You hold the key to the future

In 1776 Americans were in the midst of a revolution that was to change their lives markedly and to noticeably affect their future. That revolution was political. In the 1970's Americans are in the vortex of another revolution. This one is scientific in nature, but it too will have a considerable effect on our future.

Regardless of the nature and amount of change in our lives we do not cease to have the needs for security, for affection, and for approval. Surrounded by mass media and other forces that attempt to mold us all into the same pattern, it is most difficult to retain our various individual characteristics.

In order to continue to be persons in our own right we need to set realistic purposes to follow persistently. These values are psychological! independence, self-acceptance and accepting others as they are, accepting reality, decrease in self-defeating emotions, and increase in problem-solving and decision-making abilities.

Furthermore, we need to establish individual goals, but they must be related to our abilities. What these abilities are may be discovered by trial and error, by tests, and by study to develop latent talents. Once the aptitude or the ability in a given area is discovered, concentrated training in that field is the next step if we are to take full advantage of opportunities which come to us. We must also continue to seek for meanings within the complexities of a changing society.

Because of growing populations and more crowded living conditions which help magnify tensions, self-discipline is imperative to our future. Individual expression is encouraged but the rights of others must be respected.

Futile responses to problems and the future include regression to an infantile or "safer" period; rejection, perhaps stemming from hostility; and the over aggressive behavior which may compensate for a feeling of inferiority.

Since the future is not only 40 or 50 years away, but begins now, we need to live responsibly now if we are to enjoy the best future possible. While we seek to maintain the best of our heritage, we should try to correct the inequities that exist.

Our future can be as creative and exciting and satisfying as we want to make it. Visualize it, achieve it, and enjoy it.

"Angel" is first 1974 baby

FORT BENNING — The first baby delivered in the nation this year arrived at one second after midnight Tuesday at Martin Army Hospital here.

Mrs. Glenda Wilson, the mother, said she was "quite thrilled" to learn that her 5 lb. 2½ounce Angela Serena was the first baby of 1974.

Her husband, Capt. James Wilson was also excited, but is reported to have said, "Well, there goes my tax deduction for 1973."

Wilson later commented, "I think I could let it (the tax deduction) ride one more year."

The physician, Majl. Phil Mathias, said that just as the delivery was complete he said, "Now," The nurse looked at the clock and it was one second past midnight.

Mrs. Wilson said she plans to save pictures to start a scrapbook about her unique daughter. Both parents denied that being the first baby of 1974 would change Angela's life.

"She'll grow up as what they refer to as a 'military brat, . . . with a little discipline," said Capt. Wilson.

Mrs. Wilson said her husband had been anxious for her to have their baby before he reported to his reassigned position at Ft. Sil, Okla., on Jan. 9.

She had been at the beauty parlor the day before when she realized she would have to go to the hospital.

No "baby companies," such as Gerber's or Johnson and Johnson have called the family for advertising endorsements as yet, according to Mrs. Wilson, "but if they do, I'll let you know. I wish they would."

Angela's maternal grandmother, Mrs. Rossie Renfroe, owns and operates a florist's shop in Phenix City. Her maternal grandfather lives in Columbus.

Mr. and Mrs. Woodrow W. Wilson, Angela's paternal grandparents, live in Greenville, Ala.

At last report, mother and baby were "doing fine."

Time
a-changing

Set your clocks ahead one hour when Daylight Saving Time goes into effect Jan. 6 at 2 a.m. Energy conservationists have determined that the added daylight hours will save an estimated equivalent of 150,000 barrels of oil a day throughout the country. DST will be in effect all year for a two-year period under the new law.

Should drivers caught DUI lose their licenses?

Private Robert Foreman
42d Co., TSB

Definitely yes!!! He could lose control at any time and kill someone, maybe me!!

Private Harold Hall
42d Co., TSB

If he is really drunk then he should receive the maximum penalty. But, I can drink a couple of beers and be perfectly straight and still not pass an alcohol test. There should be a positive test since a conviction would have a definite effect on you.

BAYONET OPINION PAGE

Private First Class Alfred Scott
Co. C, 1 Bn., 29th Inf.

I have been caught twice driving under the influence of alcohol on post. The first time my post driving privileges were suspended for six months and the second time revoked for good. It is enough penalty to have the post privileges revoked, but I don't think your license should be revoked. It is a real hassle having to rely on the shuttle buses to go from place to place. I took my car home to keep out of trouble and also stopped drinking completely.

Sergeant First Class Theo James
11th Co., TSB

No, I don't think it should be revoked, but it could be suspended maybe 90 days. This would give the person time to find out how much of a nuisance it is without a license. If he is caught again, then revoke his license.

Sergeant First Class Donald Koon
4th Student Bn.

No! Sometimes you have three or four beers — not enough to make you drunk but enough to show up on a test. I do feel that if the person was staggering drunk his license should be revoked. He is capable of being a menace on the roads.

Dry out 197th attacks on-duty drinking

Alcohol abuse is not a new problem, nor one of the Army alone. Rather, alcohol abuse is a widespread problem that reaches all occupations and social levels. It becomes a matter of particular concern for the Army, however, when alcohol consumption takes place during duty hours. Colonel William B. Steele, 197th Infantry Brigade commander, has taken steps to prevent such problems from arising in the "Forever Forward" brigade. In a letter to all officers and noncommissioned officers of the brigade Col. Steele stated, "Although alcohol is probably the most abused drug in our society, the use of alcohol is lawfully and socially acceptable. When the use or abuse of this drug takes place during duty hours, it becomes a matter of concern for the commander." Of course, any soldier who drinks while on duty is subject to punishment under the Uniform Code of Military Justice. Specialist Four Joe Kerr of Headquarters, Headquarters Company, 3d Battalion 7th Infantry feels that the men of the 197th take the ban on drinking during duty hours seriously. "I've been here 5 months and haven't seen it abused," says Kerr. For those in the brigade who cannot resist the temptation or who have a drinking problem there is help. Chaplains are available to the men of the 197th for counseling and help concerning alcohol and its related problems. Chaplain (LTC) Charles Gatty of the 197th has worked with men with problems involving alcohol. "Alcohol is a very prevalent thing in the Army," says Chaplain Gatty, "not just in the 197th." Chaplain Gatty's office and those of all brigade chaplains are open to the men of the brigade for help with alcohol problems. These efforts of the 197th in dealing with alcohol abuse were best summed up by Private Warren Bolten of Company C, 3d Battalion 7th Infantry, "The ban on drinking during duty hours is ok if the soldiers abide by it, and the help is there.

Now, when we talk about nonverbalized communication, don't forget you talk when you are silent. When I walked across this floor and sat over on that chair, even if I hadn't said a word to you, you would have become an authority on the Sergeant Major of the Army in five minutes. You can do this because you drew an opinion about the way I walked, about the way I look, and even about my uniform. Yet, I hadn't said a word. I was nonverbalizing. I was communicating even though I was not saying one word.

You do the same when you wear the uniform of a noncommissioned officer no matter where you are. When you are seen in your uniform with the stripes on your arm, you represent our noncommissioned officer corps. And, in a nonverbalized manner, as you walk down that street people are drawing an opinion about all of us, through the way you walk, the way you wear your uniform and the way you look.

Pride in the Corps

It is not an individual affair. It's not Joe Brown or John Dokes. You are a member of our noncommissioned officer corps. And it is a fine one and getting better all the time. And it is getting better because people like you are attending our NCOES program. You've got to make sure you support the collective program, not the individual program. Just realize how important that is. For instance, when you got to your next unit if anybody talks about the Sergeant Major of the Army, you are going to say, "wait a minute, fellows, I am the expert on the Sergeant Major of the Army. I know all about him." You have become an expert in the time that I have had the pleasure of talking to you.

And you do the same whenever you present yourself as a noncommissioned officer. It is so important that I just can't talk about that enough.

"Cut the Mustard"

I have noticed another problem while bouncing into units unexpectedly. One thing that dismays me, and as I talk to the corporal and sergeant, it dismays them is that when I go into a class, I see it being conducted at the battalion or the company level. Now here we are in the prestigious Infantry School at Fort Benning.

Well, this is a structured environment so we are not going to find a problem here. When we get down to the battalions, and we get a class that is going to be given, we find this situation. We find 100 people sitting out here and suddenly the NCO or the officer comes rushing in. He says, "Oh my God, I've got to give you fellows a class, let's see what it is all about." And, he looks at the book and either talks to you for 10 or 15 minutes out of the hour or he reads to you and in 10 minutes begins to hear the snores throughout the classroom.

Well, if I were to ask you to raise your hands, I would get at least 75 percent of you to tell me you have seen the same thing. But we can't let that happen either. And I will tell you why. First and foremost is that when you spend an hour talking to 100 men, you waste 100 manhours. That is the first thing. And secondly, once again, if you do a poor job you discredit our noncommissioned officer corps.

And that is the gripe that I am getting from altogether too many soldiers. About the poor classes, the wasted 50-minutes they have had to spend doing nothing but sleeping, or half listening to something that is poorly presented or not presented at all.

How many times have you had the man who was supposed to give a class say, "Well, let's take a 20-minute break, have a cigarette, have a bull session then we will fall out after the 50-minutes have passed by?" We can't have that happen.

We talk about pride in our corps and I guess that is the thing I address all the time. I want to have a pride in the noncommissioned officer corps. The fantastic thing about the NCOES program is that we are starting to get officers coming to my office and tell me how impressed they have been with the courses that are being conducted, with the students of those courses and with the graduates of those courses. That is fantastic.

So we are really doing a good job and we are on the right path. I want to caution you about one thing. The mere fact that you have attended this course is not an indication that you are a better NCO. In fact, I would assume that as time goes by there may even be a couple of people in attendance here that will not contribute to our corps.

It is the application of the principle learned here that counts. It's doing

Sergeant Major of the Army Leon Van Autreve shakes hands with Specialist Five Malcolm Johnson as Sergeant First Class Howard Garrett watches in the background. The Sergeant Major of the Army was congratulating the cooks on a job well done. He ate in the Company C, 3d Battalion, 7th Infantry, 197th Infantry Brigade mess hall while visiting Fort Benning. For the last 10 months the facility was selected Best Mess for Dining Facility serving 200 or less men per meal. (Photo by Phil Reid) what you have been taught to do once you get out there. It's having the moral courage to call it as it is.

Now you are going to find a lot of competition out there. You are going to find that the response out there is not always as good as you would like it to be. You are going to find out that you seem like you are all alone when you try to do the things that you have been taught to do in your course here.

But, let me tell you, don't give up and don't slow down. We are going to be putting out more of these courses. The more

Sergeant Major of the Army Leon Van Autreve addressed the graduating class of NCOES 2-74 at Fort Benning on Dec. 14 during a visit to the U.S. Army Infantry Center. His remarks to the graduating class would be of interest to both enlisted men and officers at Fort Benning. Here are excerpts from that address:

Second of a Two-Part Series

we put out, the more strength you are going to get. And you are going to find out that now as you go out into that field and find the opposition out there from the old geritol gang — the guy that thinks he is still in the nickel-hamburger area — strength is building up with more graduates from these Advanced and Basic Courses. They are going to give us strength in our corps like we have never had before.

are gleaming and they are ready to tackle the world.

I just spent some time at the War College where 16 members of the Sergeants Major Academy were attending. First time it has ever happened. And when they left, they received a standing ovation. I have never felt so proud in my life. So we are really moving out. And this is the answer — the NCOES.

There are ways to save gas in cars

DETROIT (UPI) — There's more to saving gasoline than just slowing down.

While slower speeds will help, a better bet is to switch to a smaller car. Better yet, try a small car with a small engine, a standard transmission, no power steering and no air conditioning.

That would mean giving up a whole lot of things most Americans now consider standard equipment on their new cars. They also require more gasoline.

Some of the things most Americans wouldn't mind giving up are the emission control devices. The automakers would agree and have an ally in Rep. William L. Dickinson, R-Ala.

He told his constituents recently that gasoline rationing probably won't work and labeled the emission control devices as "one of the reasons our American automobiles consume so much gasoline."

But what can you do if the government doesn't ease its environmental controls for automobiles?

A recent Transportation Department test showed that 12 recently built cars, nine of them with air conditioning, averaged 4 1/2 miles more per gallon of gas by reducing their highway speeds from 70 miles per hour to 50.

At a steady speed of 50 miles per hour, the cars averaged 19.49 miles per gallon. This dropped to 14.93 miles per gallon when the speed increased to 70.

With the air conditioning on, the average miles per gallon at 50 miles per hour was 16.42 and dropped to 13.17 miles per gallon at 70.

While you may save a few gallons by slowing down, stepping down to a smaller car will make a bigger difference.

If you don't want to give up your large car or even if you own a small one, there are a number of "painless" ways to improve mileage.

One that accompanies slowing down is to avoid fast starts.

Other suggestions from Place include:

—Avoid fast stops.

—Don't let the engine idle for long periods—either during warm-ups or while waiting for someone because that adds up to zero miles per gallon.

—Avoid needless weight in your trunk.

—Keep your engine properly maintained and tuned.

—Check your cooling-system thermostat and keep your tires inflated to the pressure recommended by the manufacturer.

—Future car buyers are being given some help as "fuel economy labels" are being added alongside the price sticker. The label indicates the vehicle's weight class, range of miles per gallon for vehicles tested.

Then we will run those characters right out of the Army that can't cut the mustard. See, we like a competitive environment. That is what we want. We want the Army to be competitive. We want the best of the rest. That is what we want and we are getting it.

And the best thing that has ever happened to us is the NCOES program. You Advanced members have now looked forward to the Sergeants Major Academy. If you could see the difference in those people before they go and after they come out. They walk a little taller, their shoulders back, their eyes

So you have a tremendous responsibility. Graduates of the Basic and the Advanced Course, when you go out there and are recognized as a graduating member of those courses people will look at you and see what you are going to do. Don't disappoint them. Don't disappoint the school.

I want to close and the last thing I want to say in closing—and this goes for all of you—is the thing that you must do above all else, is to be true to our noncommissioned officer corps. For then and then only will you be true to everything else that matters.

WOW! HERE

By JACKIE ROBKE
NCO WIVES CLUB

An annual children's Christmas Party was held in the NCOWC Clubhouse on Dec. 15. Mrs. Santa Claus (Mrs. Franklin P. Henry), came early to take pictures of the children playing musical chairs. The excitement turned to a hushed silence as Santa (SGT Jessie Bramlett), walked in to present each child with a gift. Cookies were baked by the mothers and Mrs. Gordon Dalius and Mrs. Robert Horan hosted the party and games.

NCOWC LUNCHEON

A Christmas Luncheon for the NCOWC was held on Dec. 19 at Jean's Five Fountains Restaurant on Victory Drive in Columbus. Mrs. Rayford Watson and Mrs. Oliver Williams were hostesses. Mrs. Peter Sereque entertained the ladies with violin music complimenting the Christmas season.

Mr. George Gingell, the guest speaker, gave the ladies a very informative history of Columbus, as well as a verbal look at contemporary Columbus with its problems and achievements.

NCOWC CHRISTMAS BALL

Ladies and husbands of the NCOWC gathered for the Christmas Ball held on Dec. 21 in the Sandhill NCO Club. Music was by the Sands and the menu of Chicken Cordon Bleu was enjoyed by all. CSM Robert Keairnes and CSM Theron Gergen and their ladies were the guests of honor. Hostesses were Mrs. Theodore Cherry and Mrs. Wallace Colson.

DDTD

The ladies of DDTD met at the home of Mrs. Craig Chamberlain, on Perkins St. for their Dec. coffee. Everyone enjoyed Christmas cakes and cookies with their coffee or tea. In keeping with the season, the ladies exchanged wrapped "white elephants."

The January get-together will be given by Mrs. Raymond Panderburk.

Benning House helps break the drinking cycle

"It's where a guy can wake up and remember himself."

"It's a place where you can examine your life style and see if you want to continue in it."

"It's an environment to learn how to live without using chemicals."

"It's help."

These are descriptions of the Benning House — Fort Benning's facility for helping people who have problems from using drugs or misusing alcohol.

The Benning House is a self-help rehabilitation center. During the day the participants lead normal lives, working at their military or civilian jobs. In the evening they return to the house to get help for their problems.

"Most of the people in the Benning House program are here because they have fallen asleep," says Mike Deutscher, Chief of the Benning House. "We help them wake up."

The Benning House approach to alcoholism is tailored to suit anyone's needs.

"It's a place where anyone can learn how to break the drinking habit," says Deutscher. "The significant thing about the program is that the people in it are pulling their duty and are not laid up in a hospital. They take part in rehabilitation on their own time."

Benning House is open to active and retired military personnel and their dependents, as well as civilian employees at Fort Benning.

The Benning House has two major functions, explained James Henry, Chief of Administration. "They are outreach, intake, resident rehab (rehabilitation) and non-resident rehab."

Outreach publicizes the Benning House. It explains Benning House resources to commanders, supervisors, non-drinking family members and friends of the problem drinker and to the problem drinker.

The intake function tries to show the individual the extent of the drinking problem. A rehab plan is set up that will bring about positive change.

"The resident program an individual can learn to examine himself and make some decisions about what he wants to do with his life," says Deutscher. "He volunteers not to use drugs or alcohol and to live at the Benning House for about 60 days."

"The amazing thing we've found is that a guy with a drinking problem of ten to fifteen years can come into the program and stop drinking right away."

Members of the resident program take part in rehab activities during the evenings and on weekends. One evening a week is devoted to Alcoholics Anonymous or Narcotics Anonymous. Another evening is devoted to exploring intellectual subjects or community activities. Three evenings a week are for intensive interaction groups.

The interaction groups are a key part of the program. They last about three hours and involve a very personal exploration of each person's feelings, attitudes, and behavior. A person's responsibility for himself and for others is emphasized.

"We live publicly," said Henry. "We don't give the men anything. They earn their way through by helping themselves as they help others."

When the men complete the resident program, they are encouraged to get involved with some non-resident alcohol abuse program or some other constructive activity.

"If they don't keep involved," said Henry, "they tend to let their guard down. We know of people who have gotten drunk after being dry for over 10 years."

A singular advantage of Benning House is the number of programs and resources it has gathered under one umbrella.

The family group program, for instance, has proven very valuable to friends and family members of the alcoholic.

"Even when you have a family group of other people involved," explained William C. Kloeb, chief of Fort Benning's Civilian Personnel Alcoholism Program. "Often an alcoholic's spouse has more problems than the alcoholic. Family groups help solve these problems."

Other on-going programs include Alateen for teenagers and Alanon for adult family members and friends of problem drinkers.

"When an alcoholic begins to recover," said Kloeb, "he starts to get human again. This is often a traumatic experience for his family."

"For example, he will want to manage the money he has earned. But his wife, who has been managing the family budget since he became a heavy drinker, is not about to trust him with all the family's money."

"Another problem will arise when he tries to get involved with his children again. His kids have developed a close relationship with his wife and often don't want his companionship. They virtually have had no father since he started heavy drinking."

How successful is the Benning House program?

"When we see a number of people who were more dead than alive start to live again," said Henry, "and when we see families that had fallen apart come back together again, and when we see careers that were almost ended start to surge ahead, then we can say we have had some success. We have seen all of this happen."

Henry was careful to point out, though, that the Benning House program does not guarantee success.

"A number of people have gone through and have changed the direction of their lives," he said. "They now live more comfortably. But just because a man is not drinking today does not mean he won't get drunk tomorrow."

"Completing the program, however, is not a real measure of the value of the program," Deutscher continued. "How participants perform their duty is. Recent figures indicate that of those who have completed the resident program, only 25 per cent got into trouble again."

"That's not bad. It should offer hope to those who don't think they can change. They can."

For social drinkers only

By DAVE DEUTSCHER

Are you tired of seeing DA pamphlets on Alcoholism? Do you hate attending mandatory unit seminars on drinking? What about DB notices, safety billboards, and the ASAP television special?

Friend, join the ranks of mid-stream America. Most of us just aren't interested in such boring, repetitious "words of wisdom."

Now to top it all off, the Bayonet decides to devote this issue to — you guessed it — Alcohol. So Since that last response probably applies to more readers, I'll deal only with that subject. That common situation is a direct reflection of our attitudes about alcoholism.

We usually think of an "alcoholic" as a vagrant with no willpower who drinks blended whiskey straight from the bottle to escape reality. This attitude is also the reason we find the subject of "alcoholism" so boring. This attitude is most incorrect.

If your wife is complaining about your drinking,

Psychologically you feel uncomfortable. You sit around and worry about things you said or how you acted last night. You avoid certain bars or people because you think you made a fool of yourself in their presence.

You stay mad at yourself for doing things. You get mad when associates comment on your drinking. You find ways to "get back" at your critics. Or you play overly friendly and glib with people so they won't hurt your feelings.

You begin to feel low about your true self, yet you go on an ego trip. You try to appear to be the greatest. You'll listen to other people's stories but they don't really mean anything. You'll tell a story even more exciting or important as soon as you can butt in.

Your plans for the future get bigger each week. Tomorrow you're going to start your own business. Tomorrow you're going to buy a new home or car. But today you'll just relax. You can talk big plans, but you never save a penny to invest in your dreams.

You may have blackouts. This is not "passing out." Rather, it is instances of forgetting. You'll leave a bar and not know where the car is parked. You'll receive a telephone message at work then forget who the caller was. You'll draw a blank when you try to remember what you did last night.

You may wonder to yourself or aloud if you're going insane. You'll recognize abrupt changes in mood, but you'll attribute it to tension or workload or even illness — never to drinking.

The social symptoms are even more evident. You'll drift from job to job or from hobby to hobby, and there will always be a logical excuse for the change. You won't feel comfortable with certain friends anymore. To be honest, they probably don't get involved with drinking like you do. You'll find new friends at a bar, the club, and at neighborhood drinking bouts. But still you complain about being lonely. You plan your activities around your drinking. If you're going fishing early Sunday morning, you're sure to pick up enough booze Saturday to take along. State parks are a hassle because alcoholic beverages aren't allowed.

And what happens if something interferes with your usual drinking hours, such as guard duty, unit luncheons, or field commitments?

Yes, most problem drinkers are not the "skid row" stereotype. They are "social drinkers." They hold a job. They have families. They drink beer. They may even hate the taste of straight whiskey. And luckily, some of them have Old Ladies who care enough to bitch.

If you would like to talk about your particular situation, just call the Alcohol and Drug Control Office at 545-5774 or the Benning House at 545-LIVE.

You may be surprised to make this article as interesting as possible, the writer conducted an informal survey to solicit ideas that were both applicable and of interest to the average reader.

QUESTION: What would you like to hear concerning alcohol?

RESPONSES: Will the Main Post liquor store be open New Year's Eve?

Is it against the law for me to drink beer in an automobile if my wife is driving?

Can you beat the "balloon test" by chewing breath mints?

Why doesn't Georgia allow beer sales on Sunday? Will eating butter keep me from getting drunk?

How do you mix a Tequila Sunrise?

My "Old Lady" keeps bitchin' about my drinking, how can I shut her up?

then you do have a problem. The problem may not be drinking. But, apparently she thinks it is, so it is causing friction with at least one member of the family. Perhaps the solution is just to sit down and talk honestly; this often establishes the seeds of confidence and trust.

On the other hand, the lady may have a point. Forget the traditional concept of "alcoholic" and look realistically at the symptoms of problem drinking.

One of the early signs is physical deterioration. This doesn't necessarily mean shaky hands or a cirrotic liver. Rather, your resistance to colds seems to be lower. You become more sensitive to physical pain. You're finding bruises on your body. Your eating habits are terrible. You have a hard time sleeping at night except when drunk. And your sex life is going downhill.

NEW HOURS OF OPERATION

The Immunization and Allergy Clinics, located at the Hospital Annex, Building 396, will combine operations effective Jan. 7. As a result, the hours of operation will be changed as follows: Monday and Thursday allergy shots will be given from 8 a.m.-11 a.m. and 1 p.m.-4 p.m. Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday from 8 a.m.-11 a.m. and 1 p.m.-4 p.m. Immunizations will be administered.

CENTRAL APPOINTMENT DESK, MAH

Six telephone numbers are now available at the Central Appointment Desk for making appointments. Dial 544-1064, 544-1065, 544-1066, 544-1067, 544-1068 or 544-1069. Appointments for the following clinics can be made by dialing any of the above numbers: Optometry (eye refractions); Dermatology; Orthopedics; Cast Room; Podiatry; Surgical; Diet; Pediatrics (sick children up through 12 years of age); Well Baby (6 weeks, 3 months, 6 months, and 1 year check-ups); and Outpatient (retired military personnel, dependents 13 years old and over in the Yellow, Pink and Green Medical Groups).

EXPECTANT PARENTS COURSE

An Expectant Parents Course will begin on Tuesday, Jan. 8 at 7 p.m. in the Second Floor Conference Room at Martin Army Hospital. Prospective parents who are interested may register by calling the Army Health Nurse, 545-5431. Those who want to enroll are asked to register in advance, since classes are often crowded.

EDUCATIONAL OPPORTUNITY

The Army Education Center will offer a course in Elementary Typewriting beginning Jan. 14 and ending April 8. The course is designed to help the student learn to type for work and for personal use. Adult dependents may be enrolled if their sponsor is enrolled. Textbooks are provided on a loan basis. Enrollments will be accepted at the MOS Inspection Unit, Building 2824, at 6:45 p.m., Jan 14. Building 2824 is located on Sightseeing Road on Main Post.

SURVIVOR BENEFIT PLAN DEADLINE

There's a new deadline for participation in the Survivor Benefit Plan. The Pentagon says military retirees will have until midnight on March 20, 1974, to join. The old deadline was Sept. 20, 1973. Under the plan, a retiree can purchase an annuity for his wife or children with a relatively small deduction from his retired pay. Retirees who haven't received information on the plan should contact the department from which they receive their retired pay.

MEETINGS HELD

The Fort Benning Alcoholics Anonymous group conducts meetings on Monday and Thursday at 8 p.m. The Monday meeting is held at Building 2214, Airborne Area. The Thursday meeting is held in the Religious Education Center, Building 2605, located on Dixie Road.

197th Avn Plat work on readiness

Since its organization last July, the 197th Aviation Platoon, 197th Infantry Brigade, has been working day and night in an effort to obtain a "combat ready" status. Not only does the Aviation Platoon have to train itself, but it has the added task of supporting the rest of the 197th Infantry Brigade.

"We have to stay one step ahead of the other units in the brigade at all times in training," says Capt. Bruce P. Mauldin, the 197th Aviation Officer. "For example, we had to have our Basic Unit Training pretty well finished before the battalions began theirs, so that we could support their training."

"In addition to our other missions," states 1st Lt. William L. McNeese, the section commander for the 197th Aviation Platoon, "we also have to supply aircraft for a number of the brigade so they can keep up their proficiency." The Aviation Platoon is divided into six sections. The two flying sections of the platoon are the aeroscout, or observation section and the command and control, or utility section.

The aeroscout section consists of five OH58A helicopters. As the name of the section implies, the "scouts" main function is that of providing reconnaissance and security for Brigade maneuver elements. Presently the "scout" section is training in the fundamentals of battle drill. These include formation flying, in-flight discipline and evasive maneuvers against enemy aircraft and ground fire.

"I feel that formation flying is a very important part of discipline in an aviation unit," states Capt. Mauldin. "Men in a combat aviation unit have to be able to respond to orders exactly without questioning them, just as do those in other combat units. Formation flying and battle drill help instill that sort of discipline in aviators."

The command and control section is made up of three OH58A helicopters and three UH1H helicopters. This section is responsible for providing command and control with the means to observe and direct combat operations from the air. They also have the primary artillery fire control mission in the platoon. The maintenance section, "is extremely important" says Capt. Mauldin. "No matter how old the aircraft, our mechanics keep them in superb shape. Considering the higher risk inherent in our mission, maintenance becomes even more critical."

ROD AND GUN CLUB

Notes

By BILL KLOEB

About 200 members and guests enjoyed the New Years' Eve party at the Rod and Gun Club. The affair was also a financial success, according to the club custodian, Tom McCullough.

We can't say the same for the weekly Friday and Saturday dances. There was a good crowd at the first dance held Friday, Dec. 20 but after that, interest seemed to wane. Dances held since that date have hardly reached a financial break-even point.

Of course the holiday period is not the best time to start something new. Everyone has a lot of social and business parties going during that period.

The club will try it again this weekend. Country and Western music will be provided by Curley Money and his Jingles tonight and tomorrow night. Music will start at 7:30 p.m. each night, and continue until 1 a.m. tonight and until midnight tomorrow night. If you want these weekend affairs to continue you had better plan to be there. The club just can't afford to continue any losing operations.

Big Deer Contest

Daniel Tharp and David Moeller haven't won Beretta Shotguns in the Rod and Gun Big Game contest, but their chances improved considerably when the Georgia season closed Tuesday.

Moeller registered the largest deer taken on a reservation. His deer weighed in at an even 150-pounds on the club scales. Moeller has the deer with the most antler points. His 11-pointer came from the D Area.

Approximately 150 members registered deer in the club contest. Each of these members will have a chance to win the third Beretta Automatic the club will award for the contest. The presentation ceremony is set for 7:30 p.m., Jan. 25. Ridley Bell, host for the WRBL-TV Sportsman Lodge Program will make the presentations in the Victory Lodge Ballroom. All winners must be present to accept prizes.

Rabbit Dogs Can Run

Everyone wasn't sorry to see the Georgia deer season close. Rabbit hunters have been waiting for this day for some time. The regulations prohibit using dogs to hunt rabbits during the deer season in Georgia. Now those beagle packs are free to go.

Quail and squirrel hunters also have quite a bit of hunting time left. Open seasons for these animals won't close until Feb. 28. Dove season is also open in Alabama and Georgia. Both final seasons close Jan. 15.

Hunters won't have to worry about slugs or buck shot from the shotguns of deer hunters for the rest of the season, but that's no reason to get careless. A gun loaded with number five or nine shot can do quite a bit of damage.

The duds are still out in some areas of the reservation and units have gone back to training. Be sure you check those range maps before going hunting. They are located at the Rod and Gun Club, Provost Marshal Office, Range Control Office and the Fish and Wildlife Unit Headquarters.

LION COUNTRY BIRTH RATE SOARS

Zero Population Growth? Not at Georgia's Lion Country Safari...

Zoologists at the Greater Atlanta African wildlife preserve reported recently that almost 70 animals were born at Lion Country during its first year of operation—a birth rate of over 10 per cent.

Officials at the drive-through wildlife preserve said the May 22 arrival of three rare cheetah at the park was the "single most significant birth of the year."

The single most prolific animal at Lion Country-Georgia, according to park records, has been the African Lion. The approximately 90 lions at the preserve have given birth to 29 cubs during the past 12 months.

"Lions are not hard to breed in captivity," says Lion Country Zoological Manager Vern McGrann. "Basically all you need to do is put a male and female together."

McGrann said the free environment surrounding the lions at Lion Country Safari may have actually increased the animal's inherent productivity.

"Certainly giving the lions—and all the other animals for that matter—a lot of room to move around and some degree of privacy improves chances for procreation," McGrann said.

VA pensions may change

More than a million Veterans Administration beneficiaries received a questionnaire with their November pension checks that could mean increases or decreases in their monthly checks for next year.

Pensions (unlike VA compensation for service-connected disabilities) are based on income, the VA explained, and most pension recipients must complete a questionnaire on income.

Exempted from filing are persons age 72 or over who have been on VA pension rolls during the last two consecutive years. They must report changes in income, however.

VA officials explained those who will receive questionnaires include veteran pensioners, widows of veterans who are receiving pensions based on the non-service connected death of a husband, and parents who are receiving dependency and indemnity compensation (DIC).

Deadline for returning the completed questionnaire to VA, is January 15. A prompt reply to the November mailing will help avoid a delay in next year's checks, VA officials point out. Each year thousands miss the January deadline because their questionnaires are overlooked by recipients, forgotten or misplaced. Full information on pensions and other VA benefits is available through local VA offices and veterans service organizations.

What kind of drinker are you?

When most people think of alcohol abuse or alcoholism they picture the skid row or bowery bum or if they came from a small town they think of the village drunk.

They see the end result of the progression of a disease that in most cases first attacked the individual years before. It's hard to imagine that one time these people were children without a thought about alcohol. That at one time they were special drinkers without a thought of ever having a problem with alcohol. But in most cases they began as social drinkers who thought that alcoholism could never bother them.

Alcoholism is an insidious progressive disease. Victims rarely realize of their own accord that they have fallen under its spell, but your honest answers to the following questions may give you an indication of your personal position at this time.

1. Have you ever tried to stop drinking for a week or longer, only to fall short of your goal?

2. Do you resent the advice of others who try to get you to stop drinking?

3. Have you ever tried to control your drinking by switching from one alcoholic beverage to another?

4. Have you taken a morning drink during the past year?

5. Do you envy people who can drink without getting into trouble?

6. Has your drinking problem become progressively more serious during the past year?

7. Has your drinking created problems at home?

8. At social affairs where drinking is limited, do you try to obtain extra drinks?

9. Despite evidence to the contrary have you continued to assert that you can stop drinking on your own whenever you wish?

10. During the past year have you missed time from work as a result of drinking?

11. Have you ever "blacked out" during your drinking?

12. Have you ever felt you could do more with your life if you did not drink?

If your answer is "YES" to one or more of these questions you had better take a good inventory of your drinking habits or pattern. If your answer is yes to four or more of the questions in all probability you now have or will have a serious drinking problem.

"I HAVE A DREAM"

"I am happy to join with you today in what will go down in history as the greatest demonstration for freedom in the history of our nation.

Five score years ago, a great American, in whose symbolic shadow we stand today, signed the Emancipation Proclamation. This momentous decree came as a great beacon light of hope to millions of Negro slaves who had been seared in the flames of withering injustice. It came as a joyous daybreak to end the long night of their captivity.

197th troops remember King

Dr. King has been dead for five years, but his accomplishments, failures, and techniques will be discussed, debated and remembered for generations to come.

What do soldiers of the 197th Inf. Bde. feel about this internationally recognized and honored man whose assassination ended his life at the age of 39?

Pvt. Walter Walthall, HHC, 3rd Bn., 7th Inf.

(Cottonbalers), feels that "Martin Luther was a far greater man than any others that preceded him. His accomplishments will never be forgotten by both blacks and whites nor by the rest of the world." Sp4 Bill Brown, HHB, 2nd Bn., 10th Field Arty., suggests that "He was a man who had strong feelings for things he felt were right. Although his ideas seemed impossible, he was able to put them into action to better America." "I feel that Dr. King wanted peace and harmony for all people regardless of their race," says SSGT. Walter Crenshaw, Co. B, 1st Bn. (Mech), 58th Inf. (Patriots). "He seemed like both a prophet and a leader to the people through his use of non-violence to gain what he wanted."

For Sp4 Leroy Johnson, Co. C, 3rd Bn., 7th Inf. (Cottonbalers), King holds a more venerable place. "To me he was sent by God to teach the world right from wrong. He wished that all people would be able to live together without hate. What we need is more men like him who believe in getting things done without violence."

"In my opinion," voiced Sp4 Walter Whetzel, Co. A, 3rd Bn., 7th Inf. (Cottonbalers), "it would have been really good if he could have accomplished his goal. It would have furthered the whole human race and then everyone would have lived in peace. Now it will take another hundred Kings to make all races live in harmony and understanding."

Not all soldiers, however, hold such views as those previously expressed. One holds that "King used a front. That front was using the word 'peace' and 'non-violence' to cover up for all that were hurt and killed following him. There was a lot of good done, but I have to weigh the good against the bad." Another man, who wished to be unidentified, felt "he was nothing but a Communist. How else did he get all that money for all those demonstrators?"

Bonds to Increase Interest

No news is good news but a White House announcement of last month means good news to many Fort Benning personnel.

That announcement via the White House authorizes an increase in the interest rate offered on U.S. Savings Bonds from 5 1/2% to 6%, coupled with a shortening of the maturity period on Series E Bonds to 5 years.

The increase, which became effective December 1, 1973, will also mean an improvement on all outstanding bonds. They will now earn an extra 1/2% for each semiannual interest period beginning on or after that date until their Yields on U. S. Savings Notes — Freedom Shares — are also raised by 1/2 of 1 per cent for their remaining life effective with the first semiannual interest period, beginning on or after December 1, 1973.

An estimated 23 million America families already own Savings Bonds with a current value of more than $60 billion. Thus for present owners as well as new buyers, the rate increase will have a substantial impact — and will benefit not only the individual owners but also the communities in which they live.

PX service stations impose 10 gal. limit

Purchase of gasoline by individuals at Fort Benning's Post Exchange Service Stations was limited to 10 gallons at a time beginning Jan. 7, 1974. This is due to the current gasoline shortage affecting all parts of the U. S.

According to Mr. Robert W. Bonner, Post Exchange

Service Operations Manager, this move serves two purposes. "It will conserve available gasoline," he said, "and enable the service stations on post to stay open all during January, instead of closing after the first part of the month, by stretching the available fuel over a longer period of time." Last month, reduced gas allocations forced the Main Post Service Station to close on Dec. 22. Harmony Church Service Station also closed on Dec. 22, while Kelley Hill and Sand Hill were closed the entire month. All stations reopened on Jan. 2, 1974.

Rollier to assume chief of staff duties

Colonel Robert L. Rollier will assume duties as Fort Benning's Chief of Staff on February 1, 1974. He succeeds Colonel Charles Thebaud, who will retire from the Army on March 1.

Col. Rollier, currently the Director of Instruction of the U. S. Army Infantry School, is a native of Lake Placid, New York. He received a direct commission in the infantry in 1949 after serving as an enlisted man from 1942 to 1947.

He was assigned to Fort Benning from 1957 to 1960 as an instructor in the Airborne Department, as Chief of the Air Movement and Aerial Delivery Committee and in the office of the Director of Instruction of the Infantry School.

In 1969 he was Assistant

Chief of Staff G3 (Military Operations), Headquarters, XXIV Corps in Vietnam and then was Deputy Commander of the 1st Bde., 5th Mech Inf Div, along the DMZ. He has also been assigned to the Office of the Deputy Chief of Staff for Operations, the Directorate for Civil Disturbance Plans and Operations, and the Directorate of Military Support, all in Department of the Army, Washington, D. C. He came to Fort Benning in August 1973 after command of a brigade at Fort Leonard Wood for 18 months.

He attended the University of Buffalo, New York, and received a Bachelor of Science degree in government from the University of Maryland. He has attended the Infantry Officer Advanced Course and Nuclear Weapons Course at Fort Benning and Regular Course at the U. S. Army Command and General Staff College, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas. In 1968 he attended the U. S. Army War College at Carlisle Barracks, Pennsylvania.

Col. Rollier and his wife, Eileen, have five children, Mary, Robert, Michael, Patrick and Timothy.

IN MEMORIAM

On 15 January, Fort Benning personnel will join Americans everywhere in observing the birthday of The Reverend Martin Luther King, Jr.

On this day, we should be reminded of Dr. King's lasting influence on America's society. It is an occasion to rededicate ourselves to the principle for which he lived and died -- dignity to all, regardless of color, creed or national origin.

In recognition of Dr. King's many contributions, we will conduct special memorial services in unit chapels and in Marshall Auditorium. All military personnel, their families and civilian employees are encouraged to join in these services.

 Commanding

Infantry Center to honor Dr. King

A memorial service in Marshall Auditorium at 4 p.m. on Tuesday, Jan. 15 will highlight the activities at the U.S. Army Infantry Center in observance of Dr. Martin Luther King's birthday.

The activities will start on Sunday, Jan. 13, with the choir from Mt. Pilgrim Baptist Church in Columbus visiting the Main Post Chapel.

Also scheduled for Sunday is a film "From Montgomery to Memphis" which will be shown in Marshall Auditorium at 2 p.m. The film can be seen by servicemen and their dependents at the 197th Infantry Brigade on Monday, Jan. 14, at The School Brigade on Wednesday, Jan. 16 and at the 36th Engineer Group and McGraw Manor on Thursday, Jan. 17.

Post dependent schools also have planned activities. The film "I Have A Dream" will be shown in all Fort Benning schools and displays will be built in observance of the occasion. Music presentations featuring celebrated black composers, filmstrips and library displays of Dr. King's books and pictures are all planned by the schools.

Albro to command 36th Engr. Gp.

Colonel Ames S. Albro Jr. will assume command of the 36th Engineer Group (Combat) at 2 p.m. on Jan. 16 in ceremonies to be held on Marne Field, Sand Hill.

He will succeed Colonel James M. Thompson, who has been the group commander since July 20, 1972. Col. Thompson will assume duties as Chief of Military Strategy and Policy, Office, Deputy Chief of Staff for Operations, Headquarters, Department of the Army.

Col. Albro comes to the 36th Engineers following a tour of duty in the Office of the Chief of Staff, HQDA. He has served extensively with the Department of the Army in Washington, D. C., having worked with the Office of the Deputy Chief of Staff, Operations; the Office of the Assistant Secretary of Defense; the Office of the Assistant Vice Chief of Staff, Army; and the Office of the Chief of Staff, Army.

The 1954 graduate of the United States Military Academy was a Rhodes Scholar at Oxford University, England in 1962. Col. Albro also has attended the Command and General Staff College, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas and the Army War College, Carlisle, Pennsylvania.

He served overseas as a member of the Military Assistance Advisory Group to Iran in 1960-1961 and in the Republic of Vietnam with the Army Engineer Command, and as commander of the 815th Engineer Battalion (Construction) in Vietnam.

Survivors benefits extended

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The Department of Defense announced that March 20, 1974, is the new deadline for Military Retirees to elect to participate in the Survivor Benefit Plan.

By virtue of the President's signing into law the Department of Defense FY 1974 Appropriation Authorization Measure (P.L. 93-155, November 16, 1973), the period for enrollment in the Survivor Benefit Plan was extended an additional six months.

Under the plan, a retiree can elect to purchase an annuity for his widow or children by a relatively small deduction from retired pay.

Officials said the deadline for military personnel who retired before September 2, 1972 to elect to participate in the plan is midnight March 20, 1974.

Each Military Department has previously mailed detailed information concerning the plan to qualified persons. Retirees who have not received such information should contact the Department from which they receive their retired pay.

Black to meet FBMA

Mr Charles Black associate editor of The Columbus Enquirer, will be the speaker at the January meeting of the Fort Benning Management Association to be held Thursday, Jan. 17 at the Officers' Open Mess.

Mr. Black made a recent trip to Israel where he made a newsman's assessment of the recent Israeli-Arab war and the current situation.

13th Co. TSB

To a certain extent it has changed since his death. His total dream hasn't come true, but over the last 10 years the country has taken great strides, especially in the south. I can still remember when there were even separate drinking fountains for Blacks. Martin Luther King's dream will take years and years to accomplish, but there have been considerable changes.

Staff Sergeant
Frederick Jones C Co.,
75th Rangers

Slowly but surely his dream is coming to life. I base this conclusion on the fact that people have decided that we're on the same boat and have to live together so we might as well like each other. Uprising made people realize what should have been so from the start. The only way to make his dream come true is if the majority of the people in this nation make a true effort to live together in peace and equity.

Do you think that Martin Luther King's dream of all people living together in harmony and with equal rights is coming to life?

Sergeant First Class
Walter Gould 11 Co.
TSB

I think to a certain extent it has. People are getting along much better but there is still room for improvement. People are discussing the problems of discrimination more freely now than ever before. This in itself shows how someone is trying to solve the problem.

Specialist Fourth
Class Clyde Lisenby D
Co., 1-29th Infantry

Yes, people are getting along much better and I believe that everyone has about the same rights. Since his death there have been many changes that have brought his dream to life.

Staff Sergeant Charles Atkinson 18
Replacement Co.

Definitely it is coming to life. People are becoming more liberal. All you have to do is look around at our society today! There are leaders and politicians from almost all minority groups. I think King foresaw things before they happened.

43rd to celebrate Organization Day

The 43d Engineer Battalion (Construction), Harmony Church, Fort Benning, is planning on celebrating its annual Organization Day (4 January) during the week of 21 through 25 January. During the first four days of the week, the soldiers will be involved in both company and individual competitive events. Among the scheduled activities will be basketball, volleyball, football, pool, ping pong, and horseshoes. Another event will be the "run for fun" where each of the five companies will attempt to log in the greatest number of miles run during the week. There will be relay races, finals for the dismounted drill competition, tug-of-war, and chariot races (¼ ton trailers pulled by four men). Then trophies will be awarded to the week's winners and refreshments will be served.

TIRED OF CHASING YOUR PAY???

Command Information

Checking account

A good way to keep track of your pay

By Bob Martin

"Pay 'screwed up'?" One of the most frequent pay problems is not being able to find your check.

Solve it with a checking account.

Since Fort Benning now pays entirely by check, the Finance and Accounting Office can send your check directly to a bank. You may choose a bank here or in your hometown.

Why have your check sent to a bank?

Pay problems often start when a man comes to a new unit, leaves, or his check is just plain "lost."

Going on TDY? On leave? Pass? To the field? Changing posts or units?

You don't have to go check-chasing when it's safely in the bank.

Tired of standing outside the first sergeant's door waiting to get paid? Want to avoid coming to the orderly room while you're on leave—just to get paid? Does the company clerk curse at you as he calls all over post to find your check?

When your check is being mailed to your bank, it's always there on time.

Advantages of checking accounts

A bank can handle your check in a number of ways. The most convenient for you will probably be the checking account.

Unlike cash, your money can't be lost or stolen from a checking account.

Safely, however, doesn't mean your money is hard to get. The post exchanges, local banks, and most stores will cash a check for you. Just remember to bring proper identification—usually, a military ID and a driver's license.

Your checkbook is a record of your monthly expenses. No more wondering where "that last $20 went to."

This visible list of expenses makes it easier for you to budget. Simple adding tells you exactly how much is in your account on any given day.

Should the need arise, your checking account can save you a lot of grief. A cancelled check is excellent proof of payment for any bill.

A checking account can also help you save money. Most banks offer plans where a certain amount each week is automatically transferred to your savings account. You can select the amount and the frequency of savings.

All freebies? No, the bank charges a very small service charge for handling your account. The charge depends on the number of checks you write.

In return, the bank sends you a balance statement and all your cancelled checks regularly.

How to start a checking account

Checking accounts are easy to get. Go to your favorite bank (or write) and get an account number. The rest is up to you and your company clerk. He will fill out a DA Form 3685, called a JUMPS-Army pay election form for you to sign.

If your form is processed before the 10th of the month, your end-of-the-month pay check will be in your account that month.

Don't forget to check for the special sale items on your next trip to the commissary. Throughout the month of Jan. there will be R. J. Reynolds cigarettes, Kleenex products, spring clean-up items, 3 oz. Tenderleaf tea, Curtis and Peter Paul Candy.

NCOW LUNCHEON

The NCOW luncheon will be held at 1 p.m. Jan. 16 at the Black Angus Restaurant on Benning Rd. A representative of Zale's will have a film and speak on diamonds. Reservations must be made by noon, Jan. 14. Contact Dot Davis, 687-6763 or Minnie Bittorie, 689-2994.

TALENT TREE

The Talent Tree will hold a Needlework Showcase Jan. 29 through Feb. 14. A variety of talented individuals will display their crafts.

In honor of the Talent Tree's second anniversary, a gala reception will take place on Jan. 29, 10:00 a.m. until 2 p.m.

NCO WIVES' CLUB

"The Army takes care of its own", but that is not all the ladies in the NCO Wives' Club do. By attending just one of their many functions we can see that they are concerned with the Community and the welfare of those who surround them. These are a few examples, in the Spring of this year they had a clothing drive for St. Johns Orphanage, then there were two Scholarships of $1,000 awarded to a son and a daughter of an NCO, in the fall the Youth Club received a helping hand for their Halloween party and of course in its second year the ACS foodlocker receives $25,000 each month to help those in need. The Boy and Girl Scouts weren't forgotten when they asked for financial help with their scout huts. One thousand dollars was awarded to Faith school to furnish the band with uniforms, and when Christmas time comes around the NCO Wives show the true spirit of Christmas by giving food baskets to needy families. The ladies of the NCO Wives' Club have opened their hearts to a plea of support from the An Loc Orphanage, South Vietnam. It takes a lot of fund raising and the support of all our NCO Wives to make all of these projects possible. If you would like to join this fine group of ladies and join in their efforts please call: Membership Chairwomen, Karen Kelly, 687-8783, or Pinkie Brown, 687-1017. It has been a good year and the NCO Wives' Club of Fort Benning extends their best wishes for a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

The Columbus Chamber of Commerce will again sponsor the annual Chamber of Commerce — JROTC varsity drill meet to be conducted on the Jordan High football field (track) beginning at 10:00 a.m., Saturday, 12 January.

Featuring the seven high school JROTC varsity drill teams, the meet will be divided into two division — team and individual. Team competition will include standard drill and precision (fancy) drill.

Trophies will be awarded to the three high scoring teams and the best drilled individual who will be decided by using the "knock-out" or elimination method. Awards presentation will take place at approximately 12:30 p.m. at the drill site.

The defending team champion is the Kendrick High School Drill Aggregate, coached by MSG. Joe P. Diaz. Judges will be furnished by the Director of The Leadership Department, U. S. Army Infantry School at Fort Benning.

COMBAT DEVELOPMENTS, USAIS

The Directorate of Combat Developments held their annual Christmas Ball in the Supper Club on Dec. 19. The receiving line, headed by the Director, Colonel Jay Hatch, and Mrs. Hatch, included General and Mrs. Thomas Tarpley and General and Mrs. William Richardson.

The Concepts and Studies Division carried out the holiday theme with gala decorations.

Capt. and Mrs. Richard St. John were welcomed to the unit. Farewells were bid to LTC Brandt Grubbs, LTC Howard Parks, and Lt. and Mrs. Robert Brown.

An excellent repertoire of Christmas music was presented by the Infantry Chorus.

The members of the Directorate danced to a wide variety of music presented by The Shannons.

COMBAT ARMS TRAINING BOARD

held a Christmas Tea at the beautiful and historical Waverly Hall, home of Mrs. T. H. Schmidt, on Dec. 20. The entire home was decorated and so festive that it quickly gave the Christmas spirit.

Mrs. Franklin Hart conducted a brief business meeting. Welcomed were several of the ladies' mothers, who were visiting for the holidays, special guest, Mrs. Charles Thebaud. It was announced that instead of the monthly coffee in Jan., there will be a Cardio-Pulmonary Resuscitation class, for the ladies and their husbands, Jan. 16, 6:30 p.m. at the MAH 2nd floor conference room.

The Feb. coffee will be held in the home of Mrs. Vladimir Atseff.

2/69th ARMOR AND 72nd ENGINEERS

The wives of the 197th Inf. Bde. and the "Spirits of Christmas Past, Present, and To Come" attended the Brigade Christmas Tea Dec. 19, hosted by the wives of the 2/69th Armor and 72nd Engineers. Guests of honor were Mrs. William Richardson, wife of the Deputy Post Commander, and Mrs. Joseph Conforti, wife of the Superintendent of Post Schools.

Decorations ranged from the period pieces collected by the Historical Society from in and around Columbus, to a homemade gingerbread house baked and constructed by Pat Mueller. The Spirit of Christmas Past was displayed by the historical past of the Rankin House. The antique filled interior was perfect for an old fashioned tea. The Spirit of Christmas Present appeared as the Benning Belles prepared to sing for the guests. Their program, under the direction of Mrs. Paul Joplin, consisted of traditional carols and seasonal songs. The Spirit of Christmas to Come was expressed by Mrs. Carol Walton, wife of the 2/69th Armor Commander, when she wished all a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

NEW YEAR'S EVE PARTY

To usher in the New Year and bid farewell to the old, friends of Capt. and Mrs. F. C. Sautter met at the Sautter Homestead on Dec. 31. The atmosphere was friendly and warm throughout the house with various secondary atmospheres prevailing. In the den, where the Sugar Bowl was on television, the secondary atmosphere was tense as rivals voiced opinions on how to win. The secondary returned to warm and friendly as the game ended, despite the obvious overrating of the Southeast Conference.

The kitchen atmosphere was warm and friendly all evening as preparation of food and drinks took place. In the living room people gathered in circular formation to play the game "Psychiatrist" and others. The secondary atmosphere here was humorous and light. The dining room had an atmosphere all its own, for the refreshments were to be found here. Additional entertainment for the evening began at 11:30 p.m. with a special game to usher in the New Year.

DEPT. CHRISTMAS PARTY

The Directorate of Plans and Training (DPT), US Army Infantry Center, held its annual Christmas Ball, a cocktail/buffet and dance, at the Sand Hill NCO Club on December 14.

Special guests were Major General and Mrs. Thomas M. Tarpley, Colonel and Mrs. Charles

C. Thebaud, Colonel and Mrs. Louis H. Boettcher, Colonel and Mrs. Kendrick B. Barlow Jr, and CSM and Mrs. Robert P. Keiarnes.

Entertainment was furnished by the Benning Belles, and the DPT Tabernacle Choir.

SPITSHINE?

Would you like to have a booklet about "HOW TO SPITSHINE"? Would you like to know "HOW TO SPITSHINE"? Would you like to know "HOW TO SPITSHINE" your shoes and boots easier, faster and better than you do now?

I have written and copyrighted a technique for the preparation and execution of a spitshine. It's a skinny, little, EXPENSIVE book, but you're not buying paper. It's worth much more than I'm asking. — Try it, you'll see.

It saves you time and that's money in your pocket. It's less work, so even the lazy can now spitshine. It allows you to spitshine the entire shoe or boot and it doesn't flake off with the first step. I used it for 13 years and believe me, it works! — Try it, you'll see.

Look at all the successful people you know. Are their shoes shined? You bet they are. Do you want to be less successful than they? No way! My technique shows you how to shine better than they. Try it, you'll see.

I take you through the entire process, step-by-step. I include a few tips I learned along the way. The instructions are simple and easy to follow. My two sons in high school Jr. ROTC use it and they're on the drill team. Try it, you'll see.

What will this booklet do for you? It'll show you how to spitshine. It might get you promoted. It might even get you a girlfriend (they like shiny things). It'll surely get you some attention. Nobody else has a book on this subject. — Try it, you'll see.

Even hair doesn't look so long when your shoes look like glass. YOU'LL SEE.

AUSA

AUSA speaks, but who listens?

By JESUS VALENZUELA

CONGRESS DOES—Need for a Strong and Flexible Defense Establishment. We come to the question of just how much defense do we need under circumstances existing in the world today and this question has been dealt with expertly and conclusively by a position paper recently put out by the Association of the United States Army. Because of its great importance to the Members of Congress they were asked to unanimously consent to have this position paper entitled "The Security of the Nation—How Much Do We Need?" printed in the Record.

THE PRESS DOES—Here are some headlines found in leading US papers:

"Bigger Pay, More Housing, Eyed by the AUSA"

"Army Group Wants More Foot Soldiers"

"Overhaul Sought By Army Association"

"AUSA Opposed to any Action Which Would Grant Amnesty"

EDUCATORS DO—More than 300 colleges and universities make use of the AUSA position papers and fact sheets on defense and national policy matters.

INDUSTRY DOES—More than 8,000 members of business and industry depend on AUSA to keep them posted on the Army. Newsletters — symposia — films — charts — brochures — fact sheets are part of AUSA's continuous communication with industry.

OTHER ORGANIZATIONS DO—AUSA maintains a continuing dialogue and mutual support relationship with sixteen veterans and other defense oriented organizations with the free exchange of information and research.

AUSA leaders are often asked to appear as speakers and panelists at other Association affairs.

AND SO DOES THE ARMY—ASSOCIATION OF THE UNITED STATES ARMY is an authoritative voice that influential people listen to.

The latest edition of the AUSA POSITION PAPER is available to all members and interested personnel in the USAIC Library, Bldg 4.

Points of interest included in this edition are the oil situation around the world and our national interest overseas.

CRIME STOPPERS!

The "Crimestoppers" sketches on this page were drawn by Sergeant First Class Bill Dolan, who works as an illustrator in Fort Benning's Information Office. "Wild Bill" Dolan's military career began in 1944 when he enlisted in the Marines. He served two tours overseas with the Marines in World War II and during the Korean conflict.

He was out of the military for a period of time before joining the Army in 1959. He served with the 101st Airborne Division at Ft. Campbell, Ky., and with a Special Forces unit, the 5th Mechanized Infantry, and the 101st Airborne Division during these tours in Vietnam.

Before and after his last Vietnam tour, he worked at OCINFO in Washington, D.C. While serving as a combat artist and press escort with the U.S. Army Military Assistance Command Vietnam, he was likely to "drop in" on almost any unit and follow it all over the Vietnamese countryside sketching the action.

He is the creator of "Muldoon" and "The Top" in the cartoon series "Up Country." SFC Dolan is one of the latest in the long line of cartoonists who have portrayed Army life with the wit, muted irony and humor that help lighten the soldier's load.

SIDPERS is coming in February

SIDPERS is coming! The Standard Installation Division Personnel System (SIDPERS) comes to Fort Benning in February 1974. This is a recently adopted system which, by 1975, will be the one standard Army-wide personnel reporting system.

Although the concept is entirely different from past personnel systems, the procedures really appear simple," said Captain James Davies, chief, SIDPERS Interface Branch (SIB).

According to Major Jeff Coke, chief, MILPERCEN training team, "Not only do we conduct formal classroom training, we also will spend the month of February in the field conducting on the job training."

"In the past the unit clerks submitted a morning report and someone else entered this data into the system," Davies continued. "Now the unit clerk, in effect, communicates direct with the computer. He codes the transaction on a mark sense form and then he receives a printout telling him exactly what happened to that transaction."

During January a training team from the Military Personnel Center (MILPERCEN) will present formal classroom training to the users of this new personnel system.

Since the clerks now communicate directly with the computer, their classes introduce new terms and procedures which must be understood by all personnel using the system. Additionally, personnel attending these classes learn what type management reports are now available and some of the many possible uses of these reports.

"Training schedules," said Staff Sergeant Howard Alpaugh, training NCO, SIB, "have been sent to each major commander on post. Allocations are such that everyone from an office or unit can attend at different sessions. I urge all unit clerks and Military Personnel Office clerks to contact their first sergeants or supervisors to determine when they will attend classes."

But one hundred years later, the Negro still is not free; one hundred years later, the life of the Negro is still sadly crippled by the manacles of segregation and the chains of discrimination; one hundred years later, the Negro lives on a lonely island of poverty in the midst of a vast ocean of material prosperity; one hundred years later, the Negro is still languished in the corners of American society and finds himself in exile in his own land.

So we've come here today to dramatize a shameful condition. In a sense we've come to our nation's capital to cash a check. When the architects of our republic wrote the magnificent words of the Constitution and the Declaration of Independence, they were signing a promissory note to which every American was to fall heir. This note was the promise that all men, yes, black men as well as white men, would be guaranteed the unalienable rights of life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness.

"All men, yes black as well as white men."

It is obvious today that America has defaulted on this promissory note in so far as her citizens of color are concerned. Instead of honoring this sacred obligation, America has given the Negro people a bad check; a check which has come back marked "insufficient funds." But we refuse to believe that the bank of justice is bankrupt. We refuse to believe that there are insufficient funds in the great vaults of opportunity of this nation. And so we've come to cash this check, a check that will give us upon demand the riches of freedom and the security of justice.

We have also come to this hallowed spot to remind America of the fierce urgency of now. This is no time to engage in the luxury of cooling off or to take the tranquilizing drug of gradualism. Now is the time to make real the promises of democracy.

Now is the time to make real the promises of democracy; now is the time to rise from the dark and desolate valley of segregation to the sunlit path of racial justice; now is the time to lift our nation from the quicksands of racial injustice to the solid rock of brotherhood; now is the time to make justice a reality for all God's children. It would be fatal for the nation to overlook the urgency of the moment. This sweltering summer of the Negro's legitimate discontent will not pass until there is an invigorating autumn of freedom and equality.

Nineteen sixty-three is not an end, but a beginning. And those who hope that the Negro needed to blow off steam and will not be content, will have a rude awakening if the nation returns to business as usual. There will be neither rest nor tranquility in America until the Negro is granted his citizenship rights. The whirlwinds of revolt will continue to shake the foundations of our nation until the bright day of justice emerges.

But there is something that I must say to my people, who stand on the warm threshold which leads into the palace of justice. In the process of gaining our rightful place, we must not be guilty of wrongful deeds. Let us not seek to satisfy our thirst for freedom by drinking from the cup of bitterness and hatred. We must forever conduct our struggle on the high plain of dignity and discipline. We must not allow our creative protest to degenerate into physical violence. Again and again we must rise to the majestic heights of meeting physical force with soul force; and the marvelous new militancy, which has engulfed the Negro community, must not lead us to a distrust of all white people. For many of our white brothers, as evidenced by their presence here today, have come to realize that their destiny is tied up with our destiny. And they have come to realize that their freedom is inextricably bound to our freedom. We cannot walk alone. And as we walk, we must make the pledge that we shall always march ahead. We cannot turn back.

There are those who are asking the devotees of Civil Rights, "When will you be satisfied?" We can never be satisfied as long as the Negro is the victim of the unspeakable horrors of police brutality; we can never be satisfied as long as our bodies, heavy with the fatigue of travel, cannot gain lodging in the motels of the highways and the hotels of the cities; we cannot be satisfied as long as the Negro's basic mobility is from a smaller ghetto to a larger one; we can never be satisfied as long as our children are stripped of their selfhood and robbed of their dignity by signs stating "For Whites Only"; we cannot be satisfied as long as the Negro in Mississippi cannot vote and a Negro in New York believes he has nothing for which to vote. No!

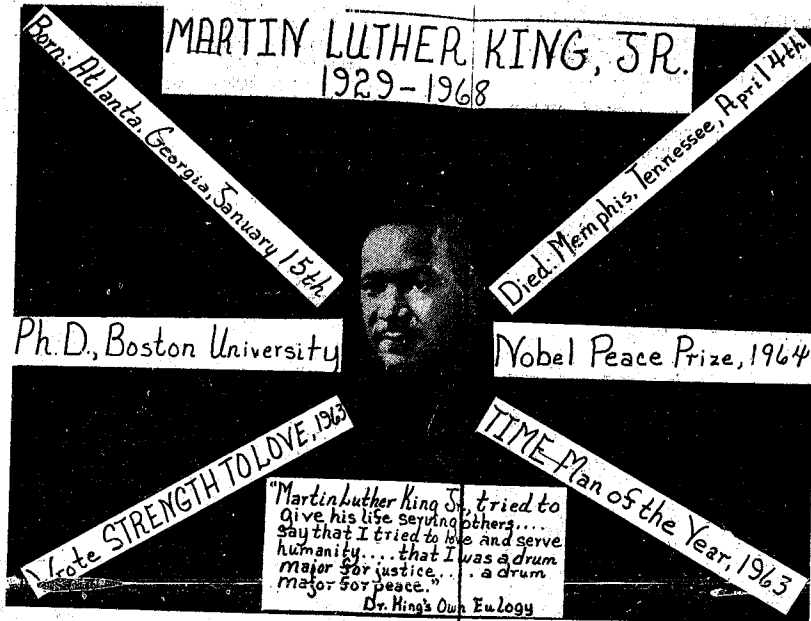

"No, we are not satisfied, and we will not be satisfied until 'Justice rolls down like waters and righteousness like a mighty stream.'"

I am not unmindful that some of you have come here out of great trials and tribulations. Some of you have come fresh from narrow jail cells. Some of you have come from areas where your quest for freedom left you battered by the storms of persecution and staggered by the winds of police brutality. You have been the veterans of creative suffering. Continue to work with the faith that unearned suffering is redemptive. Go back to Mississippi. Go back to Alabama. Go back to South Carolina. Go back to Georgia. Go back to Louisiana. Go back to the slums and ghettos of our Northern cities, knowing that somehow this situation can and will be changed. Let us not wallow in the valley of despair.

"Let us not wallow in the valley of despair."

I say to you today, my friends, so even though we face the difficulties of today and tomorrow, I still have a dream. It is a dream deeply rooted in the American dream. I have a dream that one day this nation will rise up and live out the true meaning of its creed, "We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal."

I have a dream that one day on the red hills of Georgia, sons of former slaves and the sons of former slave owners will be able to sit down together at the table of brotherhood. I have a dream that one day even the state of Mississippi, a state sweltering with the heat of injustice, sweltering with the head of oppression, will be transformed into an oasis of freedom and justice. I have a dream that my four little children will one day live in a nation where they will not be judged by the color of their skin, but by the content of their character.

"Free at last, free at last, thank God almighty I'm free at last"

King was born in Atlanta in 1929, and graduated from Morehouse College there in 1948. He went on to Crozer Theological Seminary in Chester, Pa., where he earned his bachelor of divinity degree in 1951. He was president of the student body at Crozer, and was awarded the J. Lewis Crozer Fellowship. As the outstanding student in his graduating class, he also received the Plafker Award.

Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., the son of an Atlanta Baptist minister, became the spiritual and political leader of his race during the 1960's, and was awarded the Nobel Peace Prize in 1964 for his contribution to the welfare of mankind. He was ordained in 1947 as a Baptist minister at Atlanta's Ebenezer Baptist Church, founded by his grandfather. In 1953, he married the former Coretta Scott of Marion, Ala., and in 1955 he earned his Ph.D. degree from Boston University, while pastoring the Dexter Avenue Baptist Church in Montgomery, Ala.

In December of that year, he formed the Montgomery Improvement Association and organized a landmark bus boycott in protest of the segregation of city buses. He led the boycott, which lasted over a year, and managed to keep Montgomery blacks united and non-violent the entire time. He organized car pools, raised money, and held weekly meetings to keep up morale.

The boycott began when Rosa Parks, a black woman, was arrested for refusing to offer her seat on a bus to a white man. It ended over a year later, when the city government officially stopped racial segregation on city buses following a court ruling.

In 1956, Dr. King organized the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, along with 100 other ministers. He headed the conference until his assassination in 1968.

Under his leadership, the SCLC became a real force in the civil rights movement in 1963, when massive demonstrations were held in Birmingham.

The protest marches in Birmingham that year resulted in King's arrest, and his writing of "Letter from a Birmingham Jail."

The marchers were demonstrating for fair hiring practices, the establishment of a biracial committee, and the desegregation of department store facilities.

On Aug. 28, 1963, at the March on Washington, over 200,000 Americans of

"I have a dream today!"

I have a dream that one day down in Alabama — with its vicious racists, with its Governor having his lips dripping with the words of interposition and nullification — one day right there in Alabama, little black boys and black girls will be able to join hands with little white boys and white girls as sisters and brothers.

"I have a dream today!"

I have a dream that one day "every valley shall be exalted and every hill and mountain shall be made low. The rough places will be made plain and the crooked places will be made straight, and the glory of the Lord shall be revealed, and all flesh shall see it together."

This is our hope. This is the faith that I go back to the South with. With this faith we will be able to transform the jangling discords of our nation into a beautiful symphony of brotherhood. With this faith we will be able to work together, to pray together, to struggle together, to go to jail together, to stand up for freedom together, knowing that we will be free one day.

And this will be the day. This will be the day when all of God's children will be able to sing with new meaning, "My country 'tis of thee, sweet land of liberty, of thee I sing. Land where my fathers died, land of the Pilgrim's pride, from every mountain side, let freedom ring." And if America is to be a great nation, this must come true.

fathers died, land of the Pilgrim's pride, from every mountain side, let freedom ring." And if America is to be a great nation, this must become true.

"And if America is to be a great nation, this must become true."

So let freedom ring from the prodigious hilltops of New Hampshire; let freedom ring from the mighty mountains of New York; let freedom ring from the heightening Alleghenies of Pennsylvania; let freedom ring from the snow-capped Rockies of Colorado; let freedom ring from the curvaceous slopes of California. But not only that. Let freedom ring from the curvaceous slopes of California. But not only that. Let freedom ring from Stone Mountain of Georgia; let freedom ring from Lookout

"Let freedom ring"

Mountain of Tennessee; let freedom ring from every hill and mole hill of Mississippi. From every mountainside, let freedom ring.

And when this happens, and when we allow freedom to ring, when we let it ring from every village and every hamlet, from every state and every city, we will be able to speed up that day when all of God's children, black men and white men, Jews and gentiles, Protestants and Catholics, will be able to join hands and sing in the old Negro spiritual: "Free at last. Free at last. Thank God Almighty, we are free at last."

all races heard King's famous "I have a dream" speech. The March was sponsored by more than 400 organizations to bring pressure on Congress for the passage of the 1964 Civil Rights Act. It was one of the largest peaceful demonstrations of our time, and accomplished its goal.

King was named Time Magazine's Man of the Year in 1963, and in 1964 he traveled to Sweden to accept the Nobel Peace Prize. He returned to help in voter registration campaigns in Selma, Ala., where he led marches to the state capitol in Montgomery. King exhorted his followers to "walk together, children," and said, "One of the most significant steps a Negro can take is the short step to the voting booth." In 1965, the Voting Rights Acts was passed.

King's books include "Stride Toward Freedom," (1958), "Strength to Love," (1963) and "Why We Can't Wait."

King was assassinated on April 4, 1968, while he was leading sanitation workers in Memphis, Tenn. in a protest march. Shortly before his assassination, he said, "We've got some difficult days ahead; but it really doesn't matter with me now, because I have been to the mountaintop."

A Touch of Class

In London's Hyde Park, George Segal meets Glenda Jackson as he participates in a ball game. An American expatriate, Segal is a top insurance man living in London with wife Hildegard Neil and children. A divorcee, Jackson is the mother of two and copies fashion designs for a living. After several chance meetings, Segal proposes a week in Malaga, Spain. He has to persuade Neil not to come, along with her parents and the children. Segal becomes angry at Jackson's cool attitude following an affair. They decide to leave, fight and then discover they really love each other.

Duel of the Iron Fist

Our hero is a gentle gangster chap who is forced to leave his childhood home after a rival gang is decimated in a brawl. He returns home a year later to find that his father was murdered by a hired swordsman whom he now must kill. But not before he goes after the gang leader who ousted his family and hired the killer in the first place. The suave stranger (they call him "The Rover") is uncannily handy with a set of miniature daggers he keeps in his vest. Natural rivals, our hero and "Rover" are kept from their duel by fighting on the same side against a variety of vile warlords.

Slaughter

In Cleveland, a bomb kills the parents of ex-Green Beret Capt. Jim Brown. He learns that the syndicate performed the murders and is told by chief inspector Cameron Mitchell of the U.S. Treasury to help in breaking up the syndicate's computer operation. Ambitious Rip Torn, the actual murderer of Brown's parents, arrives with mistress Stella Stevens and objects when Alife, the local boss, orders Stevens to play up to Brown. Torn kills Alife and takes over his operation.

Electra-Glide in Blue

Robert Blake plays a small motorcycle cop in Arizona who has a certain hard-headed dignity and feels he can help people and also wants to graduate to higher police echelons. Billy Green Bush is his slightly violent sidekick, Mitchell Ryan, a flamboyant, sadistic but impotent sheriff, and Jeanine Riley a sexy disillusioned Hollywood starlet. ELECTRA-GLIDE IN BLUE is the first picture about a motorcycle cop in the U.S. West who is done in by the corruption, change, and violence about him and it has all the free-wheeling snap, flair, and compassion of "Easy Rider."

Santee

SANTEE (Glenn Ford) is a bounty hunter, half lawman, half desperado who tracks down outlaws with high prices on their heads. One such is gunned down as Michael Burns, the outlaw's teen-age son looks on horrified, and swears to kill SANTEE when the time is right. SANTEE takes the homeless youth to his ranch where he is made welcome by SANTEE'S wife, Dana Wynter and loyal ranch foreman Jay Silverheels. He learns to help around the ranch and a strong friendship gradually builds between Michael and SANTEE. When SANTEE learns the Banner gang is in town and has killed the sheriff, he and Michael set out to get them.

The carpool is what's happening!

With the new year, Fort Benning employes and soldiers face new and higher gas prices. What better time to start a carpool?

The Bayonet carpool locator service offers you two ways to find your carpool. You can locate yourself on this map. Remember to read right and up. Send your name, map location, business phone, building and duty hours to the Bayonet, Bldg. 4, Room 601.

Each Friday this information will be published in the Bayonet with the locator map. The other method is to use the carpool locator boards in the lobbies of Buildings 4 and 35. Each board has the locator map, cards, and tacks. You can use these to advertise your search for a carpool. The Bayonet will print names from the locator boards with its weekly carpool service.

ROD AND GUN CLUB

Notes

By BILL KLOEB

The Rod and Gun Club is offering a bargain in memberships. Cost of memberships have been cut by more than half for the remainder of the membership year. Regular memberships can be obtained for $2, dependent memberships for 50c and limited memberships can be obtained for $4. These memberships will be in effect until March 31.

Hunters and fishermen can make the Rod and Gun Club a one-stop affair for the purchase of licenses and permits necessary to hunt or fish on post. The club is the only place authorized to issue the Fort Benning Hunting and Fishing Permits. The club also has Georgia State Hunting and Fishing Licenses.

Club Hours Change

The Rod and Gun Club will change hours of operation tomorrow to provide members use of club facilities during more daylight hours. The main office and sales counter will operate from 9 a.m. until 6 p.m. Monday through Friday and from 7 a.m. until 5 p.m. on Saturday, Sunday and holidays. The lounge will be open from 10 a.m. until 9 p.m. each day of the week. Food will be served from 11 a.m. until 1 p.m. each day. The Skeet and Trap Ranges, located at the old clubhouse on First Division Road will be open from noon until 6 p.m. each Wednesday and Sunday.

Tom McCullough, custodian, stressed that these are normal operating hours. Groups of members may make arrangements for use of the facilities at other times.

Weekly Dances

According to McCullough, attendance at the dances last Friday and Saturday left a lot to be desired. The club will try again this weekend. Curley Money and his orchestra will provide music from 7:30 p.m. until 1 a.m. on Friday and from 7:30 p.m. until midnight Saturday. You don't have to be a member. Everyone on post is welcome.

January Fishing Derby

There hasn't been too much fishing activity during the past week but entries have been received in all categories. Wise Clark, 1014 Dozier Street leads the bass contest with a 6-pound entry. He took the fish from Victory Pond Jan. 5. Sergeant Sigmund Farkas of the School Brigade has registered the largest catfish. His catch weighed 2-pounds, 3-ounces on the club scales. The leader in the bream contest is Sergeant First Class Howard Dobbs Jr. He took a 4-ounce catch from Hedleys Pond.

What Would You Do?

Soldiers hate police call. They especially dislike having to pick up the trash that was thrown away by someone else. Supervisors know this and will go to great lengths to avoid having to issue orders for a special police call. Personnel using the recreation areas, ponds and woods on the reservation should keep this in mind.

Hunters, fishermen and other people who like to use these types of areas that are within a training area which is the responsibility of some post unit or Infantry School Department complain that these areas are listed Off-Limits during periods that they are not actually being used for training.

This may be true, but put yourself in the position of the individual responsible for the area. Would you be anxious to open the area if it would mean an extra police call for your troops?

Until all the "guests" using training areas show an active interest in keeping the training facilities, aids and equipment in these areas intact and the police of the area in good condition, I think we can expect units and departments to "forget" to announce that areas are open.

Who's really national champ

University of Michigan football coach Bo Schembechler was quoted recently as saying, "National championships are a farce." He did not make such a judgment after years of thinking but rather it was made in the midst of frustration and bitterness. The frustration and bitterness caused by the decision of Big Ten athletic directors to send Ohio State to the Rose Bowl rather than Michigan after their unbeaten showdown ended in a tie.

This does not indicate that he saw the truth but perhaps he has seen the mythical national championship for what it is — a joke that is publicized by the wire services for status and financed for profit by the television networks.

Other coaches made pitches on the behalf of their teams deserving to be ranked number one in the nation. Fact is that Notre Dame, Alabama, Ohio State, Oklahoma, Michigan and Penn State could have beaten any of the others. In the end, it was the situation that determined the national championship.

The situation was that the Rose Bowl was committed to the Big Ten-Pacific Eight representatives. The Cotton Bowl was committed to Texas and the Big Eight representatives. The Sugar Bowl increased its guarantee to participating teams and provided enough tickets to satisfy Bear Bryant and his followers, and the Orange Bowl was simply outbid and outmaneuvered. If Penn State had met Alabama or Notre Dame which game do you think would have decided the national title?

ABC has been accused by its competition of exerting pressure to land the top match of the New Year's weekend through the leverage of its wild-card television selections. The network denies the charges but that doesn't erase the tinge of alleged tampering.

The best method would be the NCAA's use of the bowl games as qualifying means with the championship match revolving from the Rose to the Orange to the Sugar to the Cotton.

Barracudas accepting applicants

The Fort Benning Barracudas are now accepting applicants for the swim team. Prospects should report to coach Gary Bolton at the Briant Wells swim pool between 4 and 6 p.m. daily. Age limit for the team, is 6 through 17.

Tennis class open to women

Military wives and female dependents of Fort Benning have the opportunity to enter a Women's Tennis Class aimed at integrating beginners with more experienced tennis players.

Classes will begin 24 January and will be held on each Tuesday and Thursday from 9 a.m. to 11 a.m. thereafter.

During the winter months classes will be held in the Audie Murphy Gym, Building 2818, where the fundamentals of the game will be discussed and practiced.

When weather conditions improve the class sessions will move to outdoor courts for additional instruction and actual competition with experienced players.

There is no cost involved for this class and instructors advise that tennis rackets will be available for those without.

Interested individuals should contact Mr. McGruder at 545-4756.

There's always a beginning and the end result could be another Billy Jean King or Chris Evert.

Don't let carbon monoxide get you

The hazards of winter driving are many. One of the most dangerous is carbon monoxide poisoning which causes more deaths than all other toxic gases combined.

Pure carbon monoxide is an odorless colorless, tasteless, non-irritating and most of all, a lethal gas. It is, however, often mixed with other gases with an irritating odor which warns people of the impending danger. When the irritants are not present there is no warning of carbon monoxide.

With car windows shut and the engine running, a death trap is set and a leak in the exhaust system will trigger the trap. Before the occupants realize they are in danger, they are overcome by carbon monoxide fumes.

You can avoid the dangers of carbon monoxide poisoning by keeping the exhaust system of your car in good condition and by not following too closely in bumper to bumper traffic. It is also suggested that car windows be kept open just slightly for ventilation.

Warning! A new car can have a leak in the exhaust system, so don't assume that the danger is confined only to people in older cars.

"The bonus paid for our 65-foot trailer."

SP/5 Steve Lacey likes to get in close with airplane engines. But when the day's over, he likes to spread out in a place of his own.

"I'm from Colorado, and I'm used to having lots of room to move. Apartment living isn't my style.

"So, right after reenlisting, my wife and I went to town and bought a trailer. With three bedrooms! Now, if we move, we've got something to take with us."

To the Laceys, today's Army means a good job and a good home to come home to. Your Career Counselor can help you get more of the things that mean the most to you.

Major Raymond T Webber, Dental Activity, received an honorable mention for a color slide picture story entitled "Burma and Her People". Both Ft. Benning winners were forwarded to the

"I was certainly happy to hear the results," Thomas stated. "It was the only print I entered in the contest and I'm glad it has made it to the final level of competition."

Thomas is an information specialist in the 197th Inf. Bde. information office and is regular contributor to the BAYONET. He is a graduate of the University of Florida and worked in the public relations department at Daytona International Speedway prior to entering the Army in March 1972.

"Right now I'm not sure if I'll go into professional photography when I leave the Army, or if I'll go back into PR," Thomas explained. "At any rate, the experience I've gained as a photographer in the 197th Infantry Brigade will help tremendously."

43rd Engineers accident free

The 43rd Engineer Battalion experienced an accident-free holiday season during the past Christmas holiday season. Prior to the holiday the individual units of the Battalion placed additional emphasis on safety to make everyone fully conscious of what they as individuals could do to make this a safe holiday season. Safety talks by commanders and First Sergeants, POV safety inspections, Safety meetings, Safety posters and safety films all played a key part in the Battalion's safety awareness program.

What's that funny smell?

It might not be unusual and confused when the strong odor entered the classroom. The confusion was heightened when a German Shepherd and a handler entered the classroom. The mystery was solved when the men found that

Investigator Sireci from the 988th M.P. Company was giving them a Drug Abuse class. Investigator Wells, from the 139th M.P. Company had come along to give a demonstration with his dog and explained about the dog's training Sireci had lit simulated tablets in an incense burner to add realism to the class.

received and after 90 minutes, when

Investigator Sireci had gone the men had a choice whether to stay and see a 30 min. film or have the time off, 90% of the men stayed. As PFC Robert Johnson stated, "The talk was really interesting!"

The two men teaching the class were from the Drug Abuse Education Team from the Provost Marshall's office.

Susan is waiting for a call about her carpool. She put her name and all her vital statistics (about the carpool!) on one of The Bayonet's carpool locator boards. Even if you don't live in Susan's area, why not try a carpool? She recommends them as a good way to save gas. (Photo courtesy of AP)

43rd saves energy

When Company A, 43rd Engineer Battalion (Construction) decided to do their part in conserving fuel during the energy crisis, they went whole hog! In a consolidation of activities, the company reduced their heated building requirements from nine buildings to six buildings, a 33 per cent reduction.

The company was able to make the savings by combining the equipment from two separate day room buildings, an orderly room CQ building and an operations, training, and conference room building into 1 heated building. The three remaining buildings were then closed and no longer have a fuel requirement.

The planned consolidation, initiated by Company A after clearance from the 43rd Engineer Battalion, was not without its problems. As First Sergeant Ralph Hall remarked, "Since we made the move over the holidays, and we had to transfer all our phones at the same time, there was a lot of confusion at first. We do not have as much space as we did, but we have more control over the different activities now." PFC Willie L. Smith, the Company Clerk, echoed these sentiments, "It looked like Grand Central Station at first, but things are starting to run smoothly now." Company A was proud to be able to do their part in the conservation effort and they reasoned that it is better to have one warm, slightly crowded building than four scattered cold buildings, which could have been a possibility if fuel supplies dwindled.

"Cream of crop" will test for EIB

The 197th Infantry Brigade's Central Training Command (CTC) is set to conduct a pilot test for the Expert Infantryman Badge (EIB) on January 21st through 25th at the Malone Range Complex. The test will be administered to an estimated 25 to 30 officers and enlisted men of the brigade with the primary objective of providing tangible recognition to individuals who have attained a high degree of professional skill as Infantrymen.

"We're testing the cream of the crop," commented Capt. Roy L. Hollins, EIB project officer and commandant of the Central Training Command. "We've selected those outstanding individuals who have demonstrated excellence in performance."

To be eligible for EIB testing enlisted personnel must have either a primary military occupational specialty (PMOS) or a secondary military occupational specialty (SMOS) in the 11 Career Series. An officer must have either a primary or an additional basic MOS of 1542 (infantry unit commander), 1543 (infantry heavy mortar unit commander), or 1560 (infantry unit commander mechanized).

Each soldier must be qualified as an expert with the standard service rifle before taking the test.

The test presents a challenging array of subjects and events ranging from a force road march and weapons proficiency to first aid and land navigation.

In order to receive the badge an individual must receive a satisfactory grade on all test events which are prepared and scored on an absolute criterion basis.

Shuttle bus extends service

There is BART and MARTA and then there is the Fort Benning Shuttle Bus System. The Shuttle Bus System is no vision of a modern rapid transit system but it certainly beats walking.

On January 21st the Benning Shuttle Bus System will provide expanded service to the Main Post and Martin Army Hospital (MAH) areas. Service from MAH to Harmony Church will remain the same.

"We found that the shuttle bus system developed as an initial VOLAR project was not going where people needed to go during duty hours," said Major Richard Pope, Chief, Transportation Branch. Major Pope continued, "Then too, with the present fuel crisis we wanted a shuttle bus system that would cut down the use of tactical vehicles by units on post."

The expanded routing will provide service to several activities which were previously not serviced, such as, Personnel Processing Center and Benning House. Main Post services will continue to most activities served prior to the rerouting.

On Main Post, weekdays from 6:30 a.m. until 6 p.m., a shuttle bus will depart Howard Bus Station every 20 minutes, providing a 30-minute service to the farthest point on the route. During weekends and after duty hours, a shuttle bus will pass any given bus stop every 30 minutes and includes routing by the Playboy Club.

The Harmony Church bus will operate on a one-hour schedule weekdays and weekends from Martin Army Hospital, through Kelly Hill and to Harmony Church.

In addition to the installation shuttle bus operated by the Transportation Office, a shuttle bus is operated by Martin Army Hospital, which travels past all dispensaries and dental clinics. This service operates from 6:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. every weekday. The bus connects with the installation shuttle buses at Martin Army Hospital and Howard Bus Station.

Schedules are available for all three routes on any of the shuttle buses. Bus stop signs are in the process of being numbered to match published schedules.

Major Pope said that, "While we encourage users of the shuttle bus to utilize the designated bus stops, the bus drivers have been instructed to stop anywhere along their routes to pick up passengers provided it appears that the individual was attempting to reach a nearby bus stop."

Exchange fingerprinting in bad check prevention

A fingerprinting method as easy as signing your name will soon be used by all Ft. Benning Exchange branches as a bad check prevention measure.

The system along with a centralized computer is expected to start operation on February 1. The system records the individual's fingerprint without the use of pads, inks, chemicals or electricity. When a customer writes a check at an exchange, the back of the check is stamped and the customer is required to "personalize" his check by pressing his index finger on a designated space.

The check is then inserted into a slot on a mechanized developer. A lever is pressed, and the check is removed from the unit with the customers' print, developed on his check. Positive and permanent identification is established in less time than it takes to sign the check.

These fraud prevention devices will be installed in all 39 Ft. Benning AFFES locations, according to Alfred Parrinello, Ft. Benning Exchange General Manager. The locations will be tied into a central computer containing a record of all customers who have previously cashed bad checks to the exchange.

This system was termed successful in the Washington, D.C. area and is concurrently being initiated at Fort Gordon, Rucker and Jackson along with several Air Force installations. Other posts are slated to start the system in March.

At Ft. Benning, the exchange lost $10,000 as a result of bad checks in 1972. AAFES-wide, the total was over $1 million in bumpy check losses in 1973.

We hear considerably "save fuel and drive slower." One of Martin Army Hospital's doctors is doing his part to comply. Major John Beer arrives early at MAH and parks his energy saving bicycle to the matching post. Major Beer is one of several of MEDDAC personnel who ride bicycles to work. Riding his bike to work is not new to Major Beer. He is a strong advocate of physical exercise and he and his wife, Terrie, enjoy many hours of fun and exercise riding their bicycles. Former post commander will speak at TIC

Lieutenant General Robert H. York (U. S. Army, Retired), former Fort Benning commander, will return to the post on Saturday, January 26, 1974 to address the Full Gospel Businessmen Fellowship International. He will speak at The Infantry Center Chapel beginning at 7 p.m. The public is invited to hear Gen. York's personal testimony.

The Greater Columbus Chapter of the FGBMFI was begun in July 1973 to reach businessmen of all denominations (Protestant and Catholic) with its Christian message. The chapter holds monthly breakfast and dinner meetings. All interested men and women are welcome to attend.

Gen. York is a native of Birmingham, Ala., and lives in Huntsville. During World War II, he served in the Mediterranean and European theaters with the 18th Infantry Division. While serving with the 18th Infantry, he advanced from Second Lieutenant to Lieutenant Colonel.

He served as Deputy Chief of Staff of the U. S. Forces in Korea in 1959 and 1960. In 1962 he was sent to Vietnam as Director, Advanced Research Projects Agency Field Unit and Joint Operation Evaluation Group.

Gen. York commanded the 82nd Airborne Division, Fort Bragg, N. C., in 1964 and 1965, when the Division was sent to the Dominican Republic. He was commander of the U. S. Army Infantry Center and Infantry School from 1965 to 1967, when he returned to Fort Bragg to assume command of the XVIII Airborne Corps. He retired in August 1968.

Gen. York is a graduate of the U. S. Military Academy and the Army War College. His military decorations include the Distinguished Service Cross and the Silver Star with second Oak Leaf Cluster.

The Full Gospel Businessmen's Fellowship International is based in Los Angeles, Calif., and has over 900 chapters in the U. S. and throughout the world. Founded in 1953, it is an interdenominational group aimed at Christian fellowship, witnessing and outreach. Its members include business and professional people from all walks of life.

Some of the better-known figures associated with the group include Gen. (Ret.) Ralph Haines, and singers Pat Boone and Johnny Cash. The group is loosely organized, and is similar to the Pentecostal movement in its emphasis on the baptism of the Holy Spirit and the granting of spiritual gifts such as healing, prophecies, and speaking in tongues, to certain individuals.

Also performing at the Infantry Center on Jan. 26 will be "The Apocalypse," a Christian singing group from Evangel Temple Assembly of God in Columbus. The group has just returned from a singing and witnessing tour in Colombia, South America.

