper the would be communicator. For instance, the use of a word such as fast that has at least four different meanings without identifying the meaning at hand, can retard communication.

The first step for us to take in becoming more adept in communication is to become more sensitive to others. Focus on the person with whom you are attempting to communicate. Recognize his needs, rights, and feelings as a human being and give him your individual attention. Listeners must pay attention not only to what is spoken but also to how it is said if they are to receive the full import of the messages directed to them.

Ten commandments of good communication are: focus on behavior rather than the person; focus on observations rather than inferences; focus on descriptions rather than judgments; focus on descriptions of behavior in terms of "more" or "less" rather than "either/or"; focus on behavior related to a specific situation rather than behavior in the abstract; focus on sharing ideas and information rather than giving advice; focus on exploring alternatives; focus on the "context" that exists between persons in any significant relationship; focus on the amount of information that the person receiving it can use, rather than the amount you have and might like to give; focus on what is said rather than why it is said.

Job market was bad; Army offers work in field

"The job market was just awful, so we decided to join the Army so we could work in our field." PFC Sharon R. Kogel was explaining why she and her best friend, PFC Theora L. Langhehn, decided after graduating college to join the U.S. Army. Now they are the first members of the Women's Army Corps to work in the Athletic's and Recreation Office of TSB.

Actually, they didn't enter the Army directly out of college. From September to December 1973 they were the first two women in the U. S. and Canada to be part of construction crews for silo building. For those who are unfamiliar with silos, they are tall round buildings used to store corn and other farm products. "It was interesting," said PFC Langhehn. "We got to travel quite a bit, and it was something different to do." PFC Kogel graduated with a B. S. Degree in Physical Education from South Dakota State University. She's been an athlete all her life.

"In high school I ran the 70 yard low hurdles in 9.9, which at the time was one tenth of a second off the national record. I would have gone to the junior olympics, but I broke my leg sliding into home plate playing softball," she said. In 1972 she went with her college girls team to the national tournament after beating Southwest Missouri State to win the midwest regional. That same year she played catcher on the South Dakota State girls fast pitch softball team and they went to the College World Series where they won 3d place. She also competed in inter-collegiate field hockey, volleyball and track.

PFC Langhehn received her B. A. Degree in Physical Education from Huron College, Huron South Dakota. She ran track in high school. "I competed in long distance events, and back then long distance meant the 440 yard dash, because girls weren't allowed to run any further." She coached basketball and track to junior high school students before teaming with PFC Kogel to join the Army on the buddy system.

SSG Melvin E. Lonas, TSB Athletic's & Recreation NCO says of his new troops "they've got a lot of enthusiasm towards their work. Right now they're on OJT as Physical Activities Specialists."

One question they are always asked is "why did you join the Army?" PFC Kogel summed it up by saying "we wanted to work in what we're trained to do, and we can do it in the Army."

Camp named in honor of MG Rudder

The Infantry School Ranger Camp at Eglin Air Force Base, Fla. has been named Camp Rudder to honor the memory of the late Maj. Gen. James E. Rudder a commander of the 2nd Ranger Battalion during World War II.

The training area is part of an Air Force installation, and is being renamed at the request of the U. S. Army Ranger Association, Inc.

MG Rudder was a veteran of World War II, and led the 2nd Ranger Bn. which captured the cliffs at Pont du Hoc in France on D-Day. A native of Eden, Texas, he graduated from Texas A & M University and was commissioned a Second Lieutenant in the Army Reserve in May 1932.

He entered active duty in June 1941 and served in the 38th Inf. Reg., 330th Inf. Reg., the 83rd Inf. Div., and commanded the 2nd Ranger Bn. He was also commander of the 109th Inf. Reg. and served with the Army Ground Forces as publicity officer.

He was released from active duty in 1946, and in 1952 he joined the 90th Inf. Div. in Reserve status, becoming Division Commander in 1954. He was promoted to Major General in 1957 and was assigned to CONARC Hqs., Ft. Monroe, Va. in 1936 as assistant deputy commanding general for mobilization.

MG Rudder attended the Command and General Staff College in 1943. He received the Distinguished Service Cross, Silver Star, Legion of Merit, Bronze Star Medal with Oak Leaf Cluster, Purple Heart with Oak Leaf Cluster, the French Legion of Honor, and the Belgian Order of Leopold.

MG Rudder also received a number of civilian awards, including an Honorary Doctor of Laws degree from Baylor University in 1960. He served as Mayor of Brady, Texas from 1946 to 1952, and held a number of other public offices. He was a member of the Veterans of Foreign War as well as other civic organizations.

Three Benning Col's tapped for stars

Three colonels at Ft. Benning have been nominated by President Nixon for temporary promotion to the grade of brigadier general. They are Col. Alexander M. Weyand, Paul J. Mueller Jr. and William B. Steele.

Col. Edward M. Kennedy, former commander of the 197th Inf. Bde. at Ft. Benning, was also nominated for promotion. Col. Kennedy is now in the Legislative Liaison Office in Washington, D.C.

Col. Weyand is Director of Instruction for the Infantry School. He is a 1951 graduate of West Point, and recently served as Chief of the Volunteer Army Office at Department of the Army headquarters.

He was a rifle platoon leader and company commander in the Korean War from 1952 to 1953. He served as a company commander, operations officer and deputy assistant chief of staff for operations in the Berlin Command in Germany from 1959 to 1962.

In Vietnam he was a battalion commander with the 173rd Abn. Bde. in 1968 and 1969, and as a senior advisor in the 24th Special Tactical Zone in 1969.

He attended the Air Command and Staff College at Maxwell Air Force Base, Ala., in 1963, and the Armed Forces Staff College in 1966. He received a Master of Arts degree from George Washington University, Washington, D.C. in 1967, and graduated from the U.S. Army War College in 1968.

His decorations include the Silver Star; Legion of Merit with second oak leaf cluster; Bronze Star with "V" device and second oak leaf cluster; and the Purple Heart. He is a Master Parachutist, and is Ranger qualified.

Col. Paul M. Mueller Jr. is Deputy Assistant Commandant of the Infantry School. His last assignment was as executive to the Vice Chief of Staff of the Army at the Department of the Army headquarters.

Col. Mueller is a 1950 graduate of the U.S. Military Academy, and served with the 508th Airborne Regimental Combat Team in Germany. He was a province senior adviser in Vietnam in 1967 and 1968.

In 1970 he was commander of the 1st Bde., 25th Inf. Div. in Vietnam, and in 1970 and 1971 he was a senior adviser to the 1st ARVN Div.

He attended the Armed Forces Staff College in 1964 and the U.S. Army War College in 1967. His decorations include the Silver Star; Legion of Merit, with three oak leaf clusters; Air Medal with second through seventh awards; Bronze Star Medal with "V" device and first oak leaf cluster; and the Purple Heart.

Col. William B. Steele, commander of the 197th Inf. Bde., graduated from the University of Georgia in 1950. His previous assignment was Secretary of the U. S. Army Infantry School at Ft. Benning. Prior to that he was director of the Leadership Department, USAIS.

Col. Steele served as a platoon leader with the 22nd Inf. Reg. in Europe, and as a battalion adviser to the Royal Guard in Saudi Arabia in 1959 and 1960. He commanded the 5th Bn., 60th Inf., 9th Inf. Div. in Vietnam in 1967 and 1968, and was chief of staff of the 9th Inf. Div. in Vietnam in 1968.

He attended the Infantry Company Officers Course in 1954 and the Infantry Officers Advanced Course in 1957. He graduated from the Naval War College in 1963, and received his Master of Arts degree from George Washington University the same year. In 1967 he attended the Army War College.

Col. Steele's decorations include the Silver Star with oak leaf cluster; Legion of Merit with oak leaf cluster; the Distinguished Flying Cross; the Air Medal with second through seventeenth awards; and the Bronze Star Medal with "V" device and first oak leaf cluster. He is also a Senior Parachutist.

TSB's Soldier of the Quarter is ex-Navyman of seven years

SP5 Samuel I. Moorhead is at much at home on a stage as he is behind a typewriter as a personnel specialist in TSB Personnel's Student Branch. His performance of duty is at least as good as his performances in the theatre, as he was selected Soldier of the Quarter in TSB for the first quarter of 1974.

SP5 Samuel I. Moorehead, right, Soldier of the Quarter in TSB, instructs one of the men who works in his section at Student Branch, TSB personnel. (Photo by George Korda)

SP5 Moorhead entered the Army 17 months ago after spending nearly seven years in the Navy. Prior to joining the Army, he went to college for two years at Edinbro State College, Tennessee. He has since earned his college degree in Geography.

"I got interested in theatre while I was in high school, and I've tried to stay active in it ever since," he said. Recently, he co-directed the rock opera Jesus Christ, Superstar for a Columbus church. "I played the part of King Herod. I couldn't get anyone else to do it, because Herod was a bad guy." Other plays he has performed in recently include The Cave Dwellers, and The Mouse That Roared.

He came back in the service because of the benefits and opportunities. "With all the military has to offer today, it seemed the best way to secure the future for myself and my family."

He was selected over four other contestants for Soldier of the Quarter. For his efforts, he was awarded a check for $25.00, a plaque from the Association of the U.S. Army, a trophy and a letter from Col Allen M. Goodson, TSB Commander.

S-3 has message to spread

"RE-UP 1" is the message Maj. John Campbell, HHC, 197th Inf. Bde., was trying to spread when he requested those letters on his 1974 Texas license tags.

His car, however, draws even more attention to the tag's message. It is a metallflake silver, fiberglass bodied kit car, built around the chassis and engine of a Volkswagen. "It took me about one year's worth of Sunday afternoons to complete the project," Maj. Campbell stated. "It's all show and no go, but it gets great gas mileage."

Maj. Campbell, the assistant S3 of the 197th

Inf. Bde., holds a genuine interest in re-enlistment.

"Re-Up, that's the word," Maj. Campbell said, pointing at the auto tags. "If you can get someone to think about it, then you've accomplished something. That has been my goal in this project and I think it has worked."

Do you feel that the ecology program is working at Fort Benning?

SGT Thomas Stewart
Co C, ARBN RGR
1st Bn, 29th Inf

"No, I don't feel that it is working. I used to work for TSB. I have worked on several ranges and I have seen paper just lying around that could be recycled. Not only paper; I have seen numerous other things, too. I feel that the police calls are very poor."

SSG Gary W. Kennedy
USAIB

"Yes, I do. I haven't seen that much wrong with what's here; what is wrong has been corrected, especially cleanliness of the beaches around the ponds and the beaches on the Chattahoochee River. The post as a whole is kept superbly clean. As an aide, I think the ponds should be stocked with more fish because there are so many fishermen."

SSG Terry Bryant
USAIB

"Yes, I've been off and on this post for the last 10 years. The waste recycling points are outstanding. The only place I see soil erosion are on the ranges, where grass should be growing anyway. I talked to a sergeant in the Environmental Control Office and I think they do a fine job."

2LT Dennis Seagle
15th FDS

"I think so. I feel that there is being an effort made. I can see evidence of it in the office where I work. I feel that it is a beneficial program that everyone should take part in and carry out to it's fullest extent."

1LT Michael Nolan
22nd Co, TSB

"I think basically it is, but in the last few months it seems to have lost emphasis. There doesn't seem to be any publicity or drive in the program. Lately, I feel that they have been leaving too much up to the individual. There isn't enough emphasis placed on the program."

SFC Jerry Ivey
Svc Btry,
2/10 Artillery

"Yes, I do, for the ones that participate. It's just like the old saying, you get out what you put in."

Bayonet Editorial

The recent rape of a Ft. Benning housewife points out the danger of admitting strangers into your home. In this tragic instance, the woman's young son opened the door admitting the rapist.

But probably, the housewife would have opened the door also, for the man identified himself as an engineer. He was dressed like a member of the engineer workforce, yellow hardhat, coveralls, and all.

The rapist had knocked on two other doors before he committed his misdeed. At one time, he gained entry, but was scared off when he learned the husband was asleep in the house. At another home, the housewife refused him entry because she was suspicious of his reason for entering.

Officials conduct an active program to control solicitation and to warn residents to check the credentials of any would-be peddler or workman. Residents are also advised that the Post Engineers don't send out single repairmen. They travel in pairs. And their legitimacy can be easily verified by a telephone call.

The Military Police cannot prevent such crimes, try as they will. The MP's would welcome calls from any person who might question the legitimacy of strangers in the neighborhood, however. Suspicion, then, appears a good defense.

.....The Bayonet, May 3, 1974.

Contract let for barrack revamp

Jack Austin & Associates of Oklahoma City, Okla., used a sharp pencil to submit the low bid among eight offers covering construction of barracks modernization contract at Ft. Benning. The firm's base bid was $3,948,275.

The job consists of improvements to ten barracks and expansion of a chiller plant to air-condition these buildings. Modernization of the buildings will meet the new design concept for the Modern Volunteer Army. The buildings will be partitioned to provide for one-man, two men, or three men occupancy instead of the old quad room and NCO rooms will be enlarged. Ceilings will be lowered; new lighting will be installed; interiors and exteriors will be repainted; new tile floors installed; and the grounds will be landscaped.

The Savannah District Engineer, Colonel Edwin C. Keiser, stated the improvements to these 10 buildings are designed to conserve energy supplied from central heating and heating plants as much as 35 per cent. "This amounts to a monetary savings of $3.5 million after the cost of the improvements have been figured in, spread over a period of 25 years," he said.

'Local AUSA is effective' - Black

"Numbers add up -- having the largest Association of the United States Army (AUSA) chapter here in Columbus adds a lot to the effectiveness of what the AUSA can do for you and the Army."

That's what Mr. Charles Black, associate editor of the Columbus Enquirer, had to say to the officers and non-commissioned officers of the 197th Inf Bde at the unit's "Bosses" night Monday, April 22, at the brigade Hideaway club.

Speaking in support of the annual AUSA membership drive, Mr. Black emphasized the importance of AUSA and its objectives of promoting national defense, the Army and the welfare of soldiers.

The need for a large membership to give the organization the strength of numbers was a key point of the speech. "Numbers put weight behind the efforts of the AUSA," stated Mr. Black. "You have to have an organization that talks for you," concluded Mr. Black, "and that's AUSA."

The flabby American

What you read in the following paragraphs may not be to your liking, but if the shoe fits then wear it. Over the past few years we have heard a constant barrage of warnings about health. Don't eat too much of this, too much of that is bad for your heart or it will shorten your wind.

It is hard to accept what is right for you because if you listened to every crack pot and followed their advice you would jog off backwards into the mountains and starve to death. Common sense is your best judge.

When you realize that you are overweight or out of shape, part of the battle is over, a small part. Then you decide that you are going to do something about it. This is the point where common sense should play an important role in your thinking process.

Realize your capabilities and start out with an exercise program that will not demoralize you or put you in the hospital. Start out at a slow pace and keep faithful in your exercise program. You don't do yourself any good by going out the first night and running five miles with your neighbor only to collapse in the first mile and be too embarrassed to get out on the street again to run.

If you can't find some one in the same shape as you then go it alone and exercise by yourself. I have mentioned running here not that I am pushing running, but the majority of the health experts seem to agree on the value of running as the best over-all exercise. Running seems to exercise all of the muscles to some extent. Walking could be the best solution if you suffer from an overweight condition or if you have a heart condition. But if you have any doubts, use your common sense and contact your doctor for advice on your particular case.

You may have a member of your family that is out of shape or condition. Why don't you take the leadership position and suggest that they start an exercise program with you. Husbands and wives, is your mate hanging over and you don't like it? They may well stay that way unless you show some concern. There is no sense in browbeating them since they most likely have already set up some type of defense mechanism in their thinking that will put down any verbal criticism. Try the individual approach and ask them to join you in an exercise that you both can do with some equality, such as evening walks or jogging.

Parents and older brothers and sisters take heed! You most likely have much more influence over the younger children in your family than you are aware of. Have you assessed the shape that the child is in? Does the child get outside and play with other children? If the child has some special problem that they refuse to join in play with others then it is up to you to take time to work with them. If you show interest then you can get results and it is for the benefit of someone you love. Now parents take a good look in the mirror and look at yourself. What kind of image do you project to your family or friends? You are the only one that can do something about it.

When the semi-annual Staff and Faculty Physical Fitness Test rolled around, the Cmd. & Ldrshp. Com. organized themselves into two teams. They then agreed that the team with the lowest score, in this case consisting of LTC Vail, MAJ'S Standley, Graves; Cpt. Wolf, Klien, Wright; MSG Cato; SFC Brigham, SSG Wadsworth; Sgt. Dewese, would be the host to a "Happy Hour" event.

Team No. 2 composed of MAJ's. Catt, Baker, Higenbotham, Weigand; CPT's Gasdek, Johnson, Simmons and SSG's Brown, Lacy and O'Neal were the winners with an average score of 441.3 points.

The average score for the committee was 435.2; a substantial increase over the Average 415.9 on the previous PT test. Capt. Gasdek was awarded the muscle head award, "Physical Excellence Award" for achieving the highest overall score of 495 on the PT test.

1/29 scores high on annual PT test

The early morning frost still held closely to the grass on expansive Dickman Field when over one thousand PIONEERS from the 1st Bn., 29th Inf., TSB gathered there recently to prove their preparedness on the Army Physical Fitness Evaluation (APFE).

With their spirits slightly daunted by the frosty cold ground and snapping chilly air, the officers and men plunged into the five-part test nonetheless determined and hopeful of high scores.

Minimum standards established by Department of the Army (DA) call for each examinee to score at least 60 points on each event, with a minimum total score of 300 points.

It has been traditional in the 1/29th, however, for participants to attempt to score at least 400 points on the APFE.

The five events — bent-leg sit-ups, push-ups, run, dodge and jump, horizontal ladder, and mile run — require a maximum output of energy. Each part of the test strains a particular set of muscles acutely, and each compels the person being tested to think carefully of the actions necessary for completion of each event.

The APFE amounted to a culmination of months of daily physical training — an integral part of the schedule for officers and men in the Pioneer battalion — paced into those five events.

When the results were posted, the participants realized their efforts had been effective.

The average score for the men in the 1/29th was well over the necessary 300, and in many cases over 400.

The garden becomes a popular pastime

"How does your garden grow?" may soon become the question of the hour in the backyards of America.

More than ever before, the nation is taking measure of spring and summer with a hoe handle. This year family vegetable gardens will be sprouting for about one out of every two households in an effort to fight climbing prices at the grocery store. Of 68 million American households, it is predicted that up to 45 million will be hoeing inflation gardens.

Inflation is not the only reason backyard gardening is becoming part of the summer-time way of life. Because of the gasoline shortage, stay-at-home vacations and long weekends finally are providing time for that old urge to get back to nature and see whether a backyard can produce better-tasting and cheaper vegetables than the supermarket.

For best results, veterans of backyard vegetable plots say beginners should "think small" in laying out their first gardens.

Beware of overseas import tax and duties

"It sure is cheap living back in the States, especially considering the price of meat in the States, and the fact gasoline prices have soared up to more than 63 cents a gallon." These might very well be the thoughts of a serviceman or woman planning to settle down in an overseas country after retirement.

When one retires and decides to live in another country, he or she does so as a private citizen. The government will ship household goods one last time free, but these household belongings are subject to customs regulations of the country where one decides to reside. Often this means that 100 to 200 per cent of the assigned valuation will be charged as duty.

The same is true of cars. Two such cases were recently reported in Thailand.

The ramifications of retirement overseas are many, including the possible loss of exchange and commissary privileges, as well as medical and dental care. In all cases, assistance should be sought from local transportation and legal offices prior to making any decision to settle overseas.

Reenlistment counseling begins at company level

Reenlistment counseling at the company level is one of the important areas in retaining quality soldiers. It's the "grass roots" level of career counseling. If the reenlistment NCO is dedicated, it's a good program. SSG Joseph U. Mesa, Reenlistment NCO for HHC, TSB, knows what it takes for a winning reenlistment pitch in the company.

"You've got to have a company commander who is interested in the program. A company commander who can talk to the troops and communicate with them is a tremendous advantage to the reenlistment effort. Also, it's essential that the reenlistment NCO keep the Commander advised of all reenlistment regulation and policy changes."

SSG MESA has the experience to know what he's talking about. He's been a reenlistment counselor at battalion and brigade level, and he was reenlistment counselor for the 24th Inf Div, Ft. Riley, Kansas. He likes being a counselor because of what he learns. "I keep abreast of all the benefits that I can have by staying in."

His office in the HHC barracks is equipped with all the latest information on reenlistment. Posters showing young soldiers doing various jobs look down from the walls asking, "Why are you staying in?" Booklets explaining the advantages of the Army are available. There are no high pressure sales pitches. "I try to give the men a straight story on what the Army can do for them," he said.

SSG Mesa estimates that he spends three to four hours a day in reenlistment work, in addition to his duties as HHC's Personal Services NCO. "I go from one duty section to another talking to people about programs and what options are open to them. I spend a lot of time just keeping track of the reenlistment status of all the men in the company. I enjoy it. It's for what I feel is a very good cause."

Hilton Head Project

The permanent bridge connecting Hilton Head, S.C. to the mainland was jammed in the open position following a barge collision. The damaged bridge made travel impossible and stranded thousands of islanders.

These members of the 586th FLOAT Bridge Co. had the task of inflating the rafts which supported the road surface of the bridge. Over 50 such rafts were used to keep the emergency bridge floating. (U.S. Army Photo)

By WILLIAM D. SAMS

A bridge project which is usually associated with a field training exercise or actual combat situation has recently been completed by the 586th Floatbridge Co., 2nd 43rd Engr. Bn., 36th Engrs., for the civilian population of Hilton Head Island, S.C.

Soldier engineers from the 586th received an alert notice from the resort island about 4:30 p.m., Friday, March 29.

Saturday morning (March 30) a convoy of over 200 engineers, about 100 vehicles, and bridging equipment departed on the 300 mile journey to assist several thousand stranded tourists and residents of Hilton Head Island.

After receiving the alert notice the 586th floatbridge engineers began gathering men and equipment together.

"Since it was payday and the beginning of a weekend, it was difficult to find all the personnel; however the response was excellent," remarked SP4 Robert Norris, 586th Floatbridge Co.

He also stated, "Only a limited number of men were available and they carried much of the workload."

"It was a joint effort on the part of all the men from the start; everyone did more than was required of him," Norris concluded.

When inflated and assembled, the rafts were loaded on low bed trucks and taken to the shore to be floated into place.

"We had just gotten back from a field training exercise on Thursday then Friday afternoon we were on alert to the island," explains PFC James C. Hiem, 586th Floatbridge Co.

Hiem also observed, "Although we had been training in the field, it couldn't compare with the actual bridge project at Hilton Head Island."

The units supporting the 586th and the 43rd Engrs. were the 902nd Floatbridge Co., Ft. Belvoir, Va., Co. C, 27th Engrs., (COMBAT) (AIRBORNE), 35th Engr. Grp., Ft. Bragg, N.C. and the 92nd Engr. Co., Ft. Stewart, Ga.

It takes a lot of hard work on the shore just to get the section of the bridge ready to put into the water as these engineers demonstrate. These engineers are working to secure the super structure to the rafts. (U.S. Army Photo)

Each of these supporting units were to assist the 586th and 43rd Engrs., by supplying the necessary manpower needed to complete the bridge project. However, due to the lack of experience in the support units much of the work load fell on the soldier engineers from Ft. Benning; the 586th and 43rd Engineers.

"The job of the 586th Floatbridge Co., was to provide supervision and equipment to the supporting units. The actual labor to be done on the bridge was to come strictly from the support units," stated SFC Kenneth R. Van Horn, 586th Floatbridge Co., 36th Engrs.

Van Horn also explained, "The 586th not only supplied supervision and equipment, but also had to do the majority of the labor involved in building the bridge."

The islanders were stranded on the island after a barge rammed the James F. Byrnes Memorial Bridge; causing it to become unsafe for travel.

The severely damaged bridge was the only road transportation link to the island from the South Carolina mainland.

Officials at the bridge site said it would take only a minimal amount of time to repair the original span. Later it was found that the foundation of the bridge had been damaged to such an extent that a temporary bridge would be necessary for the motorists of the island.

The Hilton Head Project had some unique problems for the engineers. Much of the bridge training the engineers are involved in is done in fresh water; lakes and rivers.

Engineers of the 36th Engr. Grp. are shown here putting the baulk into place to form the road bed. This is perhaps one of the most strenuous tasks. Each piece of baulk weighs over 200 lbs and must be manually secured in place.

The engineers had to work in a more difficult situation; 8-10 foot tides with a swift under current. The bridge was built to be flexible yet durable enough to withstand any adverse condition which might occur.

Since the original span was built to allow boat traffic to pass through the inter-coastal waterway, the engineers also had to build their bridge so it could be opened at certain intervals during the day to let the water traffic continue.

"Twice a day we would remove about 90 feet of the bridging equipment from the center of the bridge allowing easy passage of boat traffic," stated SGM Loral Lawrence, 36th Engr. Grp.

"Usually it would take about 20-25 men to remove and replace the 90 foot bridge section. Organization was tight and the men worked as a team to help each other; the whole process of removing and replacing the bridge sections took about 45 minutes to 1 hour," Lawrence added.

Once the engineers had the one lane float bridge in place, travel was able to resume at an almost normal pace.

When a bridge of this type is completed the engineers remove it as soon as the men and equipment have crossed.

There was a crew of about 75 men at the bridge site at all times; making sure the bridge stayed afloat.

About 200 soldiers from the 43rd and the 586th Engrs. removed the floatbridge from its location at Hilton Head Island last week.

The engineers of the 586th Floatbridge Co., considers the accomplishment at Hilton Head Island as another successful CIVILIAN ACTION PROJECT that the 36th Engrs. "KEPT FROM SINKING."

Overcoming the problems of 8-10 foot tides, swift currents, and inter-coastal waterway traffic, the engineers are shown here in the final stages of construction on the 850 foot float bridge.

WE'VE BEEN SERVING THE SERVICE FOR 96 YEARS.

HFC is probably one of several consumer finance companies located right outside the base. So why should you come to us?

One reason. We're the oldest, largest, most experienced company of our kind.

Another. Last year alone we solved financial problems for over 154,000 servicemen. All of them came because they needed advice. Or money—as much as $2500.

The whole point? Like the service, we've been around for a long time. So when you have a money problem, call on the expert for help. HFC. An equal opportunity lender.

Borrow Confidently.

PX Convenience Store Relocated

The Fort Benning Post Exchange Convenience Store (7/11) has relocated to larger quarters. It is now located in Bldg. 1711, Main Post. The new store will feature expanded lines of soft drinks, groceries, beer, plus a greater selection of frozen foods. Hours of operation will be from 7 a.m. until 11 p.m., seven days a week. The new location also has plenty of parking available for shoppers.

Spoken German

The Army Education Center is offering a course in Spoken German beginning May 6. Classes will be held on Monday and Wednesday, from 7-9 p.m., Bldg. 35, Main Post. Books will be furnished on a loan basis at no cost to the individual. Dependents may enroll on a space available basis when accompanied by a military sponsor. For more information or enrollment call 545-7250 between the hours of 1-4:45 p.m.

Seventh Army NCO Academy Needs Instructors

Com-at Arms NCOs in grades E-5 through E-7, who are being assigned to Germany and are qualified instructors, may request an interview at the Seventh Army NCO Academy at Bad Toelz, Germany. Interested personnel should forward a copy of their form 20 and a copy of their orders to Commandant, Seventh Army NCO Academy, ATTN: Instructor Branch, APO New York 09050. Upon arrival at Rhein/Main, telephone MSG Jerry L. Nelson at 2531-727 or 2531-767.

Piano and Guitar Lessons

The Recreation Services Music Center is offering classes in piano and guitar beginning May 6. Classes will be held in the Recreation Services Music Center, located in Bldg. 1684, from 5-8 p.m. Students may attend classes on Monday and Wednesday, or Tuesday and Thursday. Active duty, retired, DA civilian, and military dependents are eligible to attend. Cost for the six-week course is $9.00. For more information and enrollment call The Music Center at 545-3093.

Stolen Private Property

One-hundred tickets for the Muscular Dystrophy ball game at Golden Park, Columbus, Georgia were stolen recently. These tickets are for a game to be played July 13. The tickets are numbered 4,001 through 4,100. Anyone having knowledge of the whereabouts of these tickets are requested to contact Military Police Investigations at 545-2016 or 545-1891.

Toys Needed

The United States Army Infantry Center (USAIC) Confinement Facility is repairing toys and teenage items to be given away for the annual Christmas project. If you have any old toys or items suitable for teenagers, please bring them to ACS, located in Bldg. 83, or to the back gate of the Confinement Facility located across the street from the Main Post gas station. For free pick-up, call 545-5904. For more information call Lt. Marsh at 545-1601.

AUSA

AWARDS and RECOGNITION

The local chapter presents awards each month to outstanding students and best soldiers of each major unit, including soldiers who volunteer to donate their blood at MAH.

Certificates, letters of commendation, and other documents of achievement are given to outstanding civilians and military personnel who distinguish themselves by supporting the AUSA, the local chapter, and the tri-community.

Before leaving for Korea, Major Patrick F. Cannon, Post Information Officer, was honored by the chapter for his unselfish dedication to AUSA. Pvt. Robert R. Ryan, 4th Bn., received a Blood Donor Incentive Award. Six children, ages of 6 to 15, received either a U. S. Savings Bond or a Certificate of Accomplishment after being selected winners or runners-up in a local Energy Conservation Poster Contest. Several Allied Officers were honored with Certificates of Honorary Membership to form a permanent bond between them and the members of AUSA.

General Membership Meetings

General membership meetings have been increased from four to six this year. These annual events take place in September at the AUSA Picnic, in October at the National Convention, at the Fall Outing in November, in February at the George Washington's Birthday Ball, during the April-May membership drive and at the election of new officers in June.

MEMBERSHIP DRIVE

Presently the local chapter is conducting a membership drive and is encouraging all members to recruit a new member and make him or her a part of the only organization that supports every man and woman who wears the Army green-Active, Reserve, National Guard, and retired personnel.

SPEAKERS

At the request of various organizations and individuals, the local chapter has made arrangements to furnish speakers for the tri-community as well as other states in the South. LTC Floyd Thompson, former POW, recently spoke at the celebration of the Vietnam Veteran Day at the Government Center in downtown Columbus. Charles Black, local reporter, also spoke to the 197th Infantry Brigade.

WEST POINT

The West Point Committee is operating with great success. Cadet Steve Guthrie recently toured all high schools in the tri-community to talk to students about enrollment in West Point and answer questions about life at the U. S. Military Academy.

Collaboration with Civic Groups and Associations

The local Chapter supports area businessmen and volunteer-reservists to maintain their mutual understanding. AUSA has also worked with the Columbus JAYCEES on many projects. AUSA has also made monetary contributions to project Save-A-Toy, coordinated by Army Community Service.

Generals inducted into Hall of Fame

Four general officers were posthumously inducted into the Command and General Staff College Hall of Fame at Ft. Leavenworth, Kan., on April 25. They are General Simon B. Buckner Jr., General Leslie J. McNair, Major General John F. Morrison, and General Joseph B. Stilwell.

General Simon B. Buckner was born in Kentucky in 1886 and graduated from the U.S. Military Academy in 1908. He distinguished himself in World War II as commander of the Alaska Defense Command, and occupied several islands in the Pacific after driving the Japanese out. He commanded the 10th Army for the invasion of Okinawa by American troops, one of the largest ground operations in the Pacific theater. He was killed near the end of the campaign in June 1945.

General Leslie J. McNair was born in Minnesota in 1883. The 1904 West Point graduate received a Doctor of Laws degree from Purdue in 1941.

Gen. McNair took part in the Funston and Pershing Expeditions to Mexico in 1914 and 1916-17, and served in World War I. He commanded the U.S. Army Ground Forces in Europe in 1942, and was killed in action in July 1944 during the Normandy invasion.

General Joseph B. ("Vinegar Joe") Stilwell, commander of U.S. forces in the China-Burma-India theater during World War, was born in Florida in 1883. He served in France during World War I, and in China during the 1920's and 1930's.

He held numerous high-level command posts in the Pacific theater, and in 1944 led a successful Burmese offensive. In 1945 he received over 100,000 Japanese troops in surrender on the Ryukyu Islands as commander of the 10th Army.

After World War II he was made commander of the 6th Army. He died in 1946 in San Francisco, and his papers were published in 1948.

Major General John F. Morrison, born in New York in 1858, was an 1881 graduate of West Point. In this 40-year career he saw frontier duty, World War I service, and was an observer to the Japanese Army in 1894. He also took part in the Santiago de Cuba campaign in 1898.

An honors graduate of the Infantry and Cavalry Schools, he attended the Army War College in 1906 and served as an instructor at Ft. Leavenworth from 1906 to 1912. He retired in 1921 with the Silver Star Medal and the Distinguished Service Medal. He died in 1932.

Hq Comd
Annual canoe race and picnic

On your mark, get set, GO!!
The start of a Spring-time track meet? No, Headquarters Command is at it again.

Canoeing. This year, as last year, the challenge was the Upatoi Creek, or at least fifteen treacherous miles of it, and the clock. The weary, wet winners raced across the finish line at Engineer landing (the intersection of Santa Fe Road and the Upatoi) in a record time of 2 hours 51 minutes from the start.

SP5 Ross W. Abbot and PFC Matthew J. Juan, representing HHC, Hq. Comd., were presented trophies for first place by LTC John C. Rogers, Commander, Headquarters Command. Second place was captured by SP4 Smith and SP4 Nelson, both of Company B, Headquarters Command, who finished a short 3 minutes behind the big winners. Third place was taken by PFC Lumb and SP4 Sloan, and fourth by PVT James Marshall and PVT Richard White from Personnel Control Facility.

Following the race, a cookout was held for all members of Hdq. Comd. Everything went really well for the afternoon, there were no major mishaps or accidents, but things didn't start out that way.

1LT Eric A. Barrett, HHC, Hq. Comd., Officer in Charge for the race commented, "I thought LT Hays and myself, (the Safety Officers), had our work cut out for us when we saw a canoe turn over at the Starting Line, but everything went OK."

Even though there was only one winner out of the nineteen entries, everyone invited had a good time. For the ones who didn't actively compete for the first prize, it was a beautiful sunny spring afternoon for drifting down the creek where the only regret they had for not working that afternoon was the sunburn they had to cope with that night.

A couple of the participants were interviewed, SSG Jeffries, HHC, Hq. Comd., stated "I enjoyed it very much and fully intend to enter in future races." Whereas SP4 Rodriguez from Personnel Control Facility remarked "being from a big city it was a very exciting and memorable event and the first time I have ever been in a canoe."

The interest is high, the facilities are there, and the Upatoi is always willing so Headquarters Command is actively planning another big race and once again everyone will be eligible for entrance. The only criteria for entering is a love for the outdoors and thirst for adventure.

The happy winner, PFC Juan of A Co. and SP5 Abbot of HHC, receive congratulations and well earned trophies from LTC John Rogers, Commander of HQS, CMD, USAIC.

The Rod and Gun Club Board of Governors met last Friday for the April monthly meeting and found out immediately that it was not a board of governors.

Col. Jack Whitted, president opened the meeting and announced that the group would be called a board of advisors in the future. He also announced that the Rod and Gun Club comes under the rules governing officers and noncommissioned officers clubs. This means too that the bylaws become house rules.

The remainder of the meeting was mainly devoted to financial and management matters. These weren't quite as gruesome as some discussed at recent meetings. The dances had to be discontinued. Not enough people were attending and they were losing money. The pro shop has been rearranged so the attendant can oversee the entire area from his central location. Equipment to operate two skeet ranges will be sold if any interested buyers with money, can be located, a riding lawnmower that seems to be beyond repair and several other items will be put up for sale in the near future.

LT Craig Johnson, temporary custodian announced that other operations would be modified soon. According to John all the changes will be made with the objection of tightening up operations.

Club has Champions

Some members of the club archery group took time off from moving the field ranges from the old club location to the Victory Lodge area last weekend.

Gene Stalcup, president of the group took some of his pupils down to the Georgia State Archery Target Championship and they came away with two state championships.

Yvette Hawkins won the Georgia State Womens championship and David Baxley came away with the Georgia State Youth Title.

Gene said both champions are newcomers to the sport. He has been coaching them for about three months.

According to Gene, archers need not give up the sport while the ranges are being moved. A set of ranges will be in operation at all times. One set is available for shooters at the old location now. When construction of the first set at the new location has been completed it will be put into operation. The range now open at the old location will then be moved to Victory Lodge.

April Fishing Derby

SFC Amos Anderson, 441 Brasselman Ave. leads the bream contest in the April Fishing Derby with a 1-pound, 4-ounce catch he made at Hedleys Pond.

ISG John Zebreski, 4005 Bowman Street registered a 16-pound, 12-ounce catfish to lead the catfish contest. He took the monster from Twilight Pond.

SSG Jesse Waugh, Hq. Comd. registered the largest bass this month. His entry tipped the Rod and Gun Club scales at 7-pounds, 8-ounces.

There were only a few hours left in April when this was written so these fishermen will no doubt win the $15 merchandise orders the club gives to the fishermen registering the largest bass, bream or catfish.

A new contest has already started for May. The rules are simple. You must be a member of the Rod and Gun Club, catch your fish from one of the ponds on post and register the catch at Victory Lodge. Fish caught after the close of business at the club may be registered the next day the club is open.

Font plays like Willie Mays

Ivonne Font is just 14 years old, much younger than most of the other players on the TSB girls softball team. But by the way she plays, it looks as if she was born with a bat in one hand, and a glove on the other.

In TSB's four games against other teams from the Columbus, Phenix City area, Ivonne's bat has been red-hot. She isn't a power hitter, but she gets on base, and she scores runs. In four games she has socked 1 home run and has 8 runs batted in. She's scored 10 times and has 8 hits in 15 at bats for a sizzling .533 batting average.

As good as she is at the plate, it's her defense that draws praise from the team's coach, Sp6 Fred Dowdell. "Defense is Ivonne's strongest point. She gets a good jump on the ball that lets her move into a good defensive position."

A good jump on the ball is an extreme understatement. The way she holds down the center field slot reminds a spectator of the way Willie Mays used to play center for the San Francisco Giants. She runs well, throws accurately, and makes few mistakes, but above all she gets that good "jump." Very often it seems she actually starts moving before the ball leaves the hitter's bat.

Her baseball ability seems to be inherited. Her father, SSG Plutarco Font of HHC, TSB, is a slick fielding shortstop. He says of Ivonne, "She's a real competitor. She plays baseball with her brothers and their friends around the house. She gets a lot of good practice."

"If everyone on the team had improved from last year as much as Ivonne has, We'd have a super team," which is saying something, since TSB's record is currently 5 wins and no losses.

Prestige.

BMW Bavaria.

To people in the know, the brilliant new BMW Bavaria may well be the most prestigious car in the world today. All over Europe, for example, it has replaced another famous German make as the "in" car. With all its great elegance and superb craftsmanship, the Bavaria gives you fantastic performance and matchless road-holding, making it one of the best road machines going. Come in and take a test-drive. Find out the real meaning of the word prestige.

TSB landslides all opponents

TSB Girls Softball Team opponents under a continued to bury their landslide of runs. Last week's action had TSB blowing their opponents away, beating Rigdon Road 17-3 and Blue Cross-Blue Shield 30-0, upping their record to 5-0.

Sharon Kogel stretches to make the putout for the TSB girls softball team as they downed the Rigdon girls team 17-3. (Photo by George Korde)

Sharon Kogel was the big gun for TSB against Rigdon Road, blasting out a home run and driving in 5 runs. Ivonne Font, Pat Cagle, and Tammy Thompson also added homers for TSB.

In the top of the 5th, TSB leading 17-12, Blue Cross had two runners on with two out. The hitter clouted a long fly into left center field. Two runs scored, and the hitter was touching third base when center fielder Ivonne Font fired the ball into third base, Pat Cagle. Cagle turned and ripped the ball home to Kogel just as the runner arrived. There was a gasp as the runner plowed full force into Kogel as she blocked the plate. Both players hit the ground, and Kogel laid motionless for several minutes. She had held on to the ball; however, and the runner was out, thus stopping a home run and ending the inning. She was only shaken up, and finished the last 2 innings as catcher.

Columbus city dads to meet TSB gang

Hank Aaron is once again blasting homers for the Atlanta Braves, and Bobby Bonds is doing it all for the San Francisco Giants.

However, the baseball season doesn't really get started until May 15 when TSB Over the Hill Gang meets the Columbus City Fathers at 7:00 p.m. at Golden Park.

TSB team will be made up of Field Grade Officers,

E-8's and E-9's within the Brigade.

A practice field for future stars

Early morning fog still hugs the ground as a group of riders trot onto French Polo Field. There'll be no chucker today for long ago the game of polo became part of the Army's "once was."

Today's riders are, for the most part, young girls or women who are practicing for the upcoming 12th annual Hunt Club Spring Horse Show. French Field has now become a fertile ground for producing future Olympic competitors in equestrian events.

At 9 a.m. on Saturday, May 4, the word, practice, takes the past tense form as the true competition of the Hunt Club's Horse Show begins.

This year's event is sanctioned by the Georgia Hunter - Jumper Association and will afford spectators the opportunity of watching the grace and form exhibited in equestrian events.

A full day of fun and enjoyment will cost you, as the spectator, absolutely nothing. Admission is free.

Refreshments ranging from hot meals to snacks and beverages will be available on the grounds. Proceeds from the sale of food and drinks will be used to support the ever expanding program of the Ft. Benning Pony Club. Carol Bryant, now wife of Capt. Fred Bryant was an original charter member of the Pony Club. Then an Army brat, Carol recalled, "When we first organized it was a small group. We learned and practiced and entered some local horse shows. Sometimes I'm almost amazed by the progress that the Pony Club has shown over the years. Here they are, today, sending teams to regional and national rallies and doing well. I think it's great."

You can bet that Carol Bryant will be at French Field on Saturday. Plan to join her and the many others in attendance.

Target tank

A frightening experience ends up being lots of fun

While the tankers of the 2nd Bn, 69th Armor, 197th Inf. Bde. are seldom afforded the opportunity to fire their main guns, even more unlikely is the chance of a tank having the experience of being fired upon.

For SP5 Donald Carton and Pvt. George Depriest, being fired upon is only their job. They are the tank commander and driver of the only "target tank" in use in the Army today.

and NCOES students in the use of the Light Anti-Armor Weapon (LAW). The students fire the M-190 LAW subcaliber 35mm rocket, which performs and looks like the real thing, but costs only 10 percent of the actual ammunition. The 35mm rockets are also much safer since they can not penetrate the hull of a tank.

The tank that was chosen to be converted to a moving target was originally destined for salvage. But rather than send it off to be sold for scrap, the M-48 was turned over to the tank section of HHC, 2nd Bn., 69th Armor, for conversion.

"We had to pull the engine four or five times just to get the generator and brakes to work," stated SP4 William Whitley, a mechanic who spent much of the last month putting the tank into operation. "It took a lot of work to get it running. We still have a few minor things to repair, but for the most part, it's ready to go."

"The biggest problem was getting the tank beefed up," explained Carton. "Target tanks used previously were abandoned because of the tremendous amount of maintenance required to keep them running. We used about 70 square feet of armor plating to protect parts of the tank which might be vulnerable to repeated hits."

After the re-enforcing project was complete, the tank was parked on the range and fired at from all angles. The target tank was hit an estimated 500 times without a single bit of damage. The target tank will be used by the anti-armor committee two to three times per week, once the finishing touches have been put on the vehicle. Until now the tank has been used mainly for demonstrations. The tank is part of a pilot program for the U. S. Army Materiel Command and once it proves successful, others will be built.

"I admit that it was a bit scary the first time I went out there," Depriest admitted. "After I found out what it was like, it didn't bother me at all. In fact, it's kind of fun."

"The first time we went out on the range," Carton, a Vietnam veteran, stated, "I kept waiting for the first round to hit. The sub-caliber device they fire at the tank sounds like a small firecracker from inside. About all it does is chip off paint."

The "target tank" is used by the Anti-Armor Committee of the Infantry School for training OCS

Fraker honored by Sertoma

Chaplain (CPT.) Thomas R. Fraker received the Service to Mankind award from the Georgia District Sertoma Club in ceremonies held on Monday, May 6 at the Martini Hotel.

The award was presented by Mr. Jim Gill, President of the Sertoma Club of Columbus and Governor-elect of the District of Georgia, at the weekly Sertoma Club luncheon. Chaplain Fraker, who has been at Ft. Benning since 1969, is assigned to the Alcohol and Drug Control Office in the Directorate of Personnel and Community Activities.

In accepting the award, he said, "I do this type of work because I thoroughly enjoy it. I feel that the youth of today don't have enough challenges in life, and this is one reason so many of them turn to drugs for a new experience."

He was the recipient of the Columbus Sertoma Club's Service to Mankind Award last December, and was then nominated for the District of Georgia Award.

Before coming to ADCO, he was assigned to the 4th Bn., TSB as a chaplain. He has been in the Army for six years, and has served in Vietnam, where he earned four Bronze Star Medals, two of which were for valor. He also earned the Air Medal and two Army Commendation Medals.

A native of Jefferson City, Tennessee, he received his B.A. degree from Carson-Newman College in Tennessee, and his Bachelor of Divinity degree from Emory University. He also earned a Master of Theology at Emory, and received a Master of Education degree from Georgia State University.

He has done additional graduate study at the University of Tennessee, California State College and Yale University. He is married to the former Opal Lee McCall and has three children: Deborah Ann, 18; Thomas, 15; and Rebecca, Sue, 11.

Chap. Fraker's work involves drug counseling and speaking to high schools in the area about drug abuse. He has given presentations to various civic clubs, colleges, parent-teacher associations, and religious organizations, as well as military units.

Altogether, he has participated in over 300 separate presentations across the county. He has organized training sessions and workshops for alcohol and drug abuse counselors, and has prepared a television series called "Life's Natural Highs" dealing with drug-related problems and their eradication.

Women's Army Corps celebrates anniversary

Ileane Katzker

The Women's Army Corps (WAC) will celebrate its 32nd anniversary Tuesday, May 14. To appreciate the breakthrough WACs made, one can look into history at the man's world of Ft. Benning on March 5, 1943. "Main post personnel was settling back to normal again this week after having recovered from the initial shock of seeing women march around attired in GI khaki," was the lead to a post newspaper article.

A year later, 300 members of two WAC companies observed their first anniversary as 2,000 troops of the Army Service Forces and Reception Center paraded in review before the women. They held such positions as photo lab technician, laboratory technician, and expert photographer.

By May of 1944, at the peak of the war and only one month before D Day, six WAC detachments were active at Ft. Benning, and by May, 1953, they had undergone five reorganization and changes in destination. Finally, on February 10, 1958, they were given the name WAC Company, U. S. Army Infantry Center.

Changes were still being made last year as women participated in airborne training, and were seen driving trucks, directing air and ground traffic, repairing vehicles and taking on new command responsibilities. Recruiting efforts were increased to enlist more women for specific vacancies in jobs, and efforts were also made to be sure that all jobs interchangeable between the sexes were identified as such.

WAC director, BG Mildred C. Bailey recently predicted a new WAC strength. She expects 25,400 by June 30; 34,400 in FY 75; to 40,400 in FY 76; to 43,800 in FY 77; to 47,300 in FY 78; and to 50,400 in FY 79.

Thirty-two years and a whole different Army ago, men were skeptical about their women counterparts. History has spoken for itself, Happy anniversary, women!

"Bigger and better than ever"

Fourth of July in preparation

This year's Fourth of July Carnival on York Field will be bigger and better than ever. For the first time, a flea market, antique auto show and fishing tournament will be part of the day's activities. This year's carnival is being sponsored by the 197th Infantry Brigade (Separate).

Prizes are worth $8500 and range from a 1974-model air-conditioned automobile to stereo equipment, bicycles and sporting goods. Tickets may be obtained beginning May 15 from unit representatives or at Benning Mall. Proceeds from the carnival go to support the Community Activities Association's youth and welfare programs. Ticket sales start May 15.

A parade, a 50-gun salute to the nation, and fireworks display will be among the featured events at the carnival. Each major unit on post will have the responsibility of a certain part of the program.

There will be a talent show, beauty contest and Battle of the Bands, with prizes awarded to the winners. The 145th Avn. Bn. will be in charge of entertainment.

There will be a midway with various games of skill and chance, including two girl-dunk booths. The 36th Engr. Gp. will construct the booths and operate them. The U. S. Army Infantry School will be in charge of the rides on military vehicles and the Airborne tower rides.

There will also be recruiting displays and a Retirement Services Center as well as Scout and Teen Club Information Booths. The Directorate of Personnel and Community Activities will be in charge of the Retirement Services Center, and USAIC Headquarters Command will handle the Scout and Teen Club booths.

The 34th Med. Bn. will set up the flea market and antique automobile display. Balloons sales will be handled by DPCA, and the 197th Inf. Bde. will be in charge of the food and drink concession stands. The Directorate of Facilities Engineering will sponsor the fishing tournament.

The TSB is in charge of ticket sales and door prizes, and the Provost Marshal will handle traffic and parking. The Directorate of Plans and Training will set up the opening ceremony.

PVT Moore chosen WAC of the Week

PVT Martha Moore has been chosen as the 197th WAC of the week. PVT Moore, the most recent female addition to the 197th Inf. Bde., is working as a clerk-typist in the brigade IG section.

The attractive 21-year-old WAC is assigned to Co. A, 197th Spt. Bn., 197th Inf. Bde. and seems to like her new job. "I love people," Martha stated, "and this job gives me a chance to meet a lot of new people." She is a Station-of-Choice enlistee for Ft. Benning.

Prior to entering the Army, she worked in a Newark, N.J. department store and later as a cashier in a boutique shop. Martha attended Ruckers University and was graduated from Essex County College with an Associates degree in administration.

"I am thinking about a career of the Army," Martha confessed. "I would like to further my education and visit different places. If I do re-enlist, I think I want to get into personnel management."

"I love sports too," Martha added. She plans to back her unit's softball team which finished second in the post championships last summer.

"When they first offered me this assignment in the 197th," Martha stated, "I wasn't too sure that I wanted to work out here on Kelley Hill. But now that I'm out here I am really glad I did accept it."

PVT Martha Moore, explains how to fill out a form to SGT Joseph Tyson. Martha works as a clerk-typist in the 197th Inf. Bde. IG section and is assigned to Co. A, 197th Spt. Bn., 197th Inf. Bde. (Photo by Bob Thomas)

Going to school? ROTC scholarship may help

Going to college? Need financial assistance? Why not compete for an Army ROTC Scholarship? The Army's ROTC Scholarship program offers financial assistance to outstanding young men and women who have what it takes to go to college, except money.

An Army ROTC Scholarship pays for your tuition, textbooks, laboratory fees and other purely educational expenses at any of over 290 colleges and universities that host the ROTC program. In addition, you will also receive a subsistence allowance of $100 a month for up to 10 months of each academic year.

The Army currently has 6,500 scholarships in effect. The scholarship program offers three types of scholarships. Four-year, three-year, and two-year.

Application for four-year scholarships must be forwarded to the appropriate Army headquarters between July 1 and Dec. 31 of the senior high school year. Applicants must also take the Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT) or the American College Test (ACT) not later than December of their senior year. Applications for two and three year scholarships must be submitted to the Student's Professor of Military Science. All applications will be screened by a board established by the Professor of Military Science. Applications selected will be forwarded to the appropriate Army commander for approval.

To qualify for scholarship competition, the student must be at least 17 years old on October 1 of the year he or she enters college. The student must be no older than 25 years old at the time they are commissioned in the United States Army. U. S. citizenship is also necessary to enter the competition for scholarships.

Students must stand in the top 25 percent of their high school graduating class. A minimum composite score of 1100 on the SAT or a composite score of 24 on the ACT is also required. After a student is awarded an ROTC scholarship and successfully completes the ROTC program and receives a Baccalaureate degree, they have a four year active duty obligation. This obligation may be postponed while the student takes graduate studies. Upon graduation from college and successful completion of the Army ROTC program, scholarship cadets are commissioned as second lieutenants in the U. S. Army and serve on active duty for four years.

For more information about the Army's ROTC scholarship program, write to ARMY ROTC SCHOLARSHIP, P. O. BOX 12203, PHILADELPHIA, PA. 19134.

MOM IS A GOOD SOLDIER

"Mother rises when Reveille sounds
To lay out some chow for Dad.
Uniform pressed and lunch packed,
He doesn't have it too bad.

She works her KP like a soldier,
Works on her details all day;
The bunks are made, GI style
And the house is a ship-shape bay.

The pay check she uses wisely,
Buying beer for Dad's guest or two,
She kisses Dad goodnight
And never accepts defeat.

When Dad has to leave for awhile,
I guess Mom's an acting-jack.
She handles us like we're troopers
Until he finally comes back.

War movies make her cry
To realize Dad's a defender
But she holds her head up high Letting nobody offend her.

She loves her little troopers
And especially our Dad
Because this OD lifestyle
Really isn't bad.

When the day is done
And the bugle sounds Retreat,
She kisses Dad goodnight
And never accepts defeat.

Maybe she doesn't call cadence
Or drive an Army tank,
But in our house she's a soldier
And we recognize her rank.

The rake is out!!!

Don't jump to any conclusions man, just read and heed. The cakecutter that you use in the morning to get your fro together can get you up tight with the man in the city. In '71 the Columbus council put out the word that the metal rake is a deadly weapon and if you're caught on the street with one the hassle starts. Dig this rap for what it's worth; the metal rake you use to get it all together in the A.M. should remain in the shaving bag when you leave. Pick up a fold up plastic rake to keep on the hip so if for some unknown reason to have to break down town the man will have one less reason to throw you in the Development course helps NCO's find weak spots

"This class has really inspired me to take the initiative and become a more responsible leader..."

That was just one of the comments made recently by junior NCO critiquing the 197th Inf. Bde. NCO Development Course.

The NCO Development Course was initiated in May of last year for the primary purpose of developing the leadership ability of junior NCOs. It is also designed to raise their level of military knowledge in subjects which are non-military occupational specialty (MOS) related, but essential to the performance of a NCO.

The course consists of 80 hours of instruction on subjects common to all MOS codes in the 197th Inf. Bde. High on the list are 20 hours of instruction devoted to map reading and 13 hours of leadership.

The instruction is designed for the grade of E-5, but individuals assigned to an E-5 position and outstanding PFC's who show NCO potential are also eligible.

Tests are administered throughout the course and individuals are counseled on weak points. A comprehensive exam is given at the end of the course on which an overall passing score of 70 per cent is required for successful completion of the course.

"We strive for a fairly small number in each class, about 32 as a maximum," said the brigade's top NCO, CSM Nathan G. Hoover. "We want to be able to give personal attention to each junior NCO taking the course." "It is strictly a NCO controlled affair," added CSM Hoover. "We have good instructors that come from every part of the brigade with a variety of MOSs."

SFC Harris Gilbert is the commandant of the NCO Development Course and an instructor himself. "We have no officers assigned," said SFC Gilbert. "There are six NCOs including myself, and everyone instructs. These are NCOs that have served in the ranks and they know what each man is going through," concluded SFC Gilbert.

Since last May, 350

junior NCO's have been graduated from the NCO Development Course and, according to SFC Gilbert, the comments of those who have completed it are good. "They like this course because it introduces them to a lot of things they weren't exposed to in basic training," stated SFC Gilbert.

"This course puts the young NCO that extra 5 years in front of men from other units and posts that don't have this kind of program," concluded CSM Hoover. "And that makes it worthwhile."

197th exceeds goal

The 197th Inf. Bde. has exceeded its objective for the Army Emergency Relief (AER) Campaign.

At the close of the campaign CPT Steve Baber, AER project officer, reported that brigade soldiers contributed more than $4,700 to the campaign, exceeding the brigade objective of $4485. Funds collected from the brigade drive will be merged with the post's AER fund for soldiers' use in case of an emergency.

Army Emergency Relief is the Army's way of assisting its personnel and their families when a financial emergency exists. Help comes either through an outright grant or by a non-interest-bearing loan which may be repaid in small monthly installments.

Do you feel we should celebrate armed forces week?

SFC (ret) Emilio Reynosa

"Yes. It would improve the relations between the military and civilians. Such a celebration will give civilians a chance to see what the military is like. They could see the facilities and all that we have here at Benning as well as see the type of training we have here."

PFC Stanley Butler
B Co, 3-197th

"To a great extent, yes. We're working seven days a week now. So I think this is a good time for compensatory time off. I think it should be a week celebrating the men the Army's lost."

PFC William F. Hatfield
598th Lt Maint.

Yes. Tradition is one reason. Also, in remembrance of old veterans and the accomplishments they made. It's a week to show the military's accomplishments, too.

SP5 Roger Robinson
HHC, 197th Avn

"Yes. Armed Forces Week gives everybody in the service a chance to appreciate the service and display pride. I think it's a personal celebration, too."

CPT Richard Beige
CATB

"I really never thought of it. It's a really personal thing. I'm in the Army; I like the Army and am an advocate of a strong defense. I feel that no one should thank me for being in the Army. If that is all others are doing they should save it for Veteran's Day. Such a week would give civilians a chance to see the equipment the Army uses."

PVT. Michael Wilson, HHC, 197th Inf. Bde. said, "We are receiving some very good training here. I was a life guard before I came into the Army. I am supposed to be one of the senior life guards at the Kelley Hill swimming pool."

197th training lifeguards

It's that time of year again for everyone to get out the old swim suit and head out to the swimming pool and the 197th Inf. Bde., has 12 soldiers in training to become life guards, for the Kelley Hill swimming pool.

Sgt. Lawrence K. Pope, HHC, 197th Bde., commented, "Training to become a life guard is very hard, we have to go through various types of exercises, in order to get in shape for the opening of the swimming season. We also have to learn how to aid someone that's in trouble and render first aid to them if needed."

"We've never done anything like this before," stated, SP4. Wilbur Thurston, HHC, 2nd Bn, 10th Field Arty. "I think I'm really going to enjoy it."

CPT. Steve A. Baber, 197th Inf. Bde., assistant S-1 is the officer in charge of the life guards. "The Kelley Hill swimming pool will have 12 life guards, who will also conduct drown proof classes and non-swimmers classes," CPT. Baber explained. "All units in the Bde., will be notified of the time and place classes will be conducted."

The schedule opening date for the pool is May 13. The pool will open at 11 a.m. and close at 8 p.m. weekdays, opening one hour later on holidays and weekends. The capacity of the pool is 450 persons. All military and retired personnel and their dependents, are authorized to use the pool. Each soldier or dependent may bring one guest.

athletic career at South Dakota State University. She played almost every sport there is for three years, and spent her senior year as a student teacher at Sheffield High School, Memphis, Tennessee. The teams she played on weren't weak female teams, but the best South Dakota had to offer against other schools in intercollegiate competition.

She set many records at South Dakota State, but is reluctant to talk about them. "It was always more important to me how the team did, so I never worried much about my individual performance," she said. In almost every case, her teams did extremely well.

In 1972, she was starting center on the South Dakota State girls basketball team that won a berth in the national tournament in Chicago. "The regional game we had to win to go to the nationals was really exciting. We beat Central Missouri State by a hair, 51-50. At the nationals, we ran into teams with huge players, and were eliminated," she said.

When softball season came, Sharon lived in cleats. She played catcher three years for South Dakota State's women's fast pitch softball team. In 1972 they advanced to the College World Series, where they finished third out of all the colleges in the United States.

Volleyball was a big sport for her also. South Dakota State won the state title each of the three years she played.

The roughest, toughest, most physical sport she played was field hockey.

"You could get beat up something awful," she said, wincing at the memory. She added however, "Whenever someone hit me too hard, it helped me play better."

Someone must have really smacked her in one game, as she scored 6 goals, a South Dakota State record.

Her freshman and sophomore years she ran track, and ran it well enough to win the state title, with a 10.2 time in the 70 yard low hurdles her sophomore year.

Continuing with athletics in the Army, she began playing softball for TSB's women's softball team. She swung a big bat, driving in the winning runs in two straight games. Sadly, her season came to an end on April 30. Racing for a fly ball, she stepped in a hole in left field, and fell on her left leg, breaking it.

She had been a key factor in TSB's drive for the league championship, and her big bat and defensive ability will be sorely missed.

Bayonet Editorial

A letter to thieves —

As summer approaches and all of us think of vacations and cookouts, we want you to know we haven't forgotten about you. This is your favorite season, too, and we know it.

We are concerned about you — concerned not only because we lose our property because of you, but concerned because, all too frequently, we give you the opportunity to steal.

Perhaps you thought it was your own ingenuity. It isn't. We've made it easy for you, so don't think you're so smart.

How? You wonder. Well, it gets hot in the summer and sometimes we open the windows of the house and car. That way you don't have any problems entering to take our valuables.

And sometimes we absentmindedly leave the lawnmower or grill or croquet set outside after a beautiful day.

We sometimes use cheap locks at home or in the barracks — even a child could break them.

If we're in a hurry to get to the fun and games of summertime, we take shortcuts through poorly lighted areas, thereby providing more opportunity for you.

You should hate us for tempting you to steal and rob from us. Certainly we aren't doing you any favors.

We both lose when you steal. We lose our property, sometimes our insurance and always our sense of security and trust.

You lose more, though — you can lose your freedom. If you take something worth more than $100, you can receive a dishonorable discharge, lose all your pay and allowances and spend up to five years at hard labor — or ten years if you have used force on us while stealing.

Let us do you a favor this summer. We won't give you the chance to steal. We'll think for a change.

MAY

Organization day draws large crowd

Fair skies and a crowd of nearly 1000 spectators and soldiers were present to celebrate the organization day activities of the 3rd Bn. 7th Inf. (Cotton-balers) 197th Inf. Bde. on May 2.

The program began with a battalion review where LTC Charles O. Arnecky Jr. welcomed the guest. "This day is commemorative of the battalion's long history and traditions. In the acceptance of a new and vital STARF mission you, the soldiers, have responded brilliantly to the completion of this challenge, constantly maintaining the 'Willing and Able' spirit." Following the review there was a picnic lunch and various games and exhibitions in the unit's picnic area.

Displaying their marching abilities Co. B marched away with first place for the best place in the tug of war contest with Co. B, pulling in second place. Twisting nuts and bolts at a record pace Co. A, twisted their way into first place in the tire changing contest with Cbt. Spt. Co. placing second and HHC placing third. Demonstrating their potential to be firemen HHC carried their way to first place in the fireman's carry with Cbt. Spt. Co. placing second and Co. A, carrying in third place. Showing that they are not only soldiers but also would-be farmers the men of HHC rolled their way to first place in the wheel barrow contest with Co. C placing second and Cbt. Spt. Co. being shoved in to third place.

The eyes had it as HHC men hopped their way into first place in the potato sack race with Co. A, shuffling in second and Co. B pulling up in third place. Displaying how to overcome getting up late to go to work, Co. B flashed in first in the reveille contest (getting out of bed and getting dressed) with Co. A placing second and Co. C coming in a slow third.

Rounding out the day's events was a performance by the Infantry Chorus, a Judo demonstration and a Scout Dog demonstration. The celebration of the organization of one of the Army's most historic units concluded with all present having plenty to eat and a joyous time.

197th's Avn. plt. heads west

The Aviation Plt. of the 197th Inf. Bde. recently departed Ft. Benning for the western skies of Texas and New Mexico so the 10 officers and 16 enlisted men of the platoon can complete the Air Cavalry Proficiency Course and participate in a desert and mountain Field Training Exercise (FTX).

The platoon left Ft. Benning from Munsan Heliport in two groups on April 29 and May 2. The group leaving on a Monday consisted of six of the platoon's LOH-58 observation helicopters. The second group was comprised of two UH-1 utility helicopters.

"None of our aviators, other than myself, have ever been through a course of this type before," stated CPT Bruce P. Mauldin, the 197th's aviation officer. "Most of them are really looking forward to it."

"The course is a part of the 197th Inf. Bde's requirements as a combat ready unit," CPT Mauldin continued. "The course itself is much more complex than any problem one would find in any one combat situation. It includes written and oral testing as well as weapons qualification and aviation tests." The testing and grading will be done by the 1st Cav. Div. at Ft. Hood. Following completion of the 10-day course, the aviation platoon will fly to Santa Fe, N.M. for a three-day FTX.

"The FTX will be a unique one," CPT Mauldin explained. "It will test all of us on the mountain and desert survival courses we will have completed. Each man will spend one night alone in the desert."

During the FTX, the platoon will be supported by the New Mexico National Guard. The FTX will also include extensive mountain flying above 8,000 feet.

2/10 FIELD ARTILLERY

The ladies of the 2/10 Field Artillery met for their monthly coffee at the Army Community Services building. A warm welcome was extended to Mrs. Robert Allison and her daughter, Kathy.

A program about the valuable work done by ACS for the Ft. Benning community was presented by Mrs. Carolyn Lee and Mrs. Peggy Hefty.

Hostesses were Mrs. Michael Hays and Mrs. Tommy Atchison.

ALOHA NCOA

"Aloha NCOA" was the theme of an authentic Hawaiian Luau presented by the Follow Me Chapter and Followettes Auxiliary of the Non Commissioned Officers Association, held at the Elks Club on Lumpkin Rd., Columbus.

Preparations for the festivities began the night before when the pit was dug and wood cut to roast a pig Hawaiian style. Those taking charge of this most important job were Vivian and Frank Fehr, Vince Fernandez, Don Whitley, Andy Kalama, Pete Bush and Bud Kailiaau.

Festive island delights were prepared and served to more than 500 guests by Vivian and Frank Fehr, Faith and John Naputi, Bonnie and Andy Kalama, Cissy and Bud Kailiaau, and Paul Wong.

As the guests arrived dressed in bright Hawaiian attire, they were greeted with a warm aloha and presented with a lei by Jackie Robke. After dinner the guests were summoned to gather around the pool filled with floating flowers by the beat of Hawaiian dance drums. There they were entertained with Hawaiian and Tahitian dances by the Kealohe Dancers of Columbus. Pete Bush was the Master of Ceremonies. After the show June Brubaker and Cy Robke held the door prize drawing for gifts donated by NCOA discount merchants.

Special guests for the evening were some of the residents of Highland House, Columbus; Mable Howard, Mildred Scroggins, Gracie Miller, Henry Johnson, James Ennis and Betty Ratliff, Activities Director. Among those was a gentleman, Mr. Amsey Sheffield, who was celebrating his 91st birthday. His birthday greeting from President Nixon was read.

Others whose valuable assistance helped make the luau a success were Mrs. Hermie Whitely, in charge of the luau, Cy Robke, Chapter Chairman, June Brubaker, Auxiliary Chairman, Hilde Holmes, Ron Lawrence, Luther Kirby, Bud Brubaker, Ricky Peyton, Paul and John Whitley, and Fritz Robke.

The NCOA and Auxiliary extend warmest thanks to all the members and guests for helping to make the luau a success.

Going on a picnic? be well-prepared

Even though most Americans will limit their motoring excursions somewhat this summer, many will take to nearby recreation spots for picnics and outdoor fun. And the Army and Air Force Exchange Service (AAFES) outlets will have all the makings for a memorable outing. Camera film is something many forget when planning a day outdoors, and film will be in good supply. Another item that seems like excess baggage until needed is the first aid kit. The kits are inexpensive and will add peace of mind even if they are not needed. While most picnickers will toss a swimsuit into the car "just in case," many will overlook that all-important suntan lotion and beach shoes. They take little space and should never be forgotten for such an occasion. Even though a fishing expedition isn't on the schedule, take along some disposable containers to insure that those who picnic next will enjoy the same natural beauty. To save both money and time, drop into the local exchange and leave for the picnic well-prepared.

Vacationists: Look close to home this year

By BRUCE ANDRAE

Before you know it school will be over and it will be time to think about your summer vacation. If you're an outdoor recreation buff who likes to jump in his camper and hit the road, you would do well to start planning now.

First, the energy crunch may keep most of us close to home. The crisis may call for a 50-mile limit or a 10-gallon trip or a one-tank vacation. Since this camp-more-drive-less ethic rules out the Rocky Mountains or the Florida Keys for many of us, we're going to have to come up with new ideas this year.

And this may not hurt as much as we think. We'll discover close-in attractions we'd never been aware of before — campsites we can return to on weekends after our long vacation is gone.

For instance, on the Alabama side of the reservation lies the Uchee Creek Recreation Area. Situated on a point of land where the Uchee Creek empties into the Chattahoochee River it offers wonderful opportunities for boating, fishing, camping and picnicking. Trailer and tent sites, bait shop and marina, drinking water, restrooms and garbage disposal facilities are available. The landscape at the Uchee Creek Rec Area may look familiar. Several scenes from the movie, "Green Berets," were filmed here.

Future plans are to develop this area into a first class outdoor recreation area to include all facilities. Within the month, 3 pavilions will be built. A company-size lodge building, camper service center and camper pads with utility connections will also be completed by the end of the year.

There's also the King's Pond, Victory Pond, Weems Pond and Twilight Pond areas. These are other excellent areas for camping, fishing and picnicking.

Much of the woodlands and waterways on post are ideal for camping. But before venturing out check the maps at the Provost Marshal, Rod & Gun Club or Range Control to make sure the area you have selected is safe. Also, no matter where you plan to camp on post let the Provost Marshal know where you'll be in case of an emergency.

Off-post camping ideas can be encountered. Look for them at book stores, newsstands and camping supply stores. They're packaged in trail guides, books, magazines and campground guides such as Rand McNally's and Woodall's. You may want to check into the history of the local area and explore nearby country. Also stop by the Georgia Welcome Center for free information.

Some of you may not be interested because you don't have a camper. No problem. See Recreation Services Boats and Campers Rental personnel in Bldg. No. 1707 and now you've got one.

If you're going beyond the local area and southbound — The USAIC Recreation Area in Destin, Florida, should be your destination. This recreation area is located on a 16 acre beach site on the Gulf of Mexico. It is completely equipped with 2 and 3 bedroom cottages, 18-man dormitory, trailer pads, camp sites, bath house and snack bar. Also a 38' deep-sea fishing boat, "The Follow-Me," is available for charter. Inshore fishing boats, sail boats, ski boats and 14' boats with outboard motors can be had for an inexpensive rental fee.

For the summer season, reservations for the cottages are limited to five days and are determined by a post wide drawing. Applications for reservations must be submitted in writing to Recreation Services, Bldg. No. 394. Watch the Daily Bulletin for announcements on the drawings.

Reservations for the "Follow Me" are limited to one day. Again you must apply in writing to Recreation Services. Reservations are filled on a first come first served basis. Priority will be given to those persons having cabin reservations.

Now that you have your reservation or your camper is packed and ready to go, you need to know how to get there. If you leave from Columbus, take 280 over the Chattahoochee River bridge and pick up 431S. If you leave from Ft. Benning, cross the Eddy bridge and take Ala. 285 and 165 to Eufaula. Follow 165 to 431. Stay on 431 to Dothan. Take the 431S By-pass around Dothan. Pick up 231S to Cottondale. In Cottondale it's 90W to Bonifay. In Bonifay, take 79S to Ebro. In Ebro pick up 20W to 331S. Continue on 331S and pick up 98W to Destin. In Destin, turn right at either Benning Street or Calhoun Ave. and you're there.

The Destin Recreation Area is one of 34 travel camps that make up the new Army Outdoor Recreation Program. The camps are for use by Army personnel and their families vacationing in recreation vehicles or just traveling for outdoor recreation purposes. The camps are located on and off-post with many of the sites, such as Destin, located in Army-operated outdoor recreation areas.

The Bayonet, May 10, 1974

In addition to largemouth bass, Clark Hill has become noted for white bass fishing. Crappie fishing is good, primarily in the spring months, with good results at night in the summer. Trout and striped bass also have been stocked.

Also to the north is the Allatoona Recreation Area controlled by Ft. McPherson. It is a 99 acre site adjoining Allatoona Reservoir with a through road system connecting cabins, trailer areas, camping area, beach and lakes in Georgia. Allatoona also has the distinction of being the only lake in Georgia and one of a few in the United States that has a predominant population of spotted bass rather than largemouth.

Start planning your next vacation now and make use of the Army's recreation programs which were developed for your benefit. A new Army Recreation and Travel Guide has been published and will help you with your planning. Your Recreation Services Tour and Travel Office (Bldg. 394) has a copy of this pamphlet and the information in it will take the headache out of deciding where to go — what to bring — and how to get there.

The Army's Outdoor Recreation Program can help make this the best vacation you and your family ever had.

By TERRY RAGAN

Colder days are behind us now — time to think about getting some sunlight and enjoying the outdoors. It's the time of year that poets like to celebrate.

It's natural to want to get outdoors; we all know what "spring fever" is. One young man recently paid to find out what happens when the "fever" outpaces safety.

This young man, barely through adolescence, stood in the dark shadow of a tree and gazed out across a wide creek. The creek was muddy and swollen from the previous two-day rain. He was poised, naked, on a ledge of a 6-foot bank, readying himself for the dive into the cold water below.

It was the kind of spring morning Georgia is famous for — warm and serene. The sun, orange from the moist air, shone eerily across the tree tops, casting long, dark shadows on the forest floor below.

He had just finished a long walk through the entangling brush that characterize the forests of the south. He was hot, and he was winded and sweaty from the exertion. What better way to cool off on this morning, as he had done so many mornings before, than by a cool dip?

He put his arms over his head, leaned over the embankment and pushed himself out over the water with thick-muscled legs. As he hit the water, he sensed instantly that something was very, very wrong.

"My God, oh my God," he thought raced through the young man's mind. "What was happened?" Unconsciousness was instant, even before his feet had hit the water.

His head struck a submerged tree stump barely ten inches below the water's surface. The inertia from the dive swung his body over his head and shoulders. Gravity forced his body downward, although his head had stopped. The effect of the two forces caused his neck to snap, forcing the young man's head to fold over on his back.

The shadows of that morning shortened as the sun rose and blazed down on the red Georgia earth. The deepening humidity made breathing laborious, stifling the spirit.

A fisherman further downstream cursed the heat, the humidity and the creek. It was the worst day that fisherman had ever lived, but not because he hadn't had a nibble all day. It was he who discovered the young man floating dead in the muddy current.

We all feel called to nature; that's what "spring fever" is. But unlike the wild animals in nature, human's haven't cultivated the instinct of extreme caution necessary for survival, whether it's in the wild, at home, at work or in the middle of some asphalt jungle.

It doesn't have to be that way.

142 MOS Score

"The best in the Army." That's what SSG Robert C. Pettengill can now say. He scored an exceptional 142 on his regular MOS test for 83F40 in August, the highest score in his MOS Armywide. SSG Pettengill is currently assigned to Co. A, Hqs. Comd. and works in the Field Printing Plant here at Ft. Benning. When asked what the contributing factors to his high score were, SSG Pettengill replied, "Mostly it's just working on the machines (off-set printers) every day and getting really familiar with the MOS."

This distinction isn't a new one to SSG Pettengill — in 1970 he also scored a 142 for the highest score Army-wide. SSG Pettengill received most of his high proficiency while working in the Topographical Printing Plant in USAREUR. He has completed 11 years of experience in his MOS and has received proficiency pay for nine of the 11 years. When asked about the pro-pay program, SSG Pettengill stated, "It's well worth the time to study and keep up with the MOS."

First-term reenlistment

SP4 Gregory Hatcher recently became the first first-term re-enlistment in the short history of Co. C, Spt. Bn., 197th Inf. Bde. Hatcher, a native of Ellaville, Ga., is working as an auto repair parts specialist in the unit's motor pool and re-enlisted for his present duty assignment. The 21-year-old soldier recently completed the 197th Inf. Bde's NCO Development Course and is on the promotion list for E-5.

"I'd like to get into recruiting eventually," Hatcher stated. "I feel I have a good career ahead of me." Prior to entering the Army, Hatcher worked for the North Carolina State Forest Service and attended high school at the same time.

Soldier reups for Germany

When Sp4 Donald Bailey joined the Army over two years ago, he really had no idea he would be re-enlisting.

He also had no idea that his old hometown neighbor and now company commander, CPT Robert T. Dingley, would be the one to administer the re-enlistment oath.

Both Bailey and Dingley are from Harpswell, Maine, located on the southern coast of the state. "We were not really next door neighbors," Bailey confessed. "But my wife Clara did live only a few blocks away from CPT Dingley before we were married." "When I first received his orders," Dingley stated, "I saw that his leave address was familiar. I remember Clara since she was a little girl and I believe that I did meet Bailey once just after they were married."

Bailey, a medical specialist, re-enlisted for a five-year tour of duty in Germany. He recently returned to the states after serving two years in the European country. "We loved it over there and are really looking forward to going back," Bailey stated.

1/58th advance party arrives at Ft. Bliss

"Run for your life" can really pay off

It's springtime and the weather's getting better. Now is the time for you to think about getting outside and back in shape for the upcoming summer months.

One good way to do this is through the "Run for your Life" program. Many post personnel have found this a simple and effective way to help maintain and improve their physical condition. Just take a look outside during the noon hour or after duty and see the number of personnel on the various tracks around post running for their life.

The program was started by MG Orwin Talbott in 1970 as an individual physical fitness program designed to improve a person's condition and endurance. It is a progressive activity which allows each participant to advance at his own rate. In addition the runner is able

The advance party of the 1st Bn., (Mech), 58th Inf. (Patriots) has arrived at McGregor Range Camp at Ft. Bliss, Texas and is busily getting ready to welcome Co. A of the battalion which departed Ft. Benning yesterday to commence desert and mountain training.

In a telephone conversation with Maj. Russ Zink, the battalion S-3 and commander of the advance party which arrived at McGregor Range Camp April 25, Zink reports that the preparatory phase is progressing very smoothly.

The advance party is establishing final coordination with the 3rd Armored Cav. Reg. and McGregor Range Camp officials where the "Patriots" will be billeted and trained.

"The 3rd ACR has established recondo classes and instruction for selected members of our advance party who, in turn, will provide instruction to our troops when they arrive," stated Maj. Zink. "The training being conducted consists of desert conditioning, rappelling, balance climbing, mountaineering and various other techniques of survival in the desert."

Zink said, "Our troops are adjusting to the heat," continued Maj. Zink, "each morning we start the day with PT at 5:30 and its really paying dividends. Moral is high and we are looking forward to receiving Co. A when it arrives. They are in for a great experience and great training."

Co. B of the "Patriots" is scheduled to arrive at Ft. Bliss on May 23 and Co. C on June 6.

Each unit will conduct three weeks of desert and mountain training prior to returning to Ft. Benning.

CAUTION-SERVICE MEMBERS

Recently, several military members have engaged the services of individuals, not connected with the U.S. Army, in an attempt to secure compassionate reassignments, hardship discharges, and other personnel actions. These individuals, who are not attorneys, allegedly charge exorbitant amounts of money for their services. These services consist of writing letters to military authorities or in some instances, escorting the military member to the proper office. All personnel should be advised that these individuals have no special influence and can not serve the soldier any better than the proper chain of command or other staff officer such as the Inspector General or Legal assistance Officer.

