"I find I have to run at about three-quarters speed or I don't get much out of it. The only time I run at a slower pace is when I'm running with other people," he said.

Moore ran a 4:23 mile and 9:39 2-mile during high school. He didn't begin running again until three years after graduation.

"I started running again to get back into shape. Right now running is my favorite sport. I really enjoy it. I enjoy being with running friends and being in shape," Moore said.

Moore ran in the Western States 100-mile Trail Run, completing 56 miles.

"I just decided to do it. I hadn't really been training for it. I had these friends follow me in a truck," he said laughing. "Running that distance is a lot different than a marathon (26 miles and 385 yards). You really have a lot of time to hink. During the run they had these mandatory rest stops and my legs tightened up and I had to quit. I went over and fell into the truck telling my friends to drive home."

Tony hopes to try out for the All-Army Track Trials next year, running the 10-kilometer race.

"Hopefully I can train in Korea and make it next year," commented the young man, who runs 10 kilometers in 33 minutes and 58 seconds.

Army Chief approves awards changes

Awards and decorations will not be based on a soldier's grade, but "should reflect both the individual's level of responsibility and manner of performance," according to Chief of Staff General Bernard W. Rogers.

Several changes to AR 672-5-1 (Military Awards) clarifying the Army Awards policy were approved by General Rogers this week.

"The decision to award a decoration and the decision as to which decoration is appropriate are both subjective, and must be made by commanders having award approval authority," he said.

"The number of non-retirement awards during the last three years has increased noticeably," Rogers added.

Commanders must make sure awards presented when soldiers PCS "are limited to exceptional cases and are not automatically awarded" at the end of a soldier's tour, Rogers said.

"Military decorations are awarded to recognize exceptional achievements, whether the achievement was a singular act or an accumulation of numerous acts over a period of time. Recommendations for awards must be based on specific achievements," he said. (ARNEWS)

Sole parents eligible

Sole parents are also eligible for an "earned income" rebate when filing their income tax returns, according to Internal Revenue Service (IRS) officials.

The earned income rebate is available to anyone who has earned less than $8,000, pays more than half the cost of keeping a household in the U.S. and has a dependent child. (ARNEWS).

Kay Crowley Energy Services

Kids can help you save energy at home

Properly guided, Georgia's youngsters can be the state's most enthusiastic energy conservationists. Since their future depends in part on the success of energy conservation measures begun today, why not enlist their support in the war on energy waste?

An easy conservation habit even extremely young children can develop is turning off any appliances that are not in use. These include lights, radios, and televisions.

Have young people list all the appliances they use each day, including the three primary energy users — heating, cooling and water heating systems. From this list, point out how energy is used and how conservation may help reduce consumption and thereby lower electric bills.

You might attach a reward to your youngsters' conservation efforts by offering to share with them any savings realized on energy bills.

Let young people prove to themselves the worth of learning a new energy-saving habit. A five-minute shower, for instance, uses less hot water than a bath with a five-minute supply of water. You can illustrate this by measuring with a yardstick the depth of water used for a bath. Later, when the shower is used, close the bathtub drain to collect the shower water. Measure the depth of the water and show how it compares with the bath-water depth.

Encourage youngsters to turn off faucets completely and report any leaks to you. A leaky faucet can add up to a big energy loss if it is allowed to drip very long. When hot water drips, it wastes energy as well as water.

Youngsters should learn to use cold water when hot water isn't necessary. Cold water can be used for such tasks as brushing teeth and washing hands.

With children contributing to conservation, home energy consumption may be reduced. Remember, too, that by conserving now, you are stretching the energy supply that will determine the availability of jobs for your children tomorrow.

Army eyes SQT changes

The Army is considering reducing or eliminating the written portion of the Skill Qualification Test (SQT) for E-1 through E-5 in combat arms MOSs, Training and Doctrine Command officials announced recently.

Similar changes may be in store for soldiers in combat support and combat service support MOSs, officials added.

Trainers, personnel managers and units in the field are reviewing the SQT based on tests conducted in combat arms MOSs, officials said. Decisions are expected by mid-summer and changes will not begin before 1980.

The SQT is intended to test a soldier's ability to do his job rather than his ability to answer written questions. SQTs conducted over a three-year period in combat arms MOSs show soldiers improve progressively in the hands-on and performance certification portions. Improvement on the written test, however, is "modest or uneven," officials explained.

In addition to reviewing the written portion of the test, officials are looking at the various standards established for the SQT. To verify proficiency in an MOSs a soldier must receive a passing score of 60 percent. In order to be promoted an 80 percent score is necessary.

Whether these standards provide a workable and equitable system for determining eligibility for promotion and reenlistment is a question that is also being reviewed. (ARNEWS)

PX, Mattel order toy missile recalled

A toy missile, part of space toy sets, has been withdrawn from sale, and the Army and Air Force Exchange Service (AAFES) and the manufacturer request that customers participate in the recall.

The hazardous item is a 1½-inch red plastic missile included as part of four Mattel "Battlestar Galactica" model toys. Having determined that the red missile is the only hazardous part of the sets, the company has initiated a voluntary recall. Parents are advised not to let children continue to play with the missile.

The toy sets involved are the model 2531 "Colonial Viper," model .532 "Cylon Raider," model 2533 "Colonial Steller Probe" and model .534 "Colonial Scarab."

AAFES offers the following options to customers for their convenience:

- Retail activities will accept return of complete toy units for full refund;
- Customers may elect to retain the non-hazardous part of the toy sets and send only the plastic missile to: Mattel Mail-In, P.O. Box 813, Hawthorne, Calif. 90250. (ARNEWS)

New OER on way

The Army is planning a major education push to explain details of a new Officer Evaluation Report (OER) that will be used later this year.

The education program, according to MILPERCEN officials, includes:

- Publication of a DA Circular and release of a TV instruction tape in June.
- Tours by briefing teams to major units and installations from May through August.

- Distribution of a revised AR 623-105 in July.

- A training package for resident and non-resident schools that will be available in August.

- A DA Pamphlet that will be given to every officer in August.

Officials say that the introduction of the new OER will include a transition period from September 15-November 1. During this period, they say, virtually all officers will receive one final OER using the current form before use of the new form takes effect. (ARNEWS)

Speaking 2-way street

By Maj. David A. Giles

Is a "cold wave" a girl in the Navy, a storm system, or a hair style? Or at the beach, might it be a ... well ... cold wave? Anyway, trying to be understood isn't always easy. What is said and what is heard may not be the same.

Or, what is meant to be said and what is actually said may not be the same. So, we have continual problems with understandings, misunderstandings and communication breakdowns.

Since teachers are in the business of communicating, some good pointers on the subject can be gained from the following instructions to teachers: "A good teacher speaks slowly and distinctly; he never shouts. His vocabulary is simple. He speaks grammatically, in complete sentences. He never uses slang. He avoids interrupting when a child is speaking. When he has asked a question, he allows the child time to think before answering. He also gives the children an opportunity to ask questions. Above all, he will maintain, and show, a genuine interest in each child as an individual. He will be quick to praise genuine effort as well as work well done."

Communicating also demands listening. Good listening. That means to pay attention to what the person said, and sometimes helping the person to say what is meant to be said. All of us have meant one thing and said something else. A good listener will forgive these mistakes and ask for a better statement.

Even Henry Ford went bankrupt before he got his Model T rolling.

Livsey to bid farewell today

By Pat Brown

Maj. Gen. William J. Livsey, Fort Benning commander since July 1977, will say good-bye to soldiers and post employees here and to the neighboring communities at a farewell review in his honor this afternoon at 3:30 p.m. on York Field.

In case of rain, the ceremony will be held in Marshall Auditorium in Infantry Hall. The public is invited to attend.

Soldiers from the Infantry School, the 197th Infantry Brigade, the 36th Engineer Group, the 34th Medical Battalion, the 1st Infantry Training Brigade, the Committee Group and the Infantry Center Headquarters Command will participate in the ceremony.

Brig. Gen. John E. Rogers, assistant commandant of The Infantry School and deputy commanding general, will be commander of troops. Music will be provided by the 283rd Army Band.

Following the ceremony, a farewell reception for Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Livsey will be held at the Fort Benning Officers' Club.

A number of other activities have been held this week in their honor including a post sergeants major luncheon hosted by CSM and Mrs. Vincent Roegiers, post sergeant major, at the Top 5 Club Tuesday; a dinner hosted by Brig.

Gen. and Mrs. Rogers for command and staff officers at Fort Benning's Supper Club on Wednesday and a luncheon hosted by the local chapter of the Association of the U.S. Army, Thursday, at the Officers' Club.

Livsey will report to his new assignment as commander, 8th Infantry Division, Bad Kreuznach, Germany on May 7. He will be accompanied by his wife, Bena Sue.

Maj. Gen. Dave Grange, commander, 2nd Infantry Division, Eighth U.S. Army, Korea, and director of The Infantry School's Ranger Department from July 1971 to September 1973, will be the new Fort Benning commander. His arrival date has not been announced.

35 named to OCS Hall of Fame here

By Betty Zimmerman

Thirty-five Officer Candidate School (OCS) graduates are to be honored in the OCS Hall of Fame induction ceremony May 4 at Fort Benning's Wigle Hall.

The 10:30 a.m. ceremony recognizes graduates from Fort Benning's OCS, any graduate commissioned in Infantry by a recognized Department of the Army Officer Candidate School and those commissioned Infantry from the Ground General School at Fort Riley, Kan., who have distinguished themselves in military or civilian pursuits.

The criteria for nomination include: have been awarded the Medal of Honor, regardless of rank; have attained the rank of colonel while serving on active duty; have been elected or appointed to an office of prominence in national or state government; or have been recognized and recommended by the commandant of The Infantry School for outstanding service.

This year's nominees include three brigadier generals, Robert J. Bradshaw and John G. Castles, ARNG (ret), and Robert L. Shirkey, USAR. Two judges, the Honorable William B. Steis and James H. Wood, will also be inducted.

The following active duty colonels are included in this year's ceremony; Maynard A. Austin, Duane R. Brofer, Ralph J. Powell, Joseph I. Brown, Richard R. Cook, Robert J. Donahue, James M. Eubanks, Robert G. Hertel, Claude T. Ivey, Charles R. Johnson, Robert A. Kells, Jerry M. King, Ronald G. Komornik, William K. Laray, Philip B. Merrick, Charles M. Murray, Douglas Schneeman and Thomas L. Trudeau.

Also to be inducted are the following USA retired colonels; Ronald R. Baskin, Hampton Dews, Faris T. Farwell, Gordon L. Graber, Lacy E. Hagood, John L. Insani, James O. McKenna, William R. Perry, Russell N. Pitts, William S. Pye, John M. Shaw and Burt E. Slater.

The Officer Candidate School Hall of Fame was begun in 1957 by the commander of the 5th Stu Bn, Lt. Col. Waldron J. Winter. It was officially dedicated on June 21, 1958. He felt that a Hall of Fame was needed to honor the contributions and achievements of OCS graduates. He felt that this recognition would act as an incentive to officer candidates both present and future.

The Hall of Fame is housed in Wigle Hall, located in the TSB's 5th Stu Bn area. It is named in honor of Lt. Thomas W. Wigle, a graduate of Infantry OCS Class No. 190 in 1943. Wigle received the Medal of Honor posthumously for gallantry in action near Monte Cassino, Italy on Sept. 14, 1944.

He was pinned down with his platoon by intense automatic weapons fire when he single-handedly rushed an enemy stronghold and silenced their machine guns. His fellow platoon members were then able to capture 36 German soldiers and proceed with their mission. But Lt. Wigle lay mortally wounded.

An oil portrait of Wigle, painted by his father, and the medal, presented to Wigle's parents by President Franklin D. Roosevelt, are displayed in Wigle Hall today along with photos of all the inductees.

Sp4 Kirk Dorn is the host.

Camellia is an apartment motel. We don't rent rooms, we rent furnished apartments with all the features of a regular motel plus added conveniences that cannot be provided with just a single room - and all at the same, or most times lower rates than the single-room motel. For example, our "standard" unit is comprised of two bedrooms, combination living room-dining room, bathroom and fully furnished kitchen including refrigerator, stove, cooking utensils, and table service for six people. These are some of the "extras" but at no extra cost. Our 100 units are in separate buildings with usually four apartments in each building, which adds to a person's or family's privacy.

Col. James F. Leighton, president, U.S. Army Infantry Board (USAIB) became the new director of the Directorate of Training Development (DTD) Monday, April 23. He replaced Col. Harold C. Van Meter, who assumed command of the 1st Infantry Training Brigade (1st ITB) on that date.

The 1st ITB was formerly commanded by Col. Carl Stiner who is on special duty in Saudi Arabia.

Col. Leighton is being replaced by Col. Arthur J. Kinzel, deputy president, USAIB.

Col. Henri Mallet, inspector general, and Col. Robert Poydasheff, staff judge advocate, will retire July 31. Mallet will be replaced by Col. Dan H. Glad you asked

Do you think that too many awards are given "automatically" when servicemembers complete an assignment?

Donald Smith

SSgt. Donald Smith, Co C 3/7th Inf.

No, I think a soldier should be rewarded for a job well done. This can and does add to the individual's drive to keep up this standard. If not rewarded for his efforts the individual starts to think no one cares and he or she slows down or even stop their initiative to make their job performance and unit better and their fellow soldier suffer for it. So drive on with the awards!

Sp5 Oscar Hernandez, 586th Engr Co (ARB)

No, I think awards are given fairly to soldiers completing an assignment. For example, to receive an ARCOM you really have to be an outstanding individual, therefore the SM must be the best to deserve such an award.

Oscar Hernandez

Pvt Thomas Clare,
HHC 36th Engr Gp (CBT)

I do not think that some of the people in my unit deserve awards everytime they complete an assignment in the unit. For example, when we go out to the field and come back we get an award from the colonel and I think it is ridiculous. Awards should be given to certain individuals who work really hard to earn an award to show recognition for a job well done.

Thomas Clare

PFC Kevin Miles, HQ HQS Cmd

Sometimes awards are given because a person fits his superiors' idea of a good soldier, and not for exceptional duty, as most awards state.

Commentary

No more 'cheap' medals

By Dale Wilson

The Army Chief of Staff recently issued a directive that will result in several changes in AR 672-5-1, Military Awards, and all I can say is, it's about time.

For years commanders have been handing out medals to soldiers departing their units like department store Santa Clauses passing out candy to the kiddies. This proliferation has cheapened the meaning of many decorations (witness the way soldiers refer to the Army Commendation Medal in their everyday jargon).

General Rogers has directed commanders to make sure awards presented to soldiers when they PCS "are limited to exceptional cases and are not automatically awarded" at the end of a soldier's tour.

I can remember when I was in Vietnam and a computer printout came down monthly from division telling each commander which soldiers in his unit had reached their fifth and 11th months in country. Based on this information, the CO could follow any one of three courses of action: (1) he could line out the soldier's name and thus preclude his getting an award; (2) he could leave the soldier's name on the list, which ultimately resulted in the award of an ARCOM; or (3) he could print the initials "BS" (how ironic!) after the soldier's name, and thus recommend him for award of the Bronze Star Medal.

Such practices have deservedly earned the wrath of the Army's top soldier.

Another sore spot with many soldiers has been the award of certain decorations based upon rank. No more. General Rogers says awards should be based upon "both the individual's level of responsibility and manner of performance."

Yes, recognition is important. But there are a number of ways in which commanders can give their troops a pat on the back without cheapening medals intended for exceptional achievements by tossing them out to nearly everybody punching out at the end of a tour.

'Garritrooper' finds field to be 'far out' experience

Just like the faithful postman, neither rain, nor snow nor sleet can stop a good Garritrooper from going to the field.

Except sometimes on weekdays.

It was like that at Camp Swampy. Sarge could never understand why Quigley, who climbed mountains and swam in ice water for the fun of it, would start to pucker when a FTX notice went up on the bulletin board.

"I can't believe you're chicken," Sarge told Quigley.

"Maybe we don't offer you enough adventure."

"Sarge, it's not that I don't want to go to the field and do my share. It's just that there's a rumor around the Army's going to do like it did with the KPs, and contract this stuff out to the civilians.

"I just don't want to be the last to go."

Flagpole Flannigan, our photographer, had a much better attitude.

"Field exercises don't bother me," he said, mouth flapping like a squad tent in a high wind.

"I wouldn't feel combat ready if we didn't go outdoors sometimes."

Guys in the platoon thought Flannigan loved those FTXs because they gave him a chance to show off his leadership potential.

"He's the one who knows which end of the truck the stuff goes in," an admiring PFC told me.

"Before Flannigan got here, we had to guess. It was a bad scene. One of the grunts said we looked like the Hongkong Drum and Bugle Corps invading the mainland."

"How does it look now?" I asked him.

"Much better," he said. "Had a guy come up from Reno and watch us do our drill. Said the only thing he ever saw better organized was the Nevada Navy trying to push-start their submarine under water."

One of the Chaplain's assistants never did get converted to the idea that leaving nave and narthex to be a martyr in the mud was necessary.

"If God had intended for us to do these things," he said, "He would have given us baggy green skins."

He was right. The guys without

Spencer High School dedication set

The new Spencer High School dedication ceremony will be held Sunday at 3 p.m. in the Spencer auditorium.

The principal speaker will be the Fort Benning assistant commandant and deputy commander, Brig. Gen. John E. Rogers.

Following Rogers' speech, Craig DuPriest will give a history of Spencer School. Dr. Franklin Douglas, principal of Spencer, will introduce the participants in the unveiling ceremony of a bust of Dr. William H. Spencer, noted black Columbus educator, for whom the school is named.

Spencer's two daughters, Ms. Ethel Spencer and Ms. Pearl Michem and Ms. Catherine Frazier, president of the Owlettes Corp., a group interested in making Spencer a greater school, are expected to participate in the unveiling.

The artist, sculptor and creator of the Spencer bust, James B. Howard, will also be recognized during the ceremony.

Freddie Marshall, noted international singer, accompanied by Troy McCall on the piano, will provide special musical entertainment and the Reverend J. H. Flakes, pastor of the 4th Street Baptist Church, will perform the invocation and benediction. Master of Ceremony will be Dr. Nathan M. Patterson, assistant superintendent of the Columbus School District.

Other special guests invited to the ceremony are: Columbus Mayor, Harry Jackson; representative from the 3rd Congressional District, State Department of Education, James Gurley; Fort Benning Schools Officer, Lt. Col. (ret.) Calvin T. Roush; Superintendent of post schools, Dr. Joseph T. Conforti; Superintendent of the Muscogee Schools, Dr. Braxton Nail; and representative from the Muscogee School of Education, Morton Harris.

The dedication ceremony is by invitation only, but following it, everyone is invited to tour the building during Open House. Refreshments will be served.

The new Spencer school, located on 4340 Victory Drive, has been in operation since September; however, all the work on the building was only recently completed. The total cost of construction was $5,191,211.

Containing 143,464 square feet, Spencer has a maximum capacity of 1,200 students, including approximately 550 from Benning, and 71 professional staff members. It is a comprehensive high school, incorporating both college preparatory and vocational curricula.

any baggy green skins worried all the time about the weather.

"After you're here a while, you get the pattern," one said. "When the guy on TV says 70 percent chance of rain, you gotta read that 90 percent chance of field exercise."

We Garritroopers learned to never sell the Rec Services squad short. They did pretty well, once they got onto the military terminology.

"OK, Ballhawk," Sarge told one of them. "Get your gear and get out in the field."

Actually, life wasn't too grim for Garritroopers until the command got tough and said they couldn't take their POVs to the field anymore.

But some took the bad news bravely.

"There goes our concurrent travel," he said. "But I guess everybody gets an unaccompanied tour sometime."

Other Garritroopers didn't get nervous about the field until they got close to ETS.

I remember how Flannigan began showing the short-timer shakes.

"It won't be easy," he said, "readjusting to civilian life with no field to go to."

"Come off it, Flannigan," I said. "Sure it will be tough. But there are ways. Just open the windows, turn off the heat, string some barbed wire across the front yard, dump a couple of anthills in the bedroom and dig a hole in the corner to sleep in."

"A few weeks of that and you'll never miss Camp Swampy again."

Overseas extension may disqualify

Soldiers who extend past their "prescribed" overseas tour may disqualify themselves for assignment in CONUS, DA personnel officials cautioned this month.

Some soldiers mistakenly think they may return to CONUS if they meet remaining time in service requirements at their "normal" tour completion, officials say. But soldiers will not be given return CONUS assignments unless they have six months remaining service after leaving a long overseas tour area or three months after leaving a short overseas tour area, regardless of their original PCS date.

If soldiers voluntarily extend past their normal PCS date, then end up with less than the required six or three months remaining service, they may not return to CONUS, officials explained.

Soldiers who did not meet remaining requirements but who want CONUS assignment should look into extension and reenlistment options available through unit reenlistment NCOS. (ARNEWS)

Pathfinder Branch reopening

By Betty Zimmerman

"The Airborne Department's Pathfinder Branch is reopening because the Army realized the continued need for these highly trained specialists in the Combined Arms Teams' operations," stated Capt. Harrill Carswell, branch chief.

Budget cuts had closed it down in 1978, but a foreseen shortage of qualified Pathfinders brought about its inclusion in this year's funding. Two test and evaluation classes will be run before the first regular TRADOC class begins on Oct. 14.

Making adjustments

The April 16 and June 4 classes will try out the program of instruction, current doctrines and subject matters. The staff will then be able to iron out any difficulties or make any necessary adjustments before October.

"The Pathfinder School covers an entirely new environment for most Infantry soldiers," said section leader, SFC John Hester. It deals primarily with the use and control of Army helicopters and Air Force carbous for troop or cargo drops as well as directing tactical supporting fire from aircraft and artillery.

Preceding the Infantry

Pathfinder teams are inserted into a forward area by airborne drop, helicopter rappelling or foot patrol. They must then clear and mark an area for the following Infantry soldiers. If artillery support or air attacks are found to be necessary before troops can be safely inserted, then they must radio for this support. Even before this action, they have prepared and loaded the equipment which will accompany the incoming soldiers. When the area is ready, they then direct the troop-carrying aircraft to the desire drop zone.

The students spend two weeks of this three-week school learning the basics of land navigation, slingload operations, aircraft rappelling and air traffic control. Also, packing and preparing equipment containers, helicopter landing zone techniques, drop zone techniques, aerial navigation and Pathfinder plans and operations.

During three days of the final week, the class will go to the field for a 50-hour exercise. This hands-on performance test is strictly graded on a "go" or "no go" basis. Any mistake by a

Students watch a buddy descend.

Pathfinder can cause disaster, so they must be right.

All students must now be Airborne qualified. There are 36 in each class, divided into three sections and each section trains and operates in two six-man teams.

Threat doctrine

One of the most noticeable changes in the program of instruction is the switch from jungle-type counter-guerrilla enemies with no air superiority and inferior surveillance equipment to the current threat doctrine.

Presently, Pathfinders are being trained to control aircraft lower altitudes to avoid the enemy's more sophisticated surveillance equipment. This will require use of contour, low-level and nap of the earth flying for troop insertion.

The entire course stresses air traffic control procedures. The students must learn about helicopter tactical instrument flying with minimal voice control. They must know NAVAIDS, homing beacons for aerial checkpoints, as well as the characteristics and capabilities of the aircraft being used. They also learn how to plot dead reckoning and communicate by radio. All of this knowledge is necessary to be able to direct insertion operations.

Senior instructor, MSgt. Rafael Corella, said that the Pathfinder School is the only Army school that teaches sling-load procedures. This is the skill of moving artillery and Infantry units by cargo aircraft.

Front line action

"Most of Pathfinder operations are done on the forward edge of the battle area (FEBA) and of course, many times in enemy-held areas. This fact alone shows you that anyone wearing the Pathfinder Torch Badge is prepared to constantly face danger and to be responsible for the safety of many others as well," continued Corella.

Dud collecting is serious business

By Bill Brady

The Army has been putting out a lot of warnings lately about picking up duds on the firing ranges, and some of the people are getting a little tired of it.

"They worry too much," says 'Lefty' Smertz, a retired PFC who claims to have the largest collection of mostly unexploded ammunition in the area.

Smertz said it's bad when kids and young troops mess around with stuff they find in the impact area, but that he's smart and can handle it.

"They don't have it figured out like I do," he said. I asked him if the reason he's called 'Lefty' was because of the stump where his right hand used to be.

"Oh that," he said. "A rifle grenade got it. But that was before I learned to carry a flashlight when I snuck into the impact area at night."

"Pretty shrewd. Was that how you lost your leg?"

"No," Smertz said. "That was last year. But that was just a freak deal. Wouldn't happen again in a million years."

"What wouldn't happen?"

"That I'm hauling a load of dummy stuff off the range, not a live round in the whole bunch, and some crazy infantry outfit decides to lay some mines.

"Wow, I can believe that. Incidentally, do you always wear a patch over your eye?"

"Just about," Smertz said. "It looked better that way. Some people are squeamish and it bugs them to look at an empty socket."

"You'd think they'd be more used to things like that," I said, "what with all these dumb guys getting hurt fooling around with old ammunition."

"Look," said Smertz, "that's not me. I was doing everything right when this happened. I had some machine gun rounds stashed perfectly safe in the woodpile by my garage.

"How could I know that one of the guys I had over for a backyard party would throw the damn things in the barbecue pit?"

I agree that things like that just couldn't be anticipated.

"Well, it's like my daddy used to say, you got to be careful and not take any chances. My daddy, now he was real smart, and never had any trouble with the old ammo he collected, right up to the day he died."

"What happened to him?"

"He got blown away by a practice bomb, one of those that is filled with sand."

"If it was sand, how could it blow it up?"

"No way, if it wasn't for the bad markings. The paint was so lousy it wore off and there was no way to tell it was a real bomb."

Kay Crowley Energy Services

Efficient home lighting
may reduce energy demand

Although electricity for lighting the average Georgia home costs only pennies a day, consumers heeding the following guidelines will avoid using energy unnecessarily.

1. When selecting new bulbs, check the packages for the lumens rating. Lumens are a measure of light output. Two bulbs of the same wattage use an equal amount of electricity, but the bulb with the higher lumens rating produces more light.

2. When selecting a new light fixture, remember that one higher wattage bulb can produce more light than two or more bulbs of the same total wattage. For example, one 100-watt incandescent bulb glows with approximately 50 percent more light than four 25-watt bulbs. In existing fixtures, however, it is best to use bulbs recommended by the manufacturer although lower wattage bulbs may be used if desired.

3. Long-life bulbs emit less light than standard bulbs of the same wattage. Use them only where bulb replacement is difficult.

4. Fluorescent bulbs are more economical than incandescent bulbs. Using these bulbs in areas where good light is necessary can raise the light level as well as save energy. Higher wattage fluorescent bulbs are generally more efficient than lower wattage bulbs.

5. When leaving a room, turn lights off using standard bulbs even if it is only for a few minutes. Turning fluorescent lights on and off frequently, however, will shorten their lives.

6. Three-way bulbs can provide energy savings. A dimmer switch can also provide more efficient use of energy by allowing you to choose the lighting level.

7. Outdoor lighting should be used for safety and security. The most energy efficient bulb for this purpose is the mercury bulb, which should be controlled by a photo-electric cell.

8. Check bulbs often to make sure they are clean and in working order. A blackened bulb emits less light though it uses the same amount of electricity as a new bulb. Change blackened bulbs before they burn out and use in areas requiring less light.

9. When lamps are used, shades of moderate to high transluence will provide more light. Remember that walls and furniture with light surfaces reflect more light than dark surfaces, so try to arrange lighting to take advantage of reflection.

10. When possible, use daylight to supplement or replace interior lighting.

The average Georgia home uses about 200 kwh monthly for light. While careful use may produce only modest savings on electric bills, it should be made part of a comprehensive home energy management program.

VA Q&A

Q — I am currently entitled to CHAMPVA benefits but will reach age 65 next month. How will this affect my CHAMPVA benefits?

A — At age 65 you become eligible for Social Security Medicare benefits. You lose CHAMPVA benefits.

Q — I have an NSLI loan outstanding on which the annual interest charge is four percent on the unpaid balance. I desire to initiate another loan. Will the interest rate remain the same?

A — No. All insurance loans issued on or after Jan. 11, 1971, carry an annual interest rate of five percent. However, the existing loan will continue to bear the four percent interest rate.

Q — What must I do to apply for an increase in my VA disability compensation?

A — In order to get a re-evaluation you must submit a request along with evidence to support the claim, preferably medical evidence. If treatment has been provided at a VA facility, indicate where and when. The necessary treatment reports may be obtained by the VA.

Q — What is the Veterans Administration's definition of a "helpless child"?

A — A helpless child is a child who becomes permanently incapable of self-support due to a mental or physical defect before reaching the age of 18.

Q — What period is considered World War II wartime service for pension benefits?

A — The period from Dec. 7, 1941, through Dec. 31, 1946, is considered wartime service by the VA for pension benefits.

Soldier's comments sought on Army fund raising

Unit bulletin boards will display a notice of soldiers' rights to comment on a proposed settlement agreement in a classification lawsuit concerning the Combined Federal Campaign.

The class action lawsuit was filed by three enlisted members who challenged certain practices relating to the Army's participation in the annual Combined Federal Campaign program.

They filed damage claims under the privacy act on behalf of themselves and other members of the Army unwilling to contribute to CFC or who prefer to make their contribution choices without undue pressure.

According to DA officials, the parties involved have agreed on a settlement. A notice of the proposed settlement is being distributed throughout the Army for posting on each company-sized unit bulletin board.

The notice relates only to the non-monetary claim made for all Army people wishing to be free of undue pressure in future CFC campaigns and will be posted through May 18.

The posting of the notice will allow soldiers who wish to object or comment on the settlement to do so.

The proposed settlement would require the Army to comply with certain requirements when conducting the CFC campaign. Some of these requirements are:

- No commander or supervisor will be appointed a key person with respect to persons under his or her control or supervision;

- One-on-one or small-group solicitations by commanders or supervisors are prohibited;

- Each individual may choose not to contribute or may make an anonymous donation;

- An individual may make a contribution or return a contribution form in a sealed envelope to be mailed to a central receiving office if desired;

- Sealed envelopes returned to a key person will be forwarded through channels without being opened;

- As a result of the lawsuit, AR 600-29, fundraising within Department of the Army will be amended.

Soldiers who do not feel that the proposed settlement is fair, adequate, and reasonable, or that it will not sufficiently protect a person's right to make a free, or voluntary choice on CFC, may object to the settlement in writing, stating their reasons.

Any objection or comment must be post-marked no later than May 15, 1979, and mailed to the Clerk, U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia, U.S. Courthouse, Washington, D.C. 20001. (ARNEWS)

LES leave balances explained for soldiers

Some soldiers may find they lost money by taking leave, according to Army finance officials.

Leave and Earning Statement (LES) forms have two blocks that show leave balances, officials explained.

Block 50 shows the leave balance earned before September 1976. Leave days in this block can be cashed in for base pay, separate rations and housing allowance.

Since September 1976, however, the law limits cash in leave payments to base pay only, officials said.

Block 33 on the LES shows the amount of leave which can be cashed in for base pay at separation or retirement.

If at any time the leave balance in Block 33 goes below the balance in Block 50, the same number of days will be subtracted from Block 50 permanently, officials said.

For example, you may have 60 days leave in Blocks 33 and 50. If you take a 16-day leave, your end leave balance will be 45.5 days in both blocks (60 minus 16 plus 1.5 accrued during the leave).

To avoid this, officials said, make sure the balance in Block 33 and the number of days you will accrue during your leave is more than the balance in Block 50.

For example, you may have 55 days leave in Block 33 and 30 days in Block 50. If you take a 16-day leave, your end leave balance in Block 33 will show 30.5 days (55 minus 16 plus 1.5 accrued). The leave balance in Block 50 will remain unchanged since you didn't go under 30 days.

Leave accrues at the following rate each month: 1-6 days, .5; 7-12 days, 1; 13-18 days, 1.5; 19-24 days, 2; 25-31 days, 2.5. (ARNEWS)

Private receives recognition

By Ken Gamache

Pvt. Peter R. Johnson, C-3-1, was recently informed that he was selected to have his biography published in the book, "Who's Who Among American High School Students." Johnson attended Lake Zurich Illinois High School where he was named Illinois State Scholar for the 1978-79 school year, as well as receiving Honorable Mention on the National Merit Scholarship Test.

Johnson sees the Army as a great source to gain individual independence. He explained, "I enjoy the challenge and the new experience we're confronted with every day and I'm also looking forward to doing some traveling."

Army experience is nothing new to Johnson. His grandfather is a retired career soldier and his brother is currently serving in Germany. "I attended my brother's AIT graduation and was really impressed with what I saw. I'm really proud to be part of the great Army tradition," he said. For the future, Johnson is considering making the Army his career.

2/69th puts punch in combined arms training

Helping to make combined arms training more realistic for Infantry School students is the 197th Inf Bde's 2nd Bn, 69th Arm — "the Infantry's armor."

On any given day, tankers from the battalion may be found scattered all over Fort Benning performing any number of missions ranging from support of a mechanized Infantry assault in an Infantry Officer Basic Course ARTEP to driving over AIT students in foxholes to assisting Infantry Officer Advanced Course students in learning to deploy tanks and mech Infantry in the defense.

They can also be found training hard to maintain the combat readiness demanded of FORSCOM'S TO&E tank battalions.

Dual mission not easy

This dual mission is no easy task, says Lt. Col. Roy D. Kimerling, battalion commander. Neither has priority over the other. On the one hand, he explained, the unit must maintain the high state of readiness required of all the units in the 197th Inf Bde. But, he added, Infantry School commitments can't be taken lightly, either.

"We're training future leaders of the Army, whether they be officers or NCOs," he said, "and in many cases our tanks are the first they've seen up close. How they react toward the use of armor in combined arms operations in the future may depend on how well we impress our capabilities on them while they're in the Infantry School."

Getting that message across is no easy task, at least from a maintenance viewpoint. In most armor battalions, tanks are down for maintenance after going out to the field. Not so in the 2/69th.

"I try to instill a sense of urgency in everyone," explained Kimerling. "We have to meet both our own training as well as school commitments, so we can't allow our tanks to be down."

Same day repair service

When a tank comes in from the field in need of repairs, "if we have the parts, we get that vehicle up the same day — even if we have to work all night to do it. There's always time we can use to compensate the crew the next day, but the vehicle must be up," Kimberling said.

Capt. Joseph G. Pallone, commander of Co B, sees his job here as "infinitely more demanding than the same job in Europe. My crews here have to do so much more than the tank crews I led in Europe — and with so much less. Tankers there have priority for spare parts and equipment. Everybody here understands that and accepts it. And, because of that acceptance, they're willing to make sacrifices in the amount of time and effort they put into their jobs. It's a real credit to our people here."

The extent of mileage run up by tanks in the battalion is best illustrated by 1st Lt. William D. Easley, the battalion maintenance officer.

"We probably put on two to three times as many miles as any other tank battalion in the Army," he said. Turning to a stack of vehicle records he observed, "I've got tanks sitting in this motor pool with 10,000 to 12,000 miles on them, and the book says we should send them in to depot for a rebuild at 5,000. Last year we changed about 35 engines, an average of about one engine change per tank in the battalion."

But training is the key to readiness for the battalion. Important as maintenance is, it does little good to have a combat-ready vehicle if the crew isn't ready to handle it.

Currently, the tankers are undergoing their annual tank gunnery qualification. Although Benning is an Infantry post, according to Pallone, its ranges compare favorably with those he fired in Germany.

"In fact," he pointed out, "the range here where we run Table VIII, the Tank Crew Qualification Course, is a notch better, in my opinion, than Range 80 at Grafenwoehr."

Still, with all the school commitments, working in individual and crew training isn't easy.

Opposing force role

"We work a lot in an opposing forces role," said Kimerling, "so I let my lieutenants run their platoons out there. Each is able to develop his tactical skills and it also serves as a plus for drivers, who learn to pick their way through terrain."

When crews encounter dead time in a school support mission they use it to work on Soldiers Manual tasks, rather than wait and try to work it into a training schedule.

"Every commitment provides a training opportunity for us," concluded Kimerling, "and we take advantage of it."

GI Bill running out for vets

Approximately 854,000 Vietnam Era veterans will lose their GI Bill eligibility during fiscal year 1979, according to data released recently by the Veterans Administration.

The estimate is based on the number of veterans who will reach the tenth anniversary of their separation from military service when, by law, their GI Bill rights expire.

VA Administrator Max Cleland said that although the Vietnam Era GI Bill has been used by a record 65 percent of veterans, many thousands more still have time to make beneficial use of the program.

"We're doing all we can to make veterans aware of the time factor," Cleland said. "A veteran's GI Bill entitlement is much too valuable to lose."

In issuing the figures, VA pointed out that in order for veterans to make full use of their earned benefits, they should start a program early enough to complete it before the ten-year time limit. Veterans in the midst of a degree or training objective lose their right to VA payments ten years after their separation date.

VA estimates that by the end of 1984 more than half the veterans eligible today will have passed the ten-year limit.

Some tours extended

Command tours for colonels and lieutenant colonels serving in Europe are being extended from 18 to 24 months, according to a policy approved by Army Chief of Staff General Bernard W. Rogers recently.

The 24-month command tours have been used on a test basis since October 1976. (ARNEWS)

"There are so many ways the GI Bill can be adapted to individual needs and circumstances," Cleland said. "I hate to see anyone lose their rights to this program simply because they let time slip by."

Barracudas compete in AAU Junior Olympics

by Jim Tillman

"AT THE TIME OF THE FULL MOON, OF THE MONTH OF APOLLONCIUS, IN THE YEAR THAT WE NOW RECKON AS 776 B.C., THERE WAS A GREAT FOOT RACE IN A MEADOW BESIDE THE RIVER ALPHEUS AT OLYMPIA, AND ONE COROEBUS WAS THE WINNER. HE WAS CROWNED WITH A WREATH OF WILD OLIVE AND BECAME THE FIRST OLYMPIC VICTOR."

With the visions of Mark Spitz's victories at the Olympic games, eighteen members of the Fort Benning swim team traveled to Gainesville, Ga., April 21 and 22 for the twelfth annual Georgia AAU Junior Olympics (J.O.).

Beginning with the eight-year-olds and going through the Senior age group, the Barracudas joined over 575 other swimmers from throughout the state in the 567 heats of the 84 events of competition. Expecting stiff competition, the 'Cudas were not disappointed when several events were won in AAA, AAAA, and state record-breaking time.

Three of the Barracudas placed in their individual events and came home with their prized medals from the 1979 "games".

Placing in five of her six events, eight-year-old Atlantis Tillman placed fourth in the 25-yard butterfly with an 18.50 A time, fourth in the 100-yard individual medley with a 1:33.48 A time, and fourth in the 25-yard free style with a 17.32 A time. She placed seventh in her 25 back, narrowly missing the sixth place cutoff with her 20.88 A time.

Continuing on during her second day of competition, after the setback in the 25-yard backstroke, Atlantis finished fifth place in both her 25-yard breaststroke and 50-yard freestyle with A time standards of 22.86 and 38.17 respectively.

Sixteen-year-old Brigitte Pangelinan was out-reached by Betty Horuat of the Athens Swim Club during the 100-yard butterfly. Brigitte turned in a 1:10.34 while Betty had a 1:09.9. Pangelinan had to face the same disappointment in the 100-yard breaststroke, when Leslie Broadhurst, Albany Swim Club, turned in a 1:22.93 over Brigitte's 1:24.94. On the second day, Brigitte placed sixth in the 100-yard backstroke with a 1:18.30 to wrap up a successful weekend of swimming.

The second day of swimming also found one of the newer 'Cudas taking his shot at being the best in his event. Eight-year-old Seth Hayse received his first A time standard and got the sixth place medal at the same time. In his first year at Fort Benning, Seth placed with his 22.81 in the 25-yard breaststroke.

Although the Barracudas did not take all the gold out of Gainesville, several swimmers greatly improved their times with as much as ten seconds dropped off in some events.

Be it the excitement of the J.O.'s or the determination of these young men and women, the Barracudas contributed tremendously to one of the most successful junior olympics in the twelve years of its history.

With only one swim meet remaining in the 1979 AAU short course, the prestigious tenth annual Junior Jaguar Invitation in Augusta, the Barracudas are looking forward to the beginning of the summer long course. Along with the coming of summer, the rotation of military families to other parts of the world begins also. The Barracudas, not being exempted from this, are losing a number of their swimmers.

Now is the time to come to the Briant Wells pool and join the team. Coach Rich Fagersten and the Barracudas are seeking more swimmers who enjoy the fun and spirit of competition swimming. Interested dependents should contact Rick either at the pool or call 682-1833.

USAMU active in rifle championship competition

Lones Wigger of the U.S. Army Marksmanship Unit showed his world championship form by dominating most of the action last weekend during the Champion of Champions Invitational Rifle Tournament held April 21-22.

The two-time Olympic Gold Medal winner posted scores of 1,159 and 1,162 in smallbore free rifle competition to defeat Thomas Whitaker, an Army Reservist from Montebello, Calif. Wigger totaled 2,321 points to Whitaker's 2,310. Miss Elaine Proffitt, Titusville, Fla., turned in an impressive performance to finish third and win High Collegiate Honors with 2,307 points.

In the 60 shot prone event, Wigger edged teammate Philip Whitworth by one point with 1,195 points to 1,194. Whitaker picked up the third spot with 1,192.

Wanda Jewell, last year's gold medal winner in the World Championships, fired 389 out of 400 in the Air Rifle competition to win another close match over teammate Linda Baily who finished with 388. Wigger placed third at 386. In Air Rifle team competition the squad of Jewell (389), Baily (388), Wigger (386) and Karen Monez (382) established a new National Team Record scoring 1,545 points out of 1,600. The old record of 1,530 points was also held by the U.S. Army.

In other team competition, U.S. Army squads won three of the four team championships losing only to the USAR.

A total of 78 competitors were on hand for the championships including representatives from the different branches of service and the national team from Canada.

Former pro now All-Army cager

The following article is the first in the BAYONET'S Sports Spotlight series. The series will appear in random issues of the BAYONET and will spotlight Fort Benning sports personalities in a variety of athletic activities.

By Seth Hamilton

James King is a specialist four working for Fort Benning's Recreation Services. King's favorite pasttime is basketball. As a matter of fact, he stands a good chance of turning pro when he gets out of the Army next year.

At six feet, seven inches tall and 240 pounds, King is well qualified at his center position. He started for the Doughboys' basketball team this past season but was selected to play for the All-Army team and had to leave the Doughboys just after the season got underway.

Playing on All-Army teams has gotten to be a habit with King. He played for the Interservice Champion Army team for the last two seasons. The Interservice Championship, which is among the military's more prestigious events, has been dominated by Army teams for the past 25 years. The Army won this year's match in an exciting final against the Air Force at Camp Pendleton, Calif., last month.

King also played center for the combined (Army-Navy-Air Force—Marines) service team that competed in the CISM games held in Damascus, Syria. The CISM games are an international military competition. Teams from 18 countries competed in the games, but a strong U.S. team walked away with first place.

King has also played for the Army All-Star team at Army Headquarters, Belgium. During his Army play, he has won three gold medals.

James King was born and raised in Columbus and played three years of varsity before graduating in 1972.

After high school, King played four years of college basketball while majoring in criminology. King was picked as an All-American, while playing in his junior year at the University of Mississippi.

When King graduated from college in 1976, he went to the New Orleans Jazz training camp as a free agent. He was the last man cut for the final regular season roster.

After a year layover that saw King working as a patrolman, he joined the Army for the "adventure and challenge." King originally started as a military policeman, but after working there for about six months he moved over to his present position with recreation services.

The future looks bright for James King. He is going to give professional basketball another try, this time he feels he'll make it. He has the New Orleans Jazz and the Golden State Warriors in his sights. He also plans to finish his masters degree in criminology and possibly teach criminology at the college level. But whether he makes it in the NBA or not, King will always be involved in basketball whether as a player or a coach because, obviously, basketball is a big part of James King's life.

Runner's profile

Harrier psyching out running's challenge

Fred Dyer

By Julie Casey

Boston Marathon qualified, Dr. Fred Dyer, research psychologist and work unit leader at the Army Research Institute Field Unit, began running on a dare from a friend.

"I seriously started running for health reasons about five years ago. I could hardly make it out of my subdivision," commented Dyer.

Working up to six miles every other day, in 1976 Dyer ran his first race in Florida.

"I did terrible and didn't run another race until the Benning Volks Festival the following fall. I ran in the five-mile run and placed first in my age group. From then on I was hooked on competition," said the 41-year-old runner.

He had really begun to enjoy running, feeling fantastic after a run.

"I feel that the pleasant feeling is directly proportional to the length of the hardest workout," he explained. As a result Dyer continued to build his mileage base.

"Running makes getting older easier. I just can't believe or I don't feel that I'm getting older when I'm running farther and faster every year."

He completed his sixth marathon in November 1978 at the Callaway Gardens Marathon in 2 hours 59 minutes and 49 seconds.

"I really liked the Callaway Gardens course. It is one of the most beautiful courses in the south," he said.

His wife, Dr. Jean Dyer, also has taken up the sport. She recently completed her first mini-marathon (13.1 miles). She came across the finish line with a confident smile.

"I really enjoy running. It breaks up my afternoon and the competition at races is fun. You form good friendships running in competition, especially those you run near during a race," he said, adding that most of them are younger than he.

Fred's goal is to run an ultra-marathon (50 miles or more).

Dyer's plans to chair a symposium next year on the psychological effects of physical endurance.

"We want to find out if a person's cardio-vascular system is in better shape, would that person be able to handle stress better than someone who isn't. The study will also include stress that doesn't necessarily involve physical activity," he commented.

Fred will probably find answers to some of his questions at mile 45 during his ultra-marathon.

CSM still keeps up

By Betty Zimmerman

The Infantry School's Command Sergeant Major, James J. Gallagher, made his 100th airborne jump April 19.

It was in May, 1977 when the "not-so-young" sergeant major went through Benning's Airborne School. He said he pulled details such as pulling weeds on the drop zone and did push-ups just like any other student.

In fact, he vividly remembers one of his bad days, when he swears he struggled through a total of at least 300 push-ups for various infractions.

Gallagher jumps almost every week with the basic airborne students on their first aircraft exit. He loves sharing their excitement, motivation and enthusiasm.

His airborne career will end soon as he retires May 31, but Gallagher stressed that because of daily running and maintaining good physical condition, he could continue parachuting for many more years.

CSM James Gallagher makes his 100th jump.

New operations, intelligence course offered

By John V. Williams

Supervised-On-The-Job Extension Training (SOJET) is the name given to a new training program designed to assist duty position supervisors in conducting on-the-job training.

The first training to be offered under this new program is for the operation and intelligence duty positions in infantry, armor, field artillery, and air defense artillery branches.

The positions are operations or intelligence sergeants at skill level five, assistant operations or intelligence sergeants at skill level four and operations or intelligence assistant/specialist at levels one through three.

The SOJET program was developed to enable supervisors to increase job effectiveness of their personnel and their sections with only a minimal loss of time from the sections operational mission.

The program also enables the individual to develop greater proficiency and improve their opportunities for career advancement.

The enrollment process under SOJET differs from the standard correspondence course program. Enrollment is accomplished by completing DA 145 Army Correspondence Course Enrollment Application, enclosing a student training plan (STP), a supervisor registration form, and a supervisor agreement form.