Fast action by dentists saves life

Not often does a dental office have a crisis situation, but Dental Clinic Number 2, Main Post, Fort Benning, Georgia, can say they did.

Captain David Friedman, Captain Charles Friedman and Lt. Col. Frederick L. Cox responded immediately when Retired Sgt. Claude Mann had an apparent heart attack in their clinic. The dentists are credited with saving Sgt. Mann's life.

Sgt. Mann brought his daughter to the clinic for dental treatment. While he was waiting for her, he was observed by Mrs. Ingrid Stuhl and Mrs. Joan Webb, dental assistants, to be feeling sick. He told them he thought he would be alright.

In a few minutes, Sgt. Mann said he felt faint and was assisted into Captain David Friedman's clinic and placed in a chair. Shortly he began convulsing and lost consciousness. Sgt. Mann was then placed on the floor and Captain Charles Friedman began closed chest massage, and Captain David Friedman began mouth resusitation.

An ambulance had been called and when it arrived, Captain David Friedman and Lt. Col. Cox got into the ambulance and continued their emergency treatment to Martin Army Hospital.

They were met at the emergency entrance of Martin Army Hospital by a cardiac care team who took over these life saving techniques.

14 Co. TSB

Yes I would! It's a good life. I would enjoy my job, I don't have to worry about hospital bills and the pay is getting better all the time.

44 Co. 4th Student. Bn.

I wouldn't advise him to enlist but I would advise him to go to college through the ROTC program. I went through the ROTC program, received a college education, $100.00 a month throughout my college and graduated and was commissioned an officer. I was also able to go through the flight program and managed to obtain a pilot's license.

Staff Sergeant Seulo Semones
139 M.P. Co.

It would depend on the man's status. It's a good thing if a young man that's just out of high school and really undecided takes a tour in the Army. He can see the world, get an education in one of a number of fields and then make a decision on whether to go to college or use his Army skills.

Would you advise your buddy at home to enlist?

PFC Phil Goodwin
533 Transportation
Not really! Most of my friends wouldn't put up with the hassle. You have to put up with the hair standards, guard and getting messed around with in general. The benefits are the only thing that I came into the Army for.

Specialist Four Victor Rosentrefer
Co. C Rangers

If he is undecided yes, but only for two years. It gives a young man a chance to get away from his friends and family and be on his own. It also gives you an opportunity to meet new people and to mature. You acquire many benefits from the service. When you ETS you have a college opportunity and you have had a chance to make up your mind on what field to select.

Staff Sergeant Richard Yulee
HHC USAIB

Yes, the Army to me has a lot to offer. No matter if you take two or twenty years it is good experience for any young man. You have your choice of Army schools and whether you stay for two or twenty you still have the knowledge that will aid you in either a civilian job or your military career.

Second Lt. Russell Smith
Co. 44 Fourth Student Bn.

It would depend on the person that I was talking to. Some of my friends by no means would enlist in the Army, others if the situation would help and there was any way I would try to persuade them.

Canvassers hunt new pioneers in Georgia

The largest unit-of-choice station-of-choice program within The School Brigade belongs to the 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry (PIONEERS).

The PIONEERS currently have five canvassers out on recruiting missions throughout Georgia.

Unit-of-choice canvassers from the 1-29th Infantry are sent out on a 30 day trial basis. Since the men are on temporary duty and receive extra pay, they have a natural incentive to recruit as many men as they can in hopes of receiving an extra 30 day stint.

One PIONEER canvasser, PFC Jay Mullinax of Company D, is on his second 30 day period, and has already recruited over twenty men, since returning to his home town of Rome, Georgia, on canvasser duty.

Staff Sergeant Larry Montgomery, the 1-29th Unit-Of-Choice representative is responsible for selecting the canvassers. According to Montgomery, "After we select all the men eligible for the duty on the basis of their hometowns, we then have to go through an intensive screening of each individual, and select the man who is the most sincere about being a canvasser."

Once a canvasser has been selected for duty, he then reports directly to the U.S. Army recruiter in his home town. In most instances, the recruiter has a detailed itinerary already planned for the canvasser, for his entire 30 days. From visits to the canvassers old high school, to speaking engagements at local shopping centers, the canvasser is kept very busy, with one goal in mind: to recruit new men for Fort Benning, and specifically the 1st Battalion, 29th Inf.

Statistically, the PIONEERS have proved the unit-of-choice program to be a tremendous success. "But more important than that," adds Montgomery, "is that the program is a success, realistically too, not just on paper. I think the crux of the entire situation is that there is less of a generation gap between the canvassers and prospective enlistees, than with the older generation RMS recruiters. The enlistee is more inclined to trust the canvasser, who is from his home town, and very near to his own age."

TSB is high powered unit

Recruiting. Its a word used countless times daily in today's Army. With the current emphasis on recruiting many new enlistment programs have been created. The Fort Benning Station of choice enlistment program, operated by The School Brigade, is one high-powered plan in action now.

The S.O.C. program is a multi-faceted campaign capable of reaching potential soldiers in a variety of ways. There is the Station of Choice van, a tractor-trailer equipped with color photos, displays, and a slide show telling the Fort Benning story. Another arm of the S.O.C. program are the canvassers, soldiers from Fort Benning who assist recruiters throughout Georgia in talking to people about Fort Benning.

Army Hospital was assigned to the Albany recruiting zone. In 30 days she spoke to 450 high school students, conducted 13 personal interviews, and was directly responsible for enlisting at least 4 women into the active Army. Seventy-seven people enlisted for Fort Benning in the month of December, and that's the highest number ever.

The red, white and blue Station of Choice van is the object that draws attention to the program when its on the road. It travels through Georgia and adjoining states to civic functions.

Just prior to Christmas the van traveled to Cochran Georgia for the annual Cochran Christmas parade. "It was a very successful trip," said SSG Stan Turner NCOIC of the program. "Over 4000 people went through the van in Cochran. We had five firm commitments for Fort Benning and there's no telling how many more people we reached. Many people were greatly impressed with changes in the military they hadn't realized had taken place."

We've retired to Barefoot Bay after "shopping around" for good sound value. We liked the idea of a country club being part of our everyday life. We like the community setup and carefree living in a modern mobile home which beats everything for convenience. And Barefoot Bay is an easy drive to Patrick AFB.
Lt. Col. and Mrs. V. A. Hansen, USA RET.

BAREFOOT BAY

Barefoot Bay has more of what you've always promised yourself — when you retire. A lot of great living. In Florida's finest mobile home community on fish-laden Indian River.

Like a million dollar country club complex. A luxurious clubhouse for parties, entertainment. A 30'-by-60' heated swimming pool. A sporty executive golf course with modest greens fees. A 776-foot fishing pier stretching out into Indian River. A private ocean beach just across river by boat — by car a scenic 20-mile drive. Tennis, shuffleboard. All this country club living for a one-time fee for full family membership — as long as you stay at Barefoot Bay!

Terrific choice of mobile home estates. To suit your lifestyle, your budget. Handsome interiors... wall-to-wall carpeting, draperies. Spacious... designed to give you room to really relax, live. Modern community services like cable TV, underground utilities, paved streets. And a great location. From entrance of Barefoot Bay just 16 miles to city limits of Melbourne and Vero Beach on U.S. 1 — and just 31 miles to Patrick AFB.

The price? Homes and homesites complete starting at less than $12,000!

Discover how you can "retire" for 2 days/1 night at beautiful Barefoot Bay. See it all... enjoy it all! Income Tax Time

File early and beat the hassle

By BOB MARTIN

Don't be caught short when your buddies are trucking with their tax refund checks.

Many Fort Benning soldiers will receive a return from their federal income tax. Will yours be late?

Filing now lets your refund check get back to you sooner. By completing your tax forms now, you also avoid the rush around April 15.

Every wage earner must file an income tax return. This form is the U. S. Individual Income Tax Return, the 1040 or the 1040A.

Most soldiers will use the short form or 1040A. This form is for people whose only income was from wages and salaries and who did not earn more than $200 in interest or dividend income. Completing the short form rarely takes more than 30 minutes.

To complete your tax return, you must have your W2 form. One copy is submitted with your return. The other shows how much taxable money you earned during the last year. It should include basic pay, proficiency pay, and incentive pay.

The W2 also shows how much you paid in taxes on the stated income. If you haven't received your W2, talk to the company clerk. He can complete the paperwork to obtain one for you.

Keep your copy of the W2 and your filed return. They are proof of your paid taxes.

Points to consider

Before working on your income tax return, check with your unit tax officer. He has complete instructions for filling the form. He will also have the most up-to-date information on exemptions if you're considering itemizing your return.

Special areas for soldiers to consider before filing are Re-up bonuses, relocation expenses, sick pay, home sale, and uniform laundry costs.

To itemize, the total of your individual deductions must exceed the standard deduction for your income bracket.

Another thing to remember is state taxes in your home of record. Some states have special allowance and plans for soldiers but check with your tax officer first.

In case you owe Uncle Sam

If you owe the government some income tax, better find it out now. Very few soldiers do owe because their withholding tax covers their salaries.

If you owe, finding out now, gives you time to budget your payments across several months before the payment deadline.

Carpools available

Area 2: Mrs. Lewis, hours 7:45 to 4:30, Bldg. 83B, 545-1470.

Area 5: Conner Gary, section 7-H, hours 7:30 to 5, Bldg. 4, 545-1231.

Area 6: Travis Taylor, section 8-E, hours 8 to 4:30, Bldg. 399, 545-1851.

Area 8: Mr. Lewis, section 9-1, hours 8 to 5, Bldg. 2513, 545-2103.

Area 9: Floyd Shirley, section 1-G, hours 8 to 5, Bldg. 2513, 545-2103.

Dramatizers seeking play

Play submissions are open for the Fort Benning Dramatizers' spring production. In order to submit, you must have a script and a person willing to direct it. For further information call 545-5057.

At their December 17 meeting, the Dramatizers elected the following officers for a six month term: President, Fred Plank (CPT); Vice - President, Harvey Jackson (SP4); Secretary, Marcus Dishrow (1LT); Publicity Director, David M. Hall (PFC); and Members-at-Large, Keko Swain (CIV) and Jim Austin (PFC).

The Dramatizers also need actors, actresses, and people who would like to work with sound, costumes, make-up, publicity, and set construction. Whether you're military, dependent, or civilian, the Playhouse is the ideal place to expand your experience or acquire some.

The Talent Tree is two years old

A very special birthday celebration will be held January 29, 1974 at Fort Benning. The Talent Tree will be two years old. The Talent Tree, which is Fort Benning's own art gallery and craft boutique, was initiated on January 27, 1972 by the Officers' Wives Club. The shop, open to the public, serves as an outlet for the artistic talents of the entire army community.

To commemorate their anniversary, the shop is planning a special show entitled "A Needlework Showcase." The show features all facets of this art from needlepoint and creative patchwork to quilting and rug making. Displays throughout the show.

A reception from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. and continues through February 14 on the "Trees" regular shop days. These are Tuesdays and Thursdays from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. and the first Saturday of every month, also from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Circle the 29th on your calendar and plan to come out to help us celebrate

The NCOWC Bingo-Breakfast will be held at 9:30 a.m. at the Playboy Club at Lawson Field. Reservations must be made by noon, Jan. 21. Contact Julie Curry, 682-0783 or Maryann VonBoken, 687-9678.

SGM WIVES

The Sergeants Major Wives would like to send a cordial invitation to all wives of active and retired SGM in the area to attend their monthly coffees. The coffees are held on the first Wed. of each month at 9:30 a.m. at the NCOWC clubhouse by Lawson Field. For more information contact Mrs. Robert Keairnes, 682-0253.

ANNUAL PWOC SWEETHEART BANQUET

On Tuesday, Jan. 22 at 7:30 p.m. the PWOC will hold their annual Sweetheart Banquet in the Main Post Chapel Annex. This will be a covered dish dinner and each lady is urged to bring a sweetheart, a main dish, and a vegetable, salad or dessert.

The speaker will be LTC Floyd Thompson, who spent many years in a North Vietnam POW camp. There will be special music and "music to dine by." Hostesses are Ann Bell, Peggy Hefty and Nancy Spry.

All interested ladies are invited to attend and bring their sweethearts.

The family practice clinic, a success at Fort Benning

Under the Family Practice Program a new clinic for Fort Benning personnel and their dependents opened June 18. It was called Family Practice Clinic No. 2.

"The biggest change is that each doctor has built up a relationship with each family he serves," says Dr. (Maj.) William H. Matthews, chief of the Family Practice Clinic. "It's as effective as the patients want it to be," he added.

All active duty dependents, retirees and their dependents that have been assigned to the outpatient Blue Group are involved in this program. Also, as of Nov. 1, all active duty dependents, retirees and their dependents, who have not been assigned to a color designated outpatient group, and whose social security number (sponsor's) ends in 25 through 49 will be involved.

There are only five doctors in Clinic 2. Each doctor provides service for about 1,000 families, according to Matthews. This involves some 17,000 people. They also handle extra services, such as the troop dispensary and the stockade.

"We want to emphasize that we do have night and weekend coverage," Matthews said. "We stress that people call us rather than walk into the emergency room."

The clinic is open from 8:30 a.m. - noon and 1-4:30 p.m.; Monday through Friday. All non-emergency medical problems will be seen by appointment only. The number to call for an appointment is 544-2091 during weekdays.

For all emergency medical problems during 9 a.m. - 5 p.m. on weekdays you can call 544-2091 and should speak to a nurse or doctor to explain the problem. After 4:30 p.m. on weekdays, and weekends and holidays, individuals can call the Information Desk (544-2041) at the hospital and they will give the individuals number to a doctor to call back.

All of the physicians in the Blue Group have been trained in Family Medicine and are working to produce medical care for the whole family. They are trying to provide more personal interest in all aspects of family medical problems.

"Overall, we're happier doing this than the outpatient clinic. We weren't seeing children and it wasn't set up where people can see the same doctor. It also gives the doctor a chance to follow up on his patient's medical history," Matthews explained.

The Army is really responding to this kind of family treatment. Fort Lewis and Fort Ord also have active family resident programs. Four more are to be added at Forts Belvoir, Bragg, Gordon and Tripler Army Hospital in Hawaii.

"Elaine Powers gave my husband something I couldn't—a trimmer, younger looking wife. At 174 pounds, I looked and felt years older than 25. Dieting didn't help much, so finally I went to Elaine Powers. The instructors really took a personal interest, and that made a difference. When I got to my goal of 144 pounds, they told me I could be even slimmer. I made it all the way to 124, and size 9! My husband says if I looked any younger, he'd be embarrassed to go out with me."

Without draft 36th finds top-notch force

With the draft fading into the past and the Army becoming an all-volunteer force, we are now faced with the task of attracting a sufficient quantity of well motivated and high caliber people to get the job done. Unit of choice and station of choice options give unit commanders the opportunity to influence the kind of soldiers who will make up their units.

HOW DOES THE 36th HELP?

Just what can Army units do to help the recruiting effort? SFC Marvin Crawford, NCOIC for the Group's SOC-UOC program named three main ways that the 36th gives aid to local recruiters.

"First, we send our recruiting van and an ammunition display to fairs and car... throughout our area of responsibility," said SFC Crawford. "The recruiting van is a 6 ton semi trailer; van which has been equipped with a rear screen projector, a display depicting each unit, and racks of literature explaining the opportunities in the Army."

SP5 Joe McGuire has been with the 36th UOC office for about 18 months and normally goes with the van. "We show people at fairs what is available at Ft. Benning and the 36th and also answer any questions they have about the military," said Sp5 McGuire. "When we find someone who's interested, we fill out a prospect card on them and turn it in to the local recruiter for a follow-up."

We have had good success just about everywhere we've stopped."

WILL THE ARMY UPHOLD THE CONTRACT

"Most people are wondering if the Army will stick to the contract," said Sgt. Kite. "I was able to convince them with a true story. We had a man who was guaranteed a particular MOS under his UOC contract. But after he completed basic, no opening could be found in his unit, so he got out of the Army. We kept checking and five or six months later, we found a slot open: The man went back into the Army and is now filling the MOS stated in his contract."

Army Wife of the Year

Mrs. Phelps believes in helping

Mrs. Harvey Phelps, Fort Benning's nominee for Military Wife of the Year 1974, is one Army wife who believes in the tradition of women helping each other wherever they go. "You can't always return a favor to the person who helped you," she said, "but you can help someone else. It's one of the best things about being an Army wife."

Mary Phelps not only talks about Army wives helping each other; she works at it herself. She is a registered nurse, and holds a B.S. degree in Nursing Science from Boston University, where she was on a fellowship. She has worked in public and private hospitals in Cleveland and Cincinnati, Ohio, and at the Veterans' Hospital in Albuquerque, New Mexico.

Since her marriage to Lt. Col. Phelps, she has also done various types of volunteer work with the American Red Cross and Army Community Service. She met her husband while she was doing graduate work in maternal and child health at the University of Cincinnati, and was married in 1960. Later, if possible, she would like to complete work on her Master of Science degree in Nursing Science.

The Phelps have been stationed in Fort Sam Houston, Tex.; Fort Benjamin Harrison, Ind.; Fort Stewart, Ga.; Orleans, France; and Fort Bragg, N.C. They have been at Fort Benning since July, 1972. Lt. Col. Phelps is in the Medical Service Corps, and is chief of the clinical laboratory section at Martin Army Hospital.

"The Army has been good to us," Mrs. Phelps says. "We've never been stationed in a place we really didn't like, and we always make new friends. That's important, but the man you're married to is what makes all the difference in the world," she adds, speaking with obvious sincerity.

Mrs. Phelps, a volunteer nurse's assistant at Edward A. White School, takes Lisa LeCiere's temperature. (Photo by Rhonda Brownell)

The Phelps family consists of Lt. Col. and Mrs. Phelps; one son, Larry, now twelve years old, a fifteen-year-old nephew, David, who lives with them, and a large dog named Sam (for Samantha). The lady of the house also feels that "moving from place to place affects the whole family," and that "parents must be able to adjust" to new situations so that their children will feel secure.

The Phelps lived on the economy in Orleans, France, and reaped many rewards from it. Their landlord was a baker, and from him she learned how to make real French bread. She also developed an abiding interest in French cooking of all types, and practices it with growing expertise.

She makes a hobby of reading various cookbooks; in fact, she helped put one together. She tested recipes for the recently published "Golden Heritage" Cookbook published by the Officers'

Wives Club, and also contributed some of her own.

But she learned more than cooking in France. Through her son's French school, she made friends with several of her neighbors, and still corresponds with them. "The French people think of Americans as very aggressive, the type of people who expect to call them by their first names immediately. In the military, you can't always afford to wait to make new friends. They are more reserved than we are, though," she observed. "Getting to know them was a gradual process, but well worth the effort."

Mrs. Phelps has been an area chairman for UNICEF in Albuquerque, N.M.; an American Red Cross worker at Fort Bragg, N.C., Fort Stewart, Ga.; and Orleans, France, where she gave ward parties; and an Army Community Service volunteer at Fort Bragg as well as here at Fort Benning, where she is chairman of the welcome-reception committee and is an assistant supervisor.

She has been active in various Officers Wives Clubs, and was nursery chairman at Orleans, France. She is currently serving as recording secretary of the Fort Benning Officers Wives Club, in addition to her recent work on the cookbook. She teaches Sunday School at the Religious Education Center, and has also taught English classes there for foreign-born wives.

Mrs. Phelps is one of several mothers who have volunteered to work in the school nurse's office at Edward A. White School. She was also a school board member at Fort Stewart, in addition to teaching in Sunday School and Vacation Bible School.

Her special interests include quilting and needlepoint, in addition to cooking. She took a quilting class that was taught by the Officers' Wives Club here, and enjoys doing needlepoint on her own when time permits. She also plays "some" tennis, and did so frequently when her husband was stationed at Sandia Base, N.M. She is active in the MEDDAC Wives group.

The Phelps family were foster parents for six weeks during the summer; from July to September, their home was opened to a foster child from the Muscogee County Department of Family and Children Services. The fifteen-year-old boy was placed with them with the help of the ACS "Big Brother" program. Mrs. Phelps feels that "each positive contact between the military and civilian communities improves the relationship."

Certainly she is an example of the finest in the long tradition of military wives who contribute not only to their husbands' careers, but to life in their communities as well.

Mrs. Mary Phelps learned to make real French bread when she was stationed in Orleans, France with her husband, Lt. Col. Harvey Phelps. Mrs.

Small enlists 20 for Training and UOC

Specialist Four Steven W. Small is one of a growing number of young soldiers enjoying hometown canvassing duty in support of the Army Recruiting Program.

Small, a member of Headquarters and Headquarters Battery, 2nd Battalion, 10th Field Artillery, 197th Infantry Brigade, joined the Army after being graduated from high school in Leesburg, Fla. and attending the University of Florida for one year.

Recently, however, Small left his job as a battery clerk to take advantage of an opportunity to serve as a canvasser in his hometown and receive an additional pay allowance for the temporary duty.

The Army's hometown canvassing program relies on the canvasser's knowledge of his municipality and geographic area, and his personal contacts with local citizens, to gain enlistments for the Army.

"When I arrived in Leesburg," said Small, "I was a little apprehensive about how I would be received. However, I tried to be open and honest with the people I met.

"In speaking to the high school students and men working around Leesburg, I told them of my experiences, how the Army had given me responsibility and how I felt I had matured as a result of being in the service," recounted Small.

During his three months as a canvasser, Small recruited more than 20 men for the Army. "They joined primarily because they wanted to learn a skill," he said. "A man can now enlist, be assured of learning a skill, be guaranteed a job using that skill and know exactly where he'll be assigned for at least 16 months," he noted.

"That is why I joined and that is the contribution that sells young men today."

Small said he achieved credibility by making "every effort to be seen in public." He added, "It was this kind of visibility, along with community assistance projects, which have helped to overcome the 'Vietnam-era' feelings many persons have of the Army."

"I received a great deal of satisfaction from this duty," closed Small. "It gave me a chance to see what the Army had really done for me and, hopefully, to give others the same great opportunity."

Options

Help Ft. Benning lead way in recruiting

By ILEANE KATZKER

Three recruiting options — station of choice, unit of choice and special unit enlistment — which began at the U. S. Army Infantry Center in 1971 have gained in popularity throughout the Army.

And, Fort Benning continues to lead the way in recruiting prospective enlistees for these options. For example, some 1,000 enlistments were recruited by the Infantry Center for the unit of choice and station of choice options in November and December alone. That's more than recruited by any other TRADOC installation.

The reasons for the popularity of these options are the many advantages they offer the enlistee. Not only can he enlist for a post near his home, but he's guaranteed a 16-month stabilized tour with the unit of choice option or 12-month stabilized tour at the station of choice or special unit enlistments.

And, if he qualifies, he is guaranteed the job of his choice. All of these guarantees, by the way, are written into his contract and maintained in the individual enlistee's files. His contract is checked several times to make certain he's assigned a job or unit for which he contracted. Any discrepancies are resolved on the spot.

If a man isn't satisfied, he can waive his contract for another choice of unit or receive his discharge out of the Army.

"Fort Benning has had no broken contracts during the past three months," explained Captain John W. Barney, chief of the Personnel Procurement Management Section of the Adjutant General Division.

But, the main reason for Fort Benning's recruiting success story is that the program, while centrally managed, is actually decentralized. Each major unit on post supports one of 11 Recruiting Main Stations in the U. S. Army Recruiting Command's Third Recruiting District.

These units also furnish personnel who serve as canvassers of these main stations. "These canvassers are selected by unit commanders based on personal appearance, attitude and acceptability to the RMS," explained CPT Carney.

"They are normally from the area around the RMS to which they are temporarily assigned," added the captain. "The TDY is normally for a period of 90 days, depending on how well the recruiting stations feel they are doing. The canvassers may be used wherever they can do the RMS the most good — in the RMS, the local recruiting station or even the AFES."

"Our philosophy is that we support the U. S. Army Recruiting Command. Our SOC UOC programs are geared to recruit for the whole Army," Carney commented. "If a person is satisfied, we'll get sufficient fill for our needs." He also attributes success to the command emphasis placed on the program, credibility and the information effort.

"Historically," Carney said, "looking at high school grades, the top third has always gone to college, the middle has gone to trade school and the bottom third has either been discriminated against or gone into the Army. We want to get away from the idea that the Army is for the bottom third. It is for the bottom and the top."

"In addition to stressing solutions to drug, alcohol and other social problems, the Army needs to start stressing other things. The Army has taken a lead in ending these problems. In re-orienting our thinking, we must change with the times and still be strong."

The captain explained that with these new recruiting programs, he hopes to see the Army made better and more attractive. "We think we're doing the Army's most important job," he concluded.

WACs

works to dispel myths, prejudices

"The vast majority of people today don't really want to be biased and are receptive to change," explains Brigadier General Mildred C. Bailey, Women's Army Corps director. "So I think we stand a very good chance of dispelling the myths, misunderstandings and prejudice that might be geared toward sex."

At Fort Benning, WACs fill such positions as protocol officer, food inspector, air traffic control operator, photographer, intelligence coordinator, truck driver and court reporter, to name only a few of the military occupations. In fact, of approximately 100 Military Occupational Specialties (MOS) at the U. S. Army Infantry Center, about 75 are open to women.

"The only jobs not open to women are in combat or combat related areas," explained Lieutenant Vicki Brown, assistant chief of the Personnel Procurement Management section. "This holds true throughout the Army, as more than 430 of about 480 MOS are open to women, with the exceptions being those combat-type positions."

The Army's enlistment goals for women were set very low in World War II when the Women's Army Corps was born. As a result, many eligible applicants were turned away. When the quotas were finally increased, it was hard to attract women because many had found other jobs. It was extremely hard to convince them they were really needed.

Public opinion was very unfavorable towards the enlistment of women when a major recruiting effort began in 1943. Disillusioned because of the menial jobs they were assigned, women wrote home to discourage others from enlisting. A slander campaign in 1943, alleging a low moral standard of female personnel, greatly hindered enlistment efforts.

Today, with the dramatic change in the sharp increase of the enlistment of women, the recruiting efforts have also changed. Fort Benning recruiting main stations support cities in 11 states and Puerto Rico.

Unit and Station of Choice options are being stressed. WAC canvassers, usually enlisted women, accompany recruiters in various areas. They talk to high school groups and, upon their return, fill out after-action reports with suggestions and criticisms.

"Enlistments increased with the opening of more fields," added Lt. Brown. "We were told by Training and Doctrine Command to develop a plan for the greater utilization of women. Our basic techniques and procedures for recruiting are relatively the same as for men," she continued. "Recruiting women has been pushed more because of WAC expansion. Women are needed for unfilled men's slots." She added that the must also meet higher standards for admission than men.

"A lot of college graduates are enlisting because they can get a skill, whereas an officer can't, as such," Lt. Brown pointed out. "They acquire a skill and can always apply for OCS later."

The cost of recruiting men in 1972 rose while the relative cost of recruiting women remained rather constant. But there is an indication that women may be more cost-effective than men, even given a higher turnover rate. Lt. Brown said that one example of this is the more men go AWOL than women.

Lt. Brown emphasized that the WAC has always been a volunteer Army. She quoted, from a recent edition of Military Review, how women can prove to be the answer to the military's personnel problem: "They enter the service on a higher qualitative base than do men. Therefore, they are likely to be more productive. Also, in past years, the excess supply of volunteers has demonstrated that there is an available supply of women wanting to serve in the Armed Forces."

DEAR BAYONET
I would like to attend College full time after leaving the service but my situation at home will not permit me to enter College as soon as my discharge. How long do I have before my GI Bill expires after I leave the service? Sp4 RLH

DEAR Sp4 RLH
Your educational G.I. Bill benefits will expire eight years from date of termination of service. The expiration date doesn't apply to on the job Training or apprenticeship training.

DEAR BAYONET
I am a civilian who has been out of the Army for six months. How do I get my W-2 Form for income tax purpose? MR ALVIN SMITH

DEAR MR. SMITH
Your W-2 form was attached to your last pay voucher as you were being discharged from the Army. If you have lost your W-2 Form which was issued to you at the time of your departure, you should write a letter to the US Army Finance Support Agency, Indianapolis, Indiana 46249, and inform them of the place and date of your discharge and will be able to send you a duplicate copy of your W-2 Form.

DEAR BAYONET
I heard a rumor that the Bayonet is going to drop the FEMLINE COLUMN. Is this true?
A) The answer is definitely, NO.

Enjoying the park? "Sure, why not?" But in the winter without any shoes or socks? Actually, Kay McElroy and Dan Bradford posed this shot in mid-January at Columbus' Flat Rock Park to remind you about the Springer Theatre Company's production of "Barefoot in the Park." The play concerns a newly wed couple living on the sixth floor of an apartment building without an elevator and the problems presented by themselves, a mother-in-law and a neighbor. Termed a "blubbling, rib-tickling comedy" by the New York Times the play will be presented at 8:30 nightly Jan. 24-26, 29-31, Feb. 1-3 and a 2:30 matinee on Feb. 3. Tickets are $2 and $4. Lieutenant Colonel Roger M. Sk... command of the 67th Maintenance Battalion (DS) in ceremonies at Sand Hill on Monday 7 January 1974.

He succeeded Lieutenant Colonel Herman R. Betke who has been the Battalion Commander since June 1972. Colonel Betke will be assigned to Fort Benning pending reassignment to the Washington, D.C. area. Lt. Colonel Shalz has served with the US ARMY Logistics Assistance Officer in Southeast Asia since January 1973. Prior to that he was assigned to the Safeguard Command, Huntsville, Alabama.

He graduated from the University of California at Davis in 1954 and has since graduated from the Ordnance Guided Missile School, the Ordnance Advance Course, and the US ARMY Command and General Staff College.

His decorations include the Army Commendation Medal and the Joint Services Commendation Medal.

According to the citation, when Lt. Galloway's men were subjected to intense fire from the village, he personally exposed himself to direct his men,

Lt. Colonel Shalz is married and has two children.

Distinguished Service Cross

A Distinguished Service Cross was posthumously awarded to Second Lieutenant Sam H. Galloway, Infantry, at Infantry Hall Jan. 15. It was awarded to him for valorous actions on Jan. 31, 1968 while leading a platoon of the 101st Airborne Division on a search and destroy mission in Vietnam. Accepting the award were his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Sam E. Galloway, of Vidalia, Ga. Colonel Lawrence L. Mowery, Galloway's 3rd Brigade Commander, and presently director of Brigade and Battalion Operations Department, presented the award.

According to the citation, when Lt. Galloway's men were subjected to intense fire from the village, he personally exposed himself to direct his men, marking targets with a rocket launcher and with machine-gun fire. When several of his men were hit he carried them to positions of relative safety and treated those who required immediate life-saving attention. Although he had been wounded, he alerted his men to the order of limited withdrawal which he had received from his field commander.

It was while he provided protective fire and acted as a covering shield for his wounded men that Lt. Galloway was struck down.

TRAVEL AND TRANSPORTATION ENTITLEMENTS

Effective Jan. 2, travel and transportation entitlements for PCS moves have been extended to all E-4's with over 2 years of service. These entitlements include dependent travel, transportation of household goods and privately owned vehicle, trailer allowance, dislocation allowance, and overseas station allowance. The effective date of orders will determine the eligibility of members currently in receipt of PCS orders. For more information contact the transportation office at 545-4988.

PRE-MARITAL SEMINAR

The monthly Pre-Marital Seminar, sponsored by the Fort Benning Chaplain's office, will be held Sunday, Jan. 20, from 2-6 p.m. at the Infantry Center Chapel Annex, located in Bldg. 101. Couples of all faiths who are planning to marry or who are recently married are encouraged to participate. Topics of discussion will include the religious, moral, social, emotional, physical, and economic aspects of marriage. The seminar is supported by Protestant, Catholic, and Jewish Chaplains on post and will fulfill the requirements of some denominations for pre-marital counseling.

FAMILY AMBULATORY CARE SYSTEM

The Family Ambulatory Care System (FACS) was implemented by Martin Army Hospital, to increase both the quality and continuity of care given on an outpatient basis. This was achieved by dividing the patient population into four groups and assigning physicians permanently to those groups. This better enables the patient to have follow-up care by the same physician and thus establish a patient relationship. The groups were given the color designations yellow, blue, green, and pink. To determine your color group call 544-3472 or 544-2153.

U-S-O TICKETS FROM ATLANTA

The USO in Atlanta has incorporated a new system in handling tickets to the various events taking place in Atlanta. You may, at any time, call the USO in Atlanta and make reservation for any event that you know of in the city of Atlanta. If the USO can get the tickets, they will hold them for you until 30 minutes of the event. If you do not pick-up the tickets by then, they will put them up for general sale. Under this new system, the USO will be able to get tickets to almost any event that you may wish to attend. You can also save money by reserving your tickets. The Atlanta USO hopes that in the next few weeks to be able to give you a calendar showing all coming events in the city of Atlanta. If you wish to reserve tickets after duty hours you may do so by calling 525-4976 in Atlanta.

USMC Rep. awarded for lifesaving rescue

Lieutenant Colonel John H. Blair, Marine Corps Representative assigned to the U.S. Army Infantry School, has been awarded a Certificate of Achievement for organizing a lifesaving rescue in June. Lt. Col. Blair approached a motorcycle accident involving Sergeant Albert R. Matthews, The School Brigade, and his seven-year old son Arthur. The accident had left Arthur with his rib cage tightly jammed between the rear fender and rear tire, and against the rear cycle frame. He had lost consciousness and was having trouble breathing. Blair was the first to arrive at the scene and immediately offered his help to Sgt. Matthews. While waiting for medical assistance, he took charge and organized the assistance of other persons. He was able to rescue the trapped youngster by dismantling the rear end of the motorcycle. Due to his immediate actions and organization, Blair saved young Arthur's life.

Demons fight hard; fail to break streak

Before an overflow crowd at the YAC gym, the Faith School seventh and eighth grade basketball teams suffered their fifth straight defeats. Arnold Junior High School provided the opposition.

Kevin Kitchum scored seven points in the quarter and the Demons trailed by a 16-11 score at halftime.

During the third quarter, Dan Aram entered the game for Arnold and led an offensive barrage that all but sealed the outcome of the game. Late in the quarter, Faith's leading scorer, Kevin Kitchum, suffered an injury to his arm and it appeared that the Demons would have to stage a rally without him. However, Kitchum shook off the injury and combined with the inspired play of David Baker did lead a Demon rally in the fourth quarter. With Baker playing tenacious defense and claiming rebounds, the Demons were able to close the score to 39-25 at the final gun. Ketchum was leading scorer in the game with 19 points.

In the game that followed between the eighth grade teams the issue was settled early as Arnold Junior High came out shooting like the Atlanta Hawks. Long range or close in, Arnold field goal tries were on target and the Demons were quickly down, 6-0. Demon forward, Steve Warren, was then able to beat the defense downcourt on the fast break and pulled Faith to within five at the end of the quarter.

In the second quarter, Arnold lost its shooting touch but their height advantage began to tell as they continually were able to get 2 or 3 shots at the basket each time down the court. Faith, in the meantime, was unable to get its offense going and relied on the outside shooting of guard, Wallace Archie, to keep them in the game.

The third quarter spelled doom for the Demons as the Arnold team could do no wrong while Faith suffered through one turnover after another. The final score was 49-25 and little can be said for the Demons second half effort except for the gutsy play of the little Ronald Rycek who scored 4 points and harassed the Arnold players into numerous late game turnovers.

Co. A still hq. com. power

Headquarters Command opened the second half of company level basketball competition on Jan 7 but it appears to be a replay of first half action.

The first half of the season ended with "A" Company in first place with a perfect 5-0 record. The Infantry Board placed second with a 4-1 record with that lone loss inflicted by "A" Co.

In games played on Jan 7 the Personnel Center Facility downed "B" Company, 58-52 while powerful "A" Company walked over Headquarters Company, 74-51. Action continued on the 9th of January with The Infantry Board rolling over Headquarters Company, 71-58, as "A" Company continued its undefeated ways with a 78-39 thrashing of "B" Company. In that game, potential All-Army candidate, Tim Griffin, led

"A" Company in scoring with 23 points.

Headquarters Command personnel are already looking forward to the game of January 21st pitting "A" Company against the Infantry Board which could determine the champion of second half competition.

Hqs. TSB gives in Christmas spirit

"It is better to give than to receive" is a theme of the Christmas season. Headquarters Co., The Student Brigade carried that thought just a little too far as they gave a resounding 76-16 victory to Company D, 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry in unit level basketball.

The Hqs. TSB team seemed to be still home on Christmas leave as the Pioneers of Co. D opened the game by scoring 24 straight points. Team captain, Sandy MacPherson of Hqs. TSB then led a "scoring streak" which left the half time score, 42-10. The second half provided a continued show of unorganized play and poor shooting by Hqs. TSB, and the final buzzer found the Pioneers victorious by an incredible sixty point margin.

A few new faces at the club last Friday and Saturday evenings gave Tom McCullough enough encouragement to provide music again this weekend. Curley Money and his band will entertain with western and country music beginning at 7:30 tonight and tomorrow night. You don't have to be a member of the Rod and Gun Club. Anyone who grooves on western or country music is welcome.

January Fishing Derby

Worms, especially the plastic type seem to work best in the spring and fall. But worms are the bait of the month in the Rod and Gun Club January Fishing Derby. The leaders in all three categories of the contest took their entries on some kind of worm.

SFC Robert Wantek, 145th Aviation Battalion leads the catfish contest with a 3-pound, 2-ounce catch he took from Victory Pond. He was using a pink worm.

The largest bass so far this month could hold up as the largest bass taken from a post pond during the entire year. This monster came from Hedleys Pond. He tipped the Rod and Gun Club scales at 13-pounds, 4-ounces. PFC Eugene Hall, 988th Military Police Company was the lucky angler. He was fishing with a creme plastic worm.

The largest bream went for a meal worm. SFC Howard Dobbs Jr., The School Brigade took the 10-ounce catch from Hedleys Pond.

Dobbs came close to losing the lead last Sunday. If CPT Dave Deutcher had checked the standings of the contest before he went fishing Deutcher would no doubt be the leader today. Deutcher was at the club before he went fishing at Kings Pond. He caught several good sized bream, cleaned them then went back to the club. It was then that he checked the status of the contest. He went to his car, got out the largest fish and found that without head, scales and other parts of the bream weighed exactly 10-ounces. Complete the fish would probably have weighed about 15-ounces.

The altered fish was not eligible for entry in the contest. Deutcher says he plans to make sure this doesn't happen again. His sad tale should be helpful to other fishermen. You don't have to come by the club before going fishing but you may be sorry if you eat your catch before you find out the standings at the fishing derby.

Each month the Rod and Gun Club holds a Fishing Derby. Merchandise orders worth $15 at the club sales counter are given to the fisherman who takes the largest catfish, bass and bream. To be a winner you must be a member of the Rod and Gun Club, catch your fish at one of the reservation ponds and bring it to the club for weighing and registration.

Bass Club Tournament

Members of the Fort Benning BASS Club don't let the cold weather stop fishing activities. The club held its January Tournament at Lake Martin in Alabama last weekend.

SSG (retired) Bob Billman used some deep water techniques to win first place. SFC Don Strickland took second place and third place went to MSG Jack Tibbs. LTC Gregg Walls took the largest bass of the tournament. His catch was a spotted bass that went 2-pounds, 14-ounces on the official scales.

Faith enters Junior High League

The Faith School Demons have yet to prove, on the basketball court that "demons" they are, but Coach Max Spurlin, referring to the eighth grade team, said, "We're 0 and 4 on the season but had we played up to our potential we could have been 2 and 2, perhaps 3 and 1."

Coach Spurlin's above remarks sum up the problems of any new athletic venture—lack of experience and lack of confidence.

This is the first year that the Faith School seventh and eighth grade basketball teams have competed with the Columbus and Phenix City junior high schools.

The seventh grade team is small and quick and depends on the fast break type of offense. They have suffered through four games without a victory and leading scorers, Kevin Kitchum and Maymon Baxter, say "they're just too big" when talking about the teams they have played.

The seventh grade team members are Kevin Ketchum, Maymon Baxter, Rich Richards, David Baker, Cedric Davis, James Saffold, Wayne Johnson, Billy Jones, Martense Tarrance, Wylie Smith, Boyce Bradford and Bill Crowder.

The eighth grade team appears to overcome the problem of height with starters. Brad Scott at 5-11 and leading score Jim Bell at 5-10. That is, until they take the court against downtown teams averaging six feet or better at the forward and center positions.

This team also relies on speed and fast break opportunities. Starting guard, Wallace Archie, shows signs of good ballhandling and provides better than 5 points a game to the offense. In their most recent game against Richards Junior High School the Demons had a chance to win the game on a last second field goal attempt. However the shot was missed and the Demons were forced to foul. The foul resulted in two free throws which were the margin of victory.

Parents and students are encouraged to attend the remaining games to provide the needed support. The remainder of the schedule follows: Jan. 18 at Southern, Jan. 22

Columbus at home; Jan. 25 Rothschild at home; Jan. 29 at Central; Feb. 5 Daniel at home; Feb. 8 Talbotton-Road at home; Feb. 12 at Marshall and Feb. 15 at Eddy. All Faith School home games are played at the Youth Activities Gymnasium with starting time 4 p.m. for the seventh grade game and the eighth grade game following immediately.

197th gives rewarding stay

The 197th Infantry Brigade has initiated many projects to help recruiters in cities throughout the Southeastern United States in getting young men to enlist for the brigade. Once a young soldier comes to the 197th, everything is done to make his stay pleasant and professionally rewarding.

CANVASSERS ARE SUCCESSFUL

One of the main projects in existence at this time involves the 197th Inf. Bde. canvassers. "Primarily, we want the canvassers to be young, low-ranking soldiers with whom the young men in the communities can identify and associate with," says Cpt. Pickron.

"Just because a man enlists after talking to a canvasser," says Cpt. Pickron, "does not mean he will come to the 197th. However, during 1973 over 2,200 men enlisted and came to the 197th." "We work primarily with the recruiting main stations in the Southeastern United States," states SFC James Isbell, Jr., the NCOIC of the Bde. S-5. "We, as a brigade, can give better support to these recruiters because they are closer to Fort Benning."

"I feel," SFC Isbell continues, "that the canvassers are one of the greatest assets to the station-of-choice recruiting program."

CAREER COUNSELORS DO THEIR THING

"Reenlisting soldiers," explains MSG Harold J. Woodward, "is not the main job of a career counselor. Sure, we have an objective for monthly reenlistments, but our primary mission is to counsel soldiers regarding an Army career, their desires and the needs of the Army.

"The brigade has always exceeded its reenlistment objectives," states MSG Woodward. "I can't remember when we last fell short."

"The career counselors in the 197th don't have to use any gimmicks or special techniques to get men to reenlist," explains MSG Woodward. "The Army regulations prescribe certain time frames when a man is to be interviewed for reenlistment. All personnel in leadership positions feel a keen responsibility for retaining good soldiers in the brigade and are constantly discussing the opportunities with their subordinates."

According to MSG Woodward, the 197th Bde. is the best unit assignment a career counselor could have. MSG Woodward explains that this is because the majority of the first termers in the 197th are already unit-of-choice soldiers. He goes on to say that the brigade leadership is such that the men are treated fairly and know that the brigade cares about them.

MSG Woodward also feels that the 'esprit-de-corps is very high in the 197th Inf. Bde. and that there is outstanding job satisfaction within the brigade.

"A soldier who is satisfied with his job, respects his leaders and is treated fairly, is highly motivated to remain in the Army," states MSG Woodward.

MEDDAC reaches out to assist patients

The "WE CARE" motto of the Medical Department Activity is again supported by the establishment of a Patient Affairs Representative Program, which provides military men and their families at Fort Benning with their own personal representatives at Martin Army Hospital.

"The primary goal in providing this new service, states LTC Herbert G. See, Chief, Social Work Service, is to alleviate many of the discomforts and inconveniences associated with the patients' illnesses and to promote recovery by assisting with any psycho-socio aspects desired."

Personnel trained in social work, counseling, and psychology will be available to hear any complaints, suggestions, or questions regarding hospital services. The Patient Affairs Representative is available to both in-patients and out-patients from the time they enter the hospital until their departure, and are as "near as the phone" for those who are unable or who do not desire to make a time and gas consuming trip to obtain information pertaining to their medical care.

The PAR's are concerned with providing better lines of communication between patients, their families and the medical staff, and with resolving any problems or misunderstandings as quickly as possible. They will be visiting all wards, clinics, and Emergency Room on a routine basis and will register all complaints, suggestions and problem areas with appropriate department officials to assist them in making any corrections necessary.

There are service agencies in both the military and civilian communities that many patients either don't know about or don't know how to contact. The Patient Affairs Representative can direct patients and their families toward these sources of financial assistance, temporary care for children left alone by a parent's hospitalization, counseling for those whose emotional problems threaten to overwhelm them . . . the list goes on as long as patients have questions or need help.

Staff Sergeant Danny L. Crowe, Operations Division, Command Maintenance and Communications Department, USAIS, comments: "I think it's really good. There are a lot of people who are probably too worried about an operation, or their child's illness, or their wife's having to be in the hospital to think straight. They need help from somebody who knows what's available."

"A lot of kids come in the Army at 17 and don't know what's happening — or where to turn when they're in trouble, or even where to go for a loan or how to get one. This new service can really help by spending a little time with people and helping them solve their problems."

Dr. (Captain) Charles T. Ellithorpe, of the Family Practice Clinic, added: "The concept is excellent. I hope that more doctors and patients will become aware of this service and take advantage of it."

Colonel William B. Steele, Commander of the 197th Infantry Brigade, endorses the idea. "A fine program which further indicates the Army's interest in its soldiers and their families — specifically, in improving their knowledge of its services and benefits."

Anyone wanting to contact the Patient Affairs Representative may do so by calling 644-2702, through the hospital paging system or by visiting Room C-800, Martin Army Hospital.

Buddies join close to home

Two buddies in Greenville, Miss. liked the idea of joining the Army but did not want to part company.

So Randy Alexander and James Miller discussed their desires with SFC Robert C. Jackson at the Greenville Army Recruiting station and accepted Jackson's recommendation that they join under the unit-of-choice enlistment option on the "buddy plan."

Recently Alexander and Miller, both privates serving in the 197th Infantry Brigade, talked with Jackson on Kelley Hill while Jackson toured the 197th Brigade with a group of citizens from Greenville.

"We both chose the 197th because it was close to home," said Miller. "We both go home about twice a month," he added. "SFC Jackson told us about Fort Benning's facilities and size and the stores and entertainment in Columbus," said Alexander, "so we thought it would be a good place to be."

Miller delayed his entry on active duty to finish high school, while Alexander earned a high school G.E.D. soon after he entered active duty.

"I'd like to go to college when I leave the Army," said Miller, "and SFC Jackson explained the advantages the Army had to offer me in education."

Jackson said, "I told them both that the Army could offer solid job training while they were in plus giving them benefits for their education if they decided to leave the Army."

Miller is a field wireman in the 2nd Battalion, 10th Field Artillery, while Alexander is a field lineman in the 298th Signal Platoon.

"I plan to use my Army job training to work for the telephone company in Greenville when I complete my enlistment," said Alexander. "While at Fort Benning, though, I'm going to attend Columbus College," he added.

Career Counselor SFC points out bennies

"The main thing I try to do is show the soldier the difference between the advantages the Army offers as compared to the uncertainties of civilian life," says SFC Morris W. Dillard, chief career counselor for The School Brigade.

SFC Dillard is a believer. He believes in what he does. His job is advising soldiers on career fields and training programs which would be most beneficial in enhancing their military careers. "I am not a recruiter," he is quick to point out, "but a CAREER counselor." educational opportunities make the Army a hard deal to beat," stated Dillard. Early last year DA discontinued its policy of allowing first term soldiers to reenlist after just eight months in service. Now

IF YOU ARE NOT SATISFIED with the advancement possibilities of your present position, consider the opportunities offered by National Training Institute. By investing a few spare - time hoursyou, too, can enjoy the benefits of a professional career. More money, prestige, and job security are waiting for you.....if you take advantage of one of our fine programs! No college background or prior experience needed.

Auto Mechanics

YOUR HOBBY CAN BE A CAREER!! NTI's Automotive Mechanics School can enable you to do more with your love for cars than simply pump gas. With this specialized course, you can enter the technical field of trained automobile mechanics in a short amount of time. With the influx of more precision-built automobiles, there is an ever increasing demand for trained personnel.

Insurance Adjusting

ADJUST YOUR FUTURE. Accidents can and do happen . . . and this has resulted in a critical need for trained Insurance Adjusters. Men in this profession have an exciting advantage over those in other types of work. Every day brings new adventures to a skilled adjuster as he does the actual investigation of an accident. This area is perfect for those who dislike the routine of daily office work . . . no time clocks, and you are able to travel as much or as little as you desire.

Computer Programming

HAVE A SPACE AGE PROFESSION. NTI's specialized course in the computer field is offered by the Computer Training Division. You can concentrate your studies in the area of Computer Programming. After completion of the home-study portion of your training, NTI offers students the opportunity to actually work with a modern business computer (NCR Century) . . . for a period of two weeks. Computers are part of today's space age . . . unfortunately there are not enough trained programmers to meet the ever-growing demands.

APPROVED FOR VETERANS AND IN-SERVICE PERSONNEL

197th troops find

Barracks better than before; but still need improvements

The 197th Infantry Brigade, along with the rest of the Army, is busily modernizing barracks in an effort to provide improved living conditions for today's volunteer soldiers.

The big changes in the brigade's barracks are taking place on Kelley Hill, where modernization is progressing on six of the 12 three-story concrete barracks scheduled for upgrading. The support battalion are composed of old wooden barracks is also being modernized.

The buildings currently under modernization on Kelley Hill are scheduled for release to the brigade by mid-year. At that time modernization will begin on the remaining six buildings.

In the outlying areas of the 197th, Harmony Church, men are renovating the old wooden barracks themselves. Staff Sergeant James L. Pitts, Combat Support Company, 1st Battalion, 58th Infantry, has split views on the barracks situation.

Rooms offer privacy

"With the construction of the rooms in these old barracks the men have more privacy than they did in an open bay," states SSG Pitts. "I don't see anything wrong with living in the barracks if a man is single and leads a relatively simple life."

"I'll have to agree with Sergeant Pitts," says Specialist Nicholas M. Moore, Cpl. Spt. Co., 1st Bn., 58th Inf. "The barracks situation is a lot better than it was a few years ago. They are great for a guy who is in the Army only to be a soldier."

"As for myself," Sp4 Moore continues, "I would not voluntarily live in the barracks. There are still certain things that I can do in my apartment that I could not do if I were living on post."

The men in the 15th Cavalry live in a different type barracks. Their barracks are one story concrete structures which they have partitioned off into semi-private rooms.

"With the living conditions that we have here," says Sp4 Larry N. Millsaps, Troop A, 15th Cav., "I see no reason why a man should have to move off post."

"I'd have to agree with Larry whole-heartedly," states Sergeant Steve C. Segur, Millsaps' roommate. "We have everything here that anyone has in an apartment off post.

"There are a few minor improvements that could be made in these buildings," Sp4 Millsaps says. "For one thing the rooms could be a little larger."

"One other thing that could be improved upon are the beds," says Millsaps, "they are too short."

SFC Norman R. Rousseau, a Platoon Sergeant with Trp. A, 15th Cav., added, "The barracks are a big improvement from what they were years ago. I like the idea of the semi-private rooms. I do feel however that the bay area type barracks are still needed in training units such as basic and AIT. This helps soldiers learn to live together as a group and provides better control over the trainees."

New commander assumes duties

Col. Ames S. Albro Jr., assumed command of the 36th Engineer Group during the Change of Command Ceremony held at Marne Field, Sand Hill, Jan. 16.

He succeeds Col. James M. Thompson, who served as group commander since July 20, 1972. Col. Thompson assumes his duties as Chief of Military Strategy and Policy Office, Deputy Chief of Staff for Operations, Headquarters, Department of the Army.

Visiting guest speakers and representatives included Fort Benning Commander, Maj. Gen. Thomas M. Tarpley, Assistant Commandant, Brig. Gen. William R. Richardson; and Col. G. W. Schulz, Forscom Engineer.

After the Change of Command Ceremony a reception was held in the Engineer Lodge for the special guests.

Col. Albro comes to the 36th Engineers following a tour of duty in the office of the Chief of Staff HQDA. He served extensively with the Department of the Army in Washington, D. C., having worked with the Office of the Chief of Staff, Operation; the new office of the Assistant Vice Chief of Staff, Operations; and the Office of the Chief of Staff, Army.

The 1954 graduate of the United States Military Academy was a Rhodes Scholar at Oxford University, England in 1962. Col. Albro also has attended the Command and General Staff College, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas and the Army War College, Carlisle, Pennsylvania.

He served overseas as a member of the Military Assistance Advisory Group to Iran in 1960-61 and the Republic of Vietnam with the Army Engineer Command, and as a commander of the 815th Engineer Battalion (Construction Vietnam).

THE BAYONET Inside Front

A top soldier retires after 30 yrs.

Command Sergeant Major James L. Runyon, formerly assigned to Headquarters, 36th Engineer Group, has now retired after 30 years of military service.

CSM Runyon came to the 36th Engineers from the 5th Bn., 31st Inf., 197 Infantry Brigade, and was formerly the sergeant major of U.S. Army Training Center from 1966-1968.

Before returning to Fort Benning this time, CSM Runyon was the sergeant major of I Field Force, Vietnam, from 1968 to 1969; sergeant major of the 2nd and 3rd Brigades of the 2nd Inf. Div., Korea, from 1970 until 1971.

His assignments have also included not only the "Screaming Eagles" of the 101st Abn. Div., but the "Rakasans" of the 187th Abn. Airmobile Combat Team during the Korean War, the 82nd Abn. Div., and the 7th and 2d Inf. Divisions.

He was filling a sergeant major's slot in 1959 with the 2d Battle Group (Old Guard) 7th Division in Korea. He returned to the States as a first sergeant with the 187th, then made E-9 in July, 1961, while serving as sergeant major of the 2d Battle Group, 9th Inf., 2d Div. In February of 1968, when the first increment of command sergeants major was selected, CSM Runyon's name was on the list.

In 1943 he volunteered for parachute training with the 501st Parachute Infantry Regiment, and since then he has completed more than 400 jumps — with never a serious injury. He wears the Combat Infantryman's Badge and the silver emblem of the Master Parachutist, in addition to his awards of the Legion of Merit, the Bronze Star Medal with "V" device, the Army Commendation Medal with two oakleaf clusters, the Air Medal, and eight awards of the Good Conduct Medal. He is retiring with the Meritorious Service Medal.

"In today's Army," admits CSM Runyon, "a man has to be told the reason he is doing things. There's not much of the 'you-do-it-and-don't-ask-why' attitude. But the new Army is fine with me, — You just treat these people like men, and they'll follow you."

This feeling about today's soldier, the sergeant major continued, made his two years (66-68) at the Ft. Benning training center the most satisfying assignment he has had.

"These young troops try real hard," Sergeant Major Runyon said.

The sergeant will retire in Columbus, because it is close to Ft. Benning and is the home of the Infantry, "Queen of Battle."

The Infantry and the Airborne have been two of the shaping factors in the sergeant major's Army life.

CSM Runyon is the epitome of the professional soldier. And when he was at Ft. Bragg in 1961, the post commander was looking for a top soldier to model for the statue of an airborne infantryman that stands at the main gate of the post. He chose CSM Runyon. Perhaps not even the sculptor expected such a model.

Tim Echols of Headquarters and Support Company said, "I've been waiting for this move with a bit of breath. As a driver, troops' morale about 200 per cent," he said. "I've seen the buildings, and they really look great. There's nothing like good living conditions to improve a soldier's attitude

Adams is 197th man of month

Sp4 Wilbur V. Adams, Hq Battery, 2nd Bn., 10th Field Arty., 197th Inf. Bde. Adams will receive a $25 savings bond, a plaque and certificate for being named both the Soldier of the Month and the Driver of the Month awards simultaneously for the 197th Inf. Bde.

The 21-year-old Adams who is his battery commander's driver, won both awards separately for the month of January. Prior to working as a driver, Adams was a communications specialist in the battalion's communications section.

Adams will receive a $25 savings bond, a plaque and certificate for being named both the Soldier of the Month and the Driver of the Month.

The driver of the month competition follows a similar pattern as Adams had to win the honor in the 2nd Bn., 10th Field Arty. before he could enter brigade competition. The driver of the month is graded by his vehicle's appearance and state of maintenance.

AUSA plans birthday ball

The Columbus-Phenix City-Fort Benning Chapter of the Association of the United States Army will sponsor the annual George Washington Birthday Ball at Harmony Church Field House on 22 February at 1900 hours. This is a benefit affair with proceeds going to ROTC scholarships for students in this tri-community area.

Your admission ticket will include a free drink, dinner, entertainment (by the Apocalypse Choir), and dancing. All military and civilian personnel are invited. Tickets may be obtained through post units or the Information Office.

ROTC cadets from Across nation tour Benning

Approximately 150 Reserve Officer Training Corps (ROTC) cadets from colleges and universities across the nation are visiting Fort Benning this week. The tour is part of a continuing Infantry-ROTC recruiting program started by the Infantry School in 1971. The program is designed for those junior year cadets who have not decided on a branch of service. It will enable them to have a better understanding of the combat arms with emphasis on the Infantry.

The cadets will be divided into three or four man teams, each with an escort officer. Each team will observe combat training and visit Infantry lieutenants in various units on post. The cadets will also observe a Ranger and Airborne demonstration. The tour is scheduled to last from Thursday afternoon until Saturday afternoon. The cadets will be billeted in Henry Hall.

Escort officers for the tour are captains and majors selected from the Infantry Center and School staff and faculty. When possible cadets will be matched with escort officers who are ROTC graduates.

Still waiting 1/29 awaits new barracks

Since the 1st Battalion 29th Infantry was reorganized some nine months ago, they have been housed in World War II antipating new modern barracks. Finally after a long wait the school support battalion will soon be moving to new barracks in the Harmony Church area.

The S-3 Division of the I-29th has already moved, and they hope to have the entire battalion transferred to the PIONEERS new area as soon as possible. The 'new' area, located about two miles from their present location at Harmony Church, was chosen for its superior geographical location, among other reasons.

Tim Echols of Headquarters and Support Company said, "I've been waiting for this move with a bit of breath. As a driver, it will really make my job a lot easier, being able to walk over and pick up my jeep in the mornings."

The PIONEERS new area is located adjacent to the I-29th motor pool.

"I've already been over to the new area and sneaked a look at the barracks," said Rick DeNike, also of Headquarters Company, "and they are really far out." "It's like a luxury apartment, or something."

Michael Lineham, first sergeant of Company E, (Comp) Field Artillery of the PIONEERS, had an NCO's point of view concerning the new barracks: "I believe the new barracks will boost the troops' morale about 200 per cent," he said. "I've seen the buildings, and they really look great. There's nothing like good living conditions to improve a soldier's attitude

Would you move out of the barracks if you could?

Private First Class
Alfonso Wade
2nd Evac

I probably would if I could. I am not authorized separate rations or quarters so it would be costing me too much to live off post. I have heard that in California they are now being authorized separate rations and quarters. I wish it would be the same here.

Specialist Fourth Class
546 Medical Co.

I now live off post but I did live in the barracks for more than a year. It's just too crowded living in a barracks situation. When you don't have to go to work you still end up waking up early because everyone else is banging around. My life is now more private and it seems like I have a normal job the same as before I joined the Army. Having private rooms would help barracks life.

Specialist Fourth Class
Ray Howard
99th Transportation Co.
145 Aviation Bn

Yes, I think so, it would give me a lot more privacy. Another big problem is G.I. parties! If we did have semi-private rooms and latrines it would make it alot easier to keep them clean. Now every time you clean the sink or square away an area someone that is running late messes it back up. There should be general construction done on most of the barracks on post!

Letters to the Editor

A Pause To Consider

Dear Editor:
A company level basketball game ends and the glaring reality of the scoreboard indicates an unreal score of 80-16. To the losers, there is a disoriented sense of compensation. Sure, they have lost for the umpteenth time but this is the CLOSEST they have ever come to victory.

The final scores vary but an event, such as the above, is repeated time and again throughout league competition at Fort Benning. It occurs enough times to make one question the purpose of the intramural sports program.

The basic idea behind intramural competition is to maximize participation. A noble idea but questionable in merit. To achieve this motive it requires the sacrifice of unit and individual pride, a sense of true competition is destroyed and a display of sportsmanship becomes dubious.

Think about it. What possible benefit can be derived from the lopsided victories that are recorded in unit level athletic events. To the losers goes the indignity of it all. To the winners, goes a victory that is tinged with an immoral sense of sportsmanship. Often in an attempt to hold the score down, the victors simply toy or "play around with" the opposition. Believe me, that's unsportsmanlike conduct.

Even the pure fun of playing or competing is destroyed in games where teams are constantly trounced. Big winners, who meet no true competition, lose their ability to play effectively. Such goings on are harmful to all.

The truth of the matter is that not all company sized units at Fort Benning can muster a competitive team. The reasons why this is so are not worth probing. What is worthy of consideration is a change to the program.

Rather than company level competition, let's return to competition at the major command level.

The idea of maximum participation can be retained by having the major commands form more than one team. An attempt should be made to equalize the talent available throughout the number of teams that are formed.

One can envision a ten or twelve team league playing post wide competition. A league of well balanced teams that would on any given night provide the players and spectators a true contest of skills and thrills.

Imagine the excitement of an undefeated team from the 197th Infantry Brigade meeting an undefeated team from the 36th Engineers. Certainly it would bring out more fans and inspire better play than a game between unbeatable A Company and a forever loser like B Company.
Name withheld upon request.

Dear Editor:
I'd like to give my sincere heartfelt thanks to all of the military slobos of Ft. Benning. I thank you for letting ALL of us pay $10,098 the months of October to go around and pick up your trash that you threw from your cars. This figure of $10,098 is based on man days utilized, to police up after you, by the 36th Engr. Gp. ONLY, and is based on a Private E2's salary. Thank you very much.

Area alerted for rabies watch

Rabies, a fatal disease transmissible to humans, has once again been diagnosed in wildlife in areas adjacent to the Fort Benning Reservation. Sportsmen and military personnel in the field are urged to take care when encountering wild animals which are unusually friendly or show lack of fear of humans. These traits are often exhibited during the course of the disease in animals.

A hunter in the Seale-Crawford, Alabama, area recently was surprised when a fox attacked his pickup truck. The fox sustained slight injury. An attempt to destroy the animal with a club resulted in the fox attacking and tearing the trousers of the individual involved.

The patient was examined in the Emergency Room of Martin Army Hospital and found to be un wounded and requiring

A Budget

Can save your financial life

BY BOB MARTIN

Does your money run out before the bills do? Did you have to borrow to make it through the last week before payday?

By managing your money on a budget, you can make your pay go further. Every corporation has a professional money manager to keep it out of trouble and you can have the same service free.

Creating your own budget can be a simple process.

The idea behind budgeting

Basically, your money has to stretch to do all the things you want it to. The purpose of a budget is to help you plan your spending so you can do all those things.

Setting up a budget
The first step in successful budgeting is honesty. If you fib to yourself about how much you clear or how much you spend in different places, you'll never make a workable budget.

Take a sheet of paper and write down on one side exactly how much you clear each month after taxes and any other deductions. You can spend that much in the month without ruining your budget.

Now, on the other side of the sheet, list the things

Easy payment plan
Finance and Accounting offers you an easy payment plan for regularly recurring bills such as Quartermaster uniform laundrying, insurance, savings, and savings bonds.

By talking with your company clerk, you can make an allotment from your check for these expenses. This way, the big expenses are met before you get your check.

Your bank will make regular deductions for bills such as the car, house and savings. If you do this, the important bills are paid before you deal with petty expenses.

THINGS COULD BE DIFFERENT!

WITH A BUDGET AS A REFEREE

you have to pay for. Don't forget the car payment, food, recreation, clothes, insurance, uniform maintenance, gas, and savings.

If you live off post, remember lights, water and the rent or house payment.

The next step is the only hard part about budgeting. Beside each expense, put how many dollars must go there. Add up how much you think you need to spend.

If what you "must" spend is more than you make, start again.

How to cut back

Reducing the amount you spend is the key to making ends meet. Things like car payments must be made so you can't cut there. Nor should you try to eliminate car insurance and other insurance you may carry.

Don't cut back on savings. That money is handy for surprise expenses like new tires or PCS moves. So, the extra money must be cut from the other items. Gas bills can be reduced by driving slower, and by other energy savings suggestions already tested. Eating out runs up your food bill considerably. Try the mess hall one more time.

If your recreation bill is a big one, try using the on-post recreation available. There are movies, craft shops, libraries, and gyms.

Look at each expense carefully and put off things that can wait.

ARE YOUR BILLS KILLING YOU???

In annual training test

Rifle company proves alertness

"Move out! Dig-in! Let's go! Watch your flanks!" These were the key phrases used by the commander and leaders of Co. B, 3rd Bn., 7th Inf. (Cottonbalers), 197th Inf. Bde, during the unit's Annual Training Test (ATT) conducted last week.

The ATT commenced at 5:30 a.m., daylight savings time, which to one soldier, "seemed to be as dark as midnight," with an alert issued to Captain Paul Tiberi, the company commander, to assemble his unit.

From that point on through the next two days it was "Move Out!" Company B was the first straight leg rifle company to undergo ATT's now being conducted by the 197th Brigade. The mechanized companies of the 1st Bn (Mech), 58th Inf. were tested in November and December along with the artillery batteries of the 2nd Bn., 10th Field Arty. and the tank companies of the 2nd Bn., 69th Armor.

Sergeant Jimmie Reed, a squad leader in the 3rd Plt. and Sergeant Jimmie Collier, a team leader in the squad, were kept busy.

"The ATT has kept us going," stated Reed. "My squad is really shaping-up. We are much better trained today than we were just a month ago."

First Lieutenant David Wood, the unit's executive officer, agrees. "Seventeen months ago when I became executive officer it would take us almost two days to pack up and move to the field. But now after extensive training, I am convinced we could move to the field with as little as four hours notice."

Within the next hour Lt. Wood's backed up his statement as the company moved from its defensive position to conduct an airborne assault, another first for the 197th, in helicopters provided by the 121st Aviation Co.

"I'm learning a lot in this exercise," stated Private John Earp, a 106 recoilless rifle runner of Combat Support Co., 3rd Bn., 7th Inf. "This is one of the few times we have been attached to a rifle company to provide anti-tank support." He went on to say, "Now we can see how important our weapon is to a rifle company. This is much better than sitting in the bleachers and just hearing an instructor tell us how important we are to a rifle company."

WHO WHAT WHERE

By Jackie Robke
NCOWC

The Black Angus Restaurant on Victory Drive was the scene of the NCOWC Jan. buffet luncheon. The menu consisted of many southern delights. Mrs. Paul Anderson, chairman of the OWC Environmental Workshop spoke on ecology, convincing the ladies that everyone had to get involved to make it a success.

Hostesses were Mrs. Jesse Davis and Mrs. John Bittorie. Mrs. Wallace Colson is the program chairman for the month of Jan.

LEADERSHIP DEPARTMENT WIVES

The Command and Leadership Committee Wives held a brunch Jan. 15, for all the wives of the Leadership Department at the home of Mrs. Nathan C. Vail on Miller Loop.

Mrs. James Morris gave a demonstration on making terrariums, and passed around some informative articles on the different types which can be made.

One of the beautiful terrariums was given as a door prize to Mrs. Meredith R. Standley.

TACTICS GROUP, BBOD

The Tactics Group, BBOD Wives met for coffee Jan. 16 at the home of Mrs. Mhomas H. Griffin on Perkins St.

A warm welcome was extended to Mrs. Rolo Brett, the wife of the Australian Exchange Instructor.

Mrs. Joseph Franklin conducted a business meeting during which forthcoming events were discussed. Hostesses for the coffee were the ladies of Defense Committee. 1st BN. 29th INF.

The Pioneer Wives Club monthly coffee was held Jan. 9 at Co. C mess hall and was hosted by Mrs. Doris Musgrove and Mrs. Janic Mondoza.

MEDDAC OFFICERS WIVES CLUB

The Jan. luncheon of the Meddac Officers Wives Club was held in the Benning Room of the Ft. Benning Officers Club. A Mexican sangria punch was served with a Mexican menu luncheon.

Mr. William Bennett from the Georgia Motor Club and manager of the World-Wide Travel Agency of Columbus, Ga. was the guest speaker. He showed a film on travel in Mexico and gave a brief talk on interesting places he had visited during his tour of Mexico. He, also, presented brochures on different Mexican tours.

Representing the Chamber of Commerce and presenting the trophies to the winning teams and individual were Mr. Bill Heard, president of the chamber and Mr. J. W. Woodruff, chairman of the chamber's military affairs committee. Also representing the chamber was Colonel (ret.) Robert P. Hatcher, Jr., Director of Public Affairs.

The Kendrick High school drill team, last year's winner, took second place with 666 points, followed by Baker in third place with 663 points. Each team was awarded a trophy. A "first" for this school district's JROTC was the Carver High's entry of a mixed drill team featuring both male and female cadets.

Other teams and their scores were: Spencer High

Barracks

You choose a home or a place to sleep

With the advent of VOLAR, a project was initiated at Ft. Benning, in April 1971, to improve housing for the men who lived in the barracks.

Many of the troop barracks were to be converted into living quarters in order to provide more privacy for the soldier.

In order to accomplish this objective, D.A. approved a major construction project. The project would turn the old type barracks, with large bays, into barracks with two-man rooms.

What was the result of this costly construction? Is it comfortable and does it offer privacy?

Average quarters have two man rooms

The average living quarters consisted of two rooms and a bath, which was shared by the person next door. The way the rooms are decorated depends on the individuals imagination.

PFC Fletcher Dozier, of HHC, 36th Engineer Group, says "The rooms are old, but if a guy wants to spend a little time decorating the place up, he can make it look nice. Here at Sand Hill, we have just about everything a soldier could want—a library, swimming pool, theater, a gym, and several other types of recreation."

"I don't think the barracks are as nice as they could be, but this is definitely a sound improvement from the large bay type barracks where there was no privacy at all," says PFC Dozier.

"There is one problem we seem to have," admits PFC Roosevelt Merriweather, "that never came up much in the old style barracks and that is theft."

'Barracks life is not the best nor worst'

"Barracks life is not the best nor the worst living. However, if I had the opportunity, I would prefer living off post to avoid inspections and other barracks hassles.

"Although barracks living has its advantages as well as disadvantages, I prefer living in my own house where I can have peace and privacy."

'Privacy is important part of volunteer Army'

"I believe in doing my part to conserve energy," says PFC Roy Hathcox, of the 36th Engineer Group, "but this change to a 2-man room so some barracks can be closed destroys one of the most important concepts of the Volunteer Army. Privacy is very important to me when I'm off duty, because I enjoy the freedom of being able to do almost anything I want to do.

'Roommate, if careless, could cost you money'

"If you get stuck with a guy that doesn't protect his valuables and leaves the door unlocked, then it could cost you a great deal if someone decides to take advantage of the opportunity to steal your television."

These are the opinions of only three men, but most of the soldiers who were interviewed were in agreement.

'Rooms are old, but can look nice'

They realize that some of the barracks here at Ft. Benning are old and could use some minor repairs, but they are comfortable and they supply a soldier with more privacy than compared with the barracks of yesteryear. How comfortable are they? That is entirely up to the individual soldier—it could be a home away from home, or just simply a place to sleep every night. They are however, a vast improvement over the past.

Stop a thief, lock your room

By CARL DOYL

What happened to your tape player Pvt. No-Dough? Did you secure it in your locker when you left for work? Why did you leave your door unlocked? These are some of the questions that the Military Police might ask during the investigation of a theft that has occurred in the barracks.

According to Lieutenant Colonel Robert G. Clarke, Fort Benning Provost Marshal operations officer, more than half of the larcenies at Fort Benning happen because someone became careless and failed to secure personal property.

Lt. Col. Clarke stated, "The biggest factors, in barracks larcenies, are the lack of security consciousness on the part of the individual and the availability of the item."

The most common articles taken by theft are small items having a high dollar value. Cameras, rings, watches, radios, tape players, and stereo equipment.

Individuals should make a record of all valuables by serial number and model. This record should be given to the unit first sergeant for safe keeping. If the item does not have a serial number, etch one in. That way you can identify your property if it is ever stolen. This type of information will also aid the Military Police in locating the item that has been stolen.

Lt. Col. Clarke stated, "If we have this type of information we stand a better chance of recovering an item that has been stolen."

Some units on Fort Benning still have the open bay type living area. Most barracks larcenies reported to the Provost Marshal's office, occur in open bay type living areas where there is a high turnover of personnel.

Valuables should never be left unattended or unsecured, even for a short period of time. Lt. Clark stated, "If we could just teach the individuals to properly secure personal property when they leave and keep a serial number record of all valuables, that would go a long way in reducing the number of larcenies in the barrack areas."

Units on Fort Benning have established policies and procedures for security of valuables in the barracks. These policies and procedures should be followed by all personnel living in the barracks. Even if personnel are asleep in their rooms, the door should be locked from the inside and valuables stored in a wall locker.

If a larceny does occur, report it as soon as possible to your unit commander. Don't try to locate the item that was stolen yourself. The longer you wait to report a theft, the less chance you have of recovering the stolen item.

Women's quarters :

A place to be, a place to call home

With creativity and group effort, many women at Fort Benning have made their rooms, in Buildings 243 and 9205, a home. After walking through, one can see that many girls have made special efforts in decorating in both buildings.

Having a private room is the highlight of Building 243. With some work in decorating, patience and understanding, many have learned to refer to the barracks as home. After all, it's where they hang their hats.

Building 243, the main Women's Company, accommodates some 70 girls. There are 60 single rooms, six double rooms, a room for four and a room for three. On one side of the building the individual rooms are 9X18 feet, and on the other side they are 8X12 feet.

'Outside is nice, but inside is poor'

Private Katherine M. King, of Bernheim Dental Clinic, says the conditions are the worst she's ever seen. "I can open my window, turn on my radiator, open my chest of drawers and my wall locker, turn on my light and my TV, and open my door — all without getting off of my bed! And I'm 5'10!"

"The modern volunteer Army can't expect people to live in substandard conditions when they've come from better," says Private Sharom L. Cusic, of the Judge Advocate General's office. "The outside of the building is nice, and the outer structure is pretty, but the building maintenance is poor."

"The Army recruiting people print beautiful pictures of women's quarters and the girls never see such barracks. I don't blame them for disliking the company," said Sergeant First Class Virginia Baker, the company first sergeant.

Specialist 5 Barbara J. Zwecker, Military Personnel Accounting System, says a girl can make any kind of atmosphere she wants. "It's like renting a room, but at no cost," she said. "But the difference is that here you can't have male visitors."

'First impression is devastating'

With the increase of women in the Army, Sp5 Zwecker continued, "the Army should provide better living conditions for these women. The first impression of this place can be devastating."

"I hated it at the company," said one of the girls, "so that's why I moved off post. I shouldn't have to ring a doorbell when I come in late, and I shouldn't have to answer to the CQ. Sometimes the CQ treats you like she's your mother."

"I like the barracks because there's always somebody around to talk to when you need to talk," says Private Suzanne E. Saur, of the Medium Truck Motor Pool. "But then again, some people don't know when to leave you alone. If you want to sleep late you don't want people running up and down the hall. And I don't like to be told when I can shower because somebody is afraid I'll mess up a detail, especially when it's mine to begin with."

"When I get off of work," says Private First Class JoeAnn Mixon, of Military Personnel Accounting System, "it's a place to be, not a place I'd call home. It's just not a nice place for a guy to come and pick up his date. They aren't allowed in the CQ area, so they just have to stand out in the cold. Also, we have no mess hall nearby. If a girl doesn't have her own transportation, she's really got a problem."

"Why do students, who will be here for a few months, have nicer quarters than we do?" one girl asked. "Our barracks are adequate for someone on a student status, but why should we have to live in them for about three years?"

Sergeant Sylvia Campos, of the administrative section of the U.S. Army Infantry Center confinement facility, has lived in the company for two years. "When I first got here the basement was open because there were so many girls. We had about 6X8 feet cubicles. After I got an individual room I was happy and couldn't ask for anything else. There's nothing like having your own room."

'Compared to 243, medic area is beautiful'

The female medics, living in Bldg. 9205, are very pleased with the apartments they live in. The building accommodates more than 50 girls. Each apartment contains a living room, kitchen, bathroom, closets and air-conditioning. But, because of the expansion, there are four girls in many of the two-girl apartments.

"Compared to Bldg. 243, it's beautiful here," says Specialist 4 Sheila J. Small, 2d Evacuation Hospital. "We try to make it comfortable and to look like home. Who needs maid service when you can clean up after yourself?"

Private Suzanne L. Muse, of the emergency room at Martin Army Hospital, says that having an apartment is the greatest thing about being a medic. "It's so much better than Bldg. 243. I have to have CQ duty there because it's so depressing. I can't see why anyone would want to clean and fix up a place that's so bad to begin with. We have a lot more freedom here and most of the girls really love it."

34th saves energy; men love it

The energy crisis has its good side as well as its bad side. The men of the 34th Medical Battalion, for instance, have to keep more of their lights turned off.

On the other hand, they only have to buff floors once a week now.

The 34th Medical Battalion's conservation program began in November. Lights were dimmed and unnecessary bulbs were removed from sockets. Field training was planned for areas as close to the battalion as possible, and supply and administrative errands were combined whenever practical. Energy-wasting operations were eliminated or reduced. Perhaps the most popular measure taken was the directive that no floors would be buffed more than once a week. These efforts have resulted in a 45 per cent decrease in the use of MOGAS (motor vehicle fuel) from October, and a 20 per cent decrease in the amount of diesel fuel consumed. In administrative areas, reduced lighting has brought about a 15 per cent savings on lights and a savings of 10 per cent on overall electricity use has been achieved in troop quarters.

Recruiting goal surpassed again

Secretary of the Army Howard H. (Bo) Callaway announced recently that the Army has surpassed its recruiting goal for the second month in a row. He commended Army recruiters for their "diligence and professionalism in the performance of their difficult task."

A total of 13,104 men and women were enlisted in December, 1973. This amounts to 102 per cent of the Army's goal, which was 12,800 new recruits. In November, 15,657 recruits joined the Army, surpassing the goal of 15,000. This was 104.4 per cent of the Army's objective.

Captain John Carney,

Chief of the Personnel Procurement Management Branch of AG, said Fort Benning has not only met, but exceeded its goals for both November and December. "We recruited 500 men and women in November, and 507 in December. We are well-pleased with our efforts, and consider our program an unqualified success."

"Our goal is to support the U.S. Army Recruiting Command," he added. "This is our philosophy, and our recruiting counselors work with this in mind."

Eight scouts to receive Eagle Awards

Eight scouts from three Fort Benning troops have earned the Scout's highest scouting award, the coveted Eagle Award.

The awards will be presented during Eagle Courts of Honor to be held during the coming week.

The honored scouts from Troop 120 are John C. Sandling, son of Mr. and Mrs. Green Sandling and Rodney J. Barham, the son of Major (retired) and Mrs. H. F. Barham. The awards will be presented at 7 p.m. Friday, Jan. 25, at St. Mary's School in Columbus.

Jerry Paul Goodenough from Troop 237 will receive his Eagle Award at 7:30 p.m. on Monday, Jan.

28 at the Main Post Chapel annex. Jerry is the son of Major and Mrs. Jerry Goodenough.

RETIRED ENLISTED COUNCIL SEMINAR
The Fort Benning Retired Enlisted Council will hold a seminar on Friday, Jan. 25, at 7 p.m., at the Sand Hill NCO Club. All retirees, wives, widows, and active duty members of the council are cordially invited to attend.

Specialists from Martin Army Hospital, Champus, Survivors Benefits, Social Security, The Veterans Administration, and other activities will be there to speak and answer questions about various phases of retired life.

BICYCLE REFLECTORS AND LIGHTS
With the change to daylight saving time, many school aged children will be riding bicycles to school during the hours of darkness. Parents are reminded of the requirement for equipping all bicycles with adequate rear and side reflectors. Bicycles must also be equipped with a light on the front. Remember, children should be seen and not hurt.

FEDERAL INCOME TAX
Unit tax officers and other interested persons are reminded that federal income tax returns and instructions are available at the USAIC Legal Assistance Office located in room 7, bldg 5, Military personnel and their dependents, requiring assistance in preparation of basic income tax returns, should see their unit tax officer. Deadline for filing Federal Tax Returns is Apr. 15, 1974.

USE OF RIOT CONTROL AGENT ON NOLAN RANGE
Riot Control Agent, CS, is being used on Nolan Range in connection with the Service Test of the XM47E3 grenade. Agent CS is persistent, remaining in area for long periods of time. Personnel should refrain from entering this area unless absolutely necessary. If entry is necessary, personnel must be equipped with a protective mask and must exercise caution in and around area. Inquiries may be directed to Major M.D. Haynes at 545-7322.

ARMY EMERGENCY RELIEF
There's a new program for the children of active duty, retired, and deceased Army personnel. The program is run by the Army Emergency Relief (AER). To be eligible for the loans, parents and applicants must show they are ineligible for assistance from other lending institutions. The AER loans will be guaranteed up to $1500 per academic year, at seven per cent interest. However, the loan can not be used for graduate work. For more information about this loan program, contact the AER office at 545-4043.

PROJECT TRANSITION
A Bricklaying class is being offered by Project Transition to all military personnel who are within six months of their ETS or retirement date. Class will begin Feb 4, and end Mar 15, 1974. Personnel interested in attending this course should contact the Project Transition Office at 545-2178 or come by Bldg 35, room 241, Main Post.

"I love that big diesel engine."

SP/4 Larry Pittman digs diesels. So much in fact, that he turned down a job some guys would have jumped at.

"The other job involved a lot of protocol. And that just isn't my bag. "Out on my wrecker, I'm more my own boss. It's my job to make it go. And keep it going.

"I like the guys I work with, too. Everybody knows what they're doing. And they like what they do.

"I also like the benefits that come with the job. But mainly it's the diesel. I'm staying in to stay with it."

Pioneers 64-32

Eddie McClendon (25 left) of Headquarters and Support Co. 1-29 Inf, Pioneers, TSB, pauses momentarily during action with the 2nd Stu. Bn., TSB. The Pioneers paused in their winning ways as they dropped the contests 64-32.

Lupe Diaz (44) leaps high against a player from the 2nd Stu. Bn, TSB. Diaz, of HMC, 1-29th, scored a game-high 22 points, but the Pioneers were still defeated 64-32 by the 2nd Bn.

Winners in the Fort Benning Rod and Gun Club Big Deer Contest will receive awards at 7 p.m. tonight in the clubhouse at Victory Lodge. Ridley Bell, host of the WRBL-TV Sportsman's Lodge Show will make the presentations. Winners are Daniel Sharp and David Moeller. Sharp registered the largest deer taken on the reservation. His deer weighed in at an even 150 pounds on the club scales. Moeller has the deer with the most antler points. His 11-pointer came from the D Area. These two hunters will each receive a Beretta automatic shotgun. Approximately 150 hunters registered deer in the contest. Each of these hunters will have a chance to win a third Beretta. The winner of this gun will be determined at the presentation. All winners must be present to claim awards.

Kountry Music

Bill Milliken and his Kountry Hi-Lites will provide Western and Country Music for members immediately after the presentation. Milliken and the seven piece band featuring three vocalists have also been booked for Saturday and Sunday evening. They will begin playing at 7 p.m. Saturday and 4 p.m. on Sunday.

White Bass are Running

The white bass are funning in the Chattahoochee River. According to reports they are running in large numbers.

Each year about this time the white bass make an annual migration up the river to spawn. During this period they seem to have eating on their minds too. They will strike at almost anything. Small leadheaded hairjigs or bucktails like the Doll-fly, small silver or flashing spoons like the little cleo and smaller plugs such as the thinfir or rapala seem to get plenty of fish. Live bait fishermen will do well with small minnows.

Generally you are just as likely to catch white bass from the bank as you are from a boat. This fish is an ego builder. Fishermen who normally go home empty handed usually catch white bass.

Fishing is best behind some obstacle that slows the current. The bass seem to prefer these locations as resting places. They also seem to be on the alert for any type of food that works its way into the still waters. Find one of these spots. Make your cast beyond the calm water, give it a little time to sink then slowly work it into the calmer water. You will probably get a strike as soon as the lure leaves the current but don't give up the cast if you don't. White bass may strike a lure right at the bank.

Don't plan to get by with two or three lures. There are going to be rocks, logs, tree branches and other underwater snags where you find the white bass.

WHITE BASS

Co. A holds streak in spectator delight

The big game often proves to be dull. Super Bowl VIII was a recent example. However, Monday night's clash between A Company, Headquarters Command and The Infantry Board proved to be a spectator's delight as A Co. pulled out a pulsating 54-52 victory in overtime. The game started slowly as The Infantry Board jumped out to an early five point lead. With five minutes remaining in the first half, A Co. managed to tie the score and then went on a scoring binge to open a five point lead of their own. Halftime found the score 23-18 with A Co. on top.

The second half opened with a rally by The Infantry Board and with 12 minutes remaining the score was again tied at 33 all. Two quick baskets by Billingslea of A Co. opened a four point lead but again The Infantry Board fought back to tie the score at 39. At the three minute mark, A Co. had again opened a three point lead and seemed to be in command as The Infantry Board missed crucial freethrows through the next few minutes. With 36 seconds left, Louis Dunsen of A Co. was guilty of a personal foul which sent Tim Parker to the line for one of one situation. Dunsen failed to raise his hand to signify the foul and a technical foul was called. Parker of the Infantry Board calmly went to the line and made all three freethrows to tie the score at 44 all. With but one second showing on the clock and the score still tied, Pat Morgan of the Infantry Board was fouled. Morgan failed on the freethrow attempt and the clock ran out sending the game into overtime.

In overtime, the two teams traded baskets and it was left to the referee's whistle to decide the game. Ricky Harris and Gerald Alexander of A Co. converted a free throw apiece which proved to be the margin of victory as A Co. held on for a 54-52 victory.

John Crosby, "Big Bill" Billingslea and Larry Parker tallied 14 points apiece to lead A Company in scoring. Pat Morgan with 14, Sumner with 12 and Tim Parker with 10 led The Infantry Board scorers.

Want exercise? go bowling

In your SPARE time there is a way to STRIKE it rich. Instead of winning a turkey try winning with a TURKEY. You've guessed it! We're talking about one of America's favorite family sports, bowling.

Main Post Bowling Center (Building 2785) is located at the corner of Sightseeing Road and Eckel Street, near Infantry Hall. It provides 24 lanes of action, a lounge and snack bar. A complete line of bowling equipment is available.

A weekly feature is all-night bowling. Every Friday and Saturday night beginning at 11:30 p.m. until 4 a.m. the next morning you can bowl as many lines as you want to for a nominal fee of $2.50. Persons interested in open bowling league completion or instructional periods should stop by the Bowling Center or inquire by calling, 545-4272.

The Kelly Hill Bowling Center, Building 9049, rolls out the red carpet that leads to 12 bowling lanes for your pleasure. All services featured at the Main Post Bowling Center are also available at the Kelly Hill Bowling Center.

LARRY JOHNSON, Company A, 43rd Engineer Battalion drives in for two more points in a game with the 598th Light Maintenance Company. Johnson was high scorer for the game with 12 points and led the team to a 36-31 upset victory over the 598th.

Co. A tops 598th in east-west clash

The highlight of the weeks basketball action in the 56th Engineer Group featured a meeting between two contenders from both leagues. The 598th Light Maintenance Company with a 9-2 record and leading the western league met Co. A, 43rd Engineer Battalion from the eastern league with a 6-2 record.

The first half action featured the defense of both teams. Company A grabbed the lead and held on at halftime, 19-12.

The favored 598th fell behind by as much as 10 points as second half action got under way. Then began an amazing comeback by the 598th. With less than two minutes in the game, the 598th tied the game at 31 all. However, Company A refused to lose the big one, and shut off the 598th for the remainder of the game. Final score read, 36-31.

The win for Company A tightened up the league standings in both the eastern and western leagues.

High scorer in the game was Larry Johnson of Company A with 12 points while D. Miller led the 598th with 10 points. Miller connected on all 5 of his field goal attempts.

DePuy discusses leadership

This week General William E. DePuy, commander of the United States Army Training and Doctrine Command, and his deputy commander Lieutenant General Orwin C. Talbot, have been conducting a combat arms conference with the com-mandants and assistant commandants of the combat arms schools at Fort Bliss, Fort Sill, Fort Knox, and Fort Benning. Traveling to each combat arms school, the conferees have discussed new approaches and concepts for leadership.

Expectant parent classes begin

The Army Health Nursing Service, in conjunction with the Obstetrics Department, Martin Army Hospital, will begin another of a series of Expectant Parents Courses Feb. 5.