HOUSING AREA STORAGE BUILDINGS

It has been observed, during inspection, that occupants in the housing areas are using the roofs of their storage buildings to store items. These buildings were not designed for that purpose. In addition to creating an unsightly condition, it can cause damage to the building. These damages must be restored, at occupant's expense. All material presently stored on the roofs of these buildings must be removed in order to prevent damage to buildings.

RELEASE OF MEDICAL RECORDS

Adult medical records will not be released to an individual, other than the person that the records pertain to, unless a signed authorization for the release of medical records is presented to the Medical Treatment Facility. The signature of the patient must be authenticated by a Notary of the Public or a member of the Martin Army Hospital Administrative Division. Because of this requirement, it is suggested that dependent wives go by the MAH Annex to sign for their own records for delivery to the next military facility, or between clinics.

When a sponsor is in receipt of PCS Orders, and desires to hand carry his dependents outpatient medical records, the dependent wife must present a copy of his PCS orders, her ID card, and medical treatment card to the out-patients records room and sign for records. However, should the sponsor desire to pick up the records for his wife, he must present an authorization or release, as noted above, and a copy of his PSC orders, and sign a receipt for the records.

S-S-S-SNAKES...

What's a guy to do?

By TERRY D. RAGAN

The great writer Samuel Johnson had said that he could repeat a complete chapter of "The Natural History of Iceland," from the Danish of Harrobbow, the whole of which was exactly thus: "Chapter seventy-two. Concerning Snakes. There are no snakes to be met with throughout the whole island."

Bartlett's Familiar Quotations

That's fine for Icelanders. When spring comes, they worry about how long it will take the ice to melt; snakes don't enter anyone's conversations. Humans on that far-flung land do whatever they do without even thinking that 'ol slyboots might be lurking near.

Not so in semitropical Georgia where all kinds of snakes live and thrive. People from all over the United States (indeed, the world) live and work on Ft. Benning and it's unnering—a damn nuisance, really—to learn that there are some really dangerous snakes here.

What is a dangerous snake? A dangerous snake is a poisonous snake; and a dangerous snake is any snake that you don't know how to catch for whatever reason. Man's instinctive fear of snakes is so great that to be bitten by a snake (whether poisonous or not) is enough to cause catastrophic panic. It would not be walking on shaky ground to say that more people have died from not being able to think than from snake venom. That's dangerous.

Let's back up for a moment to consider snakes and the balance of nature. Snakes do an outstanding job of controlling the local rodent population—rats and mice. Occasionally the larger snakes feast on rabbits or quail, but that's rare. The so-called tree snakes (which don't usually live in the U.S.) are specially equipped with longer teeth to better grasp small birds. In turn, predatory birds (sometimes cats, raccoons, skunks and foxes) — and man — kill snakes. Snakes belong where they are, and every single one of them has a job to do.

What kinds of snakes live here? All kinds of species live here. They're beautiful and ugly, large and small, poisonous and nonpoisonous. The ones you're interested in are the poisonous type — snakes that could put you in a hospital or a coffin.

The Pygmy Rattlesnake (1-1½ feet long) and the Southern Copperhead (2½ feet average length) are not generally dangerous to man.

The Canebreak Rattlesnake (misnamed "timber rattler"), the Eastern Diamondback Rattlesnake and the Eastern Cottonmouth have potentially fatal venom. These last three range from 3-5 feet long fully grown. The venom of these five snakes are hemotoxic, which means that blood cells and blood vessel linings come under attack. What happens, generally speaking, is that the blood loses its ability to carry oxygen.

That leaves one dangerous snake—the dreaded Coral Snake. His maximum length is 46 inches, with the average right at 30 inches. He's skinny—only about as big around as your index finger. His living area doesn't begin until about 40 miles south of Columbus, so you won't see him on Ft. Benning unless he's lost. He's also very secretive—professionals have to look very hard to find this guy. His venom is neurotoxic; the nervous system comes under attack.

What kind of protocol would you observe if you meet any snake on a fishing, hunting or hiking trip? Don't move up to see what kind of snake he is or to determine whether or not he's poisonous. Why force the snake to fight? Just back off and walk around him. Give him as wide a berth as possible.

Chances are he'll move out before you will. Salute him if you want. Don't try to kill him. More people have been bitten trying to kill or capture a snake than those bitten entirely by surprise.

Finally comes the biggest question of all; what happens if you do get bitten? It can happen if either you or the snake weren't careful. When it happens, a sequence of events should occur. First, make up your mind that you're not going to panic.

That alone will save your life. It's easy to say "I won't panic," but each of us may have to face a panic situation and must try to overcome it.

Second, and only when you've been bitten, try to kill that snake. The reason: you'll have to determine whether or not he's poisonous. If you're with a friend, both of you try to kill it. Cut off its head and leave it on the ground.

Turn the snake over on its back. If the snake is nonpoisonous there will be two rows of scales starting at the snake's anus. That is true of all nonpoisonous snakes in this area except the Coral Snake.

buddy. Do everything stated earlier and in addition, watch for symptoms. There will be nausea and shortness of breath, and of course, swelling—all if the bite was poisonous.

We've purposely avoided talking about colors, shapes of heads and eyes, and other characteristics of poisonous snakes because we're banking on the accuracy of human nature and our sources of information. Namely, that you'll back away from snakes—second, that you'll go with at least one friend who can help.

Third, that you'll quickly identify a poisonous snake by looking at his belly or—fourth, that you'll be close enough to get to a hospital ASAP.

We haven't said anything about another old saw—cutting an X on the wound and sucking out the venom like on "Death Valley Days." Probably because that's exactly what happens; in the excitement of a crisis so many people have sawed off an extremity and practically died from loss of blood that the procedure just isn't worth recommending.

It took a lot of space to discuss something that will probably never happen to you. Jake Noshoulders knows when you're coming by the vibrations you make just walking in the bush. Usually he's long gone; he has a healthy respect for you. Show just a little for him.

He's also very secretive—professionals have to look very hard to find this guy. His venom is neurotoxic; the nervous system comes under attack.

What kind of protocol would you observe if you meet any snake on a fishing, hunting or hiking trip? Don't move up to see what kind of snake he is or to determine whether or not he's poisonous. Why force the snake to fight? Just back off and walk around him. Give him as wide a berth as possible.

Chances are he'll move out before you will. Salute him if you want. Don't try to kill him. More people have been bitten trying to kill or capture a snake than those bitten entirely by surprise.

That alone will save your life. It's easy to say "I won't panic," but each of us may have to face a panic situation and must try to overcome it.

Second, and only when you've been bitten, try to kill that snake. The reason: you'll have to determine whether or not he's poisonous. If you're with a friend, both of you try to kill it. Cut off its head and leave it on the ground.

Turn the snake over on its back. If the snake is nonpoisonous there will be two rows of scales starting at the snake's anus. That is true of all nonpoisonous snakes in this area except the Coral Snake.

ones you're interested in are the poisonous type — snakes that could put you in a hospital or a coffin.

The Canebrake Rattlesnake (mismamed "timber rattler"), the Eastern Diamondback Rattlesnake and the Eastern Cottonmouth have potentially fatal venom. These last three range from 3-5 feet long fully grown. The venom of these five snakes are hemotoxic, which means that blood cells and blood vessel linings come under attack. What happens, generally speaking, is that the blood loses its ability to carry oxygen.

buddy. Do everything stated earlier and in addition, watch for symptoms. There will be nausea and shortness of breath, and of course, swelling—all if the bite was poisonous.

We've purposely avoided talking about colors, shapes of heads and eyes, and other characteristics of poisonous snakes because we're banking on the accuracy of human nature and our sources of information. Namely, that you'll back away from snakes—second, that you'll go with at least one friend who can help.

Third, that you'll quickly identify a poisonous snake by looking at his belly or—fourth, that you'll be close enough to get to a hospital ASAP.

We haven't said anything about another old saw—cutting an X on the wound and sucking out the venom like on "Death Valley Days." Probably because that's exactly what happens; in the excitement of a crisis so many people have sawed off an extremity and practically died from loss of blood that the procedure just isn't worth recommending.

It took a lot of space to discuss something that will probably never happen to you. Jake Noshoulders knows when you're coming by the vibrations you make just walking in the bush. Usually he's long gone; he has a healthy respect for you. Show just a little for him.

MAY

By BILL KLOEB

When the information gets around young fishermen are going to be putting a lot of pressure on grown ups to keep them in the Ft. Benning area over the Memorial Day weekend.

The post Fish and Wildlife Management Division plans to open Russ Pond and Russ Pool to fishermen under 16 years of age on May 25, 26, and 27.

The pond and the pool are loaded with fish of all kinds. Some have been there for quite a few years. According to Roy Johnston, chief of the Fish and Wildlife Division the pool contains some catfish that have probably been there for nearly ten years. Some of these could go as high as 13 pounds. There are also some bluegill and bass. A few of these could be good sized fish too. Another type fish inhabiting these waters is a stranger to this country. These fish are part of an experiment of state and Federal biologists. They are called White Amur. This strain of the carp family is a weed eater. They were stocked to keep down the weed growth. They come from Siberia and are a type fish about which very little is known. They may be a strain that we just don't want in this country. The Fish and Wildlife people would prefer that the big carp not be caught. A few probably will be landed. In that event it is requested that those catching the fish not take them from the pond area. It is important that a close account be kept on these fish. They must be returned to the Georgia Hatcheries when this experiment is completed.

Removing live carp of this type would prove dangerous to fishing populations over a large area. Their spawning habits are not known.

Introducing them into other waters could begin a chain reaction similar to that experienced with the walking catfish. A few of these catfish were put into Florida waters. They began to multiply and move. At last report they had become a threat to the populations of fish in waters from Florida to the southern part of South Carolina.

Memorial Weekend Fishing Contest

If Rod and Gun Club plans materialize, members may be able to get more than fish at the Russ pond-pool complex. Plans are underway to hold a fishing contest for members' children in conjunction with the Fish and Wildlife program to remove fish from the two areas. Nothing has been firmed up yet but initial coordination looks good. There will no doubt be more information available by next week.

May Fishing Derby

SFC Amos Anderson, 1Sg John Zebreski and SSG Jesse Waugh were winners of the Rod and Gun Club April Fishing Derby. Anderson won the bream contest with a 1-pound, 4-ounce catch. Zebreski was first in the catfish category with a 16-pound, 8-ounce monster and Waugh won the bass contest with a 7-pound, 8-ounce catch. Each of these fishermen received a $15 merchandise order for the purchase of items in the club shop.

The club now has a May Derby underway. All members are eligible to enter. The only requirements are that you catch your fish from one of the post ponds and bring it to Victory Lodge for weighing and registration.

There hasn't been too much activity so far this month. The only keeper type registered has been a 7-pound, 8-ounce catfish taken from Twilight Pond. The catch belongs to SSG Frank Latch.

Benning has billiard champ

SP4 Foster Goodman, Batt. B, 2nd Bn., 10th F.A., 197th Inf. Bde. recently captured the Ft. Benning 14.1 Billiards Championship and will represent the post in the TRADOC Championship this weekend.

Goodman, a battery clerk, qualified for the Post Championship after taking the championship at the Kelley Hill Service Club. The 20-year-old Goodman won both double elimination tournaments without a single loss. In addition to the two trophies he received, Goodman also won a radio in the post championship for having "the highest average of balls per inning."

The game of 14.1 billiards, sometimes called straight pool, is recognized by the Billiard Congress of America as the official championship billiards game. This is the first time Ft. Benning has ever had a championship in 14.1 billiards, although units overseas have played the game in championships for several years.

"I very seldom shoot pool," Goodman claimed. "My job keeps me busy and I really don't have that much free time." The Douglas, Ga. resident did admit however that all of his five brothers shoot pool.

"I guess I've been playing for about five years," Goodman stated. "It is a relaxing game and I enjoy it. Someone at the Service Club told me about the tournament so I entered."

Goodman will represent Ft. Benning in the TRADOC Championships along with SP5 William Martin, Co. B, HQ Comd. Martin was runner-up in the post tournament and also had the highest run, 18 balls, in the post level contest.

The first games begin this afternoon and will continue Saturday and Sunday. Spectators are welcome to watch the action at the Main Post Service Club. A total of seven posts will participate in the tournament with two players representing each.

Co. B keeps competition stiff

Co. B, Hqs Comd, has had excellent representation in both individual and team sports. With three important tournaments coming up in the near future, Co. B is certain to keep the competition stiff.

Starting on 5 May and running until 10 May 1974, Ft. Jackson, South Carolina will host the TRADOC Bowling Championship. Ft. Benning will be sending two males and two females to make up their post team, and one of those male representatives will be Co. B's SSG Leslie Koski. SSG Koski earned this honor by placing second out of 57 competitors in the post roll-offs held 3 to 5 April 1974. For 18 games bowled, SSG Koski averaged 191 pins per game.

Another individual honors winner is SP4 William Martin. SP4 Martin will be one of only two representatives in the TRADOC 14-1 Billiards Tournament. By placing first in the Main Post Recreation Center Tourney, and then going on to take second place in the Post Tourney, SP4 Martin proved himself to be quite effective with a pool cue. The TRADOC tournament will be on 10, 11, and 12 May 1974, right here at Ft. Benning.

The volleyball season is over for most units, but Co B is preparing for the post tournament to be held at the Harmony Church Field House from 6 to 10 May 1974. There will be seven major unit leagues represented, and Co B will be carrying the flag for Hqs Comd.

Hunt Club does well in show competition

The Ft. Benning Hunt Club was a most gracious host for their 12th annual Spring Horse Show last Saturday. However, being the gracious host did not deter from their desire to win as Hunt Club members took three of eight division championships.

Kim Carroll, riding "Juliet", won the Green Working Hunter Division. Kim garnered a first and

2/10th aim for tourney

The 197th Inf. Bde. Volleyball Championships concluded last week with HHB, 2nd Bn., 10th F.A. emerging the victor.

In a close contest the team from Co. C, 3rd Bn., 7th Inf. (Cottonbalers) finished runners-up and will join the "redlegs" as they represent the 197th Inf. Bde. in the post volleyball championships.

"We have been practicing regularly and are looking forward to the tournament," stated the team's captain, Ron Killpack. "The best part of our team is our ball control. We used it to beat the 3-7 in the brigade championship's finals."

"I feel our toughest opponent will be the Airborne Department," Killpack continued. "They always have a competitive team in volleyball."

"I feel our chances are as good as any other teams," stated SGT Charles Lockman, Co. C, 3-7. "Although I haven't seen any of the other post teams play, I've heard about some that are said to be good."

Debbie Bryant on two second place finishes in class competition to qualify for the division championship.

The Regular Working Hunter Division championship was won by Lauri Pennisi. Astride her mount, Blackjack, she won two of the three classes of the division. Lauri also took a 2nd and a 3rd in the Junior Working Hunter classes and a 4th in the equitation classes.

MP's new weapon tough on speeders

A soldier is heading home after a rough duty day. He's in a hurry. Glancing at his speedometer, he sees he's breaking the speed limit, but decides the chances of being stopped by the Military Police are slim.

Rounding a corner, he sees a man standing on the side of the road, pointing a gun at him. Terrified, he tries evasive action. He slams on the brakes, tries to turn away, but it's too late. He's been shot.

Not with a bullet, but with one of the most potent weapons in the MP's arsenal against speeders, the speed gun. When the gun is pointed toward an oncoming car and the trigger is pulled, the speed is automatically registered.

Recently the speed gun was used on Sightseeing Road directly behind TSB Headquarters. 2LT Dennis Davis, Traffic Officer of the Provost Marshall's Office operated the gun. A team of 5 MPs were with him, one to stop cars, and the others to write discipline reports. The MPs were there at the request of the TSB Commander, COL Allen M. Goodson, because of cars using excessive speeds on Sightseeing Road past the 5th and 4th Bns.

"We're available for command request type

MP's take survey

Have you seen the military policemen stationed recently around the various intersections surrounding the new Benning Mall complex? They've been counting cars and taking pictures as part of a traffic survey completed last week.

The purpose of the survey was "to tell us what we could do to make the traffic run better around the mall complex and Martin Army Hospital," according to Col. Eugene Murdock, Provost Marshal.

assignments like TSB's," said LT Davis, "because it's necessary to stop speeders in the areas where their troops live. There aren't very many men in the section, so we're spread pretty thin as far as setting up in as many places as we need."

Just a few minutes after setting up behind TSB, car after car was stopped. The MPs writing DRs were soon kept constantly busy. "We're not trying to set up speed traps," said LT Davis. "We're just trying to get people to slow down in those slow speed zones. Sure people aren't happy at getting a DR, but they would be a lot more unhappy and have a lot more problems if they should hit someone while breaking the speed limit."

Howdy, Bub. I wuz pullin' my turn in the Emergency Room last evenin' when Elizabeth Anne Buckstar pulled up to the entrance in her stationwagon, an' motioned me to come, on the run.

I grabbed my stethoscope an' loped out to the car, thinkin' that I wuz finally goin' to see a real emergency. I wuz, naturally, saddened at the thought of anyone bein' an emergency case, but glad that I had the necessary skills to do 'em some good. After all, that's what doctoriz' is all about; helpin' people in need.

Afore Elizabeth Anne showed up, I wuz seelin' ragin' cases of VD, excruciatin' pain in the fallen arches, massive bouts of fallin' hair, and acute cracked fingernails.

None of them is my idea of an emergency. Well anyway, Elizabeth Anne wuz standin' ahind her car rollin' down the back window, an' openin' the back door when I got there. When I looked into the back, there wuz Wilson Buckstar, moanin' and groanin' an' holdin' hisself 'crost his chest. I called for a wheeled stretcher, an' jumped into the back of the wagon to see what ailed Wilson.

He kept sayin' that he couldn't get his breath, an' had a lot of pain. At this I beganst to worry, but he seent the look on my face, an' said that he'd tumbled out of a tree, an' he didn't think it wuz his ticker actin' up.

I clapped my stethoscope on his chest an' listened for a minute or so; then I took his blood pressure, an' after it looked like it wasn't his heart botherin' him I let the attendants bring him into the emergency room, where I could do a complete job of examin' him.

After takin' a bunch of x-rays, doin' some more listenin', an' takin' a heart tracin' on Wilson, I wuz able to say for sure that he'd only cracked a coupla of ribs durin' his flight from the tree.

I wrapped Wilson in 'bout fifteen yards of adhesive tape an' gave him some aspirins to take iffen the pain rose up on him. Once all of the business wuz out of the way, I ast Wilson to tell me how he happened to be up in a tree.

It seems that Bud, the Buckstar boy, an' his daddy went over to Palmer's park to try out Bud's new kite. Things wuz goin' good, 'cept that Wilson wuz doin' all of the flyin', an' Bud wuz doin' all of the lookin', when of a sudden, the kite took a nosedive into a tree at the end of the field.

Wilson figured that as long as he wuz doin' the flyin' at the time of the mishap, he wuz kinda obliged to make the retrieval. Wilson clumb up into the tree an' wuz makin' a grab for the kite, but jes then the wind came up an' blew the kite outta the tree. As Wilson reacted to the loosened kite, he lost his hold, an' as he fell, managed to shuck every leave offen that side of the tree on his way down.

Bud ran home an' fetched Elizabeth Anne who brung Wilson to the hospital. Wilson sure wuz a lucky varmint on this trip. I'm sure that he'll be more careful in the future.

Well, Bub, I hope that you will watch out for them high tension wires when you are out helpin' your boy fly his kite. An', 'member what happened to Wilson iffen your kite gets snapped into some tree; No kite is worth fallin' for.

Keep in mind 'bout National Hospital Week, 12-18 May. Good health to you and yours . . .

MAH takes a step forward

Beginning April 25, 1974, most electrocardiograms taken at Martin Army Hospital will be transmitted by telecommunication to Walter Reed Army Medical Center. There they will be read, a diagnosis made, and placed into a file bank. Within an hour, technicians at MAH can request this information by the same method.

LTC Paul Anderson, Chief, Department of Medicine, learned of this system and expressed a desire for it to be installed at Martin Army Hospital. Walter Reed Army Institute of Research learning of Dr. Anderson's interest decided that MAH would be the first Army hospital to be placed on the Computer Assisted Electrocardiograph Interpretation System. The system is being installed on an experimental basis.

LTC Bruce Brundage, Chief, Cardiac Catheterization Laboratory, WRAMC, and CPT Douglas Ramseth, who had a PHD in electronics from Walter Reed Army Institute of Research were at MAH this week to supervise the installation and instruct personnel in the use of the machine.

The system operates through the telephone system. When an ECG is being taken at MAH, it is being recorded on a cassette tape. Each cassette records 20 ECGs. The tape is transmitted to WRAIR via autovon telephone to the computer along with additional patient information. One hour later the interpretations are available and can be sent back through a teletype machine to the heart station at MAH. Col. Anderson states, "We are proud to participate in this innovative program to extend physicians capacity through modern technology."

LTC Bruce Brundage instructs technician Harry Spooner in the operation of the Computer Assisted Electrocardiograph Interpretation System with help of technician Robert Petersen.

USASMA Offers NRIP

HQ TRADOC, Fort Monroe, Va. — The U.S. Army Sergeants Major Academy (USASMA) announced the start of a non-resident program. Class one will begin on or about 15 August 1974 and will have an enrollment of approximately 35 Active Army and 15 Reserve Component students. Titled the USASMA Nonresident Course, it will consist of 620 nonresident hours, 60 resident hours, and 45 hours for independent research. The course is devoted to a study of individual and organizational behavior, managing and leading soldiers.

After the August 1974 class, a class will start in July of each year. CONUS and overseas command personnel are eligible to apply and final selection will be made by a DA Board. Active Army NCO interested in applying for the August 1974 class should forward applications through channels to arrive at MILPERCEN, ATTN: DAPC-EPE-E, Alexandria, Va. 22331 NLT 30 June 1974.

The prerequisites for attendance are:

- a. PMOS score of 100 or higher.
- b. Pay grade E-8 (waiverable for all E-9)
- c. Maximum of 23 years service (waiverable).

Applications for class two should be received at MILPERCEN by 30 October 1974. Students may be deferred to the next class if exceptional reasons exist or they may be voluntarily disenrolled by applying through command channels to MILPERCEN.

2/10 radar section trains on new counter mortar radar set conducting training in conjunction with B Batt. 2nd Bn. 10th FA which was calibrating its howitzers.

The men of the Radar Section of HHB, 2nd Bn., 10th FA, 197th Inf. Bde. were out in full force last week as they trained on the recently received AN-MPQ 4A counter mortar radar set.

"We calibrated 12 guns yesterday and six today," stated MAJ Richard R. Noack, executive officer of Ft. Benning's largest field artillery unit. "Calibration is conducted at least once each year and is essential in maintaining accuracy," concluded MAJ Noack.

"Training in conjunction with the battery provides us the opportunity to plot the impact of rounds and provides more realism in training. The radar set is mobile, can move with the artillery and is used to locate mortars or artillery weapons which may be firing upon friendly troops," stated CW2 John A. Edwards the Radar section chief.

"The computer does all the work, all we have to do is watch the scope for a round when it is fired, then presto it gives us the location it was fired from," commented SP4 Keith V. Frase, a unit of choice volunteer. "It only takes one round to obtain the location of a weapon. Of course there are other aspects to the radar set, it can be used for friendly artillery registration, vectoring of aircraft and a hasty survey of a position for firing battery," concluded Mr. Edwards.

MAH to inaugurate MAST program

Dust-off missions, familiar to any soldier who served in Vietnam, will soon become a household word to the civilian communities surrounding Ft. Benning.

The MAST program, providing emergency air ambulance service, will be inaugurated during ceremonies at Martin Army Hospital heliport on Santa Fe Road at 3:20 p.m. on May 24. Secretary of the Army Howard "Bo" Callaway, U.S. Senator Sam Nunn and Ft. Benning Commander, MG Thomas M. Tarpley will be among a host of national and local dignitaries in attendance.

MAST (Military Assistance to Safety and Traffic) is jointly sponsored by the Departments of Defense, Transportation, and Health, Education and Welfare. The program is designed to utilize military helicopters and the service of para-medical personnel in responding to civilian medical emergencies.

The 498th Medical Co. (Air Ambulance), 34th Medical Bn., has been assigned the mission of supporting the MAST program. The 498th will maintain a UH-1H helicopter, configured as an air ambulance, and crew on a daily 24-hour standby for support of the MAST program.

Requests for MAST missions will be transmitted through one of the Central Regulating Committee (CRC) sites that have been established by the Civilian Coordinating Committee for MAST-Ft. Benning. Requests may also be accepted direct to the 498th operations from law enforcement officers, physicians or other responsible persons at the scene of an emergency. Individuals serving on the CRC's will have the responsibility of screening mission requests and obtaining information relative to the requirements of the MAST program.

MAST operations will normally be conducted in an area extending 100 miles from Ft. Benning, to include 54 counties in Georgia and 15 in Alabama touched by the radius of the area to be served. The mission may be the evacuation of accident victims, interhospital transfer of patients, or blood and human organ transfer.

Actual field experience with MAST has uncovered the need for interhospital transfers. Health, Education and Welfare officials estimates that 70% of patients moved by MAST have been emergency interhospital transfers.

The local MAST coordinating committee, composed of representatives of civilian communities in the geographic area served by MAST-Ft. Benning, is responsible for MAST operations and coordination. Dr. Ann Barton of Columbus is the Civilian MAST coordinator for Georgia and is responsible for directing and coordinating all non-military aspects on a day-to-day basis. Dr. Barton is the Regional Health Planner for the Georgia Dept. of Human Resources. Dr. Charles Gillespie, an Albany physician has overall control of the MAST-Ft. Benning program as the Chairman, Executive Committee. Mr. Bill Ringo of Gadsden in the Civilian Coordinator for Alabama.

Military representative of the 34th Medical Bn. and the 498th Medical Co. serve on the MAST coordinating Committee as advisory members.

Support of the MAST program by the 498th may be limited due to primary evacuation of military personnel, aircraft availability or the limited number of Medevac crews on duty at any given time. The program provides an interim service pending the establishment of a satisfactory civilian program, and is not in competition with, or a substitute for, available civilian emergency ambulance services.

Fourth of July Carnival to have fun and prizes

A sporty yellow 1974 Chevrolet Camaro, fully equipped with air conditioning and power steering and brakes, will be one of the door prizes in this year's 4th of July Carnival. Three Kawasaki trail bikes ranging in size from 125cc to 90cc, will also be awarded.

Other prizes include two Zenith color television sets with 14inch screens, and a complete set of professional golf clubs including a golf bag and shoes.

A modular RCA stereo set with phonograph, radio and tape system will be awarded, as well as a "Jet Stream" system stereo by Akai and a Sound Design phonograph, radio and tape system.

Two Panasonic AM-FM clock radios with weather band will be among the prizes, along with four three-speed bicycles, two men's and two women's. Other sports equipment includes a man's and woman's bowling ball with shoes and bag. Two Panasonic portable tape cassette players will be awarded. A "first" for this year is 75 "Share the Wealth" cash prizes.

Tickets can be obtained from now through the 4th of July from unit representatives, or at the Post Exchange at Fort Benning Mall.

Proceeds from the carnival go to support a number of programs on post. Two of these are the Youth Activities Branch of Recreation Services Division, and the social welfare and services programs of Army Community Service.

The dental health program in the post dependent schools and the Red Cross Volunteers Nursery Program, which pays nursery fees while Volunteers are on duty throughout the post, are also supported by proceeds from the carnival.

Callaway to visit Ft. Benning

Secretary of the Army Howard H. "Bo" Callaway will make his first visit to the U.S. Army Infantry Center on Friday, May 24.

The Secretary is scheduled to arrive at Lawson Field at 9 a.m., and will be honored at 9:25 ceremony at York Field.

Ft. Benning is no strange place for the LaGrange, Georgia native. The Secretary served as an instructor at the Infantry School during his last two years in the Army. A graduate of the U.S. Military Academy, he received his commission in 1949.

He served as a platoon leader while participating in three campaigns during the Korean War, and was awarded the Republic of Korea Presidential Unit Citation and the Combat Infantryman's Badge.

Mr. Callaway will address Infantry Officer Advanced Course students in Marshall Auditorium at 10:25 Thursday.

In the afternoon he will visit the 36th Engineer Group and the 197th Infantry Brigade.

The Secretary will then take part in the dedication ceremony marking the start of the Military Assistance to Safety and Traffic (MAST) program. Also at that ceremony will be U.S. Senator Sam Nunn, D., Ga.

Mr. Callaway has long been active in a variety of business, political, educational and civic enterprises. He was named Civilian Aide for the Third Army Area by former Secretary of the Army, Stanley R. Resor, December 30, 1970. He is Chairman of the Council of Trustees, Freedoms Foundation at Valley Forge; former International President of the Young Presidents Organization; and Republican National Committeeman for the state of Georgia. He was the Republican candidate for Governor of Georgia in 1966. He served in the 89th Congress and represented the third district of Georgia in 1965-1966.

Do you think a soldier with financial problems should seek professional advice?

SFC WILLIE J. CHAPPELL
"A" CO., 2-69th

"I feel that he should seek advice through the normal chain of command. If he uses his chain of command, he could get his problem solved a lot faster. I feel that the chain of command is more effective because the individual might not know what procedures to take in the first place.

SP-4 FREDDIE JONES
2nd EVAC.

"Yes: I have money problems myself. I don't know how to go about solving them. I feel that the majority of the people that have money problems know how to manage their money. I must spend my money foolishly because I never seem to have enough to last me from pay-day to pay-day.

SP-4 KENNETH HUBBARD
139th M.P. COMPANY

"Yes, I sure do. When people get money, they go out and buy things they really don't need or can't afford. It's just a waste of money. A car dealer knows a soldier needs a car, so they make an offer he just can't resist. Therefore the soldier goes head over heels in debt when he can't really afford to.

CPT JOHN STANOWSKI
S.J.A. LEGAL SECTION

"Most assuredly. Most servicemen are unaware that their pre-service indebtedness can be reduced through the Soldiers and Sailors Civil Relief Act. Counseling services are available to the soldier at the Army Community Service and the S.J.A. Legal Assistance Office.

SGT JAMES YANCEY
"C" CO., 1-58th, 197th

"Yes. He wouldn't be in financial spot if he knew what he was doing. A man who makes a lot of money wouldn't have a lot of money if he didn't know how to manage it. A man with little money could have a lot if he knows how to manage it.

SP-4 GARY SHOEMAKER
"C" CO., 1-29th

"Yes, I think so. They have the knowledge of getting people's money squandered away. I think one has to be careful, be it a military or civilian financial advisor."

Energy

Forget me not the full shortage is here

The crisis is over but not the fuel shortage. You most likely have experienced some difficulty in buying gas if you own a car. This is not the only shortage we have to deal with there seems to be the threat of an impending electric shortage if the south does not conserve their use of air conditioning, unnecessary lights, or let the television run even though no one is watching it.

Unfortunately, the military community always is under the watchful eye of the civilian community. We might as well as face up to our responsibility and set the example.

This responsibility is shared by everyone even those of us in the barracks. Let's keep the lights off in the rooms that we are not using such as the latrine, dayrooms and the bay or private rooms. If you see a fire light on during the day take the few extra steps and cover some one else's oversight.

There are many ways that we can save the energy and it will save money for those in the home of their own. It will save money for the post and in turn they can spend the money on something else that will benefit the troops.

Why should I always be the one who has to be the one to conserve energy. Don't fool yourself there are thousands of people in the United States that are using common sense in the energy consumption; and you don't stand by yourself. If we are dumb enough to think that the problem is over we are in for a big surprise and we will end up like many of our European friends being forced to do without because there is no source of energy.

There are several things that you can do to help; it seems very apparent that many of the individuals working on post are not following the speed limit. You may not receive a pat on the back for driving slower but you can be satisfied that you are doing what is asked. Try to plan all your shopping at once and save several trips to the store.

We have mentioned before the voice in government that you have, if you see anything that seems wasteful you can write your government representative and ask that he get something done about it. If you work or reside at Ft. Benning you can turn in a suggestion and you may earn some money if it saves the Army money.

Try to keep your air conditioning use to a minimum and when you do use it keep the doors to the bedroom closed during the day. Keep the windows closed. If you have a child that goes out and in constantly it would be healthier to keep the air conditioner off and leave the doors open. With the temperature inside the house close to the outside temperature the child will be less likely to catch a cold, and if the doors are open you will be able to hear the child better if he yells for help.

The use of water takes energy. Consider taking showers instead of a bath, beside being cleaner you use less water which takes less gas or electricity. Be sure to keep all faucets turned off. Another way is to wait until the late afternoon or evening to water the yard, this way use less water and not as much evaporation occurs in the evening.

If the house seems hot and uncomfortable in the late afternoon consider cooking outside more and prepare the side dishes earlier in the day so you don't become trapped in a hot kitchen. When you do decide to cook outside remember to keep the lighter fluid out of the reach of the children and exercise care in using it.

There are thousands of ways that you can save energy and still enjoy the comforts of modern living. Don't let the failure of neighbors to save energy sour your efforts just keep the faith and keep on trucking.

598th participates in 18th Airborne exercise

The 598th Light Maintenance Company, of the 36th Engineer Group, recently participated in a load up exercise conducted by 18th Airborne Corps, Ft. Bragg, N.C. The exercise was part of the unit's readiness training in the event that they should be called on to support either the 82nd or the 101st Airborne Divisions, should they be deployed anywhere in the world.

"We were alerted at about 8 o'clock the morning of April 15 to prepare to load the 598th on cargo transport planes at Lawson Airfield as a part of the exercise," said 1LT Tom Winn, Executive Officer of the 598th.

"Aside from the problems of loading up the equipment so that it could be air transportable, we also had to process all the personnel records, shot records, and finance records as if the company were actually leaving Ft. Benning."

The company had to be ready to load on an Air Force C-5A (the largest cargo transport airplane in the world) within 72 hours of their alert notification. The exercise marked the first time the company had actually loaded on an aircraft and prepared for take off.

The entire unit was moved to a marshalling area and from there, the company was broken into plane loads to move to Tents were set up and the 598th simulated being in a foreign country. The exercise ended Friday when the unit came in from the field.

Edith Bell receives Jefferson Award

Edith Bell, daughter of Chaplain (MAJ) and Mrs. Robert E. Bell, recently received the Jefferson Davis Award from the Columbus Chapter of the United Daughters of the Confederacy. The award is the second highest that can be given by the organization and was presented to the Spencer High School student for an essay she wrote about the Confederate Roman Catholic Chaplain, Abram J. Ryan. The essay will be placed in the organization's archives in Atlanta. In addition to the award, Miss Bell received a $35 cash prize. She was sponsored in the contest by Mrs. John Cole, her Amucan History teacher. Chaplain Bell is an assistant chaplain of the 197th Inf. Bde.

AER exceeds goal

For the fourth year in a row, the Army Emergency Relief Fund Drive has not only met its goal, but exceeded it. The goal for this year was $17,500, and $19,145.11 was collected from all the major units and sections on post. Army Emergency Relief funds are used to help soldiers in financial difficulties. Interest-free loans are made for basics such as food and rent, and grants are given to help pay funeral expenses. Loans are also made to help pay travel expenses when a soldier needs to go home because of family difficulties. A number of units at Fort Benning exceeded their individual goals for this year.

3/7 teams with 129th in Florida, Alabama exercise

To maintain and improve tactical proficiency in ground and airmobile operations Co. B, 3rd Bn., 7th Inf. (Cottonbalers) joined forces with the Army Aviation School at Ft. Rucker, Ala. and the 129th Assault Helicopter Co. from Ft. Bragg, N.C. last week to conduct a three-day exercise in Alabama and Florida.

The 129th, Assault Helicopter Co., the first unit ever to receive refresher training as a complete unit at Ft. Rucker, was conducting its Operational Readiness Training Test (ORTT) and resting a new concept in Army aviation while supporting the 197th Inf. Bde. unit.

The Cottonbaler unit, commanded by CPT Edward DeVos, commenced its portion of the airmobile exercise on Tuesday morning, May 7, with an airlift from Layte Airfield at Ft. Benning to Ft. Rucker in four CH-47 Chinook helicopters from the Army Aviation School. Shortly thereafter the rifle company was airlifted by UH-1 Huey helicopters of the 129th Assault Helicopter Co. to tactical locations on the Alabama military post.

After receiving the tactical operations order, the company was airlifted to Eglin AFB, Fla., and conducted its first night combat airmobile assault.

On Wednesday morning Co. B was airlifted to Alaquia Point, Fla. for small boat training and a little "fun in the sun" on the Florida coast as the company commander put it.

"The night helicopter assault, small boat training, helicopter insertions and training in an unfamiliar area was just what we needed," stated CPT DeVos after the exercise.

"I really enjoyed the ride in the Chinook," explained PVT Seward McEiveen. "It was an experience I never had before. The night training was new too and riding in the helicopter at night was exciting."

The unit returned to Ft. Rucker Thursday morning and was flown back to Ft. Benning Thursday afternoon.

"I'd like to do it again," conducted PVT Earnest Watts. "The training with the rafts was fun and a good experience. Going to different places for each type of training made it much more interesting to me."

Off and running are troops of Co. B, 3rd Bn., (Cottonbalers) 7th Inf. as they are landed at Ft. Rucker, Ala. to participate in a three day airmobile exercise with the Army Aviation

School and the 129th Assault Helicopter Company from Ft. Bragg, N.C. This was the Cottonbaler unit's first airmobile exercise using CH 47 Chinook helicopters.

Scouts will participate in bicycle safety rodeo

Fifty to 75 Cub Scouts from Pack 27, Ft. Benning District, will converge on Faith School Saturday, May 18 for a bicycle rodeo as part of cub scouting's

May theme — Bicycle Safety. The event will be held from 10-12 a.m. in the Faith School Parking lot. The rodeo will be a six-event, individual skill test for the boys. There won't be individual or den awards. The six events are: Slalom Run, Straight Line Driving, Turn Signal and Direction Change Test, Figure 8, U-Turn Test and Emergency Stop. Military Police will register each bicycle and dad's social security account number will be etched on each bike registered.

The National Safety Council is cooperating with the Bicycle Safety theme.

Chronology of Fort Benning Highlights 1973-74

May 1973

The 145th Aviation Battalion was activated and LTC Lawrence A. Bell assumed command.

Groundbreaking ceremonies were held for a multi-million dollar addition to Martin Army Hospital.

June 1973

The 931st Engineer Group was de-activated and the colors retired. The 36th Engineer Group was activated to replace it.

July 1973

BG Military L. Bailey, Director of the Women's Army Corps, visited Fort Benning and announced, "All MOS's except those directly combat-related are now open to women."

The 197th Infantry Brigade was reorganized as a U.S. Army Forces Command unit.

October 1973

The 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry was moved from the 197th Infantry Brigade to The School Brigade. It now has the mission of school support.

November 1973

Privates Joyce Kutsch and Rita Johnson became the first WACs to graduate from Airborne Training. They went on to Ft. Lee, Va., to attend parachute rigger school.

January 1974

LTC Kenneth C. Leuer and CSM Neal Gentry were put in charge of the 1st Battalion, 75th Infantry (Ranger), scheduled to train here until June, when it will be moved to Ft. Stewart, Ga.

February 1974

COL Robert L. Rollier assumed duties as Fort Benning's new Chief of Staff.

The post cut energy consumption levels in response to a nationwide energy crisis.

1st Lt. Gary D. Messano became the 22nd winner of the annual Robert P. Patterson Memorial Award, given annually to the outstanding OCS graduate.

March 1974

The new shopping complex, Fort Benning Mall, was opened. The new mall contains 240,000 square feet of space, and was built at a cost of $5.5 million.

It includes the Post Exchange, Commissary, and many other shops, as well as a bank, service station and bowling alley.

The 586th Float Bridge Company, 2nd of the 43rd Engineer Battalion, 36th Engineer Group was sent to Hilton Head Island, S.C. to build a float bridge and get water traffic going again. A bridge had jammed following a barge collision, bringing traffic to a halt and stranding visitors to the island, a noted tourist vacation spot.

April 1974

The first year of the Branch Immaterial Officer Candidate Course was completed. The course replaced OCS, and was shortened from 23 to 14 weeks in length.

The 197th Infantry Brigade was declared a combat-ready STRAF unit after weeks of testing culminating a year of intensive training.

The 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry saw a change of command: LTC Kenneth S. Pond succeeded LTC Robert M. Brumback.

May 1974

Three colonels, COL Alexander M. Weyand, COL Paul J. Mueller Jr., and COL William B. Steele, were nominated by President Nixon for temporary promotion to the grade of Brigadier General.

ARMED FORCES DAY
18 MAY 1974

Armed Forces Day is the time set aside for our nation to salute the men and women in uniform for their patriotic service. At the same time, we are afforded an opportunity to re-examine our commitments and responsibilities as members of these Armed Services who are being honored.

Here at the Infantry Center we can be proud of our accomplishments. We have endeavored in every way to live up to the theme of this year's Armed Forces Day -- "American Forces -- Vigilant, Vital, Volunteer." Made up mostly by volunteers, we are ready to react to changes and new concepts and meet all challenges. All personnel are to be commended for a performance during this past year which has become an Infantry Center standard of excellence.

In tribute to the soldiers of this installation and to their families, Armed Forces Day should be a respite from arduous duties and a period of re-dedication to our vital mission.

SECRETARY OF THE ARMY
WASHINGTON

ARMED FORCES DAY MESSAGE, 1974

As we celebrate this Armed Forces Day, I want to take a moment to thank you for providing the visible proof that the volunteer Army is working. With your support, the Army was able to make a smooth transition from a draft-era Army to today's volunteer force -- while at the same time, increasing our combat and mission effectiveness.

The readiness of the Army has progressed at a rapid pace during the past few months. This is due largely to the increased emphasis in the areas of leadership development, professional training, educational opportunities, job satisfaction and career management. As a result, discipline is better, morale is better, training is better. Today's Army is truly more people oriented than it has ever been before.

I am proud of the progress we have made in attracting quality people to our volunteer Army -- one of the Nation's vigilant and vital forces for peace and freedom. Let us re-dedicate our efforts to sustain the volunteer Army in the years to come. That will be my goal, and I hope it will be yours, too.

Bo Callaway
Howard H. Callaway

THE SECRETARY OF DEFENSE
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20301

Armed Forces Day is the time set aside to honor the men and women of our Armed Forces. Americans have every right to be proud of them. Their dedication to duty, to country, and to the maintenance of high standards of preparedness continue to insure our nation's freedom and security. A grateful nation takes this opportunity to pay tribute to the personal sacrifices which men and women in uniform continue to make in the line of service.

Armed Forces Day also is a time to reflect on the necessity for vigilance, readiness and strength in maintaining peace. Let us re-commit ourselves to the wholehearted support of a strong Army, Navy, Air Force and Marine Corps which continue to be essential to the security of our great nation.

Active duty strength of the Army is 786,877.

December 1973

A revitalized Army "Stripes for Skills Program" is placed into effect. Civilians possessing a skill required by the Army will be offered advanced promotions for enlisting under the program.

The Secretary of the Army announces that the Army has met its monthly recruiting goal for the first time since the draft ended 10 months ago. Recruiters signed up 102 percent of their 12,900 goal for the month of November.

The Continental Army Command (CONARC) is officially retired after more than 18 years of service.

Active duty strength of the Army is 782,244.

The number of women in the Army Reserve stands at 3,000, more than triple the number at the beginning of the year.

January 1974

For the first time, females are authorized to enroll in the Junior ROTC program. Almost 8,000 students are currently participating in the program and this enrollment is expected to increase to approximately 13,000 during the coming school year.

February 1974

The Army announces plans to phase out six headquarters: U.S. Army Alaska; U.S. Army Forces, Southern Command; U.S. Army Pacific; Theater Army Support Command, Europe; Engineer Command, Europe; and U.S. Army Intelligence Command (Fort Meade, MD). The initial goal is to increase the Army Force structure from 13-13 to 14 Divisions. This will be achieved with the military spaces and funds made available by elimination of these six headquarters, reductions in other Army headquarters including Headquarters Department of the Army, and other management actions. The U.S. Army Intelligence Command will be phased out by June 30, 1974; the other five headquarters during Fiscal Year 1975.

March 1974

Last date for retirees to elect to participate in the Survivor Benefit Plan.

April 1974

The U.S. Army Reserve celebrates its 66th anniversary.

PRESIDENTIAL ARMED FORCES DAY MESSAGE

On this Armed Forces Day, over 2 million American servicemen and women stand ready, as always, to defend our freedom. This day provides an occasion for Americans everywhere to pay tribute to them.

As we begin what promises to be an era of reduced world tensions, we must not forget the contribution which our soldiers, sailors, airmen, marines and coast guardsmen make to the strength and security of the free world. We must never lose sight of the fact that our continued military strength is the cornerstone of future peace.

Once again, as in the days of George Washington, our Armed Forces are being manned by volunteers. In restoring that honorable tradition we must demonstrate our continuing support for the members of our Armed Forces. The guardians of America's liberties deserve the admiration and respect of those they defend.

Armed Forces Day 1974 provides each of us with a specific opportunity to express our appreciation to America's men and women in uniform, and to their families. In demonstrating our support for them we can help ensure that our Armed Forces of tomorrow will continue to be composed of dedicated, professional, and courageous young citizens -- the finest our society has to offer.

197th men undergo training in amphibious operations

Selected officers and non-commissioned officers (NCOs) of the 197th Infantry Brigade underwent three days of training in amphibious operations planning last week. Classes were held in the Infantry School's Building 4 for the 89 officers and NCOs.

The course, Landing Force Planning at the brigade and battalion level, was conducted by a mobile training team from the Landing Force Training Command, Atlantic, located at the Naval Amphibious Base, Little Creek, in Norfolk, Virginia.

"The course is really an orientation," stated MAJ Charles W. Barnes, contact officer for the course and brigade assistant S-3. "It's a condensed version of the planning course given during amphibious warfare training at Little Creek."

It's not dial-a-prayer but it will tell you where the gas is

As we cruise the roads and streets of the reservation with our gas gauge plummeting towards the empty mark, we often find ourselves praying that the PX service stations will be open and will have gas to pump. Next time, try dialing 687-8416. It's not Dial-a-Prayer but it is a recorded message from the Post Exchange providing you with the current gas supply and hours of operation of the service stations.

Gasoline allocations are less than desired. The Post Exchange was forced to close all service stations for the last few days of April as the gas supply simply ran out. It could happen again this month and in months to come.

Current allocations allow only 3 stations to remain open. The Main Post station operates from 7 a.m. until 3 p.m.; Monday-Friday. Harmony Church operates Monday-Friday from 10 a.m. till 6 p.m. The Mall service station is open 7 days a week. Hours

The Landing Force Planning Course includes instruction in amphibious doctrine; organization of the landing force and amphibious task force; staff responsibilities for planning at the brigade and battalion level; characteristics of amphibious ships; and preparation of the operation, administrative-logical and embarkation plans for an amphibious operation.

The purpose of the course is to provide a familiarization with planning amphibious operations and establish a basis for further instruction in amphibious warfare.

"It did that," stated 1LT Ronald Routhead, executive officer of Co. A, 197th Spt. Bn. "It gave me a greater perspective of the complexity, organization, and planning of of operation for Monday-Saturday are 9:30 a.m. to 6:30 p.m. and Sunday from noon to 5 p.m.

These hours were developed to best serve the customer. They are based on experience, customer suggestions and continued reduced allocations. The Mall station closing hours, during the week, has been changed to 6:30 p.m. to allow customers more time to buy gas on the way home.

The Post Exchange realizes that the uncertainty of the supply of gas and the possible change in hours of operation at the service stations creates a nuisance for the customer. The recorded message to be heard by dialing, 687-8416 will help to avoid confusion and wasting of that already precious commodity, gasoline. Dial first and then drive to the service station that you know will open.

an amphibious assault."

Later in the year two rifle companies from the brigade will travel to Little Creek for amphibious warfare training and further brigade training in embarkation is planned.

The training received in the Landing Force Planning Course is expected to benefit the brigade in future amphibious training.

According to CPT Roy L. Hollins, brigade training officer, "Information gained from the course will better prepare key staff officers and NCOs who will later take part in further amphibious operations and training."

The good neighbor.

DEAR BAYONET

Has the three month early out for attending school been eliminated and who approves the applications? PV2 WMS

DEAR PV2 WMS

Yes, the early release program has been terminated by the Army. Losses from this program have recently increased insignificantly, generating unprogrammed procurement and training requirements and have greatly increased cost. Because of the various monetary inducement, releasing trained soldiers before receiving the full benefits of their training and experience is counter productive to the accomplishment of the overall Army Mission.

The only applications that are being reviewed are those that afford the applicant a unique or once-in-a-lifetime opportunity such as a scholarship or grant that does not happen frequently. The Commander, U.S. Army Military Personnel Center is the approving authority. All requests should be addressed to his headquarters.

DEAR BAYONET

I am nearing my ETS date and I was called into the CO's office for a counseling session and we discussed the merits of my remaining on active duty. I want to remain in the Army for another year or so but I do not want to re-enlist for another three years. Is there anyway I can remain without re-enlisting? PFC Culver

DEAR PFC CULVER

The Army has a new test program enabling first term soldiers separating in 1974 to extend their service term. Providing MOS and grade vacancy exist, a soldier voluntarily extending for a full 12 months can also select the station of his choice.

Soldiers must have previously displayed motivation and self discipline and must meet current re-enlistment standards.

DEAR BAYONET

My name has come up on levy and I don't want to go overseas. Is there any way I can get out of going? PVT HAS

DEAR PVT HAS

If your reason for not wanting to go is not substantiated by some hard core evidence, then, no, you cannot get out of your overseas assignment.

The oversea command is in need of personnel to maintain their prescribed strength, therefore, it is necessary that all personnel slated for an overseas tour be processed and moved during their prescribed period.

598th best mess again!

The 598th Lt. Maint. Co. has done it again. As consistent winners of the 36th Engr. Grp. Best Mess Award they seem to be working hard at taking the annual award this year. (FY 73-74) Having won the monthly competition seven times out of ten during the fiscal year 73-74.

The one quality that is immediately obvious to a visitor to the 598th Dining Facility is cleanliness. The tables and floors are spotless which creates a total effect of comfort without over-elaboration.

A glimpse of the kitchen can give you the overall picture of the efficiency there. There are no dirty dishes lying around, no scraps of food to be seen anywhere, and nothing seems to be wasted. In fact the only indication that identifies this as a kitchen is the wonderful conglomeration of smells that comes from it.

"The food here is good all the time, often exceptionally so," said SSG Horace Landrum, the assistant dining facility manager. "Judging from the number of people who eat here (an average of 658 daily), the food must be something special. In fact, the dining facility has acquired something of a reputation on post for the quality of its meals. I think we've got one of the best mess halls on post!"

Included in the criteria for the award is sanitation, food preparation and personal hygiene; all of which the mess personnel of 598th

PRE-MARITAL SEMINAR

The Monthly Pre-Marital Seminar, sponsored by the Fort Benning Chaplain's Office, will be held Sunday, May 19, from 2-6 p.m. at the Infantry Center Chapel Annex, located in Bldg. 101. Couples of all faiths who are planning to marry or who have been recently married are encouraged to participate. Topics of discussion will include the religious, moral, social, emotional, physical, and economics aspects of marriage. The seminar is supported by the Protestant, Catholic, and Jewish Chaplains on post and will fulfill the requirements of some denominations for pre-marital counseling.

AUTO PARTS STORE

The Fort Benning Exchange is happy to announce the opening of an Auto Parts Store in Bldg 1713, Main Post. All authorized personnel are invited to visit this outlet for their automotive needs. The Auto Parts Store is open from 10 a.m. until 6 p.m., Monday through Saturday, and 1 p.m. until 5 p.m. on Sundays. For more information call 682-0852.

BOOZE AND DRUGS

Rap sessions on alcohol and drugs are held in the Main Post Recreation Center each Tuesday evening at 7 p.m. Rap sessions are also held in Bldg. 2212 each Tuesday afternoon at 5 p.m. for female friends and relatives of persons who have problems with alcohol.

The Fort Benning Alcoholics Anonymous Group meets on the first floor of Bldg 2605, located on Dixie Road, each Thursday evening at 8 p.m. An Alanon meeting for friends and relatives of persons who have problems with alcohol, is also held on the second floor of Bldg 2605 each Thursday at 8 p.m. For more information about these meetings call 545-LIVE.

WEATHER WARNING PROCEDURES

The Weather Warning Siren was changed recently. Now it will be sounded only to indicate an actual tornado alert or to indicate the all clear. The siren will not be sounded for a tornado "WATCH" period. The tornado alert siren is a series of three- to two minute sounds interrupted by silent periods of one minute each. Upon hearing the siren, all personnel are urged to monitor their local radio station or TV station. Military personnel and their dependents should refrain from calling the Staff Duty Officer and the Lawson Weather Station. When the danger has passed, the siren will again be sounded for the all clear. This will be a steady sound of the siren of three minutes duration.

MAC ENFORCES DRESS STANDARDS

Servicemen about to depart on Military Airlift Command flights should be aware of new emphasis being placed on appearance by MAC officials. All stateside aerial ports of embarkation are conducting a rigid screening to be sure all military members meet the grooming requirements of their respective service. MAC officials report a policy has been in effect for some time, but was not enforced in the past.

Now, however, officials contend that servicemen must be well groomed before boarding a MAC flight. Those who are not will be denied the flight until they are properly dressed.

"Since I've been in the Army, the longest I've sat still is for this photograph."

SP/4 Susan Boguta likes to keep active, but we interrupted her busy schedule to find out what she likes about the Army.

"After I graduated from college, I decided to try a technical job, one that would help me learn about flying. Because eventually I'd like to be a pilot. So my training's helped a lot.

"I also enjoy meeting people and talking about my work. So recruiting work has been a natural for me.

"One of the things I always mention to the young people I meet is that the Army's taught me you can do much more than you think you can. The opportunities are here, all you have to do is take advantage of them. And that's what I'm doing."

Today's Army gets better every time a good woman reenlists.

BAYONET SPORTS

She likes music and boys but she is not a typical girl

By Bill Kloeb

The Post Fish and Wildlife Division of the Directorate of Facilities Engineering has announced that Russ Pond and Russ Pool on Main Post will be open for fishing to children on May 25, 26 and 27 and each Saturday and Sunday thereafter until further notice.

Children must be under age 16 and the dependent of a sponsor who is authorized to hunt and fish on the Fort Benning Military Reservation.

Children must be accompanied by an eligible sponsor who possesses a Fort Benning Fishing Permit. A catfish pond permit is not required.

Fishing time is limited to the period from 7 a.m. until 7 p.m. The daily creel limit is 5 catfish. There is no creel limit on other fish.

She likes music. The popular tune, "Locomotion," is one of her favorites. She also likes the boys chasing her. All of which is not so untypical of a 13 year old girl.

But what makes Debbie Thomas untypical is that she "Locomotes" around an oval track and the boys chasing her seldom catch her because she won't let them. You see, she is a minority of one on an otherwise all-male Faith School track team.

Debbie, daughter of SFC and Mrs. Donald Thomas, was "discovered" by Coach Bob Smith during Faith School's Field Day. She entered the long-distance race and won easily. With a little coaxing from Coach Smith, Debbie decided to run for the school's track team in competition with the downtown junior high schools.

"My mother was worried about me being the only girl, but she went along with it," recounted Debbie.

"I'm very sports minded and just like to run," she added. "I don't know of anybody or anything that influenced me. My mother played a little volleyball in high school but nobody else in my family competed in sports."

Debbie has been a competitor in the Jr. Olympics for the last three years.

197th softball season begins

The 197th Inf. Bde. slow-pitch softball season opened this week with 29 teams in six separate leagues starting the season.

Co. A, 197th Spt. Bn., runners-up in the 1973 post softball tournament, opened their season with a 24-2 win over Co. B, 197th Spt. Bn. The admin specialists also overpowered their opponents in their second game of the season, beating Co. C, 197th Spt. Bn. by a score of 24-9.

In the Armor League the team to beat seems to be HHC, 2nd Bn., 69th Armor. "They have a good team," stated LT Jerry Kent, athletics and recreation officer of the battalion. "They have a good solid infield and if I had to make an early season pick it would be HHC. Of course, in softball, anything can happen."

HHC, 3rd Bn., 7th Inf. (Cottonbalers), defeated Co. B, 3rd-of-the-7th in their league's first game by a score of 17-10.

"We have five good teams and it's hard to pick a favorite right now," explained Sgt. Vernon Lewis, organizer of the Cottonbaler League.

Following the regular season a 197th Inf. Bde. double elimination tournament will be held with one team representing each league. The champions and runners-up of that tournament will then go on to the post tournament to represent the 197th.

May Fishing Derby

The month of May is just about half finished and there have been no entries in the Rod and Gun Club bass contest. This probably sets a record of some kind. Usually by this time of the month the lead has changed several times and someone has a real lunger registered.

The fish registered in the bream and catfish contest aren't up to the usual size on the books at this time of the month.

SGM Charles Morton, 245 Wickham Drive leads the bream contest with a 10-ounce entry he took from Hedley Pond. Morton was using crickets.

Sps Billie Bennett, 43rd Engineer Battalion leads the catch contest with a 10-pound catch from Twilight Pond.

Neither one of these catches are considered big for this time of the year. Right now the $15 merchandise orders for all categories of the contest are still very much available to anyone. All you have to do is join the Rod and Gun Club, catch your fish at any of the post ponds and bring your catch to Victory Lodge for registration and weight verification. If you make the catch after the club has closed bring it around the next day.

36th Engrs. open softball season

The 36th Engr. Co. (CBT) recently opened their softball season with a hard fought battle between Company A, 43rd Engr. Bn. and the 608th Ord. Co. Rain forced a postponement of the opening day game, so the season actually started on the second scheduled day.

The 608th jumped out to a 1-0 lead, but that was the last time they led, as the hitting of Company A proved to be too much. 3rd baseman, Audrey Newberry, 1st baseman Rex Wilson, and pitcher Simmie Marsh were the hitting leaders for Company A. The final score: Co. A-14, 608th-9.

Games are held on Bennett Field at 6:00, 7:15, and 8:30 p.m. Bennett Field is located just off Highway 27 in Sand Hill.

Alabama Fishing Rodeo

The Eufaula Chamber of Commerce has announced that the eleventh annual Alabama Fresh Water Fishing Rodeo will get under way May 31 and continue through June 2. Headquarters will be located at Chewalla Marina located near the junction of US Highways 431 and 82.

More than 1600 anglers are expected to compete for awards in this nationally recognized contest. Prizes will be awarded to the top weight catches of black bass, crappie, white bass, carp and rough fish.

A 15-foot fishing boat with 50-horsepower motor will be top prize in the black bass contest. A total of 20 awards will be made in all categories with additional prizes going to lucky registration ticket holders.

There will be special events for young fishermen. Trophies will be awarded. In addition the youngsters will have a chance at one of the regular prizes if their entries qualify.

Entry fee is $4. Fishermen can register at the Victory Drive Bait Shop, Richardson's or at any of the sports or bait shops in the Eufaula area. Those who want to obtain tickets by mail can send the registration fee directly to the Eufaula Chamber of Commerce, P.O. Box 347, Eufaula, Ala. 36027. All tickets must be purchased by noon (CDT) May 31.

Girls want to 'Say it isn't so'

After rolling to five straight victories, TSB's women's softball team dropped two games by one-run margins under the most trying circumstances.

In the week's first game against the Tri-City Merchants, TSB began like it has in its earlier games, by exploding for 5 runs in the second inning and holding Tri-City to just three over the first six innings. TSB added a single run in the sixth and then tallied six more in the seventh.

Leading 12-3 going into the final inning, the roof simply fell in on the TSB girls. With runners on first and second, the Tri-City batter belted one to deep left center field and over the head of outfielder, Wanda Thompson. Wanda chased it down and threw it home. One run had scored and the runner from first had rounded third heading home. Catcher Sharon Kogel took the throw and set up a collision course with the runner. They smashed together and the tag was made. Both players fell, and the ball popped loose as Kogel hit the ground. Despite the objection of TSB Coach Fred Dowdell, the umpire called the runner safe saying the catcher had not held the ball.

TSB lost on the next play, which was loaded with controversy itself. With the winning run now on third, the batter lofted a fly to shallow left field. Wanda Thompson made a running catch, and it appeared the runner at third broke for home before Thompson caught it, thinking it would fall for a hit. She scored as the throw came from left field. Thinking the runner hadn't tagged up, Kogel fired the ball to third, but the umpire ruled the runner had tagged and the run counted, handing TSB a hard-to-take 13-12 loss.

The week's second game against Dawson was just as heartbreaking for TSB. They jumped ahead to a quick 7-4 lead and then tragedy struck in the third inning. Sharon Kogel, who had hit three homers and driven in 14 runs in 3 games, stepped into a hole while chasing a fly ball and fractured her left leg. The game was stopped as the Columbus Rescue Squad was called and took her to Martin Army Hospital. Shaken, the TSB squad managed to hold the lead through the last inning, but couldn't hold it losing 18-17.

As friends tell jokes to keep her smiling Sharon Kogel has her broken leg set by members of the Columbus Rescue Squad. TSB lost this girls softball game 18-17. (Phot by George Korda)

Cook takes title in golf tourney

Ethel Marie Cook took the title of "Winner of Winners" in the recently completed Ladies Spring Handicap Golf Tournament held at the Country Club course.

Infantry blue golf bags and pastel colored putters were among the prizes awarded to Ethel Marie and other winners during ceremonies at the Wickersham Ave. residence of LTC and Mrs. Billy Mullins. Ft. Benning's first lady, Trudy Tarpley, and Howard Holbrook, Country Club Golf Pro made the presentations.

Ethel Marie won the fourth flight championship and then took top honors by besting the other flight champions in a play-off.

Lydia Langdon was the third flight champion while Pat Holtapple finished at the top in the second flight.

Bev Mullins was the first flight champion with Lois Sutton runnerup and Mia Harris taking consolation honors in that flight.

These men are wanted for questioning.

HOW TO CATCH THE 5:25 FERRY AT 5:26

The Fiat 124 is an ideal car if you have a tendency to miss the boat.

It has a high-performance overhead cam engine that lets you take off quickly.

It has 4-wheel disc brakes and radial tires for surer stops on wet surfaces.

And it has front-wheel independent suspension, so it takes bumps well.

Of course, if you're not in a big hurry to catch the 5:25, the Fiat 124 offers a convenient accessory.

An AM-FM radio.

So you can hear how backed up traffic is on the bridge.

You'll FUEL Better With A FIAT!

Uncle Sam to take personnel survey

Attention all enlisted men and women whose Social Security Number ends in 12, 32, 52, 72, 92 and all officers whose terminal digit is 3 plus second lieutenants with 08 and 78 endings.

Uncle Sam wants you to participate in the May 31, 1974 edition of the Quarterly Sample Survey of Military Personnel.

The survey is designed to gather information from individuals regarding how they value the various benefits available to them — educational, commissaries, on-post housing, etc.

Other items ask about the use of credit, installment purchases, smoking habits and career management. All information is strictly confidential.

If your Society Security Number ends with digits which should be included in the sample and you have not been alerted to participate by May 31, you should contact your personnel officer. It is most important that all selected as part of the Army wide sample have the opportunity to participate.

Carnival to have flea market

Attention! Do you have anything around the house that you no longer need?

If you do, the 34th Medical Battalion needs your help. This year, for the first time, a flea market will be a part of the Ft. Benning Fourth of July Carnival.

In order to make it a success, your help is needed. Any donations will be accepted. An ash tray, fishing pole, a bicycle, rugs, or dishes. Anything you can't use, we want.

Mr. William Loyd, project officer for the flea market says you won't have to worry about making a delivery. Just call him and he'll come and get it for you.

The following schedule is offered for pick-ups in the housing areas: Mondays, Custer Terrace and Battle Park; Tuesdays, Main Post; Wednesdays, McGraw Manor; Thursdays, Bouton Hill and on Friday pick-ups will be made anywhere for any large items.

Proceeds from the carnival go to support the Community Activities Association's youth and welfare programs.

With your cooperation we can make this year's Fourth of July Carnival the biggest one yet.

Please call Mr. Loyd or Sergeant First Class Gerald Bartsch at 544-4741 if you have any items of no longer use.

Don't lie there in the sack too long before sending for your absentee ballot. Pat Becker, a 20th Century-Fox Player is right at home—she won't need the F.P.C.A. Card. See your voting officer today.

The Bayonet, May 17, 1974

Howdy, Bub. May is National Cancer Prevention month. Did you know that 65% of all cancer is curable if detected in the early stages? This means that you are 'sposed to have a physical examination every year, even if you ain't off yore taters.

I 'member that we usta have a "Businessman's Physical," sponsored by the Cancer Society. A fella could have a complete physical, includin' a proctoscopy, for less than $25.

A proctoscopy is an internal visual examination of the lower bowel. We usta have these businessmen take a laxative the day before, to clean out the bowel so's we'd have a clear field, so to speak. This laxative wasn't very good, an' we wern't able to see all of the bowel that we felt wuz necessary to insure a good examination.

Jes' 'bout this time, a pharmaceutical company in California came out with a small chemical enema that could be given, an' have good cleanin', in a very few minutes.

The first time that we got ahold of them enemas, we wasn't quite sure how, or even if, they would work, but we decided to give 'em a try. Because of the small numbers of medical attendants we had, it wuz decided to give all fifty of them men the enemas at the same time. The only flaw in our thinkin' wuz the fact that we had only one bathroom in the whole building. Anyway, them 'tendants give all of them fifty enemas as fast as they could, an' proceeded to they's next job.

The first fella that slipped into the bathroom started the others thinkin' 'bout the fact that they wuz goin' to need some facilities theyselves, an' begun to look 'round for 'nother place that they could use. When it wuz discovered that there wuz only one, one-holer in the area, things begun to deteriorate rapidly. Them men wuz grabbin wastepaper baskets an' holdin' onto them for dear life, an' folks that had hats with them, wore a smug look on they's faces. Them that couldn't find no unoccupied wastepaper baskets, an' didn't have no hats, beganst to beat on the bathroom door, yellin' curses, an' threats to them inside. Then the group tryin' to get into the bathroom quit yellin', an' jes tore the door right offen the hinges, an' jerked the occupants outta that room, but by that time it wuz too late to do 'em any good.

I gotta say one thing for them chemical enemas, man, they really work. Needless to say, we didn't get no examinations done that evenin', but we had good news for that pharmaceutical company; they had a lulu' of a product. We wuz a little more cautious in the future when we used that enema, an' we had three more bathrooms installed.

Now, I didn't tell you that story to try an' panic you, 'cause they managed to calm down that enema some, an' we are givin' a form of it today, for 'bout the same reason. What I wuz tryin' to say is, that a physical examination, ain't complete 'lessen you have your bowel investigated too. I know that it ain't anythin' that a body jes naturally looks forward to, but it sure can save a fella some real trouble in the future. Good health to you and yours.

1/58th Patriots look forward to Bliss

After weeks of preparation Co. A, 1st Bn. (Mech), 58th Inf. (Patriots), 197th Inf. Bde. departed Ft. Benning last week in two U.S. Air Force C-130 aircraft for Ft. Bliss, Tex.

The Patriots will be taking part in desert and mountain training exercises at the western post between now and the end of June. All three line companies of the 1-58th will complete the three weeks of training which will include live fire exercises with the caliber .50 machinegun employed against aerial targets pulled by Radio Controlled Aerial Targets (RCATs).

The training is being coordinated with the 3rd Armored Cavalry Regiment (ACR) which will also participate in the field training exercises as well as train the battalion's cadre at the 3rd ACR's Recondo School.

"Most of the men are looking forward to going," stated 2LT Ronald J. Simmons, Cbt. Spt. Co., 1-58th, prior to boarding the C-130 aircraft at Lawson Field.

"Although some are not too enthusiastic now," explained SSG. Sammie Womack, a platoon sergeant, "I'm sure that once they get down there and see what it's like, they'll enjoy themselves. I have been stationed at Ft. Bliss before and there is a lot to see around there that you can't see anywhere else."

"I am looking forward to it," said PFC Obery Washington. "I've heard a lot about Mexico but I've never been there. I plan on doing some sightseeing when we are not training."

An advanced party from the 1-58th has been at Ft. Bliss for three weeks, preparing for the training. The group of some 30 maintenance personnel, cooks, armorers and soldiers selected to attend the Recondo School left Ft. Benning on April 25.

Women drill team visits 2/69th

A special treat for men of the 2nd Bn. 69th Armor 197th Inf. Bde. occurred last week as an all women drill team from East Tennessee State College, at Johnson City Tenn. visited the unit.

With as few as five commands the drill team performed fifteen minutes of various precision drill movements perfectly.

The demonstration in precision drill pointed out why they were selected the National Champion in Drill, held during the Cherry Blossom Festival in Washington, D.C. last year.

Most of the women are juniors or seniors at the college and provided a delightful break in the daily routine of the tankers.

The all-women drill team departed the area with the soldiers of the battalion still applauding showing their appreciation for a good show.

VA warns veterans

The Veterans Administration veterans and servicemen who sell homes purchased with GI loans should make certain they obtain a "release from liability" if the purchaser assumes their loans. Otherwise, VA officials explain the seller (the veteran) could be held financially liable should the purchaser default on mortgage payments.

VA will grant a "release" provided the veterans' loan is current, the purchaser agrees to assume the veteran's liabilities, and the prospective purchaser is a good credit risk with sufficient income to meet GI loan mortgage payments.

Officials made clear, however, that a "release from liability" does not automatically restore GI loan entitlement the veteran utilized to purchase the home sold. Restoration can be made, it was stressed, only for what the agency describes as "compelling reasons" for disposing of the property, provided the GI loan has been paid in full.

Where purchasers agree to assume loans, officials urge veterans to apply promptly for a "release" from VA offices which guaranteed their loans.

34th Med. Bn. units combat ready

Combat Ready — that's the words given to three units of the 34th Medical Battalion.

Headquarters and Headquarters Detachment, the 690th Medical Company and the 2d Evacuation Hospital conducted their Operational Readiness Training Test April 8-10 and received the overall rating of Combat Ready.

The ORTT is designed to test the unit capability to deploy to the field and provide command and control over medical units supporting other TO&E units in a simulated combat environment.

Areas that were graded among the units were:

planning and administration; occupation and organization for defense; tactical motor march, chemical attacks; ground and artillery attacks.

HHD was tested with special emphasis given on reporting of casualties, damage and intelligence information to higher headquarters, vehicle operation and maintenance and general unit administration.

"The ORTT proved to be a valuable tool for members of HHD by evaluating and improving the unit's efficiency in a combat environment," said First Lieutenant John

M. Fogarty, HHD commander. Special emphasis given to the 2d Evacuation Hospital was the ability to cope with a large and unexpected patient load; the admission and disposition of patients and the emergency treatment of assessed casualties.

"The 2d Evac. Hosp. received an overall rating of excellent," said Captain Richard W. Koeller, 2d Evac commander. "All the credit goes to the 150 enlisted men and women who were present for the test. They performed their job in an outstanding manner. The leadership shown by all the officers and noncommissioned officers was just great."

The 690th Medical Company was tested with special emphasis on how well they were able to move patients on the ground. They also had the responsibility of the messing facilities.

"The 690th Medical Company's ORTT was a smashing success." We had an evacuation system which took every patient smoothly to its destination and a maintenance and mess team to meet the most complicated problems. The unit swept through each requirement with the polished ease of a company of expert medical aidmen."

The next field training scheduled for the three units will be some time in September.

Have a job? Rent-a-kid

In the spring a young man's fancy turns to—it doesn't really matter, for spring is gone and summer is here and many young boys and girls are now looking for a job.

Youth Activities will once again respond to this most immediate need of dependent youths by conducting the Rent-A-Kid program.

to look around and find something that could gainfully employ our youths. Yards that need mowing or raking, cleaning of quarters or babysitting are some examples. These and other odd jobs can be done for you by calling 545-2383 or 545-7453. Rent-A-Kid benefits you and the youth of the community.

It's extra work but worthwhile

"Everybody loves a parade" — but while watching one, have you ever stopped to wonder how much hard work goes into it and how the people that are marching in the parade feel?

Co. C, 3rd Bn., 7th Inf. (Cottonbalers), 197th Inf. Bde., has had a lot of practice marching in parades as the battalion's honor company.

"Normally we practice about four hours for a regular ceremony at York Field," said LT William D. Miller, a platoon leader. "For a special parade, say downtown or someplace other than on post, we practice about twice that."

"Most of the men are Unit-of-Choice volunteers," LT Miller continued. "and they really seem to enjoy dressing up and looking good."

"Prior to each parade, we have a very extensive inspection that takes about an hour. Boots, uniform, hair, weapons and everything else is checked and rechecked," LT Miller said.

PFC Ronald Grant said, "I enjoy marching in parades. It makes you feel good when you're out there really participating."

"I guess I'd have to agree with Grant," added PFC Jonnie S. Cox, "It's hard to explain, but for some reason you feel good after the parade, like you accomplished something."

"I like the idea of looking good and being able to represent my unit and the Army," said PFC Anthony E. Nash. "Sure it's extra work for us, but I feel it is all worthwhile."

3/7th increases knowledge with twist in survival

A new twist was added to the training of the soldiers of Co. A and Cbt. Spt. Co. 3rd Bn. (Cottonbalers) 7th Inf. 197th Inf. Bde. as they increased their knowledge of survival in the woods last week.

"The survival part of the training was incorporated more as adventure training for the men of the company. They were not under complete survival conditions, however the techniques they learned would be helpful should the situation ever exist," stated CPT Jimmy R. Arnold the commander of Co. A.

The plan to incorporate survival techniques into the training was quite complicated as it was explained by SGT John A. Miller the training NCO of Co. A. "The unit had to obtain permission to trap fish on the reservation, which required the approval of the wildlife people and other officials on post."

SGT Tommy J. Foxworth, Co. A, stated, "I'm from a small town and never did get in the woods much. I have been in the Army for two years and this is the first time I have had this type of training. It was different. We ate a variety of wild plants. The best thing was when we made sassafras tea and drank it with roasted fish. For dessert we had green plums and dewberries. They were great."

"It was quite an experience for me. I'm from Philadelphia and had never been in the woods except for field training much less going out and eating wild plants or roasted fish and frog legs. We caught frogs along the stream bank and had them for lunch. They were good and tasted just like chicken," commented PVT Lonnie W. Ragin. "We caught fish by taking wire from a "C" ration box and making a fish hook. The hook was sharpened by rubbing it on a rock and the fishing line was made from old booby trap wire. Of course most of the fish were caught in the fish trap," Ragin concluded.

MEMORIAL DAY

We pay tribute to those who gave their lives . . .

Today we pause to remember . . . with gratitude and respect . . . the men throughout this nation's history who answered the call to arms and lost their own lives so that we can live in freedom and dignity. Today we count our blessings; we also consider their cost. Nobody ever said it better than Abraham Lincoln: ". . . from these honored dead we take increased devotion . . . to that cause for which they gave the last full measure of devotion."

Today let us pledge ourselves to just and lasting peace.

LTC Gillem to take over 3/7th

In a change of command ceremony Tuesday, May 24, at 2 p.m. at Essebagger Field on Kelley Hill, LTC Charles O. Arnecke, Jr., will relinquish command of the 3rd Bn., 7th Inf. (Cottonbalers), 197th Inf. Bde. to LTC Richard D. Gillem.

Among LTC Gillem's awards are the Silver Star, Bronze Star with four Oak Leaf Clusters, Meritorious Service Medal, Air Medal with two Oak Leaf Clusters, Army Commendation Medal with Oak Leaf Cluster, Combat Infantry Badge, Master Parachutist Badge, Ranger Tab and Pathfinder Badge. He is a graduate of Georgia Institute of Technology and the U.S. Army Command and General Staff College. LTC Arnecke's next assignment will be with the U.S. Army Infantry School.

The battalion's new commander, LTC Gillem, has served as the 197th Brigade's executive officer since March 1973. LTC Gillem lists Columbus, Ga., as his home. He was born at Ft. Benning.

LTC Arnecke has been commander of the "Cottonbalers" since the brigade's reorganization on March 21, 1973, at which time the 3rd Bn., 7th Inf. was reactivated. Prior to that, from November 2, 1972 to March 20, 1973, he commanded the 1st Bn., 29th Inf. (Pioneers). He also served as the Brigade's executive officer before assuming command of the 1-29th.

A native of Kerrville, Tex., LTC Arnecke guided the historic "Cottonbalers" through the important transition of becoming a combat-ready Strategic Army Forces battalion. The graduate of Trinity University has been personally active in the battalion's Unit-of-Choice recruiting program. More than 600 men have enlisted for Ft. Benning from the battalion's recruiting area during LTC Arnecke's command.

THE BAYONET Inside Front

PFC James E. Macdonald, cook for the 59th Dining Facility, is one of the military personnel responsible for the outstanding service and food prepared by the 59th. The 59th has recently received the Best Mess Award for the 36th Engrs. Their record is practically flawless.

Post Memorial Day observance slated

Ft. Benning will observe Memorial Day this year with a graveside service at the Main Post Cemetery. The service will begin at 11:45 a.m. on May 27.

Colonel Robert L. Rollier, Chief of Staff of the U. S. Army Infantry Center, will be the reviewing officer. After an invocation by Chaplain (Colonel) Sterling A. Wetherell, USAIC Chaplain, Col. Rollier will introduce the guest speaker, Lt. Col. Floyd Thompson.

After Lt. Col. Thompson, a former prisoner of war, delivers his address, a wreath will be placed at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier, and three volleys will be fired. Taps will be played, and a 21-gun salute to the Nation will be fired.

Chaplain Wetherell will give the benediction after the salute to the Nation. A color guard and honor guard from the 197th Infantry Brigade will participate in the ceremony, as well as two buglers from the 283rd Army Band.

'Bo' Callaway here at Ft. Benning today

Secretary of the Army Howard H. "Bo" Callaway will make his first official visit to the U.S. Army Infantry Center today.

The Secretary is scheduled to arrive at Lawson Field at 9 a.m., and will be honored at a 9:25 ceremony at York Field.

Ft. Benning is no strange place for the LaGrange, Georgia native. The Secretary served as an instructor at the Infantry School during his last two years in the Army. A graduate of the U.S. Military Academy, he received his commission in 1949.

He served as a platoon leader while participating in three campaigns during the Korean War, and was awarded the Republic of Korea Presidential Unit Citation and the Combat Infantryman's Badge.

Mr. Callaway will address Infantry Officer Advanced Course students in Marshall Auditorium at 10:25 a.m.

In the afternoon he will visit with the 36th Engineer Group and the 197th Infantry Brigade.