A soldier's supervisor is a key figure in making this structured on-the-job extension training program work. The supervisor advises and assists in developing a tailored training plan and accomplishing enrollment. The purpose of the supervisor's agreement is to verify the supervisor's commitment to assist the student in completing the requested training.

Registering the supervisor assists the Army Institute for Professional Development (AIPD) to support this training by placing the subcourse testing materials directly in the hands of the supervisor.

Packets consisting of test booklets and scoring guides for each subcourse are mailed to the supervisor. Lesson study materials are mailed to the student.

The supervisor uses the Student Training Plan (STP) provided to identify task training needs for members of the supervisor's section. The STP provides instructions for using the task list, in a checklist format, to identify the section's performance level for any particular duty position. The STP highlights the proper subcourses to order. The soldier may enroll in a full duty position course or select only a few subcourses from the full course. The soldier may also cross-train by selecting subcourses from both operations and intelligence courses.

All subcourses requested in an enrollment are shipped to the supervisor and the student at the beginning of the enrollment period. This enables the supervisor and the student to establish their own priorities for sequencing the tasks for training.

Each subcourse is designed with a pretest and a post test. These tests determine whether the student can demonstrate mastery of the subcourse training objectives. The supervisor administers the pretest before the student has read the subcourse training materials.

Students meeting performance standards on the pretest are given credit for the subcourse and are not required to proceed further through the subcourse.

Soldiers not meeting the pretest standards proceed by a self-study basis through the subcourse. Upon completion, the soldiers are administered the post test.

Students failing the post test are directed to restudy lesson material pertaining to tasks unsuccessfully accomplished. After further study, the student is tested only on tasks not successfully passed earlier.

The supervisor reports the results to AIPD. Each time a subcourse test is administered, regardless of the soldier's performance. AIPD maintains the soldier's training record, notifies the student of each successful subcourse completion, credits awarded, and provides a com-

Age-old art remains popular

Story and Photos by Sharron Calabrisi

Tattoos. Why do people get them? What is the process that one has to go through to get this form of art on their bodies? Can they be removed? These are just some of the questions that people ask themselves about this age old art.

The word tattoo itself was introduced into the English language from the Tahitian word "Tatu." It was first recorded here by James Cook's expedition in 1769. The art itself goes back much further than that.

Egyptian mummies of 1300 B.C. show blue tattoo marks under their skin. Japanese and Burmese have done the most elaborate tattooing in the world. Many have had such beautiful jobs done that tell complete stories, their skins are saved when they die and put in museums.

Many Burmese have their entire bodies covered with colorful pictures of plants, animals and human faces.

Medicinal values

Tattooed designs are thought by various peoples to provide magical protection against sickness or misfortune or they serve to identify the wearer's rank, status, or membership to a group.

The Romans tattooed criminals and slaves for identification. After the advent of Christianity, tattooing was forbidden in Europe, but it persisted in the Near East and other parts of the world. In America, many Indian tribes customarily tattooed the body, face, or both.

Ancient methods

The usual technique was simple pricking but some California tribes introduced color into scratches and many tribes of Arctic and Eskimos made needle punctures through which a thread coated with pigment (usually soot) was drawn underneath the skin.

Stimulated by Polynesian and Japanese examples, tattooing 'parlors' where specialized professors applied designs on European and American sailors, sprang up in port cities all over the world.

The first electric tattooing implements were patented in the United States in 1891. The United States became a center of influence in tattoo designs, especially with the spread of United States tattooers' pattern sheets.

An artist's tools of the trade.

Tattooing has been implicated in such disorders as skin cancer and in 1961, the practice was sharply restricted by the New York City government, because of the role of contamination by tattoo equipment in the spread of hepatitis.

Col. Fred D. Frederick, dermatologist at Martin Army Hospital, explained, "Tattoos can cause allergic reactions in some people. The different pigments used can produce various ailments such as warts. Also, such complications can develop as infections, hepatitis, leprosy, and even syphilis."

Why get tattoos?

Why do people get tattoos in the first place? Many get them because of peer pressure. They have friends with tattoos and feel that in order to fit in with the group, they too must have one.

Also, many get tattoos because of sentimental reasons. Men away from their wives and lovers will have their loved one's names tattooed on their arms.

Now that we know how tattoos were derived and why some people get them, how are tattoos actually put on?

The area to be tattooed has to be shaved and thoroughly cleaned. The tattoo artist can then begin with either an acetate stencil or free handedly applying the tattoo.

A surgical type charcoal is used with the stencil to make the imprint on the area to be tattooed. The outline of the pattern is done using five needles grouped together. Various other needle combinations are used in coloring and completing the tattoo.

The area has to be washed again afterwards and a bandage is placed on to protect it from the dirt for about two to 24 hours.

Can they be removed

It was believed that once tattoos were put on, they were on for good. But now, there are various ways they can be removed.

"Tattoos can be removed, but it is a long and painful process," commented Col. Frederick. "They can be cut out in stages or skin grafts can be performed. The two methods used most commonly are dermabrasion and salabrasion. The salabrasion is a method where salt is rubbed into the skin to remove the top layer, thus eliminating the tattoo. The dermabrasion is where the tattoo is almost sanded off."

Frederick explained, "Tattoos done by professionals are not as deep and can be removed more easily than tattoos put on at home."

Children's welfare, needs observed this week

The week of April 22-April 28 has been designated as, "The Week of The Child." The purpose of this designation is to invite all persons to renew and reaffirm their concern for the present and future health and welfare of children. The children of today will eventually be the decision-makers of the world. Children are an important resource; they should be nurtured and preserved.

Every child has needs. A child needs to live and play in a safe place. He/she needs adequate nutrition, assistance and guidance with intellectual tasks, and the emotional warmth provided by continuous loving care. All of these will help a child obtain a positive attitude about himself and the world around him, and consequently, develop into a healthy self-reliant individual.

How can improvements be made in total health and welfare of children?

- Preventing accidents — Auto accidents are the single largest killer of American children and the vast majority of such deaths could be prevented by use of proper child car seats and restraints. Stop and buckle your child into a car seat. Educate your children regarding safe bicycle riding and water safety.

- Regular Immunizations — Immunizations are essential to prevent children from diseases which could be very communicable, disabling, and even fatal.

- Increasing knowledge regarding child health needs. — Children should begin good health practices in their formative years. Most health priorities are learned from parents. Parents can insure for their children three well balanced meals daily, adequate rest and exercise. Parents can show children that they are loved and listened to. Parents can supervise with warmth and firmness. Everyone can cooperate with community life, school and health representatives in programs and activities planned for children.

MOUT instructors have worked long and hard to recreate an authentic town under siege to include providing such special effects as blowing up vehicles and setting off artillery simulators and smoke grenades. Realism is the key to MOUT and during the attack portion of the demonstration one of the trainees remarked, "I feel like I'm in a John Wayne movie!"

John Wayne or not, every student must participate in a squad size element whose mission is to attack, secure, and hold his ground while under fire. MOUT's chief instructor, SFC George Griffin, explained whether a squad is successful in its attack or not, a valuable lesson in team accomplishment will be learned. After all, the infantryman's most important asset is his buddy.

An ever-increasing population creates a different type of movement and plan of attack for the infantryman. When attacking a built up area, the infantryman often has no opportunity for cover or concealment except that for which his buddy has to offer. Committee Group's Military Operations in Urban Terrain (MOUT) teaches OSUT/TST trainees how to attack, secure, and hold their ground when faced with such a mission.

Infantry trainees get a realistic work-out in a mock battle situation.

professionals are not as deep and can be removed more easily than tattoos put on at home."

"My advise to anyone that's going to get that first tattoo, is DON'T. Inevitably, you'll get another and another," a male source explained. When asked why he got his tattoo he commented, "I got my tattoos to go along with the crowd."

Our female source said, "I had always wanted a tattoo. People are usually curious as to why I got it, but I have never regretted having it done. I knew exactly what I wanted."

Marlene Dewey of the American Tattoo Co. stressed, "You must pick a tattoo that you can live with for the rest of your life. It must be something to fit your life style, or you'll be miserable."

Professor Safety says

If you're one of those people who replace car tires two at a time, you should know that you're safest with the newest or "best" pair on the rear wheels. A rear-tire blowout is often harder to bring under control than a front-tire puncture, according to experts at Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co. That's because you have direct control over the front tires through the steering wheels, but only limited control over the rear end of your car. Putting the tires with the most tread on the rear wheels also gives better shopping control on a wet road. So when it comes to tires, put your best "feet" behind you.

Airborne Department

Wives get first-hand look

Story and Photos by Mac Plummer

Wives of members of the Airborne Department, Parachute Pack Branch, DIO and the 4th Student Battalion (ABN) enjoyed a full day recently observing just what their husbands do while training U.S. paratroopers. Hosted by the Airborne Department, the wives saw everything from a student's first roll in the sawdust to parachute landing falls on Fryar Drop Zone.

For most of them this was the first time they had the opportunity to see all of this and the general feeling seemed to be that the day turned out to be very educational.

The ladies, accompanied by Mrs. William J. Livsey, the commanding general's wife, and escorted by Col. Joseph Villa, Airborne Dept. director, were taken to each of the three Basic Airborne Course training branches — Ground, Tower and Jump — as well as to the Parachute Pack Branch. At each of the branches they were shown what students learn in that particular phase of training.

The ladies were also treated by 45th Co, 4th Student Bn, TSB, to a "super lunch" consisting of strip steaks, shrimp and spare ribs.

Culminating their full day of activities, the wives had the opportunity to ride the 250-foot tower "buddy seat" ride on Eubanks Field, which proved to be the highlight of the day. Upon finishing the ride, each lady received a certificate attesting to her "buddy seat" qualification.

Riding the "buddy seat" gives the wives a chance to prove their fearlessness.

Poet's corner

HE DIDN'T COME

Good morning
My Loved One.
I sat here all night
Whence I was young
And waited for you.
I wasn't sure if we were through.

My hair was dark,
my eyes full of spice,
But I waited for you and ran out of Life.

Good afternoon
My Loved One.
Lunch was already.
The music was soft.
The lights were dim.
You left me alone and Departed on whim.

Good evening
My Loved One.
It's time to retire.
I'm old and I'm gray
No more to desire.

Good night
My Loved One.
I think about you often
In my dreams.
And I'm alone again,
Or so it seems.

Good-bye My Loved One.
I waited for you.
I'm old and I'm tired.
I'm through waiting for you.

EFMB testing to begin here Monday

Medics from Forts Benning, McPherson, McClellan and Rucker will have the opportunity to compete for the Expert Field Medical Badge (EFMB) here Monday through May 4.

The test, administered by the 34th Med Bn, is one of the most prestigious awards a medic can receive during peacetime. Not only must the soldier demonstrate a thorough knowledge of emergency field medical procedures under combat conditions, but also must exhibit skills of transportation, communications, NBC procedures, land navigation, field sanitation, military intelligence and common soldiering skills.

The badge is the medics' equivalent to the Infantryman's Expert Infantry Badge. Both tests are similar in respect to the tough physical requirements of scoring 400 or more on the Advanced Physical Fitness Test, completing a 12-mile forced road march in three hours, and successfully completing a day and night compass course. Probably the most physical is the Little Obstacle Course which tests endurance, strength and quick-thinking ability while employing technical litter-bearing skills.

Candidate training requires extra hours of studying and hands-on practice. A medic must dedicate himself many weeks in advance in order to properly prepare himself and the EFMB not only marks a good medic; it identifies the wearer as a good all-around soldier.

Islamic mosque dedication planned

By Pat Brown

The Islamic House of Worship at Fort Benning, the only Moslem mosque in the area, will be officially dedicated Tuesday at 1 p.m.

The mosque, located next to the Allied Students Training Division (ASTD) on the first floor of Olsen Hall, was established for the benefit of the more than 50 allied students sent here each year for training, who are members of the Islamic faith.

1stLt. Abdelwahed Guesmi of Tunisia, a member of Infantry Officers Advanced Course (IOAC) 1-79, will lead the dedication prayer. Col. Bobby Harris, deputy assistant commandant, Chaplain (Col.) Charles McDonnell, post chaplain, and Maj. Mahmoud Muhaidat of Jordan, a member of IOAC 2-79 and senior moslem officer on post, will speak briefly, after which Col. Harris, representing the commanding general, will preside over a ribbon-cutting ceremony.

The mosque came about through the efforts of LtCol. Ismail El-Behiry of Egypt, who was senior Moslem officer here before his departure in March, Chaplain (Capt.) Kenneth Leinwand, Sightseeing Road Chapel, and William Boner, chief, ASTD.

Formerly a BOQ (bachelor officers quarters) room, the mosque was equipped and furnished through contributions from the post Chaplain's Fund, the Islamic Center in Washington, D. C. and by private donations from Moslem allied students.

Following the dedication, the mosque may be viewed by interested persons, by making prior arrangements with Capt. Boner or Charlotte Osterburg, 545-4212.

Allergy seminar slated

If you are one of the unfortunate people who exhibit severe reactions to insect bites and stings, relief may be on the way. On Tuesday and Wednesday the chief of Walter Reed Army Medical Center Allergy Department and three additional allergists will be at Martin Army Hospital to provide an allergy seminar for the Family Practice Program and at the same time see patients who have a history of severe reaction to insect stings.

Due to the recent availability of venom extract for patients allergic to insect stings, they would like to see all patients who are presently receiving whole body extract (bees, yellow jackets and wasps) and anyone suspected of being allergic to insect stings. Patients will be tested and started on the new extract.

Interested individuals who are authorized treatment at Martin should contact Sp6 Stoddard at the Allergy Clinic (phone 544-1365/4358).

plete transcript upon completion of the course.

The specially prepared self-study materials on how to perform the task saves supervisors considerable amounts of time by reducing the time currently spent performing the task or guiding an inexperienced person. Successful completion of a subcourse is the first phase to insure that the student can perform the task on the job in a completely proficient and independent manner.

Once a soldier completes a sub-course, the SUPERVISOR MUST PROVIDE THE FINAL PHASE OF TRAINING. The supervisor must provide opportunities for the soldier to gain experience under local job conditions. There, the supervisor can fine-tune the soldier's performance by checking and correcting.

For further information or to obtain an enrollment packet, write to: Institute for Professional Development, U.S. Army Training Support Center, Newport News, Va. 23628 or call: Autovon 927-4876.

Get kids SSN early in life

Parents can do their children a favor by requesting Social Security Numbers (SSN) for them before they're seven years old.

Recent changes have been made in regulations to make it more difficult for individuals to misuse the SSN system, according to the Social Security Administration (SSA).

For applicants older than seven years, the changes include:

- Each applicant for an original SSN must provide documentary evidence proving identity, age, and citizenship or alien status;
- Each person applying for a duplicate or corrected SSN card must provide enough evidence to prove identity and make certain his or her SSN record is accurate;
- Anyone 18 years or older and applying for an original SSN must be interviewed in person;
- SSA may check any document submitted with the custodian of the original record.

Applicants must submit evidence proving their date of birth. Birth or baptismal certificates, school and church records, census records, insurance policies, marriage records, employment records, and passports may be used. Applicants must also confirm their identity through driver's licenses, voter registration cards, passports or other similar documents.

For children under seven, however, a birth certificate is normally sufficient evidence.

Persons needing a SSN may apply for one by filing a SS-5 form. "Application for Social Security Number." Applications are available at: Any Social Security Office; the Social Security Administration, Baltimore, Md. 21235; Offices of District Directors of Internal Revenue; U.S. Postal Service Offices; and U.S. Employment Service Offices in cities not having a Social Security Office.

For dependents living with parents stationed overseas, the SSA prefers that certified copies rather than the original documents be sent with SSN applications.

Applications coming from abroad should be mailed to: The Social Security Administration, Division of International Operations, P.O. Box 1756, Baltimore, Md. 21203.

Persons desiring additional information may call Phil Berge at (301) 594-7452 or write: Office of Policy and Regulations, Social Security Administration, 6401 Security Blvd., Baltimore, Md. 21235. (ARNEWS)

The Old Guard performs here

By Pat Brown

The 3rd U.S. Infantry, "The Old Guard," which has made a number of appearances throughout the post this week, will present two performances of drills and ceremonies tomorrow.

The first will be a one-hour performance at the Main Post Exchange Mall beginning at 11 a.m. Their final appearance will be at Doughboy Stadium at the Fort Benning Doughboys-Carson Newman College football game. They will present a pre-game program at 7:15 p.m. and at half-time.

Established in 1784, The Old Guard is the Army's oldest active infantry unit. Today, it is charged with a two-fold mission. It serves as the Army's official ceremonial unit, and it also provides security for the nation's capital in times of national emergency and civil disturbance.

Often referred to as "The President's Own," The Old Guard is the Army's honor guard and escort for the President. Its members also serve as White House social aides and enlisted congressional escorts.

The Old Guard is responsible for the planning and coordination of military ceremonies held at the White House, the Pentagon, national memorials and other locations in Washington. Last year, the unit participated in more than 3,500 ceremonies, an average of almost ten a day.

Headquartered at Fort Myer, Va., soldiers of The Old Guard also maintain a faithful 24-hour vigil at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier. They perform military funeral rites at Arlington National Cemetery and participate in state funerals.

Also, some element of the unit is constantly on the road, presenting military pageants for audiences at major civic and military functions across the nation.

Picnic slated

Fort Benning will hold an open house gala Sept. 22 at Victory Pond. The all-day event will feature rides, displays, Rangers in action and an AUSA picnic.

Musicians wanted

The 283rd Army Band is actively seeking new personnel. If you play clarinet, oboe, trumpet, french horn, trombone, baritone, tuba, or drums and can read music, contact CWO 2 O'Preska, bandmaster, 283rd Army Band, at 545-5313 to arrange for an audition.

Coming next week ...

Do you know your area coordinator? Who they are and what they do will appear in an article in next week's issue.

Army program could get your name in news

By Willie Fears

Tired of reading about everyone else? Why not let the folks back home read about you?

The Army has a program that will report your individual accomplishments and activities to the people back home. The Hometown News Release Program is designed to enhance soldier morale by reporting the servicemember's Army accomplishments and activities to their home community through local news media.

On a larger scale, it seeks to gain public understanding and support of the Army's role in national defense. Some of the more appropriate items for release are: heroic or humanitarian events, awards and decorations, features (unusual job, accomplishments, etc.) graduation from military courses (initiated by the school concerned), reenlistments, promotions, championships (major competitions only), and assignments (initiated by gaining unit).

The backbone of the Hometown News Release Program is the DA Form 1526 (when filled out properly). They are forwarded to the Hometown News Center in Kansas City, Mo., and within three days the information is processed and released to one or more of the 9,000 newspapers requesting Army hometown news material.

The success of the Hometown News Release Program depends totally on the correct completion of DA Form 1526 by the individual soldier. For the most part, DA Form 1526 is self-explanatory, however, careful reading of the instructions printed on the reverse side of each DA Form 1526 should answer any questions you may have. Most of the information on DA Form 1526 is personal in nature, and therefore nothing will be assumed by the personnel processing the form.

Some of the more common mistakes found are: Block 3 - Use rank, i.e. Pvt., PFC., Sp4, Sp5, SSgt. Do not use E1, E3, E5, etc. Block 7 - The sex of the individual completing the form should be entered in Block 7. Again, the personnel processing the form will not see this information. Block 8 - All addresses must include street and number or route number, city, state and zip code. The form cannot be processed without the full address. Also, if the parents listed in Block 8 have a different last name the appropriate block must be checked, i.e. separated, divorced or father/mother deceased. However, if parents are divorced or separated, this information will not be used in the news release. Block 30 - List any additional information or explanations in Block 30. When the action prompting the release is a reenlistment, the number of years and any option involved must be explained in Block 30. Each form must be signed by the individual listed in Block 4.

Paying particular attention to the instructions on the reverse side of the form will help you, the individual soldier, complete DA Form 1526 more efficiently, thus affording you the maximum chance to have your accomplishments reported to the people back home. It is the unit commander's responsibility to insure that the Hometown News Program is conducted in order to provide appropriate public news coverage of individual achievements and activities of members of their units.

If you are involved in activities prompting a news release, contact your Battalion S1 and fill out a DA Form 1526. Who knows, you could find yourself on the front page of your hometown newspaper. Battalion S1s, commanders and first sergeants can receive help with their Hometown News Release Program by contacting Sp5 Fears at the post Public Affairs Office, Building 4, Room 602, or by calling 545-3438 or 545-7391.

Should Americans protest foreign aid to Vietnam?

To the Editor:

Are Americans and our government as naive as we act concerning foreign aid and international affairs? Presently, Congressmen have been visiting Vietnam to consider recognition of their communist government and giving millions or perhaps billions in foreign aid. Have we forgotten what Vietnam has done for us lately? This is the same country where over 50,000 Americans were killed and scores more injured and handicapped. Our involvement there split our country bitterly for more than a decade.

After the war, Vietnam never satisfactorily answered the questions about over 1,000 MIAs. They have continuously belittled our government and way of life. It's obvious that the only reason they are trying to be friendly is so they can get our foreign aid. This is the same Vietnam that is forcing thousands to flee their homes and is aggressively fighting in Laos and Thailand. Any foreign aid would be accepted by this government to further these barbaric actions. Have we forgotten how we were 'pushed' out of Vietnam amidst cries of "Yankee, go home" only five years ago?

The crime of this situation is unforgivable. Our country is presently facing problems with inflation, energy and confidence in elected officials that is getting worse, not better. Why don't the Congressmen spend their time and our money aiding our country, our people and solving our problems first?

It seems ridiculous to me that when we have severe problems at home, a significant portion of Congress is visiting Vietnam. We, as Americans, should demand our elected officials to take care of the United States first and do the job they were elected to do and are being paid for. We need to put all our energy and resources to keeping the United States the strongest and wealthiest nation on earth. We have poor people, aged and victims of crime that desperately need aid before we help anyone else. Maybe if Congress would work so intensely on energy, inflation, and cooperating with the President in-

E-4 promotions to increase

WASHINGTON (ARNEWS)—More E-3s can now be promoted, DA personnel officials announced this week.

The Army is raising its limits on the number of E-4s allowed. Now, 70 percent of the total number of E-3s and E-4s assigned may be in the grade of E-4, regardless of time in service.

For example, 50 E-3s and 60 E-4s are assigned to a command. To find the total number of promotions to E-4 allowed, the number of E-3s and E-4s assigned would be added for a total of 110. This figure would be multiplied by 70 percent to get the maximum number of E-4s authorized in the command ($110 \times .70 = 77$).

The number of E-4s already in the command would then be subtracted ($77 - 60 = 17$). In this case, 17 E-3s, including those with time in service waivers, could be promoted to E-4.

If, however, the command finds it already has more E-4s than authorized, eligible E-3s with 18 months time in grade may still be promoted, officials added.

A 65 percent restriction was set last February to curb an excess of E-4s. The Army's E-4 strength has now been reduced to an acceptable level, officials said, allowing for the five percent increase.

Current waiver rules remain unchanged. In addition, officials say promotions to E-4 guaranteed in enlistment contracts or through the Stripes for Skills Program are exempt from the restriction.

Camellia is an apartment motel. We don't rent rooms, we rent furnished apartments with all the features of a regular motel plus added conveniences that cannot be provided with just a single room - and all at the same, or most times lower rates than the single-room motel. For example, our "standard" unit is comprised of two bedrooms, combination living room-dining room, bathroom and fully furnished kitchen including refrigerator, stove, cooking utensils, and table service for six people. These are some of the "extras" but at no extra cost. Our 100 units are in separate buildings with usually four apartments in each building, which adds to a person's or family's privacy.

CG's message

The week of Sept. 10-16 has been selected by the Department of the Army as National Hispanic Heritage Week.

The Hispanic Americans have been among the great contributors to our Country. Among their contributions are their participation in the defense and growth of our great Nation: as soldiers, they have distinguished themselves on the battlefields; as citizens, men and women of Hispanic heritage have been instrumental in the attainment of our economic, social, and democratic goals.

The Hispanic Americans possess a rich culture. This culture, a product of their Spanish origin and historical experience, is an integral part of the American heritage.

We are aware that the first Europeans to look upon the soil that was to become Georgia were Spanish. Hispanic soldiers, missionaries, and traders operated inland to the falls of the Chatahoochee, where Fort Benning is now located. The Spanish presence in Georgia continued for over a hundred years.

So that we might become more aware of the contributions that the Hispanic Americans have made to our Country, to the State of Georgia, and to the Army, I do hereby proclaim the week of September 10-16 as Hispanic Heritage Week at Fort Benning, Georgia, and urge all citizens to observe and participate in the week's events.

stead of criticising him, we would solve these problems.

I don't advocate cancelling our foreign aid commitments completely, however, I do believe we have gone too far in helping everyone else. I do believe we should take care of Americans' problems first. After all Americans are living in a dignified manner, maybe then we can use American tax dollars to help someone else.

Better the budget

To the Editor:

I am writing this letter to inform all occupants of family housing that have a 16"x25"x1" furnace filter that they are unavailable to us due to lack of funds for this fiscal year. I was informed of this through the Hot Line on Aug. 29. I have been trying to get my filters replaced for three and a half weeks without success. My only recourse was to call Hot Line.

According to the regulation, we are to replace these filters every 30 days. Our self-help classes instruct this.

I understand this is not the only item that is unavailable due to a lack of funds.

Is it not a shame that proper budgeting was not made to insure our self-help program is efficient and up to par?

Set an example

To the Editor:

Truly I was chagrined after reading Maj. Macchiaroli's charge of harassment regarding the directive to remove headgear in the PX and Commissary.

Cliff Purcell, in the article appearing on the same page with the "Hats Off" letter in the Aug. 31 issue of the BAYONET, aptly challenged his fellow officers to help develop the Army's leaders, the command sergeant majors and general officers needed in our future Army. But Maj. Macchiaroli shoots us down in flames.

Firstly, common courtesy and good manners dictate the removal of headgear indoors. Second, and almost a moot point, every responsible officer and noncommissioned officer has already pledged himself/herself to support regulations, not gripe about alleged inconveniences, nor should we be compared with civilians as Maj. Macchiaroli suggests.

Lastly, major, as a combat arms officer your impact on enlisted men and junior officers will likely be significant if you continue as a career officer. The example you demonstrate and the standards you set will be critically observed and emulated by subordinate soldiers. This concerns me.

Minorities getting better jobs

Women and minorities are gaining additional higher-paying professional and administrative federal jobs, according to preliminary findings of a major study on the federal workforce.

Although women represented 33 percent of the workforce, they received 44 percent of all promotions during the year covered by the study. About one out of five federal women employees was promoted, while one out of eight percent men employees received promotions.

Women represented 47 percent of all new employees and 43 percent of all separations.

Minority categories included Negro/Black, Spanish-Surnamed, Native American, and Oriental. The percentage of minority employees hired for professional, and minority hires exceeded minority separations by 2.6 percent.

Covering the period for July 1, 1977, through June 30 1978, the study concentrated on entries, separations, and promotions. Data came from the OPM's Central Personnel Data File, which includes 96 percent of all federal civilian employees. Data for the U.S. Postal Service were available only for the nine-month period through March 30, 1978.

DON'T LOSE OUT WHEN YOU GET OUT.

If you've decided to leave the Army before retirement, you don't have to leave behind all of those valuable benefits. Just serve part-time with your local Army Reserve unit.

You'll earn a good extra income based on your present rank and service time, for serving only 16 hours a month (usually one weekend) and two full weeks a year.

And you can still take advantage of part of your Army benefits. Like low-cost life insurance. As a Reservist, you'll continue to earn PX privileges (a day for each eight hours of unit training attended) and credits toward retirement pay.

Most of all, by your becoming an Army Reservist, your country benefits. By your training. Your experience. Your dedication.

So don't lose out when you get out. Join today's Army Reserve. It's well worth your time.

Article 15 procedure to change

WASHINGTON (ARNEWS) - Local commanders will have greater flexibility concerning non-judicial punishment filing procedures beginning this month, according to DA personnel officials.

A number of changes affecting Article 15 filing procedures have been approved by the chief of staff. Local commanders may file minor punishment Article 15's in either the Military Personnel Records Jacket (MPRJ) or in the performance fiche of the Official Military Personnel File (OMPF), according to officials.

The personnel officials commented that commanders exercising special court-martial convening authority will determine filing status in cases of enlisted personnel in grades E1-E5.

Filing for enlisted personnel in grades E6-E9, warrant officers and officers will be determined by commanders with general court-martial convening authority.

"Minor punishment is defined as restriction or extra duty for 14 days or less, detention or forfeiture to be applied for not more than one month, correctional custody for seven days or less, admonition, or reprimand," explained the officials. "It also includes any combination of the above."

Other changes approved concerning Article 15 filing include:

- Upon approval of a change in status from enlisted to officer or warrant officer, Article 15's received while in enlisted status will be filed in the restricted fiche.

- Article 15's which have been set aside will be filed in the restricted fiches of officers, warrant officers, and enlisted members.

- Upon an individual's request, Article 15's that were received by officers or warrant officers while serving in a prior enlisted status or Article 15's that were completely set aside prior to Sept. 1, will be transferred to the restricted fiche. Such requests will not constitute basis for standby board consideration, according to officials.

"Article 15's in which other than minor punishment is initially imposed, will continue to be permanently filed according to existing procedures," remarked the officials.

"The changes were approved to give local commanders greater flexibility to administer non-judicial punishment without the long term effects of permanent filing in the OMPF," stated officials. "They were developed following an extensive review of Article 15 filing procedures and the recommendations of major commands and the DA staff," the officials said.

These changes, according to personnel officials, are some of the personnel actions officials are looking at to give commanders the tools they need to accomplish their command responsibilities.

Benning MPs operate with neighboring agencies

By Pat Barham

No police force can operate solely by itself; it has to rely on the cooperation of its neighboring agencies to form a continuous network. The military police here are no different than other police agencies in this respect.

According to Maj. Sharron D. Kupsick, operations officer for the Provost Marshal's Office here, "Members of Benning's military police have a very good working relationship with the Columbus Police Department and other law enforcement agencies operating in the Columbus area.

At times this good relationship and combined effort network aids the military police since occasionally there is a fine line between the jurisdiction of different agencies.

For instance, on Victory Drive at the intersection of Santa Fe Rd., if you are stopped at the light and are in the north bound lane, you come within the jurisdiction of the Benning reservation, but if you're in the south bound lane, Columbus has jurisdiction. Situations such as this require close cooperation between local law enforcement agencies and post MPs.

A recent military police traffic radar speed survey on Highway 27/280 running through Fort Benning revealed that of 4,754 vehicles observed the MP traffic radar section, 20 percent of the operators were exceeding the posted legal speed limit.

From the period of Jan. 1 through Aug. 20, there were 46 traffic accidents with 12 vehicle-to-vehicle accidents resulting in 23 injuries and three fatalities.

Investigation of the accidents revealed the following causes:

- 10 accidents - following too close
- Five accidents - speed excessive for road conditions
- Five accidents - drunk driving
- Four accidents - improper lane change
- Three accidents - failure to yield
- Two accidents - failure to maintain control

The gun never lies as many found out while attempting to exceed the posted speed limit in the Fort Benning area.

SSgt. Shinall writes a ticket to a speeder during a radar net set up on Highway 27/280 passing through the post.

- Two accidents - inattentive driving
- One accident - crossing center lane
- One accident - failure to obey traffic control device
- One accident - reckless driving

Often violations such as speeding will involve several agencies if the operator crosses from one area to another either on or off Fort Benning. These are the times when cooperation is vital in order to sight or apprehend an operator for a violation.

"Our combined efforts have built a more effective force in which we can better accomplish our objective of providing law enforcement for the community," Kupsick concluded.

Split Option soldiers graduate

By Glen Griffin

The 1st Infantry Training Brigade ended its first encounter with the new Split Option Program last month, when Company B, 7th Battalion graduated on Aug. 15.

Company B was composed entirely of Reservists and National Guardsmen who had joined through the Split Option Program. The idea of the program was to increase the rolls of the Guard and Reserve by appealing to students in high school and college.

Under the program, a person joins the Guard or Reserve and attends basic training during the summer. He returns home for the rest of the year, attending the monthly meetings of his unit, and then attends Advanced Individual Training (AIT) the next summer. This allows the soldier to go to school without interruption.

These soldiers took basic training at various posts during the summer of 1978 and starting training here in July. The training lasted over six weeks.

The training was basically the same as that of any other unit in the Brigade. A slight modification was made to allow for the length of time between basic and AIT.

The Split Option soldiers performed as well as their OSUT counterparts, according to the company commander, Capt. Lynn C. Fox. "They were in good physical condition when they arrived, and they had a good attitude toward the training."

The educational level of the soldiers was above average as well. According to Sgt. Maj. Harry E. Glaze, the USAIC National Guard Liaison NCO, many of the soldiers were in their second year of college, with some on scholarships. Without the Split Option Program, these people may not have joined the Guard or Reserve.

"The soldiers and cadre make the program work," said Glaze. "The cadre were interested and motivated while the soldiers worked hard." The cadre's attitude was expressed by Fox when he said that Bravo Company would take all the Split Option soldiers they could get.

Although this is the first year for the program, there are already over 3,000 Split Option soldiers in the Guard or Reserve. While most of these are in other MOS, the infantry portion of the program has already been expanded. Next summer over 600 Reservists and Guardsmen will take infantry training here under the Split Option Program.

Doughboy season begins tomorrow

Story and Photos
by Deb Hilgeman

Fort Benning's Doughboy Football Team kicks off their 11-game season tomorrow at 7:30 p.m. against Carson-Newman College in Doughboy Stadium.

Doughboy Head Coach Ralph Santaliz said the team has been training lightly this week due to several minor injuries and bruises sustained recently by the players. "We've been working really hard the last six weeks and at this stage of the game it's too late to do any really hard hitting," he explained. The coach said training this week has been centered around timing and the specialty team.

One problem the Doughboys had to live with earlier in the season--players who couldn't make practice due to military duties--has been largely resolved, according to Santaliz. "Support from commanders has been great the last couple of weeks but two weeks of support isn't all that much," he said.

Santaliz went on to say that depth will be no problem this season and the team will be playing with two full offenses and two full defenses. "We were going to cut the team to 65 or 70 players, but decided to keep 82 on the roster," he explained. "The players have all been giving maximum effort and some are so evenly matched that it would be difficult to decide who to cut. This will help us in the long run in case we sustain any injuries."

While Santaliz is confident the Doughboys are ready; the team, coaches and strategy have undergone major changes since last season and it remains to be seen how successful these changes will be. "The only problem we're going to have as far as the first game is cutting mental mistakes and first game jitters. The first game is always tough because you don't know how you'll do against another team but we'll both be in the same boat," he predicted.

The main thing the Doughboys need, Santaliz emphasized, is support from their fans. "These guys have sacrificed a lot of their time, sweat and effort in order to give Fort Benning a quality football team. But we need a stadium full of people cheering us on to make it really pay off," he concluded.

Racquetball clinic slated

There will be a free racquetball clinic tomorrow at the Santiago Gym on Sand Hill from 9 a.m. until noon. The clinic is open to all Benning personnel and their dependents. David Lawrence and Jeff Yates will conduct the clinic and will cover rules of racquetball, how to hit forward and backwards, serves and return of serves, and court strategy.

For further information call 545-5161.

Racquetball tourney held

By Eddie Goynes

The 5th Battalion, TSB, held a racquetball tournament at Bryant Wells gymnasium from Aug. 21-24. The tournament was a smashing success which produced active competition and a better comradery between the players. The singles championship was won by Robert (Bob) Portante of 51st Company, who defeated Eddie Goynes of 50th Company, in a hard fought match, 21-13, 21-18.

The doubles competition saw Mike Hagar team up with Eddie Goynes, both of 50th Company, to defeat Johnnie Britton and Ted Schaner of HQ, 5th Stu Bn, 21-18, 21-19.

Sincere thanks goes to Mr. Durham and Mrs. Kennebrew, who bent over backwards to help the tournament organizers.

Does practice make perfect? The Doughboys will find out tomorrow night if the past weeks of practice were enough to give them an edge over Carson-Newman College.

Forts Dix and Jackson win TRADOC tourney here

Fort Dix, N.J. and Fort Jackson, S.C. won the men's and women's divisions respectively in the Eastern Conference TRADOC Softball Tournament played here last week.

In the men's finals, Fort Dix romped past Fort Gordon, Ga., 19-10 while Jackson won the women's portion of the tournament for the sixth consecutive year downing a stubborn Fort Eustis, Va. team 14-6 in nine innings.

Dix pounds Gordon

Fort Dix jumped on three Gordon pitchers enroute to the championship, scoring four runs in the first, three in the second, five more in the fourth and iced the contest with seven in the bottom of the sixth.

Every Dix starter not only recorded a hit but also scored a run with Scott Caldieraro leading the way with two hits and three runs-batted-in, including a two-run homer in the fourth.

With Dix comfortably out in front 12-2 after four innings, Gordon threatened to turn the game around, rapping out two tallies in the fifth and six more in the sixth. The latter rally was climaxed on a grand-slam homer by Al Kurtz.

But Dix put an end to Gordon's idea of a possible victory sending 12 batters to the plate in the lower half of the sixth which produced seven runs.

Jackson slides by Eustis

The Jackson women kept their victorious string alive although they needed three extra-innings before disposing of Fort Eustis in last Friday's championship game.

Down by the score of 6-3 in the bottom of the seventh inning, Eustis rose to the occasion and came up with three runs to send this final affair into extra-innings.

Jackson put the contest away in the top of the ninth with an eight run tally.

Third-baseman Virginia Cherry and Donna Golden led the Jackson attack combining for eight hits.

Second Looks

I've heard nothing from Callaway Gardens concerning the Sept. 8 four-mile and 15-kilometer races. My sources indicate that last year this race gave T-shirts to only the top few finishers in each age group, and the year before that gave none at all. Since we've already got the Midnight Express 5-kilometer at Columbus Square Mall this Saturday night, I'm not going to chance it.

If you were confused by last week's account of the Enduro Run, it was supposed to read: 'All who finish at least five miles in less than one hour win a T-shirt. The only loss for dropping out after meeting this standard, or for finishing the 25 miles in over five hours, will be that of the medalion.'

This weekend provided two Fort Benning area races. The Fort Benning Fiesta featured, two, five and 10 mile races. The turnout was light, but the conditions were quite nice. Sorry I didn't know about it in advance, or there would have been more information. (On the other hand, that might have also cost me my award...)

Fort Benning was well represented at the Phenix City Moon Lake 10-kilometer Run. The perennial nemesis of the mediocre runner, Bruce Skiles, once again won with a 32:23 on the hilly course, but OCS fared particularly well. Army runners accounted for over 20 percent of the turnout.

The Nut Run-Sept. 15

Albany, Ga. is hosting a 1500-meter fun run and 10-kilometer race for those of you who desire something less taxing for a race on this next weekend. T-shirts will be awarded to all who finish the fun run, and all who finish the 10,000 meters in less than 60 minutes. Trophies will be given to first, second and third place finishers in each of 28 different age groups. Entry fees are $2 for the fun run, $3 for the 10-kilometer if postmarked by Sept. 10, $2.50 and $4 respectively from then until 8:15 a.m. race day. For further information, contact Tom Breeding at 544-4177.

Cherokee 10,000 Meter Road Race Sept. 22

The Kendrick High School Cross Country Team is sponsoring a 10-kilometer race beginning at 9 a.m. Saturday, Sept. 22 on Georgetown Drive in front of the school. The course is relatively flat and fast. There will be merchandise prizes for the top 30 finishers and medals to the top three finishers in each of 16 age groups. T-shirts will also be awarded to the top 300 finishers. Pre-registration is $4 until Sept. 21, $5 on race day, proceeds benefiting the Cross Country Team.

To our benefit is the promise by Coach Bruce Skiles that neither he nor members of his team will participate in the race. For further information and entry blanks, contact Tom Breeding at 544-4177.

Displays in the center will include the Training and Audio Visual Support Center's Combined Arms Team display. There will be models of the Infantry Fighting Vehicle, the Improved Infantry TOW Vehicle, the Blackhawk, the Dragon and the TOW. USACC Div. chief retires

Mr. Willis C. Smith, chief, Operations Division, USACC-Fort Benning retired Aug. 24 after a combined civilian and Department of Army career in communications spanning 36 years, of which 29 were Federal Service.

Mr. Smith started his career in communications with the wire crew of the Louisville and Nashville Railroad in 1943. While in the Marine Corps Reserve, his unit was activated for one year (1946) and he served as a telephone installer. Next he was employed by the General Telephone Company in Lexington, Ky. as a cable splicer until 1952. Finally he entered the Federal Service as a cable splicer at Fort McPherson, Ga., where he traveled throughout the old Third Army area.

He came here in 1956 as a Cable Foreman, was promoted to Chief, Outside Plant in 1963; his progress continued with his promotion to Communications Specialist in 1968, and in 1973, he was promoted to Communications Manager and served as Chief, Operations Division. He was the ranking civilian in USACC- Fort Benning.

Mr. Smith's awards were numerous through the years—letters of appreciation, special acts, sustained superior performance, culminating with his retirement certificate and the Meritorious Civilian Service Award.

Willis Smith and his wife, Jean, have a son, a daughter, and three granddaughters. Smith's hobbies are gardening, reading, skeet shooting, jogging and "Mr. Fix-it" projects. His plans for the future consist of plans to remodel his home, manage rental property and do some traveling.

Who fights for the soldier?

By Deb Hilgeman

The soldier fights for his country but who fights for the soldier?

When decisions are pending in Washington that may adversely affect the Army, there IS an organization that works to protect the soldier's interests. The Association of the U.S. Army (AUSA) is the soldier's advocate and, according to CSM (ret.) Al M. Kaczmarek, AUSA deputy director for regional activities, "We're the only organization that speaks for the entire Army."

AUSA was formed 28 years ago and currently has 118,000 members of which 62 percent are NCOs and junior enlisted. Kaczmarek said the nominal yearly membership fee AUSA charges covers only member services such as newsletters and a magazine and that necessary funds are developed from other sources.

"... we're not part of the Army. If someone on top says 'no' to us, we don't have to salute and leave."

A longtime member of AUSA, Kaczmarek retired from the Army in 1977 as First Army Sergeant Major for his present position with AUSA. His job consists of working with AUSA chapter operations, public speaking and "visiting soldiers to find out what's on their minds."

On a recent visit to Fort Benning, Kaczmarek explained that AUSA's main function is to educate the public about the Army. "We want to get the facts to the people," he said. "There are a lot of misconceptions about today's soldier. The public tends to equate the lifestyle of today's soldier with that of the World War II soldier and that gives a false picture. You've got people out there who don't even know soldiers pay taxes. If we can get the public half as excited about the Army as the soldiers are, then the soldier wouldn't have the problems he has."

CSM (ret.) Al M. Kaczmarek

Fighting for the soldier.

Although Kaczmarek pointed out that AUSA is not a registered lobbying group, it does carry a lot of clout with Congress when representing the soldier's point of view on key issues concerning the Army. "Our reputation with Congress was established over the years by reliable information we give. Our material is prepared with a great deal of integrity and Congress likes to use what we produce because they can be sure of its authenticity," he explained.

Kaczmarek added, "There are a couple of things we can do better than most folks. We're on the Army's side but can be equally critical of the Army if it is doing something wrong. We're also able to push harder than Army people because we're not part of the Army. If someone on top says 'no' to us, we don't have to salute and leave."

AUSA's message to Congress and the public is two-fold: One, we need a strong national defense; and two, we have to pay the price. Kaczmarek said the state of today's Army is of deep concern to AUSA. "Our strength is down and all services are having problems reaching quotas," he stressed. "If we had to go to war tomorrow, it would take us at least seven months to replace the first battle casualty in Europe and we won't have that luxury of time."

"Carter wanted the armed forces and federal employees to set the example for the rest of the country only no one else followed that example."

As a solution, AUSA advocates a return to some form of the Selective Service System. "We need to at least establish registration, testing, classification and a partial draft for the individual ready reserve which is considerably depleted," Kaczmarek said. A major change proposed by AUSA is that eligible males and females alike should be included in the draft system.

AUSA is also closely monitoring Congressional actions of changes to the military compensation system. "Economics is the main problem of today's soldier," Kaczmarek noted. "President Carter is asking the military to make sacrifices other citizens are not willing to make."

Referring to last year's 5.5 percent military pay cap, Kaczmarek said, "Carter wanted the armed forces and federal employees to set the example for the rest of the country only no one else followed that example. We have informed him of the disastrous results of another cap and we hope he pays attention to what inflation has done to the military. We've got soldiers on food stamps and welfare-qualified and that's no way to build pride in service."

Editor's note: As Kaczmarek was preparing to leave Fort Benning last Friday, it was learned that President Carter sent to Congress for approval a request for a seven percent raise for government employees.

Medical care is another aspect of Army life that has many soldiers worried and, according to Kaczmarek, it's going to be a while before medical care improves "significantly." He pointed out that retirees have been hurt the most by recent cuts in medical services and that it will be three to four years before the Army's current crop of medical students will join the active ranks and lessen the load.

Other AUSA activities include providing testimony before Congress on the Survivor's Benefits Program to correct inequities within the plan and monitoring Congress on the reduction of dependents in overseas areas. Kaczmarek said dependents should "definitely be allowed. They contribute more to readiness than most people imagine."

While AUSA is working on behalf of improving the quality of life for today's soldier, Kaczmarek emphasized the need for soldiers to work on their own behalf. "Soldiers need to take the time to keep informed of legislation affecting them. Voting is a good way to do this but only 17 percent of the armed forces voted in the last general election. We need voters to support a strong Army and national defense," he said.

In closing, Kaczmarek restated how AUSA exists for the soldier's benefit. "The most important thing is that the soldiers know there IS an organization that understands their problems and is trying to solve them."

Crimes and consequences

Six Benning soldiers recently found that the cost of crime was more than they bargained for. When an individual chooses to knowingly break a law, he has to be prepared to suffer the consequences.

Pvt. 1 Bryan H. Harding, 444th Transportation Company, 67th Maintenance Battalion, was tried on Aug. 28 and found guilty of failing to go to place of duty, disobeying an order from a commissioned officer, and offering violence against a commissioned officer. He was sentenced to confinement at hard labor for four months and forfeiture of $200 per month for four months.

Pvt. 2 George G. McCall, Company A, 3rd Battalion, 7th Infantry, was tried on Aug. 27 and found guilty of 33 days AWOL and breach of restriction to correctional confinement facility. He was sentenced at hard labor for 45 days.

Sp4 Michael J. Stewart, Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 197th Infantry Brigade, was tried on Aug. 28 and found guilty of possession of marijuana and disobeying a lawful order. He was sentenced to reduction to E-2 and forfeiture of $100 per month for two months.

Sp4 Albert A. Gaudreau, Combat Support Company, 2nd Battalion, 69th Armor, was tried on Aug. 28 and found guilty of 46 days AWOL. He was sentenced to confinement at hard labor for 30 days, reduction to E-1 and forfeiture of $200 per month for three months.

tion of communicating a threat. He was sentenced to confinement at hard labor for six months, reduction to E-1 and forfeiture of $200 a month for six months.

He was sentenced to a bad conduct discharge, confinement at hard labor for four months, forfeiture of $250 a month for four months and reduction to E-1.

Drugs in the barracks - a hypothetical case solved

By Carl Crump

This is the solution to last week's article. As you recall, Lt. Morgan and Sgt. Wood had conducted a "shakedown" in order to catch PFC. Wintergreen with drugs. What did Lt. Morgan do wrong?