The course consists of four classes, two hours long, held on four consecutive Tuesday nights. Classes are held in the conference room on the second floor of Martin Army Hospital.

Expectant parents should pre-register for these classes by calling the Army Health Nursing Service, 545-5431, Monday through Friday, 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Fort Benning on yesterday and toured the new Fort Benning Mall before beginning the last two days of the conference. They then visited the Department of Army-Wide Training Support and the United States Army Combat Arms Training Board.

Introducing the

beir to greatness

... the new Jensen-Healey from the makers of the hand-built Jensen Interceptor. In appearance, performance and convenience, the epitome of the classic British sports car. Designed by Donald Healey, C.B.E., and powered by an engine specially built by Lotus, Jensen-Healey is everything you expect a fine sports car to be. The power plant is a 4 cylinder 2 litre cast aluminum engine which features twin overhead camshafts and four valves per cylinder for the kind of performance few cars can deliver. This superb engine is the most efficient on the market today—it passed 1973 emission tests with the highest horsepower per cubic inch of any engine so far. And all this with no air pump or recirculation exhaust. The Jensen-Healey — classic good looks with the latest in advanced engineering.

Open bay and coal stove what else

The Doughboy of World War I would have never believed that soldiers could ever enjoy more than an open troop bay heated by a coal-fired stove in winter and cooled by the fate of nature in the summer. This is a far cry from the modern, air-conditioned troop facilities being created on Fort Benning today.

The 36th Engineer Group is the first on post to begin placing units in the new buildings. One of these units, the 598th Light Maintenance Company moved last month. Now the soldiers are finding their new quarters better than they had ever dreamed possible.

Basically the format of the building is the same as before renovation with two man dormitory-style rooms on three floors. The changes, however, are obvious. The paper-thin walls have been replaced by concrete, the ceiling has been lowered and acoustical tile installed, and each room is equipped with an individual thermostat to regulate heat in the winter and air-conditioning in the summer.

His roommate, Specialist Four John Griffin, agrees wholeheartedly. He thinks a lot more people would come in the Army if they knew about the living conditions in today's Army. "I think recruiters should use pictures of the way things are now. A lot of people still think we live in a bay with 25 other people."

Both Sp4 Griffin and Sp4 Springwater feel more secure in the modern barracks. "A man can have a stereo or television without being afraid of being ripped-off."

There are also NCO rooms in the new building which are single rooms with a private bath. Several NCO's are finding this room better than most BEQ's they have lived in. It offers privacy and closeness to the men, both essential to a leader.

The men are also finding that working conditions have improved. Sp4 William R. Clisson has been working in the 598th Orderly Room as a clerk for nine months, he says. "The atmosphere is a lot better in the new building. The lighting is better and it is a lot quieter. I feel like I am working in an office instead of just a room."

"All the clerks especially like the advanced intercom system to all floors. The condense allows more efficient operation of the administrative functions."

Captain Thomas A. Bolt, who commands the 598th states "The rooms offered the private today are better than some rooms assigned to company grade officers four years ago." Today's Army is keeping its promise to improve the life of its most important asset - the soldier.

My 69 year old father came to the U.S. in December. He was admitted for permanent residence and is making his home here. He bought a small house where he lives alone and receives a small pension from abroad. Is there any other financial help available to him? MRS KBT

DEAR MRS KBT
Your father may be eligible for Supplemental Security payments. The Social Security Administration will start to make payments this month to those who are over 65, blind or disabled and have a limited income and resources.

DEAR BAYONET
If a person loses his records during a PCS move what is that individual to do? PVT LUV

DEAR PVT LUV
The individual should report to his assigned unit of course. Once you have reported to your assigned unit, the unit's Personnel Officer can obtain your Enlisted Records Brief to reconstruct your lost military records. Requests may be made by contacting CG MILPERCEN, ATTN: DAPC-PS-E, Alexandria, Va. 22332.

DEAR BAYONET
A friend told me about a new program offered by the Army in music and the theater arts. I would like to pursue a theatrical career after leaving service. Who is sponsoring the Scholarship and what are the criteria for application?

DEAR MR HAL
The Army Music and Theater Scholarships and Awards program is sponsored by the office of the Adjutant General, Department of the Army, and by a number of educational institutions and professional theaters. The program is open to Army personnel who participated in the Army Music and Theater Program and who seek educational opportunities or professional training in the performing arts.

Individuals who have taken part in the Army Music and Theater program and who wish to improve their talents and skills in the music and theater arts should inquire at the local Music and Theater Director of Recreation Services Office for additional information concerning this program.

TSB soldier awarded "Blood Donor of Month"

Private Billie G. Bruton, 42nd Company, TSB, has been named "Blood Donor for the Month of December" by the Columbus-Phenix City-Fort Benning Chapter of the Association of the United States Army.

Bruton was selected from a group of more than 150 persons donating blood at Martin Army Hospital's Blood Donor Center during the month of December. He will receive the $25.00 incentive award provided each month by the local AUSA Chapter.

Unlike many blood donor programs the Army relies entirely on volunteers for its donations. No monetary compensation is offered. Most donors come from units on post; however, retired servicemen, dependents, and civilians are welcome to participate.

The Center is located in Troop Medical Clinic No. 9, Building 2285, on Indianhead Road. The facility is open for donations on Thursdays from 1:30 p.m. to 7 p.m. Another location, Room A911 at Martin Army Hospital, is open every day of the week from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Donors must be in good health, and may not be taking any medications. They must not have donated blood in the past 8 weeks, and may not donate blood if they have returned from Southeast Asia within the past 36 months. Donors with a history of malaria or hepatitis cannot be accepted.

The Blood Donor Center is operated by Martin Army Hospital's Pathology Service. The Center provides for the needs of MAH patients and ships whole blood to the Department of Defense for world-wide usage. During an average month, 110 to 130 units of blood are transfused there.

Time required for donations is usually 45 to 60 minutes. For information, call Martin Army

Energy conservation

Not just a phrase but a way of life for the 36th

Throughout the 36th Engineer Group (CBT), the problem of energy conservation has become a prime consideration.

During recent months a Resource Conservation Plan was established by the Group to enable each unit to curb its resource utilities.

The plan for the Group is based on efficient and economical usage of utilities. There are three basic objectives of the plan; insuring that essential requirements of heat, electricity, and water be provided for those using the utilities; personnel should be made aware of the cost of the services provided; utility usage should be limited to actual needs and essential mission requirements.

The plan will apply to all military and civilian personnel, all units, organizations and activities assigned or attached to the Group.

Among other energy conservation methods used, barracks consolidation has proven to be one of the most prevalent and successful.

"The Energy Conservation Plan devised by the Group is working excellently," remarked SFC Larry Craig, 1Sgt HHC, 36th Engr. Gp. (CBT).

He also stated, "Before the plan came into effect HHC housing consisted of several men to one barracks with each having his own room and bath. Due to the new plan, HHC has consolidated its living quarters into two man rooms with one bath. Doing this enabled the company to close several barracks completely, cutting down considerably on heating, electrical, and water expense.

"Placing the men in two man rooms not only offers sufficient privacy, but also provides for better security of the individuals personal property." Craig remarked.

"I have confidence in the men in my company, I know they will do their best to conserve energy in HHC." He concluded.

Messano named top OCS graduate of 1973

First Lt. Gary D. Messano, 4th Brigade, Ft. Jackson, S.C., will come to Fort Benning to accept the annual Robert P. Patterson Award, February 12.

Lt. Messano, named top Officer Candidate School graduate of the year at Fort Benning, was chosen for his outstanding performance and achievement in OCS class 2-73. He has received the Combat Infantry Badge, the Army Commendation Medal with two oak leaf clusters, the Good Conduct Medal, the National Defense Service Medal, the Vietnam Campaign Medal with two stars and the Vietnam Service Ribbon. Lt. Messano attended Brigham Young University in Provo, Utah.

The award, scheduled to be presented at 11 a.m. February 12 in Marshall Auditorium in Infantry Hall, will be the highlight of the annual visit of Mrs. Robert P. Patterson to the post. The award consists of an incised trophy, a certificate and a monetary award.

Mrs. Patterson is the widow of the late secretary of war and judge of the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in whose honor the award was established in 1952. Except for two years in which the event took place in Washington and one year when it was held in New York, Mrs. Patterson has come to Ft. Benning to present the award and to address the students, faculty of the Infantry School and other officials of the post.

The Patterson Award is made from a $16,000 trust fund established by 120 friends of Secretary Patterson. The honoree is selected each year by the commandant of the Infantry School from among the outstanding Infantry Officer Candidate School graduates.

Secretary Patterson's 21 years of government work included military service that earned for him the Distinguished Service Cross, Silver Star and Purple Heart.

He was an enlisted man on border patrol in 1916 and later served as an officer in France in 1918 and 1919. A graduate of Union College, Schenectady, N.Y., where he received an A.B. degree, and of Harvard University in Cambridge, Mass., where he earned a bachelor of laws degree, Patterson was admitted to the New York Bar in 1915.

He was judge of the U.S. District Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit before his appointment as assistant secretary of war, July 31, 1940. Patterson was named undersecretary of war, Dec. 19, 1940, and on Sept. 19, 1945 succeeded Henry L. Stimson as secretary of war.

In 1920, Secretary Patterson married Margaret T. Winchester. He was a member of the American and New York State Bar Associations, Phi Beta Kappa and Phi Delta Theta Fraternities, and the Harvard and Lawyers Clubs of New York.

Secretary Patterson died in a plane crash at Elizabeth, N.J., in 1952.

Silver Mike Award presented RTV section

The Radio and TV Section of the Fort Benning Information Office has recently received the first Training and Doctrine Command Silver Mike Award in 1974. It was presented to them by their program, "Fort Benning News."

Sergeant Jim Murphy, chief of the section, Specialists 4 Ed Parker and Charles R. Farrell, broadcasters, were recognized for their radio programs' tight format, and a professional sound achieved through tight editing and smooth transitions between segments. "This technique, along with stories that are concise and to the point, serve to make a fast-paced production that holds attention," the announcement read.

The RTV Section has also received nominations for three out of four Kei h L. Ware Annual Awards for excellence in radio and television. These were for a TV spot announcement: "Fourth of July," a radio program: "Fort Benning News," and a radio spot announcement: "Mother's Day Hometown News Release."

Sgt. Murphy has worked in the section for more than a year. He graduated from Raleigh High School in Raleigh, N.C., in 1969, and attended the Defense Information School, Ft. Benjamin Harrison, Ind. from Oct. 1972-Jan. 1973. He hopes to go to college in North Carolina to become a lawyer while he works for a radio station part-time.

Sp4 Parker has also been with the section almost a year. He graduated from Hull High School, Hull, Mass. in 1966. He also graduated from the Career Academy School of Broadcasting in Boston, in 1969. He plans on staying in radio when he separates from the Army.

Sp4 Farrell graduated from Kendrick High School in Columbus, Ga., in 1971. He attended the National School of Radio and Television Broadcasting in Atlanta, Ga. in 1971. He also attended the Defense Information School. With 20 months in the RTV Section, he is considering a career in the Army.

Ft. Benning host Jaycees appreciation dinner

Members of the Columbus Jaycees will be guests of Fort Benning at the annual Jaycee Appreciation dinner to be held in The Student Brigade's "Follow Me" dining room at 6:30 p.m., February 14.

The Jaycees will arrive to the fanfare music of the 283rd Army Band. Mr. Charles Black, Associate Editor of the Columbus Enquirer and well known for his awareness of military and civilian matters will be guest speaker.

Coordinator and master of ceremonies, Captain Howard Hodge, Fort Benning Community Relations Officer, says, "We're hoping to make this an enjoyable and worthwhile evening for the Jaycees. We're also working hard to assure that all units and all ranks are in attendance."

Invitations have been extended to officers and enlisted men of major commands and units assigned to Fort Benning. The military contingent will be headed by Fort Benning commander, Major General Thomas M. Tarpley. Alton Russell, President of the Columbus Jaycees commented, "The Jaycees are proud of its efforts to cement good relations between the Fort Benning community and the citizens of Columbus. Through joint efforts of the Jaycees and the Benning community, such as this event, further understanding and cooperation will exist among all."

Columbus Symphony to present free concert at Ft. Benning

The Columbus Symphony, conducted by Harry Kruger, will present a free concert at Marshall Auditorium in Infantry Hall on Monday, February 11 at 8 p.m.

Selections will include Dvorak's

"Slavonic Dance," Opus 46, No. 1; "Chorale and Fugue" by J.S. Bach; several selections from the musical "Oliver!"; Brahms' "Hungarian Dance No. 1"; "The Entertainer," a ragtime jazz piece by Scott Joplin; and the Finale to Tchaikovsky's "Fourth Symphony."

Soloist for this concert will be Ricky Zimmerman, a student at Hardaway High School and winner of this year's Young Artist Competition. Ricky will perform the First Movement of Beethoven's "Second Piano Concerto."

The concert is sponsored by the Fort Benning Officers Wives Club, and is open to the public.

Private Ava West
2nd Evac Hospital

I walk a lot more! I can walk somewhere, within reason, I do it now. On my pay I can't afford to pay for the gas. Also if it is just a pleasure trip I just forget it.

Private William Robertson
Service Btry 2-10

I sold my car and bought myself a motorcycle. I now get 44 miles per gallon. I don't drive near as fast as I did and when I do, I do at lower speeds. I cut off the lights when they are not being used.

First Sergeant Johnny Portwood 690 Medical Co. Amb.

I have cut my driving speed down to 50 miles per hour and instead of both my wife and I making trips all day we consolidate our trips at night. My daughter also rides the school bus instead of my wife driving her. I have cut the house heating down to 66 degrees.

What do you do to conserve fuel and energy?

Second Lt. Kevin Carter
HQ and HDQ Co. 197th

At our shop we have turned the heating down to 58 degrees and when it gets too hot we turn the heat off. I have also tried to schedule trips to main post so that we are not making two or three trips. We now consolidate our trips. At home I dress warmer, keep the heating down and avoid sightseeing trips.

Specialist Fourth Class Walter Whetzel
A Co. 3-7

I don't drive as fast as I used to. I turn off all the energy and fuel consuming appliances when they are not in use. I think more should be done about all the lights being left on in the barracks and also the people that go out to start their cars and just sit in them.

Private First Class Charles Simon
Combat Support 3-7

I left my car at home so I won't be driving but I do unplug my stereo equipment and lights when I'm not using them.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Sir:

During my time in the service I have served at many duty stations; and I looked forward to my return here, until I arrived.

I have never been on a post where the "services" offered were operated for everyone except the people stationed there.

The only time most soldiers can use the PX is Saturday or Sunday, if he can get his paycheck cashed. If troops are in the field, the PX and bank are closed by the time he returns.

If you want to eat on post, i.e., the Follow Me dining hall or Officers' Club, you need two things — a lot of money and a small appetite. When all else fails you can go to the snack bar where the quantity, quality, price and preparation of food is simply gross.

The matter of living quarters for officers is disgusting. It must be better for the enlisted personnel. I can't call the Officers' Club or any other club for that matter from the phone in my quarters. (The club has an off-post phone number). I've killed roaches in my quarters the size of a half-dollar, in my room and in the bar in Olsen Hall.

We won't have to worry about the bar much longer as I'm sure it will be closed soon and then we can go downtown and help the bars of Columbus and ASAP instead of the post.

The main club really has a lot to offer: we can drink in the "I Bar" until 1900, then go to the cocktail lounge until 2000 until we are asked to leave because of our fatigue uniform. Then where can we go? — By the attitude displayed by most people in the club — we can all go to hell.

Once again we won't have to worry about it much longer as they will close the I Bar, as they have closed every other "enjoyable" place to go on this post.

I realize that many places are closed due to lack of business; maybe if these places were open to serve us, there wouldn't be a lack of business.

The Army will tell you time and time again the benefits and social life that's offered to you and maybe someday the people who are "supposed" to be in charge of facilities will be told the same thing.

I feel sorry for the Army and the soldiers whose first view of social Army life is Fort Benning as it is now.

EDITOR'S NOTE: In response to this letter, it must be noted that the main PX is open on Saturday from 10 a.m. - 6 p.m. and on Sunday from 1 - 5 p.m. The PX will also cash checks. Also, the Infantry Bar will NOT close. To the contrary, it will be relocated to the Supper Club basement. The Infantry Bar will be larger and better ventilated. It will have a horseshoe-shaped bar but with 35 stools and wall-to-wall carpeting. Entertainment will be continued and a separate room will have a color TV. Other matters mentioned, such as quality of food, etc., are matters of empirical judgment. The Bayonet hopes the above information is helpful.

Concerned,

197th moving toward STRAF with new folders

There are important changes taking place in administrative sections as the 197th Infantry Brigade moves toward the combat-ready status of a STRAF (Strategic Army Forces) unit.

One of the major administrative activities now going is the preparing of STRAF folders on each soldier within the brigade.

"This folder will be a consolidation of many important forms and documents," states First Lieutenant Karl H. Johnson, Personnel Actions Chief of the A.G. Office, 197th Inf. Bde. "These folders will enable us to out-process everyone in the least amount of time should the 197th deploy."

The STRAF folders are a checklist used by individuals to indicate actions required to insure that personal affairs are in order, and by unit commanders as a suspense to indicate when the desired action has been completed.

A list of the personnel action forms compiled in the STRAF folders include Change of Address and his needs. He can get Director Record and an assistance in this area from the legal officer." He went on to say, "The will is unquestionably a very important document. It eliminates long, costly court actions and estate settlement claims should a soldier die. I firmly believe this document should be a must for every soldier, married or single."

"Should a soldier decide to execute one or both of these documents, they are to be secured by him and the location of the documents are recorded in the STRAF folder," Johnson said.

"The STRAF folders will be kept in the individual's company orderly rooms," he added. "Then if the 197th does deploy, each soldier will out-process at his own company, with the help of the Bde POR assistance team."

Shopping for wheels?

Avoiding the clinkers is easy

By BOB MARTIN

Buying a used car can be a good idea or you could end up with a bomb. The difference comes in the check-out you give the car before you buy.

Before you even visit the first used car lot, decide what you want. You should know what kind of gas economy, maintenance and performance you expect. Other factors to consider include durability, appearance, the price you can afford, safety, and insurance rates.

Don't be tricked by a sparkling appearance. Cleanness doesn't equal good condition. Many dealers steam-clean the engine and wash and wax the body before putting the car on the lot.

Look beyond the shine for performance and condition.

Checklist on a used car

Engine

Lift the hood. Many indicators of poor maintenance and excessive wear are sleeping in there.

Pull the oil dipstick. The oil will probably be dark but shouldn't be black, gummy, thick or gritty. Oil with these characteristics means poor maintenance by the former owner and high wear.

The air filter is the next checkpoint. It should be fairly clean. After pulling the filter, stick your finger in the carburetor throat. Sand and dust in the throat holes also shows poor maintenance. If this dirt could mean the engine was run without an air cleaner.

Pull a spark plug or two. The tips should be free of deposits and not have any soot or oil. Oil on the plugs means the engine is misfiring in that cylinder.

Don't forget to look at the gaskets, hoses, and radiator. Leaks in the radiator and gaskets are hard to fix. Hose leaks are easier to take care of.

Low levels of coolant end water also indicate poor maintenance.

With the engine turned off, work the shift control and pedals. Listen for squeaks, binds, or any strange sounds. Transmission fluid is also a key to prior maintenance. Is the amount right? Is it clean?

Suspension

The next system to check out is the suspension. Does the steering wheel have a lot of "play"?

With the front end off the ground, test the wheels. If they wobble in any direction, a steering overhaul or new wheel bearings will be needed.

While you are under the car, look at the grease fittings and rubber expansion points around the steering joints. Be sure they have grease.

Do the shock absorbers do their job? Push down hard on the fender or bumper. The car should return to its original position without bounce. More than one or two bounces are proof of worn shock absorbers. Defective shocks cause poor handling and are unsafe.

Exhaust

Hit the ground again and again and check out the exhaust system. Are all the clamps and supports tight? This is important because a leaky exhaust lets fumes enter the car. This is a real killer.

Tires

Tires are a good indication of how the car was treated generally. Tread is the key to tires. Worn rear tires mean the previous owner did a lot of fast starts. This puts heavy wear on the drive train.

Is the tread even on the front tires? This could mean the pressure has been wrong or the front end may need overhaul. Are the tire sides scarred? This shows somebody did some fast cornering.

Brakes

Are the brakes spongy or do they go to the floor? This points to air in the lines or worn-out brakes. Open the master cylinder reservoir. If the level is low, there might be a leak in the system.

Body

A hard look at the body can tell a lot about previous care. In fact, you can even spot wrecks.

Look at the underside of the hood, inside all doors, and inside the fenders. If the paint color is different, the colored part may be a replacement. This would indicate the car has been hit.

Another paint clue is ripples. There might be Bondo under that ripple.

Take a sight along a sharp edge of the hood, rear deck lid, and the side of the body. A major part is difficult to replace exactly straight after an accident.

Do the doors close easily? If not, the frame may be bent.

Be wary of a car that has been hit. A badly hit car will rarely handle like it once did.

Test Drive

Last but not least in your inspection is the test drive. Does it start properly? No use hitchhiking to work because your new wheels won't start.

Listen to the engine idle. There shouldn't be any clicks, pops, or grinding noises. Strange noises can indicate trouble.

Also put your ear near the exhaust system. You should be able to hear the engine if it misses.

The clutch should engage smoothly without jerking or clattering. The clatter or jerk may indicate a worn clutch.

When you shift, the transmission should change gears easily, without grinding. An automatic should change positively quickly. Grinding or slipping are bad news.

Be sure headlights, brake lights, turn signals, and windshield wipers are in working condition.

Make sure the brakes stop the car. Break down with car going straight and your hands off the wheel. The car should not swerve to the right or left. If the brakes pull to one side, they need adjusting.

Last, make several hard stops. The brakes should fade very little. Your life depends on them holding.

197th finds another way to save energy

In an effort to conserve fuel and man-hours as well, the 197th Infantry Brigade recently established a new system for delivering mail to the soldiers of the "Forever Forward" brigade.

Now, instead of nine separate units sending a mail clerk and a vehicle to main post to pick up mail, one truck picks up the mail for the entire brigade. A study indicates that this new system saves more than 304 vehicle-miles each day in addition to a considerable amount of man-hours for each mail clerk that previously had to make the mail run.

43rd enters steel work

Construction presently being performed at Camp Darby Ranger Camp began during a three day battalion field training exercise in late November by D Co. 43rd Engr. Bn. and should be completed this month.

Construction included the relocation of building 202 from McKenna Helipoint to Camp Darby, rebuilding the roof on the only vehicle they had available. Since the post office sorts the mail, all we really do now is pick up the mail bags and packages and deliver them to battalion and separate company mailrooms."

The twice daily mail run initiates in the 197th Inf. Bde. AG section each morning and travels to the post office to pick up all mail for the brigade. The five-man 197th postal section then delivers the mail directly to unit mailrooms, dropping off the last bag of mail at 11 a.m.

"We make a second mail run in the afternoon," stated Lt. Ingrisano. "So each unit receives their mail twice each day, just as before."

"There is no doubt about it,"

Cagle. "This new system gives me a lot more time to check forwarding addresses and conduct all the paper work that goes along with being a mail clerk."

SSG Jerold Nowles, the NCOIC of the new mail operation has aided Lt. Ingrisano in the scheduling of the mail runs.

"I think the best thing about the new mail system is the time it saves these individual unit mail clerks," SSG Knowles commented. "Many of them put in long hours to insure each man in their unit receives his mail regularly and we can help to cut those hours down somewhat."

Sgt. Bert Cagle (right), the mail clerk of 43rd Engr. Bn., receives his unit's mail from Sgt. Eddie Walls of the postal section without ever having to leave the company area. (Photo by Bob Thomas)

WHO WHAT WHERE

By Jackie Robke 1st BATTALION 29th INFANTRY

NCO Pioneer Wives' Club will hold their monthly coffee Wed. Feb. 6 at 9:30 a.m. They will meet at a new location, Victory Lanes Bowling Alley, on Fort Benning Road.

There will be a guest speaker with a slide presentation on ecology.

For those who wish to stay and bowl after the meeting, don't forget to bring your ball and shoes.

All wives of 1st-29th NCOs are cordially invited to attend.

MEDDAC OWC

The February luncheon meeting of the Meddac OWC will be held at the Fort Benning Officers' Club on Fri. Feb. 8 at 12 a.m. The program will be presented by the League of Women Voters and guest speakers will be Agnes Braganza and Martha Mullinax.

All women interested in the organization's work are invited to join the Meddac wives for the luncheon.

For reservations call Karen West at 687-5748. All Meddac members are to call their regular reservations chairman before the deadline, Feb. 5.

SONS AND DAUGHTERS PARTY

The Annual Army Sons and Daughters' Party will be a cocktail-dinner-dance on Feb. 9 at the Main Officers' Club, Fountain Room. There will be a cash bar beginning at 8:30 p.m. followed by a buffet dinner at 7:30 p.m.

DUSA invites all sons and daughters of active duty or retired commissioned officers in any of our Armed Forces to attend this gala event. For more information please contact Mrs. Robert H. Taylor Jr., 687-8492 or Mrs. Arthur A. Rice, 687-2459.

OWC LUNCHEON

A fashion show by Kivaly's will highlight the Officers' Wives Club luncheon to be held at Fort Benning, Feb. 13. The sherry hour will begin at 1:30 a.m. in the main ballroom of the Officers' Club. Guests will move to the Supper Club at 12:30 p.m. for lunch, followed by the fashion show.

The cost of the luncheon will be $2.50 and reservations must be made by Feb. 8, by calling 689-6851, 689-7058, 687-8497, or contacting your unit reservations chairman.

The wives of the Weapons Dept. and Company Operations will be hostesses.

STAFF ACTIONS AND COMMUNICATIVE ARTS COMMITTEE

The Staff Actions and Communicative Arts Committee hosted the December Staff Group Hall-and-Farewell party. The group bid farewell to Major John M. Herold and his wife Ruth Ann. Major Herold, of the Operations and Training Techniques Committee had been with the Infantry School since April 1971, and his services will be missed.

The theme of the party was "The Godfather", and the group was presided over by Lt. Col. Robert B. Simpson and Capt. Bob LaRocque. The Main Club Fountain Room assumed the aspect of a '20's speakeasy. Life-size figures of Mafia types ringed the walls and guests dined on chicken cacciatore, veal parmesan and spaghetti, washed down with glasses of red wine from a bubbling fountain.

Col Sanders A. Cortner, Staff Group Chief, presided over the festivities and made the farewell remarks to Maj. Herold.

AIRBORNE WIVES

Jan. 18 found the Airborne Wives at the home of Mrs. Kenneth R. Johnston for a wine-and-cheese-tasting party. The ladies sampled three types of wine, along with several cheeses, crackers and fruits. It was a very interesting and unusual way to spend an afternoon together.

Mrs. Robert B. Tully, wife of the department director, conducted a short business meeting, at which time Mrs. Paul Scheffel was welcomed to the group and presented with a small green plant.

February's hostess will be Mrs. Jerry C. Goodenough.

MONTHLY COFFEES DIO

The ladies of the Directorate of Industrial Operations entertained for their monthly coffee in the Windsor Park home of Mrs. Richard L. Pope.

Mrs. Henry Hutcheson conducted a brief business meeting. Plans are being made to tour the Tom Huston Peanut Co. in February.

5th BATTALION, TSB

A coffee for 5th Battalion ladies was held on Jan. 15 in the home of Mrs. Frank Willoughby of Phenix City, Alabama. Mrs. William Duncan, the new battalion commander's wife, welcomed Mrs. Steven Dial and Mrs. Rodney Markham. Mrs. Robert Beard and Mrs. James Marr were bid farewell. Mrs. Duncan outlined the forthcoming events of the battalion.

The ladies of Combat Developments held their coffee Jan. 16 at the quarters of Col. and Mrs. Jay A. Hatch.

The ladies were joined by several guests: Mrs. Thomas Tarpley, Mrs. William Richardson, Mrs. John McCleary (mother of Col. John McCleary), Mrs. Paul Schutz, Mrs. Michael Doyle, and Mrs. Jean Salvan (wives of the German, British and French liaison officers, respectively.)

Newcomers welcomed were Mrs. Richard Florey, Mrs. Richard St. John, Mrs. Edward Kelley and Mrs. Robert O'Neill.

Mrs. Bruce Davis was recognized as Combats Developments' nominee for Military Wife of the Year.

Mrs. Vincent Oddi will host the February coffee.

OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY, USAIS

The officers wives of the Office of the Secretary held a coffee on Jan. 17 in the home of Mrs. Bruce Terrell on Arrowhead Rd. Mrs. Terrell and Mrs. Thomas Vaden were hostesses. The ladies were treated to a desert table covered with apple cake, brownies, sugar cookies and a speciality of Mrs. Vaden, party strawberries.

The next coffee will be Feb. 14 at the home of Mrs. Dennis Flint.

Officers' Club.
New arrivals were Mrs. Thomas Rozman and Mrs. Stephen Nichola. They were warmly welcomed by the ladies, as were Mrs. Apolonia Garcia and Mrs. Raymond Miley who were attending their first coffee since becoming "Cottonbalers"

During a short business meeting, the ladies discussed visiting Hamilton on the Square during February and volunteered to visit the Muscogee Manor Nursing Home on Feb. 6. The group was reminded of the upcoming Officers' Call with wives on Feb. 8.

The highlight of the coffee was an informative slide presentation on the workings of the OWC, presented by Mrs. Jimmie Graham and Mrs. William Macpherson.

Hostesses for the affair were Mrs. Jimmy Arnold and Mrs. Thomas Curtain Jr.

The next coffee for the ladies will be held Feb. 25 at 7:30 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Peter Cutler on Arrowhead Rd. All working wives in the Bn. are encouraged to attend.

2d BATTALION, 10th FIELD ARTILLERY

The monthly coffee for the ladies of the 2d Bn., 10th F.A. was held in the OWC Lounge on Jan. 21, with Mrs. Robert Kromer and Mrs. Riley Smith, serving as hostesses.

After refreshments were served, Mrs. Richard Noack introduced newcomers Mrs. Dennis Hill, Mrs. Hal Sharp and Mrs. Joe Batts. Farewell was bid to Mrs. Robert Smith with a gift from the battalion. Mrs. Curtis Hoglan, wife of the battalion commander, received a surprise birthday gift from the ladies of the battalion, an attractive red purse.

Two slide presentations followed the business meeting, the first about the OWC at Fort Benning, by Mrs. Jimmie Graham and Mrs. Jane Macpherson, past and present OWC Publicity Chairmen, respectively. The second, presented by Nancy Kromer, depicted Army life in Germany.

197th SUPPORT BATTALION

The ladies of the 197th Support Battalion officers' wives' group met in the OWC Lounge for coffee Jan. 22. A lovely pink and white theme was based on the flower of the month, dewy-fresh carnations.

Mrs. Ellis Morris extended a warm welcome to Mrs. Maggie Latham, the newest member of the group. The ladies were also pleased to share their evening with Mrs. Henig, mother of Mrs. Monoka Emert, who is visiting her daughter from Germany.

Hostesses for the evening gettogether were Mrs. Marj Templeton and Mrs. Mary Baldwin.

Ft. Benning to observe Dental Health Week

Snack Habit! That's the slogan for National Children's Dental Health Week this year. Dental Health Week is being observed at Fort Benning from February 4 to February 8. Dental personnel from the Oral Health Clinic will be visiting each dependent school to give students a demonstration on how to clean their teeth properly.

This year, all third grade students will be presented a brush, a tube of stannous fluoride toothpaste, and disclosing tablets to help them determine if their teeth are clean. Special mirrors and lights will also be used for each student during the demonstrations.

The slogan, "Kick the Sweet Snack Habit!" was chosen because dentists have determined that frequent eating of foods that contain sugars - particularly between meals - contributes to tooth decay. This is because dental disease begins with a sticky, colorless film of harmful bacteria called plaque that is constantly forming on your teeth and gums.

Of course, it's hard to avoid ever eating between meals. But there are certain foods with high sugar content, like cookies and candy, which should be avoided. On the other hand, there are a number of very nutritious snack foods such as raw celery or carrots, milk and cheese, nuts, hard-boiled eggs, fresh fruits, and sugar-free soft drinks, that can be safely eaten.

A good rule to follow is: save sweets for mealtime, or eliminate them altogether, to keep tooth decay at a minimum.

197th develops policies for utility usage

The 197th Infantry Brigade has established a Utilities Utilization Conservation Program, with a Utilities Utilization Board, consisting of the commanders of the individual units.

The purpose of the board is to assist the 197th Inf. Bde. commander in developing policy for and supervising an effective utilities utilization and space conservation program.

Each unit commander in the 197th Inf. Bde. serves as the utilities utilization conservation (U-C) officer for his unit and may appoint deputies as necessary to insure success of the program.

Personnel from the 197th Inf. Bde. are presently attending the Fort Benning Installation Facilities Training School. These include all U-C officers, company commanders, dining facility personnel and self-help personnel.

A check list has been incorporated in the garrison's standard operating procedures in each unit. This check list is provided daily to each staff duty officer within the brigade. The staff duty officer is required to check several units during his tour of duty to insure utilities conservation.

The check list consist of four different sections electrical, water, heating and general.

Some of the items that appear on the check list are; under the electrical section, lights turned off when not in use, hail lights held at a minimum, electrical cold water fountains are unplugged, and coffee pots not in use are unplugged.

Under the section that deals with heating are listed; all windows closed except those necessary for ventilation. All entrance doors are to be in good repair and kept closed, temperatures are to be set at 68 degrees or below, and all dining facility ovens will be turned off when facility is not in use.

This is just one of the many ways that the 197th Inf. Bde., along with the rest of Ft. Benning and the Army, are helping to conserve energy.

will be turned off when facility is not in use.

Let GAC put a jingle in your dufflebag.

The way prices are going right now—you may need more money than you thought you'd need. GAC wants to lend you all the money you'll need to help beat prices and to buy the bargains you want before they're gone.

You don't have to make a lot to borrow a lot at GAC. The size of your loan depends on many things: the bills you have or have had. What you own or want to buy. The kind of work you do. And, because you wear a uniform, the kind of work you do rates very high with GAC. A steady income makes it easier for you to get a loan. But, more important, GAC wants to serve you because you serve your country.

Whatever your needs, whatever the reason, let GAC put a jingle in your dufflebag.

GERMAN SHEPHERD DOGS WANTED

The Department of Defense Dog Center has a continuing need for qualified German Shepherd Dogs. Anyone desiring to donate or sell a personally owned German Shepherd Dog to the Department of Defense (DoD) should write DoD Dog Center (SAAMA), Lackland Air Force Base, Texas 78236. The basic qualifying specification and requirements are as follows: The dog must possess predominant characteristics or features of the German Shepherd (purebred or registration not required), must be between 1-3 years of age; weight, at least 60 pounds; must be 23 inches high at the shoulder; be either male or female (female must be spayed 30 days prior to offer); brown or black, or all white; and must be able to meet strict medical and temperament requirements. The government will pay up to $150 for accepted dogs. All shipments will be made by commercial air at government expense. Also, the medical examination may be made by a military veterinarian at government expense.

FAITH SCHOOL PTAC MEETING

The Parent Teacher Action Committee of Faith School will hold a meeting in the Faith School Gym, Tuesday, Feb. 5, at 7:30 p.m. All parents of children attending Faith School are invited to attend the meeting. The program will include a brief presentation on the "Future of Fort Benning Dependent Schools". A coffee social will follow the PTAC Meeting.

EXTENDED LEAD-TIME FOR OVERSEAS

According to the Military Personnel Center, all enlisted party personnel will get their overseas assignment orders much sooner. Effective this February, the Personnel Center will phase in longer lead-time for all enlisted personnel. The current five month lead-time will be extended by an extra four months, giving the soldier, that is bound for overseas nine months to prepare for his foreign assignment.

NOTICE TO SPENCER HIGH SCHOOL PARENTS

A special number has been set up, by Spencer High School, for parents who are reporting their child absent from school. If the day arrives that your child has to miss a day of school, you can report it by calling the school at 323-8296. The school has asked that you use this number for reporting absences only.

THE EARLY OUT PROGRAM IS OUT

Effective immediately, the 90-day Early Release Program for personnel wishing to join the reserve components is terminated. However, personnel who have signed a statement of acceptance with a reserve component career counselor will be released as agreed.

Steps taken to ease energy crisis

By Susanne Bostick

Yes, Virginia, there is an energy crisis; and yes, Fort Benning is doing something about it. Since September, the amount of heating fuels used has been decreased by 30 per cent from last year's consumption.

How has this been accomplished? Lights in the Infantry Hall parking lot have been reduced, except during early morning hours when employees are arriving at work. Other areas of the post have been dimmed by reducing the numbers of lights that are left on. Most of these lights now have photocells, which are light-sensitive and shut the light off automatically at daybreak.

Many buildings on post have outdoor thermostats which turn off automatically when the temperature outside reaches 62 degrees. This means that the weather has a lot to do with the amount of fuel consumed.

The thermostats all over post have been turned down, and a number of buildings have been winterized. This means all utilities have been turned off, and the buildings have been closed up.

Infantry Hall has presented a problem in measuring the amount of fuel consumed. It has no meters, except on the air-conditioning system, so it's impossible to tell how much fuel has been saved from last year.

Temperatures in office buildings have also been cut down. "The weather has been in our favor so far," said G. F. Schladensky, chief of the Utilities and Pollution Control Division. "We've been able to conserve fuel this year partly because we had a warm November, December and January."

"If we can continue to conserve fuel through a really cold spell, like last year's snowfall, we'll be able to stay within our quotas."

"Weather conditions are the biggest factor in conserving natural gas," said Schladensky, "and most of Fort Benning is heated with natural gas. Propane gas and fuel oil are used only as standby fuels on main post."

"Propane gas and fuel oil are the only sources of heat at Sand Hill and Harmony Church, however, and in October we ran out of fuel oil. Because of the national energy situation at the time, our contractor simply could not supply them. As a result, some barracks at Sand Hill and Harmony Church had to be without fuel entirely."

"This post, until December, during this period we had to rely on the post's reserve oil. Schladensky went on,

"Since December, however, we have been receiving adequate supplies of fuel oil."

Even more than gas, electricity must be controlled by the individual. With electricity, it's not a question of degree; it's either "on" or "off." This requires cooperation by both family housing occupants and unit commanders. All of us must take a close look at our dwelling place or office, and decide what is absolutely necessary.

The Resource Conservation Board at Fort Benning has also decided to reduce the quotas for water use, since energy is required for pumping water as well as heating it. The Resource Conservation Board is the overall control agency on post for all types of energy conservation measures.

"In the end, it all boils down to being energy-conscious as individuals. We cannot, in today's technological society, do much without some kind of energy source, but we must make energy our servant instead of letting it master us," Schladensky added.

"Just as the United States is dependent on other countries for its oil, so we must rely on outside sources for its power. So that there will be enough to go around, all of us must use it wisely, and be constantly aware of what a vital commodity it is."

Garbage

Fort Benning participates in research to recycle edible garbage for feed

By Susanne Bostick

Recycling edible garbage into an animal feed ingredient — that's the answer.

Now, what was the question?

In 1970, two University of Georgia veterinarians were asking themselves what could be done about hog cholera, a highly contagious animal disease sometimes caused by feeding improperly cooked table scraps to swine.

In solving this problem, they came up with a method of recycling edible garbage into "Biomeal," a highly nutritious feed ingredient for animals.

Just how do they do this, and how is the Army involved? Dr. Charles N. Dobbins Jr., and Dr. Thomas W. Powell, who are researchers at the Cooperative Extension Service of the University of Georgia, came to Fort Benning for help, and they found it.

They needed a large, dependable source of table scraps; this was readily available at the mess halls on post. They needed a place to set up their equipment; this, too, was made possible in a corner of one of the post heating plants.

Last, but not least, the Fort Benning Utilities and Pollution Control Division has provided technical assistance when needed, and this "has been invaluable," according to Dr. Powell.

Basically, the process for making Biomeal consists of cooking the material at high temperatures, separating it into larger and smaller particles, removing the liquids and fats, grinding it up into uniformly-sized particles, and drying it so that it can be stored and later mixed with other animal feeds. Biomeal is not intended to be the mainstay of an animal's diet; rather, it is a highly nutritious supplement.

Its nutritive value is between that of corn and soybeans. It's also a very efficient and economical use of table scraps, much more so than dumping them into the local sewage system or sanitary fill.

Biomeal may eventually eliminate the need for daily garbage collection in cities as well as on military bases. It could also make the "GI can" a thing of the past, since garbage would be collected in the mess hall and sent through special pipes to an outside collection tank where it could be stored for up to three weeks, and later picked up by garbage trucks.

It could replace more expensive feed, and release vital corn and soybean crops for human consumption instead of feeding them to animals. "This is especially important, since in the future the demand for food is likely to become critical," said Dr. Powell. "Food supplies are dwindling, and humans may eventually have to compete with animals for food."

Hog cholera, a highly contagious animal disease that cannot be passed on to humans, is what set the whole ball rolling. It can be carried by animals or by food containing scraps of meat from infected animals. Either way, it can wipe out a whole herd of hogs in very little time. In the past, the only way to prevent the spread of the disease through table scraps was to cook them thoroughly.

This was hard to regulate, however, and sometimes hog farmers did not cook the food for their hogs as long as they should. As a result, several epidemics have swept over Georgia in the past few years, causing considerable damage to the hog industry.

In 1973, a state law went into effect forbidding the feeding of cooked garbage to swine. Anticipating the passage of this law, Drs. Dobbins and Powell started working on their new process in 1971, and came to Fort Benning to conduct the initial tests.

The best way to feed Biomeal to chickens, according to the tests that have been made, is in a 20 per cent to 30 per cent mixture with their regular feed. They get fatter in a shorter period of time this way than chickens which are fed with conventional meal.

There were some problems: separating fats and oils from the more digestible food particles, for instance, and drying the meal after it has been separated. These are being tackled by using a series of screens to drain the food of some fats, oils and water. The meal is then dried in an industrial dryer.

Drs. Dobbins and Powell will be ready to start on a larger scale than before within a month or so. A trial run was completed in late January, and soon all systems will be "go." Who knows? Biomeal may very well be the food of the future!

The good neighbor.

Springer declares its 1974-75 shows

The Springer Theatre announced its 1974-75 shows today. The Summer musical is "BRIGADOON". The Lerner and Loewe musical tells the story of the 18th century Scottish Village of Brigadoon, which comes into being for only one day in each century. Memorable show tunes in the production include "Almost Like Being In Love", "The Heather on the Hill", "There But For You Go I", "Come To Me, Bend Me", and "My Mother's Wedding Day".

Exact opening dates for the shows will be announced later, according to Springer President David Lea. Season Ticket members of the Springer will be admitted to the five shows of the "season", "FIDDLER ON THE ROOF", "NEVER TOO LATE", "GASLIGHT", "PROMISES, PROMISES", and "PRISONER OF SECOND AVENUE".

Season Ticket holders will see five shows, beginning with the musical "FIDDLER ON THE ROOF", and the comedy "NEVER TOO LATE" in the Fall of 1974. The 1975 Winter selection is the mystery "ANGEL STREET", perhaps better known by its movie title "GASLIGHT".

The 1975 Spring selections will include two shows from the pen of Neil Simon, the musical "PROMISES, PROMISES", and the comedy "PRISONER OF SECOND AVENUE".

Vets Administration drops home loan interest rates

A one-quarter per cent reduction in the maximum G.I. home loan interest rate becomes effective today (January 22), it was announced by Donald E. Johnson, Administrator of Veterans Affairs.

In ordering a drop from 8.5 to 8.25 per cent on Veterans Administration loans, Johnson also noted that the new lower rate has been established for FHA loans by the Secretary for Housing and Urban Development.

The new maximum rate was set after a series of market indicators had demonstrated the old 8.5 per cent figure, in effect since August 25, 1973, was very near the par for commercial home loans.

The reduction effective today is the first decline in interest rates since February 18, 1971. Interest rates were reduced three times between December 2, 1970, and February 18, 1971. Rate increases marked the program from its founding in June 1944 until December 1970.

G.I. loan applications last month were well below the normal seasonal dip for that period. During the first half of F.Y. 1974, 155,700 loan applications were received - 22 per cent below the total for the first half of F.Y. 1973. Appraisal requests also were down 22 per cent.

Noting that the lowered interest rate can save as much as $1,530 over the life of a 30 year mortgage on a $25,000 home, Johnson expressed the hope that the reduction would encourage many veterans and service personnel to re-enter the home buying market.

The new loan rate does not apply to VA mobile home loans.

Ten teams enter 197th playoff to represent Bde. in tourney

Following two months of company-level basketball play within the 197th Infantry Brigade, ten teams have qualified for the brigade tourney. Battalion playoffs were held to decide which teams would enter the 197th tournament, with the top two teams from each battalion entering the finals.

The tournament will be a double elimination affair with two teams earning the right to represent the "Forever Forward" brigade in the Fort Benning basketball championships. The brigade tournament began play January 24 and will continue through the first two weeks of February.

Games are being played at the Kelly Hill gym, with two games scheduled each non-training day.

The teams entered and their records are: HHB, 2nd Bn., 10th F.A. (4-1); B Btry, 2nd Bn., 10th F.A. (5-0); Co. A, 3rd Bn., 7th Inf.

(4-1); Co. C, 3rd Bn., 7th Inf. (5-0); Co. D., 197th Spt. Bn. (4-1); 72nd Engr Co. (5-0) HHC, 1st Bn., 58th Inf. (4-1); Co. A, 1st Bn. 58th Inf. (5-0); Cbt. Spt. Bn., 2nd Bn., 69th Ar. (4-0) and Co. B, 2nd Bn., 69th Ar. (1-1).

Co. C, 2nd Bn., 69th Ar. qualified for the tourney but is unable to participate because the entire company is engaged in tank qualification firing at Fort Stewart, Georgia.

"We hope that spectator participation is better for the finals than it was during the season," commented Staff Sergeant Paul Stonebrook, Jr., the 197th's athletic and recreation NCO. "At times during the regular season only the players were sitting in the bleachers. We have room for plenty of people in the Kelley Hill gym and I hope that soldiers from the units in the tournament give their teams support."

"Leather to fly" at Harmony Church

Tonight, at the Harmony Church Field House, the "leather will fly" as Fort Benning Recreation Services conducts another boxing smoker.

Starting time will be 7 p.m. with a ten bout card scheduled. Action will bring together the best of Benning's boxers in post-wide competition to determine candidates for the All-Army boxing trails to be held later in the month. A boxing smoker held in December of last year received resounding support from boxers and fans alike, prompting tonight's return of ring action. It is hoped that boxing will become a monthly event provided that participants and fans continue to show interest.

There is no charge for admission. Military personnel as well as civilian members of surrounding communities are invited to attend.

Post team looking for ballplayers

Tryouts are now underway for the post-level basketball team to represent Fort Benning in the TRADOC championships to be held at Fort Gordon on March 13 thru 19.

Interested players should contact Recreation Services, Sports Office, telephone 545-1516-2063, or stop by the Sports Office located under Doughboy Stadium.

Tryouts are held at Bryant Wells Fieldhouse each weekday from 3 p.m. till 5 p.m. and Saturdays from noon till 2:30 p.m.

The post-level team will play an exhibition game with the exciting Florida A&M "rattlers" on February 8 at 7 p.m. and again on the 9th of February at 2 p.m. It is also expected that exhibition games will be played with Columbus College.

HHC 36th tops 43rd in hard fought battle

Thursday night, January 24, HHC 36th Engr. Gp. (CBT) came out on top in a close battle with HHC 43rd Engr. Bn., 52-46.

The second half started with HHC 36th controlling the tip off. Little Lynn moved in for a layup to bring HHC 36th to within two points.

Charles Pitts caused a turn-over and Eulee Woodard's ten foot jump shot tied the game, forcing HHC 43rd to call a time out. HHC 36th came out with a full court press causing another turn-over and Woodard put them ahead with another ten foot jumper.

HHC 43rd never recovered as Lynn applied the pressure, scoring from inside and outside, for a total of 20 points and pulling down fifteen rebounds.

Woodard helped out with fourteen points and five rebounds.

High scoring Thomas Weems, HHC 43rd, was held to a low of 18 points, and Jake Hogsett had 6 points, with Richard Floyd scoring 10 points for the losers.

The loss caused HHC 43rd to fall from a first place tie to a second place tie with A Co. 43rd Engineer.

Steven Morrow (13) of Company E (Comp), Field Artillery, 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry (PIONEERS), The School Brigade, moves down court against an IOAC-7 team member. IOAC-7, The School Brigade, handed the Artillery team their first loss of the season, 38-35. (Photo by Rick Wasser)

TSB IOAC-7 calms down Pioneers

"Just plain blew our cool" were the words of Coach Kenneth Lee as his previously undefeated Pioneers Artillerymen fell before the efforts of The School Brigade's IOAC-7 roundballers 38-35.

"The men got upset over a mistake and it would take too long for them to cool off. I know we can play better than we did, and I'm still predicting a championship for us in the finals."

It was a hard fought and hotly contested game from start to finish and the referees were in need of oxygen by game's end because there were plenty penalties and violations.

"In a game as close as this one, with two outstanding teams", a referee commented, "tempers naturally flair up on occasion, and personal fouls increase somewhat."

The Pioneers managed to gain an early lead but quickly lost it and could never catch up as IOAC-7 held on for the victory.

The Artillerymen's next and final game of the regular season is against 5th Battalion of The School Brigade. Coach Lee is predicting a win for the Pioneers by a "fifteen or twenty point margin."

The Bayonet, February 1, 1974

By Dave Deutscher

This month a popular outdoors magazine featured Patrick's Fishing Paradise as destined to be one of the red hot bassin' spots for 1974. During the past several years my wife and I have fished Patrick's fairly regularly and couldn't agree more.

Patrick's is located about 8 miles east of Tifton Georgia and is close enough to entice many of the Fort Benning anglers. My most recent visit was a four day affair during the Christmas holiday period. Unlike the author of the magazine article, we could not score in the large ponds at Patrick's. But we had great results in the smaller lakes.

The Paradise consists of 35 lakes, varying in size and structure, and each with its own distinct personality. That one fact can present a discouraging situation to us "average anglers" who can't afford to spend weeks exploring all that water. If you're a true trophy hunter with the innate ability to locate fish in large bodies of unfamiliar water, you'd probably enjoy launching your bass boat into Lake Patrick or Lake Bobbin.

If you're the type angler who loves to catch lots of bass in the 3 to 8 pound category without elaborate equipment, then you'd probably prefer the action in Lake. Because the ponds are fairly small, it doesn't take long to locate your fish. During our last trip, my wife and I boated 46 bass, including a seven pounder, by gassing grape pencil worms against the cyprus stumps in Log Lake's four foot depths. Another favorite bass pond at Patrick's is Horseshoe Number Four.

Plenty of Crappie

Horseshoe Number Four also supports a dense population of large crappie that range up to 3 pounds. This time of year, crappie hunters score best by drift-fishing live minnows. On December 28, 1973, we watched one man string 154 speckled perch at Lake Bobbin.

If you intend to buy minnows, you'd best stop off in downtown Tifton because the country stores around Patrick's won't stock any until Spring. There's no limit on panfish at the Paradise, so your $5.00 admission fee is probably more economical than buying fish at the super market.

Catfish Too

The state record canal cat was pulled out of Patrick's fertile waters, and catfish seem to be the most popular fish sought at Patrick's. Using a commercial "blood bait" we had continuous action with cats the last afternoon of our trip. Most averaged a tasty two pounds each, but tackle-busters are common. The Patrick staff is "down home" friendly and will do everything possible to help you catch the fish of your choice.

Win $10,000

A $5.00 ticket gives you access to all of the 35 lakes except those which are closed for restocking. There's no charge for camping and modern latrine facilities are on site. Ben Patrick doesn't allow Sunday fishing, so that dampens plans for a week-end trip, but Tifton isn't far from here so a one day visit isn't uncomfortable. As an incentive, Ben Patrick is offering a $10,000 cash prize to the first person who catches a 23 pound bass.

Pony Club members earn rating awards

Mounted ceremonies held at the Fort Benning Hunt Club on January 24 saw 12 members of the Pony Club receive rating awards.

LTC Robert J. Bryant, President of the Hunt Club, presented the "C" rating to Debbie Bryant.

The "D-2" rating was awarded to Cindy Stoltz, Leanne Gomez, Christine Carroll, Shari Walls and Mary Anderson. Receiving the "D-1" rating were Glynis Brownback, Terry Anderson, Donna Maddox, Marret Quedens, Jane Shannon and Karen Goff.

The Benning Pony Club is a member of the United States Pony Clubs, Inc. which is the national organization and has at this time approximately 250 member clubs throughout the United States. Mrs. Robert S. Tully and Mrs. Park E. Johnson serve as District Commissioners for the Benning Pony Club.

The proficiency of the riders is determined by twice yearly ratings. These ratings consist of tests in dressage, cross country, and stadium jumping. Ratings are also based on an inspection of both horse and rider and a written examination on stable management. Pony Club ratings graduate from "Unrated", "D", "C", "B" to "A", which is the highest.

 First Lieutenant Nancy J. Zizunas, the first WAC instructor at the Infantry School, has been named the Leadership Department's Outstanding Instructor of the Quarter. This is another first for the Warren, Ohio native, who teaches in the Contemporary Subjects Committee of the Leadership Department. She received her Master's Degree in Communication from Kent State University in 1970, and entered the Army shortly after. Colonel John J. Walsh, Jr., Director of the Leadership Department, presented the award.

OUTSTANDING COMPANY AWARD GOES TO "D" COMPANY

"D" Company was awarded the Outstanding Company Award of the 43d Engineer Battalion (Construction) for the months of November and December. On 15 January, the Outstanding Company Award for the 1973 calendar year was retired and presented to "D" Company, commanded by CPT Richard H. Belter, for having won this honor eight times during the last twelve month period. 2Lt Robert D. Childs, Operations Officer for "D" Company, accepted the award from the 43d Engineer Battalion Commander, LTC Howard E. Gamba. Various criteria are used in selecting the "outstanding company" Positive credit is given for such things as a high reenlistment rate, the percentage of personnel E-5 and above who are leadership-qualified, the amounts of paper and petroleum products that are recycled, and the number of individuals within the company that receive battalion awards (such as Soldier of the Month, Driver of the Month, and Operator of the Month). Negative points are awarded for AWOLs, racial incidents, and failure to meet operational commitments. "D" Company is currently involved in constructing and upgrading Ranger School facilities at Camp Darby, improving barracks facilities within the battalion, and various miscellaneous smaller projects around Ft. Benning.

Drain Oil: Being used in fight for survival of the energy crisis

In view of the recent fuel shortage, natural gas for heating may soon become difficult to obtain, and the 197th Infantry Brigade is well aware of the problem and is doing its share to conserve energy.

The Directorate of Facilities Engineering has developed a procedure for using old motor oil for heating. According to Mr. Hilton Roberts, Chief of Mechanical Branch, this system has been in effect at Fort Benning since October 1972.

"Once the oil is drained from the vehicle," explains Mr. Roberts, "the different organizations bring it to a central drop-off point located on main post. The oil is the pumped out of the drums and into storage tanks which hold 40,000 gallons of oil."

One of the main contributors of the oil for this project is the 197th Infantry Brigade. Within the last six months," states Capt. Charles W. Likens, Assistant S4 of the 197th Inf. Bde., "the 197th has contributed 5,500 gallons of oil for the project."

Pvt. Julio R. Malavez, a mechanic with C Battery, 2nd Battalion, 10th Field Artillery, 197th Inf. Bde., thinks the operation is a good idea. "With the way population and inflation is going," says Pvt. Malavez, "who knows what will happen in the next few years as far as petroleum for heating is concerned."

"I think that this is a great idea for conserving fuel," Pvt. Malavez continues. "And I feel that everyone should consider ways to save their old oil for similar projects."

After the oil is received it is then kept in the storage tanks for one to two weeks. This permits the oil to separate from any water or sludge that may have been mixed in with it. The oil is then pumped out of the storage tanks and taken to the Central Boiler Plant Number One. Here it is mixed with a Number Six fuel oil at a ratio of one to three and is placed in another storage tank to keep until it is needed.

"As far as we know, Fort Benning was the first Army installation to start using this procedure," states Mr. Roberts. "However, the only time we use the oil is when there is a curtailment in the amount of natural gas we receive from the gas company in Columbus."

According to Mr. Roberts, prior to the operation of this new system, the used oil was sold to civilian refineries. "The barracks sure are different than I thought. They're really nice and not like the bays I thought they would have," stated Miss Nancy Taylor. "The rooms sure are different," exclaimed Miss Rebecca L. Shaggs. "The Modern Army seems to really be working," comments Mr. Michael T. Inman, "the barracks and all are a lot different than I thought they would be."

"I had a bad impression of the Army with what I saw on TV and in the movies," Miss Taylor commented, "Like the mess halls all you see on TV and in the movies are long tables, but its not like that, there are small tables which are very nice."

The women cadets expressed their feelings on being in ROTC. "I like the ROTC program however, it's not fully set up for girls. I especially like the classroom lectures, its like having a history class and the instructor is very good," stated Miss Shaggs.

"I want to complete the four year program and go into the MPs," Miss Diana L. Alves said, "There I can branch out into the drug abuse program, if not then into the field after I get out."

The energy crunch has a hold on all of us in one way or another, and The School Brigade, in accordance with Army policy, is implementing a variety of programs to help save fuel for the Army and the country. After the energy crisis became household words, TSB took stock of its situation and began to make changes. Vehicles which were deemed not absolutely necessary were turned in. Gasoline has been rationed to units, saving existing fuel supplies. With the new policies in effect, TSB used 20% less fuel in November than it did in October. Some battalion and staff sections are now walking their distribution, or delivering it on bicycles. Another drain on available energy resources is electricity, and TSB has taken steps to limit its use within the brigade. Lights in office areas have been reduced. Troops have been consolidated in the barracks. No longer are men scattered throughout barracks on all floors, but rather men who have been living in rooms or upper floors are being moved to single rooms on lower floors. This is an effort to conserve heat and electricity by being able to shut it down on unused floors. Unused barracks are also being "winterized," meaning holes and cracks are being fixed so that if these barracks should be needed heat would not escape.

Women Cadets take a look at what Army life in the 197th is like Women cadets were every where! even in the barracks was one of the scenes, as cadets from Western Kentucky University visited B Co. 1st Bn. 197th Inf. Bde., last week. The cadets from Western Kentucky University were at Ft. Benning participating in the ROTC cadet orientation tour. Here they had an opportunity to see what the Army is like and to talk to the junior leaders on some of the problems they have and what to expect when they become commissioned officers in the Army.

TSB works for speedy trial by providing own courtroom

Everyone will at some time have legal problems. For soldiers in The School Brigade, it is comforting to know that they have a legal section which is there to assist them with most legal troubles they might encounter.

SP5 Dan Gruben has been with the TSB legal section for 14 months. If he doesn't know the answer to the needs of a soldier, he can point him to the person who does.

"If someone needs help with debt counseling, contract counseling, finance, divorce, or some other problem, we can usually let them know what needs to be done. If we can't, we put them onto someone who can," said Gruben. "If it's a civil case we can tell the soldier what paperwork he needs to get started on. When someone in the brigade is given an Article 15, we can refer him to an able counselor."

2LT William Reed took over as TSB legal officer in July. He isn't a licensed attorney, because that isn't necessary to prosecute Special Courts Martial.

Lt. Reed will be leaving TSB in August to attend the University of Mississippi Law School. "I enjoy the trial work and it's an interesting challenge," said Lt. Reed. An idea of Lt. Reed's which will help insure the constitutional guarantee of a speedy trial is to convert half of the TSB legal section into a courtroom.

When finished it will be a complete courtroom facility.

"We have a real problem getting courtroom time," said SP5 Gruben, "and with a courtroom here we'll be able to process more people. It will help the soldiers, too, because should a TSB soldier be undergoing court-martial, he'll be more at ease in familiar surroundings, rather than being taken to the post court, which can be a pretty imposing place."

The TSB legal section exists for the benefit of the soldier. Dealing with it can be beneficial or a very unpleasant experience. It all depends on the person.

Doctors and Nurses

Gain a better understanding of troops

As a part of their orientation, a group of newly assigned doctors, dentists and nurses at Fort Benning visited the 197th Infantry Brigade in an effort to better understand the situation of the soldiers they will be treating.

"This visit gives me an appreciation of what the soldiers of the 197th go through just to get to our facilities," stated Lt. Mary brigade by Col. William B. Steele, commander of the 197th.

Droegemueller, an Army nurse who has been working in Martin Army Hospital just three months. "I had no idea that they lived so far from the hospital," she said about those units quartered in the Harmony Church area.

The medical personnel were then taken on a bus tour of Kelley Hill and Harmony Church with the brigade's S-5, LTC. Douglas Snell, as their guide.

"I think this orientation gives them a better understanding of the situation our men are in," Lt. Col. Snell pointed out later.

"I really enjoyed this tour," explained Lt. Mary

Campbell, a nurse at MAH. "Now that I've seen where the soldiers live and what they do every day, I think I can better understand them as patients."

Santa Fe bridge to be closed Monday

The Santa Fe Road bridge across the Upatot Creek will be closed to all traffic beginning 8:30 a.m. February 4. The bridge will remain closed until 6:00 p.m. February 6. The temporary closing is required to complete repair work on the bridge structure and to pave the road surface.

Santa Fe Road will be open from First Division Road to Upatot Creek for traffic en route to Martin Army Hospital, the telephone exchange building and Eiler Hall. Santa Fe Road and Engineer Road will be blocked off at Custer Road during this time.

Marne Road from Santa Fe Road through the mall area to Kelley Hill is now open. However, the Lindsay Creek extension from Cooper's Curve to the mall area remains closed.

The group of 20 medical specialists, many of them new to the Army as well as Ft. Benning, toured the barracks of HHC, 197th Inf. Bde. and were given a brief introduction to the SFC Herschel Anderson began the marksmanship season right last weekend by winning two handgun championships. (U.S. Army Photo)

Anderson wins pistol contest; Hiles and Black set new records

National Pistol Champion SFC Herschel Anderson, and the U.S. Army Marksmanship Unit started the 1974 marksmanship season off in high gear as he won two handgun championships here last weekend.

In addition to Anderson winning championships, two of his companion marksmen, SFC Barbara Hile, Oapecr, Mich., and SSG Marvin Black, Laverne, Okla., came into the lime light when they established new national records during the matches.

The two tournaments which fell to Anderson's championship onslaught included an Indoor Pistol 900 point match which he won with 891 and a follow-up Three Gun 2700 Grand Aggregate championship. He took the latter with 2673-111X, just one point from the national record. For Sergeant Hile, National Women's Pistol 300 points.

SFC Barbara Hile set six new national records in the matches.

Classroom closes; race relations continue

Race Relation in the 36th Engineer Group does not end when the classroom door closes. Although Racial Awareness classes are being taught in the 67th Maint. Bn. 43rd Engr. Bn. and the provisional battalion. Racial awareness is also emphasized outside of these classes. The combination of seminars, guest speakers, and field trips have helped to bring about racial harmony within the unit.

The Racial Awareness Program (RAP) which is being taught within the Group builds the foundation for racial awareness between different racial and ethnic groups. This is complemented by unit moderators. Moderators vary the topics of seminars and try to make them informative as well as interesting. However, this would be very difficult mission without the support of the chain of command. A good example of this is the 586th Float Bridge Company. First Sergeant James A. Bishop coordinated with the race relation moderator SSG Raymond A. Clowes to bring a guest speaker to a seminar. The guest was retired 1SG Jackson Wheeler, who retired from the Army in 1939. The retired 1SG is of Afro-American heritage and was able to relate to the men in the 586th what it was like to be black and in a segregated Army.

Other guests to include Mayor Johnny Ford of Tuskegee have augmented the race relations program within the group. Although these types of activities add to the race relations program, it still boils down to the fact that individuals within the subordinate units make race relations successful. This is evident from improved race relations within the Group. SSG Robert L. Adams, race relations NCO at Group S6 and NCOIC of the RAP classes in the provisional battalions says, "Most people who attend my RAP classes arrive saying that they are already getting along with the other people at work and don't need to know anything about them. However, after completing RAP the same personnel leave saying they learned a lot about other people of different backgrounds and that the classes are worthwhile."

Johnny Ford, mayor of Tuskegee, Ala., (right) and his wife were guests of the 36th Engineer Group recently. Here Mayor Ford and his wife 'rap' with husbands and wives of the Group concerning the destiny of the blackman in the civilian community.

2LT Herman Robinson is the race relations officer in the 67th Maint. Battalion and had the following comments concerning the race relation program there.

"SFC Donald R. Ramsburg and SSG Ricardo Elizardo who are both instructors in our RAP classes feel that though positive factual information, RAP is more effective. SP4 Jose Luna, who also works in our race relations office commented that after reading the critiques written by students who have attended the classes, that he felt we are getting a lot of positive feedback from the students. I personally feel that we should be able to create an atmosphere of racial harmony in the unit through this program."

Through programs such as these, racial harmony can be a reality rather than a goal to be achieved. It is a goal that each and every member of the 36th Engineer Group has a responsibility toward.

Black History

Not a seven day affair but a day-in, day-out process

To the 197th Infantry Brigade race relations instructors, Black History Week is more than a seven day affair.

SSG Freddie J. Owens, graduate of the Department of Defense Race Relations Institute and SSG James E. Brooks, graduate of the Unit Race Relations Discussion Leader's Course, believe that Black History is a day-in and day-out study. These two NCOs are the brigade's primary Black History instructors.

Back in 1966 while on duty in Germany, SSG Owens first began his interest in Black History. He feels that it is "the uncovered adventures, experiences, and successes that have been left out of the history books by the White society for 500 odd years. People of minority groups have little or no knowledge of their ancestral heritage that benefited America."

"Black Americans, have a right to feel thrilled about past achievements of their people beginning with Hannibal to our present day society.

Why should just one week be set aside for a certain ethnic groups?

history? Why not a month, or better still why not incorporate it into teaching as a whole."

SSG Brooks also first became involved with Black History in Germany during 1971. "For myself I have found that I feel proud everytime I learn about a black inventor, scientist, doctor, etc. that I should have learned about in school. But what is more important is the resources that will be tapped by the influence that the true history of this country will have on its younger people.

"This land could be more productive if money were to be spent uplifting a person's pride instead of de-educating him through a biased and inferior educational system. Black History is great to have, but how about understanding the real background of the nation instead of a one-sided view."

The brigade race relations office in conjunction with the Kelley Hill Library has planned to keynote National Black History Week with an open house on February 15 from 10 a.m. until 6 p.m. in the Kelley Hill Library.

Mrs. Rosalie Land, librarian, says, "We plan to have on display a sample of Black History and culture materials, to include books, magazines and records. The library has an excellent selection of both current and historical material for the personnel and their dependents to check out."

First woman wins soldier of the month

SP4 Sylvia Campos, Correctional Holding Detachment, 197th MP, 36th Engineer Group, recently became the first WAC to be selected as Soldier of the Month in the Group and Fort Benning, Ga. (U.S. Army Photo)

The 36th Engr. Gp. believes in equality for all soldiers; men and women. SP4 Sylvia Campos, 139th MP, Company recently became the first woman to be selected as Soldier of the Month for the 36th Engr. Gp. and Ft. Benning. SP4 Campos is acting operations sergeant for the Correctional Holding Detachment. Among her duties are those of morning report clerk for the Correctional Holding Detachment, chapter 10 discharge clerk and correspondence clerk for the correctional officers.

She entered the Army on Aug. 31, 1971 and completed basic training at Ft. McClellan, Ala., Oct. 1971. Her initial training was at Ft. Gordon, Ga., where she attended the U.S. Army Southeastern Signal School. "Being stationed at Fort Benning has many advantages because of the size and population," Campos said. "Of course Benning has its disadvantages also. I'm not saying it's perfect, but there is usually something going on that interests me, either while I'm on duty or off duty."

E4s receive PCS travel pay

Permanent Change of Station (PCS) Travel and Transportation Entitlements have been extended to all E-4s with over two years service. The change, effective Jan. 2, 1974, entitles the junior E-4s, with more than two years service the same benefits as senior E-4s. These benefits include dependent travel, shipment of household goods, shipment of privately owned vehicles, trailer allowances, dislocation allowances, and overseas station allowance. The old regulations offered these services only to E-4s with over two years service, on a per year basis.

OWC sponsors concert at Marshall Auditorium

Ricky Zimmerman, a senior at Har-daway High School, will be the guest soloist at a free concert presented by the Columbus Symphony Orchestra at Fort Benning. Ricky is the winner of the annual "Young Artist" competition, and will perform the first movement of Beethoven's "Second Piano Concerto" in B flat. The concert, which is open to the public, will be held Monday, February 11 at 8 p.m. in Marshall Auditorium. It is sponsored by the Officers' Wives Club of Fort Benning.

Ricky has studied music for twelve years. He plans to major in mathematics when he enters college, and continue his music studies as a minor. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Seymour Zimmerman of Columbus.

He came in fourth place in the Georgia Music Teachers Association's 1973 piano auditions. In 1970, he was one of eleven statewide winners in junior composition in an Ohio contest sponsored by the National Federation of Music Clubs.

Other selections on the program will include Dvorak's "Slavonic Dance," Opus 46, No. 1; "Chorale and Fugue" by J. S. Bach; several selections from the musical "Oliver!"; Brahms' "Hungarian Dance No. 1"; "The Entertainer," a ragtime jazz piece by Scott Joplin; and the Finale to Tchaikovsky's "Fourth Symphony."

TLT Gary D. Messano, 4th Bde., Ft. Jackson, S.C., will come to Ft. Benning to accept the Robert P. Patterson Award, February 12. He was named top Officer Candidate School graduate of 1973. Mrs. Robert P. Patterson, widow of the late secretary of war and judge of the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, will be here to make the presentation. (U.S. Army Photo)

ROTC cadets invade Ft. Benning this week

Approximately 150 Reserve Officer Training Corps (ROTC) cadets from the nation's colleges and universities are visiting Ft. Benning this week. The tour is part of a continuing Infantry-ROTC recruiting program stated by the Infantry School in 1971. The program is designed for those junior year cadets who have decided on a branch of service. It will enable them to have a better understanding of the combat arms with emphasis on the Infantry. The cadets will be divided into three or four-man teams, each with an escort officer. Each team will observe combat training and visit Infantry lieutenants in various units on post. The cadets will also observe a Ranger and Airborne demonstration. The tour is scheduled to last from Thursday afternoon until Saturday afternoon. The cadets will be billeted in Henry Hall. Escort officers for the tour are captains and majors selected from the Infantry Center and school staff and faculty. When possible, cadets will be matched with escort officers who are ROTC graduates. The first increment of ROTC cadets toured Ft. Benning the 24th through the 26th of January. A total of 291 cadets will have participated in this year's Senior ROTC visit.

34th saves time, money with new flu vaccine

In the early morning hours of January 25, more than 3,300 men of the 197th Inf. Bde. began to assemble at two locations to receive the second part of their flu immunizations. Within two hours the entire "Forever Forward" brigade has been administered the vaccine and had returned to their respective unit areas. "This is the first time we have ever administered the flu vaccine in this manner," stated SFC Phillip Lowery of the 34th Med. Bn. "It saves a lot of time and money." SFC Lowery and his crew of assistants ran five stations with soldiers moving through about as fast as they could walk. After the soldiers housed on Kelley Hill were immunized, the portable facility moved to Harmony Church where the remainder of the brigade was waiting. "After we complete the 197th," SFC Lowery added, "we will administer the vaccine to the smaller units on post. We plan to handle a total of about 6,000 people today." Soldiers in the 197th had mixed emotions about the flu shots. Some didn't like the idea of getting a shot at all and most were glad to get it over with. "It all happened so fast," stated PFC Clint Maddox, "you really didn't even have a chance to think about it. They did our whole company in less than a minute!" Maddox is a clerk in Co. A, 197th Spt. Bn., 197th Inf. Bde.

Sgt. Willie Moore, Co. C, 3rd Bn., 7th Inf. (Cotton-balers), 197th Inf. Bde., was one of 3,300 soldiers who received flu vaccine in the early morning hours January 25. Manning the "shot gun" is Sp4 Dana Woodbury. (Photo by Bob Thomas)

Pfc. Joyce Brown
Med Evac Hospital

Most are prejudiced. Blacks are treated the same as whites only some of the time. A white commander can't possibly understand black enlisted problems.

Sp4 David Keever
Co. A Admin. 197 Support

Yes, I have had both a black and a white commander and I have not seen any difference. They treat blacks and whites at the same rate and give them the same responsibilities and rights.

Sp4 Walter L. Holliday
Co. A Admin. 197 Support

I don't think it matters what color the officer is, I think the problem lies in an officer never being an enlisted man himself. If all officers were required to be enlisted men for a certain period then they would be aware of the problems we are faced with. I don't feel any officer, other than those with prior service as an EM, can give any enlisted man a fair deal.

Do white commanders give black enlisted men a fair deal?

Sgt. James Troupe
Co. 2-69

It really depends on the individual commander. There are some good commanders and some bad. It also depends on your attitude. If you give the commander a bad time then he might not give you a break next time you get in a fix. It works both ways.

Lt. Jame Dunlap
Co. A 197th Support Bn.

Most commanders are more aware of the needs of the black enlisted man. The Race relation program, even though it is only 18 hours in length, tells the history and culture of the blacks. We are able to discuss the problems of the black enlisted man and ways we can help to solve these problems. It also helps us in learning ways to address the black enlisted man. The race relations program even though it is so short, it is a beginning. I think there is an honest effort being made.

PFC Earl Shelly
Co. 3-7

No, I don't think they do. I have been in the Army for twenty months and I have never been given a fair deal by a white officer. I don't even feel that white officers give black officers a fair deal. I respect black officers because it has taken them as much work to become an officer. One big problem is white officers don't understand black unity. When a group of blacks get together a white officer will jump to a conclusion and think they are making trouble then try to break it up, this causes bad feelings.

Blacks contributed

The did more than "just pick cotton"

By Catherine L. Chisholm

As the new year unfolds, I wonder how many Americans have checked the history books to see what their children are being taught in the schools?

In 1915 Dr. Carter G. Woodson initiated the idea of having a week designated as negro history week. So, February 11, 1915 became the official date for designating the second week in February as a time for people to pay recognition to the contributions that Blacks have made to this country.

The irony of the whole idea is that even in 1974 the educational institutions in our country still ignore the contributions made by Black people. After reading this article, check a U. S. History Book and see if you can locate the information I will present.

The first Blacks to come to America did not come as slaves. They came as traders, explorers, and soldiers. Pedro Alfonso Nino was one of the Columbus's navigators when he discovered the native American home land. This Black man is only one example of the many who helped pave the way in the shaping of America.

The advent of Black culture in American began in 1619, when twenty indentured Black servants were brought to the new world. That event marked the beginning of a peculiar institution in America — slavery.

Today Black people are looking at the past to re-define themselves in terms of the future. As a people, they have gone from slaves to second class citizens, to a people who are fighting for self-determination. To have pride in ones race and to receive the respect of other Americans, we all must know the sacrifices and contributions that all Americans have made to this society.

Today, Black Americans must teach their children, pride from separate history books, because their culture has been denied from the pages of U. S. History Books. Black pride is relevant and necessary because it is black people re-defining themselves in terms of history. It is discovering and reclaiming their history in order to establish a feeling of togetherness in the Black communities today.

I may be a sentimental fool, but I get chill bumps whenever I read about people like: Garrett A. Morgan, who invented the Automatic Traffic Light in 1923; Jean Point Du Sable, a trader who founded Chicago; Estevanico, an African with the Spanish Explorers who explored the Arizona and The New Mexico territories in 1538; Matthew Hensco who accompanied Commander Robert E. Peary on his North Pole expedition in 1909; George W. Bush, who led white settlers into the Oregon Territory in 1844; Harrett Tubman who led many slaves out of the south on the underground railroad and who worked as a spy and scout during the civil war. Also, she was the first woman to lead black and white troops on the battle field.

These are only a few famous people who deserve recognition. During Negro History Week I hope all Americans recognize the fact that Black people contributed in every aspect of this society, in other words, they did more than "just pick cotton."

Unit mess wins award; enters Army competition

The Fort Benning Best Dining Facility Award for Excellence in Food Service — in the small unit category — will be awarded to Company C, 3rd Battalion, 7th Infantry (Cottonbalers), 197th Infantry Brigade today.

Sergeant First Class Howard H. Garrett, dining facility manager, and Captain Bruce A. Blake, company commander, will accept the award from Major General Thomas M. Tarpley in a ceremony to be held in the Company C dining facility at 2 p.m.

This places the dining facility in Army-wide competition for the highest award given through the Army's Food Service Program, the Phillip A. Connelly Award. Company C has won the post-level competition for twelve consecutive months.

"On January 24, our company was evaluated by the U. S. Army Training and Doctrine Command (TRADOC) for consideration in the Connelly Award competition," stated Sp6 Thomas R. Clevenger, the assistant dining facility manager for the company. "We competed against some 20 other dining facilities at this level."

"I feel that we have an excellent chance of winning at TRADOC," Sp6 Clevenger continued. "If we do, we are on our way to the Connelly Award."

Some of the major areas evaluated in this competition were: the quality of food served, efficiency of food preparation and service, sanitation in food preparation and service, food conservation, appearance of food service personnel, and ingenuity and innovation in improving dining area appearance.

"The most important area to be evaluated," says CW3 Radames Toro, the 197th Infantry Brigade Food Advisor, "is the acceptability of the food by the soldiers."

Sp6 Clevenger attributes team work to the success of the unit. "We have a great bunch of cooks here and they work well together."

The Phillip A. Connelly Award program was established on March 23, 1968 to recognize excellence in the preparation and serving of food in Army dining facilities. The program was named for the late Mr. Phillip A. Connelly, who was instrumental in the Food Service Executives Association sponsorship of the Air Force's Hennessey

Award, the Navy's Ney Award, and now the Army's Connelly Award.

Reflections of an Airborne Soldier

By Chaplain C. H. Snyder III

Airborne!

"Get on down!"
"Knock out ten!"
"What do you want to be?"
"Double time..."
"Quick time, halt."

These are some of the commands that the young soldier hears going through Airborne School. The airborne student is often young, just out of basic or advanced individual training. Sometimes he is a young officer. He has heard a lot about jump school. We have all heard a lot about jump school, those phenomenal "war stories."

I recall my own experiences as I went through 'Paratrooper School'...

I got up early on Monday morning to join the company as we moved to Mann Field to start paratrooper formation moved on to the track. "Double time!" we were standing on the cables, anxiously awaiting for the training which we had heard so much about.

The training NCO's are forming up. I see them! Look at them. Here they come. They mean business! Here comes one towards me. What do I do, what do I say? What did they tell us in the company area? Should I be at 'parade rest' or 'attention'? Good Lord, he's right in front of me. I can't hear him! He's saying something.

"Pardon me, sergeant." I can hear him now.

"Get down, knock out ten!" he said pointing his finger at me.

We moved on to the PT area for the PT Test. chimps, three quarter knee benders, situps and pushups. Gee, I wish that sergeant wouldn't stand around me. Out of the pit and on to the track for the mile run. We moved out, the run went quickly. The end of the PT test. Some failed, some passed. Dejection for those who failed and jubilation for those who passed.

We put out fatigue shirts back on and are told that we will have several orientations. We hear the battalion commander - he talks of a positive attitude, good judgement, optimism and constantly "looking for the pony which is sure to be under the daily stresses." The protestant and Catholic chaplains give their orientations.

"Are those wings on the chaplains?"

"You mean they've jumped out of airplanes?"

"Relax men. With the right attitude, good physical condition and the desire to complete the course, you can make it. We'll be on the track with you and we invite you to worship with us. Let us share in your problems."

"Man, those chaplains are ok!"

The training is about to begin. Excitement fills the air. Everyone is anxious to begin. The 34-foot mock tower is the first hurdle. It looks like fun, sliding down the cables.

"We're lucky. On the 4th of July we would pay 50 cents to ride on that!" I said to my buddy.

"Hey you, Alpha 47 harness up, sir," the sergeant said, pointing at me.

"Left leg strap, right leg strap" said the man behind me helping me into the harness.

That harness was uncomfortable. Oh well, on to the mock door.

"Move on up to the 34-foot mock tower," the sergeant said to me and several other students.

"Hot dog, I'm going to be airborne!" said the young private in front of me.

"All the way and then some," said another.

I thought to myself that I would qualify on the little ol' 34' mock tower real quick like so that I could encourage some of my buddies. I then figured that I would move on to the 250-foot free tower and then to the C-141 or C-130 and, on my way to getting those pretty little wings. I was a little irritated that we had to spend valuable time going out of the little old 34-foot mock tower. I wanted those wings.

"Beat your boots. You know your right hand is supposed to be over your ripcord grip. Beat your boots," the sergeant said bringing me back to reality.

"1,2,3... 10 Airborne, sergeant!"

I proceeded up the stairs of the 34-foot mock tower. It's not too high. Second landing - only one more to go. Third landing - I'm not at the top yet? Those guys down on the ground look mighty small! Forth landing - Man, I didn't know it was this high. I'm not at the top yet... Fifth landing, this mock tower is shaking. Be careful sergeant don't move around so much, this thing could fall, I thought. I'm being jumpmaster checked. This sergeant is sure checking me fast. I hope that he hasn't missed anything.

This tower is mighty high. He motions me to the door. I am afraid to look out. He is handing me two straps. I can't put them on and hold on, too.

"Turn loose the tower and hook up these straps," he said to me.

"Yes sir, I mean yes sir, sergeant, I mean sergeant sir yes," I stammered.

"Are you afraid?" he asked.

"Clear sergeant, Airborne. I mean No sergeant!" I answered.

"Okay jumper, sound off with your name and roster number," he instructed.

"Yes sergeant," I answered.

"Stand in the door! What's your roster number?"

"I don't remember sergeant," I said, looking at the ground. I thought to myself while standing there that I wish this tower would stop shaking.

"What's your name jumper?"

"I don't know," I answered, thinking that this tower is most certainly going to fall if doesn't stop shaking.

"Go! Go!" I heard someone say.

I am at the end of the cables. I made it. Oh darn, I forgot to count. It wasn't so bad. I'll do better the next time.

The training continued on to tower week with more running, parachute landing falls, and the infamous, highly respected and honorable 34-foot mock tower.

Monday morning - Tower Week.

"Hey man, look at that old man leading the run. This is going to be fun." I said.

"Double time..."

"Hey slow up. Wow, this fast! These old men can run. Hey there are some young ones here too."

The training doesn't get easier, it keeps on going - the swing landing trainer, the suspended harness and canopy control, and of course the good old airborne track.

"Hey, there are the chaplains... they are here doing their thing. We'll do ours. We can make it."

"To the right... What do you see... dirty old legs... looking at me!" lead the cadence caller.

The ground... seems to be coming so fast... here it comes. Would you believe it? I made it. Airborne!

"Four more jumps to go."

Army Hospital. There's the commissary. That must be Florida. I can see Kentucky, New York... Hey I'm about to be released. What a feeling, what a landing. I want to do that again!

Friday already! I can't believe it. I am in the malfunctions caiss I am not even tired, I am wide awake... This guy is great! I hope that I won't have to use what he's teaching. He's so good he scares me.

Monday Jump Week first jump today, this afternoon. I wish the time would pass slower. Everybody is trying to look relaxed, trying not to look worried. Lunch is over already! We are cruted up. The pre-jump briefing is over. Time to board the aircraft. Hey, I just saw the chaplain!

"Chaplain, are you going to jump with us?"

"All the way," he answered.

"There's the CO, the XO, the First Sergeant and platoon sergeant from our company."

We are in a C-141. What a lift off... I wonder if experienced jumpers have butterflies... I'm nervous.

VBOOM - "Hey, what's that noise?"

"The door has just been opened," someone answered.

"I was really afraid after the door opened... so much noise!"

"Stand up... hook up... Stand in the door..." announced the jumpmaster.

"I can't get this seatbelt loose" I said to my buddy.

"Go!" said the jumpmaster. Look at those guys go. Two more to go. I'm next. Please don't let me faint.

"Go!" he said patting me on the back. Up, up and away. The sky is so black. It's night.

"One thousand, two thousand, three thousand, four thousand!" I counted.

It's so quiet, so peaceful, so good to be airborne. Nobody to bother me. Wait, I hear a voice...

"Jumpers, check canopy. Jumpers check canopy." Jumpers open your eyes," said the voice over the loudspeaker.

The ground... seems to be coming so fast... here it comes. Would you believe it? I made it. Airborne!

"Four more jumps to go."

"The Freak"

By GARY CATHCART

The last we heard, he never made it

"Hey, Freak, what's happening," was the way most of us greeted him. He liked that name, and even had his Mama-San embroider "The Freak" on his bush hat. He was hung up on smack, a heroin addict, and he didn't try to hide it from anyone.

friend anymore. Mail call was a big thing then.

"he got what he wanted"

After he bombed out of a couple of other jobs, each one less important than the one before, "The Freak" got what he wanted—no job at all. He loved it, and stayed high all the time. Often he wouldn't eat or sleep for days, until finally he'd crash for two or three solid days of sleep. He lost so much weight he looked more dead than alive.

"everybody liked him"

When he first started his tour in Vietnam he was everybody's nice guy. As a mail clerk he'd get these "care packages" of homemade goodies sent to soldiers from their families or friends back home. He'd open the mailroom at midnight if you had mail and were unable to pick it up during the day-time mail call. Everybody liked him... even when his habit got bad later on.

"Everything was cool"

Some of the guys talked to him. "Hey, Freak, why don't you turn yourself in, man, you're killing yourself?" But he didn't like that kind of talk. "The lifers can't be trusted to help anybody," he said, but what he meant was that he really didn't want help. Everything was cool. "This is the best high there is," he'd say.

"He was high every evening"

He started staying by himself after he had been there a few months. After work he hardly ever came out of his room. "The Freak" quit hanging around like he used to. He was high ever, evening and was satisfied to sit in his hooch and talk to no one, or see no one.

"He'd 'kick' before he went home"

We sometimes wondered what was going through his mind when he'd slouch on his bunk, stoned, limp and obvious to everything around him. We'd wonder if he even felt those times the cigarette in his hand burned down to his flesh and left blisters and scars. Maybe he was thinking about home and what he was going to do when he got back. He probably promised that he was going to "kick" before he left, sometime when he was "short" and close to leaving.

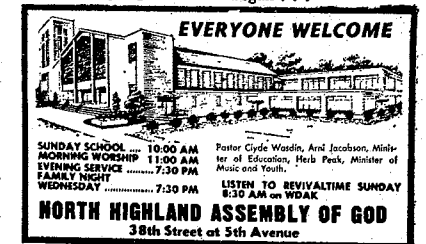

"Things got worse"

After a while things got worse. "The Freak" started shooting up during the day and the mail system was beginning to break down. Letters weren't being delivered on time, and a couple of days we didn't get any mail at all because he failed to go to the airstrip to pick up the incoming parcels. Needless to say, "The Freak" wasn't everyone's

"A lot of things had changed"

For certain though, he thought a lot about how things were going to be answers to his questions. The day he left he was all smiles on the outside as he carried his duffle bag to the truck. He grinned and gave us the "peace sign" as he left, his way of waving "Everything's okay now, I'm going home." The last we heard, though, he never made it. He was hospitalized in Hawaii for severe withdrawal pains. At 23 years of age, "The Freak" was a veteran of the Vietnam war, but we all knew his war had just begun...

"Greatest experience in lifetime"

197th troops meet Mrs. King

A group of 33 soldiers and officers of the 197th Infantry Brigade participated in a one-day race relations field trip to the Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. Center in Atlanta January 28.

3rd Bn., 7th Inf. (Cotton-balers), 197th Inf. Bde., "meeting Mrs. King would be just about the greatest experience in their lifetime. I think that those soldiers came away with a better understanding of gave the white members of the group a better understanding of just what blacks are up against."

After lunch, the group visited the Ebenezer Baptist Church where King was assistant pastor to his father, the grave site of the late civil rights leader and the nearby home in which he grew up. The men of the "Forever Forward" brigade were also given a preview of what the planned center would encompass.

It was after the visit to the library that Mrs. King arrived to talk to the men in a discussion group. Mrs. King answered questions about the civil rights movement and the life of her late husband.

"You just expect some people to be bigger than life," said CPT. Arthur Kellum. "Then when you meet them you see that they are only human."

All of the men were impressed by Mrs. King and her warm kindness.

"The field trip went beyond our expectations," said SSG Freddie Owens of the 197th Race Relations Office. "I only wish that more of our soldiers could have participated. This trip was in the planning for quite awhile and we hope to have more trips like this in the near future."