The Secretary will then take part in the dedication ceremony marking the start of the Military Assistance to Safety and Traffic (MAST) program. Also at that ceremony will be U.S. Senator Sam Nunn, D., Ga.

Mr. Callaway has long been active in a variety of business, political, educational and civic enterprises. He was named Civilian Aide for the Third Army Area by former Secretary of the Army, Stanley R. Resor, December 30, 1970. He is Chairman of the Council of Trustees, Freedoms Foundation at Valley Forge; former International President of the Young Presidents Organization; and Republican National Committeeman for the state of Georgia. He was the Republican candidate for Governor of Georgia in 1966. He served in the 89th Congress and represented the third district of Georgia in 1965-1966.

Secretary Callaway is a former member of the Board of Regents, University System of Georgia; the National 4-H Service Committee; and Trustee of the National Recreation Association. He is the President of Interfinancial, Inc. of Atlanta, and a Trustee of the Ida Cason Callaway Foundation of Pine Mountain, Georgia.

The Secretary is married to the former Elizabeth Walton of Hamilton, Georgia. They have five children — Elizabeth (22), Howard (20), Edward (18), Virginia (16) and Ralph (13). They maintain residences in Pine Mountain and Atlanta, Georgia.

197th units try new training

Two platoons of the 1st Pn. (Mech), 58th Inf. (Patriots) and one platoon of the 2nd Bn., 69th Armor, 197th Inf. Bde., recently participated in two weeks of specialized training working with the Company Operations Department of the Infantry School.

The three platoons learned new techniques of mechanized warfare that may one day become a part of Army doctrine.

"The whole thing is to coordinate mechanized infantry and armor," stated MAJ John C. Bush, a senior instructor with the school's company tactics committee.

A demonstration of the new methods was held for General William E. DePuy, TRADOC commander, on Wednesday, May 22.

"The 1/58th conducted the entire exercise at full speed with a platoon of the 2/69th," commented CPT Warren P. Haugen, a tactics instructor. "It all hinged on their performance."

CPT Gary W. Halstead, commander of Co. C, 1/58th is enthusiastic about the training as well as the new techniques. "This whole project is worthwhile," CPT Halstead commented. "It gives the men contact with mechanized and training doctrine."

CPT Halstead was quick to point out other differences in the proposed new techniques.

Soldiers of the three 197th Inf. Bde. units shared CPT Halstead's enthusiasm. "These tactics are better than those we used before," stated PFC James Taft, an armored personnel carrier (APC) driver in the 3rd Plt., Co. C, 1/58th. "They allow us to quickly get right up on the enemy."

SFC David Simmons, platoon sergeant for the 1st Plt., Co. C, 2/69th, agreed with PFC Taft. "These new formations are better. You feel more secure knowing there is someone to cover you while the whole element is on the move."

If approved, the techniques practiced and demonstrated by the brigade's infantry and armor platoons could become part of a mechanized infantry handbook to be written in conjunction with the Armor School at Ft. Knox, Ky.

Carnival for all ages

"Don't miss this year's Fourth of July Carnival — it's for all age groups and all types of people."

That's what LTC Jerry K. Patterson, 197th Inf. Bde. special assistant to the commander and carnival project officer, had to say about the annual event.

Preparation for the day long affair is in the works and every major unit on Ft. Benning is doing its part.

"We've had our initial project meeting and will continue to hold weekly meetings," stated LTC Patterson.

A primary objective of this year's carnival is to raise funds for the Youth Activities program, the Army Community Service welfare and service programs, the Dental Health Program for grade school students and handicapped children and other programs.

Prizes worth $8500 (ranging from a new car to a trail bike) will be awarded.

Tickets went on sale May 15, and can be purchased for 50 cents through all units on Ft. Benning or at such post locations as the new mall.

The 197th's 298th Signal Platoon sold 100% of its ticket objective last year in one afternoon.

"We hope to attract whole families to this year's carnival," concluded LTC Patterson. "It will be the best yet."

Carnival will be best ever with your help

In order to make this year's Fourth of July Carnival flea market a success, the 34th Medical Battalion needs you.

Do you have any golf balls you don't use? How about that rug in the bathroom. We can even use a deck of cards. Anything you can't use, someone else can.

The carnival this year is slated to be the best one yet; and it will be with your help.

"Any donations will be appreciated," says Mr. William Loyd, project officer for the flea market. "All proceeds go to youth and welfare programs so it is a worthy event," he added.

"It's not going to be a bother to give donations," stated Mr. Loyd. "Just a telephone call is all it takes and we'll make the pick-up. Deliveries may be made directly to the 34th Medical Battalion; Bldg. 9004, Kelly Hill.

The following schedule is offered for pick-ups in the housing areas: Mondays, Custer Terrace and Battle Park; Tuesdays, Main Post; Wednesdays, McGraw Manor; Thursdays, Bouton Hill and on Fridays pick-ups will be made anywhere for any large items.

Please call Mr. Loyd or Sergeant First Class Gerald Bartsch at 544-4741 if you have any items you no longer use.

Do you feel that family planning is important to the military family?

SP/4 JAMES C. PARKS
CSC, 3/7
"Yes: Being on a low income bracket, like I am, family planning could alleviate the hardships that a family might encounter. Without family planning, you would also run into the problem of finding someone to keep the kids when you want to go out."

PFC KEVIN F. KELLY
14th AVN BN
"Yes: Due to movement and separation, the size of the family could cause great difficulties and hardships. I feel that family planning is very important."

CPT WILLIAM L. WEBER
STU DET, MAH.
"Yes: I think family planning is important to everyone, not only the military. I don't feel a family should be plagued with unwanted children."

SSG TOMMY R. COVINGTON
USAMU
"Yes: The way the All-Voluntary Army is coming to be, there is going to have to be some kind of family planning. There are going to be more married families coming in the Army. Due to the lack of family planning, there are inadequate quarters available for the military and even the medical facilities are over crowded."

MS KATHI PARSELS
HOUSEWIFE
"Yes: It's not just important to the military family, its important to every family. You need to plan your children when you want them and when you can afford them so you can give them the best quality of life possible."

McGraw Manor to hold dedication Monday

A special dedication ceremony and parade at McGraw Manor Community Life Center will take place Memorial Day, Monday, May 27 beginning at 9:30 a.m.

A parade with Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts will begin at 9:30 a.m. at Boy Scout Troop 217 headquarters on Custer Road. The parade will also include McGraw Manor officers, and will end at the new McGraw Manor Community life Center building.

At 10 a.m. the new building, recently constructed by C Company, 43rd Engineer Battalion (Construction), 36th Engineer Group, will be dedicated. Maj. Gen. Thomas M. Tarpley will officiate at the dedication ceremony.

Chaplain Marvin McRoberts and Chaplain Joseph D. Lawson will receive awards of appreciation for their work with the McGraw Manor Community Life Association. Both chaplains are leaving Ft. Benning soon. After the dedication ceremony a short reception will be held in the new building, which will be used in the future for meetings and other activities of the Association. The building will be open to the public for inspection.

Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts will hold a carnival in the afternoon with games, prizes and food for the residents of McGraw Manor. There will be equipment displays during the carnival.

43rd Engrs. help put out underground fires

Soldier engineers from Co. D, 43rd Engrs., recently traveled by convoy to Alexander City, Ala., after a series of underground fires started in a land fill dump.

City officials reported that extensive smoke was causing problems with health and traffic conditions.

Sources said that smoke had started to billow out of cracks in the mounds of debris where underground waste had started smoldering.

Several ground fires ignited and developed into serious problems for the engineers too.

PFC Stephen Barber,

Co. D, 43rd engineer, commented, "We had to extinguish the ground level fires first and construct a sanitary land fill terrace along the 70 ft. hill to curb any further spreading of fires."

The Task Force of 25 men and 18 pieces of construction equipment worked long hours to extinguish the smoking nuisance.

The objective was to cool the rapidly spreading ground fires with water and then smother the hot burning waste with dirt and land fill material.

"We began cutting away the hillside of the land fill, exposing the smoldering underground debris. The fires that developed then were extinguished with water," SP 4 David Cady said.

The engineers worked for several days getting the fire under control by cutting terraces around the incline of the land fill.

After completing the project, engineer supervisors said the land fill would be a safe area to dump trash and garbage for several years if managed properly.

City officials were also briefed on recommended methods of operation and management of the land fill.

3/7th Cbt. Spt. Co. bolsters confidence with march

The men of the Cbt. Spt. Co. 3-7th recently went on a march of 24 miles for the purpose of building confidence and endurance.

The march was held in conjunction with the company's adventure training program.

"We force marched the first ten miles, completing them in two hours," stated company commander CPT Edward H. Burrell. "That's an average of one mile every 12 minutes."

After marching the 24 miles in 85 degree weather the men were trucked back to the company area.

"Everyone was pretty sore and tired when we returned," commented SGT Frank Toles.

Only three days after the 24 mile march the company joined the rest of the 3-7th in a five mile run.

The whole battalion ran from Kelley Hill to Twilight Pond and around the pond twice.

The five mile run was completed in 45 minutes.

"The run kinda worked out of the kinks from the 24 mile march," stated SGT Toles.

"The only casualties were a few tired feet with blisters which will heal in time," said CPT Burrell.

Education =

By Jeff Leetun

Your key to the future

Education: It's not a big word but it's something that can have a big effect on your future success in the Army and in later civilian life. Just because you're in the military doesn't mean you should forget about your schooling; it can be that extra edge you need for a promotion or a job when you get out. It's still possible for you to continue your education while you're in service and the Army has several programs to help you do this. If you're a high school graduate and interested in furthering your education you can attend either Georgia State or Columbus College through the evening study program.

If you don't have a high school diploma you should check out the GED and Prep programs the Army has available. For any questions you might have regarding educational opportunities get in touch with the folks in the Education Center, Building 35. They can give you the whole scoop on what is available and how to apply for it.

One of the big educational aids that is sometimes overlooked is the Army's Tuition Assistance Program. By getting into this you can get a college education with the Army picking up 75% of the cost. To find out more about this and how to apply contact the Education Center.

If you're interested in the medical or nursing field there are programs to assist you with your schooling. For information contact HQDA (DASGPTP) WASH., D.C. 20314. For a complete rundown on many other government loans and scholarships get a hold of a copy of DA Cir 352-4 — Educational — from the Education Center. Fort Benning also offers courses in foreign language and other general study programs. These courses are free and open to all soldiers. They even supply the textbooks so it's a good opportunity to learn the language before you're assigned to a particular area or to increase your knowledge on a particular subject.

Now a word about learning through the mails — or, as it is more widely known — the correspondence course. These can be a good thing or they can be a ripoff. Take heed and don't be taken by some fast talking dude who promises you a quick education. Before you sign anything get in touch with AG and find out if the outfit has a permit to solicit on post. If you receive a flyer through the mail check it out before committing yourself. You'll probably be glad you did.

Finally, don't forget your GI Bill benefits available through the Veterans Administration. You can get up 36 months assistance and your benefits can be used while you're in service. For more information on the GI Bill get in touch with the local office of the Veterans Administration. Your education is your decision but it can be a big plus in Uncle Sam's eyes when it comes time for that promotion and for you when you leave the service.

MEMORIAL DAY MESSAGE

In the observance of Memorial Day on 27 May 1974, our nation once again pays solemn tribute and honor to those who made possible our treasured heritage of these United States of America.

For the many millions of military men and women who gave their sacrificial gifts of life, "Duty, Honor, Country" were not mere words, they were the core and being of their hopes and dreams for generations yet to come. No doubt they, as we, pondered the cost of such gifts. Their decisions are written plainly for all to see in our American institutions of freedom and democracy. Their challenge to us is to preserve what they gained through unselfish service and dedication, and clearly place our added marks upon the pages of history.

Let us pause in quiet reflection on this Memorial Day, fellow soldiers and Americans, in a sincere tribute of gratitude.

WHO WHAT WHERE

By Jackie Robke

1-29th INF BN

The 1-29th Infantry Battalion officers and ladies held a Hail and Farewell at the Ralston Hotel's Grand Ballroom, in honor of the Battalion Commander, Col. and Mrs. Robert Brumback. Many gifts were presented to Col. and Mrs. Brumback by each section in the battalion, and the officers presented a sash.

Farewell was also bid to Capt. and Mrs. James Tindell, and Capt. and Mrs. Jack Petri.

Welcomed were the New Battalion Commander, LTC and Mrs. Kenneth Pond, LT and Mrs. John McIver, and LT and Mrs. Lowell Hight. Guests for the occasion were Capt. Rick Nelson, Miss Poo Youhgn, and Mrs. Jan Sheriff.

COTTONBALERS

The NCO's of the 3-7th (Cottonbalers) gathered at Crain Hall to honor LTC and Mrs. Charles Arnecke, who will be leaving the famous "Cottonbalers." With fond memories and a sad farewell SGM Jesse Chewning presented farewell gifts to LTC and Mrs. Arnecke. Cocktails and a buffet supper were followed by music by the Sun Dance Trio.

SGM WIVES COFFEE

The Sergeants Major Wives held their monthly coffee at the NCOWC Clubhouse. Hostesses were Mrs. Billie Hudgins, Mrs. John Hodge, Mrs. Leonard Brubaker, and Lois Willard. Farewell was bid to Mrs. Norris Curry and Mrs. Aey Akridge. Mrs. Robert Keairnes presented farewell gifts to these ladies.

MEDDAC

The May meeting of the Meddac Officers Wives was an Aloha Brunch at the Supper Club of the FBOC. Hostesses were ladies from Dental Clinic No. 4 and Hospital Headquarters, with Mrs. Billy Mullins serving as chairman.

In keeping with the island theme, everyone enjoyed island dances. Mrs. Frank Spettel presented the dancers, Mrs. Evangeline Kekaulua and daughters, Debra and Rosslyn, who performed traditional island dances.

The following officers were installed for the 1974-1975 year: President, Mrs. Ronald Bargon; Vice-president, Mrs. Ronald Leavitt; Treasurer, Mrs. James Hughes; Assistant Treasurer, Mrs. James Toney; Recording Secretary, Mrs. Brent Koudelka; Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. Robert McQuady.

LUNCHEON

The Officers Wives of the 1-29th Inf Bn attended a farewell luncheon at the Goetchius House for Mrs. Robert Brumback, Battalion Commander's wife. Hostess for the luncheon was Mrs. Bill Higgins.

TEA

A farewell tea was given for Mrs. Robert Brumback at the Officers Club Normandy Room. The ladies presented Mrs. Brumback with a silver wine cooler. Guests for the occasion were, Mrs. Thomas Tarpley, Mrs. Duane Ingram, Mrs. William Steele, and Mrs. Garrison Coverdale.

Howdy, Bub. Y'know there ain't no known cure for the common cold, so if you wuz to catch the flu, all you could do is: 1) take aspirin for fever an' aches, 2) increase fluid intake, 3) stay warm an' dry, n' 4) maintain good body hygiene. Jes' 'cause you might feel like you been run over by a garbage truck s no reason to smell like one.

Jo Jo Martin brung her husband, Charlie, over to see me first thing this mornin' in her Volkswagen. She came into the office, sayin' that Charlie wuz out in the car, an' would I give her a hand gettin' him inside? I went out to the car with Jo Jo, an' there wuz Charlie, lyin' in the back, awallerin' in self-dy, an' the I-don't-care. Tryin' to get Charlie out of that backseat wuz like gettin' an apple out of a coke bottle. Whilst Jo Jo pushed from ahind, I pulled from the front, 'til I wuz seein' little bitty black dots in front of my eyes.

I'd Jes 'bout decided to grease Charlie down some, when Jo Jo came 'round from the other side of the car, reached in, an' grabbed aholt of her husband's bulbous nose, an' reared back. 'Ole Charlie come outta that car like the upholstery wuz on fire. He wuz a pitiful sight to behold; hair all matted an' flopped onna side of his thick head, a tree day old beard that looked like some under-ourished grass asproutin' from a yaller cue ball, n' he smelled like a rancid bowl of hawg jowls. After I wuz through lookin' at him, I tole Charlie that he wuz of a sight to make a weasel gag, an' to get into my office bathroom an' take a shower, an' have Iffen he wanted me to examine him.

Whilst Charlie wuz cleanin' up, Jo Jo commenced to tell me how he come down with this cold. Seems that last Saturday, Arn Mullins, George Watson, Charlie, an' Billy Bob decided to take the day off an' see if they could capture some of them mouth-waterin' catfish over at Phil Spanner's lake. Charlie wuz drivin' his flivver, while Arn an' George wuz makin' cheez-balls in the backseat. Billy Bob wuz posed to behelplin' with the drivin' chores, but he wuz busy lookin' outta the window at the passin' scenery, 'tween changin' the radio dial an' munnunchin' on them new made cheez-balls.

Long 'bout six miles out, a black an' white pussy cat stepped into the middle of the road carryin' a fifteen pound sack of perfume under his arm. Charlie weaved, but afore he could get it back together agin, he wuz up to the windowsills in Russell's creek, n' sinkin' fast. George Watson tole me that the last thing he seen afore he clumb outta the car, wuz Billy Bob poppin' one last cheez-ball into his bulgin' mouth. An' that's how Charlie got his cold; thrashin' 'round in that creek.

Charlie finally re-appeared, smellin' an' lookin' some better. Now that he wuz touchable, I examined Charlie, an' all I could find, wuz that he had a flu case of influenza.

He seemed a little disappointed when I tole him that he didn't have nothin' more serious wrong with him. I called Jo Jo into the office an' tole her to take Charlie home, an' keep him in bed for a few days n' he'd be right as snuff in no time at all. Try an' member them rules that I tole you, Bub, for the times that you come down with a cold. Good health to you and yours . . .

Final touches put to McGraw Manor

As early spring begins, Co. C, 43rd Engrs., added the final touches to the new McGraw Manor Community Life Center Building.

The 43rd Engineers constructed the 25 ft. by 40 ft. interior walls which divide the building into separate areas.

Inside the building is a meeting room, kitchen, and two bathrooms. All plumbing and electrical work was also done by the engineers.

SFC James E. McWilliams, NCOIC of the project, stated, "This was an excellent construction project; it enabled the men to work in their respective jobs, and also provided on-the-job-training for some of the men."

Construction was accomplished in three phases. The engineers first prepared the site and then laid the foundation; erecting the walls was next followed by installation of the plumbing and electrical facilities.

The new building will be utilized by the McGraw Manor Community Life Center. The project is designed for community, social, and recreational involvement.

"When you realize how working on a project of this type fits into such a worthwhile community service," explains SFC Willy W. Callaway, crewchief for the project. "It provides additional incentive to do as professional a job as possible."

"It greatly benefits the individual soldier, giving him a chance to prove he can do a job and do it to the best of his ability and at the same time aiding the community's social activities," PFC Phillip Hubis said.

Drowning can't be taken lightly

In recent years drownings accounted for nearly a third of the public non-transportation accidental deaths and about seven per cent of all accidental deaths. Children under 15 are the victims in a third of these drownings. Most of the children drowned are 5 to 14 years old. For persons under 45 years of age, accidents are the leading cause of death. Drowning is the second leading cause of all accidents in this group.

Statistics tend to be dry and uninteresting. However, the figures above translate into 7,600 persons drowned in a recent year; that makes the figures a little less dull. And when you consider that since last summer seven Fort Benning people have drowned, the figures start hitting pretty close to home.

By now you should be alert to the hazards involved in water sports. The dangers are divided into two broad categories — swimming and boating. What can you do to protect yourself and your family from drowning? Well, of course, we don't suggest that you abstain from all water recreation activities, but you should take the following preventive measures:

SWIMMING SAFETY

1. The most obvious (but often neglected) preventive measure is to learn how to swim. You and everyone in your family should know how to swim. Drownproofing, which is a technique of staying afloat for hours, is a very valuable and easy skill to learn.

2. Swim only in areas authorized for swimming and where lifeguards are present. The only authorized swimming areas on the Fort Benning Reservation are the swimming pools. All ponds, streams, creeks (and especially the river) are off-limits to swimmers.

3. Never dive into strange or unclear waters.

4. Watch for dangerous undertows, currents and big waves. This applies to the Gulf of Mexico especially. In that body of water a mass of deep water moving toward shore strikes the sharp drop in the Gulf floor known as the "Green Bank." This produces a strong undercurrent. Undertow here is or when the waves are high. If caught in undertow even strong swimmers cannot fight the force of the current. The way to escape is to stay calm. You CAN get out. Swim WITH the undertow working your way outward and gradually upward. After reaching the surface current toward the shore.

5. Never overestimate your endurance in swimming.

6. Do not swim when tired or chilly or until at least 30 minutes after eating.

BOATING SAFETY

1. Keep your boat in top condition.

2. Have a fire extinguisher aboard.

3. Have the required number and type of Coast Guard approved personal flotation devices. Ensure that all non-swimmers wear life preservers at all times. (do not depend on buoyant cushions for non-swimmers).

4. Slow down in rough weather.

5. Know the weight-carrying capacity of your boat, and do not exceed it.

6. Keep a sharp lookout for partially submerged obstructions such as logs, stumps or rocks. Slow down in strange waters.

7. Know the boating Rules of the Road and how to use buoys, daymarkers and other aids to navigation. A course in basic boating given by the United States Power Squadron or the United States Coast Guard Auxiliary is very helpful.

8. If towing a skier, have an extra passenger aboard to watch the skier at all times. Have skier wear a life belt or life vest. If the skier should fall, stop immediately and determine whether he is entangled in the rop or is injured. Then approach the skier from the down-wind side of the boat won't drift over the skier. Cut the motor off when near the skier.

The area around Fort Benning offers numerous opportunities for water recreation activities. If you engage in these activities, please observe the rules we mentioned. You'll have a safer and more enjoyable time.

Family Life The important factor in life of people

By S. A. Wetherell

Family life is the most important factor in influencing the life orientation of people. It is a place of dynamic interaction between all its members. There are tensions, inconsistencies, and many unpredictable within every family group. Nevertheless, it is the place where the functions of protecting, nurturing, educating, and liberating have always been performed in one way or another.

Unfortunately, many people are fearful that the very existence of the family is being endangered because a number of external changes in the pattern of family life have taken place in our time. The chief change has been the transition from the "extended family" to the "nuclear family." The "extended family" involves an extended kinship relationship which holds grandparents, aunts, uncles, brothers, sisters, and other relatives in a self-sufficient social, economic, and religious group. Traditional values and ideals were maintained. Under the impact of social, economic, and housing changes, the "extended family" has largely given way to the "nuclear family" — a husband, a wife, and two and one-half children living together as a complete family unit.

It is obvious that the modern family has lost many of the tasks that it formerly performed. It is no longer the center of economic activity; the function is performed by business and industrial institutions. The modern family is no longer the continuing center for educating children; various educational systems do most of the serious education of children in our society. In spite of these facts the family continues to be a primary factor in life. Why? Because it remains the most basic place to experience affection, mutual concern, and respect which can be defined as love. Love, understood in this way, continues to be the basis for happiness in the modern family.

A thoughtful person should not waste his time bemoaning external changes in family life. Rather, he should direct his energies toward making the fact of change work for him. He does this concentrating his efforts on the fundamental functions of the family rather than the constantly changing life styles of family living. The functions which the family performs are still the basic source of the emotional qualities, range of imagination, vocabulary, and attitudes of the human being. When it does these things well, the change from an "extended family" to a "nuclear family" fades into unimportance.

The fact of change will continue to exert pressure upon the patterns of family life. Technology and specialization will undoubtedly continue to take over many of the specific tasks formerly performed by families. But nothing will replace the family as the "primary community of humanization" of persons.

Valley Veterans sponsor Mem. Day activities

The annual Memorial Day Program will be held Sunday, May 20 at 2:30 p.m. at Parkhill Cemetery. The program is sponsored by the Chattahoochee Valley Veterans Council, which is made up of seven-teen veterans' organizations and their auxiliaries.

The Memorial Day program will feature a memorial address by Mr. Pete Wheeler, Director of the Georgia Veterans Service. Rev. Timothy O'Mahony of St. Anne's Parish will give the invocation, and Rev. Frank E. Beauford of First African Baptist Church will give a special Memorial Day prayer.

An ROTC Color Guard from Baker High School will present and retire the colors, and the national anthem and other patriotic songs will be played by the 283rd Army Band from Fort Benning. A firing squad from Fort Benning will give a salute to the flag.

Judge Aaron Cohn will be the Master of Ceremonies, and Mr. J. W. Woodruff Jr. will be the guest of honor. The benediction will be given by the Veterans Council Chaplain, Walter L. Proffitt.

Mr. Douglas P. MacNeil is chairman of the Veterans Council and also program director of Sunday's service.

VOLUNTEARS

11 Benning teachers named outstanding

Eleven Ft. Benning dependent school teachers have been named Outstanding Elementary Teachers of America for 1974. They are:

Mrs. Karlene O'Hern, Miss Lillian Stenson, Mrs. Wanda Haynes of Loyd School; Mrs. Ouida Anthony and Miss Ann Lucas of Wilbur School; Mrs. Norma Green and Mrs. Mary Askew of Edward A. White School, and Mrs. Nan Mathews, Miss Ann Spencer, Miss Patricia Hurst, and Mr. Norman Evans of Wilson School.

Nominated by their principal earlier this year, they were selected on the basis of their professional and civic achievements. Guidelines for selection include an educator's talents in the classroom, contributions to research, administrative abilities, civic service and professional recognition.

Outstanding Elementary Teachers of America is an annual awards program honoring distinguished men and women for their exceptional services in the field of elementary education and their biographies are featured in the awards volume, "Outstanding Elementary Teachers of America" for 1974.

Memorial Day

Not just a holiday but a day to honor many brave men

Concord Hymn

(Sung at the completion of the Battle Monument, July 4, 1837)

By the rude bridge that arched the flood,
Their flag to April's breeze unfurled,

Here once the embattled farmers stood
And fired the shot heard round the world.

The foe long since in silence slept;
Alike the conqueror silent sleeps;
And Time the ruined bridge has swept Down the dark stream which seaward creeps.

On this green bank, by this soft stream
We set to-day a votive stone;

That memory may their deed redeem,
When, like our sires, our sons are gone.

Spirit that made those heroes dare
To die, and leave their children free,
Bid Time and Nature gently spare
The shaft we raise to them and thee.

— Ralph Waldo Emerson

Memorial Day is set aside each year as a time to honor our servicemen who gave their lives in the defense of our nation's freedom. The holiday as we know it grew out of the attempts of Civil War widows to honor their Confederate and Union dead.

It was designated "Decoration Day" in 1868 by Maj. Gen. John A. Logan, Commander-in-Chief of the Grand Army of the Republic. The first official ceremonies were held in the National Cemetery at Arlington, Virginia that year.

The New York State Legislature passed an act in 1873 making Decoration Day a legal holiday, and most of the other States followed New York's example. In 1968, President Johnson signed a bill changing the observance from the 30th of May to the last Monday in May, effective in 1971.

Memorial Day was set aside for honoring the dead of the Civil War but it has come to include those who have died in all nine of the wars in which we took part. These war dead fought in the Argonne Forest, on the beaches of Normandy, on the islands of the Pacific, and more recently in the hills of Korea and the Jungles of Vietnam.

Although separated by time and distances, these places have one thing in common: they are reminders of the price we have paid worldwide for peace and freedom. Today we will honor those men and women who made the ultimate sacrifice of their lives so that we might live in dignity in this land of plenty that is the most powerful nation on the globe.

It is a day to honor the dead, but it is also a day to remember the living members of our armed services who continue to serve in our nation's defense. And it is also a time for rest and relaxation, when we can participate in the kinds of activities that will help keep us alive.

At 11:45 a.m. on Monday, May 27, a memorial service will be held at the Main Post Cemetery to commemorate our war dead. This weekend there will be a fishing tournament sponsored by the Rod and Gun Club, and gold tournaments sponsored by the Officers Club and Special Services.

All of these are worth considering as ways to fill your weekend, instead of taking a long trip and risking the chance of a serious automobile accident that may take your life, or a shorter "trip" that may mean death in a fountain downtown.

There will be activities and events for all this weekend

The three day Memorial Day weekend will abound with special activities and events for Benning residents.

Keep in mind that the swimming season is in full swing with outdoor pools at Kelly Hill, Sand Hill and Custer Terrace open throughout the long weekend. Of special interest to dependent youths is the opening of the Youth Center pool on Saturday, May 25.

The youth generation will kick off the holiday weekend with a costume party and dance at the Youth Center on Friday evening from 8-11:30. The event will feature square dancing and an added attraction of a Charleston contest.

The Ft. Benning Rod & Gun Club will conduct a fishing contest for children under 16 years of age at the Russ Pond and Russ Pool. The tourney will be held Saturday, May 25, from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. Dependents whose sponsors have a Georgia state fishing license, Ft. Benning fishing permit and Rod & Gun Club membership are eligible to enter. There is no entry fee and prizes will be awarded to the biggest catches.

Not one but two golf tournaments will be held over the holiday weekend.

The annual Memorial Day Golf Tourney at the Sand Hill course will be held on May 24-25. The tourney will be a 36 hole medal play, 2 man teams, low ball affair. Entries can still be made at the Sand Hill Pro Shop.

The Ft. Benning Country Club will hold a dog fight tourney on the Pine Side course on May 27. Awards will be made to best individual and four-man team scores. Tee times are available at the Pro Shop or call 687-1940.

The entire family will be entertained by the special programs at the Recreation Centers.

The Main Post Rec Center plans a Holiday Carnival, Dessert Party and Special Pool Tournament. Activities get under way at 2 p.m. on the 27th.

Everyone is invited to an Open House at Harmony Church Rec Center. Tournaments of all kinds have been scheduled, as well as an old-fashioned cook-out.

Families will be especially honored at Memorial Day celebrations at Kelley Hill. A barbeque is being arranged, together with loads of holiday fun.

Jump into summer with a celebration. Join in any of the Memorial Day activities that have been planned just for you.

Save a life for Memorial Day

If you are going to be driving out of town during the Memorial Day holiday, take some time to save a life - your own. Planning your trip will make it more enjoyable and much safer. The following questions will help you in planning a trip which will be safe for you, your family and other travelers.

1. Have you checked car tires, brakes, lights, windshield wipers, etc.? Most units on post will be offering courtesy safety inspections of privately owned vehicles prior to Memorial Day holiday. These POV Inspection Teams will give your car a free pre-trip safety inspection.

2. Have you allowed enough time for your trip? Don't try to drive too far over a three-day weekend. If at all possible plan to drive only during daylight hours.

3. Do you know how to avoid sleepiness at the wheel? Get a good night's sleep before you start out. Get an early start. Don't try to drive long distances after a full day's work. Wait, get a full night's sleep and leave the next morning. In planning your trip allow about 25 per cent of total travel time for rest outside the vehicle. Do not drink alcoholic beverages, eat heavy meals or take medication just before driving. A well-ventilated car, deep breathing, coffee and frequent rest stops will prevent drowsiness.

4. Will you use safety belts? Safety belts will help the driver maintain proper posture in his seat and thus avoid fatigue. More importantly, if you are in an accident on the highway, safety belts just might mean the difference between life and death. And don't delude yourself into thinking you do not need to wear safety belts because you are a safe driver; the guy who runs into you may not be. Thousands are dead because they thought, "It can't happen to me," and did not use safety belts.

5. How will you drive? Defensively, we hope. Leave a "cushion" of space around your car. This "cushion" will allow you to react to emergency situations in time. Aim high in steering and look far down the road so that you will get the "big picture."

Anticipate emergencies, plan your reaction and leave yourself an "out." Never take the right of way, give it. The best drivers do not escape from emergency situations, they avoid them.

We hope these few paragraphs will convince those of you who are driving out of town over the holiday period to give some thought to safety. There are between 500 and 600 men, women and children who are talking, working, and playing right now who will be dead by Tuesday. They will have died needlessly. The USAIC Safety Office sincerely wants all of you to make it back; and toward that purpose, we publish articles, put up billboards and promote safety on the road in every way we can. Ultimately, however, we must defer to the individual. Each one of you must accept the responsibility for the welfare of yourself and your family. Please consider the risks involved in driving. DRIVE SAFELY!

Sneedan soldier of month

PFC Robert W. Sneedan, HHB, 2nd Bn., 10th F.A., was recently named the 197th Inf. Bde. Soldier of the Month for May.

The 26-year-old soldier works in his battalion's Fire Direction Center as a FADAC (Field Artillery Digital Automatic Computer) operator. He will receive a plaque and $25 savings bond for winning the award.

"It was the first time I ever went up for anything like that," Sneedan admitted. "It was fun and I enjoyed the competition."

The Soldier of the Month is selected by a board of senior officers and non-commissioned officers of the 197th Inf. Bde. on the basis of appearance, attitude and military knowledge.

Sneedan served in the Republic of Vietnam during a previous enlistment and worked as a police officer in his hometown of Raleigh, N. C.

"I came back into the Army for the bonus (combat arms), benefits and pay," Sneedan explained. "The Army has changed a lot since I was a squad leader in Vietnam in 1969. The pay has gone up and I'm making more now as a PFC than I was making then as a sergeant."

Sneedan enlisted back into the Army in September 1973, enlisting for the combat arms bonus and the 197th Inf. Bde. "I had been stationed at Ft. Benning before," he explained. "I liked it so I enlisted for the 197th. My job is a challenging one. Fire direction control is where the action is and it keeps you on your toes whenever a battery is firing."

Among Sneedan's awards are the Bronze Star with Oak Leaf Cluster, Combat Infantry Badge, Air Medal and Good Conduct Medal.

Patterson gets Legion of Merit

LTC Jerry K. Patterson, HHC, 197th Inf. Bde., was recently awarded the Legion of Merit for exceptionally meritorious service during his previous duty assignment as assistant Chief of Staff, G-4, 2nd Inf. Div., Korea.

LTC Patterson is currently working as a special assistant to the 197th Inf. Bde. commander, COL William B. Steele, pending a command assignment in the brigade later this year.

A native of Silver Springs, Md., LTC Patterson is a West Point graduate who also completed a Master of Science degree at the University of Alabama in 1962.

The Legion of Merit citation reads in part - "During LTC Patterson's tour of duty the division went through a period of stringent fund constraints which he thwarted by implementing the checkbook system in a manner that followed the division to closely monitor all funds expended for supplies and equipment. The division changed without serious problems to this system due largely to his foresight and careful consideration of alternatives. Through a strong communication philosophy, logisticians throughout the division were consistently informed of logistics matters long before they were allowed to reach a crisis stage. His strong maintenance program allowed the division to take full advantage of equipment refurbishing programs implemented by Eighth U. S. Army."

Aure clinches spring golf handicap

Jack Aure clinched the championship of the Spring Handicap Golf Tournament as he went five up with 3 holes to play in final round play with R. McLaughlin. Tournament action took place at the Ft. Benning Country Club course.

Charles Horner won the "A" flight championship, besting runnerup Bill Kloeb.

Aure took top honors in "B" flight play with Jim Schoonover placing second.

John Korhonen captured the "C" flight championship as Ed Benedit took runnerup honors.

McLaughlin was the "D" flight champion. James Williams was the runnerup.

The flight champions then squared off and Aure defeated Horner while McLaughlin beat Korhonen. Aure then swept McLaughlin to win the championship.

Awards will be presented during ceremonies at the Country Club ballroom at 5:30 p.m. May 31. Free refreshments will be served. All golfers who participate in the tournament are invited to attend.

Old, new, borrowed & Blue

"Something old, something new, something borrowed, something blue." Sounds like something from a wedding, but all these things and more are found at the National Infantry Museum, Fort Benning, Georgia.

Located on Ingersoll Street, three blocks south of Main Post Theater, the National Infantry Museum is easily recognizable by the train, totem pole and assorted Army vehicles in the front yard.

Consisting of a converted World War II style barracks and Regimental Recreation Building, joined by a connecting hallway, the Museum displays only about 20% of its total collection of close to 15,000 artifacts.

Looking for something old? The lower gallery, straight ahead as one enters, contains a collection of Japanese Samurai Armor dating back to the 18th Century. Also on display are 19th Century items typical of those found in the forerunner of today's PX, the Suttlers Store.

For something new, take a walk down the connecting hallway which connects the Museum's two wings. This hallway contains featured exhibits which by their changing nature prevent the Museum from acquiring too static an atmosphere. In recent months this hallway has hosted a collection of seasonal menus to honor the holidays, a display of African items to mark Black History week and the original drawings from John Carroll's book "The Black Military Experience in the West." A display of combat drawings from the Korean - World War II period is coming up next.

For something borrowed, the recently renovated East Wing has on display a World War II German Propaganda painting commissioned by Hitler. This painting, on loan from the Chief of Military History, shares exhibit space with flags, weapons and a variety of personal equipment of special interest to Nazi era history buffs.

There is plenty of blue, Infantry and otherwise, in the West Wing - also referred to as the Hall of Infantry. This wing houses display cases depicting the 200 years of US Army Infantry history. One unique collection of items in this wing are the West Point uniforms belonging to five generations of the Muir family, all graduates from the Military Academy in New York from 1855 to 1964.

Not blue but still unique is the gas mask designed for wear by a horse back in days when, as one visitor remarked recently, "we were trying to save them, not eat them."

One attention-getter is the mobile museum, a popular addition to Columbus' Salisbury Fair last month. Air conditioned and well lighted, the 37-foot trailer is a portable display of the Infantry's story. The red, white and blue van can travel nationwide and now features a selection of uniforms, equipment and artwork which typify historic eras from the 200-year Infantry experience. In the past 15 years nearly 500,000 people have visited the museum. It's open to the public Tuesday through Friday from 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. and Saturday and Sunday from 12:30 p.m. to 4:30 p.m. Admission is free, and guided tours can be arranged by calling 545-5413.

REVIEW OF OMPF

Soldiers are encouraged to visit the Enlisted Personnel's Division to review their Career Management File (CMF) and their Official Military Personnel File (OMPF). Office hours are from 7:30 a.m. until 4:30 p.m., Monday through Friday. Soldiers may review OMPF in EPD's Information and Assistance Office, Room 212, Hoffman 1.

Arrangements must be made seven working days in advance, by letter or telephone, so that the files can be forwarded from Ft. Ben Harrison. Once the OMPF arrive at MILPERCEN, the soldier will be contacted to confirm the time and date he is scheduled to review his file.

Request should be sent to Commander, US Military Personnel Center, ATTN: DAPC-PARS, 200 Stovall St., Alexandria, Va. 22332. If request is made by telephone, the commercial number is 202-325-9618 or Autovon 221-9618.

SURVIVOR BENEFIT FOR RETIREMENT

All military personnel who are scheduled to retire July 1, must complete an election of options under the Survivor Benefit Plan, prior to June 3. For more information call SSG Dahliquist at 545-5766.

SCHOOL HOLIDAY

The Fort Benning Dependents' Schools will be closed May 27, in observance of Memorial Day. This day is not a school holiday for high school students or special education students attending Muscogee County Public Schools.

SUMMER HIGH SCHOOL

The Muscogee County Summer High School program will be conducted at Kendrick High School beginning June 10. On-Post students desiring transportation should submit their names, home address and telephone number to the School Officer, in writing, prior to May 28.

NOTICE TO SPONSORS

If you pre-registered your children to attend the on-post dependent school this fall and have since learned that your children will not be here, please notify the principal of the school. During the month of July, when the principals are not at the schools, please notify the central office at 545-7743 or 545-7194.

HANDLING OF DUD AMMUNITION

All ranges and training areas on the Fort Benning Reservation are particularly dangerous because they contain unexploded ammunition.

Persons who enter these areas are in extreme danger, especially children who, in the exercise of their natural curiosity, will pick up a harmless looking object.

Children are unaware of the dangers they put themselves into when they pick-up an object, such as ammunition. Sometimes, merely walking by a dud produces enough vibration to release the firing mechanism and cause the shell to explode.

In most cases, prevention instruction and adherence to safety regulations could have avoided the misery and grief that are caused by this type of accident.

Pioneer softball

Artillerymen unleash aerial barrage

For TSB softball teams, it looks like Company E (Field Artillery) of the 1-29th Infantry will be the team to beat this year.

which the game had to be called after five innings because of the lopsided score.

Company E is so far undefeated in the PIONEER league, combining a powerful offense with an impenetrable defense to literally demolish the first two teams they have played, while keeping the opposition absolutely scoreless in the process.

The second game of the season for the Company E softballers, was also stopped after five innings, and again due to the 10 run rule. Doug Austin smacked another four bagger for the Artillerymen as they romped to an easy victory over Company C Rangers, 11-0.

In the first game of the season, the PIONEER artillerymen unleashed their awesome firepower on the seemingly helpless clerks of Headquarters and Support Company. Doug Austin hit two home runs for the Redlegs, as they compiled an impressive 18-0 victory, in Company E team captain Bennie Williams is predicting an early championship for the Artillerymen from the PIONEER battalion. "At the rate we're going," said Williams, "we should have the softball pennant clinched by early July. Right now we're averaging 14 runs a game, and no team has been able to score against us yet."

Darrah, Kennedy take Benning tennis

Stephen Darrah arrived at the Main Officers Club on Sunday with one tennis racket and his wife. By day's end, he left with a bundle of titles earned in the Spring Open Tennis Tournament.

Darrah entered the tourney as the number-one seeded men's singles player. He lived up to that seeding as he vanquished John Vatrai in the finals, 6-1 and 6-3. Vatrai earned the right by defeating William Richardson in a tough semi-final match, 5-7, 6-4, 6-2.

Darrah then teamed with a newcomer to the sport, Bill Baxter, to defeat Richardson and Vatrai for the men's doubles title.

The distaff side of the Darrah family got into the act as Phyllis joined her husband to win the mixed doubles. The Darrahs defeated John Vatrai and Linda Robinson in the finals.

Joan Kennedy knocked off the three top seeded players enroute to winning the ladies' singles competition. Joan defeated top-seeded Rose Mary Jacobs, 6-2, 6-1 in Sunday's title match.

Linda Robinson and Joan Kennedy defeated Mary McGee and Mimi Walker to claim the Ladies Doubles title.

Benning pool sharks take 2nd, and 3rd

Ft. Benning came in second and third in the TRADOC 14.1 Pocket Billiards Tournament May 10-12 at the main post Recreation Center.

First place went to Sgt. Donald "Cisco" Mills from Ft. Benjamin Harrison, Ind. By winning eight out of nine games, he took home the TRADOC central division trophy. High average also went to Cisco, with 3.24 balls per inning, and he had the high run of 22 balls.

Having played for many years, Cisco considers himself a pool shark. "It was beautiful," he said. "It was a pay-off as far as my ten years of playing go. I'm starting to have something to show."

SP4 Foster Goodman, Inf. Bde., came in second with four out of five wins. He said he enjoyed this tournament. SP5 William Martin, HQ Command, USAIC, came in third place. He won four in six games. "I really enjoyed it. I learned a lot, gained some experience and got a lot of practice," he said.

The tournament was a double elimination tournament. All participants remained in the game until they lost two games. Each game consisted of 125 points.

Other participating posts were Forts Rucker, McClellan, Gordon, Jackson and Knox.

The Rod and Gun Club will hold a fishing contest for children at Russ Pond and Russ Pool on Saturday, May 25.

Fish may be registered in the contest from 8 a.m. until 6 p.m.

Children must be under age 16 and the dependent of a sponsor who is authorized to hunt and fish on the Fort Benning reservation.

Children registering fish must be accompanied by a sponsor who has a Georgia State Fishing license and a Fort Benning Fishing permit. The sponsor must be a member of the Rod and Gun Club. Membership cards will be the only proof accepted.

A sponsor is not required for each child. One sponsor can act on behalf of all children who are his dependents. Catfish pond permits are not necessary to fish at the pond and pool or to enter this contest.

NO ENTRY FEES

There will be no entry fee. Contestants may enter the contest by registering a fish caught in either Russ Pond or Russ Pool with the club representative on the scene. The representative will issue a registration card that will attest to your entry and make you eligible for a bonus prize.

First, second and third place merchandise awards will be made for catfish, panfish, bass and rough fish. A bass must be at least 12-inches long to be registered. All carp must be dead before they can be registered.

The winner of the bonus prize will be determined at 6 p.m. All children who register a fish in the contest and do not win one of the other prizes will be eligible to win the bonus prize. Contestants may win one prize in each of the categories of the contest.

Fishermen winning prizes for the largest fish may pick up prizes at the pond-pool at 6 p.m. or at Victory Lodge later. The individual winning the bonus prize must be present at 6 p.m.

In addition all Georgia, Post regulations and special regulations published in conjunction with the special opening of Russ Pond and Pool apply to this contest.

The rules of this contest may bug some people. The Rod and Gun Advisory Board understands that it's impossible to please everyone. In planning the contest we tried to consider the problems of everyone involved. We considered the problems of children getting to the pond, the problems some parents will have in getting them there and the problems the Military police would have controlling them if sponsors were not present. Finally we considered those Rod and Gun members who will sit at the contest site weighing and registering fish throughout the day.

A THRILL FOR THE KIDS

The idea of the contest was to provide the children the thrill of catching a big fish and possibly winning a prize. We hope parents will allow the children to do the catching. We also wanted to provide parents an opportunity to join the kids in a day they will both remember for a long time. We hope parents don't just go through the motions of getting the kids to the pond, make it legal that they were there then pick them up hours later. This is a good chance to spend some time together. Finally if parents do these things the Military Police will not have to baby sit a passel of kids all day.

The people running the contest? There are only two volunteers up until now. Anyone who wants to get involved should call SGM Morrison, 545-2423 or me at 545-4622.

TSB gang loses to city dads, 3-2

Despite the distraction caused by a trio of pretty TSB batgirls, Jim Buntin slammed a two-run homer in the top of the fifth inning rallying the Columbus City Fathers past the TSB Over-the-Hill Gang, 3-2.

The third annual charity softball game was played at Golden Park just prior to the Columbus Astros-Orlando Twins contest.

Buntin's winning hit came just before the time limit on the game expired denying TSB a chance to bat in the last of the fifth inning. The win by the City Fathers revenged a 1-0 loss to TSB two years ago.

TSB pitcher Dave Pope went all the way, surrendering 10 hits to the City Fathers. Dave couldn't find his curve ball but plenty of curves were supplied by the TSB batgirls; Pat Poole, Linda Taylor and Mary Stevens.

In the opening inning, after one out, city councilman, Jack Land singled for the City Fathers. One out later, Jim Buntin cracked a double and Land held at third. Dave Pope then got Joe Stubbs to fly out to end the inning.

Guy Sullivan led off for TSB with a short single. Plutarco Font then forced Sullivan at second. Font was left stranded at third as the third out was recorded.

In the third, the City Fathers put runners at second and third with no outs but solid defense by TSB got three quick outs without a run scoring.

TSB broke into the scoring column in their half of the third, as a consecutive singles by Ernesto Collazo, Pope, Sullivan and Font netted two runs.

The City Fathers came back in the fourth as Chuck McDaniel led off with a single. Chuck's father, city councilman Red McDaniel, then-singled and his son scored on an error by TSB third baseman, Duane Ingram.

Gummidge sweeps Benning

Members of the 1st Bn, 29th Infantry PIONEERS and the 2-10th Artillery participated in the 2nd Gummidge game in U.S. history at Ft. Benning recently.

Gummidge, a sport which originated in the 5th Centry A.D. was introduced to Fort Benning by Chuck Horner, regional coordinator for the International Gummidge Coordinating Committee (IGCC).

Gummidge is similar to hockey, la crosse, polo, and a variety of other sports all rolled into one. The "pules" or forwards, try and get the "Slurf" (ball) down field past the opposing "storneys" (backs) and into the "garf" (goal) which is guarded by the "reek" (goalie).

Players use a rift (stick with a net on one end) to move the slurf down field, and the game is officiated by a reche (referee) who carries a pleche (aluminum stick with a kazoo on one end) which is used in meting out the various penalties.

Pre-game ceremonies included the reading of a letter from Mr. Don Elder, head reche and Defender of the Faith (in abstentia). The letter sanctioned the game as an official IGCC event, and incorporated para-military rule revisions.

During pre-game ceremonies, a 1-29th Golden Gummidge girl was selected and subsequently kidnapped by the 2-10th team. The PIONEERS did, however, manage to get their Golden Gummidge Girl back soon after.

After traditional downing of the official gummidge beverage by all team members, the pleches were blown by the reches and the pules were off, battling for control of the slurf with their rifts.

Highlights of the game included the famous stainless steel bowl carry; the first player on the field wearing a stainless steel bowl is allowed to use it to carry the slurf. The opponents of the home team are never aware of this rule however, until the game begins.

The first goal was scored by the PIONEERS when they unveiled their secret weapon, the extendible rift, the 2-10th retaliated by stealing both the stainless steel bowl AND the extendible rift, during the third fenwick (period of play).

Bob Brumback of the 1-29th was the first to employ a revolutionary passing technique—that of throwing the slurf and the rift simultaneously. John Mitchell of the PIONEERS created a new tactic in garf defense when he covered the goal with a sheet.

Mike Hays, reek for the 2-10th, originated his own defense by turning the garf around so that players had to run out of bounds in order to score. In addition, players that went out of bounds were subject to bombardment by water-balloons yielding spectators.

The game ended in a traditional 2-2 tie, which is the only score allowed according to the rules of gummidge. The coveted Stanton Cup was therefore returned to the IGCC museum in Blacksburg, Virginia.

After the gummidge game, several awards were given to the players: John Mitchell of the 1-29th was nominated the least valuable player as he spent the 3rd and 4th fenwicks in prone position, about 20 yards away from the garf he was defending. Most unsportsmanlike conduct award went to Mike Hays of the 2-10th for dragging the Golden Gummidge Girl onto the field of combat, and for physically abusing several spectators with water balloons.

The 4th Student Battalion, TSB has challenged the 1-29th Infantry PIONEERS to a future game and the matter has been forwarded to the Fort Benning, and who IGCC for consideration. knows, maybe it's here to Gummidge has come to stay.

HHC, 3/7th eyes no defeat berth

HHC, 3rd Bn., 7th Inf. (Cottonbalers), 197th Inf. Bde. took their fourth consecutive softball win this week in a 7-0 win over Co. A of the Cottonbaler League.

"We are really looking forward to our game with Co. C, the only team in the battalion we have not yet played," stated Vernon Lewis, captain of the team. Co. C is also undefeated.

Batt. C, 2nd Bn., 10th F.A. is currently leading the Redleg League with a 4-0 record.

"Our strongest point is our depth," explained LT Steven A. Emison, the team captain of Batt. C.

'World Series' of shooting begins May 24

The "World Series" of shooting for soldier marksmen opens May 24 on this post's ranges with over 500 of the Army's finest shots seeking laurels in the U.S. Army Rifle and Pistol Championships.

Sponsored jointly by the U.S. Army Forces Command and the Army Training and Doctrine Command, the annual prestige matches pit the most capable and promising marksmen against one another in elimination matches to determine the best selection of rifle and pistol teams and individuals for overall national competition in the National Matches at Camp Perry, Ohio July 27.

A 45 match meet, the week-long tourney includes 23 pistol events and 22 rifle contests. The M-14 and M-16 Service Rifle will be used, with some matches specializing in either weapon.

The handgun matches will feature a Three-Gun 2700 Aggregate match in which the 22 Caliber Pistol, Center Fire Pistol and 45 Caliber Service Pistol are fired. In addition, a 900 point Combat Pistol Course will be added, making the individual Pistol Championship, a 3600 Grand Aggregate affair.

This novel combat pistol course includes firing from defensive positions of prone, kneeling, crouching and standing with moving targets at limited times.

The tourney will also include two Excellence-in-Competition events or leg matches as the shooters call them, one in rifle and one in pistol. The leg match is a special competitive event established for shooters to work toward their Distinguished Rifle or Pistol Badges. Only the top ten per cent of shooters receive points awarded toward the ultimate prestige badge.

Participation in the big matches is open to Army area squads, active, reserve and National Guard and the overseas commands. Both team and individual competition will be offered in each event with squads made up from each Army area. A breakdown of the 543 shooters registered in the matches has 315 rifle and 228 pistol shooters participating. Of this total, 201 are new shooters, that is they have never participated in All Army or National competition in prior years.

Classification of shooters will provide competition for both the novice or new marksman and the seasoned tournament veteran by having both an Open and Novice class in each event.

In the rifle competition, an M-14 and M-16 champion will be selected and then an aggregate or Grand Champion of the combined matches. The shooters will be competing over various distance ranges and positions in both slow and rapid fire action. A combat rifle course will also be fired by the marksmen.

Defending All Army Pistol Champion is SSG Marvin Black of the Army Marksmanship Unit who will be seeking to renew his title while the 1973 Rifle Champion, SSG Arpai Galop of 6th Army, will also be zeroing in for championship.

"We have a lot of good players who want to play and are really dedicated."

The players in the Tanker League are playing on a new field, restored by their own efforts.

"It's one of the best fields on post," stated CPT Jenkins, head of the Ft. Benning Umpire's Association.

HHC, 2nd Bn., 69th Armor has made good use of the new field, extending their record to 3-0. Next week they meet Cbt. Spt. Co. of the Tanker League in what they expect to be their toughest game so far. "The Combat Support Co. is good," stated LT Jerry Kent, the battalion's recreation officer. "We have had fantastic spectator participation because the new field is right next to the battalion area."

In the 197th Spt. Bn. a new leader emerged last week. Co. B took the lead in the league standings with a 12-9 win over Co. A. The big bats of Co. A are still in contention for the title however. In their five games so far they have scored 92 runs.

HHC, 197th Inf. Bde. continued to dominate the Independent League of separate units in the 197th Inf. Bde. as they defeated Troop A, 15th Cav.

Come to us for the car, and we'll go to the bank for the money.

When you buy a Volkswagen from us, you don't have to run all over town for a loan application. We take care of that. We call up the bank, tell them we have a customer who wants to borrow some money, and they send you a loan application. Then, with money matters off your mind, you're free to make some of the really big decisions about buying a Volkswagen. Like what color you want.

Red Cross rec. dir. transfers

A coffee was held Thursday, May 9th, in the Red Cross Recreation Lounge, Martin Army Hospital, for Miss Edith Ott. Miss Ott has been the MAH Red Cross recreation director for the last 5 1/2 years.

Miss Ott's conscientious, responsible, and sensitive attitude to the needs of the patients will be missed by all.

Miss Ott is transferring to the Naval Hospital, Jacksonville, Florida. A native of Oklawaha, Florida, she is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy V. Ott of Oklawaha.

COL John W. White, Commander, MEDDAC, presented Miss Ott with a Certificate of Achievement and a letter of appreciation. A representative of the Red Cross volunteers also presented her a certificate of appreciation.

USAF Det gets award

For the first time ever, the USAIC Certificate of Achievement has been awarded to an entire military unit — an Air Force unit at that. In ceremonies held Monday afternoon, Cpt. Terry Warner, Commander, Detachment 10, 16th Weather Squadron, US Air Force, stationed at Ft. Benning, accepted the award for his unit. COL Kendrick Barlow, Assistant Commander, USAIC, made the presentation. COL Isaac Israel, Commander of the 16th Weather Squadron, flew in from Ft. Monroe to attend the ceremony.

Detachment 10, 16th Weather Squadron was recommended for the award by LTC Fredrick Pieper, Director of Security, who noted that the detachment had never failed to "come through" with accurate forecasts and storm tracking during periods of severe weather. The citation also mentioned that no personnel or material losses were suffered by Ft. Benning that could have been attributed to incorrect or delayed weather warnings.

The detachment not only provided daily ground and in-flight weather briefings but also provided extremely valuable assistance to the USAIC flight safety program.

According to LTC Pieper, "The members of Detachment 10 are true professionals in every sense of the word. They are competent and dedicated and the results of their labors have never failed to reflect those attributes."

This rigger is always sure

The motto of the parachute riggers is "I will be sure always." They have to be. They pack the parachutes for thousands of Airborne soldiers whose lives depend on their accuracy.

Job knowledge for riggers is critical. SFC L. C. McCullough, HHC, 4th Bn, TSB, is NCOIC of Ft. Benning's Parachute Packing Branch. It's obvious he knows his job, since he had the Army's highest Military Occupational Speciality test score for riggers in 1973.

MOS tests, as they are more commonly called, are devices used by the Army to measure how well a soldier knows his work. SFC McCullough scored 151 out of a possible 160 points to take top Army honors for his MOS.

"I really hit the study guides prior to the test, along with a correspondence course in my MOS from Ft. Lee, Virginia," said SFC McCullough.

His test scores have been consistently outstanding. In 1971, he scored 141, which is good by anyone's standards. In 1972, he scored 156, even higher than he did with his award winner of 1973.

Studying guides and courses aren't the only reason he knows what he's doing. He graduated from rigger school in 1953, one year after joining the Army. Later, he decided his basic jump wings weren't enough, and earned his master parachutist wings. He's always been an airborne soldier, and that was part of his decision to become a rigger. As he says, "Ever since I was a child, I'd wanted to work with parachutes."

His recommendation for other troops wanting to know how to score well:

"Study, study, study. Make good use of the study guide, and use MOS correspondence courses. They'll pay off."

1/58th trains at Texas Ranger Camp

Co. A, 1st Bn. (Mech), 58th Inf. (Patriots), 197th Inf. Bde., is scheduled to return to Ft. Benning today after three weeks of rigorous desert and mountain training at Ft. Bliss, Texas.

The first of the three line companies of the 1/58th to complete the training, Co. A left three weeks ago in two increments on U.S. Air Force C-130 aircrafts for McGregor Range Camp at Ft. Bliss.

Co. B of the 1/58th left last week to take part in the training and Co. C is scheduled to travel to Ft. Bliss June 6.

"I love the idea of the trip and the training,"

1st Infantry plans 56th reunion

The 56th Annual Reunion of the Society of the First Infantry Division will be held August 22-25, 1974 at the Mayflower Hotel in Washington, D.C.

A ground-breaking ceremony for the Vietnam wing of the First Division Monument will be one of the highlights of the reunion. The monument is adjacent to the White House grounds. Other events will be a Torchlight Tattoo by the Old Guard, the general membership meeting, and memorial ceremonies at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier and the graves of former war-time First Division commanders.

Over 600 "Big Red One" alumni from two World Wars, the Korean War, and the Vietnam conflict will be present at the reunion. Individual units will sponsor a number of cocktail parties, luncheons and breakfasts, and a banquet and dance will be held for all members.

Guest speaker at the banquet will be General Creighton Abrams, Army Chief of Staff. General William E. DePuy, Commander of the U.S. Army Training and Doctrine Command and Chairman of the Society of the First Division, will award First Division scholarships to surviving children of Division members who were killed in combat.

stated PFC Jason Pauska, a mechanic in Co. B, prior to taking off last Thursday. "I've never been to Texas, and this is a great way to go."

PFC Jerry Spudlock, a sergeant in Co. B, agreed with the 1st Armored

with PFC Pauska. "I'm from El Paso, Texas and this is a free ride home," commented PFC Spudlock.

Training for Co. A was coordinated at Ft. Bliss with the 1st Armored Cavalry Regiment (ACR), which also participated in a field training exercise as well as trained the battalion's cadre at the 3rd ACR's Recondo School.

The Patriot's first week was devoted to Recondo training and included a mountain walk and rappelling.

Classes on desert camouflage and air reconnaissance using video tape equipment highlighted the second week capped by a three and a half day field training exercise (FTX).

The last week of training centered around air defense classes and live fire engagement of aerial targets with small arms.

The live fire exercise was unique since it was the first time soldiers in a training situation fired directly at drones. Drones are model airplanes built to one-tenth scale with an air speed capability of 100 knots.

"We usually shoot at a banner being pulled by radio controlled aerial targets (RCATs)," commented CPT Lawrence B. Wilkerson, assistant S-3 for the 1/58th, "but this time we've shot at the drones."

"Morale was higher for this trip than it's ever been before," concluded CPT Wilkerson. "Unit integrity, the new environment, and the high caliber of training made this a phenomenal exercise and great training."

COL Weyand gets Brigadier

Another star was born at the Infantry Center Tuesday, as COL Alexander M. Weyand Jr. was promoted to brigadier general.

Pinning the star insignia on the 1951 graduate of the U. S. Military Academy were MG Thomas M. Tarpley, Infantry School commandant, and Mrs. Jeanne Weyand.

BG Weyand is the son of COL (ret.) Alexander M. Weyand and the late Mrs. Weyand of Wantagh, N. Y., formerly of Cornwall, N. Y. COL Weyand Sr. was a two-time football All-America at West Point and was recently named to National Football Foundation's Hall of Fame.

The general will become the deputy commander of the U. S. Army Recruiting Command at Ft.

Sheridan, Ill. on June 17. He will leave his position as Director of Instruction for the U. S. Army Infantry School. BG Weyand recently served as Chief of the Volunteer Army Office at Department of the Army in Washington, D. C.

He was a rifle platoon leader and company commander in the Korean War from 1952-1953. Other assignments include serving as company commander, operations officer and deputy assistant chief of staff for operations in the Berlin Command in Germany from 1959-1962.

BG Weyand was a battalion commander with the 173rd Abn. Bde. in Vietnam in 1968 and 1969 and was a senior advisor in the 24th Special Tactical Zone in 1969.

He attended the Air Command and Staff College at Maxwell Air Force Base, Ala. in 1963, the Armed Forces Staff College in 1966, and the Army War College. He received a Master of Arts degree from George Washington University, Washington, D. C. in 1968.

The general's decorations include the Silver Star; Legion of Merit with second oak leaf cluster; Bronze Star with "V" device for valor and second oak leaf cluster; and the Purple Heart. He is Ranger qualified and a Master Parachutist.

BG Weyand is married to the former Jeanne Pierce of El Paso, Texas. She is the daughter of the late MG James R. Pierce and Mrs. Pierce, also of El Paso. They have two children — Michael 17, and Julie, 9.

Avn. Plt. conducts joint training

The Avn. Plt., 197th Inf. Bde. returned to Ft. Benning last week after a three-week desert and mountain training exercise in Texas and New Mexico.

The exercise, conducted at Ft. Hood, Tex. and Santa Fe Training Area, N.M. was timed to coincide with desert and mountain mission training by maneuver elements of the 197th Inf. Bde. Aviators and air crewmen operated in an environment completely different from that of the southeastern U.S.

"We conducted joint tactical training with B Troop, 1st Squadron, 9th Cav. (Air) of the 1st Cav. Div.," stated CPT Bruce Mauldin, platoon commander and brigade aviation officer. "Both B Troop and ourselves learned to function as a cavalry team in an infantry brigade."

The 197th aviators spent many hours in their scout and utility aircraft conducting realistic missions which included attack helicopter employment, artillery employment, reconnaissance, recovery and patrol insertions.

"Our aviators have spent the last year polishing their techniques," explained LT Bill McNeese, "and we were able to integrate those techniques with realistic air cavalry training."

Upon completion of the Ft. Hood phase, the unit flew to Kirtland A.F.B. at Albuquerque, N.M.: and daily training was conducted in the Santa Fe Training Area 40 miles of Albuquerque, one of the most rugged wilderness areas of the Southwest.

"The lowest terrain we encountered there was 6,500 feet," said CWO Bob Nickle, platoon flight standards officer. "The average altitude was around 10,000 feet for the week, flying missions around mountain peaks as high as 12,000 feet."

"Perhaps the greatest lesson learned," recounted

CWO Larry Gruhn, aircraft accident prevention officer, "was that the desert, while creating fundamental problems in the areas of maintenance and operations, is an environment which creates no real barrier to a well trained unit."

The aircraft maintenance personnel of the platoon spent many hours each evening performing detailed checks of systems and thorough preventative maintenance.

"We really worked long hours pulling preventative maintenance," reported SGT Robert Cole, maintenance line chief. "The dusty climate caused problems we would not normally encounter here and we had to learn how to deal with them."

"The result was that the same eight aircraft that left Ft. Benning three weeks ago returned in excellent condition and will continue to fly on brigade maintenance now," concluded CWO Jim Tresley, aircraft maintenance officer.

THE BAYONET Inside Front

3/7 has new commander

Lt Richard D. Gillem assumed command of the 3rd Bn., 7th Inf. (Cottonbalers) in a ceremony at Essebagger Field on Kelley Hill Tuesday, May 28.

LTC Arnecke, commander of the battalion since its activation in March 1973, has been assigned to the Infantry School.

The battalion's new commander, a native of Ft. Benning and Columbus, Georgia, has served as the 197th Brigade's executive officer since March 1973.

He has served with the 2d Inf. Div. at Ft. Benning; the 3d Battle Grp., 6th Inf., Berlin Brigade; as

$5 will be paid for bad checks

Patrons of the Ft. Benning Exchange who write bad checks must be prepared to pay $5 for each such act as of June 1.

Exchange processing and collection costs long have exceeded the existing two dollar surcharge. This has meant that the Post Exchange has had to absorb this expense and honest patrons have had to pay for the careless or dishonest acts of others. This situation will be corrected with the implementation of the new administrative charge.

This latest measure to stem a flow of bad checks complements other recent measures that include selective use of finger imprint device and a computerized program that provides instant information on known bad check artists.

The Exchange will continue to crack down on the dishonest to protect the vast majority of honest patrons for whom the check-cashing service is intended.

Seatbelts mandatory on Ft. Benning

Effective June 1 all people subject to motor vehicle registration and driver requirements at Ft. Benning will be required to wear safety belts (lap and seat belts as provided by the manufacturer) while operating or riding in motor vehicles on post.

The only personnel excepted from this regulation are those whose official duties require travel at low speeds (below 15 mph) with frequent stops and individuals who have written indication from a doctor that wearing seat belts would adversely affect their health.

A full release concerning this matter will be published in the Bayonet June 7.

a company commander with the 11th Air Assault Division and the 1st Cavalry Division in Vietnam; and as Committee and Operations Chief of the Airborne Department, USAIS.

He was also executive officer, 2d Bn., 8th Cav. and Deputy G-3, 1st Cavalry Division in Vietnam. Prior to joining the 197th Inf. Bde., LTC Gillem was assigned to the Office of the Deputy Chief of Staff for Military Operations in the Pentagon.

Among LTC Gillem's awards are the Silver Star, Bronze Star with four oak leaf clusters, Meritorious Service Medal, and the Air Medal with two oak leaf clusters. He is a Master Parachutist and is Ranger and Pathfinder qualified. LTC Gillem is a graduate of Georgia Institute of Technology and the U. S. Army Command and General Staff College.

His wife, the former Frances Mitchell, is the daughter of Col. (ret.) and Mrs. Paul J. Mitchell of Columbus. The Gillems have two children: Dana, age 11, and Doug, age nine.

197th opens post locator

The 197th Infantry Brigade's postal section has taken on additional duties as brigade locator.

With this added capability, the brigade postal section is able to do a better job of re-directing mail to personnel who have changed units within the brigade, have gone to another installation, are on temporary duty, etc.

"Under the brigade's STRAF mission," said Lt.

James M. Johnson, OIC of the postal section, "a locator system is badly needed. If the brigade should ever deploy to an overseas area we may be the only locator available."

LT Johnson spoke of another service the postal section is trying to start — that of operating a mobile postal unit that will have full postal capabilities to operate throughout Harmony Church.

Do you think that a young soldier should seek counseling before getting married?

1SG WILLIAM F. MIX
145th AVN BN

"Yes. There are so many difficulties and hardships involved in a military marriage i.e. unexpected movements, separations, that proper counseling could either alleviate or assist in reducing these difficulties."

2 LT DONALD C. BELL
139th M.P.

"Yes, I do. I think a lot of them find a lot of problems that they didn't think existed. A counselor could point out what difficulties might be encountered during a marriage."

Sp4 DANIEL HAYNES
"B" CO, 43rd ENGR

"Yes. A young man in the Army might not be ready to take on the responsibility involved in a marriage. I feel that both parties should seek counseling before they get married. A counselor could point out what hardships might be encountered. A counselor could also point out the difference of give and take."

SGT JERRY GILL
546th MED CO.

"Yes. There is a lot of things that a person doesn't know about before they get married. They don't realize some of the hardships involved. He just doesn't look at it the way it really is."

CPT JOHN PARSELS
12th CO, TSB

"Yes. Especially if he is young. I have been married once before and I got married very young. I wouldn't listen to my parents when they told me I was too young. It didn't work out. A counselor could ensure that the individual is in the position to know what he wants. I feel that more married people should seek counseling too."

Your personal affairs-- Are they squared away?

An area which servicemen sometimes tend to take lightly is their personal affairs.

One may ask at this point what are my personal affairs and why should I be so concerned about them as the Army seems to take care of everything for me.

To begin with the term "Personal affairs" includes the status and management of an individual's transactions for improving the well-being of himself and his dependents. This takes in such things as financial matters, legal matters, life and auto insurance, keeping good records and keeping your loved ones informed of their rights and benefits.

One of the main reasons to think about keeping your personal affairs in order is that Army assignments may require service far from home and in places where communication is difficult and facilities are limited. By attending to your personal matters when it is convenient you will have peace of mind and provide maximum security for yourself and your dependents. None of us like to think about something unforeseen happening to us but we all must face this possibility.

To begin getting your personal affairs together first ask yourself this question. Is my family or parents aware of my rights and benefits in event of my death on active duty. This includes such things as six months death gratuity pay, dependency and indemnity compensation, social security payments and burial expenses. Keeping those near to you informed can be a big help to them if that time should come.

A prime area of concern should be the handling of legal matters. At the top of the list here is the power of attorney and will. If you go overseas your personal matters must be handled by someone at home. A "power of attorney" confers this authority. Without it the folks back home might find themselves helpless when you're not around to take care of business.

A will is also a very important document as it allows you to designate who your assets will go to in the event of your passing. If you don't have a will your assets may be divided according to the laws of the State where you claim your legal residence. If you have any questions on legal affairs get in touch with the JAG office on post in Building 5.

Insurance is another thing which can have a great effect on you and your dependents. You should go over your policies from time and keep the company informed as to change of beneficiaries. It's also a good idea to check up on your car insurance and see that the coverage is adequate. This could help head off a suit or leave you unprotected in event of an accident.

Your bank accounts are also important when getting your personal affairs together. Keeping accounts balanced and accurate records of your transactions can keep you out of financial troubles. Such as overbudgeting or an overdraft at the bank. In fact keeping good files on bills paid, credit statements and other business is a good practice and one you should adhere to.

Store your important documents in a safe place and make sure other family members know where they are. Maintain a bound file also of all records and documents pertaining to your military service. This could include discharge certificates, separation reports, promotion orders leave and earning statements, and other military records.

A good aid in getting your personal affairs together is DA PAM 608-2 Your Personal Affairs Handbook.

Finally a word about your health and fitness something that definitely should be of concern to you. Keeping fit and maintaining good health is a definite plus for anybody. Personal affairs is an area which sometimes could stand attention and one which can have a great effect on your welfare and that of your dependents.

Mechanic helper

22 will receive MOS from unit

A group of 22 soldiers of Co. D, 197th Spt. Bn., 197th Inf. Bde., will soon receive the military occupational specialty (MOS) 63A, mechanics helper, as a result of an eight-week AIT course within their unit.

"This is the first time I have ever taught a class this large within a company," stated SSG Talmadge Heath, senior instructor.

"New mechanics are usually trained at post level, but because of the large time lag between the men arriving here and the next scheduled class we decided to train them within the company." Co. D provides the 197th Inf. Bde. with direct support maintenance.

SSG Heath has worked as an instructor before, both at Ft. Benning and other posts. He also taught a block of instruction on maintenance for the 197th Inf. Bde. NCO Development Course.

The first four weeks of the mechanic's helper course was comprised of classroom lessons conducted by four different instructors. The final weeks involve practical work and on the job training.

"We are just starting the fifth week now," SSG Heath continued. "I have the men broken down into two groups, one performing direct support maintenance and the other performing organizational maintenance, formerly called second and third echelon maintenance."

"The MOS they are being trained in, mechanics helper, is really a general MOS, a starting point. Many of these men will eventually get into more specialized jobs but they need this basic course first."

Most of the class is comprised of soldiers who enlisted for the job of mechanic as well as assignment at Ft. Benning or the 197th Inf. Bde.

"I learned a lot from the test and diagnostic classes we had," stated PVT Michael Gatewood, who worked as a small engine mechanic in Ft. Myers, Fla., before enlisting. "I attended a vocational school for a year and a half, which helped me some. I hope to get into rebuilding engines since it is much more interesting than replacing parts."

he worked in his father's garage in Silas, Ala.

"All I knew about mechanics before I came into the Army I learned from my dad," Stafford explained. "So far the best part of the course has been the test and diagnostic class. The only difference between what I'm doing now and working in my dad's garage is the size of the equipment. Of course it is much bigger now."

The students are scheduled to complete the course by mid-June and assume regular jobs in their unit.

25th ANNIVERSARY
Many friends gathered to surprise CSM and Mrs. Theodore Cherry (Ret) on the occasion of their 25th Anniversary at the home of SFC and Mrs. Robert Horan, McFalls St., Ft. Benning. Gathering to commemorate the occasion were MAJ and Mrs. Hugh Price, MAJ and Mrs. Nick Garberino, SSG and Mrs. David Thomas, SFC and Mrs. Gordon Baltus, Mr. and Mrs. David Buckingham, SFC and Mrs. Thomas DeBiase, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Gullepl of Columbus.

COMBAT DEVELOPMENTS
The ladies of Combat Developments held their monthly coffee at the home of LTC and Mrs. Ronald Welher. Co-hostesses were Mrs. Weiher, Mrs. John Korhnon and Mrs. Art Parker.

Screaming Eagles meet set "Screaming Eagles," past and present, will swoop in on Crain Hall on the evening of June 7 as the annual membership meeting of the 101st Airborne Association kicks off.

Activities will begin at 5 p.m. with free refreshments and plenty of socializing. Later in the evening, election of officers for the coming year will be conducted.

Collect your war stories and jump experiences and plan to share them with other "Screaming Eagles."

Fond farewells were bid to Mesdames Art Richards, James Hughes, Robert Jones, and John McCleary. Warmly welcomed were Mesdames Paul Viriglio, Paul Ferguson, William Jacquemin, and Woodrow Quinn, Jr. Mrs. Helma Carter was special guest.

RANGER WIVES
Gathering at the home of Mrs. Thomas Hiter for a luncheon twenty Ranger ladies bid a fond farewell to Mrs. Frank H. Scott and an antique iron kettle planted with geraniums. Mrs. Mitchell was given a silver tray and the traditional Ranger Poem. Daniel Washabaugh, Mrs. Darryl Magee, Mrs. Richard Thibodeau, Mrs. David Herring and Mrs. Paul Disulca were welcomed as new members of the Department. Mrs. Tom Kelly was a guest of Mrs. Robert Farris.

BBOD
The Artillery Committee, Combat Support Group, Brigade and Battalion Operations Department, USAIS and families, kicked off the tourist season with a weekend trip to the U.S. Army Recreation Center in Destin, Fla. Activities included golfing, fishing on the "Follow Me", basketball, volleyball, horseshoes, water skiing, with the beach to round things out. CPT Lamar Sleight and CPT Jim Badger got the biggest fish of the day.

Financial woes: The Army will help you plan

By TERRY D. RAGAN

Read it and weep: The Army cannot relieve you of debt. The Army cannot take over your debts. The Army cannot take responsibility for debts you incur while you're in the service.

But, the Army will go out of its way to help you solve your debt problems; all you have to be is sincere in wanting to erase your financial woes.

Let's face it: debt is sometimes unavoidable. For any one of a thousand reasons, we buy with money we don't have. For a price, we're willing to extend payment over a period of months or years to have something now. And that's fine.

The problems come when payments exceed income. That's when you bought one item too many on the installment plan; the instaltee can't pay the installer and the result is a financial "stall," indeed.

That's only the beginning. As unpaid bills mount up, the letters start coming in — to the company commander, not the individual, as they do in civilian life. The litany goes on, and a sad litany it is.

The problems mount up; promotion possibilities come into the picture; a lot of sleep is lost; dunning letters pile up; the specter of financial ruin looms ahead. Meeting the monthly payments becomes something akin to rolling a dirt clod down Mount Everest; it never reaches the bottom.

Is there a reason why people get into debt? Three representatives from the Legal Assistance Office here on post, all attorneys, agreed that there isn't any one reason — but several reasons — why people buy over their heads. Here's what they say:

Generally, those who get heavily into debt are young, immature people who are away from home for the first time and have no financial experience or are not used to dealing with people.

Those who decide that they have to have everything brand new generally find themselves in debt in a hurry.

Ours is an easy-money, easy-credit society. Creditors know that that end-of-the-month check comes in like clockwork. Consequently, the service member may find he can get credit just that much easier than his contemporaries outside the main gate.

Young married couples, eager to start their lives together with as many conveniences as possible, soon find themselves over their heads in debt — to the inconvenience of the checkbook.

Older service members face putting the kids through school, paying off the second (sometimes the third) mortgage and any one of the numerous other cash-draining problems of raising a family.

It's a hassle, taking care of money.

So you're in debt — too deep. Now what? Let's separate the debtors who know trouble's coming from the debtors who are already in trouble with dunning letters, phone calls or nasty collectors.

The guy who knows that trouble is on the way is really the easiest fellow to help. All it takes is a phone call or letter to one or more creditors outlining the situation. Payments can then be lowered by informal negotiation BEFORE TROUBLE STARTS. Creditors, believe it or not, are willing to help. They don't want to see you go bankrupt (heaven forbid) any more than you do.

Talking to your company commander first can help immeasurably. He (or the XO) can help draft the letters you'll need. He can even call creditors on your behalf. It's one service that you literally can't afford not to know. It's also his job, by regulation.

We talked to one CO who has helped several of his troops back to financial stability. He's CPT. Frederick Chiverton, commander of headquarters company, headquarters command, USAIC.

"I sit down with the guy and figure his income and his debts. If he's in heavy debt, I call each creditor. I haven't yet had to refer anyone to Legal Assistance. We can handle everything right here.

"Letters of indebtedness are fairly routine in the sense that at one time or another almost everyone gets one.

"It's easier to help when the individual wants to be helped. Business firms are more than willing to help when they realize that if the fellow files bankruptcy they won't get anything.

"Chewing out generally aggravates problems — even though sometimes it's needed.

"No soldier's promotion possibilities have yet been affected by indebtedness," he said. But it can happen; chronic or constant indebtedness are also grounds for barring from reenlistment.

That leaves the man in real trouble — the guy who's been over his head too long with no relief in sight.

Again, talk to the CO first. He'll try to help — even if it means sending the individual to Army Community Service or the Legal Assistance Office.

ARMY COMMUNITY SERVICE

ACS at one time had a program for helping the trooper in serious debt. An officer (sometimes one of a staff) would sit down and figure down to the penny what the guy made and how much he owed.

Then he would plan a budget for the debtor that would allow him to pay off his debts and still live within his salary. The counsellor might recommend a debt consolidation loan through the credit union, where interest rates are low. In short, his full-time job was helping the debtor back onto his feet.