First, Lt. Morgan did not have "probable cause" to search PFC. Wintergreen for drugs. Mere suspicion alone, unsupported by concreted facts, is not enough to legalize a search. Sgt. Wood only suspected Wintergreen of being a drug abuser. He could not cite facts with which to substantiate his belief.

Morgan's second mistake was in not conducting a proper search. His excuse for searching Wintergreen was the "shakedown" inspection.

This is usually the most thorough of all Army inspections and is a good device for detecting contraband. However, such an inspection must be thorough and complete and not a pretext to search a particular person. It must also be of broad scope, covering all aspects of unit readiness, health, and safety. Lt. Morgan divulged the true intent of this inspection by searching the first three men superficially and then conducting a long and detailed search of Wintergreen and his equipment. He further revealed his plan by curtailing the inspection and dismissing his men after finding heroin belonging to Wintergreen. This, plus the fact that the inspection was based on a "tip-off," would make it extremely easy for a defense counsel to convince the court of the illegality of the search.

Morgan's final and most obvious mistake was in not informing Wintergreen of his rights under Article 31 of the UCMJ prior to questioning him. Article 31 states:

No person subject to this code may interrogate or request any statement from, an accused or a person suspected of an offense without first informing him of the nature of the accusation and advising him that he does not have to make any statement regarding the offense of which he is accused or suspected and that a statement made by him may be used as evidence against him in a trial by court-martial.

The law further states that, if a confession is obtained without informing the accused of his rights in the matter, the confession may not be used as evidence against him in a court. Thus, Wintergreen's confession was invalid and could not be used against him.

Former woman manager here speaks her mind

By Will Green

FORT LEE, VA.—Norma B. Christian, who recently became Federal Women's Program (FWP) manager at the U.S. Army Quartermaster Center and Fort Lee, describes herself as a "people's person." She was emphatic when she said, "People can feel free to call on me whenever they wish. They can ask for my assistance or advice any time they have the need."

As a member of the Equal Employment Opportunity (EEO) Office staff, Christian helps to administer the EEO Program, under the general supervision of the EEO officer. One of her primary responsibilities is to assist in the implementation of an affirmative action plan. Under this plan, all persons, regardless of race, color, religion, sex, age, or national origin, are provided equal opportunity for employment, training, education, promotion, recognition, and other employee consideration.

"The FWP," the new manager stated, "falls within the umbrella of the EEO Program, placing emphasis on women and minorities. If you qualify for a job, sex should not matter. This is what the FWP is all about."

Christian considers "increased awareness" a key phrase to the success of the FWP. "I feel that it is my task, with the assistance of managers and supervisors, to insure that Fort Lee's performance in this critical area sets an example for the Army," she said.

"This, I feel, can be accomplished in three ways. First, encourage women and managers not to accept automatically and blindly the traditional assumptions about women and their ability to perform particular jobs. Second, assure that maximum use is made of personnel regardless of race, color, religion, sex, age, or national origin. And third, help women in assessing their interests and potential so that they can investigate the possibilities open to them within the system."

The FWP manager would like to see not only an increased number of qualified women in the supervisory ranks, but also in skill-trade positions—the so-called "blue collar" jobs. She recalled, for example, a determined young woman firefighter at another installation who "manfully" handled a fire house. In her opinion, "There is no such thing as 'a man's job' anymore."

Christian thinks Fort Lee is "outstanding." She has found the people there "warm, congenial, and understanding," and she has words of praise for the Civilian Personnel Office with which she has considerable professional contact. She is impressed, too, with the physical appearance of the post, which she considers neat and orderly.

The FWP manager has earned the right to call herself a "people's person." She came to Fort Lee from Fort Benning, Ga., where she had become, according to her, the first full-time FWP coordinator at the U.S. Army Infantry Center. Formerly a resident of Columbus, Ga., she now makes her home in Petersburg, Va. She has been a federal employee for 13 years.

While in Columbus she was prominent in community activities, and was the first female, she said, appointed to the Mayor's Committee on Prostitution and Pornography.

New post sergeant major

Fort Benning has a new command sergeant major. CSM Hulmer "Jack" Heath returns to the post following a tour as the command sergeant major of the Panama Canal Zone (Army component), installation command sergeant major and command sergeant major of the 193rd Infantry Brigade (CZ), a brigade that is charged with the defense of the canal. After wearing all three hats in Panama he is looking forward to the challenges he faces at Fort Benning.

Sp4 Larry C. Ransom of Battery C, 2nd Battalion, 10th Field Artillery, bore sights the panoramic telescope on the 105mm Howitzer during the hands-on component of the field artillery SQT held recently on Kelley Hill. The line of sight of the tube must be parallel with the panoramic telescope to achieve accurate fire.

Gibson receives award

The Commander's Award for Civilian Service was presented to Wilkes Gibson upon his retirement here last week.

Gibson was credited with doing an exceptionally meritorious job as resource management officer, Plans and Operations Division, Directorate of Plans and Training from July 11, 1966 until Aug. 24, 1979.

He retired from the Army in 1962 as a sergeant major after 26 years service that included combat with the 100th Infantry Division in France and Germany.

He will now make his home in Tampa, Fla.

THE BIGGEST DIFFERENCE BETWEEN DATSUN 810 AND MERCEDES 280-E IS THE PRICE.

In order to fully appreciate the difference between Datsun 810 and the Mercedes 280-E, you must compare them on the chart below. For example, each car has fully independent suspension on all four wheels. So in either car you get a ride that's smooth and handling that's sure. Both cars are powered by fuel-injected, overhead cam, six-cylinder engines. (Though, we must admit, the Datsun 810 is powered by the same race-track proven engine that made our 240-Z a legend.)
 Obviously, there isn't a lot of difference between either car in performance or engineering. So why would anyone want to buy a Datsun 810 instead of a Mercedes? For the biggest difference of all: you can buy a Datsun 810 for $12,646 less than a Mercedes 280-E. Obviously, the biggest difference between these two great luxury/performance cars is price. Doesn't it make sense to get more value for your money?
 Why not see us before you make any decision. We want to prove to you that the Datsun 810 is the world's most underpriced luxury/performance car.
Standard Equipment: Power steering • AM/FM stereo radio (4-speaker with toggle button) • Fully reclining bucket seats • Six-way adjustable driver's seat • Quartz digital LED clock • Full instrumentation with tachometer • Power antenna • Steel-belted radials • Central sensor system • And many other standard features. At no extra cost.

BAYONET commentary

Old Guard members true Army professionals

By Cliff Purcell

In recent years, much has been written and said about the quality of today's soldiers. There seems to be an ongoing discussion from within the Army and among our civilian friends questioning the quality of our Army enlistees.

It seems the doubts center around the modern soldier's responsibility and dedication to perform as a member of a team, whether it be in training or in a future crisis situation. Far too often we read only the negative side of the service and seldom get the other side of the facts.

This past week Fort Benning was visited by elements of the Army's official ceremonial unit, the 3rd U.S. Infantry (The Old Guard), the U.S. Army Drill Team, the Fife and Drum Corps, the Continental Color Guard and the Commander-in-Chief's Guard who performed in ceremonies around post.

Okay, so you say they are sharp and extremely impressive...but can they soldier too?

You bet they can. Soldiers of The Old Guard have a unique dual mission. They are responsible for the security of the nation's capital during times of national emergency or civil disturbance, while at the same time being the Army's official ceremonial unit and escort to the President. They face the same inspections, ARTEPS, SQTs and other soldierly tasks as do infantrymen anywhere.

Training, tactical proficiency and individual fitness are but a few of the soldiers' concerns. The individuals must be trim, dedicated, confident, and willing to endure the rigorous constant practice. They seek perfection in execution and military bearing. Timing must be letter perfect whether it be the Drill Team doing the "Queen Anne Salute" or the Fife and Drum Corps playing "Drums and Guns" or the Commander-in-Chief's Guard demonstrating tactics against enemy infantry or the Continental Color Guard posting the National Colors.

These impressive officers and soldiers are quality. They came from the ranks of the Army and after their tour, The Old Guard members will return to regular units stationed around the world. Their backgrounds are no different than our soldiers at Kelley Hill, Harmony Church or Main Post, who week after week do a superb job. They, like The Old Guard, must train, stay physically fit and remain proficient in their specialty.

The privileged experience of having seen The Old Guard perform should remind us of our goals: teamwork, military bearing and preparedness. Quality then is perhaps a misnomer. Maybe motivation and dedication are areas leaders and soldiers alike need to strive toward.

Col. Stanley Bonta, commander of The Old Guard, and his officers and soldiers have returned to Washington leaving behind a new perspective.

Fort Benning's DYA criticized by Lavoie parent

To the Editor:

This letter is concerning DYA and their unfair decisions. Since moving to Fort Benning in 1977, my three sons have participated in all the seasonal sports. During this time, I have heard much criticism, coming from angry parents concerning DYA and their children, but I had never experienced any of this until now.

I went to DYA to sign up my sons for football and they were signed late but never the less that didn't stop them from being placed on a team. I was told by Maj. Chapman that he had a place on the Pony League and one on the Peewee League, but the 10-year-old division was filled and my son could be placed on a waiting list. However, with the proper weight he was placed on the same Peewee Team as the 11-year-old.

Everything went along fine for more than two weeks. These little guys practiced hard in the heat, only to be told on Thursday, Sept. 6 that they could no longer play with the Buckeneers. They said there were too many players, but they could go to Main Post and play with the Eagles. My children were very hurt as were my husband and myself, to see them so disappointed because they couldn't play in the game on Saturday, Sept. 8.

How could DYA and its directors be so low down as to mess around with children's minds? Don't they have any feelings for their own children? If they had too many on the team when they signed up, why weren't they placed on a waiting list then? Most of all, why weren't we notified first of the decision instead of dropping a bomb on the little one's head? Another thing, who's to provide the transportation across post for them if they had chosen to play on the Main Post team? Lavoie is home, their friends are here and we and they wish for them to remain on a Lavoie team.

I hope on my husband's next duty station we never have to be involved with a DYA like Fort Benning's. Everyone wasn't wrong for their remarks about DYA.

Readers praise Destin

To the Editor:

We would like to thank the personnel at Destin Recreation Center for providing two great days of fishing. Our special thanks to the skipper of the Follow Me, Mr. Marv Jenkins, whose knowledge and seamanship around the Gulf area provided us with tremendous fishing opportunities. Our catch included 12 king mackerel and six bonito. Be aware, people, there is great fun to be had at Destin. October brings one of the biggest bullfishing tournaments around and we intend to be there.

Welcome signs wasted

To the Editor:

Recently reassigned to Fort Benning after an absence of five years I drew on my many years of military experience driving in and followed the signs (welcome). I figured they might have made some changes while I was away, but not being a complete stranger, I wouldn't bother the MPs at the gate. They're not as visible as they used to be anyway.

If you follow the welcome signs carefully coming from any point of the compass, you'll find yourself driving down 1st Infantry Brigade

Glad you asked

SSgt. Juan Serrano
Company B, 7th Battalion, 1st
Infantry Training Brigade

No, I think Fort Benning commanders should give more Article 15's, instead of worrying about the numbers. Commanders should give Article 15's when necessary to improve soldier discipline.

Sp4 Ronald Lyons
498th Medical Evacuation
Company (Air Assault)

Yes, I had a company commander at one time who did abuse Article 15's. He did it more to show he had power over the troops.

Sgt. Harold Wicker
Company B, 43rd Engineer
Battalion

Yes, most people who receive Article 15's should be given at platoon level, where they can be given extra duty, instead of being given straight from the commander. At one time the commander gave very few Article 15's, but recently he has given at least 22 in one month. The people in the unit don't mind having money taken out of their paycheck, but they do mind their time taken away for extra duty.

SSgt. Blaine Souerwine
Company E, 1st Battalion, 1st
Infantry Training Brigade

No, Article 15's should be administered in accordance with current regulations covering them. Commanders should not use an Article 15 for political, personal or other reasons.

2nd Lt. Karen Miller
Headquarters, Headquarters
Detachment, 34th Medical Battalion Adjutant

Yes, at one time I thought that too many Article 15's were given unnecessarily. Presently, commanders utilize extra training as opposed to harsh disciplinary action such as an Article 15, which enhances servicemembers morale.

1st Lt. Ana Brown
Headquarters, Headquarters
Detachment, 197th Support
Battalion

No, Article 15's are only given after everything else has failed. Usually three counseling statements are given to a servicemember before he/she is sent to the commander for an Article 15.

Based on your experience, are Fort Benning commanders giving too many Article 15's?

CWO 2 Don Jones
121st Aviation Company
(Combat Support)

No, Article 15's should only be used as the most severe means of punishment, as a disciplinary action to individuals who actually deserve it.

Sp4 Connie Green
Company A, Headquarters Command

No, commanders are not giving enough Article 15's to deserving individuals. Commanders should only give Article 15's to servicemembers as a last resort after everything else has failed. Then the commander should make the punishment fit the crime.

SSgt. Jimmy Knose
533rd Transportation Company

No, the class of people we have seem to be qualified for their job and school trained. We are the 533rd Transportation Company and are part of the administrative storage at this time, which relates why we don't have to issue Article 15's. The people do their job with no problems to complete their task.

MSgt. Fred Herrick Readiness Group IV,
Redstone Arsenal, Ala.

No, Article 15's are misused. A lot of the time they are given in lieu of a Chapter 5 or 13, instead of doing the paperwork to eliminate the individual from the Army.

Sp4 Everett Lewis
608th Ordnance Company

Yes, the commanders are using the Article 15 first as a disciplinary action, then afterward the offender is counseled. He usually hands out three to four Article 15's a week to people he doesn't like.

Editors note: In the Aug. 31 issue of the BAYONET we misquoted Sp4 Susan Penny, 179th Military Intelligence Detachment, when she answered the "Glad You Asked" question. The question was, "What do you feel is the purpose of health and welfare inspections?" Penny's answer should have read, "If the inspections were concerned with the health and welfare of the soldiers, then steps would be taken to eliminate the roaches and other bugs that inhabit the barracks."

Loop approaching Headquarters Company, USAIC and 18th Replacement Detachment. That will probably give rise to the feeling that you're getting close. Don't get too comfortable though because when you finally come to the sign you've been looking for and it proclaims "Welcome Here," the "Here" is two Dempsey Dumpsters located between Buildings 2838 and 2839. No office or unit HQ signs are in sight of the Welcome Here, but it you'll inquire in either of the nearby buildings, or the Dumpsters, someone will tell you you're not supposed to be there and that officers report in to Building 83. No signs to follow but it's a welcome anyway.

Please withhold my name. After finally finding my way to the proper place, I mentioned this little saga to my new CO thinking he would want to get this little catch 22 taken care of right away. His response, surprisingly, was that those signs were meant for enlisted men. I think enlisted men too would appreciate being directed to someplace other than a couple of dumpsters.

CBs bothering residents

To the Editor:

I have been living in McGraw Manor for over five months. So far, the evenings when my family and I are enjoying television, I have to put up with some NUT trying to see how far he can run his power in his CB. Needless to say, it ruins all TV and stereo reception in my house. Is there a way this nut could quit coming in 'wall-to-wall and tree top tall'?

Trial bus service to be continued

METRA's 30-day trial service between north-east Columbus and Fort Benning has been extended indefinitely, according to Mr. Jerry Newman, transportation coordinator for the post Transportation Office.

About 20 to 25 people a day are taking advantage of the service which provides two buses in the morning inbound to Benning and two out-bound buses in the afternoon. Each bus can carry up to 53 passengers. Riders are charged $25 per month or $1.50 per day. The original schedule called for stops at Building 35, Building 4 and Martin Army Hospital but it has been changed to include the Lawson Field area.

Newman said Benning officials are considering a special bus route for the posts' finance section that would be conducted by METRA and would cost the same amount as the Windsor Park route.

Persons interested in the new bus service or who would like to see other stops added to the route may call METRA at 323-4100 or the post Transportation Office at 545-1941.

Early separation program announced

WASHINGTON (ARNEWS) — Officers and enlisted soldiers scheduled for separation from active duty Dec. 12 through Jan. 6 will be eligible for "early outs," DA officials announced recently.

Separation dates for these soldiers will be between Dec. 11 and 20, officials said.

Unless a soldier chooses to keep the original separation date, the following schedule will be followed:

Current Separation Date	Target Separation Date
Dec. 12-26, 1979	Dec. 11, 1979
Dec. 27, 1979	Dec. 12, 1979
Dec. 28, 1979	Dec. 13, 1979
Dec. 29, 1979	Dec. 14, 1979
Dec. 30, 1979	Dec. 17, 1979
Jan. 2, 1980
Jan. 3, 1980	Dec. 18, 1979
Jan. 4, 1980	Dec. 19, 1979
Jan. 5-6, 1980	Dec. 20, 1979

Depending on such things as the unit's workload and the availability of port calls, soldiers will be separated as close to the target dates as possible, officials said.

Officers eligible for early release under this policy may be kept on active duty until their normal release date if necessary for unit operations.

The following are not eligible for early outs:

- Reserve component soldiers on active duty for training.

- Soldiers scheduled for retirement.

- Officers who have DA approved release or resignation dates or those who are being involuntarily separated.

- Any personnel subject to "flagging" action.

"Uncle Sam needs us."

Harold M. Forbes

Sergeant Earl Forbes is an infantryman. To him, the Army is a whole lot more than a place to work. It's a place to grow, too. His wife agrees: "My lifestyle has changed a lot. Things are better. Being married to Earl, I feel like I've got it better than many civilian wives. I'm interested in what he does. We talk about his assignments. We need each other. And the Army needs us. It really does."

What about you and your family? Maybe your husband should have a talk with his career counselor. He may find out just how much Uncle Sam needs him.

Keep a good family in the Army.

Mortarmen of yesteryear (1950s) at Fort Benning stand before the early stages of the 81 MM mortars.

Mortar gunnery — the way it was

By Willis E. Davis

Originally, the mortar gunnery course was part of the artillery branch until February 1958 when it was turned over to the infantry branch.

Over the years the Infantry Mortar Platoon Course has gone through many changes to give officers and non-commissioned officers the best mortar training available anywhere.

The initial requirement for the Infantry Heavy Mortar Platoon Leaders Course came from several areas. One, the 4.2 inch mortar system was somewhat more technical than the lighter mortar systems the infantry platoon leader had to contend with in his daily tasks. Additionally, it was not uncommon for the experienced platoon sergeant to know more about the platoon leader's job as a mortar platoon leader than did the newly designated platoon leader. This situation was identified and corrected with the initiation of a six-week course at Fort Benning to educate new platoon leaders on the 4.2 inch mortar so that they could, in fact, effectively be the platoon leader and achieve the effectiveness that the 4.2 inch mortar was designed to provide the infantry.

Only minor changes from the original course have occurred. The earlier course required the students to conduct position survey just as surveyors today determine exact positions on land. The platoon leader needed to know exactly were he was located in order to place the rounds in the area desired by the infantry. Basically, the initial course primarily used artillery fire direction procedures.

In fact, in 1954 a test was conducted at Fort Benning whereby all 4.2 inch mortars were placed in the 1st Battalion, 39th Field Artillery, 3rd Infantry Division to determine if they could be made more effective in delivering indirect fire in the mid-range area under artillery control. It was this experience with artillery fire direction procedures that the Infantry Heavy Mortar Platoon Leader Course of instruction could be seen by the graduates as being closely parallel to the procedures taught by the Artillery School.

Another change in the course has been the addition of the M106A1, the self-propelled mortar carrier. The earlier course used a 3/4 ton truck and trailer and required much back-breaking, man-handling effort each time the weapon and ammunition were placed into or taken out of the firing position. Use of the 113 mortar carrier makes crew drill less strenuous.

The regimental heavy mortar company of the 1950's contained 12, 4.2 inch mortars capable of delivering massive amounts of indirect fire in a short period of time. The course design met these objectives as well as providing the heavy mortar platoon leader with the necessary technical training and experience upon which he could become an effective leader.

Finally, the original course was devoted solely to instruction on the 4.2 inch mortars, while the more recent course includes the 81mm mortar.

An IMPC student, 2nd Lt. William Bennett, prepares to fire a HE (high explosive) round from a 4.2-inch mortar recently at Coolidge Range.

IMPC teaches mortar gunnery

By Debbie Harrison

One of the more complex courses offered by the USAIS is the Weapons Gunnery and Maintenance Department's Infantry Mortar Platoon Course (IMPC).

This six-week course teaches junior officers and E-6 and E-7 non-commissioned officers the skills and details necessary to be professional mortarmen. And, equally important, they are taught to train others what they learn at Eiler Hall.

There are three elements of major concern within mortar gunnery. They are the mechanical hands-on portion, forward observation procedures and fire direction center techniques. Other instruction includes tactics, commo and fire planning.

"The mechanical training is the muscle of mortar gunnery," according to 2nd Lt. Scott Armbrister, assistant branch FDC chief of the Mortar Division. It is during mechanical training that the student mounts the mortar, sets the elevation and deflection, and places the M-2 aiming circle into operation. He must also bore sight the mortar, perform safety checks and misfire procedures.

Reservists on way to Benning aid injured driver

By Alan Hugley

They were almost here for their annual training, 40 miles north of Columbus on Highway 27, when it happened.

It was 4:30 a.m. when SSgt. Howard Klann and Cpl. John C. Heredia were called upon to exercise their training and experience in a real-life situation. Both men are members of Company A, 1st Battalion, 330th Regiment, 2nd Brigade.

As they were driving along that morning, they came upon an overturned civilian jeep. The lone driver of the jeep, injured and dazed, was leaning against the vehicle. He was bleeding and in shock.

The injured man consented to treatment after Klann and Heredia identified themselves as Reservists with some first aid training. However, he refused to lay down or leave the area or his vehicle. He did not know where he was or the extent of his injuries.

Klann, returning from his van with a first aid kit, began helping Heredia clean the more superficial lacerations on the injured man's face and head. Feeling more relaxed, the injured driver allowed himself to be taken to Klann's van. He began to complain of pain in his ribs, shoulders, neck and back. His body was covered with contusions from the accident.

While Heredia treated him for shock and cleaned wounds, Klann went about taking road safety precautions around the damaged vehicle.

The two 70th Division Reservists kept the man calm and relaxed for two hours until an ambulance arrived at 6:30 a.m.

Indiana Reserve Infantry Division trains here

The 4th Brigade (Infantry), 70th Division (Training), an Army Reserve Unit responsible for basic and advanced combat skills training, is here for duty from Camp Atterbury, Ind.

Commander of the 4th Brigade, Col. Billy J. Smyser, explains the primary mission of the 4th Brigade at Fort Benning is to meet mobilization requirements in compliance with the mission of the 70th Division Training Command.

Upon a mobilization order, the 70th Division USAR's mission is to assume command of the Infantry Training Center here. The mission would then include the command, control and administration of approximately 22,000 trainees, accomplished through the combination of the 70th Division USAR Force, the 170th Support Battalion and the 5089th U.S. Reception Station and Leadership Academy, and remaining Fort Benning resources.

"The training plan of this year's annual training for the 4th Brigade is unique," says Smyser, "in that the program is tri-lateral in its approach."

Officers, first sergeants and qualified drill sergeants of the 2nd Battalion of the 70th Regiment and the 2nd Battalion of the 329th Regiment have been functioning in duty positions within the 1st Infantry Training Brigade here from the 1st through Sept. 15.

On a student-level, members of the 1st and 3rd Battalions of the 4th Brigade will receive qualification training in the Mortar (Crew Served Weapon). The Mobile Training Team of the 82nd Airborne Division will be training eligible personnel of the 1st and 3rd Battalions here during two-week split intervals tomorrow through Oct. 6.

Throughout the annual training schedule, combat support personnel (CST) of all four battalions and the Headquarters Detachment will continue to receive classroom and performance training in the areas of administration, food service and special services.

New law makes absentee voting easy

You say you didn't vote in the last federal election because you didn't want to go through the hassle of applying for an absentee ballot?

Well, Public Law 95-593, passed in November 1978, will make it easier for all U.S. citizens overseas and servicemembers everywhere to register and vote in future federal elections.

According to Federal Voting Assistance Program Director Henry Valentino, the new law simplifies the process for military people and their dependents who want to vote by absentee ballot.

The new law will:

(A) Allow persons covered by the Federal Voting Assistance Act of 1955 and the Overseas Citizens Voting Rights Act of 1975 to vote absentee in federal elections and not necessarily be subject to state or local taxes when overseas.

(B) Include U.S. citizens without passports or State Department identity cards, but possessing other acceptable forms of identification. This section will help the more than half million Americans residing in Mexico and Canada where passports or State Department identity cards are not required.

(C) Encourage states to provide absentee voting material to servicemembers and their dependents.

(D) Require the creation of a standardized post card to serve as an application for registration as well as a request for a ballot.

Many citizens living abroad did not exercise their right to vote during the 1976 federal election. They were afraid they'd be subject to some form of tax liability, according to a survey conducted after the election. The new law separates the right to vote absentee in federal elections from tax status.

Although the law protects the rights of citizens overseas to register and vote in federal elections without state or local tax liability, according to Valentino, it does not provide immunity if persons vote in local or state elections. Many states, however, have extended the tax immunity to their elections also.

To reduce problems in current registration procedures and mailing time for absentee ballots, the federal voting assistance program will design a new postcard application, according to the director. A survey has shown that about 17 percent of the people who wanted to vote could not because they either received their ballots too late or did not receive them at all.

Some states honor the postcard as both a registration and ballot request for all federal elections. Other states, according to Valentino, require separate requests for the primary election, general election and, if necessary, for a run-off election.

Persons having questions about absentee voting should see their unit voting officer or seek help from U.S. embassies and consulates overseas.

For more information about absentee voting rights, write to the Federal Voting Assistance Program, Office of the Secretary of Defense, Pentagon, Washington, D.C. 20301.

Heidi M. Pulliam begins her workday at 7 o'clock every morning. She is a GS-4 administration clerk in civilian life for the S-1 section, Headquarters, The School Brigade.

But in the military ranks she is a member of the U.S. Naval Reserve. As a yeoman 3rd class (E-4) she is attached to the Naval Reserve Center, RMN-CB, Detachment 1414, Company H in Columbus. She entered the Naval Reserve under the Advanced Pay Grade Program which corresponds to the Army's Stripes for Skills Program.

"I joined the Reserves for the benefits and travel," she said. Mrs. Pulliam just finished her two weeks of summer training, spending it in New Orleans, La. "I was originally scheduled to attend the Advanced Pay Grade School which is a course of instruction in basic i.e., military courtesy, Navy rank structure, drill and ceremonies, etc. The class filled up before I arrived so they assigned me to the Disbursing Office, Naval Support Activity. For the next two weeks I was a payroll clerk. This was my first summer camp and next time I'll be better prepared," she explained.

Mrs. Pulliam is currently attending Troy State University in her off time seeking a business degree. She is originally from Amsterdam, Holland and became a United States citizen at the age of 15. She is married to SFC (P) William M. Pulliam, chief instructor for Company A, NCOSI, who shares an interest in her favorite hobby - bowling.

CFC campaign to kick off

The kick off ceremony for this year's Combined Federal Campaign (CFC) will be held in Marshall Auditorium Wednesday at 11 a.m. Maj. Gen. David Grange Jr., post commander, will be the keynote speaker.

Funds collected against a goal of $325,000 will provide financial assistance to 48 voluntary health, welfare, and youth agencies, most of which are in the Columbus, Phenix City, and the Fort Benning areas.

This is the ninth year that the CFC has been held among all the federal military and civilian personnel in this area, but Fort Benning has been joining forces with the community for nearly 30 years to assist worthwhile voluntary health and service activities.

Campaign material, including a brochure describing the services rendered by all the agencies involved, will be distributed early next week.

Last year Fort Benning and local federal agencies collected over $433,000 for distribution to the local United Way, the National Health, and the International Services Agencies. Most of these funds were donated through the payroll deduction method which may be used again this year by the military and civilian employees.

the mortar. The student must learn to locate and identify targets, formulate a call for fire and transmit that call to the fire direction center. Once the rounds are fired he spots the landing point and sends corrections to the fire direction center for processing.

The fire direction center (FDC) is the brains of the mortar. At this point they receive the call for fire on the target area. This information is sent to the gunners and is placed on the mortar sight. The rounds are then sent on their way.

The last three days of IMPC are spent on practical tasks. A field exercise that also incorporates ARTEP tasks combines their technical and practical knowledge in a realistic setting.

Graduates of IMPC return to their units where they can now apply what they have learned in the course. They are now recognized as "experts" in mortar and are expected to teach their fellow soldiers what they have learned. A mortar platoon is at the immediate disposal of a commander and is a vital tool in the success of his mission.

Area coordinators

CG stresses importance of soldiers appointed 'guardians of peace'

By Cliff Purcell and Gary Jones

Recently, Maj. Gen. David E. Grange Jr., post commanding general, met with Fort Benning's newly appointed area coordinators.

"It is my desire to make the family housing areas at Fort Benning the best place within the Army to live and to raise a family," Grange stressed. "This is easily said but very difficult to accomplish. You are the key to this objective — it will require a team effort."

Grange covered several specific points. First, he appointed Col. Richard McKee, assistant commander, to represent him and oversee the Community Life Program and he placed each major housing area under the direct responsibility of a major unit commander.

"Each family should be able to enjoy their quarters and their yard and not be subjected to loud, disruptive noises from their neighbors. They should be free from concern about unattended or loose pets, free from concern of unattended or destructive neighborhood children. Families should be able to enjoy their personal freedoms and rights without interference from or interfering with neighbors. Each sponsor must insure that their family complies with the post regulations and standards of conduct," he said.

"As you know, Fort Benning is one of the most beautiful posts in the Army and it is kept that way only by a lot of hard work and concern by everyone assigned here. The same must apply to the housing areas. Each of us has a responsibility to keep our area policed and well-groomed.

"Another area of concern is that of privately owned vehicles (POVs). This is a problem that ranges from not parking POVs in approved parking spots, to driving or parking them on lawns or patios." He stressed that driving within the housing areas at a safe speed is necessary to insure that the lives of others are not endangered.

"Spouse abuse, child abuse and child neglect are potential serious problems. All of these areas adversely affect not only the family directly involved but cannot help but impact on their neighbors. I am very concerned about this and, as you know, I have taken firm action in removing from post, families who could not live in harmony or who disrupt their neighbor's peace and quiet," Grange added.

Under the revisions of USAIC Regulation 210-28 area coordinators have been appointed. It will be their job to conduct daily inspections of the family housing within their assigned areas to insure that their areas are maintained in a high rate of orderliness.

If the area coordinator finds a deficiency in the police of the area of an occupant in his area, he will inform the occupant either verbally or with a written notice.

When an occupant receives a written notice from the area coordinator, a copy of the deficiency report goes on record in the area commander's office and is also forwarded to the individual's unit commander.

If an occupant receives two written deficiency reports from the area coordinator within a 12-month period, the occupant will be forced to vacate the quarters.

The revised regulation is designed to assist family housing occupants in removing uncooperative occupants from their neighborhood and to help area commanders ensure that family housing occupants have an attractive, clean place to live and enjoy.

The area coordinators are chosen by the area commanders and are placed on orders for a minimum of 12 months and a maximum of 15 months (excepting PCS, ETS, etc. within the 12-month period).

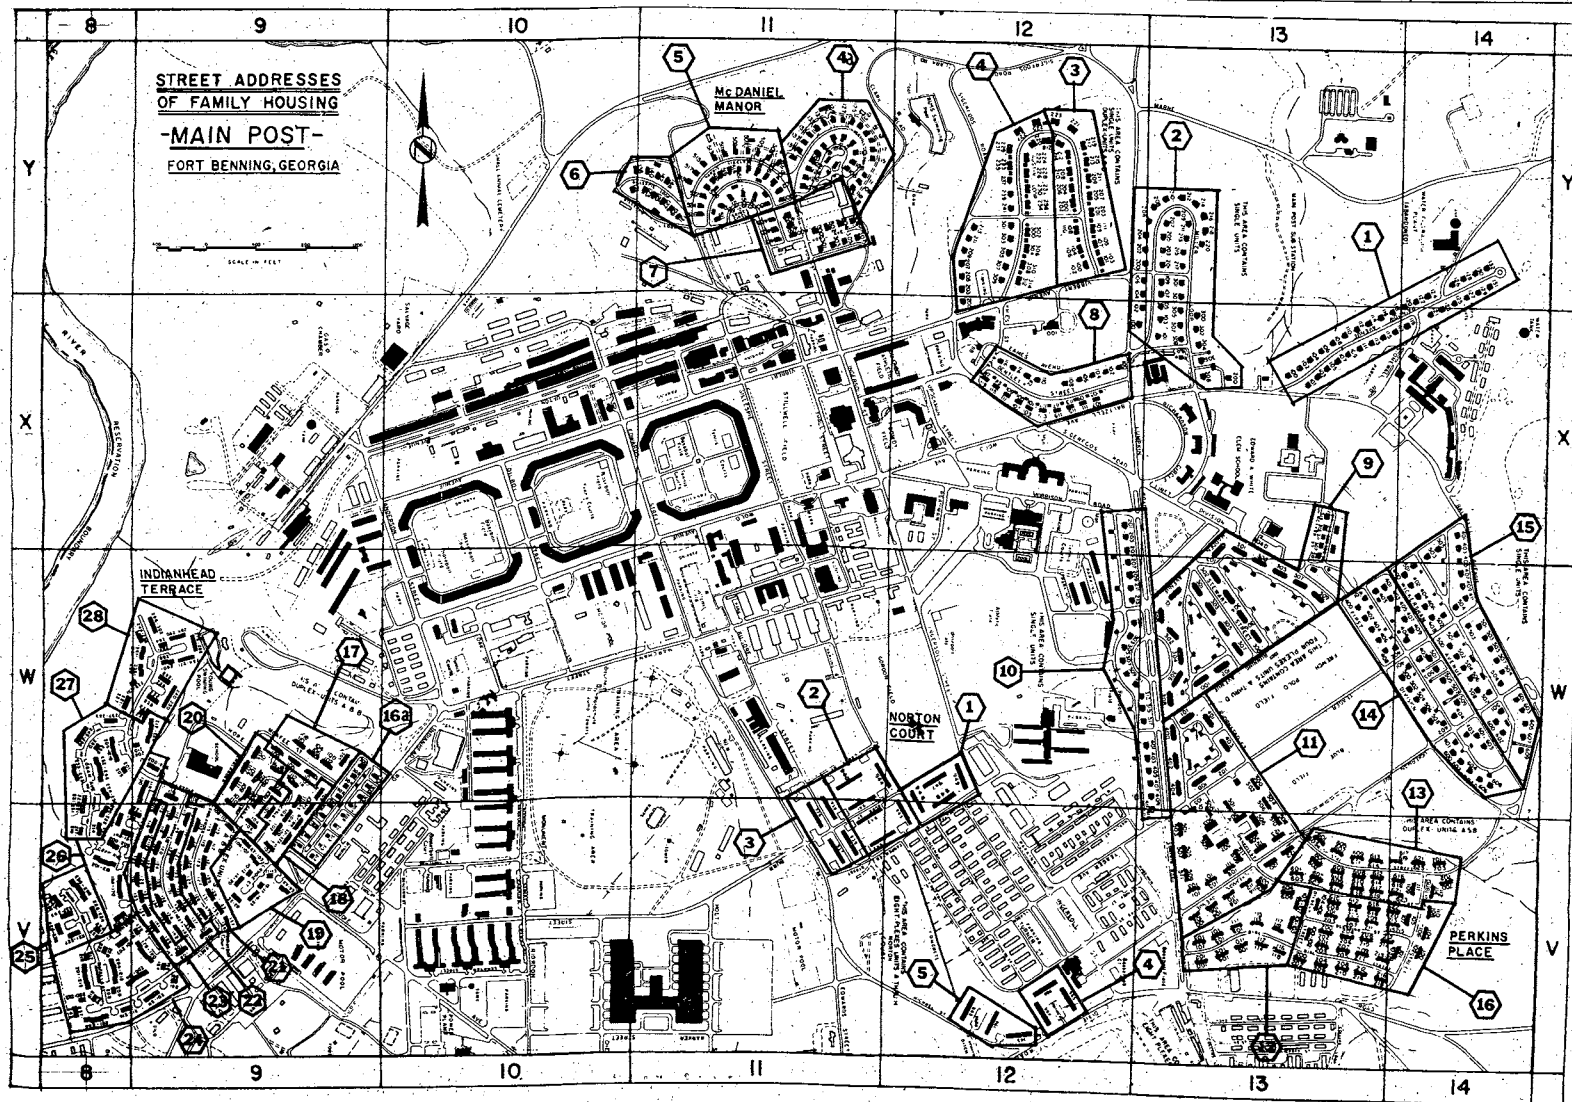

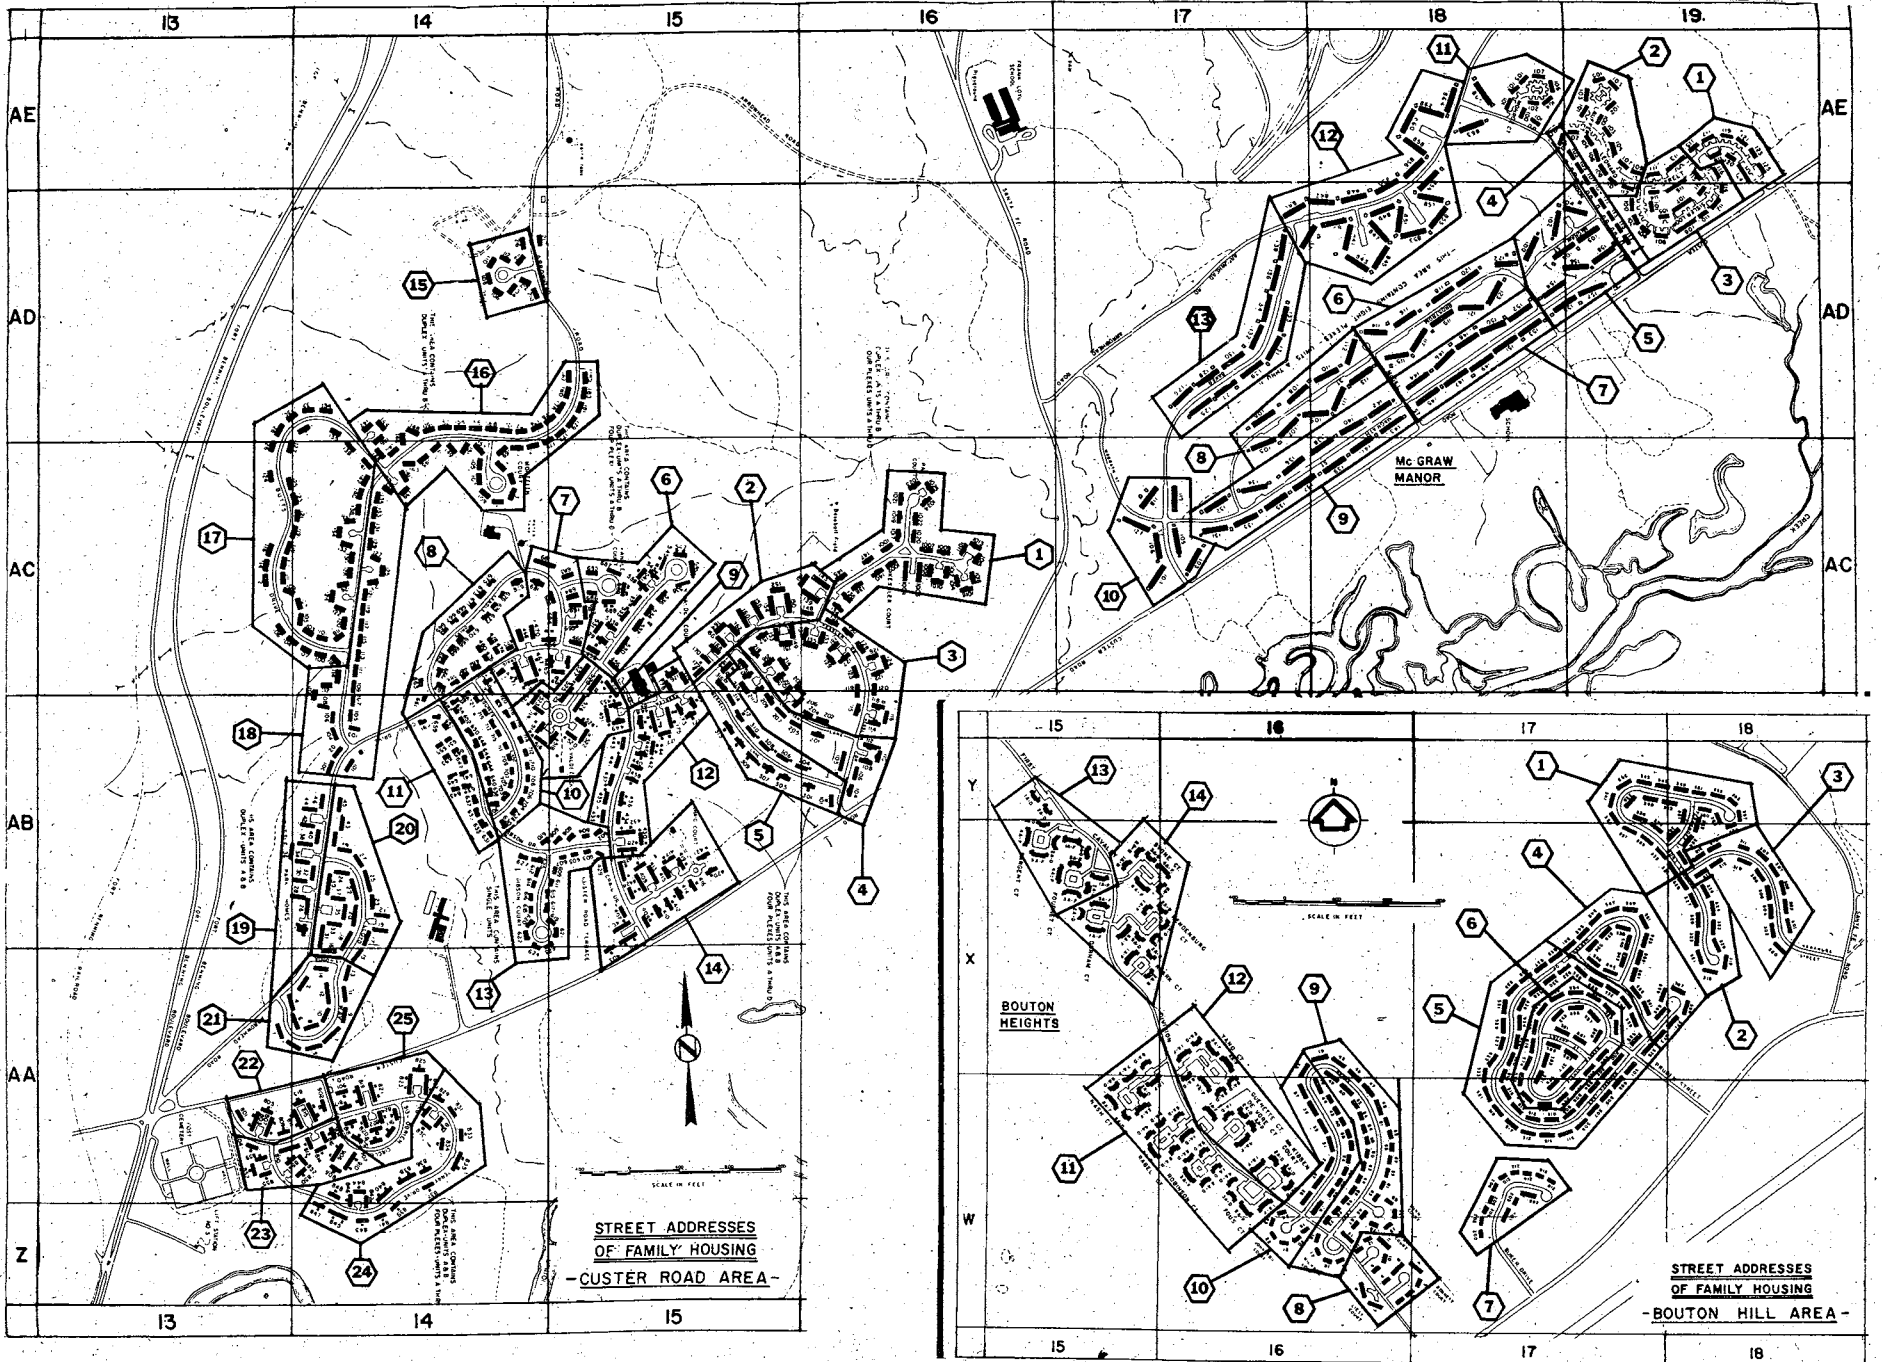

For more information concerning the area coordinator program call the Housing Division at 545-4814 or contact your area coordinator.

CAP encampment held on Benning

By John M. Brown

The Civil Air Patrol (CAP), whose mission is to aid in search and rescue efforts for victims of plane crashes, recently held a two-day training encampment here.

The Civil Air Patrol is an official auxiliary of the U.S. Air Force.

Sponsored by Detachment 10, 5th Weather Squadron, the CAP unit, commanded by Capt. Jimmie B. Ratledge of Columbus, is a voluntary unit with cadet members ages 13 through 21. It also has active duty military and civilians as senior member advisors.

In a major effort to gain recognition for the fledgling unit and to begin training for the new members, Detachment 10 hosted a Fort Benning sponsored weekend field training encampment Aug. 17-19. The meeting highlighted instructors from almost every major directorate on post, and was conducted under field conditions.

Students were bombarded with many hours of instruction while on Fort Benning. The Tower Training Branch, Airborne Department, gave instruction on the 34-ft. jump towers. Student made at least three exits from the tower.

techniques from the C-130 class aircraft. Each student made at least 3 exits from the tower.

The Pathfinder Training Branch gave instruction on rappelling from their 35-ft. tower. Pathfinder instructors conducted hands-on training for all 31 students including rappels off the "ramp" side of the tower.

Instruction on land navigation was provided by the Combat Tactics Branch. Seven hours of instruction including basic map reading and a terrain field problem were given.

The highlight of the encampment was the class of instruction on basic survival techniques provided by SSgt. Steve Rondeau, a Florida Ranger Camp instructor. Rondeau provided practical, hands-on and classroom instruction about finding, preparing and eating small animals, birds and reptiles for survival in the field. Practical demonstrations conducted by Rondeau used a live rabbit, chicken and rattle-snake. Other features were shelters, fires, medicines made from plants, snares and traps, finding water and survival first aid.

Support was provided by the 197th Infantry Brigade. Personal equipment items were provided by the 43rd Company, 4th Student Battalion.

Thirty-one cadets and senior members from Georgia and Alabama attended the encampment. The encampment commander was 1st Lt. John M. Brown, the post chief forecaster.

A critique was administered to all cadets and senior members in attendance at the conclusion of the encampment. Each rated it as the finest, most extensive encampment attended.

Registration deadline near for state elections

Six states will conduct statewide and congressional elections this year and there's still plenty of time to apply for absentee ballots.

All of the six states accept the Federal Post Card Application forms as the method to register to vote, or as the request for an application to register.