"I thought the best part of the tour was the eternal flame on Dr. King's grave site," explained PFC Roland Johnson, Cbt. Spt. Co., 1st Bn. (Mech), 58th Inf. (Patriots). "Just as the flame will always burn, the civil rights movement will always continue."

The trip, which was organized by the 197th's Race Relations and Equal Opportunity Office, was planned to give a number of men in the brigade a chance to visit the center and surrounding facilities. The highlight of the field trip was a group discussion with Mrs. Martin Luther King Jr., who has carried on with the civil rights movement started by her late husband.

"For anyone," stated PFC Clyde Turner, HHC, the movement."

The group which was comprised of race relations moderators and soldiers, traveled to Atlanta by bus and had lunch at Shepherd's Restaurant, located near the King Center and operated by a friend of the King family.

"I thought that this was an excellent place to have lunch," explained Sp4 Kim Shafer, Co. A, 197th Spt. Bn. "Since it is a black restaurant in the black section of Atlanta, I think it

WE'VE BEEN SERVING THE SERVICE FOR 96 YEARS.

HFC is probably one of several consumer finance companies located right outside the base. So why should you come to us?

One reason. We're the oldest, largest, most experienced company of our kind.

Another. Last year alone we solved financial problems for over 154,000 servicemen. All of them came because they needed advice. Or money—as much as $2500.

The whole point? Like the service, we've been around for a long time. So when you have a money problem, call on the expert for help. HFC. An equal opportunity lender.

The black soldier

Throughout history a gallant fighting man

Peter Salem became the first black soldier to distinguish himself when he killed Major Pitcairne, the British commander at the Battle of Bunker Hill. Salem was only one of many blacks who fought during the Revolutionary War. Since then, scores of black soldiers have distinguished themselves in every war in which the United States has engaged.

Black and white seamen demonstrated gallantry in the undeclared naval war with France, from 1798-1800. One black seaman, William Brown, serving aboard the Constellation, was wounded in one of the battles. A year later he fought again. He was granted 160 acres of land for his service and wound.

By the War of 1812, at least one of every six members of the U.S. Navy was black. They fought on privateers as well as ships of the line. They won praise from Captain Perry, chief Naval officer of the American Navy, who at first had doubted their ability. After his triumph at Lake Erie, Perry admitted that his black sailors were among the bravest men on his ship.

Andrew Jackson made a special appeal for help to the city's free blacks when he heard that the large British force was moving towards New Orleans. Four hundred volunteered to fight when Jackson promised them equality of pay and treatment. One battalion was made up of merchants, craftsmen, laborers and other refugees from Santo Domingo.

Even slaves from nearby plantations volunteered to help build the American defense.

When an army paymaster held up pay for the Indians and blacks, Jackson told him to pay all, "without inquiring whether the troops are white, black or tea." Jackson's order was quickly obeyed. All New Orleans turned out to honor Jackson and his troops after their glorious victory. Loud cheers greeted the "free men of color" and their young drummer boy, Jordan B. Noble. But for many years afterward the black veterans weren't permitted to march in the annual celebration. Slaveholders had become fearful of black heroes. In 1862, with New Orleans under the control of the Union Army, the drummer boy marched at the head of a victorious Union Army. In a proclamation issued just before the battle, General Jackson addressed his black soldiers in a speech of praise and pride.

More than 300,000 black men served in the Union Armies throughout the Civil War, and more than 38,000 of them lost their lives. By the early part of 1865 the Congress of the Confederacy was preparing to vote regiments of blacks into Confederate service. Many officers observed that they fought more desperately than white troops because they knew that if they were captured, they would be returned to slavery.

THE ALL-BLACK 9th and 10th CAV. ALRY, known as the Buffalo Soldiers, storm the Spanish at the Battle of Quas-

ranking black officer, Major Charles Young, was allowed to do little more than make his appearance in Cuba.

Fighting alongside the Rough Riders and Teddy Roosevelt at San Juan Hill were units of the 9th and 10th Cavalries. John "Blackjack" Pershing was in command of the 10th Cav. on the historic charge. He recalled it with pride: "White regiments, black regiments, regulars and rough Riders, representing the young manhood of the North and South, fought shoulder to shoulder, unmindful of whether commanded by an ex-Confederate or not, and mindful only of their common duty as Americans."

In World War I the bulk of the some 404,000 black troops were in the service of supply. The 92d and 93d were formed and sent to France. The four regular regiments, the 9th and 10th Cav. and the 24th and 25th Infantry regiments, were assigned to defensive positions in the continental U.S. and its island territories.

From the home-front war factories to the fighting fronts of the world, blacks contributed to allied victories during World War II. More than a million entered the Armed Forces and almost half of these served overseas. The men served in every branch of the Armed Forces, and the women served as Army nurses and in other branches of service. Seven thousand served as officers, taking their training along with the whites. Four commanded merchant marine ships and thousands served in their crews. Paul Robeson, Louis Armstrong and Lena Horne were among the many black entertainers to tour the Army camps with USO troupes.

A young officer named Harry Truman observed during World War I that the black units that were allowed to have black officers were even more effective than those with white officers. When he became president of the U.S., he took steps to insure that Army officers would be chosen for merit, not color, and it was under his administration, in 1948, that the Armed Forces were officially integrated.

In Korea and Vietnam, soldiers fought side by side without regard for color or creed because of Truman's insight and wisdom. Leaders of our country look upon the black soldiers with praise and admiration for their great victories on the battlefields and aboard. The black man's proud heritage is reflected upon by all men as one of advancement, determination and valor.

Many people in the North and South were surprised to find that blacks, especially those who had been slaves, made good soldiers. But the reports from the battlefields ended any doubts. In more than 200 battles, the black men fought bravely and won praise from both friends and enemies. Twenty of them won the Medal of Honor.

The contributions of the black soldiers were remarkable in light of the disadvantages under which they served. They were placed in segregated units under white officers who were often prejudiced. Less than one hundred blacks were made officers. Their regiments were sent into battle with less training than the white regiments had received, and with weapons inferior to those issued to whites. Their medical facilities were worse and their doctors fewer. They suffered greater casualties than whites for all of these reasons. For more than a year, the war department paid the black soldiers half as much as whites. Until their pay was made equal, some black regiments refused to accept any pay at all. However, they all continued to fight.

The worst hazard which black troops faced was capture by the Confederates. The South sold some into slavery and put others to death. The Confederacy didn't arm its slaves. When New Orleans free blacks volunteered to fight, they were issued broomsticks instead of guns. After the city was captured by federal troops, General Butler provided these soldiers with guns and they went into action against the Confederacy.

Black women, as well as white women, served the troops behind the lines and organized relief societies. Susie King was one of many black women who worked with Clara Barton, tending the sick and wounded. Harriet Tubman, familiar with the South after ten years as a conductor for the underground railroad, led Union raids in Confederate territory. In Nashville and other southern cities held by Union troops, black men and women organized their own committees for relief.

For many years the uneasy peace in the Western territories was kept in the U.S. Army, which included black units. The 9th and 10th Cavalries and the 24th and 25th Infantries fought bandits as well as Apaches, Sioux and Commanche. They took the field against Billy the Kid, Geronimo, Crazy Horse and the black chief of the Apaches, named John Horse. During the Indian Wars, 14 of these black soldiers won the nation's highest military decoration, the Congressional Medal of Honor. By 1877, West Point had graduated its first black officer, Henry O. Flipper, of Georgia, who was assigned to the 10th Cavalry.

The declaration of the Spanish-American War made it necessary to speed black enlistments. To do so, President William F. McKinley appointed one hundred black officers to the Army. The four regular black units were sent to Cuba, but aboard ship they were kept in the hold and were forbidden to mingle on deck with the white soldiers. In part they were denied shore leave. America's highest

Black history week displayed

In observance of black history week there will be displays and other forms of recognition of black contributions throughout the post. All post libraries will also have displays depicting the contributions of the black man in history. The Main Post Recreation center will have a display of black paintings.

Museum has a display of native folk art, including carved masks and other items from various black nations. The dependent schools on post will highlight black history in their studies. Crane Hall NCO Club will feature soul night with a free buffet of soul food for their members Feb. 13. The Officer's Open Mess will also feature a similar type menu on that night.

The National Infantry

Miss Betty McMillin, of the Race Relations Coordinating Office, examines one of the many items included in the black history display at the National Infantry Museum. This barrier war shield is from the Philippines and is part of the museum's own collection. Other items in the display are on loan from George Washington Carver Museum in Tuskegee Institute.

THE NEWBE

B.W. Miller
Seasoned veteran of the Viet Nam war, Bob Miller was awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross and the Air Medal with 36 clusters. Twice brought down by enemy fire, he won the admiration of his commanding officer for his professional skill, ability and eagerness to excel.

George Washington Carver

Was he a genius, or a tom?

EDITOR'S NOTE: Lt. Disbrow is the 197th Infantry Brigade's Assistant Race Relations and Equal Opportunity Officer. This is one of several of his contributions to the Bayonet.

In 1945 the Congress of the United States declared that January 5th be proclaimed as George Washington Carver Day. Today, however, many people label Carver as an "Uncle Tom," a "sellout to his race," or "a token in the U.S. History books." Is that a fair analysis of his life and contributions? Let us examine his biography and allow the reader to decide for himself about this man.

Born a slave to Master Moses Carver in Missouri in 1864, both he and his mother were kidnaped a few years later by the feared nightriders and held for ransom. He was traded for a horse while his mother was never rescued nor heard of again.

With the end of the Civil War he gained his freedom and worked his way through high school, graduating in Minneapolis, Kansas. Saturated with a further quest for knowledge he obtained his bachelor's and his master's degrees in agriculture from Iowa State University.

It was in 1896 when the thirty-two year old Carver accepted Booker T. Washington's invitation to be director of the Agriculture Department at Tuskegee Institute in Alabama, using discarded parts of worn out machinery he equipped his laboratory, initiated experiments in soil conservation and originated the science of Chemurgy (utilization of farm products in manufacturing goods not classified as food or clothing).

Working to commercialize both the peanut and the sweet potato industries, Carver developed hundreds of uses for those two common vegetables. From the peanut he evolved beverages, cosmetics, paints, dyes, foods, medicines, gasoline and plastics. He derived similar products from the sweet potato including synthetic cotton and silk.

With his advanced studies of biology and chemistry, he was recognized worldwide as an authority on plant diseases and cures. Besides his investigation and experimentation with plants, he was known for his exquisite paintings and had several exhibited at the Chicago World's Fair. A man of continual energy and production, Carver excelled at piano, organ, weaving and taxidermy.

He never patented any of his products as he wanted them to belong to and benefit all of mankind. An early conservationist, Carver used all laboratory wastes and recycled his materials.

During his life time he was recipient of the NAACP Spingarn Medal for outstanding contributions to his race. The London Royal Society of Arts elected him a member in 1923 while the Bureau of Plant Industry in the U.S. Department of Agriculture appointed him as a collaborator with the agency in 1935. Two years later he was awarded the Roosevelt Medal and in 1948, five years after his death, Congress placed his likeness upon a postage stamp, the second Black man in the nation's history to be so honored.

Mrs. Elain Thomas, curator and Director of the George Washington Carver Museum in Tuskegee, summed up the life of the man she knew as "a humble man who gave all his credit and accomplishments to the will of God. Perhaps the greatest thing he gave to us was the feeling of gentleness and compassion for one another."

Was he genius or was he a Tom?

Co. A 43rd marches 1/2 mile to save

The 36th Engr. Gp. Cbt. and the 43rd Engr. Bn. (Const.) have continued to emphasize the conservation of resources. To further the cause, Company A, 43rd Engr. Bn. is using a simple method to conserve gasoline: the company is walking where they used to drive.

Company A has an afternoon formation every day in the company area. The majority of the men work in the Motor Pool area, six tenths of a mile away. In the past the men would jump in their cars and drive to the motor pool area. On a trial basis, the platoons of Company A are marching from the company formation to their work areas. It is estimated that this simple action can save 1500 gallons of gasoline per year.

In addition, the change has other benefits. "We have more control of the personnel in my shop this way," states Sgt. Earl Bureson. "In the past it would take 25 minutes for all of the stragglers to come in with their cars." There are also advantages at the end of the day. "The march back serves the same purpose as a recall formation. It helps control the people leaving early," states SSG William Jackson. In addition, as First Sergeant Richard Bergeron reports, "The half mile march twice a day adds to our PT program."

The trial program seems to be working out well, and hopefully it will serve as an example in the reduction of gasoline consumption.

BAD MUSHROOMS

The Federal Drug Administration has recently isolated botulinum toxin in mushrooms packed by two different processors. This has resulted in many brands of mushrooms being recalled, or placed in a hold status, until stocks have been inspected or examined. Many brands remain in a hold status. However, the two name brands of mushrooms, (B-B, and GIORGIO) are presently stocked and sold at the Main Post Commissary Stores are not considered suspected hazardous food items. Personnel should be aware of these hazards and use discretion when purchasing and consuming mushrooms.

Elated judo club takes state title

Andrew Connelly of Company C (Airborne-Ranger) 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry (PIONEERS), The School Brigade, demonstrates the winning form that enabled him to be selected for the Army Sports Clinic. (Photo by Rick Wasser)

Connelly twist civilians' arms to improve civilian relations

Andrew Connelly files through the air—lands with a thud on the canvas—then submits to having his limbs twisted unmercifully. More often than not, Connelly is returning the favor and it's all part of an effort to promote favorable Army-civilian relations.

Connelly, a member of Co. C (Airborne-Ranger), 1st Bn., 29th Inf. is one of several judo experts working with the Army Sports Clinic.

The idea of an Army Sports Clinic was originated within the United States Army Recruiting Command (USAREC) by BG George Montague. The clinic, which is sponsored by the Department of the Army, is comprised of soldiers who are experts in various sports, such as judo, wrestling, boxing and track.

Connelly and his judo partner have just recently returned from an exhibition in Phoenix, Arizona with the Army Sports Clinic. They traveled to various high schools in the Phenix City area, demonstrating to students the sports at which they are proficient.

"It's a lot of fun traveling around the nation giving judo exhibitions," said Connelly, "but more important, I can really feel a sense of accomplishment, taking part in a good community relations project."

Connelly has been with the Army Sports Clinic for nearly four months. He was recommended for the clinic by the Fort Benning Judo Club coach, Tom Keaton. In addition to being a member of the Fort Benning judo team, Connelly is a member of considered competitive also. She won easily Saturday and was a Junior National Champion last year."

Benning qualifiers were Debbie Chewning with a first place in the 120 pound womens division; Mark Keaton (1st place) and Donald Jones (3rd place) in the 139 pound mens class; Andy Connelly with a third in the 154 pound mens division and Joe Ponds captured third place in the 176 pound mens competition. Also, Gene Garren (1st) and David Jones (2nd) in the 205 pound mens class qualified for the National Championships. In the Heavyweight division, Jack Hollingsworth qualified with a second place finish.

Neither Georgia or the Army has ever produced a Senior National Champion. However, when the National Championships begin in Phoenix, Arizona on April 25, Benning qualifiers have the potential to bring home a national title or two. Gene Garren was a Pan-American Games gold medalist prior to entering th Army. Andy Connelly lost on close decisions due to the fact that he hadn't trained enough to develop his major attacks and Joe Ponds is showing phenomenal improvement. Mark Keaton, David Jones and Donald Jones are looking very strong. Despite her age, Debbie Chewning has to be considered a potential winner. Barring injuries and with the proper training this could be the year.

By BILL KLOEB

Hedleys Pond produced two of the three fish that won $15 merchandise orders in the Rod and Gun Club January Fishing Derby.

PFC Eugene Hall, 988th Military Police Company won the bass contest with a 13-pound, 4-ounce monster from Hedleys. He used a plastic creme worm to attract the big fish.

SFC Howard Dobbs, 11th Company, TSB won the bream contest with another fish from Hedleys. His entry went 10-ounces on the club scales. He was using live worms.

The winner of the catfish contest came from Victory Pond a little more than a hundred yards from the lodge. SFC Martin Perry, 3026 Grenada Drive was using beef for bait when he landed the 3-pound, 6-ounce catfish that took first place.

Kountry Music at the Club

Jerry Hart and his Kountry Hi-lands played to good crowds at Victory Lodge last weekend. He has been booked for a repeat performance again this weekend. The band will start playing at 8 p.m. tomorrow night and finish at midnight. Sunday they will play from 4 until 8 p.m. More and more members are finding the lodge is an inexpensive place to go Saturday night and a pleasant place for the whole family to spend a Sunday afternoon. Try it this weekend.

Mixed up weather

The return to normal February weather has messed up local fishermen again. Fishing has been fair the past two or three weeks despite high water and muddy streams. The bass and carppie had come out of the deep holes and seemed to be getting ready for the spring spawning. Fishermen reported catching both bass and crappie with eggs and they were catching them in the more shallow water. It will be interesting to hear the results of fishing trips this weekend.

The white bass fishermen were really having a field day. This species had started the spring spawning run. Some had even worked their way up the Upatoi Creek to the Engineer Bridge at Sante Fe Road. They seemed to be ready to hit anything that reflected light. By the middle of this week fishermen reported spotty results with the white bass too.

Bird Hunters are happy

At least one group of hunters were happy to see the heavy frost Wednesday. Bird hunters have been frustrated by the January spring weather. Their dogs have been even more frustrated. The new bloom of flowers and shrubs just about killed the effectiveness of their sense of smell. Hunters may now be able to make the most of the last few days of the hunting season. The last of this month will see the end of the current season.

White Bass-Striped Bass

Fishermen in these parts catch white bass. Fishermen who fish the Georgia rivers that empty into the Atlantic Ocean catch striped bass. Both species make spring runs up the rivers to spawn but that is where the similarity ends.

White bass are a small species. Most of those caught in the Chattahoochee weigh a pound or two. The world record catch is about five pounds. The striped bass is something else. The world record landlocked striper weighed 35-pounds. Catches of 25 to 30-pounds are not unusual.

Miller is bass fisherman of year

Captain Dallas Miller was awarded the much coveted title of "Bass Fisherman of the Year" by the Fort Benning Bass Club during the Bass Club's annual awards banquet, held January 25, at the Black Angus Inn. Captain Miller received a trophy and $50.00 in cash from LTC Gregg Walls, club president. The awards banquet is held annually, marking the end of the fishing year for the local club. Throughout the year club members are awarded points based on the total weight of fish caught during club tournaments. Captain Miller, who is a consistent contender in each tournament throughout the year, was closely followed by LTC Gregg Walls and MSG (ret.) Bob Billman, who tied for second place. The third place title was taken by SFC Jack Tibbs, Sr. Other awards presented included a trophy and $30.00 in cash to LTC George Stevenson for largest bass of the year, 11 pounds 6 ounces. Some twenty-five members and their wives enjoyed a delightful buffet dinner followed by a color movie of the 1973 bassmaster federation tournament at Pickwick Lake, Alabama, in June 1973.

Marksman unit holds service weapon match

The United States Army Infantry Center Marksmanship Detachment will conduct an Excellence in Competition Match for both service rifle (M-16) and service pistol (Cal. 45) on February 21 and 22.

Registrations for these matches must be submitted to OIC USAIC Marksmanship Detachment, Building 2613, Fort Benning, Georgia, no later than close of business February 15.

During the week of February 4-8 a representative from the Marksmanship Detachment will contact each major unit to effect direct coordination regarding dates, times and equipment. Easley and Phillips Ranges will be made available on February 19 and 20 for controlled familiarization and practice firing.

7-73 rolls out the big guns

Given the objective of winning the 1974 IOAC Basketball Tournament, IOAC 7-73 rolled out the "big guns", called up the reinforcements, and swept through IOAC 1-74's perimeter enroute to a 34-25 victory.

The game was decided by the superior height and depth of the IOAC 7-73 team. George Lovelace, Coach of IOAC-7 looked far down his bench and never hesitated in sending in fresh troops, of which at least four stood 6'5" or better.

Meanwhile, behind his perimeter, George Olsen, coach of IOAC-1 kept calling for reinforcements that never arrived. His front line of defense did a magnificent job of containment but were finally overwhelmed by superior numbers. Infiltrators in striped shirts, posing as referees, weakened Coach Olsen's position as they whistled three of the players to the sidelines.

Dallas Miller of IOAC-1 should have won the CMH for his actions as he tossed in 16 points in a losing cause. Mike Woodard with 11, Don Pavlik with 8 and Ronald Sturdivant with 6 led the offensive barrage of IOAC-7.

In a consolation game IOAC-2 swamped IOAC-3, 57-26, as Eric Marshall, ex-Michigan State quarterback, found a new target called a basketball goal. He connected for 24 points and no touchdowns.

Following the championship game trophies were presented by BG William R. Richardson, Assistant Commandant, USAIS.

Pvt. Larry Asbury, 72nd Engr. Co. is unable to hold on to the ball in this rebound attempt. Sgt. Jackie Stanley, Co. A, 1st Bn., 58th Inf. watches the ball go out of bounds during the two teams first meeting in the 1974 Inf. Bde. basketball championships. The engineers defeated the Rifleman Patriots 74-39. Aaron hits 40, keeps on going Hank Aaron was 40 years old Tuesday, Feb. 5.

Many guys his age have trouble climbing a flight of stairs or walking around the block. Most athletes his age belong to the "ex-" category; they've long since retired.

Not so with Aaron. He's got one more active season left as an Atlanta Braves outfielder, and in many ways it'll be the most significant time of his 21-year Major League career.

Nearly everyone knows Aaron will start 1974 with 713 home runs, one shy of Babe Ruth's all-time record.

Shooting team takes 15th trip

A crack U. S. Army Marksmanship Team boarded their plane at Columbus February 8 for a trip to Panama where they are conducting a high power rifle clinic in conjunction with the 15th Annual Pan American Invitational Military Rifle Matches to be held at Fort Amador, Canal Zone.

The "Good Will Ambassador" team, including 23 shooter-instructors, armorers and range operators, have a heavy schedule outlined for their trip which includes the four days of intensive training and clinic during the first week and then four days serving as coaches during the week of the Pan American Matches. shooters will be instructing approximately 200 members of shooting teams from Central and South American nations who will be participating in the Invitational Tournament.

According to Pan American officials a major contributing factor in the success of the annual rifle matches is the exceptional guidance rendered by the Georgia based Army Marksmanship coaches.

This southern pilgrimage has been an annual event of the elite marksmanship coaches since its inception in 1959. The efforts of these outstanding coaches has enabled competitors to raise the standards of marksmanship and maintenance of small arms in the Americas.

PIONEER dining facility in Army-wide competition

A two-man team from the Services Division of HQ TRADOC recently evaluated the dining facility of Company A, 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry (PIONEERS), The School Brigade, as part of the Army-wide competition for the Sixth Annual Phillip A. Connelly Award for Excellence in Army Food Services.

The Company A dining facility, managed by SFC Clifton Edwards, is competing in the category for those serving 200 or more. Representing TRADOC area in the contest, the PIONEER facility was selected from the top dining facilities at Fort Benning to qualify it for consideration as the best in the TRADOC area.

Twenty-three other dining facilities in the Army are competing against the 1-29th facility for the first prize in the 200 and over category. Company C, 3-7th Inf. is the Fort Benning facility being evaluated in the 200 and fewer category.

The evaluating team consisted of Maj. Vis Kimenis and CW2 G. A. McCumber, both of the Services Division of HQ TRADOC.

Their evaluation emphasized such operational characteristics as sanitation, preparation and cooking of food, storage of rations, displaying proper health certificates, attitude and appearance of dining facility personnel, administration and improvements in the dining facility and reaction of troops to the food served.

Although limited in their post-evaluating comments because the competition is continuing, members of the evaluating team indicated a favorable impression of the 1-29th representative in the contest.

Maj. Kimenis remarked, "From what I've observed, the PIONEER facility was well deserving of selection for competition as best dining facility in the Army."

CW2 McCumber added, "The reaction of the soldiers to the food served was one of the best we have encountered thus far in the evaluation."

Security rests with individual

The prevention of crime is a priority in the 197th Inf. Bde. Extensive effort has been devoted to making the soldier's home within the brigade, a secure place to keep his valued property. The foundation of security in the brigade, however, rests with the individual soldier. "Through in-processing briefings and constant reminders," says Maj. Paul R. Flebotte, the S-2 and acting Provost Marshall of the 197th Inf. Bde., "the soldier is educated in his basic responsibilities to secure his property, his room and his automobile. "All too often," larceny occurs when a soldier fails to take the li-recover them." "When my wife and I leave home," Smith continued, "we make sure our apartment is locked up and leave some inside and outside lights on." Pvt. Thomas E. Hawkins, Co. A, 197th Spt. Bn., commented, "I think the company should install better locks on the door in the barracks. This would stop some of the stealing, because if the barracks guard has to leave the area for any reason, it would only take a few minutes to get into any one of the rooms." "If the personnel that have cars parked in the parking lot," Hawkins continued, "would make sure

The 197th Inf. Bde. MP Plt. started full operations on Jan. 7 and has become an important part of the crime prevention program.

The brigade areas on Kelley Hill and in Harmony Church are patrolled 24 hours a day by brigade MPs.

Preventing the introduction of drugs and marijuana into troop areas is a matter of special focus in the crime prevention program.

"To wrap it up," concludes Maj. Flebotte, "crime prevention in the 197th Inf. Bde. is a coordinated effort involving the individual soldier, the military police and the personnel on duty as CQs and guards after normal duty hours."

Rangers

Two soldiers selected for elite unit

Two Fort Benning soldiers have been selected as the first men assigned to the 1st Bn. (Ranger), 75th Inf., activated at Fort Stewart, Ga. on January 31.

LTC Kenneth C. Leuer, formerly assigned to the Directorate of Educational Technology, U. S. Army Infantry School, has been selected to be the new commander of the battalion. CSM Neal Gentry, who was previously assigned to the U. S. Army Infantry Board in the Materiel Test Division, is the new battalion's sergeant major.

The 1st Bn. is the first of a possible three-battalion Ranger Gp. to be formed this year. It is the first Ranger battalion to join the Army organization since World War II. Ranger companies were activated and saw combat during the Korean and Vietnam conflicts, but the last of the Ranger battalions was inactivated shortly after the last World War. The new battalion was activated as a U. S. Army Forces Command unit at Fort Stewart, Ga. The initial cadre of approximately 120 men will be formed and trained at Fort Benning until June 1974, and will then move to Fort Stewart, where it will receive its full personnel strength of approximately 600 men and complete unit training.

This battalion will be an elite, light, readily deployable unit capable of performing a variety of combat missions under the most difficult conditions.

LTC Leuer and CSM Gentry were specially selected for the positions of commander and sergeant major. All other members of the unit will also be specially selected. They will be drawn from worldwide sources. Only the best volunteers who meet the standards of Airborne and Ranger qualification will be selected.

LTC Leuer, 40, earned a bachelor of science degree at the University of Iowa. He is also a graduate of the Basic Infantry Officer, Airborne, Ranger and Advanced Infantry Officer courses at Fort Benning, as well as the Armed Forces Staff College and the Senior Service College.

He has been assigned to the 505th Airborne Bn., 8th Inf. Div. in Europe, and completed a tour with the 2nd Inf. Div. in Korea. During two tours in Vietnam, he served in airborne units. From October 1967 until October 1968 he was with the 173rd Airborne Bde and served with the 501st Bn. of the 101st Airborne Div. during 1971 and 1972. He was assigned to the Directorate of Educational Technology of the Infantry School since July 1973.

His awards and decorations include the Legion of Merit, the Bronze Star with two oak leaf clusters, the Meritorious Service Medal, the Air Medal with 13 oak leaf clusters, the Combat Infantryman Badge and the Master Parachutist Badge.

CGM Gentry, 41, is a qualified Master Parachutist, Ranger, Jungle Warfare specialist and aircraft crewman.

He has served with airborne units during most of his Army career. From 1961 until 1966, he was assigned to the 504th and 509th Airborne Bns. of the 8th Div. in Germany.

He has also completed two tours of duty in Vietnam. He was assigned to the 1st Bn., 506th Airborne Inf. from 1967 until 1968. During his second tour he served with the 1st Bn., 506th Airborne Inf. and Co. L (Ranger), 75th Inf.

His decorations include the Bronze Star with two oak leaf clusters, the Air Medal with six oak leaf clusters, the Army Commendation Medal with three oak leaf clusters, and the Combat Infantryman Badge. He has been awarded the Vietnamese Cross for Gallantry and the Vietnamese Master Parachutist Badge.

Gavaldon selected MP of the year at banquet

Sgt. Frank J. Gavaldon, 139th MP Company, was selected as Ft. Benning Military Policeman of the Year at an Exchange Club banquet last night (Feb. 14). He received $250 and a plaque from the club. Dr. Allen Ault, head of the Georgia prison system, was the principal speaker at the banquet.

The 27-year-old MP investigator has been working for the Ft. Benning Provost Marshall's Office for 2½ years. He served in the U. S. Marine Corps for seven years prior to his Army enlistment. While he was in the Marines, he served in Vietnam for 38 months. His awards include the Navy Commendation medal with "V" device and the Navy Achievement medal with "V" device.

Maj. Marvin Spatz (left), chief of the pharmacy service at Martin Army Hospital, received the trophy for the "Boss of the Year" award, given annually by the Columbus Chapter of the American Businesswomen's Association. Pictured with Maj. Spatz is his secretary Ms. Gloria Page, who nominated him for the award. The presentation was made at the Ralston Hotel in downtown Columbus.

USAMU

It seems to me that if a guard is on duty a criminal is less likely to attempt to do anything than if an electrical device was guarding the premises. Many people are motivated to try to outdo an electrical device. Guards should be armed and most importantly trained well.

Pvt. Jim Paulk Replacement Co.

Yes, it will make that someone that intends to do something off take a second thought if he sees a pair of guards on duty. Usually at top priority buildings they do issue weapons to the guards. I do think there should be two guards at every post. This way if something does happen one can run to get or call the charge of quarters while the other detains the person. But normally the troops don't want to pull guard having to man a post in the middle of the night, ALONE!

Sp5 Rickey Willis 139th MP Co.

In a way. A person walking around an area does somewhat safeguard the premises but the guards should carry weapons to discourage unwanted intruders. If there is a guard in the area the criminal will have to think twice. There are not enough military police to pull guard and also cover the line duty.

William Dixon Combat Support

Not Really! What can a man armed only with a stick do to discourage a potential criminal? The criminal would do it regardless of whether or not the guard was there. I think military police should be used to patrol the guard areas.

SSG William Britton
11th Co. TSB

Darn right it does!!! If someone is there with or without live ammo they can call the commander of relief discouraging a would be criminal. It keeps the honest man honest. I have been pulling guard duty through twenty years of war and peace time and I feel that it is part of being a soldier. Ever since we have had any army there has been guard duty and the people that are trying to get rid of it are only trying to shirk the responsibility.

Pvt. Maika Tagalu Replacement

Not on guard duty I'm not allowed to carry a weapon, all I have is my bare hands to defend myself. Not only that but many times you are by yourself either on an ammo dump or around the company area. There is very little use of having an unarmed guard. They need trained people for guard duty. Anyway most criminals know that most guards are trainees or aren't really given any type of guard training to be qualified to be on guard. They will try to obtain what they want anyway.

Do you think that walking guard really helps to prevent crime?

Eligible to vote?

Odds are 99 to 1 that you are

Yes, it's getting to be that time again. 1974 is election year for thousands of state and local officials and you can be directly involved.

All members of the house of representatives are up for election and many U.S. senators. In addition, many governors, state legislators, judges of different courts, board of education members and other state officials are being elected.

Soldier eligibility
About 56 per cent of all servicemen are in the 18 to 25 age group. Another 43 per cent are older. That means that only one per cent of all soldiers are not old enough to vote.

Yet, in the 1972 elections only half of those eligible actually cast a ballot.

To vote you have to be 18 years old and a legal resident of your home state. You must also be a U.S. citizen.

You can claim as your legal residence the home address you listed when entering the Army. Then, you need only comply with the registration requirements to vote in the fall elections.

Absentee registration
Most soldiers will not be able to return home to register and then again to vote.

For them, the registration process has been simplified.

A soldier can use the federal postcard application (FPCA) for the absentee ballot from his state. Most states accept the FPCA as sufficient information for registration also.

These forms must be filled out carefully and returned to the proper election officials in your county, city or state.

The FPCA should be available in your unit orderly room or through your unit voting officer. If not, they can obtain them for you.

Seven states work differently
Only seven states do not accept the FPCA as the total paperwork necessary for registration and ballot request. These states are Alabama, Alaska, Florida, Kentucky, Louisiana, Mississippi, Nevada and West Virginia.

In each state, the soldier must submit the FPCA to his local registrar. After that, the state will end further registration forms to the soldier.

Several of these states have primary elections in May so soldiers from those states should get started now by filling the FPCA.

Primaries coming up in May:

Alabama, May 7

Arkansas, May 28

District of Columbia, May 7

Indiana, May 7

Kentucky, May 28

Nebraska, May 14

North Carolina, May 7

Ohio, May 7

Oregon, May 28

Pennsylvania, May 21

West Virginia, May 14

Got the gasoline blues?

Person/miles per gallon may be the answer

So it's February already and gas hasn't been rationed yet but those pump prices may be getting you down too.

Well, gas can be saved and the best way to do it is by using the carpool.

Person/miles per gallon

Suppose you have a small car that gets 30 miles to the gallon. If that car goes 30 miles to work one way and only carries one person, that's 30 person miles for that gallon.

Now look at the big car in the carpool. This particular big car only gets 15 miles to the gallon. But, there are four people in it when it travels 30 miles to work. Each person has traveled 30 miles for a total of 120 person/miles covered. Since the car required 2 gallons, the average person/miles per gallon equals 60.

No magic is involved. With four people in the car, three other cars are not on the road that morning. So, gas is saved.

By taking turns, no one driver carries the whole burden.

Carpool gripes

A lot of people say "I would join a carpool but

... Well, many people have the same errands to run. Some of those trips might be combined for carpool members.

Three soldiers in a pool could hit the PX, the commissary and the dry cleaners in a few short minutes with a little planning.

BAYONET Locator Service

The Bayonet carpool locator service is still in operation.

First, locate yourself on the map by reading right and up. Put this information on a sheet of paper, 3X5 card of one of the Bayonet coupons in Bldg. 4 or Bldg. 35.

Include your name, office phone number, building number, working hours and how many riders you can take.

This information can be sent to the Bayonet, Bldg. 4, Room 604. Each week, any information submitted will be placed in the paper with this map.

If you like, you can use the carpool locator boards in Bldg. 4 or Bldg. 35. They have the carpool map and cards for your use. The Bayonet checks these boards and prints the names.

The Headquarters Ladies hosted a pot-luck dinner for the Ladies of the Leadership Dept. on Feb. 5 at the home of Mrs. Lee A. Goffis, on Rainbow Ave. Each lady brought one of her favorite dishes which made the meal

Martin Army Hospital has been accredited by the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals (JCAH) according to Donald L. Kessler, M.D., Program Director.

This accreditation, which covers from Jan. 30, 1974 to Jan. 30, 1976, is the result of an on-site survey made by field representatives of the Joint Commission's Hospital Accreditation Program (HAP). Accreditation indicates that this facility has chosen to operate according to standards set by JCAH and that the facility has met these standards.

The standards, published as the Accreditation Manual for Hospitals, set forth optimal achievable goals of excellence against which a facility can measure itself and be measured by the Joint Commission's survey.

Martin Army Hospital is one of approximately 4,900 general hospitals throughout the U. S. that have earned this recognition.

The Joint Commission's accreditation surveys are voluntary. It is not legally necessary for a hospital to be accredited, but health care facilities have sought accreditation because it represents a benchmark of quality that is higher than governmental licensure alone. The chief aim of the Hospital Accreditation Program, one of four such programs under the JCAH umbrella, is to help hospitals in their pursuit of excellence and thereby provide a higher quality of care to patients. The program also seeks to recognize, and to identify for the public, those facilities which meet its standards.

The Joint Commission began in 1918 under the auspices of the American College of Surgeons. It was incorporated in 1951 with the support of its present member organizations: the American College of Surgeons, the American College of Physicians, the American Hospital Association, and the American Medical Association. JCAH is a Chicago-based, non-governmental, non-profit organization. In addition to hospitals, it has programs for the accreditation of long term care facilities, psychiatric facilities, and facilities for the mentally retarded.

"I'm still wearing the same styles, but my size is on a different rack." Mary Ogden-Carthage, Missouri "To a woman who once weighed over 200 pounds, happiness is slipping into a size 12 instead of fitting up to 24. "I went to Elaine Powers because I had tried almost everything else. When the pounds and inches started melting away, the instructors were so happy as I was. They helped me keep going, and pretty soon I happily discovered my old clothes seemed like someone else's. I'm buying a lot of new outfits, but my husband doesn't mind. He says he's got a new wife."

Washington set demands for troop safety

Not only was George Washington our first president, he also could be considered as the proponent of the U.S. Army Safety Program. During the Revolutionary War in his instructions to Colonel Arnold as he prepared to march against the British at Quebec, Washington instructed Colonel Arnold as follows: "And if you should find that there is danger of your being intercepted, you are not to proceed by water, but by land, taking care of the one hand not to be diverted by light and vague reports, and on the other, not to expose the troops rashly to danger, which by many persons has been deemed very considerable."

Washington was very praiseworthy of his officers who tempered bravery with a careful assessment of the dangers involved. He was scornful of those who took needless risks and endangered their troops.

With the celebration of Washington's birthday coming on February 18 and the resulting three day holiday, we should all take a lesson from our first president.

RECORD ALL CREDIT CARDS BY NUMBER!

By SUSANNE BOSTICK

"Who, me?" "I'm just a private citizen, not a law enforcement expert. What could I possibly do to prevent crime from happening to me?"

If you stop and think, there's a lot you can do. Remember, your car (or television, or credit cards, or almost anything else you own) may be at stake. Keep your belongings locked up, to start with.

"But locks are only to keep honest people honest," you say. "A thief can get past any lock, if he's determined enough."

Maybe so, but the chances of your home or car being broken into are much less when the would-be burglar has a lock (or series of them) to contend with. If you have a chain latch, use it every time you answer the door.

About keys: watch out when you give duplicates to friends. Keys are easily copied. If you ever lose one, have the locks changed immediately, and never keep an identification tag with your keychain. Above all, don't try to "hide" keys in mailboxes or under doormats; that's asking for trouble!

Lock all doors every time you go out, even if you're just going to the corner store. Be sure your windows have locks too, and use them; if you have sliding windows, place a strip of wood on the inside track to prevent anyone from sliding the door open from the outside.

Stop and think:

"People bring on a lot of crime because they aren't careful"

PURCHASE 'QUALITY LOCKS'

Store valuables such as jewelry, bonds and cash in a safe deposit box at the bank. It costs money, but it may save you much more in the long run. Keep checkbooks and credit cards under lock and key at home, and always record credit card numbers so you can report them immediately if one is lost or stolen.

Make lists of the serial numbers on your television, radio, camera, watch, binoculars, and small appliances. Better yet, have the serial numbers engraved on such items in a way that the identification cannot be removed or altered with ease. This will help identify stolen items, should they be recovered.

Don't let phony "repairmen" into your home! Always insist that repair people identify themselves. Be alert for strangers who seem to be just hanging around near your home, or in the hallway of your building. If you see any suspicious-looking cars in the parking lot or neighborhood, make a note of their license tag numbers.

When you go out of town, make arrangements with your neighbors to pick up your newspapers and mail. If you plan to be away for several weeks, have the paper stopped. A mail slot in your front door is ideal; the postman can simply drop letters inside, out of sight of prying eyes.

There are devices on the market that will turn indoor lights on at dusk when you're away; if you don't want to invest in one of these, make arrangements with your neighbors to leave your lights on at night. If you're only going out for the evening, you can leave your own lights on for that length of time.

Uncut grass can also advertise the fact that you're away; make arrangements before you leave to have it cut. Always close the garage door when you leave, even for a short time, and draw curtains or shades after dark.

Women living alone, beware! Use your initial on your mail box, door, and in the telephone book. If you can afford it, have an unlisted number. Don't ever open your door to strangers; ask who's there, and if you don't know the person, don't let him in.

MARK ITEMS IN A WAY TO MAKE THEM EASILY IDENTIFIABLE. //

LEAVING A WALLET OR PURSE LYING UNATTENDED IS AN OPEN INVITATION TO THIEVES!

When you receive wrong-number calls, don't give the caller your number. If such calls continue, report them to the telephone company. Let the military police or local police know you're going out of town; and don't leave notes telling where the house key can be found when you go out.

Keep the bushes around your house trimmed so prowlers can't hide in them, and be sure any stepladders are locked in a storage room.

Be particularly careful when shopping, and don't leave your purse or packages on a counter. Women should carry purses that fasten securely, and avoid shoulder bags. When you are inside a store, lock packages in the trunk of your car. Men's billfolds are safer inside the breast pocket of their suits, rather than in trouser pockets.

Remember: stay alert, be suspicious of anything unusual (people or events) and report all losses or thefts immediately to increase the chances of recovering the item. You can help make sure that crime doesn't pay!

CRIME PREVENTION!

MPs work:

By ILEANE KATZKER

Flashing blue lights and screaming sirens — I always wondered what could possibly keep the Fort Benning Military Police so busy. When I was assigned a story for Crime Prevention Week, I discovered there was a lot more to the "cops and robbers" scene than meets the eye.

To fully appreciate their responsibilities I had to "walk in their boots." Thursday night was rainy, and Lt. James K. Johnson, military policeman on duty, was ready to go when I arrived. Sp4 Donnie A. Tharpe, MP, drove our sedan, one of the five vehicles that patrols the post 24 hours a day.

"An MP could give 100-150 tickets for traffic violations during his shift if he had time."

"An MP could give 100-150 tickets for traffic violations during his shift if he had time," Lt. Johnson said. He explained that the MP usually has more important duties. After studying a list of some 40 moving violations, it was clear to me that this was true.

We observed Outpost No. 1 while the men were running spot checks on incoming vehicles. These checks are to make sure personnel know post regulations, keep controlled speeds, to hand out maps and other information, to monitor traffic and to keep the MP awake during his 12-hour shift.

After stopping some violators, for speeding and for having no post tags, things got relatively quiet. We drove by one of the post facilities with its door open. That's one of the biggest attractors of crime, I was told.

"MPs have more to do than watch people's bicycles."

"I hope that Crime Prevention Week shows that the MP's have more to do than watch people's bicycles," Johnson commented. "It's really aimed at making Fort Benning people aware of what's going on at Fort Benning."

When we heard the details of an armed robbery over the radio, Lt. Johnson said that people should never walk alone at night. They should at least let someone know where they're going, he added.

"Some nights everything happens at once."

The night was filled with one event after another. "Usually only one big thing happens during the night," Sp4 Tharpe said, "but some nights everything happens at once." And they proved to me that they could be everywhere at once. If something gets out of their jurisdiction they call in civilian police.

Saturday night was bitterly cold, and the majority of post personnel must have stayed snuggled at home, for the streets were nearly empty. Lt. Thomas C. Wilks, MP on duty, was in charge of our sedan, with Sp4 Anthony C. Kouis and PFC Wesley D. Fields taking turns behind the wheel. A stolen battery was reported. "What do they expect when they leave their cars abandoned for two days?" One of the men remarked about the case.

"People should not only turn in serial numbers of their valuables but carve in their names."

Back at the Provost Marshall's Office, Curtis T. Payne and Roy E. Turman, MP Investigators, suggested that people not only turn in serial numbers of their valuables to their commanding officers, but that they carve in their names too. Every day a man from PMO checks out local pawn shops for stolen items, and many times they have found items with the serial number removed.

"A lot of units don't report many of their larcenies because they don't want bad reputations."

The men also suggested that commanders better enforce the turning in of serial numbers by their personnel. "A lot of units don't report many of their larcenies because they don't want bad reputations," Wilks said. "They talk about crime prevention, but we can't stop crime unless we know about it."

"It's too bad people have to learn the hard way."

I really felt a sense of security when I arrived at my barracks and saw one of the patrol cars turning the corner. It makes a big difference when you stop and realize how hard the MP's work and that they are working for, not against, you. I wasn't happy though when I discovered my toothpaste had been stolen while I was out. But I'd been careless and I paid the price. It's too bad people have to learn the hard way.

G.W. Birthday Ball
Next Friday, Feb. 22 is a big night for all AUSA members and friends. The George Washington Birthday Ball will be held at Harmony Church Field House. MPs will be on hand to help direct the traffic to the parking lots and buses will be used to bring everyone to the hall. Many units will be decorating their reserved tables and the house itself will be decorated in patriotic colors.

The 67th Maint. Bn. has made all the arrangements for this event. AUSA says thanks to Lt. Ron Bullard, the overall coordinator.

Thief or victim? Who is responsible for thefts?

"But sir, I was gone for only ten minutes; when I returned, I found my radio, television, and all of my clothing were missing from my room." Stolen? Of course. Now the question is presented to the company commander. Who should be held responsible for the incident? Thief or victim?

The problem of company area larcenies and barracks thefts has been of grave concern to company commanders throughout the 36th Engr. Gp.

In an attempt to better constitute efficient methods of crime prevention, alterations in guard feel will constitute for more secure living quarters," remarked Capt. Don Burchell, commander, 566th Floatbridge Co., 36th Engr. Gp.

PRE-MARITAL SEMINAR

The monthly Pre-Marital Seminar, sponsored by the Fort Benning Chaplain's office, will be held Sunday, Feb. 17, from 2-6 p.m. at the Infantry Center Chapel Annex, located in Bldg. 101. Couples of all faiths who are planning to marry or who have been recently married are encouraged to participate. Topics of discussion will include the religious, moral, social, emotional, physical, and economic aspects of marriage. The seminar is supported by Protestant, Catholic, and Jewish Chaplains on post and will fulfill the requirements of some denominations for pre-marital counseling.

OPPORTUNITIES IN PERSONAL FINANCE

Two courses in the Personal Finance Management series are scheduled to be conducted in Infantry Hall by Mr. D. Earl Zook. Course one will be held on Tuesday and Thursday, from 8:15-9:25 p.m., beginning Feb. 18. Course two will be held on Monday and Wednesday, from 6:15-8:25 p.m., beginning Feb. 20. Subjects include — How to get the most out of your income — How to plan your financial future — How to invest wisely — Financial problems of military personnel and how to avoid them — How to save $1000 a year in the purchase, operation, and maintenance of automobiles, and an evaluation of future trends which affects you and your preparation for retirement. Personnel enrolled in either of the courses are invited to bring their wives. No books or fees are required. For more information or enrollment, contact Mr. Alderfer at 545-4091 or come by Bldg. 4, room E-25.

PROJECT TRANSITION

An Automatic Data Processing class is being offered by Project Transition to all military personnel who are within six months of their ETS or retirement date. Redlegs end season; head for post tourney

Jewell Smith (r), Co. A, 1st Bn., 29th Inf. (PIONEERS), The School Brigade, puts on the brakes as he is confronted by a 14th Co., 1st Bn. TSB player. Co. A didn't put on the brakes for long however, as they broke a 27-27 half-time deadlock, and went on to beat the 14th Co. cagers, 57-48. (PHOTO BY RICK WASSER)

Sleeping giants and double trouble highlighted the first night of action in The School Brigade basketball tournament.

The artillerymen of Co. E, 1st Bn., 29th Inf. compiled an enviable 6-1 record during the regular season. The lone loss was inflicted by IOAC-7.

Now, would you care to guess who came along in the opening game of the tournament to hand Co. E a crucial loss? None other than IOAC-7, as they administered a second dose of trouble to the Pioneer "Redlegs" with a 37-30 thrashing.

IOAC-7 broke on top early and stretched out a 20-9 halftime lead. The Pioneers of Co. E came out looking for blood in the second half and moved ahead by four points. However, a last minute scoring barrage by the Advanced students reclaimed the lead and a victory, 37-30.

In the second game of the evening, Co. A, 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry rose up and flattened 14th Co., 1st Bn., 57-48.

Co. A could be the sleeping giant of the tourney. Though posting an impressive 5-1 season record, most of those wins came by narrow margins over mediocre teams.

They opened tournament play against a strong 14th Co. team and proved that they can play with the best of them. The lead changed hands several times in the first half. When Pioneer player-coach Doug Sturgeon sank a twenty-footer as the half-time buzzer sounded, it tied the score at 27 all.

Through most of the second half the lead went back and forth between the teams. Co. A grabbed a late lead and began to widen it. The contest ended providing them with a hard earned victory, 57-48.

High scorers for the Pioneers were Louis Johnson with 17 and Fred Thomas with 16. Arnold Bush netted 15 for the losing 14th Company.

Action continues in the double-elimination tournament to select representatives to the post-level championship.

Cottonbalers take title; head for post tourney pionship February 8 by defeating the 72nd Engineer Co. by a score of 47-43.

The infantrymen of the 3rd-of-the-7th made it through the double elimination tournament without a single loss. The engineers had dropped a game early in tournament play to Batt. B, 2nd Bn., 10th Field Arty. But later came back to beat the artillerymen in the semifinals by a score of 50-38.

Both the Cottonbalers and the engineers will go on to the Fort Benning Basketball Tournament, scheduled to begin next month.

FEB

By BILL KLOEB

February is a dull month for most sportsmen. The weather and fishing are usually lousy and even the most avid hunters are just about hunted out after several months of hunting.

Everyone seems to be regrouping for the better weather and sports coming up in the spring. During this period it's not a bad idea to think a little on the effort that makes all the sport possible at Fort Benning. The super conditions here didn't just happen by accident. It took a lot of effort by a lot of people.

The natural resources conservation program at Fort Benning is directed by the post Natural Resources Management Board. Primary operational agencies are the Forestry Section and the Fish and Game Unit of the Directorate of Facilities Engineering.

Activities of the Forestry Section involve management of the pine and hardwood stands in the woodland areas. This management includes selection and harvesting of mature timber and planting, thinning and cultivation of harvested areas. Control measures such as burning and planning fire-breaks are also a function of the Forestry Section.

The fish and wildlife program at Fort Benning includes fish and game development, conservation and harvest, and maximum recreational use of the land and water available.

Primary objectives of the wildlife program are management of natural habitat to provide a dispersed wildlife population throughout the reservation. Emphasis is placed on the bobwhite quail and white-tailed deer on upland pine sites; the Eastern wild turkey and gray squirrel in the hardwood stands in stream bottoms; and the cottontail rabbit and Eastern mourning dove along field and timber edges.

Huntible populations of these species have been developed and maintained by planting food patches, prescribed burning and good timber management.

Food patches have been established in permanent openings and planted in strips in areas where game is plentiful and food is relatively scarce. The patches are planted for a mixture of wildlife. No emphasis is directed toward specific species.

The post has 18 managed ponds. Emphasis is placed on the populations of large-mouth bass, bream and channel catfish. Ponds are systematically sampled to determine population density, and when indicated, restocking is accomplished by adding fish provided by Federal and state hatcheries. Management of these ponds also includes improvement of shore lines, construction of dams and complete draining, filling and restocking when necessary.

Each year more than 9,000 hunting and fishing permits are issued by the post. Sportsmen annually remove thousands of fish from the ponds and streams, and hunters reap a significant harvest of deer, quail, dove, squirrel, rabbit and turkey. Each year for the past four years the harvest of deer from the reservation has increased by more than 20%. During the season just completed, more than 700 deer were registered at the fish and wildlife check points.

Indoor shooting matches here

Fort Benning is the setting for two competitive marksmanship events this weekend with each of them having portents of national significance.

Making simultaneous entries on the marksmanship stages, an indoor smallbore rifle "champion of champions" and an indoor conventional sectional pistol championship will be running Thursday through Saturday evening with the smallbore rifle tourney being phased out by a National Indoor Sectional Championships for February 16 and 17.

As sectionals, the scores from these two tournaments will be forwarded National Rifle Association (NRA) headquarters in Washington where they will be competing with other sectional fired throughout the country for the national titles. Each will have an individual and a team championship.

The first entry tourneys will be followed by continuous action on Phillips Pistol Range where a three-gun 2700 grand aggregate short course pistol championship and service pistol championship with team matches will commence Saturday and run through Sunday. Competitors will be seeking national records along with tourney crowns in these.

Scouts race originals in Pinewood Derby

The flag is down and the ears are off. This was the scene at the Fort Benning Cub Pack 27 Pinewood Derby.

The Pinewood Derby is a competition within the pack of miniature racing cars of original design built entirely by the scouts. The cars are run down a track heavily sloped at one end. The first car to the finish line is the winner. Events at the Derby included selecting the Scout Den winners, best designed cars, and finally, the pack championship.

43rd answers plea; fights 3 day fire

Mayor Hugh Thompson, Alexander City, Ala., issued a call for help to Fort Benning recently for assistance in extinguishing a garbage dump fire which had blanketed the city with extremely dense smoke.

The 43rd Engr. Bn. (Cont.), 36th Engr. Gp. answered the plea and within 12 hours they had a task force of 45 men and 33 pieces of heavy equipment in Alexander City.

According to Mayor Thompson, the first covered a 300 meter front and had been burning for several weeks. The dense smoke was the cause of several accidents and one manufacturing plant closure.

Cpl. Richard H. Beiter,

PFC James Ralston, of the 43rd Engr. Bn., "Knee On Pushing" as he operates his equipment on a community relations project in Alexander City, Alabama. He and other operators helped to put out an underground fire by covering it with earth. (Photo by Gary Cathcart) task force commander, Co. D, 43rd Engr. stated, "The 43rd was called in when conventional means of fire fighting had failed to extinguish the fire. The fire was deep inside a mountain of rubbish which had been accumulating for years."

There was no text book solution to the task which faced the engineers; the fire posed some unique problems.

"We knew that one of the best ways to kill a fire was to starve it of oxygen," commented Lt. Rob Childs, Co. D, 43rd Engrs.

"Using bulldozers, the men cut the top layers of rubbish away. The smoldering heap was then soaked with water and smothered with dirt," Childs concluded.

Much of the smoke was eliminated the first day and by the end of the third day the fire was out and the men were on their way back to Fort Benning.

One of the biggest problems confronting the dozer operators was the tremendous amount of debris that accumulated around the bulldozers tracks.

Sp4 Raymond King, mechanic, Co. D, 43rd Engrs., remarked "This was the worst entanglement of wire and other material that I have ever seen."

The wire and debris caused the dozens to come to a standstill. However the problem was soon solved by using a cutting torch to burn the excess material from the tracks and soon

Professional actions displayed by the 43rd Engrs. during the Alexander City garbage dump fire has become the most recent joint emergency project completed by the 43rd Engr. Bn.

Last year the 43rd Engrs. were called upon for snow removal during the heavy snowfall in Columbus which disabled many motorist ans vehicles.

Cusseta, Ga was the scene for more assistance by the 43rd Engrs. as that city's water pump facility became inoperable.

When an emergency arises, soldiers of the 43rd

Engrs. stand ready to aid military and civilians with men and machines to combat any drastic situation which may occur.

Opportunity If you eliminate it there is no crime

"Eliminate the opportunity for a crime, and you'll eliminate the crime."

This is the premise that the 1st Bn., 29th Inf. (Pioneers), TSB is operating on, as they go into the final stages of locating the famed support unit in their new home. The 1-29th is currently located just off Highway 27 in Harmony Church, but is in the process of moving about two miles down the road to the 4100 area, which has been completely renovated by civilian contractors.

having a double-lock security — the room itself, and the locker within it." A small portion of the battalion has begun the relocation effort to the 4100 area, and when all of the companies have moved in completely, wire mesh will be installed on all the company supply rooms, insuring further security there. There are a total of three entrances to the

GOOD SELECTION TO CHOOSE FROM

5 YEARS

50,000 MILES

This is the kind of guarantee that should be put in headlines . . . and we did. We are so proud of the way Toyota is built that we can offer a guarantee on the power train, including engine, transmission and rear end, parts and labor for 5 years or 50,000 miles. This is the kind of guarantee that can tear any blanket to shreds. What's more, with our Carefree Car Plan, you will never worry about maintenance because a lot can happen with others, but not with your new Toyota. Only we offer the Carefree Car Plan.

"The bonus paid for our 65-foot trailer."

SP/5 Steve Lacey likes to get in close with airplane engines. But when the day's over, he likes to spread out in a place of his own.

"I'm from Colorado, and I'm used to having lots of room to move. Apartment living isn't my style.

"So, right after reenlisting, my wife and I went to town and bought a trailer. With three bedrooms! Now, if we move, we've got something to take with us."

To the Laceys, today's Army means a good job and a good home to come home to. Your Career Counselor can help you get more of the things that mean the most to you.

Why are you staying in?

The Bayonet, February 15, 1974.

Pioneer's new home. Two of these will be completely closed after duty hours, with roadblocks consisting of 4-inch thick pipe to insure that they remain that way until the next duty day. The only access to the 1-29th area will be manned by a two-man guard throughout the night. "We want to keep strangers out of the batalion area after dark," said Captain Mitchell. "I really feel that maintaining a secure perimeter, and keeping a close accounting of personnel, is the most effective method of crime prevention."

Play ball, relax or anything at Kelley Hill service units

By Bob Thomas

Soldiers of the 197th Inf. Bde. stationed on Kelley Hill have at their disposal a complete array of recreational facilities, all within easy walking distance.

Among these facilities, and probably the most used, is the Kelly Hill Field House.

"I guess I like to use the gym because I play basketball," said PFC Jeffrey Ward, Co. A, 3rd Bn., 7th Inf., (Cottonbalers). Ward is the captain of the 197th's championship basketball team. "But the facilities here are great."

Among the equipment available at the field house are basketballs, volleyballs, a complete set of weights, boxing gloves, tennis rackets and indoor handball. The gym has complete shower facilities and a sauna bath.

Located on the west end of Kelley Hill is a double facility popular with men in the 197th, the bowling center and craft shop.

"I'm afraid that many soldiers are just not aware of our craft shop here," stated John Smith, director of the Kelly Hill facility. "Although this was designed primarily for the troops living in the barracks here, I'm afraid that the majority of those using it are off-post personnel."

Among the different crafts available at the craft shop are woodwork, leathercraft, pottery and photography.

"I'd like to emphasize that it doesn't cost a cent to come in and try any of the crafts we have," Smith explained. "We have instructors who are more than willing to explain or teach. All you have to do is ask."

Just a short walk from the bowling center-craft shop is a facility that provides savings as well as recreation to the mechanically inclined, the Kelley Hill Auto Craft Shop. The auto facility is the most modern of its kind on Fort Benning and contains a complete auto workshop with instructors to help guide those not sure of themselves.

"Anything from changing a tire to rebuilding an engine," stated Sgt. James Thomas, one of the facilities instructors. "We even have a paint building and everything required to paint a car but the paint, and we can help get that at a discount."

"We are here to show people how to do what they want to do," Thomas continued. "Everything from changing spark plugs to grinding valves. Individuals can even leave their autos here for up to 30 days while working." Another facility popular as large as 100 or more, few soldiers actually utilize all of the facilities.

PFC Timothy Fuller, Co. A, 3rd Bn., 7th Inf. (Cottonbalers) (left), who works as an instructor in the Kelley Hill Craft Shop, explains leathercraft techniques to Sp4 Jack Ward, Co. A, 197th Spl. Bn., 197th Inf. Bde. The Kelley Hill Craft Shop offers a variety of arts and crafts to soldiers of the brigade, including a woodshop, photo darkroom, pottery and leathercraft. (Photo by Bob Thomas)

Harmony Church Field House is off duty haven

The Harmony Church Service Club is the answer to many 197th Inf. Bde. soldiers' prayers, especially those assigned to the 1st Bn., 58th Inf. and the 2nd Bn., 68th Ar.

The club, set off in a wooded area near the Harmony Church Field House, with its paneled walls and rustic interior is a haven of relaxed atmosphere.

Many variations of entertainment are offered at the service club throughout the entire week.

Three nights a week are reserved for various tournaments. On Sundays, a pool tournament is held at the club.

Wednesday nights are aimed at the card players with emphasis placed on a "spade" tournament.

Ping-pong is the name of the game for Saturday, with a tournament held each week.

"We give some very nice prizes to the winners of each of the tournaments," states Mrs. Valerie Brown, a recreation aide at the service club.

During the rest of the week, and on the nights of the tournaments, there are various other activities a soldier can participate in.

Checkers, chess and "charades" are a few of the favorite games played by many of the soldiers.

The Harmony Church Service Club is well stocked with numerous types of musical instruments, record players, tape recorders and projectors, both slide and movie.

"We have what we call a 'black light' room," says Mrs. Brown, "where the men can take a record player and a few albums to listen to."

"There are also three rooms with pianos in them," Mrs. Brown continues. "The men can take other instruments in these rooms and hold their own 'jam' sessions."

Another program that the Harmony Church Service Club has consist of learning to play musical instruments. They have cassette tapes and books that give easy instructions for most instruments.

"We have had our hours cut so we do not open until 4 p.m. and remain open until 11 p.m.," Mrs. Brown explains. "However, we are trying to arrange it so we can open earlier for those soldiers who want to use our facilities during the day."

Have a ball at the G. W. birthday ball

The fifth annual George Washington's Birthday Ball will be held tonight, Feb. 22 in the Harmony Church Field House. Cocktail hour will be from 7 to 8 p.m. with the 283rd Army Field Band providing music. The ball is sponsored by the Columbus-Phenix City-Ft. Benning Chapter of the Association of the United States Army.

At 8 p.m. buffet will be served. Included on the menu will be roast beef, potato salad, rolls and cake. The program will begin at 8:45, with the Apocalypse, a youth choir from the Columbus Evangel Temple Assembly of God Church, presenting music on a patriotic theme. Director of the choir, which has recently returned from a trip to South America, is Mr. Hal Stewart.

After remarks by MG Thomas M. Tarpley, Fort Benning commander, and Mr. Joe Windsor, AUSA chapter president, Mrs. Mary Phelps, the Fort Benning nominee for Army Wife of the Year, will be honored.

Dancing will begin immediately after the program, with music by McCormick and the Sundance Trio. The price of tickets is $5.00 per person, and each ticket is good for one free cocktail during the evening. Tickets still available from Sergeant First Class Jesus Valenzuela in the Information Office, Room 604, Infantry Hall.

Tickets may also be purchased at the Columbus and Phenix City Chamber of Commerce offices. Dress for the ball is greens with poplin shirt for military, coat and tie for civilians, and cocktail dress, short or long, for the ladies.

Military police will be on hand to direct traffic to the parking area for the ball, and buses will be at the parking area to take guests to the field house.

Mr. John Schultz is master of ceremonies for the event, and Lieutenant Ron Bullard is overall coordinator. The 67th Maintenance Battalion made all the arrangements, and several units will decorate their tables around a patriotic theme.

Sergeant Frank J. Gavaldon, 139th MP Company, was selected as Fort Benning Military Policeman of the Year at an Exchange Club banquet Feb. 14. He received $250 and a plaque from the club. The 27-year-old MP Investigator has been working for the Fort Benning Provost Marshall's office for 2 1/2 years.

PREP graduates 1st student

Sp5 Carmello Loubriel was the first person to receive his high school diploma from the Muscogee County School District through the Predischarge Education Program (PREP) in a ceremony Feb. 19 at Infantry Hall. He earned his diploma from Jordan Vocational High School in six months.

Major General Thomas M. Tarpley, commanding general of Ft. Benning, and Dr. Braxton A. Nail, superintendent of education of Muscogee County School District, presented the diploma to Sp5 Loubriel of 524th Personnel Services. Mr. Jere Richardson, director of adult and vocational education of Muscogee County School District, and Mr. William A. Screws, principal of Jordan High School, attended the presentation. Mr. Leonard Ozley, education officer for the U.S. Army Infantry Center, also attended.

"The PREP program is really great," Loubriel said. "Instead of giving you the run-around they help you to get your diploma. I'm grateful to my unit and my section, Consolidated Military Personnel Office, for releasing me so I could attend classes."

"Many colleges, universities, trade schools and high schools worldwide are now offering PREP programs to soldiers who have over 180 days of active service. The courses offered by these programs are designed and taught at the adult level by civilian institutions to meet the educational needs of military personnel.

WOA holds membership drive

The Ft. Benning Warrant Officer Chapter of the U. S. Army Warrant Officer Association is holding its annual membership drive during the month of March.

With over 300 warrant officers assigned at Ft. Benning, the chapter hopes to double its present membership or more this year.

The local chapter has been assigned building 1810 (across from the tennis courts on Anderson Street) for meetings, which are held on the second Thursday of each month at 6 p.m.

The motto of the Warrant Officers Association is "professionalism, recognition, and representation." These are also the chapter's goals. The local chapter is involved in civic activities. Including a monthly birthday party at the Columbus Nursing Home.

All warrant officers, active and retired, are eligible for membership. The next meeting will be March 14 in Building 1810. Prizes will be awarded to members who sign up the most new members. First prize is a twenty-five dollar savings bond.

1st Bn. TSB celebrates 67th birthday

To commemorate the organization of the 1st Bn., TSB, 67 years ago, LTC Donald C. Bowman, Commander, has planned ceremonies to celebrate its birthday on Feb. 22.

Festivities for the day will include a ceremony to be held at 1500 hours on the parade field just south of TSB headquarters, refreshments and an open house in the 14th Co. dayroom following the parade. In the event of inclement weather, an appropriate ceremony will be held in the 14th Co. wing of the dining facility. The public is invited.

Marching to patriotic tunes, 250 children from Edward A. White School participate in "America Sings," a Parent Teacher Action Committee production, Feb. 12 at Marshall Auditorium. These third, fourth, fifth and sixth graders sang, danced, played instruments and gave individual excerpts from American history. (U. S. Army Photo by Sp. Scott)

Pvt. Brian O. Neill
23rd Replacement Co.

The service clubs are pretty good but the barrack's dayrooms are really poor. I like to play basketball and the gyms are always crowded. I would like to see more outdoor basketball courts constructed.

1Lt. Keith Slicer
Headquarters,
43rd Engineers

I have not used the post recreational facilities, because of my living downtown. It is just too far! I use a downtown tennis court for my recreation.

Sgt. Kevin Brown
23rd Replacement

I really don't know what Fort Benning offers as far as recreational services are concerned. I have been to the service club a few times but I usually just eat and go to the show.

Are recreational services at Fort Benning adequate?

Sgt. Marvin Gardner
Head and Head
145th Aviation

I only come on post to work!! I live downtown and it is too long a drive to use the post facilities. The only post facility that I do use is the auto shop. I do minor repairs and tune-ups, it saves me money. It could use more equipment, newer manuals and wash racks. Most of the time the timing equipment is non operative and they always tell me that they don't have the funds to repair it.

MSG. Jose Santiago
B. Co. Headquarters
Command

No!!! The big attraction at Fort Benning used to be the post level games with people flocking into the stadiums to watch the games. My last tour here I would be in the stands with the crowd at every game. When I came back for this tour I expected the same, but this has been a sour tour. I also think that the older teen-agers do not have adequate recreational activities.

Warrant Officer Candidate Tito Serrano
Martin Army Hospital

I think if you use all the facilities on post you will have plenty to do! There are not enough people that make use of the facilities. If they did there would be a lot less people without things to do.

Sgt. James Pierce
A Co. 1/58

I have only been here a month but what I have seen I would have to say yes. I am planning on using the bowling alleys and the gyms. I also love crafts and there are many craft shops on post.

Co. C 3/7 wins best mess

The Ft. Benning Best Dining Facility Award for Excellence in Food Service -- in the small unit category -- has been awarded to Co. C, 3rd Bn., 7th Inf. (Cottontailers), 197th Inf. Bde.

This places the dining facility in Army-wide competition for the highest award given through the Army's Food Service Program, the Phillip A. Connelly Award. Co. C has won the post-level competition for twelve consecutive months.

The award was presented to SFC Howard H. Garrett, the Dining Facility Manager by MG Thomas M. Tarpley, the Post Commander, on Feb. 8.

"We have a great bunch of cooks here and they work well together," stated SFC Garrett. "I feel confident that we have an excellent chance at winning the Connelly Award."

The unit dining facility was evaluated by the U. S. Army Training and Doctrine Command (TRADOC) on January 24, for consideration in the Connelly Award competition.

NSA slates seminar for women

The Port City Chapter of The National Secretaries Association, International, has announced plans for a one-day seminar for secretaries, administrative assistants, and other businesswomen. The program, scheduled for Saturday, March 9, at the Ralston Motor Hotel, will focus on self-development and the development of administrative, leadership, and management skills.

The course, entitled Managerial Concepts for Professional Secretaries, will be conducted by Mrs. Gloria Conrad, president of GHC Associates, Inc., and director of the Educational Institute for Businesswomen, Atlanta, Georgia.

A registration fee of $25 includes the course, materials, refreshments, and lunch. Additional information may be obtained by contacting Mrs. Kathleen Overby, Seminar Chairman, P. O. Box 1657, Columbus, telephone 322-8891.

Dealing with possible "H bombs"

The National Safety Council is warning motorists who engage in battery-jumping that they are dealing with "latent hydrogen bombs."

Cold, wintry weather threatens to knock the punch out of man automobile batteries and many drivers will find themselves with battery cables in hand, braving the cold weather to charge or "boost" those power cells.

Charging battery emits gas

According to the National Safety Council, when a battery is charged, a chemical reaction takes place, releasing highly explosive hydrogen gas. An air mixture as little as four per cent hydrogen can be explosive, and it takes no more than a hot cigarette ash or a spark from the jumper cables themselves to ignite the mix.

The National Safety Council suggests that if motorists must jump batteries, they should follow these precautions:

1. Turn off the ignition and all of the electrical accessories in both cars. This will minimize the load on the booster battery and reduce the chance of sparking.

Be sure cars don't touch

2. Make sure that the cars are not touching. The contact could set up a ground connection and drain off the charge from the booster battery. Shift both cars into neutral or park and set the emergency brakes.

Be sure voltage is same

3. Check to be sure that both batteries are of the same voltage. Six-volt batteries have three filler caps; 12-volt batteries have six caps.

4. Remove the caps from both batteries and check to see that the fluid is at the correct level in all of the cells. Place a clean rag over the uncapped vent holes of both batteries to keep the fluid from splashing out when the batteries are connected. If the fluid is frozen, don't try to jump the battery. It may rupture or explode.

Clean terminals on both cars

5. Make sure the battery terminals on both cars are clean and free of corrosion. Then attach the end of one jumper cable to the booster battery's positive terminal. Twist the jaws of the jumper clamp around on the battery terminal to ensure a good metal-metal contact. Attach the other end of the same cable to the positive terminal of the discharged battery.

Fix ground away from battery

6. Attach one end of the second cable to the negative terminal of the booster battery. Being careful not to touch any of the other clamps, connect the other end of the cable to a ground point on the engine block of the car being jumped. This can be any readily accessible metallic part that is not painted, chrome-plated or grease-covered. The ground should be at least a foot from the battery being jumped.

Avoid drainage; start boost car

7. Engage the starter on the car with discharged battery. If the engine doesn't start immediately, start the engine of the booster car to keep its battery from being drained.

Remove cables one at a time

8. After the car with discharged battery is running, remove the cable connection at its engine block first; then remove the other end of the cable from the booster battery.

Remove the second cable by disconnecting at the booster battery first.

9. Replace the caps on both batteries and throw away the cloths, which will be contaminated with sulfuric acid.

Watch out for foreign cars

10. Some cars, particularly some foreign models, may have positive grounds. These are easily identified by a grounding strap running from the battery's positive terminal to the engine block or the car's frame. When jumping a battery with a positive ground, connect the negative terminal of the negative grounded booster battery to the discharged battery's negative terminal. Connect the positive terminal on the booster battery to a ground point on the car being jumped.

A final suggestion can be made to replace old batteries that do not hold a charge well.

WHO WHAT WHERE

BY JACKIE ROBKE

THE SCHOOL BRIGADE

The wives of the 4th Student Battalion invite all TSB officers' wives to attend a coffee, March 6 at 10 a.m. in the Benning Room of the Main Officers' Club. Reservations must be made by March 1 to your unit commander's wife.

OCWC MEETS

The first regular meeting for the wives of the 50th OC Co. was held in Jan. LTC and Mrs. William Duncan and Chaplain and Mrs. Edgar P. Shackelford welcomed the new members. Officers were elected and plans for the next coffee were made.

The next meeting will be held on Feb. 27, in the 50th Co. dayroom. The battalion commander's wife, Mrs. William Duncan will speak on Army protocol and social functions. Plans for the 10th week party will be made at this time.

Any questions can be answered by calling Judy Mellick, club chairman, at 689-2877, or other club officers. New members are welcome.

HEADQUARTERS COMMAND

The January coffee for the ladies of Headquarters Command, USAIC, was held at the home of Mrs. Fred Chiverton.

Farewell was bid to Mrs. Harold Meeker. The Meekers are leaving for Monroira, Liberia, on the west coast of Africa.

BBOD-POT LUCK SUPPER

A just-plain-fun, good old fashioned pot-luck supper and chin-wag affair was the February event for Staff Group, BBOD officers' wives. The home of Mrs. Douglas Boling was opened to the thirty ladies who attended on the evening of Feb. 6. Mrs. George Heckman and Mrs. Peter Boukalis assisted Mrs. Boling.

Special guests were Mrs. Lawrence Mowery, Mrs. Michael Doyle, Mrs. Paul

Schulz and Mrs. M. Kramer. Mrs. Herb Williams, whose husband recently joined the Personnel Committee, was given a warm welcome to the group by Mrs. Sanders A. Cortner.

Announcements were made of a tea to be held honoring Mrs. Mowery and the BBOD formal to be held later this month.

43rd ENGINEER BATTALION

A welcome coffee was held Feb. 7, at the home of Mrs. Howard Guba, Miller Loop. Co-hostess was Mrs. James Wigglesworth. Warmly welcomed was Mrs. Ames Albro, wife of the 36th Engineer Grp. commander. Mrs. James Boylan, was a special guest.

New members welcomed into the wives' club included Mrs. Thomas McCranie, Mrs. Steve Carr and Mrs. Carl Martin, each receiving a "welcome-plant." Silver trays were presented to departing members, Mrs. Jose Castellanos and Mrs. Robert Royer.

The March coffee will be held at Hickory Farms and will be hosted by Mrs. James Kee and the ladies of Company A.

DOI LUNCHEON

Members of the DOI wives' group were entertained with a luncheon on Feb. 6 by Mrs. Fletcher K. Ware at her quarters on Lumpkin Road. Mrs. George F. Newton was co-hostess.

Honored guest was Mrs. Alexander M. Weyand whose husband, COL Weyand, recently assumed directorship of DOI. They come to Fort Benning for a tour at the Pentagon.

Special guests were Mrs. William R. Richardson and Mrs. Rollier.

3rd-7th OFFICERS' CALL

The ladies of the 3d Bn. 7th Inf., 197th Inf. Bde. joined their men at Officers' Call on Feb. 8, at the King's Pond Recreation Area. It was just an evening of fun for the "Cottonbalers." Everyone wore their oldest clothes and all the gals brought boxed dinners which were auctioned off to the highest male bidders.

Games of chance were offered as entertainment, along with an auction of "pink elephants" which included such choice items as an old fishing pole and a boxed skillet dinner. Lt. George Frankl won a prize for dressing in the oldest clothes.

All proceeds from the tremendously successful evening went toward the purchase of a silver punch bowl service, a gift for the battalion from its officers and ladies.

NCOA

The "Follow Me" Chapter of the NCOA and their auxiliary group, the "Followettes", sent a gift of wine to the residents of Muscogee Manor for their evening Valentine's Day Dinner. The gift was received with excitement and anticipation by those lovely people.

BETA SIGMA PHI VALENTINE'S DANCE

The Airport Holiday Inn set a festive scene, Feb. 9, for the Annual Beta Sigma Phi Valentine's Dinner-Dance.

The highlight of the evening was the crowning of the chapters' Sweetheart Queens. Mrs. James Badger (Lynda) of Montith Ct. was the choice of the Alpha Gamma membership; Mrs. Joseph Griffin (Marilyn) of St. Mary's Rd. in Columbus, was chosen by Xi Alpha Theta; and Mrs. Thomas Matthews (Karen) of Willowbrook Dr.,

Columbus, was Beta Chapter's choice. Each lady received a crown and red roses, and will now be entered into the International Sweetheart Queen contest held each year by Beta Sigma Phi International.

The Exotics provided the evening's dance music.

Thanks go to Xi Alpha Theta for planning such a successful and entertaining event.

Dramatizers learn lighting skills

The Fort Benning Dramatizers, currently "between shows," are using the brief break in their usually hectic schedule to learn as a group some practical skills instage lighting.

Sp5 Ed Gross, who has spent three years as Entertainment Specialist at the Playhouse, is conducting the seminar, which meets directly following the regular business meeting each Monday at 7:30 p.m. in the Playhouse (behind the Infantry Museum).

When asked what qualifications and experience he had in stage lighting, Sp5 Gross said, "Very little before coming to the Dramatizers. Since then, I've read extensively and had the opportunity to experiment a lot with different equipment. I've been lighting designer for six shows of the thirteen I've worked on at Benning. In addition, I've had the benefit of Mr. Roy Lothner's (Music and Theatre Director) extensive experience."

Is there something special about the Dramatizers that makes it possible to include such things as a lighting seminar in the regular Playhouse activities? "Yes," Sp5 Gross replied, "there is. Because the Dramatizers are all volunteers, what the group does is determined by the members and their interests. That applies to shows, workshops, and any other activities. And we have, of course, people with all types of experience, and people who are brand new to theatre and want to learn. We all learn a great deal by participating in shows, whether it's on stage or backstage, and we benefit from each others' knowledge."

Did you find it difficult to conduct a seminar for people of such diverse backgrounds? "Actually, the main problem came in deciding how much technical information to present in each session without confusing or turning anyone off, while still giving people the information they need. I solved part of the problem by giving detailed "hand-outs." You really have to narrow down your field and stick as closely to the subject as you can."

How complex is the field of lighting design? "Enormously. It's one of those fields in which the more you learn, the more you realize you need to know. But there are a lot of basics, too, and once a beginner masters them, he's well on the way to becoming a productive and creative designer."

What would you encourage someone interested in lighting design to do? "Read everything you can get your hands on," Sp5 Gross said. "Experiment with the equipment. Get the best by running lights once or twice for a director; then volunteer to design. Of course any designer for the theatre works closely with his cohorts — the other designers and the director. Sometimes it takes effort to achieve the effects a director wants while keeping your own ideas in the design."

Would you recommend the Ft. Benning Playhouse as a good place to begin or continue learning theatrical skills? "Definitely. It's fun to learn while working on a show, much more enjoyable than sitting in a classroom, because you can try things."

The Dramatizers is open to anyone in the Columbus-Ft. Benning-Phenix City area. Anyone interested can get more information by calling 545-5057 any weekday during duty hours, or by attending the business meeting each Monday night at 7:30 p.m.

Preservation conference to be held at Westville

A Conference on Historic Preservation will be held at the 1850 village of Westville on March 8th and 9th from 10:00 AM-4:00 PM. The two-day workshop is sponsored by the State Department of Natural Resources and Westville in conjunction with the Lower Chattahoochee Planning and Development Commission.

Staff members of the Historic Preservation Section, formerly the Georgia Historical Commission, and of the Georgia Heritage Trust Program will be at Westville to acquaint the group with their work and to provide additional information for the State Historic Preservation Plan, which in part consists of a statewide comprehensive survey of historic sites.

Henry Green, well known authority on early furniture of the Piedmont Region, and Mrs. Earl Getchell, past president of the Historic Mobile Preservation Society, will be featured speakers on Friday, March 8. Other topics will include the National Register program, historic architectural observations in this region and methods of research and photography. The staff of the Historic Preservation section will be available for consultations with anyone having specific questions or problems to discuss.

The workshop is open to anyone interested in historic preservation. For further information, write: Westville, Box 848, Lumpkin, Georgia 31815.

Do your own thing - inside or out by Bruce Andrea

No other local community offers so many outlets for recreational needs as Fort Benning. They're just waiting for you to take advantage of — for free or at rock-bottom prices.

Maybe you don't know what sports or recreational activities you would like, or wish to compete in. With the more than ample services and activities being offered to Benning residents, whatever you decide it can be done.

Do you have a ball? Do you need one? Any kind — a basketball, volleyball, softball, handball, football. How about bowling, swimming and diving, tennis, golf, judo, boxing and squash. Facilities located throughout the post offer opportunity to participate in these sports and others. Whether you care to learn through clinics (when announced), to compete at the intermural or higher level or just pass the time, the facilities and equipment are there for your use.

Exercising adds years for men and women

The Run for Your life and the Swim for Your Life programs are looked upon by many as recreational outlets. Both programs find male and female participants adding years to their life and enjoying it. Build up your endurance and then try your hand at the exciting new sport of orienteering.

Recreational activities for the outdoorsmen or nature lover are abundant.

There are two recreation areas on post. Each has lodge facilities for large parties and outdoor picnic areas with playground equipment for the children. A new boat marina is now in use on Uchee Creek and a new recreation facility is being developed.

The recreation services Boat and Camper Rental Office operates seven days a week. Available for rental are 14' boats with outboard motors, life preservers, oars, canoes and campers of various sizes. In addition, both single speed and 3 speed bicycles will soon become available.

Camping is allowed on most parts of the reservation. Check with Range Control for areas approved and then leave word with the Provost Marshall as to where you will be and for how long.

Hunting and fishing are big here

Each year more than 9,000 hunting and fishing permits are issued by the post. Sportsmen annually harvest thousands of largemouth bass, bream and channel catfish from ponds and streams. Hunters find deer, quail, dove, squirrel, rabbit and turkey to be plentiful in authorized areas of hunting upon the reservation. The Rod and Gun Club and the Fort Benning Chapter of the Bass Club provide numerous services to their respective members. Trap, skeet ranges, field archery ranges, hunting and fishing clinics, turkey shoots and bass rodeos are just a few.

Save gas and ride — rent a horse

You can enjoy your time outdoors on horseback. The Hunt Club stables have horses available on a rental basis to members and non-members alike. Whether it be riding along bridal paths, cross country or just remaining with the several training rings in the stable area to pick up a few pointers — fun can be had by all.

Numerous clubs and organizations of Benning residents help promote sports and recreational activities. The Judo Club, Scuba Diving Club and the Orienteering Club welcome your membership, and offer exciting opportunities to learn and to compete. The Rifle and Pistol Club promote match competition training and development. The Fort Benning Chapter of the Sport Car Club of America sponsors rallies and cross-country events. The Sport Parachute club offers a complete training program and weekly jump activities to its members. The Flying Club of Fort Benning can help you earn your private pilots rating through an FAA-approved program of instruction. Aircraft are available for cross-country trips or proficiency flying.

Get involved In Any Club

Whatever your "thing" is, when you step outdoors or feel the urge to exercise — "We gotcha". Most facilities and organizations have listed telephone numbers. If not, attend one of the events and ask around. You'd be surprised at what can be done at Fort Benning if you only get involved.

Non-Athletes Can Get Involved Also

If you're the indoors type or the non-athletic type we still can get you involved.

To begin with, there are five theaters located on post, designed for your enjoyment. An average of twelve different movies are shown weekly with a different movie shown daily at all theaters.

Live stage productions are presented at the Fort Benning Playhouse. Located at the Playhouse is a theatre group responsible for all legitimate theatre productions at the post. Known as the "Dramatizers", they are individuals, both military, dependents and civilians who are interested in the performing arts. Whether experienced professional or dabbling amateur you will always feel welcome at the Playhouse.

Music and libraries are fun

The Music Center offers instruction in voice as well as both basic and advanced guitar and piano. There is also a mixed chorus which meets weekly and performs locally.

Never think of libraries as just a "house of books." Fort Benning libraries, in addition to an extensive collection of library materials, offer records, reel tapes and automobile tapes for circulation. Music rooms equipped with stereo players and individual study booths with typewriters are also provided.

If you have a hobby to pursue or just have a desire to do it yourself then the many craft shops on post fill the bill.

Woodcraft, ceramics, photography, silversmithing and leathercraft, are some of the crafts that can be applied. Plastics, candle making, basketry, decoupage and model making are other ways of enjoying free time.

Fix your own auto at post craft shops

Tune-ups, major overhaul of motor, transmission and differential, body and fender repair, welding and battery charging can be accomplished at the automotive craft shops. Service and repair of motorcycles, bicycles and lawn mowers can also be done. Not only does the use of the auto craft shop bring pride in doing it yourself it also saves money.

There are three recreation centers that are open to enlisted personnel and their families. These centers have lounges, music rooms, game rooms and television areas. For use within the recreation centers are musical instruments of every description, game equipment and magazines. Programs include instructions in crafts, holiday observances, parties, exhibits and many other recreational activities.

There are bridge clubs, an aquarist society, citizen band radio club and a radio controlled flyers club for those who follow these interests.

The Fort Benning Travelers promote square dancing and frequently hold a round or two of dancing.

The Fort Benning Consolidated Club System offers to enlisted personnel, NCO's and officers the facilities to enjoy an evening of dining and dancing. Stop by one of the clubs and cement old friendships or meet new people.

One can even volunteer his or her time to the Army Community Services or Youth Activities and reap rewards and benefits beyond measure.

How many times have you heard that there isn't anything to do at Fort Benning? How often have you used the many facilities and services offered to you as a Benning resident? There is more than enough to do—it simply requires that you get involved.

The answer lies not in what activity one chooses to become involved in, but in simply becoming involved. Time is a precious commodity too often needlessly wasted. If involvement replaced idle complacency, the main benefactor is likely to be—~~you~~

There are things to do, places to see so get out and take a look at Georgia

When you're looking for something to do on a weekend, remember this: you don't have to go all the way to Atlanta to have a good time. You can find plenty of interesting places to visit right here in the Chattahoochee Valley.

You can water-ski, ride a bicycle, or take nature walks at Callaway Gardens; visit Franklin D. Roosevelt's Little White House at Warm Springs or the Confederate Civil War Prison at Andersonville or return to another Georgia, that of the 1850's, in a re-created town called Westville.

Callaway Gardens, located at Pine Mountain, Ga., about 30 miles north of Columbus on U.S. Highway 27, is a place of variety and charm. There are beaches, a 63-hole golf course and tennis courts, fishing in Mountain Creek Lake, and Ida Cason Memorial Chapel, where organ concerts are given regularly.

Every summer, the Florida State University Flying High Circus performs daily, and there are water ski shows on Robin Lake as well as the Annual Masters Water Ski Tournament. The Conservatory Greenhouse is open year round, and the Pioneer Log Cabin and Old Covered Bridge are reminders of another era.

by susanne bostick

That "other era" comes to life at Westville, located in Lumpkin, Ga., at the intersection of U.S. Highway 27 and Georgia Highway 27. Homes, stores and public buildings are accurately reproduced to resemble those that would have existed a century ago in a typical Georgia town.

Craftsmen such as carpenters, blacksmiths, potters, basketmakers, gardeners, and seamstresses use the tools of a century ago to ply their trades. Candles, soap, and cloth are made by other craftsmen. Westville will never be "finished;" new buildings, crafts, and industries will be added every season.

Adjacent to Westville is Providence Canyons, a scenic spot formed by trickles of water down old Indian paths. A small creek is at the bottom, and across the road from "Little Grand Canyon" (as it is known by locals) is a cemetery with graves dating back to the Civil War.

An even larger cemetery, and one that was an infamous Confederate prison during the Civil War, is located at Andersonville, only a morning's drive away from Columbus. There the visitor sees row upon row of white markers, reminding us of Americans who died in wars during the past hundred years.

1/58 graduates last AIT platoon

It's a first and last for Co. A 1st Bn. (Mech) 58th Inf 197th Infantry Brigade. It's a first in that an AIT platoon has completed Advanced Individual Training with a perfect record of AIT graduates—100 per cent. Not one man had to be recycled because of his failure to successfully complete AIT.

It's a last in that the 1st Plt. of Co. A was the last platoon size element of AITs programmed into the battalion. All future arrivals will have received this training at other installations prior to being assigned to the battalion.

What is the platoon's training status now? Having completed AIT and Basic Unit Training, the platoon underwent its Army Training Test (ATT) last week.

"With the completion of the testing for this infantry platoon and one mortar platoon the battalion will have all of its platoons and companies tested. Then the battalion will take its ATT. We will be the first battalion to complete the testing," explained Maj. Gale R. Zink, the battalion S-3.

"I think this platoon is good," continued Maj. Zink, "and having the leaders go through the training with the men and operating as a unit has helped its esprit-de-corps. The platoon has not even had an AWOL."

What does Lt. William B. Scott, the platoon leader, attribute to having a good platoon, "I can push and push, but without the squad leaders support you have nothing.

The squad leaders are young, but they are good, every one has had mechanized infantry experience. An example of what I mean by good squad leaders is Sgt. Robert G. Blackstock, he has just been selected Junior Leader of the Month for the battalion," concluded Lt. Scott.