Unfortunately, the Debt Liquidation Program is no longer in effect, not officially. But ACS won't say no to a call for help.

"Our policy now is prevention rather than crisis intervention," says 1LT Mike Hopkins at Ft. Benning's ACS office. "We have a training team that teaches such things as buying products on time and menu planning, among others."

"If a fellow wants help, I tell him exactly what he ought to do — how to protect his rights. If he's acting in good faith, he shouldn't be harassed," he said.

What about Army Emergency Relief and the Red Cross? No funds are authorized for debt liquidation. But if privation of dependents or emergency leave are factors, ACS can help with cash — so can the Red Cross.

LEGAL ASSISTANCE

As a last resort (the absolutely last resort), bankruptcy may be inevitable, and the Army can't do a thing for you.

The legal assistance office can help by making calls and writing letters on your behalf. But they can't help formulate a budget.

The only way Legal Assistance can help with bankruptcy is by recommending several good attorneys in Columbus. The Federal Bankruptcy Act is just that — federal. You'll have to go to federal court. Same with the Wage-Earner Plan, also known as Chapter 13 of the Bankruptcy Act.

Under Chapter 13, payments can be extended up to 36 months to avoid bankruptcy. But there are certain special qualifications. That means hiring a civilian attorney.

What about the Soldiers and Sailors Civil Relief Act? It only applies to debts incurred before entry into active service. If you qualify, Legal Assistance can help.

What if you got into debt as a result of a fraudulent contract? Our informants at the Legal Assistance Office say that very, very seldom happens. Sure, many contracts favor the creditor rather than the debtor. But, baby, if you signed it, you're bound.

"There's not a deal downtown that can't wait three or four days for solid investigation," one attorney told the Bayonet. That's where legal assistance can really be helpful — in advising you on the ins and outs of a contract BEFORE YOU SIGN IT.

So if you're looking for debt relief, you won't find it anywhere in the Army. If you want help extending payments to prevent deep trouble, help is everywhere.

Have the sense to protect your cents and you won't have an overworked pocketbook.

Good spending.

YOU CAN HIDE FROM THE MAILMAN BUT NOT YOUR BILLS!!!

Be a smart consumer

It bids well for the soldier whether debt ridden or not — to be a smart (even uncanny) consumer. Knowing what, when and where to buy almost anything can only save you money.

Space is limited so we can't name specific publications, but the supply of consumer information is unlimited — if you look for it. Try the women's magazines; they're gold mines of consumer information. Bess Myerson's consumer column is carried in the Atlanta papers. Several magazines are devoted exclusively to consumer affairs. There are entire books available to you on how to save money. And don't forget Uncle Sam. The Government Printing Office has pamphlets on everything from hair care to tomato cultivation and virtually everything in between. And they're cheap; in some cases they're free — a moneysaving idea in itself.

It's a job just to save dough. It's also worth it.

Try a budget guideline

Being in debt — beyond your means — is a tough path to truck. Waking up in the morning and realizing that the payments are still there is a rude awakening. Because it means that all other spending has to be curtailed; some spending has to be stopped. So here are some ideas you can work into that "crisis budget."

1. Knock out all entertainment. No more booze, movies, nightclubs or parties at your place.

2. Shop for bargains in everything you buy, whether it's clothes, food or anything else. Shine your own shoes (one coat), wash and iron your own uniforms (little if any starch — you'll get by; the reg reads neat, clean and pressed). A family of four can eat for $20 a week or less if the meals are small and all convenience foods are knocked out. Shop at the commissary and don't be hungry when you go. Think "minimum."

3. Buy clothes used; they cost a lot less. Watch the ads and patronize the thrift shop here on post. You'll be amazed at how much your expenses will go down. Sure it's demeaning. But your financial future demands drastic measures.

4. Get a part-time job. Put the wife to work when that's possible; if impossible, examine again the reason(s) why. Even babysitting brings in a little more wherewithal.

The key in all these ideas is cutting expenses while increasing income. Those are the only choices the debtor has, and they can be done simultaneously.

43rd Engrs. reopen aged rock quarry

"We went from a trial run to almost a full scale operation overnight," said powderman and demolition expert SP5 Billy Bennett Co. A, 43rd Engrs. "There were a few problems due to inexperience but everything worked out alright," Bennett said.

Co. A, 43rd Engrs.,

recently reopened an old rock quarry near the north border of the reservation for training purposes. In a recent field training exercise (FTX) much more was produced from the quarry than heaps of rock for projects - the quarry was used for training certain qualified individuals to use explosives.

During the 3-day FTX, the quarry section of Co. A blasted over 500 pounds of dynamite. They also produced and dispensed several hundred tons of crushed rock.

"This was the first opportunity I have had to work with demolition operations," said one specialist.

"Several of the men and I attended a class on the correct and safe procedures for using dynamite and other explosives," he said. "The training was well worth the time we spent learning about explosives, if not for the training it might have taken longer to do the actual job."

Much of the rock crushed by the Engineers was done by the men of Co. B and C. The crushed rock was then distributed to other projects.

The Americo Trail and Nininger Range were two of the improvement projects undertaken by the 43rd Engineers.

"Everyone worked at different jobs so everyone could at least be acquainted with what was going on," said truck driver PFC Howard Davis, 43rd Engrs. "What was so remarkable about the training exercise, was that only a few tons of rock was produced the first two months the quarry was reopened."

4th of July carnival better than ever

Something for everyone, that's what the 4th of July Carnival at Fort Benning offers. This year's carnival will have games, rides, contests and prizes for the whole family.

For the kids there will be rides on the "buddy seats" at the Airborne towers on Eubanks Field. Youngsters can also ride the new combat vehicle simulator and other vehicles. Military aircraft will also be on display.

A giant midway will feature all kinds of games and prizes, including the popular "girl-dunk" booth. This year for the first time, the activities will include an antique auto show and a flea market.

Food and drinks will be sold as usual, and the unit-of-choice and station-of-choice recruiting units will have booths with equipment and military aircraft on display.

The Retirement Services Office, the Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, and Youth Activities Teen Club will also set up information booths.

In the afternoon, a beauty contest, talent show, and Battle of the Bands will be held in Marshall Auditorium. Young women from the ages of 16 to 24 will compete in swimsuits and evening gowns for the title of Miss Fort Benning, with the winners receiving cash prizes of $100, $75, and $50.

The talent contest will feature acts of all types, with cash prizes of $100, $75, and $50 going to the first, second, and third-place winners.

The Battle of the Bands will round out the evening. All bands in the Columbus-Phenix City-Fort Benning area are eligible to enter. Each band will perform for 12 minutes, and will be judged on showmanship, originality, and selection of material.

Cash prizes of $200, $100, and $50 will be awarded to the first, second and third-place winners in the Battle of the Bands.

A fireworks display will be the last big event of the day. It all adds up to a traditional 4th of July celebration with all the trimmings, so don't miss it. Bring the whole family!

"The Army's been good to this Army wife."

Mrs. Vera Coles, whose husband's a tanker, likes the Army. And likes to talk about it.

"Charlie wasn't in the Army when we first got married. But after a while we decided to give Army life a try.

"One of his reasons for joining, and for reenlisting, is college. He says that although it might take a little longer in the Army, it's easier, and a whole lot cheaper.

"The medical benefits are important to us, too. Our bills would have been impossible as civilians. Plus, the doctors have been outstanding. You know, they don't treat you like you're just another case.

"But basically, we're staying in because we're happy here, as a family. And I think that's the best reason of all!"

Today's Army gets better every time a good family reenlists.

2/69th ties softball league standings

Mark Dearborn, first baseman and co-captain of HHC, 2nd Bn., 69th Ar., chases down a ground ball in a recent 197th Inf. Bde. softball game at Tankers Field. HHC lost the game and dropped into a tie for the lead in their league when they were beaten by Cbt. Spt. Co., 2-69th by a score of 9-7. (Photo by Bob Thomas)

The Cbt. Spt. Co., 2nd Bn., 69th Ar., moved into a tie for the league lead in 197th Inf. Bde. softball action last week, with a 9-7 win over HHC, 2-69th.

"We both have good teams," commented Richard Holder, shortstop and co-captain of HHC. "I guess they were just more up for the game than we were."

The tankers of Cbt. Spt. came from behind to win in the final inning of play.

The two teams are scheduled to meet again in a few weeks in a game that could decide a new league leader.

HHC, 3rd Bn., 7th Inf. extended their winning streak to seven games in the Cotton-baler league with an 11-10 win over Cbt. Spt. Co., 3rd-of-the-7th. Good clutch hitting has been the headquarters team's strong point.

Batt. C, 2nd Bn., 10th F.A., continued to lead the Redleg League, extending their record to 5-0 with a 7-4 victory over Batt. A. HHC is second in the league standings with their only loss in five games coming at the hands of the players of "Super C."

Spt. Bn. maintained their league lead with a 5-1 record. Co. A of the support battalion have a 4-2 record and hold down second place.

In the Patriot League HHC and Cbt. Spt. Co., 1st-of-the-58th are locked in a tie for the lead, both teams having 2-0 records. The battalion will have units training at Ft. Bliss, Tex. until mid-summer so their schedule will be limited.

43rd Engrs. has softball winner in Group league

With a record of 5 wins and no losses, Co. A, 43rd Engrs., continues to hold first place in the 36th Engineer Grp. Softball League.

Although Co. A is leading the league, Companies C and D of the 43rd Engrs. aren't far behind, winning the majority of their games so far. The other twelve teams in the league have at least one loss each.

Hitting has been the key factor for Co. A's winning streak. Third baseman Aubrey Newberry leads his teammates with a perfect batting average. Other outstanding players contributing to Co. A's success are outfielders Charles Sanders and Ed Buchanan. Power is in the swing and winning is the name of the game.

An undefeated season seems to be the goal for Co. A but Coach Ben Glover insists, "We just play and win them one at a time."

36th Engr. night coming June 3 at Golden Park

On the evening of June 3 the 36th Engineer Group will rumble into Golden Park, home of the Columbus Astros.

For the men of the 36th it will be all fun and games and no work as they literally enjoy THEIR night. Jim Koger, General Manager of the Astros has declared the evening "36th Engineer Group Night."

But there may be some work for the 36th All-Star softball team, who must face the challenge of the tough Shawmut All-Stars from Alabama in a preliminary game at 7 p.m. The game will be played with a forty-five minute time limit and will precede the 8 p.m. baseball game between the Columbus Astros and the Montgomery Rebels.

This is only one of several home games of the Astros that is being sponsored by military units at Ft. Benning. Coming up on June 18 is Chaplain's Night. June 20 is Women's Lib Night sponsored by The Student Brigade and will feature a softball game between the TSB Women's team and the Over-The-Hill Gang. The Over-The-Hill Gang is made up of field grade officers and senior NCO's of the brigade.

Weather and water conditions seemed to be ideal for fishing last Saturday but the big fish in Russ Pond and Pool just didn't show any interest in the offerings of the young male and female fishermen who were expecting big catches for the Rod and Gun Club Fishing Contest.

Mike Garrison registered the biggest fish in the contest. It was a carp that weighed 20-pounds, 8-ounces. Second place in the rough fish contest went to Karen Hoopala. Her catch was an 8-pound, 9-ounce gar. These were the only rough fish registered.

Pete Hautt registered a 4-pound, 12-ounce catfish to take first place. Ray Stephens had a 3-pound 3-ounce catch to take second place and third place went to Karen Hoopala with a 2-pound 15-ounce catch.

The 10-ounce bream registered by Richard Mailman took first place in the bream contest. Larry Jackson placed second with an 8-ounce entry and Steve Kuhn and James Mailman tied for third place with 7-ounce catches.

May Fishing Derby

Time is running out for the Rod and Gun Club May Fishing Derby. The results so far are pretty good but not impressive.

Maj. Frank Shaw of the Dental Company has registered the largest bass. It tipped the club scales at 7-pound, 2-ounce. Shaw took the fish from Harps Pond.

MSG Gene McCraby, 729 Wright Drive registered a 1-pound, 4-ounce bream to lead that category. He made his catch at Hedley Pond.

The largest catfish came from Twilight Pond. MSG C. L. Richardson, 2706 Norris Road made the catch. It tipped the club scales at 10 pounds, 14 ounces.

The Rod and Gun Club holds a fishing derby for members each month. Merchandise prizes are awarded to the fisherman who registers the largest bream, catfish or bass during the month.

The June contest will start tomorrow. Any member who catches a fish from one of the post ponds and brings it to Victory Lodge for weighing and registration may win the prizes.

Lake Eufaula Fishing Rodeo

Fishermen intending to get into the Eleventh Annual Alabama Fresh Water Fishing Rodeo at Lake Eufaula have until noon today to register.

Registrations can be made at most of the marinas and bait shops in the Eufaula area and locally at the Victory Drive Bait and Tackle Shop or at Richards Home and Auto Store.

In addition there will be a special contest for children 14 years of age and younger. Trophies will be awarded. Children are also eligible for prizes in the main rodeo.

Skeet Range Opening

Several skeet shooters are interested in making plans to begin operation of the Rod and Gun Club Skeet Ranges located at the old clubhouse area on First Division Road.

To help in making these plans the ranges will be opened for shooting from 4 until 6 p.m. Wednesday, June 5. A meeting will be held at 6 p.m. to determine if there is enough interest in proceeding with these plans.

Anyone interested in the reopening of the skeet ranges should attend this meeting.

A new record

Byers snatches M16 crown

Dispelling any doubts from his competitors' minds that his Southeastern Regional Rifle victory of a week ago was for real, Army Reserve CPT. Charles M. Byers, Phoenix, Ariz., repeated the feat Monday as he grabbed the M-16 Rifle crown in the All Army Rifle and Pistol Championships here.

In the varied range five match course, Byers compiled a 621-51X aggregate of a possible 650, four points more than his nearest opponent, CPT. Ed Schumacher, who was firing for the U. S. Army in Europe. Byers score was a new Army record for the course.

Each of the three place winners failed to phase PFC Harry Kamenz, a new shooter on the circuit with the U. S. Army Pacific. Kamenz posted the commendable score of 607-33X.

to top the novice class. In the final match, the Individual Precision Combat Rifle Match fired toward the aggregate, Schumacher set a new Army record with his winning score of 242-24X to catapult him into the runner up spot behind Byers in the grand aggregate.

Danny Keith's three-run homer ignited a five-run sixth inning and William Smith drove in four runs, boosting Co A, 1-29th Inf. to a 12-6 victory over sister company, Co B, 1-29th Inf.

B Company, who remained scoreless until the fifth inning, initiated a small rally, but it was nipped in the bud due to a tremendous diving catch by Tim DeBye of Company A.

Winning pitcher Joel Royal contributed to his own victory with a run-producing double, while Nick Moidja took the loss for the Company B team. The win put Company A in a tie for first place in the TSB Yellow Division with Company E of the PIONEERS.

In other TSB action this week, Hq & Spt Co., of the PIONEERS entered the win column for the first time this season as they defeated the Co C Rangers, 7-0, without lifting a finger. The Rangers failed to show for the game, and the loss put them in the cellar of the Yellow Division with no wins and two losses.

A money saver by any other name

What do you think of when you see a piggy bank?

If savings is the answer, you are just like the Army and Air Force Exchange Service (AAFES) which chose the piggy bank as the sign of "Money Savers," currently the Exchange Service's most successful retail program of quality merchandise at very reasonable prices.

Patrons have been emphatic in their praise of the program, so much that the piggy bank is being tagged with several affectionate names. "Porky," "Happy Pig," and "Practical Pig" are but a few of the monikers being voiced throughout the military community as shoppers flock to take advantage of the savings.

Sales personnel throughout the system have reported the nicknames, often adding that customers smile when they say them — and when they buy Money Savers.

"It seems our customers really have identified with the Money Saver program. They like the Money Saver log, too," claimed an official. "Naming our piggy bank symbol seems to have caught on among all age groups," he added. "The very sight of the smiling yellow and brown pig seems to inspire a happy reaction."

There is strong basis for that assessment. AAFES introduced the program last summer to offer across-the-board savings for selected items of various categories including clothing, housewares, travel items and shoes. The program continues to grow and customer response has been overwhelming.

Perhaps the best thing about Money Savers is that, when buying one, a customer doesn't get a pig in a poke. Every Money Saver has been quality tested and carries the same money-back guarantee as other AAFES merchandise.

The search for quality at a reasonable price and a sense of humor seem to go hand in hand with AAFES shoppers. If you're still not convinced, test the reaction of other shoppers when they discover the merchandise beneath the sign of the jolly little pig.

2/10th assaults Chattahoochee

It was adventure and fun for the men of Battery A, 2nd Bn. 10th Field Artillery who recently participated in a two-day adventure training exercise on the Chattahoochee River.

LT Marvin E. Bridges, officer-in-charge of the exercise, said, "On the first day we put four amphibious assault boats in the Chattahoochee River at Big River Park, near Cusseta, Ga. and paddled downriver to Florence, Ga. Along the way we let the boats, with ten soldiers each, drift completes parachute rigger school at Fort Lee, Va. She enlisted for Airborne training because she wanted outdoor work. "I didn't want to stay in an office all day," she said. She is a station-of-choice enlistee.

The eldest of four children, she said, "My parents were proud of me when I finished jump school, especially my father." Would she do it again? "Of course," she answered. "But I would never have made it without the instructors. They built up gradually on the morning runs. It really helped get us in shape."

About the actual jumping, she said, "I was afraid the first time; they say nearly everyone is. But you get over it. It's an adventurous feeling, jumping out of a plane; you never know just how you'll land."

Hill, some of the troops went water skiing, using the power driven boat which escorted us."

"This type of adventure training is an excellent morale builder, plus it taught us more about the tactical use of the assault boat," commented SGT David Walker.

PFC Randy Seay concluded, "It was a lot of fun and a great experience. I'm ready to go again, anytime."

YAC baseball starts June 3

Green Field will be the site of opening ceremonies for the Youth Activities baseball season scheduled to get under way at 6 p.m. June 3.

A total of 19 teams will vie for four league championships.

Four teams will provide action in the T-Ball league. T-Ball is a recent innovation that offers a unique opportunity for youngsters, ages 7 and 8, to learn the basics of baseball under actual game conditions. It is played as a regulation game with the major exception that the ball is not pitched but is hit off a tee.

Seven teams will battle for the Midget league title. Boys in this league are 9 and 10 years old.

Pony League for ages eleven and twelve will field four teams as will the Colt League for thirteen, fourteen and fifteen year old boys.

All games will be played in the Main Post area at Green, Blue, Faith or Norton Court fields.

Gun tube inspectors like 'looking down those barrels'

By Lamar Battles
"This is a good job . . . I'm surprised more people don't try to get into it." That's what PFC Charles Highhouse, an artillery repairman with Co. D, 197th Spt. Bn., 197th Inf. Bde., had to say about his job of inspecting artillery and armor gun barrels for wear and serviceability.

The inspection is made using a bore scope and pull-over gauge. "The bore scope determines if the barrel is serviceable. It enables us to see cracks and dents," SFC Maurice B. King, armament platoon sergeant, said. "The pull-over gauge shows the wear factor of the barrel's lands and grooves."

Inspections are made every 90 days, within 90 days of firing, or when requested by a unit. A service chart is maintained by the inspection team on every artillery and armor gun barrel in the brigade.

"Some of the inspectors are getting on the job training," SFC King said, "and they are anxious to learn more." "This is interesting work," PVT Willie Woodard, an armor repairman with Co. D, checking for flaws.

2/10th plans organization day activities

Organization Day activities for the 2nd Bn. 10th F. A. 197th Inf. Bde. are scheduled for June 6 at the unit's picnic area at 1st Division and Ivy Roads, on Kelley Hill.

The soldiers of the 2/10th will be celebrating

34th Med. Bn. says 'You call, we haul'

Parents, do you have children involved with the Youth Activities Program at Ft. Benning? If so, YAC needs your help.

The 34th Med. Bn. is sponsoring a flea market for this year's Fourth of July Carnival. Your donation is needed.

Proceeds from the carnival go to support the Community Activities Association's youth and welfare programs. One of those is the Youth Activities Center on post.

Another is the Army Community Service program. Your children can benefit from this only if you help by donating any items which you can no longer use.

"Our motto is: You call and we haul," says Mr. William Loyd, project officer for the flea market.

The following schedule is offered for pick-ups in the following housing areas: Mondays, Custer Terrace and Battle Park; Tuesdays, Main Post; Wednesdays, McGraw Manor; Thursdays, Bouton Hill, and on Fridays pick-ups will be made anywhere for any large items.

3/7 has best mess

The Ft. Benning Best Dining Facility Award for Excellence in Food Service — small unit category — was awarded last week to Co. C, 3rd Bn. (Cottonbalers) 7th Inf. 197th Inf. Bde. for April.

This is the second time in 1974 that the unit has won the award. The unit was nominated for the Phillip A. Connelly Award last year for winning the post level best mess competition for twelve consecutive months.

the organization of one of the Army's finest field artillery battalions.

The unit dates back to 1917. It was during "The Second Battle of the Marne" that the unit was dubbed the "Rock's Support" for their support of the 3d Infantry Division, the "Rock of the Marne."

The day will begin in the early hours with the Kelley Hill Swimming Pool being open to the men of the unit and their families from 8 a.m. to 11 a.m. A swimming relay race will be held at the pool from 9:30 a.m. to 10 a.m.

Breakfast will be served in the battalion's dining facility from 8:30 a.m. to 10:30 a.m. An open house of the battalion area will be held from 9:30 a.m. till 10:30 a.m.

At 11 a.m. Organization Day ceremonies will be conducted at the unit's picnic area, followed by a picnic lunch beginning at 1 p.m.

A number of exhibitions are planned, including a sky diving demonstration by the Ft. Benning Diving Club and displays of the unit's weapons and equipment.

In addition to the swimming relay race, a variety of games will provide competition for both individuals and batteries. Heading the list and perhaps the all time favorite will be the tug-of-war competition.

Other contests include volley ball, softball, a "hip-shoot" competition and a battery commander and ISG egg toss.

A parent-child egg toss, three-legged race, sack race, water balloon toss, horse rides, and helium balloons are on the list for children's activities.

Awards will be presented to the winners of the events.

1/29th inact DePuy concepts

Gen. W. E. DePuy visited Fort Benning recently to watch what has been commonly referred to as the "DePuy concepts."

DePuy, TRADOC commander, spent the majority of his Fort Benning visit at a training site some twenty miles north of Harmony Church, called Cactus Observation Post. (OP)

It was at Cactus OP where the 1st Bn, 29th Infantry PIONEERS' Demonstration Platoon gave the performance of their history for the TRADOC commander. They demonstrated the latest concepts in Mechanized Infantry — to include squad, platoon, and company tactics.

The various concepts involved are the United States Army Infantry School's interpretation of the DePuy concept, and the PIONEERS' Demonstration Platoon performed these Mechanized Infantry tactics for the visiting General DePuy.

PAYMENT OF TDY TRAVEL CLAIMS

Due to the increase of TDY travel claims, processing of newly arrived personnel and the loss of finance personnel, the Travel Section has had to terminate the appointment system and immediate cash payment of TDY claim. The appointment system and walk-in service with immediate cash payment will be reestablished as soon as possible. Preparation of the travel voucher by individuals prior to submission assist the Travel Section in reducing the processing time for each claim. For further information contact 545-5810.

STOLEN 4TH OF JULY CARNIVAL TICKETS

Personnel are cautioned not to purchase 4th of July Carnival tickets with serial numbers 36,866 to 37,000 inclusive. This block of 135 tickets was stolen from a ticket salesman the week of May 20. Anyone with knowledge of the location of these tickets should notify Maj. Frank Willoughby's office at 545-1024 or 545-5516.

RECREATION SERVICES SWIMMING POOLS

To assist in maintaining safety, sanitary requirements, and security of personal items, the following rules are applicable swimming pools operated by Recreation Services:

- a. Because of the limited space available on pool decks, baby pens, strollers, and like items cannot be allowed in the pool enclosures. These items are hazardous when the pools are crowded.
- b. Although a clothing basket check system is available, personnel are requested to refrain from bringing valuables to the pool to prevent possible loss.

GEORGIA STATE UNIVERSITY REGISTRATION

Georgia State University Summer Quarter students may register for classes at the office located in Room 302, BLDG 35, on June 1 from 9 a.m. until noon. Application for admission and transcripts must be on file prior to registration. Eligible personnel may utilize the Veterans Educational Benefits or Tuition Assistance. Class schedules and information may be obtained from any Ft. Benning Education Center of by calling Georgia State University at 682-0770.

RETIREMENT PHYSICALS NO LONGER REQUIRED

The Army's retirement physicals will not longer be required after June 1, 1974. However, the Army encourages all retiring servicemembers to complete a medical examination.

If a servicemember desires a retirement physical, it is the responsibility of the retiree, the unit commander and the medical authority to ensure the examination is scheduled four months in advance of retirement date and completed prior to the effective date of retirement.

With medical examinations no longer a must for the purpose of retirement, the issuance of orders can be expedited and arrangements for movement of dependents and shipment of household goods can be made earlier.

Howdy, Bub. Things ain't changed much since last week, but there is a few things you should be knowing about. They got a new edition of the Patient Medical Advisor out at the post. You folks with the old edition, get ready to shuck that copy, 'cause they added two new treatments for you so's you won't have to come out some cold nite for an upset stomach or a minor case of Poison Ivy. Speakin' of poison, I sure hope you are asleepin' your cold pak medicines up outa reach of them younguns. You know how you was when you was a tad, always acimb'n' and areach'n' for things that yer daddy had to swat you for; I sure remember. Billy Bob was in to see me last week, said he had a raging case of the whim-whams. Well sir, Billy Bob and I really had a go around. I personally, gave him his'n copy of the Patient Medical Advisor. I had to show him in my desk copy right there on page 16 and 17 was the recommended treatment for his ole whim-whams and I told him to keep outa my office and quit taking up other sick people's time for something he coulda treated himself for.

Billy Bob got his back up right away, asyain' it was his right to be treated whenever he thought he needed it. I allowed that was a pure fact, but I also pointed out to him the full waiting room of folks that really had something wrong with themselves. Billy Bob calmed down when he seen that all these folks looked a lot sicker than he felt. He left after we made a date to get together for some checkers.

'Ole Billy Bob's still looking for his first win over me. Now don't you folks make the same kinda mistake 'ole Billy Bob made, 'iften there is somethin' that you can take care of yourselves at home, well by the Almighty, get to doin' it. However, 'iften, you got something that's really botherin' you and you don't know what to do, well sir, you jump in your flivver and have your 'ole man drive you to see me, so's I can get your proper treatment and now have you to miss that Sunday go-to-meetin' picnic. All us doctorin' folks are here to take care of you when you ain't got the sap to take care of yourselves.

Well, listen, Bub, I got to get to trottin', Billy Bob just called and he's on his way over here for that checker game I promised him. Y'know, that 'ole Billy Bob will never learn his lesson, he's a natural born loser. Good health to you and yours.

ROTC cadets going Ranger

Approximately 440 Reserve Officer Training Corps (ROTC) cadets from universities and colleges all over the United States began arriving at Fort Benning Thursday, June 6 for a nine-week Ranger course which counts as ROTC summer camp.

The cadets will receive the Ranger tab for successfully completing the course. All are volunteers, selected from schools with ROTC programs, and many of them have already passed water survival and basic physical fitness tests before coming here.

The ROTC cadets are arriving in two groups of about 220 each. The first group arrived and began impressing June 6, and will complete the Benning phase of their training on July 2. They will go from here to Dahlonega, Georgia for the mountain phase, which ends July 19.

After the mountain phase they will return to Benning for one day, and leave for the Florida phase on July 20. When they finish their Florida phase, they will return to Fort Benning on August 6, and graduate on August 9.

The second group of cadets will arrive here on June 27 to begin the Benning phase of their training, which ends July 23. They will leave for the mountain phase, which will be completed on August 9, and return to Fort Benning before leaving for Florida on August 10.

They will return to Benning for the last time on August 27, and graduate here on August 30. This is the fourth year for the summer Ranger training program for ROTC cadets. In 1971, when the program began, one group of about 250 cadets took the training. A total of 940 ROTC cadets received Ranger tabs in 1973.

Ranger training is designed to provide realistic, tough combat experience under conditions similar to those on the battlefield. Students must be able to withstand physical hardship and strain in order to complete the course.

The Benning phase includes land navigation, instruction in survival techniques including hand-to-hand combat, and emphasizes patrolling. It prepares students for the mountain and Florida phase by giving them strenuous physical training.

The mountain phase covers training in a rugged environment, with day and night patrols conducted, and the students learn such techniques as rope work, rappelling, and rock climbing. They also navigate the rapid Toccoa River and climb Yonah Mountain.

The Florida phase is conducted in jungle or swamp terrain, and begins with a combat parachute assault. Students learn counter guerrilla tactics and combat intelligence techniques, and perform offensive operations over an extended period of time.

Buckle up days -- here to stay

The Department of Defense, effective June 1st, has required the mandatory wearing of safety belts while operating or riding in motor vehicles on military reservations. This requirement applies to you, whether military or civilian, if you're subject to motor vehicle registration and driver requirements at Ft. Benning.

The only exceptions will be to those persons whose official duties require driving at low speed (below 15 MPH) with frequent stops (such as mail delivery), and for persons having written indication from a physician that they are unable to wear lap and/or shoulder belts for medical or physical reasons.

What is expected of you as a driver or rider is quite clear -- buckle up. If your automobile is equipped with lap and shoulder belts you must wear both. Automobiles produced before 1965 were not equipped with safety belts and there will be no requirement for you to install any in order to comply with this change to post traffic regulations.

However, there are some 1965 import cars that were not equipped with safety belts. For you to register a car on post you must have a valid state vehicle inspection sticker. Georgia Safety inspection law requires all 1965 and later cars to be equipped with a minimum of two front seat belts.

Military Police, here at Ft. Benning, do not intend to take any added measures to enforce the wearing of seat belts. There will be no massive road blocks set up or other such tactics. The proper wearing of safety belts will be observed as a matter of routine. Should you be stopped for a traffic violation or as a part of a routine check, MP's will be looking to see if you're wearing your safety belts. For a short time, until we all adjust to this requirement, only a warning will be issued. Later, citations will be issued and it will cost you points on your driving record. Riders not using safety belts will also be cited and it will go against their driving record and not that of the driver.

The mandatory wearing of safety belts is a much-needed, yet controversial, move in the field of traffic safety. It has the endorsement of the Department of Transportation, National Safety Council and most others engaged in safety work. It is only a matter of time before state governments follow the lead of the Armed Forces and adopt mandatory safety belt laws.

COL Veaudry new assistant commander of Infantry Center

Colonel Wallace F. Veaudry, formerly Director of the Assessment Center, The Infantry School has been reassigned as Assistant Commander of the Infantry Center. He replaces Colonel Kendrick B. Barlow, who has been assigned as Commanding Officer of Camp A.P. Hill in Virginia.

Col. Veaudry has served with the 32nd Infantry and 5th Regimental Combat Team in Korea and Hawaii and with Headquarters, U.S. Army in Europe. He completed two tours in Vietnam with the Psychological Operations Directorate, Headquarters, Military Assistance Command, and as a Province Senior Advisor.

He has been a tactical officer at the U.S. Military and Naval Academies; a company commander and battalion operations officer with the 6th Battalion, 3rd Infantry Division; and chief instructor with the psychological operations department of the Special Warfare Center.

He has commanded all Infantry units from a platoon through brigade.

Col. Veaudry was commissioned after graduation from the U.S. Military Academy. He has attended Command and General Staff College, the U.S. Army War College and the Foreign Service Institute. He received a Master of Science degree from Tulane University.

His awards and decorations include the Legion of Merit with First Oak Leaf Cluster; the Bronze Star "V" device; the Meritorious Service Medal with Oak Leaf Cluster; the Army Commendation Medal with Oak Leaf Cluster; the Air Medal; and the Combat Infantry Badge.

He has also been awarded the Vietnamese Cross of Gallantry with two bronze stars; the Vietnamese Honor Medal, First Class; the Administration Medal, Republic of Vietnam; and the Rural Development Medal, Republic of Vietnam.

General Kerwin visits 197th

"You have made more progress than anyone in Forces Command today."

That's the message GEN Walter T. Kerwin, commander of Forces Command, delivered to the officers and senior NCOs of the 197th Inf. Bde., Friday, May 31.

Following an introduction by COL William B. Steele, brigade commander, GEN Kerwin spoke for 20 minutes on Forces Command, the Army today and the 197th.

"The objective of Forces Command is to give the Chief of Staff a combat ready force," GEN Kerwin said.

The general announced that on July 1st the separate brigades in Alaska and Panama are scheduled to become part of Forces Command. He added that one day eight of the thirteen active divisions will be Forces Command units.

To maintain the combat ready posture of this large force, GEN Kerwin emphasized the need for proficiency at the grassroots level.

"I want proficiency at the fighting edge; at the squad, platoon, and company," said GEN Kerwin. "When you have that you know your battalion and brigade are ready."

The importance to Forces Command strength of reserve components and the training that many will go through this summer at Ft. Benning was also mentioned.

Turning to the Army today, GEN Kerwin said, "The state of morale in the Army today is the highest I've seen in a long, long time."

The professionalism and pride of the non-commissioned officer corps as well as the integrity and aggressiveness of today's junior officers were cited as important factors in the morale, esprit, and discipline of today's Army.

In conclusion, GEN Kerwin complimented the 197th on the progress made by the brigade since his last visit when the brigade was just setting out on its mission of becoming combat ready.

COL Steele presented the general with two oil paintings, one of the "Forever Forward" shoulder sleeve insignia and one of the brigade crest. GEN Kerwin will take the two paintings, done by Mrs. Charlene Baber, back to display at Forces Command headquarters.

"I'll put these at the top of the stairs (at headquarters)," commented the general as he accepted the paintings, "so that everyone who enters will see the 197th first."

Foreign-born wives can look for some classes

Foreign-born wives whose husbands are assigned to Fort Benning can look forward to more than citizenship and language classes, thanks to Army Community Service.

The new international wives group will not replace ACS-sponsored citizenship classes or the religious education center's language classes. But it will give wives from other countries a chance to learn cooking of the U.S., to make new friends in their adopted country, and to get help with sewing, shopping in local stores, or prenatal care for expectant mothers.

ACS has begun the new group with a "nucleus" of several wives who have been here for some time and are more familiar with U.S. customs. They will become sponsors for newer wives as they come on post.

The group visited the Georgia Power building on Tuesday, June 4 for demonstration by a home economist on how to cook American foods. After the demonstration they sampled the food they watched her prepare. About 30 wives attended the demonstration.

On June 11, they will go to the Government Center to hear a University of Georgia Extension Service home economist discuss ways to budget money, and prepare, store and preserve food in the most economical way possible.

The wives now in the group come from Germany, Italy, Vietnam, Korea and Thailand. They, along with other wives from the citizenship and language classes, will get the group started and pass the word along to the newcomers as they arrive.

Language classes are now being taught at McGraw Manor, the post Religious Education Center, and South Columbus Elementary School. Army Community Service volunteers teach citizenship classes twice a year.

Anyone who wants more information about the new international wives group should contact Lt. Marsh at ACS, 545-1601 or 545-1633. All foreign-born wives, whether they have been on post or in the U.S. for several years or only a few weeks, are welcome to join the group and go on the trip to the Government Center.

Do you think we can have an all voluntary Army?

2Lt. Bryant Middleton
Wpns. Mortar Comm.

"No. With the world situation being what it is today and the higher type of education the civilian is receiving in comparison to fifteen to twenty years ago the average civilian will not commit himself to an all voluntary Army."

SSG Stanley D. Lowery
Co. C 3-7th, 197th

"No. Not to win a war. The caliber of people we get are not the caliber of people we need. When we had the draft we had a lot better Army."

CW4 Grant R. Bacon

"Well, we had it before and it worked then and I do not see why it would not work now."

MSG. William J. Mason
Dir. Ind. Opns.

"Certainly. For one thing the salary is a pretty good enticement. Also, the career status of the Army. Where else could a man work twenty years and retire with half his pay? I think it will work."

PFC James Larry Waller
Co. A 3-7th, 197th

"No. Because some people think that they do not want to go through the hassle of serving their country. They think it is hard but once through Basic and AIT it becomes easier."

Sp4 Ronnie H. Johnson

"Yes. If the world was at peace we could have an all voluntary Army."

Bayonet Editorial

They can't make me do that!
They're just a nuisance anyway!
Nobodys going to tell me what to do! I have my rights, you know!

These are the rumblings heard among the Benning community about the mandatory wearing of safety belts.

The tragic truth is that these people and others have not paid enough heed to the lifesaving value of safety belts. We have now reached a point where, at a given time, something like one-third of the American drivers are using their safety belts—and that is no mean achievement. Although 90 per cent of the cars on the highways are belt-equipped, any large-scale improvement through voluntary action seems remote.

The tremendous social and economic costs of traffic accidents prohibits any further laissez-faire attitude in checking the carnage wrought on our highways. Conservative estimates say that safety belts could have saved one in every four of the thousands killed on the highways each year. Safety belts also could have reduced or prevented the injuries suffered by as many as half of the millions of crash victims. Savings, when we include funeral expenses, wage loss, social security benefits, medical fees, and property damage could have been in the billions of dollars. The evidence overwhelmingly favors a mandatory safety belt requirement.

Fear of safety belts trapping many people in submerged or burning cars has no evidence. It is, of course, possible that such tragedies will occur, but these instances will be extremely rare. In fact, safety belts may prevent a motorist from losing consciousness and thereby help him get out safely.

Mandatory wearing of safety belts is not an attempt to regulate private behavior for driving is a public matter. This is not an invasion of privacy—since we are talking about both the driver and his passengers as well as other possible victims and potential costs to society. This is not a subversion of freedom because we are talking about the protection of life itself.

The constitutional argument has been faced by the courts. They have upheld the validity of laws requiring motorcycle riders to wear helmets. Other safety measures require people to protect themselves, for example, anti-jay-walking laws and the law against suicide itself.

Safety belts are on most cars. We need to have them used now.

Reservists plan visit to Benning

More than 575 Washington state reservists will visit Ft. Benning this month and the 197th Infantry Brigade is doing its part to insure that their stay will be rewarding.

The reservists are from the 1st Bn. (Mech), 161st Infantry (USAR) located in Spokane, Washington. They will be here for two weeks annual training. The 161st is a test battalion for the Reserve Component Affiliation Program.

The Reserve Component Affiliation Program provides for the reserve battalion to be satellited with an active duty unit. If called to active duty the battalion comes under the control of the active Army unit. Training is also conducted in conjunction with the active Army unit.

During their stay the 161st will receive all administrative support from the "Forever Forward" brigade. In addition, the brigade will provide the reservists with scout and redevye missile training.

The brigade will also conduct a 30 hour field training exercise as well as provide the visiting unit with equipment it will need to successfully complete the exercise.

Three officers from the 161st recently met with LTC John G. Campbell, brigade S-3, to work final details for the reservists' visit.

"We're interested in making the best exercise for the reserve unit," stated LTC Campbell.

"We're one Army and we'll help give them good training at every level."

RED CARPET TREATMENT

Our Red Carpet is "WALL-TO-WALL" all over the Fort Benning area!

We have red carpet in the lobby of the National Bank of Fort Benning. However, the red carpet treatment was initiated long before the carpet was installed. We're proud of our bank. It may not be the largest in the world but we try to make it the friendliest. We offer full service banking to both military and civilian personnel and try to meet the needs of our customers in the best possible way. We'd like to show you some of our services. So come by one of our offices. You'll find the red carpet treatment at Main Post, Sand Hill, Fort Benning Mall and Mobile Facility. If you can't make it to the bank, that's all right too. We can provide practically any service through the mail that we can at the desk. Give us a try. You'll be glad you did!

So you Want to Buy A Home . . .

Be prepared to give it a lot of thought

The world was not created in a day, nor was Rome conquered in a day. If you're contemplating purchasing a home (mobile home, or a permanent structure) you can't do it in a day either. The purchasing of a home may well be the biggest buy of your life, and if you are not careful it could be a nightmare to haunt you the rest of your life.

Any person who buys a home and becomes responsible for repaying tens of thousands of dollars — without the help of a lawyer is taking a severe risk. Unfortunately there are thousands of people who buy homes without the aid of a lawyer, and become instant victims of their lack of knowledge.

Common sense mixed with caution and curiosity will pay off in the long run and increase your chances of selecting a home that you will enjoy and appreciate for many years to come.

Most people are blind (in a way) when they first start to look for a new home. Blind in the sense that they see a house they like, but their eyes do not see the obvious problems they will encounter after the purchase.

Seek advice from the professionals and your friends who have experience. You may consider hiring some reliable individuals in the construction business to carefully inspect the home you are thinking of buying. You need someone knowledgeable in the building business to carefully look over the construction of the home to insure that you are not buying a candy coated shack.

Consider asking a friend that is not interested in the home to look at it and give you their opinion. Ask your boss or someone you know who has experience in owning a home to look at it. These people see, or point out, many things that your blind eyes cannot see. The more opinions you get from people whose judgement you value, the better the decision you can make.

The value of the house and land must be evaluated against the price asked for the house. The price of the house and the monthly payments should be considered against the paycheck you bring home each month. When your house payment is larger than the suggested slice out of your pay you will start to feel the pinch financially. Seek the opinions of professionals on how much you can afford for house payments.

Another eye opener is the total cost that you will pay for a house on a twenty or thirty year mortgage. So, before you sign on the dotted line, look at all the facts and figures and have plenty of advice backing you up. Once you have signed that paper you are committed for many thousands of dollars for a long, long time.

What does it matter where you finance your home? It matters a great deal. The difference in a quarter or a half of a percent over a thirty-year period will mean hundreds of dollars to you, and that's a lot of bread. So be careful where you borrow the money. The Veterans Administration will advise you on your home loan benefits.

Let's take a look at the added expenses you will encounter upon becoming a home owner. There are closing cost, transfer fees, lawyer's fees, recording fees and taxes for the rest of the year. Don't get caught paying the back taxes for someone else when you buy a used home. These details will have to be worked out in advance, and have it down in writing. Trust nothing to word of mouth — because a gentleman's agreement does not hold water in court.

Other expenses will include the money you need to put in the house in the shape you want it. Whether new or used there are costs for lawn care, repairs inside and out, lights, gas, water, insurance and taxes. Considering all of these added costs evaluate the true value of the home and see if you are getting a good deal.

Are you expecting to stay in the area long? If not, you will most likely lose money on the resale of your home. Several factors governs the sale of your home. If you live in your home less than two years you cannot expect to make any money. You have to put several years payments into a home before you build up any equity. Another problem in the selling of a home is the market.

The selling market is set by the demand of potential home buyers. If you decide to sell when there are very few buyers, you may not be able to sell your home quickly. It is a problem to move away and handle a home payment for several months until it sells. You must be careful in selecting the area of town in which to purchase a home.

You may be able to find an excellent deal in a certain section of town, but caution should be used. A certain section of town may for some unknown reason be losing the people to the outskirts of its city limits. If a section of town is "dying" the chances of resale become less as time passes.

A Costly Disaster!

The elements are a consideration. What is the weather like in that area? If there is a heavy annual snow fall you don't want to buy a flat roof house. If it rains all the time, you don't want to buy a home in a valley. High winds can damage or carry a home off its foundation, so in a mobile home you want the tie downs. You need to check wooded areas where snakes, rodents or insects become a nuisance. Is the home down wind from a factory which spews out annoying odors or chemicals that may damage the home?

Look at the surrounding area to see if the home around yours will hurt or hold down the value of the one you anticipate buying. Are the streets in shape? Will you be assured more for future repairs, or will the roads cause damage to your car over an extended period of use? Are you going to be so close to a major access that these will be a danger to children or cause sleepless nights due to excess noise?

These are but a few of the questions you need to answer to make a wise selection for happy future. Line up all the ducks possible before you sign the biggest bill of your life.

Ft. Benning girls receive scouting's highest honor

Nine Ft. Benning girls have received girl scouting's highest honor — the First Class Scout Award. The coveted were presented May 23, at the annual Adult Volunteer Award luncheon held at the Black Angus Restaurant in Columbus, by Mrs. Richard Ulrich, president of Concharty Council, Girl Scouts of America.

The nine girls are: Cindy Funderburk, Pam Leschak (both aged 15); Renee Clark, Michelle Curry, Elaine Nordwall and Vikki Jacobs (all aged 14); and Deborah Rhymes and Barbara Prusse, both aged 13. All attend Faith School except Cindy Funderburk, who goes to Pacelli, and Pam Leschak, who goes to Spencer, and Michelle Curry, who goes to Our Lady of Lourdes. All are daughters of active duty servicemen.

The First Class Scout Award is the comparable to Boy Scouting's Eagle Scout award. The girls must have earned 6 cadette badges (like merit badges) and passed 4 challenges (related to and interdependent on cadette badges) over a period of 2-3 years.

Only 20 girls — out of 8,000 in Concharty Council received the award this year; more than 1-3 were Ft. Benning girls. That's a record for the Ft. Benning Association and Concharty Council.

Elaine Nordwall, one of this year's recipients, will be going to Greenville, S. C. June 28-July 12 for the Chattooga Challenge, a regional girl scouting event.

One activity will be canoeing on the Chattooga River, the same river upon which the movie "Deliverance" was made.

Safety awareness program pays off for aviation platoon

One year and 2500 flying hours without an accident has proven to the 197th Inf. Bde. Aviation Platoon that "safety awareness" pays off.

CW-2 Lawrence M. Gruhn, aviation safety officer, attributes the unit's safety record to, "safety programs which have been started in the unit and their implementation. The accident prevention program is also a safety awareness program designed to enhance the mission rather than take from it."

"The Unit Safety Council, a part of the safety program, has also helped," commented WO-1 Harlell H. Hubble, assistant aviation and ground safety officer. "Its recommendations to the commander have helped to eliminate potential safety hazards in the unit."

"An award for safety has been devised. It consists of a plaque for the individual and a patch for wear on his uniform. The award will be presented to the enlisted man who demonstrates the most safety awareness. The criterions set forth to receive the award have been established and individuals will be judged by both officers and enlisted members of the council," he said.

"Every aspect of aviation operations entails safety, pre-flight inspections, post flight inspections, even the tools used to repair the aircraft," stated Mr. Gruhn.

"Because tools may be left around and cause engine damage, they are inventoried periodically to insure none are missing. However, the mechanic is responsible for a thorough accountability of his tools at all times when working on an aircraft," said SP Ronald J. Crum, crew chief for one UH1H Huey helicopter.

"The unit has bi-weekly safety classes for all enlisted men; the officers receive tips on safety each morning concerning events of the previous day which could have resulted in an accident.

"There are no fancy slogans used. The men are just informed about the hazards of their jobs and the responsibility for sound adult judgment is placed on them. It works," concluded Mr. Gruhn.

WHO WHAT WHERE

By Jackie Robke

By JACKIE ROBKE NCOWC TEA

The ladies of the NCOWC honored Mrs. Edward Callaway with a tea on her recent visit to Fort Benning. Mrs. Thomas Tarpley was also a guest.

Hostesses for the gala event were Mesdames Robert Keairnes, Thurston Massey, and Cyril Robke.

5TH STUDENT BATTALION

Mrs. Henry Anthony and Mrs. Virgil Hooe were honored with a surprise baby shower at the monthly coffee of the 5th student Battalion held in the home of Mrs. William Duncan.

Mrs. Steven Stiles was warmly welcomed and sad farewells were bid to Mrs. William Sweeney and Mrs. Norris Curry.

"COTTONBALERS"

The enlisted ladies of the "Cottonbalers" held a coffee at the Kelly Hill Service Club to bid farewell to Mrs. Charles Arnecke, wife of the Battalion commander. The coffee was sponsored by Bravo Company.

Mrs. Arnecke was presented a white dining cloth and napkins embroidered with the "Cottonbalers" crest. SGM Jesse Chewning and his lovely daughter, Debbie entertained with a judo demonstration.

197TH BDE HQ

The ladies of the 197th Brigade Headquarters held their monthly coffee as a back yard get-together at the home of Mrs. Douglas H. Snell, Dial St., Ft. Benning. Co-hostess at the coffee was Mrs. Charles W. Barnes. On hand to entertain was the Brigade Chorus.

Welcomed to the group were Mesdames J. Larry Hine, Dennis K. Christian, Frederick Masci and Richard D. Gillem. Farewells were bid to Mesdames Richard R. Timbo, George E. Clark, Larry H. Pogue, Perry D. Hope, Edward J. Quinn, Jr., and George W. Graham.

Mrs. Don Baldwin and Mrs. Mel Taira were selected as Welcome Chairman and Treasurer, respectively.

Welcomed were Mrs. Harry Andrews, guest of Mrs. Allen Templeton.

Mrs. Ellis Morris offered special congratulations from all the ladies to Mrs. John Idell, whose daughter, Blanche, is the recipient of one of the OWC scholarships this year. Miss Idell plans to attend Columbus College in the fall.

197TH SUPPORT BATTALION

The ladies of the 197th Support Battalion gathered among the lovely displays at the Talent Tree. Hostesses were Mrs. Edward Kellam and Mrs. Bill Coleman.

Mrs. Stone, a Talent Tree volunteer, served as "shopkeeper" and explained the purpose and functions of this special project, which has been unique in the military community.

Benning has stars in Springer production

The Springer Theatre Company presents the delightful comedy "You Can't Take It With You" by Moss Hart and George S. Kaufman. The play will be presented at 8:30 June 6-8 and 11-15 and 2:30 p.m. on June 16.

Seven people from Fort Benning are in the cast of nineteen. They are Major Barry Gasdek, Major Dan Boone, Lieutenant and Mrs. Robert Behr, Mrs. Beverly Eddins, Mrs. Judy Johnson and Mrs. Mary Wynn Tyree.

The 1930 comedy play is about a family in which each member has a unique interest. From the snake feeding grandfather to the fireworks experimenting dad the play will keep you in tears of laughter. One highlight takes place when the daughter invites her boyfriend's prominent parents over for dinner and they show up a day early.

Virginia Woolf is demanding

Since joining the Ft. Benning Dramatizers, Bob Swain has been a very active member. He was assistant director for "Edwin Booth" and director of "The Mouse that Roared." He has had lots of experience, as he's been doing amateur theatre since he was five years old; however, "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?" is proving to be his biggest challenge yet. "Virginia Woolf" is a very demanding play and rehearsals have been hampered by a multitude of problems no one could have envisioned.

"Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?" will be presented June 13, 14, 15, 20, 21, and 22 at the Ft. Benning Playhouse, located behind the Infantry Museum, off Ingersoll Street. Curtain time is 8 p.m., admission is free, and the public is invited. Call 545-5057 for further information.

Army career and marriage: demands are the same

BY TERRY D. RAGAN

Being in the Army — not surprisingly — has some unique problems unknown in civilian life. There are the well-known problems, like rank structure, barracks living and uniforms that, while most are proud to wear, nevertheless make one look like just another nobody in the big green machine.

But there is another problem. It is somewhat less obvious; but nevertheless it seethes just under the surface. It is the problem — or problems — associated with being both in the Army and being married.

Upon no one does this have more impact than upon the newly married E-1, -2 or -3, with under 2 years in service. If you've never been that route, imagine the situation:

— Very little money. Just to be able to live minimally, the young wife almost has to work. If she's pregnant, it's almost too scary to contemplate.

— Because of the above, very little (if any) entertainment. In fact, most of the entertainment problems the newly married soldier in the lower grades will have will stem from the lack of money.

— Frequent separations from wife and family. It's no secret, the above is one of the biggest reasons why first-termers don't re-up — because he's dissatisfied with the job. We submit that his wife has more to do with that decision than her hubby realizes. If she's unhappy, he is too.

As Miss Jane Pittman said in a recent Emmy-award winning motion picture made for television: "What to do, what to do?"

To those who will look at the lessons of history, something of value might come into view. To wit:

In 1938 there were only seven grades; the top three grades were authorized allowances for dependents—period.

Only the top three were entitled to on-post housing if available, and only those three grades.

In all enlisted grades, written permission was needed by the company commander just to be married, and that permission had to be upgraded yearly. That didn't mean a guy couldn't be married. Nor did it mean that a guy got hauled before the military courts if he was married. What it did mean is that the CO kept tabs on every man in his company; if a married member in the company got into some kind of trouble, the CO had ways (unheard of today, by the way) of bailing him out.

A corporal's pay was $54 per month, and his dependents weren't authorized medical care. That means that the pay and entitlements of the first three grades were correspondingly lower — lower than a snake's belly in a wagonwheel rut, actually. Privates made a buck a day; see what we mean? There was a saying then: If the Army wanted you to have a wife, it would have issued you one.

What the Army was trying to show by all this was that the young trooper ought not to get married until rank and privilege accrued.

Today, the young married couple still has a problem making enough money — even though his benefits and entitlements have increased.

The lower three grades still don't get on-post housing, but an allowance for quarters is authorized, and it doesn't take anyone's special permission to get it. But all in all, the basic problems of the lower three grades in today's Army — finding something to do — aren't terribly different than they were 30 years ago — especially for the married man.

That wife is still going to be left at home while hubby's out beating the bush. It's bad enough finding something to do together on a low income; when hub's gone, entertainment becomes an exercise in self-amusement.

We've found — more by observation than by actual polling — that being young (read poor) and married — demands some of the same things the Army demands. Among them are:

—Judgement — the ability to judge what's best for both of you, and to make the best of an admitted sticky situation.

—Fortitude — the old stick-to-it-iveness, that no matter what, you and your wife can make it through anything.

—Decisiveness — the ability to recognize that you've chosen the Army and that you and your wife can make a marriage work right along with the Army.

No need to be preachy, but the list goes on and on. It all comes down (doesn't it) to finding happiness in the only place it exists — in you life together. Even more specifically, in your satisfaction with yourself and your job.

D-Day:

A tender reminiscence of that fateful June 6 in 1944

Editor's note:

For "old-timers" at Fort Benning, the anniversary of D-Day (June 6, 1944) brings back a flood of memories. Those days were exciting, danger-filled times on any Army post, and the home of the Infantry was no exception.

For those of us who weren't here, this nostalgic picture written by a Red Cross worker may be interesting — even amusing. Those hectic days are recalled for us — a bygone era when patriotism was more than just another word, and "serving my country" meant mortal danger.

The author is Miss Janet H. Rastall, now Hospital Field Director of the American Red Cross at Martin Army Hospital. Miss Rastall left Fort Benning in 1944 for France, she didn't return until 1968. She writes of the days just preceding D-Day at Fort Benning and in Columbus.

Columbus... World War II... Ft. Benning. My bird's eye view then was a small building in the parkway at 10th and Broad, the "old Howard Bus Station." Buses had been evacuated to a newer, larger location. It was turned into the "USO-Travelers Aid" station.

The USO station was a mecca for all the multitudes who wanted one last visit with sons, husbands, fiances, and friends who would soon receive their inevitable overseas orders. However, as in the Christmas story, there was "no room at the inn." Hotels and Post Guest Houses were full. There was no Victory Drive, no motels, and few apartment houses.

Columbus volunteers often saved the day. Miss Therese Banner, a teacher, would remember a friend with an unused guest room. She would call, briefly "pass the time of day," and then continue, "I have a lovely couple with no place to stay."

Another volunteer, Mrs. Farley, had connections at the Ralston, and could sometimes cajole them out of a room they were saving in case any of their regular customers arrived late.

There were the George Singers, who had young people of their own. She worked at the USO, helping us find housing for visitors, and he worked at the Howard Bus Station, helping with train and bus schedules and worked giving advice about accessible leave areas. They would often end a busy evening by taking two or three Officer Candidates who wanted to celebrate their one free night from a very grueling and demanding training schedule.

Sunday at 1 PM was a nightmare. We came half an hour early to reread the files and see whose rooms might be vacated that day, and to wait for the phone to ring announcing a vacancy. When we opened the door to the modest waiting room the line formed, counter-to-door. Before we could get back. Holidays, especially Christmas, were even more difficult. Once we rented out a child's playhouse and were blessed that the weather stayed warm.

Once we were puzzled when an unusually attractive and curvaceous young lady talked with many of the men in the waiting room and seemed to be writing something for each; it couldn't have been an address as she did not yet have one. She arrived at the desk and explained that her husband was an Officer Candidate at Fort Benning and she had come to be with him for the duration. He could not come to town to meet her in the middle of the week. We were fortunate to find space for her at the Harmony Church Guest House. It was not until the next day that we learned from the paper that she was Jane Russell, whom the men knew well as a pin-up but we did not know. She stayed and gave her time selling Victory Bonds in the Bond Tank at 12th and Broad. She probably signed autographs there too!

Other memories of that time include the Good Eats Cafe across the street from us, which dispensed beer and a constant juke box rendition of "There's a Star Spangled Banner Waving Somewhere." The son was the popular lament of a 4F who wanted to get into the action.

At least once every night a fight would erupt into the sidewalk, usually the result of a standing rivalry between Airborne and Armored troopers. "Corn" Griffin, retired boxer and our friendly policeman on the beat, sometimes stopped the fights. He also came in around closing time and helped us if a soldier who had drowned his homesickness in beer and sleep needed to be encouraged from our waiting room back to the bus station and camp.

Time zones were complicated in those days. Columbus had only recently moved into the Eastern Time Zone. When "War Time" moved the clock forward once more, things were even more confusing. Columbus reverted to Central Time. But Fort Benning, in the East Coast Defense Zone, had no choice. So throughout the period Fort Benning was always one hour ahead of Columbus. We worked with both time zones, and failure to specify "your time" or "my time" led to many confusions.

Weddings often fell short of the ideal picture-book dream, but most wartime brides and grooms took any compromises in their stride. The Main Post Chapel was then the Chapel of the Three Faiths, convertible for Catholic, Jewish or Protestant services. Weddings were closely scheduled, so promptness was vital. I was asked to be an attendant for one young bride, since I had known her fiance's family. I was the only one who could meet her when her fiance could not meet her because of a field problem. He brought her the corsages in hand, we boarded the large trailer-type Howard Bus. We arrived at the main gate, but could not be admitted without passes. The bus could not wait, so friendly MPs checked with the chapel and made out passes, reassuring the nervous groom that we were almost there. Then they begged us a ride in the next available car, which was that of a stable man. We rode to "our" wedding with a saddle in the back seat for company. The groom's best man and witnesses had to return to duty after the ceremony, so the three of us had the wedding breakfast on the porch of the Officers' Club.

It wasn't all movie stars and weddings, though. The casework part of the job involved visiting five jails in Columbus and Phenix City to help make plans for some incarcerated transients. This was part of my Columbus world for over two years. Then one bright morning when I was not working, I awoke to hear the news, over the radio, that the long-awaited D-Day had come! I rushed next door to my neighbor, the newspaper editor's wife, who was as excited as I was. We listened, we talked, and I pictured England rising further out of the waves as American ships and planes landed on the European continent after the long build-up.

But I felt "out of it" with a day off when so many of the people I had known here were deeply involved in that magnificent, critical and dangerous action far away. It was then I knew that I had to be closer to where the action was. That fall I headed for a Station Hospital for the 82nd Airborne Division in France.

Black products to be stocked by AAFES

DALLAS — The Army and Air Force Exchange Services (AAFES) has announced that it is now adding several popular black-oriented products to smaller exchange outlet shelves worldwide.

Making that announcement was Major General C. W. Hospelhorn, AAFES Commander, who stated that exchange convenience outlets will add seven ethnic products to their stock assortment. Included are items which have been best sellers in larger exchanges: hair dressing and conditioner, hair spray, hair relaxer, combs, shaving powder and shaving cream.

"Shoppettes, foodlands and other AAFES extended hours of operation have offered an array of hair and beauty products for our patrons," General Hospelhorn explained.

"Black customers who may run out of certain items and cannot visit a larger exchange will now be able to make a quick stop at a nearby AAFES convenience outlet and find suitable replacements."

The announcement comes on the heels of other measures implemented by General Hospelhorn to ensure that the needs of the minority patron are being adequately met by the Exchange Service. Those measures include a greatly expanded ethnic goods and service program that ranges from cafeteria specials and Spanish language and "soul" greeting cards, through barber and beauty services, clothing, records and many other products. Last winter General Hospelhorn established a Minority Products and Services Office at AAFES Headquarters to oversee this program. This past spring, he appointed minority group project officers at exchanges around the world.

The general also has invited members of ethnic minorities to participate on committees that have selected merchandise to be carried throughout the exchange system.

"AAFES will continue to explore every possible avenue that may lead to complete satisfaction for the military group patron," General Hospelhorn pledged. "This latest measure will certainly bring the Exchange Service closer to its goal."

Buster is new pistol champ

What was a sure handgun victory for new Champion Cpt. Kenneth Buster, Billings, Missouri National Guardsman, almost turned into disaster in the All Army Rifle and Pistol Championships May 30.

Buster, winner of two of the first three handgun series comprising the four-gun pistol championship and holder of an 18 point lead, watched 16 of those points go up in gun smoke as defending Army Pistol Champion S-Sgt. Marvin Black, Laverne, Okla., and the U. S. Army Marksmanship Unit, Ft. Benning, Ga., made a last ditch effort to retain his crown. Black won the final series, the Combat Pistol 900 point match, with his 884, but was unable to overcome the larges pread which Buster had established during the Center Fire Pistol and 45 Caliber Service Pistol four match series.

Buster won the Grand Aggregate four gun 3600 championship with his 3509-110X while Black settled for the runner up laurels, just 2 points under Buster.

SP6 Mike Vlasin, Lincoln, Nebraska National Guardsman, was a close third when he registered 3503 in the week long series of handgun matches which had 235 active Army, National Guard and Army Reserves vying for the coveted All Army Pistol crown.

National Guard

marksmen, giving an early indication of their championship intentions, won two of the first four individual matches in the 22 caliber Pistol sub-aggregate series and then took the sub-aggregate. They followed with almost similar success in the Center Fire four match series when they won one event and again grabbed the sub-aggregate championship.

In the 45 Caliber Service Pistol series, the Guard shooters failed in only one of the four matches but again, through consistently high scoring, claimed the sub-aggregate championship.

Only in the Combat Pistol course series did the Guard fail to mark as Marvin Black dominated the action in the varied position and rate of fire contest.

National Guardsman SSG. Richard Crawford, Beacon, N. Y. did much to get the Guard rolling when he captured the 22 Caliber Pistol national match course and the 22 Caliber Pistol sub-aggregate championship.

Then Buster took over by winning the Center Fire Pistol slow fire event and the sub-aggregate championship and the 45 Caliber Service Pistol sub-aggregate championship.

The active Army had managed to take their share of the individual matches but no sub-aggregate championship where it really counts. Black's win in the Combat Pistol Course was the only sub-aggregate championship picked up by an active Army shooter as the Guard and Reserver showed their championship caliber of marksmanship.

In the team competition, a late comer into the victor's circle not only claimed the last or fourth gun team match but also the Grand Championship. The highest First Army National Guard (Gold) could climb in the first three matches was third place in the 45 Caliber Service Pistol Match; but they were hitting on the Combat Pistol Course and won it and with that drive claimed the Grand Aggregate Team Championship.

The Sixth Army National Guard (Red) squad were the "golden boys" through the first three matches, placing third in the 22 Caliber Pistol match behind champions Fifth Army Reserve (Gold) and winning the Center Fire Pistol and the 45 Caliber Service Pistol crowns. But they faltered. They were runner up in the Grand Aggregate, losing the prestigious championship by two points with their 2278 of a possible 2400 points.

HHB wins over 1st place C Batt

"This game is a grudge match," stated players of HHB, 2nd Bn., 10th F.A., 197th Inf. Bde., prior to their game last week with C Batt., 2-10th.

In a previous meeting the C Batt. "Redlegs" defeated HHB by a single run (8-7). Last week the score was different as HHB shutout C Batt. (5-0), dealing the favored team their first loss.

"We know we can beat them," boasted James McKinney, HHB's assistant coach. "This is a grudge match since they beat us before. But we know we are going to beat them tonight."

The win by HHB brought the two teams into a tie for the league lead, however HHB lost the following night to A Batt., dropping them to second place.

"I doubt if any of the other teams can beat Charlie Battery," explained HHB shortstop Ken ENKINS. "We have to beat them ourselves if we want to win our battalion pennant."

Cbt. Spt. Co., 2-69th Armor moved into the lead of the Tanker League when HHC dropped a game to Co. A by a score of 5-4.

The days that Georgia can claim the world record largemouth bass are outnumbered if stories coming out of California are true.

According to an article in a recent publication of SPORTS ILLUSTRATED, sometime this year a fisherman in California will take a new world record breaking bass from one of the many California reservoirs that are fast becoming the hottest bass fishing waters in the world.

The present and long standing record bass weighed in at 22-pounds, 4-ounces. It came from Montgomery Lake in the vicinity of what is now Lake Seminole. George Perry a farmer-fisherman made the momentous catch in June of 1932. Since that time many lunkers have been taken from Georgia and Florida waters. There have been many catches in the 17-19-pound weight range and a few very few that went a bit over 20-pounds but none have really come close to the word record holder. As a matter of fact there has been a lot of doubt that the record would ever be broken.

Quite a few fishermen have had serious doubts that the record was a legal one. As in all cases where records are involved there has been plenty of controversy. Claims were made that the fish was loaded with shot, the scales were not accurate and other claims to throw doubt on the record. As the years have passed these claims seem to have been validated because of the lack of fish in the record weight category.

Record Was No Fluke

Now the reports from California bear out that Perry's catch was probably not a hoax. Southern large mouth bass will grow into the 20-pound range when conditions are right.

Southern largemouth bass are not native to California. The first immigrants came in as one inch fingerlings. Upper Otay Lake in San Diego County was treated with chemicals to remove all fish life and on May 7, 1959 a California Fish and Game plane flew in from Pensacola, Fla. with 20,400 fry size bass. Over the next few years bass were removed from Otay and stocked in other reservoirs in the San Diego area. For several years the experiment was only of interest to the state biologist and they were not overly impressed with the program. But the bass began to grow and as their size and numbers increased so did the numbers of fishermen.

California Predicts Record

In 1969 the San Diego reservoirs began to make sports headlines. An angler took a 15-pound bass from Lake Miramar to set a state record. Not bad for a fish that couldn't have been more than ten years old. Biologist claim that the southern largemouth can live to be 15 or 16 years old. The southern bass became a hot item and fishermen began talking about world records.

In 1971 the state record went to 16-pounds, 15-ounces and last June a 20-pound, 11-ounce lunker came from Lake Murray another San Diego area reservoir. California fishermen are certain that a catch this year will establish a new world record.

California Here I Come

It's a cinch that anglers from other states are not going to leave the bass fishing in the San Diego area to the California fishermen. Experts on the value of records estimate that the angler who takes the record bass should realize at least $25,000 or approximately $1,000 a pound for his efforts. There are rumors that the Bass Anglers Sportsman Society might go as high as $10,000 for the carcass and endorsements for lures and other fishing gear should be worth considerable loot. Times have changed. All Perry got was a big fish dinner.

Byers claims Army rifle crown

Army Reserve CPT Charles M. Byers, Phoenix, Ariz., slammed a record high power rifle score of 1875-77X during the All Army Rifle and Pistol Championships to claim the coveted Army Rifle crown here May 31.

A second Army Captain, Edward Schumacher, Maysville, Ky., who was shooting for the U.S. Army in Europe, earned the runner up honors in the annual prestige rifle matches with an 1858-84 total while Army Reserve MAJ. Tommy Pool, Columbus, Ga., gained the third spot.

Byers, who went into the All Army Matches after claiming the preliminary match — the Southeastern Regional Championships — dominated the action from the start of the week long series. He failed to win any of the five individual M-16 rifle events but through his steady pacing, he was four-point leader at the conclusion with his 621 of a possible 650 points.

to pace the large field of 343 high power rifle competitors from the active Army, National Guard and Army Reserve through the five matches making up the M-14 Service Rifle Championship. He won that individual crown with his three day total of 1254-26X of a possible 1300 points. This coupled to his earlier 621 in the M-16 series gave him the prestigious Army Rifle title.

A second champion who added much interest to the All Army Rifle matches was SP5 Joanne Stawski, National Women's High Power Rifle Champion. Specialist Stawski not only was the high woman in the competition but fired an impressive score in the long range matches. Her score in the national match course "leg match" was just three X count off the winner SFC Ernest J. Fountain, Fort Bragg, N.C. at 471-10X.

Other honors added by Byers on his march to the rifle championship included the individual Long Range Rifle Championship which he won with his combined 565-21X and the Rapid Fire Championship at 1026-54X. His latter score was the third new Army record established during the week-long series of rifle matches.

In the highly contested team matches, a squad from the U.S. Army Pacific won the M-14 Rifle crown and with it the All Army Rifle Team Championship. They posted a winning total of 2839-61X in the M-14 to give them a new Army record score of 4218-149X for the Grand Championship title.

Both the Short Range team title and Long Range titles were claimed by the Sixth Army Reserve

"Blue" squad. They to the first with a 1737 score and the second with 1126.

CPT Darrah not born with racquet in hand

CPT Stephen Darrah was not born with a tennis racquet in his hand, in spite of what other competitors might have thought after the Spring Open Tennis Tournament at the Main Officers Club a few weeks ago.

"I guess I started playing tennis at about age nine," stated the assistant S-3 officer of the 3rd Bn., 7th Inf. (Cottonbalers), 197th Inf. Bde. "I played in a lot of 16-and-under tournaments while in school," he said.

A native of Providence, R.I., Darrah captured the men's singles title and the mixed doubles titles with his wife, Phyllis. He also won the men's doubles with Bill Baxter, in the tournament.

Winning was not a new experience for Darrah. In prep school he was All-State for two years in basketball and football. He also played tennis and squash for the U.S. Military Academy in '63, '64 and '65. In 1964 he was nationally ranked in squash.

"When I was young I played a lot of baseball," Darrah said. "I was a pitcher and I threw my arm out. That was when I took up tennis."

Darrah has competed in a number of Army tennis tournaments, winning titles in most of them. In addition to capturing the Ft. Benning singles championship for the past two years, he has also won post titles at Ft. Campbell, Ky. and Ft. Rucker, Ala. In 1972 he lost in the finals of the 3rd U.S. Army Doubles Tournament.

Ft. Benning youths nab kegler titles

Ft. Benning dependent youths dominated top honors in the Columbus City Bowling Tournament held at Bowlarama Lanes.

George Peteff was declared the All-Events champion in the Bantam Boys Division with a pin total of 1575. By winning the All-Events title, Peteff also earned the city championship of that division. Richard Rempel was second in the All-Events with a 1432.

Other action in the Bantam division saw the team of Donald Lindo, Ricky Vanke, Robert Locascio and Joey Quick win the team title with a combined score of 1956 pins.

Charlie Green and Richard Rempel won the doubles title with a pin total of 1007.

In singles competition, Ricky Vanke was first with a 525 series and Richard Rempel was second with a three game score of 522. Bill Skytta was the city champ in the Senior Division as he won the All-Events with a 1938 total.

singles competition with a 682 and then teamed with Klaus Dickinson to place first in doubles with a 1284 pin total.

Golden Park scene of squareoff

By BOB THOMAS Softball fans will have to wait until next year for the conclusion of the annual game at Golden Park between the senior officers and NCOs of the 197th Inf. Bde.

The game was called because of time after 4½ innings of play with the officers holding a 6-5 lead. However, the NCOs claimed a victory because they did not get their final ½ inning at bat.

"Sweet Thing" Darling of the NCOs was named the game's most valuable player by members of the press following the game. Darling's clutch hit in the fourth inning put the NCOs ahead and his fielding plays almost (but not quite) saved the game.

"We'll show 'em next year," exclaimed "Little Willie" Little, coach of the NCOs. "We had a few errors by our catcher who we hope to replace before next season."

The catcher, "Bicker-some" Dickerson, had trouble handling the fast pitches of "Buzzball - Hammerhead" Hamerly. Dickerson's most glaring error occurred in the top of the fifth when he got hit in the head with the ball and allowed "Speedy" Spencer to score the tying run.

"Bush leaguers," stated "Marathon" Muller - Thyme, the field grade's coach when asked about the NCOs. "Given another inning or two we could have slaughtered them."

Muller-Thyme was also the game's only strike out victim when he went down swinging at a high buzzball in the third inning.

"Their pitcher was throwing awful fast for slow pitch softball," Muller-Thyme muttered after the strike out.

"Pick 'em up" Patterson almost became Hamerly's second strikeout when he swung at and missed a low west Georgia twister. However, Dickerson let the ball get by and roll all the way to the backstop, allowing Patterson to get on base on a passed ball. Patterson later went on to score one of the field grades' runs.

Co. A unnerves Co. E Artillery

Tim DeBey went 3 for 3 at the plate with two RBI's and Tom Swift sparked defensively at third base, as the Company A PIONEERS unnerved the previously undefeated Company E. Artillerymen 7-5.

Despite four individual errors by team captain Doug Sturgeon, Company A of the 1-29th managed to upset the Artillerymen, and the win put them in the first place in the Yellow Division of the TSB softball league.

Joel Royal, winning pitcher for the Mechanized Infantrymen of Co. A, cooled the thundering bats of Company E with his unique "slow-pitch drop sinker," as it is known in the PIONEER league.

Thomas Kelley hit three for three for the losers, batting in one run and scoring twice himself. The 7-5 loss for the Artillerymen dropped them to second place behind the undefeated Company A team who stands at 4-0.

In other Yellow Division action, Hq & Spt. Company of the PIONEERS romped to an easy victory over cellar-dweller Company B, 24-9.

Rex Farris went 4 for 4 with two doubles and a triple, while Arnie Andreesen contributed to the victory with a homerun and 3 runs batted in. The victory for the Headquarters company clerks moved them up to third place in standings with a 2-2 record.

Later this week, Company A will try for their fifth consecutive victory, when they are pitted against Company C Rangers of the 1-29th. Company E, still smarting from their embarrassing defeat to Company A, will play the last-place Company D team.

Co. A, Hqs. Cmd. is s'ball league leader

Headquarters Command kicked off the 1974 softball season way back on May 21. Last report had Col. A, Hqs Comd. leading the five team league with a spotless 3-0 record. The Infantry Board followed closely with a 3-1 record. HHC, Hqs Comd at 2-1 remained in contention.

are backing up so far when he bats that they have to call long distance to find out the score.

The Infantry Board has a well-rounded team that could beat anyone on a given night. A one time peek at the Board as they take the field will convince you that at least they could win a flashy uniform contest.

Co. A's strong hitting attack is led by Robert Stapleton. The outfielders

Howdy, Bub. This is the season for snakes, an' I hope that you ain't forgot the proper treatment for takin' care of yerselves iffen you get bit. Iffen you are out in the woods athrashin' an' acrashin' round, an' ole snake thinks you look like his lunch, here are a few pointers for you to keep in mind.

If you are alone, try an' kill the snake wit a stick or rock, an' iffen someone is with you, both of you try an' get him. Cut off the varmit's head, put a tourniquet 'tween the bite an' yore heart, an' then get on to an emergency room soon's you can. Acorse, be sure an' have the snake's body with you. Try an' keep the bitten area lower than yore heart, so's you can slow down the venom headin' for yore heart.

I 'member one time last summer, when I wuz workin' in the emergency room, an' we had wall-to-wall patients. They wuz all over the place waitin' to be seen. Well anyway, this boyscout came into the reception area with his shirt all bunched up in his arms, an' jes wearin' jeans an' a tee-shirt. When Nellie, the receptionist, ask him what wuz his problem, he 'nounced that he'd been snake bit.

Well sir, Nellie let out a beller that caused some of the paint to flake offen the ceilin', "Hey Doc, we's finally got us a real emergency, this here lad's been snake bit." I headed towards the reception desk, on the trot, so 'we could get atreatin' this boy. When I got there, he held up his right hand, an' showed me the web twixt his thumb and forefinger, so's I could see the teensy holes in it.

I hardly had any room to see what I needed to see, 'cause most all o' those, so-called emergency, patients wuz all crowded 'round agawkin' at them fang marks. I ast the boy iffen he knew what kinda snake it wuz that had bit him. He allowed that he surely didn't know, but he had caught the reptile.

He then commenced to open the bundled up shirt, but lost his hold an' dropped it on the floor. Soon's that shirt landed, that snake came outta them wrappings like a bullet. His mouth wuz achompin', an' his tail wuz abuzzin' like a behive.

Well, Bub, they must've been fifty, sixty folks in that room at the start of the fuss, but when 'ole snake got hisself set up to take on all comers, you coulda drove a duce-and-a-half thru the premises an' not touched a soul.

Them folks didn't scatter outta that room; they crupped like we wuz havin' an explosion, an' I wuz leadin' the pack. They is only two kinds of snakes 'Ole Doc is afear of, an' they is, live ones an' dead ones. Cars wuz startin' up an' rgarin' outta the parkin' lot, headin' for high ground. I had swallered my plug durin' the 'citement, an' wuz tryin' to regain my composure to go back into the buildin', an' do somethin' 'bout that "narrow-fellow" that wuz loose in the hospital.

Jes' then, the boyscout walked outta the door with the re-captured snake in his hand. Well, the long an' 'short of it all wuz, that we killed the snake, an' commenced givin' the boy anti-venom, an' admitted him for overnight observation. Be on the lookout for them serpents 'round here, so's you won't have to make that trip to the emergency room.

Good health to you and yours.

Battle of the sexes 1974

It's Bobby Riggs and Billie Jean King all over again. Will the lady conquer the tiger, or will it be the same outcome as when Bobby trounced Margaret Court. The only way to find out is to come out to the game when the TSB ladies softball team meets the TSB over the hill gang on Thursday June 20 at 7 p.m. at Golden Park in the 3d great battle of the sexes.

It's a girls against the boys, little girls against the big guys contest. Some may laugh, thinking "women against men? Are you kidding?" No one's kidding. They are really going to play.

The girls aren't walking into the arena unarmed against the stronger half of the species. They've been playing in a Columbus City League, and winning big. In the first half of their season they placed third in the 10 team league. Also, in the tournament played at the end of the first half of their season, TSB finished second. The ladies team has averaged 13 runs scored per game. The over the hill gang has played once, a 3-2 loss to the Columbus City Fathers.

Admission to the game is $1.00, which also admits one to the Columbus Astros vs Knoxville White Sox game immediately following the TSB clash.

Women's Lib has been issue for years

By Lt. Marcus Disbrow

One of the hottest topics to discuss in social gatherings is women's liberation. It seems that practically everyone, from children to senators, has a definite opinion on the topic. Although the subject may sound new, its history dates prior to the Civil War.