Unit voting officers should use the 1978 Voting Assistance Guide as information reference. Additional information, and Federal Post Card Applications, are available from Federal Voting Assistance Office, Room 2E789, Pentagon, Washington, D.C. 20301.

The six states with major elections this fall are:

KENTUCKY — Election of governor, lieutenant governor, constitutional officers, all state legislators and state senators. General election, Nov. 6; registration deadline, Oct. 10.

istration deadline, 30 days before election.

MISSISSIPPI — Same as above. Primary election, Aug. 7; general election, Nov. 6; registration deadline, 30 days before election.

NEW JERSEY — Election of general assembly, county and local officials. General election, Nov. 6; registration deadline, Oct. 9 (Primaries were held in June).

PENNSYLVANIA — Election of Supreme Court Justice and other state judges. General election, Nov. 6. Registration deadline not fixed for military, however, applications must be received in enough time to allow for transmission of ballots not later than the Friday before the election.

VIRGINIA — Election of state senators and House of Delegates. General election, Nov. 6; registration deadline, Oct. 6.

See your unit voting officer if you need assistance.

Acting: Fort Benning soldiers form entertaining variety show

There's a new group in town called 'ALL BRAN', who perform pantomime, music, jokes, stories, magic, and well, the list goes on. They perform essentially a variety show done with a taste of street theatre.

Each of the four in the cast are veterans of the stage whose credits extend overseas. Dave Farris, from Indiana, is now doing his term of service in the Army and has been a musician for many years. He's just recently returned from Europe and has appeared in many stage productions in Germany. He's also been in Spain, Austria, Italy and France. Being a professional performer for nearly seven years, he has also been very active in scholastic dramatics and participated in many fine arts activities.

Dave LeBoeuf, from Connecticut, is making his debut on stage in this show. He's been studying the psychology of theatre and has participated in many theatre workshops in the States and in Japan.

Mark Sannes, from Minnesota, just came back from Ansbach, Germany where he is now known as 'Fubar'. He spent three years in Germany writing songs about the woes of the Army and other facets of life.

Craig Rodgers, from San Francisco, Calif., has held major and lead roles in over 35 shows, seven which were in semi-professional theatre on the West Coast and in Nashville, Tenn. After studying Boleslavsky, Stanislavski, and Marceau, Craig decided to branch out in his career a little and has now become an accomplished stunt man, taught and held acting workshops, held stunt exhibitions, directed over 15 shows and produced six. Craig will also be performing with All Bran aside from directing and producing the show.

For more information regarding All Bran and upcoming shows, call Sp4 Rodgers at 545-2421 after 5 p.m.

Seven percent Army pay hike may begin Oct. 1

Washington (ARNEWS)—DOD has released a new pay table for military pay and allowances based on the President's new seven percent ceiling on this year's federal pay raise.

EOD personnel volunteer for hazardous jobs

By Pat Barham

There are many jobs that could be considered dangerous in the Army today. Perhaps the most dangerous of all is the job done by the Explosive Ordnance Disposal (EOD) personnel.

There are three phases of training that an individual must complete before becoming EOD qualified.

The first phase of training consists of two weeks studying chemical munitions at Red Stone Arsenal, Huntsville, Ala., with phase two and three at Indianhead, Md.

The second phase deals with surface weapons and the final phase concentrates on nuclear weapons. The three phases take 22½ weeks to complete with intensive training dealing with examples and practical exercises.

Why take risk?

Since all members of EOD are volunteers, before an individual is accepted, a volunteer statement must be signed stating there is a chance of losing life or limb.

What makes an individual want to take such a risk. Why would someone place their life in jeopardy day after day?

Once this statement is signed the detachment keeps the individual another 30 to 60 days before sending him to school. During this time if, for any reason, the unit feels that an individual is unacceptable the individual is terminated from the unit and returned to his parent unit.

These are examples of some types of ordnance EOD personnel must contend with.

According to 1st Sgt. David L. Johnson, 89th Ordnance Detachment (EOD), out of every 100 volunteers who report to the school about six will finish and become EOD qualified. There are approximately 568 EOD qualified personnel in the Army with only nine to 15 soldiers per unit. Members of the EOD team want quality not quantity because often their lives depend on their partner. Benning's EOD detachment covers the post and, in conjunction with local police and fire authorities, covers 38 counties in Georgia and six counties in Alabama.

The incidents that involve the team number about five per day. Members of the teams are on call 24 hours a day, seven days a week covering their areas of responsibility. Along with helping local authorities, the unit is delegated with the task of VIP support in this area.

Time and practice

The all volunteer force also provides instruction to civilian police, fire department and military personnel instructing them on the correct procedure for identifying explosives or ordnance and what to do after such an item has been found.

Each of the volunteers learns the basics when they finish their schools. Later the job really gets tough, as most of their training is on the job training (OJT) learning just how to work in their particular unit of assignment.

The art of handling different types of ordnance takes time and diligent practice to become proficient in the EOD field.

The people who wear the EOD tab earn their keep day after day with dedication and pride.

Plan for Christmas

It's several months until Christmas, but now is a good time to make plans for a merry Christmas. It is a good time to plan where your family will spend the holidays, decide on presents and make a list (and check it twice) to determine how much money will be required to support your Christmas plans.

If your family has to "cut back" for Christmas, why not do it now? Careful planning can make this holiday season your best one in years, and best of all you can avoid the "Third of January and I'm Broke" blues. Call Army Community Service at 545-1169 or 545-1233 if you need assistance with budget planning.

Reservists train here

Auto workers 'break starch' with post troops

By Don Vaquera

Usually, after a weeks' work, Dave Reeves Jr., a skilled trades pipefitter at a General Motors plant located just north of Detroit, counts the number of machines he has set or adjusted.

However, the 37-year-old tradesman didn't pick up one tool or install one machine this week. Instead, he took headcount and instructed PT for trainees from Company A, 7th Battalion, 1st Infantry Training Brigade.

Reeves is a 2nd Battalion, 333rd Regiment, 70th Division (Tng) Reserve drill sergeant headquartered in Pontiac, Mich. He and most of the 69 other enlisted and Reserve officer personnel are often referred to as "Motor City auto workers."

"I guess you could say it's a good thing that we don't all work on the same assembly line," says Lt. Col. Bruce MacDonald, an assistant director for public relations for Chevrolet Motor Division and commander of the Reserve training battalion. "With almost 80 percent of our men and women working directly or indirectly for an auto or truck company, we could definitely make a dent in a foreman's production schedule."

For some 70th Division personnel, getting off the production line during September and working at the 'Home of the Infantry' provides a good job during model change over.

"Right now is a slow time for me," says Reserve supply SSgt. Norman Wooster, a Ford Motor Company assembler, working with Company B, 7th Battalion. "This is a 'change over' for us and my entire line has been laid off," notes Wooster, "but when we're busy my shift will knock off 10,000 cars in one month."

According to Lt. Col. John Meehan, commander of the 7th Battalion, drill sergeants and support personnel from the Reserve Components couldn't come at a better time. "We don't enjoy the luxury of having a surplus of officers and drill sergeants," explains Meehan, "so with the 70th Division and previous Reserve units we've been able to catch our breath with training new soldiers."

Meehan commented that after a weeks' training the 70th Division Reservists from 2nd Battalion had completed all necessary certification to instruct new trainees.

Outgoing company commander from Company B, Capt. Lynn Fox, notes a good attitude helped his three Reserve drill sergeants learn very quickly the high standards of a top NCO. "I think people learn better and quicker by example," said Fox. "I observed that haircuts, uniform appearance and military bearing improved dramatically from the first day to the end of the week, after the Reservists had worked with my people."

With two weeks of Reserve training scheduled to end this week, the 69 Motor City automotive workers from the 70th Division (Tng) will have gained another year of "hands on" experience. However, if a call for the Reserve goes out, the 70th Division (Tng) personnel stand ready and confident to depart the automotive capitol of the world and break starch with their active Army counterparts.

Enduro Run slated tomorrow

So you think you're in shape because you've been jogging faithfully? Put yourself to the test at the 25-mile Pine Mountain Enduro Run tomorrow beginning at 6 a.m. at the Callaway Gardens Country Store, located near the entrance of Franklin D. Roosevelt State Park, eight miles north of Hamilton, Ga. There will also be a five-mile run beginning at 8 a.m.

The race director, Maj. Chuck Briscoe of Fort Benning, said the event is a run, not a race and finishing within the liberal time constraints and having an enjoyable adventure are the goals. Everyone who finishes the course in five hours will receive a T-shirt and an Olympic-size medallion. If a runner decides to quit after five miles, he receives a T-shirt. Runners who finish the five-mile course within an hour will be awarded a T-shirt. There will be no awards for best time in either event.

Because the path is steep, rocky and narrow, all runners will be started at 10-15 second intervals. The trail is marked by light blue markers and all highway crossing sites will be marked by metal signs on both sides of the road. Briscoe said runners should exercise caution and be prepared to walk short distances.

The 25-mile run will end at the WJSP-TV station and the five-mile run will end just past the intersection of Highways 354 and 190 under the stone bridge. Ample refreshments will be available during and after both events. There will be aid stations set up and control points at all highway crossings and at the ends of each race. Shuttle transportation will be available at the finishes for both races to take runners to the start point. Showers and changing facilities will not be available.

Entries will be accepted until 30 minutes prior to starting time and the cost is $4 for either event. The event is sponsored by Natural Light Beer and profits go to the Pine Mountain Trail Association. Registration forms are available at Below the Knee in Cross Country Plaza.

For further information call Maj. Chuck Briscoe at 545-5457 or 545-2917.

Benning golf notes

Monday's golf tournament at Green Valley Country Club, McDonough, Ga. proved to be a fruitful outing for three Fort Benning ladies. With winds gusting constantly, club selection played a decisive factor for the winning trio in their respective flights.

In the second flight, Mavis Hill shot a 90 to take low net. Rita Burford struggled for a 93 to take low net in the third flight and Beth Tucker shot a respectable 96 to take low gross in the fifth flight.

Tomorrow and Sunday will be the Fall Handicap Tournament. Tee times start at 7:30-9:30 a.m. Call the Pro Shop for further information.

Sept. 18 and 19 the ladies are having a two-man best ball tournament. The sign-up sheet is on the ladies bulletin board in the club house.

On Oct. 2-4, the ladies club championship will be played. Check the ladies bulletin board for further information.

The BAYONET would like to feature one battalion-level flag football game in the sports section each week. If you think your team played a good game and would like to see the results published, contact the BAYONET at 545-4622/7841 the next work day after the game is played. A reporter will take the necessary information and a decision will be made as to which game will be featured.

DYA Big Game

Termite League
Falcons 18 - Cowboys 6

In Termite League action last Saturday, the Falcons downed the Cowboys, 18-6. The game was amazingly well played for the first game of the year. Both teams had few penalties and some hard hitting, usually only first seen by mid-October.

Both teams maneuvered, feeling each other out and looking for weaknesses during the entire first half. The half ended in a 0-0 tie. Midway into the third period, Falcon quarterback, Ron McIver, broke loose on the Cowboy 40 and moved the ball to the one-foot-line. Antoine Owens, Falcon fullback, easily moved the ball to paydirt. The extra point was denied by the strong Cowboy defense.

At the beginning of the last period, a fired-up Cowboy defense pushed the Falcons behind their own 10-yard-line, then blocked a punt in the end zone for their only score. Midway in the fourth period Antoine Owens broke loose for a 30-yard Falcon score, and at the end of the game, Owens again out-manuevered the Cowboy defense for the final Falcon TD, this on a forty-yard run for the points. Again, the final conversion was denied the Falcons.

Falcon most valuable players were Owens and McIver on offense, and Owens and "Tiger" Cline on defense.

Doughboys' first game ends in tie

By Deb Hilgeman

"It's like kissing your sister; you don't get anything out of it." That was the way Doughboy Head Coach Ralph Santaliz summed up his feelings about the team's season opener against the Carson-Newman College Eagles which ended in a 27-all tie Saturday night at Doughboy Stadium.

"The guys played well and should have won that game," Santaliz said, "but we made some mental mistakes that really hurt us." The coach predicted last week that the only problems the Doughboys would encounter would be "mental mistakes and first game jitters" and that Carson-Newman would be in "the same boat." That prediction proved accurate as quarterbacks fumbled, receivers missed passes and penalties plagued both teams throughout the game.

The Doughboys got off to a sloppy start and made their first mistake on the third play of the game when they allowed the Eagles to get on the board first with a 64-yard scoring run.

Spearheaded by a strong defense, the Doughboys contained the Eagles and with less than a minute left in the quarter, running back Greg King scored for the Doughboys with a one-yard run. The point after fell short and the quarter ended with the Doughboys trailing 7-6.

With 11:44 remaining in the second quarter, the Doughboys began the drive from their 10-yard line that would give them the lead. Three plays later, they made their move with a pass from quarterback Leamon Hall to wide receiver Fredrick Suggs for a 77-yard touchdown along the right side. Wayne Jackson's extra point kick was good, giving the Doughboys a 13-7 lead.

The half ended in a 13-all tie when Carson-Newman's Mark Grisby caught a 28-yard pass from Brian Setzer and took it in for the score.

The Eagles got their break in the third quarter when they intercepted a pass on the Doughboy's 11-yard line. Four plays and one first down later, the Eagles' Jeff Smarr pushed through for a touchdown and the point after put them ahead 20-13 as the quarter ended.

The Doughboys rallied and overcame adversity in the final quarter when defensive tackle James Glenn recovered on the Eagles' 25-yard line. A Hall pass to wide receiver Kenneth Quinlan placed the Doughboys in an even better scoring position and in the next play, a Hall to Suggs pass resulted in another tie, 20-all.

The Doughboys made their final score when Hall executed a special draw play, known as the 'reverse draw', which the team has been working on since spring training began. The move caught the Eagles by surprise and while they prepared for Hall to pass, he marched forward and shot the ball to King who took it in from the 27-yard line.

With a 27-20 lead and the clock ticking off the final minutes of the game, the Doughboys seemed assured of a victory; especially after recovering an Eagles' fumble on their own 34-yard line. But their confidence was doused by a fighting Eagles' defense, forcing the Doughboys to give up the ball. The Eagles received the kick off on the 21-yard line and ran it to the 34-yard line. On the next play, quarterback John Springer threw to Grisby who broke it down to the 10-yard line where he was tackled from behind by Ted Walker.

With ten seconds left to play, Springer passed to wide receiver Willie Nelson in the end zone. With the Doughboy lead narrowed to one point and only four seconds remaining, Springer gave the ball to Nelson for the two-point conversion try but an illegal block thrown in the end zone kept it from counting.

As 5,000 fans cheered on the Doughboys' defense, the home team's hope died when the extra point was good and the game ended in a tie.

The Old Guard and the Continental Color Guard gave a precision performance before the game and at half-time.

The Doughboys' next game will be tomorrow at 2 p.m. in Doughboy Stadium against Fort Bragg, who now holds a 2-0 season record.

Second Looks

For those readers who are not yet convinced there is life after 40, take heart. Dr. Dyer of the Fort Benning Army Research Institute recently returned from the American Psychological Association's annual Labor Day weekend convention in New York City. The shrinks staged a 10-kilometer race in Central Park, and Dr. Dyer placed 6th overall with a time of 39:20. If you're still not convinced, try chasing SGM (Ret.) John La-voie at any of the local area races.

The Midnight Express 5-kilometer was quite a treat. For you who missed it—I'm sure not all of Fort Benning and Columbus were there, even though it seemed so let me explain. First, there was the weather: it's cooler at midnight than it is during the day; we even had a bit of a breeze. Second, it was a real race: though none of the participants got to see all of it, John Tuttle of Auburn bested Columbus' Bruce Skiles by 17 seconds, completing the 3.1 mile course in a blistering 14:30, with Fort Benning's George Gilkes placing 3rd. The few Fort Benning runners I had a chance to corner all seemed to have acquitted themselves rather nicely, including a gung-ho bunch of visitors from the NCOSI. But, finally, it was up to Fort Benning's Jeanne Thompson to save the day and uphold Army standards. The 34th Medical Battalion runner won the women's division with a time of 20:36. Let's hear it for JT!

CFC Fun Run September 15

If you are going to Atlanta tomorrow and cannot make our Enduro or Albany's Nut Run 10-kilometer, there's a one-mile fun run and a 5-kilometer race in Piedmont Park. Race day registration will be held from 7:30 to 8:45 a.m., with the $5 entry fee going to the agencies supported by the Combined Federal Campaign.

Georgia Peanut Festival Run September 29

From the flyer, this looks like a good one. The Jacksonville Track Club has put together the makings of a professionally run 10,000 meter road race. There are 10 age categories each for male and female, trophies for the top three finishers in each group, and T-shirts to all who finish the 6.1 mile distance in under 70 minutes.

Race time is 9 a.m. in Jefford's Park, Sylvester, Ga. That's slightly over 100 miles south of here. Entry fee is $4 on or before Sept. 22, and $6 thereafter, including a 7:30 to 8:30 a.m. registration in the park on race day. For further information and entry forms, contact Tom Breeding at 544-4177.

The pro features include Chronomix electrical printout timer, large digital display clock, mile markers, digital timers for splits, and printed finish line cards for race results.

To the members of the U.S. Army Military Police Corps

Congratulations to the Military Police Corps officers, noncommissioned officers, enlisted men and women on your 38th Anniversary.

I have personally observed the dedication and professionalism displayed by the Military Police Corps both in a combat and peacetime environment. I admire your can do spirit and your motto "Of and For the Troops."

We at Fort Benning are proud of our military police and we commend you for your professional law enforcement support that you provide to Fort Benning. Congratulations on your 38th anniversary and best wishes for continued success.

CFC kicks off

By Pat Brown

The kick-off ceremony for the 1980 Combined Federal Campaign (CFC) was held Wednesday in Marshall Auditorium with Maj. Gen. David E. Grange Jr. as keynote speaker.

This year's goal for federal employees at Benning and in the local area is $325,000. Maj. Gen. Grange pointed out this was felt to be a reasonable amount in view of the fact that the gross payroll for military and civilian personnel is approximately $24 million monthly. Last year, Benning personnel contributed more than $432,000 during the annual CFC.

Grange expressed his confidence that post employees would give as generously as they had in the past and stated that "we are morally committed to meet our pledge to this worthwhile cause."

Representatives from agencies who benefit from funds raised during the CFC also spoke. They were Bee Brown, International Services Agency; Bill Myers, National Health Agencies and Dennis Calhoun, United Way.

Col. Richard McKee, deputy post commander is campaign manager and Col. Richard Brown, director, DPCA, is assistant campaign manager. James Schoonover is post project officer.

The 1979 CFC ends Nov. 30.

CFC message

The 1980 Combined Federal Campaign will be conducted at Fort Benning during the period of Sept. 30 through Nov. 30. This campaign solicits monetary support for 48 humanitarian agencies through a single appeal. This combined effort affords each of us a chance to assist in essential support to local, state, national, and international activities which render support to both our military and civilian communities. Every year, through the United Way, this campaign provides thousands of dollars for Fort Benning's health, welfare, and youth activities.

The goal for this year's campaign is $325,000. This goal can be attained by the wholehearted participation of all members of Fort Benning and other federal personnel in the nearby area in a fair share system of giving. Generosity and concern for others have always been symbolic of those who serve in the United States Government. Let us continue this tradition.

All personnel are urged to support these deserving agencies by giving generously to the 1980 Combined Federal Campaign.

Civilian garbage trucks cause GIs extra work

To the Editor:

We have a serious problem and the poor G.I.s are getting punished for it. Many days I have travelled to and from work using South Lumpkin Road and have seen soldiers walking along this road conducting a police call. We, the G.I.s are getting punished from our higher supervisors.

I have also read in the BAYONET many times a request to stop throwing trash on the ground and save money by not having to make these police calls which use up personnel, time and gas.

I, for one, know and I'm sure other soldiers who have used South Lumpkin Road can verify this--it's the big garbage trucks, both city and privately owned, that carry or haul trash that deserve the blame. Large quantities of trash fly off these vehicles when they go down this road.

I have told some of these drivers that they are littering and they have made such comments as, "No sweat; the G.I.s will pick it up." I have even told the police who were on patrol of some of these incidents and their words to me were, "I've told these people about that." So obviously, there have been other complaints.

What I'm asking is to give the G.I.s a break. I know we're not saints but let's put the blame where it belongs.

SUGGESTIONS! Have an agreement with the city that that area be patrolled by more civilian authorities and give tickets or fines to offenders. Or come to an agreement that the MP's can also give tickets or fines. I cannot understand why we haven't come up with a way to solve this problem since it is the soldiers who are stuck with the responsibility of policing this area.

Corporal wants equality

To the Editor:

I am a corporal, E-4, recently assigned to Fort Benning. Upon entering the NCO Club last weekend, I was told by the master-at-arms that I am not allowed to use that facility because it is a Top 5 Club. Although the U.S. Army places the responsibility on me to serve as an NCO during duty hours, I am not allowed to socialize with NCO's off duty. Instead, I must fraternize with the privates and trainees who are under my supervision. An exception to policy must be made to the NCO Club rule on eligibility if corporals are truly NCOs.

TIC policy criticized

To the Editor:

I couldn't help but be a little angry when I read the notice posted by the TIC Credit Union in the Sept. 7 issue in regards to no loans being made for cars over three years old or motorcycles. Why not say no loans for cars over a year old? Or six months old? Loans for cars should be judged on what is listed in the NADA Book, not what some Credit Union board member feels is good enough. I questioned the president of the Credit Union, Mr. Jack Arline, on this and he said money is tight and

New prescription policy in effect

Beginning Sept. 1 the following policy and procedure was instituted by the Medical Specialty Clinic for prescription refill requests received by telephone or in person:

- Requests received prior to noon Monday thru Thursday will be available for pick up after 1 p.m. on the day submitted
- Requests received after noon Monday thru Thursday will be available for pick up after 1 p.m. on the following day.
- Requests received any time on Friday will be available for pick up on the following Monday after 1 p.m.

This policy and procedure is being initiated because of the large volume of prescription refill requests being received. It will alleviate the waiting time for the patient as well as eliminate the interruption of the physicians who are seeing appointments.

About the cover

The Military Police must be prepared to meet unexpected challenges and emergencies, being totally confident in himself/herself and their fellow MP's. Private Issac Booker Jr. (Front) and Timothy E. Wilson, Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 197th Infantry Brigade, Military Police Platoon, pull sentry duty at Fort Benning's main gate. Camellia is an apartment motel. We don't rent rooms, we rent furnished apartments with all the features of a regular motel plus added conveniences that cannot be provided with just a single room - and all at the same, or most times lower rates than the single-room motel. For example, our "standard" unit is comprised of two bedrooms, combination living room-dining room, bathroom and fully furnished kitchen including refrigerator, stove, cooking utensils, and table service for six people. These are some of the "extras" but at no extra cost. Our 100 units are in separate buildings with usually four apartments in each building, which adds to a person's or family's privacy.

Glad you asked

Do you think dependents should be allowed to accompany their sponsors (regardless of rank) to Germany?

Margaret Lohrman

Margaret Lohrman (dependent, retired) Columbus resident

Yes, the simple reason is that husbands and wives shouldn't be separated because it causes a lot of problems. And the children need their father

Pfc. Reginald Mitchell, CSC, 3/7 Infantry Brigade

Yes, the family should go with the soldier overseas especially if they have been married for a short while, and because a child needs a father. It also can break a family up being separated for so long. Send the whole family or cut the time down.

PFC. Reginald Mitchell

William Tarrant (retired), Phenix City

Yes, because soldiers have a right to family life like everyone else.

William Tarrant

Rita Thaler (dependent), Columbus resident

Yes, I lived in Germany for four years and you can live over there as well as you can in the United States. Soldiers take their wives and children as long as they can manage their money. Anybody can live there comfortably if they don't splurge.

they don't have money available for loans on older cars. Have the board and the president overlooked the fact that an older car is less than a new car? Mr. Arline tells me that he doesn't need a loan for a car because he paid cash for the car he just bought. Well, Mr. Arline, not everybody can afford this luxury. That's why I belong to the Credit Union. If money is so tight, why should members pay for extra curriculum activities of the board and president.

Also, I personally feel that a motorcycle is a savings, not only on gas (approximately 75 miles per gallon for a 200cc) but on initial buying. I realize a motorcycle depreciates rapidly but there are those of us that think the savings on gasoline overshadows this. For those of you that would like to loan on this, Mr. Arline tells me that exceptions will be made.

My final question is, does the board and president of "our" Credit Union have the members best interest in mind when they make these rules?

If there are others as unhappy with these practices as I am, you might be interested to know the Postal Credit Union in Columbus (telephone 327-7608) does not have such restrictions on loans that we experience here at Fort Benning. They assured me that new members would be greatly appreciated.

Susan A. Waters

To the Editor:

I noticed an article in your paper in reference to the Credit Union. I am a very angry soldier. After eighteen months of saving and scrimping to pay back the money I borrowed to go to college, I finally saved $150 in the Credit Union. Well, I thought to myself, I am off to a good start. now I won't have to walk from my home off South Lumpkin Road to work each morning. I can now afford, with the help of the Credit Union, to buy some transportation. What would be my best buy? A motorcycle, of course. It is cheaper to buy and cheaper to maintain. Also, that is all the taxes I can pay for a license each year. That would be better until I can do better. Maybe if I am accepted to OCS and my pay gets better, I can then afford a car, but for the present, my best bet is a motorcycle.

But when I went to "my" Credit Union to borrow the money, without even checking my credit references or my character references, I was told that I could not borrow for a motorcycle, or even a car that was more than four years old, and expect to finance with the Credit Union. I asked the reason for this and was told that money was tight.

In addition, I was told, "The board sets the policy." When I asked to see the president of the board, I was told that he is in Reno learning how to best serve the members of the Credit Union. When I asked if I had no recourse on the decision not to loan me the money for a motorcycle, I was told there that there could be exceptions in some cases but I did not fit that category. In other words, I was made to feel that I was a bad risk. I was actually talked to and treated as though I was trying to rob the Credit Union; not that I was legally asking to borrow money from "my" Credit Union.

If money is so very tight, as I was told, why is the committee's dinner they devour while supposedly carrying on company business footed by the members of the Credit Union? I am told that the membership has been footing this bill for years, and yet, the lowly G.I. cannot get a loan for a good cause. Who are they advertising for? Maybe some of the soldiers do fail to pay their debts, but I for one pay mine. Don't tell me that I have a way to make someone look at an exception for the lady there told me there can be exceptions, but the board picks the officers and the officers pick the board.

Who do I go to? The commanding general since it is supposed to be The Infantry Center's Credit Union? I doubt that, for he would say he relies on the board of directors to fulfill that function. I personally feel that the Credit Union does not belong to the employees any more, but belongs to the president and his board. It belongs to a board who has no feelings for the lower paid personnel who really need to rely on "their" Credit Union.

Early separations may be transferred to ready reserves

WASHINGTON (ARNEWS) — Beginning Oct. 1, soldiers separating before completing their first enlistment may be transferred to the Individual Ready Reserve (IRR) instead of receiving a discharge, DA officials announced this week.

Soldiers separating after completing basic training or at least eight weeks of one station unit training will be transferred to the IRR to complete their six-year obligation, officials said.

The new policy applies to regular Army soldiers, Army Reservists and National Guardsmen separated for such reasons as:

- Dependency, when because of death or disability of a member of the soldier's family, other members of the family become principally dependent on him for care or support.

- Hardship.

- When the soldier is unable to perform duties due to parenthood.

Additionally, soldiers separated under the Trainee Discharge Program, the Expeditious Discharge Program or because of unsuitability due to apathy may also be transferred to the IRR, officials said. In these cases, however, commanders will direct discharge of those soldiers identified as having no potential for useful service during full mobilization, officials said.

"The purpose of the policy, officials explained, is to assure that no servicemembers who have not completed the six-year obligation are discharged if they have potential for useful service during full mobilization."

Changes to AR 635-200, AR 135-178, AR 140-10 and NGR 600-200 outlining the new policy will be distributed from late August to mid-September.

"Classic" Sheath Knives from Crusader Forge

A great deal of time has been spent in developing this line of carbon steel sheath knives. All knives are totally crafted in Sheffield, England from the finest materials. Each knife has been hand sharpened and polished for long lasting keenness.

Our Bowie Knife shown here (actual size) has a 6" blade fitted in a 4 1/4" handle. The Bowie has a solid brass guard and cap (no castings here!) and a solid redwood barrel. Each knife is, of course, supplied with an extra heavy duty British hide sheath with tie for a snug leg fit.

Charitable group requests support

This year's tri-community Combined Federal Campaign (CFC) will be conducted from Sept. 20- Nov. 30 in support of the United Way, National Health Organizations and International Service Agencies. Although this year's goal has not been established, in 1978 Fort Benning raised over $426,000 for these agencies.

The tri-community Community Activities Association (CAA), is a member of the United Way and receives its operating funds from United Way. Last year CAA received $100,000 from United Way; this year they have asked for $120,000.

While CAA is not a very well-known organization at Fort Benning, the activities which are supported by CAA could not otherwise operate and provide their services to the Fort Benning Community. CAA provides funds for Youth Activities, Boy and Girl Scouts, American Red Cross, Army Community Services, Dependent School Oral Hygiene Program and USAIC Chaplain. Other past activities such as the Colonial Band have been granted CAA monies upon application and approval by the CAA Council. This council is composed of major unit commanders, the USAIC Chaplain, Provost Marshal, Deputy Post Commander, Director of Personnel and Community Activities and the Chief, Morale Support Division.

How about that?

The intellectuals no better than the laborers

William W. Erbach Sr.
TIC Chaplain

Great emphasis is placed on education in our society. We strive to be more knowledgeable about the world around us and how it came to be. Great theories are put forth: scientific, philosophical, theological, and even the barnyard-backfence type.

All this theorizing is possible mainly because in our pursuit of knowledge our eyes and minds have been opened to the vastness and wonderfulness of the creature called earth. But unfortunately, in our preoccupation with knowing, we are overlooking a greater aspect of life-living; doing.

One day in the heat of the African summer, Dr. Albert Schweitzer was working on his hospital. He was lifting boards and nailing them on, when he saw a native standing in the shade of a tree, dressed in a white suit.

Dr. Schweitzer said to this man, "Would you hold up the other end for me?"

The man dressed in the white suit said, "I can't, I'm an intellectual. I have been away to school. It is not fitting for me to do this kind of work."

Dr. Schweitzer looked at him, smiled a bit and said, "I used to be an intellectual, too, but I couldn't live up to it!" How about that!

We must never become too smart or too proud to do honest work, or to accept a useful responsibility. "Be ye doers of the word and not hearers only."

Anchors away!

Twenty members of the 36th Engineer Group recently participated in a six-canoe adventure retreat, sponsored by the Sight-seeing Road Chapel, down the Chattahoochee River. The retreat was coordinated by Chaplains Hank Steinhilber and Joe Lusk who serve as chaplains for the 67th Maintenance Battalion and 43rd Engineering Battalion, respectively.

DON'T LOSE OUT WHEN YOU GET OUT.

If you've decided to leave the Army before retirement, you don't have to leave behind all of those valuable benefits. Just serve part-time with your local Army Reserve unit.

You'll earn a good extra income based on your present rank and service time, for serving only 16 hours a month (usually one weekend) and two full weeks a year.

And you can still take advantage of part of your Army benefits. Like low-cost life insurance. As a Reservist, you'll continue to earn PX privileges (a day for each eight hours of unit training attended) and credits toward retirement pay.

Most of all, by your becoming an Army Reservist, your country benefits. By your training. Your experience. Your dedication.

So don't lose out when you get out. Join today's Army Reserve. It's well worth your time.

67th dining facility to compete

By Matthew Boison

The 67th Dining Facility, selected as the best dining facility on post, will be representing Fort Benning in the All-Army "Connelly Award" competition later this year.

The Connelly Award is the highest achievement in food service a dining facility can receive. "This is the first time our dining hall was selected to run against other posts," said Sgt. 1st Class Joe L. Harvey, manager of the 67th Dining Facility.

"The 67th dining facility has had great consistency in preparing good food," commented Lt. Col. James D. Tipton, commander of the 67th Maintenance Battalion. "They have done a good job in the past but received little recognition."

"We really don't know what to expect," said Harvey. "Two categories make up the competition for this year's contest which is comprised of all Army posts both stateside and abroad."

The contest is judged by a team of judges who travel from post to post and observe the dining hall employees preparing the food.

The judges also inspect for cleanliness and food appeal.

The 67th has won five out of the last ten "Best Mess Awards" presented by the 36th Engineer Group. This has aided them in being selected for the Connelly Award competition.

"Showing an interest in the men and workers also helps keep a consistency in the food appeal," said Sgt. 1st Class James H. Whitehurst, assistant mess sergeant for the 67th dining facility. "We try to give the soldier a good variety of food."

The 67th is designing a program to serve meals from all ethnic backgrounds. "A few days ago we had Hispanic Night at our mess hall where most of the food served was Mexican," said Lt. Col. Tipton. "But a variety of other foods were also served." The men in charge of the dining facility hope to expand their program to include meals of soul food, Italian food, Chinese food, etc.

"We want to bring more awareness to others about other ethnic groups," said Lt. Col. Tipton. "The 67th Dining Facility is very enthusiastic about the idea of ethnic dinners."

Soldiers enjoy an award winning meal at the 67th dining facility.

Benning participates in Trade Center opening

By Pat Barham

Fort Benning soldiers proudly participated last Saturday in the opening ceremonies of the Columbus Iron Works Convention and Trade Center.

Members of the Command Exhibition Free-fall Parachute Team dropped in over the fairgrounds during the parade's assembly to begin the events celebrating the new Trade Center's opening.

The 283rd Army Band and a color guard from the 586th Engineer Company, 36th Engineer Group marched in the parade along with the Colonial Band, made up of Fort Benning and Columbus youths. The 2nd Battalion, 10th Field Artillery displayed an M105 howitzer with crew and a jeep-mounted TOW in the parade. Along with these the 2nd Battalion, 69th Armor featured an M60 tank with crew on a lowboy trailer.

Included in the day's attractions were displays in the center showing a Combined Arms Team Display and models of the Infantry Fighting Vehicle, the Improved TOW Vehicle, the Black Hawk, the Dragon and the TOW. Uniforms of the World War I, Airborne, Ranger and the soldier of the future were displayed on mannequins. Dick Grube, Infantry Museum curator, displayed German World War II artifacts from the Hermann Goering display from the Infantry Museum.

The 586th Engineer Company (ARB), 36th Engineer Group, as well as furnishing a color guard for the parade, also demonstrated their support of the Columbus community by building a ribbon bridge to be used as a docking area for boats participating in the river parade.

'Camelot' ★★★★★

By Dave Bristow

Monday night was the dress rehearsal of the Springer Theatre Company's 'Camelot,' which officially opened the 79-80 Springer season last night.

Final touches in preparation were being made. Soon I found myself caught up in the splended music, pageantry, color and romance of this Lerner and Loewe Broadway musical.

- ★ Almost as bad as weekend duty
- ★★ Better, but don't borrow money to go
- ★★★ Squared away, but still has a few gigs
- ★★★★ Worth going AWOL over

Camelot is the tale of a romantic triangle that revolves around King Arthur, his queen Guenevere and the legendary Lancelot.

Beverly Zacharias has a beautiful voice and looks lovely as the Lady Guenevere. The costumes are grand, depicting the days of King Arthur and the round table. Camelot will be playing thru October 6.

Enduro Run proves planning pays

There's more to conducting a race than shouting, "On your marks, get set, go!" The 120 participants in the Pine Mountain Enduro Run Saturday may have had an easier time navigating the rugged trail than the run's support people who were responsible for organizing and controlling the event.

The hard work and careful planning that went into the Enduro Run paid off and, despite some behind-the-scenes chaos, things ran like clockwork. The participants, ranging from a 12-year-old boy to a white-haired old lady in Nikes, were all able to maneuver through the narrow, rocky trail with no major problems. "We had a few runners limping across the finish line," explained Race Director Chuck Briscoe of Fort Benning, "but since the goal was to have a good time and not to set a speed record, we didn't have anyone breaking their neck trying to come in first."

While all participants in the five-mile event, which Briscoe described as "moderately difficult," were able to finish, the 25-miler presented more difficulties. Of the 48 entrants in this event, 40 finished and 30 did it within the five-hour time limit needed to qualify for a medallion.

The runners all seemed to enjoy the challenge of the tough course and compared it favorably to the usual road races. "I entered the five-mile run because it sounded different and it was," said Jack Preston, a Benning runner. "The course was completely different from road races I've been in; you couldn't set a pace and there was one point where you even had to walk through a laurel thicket. The trail was great, though, because you could take your time and enjoy the fantastic scenery."

The decision to organize the Enduro Run along the Pine Mountain Trail was only the first step in a long chain of events that led to a successful race day. It took weeks of planning and the efforts of about 40 people to insure that everything went smoothly for the 25 and five-mile adventure runs sponsored by the Budweiser Distributors in Lagrange, Ga., B&B Beverage Company of Columbus, Ga. and the Columbus Track Club.

Finding a sponsor willing to foot the bill for awards, refreshments, and T-shirts is the first major step when organizing a running event, according to Briscoe. Once that is accomplished, work begins on designing the T-shirts, publicizing the event, printing registration forms, making sure the trail is well-marked and putting together a small army of volunteers to start runners, man aid stations and record times. Since the Enduro Run was held in a state park, it also involved obtaining permission to use the park and coordination with the sheriff's departments of two counties regarding clearance and parking. Briscoe emphasized the importance of early planning and preparation, saying, "Get an early start, do as much as you can, and be prepared for a thousand last-minute details and snags."

Runners in last week's Pine Mountain Enduro Run line up for the start of the five-mile event. Runners were started at 20-second intervals due to the narrowness of the trail.

Doughboys top Bragg for first win

By Gary Jones

"Our primary offense will be passing this year," commented Doughboy coach Ralph Santaliz, prior to the start of the season. However, the team didn't rely on their aerial attack to gain the young season's first win but rather on a strong ground game lead by Carlton King with 180 yards in 21 carries.

When the Fort Bragg Dragons came into Doughboy Stadium last Saturday they were expecting to see the same strong passing offense that had played Carson-Newman College to a 27-27 tie the week before. But at the game's end, the Doughboys had gained 63 yards passing to Bragg's 243, while posting a 25-20 win.

"We knew Bragg was expecting us to pass so we ran right at them," explained Santaliz. 'Running right at them' the Doughboys gained 240 yards on the ground while the rugged Doughboy defense held Bragg to just 11 yards on 26 tries.

"Our defense is doing a fine job but they haven't yet played to their potential," Santaliz said. "In our first game the defense almost totally shut off the Carson-Newman passing attack but had trouble stopping the run. While in the Bragg game we stopped the run but Bragg managed to break a couple of long passes on us. We have to eliminate the mental mistakes and bring both of these areas together in order to reach our potential."

How they played

Bragg won the toss and elected to receive and got an early taste of the Doughboy defense and were forced to punt. The Doughboys took over on the Bragg 41 yard line. The Doughboy offense got on track and drove downfield in six plays to score on an eight-yard Leamon Hall to Fredrick Suggs pass to cap the 41-yard scoring drive.

On the next series Bragg fumbled on their own 12 yard line where it was recovered by Al Gardner to give the Doughboys a great scoring opportunity. The Doughboys ran the ball down to the 3-yard line where they fumbled, failing to capitalize on the Bragg mistake.

The defense kept the Dragons in their own territory for much of the first half but the Doughboy offense couldn't capitalize, missing several scoring opportunities including a field goal from the 20 yard line.

The Dragons went ahead with 9:04 left in the first half on a 78-yard pass from Gregory Hoke, Bragg quarterback, to Leonard Parks and a two point conversion run by Hoke. However, the Doughboys weren't to be outdone. They came back on the next series to score on a one-yard run by King. The extra point was good to give the Doughboys a 14-8 lead which they carried into the half.

The Doughboys got off to a quick start in the second half mounting a 71-yard drive to score on a two-yard run by Coybern Jones, who also had a good day, rushing for 84 yards. The extra point was good to give the Doughboys a 21-8 lead with 11:08 remaining in the third period.

The Dragons came right back on the next series, moving downfield to score on an eight-yard run on a reverse play by Leonard Parks. The Dragons tried another two point conversion but it failed, to leave the score at 21-14 Doughboys.

On the Doughboys next possession, they drove all the way inside the Bragg two yard line before stalling due to mistakes. The Doughboys elected to go for it on fourth and 19, but Bragg's defense dug in to stop them inside their own 10 yard line.

The Doughboys took advantage of Bragg's poor field position when Tim Welcome sacked the Bragg quarterback in the end zone for a safety. The safety extended the Doughboys lead to 23-14 with 5:42 left in the third period.

Hoke brought Bragg close, hitting Parks with a 76-yard touchdown pass with 9:24 remaining. A try for two failed when Hoke's run was stopped short. The Dragon touchdown narrowed the Doughboy lead to only 3 points as the partisan doughboy crowd started to get restless.

After scoring the long touchdown on what appeared to be a broken play, it looked as if the momentum had shifted in favor of the Dragons.

Things really started to look bleak for the Benning gridiron team when they fumbled on the ensuing kick-off return and Bragg took over on the Doughboy 33 yard line. The Dragons couldn't move the ball against the fired-up Doughboy defense and were forced to punt.

Neither team could move the ball and exchanged punts. Then with 5:23 remaining and Bragg mounting a scoring drive, the Dragons fumbled and the Doughboys recovered. The Doughboys took over on their own 45 yard line but due to mistakes and penalties they were soon looking at a third and 38.

It looked as if the Doughboys would be forced into another punt giving Bragg the ball in good field position. However, Hall dropped back and completed a long 50-yard-pass to James Ivory for the first down on the 50 yard line with 3:07 to go. The Dragon defense dug in on the following plays and stopped the Doughboys short of another first.

With time running out, the Doughboys wanted to get another score on the board for insurance and elected to go for it on fourth and about a foot. Bragg took over with the difficult task of playing catch-up football ahead of them. The Dragons ran into problems, due to penalties and mental mistakes and the Dragon quarterback found himself facing a third and 25 situation. Hoke dropped back to pass but his blocking fell apart as the Doughboys' Tim Welcome chased him into the end zone where he was sacked for a safety to extend the lead to 25-20 with 52 seconds to go.

The Doughboys received the kick-off and ran out the clock for the win. Following the game, Santaliz praised assistant coaches Tim Pfister and Gary Sadlon on their job of preparing the team for the Bragg game, "especially since we hadn't spotted them."

The Doughboys next opponent will be the Georgia Tech Junior Varsity team tonight at 7:30 p.m. at Doughboy Stadium.

Flyers open with win over Atlanta

The Fort Benning Flyers Rugby team opened its '79 fall season with a convincing 20-6 victory over the Atlanta Rugby/Football Club last Saturday in Atlanta.

The Flyers scored first blood with a series of beautifully executed passes from about 60 meters out. Leo Brooks touched it down in the "in-goal" for the try. Mike DeMayo added the conversion from the corner. With about 10 minutes remaining in the first half, the Flyers worked the ball down to the five meter line. Capitalizing on a penalty against Atlanta, the Flyer scrum ran the play to the weak side where Bill Ivey took it in for the try making it 10-0 at halftime.

It was a see-saw battle for the first 20 minutes of the second half until the Flyers Ed Fili-berti took a pass inside from scrum half John Sladky and cut up field for about 30 meters before passing to wing forward Mark Vaughn who took it in for the score. DeMayo kicked his second conversion making it 16-0. The Flyers kept the pressure on the Atlanta team and eventually caused a bad pass to the backfield. Flyer Captain Ben Freakley fought off two Atlanta players, picked up the ball and scored from five meters out making it 20-0. Atlanta finally scored with about two minutes remaining, ruining the chance for a shut-out.

The Flyers open their home-game season Sunday at 2 p.m. at Stilwell Field, Fort Benning. The Flyers will host the number one team in Georgia, the Renegades Rugby/Football Club also from Atlanta. Information can be obtained by calling 545-4682 or 687-7961.

Second Looks

The marathoning season has begun. John Smith of Headquarters Company, 43rd Engineer Battalion recently returned from leave, having run in the CCAP marathon in Flora, Ill. His 2:58:38 for 13th place overall is an impressive beginning for the long distance season.

Closer to home, Smith and 40 other stalwarts completed 25 miles of an extremely demanding course, the Columbus Track Club sponsored Enduro Run. My hat is off to all those who even attempted that feat, because I had a hard enough time finishing five miles of the extremely rocky road they ran.

Southern Open Oct. 6

Columbus has another good offering in the near future. Oct. 6 will be the date of the running of the Southern Open 10K. The route is a challenging and hilly circuit around the Green Island Hills Golf Course, but the rewards are commensurate. There will be T-shirts to the first 150 finishers, and trophies to the first three finishers in each of nine men's divisions and five women's divisions. There will also be at least 50 tickets to the Southern Open Golf Tournament for top finishers.

Entry fee is $4 up until the starting gun. For entry forms and further information contact Below the Knee, 561-2687 or Tom Breeding, 544-4177.

September Song Run Sept. 29

If you're going to Atlanta next weekend, the Willie Nelson Running Society is sponsoring a one mile and a 5K run in Atlanta at 9 a.m. on Sept. 29. There are Willie Nelson bandanas for all entrants, and entry fee is low, $2 in advance, $2.50 the day of the race. For further details, contact me at 544-4177.

"Long live the armadillo and them cosmic cowboys..."

Etowah Indian Mounds Road Race Sept. 29

Cartersville, Ga. will be the site of concurrently run 10K and 25K races, plus a one mile novice race and a 10,000 meter walk. According to the flyer, there are "250 T-shirts to be awarded, medals...to high finishers" (?) and "ribbons to one mile novice winners."

There will be no pre-registration, and the entry fee is a nominal $1. Call 544-4177 for details.

The Racing South Lady 10-Km Championships Oct. 6

Last and certainly not least is this race which seems to be for women only. Federal antidiscrimination legislation may prohibit this, but here goes.

Tallahassee, Fla. will be the site of this auspiciously titled race. It begins and ends at the Florida State University one mile track, and provides for team as well as individual competition. There are numerous other details, so all interested parties call Tom Breeding, 544-4177.

Army Field Band to perform here

The U.S. Army Field Band and Chorus, headquartered at Fort Meade, Md., will present two concerts in Columbus Monday. The first will be at Columbus High School that morning and the second in the Fine Arts Auditorium, Columbus College at 8 p.m.

The evening concert, which is open to the public, will last about two hours. Admission is free, but those wishing to attend are requested to obtain tickets from the Public Information Office, Columbus College. Only a limited number of tickets are available.

Maj. William Cook is band director and Capt. Greg Hulse is choir director. The concerts are being sponsored by Columbus College and the Columbus LEDGER-ENQUIRER newspapers.

Fun fair scheduled

Custer Terrace will be conducting its second annual fun fair tomorrow from 11 a.m. until 6 p.m. in and around the Custer Terrace Chapel on Craig Drive.

The Benning Belles will give a performance at 1 p.m. and a fire truck will be on display from 11 a.m.-2 p.m. There will also be food, games and a cake walk. A small donation will be asked for the food and games.

The event is open to the public.

PX branch opens

A new PX branch has opened on Sightseeing Road to better serve Main Post. The branch PX is open Monday through Friday from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. and Saturday from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. The PX sells a variety of goods including clothing, beverages, food, and military items.