The overall impact of the platoon being good, besides being told so by its leaders, can only be measured by its performance. The performance of the 1st Plt of Co. A has had a tremendous impact on the 1st Bn (Mech) 58th Inf. by completing its ATT. It has opened the door for the battalion to become a combat ready unit.

43rd Engrs. hold organization day activities

Recently the 43rd Engr. Bn. conducted its annual Organization Day Activities.

The activities included bowling, football, basketball, volleyball, track, dismounted drill, cooking contest, horseshoes, pool, 1/4, 2 1/2, 5 and 10 ton vehicle driving competition, inverted crawl, one mile relay, and tent raising contest. Events were conducted on a competitive basis with the individuals competing, representing their respective companies. Individuals or winning teams of each event were awarded a trophy. Points were assigned to each placing and the company accumulating the most points during the competition was declared the battalion champion and given a large trophy.

UNIVERSITY OF ALBUQUERQUE VISIT
Mr. Richard E. Kinifick, of the University of Albuquerque, will be in room E-25, Infantry Hall, from 8 a.m. until 5 p.m. on Feb. 25 through Feb. 27. Mr. Kinifick will discuss degree completion programs available at the University. Evaluations can be made at time of interview. Individuals should have their USAFI Test Scores, DD Form 295, and college transcripts available at time of interview. Appointments should be made in room E-25, Infantry Hall, or by calling 545-4031.

WORLD DAY OF PRAYER

An ecumenical observance of World Day of Prayer will be held in the Infantry Center Chapel on March 1, from 9:30-11 a.m. Dr. David Lockard, Director of the Missionary Orientation Center, Callaway Gardens, will be the featured speaker. The public is invited to attend. For more information, contact the Director of Religious Education at 545-4334.

PACELLI ENTRANCE EXAMINATION

Entrance examination for Pacelli High School will be held March 9, from 9 a.m. until 12:15 p.m., in the school. The school placement test is being given to students who wish to enter freshman classes at Pacelli. Reservations are not required for the examination. The cost for the examination is $4.00, due at time of test. For more information call 561-8243.

REQUIRE A PERMIT

Military personnel on Fort Benning should require salesmen to exhibit a solicitation permit before purchasing anything sold commercially on the reservation. Books and Extension courses salesmen are not authorized to solicit on Fort Benning at the present time, except the concessionaries operating in the Post Exchange. Any agents not possessing proper solicitation authorization should be reported to the Commercial Solicitation Section at 545-7224.

MILITARY INSTRUCTOR-ROTC DEPARTMENT

The Gary School System, Gary, Indiana, has an opening for a Military Instructor in the ROTC Department. High salary, fringe benefits, ten months work year. Applicants must be retired with over 20 years service, in grades E7 through E-9. There is also an opening for a retired WAC, same qualifications as above. Applications should be mailed to the Director of Army Instructions, Gary High Schools, 620 E. 10th Place, Gary, Indiana, 46402. Applications from personnel about to retire will also be considered.

CONTROL OF PETS

All animals maintained on the Fort Benning Reservation, to include Benning Park Homes, should be controlled at all times by their owners. Owners must insure that their pets, when outside their quarters, are leashed or under direct voice control and accompanied by a responsible person. The rabies inoculation tag must be attached to the collar around the animal's neck. Occupants who leash their pets in such a manner as to interfere with normal delivery of mail or the collection of garbage will be denied these services. Pets found running loose on the reservation will be picked up by the Military Police and impounded.

The 1974 USAIC Company Level Basketball Tournament gets under way with a full slate of games scheduled on Monday, February 25. Ten teams, representing the major commands of Ft. Benning, have earned the right to compete for the post championships.

Opening round action will find two games played nightly at both Briant Wells Fieldhouse and Audie Murphy Gym. Game times will be 6:15 pm and 7:15 pm at both sites. This schedule remains in effect through February 27. With the quarterfinal round of play on February 28 and March 1, all action will take place at Briant Wells.

In the opening game at Briant Wells, the 44th Trans. Co. will meet the Med. Co. The following game will pit the 546th Med. Co. Against Co. A, 3rd Bn., 7th Infantry.

Meanwhile, over at Audie Murphy Gym, action will begin with Co. A, Headquarters Command meeting the 121st Aviation Co. The second game of the evening matches 444th Trans. Co. against the 72nd Engineer Co.

Co. A, 1st Bn, 29th Inf. and 2nd Bn., TSB drew first round byes and do not see action until Tuesday night. The Pioneers of Co. A will meet the winner of the 444th Trans. Co.-Med. Co. game at 6:15 p.m. in the Briant Wells Fieldhouse. 2nd Bn., TSB plays the winner of the Co. A, Hqs. Cmd.-121st Avn. Co. game in opening action at Audie Murphy Tuesday night.

For motorcycle enthusiasts here at Fort Benning there is a fine motto cross track located just off Wood Road in the area of Project Transition. Here Cpt. Mike Nelson, Commander of HHC 36th Engineer Group (CBT), takes a jump at the Fort Benning Course. "This motto cross course has everything that a good motto cross track has except a long down hill stretch," said Cpt. Nelson.

Cottonbalers make battleplan for post tourney

PFC John Mayner, 72nd Engr Co., grabs a rebound just out of the reach of PFC Jack Davis (dark jersey), Co. A, 3rd Bn., 7th Inf. (Cottonbalers), as Pvt. (Photo by C.B. Hoover)

With the Fort Benning Basketball Tournament just around the corner, the teams which will represent the 1974 Infantry Brigade in the championships are busily preparing for their assault on the post title.

Co. A, 3rd Bn., 7th Inf. (Cottonbalers) and the 72nd Engr. Co., 1974 champions and runners-up respectively, have been busy the past two weeks practicing and running scrimmages against each other.

"We have been conducting practices every day," stated PFC Jeffery Ward, team captain of Co. A, 317. "We also run in the morning, which I feel is a big part of training."

Ward is the only player on his team who played college basketball. He was on the freshman team at Southern Illinois University before entering the Army.

"All of our players played basketball in high school," explained Ward. "We have a strong team, especially our guards. Our guards can handle the ball, I feel, better than any on post."

A total of 10 teams will compete for the Ft. Benning title in the double elimination tournament scheduled to begin Feb. 25. The games will be held simultaneously at the Briant Wells Field House and the Audie Murphy Gym.

"I feel our chances are good," stated Sp5 Leon Mabry. "We have a strong shooting team and an excellent rebounder in Pvt. Larry Ashberry. I haven't had a chance to look at any of the other teams around post, but I know that the MPs from the 36th Engr. Gp. always have a good team."

Pvt. Larry Asberry, 72nd Engr. Co., goes up for a shot as PFC Levy Faison (11) and PFC Isaac Davis (14), both of Co. A, 3rd Bn., 7th Inf. (Cottonbalers), prepare for the rebound. The Cottonbalers defeated the engineers in the finals of the 1974 Infantry Brigade Championship to clinch the title. (Photo by C.B. Hoover)

Scubs Club offers eight week course

The Ft. Benning Scuba Club turns out an average of 14 new divers every eight weeks. Training classes are taken to Branford, Fla. At the Ichitucky River they are checked out with mask and snorkel, which qualifies them for a skin-divers' rating with the YMCA. After returning to Ft. Benning the students are introduced to air tanks and begin qualifying as scuba divers. At the end of the eight weeks the students are checked out at Jenney Springs near Branford with air tanks, buoyancy compensators and other related equipment necessary for scuba diving. If they meet the safety requirements and perform correctly, the instructor can give them basic scuba diver ratings. All graduates are automatically members of the Ft. Benning Club, and are authorized to check out the club equipment for dives or to fill their own air tanks free from the club compressor. But most important, the members can get together with other divers during the monthly meetings, held the first Monday of each month, and plan dives together. This is one sport that requires that you participate with others not only for enjoyment but for safety. The club tries to have one dive a month as a club, rather than in individual groups. For the month of February this was a boat dive from Panama City. It was a two-tank dive, one on a Russian freighter and the other on a coral reef nearby. Old members are encouraged to stop by Bryant Wells any Wednesday night and see what the new students are doing. Old and new members should be at the club on the first Monday night of each month at 7:30 p.m. to find out where the swimming will be for the following month.

BY GEORGE D. STEVENSON
The time is fast approaching when every type of fish in existence will be eating everything in sight! Those who know the thrill of fishing should be getting their tackle ready and making plans for catching crappie, bream, white bass and black bass. Fishing in the River Bend-Lake Eufaula area will begin in earnest early in March.

During the unusually warm weather of January and February, fish started moving to shallow water and to develop eggs. Cold weather will slow egg development, and this is exactly what happened in early February. When warm weather comes again in March, the fish will move en masse back to shallow water. This year's spawn should be early for all species. The first spawn of the year is always the heaviest and especially so after a mild winter. To us fishermen, that means that a fishing bonanza is right around the corner.

Anderson holds title in post shooting match

National Pistol Champion, SFC Hershel Anderson did it again Saturday at Fort Benning.

The Tracy City, Tenn., handgunner fired his second three-gun aggregate championship score and for the second time in the new 1974 handgun season, he blazed a score in the high strata scoring regional of 2670.

Runnerup honors in the weekend 12 match tourney was claimed by Harmon with 2661 while SFC Harland Rennolds of the Army Marksmanship Unit took the third place laurels with 2652.

All honors weren't won by the men Saturday as the distaff side of the scoring came in for a share of record breaking. SFC Barbara Hile, National Women's Pistol Champion broke the national Three Gun Short Course Aggregate record set only last month by her 2627 with a new grand aggregate record of 2628 Saturday.

In simultaneous action on the Indoor Rifle Range, 1 Maj. Lones W. Wigger, Jr., of the Army Marksmanship Unit, grabbed his second championship this weekend with his 798 of a possible 800 points in the Smallbore Rifle Sectional Tournament.

Dean Bahrman of Atlanta, firing a similar score, had to settle for runner up honors, when the 199 place laurels due to his hand (standing) position event topped him by one.

Cpt. John Writer, Clarendon Hills, Ill., and Cpt. Lanny R. Bassham, Fort Worth, Texas and the Army Marksmanship Unit, each posted 797s with Writer taking the third higher off hand score.

PFD's required for safety

Heading for open waters you can forget your PJs but you best not forget your PFD's (Personal Flotation Devices).

Effective January 1, 1974 Georgia's new boating safety law requires that boats less than sixteen (16) feet in length and all canoes and kayaks must carry one Type I, II, III, or IV PFD for each person on board. For boats sixteen (16) feet or over in length, one Type I, II, III (wearable) for each person on board and one Type IV (throwable) in each boat is required.

Spencer JROTC wins rifle match

The JROTC Varsity Team of Spencer High School, coached by 1SG Gordon Burke, tallied 1315 x 1500 points to win the annual American Legion Rifle Match.

Featuring the seven teams from the local high schools, the match is sponsored by the Charles S. Harrison American Legion Post and was fired at Parks International Outdoor Range, Fort Benning. Kendrick's rifle team, coached by MSG Joe Diaz followed closely behind Spencer with 1308 points to win second place. The Columbus High team, coached by MSG Ray Plaisted took third place.

A Type I Personal Flotation Device is described as an approved device designed to turn an unconscious person in the water from a face downward position to a vertical or slightly backward position, and to have more than 20 pounds of buoyancy. An example would be a life preserver. This type is recommended for off-shore cruising.

A Type II PFD is an approved device designed to turn an unconscious person in the water from face downward position to a vertical or slightly backward position and to have at least 15.5 pounds buoyancy. A buoyancy vest is a typical example.

A Type III PFD is an approved device designed to keep a conscious person in a vertical or slightly backward position and to have at least 15.5 pounds of buoyancy. While having the same buoyancy as Type II, the Type III has a lesser turning ability to allow for a comfortable design for water activities such as water skiing. Most special purpose devices are Classified Type III.

A Type IV PFD is an approved device designed to be thrown to a person in the water and not worn. It is designed to have at least 16.5 pounds of buoyancy. Such devices as ring buoys and buoyant cushions are Type IV PFD's.

All Coast Guard approved personal flotation devices bear markings as to manufacturer, type, and approval number.

No cost boat course offered

The Muscogee Power Squadron will conduct a basic boating course for the general public beginning March 5 at 7:30 p.m. The meetings will be held in the Naval Reserve Training Center located on Victory Drive in Columbus.

It is a 10-week course and teaches the proper operation of all types of boats, especially the family outboard.

White Bass Move First
White bass will move first; in fact, as soon as the muddy water clears they will start feeding. Small white or yellow jigs, fished slowly and deep around the areas where creeks enter the river or lake, should be very productive.
Black bass will move into the shallows when water reaches about 62 degrees, and will spawn when the water warms to 68 degrees. This is the time of the year to catch a real trophy bass, since the fish are heavy with eggs. Almost any lure will work miracles, but those especially good are minnow types or spinner baits. This is the time to check the very back end of those creeks and sloughs. Bass will bed in water from one to four feet deep. While the male bass is building the nest, the larger female will be roaming the general area. Work the baits slow until the water gets about 68 degrees, then work them fast! Bedding bass chase other fish away from their nest area, so watch for bass churning up water in a shallow area. By careful observation, you will often be able to actually see the fish on the nest.

Bream Bed in April
Bream normally bed in April, about the first full moon of the month. The beds can be located by smell, sight or patiently pitching a cricket in water up to five feet deep. When you catch one, fish carefully in the same spot to determine if you are on the beds. Any strong fish odor should be investigated by following the wind. Some people swear they can follow the smell right to a bream bed. I personally cannot locate them by smell. I do better by sight, standing in a slow moving boat, watching for the tell-tale saucer like spots on the bottom.

Not too many years ago fishing was not allowed until after the spawning had been completed. Many people still feel that catching fish off the nest is detrimental to good fishing. Our game biologists have proven that the opposite is true, and catching fish off the beds actually improves fishing. If all the eggs produced by just one species, such as crappie, were to survive, a lake the size of Eufaula would be running over with small fish in only one year. One crappie may produce as many as 30,000 eggs a year. Fortunately, only a small percent will live to be big fish.

It will be hard not to catch fish for the next months if one will follow the most important rule of fishing: "Go, and keep your bait in the water."

3/7 holds airmobile operation

Infantry battalions conduct airmobile operations as a routine part of land combat, and such was the case last week as the 3rd Bn., 7th Inf. (Cottonbalers), 197th Inf. Bde. conducted the first battalion-size airmobile operation on Fort Benning since 1965, when the 1st Air Cav. Div. was stationed here, preparing for deployment to Vietnam.

Plans for the airmobile operation, under the direction of Lt. Col. Charles O. Arnecke Jr., the battalion commander, were detailed yet flexible enough to permit exploitation of targets of opportunity as they developed during the operation.

Using 14 UH1H helicopters for troop lifts and four Cobra helicopters for escort and suppressive fire, provided by the 121st Avn. Co., all foot troops of the three rifle companies were air lifted to the landing zones. The 197th Inf. Bde. aviation section provided the command and control helicopter and two light observation helicopters.

Each troop lift of 14 helicopters placed a rifle company in pre-selected landing zones as a unit, insuring unit integrity which resulted in rapid seizure of the battalion's objectives.

"This exercise gave us an opportunity to bring into focus all of the training the 'Cottonbalers' have undergone thus far," said Lt. Col. Arnecke.

"The airmobile operation went exceptionally well," stated Maj. William J. Windham, the battalion S-3, "naturally there are areas which we can and must improve upon and our training is already progressing in this direction."

"Of course this was a part of our overall training program in preparation for the battalion Army Training Exercise (FTX), which was totally planned and executed by the 'Cottonbalers', the battalion reverted to control of the 197th Infantry Brigade and continued its three day

Two soldiers from the 3rd Bn., 7th Inf. (Cottonbalers), 197th Inf. Bde., take cover as the helicopter that brought them departs just as quickly as it came in. With the assistance of the 121st Avn. Co., the 3d Bn. 7th Inf. conducted the first battalion airmobile operation on Ft. Benning in nearly a decade. (Photo by Bob Thomas) improvements will be made as we go along," Maj. Windham concluded.

At the conclusion of the airmobile operation phase of the battalion's Field Training Exercise (FTX), which was totally planned and executed by the 'Cottonbalers', the battalion reverted to control of the 197th Infantry Brigade and continued its three day

FTX.

As the brigade assumed control of the FTX at 8 p.m. on the first day, the battalion was tasked with a night river crossing, occupation of a defensive position, and a night retrograde operation, and an early morning attack which was accomplished during the remaining two days of the FTX.

Where does the battalion go from here? A continuation of intensive training to include the Army Training Test, and operational readiness training in the near future!

Trips home are common for soldiers of the 197th

Soldiers of the 197th Inf. Bde. often face the problem of how to use free time.

Weekends off, leave, holidays, and compensatory time for extra duty — all give the soldiers an abundance of time to themselves.

How do they use this free time? Many make use of the recreational facilities within the brigade.

A variety of activities and facilities are offered, and all are relatively inexpensive as well as close at hand, but the men in the 197th have another advantage.

As one of the first units in the Army to practice unit of choice recruiting, the brigade has a large number of men who are very near their hometowns.

Trips home are a common occurrence for many. Sp4 Jimmy Edgeworth of Battery A, 2nd Battalion, 10th Field Artillery, a unit of choice volunteer, is one of the soldiers that takes advantage of this nearness to home.

"I went home nearly every weekend before I was married to visit my parents and girlfriend," states Edgeworth. "Now that I'm married I don't go as much, but I still go when I can. It helps out a lot to be able to go home and get away for a while."

Pvt. Michael Marsh of HHC, 1st Bn., (Mech), 58th Infantry has been in the brigade less than a week, but is already looking forward to trips he'll take to his home in Florida.

Soldiers of Co. D, 43rd Engr. Bn. demonstrate the correct procedure for raising a tent during the 43rd Engineer's Organization Day activities.

43rd Organization Week

Sp5 Charles Sanders, especially, everyone seemed to show a lot of enthusiasm," remarked PFC Raymond Faulkner, Co. D, winner of the 2 1/2 ton and 5 ton vehicle driving contest.

Static displays of various types were set up in the battalion conference room.

"I feel that there was a very good variety of activities and that morale was extremely high all week," said Sp5 Robert Hatfield, Co. A, and winner of the ping-pong tournament.

"I had an enjoyable time all week and the last day

DEAR BAYONET

When the Commissary has an inventory, why are both closed, the one on MAIN POST and Custer Terrace? PFS

DEAR PDS

The Commissary is required in accordance with AR31-200 to audit its account quarterly to determine the losses and gains for that period. Both commissaries operate under the same account, therefore, it is necessary to close both stores, in order, to get an accurate account of the commissaries' operation.

DEAR BAYONET

I am over age 65 and want to apply for Supplemental Security benefits. What information should I bring to the Social Security Office? ALM

DEAR ALM
Since you are over 65 bring proof of your age and the amounts of any income that you have. If you own your home, we will need an estimate of its value. You may have tax assessment notices for your home. Bring these with you. If you own life insurance policies who total value are more than $1,500, we would like to see these.

DEAR BAYONET

I suffered a service connected disability in Vietnam, and as a result, I wear braces on both legs. Does this make me eligible for an annual $150 clothing allowance from the Veteran Administration? JLM

DEAR JLM

Probably yes. This allowance is available to service disabled veterans whose prosthetic or orthopedic devices tend to wear out or tear their clothing. You must apply to your VA regional office for it.

Big insects aid Benning save money in moving

Another "first" was accomplished at Fort Benning on January 24 by the 478th Aviation Company. The 478th Aviation Company is a "heavy helicopter" company. This is understandable because the choppers this company flies weigh about 10 tons each without any cargo. The proper nomenclature for these big "birds" is CH-54 Sky Crane.

Because of its unorthodox design one might construe the appearance of the Sky Crane as resembling a monstrous insect, but this machine has done more than enough work to make up for its looks since it was put in the Army inventory in 1969. The "crane" played a very significant role in aircraft recovery in Vietnam.

Last Thursday the 478th Aviation Company conducted its first mission in support of the Infantry Board. The mission involved moving an observation tower about a quarter of a mile in a wooded area in the vicinity of Nolan Range. The tower weighed approximately 5000 pounds, was 25 feet tall, and 12 feet wide at its base. To transport the tower by land would have involved heavy equipment and widening an unimproved road. The tower was secured in place by four concrete bases with imbedded metal flanges that bolted to the tower legs.

For the crane, however, the problem of transporting the tower from one site to the other was considerably more simple and much easier. The time involved in the actual lifting, transporting, and setting in place was less than one hour.

Someone might hold reservation as how accurate the crane's work might be. The crew, composed of CW3 Noel Winner, pilot CW2 Edward A. Jones, copilot, SSG Donald A. Molloy, flight engineer, and SP6 Luther W. West, crewchief, proved to be highly trained and competent as they set the tower on its new foundations with the four tower legs perfectly aligned in the metal flanges which were imbedded in the concrete blocks. The job was completed quickly and efficiently and probably with fewer personnel involved than had the task been handled without air support.

U.S. ARMY REGULATIONS

28 April 1971

AR 600-20

Section VI. APPEARANCE

5-39. Appearance. a. The Army is a uniformed service. Therefore a neat and well-groomed appearance by soldiers is fundamental to the Army, and contributes to building the esprit essential to an effective fighting force. A vital ingredient of the Army's strength and military effectiveness is the pride and self-discipline which American soldiers bring to their service. It is the responsibility of commanders to insure that military appearance command present a neat and tidy appearance, and it is the responsibility of each soldier to take pride in his appearance.

hair will not interfere with the normal wear of all standard military headgear.

If the individual desires to wear sideburns, they will be neatly trimmed. The base of the sideburns will be a straight downward horizontal line. Sideburns will be trimmed downward beyond the lowest part of the ear opening.

Facial hair will be clean shaven except for a mustache which will be neatly trimmed and tidy. The corners of the mustache will be rounded.

CHAPTER 5 CONDUCT AND DISCIPLINE

Section 1. GENERAL

5-4. National Anthem at public events, when a serviceman is off or on duty and whether in or out of uniform. Intentional disrespect of the National Anthem is a serious offense. Conduct prejudicial to good order and discipline or discrediting to the military service.

5-4. Conduct. Discipline is a function of command; hence, it is the responsibility of leaders in the Army, whether they are on duty or in a leave status, to see that all military personnel present a neat and soldierly appearance, and to take action in cases of conduct prejudicial to good order and military discipline by any military personnel which may take place with their knowledge.

a. The senior officer, warrant officer, or non-commissioned officer will act promptly, using such means as are available, to restore order. One of his initial actions will be to call for military police assistance if they are readily available.

b. On public conveyances, in the absence of military police, the person in charge of the conveyance may be requested to notify the nearest military police and arrange to have military personnel guilty of misconduct. If the conduct is sufficiently serious, the person in charge of the conveyance will be requested to stop the conveyance at the first opportunity and the offender over to the military police. If the offender is not readily available, the person in charge of the conveyance should be requested to stop the conveyance at the first opportunity and the offender over to the military police.

b. There are no hair styles acceptable in the Army. So hair is kept in a neat manner of the style will be judged described below.

c. Haircuts, without regard to the explanation of technical terms, shall conform to the following: (1) The hair of all soldiers shall be neatly groomed. The hair will not be excessive, unkempt or extreme. It will not fall over the forehead or touch the collar except at the back of the neck. The hair will be cut to a moderate degree. In all cases, the hair will be cut in a manner that will not interfere with the normal wear of all standard military headgear.

(2) While military discipline is enhanced by military training, every effort should be made to enhance the discipline of military life by the prompt and cheerful execution of the legal orders of both the unit and the Army.

5-2. Obedience. Military personnel are required to execute the lawful orders of their superiors.

5-3. Military Courtesy and Discipline. Military personnel are required to observe the following: a. Courtesy and discipline; respect for the authority of superiors on all occasions. b. Military personnel are looked upon by the civilian community to set an example of courtesy and honors rendered to the National Anthem and the National Color. c. Military personnel should reflect respect for the National Anthem and the National Color. d. Military personnel should be rendered the same respect as is afforded the National Anthem and the National Color.

Truckers looking better than ever

"Keep on truckin'," is Pvt. Suzanne E. Sours' motto as she drives down the streets of Ft. Benning in her five-ton tractor trailer. The petite 5 ft. 3 in. blonde is the first woman in the Army to have been trained as a heavy vehicle operator at Fort Leonard Wood, Missouri.

"I wanted to be a mechanic, but the courses were full," she explained. "My recruiter suggested truck driving because mechanics are involved."

"Truck driving can be a hassle," she pointed out. "People usually take a second look when they see me driving down the street. The course itself was hard. Night driving and rough roads were involved. I wouldn't suggest it for everyone, but I wouldn't change jobs for the world."

At the Fort Benning medium truck motor pool she drives for Airborne commitments, moving furniture and appliances, and other commitments. "Most of the guys are ashamed because she's better than we are," said PFC Richard A. Sloan, a driver for the motor pool.

Eighteen-year-old Suzanne is an "Air Force brat" from Fort Walton Beach, Florida. She explained that when she looked into a military career, the Air Force had a three-month waiting list and the Navy recruiter was out to lunch. So she came into the Army June 27, 1973 and, in her words, loves it. Her main goal in the Army is to go back to Fort Leonard Wood as an instructor.

Suzanne swims and listens to a lot of music. "She's really energetic and gets along with everyone, said one of the girls in her company. "She planned most of our company's Christmas party and seemed to be everywhere at once."

Lavoie residents organize program

All Lavoie housing area residents are invited to attend the organizational meeting for the new community life program. The meeting will be held March 7 at 7:30 p.m. in the Wilson School auditorium.

ACS coordinator for the new program is Staff Sergeant Murrie Brown, and the chaplain is Chaplain (Capt.) Billy J. Price.

The program, once it is organized, will be run entirely by the residents of the Lavoie housing area, with Staff Sgt. Brown and Chaplain Price acting as advisors. At the first meeting, residents will be able to get acquainted and choose a committee to nominate a slate of officers.

Sunday School classes began March 3 for children in the area. Protestant Sunday School begins each Sunday at 8:30 p.m., and Catholic classes are held beginning at 9:45 a.m. All Sunday School classes are held in Building 2150, directly behind the Community Life Center at the intersection of Indianhead and Bradshaw Roads. There will be no bus pick-ups for Sunday School.

Other programs, such as youth activities, will be conducted once the program gets under way. The purpose of the community life program is to make the Lavoie community a better place to live and raise children.

Streets included in the area are: Bryant, Cagle Loop, Dickerson, Englander, Garrett, Lavoie, Lenahan, Logan, Indianhead Road, McFalls, Meehan, and McAfee. Some residents may know the area as Lawson Field housing area or Capehart housing, the Lavoie Housing Area is a more recent name.

According to Chaplain Price and Staff Sgt. Brown, "We want to build a community spirit here. We want this to be a place where people will be good neighbors and care about each other. But we can't do this for them. It's up to the people of the community to make the program a success."

Interest surveys were distributed to get initial information and help determine what areas the residents would like to see improved. The program will be similar to the one that was started last year at McGraw Manor and is now successfully under way.

Hunting and Fishing fees to increase on Fort Benning

Hunters and fishermen on post will pay more for their sport after March 31. According to an official announcement this week, fees for hunting and fishing on post will be increased to offset the cost of operating the post fish and wildlife management program.

Army regulations require that 25 per cent of the cost of an installation wildlife management program come from nonappropriated funds. In past years, the Post Central Welfare Fund and Post Rod and Gun Club have provided these funds.

The Post Central Welfare Fund derives its revenues from the Department of the Army. According to Mr. Norman McCullough, chief accounting officer for the fund, the amount of money a post receives is determined by the military strength of the post. McCullough said, "Drastic reductions in the military strength at Fort Benning have drastically reduced the money allocated to the post Welfare Fund. The fund is just no longer able to provide all of the money to all of the activities that it has supported in the past. A fee system of some kind had to be established to provide the money for the wildlife management program. All of the money the fund obtains from these fees will go to the program."

A post regulation being prepared will require soldiers grades E-1 through E-5 to pay $6 for an annual combination hunting and fishing permit; grades E-6 through W-2 and O-2 will pay $7; grades O-3 through W-4 and O-4 will pay $8; and grades O-5 and higher will pay $9. All Department of the Army civilians authorized hunting privileges on post will pay $9. Military retired persons will pay the fee established for the rank at which they were retired. All dependents will be assessed the same fee as the sponsor.

A soldier in grades E-1 through E-5 will pay $3 for a hunting permit; grades E-6 through W-2 and O-2 will pay $4, grades O-3 through W-4 and O-4 will pay $5; grades O-5 and higher and all civilians will pay $6. Dependents will pay the same fee as the sponsor. Retired military will pay the fee established for the rank at which they were retired.

Fishing fees will be $3 for all civilians will pay $6. Dependents will pay the same fee as the sponsor. Retired military will pay the fee established for the rank at which they were retired.

Fishing fees will be $3 for all grades and categories of individuals authorized fishing privileges on post.

Annual fees of $10 and daily fees of $2 have also been established for fishing at Twilight and Victory Ponds, where special expenditures are made to provide catfish food on a daily basis. Creel limits at these two ponds will remain the same.

Three day hunting or fishing privileges for guests have been set at $3.

Action to establish the new system was initiated by the Post Natural Resources Management Board when it became apparent that the Welfare Fund would not be capable of providing necessary funds for the wildlife management program. LTC Charles Orr, chairman of the Management Board working committee said, "Fort Benning is not the only post that has had to take action of this type. I know most of the posts in the Southeast have been forced into it. Rucker, Bragg, McClellan and Gordon put similar plans into effect last year."

Orr said, "The current funded budget for the wildlife management program is about $140,000. This means that the fees from hunters and fishermen will have to generate approximately $35,000, or certain projects will have to be curtailed. This, of course, would have a bad effect on the quality of the hunting and fishing on post."

What Army regulation bugs you the most?

Pvt. Larry Berg
15th Finance Co.

I would have to say the haircut regulation!!!! It should be lengthened at least three inches, or at least so it's in style. It is just too short now.

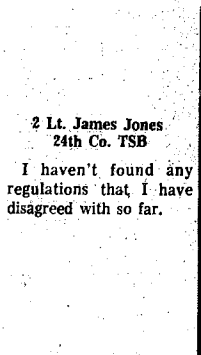

Sp4 Mike Slatton
Infantry Chorus

The haircut regulation!!!! I would like to wear my hair the way I want! As long as it doesn't interfere with my job and is neat, nobody should hassle me. I keep my hair together but they still want me to cut it all off! One big point they use is that I can't put my hat on because of my hair, but I say that I can buy a bigger hat.

PFC Michael Shoemaker
598th Light Maint.

Haircuts! I think all the armed forces should be equal and the way I see it the Navy is not treated the same. They have beards, sideburns and longer hair. It's all right for them, why not for us?"

Lt. James Jones

I haven't found any regulations that I have disagreed with so far.

Sgt. Havert Stephens
Company Tactics, TSB

Haircuts!!! I don't want the long shaggy job but the haircut now is just too outdated. Instead of conforming to the haircut regulation that says your hair should be neatly trimmed, they want you to have whitewalls!! Most higher ranking people supercede the regulation and posters and make their own regulations.

Editorial

EDITOR'S NOTE—This editorial is the viewpoint of one individual who has asked that his name be withheld. It is not necessarily the view of the Bayonet or anyone connected with it.

Let's look at today's military uniform for a clue. The coat is a squarecut, no tails, no swallow cut at the front. The collar lays flat on your neck and rises only high enough to cover the shirt collar. The breast lapels are wide enough to support necessary insignia but are not exaggerated in either roll, length or width. On the coat are four large and six small buttons—each button is functional rather than decorative.

The service or garrison caps are equally functional. There is no wide brim over-hanging the neck or the sides of the head. The garrison cap, in fact, can be folded into a pocket.

Trousers hang straight, no flare at the knee or the bottom and—uniquely the military trousers were cuffless 50 years before it became vogue for cuffless civilian trousers.

Our shoes are capless, bluecher, flat heeled, four

Why does the military want short hair?

eyel. The boot is a wide last, cupped toe. The army boot is not made to fit a stirrup and it is high enough only to support the ankle and calf for extended walking, not riding a horse.

Now take any picture of the Union or Confederate Armies during the Civil War or a picture of the cavalryman on the western frontier—a wide-brimmed sombrero on the head with a chinstrap and hat cord.

The 1800's military coat ended just above the knee, the tail of the coat flared, rows of non-functional decorative buttons. Trousers tapered, pocket openings in the front and narrow last boots knee high. Many of the uniforms of that era were individually designed and cottage produced. There was a certain aura of dashing, adventurous, romanticism to the military, the uniform and war.

Remember ladies and gentlemen rode out in their carriages from Washington, D. C. to see the Union and Confederate battle at First Bull Run; they took picnic lunches. There was a certain atmosphere of circus, carnival or theatrical production.

The entire historical image of the military throughout the world was changed between 1860

1865. The aura of dashing, cavalier soldiers who in life's drama were players on a stage was destroyed forever. The romantic, now functional uniform became an anachronism.

The non-functional long hair - Custer's long yellow hair, Burnside's sideburns—similarly became anachronisms. We have water, instant soap and safety razors that simplify shaving and hair trimming today.

We have a functional (if you will, plain) uniform. We wear a hat as part of the unadorned functional uniform. The image and the perception of the tailored uniform of 1970 is enhanced by closely trimmed hair. The long-flowing locks look great with paisley patterned and pastel shirts, with soft textured and multi-colored civilian jackets, with shoes that have Cuban, stacked or tapered heels and toes, but these are not uniforms. They are the result of high fashion; the only constant of which is change.

The trim functional design of the uniform is not a military stereotype. It is a military necessity and that trim functional appearance is destroyed by hair to the shoulder, sideburns to the jaw and a mustache to the end of the jaw. That is why the military wants short hair.

DEAR BAYONET
When is cable TV coming to the family quarters and the BOQ-BEQ? DM
Dear DM.

The WOMETCO Company was the successful bidder for the Ft. Benning cable TV franchise. The company is now in the process of applying to the Federal Communication Commission for a license to operate on Ft. Benning. Approval, if obtained, will take quite some time, Department of the Army has already given approval.

DEAR BAYONET
Why is there such a difference in the price of the commissary and the post exchange of items such as soap and shampoo? Mrs. L.M.J.

DEAR MRS. LMJ
Unlike the commissary, which is a nonprofit making venture, the Post Exchange is a profit making enterprise, therefore, products are sold in the Post Exchange at a slight markup while products purchased in the commissary is sold at base price.

Your money short?

Uncle Sam has tuition assistance

Money's getting tight all over but you can't afford to miss tuition assistance in paying for your education.

What is it?

Tuition assistance is government money used to meet tuition costs at any accredited civilian school — high school or college level. Chester Alderfer, an education counselor, explains that tuition assistance can pay 75 per cent of the tuition.

Alderfer said that assistance is only available to soldiers going to school on their off-duty time. The program can pay for two courses a quarter.

Who is eligible?

The counselor went on to say that any soldier on active duty for more than 180 days is eligible for the assistance money. There is no continued service agreement required for enlisted men and warrant officers he explained. Officers, however, have a two year service commitment.

Application

A soldier applies for tuition assistance by talking with the education counselor in his troop area. For main post, this is the education center in Bldg. 35; Sand Hill is Bldg. 3355; Harmony Church is Bldg. 5153; and Kelley Hill is Bldg. 9003.

These men can help the soldier choose necessary courses for degree completion or to fill in a gap in a soldier's education.

After talking with the counselor, the soldier must get his commander's approval to take the course. Then he returns to the education center to register.

Classes start soon

College classes with three accredited schools will start soon in the Fort Benning classrooms. Columbus College and Embry-Riddle Aeronautical University will offer undergraduate courses while Georgia State will have graduate level classes. Other classes will be taught on the Columbus College campus. By starting now, you can complete the paperwork required to get tuition assistance for the classes you take.

Soldiers who need to complete their high school diplomas also have money available to help them pay for their classes. PREP, the predischARGE education program, is open to soldiers needing refresher work to improve their Army classification scores.

Review classes and high school classes are taught by Muscogee County teachers.

PREP is a Veterans Administration program. Using the funds does not affect the soldier's eligibility for the GI bill after leaving service.

Primaries coming up in May:

- Alabama, May 7
- District of Columbia, May 7
- Arkansas, May 28
- Indiana, May 7
- Kentucky, May 28
- Nebraska, May 14
- North Carolina, May 7
- Ohio, May 7
- Oregon, May 28
- Pennsylvania, May 21
- West Virginia, May 14

VOTE

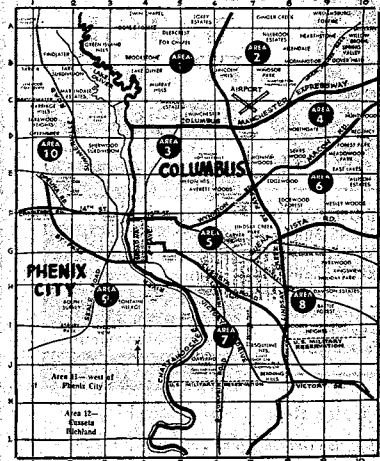

Primaries coming up in June:

- New Jersey, June 4
- California, June 4
- Iowa, June 4
- Maine, June 11
- Mississippi, June 4
- New Mexico, June 4
- South Carolina, June 11
- South Dakota, June 4
- Virginia, June 11
- Montana, June 4

All soldiers who wish to vote in their stated primaries must file a federal postcard application (FPCA) for registration. This form should be available from your unit voting officer or post legal assistance. When your home town election officials receive this form, they will register you and send you an absentee ballot. In a few cases, there will be additional forms to complete. Start your registration now for the May and June primaries.

To find your carpool, follow these simple steps. Locate yourself on the map by reading right and up. Put your name and location on a card along with your office phone number, building number and working hours. This information can be put on the carpool boards in Buildings 4 or 35. It can also be sent directly to the Bayonet in Bldg. 4, Room 604. All names submitted will be printed with this map.

COME TO THE OWC BRUNCH! Wives of all active duty and retired officers are invited to attend the OWC Home Decorating Brunch to be held Wednesday, March 13.

Displays and exhibits from Columbus merchants will highlight the sherry hour, beginning at 10:30 a.m. in the Main Ballroom of the Officers' Club. Guests will move to the Supper Club at 11:30 a.m. for the brunch, followed by speakers from the Carriage House and the Williamsburg Shoppe.

Hostesses for this month's event are the wives of Command Maintenance and Communications Departments. The cost of the brunch is $2.25 and reservations must be made by noon, March 8. For reservations call 687-8844, 689-6851.

HEADQUARTERS, 36TH ENGINEER GROUP

The ladies of Headquarters, 36th Engineer Group met at the home of Lt. and Mrs. William White in Oakland Park, for a welcoming coffee for the new group commander's wife, Mrs. Ames Albro Jr. Mrs. Albro was presented a potted plant and extended a warm welcome to the group. Mrs. Albro then welcomed other new additions to the group: Mrs. Herman Bethe, whose husband is the new Grp. executive officer; Mrs. Ed Lanier; Grp. chaplain's wife; and Mrs. Larry Webb, wife of the 139th Military Police Company Commander. It was with deep appreciation that the ladies then said farewell to Mrs. Bill Lehner, who is accompanying her husband to new duties in New York.

Everyone was encouraged to make reservations for future OWC events, through Mrs. Beth. The ladies were enthusiastic about the possibility of arranging a tour through the commissary of the new mall complex, now being completed.

The decorations and refreshments which reflected the Valentine theme were prepared by co-hostesses Mrs. White and Mrs. Michael Sohns. The coffee for March will be held at the home of Mrs. Albro.

DDTD

The ladies of DDTD met at the home of Mrs. Wallace Noll on Lumpkin Rd., for their monthly coffee. Co-hostess for the morning was Mrs. Michael Gabel.

The next gathering for the group will be a salad pot-luck luncheon, given by Mrs. Wayne Boles.

PINK OR BLUE???

On Feb. 12 a pink and blue shower was held in honor of Mrs. Mamie Wells, wife of Sgt. Willie Wells of Combat Support Co. 3d Bn. 7th Inf., 197th Inf. Bde.

Brenda Beauchamp hosted the shower, attended by the ladies of Combat Support Co.

The Wells are looking forward to April when their guesses of "pink or blue?" will be answered.

OWC LUNCHEON

Remember the decade of the 50's?? I like Ike; Alaska and Hawaii became states; poodle haircuts for girls; Elvis Presley; Marilyn Monroe?? These were only a few of the memories during the Spring Fashion Show at the Fort Benning Supper Club sponsored by the ladies of the Weapons Dept. and Company, Operations Dept. and the Officers' Wives' Club.

After a sherry hour in the Main Ballroom, the ladies sat down to individual box lunches, decorated with pink and black silhouettes. The invocation was given by Mrs. James Hughes (Jo).

While popular songs of the 50's were being played on the piano by Tharen Vass, eight lovely ladies modeled fashions from Kitalfy's that brought everyone back to the fashion scene of 1974. The models were: Mrs. Randall Bartlay (Kay), Mrs. Zeb Bradford (Inge), Mrs. Patrick G. William (Jane), Mrs. Wilson Hall (Caroline), Mrs. William Hyder (Sharon), Mrs. David Lambert (Valrie), Mrs. Allen Wissinger (Kathleen), and Mrs. Larry Wortzel (Tina).

The runway was flanked with pink and red azaleas, loaned by the Post Exchange Flower Shop. The commentary was presented by Mrs. Diane Pasquarelli. The entire Supper Club was decorated in pink and black, simulating a Paris Boutique, with manikins clothed in fashions of the 50's.

Mrs. A.E. Richards (Vonda), president of the OWC, thanked Mrs. Peggy Hemphill and Mrs. Jenny Kovalsky for their expert management of the fashion show, as well as Mrs. Judy Shatzman, OWC program chairman and Mrs. Hughes, sponsor of the show. Mrs. Richards recognized wives of IOBC students, retired personnel and guests, Miss Margaret Byrnes, fashion (Continued on Page 10)

5th STUDENT BATTALION
The 5th Stu. Bn. Officers' Wives held their monthly coffee on Feb. 13 in the home of Mrs. Wm Sweeney on Running Ave.

Mrs. Wm. Duncan, the battalion commander's wife, discussed upcoming events and editing the club's By-laws. A welcoming committee was discussed and formed. Mrs. Michael Kuehl and Mrs. Dennis Howe, whose husbands are in the IOCB were guests.

OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY, USAIS

Valentine's Day started off beautifully at the home of Mrs. Dennis Flint, where the ladies of the Office of the Secretary met for their monthly coffee. The house was completely decorated for the occasion. Highlighting the table were heart shaped sugar cookies with frosting spelling out an assortment of words meaning love.

Mrs. Dan Rickard welcomed Mrs. Ray Leuty and Mrs. Robert Young to the group and contacted the business meeting. The next coffee will be March 14 at the home of Mrs. Kenneth Hight.

1st BATTALION, TSB

In the luxurious and leisurely atmosphere of the Goetchius House, in Columbus, ladies of the 1st Bn., TSB, honored Mrs. Gordon Marlbor with a farewell luncheon on Feb. 20.

their monthly business meeting on Feb. 13 in their Clubhouse, near Lawson Field. Mary Housealt told of her trip to the Symposium of Flower Cookery at Callaway Gardens and delighted the ladies with some excerpts of a book on flower cookery.

It was decided by the members to "adopt" an American Indian child for one year by contributing to his upkeep.

The month of April will see a box social at which Lunches for two will be auctioned off as a fund raising event.

Doris Butts is the hostess for this month and the club thanks her for her efforts.

NCOWC NOTES

The members of the NCO Wives' Club held

"I'm still wearing the same styles, but my size is on a different rack."

Mary Ogden - Carthage, Missouri

"To a woman who once weighed over 200 pounds, happiness is slipping into size 12 instead of filling up a 24. I went to Elaine Powers because I had tried almost everything else. When the pounds and inches started melting away, the instructors were so happy as I was. They helped me keep going and pretty soon I happily discovered my old clothes seemed like someone else's. I'm buying a lot of new outfits, but my husband doesn't mind. He says he's got a new wife."

OF THE UNITED STATES
AUSA

In a position paper published on 1 February, The Association of the United States Army (AUSA) has taken sharp issue with a recently published report by the Brookings Institution which calls for major revisions in the Nation's Reserve Forces.

Characterizing the Brookings paper: "US Reserve Forces: The Problem of the Weekend Warrior" by staff member Martin Hinkin, as shallow, negative and counterproductive, the AUSA paper provides a detailed, point-by-point refutation of many of the author's premises and findings. While acknowledging that some areas of the Army Reserve Component program, which includes the National Guard and U.S. Army Reserve, undoubtedly require revision, the Association's paper is highly critical of the failure to recognize current actions by the Defense Department to refine Reserve Missions, strength and structure and to improve the readiness of the nation's Minutemen.

The Association points out that although the Brookings' paper is accompanied by a disclaimer that the conclusions are solely those of the author, the reputation of the Institution, the fact that the study was funded by the Ford Foundation, and the perception of many that the military budget is bloated, has resulted in wide publicity for the study's attention-getting conclusions that 310,000 paid reserve component and 60,000 active military spaces could be eliminated at an annual savings of $1.4 billion.

The Association of the United States Army has prepared a letter which refutes the Brookings paper, taking cognizance of the ongoing Defense Department Task Group study on the reserve component readiness, to counter what the AUSA believes to be a shallow, negative and nonproductive paper which could do serious harm to our national security.

A copy of the AUSA's position paper is at the disposition of all members and interested personnel, in the Infantry School Library, located in Infantry Hall.

Worried about new baby? How about maternity classes?

During each minute a new life begins, bringing joy, happiness and excitement into most households. The long months of waiting, planning, expecting and preparing are now replaced by a feeling of love, warmth and tenderness for the unborn child.

Perhaps in this pregnancy, as with each pregnancy, apprehension and worry over the ultimate outcome of the baby may arise. Every woman and man is concerned about the development and growth of the baby at one time or another during the pregnancy. Therefore, it is our purpose to help expectant parents prepare for their babies before they are born.

The expectant parents class is a four week course, designed to help expectant parents gain security in a new experience, by overcoming some of the anxieties related to the unknown about pregnancy, childbirth and infant care. The course will give some factual information that may not already be known. This is done through group discussions, illustrations, lectures, movies and active participation on your part in performing exercises necessary for childbirth.

If the illustrations and explanations provided in this course serve even in a small way to dispel fears of the unknown caused by uncertainty, and make your pregnancy a richly rewarding experience, then we feel the purpose of these classes will have been accomplished.

The Army Health Nursing Service, in conjunction with the Obstetrics Department, Martin Army Hospital, is beginning another series of Expectant Parents Classes on 5 March 1974. The series consists of four classes, each two hours long, on four Tuesday nights of each month. Classes are held in the Conference Room on the second floor of Martin Army Hospital. Because of limited space, you are asked to preregister for these classes by calling the Army Health Nursing Service, 545-5431, Monday through Friday, 8:00 a.m. - 4:30 p.m.

HAIRCUTS! vs. TODAY'S SOLDIER

Some do not feel there is a problem, others say they are victims of policy

By Bill Kloeb

For most soldiers, a haircut is just something you get every week or ten days. They go to the barbershop as habitually as and routinely as they polish their shoes, shine their brass, or perform a multitude of other activities they have accepted as a part of life of a soldier.

Unfortunately, not everyone feels this way. The feelings of these individuals have led to what has been called "The Army Haircut Problem."

Most soldiers were rather noncommittal on the subject. Here are some typical comments:

"I get my haircut at the PX barbershop every week. I've been doing it so long now it's almost as much a habit as shining my shoes."

"I get a haircut once a week. I don't like laying out a buck-thirty every week, but that's what it takes to keep my hair looking neat. I include the expense in my budget along with shoe polish and shaving cream."

"If I had my way, I'd probably let my hair grow longer, but the regulations prescribe standards for hair just like they do for the uniform, and I guess you can't separate your hair from the uniform."

"I get a haircut every ten-days. I get it cut well within the regulation. I'm planning to put in enough time to retire, and you're crazy if you think I'm going to spend that much time hassling about a haircut."

Comments get a little more biased when you talk to officers and noncommissioned officers. To a man they feel that the regulations are regulations and they apply to every soldier in the army. Very few were willing to discuss the reasons behind the regulations. A few did elaborate enough to say, "The hair should present a neat and soldierly appearance." They went on to say that they didn't think a man could present a neat and soldierly appearance with hair jutting out from under his cap.

Men whose hair obviously doesn't comply with regulations were without doubt the most emphatic in their opinions: Typical comments were:

"I think telling me how I have to cut my hair violates my Constitutional rights."

"I feel that an individual in the Army has as much right to wear his hair as he sees fit as a civilian."

"Because it satisfies my sense of individuality."

"I look better with fashioned hair because I have a high forehead."

"Because it's the style I choose to wear."

As usually happens in these 'gut issues', some are for, some against, and some don't care one way or the other. But the questions are still there. Just how big is the Army haircut problem?

A statement from Col William B. Steele, commander of the 197th Infantry Brigade, largest unit on post, brings an answer into focus.

According to Col. Steele:

"The Army's haircut policy is most reasonable when we consider the grooming styles of the country. It does not require the old 'sidewall' haircut, but it does require that a soldier present a neat and well kept appearance."

Col. Steele goes on to say, "We have had no major haircut problem in the 197th. This is primarily because of the leadership and close supervision by the junior leaders at the squad and platoon levels. Our junior leaders are aware of the regulation and because of their daily contact with their subordinates, they can insure that it is enforced."

"I am not saying that we are a hundred percent perfect in this area, but we are able to take corrective action where appropriate. An example of this is best evidenced in the case of a soldier court martialed three months ago for failing to obey an order to get a haircut. The sentence he received was pretty stiff — confined to hard labor for thirty days and a forfeiture of sixty dollars per month for three months. That's a stiff price to pay, but he would not follow orders. We cannot tolerate disobedience to legal orders. That was an exceptional case," concluded Col. Steele.

The "Army Haircut Problem" is not a major problem in units and headquarters where non-commissioned and junior officers enforce the regulations and the leaders above them in the chain of command support them. In units and headquarters where this situation doesn't exist, people may be "hassling about a haircut" for the next 20 years.

Saluting:

To the military what handshaking is to civilians

By Carl Doyle

The exchange of the salute in the military profession has been a respected military gesture down through the years.

Since the beginning of military history, soldiers have used some form of saluting as a sign of recognition and respect. In the days of the Medieval Knights, the salute was exchanged by the raising of the face covering of the helmet to make recognition possible.

Swordsmen of the 14th and 15th centuries exposed the hilts of their swords when meeting other men as a means of courtesy. In other periods, the raising of the right hand or some other form of saluting lead to the present military salute.

Who Must Salute

"The salute is to the military as the handshake is to the civilian. It's just a form of greeting," said Sergeant Major Mark Ward, Sergeant Major, Directorate of Industrial Operations.

Many new soldiers think that military courtesy is a "one-way street". They think they have to be courteous to officers, but the officers don't have to return the courtesy. This is not true. Officers must respect men as individuals, just as enlisted personnel should respect officers. Without this basis of mutual respect, there can be no military courtesy.

"I have no objections to rendering the salute, but I do expect the same courtesy in return," stated Sergeant First Class Jesus P. Valenzuela, Headquarters Command, USAIS. Officers are required to return the salute of enlisted personnel and officers of lower grade. Officers also exchange salutes. The salute should be extended to all officers of all armed forces to include Allied forces.

Enlisted personnel are not required to salute non-commissioned officers. However, there are exceptions to this rule, such as when personnel act as squad leaders in a military formation and render a report to the platoon sergeant.

It is significant that the privilege of the salute is withheld from military personnel while in the status of a prisoner for a military offense.

When To Salute

All military personnel in uniform should exchange salutes when they meet and recognize persons entitled to the salute. Exceptions to this rule are when in public conveyances, such as trains and buses; in theaters, or when a salute would obviously be inappropriate. The salute should be exchanged when the person being saluted is six paces from the individual, or at his nearest point of approach.

At six paces, recognition is certainly no problem even with the subdued insignia.

"We majors have it the hardest," says Major Bill Harrison, TDY here from Fort Leavenworth. "It's hard to distinguish a silver leaf from the majors leaf with the dark insignia. But that's all right, I just salute them all. It's just a way of saying hello!"

SPECIAL CASES

Soldiers should salute those entitled to the salute upon recognition when that person is riding in an official vehicle. And, certainly, you should salute your unit commander or a general officer when observed riding in an official vehicle.

It is improper to salute while running or with a cigarette, cigar or pipe in your mouth. Drivers of vehicles should not salute while the vehicle is in motion. Soldiers carrying articles with both hands should not salute, nor are they required to return the salute of an individual. Personnel are not required to exchange salutes indoors except when reporting for pay or to the officer in charge.

One thing that all military personnel should remember: When in doubt, SALUTE.

How To Salute

The way you salute is important because it tells a lot about you as a soldier. If you salute proudly and smartly, it shows that you have pride in yourself and your unit.

The Salute is executed by raising the right hand smartly until the tip of the forefinger touches the brim of the headdress; above and slightly to the right of the right eye. The thumb and forefingers should be extended and joined, with the palm facing to the left and the wrist straight. The upper part of the arm should be kept horizontal to the ground and the forearm inclined at an angle of 45 degrees. At the same time, the head and eyes are turned toward the person being saluted.

The salute is then completed by dropping the arm to the side, without slapping the trousers, and turning the head and eyes to the front.

Post tourney quarterfinals tonight

The USAIC Company Level Basketball Tournament opened Monday night with action at Briant Wells Fieldhouse and Audie Murphy Gym.

The premier game at Briant Wells produced a strong contender for the post championship as the 444th Trans. Co. waltzed to a 80-42 victory over the Med. Co. of Martin Army Hospital. Robert Coleman hit from long-range and led the fastbreak to finish with 32 points for the "Truckers". Wayne Brown worked inside for 18 points. Lee Dunham led the Med. Co. with 16 points.

In the second game, Jeff Ward was a one-man show as he led Co. A, 3rd Bn., 7th Inf. to a 42-31 decision over the 546th Med. Co. Ward contributed 24 points, mostly on jumpers from the foul line and driving layups, as the 546th could not find a way to stop him. Dale Overman with 12 and Bill Simmons with 11 were leading scorers for the 546th.

At Audie Murphy Gym, powerful Co. A, Hqs. Comd. used a balanced attack to rout 121st Avn. Co., 69-46. Ricky Harris tossed in 15 points and Tim Griffin contributed 14 while John Crosby scored 13 in leading Co. A to victory. Everett Stull with 20 points was the high scorer for the 121st Avn. Co.

In the final game of the night, the 72nd Engr. Co. established itself as a contender by swamping a strong 608th Ord. team, 64-53. Larry Asbury with 13 points led the 72nd Engrs. Adolphus Thompson, Dozier Law and John Mayner all scored 10 points apiece for the Engrs. Leading scorer for the losing 608th Ord. was Larry Stallworth with 19.

Tuesday night action at Briant Wells opened with a "barn-burner" as 444th Trans. Co. sneaked by the Pioneers of Co. A, 1st Bn., 29th Inf., 67-66. Robert Coleman continued his brilliant play for the 44th as he pumped in 34 points. Louis Johnson led the Pioneers in scoring with 24.

In a losers bracket game that followed, the 546th Med. Co. eliminated the Med. Co. of Martin Army Hospital, 61-55. Dale Overman led the 546th with 22 points.

Game action at Audie Murphy got off on a sour note as 2nd Bn, TSB was forced to forfeit its game to Co. A, Hqs. Comd. The second game of the night provided enough action to make up for that as the 121st Avn. Co. eliminated the 608th Ord. Co., 63-58. The 608th jumped to an early lead and seemed to be in complete control of the game.

However, the 121st resorted to a full-court press which the 608th could not handle. Everett Stull led the 121st with 24 points. Lee Dunham and Mitchell with 21 points led the 608th.

Action will pick up tonight with quarterfinal action. The championship could be determined on March 3 or 4 depending on results of the double elimination bracketing.

Jeff Ward (32) Co. A, 3rd Bn, 7th Inf breezes by Dale Overman (13), 546th Med Co., enroute to scoring two of his game-high 24 points. Co A, 3/7 won the

ROTC team wins rifle match

There will be no turkey hunting season at Fort Benning this spring. The post turkey population is just not large enough to permit reduction. The decision to eliminate the spring turkey hunting season was based on studies and recommendations of biologists of the Georgia Game and Fish Division and the post Fish and Wildlife Management Section.

Roy Johnson, chief of the Fish and Wildlife Management Section, believes the turkey population may be decreasing. "This is happening all over Georgia, and we don't really know the reasons," he said. "The Georgia Game and Fish Division of the Department of Natural Resources recommended that we discontinue the spring gobbler season at Fort Benning this year, and we complied with their recommendation."

"The population here may be holding its own, but that's the best we can say, and we certainly don't want it to get any smaller. Some hunters may inadvertently kill hens instead of gobblers in the spring and that really hurts."

Normally, the season would last from March 23 until April 3. But with the turkey population "the smallest it has been since 1963," according to Johnson, there will be no gobbler-hunting this year.

One Expert Agrees

Veteran turkey-hunter, Major (Retired) Ray Rolf, is well-qualified to talk about turkeys, and he agrees with the decision. He has taken one each year the season has been open. In 1962 he bagged one of the largest ever taken on post. The bird weighed in at 23.8 pounds. The post Rod and Gun Club has it mounted and has it on exhibit at Victory Lodge.

Maj. Rolf has been hunting on the reservation for more years than he cares to remember. He said, "I've been quail-hunting about three times a week for the past three months. I watch for turkey signs each time I go hunting. During the whole period I only saw the tracks of one gobbler and three hens in areas where a few years ago I would have seen the tracks of from 35 to 40 birds."

Two Disagree

Colonel (Retired) Reuben Kyle Jr., another avid turkey-hunter for several years now, disagrees with Maj. Rolf's opinion. "This year's turkey crop is the best in five years," he said. "It's the deer and quail hunters who kill turkeys. When they can't bag a deer, they take what's there." He said only a few turkeys have been reported over the past several years, but added that the majority of those killed are never reported.

Master Sergeant (Retired) Lewis V. Davis, a friend of Col. Kyle's, agrees with him on the subject of turkeys. Sgt. Davis has been studying the habits of turkeys for the past two years. He said, "The turkey population has doubled in the past two years. Nesting is favorable, and there are more turkeys of reproductive age than there have been for the last six or seven years. I saw the largest flock of turkeys I've seen since 1963 this year. There were 18 turkeys, including hens, gobblers and young turkeys. The next largest flock I saw had 13 turkeys, including 12 hens and 1 gobbler."

Who Is Right

Who is right? The biologists, Johnson and Rolf or Col. Kyle and Sgt. Davis. Each hunter no doubt sides with one or the other. The facts remain that there are not near as many turkeys on the reservation now as there were 10 years ago. Having no open season will spoil the sport for turkey hunters this year but having an open season could spoil the sport for years or forever.

The Columbus High School JROTC rifle team captured the first place team trophy at the Tampa-Columbus Rifle Match held at Fort Benning's Parks International Range on Feb. 16. Hillsborough High School, Tampa, finished second in team competition and Kendrick High, Columbus, placed fifth. Larry Brown of Kendrick won the high individual trophy with a score of 272. John Winstead of Baker finished second. Woody Spear of Kendrick took fourth place and John McNally of Columbus placed fifth. Glenn Moeller of Spencer High captured eighth place.

Barracudas host swim meet

The Indoor pool at Bryant Wells Fieldhouse was the site for an AAU Invitational "B" Swim Meet on Saturday, February 23. Fort Benning's Barracuda Swim team were hosts to 200 swimmers representing 10 teams from throughout the Southeast.

Barracuda Coach Gary Bolton expressed pleasure with the efforts of his developing swimmers. He also added that new swimmers are welcome to join the team.

In boys 8 and under competition, Barracuda Steve Graham, grabbed a third place finish in the 50 yard breaststroke.

Swimming in the girls 10 and under division, Tracy McRee took a second in the 50 backstroke, third in the 100 backstroke and sixth in the 200 yard individual medley. Leigh Lunsford placed third in both the 100 freestyle and 50 yard backstroke. Laura Chaplin captured third in the 200 yard individual medley.

Kirby Pilcher earned points for the Barracudas in the boys 11 & 12 division by placing third in both the 50 yard freestyle and 100 yard freestyle. Also, Kirby took fifth in the 100 yard backstroke.

Grace Kelly finished second in the 50 yard freestyle and third in the 100 yard freestyle.

Dorothy Clark took third in the 100 yard backstroke. Grace and Dorothy competed in the girls 11 & 12 division.

In the Girls 13 & 14 competition, Mary Alice

Chapin had a most successful day as she placed second in the 200 yard individual medley, 100 yard breaststroke and the 50 yard freestyle. Mary Alice also took third in the 100 yard backstroke and fourth in the 100 yard freestyle. Dixie Johnston placed third in the 200 yard freestyle.

Faith gains practice... not title

Coach John Wooden and his UCLA Bruins set their sights on an undefeated season and another national championship. Coach Max Spurlin and the Faith School Demons didn't think quite that big. For obvious reasons they settled for less.

"I said before the season started, that if we won two or three games we could call the season a success," stated Coach Spurlin. "We did win two games and could have won five more except our inexperience caught up with us."

Competing for the first time ever with Columbus-

Phenix City junior high schools, the Faith 8th grade team compiled a 2-12 record while the 7th grade went 1-9 for the season.

"You have to remember that we started this season without the benefit of a winning tradition and no experienced players," Spurlin said. "We knew nothing about the teams we would play and had not time to conduct spring practice."

"Basically it was a lack of height and inexperience that hurt us," continued Coach Spurlin. "I recall a game in which we had a twenty point lead and ended up losing the game. Another time we had a twelve point and lost that one too. This is what inexperience will do to you."

"But we found out where the other gyms are at. The boys never gave up and always displayed good sportsmanship. The important thing about the season was that it gives the student body an esprit de corps. They had a team to cheer for, a band and cheerleaders. Students really turned out for the home games," Coach Spurlin further stated.

Jim Bell was the leading scorer for the 8th grade team, Bell averaged nearly 11 points a game. Brad Scott, Steve Warren, Ken-ry Robinson and Diego Pedraza were the other starters.

The 7th grade team, which will form the nucleus of next years 8th grade team, was led in scoring by Kevin Ketchum with a 10 point output per game. "If Kevin grows a little and builds up his stamina he could be a big asset to us next year," evaluated Coach Spurlin. Maymon Baxter and David Baker will also see plenty of action next year.

"Next year will be prepared. The boys are going through a conditioning program and we'll hold 15 days of spring practice. They have the experience now and will not be awed by the competition or crowd noise," said Spurlin.

YAC passes halfway mark

Youth Activities basketball season passed the halfway mark and both leagues have produced teams that the rest of the pack is trying to catch.

In the Biddy League, the Lakers have established themselves as the team to beat as they top league standings with a 4-1 record. David Gibbs moves the offense with slick ballhandling and contributes better than 8 points a game. Briand Westmoreland dominates the rebounding at both ends of the court and scores four points a game. The Hawks with Donnell William doing the scoring and the Kings following the scoring binges of Osualdo Font are tied for second with 3-2 records. The Hawks are the only team to beat the Lakers yet have lost twice to the Kings. The Bucks are in last place with an 0-5 record as they have been unable to produce an offense other than Greg Lahr who averages 4 points a game.

The Doughboy League standings find the Pistons on top and with little threat of being dislodged. The Pistons have posted a perfect 6-0 record using a balanced team effort.

Buddy Bradford, Bobby and John Mitchell provide the offense for the Pistons.

The Bulls, Celtics and Knicks make up the rest of the league and all have 2-4 records. Eddie Monahan of the Celtics is probably the outstanding player in the league and consistently scores in double figures. Tim Tarpley does a one man show for the Bulls. The Knicks get balance scoring from Bobby Jacobs, Hal Hayman and Shackelford but have yet to put it all together.

League action will continue through the next two weeks. Biddy League games are played on Monday and Wednesday at 6 p.m. and 7 p.m. Doughboy League action is played on Tuesday and Thursday at the same times. Both leagues will hold playoff tournaments at the end of regular season play.

Benning Managers Assn. is looking for members

The Ft. Benning Management Association is conducting a membership drive for military and civilian employees at Ft. Benning who are interested in advances and improvements in the field of management.

The Association was formed in September 1973 after members voted to drop their charter with the national organization of the Armed Forces Management Association. The move was prompted in part by an increase in dues at the national level.

The local group has made plans to give scholarships to local students and is working toward recognition of individuals who excel in the mid-level management field. Luncheon meetings are held on the third Thursday of each month, with a key military official or civilian as guest speaker.

Association president LTC George Chaplin stated, "All military and civilian men and women from Ft. Benning and other communities interested in Ft. Benning are welcome as members."

Anyone interested in joining may fill out the attached coupon and forward it with annual dues of five dollars to Ms. Marcia Wolfe, membership chairwoman, Force Development Division, Directorate of Plans and Training, Room 620, Infantry Hall.

BYOB to the commissary

You can help out in the paper shortage by bringing your empty paper containers to the commissary. Paper bags are in short supply, and the shortage could last for several months.

There are several reasons for the shortage. The industry has been hampered by ecological requirements, as well as severe weather conditions that have hindered production.

The Army and Air Force Exchange System has considered plastic bats as one stopgap measure; however, plastic is a petrochemical product in short supply due to the petroleum shortage.

The local commissary is taking a number of steps to help alleviate the shortage; but right now, customers can help out a great deal by bringing used, but serviceable, paper boxes and bags to pack their groceries when they shop.

The Post Exchange has not been experiencing the same shortage yet. This is because they use fewer of that are in such short supply. The heavy Kraft paper bags

ROA offers education assistance to military dependents

The Retired Officers Association offers scholarship assistance to young people who are the dependents of active duty or retired servicemen, both officer and enlisted. These are commercial education loans, insured against default, that are obtained through an agreement with the United Student Aid Funds, Inc.

The maximum amount of the insured loans is $1,500 yearly. Under certain financial conditions, the feder government will pay the interest on these loans while the student is in college and for varying periods of time after graduation, depending on the student's future employment.

If youngsters are unable, through no fault of their own, to obtain an insured loan, they may apply for direct, interest-free loans from the Retired Officers Association Scholarship Fund. This assistance is open to children of both enlisted men and officers, active duty or retired. The parent of the child need not be a member of the Retired Officers Association. For more information on these insured loans, write directly to: The Retired Officers Association, 1625 Eye Street, N.W., Attention: Secretary, Scholarship Committee, Washington, D.C. 20006.

AUTOVON is not for abuse

THE AUTOVON (Automatic Voice-Net) system is a very important link in vital military communications. Its purpose is to handle essential command and control operations, intelligence, logistics, diplomatic and administrative traffic. It is vital because the military mission is so widespread.

There are some individuals who abuse the AUTOVON system. These people seldom make any discrimination between official and unofficial calls, nor do they limit their calls to the requested five minutes. That's one reason for the busy signals every AUTOVON user has encountered.

Before using AUTOVON, ask yourself, "Is this call really worth tying up a line?" Then, if you do place a call, limit your conversation to business. AUTOVON lines are a convenience provided by the government for government business.

AUSA attends George Washington Ball

Nearly 1,000 civilian and military members of AUSA and their guests attended the George Washington Birthday Ball on February 22. Proceeds from this annual event sponsored by the ColumbusPhenix CityFort Benning Chapter will be used for ROTC college scholarships during the coming year. The highlight of the evening was a presentation of a dozen roses to Fort Benning's Military Wife of the Year, Mrs. Mary Phelps, by MG Thomas Tarpley, President Joe Windsor welcomed special guests — Mayor Bobby Hydrick from Columbus; Mayor Frank Roberts from Phenix City; BG William R. Richardson, Assistant Commandant; Mr. J.W. Woodruff Jr., member of the National Board of Trustees and Mr. Joe Flowers Jr., AUSA 3d Region President. A patriotic program reflecting the theme of the George Washington era was presented by the Apocalypse, a group of young persons from the Evangel Temple. Those who attended made many favorable comments on the arrangements as well as the decorations. These details were handled by the project officer from the 67th Maintenance Battalion, LT Ron Bullard. A roast beef dinner was catered by the Noncommissioned Officers Open Mess.

Prejudice

a problem within our society in need of correction

Prejudice is built on nonrational foundations. It is a prejudging of other people without any valid reason for such judgment.

Since all of us are involved in prejudice, it is advisable for us to examine our thoughts with regard to people of differing races, creeds and cultures to uncover weaknesses and inconsistencies in our thinking. Racial discrimination is the predominate prejudice in our country today. It is the most significant reason for our failure to realize the goal of equal rights and responsibilities for all.

The first step toward dispelling the power of prejudice in our nation is to examine the major areas where prejudice is harbored. A false sense of racial superiority, whether learned or assumed, is one of the hard core roots of prejudice. Closing the door on personal relationships with others because of their social category, religion or race impoverishes us. Such action hinders us from being personally enriched by those whose beliefs and cultural patterns are different from ours.

Our political, economic, and social institutions have served most of the people of our nation well. However, these institutions have not always extended the same benefits to nonwhites. This has caused an imbalance in American life where millions of Negroes, Indians and Spanish Americans live on the fringe of an affluent society. While the majority attitude toward those minority groups is not identical to or as severe as was that of our forebears, strong vestiges of racial prejudice toward those peoples is part of our heritage and is difficult to eradicate.

Our natural tendency to rationalize comes into play in the area of race prejudice. Rather than admitting to ourselves that prejudicial feelings exist in our relationship with minority groups we engage in "double talk" which hides our real reasons for action. For example, the real reason for continued school segregation is to keep blacks separate; our rationalization is that the purpose of such action is to preserve the neighborhood school. Our behavior toward minority groups is frequently motivated by fear. We not only fear them because they are different from us but we fear what the dropping of racial barriers will do to us, to our families and to our society.

In order to break the power of prejudice we need to discipline ourselves to cease prejudging others regardless of who they are or what they may have done. Let us learn all available facts before we render a judgment regarding anyone. Group pressures to enlist our support to think and act blindly to satisfy the group must be resisted. We must think and act for ourselves in this area. We have the obligation to think for ourselves, resist group pressures and seek to enlist others to aid us in breaking down prejudice in our sphere of influence.

Sharp outstanding man of year

Maj. Gerald W. Sharpe, an artillery officer, has been named Columbus' Outstanding Man of 1973 by the Columbus Jaycees. The award was given to Maj. Sharpe last week at the J. R. Allen Memorial Awards Banquet.

The award, previously called the Distinguished Service Award, was renamed last year in honor of the late Mayor J. R. Allen of Columbus, who received it in 1964.

Maj. Sharpe received the award for his work with the Kiwanis International and the Teen Tavern of Columbus. Carey O. Brinson, president of the local Kiwanis Chapter, recommended Sharpe for the award. Brinson said, "His work with the Kiwanis Youth Shelter was one of the most exemplary demonstrations of community dedication ever witnessed by Kiwanis members."

Brinson added, "Maj. Sharpe has rendered unparalleled service which deserves recognition of a high order. He has continuously sought ways to be of service to our club and the community."

Brig. General William R. Richardson, who also recommended Maj. Sharpe for the award, noted the nominee's "unique leadership ability and character" and "knack for getting things done." He said Sharpe has become "a watchword for service within the Kiwanis Club," and concluded, "I feel that he is a real credit to the community."

Maj. Sharpe entered the service in 1961 as an enlisted man, and served with the Third Armored Division in Germany. In 1963 he attended Artillery OCS at Fort Sill, Oklahoma, and after graduation was assigned as a platoon leader at Fort Sill.

He remained there, serving in various positions, until 1967, when he was assigned to Turkey. After his return from Turkey, he graduated the Artillery

Major Gerald Sharpe, an artillery instructor in the Infantry School, received the J. R. Allen Memorial Award as Columbus' Outstanding Man of the Year for 1973. The award was presented to Maj. Sharpe for his community service. He is active in the Kiwanis International, and is one of the directors of the Columbus "Teen Tavern." (Photo by Ledger-Enquirer)

Officers Advanced Course at Fort Sill. In 1969 he was sent to Vietnam with the First Cavalry Division. Since his return, he has been with the artillery committee, brigade and battalion Operations Department of the Infantry School.

He grew up in Denver, Colorado, and attended Western State College in Gunnison, Colo. He received his bachelor's degree in business administration from Oklahoma University. Sharpe is an active member of Kiwanis International, and is zone chairman for the Georgia District of Kiwanis.

He helps operate the Kiwanis Youth Shelter, a home for abandoned and runaway children. This year he led a fund drive that raised around $4,000 for the shelter.

Commenting on the award, Sharpe said, "I feel that the Kiwanis members and Columbus businessmen who worked so hard on these projects deserve most of the credit. Without them, we wouldn't have accomplished all that we did."

Sharpe is also on the board of directors for the Teen Tavern, a recreational facility for North Columbus youth. It is owned by the Columbus consolidated government and operated through funds from private contributors.

He said, "I've really come to love Columbus in the two years I've been here. I wish most of my fellow soldiers would come into Columbus and find out how wonderful the people here are."

Maj. Sharpe and his wife, Mary Katherine, have four children: two daughters (Sherrin, 8 years old, and Barbara, 7) and two sons (Sean, age 4, and Terrence, 2).

Vision conservation emphasized

The week of March 4-10 has been declared National Save Your Vision Week. Under the sponsorship of the American Optometry Association, the purpose of the week-long event is to emphasize the value of eyesight and the importance of periodic eye examinations.

Cpt. (Dr.) Kirk Smick, Martin Army Hospital, says, "Everyone should have a periodic eye examination even though there are no apparent eyesight defects. These examinations can provide early detection and treatment of eye defects."

Military personnel, sponsors and dependents can make appointments for an eye examination by calling the Central Appointment Desk, 544-1064.

Founders Day Dinner

The West Point Society of Fort Benning and Columbus will hold a Founders Day Dinner March 16 to celebrate the 172nd birthday of the United States Military Academy.

The dinner will be held in the Fort Benning Officers' Club, with a social hour beginning at 6:30 p.m. The featured guest speaker will be Gen. Bruce Palmer Jr., Commander-in-Chief, U.S. Army Readiness Command.

All West Point graduates, ex-cadets, and graduates of the U.S. Naval Academy, U.S. Air Force Academy, and foreign military academies who have not been contacted and desire to attend, should contact LTC W. A. Duncah Jr. at 545-5516 or MAJ E. M. Crowley at 545-3816 prior to March 5, 1974.

Boles brothers - join together, promote together

Two-thirds of a set of triplets were promoted to Lieutenant Colonel in ceremonies held in Infantry Hall on Friday, March 1.

Wayne T. Boles and John L. Boles, both of whom are assigned to the Infantry School, received silver oak leaves from BG. William R. Richardson, Assistant Commandant of the Infantry School.

The Boles "twins" are two-thirds of a set of triplets born in Dallas, Texas. Their sister, Mrs. Betty Sparks, now lives in Terrell, Texas. John and Wayne both graduated from the University of Arkansas and entered the Army together at Ft. Hood, Texas in 1959. They had athletic scholarships to Arkansas, and both were distinguished graduates of the University's ROTC program.

They have been stationed together at Ft. Benning, where they completed the Infantry Officer Basic Course; Ft. Rucker, where they attended Army flight school; and in Germany, where John was with the 3rd Infantry Division and Wayne was assigned to the 3rd Armored Division.

They attended the Infantry Officer Advanced

Course at Ft. Benning in 1965, and were sent to Vietnam with the 1st Cavalry Division, where they served with the 228th Helicopter Battalion. After Vietnam, both returned to Ft. Benning, where they were assigned to the 10th Aviation Group. Another tour in Vietnam followed for both, this time with the 101st Airborne Division.

After serving in Vietnam a second time, both were assigned to Ft. Rucker again. There, John was Secretary, General Staff and Wayne was chief of the Plans Division, Plans and Operations, Army Aviation Center.

The brothers attended the Command and General Staff College, Ft. Leavenworth, Kansas, together in 1971.

Wayne is assigned in the Directorate of Doctrine and Training Development, and John is in the Directorate of Combat Developments.

Their numerous awards are almost identical, and include the Distinguished Flying Cross; Bronze Star Medal; Air Medal; Army Commendation Medal; and Vietnamese Cross of Gallantry.

Newly promoted Lieutenant Colonels (left to right) John Boles and wife Mary Jean, and Wayne Boles and his wife, Joyce, are pictured at promotion ceremonies for the two brothers, who are two-thirds of a set of triplets. They were promoted in ceremonies held in Infantry Hall on March 1.

The new Ft. Benning Mall will be officially opened at 9:45 a.m., March 28, during a ceremony to be held in the Mall's front parking lot. Invited guests for the occasion include the Hon. Jack S. Brinkley, Georgia congressman; LTG Fred Cornet, deputy chief of staff for logistics, Department of the Army; MG Cecil W. Hospelhorn, commander, the Army-Air Force Exchange System; and MG Kenneth T. Sawyer, deputy chief of staff for logistics, U.S. Army Training and Doctrine Command. LTG Orwin C. Talbott, deputy commander, U.S. Army Training and Doctrine Command and a former Ft. Benning commander, will be the principal speaker. MG Thomas M. Tarpley, Ft. Benning commander, will host the ceremony, which will include renditions of historic music and the National Anthem by the 283rd Army Band. The invocation and benediction will be given by Chaplain (Col) Sterling A. Wetharell, post chaplain. Those individuals whose outstanding efforts were instrumental in the construction of the Mall

SGM James S. Daniel, HHC, HQ Cmd.

I don't know of any other way they'd support it if they didn't. Based on that fact, it's only logical to use the fees on the game. It seems acceptable to me to use them that way. It's one source of income for hunting and fishing. I pay my fees. I'm sure of the quality of our wildlife conservation, and I imagine it can be expanded.

SSG (ret.) James W. Gulsby, Dental Clinic No. 4

No sir! You get a grant from the federal government for this. I spent ten years at this post, and I do quite a bit of fishing. Paying for a post permit is fine, but not paying to use a pond.

SSG Richard Patterson, Co. A, 1-29th

Yes, if the guy wants to continue hunting, he should support it. From what I've seen here, the facilities are good for hunting and fishing. I wasn't here long enough to use them, but I would have taken advantage of them had I been here longer.

Do you think hunting and fishing fees should pay for wildlife conservation on post?

SFC David L. Clark, 60th Trans. Co., aircraft direct support

No, I think they should be government supported. The fees they charge are not sufficient to support the wildlife conservation on post. We should have more government support, and the fees should supplement what the government gives us. I'd like to see part of the money used to bring in white tailed deer.

Sp4 William Rundle, Co. D, 43rd Engineer Co.

No, not for that sort of thing. It depends on how much they're going to stock the post. It could cost a bundle. In part, the fees could be used, like for feeding. But it shouldn't pay for the whole thing.

Letters to the Editor

Lack of longer hair could be a problem

That "non-functional hair" that last week's editorial referred to is a major problem within the Army. Most of us would rather keep it cut rather than put up with all the hassle. But I feel the Army is hurting its reenlistments and new enlistments by keeping the 1950 hairstyles a part of its modern Army. If having short hair is so very important, then the Israeli Army must be the most undisciplined, backward Army in the present. But to the contrary, the Israelis are one of the most effective fighting forces today. I don't think that any American military officer would disagree with that. One major difference that I can see in their Army and ours is that they are interested in doing a job and doing it well, and not so worried about the length of the troop's hair or whether or not you can see yourself in the spit shine.

Reader sees soldier as unhappy about other regulations

I am not surprised that the member of the Infantry Chorus pictured on page 6 of the March 1, Bayonet is unhappy with "the haircut regulation." He is also evidently unhappy with the regulation which prescribes the wear of the garrison cap and the correct method of wearing distinctive unit insignia on the cap as he wears both cap and insignia incorrectly.

43rd completes MAH helipad

Plans for the helipad began in Nov. 1973. Company B, 43rd Engr., were assigned to the project for operating heavy equipment and providing maintenance supervision.

Clearing the 23 acre site was the responsibility of the first task force; bulldozers, front end loader, personnel and chainsaws began the clearing operation.

According to helicopter pilots utilizing the original landing area at MAT, "The new facility will be a welcome addition to the expansion of the hospital." The new HELIPAD will also provide expansion of the air evacuation capabilities of MAH.

This Co. B, 43rd Engr. Bn. (CONSTRUCTION) 36th Engr. Gp. (CBT), soldier utilizes his training in heavy equipment operation with a grader used during the recently completed Martin Army Hospital HELIPAD Project.

with an opportunity to test its readiness capabilities to fulfill its Table of Organization (TOE) missions.

Projects of this type are a valuable asset in part of our training in the use of heavy equipment." Stated PFC Vincent Simon, tractor operator, Co. B, 43rd Engrs., 36th Engr. Gp. (CBT). Simon also said, "The training I receive on these projects will provide excellent experience in the operating procedures of heavy equipment, which I will be able to use after completing my service obligation."

"I have had the opportunity to perform several different jobs since I have been in the 43rd Engrs.," says SP4 Willie J. Mitchell, truck driver, Company B, 43rd Engrs.

Mitchell continued by saying, "The construction of the HELIPAD gave me a chance to perform my duties as they should be utilized." "If we were able to work on more projects of this nature, the men would be able to perform more efficiently and would be learning a skill, instead of only occupying a position." He concluded.

Courtesy Patrol

Would you believe they are actually out to help you?

Outside the main PX, noon, one weekday
SP4 Bob Trooper: Come on, Steve, what's taking you so long?

PFC Steve Groundpounder: I'm watching that SGM. He's really stopping those soldiers over there.
SP4 Trooper: Yeah, let's duck before he sees us.
PFC Groundpounder: No, let's go talk to him.

PFC Groundpounder: Good morning, SGM. What's this courtesy patrol you're on?

SGM Strac: We just got started this week. What we're trying to do is help soldiers keep up their appearance.

SP4 Trooper: Yes, what do you look for?

SGM Strac: We keep our eyes open to see that haircuts, wear of headgear, appearance of uniform and use of military courtesy are correct.

SP4 Trooper: In other words, you're gonna hassle us junior enlisted men.

SGM Strac: Goodness, no. As soldiers, we're all required to look our professional best at all times. Anybody can make a mistake. All we do is point these things out.

PFC Groundpounder: Where are the courtesy patrols working?

SGM Strac: During the lunch break each working day, we walk around the main PX and main cafeteria areas. That's the time when the most soldiers leave their units for errands and they need to be reminded they're in public.

SP4 Trooper: Who's this "we" that's doing this? Officers?

SGM Strac: The only men on patrol are senior NCOs—E-7, 8, or 9.

PFC Groundpounder: If a soldier is stopped by the patrol, is his commander told?

SGM Strac: Like I said, this courtesy patrol is not to hassle soldiers. Most of the things we see are very minor—like a pocket unbuttoned or the hat not being worn. These things can be fixed on the spot. For that, it would be silly to notify the commander.

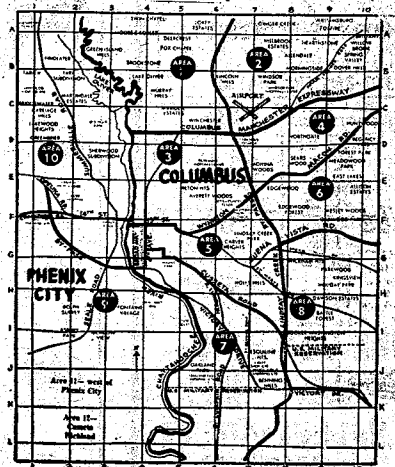

Every now and then we see a soldier who is really a mess. In a case like that, the patrol would send a violation notice to his command sergeant major. He in turn would notify that soldier's commander.

SP4 Trooper: Thanks, SGM. Come on Steve, we'll be late if we don't hustle.

"I'm waiting for my carpool to take me for some errands," says Isia Breath. She's one of many who have used the Bayonet carpool locator to find a ride. Two locator boards are available — one in Bldg. 4, one in Bldg. 35. Find yourself on the map, Isia says, by reading right and up. Put your name, section, business phone and hours on a card on the board. If you wish, use this map and send your information to the Bayonet in Bldg. 4, Room 604. Somewhere a carpool is waiting for you. (Photo courtesy of American International Pictures)

To find your carpool, follow these simple steps. Locate yourself on the map by reading right and up. Put your name and location on a card along with your office phone number, building number and working hours. This information can be put on the carpool boards in Buildings 4 or 35. It can also be sent directly to the Bayonet in Bldg. 4, Room 604. All names submitted will be printed with this map.

"We've got our first aggressor," says Sgt Jimmie Reed, Co. B, 3rd Bn., 7th Inf., as he reaches to search the aggressor for documents during the Army Training Test of his battalion.

Setting up a maintenance tent's support structure is not child's play as it may seem here. "It's a tough job," says PVT Donny Zentz, a chemical equipment repairman of Co. D, 197th during the recent Army Training Test. (Photo by W. R. Cage)

Readiness is 197th byword as unit completes ATT

Readiness! The watchword of the 197th Infantry Brigade is fast becoming a reality as the brigade's battalions successfully complete Army Training Tests (ATTS) with combat ready ratings.

With the exception of the 2, 69th Armor, all battalion-size units of the brigade have completed

Army Training Testing. The 1st Bn. (Mech.), 58th Inf. (Patriots), was the first to complete its ATT in mid February. The 3, 7th (Cottonbalers), 2, 10th Field Arty. (Rock's Support) and the 197th Spt. Bn., complete testing last week.

The armor battalion testing will take place later this month. The primary purpose of the battalion tests was to evaluate each battalion's ability to perform its assigned mission under simulated combat conditions.

The secondary purposes were to ascertain the degree of unit readiness, identify areas in which individuals and units require additional training, insure uniformity of training, provide realistic training, and to evaluate combat readiness based on serviceability of equipment in actual unit operations.

67th Maint. Bn. leads in new "PET" parade

On Jan. 9 the 67th Maint. Bn. 38th Engr. Grp. became the first Fort Benning unit to complete the newly initiated program of Personal Effectiveness Training (PET) for the Army's NCO and junior officer leadership.

The PET program originated at Department of the Army level in a request by the Deputy Chief of Staff for Personnel, to the Army Chief of Chaplains. Gen. Rogers indicated that reports and studies revealed the Army's junior leadership needed assistance in developing their leadership skills and abilities. He felt the training, background, and rapport of Chaplains with their unit personnel would enable them to accomplish this vitally needed training program.

The eighteen hour program of instruction developed and implemented by 36th Engr. Grp. Chaplain with 67th personnel included:

- 1) A Refresher on Leadership Skills and Techniques.
- 2) Inner Frustrations-Conflicts of Leadership.
- 3) Basic Concepts of Human Behavior.
- 4) Techniques of Counseling.
- 5) The Arts of Communication and Listening.
- 6) Referral Agency Assets for Leadership.
- 7) Individual Temperament Testing and Personality Analysis of Leaders.

The 67th program began on Dec. 20 with separate classes for five different grades of leadership: squad and section leaders, platoon sergeants, first sergeants, warrant officers and lieutenants (platoon leaders); and company commanders-staff officers.

The 36th Chaplain-instructors indicated the main thrust of their program was a re-affirmation of tried and tested skills and principles couched in the setting and terms of today's Army. Critiques of the PET program provided by 67th leaders were extremely positive. An overwhelming majority indicated such training should occur on an Army-wide basis. The 67th takes pride in leading other Fort Benning units toward greater professional leadership.

MALL OPENING

Cont. from Pge. 4 will be recognized during the ceremony.

The Mall, built at a cost of approximately $5.5 million, will make all commissary and Post Exchange services available in one central location, just off Santa Fe Road in the vicinity of

Martin Army Hospital.

The 240,000 square feet of enclosed area in the new building will house the post commissary, children's nursery, cafeteria, banking facilities and the Main Post Exchange with service concessions.

Services included will be a barber shop, beauty salon, tailor shop, shoe repair shop, optical studio, watch repair shop, laundry and dry cleaning facilities and flower shop.

Adjacent buildings will house a bowling center, walk-up Post Office, and automobile service station.

"Virginia Woolf" now has its cast

The Dramatizer's "Rashomon" and the current production, "The Secretary of State in 'The Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf'", which will be here at Ft. Benning next month has now been cast! An experimental double cast will play alternate nights — a first at the Benning Playhouse. George will be played by Cpt Fred Plank, the Dramatizer's president. Many theatergoers will remember seeing him as the Priest in

"Rashomon" and the Secretary of State in "The Mouse That Roared". The other George will be played by a promising newcomer to the stage, T. Milton Lowe, who is a local real estate executive. Martha is played by Jessie Thomas, a successful Columbus Realtor who is new to our stage, and Becke Brown, veteran of many productions who is making her Benning debut.