Back in 1849 the first Women's Convention was held in Seneca Falls, New York. The determined women who gathered there in that hot July produced the now famous "Declaration of Sentiments" which coherently expressed their demands. The very Declaration of Independence of the country was utilized as their model. One noticeable change, however, from the original document is in the second paragraph: "We hold these truths to be self-evident: that all men and women are created equal..." After reading that, one wonders why our nation's founders left out the recognition of women as equal in the first place.

While newspapers splashed across their front pages incidents of women demonstrating against beauty contests, they were strangely silent about economic and political discrimination based upon sex. A quick search through the roster of congressional representatives questions whether or not the 52% of our population is really represented. And the latest Department of Labor figures clearly portray the salary differences between similarly educated men and women.

Many people, both male and female, are in disagreement over women's liberation. PVT Larry J. Goldston, HHC, 1st Bn., 58th Inf., says, "I think that it is good to a certain extent, but I don't want my wife doing my job as it would mess with my manly ego. Such things as pumping gas and digging ditches I just don't go along with."

PFC Linda Young, MEDDAC Dental Clinic, has definite ideas about the role of her sex, "I believe that a woman was meant to love and take care of a man and bear his children. God created woman to see to the needs of a man and I firmly believe in His word."

A man and a woman who support the liberation movement are Lt. James M. Johnson, HHC, 1st Bn., 58th Inf., and Mrs. Ginger Nicholson.

"It is unfortunate," expresses Lt. Johnson, "during this day and time that women encounter any form of job discrimination. They should be hired on their merits, not their sex."

Mrs. Nicholson believes, "A woman needs love, acceptance, challenges, rewards, etc. as does a man. What's so strange about women wanting what is rightfully theirs as human beings? The women's liberation movement only came about because we as people were being denied our equality as people."

These above opinions clearly reflect differing views toward women's liberation. But what is happening on the political level?

While some organizations are trying to uplift women's position in our society, others are attempting to maintain it at its present state. The Equal Rights Amendment has run into both types. Section I of the ERA outlines the basis of the proposed constitutional amendment, "equality of rights under the law shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any State on account of sex." The other two sections of the ERA deal with enforcement and time of ratification is accepted.

Perhaps the question boils down to: the same issues behind the 13th, 14th and 15th amendments. When will ALL people, whether they are male or female, and no matter what specific racial group they belong to, be given their rights? How much longer must we wait for equality under the law?

500 Mile Patch
 PFC Suzanne E. Raker,
 Human Research and Resources Organization, was awarded her 500-mile patch from LTC Robert G. Matheson for the Run for Your Life Program recently.

As the first WAC to obtain her record, PFC Raker feels that physical training is an important daily function. "I used to run the five-mile track at Ft. Benjamin Harrison, Ind., when I got home from work. I thought I needed the exercise.

"The organized PT in basic and in the field," she explained, "wasn't adequate. It's your mission as a soldier to keep in shape. If you're in good physical shape you work better."

PFC Raker has two hunting dogs that she runs for exercise also. She likes to go to sports car rallies and enjoys hunting and fishing.

197th Personnel Change

The 197th Inf. Bde. headquarters underwent two major changes in personnel last week when LTC Richard D. Gillem vacated his position as brigade executive officer to become commander of the 3rd Bn., 7th Inf. (Ootnabalers).

The job of executive officer was filled by LTC Theron H. Hill. LTC Hill served as S-3 for the brigade from August, 1973 until he assumed the executive officer post.

LTC John G. Campbell became brigade S-3 filling the gap left by LTC Hill.

LTC Campbell, promoted to his present grade last week, was assistant S-3 prior to his appointment as S-3.

145th Command Change

LTC Lawrence A. Bell relinquished command of the 145th Aviation Battalion to Lieutenant Colonel Duane C. Ingram during a change of command ceremony held at Lawson Field May 30.

LTC Bell, who has commanded the 145th since its activation last May, has been transferred to Headquarters, Department of the Army, Washington, D.C.

LTC Ingram has been executive officer of The School Brigade since January 1974. Prior to that time he served as the brigade operations officer.

His previous assignments include three combat tours in the Republic of Vietnam. The first tour was with the 173rd Airborne Brigade. During the second tour, in 1968, he served with the 118th Assault Helicopter Company, a unit of the 145th Aviation Battalion then stationed in Vietnam. On a third tour he was assistant operations officer of the 1st Aviation Brigade.

He is a graduate of Oklahoma A & M University where he received a bachelor of science degree. He is also a graduate of Army Command and General Staff College and the Army Aviation School, and is Airborne qualified.

 16 JUNE 1974

FINANCE CORPS ANNIVERSARY MESSAGE

On behalf of all personnel of the United States Army, I extend congratulations and best wishes to all members of the Army Finance Corps on the occasion of its 199th anniversary on 16 June.

The Finance Corps has had a distinguished role in our Army since its establishment in the Pay Department by the Second Continental Congress on 16 June 1775. The Finance Corps has provided a vital and necessary service in a highly exemplary manner to the soldier and military manager at all levels of authority. The services provided have demonstrated great technical competency and personal dedication by the members of the Finance Corps.

I take pleasure in recognizing you, the men and women of the Army Finance Corps, for your outstanding accomplishments and in expressing best wishes on your anniversary for continued success.

199TH ANNIVERSARY OF INFANTRY & US ARMY

On 14 June 1974, the United States Army observes its 199th anniversary. Because we are senior, the Infantry assumes a proud place among Army elements celebrating this occasion.

During most of this century, the Infantry School and Fort Benning have provided the home for the Infantryman and his family. And while we continue to profit from the lessons of the past, we are reminded on this date of our obligations to make sure the best trained Army in the world. We are now committed to that course as we rapidly approach that point in our history when we shall have an all-volunteer force.

On this anniversary occasion, we salute the Infantry and all the branches of the Army who have made Fort Benning a leading military establishment.

TO THE MEMBERS OF THE CORPS OF ENGINEERS

On behalf of the men and women of the Army, I extend congratulations to all members of the Corps of Engineers on the anniversary on 16 June.

The Corps of Engineers has fully earned its reputation of "being in service to the Nation through the courage, knowledge and technical skill" by our high standards of scientific knowledge and technical skill, have distinguished themselves as both soldiers and engineers.

Your fellow soldiers join me in paying tribute to your past accomplishments and in expressing confidence in your continued success.

CONGRATS SIGNAL CORPS!

TO THE MEN AND WOMEN OF THE SIGNAL CORPS

It is my pleasure and privilege to extend greetings to the members of the US Army Signal Corps on the occasion of its 114th anniversary. From its birth on 21 June 1860, the Signal Corps has served the Army and the Nation well, in war and peace. In six major wars you have demonstrated that success in battle is dependent on the commander's ability to communicate as well as "shoot and move." Your superior professional team in communications and electronics and your dedicated service have brought great credit to the US Army and serve as a model for all communications organizations throughout the world.

Today we find ourselves in an exploding period of telecommunications, requirements, and technological advances. I am confident that the Signal Corps will successfully meet the challenges of the future as it has done in the past.

TO ALL MEMBERS OF THE ARMY ADJUTANT GENERAL'S CORPS

The 16th of June 1974 commemorates the 199th anniversary of the Adjutant General's Corps. It affords me a welcome opportunity to extend congratulations and best wishes to all members of the Corps.

The Adjutant General's Corps has been an integral part of the Army since the founding of our Republic. As America grew, the mission of the United States Army correspondingly changed to reflect our country's developing role in the world community. Since the earliest days the members of the Adjutant General's Corps have demonstrated versatility in solving the complex problems of personnel and administration associated with our dynamic and growing Army. Those services which you of the Adjutant General's Corps provide have at all times contributed to the personal well-being, morale, and professional excellence of each member of the Army. This successful accomplishment of your essential mission reflects the high standards of professional competence which are the hallmark of the Adjutant General's Corps.

As you begin a new year of service, please accept my appreciation for your past efforts and performance and confidence in your continued success.

CONGRATS INFANTRY!

199th Anniversary
 14 JUNE 1974

TO ALL MEMBERS OF THE UNITED STATES ARMY INFANTRY

I join with all the men and women of the United States Army in extending sincere congratulations to the Infantry on the occasion of your 199th anniversary on 14 June 1974.

With pride and courage your code, valor and determination your history and professional skill your watchword, you have compiled an admirable record of dedicated service to the country from which all Americans gain strength. You have met every challenge of the profession of arms and society alike.

I take personal pleasure as a former Infantryman in saluting all of you and wish you success in your continuing mission of maintaining peace throughout the world.

Engineers help cheer up a city

By WILLIAM D. SAMS

Thoughts of summertime, and what it brings. Bright sunny mornings, warm lazy afternoons, cool relaxing evenings. Sounds of small children playing, laughing, and amusing themselves. Young lovers; strolling, discussing their lives together. Elderly citizens sit; calmly, quietly, reminiscing their pasts.

Walk through a city park and these are the sights and sounds you will probably see and hear. The baseball fields, tennis courts, picnic areas, and park benches are all filled with laughter, excitement, and contentment.

Recently in a small Perry County, Ala., town, called Marion, soldier engineers from the 43rd Engr. Bn., 36th Engr. Gp., built such a park.

The city of Marion supplied the materials and the land for the park. The engineers provided the equipment and professional manpower for the project.

Army trained and engineer qualified, these soldiers, working as carpenters, electricians, plumbers, and heavy equipment operators, accomplished their mission, by using skills they were trained in.

According to 2LT Michael Garrambone, "This is the type of project soldier engineers are interested in; actual construction work where skills, judgment, and supervision can be utilized and further developed." LT Garrambone supervised and directed much of the construction project for the 43rd Engineers.

"We have no recreation facilities in the city," a city official stated. "With assistance from the engineers this will be one step forward in providing a source of recreation in our community."

As the days passed, the engineers worked steadily to complete the park project, often times working at night using floodlights; making up for lost time due to inclement weather.

The residents of this small town were astounded, as they watched daily, an idle piece of city property being transformed into a useful recreation park. Something the city could be proud of.

Community relations projects of this nature are very important and rewarding for soldiers and civilians.

The soldier receives valuable training in his job; working at a skill he was trained to perform.

"Since I have been in the 43rd Engineers, I have found that working at what I am qualified to do is more worthwhile than just going out in the field. I'm accomplishing something for myself, the Army, and the civilian population," commented SP4 Clyde M. Wise, 43rd Engineer, carpenter and plumber.

One source reported, "We hope these kinds of programs will help establish better communications between the military and the civilians, this let's people know engineer soldiers aren't just for combat."

"This is the first project of this type I have ever been able to work on. It was something special to me," remarked SP4 Stephen B. Edgemon, carpenter engineer. "Before I entered the Army I did carpentry work as a living, this is the first time my job in the Army has been so closely related to my civilian occupation," he added.

"What's so good about this program," LT Garrambone said, "is that these guys out there will speak their minds. If they don't like the Army they'll tell the people, and if they do they'll tell them that too. It's an honest way of presenting the voice of the Army."

Final preparations made for Spokane reservists

The one Army concept will be carried out in a special reserve unit training program starting this weekend at the United States Army Infantry School.

Final preparations have been made for 579 members of the 1st Battalion, 161st Infantry (Mech) from Spokane, Washington to undergo a two-week training period as a test unit for the Reserve Component Affiliation Program.

This pilot program associates Reserve Component units with Active Army divisions. The concept is to train Reserve units with these divisions and in the TRADOC school system.

The United States Army Infantry School has planned for and will support the Washington National Guard unit's training program.

"We feel the Infantry School," stated LTC Fletcher Ware, Chief, Curriculum Branch, DOI, "has a significant challenge in testing the viability of service school participation in the affiliation program. We look forward to assisting the 1/161st Inf. in accomplishing this training program."

"Training will be from the ground up," commented MAJ Merlin Darling, Chief, Ops Div., Co. Ops Dept. "It will start at the squad/section level and progress through platoon, company and battalion level."

"This is a wonderful opportunity," continued MAJ Darling, "to work with Reserve Component units to insure that we all read the same sheet of music."

In addition to the training support of the Infantry School, other units on post have been called upon to lend administrative and service assistance to the 161st Inf.

The 197th Infantry Brigade, specifically the 1st Bn., 58th Inf. (Mech.), has been designated the administrative host unit for the 161st.

"Our support," replied LTC Theodore Voorhees, the 1/58th Inf. commander, "will help the 161st to concentrate time and effort towards training."

"We will also conduct training for the unit's scout platoon and redeye section," continued LTC Voorhees.

The 1/161st will use the equipment of the 1/58th and the 1st Bn., 29th Infantry, TSB during a two-day field exercise at the end of the training period.

"We considered the logistical problems the unit might have," stated Mr. Olin Patterson, Operations Branch, DIO, "and through coordination are prepared to meet the needs."

"The 161st brought little in the way of equipment," replied MAJ William Palmer, Chief, Reserve Component Div., Directorate of Plans and Training. "Ft. Benning, in a unified effort, has filled this need and others. We have responded to the One Army concept."

"We continue to need the manpower resources of the Reserves and National Guard," said CPT Dean Loftin, Chief, Requirements and Analysis Branch,

DOI. "The affiliation program is a matter of utilizing to the maximum what we have to get the job done."

Second woman in history of TIC is promoted to GS-13

Mrs. Theresa Gunter has become the second woman in the history of the U.S. Army Infantry Center to be promoted to the GS-13 level.

Mrs. Gunter has been named Chief, Recruitment and Placement Branch at the Civilian Personnel Division. She replaces David Hollomon who recently retired.

Mrs. Barbara Ennis, Chief of the Program Budget Division, Comptroller's Office, was the only female GS-13 before Mrs. Gunter's promotion. There are only 24 GS-13's at Ft. Benning.

Her promotion comes during Mrs. Gunter's 20th year of Civil Service employment which started as a supply clerk with the Air Force in Alaska in 1954. In 1958 she accepted a position with the Joint Board of U.S. Civil Service Examiners at Ladd AFB, Fairbanks, Alaska. Mrs. Gunter was reassigned to the Board of Examiners at Ft. Benning in 1966. When the Board was transferred to Macon, Georgia, in 1968 she elected to remain with the Civilian Personnel Office at Ft. Benning. Progressing from Staffing Specialist to Senior Staffing Specialist, Mrs. Gunter became eligible and was selected for her present assignment.

"Most of my career," said Mrs. Gunter, "has been in the type of work that I'm doing now — recruiting and staffing."

"I remember growing up in Willimantic, Connecticut, and knowing even then that I would have a career in business," she continued. "It's been a matter of determination, good luck and the help of many people along the way that have contributed to my success. Mostly it's been determination."

Mrs. Gunter's determination to make a career for herself has not interfered with her demanding role as wife and mother. She has raised three sons: Eric, 16; Gary, 19 and Dan, 27. The Gunters reside in Seale, Alabama, where husband, Furman, is a "full-time farmer."

2/10th celebrate organization day

The threat of rain during the early morning hours didn't dampen the spirits of the men of the 2nd Bn. 10th FA "Rock's Support", 197th Inf. Bde. as they and their guests celebrated their 57th anniversary on June 6.

The unit's organization day activities started at 8 a.m. with breakfast being served to the soldiers and their families in the battalion's dining facility.

Greetings were extended by LTC Robert H. Allison, the battalion commander, "On this organization day we pay tribute to the history, traditions, and accomplishments of the United States Army's finest field artillery battalion and to its past and present members."

"Organization day this year is of particular significance because it marks the completion of a year during which the battalion has made the transition from a primary mission of support of the Infantry School, to a combat ready direct support battalion for the 197th Infantry Brigade. You have overcome many obstacles and you have worked long hours to gain the title of "Combat Ready." Members of the 10th Field Artillery of years gone by would look with pride at the professional way you are carrying on the tradition they established." commented LTC Allison. While some families were enjoying breakfast others were at the Kelley Hill swimming pool observing a swimming relay race matching the battery commanders and battalion commanders, (the Commanders) against teams composed of men from their units.

Despite a false start, the men of HHB "walked" away with first place. Batt. B, placed a slow second and the commanders stroking in third.

With clearing skies members of the Ft. Benning Sport Parachute Club drifted down, as if without a care, making a perfect landing to start the activities at the picnic area.

The second event of the day was a Hipshoot competition, where each battery matched its abilities to set up their 105mm howitzer the quickest. Batt. B, raced in with first place with Batt. A, placing second and Batt. C pulling up third. Being drug through the mud into third place in the tug-of-war contest was Svc. Batt. with Batt. A skidding into second and Batt. B taking first place honors.

Batt. B swung its way into first place in softball with Svc. Batt. bobbling into second and HHB being blasted away to third place.

In the egg toss contest where the battalion commander and SGM, were teamed against the battery commanders and 1st SGTs, the sound of disaster was clear. "Move back two paces, toss. Move back two paces, toss." Splat! An egg shattered in the hands of CPT. Michael C. Wells, C Batt. commander. Gracefully the commander of Batt. B and his 1stSGT took first place with HHB dropping into second place and the battalion commander and SGM placing third.

Children enjoyed various activities such as Sack Race, Three Legged Race, and Balloon Toss.

Preparing for a quick start in a three-legged race are the children of the members of the 2nd Bn. 10th FA, 197th Inf. Bde. during the unit's organization day activities last week. (Photo by C. B. Hoover)

Take part in Fourth of July Carnival

The 34th Med. Bn. wants you to be a part of this year's flea market for the Fourth of July Carnival. With less than three weeks to go, more donations for the market are needed.

"Many items have been given to this worthy event, but we can use a lot more," says SP5 David Kerrick.

Items donated so far include a ping pong table, a television, puzzles, suit cases, fans, a glass cutter and many articles of clothing.

All proceeds from the flea market go to the Youth Community Programs. One of these is the Youth Activities Center on post so it's benefitting your children also.

Anything will be accepted. Articles of clothing, toys games, and camping equipment to name a few.

With your help we can make this year's carnival the biggest one yet.

"You call, and we'll haul," added Kerrick. "Take a look around the house for anything you don't need any longer, because someone else can."

The following schedule is offered for pick-ups in the housing areas: Mondays, Custer Terrace and Battle Park; Tuesdays, Main Post; Wednesdays, McGraw Manor; Thursdays, Bouton Hill and on Fridays pick-ups will be made anywhere for any large items.

Please call SP5 Kerrick or SFC Gerald Bartsch at 544-4741 if you have anything of no further use.

Ranger camp will be renamed after Major General Rudder

The Infantry School's Ranger Camp at Eglin Air Force Base, Florida, will be officially dedicated as Camp James E. Rudder on June 22, 1974. The camp has been renamed to honor the memory of MG James E. Rudder, who commanded the 2nd Ranger Battalion during World War II.

Congressman Olin E. Teague of Texas, MG Rudder's home state, will be guest speaker at the ceremony. Congressman Teague was a lifelong friend of the late general.

MG Thomas M. Tarpley will represent the Infantry Center and School. LTC William D. Old II, camp commander, will present the opening remarks. Mrs. James E. Rudder, widow of MG Rudder, Congressman Robert L. F. Sikes of Florida and MG Henry B. Kucheman, commander of Eglin Air Force Base, Florida, will be among the distinguished guests present for the day's activities.

Representatives of the Merrill's Marauders Association, the Ranger Battalion Association of World War II and the United States Army Ranger Association will also be present.

After the ceremony, a number of Ranger demonstrations will be held. These will include rappelling and reptile demonstrations, a small boat exercise, and a parachute demonstration. A luncheon for the guests will be held afterward.

MG Rudder was a World War II veteran, and led the 2nd Ranger Battalion which captured the cliffs at Pont du Hoc in France on D-Day. He served on active duty from 1941 to 1946 in the 38th and 330th Inf. Regts., the 83rd Inf. Div., and commanded the 2nd Ranger Bn. and the 109th Inf. Regt.

In 1952 he joined the 90th Inf. Div. in Reserve status, becoming Division Commander in 1954. He was promoted to MG in 1957. He was a graduate of Texas A & M University, where he received his commission through ROTC.

He attended the Command and General Staff College in 1943, and received a number of medals, including the Distinguished Service Cross, Silver Star, Legion of Merit, Bronze Star Medal with Oak Leaf Cluster, Purple Heart with Oak Leaf Cluster, the French Legion of Honor and the Belgian Order of Leopold.

MG Rudder also received a number of civilian awards, including an Honorary Doctor of Laws degree from Baylor University. He served as Mayor of Brady, Texas, from 1946 to 1952, and held a number of public offices. He was a member of the Veterans of Foreign Wars as well as other civic organizations.

MARCHING FOR FATHER'S DAY

Through years of faithful service, In a garb of uniformed grandeur The boy expands to manhood And the man becomes a soldier.

Marching tunes may prompt him As his service years expire, But his vigor still abounds With endurance and with fire.

When he closets his worn saber, Lays his ribbons out to rest, The soldier still maintains That those years were his best.

Leaving this life behind The man should not be sad, For his men still call him Sarge And his children call him Dad.

Do you feel that CHAMPUS benefits the soldier and his family?

SFC John W. Johnson
DIO

"Most assuredly. If the soldier is separated from his family on an overseas tour or an emergency which a military hospital can't be reached, Champus helps pay the bill. If a wife or a child had to go to the hospital, all the individual would have to pay is the first $25."

CPT Bruce Bodner
FLT SURG, M.A.H.

"Sure it does. It enables us to refer individual patients to a civilian specialist in the local area when such a problem can not be covered by a military medical staff. It also enables an individual to get the best possible care without having to incur financial problems."

SSG Charles Atwell
CSC 3/7th, 197th

"Sure it does. One thing, they only have to pay the first $25 and Champus pays the rest. It helps the individual pay his hospital bill when there is no military facility available. I feel that it benefits the individual and the Army. Without Champus, it would cause the soldier financial problems."

PV2 Edward Fowler
HHC, 2/10, 197th

"Yes! If you can't get to an Army post, and you need to go to a civilian hospital, Champus will help pay the bill. My wife had to use Champus once. Champus paid all of that bill except for the first $25."

ISG Arthur E. Gobin
CO. C, 3/7th, 197th

"Of course it does. Since I have used it myself a couple of times it was beneficial to me. For a young soldier who cannot afford to have his wife with him it is beneficial. Especially if he is overseas."

SSG James Lockhart
2/69th, 197th

"Yes! I have used champus. My wife used it while I was overseas. It helped me because it paid most of my wife's hospital bill. I paid the first $25 and Champus paid the rest."

2LT John E. Yergler
2/505 ABN.

"Yes! We used it when my wife had a child. There is not a lot of hassle. We were able to get medication under CHAMPUS before and after the baby came. When my wife had the baby, I only had to pay the first twenty-five dollars. I would have gone in debt if it had not been for CHAMPUS."

Food, Drink, Beauty highlight 4th of July '74

Food and soft drinks that never run out; plenty of parking that's easy to find; and the best beauty and talent contests Ft. Benning has ever seen; these are the extra touches of perfection that are going to make this year's 4th of July carnival a pleasure to visit.

"We're making good programs in our preparation," said LTC Jerry K. Patterson, carnival project officer and special staff assistant to 197th Inf. Bde. commander, Col. William B. Steele. "Plans have been made to never run out of food."

To make sure food and drinks are always available, the 298th Signal Platoon, 197th Inf. Bde. will have an elaborate communication system linked to the brigade's food service center at the carnival.

Vehicle traffic is traditionally heavy at the carnival.

"There's more traffic on the 4th than any other day during the year," commented LTC Patterson.

He added that Ft. Benning military police, reinforced by military police from the 197th, have already formulated their plans and will have the traffic situation under control.

"They will have special signs to direct people to parking and additional military police posts will be set up to insure an orderly flow of traffic," said LTC Patterson.

The "Miss Ft. Benning" contest, talent contest, and battle of the bands will add an extra touch to the festivities. All three will be held in building 4's Marshall Auditorium and, according to LTC Patterson, they will be the most professional contests of their kind ever held at Ft. Benning.

In addition to the extra comforts of this year's Independence Day celebration, the carnival will offer the traditional midways, prizes and fireworks display.

A special attraction at the midway will be the rides provided by the Airborne Department. The "buddy seat" ride on the 250 foot tower and the junior jump tower have been the most popular.

This year the 197th brigade's roving soft drink jeep will keep those waiting in line for the rides from getting parched. In addition, the brigade will offer a popcorn and cotton candy stand near the junior jump tower.

A fireworks display put on by the 72nd Engineers, 197th Inf. Bde., will round out the day.

"This year's fireworks will be fast and furious," stated LTC Patterson.

Tickets are on sale now. They can be obtained from active duty personnel or at a number of locations including the new mall.

Caro's first ninety days in command

For ninety days ISG Henry Caro has commanded 54th Company, 5th Student Battalion, The School Brigade, a basic NCOES company. During the past three months he has seen a side of the Army an NCO rarely, if ever, sees. He knows now what the responsibilities of command really are, and how it can be rewarding, and yet lonely.

"I've heard a lot of officers say that the best part of their military career was when they commanded a company, and I know why now," he said. "I think it's terrific."

"ISG Caro is a soldier's soldier. A past distinguished honor graduate of the Sergeants Major Academy at Fort Bliss, Texas, he feels in some cases it's easier for him to relate to the problems of a young enlisted man than an officer who has never been an EM. "What I mostly encounter as a company commander are people's problems. People have good jobs, it's contagious. The other members of your unit can't help but catch it," he said. "It's how you put your program into effect that makes or breaks you as a Commander," he added.

The one aspect of being a company commander that he didn't encounter as a First Sergeant is the loneliness of Command. There are decisions that must be made, without regard as to how popular they will be afterwards.

"You can take advice from your staff, listen to it, value it, and use it, but in the end it's the commander who must make the decision, and follow up on it after it's made. Sometimes it isn't popular, but it has to be done," he said.

ISG Caro is a Command Sergeant Major Designee, meaning he's been chosen as having CSM potential. When his tenure as commander ends and he goes back to regular NCO status, he thinks it might feel strange for awhile but he says "being a commander is unbelievably rewarding, and I feel very proud to have been chosen to do so."

WE'VE BEEN SERVING THE SERVICE FOR 96 YEARS.

HFC is probably one of several consumer finance companies located right outside the base. So why should you come to us?

One reason. We're the oldest, largest, most experienced company of our kind.

Another. Last year alone we solved financial problems for over 154,000 servicemen. All of them came because they needed advice. Or money—as much as $2500.

The whole point? Like the service, we've been around for a long time. So when you have a money problem, call on the expert for help. HFC. An equal opportunity lender.

Flag Day-- a time to reflect

By Susanne Bostick

Flag Day, June 14, is a good time to reflect on the history surrounding our Stars and Stripes. The flag as we know it had a number of predecessors.

Among these was a flag used by a group of Minutemen of Culpepper County, Virginia. This colorful flag has a coiled rattlesnake in the center, with the motto "Don't Tread on Me" above the snake and "Liberty or Death" below it.

The Pine Tree flag, which was flown in 1775 when the American patriots laid siege to British troops in Boston, bore the slogan "Appeal to Heaven."

The "Grand Union" flag was the first unofficial flag. It was first flown in 1775 when some of the colonists were still loyal to Britain, and had the thirteen red-and-white stripes with the British Union Jack in the upper left-hand corner. George Washington had it flown over his headquarters on January 1, 1776 in Cambridge, Massachusetts.

Betsy Ross, who supposedly made the first stars and stripes flag, at the request of George Washington, was in fact the widow of a Revolutionary soldier who actually made several flags for the naval forces of Pennsylvania. There is no proof, unfortunately, that she actually sewed the first stars and stripes.

The Stars and Stripes was adopted after a Marine Committee, created by the Continental Congress to handle naval affairs, studied a number of flags then in use and made its recommendation to the Congress.

Its first appearance came in 1777 at the Battle of Bennington, Vermont. General John Stark is reputed to have said, "Tonight the American flag floats over yonder hill or Molly Stark sleeps a widow."

The Americans won the battle, taking the valley from the German commander Baum who was commanding a group of Hessian troops. A number of Germans fought on the side of the British during the Revolution, and this time they lost.

The flag that flew in Bennington by the end of the day of August 16, 1777 had an unusual design. Instead of a field of stars in a circle, it had an arch of stars with the number "76" underneath the arch. There were two more stars, one in either corner of the field.

The design of the American flag was not set by law until 135 years later, but the most common design was the one with stars in a circle. This design was kept until 1794, when Vermont and Kentucky were added to the Union and the stars were placed in five rows of three stars each. Stars were gradually added until Hawaii joined the Union.

By Susanne Bostick

Today is the 199th anniversary of the United States Army. As armies go, ours is a young one; other nations in Europe have had land forces for hundreds of years.

The birth of our Army was a painful one; the mighty all-volunteer force of today grew out of the winter snows, shabby uniforms and the near-starvation of Valley Forge.

Since those early days under General Washington, the U.S. Army has come to symbolize freedom around the world. Within our own boundaries, we bested the British again in 1812, and The Mexican War, fought from 1846 to 1848, ended in U.S. victory and the treaty of Guadalupe-Hidalgo. In the Civil War, we were "a house divided against itself," only to reunite after a long and bitter struggle.

In 1898, Teddy Roosevelt led the charge up San Juan Hill during the Spanish-American War, which began with the sinking of the U.S. battleship Maine in Havana harbor and ended with the Treaty of Paris.

In 1900, American soldiers were sent to China to join an international expedition to relieve the siege of foreign embassies by the Boxers, a secret society which wanted all "foreign devils" out of China.

U.S. forces landed on Mexican soil in 1914 after the "Tampico Incident" involving unarmed American sailors. General Scott led U.S. soldiers at Vera Cruz, but mediation prevented a war between the U.S. and Germans, who had tried to send munitions to Mexico. The president of Mexico resigned as a result of this conflict.

In 1916, General Pershing led an expedition in search of Pancho Villa, a Mexican bandit, but the American forces were withdrawn when war with Germany loomed on the horizon.

At the end of World War I, the American doughboy responded to the cry for help of the beleaguered Allies as we sent the American Expeditionary Forces to their aid. "LaFayette, we are here!" was the cry as we entered the first major international conflict of this century.

Once again, the Americans joined the Allies in 1941, this time to rid the world of the Nazi-Axis menace. After four long years of fighting and the huge D-Day invasion, we unleashed the ultimate weapon, the atomic bomb, and the war was soon over.

In Korea, the U.S. Army sought to keep the Communist way of life from spreading any further. After three years of almost deadlocked struggle from 1950 to 1953, a treaty was signed making the 38th parallel the dividing line between North and South Korea. In 1958 the U.S. troops were sent to Lebanon at the request of their government, but returned before the end of the year. In 1960 troops were sent to Santo Domingo in the Dominican Republic to guard the American national living there after a political coup became a civil war.

In 1961 U.S. forces assisted in the Berlin Airlift at the "Wall of Shame," the barrier built between East and West Berlin by the Communists to halt the flood of refugees.

By 1964 the U.S. had become involved on a large scale in the war between North and South Vietnam, and fought the Communists there in a decade-long struggle until 1973, when prisoners of war were returned and the last American troops were pulled out after long negotiations.

These tests are meant to separate men from boys.

Last Saturday was 'easy' for ROTC, USMA cadets

They do.

Some 200 ROTC and West Point Cadets might disagree, but Saturday, June 8, was an "easy" day. For those who completed the day with successful marks it was the last "easy" day for nine weeks.

The cadets, from colleges and universities across the nation, were going through physical examinations prior to the start of their ROTC Ranger training at the U.S. Army Infantry School.

With the bulk of their paper shuffling in-processing completed, the cadets began their physical test ordeal at 6 a.m. Saturday. These tests are designed to determine if the applicant is physically able to withstand the rigors of Ranger training and are meant to separate the men from the boys; they do.

The first, the Ranger/Special Forces Physical Fitness Qualification test, is a rather straight forward one — but somewhat demanding. It includes push-ups, sit-ups, etc., and culminates in a two-mile run. The students' contorted muscles and pained expressions attested to the physical effort required to meet the minimum standards.

This was followed by the Combat Water Survival test which is required because much of the Ranger training is conducted on, over, in, or near deep water. This test is somewhat trickier and includes the need to control any fear of the water.

The cadets found they must first show they can swim 15 meters fully clothed and with full equipment to include a pack and M-16 rifle.

For those who made it past this obstacle, the next test is to again jump into the water, submerge and remove equipment. Finally comes the modern day version of walking the plank.

With his hat over his eyes as a blindfold, the student marches off a three-meter diving board — wearing web gear and carrying his M-16 rifle. He must surface, swim to the side of the pool and pull himself from the water without losing any equipment.

Student motivation was the topic of conversation between several instructors and evaluator personnel throughout the day.

"The ROTC cadets are among the most highly motivated Ranger students who go through the course each year," said MAJ James T. Price, ROTC Evaluation Committee admin officer.

The committee's NCOIC, SGM Ralph W. Dunahoo, explained that the ROTC cadets who go through the Ranger program are carefully selected. He added that no ROTC Ranger student from Auburn University, where he's a military science instructor, has ever failed to complete the Ranger course.

Ranger training officially began Saturday afternoon for those who made it through the morning's examination. COL James M. Bowers, Ranger Department director, opened the training by presenting Cadet Jordan D. McGowen, the student commander, with the company guidon.

In his welcoming address, COL Bowers congratulated the cadets on their fine showing in the Physical Fitness test. He explained that a very low percentage, 7 per cent, had failed to make it through the examination. He then told them about the heavy stress on determination and endurance and said, "Flunking this course is no disgrace, but quitting is the ultimate disgrace."

Gail Bulloch, Miss Georgia 1973, will visit units at Fort Benning today. She will relinquish her crown to the new Miss Georgia at the 1974 Miss Georgia Contest to be held at the Columbus Three Arts Theatre this weekend.

EAGLE SCOUTS

The Fort Benning District of the Boy Scouts of America has recently formed a Chapter of the National Eagle Scout Association. The purpose of the Association is to provide the opportunity for all Eagle Scouts regardless of age, race, creed. To retain an association with scouting and to promote, through service, the ideals of the Boy Scouts of America. Men of any age who have achieved the rank of Eagle Scout or its equivalent are cordially invited to join the association. For more information or membership applications, call 545-3016 or 545-1501.

BOOKS NEEDED

Books are urgently needed by the Department of Family and Children Service. These books are used to provide reading material for needy children. Any age book donation may be brought to the ACS Welcome Center located in building 83.

HARMONY CHURCH SWIMMING POOL

The Harmony Church Swimming Pool, located off Hershey Road in the Harmony Church area, is open daily. The operating hours are from 11 a.m. until 8 p.m., weekdays. Saturday, Sunday and Holidays the pool is open from noon until 8 p.m. The pool will be closed on Wednesdays.

FAITH SCHOOL STUDENTS

Late in the school year, a bound copy of the National Geographic Magazine, covering the period of January through June 1927, disappeared from the school library. This volume, being almost 50 years old, is very important to this library. A reward of $15 is being offered for the return of this volume or information leading to its recovery.

SCHOOL VANDALISM

The Fort Benning Dependent Schools are suffering an unwarranted amount of damage by vandals, particularly glass breakage. Sponsors are cautioned that they will be held financially liable for any damages by their dependents. Recent damage to Wilbur School approximated $400. Sponsors are urged to be aware of the activities of their dependents to preclude costly reimbursement for their acts of vandalism.

BOAT & CAMPER RENTAL SHOP

The Fort Benning Boat and Camper Rental Shop will be closed each Wednesday. This closing is required for the purpose of performing maintenance on all rental vehicles.

PRE-MARITAL SEMINAR

The monthly Pre-Marital Seminar, sponsored by the Fort Benning Chaplain's Office, will be held Sunday, June 16, from 2-6 p.m. at the Infantry Center Chapel Annex, located in Bldg. 101. Couples of all faiths who are planning to marry or who have been recently married are encouraged to participate. Topics of discussion will include the religious, moral, social, emotional, physical, and economic aspects of marriage. The seminar is supported by the Protestant, Catholic, and Jewish Chaplains on post and will fulfill the requirements of some denominations for pre-marital counseling.

HHC, 197th Inf. Bde. holds a wide lead over second-place Troop A, 15th Cav. in the Independent League for separate units in 197th Inf. Bde. softball action.

The headquarters company boasts a 7-2 record as they begin the second half of the season.

"We have only lost two games," commented the team coach, SGT John Miller. "However, I think we learned from our mistakes and we are already looking forward to the brigade playoffs in July."

Cbt. Spt. Co., 2nd Bn., 69th Armor finished the first half of the season with a 7-1 record in the 69th armor's Tanker League. The record guarantees them at least a run-off spot for the league runs scored, as the Company A softballers mauled their opponents, Company C Rangers, 25-3.

Defensively, Keith also sparkled, along with teammate Tim DeBey, as the two outfielders made 13 of the total 15 put-outs of the game. DeBey also contributed to the overall offensive drive with three hits in five attempts at the plate, including a triple and 7 RBI's.

Company A, who v also the battalion basketball champ, is currently in first place in the PIONEER league, and appears to have a good hold on it with a 5-0 record.

In other Yellow Division action, Company E, Field Artillery maintained their hold on second place by defeating Company D of the PIONEERS, 8-4, but the contest was a lot closer

The Bayonet, June 13, 1974

By Bill Klobb

The Rod and Gun Club Advisory Board discussed a variety of subjects of interest to club members and all hunters and fishermen during a meeting held at Victory Lodge last Friday.

LT Johnson, temporary custodian, predicted a net gain in club finances for the May operations. He also proposed that the pro shop be moved to the vicinity of the bar and kitchen. This would enable one worker to handle the bar and the pro shop. The consolidation would save labor costs and provide better service to members. Work will start on this as soon as possible.

A recommendation was made that the bar be operated past 9 p.m. on Saturday nights. After quite a bit of discussion it was decided to leave the hours as they are now. Of course the club will contract for private parties on Saturday or any other night. Anyone interested should call 687-0562.

General Membership Meeting

Johnson also reported that Rod and Gun Club memberships number just over 1,000. This is about half the number the club had last year at this time. It was anticipated that the increased cost of post hunting and fishing permits would have an adverse effect on the membership but the fact is the club has to have more members to operate in the black. More people would join if they realized how important the club is for the welfare of the hunter and fisherman.

The club will hold a general membership meeting at 6 p.m. July 17 at Victory Lodge. This meeting will be to promote interest in the club and give members a chance to express feelings concerning club operations. Non members and members are invited to attend. Some kind of refreshments will be provided.

Hunting Safety Orientation

Most people probably read over the new post hunting and fishing regulations and never noticed that all hunters will have to attend a hunting safety orientation before they can hunt on post this year. (Par 5.a, USAIC Regulation 210-2)

The Rod and Gun Club has agreed to coordinate the presentation of this orientation. Mike Brickner, chairman of the club hunting committee is putting the whole thing together in conjunction with the Range Division, Safety Office, Provost Marshal and other agencies. A special stamp will be placed on the Post Hunting Permit for all personnel who have attended this orientation.

Brickner has scheduled early classes for those who want to avoid the last minute rush. The first class will be held at Victory Lodge at 7 p.m. July 31. Additional classes will be held at the same time and placed on August 7, 14, 21 and 28. Remember, you aren't eligible to hunt until your post permit has been stamped to attest that you have attended the safety orientation.

July 4 Fishing Contest

The advisory board also agreed to help the Directorate of Facilities Engineering operate a fishing contest on July 4. The contest will be part of the post carnival activities. All profits will go to the carnival fund. Details are still in the planning stage. There will be more information in this column next week.

Co. A whips Co. B

Excitement came late for the fans at Bennett Field recently when Co. B, 43rd Engrs, played host to Co. A, 43rd Engrs. Co. B was leading the undefeated Co. A team, with the score 10-3 after five innings. Co. A was not to be denied, however. A furious, 12 hit, 10 run inning, with every Co. A man crossing the plate, dealt a blow to Co. B. The final score was 16-11.

The win left Co. A in first place in the league with a 6-0 record.

History of Army and flag are same

'Queen of Battle' is backbone of Army

The Infantry, "Queen of Battle," has been the backbone of the Army since 1775. From the colonial militia of Revolutionary days to the best-equipped ground force of the modern world, the U.S. Infantry has proved itself again and again in the test of battle.

The history of the Infantry runs parallel to the story of the U.S. Army. The Infantry was at Valley Forge, at the Battle of New Orleans during the War of 1812, and pushed the boundaries of our nation West. At Vera Cruz during the Mexican-American War, the Infantrymen shed blood.

During the Civil War its loyalties were divided, but reunited again in the end. At San Juan, the Infantry was first over the hill, and during the Boxer Rebellion, the Infantry joined with other nations to defend our embassies in China.

In World War I, it was the Infantry that fought at Chateau-Thierry, at the Marne, and in the Argonne forest. Again in World War II, the U.S. Infantry came to the aid of its Allies and destroyed the Nazi menace. In the Pacific, the Infantry island-hopped until the Rising Sun was set.

In Korea, the Infantry fought at Pusan, on Pork Chop Hill, at Inchon, and all the way to the Yalu River, finally making the peace at Panmunjom. In Vietnam, along the Mekong Delta, in the steaming jungles, the Infantry was ever-ready to fight the Vietcong guerilla.

Here at the Infantry School, we see today's and tomorrow's Infantryman being trained with the most modern military instruction in the world.

We have every reason to believe that the Infantry will continue to stand fast in the defense of freedom, wherever the course of liberty is threatened.

Drive a cool bargain.

As we near the Bicentennial of our nation's birth, now is a good time to remember that without an Army, our nation would not have been born. Today is the anniversary of the Army and the Infantry, as well as Flag Day.

The history of our flag is intertwined with the history of our Army and its Infantry. Born in hardship and battle, they have stood for nearly two centuries as symbols of freedom in a world where many people are still not free.

The flag, which grew out of the British Union Jack, flew over our Army when Cornwallis surrendered at Yorktown, Pennsylvania. It has flown wherever our armies have marched to the defense of free men, here and abroad.

Everywhere the U.S. Army has been, the Infantry has served as a backbone. Without a strong, mobile ground force, our Army could not exist. Just as the flag is the symbol of our nation, the fixed bayonet is the symbol of an Infantry that has always been ready to answer the call to arms wherever it was needed.

"When you're doing something of value you value yourself more."

That's the way SP/4 Dominic Rocco feels about his job as an Air Defense Acquisition Radar Maintenance Instructor.

"When I first came in the Army, I didn't know the first thing about electronics. But I had forty solid hours of the basics before I even started the course, so now I feel right at home with an oscilloscope and a maze of wires.

"In the lab it's my job to show students, right on the equipment the things they've been studying in a theoretical way in the classroom. And sometimes I get the feeling, by the questions they ask, that it's not just the equipment they're testing.

"Eventually I might try setting up my own repair business. But for right now, I like the challenge of teaching. And that's why I'm staying in."

Rangers set for 250-mile trip

Adventure: Many men join the Army to find it. The search for it can lead to many varied and exciting places. For six men of the 2d Ranger Company, The School Brigade, they will find adventure on the Chattahoochee River when they make a raft trip from the Mountain Ranger Camp at Dahlonega, Georgia to Ft. Benning.

The journey will begin on June 17 and will take seven to nine days to complete. The distance is about 250 miles.

2LT Danny R. McKnight is in charge of the preparations for the trip. "I've been looking forward to this trip for a while. I think it's really going to be interesting to do something unusual like this," he said. 2LT McKnight cites reading and water skiing as his hobbies.

SP4 Paul T. Bailey likes swimming, and he will probably get plenty of that on the trip. He wants to go, as he puts it, "to understand myself and my surroundings better." Most of the rugged training in the Army has been completed by SGT Ronald Gigler. He is Airborne and Jumpmaster qualified, a Ranger and a Pathfinder. Above all that, he wants to go because he said, "It will be a good experience. I've never done anything like it before."

"I think it will be a challenge," said SGT Mike L. Wolfe. The chess and poolplaying and coin collecting NCO is used to a certain amount of risk he's an ammunition storage specialist. The sixth member of the group is PV2 Larry A. Ertzbis Choff. His words describe very simply why go. As he put it, "It's the each man has decided to adventure."

BG Pollock to speak at dental graduation

BG Jack Pollock will address the dental interns and residents graduating 14 June at the Dental Activity, MEDDAC.

There will be four residents graduating in Endodontics, two in removable prosthodontics, one in fixed prosthodontics, and four general dentistry interns.

Gen. Pollock is now serving as Deputy Commanding General of the US Army Health Services Command at Ft. Sam Houston, San Antonio, Texas. In this position, he is the deputy commander of the organization that manages all Army health facilities in the United States. Born in Columbus, Miss., Gen. Pollock attended Gulf Coast Military Academy before beginning his studies at Southeastern. He also studied at Tulane University and attended dental school receiving his DDS degree cum laude from the Loyola University School of Dentistry.

One of the US Army Dental Corps' most experienced administrators, Gen. Pollock was a successful Oral surgeon until his career pattern was directed toward executive dentistry. Gen. Pollock served as Dental Surgeon, Ft. Benning from August 1968 to January 1970.

Cycling is family affair

The roar of a pack of motorcycles rumbling down the road immediately brings to mind visions of hairy-chested, leather-jacketed, bearded bad guys with a chain in one hand and their "mama" in the other.

That's the old image of a motorcycle gang. These days, while some of those groups are still around, there are motorcycle clubs all over the country dedicated to safe, sane, enjoyable biking.

SP5 Dan Gruben, legal clerk for The School Brigade, is local chapter secretary of the US Riders motorcycle club. It's a group of everyday people with everyday jobs who get together on weekends to enjoy the sport of motorcycling.

"Biking with us is a family affair," said Gruben. "It's fun when husbands and wives go out together in a group to take trips and experience the freedom of a motorcycle."

He and his wife, Sylvia, have made a number of trips in the surrounding area on their Honda 350-Four. "We went to Daytona Beach, Florida, for the annual Motorcycle Speed Week in March, and we take frequent trips to Panama City, Auburn and Pine Mountain." He likes his Honda 350, but like most bike riders, he's looking for something bigger.

"I'm thinking about a bike in the 900 to 1000 cc range," he says with a grin. Above everything else in his riding, SP5 Gruben is concerned with safety. He says, "Even with the Defensive Drivers Course, people aren't safety conscious when it comes to bikers."

According to him, special clothes and shoes are vital to proper safety

Soldiers need to vote

For many years the battle cry of people clamoring for the 18 year old right to vote was "If they are old enough to fight and die in war, they are old enough to vote." Eighteen year olds have the right to vote now, and those in the armed services who are sworn to defend this country and its principles have a special duty to vote.

A roadblock in the path of a young serviceman who wants to vote is usually a lack of knowledge. He has many questions such as "Who do I see? What do I do? What do I need?"

The man who handles these problems for Fort Benning's largest unit is CPT Michael J. Brennan, Adjutant of The School Brigade. He is also TSB's voting officer. He oversees the whole voting operation for the massive School Brigade.

"Each battalion and company has one man detailed as voting officer" said CPT Brennan. "He's the one who makes sure everything is squared away on the unit level."

Each registered voter in the company is issued a Standard Form 76 by the voting officer which is an application for an absentee ballot. He sends it off, gets his ballot and votes. No problem.

The unregistered voter has a slightly more involved process to go through. He must get with the voting officer to check the Department of Defense Voting Assistance Guide.

AW, GEE THANKS - NAVY! Army ROTC cadet Dwight S. Williams, from Pittsburgh, Pa., looks a little apprehensive as Navy ROTC ensign (right) help adjust his harness, in preparation for the jump from the two hundred foot tower. Cadet Leenhouts will be commissioned as an ensign and hopes for an assignment to the surface fleet upon his graduation from Marquette University. Cadet Johnson, who attends the Citadel, will receive his commission as a second lieutenant in the Marine Corps.

Howdy, Bub. Things are still popping here at the hospital; gets so's a body don't know up from left these days. Ran into 'ole Sam Henry accommin' out of the Emergency Room the other day. Seems that 'ole Sam was a siphonin' some gas outa his lawnmower that morning when one of the neighbor kids lit off a firecracker in his yard. 'Ole Sam like to swaller that whole tank of gas before he could get his sucker turned off.

Well sir, Sam got the missus out of the laundry room and they drove to the hospital like 'ole seat was after 'em. Sam Henry dashed into the Emergency Room and was 'turned everyway but loose afore he knew it. 'Ole Doc in that Emergency Room put a hose into Sam's nose the size of his siphonin' tube and commenced to "pump ma belly dry," as Sam puts it.

Seems like ole Doc kept congratulating Sam for not makin' hisself throw up and such like. But anyway Sam got all rinsed out and was on his way home, but he wanted to know ole Emergency Room Doc's name so's he could write him a letter and thank him fore what he done.

Well sir, I got so plumb excited bout anybody wantin' to thank one of my species I like to fall over, but I trotted right in and got the name for Sam Henry. Seems like they was some folks awaitin' for treatment in that Emergency Room afussin' and afumin' about Sam Henry gettin' treated afore them special since they've been sittin' here all this time and they wanted to see the Chief 'ole Doc of the hospital.

Would you believe that ole Emergency Room Doc and ole Emergency Room Nurse were atryin' to explain bout life and death treatments get seen afore the sore throats in this here hospital. Imagine, havin' to explain why a man's life is more important than a itchy throat. I never seen the like.

Hope ya'll take a page from Sam Henry's book bout siphonin' gas; try and get one of them siphon tubes with the dohickey that ya squeeze, stead of suckin' it up wif your mouth. That gas in your belly definitely will not give you any mileage, 'cept to an Emergency Room somewheres.

I gotta go now, Bub, goin' down to Lem's Hardware Store and get me a proper siphon tube for Sam Henry, so's he don't have to worry none 'bout those neighbor kids and their fireworks.

Good health to you and yours.

Spokane reservists here for training

By MAJ W. R. CAGE, JR.
The Reserve Component Affiliation Program spanned 2500 miles this week when the 1st Battalion, (Mech) 161st Infantry (Washington State National Guard) departed its home station in Spokane, Wash. and journeyed to Ft. Benning for two weeks of annual training.

"The Reserve Component Affiliation Program gives practicality to the One Army Concept," said COL William B. Steele, commander of the 197th Infantry Brigade, as he addressed the 161st Sunday afternoon. "The 1st Bn. (Mech), 58th Infantry is your host battalion because of its similarity to your own unit, and its personnel will assist you in every possible way. We both can benefit from our exchange of ideas and the training you will receive at Ft. Benning," he said.

The 1/161st, commanded by LTC Carl E. Chandler, is receiving training from the United States Army Infantry School at all levels from squad to battalion. The 1st Bn. (Mech), 58th Inf. is providing training for the National Guard unit's redeye section and scout platoon while the 197th Infantry Brigade is making preparation for the battalion's Field Training Exercise (FTX) to be conducted June 26 and 27, which will roundout the unit's two weeks of annual training.

"We are looking forward to our training here," said LTC Chandler. "It has distinct advantages, such as operating in a new environment in new terrain and in a climate unaccustomed to us. Having the 197th write and conduct our FTX will further test our ability to perform our mission."

The host unit, 1/58th Inf., according to its commander, LTC Theodore Voorhees, "is providing counterpart assistance to each of the visiting unit's principal staff officers on a daily basis to insure that administrative support is working smoothly which will permit the 1/161st to devote maximum time to its training mission."

1/58th winding up desert training

By BOB COWLES

The 1st Bn. (Mech), 58th Inf. (Patriots), 197th Inf. Bde. is winding up its desert and mountain training at Ft. Bliss, Tex.

Co. A and Co. B have completed training and have returned to Ft. Benning. Only Co. C remains at Ft. Bliss and is due to return June 30.

The three companies spent three weeks at McGregor Range Camp at Ft. Bliss. Training was provided by the 3rd Armored Cavalry Regiment (ACR) at its Recondo School.

The "Patriots" first week of training was devoted to Recondo training and included mountain hiking and rappelling.

Classes on desert camouflage and air reconnaissance using video tape equipment highlighted the second week capped by a three-and-a-half day field training exercise (FTX).

The last week of training centered around air defense classes and live fire engagement of aerial targets with small arms.

"The live fire engagement of aerial targets was an experience no other infantry unit has had," said LTC Theodore B. Voorhees, commander of the "Patriots," after returning from Ft. Bliss. "It proved to be effective training as the ability of the companies to engage the target improved as the training progressed."

"The experience of moving as a unit had the benefit of giving the confidence that the unit would move quickly and in an organized manner with combat equipment," stated CPT Russell W. Calvert, commander of Co. A. "It also had a side benefit of causing closer relationships between individuals in the companies, especially among the NCOs and privates."

"Another side benefit," added CPT Calvert, "was the experience of maintaining the tracked vehicles as well as the human body in a desert environment."

LTC Voorhees went on to explain, "The environment in which the companies were placed at Ft. Bliss was highly conducive to the training as there were few distractions. Personal problems such as financial and family matters were no longer as prominent."

"Additionally," LTC Voorhees continued, "there were little requirements for guard and housekeeping. The result was that a maximum number of personnel participated in training for the maximum amount of time and all personnel were still afforded more free time than normal."

"In summary," concluded LTC Voorhees, "I feel that the investment made was worthwhile and that more training of this type would be highly beneficial."

Woodruff at Benning AUSA conclave

A large crowd is expected to be on hand to hear Mr. James W. Woodruff speak at the annual general membership meeting of the Columbus-Phenix City-Fort Benning Chapter of the Association of the U. S. Army. The meeting will be held on June 24 at Fort Benning's Main Post recreation Center, starting at 7:30 p.m.

Mr. Woodruff, who is president-elect of the national AUSA, is president and general manager of Columbus Broadcasting Company. He was named last year as a civilian aide for Georgia to Secretary of the Army, Howard H. Callaway.

A prominent local businessman, he has been on the board of directors of the local AUSA chapter for several years. He has also served on the board of trustees of the national AUSA.

Mr. Woodruff is chairman of the Civilian and Military Council of Columbus, Phenix City and Fort Benning, and serves as chairman of the military af-airs committee of the Columbus, Ga. Chamber of Commerce.

Prior to the meeting, a social hour for AUSA members will be held at the Recreation Center. Free beer and snacks will be served, and a cash bar will be open. No admittance will be charged. Business at the annual meeting will consist of the election of new chapter officers and a discussion of proposed changes to the bylaws.

USAFSA announces retro pay adjustment

The US Army Finance Support Agency (USAFSA) has announced that the 1 OCT-31 DEC 72 retroactive pay adjustment for active duty military will be automatically included in the July 74 end of month (EOM) pay check. Back pay will be included as 1974 income and subject to current income tax and FICA tax rates.

Soldiers whose pay accounts weren't on JUMPS-Army for June 74 will have their back pay included in their August 74 EOM pay.

Payment of retroactive pay adjustments for reenlistment bonus, variable reenlistment bonus, accrued leave and medical continuation pay will be made by the local finance officer as a one time payment and be taxed at a flat rate of 20 per cent. The USAFSA is preparing computer printout listings to aid local finance officers in paying service members who are due these adjustments. Payments will be made automatically by check to the member at his unit NLT 5 Aug 74. Service members will be provided this information via the Daily Bulletin with instructions to contact the FAO if payment is not received by that date.

The FAO will be furnished additional printed instructions to assist soldiers concerning the adjustment for back pay. Upon receipt an appropriate PSNCO Fact Sheet will be issued.

Craft shop can save you money

MONEY! MONEY! MONEY! Is this the problem in having your car repaired? There is a solution. Some soldiers of the 197th Inf. Bde. have found that the auto craft shop at Kelley Hill is the place to go to save money when it comes to repairing their cars.

Working on a 1949 Chevrolet truck, SP5 Richard G. Martino, of Co. C, 197th Spt. Bn., 197th Inf. Bde. said, "I've been looking for a truck like this for two years, but they wanted to much for them in Oregon, my home state, so when I found this one here, which was cheap, I bought it. Of course it needed a lot of work."

"So far I've taken all the old paint off the body and I will repaint it at the craft shop for about 30 dollars or less. I figure I'll be saving a hundred dollars or so by doing it myself," continued SP5 Martino.

"I've re-upholstered the seats and dash and I'm finishing up with an engine overhaul now. To overhaul the engine has cost me about a hundred dollars, but I should be saving about 125 dollars by doing it myself. Of course its taken a few weeks and I buy parts as I can afford them. When I'm through its going to be in top notch shape and should be worth every penny I've spent on it," concluded SP5 Martino.

Saving money by removing the carburetor from his truck and overhauling it himself at the Kelly Hill auto craft shop is SP5 Richard G. Martino of Co. C, 197th Spt. Bn. 197th Inf. Bde. (Photo by C. B. Hoover)

BANG! BANG! "OK, that does it for this dent, let's see what we can do for the other one," commented SP5 Wilson L. Shields to PFC Herbert H. Myers of Co. C, 197th Spt. Bn. SP5 Shields is an instructor at the auto craft shop on Kelley Hill.

"Some one raked the side of my car in the parking lot a few weeks ago," explained PFC Myers. "I was going to have it done downtown, but I just couldn't afford it. So for the last two weeks I've been working out the dents. I should have them out by this evening. By next week I should have them painted and the car ready for the road. I figure I'm saving about 300 dollars by doing this job at the craft shop."

"About 50 soldiers per day come to this craft shop to work on their cars. The shop is open from 2:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. Tuesday thru Friday and from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. on weekends and holidays," commented SSG George W. Reece, an instructor at the auto craft shop.

"Soldiers can leave their cars here up to 30 days while working on them," continued SSG Reece. "We have just about everything someone would need to repair a car, to include the manuals."

SSG Nathaniel Johnson, of USAIS airfield services, was helping one of his men repair a transmission and offered some advice to the would-be mechanics. "Soldiers coming down here to do repair work should have some mechanical knowledge."

"Another thing," continued SSG Johnson, "is to know exactly what is wrong with the car before starting to work on it."

What is your opinion of the new seat belt regulation on Fort Benning?

PFC SUE RAKER HUMRRO

"People in the Army shouldn't need a regulation to tell them how to take care of themselves. If they need a regulation, it shows a lack of self-discipline. It also wastes the M.P.'s time checking to see that seat belts are fastened."

LTC RICHARD D. GILLEM CDR., 3rd BN, 7th INF

"I wear my seat belt on a regular basis. I have seen the benefits of wearing them. To me, this new regulation makes sense. It only takes a moment to buckle up. That's a small price to pay considering the anger and anguish that can be prevented by that single act."

SP/4 DICK GOBLE 829th HOSP. FLA.

"I think it's a good regulation. I personally don't feel it's an infringement on my personal rights. I do occasionally neglect to use them, but I generally make it a habit to wear seat belts."

"I think it's fine. It's a proven fact that seat belts save lives. If a person cared about his life and the lives of those in his car, he would wear them and encourage others to wear them."

MRS. HERBERT DOUP DEPENDENT WIFE

"I think it's great. I think people should wear seat belts regardless of regulations."

MRS. NANCY CRAIN DEPENDENT WIFE

"I think it's fine and I think they should be used. My mother had an accident and was crippled for life, so I believe in and use seat belts."

2LT ERNEST S. WASHINGTON HHD, 197th SUP BN.

"I question how much this new regulation can be enforced. I feel that it isn't necessary because of the speed limits on post. I being an assistant adjutant, I use my POV quite often for admin. runs. I find it bothersome to buckle up each time I use my POV."

Flea market highlights 4th of July carnival

The fourth of July is a special day this year at Fort Benning; a flea market will be part of this year's carnival.

Never before has there been one and with this new addition the carnival may prove to be the biggest one yet.

Need a T.V.? There'll be one at the market. Been wanting to grill your steaks outdoors? Come to the flea market and pick up on a nice bar-b-que grill. Yes, just about everything will be there. You can't beat the prices either.

All proceeds go to the Youth Activities Programs so all purchases are tax deductible.

The flea market is sponsored by the 34th Medical Battalion. Many items have been donated for the event but many more donations will be helpful.

"The flea market is going to be a big success with your help," says SP5 David Kerrick, assistant project officer. "Come on out to Eubanks Field from noon to six, July 4 and see if you can use anything. More donations for this event will be greatly appreciated. Anything you can't use, someone else can."

The following schedule is offered for pick-up in the housing areas: Monday, Custer Terrace and Battle Park; Tuesday, Main Post; Wednesday, McGraw Manor; Thursday, Bouton Hill and on Friday. Pick-ups will be made anywhere for any large items.

cluded at the pond with a ham and egg breakfast for everyone. "I wish I could cool my feet in the pond," Love commented, "but post regulations forbid swimming or wading in any pond on post." (Photo by MAJ Willie R. Cage Jr.)

Destin is reward for good job

Soldiers of the 197th Inf. Bde. who put extra effort into their jobs this summer may be rewarded with a four-day trip to Destin, Fla. as a part of Recreational Services' program of sending deserving soldiers to the Florida recreation area.

"It's the brigade's way of saying thank you for a job well done," explained CSM Nathan G. Hoover, who is in charge of the program for the 197th Inf. Bde. "In this way we can recognize those who perform their job with extra effort."

The first group of 15 soldiers from the 197th Inf. Bde. recently returned from their four-day trip with pleasant experiences. Emphasis of the program is placed on lower ranking enlisted men and the group always includes one NCO and two drivers to handle the bus.

"It was O.K.," stated PVT Otis Cooper, HHC, 197th Inf. Bde., one member of the first group.

"I'm from Mississippi and it was the first time I have ever been to Florida. I also went out on the ocean in a boat for the first time."

The selection of soldiers is left up to the individual unit's first sergeants. Six more groups of 15 soldiers from the 197th Inf. Bde. will make the trip between now and September.

"It was great for morale," pointed out PFC Joseph Latorre, Co. A, 2nd Bn., 69th Armor. "I went ocean fishing and caught 32 fish. It was really a lot of fun."

The recreation facility provides the men with a place to stay in the enlisted men's dormitory, boating, fishing and of course, the beach. A nominal fee is charged for water skiing and deep sea fishing while all other facilities are free to the soldiers.

"I caught a bunch of fish," stated PFC Dheodis Williams, Co. A, 2nd Bn., 69th Armor.

PVT Lee Brush, A Troop, 15th Cavalry, 197th Inf. Bde., completes the inverted crawl portion of the Expert Infantryman Badge physical training test. The test is the first step in the rigorous ten day test designed to recognize soldiers who have attained a high degree of professional skill as infantrymen. (Photo by Lt. Battles)

CHAMPUS is like a credit card; it can cost you $$$ if you're not careful

An ID card is your entry key to CHAMPUS (Civilian Health and Medical Program of the Uniformed Services); but before you jump at what looks like a golden opportunity, remember you don't get off completely free.

Uncle Sam will help pay civilian hospital expenses or doctor bills for your dependents, and for you, too, if you're on active duty, retired or on a disability pension. Like most government programs, CHAMPUS requires that you fill out several long forms, but it may be worth it to you. You'll have to decide.

According to MAJ Glenson P. Rhoads of the Patient Administration Division at Martin Army Hospital, "Many people make the mistake of thinking all they had to do is hand over an ID card and they can get all their medical care free. This is simply not true."

You'll have to pay the first $15 of the cost, and sometimes percentage of all other charges as well. So if your doctor's bill is only $15, you pay it all. The CHAMPUS privilege is like a credit card: if you're not careful how you use it, you may get in over your head.

You can use CHAMPUS for hospitalization if you live within 30 miles of a military hospital, if you're a dependent living with your active-duty sponsor. But you must have a non-availability statement from the military hospital, saying they don't have either the room, the facilities or the personnel to treat you.

If you're going to need continuing care as an out-patient, your bill may be more than you realize. And if you pick a doctor or hospital that doesn't participate in CHAMPUS, you may have trouble getting your money, or you may not get it at all.

First let's clear something up: CHAMPUS won't pay for every kind of health care in the book. It won't pay for well-baby care, for instance, or eyeglasses or hearing aids.

It also won't pay for routine physical examinations or shots, except for active-duty dependents with overseas orders. Sometimes there are exceptions to the rules, though. Each case must be decided on its own merits.

It will pay for maternity and infant care, and family planning services. It will pay for prescription drugs and medicines, as well as physical therapy and diagnostic examinations.

CHAMPUS also covers treatment of medical and surgical conditions, nervous and mental disorders, chronic conditions and diseases, and contagious diseases.

This is only part of the list; we could go on all day. Again, many cases must be decided on an individual basis. But there's something very important to remember: the cost-sharing programs for active-duty personnel and retired personnel are different. The inpatient and outpatient care programs are slightly different, too.

For inpatient care (that is, a hospital stay), the beneficiary of an active-duty member must pay the first $25 or $3.50 a day, whichever is greater. (Remember that "whichever is greater" — it could make a big difference.) The government will pay the rest, up to "a reasonable amount."

Retired service members must pay the first 25% of all hospital charges for inpatient care, and the government will pay the rest — again, up to "a reasonable amount."

CHAMPUS works a little differently for out-patient care. Active-duty members must pay the first $50 of the charges (called the "deductible"), or the first $100 if there are two or more family members receiving care. After that, they must pay 20% of all other charges.

The same $50 or $100 deductible applies to retired personnel, but they must pay 25% of all the other charges. But what is a "reasonable amount?" That's not for you or me to say. A "fiscal agent," usually an insurance company, decides what is reasonable, based on what doctors or hospitals in the community usually charge, and on the standard fee for that particular doctor or clinic.

All you have to do is be sure your doctor or hospital participates in CHAMPUS. If not, you have two choices: either pay the bill and submit a claim to the government, or turn in an unpaid bill to CHAMPUS. This is at your own risk, however, since many doctors don't participate; it's entirely voluntary for the doctor.

For more information, call MAJ Glenson P. Rhoads of the Patient Administration Division, Martin Army Hospital, at 544-1618 or 544-1141. He or one of his staff will be happy to answer any questions you have.

'We've got the best OH-58 unit in the Army'

"We've got the best OH-58 (OBSERVATION HELICOPTER) unit in the Army," stated CW2 Noah Wimmer, Operations Officer, 36th Aviation Platoon, 36th Engrs. "This is easily justified by our accident free flying record."

The aviation platoon has a challenging mission, which is threefold and involves; training in various aircraft and maintaining proficiency of rotary wing pilots assigned to USAIS and USAIC as non-assigned aviators; maintenance of operational controlled aircraft; and providing administrative support to assigned and attached personnel which includes maintaining flight records and scheduling flying time.

The students of the Pathfinders School train by guiding helicopters into small landing zones. The aviation Platoon also supports the Ranger Camp with their tactical maneuvers. They fly VIP's, pay officers, and technicians from Ft. Benning to Florida, or to the mountains Ranger Camp in Dahlonga, Ga. and back to Ft. Benning.

"We also fly missions to support the civilian community," stated CPT Tom Nicholson, 36th Aviation Platoon Commander. "In one case we flew a search and rescue mission not long ago in Newman, Ga. A 70 year old man was lost in the woods and was finally found — caught in a barbed wire fence."

The Tactical Operation and Equipment (TOE) authorization calls for two OH-58 helicopters; however, the 36th Aviation Platoon not only maintains these two, but 11 other OH-58 helicopters.

Related to the availability rate is the amount of flying time put on an aircraft. The average amount of flying time each month is about 250 hours. The 36th has been accident free for over two years, marking the first time in the history of Army aviation that an OH-58 unit has completed 10,300 accident free flying hours in succession.

In combat situations an OH-58 is used for the exact type mission it's name implies — observation. An OH-58 can carry a mini gun on its side for armament. The cruising speed is about 80 knots with maximum speed of 120 knots and can carry four people including the pilot.

A qualified pilot can learn to fly an OH-58 in about 25-30 flying hours, after he has completed his initial flight training.

Now there are about 30 men assigned to the platoon, which includes 8 crew chiefs, 15 pilots, and the remaining platoon supervisors.

A large portion of the unit's personnel is involved with maintenance. Despite the ratio of one mechanic for every two aircraft, aircraft availability rate — aircraft ready to perform a mission — is 80 percent. The unit's maintenance section goal is to maintain an availability of 100 per cent.

"They say these helicopters are supposed to be maintenance free, but that's not really true," said SP5 Robert M.

Burgoon, crew chief, 36th Aviation Platoon. "We spend a lot of time working on our ships so that we can keep them flying."

The success enjoyed by the 36th Aviation Platoon has been vastly enhanced by its outstanding maintenance personnel and the professional military attitude of its pilots.

The 36th Aviation Platoon has proven by performance that it is one of the Army's best.

LEADERSHIP DEPARTMENT TEA

The Leadership ladies held a tea in the Corridor Room of the Officers Club to bid farewell to Mrs. John J. Walsh, Jr. She was presented a silver champagne cooler. Mrs. Nathan C. Vail was recognized as the new Department commander's wife.

ANNUAL SPRING FORMAL

The Contemporary Subjects Committee welcomed the Leadership Department to the Annual Spring Formal Dinner and Dance. The theme "Let's Celebrate Spring" was carried out with brightly colored paper flowers and maypoles. After dinner, music was by the "General Assembly."

Distinguished guests were COL and Mrs. Charles Reidenbaugh. A warm welcome was extended to MAJ and Mrs. Dale Sherrod. LT and Mrs. Francois R. Labrecque, and LT and Mrs. James Donald. Farewell was bid to COL and Mrs. John J. Walsh, Jr., MAJ and Mrs. James S. Tarpley, CPT and Mrs. James B. Wolfe, CPT and Mrs. James N. Joyner, Jr., and LT William A. Sanders.

2-10th FIELD ARTILLERY

The ladies of the 2/10th Field Artillery honored Mrs. Richard R. Noack with a farewell coffee at the home of Mrs. Robert A. Kromer. The ladies presented Mrs. Noack with a pair of silver candleholders as a memento of her year with the 2/10th. Hostesses for this lovely evening were the wives of the Battery Commanders, Mesdames Robert A. Kromer, Larry D. Aaron, Michael C. Wells, John F. Hagen, and Riley J. Smith.

NCOWC

The ladies of the NCOWC have had a busy first two weeks of the new club year. They have held Coffee Call at Martin Army Hospital twice, had a Chairmen's meeting for the new chairmen, a joint board meeting, the first business meeting, plus baked cakes for the Service Club Bakery Bingo on Sunday. Many more activities are planned each month throughout the new club year. All NCO wives are invited to attend and join in these activities.

Join minority by using seatbelts

Do you use your seat belts all of the time? If you do, you are in a minority group. The poor acceptance of seat belts by the public has spurred actions by public officials to enact mandatory safety belt usage laws. Australia has a mandatory seat belt law and has experienced a measurable decline in their vehicle fatality rate. Enforcement of the law has not been a problem since Australian belts have shoulder and lap belts integrated as one unit and a glance through the car window can quickly establish whether restraint devices are in use.

The idea of mandatory seat belt laws in the US evokes responses from people such as this would be an "invasion of privacy" or would take away their right to disregard their own safety when operating their vehicle. These reactions have one big flaw—the actions of a vehicle occupant, and in particular the driver, when not using their seat belts may directly affect other users of the road.

In the thousands of fatal accidents examined by the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, there has been no evidence of deaths occurring because the occupants were wearing safety belts. As a matter of fact it goes the other way—time and time again the deaths occurred because the belts were not being worn. Safety belts were designed for use whenever the vehicle is moving—not just for long trips or fast roads. Belts should be worn in everyday traffic since most fatal accidents happen at speeds under 40 mph and within 25 miles of home.

Let's work together and make the safety belt the most popular put-on in America.

ROTC cadets learning to lead the hard way

BY MICHAEL De VITA

During the "Rangers in Action" demonstration at Victory Pond, the various skills that the Rangers are constantly developing and improving, such as rappelling, hand-to-hand combat and patrolling, are displayed. This demonstration is a little misleading, though. It may be responsible for many of the popular misconceptions about Ranger training.

The display is not in any way inaccurate; if anything, it understates the physical skills that the Ranger student develops during the course of instruction. The demonstration simply cannot depict the real purpose of Ranger training: the two fold mission of developing the cadet's leadership potential and of making the cadet full aware of his own leadership qualities. The development of these impressive physical skills is the means and not the end. "What we can't show in the demonstration," according to LTC Byron F. Prahm, the Assistant Director of the Ranger Department, "is what happens to the student when he's been in the field for three days under constant stress, with little sleep, and a hand taps him on the shoulder." He is then told that he must lead a patrol and take an objective. He is almost at what he thought was his own breaking point and he must find the strength to lead — and what happens to him when he finds that he has that strength.

There is a certain amount of "harrassment" at the beginning of the training. The cadre have a way of saying "Ranger" that is similar to the way a feudal lord might address a galley slave. But there is an excellent reason for this. There are many aspects of Ranger training that are dangerous and can result in severe injury to the student if done improperly. The best life insurance that the cadre can give the student is to insure that the student follows instructions accurately and instantly.

When the student is traveling fifty miles per hour down the suspension traverse, fractions of seconds count. And doing ten push-ups for improperly tying a knot doesn't seem so bad, since the student and his fellow students will have to rely on that knot while using that suspension traverse.

While it is true that much of the Ranger course is inherently dangerous, unnecessary hazards are quickly eliminated. In fact the Ranger students are given poor marks for taking an unnecessary risk or enduring an unnecessary hardship. The students are told on the first day of training that "a man who stands out in the rain, when he doesn't have to, isn't a Ranger; he isn't even tough. He's just stupid."

The training is rigorous. The ability to pass the minimum physical fitness requirements for entry into the program is no guarantee that the student has the physical stamina to complete the course. One student recently pointed out that the daily physical training which began the day after the physical tests is far more grueling than the tests themselves.

Another student summed it up. "If you can make it through this course, you know that you can make it through anything." And this is the reason behind the Ranger course; to let the student know that no matter how tired and miserable he is and no matter how tough the problem, he has the ability to lead. To paraphrase an ancient proverb — He who knows how to lead, and knows that he knows he's a leader, follow him.

Food and breaktime don't come often during the rigorous training

The surgeon's basic instrument is the scalpel. Although modern medicine has made greater demands on the surgeon's technique, his basic instrument remains the scalpel.

The same holds true for the soldier and his rifle. Despite all of the developments in technology, the soldier's success or failure, even life and death, depend still on his ability to hit the enemy. His weapon remains the rifle.

Because of this requirement, all ROTC cadets during summer camp at the end of their junior year must qualify with the rifle. This is particularly true of the ROTC Ranger student who attends Ranger training instead of the regular advance camp.

In fact it would be doubly ironic for the Ranger, after using all his skill to cross miles of seemingly impassable terrain, to fail in his mission because he couldn't shoot straight.

ROTC Ranger class 10-74 last week had its turn on the rifle range with the M-16 rifle. All 203 cadets had their turn and all 203 qualified.

High scorer for the class was Cadet Heldur Liivak of the 1st Squad, 6th Platoon. The Lakewood, New Jersey resident attends William and Mary College. He hit 79 of the 80 targets to take the top honors.

The class averaged 60.9 targets and had 113 qualify as expert. Another 57 qualified as sharpshooter and 33 as marksmen.

While realizing the importance of this phase of training most of the cadets seemed eager to get it completed and "to get on to the more demanding Ranger phases of training."

And, so they did. They had a week-end devoted to hand-to-hand combat, patrolling, road marches and demolition.

Pioneers win best mess award

For the second time this year, the dining facility of Company E, Field Artillery, 1-29th Infantry (PIONEERS), TSB has been awarded the post best mess award. (feeding 200 and under)

Dining facility manager, SFC John Stablum said of his award-winning mess, "I honestly think we have the best facility on Fort Benning, and this award proves it. When the next Phillip A. Conelly Award for Food Excellence comes around, I can guarantee you we'll be finishing way up at the top," Stablum predicted.

The dining facilities are judged mainly on three different aspects, sanitation, cooking, and administrative procedures. In order to even get to the post level competition, the PIONEER facility had to first prove its excellence in these areas at the TSB level of competition.

Facility manager SFC Stablum gives most of the credit to his cooks and civilian kitchen helpers. "What we have in our facility," said Stablum, "is teamwork. The cooks, K.P.'s, myself, and SFC Ross, the Battalion Food Advisor — we all work together as a team."

Probably the most important aspect of any dining facility is the quality of the food itself. Soldiers from Company E of the PIONEERS lend testimony to the fact that the chow served in their dining facility is indeed good.

SP5 Steve Schuppener, company clerk for the artillery company, commented, "I've eaten in Army mess halls from California to Georgia, and this one is unquestionably the best I've seen. The food is really terrific." SP4 Jim Curry, a gunner with the company's 8-inch section said, "The food is good, sure, but I think the people that work in our mess facility makes it what it is. They really are devoted and they care about the quality of their service and the food. That's what makes the facility so great."

Local 54 sponsors banquet

The American Federation of Government Employees Local No. 54 will sponsor a banquet and appreciation night for Georgia's U.S. Senator Herman Talmadge and U.S. Congressman Jack Brinkley.

The general public is invited to attend. Sen. Talmadge and Cong. Brinkley will address issues of importance to both the civilian and military community.

The event will be held at the Columbus Municipal Auditorium starting at 7 p.m. on June 29.

Tickets are $5.00 per person for meals only. Reservations and tickets can be obtained by calling 687-8740 or 545-5379.

BEGINNER'S JUDO CLASSES

Registrations are now being accepted at the Recreation Services Division, located under Doughboy Stadium, for dependents ages 7-19, who are interested in learning the art of Judo and joining the Fort Benning Judo Club. All classes are conducted in Bldg 2596, Main Post. Military personnel may report directly to the Judo Club.

SECURITY FOR FAMILY HOUSING OCCUPANTS

Recent attempts have been made by unauthorized personnel gain illegal entrance into Government dependent housing by posing as DFAE personnel. The following identification procedures should be followed by quarters occupants:

a. Insure the persons attempting to gain entrance state the purpose of their visit and have affixed to their outer garment and in plain view a red identification name plate containing the individual's name and the letters "DFAE" under the name.

b. Request to see the individual's Department of Army identification card, DA Form 1602. This is a gray card which will contain on the front of the card a picture of the individual and identify him as working for DFAE. The back of the card will provide physical characteristics of the individual. Insure that the picture and description matches the individual and that the last name on the card and the plastic identification plate also match.

c. If still in doubt as to the authenticity of the individual please call 545-7023, Work Coordination Office, for additional confirmation of the service order and workman.

RETIRED OPEN HOUSE

The Fort Benning Retirement Services Office Office is sponsoring its annual Retired Open House on Thursday, July 4th from 11 a.m. to 6:30 p.m. in conjunction with the Fort Benning 4th of July Carnival. A Retirement Services Center will be set up in Classroom No. 52, Infantry Hall, Building 4. Representatives from the Veterans Administration, CHAMPUS, Social Security Association of the United States Army and the Retirement Services Office will be on hand to answer questions on a walk-in basis.

PARENT EFFECTIVENESS TRAINING

Want to learn new ways to communicate with your children? Want to find better ways of resolving parent-child conflicts? Parent Effectiveness Training (PET) may be for you. PET is an eight-week course geared to familiarize parents with communication skills that can improve parent-child relationships. Total cost of materials and registration fee is $50 but the Army will pay $25 for active duty personnel, and their dependants. For further information contact Conn Thomas at 545-1717 or 545-1718.