SH gets post office

A new post office branch opened in Sand Hill on Sept. 10. The facility is located on the first floor of Bldg. 3215. Operating hours are from noon until 5 p.m. daily and 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. on the Saturday following pay day each month.

Post office manager Cathy Turner says not many people at Sand Hill are aware that the office is there, but as word gets around, she says, business should pick up.

FWP forum slated

The post Federal Women's Program will sponsor a brown bag luncheon forum to be held Wednesday, from 11:30 a.m.-1 p.m. at the Fort Benning Playhouse (formerly Main Post Theater #2) at the corner of Wold and Anderson Streets.

Employees may be excused without charge to leave to attend the forum unless mission requirements dictate otherwise.

Glad you asked

Pvt. Lyle Quall
Company C, 1st Battalion

Overall, I really enjoyed the picnic. The favorite things I liked were the Ranger demonstration and the food.

Pvt. Lyle Quall

What do you think of the AUSA picnic, and how could it have been improved?

Capt. Timothy Pfister
Headquarters Company
Headquarters Command, USAIC

This is my third year out here. The food and the layout is good. Every year for the number of people who come out here they need to expand about three times the size of the present facilities. The potential Fort Benning has for all significant purposes is phenomenal. They need more support from the post.

Capt. Timothy Pfister

It has been quite a while since I have been to the AUSA picnic and it's better than I thought it would be. It is also in a very good area.

Simone Reyes, Dependent

It's a lot of fun. I really enjoy the rides and games.

I think that the AUSA picnic is fun and the Army gets together, to celebrate. I enjoyed the Ranger display; it showed a little bit about the Army and what they do.

AUSA is a good cause to support because they lobby for our (the Army) benefits on Capitol Hill.

'Satisfied member' of Credit Union gives defense

To the Editor:

This letter is in rebuttle to the letter written by Susan Waters in the BAYONET dated Sept. 21. It seems that Ms. Waters should get her facts together before she starts making accusations.

In the first place, on the matter concerning the Credit Union board of directors; this position is on a strictly voluntary basis with no compensation given whatsoever. These board members are not employees of the Credit Union so, therefore, they do not get involved in normal day-to-day operations. This being the case, how else are they going to be schooled on economic trends, new member services and management tips other than going to schools and conferences?

The membership as a whole elects the board. If the present membership is not happy with the board, they are the only ones who can change it.

Letters to the Editor

On the matter concerning motorcycle loans, Ms. Waters should contact the Collection Department and inquire as to the problems that are created by these loans. Past due accounts, no insurance and wrecked collateral are just a few of these problems. Granted, a cycle is cheaper to operate than an automobile but is also a lot easier to hide when it comes time for repossession.

I feel that the Credit Union board at Fort Benning does have its members' interest at heart. Loan policy decisions were made due to the current money situation. Federal credit unions by charter cannot charge more than 12 percent APR (annual percentage rate) on any loan made. With the prime interest rate now being 13¼ percent it would be hard to make any money when you borrow at 13¼ percent and can only get 12 percent in return.

You, Ms. Waters, along with any other member of the Credit Union that is not happy with the present policies, always has the alternative of taking your business elsewhere. In your particular case, that doesn't seem such a bad idea. With friends like you around, who needs enemies?

Commissary criticized

To the Editor:

After arriving on post last week and getting settled in, the wife and I decided it was time to visit the commissary.

Just back from a tour in Germany, we were looking forward to shopping to our hearts' content at your nice, new building. Unfortunately, the employees are the same old crowd you find in a lot of other military establishments, ie: everything is for the convenience of the worker, not the customer.

We started out having to wait to get inside because they only had one I.D. checker at the door, who also had to approve checks. As she couldn't do both at the same time, we all waited together in the same line.

Shopping was almost fun, we had forgotten our earlier hassles and

Vet employment right confirmed

WASHINGTON (ARNEWS)—Are veterans of the all-volunteer Army entitled to their old jobs after discharge? Yes, according to the Military Selective Service Act, but there are limits.

A veteran qualifying under the Act, who leaves a permanent position with an employer to enter the armed services, is guaranteed that job after receiving an honorable or general discharge. However, the veteran must apply for his former job within 90 days after discharge and must have served on active duty no more than five continuous years.

Under most circumstances, veterans who do return to former employers are entitled to have their military service counted toward retirement benefits and pension plans.

Such entitlements should be of a particular interest to World War II veterans who are now reaching retirement age.

These guarantees are provided to minimize disruption of soldiers' civilian life because of military service. Unfortunately, some employers have erroneously regarded these guarantees as applying only to drafted ex-service-members.

For more information, veterans of the Armed Forces, including the Reserve and National Guard, are encouraged to contact their area's Labor Management Services Administration listed in the white pages of the telephone book under "U.S. Government, Department of Labor." Or, write: Deputy Assistant to the Director, Office of Veterans Reemployment Rights, Room N5414, Second and Constitutional Aves., Washington, D.C. 20002 headed for the checkout counter. It was raining very hard, so I left the wife in line and ran to the car. I parked in front at one of the many exits on a nice, wide street and when the groceries arrived, the bagger informed me that he wasn't allowed to load vehicles at the curb, so he'd hand them to me and I could load them myself. Another bagger came out of the store and told our bagger that he was going to get fired and that the boss was watching out the window. I offered to go inside with him, but he assured me everything would be OK. That was probably best because by then I was pretty hot.

Camellia is an apartment motel. We don't rent rooms, we rent furnished apartments with all the features of a regular motel plus added conveniences that cannot be provided with just a single room - and all at the same, or most times lower rates than the single-room motel. For example, our "standard" unit is comprised of two bedrooms, combination living room-dining room, bathroom and fully furnished kitchen including refrigerator, stove, cooking utensils, and table service for six people. These are some of the "extras" but at no extra cost. Our 100 units are in separate buildings with usually four apartments in each building, which adds to a person's or family's privacy.

Since we've been here, we've heard on the radio how a one-quarter percent disadvantage isn't really a disadvantage.

Well, I don't think a few cents savings on food is such an advantage if you have to put up with people who act like they're doing you a favor to serve you.

From now on we'll probably do our shopping downtown where the customer is always right.

This is solution?

To the Editor:

Fort Benning has found the perfect solution to the speeding problem. Since no one obeyed the 15 miles per hour speed limit on Arrowhead Road in Custer Terrace the speed limit was raised to 25 miles per hour.

I guess that if there are still lots of speeders, the speed limit will be raised again and again until there is no longer a speeding problem.

Of course, this doesn't take into consideration all the cars that have been sideswiped with the new speed limit. Or the children who have been hit or will be hit. I only hope that no one is killed before action is taken. It is hard for adults to get out of the street before a car comes speeding around the corner toward you.

But congratulations to Fort Benning, for solving the speeding problem in housing areas.

Residents need pride

To the Editor:

I was extremely pleased to read in the Sept. 14 issue of the BAYONET the remarks of Maj. Gen. Grange concerning upgrading the family housing areas at Fort Benning.

We want letters!

The BAYONET welcomes letters on any subject that concerns military and civilian personnel at Fort Benning. All letters must be signed to be considered for publication in the BAYONET. Effective with the Oct. 5 issue only letters complete with the writers name will appear in this column.

Address letters to:

BAYONET
Room 601, Bldg. 4
Fort Benning, Georgia 31905

Recently my family and I moved into quarters. Our initial drive through the Custer Terrace area where we live revealed automobiles parked on the grass, unmowed lawns and unleashed dogs left to roam. Regulations prohibiting this type of activity should be presented to every occupant of quarters at the time they move in and, after that, strict enforcement should be utilized. This should not be too difficult as most posts have similar procedures that have worked effectively.

Fort Benning is a beautiful post and I am pleased to live in quarters. Unfortunately, not everyone shares my pride!

Reader defends DYA

To the Editor:

This letter is in response to the letter from the parent complaining about DYA. Although I agree on some points I disagree heartily on others.

I find Fort Benning a great post because of all the activities available to my children. DYA is made up of dedicated people who are interested in each child. It seems 95 percent of these are parent volunteers trying to do a good job. I say this as a two-year resident of Fort Benning with four children, and as a softball and cheerleading coach.

The first year my son played football, he practiced each night at Lavoie Field. We live on Main Post. Children enjoy sports no matter where they play and they make new friends. I feel this is as important as playing. They need to learn to get along, no matter where they play.

Children need your full support for a program to be successful. You must understand it is most difficult to give each child enough game time if your team is overloaded.

Unless more parents are willing to volunteer to coach or help in other areas, YOU are going to have to provide transportation to an area where there IS a coach who has room to meet the needs of your child. You may even need to recruit more team members.

I agree that the parents should have been notified first and the child placed on a waiting list. However, I am sure DYA was giving these children an opportunity to learn while they tried to find coaches and boys for the teams. This is a constant problem. Teams are filled and often dropped for lack of adult participation.

I would like to make a plea for parents to get involved. You are the biggest benefactor when you work with and get to know the children. I realize many mothers work but so do the men who make up almost 75-80 percent of the coaching staffs, aside from football. The DYA board is there to hear your complaints, make your complaints to them! If your advice is valuable, you may make a difference.

I feel if someone at DYA took each area exclusively, many problems would be solved.

I am hoping and praying that our next post is as good as Fort Benning has been to our children in all areas, not only sports.

Intellectuals work too

To the Editor:

I have just completed reading the article, "The intellectuals no better than the laborers," by William W. Erbach, Sr., in your Sept. 21 issue of the BAYONET. I was disturbed by the tone of this article and the innuendos which it suggests. While I certainly do not condone the arrogance of the "intellectual" in the article, the one who refused help to Dr. Schweitzer, I realize that such arrogance was a function of the individual's personality and not directly a result of his higher education.

Specifically, what concerned me the most about this article was the statement, "We must never become too smart or too proud to do honest work, or to accept useful responsibility." This statement promotes the old myth that work done with one's hands is the only work that is "honest" and "useful." I would like to respond to Chap. Erbach's article by stating that the work done by scientists, physicians, lawyers, theologians, engineers, and other professionals, while not being manual labor, is certainly as "honest" and "useful."

Today, the United States and the world face grave problems which have severe consequences. To mention a few, we are faced with environment problems, disease problems, energy problems, and last but not least, the problem of maintaining world peace. Answers, or cures, to these and many other problems will come from highly trained and educated individuals. Substitutes for petroleum which will provide the energy desperately needed by every individual will be the results of the theorizing and the long and arduous (and honest) work performed by scientists, engineers and technicians. The work to preserve world peace will be performed by world leaders, diplomats, theologians and ambassadors. Cures for dread diseases, such as cancer, which affect the entire world, will be found in the laboratories, clinics and medical universities (such as those Dr. Schweitzer attended) around the world. All of the study, research and technical development to provide answers to our gravest problems will be performed by highly trained and educated individuals.

As a final note, one of the world's most feared diseases, smallpox, which ravaged the African continent where Dr. Schweitzer worked, has been conquered. This conquest was achieved through the utilization of the highest form of technical and medical skills.

Those of us who have spent long years of our life in the educational process and who do most of our work at a desk, perform functions which are needed, useful and of benefit to society. While we would certainly agree that manual labor is equally important, it is certainly not the only "honest" and "useful" labor. Each of us must utilize his or her talents to the fullest, either intellectually or manually, and not hide them under a bushel.

Panama Canal treaty to affect some soldiers

WASHINGTON (ARNEWS)—The Panama Canal Treaty of 1977 will have several effects on the Army personnel who claim the Panama Canal Zone (CZ) as their home of record (HOR) or legal residence, according to DA personnel officials.

The CZ will become part of the Republic of Panama (ROP) when the treaty goes into effect on Oct. 1.

Military Personnel Offices (MILPO's) have been directed to advise personnel who currently claim the CZ as their HOR that it will automatically be changed to ROP on Oct. 1, officials say, unless they opt for a change to a CONUS location.

MILPO's will also advise those individuals of the conditions under which they may change their HOR to a CONUS location under the Joint Travel Regulation (JTR).

If those soldiers decide to change their HOR from the CZ to a CONUS location they may incur financial hardship if they later decide to live in the ROP after separation, commented officials.

Personnel who claim the CZ as their legal residence should consult a legal assistance officer concerning the effect which legal residence in the ROP after separation may have upon their tax liability and how they may change their legal residence.

Officials added that, as of Oct. 1, personnel whose legal residence is the ROP will not be entitled to foreign duty pay while serving in Panama.

Benning Scouts assist in drive

By T.A. Sabel

All 22 Fort Benning girl Scout troops recently assisted the Retirees Earned Military Benefits Organization (REMBO) in their drive for relief goods for Hurricane Frederic victims in Mississippi.

The Scouts began collecting goods last Thursday. "The response has just been fantastic," said Bonnie Walker, Girl Scout area co-ordinator for Bouton Hill. Walker also acted as liaison between REMBO and the Girl Scouts.

"Just ten minutes after I contacted the girls, food was already arriving," she added.

Walker's front hall has been an area of constant activity during the hectic drive, having been filled and emptied three times with a variety of goods such as food, clothing and some housewares.

The relief goods were taken to the Martin Bluffs Baptist Church, Martin Bluff, Miss. for distribution, according to Delle Davis, REMBO secretary.

A truck donated by a local auto dealer was used to take the relief goods to Mississippi.

The articles collected by the Benning Girl Scouts were just a part of the shipment for hurricane victims.

Also assisting on post were Cub Scout Den 2, Pack 51.

Benning's new top fireman to be "working chief"

Fort Benning has a new fire chief in Joseph Alford who reported for duty Aug. 27.

He came to Benning from a four year tour as fire chief in Seoul, Korea to replace Samuel Morgan.

Alford's fireman career began in 1945 at Apalachicola Army Air Base near Panama City, Fla. As a basic fireman, he made only $1,860 a year.

Now he is a GS-11 and the chief. During the intervening years he intermittently served in the Army as a fireman and eventually accrued 20 years to retire. In between Army tours, he also worked as a civilian fireman for the Air Force, Navy and Army. Except for two years as an infantryman in World War II, Alford's entire adult life has been devoted to preventing and fighting fires.

He describes himself as a "working fire chief" which he describes as one who will be on the scene to direct and assist his men in the event of a fire. He also believes strongly in teaching fire prevention and finds the many Fort Benning school children his most appreciative audience.

Alford lives on post with his wife, Happy, and 14 year old daughter, Debbie.

Reserve Committee Group cleans up

By John M. Sacco

The Committee Group of the 70th Training Division (Army Reserve) has departed for another year but their legacy will remain long after the memory has faded.

The 70th Training Division's visit was designed for them to be trained by their active duty counterparts. In addition to this the 70th Training Division shared their skills with the Committee Group, USAIC. Utilizing their knowledge and background the 70th Training Division constructed out of scrap metal a hot and cold running field shower.

Using material they obtained through the aid of Mrs. Williams, Supply and Storage Division Directorate of Facility Engineers, the 70th Training Division fabricated the mobile field showers. Capt. Pierre W. Burnett, Sp4 Alvin Grady and Sp4 Gregory A. Meyers, all of the 70th Training Division constructed the showers out of piping, bed springs and oil drums. Although the 70th Training Division has left now, they left behind the expertise and material for the construction of 9 more mobile shower units. These showers will be utilized by Fort Benning troops for many years to come.

Capt. Pierre W. Burnett and Sp4 Gregory A. Meyers, 70th Training Division (Army reserve), put the finishing touches on their Creation.

Marital quarrels sometimes have positive effect

Editor's Note: This article is adapted from an article by Capt. Bakle in the 3rd Inf. Div. "FRONTLINE."

"Fighting of one form or the other, which inevitably comes in every marriage, can be either destructive and keep people apart and even ruin a marriage; or it can come to positive and vital resolution and growth," according to Chaplain (Capt.) John Bakle.

Bakle is assigned to Headquarters, 10th Combat Engineer Battalion, 3rd Infantry Division, Kitzingen, Germany. During the past 18 years he has worked with many married couples at various stages of their married life.

"In many successful marriages, I have discovered several principles that I believe every married couple should keep in mind if their 'fighting' is to be creative and not destructive," he said.

Bakle recommends the following principles for growth through husband-wife differences:

- Express opinions, desires, and concerns in as calm a way as possible. Listen as well as talk. Often, the truth becomes lost in the heat of emotion and emotion often blinds one to what the other is saying.

Since 1883

 Jewelry Needs

- Try to appreciate the other's point of view, even if it doesn't make sense at the moment.
- Timing is important: differences should not be shared at mealtimes or bedtime.
- Don't zero in on your mate's vulnerable areas to gain the upper hand.
- Don't rake up old scores or old arguments.
- Don't name call.
- Don't withdraw; that is, don't use the silent treatment. It ends effective communication and the possibility of compromise.
- Give up the irresponsible luxury of wild accusation, verbal abuse, shouting the other down, threats. There is no substitute for reason.
- Don't play psychiatrist by analyzing.

- Don't drag in children and relatives as allies or go-betweens.

This means verbally or by 'fighting' in their presence--neither children nor relatives have any direct place in the bond of intimacy between husband and wife. It can be destructive for children and embarrassing for others.

- Physical violence can never be condoned.
- Tears may be a form of psychological warfare. Sometimes a man is annoyed or threatened when facing a crying woman.
- Learn when to call a truce in a quarrel--example, when emotions threaten to get out of control.

If you can observe all these principles in your marriage, then you're on the way to growth together when you have differences.

Malone 22 provides realistic training to soldiers

By Pat Barham

Members of Company C, 7th Battalion, 1st Infantry Training Brigade got a chance to practice their fire and maneuver tactics during a recent field exercise at Malone 22.

According to SFC Larry W. Walls, senior drill sergeant for the company, "The purpose of this training is to introduce the use of fire and maneuver tactics at the squad and platoon level to the troops." This instills teamwork and confidence between individuals in the unit.

Malone 22 is a live fire range that adds realism to the training. While on the range soldiers learn to provide supporting fire for other soldiers to take an objective. During the exercise, cover and concealment along with other areas of training are used as a squad or platoon moves on an objective. This range is the culmination of many hours of training in which members of the unit use all the skills they have learned toward becoming an infantry soldier.

Pvt. William E. Floor, Company C, 7th Battalion, 1st Infantry Training Brigade uses available cover as he prepares to move out from the waiting area up to the ready line at Malone 22. This phase of training teaches the soldier how to use fire and maneuver techniques to successfully take an objective.

Members of the next firing order wait for the command to move out from the ready line to their on-line positions in preparation for the attack. These individuals will lay down suppressive fire for the teams that follow.

After a job well-done a member of one of the squads that have completed the exercise watch from the bleachers as his fellow soldiers complete the exercise.

Operation Crime Stop

WHAT: Larceny of Private Property

WHERE: Fort Benning

SUMMARY: Recently on three separate incidents, soldiers were victims of larcenies; one soldier had $450 removed from his unsecured room; another had his wallet containing $38 stolen when he left it unattended on a pinball machine; and yet a third had $105 worth of personal property stolen from the unsecured porch of his quarters. To avoid being a victim, remember these do's and don'ts. DO secure your property, record serial numbers, permanently mark your property with your name and social security number, use the unit safe or open a bank account, DON'T carry large amounts of cash.

Crime prevention is everybody's business. Call the MP Desk Sergeant whenever you observe suspicious business. Call 545-5222.

How about that?

Hiding wrongs not right

By William W. Erbach Sr.
TSB Chaplain

The little things that we do often amount to as much as the big ones. This is true for the good things as well as the bad. The difference usually is that we try to broadcast the good and the bad we hide.

There are so many ways we have found to rationalize the infraction of a rule, some cheating, some letting down the high standard of performance we are capable of and would demand of others. Probably the most common of these rationalizations is "Nobody saw me do it."

A. J. Cronin, in his book called THE CITADEL, wrote about a young doctor, who like most of us had come to his hour of reckoning. When politics had frustrated his attempts to institute new health measures in a small Welsh mining town, he set aside those high and noble goals and settled for what he could get for himself. He rationalized that no one cared so he wouldn't and what he was doing was best for his family, anyway - to give them a better way of life, so he sold out and left. After his wife's tragic death he found that she had kept in her handbag snapshots of him in those heroic days along with momentos she had which reminded her of the man he might have been. He shouted to himself in a drunken stupor, "You thought you could get away from it. You thought you were getting away with it. But by God, you weren't!!" How about that?

The thing that we can never escape from is ourselves and that part of God that dwells within us all. But even then, like the doctor's wife, we really don't ever know who sees or knows about it until it's too late. But we know and we stand condemned. It's important for all of us to do everything we do as if it were being done under the watchful eyes of an all-seeing Master--because it is.

Pencil pushers ready for field

524th Personnel Service Company (PSC) reconnaissance patrols move out to check for any signs for enemy activity in the area.

The 524th Personnel Service Company (PSC) was combat-ready during a field training exercise conducted recently.

Basic tactical operations were practiced while in a field environment to ensure potential readiness of unit members.

During the exercise many phases of combat skills were emphasized. The total spectrum of field readiness was taught, learned and used. Reconnaissance patrolling, field sanitation and NBC (nuclear, biological and chemical) were a few of the skills practiced in the field.

"The troops were very enthusiastic about aggressor activity and patrolling tasks," said Capt. John M. Beckstrom, 524th commander.

Processing paperwork and personnel is the basic function of the 524th, but "practicing our operation in the field is a different story," said Beckstrom. "The exercise was a success. A lot of basic skills were brushed up on and new skills were taught."

Open house picnic is carnival fun

Fort Benning's open house picnic attracted a large crowd of soldiers and their families at Victory Pond last Saturday.

The fun carnival had something for everyone. There was plenty of beer on tap, good food, and live entertainment.

Many types of Army static displays were on hand, which featured wheeled combat vehicles such as tanks, tracked personnel carriers and eight-ton cargo trucks. The kids had a ball climbing on and going through the vehicles!

The Rangers demonstrated hand-to-hand combat, and featured soldiers rappelling down ropes from hovering helicopters.

There was a Ranger demonstration that thrilled the crowd, followed by an Airborne show put on by Fort Benning's Parachute Jump Club.

For further information on regarding prize winners at this year's open house call the AUSA office at 545-4432.

Hunting safety class offered

The large response to last month's classes resulted in this new scheduling by the conservation ranger. The class is limited to 30 students, so call in your reservation to 544-3079/1721 between noon and 9 p.m. on Saturday and 10 a.m. and 7 p.m. on Sunday.

All young people between 12 and 18 years old must attend these two sessions and receive certification before they will be allowed to hunt. A parent is encouraged to come with the student.

OCS assoc. planned

By Betty Zimmerman

There is a move underway to organize an Army Officer Candidate School (OCS) Association.

Tom Bracewell, a reserve lieutenant who is a graduate of Benning's OCS, would like to hear from any interested Army officers who received their commission through the OCS program.

Inquiries should be directed to him at Post Office Box 1942, Dothan, Ala. 36302.

Regular membership will be offered to active Duty Army, National Guard and Army Reserve commissioned officers who received their bars through regular OCS or OCRC at the Infantry Center, Fort Benning, Ga. or one of the branch OCS Schools prior to formulation of the Branch Immaterial OCS.

Associate memberships will go to graduates of state National Guard OCS programs.

- injuries hidden under clothing (long sleeves, high socks)
- different colored bruises
- imprint of object on the skin (belt buckle, hand, strap, cord)
- burns: glove or sock-like appearance (from immersion in hot liquid); pointed or deeper in the middle (hot liquid poured on); shape of object (poker, utensil, cigarette)
- spiral or long-bone fractures detected by X-ray

Emotional abuse

- child withdrawn, depressed, apathetic
- child "acts out" to gain attention
- child conforms rigidly to instruction (of adults)
- child shows signs of emotional turmoil (repetitive motions, inordinate attention to details, little communication)

Physical neglect

- unsanitary living conditions
- inadequate clothing for the weather
- child consistently dirty, sleepy or hungry
- child left at home, unsupervised

Sexual abuse

- urogenital or anal injuries
- urogenital or anal pain or irritation
- venereal disease

Editor's note: The following article is not intended to be an expose' of child abuse on Fort Benning. Hopefully, it will assist parents who need help to recognize that they are not the only ones with this problem. It is also hoped that parents in this category will become aware of the many agencies on post that are ready and willing to help.

About 100 confirmed cases of abused or neglected children were treated at Martin Army Hospital (MAH) here last year, according to Dr. (Capt.) Frank Gearing, pediatrician and chairman of the Children's Protective Service Council at MAH, who added, "and that is only scratching the surface."

Fort Benning is no different than any comparably-sized community in having a child abuse problem. The factors that sometimes lead to child abuse; such as job pressure, marital disorder or financial problems, are shared by both military and civilian parents. In Columbus alone, the Muscogee County of Child and Family Services reports that in fiscal year 79, 673 new family referrals, involving 1,392 children, were under investigation by the Department. In addition, a Department official said that case workers are carrying active cases that involve about 625 children per month. (The figures cited by the county include Fort Benning cases, since they are referred to the county.)

When a child is abused, he is usually not the only one to suffer. Capt. Ron Long of MAH's Social Work Service said abusive parents usually love their children very much and regret their actions afterwards. These parents often fear having their children taken away from them or facing criminal charges for their behavior. In fact, one of the major problems authorities face in dealing with child abuse is that parents are afraid to seek help. The many agencies on post which deal with child abuse, however, look upon it as a sickness, not a crime.

Dr. Gearing stressed that the goal of the community in every case of child abuse is to maintain an intact family unit. "As a civilian, I did the same type of work and the Army has many more facilities for parents; they bend over backwards meeting the needs of parents who need help," he said.

In cases of confirmed abuse, the Council (consisting of representatives from Benning's Social Work Service, Chaplain's Office, Judge Advocate's Office, Community Health Nurse, head nurse of Emergency Room, dependent schools and the Muscogee and Chattahoochee County Department of Family and Child Services) meets to consider the case and decide what action will be taken. Dr. Gearing said this action usually consists of providing counseling for parents or, in rare cases where the child is considered to be in danger, the Council will recommend the child be temporarily removed from the home.

While Benning officials may make a recommendation that a child be temporarily placed under foster care, it is the Muscogee Department of Family and Child Services that makes the final decision and, if necessary, follows it up with legal action. Long said if the court orders that a child be placed in a foster home, it could be weeks or months before the child is returned to the care of his parents. However, Long also stressed that it is rarely deemed in the child's best interest to place him in a foster home.

If counseling is recommended, it may be obtained at a number of agencies on post. Martin Army Hospital offers a nine-week parenting course that meets in two-hour sessions once a week. Through the hospital, parents may also arrange for one-on-one counseling or they may obtain counseling through Benning's Social Work Service. Dr. Gearing pointed out that the parenting class at Martin Army is not necessarily for abusive parents only, and that parents with marital or financial problems, or who just have trouble coping with parenthood, may also benefit from the group counseling sessions. He added that usually it is only the parents who undergo counseling but some situations warrant that the child also be counseled.

How successful is counseling in helping abusive parents cope with their problems? It apparently depends on how motivated the individual is and how much he/she is willing to change. Dr. Gearing said abusive parents who come in for counseling usually fall into one of two groups: those who are open and receptive to counseling and those who are frustrated and difficult to work with.

Abusive parents 'cover up'

Unfortunately, most abusive parents do not voluntarily seek help. Benning officials say the majority of parents who abuse their children are either identified because someone has reported them or because a child is taken for medical treatment and diagnosed as having 'non-accidental injuries'. Gearing noted that physicians involved with child abuse cases act as the child's advocate and said, "By professional ethics, as well as legal ethics, a physician who does not report child abuse is subject to prosecution."

Long said when a parent is suspected of abusing his child, it is usually difficult to prove and the parents often deny the accusation. The knowledge that someone is 'on to them' is a deterrant in itself, according to Long, who said, "If parents know we suspect them, they'll be more careful and the likelihood of them abusing their children again is not as great."

Chaplain (Maj.) Max Burgin of the Custer Terrace Chapel said many parents "cover" their abusive actions out of embarrassment. And when it is only one parent who is being abusive, the passive parent may keep silent about the situation because he/she fears that if they expose their spouse's actions, it may result in ending the relationship.

Child begins to hate

The chaplain said the abused child, in situations like this, often comes to hate the passive parent. Abused children, however, rarely try to help themselves. According to Chap. Burgin, "Children are taught to love Mom and Dad. When children are abused, they feel it is their fault for being 'bad'." The chaplain also said

y ones who suffer

Neighbors are often aware that a child is being abused but do not report the parents because "they don't want to get involved in someone else's family problems."

Long emphasized that even in cases of continued abuse, there is no reason for anyone on the side of the people connected with the case to know anything about it unless the parents refuse to cooperate with authorities. He said a "strong reference" to the case is included in an individual's health record and that the record kept by Social Work Service is destroyed after five years.

Problem affects all ranks

While Long pointed out that most child abusers are young parents experiencing stress, the problem affects all ranks and income brackets and occurs in even the "best" of families.

Chap. Burgin said money is often a factor in child abuse, and that the child is blamed for making a parent feel inferior for not being a good provider. He cites other factors such as blaming the child for marriage problems, or the heavy emotional demands placed on parents by having a child completely dependent on his parents. Also, most abusive parents were abused themselves as children and many think their behavior is normal. The chaplain said even previous convictions do not prevent child abuse. He said he thinks "religious parents suffer a sense of guilt because of their beliefs."

Physical abuse, however, is not the only form of child abuse. Most authorities agree that emotional abuse, which is usually found in conjunction with physical abuse, damages a child more than bodily injuries. This type of abuse consists of belittling a child, threatening or refusing him emotional warmth, acceptance and love. "Nobody does much about emotional abuse," complained Chap. Burgin. "It kills it scars a child worse than physical abuse; it completely knocks out his self-esteem."

Chap. Burgin agrees that emotional neglect or abuse has the most lasting effect on the child. He also pointed out that it is the most difficult form of child abuse to deal with. "Courts deal specifically with physical abuse but are nebulous concerning emotional abuse," he said.

Sexual abuse does occur

While cases of sexual child abuse on Fort Benning are a rarity, Long said "it is not uncommon and probably occurs more than we think." He said cases of sexual abuse are usually reported after the child involved tells someone what happened but noted that sexual abuse cases are a "tricky" area. "Teenage girls sometimes lie about being sexually abused as a way to strike out at their parents, without realizing the impact of what they're saying," he said. He continued, saying that in cases where the father is sexually abusing his daughter, the mother is usually aware of the situation but won't admit it, even to herself. In any of its forms, child abuse damages both parents and the child and it is "a pattern that must be broken," according to Chap. Burgin.

Chap. Burgin. "We're here to work with these parents in love and acceptance. They already know what they're doing is wrong but it can be like being on a train and not being able to get off. The first step is admitting the problem and asking for help—and that's why we're here."

Some stress and tension relievers

1. Count to 10, put the child in a safe area (crib, playpen, childproof room) and go to another room or outside for a few minutes.

2. Go into another room, close the door, and cry or scream. Then take 10 minutes to read, knit or do whatever relaxes you best.

3. Lie on the floor with your feet up on a chair; place a cool wash cloth on your face; and think of the most peaceful scene you can imagine. Stay there for five minutes.

4. Tell your child exactly what is making you feel angry. Be really specific about what behavior needs to be changed in order to reduce your anger level.

5. After you've put the children down for a nap, forget what you "should" be doing. Take some time for yourself to relax—sleep, read, listen to music, take a bath—whatever makes you feel fresh again.

6. Designate a corner, chair or some quiet spot as a "time-out" place where you can go when you feel like losing your temper. Designate a separate one for your child. It gives both of you a few minutes to calm down, and it tells the other person that you are getting angry.

7. Save a special, quiet plaything to be used only at certain times. It will be a treat for your child, and will provide some quiet time for you.

Special tips

Here are some questions to ask yourself when you begin to feel the stress of being uptight with your children.

1. Is it so important that the children always do things my way?
2. Can I let the children have it their own way sometimes?
3. Do I really take enough time to try to understand what the children are saying to me?
4. Do I really know what the children want and need from me?
5. Is what I say or tell them to do really clear to them?
6. How often do I stop and listen—letting the children tell me what they think and feel—simply because they need to talk to me?
7. After I've lost control, how do I really feel about myself?
8. Can I really "make it up" to them?
9. Am I really taking my problems out on them?
10. How would I feel if someone said or did the same thing to me?

Every parent makes occasional errors in judgement and action but when it becomes plain that this is a pattern or is becoming one — then it's time to get help. If you or someone you know needs help, contact someone on the following list:

444th soldiers meet friendly snake

By Matthew Boison

A six-foot one-inch timber rattlesnake attempted to be friendly with Pvt. Michael Moore, a member of the 444th Transportation Company, while on a training mission Aug. 22.

The snake had crawled off a machine gun emplacement where Moore was positioned and into the foxhole with him.

"Moore was out of his firing position before the snake had a chance to hit bottom," said one bystander.

An evaluator in the field nearby shot the snake with a blank round from an M16A1 before the snake had a chance to bite anyone.

"The snake had a bite three-fourths the size of a man's hand," said Capt. Charles W. Glover, commander of the 444th Transportation Company.

Capt. Charles W. Glover, commander of the 444th Transportation Company, points to the hole where the snake was shot. The rattler was killed point-blank with an M16A1, using a blank round.

Hometown news releases' recognize the soldier

Editors note: When a soldier receives special recognition for an outstanding accomplishment or promotion, the unit should submit a DA Form 1526 (Hometown News Release). Then that news can be featured in the soldier's hometown newspapers.

By Willie Fears

"I know of nothing which so improves the morale of the soldier as to see his unit or name in print just once." These were the words of General Eisenhower while serving as Supreme Commander in Europe during World War II. It would be difficult, if not impossible, to measure any meaningful effect that the Hometown News Release has on improving morale; however, it does have an influence on attitudes which contribute to morale.

Approximately 9,000 newspapers in the United States, Guam, Puerto Rico, American Samoa and the Virgin Islands have requested Hometown News Releases on soldiers from their areas. Each month approximately 1400 Hometown News Releases leave Fort Benning bound for the Hometown News Center in Kansas City, Mo. Each news release is distributed to an average of three newspapers that serve the soldier's hometown.

The Department of the Army DA Form 1526, Information for Hometown News Release, is used by the Army Hometown News Center to gather personal information for use in composing a news story. In addition to this form, a cover story is sometimes prepared to give more detailed information about an event.

Upon arrival in Kansas City, the Hometown News Releases are processed by a mail clerk and a daily count is maintained by major commands. In the second phase of processing, the news releases are reviewed for completeness and accuracy by guide writers who also insure that the information is timely and newsworthy. Using the cover story provided by the field Public Affairs Office, the guide writers prepare a guide to be used by the data transcribers, who make up the third phase of processing. The data transcribers compose the news release as they enter it into the computer system.

In step four, the computer automatically checks the individual's SSAN against casualty files stored in its memory banks. The computer then prints a copy of each release for proof-reading and maintains the story for transfer to magnetic tape. These magnetic tapes are then placed on another larger computer which uses the zip code to select the media that serves the soldier's hometown. This computer also prints a copy of the release for each newspaper. The computer system has enabled the center to cut its processing time in half, assuring timely release of stories.

What about a release with a picture? Well, while the printed stories are being given a final spot check for errors, the center's photo lab is reproducing the photos in the required number.

After the releases are quality controlled to insure that the finished product is error free, they are machine-folded and manually placed into envelopes. They are then machine-sealed and assembled in trays for mailing. This entire process is accomplished in two to three working days.

If you feel you are involved in activities or have accomplishments which prompt a news release, contact your unit S-1 and fill out a Hometown News Release.

Battalion and company level S-1's are encouraged to contact Sp5 Fears of the post Public Affairs Office, Building 4, Room 602, 545-7391/2791 for assistance with their Hometown News Release Program.

Benning's soldier angler casts line for big bass

By Betty Zimmerman

Georgia has some of the finest bass fishing sites in the country, so it's not too unusual to have many pursuers of the sport here at Benning.

One in particular, SFC Carlos Sellers, has managed to do quite well nationally despite the disadvantage of being committed to military missions first. He's assigned to Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 43rd Engineer Battalion, 36th Engineer Group, and normally fishes on weekends only.

SFC Carlos Sellers reels in another one.

Sellers, a member of the state affiliated Bass Anglers Sportsmen Society (BASS) finished sixth out of 238 bass fishermen in Georgia's tournament at West Point Lake last May.

This showing qualified him for the National BASS Federation finals at Lake of Woods, Ontario, Canada in late August. He was one of only three military personnel in the three-day event. Sellers placed 28th there among more than 200 of the country's best anglers - many of them professionals. The Canadian lake has a 65,000-mile shoreline and literally thousands of islands.

The Baxley, Ga. native manufactures his own lures and makes his own plastic worms. He has also studied his subject well. Sellers declared, "You need to know meteorology (study of weather), ichthyology (study of fish) and topology (study of charts of natural or man-made features of an area such as the bottom of a lake or river). These key elements are crucial to being a successful bass fisherman." He continued, "You must know their food source and check many conditions such as the barometer reading, the water's oxygen content and temperature, the cloud cover and the water's movement.

"For tournaments, a well-equipped bass boat is essential. You need a powerful motor to get you from place to place quickly and an electric trolling motor. You must also have two aerated live wells to hold your catch. Other essentials are a sonar unit, dry storage box and water temperature gauge. Then there are rods and reels, life jackets and tackle. It's not a cheap hobby, but to me it's a rewarding one."

Sellers said he likes to fish for Kentucky bass on Lake Martin during the spring or fall and large mouth's at Lake Eufaula in the summer. Another favorite spot for him is Georgia's Altamaha River from McCray to Jessup. His biggest catch has been 14 lbs. 2 ozs. The world's record is 22 lbs. 4 ozs.

Battery A, 2nd Battalion
10th Field Artillery

The AUSA picnic is very nice and this is good weather for one.

The picnic is too far out, it should be on Main Post. This is supposed to be entertainment for the troops and the only reason why some didn't get out here is because of transportation.

Sgt. Walter Priester

PFC Steve McAlpin

It's an outstanding event as far as the military is concerned. They need more publicity and a better location, like Main Post.

Ingrid Burton

PFC Dennis Lane Jr.
Company D, 6th Battalion
1st Infantry Training Brigade

I like the picnic a lot. I mainly came to see the Ranger demonstration, and to eat a lot of the good food. I don't think the picnic needs any improvements.

Ingrid Burton, Dependent
Columbus resident

I think it's wonderful and the way it's going today there is no need for improvement. This is the first time we've been here since 1974 and there has been quite a few improvements since then.

Field inprocessing done by 18th Replacement Det.

By Dave Bristow

If you thought you saw soldiers camping between Buildings 75 and 83 last week—you were right!

Soldiers of the 18th Replacement Detachment were conducting a field training exercise which moved their entire operation, except for a skeleton crew, to the grounds in front of Building 83. Helmets and web gear were worn, protective masks and rifles issued. Everything needed to simulate a wartime situation was included.

The mission was to process all incoming transients within a 24-hour period after their arrival while simulating combat conditions.

1st Lt. Paul A. Broussard, 18th Replacement commander, commented on the FTX, "We are performing one-day processing out here. We do everything for the newly arrived transient in the field except put them to bed. For an overnight, we send them back to sleep in our barracks. In the morning they are brought back to the field for further processing."

While at the FTX location, soldiers have their 201 files screened, health and dental records checked and education records reviewed. Housing assistance for the soldiers is given, either by sending the transients to family housing, housing referral or whatever is necessary. Additionally, soldiers are sent to finance for any pay problems they might have.

SFC Mark Upchurch, PSNCO, added, "We want to give the incoming soldier the best possible impression of Fort Benning we can when he or she first arrives. During the processing we make it as easy and simple as we can to ensure the individual's needs are taken care of. At the same time, this exercise has given our soldiers an idea of what it would be like to work in a combat environment. I think all this is well worth our efforts. It's the first time I've been to the field in a long time and I'm enjoying it."

Permanent members of the 18th Replacement ment, while on their FTX, received NBC training. Individuals who hold the MOS 11B were able to practice the hands on portion of their SQT test.

First sergeant for the 18th, SFC Jesse L.

Echols, said "Many of the incoming arrivals commented that this was the first time they had ever experienced such helpful inprocessing in the United States. That makes it all worth while for us."

SFC Echols briefs a formation of new arrivals to Fort Benning at his FTX site. The inprocessing took place under simulated field conditions in the courtyard of Building 83.

AUSA meeting set

The 25th annual meeting of the AUSA will be held at the Sheraton-Washington Hotel, Washington, D.C. on Oct. 15-17. The meeting will provide a forum for the exchange of ideas and information among the military and civilian personnel who support and advocate the importance of the Army as an essential element of national security.

Opening ceremonies will be held on the 15th, with the Old Guard and awards to chapters. The local chapter will receive the Council of Trustee Award for Chapter Most Active in Pursuit of AUSA Objectives, plus honorable mentions for Largest Chapter Overall (tied with Fort Bragg), Far Greatest Corporate Membership Participation, and Best Chapter Newsletter, a commendable performance for Best Overall Meetings and runner-up for Best Chapter Overall.

As in the past, the meeting will include numerous displays and social activities. Persons interested in attending should contact the local chapter project officer, Lt. Col. R. Bechdolt, at 545-4432 or 5121.

The good neighbor.

In the nick of time

The Atlanta Renegades' fullback kicks from the end zone as two Fort Benning Flyers close in. In their second game of the fall season, the Flyers met the Renegades on Stilwell Field here last Sunday. In the A Side game, the Renegades overcame 21-4 and the B Side game ended 24-0 in the Renegades' favor. The Flyers meet the Birmingham Old Boys Saturday at 2 p.m. on Stilwell Field.

Yellow Jackets splash by Doughboys for win

By Gary Jones

The Georgia Tech JV Yellow Jackets outlasted the Benning Doughboys in an abbreviated contest here last Friday. The 10 to 7 loss was the season's first for the post gridiron specialists, evening their record at 1-1-1.

When Doughboy coach Ralph Santaliz looked up and saw the scoreboard clock not working he thought it might be a bad way to start off a game and this proved to be true as it was only the first of many difficulties to face the Doughboys in the hard-fought game.

All through the day prior to game time the rains had been pouring down leaving the field a muddy, slippery mess. The Yellow Jackets won the toss and elected to receive. They quickly moved the ball downfield deep into Doughboy territory before being forced to settle for a Graham Head field goal by the fired-up Doughboy defense.

Offense stopped cold

The potent Doughboy offense that had scored 52 points in the season's first two games couldn't get untracked in the game and remained bottled-up for most of the first half. The muddy field conditions combined with injuries to Carlton King (who had gained 180 yards against Bragg but didn't see action against Georgia Tech) and Leamon Hall (who played until being re-injured in the second half) kept the Doughboys from mounting much of an attack.

However, even though the Doughboy offense was having their troubles, the Doughboy defense managed to give the Yellow Jackets some troubles of their own. The Doughboys' 'rubber defense' played tough team ball, bending but never breaking to hold Tech to just three points in the first half and only 10 for the game. "The defense played the best game they have played till now," said Santaliz.

A few minutes before the half, the already muddy field was nearly deemed unplayable when the bottom fell out of the overcast sky, nearly flooding the playing field with a heavy rain storm. When play resumed in the second half the players were standing in ankle deep water along the sidelines and wading through shallow puddles on the field as they played.

Santaliz commented, "At halftime we knew it would probably be the team who made the first mistake in the second half that would lose." Unfortunately for the Doughboys, the first mistake was made by them when they fumbled in their own territory to set Tech up for the game's first touchdown. The extra point was good to give the Yellow Jackets a commanding 10 to 0 lead on the water-soaked field.

When Leamon Hall was forced to leave the game because of an injury, reserve quarterback Gerald Mooring came in but was also unable to put any points on the board. One of the game's best performances came from Stuart White who time and again came up with outstanding punts to get the Doughboys out of trouble and give the defense some breathing room.

Doughboys score

The Doughboys' only score of the game came when Kenneth Burkes intercepted a pass and ran it back 29 yards for the fourth quarter touchdown. The extra point kicked by Wayne Jackson was good to narrow the Yellow Jacket lead to just 3 points late in the game.

After all the foul weather, injuries and mechanical failure the momentum appeared to have changed in favor of the Doughboys. Then the final straw that was to break the camel's back was added to the Doughboys' list of problems for the game, THE STADIUM LIGHTS WENT OUT DUE TO A POWER FAILURE!

When the lights went out the Doughboys' defense had Tech stalled deep in their own territory forcing Tech to punt which was sure to give the Doughboys good field position to try for either the tying field goal or winning touchdown. Ironically the scoreboard that had ceased to work early in the game, came back on to indicate the final score as the dejected Doughboys left the dark field.

The next chance to see the Doughboys in action will be tomorrow when they play an away game in the Tangerine Bowl against Central Florida University before an expected 30,000 fans. Any Doughboy fans who plan to travel to Orlando to cheer on the team may pick up free tickets at the Sports Office in Doughboy Stadium while they last.

Lavoie Steelers 18

Lavoie Steelers won their second game with touchdown by Martin Wright who gained 103 yards rushing; Frank Poole ran 80 yards to score on a punt return and Kenneth Webb scored a touchdown on an interception. Bobby Timmons, the quarterback gained over 75 yards carrying the ball. Mark Gibson, who gained over 100 yards during the first game, was sidelined because of injuries.

MP Steelers 20

The Steelers upped their record to 2-0 with a 20-0 victory over the Cowboys in a game that was much closer than the score shows. Reggie Bush provided most of the scoring for the Steelers with touchdown runs of 10, 40 and 60 yards for a total of 18 points. Quarterback Erik Wipperman added the other two points with a conversion. A big factor in the success of the Steeler Offense was the blocking of center Carlos Legoa. Once again the Steeler defense, anchored by ends Shane Johnson and Aaron Rivers, proved tough, allowing no Cowboy points. A serious Cowboy threat was stopped at the five and the Steelers then drove them back to the 12 before turning the ball back over to their offense. The win keeps the Steelers in a tie for first place in the Grasshopper Division.

Patriots 44

In one of the most impressive offensive games of the season, the Patriots racked up a total of 409 yards, plus a 60 yard pass interception for the games final touchdown. Darren Tucker led in every other offensive category which included three receptions for 104 yards, 68 yards rushing and 88 returns yards. This, combined with a virtually penalty free defense which held the Eagles to only 112 yards, (16 in the second half) permitted the Patriots to retain their division lead undefeated. Sammy Lawson led the Patriot Blue defense with two sacks, and a fumble recovery.

TC Steelers 6

In a game to be completed by an overtime playoff on October 20th, the Steelers & Cowboys fought to 6-6 tie in an excellent defensive battle. Davey Varen and Xavier Carter were cited by their coach for outstanding offensive play while the defensive standouts were Junior Ware, Hank Stone and Jerry Dupree.

Lavoie Cowboys 6

Lavoie Cowboys 24

In the Grasshopper Division, two excellent sustained drives led the Lavoie Cowboys to a 24-19 win over the Tri-City Steelers. The Tri-City team was sparked by the excellent offensive play of quarterback Eddie Biondoletti and the defensive play of Shane Hurt. The game is under protest.

TC(E) Steelers 19

Rams 7

The Main Post Cowboys of the Grasshopper Division suffered their second consecutive loss Saturday despite continued outstanding offensive play of Billy Eberhardt. The Cowboys defensive recovered from last week's one sided loss and restricted the Rams to only one touchdow, Chris Duncan led the much improved defensive squad.