Honey and Nick are the young marrieds who will witness and catalyze George and Martha's orgy of spite. Honey will be played by Laura Pinkston, star reporter of a local newspaper, and Marty Flynn, an experienced actress newly arrived at Ft. Benning. Nick, her handsome husband, will be played by Sp4 Jose Bello-Correa and Pvt. Lloyd Johnson, both newcomers to our stage who show considerable promise. A well-rounded cast for a demanding, powerful play to which has been added a new twist — one cast will be black and the other white. You can't miss this one!!

Fish and game is big business on post

The Fish and Game conservation program on post is a big business. Countless man hours of labor are involved. Last year about $140,000 was funded for the program. About the same amount will be needed this year.

Each year fishermen remove thousands of bream, bass and catfish from ponds and streams on post, and hunters reap a significant harvest of game animals from the reservation.

According to Roy Johnston, chief of the Post Fish and Wildlife Section, the pressure hunters and fishermen put on the natural of the post would exhaust the fish and game supply in a very few years if the post did not have a well-planned and well-executed natural resources conservation program.

At Fort Benning this program is monitored by the Natural Resources Management Board. Many agencies are involved, but the Fish and Wildlife Section of the Directorate of Facilities Engineering has primary responsibility for a complex program that includes the management of animals, birds, reptiles and aquatic life on post.

Wildlife Management

Its major functions include extensive management of natural habitat to provide a dispersed wildlife population throughout the reservation. Emphasis is placed on the bobwhite quail and white-tailed deer on upland sites; the Eastern wild turkey and gray squirrel in the hardwood stands in stream bottoms; and the cottontail rabbit and Eastern morning dove along field and timber edges.

Satisfactory and huntable populations of these species have been developed and maintained by planting food patches, prescribed burning and good timber management.

Food patches have been established in permanent openings and planted in strips in areas where game is plentiful and food is relatively scarce. The patches are planted for a mixture of wildlife. No emphasis is directed toward specific species.

Last year more than 1,600 acres of the reservation were planted in rye, corn, millet, sorghum, clover and annual lespedeza. About the same number of acres will be planted again this year. In addition, more than 67,000 perennial bi-color lespedeza plants have been planted in small strips in areas favorable to quail.

More than 20 water holes have been developed in arid portions of the reservation. These water holes provide watering places for wildlife and promote the growth of natural and planted food in the area.

Fish Get Attention

The post has miles of streams and acres of ponds that provide good fishing. The Chattahoochee River flows for 18 miles through the reservation. Other primary streams providing good fishing include Upatoi, Oswichee and Uchee Creeks. In addition, the post has 18 managed ponds and countless unnamed ponds formed by beaver dams. All of the named ponds are managed to some degree. Emphasis is placed on populations of bass, bream and catfish.

Last year three post ponds received large additions to their bass population. Victory Pond had 3600 bass added, Twilight Pond received 2500 and Weems Pond 4000. During the past eight years more than 325,000 catfish have been stocked in post ponds.

All managed ponds are systematically sampled to determine the population density, and when necessary, ponds are restocked with fish provided by Federal and state hatcheries.

Management of the ponds also includes fertilization, improvement of shorelines, construction maintenance of dams and complete draining, refilling and stocking when necessary. Last year work in these areas included major improvements at the Weems Pond spillway, fertilization programs at nine of the larger ponds and daily feeding of catfish at Twilight and Victory Ponds. The Game and Fish Unit also maintains picnic areas at King, Weems, Averett Twilight Ponds.

The fight against soil erosion around post ponds is a continuous one. Each year some engineering work has to be done around most pond dam sites. Shorelines also require maintenance. Last year the erosion problem at Twilight Pond required major repairs.

Predators Are Controlled

The wildlife unit also conducts a predator control program after each annual hunting season to insure a proper balance of game and predator type animals. This program is aimed at rabies-carrying animals. Wild dogs are the primary target.

Johnston said, "Wild dogs probably kill more game than any of the natural predators. Owners leave unwanted dogs on the reservation. Eventually these dogs will form a pack. They prey on all types of game, but are most detrimental to the deer population. Controlling them is a continuous job."

BE KEERFUL OF DUDS!

CHECK YOUR RANGE MAPS...OR YOU MIGHT GET SHOT!

Other Agencies Get Involved

The Forestry Section of the Directorate of Facilities Engineering, Range Division of the Directorate of Plans and Training and the Provost Marshal Division are also involved in the program.

Activities of the Forestry Section involve management of the pine and hardwood stands in the woodland areas. This management includes selection and harvesting of mature timber and planting and thinning of harvested areas. Control measures such as burning and planning firebreaks are also a function of the Forestry Section.

The controlled burning program is an important function in improving habitat for game animals. Norman Force, chief of the Forestry Section, said, "Training requirements must come first, but we coordinate the annual burning program with the Fish and Game Division. Each year between 35 and 40 thousand acres are burned in this manner. This reduces the danger of uncontrolled forest fires and improves the burned area as game habitat."

The Provost Marshal is responsible for enforcing hunting and fishing regulations. Military policemen operate motorized and boat patrol and man mobile check points. They also assist in the predator control program. Law enforcement personnel are equipped with four-wheel-drive vehicles and fiberglass patrol boats so that they have access of all areas of the reservation.

The Post Range Division allocates ranges and terrain for training and recreation. This office provides maps that show dud areas on post as well as the roads, ranges, telephone locations, road blocks, stream network and ponds. Each day the range division posts maps that show which areas are open for hunting and fishing. These maps are located at the Rod and Gun Club, Provost Marshal Office, the Range Division and the Fish and Wildlife Section Office.

Conservation

nothing new to Fort Benning's Forestry Branch

Conservation is nothing new to Fort Benning's Forestry Branch. Ever since the section was established in 1951, Mr. Norman F. Force and his co-workers have been maintaining Fort Benning's woodlands in keeping with the installation's training mission.

The Forestry Branch has the job of harvesting timber and selling it; after an area is cleared, it is replanted with one of several varieties of pine, or it may be left alone to grow a new stand from seed trees. Timber is sold regularly, and the money goes into the U.S. Treasury. In 1973, over $630,000 worth of timber was sold. In fact, the Forestry Branch has been self-supporting for some years now.

The use of controlled burning to get rid of underbrush creates a better environment for wildlife and reduces the likelihood of forest fires. As an additional fire-control measure, firebreaks are plowed to keep fires from spreading. These clearings are left open so that a fire will have nothing to feed on for 75 to 100 yards and can die out.

The forests on Fort Benning's military reservation provide homes for one endangered species of bird, and at least one rare species. The red-cockaded woodpecker, which makes its home in pine trees common to this area, is an endangered species, meaning it is in danger of extinction. The pileated woodpecker is also found here; it is not quite as scarce as the red-cockaded variety.

TDY TO FORT GORDON
 A critical shortage of billeting space can be expected at Fort Gordon and in the surrounding local community from April 8-14. All official TDY visits should be scheduled prior to or after this period. Personnel who must be at Fort Gordon on official TDY visit during this period of time should contact 1LT Cordero, Visitors Bureau, Fort Gordon, APO 288-4101 as soon as possible.

SUNDAY SCHOOLS
 Sunday schools in the 2800 area, Dixie Road, were moved to Patch School, Faith School, and Bldg. 2150 on Indianhead Road, effective last Sunday. These religious schools were decentralized into the local schools as a matter of conservation of energy, according to Chaplain (LTC) Edward J. Karnis, Deputy Post Chaplain.

PHASE OUT OF SAVINGS DEPOSIT PROGRAM
 Department of The Army has directed the phaseout of the Uniformed Services Savings Deposit Program (USSDP) effective July 1, except for the accounts of Missing-in-Action (MIA) personnel. New accounts and deposits on old accounts will not be accepted after March 31. All USSDP allotments (class S) except those for MIA's, will be discontinued as of March 31 by U.S. Army Finance Support Agency. No action will be required to terminate those allotments. Interest on USSDP accounts, except for accounts of MIA's, will not accrue after June 30.

MAC TRANSPORTATION AUTHORIZATION
 Army Sponsored travelers (including dependents) must have a MAC Transportation Authorization (MTA) in their possession when reporting to aerial port of embarkation for overseas flights. This also applies to those individuals port called to commercial terminals. The Installation Clearance Record should contain the requirement for personnel to clear Post Transportation. The Post Transportation Office must enter the MTA number on the clearance form. Personnel arriving at the Transportation Office by 8 a.m. will receive expedited service in issuance of MTA.

FORT BENNING ALCOHOLICS ANONYMOUS GROUP
 The Fort Benning Alcoholics Anonymous Group meets on the first floor of Bldg. 2605, Dixie Road, each Thursday at 8 p.m. If you have a drinking problem and want help, plan on attending these meetings. An Al-Anon meeting for friends and relatives of persons who have problems with alcohol is held on the second floor of bldg. 2805 each Thursday at 8 p.m. For more information call 545-LIVE.

MAC ENFORCES DRESS STANDARDS
 WASHINGTON—Servicemen about to depart on Military Airlift Command flights are being made aware of new emphasis placed on appearance by MAC officials. All statewide aerial ports of embarkation are enforcing a rigid screening to be sure all military members meet the grooming requirements of their respective service.

By Dave Deutscher

Almost all anglers are meticulously concerned with weather conditions, water level, moon position, spawning habits, and numerous factors contributing to the success or failure of the experience, universally known as "the fishing trip." Yet very little is written about, spoken of, or otherwise referred to, concerning the most influential of all factors.

Wife can make or break trip

Call her "Little Lady", "Old Lady", "Missus", "Sweetheart", or "Ole Bag"; the wife can make or break even the most well planned fishing jaunt. I once knew a man who could climb out of bed at five o'clock on a Saturday morning; burn three eggs in the wife's only skillet; spill a bowl of cereal on the kitchen floor; fill his thermos with the last ground of coffee in the house; snatch the bed slats from beneath his sleeping spouse to use as boat racks; and drive off in the wife's new car because his was out of gas. He would fish till sunset then head for the Rod and Gun Club where he would kill two pitchers of beer. He would return home about midnight and raise hell because supper wasn't hot and the grass hadn't been cut.

His technique was severely hampered one night when he fractured a toe tripping over his suitcases the wife had left on the front porch. Torn between a love for bassin' and fear of divorce, he began letting the wife come along on the fishing trip. A couple of years have since elapsed.

The following is an interview with Vicky Deutscher, former fishing widow, current nominee for two national fishing awards:

Bayonet: Vick, when and why did you begin fishing?

Vicky: When? About four years ago. Why? Because my husband asked me to go with him.

B: Why did he extend that invitation?

V: He seemed perturbed that I couldn't understand why he spent so much time fishing. He felt that by letting me experience it, I would fall in love with the sport.

I hated fishing

B: Did you love it?

V: No. In fact I hated it. I couldn't understand why he would sit out there hour after hour with the sun beating down on his head. Even when he wasn't catching any fish he would sit. He would wait. He would try different lures. And I especially hated it when I wanted to come in. I would get headaches, backaches, neckaches, sunburn, frostbite, and just plain aggravated. I would ask Dave to take the boat in and he would say "Oh Hell." And then finally I would hear those words I had been waiting to hear for ten hours, "Let's go."

B: Why didn't you just quit going?

It was a way out of the house

V: I'm not finished with your last question yet. The whole way in I would say, "Lord, I'll never step foot in this boat again." And David was saying "Lord, I'll never let her step foot in this boat again." Well, after about a month I would forget how bad it had all been and I would go once more to get away from the house.

B: When did you start liking it?

V: After a while the sun didn't bother so much. But that only started other problems. My husband ran his mouth continuously. "Vick, you're not going to catch anything on that lure." "Vick, you're fishing too deep." "You're fishing too shallow." It used to perturb me so much I would purposely use lures that I knew teed him off. All the while I was praying I would catch something on them and shut him up. But he was right. Finally I quit arguing; I would watch him and do what he did. And I wouldn't say a word. Then one day we were in the Okefenokee Swamp. I was using a cane pole and yellow jig. I hung into the biggest fish I had ever seen. He got away though. Flipped right over the dam into the Suwannee River. After I lost him I was bound and determined to catch one, to land one, that same size.

I started to like it

B: Did you ever catch the one you were looking for?

V: Yes. But to tell the truth, I don't even remember if it was a bass or a catfish. Somewhere along the way my attitude changed. I was fishing because it was fun.

B: Is fishing a man's sport?

V: Is fishing a man's sport?

Women can be better fishers

V: No. I think women could be better fishers than a lot of men. If women could just get a chance, they would probably enjoy it too.

B: Why don't more women fish?

V: I'll tell you why. It's not feminine. You get worm guts on your hands, you have to take fish off the hook, you have to paddle a boat. I guess most women get discouraged and disgusted the way I did at first.

I like being close to nature

B: Why do you like fishing now?

V: I don't know. I just enjoy catching fish. No, I like it even when I don't catch anything. I guess I enjoy being close to nature. I suppose I could go to a movie Saturday afternoon, but fishing gives me a chance to do something besides just watch.

B: There seems to be a debate as to whether it helps or hurts a pond to have a lot of fishing activity. How do you feel?

V: I would like to see more fishing pressure on all the lakes around here. The quality of fishing depends mostly on pond management. We can improve pond management if we can increase public interest and participation. I would especially like to see more wives out on the ponds with their husbands. Talk about Women's Lib! I would love to see the day when two women in a boat wasn't unusual. I'd like to see the day when a woman could drive through town with a boat on top of her car, and not get stared at.

Fish present a challenge

B: If I were a woman, how would I go about getting started in fishing?

V: You could always run down to the bait shop and buy a cane pole and can of worms. But I would suggest going with your husband or a friend who has had some experience.

B: What does fishing mean to you?

V: It's a challenge to find fish. It's a challenge to outsmart those fish. Fishing is something as old as cave men; methods have changed but the thrill of the catch is the same. Maybe this is off the wall, but I would suggest going with your husband or a friend who has had some experience.

B: In the past four years you seem to have enjoyed some above average fishing success. Tell us about those two awards.

Last year I was lucky

V: Each year a national fishing publication sponsors an awards program for catches that are special either for individual fish size or for number caught in one trip. Last year was my luckiest. In September I was fishing a lake north of Columbus and strung a legal limit of bass that weighed in at 43 pounds. A week later I caught three bream, each pushing the two pound mark. But those award patches aren't significant. Anybody could win one if they could just fish where the fish happen to be at that particular moment.

I'm still very much a woman

B: You make reference to femininity. How has fishing affected you?

V: I have not lost my femininity. I'm as much a woman now as I was four years ago. But more than that, I've gained something. I have begun to understand why those husbands spend all day on the lake in the heat, rain, cold, wind, and whatever. I've also come to understand myself a little more. And best of all, fishing is at least one way my husband and I can be more than just man and woman. We're a team.

Fishing isn't cruel!

B: Is fishing cruel?

V: It all depends. I think it's cruel to catch a six inch bass, string it, and let it die; then at the end of the day decide you don't want him and throw him into the trash.

LATE SPORTS

The 72nd Engrs. defeated A Co. Hqs. Comd, 77-75 in the final round of the post championship when Adolphus Thompson scored a field goal with 13 seconds remaining in the game. Bayonet Sports will feature full tournament coverage next week.

Handguns, sometimes for fun

Steve Schuppener and Kenny Rogers find membership in the Fort Benning Rifle and Pistol Club a cheap way to follow their pastime.

Both men are assigned to Co. E, 1st Bn. 29th Inf., and frequent the pistol range often. They've found the only cost involved, besides the initial membership fee is the cost of their own ammunition.

"Even the ammo isn't that costly", said Schuppener. "The Pistol Club sells it at a very low price to members."

"And the membership fee is very reasonable too," added Rogers. "For only $6.00 a year, you have practically unlimited use of the range, and they provide the targets for you at no cost."

Schuppener has two pistols that he uses. "I have a very unique weapon", he explained "that was originally designed as a .45 caliber pistol, very similar to the Army 45. But it has been converted to shoot .22 caliber ammunition and it's very accurate."

Schuppener, Co. E's morning report clerk, also has a .357 magnum, which he recently purchased through the Rifle and Pistol Club. "I'm still trying to get used to it", he confided, "When you are used to shooting .22 ammo, it's pretty big jump to .357 magnum."

Kenny Rogers, however, is more at home with larger caliber pistols. "I've been shooting target pistols for as long as I can remember," he said. "My favorite is a .41 magnum, very similar to the now famous pistol that Clint Eastwood, alias Dirty Harry, uses in his movies."

While Rogers' .41

magnum is one of the most powerful handguns available; it poses no problems for him. "When I first got it," said Rogers, "it was quite cumbersome for me."

Faith track team shapes up

38 boys and 1 girl answered the call when coach Bib Smith announced the forming of the Faith School track team.

Now two weeks into the training program, Coach Smith paused to give an early appraisal.

"We're fairly strong in the running events," he commented. "Particularly in the relays and distance events. Nick Salvan, Jimmy Tresly, Jeff Dean and John Mitchell will make up the mile relay team. Mitchell will also run the spring events. James Saffold can run the half-mile or mile run." "Our field events are weak at the moment, but I think we can complete in the shotput with the likes of Brad Scott, Jim Bell and Craig Brumback", Bob Smith further stated. The lone girl runner, Diane Meyer, poses both a delight and puzzle to Coach Smith. Diane will consistently better most of the boys in distance running but will not be eligible to compete in the regular track events.

"I hope to be able to arrange races for Diane with girls from the other junior high schools in Columbus and Phenix City. Diane has worked hard and deserves the chance," Coach Smith said.

Faith School will continue to practice thru the month with the first meet scheduled in April. The season will culminate at the Bi-City Track Meet to be held at Lakebottom on a yet unspecified date.

Rod & Gun taking entries

The Fort Benning Rod & Gun has announced that entries are being accepted for their Spring Field Trial Program to be held on March 29, 30 and 31.

Events to be run are open shooting dog, amateur puppy, amateur derby, amateur shooting dog, mounted shooting dog and walking bird hunters' stake.

For additional information and details, contact 404-561-1765 or Secretary, Mike Brickner, 404-561-2401.

The Fort Benning Rod and Gun Club is the youngest member of Region 8 and the Association of Field Trial Clubs of America. The club is currently under an all out effort to build its programs and welcomes the support of all enthusiasts.

Roundball season starts

With the intermural basketball season ended, action will center around a smaller, lighter ball of another color — a volleyball.

Recreation Services recently complete their volleyball clinic for coaches and officials. Major commands are now forming their teams for intermural action units or individuals interested in playing volleyball should contact their unit A&R officer or NCO.

It is also hoped that a womens volleyball team can be organized at the post-level to compete in a series of exhibition games through the months of April and May.

By Bill Kloeb

Errors, one ours, one the printers caused some confusion on what prices are to be charged for fishing and hunting permits after March 31.

The story in the Bayonet last week indicated that civilians would pay $6 for a fishing permit. Not so. Everyone will pay $3.

You could interpret the part on fees for fishing at Twilight and Victory Ponds to mean a fisherman will have to pay $10 for an annual permit and then pay $2 each day he fishes at either of these ponds. That's not so either. A fisherman can obtain an annual fee for $10. This entitles him to fish the two ponds on any day that they are open for fishing. Fishermen who don't purchase an annual fee may obtain a daily permit for $2 each day they fish.

The new rates would have been high on the list of popular subjects for conversations without these errors.

Lots of Opinions

Opinions for and against seem pretty well divided. Some hunters and fishermen were even rash enough to voice the opinion that they thought the rates should be even higher.

Generally, the people that hunt or fish a lot seem to feel it only fair for them to help fund the post fish and wildlife program. Most of the ones I heard complaining were those who claimed they hunt or fish a few times each year.

Even these people should be able to recognize a bargain. The most anyone has to pay is $9 for a combination hunting-fishing permit. The price of a show, a bite to eat and a drink will use up about the same amount of money these days.

It seems to me that even the occasional hunter gets a good return for his money. If he takes enough fish or game to provide a meal or two he has another refund in addition to the pleasure of spending some time outdoors.

February Fishing Derby

Its beginning to take bigger fish to win the monthly Rod and Gun Fishing Derby.

The largest fish this month was a 13-pound 8-ounce catfish taken from Victory Pond. Sp5 Gordon Pagano, 609th Ordinance took the big fish on a piece of chicken liver.

SFC Robert Horn, 1100 Celia Drive had the largest bass. His 6-pound, 7-ounce catch came from Kings Pond. He was using a big daddy purple flip tail worm.

The bream was not one of the larger ones that inhabit post ponds. It was caught by CWO Brayton Davis, 3030 Luckie Street. It weighed 11-ounces and was enticed from Kings Pond by a pink worm.

These men received $15 merchandise orders good for purchases at the club proshop.

Another derby has already started. Members are eligible if they bring fish caught in post ponds to the Rod and Gun Club. Prizes are the same each month.

Dance and Listening Music

The Kountry Hi-Lites will play at Victory Lodge again this weekend. They will provide music from 8 p.m. until midnight Saturday and from 6 until 10 on Sunday.

This is a very versatile band. They play it all. Country, western, bluegrass, rock - you name it for dancing or listening. They feature a girl drummer and two female vocalists.

Out of shape? Try Murphy Gym during lunch

It's the noon hour — you grab something to eat then prop your feet up and snooze for the remainder of the time. Others have found a more exciting and beneficial way to spend that time by taking advantage of the facilities of the Audie Murphy Gym.

The Audie Murphy gym is located in the Main Post area and attracts many "desk jockeys" who need to tighten up and tone body muscles that have succumbed to the rigors of the paper war.

The Audie Murphy gym is full of "onlies" — the only whirlpool, outside of Martin Army Hospital; the only regulation size handball courts; the only squash courts; and the only high bar for gymnastic workout.

Games such as handball, paddle ball, racquet ball and squash are becoming popular avenues of exercise to all. Once referred to as the "executive's game" and strictly a man's sport, the game are now being played by women and men alike.

Ever played basketball or volleyball on tartan turf-less the turf? The main floor of the gym is finished with the same base substance as tartan turf but the grass was never implanted. It allows for longer wear and less

Also, there is a workout area for boxers, a universal gym machine for muscle toning, weightlifting equipment and gymnastic ladders and bars.

Most athletic equipment needed to participate is available from recreation services check-out room at the gym. You may also check out a lock to protect your valuables when using the locker room. Shower rooms are also available. maintenance while retaining the characteristics of the standard hardwood floor.

Personnel desiring to use the facilities of Audie Murphy gym should telephone, 545-4375 to check on the availability and then make a reservation if it is required. Hours of operation are weekdays from 11 a.m. to 9 p.m.; Saturdays from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. and Sundays and holidays from 1 p.m. to 7 p.m.

Think Who is a boy?

Who is a boy? An easy question to answer you might say. "Boy" is a common word used often — and sometimes mis-used. When mis-used this word can be the cause of misunderstandings.

Consider this situation: Staff Sergeant Jones, a black NCO is late for a dental appointment, so he takes a shortcut across the lawn. Sergeant First Class Smith a white NCO sees Jones walking on the grass and yells, "Hey, boy, get off the grass!" Jones becomes angry and snaps at Smith, "Look sergeant, my name is Jones, I am a staff sergeant in the United States Army; I am 23 years old, 190 pounds, six feet tall and I do not like being addressed as 'boy!'"

Would you believe such a common word could cause such an outburst? What is wrong with the word "boy"? There is nothing wrong with it, when used properly.

Webster defines "boy" as: "A male child; any man." We know that Webster's definitions and the implied meanings of many everyday words are sometimes miles apart.

Why are blacks offended when addressed as "boy"? During the time of slavery in America, the words "sambo" and "boy" were used extensively by whites when addressing or referring to black slaves. A black slave was "boy" from birth until 65. Upon turning 65, if he had been a good "boy", he was "honored" by being addressed as "Uncle".

Why were blacks never addressed by their given names? To address a slave as John, Sam or Bill would have been giving him some respect, treating him as if he were a human, in a sense, elevating him to a level reserved for whites.

Slavery was a business, a system that had to be maintained and controlled. One method of controlling the slaves was keeping them dependent, docile and childlike. "Treat 'em like boys and they will act like boys, and you know boys don't revolt."

In all civilized societies, titles are accorded to levels of progression (baby, boy, man, mister, sir, etc.) However, the black man in slavery was not given this respect. He was born a "boy" and died a "boy" unless he was "honored" as "uncle."

Historians have been reluctant to bring these facts to the surface. Now that blacks are aware of the facts, they are offended when addressed as "hey, boy", and "you boy" or "boy".

In the everyday performance of our duties, we may be doing many things that offend someone else and may never know it unless it is pointed out and explained to us. Most of us would not intentionally offend one of our co-workers, so we must get to know him better. We must know what makes him tick, what makes him simmer and what makes him boil over.

The best means of solving many of our problems is through understanding and communication. However, before we communicate, be sure we get our terminology straight.

Dog Det moves to 1/29th

The newest addition to the 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry (PIONEERS) is the Military Dog Detachment. Not all of the members of the MDD were happy at the change, as this one will attest. (PHOTO BY RICK WASSER)

The Military Dog Detachment (MDD) has recently been attached to Hqs. and Spt. Co., 1st Bn., 29th Inf., TSB, for support duty with the PIONEERS.

The mission of the Dog Detachment is to conduct resident instructions in all phases of tactical dog training and visual tracking, and to conduct applied research and development programs in the military dog field. Also, the MDD provides instructional and materiel support to allied nations, civil authorities, and other Army or service elements.

In addition, through several on going research and development projects, the Military Dog Detachment has produced explosives detection dogs and casualty recovery dogs which have both civil assistance and military applications. The Military Dog Detachment is currently the repository of the history and lineage of the 28th Inf. Plt. Currently, MDD maintains a variety of dog types, including the scout dogs, mine and tunnel detection dogs, and the combat tracker dog.

As a member of the 1-29th, the MDD will continue with research and development to produce remotely controlled tactical dogs, and multi-purpose dogs—those which will combine the functions of the scout dog, mine and tunnel dog, tracker dog, and target acquisition dog. As with all members of the famed PIONEER battalion, their primary mission will be supporting academic instruction at The United States Army Infantry School.

For the first time since leaving the Republic of Vietnam, Headquarters, 145th Aviation Battalion (CBT), went into the field for training. Bob Kingrey and SP4 Luis Fernandez take time out from flying to make a scheduled maintenance inspection between flying missions.

Fund drive scheduled this month for Benning

March 15 signals the kick-off date for the 1974 Joint Army Emergency-Relief and Army Relief Society Fund Campaign at Fort Benning. The Army Emergency Relief is a military organization which provides financial assistance to active and retired military personnel and dependents in the local area.

The fund drive will be conducted during the period 15 March through 30 April. All Army personnel and their dependents as well as retired servicemen and their families residing in the local area are encouraged to participate.

Contributions can be made at a persons place of duty or through his unit. Civilian employees will not be solicited however they can donate to the fund Personal Services Division, and are encouraged to do so. Local project officers for the campaign are Major Frank Shehulski and Mr. James Schoonover.

Commenting on the fund drive Mr. Schoonover, Secretary Treasurer Community Activities Association, said "We anticipate no difficulties in having a successful drive. Last year we collected about $21,000 and expect to do as well this year. Even with a smaller post population."

Whatja wanta Know? ask the BAYONET

CALL 545-4792

DEAR BAYONET

When the new mall opens will the Commissary and Post Exchange store hours be the same? Mr. DRG

DEAR Mr. DRG

Post Exchange officials have announced that the main store and concessions will be open from 10:00 in the morning until 6:00 in the evening Monday through Saturday. Commissary officials announced that its store will be open from 9:00 in the morning until 7:00 in the evening Monday through Thursday and Saturday. On Friday the commissary will be open from 11:00 in the morning until 9:00 in the evening. All stores in the mall will be closed on Sundays.

DEAR BAYONET

I live on post and shop at the main post exchange store. Will the main store close when the new mall opens? Mrs. KSR

DEAR Mrs. KSR

Post Exchange officials have disclosed that the main store, Bldg. 1711, will close March 25 to move into the mall. At that time Bldg. 1711 will be remodeled to house the Convent store and the Toy & Garden store. Until the building has been renovated, the Convent and the Toy & Garden stores will remain in the same buildings.

DEAR BAYONET

Why won't the Post Exchange Flower Shop deliver offpost? LT RHD

DEAR LT RHD

The Flower Shop has been delivering offpost since last fall. They will deliver up to a twenty-five mile radius of Fort Benning. There is no charge for the first ten miles. After that, there is a ten cent charge per mile.

DEAR BAYONET

I understand that there will be a nursery in the mall? Is Tot Town going to operate it? Mrs. BEM

DEAR Mrs. BEM

The Daughters of the United States Army, who sponsor Tot Town, will operate the nursery in the mall. The nursery will be open Monday through Thursday and Saturday from 8:00 in the morning until 7:00 in the evening. On Friday it will be open from 9:00 in the morning until 9:00 in the evening.

DEAR BAYONET

I have been buying saving bonds since my enlistment 13 years ago. Is it true that the interest rate has increased and maturity date changed? SGT

DEAR SGT

Yes, interest rates on U.S. Series E and H saving bonds have been hiked from 5.5 per cent to 6 per cent. The increase will be retroactive to December 1, 1973. Maturity date will be 5 years instead of 5 years, 10 months.

Take Stock in America.

Olympic Games scheduled

The Columbus Jayettes will sponsor "Special Olympic Games" for 350 children from Columbus and Fort Benning, at Lake Bottom Park Mar. 16 and 18. Participants will be physically handicapped and mentally retarded children.

Fort Benning will provide the 283rd Army Band to lead the Olympic parade in which the children will march. The Scout Dog platoon and the Judo Team from Fort Benning will also put on demonstrations. Activities will begin at 10 a.m. each day.

The oldest boy will light a torch to begin the games. Included in the events are the basketball throw, broad jump, high jump, softball throw, 50-yard dash and a long run.

These games are sponsored by the Kennedy Foundation on a national level. Winners will go to regional playoffs.

Special concert scheduled

The Notre Dame Glee Club will present a special concert on Monday, March 11 to benefit the Springer Opera House. The concert will begin at 8 p.m. at the Springer.

The Notre Dame Glee Club, which has 45 members, is on a tour of several cities, including Atlanta, Savannah, Washington, D.C., Williamsburg, Va., and New Orleans.

The program, which is in four parts, will consist of a variety of show tunes, popular songs, and classical pieces. The group will open with the traditional "Ave Maria," and will close with the famous Notre Dame fight song and Alma Mater.

A special arrangement of "Dixie" will be included on the program, as well as "The Whiffenpoof Song." Philip Currington, a resident of Columbus, will be featured in several solos and duets.

Tickets can be purchased at the Springer Box Office for $3, $4, $5, and $10. Call 327-3688 for reservations. All proceeds will go to benefit the Springer Opera House.

Engrs. help nature
at Weems Pond

Co. D, 43rd Engr Bn (cons), 36th Engr Gp (CBT), recently constructed an earthen causeway at Weem's Pond, in coordination with the Fish and Wildlife Division, Directorate of Facilities and Engineering (DFAE).

A causeway is an earthen embankment separating a body of water in two parts.

The causeway was designed to isolate and control the amount of aquatic vegetation growing in the pond.

Before the causeway was built there was an overabundance of plant life growing in the water; fishing was almost impossible in that area of the pond.

The plant life was growing too fast because the shallow water allowed too much sunlight.

To control the amount of sunlight entering the water in the pond, fertilizer was used to produce plankton, the microscopic animal and plant life found floating or drifting in a body of water.

Plankton provides the water with the green or brown coloring which acts as a filtering agent; letting in only enough sunlight to produce the desired amount of vegetation. Fish and other wildlife also feed on the plankton.

Swimming can be dangerous so learn to swim the right way

Once again the warm summer weather is with us. For many Americans it's time to head for those favorite swimming and camping areas for a weekend of sun and fun. Unfortunately for some it's their last.

Annually, about seven thousand lose their lives by drowning in this country, a figure running neck and neck with traffic fatalities when you consider the majority occur within two and a half summer months for most of the country.

Ft. Benning is no exception. All ready this year Ft. Benning recorded its first drowning. Last Sunday, March 10, a dependent of a military personnel drowned while swimming with some friends in the Upatoi Creek.

Every year two or three drownings occur on post because of persons swimming in unsupervised areas. Under USAIC Regulation 385-2, all streams, ponds, and lakes on the Ft. Benning Reservation are "off-limits" for swimming, wading, or bathing. These areas are "off-limits" for several reasons. A few of these are undertow, strong current, debris, and the depth of the water.

Spring swimming is especially dangerous. The cold water can cause a shock to the system. The blood vessels constrict, your body loses heat and an oxygen deficiency can develop resulting in unconsciousness and ultimate drowning. So it's best to avoid spring swimming. Wait until swimming facilities open.

If unable to swim take swimming lessons. Swimming classes will be available for you and your dependents through Special Services, Youth Activities, and both Non-commissioned and Officer Club systems. Instructors are Red Cross certified and upon completion of the course you will be issued a Red Cross certificate.

Learning to swim and teaching the entire family to swim is the greatest water hazard insurance one can buy.

1SG becomes company commander

Three years ago a bullet wound he'd received in Vietnam left doubt as to whether he would ever walk again, but on Friday, February 22, 1Sgt. Henry Caro assumed command of 54th Co. 5th Stu. Bn., TSB. The 54th Co. is an NCOES unit.

"To my knowledge, this is the first time a first sergeant has assumed permanent command of a company within the United States," said CSM Theron V. Gergen, sergeant major of The Infantry School.

The years since have been a long road back from the wound he suffered in January 1971. For eight months he was hospitalized, facing possible amputation of his leg. He recovered without losing it and says, "It was a positive attitude and intense physical therapy that saved my leg. I'm running up to 1½ miles a day now."

1Sgt. Caro became a company commander as an initial part of the new NCO School of Infantry concept. The NCO School of Infantry is a program still being developed, designed to institutionalize NCOES at The Infantry School and change the perception of Fort Benning from one of a school for officers to one of a school of Infantry for both officers and non-commissioned officers. The utilization of a First Sergeant as a company commander demonstrates that NCOs are capable of manning nearly every job in the Army spectrum.

1Sgt. Caro's Army career has been marked by "firsts." In 1963, while with the 82nd Airborne Division, he was the planner and developer of the Raider Recondo School, which he describes as a "Junior Ranger School."

Last spring 1Sgt. Caro attended the Sergeant Majors Academy at Fort Bliss, Texas. Upon graduation, he was presented the Leadership Award by Gen. Walter T. Kerwin, Forscom commander.

He came to 54th Co. as first sergeant after leaving Fort Bliss. He looks upon his new assignment with complete confidence.

"Really, all I'm doing is moving my desk from one room to another and signing for all the equipment. A first sergeant pretty much runs the company anyway, but as company commander, I'll have more authority." He says his goals are simple. "We want to produce a highly qualified Non-Commissioned Officer Educational System graduate that the U. S. Army can be proud of."

197th celebrates 1 year STRAF

March 21 marks the first anniversary of the most recent reorganization of the 197th Inf. Bde. and the assignment of a Strategic Army Forces (STRAF) mission.

The celebration will begin at 10 a.m. Thursday with a brigade review at Munsan Heliport on Kelley Hill, and end at 11 p.m. after a soldier's dance.

The Organization Day activities to take place at the picnic area on Ivy and First Div. Road will include a picnic lunch, a greased pig contest, a pushball contest, a tug-of-war contest, a beauty contest, and a skydiving demonstration.

The picnic meal will commence at noon and last approximately four hours. The meal will be furnished under regular mess hall procedures. Persons under 12 will be charged 45 cents.

One, two-man team per unit, consisting of the company commanders and first sergeants, will be allowed to participate in the greased pig contest. The contest will commence at 12:30 p.m. and continue until 3 p.m.

A pushball contest will begin at 1 p.m. and last for two hours. One, 25 man team will be allowed to represent each battalion and separate unit group.

At the same time the pushball contest is going on there will be a tug-of-war contest. Each team will consist of ten men.

A four mile, cross-country relay will coincide with the tug-of-war and pushball contest. The teams for the relay will consist of four men.

A soldier's dance will be held at the end of the evening at the Kelley Hill Service Club from 8 p.m. until 11 p.m.

Other activities will be rides for the children, unit displays, an open house in unit areas, performances by the brigade combo and chorus, and an awards ceremony.

Shuttle buses will run to and from the picnic area and Kelley Hill, Dickman Field, and unit areas in Harmony Church, for those who need transportation.

awards program working," Harrison continued. "DA and TRADOC directed that we use them to recognize military and civilian efforts and ideas to save energy."

Basically, there are three types of awards available to honor energy savers. First of all, Harrison explained, cash awards are given to people whose suggestions result in measurable energy savings. Value of the savings must exceed $250.

For suggestions that save less than $250, the supervisor may nominate the employee for a certificate of achievement. The supervisor may also use the letter of appreciation of commendation to recognize all efforts to save energy.

The third category is special act awards Harrison stated. This award singles out the special contribution to government efficiency and economy.

Saving energy could mean cash

Everybody's doing it—saving energy, that is—and now there's a way to earn some cash for it.

If you have an idea on energy saving, submit it to the Army Suggestion program. It's that simple.

Dale Harrison, chief of management employee relations, explained how the program works. "The Army suggestion program has been around for some time," Harrison said, "but its value has increased right now. Anybody who has an energy saving idea can submit it on DA form 1045. In addition, all of the incentive awards are available for employees who attempt to save energy."

"The push for energy savings started with the president's direction that a 7 per cent decrease in energy use would take place government-wide in fiscal year (FY) 74.

"Since we already had the suggestion/incentive

How to tell your friends you're reenlisting.

Sometimes a good man leaves the Army for a bad reason. Pressure. The kind he gets from some of the people around him.

We know that there isn't an army of cranks out there. But we also know that the few there are can make it tough on a guy who's trying to make an important decision.

So we've gathered together some of the more frequently heard gripes, complaints, harassments and put-downs. And we've put down the facts.

This way you'll have the answers the next time someone questions your decision to reenlist.

"They'll promise you anything to get you to reenlist." That's a big one. You hear it all the time. And the irony of it is, it's true. But not the way your buddies mean it.

First, you have to qualify for whatever it is you want to reenlist for. If you do, we put your choice in writing. Along with your own understanding of the agreement in your own handwriting. So there's no chance of misunderstanding each other.

Then, if something goes wrong, we make it right. Or you make tracks.

Here's another one. "Only guys who can't make it as civilians reenlist." Wrong again. The average reenlistee today is smarter, better trained and more highly motivated than ever before. With a better chance of making it, anywhere.

The fact is, he stays because he likes what he's doing. (We know the importance of job satisfaction, and we've been working on making the Army more responsive to the needs of the individual.)

The only way we'll keep a good man is to make him a good offer. So we've become more competitive. That way you get a better Army, and we get a better soldier.

"You'll never make big money in the Army." Maybe so. But how many people really make it big whatever they do for a living?

You will make a good salary, though. One that will go a lot farther when you consider that many of the best things of Army life are free, or much lower than in the civilian community.

So don't be fooled by pay comparisons. It's the things that you as an Army man won't have to pay for that really add up.

And then there's "The Army's ok if you're single." Perhaps we should be glad that the complainers concede that much. But this statement implies that it's not ok for a family man.

We say, ask one. We think you'll find that Army benefits for your family are outstanding. Benefits that go beyond the savings at the commissary. Benefits that grow with your family.

We like to think of today's Army as a family of families. As responsive to the needs of your family as we would be to our own.

And last but not least: "What are you, a Lifer?" This one has been floating around for a long time. So we'd like to set the record straight, and see what a "Lifer" really is.

In today's Army, he's a man who's living his own life. Making his own decisions.

He's a man who wants and works for the good life. For himself. And for his family.

He's a man who realizes that the Army asks for an extra degree of dedication, over and above normal job loyalty.

He's a man who enjoys in return that unique sense of pride that comes from serving one's country.

If that's the way you feel, talk it over with your Career Counselor. He'll also be able to help you deal with any other discouraging words you may hear. He's a "Lifer," too.

Today's Army gets better every time a good man reenlists.

Do you feel that the Article 15 is effective in correcting offenses?

2LT Michael A. Sohns
586th Engineers

I definitely believe so. If you don't have a non-judicial punishment you have to go outside the company level. You must have a tool the commander can use. If it doesn't help the men, it's hurting a lot of people. Most men realize it's for their own good. If not, 100-150 people will do the same thing wrong.

1st Sgt Barbara J. Zwecker,
Co. A, HQ Cmd.

It's hard to say. Some commanders can use it as a tool, others as a threat. I've heard of cases where guys in the same unit were given different punishments under the Article 15. The commander is putting a lot of personal feelings towards the individuals. It's not used effectively really.

Letters to the Editor

The Army's split standards on hair

Dear Sir:

The recent issue of the Bayonet really caught my eye. I was surprised and pleased with the topic you chose for your main discussion. I must commend you and your staff for having the guts to print an article on something as controversial as Army Haircut Regulations.

I have been in the Army 2½ years and have personally seen how well they work. There are too many ways a commander can interpret them. One commander will read it and come up with the shortest possible hair length while another will read it and come up with the longest possible length.

For example, try to compare the hair length of personnel working at Martin Army Hospital and Infantry Hall with personnel in the 197th Brigade and the 1/29th Infantry. While personally I believe that hair styles should be permitted to be longer, I do think that if the Army is going to have regulations governing this matter it should pertain to everyone in the Army, including WACs. Everyone wants equal rights so let's all be equal. There shouldn't be any separate standards just because of the job you work in.

Also you will notice that the same people that seem to have the longer hair styles now are the same people you see at the local burger joint at lunch everyday. Why? Because these people are the same ones who wear the casual dress uniforms to work everyday and are permitted to go anywhere they please off post for lunch and to conduct business affairs while the people who wear fatigues and boots and usually do the dirty work are not permitted to stop anywhere off post except emergencies (such as running out of gas) without being harassed by the MP's.

As a closing comment I would like to add that these double standards and the senseless haircut policy the Army now has were the deciding factors in myself and many of my contemporaries in this 'elite' unit choosing not to reenlist!!

SHORT SP4's
1st Bn., 29th Inf.

Your oath overrides your individual rights

Dear Sir:

Recent editions of the Bayonet have included several articles on haircuts and some soldiers have been quoted as wanting to wear their hair according to individual desires and not necessarily according to Army regulations. "It interferes with my rights" is the central theme of some. I believe some of these individuals are not aware that the haircut regulation does not tell the soldier how he must wear his hair, only how he may wear it and stay within regulations.

I would suggest to these individuals that they take another look at the words contained in the oath of enlistment—to obey the orders of those appointed above me—also something about "without reservation." (May not be exact, but I took the oath of enlistment way back in May 1942. This oath, let's face it, to some degree takes away some individual "rights" immediately. No longer is he free to decide where he will sleep, what he will sleep on, what and when he eats, when he can take a break, ad infinitum. The oath may also result in the loss of one of his most basic rights—that of life.

I would also suggest that the Army has some rights, too. The Army should reasonably expect its soldiers to perform in accordance with the oath of enlistment, to wear its uniform proudly and correctly, to take pride in being in the Army—not too many draftees around now—to accept the standards of discipline required by the Army, and to give a day's work in exchange for a day's pay and allowances.

Husband-wife team goes to field

When the 145th Aviation Battalion goes into the field, a husband-and-wife team is likely to be along. Pvt Mark A. Larson and his wife, Pvt Karen B. Larson, were active participants in the recent FTX conducted by the 145th Avn. Bn. Battalion (CBT) Hqs. This was the first time the 145th Bn. Hqs. had been in the field since returning from Vietnam.

Although they first met at the 1963 Minnesota State Fair, they did not see each other again until they found themselves in the same signal class at Ft. Gordon, Ga. They were married shortly after Karen completed AIT in August, 1973. She was then sent to Ft. Benning and the 145th Avn. Bn. Commo Section. After several months of paperwork, Pvt Mark Larson was also sent to Ft. Benning and assigned to the 145th's Commo Section.

When asked if they encountered any problems working together in the same office, they agreed that there was "no problem whatsoever." In fact, it's "very convenient."

Naturally, when the battalion headquarters moved into the field, the commo section was an important part of the exercise, and Pvt Karen Larson was determined not to be left in garrison. In fact, she enjoyed the field so much she has already requested that she be included next time.

Volunteers:

One Army family helping another

They wear a uniform. Sometimes they earn a salute from a soldier who wants to be careful. Their shoulder patch is known to everyone. They represent the American Red Cross.

Last year over 7000 Ft. Benning soldiers and their families received assistance from the Red Cross. In many cases, there is simply no place else to go for help. If you never needed the Red Cross you're lucky. Chances are you will in the future. When you find that a member of an Army family, active or retired, is offering that help.

Nearly 200 military wives and dependents actively volunteer their time to the Red Cross Field Office at Ft. Benning.

"I started volunteer work two and half years ago. I thought it would help me better understand the Army. Now I'm giving back to the Army a little of what I've got out of it." — Mrs. Judy Berry.

"I'm a second-generation volunteer. My mother was a Red Cross volunteer. It's the honest truth-I volunteer to help God by helping others." — Mrs. Jean Campbell.

"I have a great deal of admiration for the organization. I volunteer perhaps knowing that if I'm not helping there may be no help available." Mrs. B. J. Slovacek, Chairmen of Red Cross Volunteers.

The Red Cross worker is available day and night seven days a week. This work doesn't make headlines, but to a soldier far from home who has just been notified of a death or illness in his family by the Red Cross, it's the most important thing in the world.

To a wife away from relatives and friends with a husband serving a tour in Korea, an allotment check that doesn't arrive can be a shattering experience. Help is as close as the nearest Red Cross Office. A volunteer can help with a non interest loan or grant and at the same time contact another Red Cross worker at the Finance Center to find out what happened to the missing allotment check.

Verifying and reporting are a big part of the Red Cross job. A teletype machine linked to thousands of Red Cross offices in the United States and overseas completes the connection between the American people and the Armed Forces.

The Ft. Benning Field Office can provide the doctor reports, the home condition reports and all factual reports the military commander needs to make decisions that will affect the morale of his men. It's pure joy when the Red Cross sends a message over many miles asking the local chapter to inform a nervous father of the birth of his child and that both mother and child are doing fine.

Sometimes it's just sending a message to find out why a man isn't writing his worried parents or receiving a message asking that the Red Cross find out why a family isn't writing to a serviceman.

The most important aspect of the Red Cross services is counselling. Counselling problems differ as people differ. It can be anything from a marital problem requiring that the chapter and the Field Director work together sometimes over great distances to help a serviceman and his wife decide what is best for them.

Red Cross volunteers perform all

This teletype machine sets day and night connected like an umbilical cord to the heart of the Red Cross — thousands of chapters and field offices throughout the United States and overseas. Verifying and reporting can these services and many more. They work in the Dental Clinic, Dependent School System, veterinary clinic and Martin Army Hospital. They act as counselors, clerical aids and friend to those in need.

"We simply would not be able to offer the caliber and extent of the services that we do without the many volunteers," said Mr. Don Fredell, Field Director at Ft. Benning. In times of emergency or distress it is comforting that the Red Cross volunteers know of your problems. They are or have been a member of a military family with some of the same problems.

The Red Cross always seeks more volunteers and those wishing to do so may contact Mrs. B. J. Slovacek at 689-8427 or Mr. Don Fredell at 545-2122.

Mr. Donald Fredell, Field Director at Ft. Benning conducts a training class for volunteers to fulfill the mission of the Red Cross. Most of the volunteers

Earn extra dollars with suggestions

Got an idea that will improve the way the Army works?

Use the Army suggestion program and cash in on dollar awards.

March 15-April 15 is

Army suggestion month. Dale Harrison, chief of management and employee relations, encourages all soldiers and civilians to write down their ideas and turn them in. If you use DA form 1045, your suggestion will be evaluated for actual and unmeasurable savings. If the government will save $250 in the first year, you will be in line to pick up an award. If there are unmeasurable benefits such as improvements in working conditions, you are still eligible for cash.

In addition to cash awards, the incentive awards program has letters of appreciation/commendation to honor people who contribute to government efficiency and economy.

Harrison recommends that anyone with an idea look at USAIC Reg 672-20 and get the full details on submission and possible awards.

NATIONAL POISON PREVENTION WEEK!

Fewell re-ups EOD "never stops learning"

"There are no experts in this line of work, all of the experts are no longer with us," said Sp4 David S. Fewell after he-enlisted for five more years. Sp4 Fewell is a member of the 40th Explosive Ordnance Det. (EOD), 36th Engr. Grp., at Camp Shelby, Miss.

"You never stop learning or trying to learn in this business," said Fewell. "When you think you're an expert, that's when you're in trouble." Sp4 Fewell re-enlisted for the 146th EOD, United States Military Academy, West Point, and received a bonus of $8,000 when he re-enlisted. Sp4 Fewell likes his job which is one of the reasons he re-enlisted. "The job is a real challenge and I get to use

Let GAC put a jingle in your dufflebag.

The way prices are going right now—you may need more money than you thought you'd need. GAC wants to lend you all the money you'll need to help beat prices and to buy the bargains you want before they're gone. You don't have to make a lot to borrow a lot at GAC. The size of your loan depends on many things: the bills you have or have had. What you own or want to buy. The kind of work you do. And, because you wear a uniform, the kind of work you do rates very high with GAC. A steady income makes it easier for you to get a loan. But, more important, GAC wants to serve you because you serve your country. Whatever your needs, whatever the reason, let GAC put a jingle in your dufflebag.

THE BAYONET, FRIDAY, MARCH 15, 1974

Howdy, Bub. Me and the missus and all of the younguns cranked up 'ole Cordelia last weekend and went down home to see the folks. Had a nice trip down and sure was glad to see the folks again. Grampa Lewiston was there and we spent all day atellin' lies and aswappin' tales bout the good 'ole days.

Well sir, Grampa Lewiston was a little put out at Marshall Holbrook 'cause Marshall got the biggest reaction to his story about Widder Albert's cat and you know Grampa can't stand havin' one up on him like that. So he hears up and tells us the once upon a time his foot was stepped on by Clem Jacob's mule back in the early 30's.

Well sir, he didn't get what he thought was a proper response to his story, so then he took to puttin' 'till it was time for the milkin'. Grandpa muttered all the way down to the barn and we could hear him aslammin' and astompin' all the way back at the house. I'm surprised 'ole bossy didn't dry up on him the way he was carryin on.

Ole Marshall Holbrook was aggrivin' and a whoopin' that he sure had Grampa topped, when of a sudden, he grabs ahold of his chest and his face gets all beety red and he's a agupin' breath like a beached mallowmouth and he plunges straight down on the porch floor.

I knowed that Marshall, had had an old heart attack and I jumps right down on the floor amongst the overturned glasses and cubes from our iced tea and commenced to give Marshall mouth to mouth resuscitation. I hollered at Pop tween breaths to get my doctorin' bag out of Cordelia and get it up here on the porch.

I didn't seem like no time at all and he was back and Sally Lou, my missus, was there. I told Sally Lou to give Marshall the mouth to mouth resuscitation whilist I got out my heart medicants. Well the long and short of it was all that we got 'ole Marshall back 'a breathin' by hisself.

Dad tore off the screen door and padded it with the comforter off the swing and Wes Young, Little Junior Martin, and me and dad toted Marshall down to Cordelia and put down the seats in the back and taken him to the hospital.

'Ole Doc Hoskins was awaitin' when we got there and had Marshall put right into the Intensive Care Unit. We all waited 'till way after suppertime afore Doc Hoskins came out of the Cardiac Unit to tell us that 'ole Marshall would be back on the porch in notime at all.

We was mighty proud to hear that, and took to struttin' round that waitin' room like a bunch of banty roosters 'till Doc told us to get out of his hospital and get some supper afore we popped our buttons and he thanked us for our quick work for ole Marshall.

When we got hurr, the women and Grandpa were all in a ditter to find out how Marshall was farin'.

The three main things to do in an emergency is: (1) ventilate. I done that with the mouth to mouth resuscitation I was doin'. (2) Evaluate. I was doin' that at the same time I was mouth-to-mouthin' him; and (3) Evacuate. We done that soon's 'ole Marshall was breathin' on his own, with the screen door and Cordelia. Keep those points in mind in case you need 'em someday.

Well, Bub, I gotta be goin' again, tonite Dirty Sally's on TV and I have a few more patients to see afore I can go home. Good health to you and yours.

SJA Office: It handles everything from reviewing labor contracts to investigations in cases of lost government property

When John Q. Civilian sues the government for injuries caused when he was hit by a military vehicle in a car accident, who prepares the case for the government's defense?

On the other side of the coin: when Pvt. Joe B. is injured in a car accident caused by a civilian and is treated at Martin Army Hospital, how does the government recover the cost of his medical care?

These are only two of the functions performed by Ft. Benning's Staff Judge Advocate Office (SJA) that the public rarely sees. The claims section of the civil law division handles this type of case. The civil law division also handles a variety of others for the government.

In many cases, the Staff Judge Advocate acts as a "lawyer for the Commanding General." A number of captains removed in reductions in force have brought suit against the Army for unfair or discriminatory treatment, or the denial of their civil rights. In such a case, the Staff Judge Advocate prepares the government's defense, called litigation reports, for use by the Department of Justice's lawyers.

Other types of cases are also handled. When government property is lost, investigations into the matter are always made, and reports of survey are filed. The administrative law section reviews these reports for legal accuracy. Injuries sustained in the line of duty are also investigated, and these investigations are always reviewed by the SJA.

Labor law is also covered by the civil law section. When labor unions at Ft. Benning negotiate contracts with the government, they are reviewed for accuracy by the SJA.

What about subpoenas or search warrants issued on a military reservation? A representative of the Staff Judge Advocate usually accompanies the local law enforcement officer when these are issued. The police department or sheriff's office must get the permission of the SJA on post before going into a soldier's home to search for evidence or deliver a subpoena.

Procurement law includes all contracts signed on post for services or consumer goods. These contracts are also reviewed for legal accuracy, and bid openings for government property or services to the government are attended by a representative of the Staff Judge Advocate.

Legal assistance is the one section of civil law that is familiar to the average soldier and his family. This section's job is to provide help for the soldier in legal matters such as adoptions and name changes, wills, notarizations and powers of attorney, taxes, cases of non-support of children, domestic relations, paternity cases, and citizenship, immigration and passports.

The civil law section also gives advice or makes recommendations to any commander who has a question concerning a legal matter.

Military justice is the second major division within the Staff Judge Advocate. It includes the trial counsel, who prepare the government's case in courts martial, and the defense counsel, who provide defense for the accused soldier.

General courts martial are held for more serious offenses, and the maximum punishment for a soldier who is found guilty under a general court martial is a dishonorable or "bad conduct" discharge from the Army. The judge determines the length of confinement in a general court martial.

A special court martial, on the other hand, can result in a maximum sentence of six months at hard labor, forfeiture of two-thirds of a soldier's pay for six months, and reduction to the grade of E-1.

There are also a number of reasons for administrative eliminations from the Army. These come under what is known as a "Chapter 13 discharge," and include unfitness for service for various reasons such as drug abuse, convictions in a civilian court, failure to pay debts, or failure to support dependents.

Soldiers can also be discharged for "unsuitability," which may mean a character or behavioral disorder, inability to follow orders, or general failure to adjust. In all these cases, the civil law section reviews the investigation, and defense counsel is provided by the military justice section.

Article 15 cases (non-judicial punishment), Article 32, a pre-trial investigation, and Article 69, which provides for appeals in special cases, are all conducted by the military justice section, since they involve violations of the Uniform Code of Military Justice.

Lawyers from the defense counsel section of military justice see every man who is placed in a confinement facility within two working days of his confinement. They counsel every soldier who wishes to see a lawyer when he is charged with an Article 15 offense, and represent the serviceman at boards for Article 15 offenses.

In trouble?

Legal assistance can work for you if you give it a chance

Legal assistance branch of the Staff Judge Advocate is here to help you. A good example of legal assistance acting on behalf of a soldier is in the case of a serviceman who had bought a new car shortly before entering the Army. He had made several payments on the car, but still lacked a number of months paying the loan off. He entered the Army as an enlisted man, so his pay was reduced considerably from what he had been earning as a civilian.

He was having a hard time making payments, and he went to his company commander for advice. The CO had heard of the Soldiers' and Sailors' Civil Relief Act, and checked into the matter with the Staff Judge Advocate.

Under the provisions of the act, when a serviceman's pay is substantially lowered after he enters the Army or Navy, and the debt in question is one he incurred before coming into the service, he can have the monthly payment pro-rated over a longer period of time. His creditor(s) must accept the amount that is determined according to his salary and ability to pay.

This soldier will be paying on his car for a longer period, but he can afford to buy food for his family now. In cases like this, there are also other options. Legal assistance can draft a letter, called a "creditor's accord," asking the store, bank or finance company to accept a predetermined monthly payment, across the board.

Or in extreme cases, there is the Wage Earners' Plan. This is actually one step short of bankruptcy. It means that a trustee or bank is appointed to be in charge of the individual's finances. This trustee gives the soldier a living allowance and makes monthly payments to his creditors from the remainder of the salary. These payments are also pro-rated and stretched over a longer period of time than the original contract.

This is a good example of preventive law. If legal assistance can help a man who is in financial straits so that he is able to do his job properly and isn't inclined to go AWOL, then the military justice section will not have to come to his defense at a court-martial trial.

Many of these cases of financial need are referred to legal assistance to Army Community Service. The SJA also has a representative on the Armed Forces Disciplinary Control Board, which places certain businesses or other establishments off limits to soldiers when they do not meet acceptable standards of operation, or when there have been repeated complaints that soldiers were taken advantage of there.

Legal assistance has several other functions. Affidavit forms for exemptions from state ad valorem tax on automobiles can be obtained only at the legal assistance office. No substitutes for this form will be accepted at the local tax office, so be sure you have the correct form.

The unit tax officer education program is conducted by the legal assistance branch so soldiers can get help filling out their federal and state income tax forms. An officer from each unit on post attends the class.

Generally speaking, a soldier or dependent can get help for any type of legal matter that may come up, provided it does not require an appearance in court. The legal assistance officers cannot represent a soldier or dependent in court as an attorney, but they can help draw up wills, notarize documents, grant powers to attorney, and perform other small legal services that would normally mean seeing a private attorney.

The legal assistance branch exists for the purpose of helping the soldier and his family. When a couple adopts a child and wants to change the child's name, they can take care of this at legal assistance; when a passport is needed, or a foreign wife wishes to become an American citizen, the necessary papers can be drawn up there.

Anyone needing legal assistance can visit Room 7 in Building 5 from 8 to 11:15 a.m. on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays without an appointment. Other times are by appointment only. Be sure to bring all necessary documents of papers (insurance policies, etc.) with you.

72nd tops Co. A for post title

By Bruce Andrae

"It was the best played game by a military unit that I've ever seen," Col. Charles Reidnebaugh summed up the feelings of several hundred other spectators who witnessed the final game of the USAIC Company Level Basketball Tournament.

It can be reported that the 72nd Engr. Co. claimed the post championship by defeating Co. A, Hqs. Comd. 77-75. But one could never describe the excitement and pulsating tempo of the game nor could one describe the enthusiasm of fans and players alike. You just had to be there to see it.

The 72nd Engrs. came into the post tournament as an unknown team. The 197th Inf. Bgd. had played a brief schedule due to training commitments. Hidden in the "Boonies" of Harmony Church none knew just how good they were.

They quickly let everyone know they had traveled to Main Post to claim the title when they inflicted an early defeat upon top seeded Co. A, Hqs. Comd., 72-63. The 72nd then swept into the finals undefeated setting up a rematch with Co. A. Revenge was sweet as Co. A blitzed the Engineers 75-62 behind the sharp-shooting of Tim Griffin and Larry 13 seconds remained in the game when Adolphus Thompson (22), 72nd Engr. Co. swept by Ricky Harris (14), A Co., Hqs. Comd. to score the winning basket in the final game of the Ft. Benning Company Level Tournament. The 72nd Engr. Co. claimed the post championship and the game by a score of 77-75. (Photo by Bob Thomas

Parker. Now both teams showed one loss in this double-elimination tournament. The third and deciding game between these two teams meant everything—the championship.

Wednesday, March 6, THE GAME got underway. Co. A shot out to an early lead as Tim Griffin zeroed in from the baseline time and again. A Co's lead stretched out to nine points at one time. The 72nd then started their comeback with the weapons that had brought them past victories — Adolphus Thompson's driving layups and the rebounding strength of Larry Asberry, Jerry Hardaway and John Mayner. With a minute and a half remaining in the first half the 72nd took the lead and held on at half-time, 42-40.

Throughout the third period and for most of the final period the two teams swapped the lead back and forth with no team leading by more than four points. Co. A then put on a late scoring streak and with but three remaining it appeared that the title was theirs as they led, 73-64.

The 72nd showed no signs of giving up and resorted to an often neglected aspect of the game — defense. Employing full-court pressure the Engineers began to force Co. A into crucial turnovers. Long passes downcourt gave easy buckets to Dozier Law, Jerry Hardaway and Adolphus Thompson. Co. A could only reply with the freethrow shooting of Tim Griffin.

With 56 seconds showing on the clock the determined Engineers had crept to within one point at 75-74. Less than thirty seconds remained when Adolphus Thompson was fouled and made good a freethrow to tie the score at 75 all. Larry Asberry intercepted a pass and found Adolphus Thompson heading downcourt. Thompson took Asberry's pass and drove in for the winning basket with the clock showing only 13 seconds left. Enough time remained for Co. A to tie the score but again the pressing defense of the 72nd caused a turnover and the final buzzer sounded with the ball in the possession of the Engineers.

Adolphus Thompson finished as high scorer for the 72nd with 19 points. Larry Asberry contributed 18. Co. A's Tim Griffin put on an incredible offensive show and took game scoring honors with 44 points.

Col. Charles Reidnebaugh, Directorate of Personnel and Community Affairs, presented trophies to both teams in ceremonies following the game.

Bayonet names tourney team

The intermural basketball season ended with a new post champion, the 72nd Engineer Co., winning the USAIC Company Level Tournament.

The Bayonet sports staff would like to take time to honor individual performances in the tourney by selecting an all-tournament team.

The first team lineup includes: Stull, Ward, Coleman, Griffin and Asberry. Everett Stull of the 121st Aviation Co. averaged over 20 points a game and carried his team farther in the tourney than most people expected.

Jeff Ward led Co. A, 3rd Bn., 7th Inf. into the semifinal round. He displayed amazing accuracy with 10-15 foot jumpshots and his driving layups left behind bewildered opponents.

Robert Coleman of the 444th Trans. Co. was probably the finest pure shooter in the tournament. Coleman averaged 25 points a game which speaks well for the talents of a man that stands 5'8".

No all-tourney team would be complete without Tim Griffin of A Co., Headquarters Command. Who will ever forget the show that Griffin put on in the final two games hitting 30 and 44 points.

Larry Asberry of the title-winning 72nd Engr. Co. was the class of the big men. Asberry was a ferocious rebounder, shot blocker and scored in double figures.

There's one name conspicuously missing from the first-team selections. The name is Adolphus Thompson of the 72nd Engr. Co. Thompson is our selection as Most Valuable Player. It was Thompson's field goal with 13 seconds remaining that gave the title to the 72nd. Thompson's selection, however, goes beyond one basket or one game. His ability to penetrate the defense to score easy baskets or pass off to open teammates made things happen for the high-scoring engineers.

Second team selections are: Jerry Hardaway, 72nd Engr. Co.; Dale Overman, 546th Med. Co.; Larry Parker, A Co., Hqs. Comd.; John Mayner, 72nd Engr. Co.; Britt Stallworth, 608th Ord. Co. and Wayne Brown of the 444th Trans. Co.

Honorable mention goes to Louis Johnson, Co. A, 1st Bn., 29th Inf.; Willie Faison, Co. A, 3rd Bn., 7th Inf.; Lee Dunham, Med. Co. of MAH; Robert Hankerson, Co. A, 1st Bn., 29th Inf.; and Thurmond Billingslea of A Co., Hqs. Comd.

A special note of thanks to Recreation Services personnel, referees, timekeepers, and official scorers for adding a professional touch to the tournament is extended from the coaches and players.

The Bayonet, Friday, March 15, 1974

Spiraling salaries and rocketing prices for services and goods have caught up to the Rod and Gun Club. It doesn't make you feel good to hear that continued operations without some economy changes will put your club on the financial rocks, but that's what has happened.

Faced with this situation, the board of governors had to take one of two courses of action: kick up the membership fees and prices for goods and services, or reduce operational expenses. After much searching and deliberation, the board decided to take the latter route.

First the good news. There will definitely be no increase in annual membership fees for this year. There are no plans at this time to increase the cost of services and goods at the club facilities. Of course, there are no guarantees that conditions beyond the control of the club will not make this necessary later.

The primary economy measure was to reduce the number of full-time workers from five to two. Effective Mar. 18, Mrs. Lorrene Holloway and Mr. B. W. Gray will be the only workers employed on a full-time basis. This will necessitate that Mrs. Holloway and Mr. Gray double up in some duties.

The reduction in force will also cause a reduction in the hours of operation, but the assignment of duties should cause a minimum reduction in the services available. These services will not operate in the plush manner that some have learned to expect. Members will have to be understanding and cooperate and at some times actually help if the operation is to be a success.

New hours of operation will start March 18. The beverage bar will be open from 11 a.m. until 9 p.m. Monday through Friday, from 11 a.m. until midnight Saturday, and from 11 a.m. Sunday.

The kitchen will serve meals and sandwiches from 11 a.m. until 1 p.m. Monday through Friday. Prepared sandwiches will be available at the beverage bar during periods that the bar is open and the kitchen is closed.

The pro shop will be open from 1 until 7 p.m. Wednesday through Friday, and from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. on Saturdays and Sundays. This is the most drastic reduction in services, but it isn't as bad as it seems. Members will be able to purchase bait and other supplies at any time the beverage bar is open. The individual running the bar will open the pro shop upon request. Members who want to begin fishing before the club opens in the morning can rent boats and motors the night before. They will be charged for one day if they return the equipment within 24 hours.

The trap and skeet ranges were also casualties of the economy measures. This facility has been a money-losing proposition for some time. It has been closed. The move may be temporary. Chaplain (LTC) Gerald Hefty, chairman of the skeet committee, is exploring ways of reopening the ranges on a "do it yourself basis". Anyone with ideas on the subject can contact him at 545-3955.

Some Business as Usual

The archery ranges will remain in operation. One-half of the ranges are being moved to the Victory Lodge site. The ranges at the old club site will be available for use until construction of the ranges at Victory Lodge have been completed. The remaining ranges at the old club site will then be moved to Victory Lodge.

The monthly fishing derby will be continued. Members must catch the fish at one of the post ponds and bring them to the club for weighing and registration.

Bob Siebenmorgan Jr., son of Cpt. Bob Siebenmorgan, Directorate of Plans and Training, caught this 6-pound, 8-ounce beauty on a Big N. Bob was fishing with his dad on the Chatahoochee River just below the Ft. Benning reservation. The Ft. Benning B.A.S.S. Club asks your cooperation and support in keeping our rivers and ponds clean so that young anglers can enjoy the thrill of landing a big one for years to come.

Services offers tickets

Free military discount tickets for the United States Racing Team Pro Stock Drag Racing Championships scheduled for March 20 at Phenix Dragway are now available at Recreational Services.

Among those appearing in competition are Bill "Grumpy" Jenkins of Malvern, Pa. in a 1974 Chevrolet Vega; "Dyno Don" Nicholson of Orange Cal. in a Mustang II; Mr. 4-Speed, Herb McCandless in a Dodge and Wally Booth in the Detroit-based American Motors Hornet.

A Complete drag racing program featuring super stocks, modifieds and e.t. brackets is also scheduled. This is the only area appearance of Bill Jenkins and the U.S. Racing Team stars of 1974.

Discount tickets may be used toward purchase of both general admission and pit pass. Spectator gates will open at 5 p.m., with eliminations beginning at 8 p.m. (EDST).

Benning troops set Rod Assn. record

Ft. Benning's Chris Scammon and Tom Cain are now the holders of the IHRA (International Hot Rod Association) world record times and speed. Both men participated in the recent IHRA Points and Record Meet held at the Phenix Dragway.

Chris Scammon wheeled his 1966 Chevelle through the quarter mile in a record time of 13.91 seconds. Scammon's speed of 97.29 miles per hour was also IHRA world record in the M/S class. He returned on Sunday to capture first place in the factory stock eliminations.

Tom Cain's 1966 Nova established a record time of 12.09 seconds in the super stock class.

Pleased winners of the first Treasure Chest Drawing for Scouts selling ten tickets to the SCOUT-A-RAMA, were Randall Powers from Troop 37, who won a Scout pack frame, and Michael A. LaChance, Troop 276, who received a sleeping bag. (Photo by Maj. Woodson.)

Ft. Benning scouts win treasure chest

Two Boy Scouts from Ft. Benning District were winners in the first SCOUT-A-RAMA Treasure Chest Drawing, held Feb. 27th.

Any Cub, Scout or Explorer selling ten SCOUT-A-RAMA tickets becomes eligible for prizes awarded at a drawing conducted each Wednesday through April 3d.

Randall Powers, who is a member of Troop 37, received a Scout pack frame as his prize. He is the son of SFC R. R. Powers, Hq. Co., 4th Student Bn., TSB.

Another lucky Scout, Mick A. LaChance, member of Troop 276, received a Scout sleeping bag. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. M. T. LaChance, 2532 Rice St., Columbus, Ga.

Volunteers needed to coach "Tee Baseball"

Any soldier who lives in Columbus and wants to participate in a program to help youth can volunteer to coach "Tee Baseball" sponsored by the YMCA this summer. Teams will consist of boys in the first, second and third grades. The program begins Tuesday, March 26 and ends Thursday, May 9.

Practice will be held at Gentlan, Morningside, River Road, Johnson, Wesley Heights, and Georgetown Schools each Tuesday and Thursday. Men of all ages are needed to coach the teams. The purpose is not to stimulate hard competition, but to have fun while learning to hit, throw and catch the baseball. Every boy will play during part of every game.

Soldiers living on post can also participate as coaches, if they wish. You do not need to have a school-age child to volunteer to coach a team. For more information, call Mr. By Young at 322-8269.

Limited master tags for sale

Recreation Services will have for resale a limited number of admission badges to the 1974 Masters Golf Tournament at Augusta, Georgia on April 11-14.

These badges can be made available to active duty military personnel only and on the basis of one badge per person. Each badge will cost $30.00 and is good for daily entry to the four days of competition.

Due to the limited number of badges, selection of individuals to purchase these will be determined by a priority drawing to be held March 14.

Applications to enter the drawing must be submitted in writing to the Recreation Service Office, Bldg. No. 394, NLT 5 p.m. on March 11. Applications must include name, rank, SSAN, organization and both office and residence phones. A $30.00 check or money order, payable to Central Post Fund, Fort Benning, Georgia must accompany application. Money will be refunded if an individual is not drawn in priority to receive one of the badges. Assurance that leave will be authorized during this period will also accompany application.

This is a "horn of plenty" disguised as a three-quarter in this "bar" is 2,131 pounds of food which was given to the Army Community Services Food Locker by the 609th Transportation Company. Mrs. Peggy Hefty, ACS Food Locker officer, is presented with the 2,131 lbs. of food by SFC James Woods of the 609th Transportation Company. (U.S. Army Photo by Phil Reid)

609th stocks the pantry

The community of Ft. Benning needs the efforts of its own individuals to provide for the common good of everyone who is a part of this community. The 609th Transportation Company, 145th Aviation Battalion, has shown its interest in community affairs here at Ft. Benning by donating a total of 2,131 pounds of food to the ACS Food locker.

The poundage reflects the net weight of the contents printed on the packages of food which were collected over a two week period by 609th personnel. The average Mrs. Peggy Hefty, ACS Food Locker Chairman, weight donated was 18 pounds per man, derived from persons on actual duty in the company. received.

FIAT is what an economy car is supposed to be. Low initial cost, easy and reasonable maintenance and above all economy. That's FIAT! Like the 34.8 mpg delivered by the FIAT 128 in the Motor Trend test (Aug. 73). But the nice thing about a FIAT is that it's a family car too. See the full line of FIATS at Hughes today. RAP helps people

Promoting understanding between racial groups is a primary reason for Army Race Relations programs. An effective military unit cannot function with racial bitterness existing between the soldiers who comprise it. The Race Relations and Equal Opportunity office of The School Brigade began instructing TSB soldiers in a new Race Relations course on March 11, 1974. Called the Racial Awareness Program (RAP), the course is designed to increase the cohesiveness of the men and women of the Army. The course is a revision of the 18-hour Race Relations course which was taught last year. SP5 Jerry Jenkins of the TSB RR-EO office explained the differences between the new course and the old one. "We won't be studying as much history, but we'll be looking more at contemporary problems." Cpt. Samuel Patterson, Officer in Charge of the RR-EO office, MSG Ralph Jackson, NCOIC, Sp5

Would you expect to see an "M 274 A5" in a driving contest? Maybe you would expect one in a parade with all the trimmings. Specialist Four Rocky Gugino, 478th Aviation Company, "rode" his "mule" to the 145th Aviation Battalion Driver-of-the-Month contest and drove away the winner. The mule has a powerful 14.5 horsepower generator engine and can transport up to 1000 lbs of cargo. (U.S. Army Photo)

Steam engine trip planned for area

Lt. John Maxwell of the Directorate of Combat Development, Infantry School, is trip chairman for a special excursion train that will run from Columbus to Sylacauga, Ala. via Alexander City, Ala. on March 23. Tickets for the trip are $11 for the round trip to Alexander City, and $15 for the round trip to Sylacauga. Tickets can be obtained by writing to P.O. Box 564, Columbus, Ala. or purchased at the Hickory Farms of Ohio store in Cross Country Plaza shopping center. Two vintage steam engines will pull the excursion train, according to Lt. Maxwell. A two-hour stopover is scheduled for March 23.

Alexander City, where the train will be featured in the city's centennial pageant. Another stop on the returned trip will be made to allow passengers to get off and take pictures of the train in motion. The 18-car train will carry 900 passengers, but only 300 will be able to ride the full trip to Sylacauga and back. Jack Quirk, president of the local Chattanooga Chapter of the National Railway Historical Society, said 600 passengers can ride as far as Alexander City and wait for the train's return trip to Columbus. The train will leave the depot at 1200 Sixth Avenue at 7:30 a.m.

Married couple reenlists for Panama

The combination of married life and Army life has proven to be very beneficial for Barbara and Rudolfo Silquero.

Recently the Fort Benning couple decided to broaden their joint military careers and income, by re-enlisting for four years and over $10,000.

SP5 Barbara Silquero, Dental Company,

Jenkins, Sgt Willie McCollum, and SP5 Joe Barnhart are all graduates of the Defense Race Relations Institute at Patrick Air Force Base. The RR-EO staff's training and practical work in the race relations field make their presentation of the new RAP course more effective.

The new course all spotlight cultural differences, majority and minority opinions, and present day racial problems. These and MEDDAC, re-enlisted for four years, $9,000, and Panama.

The Tumwater, Wash., native entered the Army in April, 1971.

SP4 Rudolfo Silquero, 988th MP, 36th Eng. Grp., re-enlisted for four years, over $1700, and Panama.

Silquero graduated from St. Joseph's Academy, Brownsville Tex., in 1968.

other aspects will be related to how they affect the military.

"What we want to do is present this material so as to help people understand other people," said SP5 Jenkins. "I hope in a few years, we'll have progressed to the point where we can go from Race Relations to human relations. If everyone could just remember that even through skin colors and cultural values are different, we're all human beings."

He entered the Army in 1971.

The Army couple met and were married at Fort Benning. Their son, Christopher, nine months old, was born at Martin Army Hospital.

"The Army has a lot to offer as far as education and training is concerned," said SP4 Rudolfo Silquero. "The field of law enforcement I am involved in concerts military and civilian, it gives me the opportunity to see both sides," he stated.

Barbara Silquero remarked, "We would like to be able to travel and at the same time gain valuable job experience." "The opportunities are limitless, you can find almost any type of training available and have the extra benefits, such as free dental and medical aid." SP4 Rudolfo Silquero concluded.

Ft. Benning Schools are currently engaged in a Poster Contest, ENERGY CONSERVATION as the theme, sponsored by the AUSA, local chapter. Prizes for first places will include a $25.00 US Savings Bond and a Certificate of Accomplishment for the runner-ups of each category.

The categories are divided into three groups: Group 1, Kindergarten to 3rd grade; Group 2, 4th to 6th grade and the last group includes 7th and 8th graders. The Judges for this contest are Mrs. Paul Anderson current MAH Wife of the Year, Mr. Bethell Edrington Jr. Director of public relations at Columbus, and LTC Henry Rempel Director of Facilities and Engineer working in close touch with the Military Pollution Control Department at Ft. Benning.

Get your crayons on kids! The AUSA, local Chapter extends their appreciation to Mrs. Evelyn C. Southwood, local instructional Supervisor for the outstanding job in the publicity section and carry on to the teachers in the schools the rules, and necessary information to get ready.

CIVILIAN AIDE

A past president of the local chapter and present member of the National Board of Trustees has been selected by the Secretary of the Army to be appointed as Civilian Aide to the Secretary of the Army for Georgia. Mr. J. W. Woodruff was presented his credentials by LTG Glenn D. Walker, Commander of First United Army at ceremonies held in Atlanta earlier this month. Mr. Woodruff has also been nominated to be the next president of the National AUSA organization.

Columbus broadcasting executive James W. Woodruff Jr. (R) was presented his credentials as civilian aide to Secretary of the Army Howard (Bo) Callaway in recent ceremonies at Atlanta General Depot. Lt. Gen. Glenn D. Walker, commander of the First Army, handled the presentation. Woodruff will be Georgia's voice in military affairs. He also is national president-elect of the AUSA and a past president of the local chapter.

LIFE INSURANCE FOR SOLDIERS

What better life insurance can a soldier have than the best and most modern weapons being issued to him? AUSA supports the position that funds should be made available for research, developing and testing to make sure you have nothing but the best in arms and equipment. In any future conflict, this may save your life.

Support AUSA — it supports you.

Dogs recruit in Ala.

The Military Dog Detachment (MDD) of Hq & Hq Spt Company, 1/28th Infantry (PIONEERS), journeyed to Dothan, Alabama recently in an effort to promote Unit of Choice recruiting for the 1-29th.

They presented a demonstration of the United States Army Dog program and static displays on Infantry tactical dogs. Their audience consisted of ROTC groups from 14 high schools in Florida, Georgia, and Alabama.

The demonstration was part of a tri-state military field day in Dothan, and along with the MDD were units from Redstone Arsenal and Ft. Rucker, Alabama.

Enjoy a musical experience

Clarence Joseph Rivers of Cincinnati, Ohio will conduct a music workshop the weekend of 15, 16 and 17 March at Fort Benning. These workshops will be held at Sightseeing Road Chapel on March 15 and 16 at 7:30 p.m. and on Sunday March 17 at 3:00 p.m. He will also celebrate the 12:15 Mass at the Main Post Catholic Chapel.

Rivers received an M.A. in Philosophy from the Athenaeum of Ohio, and completed graduate studies in English Literature at Xavier University (Cincinnati) and Yale University; graduate research in Liturgy at the Institute Catholique in Paris, and graduate studies in Drama at the Catholic University of America.

The program will include selections from Clarence Rivers' Bless the Lord, The Brotherhood of Man, God is Love, Ride on King Jesus and The Resurrection. Rivers' programs in music and worship involve certain aspects of Afro-American culture and outlook and are designed to promote audience participation.

Don't miss the opportunity to see Clarence Rivers and to participate with him in this musical experience. The general public is invited to attend this workshop as well as choir groups and choir directors.

Please call Joyce Crider, Catholic Director of Religious Education at 545-2169 or 545-5821 for more information and copies of Rivers' music.

THE INTERBANK CARD

The costliest mistake in Napoleon's career worked out to about 3¢ an acre.

Napoleon was a genius at managing his armies; but he didn't know much about managing land. So, when he sold the entire Louisiana Territory to the U.S.—after holding it for only two years—he thought 3¢ an acre was all it was worth. And he paid through his famous nose for it.

Today, a sense of timing is as important as ever when it comes to buying land. Because your future is only as good as the opportunities you seize today. That's why right now is the time to consider purchasing land in one of the three communities Horizon Corporation is developing in the growing Southwest. Land you can buy today and hold for tomorrow.

Obtain the HUD property report from the developer and read it before signing anything. HUD neither approves the merits of the offering nor the value, if any, of the property.

Why a Horizon Community?

All of our communities are in the Southwestern states of Arizona, New Mexico and Texas, where the skies are blue, the air fresh, and the sun bright. The climate is appealing year round, and residents enjoy a way of life that's as much outdoors as indoors. Golf, tennis and swimming at the membership country club. Rates on request. And hiking, skiing, water skiing, fishing, hunting and camping are all part of the life style of families in our communities. Many of these activities are within the communities themselves; others no more than 150 miles away.

Most of our communities offer convenient access to military bases and government installation (see map). This means that if you should decide to build on your property, you'll be able to take advantage of post exchanges, commissaries, medical facilities, clubs and other privileges.

Sound good? It is. But if you're like our over 120,000 other landowners, you're not packing your bags. You have a career, family commitments. You probably figure that someday you wouldn't mind living or owning land in the Southwest. This is the whole point of this ad: we're asking you to consider "someday" today. So that when the day comes, you'll be prepared.

What should you know before you buy land?

Before you buy land from anyone, anywhere, we recommend that you read our new booklet, "What You Should Know Before You Buy Land." It's only 12 pages, but in it you'll find answers to the questions you'll be asking yourself as a prospective landowner. Such as, "Can I afford to buy land?" and "What are my objectives?" Then we go on to describe the various classifications of land and good development practices. And you're supplied with a useful "Land Buyer's Checklist" of the questions you should ask and the reports you should read prior to purchasing any land.

The one thing you won't find in our booklet is a commercial for Horizon Corporation or the land we own. The aim of this booklet is to make potential land buyers more knowledgeable about how, when, where and what to buy. It's to your advantage to know all the facts. And frankly, it's to our advantage, too. Because the more you know about land, the more you'll appreciate what Horizon Corporation has to offer.

The Property Report for the property being offered for sale contains important data and information. Each purchaser is urged to read the Property Report and familiarize himself with all of the information contained therein.

1SG tells about being a CO

1SG Henry Caro has been Commander of 54th Company, 5th Student Battalion, The School Brigade for nearly a month. He has now had a chance to feel the pressures of holding a position very few men of his rank ever attain.

His day starts early. "I usually arrive around 5:30 a.m. in order to take PT with the men. I don't want them to think I'm not willing to do something that they have to do." He rarely goes home before 8 p.m.

"Most of my time after duty hours is devoted to helping men with their problems. Sometimes it takes hours for one man, but each one must be handled individually."

One training aspect 1SG Caro stresses continually is teamwork. He believes a man can't make it through the basic NCOES course on his own. The squads, units and entire company work together for the total accomplishment of the unit mission.

"Some of these men come here from other units and they don't even know how to clean up a room. We put a lot of pressure on squad leaders and student platoon sergeants to organize their units. Naturally we assist, advise and counsel, but there's still a lot of responsibility on the men. When a man leaves here, he's capable of running his own platoon."

Much of his training philosophy comes from his training at the US Army Sergeants Major Academy, Fort Bliss, Texas. He attended it last spring, and was honor graduate from his class.

When a student arrives here from another unit it normally surprises him to see a 1SG commanding a company. It's a phenomena not usually present in their home units. Sgt Randy Jenkins said he liked it. "All other Army schools I've been to have had officers commanding, but 1SG Caro explained that this is a new program. He is a pretty fair guy, the training is rough and we are on a tight schedule, but what can you say?"

Sgt Bryan Bucholz said he was surprised, but it didn't last long. "It seemed unusual, but it seems he is doing a good job. Being a NCO, it is easier for him to understand our problems, but sometimes he is tougher than I think an officer would be."

Squad leader Charles Gray said "I think it is outstanding. This is an NCO training company and should be commanded by NCO's."

1SG Caro explained how he feels a company progresses. "I think of an incoming student company as jello. Runny jello. As the course goes on they harden. When they leave here they are a finished product, a highly trained, complete non-commissioned officer."

75th Bn. seeking volunteers

Born into the Army family in the late days of January the 1st Bn., 75th Inf. (Ranger) continues to grow. Maturity requires that some 500 enlisted men volunteer for service with this elite unit.

The 1st Ranger Bn. is looking for volunteers from among 18 MOS's. They are seeking 05Bs in grades E3 and E-4; 11Bs in grades E-3 to E-7; 11Cs, E-3 to E-8; 11Fs, E-7, E-8; 11Gs, E-8; 13As, E-3; 13Es, E-5, E-6; 31Bs, E-4; 31Gs, E-6, E-7; 36Ks, E-3; E-4; 71Bs, E-4; 75Bs, E-5; 75As, E-7; 75Fs, E-4, E-6, E-7; 91Bs, E-3; 91Cs, E-5, E-6; 74As and Bs, E-3 to E-7.

If you hold one of these MOS's you must also be airborne and Ranger qualified or agree to attend both courses before assignment to the Ranger unit. If you have already graduated from airborne and Ranger training you must meet the same physical and mental standards as those first entering either course.

Volunteers must have at least 12 months of service remaining and no record. E-5s and above must be eligible for a secret clearance and E-4s or below eligible for a confidential clearance.

Personnel at Ft. Benning meeting these requirements should contact SGM Gentry or SFC Spain at 545-6922 or 545-6122.

Benning Mall opens Thursday

The public is invited to the official opening of the Fort Benning Mall to be held in the Mail parking lot at 9:45 a.m. March 28.

The Honorable Jack S. Brinkley, Georgia congressman; MG Cecil W. Hospelhorn, commander, the Army-Air Force Exchange System; and MG Kenneth T. Sawyer, deputy chief of staff for logistics, U.S. Army Training and Doctrine Command, will be honored guests for the occasion.

LTG Orwin C. Talbott, deputy commander, U.S. Army Training and Doctrine Command and a former Ft. Benning commander, will be the principal speaker.

MG Thomas M. Tarpley, Ft. Benning commander, will host the ceremony, which will include renditions of historic music and the National Anthem by the 283rd Army Band. The invocation and benediction will be given by Chaplain (Col.) Sterling Wetherell, post chaplain. Those individuals whose outstanding efforts were instrumental in the construction of the Mall will be recognized during the ceremony.

The Mall, built at a cost of approximately $5.5 million, will make all commissary and Post Exchange services available in one central location, just off Sante Fe Road in the vicinity of Martin Army Hospital.

The 240,000 square feet of enclosed area in the new building will house the post commissary, children's nursery, cafeteria, banking facilities and the Main Post Exchange with service concessions. Services included will be a barber shop, beauty salon, tailor shop, shoe repair shop, optical studio, watch repair shop, laundry and dry cleaning facilities and flower shop.

Adjacent buildings will house a bowling center, walk-up Post Office, and automobile service station.

Re-up clerk is Soldier of Month

Sp4 Harold C. Carnley, HHC, 197th Inf. Bde., was recently named the 197th's Soldier of the Month for March.

The 22-year-old clerk from the brigade's reenlistment office captured the award for the second time in the last year. He was also named Soldier of the Month in April 1973.

Carnley is married with two children and recently reenlisted for duty at the Recruiting Main Station (RMS) in Montgomery, Ala. The graduate of Escambia High School in Pensacola, Fla. has attended Pensacola Jr. College and Columbus College and plans to continue his college education in Montgomery. Prior to entering the Army in December 1971, he worked as an athletic instructor for the city recreation center in Pensacola, Fla.

"I plan to go back to school and complete my degree if I leave the Army," Carnley explained. "But I might just decide to stay in, especially if I can stay in the recruiting field."

Three win awards for energy tips

The military minds at Ft. Benning are on target in response to the energy conservation program. Utilizing the Army Suggestion Program, three soldiers will become recipients of cash awards or letters of appreciation for adopted suggestions.

Cpt. Roger Ladd, Assistant S-3, 145th Aviation Bn., is the big winner with a suggestion that will realize an estimated annual savings of $11,080.00. His suggestion for the establishment of an airborne VOR checkpoint at Lawson Army Airfield saved 39,600 gallons of aviation fuel used previously to fly aircraft to the nearest checkpoints approximately 9 to 11 miles from Lawson.

Sgt. Kenneth Walker, Directorate of Plans and Training, struck down Army tradition and saved a total of $4,861.35 in the process. He suggested that the salute round fired at reveille be eliminated. $300.00 in transportation costs of the gun crew were included in the total savings.

CW2 John Carey, USA Defense Investigative Service, received a letter of appreciation for an adopted suggestion that automatic cut-off valves be placed on gasoline pumps at Transportation Division motor pools. Carey's suggestion created an annual savings of $66 to the Army.

So, there is it. This weeks rundown on energy conservation methods being suggested. Look around and similar or unique ideas will become apparent.

Submit your suggestion using DA form 1045. Be specific and precise.