OUR LADY OF LOURDES SCHOOL REGISTRATION FOR 74-75

Registration for Our Lady of Lourdes School will be held from 9 a.m. until noon each Monday for the remainder of June and July. There are more registrations for Kindergarten this year than in previous years so there is a possibility that there will be two classes per day this year.

Playboy's June Playmate, Sandy Johnson, is a native of San Antonio, Texas, but has lived for the past six years in California. Sandy loves her job there, selling cosmetics. The great thing about it, she says, is that she can make a lot of money without a lot of hours. The secret is organization and selling to large groups rather than door-to-door. When Sandy's not busy in the beauty business, she attends classes at Santa Monica Community College, where she studies food and nutrition. Miss June, who sings and is a talented dancer, would like to star in a stage show. With so many talents, it shouldn't be long before Sandy has her act together.

Water courses offered

Youth Activities, with the cooperation of the American Red Cross, will offer a Water Safety Instructors course to dependent youths age 17 and over.

Applicants must have also completed the Senior Lifesaving Course and be proficient in the five basic swimming strokes. The Water Safety course is required or at least beneficial for those seeking jobs as lifeguards or swimming instructors. Tentative dates for the course are July 8-19. Classes will be held from 9 a.m. to noon each day. A minimum of 15 applications must be received before the class will be conducted.

TSB ladies sparkle in second round of summer softball

The second half of the Columbus Women's Industrial softball league is underway, and The School Brigade's Women's softball team picked up where they left off in the first half — by crushing their first two opponents.

TSB opened play with Blue Cross-Blue Shield. BCBS jumped to a 3-0 lead in the top of the first inning. BCBS quickly turned black and blue as the TSB women tattooed with them with a series of big hits in their half of the inning. Tammy Thompson led off for TSB with a home run. After Pat Cagle flied out, Constance Pierce boomed another home run. Sandy McCall followed with another round tripper. When the dust finally settled, TSB had scored 7 runs and coasted the rest of the way for a 20-7 victory.

Kathy Craig, left, catcher for The School Brigade Women's softball team, isn't asking the other girl to dance. She's making sure that the runner isn't going to get to home plate, even though it looks like the runner is trying to pull the ball out of Kathy's glove.

TSB's second game opponent was the Phenix City Independents. It wasn't Phenix City's night; TSB clobbered them 17-2.

TSB led 11-0 before Phenix City scored their only runs of the game in the third inning.

Iris Verren hit a home run for TSB in the fifth inning, and Tammy Thompson added her second homer in as many games.

TSB has now scored 37 runs in 2 games, for an average of nearly 3 runs every inning; they've held the opposition to an average of about 4 runs per game.

Soldier of the Month SP4 Wade D. McCallar, Co. D, 43rd Engr. Bn., was named Soldier of the Month for May. Wade entered the service on June 29, 1972. Following basic training at Ft. Jackson, S. C., and AIT at Ft. Leonard Wood, Mo., he was assigned to Co. D as a Wheeled Tractor Operator in November 1972. When he signed in the company however, SP4 McCallar was never allowed to leave the company orderly room. Wade has been a clerk for as long as he has been at Ft. Benning, and has established himself as one of the best clerks in the 43rd Engrs.

Even though he is away from his MOS virtually 100 per cent of the time, Wade has scored high enough to draw Propay on both MOS tests he has taken. In addition to being a clerk, Wade is a projectionist and truck driver. His spare time in the company has been utilized to help train three other soldiers the basic clerical procedures. During off-duty hours, Wade can often be found on the softball field or in the bowling alley supporting Co. D's athletic teams.

197th has action-filled week of softball

Co. A (Admin), 197th Spt Bn regained the lead it had held early in the season by defeating Co B (Medics) 9-6 in 197th Inf Bde softball action.

"Overconfidence has been our biggest problem," said Bob Mayhew, acting coach of the 1973 post runners-up. "Our two losses in the first half of the season woke everyone up. I think we have a better team than last year but we have to go undefeated for the rest of the season to get into the brigade playoffs."

Co A tied Co B for their league's first half of the season title. The administrative specialists from Kelley Hill now hold a slim one-game lead over the medics with four weeks remaining in the regular season.

Co A, 2nd Bn, 69th Armor surprised the Tankers League by winning its first two games to take the lead for the second half of the season.

"Our team has a lot of momentum," said CPT Michael Maasberg, commander of Co A, 2/69th. "We finished second during the first half of the season and if we can win the second half, we'll have a playoff with Cbt Spt Co for the league title and spot in the brigade playoffs." HHC, an early season favorite, has dropped two of three games during the second half.

The 72nd Engr Co of the Independent League won its first game of the season when they defeated second-placed Troop A, 15th Cav. Meanwhile, HHC, 197th Inf Bde maintained a tight hold on the independent's lead with a 7-2 record.

In the Redleg League C Battery, 2nd Bn, 10th F.A. held its two game lead over HHB. However, the cannons of HHB are looking forward to their remaining games with C Batt in hopes of evening the score.

"We beat them once and we know we can beat them again," said James McKinney, HHB's assistant coach. "We are really looking forward to the rest of our games with them."

HHC, 3rd Bn, 7th INF holds a slim one game lead over Co C of the Cottonbaler League. But strangely, HHC's only loss came not at the hands of second-place C Co, but against Co A, 3/7th.

Co. C Rangers win squeaker in TSB

In a see-saw Yellow Division scoring game that went into extra innings, Co C Rangers of the 1/29th (Pioneers) finally emerged victorious over Hq & Spt Company 10-9.

When the Rangers came to bat for what would have been their last time in the bottom of the seventh inning, they trailed the headquarters team by one run. Rock Fumicello of the Rangers smashed a double off the center field pole, and minutes later dived head first into home plate for the tying run.

In the top of the 8th, Allen Holmes of Hq & Spt walloped his second homer of the game, and the clerks took a one-run lead once again.

In the Ranger half of the eighth inning, Gabriel Dominguez took advantage of an Eddie McClendon error at shortstop to get on base. Minutes later, Dale Aberle got his fourth base hit of the game, driving Dominguez to third base. When Hq & Spt Co catcher Bruce LaPorte attempted to nail Dominguez at third, he overthrew the bag, and Dominguez scurried home with the winning run.

In other Yellow Division action in the TSB softball league, Co A (PIONEERS) picked up two easy victories to maintain their hold on first place with a 7-0 record.

In the first game, Danny Keith went 3 for 5 with a pair of homeruns and five RBIs to power the Co A team over Co B of the 1/29th, 13-9. Co A team captain Doug Sturgeon committed eight errors at shortstop, yet the team remains in first place in the Yellow Division.

In their second game of the week, the Co A team, with a team batting average of .587, topped the Company C Rangers 22-12 in a game that had to be stopped after only five innings due to the lopsided score. The Rangers were down 16-5 going into the fourth inning, when suddenly they opened up and scored seven runs. It wasn't enough to keep them in the game, however, as Co A came back with six runs in their half of the inning to win the contest.

Danny Keith hit his sixth season home run for Co A, and had a total of five RBIs. Tim DeBey went three for four with a double and 3 RBIs for the winners and Lowell Hight contributed to the team victory with three hits and two RBIs.

Co A is still undefeated in the PIONEER league, and they have scored over 100 runs in their last seven games. Later this week they will be pitted against the second place Artillery team.

SATURDAY IS SPECIAL AT HUGHES!

We know that having quality service means having the hours to go along with it. That's part of the reason we're open 10 hours a day — including Saturdays. But don't get the wrong idea. We're not open just to be open. Our service department is open on Saturday especially for people who bought their car from Hughes. Providing the best service hours is just our way of saying thanks. So, if you're driving one of our cars, we want you to know Saturday is your day at Hughes.

Fishermen who have been wondering how they can quiet that little voice that will be telling them they should be at the carnival July 4 can relax now. The Rod and Gun Club and the Directorate of Facilities Engineering have made fishing legal on that day — providing you bring a child under 16 years old to do the fishing and advance $2 to the carnival fund.

The club and the engineers have planned a children's fishing contest to be held at Russ Pond and Russ Pool from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. You don't even need a post hunting permit to participate. The stub or receipt showing that you have paid the entry fee will allow your child to fish during the tournament on the 4th of July. Roy Johnston, Chief of the post fish and wildlife unit, emphasized that this will be a one-day exception.

Contestants must register at the contest headquarters located at the bridge over the spillway of the pool. Each contestant will be given a stub. Keep this handy. You will need it to keep the Range Guard off your back and you will have to show it when you register a fish.

All of the prizes haven't been determined but prizes will be awarded for the three largest fish in three categories—catfish, bream and rough fish. These prizes will be awarded in the shelterhouse below Russ Pool at the close of the contest. Fishermen can enter fish in all categories but can only win one of the prizes in each category.

Be sure to register some kind of fish. Anyone who registers a fish during the contest will be eligible to win a consolation prize if his entry doesn't win one of the other prizes.

Thanks to the Rod and Gun Club and the Engineers you can make a youngster happy by taking him fishing — and avoid the crowds at the carnival.

Warm Up Contest

Some bass fishermen may want to warm up for the carnival contest at the one-day bass fishing contest at Lake Seminole June 29. Headquarters for the tournament will be Wingate's Luncheon Lodge at Hutchinson Ferry Landing.

Entry fee for the tournament is $10. All tourney fees will be put into a jackpot and split three ways. First place will get half the total, second place two thirds of the remainder and the rest will go to the third place winner.

The contest will run from 7 a.m. until 5:30 p.m. Only artificial lures may be used. Partners will be selected in an opening draw at 6 a.m.

Fishermen can stay at Luncheon Lodge or, with camping equipment, can camp at the Bass Island Campground.

June Fishing Derby

There has been quite a bit of activity in the Rod and Gun June Fishing Derby. Leads have changed several times during the month. Bass fishing has improved considerably in the last two weeks and fishermen are still taking lunker catfish out of Twilight Pond.

SFC Robert Horn, 1100 Celia Drive, leads the bass fishermen with an 8-pound, 12-ounce catch he made at Kings Pond.

The top bream also came from Kings Pond. The fisherman was SFC Angelo Floris, 241 Springfield Drive. His catch tipped the club scales at an even pound.

The largest catfish is a 13-pound 1-ounce lunker from Twilight Pond. SFC William B. Snyder, 1021 Enoch Street made the catch last Sunday.

Using a bowling ball he bought from a friend for $4, CPT Howard J. Emert, 197th pt. Bn., 197th Inf. Bde., recently recorded a three-game series score of 731, the highest so far this year in the Columbus-Ft. Benning area.

"I've only been bowling for about three years," said the S-4 officer of the 197th Spt. Bn. "I became interested in the sport while stationed in Germany and I've been bowling regularly ever since." The strangest thing about the record series, which consisted of 244, 277 and 210 games, was that CPT Emert was rolling a used ball.

"I just bought this ball from a friend," he explained. "My current average is 184 but this ball has helped me raise it considerably."

Lee Blanchard, secretary of the Columbus Bowling Assn., said the series was the highest so far this year in his association. He also pointed out that the season ends on July 31.

"I bowl about three nights a week now," CPT Emert stated. "I was bowling with the 'Mixed Mavericks' at the main post bowling center when I scored the high series."

Travel and save

Available at ACS is the greatest savings idea we've seen! The Military Travel Guide (7th edition) is just what the name implies — a travel guide for military personnel to include billeting facilities on every military installation (Army, Air Force, Marines, and Navy) in CONUS. We all know that rates at a guest house or special services Recreation Area are far, far lower than those at a commercial motel or camping area.

Also included are over 1000 civilian hotels and motels offering military discount rates, none less than 10%, many 25%-50%. Come in check the Guide, note any installations that are on your vacation route and make your reservations.

With each description of guest housing there is included reservation information and if available Special Services, Recreation information, including FAMCAMP. To cut lodging expenses during your next leave or PCS move, check this Guide available at the ACS Welcome Center, located in Bldg. 83.

During the summer months a number of special students will be attending special courses at the Infantry School. One of these is SP/4 Antonio R. Cartagena, assigned to the 4th Co., 4th Student Bn., The School Brigade for Airborne training. SP/4 Cartagena is a member of the Puerto Rican National Guard, and was here at Fort Benning along with a number of other Puerto Rican Guardsmen for Jump School. He said "I really like the training. I've learned things. It's very interesting, and has given me a lot of confidence in myself." (U.S. Army Photo)

Cost of dying is going up

The cost of living has gone up. The cost of dying has also gone up. And depending upon your point of view, the price increase for cigarettes will add to one of the other — or both.

Effective June 26, the Ft. Benning Exchange will implement a 30-cent per carton across-the-board increase. Regular and king-size brands will go from $2.70 to $3; extra-length cigarettes will increase from $2.80 to $3.10.

The increase was necessary to offset a series of price increases by the tobacco industry and help defray ever-mounting operational costs.

SecDef Discontinues Codes on Discharges

Coded information will no longer be included on discharge documents according to a Servicewide directive issued by Secretary of Defense James R. Schlesinger. The coded information which appeared on Reports of Separation, and in some instances, separation orders, included the reason for discharge in the form of a Separation Program Number (SPN) and Reenlistment Eligibility (RE) code.

In addition to the discontinuance of these codes in current and future discharges, procedures have been established, since May 1, 1974, for the deletion of this information from the documents of former service members who request such a deletion. In these instances, a new copy of the original form will be provided with the codes deleted.

The purpose of this change is to insure that all information on discharge documents is readily understandable to the veteran, and to avoid the potentiality of undesirable discrimination against an individual resulting from misinterpretation of the codes. Secretary Schlesinger has stated that undesirable discrimination was never intended, whatever the circumstances of an individual's separation from active duty. Each individual will continue to have access to a narrative description of the reason and authority for his discharge and reenlistment eligibility, if he or she requests the information.

Veterans who wish to have the SPN and RE code deleted from his or her copy of the DD Form 214, "Report of Separation From Active Duty," (or from previous edition of the form) may apply to the respective former Service to have the codes deleted from personal copies of the form. Requests should be mailed to the following addresses:

• Army: Commander, Reserve Components Personnel and Administration Center, Box 12479, Olivette Branch, St. Louis, Missouri 63132.

• Navy: Chief, Bureau of Naval Personnel (Pers 38), Department of Navy, Washington, D.C. 20370.

• Air Force: Air Force Military Personnel Center (DPMDR), Randolph AFB, Texas 78148. (It is preferable, however, for former USAF members to make requests through a local base personnel office.)

Hairy Issues Still Plague the Military

"Frankly, I think they should start paying us by the pound instead of the hour."

Hair used to be used to stuff mattresses. Today, it inspires rebellion among the younger generation, thoughts harking back to "the good old days" among the older generation, and inspired—or uninspired—prose by writers.

Hairy issues have long plagued the military services. At the turn of the 19th century some changes were initiated in the U.S. Army by Brig. Gen. James Wilkinson. He ordered that hair should be short enough that it did not need tying back and that sideburns should not come below the bottom of the ear. Most men followed orders but one rugged individualist, Col. Thomas Buder of the 2d Infantry Regiment, refused. Though court-martialed several times for his refusal to cut his hair, he wore it long until his death in 1805.

In the U.S. Army, it was usually the cavalry that continued to wear beards and moustaches through the early part of the 19th century and into the Civil War. Most photos of infantrymen in those days show clean shaven faces, and for good reason, since many were teenagers who could not have grown a beard that they wanted to.

In the Indian Wars the cavalry, as in previous decades, continued to wear moustaches or beards.

Members of one Iowa cavalry regiment grew a novel adornment called a Lushbaugh named after a government official who, it was rumored, was usually drunk. These differed from sideburns in that they did not connect with the moustache.

George Armstrong Custer was called Long Hair by the Indians. Another hirsute general equally as effective against the Indians, if not as well known, was George Crook who adopted the unmilitary practice of braiding his flowing beard and tying it behind his neck.

With the turn of the 20th century the American male began to patronize the barber shop and hair styles got progressively shorter. Today, however, the trend court-martialed several times for his refusal to cut his hair, he wore it long until his death in 1805.

In the U.S. Army, it was usually the cavalry that continued to wear beards and moustaches through the early part of the 19th century and into the Civil War. Most photos of infantrymen in those days show clean shaven faces, and for good reason, since many were teenagers who could not have grown a beard that they wanted to.

In the Indian Wars the cavalry, as in previous decades, continued to wear moustaches or beards.

not be excessive or present a ragged, unkempt or extreme appearance," for such improper appearance is "totally unacceptable, as well as damaging to the Army image."

Admiral Elmo R. Zumwalt's Z-gram 70 amplifies the Navy's hair grooming policy stating that "the exact maximum length of hair is no longer specified but . . . Guidelines provide that hair will not touch the collar of the uniform, that it will be neatly trimmed, will not fall below the eyebrows when uncovered and will not brush out below the band of properly worn headgear.

"Sideburns will be neatly trimmed and not extend below the bottom of the earlobe, will be of even width (not flared). Beards and moustaches must be neatly trimmed and not be of a ragged appearance. The policy authorizes full and partial beards, van dykes and goatees."

A writer for the Blue Ridger, a publication of the 80th Division (Training), sums up the situation as well as any: "Hair should not be the issue, and in fact it's not really the issue at all. What's at stake is the military's old-style discipline whether or not social conformity directives can be made for men to follow and whether these directives can be and are enforced."

Alcoholic Sees and Lives a Blurred Nightmare

"I am a serviceman with nearly 20 years active service. I am married and have two teenage children. I own my home and a car. I am an alcoholic.

"I don't remember when or how I made the transition from 'social drinker' to alcoholic. I drank occasionally before I joined the service. Overseas, I developed the routine of daily drinking. I was already experiencing some of the problems of alcohol abuse—late for work because of hangovers, neglect of my personal appearance, and finally, two office hours within a month. I was 18 years old at this time.

"When I returned to the States I wasn't old enough to drink legally, but I still managed to spend a lot of my time (and money) drinking. I had the reputation of being a boozier, a regular good-time Charlie. By now I had learned to cover up my habits. At the same time I was learning to live with a constant hangover. I was no longer a 'social drinker' but I didn't believe I was an alcoholic. After all, I could do without it when I had to.

"I got married and for a while I laid off the heavy drinking. My wife drank very little. Our son was born and a year later our daughter came along. Things were going pretty well for us. I went to Vietnam for a year and was promoted. The only time I got drunk was on a five-day R&R in Bangkok. I figured I owed that to myself. I guess I still felt like that when I got back to the States because I started drinking at the airport and missed my flight home. When I sobered up three days later, I was stranded in L.A. with just enough change for a phone call. For the first time I lied to my wife—I told her my flight had been held over on Okinawa and I lost my money there. She accepted my story but I don't think she believed it. I think she has doubted me ever since.

"During the next few years my drinking got worse. I had three drunk driving raps and lost my driver's license. I had office hours twice. My wife and kids could take no more and left me. I lived in a blurred nightmare of counselling sessions, bad fitness reports and transfers. Finally, I received a letter informing me that my case had been reviewed and I had three months to improve my performance and conduct or be processed for an administrative discharge. It struck me hard, and at first I felt very bitter about it, but then I realized that I was being offered an opportunity to straighten out my whole life. After all, I now had nearly 15 years service. If I let myself be discharged now, what future would I have?

"My boss offered to introduce me to a friend of his, a civilian, who belonged to a local chapter of Alcoholics Anonymous. I refused at first, but later agreed to talk to his friend. About a week later I attended my first AA meeting, and after some coaxing I agreed to attend the next meeting. At the second meeting I began to understand what the speakers were trying to say. They were helping each other to help themselves. By sharing a common problem they were learning to understand the problem. Most important, at least a few of them were beginning to regain what they had lost—self-respect.

"I am still an alcoholic, but I have my family back and I was allowed to continue my career in the Service. There is no known cure for alcoholism, but with time and help from others, I eliminated the cause of my problems. I quit drinking. It has now been almost three years since I had a drink."

A sad story is only as sad as its ending. The first and most important step toward recovery is the individual's acceptance of the fact that he or she has a problem and needs help.

Help is nearby. Your alcoholism prevention and rehabilitation unit provides individual counseling for servicemen and their dependents, often by members who are recovered alcoholics themselves. They understand your problem; but more important, they'll help you do something about it.

Husband and wife jump together

What do you say to a guy who tells you his wife's job is jumping out of airplanes and packing parachutes? What can you say, other than, "If she can do it, why can't you?"

PVT Fred Higgins of the 43d Co. 4th Stu. Bn., TSB, demonstrated that he can do anything his wife, PVT Joyce Higgins, can do — by graduating jump school on June 19. The unique aspect of his five qualifying jumps was that on each one, the little lady of the Higgins household went out the door right next to him.

They are now the first husband and wife team ever to graduate from jump school, and they are also the first marital partners ever to exist in Army aircraft together in an official military training jump.

Actually, the whole idea of an Airborne husband-wife team was Fred's idea. A prior serviceman who had been in the Army for 3½ years, he discussed with his wife his intention of rejoining the service. "She was worrying about being separated from me when I went overseas," said Fred. "I told her she should join the Army and she agreed with me right away."

Joyce became the third female to attend and graduate from jump school. She attended rigger school, where she met and became friends with PVT Rita Johnson, one of the first two female Airborne graduates. PVT Johnson is now in Fayetteville, N.C., taking care of the Higgins' 15-month old girl, Brandy, while her parents drop from the sky at Ft. Benning.

"I'm really glad Joyce was so agreeable to jumping", Fred said. "It makes it more fun all around. I wasn't bothered that she was Airborne before I was, because I knew I would be too. We both like the Army. It's been great to us," he said. Joyce's biggest problem about becoming a paratrooper was with her parents.

PVT Joyce Higgins makes the final checkout of her husband's parachute as they get ready to become the first husband and wife team ever to jump together in a military training jump. She graduated jump school some months ago while her husband, PVT Fred Higgins, graduated on June 20. (Photo by George Korda)

"They accepted the idea of my being in the Army, but they sure weren't happy about the jumping. I'd been pretty well protected all my life. By the time I got out of basic training, they had changed their minds and were all for it," she said.

She has a lot of fun with people who would never expect a female to be a military jumper.

"Some people think I'm really crazy. Women really think I'm strange. Their eyes get real big while I explain it to them and most of them just look at me and shake their heads. A lot of guys think I'm too small, but I think they believe I'm stepping out of my place as a weak female," she said with a smile.

They originally had hoped to go through jump school together, but delays in Fred's paperwork made them decide that she should go through first and set up housekeeping while he was going through training. When he finishes his AIT at rigger school, they will both be assigned to the 600th Quartermaster Co at Fort Bragg, N.C.

Both want to make the Army a career and Fred says, "The best part is being Airborne together."

Independence Day

... that all men are created equal . . . that they are endowed with certain rights."

Life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness, that's what July Fourth is all about. The fireworks . . . the parades . . . the speeches . . . and the prayers. They're all to remind us that our nation is based upon individual freedoms, thankfully cultivated, cherished . . . and very carefully guarded. It's time once again to pledge ourselves to protect our God-given rights with our lives, our fortunes, and our sacred honor.

Retirement pay going down Oct. 1

Several "ifs" still cloud the picture, but barring last minute legislation, Benning personnel who retire after October 1, 1974, will receive less retirement pay than those who retire before October.

This is the result of a Comptroller General decision that says the protection of the "save pay" provision only goes back as far as the active duty pay scale in use immediately before retirement.

The rise or fall of the Consumer Price Index (CPI) is one of the "ifs" that will determine the true impact of retiring now or waiting until after October.

In the past year, the rate of increase in retired pay has been faster than the rate of increase for active duty. Already the rise in the CPI has warranted a 6.4% cost of living (COL) increase in retirement pay. If you wait until after October you will not receive that COL increase. Latest figures, through the month of May, indicate the annual rate of inflation may be as high as 10%, perhaps 13%.

The other "if" hinges on the October 1 active duty pay raise. Will it be 6.2% or 8.11%? Will all of the increase pertain to base pay?

If you're eligible to retire or have applied for retirement after October 1 there is still time to consider the situation and make your decision.

To avoid the loss in retirement pay, retirements must be made by August 31. Regulations say that your request must reach approving authorities 60 days before retirement. Notwithstanding this requirement, approving authorities are "taking every effort to assure retirement applications are processed and orders issued prior to September 1." This can be interpreted that a grace period of indefinite length is in effect beyond the normal cutoff date of July 1.

Remember that should legislation be passed to correct this situation your request may not be withdrawn except for the established convenience of the government or for extreme personal hardship.

Further information can be obtained by calling AG Retirement Section at 545-5766.

Management club names Crowley manager of year

Mrs. Edward M. Crowley was recently named Manager of the Year by MG Richard L. West, Deputy Chief of Staff, Comptroller, FORSCOM. MAJ Crowley is chief of the Budget Division, Office of Management and Budget, USAIS.

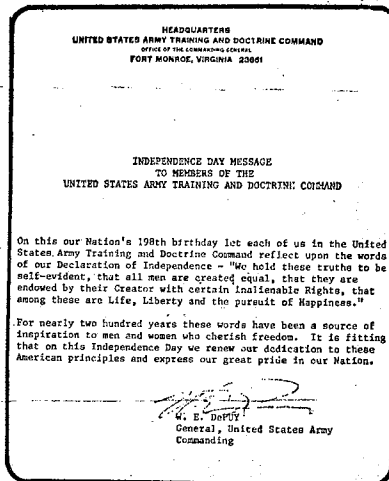

The award was presented at the Ft. Benning Management Association's luncheon meeting. MAJ Crowley's nomination was based on several improvements he has made in management and budget methods and techniques, resulting in monetary savings and increased efficiency, during the time he has been the Infantry School's budget officer.

MAJ Crowley is a graduate of the U. S. Military Academy, and received a master's degree in business administration from the Columbia University School of Business. He has attended Command and General Staff College, and has served as an admissions officer at the U. S. Military Academy.

He holds the Bronze Star Medal, the Meritorious Service Medal, the Army Commendation Medal with three Oak Leaf Clusters, the Combat Infantry Badge and the Vietnamese Parachutist Badge. He is also a Senior Parachutist and is Ranger qualified. Before coming to Ft. Benning he served as assistant division personnel officer, 2nd Inf Div, Korea.

The Ft. Benning Management Association was formed in September 1973, and present membership stands at 117. Meetings are held monthly, and annual dues at $5. Membership chairman is Mrs. Marcia D. Wolfe (545-3233).

Ranger battalion leaves Monday for Ft. Stewart

A group of 120 Rangers, trained at Ft. Benning, will leave for Ft. Stewart, Ga. at 7:30 a.m. Monday, July 1. They form the nucleus of the first Ranger battalion to be activated since World War II — the 1st Battalion, 75th Infantry.

On Monday morning at Lawson Field's Black Ramp, MG Thomas M. Tarpley will make his farewell remarks to the Rangers and will present a Doughboy statue to the new battalion's commander, LTC Kenneth C. Leuer. The 283rd Army Field Band will provide music.

The Rangers will board two aircraft and leave for Ft. Stewart, where they will make an airborne landing at Taylor's Creek drop zone at 9 a.m. After moving by bus to their new battalion headquarters, they will march to post headquarters and thence to Trent Field.

At Trent Field LTC Leuer will present the command to COL Frank L. Dietrich, commander of Ft. Stewart. The troops will then march back to battalion headquarters. There the ladies of the battalion will present a battalion flag, with distinctive insignia on a camouflage background, to LTC Leuer.

This is the first Ranger battalion to be activated since World War II. Two more Ranger battalions are being formed. Ranger companies served during the Korean and Vietnam conflicts, but the last Ranger battalions were inactivated shortly after World War II.

The new battalion was activated as a FORSCOM unit at Ft. Stewart January 31, but the initial cadre of 120 men were trained at Ft. Benning. After the move to Ft. Stewart, the unit will expand to its full personnel strength of 600 men and will conduct ongoing unit training.

The battalion will be an elite, light, readily deployable unit capable of performing a variety of combat missions under the most difficult conditions. LTC Leuer and CSM Neal Gentry were selected for commander and sergeant major. All other members will be selected from units around the world who meet the strict standards of Airborne and Ranger qualification.

'Beauty and the Beast' next for the Dramatizers

The Ft. Benning Dramatizers have selected "Beauty and the Beast" as their next production. The play is geared to children of all ages, and will be acted by adults.

Open tryouts for the play will be held June 26, 27 and 28 from 7:30 to 9 p.m., and June 29 from 2-4 p.m. at the Ft. Benning Playhouse, Bldg. 1237 (off Ingersoll Street, behind the Infantry Museum.) All area residents are welcome to audition or volunteer for technical work.

"Beauty and the Beast" will be directed by Anni Tufts Disbrow, who directed "Rashomon" for the Dramatizers last fall.

As usual, the Dramatizers need tech workers as well as actors and actresses. Anyone interested in designing the set should contact Anni Disbrow at the Playhouse (545-5057). The play will be performed this August on the Recreation Services Showmobile which will be moved to various locations on Ft. Benning for the audience's convenience. This fact alone will provide a challenge to those interested in designing costumes, set and lighting.

For actors and actresses,

"Beauty and the Beast" contains various fun roles. There are 3 female parts, for Beauty and her two sisters, and 3 male parts, for a wizard named Hodge; a Prince (who becomes the Beast), and Mr. Clement, father of the three sisters. One role, that of Hodge's nephew Mikey (who happens to be a baby dragon), may be played by either sex.

The play begins in the year 1340 and ends in 1840, giving fantasy lovers a chance to indulge themselves. As with most children's theatre plays, anything is possible within the framework of the plot — and most of what is possible DOES happen. Magic plays a big part in the show.

For further information, call 545-5057 during duty hours. Come to tryouts, or visit the Dramatizers' weekly meeting on Monday at 7 p.m. at the Playhouse.

WHAT IS YOUR OPINION OF THE NEW FORT BENNING MALL?

SP/4 TYRONE P. EASLEY
690TH MED CO

"It's more convenient than the old place they had. Everything is more centralized. At the old commissary you had to stand in a long line. At the new mall you don't. I just feel it's a better place all around."

SFC LEWIS D. WRIGHT
HHC, 197TH INF BDE

"I think it's the best thing since the P.X. and Commissary system have been in existence. I feel that it is the best way to serve the people. The old system was too much of a hassle — having to go from one place to another to find what you wanted."

SP/4 THEODORE JOHNSON
C CO 1/29TH INF (ABN)

"I feel that it is adequate for dependents. As far as the soldier is concerned, getting to the new mall is a problem. As far as I am concerned, this is one of the nicest places I have ever seen. They have almost everything under one roof, except a theater."

2LT RANDALL F. COCHRAN
HQ 2ND BN TSB

"I feel it is a lot better than the old system. The waiting lines are a lot better. It's a lot better having everything under one roof. You had to walk back and forth across the street under the old system."

SGT HAROLD HARDEN
HHC, 43rd ENGR.

"I think since they moved it where they did, it is better located. Everything is really convenient. They have more varieties of merchandise. It also saves time because you don't have to run all over post to get what you want."

NANCY NEWMAN
DEPENDENT WIFE

"We like it real well. It is much more convenient to go from store to store without having to go back inside. We enjoy having the nursery at the mall so we don't have to drop off the children some where else, then having to go back and pick them up."

MRS. PAM NOLEN
DEPENDENT WIFE

"I think it's fantastic. The selection has improved greatly in the P.X. and commissary. The service has also improved. I don't feel that the waiting in line has shortened at all."

Woodruff carries AUSA message to Washington

"Let me know what you think AUSA means to you and what it should do and I'll carry your message to Washington."

This was the pledge of James W. Woodruff, national president-elect of the Association of the U.S. Army (AUSA) to the members of the Columbus-Phenix City-Ft. Benning Chapter at the general membership meeting Monday at the Main Post Recreation Center.

Woodruff, a prominent Columbus businessman who is also civilian aide for Georgia to Secretary of the Army Howard Callaway, praised the local chapter.

He said the chapter stands high in the record of achievement and pointed out that it has been the world's largest in membership seven out of eight years.

The membership goal of the Tri-city chapter, which is dedicated to both civilian and military support of the Army, is 5,100.

Joe Windsor was reelected president of the chapter. Other officers are: E. O. "Buddy" Sparks, first vice-president, Brown Nicholson, second vice-president and COL Wallace Veaudry, secretary-treasurer.

Windsor said of the past year, "I hope we have helped make known the valuable role the U.S. Army plays in defense of the nation and the asset Ft. Benning is in community leadership."

Membership in the AUSA is open to anyone who subscribes to the aims of the association and is interested in the future of the Army and the security of the nation — regardless of sex or military service.

AUSA has modified its method of selecting the largest chapter award. It will now be decided by the percentage of new members each month and by the totals at the end of the year. Previously the title of largest chapter was awarded on the basis of number of members at the end of the year only.

Joining the effort to get new members are major Unit Command Sergeants Major and civilians in Columbus and Phenix City.

Joe Windsor, local chapter president, is urging the support of Ft. Benning civilian workers. The local chapter is contributing to make Columbus, Phenix City and Ft. Benning a better place to live and work for benefit of the soldiers and citizens of the tri-community.

The local chapter has sponsored ROTC scholarships, and rifle and drill team competition for ROTC units from throughout the Southeast. The chapter recognizes these cadets for their academic achievements and presents them with decorations.

Soldiers at Ft. Benning receive AUSA plaques, certificates and U. S. Savings Bonds for distinguished performances and honorary membership certificates are given to Allied students. The chapter also works with the Jaycees, Kiwanis Club, Salvation Army, VFW and other local organizations.

Fund raising events organized by the local chapter include the annual picnic, and the George Washington Birthday Ball.

197th making ticket sales big success

Ticket sales for the annual 4th of July carnival are climbing toward this year's objective and the 197th Inf Bde is doing its part to make sure the campaign is a success.

Brigade soldiers have sold over fifteen (15) thousand tickets, the proceeds of which will go to support the Youth Activities Program; the Army Community Service welfare and service programs; the Dental Health Program for grade school students and handicapped children, and other miscellaneous welfare programs.

"We'll sell 100% of our objective," claimed 1LT Rick Timboe, brigade ticket sales project officer.

The brigade's 298th Signal Platoon has sold tickets amounting to nearly 300 percent of its original objective, selling 100 percent in the first 24 hours of the sales campaign. It is the second year in a row the platoon has exceeded its objective. "They're (298th) hardworking soldiers," explained Lt. Timboe. "They got out early and sold every ticket we gave them."

In addition, the brigade's 2nd Bn, 69th Armor, distinguished itself by being the first 197th battalion-size unit to sell 100% of its objective this year.

Last July, when new higher interest rates were authorized by Federal regulations, CB&T was the only local bank to pay their customers the new higher rate automatically.

ROTC Rangers learn contact fighting and secret recipe for "Ranger Stew"

The Marquis of Queensbury would have been shocked if he had visited the ROTC Ranger Class 10-74 last week.

The Ranger students were studying the art of self-defense, otherwise known as "hand-to-hand combat." The good Marquis' code of gentlemanly conduct were distinctly absent. After learning how to fall, to minimize training injuries, the cadets were taught how to disable an enemy in an unarmed combat situation.

Last week's training included instruction in analyzing terrain and the proper use of map and compass as an introduction to the art of land navigation. In a combat environment, Rangers conduct long-range patrols in unfamiliar and often enemy-occupied terrain. Therefore, a thorough knowledge of how to determine his own location, the location of his objective and the quickest and safest route between the two, is of utmost importance to every Ranger.

The ROTC Ranger students moved to Camp Darby on June 20, where they were given instruction in setting up a bivouac and in living off the land.

"Anything that creeps, crawls, walks, swims or flies is a potential meal for a Ranger," the instructor, SSG Colin Hall, informed the cadets. Then he initiated the cadets in the preparation of "Ranger Stew," the recipe for which is a closely-guarded secret. The cadets put the instruction to a practical test that evening by preparing their own dinners from what they could find in the field, just as they would in a survival situation.

Ranger sergeant celebrates special birthday

To the men of the Ranger Dept., SGT Joseph B. Wylie is special. He just celebrated his 21st birthday last week, and his parents and a few brothers and sisters came to Ft. Benning to be with him.

That doesn't sound like any big deal at all. But the young Ranger attended his party in a wheelchair; he was the victim of an automobile accident and will be in the wheelchair for several more months.

SGT Wylie entered the Army in June 1971. After basic training and AIT, he attended airborne training and now has more than 30 jumps to his credit. Following completion of the NCO School, he "looked for another challenge" and found it in Ranger training which suited him so well that he was selected to become an instructor, in which capacity he served from October 1972 until his accident this February. But SGT Wylie's injuries did not result from his strenuous military career. Indeed the worst, and only, injury that he received in the course of his duties were some torn ligaments in his ankle. SGT Wylie, who use to regularly jump from a 50-foot high wire into Victory Pond during the "Rangers in Action" demonstrations, was injured while parked on the side of the highway fixing the fan belt on his car.

As he was getting some tools from his trunk, SGT Wylie was struck by another auto pinned between the cars and his legs thoroughly smashed. In spite of the pain from three compound fractures and other injuries including being impaled by the hood ornament of the car that struck him, SGT Wylie not only remained conscious but gave instructions for his own first aid.

The medical attendants on the helicopter that flew SGT Wylie to the hospital shook their heads. It was obvious then that the extent of his injuries meant that the youthful Ranger would not survive. They are probably still shaking their heads because what is obvious now is that SGT Wylie will do more than just survive. He intends to meet this new challenge, overcome his injury and return to duty in the unit of which he is a part.

"He's a spunky little fellow," explained his first sergeant, "and we want him back."

As for endurance, motivation, and courage that he will need — well, it's all part of being a "ranger." And any help his buddies can give he will certainly get, that's also part of being a "ranger."

Military dogs used in Airborne FTX

The Military Dog Detachment (MDD) of the 1st Bn, 29th Inf (PIONEERS), TSB, journeyed recently to Ft. Bragg, North Carolina in support of an 82nd Airborne Field Training Exercise (FTX).

The dogs were used in a simulated tactical environment for various maneuvers on the FTX. The PIONEER dogs were employed to give early silent warning on patrol type actions and they were used on outpost duty. If an enemy approached the outpost, the dogs gave an early silent warning, enabling the aggressors to be captured.

The Tracker Dog team of the Military Dog Detachment, headed by SSG Donnie Jones, deployed their tracker dogs on several occasions for the FTX. When contact was made with the guerrilla forces, and they were subsequently allowed to escape, the dogs tracked the guerrillas to their landing zone. Indirect fire was then called in, and the guerrillas were captured.

Early silent warning was the key to the success of the mission, and the PIONEER canines proved their worth. In one simulated combat mission, the tracker dog team successfully assisted in the capture and complete disorganization of an entire company-sized element.

The employment of the dogs from the Military Dog Detachment of the 1/29th Inf was a total success, according to MDD commander 2LT Larry Wortzel. As a result of the PIONEERS' performance, it is anticipated that military dogs will be included in most of the XVIII large scale FTXs in the future.

In addition to the training exercise, the Tracker Dog Team of the MDD also took place in a real life tracking mission. At the request of Ft. Bragg military investigators, the tracker dogs were deployed to assist the MPs in an actual case.

Following an armed robbery behind the 1st Bde/82nd Headquarters, SSG Jones and SP4 Day were put on track with their dogs, along with Ft. Bragg MPs as covermen.

They established track and pursued the quarry through a wooded area whereupon the military police arrested four persons. The dogs re-established track and continued through the woods until a fifth suspect was discovered and taken into custody in connection with the robbery.

LT Larry Wortzel said, "The MPs were extremely grateful to the detachment for our assistance. It was obvious that everyone was impressed with our dogs."

Felix, one of the multi-purpose canines of the Military Dog Detachment of the 1/29th Inf (PIONEERS) prepares to start a track. Dogs from the MDD recently assisted Ft. Bragg, North Carolina MPs in the apprehension of a suspected armed robber. (Photo by Rick Wasser)

Ole Doc sez:

Have fun at the parade but watch for sunburn

Howdy, Bub. Now that the sun is so intense, it pays a body to be careful when he's outside these days.

I member last year when Billy Bob got a case of sunburn that woulda toppled an elephant when he wuz over-exposed durin' our annual Fourth of July celebration. Me an' Billy Bob always dress up like Uncle Sam, an' march at the front of the parade.

By the time we have gone two blocks, the alignment of the marchers is all shot to pieces. Winslow Orson Armbruster, the American Legion president, gets so mad at Billy Bob you can hear him mutterin' three ranks back.

The parade usually breaks up then, three blocks from where we started. Everbody jes' quits marchin', an' walks on the sidewalk to City Hall for the speechifyin'.

It always turns out that 'bout the time the mayor gets to the meat of his speech, Billy Bob shows up; knees still reachin' for his chin, ayellin' at folks he knows, an' kickin' at the dogs nipin' at his ankles. This is usually the last straw for Winslow Orson, an' he starts screamin' at Billy Bob to hesh up, an' listen to the mayor.

Billy Bob gets mad, an' throws his hat on the ground. When the hat hits the pavement, Winslow swings at Billy Bob, an' the next thing anybody knows, we is all swingin' on everbody else. The mayor raises his voice, but still, nobody can hear him, an' the bandmaster, thinkin' the speechin' is over, has the band break into, The Stars an' Stripes, Forever.

By the time the band is into the second stanza, the fight had spread all over the square. When the fight wuz over, Billy Bob's clothes wuz 'most torn offen him.

He didn't pay that no never mind, an' beganst to enter the moonpie eatin' contest, the horse shoe tossin' finals, the gunny bag race, the soft ball game, an' the square dancin' marathon, all the time with jes' his red, white, an' blue trousers on in the hot sun.

At fireworks time, Billy Bob wuz aglowin' like a firefly in love. I grabbed ahold of him, an' took him over to my office, an' proceeded to grease down his burns, get some fluids an' aspirin into him. Next day Billy Bob growed out some blisters, an' wuz sicker than the fella that won the watermelon eatin' contest, but he got better in a few more days.

I spect that you folks will be more careful than Billy Bob wuz last year, an' show some respect for Mr. Sun on yore outins.

Good health to you and yours.

Spend Fourth at Benning Carnival

By Susanne Bestfick

What's the best way for a soldier and his family to spend the Fourth of July? Come to the Independence Day Carnival at Fort Benning!

Highlights of the day will be a parade, the Miss Fort Benning beauty pageant, a Battle of the Bands, and a fireworks display at the end of the day.

The kickoff for all the activities will be at 11 a.m., when the opening ceremony will take place on York Field in front of Infantry Hall. A parade with all of Fort Benning's major units will be featured. The 283rd Army Field Band will furnish music for the parade.

The 197th Infantry Brigade, the 38th Engineer Group, the 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry, the 34th Medical Battalion, the 145th Aviation Battalion, and the WAC Company, representing Headquarters command, will all march in the parade.

A 50-gun Salute to the nation will be fired after the parade, and a fly-by of military aircraft and the first sky-diving demonstration of the day will close the opening ceremony. More sky-diving demonstrations will be held on Eubanks Field every hour during the day.

A midway with games such as the popular "Girl Dunk" booth will open after the ceremony on Eubanks Field. Children, teenagers and adults will enjoy the chance to win prizes at these games of skill and chance.

For the youngsters, there will be rides on military vehicles, as well as the buddy seats, the junior jump towers, and the kiddie jump towers on Eubanks Field.

Food, drinks and balloons for the kids will be on sale all day. This year, for the first time ever, there will be an antique automobile display and a flea market.

The antique automobile display, sponsored by MEDDAC, will feature a 1949 Packard, a 1957 Cadillac El Dorado, a 1936 Cadillac, and a 1960 Sprite, among other cars.

At the flea market, sponsored by the 34th Medical Battalion, items ranging from a TV set to a barbecue grill will be on sale. The market will be open from 12 noon to 6 p.m. on Eubanks Field. Proceeds will go to the Youth Activities Program, ACS welfare and service programs, the school Dental Health Program, and other welfare programs.

Another added attraction at this year's Carnival will be a fishing tournament at Russ Pond. Entry fee is $2.00, and anyone who would like to pre-register for the tournament should call CPT Waller at 545-3232.

The Retirement Services Office will have a walk-in booth in Classroom 52, Infantry Hall. The booth will be open from 11 a.m. to 6:30 p.m. Representatives from the Social Security Administration, the Veterans Administration, CHAMPUS, and the Retired Officers and Enlisted Councils will be on hand to answer questions that retirees may have.

At 1 p.m., a beauty pageant will be held in Marshall Auditorium to decide who will be the new Miss Fort Benning. The winner and first and second runners-up will receive cash prizes of $100, $75 and $50.

Kit Smothers, Miss Fort Benning 1973, will crown the winner. Contestants will be judged on the basis of beauty and poise in evening gown and swimsuit competition, and will be asked one impromptu question each.

At 3 p.m. a talent contest will be held. Talent acts of all types, including ballet and modern dances and gospel singing, will compete for cash prizes of $100, $75, and $50. The contest will be held in Marshall Auditorium.

At 5 p.m. the Battle of the Bands will begin, with bands from all over the Chattanooga Valley competing for cash prizes of $200, $100, and $75. Each band will perform for 12 minutes, and will be judged on showmanship, originality, and selection of material.

At 8 p.m. the 283rd Army Field Band will give a concert, and the final sky-diving exhibition of the day will take place. The grand finale will be a 45-minute fireworks display. It's a fun-filled, safe way to spend your holiday, so don't miss it!

34th Med plans first aid station for carnival headaches, scrapes

The Fourth of July Carnival — another day of games, rides, hotdogs, soft drinks, cotton candy and fun, will soon be here.

Unfortunately, along with the fun, comes the headaches, scrapes and upset stomachs. What are you going to do if your head and stomach start going in circles?

No reason to get uptight. The 34th Med Bn is thinking about you. An aid station will be set up in Classroom 59, at Infantry Hall. There will be a team of medics from the 2d Evacuation Hospital and the 546th Med Co. Throughout the day, personnel from these two companies will be available just in case you start feeling dizzy or that scrape on the knee starts to bleed.

Ambulances with aidmen from the 690th Med Co will be stationed throughout the carnival area in case you can't make it inside.

And when you are feeling better (or anytime, for that matter) come on over to the flea market, sponsored by the 34th and located on Eubanks Field. A variety of items will be on hand for sale at economical prices. Items at the market include a television, an air-conditioner, toys, games, and plenty of good clothes. The flea market will be operating from noon to 7 p.m. You won't want to miss it.

"I'm taking it one hitch at a time."

Although SP/5 Richard M. Draper has only been in the Army for five years, he has his own idea of what it means to be a careerist. "To me, that's a guy who stays in the Army because he likes what he's doing, and not because he's afraid of what it might be like somewhere else."

"One of the things I like about the Army is the opportunity you have to try out new ideas. You know, you're given the responsibility to get a certain job done, but you can be inventive."

"I like to try out new jobs, too. In fact, I've just parked my truck (my primary MOS is Heavy Equipment Operation and Repair) and I'm training to be a Hometown Recruiter."

"So as long as I'm happy with what I'm doing I'm not going to worry about the future. I'm taking it one hitch at a time."

Today's Army gets better every time a good man reenlists.

The ladies beat the Gang

By George Korda

You've come a long way baby! All you women's libbers can be proud that the TSB ladies softball team did what so many people really didn't expect them to do. They beat the TSB Over-the-Hill Gang 10-8 June 20 at Golden Park.

From the opening pitch the ladies came out swinging. Surprise was carved on the faces of the dumbfounded males of the Gang as the ladies team played like a group of seasoned professionals.

Tammy Thompson snaked a single to open the game. Pat Cagle moved her to third on a single. Constance Pierce grounded to third, and Cagle was thrown out at second, but Thompson scored. Kathy Craig then drove in a run on a single. Yvonne Font bounced to third, but the throw to first got by the 1st baseman, LTC William Duncan, Commander of the 5th Stu Bn. Font moved to second and Craig to third. Joanne Carson also bounced to 3d. And this time the throw was good, and there were two outs. Queenie Washington promptly rapped a double scoring two runs. Pinky Houser grounded out, ending the inning.

The men's team's first time at bat gave an indication of hard times ahead. CPT William Sweeney, Commander of HHC, TSB singled. CSM Guy Sullivan drove him in, and ISG Plutarco Font of HHC knocked in CSM Sullivan. LTC Paul F. Somerville, TSB DCO, flied out to right fielder Iris Vereen. ISG Font tagged up at second and advanced to third.

Then came the play of the evening. LTC Duncan lofted a fly into short center field. Yvonne Font, ISG Font's daughter, was playing deep. Seeing it would fall short she raced in at top speed, and at the last second caught the ball just at her shoetops. ISG Font tagged up at third and scored — or so he thought; Ivonne alertly threw to third base. Third baseman Cagle tagged the base and ISG Font was out. The umpire ruled he had left the base too soon, and the double play ended the inning. The score read 6-2.

The throw from the outfield to catcher LTC Donald Lunday is just a split second late to stop Kathy Craig of the TSB Women's softball team from scoring. The TSB ladies beat the TSB Over-the-Hill Gang June 21 at Golden Park. (PHOTO BY GEORGE KORDA)

In their second inning at the plate the women's team scored four runs, helped by four walks given up by Gang pitcher MAJ David Pope. In the bottom of the second inning the Gang came to life. With a runner on first LTC Donald Lunday bounced to the pitcher. Constance Pierce threw wildly to second and the runner scored. LTC Lunday later scored on a sacrifice fly. They went on to score three more runs, cutting the women's lead to 10-7. The top of the third saw the women send three hitters to the plate for three quick outs. Now time was a factor. Would the Over the Hill Gang be able to score 4 runs to win the game before the official time limit came? The answer was obviously no. With one out, one run scored and the tying run at the plate, the time limit came, and women were declared victors over the males.

Visions of NASCAR circuit loom for artilleryman

SP5 John Evertt, HHB, 2nd Bn, 10th FA, 197th Inf Bde, poses next to his '56 Chevrolet stock car. Evertt races number 9 in the A cadet class every Saturday night at East Alabama Motor Speedway, eight miles west of Phenix City on Highway 80. (Photo by Bob Sneed.)

By BOB THOMAS
SP5 John Evertt, HHB, 2nd Bn, 10th FA, 197th Inf Bde, may not be another Anthony Joseph Foyt, but his avocation of racing stock cars could lead him down the same road to success.

"I guess you have to be a certain type of person to enjoy it," Evertt explained. "It's the challenge of trying to beat the other guy. I guess it's in my blood."

The 21-year-old works in the fire direction control section of his battalion. He has been racing for five years and plans to continue when he leaves the Army.

"I'd like to make it a living," Evertt confessed. "Eventually I'd like to drive the NASCAR Grand National circuit, which is the ultimate in stock car racing."

A native of Charleston, S. C., Evertt raced at Summerville Speedway in Myrtle Beach for two years before enlisting. "I was working at a garage that sponsored a car," he said. "That was my first real exposure to the sport. I spent a lot of time working on their car and eventually I got to drive."

Evertt does all the work on his car now, '56 Chevrolet he races in the A Cadet class at East Alabama Motor Speedway, located on Highway 80, eight miles west of Phenix City.

Many people think racing is dangerous and unsafe but Evertt disagrees. "I know I am a lot more careful on the street now than I was before I started racing," he pointed out. "I get racing out of my system on the track, where — believe it or not — it is a lot safer."

Although Evertt has never been injured in pursuit of his hobby, he has flipped twice in the last two years. "I totaled out both cars," he said. "That is expensive. If it were not for my sponsor, I'd never be able to race."

Because of the two accidents, Evertt is a believer in safety equipment both on and off the track.

"My race car is equipped with a roll cage and safety harness, similar to those used in aircraft," he explained. "It is really quite safe although you get bumped around a lot if you flip."

"On the street I always use a seat belt. I have seen, and experienced what they can do."

This former pro now in TSB softball league

By GEORGE KORDA

The ball approaches the plate on a slight arc toward the waiting hitter. Cocked and ready, the bat suddenly whips around, driving the small white sphere into the farthest reaches of the outfield for a home run. As SFC Lloyd Hutchinson of 11th Co, 1st Bn, TSB rounds the bases, he does it with the easy assurance of a man who has taken this trip many times before.

When he plants his 6-foot 1-inch 218-pound frame into a pitch it takes off like a shot out of a cannon. Currently he's hitting .736 with 28 hits in 38 at-bats. He's blasted 6 home runs while leading his Weapons Department team to an 8-1 record in the TSB League.

His baseball career runs the distance from Army slow pitch softball to professional baseball in the Boston Red Sox organization.

He began his career in American Legion baseball in 1957. One of his biggest thrills came as an American Legion player when he was invited to a Red Sox trout game at Fenway Park in Boston.

"Every year the Red Sox scouts would go through the New England area inviting prospects to play at Fenway Park in the Hearst Newspaper Classic," explained SFC Hutchinson. "This brought together the top young players in the area to be evaluated in an actual game. Of 250 players who tried out in my hometown alone, only 3 of us were picked."

The Red Sox were impressed enough with his ability as a catcher to assign him to their Pittsfield, Mass. Minor League team. He played for two years, but had to leave pro baseball because of torn ligaments in his throwing arm.

He played Fast Pitch softball from 1963 to 1968 in his home state of New Hampshire. His team won five state titles in that six-year period. He never batted lower than .310. His best year was 1967, when he hit .375 with 15 home runs in 40 games.

In 1968 he came on active duty and played the 1970 season at Ft. Bragg. In 1971 he went to Vietnam, and was named Most Valuable Player in the MR-1 and USARV tournaments as a first baseman.

Assigned to Ft. Benning since May 1972, he's been playing slow pitch softball each season. He hit .625 All Army slow pitch with 11 home runs last softball team," he said. If year, and is off to a great start this year. "I've put in an application to play for the soon.

July 4 fishing contest is open to everyone

By BILL KLOEB

Last weeks column indicated that the Fourth of July Fishing Contest would be limited to youngsters under 16 years of age. That was wrong. The contest is open to EVERYONE. The only requirements are that children under 16 years be accompanied by an adult and everyone have a stub showing that he or she has paid the $2 entry fee. The proceeds go to the carnival fund. Even the requirement for a post fishing permit will be waived for the Russ Pond-Pool complex for the day of the contest.

Registration
Those who want to avoid the possibility of losing fishing time because of a line waiting to register may pre-register at the Rod and Gun Club, Victory Lodge, or in Room 136, Bldg. 35. Registration may be made at the Russ Pond spillway all day of the Fourth with a cutoff set for 5 p.m.

Plenty of Prizes
The contest will start at 8 a.m. and end at 6 p.m. Prizes will be awarded at the Pool Shelter immediately after the contest closes.

Prizes will be awarded for the three largest bream, catfish and roughfish. As of now only first place prizes have been determined. They are an 8x10 tent for the largest catfish, three cots and sleeping bags for the largest bream and a rubber raft for the largest roughfish.

All fish caught must be registered with the judges located at the pool spillway. Be sure to register a fish of some kind during the day. At the close of the contest a drawing will be held. Some lucky fisherman will receive a consolation prize. The winner of this prize must be present at the time of the drawing. Those who win prizes for the largest fish need not be present to pick up these prizes.

If you have any questions concerning the contest call 545-3232 or watch the Ridley Bell Sportsmans Lodge Television Program on WRBR-TV-3 tomorrow at 6 p.m. CPTs Tom Waller, DFAE and Fred Aranow, chairman of the Rod and Gun Club Fishing Committee, project officers for the contest will provide complete details concerning rules of the contest. CPT Aronow will also have some interesting information on current activities of the Rod and Gun Club.

Co. A dominates Yellow division

Co. A, 1/29th Inf (PIONEERS) continued to dominate the Yellow Division of the TSB softball league with a narrow 6-4 victory over Hq and Spt Co of the 1/29th.

Larry Tidwell's two-run homer in the sixth inning proved to be the deciding factor in the hard-fought contest. Co A slugging star Danny Keith went 3 for 3 at the plate despite his fractured left wrist.

Although the Co A Mechanized Infantrymen led throughout the contest, the Hq clerks threatened to take over early in the game with five consecutive hits. Steve Williams, who has four for four at the plate, led the attack with a ground-rule double.

The Hq & Spt Co rally was quickly stopped, however, as Tim DeBey of Co A threw out two men at home plate from his position at centerfield. Co A, who upped their record to 8-0 in the PIONEER league, dropped Hq Co to fourth place in the Yellow Division with a 2-4 win-loss record.

In their second game of the week, the Mechanized Infantrymen of Co A racked up still another victory; their victims this time were the Co C Rangers.

Danny Keith's seventh homerun ignited a four-run first inning and Willie Thames knocked in two runs as the Co A team bombed the Rangers, 12-6.

Keith, who is known as the "Babe Ruth of the PIONEERS," also knocked in his 32nd RBI, and upped his season batting average to .791, all the while still recovering from a fractured left wrist.

Other Co A players contributing to the over-all victory over the Rangers were William Smith, 2 for 3/7th trains on 50 cal ring-mount

"Hold it on the road! Quick swing the gun over to the left!" were orders shouted by SP6 Harry Donnelly to the 2½-ton truck driver, SP4 Michael D. Dillon, and the gunner for the 50-caliber machine gun, PVT Rudi Richardson, as soldiers of HHC 3rd Bn, 7th Inf, 197th Inf Bde participated in 50-cal machine gun ring-mount training last week.

"The purpose of the training is to insure each individual soldier that is associated with the 50-cal machine gun is completely familiar with the techniques of firing and solving stoppages of the weapon. They will be able to engage air or ground targets at an opportune time. This gives protection to the vehicle or convoy," commented MAJ William J. Windham, the S-3 for the 3/7th.

All this and the lowest sticker price in America. $2299.*

CYO summer camp at Ft. Benning

The Columbus Youth Opportunity summer camp for local boys and girls is underway for a third year at Ft. Benning. The camp is jointly sponsored by Ft. Benning and the CYO program. The first session of camp began June 17. Fifty boys and fifty girls will arrive by bus each Monday morning until August 12, and will stay for one week each. The last group will go home August 17. The director of the camp is Bro. Claude Pritchett, and the CYO program director is Col (Ret.) Jesse Wheeler. The boys' camp is called Summer Action Maneuvers (SAMs). Its director is Mr. James H. Patrick. Mrs. Thelma Anderson is director of the girls' camp, called the Powder Puffs. The boys and girls will participate in swimming and organized games at the Harmony Church Pool and Field House. They will visit the Infantry Museum and go fishing at King's Pond. There will also be a picnic for them at the USAIC recreation area.

Contests will be held in swimming, diving and track. Awards will be given on Friday of each week in these areas, as well as an award for best boy camper and best girl camper. The campers will live at Harmony Church, and will be supervised by a staff of counselors from the Columbus Youth Opportunity Program. CYO and Ft. Benning are cooperating to provide lodging transportation, and meals for the camp.

Six men roll down the river

By George Korda

"Rollin on the river" is the best way to describe the team of six men assigned to the 2nd Ranger Co., TSB who paddled their way almost 300 miles down the Chattahoochee River from June 17 to June 24. 2LT Danny McKnight, Executive Officer of the 2nd Ranger Co., SGT Ronald A. Gigler, SGT Mike Wolfe, PFC Mark Rozycki, and PVT Larry Ertz-bischoff left the Mountain Ranger Camp at Dahlonga, Ga. an eager, excited crew, but pulled in at the landing behind the USAIS small animal cemetery a tired, hungry group of soldiers anxious to go home.

This is not to say that they didn't enjoy their experience, as it is something none of them had done before. "It was long and tough, but we learned a lot on the trip," said LT McKnight.

Their days began around 7 a.m. Normal quitting time was about 7 p.m., but once they rowed until 4 a.m., and a second time until 3 a.m. "We had a few long nights because of problems we'd run into during the day," LT McKnight said.

When they stopped the first night out, trouble struck. "We had all our equipment unpacked and were just getting ready to eat when the landscape started changing," said LT McKnight. "It took us a minute to realize that our camp was about to float away. They had opened Buford dam and the river was rising. When we got everything thrown into the rafts we paddled for another hour and a half before we found another campground," he said.

None of the problems with snakes and animals that were anticipated actually took place. But they did have an amusing incident when SGT Wolfe thought he was being attacked. LT McKnight explained "We were going down the river and Wolfe was hanging his leg over the side of the raft. All of a sudden he started hollering that a snake had grabbed his leg. He jerked it out of the water so hard and so fast he fell over the other side into the water."

The toughest part of the journey came when they reached big Lake Hardin. "That thing is huge, and had absolutely no current. The wind was against us so we had to paddle like crazy just to keep from going backwards," LT McKnight groaned.

A general consensus of the group agreed that running the rapids was the most exciting part of the trip. One rapid they crossed turned one of the rafts sideways, and they lost some equipment and a paddle.

"The people we met on the way were all very friendly, and really went out of their way to help us," said LT McKnight. "All things considered though, I don't think we'll be doing it again any time soon."

Danny McKnight, Mark L. Rozycki, and Paul T. Bailey are cruising down the Chattahoochee in their heavily loaded raft just a few miles short of

AUSA drive nets 360 new members

"Numbers add up—having the largest Association of the United States Army (AUSA) chapter here in Columbus adds a lot to the effectiveness of what the AUSA can do for you and the Army."

That's what Mr. Charles Black, associate editor of the Columbus Enquirer, had to say to officers and NCOs of the 197th Inf Bde back in April.

The annual AUSA membership drive was kicked off that same day, and at the drive's close, the 197th Inf Bde boasts a great many new members.

"Results of the drive were favorable, the brigade had over 360 officers and enlisted men join AUSA during the drive," reports MAJ Paul R. Flebotte, coordinator of the 197th Inf Bde membership drive.

The drive was promoted in the brigade by programs such as Mr. Black's speech, but mostly by soldiers within the brigade.

"AUSA members in the 197th presented the AUSA story to the brigade in an effort to get new members," added MAJ Flebotte.

The brigade emphasized the role of all military persons in supporting the AUSA's primary objectives of promoting national defense, the Army and the welfare of members of the Army.

"It is an organization for the professional," said MAJ Flebotte. "It is not an organization directed toward just officers or NCOs, but all professional soldiers."

Cannoneers prepare for ORT

In preparation for their upcoming operational readiness test (ORT), the artillerymen of B Btry, 2nd Bn, 10th FA, 197th Inf Bde combined three unique forms of training into one exercise at Concord Observation Post.

The cannoneers tested their ability with direct fire missions while forward observers gained practice of directing the fire missions from the air. Regular fire missions were also carried out toward targets in an impact area within sight of the gun crews.

"Normally the men never see their rounds hit," explained CPT Larry Aaron, battery commander. "Being able to see the round either hit or miss the target instills an incentive for accuracy," he said.

After completing several fire missions, the gun crews fired a mission with an intentional error. Because they were able to see the rounds, they were given a visual lesson in the importance of accuracy. "It is more fun when you can see what you hit," explained PVT Terry Sanders, who has been in the 197th Inf Bde for three months. "We fired direct fire once in AIT at Ft. Sill. That was the only other time I ever practiced that technique."

Direct fire involves cranking the gun tube down and firing directly at the target, as opposed to normal artillery fire which has a high arc. Direct fire of artillery is generally only used in emergencies but is an important part of artillery training.

"I've done it five or six times," stated PFC Thomas Wreford in reference to direct fire. "You always hear stories about artillery units using direct fire in close combat. It is a good thing to know how to do well."

"Direct fire is new to many of my men," explained section chief SGT Earl Harris. "They are looking forward to it because it is different."

Concord Observation Post is the only location on Ft. Benning where direct fire missions can be carried out. The unit took advantage of the unique location to fire indirect fire missions and observe the rounds.

34th Med Bn cops 1st place in carnival ticket sales

The 34th Med Bn led the way in the Fourth of July carnival ticket sales this year.

July 5 declared a holiday

The Department of the Army has declared Friday, July 5, a holiday for military personnel. This was done to "recognize the outstanding efforts by all the Army, both military and civilian, in meeting the June 1974 recruiting goal."

Another reason for the holiday was to "recognize the great strides the Army has made in improving combat readiness, morale and discipline" during the past year.

All commanders have been encouraged to grant leaves or passes for military personnel whenever possible, and to grant annual leave to civilian employees who request it.

The battalion had been declared the winner after selling 120 per cent of their goal — making them the highest percentage seller on post.

Highest percentage sales in the battalion came from the 690th Med Co with over 300 per cent. SFC Leon E. Dantzier and SSG Pat Reed were top sellers in the company, having sold over 60 per cent of the company's goal.

Dantzier sold 95 books himself and attributes that to his great ability to sell. "I work part time at the Ft. Benning Mall and once I mentioned all the great benefits it was a cinch. I also mentioned how successful last year's carnival went. It was my soft touch sales pitch that did it," Dantzier said.

Hq Det topped their goal by selling 140 per cent. Top ticket sales came from 1LT John M. Fogarty.

The 546th Med Co sold all their tickets to make 100 percent. SGT George N. Williams was their highest ticket seller.

"Some of the tickets were sold in the company but most were sold at the Ft. Benning Mall," said Williams. "I'm a pretty good talker which made it a lot easier for me. They just couldn't resist my sales pitch," he added.

The 498th Medical Company also sold all their tickets giving them a 100 per cent.

"I am extremely pleased with the enthusiasm that was exhibited by members of the 34th Med Bn in the sale of the carnival tickets. My personal thanks to all who contributed to our great success," said LTC Jerry D.Hahn, battalion commander.

Spokane reservists conclude 2 weeks training with 197th

The 1st Bn Mech, 161st Inf of the Washington State National Guard concluded its two weeks of annual training at Ft. Benning with a two-day Field Training Exercise (FTX) June 26 and 27 which was conducted by the 197th Inf Bde.

The three phase FTX provided movement, defense and offense training for the Spokane based National Guard unit. The exercise began with the 1st Bn, 161st Inf being attached to the 197th Inf Bde on June 25. The following day the battalion conducted a tactical movement to occupy a portion of the brigade's defensive sector. The battalion subsequently occupied and prepared its defensive sector and successfully defended against aggressor attacks.

The next day, June 27, the battalion took the offensive, attacking the aggressor and seizing its assigned objectives from the aggressor force provided by Trp A, 15th Cav.

"We looked forward to our training at Ft. Benning," said LTC Carl E. Chandler, the commander of the National Guard unit. "It has distinct advantages, operating in a new environment, in new terrain and in a climate unaccustomed to us. Also, having the 197th Inf Bde conduct our FTX tests our ability to perform our mission."

The 1st Bn Mech, 58th Inf (Patriots) was selected as the National Guard's host unit because of its similarity to the Guard unit. Both battalions are mechanized units using the armored personnel carrier as their prime tactical vehicle. The armored personnel carriers of the 1st Bn, 58th Inf were used by the Washington Guard unit during its summer training.

Supporting the 1st Bn, 161st Inf during the FTX were the 197th Spt Bn, providing administrative and logistical support; Co B, 2nd Bn, 69th Armor, providing armor support; elements of the 72nd Engr Co providing engineer support; an artillery liaison section and forward observers of the 2nd Bn, 10th FA; and the brigade's forward air control team and aviation section.

A control and evaluation team consisting of officers of the brigade, the Infantry School and the 9th Inf Div evaluated the National Guard unit's performance and provided a critique at the conclusion of the exercise. The 1st Bn, 161st Inf returned to Washington State on Saturday, June 29.

LTC G. Ordway III takes job as DCO

LTC Godwin Ordway III recently became deputy commander of the 197th Inf Bde as LTC Watha J. Eddins vacated the post to assume duties with the Infantry School.

LTC Ordway enlisted as a private in 1950 and was appointed to the U.S. Army Military Academy at West Point one year later. He comes to Ft. Benning and the 197th Inf Bde after serving a tour of duty with the Personnel Readiness Branch, Office of the Deputy Chief of Staff for Personnel, Hq., Dept. of the Army.

The new deputy commander is a veteran of two tours of duty in Vietnam. During his first tour in Vietnam he was an advisor. On his second tour he assumed command of the 2nd Bn, 7th Cav, 1st Cav Division, as a major and was subsequently promoted to his present grade while in command.

Among the decorations he has received are the Silver Star; Bronze Star with "V" device and one Oak Leaf Cluster; Meritorious Service Medal; and Legion of Merit.

LTC Eddins served as commander of the 2nd Bn, 69th Armor, 197th Inf Bde prior to assuming duties as the brigade's deputy commander in December 1973.

Dog Center recruiting German Shepherds

The Department of Defense Dog Center is recruiting for German Shepherds to be used as security and patrol dogs.

Minimum specifications are that the dog must have the dominant characteristics and features of the German Shepherd but does not have to be purebred or registered. Both males and females are acceptable. Females must be spayed 30 days before they are offered to the government. In addition, dogs must be 1-3 years of age; weigh at least 60 pounds; be at least 23 inches high at the shoulder and be any color except all white.

Dogs must also pass a strict medical and temperament examination.

If you own a dog meeting these specifications and requirements and desire to sell or donate the dog then write to Department of Defense Dog Center, Lackland AFB Texas 78236, and request a owner proposal and veterinary examination forms.

Upon receipt of the forms have the dog examined by a veterinarian of your choice. Examinations may be performed by a military veterinarian at Ft. Benning at no cost to the owner except for vaccines or medications.

Completed forms should be returned to the center as a complete package for final approval.

If the dog is approved for shipment to the Dog Center, a dog crate will be sent to the owner and the cost of shipping will be at government expense.

Dogs received at the Center will be given complete temperament and medical evaluations. The owners will be notified as to the final acceptance or rejection. The government will pay up to $150 for accepted dogs.

Army depot renamed for LTG Alvan Gillem

Ft. Gillem officially became the name of the former Atlanta Army Depot on June 28 in ceremonies held in honor of the late LTG Alvan C. Gillem Jr., father of LTC Richard D. Gillem, commander of the 3rd Bn, 7th Inf (Cottonbalers), 197th Inf Bde.

The new Ft. Gillem became a sub-post of Ft. McPherson with the ceremonies. Previously the depot was a part of the Army Materiel Command. The post was established in 1940 and moved to its present site in Forest Park, Clayton County, the following year.

LTG Gillem enlisted in the Army as a private in 1910. During his 40-year military career he rose to the rank of three stars before his retirement in 1950.

The new Ft. Gillem became a sub-post of Ft. McPherson with the ceremonies. Previously the depot was a part of the Army Materiel Command. The post was established in 1940 and moved to its present site in Forest Park, Clayton County, the following year.

1/29th on course for sunny California

It's "California, here I come," for twelve members of the Demonstration Platoon of Co D, 1st Bn, 29th Inf (PIONEERS) TSB.

The men, 2LT William Houck, SSG Fred Gosa, SGT James Brown, SGT Joseph Higgins, and specialists Ricky Calnes, James Rippey, David Vincent, Frank Rutherford, Gerald Fencher, Joseph Lowe, James Hinson, and Daniel DeYarmin were all selected on the basis of their unique membership in the Demonstration Platoon of the PIONEERS.

The Demonstration Platoon was conceived initially by TRADOC commander, GEN William DePuy, and is the heart of the Infantry School support. It is anticipated that men of this elite platoon will one day travel the world over, demonstrating Infantry tactics.

The twelve men that were selected for this California mission, will spend four days in sunny San Jose, demonstrating a brand new version of the Armored Personnel Carrier (APC). During the testing of the prototype MIC-V, the men will be filmed so the results can be visually evaluated at a later date, and possibly used as a training film.

In addition to actually testing this new vehicle, the Demonstration Platoon will be exhibiting the proper organization of a Mechanized Infantry squad — its proper dress, equipment, and deployment.

PSG Charles Jordan stated, "The men are really anxious to go on this commitment, and prove their worth. These men are the ultimate in teaching new Infantry tactics, straight-leg and mechanized."

Do you consider "lifer" a derogatory term?
What does the term "lifer" mean to you?

CPT WARREN HAUGIN
CO TACTICS CO. OPNS. DEPT

"No. I don't consider "lifer" a derogatory statement. A "lifer" is someone who is staying in the service."

SP5 J. YOUNG
POST VETERINARIAN

"No. It doesn't bother me a bit. I'm after that retirement check in twenty years, so I can relax. "Lifer" to me means a career soldier. "Lifer" is a state of mind; however, there are career soldiers who aren't "lifer", they harrass unnecessarily about haircuts, shoeshines — whatever."

SFC HERBERT ELLIOTT
B CO. 3/7TH INF

"Not necessarily. It's just the way the younger generation considers the career soldier. A "lifer" is someone in the Army to get twenty years where a true professional tries to obtain a goal."

SSG KARL HOFFMAN
MED HOLDING CO.
MARTIN ARMY HOSPITAL

"Yes. I ignore it. It depends on who uses it and how it is used. There are "lifera" — leeches doing as little as they can. Qualitative Management Program is not going to get them out. I tend to call people "lifer" myself — they put their workloads on others."

SFC LOUIS CHOMOR
MED CO MARTIN ARMY HOSPITAL
"No. I don't. I'm a twenty year man and I'm retiring soon. A lifer to me is someone who stays in over twenty years."

MAJ LELAND BRADSHAW
3287TH USAR SCHOOL

"No. I don't think it is derogatory. I think it's someone who is going to stay in prison for a lifetime, a convict. A career soldier, to me, is not a lifer; he is a professional not a lifer."

SSG SYLVESTER JONES
COMBAT SUPPORT CO. 1 BN 8TH INF

"Not necessarily a derogatory term. A "lifer" is a many trying to do twenty years of service not being concerned about the welfare of the military only about his welfare."

Moncrief named cook of the month

SP4 Francis Moncrief, Svc Btry, 2nd Bn, 10th FA, 187th Inf Bde, was named the Ft. Benning Cook of the Month for June.

Moncrief, a Macon native, worked as a supply clerk for a firm in Macon prior to enlisting.

Having served three of his five years in the Army with Svc Btry, this is the first time SP4 Moncrief has won such an honor.

"I enjoy my job and try to do the best I can," stated SP4 Moncrief. "Everybody in our dining facility works together and helps each other. By doing this things are lot easier on everyone concerned, including myself."

Listen before you leap . . . that voice in your ear may rip you off

By TED SMITH

(NOTE: This article was reprinted from the 10 May 1974 issue of the SENTINEL, Fort Hood. The names and telephone numbers used are fictitious.)

One night, a few weeks ago, I answered my phone to be greeted by a pleasant female voice asking me if I was 229-7343.

After informing the young lady that my name was Smith, but if she was speaking of my telephone, she had guessed right, we proceeded to exchange the usual "how-do-you-do's."

The young lady then told me that she was representing the Acme Research Company and wanted to know if I was familiar with a certain nationally published weekly magazine. After replying that I was, she proceeded to offer the same magazine to me "free of charge." Taken aback by the thought of a total stranger giving me anything, I listened as she finished reading her well-written presentation.

"That's right, sir, this magazine will be delivered to your home every week, and all that we ask is that you accept it and use it for your enjoyment."

Now, you're probably saying to yourself, What's the catch? "Well, there is no catch! This magazine will be yours absolutely FREE! How does that sound to you?"

Still astounded, my only reply was "great!" She went on.

"Now, along with this fantastic offer, we also ask that you take these other three magazines (she named off three nationally published monthlies) and all that we ask is that you pay the low service charge for delivery of a mere 55 cents per week."

The mention of money shocked me back into reality and I quickly calculated the cost to be $2.37 per month (there are 4.3 weeks in a month). Knowing that two of the magazines mentioned sold for 60 cents on the newsstand and the third for 75 cents, I also calculated that their cost was $1.95 per month. That meant that I would be paying 42 cents over the newsstand price for this "free offer." Something was wrong here. The young lady's voice returned.

"What address should we begin delivering your subscription to?"

My reply was that I could not now see where anything was free, but that I would be paying more for her offer than if I purchased these items at the newsstand. She insisted that it was free and tried to explain the system. We could not reach an agreement and I hung-up.

What was happening to me is an example of one of the many deceptive practices used to induce people into buying products they either do not want or do not need. Many salesmen get their foot in the door by informing the consumer that they are giving away "free merchandise," "gifts," "bonuses," or other such representations which tend to convey the impression that an article of merchandise or service is "free."

Although the Federal Trade Commission (FTC) has published guidelines to protect consumers from this type of practice, many sales firms continue to operate in complete disregard of the law. The FTC got into the act when, during the 1950's and 60's, thousands of families discovered that what had started out as an offer for a free set of encyclopedias ended up costing them hundreds of dollars merely because nothing was free at all. It's just not good business for companies to give their merchandise away but most people are conked into believing that theirs is a one-of-a-kind offer, the purpose of which is to introduce a new product into the area.

While there are both federal and state laws prohibiting this and other types of deceptive trade practices, the informed consumer is the only effective weapon against these unscrupulous companies. Since most products sold by these methods are ones the consumer neither needs nor wants, the salesman must use every trick in the book to break down the consumer's defense. Refusing to let these people into your home and hanging up the phone when they call are the best remedies available. Without being able to "bend the ear" of the consumer, these companies will be forced to market their product alongside others of a similar nature where the consumer has a real choice.

A gimmick employed by many of these slick sellers is for the salesman to represent that he is conducting a "survey" of some sort. The "survey" usually revolves around the product he is selling and the questions he asks tend to whet the consumer's appetite for what is to follow. If the consumer would just learn to recognize these "wolves in sheep's clothing," he could save himself a lot of time and temptation by asking the "researcher" to state his true objectives before he lets him in. If he then insists he only taking a survey and it later turns out that he is pushing some product or service, he is in violation of the law and should be reported to the Attorney General of Georgia and the FTC.

While there are both federal and state laws prohibiting this and other types of deceptive trade practices, the informed consumer is the only effective weapon against these unscrupulous companies. Since most products sold by these methods are ones the consumer neither needs nor wants, the salesman must use every trick in the book to break down the consumer's defense. Refusing to let these people into your home and hanging up the phone when they call are the best remedies available. Without being able to "bend the ear" of the consumer, these companies will be forced to market their product alongside others of a similar nature where the consumer has a real choice.

Women's role is expanding

By Chap. Sterling Wetherell

The roles of women in the armed services has expanded greatly in the last few years. The Army, which previously barred women from more than two-thirds of its jobs, now accepts women in all assignments except combat. Military jobs in unprecedented numbers and variety are being offered to women fresh from school. Women are repairing Air Force planes at Peterson Field, Colorado; operating radios in a ship in the Atlantic; and taking parachute training at Ft. Benning, Ga.

WAVE CPT Robin L. C. Quigley is responsible for the training of thousands of men and women. She is head of the Naval School Command in San Diego, Calif. Army MSG Agatha W. Davis is First Sergeant of an all-male student company of officers at the Aberdeen Proving Grounds, Md.

As an orbital analyst for the Air Force, 2LT Janette E. Barall keeps track of Russian satellites from an underground Fort in Colorado. LTC Nancy Hopfenspirger commands the 830-man Army Support District in Nurzburg, Germany. At Cherry Point Air Station, NC, Marine LTC Sally Ashland teaches pilots how to handle emergencies in an aircraft cockpit simulator.