MP Cowboys 0

Termit League Falcons 6, Jets 0

The Termit League action at Blue Field last Saturday the Falcons hung on to their first place standing by edging past the Jets, 6-0. The entire first half was a see-saw defensive battle as neither team's offense presented a serious threat to their defensive opponent.

In the third quarter the boys on both teams were, again, as cool as the weather that had moved into Fort Benning. Finally, at the end of the quarter, the Falcons gambled on a fourth down to grab the game's only first down as the quarter gun sounded.

Antoine Owens immediately moved the ball in for the game's only score. The rest of the fourth quarter was "The irresistible force against the immovable object." Falcon most valuable offensive player was Antoine Owens and most valuable defensive player was Ron MacIver. Other Falcon standouts were John Felt, Pete Hoebok, Jason Miller, and Mike Ottosen.

HALF TIME WITH THE DOUGHBOYS

During half time of the Georgia Tech/Doughboys game Friday night, the Grasshopper Division was in complete charge of the half time activities. The Sea Hawks and Vikings played a hard fought 14-minute scrimmage. The Sea Hawks kicked to the Vikings who downed the ball on their 40 yard and the half ended with the ball resting on the 25-yard-line of the Sea Hawks. The Sea Hawks received the ball on their 35 and marched to the Vikings 4-yard-line when time ran out. This was a really 'big time' event for these two teams. The rain and mud did not match their desire to play at the Doughboy Stadium.

New PT program revised

The Department of Army has announced the development of a revised physical training program that applies to all soldiers, regardless of rank, age or sex.

This new program is a result of lessons learned in the Baseline Physical Training Program field testing. It is simple to administer and provides a variety of exercises in two phases.

It will undergo field testing from February to August 1980. The job qualification phase will be tested at Forts Benning, Jackson, Knox, Lee and McClellan. The 24th Infantry Division, Fort Stewart, Ga. will test the program's unit training phase. These tests will determine the degree of physical development that occurs, the manageability of the program and will establish proper standards.

A job qualification phase enables the soldier to physically perform tasks related to his specific job. This training will normally occur in basic and advanced individual training.

Then there is the unit physical training program where individuals learn to collectively perform physical tasks necessary to support the unit's combat mission.

The six exercise packages prescribe exercise for the entire body with emphasis on endurance, muscular strength and circulo-respiratory endurance. Single exercise activities are also included to give the commander flexibility in choosing appropriate exercises for his particular mission.

A simple four-event physical fitness test, which requires no equipment or specialized facilities, is part of the revised program. It includes pushups, situps, squat thrusts and a run of varying distances. Tentative standards equal or exceed the current tests.

Glad you asked

What qualities do you feel make a good leader?

Allen Russell

Sgt. Allen Russell
Headquarters and Head-
1st Battalion, 58th
Infantry

A leader should possess the quality of being punctual and faithful to his troops, and sometimes sacrifice his good stature with his superiors to prove the true worth of his soldiers and to back up his troops if they are right.

Mark Carter

Company A, 15th Cavalry

A good leader needs to know the job he expects his soldiers to do and be able to do the job himself if the circumstance arises. He must also understand the day to day problems the junior enlisted soldier faces.

Paul Ciampi

PFC Paul Ciampi
Company A, 15th Cavalry

One of the qualities of a good leader is that he is someone who has responsibility regardless of the soldier's position and someone his subordinates can turn to when they have a problem. He must show a little bit of respect towards his men and treat everyone as an individual regardless of the soldier's race or creed.

Sp4 Sharon Love
Company A,
197th Support Battalion

A leader is someone who cares about his subordinates. He or she makes sure the Army's mission is always accomplished and takes pride in being in the Army.

Sharon Love

Sp4 Larry Cooks
298th Signal Detachment

A good leader takes care of his troops, pride in what they do and anytime one of them does something excellent give them a good word for a job well done.

Larry Cooks

2nd Lt. Hector Wilson
72nd Engineer Company

A good leader is that man who can instill in his troops the motivation to complete the mission and at the same time be personally involved with them without losing their respect.

Sgt. complains about abandoned dogs on post

To the Editor:

I'd like to share with you something that I believe requires some kind of attention. The subject is dogs.

Most people complain because of neighborhood dogs making too much noise in the middle of the night when people are trying to sleep. My complaint is about the people who have dogs that don't want them.

If an individual has a dog that he or she no longer wants, he or she finds it very easy to just take a little ride out in the country or out around the Fort Benning ranges, let it out of the car and just drive off. It's easy. A little ride, no cost, no hassles. Just that simple. But what they fail to realize is that what they are doing is not solving a problem, but creating another one.

A few weeks ago, while my wife and I were going for a ride out along some of the range roads, we came across a couple of small puppies that couldn't have been more than a couple of months old. We put them in the car and took them to the vet at the first opportune moment, and found that one of them was so ate up with distemper that they had to put him to sleep. Now the other one is in about the same position. And even if a dog that has been left to fend for himself can avoid disease or survives, it will eventually become famished and desperate enough to attack a person. If this were to happen it would be by a pack of such dogs usually.

I have not heard any accounts of such an incident, but that's not saying that it will not happen.

I'm sure that there are more sensible ways of getting rid of dogs such as taking them some place like the humane society or putting an ad in the paper. The only problem is that there are too many people too cheap to do this.

Are there any programs set up on the Fort Benning reservation to deal with stray animals?

Sgt. John S. Armstrong

Soldiers getting out

To the Editor:

After attending a recent "Short Timers" briefing given by the Transfer Point at Building 33 I thought a letter might be in order. After seeing the full classroom and it was packed, additional seating had to be brought in, I began to wonder what was driving all these soldiers out of the Army. Could it be they were looking for greener pastures?

There was quite an array of different ranks to be found there, busted E-2s, E-4s, Mid level NCOs, and a very fair count of warrant and commissioned officers. Most present were of good military standards, the usual regulation hair cuts, shined boots, and fatigues that would do any 1st Sgt. proud.

What was causing all these soldiers many of who probably had anywhere from four to 10 years in the Army to leave in such big numbers? Could it be these were just the "Duds" that couldn't adjust to life in the military? Maybe some were but I would be willing to bet the majority weren't.

Could it have been a total lack of job satisfaction that was sending these people away? How about too many "Mickey Mouse" details and just too much police call for the mind to handle? Maybe a lack of meaningful training not just filling out an attendance roster to satisfy the brass, had a small part to play in it or maybe a large part. Could it be the generous 7% pay raise that still had us 6% or more behind inflation that was causing these people to think twice? Maybe the prospect of either being promoted or getting out on Victory Drive and pumping gas after duty hours or on the weekend for extra money to fill up the old car just to get to work didn't appeal to the majority.

But the real question is who's leaving and who's staying? There are some very fine and dedicated soldiers staying and we all know who they are. They're not just the ones with the shiney boots but they're the ones who really believe in what they are doing. Then again they are the ones staying because they have invested too much time already to get out even if they wanted to. Are some of these the same soldiers who have a profile against everything but picking up their pay at the end of the month? Let's not forget what the Army's real function is, can these people get the job done?

How about some of the soldiers that are reenlisting, a lot of good soldiers but what about the ones that aren't, the ones that shouldn't even be considered for reenlistment, the chronic grumbler and moaner; the guy that doesn't have anything better to do in life but go on sick call and sham out the rest of the day and get that check at the end of the month?

The DA of any other interested party had better take a good look at what's going on in the Army today and the system that governs the Army before time slips away and we have an Army of a few good men and women along with a bunch waiting for their check and wrist watches with a few more who just don't care about anything but getting over.

Sgt. Thomas V. Biondoletti

Complainers knocked

To the Editor:

I am sure glad that CWO2 John E. Dresser and his lady wife decided not to shop in our beautiful commissary any longer.

His unkind remarks are not appreciated and we, who love the shopping facilities, don't need such complainers.

Readers support Walters

To the Editor:

I would like to thank Ms. Susan Walters of DFAE on her criticism of the TIC Credit Union policy. I have long waited for someone to take a stand against the TIC Credit Union discriminatory policy.

Not that it will help much, but it will show other members how a small few have taken total control of "our" money. They have taken the civil service and military members' money and built up their assets and liability, and now the members have to go through invalid reasons to get it back. They don't need us anymore!

I have always had outstanding credit with the TIC Credit Union until 1974 when I was forced to resign under uncontrollable circumstances. After being reinstated two and half years later, I went to Mr. Zaleski (loan officer) about paying off the old account and re-establishing myself for a new account.

In fact, he agreed to help and I took his word as a minister. During the process of paying off the two and half-year-old account, I missed a payment and Mr. Zaleski had my check garnished from the civilian pay section and my family didn't have anything to eat that pay period. After paying the account off, I still can't borrow any money, even with the best co-signer.

I want the member to know that postal will! Mr. Swanson and Mr. Zaleski are in full control of our money!

E.H. T.M.P.
Fort Benning

To the Editor:

Since Ms. Walters' article appeared in the BAYONET on Sept. 21, our office has had a steady stream of telephone callers and visitors praising Ms. Walters for speaking out on the Credit Union issue — and for not being ashamed to sign her name to the article.

Elsie W. High Buildings & Grounds Division

TIC president replies

To the Editor:

I would like to take this opportunity to commend Mrs. Susan A. Walters, clerk, Buildings and Grounds Division, Directorate of Facilities Engineering, and the Disgusted Soldiers for their comments in last weeks' BAYONET. It is always good to have the opinions of those who feel that they have been wronged. I would further like to encourage these two individuals and any other person working at Fort Benning, either military or civilian, who feel that he or she would like to serve their Credit Union in the capacity of free board member to please leave his or her name and address at either of the two Credit Union Offices in a sealed envelope marked 'nominating committee.' A Nominating Committee for the next annual meeting in February, 1980 will be appointed 60 to 90 days before the meeting. Names submitted at either Credit Union Office marked for the nominating committee will be picked up by the Committee and will be included in their recommendations to the membership for consideration and election. Of course, you realize that a board member does not draw a salary for his services. The only compensation a board member receives for his or her services on the board is a free dinner every other month.

There are nine board members on the TIC Federal Credit Union Board of Directors. Board officers are elected for a two-year term of office. One year five members are elected; the next year four members are elected. There may be a vacancy that has occurred during the year by the resignation or death of a board member. At this time, the board elects a new member to fill the unexpired term of the member or until the next annual meeting. This new board member is only elected for a one-year term in order to put the five and four balance back in order. During my years of experience as a board member and president of the board, it has been very difficult to get people to volunteer their services as well as give their free time to become a member of the board or a member of the Credit or Supervisory Committees. Most people prefer to gripe about the actions the board makes in trying to improve the operations of the Credit Union. I have often heard the old adage that goes something like this, "Those who kick the hardest have the least to kick about, and would not serve if they had an opportunity."

At the annual meeting each year there are members elected by the membership to serve on the Credit Committee. The Credit Committee is vested with the powers established by the National Credit Union Administration on how loans are to be made and the procedures by which a member may appear before the Committee in case his or her loan has been denied. A member may request in writing to appear before the Credit Committee to appeal his or her case or the member may request in writing to appear before the board of directors, however, the board of directors does not have the authority to overrule a decision of the Credit Committee. In my tenure as a board officer, I do not recall ever seeing a letter from a member asking to come before the board concerning a loan. I have known of requests in writing by a member to appear before the Credit Committee, and in some cases I have known of a denied loan being approved and some loan amounts being increased after the member pleaded his case before the Credit Committee. I have also known of cases where members have appeared before the Credit Committee that the loan amount was reduced voluntarily by the member because they realized they were over-requesting their limitations to be able to repay the loan. Exceptions are made by the Credit Committee in many cases.

Ms. Walters and the Disgusted Soldier have complained about the recent loan policy changes that have been made and adopted by the board of directors. Let me assure every reader of the BAYONET or Post Bulletin that your board of directors is just as concerned over the actions that we have taken as the two people who have complained in last week's BAYONET. Camellia is an apartment motel. We don't rent rooms, we rent furnished apartments with all the features of a regular motel plus added conveniences that cannot be provided with just a single room - and all at the same, or most times lower rates than the single-room motel. For example, our "standard" unit is comprised of two bedrooms, combination living room-dining room, bathroom and fully furnished kitchen including refrigerator, stove, cooking utensils, and table service for six people. These are some of the "extras" but at no extra cost. Our 100 units are in separate buildings with usually four apartments in each building, which adds to a person's or family's privacy.

Classes begin Sunday, Oct. 7, 6:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. and continues for eight consecutive Sundays. This course was developed by Dr. Thomas Gordon to teach parents practical skills in communication and problem solving.

For further information or registration, call Chaplain Steinhilber, 545-5509 or Capt. Mark Schnabel, 545-2461.

Engineers undertake building renovation

The third platoon, 72nd Engineer Company, of the 197th Infantry Brigade (SEP), recently started renovating an old wooden World War II era building. The platoon is renovating the building to convert it into a dayroom for Delta Company, 197th Support Battalion.

The Delta Company dayroom was the biggest project given to third platoon this fiscal year. The materials cost $8,000 and the manpower ran about $6,000 which is lower than if the Army had contracted the project out.

Sp4 Curtis J. Cook puts an extra effort in finishing a new wall in Delta Company, 197th Support Battalion's dayroom.

The Engineers discovered a sagging roof, walls with holes wide enough to walk through, and braces for the ceiling having been removed.

In order to make the building serviceable, the roof had to be raised two feet. The ceiling supports also needed reinforcing and the sheetrock walls had to be finished. "The hardest part will be finishing the patch work on the walls," noted SSgt. Gary Seccor, third platoon NCOIC.

Besides the walls and the ceiling, the platoon had to replace the heating ducts and the electrical system. Two electricians from the 43rd Engineer Battalion installed the wiring.

Besides making the building safe, the engineers are building a TV room, a pool room and an office for the dayroom orderly. The platoon even constructed a book rack from scratch material for the reading room.

The men of the third platoon in the project are Sgt. Mike Raford, 2nd squad leader; Sgt. Joe Carter, 1st squad leader; Sp4 Curtis Cook, PFC Chancey Brown, heavy vehicle driver; Sp4 Lionel Brown, heavy vehicle driver; Sp4 Terry Short, demolition specialist, PFC Ronald Sicken, assistant demolition specialist and Pvt. Johnny Munningham, construction specialist. Also assisting in the project were PFC Berry Reynolds, Pvt. Terry Cross, Sgt. Tyrone Frazer, Sgt. Sam Derdaul, PFC Carnation, PFC Migual Manor and Sp4 James Wells.

36th soldier named post Soldier of the Year

By Matthew Boison

Sgt. Ronald A. Davis, 18th Replacement Co., was selected Fort Benning Soldier of the Year.

"It's an honor to be Soldier of the Year," said the 31-year-old native Georgian.

Davis began his Army career in 1967 and soon thereafter was assigned to Germany to work as a personnel clerk. After two years in the service, Davis returned to the states and terminated his stay with the Army to further his education.

Davis, a graduate of Swainsboro High School in Swainsboro, Ga., enrolled for undergraduate classes at Georgia Southern College in Statesboro, Ga. Davis went back to school on the G.I. Bill but, "it was still hard to make ends meet," says Davis. "I worked all kinds of jobs to help with finances."

After he received his degree in political science, he returned to the Army in 1975 and was stationed at Fort Benning for two years before transferring to a Korean unit.

While stationed in Korea, he conducted operations for an infantry battalion. "There was a lot of field work while I was there, but I enjoyed it," said Davis.

On May 11, 1979, Davis re-enlisted for another three-year stay with the Army and plans to attend the officer candidate school program. "I would like to be an infantry officer," says Davis.

"The Army is a good place to be," he said. "Anyone in the Army today would be a fool not to take advantage of the opportunities offered to them. The educational program available is excellent. The opportunity to travel and job security are just a few advantages."

Along with the pride and prestige of being Soldier of the Year, Davis also received a seven-day trip for two to Hawaii, an Army Commendation Medal, six months exempt from the duty roster, Certificate of Achievement from the post Sergeant Major, a set of dress blues, cash awards totaling $325, and various other awards.

Fire Prevention Week begins Sunday

This year, Fire Prevention Week, Oct. 7-13, marks the 69th year that fire safety has been the subject of a national observance.

Fire Prevention Week started in 1911 when Fire Prevention Day was inaugurated on Oct. 9. That date was chosen because it marked the anniversary of the "Great Chicago Fire of 1871." This fire killed 250 people and destroyed 17,430 buildings at a cost of $168 million.

This catastrophe started people thinking in terms of fire PREVENTION instead of fire fighting.

Fire Prevention Day was begun by the Fire Marshals Association of North America, now a section of the National Fire Protection Association (NFPA), and was first proclaimed by President Woodrow Wilson on the 40th anniversary of the Chicago blaze. President Warren Harding was the first to officially proclaim National Fire Prevention Week.

This year's theme for Fire Prevention Week is "Partners in Fire Prevention." The NFPA selects a theme every year to help make people more aware of the need for better fire safety.

"Many people just think of material things burning when they think of a fire," commented James Drain, chief fire inspector. "What they don't realize is that people burn too. Fire Prevention Week really gets you to thinking about fires and how dangerous they can be."

"The fires that cause the most deaths result from fires started by smoking materials," Drain explained. "There has been a decline in the fires that result from unattended cooking due to more emphasis being placed on educating families on fire safety."

An estimated 11,700 lives were lost in 2,694,000 fires costing $3.02 billion in property loss in the United States last year.

Home fires are responsible for about a third of all fire deaths. These fatal fires most often take place between midnight and 6 a.m. when flames, smoke and toxic gases gain headway unnoticed while residents are asleep.

Fire victims are children about 30 percent of the time. Some 3,500 U.S. youngsters through age 15 perish from fires each year.

The total fire loss for Fort Benning from Aug. 1978 to Aug. 1979 was $148,351. The number of calls received by the three post stations was 1,314. Causes ranged from unattended cooking to careless handling of smoking materials. Reportable fires constitute anything that is valued at more than $250.

During Fire Prevention Week, the Fire Department will be visiting different schools on post, talking to the children about fire safety. "We will explain how fire can be a friend as well as a foe," Drain explained. There will also be tours through the Fire Department's Museum.

"Most fires start because of carelessness in ordinary, every day situations," explained Drain.

"Make fire prevention a habit so that every week is Fire Prevention Week," he advises.

Firefighters have demanding job

Story and photos by Sharon Calabrisi

I've seen fire and I've seen rain, I've seen lonely days that I thought would never end. . . . This is the sound that could be heard coming out of Fort Benning's Fire Station #1.

These men are on duty 24 hours a day and when on duty, have to eat, sleep and otherwise live a normal life while at the fire station. The firemen work a 72 hour week, with only three days off every seven shifts. "Holidays are just another day to us," commented T. R. Jones, driver/operator.

Each fireman does his own cooking and tries to live as normal a life as possible.

From 8 a.m. until 5 p.m., the firemen have a schedule planned out for the day's activities. There is maintenance to be pulled on the vehicles and cleaning of equipment to keep everything ready in case of a call.

They have a one-hour class every day to keep them up on the latest changes in fire equipment or techniques, plus an hour of physical activities that is required of each fireman. "Some of us play volley ball, some lift weights and there are a few of us who jog," Jones said. "We just can't go to far from the station in case a call does come in."

"We don't just sit around here and play checkers like most people think," firefighter John Cox added.

The station on post works both independently and with the fire stations on Harmony Church and at Lawson Army Air Field, depending on the type and location of the fire. The stations also have a mutual agreement with the Columbus and Cusseta fire departments. "They can come on post to help out and we can carry men and equipment to assist them," Jones explained. "We've even gone to Plains, Ga. to help put out a fire in one of Jimmy Carter's peanut warehouse," he chuckled.

One thing that has changed with firemen, is they don't slide down the brass pole in the station any more. "When we are sleeping upstairs and a call comes in, it's just as easy to run down the stairs," explained Jones. "Before, when there was a larger number of firemen, it was dangerous to try to run down the stairs since someone could easily be trampled."

"From the time the alarm comes in until the trucks roll out of the station, it only takes 45 to 60 seconds for us to be on board," Jones commented. "This is at night. During the day, we are ready to leave even faster."

"We, the drivers, know our streets," he added, "but we still look at the maps in the engine room to make sure, of the location because time is a big factor at a moment like this."

"Other than doing their normal duties of fighting fires, the firemen put on displays, conduct tours through the station and talk to school students about fire prevention.

"Our fire prevention program has eliminated a lot of unnecessary calls and fires," explained James Drain, chief fire inspector.

CG's safety message

Fire never ceases in its destruction of property and lives in the United States.

We have a strong fire prevention program established at Fort Benning and we must continue to upgrade it through increased concern. The fire loss records of past year will be constantly challenged. A concerted effort on the part of each of us is essential to achieve our ultimate goal — no fires.

In keeping with the President's designation of Fire Prevention week, beginning Oct. 7, I designate this week to emphasize the total fire prevention responsibility of all Fort Benning personnel.

I urge each of you to support the Fire Prevention Program with renewed determination to wipe out fire disasters by means of a vigorous course of preventive actions.

Benning is 61 years strong

By T. A. Sabel

This Sunday marks the 61st anniversary of Fort Benning. From a camp that was built in seven days to the modern infantry center it is today, Fort Benning hasn't done too badly.

The whole idea began on Sept. 12, 1918 when the War Department decided to transfer the three sections of infantry training to a central location located at an 85-acre site east of Columbus, Ga. on Macon Road.

The camp's first commandant, Col. Henry E. Eames, arrived from service in Hawaii to find his assignment an un-named and unbuilt camp in a dairy pasture. Maj. John Paul Jones, construction quarter master, assisted Eames in the construction of the camp. Word was received that in seven days the first troops would be arriving from Fort Sill to begin training but the camp was still an undeveloped pasture. Jones, gathering materials and workers, often in a catch-as-catch-can situation, managed to construct temporary quarters and other buildings. On Oct. 6, 400 enlisted men and officers arrived from Fort Sill "before breakfast."

Camp Benning saved

After the end of World War I, there was a conscientious move by most Americans and Congress to disassemble much of the war-time temporary camps. An order arrived on Jan. 17, 1919 calling for the abandonment of Camp Benning and to salvage the equipment.

Jones took the word "salvage" to heart and, armed with the definition of "salvage" to mean "save," went on to repaint and preserve the camp he had worked so hard on.

The 1920s heralded in many changes for Camp Benning. To start off the decade, the War Department approved in April special regulations prescribing courses the modern infantry school would conduct. This infantry school would, in time, become what is now known as the School Brigade.

Camp becomes fort

Secretary of War Wainwright visited the burgeoning camp in January, 1922. He was so impressed with the camp and the school that Camp Benning became Fort Benning a month after his visit and a permanent housing program began that year.

Training in the 1920s included courses that seem odd in today's modern Army. Courses for officers included many hours of animal husbandry and officers were expected to ride a horse well.

With the threat of war rising in Europe in the 1930s, training at Fort Benning was pushed to high gear. The 2nd Armored Division was activated under the command of Gen. George S. Patton, The Officer Candidate School came into being, and the fledgling paratrooper training, later to become the Airborne School, was being tested.

In April of 1940 a construction program began, including road improvements, sewage disposal projects and the now outdated wooden barracks.

Then Brig. Gen. Omar Bradley was commandant of The Infantry School during the bombing of Pearl Harbor and the outbreak of World War II.

Training was accelerated. Nine-month classes were shortened to three and a half months. Twenty-six classes were in continuous sessions in The Infantry School by late spring of 1941. During the war years, 66,141 second lieutenants were graduated from OCS and 204,425 airborne students graduated.

Other training was also affected by the war. Some courses were halted altogether while others were shortened. These shortened courses enabled the Army to get more trained troops into the field and onto the front.

Dignitaries visit post

In the past 61 years, Fort Benning has hosted a vast array of dignitaries both domestic and foreign. Six presidents have visited here: Harding, Roosevelt, Truman, Johnson, Eisenhower and Carter. The foreign dignitaries have included such notables as Field Marshall Montgomery and the late Lord Mountbatten of the United Kingdom, Crown Prince Constantine of Greece, King Hussein of Jordan and Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia.

Hand in hand with the history of Fort Benning is the history of The School Brigade. Until the various Army infantry schools settled in Fort Benning, the infantry courses were scattered in different places under different names. Due to its central location, Columbus was chosen as the site for the future infantry schools and Fort Benning.

Until 1940, The Infantry School directed, administered, and taught all students. As the country prepared to meet the war, it was shown that The Infantry School could not direct classes for the students as well as cope with all the administration problems.

At first, the three training battalions were combined into the Student Training Brigade.

Later, The Infantry Service Command was formed to administer and house the instructors and permanent party members within The Infantry School.

Training during war

With the declaration of war, training was pushed beyond earlier limits. The Department of the Army ordered the school to begin training 14,400 officer candidates at one time. By this time, the School's training units were again reorganized into the First, Second and Third Training Units.

Despite these changes, there was still a problem with the administration of the students. For a more far reaching solution, a separate and independent unit needed to be formed to take the responsibility for administering the 17,000 students at Fort Benning in the spring of 1942.

The Student Training Brigade was formed in the summer of 1942 to take care of all the students assigned to The Infantry School. At this time there were four training regiments: two for OCS, one for student officers and one as a specialized training unit for enlisted members training in radio and tracked vehicle maintenance courses.

Towards the end of the war, the demands on the School lessened and The Student Training Brigade was disbanded with its duties reverting to The Infantry School Detachment and one student training regiment.

In 1951, in response to the demands of the Korean War, the unit was renamed the 1st Student Brigade. OCS was reactivated and the Ranger program was increased. By 1959, the unit was once again renamed as The School Brigade and has remained almost unchanged until the present time.

The School Brigade now handles OCS, IOBC, IOAC and various NCO schools.

The first housing at Camp Benning was little more than a city of tents. The camp was built in just even days under the direction of the industrious Maj. John Paul Jones.

F.D.R. paid a secret visit to the fort during World War II.

An early street scene from Fort Benning shows how drastically housing has changed over the years.

The facilities at Fort Benning's earlier hospital were a far cry from the modern facilities now offered to the troops and their dependents.

Col. Henry E. Eames, the first post commander, arrived to find himself in command of an unnamed and unbuilt camp in a dairy pasture outside of Columbus.

Former Army band leader still directs music

Civilian award given

The Commander's Award for Civilian Service was presented to Gustus Lockett by Maj. Gen. David E. Grange, commanding general, USAIC, upon the occasion of Lockett's retirement, effective Oct. 9.

Lockett was honored for his work as a management analyst in the Management Analysis Division, Directorate of Resources Management, from Sept. 25/77 to Oct. 9/79.

He has over 35 years of active military and civilian service. Lockett retired from the Army in August 1960 as a Colonel in the Infantry after 20 years of service. His years included combat during WWII in New Guinea, Netherlands, East Indies, and Southern Philippines.

AUSA Beauty Queen

Sp4 Cynthia L. Bounds was elected this year's beauty queen at the AUSA picnic Sept. 22. She is assigned to the 6th Battalion, 1st TT Brigade and works as a clerk in the Battalion PAC. Cynthia has attended Troy State and her hobbies are sewing and music.

music director at Columbus College.

Gibson's last job in the Army was director of the U.S. Army Field Band that will be presenting a concert at the Fine Arts Center at Columbus College on Oct. 1. He held that job for eight years before retiring from the Army in 1975.

Gibson is an internationally recognized authority in the field of concert bands. He has been a highly successful performer, teacher and conductor.

"I have always been into music," he commented. He has bachelor and master degrees from Southern Methodist University and has done doctoral studies at the University of Maryland and Columbia University.

He organized the instrumental music program for the school system of Irving, Tex. where he served as supervisor of music and conducted the award-winning Irving High School Band which performed frequently in the Cotton Bowl in Dallas.

Gibson also was the band leader of the Texas National Guard Band which won the Eisenhower Award three times consecutively.

When he entered the Army, he was called to command the 4th Armored Division Band, which represented the United States in the International Band Festival in Erlangen, Germany.

During his Army career, Gibson continued to have the music in him as he was assigned to the U.S. Army Field Band. He was later assigned as band leader at the Military Academy at West Point where he also conducted the nationally prestigious Cadet Glee Club.

As a result of his success with the Field Band, he was requested to form and conduct the nation's first multi-service band to help celebrate the country's 200th anniversary. The U.S. Armed Forces Bicentennial Band consisted of outstanding players from the Army, Navy, Air Force, Marine Corps and the Coast Guard.

"Having the Field Band at the college will help get people out here. A great deal of people don't even realize there is a college here."

Gibson explained that the U.S. Army Field Band is the only official touring representative for all the services. "Their only job is to tour the United States and perform.

DIO small arms repair unit helps build morale

Story and photos by Sharon Calabrisi

The Small Arms Repair Unit, DIO, is small in name only. It does a big job when it comes to doing what they do best, repairing small arms.

Small arms serviced by the Armament and Machine Shop encompasses hand and shoulder fired weapons, crew served weapons, machine guns and mortars. Weapons serviced include the M10 .38 caliber revolver, the M1911A1 .45 caliber pistol, the M16A1 rifle, the M2.50 caliber heavy barrel machine gun, the M3 grease gun, flare guns, shotguns used by the military policemen for riot control, the .22 caliber rifle, and the M203 grenade launcher.

They give both direct and general support to the 36th Engineer Group, The School Brigade, Committee Group, Infantry Training Brigade, and the 197th Infantry Brigade.

Direct support is accomplished by working out contact vans with the units at the different ranges. General support is done in a shop found in a garrison type situation.

The contact vans assist the Infantry Training Brigade by handling inspections, trouble-shooting, performing diagnostic repairs, and ordering and replacing parts at the ranges during live-fire activities.

Their primary goal is to return the weapon in serviceable condition as quickly as possible. By preventing delays, they support the morale of the troops on the firing line.

"If a soldier is on the first firing order and his weapon goes down, there is a large morale factor involved", explained SSgt. David P. Bell, NCOIC. "If we weren't there to repair the weapon immediately, he would have to go back to the last firing order and that would greatly affect his concentration and attitude."

The small arms repair unit monitors about eight to nine ranges for the Infantry Training Brigade, Infantry Officer Basic Course, and Infantry Officer Advanced Course. The contact vans rove between ranges daily. The repair unit can repair about 600 weapons. They repair bolts, major components and the lower receiver group of the M16.

When a training cycle is completed at the Infantry Training Brigade, the small arms repair unit sends a group of men to the unit arms room and completely goes over the weapons used. They check for deficiencies and replace any worn out parts by adjusting and gauging head space and barrel serviceability.

To help out their customers, the maintenance division holds a unit armorer course once a month to teach unit personnel weapon assembly and disassembly, record keeping and cleaning methods, supply items and preventive maintenance. This enables the units to learn to do more maintenance and repairs for themselves.

When a weapon is received at the shop for repairs, it goes through a thorough inspection and cleaning process before being returned to the unit. The bolts and barrels go through several tanks that clean, blast, refinish and oil them before being placed back on the weapon.

To cut down time, an assembly line method is used to repair the weapons. About 50 weapons are placed on a table, broken down, and several workers begin to repair them.

Occasionally, weapons with functional problems are test fired in a tunnel in the basement of the shop, before returning them to the user.

"The civilians working in the shop are the best teachers we could have", mentioned Bell. "The small arms repair school teaches 'how to' repair the weapons, but the best way to learn is through practical application."

"We stand behind our work", explained Bell. "We fire everything we repair before returning the weapon to the user to make sure it is in good working condition. If we can fire them anyone can, and it helps keep up morale."

"When a weapon blows up, we go out to investigate the incident", he explained. "We inspect to see whether or not it was the weapon, or the ammunition that caused the explosion. The judgement made is based on our experience."

"Our primary concerns are safety, operations and time. We stake our lives on the repairs we make", Bell concluded.

"We're often referred to as the man behind the man that stands behind the gun", added Melton L. Greer, chief of armament and machine branch, Maintenance Division.

The upper and lower receiver group of an M16A1 rifle is inspected for any malfunctions.

Suggestions earn $$ for Benning employees

By Pat Brown

Two post employees received a little extra Christmas money last week when Maj. Gen. David E. Grange Jr., post commander, presented each of them with a suggestions award check.

Brenda L. Mollett received a $920 check for submitting a suggestion that the Enlisted Records Section, Consolidated Military Personnel Actions Branch, Adjutant General's Office, be reorganized to eliminate a duplication of effort within the Inprocessing and Reports Control Unit.

The reorganization resulted in the elimination of four military slots and a reduction in grade of Mrs. Mollett's own job. However, Mrs. Mollett, who has worked at Fort Benning for 13 years, 10 of them in the Adjutant General's Office, was transferred to a job of equal grade.

Her suggestion will result in an annual savings of $43,480.

Gale C. Sult, who has worked in the Airborne Department for 10 years, received a $630 check for his suggestion that the Parachute Packing Branch modify the standard T-10 parachute canopy to a J-1 canopy for use on the 250-foot jump tower. Before adoption of his suggestion, the J-1 canopies were manufactured and purchased at a cost of approximately $2000 each.

Sult's suggestion will result in an annual savings to the government of $13,040.

According to Betty Frankovitch, Suggestions Programming coordinator, post civilians submitted a total of 212 suggestions during the past fiscal year. Of this number, 58 were adopted, resulting in a savings to the Army of $247,120. Awards checks totaling $9,140 were presented to the suggestors.

"Military personnel assigned here didn't do so well", Ms. Frankovitch stated. "Only 102 suggestions were submitted by post soldiers, of which six were adopted. These six suggestions resulted in a savings of $37,149 and the suggestors received awards checks totaling $1,065.

The Suggestors Awards Program was established as a means of encouraging civilians and military personnel to help the government save money by submitting ideas that would result in jobs being done in a more efficient, safer or costs-saving manner. The amount of the award is usually based on the actual savings to the government.

"However," Ms. Frankovitch stated, "A suggestion might be adopted that would not actually save money but would result in a safer or more efficient way of getting a job done. The person making the suggestion would then receive a check for 'intangible' savings."

Ms. Frankovitch urged all post personnel to fight inflation by participating in the Suggestions Program. By saving the government money, they can help cut down on income taxes as well as by adding to their income if their suggestion is adopted.

Suggestions should be submitted on DA form 1045. Forms may be obtained in room 135, Bldg. or by calling Ms. Frankovitch, 545-4483.

O3 promotions to accelerate

WASHINGTON (ARNEWS) — Commissioned service time for promotion to captain AUS will be reduced to four years by Oct. 1, 1980, according to DA officials.

The reduction from the current four and one-half years will be gradual, starting on Oct. 1, 1979.

According to Lt. Gen. Robert G. Yerks, deputy chief of staff for personnel, this decision was made to help relieve a shortage of about 5,000 captains on active duty. The change will cause about 2,500 extra promotions to captain during the next year, he added.

The accelerated promotions will exhaust the current lists to meet in November to recommend additional officers for promotion during the fiscal year.

The zones of consideration for the November board will be announced in the near future, according to DA.

The shortage of captains has come about mainly as a result of the low number of lieutenants brought into the Army during the 1972 through 1976 period, according to a DA personnel official. During this time the Army was reducing its size drastically after the Vietnam War.

In addition to the promotion acceleration, efforts are underway to improve junior officer retention and to re-evaluate captain requirements in table of distribution and allowances (TDA) units, the official added.

Radio control boats sail at Benning

By Pat Barham

The world speed record for a power boat is 72-miles-per-hour. This may not seem fast to the average person, but this record is held by a radio controlled boat.

SFC John Benthien of Morale Support Activities has been radio boating for many years. Like most radio control (R/C) operators Benthien started by flying R/C planes. There are different classes of boats and styles of boats available to the avid R/C operator.

According to Benthien R/C boating is a sport as well as a hobby. Many individuals build boats for competitive racing while others build for the pleasure of just building and operating their boats.

Benthien said before deciding what type of craft to build several considerations have to be considered. There are two types of boats that are usually built for use with radio control boating, those that are built to scale and those built for power and speed.

Depending upon which class of boating is chosen, there are basic kits available for those just beginning the hobby. For approximately $150 an individual can begin building and working on a boat. The major cost in R/C modeling is the radio receiver and the engine to propel the craft.

Individual design and ingenuity can be incorporated into any model making the final product a work of art. There is no limit to the amount of money or size that can be placed on the model. Often boat builders will buy a set of plans and expand or decrease the size at their discretion. As to money, boats have been built with guns that fire, water that squirts from simulated pumps and other features that are limited only by the individuals imagination.

There are several R/C clubs in the area of which many different classes of boats are sailed and raced. Benthien hopes to start one such club on post. If you have an interest in R/C boating contact SFC John Benthien.

Lenny H. Harmon, owner of the Port City Hobby Shop, tightens the cover of his paddle wheel built during his six years of model building.

After warming the engine and checking for any malfunction in the radio control unit, John Benthien pushes the V-hull power boat away from the shore in order to run the craft

Professor Safety

As the supply of gasoline available to auto drivers decreases while the price charged for each gallon of gasoline increases steadily, many drivers chose to carry extra containers of gasoline in their vehicle. This practice can have deadly results since one gallon can of gasoline has the explosive power of 14 sticks of dynamite. Even a minor rear end collision can cause a can of gasoline in a car trunk to explode and start a fire.

Worried about overweight household shipping?

An overweight household goods shipment can be a painful and costly experience for the soldier. Some service members are aware their shipments will be overweight and are prepared to pay for shipping the extra pounds. But more often than not, an overweight shipment is cause for surprise and a shock. Surprise when the member learns of the overweight and shock when the Government presents the bill for shipping the extra weight. The Department of the Army believes the key to eliminating the surprise is a more accurate weight estimation prior to shipping the property. During October and November DA will be testing a new inventory form designed to help the service member in the weight estimation process. Fort Benning has been selected as a test installation for the new inventory form.

Instead of using the present Household Goods Inventory (DD Form 1701) to estimate household goods weights, the Transportation Officer will provide members with a test worksheet (Inventory) at least one day prior to making application for shipment of household goods. This inventory must be completed at home on a room to room basis instead of from memory. The completed inventory will then be taken to the Transportation Office to make arrangements for shipment of the household goods.

shipment of household goods will be processed without the completed test form. The test period will run from Oct. 1 to Nov. 30.

The test inventory may be picked up at the Transportation Office, Bldg. 280 during the hours 7:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. daily or the service member may call 545-4857 at least 10 working days prior to making application for shipment and the form will be mailed. In any event, the form must be completed prior to application for shipment of household goods being processed.

Written instructions for completion of inventory will be attached to the form; however, any additional assistance or information regarding completion of inventory may be obtained by visiting or calling the Transportation Office, Bldg 280, telephone 545-4857.

The Transportation Office will retain the completed inventory with the member's shipment file until the actual weight is obtained and compare it with the estimate weight. The results will be forwarded to DA for evaluation and implementation.

Completing the test form at home is such an important part of the test that no application for

PANTHERS 26
The Patriots strengthened their bid for a third consecutive post championship by posting an impressive 26 to 8 victory over their strongest rival, the Tri-City Panthers. It was a game marred by penalties with the Panthers losing 125 yards to the yellow flag and the Patriots 105. The Patriots struck first with Ricky Bush on a 42-yard run up the middle. The Panthers were held to just 16 yards total offense in the first half. Trailing after the half 13-0, the Panthers struck back on an excellent run from scrimmage by Robert Mckenzie. Darrin Tucker of the Patriots had three punts in the game for a 38-yard average and scored the games' final point on a 43-yard fumble recovery for a TD. Panther Coach Sells cited Anthony Depuy, James Boy, Daryl Shamon, Petie Marshall and Danny White. The Patriots defensive players of the week were Gary Stephens, Jimmie Thompson and Aaron Chapman while Tucker, Bush and Devin Williams sparked the explosive Patriot offense.

MP STEELERS 14
The Steelers continued to rely on a strong defense to help bring their record to 3-0. Steeler scoring was provided by Reggie Bush with a two-yard touchdown run and free safety Shea Briscoe's exciting 38-yard return of an intercepted pass Erik Wipperman converted. Briscoe also had another interception for 10 yards later in the game. Once again the Steeler defense proved tough inside their 20. The goal line stand anchored by Randy Wright stopped the Vikings on the two. The Vikings didn't let the opportunity get completely away from them as an aggressive defense trapped Wipperman on the next play for a safety. Guards Budd Goode and Chuck Briscoe provided blocking to help the Steeler offense while fine defensive performances were turned in by the Steelers' defensive end Sean McHugh and safety Alex McKindra.

CARDINALS 12
Kevin Sparks gained 100 yards rushing and scored two touchdowns to lead the Cardinals' defense. Teedy McCon, Chris Valentin, Jimmy Johnson, Brod Simmons, and Junior Madison were outstanding on defense.

COWBOYS 18
Quarterback James Gordon engineered a sparkling Bulldog offensive drive that scored a touchdown behind the perfectly timed blocking of Joey Valentine. The Bulldogs defense was led by Chet Hallister who snared two interceptions.

STEELERS 6
Jet quarterback Clarence Catchings played an inspired game despite the Jet loss to the Steelers. Steelers' halfback Xavier Carter was the leading runner with one burst of 28 yards off tackle. Carter also had a pass interception for the Steeler defense. Greg Copeland broke through the Jet defense for a tackle of the Jet running back for a 10-yard loss. Steve Harris was cited by the Jet coach for his excellent game.

GOLDEN EAGLE 6
A much improved and inspired Golden Eagle team gave a superb effort in defeat to the Buccaneers. The defensive player was Malard Newkirk. Melton Ferguson and Robery Hymes were the offensive players of the week.

TC STEELERS 19
Eddie Biondoletti and Kevin Chappel continued to power the explosive TC Steelers to an impressive 19-6 win over the previously unbeaten Seahawks. Biondoletti ran for the three Steeler touchdowns. Shane Hurt and Jeff Stone led the Steeler defense. Anthony Pollard set up one of the scores with an excellent 35-yard punt return.

RAMS 13
Pat Schooley passed for 25 yards and ran for one touchdown. Jason Barsewell ran for 75 yards total and one touchdown to lead the Rams over the Cowboys.

300 Meter Rifle Championships..

The National 300 Meter Rifle Championship will be held at Fort Benning, tomorrow through Tuesday, with forty of the top rifle shooters in the nation expected to be on hand.

The 300 meter rifle match is held in World Championships and other major international shooting competition and was an Olympic event until 1972, when Lones Wigger of the U.S. Army Marksmanship Unit won the gold medal in the

Sport Shorts

Munich Games. Wigger is the defending National Champion and will be out to win his unprecedented fourth consecutive title. He will have stiff competition, however, as no less than six former national rifle champions from civilian, U.S. Army Reserve, USMC and the National Guard ranks will try to stop his winning streak.

The matches are sponsored by the National Rifle Association and hosted by the U.S. Army Marksmanship Unit and Fort Benning will be held at USAMU's Parks Range facility. Firing will be from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. daily with the general public invited to observe this year's championships.

In the first 34th Medical Battalion Flag Football Game between the 2nd Combat Support Hospital (CSH) and the 498th Air Ambulance, PFC Richard Anderson of CHS breaks away for a 40-yard gain, but fails to make a touchdown. The final score was 2nd CSH 4- 498th 0. The game was won by two safetys.

Flyer Ruggers bury Birmingham

Last Saturday the Fort Benning Flyers Rugby Football Club exploded for a 56-0 win over the Birmingham Old Boys. After losing a hard fought battle the week before against the number one team in Georgia, the Renegades, the Flyers amassed an amazing 42 points in the first half alone. Ten out of the total fifteen man team had scores to their credit.

The Flyers, now 2-1, play host to Emory University, RFC, tomorrow at 2 p.m. on Stillwell Field.

Southern Open

Officials of the Southern Open have just learned that Jerry Pate has officially committed to play in the 1979 Tournament and will, therefore, defend his 1978 Championship Title.

In making the announcement, Sam Wellborn, president of the Southern Open, said, "Jerry Pate has been an outstanding Southern Open champion. He has gone far beyond normal expectations in representing the Tournament on the tour with the other players and has always willingly helped in promoting the Tournament. In fact, we just could not have asked more of our champion and appreciate so much Jerry's willingness not only to play here again but also to let us know his intentions to play so far in advance."

Pate joins Arnold Palmer as the only other player who has committed so far to play in this year's Tournament.

The $200,000 Southern Open will be played during the week of Oct. 10-14 at the Green Island Country Club.

Judo classes

Anyone having previous experience or interested in learning judo is encouraged to visit the Columbus Downtown Y.M.C.A. Judo Club. Mr. Al Schmitt, 4th degree black belt, is the instructor. Classes are held every Tuesday and Thursday from 6-8:00 p.m. For more information call Gary Melton at 687-0861 after 5:30 p.m.

Doughboys edged 7-6 in Bowl game

In their first away game of the season, the Fort Benning Doughboys were edged 7-6 by the University of Central Florida (UCF) Eagles in the Tangerine Bowl Saturday night.

The Doughboys gave an outstanding performance before the crowd of almost 15,000 but controversial calls by game officials swung the contest in UCF's favor.

Saturday's game began with an unfortunate repeat of earlier season games as the Doughboys got off to a sluggish start and a UCF drive that began on their 23-yard line resulted in a touchdown early in the period. While UCF was mounting their scoring drive, the Doughboy offense was only on the field for three plays that included a quarterback sack and an interception. The quarter ended with UCF holding a 7-0 lead.

The second quarter was scoreless as both defenses dug in and ran the game. The UCF coach, in a televised pre-game interview, predicted the Doughboys would play a very "physical" game and the defense came through with exactly that. Even sports-hardened press photographers on the sidelines expressed amazement at the bone-shaking tackles the Doughboys were throwing and cries of "Hell! Look at that guy sail through the air!" were heard more than once.

Bone-shaking defense

The Doughboy defense, which played most of the first half, was spear-headed by safety Kenny Burkes who put his talent to use and came up with two pass interceptions, centerback Ed Cochran who had seven unassisted tackles, and linebackers Ron Carter who played his consistently good game and Ron Hilliard who went all out for his last game with the Doughboys before returning to the civilian world.

Another plus for the Doughboys was the magic foot of punter Ward Whyte, who bailed the team out of several tight spots and finished the night with a 44.7 average.

Officials' calls were only half the bad news for the Doughboys; the other half was their own offense. Doughboy quarterback Leamon Hall reacted to the Eagles' special 4-4 defense by moving from one misfortune to another. Hall will be wincing for a long time when he remembers how he was held from completing a pass for the first 33 minutes of the game, not to mention the three sacks and four interceptions.

Doughboy wide receiver Fredrick Suggs, usually lethal with Hall's passes, was rendered ineffective by Eagles' double-teaming and had trouble handling the ball even when he had a clear shot at it.

Hall somewhat redeemed himself by scoring the Doughboys' only touchdown with 8:07 left in the third quarter, after the Doughboy coaches ordered some offensive adjustments to counter the Eagles' potent defense. The Doughboy score capped a 51-yard drive that took life with a Hall-to-Suggs' pass followed by penalties that both helped and hindered the Doughboy effort.

After a first and goal at the five-yard line, penalties set the Doughboys back to the 25. The patented Doughboy reverse draw sent running back Greg King to the three and a spearing penalty against UCF allowed Hall the time and yards he needed to run the ball over from the two. Wayne Jackson's extra point was wide but the Doughboys weren't through yet—or so they thought.

The Doughboys rallied and rolled to take control of the final quarter and precision teamwork with Hall, King and tight end Kenneth Quinlon led the team to the two-yard line where a King fumble gave hope to the Eagles.