Vietnam Veterans honored Friday

Columbus and Fort Benning will observe Vietnam Veterans' Day with a ceremony scheduled for 4 p.m. on Friday, March 29 at the Government Center.

Major Bob Hydrick of Columbus and Major General Thomas M. Tarpley, Fort Benning commander, will be present. During the ceremony, the Mayor will read a proclamation honoring the veterans. Guest speaker at the ceremony will be LT. COL. Floyd Thompson, a former Prisoner of War in Vietnam.

The 283rd Army Band will furnish music, and an honor guard and color guard will be provided by the 3rd Battalion, 7th Infantry of the 197th Infantry Brigade.

Chaplain duty at 197th — not like civilian pastor

By Bob Cowles

Ever wonder why a minister would want to join the Army to be a chaplain? Why a man like this would want to risk his life in a combat zone, or spend time with a unit in the field?

The question, "What does it compare to, being a chaplain assigned to a brigade such as the 197th," was asked of Chaplain Robert E. Bell, Jr., the Assistant Brigade Chaplain of the 197th Infantry Brigade.

"It's not very similar to being a civilian pastor, that's for sure," commented Chaplain Bell.

"I spent nine years as a pastor of civilian churches prior to entering active duty, and the pastor in that kind of situation is more isolated from his congregation, or flock, during the week." "Not only is a chaplain occupied in the same tasks as any civilian minister — preaching, counseling, visiting hospitalized patients and those incarcerated behind bars — but the chaplain goes where his congregation goes, including the field on training exercises, or where they are working in garrison, or even overseas with them."

"The hours often are long, but the work is very rewarding from a human relations point of view," Chaplain Bell continued.

"Here in the military, the chaplain works with people with all kinds of religious backgrounds, or with none; from all parts of the country; having different economic and social-cultural tastes; having one common characteristic, that of being in the early to late-middle age bracket. And, of course, it is largely a male-oriented society in which we work."

"The major difference between this ministry and one in an exclusively civilian community, is that while the chaplain is still seen as a pastor, his role is not so narrowly defined as a civilian minister's."

First of all, he is still a man who stands as a representative of God, and reiterates the call of God to the members of his unit, reminding men of their faith-commitment; but in the Army he participates more freely in the daily routine of life that is experienced by his people."

"No one thinks it strange to look up from the task he is doing — from digging a foxhole, to preparing a meal in the mess hall, to pulling maintenance on a vehicle — and seeing a chaplain approaching. In fact, the unusual situation is not to see a chaplain around those areas occasionally."

"In the 197th it is the same, except occurring more frequently. Our recent flurry of field training has given us a bigger responsibility for being with the men in the field, sharing the weather and training requirements, as well as a greater opportunity to get to know our men by participating in their training with them."

"It's a great way of life," concluded Chaplain Bell, "and I'd be disappointed to trade it for any less strenuous occupation."

"Energy Conservation" is the message by the students of the local schools, Mr. Berthel Edgington Jr., Director of Public Relations at Columbus College, as a judge for the AUSA Pastor Contest, makes a selection of the best of over 400 pastors turned in.

Dear Bayonet

Why have they converted the Custer Terrace Commissary into a Milk Bar? Secondly, how long will the Commissary Annex remain open? CPT JBM

Dear CPT JBM

The Commissary officials have announced that in order to provide necessary personnel resources to prepare the new Fort Benning Mall Commissary Store for opening, it was necessary to convert the Custer Terrace Commissary Annex into a Milk Bar. This change went into effect March 2. From now until March 27 the Annex Store will stock bread, milk, ice cream, and cigarettes. This present Commissary operation will terminate at close of business March 27. The new Mall Commissary will be the only store on March 28.

Dear Bayonet

Recently the "Army Times" ran an article about the Army Air Force Exchange System taking over the operation of Army Bookstores. Will AAFES take over the operation of the Infantry School's Bookstores? Mr. BWA

Dear Mr. BWA

The Post Exchange will purchase the Infantry School's Bookstores by the end of the calendar year. It has already purchased the Bookstore's space in the mall.

DEAR BAYONET

Will the Barber Shop in Custer Terrace remain open when the Mall Barber opens later this month? CPT JBM

DEAR CPT JBM

Yes, the Barber Shop in Custer Terrace will remain open. Post Exchanges officials further states that the PX Branch Store will remain in Custer Terrace, however, the Custer Terrace Beauty Salon will close to move into the Mall.

DEAR BAYONET

Where can a serviceman go on post after nine o'clock for entertainment? PFC

DEAR PFC

The answer to your question depends upon the type of entertainment that you are seeking after 2100 hours. For conventional entertainment, the Recreational Service Centers are open to 2300 hours, where your imagination can be your 1100-2400, Friday, Saturday and Sunday 1100-0100 hours. Kelley Hill's Hideaway Lounge is operated under the same schedule but is not open on Sunday.

DEAR BAYONET

Under what conditions may a commander have one of his men MOS reclassified? A friend of mine just had his MOS reclassified by his commander and I asked him why and he told me he did not know. He thinks the commander has it in for him. JIM

DEAR JIM

Your friend is not leveling with you he has to know why his present MOS was lifted. The unit commander recommend reclassification of any awarded MOS when the individual concerned demonstrates inefficient performance of duty in the technical, supervisory, or other requirements of the MOS, or attains an MOS test score of less than 70. Reclassification also is in order when an individual concerned commits an act of misconduct which unfavorably affects the eligibility of that individual to perform his duty in his present MOS, for example, when a Medic becomes an addict or alcoholic, or Finance Clerk commits larceny.

Are you one of those fresh food freaks who raise their own fresh vegetables?

Then how come you settle for second best in chicken?

We've been called fresh food freaks because we insist that our grade A chicken is frozen at the peak of freshness... flavor destroying bacterial action stops immediately. We've worked out a process of Individually Quick Freezing each piece at 40 degrees below zero, which seals in the freshness right to your plate... no defrosting necessary.

Yet some people still insist on buying unfrozen chicken and calling it "fresh". It's sometimes as much as 7 or 8 days away from the farm, with flavor deteriorating each day.

If you insist on only the best for your family, the best is...

...the quick frozen chicken you don't have to defrost.

197th Infantry Brigade

Pioneers in a volunteer force

The 197th Infantry Brigade is a Unit-of-Choice Volunteer Army unit, with all of the innovations in living conditions, working conditions and job satisfaction in effect to provide soldiers of the "Forever Forward" Brigade with the best possible environment in which to serve.

The 197th Infantry Brigade was one of three Army units originally chosen to test new concepts in living conditions, working conditions and job satisfaction in 1971 as the Army prepared to assume an all-volunteer posture.

In addition, the 197th tested and pioneered recruiting methods which proved successful in recruiting men to fill positions made available under the all-volunteer program. Some of these methods have been followed by other Army units. Volunteers recruited under this program are guaranteed a 16-month tour of duty with the Brigade.

Recruiting chiefly in the Southeastern United States, the Brigade received enthusiastic support from the citizenry and became the first all-volunteer unit in the Army early in 1973.

The 197th Infantry Brigade was organized in 1962 at Ft. Benning. From its inception until its reorganization on March 21, 1973, the Brigade served as the chief troop and equipment support unit for USAIS and the USAIC which trains infantrymen for duty throughout the world.

The history of the 197th Infantry Brigade dates from the early 1920's, when it was part of the old 99th Infantry Division of the Organized Reserve.

In World War II, HHC, 197th Infantry Brigade was called to active duty in 1942 and reorganized as the 99th Recon. Trp. (Mech.). In Europe, the 99th first saw combat in the Battle of the Bulge; fought across Belgium to the Rhine River; thence through the Ruhr Pocket and into Austria, stopping on VE Day at the Inn River.

The 197th Infantry Brigade is credited with participating in three campaigns during World War II and was decorated with the Belgian Fourragere. In addition, it was cited three times in the Order of the Day of the Belgian Army for actions at the Siegfried Line, Elsenborn Crest and the Ardennes.

Upon its reorganization in March 1973, the brigade expanded in size, gave up its primary school support mission, and became a Strategic Army Forces unit under United States Forces Command. Over the past year, the brigade has conducted an intensive training program designed to bring its units to a high degree of combat readiness.

The Brigade's missions are to maintain the highest possible level of combat readiness for contingency operations; support the United States Army Infantry Center and School consistent with the availability of personnel; conduct unit of choice recruiting and conduct advanced individual training.

The 197th consists of HHC, 3-7th Inf. Cottonbalers; 1-58 Inf. (Mech.) Patriots; 2-10th FA; 2-69 AR, 197th Spt. Bn.; 72nd Engr. Co.; 179th MED, Tp. A 15th Cav. and 298th Sig. Plt.

Budget cut ends USAFI; final deadline announced

The Department of Defense, at the direction of Congress, has announced that the United States Armed Forces Institute (USAFI) will cease operations on May 31, 1974.

Several USAFI activities have already been terminated and others are scheduled for termination in April.

Any applications for USAFI Independent Study Courses and applications for the issue of individual tests are now being returned without action. Except for answer sheets, all issue of testing materials has ended. Test materials will be recalled beginning April 8. Answer sheets received after April 15 will not be scored.

Lessons must reach USAFI by April 19 to be processed. Requests for official test reports and duplicate military test reports received after 15 April 1974 cannot be processed.

USAFI was founded in 1942 to help the serviceman improve his education. 250 courses ranging from elementary school to college level were offered by USAFI during its 32 years of existence.

Having served more than eight million men and women in the armed forces, USAFI is making every effort to maintain availability of these records. However, an alternate source of this information has yet to be determined.

Easter candy recalled

The Food and Drug Administration has ordered a total recall of all chocolate products produced in the St. Hyacinthe, Quebec, Canada plant of Regent Chocolates Limited. Tests have revealed the presence of bacterial (Salmonella) contamination of some of these products which include novelty Easter bunnies, eggs, ducks, bells, Christmas balls, Santas, and similar holiday-type chocolate candy.

The following list identifies the U. S. distributors of these products and their private labels:

Frankford Candy & Chocolate Company, Phila., Pa. Labels are Frankford and Woodbine.
Murray Allen Products, New Rochelle, New York. Labels are Murray Allen, Loft and Barricini. Triumph Candy Corporation, Englewood Cliffs, N. J. Labels are Regent, World Candy, Holiday Candy, Eljay, Shari, Zachary, Mayfair, Holiday Inn, Van Houten, Family Treats, and Mr. Milky.

The U. S. distributors listed above also manufacture candy in this country and import candy from other countries. Only chocolate products clearly identified on the label as "Made in Canada" are being recalled.

Anyone having purchased or having knowledge of local sale of these products is urged to contact the Post Veterinarian (545-1119).

A year ago a new direction for the 197th Infantry Brigade was mandated by Headquarters, Department of the Army. We were to become a combat ready, Strategic Army Forces (STRAF) unit.

Today, after a year of intensive reorganization and arduous training, the Brigade is almost combat ready, having completed the Army Training Tests for four of its five battalions and all but one of its separate company size and smaller units. The remaining units will undergo their Training Tests next month, and the Brigade will have fulfilled its mission of becoming combat ready.

We could not have accomplished all that we have without the exceptional support provided by the Infantry Center and the Fort Benning community, and for this we are truly grateful.

Accomplishment of the task of becoming a STRAF unit has been demanding for the "Forever Forward" soldiers and their families. However, all of us clearly recognize the importance of this unit to our national defense effort. We willingly accept the new challenge of maintaining full combat readiness, and I have complete confidence that this Brigade can and will carry out any assigned mission, no matter how difficult.

2/10th is first unit in new barracks

The soldiers of HHB, 2nd Bn., 10th Field Arty., 197th Inf. Bde. became the first men on Kelly Hill to move into the recently modernized barracks there.

"I just wish I'd had something like this when I was a young private," stated SFC Ronald Clanton, the communications platoon sergeant whose men were the first to actually move into the building. "I never thought the Army would ever have barracks like these."

The three-story barracks have been under modernization since last spring and a second building should be completed by the end of March. Six of the 12 buildings located on Kelley Hill are under modernization at the present.

The modernization included air conditioning and heating, controlled in each room individually, concrete wall partitions between rooms, new floors and ceilings, flame-proof drapes in all rooms, carpeting in the day rooms as well as the new NCO lounge and NCO rooms with private baths.

"Wow," said PFC Anthony Rosario. "These rooms are outstanding." Rosario's roommate, Sp4 Phellon Jackson, pointed out the improvements in security. "The doors are extra heavy and keep out a lot of the noise from other rooms," Jackson added. "I would say this is 100 per cent improvement over our old barracks."

Soldiers of HHC, 3-7th Inf. (Cottonbalers) will share the new barracks with the 'redlegs' while units of the 197th Spt. Bn. at Harmony Church are scheduled to move into renovated barracks in April. Although the renovated barracks are not like the modernized ones on Kelley Hill, they will be an improvement over the present barracks.

Pvt. Sam Frazier places his dress uniform in his locker in his new barracks room. Frazier's unit, HHB, 2nd Bn., 10th Field Arty., was the first to move into modernized barracks on Kelley Hill. (PHOTO BY BOB THOMAS)

RANGER DEPT. TOUR MUSEUM

LTC (ret.) Dick D. Grube, curator of the Infantry Museum, spoke briefly to the ladies of the Ranger Dept. and escorted them on a personal tour of the museum. After the tour, the ladies enjoyed refreshments hosted by Mrs. Donald Mannon and Mrs. Jack Hayman.

Mrs. James Bowers, wife of the dept. director, held a business meeting after introducing newcomers Mrs. Bryon Frahm. Special guest was Mrs. Robert L. Rollier.

The ladies are planning a formal to be held April 20.

2DN BN., 69TH ARMOR AND 72ND ENG. CO.

The ladies of the 2nd Bn.

69th Armor and 72 Eng. Co. were a much more enlightened group after their coffee at the home of Mrs. Richard Craig. The group has as their special guests, Col. and Mrs. William B. Steele. Col. Steele is the commander of the 197th Inf. Bde. Hostesses were the ladies of the 72nd Eng. Co.

After refreshments, Col. Steele spoke about the brigade, telling of its history and mission. He emphasized the more strenuous training requirements of a STRAF unit, but noted the greater rewards and pride in being in such a unit.

During the short business meeting the ladies planned to meet at the Craft Shop to make Arm suspensers for their husbands to wear with dress blues.

NCOWC Board Meeting

The Executive Board of the NCOWC met March 11 at the NCOWC Clubhouse at Lawson Field.

Representatives of the Ft. Benning Army Community Services Food Locker and Lending Closet spoke to the board about their needs and how groups or individuals could help solve their problems.

Business Meeting

The NCOWC held their regular monthly business meeting March 13 at the NCOWC Clubhouse at Lawson Field.

After the meeting, the members enjoyed refreshments and a cake decorating demonstration by Mrs. George Segrest.

Hostesses were Mrs. William Powers and Mrs. Robert Radke.

COTTONBALERS BALL

On the evening of March 8 a group of approximately 200 enlisted men and their ladies attended the Cottonbalers Ball (3rd Bn/7th Inf.), held at Crain Hall. This was the first Cottonbalers Ball to be given since the reactivation of the 3rd Bn/7th Inf.

The evening began with a cocktail hour followed by a buffet supper and dancing. With such a large turnout and the good time had by all, more such activities will be planned in the future.

LEADERSHIP Department

The evening of March 8

the Conditioning, Combatives and Drill Committee hosted a Hail and Farewell for the Leadership Department at the Offices Club.

A baby cup was presented to Capt. and Mrs. Robert D. Wright for their new son Stephen Andrew.

The Land Navigation Committee was recently added to the Leadership Department. Welcomed were the officers of that committee, Maj. John T. Murphy, Cpt. and Mrs. Bobbie C. Martin, Cpt. and Mrs. Everett R. Jenkins, Cpt. Timothy G. Gregory and Lt. and Mrs. Joseph J. Collins. Also hailed were Cpt. and Mrs. Harry F. Klein and Cpt. and Mrs. Abraham L. Bain.

Farewell was bid to Lt. and Mrs. Dudley L. Fry Jr., Cpt. Jon B. Nolan, Cpt. and Mrs. Jerry T. Walden, Cpt. and Mrs. Thomas J. Harrison, Cpt. and Mrs. Dean Loftin, Cpt. James L. Anderson Jr., Cpt. and Mrs. William Brander and Cpt. Joseph J. Rosario Jr. Lt. and Mrs. Larry L. Owen were farewelled from the Command Leadership Committee and welcomed to Department Headquarters.

NCOA helps 197th soldiers

Selected soldiers from the 197th Inf. Bde. are going to Ft. Jackson, S.C., to attend the NCO Academy, and many come back smelling like roses.

One such man is Sgt. Jimmy O. Campbell of the 2-69th Armor.

Having graduated from the academy on Feb. 8, finishing fifth in his class and making the commandant's list, Sgt. Campbell is back with his unit prepared to soldier.

"The academy is very good," explained Sgt.

Campbell, "but I feel that it should still be a six week course rather than only four. They are putting out more information than they have time to dwell on."

Physical readiness training (PRT) is a big item on the agenda at the NCO Academy. Along with PRT the soldiers attending the academy have drill and ceremony exercises, map reading classes and maintenance classes, to name a few.

"It's pretty strac at the NCO Academy," explained Sgt. Campbell. "Everybody has to live in the barracks and there are inspections every day."

Besides attending classes, the NCO students have to give classes. These classes include a two minute class on the individual's personal history, a five minute class on any subject the individual chooses, a ten minute class on any military subject, a 15 minute conference demonstration on a military subject of the instructor's choice, and a 29 minute class on performance oriented training. Each individual must also give two classes on PRT, and drill and ceremony.

"The NCO Academy helped develop me into a better soldier," stated Sgt. Campbell. "I feel that everybody should go through it at least once, whether or not they are making a career of the Army."

OCS finishes 1 year all-branch, participants give reactions

Nearly one year ago, on April 22, 1973, Infantry Officer Candidate School, which had been in existence for 32 years, was reorganized into the Branch Immaterial Officer Candidate Course. The changeover meant that no longer did OCS turn out strictly Infantry officers. Now, OCS trains officer candidates for all of the 13 branches of the Army.

Along with the curriculum change, nine weeks were cut from the course, reducing its length from 23 to 14 weeks. This was accomplished by removing much of the Infantry training present in the previous course.

Individuals who have taken part in both programs have varying ideas on the new one. While some believe the present course is superior, there are those who feel the absence of the training received in the 6-month program hinders the development of an officer candidate.

After observing the graduates of two experimental classes, DA decided to change the course.

1LT Virgil Hooe, Executive Officer of 50th Company, 5th Student Battalion, was a graduate of one of the experimental classes. On the new program, he believes the fat has been cut away, but the meat of OCS is still there. "Actually, the extra Infantry training was cut out and that took care of most of the additional weeks," he said. "The program is still Infantry-oriented, but not so much as before. The extraneous material was removed.

and the course was streamlined." He added, "The program hasn't been made any easier, just shorter."

2LT Johnie M. Yawn, Assistant Adjutant of TSB, graduated from one of the last 6-month classes. He believes the program hasn't changed too much. "There is plenty of evidence to show that the program is just as tough now as it's always been. The only major differences are the lack of Infantry tactics training and the candidates have nine weeks less to put up with."

2LT Lamar Clarke, Tactical Officer with 50th Company, personally favored the 6-month program because he believed it rounded off the Officer Candidates and made them more effective.

"We don't really have the time to really help the weaker candidates like we used to in 6 months. There was more 'hands on' field type training. You have more of a chance to evaluate their performance to determine how they should perform as an officer."

1LT Hank Bonn, S-3, 5th Student Bn., says that the missions are the same, although the methods are different. "I don't believe one course is any better than the other. The standards are just as high now as they've always been. It's no easier physically. The Ft. Benning Physical Training test record is held by one of the 14-week Branch Immaterial courses. I liked the old program because of the Infantry tactics, but the new one is equally excellent."

PV2 David L. Lacey, 988th MPs, 36th Engineer Group (CBT), "Mixes it up." Lacey is one of the military personnel responsible for the fine food and service provided by the 598th Light Maintenance Company Mess Hall. Lt. B. C. Brogdon, 139th MPs, 36th Engineer Group (CBT) discusses "THE ROLE OF THE FEMALE IN THE ARMY" with chaplain's assistant Sgt. George Bauer during a recent seminar presented by the "Racial Awareness Program," 36th Engineer Group. Lt. Cliff Jordan, Assistant Race Relations Officer narrated the discussion between the men and women of the Group.

34th Med holds FTX preparing for ORT

In conjunction with an Operational Readiness Test, the 34th Med. Bn. conducted a Field Training Exercise, March 5-7.

Companies in the field included HHD, the 261st and the 926th Med. Det., the 498th Med. Air Amb. Co. and the 2d Evac. Hospital.

Hqs., 261st, and the 926th Med. Dets. left a convoy at 3 p.m. for the assembly area. A quartering party left first at dusk to set up tents and equipment. By late evening, the rest of the convoy arrived.

Throughout the exercise, the battalion received gas and aggressor attacks, a nuclear attack and had a fire by the S-4 tent. Guards were maintained both day and night to ward off the aggressors. As a result of this, two aggressors were taken as prisoners.

The purpose of the field exercise was to see how alert the battalion would be under a combat situation.

The battalion was graded by their own personnel on the different situations thrown at them. They were also graded on their deployment to the field, setting up equipment and the function of the unit in the field. Next month the 34th Med. Bn. goes to the field for their ORT which is graded by post level personnel.

"We reacted better on this exercise than the last one three months ago," commented Lieutenant Colonel Jerry D. Hahn, 34th Med. Bn. commander. "I feel that we should have no problem in passing our ORT," he added.

Engrs. build bridge for brigade PT run

In a departure from the 197th Inf. Bde's present combat training schedule, the bridge plat. of the 72nd Engr. Co. recently completed construction of a timber trestle located in the training area north of Kelley Hill.

The bridge, which was built over a period of three weeks by eight men, will be used by all men of the 197th Inf. Bde. when the unit conducts its two-mile run.

"The biggest problem we had was setting the piles into the rock bed of the creek," explained SSG Johnny Rucker, the section's NCO. "I'd also like to point out that all of the materials used in the sub-structure of the bridge were salvaged, in an effort to conserve lumber."

"This bridge is similar to one we might have in combat," 2LT. Michael L.

McGee, the platoon leader stated. "The men who worked on it were able to learn a lot and I feel they gained personal satisfaction seeing it completed."

"We are all proud of this bridge," PFC Brian Flowers confirmed as he took snapshots of the structure. "When you finish a project like this you can look back and see that you have done something."

SPITSHINE?

Would you like to have a booklet about "HOW TO SPITSHINE"? Would you like to know "HOW TO SPITSHINE"? your shoes and boots easier, faster, and better than you do now?

I have written and copyrighted a technique for the preparation and execution of a spitshine. Anyone who shines their shoes (military, policemen, firemen, etc.) needs to have this secret. It's a skinny, little, EXPENSIVE book, but you're not buying paper. It's worth much more than I'm asking.

It saves you time and that's money in your pocket. It's less work, so even the lazy can now spitshine. It tells you how to spitshine the entire shoe or boot, not just the heel and toe. It doesn't flake off with your first step either.

Look at all the successful people you know. Are their shoes shined? You bet they are. Do you want to be less successful than they? No way! My technique shows you how to shine better than they.

The instructions are simple and easy to follow. I take you through the entire process, step-by-step. I tell you how to make a once-a-week shine look good all week long.

What will this booklet do for you? It'll show you how to spitshine — the whole boot. It'll surely get you some attention. Nobody else has a book on this subject. Show it to a friend.

A technique which will last you a lifetime for the price of one store-bought spitshine. Originally offered at $5.00 but now reduced to only $1.00 and I pay the postage.

May I send you a copy?

36th aviation unit receives award for safety

For the first time in the history of Army Aviation, an OH-58 helicopter unit has received an award of merit for 10,300 accident free flying hours in succession. The award went to the 36th Engineer Group (CBT) Aviation Platoon for the twenty five month period from Dec. 1, 1971 to Dec. 31, 1973.

At award ceremonies last Friday Col. Ames S. Albro Jr., Group commander presented the award to platoon commander Capt. Al Ridrigues. Col. Albro commended the aviators for their excellent record and wished them continued success in the future.

Also on hand for the ceremony LTC Lawrence A. Bell 145th Aviation Battalion, commander.

The 36th Aviation Platoon not only supports the 36th Engrs., but also flies missions in support of the United States Army Infantry Center (USAIC) and United States Army Infantry School, (USAIS) such as Pathfinders, Rangers, and V.I.P.s. They also fly search and rescue missions for the civilian community.

"They say that these helicopters are supposed to be practically maintenance free, but that's not really true," said SP5 Robert M. Burgoon, crew chief with the 36th Aviation Platoon. "We spend quite a lot of time working on our ships so that we can keep them flying," said Lt. Tom Nicholson, executive officer of the platoon had nothing but praise for his men. "During the past year we had only five crew chiefs to maintain 13 OH-58s," said Lt. Nicholson. "It takes hard work and dedication to keep the aircraft 100 per cent available all the time."

Lt. Nicholson went on to say that units with OH-58s and other aircraft have amassed 10,000 accident free hours, but no OH-58 unit has accomplished this except the 36th Aviation Platoon.

"We spend quite a lot of time working on our ships so that we can keep them flying," says SP5 Robert M. Burgoon (right) and SP5 Samic J. Moon. Both are crew chiefs for the 36th Aviation Platoon, 36th Engineer Group (CBT). (U.S. Army Photo)

Is segregation really dead?

Twenty years ago, an executive order outlawed racial segregation in the U.S. armed forces. That directive was designed to usher in a new era of equal opportunity for all Americans in uniform, to end unequal treatment and forced separatism based on race and color.

Segregation, legally speaking, was dead in the military. But this simple order did not alleviate many of the difficulties caused by segregation. Orders, it seems, can change institutions more easily than it can men's minds—and hearts.

The mind is the origin of man's likes and dislikes, including his likes and dislikes of people. These feelings are the result of one's experiences and environment. Everyone is guilty of some kind of prejudice, whether he wants to admit it or not.

Prejudice cannot be controlled by regulations or executive orders. Although military service can alter a person's views tremendously, many deep-seated convictions never can be erased. Two people can wear the same uniform and even be in the same unit but feel uncomfortable together. Soldiers on both sides of the color line say, "I'll do it, but I don't have to like it." These feelings, which breed unrest and frustration, often lead to harsh words, fights and even riots.

Suspicion and distrust are frequently by-products of this relationship. Take one statement made by a black soldier in a race relations seminar: "When an MP sees a group of white soldiers standing on a corner he passes it off as a bull session. When he sees a group of Mexicans standing there he figures they might cause trouble so he keeps an eye on them. When he sees a group of blacks he immediately assumes that something is brewing and that he'd better break them up."

Fear is a particularly important factor. A white soldier sees the black power salute as a threat to his way of life or as defiance to the establishment. A black hears the word "boy" and takes it as an insult to his pride and manhood. Many whites worry that black citizens want to change society to suit their own needs.

Many whites are genuinely confused by "black presence" of the past decade. They can't understand why the young soldier of today is so demanding. They can't understand why he prefers to be called "black" rather than "Negro" or "colored." Most of all they can't understand that the black drive toward unity is not a return to segregation, but simply a recognition of brotherhood and an effort to attain a distinctive black identity.

The black soldier wants to be recognized for what he is and what he has the ability to do. He wants to be an integral part of the establishment. Whites and blacks may work together from 8 to 5, but they still live in a totally different society.

The military establishment must do its best to insure that it is representative of all cultures, that is in a true "mixing vat" of interests. For example, military clubs should offer all modes of entertainment. The black soldier does not like country and western music because it reminds him of something he'd rather forget. Similarly, the average white soldier does not prefer soul music because he does not completely understand or identify with it.

Once we produce an establishment that reflects everyone's needs and likes, people will have less reasons to form parochial groups. Once such groups dissolve, the color line will become a "telegraph" line for communicating, integrating and learning. The black soldier will find that his white brother is—a brother. The white soldier will learn about the black culture he now finds so strange.

Success depends on both commanders and their men. The commander must sponsor programs that will have wide appeal in his unit. His men, in turn, must approach these activities in good spirit and with open minds. Commander's Call occasionally should include a program in which men can speak out on racial matters troubling them. Dayrooms should have adequate black literature. Post exchanges, commissaries, movies and clubs should offer material of interest to all segments of military society.

Above all, we must remember that good race relations is an individual responsibility. We must search our consciences. Open our minds. Learn. Accept. Sacrifice.

We can—and must—meet the challenge. But most important, we must understand. (W.F.J.)

After one year of STRAF

The 197th is on the threshold of combat readiness

By LT. Lamar Battles

The successful completion of Army Training Tests (ATT) by four of the 197th Infantry Brigade's battalions; a full scale Brigade level Field Training Exercise (FTX); and the scheduled testing of the armor battalion and Troop A, 15th Cavalry next month brings the brigade to the threshold of full combat readiness.

The ATTs evaluate each battalions' ability to perform its assigned mission under simulated combat conditions and act as "final exams" in determining the brigade's readiness.

The 2nd Battalion, 69th Armor and Troop A, 15th Cavalry which have already completed tank gunnery firing, will undergo the ATT next week as the "Forever Forward" Brigade attains the combat-ready posture dictated by the Strategic Army Forces (STRAF) mission assigned one year ago.

The 1st Bn. (Mech), 58th Inf. (Patriots), was the first to complete its ATT in mid February. The 3rd Bn., 7th Inf. (Cottonbalers), 2nd Bn., 10th FA (Rock's Support), and the 197th Spt. Bn. completed testing the last week of February.

The tests cap a busy year for the brigade as it leaves behind a school support role for its new mission as a Strategic Army Forces Unit.

Soldiers who enlisted for the 197th Infantry Brigade Commanded by Colonel William B. Steele, bulk of this STRAF organization. These unit-of-choice volunteers came to the unit under a variety of special options through the Army's recruiting network. The 197th is closely allied with these recruiting efforts through a system of liaison personnel and canvassers.

More than 2450 men volunteered for the 197th Brigade in its first year of STRAF. New recruiting activities were begun at the Beckley, West Virginia and Richmond, Virginia Recruiting Main Stations and Puerto Rico increasing the brigade's unit-of-choice recruiting efforts conducted in seven states and Puerto Rico.

"The Brigade's recruiting effort during the past 12 months has been highly successful," states LTC Douglas H. Snell, the Brigade S-5. "We have been able to recruit enough men to fill the Brigade units that were activated or expanded a year ago."

The brigade's first year of STRAF saw key additions of special units and equipment. The 197th Support Battalion (for combat service support), 298th Signal Platoon, 179th Military Intelligence Detachment, Troop A, 15th Cavalry and new tank companies of the 2nd Battalion, 69th Armor were manned, equipped and trained.

Six members of the US Air Force, forming a Tactical Air Control Party (TACP) began working with the brigade as air liaison advisors. In addition, an aviation section and a military police platoon, both part of the brigade's Headquarters and Headquarters Company, were born and developed in the past year.

As it continued a lesser, but consistent, degree of support of the Infantry School and Center, made possible by the establishment of the 1st Bn., 28th Inf. as the primary school support force, the 197th Brigade also maintained its involvement in community affairs during the first year of STRAF through participation in a number of community service projects.

In addition, color guards and artillery salute battalions from the brigade supplied military formality and honors for a variety of events, including ceremonies for the late President Lyndon B. Johnson, patriotic holiday observances, public military displays and sports events.

The 197th Brigade was toured and observed by civilian and military visitors from throughout the world during official and social stops aimed at evaluating the unit's organizational and training progress under its new mission. More than 160 foreign military representatives joined in visits to the brigade.

Many groups of interested citizens, business and industrial leaders, sports figures and individual personalities toured the brigade during the year. Reserve Officer Training Corps (ROTC) units sent nearly 600 junior and senior cadets to view the brigade.

Army Chief of Staff, General Creighton W. Abrams, Vice Chief of Staff General Fredrick C. Weyland, FORSCOM Commander, General Walter T. Kerwin, and Sergeant Major of the Army Leon L. Van Autreve all visited the 197th Brigade in its first year of STRAF.

Gen. Weyland checked the development of the new "Matrix" method of infantry training. This technique of training tested by soldiers of the 197th Brigade is said to be more effective as well as more realistic and interesting for trainees than current methods.

Accuracy is important, as Sp4 Louis Scott, of the 2nd Bn., 10th Field Artillery aligns the sights of a 105 mm Howitzer. (197th Infantry Brigade Photo)

ABC and NBC news teams joined members of the Hearst News Service, United Press International, Newsweek, The Christian Science Monitor, New York Times, and a variety of others from local, state and national media as they visited the brigade during the busy year reporting on recruiting and volunteer soldier's lifestyle.

A new capability was added to the brigade's Race Relations/Equal Opportunity program by developing a Race Relations Instructor Course, designed to train selected unit representatives for duty as instructors for race relations classes.

After one year of activity as a STRAF unit, the 197th Infantry Brigade is preparing to begin specialized operational readiness training in the year ahead. Desert, jungle, amphibious, adventure, airmobile, mountain and general readiness training all lie ahead for the 197th Infantry Brigade as it moves "Forever Forward" as a Strategic Army Forces Unit and proud member of the American Society.

Engrs. make little rocks from big ones
Break big rocks into small ones? Some people would consider this to be an unusual mission. However, Co. A, 43rd Engr. Bn. (Const), accepted the job enthusiastically.
It wasn't a punishment, and fortunately it was not necessary to accomplish the mission with sledge hammers.
The mission came about in connection with another 43rd Engr. project. Co. C, 43rd Engr., is putting an asphalt surface on a section of River Road and on the approach to the new Martin Army Hospital (MAH) HELIPAD.
To accomplish the project, a supply of finely crushed rock were needed. In order for Co. C to continue their project and enable Co. A, to employ their organic rock crushing section, the larger rock were made available to Co. A to reduce it to the correct size.
During the past twelve months, the crusher was only used to grind up soft coal for use on post. In less than a week, Co. A's equipment platoon had the crusher ready and produced over 200 tons of crushed rock. Co. A fulfilled their mission to support the rest of the 43rd Engr. Bn.
"We were glad to get the experience in operating the crusher. Using this equipment has been to our advantage and hopefully we will be able to use the crusher on other projects of this type," PFC John McCumber, Co. C, 43rd Engrs. stated.

PR helps Army
The Army is becoming increasingly involved in public relations work as the drive toward a volunteer Army continues. A key part of the current Army Information program is the Hometown News Release Form. The DA 1526 Hometown News Release Form is currently the most effective means of informing the civilian populace of what its soldiers are doing. SFC John Maruhnich of the Post Information Office oversees the HTNR program for all of Fort Benning. As he sees it, there are three ways the Hometown News Release benefit the Army.
"The Hometown News Release helps the recruiting effort, reenlistment, and fosters a better Army-community relationship."
The forms are filled out by soldiers attending classes, receiving awards, or reporting to a new unit. The single largest Hometown News Release contributor is The School Brigade, due to the continuous flow of incoming students. In the past year nearly 10,000 completed Hometown News Releases from TSB have been sent to the Army Hometown News Release Center in Kansas City, Missouri.
After processing at Kansas City the forms are sent out in news release style to the soldiers' hometowns!

Read some books on swimming

Every summer more and more Americans are learning to swim. The Recreation Resource Review Commission predicts that swimming will soon replace driving for pleasure as the number one recreational activity. Besides swimming for pleasure, many Americans are swimming to get into shape or stay in shape. It's not too late to learn how to swim. Swimming classes will once again be available through various organizations on post. Also the Recreation Services Library on Main Post offers a wide selection of books on how to swim and dive. A few examples of those books are listed below.

After trying civilian life, man finds Army suits

A former sergeant in the Army, SP4 Thomas C. Edwards has returned to active duty after 16 months of civilian life. He spent 6½ years on active duty in the Army, received an honorable discharge July 1972, and entered civilian life with hopes of a career in hotel/motel management.

After a series of disappointments in this and other fields of endeavor, SP4 Edwards decided to rejoin the Army, complete 20 years of active duty, and upon retirement start his own business — hopefully in the restaurant field.

SP4 Edwards plans to take full advantage of the educational benefits available in the Army before striking out on his own again.

Before entering the Army, his life was anything but typical. He was born in New York City while his mother was visiting an eye specialist. After three months he returned with his parents to Bahrain, a tiny island in the Persian Gulf, where his father was a merchant. He remained in Bahrain attending Sacred Heart Convent School until he was eight, then began high school over 1,000 miles away in Bangalore, South India. He completed 8 years of school in India before returning home to join his father's business. Once home, however, he learned he must return to the U.S. to retain the U.S. citizenship which was automatically his because he was born here. In order to accomplish this he signed on as a wiper on the oil tanker SS Murfreesboro, sailing around the world for four months before eventually docking at Portsmouth, New Hampshire.

Edwards said that during the four month cruise the tanker docked at The Philippines, Taiwan, Japan, Korea, back to Saudi Arabia, Turkey, Greece, Casablanca, Spain and Aruba, an island off South America. "Each time we reached a port," stated Edwards, "the captain of the ship used me as an interpreter."

In addition to speaking English, Edwards speaks Arabic, Persian, Armenian, Hindustani and three South Indian dialects.

In 1965, he enlisted in the U.S. Army after becoming aware of the Vietnam Crisis. He completed basic training at Ft. Leonard Wood, Mo. in February, 1966, and within ten months found himself in South Vietnam before returning to the U.S. In addition he has also spent 13 months in Korea and 6 months in Germany.

Two of his prior stateside assignments were with the 533rd Trans. Co. here at Ft. Benning, Ga. which no doubt influenced his decision to re-enlist under the unit of choice program. Another deciding factor, no doubt, is that his wife is from the Columbus-Phenix City area. He married Patricia Ann King, 1 February 1970 and has since become the proud father of two daughters, Lillian Ann, 3 years and Cindy Cheree, 18 months.

UNIFORM CHANGEOVER

All personnel are reminded that the changeover period for the wear of the summer uniform is Monday, April 1. There will be no optional period. Personnel will be authorized to roll the fatigue sleeves above the elbow during the summer uniform season. Officers and Warrant Officers are authorized to wear the garrison cap with the khaki or army tan uniform. However, the service cap must be worn if the army green uniform is to be worn during the summer uniform period.

WEATHER WARNING PROCEDURES CHANGE

The Weather Warning Siren was changed recently. Now it will be sounded only to indicate an actual tornado alert or to indicate the all clear. The siren will not be sounded for tornado "WATCH" periods. The tornado alert siren is a series of three steady two minute sounds interrupted by a two silent periods of one minute each. Upon hearing the siren, all personnel are urged to monitor their local radio station or TV station. Military personnel and their dependents should refrain from calling the Staff Duty Officer and the Lawson Weather Station. When the danger is passed, the siren will again be sounded for the all clear. This will be steady sound of three minutes.

COMMISSARY STORE NOTICE

Paper bags are critically short nation-wide and only a limited number are being received at the commissary stores. Customers are requested to bring their own containers to the commissary stores when shopping. There is no foreseeable relief. Containers such as paper bags, shopping bags, barracks bags, that the customer may provide for purchases will help.

Museum holds Black History display

The Infantry Museum has acquired a new temporary exhibit, "The Black Military Experience in the American West." The original collection of drawings will be on display throughout the month of April.

The collection, owned by John M. Carroll, an author and educator, has already been exhibited at West Point, the Army War College at Carlisle Barracks, Pa., and the Fort Leavenworth Museum. Carroll is the author and editor of several books on the American west, including "The Black Military Experience in the American West" and "Buffalo Soldiers West."

There are approximately forty drawings in the collection, by artists from the U. S., Europe and Mexico. The drawings are an historical account of the contributions of American black soldiers in the western Indian wars.

Many of the drawings portray fighting scenes of men of the 9th and 10th Cavalry Regiments and the 24th and 25th Infantry Regiments.

Two of the artists, Lorence Bjorklund and Nick Eggenhoffer, began their careers as illustrators of the Western "pulp" magazines of the 1930's and 1940's. Eggenhoffer, a native of Germany, and Bjorklund, who was born in Minnesota, have both published books on the American west.

Jose Cisneros, who was born in Mexico, moved to El Paso and became an American citizen. He is a well-known authority on the Spanish influence in the American southwest, and has done a number of illustrations of the people of that area over the years.

William Reusswig, who lives in Billings, Montana, and Joe Grandee, of Arlington, Virginia, are both experts on General Custer and his campaigns, and both have published books containing their illustrations.

Other artists represented in the collection are Chuck Kemper of Phoenix and Scottsdale, Arizona; the late Stanley M. Long of San Carlos, California; Ace Powell of Kalispell, Montana, and J. K. Ralston of Billings, Montana.

The National Infantry Museum is open from 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Tuesdays through Fridays, and from 12:30 to 4:30 p.m. on Saturdays and Sundays. The Museum is closed on Mondays.

Dual-division TSB opens V-ball season

An upsurge of soldiers with sprained fingers on sick call means volleyball season in TSB has begun. The season's opening games were played last week amid a rash of forfeited contests.

HQ, 1st Bn., lost two games by forfeit without a single serve. They forfeited to the 23d Regt. Det.

2nd Bn. massacred the BBOD in the first game of their match 153. BBOD came back to make a game of it in the second game, but still were left on the bottom end of a 15-11 score.

The Airborne Department wiped out IOAC 3-74, but only on paper. IOAC failed to appear and lost two games by forfeit.

There are two divisions in the TSB volleyball league—the red and the blue. There are eight teams in the red division and seven in the blue. Regular season play ends April 25, and tournament play begins within a week after that date. All games are played at Bryant Wells Field House and begin at 6:15 p.m.

Willie Williams (L) of Headquarters and Support Company, 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry (PIONEERS), TSB sets up a volley ball play with teammate Louis Diaz at Bryant Wells Field House. Headquarters and Support Company won the opening game of the PIONEER tournament, 16-14, and 15-10, in a best-of-three set. (PHOTO BY RICK WASSER)

1/29th opens volley ball season

Hqs & Spt Co., 1st Bn., 29th Inf. (PIONEERS), TSB defeated Co. E of the 1/29th in the opening set of the PIONEER volleyball tournament.

The first game of the three game set went into overtime, with Hqs. Co. emerging the victor, 16-14. The Artillerymen from Co. E came back in the second game, 15-12, with special efforts by Chuck Horner and Kenneth Lee.

In the final game of the best-of-three set, Headquarters team rallied late in the game to defeat the "Redlegs", by a score of 15-10. Tremendous spiking plays by Louis Diaz and Willie Williams, contributed to the hard-fought victory.

Plan to come out for the Rod and Gun Club Field Trials on the Alabama side of the reservation next weekend. Activities will start Friday morning with the running of the open gun dog events. Top dogs from all over the southeast are expected to compete. Spectators will have an opportunity to observe some of the top, dog-man teams in the country in action.

On Saturday and Sunday the average dog owner will have his day. The amateur events will be run. These will include an amateur derby, puppy, shooting dog and walking bird dog competition. It's not too late for any dog owners to enter these events. For information call Mike Brickner at 561-2401 or Rod Cook at 561-1765.

This is a good time for bird dog owners to compare their dogs with other dogs in the area. He might win the Commanding General's Award given to the top dog in the meet. Even though he doesn't win the big trophy or one of the many other trophies he and his owner can both learn a lot about bird hunting.

The Kountry Hi-Lites will play at Victory Lodge this weekend. They will provide dance and listening music from 8 p.m. until midnight Saturday and from 6 until 10 p.m. Sunday.

This is a versatile band. They play it all-country, western, bluegrass, rock—you name it and they play. They feature a girl drummer and two female vocalists.

The club had a good crowd at the two sessions last weekend. Each weekend seems to get better. Some donated help could be used to good effect. Anyone interested call the club office (687-0555).

Memberships-Licenses Are Available

The 1974-75 Rod and Gun Club memberships and Georgia State hunting and fishing licenses are now available at the Rod and Gun Club. The 1973-74 licenses and memberships expire March 31.

Club membership fees are the same as last year. A regular membership is $5, a dependent membership $1 and a limited membership $8.

The Georgia State hunting license costs $4.25, the fishing license is $3.25 or a combination hunting-fishing license can be had for $7.25.

Bring the family when you come for these items. They can enjoy some time fishing at Victory Pond or you might want to spend the whole day. There are picnic tables and outdoor grills immediately adjacent to the clubhouse. Have a cookout. Bring your charcoal or the kids might police up enough fallen branches for the fire. Catching a fish from Victory Pond and cooking it over a fire outside could make a day they won't forget for a long time.

March Fishing Derby

S Sgt. Bernard Joffer, USAIB has registered the largest bass in the March Fishing Derby. His catch tipped the Rod and Gun scales at 16-pounds, 7-ounces. He used a purple flitail plastic worm to take the fish from Kings Pond.

The largest bream was registered by M Sgt. (ret.) Davy Jones, 5133 Dana Drive. His catch weighed an even pound and came from Kings Pond. Jones was using a hoodoo bug lure.

The largest catfish came from Hedleys Pond. SGM Charles Morrison, TSB took him on shad. He tipped the scales at 3-pounds, 4-ounces.

All members are eligible to enter the monthly fishing derby. Each month the fishermen registering the largest bream, catfish and bass at the club receive a $15 merchandise order good for purchase of items sold in the club pro shop.

Fort Benning threw away their chance of winning the 1974 TRADOC basketball championship as they suffered back-to-back losses to Ft. Jackson and wound up in second place.

Benning entered the finals undeated including an earlier win over Ft. Jackson. In a Monday afternoon game at Ft. Gordon the Jackson "Five" inflicted a 63-54 loss on Benning. Later that same day, Ft. Jackson came back to claim another victory 72-61.

IMPORT MOTORS, LTD

689-2712

3212 VICTORY DR.

SERVICE DEPARTMENT 687-6522

The Bayonet, Friday, March 22, 1974

Demo expert?

"I'm not a demolitions expert, I'm a demolitions specialist; an expert has a few of his fingers missing."

These are the words of Sp5 Tom Joffe, of the Engr. Plt. Hqs. and spt. Co., 1-29th Inf. TSB. "No one," Jones continued, "wants to be an expert with demolitions, because you can't learn too much about them. When you learn all there is to know, you begin to get careless, and that is one thing you don't want to do with demolitions."

The engineers have 25 men that are demolitions qualified and they are all specialists in their field. They support the Infantry School on all problems where explosives are required. They also provide demolitions support to the PIONEERS own Demonstration Plt. the crack group of men from Co. D of the 1-29th who teach squad tactics to the Infantry School students.

The Engr. Plt. has the responsibility of helping train other soldiers in the field of demolitions. They work with explosives such as TNT, composition C-4, detonation cord, military dynamite, and bangalore torpedos, to name only a few.

The students from the Infantry School range from officer candidates to basic non-commissioned officers and they all receive the same meticulous training. Upon completion of their preliminary block of instruction, they move out to the demolitions pit where they test their new skills.

It is here that the Engineers really have their work cut out for them. While the principal instructor has the task of going over each aspect of the problem, he can't supervise 150 men at one time.

As the students are being talked through each phase of the training, the demolitions specialists from the 1-29th are right beside them, guiding them through the movements.

Brown Demolition Range, located 10 miles from Harmony Church, home of the PIONEERS, is the scene of many of the demolition problems that the Engineers provide support for.

Safety is of utmost importance in the classes at Brown Range, and the students are instilled with a healthy respect for the explosives they are working with.

One of the first things they are taught, is that no one can afford to make any mistakes, for it is extremely difficult to un-do what has been done, on a demolition range.

One of the more basic things the students are taught, is the two types of systems for firing the explosives they are using—electric and non-electric. Both have their individual priming methods and materials, and both have advantages. In addition, the students are taught to use a galvanometer, electric blasting caps, and the effective utilization of their explosives for destruction purposes.

Upon completion of their demolition training, the students have a thorough working knowledge of the various explosive devices used by the Army, and the principles behind making them work effectively, but they are by no means experts in the field of demolitions. The classes serve a multipurpose in that in the field, and as Sp5 respect, as they serve to Jones puts it, "you can reinforce the knowledge never learn too much the Engr. Plt. already has about demolitions."

197th now has IG as part of STRAF

When the 197th Infantry Brigade reorganized last spring, to become a self-sustained Strategic Forces (STRAF) unit, among additions was an Inspector General Section.

One example of a satisfied IG customer is a private who recently went to the section with a financial problem. The individual had not received a regular pay since entering the Army and each time he had sought help for his problem he met a roadblock.

"When we checked into his story," Trotter recounted, "we discovered that not only did he have pay problems, but a serious contract violation as well."

The soldier had enlisted for the combat arms bonus, airborne training and the 82nd Div. at Ft. Bragg, N. C. Upon graduation from basic training he was sent to Fort Benning for the airborne part of his option, but a mistake in his orders occurred and the man was sent here on PCS orders rather than TDY as he should have been. So when he received a 10-day profile for a minor injury during airborne training, instead of being recycled he was permanently assigned to a non-combat unit at Ft. Benning.

"When we discovered all that was involved," Trotter added, "we explained to him that he had the option to leave the Army if he wanted to, on the grounds of contract violation. But he said that he wanted to stay in the Army and the 197th Inf. Bde. if possible."

A new contract was drawn up. The soldier received his $1,500 combat arms bonus in addition to a large amount of back pay. He completed AIT as a tank crewman with Troop A, 15th Cav. and jump school as well.

"I think it is important to point out that this man could have left the Army," Trotter said, "but he chose to stay because somebody helped him."

"Not everyone who comes here goes away happy," explained Sp5 Paul. "Recently we had a private come into the office to complain of discrimination by his 1st sergeant. The individual said he had been harassed and given extra guard duty because of the length of his hair. He also accused his 1st sergeant of making verbal threats and allowing the company clerk to have hair longer than regulation.

"But when we looked into his story," Paul added, "it didn't exactly check out."

An investigation showed the soldier had not been given extra duty. The duty rosters were all in order and the company clerk who allegedly had longer hair was to be within regulation. In addition the soldier who made the complaint was found to have hair and a mustache that were not within the regulations.

"The soldier was informed of our findings," Paul concluded. "I guess he discovered just how far we investigate problems that are brought to us."

"I believe that with the inception of this office, a very large percentage of the work load has been taken off the Ft. Benning IG, and yet because of that sections vast experience, we still periodically check with them for advice," Maj. Matt said.

"Hooray! We've had our proctos, and we're fine, thank you!"

WE'VE BEEN SERVING THE SERVICE FOR 96 YEARS.

HFC is probably one of several consumer finance companies located right outside the base. So why should you come to us?

One reason. We're the oldest, largest, most experienced company of our kind.

Another. Last year alone we solved financial problems for over 154,000 servicemen. All of them came because they needed advice. Or money—as much as $2500.

The whole point? Like the service, we've been around for a long time. So when you have a money problem, call on the expert for help. HFC. An equal opportunity lender.

Borrow Confidently.

Three Benning soldiers are Army wide champs

Three Fort Benning soldiers were among 170 people Army-wide named MOS champions for 1973. These men scored the highest in their particular MOS.

SFC Gradie E. Sanders scored 141 points as a direct fire crewman (11H40). He was in Korea as a platoon sergeant/leader for an anti-tank platoon. SFC Sanders is presently serving in the 3rd Ranger Co.

as an instructor in the fundamentals of patrolling for the IOBC and BNCOES classes. Sanders has been assigned here three times. "It's a rewarding job to think you can help me in the Infantry by stopping tanks. The mission of the platoon and weapon is to defeat tanks, so it gives you incentive when working with the MOS," he said.

MSG Noel P. Pujol also scored 141 points as an aviation operations sergeant (71P50). He is presently an air traffic control chief at Lawson Army Airfield. "I enjoyed my MOS," says MSG Pu-jol, "but there was a critical shortage in supervisory positions, so I changed to benefit the Army."

SSG Marvin D. King scored 143 points as a construction electrician (51R20) and is with the test support section of the Infantry Board. He has 15 years previous service in the Marine Corps in aircraft maintenance. "I especially enjoy the job I have here," he commented. "Every day is different."

"Tankers do it better"

by Lamar Battles

"Tankers do it better" — and members of the 197th Infantry Brigade's 2nd Battalion, 69th Armor proved it during the annual tank gunnery qualification firing at Ft. Stewart, Ga.

Company C and Troop A, 15th Cavalry, of the armor battalion, were the last units to make the trip and have recently returned after being quite successful.

"In my opinion, it's been an extremely big success," says LTC Warren J. Walton, the battalion commander. "Success can be measured by the fact that all crews successfully passed the strenuous test."

For about 90 per cent of the tankers, it was their first try at the Tank Gunnery Qualification Course (TGCQ).

"The course was a challenge," states Pvt. Michael Davis, a tank driver for Company B. "I wouldn't mind going through it again."

Consisting of eight Tables, the test required the gun crews to be proficient in the use of all tank weapons as they engaged a variety of targets.

Tables one through seven involved bore sighting and zeroing the weapons as well as firing the main gun and two machine guns.

Table eight was the "granddaddy" of the test as the crews were required to put it all together in a final test of their skill. The tanks moved down range engaging stationary and moving targets with each of their weapons systems.

The difficulty of the test was increased as the tankers progressed through the eight tables, both day and night. Search lights and mortar illumination were used during the night portion of the test.

Support for the tank companies was supplied by a major contingent of the battalion's support personnel.

"The vehicles were in fine shape both from an automotive and maintenance standpoint," states Sgt. Albert L. Steele, motor sergeant for Company A. "We had great support from the battalion level."

"This is the first year that the 69th Armor has ever ran the course," states CPT Delane F. Moeller, S-5 for the 2nd Bn., 69th Arm.our, "and we are quite proud of our 100 per cent tank crew qualified on the first run."

Rest easy.

It's quick and complete

Problems with in processing? Then come to the 197th Inf. Bde.'s in and out-processing section.

"The brigade has started something that the soldiers like, its quick, and its complete," commented Sp4 John K. Miller, who had just completed processing into the 197th Inf. Bde.

How did the brigade do it? Lt. Gary C. Carlson, of the AG office, explained, "We pick up the replacements from the 18th Rep. Det. and bus those who do not have cars to Kelley Hill. The replacements then store their gear, turn in their records at our office and they are then taken on a tour of Kelley Hill and Harmony Church.

"They are shown the facilities that are available and where the units are located. Upon returning they have lunch at the brigade dining facility and return to the in and out processing section. By this time their records have been screened, so as the processing is expedited for the individual. We usually complete processing the replacements, and have their units come to pick up within an hour from the time they return from lunch."

It was after lunch, PFC Elwood R. Prosser and PFC Thomas D. Slaughter were sitting with S P Miller waiting for their units to pick them up.

VIETNAM VETERANS DAY/March 29

"Published each Friday by the R. W. Page Corporation, Columbus, Ga., private firm in no way connected with the Department of Army. Opinions expressed by the publisher and writers herein are their own and are not to be considered an official expression by the Department of the Army. The appearance of advertisements in the publication does not constitute endorsement by the Department of the Army of the products or service advertised."

Columbus to honor Viet vets today

A tribute to Vietnam veterans will be held today, beginning at 4 p.m. at the Government Center in downtown Columbus. The 283rd Army Band will play music before the ceremony, and will close with the National Anthem. The 197th Inf. Bde. will furnish a color guard and honor guard.

Mr. Brown Nicholson, chairman of the Vietnam Veterans Committee of the Columbus-Phenix City-Fort Benning Chapter, AUSA, will be master of ceremonies for the AUSA-sponsored event.

The Rev. J. H. Flakes, pastor of the Fourth Street Baptist Church in Columbus, will deliver the invocation. Mayor Pro Tem A. J. McClung will read a proclamation issued by Mayor Bob Hydrick. President Nixon's Vietnam Veterans Day message will also be read at the ceremony.

LTC. Floyd Thompson, a former prisoner of war in North Vietnam, will be the guest speaker. LTC.

Thompson was the longest-held Army prisoner captured during the conflict.

Guest of honor at the ceremony will include MG. Thomas M. Tarpley, Ft. Benning commander; Mayor Frank Roberts of Phenix City; Mr. Joe Windsor, president of the local chapter of AUSA; and Mr. Jim Woodruff, national AUSA president.

Ft. Benning employees are encouraged to attend the ceremony as duty permits.

Air rates for military change

The half-fare military standby rate for airline tickets will disappear April 16, according to a March 14 ruling by the Civil Aeronautics Board (CAB).

Most airlines, however, have said they will wait until May 1 to implement new rates. So far, airlines have indicated they will react to the CAB ruling in one of the following ways:

Raise standby rates to three-quarters of regular fare and make them available only on Fridays and Sundays. The rest of the week military personnel will be able to fly military reserve, which will also be three-quarters of the regular fare.

According to the CAB, airlines that have indicated they will adopt this approach are United, American, TWA, Eastern, Frontier and Southern.

Eliminate the standby fare altogether, but make the three-quarters military reserve rate available every day of the week.

According to the CAB, airlines that have indicated they will adopt this approach are Delta, Braniff, Continental and Northwest.

The CAB ruling was made after United filed a proposal to raise the price of standby rates and limit their availability to Fridays and Sundays, the military rates and limit their availability to Fridays and Sundays, the military rate remaining the same.

United claimed the present discounts were uneconomical, noting that they were installed during the Vietnam war when there was a military draft and military pay rates were very low. All these conditions, United said, have changed dramatically.

The Department of Defense objected to the United proposal. The Army also filed its own objections, arguing that the current discounts were important to the morale and welfare of soldiers and were helpful in attracting and maintaining a volunteer force.

The CAB ruled in favor of United. However, it did decide the old standby/reserve rates could not be suspended until April 16 to give military personnel a chance to fly under them during the Easter holiday. United had wanted to suspend the old rates on April 1. United and other airlines then decided to postpone implementing new rates until May 1.

The CAB stressed that since airlines are very competitive, further modifications may occur and military personnel should check in advance with individual airlines to learn what their options are.

AER fund drive asking donations

The Army Emergency Relief is conducting a fund drive at Ft. Benning through the end of April. AER is always ready to extend a helping hand to Army personnel in need of assistance.

AER is supported largely through donations from service members. All Ft. Benning personnel are encouraged to contribute through their unit project officers.

The AER is set up to provide grants or loans to military personnel, both active and retired, and their dependents who are in need of financial assistance.

This relief fund was organized and incorporated in 1942 to help Army personnel and their families out when they face financial situations which they cannot handle themselves.

Army Emergency Relief and the Army Relief Society cannot exist without help from individual soldiers. Please contribute — you may be helping a fellow soldier someday.

TSB recruiter proves a real salesman

SSG Stan Turner is a salesman. He's selling a product to interested listeners throughout Georgia.

So far, hundreds have responded, opening up a whole new life and career for themselves. SSG Turner is NCOIC of the Ft. Benning Station of Choice Recruiting Program, under the control of TSB.

SSG Turner stays on the move, traveling all over Georgia and Alabama promoting Ft. Benning to potential enlistees. In recent weeks he's been to the Atlanta Recruiting Main Station, Atlanta AFEES, Dublin, Macon, and Rome, Georgia, talking to people about the Station of Choice, Unit of Choice enlistment program, and checking with his canvassers in their respective towns.

A canvasser is a soldier chosen to go to an area of the state, possibly his or her hometown, to act as recruiters' assistants and take an active part in the recruiting of volunteers for the Army.

"Right now we have eight canvassers, all in different cities of Georgia," said SSG Turner. The most productive canvasser at present is William Whitfield of Co. A, 1-29th Inf., TSB, according to SSG Turner. "He's an outstanding young soldier who produces large numbers of enlistment and the people he enlists are quality people."

Canvassers are chosen by the OIC of the SOC program, Cpt. Richard Nelson, and SSG Turner, and the recommendation of the Unit Commander.

"There's nothing easy about being a canvasser. The hours are long, and there is a tremendous amount of work to do. They must be able to communicate what they have experienced in the military to people who have no military experience."

The big drawing card for the program is the SOC van, a vehicle easily recognizable on sight. Painted red, white, and blue, with slogans and symbols on both sides, it brings in crowds at shopping centers, fairs, parades, and other special events where it is asked to appear. Inside, the van is laid out with photos, displays and a slide show on Ft. Benning. A statement painted on the side of the van reflects a key ingredient to any successful attempt to induce others to enlist for Ft. Benning. It says simply, "Proud soldiers on a proud post."

Expectant parent classes begin this Tuesday

The Expectant Parents Class is a four week course, designed to help expectant parents gain security in a new experience, by overcoming some of the anxieties related to the unknown about pregnancy, childbirth and infant care. The course will give some factual information that may not already be known.

The Army Health Nursing Service, in conjunction with the Obstetrics Department, Martin Army Hospital, is beginning another series of Expectant Parents Classes on April 2, 1974. The series consists of four classes, each two hours long, on four Tuesday nights of each month. Classes are held in the Conference Room, second floor of Martin Army Hospital, Bldg 9200. Because of limited space, you are asked to pre-register for the classes by calling the Army Health Nursing Service, 545-5431, Monday through Friday, 8 a.m. - 4:30 p.m.

Read and heed traffic regs.

USAIC Reg 190-5, March 1974, Vehicle Traffic Regulations. Read it carefully and note several important changes or clarifications.

For example, registration decals are displayed on the left front fork of two wheeled vehicles and the left side of the front bumpers of automobiles.

Driving privileges on the Ft. Benning reservation implies consent to a test to determine the alcoholic content of your blood should you be apprehended, cited or stopped for any offense arising while operating your motor vehicle.

The speed limit on all streets and roads is 30 miles per hour unless otherwise posted.

Drivers and passengers of government vehicles will wear seat belts, when the vehicle is so equipped.

Headlights on all vehicles will be on during hours of darkness and whenever it is raining or foggy and at any other time when there is not sufficient visibility.

The suspension system of POV's operated on post will be within two inches above or below the manufacturer's specifications.

Drivers will not wear earphones listening to music while the car is in motion.

The traffic point system has been clarified and strengthened. There will be more suspensions and the assessment of points for violations has been raised. Accumulated points will go with you on PCS moves.

Commanders and supervisors should insure that these changes and others are explained to all personnel.

BAYONET OPINION PAGE

Do you think the army's Enlisted Evaluation System for Determining promotion qualification is fair? Why?

PVT CHARLES J. FEAGINS, 298th SIG. PLT.

Yes, I think it's fair because the soldier in the army can be promoted to E3 in three months. It shows what a man can do. The better I work, the better the system will work for me.

SP4 JAMES LEWIS, 18th REP. DET. 36th ENG. GRP.

Yes, overall it is fair, but some people abuse it. People have a tendency to let personal prejudice interfere with fair judgment. I feel a man should be qualified in his MOS and the evaluation system is a good way of determining this.

SFC JAMES WESTBROOK, TSB

It's tough to say, but I'd say no. You must have 110 to be promoted and if you're low in a couple of areas, it can knock you down. You really have to be high. I think the EER is inflated too high and this hurts the individual for promotion. I don't like the EER system.

SP6 JOSEPH C. CORMIER, 34th MED. BN

Very fair. If a man is not qualified he should not be considered for promotion. I feel it is a very good system. I feel it is one way for a man to determine his own qualifications. My personal opinion is that the EER benefits the average soldier as far as pro pay and promotion goes.

SFC EDWARD OZENGHAR, 67th MAINT. BN., 36th ENGR. GRP.

Absolutely unfair, it's based upon a man's formal education instead of job performance. I feel it is related to a man's academic skills and not job skills. Two men with the same rank are being judged on their ability to read and write. An EER is a personal thing and that's not right. They are overinflated.

Letter to the editor

I believe that anyone who pays the newly established fees to hunt and fish on the Fort Benning reservation will get his money's worth. The benefits would be a bargain at twice or even three times the maximum fee.

But there are several aspects of this new regulation that bother me.

The idea of charging different categories of people different fees for hunting appears to be discriminatory. Then, too, the logic used in arriving at these fees escaped me. I've tried to figure some logic, but it just boggled my mind.

A lieutenant colonel pays $6 and a private pays $3. Is this because the colonel enjoys hunting twice as much as the private, or is it because the colonel draws more pay than the private?

Taking a second look at the schedule, I see I can't follow the pay line idea because all civilians must pay $6. Apparently the GS-15 doesn't enjoy hunting twice as much as the GS-1, or maybe all civilians enjoy hunting more than any military persons below the grade of lieutenant colonel.

When I look at the cost for retired people, I get even more confused. They all pay the same amount as their active duty counterparts. Now certainly this shoots the pay according to earnings idea right out the window. Some sergeants who retired a few years ago draw less retirement pay than an active duty private.

A final look at the schedule and I see that all dependents will pay the same amount as the sponsor. Is this because a lieutenant colonel's son enjoys hunting twice as much as the son of . . .

Charging some user type fees for recreation and not charging others also seems discriminatory.

Golfers using the Recreational Services Golf Course pay a fee to play. Those using the bowling alleys also pay to bowl. I understand that because of these fees, these activities are more or less self-supporting.

More people participate voluntarily in hunting, fishing, bowling and golf than in all the other sports played or watched on the reservation. It appears that the majority of personnel using recreational facilities are paying so that funds can be available to support the recreation of a comparatively few tennis players, users of the crafts shops, gymnasiums and the recreational center, and the elaborate Uchee Creek Marina used by the few boat and campers owners on post.

And it could be that a closer look at the participation in some of these activities would show that they cost more to operate than the post can afford to pay.

197th soldiers receive EIB awards

Three soldiers of the 197th Inf. Bde. have received the Expert Infantryman's Badge (EIB), one of the most coveted and hard earned infantry awards.

The awards were presented by Colonel William B. Steele on the Rozelle Show, "Speak Up For Young Americans", on WRBL-TV, Channel 3, on Monday, March 18.

SSG. Dexter Mohr, Cbt. Spt. Co., 1st Bn. (Mech), 58th Inf. (Patriots); Sp5 Bobby Eaddy, Cbt. Spt. Co., 3rd Bn., 7th Inf. (Cottonbalers) and Sp4 Michael Higgins, Co. A, 1st Bn. (Mech), 58th Inf. (Patriots) are the three soldiers who earned the award out of a group of 28 men who began the test.

The EIB testing, which was conducted by the brigade's Central Training Command (CTC), was actually a test itself, and was designed to perfect the testing methods.

"We started with the cream of the crop," stated Cpt. Roy L. Hollins, commandant of CTC. "The original 28 men were all selected by their units as the best capable men of passing the EIB test. We wanted it that way because they actually tested the test."

"The roughest part of the test for me was the 12-mile road march," stated Eaddy. "You really had to be in the right state of mind to make it in the allotted time." Mohr did not agree. "All of the physical parts of the test, the road march, the physical readiness test and the land navigation test, were things you just had to be ready for," explained Mohr. "My unit does quite a bit of running and so I didn't have much trouble at all."

"The land navigation and mine tests were the hardest mental parts of the EIB," commented Higgins. "I think this is where the most people had trouble. Especially the night land navigation."

The soldiers were tested on literally every subject pertaining to their job as infantryman.

Pioneers lead the way

Story and Photos
By Rick Wasser

Though the Infantry School is celebrating its birthday this week, they received the best present they could hope for six months early, when on October 1, 1973, the 1st Bn., 29th Inf., (PIONEERS), TSB, became the sole support unit for the School. The PIONEERS have already gained post-wide recognition for their support duties for their unflinching devotion to duty and desire to get the job done. With an average of 90 commitments per week, and a total of more than 400 men supporting the Infantry School on a daily basis, the PIONEERS have proved over and over again that "WE LEAD THE WAY."

One of the more recent commitments of the PIONEERS has been that of providing the base element for the possible revision of the Requirements for the Expert Infantryman's Badge. (EIB).

Approximately 34 soldiers from TSB — most of them from the 1/29th Inf. — began the initial testing for the EIB last week.

This EIB test is unique from tests in the past, in that the requirements have been revised, making it a much more challenging test than the one in the past.

According to Maj. Geoffrey Ellerson, committee chairman for the EIB, "This test is an experimental revision of the old EIB exam, but the men that pass it will be awarded the badge because it is a little more difficult than the one currently in effect."

The men participating in the EIB exam, 28 of them PIONEERS, are in effect, LEADING THE WAY, for a new EIB, as the success of the revised requirements depends largely upon how well the men adapt to them.

"That was good, but let me show you an easier way," said Vincent Hernandez (R), an instructor from the Infantry School, to William Houck of Co. D, 1st Bn., 29th Inf. (PIONEERS). After Houck passed the M-203 Grenade Launcher portion of his EIB exam, SFC Hernandez showed him a better way. (Photo by Rick Wasser)

"To give you an idea of how difficult the revised EIB test is," said Maj. Ellerson, "of the 34 soldiers who began the testing, only 22 remained in the competition after just one part of the test — land navigation."

The rigorous Expert Infantryman's Badge exam consists of all phases of an Infantryman's training, and all who apply for the EIB must be volunteers. The only prerequisites required are that the soldier be an Infantryman, and that he be qualified as an expert with the M-16 rifle.

Prior to being given the actual test on a particular phase of the EIB, the soldiers were given a preparatory class on the subject by qualified instructors from the Infantry School. Long acknowledged as some of the world's finest teachers, the USAIS instructors are as strict in grading the EIB potentials, as they are effective in presenting their material. Those who want the coveted EIB must earn it!

The first phase of the EIB exam consisted of land navigation techniques, including map reading and day and night compass courses. Cpt. Timothy Gregory of the Land Navigation Committee of the Leadership Department expressed his confidence in the men from the 1st Bn., 29th Inf.: "From what I've seen thus far," he said, "the PIONEERS seem to have highly qualified soldiers for the EIB. Of course, there is still a lot more testing to go," he added.

Sp4 Frank Rutherford of Co. D, 1st Bn., 29th Inf. (PIONEERS), TSB, plots a coordinate on a map during the land navigation exercise of his Expert Infantryman's Badge exam. (Photo by Rick Wasser)

The second major portion of the Expert Infantryman's Badge exam was the Advanced Physical Fitness Test, which differs from the regular PT test in that examinees must score over 400 points, as opposed to a passing score of 300 on the regular test.

The next phase of the EIB test consisted of weapons proficiency with the M-16 rifle, the M-60 machine-gun, the M-203 grenade launcher, and the Light Anti-Tank Weapon (LAW). Additionally, the men were tested for their proficiency with the starlight scope and demolitions and mines.

As the remaining soldiers in the EIB exam continued to strain both their mental and physical abilities, their next test was certainly one of the most demanding — a 12 mile forced march. Included along the way of the march, were exams on cover and camouflage.

The final portion of the EIB exam tested the men on a myriad of subjects to include first aid, field sanitation, military intelligence, CBR, combat techniques exam, and communications.

As the EIB exam came to a close on the final day, one of the USAIS instructors best summed up what the two weeks of EIB testing was all about when he said, "These men from the 29th Infantry were just bubbling with enthusiasm at every station. What little they lacked in subject knowledge, they made up for with sheer determination. It certainly says a lot for the pride these men have in their unit, and the United States Army."

PFC Phillip L. Ford, HHC, 36th Engineer Group (CBT), recently started on his "GARDEN PLOT." While deciding what and when to plant he is digging rows on which his plants will grow.

Engineers begin their spring planting

Spring planting will soon begin in the 36th Engineer Group (CBT). In the Sand Hill region of Ft. Benning a land area has been provided for any soldier in the 36th Engineers to be used as a "Garden Plot"; for growing fresh vegetables.

The project was originally initiated by Col. Ames S. Albro, Jr., 36th Engr. Gp. commander.

"The group commander decided the soldiers in the 36th Engineers deserved and should have a section of land set aside especially for growing vegetables, if they so desire." Remark-ed CW3 K. J. Pilcher, S-4, 36th Engr. Gp.

Mr. Pilcher was chosen as Project and Guidance

Officer for the "Garden Plot" project, by Col. Albro.

The "Garden Plots" are available on a first come first serve basis.

Each plot measures an area of 21 feet by 46 feet and has been plowed, tilled and disk.

Any military personnel in the Group wishing to obtain a garden plot will need to provide 9 pounds of fertilizer and 13 pounds of lime for conditioning the soil.

about the garden plots, I decided that it was an excellent way to reduce my food expenses." Stated PFC Phillip L. Ford, HHC.

"Food prices are so high today, a man needs all the help he can get to make his money last longer and go farther. It may mean a little hard work and some spare time, but it's worth it."

Several garden plots have been taken, but there are between 20-25 plots left.

For more information concerning the "GARDEN PLOTS," contact CW3 K. J. Pilcher, S-4, 36th Engineer Group (CBT), phone 544-4232.

The Home Decorating Brunch, the March Officers Wives Club function, was held March 13 in the Main Officers Club. The following local merchants had beautiful displays in the main ballroom: W. C. Bradley Building Material & Electrical Supply Division and W. C. Bradley Country Store, (The Hearth Shop), Carriage House of Columbus, Inc., Fieldcrest Store Hancock Fabrics, The Homestead, Kemper's, The Sample Shop, C. Schomberg & Son Jewelers, Valley Paint & Wallcovering Co., and The Williamsburg Shoppe.

The Williamsburg Shoppe provided all the table decorations in the Supper Club. The Carriage House decorated the stage of the Supper Club. The highlight of the brunch was the two speeches presented by Mrs. Joseph R. Walters, Jr. of the Carriage House and Mr. John Woolbright and Mrs. Evelyn Matthews of the Williamsburg Shoppe who shared their ideas for home decorating.

The climax of the brunch was the awarding of door prizes presented by the merchants who had displays in the main ballroom, plus Whites Book Store and The Slitchin' Post.

The hostesses for the brunch were the ladies of the CMC Dept. Mrs. Dick T. LeClere, coordinator for the brunch was assisted by Mrs. Michael Lanning, both of USAIB.

COMPANY OPERATIONS

The ladies of Co. Ops. enjoyed a garden luncheon at the home of Mrs. John Hemphill on March 19. Guests attending the occasion were Mrs. Thomas Tarpley, Mrs. William Richardson, Mrs. Robert Rollier, and Mrs. Phillip Lee.

Since the group was designated sponsor of Army Community Services for the month of March, each lady arrived bearing much needed household items to replenish the lending closet of this worthwhile organization. Food items were collected earlier in the month at the various committee coffees.

HQs 36th ENGR. GP.

The monthly coffee for the officers wives of Hqs 36th Engr. Gp. was held the second week in March at the home of Col. and Mrs. Ames S. Albro on Wickersham Dr., Ft. Benning.

The assembled group of ladies totaled about thirty-five, due to a recent revision of the guest list to include the wives from the aviation company attached to headquarters, the A G wives under the 18th Repl. Det., 139th and 988th M P Co. wives.

After meeting everyone, the ladies were invited into the dining room by Mrs. Albro to make their own sundae or banana split. The atmosphere was reminiscent of the "good ole days" with patchwork table cloths, geraniums and candlelight. All the fixins to make a super sundae were contained in antique canning jars to tempt the sweet tooth of even the most diet conscious lady. Along with these cool treats were served dainty pastry and a delightful fruit punch. All the ladies agreed that co-hostesses Mrs. Albro and Mrs. Herman Bethe had chosen the correct topping for a warm spring day.

There will be a coffee to welcome newcomers to Fort Benning on April 3 at 10 a.m. in the OWC Lounge (Thrift Shop Complex). All new comers interested in OWC activities and classes are invited to attend. This is a wonderful opportunity to learn about your post and the OWC, and to make new friends.

For further information about this FREE coffee call Mrs. Philip Dearn, 689-3443.

OWC CLASSES

BABY SITTING: The OWC is sponsoring a series of classes to train teens in child care. Upon completion of the four week course, a list of those completing the class will be compiled and made available. The class is open to all military dependents 12 and older. It will be held on Tues. evenings, from 7-8 p.m. at the OWC Activities Building at a cost of $5. Call 687-5531 before April 2 to enroll.

TOUR OF HOMES

The Officers' Wives' Club of Fort Benning has announced plans for its annual Tour of Homes to be held April 10. Reservations for the tour must be made by April 5 by calling 689-6851, 687-8844 or unit reservation chairman.

Coffee will be served at 9 a.m. in the main ballroom of the Officers' Club. After a welcome by Mrs. Arthur Richards, OWC president, new OWC officers will be elected for the 1974-75 term.

At 9:30 guests will board buses to tour nine Fort Benning residences, including Riverside, home of Major General and Mrs. Thomas M. Tarpley. Other homes scheduled to be visited are MAJ and Ms. Kenneth Johnston, 119 Baltzell Ave.; MAJ and Mrs. Michael Downs, 310 Austin Loop; CPT and Mrs. Art Parker, 120-B Zuckerman; CPT and Mrs. Wilber Spear, 100-D Running Ave.; LT and Mrs. Penn Patini, 1-C Durham Ct.; MAJ and Mrs. Jim Madden, 107 Dial St.; LTC and Mrs. Charles Morton, 507 Wickersham; and CPT and Mrs. Richard Aschures, 716 Squires Lane.

The way prices are going right now—you may need more money than you thought you'd need. GAC wants to lend you all the money you'll need to help beat prices and to buy the bargains you want before they're gone.

You don't have to make a lot to borrow a lot at GAC. The size of your loan depends on many things: the bills you have or have had. What you own or want to buy. The kind of work you do. And, because you wear a uniform, the kind of work you do rates very high with GAC. A steady income makes it easier for you to get a loan. But, more important, GAC wants to serve you because you serve your country.

Whatever your needs, whatever the reason, let GAC put a jingle in your dufflebag.

WE'VE COME A LONG WAY!

USAIS

It has come a long way from Camp Benning

By SUSANNE BOSTICK

The U.S. Army Infantry School has come a long way since its early days at Camp Benning in 1918. Founded just after World War I in Columbus, the Infantry School has grown to include Infantry Hall, a huge, modern combination classroom-and-office building, opened in 1964.

The Infantry School was not always located here; it had its beginnings in 1907 as the School of Musketry at the Presidio of Monterey, California. The school was moved in 1913 to Ft. Sill, Oklahoma, and in 1918 the name was changed to the Infantry School of Arms.

After the first World War, the Infantry School of Arms was combined with the machine gun school, and both were moved to Camp Benning, Columbus, Ga. in 1918. April 1 is the official birthday of the U.S. Army Infantry School.

Infantry School training in its earlier days.

PVTs Joyce Kutsch and Rita Johnson set another milestone for women in the Army. After three weeks of training beginning in December, they became the first members of their sex to earn Airborne wings.

1LT Nancy Zizunas became the first female instructor ever assigned to the Infantry School in January 1973. She is a graduate of the Defense Race Relations Institute, and teaches race relations in the contemporary subjects committee of the Leadership Department.

The Infantry Officers Advanced Course also enrolled a number of students who were former prisoners of war in North Vietnam. Among these was LTC Floyd Thompson, the longest-held Army prisoner captured during the Vietnam conflict.

2LT Thomas L. Ferguson, a former Marine and three-time Vietnam veteran, received the annual Robert P. Patterson Memorial Award as the outstanding OCS graduate for 1972. The award was presented by Mrs. Patterson, widow of the late Secretary of War, at ceremonies held in Infantry Hall in February 1973.

Most recent figures show the Infantry School with an average daily enrollment of 3,157 students. This does not include the Allied students who come from other countries to attend the world-famous courses of instruction held here. The Infantry School is known as the "showplace of the Army," and is internationally renowned for its advanced instructional methods and techniques.

One of the most unique features of the Infantry School is the Individual Learning Center. Part of the Directorate of Educational Technology, the ILC moved to a much-expanded facility on the second floor of Infantry Hall in January 1973. The ILC offers self-paced instruction on a variety of subjects, including MOS tests and such courses as speed reading, golf, and many others.

Another "first" for Ft. Benning, the Individual Assessment Center, opened in 1973 as part of a two-year pilot project. COL Wallace Veaudry is the center's director. Tests, in the form of written and practical exercises, are used to measure an individual's leadership ability. The Army will eventually make a follow-up study on the results of these tests, and will determine how useful the new program is in measuring leadership potential.

The Non-Commissioned Officers Educational System (NCOES) set up in 1971, was expanded in 1973, with two types of courses, basic, for junior NCO's, and advanced, for higher-grade NCO's. The program is aimed at training junior NCO's as squad leaders and senior NCO's as first sergeants and intelligence and operations sergeants. It includes classroom and field instruction.

In February 1973, the Infantry School received a new commandant: Major General Thomas M. Tarpley arrived at Ft. Benning to assume his dual role as USAIS Commandant and Commander of The Infantry Center. He succeeded Major General Orwin C. Talbot, who moved up as Deputy Commander, Training and Doctrine Command, at Fort Monroe, Virginia.

The Infantry School Library was housed here before it moved to permanent quarters in the old Infantry School building (now Building 35). (U. S. Army Photo)

TSB also saw major changes during 1973. In March, COL Allen B. Goodson replaced COL Aubrey G. Norris as Commander, TSB. In October, the 1st Bn 29th Inf (Pioneers) became part of TSB, and is now the official support battalion for TSB and the Infantry School. The 1/29th provides men and materiel support for all types of field instruction conducted by USAIS.

Obstacle courses have always been part of the training at Ft. Benning's Infantry School, from the early days until now. (U. S. Army Photo)

The first class graduated at Camp Benning on February 22, 1918. Since that time, the Infantry School has awarded over 15,000 Ranger tabs; over 500,000 parachute badges; and more than 108,000 men have been commissioned second lieutenants after graduation from Officer Candidate School.

The first airborne test platoon underwent airborne training here in 1940. One of its more illustrious members was Gen. Melvin Zais, who is presently commander of the NATO Land Forces Southeast in Izmir, Turkey. Airborne training became a part of the school's regular course of instruction with the establishment of the Parachute School in 1942.

1973 was a landmark year for the Infantry School in more ways than one. For the first time, women in the Army graduated from the Infantry Officers Advanced Course. CPT Patricia Hickerson was one; the other, CPT Theresa Netherton, went through the course, and graduated with her husband David, also a captain.

TSB: backbone of USAIS

By George Korda

The School Brigade was born nearly 32 years ago in June 1942, when it was first formed as the Infantry School Service Command. Originally there were three student training battalions, each with approximately 800 men. Today, The School Brigade is the backbone of the US Army Infantry School. It has command and control of some of the Army's most famous soldiers, Airborne, (Paratrooper), and Ranger. The School Brigade also has the only Officer Candidate School existing in the Army today.

During WWII what is now TSB was actually comprised of 4 training regiments, two officer candidate regiments, a specialized training Regiment, and the first parachute training regiment in the United States Army. The name, "The School Brigade", was not actually bestowed on the unit until Sept. 1, 1947.

It bore that name until October 1959, when it became The Student Brigade. In October 1968 the OC and NCOF battalions were separated from TSB to form The Candidate Brigade. At this time the 1st Stu Bn (Ranger) was deactivated leaving the Ranger companies as separate units within TSB.

In November 1969, The Student Brigade again became The School Brigade. In Oct. 1970, The Candidate Brigade was deactivated and was merged back into The School Brigade. Today, The School has four training battalions, five separate companies, and the Allied Student Training Division.

The 1st Stu. Bn provides administrative support and housing for the faculty and staff of the Infantry School. It also administers students in the Infantry Officer Advanced Course. The 2nd Stu Bn performs the command and control of Officers attending the Infantry Officer Basic Course. The 4th Stu Bn continues to administer the historic training program that was founded at Ft. Benning for the US Army, Airborne training.

Since the deactivation of The Candidate Brigade the 5th Stu Bn has had charge of the Officer Candidate School and the Noncommissioned Officer Educational System course.

Ranger training is still an integral part of The School Brigade. It stretches from Ft. Benning where at the 3rd Ranger Co. physical conditioning and basic tactics are taught to the mountains of North Georgia where the 2nd Ranger Co. is placed, to North Florida, where students learn how to live in jungle terrain at the 1st Ranger Co.

In Oct of 1973 the 1/29th Inf Bn. became part of The School Brigade as supporting unit for the Infantry School. The 1,200 man force takes part in a variety of commitments designed to increase the realism and effectiveness of instruction at the Infantry School.

Allied Student Training Division houses and administers foreign officers for training at the US Army Infantry School.

Add to these units a Headquarters and Headquarters Company, and a casual company, and you have The School Brigade, whose motto "To Soldier Better" has bolstered and supported the Infantry School since its creation almost thirty-two years ago.

Wigle Hall tells the story of OCS

Since 1941 OCS at Ft. Benning has been one of the Army's best-known training programs. Its birth came just prior to the onslaught of World War II. BG Omar Bradley was Commandant of the Infantry School at the inception of OCS, and was one of its chief architects.

OCS grew and developed during WW II, the Korean conflict and the Vietnam conflict. To date, OCS at Ft. Benning has turned over 108,000 officer candidates into the second lieutenants for the US Army.

In order to recognize the achievements of those who have graduated from OCS, the OCS Hall of Fame was built in 1958. Out of all the graduates of OCS, only 668 have thus far been inducted into the Hall of Fame.

The building is near the 5th Bn., TSB, which is in charge of the program.

The hall of fame is named Wigle Hall, after 2LT Thomas Wigle, the first OCS graduate to be awarded the Medal of Honor. He received it posthumously for heroic action in the battle of Monte Frassinio Italy in World War II.

Inside, the history of OCS becomes alive. On the walls are photos of those graduates who have excelled in their chosen careers, military and civilian. Photos of those who have reached distinguished government positions such as Senator Frank Church of Idaho, Robert Froelke, former Secretary of the Army, the late Governor Winthrop Rockefeller of Arkansas, and Congressman John R.

Murphy of New York. Through a set of double doors is the main room where the majority of the Hall's members are honored. On the walls are photos of former OCS graduates who have reached Colonel.

A separate wing of the Hall is dedicated to the late Federal Judge Robert

P. Patterson. The Hall, in a sense, tells the story of OCS, from the bookcase holding the cycle books of each graduating class from the beginning, to the last picture of the latest Hall of Fame inductee. The OCS Hall of Fame recognizes those who have served their country and served it well.

OFF DUTY ELEMENTARY TYPEWRITING

The Army Education Center will offer a course in Elementary Typing beginning April 10. Classes will be held on Monday and Wednesday nights from 6:45-9:15 p.m., Bldg. 2824, located on Sightseeing Road. The course is designed to help the student develop the ability to do typing for vocational and personal use. Adult dependents may enroll in this course if sponsor is enrolled. There is no charge for the course and text books will be furnished on a loan basis. Enrollments will be accepted at Bldg. 2824, at 6:45 p.m. on Apr. 10. For more information call 545-7642.

U-S-O TICKETS FROM ATLANTA

The USO in Atlanta has incorporated a new system in handling tickets to the various events taking place in Atlanta. You may, at any time, call the USO in Atlanta and make reservation for any event that you know of in the city of Atlanta. If the USO can get the tickets, they will hold them for you until 30 minutes prior to the event. If you do not pick up the tickets by then, they will put them up for general sale. Under this new system, the USO will be able to get tickets to almost any event that you wish to attend. You can also save money by reserving your tickets. The USO hopes that in the next few weeks to be able to give you a calendar showing all coming events in the city of Atlanta. If you wish to reserve tickets after duty hours you may do so by calling 525-4976 in Atlanta.

FIREARMS REGISTRATOR

All privately owned firearms brought on the Fort Benning Reservation must be registered with the Registration Section of the Provost Marshal's Office. The Registration Section is located on the second floor of Bldg. 83. The hunter must have the firearm registration card in his possession at all times while hunting on the reservation. The Registration Section is open Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. until 4:30 p.m., except holidays. For more information call 545-4590.

PILFERAGE IN SHIPMENTS OF HOUSEHOLD GOODS

Increased pilferage of household goods and unaccompanied baggage continues to be a problem. Members shipping household goods and personal property should insure that manufacturer and personal markings which specifically identify high value items are removed from the outside of the container. Identification markings on such items as tape recorders, camera equipment and radios, on the outside of the container permits the potential thief to be selective.

RAKING LEAVES

Occupants of family quarters and commanders of military units on Fort Benning are cautioned not to rake leaves into the streets. Large amounts of leaves in the street gutters cause serious stoppage of storm drain systems. The end result is flooded streets and buildings.

GENERAL REVIEW ENGLISH

The Education Center will conduct off duty General English classes at the Harmony Church Education Center, located in Bldg. 5153.

Dog detachment delights children

RICK WASSER

The Military Dog Detachment (MDD) of Hqs. and Spt. Co., 1st Bn., 29th Inf. (PIONEERS) TSB, gave a splendid performance of canine activities to a crowd of more than 300 persons recently, at Lakebottom in Columbus.

The audience consisted mostly of children, from special education classes in the Muscogee County School District who were having their day with special Childrens Olympics. The Olympics, sponsored by the Columbus Jaycees, treated about 300 children to a day of fun and athletic competition with their peers.

In addition to the activities of the Military Dog Detachment, the U.S. Army Marching Band provided musical entertainment for the Lakebottom crowd, while members of the Ft. Benning Judo Club provided a jujitsu demonstration for the audience.