Besides the Army's WACs, Women in the Air Force, the Navy WAVE's, and Women Marines, females serve in the Army, Navy, and Air Force nurse corps, and hold jobs as physicians, dentists, veterinarians, and other medical specialties. The Army and Air Force Nurse Corps both have a woman Brigadier General as their chiefs. The Navy also has a woman Admiral.

Military academies at West Point, Annapolis, and Colorado Springs are still off limits to women cadets but suits to change that have already been filed in federal courts. Despite the limitations, the work of women in jobs traditionally reserved for men has been so satisfactory that the services have begun re-examining positions to see where more women can be used.

In an Army engineering unit at Fort Belvoir, Va., for example, a previously all-male policy was bent to test two women. As a result, 20 more jobs as draftsmen and cartographers have been opened to women.

The Navy assignment of women, other than nurses, on the ship Sanctuary is regarded as a possible forerunner of women on other crews in the Navy. Of 64 women assigned to the Sanctuary, 2 are officers, 25 are deck hands, 12 are in ship service and supply, 21 serve as medical assistants or dental technicians, 3 are clerks and 1 is a radio operator. These are in addition to 3 Navy nurses already on board.

Authorities predict a gradual increase in the number of women in the services until they have roughly half of the total in service.

Ole Doc sez:

Save a trip to the emergency room

Howdy, Bub. Had a chat with one of my longtime regular patients the other day; I been atreatin' him for a fungus growth that he picked up when he was in the tropics durin' The Big War.

Well, anyway, he was sayin' that maybe the rest of the world thought that they was havin' an energy crisis, but he knew dogdam well that he was havin' one. Said he couldn't get up enough spunk, of late, to get up off the swing on the porch to answer the phone.

When I asked him iffen he wanted some vitamins so he could get free of that swing when Southeast Bell was ajanglin' his house; he said that iffen the missus would rattle up more greens and grits at mealtime, he'd be able to find out who was so all fired anxious to get ahold of him. I allowed that them greens sure couldn't hurt him none.

Y'know, working here at the hospital ain't what it's cracked up to be, let me tell ya. Why just the other day, I had so many duties an' was so busy, that I kept bumping into myself coming down the hall from the other way.

I was on call for my specialty, which means that I have to be available for twenty-four hours to take care of anybody that needed our brand of doctorin'. On top of that, I have sixteen patients in the hospital that I make rounds on everyday.

Let me tell you, Bub, all that minsterin' and medicatin' and treatin' takes a few minutes out of a fella's day. Now, this here is the zinger. I also had the Emergency Room duty, and Bub, I want to tell you that after gettin' up at 6:00 A.M. and drivin' to the hospital and alistenin' to cuzin Al, the only highpoint of my whole day; then seein' and treatin' my hospitalized patients all mornin', goin' and aseelin' and atreatin' twenty outpatients in my office all afternoon, then aseelin' and atreatin' fifty or sixty patients in the Emergency Room in the evening I like to have my own energy crisis.

Now, I don't want you folks to get me wrong; it's jus' that iffen we was seein' patients that really needed emergency doctorin', then a body couldn't complain, no sir. But dog nabit, the majority of those folks comin' in that Emergency Room in the evening coulda been doctored during the day at any one of our many doctor's offices, patient clinics, but no, they acome a sashshaing into the E.R. to be treated for some ole thing that coulda been treated and followed up by their own doctor, 'stead comin' to these ole bones that already had a full day behind him and was lookin' for his hightide water bed.

Lotsa folks coulda saved themselves a trip iffen they would've used their own home grown common sense. Seems like folks are gettin' too lazy to think, but can muster up the energy to get the ole man up off the couch to drive them all the way to the E.R. for a little reassurance 'bout things they already suspicioned. There's no accountin' for the way some folks think, no siree.

Well, Bub, that's all I got time for this outin', but I'll see ya next week.

Good health to you and yours.

JULY

ALONG THE FEMLINE

By Judy Jakubowski

My thanks to Jackie Robke for filling in for me last week while I was vacationing at Martin Army Hospital!!

OWC NEWCOMERS' COFFEE

Are you a newly arrived officer's wife at Ft. Benning? Would you like a free, fun-filled morning where you can meet other newcomers? Then the Newcomers' Coffee, sponsored by the Ft. Benning Officers' Wives' Club, is the place to be 10 a.m., July 10 at the OWC Lounge. If you plan to come, please call Sherry Standley, 689-6975, or Lib Williams, 689-7564.

OWC MEMBERSHIPS

Advance sale of the 1974-75 Officers' Wives' Club membership has begun! You may purchase your membership from Sue Smith for $3 at the OWC Lounge and at the OWC Newcomers' Coffee. These memberships are valid until Sept. 1975, and 1973-74

WHO, WHAT WHERE

NCOWC FAREWELL TEA

The ladies of the NCOWC met to honor the wife of the Post CSM Robert P. Kearines, with a Farewell Tea at the NCOWC Clubhouse. Hostesses were Mrs. Thurston Massey and Mrs. Cyril Robke. The Kearines are reassigned to Hawaii.

BBOD FAREWELL TEA

A Farewell Tea honoring Mrs. James T. Bramlett, wife of the Chief of Tactics Group, was given by the ladies of Tactics Group at the home of Mrs. John G. Hoas, Austin Loop, Ft. Benning. Hostesses were Mesdames Edward C. Kielkopf, Phillip A. Lee, John G. Hoas, and Clifford H. Burns. The Bramletts have been reassigned to the Army War College, Carlisle Barracks Pa.

The tea was also an occasion to welcome and introduce newcomers, Mrs. John M. Devitt, Mrs. William W. Hunter, and Mrs. William H. Kinard. Attending as special guests were Mrs. Jean G. Salvan, wife of the French Liaison Officer to USAIS, and Mrs. Michael S. Doyle, wife of the British Liaison Officer to USAIS.

2/10th FIELD ARTILLERY

The ladies of the 2/10th FA met for their monthly coffee in the OWC Lounge. After a short business meeting, Mrs. Allen L. Lewis was welcomed to the battalion. Farewells were bid to Mesdames Robert E. Bell Jr., Richard R. Noack, Edward F. Irick, Larry Hineline, Roosevelt Adams Jr., Michael D. Bellino and Jeffery C. Carter. Special guest of the evening was Mrs. William B. Steele.

"COTTONBALERS" COFFEE

The ladies of the 3rd Bn, 7th Inf held their monthly coffee at the home of Mrs. Richard D. Gillem, Miller Loop, Ft. Benning. Farewell was bid to Mrs. Graddy Spry and Mrs. Thomas Curtin.

HALL AND FAREWELL

The Cottonbalers held a game night Hall and Farewell at the Skeet Lodge. Everyone had a chance to try darts, memberships are valid until Sept. 1974. Avoid the rush and those long lines at the September Activities Sign-Up Tea and buy your membership before the tea. Any questions should be referred to Sue Smith, 687-9558.

CERAMIC STUDIO NEWS

This year the OWC ceramic studio has a new way to handle the OWC Christmas Bazaar pieces. Each OWC ceramic studio member is requested to donate the finished product that they sign up for in the bazaar book in the studio. These donations will include the pouring, firing and staining or glazing the complete piece.

If you haven't served your one hour a month either shopkeeping or firing, why not serve the time doing a bazaar piece? There will be stain workshops to help you with your projects, but the project will have to be poured, cleaned and bisqued beforehand.

Pat Harrison, the bazaar chairman for ceramics, hopes to have all pieces completed by Oct. 15.

fooseball, bridge, Monopoly and Risk.
LTC Richard Gillem welcomed Lt Barry Boyd, and bid farewell to CWO Irwin Davis.

NCOA AUXILIARY

The Followettes gave an old fashioned 4th of July party and celebration for the residents of Muscogee Manor in Columbus. Ice cream and cake was served to the elderly residents. The ice cream was donated by Farmbest Dairies. They enjoyed the music of Curly Money and the Jingles, who donated their time. Gifts of a useful variety were donated by the NCOA Follow Me Chapter and presented by the Followettes to the residents. The folks all enjoyed the old fashioned celebration.

PAN HELLENIC PARTY

There will be a Pan Hellenic Ice Cream Party Tues., July 9 at 2 p.m. at the quarters of Fran Sale, 101-D Madden Ave. Any one who would like to join the group and active members of college sororities are invited to attend. Please contact Patti Halstead, 689-7595 or Fran Sale, 689-1396, if you wish to attend.

OWC SUMMER ACTIVITIES

There are still a few classes yet to begin this summer:

NEEDLEWORK POTPOURRI begins July 12, call 687-8501.

CROCHET for teens and adults starts July 10, call 561-7847.

CAKE DECORATING for teens or adults begin July 8, call 689-0043.

MILL OUTLET FOR FAMOUS FIELDCREST PRODUCTS

The Bayonet, July 5, 1974

How to tell your friends you're reenlisting.

Sometimes a good man leaves the Army for a bad reason. Pressure. The kind he gets from some of the people around him.

We know that there isn't an army of cranks out there. But we also know that the few there are can make it tough on a guy who's trying to make an important decision.

So we've gathered together some of the more frequently heard gripes, complaints, harassments and put-downs. And we've put down the facts.

This way you'll have the answers the next time someone questions your decision to reenlist.

"They'll promise you anything to get you to reenlist." That's a big one. You hear it all the time. And the irony of it is, it's true. But not the way your buddies mean it.

First, you have to qualify for whatever it is you want to reenlist for. If you do, we put your choice in writing. Along with your own understanding of the agreement in your own handwriting. So there's no chance of misunderstanding each other.

Then, if something goes wrong, we make it right. Or you make tracks.

Here's another one. "Only guys who can't make it as civilians reenlist." Wrong again. The average reenlistee today is smarter, better trained and more highly motivated than ever before. With a better chance of making it, anywhere.

The fact is, he stays because he likes what he's doing. (We know the importance of job satisfaction, and we've been working on making the Army more responsive to the needs of the individual.)

The only way we'll keep a good man is to make him a good offer. So we've become more competitive. That way you get a better Army, and we get a better soldier.

"You'll never make big money in the Army." Maybe so. But how many people really make it big whatever they do for a living?

You will make a good salary, though. One that will go a lot farther when you consider that many of the best things of Army life are free, or much lower than in the civilian community.

So don't be fooled by pay comparisons. It's the things that you as an Army man won't have to pay for that really add up.

And then there's "The Army's ok if you're single." Perhaps we should be glad that the complainers concede that much. But this statement implies that it's not ok for a family man.

We say, ask one. We think you'll find that Army benefits for your family are outstanding. Benefits that go beyond the savings at the commissary. Benefits that grow with your family.

We like to think of today's Army as a family as responsive to the needs of your family as we would be to our own.

And last but not least: "What are you, a Lifer?" This one has been floating around for a long time. So we'd like to set the record straight, and see what a "Lifer" really is.

In today's Army, he's a man who's living his own life. Making his own decisions.

He's a man who wants and works for the good life. For himself. And for his family.

He's a man who realizes that the Army asks for an extra degree of dedication, over and above normal job loyalty.

He's a man who enjoys in return that unique sense of pride that comes from serving one's country.

If that's the way you feel, talk it over with your Career Counselor. He'll also be able to help you deal with any other discouraging words you may hear. He's a "Lifer," too.

Today's Army gets better every time a good man reenlists.

ROTC Ranger cadets met the "Queen of Camp Darby"

by William De Vita

The 190 ROTC Ranger cadets of class 10-74 had a "date" last Thursday with the "Queen of Camp Darby."

"The "Queen" as the saying goes "is no lady"; in fact she is an obstacle course—an obstacle course "Ranger style."

The students began the course by scaling a log wall, low-crawling through a corrugated pipe and using a combination of climbing and diving to negotiate another log obstacle. After crossing a stream bed via a two cable bridge, there was another log obstacle, which resembled a ladder tilted at about 45 degrees with the "rungs" about three feet apart. The students climbed this obstacle hanging upside-down.

A ravine was then crossed by descending a knotted rope and ascending another rope on the other side. On the far side the students found the familiar obstacles of a run through automobile tires and a crawl under barbed wire. Then came two more log obstacles, the first was crossed like a tightrope. The second-called the belly-buster was an ingenious device consisting of a log about two-and-a-half feet in diameter set in a wooden framework at about chest height. The student pulls himself onto the log which then rotates down the framework dumping him on the other side. A run down a steep slope and across another ravine brought the students to the final obstacle—a climb up a fifty foot cargo net.

At first glance the course looks rather straight-forward and not overly difficult. "Actually," intones one of the cadre, "this course wouldn't be too bad if it weren't for the terrain" which is almost always steeply inclined and never flat. But there are a couple of additional "catches"; the students must carry rifles with them through the entire course. Then there is the plaintive cry of the cadre man, who spots the slightest mistake made in crossing an obstacle, "What are you doing to my obstacle, Ranger? Drop and give me ten."

In the hour time limit the students had to negotiate the course not once, but at least twice and in pairs; one Ranger running in place while the other catches up. After completing the course twice the students were then free to run the course singly as many times as they could in the time remaining. (They received points for each additional circuit of the course.)

In the "Ranger spirit" of always giving a little more than the job requires, most of the class finished at least a third trip and four men completed five runs each.

ROTC Ranger 11-74 ready to go

One hundred and ninety seven ROTC cadets from forty states — representing 117 colleges and universities — passed both the Ranger-Special Forces Physical Fitness Qualification and Combat Water survival tests and officially began training as ROTC Ranger-class 11-74.

During this week the students, who comprise the second such ROTC Ranger class this summer, underwent marksmanship training and were introduced to automatic weapons and night fire techniques.

Cadets who are airborne qualified received refresher training on the swing landing trainer and practiced exits from aircraft mock-ups and parachute landing falls.

According to the Assistant Director of the Ranger department LTC Byron F. Prahm, class 10-74 will be a tough act to follow but the class 11-74 has done well thus far; and all the students have the potential to graduate from the course and receive the coveted Ranger Tab. Welcome and Good Luck!

Cadets get first "taste" of field artillery

by Rick Wasser

Approximately 200 ROTC and West Point Cadets got their first taste of field artillery recently, at Ferguson Range, courtesy of Co E, FA, 1st Bn, 29th Inf (PIONEERS), TSB.

The cadets, who are undergoing the Benning phase of their Ranger Training, were in true Ranger spirit, yelling and singing Ranger songs and charging wildly up the hill of Ferguson range to the bleachers.

The first part of the artillery demonstration was the "high-angle, low-angle" shot which depicts the 105mm howitzer in an uncanny role. Two projectiles are fired from the 105 — one at a high angle and one at a very low angle — about twenty-six seconds apart. The ROTC Rangers yelled encouragement to the PIONEERS who were cranking the howitzer down to low angle position, and then the gun fired, the cadets yelled even louder.

But when the two projectiles, that were fired twenty-six seconds apart, both hit their target at the same second, a hush fell over the crowd of Rangers briefly, followed by a tremendous roar of approval.

Following the high-angle, low-angle demonstration, the ROTC and West Point Cadets were given an idea of just how powerful the 1/29th FA is, in addition to being accurate.

The Artillery PIONEERS fired two rounds from the 155mm howitzer, first a direct fire, followed by an air-burst, and both projectiles struck their targets with awesome power, sending fireballs some fifty feet into the air.

The last weapon demonstrated at Ferguson Range was the Army's largest artillery weapon, the 175mm howitzer. After the necessary calibrations were set on the weapon, one of the Rangers was permitted to pull the lanyard of the 175 and engage the target. Only 1.5 seconds after the surprised cadet had pulled the rope of the mammoth weapon, he had scored a hit.

EXPECTANT PARENTS COURSE

An Expectant Parents Course, for active duty and retired personnel and their wives, will begin Tuesday, July 9, in the second floor conference room in Martin Army Hospital. The course consists of four classes. The classes will be held each Tuesday from 7-9 p.m. Interested prospective parents may register for the course by calling the Army Health Nursing Service at 545-5431 or 545-4041.

DEPENDENTS OUTPATIENT RECORDS

It is requested that all newly assigned personnel at Ft. Benning, having hand carried their dependents outpatient records from their old duty station, turn these records into the Outpatient Records Section, Martin Army Hospital Annex. At this time individuals will be informed as to where they will be receiving outpatient medical care. Newly arriving personnel who believe their past outpatient records would contribute to current treatment should report to the Inpatient Records Section at Martin Army Hospital to have their outpatient records requested from the previous station.

FT. BENNING RETIRED ENLISTED COUNCIL

The Ft. Benning Enlisted Council will hold its regular monthly meeting Tuesday in the Top Five NCO Club at 1 p.m. All retirees and their wives or surviving widows are cordially invited to attend. The Retired Enlisted Council provides prompt and complete information, advice and assistance on matters pertaining to services and benefits retired Army personnel, and their dependents, may be entitled to as a result of retiree's military service. For more information call 689-2443, 563-5005 or 297-0456.

RECREATION SERVICES MUSIC CENTER

New Piano and guitar classes begin July 8, 1974 and end Aug. 16. The classes run from 5-8 p.m. Monday and Wednesday or Tuesday and Thursday. Classrooms are located at Recreation Services Music Center, Bldg. No. 1684 on corner of Vibbert and Gillespie Street. Cost of six-week course is $9.00. All military personnel (active and retired), DA civilian and dependents are eligible to attend. Beginning and intermediate levels of instruction offered. Private lessons are also available. The Music Center is open daily Monday thru Friday, 8:00-5:00 for student practice. For further information and enrollment, call Music Center at 545-3093.

MAH CLINICS CLOSE

All Martin Army Hospital Clinics will be closed on July 5, 6 and 7 because of the long Fourth of July weekend. Appointments made for July 5 will be rescheduled by the hospital. Sick call will be held at the Martin Army Hospital Emergency Room from 8 am. to 12 noon on July 5, 6 and 7.

Patriots back at Benning after mountain and desert training

By BOB COWLES

All rifle companies of the "Patriots" of the 1st Bn (Mech), 58th Inf, 197th Inf Bde are back to the 'green, green grass of home' at Ft. Benning after completing mountain and desert training at Ft. Bliss, Texas.

The "Patriots" spent nearly two months, each company spending three weeks, at the Southwest post training its personnel in operations in a desert environment. Some of them were rappelling and mountain climbing for the first time, while others sharpened already acquired skills.

Co. A departed Ft. Benning May 9 and returned June 2, while Co. B was at Ft. Bliss from May 23 until June 16. Company C of the battalion departed June 6 and returned June 30.

The training for the companies began with a four day RECONDO (Reconnaissance-Commando) program, including instructions and practical exercises in land navigation, survival, P.O.W. handling and conduct, suspension traverse (crossing a chasm or river by means of a rope bridge), rappelling and a four hour mountain walk. Week number two started for the "Patriots" with a field training exercise, one and one half days of camouflage training, and a battle drill. All these were performed with special emphasis, of course, on the desert environment. For the remainder of the week, the men of the 1/58 were attached to the 3rd Squadron, 3rd Armored Cavalry Regiment (ACR), in combined arms training.

During the third week, training involved successfully testing new concepts in small arms defense.

In this test, a miniature radio controlled aerial target (RCAT) was flown over a platoon on line, and the platoon engaged the target with track mounted 50 calibers, M60 machine guns and M16s.

"This type of field maneuver is the greatest thing that has happened to this unit," stated CPT Jes Ramos, company commander of B Co. "We had three full weeks devoted strictly to tactics in a simulated combat atmosphere."

"The troops in my command," continued CPT Ramos, "for the most part, have never trained outside of Ft. Benning. From the NCOs they have heard of alerts in which you are required to move from one geographic location to another to test the units combat effectiveness. This time they saw those stories become a reality."

"The training itself was very challenging, realistic and demanding, and I am extremely pleased with the troops' performance," added CPT Ramos.

CPT Ramos went on to explain, "The live fire exercise, in which the troops engaged the aircraft, and I might modestly add, destroyed all of them, was extremely realistic."

"As a company commander," concluded CPT Ramos, "you often wonder how effective your troops are. In my case, I know I've got the best."

MAJ Gale R. Zink Jr., the S-3 officer for the "Patriots" added to CPT Ramos' comments.

"I feel the training we received at Ft. Bliss was the finest any rifle companies have had since I have been here," stated MAJ Zink. "It developed unity among the troops in the companies that could not have been done at Ft. Benning. It was great for the development of our NCOs, in that there were no commitments and they could spend all their time working with the troops, and it trained the men to live and work in a desert environment both individually and as a unit."

MAJ Zink concluded saying, "Many people say that the 'Volunteer Army' has sub-caliber soldiers, I feel that these men are just as well motivated, disciplined and trained as any troops I have ever seen."

SFC Wilford Woodruff, a platoon sergeant in Co. B and a veteran of two Vietnam tours summed it up by saying, "After witnessing my troops' performance for the past few weeks, I'd willingly take them into combat anytime."

Piggyback rappelling is demonstrated to member of the 1/58 during their training at Ft. Bliss by SGT Kenneth Berquist and SGT Hardy Chadwick.

Camouflaging vehicles in the desert was a part of the training received by the "Patriots" while at Ft. Bliss.

Anderson claims pre-Perry pistol crown

In his usual business manner, National Pistol Champion SFC Hershel Anderson, and the U.S. Army Marksmanship Unit, chalked up his second week-end pistol tournament championship in a row Sunday as he claimed the Pre-Perry Pistol crown at the Norcross, Georgia, range near Atlanta.

Firing a withering blast of ten counts on his targets, Anderson not only took the three gun 2700 Grand Aggregate championship with his high score of 2670-157X but won each of the sub-aggregates making up the series. He took the 22 Caliber Pistol four match series with 890 of a possible 900, the Center Fire Pistol with 893 and the 45 Caliber Pistol with 887.

Anderson also won an added feature, the 45 Caliber Service Pistol match with his top score of 876.

This was the second week-end match in a row in which Anderson has won handgun championships in the high strata area of 2670 where only three other marksmen in the nation have ever marked along with him. On June 23, he won the Southwest Regional Pistol Championship at El Paso, Texas with 2671.

The week end victory at Norcross brings to a total of five championships won this year by Anderson in the 2670 region. Two of these have been at 2643 which is just one point below the national record for the three gun course.

In addition to his outstanding individual performance at Norcross, Anderson Marksmanship "Blue" team to a clean sweep of the team competition. The squad of Anderson, SFC Harland Reynolds, SFC Bonnie Harmon, and SSG Marvin Black took the 22 Caliber Pistol event with 1182, the Center Fire with 1166, the 45 Caliber Pistol with 1170 and the 45 Caliber Service Pistol with 1144.

Adding frosting to the cake, a women's pistol team from the Army Marksmanship Unit set two new national records as they established high marks in the women's division of the match. The four women, led by SFC Barbara Hile, National Women's Pistol Champion, chalked up new records of 1142 in 22 Caliber Pistol and 1115 in Center Fire Pistol. These totals topped the old records by eight and 12 points respectively. The other three women firing on the record breaking team included CPT Sharon Best, SGT Beth Thomas, and SP5 Kim Dyer.

Rod and Gun Club notes:

Look deep for summer fishing

By Dave Deutscher

Catch anything? "Naw, weather's too darn hot." Well, a few local fishermen are blasting that excuse to pieces. It's true that the summer heat affects bass habits but they can still be caught if we look in the right places.

MAJ Bill Davis concentrates his efforts on water containing structure at depths greater than twenty feet. Bill is also scoring by fishing grassy islands surrounded by deep water at night. This night-time tactic recently paid off with a seven-plus pounder, and busted tackle several times.

Not too long ago Hank Beamesderfer took two doubles and missed a third by working a Rapala across a feeding shelf along the dam of a small pond early in the morning.

Look For Underwater Structures

During the dog days I often find bass hugging the edges of submerged creeks in water at last 12 feet deep. These creek beds can be located by searching out rows of standing timber in large impoundments such as Lake Eufaula. Big bass avoid bright, direct sunlight, so think in terms of shade when presenting your baits. Cast near sunken bridges, timber, points and drop-offs.

Another way to locate bass is to look for Shad breaking water. These baitfish are a gourmet delight for Mr. Bucketmouth, and they are extremely abundant this time of year. Toss a minnow-imitation into the frenzy and retrieve with sharp jerks. A hit is almost guaranteed. Lunker hunters may want to let their lure sink below the feeding school; a real "hawg" could be waiting for an injured shad to drift down to his level.

Pan Fishing Is Good Too

Crappie fishermen are having best results at night, but a lot of good fish are being taken during day-light hours with minnows fished deep along the old river bed. Those red or black channel bouys paint a pretty accurate picture. Seek out timber along the bends of the river.

Bream enthusiasts love the summer. You'll find these scrappy fighters everywhere, especially under green brush and stick-ups.

Growth rates of all fish increase with warmer water, but the catfish takes first place. If your favorite pond produced hand-size cats back in the early Spring, it's time you tried it again. They will have grown to bragging size by now and they'll be on a feeding binge for the remainder of the summer. It doesn't matter if the boss won't let you off early Wednesday afternoon; you can connect with some nice catfish after sundown when they move into the shallows to feed.

July is also a favorite month for fishing the Destin area on the Gulf of Mexico. Trolling for Kings is an addiction this time of year for guys like Dub Loyd and Barney Cavanaugh. Long piers and shore-line angling produces good catches of speckled trout, crackers, red fish and who-knows-what-else.

Go Dark Or Deep

It ain't too hot, Friends. Just go either dark or deep. Use lures that can get down to where those big bass are cooling their fins. Summertime hardware should include a weighted tailspinner for "fluttering" along deep structure. Of course the plastic worm is a killer, but the new worms with the ribbon-like tail seems to be hotter than that noon-time sun.

SGT Robert C. Koonce demonstrates the Australian rappell to members of Co. 1st Bn, 58th Inf during mountain and desert training at Ft. Bliss, Tex.

Co A moves to top in league standings

Co A, 1st Bn (Mech), 58th Inf (Patriots) moved into the lead in the race for the Patriot League pennant in 197th Inf Bde softball action this week.

The A Co Patriots ran their second half season record to three wins against one loss after missing the first half of the season because of training exercises at Ft. Bliss, Tex. Their surge to the front bumped HHC, 1/58 into second spot, something the headquarters Patriots are not used to.

"We still feel we are locked in for a spot in the brigade's playoffs," stated the HHC coach, LT William Stron Jr. "We have a strong infield and I feel a good chance at going to post. The only other brigade team I've seen is Alfa Admin (197th Spt Bn) and they worry me."

"Who wouldn't we worry," asked SP4 Bob Mayhew, assistant coach of Co A (Admin), 197th Spt Bn. "We have a very impressive team. We scored 30 runs in our last game and gave up just two. That is about as impressive as you can get."

The administrative specialists have scored 88 runs in their last four games.

"All our players are looking forward to the brigade's playoffs," explained the Co A coach, SSG Rick Mallott. "I cannot think of one weak spot on the team."

Co B, 2nd Bn, 69th Armor, surprised everyone this week in the Tanker League by defeating Cbt Spt Co 14-10.

"It looks like we are going to have a three way tie," stated SPT Michael Maasberg, recreation officer of Ft. Benning's only armor battalion. "Only two teams will be able to go on to the brigade championships, so we will have to have a playoff of our own."

Cbt Spt Co will be one of the armor battalion's representatives due to their record for the first half of the season.

"We have a well balanced team with a lot of spirit," stated SGT Alex Williams, Co B coach. "I think we can beat Co A in a playoff if we have to."

While the tankers are looking forward to a race down to the wire, the Cottonbalers are looking to the brigade playoffs.

"It looks like it will be HHC and Charlie Co," stated SP4 Joe Kerr, assistant recreation NCO in the 3/7. But the question is, which team will be representing the Cottonbalers league as the champions.

"I think we will win the pennant," stated LT Isaac Brown, coach of Co C, 3/7, after Charlie Co came from behind in the final inning of play to beat HHC 13-9 last week. "This win moves us to within one game of them."

"Our losses came early in the season," LT Brown explained of his team's 12-3 record. "Our defense has improved since then and I definitely think we will beat them in our next meeting."

In the 197th Independent League of separate units, the 72nd Engr Co extended their winning streak to four games after a poor showing early in the season. The engineers still have a long way to go, but a playoff berth is not out of the question. If they are to win one, however, they will have to beat the 298th Sig Ptl, currently holding down second place.

The communication specialists of the 298th defeated first place HHC, 197th Inf Bde, last week by a score of 13-8.

"I don't think we'll have any problems with the engineers," stated SSG Leland Albritton, coach of the 298th Sig Ptl. "We have settled down a lot since the season began and we have been winning most of our games. The pressure is on them to beat us now."

C Btry, 2nd Bn, 10th FA, recorded three more wins to extend their record 15-1, maintaining a tight hold on the lead in the Redleg League. HHC, the second-placed team, helped the Charlie Btry cause with two losses.

Co A has 1st place in yellow div softball

Headquarters and Support, and Co D, 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry, (PIONEERS) TSB, faced each other in softball competition no less than three times this week, Hq & Spt Co taking the series, 2 out of 3.

In the first game, Hq & Spt got out to an early lead due to headsup base running and an unexpected assist from Co D second baseman, Jesse Wheeler, who committed four errors in the first inning.

The lead then changed hands several times, Gary Ledbetter and Roy Pitman knocking four-baggers for Hq & Spt Co, while Jesse Wheeler and James Lightfoot hit three-run homers for Co D.

In the last inning, with the score 11-11, Gary Ledbetter and Mott Frazier hit back-to-back singles. Minutes later, Darrel Winterton smacked his fourth base hit — in as many attempts — to drive in the winning run for Hq & Spt.

The second game of the series was a complete reverse of the first, and a total disaster for the Hq team. Only five men on the Hq & Spt team managed to reach base, as they fell easy prey to the Co D team, 10-0.

In the final contest of the three game series, Mott Frazier's two-run homer culminated a five-run seventh inning and John Patterson went 4 for 4 in his first season game, as Headquarters and Support demolished the tired Co D team, 13-3.

Elsewhere in TSB's Yellow Division, Co A of the 1/29th maintained their vice-like grip on first place with a stunning 11-1 victory over sister Co B of the PIONEERS.

Team captain Tim DeBey laced a three-run home run into right field in the first inning to get the ball rolling. After that, it was Co A all the way with a base-hit barrage including a two-run homer by Larry Tidwell in the fourth inning. Pitcher Joel Royal was credited with the victory and he aided his own cause with five hits including a triple and 2 RBIs.

Co A now stands 10-0 in the Yellow Division and has virtually clinched the pennant. "The only team who even stands a chance of catching us," commented DeBey, "is Co E, Field Artillery, and they will have to defeat us twice for that to be possible." He added, "I'd say we've got the season pretty well wrapped up."

Two local marksmen win NRA championship

Two shooters from the U.S. Army Marksmanship Unit received national recognition this week in a telegram from the National Rifle Association which informed them of winning National Championships in specific handgun competition.

SFC Hershel Anderson, National Pistol Champion, was notified that his top sectional score of 573 in International Pistol had won the national championship while companion marksman SFC Bonnie Harmon, who fired an 886-32X had won the National Championship of the Open Indoor Pistol Competition with his top score.

Both men had won the championship of sectionals fired at this West Georgia Infantry post earlier this year with their scores being forwarded National Championship of the Open Indoor Pistol Washington, D.C., where they compete for the national championship.

The International Pistol event included a half course fired in Standard Pistol and a half course in Free Pistol for the Championship.

Individual national honors in the conventional Indoor Pistol Championship went to Black with 885 for runner up and Anderson with an identical score for third place. The tie breaker was determined by NRA rules.

546th defeats MAH Med Co

Back to back homeruns highlighted a victory for the 546th Med Co as they defeated Med Co, Martin Army Hospital, 10-5, in 34th Med Bn softball action June 18.

Dale Overmann and James Wesley did a spectacular feat in the third inning when their team was one run behind.

When that inning came, two homers — one was Overmann's second — gave the lead to 546th, 4-3.

Retaliating with two runs in the fourth, MAH Med Co took the lead, 5-4 on a single by John Forte and a double by Rufus Jones.

546th unwound in their half of the fourth with four runs. Two MAH Med Co errors and back to back doubles by Warren Jillson and Joe Suddith set the stage for Dexter Turner, who let loose and smacked a home run giving 546th the lead and eventually the game.

The 690th Med Co combined 14 hits with 15 runs to knock the teeth out of Dental Co, 15-3.

The medics jumped ahead in the first inning with four runs by Kenneth Kremanak, Joe St. Jacques, Wendell Hill and Gerald Roberts.

Dental Co came back in the bottom of the inning with two runs on hits from Zach Martin and Jay Weinberg.

The 690th scored one more run in the second and three runs were added by the medics in the third with hitting and excellent base running from Thomas Wachlarwica, Roberts and Matthew Riggins. The final score was 15-3.

A first inning homer was the deciding factor as the 498th Med Co squeezed by the 2d Evac Hospital, 2-1. The game started off with a single by John Pike. Then Bob Price came to bat and sent the second pitch flying over left field giving the 498th the lead 2-0.

That proved to be the only scoring until the seventh inning when 2d Evac came back with one run.

Remember: pools are for swimming-- rivers are not

Summer is barely upon us, and deaths due to drowning at Ft. Benning are at a tragically high number. To make the situation even more ominous, the Provost Marshal, in recent days, has apprehended several dependent children found swimming in unauthorized areas.

To avoid further tragedy, all military personnel and dependents are reminded that NO river, stream, pond or waterway on the reservation is open for swimming. The ONLY authorized places are the swimming pools provided by Recreation Services, and the Consolidated Club System. There are a sufficient number of pools in which swimming can be enjoyed under the watchful eye of a lifeguard. Parents, in particular, are urged to warn their children of the dangers and consequences of swimming in unauthorized areas.

It's a scramble for 1st in TSB softball action

The scramble for the top spot in the TSB company-level softball league resembles a field of thoroughbreds racing toward the finish line. The teams are neck and neck; each one is waiting for the others to stumble or slow down. This situation is true in both divisions.

The Small Arms Committee is currently at the crest of the Red Division, holding a slim one-game lead over IOAC-4. In last week's action SAC has only one game, but made it count by beating IOAC 3 (team II) 13-3.

IOAC-4 had a chance to pull into a tie with SAC by winning both their games of the week. Their hopes were crushed when the Director of Combat Development team handed them a 12-11 loss. They made up some of their lost ground by squeaking out a 1-0 decision over CCDC.

Two teams, IOAC-5 and IOAC-3 (II), are tied for third place. Both teams had chances to take sole possession of third place but both were defeated. IOAC-3 (II) lost to SAC 13-3, and IOAC-5 was stopped by CCDC 5-2.

The Blue Division leaders are also packed tighter than a full jar of pickles. The 5th Bn leads the pack with a half game lead over the USA Marksmanship Training Unit. USAMTU was idle last week and lost a chance to gain any ground on 5th Bn, who won their only game of the week over 14th Co 15-6.

4th Bn (I) is resting in third place. The 4th Bn could have jumped into second place, but split their week's game. They dropped one to HHC, TSB (II) 17-13, but came back to trample HHC, TSB (I) 12-7.

Maintenance means more than a squirt of grease and oil

The word "maintenance" in the 2nd Bn., 69th Armor, 197th Inf. Bde. means a lot more than some grease and oil every two weeks.

"For every hour we spend in operation with a tank," SGT Ulysses Adkins, a tank commander in Co. A of the battalion, stated, "we spend about three good man-hours in the motor pool."

Ft. Benning's only armor unit, the 2nd of the 69th currently has 58 tanks, each requiring a variety of regular maintenance functions peculiar to the mammoth vehicles. The maintenance problem is compounded by the fact that each tank is a weapons system as well as an armored vehicle.

"Speaking just in terms of preventative maintenance, a four-man tank crew should spend about one hour working on their equipment for every hour they spend operating it," stated Mr. Huey T. Bryant, a civilian technician from Technical Assistance Branch. "This is just performing regular maintenance and does not include time spent replacing or repairing major parts."

In addition, tank crews perform what is known as a quarterly check every three months. This involves the removal of the power pack (engine-transmission unit) and running a comprehensive check on it as well as all other major parts. It normally takes a tank crew and two mechanics two full days to perform a quarterly check. "We spend a lot of time tightening nuts and bolts," stated SGT Adkins. "And a tank, which weighs more than 50 tons, has plenty of them."

"Probably the most dreaded job to a tank is having to repair a broken track," SGT Adkins added. "Just one block of a track weighs around 22 pounds and there are 88 of them on each track. It takes a tank crew three hours of hard labor to fix one when it breaks, a little more work than changing a flat I'd say."

Benning has its own special Hall of Fame

The national Baseball Hall of Fame is located in Cooperstown, New York. The Professional Football Hall of Fame calls Canton, Ohio home. At Ft. Benning, another kind of Hall of Fame exists.

It doesn't honor great athletes or their exploits, but rather pays tribute to men who dedicated their adult lives to the protection of our country and the preservation of the Republic.

It is the Officer Candidate School Hall of Fame. On July 12, a group of 28 officers—three generals and twenty-five colonels — will be honored by having their names added to the list of members in a ceremony at TSB's Wigle Hall.

USAIC General Order number 5 authorized the creation of the OCS Hall of Fame on January 16, 1958. It was established to provide an incentive to future Officer Candidates by recognizing successes of graduates. Eligibility consists of four criteria: originally, an OCS graduate must have reached the rank of lieutenant colonel while on active duty.

(This was later changed to colonel.) Secondly, a graduate is eligible if awarded the Medal of Honor. The third entrance method is to be appointed or elected to an office of state or national prominence. Finally, OCS graduates who become General Officers either on active, reserve or National Guard status can be inducted. The highest ranking member thus far inducted is Lieutenant General Vernon Walters, currently Deputy Director of the Central Intelligence Agency.

The Hall of Fame is named for 2LT Thomas W. Wigle, a graduate of OCS Class number 190. 2LT Wigle was killed in action at Monte Frassino, Italy in 1944. He distinguished himself with such gallantry he was awarded the Medal of Honor posthumously.

Officer Candidate School officially opened July 9, 1941, with a strength of 205 students. Since then, over 108,000 men have graduated as second lieutenants. Only 669 of these men have become members of the Hall of Fame to date, proving that this select group is the best of OCS, and have earned the right to have been placed in the OCS Hall of Fame.

Tankers take to foot and save the can

By J.H. Tatum

Wearing the rubber off the heels of their boots, saving the rubber on the tracks of their tanks and improving their physical condition is what the men of Combat Support Co, 2nd Bn, 69th Armor, 197th Inf Bde were doing as they went on a six and one half mile road march.

PFC Delyte L. Lucas stated, "I think that having to make these road marches will help keep me both physically and mentally ready at all times. It also teaches us, as tankers, the importance of keeping up the maintenance on our vehicles so they won't break down and put us in the position where we have to walk."

"I thought the road march was very good, I enjoyed it," commented PFC Elisha Blackshear. "I know now that I can walk six miles with no trouble."

Wringing wet and breathing heavily, SP4 Larry J. Kennedy stated, "We tankers don't go on road marches very often. I found it very rewarding to know we could do it."

"I'm used to walking alot," added PFC Newman Mobley, "I get out on the weekends and walk two or three miles just for the exercise. To me this road march was a snap."

Rubbing his own feet, CPT Fred C. Sautter, commander of Cbt Spt Co concluded, "This was just a warm up march for the big one that will be coming up soon."

Engineers learn rappelling

Co B, 43rd Engrs, 36th Engr Grp were recently trained in "rappelling" techniques by Co C, 3rd Rangers.

The adventure training took place at Todd Field under the direction of 2LT Harry Meisell and PSG Smith of the Ranger unit.

Throughout the day many of the engineers commented favorably about the Ranger support and many questions arose concerning the varied use of rappelling techniques applicable to engineer missions since engineers are frequently called upon to work from scalloids, telephone poles, and along the sides of steep embankments many of the rappelling skills will prove to be very useful. SP5 Eldridge's remark "Yes sir this is OK." summarized the success of the training.

Gas line?
Class ring?
Do they go together

In a word association game, MAJ Eugene Cargile would respond to "gas line" with "class ring." (Confusing, isn't it?)

Now try this one — What project would bring together the Post Engineers and the AG Officer Personnel Management Office?

You don't know, you say? Here's a true story that explains all.

It begins one June morning of this year as the Post Engineers were digging around Building 1763. They were trying to locate a gas line that needed to be disconnected. One of the crew, Willie Woods, noticed something shiny in the dirt they had removed. It was a 1963 West Point class ring with the name "Eugene Cargile" engraved on the inside.

Woods turned the ring over to his crew leader, Charles Hadden, who then showed the ring to his supervisor, Willie McPherson, Domestic Heating Foreman. Together, they decided to find the owner.

The search began at the AG Officer Personnel Management Office. Mrs. Helen Morris and CW3 Terry Hall followed several leads and relentlessly tracked their man Eugene Cargile was finally found. He was now a Major assigned to Project MASSTER, Ft. Hood, Texas.

CW3 Hall telephoned MAJ Cargile and then Mr. McPherson explained to him the circumstances surrounding the finding of the ring.

MAJ Cargile was astounded. He had lost the ring eleven years ago while attending the Infantry Officer Basic Course. In 1963, Bldg. 1763 was used as a classroom. Ironically, the same gas line that led to the ring being found had been installed during the fall of 1963 and probably was the culprit in the ring being lost.

Mrs. Morris has since mailed the ring to MAJ Cargile and we have a happy ending — thanks to the extra efforts of the people of AG Officer Personnel Management and the Post Engineers.

July 4th ticket holders take home winnings

Taking the top prize in the Ft. Benning Fourth of July Carnival, SSG John W. Wrather drove home in a new 1974 Chevrolet Camaro.

Frank Fish, SSG Ronald Carnley and SP4 Tommy Nunn also went home from the carnival with new wheels. Fish won a 125-cc motorbike, Carnley a 100-cc and Nunn a 90-cc motorbike.

Cecil Grant and Glenice Myers gained fourteen-inch color TV sets from the carnival while CPT M. S. Taylor copped a set of golf clubs. R.J. Mongillo and Richard Cotton will both find better listening pleasure after the carnival; Mongillo with an RCA stereo set and Cotton with an AKAI stereo.

SP4 Jerry Miles won a Sound Design tape system and Alice Montoy and Al Yang won Panasonic clock radios. Paul Curley and SGM Richard Roche won portable cassette tape players.

Four 3-speed bicycles were won by Johnny Dirden, Teresa Figgins, R. M. Stevens, and J. L. Fitzpatrick. Milton Greer won a men's bowling ball, bag and shoes, and SP5 Frank Brown won a ladies' bowling ball, bag and shoes.

Five "share the wealth" prizes of $10 each were given out to George Hamilton, James Edwards, John Barber, Max Engle and Bill Lovingood.

Fifteen other "share the wealth" prizes will be given to the fifteen ticket holders with the last four digits that match the first five winners. Those numbers are 2488, 6560, 5973, 4802, and 2201.

"Share the wealth" winners may claim their prizes by going to the Community Activities Association office in Room 121, Bldg.

Linda Wilson is crowned Miss Ft. Benning 1974

In ceremonies in front of Infantry Hall during the Fourth of July carnival, Linda Wilson was crowned Miss Ft. Benning 1974. Miss Wilson was selected from 11 contestants.

Miss Wilson, who was second runner-up in the Miss Ft. Benning 1973 contest, was second runner-up in the 1973 Miss Columbus contest and first runner-up in the Miss Black Georgia pageant. She received first place honors in the talent competition of the Miss Columbus contest.

She enjoys gospel singing and acting, and has been in several productions with the Ft. Benning Dramatizers. She also entered the talent contest and sang "Let There Be Peace on Earth" to win third place. Miss Wilson is 19 years old and a resident of Columbus.

First runner-up in the beauty contest was Miss Sandra Davis, who also placed second in the talent contest. Miss Davis sang "Sunrise, Sunset" from the musical "Fiddler on the Roof."

Anita Larimore was second runner-up in the Miss Ft. Benning contest.

Winners of the talent contest were Rosa and Carmen Centeno, who sang "Time in a Bottle" and "Heart of Gold."

Winners of the Battle of the Bands were: Ursa Major, first place; Albatross, second place; and Scrapyard, third place.

Linda Wilson, center, was crowned Miss Ft. Benning on July 4 after competing in swimsuit and evening gown competition with 10 other girls. Sandra Davis, right, was first runner-up, and Anita Larimore, left, was second runner-up. Linda Wilson also won third place in the talent contest, and Sandra Davis was second place in the talent contest.

Btry A always there to give salute

By BOB COWLES

Tradition has it that Btry A of any artillery battalion is usually the "salute" battery. Btry A, 2nd Bn, 19th FA, 197th Inf Bde is no exception to this long standing rule.

Whenever a ceremony is held be it at main post or for the 197th, A Btry is usually there to give the salute.

"This is an additional duty for these men," stated LT George R. Patrick, executive officer of A Btry.

"They get nothing out of it except the pleasure of doing a fine job."

Practicing for the 50 gun salute given during the Independence Day ceremonies, LT Patrick added, "This is the only time we practice for a salute, just a couple of days prior to the event."

"I like being in the salute battery, but at times I get tired of having to do this on weekends and holidays, even though its not that often," commented PFC Harry A. Simmons.

PFC Simmons added, "Occasionally we get to travel to other cities to fire at special events, I really enjoy doing that."

"I'm just filling in for a guy who couldn't be here," commented PVT Cornelius Williams. "I really enjoy doing it and would like to do it all the time."

"It gives me a sense of pride being able to represent my unit and the Army at ceremonies like this, especially when we do a good job," concluded PVT Larry L. Fitchard.

Happiness is being sisters together in the sky

Can two Turkish sisters from Patterson, New Jersey find happiness in the sky over Ft. Benning? PVT Zeynur Ozrek 21, and PVT Nurcan Ozrek 19, of the 42nd Co, 4th Bn, TSB thought they could, and did. They graduated jump school together on July 3.

Born in Istanbul Turkey they came to America in 1964 with their parents. As a result, they understand three languages, Turkish, English, and a rare one called Circussion.

"Circussion isn't spoken much anymore. My sister and I can understand what is said, but we can't speak it," said Zeynur.

They joined the Army on April 1, and graduated basic training at Fort Jackson, S. C. on May 29. After a few days rest they came on to Ft. Benning to begin their training. Airborne is traditionally one of the most rugged courses in the Army. Why would two attractive sisters from the Garden State put themselves through it?

"We wanted to prove to ourselves, the men in the Soldier saves truck driver's life

SSG Royce Cason, a Ft. Benning soldier, is credited with saving the life of truckdriver, Robert Roache, following a fiery tractor-trailer pileup during the early morning hours of July 4.

Cason, a native of Thomson, Ga., was enroute to Augusta when he came upon the wreck on Interstate 20 just three miles east of his hometown.

He was not the first to arrive at the scene but he quickly took charge and sent a bystander off to the Georgia Highway Patrol station in Thomson to alert them to call for emergency equipment and personnel.

Disregarding the intense heat and flames of the burning wreck which had already set off several minor explosions, Cason moved in and pulled Robert Roache to safety. Roache, a truckdriver from Jonesboro, Ga., was suffering from burns and shock. Cason administered first aid until the arrival of an ambulance. At last report, Roache was in critical condition in the intensive care unit at Doctors Hospital in Augusta.

Most soldiers dislike scheduled military physical training periods. What could be done to make these sessions less distasteful?

SSG Eugene Adams
Co Opns TSB

It's good . . . It should be scheduled because most people would not do it on their own.

SFC Early A. Jones
14th Co. 1st Bn TSB

At reveille in the morning would make a good time to have physical training — before breakfast. Of course this might make it more distasteful until you got used to it.

SSG Ronald E. Barkman
Combat Support Co. 1/58th 197th

197th should drop the long propaganda runs. A good thirty minutes of varied exercises every morning and a good short run would suffice.

LT. Russell Amos
24th Co. 2nd Bn TSB

I do not like the system of regular physical training. I would like to see competitive sports maybe between companies or platoons. I would like to see all the people involved with the company participating in a physical training program to include officers and NCO's.

PVT Kraig Milinich
45th Co 4th Bn TSB

More competitive sports like the 82nd Airborne does, instead of the regular Army physical training program of exercise everyday.

CPT Lawrence R. King
B Co HQS Comd

I agree with it. You find you get more unit participation, develops Esprit de Corps and more teamwork. It keeps the lazy ones from goofing off.

PT may not always be fun -- -- but it's as important as your life

By Bruce Andrae

The Army doesn't issue red and blue uniforms and expect you to leap tall buildings in a single bound.

Nor would they have you popping cans of spinach and tooting a corn-cob pipe like a well known member of a sister service who engages in feats of great strength. (Only a sailor could find Olive Oil attractive anyway.)

What the Army does expect is that you be physically fit -- able to respond to a need at anytime or anywhere. That is why you'll find yourself falling out for periods of organized PT or having to take physical fitness tests.

There are ways to mangle or finagle so that you do little or nothing in the way of physical exercise and think you've beaten the "Green Machine" -- you're wrong. What you've done is neglect an investment in your own personal welfare. You have an individual responsibility to be physically fit so as to enjoy a long and healthy life. This is not possible without proper exercise.

Exercise may not be a cure for all, but its importance to the total welfare of the human body is better understood as research evidence mounts in favor of exercise. The Army believes that exercise is of such importance that if not attained as part of duty assignments, you should insert it, preferably on a daily basis into your weekly routine.

Attaining a satisfactory level of physical fitness can be reached by anyone. Available time appears to be the most difficult obstacle to overcome. The problems involved in setting an hour aside two or three times each week are numerous. However, most of us can devote 15 minutes each day to physical fitness with little, if any, impact on our daily work schedule.

Any combination of physical activity is possible on an individual basis. The activities you select should be suited to your interest, ability, physical need, age, and the time and facilities available for exercise.

Athletic games such as tennis, handball, golf and bowling are popular with many people. They enjoy the competition and the chance to participate with friends. While these games are beneficial to your physical fitness, your involvement is limited by weather, facilities, time and dependence upon others.

Some people would rather engage in noncompetitive individual activities. Such activity would include weight training, swimming, running, walking and conditioning exercises. In these activities you can set the pace and control of your program as you are not dependent upon others. You may wish to participate in one or more of these activities. What works best for the majority of people is a program in which conditioning exercises are used as a basic and constant means of exercise.

The advantages are many. Conditioning exercises can be completed in a short time. No special facilities or equipment are required. The amount of exercise and progression can be controlled by the individual. Complicated skill need not be developed to receive benefit. There is no dependence upon others to assist in completing the activity. Daily participation is easier because of the simplicity and convenience of the exercise.

One of the best means of developing and maintaining physical fitness is the aerobic form of exercise. Aerobic exercise concentrates on developing the heart, lungs, and circulatory system. Coronary attacks and other disabling conditions are widespread in our society. Exercise of the proper type may strengthen the cardio-vascular system.

Nearly two thousand individuals at Ft. Benning are currently enrolled in the "Run For Your Life" program. Running is a form of aerobic exercise. It is a simple and effective method of improving the cardio-vascular system and aids in maintaining general health.

Maximum benefit can be derived by devoting 15 minutes or less per day to the program.

It is not the intent here to promote any certain activity over the other; that choice is for you to make. It could be simple isometric exercises that can be done at your desk. Whatever program you decide upon, avoid failure due to backsliding.

Some people try activities which are not interesting to them and soon busy themselves with other nonphysical activities which "choke off" the time for exercise. Others begin an overambitious program which takes too much time and they drop, rather than trim, their program. Still others decide upon a daily program which is difficult to maintain. When they are forced to occasionally miss the daily workout, no visible signs of harm are apparent. First, it is an occasional forced miss; next, it is a frequent voluntary absence; and finally, no activity remains. The only solution is for the individual to understand the benefit and necessity of exercise, set up a reasonable program, and adopt it as part of his daily life.

If you are 40 years of age and over, or if you are under 40 and performing duties which require little or no physical activity, you must plan your physical conditioning program to assure a moderate beginning, slow but steady progress and sufficient "warmup" before starting your vigorous exercise. It is advisable to have a complete medical checkup prior to beginning any strenuous physical exercise program. Individuals 30 years of age and older must have a medical clearance before entering the Run For Your Life program.

PFC William Emery, 43rd Engr, adds the finishing touches to several of the Independence Day Carnival's attractions.

Engineers hustle carnival again

Soldier engineers of the 43rd Engrs, 36th Engr Grp, completed a third successful year as "Carnival Hustlers" at the July 4 Independence Day Carnival.

The engineers were in charge of building the Carnival's midway of rides, exhibition, and game booths.

This is my second year working on the Carnival's midway," stated SP4 William Heathcoe, Co A, 43rd Engrs. "It takes several weeks to prepare for the Carnival; everyone worked together to make it a success."

Heathcoe also said the 43rd Engrs, not only built the midway, but also operated the 31 booths.

"Having to work on July 4 isn't so bad," Heathcoe says. "Last year I won 10 dollars for having the best Carnival game booth on the midway."

This year's Carnival was even more decorative than years passed. Two reasons; SP4 Gregg Wilson and PFC Kenney Sims, HHC, 36th Engrs, were in charge of the artwork.

Many of the displays and booths could be seen surrounded by artwork; posters and signs describing the Carnival's activities.

The two artists are draftsmen for the 36th Engr Grp, and offered their talents to the 43rd Engrs in assisting them in the Carnival activities.

"I enjoyed doing the artwork for the Carnival," Wilson explained, "it kept me busy working in my job as an artist and draftsman for the group."

As the day's activities began to draw to a close, happy expressions from the faces of small children could be seen all around.

Again this year the 43rd Engrs contributed to another successful Independence Day Carnival as "Carnival Hustlers" on the midway.

Rangers visit Houston at request of a pastor

A group of 10 Rangers from Co C, (Airborne-Ranger), 1st Bn, 29th Infantry (PIONEERS), TSB journeyed recently to Houston, Texas at the request of church pastor, LTC R.B. Thieme (ret).

LTC Thieme, pastor of the Berachah Church in Houston, Texas, preaches to his congregation that it is everyone's duty to serve their country. Four of the 10 Rangers selected for the Texas trip — William Bryson, Gabriel Dominguez, Gary Horton, and Craig Morin — are all members of the Berachah Church.

Various activities were planned for the Berachah Fourth of July Bible Conference which the Rangers participated in, commencing with the showing of a Ranger Training film on Wednesday, July 3.

On the 4th of July, the 1/29th Infantry Rangers gave a 45-minute rappelling demonstration off of the church building prior to the morning Bible Class.

On Friday the Rangers from Co C presented a color guard demonstration for the congregation and other visitors, while the following day was set aside for military communion.

During their Houston stay, members of the PIONEER Ranger company were actively engaged in unit-of-choice recruiting. One entire day was set aside for personal testimonies given by the various members of the coveted company.

Both LTC Thieme and his congregation and the selected Rangers enjoyed the unique visit. LTC Thieme stated, "I am most anxious that the United States Army be held up before the general public as one of the finest traditions and the best instrument of establishment for the preservation of American freedom."

Craig Morin, Co C (Airborne-Ranger), 1/29th Infantry (PIONEERS) TSB, practices his on-guard position which he demonstrated for members of the congregation of the Berachah Church of Houston, Tex. (Photo by Rick Wasser).

1/58 troops try school reaction course

By BOB THOMAS

Soldiers of Co B, 1st Bn (Mech), 58th Inf (Patriots), 197th Inf Ede tested their problem solving and leadership ability last week as the unit made use of the Infantry School's Leaders Reaction Course.

The company divided into teams of four to five men and each team was tested on 16 different problems. Most of the tasks involved crossing a barrier or obstacle of some type, utilizing the materials supplied.

"This course is a real challenge," stated PVT Stanley Gary, who led his team through several of the tasks successfully. "It gives the lower ranking soldier a chance to be a leader and it builds confidence."

Many of the tasks involved crossing water and getting wet seems to be trademark for the course. However, the water did not seem to bother the Patriots, who recently returned from desert training at Ft. Bliss, Tex.

"You find yourself doing things you never thought you could do," explained PFC James Thomas. "I think it is very exciting."

The reaction course is designed to develop and test the individual's leadership ability and problem solving skills. Used primarily by the students of the Infantry School, the reaction course is available to any unit searching for a new and different type of training.

"It's fun," exclaimed PFC Jerome Flowers as he awaited his turn to be the leader through a problem. "I would rather do this than any type of training we have had so far. In fact, I wouldn't mind doing something like this everyday."

I thought maybe he needed some ministerin' or direction findin', so I accosted him and asked if he needed any help.

Well, sir, he commenced to turn the air a pretty kinda crackley blue, lambastin' this, and dogdaring that, athrowin' his hat on the floor and jus' acting awful natural for a fella who didn't know up from left a few seconds afore.

I thought I'd have to wet him down with a garden hose for him to calm down any much, but then he beganst to exhaust his vocabulary and he up and sez, "I'm sotry, doc, but this green groupin' here and yaller groupin' there, whilst blue group was here but now ain't, if howsomeever, you don't belong to a pink group somewheres else, is too much for me. How's a body sposed to get cured? By the time folks find out where they's sposed to be and get seen by their special old doc, they done cured themselves already or is too far gone for any doc and only need the parson and some close friends to see him through. I don't know which way to turn."

After sech a long gabbing, he ran out of wind and jes stood there, astanding on his hat, and waitin' for me to get him turned in the right direction.

Well, Bub, I sure don't savvy those color groups myself but felt that as long as I had on my doctorin' coat, I'd better not let on, else he'd think the whole place was as confused as me and him. So, I tooken him by the arm and pulled him into my office so's we wouldn't get trampled by crowd in the hallway whilst I made a few phone calls to get my new friend on the right track.

Turns out the color group system is as easy as pie.

All a body has to do is call 544-3472 tell 'em your Social Security number, and, howdy, and they'll tell you what group is yours afore you can write it down. Then all you have to do is call Central Appointment Desk for an appointment, and that's all there is to it.

My new friend, John Allen, was chock full of thank you's, and sure appreciate it's, to the point that I had to turn my head so's he couldn't see my own embarrassment ashinin' on my face.

Well sir, not only did John Allen find where he was agoin' but I found out same as him about this system that jes looks complicated, but really ain't. Well, Bub, I have to call 544-3472 and find out what color group my family belongs in; Sally Lou has been aridin' me for months to find out about our clinic, but I didn't know who to ask 'til today. I'll have to thank John Allen next time I see him. Good health to you and yours.

Patrolling

the real test of Ranger training

"We missed the rendezvous point. . .

By William DeVita

The men are tired . . .

is there a right decision or just a good decision?"

One of the long awaited events of Ranger training is the first student-led patrol. The students have spent several weeks mastering the techniques that successful patrolling requires. They have carried out two patrols, one reconnaissance and one combat, under the leadership of the cadre.

Although the ROTC Ranger students have been constantly graded by the cadre, most of the students view the first student-led patrol as the first true test of their individual abilities to lead and of their collective ability to work as a team. As one student expressed it "this is when teamwork goes for record."

On a Thursday evening, after a full day's training which includes running the "Darby Queen" obstacle course, the students file into the briefing room. An instructor gives a thorough description of the "enemy" situation and a mass of details including grid-coordinates, radio frequencies, call signs, unit locations etc.

Following the briefing there is a short question and answer period during which the students ask for any additional data they feel is necessary to plan the patrol. The students then break-up into their individual patrols which consist of ten to fifteen men to draw the special equipment — radios, etc. needed for the patrols.

The planning phase comes next as each student prepares the important mission and execution sections of the patrol order. Each student knows that he will be stringently graded and as an added incentive the students do not know who the patrol leader will be. It is the patrol leader's plan that will be used by the patrol.

The planning session continues long into the night and only a few students are asleep before midnight.

The next day began early. The patrol leader, after being informed of his selection by the cadre, issued his warning order at about five in the morning officially notifying the men that there would be a patrol. At eight o'clock the operation order was given to the patrol, sand table terrain models were utilized and adequate rehearsals were arranged so that the patrol could practice every phase of the patrol before putting it into execution.

. . . enemy lines must be crossed

At about six o'clock in the evening patrol No. 3, one of the fifteen patrols into which the class was divided, was trucked to the assembly area — a point still inside the friendly lines near which the patrol would cross into "enemy territory." While the patrol formed into a defensive circle the patrol leader coordinated with the friendly commander, arranging for a guide for the patrol upon return to the friendly lines, signals to be used and to obtain the last information on friendly and enemy activities.

. . . the patrol must divide into teams . . .

The patrol leader returned to the assembly point, briefed the other students on the information he had learned and the patrol moved out. The guide, who was supplied by the "friendly" commander, guided the patrol to the friendly forces FEBA (Forward Edge of the Battle Area) and stayed behind as the patrol crossed into "no-mans land."

The patrol moved swiftly and silently through the heavily-wooded terrain stopping occasionally for several minutes at a time. During these stops the patrol would take up a defensive posture and then the students would sit silent and motionless but alert to familiarize themselves with the feel and sounds of the immediate area.

"How do we get back to friendly territory?"

As the patrol began to move uphill toward the objective — a suspected missile site — the patrol would halt at designated rallying points and the patrol leader with one or two other students would scout the area ahead. Finally the patrol reached the objective rallying point—the last stop before the objective. It was here that the instructor, CPT Thomas O. Plant, who accompanied but took no active part in the leadership of the patrol, critiqued the actions of the patrol. As the patrol had been well planned and had gone smoothly to this period, his critique was brief. Then he replaced the patrol leader. This is no way reflected on the previous patrol leader, but was a means of testing other members of the patrol.

The new patrol leader divided the patrol into three groups — two four-man teams would reconnoiter the objective, one five man team would remain at the objective rallying point (ORP) and provide a secure base for the recon teams.

"Did I make the right decision?"

Staying behind at the ORP was perhaps the harder job. The men, like all Ranger students during most of the course, were extremely tired. Any one of them could have been asleep in an instant, but none of them did. They waited for about an hour and a half allowing their bodies but not their vigilance to relax.

Then the recon teams returned. All members of the patrol were briefed on what had been observed at the objective. This was done so that if some of the patrol members didn't make it back to the friendly lines the information would still get through.

By this time night had fallen and it was time for the patrol to return and they began to move through the darkened woods.

Perhaps the compass was defective, or the compass man made a wrong turn, or possibly a mistake was made in planning the return route, but suddenly the patrol discovered that the ravine, that was supposed to be on their left, was in front of them. They spent the better part of an hour back tracking and finally finding the route they were supposed to take.

"We missed the rendezvous point . . .

Then came one of the most dangerous phases of the patrol — the return to friendly lines. As the patrol approached the area where the friendly lines were located, the patrol leader consulted with his compass man. "Where are we and where is the hole in the wire?" (The guide who would lead them back through the friendly lines was to meet them at a break in the wire.) "The break is about fifty meters that way" pointed the compass man.

The patrol leader then called the man who carried the electronics night vision

Readiness gets 197th top eye

By Lamar Battles

"Readiness, watchword of the 197th Inf Bde" is a catchy phrase and one that's been getting a lot of attention lately.

Just five weeks ago GEN Walter T. Kerwin, commander of FORSCOM, cited readiness as the FORSCOM objective during an address to brigade officers and NCOs.

More recently, COL William B. Steele, brigade commander, issued a letter on brigade readiness policy. In it COL Steele emphasized readiness as the primary mission of the 197th Inf Bde.

Combat readiness has been attained by all units of the 197th and now the brigade is taking steps to further its readiness posture.

COL Steele stated in his policy letter: "What is now required is the perfection of combat readiness in all areas to include the possible extension of that combat power whenever and wherever in the world it may be required."

This "deployability" readiness is the end objective of current brigade efforts and is being built on a framework of personnel materiel, and unit readiness.

Last week the brigade's 3rd Bn, 7th Inf was the first battalion size unit to undergo Preparation of Replacements for Overseas Movement (POR) qualification checks to insure that its personnel are ready on an instantaneous basis for emergency deployment. All units in the 197th are scheduled to be processed in the same manner by a special POR team.

"Every soldier in the brigade will go through a POR check on a periodic basis," stated LTC Jerry K. Patterson, brigade assistant commander for readiness. "Of course, every soldier still has a personal responsibility to be ready."

The POR team consists of elements of the brigade's adjutant general, inspector general, legal, and medical sections. Assistance in insuring that personal finance records are in order is being given by post finance.

Checks by the POR team range from a thorough examination of medical records to insure that all immunizations are up to date to a check of ID cards and legal documents such as powers of attorney and wills.

While the POR team is checking for errors in personal paperwork and insuring that everything is up to date, the units cover other areas of personal readiness to include individual weapons and equipment, protective masks, and personal clothing. Physical shape and job qualification are included as important elements of every soldier's readiness.

All of this work is expected to better prepare every brigade unit for Readiness Training Exercises that may be called at any time after July 15. The exercises can be directed by company, battalion, brigade, or higher level commanders.

"A soldier's mission is to be combat ready wherever and whenever your country needs you," concluded COL Steele's policy letter, "and I have every confidence that each unit of the brigade will leave no effort undone in accomplishing that mission."

Dental hygiene in the field is important

By W.R. Cage

The service is free and you don't need an appointment! Free service in the Army is commonplace but service without an appointment is a rarity.

That's the way it was for troops of the 197th Spt Bn, 197th Inf Bde, recently during a field training exercise when Co B (Med) of the support battalion initiated use of its field dental hygienist set.

"Would you believe a lot of people don't know how to brush their teeth?" asked LT Robert R. Campbell, the clearing platoon leader of the medical company, as he explained the new field operation. "Now that we have the equipment and the dental hygienist why not initiate a program whereby we can clean a man's teeth while we are in the field and also provide instruction in the proper method of brushing the teeth and the use of dental floss."

The program was started for good reason. Not only are teeth cleaned but the dental hygienist also gets to use the field equipment.

"I normally work in Dental Clinic 5," said PFC Mike Bruce, the unit's dental hygienist, "but now that we have our field set I will be with the unit during field exercises, and still be able to perform the job I was trained for." When not in the field, Bruce will continue to work in the dental clinic.

Bruce's first patient was PFC Troy Burchett. "With the equipment we have I can clean teeth manually or with power equipment. This field set is about as good as the equipment we have in the dental clinic and it allows me to perform the same service.

In addition I can be sure that our field set is properly maintained and operational at all times," concluded Bruce, a native of Dayton, Washington, and a graduate of the dental hygienist course and the dental assistant course at Ft. Sam Houston, Texas.

Assisting Bruce in the field operation is PVT Odell Clark, a dental assistant in Dental Clinic 6. "I wanted to become a male nurse but thought I would give the Army a try before going to college. An Army recruiter told me about the dental assistant program and the training I would receive at Ft. Sam Houston, so I took him up on it. I received the schooling I was promised and I am satisfied with my dual assignment working in X-ray at the dental clinic and with the unit when we are in the field. I have no regrets."

"This is one of the few services we are able to perform without a physician being present and we are determined to make the most of it," says CPT Robert T. Dingley, commander of the medical company. "Bruce and Clark have a lot of experience in this type of work and they will set up shop during every field training exercise. In other words we are open for business."

U.S. Soldiers' and Airmen's home has history represented by residents

BY KAREN DRAKE

Situated on a high plateau overlooking Capitol Hill and the Washington Monument is a combination of yesterday, today and tomorrow.

Every enlisted man and woman and every warrant officer in the regular Army and Air Force contributes ten cents each month toward the support of this unique haven of American Military History.

The place is the U.S. Soldiers' and Airmen's Home in Washington, D.C., residence of over 2700 soldiers, airmen, WACs and WAFs. People who are a calibration of American History ranging from the "Sinking of the Maine" in Havana Harbor to the jungles of the A Shau Valley of Vietnam.

From "Sergeant" Earl Harkins, the 87-year-old Indian-War fighter working on a leather pouch in the crafshop to Warrant Officer Joe Miller, theater manager, the residents of the home manifest their personalities in their endeavors.

They are not just old soldiers, but special individuals whose lives are as full of the comedies and tragedies of life as the 45,000 novels in the Home's library.

Covering 300 acres of land and bordering on the campus of Catholic University, the home is far from the "Rest Home" image usually associated with retirement.

Residents of the Soldiers' and Airmen's Home fall into three categories. Discharged enlisted men or women and warrant officers of the regular Army and Air Force who have: (1), served 20 years or more as a warrant officer or enlisted personnel; (2), have a service connected disability causing them to be unable to earn a living; or (3), have a non-service connected disability rendering them unable to support themselves and have served in a war. Korea and Vietnam veterans are qualified for admission.

From the 500-bed Pipes Hospital to the nine-hole golf course, the home has all the physical attributes of a mini-community. A bowling alley, three chapels, a theater, a bank and beauty, barber and tailor shops all enhance the setting.

Just as any community, the Home has a governing body with a staff numbering over 1200 people. From the nurses on the wards to the cooks in the dining room, these individuals add the personal touch to the home.

Within one-half hour, the entire resident population is served their meals in the dining facility and they do not even have to move from their seats. A special section of the "Mess Hall" is set aside for the physically handicapped and those on special diets.

Right down to cakes on members' birthdays, the home treats each member individually.

Another example of how the Home Administration caters to the residents of the community is shown through its selection of movies for the theater. "Buck Rogers" and "Gone With the Wind" are far more popular than "American Graffiti." Because of this, the home has a special contract with Washington film agencies to supply movies which the members want to see rather than what is available on the local market.

If a resident does not desire to eat in the official dining facility, he may go to one of the canteens serving everything from full course meals to hamburgers and hot dogs.

Services such as the beauty shop, canteens and tailor shops are run by a concessionaire and prices are comparable to those charged at metropolitan-area stores. The Home's equivalent to a Post Exchange is filled with stock ranging from this month's Playboy to colorful blue or cranberry knit suits in the latest styles.

Because the residents do not pay a single dime to stay at the home, and in addition receive full benefits of retirement and Social Security plus have the opportunity for employment in or outside an independent spirit reigns throughout the community.

Some of the members' jobs range from janitorial duties on the grounds to interpreters in the Washington area. Many of the members are working on advanced degrees. Artists, authors, and world travelers are equally at home there.

Other welcomed additions to the Home are the 84 WACs and WAFs residing in the modern Lady Sheraton Building. These are the only women living on the grounds due to their honorable service to their country.

Members are required to spend at least 50 per cent of their time at the home, however they can apply for furloughs. The longest absence allowed is three months, however if this is taken, it means the member must store his property and relinquish his current room.

Representatives from the Veterans Administration, Internal Revenue Service, Social Security Administration, Retired Army and Air Force Activities Branch and Office of the Air Force Judge Advocate General visit the home and keep the residents up to date as well as helping them with any personal problems.

Established by an Act of Congress in 1851, the Soldiers' and Airmen's Home was first situated in New Orleans. In December of 1851 it was moved to 17th Street in Washington and in the next year came to its present location.

Funds for the home came from a draft for $118,000, part of the tribute levied on Mexico City by General Winfield Scott, and from an initial congressional allocation of $54,000. Since this initial congressional funding, no tax payers' money has been used to support the home.

It has been supported completely by the ten cent monthly deductions from the pay of enlisted men and women and warrant officers in the regular Army and Air Force, plus various fees and forfeitures from Article 15s and Court Marshals served on enlisted and warrant officer personnel. Another added source of revenue comes from the interest earned on the U.S. Soldiers' Trust Fund in the U.S. Treasury.

The U.S. Soldiers' and Airmen's Home belongs to the American Soldier, Airman, WAC and WAF. Even if you never go to the home, you have still contributed to its success. The members of the home have now completed their duties and stacked arms. They have their yesterday, we have our tomorrow.

34th Med Bn has upsetting week of softball

A forfeit in the fifth inning enabled the 690th Med Co a win over Med Co, MAH in 34th Med Bn softball action June 25.

690th tied the game in the top of the fifth with a sacrifice fly and with two outs in the inning. Med Co's coach reappeared back on the field and the umpire called the game which ended in a forfeit and a 690th Med Co victory.

The 2d Evac Hospital bounced back from their defeat last week to upset the number one 546th Med Co team, 18-14.

2d Evac jumped to an early lead in the first inning with four runs. Wilson Ingram started it off with a single. Following him was Ricky Belk with a double and back to back home runs by Ronald Messer and Wilmont McLaughlin.

546th struck back with two runs in the first from a two run homer by Dale Overmann. Lightning struck once again the second inning for the 546th with a double from Joseph Suddith, and singles from Dexter Turner, Bob Gagne, Overmann and Warren Jillson making the score 7-4.

Two straight doubles and seven consecutive singles by 2d Evac hitters turned the game around completely and after three innings, 2d Evac had an 11-7 lead.

Five more runs were added by 546th in the fourth and two in the fifth giving them the lead, 14-11. 2nd Evac came back to ice the game in the sixth inning with four runs behind the hitting of Belk, John Fogarty, Larry Stanley and Larry Robinson. Three more runs were added for 2d Evac in the top of the seventh ending the game at 18-14.

Dental Co lost a heart breaker to the 498th Med Co, 7-6.

With the game tied at 6-6 in the bottom of the seventh, 498th's Larry Blackwood got on base with a hit and was advanced to third. Rick Kessock came to bat and hit a long fly ball which was caught but it enabled Blackwood to tag up and score the winning run.

The top hitters in the game were Blackwood and Roger Dupréy who combined a total of six hits.

Rod and Gun Club Notes

Independence Day fishing contest had large turnout

By Bill Kloebe

More than 200 fishermen participated in the Independence Day Fishing Contest sponsored by the Rod and Gun Club and DFAE.

The number of fishermen exceeded the expectations of CPTs Tom Waller and Fred Aronow, project officers for the event but Russ Pond and Pool fishing failed to come up to the expectations of the fishermen. The monster fish occasionally seen from the banks failed to respond to any of the lures offered last Thursday and the twenty-pound carp and 15-pound catfish are still swimming around in the pond and pool.

The largest catfish registered all day weighed in at 4-pounds, 5-ounces. Clem Slater registered it to take first prize. Second place in the catfish contest went to Bill Hautt who had a 4-pound, 4-ounce catch. Third place went to Peter Hautt and fourth place to Mike Meiasavage.

Walter Scott won the bream contest with a 1-pound, 7-ounce entry. Second place went to Jay Goff with a 7-ounce catch. Patricia Wallace barely edged out her brother Buddy for third place with a 6-ounce entry. Buddy registered a 5-ounce catch.

July Fishing Contest

Peter Hautt must be a busy fisherman this month. He is also one of the leaders of the Rod and Gun Club July Fishing Derby. Peter leads the club contest in the bream category with a 9-ounce bream he took from Kings Pond.

Martin Perry leads the catfish contest with a 9-pound, 12-ounce catch from Twilight Pond.

A familiar name cropped up in the bass contest this month. Pete Swiderek is leading this event with a 7-pound, 6-ounce catch from Harps Pond. A few years ago Pete or his father seemed to have a monopoly on the monthly bass prize. Just about all of their catches came from Harps Pond. Bass fishermen are in for some rough competition if the Swiderek father-son team begin to operate regularly in the club competition.

There has been quite a bit of activity in the contest this month. More members are participating. The club holds a contest each month. All members are eligible to enter. Merchandise certificates are given to fishermen registering the largest bass, bream and catfish each month. Each contest begins on the first day and ends on the last day of the month.

There are few rules. Members must catch the fish at one of the ponds on post and bring them to Victory Lodge for weight verification and registration. Fish caught after operating hours may be brought in and registered the next day.

Hunting Safety Orientation

There have been quite a few complaints about the regulation requiring all hunters to receive a safety orientation before hunting on post. There have been quite a few comments in favor of the regulation too. Those in favor were at one time near victims of some hunters carelessness. Whether you are in favor or not isn't the question. Come dove season and the military police are going to be looking for the stamp mark on your permit that indicates you have attended an orientation.

The first of these orientations will be held at Victory Lodge at 6 p.m., July 31. Other classes have been scheduled for the same place and hour on August 7, 14, 21 and 28. Dove season dates haven't been announced yet but opening day is usually during the first part of September. And don't miss the club general membership meeting at 6 p.m. July 17.

Anderson cracks nine-year record

SFC Hershel Anderson of the U. S. Army Marksmanship Unit, cracked a nine year old record last weekend by firing a 2675-172X in the Georgia State Pistol Championships to eclipse the old National Pistol Record of 2674-161X set in 1965 by CPO (Ret.) Donald Hamilton.

Anderson shaped his phenomenal feat by winning the first two sub-aggregates; the .22 Caliber Aggregate with an 893-55X and then set a second National Record in the Center Fire Aggregate, breaking his own record by one point, with an 895-60x. In the final match, SSG John Scinski, U. S. Army Marksmanship Unit, captured the .45 Caliber Aggregate with an 88-52X, slipping by Anderson who finished second with an 887-57X.

Anderson, last years National Pistol Champion, is now odds on favorite to repeat in the Nationals at Camp Perry, Ohio this year, which is to be fired on July 27-31.

Rounding out the individual standings was SSG John Scinski placing second with a 2661-138X and third place going to SFC Harland Rennolds both of the U. S. Army Marksmanship Unit, with a 2645-139X.

In team competition three National Records were set by a four woman Army Team composed of CPT Sharon Best, SFC Barbara Hile, SGT Beth Thomas and SP5 Kim Dyer, in .22 Caliber, Center Fire and .45 Caliber team matches with respective scores of 1144, 1128 and 1134. In nearly three successive weeks this same team has raised these records five times.

In open team competition the U.S. Army "Blue" Team made up of SFC Anderson, SSG Scinski, SFC Rennolds and SFC Bonnie Harmon won all three events with relative ease scoring 1181-57X in the .22 Caliber phase, 1183-62X in Center Fire and 1176-63X in .45 Caliber.

Co A retains perfect record

In STB's Yellow Division, 1st place Co A, 1/29th Infantry added still two more victories to their already perfect record, by sweeping a double-header from Co D of the PIONEERS.

In game one of the two-game series, Danny Keith put on another virtual one-man show as he went 4 for 4 at the plate with a double, home-run and six RBI's. In addition, he raised his personal batting average to .827, the highest in the PIONEER battalion.

Ken Hight of Co A also hit well for the Mechanized Infantrymen as did Tim DeBey — both men hitting 3 for 4 and knocking in a total of 5 runs.

Greg Collins sparked defensively at second base for Co D, and Jesse Wheeler hit a home-run in the losing effort, but none if it was good enough to stop

Co A as they romped to a 12-14 victory.

The second game of the double-header was almost an instant replay of the first, as Co A once again finished on top by a score of 12-4.

Danny Keith drove in three runs for Co A and also threw out a man at home plate from his position deep in center-field.

Sandy MacPherson and Joel Royal drove in three runs each for the winners and both men hit 3 for 4 at the plate, each of them with a double and a triple.

Royal, Co A's star pitcher, has also earned a reputation in the PIONEER league as one of the best place hitters in the Yellow Division. He consistently hits the ball with uncanny accuracy just outside of the defensive teams' reach, in left, right or center fields. According to Royal, "I just hit 'em where they ain't."