Jackson thought he had given the Doughboys a victory when his 44-yard field goal attempt was dead center but the job was shortlived. Officials nullified the winning points on a call of illegal procedure—not enough men to hold the line. What sparked the controversy, voiced even by loyal UCF fans, was that the flag was not thrown until after the ball had sailed through the goal posts.

"We really don't have any alibis and aren't going to cry about the officiating," said Doughboy Head Coach Ralph Santaliz. "Technically, the call was correct but we thought the game was ours on that kick. The flag was heart-breaking because our guys played one hell of a game."

The Doughboys' next game is Sunday at 2 p.m. in Doughboy Stadium against the Auburn University J.V. Coach Santaliz said he is expecting varsity players to swell the J.V.'s ranks and toughen the challenge. Half-time entertainment will be a performance by the Central High School Band.

Punter Ward Whyte bails the Doughboys out of a tight situation.

Running back Greg King rushes for another big gain.

Scoring — UCF — Bobby Joe Plains, 3 pass from Mike Cullison, Tom Hungertford kick.
 FB — Leamon Hall, 2 run, kick fail.

Editor's note: In our last issue we gave Kenneth Burkes credit for intercepting a Yellow Jacket pass and running it back for the Doughboys' only score and it was really Ron Carter with the sticky fingers and quick feet. We also gave Carlton King credit for gaining 180 yards against Fort Bragg when it was Greg King who had the outstanding game.

While Larry Varnedoe steadies the ball, Wayne Jackson kicks a 44-yard FG that almost gave the Doughboys a 9-7 victory.

Second looks

Last weekend a group of Benning plodders journeyed to Sylvester, Ga. for the Georgia Peanut Festival Run and were rewarded with a fine race. The only real hitch was five false starts because the pistol wouldn't fire. For tired old runners like me, there was an additional disadvantage: the race required two laps of the same course. You might remember this if you're ever questioning the advisability of running a particular race. If there's anything trying about the course you'll get to see it again. It can be rather disheartening.

Navy Marathon Oct. 13

The warning just given could be applied to this race. The Naval Air Station at Jacksonville, Fla. is sponsoring a marathon-and-a-half marathon. The latter is one lap of the course; the former, two laps.

Final registration after Sept. 30 is $5, including day of race registration until 7 a.m. which is "STRONGLY DISCOURAGED." Registration fee includes a memento of some undisclosed type.

There will be a special team competition for the marathon, complete with separate award for the first place military team. A five-hour time limit will be placed on the race. One very good feature is aid stations approximately every two miles. For all remaining details, contact Tom Breeding, 544-4177.

Autumn Road Race Oct. 13

The First Alabama Bank of Dothan is sponsoring a two-mile fun run and the featured 10K at Houston Academy in Dothan. Special occasions include a dinner/clinic at 6 p.m. next Friday and a couple of world class competitors running in the event.

Entry fee is $4 if postmarked by tomorrow and $6 until 8 a.m. race day.

There will be T-shirts for all finishers, a multitude of trophies, aid stations at three and five miles, splits at every mile. In brief, the flyer proclaims all the racing amenities, including a scenic course. If you're going that way, it looks like a winner. (I've got entry forms, so the ball's in your court.)

If these races are not sufficient to satiate your appetite for competition, there are several more around the state next Saturday and there's The Great Race from Atlanta Fulton County Stadium to Piedmont Park Sunday afternoon, Oct. 14. Space does not permit full disclosure now that the running season is upon us, but feel free to inquire. And don't forget our own local races — The Southern Open 10K tomorrow, The Chattahoochee River Run next Saturday — if you're staying home the next two weekends.

met and discussed the money market matters at great length before any recommendation or action was taken. The present prime interest rate of 13.5 percent and the possibility that it may climb to 14 percent before Christmas is one of the most earth-shaking bits of news in the financial world today. This is the highest prime rate ever in the history of our nation.

Credit Unions are not the only financial institution concerned over the economy today. Banks, savings and loans and other financial institutions are facing the same crises. The cry from every financial institution is practically the same wording, 'We have more demands for money going out than we have money coming in.' TIC Federal Credit Union has been contacted many times in the past several months by other financial institutions asking if we had surplus capital to invest at high-yielding interest rates.

It would also be earth-shaking news if the members of the Credit Union could be told of the loans that have to be charged off from time to time because of default in payments caused by transfer of members to other locations and upon arrival at their new location they cut off their allotments to TIC Federal Credit Union for their monthly loan payment, or because the member has been discharged from the service and forgets his obligations to the Credit Union or because the collateral they have given as loan security has been destroyed or abandoned leaving the Credit Union holding the bag and spending many many dollars of the membership's money trying to locate the abandoned property given on the loan as collateral.

Then there are many, many bankruptcy notices received where the member has taken bankruptcy to avoid paying his loan. The Credit Union in a bankruptcy case has very little hopes of recovering anything. Thus, because of money being tight and slow coming into the Credit Union your Board felt that positive action to curtail some of the fast flow of money going out had to be taken.

The policies that were published in the BAYONET and Post Bulletin were the result of the present economic situation. I would also like to say that the command has been apprised of the action your board of directors has taken. The command agrees with the policies that were published in the BAYONET and Post Bulletin. The command is also cognizant that the board may have to take more positive action if the money situation does not change.

Another bit of information that has come to your president by a friend in the financial world this week. At Fort Wayne, Ind. one of the automobile manufacturing plants has temporarily closed its doors and many employees have been displaced in work. Some of these former employees were buying homes on low interest rate loans. They have been denied the opportunity of selling their homes to recoup their equity and the new buyer is denied the opportunity of taking over the owners' old loan at the low interest rate. The new buyer is being forced to secure a new loan at the present high interest rate of 10.5 to 11.5 percent.

Ms. Walters mentions in her letter that I purchased a new car and paid cash for the car. My car was purchased as a cash purchase over a year ago, at that time I could afford the cash payment, but during the past year the incidents that have happened to me personally I could in no way purchase a new or used car for cash. This statement in Ms. Walters' letter I feel was a personal dig at the president, and my personal feelings towards her remark was a betrayal of confidence and an invasion of privacy.

TIC Federal Credit Union is a member of the National Defense Council. This organization is under the direction of the Department of Defense. Delegates to the council meet annually to plan, revise and adopt improved and new legislation that effects Federal Credit Unions operating on military installations. TIC Federal Credit Union has elected and sent delegates to these workshops and lecture conferences since it was organized some twenty-one or twenty-two years ago. At these conferences many new and improved policies in the operations of Credit Unions have been made. At this Defense Council Conference in Reno your president submitted a letter of resolution to the Resolution Committee who presented it before the entire body at the Defense Council business session. Our resolution was adopted without objections. Now our resolution is being prepared in bill form by the National Credit Union Administration for introduction into the Congress and Senate. It is the hope of the Resolutions Committee that this resolution will be introduced into the House and Senate in the March, '80 session.

Ms. Walters and the Disgusted Soldier mentions the fact that they feel that the Credit Union belongs to the president and his board. TIC Federal Credit Union does not belong to any one member, board member or committee number. The Credit Union belongs to the membership of over 26,000 members. The board of directors and the Credit Committee duly elected by the membership are only trying to carry out what the membership elected and vested them with power to do—make policies and procedures for the safe and effective operation of the Credit Union and to see that these procedures and policies are carried out to the best of our abilities. If these two disgruntled people feel differently, I am sorry, and strongly urge them to be present at the next annual meeting and make their complaints and desires for changes known to the membership.

Thanks again Ms. Walters and a Disgusted Soldier for your comments. I hope that my explanation has enlightened you on some of the actions recently taken by your Board.

BAYONET editorial

Life on Earth is short enough, why rush it!

By James E. Floyd
Fort Benning Fire Department

The material losses from fires are enormous and measurable to a considerable degree; the human losses are not so easily calculated.

The initial shock from burn is dreadful. The traumatic experience alone can be remembered for a lifetime; but add to this the long siege in the hospital, the separation from family and friends, repeated surgery, repeated anesthesia with the dread of dying each time the patient is forcibly reduced to unconsciousness, the painful treatment, the application of discoloring chemicals and the inevitable time of sadness, dejection and hopelessness that comes with major burns.

Families go through parallel reactions; going from shock to dread, to fear for the life of a seriously burned relative, and the chronic apprehension and burden of concern about how the patient will look and what the different medical procedures will entail. For all members of a family of which someone has been burned, there is a sense of guilt and culpability that can lead to chronic tainting of home life.

This is a loss that is not measurable in monetary terms; although, it is the most terrible kind of social price that can be paid.

A proper concern for humanity demands an end to conditions which present unnecessary and avoidable possibilities of destructive fires and an intensification of FIRE SAFETY EDUCATION employing the most effective methods of motivation. Such an approach to a solution to the fire problem must be supported by EVERYONE. Please don't take FIRE PREVENTION lightly....Who knows...The life you save...May be your own!

To the Editor:

During the 5 p.m. rush hour, Friday, Sept. 28, I ran out of gas on the Lindsey Creek By-pass. Having heard and read of other people in similar situations who were unable to attract attention from passing motorists, I resigned myself to a long wait until a policeman came by or until someone I knew would recognize my car and possibly stop.

However, less than five minutes later, Mr. Lee Wynn, a post commissary employee and a resident of Phenix City, stopped to offer help and, at my request, called my husband to tell him of my predicament. Through a misunderstanding, my husband did not immediately realize I needed help, but just as thought I was letting him know I would be late arriving home.

In the meantime, about 30 minutes later, another car pulled up behind me and the two men in it got out and flagged down another car. When they returned in about 20 minutes, carrying a gas can, I realized they had the same problem. Seeing me still waiting in my car, they approached me asked if I needed assistance. These two men are Doug Wright and Mike Thurston, both assigned to HHD, 34th Medical Battalion.

Upon learning of my problem, they immediately offered to go get gas for me. Since I had been waiting for my husband for more than an hour, I was happy to accept their assistance and offered to pay them for their trouble—an offer they courteously refused. Both these two men and my husband arrived a few minutes later and my story ended happily without too long a wait or stress on my part.

I wish to thank these three gentlemen, Lee Wynn, Doug Wright and Mike Thurston, not only for their help to me but for renewing my faith in the kindness and desire to help on the part of others. I hope I may have the opportunity to repay their good deed by proffering assistance to the next motorist I see stranded on the road.

Reader disagrees

To the Editor:

The article regarding "Suggestions earn $$ for Benning employees", referencing to Mrs. Molett.

I am a GS 5 employee and I currently occupy Molett's former position and have done so since October 1979 when she was moved to her present position.

To imply that Mrs. Molett was transferred because her position was downgraded is "hogwash". As a GS 5 I draw an annual salary of approximately $12,000. Where is the savings? My position was abolished in June 1978 (effective Oct. 1978). Mrs. Molett's was not. She simply moved to that position to prevent me from occupying it. Whoever provided you this information is asleep in left field.

DYA tries their best

To the Editor:

I am only 13-years-old, but I would like to say something about D.Y.A. Recently I read two articles about a parent who complained about the D.Y.A. and about another parent who defended the D.Y.A. Reading these two articles I would like to make a statement of my own. I play with the Lavoie Buccaneers. I have no complaints about the D.Y.A. because their job isn't easy. My dad will be here maybe two or three years. In these three years I am going to play baseball, basketball and maybe soccer. If I am going to play these sports, D.Y.A. will have to be involved. Please respect the D.Y.A., they try their best.

Make DYA readable

To the Editor:

Just a short comment on your sports page- TITLED DYA Football. Hopefully, next week you will supply a magnifying glass for us parents who were unable to read the article on the football standings.

Why did you put such unimportance on the activities of our children?

I for one would like to see in your wonderful paper more news, readable, on the many activities that the kids participate in.

Let's hear it for the kids who put everything they have into what they set out to do.

Chaplains salute Lt. Col. Crotty

To the Editor:

Recently, we were afforded the opportunity to spend our leave time at the USAIC Recreation Center at Destin, Fla. Besides being one of the best vacation values anywhere in Florida, our families were treated to a liesurely rest in the comfort of clean, well maintained, cabins, surrounded by the lovely beach and well kept grounds of the Recreation Center. We salute Lt. Col. Crotty for his outstanding efforts in making the Recreation Center at Destin a true

Sp4 Vincent Leftenant 586th Engineer Company

When at work we have designated areas where there is no smoking outside of the area. While operating equipment there are signs posted alerting everyone of fire hazards.

There is equipment available in case of fire with designated personnel to operate it.

Sgt. Maj. Floyd Clark Headquarters Company, Headquarters, Command USAIC

On the job site make sure people don't throw cigarette butts in trash cans. If the job site has either of these problems, then I tell people to clean it up before it becomes a fire hazard.

At the company we have fire drills and check to see if fire extinguishers are filled.

GS9 Alfrita Gibson Community Health Nursing

Periodically have fire checks of your home. Check electrical outlets that give off sparks, and appliances that need maintenance (ie. frayed cords).

Talk to children about fire hazards and have a fire plan on how to evacuate, depending on what portion of the house is on fire.

2nd Lt. Joe Olson 24th Company, The School Brigade

In the billets have reminder signs and make sure appliances and TVs are unplugged.

Tess Carter (Civilian) Barber Shop (PX)

Keep all flammable materials away from heat and make sure electrical systems are in good condition.

How have you emphasized fire prevention at home, or on the job?

Sp4 Nella Sue Waters 283rd Army Band

We have fire prevention programs in the unit. The safety NCO and officer in the company check to see if everything is unplugged and the trash cans are not full.

PFC Dennis Randall 598th Maintenance Company

On the job only smoke in designated smoking areas. Store flammable materials in the proper place. At home keep matches out of the reach of small children.

Irving Ortiz (Retired) AG-Distribution

At home check for worn wiring, don't leave matches around for children to play with and have a fire plan for your family to evacuate the house in case of fire.

2nd Lt. Stephen Fluegman 24th Company, The School Brigade

At home put all combustibles in the right place, and if you move into an older home have a qualified person from the Gas Company check gas fittings, stove pilot and heaters for leaks. Don't do it yourself.

SSgt. Ralph Groen 197th Support Battalion

On the job warn people about fire hazards with signs. Keep flammable materials in a proper place.

SFC Reuben Klimeck Headquarters Company, Headquarters Command-Range Division

At home don't have wall sockets overloaded and keep the house free of trash.

To the Editor:

This letter is in response to the letter from Sgt. Biondoletti. Sgt. Biondoletti couldn't have expressed any better dilemma facing the Army today. If you took everybody that I know in the military right now and lined them up on one side those who are getting out would far outnumber the ones staying in. The again the ones staying in want out but have only a few years to go.

It scares you to the point to where you are afraid to go to work. The Article 15 has become a bazooka in the arms of the company commander. The people that can really do something, apparently will not. This is not a dream world we live in. The problems are real and thriving well. We have too many highly paid officers and enlisted men and women who have the authority to make changes but will not.

In today's Army a sergeant (E-5) might as well be a private. He gets stepped on and singled out for the mistakes made. His boss gets any and all glory. There is a definite mumble among the lower enlisted who are tomorrow's leaders. Unfortunately we don't have control yet, due to time in service, rank, etc. Those who have the authority must take action or this will be an Army of clock watchers, check cashers, and those who know we have problems but can't see the forest for the trees.

Sgt. Jim Shelnett

Post prepared to meet possible pay problems

by Pat Brown

Because of last year's experience, Fort Benning is better prepared to deal with emergency situations caused by Congress' delay in releasing new fiscal year funds.

If Congress fails to approve the 1980 Defense Appropriations Act in time for the President to sign it by Monday or if they do not pass a Continuing Resolution Authority (CRA) to permit new fiscal year disbursements, mid-month military payday cannot be met.

However, soldiers whose paycheck goes directly to one of the five local banks will not be adversely affected. The National Bank of Fort Benning, the Columbus Bank and Trust Co., the 1st National Bank of Columbus, the National Bank and Trust Co. and the Trust Company of Columbus have agreed to credit the accounts of soldiers whose paychecks are normally deposited directly with them.

For other soldiers, the post has alerted local Army relief agencies, credit unions and other financial institutions that post personnel may be calling on them for temporary financial relief.

Continued inaction will also affect civilian personnel whose payday falls on Thursday, Oct. 18. Those whose checks go directly to one of the five banks listed earlier will not be affected; however, others will receive checks for approximately half their normal pay, for the period worked during the last week in September.

"In effect," said George Heberling, director of Resources Management here, "we are presently operating on credit. We cannot pay our FY 1980 money is available and will be released as soon as the Appropriations Act is signed or the CRA is passed. However, personnel going on temporary duty will be provided transportation only. They cannot draw travel pay or be reimbursed for food or lodging expenses until the pay bill is passed.

Exceptions to this include expense involving deaths and related personal hardships, death gratuities, travel of honor guards to funerals, and travel advances or allowances to escorts of deceased military personnel; partial payments to recruits entering active duty to cover initial health and comfort needs; pay and allowances directly related to movement orders and personnel actions pertaining to recruitment, rotations, retention and separation of military and civilian personnel.

Post CFC update

As of last Tuesday, three weeks after the kick-off of this year's Combined Federal Campaign (CFC), $17,773 has been pledged or received, according to James Schoonover, Benning's CFC project officer.

"Most of that amount represents pledges to the payroll deduction plan," explained Schoonover. "It looks like a slow start, but we expect it to build up quickly as soon as reports from larger units start coming in."

This year's goal is $325,000. Last year, the post raised $432,000 against the goal of $300,000. Monies raised during the annual CFC benefits agencies supported by International Services, United Way and National Health.

Camellia is an apartment motel. We don't rent rooms, we rent furnished apartments with all the features of a regular motel plus added conveniences that cannot be provided with just a single room - and all at the same, or most times lower rates than the single-room motel. For example, our "standard" unit is comprised of two bedrooms, combination living room-dining room, bathroom and fully furnished kitchen including refrigerator, stove, cooking utensils, and table service for six people. These are some of the "extras" but at no extra cost. Our 100 units are in separate buildings with usually four apartments in each building, which adds to a person's or family's privacy.

GETTING AHEAD DOESN'T HAVE TO MEAN GETTING OUT.

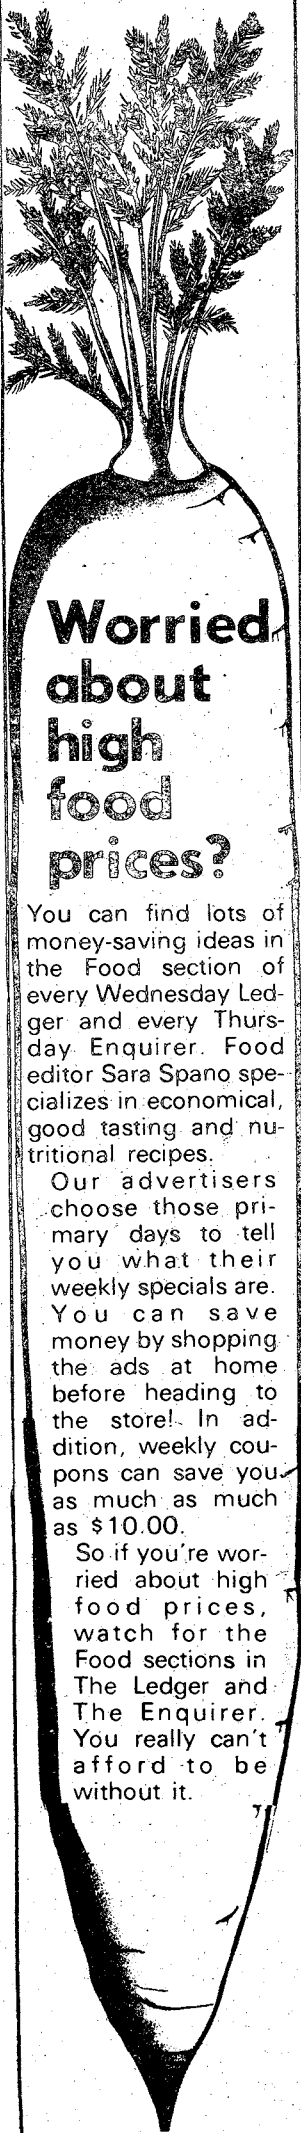

You've been in the Army long enough to know exactly what you'd like to do. If another job has a greater appeal, you don't have to leave the Army to get it. You can take advantage of the time you've still got left to see if you can change your MOS. SP4 Olivia Cunningham did just that.

"After your first enlistment, the Army gives you the chance to change your MOS. I'm going to become an Equal Opportunity NCO. That's something I always wanted to do. I think the opportunities in the Army are fantastic."

The Army has a lot of ways for you to get ahead. You can change MOS, duty stations, even get an assignment overseas. But you've got to take the next step. And that means talking with your Reenlistment NCO. You'll get all the facts on how you can get ahead by staying in.

KEEP A GOOD SOLDIER IN THE ARMY. REENLIST.

Accident readiness to be tested here

Fort Benning and Martin Army Hospital will conduct a Mass Casualty Exercise next Friday.

The purpose of the simulated large scale accident is to test the U.S. Army Infantry Center's Mass Casualty Augmentation Plan and the Medical Department Activity's Emergency Preparedness Plan.

Forty "patients", soldiers from the 36th Engineer Group, will be involved in a disaster. They will be assigned various fake injuries and moulaged for realism.

The exercise will begin at approximately 1:45 p.m. and end when all patients have been processed at Martin Army Hospital or when all objectives of the exercise have been met.

Corning percolators may be hazard

DALLAS--Army and Air Force Exchange Service (AAFES) has been informed by Corning Glass Works and the Consumer Product Safety Commission that some of the 18.5 million percolators produced by the company between 1960 and last year may be unsafe to use.

Corning says that the metal band holding the handle onto the white glass-ceramic pots may come loose without warning, posing the danger of scalding.

All Corning Ware percolators, both electric and non-electric, can be dangerous, according to the announcement. Corning's tea pots or Pyrex coffee pots are not affected because the handles are attached differently.

Corning is releasing information to consumers describing the problems and its own incentives to those who agree to discontinue use of the percolators.

The manufacturer stresses that owners of the percolators should not return them to retailers, like AAFES. The Exchange Service has sold Corning Ware percolators worldwide and encourages its customers to take advantage of the company's offer.

For more information on this voluntary plan by Corning, AAFES customers should fill out the coupon below and mail to the Corning Glass Works.

ITB women have important mission the male persuasion. A vast majority of the Brigade is male, and will be as long as women are barred from combat.

But a lot of the Brigade's work is done by women, both military and civilian.

Look, for example, at three women who work at Brigade Headquarters:

(1) Shirley Phelps provides typing and stenographic support for the S-3 section and staff. (2) Mrs. Nan York provides typing support for the S-1 section, staff and the brigade commander. (3) SFC Rejeanne T. Rideway serves as the commander's staff advisor on legal administrative matters.

Rideway states, "Whether it be a requirement for a notary public, power of attorney, or legal advice, I either complete the task or direct the service member to the right agency."

"Whenever making suspense OER's, it can be a hassle. However, working with cooperative officers within the Brigade can make it a breeze," Nan explained. She also types and posts circulars, policy letters and weekly bulletins.

Shirley prepares endorsements and action responses to lower and higher headquarters. Shirley notes that there is also dictation for memorandums, letters, responses, telephone calls and transcripts of meetings to be taken care of by her.

These three women are typical of all the women working at the 1st Infantry Training Brigade. Their work may not be as visible as some, but it is as important as any.

Retired senior volunteers help the needed

The wisest and holiest of men one time said, "... if, as My representatives, you give even a cup of cold water to a little child, you will surely be rewarded.

Many feel that this attitude is trite and old-fashioned, but there are many more who are actively putting his thought into action. These are the people who make up the personnel of Retired Senior Volunteer Program (RSVP).

Today, in Columbus alone, we have many senior citizens and "handicapped" people who are just sitting around waiting to die and their comments can usually be put down in one sentence, "Now that I'm old, or handicapped, nobody has need of me ... I'm useless!"

This attitude has not been accepted by members of the RSVP! Mrs. Ardalia Mack is a case in point. According to many people she has "two strikes against her" as she is both a senior citizen and has been in a wheel chair for the past nine years. But taking a look at her beaming face and listening to her schedule of work one would expect to open their eyes and see a young person able to use all their faculties.

As I sat and talked to Mrs. Mack I could not help but thank God for her, and for the multitudes like her, all over America, who have put their age and infirmities behind them and who have reached out their hands to help those "who are not as fortunate as we are."

Volunteers often hear, "You mean that you folks do all this without receiving pay?" Their answer is "Oh, we don't get money, if that's what you mean, but we sure do get paid just by seeing the smile on the faces of those who have been helped by RSVP!"

Anyone over 60 is invited to come to the RSVP office at 1212 - 15 Street or call Marianna

Harrison at 324-4347. The community needs your talents.

Many who are retired or who are coming close to retirement wonder what they will do with their "free" time. Retired Senior Volunteer Program awaits both you and your talents and will give the choice of several places where you and your talents will be put to good use.

Freddie is involved in every aspect of the golf course from trash pickup to golf tips.

Rita Burford gives Freddie a hug following her 2nd place finish in a recent golf tournament.

Inspection of clubs is one of the never ending tasks Freddie performs for 'Follow Me' golfers.

Freddie, Benning golfers friend for 34-years

Story and photos by Cliff Purcell

When it comes to knowing your job and sticking to it over the years Freddie L. McKnight has to be a front runner. "Freddie" as he is affectionately known, celebrates his 34th year at the post golf course Oct. 15. He was born in Richmond, Va. in 1919.

In 1943 he was just another GI returning from a tour in Trinidad; assigned to Fort Benning, a place he would learn to love and the place he would remain to make his mark on military golfers over the next years. Following two years at Sand Hill as a Supply Sergeant, he ended his Army career and soon began one that continues to this day.

Freddie first started as a bartender, a caddie, then the caddie master. Later he learned the game of golf and its language and ultimately how to repair and maintain golf accessories. He has seen the course evolve from a nine hole course into the present 36 holes. He can remember when the club house was nothing more than a little wooden shack and has seen it grow into the quality facility the Follow Me Club enjoys today.

He does it all

His job includes cleaning and storing clubs and shoes, picking up range balls, repairing and maintaining the golf carts, repairing broken, bent and other damaged clubs. According to Freddie, occasionally an upset golfer will damage a club and his job is to fix it for the player.

Freddie's first golf pro was Frank Goss. He taught Freddie about the game of golf and the clubs. Back then he caddied during the mornings and worked in the shop in the afternoons. They had a saying in the Forties, and even today whenever an oldtime comes through the club house, someone will shout "Airborne" and Freddie will sound off with "Backbone." Then both will chant "Airborne is my backbone it will never let me down." That's exactly what Freddie has never done — let anyone down. He works hard at starting players off with a smile, a good morning and urges them to have a good game. Of course, some golfers return to the club house that did not shoot nearly as well as they had hoped to, so Freddie tells them that better games are ahead and tries to cheer them up.

Loves his job

Freddie loves his job, having retired once from Recreation Services he now works for golf pro George Cliff and looks forward to retiring in the next two or three years and reducing his work schedule. He is the father of 11 children and in his next retirement would like to do some traveling and visit his grandchildren.

The next time you're TDY and talking to a golfer who has been stationed at Benning the chances are that they'll ask an almost universal question — "Is Freddie still at the golf course and how is he doing? Please, tell him I said hello." Freddie has a popularity that covers all ranks in the Army. From the Chief of Staff of the Army to other Four Star Generals and to 2Lt's. From Sergeants Major to PFCs; Freddie affects all who know him.

Cares about people

"He cares about people and they care about him," stated an Army Major. "I've known Freddie since I was an 2nd Lt., he's just a great person." When asked about his job and the people he's known Freddie said, "I love my job and I never forget the golfers and they don't forget me either. I knew many of them as 2nd Lt.'s and now they're Four Star Generals. But my favorite golf friend is Maj. Gen. William (Bill) Livsey, the CG 8th Infantry Division (Mechanized). When he was leaving the post to go to Germany they had a farewell parade for him and the General invited me. I sat right up front with the VIP's — that's a day I'll never forget," he concluded.

As a golfer, Freddie hasn't played a full round of golf since the late 1940's but through study he stays up-to-date with the new golf equipment and strategy of play. He is sought out for his advice and counsel by beginners and experienced players alike. He said, "its because they have confidence in me. When a fellow loves what he does and learns something new everyday when he's happy and I'm a happy person" he said, giving credence to his words with a big smile.

Editors note: For the golfnuts on post, a reminder that the 10th Southern Open Golf tournament is in progress at the Green Island Country Club course through Sunday.

U.S. Army Chief of Staff Gen. Edward C. Meyer held a news conference upon his arrival at Ft. Carson to see the IFV under testing.

Prototype IFV improves in testing at Fort

Story and Photos by Cliff Purcell

U.S. Army Chief of Staff Gen. Edward C. Meyer recently visited the Infantry Fighting Vehicle (IFV) test site at Fort Carson, Col. Following a vehicle orientation Gen. Meyer fired the weapons system and took a trip down range to see the vehicle operate first hand. Later he commented on the vast improvements in the system over the earlier Mechanized Infantry Combat Vehicle (MICV) model.

Meyer spoke to an assembled cadre and test platoon about the "need for a vehicle that'll beat the enemy". He challenged the soldiers to conduct the best system test possible because their efforts would affect infantry soldiers throughout the Army.

The four XM 2 IFV's are currently at Carson being used for squad training and in preparation for the operational test which is scheduled from Oct. 15 to Nov. 27, 1979. Lt. Col. George E. Batcheler, deputy test director for training and doctrine said approximately 50 troops from the 4th Infantry Division (Mechanized) are just completing 11 weeks of training with the system. The operational tests will match the soldier with the IFV system in a demanding simulated combat environment.

According to one IFV driver, "It'll be us against the clock; because the data collectors will record it all from start to finish."

Cadre trainers from Forts Benning, Knox, and Aberdeen Proving Grounds trained the track comers, drivers, gunners, organizational maintenance and direct support maintenance personnel. "We are now on their own," according to SFC George S. Byrd, a cadre gunner trainer from the Infantry School's Weapons Gunnery Maintenance department of the Infantry School. "What we can do now is watch and advise."

James M. Shadowens, gunner of one squad of the 22nd Infantry (Mechanized) commented "the IFV is a great vehicle with a weapons system that is twice as accurate as any I have fired before."

The XM 2 IFV carries a driver, commander, gunner and six other squad members. The two-man turret accommodates the gunner and a commander who has a 360 degree view of the battlefield. It carries seven TOW or Dragon anti-tank missiles, plus 900 rounds of 25mm, 4400 rounds of 7.62mm and 6,160 rounds of 5.56mm ammunition.

The vehicle also features a two man turret with a stabilized 25mm cannon that fires both armor-piercing and high-explosive shells and a two-man TOW launcher designed to knock out enemy tanks at ranges more than 3000 meters.

In addition, each vehicle features a 7.62mm coaxially-mounted machine gun that can be fired accurately on the move, as can its 25mm cannon. The XM 2 has an additional feature of six ballistic-protected firing ports that enable crew members to fire 5.56mm automatic weapons at targets to the sides and rear.

The vehicle has a 500 horsepower turbo-charged diesel engine and improved transmission and suspension system, providing high mobility and a top speed of over 40 miles-per-hour. With a cruising range of 300 miles on its 175 gallon fuel capacity, the vehicle can climb a three foot vertical wall, negotiate a 60 percent grade, move along a 40 percent side slope and cross an 8.3 foot ditch.

"I think the IFV is fantastic", commented SSgt James Craig, a track commander of one squad of the 22nd Infantry. "There's no comparison between the APC. The IFV has everything."

Fort Detrick Proving Ground, Md. has also received two XM 2's for 10 months of comprehensive testing and maintenance scrutiny. A production decision by the Army and DOD is scheduled for January, pointing towards delivery of the first production vehicle in 1981.

The IFV is presently planned to replace the M113 Armored Personnel Carrier in Mechanized Infantry Rifle Platoons sometime in the 1980's. In the absence of the soldiers training with the vehicle, the IFV could become the infantry vehicle of the future.

Editors note: With this issue the Bayonet begins a series of articles about the IFV/CFV test at Fort Carson. The articles will deal with the vehicle, the system, cadre trainers, test soldiers, the operational tests and key personnel involved in the IFV/CFV system program.

The above ammunitions are used by the IFV weapons system. Examples shown are the 25mm Training Practice Target (TPT), smoke grenades, 7.62 mm for the XM240 machine gun, 5.56 mm for the XM231 sub-machine gun (firing port weapon), not shown are the 25mm High Explosive (HE) and Armor Piercing Discarding Sabot (APDS).

One of the four test IFV's is shown during a grueling 150 mile road march in 2 1/2 hours at speeds in excess of 40 mph. "The vehicles performed superbly and without a single hitch," stated Sp4 Rosendo Torres IFV driver from Co C, 22nd Infantry, 4th Infantry Division (Mech.).

About the cover

Sgt. Michael R. Cooley from Company C, 1st Battalion, 22 Infantry (Mech), 4th Infantry Division, Fort Carson, examines the TOW missile launcher on the XM 2 Infantry Fighting Vehicle (IFV). The IFV/CFV prototypes arrived at Fort Carson in June for months of training and operational tests.

A recent study concludes that the most dangerous occurrence in passenger car crashes is the ejection of the vehicles' occupants. Occupant ejections occurred most often in rollover crashes, which were responsible for a large number of deaths and injuries. After rollover crashes, ejections occurred most frequently during side impacts. (Driver Magazine - Aug. 79)

President sets future solar goals to meet energy needs

By Robert J. Griffin

The sun is an exciting alternate energy source, and an increasingly practical replacement for petroleum. On Sunday, May 3, 1978, President Carter committed the nation to developing a policy for harnessing the sun's energy, and for developing other renewable energy sources. He ordered a government-wide Domestic Policy Review (DPR) to outline current federal solar programs, and to make recommendations for accelerating the use of solar energy.

The DPR study revealed that while a major effort is still needed to bring solar technology to its full potential, a good beginning has been made.

Steps have been taken to remove the special price advantage of natural gas and oil, thus improving the competitive position of solar energy. These steps include: decontrol of natural gas, accomplished by the National Energy Act (NEA); and decontrol of domestic crude oil, to be completed by October 1, 1981.

The President has set a goal for solar energy: The challenge is to derive fully 20 percent of our energy needs from the sun by the year 2000.

Based upon the DPR study, the President has proposed a program designed to carry the nation toward its solar future, and specifically toward meeting the 20 percent goal by the end of this century.

Area coordinator objectives outlined

By Cliff Purcell

Editors Note: The importance of Fort Benning's Area Coordinators was stressed in a two page article in the Sept. 14 issue of the BAYONET. This is the second article on this timely topic.

According to Col. Richard W. McKee, assistant commander USAIC and Coordinator of the post Community Life program, the objectives of the area coordinator program are to:

- Preserve, enhance and beautify the appearance of the installation.
- Assist in reducing pollution of natural resources.
- "To make Fort Benning the best place within the Army to live and raise a family" as Maj. Gen. David E. Grange Jr. post commander has previously stated.

The Area Coordinator program spells out the responsibilities of the Commanders assigned a major housing area as three fold. First, involve the major commanders in the process of preserving and enhancing the beauty of assigned areas of responsibility, second, through family housing area coordinators (AC's) enforce family housing occupant compliance with the provisions of the installation Police Program contained in USAIC Regulation No. 210-28 dated 6 April 1979, and thirdly, assist family housing area coordinators in obtaining compliance from occupants of family quarters to correct deficiencies after noted by the AC's.

The family housing area coordinators will be responsible for supervising the building coordinators (who are currently being assigned) and will be responsible for conducting daily inspections of assigned family housing areas and report deviations from acceptable standards to occupants (either verbally or in writing).

The AC must delegate duties to the next senior occupant during absences exceeding seven calendar days ie: leave, TDY. The AC forwards deficiency reports to applicable area commanders for occupants who have not corrected a deficiency within the time frame allowed. All reports will be prepared in triplicate (1 to occupant; 1 to area coordinator; 1 to area commander).

The Family Housing Inspection Form is included on this page in the hope that it will be the only time you will see the form. However, unless post occupants "care" about their quarters and maintain them within the guidelines of the Area Coordinator Program the AC's can and will issue these reminders if the standards established by the Commanding General are not met.

For more information concerning the area coordinator program call the Housing Division at 545-4814 or contact your area coordinator.

Bold Eagle convoys to stop at Benning

More than 1,190 soldiers have or will pass through Fort Benning on their way to Readiness Command's "Bold Eagle" exercise in Florida.

From Sept. 13 through Oct. 18 approximately 25 units from Forts Bragg, Eustis, Lee, Jackson and Gordon stop their convoys here. They are furnished overnight billeting, meals, maintenance support and gasoline.

A seven member team from Fort Bragg is

How about that?

Strive for life's goals

By William W. Erbach Sr.
TIC Chaplain

For those of us who lived through the era of the radio — that was the little box which made sound but had no picture in it — I can remember all too well the phrase, "Due to circumstances beyond our control we are unable to continue the program originally scheduled for this time."

The station usually marked time till the problem was corrected, and this marking time was usually music — organ music at that — and it was awful. A newer, but quite similar phrase is being used when something goes wrong on the TV. They blame the source or the machinery, and while minutes or hours of organ music are not inflicted upon you, the marking time is. Now a blank screen, some neat scene or the TV station symbol is presented.

Life is full of circumstances which are seemingly beyond our control but the difference is that we are not required to mark time because of them; quite the contrary, whether we want to blame the Gods, the fates or our wives and husbands for some stroke of difficulty it really doesn't matter or change the fact any. We can't change the circumstances, and for the man or woman who has programmed his life on one track, derailment from the proposed plan means total disruption of the service. The only thing they can do with the train of their lives is to be sidetracked and use of all that energy berating others for the problems they have. How about that?

Life is so full of opportunities for us to serve, enjoy and participate that no set of circumstances should ever control or totally stop us. God has placed at our disposal a mind and unlimited resources to accomplish anything worthwhile that needs to be done.

We are not a product of these circumstances. We are effected by them, no doubt, but unless we keep our sights on the higher goals of life, unless there is a commitment to arrive at the next station in our lives we will become sidetracked, bogged down in our own self pity. Make use of the talents you have, don't bury them marking time while you wait for the Master to come and make you account for what you have done with them. Live life, and make it worthy of your effort.

Q--Is there a nationwide toll-free telephone number veterans can call to get information from the Veterans Administration?

A--VA has no nationwide number but there are VA regional offices in each state and all have toll-free numbers. Look in the telephone book white pages under United States Government, Veterans Administration.

Q--I am in college as a GI Bill student. If I receive a failing grade in a course, can I repeat it and still receive educational benefits?

A-- Any course in which a veteran receives a failing grade is not considered successfully completed. Therefore, the course may be repeated and benefits will be paid.

Doughboys outlast Baby Tigers

By Gary Jones

It is often said in football circles that good teams make their own breaks to win the close ones. Well, last Sunday, the Doughboys proved they are a good team by hanging on to win 20 to 19 over a tough Auburn JV team.

All season long the Doughboys have played tough but, with the exception of the Bragg game, never seemed to have that little extra push to win.

However, in Sunday's game, the 'Follow Me' football team put it all together to get back on the winning track before hitting the road for the season's second away game. "It's about time we won a close one," said Ralph Santaliz, Doughboy coach. "Those decisions have really gone against us this year."

Thomas Coffey and Art Turner, who rushed for 64 and 50 yards respectively, supplied most of the Auburn offense. Quarterback Joe Sullivan completed 7 of 13 passes for 89 yards.

The Baby Tigers were the first to get the ball into scoring position when Bob Madison and Mike Reeves sacked Doughboy punter Stuart White on his own 15-yard line to set up the Auburn score. However, the Doughboy defense dug in to force the Baby Tigers to settle for a field goal which gave them an early 3-0 lead.

On the next series the Doughboys again couldn't get untraced and were forced to punt from their own end zone where the Baby Tigers crashed the line to block the punt. The safety gave the confident Auburn team an early 5-0 lead amid whispers of "it's going to be a long game" from some Doughboy fans.

The ensuing kickoff sailed all the way to the Doughboy 3-yard line where the Doughboys took possession. With the Doughboys deep in their own territory it appeared as if once again 'Lady Luck' had frowned on them but this time the Doughboys were to make their own 'luck.'

The Doughboys tried to run up the middle twice but were stopped cold at the line of scrimmage. Then Leamon Hall completed a 19-yard strike to Kenneth Quinlan to give them some breathing room. Then on an option right Hall pitched to Leroy Benson (who just recently moved into the starting lineup due to injuries to King and Jones) who raced past a startled Auburn bench, 76-yards for the score. Wayne Jackson kicked the extra point to give the Doughboys the lead 7 to 5.

The Baby Tigers stormed right back, moving 50-yards to recapture the lead 12 to 7. Actually, they scored twice. Sullivan, after a great fake into the line, turned it right, around the end for 11 yards into the end zone but the officials had already blown the play dead. Three plays later, he sneaked one yard for the score. Blanks added the extra point.

The Doughboys came right back, driving 87 yards on strong passing by Hall to both Quinlan and Frederick Suggs, to score on a 5-yard Benson run. After a penalty and a missed extra point the Doughboys lead at 13 to 12.

On their next possession, Hall completed three passes and had a pass interference call in the end zone to move the Doughboys to a first and goal at the one yard line. They were unable to move the ball across for the score due to penaltys and mistakes so elected to try a 22-yard field goal that was wide right.

The next time the Baby Tigers had the ball they scored in six plays to take the lead 19 to 13 with 6:04 left on the clock.

The Doughboys proved they had what it takes by marching 82 yards for the winning score. Benson was the big gun with two catches for 22 yards and a 12-yard run. Hall and Quinlan combined for a 26-yard scoring strike. David Wynn, kicking for the injured Jackson, added the extra point to give the Benning gridiron team the lead by the final margin of 20 to 19.

Auburn had two more shots at the win, one reaching the Doughboy 8-yard line. From the eight the Baby Tigers attempted the winning field goal but this time fate smiled on the Doughboys and it was wide left.

Tomorrow the Doughboys will try to make it two in a row when they travel to Livingston University, game time 7:30 p.m. "Livingston is tough. They're coming off a big win and this will be their homecoming," explained Santaliz. "Whichever team makes the fewest mistakes should win."

Second looks

Despite a small turnout, the Southern Open 10,000 meter road race was a success, at least enjoyable for the 72 participants. The temperature was in the high 60's at race time, so even the hills were not too hard to bear. An out-of-towner, Bill Royston, won with a 35:05.

Don't forget the Chattahoochee Chasers' 10K at West Point this weekend. The area is beautiful, and with a little bit of luck, the weather will be too.

Run for the retarded

The Road Runners of Toccoa will direct these races for the benefit of the Stephens County Center for the Retarded. There will be a one mile fun run at 8:45 a.m., and the 5K and 10K races following at 9 a.m.

T-shirts will be awarded to each finisher--in all three races-- and trophies will be presented to the 11 age group winners, 7 for men, 4 for women. That makes the $4 pre-registration fee reasonable. Registration after Oct. 17 is $5.

Split times will be given at each mile mark, and an aid station will be located at the three mile mark in the 10K. For further information call Tom Breeding at 544-4177.

As I mentioned earlier, the racing season is upon us. For the rest of the year there are several races available each weekend, many of them quite convenient for the Fort Benning area runners. Time and space do not permit me to list them all, so if you have questions concerning upcoming events, call. Some of the events are far in advance. The Columbus Marathon and Mini-marathon, for example, have already been slated for March 15.

Also, if anyone has any information concerning upcoming runs, or wishes to submit race results, the lines are open. The only idea behind and justification for this column is to keep the readers informed.

Ruggers destroy Emory University

The Flyers Rugby Football Club let their powerful offense loose last Saturday and came away with a 52-0 victory over Emory University, RFC of Atlanta.

The Flyers' backs scored seven "TRIES" and the scrum added five more. As the game turned into a rout, the entire Flyer team took turns at kicking the conversion, but only made two.

Although matched in power and size by the Emory scrum, the Flyer scrum was successful all afternoon in feeding scrum half John Sladky the ball.

Leading scorers for the afternoon were Ed Filiberti and Leo Brooks, both with three "TRIES" apiece. Other scores were made by Kurt Webber, Andy Belafas, Jim Molnar, Mike Zonfrelli, Ben Freakley, and Bob Koster. The Flyers, now 3-1, have outscored their opponents 143-25 since the beginning of the season.

The Emory "B" XV gained a little revenge with a 18-6 victory over the Flyers "B" side. It was a hard fought game with the Flyers only score coming from Outside Center, Matt Lindley. The Flyers then capped the day by winning the party, attended by both sides.

Sunday, the Flyers take on the Auburn University Rugby Football Club in a benefit game for the Special Olympics for Handicapped Children. Playing along side the ruggers will be the Fort Benning Soccer Club in a 1 p.m. double header at Gordon Field, corner of Ingersoll and Burr Streets. All proceeds will go to the Special Olympics. The public is encouraged to attend.

Rockfish plentiful at Lake Seminole

By Pat Barham

In 1977 Jerry Sims, guide for Lunker Lodge, Bainbridge, Ga., discovered stripers (rockfish) in abundance as he landed eight rocks weighing 130 pounds at Lake Seminole. The biggest fish weighed in at 25½ pounds.

Last November, Justin McAlpin of Sneeds, Fla. set the lake record by landing four stripers, which weighed a total of 105 pounds. The rocks weighed 33, 24, 25 and 23 pounds. All were caught within a mile of the dam that forms the lake.

Again this year Stu Tinney will direct the tourney on Big Sem. This year's tourney will be held the third and fourth of November with a fishing seminar on the stripers November 2.

Anglers planning to fish on Lake Seminole for the rock should contact: Jack Wingate's Lunker Lodge, Hutchinson Ferry Landing on Lake Seminole, Route 1, Box 815, Highway 97 South, Bainbridge, Ga. 31717 for more information.

The BAYONET would like to feature one battalion-level flag football game in the sports section each week. If you think your team played a good game and would like to see the results published, contact the BAYONET at 545-4622/7841 the next work day after the game is played. A reporter will take the necessary information and a decision will be made as to which game will be featured.

Termite League

In Termite League action at Blue Field last Saturday, the Falcons held on to their first place berth by defeating the Steelers 8-0. The victory puts the Falcons at 4 and 0 for the season, scoring a total of 38 points while having only 6 points scored against them.

The first quarter found the teams feeling each out in this contest for league first place. Neither team seemed out matched in any category, but the Falcons did benefit from several Steeler penalties. The second quarter was a different story. Hard-hitter Ron MacIver recovered a Steeler fumble just a few minutes into the period to set up the Falcon TD, a few plays later when Antoine Owens ran the ball to pay dirt. MacIver moved the ball for the extra two points on the conversion. The period was not one-sided, though. The Steelers mounted an offensive toward the end of the period. A 40 yard Steeler run was stopped on the one yard line by Owens and MacIver, just as the half time gun sounded. The Falcons had been saved by the bell!

The second half was a see-saw battle, seeing more Steelers penalties, but the Falcons failed to capitalize on them. Toward the end of the period, the Steelers again mounted an offensive, after stopping a Falcon march covering 80 yards and several minutes, but again failed to score.

In addition to Owens and MacIver, Mike Fagarason, Ramon Cotto, Albert Atzbach, and Curt Sawyer were Falcon standouts.

Petey Marshall of the Panthers carries the ball for a gain on the play, during a recent game between the Eagles and the Panthers in the Pee Wee Division.