Following the demonstration by LTC Tom Keaton and his clan of talented judo-ites, the Military Dog Detachment began their portion of the days activities with an attack-dog demonstration.

Charles Carrier of the MDD was "attacked" by Jesse Hicks and his attack-dog, Andy. Carrier wore a protective suit, and allowed Andy to attack only his padded arm, but the audience was nevertheless quite impressed at the discipline of Andy, and the great control that Sgt. Hicks displayed over him.

Next, the men of the MDD and their dogs were introduced to the special audience by narrator and section leader, 2Lt Larry Wortzel. Wortzel catered to his audience, and further stimulated the youngsters interest by giving them an explanation about Heidi, the only female dog on the field that day.

"Heidi," said Wortzel, "is getting a little fat as you can see. So what I'd like you to do, is every time you think she is going too slow through the obstacle course, clap real loud and maybe we can get her to hurry up."

The next phase of the MDD demonstration, was, of course, the obstacle course. Heidi was pitted against one of the other dogs in the detachment, to race around the course. When at the half-way mark, Heidi was losing by a substantial margin, all of a sudden the entire crowd of special education children broke out in a thunderous applause, trying to prod Heidi into moving a little faster. Heidi continued to move at her monotonous pace, but Larry Wortzel knew he had his crowd primed for the finale.

"For the final phase of our program today," boomed Wortzel over the microphone, "We have a very special demonstration for you. Everyone knows that animals are afraid of fire. Well, we are about to attempt to get two of our military dogs to jump three flaming obstacles, and then through a circle of fire."

The flaming obstacles were fired up, and the dogs were readied at the starting line. A hush of silence swept the crowd, as the children moved closer to the edge of their seats. The two dogs ran swift, maneuvered the flaming course perfectly, and ended the fiery run with a bow, much to the delight of the Special Olympics audience.

"We'd like to thank all of you for inviting us today," summarized Wortzel to his audience, "we hope you enjoyed the show, and best of luck to you all in your athletic competition."

The men and dogs of the PIONEER battalion moved off the field to a nice round of applause, and prepared to head back to Ft. Benning.

As they were about to leave, a member of the city parks and recreation department approached Larry Wortzel and the members of the MDD, and queried them.

"You fellas sure did a great job today," said the stranger, "but I'd like to ask you a personal question, if I may." "I know you folks are military and all, but do you not mind working on the weekend like this? I mean, do you get no special compensation or extra pay or anything?"

Lt. Larry Wortzel, spokesman for the Military Dog Detachment, paused momentarily and then replied, "You did say you saw the demonstration didn't you? Then I guess you saw the expressions of delight on the faces of those kids. Now I ask you sir, who could ask for any more compensation than that?"

"He's happy and I know he's happy."

Pat Fundum's husband, Gene, works as a Personnel Specialist. He's just reenlisted, but that was no surprise to her.

"Actually, it wasn't something we had to discuss. He knows how I feel about the Army.

"I like it here. The shopping. The activities. The services. And the people we've met.

"But what's more important, I know he likes his job.

He's proud of the way he's advanced. And he's always saying there's no way he could have moved up as fast as a civilian.

"Neither of us would say that the Army's right for everyone. But it's right for us."

Why are you staying in?

The Rod and Gun Club will provide the attraction in the display room of Infantry Hall from April 1 through April 5.

The display will feature outdoor life and fish and wildlife. Birds, animals and reptiles found in this area will be featured. The Fish and Wildlife Division, the Provost Marshal Office and the Safety Section are also expected to provide material for the exhibit.

A representative of the club will be on hand to issue club memberships, state hunting or fishing licenses and post hunting and fishing permits. These licenses and permits will also be sold at the club during this period. The club membership cards and state licenses are available now. There is a possibility that the post permits will not be received from the printer before April 1. In this event the 1973-74 permits will be valid until the 1974-75 permits become available. With this possible exception all 1973-74 licenses and permits will expire March 31.

The Rod and Gun memberships are $5 for a regular membership, $1 for dependents and $8 for a limited membership. The Georgia state fishing license will cost $3.25, the hunting license is $4.25 or you can buy a combination hunting-fishing license for $7.25.

Field Trails

The Rod and Gun Club Field trials start this morning on the Alabama side of the reservation. Today top dogs and handlers from all over the southeast will be performing.

Tomorrow and Sunday will be for amateur competition. There will be an amateur derby, shooting dog and puppy competition tomorrow. On Sunday the walking bird hunter and mounted bird hunter events will be held.

Bird dog owners will be particularly interested in seeing the professionals operate on Friday. It's a great chance to see just how it should be done. Of course some of the amateurs may attain professional stature some day too.

Even if you aren't a bird dog enthusiast you'll enjoy the colorful events each day. Judges and quite a few spectators are mounted on horseback. It's just something you don't see everyday.

Music Nights

The schedule for music at Victory Lodge will change this weekend. Most members have indicated they would prefer music on Friday and Saturday nights. So beginning this weekend that's the way it's going to be.

The Kountry Hi-lites have been booked again. They will play tonight from 8 p.m. until 1 a.m. Saturday morning and from 8 p.m. until 1 a.m. Sunday morning.

The club welcomes young people at most club events but only adults can attend these dances. Minors will not be admitted.

Mrs. Holloway could use some free help at these affairs. If you are interested call her at 687-0555.

Club will close Mondays

After much deliberation, the board of governors decided that the club will have to close on Mondays. The hours established were just too much for two full time employees so beginning April 1 all facilities of the club will close on Monday.

The club was reluctant to make this decision but more of the same type may be in the offing unless some of the membership is willing to get involved in club activities.

Lopsided scores are rule in TSB volleyball

Lopsided scores were the rule and not the exception as the powers of TSB volleyball teams began flexing their muscles in the second week of the season.

OOAC-4 has three teams entered in league play. On Monday March 18, IOAC-4 Team III dismantled IOAC-4 Team I by the score of 15-2 in their first game. IOAC-4 (III) slacked off a bit in the second game, but still defeated team I by a commanding 15-5 margin.

2d Bn. Hqs. met 1st Bn. Hqs. for the first time this season, and 2d Bn. bombarded 1st Bn. 15-3 in the first game of their match. 1st Bn. made a little better fight of it in the second game but was still outclassed by 2d Bn. 15-5.

The third IOAC team, IOAC-4, Team II, met 4th Bn. Headquarters. 4th Bn. squeaked by in the first match with a 16-14 victory. IOAC (II) fell asleep in the starting gate in the second contest and got clobbered 15-2.

It took a long three-game set, but in the end it was the US Marine Corps team taking the series two games to one over the 3d Rgr. Co. The Rangers managed a two-point win in the initial conflict 15-13. Angered, the Marines stormed back to trounce the Rangers 15-11. The third game was for all the marbles, and the Marines had more as they put the cruncher on the Rangers in the rubber game 15-4.

Gun Club will hold Field Trials

On March 29, 30 and 31 the scenic woodlands to the Alabama side of the Ft. Benning reservation will come alive with the sights and sounds of the Rod & Gun Club Field Trials.

If you're a lover of dogs or of nature — don't miss it. Gather up your family and plan to spend a day or several days on the running grounds. There will be plenty of activity to keep everyone interested.

Here's a break for mom — the noon meal will be served each day on the running grounds.

The program opens on Friday with the Open Shooting Dog Stake. This is an event for the professional dog and handler. Spectators for this event, as well as for the events of the following days, will have the chance to follow the dog and handler along the course.

Then they can gather around the bird field to watch the dogs perform. Amateur bird dogs owners can pick up some of the finer points for training bird dogs and perhaps use them for the next days program.

Saturday, March 30, will see amateur dog events being run. It's a good chance for mom and the kids to see why dad devotes all that time and effort to his bird dog.

Now don't be one of those that stand around and watch a bird dog perform and then comment, "My dog can do better than that." If you have a puppy or young dog, enter him in the amateur events and show us all what he can do.

Sundays program will feature an event that has been the most popular in past field trials. The day will be set aside for bird hunting type dogs. Two different events will be conducted, walking bird hunters and a mounted event. In the mounted event the hunting dogs will be handled from horseback or from a jeep.

Bird hunters are reluctant to enter their dogs in competition because they are not sure what is expected of the dog. Sundays events are run and judged on the ability to hunt and point birds like on any day in the field during bird season. It's as simple as that. Dogs do not have to stand steady to wing and shot.

Trophies will be awarded to the top three finishers in the amateur events. A special Rod & Gun Club Commanding Generals trophy will be awarded to the outstanding bird hunting dog that competes on Sunday. Ft.

Benning Commander, Major General Thomas M. Tarpley will make the presentation of trophies.

These then are the ingredients— bird, dog, man, horse and jeep that add up to a day for a family outing and plenty of action.

To get there just follow the signs that will be posted at the main gate of Fort Benning and on Highway 165, South of Phenix City.

Youth weekend

Beginning Saturday afternoon at 1:30 p.m. and lasting until 5:30 p.m. there will be rap sessions in the Chapel Annex covering topics of interest to youth today, led by experienced counselors. The subjects are: "The Occult-Witchcraft and Mysticism" led by Charles Ballard; "I Don't Want To Go Home Again," dealing with the parent-youth conflict, led by Rev. Robert Zbindin; "Freedom versus Authority", led by Juvenile Court Judge Aaron Cohen; and "Christ in My Life", for those with questions about Christianity, led by Bruce Carlson, a Navigator representative.

Registration will be held at 1:30 p.m. in the Annex. At 6:30 p.m. there will be a supper of hot dogs, potato chips, etc. served. Please bring 50 cents if you plan to eat supper. At 8 p.m., a folk-rock concert will be held featuring Randy Matthews. Randy has performed at colleges and universities around the nation as one of a new breed of young singers who have a unique presentation of the message of Jesus Christ through the new "Jesus music." There is no admission charge for the concert.

 An Airborne-Rangers demonstration will be presented at Eubanks Field and Victory Pond on April 8, beginning 12:30. Buses will be provided from Eubanks Field to Victory Pond after the Airborne demonstration. Bring your family and guests, refreshments will be available at each place of event. Enjoy an exciting afternoon of thrilling Army demonstrations by Ft. Benning's finest. See you there!

FROM GERMANY

The European Department, AUSA, will conduct its 5th Annual Meeting at the Armed Forces Recreation Center, Garmisch, Germany, on 21-24 May 1974. Garmisch is world renowned as a paradise for the winter and summer sports and was the site of the 1936 Winter Olympics. It is situated in a beautiful valley of the Bavarian Alps, only 1 1/4 hour drive south of Munich and only ten miles from Austria.

To stimulate better relationship with all chapters of AUSA, the European Department is setting aside 100 spaces at the meeting for AUSA members from the United States. In conjunction with the meeting a package tour has been arranged with the Davis Agency of Frankfurt, Germany, so members from the U.S. can take advantage of a 8 day vacation, see the wonderful sight of Europe, in addition to furthering the aims and goals of the Association.

Application forms are available at the local chapter's p, or from information call SFC Valenzuela (545-4792/3512).

Don't miss this wonderful opportunity to tour scenic Europe and see, first hand, the "ARMY IN EUROPA"

"Being a canvasser is a learning experience"

Ileane Katzker

The 24th annual Miami Dade County Youth Fair, the largest of its kind in the world, may sound like a nice vacation for Army personnel. The 197th Inf. Bde. Combo, three 197th soldiers accompanying a tank display, a unit-of-choice recruiter and I, a canvasser, had our hands full representing Ft. Benning at the fair, Feb. 28 - March 10.

More than 315,000 people attended the fair, which was only part of the city's exposure to the Army's recruiting and information efforts. Along with several performances at the fair, the 197th Combo played in many Miami high schools. I also spoke to some high school journalism classes, since that's my specialty in the Army.

The Army exhibits included the American Heritage Display from Cameron Station, Va., the tank display and two information booths. As a canvasser, my job was to hand out information about the Army, especially about the 197th and the Women's Army Corps, and to answer questions.

"People tend to relate to a canvasser better than a recruiter because of the nature of the duty," one of the field recruiters commented. "The canvasser is only temporarily borrowed from his normal job and is usually a lower rank than recruiters. It stands to reason that young men and women communicate better with their peers, especially when their peers are presently working in jobs of interest."

Because I wasn't an actual recruiter, I couldn't "sign up" anyone. We just filled out information cards, or leads, and told the interested party we would send more information or a recruiter, depending on the individuals' preference. "There were 300-400 leads at last count, with more cards still coming in," Staff Sergeant Donald Cooper, a field recruiter in Miami, told me. "Without the help provided by the 197th and others, the number of leads we got would not have been worth the investment," he said.

Promotional items were handed out, such as key chains, pens, posters and bumper stickers. There was also a frisbee contest, sponsored by the Army and WMYQ Radio in Miami. More than 400 of the 1,500 frisbees were our own promotional items.

Mr. E. Darwin Fuchs, general manager of the fair, explained that it was a showcase for youth achievement and military agencies, local, state and federal. Mr. John Fix, director of public relations for the fair, noted that this fair was up in attendance over any of Miami's previous fairs. "It's just for the kids," he commented. "By having the military here we wanted to encourage these kids to enlist and get all the benefits."

"No weapons, just instruments," said SSG Dell Campbell, leader of the 197th Combo. "We got people in the right frame of mind about the Army.

They don't know you can come in and be in a band. We also publicized the 197th."

Being a canvasser is a learning experience. I got to meet servicemen and women from all over the country. Most of all, it gave me an opportunity to tell my story about the Army, and it gave me a chance to feel the weights and responsibilities of a recruiter. Just as I told many people, Miami is a nice place to be, but so is the Army.

AER starts off slow this year

Fort Benning's 1974 Army Emergency Relief-Army Relief Society has started with a slow beginning.

As of Friday, March 29, only $1,040 had been collected and only 11 of 25 units had been heard from. The goal for this year is $17,500 and the campaign runs through April.

The Army Emergency Relief (AER) was organized in 1942 to provide financial assistance to members of the rapidly expanding Army and their dependents who were faced with financial situations which they were unable to cope with and for which no appropriated funds were available.

ARS is closely associated with AER through an Operating Agreement effective in 1955. ARS was established in 1900 specifically to assist needy widows and orphans of Regular Army personnel. Eligible dependents seeking financial help or scholarships should contact the local ARS representative, an AER officer, the local Red Cross or apply directly to Army Relief Society headquarters.

But, many people don't realize what kind of help this means. Here are a few sample cases and comments from people who have received assistance.

"When I was in Vietnam last time, there were some pay problems with my pay check and it wasn't going to my wife," explained one soldier. "It got so bad she was in danger of being evicted. She was sent to an AER officer who helped to arrange for a loan for rent and food. We paid the money back as we were able to do so after our problem was cleared up. But, it was sure nice to have AER available with help."

There are often pay problems created when a soldier takes an advance. He often doesn't realize that the money will be taken out of his pay check as quickly as it is. The answer to the sudden money problem is a loan from AER.

Another soldier last year had his house trailer burn down. He decided he wanted to buy a house. So, after he looked about for the right home, he came to AER to borrow the money to make the necessary deposits and to buy some food for his family. He's now paying the money back in small monthly payments.

"I had no idea it would take so long for VA to start my checks," said one retired soldier. "I came to AER for some emergency assistance and got what I needed. I am now repaying the loans as my checks have started arriving."

Actually there are many times when emergency assistance can be rendered by AER-ARS. Another instance is in the form of funeral expenses for loved ones. These costs have skyrocketed and often a soldier will need some help of a temporary nature. AER can even help with grants and loans here.

That's why AER officials are hoping the 1974 drive will get into high gear. The money is needed for the Army to help its own.

Columbus honors Vietnam Vets

A tribute to Vietnam veterans was held March 29, at the Government Center in downtown Columbus. The 283rd Army Band and the 197th Inf. Bde. color guard and honor guard participated in the ceremony.

LTC Floyd Thompson, the longest held Army prisoner captured during the Vietnam conflict, was the guest speaker. "The War wasn't in vain," he told the audience. "The American guys over there did accomplish their job. I'm firmly convinced they're going to maintain a viable government."

Mr. Brown Nicholson, chairman of the Vietnam Veterans Committee of the Columbus-Phenix City-Fort Benning Chapter, AUSA, was the master of ceremonies for the AUSA, sponsored event.

The Rev. J. H. Flakes, pastor of the Fourth Street Baptist Church in Columbus, delivered the invocation. Mayor Pro Tem A.J. McClung read a proclamation issued by Mayor Bob Hydrick, and President Nixon's Vietnam Day message was also read.

Guests of honor also included MG Thomas M. Tarpley, post commander, Mayor Frank Roberts of Phenix City, Mr. Joe Windsor, president of the local AUSA chapter and Mr. Jim Woodruff, national AUSA president.

The 197th Inf. Bde. honor guard folds the flag during the Vietnam Veterans Day Ceremony at the Government Center in downtown Columbus, March 29. The 283rd Army Band also participated in the AUSA-sponsored event.

Malanowski is sunrise speaker

Chaplain (BG) Thaddeus F. Malanowski, Deputy Chief of Army Chaplains, will be the guest speaker at the Ft. Benning Easter Sunrise Service this year. The service will be held April 14 at 7:30 a.m. at York Field adjacent to Infantry Hall. In the event of inclement weather the service will be held in Marshall Auditorium, Infantry Hall.

Chaplain Malanowski entered service in September 1950 with the 43rd Inf. Div. at Camp

Pickett, Virginia. He has served in Korea, Germany, and the United States. His assignments include: Assistant Post Chaplain at both Fort Benning, Georgia and Carlisle Barracks, Pennsylvania; Eighth United States Army Support Command, Seoul, Korea; Command Chaplain, ARADCOM, Ent Air Force Base, Colorado; Deputy Chaplain, United States Army, Europe; and presently the Deputy of Chaplains, United States Army.

AUSA: 3rd Regional convention this weekend

The annual Third Regional AUSA Convention will be held at Fort Benning April 7-9.

There will be 51 out-of-town delegates, representing 12 chapters in six Southeastern states, and 20 delegates from the Columbus - Phenix City - Fort Benning chapter. Out-of-town delegates will stay in Henry Hall during the convention.

Maj. Gen. Thomas M. Tarpley, Ft. Benning commander, is host for the convention.

Out-of-town delegates include Lt. Gen. (Ret.) William J. McCaffrey, National Director of Regional Activities; and Maj. Gen. Sidney B. Berry, Commander, 101st Airmobile Division, Ft. Campbell, Ky.

Also in attendance will be Maj. Gen. (Ret.) Joseph Harper; Maj. Gen. Herbert M. Martin Jr., USAF; and Brig. Gen. (Ret.) Edward S. Evans.

Joe Flowers, Third Region President, will welcome the delegates and Jim Woodruff Jr., National President, will be the speaker at the luncheon on April 8. The business session will include annual chapter reports and the election of new officers for the Third Region.

There will be a Ranger and Airborne demonstration on April 8, and a banquet that night. Also on April 8, wives of out-of-town delegates will be invited to a coffee at the home of Col. and Mrs. William R. Guthrie. Col. Guthrie is the Secretary-Treasurer of the local chapter of AUSA. The wives will also go on a tour of Columbus and will have luncheon at the Goethius House.

1973 a reorganization year for the 1/29th

On October 20, 1972, the Infantry School Troop Support Battalion (Provisional) was formed — the forerunner of the 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry. The organization of the Battalion and its subsequent attachment to the 197th Infantry Brigade provided a firm basis on which to organize, develop, and train the newly forming "PIONEER" battalion.

During the next few months many long and demanding hours were spent by all members of the battalion in preparation for assuming the enormous mission of Infantry

School troop support. On March 21, 1973, the productive efforts of all Battalion members were realized — the Infantry School Troop Support Battalion was officially designated the 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry.

On April 19, less than one month after organization, the first PIONEER element was committed to school support. An accomplishment which was followed by an unprecedented number of flawless school support commitments.

On October 1, 1973, after a summer of growth and refinement, the PIONEER battalion departed the 197th Inf. Bde., and joined The School Brigade to continue supporting the United States Army Infantry School (USAIS).

This first year of organization has been marked by numerous significant accomplishments, a record which each Battalion member can be justly proud. The battalion will surely be confronted in the forth coming year with a multitude of new and different tasks, but as their established record will attest, the PIONEERS will continue to lead the way.

HQ. & SPT Co. victorious at 1/29th organization day

Headquarters and Support Company, 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry TSB, amassed a total of 77 points in the various events held on the PIONEERS' organization day to capture the coveted "Wagon-Wheel" trophy for the company.

Gregory Collins of Company D brought home the only first place finish for his company in the pie-eating contest, when he wolfed down a lemon-meringue pie in less than two minutes.

The only other first-place finish in the battalion, other than the many that headquarters walked away with, went to Company C (Airborne-Ranger) in the 5-mile relay race. The Rangers finished well ahead of the second place Hq & Spt Co team, due to the efforts of anchor man, Dale Aberle, a two-time Army Orienteering champion.

Among the many victories for the Headquarters Company was the log-sawing contest, which was won in a minute and 22 seconds by John Patterson and Reavis Kyser.

Two of the more strenuous events of the day were the tug-o-war and the wagon draggin', both of which were won by the Headquarters and Support Company team.

SGT. DONALD THOMPSON
690th MED CO

For me, it doesn't do anything because I'm not a member. I don't think they had much to do with getting us the pay raises that we have received. They might have had some pull toward it but not to a great point. I feel that the NCOA is more beneficial to the individual soldier than AUSA.

SSG WILLIAM BOYCE
608th ORD CO

They got us a pay raise, but I think there's no personal gain to me. I don't like the magazine they put out. I would prefer the NCOA over the AUSA.

SFC JIMMIE WILLIAMS
USAMU

Myself, I feel my unit was forced into taking it. We were coerced. In my opinion it is a way to keep retired officers' hands in the pot. I feel it does not benefit the soldier today.

What does the association of the United States Army do for you?

CPT DONALD D. LAELLA
IOAC 1-74

The AUSA is lobbying in Congress for legislation favorable to the Army. It helps the soldier in an intangible way by looking after the soldier's interests in Congress. I am a member of the AUSA.

SFC AUGUSTUS DAWSON
"A" CO, 1ST BN, 58TH INF.

I get the magazine, which is intended to keep us up to date. The reason that I joined AUSA originally was that my sergeant major was pushing membership. I was told that it is the soldier's voice in Congress. It serves its intended purpose. It should benefit the soldier if properly used by the soldier.

TSB

It does quite a bit of lobbying in Congress for the benefit of the soldier. I recommend any soldier who is considering the service as a career to join. I feel that AUSA contributed to all the pay raises we have received.

Tax time

10 days and counting

Beware of the 15th of April if you have not filed your 1973 tax return with the Internal Revenue Service (IRS). A late turn-in of your tax report will result in an extra bite out of your pocket.

There are a few reasons for filing late, but you must put in a request for the automatic two-month extension of time to file, by filling out the tax form 4868 in two copies. This does not let you delay your payment of taxes beyond April 14, you still must make a tentative tax estimate for the year and pay the estimated tax when you file for the extension.

It is advisable to consult your unit tax officer or call the toll free number (1-800-222-1040) to the IRS and ask their experts anything you don't understand about filing your tax return.

FREE TAX SERVICE

You can have your income tax done for you, by the IRS, if you fall in the following category: (1) your income must be under $20,000 or less on line 15 of tax form 1040A, and (2) your income must be made up only from wages, salaries and tips, dividends, interest, pensions, and annuities, and, (3) you choose the standard deduction instead of itemizing, and (4) you file your tax return before April 15.

If you meet these requirements the IRS will figure your tax for you, all you have to do is complete lines 1 thru 12, lines 18, 20A, 20b, 20c and 26 on form 1040A.

Any questions you may have or problems you encounter understanding your tax contact your unit tax officer or call the IRS.

IT IS BETTER TO BE RIGHT THE FIRST TIME AND AVOID A HASSLE.

The people required to file a tax return are determined by income, age and marital status. A single person must file a tax return if their income was $2,050 or more during the calendar year of 1973. If the single person is over 65 years old the gross income must exceed $2,800.

Married couples are required to file a tax return if their combined gross income is $2,800 or more provided they file a joint return and are living together at the close of the year. If either the husband or the wife is over 65 years of age the requirement is $3,550 or more, and if both spouses are over 65 years old the requirement is $4,300.

Voting

a privilege, a right, a voice in government

A person that does not exercise to keep his body in shape cannot gripe when his body fails. The individual that does not use the brain can't complain when the brain doesn't meet expectations.

The people that don't exercise their right to vote don't really have a good reason to gripe about the political situation. The states that will have primaries are listed below with the dates. Now is the time to act and use your privilege.

All soldiers who plan to vote in their state primaries must file a federal postcard application (FPCA) for registration. This form should be available from your unit voting officer or the post legal assistance office.

When your hometown election officials receive your form, they will register you and send you an absentee ballot. In a few cases there will be additional forms to complete. Start your registration now for the June and July primaries.

Engrs. help stranded residents

BY BILL GIRTMAN

Soldiers from the 36th Engr. Gp. (CBT), responded to a call for help last week from about 7,500 stranded residents and vacationers of Hilton Head Island, S. C.

The Islanders were stranded last Wednesday night (March 27) when a barge struck the James F. Byrnes Memorial Bridge connecting the island to the mainland of S. C. The sub-structure of the bridge was damaged making it unsafe for travel.

The 586th Floatbridge Co., 36th Engrs, will install a class 60 (PONTOON) floating bridge until the permanent bridge can be repaired.

According to CPT. William Agee, 36th Engr Assistant Operations Officer, the Engineers got the word about 4:30 p.m. last Fri., March 29. "One of our primary concerns at the time was getting the personnel rounded up and prepared to go by 10 a.m. Sat., March 30," stated CPT. Agee.

In addition to the personnel and equipment furnished by the 586th, two other units under the 36th Engr, the 43rd Engr. Bn. and the 67th Mait. Bn., supplied personnel and truck support. Two ambulances were furnished by the 34th Med. Bn.

In all over 200 people and 105 vehicles moved out Saturday morning for Hilton Head Island. The convoy stayed at Ft. Stewart, Ga., Saturday night and then moved out to the Hilton Head site Sunday morning.

The bridging operation will be similar to the mission that the 586th would perform in combat, except there are some unique problems. Unlike on the Chattahoochee River on which the engineers train, they will have to cope with tides of 8-10 feet in addition to a swift current.

"We'll have to open the bridge once or twice a day," said CPT Don Burchell, company commander 586th, "so that water traffic can pass."

He went on to explain that this operation would be different than combat because his unit would be maintaining the bridge in place for an extended period. "Normally, under combat situations, we would supervise the building of the bridge, let the unit cross and pick the bridge up after the unit crossed," Burchell added.

About 100 soldiers from the 35th Engr. Gp., Ft. Bragg, N. C., are helping with the actual construction of the bridge.

The 586th took their full bridge capacity, but will be receiving additional bridge from the 902nd Floatbridge Co., Ft. Belvoir, Va., to span the 850 feet needed at high tide.

Most of the engineers will be returning to their home posts once the bridge construction is completed and secured, but a portion of the 586th will stay at Hilton Head Island to keep the bridge "floating"

THE TALENT TREE

A one-woman art show is in progress at the Talent Tree as Allison Christie displays her talent in water color. Her paintings can be seen through April 16, at the regular store hours: Tues., Thurs, and the first Saturday of the month, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Crafts with an Easter theme are also available at the Talent Tree for someone special on your Easter gift list.

ENVIRONMENTAL WORKSHOP

If you would like to go on a wild-foods collecting trip, April 23, call Muriel Anderson, 687-4979.

Talent Tree presents art show

The artistry of Allison Christie is presently being featured in a one-woman show at the Talent Tree until April 16.

Mrs. Christie is an accomplished artist having won many awards and honors throughout this area; she is also primarily self taught. Although adept in many mediums, her speciality is watercolors.

The Talent Tree, the art gallery and boutique operated by the Officers' Wives' Club is open every Tuesday and Thursday, and the first Saturday of each month from 10 a.m. until 2 p.m. The shop is located off Yeager Ave. near the Thrift Shop.

OWC HOUSE AND GARDEN SERIES

Now is the time for House and Garden members to begin planning what to bring to the "Recipe Exchange-Tasting Bee" on Tuesday, April 23, 11 a.m., at the OWC Lounge. Prepare a small casserole, dish, dessert, or other favorite recipe to bring, also bring the recipe and blank cards for copying other recipes. Any questions should be referred to Carol Walton, 687-0459 and Fran Sale 687-1396.

NCO WIVES' CLUBS

So you think the NCO Wives' Club only meets to have coffee and gossip?? Many ladies say they would never go to anything like that because they like to use their time constructively. Well ladies, if that shoe fits, we need you. Give the NCOWC a chance and we will prove to you that besides having luncheons and bingo to relax, we also work very hard to help those that are depending on us.

Our ladies bake cakes for the service club bingo so the men there won't forget what a home made cake tastes like. The bingo every Sunday, held in the Playboy Club is another example of how hard our members work, enabling the club to provide two $1000 scholarships every year from the proceeds.

The NCOWC sponsors a coffee call twice a month at Martin Army Hospital and if you have ever been in the hospital, you know those smiling faces of our volunteers can help to bring a little sunshine to a lonely patient.

The constitution of our Club reads: "Purpose: The object of this club shall be to develop and foster a spirit of community responsibility at Fort Benning, to develop and foster loyalty to our country, and to promote the well being of all enlisted soldiers and their families at Fort Benning." And we mean business, it will give you a good feeling, come and get involved. The NCOWC Wives' Club.

PANHELLENIC MEETING

All interested PanHellenic members are invited to attend the meeting on Friday, April 19, 1 p.m., at Barbara Bradshaw's quarters, 694 D Kandle Drive in Custer Terrace. A program on "Rush in the Southeast" will be presented by Fran Sale. For further details call Mrs. Bradshaw at 689-2188.

AMERICAN RED CROSS

Dr. Donald L. Ellis, Chief of Department of Surgery- Martin Army Hospital, will present "Surgical Means for Controlling Obesity" on Monday, April 8 at 9:30 a.m. in the fourth floor classroom at Martin Army Hospital. The American Red Cross Nursing Services of Fort Benning invite all Registered Nurses in the Fort Benning, Columbus, Phenix City area to attend.

EASTER BALL

International F & AM Masons O.E.S. is sponsoring an Easter Ball, Saturday, April 13, from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. in Crain Hall NCO Club. Music by The Rams. FREE Hors-d'oeuvres. Cost is $3.50 per person or $6 a couple. Drinks will be sold at regular prices. Tickets on sale at the door or call Mrs. Henderson, 687-8633.

HANDCRAFTS ON SALE

Be sure to stop by the Maxwell Bros. Furniture store at Midtown Plaza on April 16 after 10:30 a.m.! The members of Alpha Gamma chapter of Beta Sigma Phi have been busy using all their creative talents to raise money for their service projects. Items such as pillows; crocheted hats, blankets, and animals; ceramics vases and Christmas ornaments; children's clothes; and baked goods will be among the many crafts on sale.

The ladies of the 2/10th Field Artillery joined the wives of the battery commanders in honoring Mrs. Curtis F. Hoglan at a dinner at Nocera's Villa Nova.

After dinner, Mrs. Hoglan was presented with some remembrances made by the ladies of the 2/10th.

NCOWC

The ladies and their guests of the NCOWC enjoyed their monthly luncheon at Irelands on Macon Rd. in Columbus. The St. Patrick's Day theme was carried out, down to the door prizes. Hostesses were Mrs. Theodore Cherry, Mrs. Gordon Baluis, and Mrs. George Kennedy.

An Artex liquid embroidery demonstration was presented by Glennice Savidge and Cindy Moore. Door prizes were won by Bonnie Fitz, Helga Kunkle, Isabel Ingeldinger, Zita Ramirez, Helen Higdon, Ethel Wise, Joan Radke, Shirley Hathcock, Jackie Robke and Hedy Fisher.

The NCOA Followettes met March 27 to elect new trustees for the coming term. Those elected to serve are Chairwoman: June Brubaker, Vice-chairwoman: Friedel Taylor, Secretary: Ginny Van Houten, Treasurer: Hilde Holmes, Committee chairwoman: Flossie Polk.

New members were welcomed and encouraged to attend all the functions. Newly elected trustees asked for the support of all the members, and expressed appreciation for a job well done of the outgoing board of trustees.

The auxiliary meets the last Wednesday of each month at 7:30 P.M. at Bldg. 3155, Sand Hill, and extends an invitation to all ladies whose husbands are members of the NCOA.

197th BRIGADE BALL

The Senior NCO's and their ladies held a dinner and dance at the Sand Hill NCO Club on March 22. The music was furnished by the Mavericks. The 3rd Bn. 7th Inf. were sponsors for the evening.

COTTONBALERS EM COFFEE

The ladies of the 3rd Bn 7th Inf held their coffee at the Kelly Hill Service Club March 22, and was hosted by Mrs. Curtis Chronister and the ladies of the Combat Support Co.

Special guests were LTC and Mrs. Charles Arnecke and the officers wives of the battalion. SGM Jesse Chewning introduced LTC Arnecke, who spoke to the ladies. The program was closed with a selection of songs by the Benning Belles.

Door prizes were won by Mrs. Michael Davis and Mrs. Steven Moore. Combat Support won the "traveling plaque" for the highest participation.

OCWC

The Officer Candidate Wives Club held a meeting on March 20 in the 50th Co. dayroom. The theme of the evening was "Spring is in the Air", with daises and bees for accent.

CPT Henry Anthony spoke to the ladies about the progress of their husbands, and what to expect at the Senior Status Review and Reception, which was held at Infantry Hall March 22.

On March 23, the Senior Status Formal was held at the Officers Club. The Spring theme was again carried out with a rustic flower cart filled with flowers, handmade by the members and spring trees.

A farewell luncheon will be held at the Officers Club Benning Room April 11 at 11 A.M.

5th STUDENT BATTALION

Mrs. Robert Brand was the hostess for the 5th Student Battalion monthly coffee at her home.

Miss Kathy Markham was warmly greeted as the guest of Mrs. Rodney Markham.

Mrs. William Duncan, wife of the battalion commander, held a business meeting and discussed upcoming events.

Cooper Creek to host dedication

Spring is here, and so is the Pine Needle Holiday! Tomorrow and Sunday, April 6 and 7, Cooper Creek Park and Tennis Center on Milgen Road will be the scene of a dedication ceremony, a parade and other activities.

The big event is the dedication of the Cooper Creek Watershed by Mayor Bob Hydrick on Sunday at 2 p.m. A number of organizations, including several units at Ft. Benning, are participating in other activities to support the dedication.

From 1 to 2:30 p.m. on Saturday, the 197th Bde.

Marlene Morrow, April's Playmate would like to remind all the soldiers at Ft. Benning to "take time to drive safely." Also remember April 7-13 is defensive driving week.

Passover begins tomorrow

The Festival of Passover begins on the evening of April 6, with the traditional Passover Seder, and will be celebrated through Sunday, April 14.

The theme of Passover, stressing liberty and freedom, has served as an example for all people struggling for freedom. The name has been explained as derived from the words "passed over," because the Lord passed over the homes of the Israelites when he smote the first born of the Egyptians in the tenth plague. The Hebrew name Pesach is also the name of the sacrifice of the Paschal lamb which the Israelites offered to the Lord before they left Egypt.

During this eight day holiday, Jewish people refrain from eating leavened bread or any food made with leaven. Matzoh, or unleavened bread, is used instead. This is a reminder of the hurried departure of the Israelites from Egypt when they had no time to allow their dough to ferment and rise.

A special service, called the Seder, is conducted in the home on the first two evenings of the festival. Seder literally means order, and this service has a special order of the ritual which is found in the Haggadah, a short book especially created for this occasion. The Haggadah, which means narration, gives the historical background and significance of Passover.

Services will be held April 7 at 10 a.m. and 7 p.m., April 8 at 10 a.m., April 12 at 7 p.m., April 13 at 10 a.m. and 7 p.m., and April 14 at 10 a.m., which will be a Yiskor-Memorial service. The Ft. Benning Jewish Center is located in Bldg. 2622.

For information on Passover products call Chaplain Stengel at 545-4942.

The EES:

Benefits the individual soldier as well as the Army

and
JOSE CARDONA

Since the beginning of the Enlisted Evaluation System (EES), in 1959, it has grown to the extent that today it is the very heart of a soldier's career. It has become one of the most important tools used to mold the individual soldier into a highly qualified and motivated professional.

Today's soldiers are confronted with competition in job knowledge, production, and education. The days when a PFC or a SP4 retired with over 20 years service are gone. Today, if you want "in" you must move ahead and find ways to stay ahead.

WHAT THE SYSTEM DOES

"There is a lot that the young soldier today doesn't understand about the system", stated SGM John L. Grimes, Enlisted Management Section.

The EES enables each soldier to know how well he is performing on his job as compared to other soldiers of the same pay grade, MOS, and skill level.

When the system began in 1959, it was used only to determine which soldiers were eligible for Pro Pay. Today, the Department of the Army uses this data for determining job proficiency, eligibility for award of pro pay, qualifications for promotions, reenlistment, reclassification, and retention eligibility, and selection for military and civilian schooling.

HOW THE SYSTEM WORKS

The EES provides an objective means to measure each soldier's ability to perform duties of his MOS. Your ability to apply your knowledge, training, and past experience to problems and situations that may be encountered in your MOS are tested. The level of one's performance is measured by a written test, performance test, and the Enlisted Efficiency Report (EER).

The written test, normally containing 125 multiple choice questions, involves job problems and job situations. The solution calls for a soldier's MOS knowledge rather than a memorized phrase from a field manual or regulation. These tests are prepared by personnel at the US Army Enlisted Evaluation Center, Ft. Ben. Harrison, Indiana.

Each test covers all of the major duties of an MOS. Personnel who know only the job functions necessary in their present assignment will not do well on the test. For example, a man who is performing duties as an automatic rifleman is likely to be classified in an MOS of 11B. The written test for this MOS will require a general knowledge of weapons, communications, tactics, and intelligence. The questions deal with the specific duties of ammunition agent, automatic rifleman, liaison agent, gunner, senior scout observer, and scout driver.

The designers of the test recognize the difficulties of preparing for a test that covers various duties related to a particular MOS. Whenever possible, they devise test questions that deal with duties related to all or most assignments found in that MOS.

The Enlisted Efficiency Report (EER) evaluates the individual's duty performance, personal characteristics, and advancement potential. The EER is filled out by the soldier's supervisor. The supervisor must be in the grade of E-6, and be at least one grade higher than the individual being rated.

The supervisor indicates his judgement of how the individual measures up in comparison with other soldiers he has rated. The rater must be as objective as possible to avoid inflation of the system. The EER is also used to provide the Army with the best means possible of distinguishing between soldiers on the basis of duty performance.

In some MOS's, a performance test is required in addition to the written test. The performance test measures a soldier's proficiency in a particular skill by requiring him to demonstrate his ability by doing. Such tests are limited to those MOS's with a major duty task which can be readily tested in this manner. For example, a clerk-typist can demonstrate his typing speed and accuracy by taking a typing performance test. A bandsman can demonstrate his proficiency as a musician by recording a performance on tape. Your study guide will tell you whether a performance test is required for your MOS.

WHO MUST BE TESTED

In the past, soldiers in the grade of E-3 or higher who have at least 2 years active duty were required to take the test. Today, all regular army enlisted personnel, who have completed 16 months of continuous active duty must be tested.

WHEN WILL YOU BE TESTED

The Department of the Army designates the month your MOS evaluation test will be given. Evaluation tests are grouped into four regular test periods annually. Most soldiers take their tests during the middle month of the quarter, such as February, May, August, or November. This is not always possible. Any soldier who is in the hospital at the time a test is given cannot make the test period. Therefore arrangements can be made for a make up test.

A soldier who knows ahead of time that he will be unable to take his test during the regular test period should inform his first sergeant. This will allow for arrangements to be made for a special make up test.

Tests are given in the MOS that the Individual held as of the last day of the calendar quarter before the test period. Tests are given once a year for primary MOS's and once every two years for secondary MOS's. Approximately 90 days prior to the test period, you should receive your study guide.

SOLDIER'S RESPONSIBILITY

Soldiers are responsible for being proficient in all duties prescribed for their assigned MOS, and preparing for the tests by studying references as identified in study guide.

The enlisted evaluation system benefits the individual soldier as well as the Army. It provides the Army greater flexibility and versatility in the assignment and utilization of enlisted personnel. It enables a soldier to compare his job performance with that of his fellow soldiers in the same MOS.

EEDR

WHAT'S IT ALL ABOUT?

By GARY HANNEBOHN

Did you ever wonder how you compare to all the other people in your MOS and pay grade? Did you ever wonder what areas you should study hardest for your next MOS test? The answers to these and other questions may all be found on a single sheet of paper. It's called the Enlisted Evaluation Data Report (EEDR).

In the words of Mr. Jose A. Cardona of the MOS Testing Section, Consolidated Military Personnel Office, "Believe me, the EEDR tells a lot more about how well you did than just your test score. It shows your weak and strong points in the knowledge of your job. It also shows how your job performance stacks up against others in your grade, MOS and skill level."

Now, let's go over an EEDR to see exactly how you come by this information. The EEDR is in five sections which tell who you are, how you did overall, how you scored in your MOS, what you got out of the test and your commander's or supervisor's comments.

Section One gives your unit, your name, MOS in which tested, the month the test was taken, Social Security Number and your grade. Always check all information in this section for mistakes.

HOW THE EER FITS IN

Section Two indicates how you did compared with all other soldiers in your MOS and pay grade. The first number in part (a) is the average of all Enlisted Efficiency Reports (EERs) you have received since July 1, 1970. This is called the Enlisted Efficiency Report Weighted Average (EERWA).

The very first EER you received was used as your EERWA and subsequent EERs were used to compute a new EERWA. The weight of your latest EER is directly proportionate to the length of time covered by that EER. In other words, if your latest EER only covers one month, it only carries five per cent of the EERWA. However, an EER covering twelve months carries sixty per cent of the new EERWA.

The second figure in this part is the average EERWA for all soldiers tested in your MOS and pay grade. Mr. Cardona stated, "By comparing these two figures, you may get an idea of where you stand in the area of job performance."

If your EERWA is lower than the average for your grade, your commander or supervisor will counsel you on how to improve.

CORRECT ANSWERS COUNT

The next part of Section Two concerns the actual written MOS test. The first figure shows exactly how many of the 125 questions on your test you answered correctly. The second figure, again, is the average number of correct answers by all soldiers taking the same test.

Here is where you find out how you stack up in job knowledge. If your number of correct answers was lower than the average for your grade, study Section Three carefully to see just where you were deficient.

Part (c) only pertains to those MOSs where a performance test is administered in addition to the written test. For example, MOS 71B (Clerk Typist) requires a typing test; O5B (Radio Operator) and O5C (Radio Teletype Operator) require an International Morse Code Test.

HOW YOU SCORE

The MOS Evaluation Score is obtained by combining the scores you received on your EER, MOS test and performance test, if required for your MOS. The Evaluation Score reflects your relative knowledge, skills, and ability to perform the duties of your MOS in comparison with all others examined in the same MOS, skill level and grade.

You must have a score of at least 110 to be fully qualified for promotion. Career soldiers must have at least 100 and 1st termers must have at least 70 to be fully qualified for reenlistment. The minimum score for qualification in your MOS is 70.

MOS TEST RATINGS

Section Three depicts the major areas of the MOS in which you were tested and how you score in each. The "Per cent of Test" column indicates the relative weight of each major area; this column should always total 100.

An "X" placed in the blocks "Very Low" through "Very High" shows how well you did in each of the major areas. This rating is based on a percentage obtained by dividing the number of questions you answered correctly by the number of questions in that major area.

The ranges for these ratings are: 0-29 per cent — very low, 30-45 — low, 46-75 — average, 76-90 — high and 91 or higher — very high. Concerning the scores in the major areas, Mr. Cardona said, "You will definitely profit from frequent reference to them while preparing for your next test."

Section Four, Career Management Information, tells whether or not you have qualified in your MOS and your eligibility for proficiency pay.

COMMANDER WILL COUNSEL

Your unit commander or his representative will call you in for completion of Section Five. If necessary, he will check one of the blocks and will discuss with you how to improve your next score. After making his recommendation, he will date and sign the form and hand your copy to you. The purpose of this counseling session is to discuss your strengths and weaknesses with the objective of laying the groundwork for your career development.

Whether or not you have a successful career depends on you.

197th organization day activities provide something for everyone

March 21 marked the first anniversary of the 197th Infantry Brigade as a STRAF unit and soldiers with their families celebrated with a parade, picnic and games in one of the largest organization day programs at Ft. Benning in recent years.

In spite of chilling winds and the threat of rain nearly 2,000 guests attended the event. The program began with a brigade parade on Munsan Heliport at 11 a.m. and concluded at the Kelley Hill Service Club at 11 p.m. following a soldier's dance.

All units of 197th participated in the parade with HHB, 2nd Bn., 10th F.A. taking top honors in the marching competition. From the heliport, spectators were bussed to Ivy Field where lunches were served by various units and the events were held.

Co. A, 2nd Bn., 69th Armor pulled their way to first place in the tug-of-war contest. HHC, 3rd Bn., 7th Inf. (Cottonbalers) finished second with Co., A, 1st Bn. (Mech), 58th Inf. (Patriots) third.

The infantrymen of Co. B, 3rd Bn., 7th Inf. (Cottonbalers) captured first place in the pushball contest while B Batt., 2nd-of-the-10th F. A. placed second and Co. C, 1st Bn., 58th Inf. placed third.

A quartet of medical specialists from Co. B, 197th Spt. Bn. surprised everyone by literally running away with the four-mile military relay. C Batt., 2nd-of-the-10th F.A. finished second with A Batt. of the same battalion taking third.

The tankers of Co. B, 2nd Bn., 69th Armor took first place trophy in the muddiest of the organization day activities, the greased pig contest. The 72nd Engr. Co. was second while Batt. C, 2nd Bn., 10th F.A. was third.

Rudy Collier, an 18-year-old Savannah high school student was named Miss 197th Infantry Brigade in the beauty contest. Miss Collier represented the 1st Bn., 58th Inf. Other contestants were Rhonda Brownell, representing the 2nd Bn., 10th F.A., Gail Davis representing the 197th Spt. Bn. and Cindy Powell, representing Headquarters and Headquarters Co., 197th Inf. Bde.

121st Avn. Co. receives safety award

On the first of March, COL Ken Barlow, Asst. Post Commander, presented the 121st Avn. Co. (AH), 145th Avn. Bn. (CBT), with a certificate of appreciation for Aviation Safety. MAJ James H. Parish, commander of the 121st, accepted the award on behalf of the officers and men of his unit.

The award concerned the period from Jan. 1 through Dec. 31, 1973. During this time the 121st Avn. Co. completed in excess of 8,300 accident-free flying hours. In his remarks at the presentation ceremony, COL Barlow commended the pilots, crew chiefs, record maintenance and support personnel for their tremendous achievement in setting such a fine safety record.

Infantry Board celebrates 71st birthday

"Only the best for the finest". That is the motto of the US Army Infantry Board, which celebrated its seventy-first anniversary on March 31.

The Infantry Board was established by the Department of the Army in March 1903 at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas. Its sole function was to "consider with continuity of effort the improvement of the infantry".

Following World War I, the Board moved to Camp

Benning. It has been at Ft. Benning longer than any other organization.

General Omar Bradley, General George Marshall, and General Courtney Hodges are some of the many distinguished infantry soldiers who have served with the Infantry Board during its long history.

Whether he shoots it, rides it, sleeps in it, eats it, wears it or uses it in some manner in combat conditions, the Infantryman is using some item of equipment that has been tested for him by the Board.

The Infantry Board, as it has done for the past 71 years, will continue to insure the Army's finest — the Infantryman — receives the best equipment and weapons available.

TSB is good neighbor

The security of our nation is the primary mission of the U. S. Army. However, there is another role of the Army, that of being a neighbor and a friend to the civilian community. On Saturday, March 30, the cadre and senior Officer Candidates of the 51st Co., 5th Stu. Bn., The School Brigade played good neighbor to a group of children from the Ann Elizabeth Shepard Home for orphans, as they treated them to some of the sights and sounds of Ft. Benning.

The idea originated with CPT. John L. Carson, a tactical officer of the 51st Co. "We thought it would be good if we could do something for these kids, and as it turned out was a lot of fun for everyone involved," he said.

The children, ranging in ages from 6 to 16 years old were first taken on a tour of one of the helicopter hangars at Lawson Field. Here the inner workings of the Cobra Gunship and the Huey helicopters were explained to them. The younger children were especially fascinated with the Cobras, and were allowed to sit in the cockpits under the watchful eyes of helicopter crewmen.

After leaving Lawson Field the wide-eyed kids were taken on a tour of the 51st Co. They poured out questions fast and furiously, as most of them had never been near so many soldiers, or seen the inside of a barracks building.

It was nearly noon when the group moved out to the picnic area at the entrance to the 197th Inf. Bde. and barbecued hamburgers and hotdogs, fried chicken, baked beans and potato salad were served. They managed to work it off in a softball game, on the merry-go-round, and with a game of tag.

After a short rest the children spent about an hour touring the Infantry Museum. According to Senior Officer Candidate Daniel Couvillon, Student Council President, the children were especially interested in the heavy hardware. "The younger ones really enjoyed the tanks and big artillery pieces," he said.

When the day at Ft. Benning was over it was the children's turn to act as hosts as they asked the candidates and officers to tour the Ann Elizabeth Shepard Home. "It really looked nice," said Candidate Couvillon, "almost like a college dorm." He added, "It was just an enjoyable afternoon for everyone. I know they enjoyed being with us, and we really enjoyed being with them."

The Bayonet, Friday April 5, 1974

Howdy, Bub. I been gettin' letters from some of the folks that been readin' my column, an' I thought I'd answer a few of them this time out, 'stead my usual palaverin'.

Dear Lancelot

I suggest that you get yore girlfriend into see a doctor somewhere. There are several free VD clinics in the city that are listed in the phonebook. She don't have to give them her life story or anythin' like that, jes a few questions 'bout contacts an' sech like, an' they'll take care of her right away. Also, I think iffen I wuz you, I'd get me a new girlfriend, remember, VD is no clappin' matter.

Dear Sickie

No, I don't think that you, or anyone else receives better care when you go the Emergency Room. The thing that you are forgettin' is the fact that you always see a different doctor everytime you go there, so there is no way that you are goin' to get anybody that will know from the last time, jes what is happenin' to you. I recommend that you call the Central Appointment desk at 544-1064, an' get to seein' the same doctor on a regular basis, then I'm sure you'll get to feelin' better real soon.

Dear Easy-Rider,

No.

Dear Billy Bob

You dang fool, why didn't you ask me your question last night when we wuz playin' checkers? Don't you be writin' to me 'bout your whims. Who'd you think 'ole Doc wuz, anyway?

Dear Angry

I really sympathize with you 'bout havin' to wait 'round the doctor's office to get seen. It is ridiculous for him to think that you ain't a busy man, an' got other things to do. Iffen I wuz you, I'd show that 'ole sawbones a thing or two. I jes wouldn't go see the varmit no more, an' then you wouldn't have to stand for his uppity way of takin' care of you. But, acorse, 'ole Doc wouldn't have to put up with yore bellyachin', an' could probably get on to seein' patients that really need seein'. My real advice to you is, stay home where you belong, an' quit botherin' yore medico 'til you need him.

Dear Concerned Citizen of the Community, Are you really?

Dear Super-Streaker

I have to admit that wearin' shoes takes away a lot of the fun, but I'm afraid that I'll have to agree with yore doctor, nonetheless.

Dear Weezy

I think that if you would stop peelin' them onions in that potato soup factory, part of yore troubles would be over. Then, acorse, if you could see yore way clear to give up a coupla weeks of them soap operys, why, I'm sure yore blurred vision would get some better too. I'm hopin' that this is what yore problem wuz, 'cause of the blotches on the ink in yore letter, it wuz a little hard to make out, so, I jes answered the parts I could read. Do you think that you could type yore next question to me?

Well, Bub, I guess that you can see the kinda letters I been gettin' from my readers. I hope that iffen you got a real medical problem that needs tendin' to you'll get on yore horse an' get it taken care of soon's you can.

Good health to you and yours . . .

Many people have bought post or state fishing permits during the past week. The number joining the Rod and Gun Club was rather disappointing. It may be that some intend to do their shopping in installments and will get the club membership when they buy hunting licenses or it may be that quite a few people who were members last year feel they can't afford a membership because of the increased cost of post permits.

It seems that some people are making a big deal about this increase. It wasn't that much, but it takes time to adjust. Until a few years ago there was no fee for hunting or fishing on the reservation. People got up in arms when they had to buy a state hunting permit. Then came the $1 combination hunting-fishing permit. More groans and cries — but hunters and fishermen paid these fees and became used to the idea. They expected to lay out this much money each year. Why not? They were getting a year of outdoor enjoyment for the price of a movie and a hotdog.

Fees Provide Dividends

The last increase in fees came at a bad time. Just before the 1974-75 licenses and permits came due. No one had time to get used to the idea. Paying out 6 to 9 bucks for something you used to get for nothing does smart a little. But it should be only a little. This money is making possible more fun and entertainment than any other money most people spend all year. Divide the number of times the average hunter or fisherman takes to the field into these few dollars and it comes out to pennies for each trip. The cost of all the permits combined wouldn't be enough to go out on the town for one evening.

The hunter and fisherman gets another bonus. In addition to getting a lot of recreational time per dollar he gets the satisfaction of contributing to the fish and wildlife program. With the exception of a small administrative fee deducted for handling every bit of the money paid for a state license goes into the state fish and wildlife program. Money collected for post hunting and fishing permits goes into the post fish and wildlife program.

Over the years sportsmen have been proud that the money they paid for state and federal licenses have been the sole support of state and federal fish and wildlife conservation projects. These programs have developed land and water that produce more game and fish per acre than our forefathers ever dreamed possible. It's the old game of put and take. If everyone keeps taking and no one puts it doesn't take long before there is nothing to take.

Rod and Gun Club Represents Sportsmen

How does the Rod and Gun Club fit into this system? Why should I pay money to join? As I see it the Rod and Gun Club is the voice of the hunter and fisherman. Personnel directing the fish and wildlife program operate to make maximum use of the available land and water. Adjustments must be made and a strong Rod and Gun Club representing a majority of the sportsmen on post is the best tool the sportsman has to get these adjustments made.

Handball, horseshoes head small game tournament

30 days has the month of April. Within that short period of time six post championships will be determined as Recreation Services holds the Small Games Tournament.

Competition is the sports of handball and horseshoes open the program as the period of April 5-8 is set aside to determine the respective champions. Handball games will be held at Briant Wells Fieldhouse and Audie Murphy Gym while horseshoe competition will be conducted at Audie Murphy Gym.

The ancient games of squash and badminton will be exhibited on April 19-22. All games will be played at Audie Murphy Gym. "Squashers" and "badmintoners" must submit their entries before April 12.

The month will close out with the popular games of racquet ball and table tennis. Dates for this competition are April 26-29 with an April 19 deadline for entries. Racquet ball competition will be held at both Briant Wells and Audie Murphy. Table tennis games will be held at Audie Murphy only.

Competition in all games will be scheduled during off-duty hours. Schedule of games or matches to be played will be published prior to start of the tournament. All military personnel on active duty at Ft. Benning are eligible to participate.

Cue time for Benning sharks

Chalk up, pool sharks! You have a chance to be a winner in the TRADOC Recreation Center 14.1 Pocket Billiards Tournament.

Right now all you pool sharks should be contacting your unit A&R officer or your Recreation Center Director.

Units should conduct elimination tournaments to select their best players. A further round of competition will be held at the Recreation Centers to determine the best two players who will then enter the post championships to be held later in the month of April. From the post championship will emerge the top two pocket billiards players to represent Ft. Benning in the TRADOC tournament.

Ft. Benning will host this years Central Region TRADOC Tournament. It will be held at the Main Post Recreation Center on May 10-12.

The game of 14.1 Continuous Pocket Billiards is the game of champions, the game in which title honors are decided. The rules are easily learned, but the game requires that a player have an all around pocket billiards playing skill.

HHC-Marine hi-lights TSB action

A mammoth struggle between HHC, TSB and the U.S. Marine Corps highlighted last week's action in TSB Volleyball league.

The first game of the three-game set saw battle with both teams trading point after point. Finally the Marines managed a two-point lead and won 16-

14. The second game showed a comeback by HHC, as they knocked off the Marines 15-10.

This set the stage for the final game to determine the match winner. HHC jumped out in front, the Marines challenged, but HHC held on for a 15-12 win.

Powerful 4th Bn.

thoroughly beat the 3d Rgr. Co. 14-7 in the first contest. 4th Bn. left no doubt as to who was the strongest in the second game, defeating the Rangers 15-0.

Another TSB power, IOAC-2, continued its hot streak by trampling 14th Company twice by scores of 15-2.

4th Bn. also met the Marines last week, and it was a tight match for both teams. The Marines took the first game 16-14. 4th Bn., feeling the pressure, came back to dominate them in the second game 15-6. Game three was a determined effort by both clubs, but the Marines pulled away to win 15-11.

36th begins volleyball season

The 36th Engr. Gp. (CBT), volleyball season began recently. Although the teams are having trouble adjusting their schedules around Field Training Exercises the league is getting in full swing and spectators are welcome.

As in all sports events

there has to be a leader. Co. A, 43rd Engr. Bn., 36th Engr. Gp. (CBT), is presently holding a 4-0 average.

"Team spirit is high for Co. A, that's why we will continue to win," explains Thomas Gallo, Co. A, 43rd Engr's volleyball team.

Gallo isn't alone in his belief that Co. A will finish on top. There are several other outstanding players on the team who agree: Benjamin Glover, Hamilton Wright, and Brandon Allensby.

Hamilton Wright agrees with Gallo, "It takes teamwork to be champs, and we believe we can make it," Hamilton says. During the volleyball season the games will be played at Kimbro Gym. The first game begins at 6 p.m. each night except Friday night.

For more information contact Kimbro Gym at 544-4303.

TSB gang to meet city fathers

The third annual School Brigade night will be held at Golden Park on Wednesday May 15 at 7 p.m. The TSB Over the Hill Gang softball team, consisting of E-8's, E-9's, and field grade officers from within TSB, will meet the City Fathers of Columbus as the City Fathers attempt to avenge a 1-0 defeat inflicted on them two years ago by TSB. Last year's contest was rained out.

Immediately following the TSB-City Fathers clash the Columbus Astros will meet the Orlando Twins in a minor league game.

HOW TO CUT BACK WITHOUT CUTTING DOWN.

You want a luxury car but can't afford the luxury of poor gas mileage. Get a Volvo 164.

It gives you air conditioning, lets you sit on leather, and offers almost as much front legroom as a Cadillac deVille. And still gets about 50% better gas mileage than most comparably priced domestic sedans.*

Co. C dominates TSB volleyball

Co. D, 1st Bn., 29th Inf., TSB, continued to dominate the PIONEER volleyball league as they posted back to back victories against Co. B of the 1-29th.

In the opener, Co. B drew first blood, winning the volley for serve. They quickly led 2-0. Their small lead lasted just sixty seconds as the "Delta Dragons" came alive and began to score freely. Valiant play by B Co. was no match for the superior forces of the Delta team, as they fell 15-12.

In the second game, the Co. B players appeared to be played out, and they once again fell easy prey to the dominant Co. D team, by a score of 15-6.

In other PIONEER action, Hq & Spt Co. and Co. E, Field Artillery both picked up easy wins, as neither teams' opponents showed up for the game. The win-by-forfeit victories for the two teams, put them in a second place tie with each other.

Reilly racks up

The 145th Avn. Bn. was surprised to discover the existence of a billiards prodigy within its ranks. On 10 March 1974 SP4 Patrick Reilly of HHC, 145th Avn. Bn. challenged all Ft. Benning to a simultaneous billiards match.

After three hours of play and seventeen games he had won all but one. In 1972 'SP4 Reilly was named the pocket billiards champion of Japan under the auspices of the Billiards Congress of America.

Reilly's excellence is reflected in his performance of duty as the legal clerk of the battalion. He is also the president of the Ft. Benning Soldiers Council.

"Be A Winner" goal presented to 197th NCOs

Nine professional goals for the "Forever Forward" soldier were presented to the Non-commissioned Officer Corps of the 197th Inf Bde by COL William B. Steel, the brigade commander.

The new goals were announced at a non-commissioned officers' briefing by COL Steele in conjunction with the unit's first anniversary as a Strategic Army Forces (STRAF) Brigade.

The goals, presented using the code words "BE A WINNER", encompass every aspect of the soldier's life and charge him with a responsibility both to himself and the Army.

"This brigade can be a winner if we do these things," COL Steele stated. "Every man in the brigade can be a winner." NCOs of the brigade were asked to carry the new goals to their units and take an active part in the successful accomplishment of each.

The goals are:

- E - Education and Efficiency on the Job
- A - Achieve a High State of Discipline
- W - Worthwhile and Realistic Training
- I - Improve Maintenance in all Areas
- N - No Accidents
- N - New Horizons in Human Relations
- E - Effective Leadership at all Levels
- R - Readiness Around the Clock

PFC gets his chance to command

SGT. James E. Underwood, 69th Armor, 197th Inf. Bde is going places, because of his ability and confidence in himself.

During the 2nd Bn., 69th Armor's Tank Gunnery Course at Ft. Stewart, Ga. recently, SGT. Underwood, then PFC, was asked to replace one of the tank commanders who had to return to Ft. Benning for an emergency.

"I'd never commanded a tank before," states Sgt. Underwood. "I wasn't really nervous about it, but at first I wasn't sure of my ability. Then I got to thinking that if all those sergeants could do it, so could I."

SGT. Underwood took command of the tank and started the course. His tank qualified with 1777

2400. It takes 1650 points to qualify a tank crew.

"The course was not really that hard," SGT Underwood continues. "I just adjusted to the situations as they came."

"It was a big relief when it was all over and I found out that the tank had qualified. It was like a heavy weight being lifted from my shoulders," says SGT Underwood.

As a result of this fine performance and many other professional attributes, Underwood was promoted to SP4 and appointed an acting sergeant, with his own tank to command on a permanent basis.

"It was a sudden jump," concludes SGT Underwood, "but I think I now have the confidence I need to be a tank commander."

Let GAC put a jingle in your dufflebag.

The way prices are going right now—you may need more money than you thought you'd need. GAC wants to lend you all the money you'll need to help beat prices and to buy the bargains you want before they're gone.

You don't have to make a lot to borrow a lot at GAC. The size of your loan depends on many things: the bills you have or have had. What you own or want to buy. The kind of work you do. And, because you wear a uniform, the kind of work you do rates very high with GAC. A steady income makes it easier for you to get a loan. But, more important, GAC wants to serve you because you serve your country.

Whatever your needs, whatever the reason, let GAC put a jingle in your dufflebag.

Your suggestion could mean more money in your pocket

"Suggestion nets sergeant $900"
 "Captain collects $875 for three suggestions"
 "DA civilian capitalizes on suggestion program and collects $600"

These are interesting headlines which are even more interesting when you are the one doing the collecting.

The likelihood that a suggester will collect the $25,000 top award offered by the Army is indeed rare, but he may get $25 to $50 awards that mean as much if he has studied a problem and taken action to solve it when no one else did.

Many people will take a single try at submitting suggestions and get discouraged when the idea is rejected. This may happen not because the idea was a good one but because they did not properly research the problem and plan their suggestion before submitting it.

Here are some guidelines that may help those who want to solve a problem and get paid for it: Pick your subject from varied situations which provide likely targets for improvements. Examples would be bottlenecks that interfere with deadlines or schedules or jobs that involve duplication of effort.

After you have selected your subject, write down on a sheet of paper the people, departments, jobs, forms, equipment and the time involved in the area you have selected for improvement.

Analyze your subject area by questions. What is done and why? When is it done and who does it? Can the entire problem or operation be eliminated?

You should then develop your ideas by determining the goal that will be reached by the suggestion. Then outline the proposal into a step-by-step operation. If practicable, give the idea a trial run to be sure it solves the problem.

Attempt to sell your suggestion. Don't be afraid to consult others in developing the suggestion and let them know it is not intended as criticism.

When writing the suggestion, summarize as many of the benefits as possible on the basis of savings in time, labor and equipment. If possible, turn the savings into dollar amounts.

Simply following these recommendations won't solve all the problems, but they may help some people learn the satisfaction of doing a better job and getting paid for the extra effort.

AER drive still on; aiming for $17,000

The annual Army Emergency Relief Fund Drive has reached $3,677.89, of its goal of $17,500.00 for 1974. The fund drive, which began Mar. 15, ends Apr. 30. Out of 26 major units and commands on post, 18 have reported contributions as of Apr. 10.

The Army Emergency Relief Fund is used to help soldiers when they have a family or financial emergency which is beyond their ability to pay immediately. AER makes loans to soldiers when their pay records are somehow snarled, so they will have money for basic expenses such as food and rent. These loans can be repaid by allotments taken out of the soldier's pay, usually in small amounts such as $5 to $15 a month. They are interest-free, and the soldier has until the time he leaves the service to repay them, except in the case of a grant.

A grant is usually given when funeral expenses are beyond a soldier's ability to repay comfortably by the time he leaves the service. Usually, AER makes a loan for half the amount and gives the other half to the soldier in the form of a grant. "We try to make a loan whenever possible," said one AER official. "This way the soldier doesn't feel he's being forced to accept charity, and he feels a greater sense of responsibility by paying it back."

When a soldier has to go on a sudden leave for some family emergency, the Red Cross can only provide financial help if a member of the immediate family is involved. Often, however, he can get a loan from AER for leave expenses, including plane fare.

Wayne Peeler and his Big Brother, PFC Larry Ferrel, play with a bunny that was presented to Wayne by the Big Brothers Program, April 3 at Army Community Services. "It's good because it puts the little brothers in the spirit of Easter," said PFC Larry B. Parker, director of the Big Brother Program. "It's Wayne's first pet," he commented. Richard Guldin, another little brother, was also presented a bunny for Easter.

Easter services at York Field

Several thousand worshippers are expected to gather at 7:30 a.m. Sunday at York Field for the 37th annual Easter Sunrise service. Guest minister will be Chaplain (BG) Thaddeus F. Malanowski, Deputy Chief of Army Chaplains.

Opening the combined Catholic-Protestant service will be a musical prelude by the 283d U. S. Army Band, directed by CW2 Brian Arnold. Easter anthems will be sung by the Infantry center Chapel Choir, directed by CW2 Arnold, the Infantry Chorus, directed by 2LT Jay Taylor, and the Youth Choir.

Chaplain Malanowski's sermon topic will be "The Risen Christ — Hope of the World." The combined Infantry Center Chapel Choir and the Infantry Chorus will sing "Great and Glorious is the Name of the Lord" by Dickinson and "The Hallelujah Chorus" from Handel's "The Messiah."

The public is requested to bring a blanket or lawn chairs to augment the limited seating facilities.

In the event of inclement weather, the service will be conducted in Marshall Auditorium, Infantry Hall.

Chaplain Malanowski will deliver the sermon at the 9:30 a.m. service in the Infantry Center Chapel. And at 11 a.m. he will conduct the Catholic Mass at the Main Post Catholic Chapel. His sermon topic will be "Renew — Why Look Among the Dead for Someone Alive."

SP5 Compton

"He takes pride in what he does"

"He's done one helluva outstanding job." Such praise doesn't come lightly, but that's the way CPT. Thomas A. Wooten, Chief, South Branch, describes SP5 James K. Compton. Compton is putting the finishing touches this week on six hand-made wooden plaques bound for Stuttgart, Germany, headquarters of the VII Army Corps.

"I've done quite a few special projects," Com-ton said, "but this is the first to go overseas." Compton works in the wood shop, where he builds speaker cabinets, podiums and displays for conferences. "We provide well-rounded support for just about anything on post," Compton said.

LTG George S. Blanchard, Commander of the VII Corps, wrote a letter some time ago to MG Thomas M. Tarpley announcing an upcoming ball honoring the queen of battle. Included in that letter was a request for the recording and slides for the epic poem, "I Am The Infantry," and wooden plaques to be used as decorations. Compton got the job.

"I spent a lot of evenings and weekends getting this job done," Compton said. "I'm glad we can send something good enough to go somewhere else."

"I don't think we could have done the project without Compton," CPT. Wooten said. "He takes a lot of pride in what he does. Several times he started over again when he wasn't satisfied. I'm very proud of him and the results he has obtained."

MSG John F. Weatherbee
1st BN., TSB

"If the child was being abused by the parents, I would report it to the police. If a child is being abused, it can't defend himself. If you enter a family argument, it usually ends up in a fight between families."

Mrs. Carol Barylak
Dependent Wife

"It's hard to interfere in someone else's affair. I think I would report it to the child welfare. Sometimes you don't understand what the situation is. I just feel that other people should not interfere unless it is doing bodily harm to a child. I feel that an instrument should not be used to punish a child."

CPT Roger Bowers
IOAC 5-74

"First, if there were not any authority, I would intervene immediately and do what I could to stop it. Then I would report it to the authorities. Too many people are afraid to get involved. To me, my first concern would be to the physical well being of the child."

What would you do if you saw a child being abused? Why?

Mrs. Marion Stephens
Housewife

"Well I would probably call the police. While I was waiting on them to get there, I would try to assist the child. They are helpless and they can't defend themselves. I can't stand to see anyone hurting a child."

LTC Charles W. Carlson
Infantry Board

"First I would ask the person to stop it. If that didn't work, I would report it to the authorities. I would just hate to see a child being abused. I think anyone would feel the same way."

"I love that big diesel engine."

SP/4 Larry Pittman digs diesels. So much in fact, that he turned down a job some guys would have jumped at.

"The other job involved a lot of protocol. And that just isn't my bag.

"Out on my wrecker, I'm more my own boss. It's my job to make it go. And keep it going.

"I like the guys I work with, too. Everybody knows what they're doing. And they like what they do.

"I also like the benefits that come with the job. But mainly it's the diesel. I'm staying in to stay with it."

"Mommy I'm dead"

Beware of harmless ammo around the house

by Howard Hodge

A Colorado Springs mother heard her son cry "Mommy I'm dead" and turned to see a bloody body with no hands, that had been torn apart by a grenade. Eleven year old Johnny dropped to the floor dead just a few minutes after pulling a pin from a grenade he thought was a toy.

A four year old girl in Great Falls, Mont. was killed when she pulled a mortar from a box in her home. Police investigation disclosed the shell had been in the home for many years and thought to be empty.

In Pittsburg, Pa. four boys were in a backyard playing with a Bazooka shell. The parents assumed the shell to be a harmless practice device but it exploded killing two sets of brothers.

Manitou Springs, Colo. An old tank shell exploded killing an eight year old boy, wounding his sister and two playmates. The shell was being used to punch a hole in a cardboard box in their backyard.

A 16-year-old boy was killed by a hand grenade which exploded on a stove. The victim put the grenade on the stove to scare his seven year old sister. 15 minutes later the grenade exploded.

Westmont, Pa. The explosion of a small bomb caused a 16-year-old boy to lose his left hand. The youth had found the bomb in the basement of his home. Police reported that the bomb was a war trophy that his father found and brought back from World War II.

One of the two boys, in Pitkin, La., dropped a 106 mm shell. It fell between them, exploded, and killed them both. These tragic stories go on and on. Unfortunately many parents do not have the understanding needed to protect and inform their children. Too many fathers, brothers, uncles and friends keep deadly war trophies or ammunition souvenirs to prove their masculine heroic efforts.

War is the action taken as the last step to preserve freedom. Give your child a chance to enjoy freedom.

The artifacts of war should be left on the battlefield or on the field of training. A Child's life is worth more, or should be, than the pride of memories or the value of souvenirs.

Another source of dangerous DUD ammo is the many training areas on military posts. Approximately five to ten per cent of the ammo fired does not go off. These unexploded shells are still very dangerous and may go off at any time. There are too many variables that affect the DUD ammo, such as weather, temperature, position on the ground or the ground or the way it is handled.

Parents, Commanders and NCO's should educate your children or subordinates about the dangers of any type of ammo found in the house or out in the woods. Impress upon them the danger involved and how to report it to the proper authorities.

Here at Ft. Benning we are fortunate to have the members of the 89th Ord. Det. (EOD). One of their many jobs is to go out and find unexploded ammo and destroy it. Another service they will provide is the removal of dangerous war souvenirs (ammo) from your home. If you live off post contact the local police and if you live on post contact the military police they will in turn contact the 89th Ord. Det. The members of the 89th are trained to handle the dangerous ammo.

Ft. Benning is conducting an Awareness Program on dud ammo. With the coming of summer many school children will be out in the woods riding motorbikes, hiking or over at a friend's house. If your children don't know what to expect they may become one of the many statistics of individuals hurt by DUD ammo.

Save yourself the hurt that comes with a death in the family and inform your children.

Artillery simulators (see picture) are another source of highly dangerous objects found on Ft. Benning reservation. The simulators are 7 inches in length and made of white paper tubing.

Highly dangerous, these simulators can cause severe burns, loss of sight and some times loss of life. DON'T touch them! Just remember where you spotted them and report it to the proper authorities.

OLE DOC SEZ...

Ran into 'ole Sam Henry accomin' out of the Emergency Room the other day. Seems that 'ole Sam was a siphonin' some gas outa his lawnmower that morning when one of the neighbor kids lit off a firecracker in his yard. 'Ole Sam like to swaller that whole tank of gas afore he could get his sucker turned off.

Well sir, Sam got the missus out of the laundry room and they drove to the hospital like 'ole scat was after 'em. Sam Henry dashed into the Emergency Room and was turned everyway but loose afore he knew it. 'Ole Doc in that Emergency Room put a hose into Sam's nose the size of his siphonin' tube and commenced to "pump ma belly dry", as Sam puts it. Seems like ole Doc kept congratulating Sam for not makin' hisself throw up and such like.

But anyway Sam got all rinsed out and was on his way home, but he wanted to know ole Emergency Room Doc's name so's could write him a letter and thank him fore what he done. Well sir, I got so plumb excited bout anybody wantin' to thank one of my species I like to fall over, but I trotted right in and got the name for Sam Henry.

Seems like they was some folks awaitin' for treatment in that Emergency Room afussin' and afumin' about Sam Henry gettin' treated afore them special since they've been sittin' here all this time and they wanted to see the Chief 'ole Doc of the hospital. Would you believe that ole emergency Room Doc and ole Emergency Room Nurse were atyrin' to explain bout life and death treatments get seen afore the sore throats in this here hospital. Imagine, havin' to explain why a man's life is more important than a itchy throat. I never seen the like.

Hope ya'll take a page from Sam Henry's book bout siphonin' gas; try and get one of them siphon tubes with the dohickey that ya squeeze, stead of suckin' it up wif your mouth. That gas in you belly definitely will not give you any mileage, 'cept to an Emergency Room somewheres.

I gotta go now, Bub, goin' down to Lem's Hardware Store and get me a proper siphon tube for Sam Henry, so's he don't have to worry none 'bout those neighbor kids and their fireworks. Good health to you and yours.

NATIONAL BANK of FORT BENNING

Member F.D.I.C.

Several serious accidents have occurred at Fort Benning as a result of individuals handling artillery simulators which have been abandoned on maneuver areas throughout the post. These innocent looking white paper tubes 7 inches in length can cause severe burns, loss of sight, loss of fingers or hands, even loss of life.

They should be respected as and treated as any other dud you may discover. Do not touch or move them.

Every effort is made to account for and remove simulators which have not detonated during training exercises. Some, however, are missed and they lay in waiting for the curious, the uninformed, the foolhardy.

Report the location of duds and artillery simulators to Range Division, RPT, at 545-5186 (24 hours a day, 7 days a week)

Latest Dramatizer's production has interesting history

Edward F. Albee's "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?" is currently in rehearsal at the Ft. Benning Playhouse. "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?", a taut full-length drama, was the prize-winning hit of the 1962-63 season on Broadway. The production starred Uta Hagen and Arthur Hill under the direction of Alan Schneider, and won five Antoinette Perry "Tony" Awards, for Best Play, Best Actor, Best Actress, Best Director, and Best Producer from the American Theatre Wing. It also won the Drama Critics Circle Award for Best Play of the Season. Playwright Albee was awarded the Fifth Annual ANTA Award for Outstanding Contributions to the Living Theatre. In 1967, the Warner Brothers film version, starring Elizabeth Taylor and Richard Burton, was awarded an Oscar for Best Performance by an Actress by the Motion Picture Academy of Arts and Sciences. Albee has described himself as trying to "claw through to compassion" through layers of complacency, conformity and psychologically damaging human relationships. "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?" might be described as a study of how far mental cruelty may go between consenting adults before irreparable damage is done to the participants' lives.

Dramatizers in need of help

Can you wield a hammer or a paintbrush? Sew a fine seam? Write publicity? Make knickknacks? Transform an actor's face with make-up? Climb a ladder? Do electrical work? Take photographs? Would you like to learn?

If you answered yes to any of these questions, the Fort Benning Dramatizers are searching for you to fill out the production staff for Edward Albee's "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?". The play is cast, and rehearsals have begun. All military personnel, their dependents, and all civilians in the Columbus-Port Benning-Phenix City area are invited, so whether you have two hours to spare, or twenty, you're welcome to use your talents at the Playhouse (Bldg. 1237, behind the Infantry Museum). Call 545-5057 for further information.

Hayloft presents Charlie Brown comedy

"You're a Good Man, Charlie Brown" went under the lights last week as the Hayloft's second show this season. Presented by Max Estes of LaGrange College, the musical comedy will play every Thursday, Friday and Saturday night this month with a Sunday matinee each week. The play brings to life six of Charles M. Schulz's lovable "Peanuts" characters in a series of self-inserting mishaps. With failure-ridden Charlie Brown, shrewish Lucy, blanket-wielding Linus, rope skipping Patty, prodigy bound Schroeder and lovable, grandeur dreaming Snoopy, it's a play your whole family can follow to the last laugh. The evening buffet is at 5 and showtime at 8. For more information call 298-9361.

House hunting:

a deal you can't gamble on

The nature of military life can create difficulties for both the military tenant and his civilian landlord. Several situations arise that make their relationship an important one. This gives each of them special responsibilities toward the other.

The relationship means profit to the landlord, and the expectation that his property will be taken care of. The tenant is looking for quarters that will give him easy access to the post and that will be comfortable and convenient for his family.

The place to start is the Housing Referral Office. It is a policy that all personnel who require off post housing process through this office. A personalized service is offered to locate suitable housing within a reasonable commuting distance of one's duty station and within one's financial limitations. These housing activities offer equal opportunity for all uniformed members and their dependents, irrespective of their race, color, creed, national origin or sex.

"It's certainly been a help to the new soldier on post," said Charles S. Pemberton, assistant referral officer at the Housing Referral Office. "Primarily we want to give him a list of places that are available within a desired price range. We can save him hours of running around."

The first thing for a tenant to do after finding a suitable house or apartment is to understand what he is signing. It's best to see the Legal Assistance Office for any questions. Before signing an application for a lease, he should make sure the money he has deposited to hold the unit will be refunded if the property doesn't become available within a stated time limit.

The tenant may also be asked to post a security deposit, normally payable before he moves into the leased quarters. It is usually equivalent to a month's rent and is intended to pay the cost of any repairs for which the tenant may be responsible when he moves out. If the house or apartment is kept in good shape so that no such repairs are necessary, the deposit should be returned when the tenant leaves.

The tenant should be aware that he has legal support for some things not covered by a lease. Certain types of fraud, mistake or duress in the execution of a lease will make a lease voidable by the injured party, usually the tenant. For example, the concealment of material defects in the leased premises may amount to fraud, which would enable the tenant to void the lease. A legal person can better interpret these conditions.

As a general rule, the landlord draws up the lease. Unless it is expressly forbidden in the lease, a tenant may assign or sublet his leasehold interest without the landlord's consent.

Because military families have special problems, the lease should be drawn to protect their interests as well as those of the landlord. The lease is a contract, and all the rights and obligations of both parties should be spelled out. Usually it describes the premises to be leased and it must state precisely what the rental cost is and when the lease term begins and ends. Once again, it is best to check through Legal Assistance if there are any questions. Once the lease is signed, the tenant has obligated himself to many responsibilities.

Every military tenant should insist that a "military clause" be inserted into his lease. It generally states that the tenant can terminate the lease subject to payment of a specified amount. It is a provision intended to let a military tenant end his lease prematurely for reasons connected with his military service. There is no standard military clause and the wording is a matter for the negotiation between the prospective landlord and tenant.

The wording of the clause may permit the tenant to end the lease on 30 days' written notice to the landlord if the tenant receives permanent change-of-station orders, if he is relieved from active duty, or if he has leased the property prior to arrival and his orders are changed to a different area before he moves in.

MSG Lacy Starks, operations NCO for the Race Relations Coordinating Office was asked if there is any off-post housing discrimination problem. "About 90 per cent of the complaints we receive stem from people who don't check into housing referrals," he said. "If commanders would insure people checking into this, many of these problems would be eliminated."

MSG James T. Carey, also from the Race Relations Coordinating Office, says that many people just don't submit complaints, making the situation harder to correct. "Many people just don't fight the system. They're geared towards segregation. Military personnel move from one post to another and they don't want to fight local problems," Carey said.

Those complaints which are registered are handled immediately. An investigation is initiated within three days of a housing discrimination complaint. A verifier, a volunteer who aids in determining if discrimination is being practiced, is used if necessary. If the complaint is substantiated, restrictive sanctions are imposed against the agent.

There are other less formal aspects to the landlord/tenant relationship. Some leasing agreements specify the provision of some utilities such as water, gas, electricity and heat by the landlord. The good tenant makes an effort to conserve utilities, even if there is no extra charge to him.

Also, the interior and exterior of the home should be kept clean. It is sometimes natural for the tenant to take less care of a rented apartment than of property he owns, but such responsibilities may be stipulated in the lease.

"I'm an old military man myself and I know what it's like to be in a renting situation," said one of the largest realtors in Columbus. "Our policy is to make conditions as comfortable for the military tenant as possible, especially for the lower EM who makes little enough money to begin with. We're flexible and that's the only way we can be. For the most part the military tenant is a good one. They usually advise us if they are having pay problems or if they're moving. It's not that much of a problem because we're conditioned for them. Just as easily as a man gets orders to move out, another man arrives here and needs a place to live right now. Besides, here in Columbus, in as much as our tenants are military, so are many of our landlords."

Another smaller realtor in Columbus is also retired military. "Our tenants run 60 per cent civilian and 40 per cent military. I like a military family because they are more disciplined in their cleaning. We work closely with the Ft. Benning housing office and I must commend them on the work they're doing for the soldier. Problems with the military tenant are rare. They have problems unlike civilians, so we're understanding, but being retired gives me an extra dimension into these problems."

Mr. James D. Horne, housing referral office, DIO, said that they're having problems getting people to process through his office. "Some don't check with us prior to making an off-post commitment and that's when they'll run into obstacles. In 1973 we housed 2,910 military families through HRO. There were only nine complaints of unfavorable discrimination during that year, some of which were invalidated or reconciled upon investigation. We've resolved disputes between landlords and tenants involving improper cleaning, alleged damage to property and improper withholding of security deposits. That's what we're here for—guidance," he concluded.

197th films commercial

A group of 197th Infantry Brigade recently took part in the filming of a recruiting commercial for the U.S. Army Recruiting Command.

Production manager Wayne Carmona of Myers and Eisenstat Films, Inc., and his camera crews were in the brigade area filming infantrymen and tankers in tactical operations.

The cast, Lt. William R. Rheem and his platoon from Company A, 1st Bn. (Mech.), 58th Inf. (Patriots), SSG Arthur T. Deering and his squad from Company B, 3rd Bn., 7th Inf. (Cottonbalers), and SSG Kenneth R. Benden with his tank and crew from Co. A, 2nd Bn., 69th Armor, "were superb", said Mr. Carmona as the filming progressed.

Although some of the filming sequences were necessarily staged, realism was the main objective of the filming.

In addition to filming combat training, soldier models from the "Cottonbalers" and the tank battalion were filmed for the commercial.

According to Mr. Patrick Cunningham of NW Ayers Advertising, New York, N. Y., the commercial is scheduled for airing in July. In addition a version of the commercial will be provided recruiting offices throughout the United States.

Recently the Executive Directors of the Association of the United States were invited to testify before the Total Force Study Group of the Department of Defense, in relation to the latest edition of the position paper entitled "Response to the Brookings Institution Study on the U. S. Reserve Forces."

The following are parts of the presentation to the Department of Defense Total Force Study Group.

"We feel rather strongly that in today's world climate, the U. S. total forces are, if anything, too meager for the broad spectrum of potential requirements. This concerns us particularly because we feel that adequate discernible strength plays such a vital role in deterrence."

"Our national interests are reflected in all parts of the globe, and we must always be concerned that we have adequate forces to defend those interests if the occasion requires. It is our view that our current 1 1/2 war strategy and the 21-division total force, including supporting elements, are the absolute minimum credible force that we need. Were it not for the improvements in weapons, transportation and other equipment, such a size force for such strategy would unquestionably be too small."

"There are some who feel that we hazard the survival of the United States in the assumed scenario of the 1 1/2 war strategy. It is, after all, an arbitrary assumption of the capabilities and probable intentions of our potential adversaries and their cooperation in our assumed timetable."

"In his testimony before the House Armed Services Committee last February, the Army's Chief of Staff, General Abrams, said: 'It would be wrong for me to sit here and say we must have some set me number of divisions or so many men or any given amount of equipment. I can tell you how much we need to assure a high probability of accomplishing our national strategy without using nuclear weapons — which would be on the order of 30 divisions — and I can also point out a level below which we would have no better than a marginal chance of succeeding. The end strength we have asked for — 13 1-3 active divisions and eight Reserve Component divisions — permits us to field a force which gives us that chance and allows us to sustain it, but will leave virtually no room for error.' We subscribe fully to that statement."

"A second point that we feel imperative to consider at this time is the very major efforts which are being made in all of the Services to improve the management and readiness assistance to the Reserve Components."

"There is evidence from all sides that the Reserve Components are responding admirably to the additional challenges that have been given to them in their role of active partnership under the total force concept. The fact that the great majority of Reserve Component units are at the highest levels of readiness they ever attained is clear indication of their ability to develop a greater capability for earlier response and to meet their mission commitments. In our view, this can be accomplished most quickly in a stable environment."

Interested members of this Association, and other personnel, may ask for a copy of this statement — available at the School Library, Infantry Hall.

EASTER SUNRISE SERVICE

Easter Sunrise Service will be conducted at 7:30 a.m., Sunday, April 14, on York Field. Guest speaker will be Chaplain (BG) Thaddeus F. Malanowski, Deputy Chief of Army Chaplains. The public is requested to bring blankets or lawn chairs to augment the limited seating facilities.

PROJECT TRANSITION NOTICE

The Project Transition Automatic Data Processing class that was scheduled for Apr. 15 through May 31 has been cancelled. All personnel that applied for this class are requested to contact Project Transition at 545-2178 or stop by Bldg. 35, room 241.

TOYS NEEDED

The United States Army Infantry Center (USAIC) Confinement Facility is repairing toys and teenage items to be given away for the annual Christmas project. If you have any old toys or items suitable for teenagers, please bring them to ACS, located in Bldg. 83, or the back gate of the Confinement Facility, located across from the Main Post gas station. For free pick-up, call 545-5904. For more information call LT March at 545-1601.

HANDLING OF DUD AMMUNITION

All ranges and training areas on the Fort Benning Reservation are particularly dangerous because they contain unexploded ammunition. Persons who enter these areas are in extreme danger, especially children who, in the exercise of their natural curiosity, will pick-up a harmless looking object. Children are unaware of the danger they put themselves in when they pick up an object, such as ammunition. Sometimes, merely walking by a dud produces enough vibration to release the firing mechanism and cause the shell to explode. In most cases, preventive instruction and adherence to safety regulations could have avoided the misery and grief that are caused by this type of accident. Parents are reminded to continually caution their children about the dangers to which they expose themselves when they enter ranges on the reservation. Parents should exercise sufficient control over the activities of their children to be aware of their location at all times.

Oldest WP grad dies

BG (Ret) James B. Crawford, who was the oldest living graduate of the West Point Society of Fort Benning and Columbus, died April 8 in Auburn, Alabama. General Crawford was born in New York in 1888 and graduated from the Military Academy in 1911. After commissioning into the Coast Artillery Corps, General Crawford served as an instructor and graduate manager of Athletics at USMA from 1914-1924, instructor CGSC 1933-1935, CG, AATC, Fort Bliss 1941-1943, and Secretary of War Review Board 1943-1944. After retiring in 1946, General Crawford served as Assistant Professor of Mathematics at Auburn University from 1948-1959. General Crawford will be buried with full military honors at West Point, New York, on 13 April 1974.