Once again, Ken Hight and Tim DeBey teamed up for a combined total of six hits, Hight with a double and 2 RBI's and DeBey knocking a double, triple and one run batted in.

The Co A victory moved them closer to a pennant in the PIONEER league, where they now stand at 12 wins and no losses.

NFL star, now learning ways of the Infantry

Dick Cunningham, a seven year veteran of the National Football League "wars" is now learning the fine art of combat — the Infantry School way.

A former Buffalo Bills linebacker and now the property of the Houston Oilers, 2LT Richard Cunningham is a platoon leader with Co A, 1st Bn, 174th Inf. (Mech.) of the New York National Guard. He is spending his off-season time attending the Infantry Officer Basic Course.

"I could have done this by correspondence course," Cunningham stated. "But I had the time and decided it would be more meaningful to take the resident course."

Cunningham comes from a military family. "My father is a retired Air Force officer," he said. "I took two years of Air Force ROTC at the University of Arkansas but I was more interested in the Army's Special Forces or Rangers."

"When I was drafted by the pros, I made a decision to fulfill my military duty by joining the National Guard. After six years as an enlisted man, I found time last summer to attend the New York State National Guard OCS program and was commissioned a second lieutenant."

"The highlight of IOBC has got to be mech (mechanized infantry) week. I had the opportunity to act as platoon leader. Having responsibility for four tracks and 40 plus people — that is what its all about. I can't say enough about the instructors. CPT's Nelson (Dale), Haugen (Warren) and Patton (Robert) are a real credit to the Infantry School."

Cunningham was a standout high school football player in the state of Texas. He played on the same team with Atlanta Falcon's linebacker, Tommy Nobis.

"Tommy and I went to Thomas Jefferson H.S. in San Antonio. Tommy was and still is a great competitor."

Cunningham then spent his college days playing

Youth camp is expanding

Co D, 43rd Engr. Bn, 36th Engr Grp recently completed a civic action project at the Valley Youth Camp in Hamilton, Ga. The scope of the construction was to clear six acres of land so that the Youth Camp could expand its recreational and camping facilities.

Access roads to the camp were also upgraded along with building of a new access road into the newly cleared area.

The company's earthmoving platoon bivouacked on the construction site which caused the scheduled duration of the project to be cut by two days.

against Nobis as he went on to be a starting offensive tackle for Frank Broyles at the University of Arkansas while Nobis was winning All-American honors at the University of Texas.

"During my three years at Arkansas our team record was 29-3 and we won two Southwest Conference championships."

"In the 1967 draft I was picked by the Buffalo Bills and the Detroit Lions. I signed with the Bills. For the first two years I played offensive tackle but my playing weight was only 230. When the chance came to convert to linebacker I took it."

Cunningham graduates from IOBC today and is scheduled to report to the Houston Oilers training camp on Saturday. The NFL players strike may change his plans.

Three fine cars

Volvo 144

Audi 100 LS

Toyota Mark II

Isn't the possibility of saving up to $1000 worth checking out all of them?

All three of these luxurious and comfortable cars are pretty much the same size, inside and out. The major difference is in what you get for the money.

Take the 4-cylinder Volvo 144, for instance. It comes with reclining bucket seats, carpeting, electric rear window defogger, tinted glass, whitewall radial tires, an electric clock and a fold-down center armrest in the back seat.

So does the Mark II by Toyota. But the Mark II also has a 6-cylinder engine. Plus power steering as standard equipment, beginning with last January's production. Yet the Mark II is priced around $600* less than the Volvo 144.

Now take the Audi 100 LS 4-door Sedan. If you added the price of the things that come standard on the Toyota Mark II but not the Audi, then the Audi would probably be priced around $1000* more than the Toyota Mark II.

So, if you're looking for luxury and comfort in a small car, doesn't it make sense to check out all three?

See how much car your money can buy.

TOYOTA
Small car specialists for 40 years.

MSRP prices do not include destination charges, state and local taxes, optional equipment or special equipment required by state laws. Toyota Mark II 4-door MSRP price—$4295. Audi 100 LS 4-door West Coast MSRP price—$5210. Optional equipment suggested retail prices: Power steering $175, tinted glass $85. Volvo 144 4-door Sedan, West Coast MSRP price—$4940. Standard fuel injection and power disc brakes on all 4-wheels, double factory undercoating... not available on Mark II.

Tae Kwon-Do gains popularity as self-defense

"Keep up your guard! That's it," commends SP5 Michael Long of HHB, 2nd Bn, 10th FA, 197th Inf Bde as he instructs soldiers of the unit in the art of Tae Kwon-Do.

SP5 Long explained, "Tae Kwon-Do is the Korean equivalent to Karate and is a system of unarmed self-defense, originating in Eastern Asia. It involves the use of the hands, elbows, knees, or feet for kicks and blows to vulnerable parts of the body such as the temple, throat, and groin."

Unlike Karate where there is little personal contact, Tae Kwon-Do does have personal contact when sparring.

"In Korea they especially stress the body contact portion while instructing so that the individual will not only know the feel of what a light blow is like but, how to defend against a much more powerful blow," stated SP5 Long.

There is some throwing of the opponents; however, this is only done when the students are quite advanced. The adversary is mainly immobilized by well directed powerful blows delivered, if possible, from a safe distance.

"I took up the sport while stationed in Korea. We would practice six days a week for three hours each session. The training lasted some ten months and you learn to do things that you never thought you could do, like defending yourself from more than one attacker. I obtained a standing of first degree black belt while stationed in Korea.

SP5 Long concluded, "I work out about four times a week to keep in shape, I should practice more. Right now I am thinking of staying in the Army and if possible I would like to go back to Korea and take advanced instruction."

Benning ladies bring home golf honors.

Bev Mullins and Mickey Harris carried home high honors to Ft. Benning after competing in the recent All-Service Dependents Golf Tournament at Offutt Air Force Base, Nebraska.

Playing against 95 lady golfers representing every branch of military service, Mrs. Mullins posted a 54 hole total of 256 to finish as runnerup in the championship flight.

Mrs. Harris checked in with the low score in the 3rd flight competition to win the flight championship of this 13th annual event.

Dick Dosek wins 4th of July golf tournament

Dick Dosek won the championship of the Recreation Services Independence Day Golf Tourney played at the Sand Hill Golf Course over the past weekend. Bill Johnson was runnerup in the championship flight.

This years event drew 52 competitors from the ranks of active duty and retired military personnel. Jim Sparks was the winner of the 1st flight with Robert Heshizer runnerup.

Charles Jones captured the 2nd flight championship as Kirk Jones finished as the runnerup.

Bill Conner won the closest to the pin contest on the second hole. Bob Pounds won a similar contest on the par 3 fourth hole.

West Pointer

assigned to 43rd Engrs

Cadet Raymond Odeirno, a second-classman at West Point has been assigned to Co D, 43rd Engr, Bn, 36th Engr Gp, for the month of July. His assignment is part of the Army Orientation Training (AOT) program at USMA.

The objective of the AOT Program is to provide Cadets with realistic leadership experience while assigned to units of the active Army and performing duties normally given to newly assigned second lieutenants.

Co D will go to the field twice during July, providing Cadet Odeirno with the valuable experience of working with troops in the field as well as in the garrison. Cadet Odeirno will be closely associated with training while the company is in the garrison and with a vertical construction platoon as its platoon assists platoon leaders while the unit is in the field.

Graduating cadets of recent classes at USMA consistently report that the most valuable leadership development opportunity of their four-year training program at the academy was provided by their AOT experience.

How did that PFC become SP5 so fast

By C. B. HOOVER
 "What's going on?"—"What do you mean?" were some of the questions asked recently by the soldiers of Co D, 197th Spt Bn 197th Inf Bde as the company's first "Stripes for Skills" enlistee Larry R. Paul was promoted from PFC to SP5.
 "Everyone was wondering what was going on when PFC Paul was promoted to SP5," commented CPT Dennis D. Palmer, the adjutant for the 197th Spt Bn. "Some people knew about the program; however, they had never seen it in action before. Also SP5 Paul is the first soldier to come to the brigade under the 'Stripes for Skills' program," CPT Palmer concluded.
 The U.S. Army's Stripes for Skill Program is designed to attract and utilize applicants possessing civilian acquired skills required by the Army. Recognition of such persons are accelerated promotion based on the skill level possessed.

 "I was an auto and body repairman in my home town of DeFuniak Springs, Fla. There I worked at Crill Ford Co.," stated Paul.

"Before the fuel crunch I was working some 65 hours a week so family and I could make ends meet. We just never seemed to be able to get ahead with medical bills and all," continued Paul. "Then the fuel crunch came and there just wasn't any work. I had been in the National Guard for four years and had another two to go and I knew of the Stripes for Skills Program and inquired about it. I enlisted in April as a PFC and after eight weeks on the job I was given a satisfactory rating and promoted to SP5."

"I came into the Army for job satisfaction, the financial, medical and other benefits offered. We now have our bills paid and have managed to accumulate some savings and I am happy with my job. I can honestly say the Army has kept its end of the bargain on my enlistment and I am thinking about staying in," concluded Paul, who is his unit's auto and body repairman.

SFC Leroy B. Kellen, the Service and Recovery platoon sergeant and Paul's supervisor remarked, "If the Army has any more men coming to the unit under the Stripes for Skill Program I sure would like to have them. The program is the best thing that I have seen happen to the Army."

3/7th travels 24 miles—on foot

By Bob Cowles

"Hey man, where were you the other day? Our company went on a 24 mile march and we really enjoyed it. Three days later, we went on a five mile run with the entire battalion."
 "The men are really proud of themselves and they have been doing a lot of boasting," commented CPT Edward H. Burrell, Cbt Spt Co commander.

"They have every right to be proud and do a little bragging," CPT Burrell continued. "They accomplished a great feat last week, and many of them did not think they had it in them."

The men of the 3/17th Cbt Spt Co participated in 24-mile march, which started at 8 a.m. and ended at 4 p.m., it was a confidence and endurance builder held in conjunction with the company's adventure training program.

"We forced marched the first ten miles completing them in two hours," said CPT Burrell. "That's averaging a mile every 12 minutes."

At the end of 14.7 miles the company stopped for lunch. After eating a "foot check" was conducted to make sure everyone was alright. Then it was back on the road again.

After marching the 24 miles in 85 degree weather the men were trucked back to the company area. "Everybody was pretty sore and tired when we returned," commented SGT Frank Toles. "I went home and laid in the bathtub for two hours and then went to sleep."

"Yeah," added PFC Ronald Gray, "I don't think anyone did anything that night. As for myself, I slept from the time we returned until the next morning."

Only three days after the 24-mile march the Cbt Spt Co joined the rest of the "Cottonbalers" in a five mile run. The whole battalion ran from Kelley Hill to Twilight Pond and around the pond twice. They then stopped and had breakfast. After eating the unit marched back to Kelley Hill.

The five-mile run was completed in 45 minutes. "We did good in the five-mile run," commented CPT Burrell. "We only had one man drop behind."

"The run kinda worked out the kinks from the 24-mile march," said SGT Toles.

PFC Victor Sprayberry felt that "the run wasn't as tiring as the march."

"We have nothing similar to the march planned for a while," said CPT Burrell. "Our company suffered a few casualties but nothing serious. Just some 24 to 72 hour profiles on the feet to give the blisters time to heal."

When asked what a 24-mile march and a five-mile run in one week did for the morale of the unit, CPT Burrell answered, "It really boosted the morale!"

Best mess award goes to 2/69th

"Cooperation is the key in winning the Best Dining Facility competition," said SFC Leroy Hester, dining facility manager for the 2nd Bn 69th Armor (Speed and Power) 197th Inf Bde. The unit won the competition for May in the large dining facility category.

The selection of the best dining facility is based on several criteria, among them the quality of food served, the acceptability of the food by the soldiers, food conservation, dining and dining facility administration. The dining facility consists of a main dining hall which serves the main meals and an annex which serves short orders to the tankers.

The Best Dining Facility award was presented to SFC Leroy Hester by COL Wallace F. Veaudry, Assistant Commander, USAIC

2/10th becomes first to complete ORT in 197th

By Bob Thomas

Neither sweltering heat nor summer rain could dampen the "redleg spirit" of B Btry, 2nd Bn, 10th FA as the unit became the first element of the 197th Inf Bde to complete its Operational Readiness Test (ORT).

"The primary purpose of the ORT," explained CPT James L. Hineline, firing battery umpire, "is to evaluate the ability of the unit to perform its assigned mission through simulated conditions."

The three-day ORT began July 9 and subjected the unit to a variety of simulated combat situations including alert notification, preparation for a tactical operation, night movement, the airmobile movement of a gun section and the post-tactical inspection.

"This is by far the most difficult test any unit of the brigade has taken," CPT Hineline added. "Bravo Battery's performance was commendable."

Within the current fiscal year all units of the 197th Inf Bde will be tested under the program. Battalion-size ORTs are also scheduled for the 197th Inf Bde.

"The test is O.K. but it is awful hot out here," stated PFC Addison Wright, Jr. as he crouched in a foxhole at the northeast limits of Ft. Benning. "It must be 95 degrees out here."

One highlight of the test was an airmobile operation involving two CH-47 Chinook helicopters from the 196th Avn Co of Ft. Bragg, N.C. The aircrafts were used to transport an advance party to a new position while the remainder of the battery moved by motor convoy. One gun section was included in the advance party.

"I'll miss this helicopter ride," stated SP4 David Jackson, the battery commander's driver. "I'll have to drive my vehicle to the new position."

"I really like flying," exclaimed PVC Michael Pickett as he awaited the landing of one of the big Chinooks "We rode in helicopters during AIT (Advanced Individual Training) at Ft. Sill, Okla. but this is the first time here."

Let GAC put a jingle in your dufflebag.

The way prices are going right now—you may need more money than you thought you'd need. GAC wants to lend you all the money you'll need to help beat prices and to buy the bargains you want before they're gone.

You don't have to make a lot to borrow a lot at GAC. The size of your loan depends on many things: the bills you have or have had. What you own or want to buy. The kind of work you do. And, because you wear a uniform, the kind of work you do rates very high with GAC. A steady income makes it easier for you to get a loan. But, more important, GAC wants to serve you because you serve your country. Whatever your needs, whatever the reason, let GAC put a jingle in your dufflebag.

27th annual 1st Cav reunion reservations being taken now

Reservations are now being accepted for the 27th annual 1st Cavalry Division Reunion, scheduled for August 1 through 4 at the Ralston Hotel in Columbus.

The registration fee is $12.50, which includes the banquet, a barbecue on Friday, August 2, and transportation to and from social activities. Registration without the banquet is $5.50.

A full schedule of events has been planned for the reunion. Registration will be at the Ralston Hotel lobby from 1 p.m. to 9 p.m. on Thursday, August 1. Hospitality suites will be open during registration, and a social hour will be held in the Ralston ballroom from 5 to 7 p.m.

Registration will resume on Friday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. MG Thomas M. Tarpley will welcome members of the Division at the Airborne area at 9:30 p.m. Following the welcome, an Airborne demonstration will be held.

At 11 a.m., Victory Lodge will be the scene of a Rangers in Action demonstration, followed by a barbecue. At 2:30 p.m. the Assistant Commandant of the U.S. Army Infantry School will give a welcome in Infantry Hall, and members will see a special presentation on the Infantry School.

At 3 p.m. a 1st Cavalry presentation will be given in Marshall Auditorium, and at 4 p.m. the 1st Cavalry Division Horse Platoon from Ft. Hood, Tex., will perform a special demonstration on York Field, followed by an honors ceremony for the Division. A visit to the National Infantry Museum is scheduled for 5 p.m.

On Saturday, following unit and business meetings in the Ralston Hotel, a golf tournament will be held at 1:30 p.m. at the Ft. Benning Country Club. Tours to Callaway Gardens and the Little White House will also be available on Saturday afternoon beginning at 12:45 p.m.

Cocktails will be served on the Ralston Roof at 7 p.m. At 8 p.m. the annual dinner will be held in the Ralston Ballroom. Former commanders of the 1st Cavalry Division will speak at the banquet. A dance will be held afterward from 10 p.m. to 1 a.m.

On Sunday morning, following coffee and doughnuts in the Georgia Room of the Ralston, a memorial service for fallen members of the Division will be held at 10 a.m. at the 1st Cavalry Division Memorial at the Georgia Welcome Center on Victory Drive. The reunion will end after the memorial service.

Registration forms can be obtained from MAJ Gerald W. Sharpe, Secretary of the Follow Me Chapter of the 1st Cavalry Division Association. MAJ Sharpe can be reached at the Artillery Committee, U.S. Army Infantry School, by calling 545-2841, 545-2760, or 545-3915.

"Some people hesitate before coming in to see apartment," states PVT Arthur R. Taylor as he pets his skunk Muffins. (PHOTO BY C. HOOVER)

"Muffins is as good as a cat"

"Most people are uneasy around Muffins until they get to know him," stated PVT Arthur R. Taylor, who works as a clerk in the S-1 section of the 3rd Bn, 7th Inf, 197th Inf Bde.

Who is Muffins? Muffins, is a pet skunk owned by PVT Taylor and his wife Merri.

"We started in southern California, where we raised minks, but we moved to Kansas then to Minnesota, and more moves. By the time it was all over, in the sense of moving, we had just about covered the United States," commented PVT Taylor.

"After my dad was injured in an accident, and the work of raising mink was too much, we moved back to Minnesota and there he started to raise skunks. They require very little care and there is a very good market for them as pets.

"Skunks are very loving pets. At least as much as a cat. Of course everyone when thinking of a skunk thinks of the black and white ones, but there are other colors," continued PVT Taylor. "There is the brown and white, pure white, silver sides, and others. Presently my dad is trying to breed a sapphire and white skunk, but is having some problems."

Concluding PVT Taylor stated, "We have had Muffins for about a year. Skunks are very easy to house break and use litter boxes like cats. They are good mousers and will also eat cock-roaches, and crickets. The truth is they will eat just about anything. Muffins favorite dish is eggs with catsup on them.

"The only problem I have had with him is when he goes under the bed and goes to sleep, his snoring gets to me."

Doctor shortage being felt at MAH

The shortage of military doctors and dentists is being felt at Martin Army Hospital and post dental clinics. The effect on those who use these Army facilities will become increasingly apparent.

By summer's end, the number of physicians assigned to MAH will drop to an all-time low of 73, compared to the 104 doctors at the hospital last year. The critical area is the loss of 27 general medical officers. This has made it necessary for specialists to work in the emergency room making them unavailable for practice of their badly needed specialties. Meanwhile, Dental Service will be staffed by 36% fewer dentists than in the past year. 58 dentists are on the staff this year compared to 87 carried a year ago.

MAH plans to continue medical service to all categories of patients, but the result of the shortage will be obvious. "More cases will be referred to civilian physicians with certificates of non-availability of service," stated MAH commander, COL John White. "Other steps will include transfer of patients to other Army medical facilities."

Reduction in the number of dentists will have an impact on the amount and scope of care available to retired military patients and all dependent patients.

Dental care for dependents and retired military is on a "space available" basis. "This means that in spite of the huge patient load of almost 42,000 patients, the Ft. Benning Dental Activity has been augmented by only six dentists to treat dependents and retired patients," stated COL Millard Deyoung, Dental Surgeon.

The most noticeable effect of the shortage will be increased waiting time for routine medical treatment. Elective dental procedures and some specialty care will be restricted to active duty patients and waiting time for routine dental care for non-military patients will be longer.

The hospital has started a massive information effort to limit emergency room use to patients with genuine need for quick medical assistance. COL White estimates that "considerably less than half" of the patients now using emergency room facilities are true emergency patients.

"Cooperation by people in using the emergency room for a genuine need would benefit everyone. Obviously, if the physician-specialists now manning the emergency room could cut down on their long hours and present workload, they would be available in other pressing areas," COL White observed.

COL Deyoung is optimistic that as Dental Activity begins new programs the reduction in services can be limited. "It is hoped that the introduction of new concepts such as the Dental Therapist's Program and the Oral Diagnosis Center that the numerical reduction in dental officers can be partially offset by increased efficiency in the Dental Service," evaluated COL Deyoung.

2-year extension granted to vets to use GI Bill

A new law gives veterans ten years from date of discharge in which to complete their education under the GI Bill. Heretofore, veterans have been allowed eight years to complete their GI Bill education.

The new ten-year delimiting date was originally a part of a general overhaul of the GI Bill which is under consideration by a joint Senate and House Conference Committee. Still being discussed are: proposed increases in education allowances (expected to be somewhere between 13 per cent and 18 per cent); an additional tuition allowance; a government loan program that would assist students who want to attend more expensive educational institutions, and a proposed increase in the number of months of education eligibility under the GI Bill whereby veterans could receive up to 45 months of training. The current limitation is 36 months.

Keeping a promise to join the first Georgia pine (tree) they saw at Fort Benning after their three weeks of desert and mountain training at Fort Bliss, Texas, are SP4 Richard Hagood, left, and SP4 Hayward Mackins. The soldiers of Co C, 1st

How do you feel about the new policy of Article 15's becoming a permanent part of your military records?

PVT Robert W. White

"I do not think it is fair. Just because you make mistakes does not mean they should follow you all through your career."

SP4 David Litman

"The old system was better. The new system is like holding a grudge against someone for life."

SSG Albert Schroeder

"Outstanding! Just like in civilian life, anything you do is held against you. That way we can weed out the bad ones."

PFC Charles Blake

"I think it should have remained as it was."

SGT Jerome Jones

"I think it should be changed. It will be pretty hard for a guy to stay in the service with an Article 15."

SSG Alfonso Adorno
Co B 3rd Bn 5th Inf Panama

"Definitely wrong. I disagree with it. A man can get an Article 15 for anything say for haircuts or being late or for any minor incident that is insignificant."

SP4 Vernon Clackley
HHC Hqs Comd Chaplin Section

"If they are a permanent part of your record I think they will become less noticable. I do not think they will be given out as much."

Editorial

The old slap on the wrist will now have lasting effect

In the Army's quest for a more professional soldier, another change has been made in the record system.

The UCMJ Article 15, a long standing slap on the wrist, is now a more serious form of punishment with longer lasting effects. Article 15s now remain in both the field 201 file and the OMPF permanently, thus making them available for consideration by promotion boards and reenlistment councils.

Until now, a soldier could feel relatively unbothered by an Article 15 knowing that in two years it would be removed from his records. Now, he must be ever cautious, because an Article 15 early in his career could haunt him throughout his stay in the military.

The new change to AR 27-10 does allow some allowance for mistakes by a first timer. An Article 15 received within the first three years of service will be removed from the 201 file after two years but will still remain in the OMPF.

This change in policy gives the Article 15 added weight and punch. An Article 15 has long been received time and again by the same soldier without correcting his discipline as it is designed to do. Company commanders may also weigh their decisions more in giving Article 15s. Some commanders use the Article 15 when simple restriction or extra duty would work.

This change is just another step in the continuing effort to produce a professional soldier and to weed out the unfit soldiers. Professionalism is now, at an increasing rate, demanded from the GI and not just a good virtue.

Article 15

now a permanent part of your personnel file

by Heane Katzker

A recent policy on the filing of Article 15s makes them much more serious in their consequences than ever before.

The new policy is due to the decrease in the size of the Army. The Army felt that a more thorough evaluation of competing individuals was necessary. It is also a safeguard for the individual to ensure that Article 15 authority is exercised in a completely judicious manner.

An Article 15 now becomes a permanent part of both the Official Military Personnel File (OMPF) and the field 201 file. The OMPF is maintained at DA level, while the field 201 file is maintained by a servicing personnel unit or section.

Article 15s are now no longer removed from one's field 201 file after two years or upon separation from the Army. The record of an Article 15 was always a permanent part of the OMPF, but it was not considered by promotion boards if the commander requested that it not be considered.

Now an Article 15 is a permanent part of both military files, and a commander can no longer request that it not be considered for promotions. Any punishment that an officer, NCO or enlisted man or woman receives as a result of an Article 15, will be available to any board considering them for promotion or any other personnel action. This applies as long as one remains in service because of the permanent nature of the Article 15.

There is one exception in this change to AR 27-10. Enlisted men and women who have less than three years active Federal service at the time of the offense which caused the administration of the Article 15, will still have the permanent copy in their OMPF, but it will be removed from the field 201 file after two years, or upon separation from the Army.

Other personnel actions that may be affected under this new policy include records of any Article 15s received being studied by boards selecting candidates for command sergeants major and attendance at advanced NCO and sergeants major academies. In addition, these Article 15s will be considered during the qualitative management screening for E-7 through E-9.

Officers of all grades can expect that any Article 15 received will be available to boards considering them for AUS and RA promotions. Their selection for senior service colleges and Command and General Staff Colleges, as well as selection for unit command time, may also be affected by this retention and consideration of Article 15 punishment.

This new policy does affect soldiers who don't plan on making the Army a career! Repeated or serious violations of the UCMJ which are punished by Article 15 proceedings can result in administrative elimination action and the issuance of other than an honorable discharge. This could affect employment opportunities in civilian life, and receipt of veteran's benefits.

If faced with disciplinary action under Article 15, one must be allowed time to consult with a qualified lawyer before deciding on a course of action. This is an individual right. One must be given a reasonable time — normally 72 hours — to make a decision.

One can also request a public hearing, subject to military requirements, and may be accompanied by a spokesman of his or her choice. This person cannot examine or cross-examine any witness, unless permitted to do so by the commander imposing the punishment, but he can indicate to the commander that certain witnesses, if reasonably available, should be called and questioned by the commander.

The individual may call witnesses and present any documentary or real evidence in defense and/or extenuation and mitigation. The rules of evidence applicable to courts-martial do not apply, but any evidence presented should be of the best quality available.

The new policy states that those punishments which deal with a deprivation of liberty will not be executed if an appeal is filed within a reasonable amount of time, usually 15 days. This includes correctional custody, extra duty or restriction.

Unuspended punishments dealing with the forfeiture or detention of pay or the loss of stripes (reduction), will be executed whether or not one has an appeal pending.

ROTC getting high the hard way at Camp Merrill

For the past week and a half, the students of ROTC Ranger Class 10-74 have been "getting high" the hard way at Camp Frank D. Merrill — getting high in altitude, that is.

Camp Merrill is located near Dahlonega in the rugged mountains of north Georgia, where the ROTC cadets have been learning to conduct military operations in mountainous terrain. The mountain phase is the second phase of the Ranger training program.

The students, who are attending the Ranger School instead of the ROTC Advanced Summer Camp, first learn the basic techniques of patrolling, survival, hand to hand combat, land navigation and marksmanship during the opening Ft. Benning phase.

These techniques, as well as other specialized skills necessary for operating in the mountains at the high levels of efficiency for which the Rangers are well known, are refined during the mountain phase.

The 16-day mountain training schedule progresses at a Ranger pace — 16 to 24 hours a day of such subjects as rappelling, climbing a sheer rock face, negotiating mountain streams on "bridges" which consist of only two or three cables hastily set up.

The final phase of the Ranger training takes the ROTC students to Florida, where they operate against an irregularly organized force in the swampy terrain at Camp James E. Rudder at Eglin Air Force Base.

Scout Plt planning Canadian trip

By C. B. Hoover

"On rappel!" "On belay!" "Off belay!" "Off rappel!" were the commands given by the soldiers of the Scout Plt, Cbt Spt Co, 2nd Bn, 69th Armor as they underwent rappelling training last week given by the Ranger Department at Todd Field.

"The scouts are planning to go to Canada in September to train with a Canadian reconnaissance battalion and this training is necessary. Aside from that, this type of training offers a challenge to the soldiers and aids in improving their morale," commented CPT Chris Sautter the commander of Cbt Spt C.

LT Steve Arango, the scout platoon leader stated, "The whole platoon has now gone through basic rappelling and next we will learn to rappel from helicopters. We will be rappelling from them on the unit's upcoming organization day to show the wives of the soldiers just some of the things they do."

Feelings varied among the soldiers as they completed rappelling from the 55 foot tower.

"I had butterflies in my stomach the first time I looked down from the 55 foot tower but after a few rappels it's easier than the 20 foot tower," commented PFC Daryle L. Lucas.

SSG Ellis Smith commented, "This type of training builds the confidence of the individual soldier. It has helped them to overcome their fear of high places and should they ever be required to rappel during a mission they will know they can do it."

PFC Henry F. Hays concluded: "The first time off the tower I was frightened; however, I've been off five times now and I'm heading back up, it's great!"

3/7th's Co A takes best mess award for first time

By Bob Thomas

Members of the Co A, 3rd Bn, 7th Inf dining facility recently discovered that teamwork is the key to winning awards as the unit captured the Ft. Benning Best Dining Facility Award for June. "We have a good leader," stated first cook SP6 Harry Donnelly, speaking of the dining facility supervisor, SFC Clarence E. Ellis. "We all work together. We try harder and we put out the best food we can for the men."

The dining facility services three companies, Co B, 3/7th Co A (Admin), 197th Spt Bn and Co A 3/7th. It was the first time that the Alfa dining facility had captured the award of excellence, although Co C, 3/7th won it for 13 consecutive months.

"Everyone just made up their mind not to be second to Charlie Company again," stated PFC Roderick Greer. "We all worked together, putting out the extra effort we had to win. I've been in the 197th Inf Bde for 10 months and this is the first time I've worked in a dining facility that has won. It is a good feeling."

The Co A dining facility won the award based on food preparation, sanitation and acceptability of the food by the soldiers.

"I've been in the Army for almost 20 years," stated SFC Billy Cox, HHC, 3/7th Inf, "and this is one of the best dining facilities I've been in. It is obvious that the cooks really put out extra effort to please the men, and it pays off."

'Ole Doc Sez

What the thrill of racing can do for you

Howdy, Bub. Billy Bob, Clinton Demasters, Ar-nister Mullins, an' the Fairshorn boy all went to the stock car races last night to get the latest har-rasin' drivin' tops.

They watched that sanctioned mayhem of makin' little ones out of big ones, drank most of the beer in the concession stand, an' then jumped into Billy Bob's flivver for the drive home.

Y'know, that Billy Bob ain't wrapped too tight; he can't even drive good durin' the day sober, much less at night with a belly full of Milwaukee's finest.

They wuz makin' it homewards ok 'til they came onto the crest of Weathert Ridge. There wuz a bunch of kids inna car in front of Billy Bob yellin', laughin', screamin', an' jes generally enjoyin' theyselves.

Well Sir, Billy Bob took a final swig from his can of suds, threw the empty container outta the window, shifted down to second, squared 'way his baseball cap, popped the clutch whilst mashin' down on the 'cellerator, an' drove straight off the ridge, purty as you please. Billy Bob forgot where he wuz, an' wuz goin' to show them kids how to pass on the inside like they do at the raceway.

The way I see it, The Almighty wuz asitten' in the backseat of Billy Bob's car. It went twenty feet to the old mule trail road below an' came to an abrupt halt 'ginst the base of the only sycamore tree in the county. They wuz all awearin' seat belts, else we mighta had a real tragedy.

Them kids, Billy Bob wuz showin' off to, stopped when his car disappeared from view, an' brung them all to the hospital. Clinton Demasters wuz stove up some, an' Arn Mullins had some loose teeth, but the Fairshorn boy, an' Billy Bob wuz only shook up a little.

They brung in Billy Bob's car this mornin', an' I drove him down to the Police lot to view the remains. All the tires wuz flat, the springs wuz sprung, the windows wuz opaque, an' the radiator wuz half way to what wuz left of the windshield. I tole Billy Bob that he could paint a number onna side of his car, an' then he could enter it in next week's big race 'thout no problem. He couldn't even smile.

He came onto the hospital with me to see if Clint Demasters wuz able to go home today, an' I ain't seen him since. Howesomever, I seen Wilson Buckstar late this afternoon, an' he said that 'parrantly Billy Bob has seen the light, 'cause he wuz in Lem's Hardware alookin' at a ten speed two-wheeler with a bicycle clip on his right pant leg.

I figured that if Wilson seen Billy Bob with his 'ole bicycle clip on, then I guess he really is serious this time. I, jes this minute, got a call from Lem at the hardware store, an' he wanted to know who'd lend him a truck to pick up a slightly damaged car he jes traded for a bicycle. I guess that Billy Bob ain't really changed too much after all.

ALL BICYCLE RIDERS, BEWARE, THE CLIPPED MENACE IS LOOSE IN OUR STREETS. Please, drive carefully, lest you end up like Billy Bob, or worse.
Good Health to you and yours.

1/29th Charlie Rangers teach ROTC Rangers rappelling on Yonah

Story and Photos by Rick Wasser

Yonah Mountain — the challenge of Dahlonega, Georgia. For some 200 ROTC and West Point cadets currently undergoing the mountain phase of their Ranger training, Yonah represents but one of the many challenges at the Mountain Ranger Camp in Dahlonega.

The Ranger students begin their techniques of mountaineering by receiving blocks of instruction from the highly qualified Ranger cadre, composed of the 2nd Ranger Co, TSB and Co. C Rangers of the 1/29th Inf.

Then it's on to Yonah with the practical application of the mountaineering and rappelling exercises they have learned. "Just getting up Yonah is a challenge in itself," one student commented. "Everything is on an incline," he continued, "and keeping your balance is pretty tough until you get used to it."

But 'getting used to it' is an integral part of the Ranger students training. "Confidence is a key part of the instruction we provide here," one instructor stated. "By instilling within the students, a feeling of confidence, half of his battle is licked."

Climbing up Yonah—via rappelling techniques—is only part of a Ranger students problem, according to some. As one student put it, "I didn't find it all that hard getting up the mountain, but once I got to the top and saw how far I was up in the air, I had second thoughts about rappelling down."

While half of the class of Ranger students is battling Yonah, the other half of the class is meeting an equally demanding challenge, deep in the woods of mountainous Dahlonega.

Techniques of patrolling in Dahlonega are somewhat different to what the Rangers have previously been accustomed to at the Benning phase of their training at Camp Darby. The most important difference is the terrain. Rugged hills on a steep mountain where snakes are plentiful make the patrolling aspect of Ranger training almost dangerous as well as exciting.

Though it is the 2nd Ranger Company of TSB that provides the instructors for the different patrolling and ambush problems, a totally different breed of men is responsible for the actual demonstrating of the techniques.

Co. C (Airborne-Ranger), 1/29th Inf (PIONEERS) provides an average of sixty soldiers in support of the mountain phase each time a Ranger class goes through the rugged course.

In providing the aggressor forces for the ROTC cadets, the PIONEER Rangers spend many days and nights "in the bush" attacking and defending positions, LEADING THE WAY for the various patrol missions.

Though the Rangers from Co. C also support the ROTC and West Point Cadets at Camp Darby and the Florida Ranger Camp, most will agree that the rugged mountain phase is indeed the greatest challenge for those who attempt the many obstacles throughout the course.

The Bennie Bag

Dangerous practice

Recently a soldier was seriously burned when he attempted to liquify paste wax by heating it. This is extremely dangerous and completely unnecessary since liquid wax for polishing floors is available through the supply system. Personnel should be reminded of this and are cautioned not to melt paste wax.

Commissary store

The Commissary Sales Store Manager is available for consultation with enlisted personnel who are interested in working as "bagboys" on off duty time. This work would be at the Ft. Benning Mall Commissary Store packaging and carrying out groceries for customers. Compensation is in the form of tips from the customers. The Commissary Store Manager can be contacted at 544-4343.

New location for family housing

Persons are reminded that the Family Housing Branch has relocated to Room 118, Bldg 83. Telephone numbers remain unchanged except for Keys, Clearance and Contract Cleaning Services which is now 545-3844 or 545-5411.

Dependents outpatient records

It is requested that all newly assigned personnel at Ft. Benning, having hand carried their dependents outpatient records from their old duty station, turn these records into the Outpatient Records Section, Martin Army Hospital Annex. At this time individuals will be informed as to where they will be receiving outpatient medical care. Newly arriving personnel that believe their past outpatient records would contribute to current treatment should report to Inpatient Records Section at the Martin Army Hospital to have their outpatient records requested from their previous unit.

Youth Center football registration

The Ft. Benning Youth Center is now holding registration for football in ages 7-15. Registration is held from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday at the Youth Center. Information can be obtained by calling 545-2383.

Security reminder

Security regulations, as written, do not guarantee protection or cover all conceivable situations. Basic security principles, common sense, and a logical interpretation of the existing regulations will be applied at all times in order to properly safeguard classified defense information. Each of us must remember that, when it comes to security, there is no substitute for individual responsibility.

Yielding right of way

USAIC Regulation 190-5 requires that all drivers yield the right of way to emergency vehicles on emergency runs. Drivers should stay alert for these emergency vehicles on life-saving missions. Ambulance drivers have encountered some difficulty in obtaining the right of way when they are on an authorized emergency mission. If a driver sees an ambulance or any other emergency vehicle with lights flashing and siren on, the driver should pull the car over as far to the right as necessary to give the emergency vehicle safe clearance.

Reserve unit takes control of confinement facility

The 330th MP Det (Reserve) from Sheffield, Ala., is operating the Ft. Benning, Ga. confinement facility for two weeks this summer during their regular annual training. The confinement officer is MAJ Parnell Lovett, and SGM Bobby Hargett is the provost. There are 115 enlisted men and 5 officers in the detachment. Within the confinement facility, the men are divided into three groups. SFC Thomas Thorne is in charge of prisoner services and correctional treatment. Prisoner services includes administration and processing, supply, and comfort and health. Treatment includes training and education, employment, and counseling.

Correctional supervision includes the inside guards and detail and employment guards. MSG Roy Hayes is in charge of this section. Other men from the 330th MP Det work side by side with the regular military police in patrol and traffic control work. SFC Joe Frazier is in charge of these men. "The confinement facility leaves its key supervisory personnel and lets us run the show for two weeks, and the men fit in very well and do a good job."

"Two of our enlisted men have degrees in sociology," SGM Hargett added. "SP5 Edward Weatherford and SP4 Donald Johnson have sociology degrees, and both are counselors in the correctional treatment section. Some of our enlisted men have degrees in psychology, education, accounting and other fields." "Many of the men are in law-enforcement jobs in civilian life," concluded MAJ Lovett. "Some were MP's when they served on active duty. Altogether we feel we have a very fine Reserve unit here."

Amphibious training proves beneficial to 197th officers and NCO's

By Lamar Battles

"I learned a lot more about my job — It was enjoyable two weeks — It was beneficial to me and my work here in the brigade."

These were just a few of the comments made by 197th Inf Bde officers and NCOs on their return from a two week Amphibious Landing Force Planning Course.

Fifteen officers and four NCOs from the brigade attended the course conducted June 3-14 by instructors at the headquarters of the Landing Force Training Command, Atlantic, located at the Naval Amphibious Base, Little Creek in Norfolk, Virginia. "The purpose of the course was to introduce Army personnel to amphibious operations and emphasize the detailed planning involved," explained CPT Charles T. Schauss, brigade assistant S-2 and planning course student.

A wide variety of subjects including: an introduction to amphibious operations, amphibious task force organization, intelligence and artillery planning, logistics planning, landing plan, amphibious support, and embarkation planning considerations and responsibilities, were covered during the two week course.

"The first week was basically general knowledge such as learning proper terminology," stated CPT Schauss. "The second week we went through a practical exercise planning an operation. We went from planning deployment to planning the actual landing."

Two examinations were given during the course, one at the end of the first week and the other at the close of the course.

CPT Charles W. Likens, brigade assistant S-4, attended the course and feels that lessons learned at Little Creek might one day aid the brigade.

"A brigade such as the 197th could receive a mission involving an amphibious operation. Given such a mission, the training we received would be of significant help," commented CPT Likens.

MSG Finley Williamson III, from troop requirements in the brigade S-3, agreed with CPT Likens on the value of the planning course.

"It was beneficial to me," stated MSG Williamson. "I was able to get a broad insight into amphibious operations and the great amount of planning they take."

MSG Williamson was also happy that the birthday of the Army fell during his stay at Little Creek. He was honored as one of those selected to take part in raising the nation's flag during ceremonies at the naval base.

ILT Gerald L. Kent, 2-69th S-2, thought the training furthered his knowledge of his job in the battalion.

"I learned exactly what I would have to do for an amphibious operation at my level," commented ILT Kent.

ILT Kent also praised the instructors at the school for presenting the material in a very understandable manner and for being well qualified.

Amphibious training will continue for elements of the 197th Bde in the coming months. MAJ Charles W. Barnes, brigade assistant S-3, stated that two rifle companies from the brigade will travel to Little Creek in October to undergo the basic amphibious training course. Additional brigade officers will attend the Embarkation Officers Course at the amphibious school in the fall and spring.

Co A record spoiled by Echo; Co A still stands on top

Story and Photos
By Rick Wasser

Gordy Thomas' three-run triple culminated a five run sixth inning which powered Hqs & Spt Co of the PIONEERS over Co B, 1/29th Inf.

Thomas also homered in his previous time at bat, giving him a perfect 4 for 4 trip to the plate in his debut in the PIONEER league. Ronald Pittman of Hqs hit a solo homer after Thomas, to give the clerks a five-run lead in the fourth inning.

Fine defensive playing by Darrel Winterton and the rest of the Hqs infield, coupled with the unwavering support of team cheerleader Edith Martin, enabled the clerks to maintain their five run-lead up to the final out which left them the winners, 13-9.

Elsewhere in the Yellow Division of TSB's PIONEER league, Co. E., FA of the 1/29th Infantry initiated the greatest upset in Ft. Benning softball this year by defeating Co A of the 1/29th.

Previously undefeated Co A took the field in the top of the 1st inning sporting an un-marred 12-0 record. Playing with the air of an unbeatable team, under some obligation to play, Co A soon realized their nonchalance would be their downfall.

The Co E artillerymen unleashed an aerial barrage commencing with the second inning, which rivaled that of any of several professional ball teams. Ron Tillery got the ball rolling with a single to left, followed by a Julius Buske triple. Two more runs scored on an error by Co

A's Danny Keith — his third of the game — and soon the Co A champs were down 6-1 in the fourth inning.

The champs finally managed to finagle a run out of the Artillery PIONEERS behind a Ken Hight single, and it was Hight that scored the lone run minutes later on a sacrifice fly by 1st baseman William Smith.

Winning pitcher Harold Phillips aided his own cause by hitting 3 for 3 at the plate including a 2-run triple. In addition, Phillips pitched a magnificent game, and even the opposition had nothing but praise for the artilleryman. "Phillips was just great," commented Co A star outfielder, Danny Keith. "He pitched me inside the whole game, and I couldn't do a thing with it."

A team captain, Tim DeBey said of Phillips, "I've never seen a better pitched game by an opposing pitcher. He knew all of our individual weaknesses, and used them against us. He beat us pretty bad," DeBey confessed, "but it'll never happen again," he vowed.

Co A plays sister Co B later this week, and anticipates an easy victory while the second place artillery team has a pair of double-headers coming up that will keep them fairly busy.

Standings in the Yellow Division of TSB are:

Co A -	12 - 1
Co E -	7 - 1
Hq & Spt Co -	6 - 5
Co D -	4 - 8
Co C -	3 - 8
Co B -	2 - 9

"Bull," one of the 1/29th Infantry spectators, seems to enjoy watching the PIONEER softball games more than gnawing on a bone.

Danny Keith rounds third base en route to his second grand-slammer of the day. Keith knocked in 11 runs as the Co A PIONEERS defeated the Co C Rangers of the 1/29th, 25-3.

Willie Borden of Co A, 1/29th Inf. (PIONEERS), TSB bats the ball home in an attempt to nail an artillery runner. Borden missed the runner and Co A missed the game, in their first defeat of the season in which Co E, FA bombed them 12-1.

Sometimes a good man leaves the Army for a bad reason.

We realize that the Army just isn't for everyone. Few things are.

But your reason for leaving might turn out to be an even better reason for staying, once you realize everything that's available to you in the Army.

So if you're thinking about leaving the Army, we hope your reasons are better than these.

"I didn't join the Army for the money. But now it's more important to me." We can understand that. Money is important to everyone.

We have upped the salaries considerably over the last few years.

But what's even more important for you to remember are all the things that you, as an Army man, don't have to spend your salary on. That's because many of the best things of Army life are free. Or much cheaper than in the civilian community.

So don't be fooled by pay comparisons. It's what's left over after the bills are paid that counts.

"I want to go back to school." That's great. But you don't have to give up a good job and a good career to do it.

Today's Army encourages every qualified person to continue his education. (The way we look at it, the more you know the better for us.)

Maybe you didn't know that the Army will pay at least 75% of your tuition for you. In many cases, we'll pay for it all. And with the new Servicemen's Opportunity Colleges program, it's easier than ever to get back to the books.

So before you think about leaving the Army to go back to school, study up on the Army's many educational opportunities.

You might have a lot to learn.

"I like the Army but I don't like my job." Maybe you'd rather work in the sky. Or with boats, intelligence, television, optics, meteorology or electronics.

That's an easy job for your Career Counselor. Just tell him what you'd rather be doing. If there's an opening and you can qualify, he'll line it up for you.

And when you reenlist for a new job, a new place or any other option, we put it in writing. Just to make sure that the job you want is there when you get there.

"I want to get out and travel." So where would you like to go?

Someplace closer to home? Or maybe you'd like to find a new home someplace else in the USA?

How about Europe? With a guaranteed, stabilized tour to give you the chance to go native. And really get to know the country.

If you're a traveling man, the Army can take you where you want to go. With a good job waiting for you when you get there. The job you know best. And can do best.

Talk to your Career Counselor. (He's your personal travel agent.) And tell him where you'd like to live and work. If you're qualified, you're on your way.

Well, that's just a few of the bad reasons some people have for leaving. If you're thinking about getting out for one of the above, maybe you should think again.

You might have all the reason in the world for staying in.

Today's Army gets better every time a good man reenlists.

Softball . . .

The fun and sporting way to recruiting

By WILLIAM D. SAMS

Summer's seasonal sport? Softball; Engineer style.

During the past holiday the 36th Engr's Unit of Choice Recruiting Softball Team ventured northward to Dunlap, Tenn., for three days and four games of exciting tournament action in the July 4 Open Softball Tournament.

The Engineer softball team participated in a double elimination softball tournament at the Se-quatchie Valley Ball Park in Dunlap.

Proceeds from the tournament will be used to build a recreation park for the surrounding cities and counties in the Dunlap area.

The estimated cost of the new park will be over $125 thousand and will include five ballfields,

Hutchenson takes TRADOC central conference single

In an all-Ft. Benning final, Henry Hutchenson downed James Boylan, 6-4, 3-6, 6-2, to win the Central Conference TRADOC Senior Singles tennis title.

Ft. Benning totally dominated the Seniors Division as Hutchenson and Boylan defeated Myer and Sullivan of Ft. Gordon, 6-2, 6-3, to claim the doubles crown.

In the Open Division, James McGuone of Ft. Benning lost a first round match to Ed Quinn of Ft. Gordon, 6-1, 6-0. James Stearns of Ft. Benning defeated French of Ft. Rucker, 7-6, 5-7, 6-4, before falling to Joe Lopez of Ft. Jackson, 7-5, 6-3.

Stearns and McGuone defeated Hilburn and Lopez of Ft. Jackson, 6-4, 2-6, 6-2, in an early round doubles match. They were eliminated from competition in a hardfought match with Dillman and Morgan of Ft. Harrison, 4-6, 6-3, 7-6.

Ft. Gordon won the TRADOC tournament netting 25 points with runnerup Ft. Knox garnering 23. Despite the handicap of playing without its singles champs, John Vatrak, Ft. Benning took third place with 17 points.

several tennis courts, picnic areas, playgrounds, and assorted recreational equipment.

"Dunlap, Tenn., is my home town," SP4 William R. Johnston, 988th MP, 36th Engrs. said, "every year the city holds its annual July 4 Open Softball Tournament and invites all the surrounding all-star softball teams in the area."

Johnston was the man responsible for contacting the Dunlap Recreational Sports Officials concerning the Engineer softball team playing in the tournament.

"The sports officials were overwhelmed when they heard the Engineer team wanted to participate in the tournament so far away from their 'home base,'" Johnston commented.

"It was an excellent opportunity for the Group All-Stars to see how well they could 'stack up' against other teams in tournament competition," he said.

"The outcome wasn't surprising; out of the eleven teams in the tournament, the Engineer softball team placed fifth," he added, "Not bad for the first tournament."

Fifth place may not be as impressive as first place, but the Engineer team didn't leave Dunlap empty handed. The team won the only Sportsmanship award presented by the Dunlap Recreation Department during the entire Softball Tournament.

"Sportsmanship is just as important as winning," remarked PV2 Skip McGurn, HHC, 36th Engr player, "I didn't play in all the games," he said, "but just being there with the other players and being a member of the team was part of the fun."

"The citizens of Dunlap responded even more enthusiastically than I expected," stated player-coach SFC Dalton L. Robertson, Co D, 43rd Engrs. "They were really amazed to see soldiers playing softball so far from their military post," Robinson added.

Scouts follow adventure on bike travel trek

Boy Scout Troop 302 loves to follow the Army's slogan of fun, travel and adventure.

On June 8-14 eleven scouts and two adults toured the Georgia countryside on bicycles, pedaling a total of 262 miles. They camped overnight at Roosevelt State Park enjoying the pool after a long hot ride. They were further cooled by a violent hail storm as they entered the pioneer campground.

Hamilton, Georgia was a welcomed stop the next day both as a tourist attraction and a source of soda pop and ice cream.

Hills easily climbed in cars became mountains for bicycles; but so much fun coasting down. Each night meant a new campground with new adventures along the way.

Service stations, country stores and clear streams were always welcomed and thoroughly enjoyed. Florence landing, Eufaula, Bluff Creek, Columbus, and Little Grand Canyon State Park were all overnight stops and each had its special interest. Many things were observed and appreciated that are completely missed while speeding along in a car.

People throughout the trip were interested and friendly. Each scout learned more about himself and his fellow scouts. Friendship and sharing was automatic.

Each scout will remember the challenge met and the friendship long after the heat, fatigue and aching muscles are forgotten.

SFC Billy B. Insel, Med Co, MAH established Troop 302 upon his return to Ft. Benning two and one-half years ago.

This was one of his many associations with scouting. SGT Insel has been in scouting for nine years, eight of those serving in the capacity of scoutmaster.

His awards include the Scouter's Key and the 1973 District Ward of Merit.

598th

champ

The 36th Engr Grp soft ball league standings show that the 598th Lt Maint Co is leading last year's champions by 1 game.

With 10 wins and 1 loss, the 598th is leading the previous champs, the 139th MPs.

"We're number one now and intend to capture the post title," says player-coach and 1SG Phillip Simon, 598th.

"Our team has a lot of spirit and that helps tremendously in achieving the 'championship title,'" Simon says enthusiastically.

The 598th has a team which has a lot going for it. Players play to win and they all believe sportsmanship counts a lot for an enjoyable game.

"Our players perform as a team," remarked SP4 William Grisson, player, 598th. "We will be the post champs, because we have what it takes; it's that simple." he added.

36th preparing for inspection

3/7th observe their own live fire exercise

By BOB COWLES

The 197th Inf Bde is moving forward in the area of training aids and Co A, 3rd Bn, 7th Inf is leading the way.

During a live-fire exercise last week the men of Co A found themselves moving down range alongside of PFC Walter E. Walthall, HHC, 3/7th, and his video-tape movie camera.

Co A was training in the technique of assaulting and taking an enemy position. Throughout the entire operation, PFC Walthall was recording it on film.

Once the exercise was completed the men of Co A were assembled for a critique by their company commander and were able to view the assault on a video play-back monitor.

"I normally work as a tele-type operator for the battalion's communications section," stated PFC Walthall. "This is the first time I've done this for the 3/7th."

"Once you learn the basics of operating the equipment," continued Walthall, "it's just a matter of developing and improving the technique. I've found the best way is to move along side the men and zoom in on the action I want to record."

"This was an entirely new experience for my men," stated CPT Jimmy R. Arnold, commander of Co A, "and I feel that it helped them immensely during the critique. For the first time they were able to see themselves in action while it was fresh in their minds."

"It also helped me, as a company commander, in giving the critique. I was able to point out exactly what was right and what was wrong. It is a great aid in communicating with the men," concluded CPT Arnold.

Full field layouts, dog tag checks, updating shot records, painting buildings, squaring away that uniform; these are only a few things the Inspector General's Office will be looking for in the upcoming IG Inspection in the 36th Engrs.

All of the units are striving for the best possible results from the inspection and the work load on the sections has increased considerably over the past few weeks.

"This year we are working as hard as ever to make absolutely sure our unit comes out on top," remarked SSG Thomas O'Guinn, supply sergeant, HHC, 36th.

"One thing is for sure, supply will pass the inspection. I have qualified personnel working for me who do their jobs, even if it means staying late at night," he added.

During July and August many of the units in the Group will be getting ready for the IG all except the 43rd Engr. Bn. The 43rd will be scheduled for an IG Inspection sometime during November or December due to the number of projects and missions on construction jobs throughout the southeastern United States that can only be done in the summer.

Sex, power, prestige and 25 MPG.

Toyota Celica GT 5-speed.

25 MPG. Honest. That's what average people averaged driving Celica GT's on city streets, mountain roads and freeways in a 7,500 mile test conducted by an independent laboratory. What you get depends on how you drive, whether you carry rocks in the trunk and other variables.

Prestige. A standard feature. Along with (take a deep breath) an AM/FM radio, electric rear window defogger, reclining bucket seats, radial tires, power front disc brakes, 5-speed synchro-mesh transmission, tachometer, styled-steel wheels, full console, rally clock, tinted glass, loop pile carpeting and a specially-tuned MacPherson strut front suspension. All at no extra cost.

Power. 1986cc's worth from the Celica GT's overhead cam engine. Coupled with the 5-speed transmission, it's all you'll ever need. And that 5-speed box is more than sporty. It's economical.

Fifth gear is like overdrive. It makes cruising easy on gas and easy on the engine (it runs about 15% slower than in fourth).

Sex. We think it's a boy.

See how much car your money can buy.

197th opens JAG office

By Bob Cowles

Have you been thinking about making a will? Want to grant a power-of-attorney?

It is no longer necessary for soldiers of the 197th Inf Bde to go to the JAG office on main post to take care of matters such as these.

The brigade now has a Legal Assistance Officer who can handle the legal assistance and military claims needs of the 'Forever Forward' brigade.

CPT Edwin Scott, of the main post JAC office, has been attached to the brigade as its legal assistance officer. The current schedule for CPT Scott is to be at the Kelley Hill legal office two days a week, Tuesday and Thursday.

MAH sets schedule for student check-ups

In coordination with the Superintendents of the local school districts, Martin Army Hospital has established the following schedule for the completion of physical examinations of dependent children of military personnel.

Dependents 16 years of age or older may obtain physicals by calling the Medical Examination Service, telephone 545-7244.

The schedule for examinations of children through 15 years of age is as follows:

The 197th Inf Bde and Miss FT Benning, Linda Wilson, want to remind you that safety is everybody's business — Make It Yours! (Photo by Bob Thomas)

On August 1 from 8 a.m. until 9 a.m., examinations will be administered for boys kindergarten age through 9 years of age. Girls in the same age group can complete physical examinations on August 8 from 8 a.m. until 9 a.m.

August 15 from 8 a.m. until 9 a.m. will be the time set aside for boys ages 10 to 15. Girls, ages 10-15; should report on August 22 from 8 a.m. until 9 a.m.

A makeup examination period for all ages and sexes will be held on August 29 from 8 a.m. until 9 a.m.

Children requiring glasses for corrective vision are requested to bring their glasses with them on date of scheduled examinations.

Parents are requested to bring a physical examination form from the appropriate school or school district for each child receiving an examination.

Individuals assigned to Family Practice No. 1 or No. 2, should obtain the out-patient record for each examinee prior to reporting for the physical examination. Other personnel may obtain their out-patient records in the basement, Building 396, on scheduled date of examination.

The scheduled makeup period on 29 August 1974 is for bona fide emergencies only. This group mainly includes personnel moving into the local school districts after dissemination of notice and too late to comply with above schedule, or families on scheduled vacations and absent from Ft. Benning on the examination date. Little League ball games or practice and swimming classes, etc., are not acceptable emergencies, and parents of children who miss for these reasons may have to obtain an examination from civilian sources at their own expense. Due to the current shortage of medical personnel within this Medical Treatment Facility and, in order that all eligible dependents may be afforded an opportunity to receive a school physical, it is mandatory that all parents cooperate in complying with the above schedule.

Physical examinations are required for students entering a school district within the State of Georgia or Alabama for the first time.

Health authorities in both Alabama and Georgia require completion of routine immunizations before

"This scheduled can be amended as needed," commented CPT Scott. "The services provided depends on a large part of what the brigade needs. At the present, there is a great need, as far as I can see, for legal assistance."

During the time CPT Scott is not working on legal assistance or military claims, he will be the primary defense council for the brigade.

"From a military justice point of view, I have had a prior acquaintance with the 197th," continued CPT Scott. "I don't envision any problems working with the brigade."

CPT Scott graduated from Southern University in Baton Rouge, La. He was commissioned through the ROTC program and came on active duty in Sept. 1971.

children enter school. Parents of school-age children are encouraged to have immunization records checked now at the Immunizations Clinic, Building 396, during one of the following time periods: 0800 - 1100 and 1300 - 1400 hours on Tuesdays, Wednesdays, or Fridays. Avoid the long lines in September by having required immunizations brought up to date as soon as possible.

Urine specimen on each child is to be collected at home prior to reporting for examination. Specimens are to be collected in glass or plastic containers. Containers are available in Medical Examination Service, Building 296, MAH Annex or Satellite Lab, Building 392, MAH Annex.

Individuals are reminded to bring identification and medical cards on the day of scheduled examination.

These physical examinations will be conducted in the Medical Examination Service, Martin Army Hospital Annex, Building 323. Personnel should enter from the front entrance of Building 396. Further information may be obtained by calling telephone numbers 544-3514 or 545-5502.

Retirement ceremony brings to end 100-plus years of military service

Retirement ceremonies to be held at 4 p.m., today, on York Field for three U.S. Army Infantry Center staff officers will bring to an end a combined total of more than 100 years of military service.

COL Charles Reidenbaugh, Director, Directorate of Personnel and Community Activities, closes out a military career that spans 35 years and 10 months. COL Edward Benedit, Deputy Director, DPCA will move up to the position vacated by COL Reidenbaugh's retirement.

Ft. Benning's Provost Marshal, COL Eugene Murdock, will retire after 33 years and 8 months of Army service. COL Robert Reinke will succeed COL Murdock as Provost Marshal. COL Reinke comes to Benning after serving as Professor of Military Science at Seaton Hall University, N.J.

The 32 year and 4 month career of COL Alan MacDonald, Inspector General, ends with his retirement on Friday. COL Harold Johnson will assume the duties of Inspector General. COL Johnson was formerly Chief, Mortar Committee, Weapons Department, USAIS.

Other key Infantry Center staff position changes during the summer include:

COL Paul Langford assumed duties as Director of Security replacing COL Frederick Pieper, who was transferred to Korea. COL Langford's previous position was Executive Officer, Deputy Commandant for Education and Training, Intelligence School, Ft. Huachuca, Ariz.

COL Wallace Veaudry left his position as Director, Assessment Center, USAIS, to become Ft. Benning's Assistant Commander. COL Veaudry replaced COL Kendrick Barlow, who is now Commander, Camp A. P. Hill, Va.

LTC Robert Smith recently assumed duties as Staff Judge Advocate succeeding retiring COL William Harris. LTC Smith's previous assignment was with the Department of the Army Judge Advocate Office.

The Infantry School has also seen major changes in staff positions.

With the retirement of COL John Pierce, the position of Director, Command Maintenance and Communications Department will be filled by COL George Schneider. COL Schneider was formerly Chairman, Company Tactics Committee, Company Operations Department.

COL James Dingeman became Comptroller, USAIC, replacing COL Robert Seaman, who was reassigned to Ft. Gordon, Ga. COL Dingeman vacated the position of Chief, Management and Budget Office of the Infantry School.

BG Alexander Weyand, now Deputy Commander, U. S. Army Recruiting Command, left the position of Director, Directorate of Instruction. COL John Walsh Jr. has filled that vacancy. COL Walsh was formerly Director, Leadership Department.

LTC Nathan Vail moved from Chairman, Leadership Committee to the position of Director, Leadership Department.

Army chaplains celebrate 199th anniversary

By JOYCE WRIGHT

The history of the Army chaplains dates back to the birth of our nation.

Ft. Benning's chaplains will observe their 199th anniversary during regular church services Sunday in each congregation.

Secretary of the Army, Howard H. Callaway, in a letter to members of the U.S. Army Chaplaincy stated, "Since 1775, Army Chaplains have served along with the United States Army personnel, in peacetime and in combat."

On July 29, 1775, the Second Continental Congress adopted a pay scale for the Army, stipulating that chaplains were to get $20 a month. This is the earliest national legislation known to recognize chaplains in the Army, and the date is used as the origin of the Federal Chaplaincy. Chaplains had been serving on an informal basis before this date.

Who was the first chaplain in the Army of the United States? The distinction of being first may go to 18 chaplains, who were recorded as being on duty in the Continental Army January 1, 1776.

The chaplains of the revolution went everywhere with their men. They crossed the Delaware with George Washington and stood beside him in Yorktown.

More than 3,000 chaplains served on both sides during the Civil War.

During World War I 2,363 chaplains served on active duty. Twenty-three died, 27 were wounded, 28 received American medals and 57 received honor decorations of foreign nations.

At one time, some 8,896 clergymen were on duty during World War II, stationed in military installations throughout the globe. Fifty-one were killed in action and 76 were wounded.

During the Korean War, 1,600 chaplains served in the Army. Thirteen died and 26 were wounded in action.

Army chaplains faithfully carried out their duties during the Vietnam conflict, transported by helicopter to reach the men at the front lines.

Through the years, chaplains have received many awards for meritorious and heroic acts and services performed in the line of duty throughout the world.

There are more than 800 chapels on military installations in the United States and abroad. In addition to holding worship services, chaplains also perform marriages, baptisms, hold Sunday school, Bible class, and organized youth group activities. But they still recognize that their first obligation is to the soldier himself.

"From Bunker Hill to Vietnam, you have shared the American soldiers' hardships and heartaches as well as their successes and celebrations. The spiritual support you have provided has been cherished by generations of service personnel and their dependents," states General Fred C. Weyand, vice chief of staff.

Ft. Benning - Columbus host 1st Cav reunion next weekend

Ft. Benning and Columbus will be sites for the 27th annual reunion of the 1st Cav Div on August 1 through 4. The Ralston Hotel in Columbus will be the reunion headquarters, with a number of events scheduled for Ft. Benning.

Registration will open at 1 p.m. on Aug. 1 in the Ralston Hotel lobby. Hospitality suites will be open in the Ralston from 1 to 10 p.m. and a social hour will be held from 5 to 7 p.m. in the Ralston ballroom. Registration will close at 9 p.m. on Aug. 1.

On Friday, Aug 2, registration will reopen at 8 a.m. and remain open until 5 p.m. At 9:30 a.m. in the Airborne area, MG Tarpley will welcome the members of the 1st Cav Div and an Airborne training demonstration will be held.

Victory Pond will be the scene of a Rangers in Action demonstration at 11 a.m., followed by a barbecue at 12 noon at Victory Lodge. At 2:30 p.m., "I Am the Infantry" will be presented in Marshall Auditorium at Infantry Hall, followed by a welcome by a representative of the U.S. Army Infantry School and a presentation on the Infantry School.

At 3:30 p.m. a 1st Cav Div presentation will be given, and at 4 p.m. on Gardner Field the 1st Cav Div Horse Platoon from Ft. Hood, Tex., will perform. An honors ceremony will be held on York Field for the 1st Cav Div at 4:30 p.m., and at 5 p.m. the Division members will receive a tour of the National Infantry Museum.

On Saturday, Aug. 3, breakfast and unit meetings will be held in the Ralston Hotel Restaurant from 8 to 10 a.m. At 10 a.m. a business meeting will be held in the Ralston's Georgia Room. Beginning at 1:30 p.m. a golf tournament will take place at the Ft. Benning Country Club. A special horse platoon demonstration will be held at 2 p.m. on French Field.

On Sunday morning, Aug. 4, coffee and doughnuts will be served at the Georgia Welcome Center on Victory Drive at 9 a.m. At 10 a.m. a Memorial Service for fallen members of the Division will be held at the 1st Cav Div memorial at the Welcome Center. In case of bad weather, the service will be held in the Ralston Hotel Ballroom. LTG (Ret.) Harry W. O. Kinnard will speak at the Memorial Service. The reunion will be adjourned afterwards.

Registration fee is $12.50, including the banquet, barbecue, and transportation to and from activities. Registration without the banquet is $5.50. Registration forms can be obtained from MAJ Gerald W. Sharpe, the Follow Me Chapter Secretary. MAJ Sharpe can be reached at 545-2841, 545-2750, or 545-3915.

SP4 Melvin Monroe (1) and PFC Charles Gauer, both of Co B (Medical), 197th Spt Bn, 197th Inf Bde, receive instructions from SFC Clarence Rhymes, ward master of ward B2 at Martin Army Hospital, on the operation of a portable monitor and defibrillator machine during their 60-day OJT at the hospital. 197th trains medics at MAH

By Bob Cowles

For the past five months, Co B (Med) 197th Spt Bn, 197th Inf Bde has been training its personnel in the various areas of the medical field in a unique manner.

With the cooperation of Martin Army Hospital, Co B has been able to give its medics 60 days of on the job training (OJT) in the many areas of the medical profession.

"Since we don't have our own facilities to train our personnel," commented LT Robert R. Campbell, OIC of the program, "we've set up a system with the hospital where we can send our men for 60 days of OJT in the special fields."

"We are lucky the hospital lets us put our men through this OJT program," continued LT Campbell. "We can usually get a man trained in the area of his choice."

"The reason for setting up this new system," said

LT Campbell, "was that we are missing the men required in some hard skills. We are using this method to cross train our personnel in those hard skills and several different areas."

The day to day supervision of the men working at the hospital is done by SFC James Wilkes, NCOIC, and SSG Louis F. Masic, asst. NCOIC.

"There are too many men in the training program for just SSG Masic and myself to train alone," stated SFC Wilkes. "We watch over them to make sure they get the best possible training and we give them special guidance when it is needed."

"We have a running average of about 20 men at the hospital from our company," added SSG Masic. "We also supervise a few medics that are participating in the program from other units."

Not only do the medics enrolled in this training work in the various fields, but they also attend classes and lectures conducted by the hospital staff.

Next year is the Army's 200th anniversary and the following is the bicentennial of the nation. What do you think Ft. Benning should do to observe these events?

SP5 James St John 444th Trans Co.

"If they could set up some booths of something like a carnival with rides for the kids and things."

MAJ Bobby P. Holman
3287th USAR School
Columbia, S. C.

"Some type of preplanned advertisement program should be established and begun at the beginning of the year acquainting the military and civilian public in the area of the Army's 200th birthday. The quantity of the publicity should increase during the year leading up to some type of celebration either on the 4th of July or the 200th birth date."

MSG Ben T. Noe
S-3 TSB

"Make it more or less like the 4th of July celebration. I think we should get uniforms from past armies and have a parade with soldiers dressed in these uniforms and have a celebration open to the public along with a good display of past army equipment."

SP4 Cynthia Albright
HHC Hqs Comd

"WACs have not been in the Army for 200 years so it would be hard for us to celebrate."

CW2 John Edwards
2/10th FA 197th Inf Bde

"We should observe these events with the appropriate ceremonies."

CPT Willard Taylor
42nd Co 4th Bn TSB

"I think we should have a real bang-up affair. Air-mobile operation, airborne landing, etc. Really open the place up to be public for two or three days including live range firing, etc. to let the public know what the Army is about."

Editorial

What do you do after 200 years?

The second day of July, 1776, will be the most memorable epoch in the history of America. I am apt to believe that it will be celebrated by succeeding generations as the great anniversary festival. It ought to be commemorated as the day of deliverance, by solemn acts of devotion to God Almighty. It ought to be solemnized with pomp and parade, with shows, games, sports, guns, bells, bonfires, and illuminations, from one end of this continent to the other, from this time forward for evermore. — John Adams.

John Adams was two days off in timing, but correct about the celebration. July 2, 1776 was the day that voting took place to sign the Declaration of Independence. We choose to celebrate the day of the actual signing — July 4.

As we approach the two hundredth reoccurrence of this great anniversary festival, we wonder just what we should do in commemoration. The pomp and parade that Adams calls for takes place every year, but for the 200th event you expect a little more. But what else can you do?

Do we spend government funds for a celebration when government funds may be needed elsewhere? Remember that it isn't every year a country celebrates its 200th birthday.

The choice between a unique bicentennial celebration and a standard pomp and parade belongs to the American people. Yes, the money will be spent for this bicentennial era. Regardless, however, of how much money is funded for the program, it will not be a celebration without the involvement of each and every American.

In commemoration of 200 years of freedom, every American should have the opportunity to take an active part in the celebration. Only when every American does his part will we have a spectacular celebration. Anything less would be just another Fourth of July.

Bicentennial planning is under way; individual involvement is key point

by Frank White

God grants liberty only to those who love it and are always ready to defend it. — Daniel Webster

"We should get every individual involved in the bicentennial program in some way. If each individual is a better person from participating from the program, then Ft. Benning as a whole will be a better place."

This statement by MAJ Charles Woodson, Ft. Benning Bicentennial program director, is Ft. Benning's planning theme for the bicentennial celebration.

The Army's 200th birthday, June 14, 1975, and the nation's birthday, July 4, 1976, will all be part of the "bicentennial era" which will be celebrated throughout the nation.

"The Army's bicentennial will be among the first major national commemorative events of the American Revolution Bicentennial celebration," Woodson said. "This provides the Army with the unique opportunity to use the Bicentennial Era to renew public awareness of the Army's heritage and as a dedication to future goals of the Army."

The Army's selected theme for the Bicentennial is "Vanguard of Freedom '75." This theme, to be used for all Army Bicentennial commemorative events, denotes the pre-eminent role of the Army in the American Revolution and the leading force the Army has displayed in the development of the nation.

Plans for Army participation in the Bicentennial celebration are divided into two categories. The first category will include all projects connected with commemoration of the Army's 200th Birthday.

The second category will involve the Army's support of community, state, and national events.

Woodson noted that in the Bicentennial program, the Army hopes to portray the Army's role in the history and heritage of the nation and to broaden the public's perspectives of what the Army does. Army contributions to development in areas such as medicine, aviation and research will be highlighted, he said.

The Army plans to support and cooperate with civilian activities concerning the Bicentennial celebration and hopes to attract and interest young people in the Army.

"Innovative and genuinely interesting projects are planned that will hopefully develop an understanding and pride in the heritage of the Army," Woodson said. "These projects are designed to produce a lasting effect that will remain long after the Bicentennial is over."

In order to produce a uniform program throughout the Army, each post will submit their project plans to the Department of Army for approval, according to Woodson.

Plans across the nation for the Bicentennial celebration include ceremonies and pageants highlighting state flags and past flags of the nation. Drill units and demonstrations ranging from football game halftime ceremonies to support for reenactment of local historical events are planned. Many speaker programs and promotional activities will be used to put the Army before the public eye. Open house activities are planned at almost every Army installation across the nation.

As part of the Bicentennial program, an Army Bicentennial hymn composers competition is being conducted. The purpose of the competition is to select an Army hymn for wide use among members of the Armed Forces. Cash prizes have been allotted for the hymn competition. A text with a melody will be awarded $7,500 first prize and $2,500 second place. A text without a melody or a melody without a text will be awarded $3,000 first place and $750 second place. All entries must be submitted to HQDA (DACH-AMZ), Washington, D.C. 20314 no later than January 31, 1975.

The bicentennial committee of Ft. Benning has met and plans are underway for Ft. Benning's celebration. In addition to the Army's bicentennial and the nation's bicentennial, Ft. Benning will also be concerned with the Infantry's 200th birthday on June 14, 1975.

A group of Rangers in continental Army dress will present demonstrations in the area and a mobile Infantry Museum has been designed for touring engagements during the Bicentennial era. Other plans are in the making and will be announced later by the Ft. Benning Bicentennial Committee.

197th uses hot point refueling

By C. B. Hoover

"Hot Point Refueling" of Army helicopters is now a reality in the 197th Inf Bde as Co C, of the 197th SPT BN displayed its effectiveness during a recent Field Training Exercise.

CO C, the supply and transportation unit of the support battalion, uses the "Hot Point Refueling" technique to rapidly refuel helicopters with their engines running, which reduces the time aircraft must remain on the ground.

Refueling helicopters in the field training area also eliminates the need for returning to the Kelley Hill area for refueling, thus saving fuel and flight time.

LT Billy D. Coleman, the POL platoon leader, explained how the platoon operates, "The platoon has 5,000 gallon tankers and 500 gallon collapsible bladders to transport the fuel to the field. The operation can be set up in less than an hour and taken down even faster. The system may be operated in several configurations affording more expeditions handling of customers. The refueling of an aircraft takes just a matter of seconds because, fuel is pumped by a 350 gallon per minute pump. The fuel is pumped through a separator to clean all the impurities from it. Today we are using two separators to insure there are no impurities in the fuel."

LT Coleman concluded, "Besides several configurations they may set up in, the unit is mobile and can be split into two or more sections. By doing this the unit can leap-frog up with the maneuvering units to refuel helicopters supporting the brigade."

During the Field Training Exercise the platoon supported the 197th Avn Plt and elements of the 196th Aviation Company from Ft. Bragg, N.C.

Infantry Museum presented Civil War period artifacts

The Infantry Museum has received several artifacts from Dr. Frank Prescott, Professor Emeritus, University of Tennessee at Chattanooga.

These items include a canteen, a pair of brass spurs, an equipment bag, all from the Civil War period, and a Prussian spiked helmet.

Lt. Fred McKenney, a former student of Dr.

Prescott's, made the presentation to the Infantry Museum.

Dr. Prescott has donated artifacts from his private collection on two other occasions to include a Civil War footlocker, a Line Officers' dress coat, two officers' vests and a framed photograph of SGT S. M. Brown.

Soldier of month reenters Army to settle down

By GEORGE KORDA

For some men an 8 to 5 job just isn't where it's at. They need to move, to experiment, to do things others of us would like to do but can't, or won't.

SP4 Dennis E. George, 3d Ranger Co, TSB Soldier of the Quarter for April-June is the type of person who can't sit still. Make that couldn't. That's why he came back in the Army nearly 13 months ago after a five-year service break. He first served in the Army in 1967 and 1968.

"I figured it was time for me to settle down, start a career, get married, and quit wandering around,"

Ole Doc sez: Use common sense in emergency room use

Howdy Bub, I read in the newspaper yesterday 'bout some guidelines that a body should use afore callin' yore 'ole doc when you are ailin'.

The article wuz really zes a case 'bout usin' plain common sense, 'stead of gettin' all 'cited an' gettin' charged for an ailment that couldda been taken care without the doctors' help.

The writer of that article obviously didn't have no common sense of his own, else he wouldda sat hisself down and wrote a story 'bout fishin' or huntin' or somethin' else, 'stead of tryin' to tell folks 'bout things that they ain't goin' to do now.

Now everybody knows, that iffen you feel a little peaked that you's 'sposed to leap into yore flivver an' get out to the hospital, an' get that medic offen his wallet to take a gander at yore malady.

Why shucks, that 'ole Patient Medical Advisor ain't for the likes of me. I been in the Army for eight months, an' I been 'round the world thirteen times, an' Phenix City twict, an' nobody can tell me when I can, or can't go on sick call. I go when it suits me, or the missus.

Bub, I know me an' you ain't been abusin' the Emergency Room out at the Post, but they sure is a passal of folks that reckon that Emergency Room wuz built for them, an' them Outpatient Clinics is for them other people.

Would you believe that over the Fourth of July weekend, they wuz more than fifty-three folks alookin' for prescription refills? They wuz eight fat-ties alookin' for diet advice, six athlete's foot sufferers, four dandruffs, twenty-two sunburns, an' seventeen jes gettin' outta the rain. Now, as far as I can see, Bub, none of them folks had any business in that Emergency Room, but then again, I'm only a doctor. Howsomer, iffen I woke up in the mornin' an' the missus wuz ajawin' afore I could get my jeans on, then, by golly, I guess gettin' that terrible case of dandruff could 'pear like an emergency to me too.

One medico, out at the Post hospital, tole me that he went out to the waitin' room to fetch a patient that wuz sittin' there watchin' the TV set while waitin' to be seen. The doc called out the patient's name, an' the man raised his hand, an' said, "Jes a minute, doc, there'll be a commercial comin' on anytime now, an' then I'll be right with ya."

That 'ole doc couldn't believe this ears; here wuz this supposed emergency patient, ashowin' up in an emergency activity, an' then he wanted the doc to wait 'til a commercial came on. Needless to say, when that patient finally wuz able to tear hisself away from that T.V. set 'ole doc burned him to the ground with a few well placed remarks, 'bout his all-fired emergency.

Well, Bub, if folks would jes use a teeny bit of they's common sense, an' they's Patient Medical Advisor, they could save themselves a lot of time awaitin' to be seen in the emergency room, but you an' me know that they ain't goin' to do any sech thing.

Good Health to you and yours . . .

raging Newhall fire in 1970 in which he says "every fireman in the state was called in."

In late 1970 he left the forests of north California for the horse farms of Central Florida near Ocala. "I was a brood mare man," he says with the knowledge you really don't know what he's talking about. He explained, "I'd take care of the young foal just after it was born, and watch the mother to make sure she was coming through all right. Caring for the mares was my specialty."

That's what he did in the winter. In the summer he commuted to his home in Medina, New York to work on his father's dairy farm.

Columbus Jaycees sponsor annual Championship Rodeo

Big time rodeo comes to Columbus as the Jaycees sponsor their first annual Championship Rodeo.

The rodeo will be held on August 1-3 at the Municipal Auditorium. Starting time each night will be eight o'clock.

Top riders from across the country will be competing in calf roping, bulldogging, barrel races, bronc busting and bull riding. The rodeo is sanctioned by the American Cowboy Association.

Added entertainment for the children will be supplied by a clown.

A rodeo queen will be chosen from among the rodeo contestants. Judging will be on her ability to ride and western dress.

Tickets are available from any member of the Jaycees. Proceeds from the event will help support the Listening Eye School and other worthy Jaycee projects.

For additional information call MAJ Barry Gasdek, 545-2694 or Mike Jackson, 327-8609.

Cadet Rangers find their way... with compass

"It's got to be around here, somewhere," comments ROTC Ranger student James F. Trice. "Are you sure we got those co-ordinates right?"

"We must have, we checked them twice," answers his Ranger buddy, Steven J. Canale, who then orients his map to the road again, checks his compass and points into the dense woods to their right. "It should be about two hundred meters that way."