Early leader wins Post Ladies Golf Championship

Story and photos by Pat Barham

The Fort Benning Ladies Club Golf Championship was played last Thursday at the Follow Me Golf Course.

Mickey Harris, winner of the Ladies Club Golf Tournament, drives down the fairway on the first hole towards the flag. Harris, one of the early leaders in the tourney, attributed the win to good conditions on the green and a little bit of luck during the final day of play.

Mickey Harris, one of the leaders during the first two days of competition, won the championship Flight Division with a 277 overall score for the three-day tournament.

Although there was tension early in the day as the third round opened, Harris stated that the course was in excellent condition for the tournament. Harris added, "This, along with a little wind, helped me win the championship."

Rita Burford placed second with a 280 after leading the pack for two days. When asked about the loss, Burford said, "The course was good but things just didn't go my way."

There were four divisions of play during the tournament: Championship Flight, First Flight, Second Flight, and Third Flight.

Winners of the four divisions were:

Championship Flight

- Champion- Mickey Harris
- 1st- Sequel Wood
- 2nd- Rita Burford
- 3rd- Mia Harris

First Flight

- 1st- Mollie Ross
- 2nd- Beth Tucker
- 3rd- Betty Prichard

Second Flight

- 1st- Mrytle Hargrove
- 2nd- Louis Walsh
- 3rd- Sandy Cassey

Third Flight

- 1st- Maggie Daems
- 2nd- Joan Leighton
- 3rd- Erin Garland

Leading the group going into the third round of play, Rita Burford, second place finisher, putts for a par at the first hole.

CRA passed

WASHINGTON (ARNEWS)—Most soldiers who received mid-month pay will be paid on time as congress passed a continuing resolution authority (CRA) for DOD on Friday.

The CRA for EY80 allows DOD to pay its bills and personnel for a period of time.

The U.S. Army Finance and Accounting Center (USAFAC), Fort Benjamin Harrison, Ind., had taken steps to control the distribution of mid-month checks to field finance and accounting offices (FAO'S), according to a USAFAC official. This was done to insure mid-month payments would be made on time.

In addition, USAFAC provided those financial institutions involved in the military check-to-bank program a readout sheet to use in crediting savings/checking accounts, complete with individual names and the amounts to be credited to each account.

The financial institution could not credit accounts until the okay was received from USAFAC on Friday. Thus, individuals who participate in the check-to-bank program should not have experienced any delay in crediting their accounts.

Those DA civilians who received a paycheck covering only the last week in FY79 can expect to receive the remainder of their pay (covering the first week in FY80) this week, USAFAC officials stated.

DA personnel can expect their end-of-month paycheck for October to reflect the 7 percent pay raise announced in September, USAFAC officials say.

Officials stress the CRA will be in effect through Nov. 20, 1979. Congress must have passed either the DOD appropriations act of FY 80 or extended the CRA by that date. Failure to have either authority could impact on DOD'S ability to pay its bills and personnel after Nov. 20.

CFC update

At the beginning of the fifth week of the Combined Federal Campaign, more than one-third of the post's goal of $325,000 has been met.

James Schoonover, post project officer, announced that at the close of business, Tuesday, $117,793.52 has been received in contributions from military and civilian personnel here.

AUSA personnel attend meeting

By Cliff Purcell

WASHINGTON — Forty-eight local members of the Columbus-Phenix City-Fort Benning chapter of the Association of the U.S. Army (AUSA) have been in Washington D.C. since Sunday attending the 25th annual AUSA meeting.

Local chapter president Bethell Edrington, along with post commander Maj. Gen. David E. Grange Jr. accompanied the member delegates to the meeting.

The chapter sponsored soldiers and corporate members attended seminars and meetings throughout the three days.

Chapter first vice president, Jim Blanchard commented on the exciting time for the chapter and what an educational experience it has been for him and the other delegates at the meeting. Blanchard and Grange paid an office visit to Senator Sam Nunn and later announced that the senator will be the keynote speaker at the chapter's general membership meeting to be held in early December.

AUSA President George Houston told the association delegates in his annual report that AUSA aims are, "To educate". Houston emphasized the role of communication and education in advancing AUSA service to the Army. He said he sees AUSA goals as the education of Congress, the Administration, the Press, and general public industries on the Army needs and its role in the nation.

According to Houston, other challenges

AUSA will be facing in the coming year are to improve medical care, increasing the number of military doctors, means to strengthen the CHAMPUS Medical plan and how to overcome the problem of short falls in manpower, both active duty and in the reserve components. On the problem of short falls he says, "when you visit units in the field you will find infantry companies operating without their full number of platoons, platoons without all their squads, and armor battalions filling just half their tanks, because they do not have sufficient crews."

Houston concluded his remarks by saying, "The Army has further reduced readiness and capabilities by severe cuts in civilian employment. We are not kidding the Soviets so why kid ourselves."

Chapter members also attended a membership luncheon where the Chief of Staff of the Army, General Edward C. Meyer spoke. According to the Chief of Staff, manpower and a clear vision of the Army in the 1980's are the two most pressing issues seen by the Army today. Meyer went on to say, "Today's Army has a solid core, a solid foundation for today and tomorrow. Strengths lie in the quality of the officer and non-commissioned officer corps and the attitude of the soldiers who want to be soldiers." Often he said criticism aimed at the army as unimformed. His unannounced visits to People should be judged individually, not by rank

To the Editor:

I am leaving the Army soon, therefore this will no longer apply to me personally, but as I leave I want to let the following thoughts linger in the minds of the people who I leave behind.

In a publically vocalized Equal Opportunity organization there remains a strong undertow of discrimination. I'm not speaking of racial discrimination. God forbid such a topic should be discussed anymore. Rather I'm discussing the inbred, organized discrimination against the junior enlisted, E-4s and below. Admittedly, in the work sector and on the battlefield, an organized hierarchy is mandated. However, when in the private sector this non-organic system restrains the individuals in certain actions, social, legal and financial.

For example, in just about every issue of the BAYONET, there are advertisements giving special deals for officers, officer candidates and top ranking NCOs. Apparently the junior enlisted are not worthy of special deals and whose existence for some entrepreneurs is only to bilk the private and line his own silk-lined wallets with the few copper pennies the private owns.

For loans, the situation is equally appalling. Despite what previous credit references the individual had before volunteering to serve our country, loans to the lower enlisted are difficult, at best, to obtain.

Are the lower enlisted to be considered as chattel, cannon fodder, and disreputable bums unable to make sound, adult decisions concerning their own finances? In dealings beyond the military environment shouldn't the individual be considered as such, an individual? When joining the military does the individual automatically give up equal citizenship in the business world?

Rather than looking, with blinders, at the rank, I think the individual and background should be looked at before prejudiced decisions are made concerning loans and other involved arrangements are made.

Neighbors need to take care of pets

To The Editor,

My family and I came to Fort

Benning about 17 months ago and were assigned quarters at McGraw Manor. It really looked like a nice quiet place to live. After a few weeks, we would be awakened at three in the morning by dogs baying at the moon, even though the moon wasn't out. This isn't the greatest wake up call when you need your sleep. As the months have gone by, I really feel that McGraw Manor has turned into a game reserve for dogs.

The dogs are running loose at all hours of the day and night. I have a neighbor who constantly leaves their dog to run free and this dog has a free fertilizer delivery service, always on mine or my other neighbors front lawn. During the summer months my children like to play on the front lawn, barefooted. This can lead to problems, very messy ones, thanks to my considerate neighbor.

The Military Police have been called many times to pick up these posts have revealed caring young men and women eager to soldier, he said. Too much attention may be paid, he noted, to the bottom ten percent of the personnel in the Army. "The Army of the future will be a package of exciting innovations which guarantees an Army prepared for the coming decade, an Army prepared for war."

Additionally, while in Washington, it was learned that the U.S. Army Infantry Museum will soon receive a full-scale commemorative 10,000th TOW Missile launcher from the Emerson Electronic Company. In ceremonies on Tuesday the launcher was presented to Army Chief of Staff Gen. Edward C. Meyer, who in turn presented the TOW to Fort Benning Commander Maj. Gen. David E. Grange Jr. The launcher will be on permanent display at the Infantry Museum for all to see at a later date.

Camellia is an apartment motel. We don't rent rooms, we rent furnished apartments with all the features of a regular motel plus added conveniences that cannot be provided with just a single room - and all at the same, or most times lower rates than the single-room motel. For example, our "standard" unit is comprised of two bedrooms, combination living room-dining room, bathroom and fully furnished kitchen including refrigerator, stove, cooking utensils, and table service for six people. These are some of the "extras" but at no extra cost. Our 100 units are in separate buildings with usually four apartments in each building, which adds to a person's or family's privacy.

36th unit (PSD) retires this year

By Matthew Boison

For 13 years Camp Shelby, a training camp for active Army and active Reserve components, has been supported by the Provisional Support Detachment (PSD), a unit stationed here and commanded by Maj. Gene R. Redondo.

The support unit, comprised mainly of personnel from the 36th Engineer Group (Combat), was retired this year and the responsibility for Camp Shelby support will revert to Fort Polk, La.

"The non-commissioned officers and enlisted personnel were the workforce of this unit," said 1st Lt. James A. Stevenson, executive officer of the PSD. "I'll miss them; they were true professionals."

The PSD was tasked to provide personnel, equipment and supplies to support the active Army components and selected Reserve components at Camp Shelby, Miss., during annual training. The Provisional Support Detachment was organized here and was assigned to Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 36th Engineer Group (Combat).

"As a whole, they did a good job," said 1st Sgt. Charles L. Jordan, first sergeant of the PSD. "We took different units, put them together to form the PSD, gave them a job and they performed professionally."

The PSD, comprised of a maintenance unit, dining facility, transportation and billeting section, and a supply section, supported a force of 60,000-plus while at Camp Shelby.

Camp Shelby's training goes on, but without the support of the PSD, 36th Engineer Group. "I don't want to close the unit out," said SSgt. Douglas J. Fisher, a member of the PSD unit. "When you get together a bunch of people and they do a super job, that reflects a good light on the post as a whole."

Commander Troops Support visits Commissary

By Dave Bristow

Brig. Gen. Leo Brooks, commander U.S. Army Troops Support Agency, Fort Lee, Va. was here Oct. 11 to have a first hand look at how things are going at Benning's post commissary, quartermaster laundry, and clothing sales store.

Brooks is in charge of the world-wide commissary system. He has the responsibility of seeing that all is operating well.

At the commissary Brooks said of his visit, "One of my responsibilities is to see how the store is operating, and see if the command policies we put out to the management is being carried out. If I find everything is great I say great, if things can be improved, I say so then. Fort Benning has the reputation of being one of the finest commissaries we have in the system today."

A seemingly pleased Brig. Gen. Leo Brooks stands along side Benning's commissary officer, Mr. H. Fantavzzi. The general, commander US Army Troop Support Agency, was here to take a first hand look at our commissary. Brooks has said that Benning's commissary has one of the best reputations in the commissary system today.

While at the commissary Brooks walked down the aisles shaking hands with some of the patrons and asking them what they thought of their commissary. Shoppers were asked by the general what they would like to see on the shelves.

Many reacted very positive saying they were most pleased with the commissary in general. Many offered suggestions.

Assistant commissary officer, Ms. Joyce Lott, commented, "The general stopped and talked with everyone. He seemed well pleased. We try to keep our shelves well stocked, selling quality products at reasonable prices."

Pay Reform — A Chance to Save Comparability

Federal employees are raising many questions about President Carter's proposed reforms to the Federal pay system. It's important each employee understand the purpose of the changes and why they are necessary at this time.

The proposals are not made in the belief that Federal employees are substantially overpaid, or that their salaries should be cut. They are made because the credibility of our system for determining pay comparability has been shaken by economic changes during the past decade, and comparability could be lost forever if inequities in the system are not corrected immediately.

The idea of making Federal pay comparable to pay for equivalent work in private industry was established in 1962. It responded to economic conditions at that time and served us well for 17 years. Now, those conditions have changed, and it is necessary to update the pay system to preserve comparability. These changes will be made without requiring any Federal employee to take a cut in salary.

When the comparability system was established in 1962, fringe benefits were not a major part of government compensation. Now, they account for some 30 percent of total payroll costs. The value of those benefits must be taken into account to make salary comparisons accurate.

The current system also ignores State and local government employees when comparing salaries. Their numbers have increased dramatically since 1962, and now represent 13 percent of the national workforce. Accuracy and logic demand that their salaries be considered in making comparability surveys.

Finally, it no longer makes sense to use one national pay scale for all white-collar employees regardless of where they work. The cost of living varies widely among localities. Using the same pay scale throughout the country means some Federal salaries are too high and others too low when compared with local prevailing wages. This is unfair to Federal employees and forces business and State and local governments to increase their payrolls where Federal rates are too high. The proposed reforms will remove those inequities.

The suggested reforms result from years of study by responsible task forces which included the active involvement of career civil servants. They combine a concern for the rights and needs of Federal employees with a concern for how tax dollars are spent.

The legislation will provide a system that accurately and fairly sets Federal pay rates, thus restoring public confidence in the comparability concept. Then, if surveys show that an increase in Federal salaries is needed, it will be believed, supported and defensible.

Failure to enact the new system would mean we have missed an opportunity to create a practical compensation system, fair to American taxpayers and Federal employees. Equally important, it may mean that our last chance to save the comparability system will be lost.

IOAC instructor as Patton

By Kirk Dorn

Capt. John A. Harris is an instructor for Team 3, Command and Tactics Department at the Infantry School, who uses an unusual 'teaching aide' to introduce his classes.

First, some background. Every Advanced Infantry Officer Course that comes through has, as part of its curriculum, a class called Desert Operations. It is primarily geared to the environment of the desert and is designed to give the student an appreciation of what the desert is really like and the modifications, tactics and techniques that they may have to employ to survive a fight in the desert.

To accomplish this task, Harris uses an attention-getting step of having a guest speaker from the past — Gen. George S. Patton — teach the class. Gen. Patton is, in fact, Capt. Harris.

"Environmental classes can be quite boring if you don't do something to spice them up a little," says Harris. And he's in a position to compare because he taught the class for a long while without the help of the general. He says that since he made the change, three classes ago, students have been more attentive and the teaching more effective.

Harris says he gets kidded as he walks around Bldg. 4, people calling him 'George' or 'General.'

But it's serious business when the lights go out in his classroom leaving only a spotlight on 'Gen. Patton' standing in all his glory in front of the American flag. The two hour class begins with the same speech, word for word, that started the motion picture 'Patton.' Then, for the remainder of the session, Patton talks about his experiences in desert warfare, adding his insight to modern technology.

Harris says he reads everything he can get his hands on about the colorful general and he doesn't mince any words in describing his admiration for the man. "Patton knew early in the war when he was deployed in North Africa," stated Harris, "that the Germans should be exploited and that's what he attempted to do throughout the war. He knew that the Germans were a defeated army and so he kept pushing and driving."

Patton was a great believer in reincarnation and he duplicated tactics used by those who fought on the same piece of terrain hundreds of years earlier. His opposing forces recognized the tactics but paid little attention and the successful results for the Allies speak for themselves.

Patton was the target of much criticism for taking heavy casualties during the war but Harris defends his alterego by pointing out that, "We could have taken more casualties if we had sort of played around, taken it easy and allowed the enemy to artillery and strafe us. So it was attack, attack, attack. that was his philosophy."

And you can't argue with success, says Harris. "The man was an egomaniac in my opinion, but here's no doubt in my mind that World War II was ended quicker than it would have been without him."

Babies can't travel free

If you're planning on taking advantage of "in-lap" infant travel on your next Military Airlift Command flight, your child's age will make a difference.

Infants more than two years of age can no longer travel free in the lap of an adult sponsor on military flights.

In May, MAC began allowing infants less than two years old to fly free and also provided a free in-lap return flight for children who had reached their second birthday.

A restriction by the Federal Aviation Administration, however, prohibits in-lap travel for children over two on both commercial and military aircraft. MAC can no longer provide a free return flight if the child is more than two.

Also, due to weight limitations, a baggage allowance cannot be provided for free in-lap infants.

Passengers flying on MAC aircraft must complete special paperwork at the terminal for in-lap travel. Check in early and clearly state that an in-lap infant is involved.

Passenger service will determine if extra meals are available and if not, you must provide food for the infant.

Infants must travel in the lap of a sponsor on duty or another eligible adult family member who has purchased a cash reimbursable seat. If excess seats are available on the aircraft, the child may be allowed a seat.

Passengers traveling on Category A or Y commercial flight—those flying from commercial airports—must make arrangements with the airline for in-lap infant travel.

The free in-lap service complements cash reimbursable travel which allows soldiers and dependents of relatives and their households, who are not entitled to government paid transportation, to travel at low government rates on MAC flights.

Space A travel is not affected by the new policy. Infants traveling on Space A flights will still require a seat allocation and payment of $10 space A fee.

For more information, check with your local transportation office.

stray animals, but by the time they arrive, the dogs, sometimes two and three strong have run off on their busy assignment to fertilize some other lucky persons lawn

USAIC Regulation 210-10 prohibits dogs to run loose. It would really benefit the residents of McGraw Manor if the Military Police could or rather would place a unit to drive through the area on a continual basis, like the dog catchers of the early days. These expended man hours could be cut as the offenders finally learn to be considerate of their neighbors rights, and keep their dogs where they are supposed to be. If they can't obey these simple guide lines, I feel they should get rid of their pet, that they already show so much LOVE for by letting it run free to attack the mail man, cars, garbage bags and my front lawn.

Thanks a bunch,

L.B.

Resident McGraw Manor

Response to

"Disgruntled Resident" To The Editor:

"Disgruntled Resident," did not specify what area of McGraw Manor he lives in, and this effectively precludes the DC & E from being able to take effective action to attempt to determine where the problem is.

Normally I refuse to respond to letters or comments about television interference; however, within the past few weeks there have been at least two letters appear in this paper about TVI. I have, therefore, decided to make an exception this time, and make known some very important facts and information about TVI.

In 1976 the, then head of the Federal Communications Commission released a report to congress in response to Congressional inquires about the TVI problem arising from the use of the Citizens Band Radio. This report was subsequently read into the Congressional record, and stated in part, "In those instances of television interference complaints that have been received by the various field engineer's, and investigated by them; it has been found that more than 80 percent of such complaints were the fault of the TV set and not the CB Radio. Further, this fault can be traced to two very important factors:

- Lack of proper shielding of the TV set by the manufacturer.
- Failure of the manufacturer to include a high pass filter in the tuning system of the TV set.

The FCC then attempted to require that by 1978 all TV sets manufactured for sale from January 1, 1978 on would be shielded against outside of band harmonic interference (TVI), and that further, each TV set would have a high pass filter in the tuning system. They ran into an overwhelming storm of protests from the TV manufacturing industry, and they therefore dropped this plan from mandatory compliance to voluntary compliance.

With a little bit of friendly discussion, "Disgruntled Resident" might try and find out who the CBer is, and ask him to install a low pass filter between his CB Radio and antenna, and then wait to see if this doesn't eliminate the problem. If the installation of a low pass filter doesn't do the job, then "Disgruntled Resident" might want to invest in a in line high pass filter:

"Disgruntled Resident" might want to investigate the possibility that the problem lies in his TV set; by taking it to any one of many reputable TV repair facilities in the Columbus, Phenix City, and Fort Benning area, and have it checked to see if it is properly shielded and has a high pass filter in the tuning system.

If the above doesn't work, then contact the Directorate of Communications and Electronics, and ask them to investigate the problem. Be sure to tell them what steps you and the CBer have taken to eliminate the problem. DC & E has many sources from which to draw from for technical assistance, including the Atlanta Field Engineering Office of the FCC. It very possibly could be that the particular CB operator is operating with excess RF power, and if this is the case then he needs to be taken off the air for the benefit of all Citizens Band Radio operators.

Any person who is having a problem with TVI should feel free to contact DC & E for help, but remember, try and work it out between you and the Citizens Band Operator first, many times they are not aware that their equipment is causing TVI, and most are willing to bend over backwards to eliminate the problem. Some will go as far as to buy the necessary high pass in line filter for you and show you how to install it properly.

It is better to work together with our neighbors than to be at odds with them. Many Citizens Band Operators do not want to be at odds with their neighbors, and are more than willing to work with you.

Soldiers receive breakfast in bed

By Glen W. Griffin

Do you remember how your drill sergeant took care of you? How he made sure you got enough exercise, enough rest, enough healthy outdoor living? Remember how he brought you breakfast in bed?

No? He didn't serve you breakfast in bed? Well, he might have if he was SSgt. Wayne B. Damon of Delta Company, 2nd Battalion, 1st ITB.

Damon is a drill sergeant in the company's 11C mortar platoon. When the TST company arrived from Fort Knox, Ky. to complete their last week of training here, Damon made them an offer. If any of them maxed the Advanced Physical Fitness Test and the Performance Oriented Infantry Qualification Test, Damon would put on his dress blues and serve that soldier breakfast in bed.

Later Damon modified his standard. He said this was because the POIQT had been revised and had become more difficult and the platoon took its PT test in the rain. He could see his platoon was putting out 100% and "If my troops put out 100% for me, I'll put out 100% for them."

Five soldiers made the new standards. Three had maxed the POIQT and the other two had been the platoon high scorers on the PY test.

All five were allowed to sleep through morning PT. Damon then arrived in his dress blues and served them a full breakfast of coffee, juice, cereal and bacon. The cook had also prepared a cheese omelette for them.

The offer also had an effect on the rest of the platoon. Although it is unusual for the 11C platoon not to do as well as the other platoons because of the time they spend on mortar training, this time it was the honor platoon. Damon himself was selected as the Distinguished Drill Sergeant of the Cycle for his work.

Dressed in his Blues, SSgt. Wayne B. Damon, Company D, 23rd Battalion, 1st Infantry Training Brigade, serves breakfast.

Bicycle Safety: Bicyclist increase causes safety hazards on road

By Debbie Harrison

Recently there has been an increase in the purchase and use of bicycles for business and pleasure. More and more people are riding bicycles as an alternative to rising gasoline prices.

Children are riding bicycles to school, adults to work and many people are using bicycles as a form of keeping in shape.

Bicycling is fun, but it can be dangerous. One of the major reasons is because motorists are not noticing bicyclists on the road as they should. "Drivers should be more alert. There may be an unforeseen object (a bicycle rider) on the road more so than in the past because of the energy crunch," said Fred Young, post senior safety specialist.

Bicyclists need to be constantly aware of the rules of safety and the traffic environment in which they ride in. Here are some tips to use to protect yourself and help to become a better bicyclist.

Bike safety

●Obey all traffic signs, signals, and crosswalk markings at intersections.

●Yield the right-of-way to pedestrians.

●Use hand signals when turning and stopping. Hold signal for at least 50 feet.

●Ride on the right hand-side of the road in the same direction as traffic.

●Walk your bicycle across busy streets and intersections.

●Entering the road: use driveways to enter and leave the streets.

Riding at night

●Wear light colored clothing.

●All bicycles must have front, rear, side and pedal reflectors. This is to provide the motorist with a unique pattern of reflective devices which distinctly identify a bicycle when viewed at night.

●Lights should be clean, adjusted properly and visible for 500 feet.

"On post there are some roads which are not recommended to ride because all these roads are heavily traveled during the hours of 7-8:30 a.m., 11:30 a.m.- 1 p.m. and 4-5:30 p.m.: Dixie Road, 1st Division Road, Anderson Street, Custer Road and Benning Boulevard especially because of the 50 miles per hour speed limit," said Fred Young.

Motorists should be aware of bicycle riders. Most car-bike accidents can be prevented by giving bicyclists the right-of-way, even though they may be violating yours. And know their intentions of bike driving.

By observing these tips the bicycle rider and motorist will become aware of each other and help keep Fort Benning a safe bike riding post.

Candidate weapons get test fired by 3/7th Inf

When an Infantry squad lays down superior firepower on the enemy during battle it can often be the key to victory.

Presently members of Alpha company, third battalion, 7th Infantry are firing four candidate weapons in the SAW Test at Griswold range. This test is being run under simulated combat conditions and may have an effect on the Department of the Army's final decision for a possible new squad weapon. This could give the infantry squad increased firepower. This would help reduce some of the need for supporting fire from the platoon's M60 machine guns.

This is happening as a result of the SAW, (Squad Automatic Weapons) test a task given to the US Army Infantry Board (test organization) by the army's Operational Test and Evaluation Agency (OTEA).

The four candidate weapons involved in the current tests and under consideration are the XM106, a heavy barreled variant of the M16A1 rifle, fabricated by the US Army Ballistic Research Laboratory; the XM248, supplied by the Ford Aerospace and Communications Corporation; the XM 249, provided by Fabrique Nationale of Belgium, and the XM262 furnished by Heckler and Koch of West Germany. All four weapons are light weight and fully automatic.

The test manager for the SAW test, Major Robert H. Wiese tells of the testing now going on at Griswold range by 3/7th soldiers. "Infantry soldiers here are testing candidate weapons as they would use them, under simulated combat conditions.

They fire from the fighting, prone and standing positions. We have rotating shifts where a soldier can fire at night and also during the day. Part of the test is to see how the candidate weapons function for the soldier under all kinds of conditions. Firing is being conducted out there 24 hours a day. We rotate five shifts. Each soldier will have a chance to fire all four of the trial weapons as well as his own M16A1 rifle. These soldiers will fire more rounds in three months than most soldiers will fire in a lifetime, some 4,000 rounds each."

A young soldier from Virginia, Private Gary Blankenship, who came into the army only last February, excitedly commented, "I really like to fire. To me it's a challenge, especially to hit those far away 1,000 meter targets. I enjoy learning the characteristics of all these weapons, how to clean them and also be disassemble them.

"At night we use the starlight scope on the automatic weapons to aid in our night vision. Sometimes it's difficult to see much of anything in front of you, especially when the fog moves in. What I also liked was the quick-fire exercise at Titus range, where you walk down a path and targets pop up on both sides of you. It was really neat!"

The testing consists of live-fire, and non-firing exercises designed to compare individual weapon performance and capabilities. Then there is a squad level exercise in which automatic riflemen using each candidate weapon are required to accomplish tasks as a member of a tactically committed infantry squad.

This testing is giving the infantryman and the squad he belongs to a chance to go through all the phases of firing that might be encountered during a combat situation.

Taking aim at his target, PFC Ricardo Torres prepares to let loose with his first burst of automatic fire using the XM262 West German made weapon. Data collector for the SAW Test, SSG Robert L. Spencer, assists the young soldier in any help he may need to score a hit. The weapon is equipped with a spare barrel.

Data collector SSG Robert L. Spencer records the firing and results of PFC Ricardo Torres as he fires the German made automatic XM262 squad weapon.

BAYONET looking for writers within post units

Would you like to see your name in the BAYONET? Would you like to read more about your unit or a certain type of story? If so, the BAYONET has a need for you.

The BAYONET wants to be the voice of Fort Benning. It is supposed to represent all the personnel who work, live, and use the post. This includes our active duty soldiers and dependents, civilian personnel, retired soldiers and dependents, and the Reservists, National Guards and cadets, and other retired personnel.

The BAYONET hopes to have a contact or stringer in each major unit, USAIC/USAIS, directorate, or organization at Fort Benning, which would allow our coverage to reach all over post. That way, we print stories and have input concerning every unit and organization and would reduce the coverage we sometimes miss.

Sometimes it is difficult for us to be in several places at one time and priorities must be set. With a proper stringer system, the paper could serve most all the people all the time. But we can't do it without your help.

Someone from each major command is needed to help keep the BAYONET staff informed about personality features, human interest stories and just plain news. If you would like to be a contact (stringer) but feel you don't know how to put your story ideas into words, call or visit Bldg. 4, Room 601 during normal working hours. The BAYONET staff will be glad to help.

If you would like to be a stringer for the BAYONET, call 545-4622 or 545-7841.

Brinkley wins first Leftwich award

By Pat Brown

Capt. Clyde "Sam" Brinkley Jr., assistant U.S. Marine Corps Representative for Student Affairs at Fort Benning, has been selected as the first recipient of the Leftwich Trophy for Outstanding Leadership, given in memory of Lt. Col. William Groom Leftwich, U.S. Marine Corps.

The presentation was made during the commissioning ceremony of the USS LEFTWICH at Ingalls Shipyard, Pascagoula, Miss. Distinguished guests attending the ceremony included Lt. Col. Leftwich's widow, Mrs. Jane Leftwich Michael Jr., his mother, Mrs. William G. Leftwich Sr., Assistant Secretary of Navy for Financial Affairs George A. Peapples, Chief of Naval Operations Admiral Thomas B. Hayward and Deputy Chief of Staff for Manpower, Lt. Gen. Edward J. Bronars, representing the Commandant of the Marine Corps. Bronars was commander of the 2nd Marine Division, where Brinkley was assigned at the time he was nominated for the award.

Leftwich was killed in action on Nov. 18, 1970 while serving as commanding officer of the 1st Reconnaissance Battalion, 1st Marine Division. The trophy, which will be presented annually was provided to the Marine Corps by his fellow officers and other friends.

Criteria for recommending an officer as recipient of the award include that he be recognized by superiors, contemporaries and subordinated alike as the officer they use as an example of an outstanding leader; that the officer exhibit qualities that contribute to the development of esprit de corps and loyalty within the unit, and, that through personal example, he set the standards that all other officers seek to emulate.

Firearm safety investment in life

Many sportsmen and women are seriously or fatally injured from accidental discharge of firearms while in the field. Whether hunting or target practicing, most firearm accidents are the result of poor judgement. Exercising the following rules of good judgement may improve your chances of remaining uninjured throughout the hunting season.

NEVER CLIMB TREES OR FENCES OR JUMP DITCHES WHILE CARRYING A LOADED GUN. It is good judgement to empty the gun or at least open the breech, lay the gun down or hand it to a companion before climbing a fence and then retrieve the gun on the other side. Above all never pull the gun towards you by the muzzle. It is too easy to catch the trigger on a branch or jar the action with enough force to cause the gun to discharge.

NEVER TRANSPORT LOADED WEAPONS IN MOTOR VEHICLES. Such a practice can have devastating effects. Because of the motion of the vehicle, a loaded weapon can be jarred Brinkley was commissioned in May 1971 upon graduation from the University of North Carolina with a bachelor's degree in Industrial Relations. He was honor graduate of The Basic School at Quantico, Va. and of the Ranger School, the Infantry Officer's Advanced Course and the Airborne Course here. He also attended the TOW (Tube Launched Optically Tracked Wire Guided missile) Trainer's Course here.

Since his first assignment as a platoon commander with the 3rd Marine Division in Okinawa from May through December 1972, Brinkley has served in increasingly responsible positions. At the time he was nominated for the Leftwich Trophy, he was serving as a company commander with the 2nd Marines. His nomination cited him for his "extraordinary sense of duty, unusual common sense, and magnificent perception of the Corps - real and philosophical" and referred to him as a "paragon of Marine Corps professionalism."

Brinkley, who was born in Valdese, N.C. on June 17, 1949, states his own career goals are "to give it my best - to make a 100 percent effort. I try for professional knowledge so that if I ever have the opportunity to lead others, we will complete our mission and I will bring my men back safe and alive. I get paid to take care of my men.

"Leadership is not a cliché. A leader should lead! Many officers forget that and become wrapped up in being managers. They forget their soldiers are individuals. I will never ask anything of my men I'm not capable or willing to do myself."

At present, Brinkley runs 40 miles a week, in training for the Marine Corps Marathon to be held in Washington, D.C. Nov. 4. His personal sufficiently to fire. These accidents can be avoided simply by emptying all weapons before transporting them in vehicles.

BESURE THERE ARE ADEQUATE BACKSTOPS WHEN TARGET PRACTICING. Many firearms, particularly rifles have lethal ranges that extend a mile or more. A good backstop limits the travel of the bullet and prevents the possibility of injuring an unsuspecting person beyond the sight of the shooter.

BE SURE OF YOUR TARGET. People have been killed by shooters who, hearing a sound, have fired into the underbrush thinking the sound was made by game. Such actions do not reflect sound judgement - the prudent hunter will wait until the target is visible and can be positively identified. It is better to be safe than sorry.

GUNPOWDER AND ALCOHOL DON'T MIX. Bullets and booze are dangerous. It is a fact that alcohol is the body affects judgement and impairs reflexes. In the field with guns is not a place for this combination.

goal is to run it in three hours, 15 minutes.

This will be his second marathon. He ran in the 26-mile Charlotte Observer Marathon in Dec. 1978. Asked how he did, he replied crisply, "I finished."

His wife, Janice, shares his interest in running and in his other hobbies, golf and water skiing. They have a son, Chad, age 4.

Germany bound?

"I don't wanna go. I'll have to go to the field all the time. My wife and kids will be left alone and they won't even be able to speak the language."

"Sorry soldier, you are on orders."

"But Sarge, I've heard stories about how expensive it is over there. How will I afford to live?"

Facing a tour in Germany can be a frightening prospect for a young soldier, particularly if he's married and has children.

First Sergeant Robert Beacham, Headquarters Company, US Army, recently returned from three years in US Army Europe (USAREUR). He talked about some of the realities of an assignment in Germany.

The good times

Before going to Germany in 1976, he had also heard stories of what it was going to be like.

"The people I talked to had been stationed in Germany when the mark was four to the dollar. They remembered the good times when you could lay a quarter down instead of a dollar. When I arrived the mark was 2.50 to one."

Beacham feels there are precautions a soldier can take before going overseas.

"Soldier should have a sponsor to the area they're going to. Each area differs. Berlin has a different economy than say Bamberg. In some areas government quarters are available, in other areas they aren't."

The sponsorship program is heavily emphasized on the European side, Beacham says, but the response from the soldiers stateside is rather negative.

"Let's say I'm going to Europe and get caught up in the move and clearing and I don't respond to a letter from my sponsor. When I get to Europe, I'll be totally blind and it will be my own fault."

Although the sponsorship program became mandatory September 1 for all soldiers with dependents, junior enlisted soldiers are generally sent to the 21st Replacement Battalion in Frankfurt for assignment.

In the Ansbach community, where Beacham was the Administrative Services NCO for the deputy community commander, sponsors were assigned as soon as the unit received word of a soldier's assignment.

Be prepared

One of the problems Beacham saw during his tour involved the non-command sponsored soldier and his family.

"A young soldier doesn't want to leave his wife and family back home. If he's not command sponsored, he'll bring his family over anyway and then leave them in an environment that's challenging, to say the least.

"These soldiers are shy of the command because they think they're doing something wrong and consequently, they don't go through the Housing Referral Office for help in finding an apartment."

According to Beacham, the Housing Referral Office and community services "bend over backward" to help newly arrived soldiers whether they're command sponsored or not.

"For many of these young soldiers, it's the first time they've been out of the U.S. They encounter a totally different culture and language.

"On top of that, the first thing they run into is the high cost of setting up a household. To be comfortable and able to cope with all situations, soldiers should have about $1,000 on hand.

"They'll need that money to buy necessities, pay the rent and in most cases a security deposit. In some cases, shortages of government issued items such as washers and dryers occur and the family has to rely on the laundromat.

"If government or leased quarters aren't available, the soldier will need a car to get back and forth to work. Insurance will run anywhere from $500 to $1,000 a year depending on the car, age and rank of the driver, etc."

Use the HRO

Before entering into a legal contract for housing, soldiers should check with Housing Referral to make sure the housing is suitable, Beacham stressed.

"A lot of our troops go over there and live in substandard accommodations," he said.

"Soldiers have to understand that in most cases, the contract or lease is based on marks rather than dollars. When you sign the contract the mark may be at 2.00 to the dollar, for example. When the mark falls to 1.80, your rent is going to increase $10 for every $100 you were originally paying.

Budget counseling is also a must, Beacham states. "Soldiers need to be coached on what they buy and where they buy things. Sometimes you have to spend an extra 10 or 15 minutes to go to the commissary rather than the PX but it pays off in the long run.

"Quite frankly," Beacham admits, "you can't exist solely on the German economy on our pay scale. You have to use the services provided by the military.

"The Army community provides a multitude of services — Dependent Youth Activities sponsors sports and recreational programs for dependents; Recreation Services has tours for the whole family; Child Development Centers enable young mothers to work and dependents may eat in dining facilities."

Beacham thinks the commanders and first sergeants must make sure that their troops know what's going on in the community and have the time to take advantage of the services and activities offered.

"You can start a shuttle bus service from a housing area to the commissary but if nobody knows about it, you haven't really helped at all.

"Regardless of where you go, not understanding the language makes you feel awkward. What soldiers must remember is that this awkwardness is also felt by German men who are as hesitant to try their English as German women are to try German. This is a barrier that needs to be broken.

"A tour in Germany can be a very enjoyable experience," Beacham says. "Germany is a beautiful, clean country. The people are very gracious and very proud."

Improving overseas living

The Army is aware of the difficulties soldiers have living in such high cost areas as Germany.

Efforts to improve all aspects of soldiers' quality of life continue. The following are some of the changes affecting soldiers' lifestyles that have been made recently:

- Soldiers can now ship mopeds and mini-bikes at government expense with their household goods.
- Soldiers going to Northern Europe and Great Britain may now ship POVs between Baltimore, Md. and Rotterdam, Holland, Felixstowe and Liverpool, England and Helsinki, Finland.
- USAREUR clubs began a 5-year program to upgrade club facilities.
- During FY 80 about 97 free entertainment shows are scheduled to go overseas. Thirty of these will go to USAREUR.
- Soldiers going overseas or to certain high cost areas in CONUS now have up to 12 months instead of six to pay back advanced pay.
- Soldiers and DA civilians overseas will soon be able to charge goods bought in AAFES facilities. The AAFES Deferred Payment Plan, recently tested at four Army and Air Force installations in Germany, will be expanded to most overseas areas over the next 18 months.

- Concurrent travel of dependents to USAREUR is now being approved if housing is expected to be available within 60 days of the sponsor's arrival. Formerly housing had to be available within 30 days.
 - A streamlined reassignment processing form is now in use which combines soldiers' requests for dependent travel, housing and sponsorship.
 - Sponsorship and orientation programs are now mandatory for all E-5s through O-6 and for all E-1s through E-4s moving dependents to, from, or between overseas areas.
 - All major commands submitted requests to DA asking for resources for QOL improvements. Funds were requested for such things as increased staffing for medical services, library expansion programs, renovation and construction of sports facilities and improvements in existing bachelor and family housing.
- In addition to these changes, continued emphasis is being placed on renovation of education and postal facilities. The installation of individual mailboxes for soldiers will continue in FY 80.

Get ready ... get set ... go!

Knowing what to expect and being prepared are important to having an enjoyable tour in Germany.

Before you go

- Once you get word you're going overseas, apply for passports for your family.
 - Check with your local transportation office for details on shipping your household goods and POV.
 - Pets have to be shipped at your own expense. Check with the carrier (usually an airline) for details.
 - Find out if your current installation has a Headstart program to learn some basic German.
- When you get there*
- German landlords expect one month's rent and in most cases require an additional month's rent as a security deposit. Utility costs are also higher than in the U.S.
 - German apartments are often small and unfurnished. Housing Referral Offices will assist you in finding suitable quarters and in checking your lease or contract.
 - Landlords have liberal rights to inspect their property.
 - Apartment houses generally have house rules posted. Take time to read them.
 - If you take a lease and are transferred to a new location, you can be freed from the lease within a 30-day notice.

• You will be required to get a USAREUR driving license which includes learning the international traffic laws and road signs. A Driver's Handbook for Germany (USAREUR Pam 190-34) will be available through your orderly room.

- Unlike stateside, German stores have limited hours. Nearly all German stores are closed on Sundays. Saturdays, shops close at 2 p.m. except for the first Saturday of the month when most stay open until 6 p.m. In many of the small towns and villages stores close for a couple of hours around noontime.

- German communities are usually quiet, so loud playing of stereos, late parties or mowing the lawn on Sundays is frowned upon. Noon to 2 p.m. Monday through Saturday are traditionally reserved for midday rest. No bathing after 10 p.m. is a general rule for apartment dwellers.

- Commissaries, PXs, medical care, legal assistance, educational and recreational facilities are available to all soldiers and their dependents, whether command sponsored or not. Such services as Army Community Service and Housing Referral are available to any dependent who has a valid ID card.

- Your children will attend schools operated by the DOD Dependent Schools system. Bring your children's academic records from the last stateside school, if possible.

- Armed Forces Recreation Centers are operated at Berchtesgaden, Chiemsee, Garmisch and Munich. Skiing, tennis, golf, kayaking and many more recreational activities are available along with reasonably priced hotels and campgrounds.

Civilian employee bakes cakes for money and fun

Money is tight everywhere, but in some cases it can be even tighter than usual. Like when you're a young woman with one child and a husband studying to be a veterinarian.

Beverly Howell

Beverly Howell is a Department of the Army civilian, GS-4, working for the Directorate of Resource Management in Infantry Hall. Her husband, Al, has been in college for four years and has four more to go. He works occasionally when his schedule allows but Beverly provides most of the family's income.

However, Beverly has a unique way of supplementing her income. She bakes cakes — wedding cakes and other cakes for special occasions. These decorated cakes range in size from ones that feed six people to cakes for 250 people.

The one she baked for 250 people was 30 inches long and weighed more than 30 pounds. It had seven dozen eggs in it.

Right now she's averaging three cakes a week plus attending college two nights a week.

She learned cake decorating by going to three quarters of continuing education classes at Columbus College in 1976. She just learned for the fun of doing it, but after making a few free ones for friends, word spread on how good she was and boom! — she had a lucrative sideline to help support her family.

Grange buys first tickets supporting waterfowl

Maj. Gen. David E. Grange Jr., post commander, and Col. Addison Davis III, chief of staff, were Benning's first two purchasers of tickets to attend Chattahoochee Valley Chapter of Ducks Unlimited, Inc.'s annual membership banquet to be held Tuesday, Oct. 30.

Ducks Unlimited, Inc., which has chapters in Canada and Mexico as well as the United States, is an organization dedicated to the preservation of North America's waterfowl and their habitats.

The tickets, which cost $30 each, includes dinner, annual membership in the organization, a chance at a shotgun and a subscription to the bi-monthly magazine, DUCKS UNLIMITED, INC. Admission for children is $15, including dinner, a special drawing and "Green Wing" membership.

The dinner, which will be held at Columbus' new Iron Works Convention and Trade Center, will begin with a silent auction at 6:30 p.m. There will also be an active auction featuring thousands of dollars worth of outdoors items. Dinner will begin at 7:30 p.m. A raffle and numerous door prizes will be offered, according to Area Chairman Win Fowler.

In addition, tickets on this year's commemorative shotgun, a Weatherby Deluxe Patricia II, may be purchased at the banquet, as well as tickets for a special custom-made "one on one": Browning over and under, valued at more than $50,000. The drawing for the Browning will be held in April on a national level.

Amos Faulk, noted duck hunting guide and calling champion from Lake Charles, La., will be guest speaker.

Anyone interested in purchasing tickets to the dinner may call Capt. Randall Pike at 568-2058 or 689-7365.

Tutoring help offered

The Veterans Administration will reimburse GI Bill students who hire tutors to help them through difficult courses.

According to VA, tutoring help is available to veterans attending school. The service will not be charged against the veteran-student's basic educational entitlement, emphasized VA.

For GI Bill students having difficulty with their courses, the VA will pay $69 per month up to a maximum of $828 for tutorial assistance.

Widows, widowers, spouses and children studying under the VA's Dependents' Education Assistance Program are also eligible for tutorial benefits.

Veterans and serviceman attending school at the post-secondary level on at least a half-time basis are eligible if they are lacking in a subject required in an approved education program, VA said.

Reimbursement applications should be submitted on VA form 22-19904 within a year of the tutoring and sent to the VA regional office keeping the veteran's claim folder. Applications should be verified by the school, according to VA.

Tutoring assistance forms and information may be obtained from any VA office.

How about that

Prayers often abused

Chaplain

William W. Erbach, Sr.
Brigade Chaplain, TSB

You know prayer is probably the most used and abused practice in all the world. I know of very few people who have not at one time or another for one thing or another to God or another. Usually this happens in the time of crisis which has given rise to the saying, "There are no atheists in the foxholes." Unfortunately by then it is usually too little and too late.

But prayer is not the whole of it. To say words of petition, thanksgiving, forgiveness, whatever become hollow in themselves when not backed by some significant act on the part of one who does the praying. Harry Emerson Fosdick told a story that makes this point. There was a father and two sons who were caught in a fishing boat off the rugged coast of Maine during a severe storm. When it looked like all was lost, the father put his arms around his sons and said, "Over on the coast there is a little woman praying for the safe return of her husband and sons. To the rigging boys, let's help her get that prayer answered." How about that!

The American fighting soldier

36th Engineer Group, 1943

By Matthew Boison

Sicily had been conquered by the spring of 1943 and General Mark Clark wanted the 36th Engineer Group assigned as a combat regiment with the Fifth Army for the Italian Campaign.

The next Allies assault was to take the Italian mainland and continue on to Germany. The battle that was to take place was to be a true test of the American Fighting Soldier. The night after the landing at Salerno, the 36th was digging graves for the casualties of the Fifth Army. The German forces lurked around the Fifth Army's position, threatening to attack and wipe out the Allied forces as they were digging in.

The next morning, the 36th was in the line fighting off the Nazi counter-attack which the Germans openly boasted would throw the Allied Army back into the sea.

The first shot, fired by an engineer, disabled the lead tank in a German column driving for the Fifth Army defensive line. The 36th had only begun to show their spirit.

Hometown calls help Tigers defeat Doughboys

By Gary Jones

The Doughboys, suffering from an off-game and some very definite "hometown calls" by the officials chalked up their third loss of the season when they traveled to the Livingston Tiger's home field Saturday.

Going into the game the Doughboys were picked by a local paper to win 28-20 but the fired-up Tigers stormed to a convincing 32-0 romp. The Doughboys troubles started with their first possession when quarterback Leamon Hall fumbled at his own two where the LU team took over. Just one play later the Tigers were in for the score. The extra points were good to give the Tigers a very early lead 7-0.

Livingston continued to pour it on, perhaps playing one of their better games of the year. At the half the Tigers led 20-0 and the second half proved to be almost a replay of the first with the Tigers shutting out the sometimes potent Doughboy offense.

The outcome of the game would probably have remained the same even if the officials hadn't made some questionable calls, but in all fairness to the Doughboys, the score would have been much closer. The Doughboys had one touchdown called back on a penalty called about 3 seconds after the TD was scored. The Doughboys also had several possible scoring drives nullified, when after gaining big yardage, a questionable 'hometown' call would force them into a punting situations.

Sunday the Doughboys hope to get back on the victory road when they play the Macon Chiefs in Doughboy Stadium at 2 p.m. The Chiefs are a semi-pro team that should provide "some good individual talent," according to Ralph Santaliz, Doughboy coach. The Chiefs are a Southern Football League team, that finished with a 4-7 mark last year.

"We suffered a lot of minor injuries (cuts and bruises) Saturday, which is expected when you play a team of Livingston's caliber," said Santaliz. "There is about a 95 percent chance that running back Greg King will play against Macon. If he does play then it will give us a double threat along with Leroy Benson."

Leamon Hall (r) just gets away the pass against the Tiger's rush.

Olympic Gold Medalist wins rifle meet here

By Tommy Pool

Lones Wigger, U.S. Army Marksmanship Unit, won his fourth straight National 300 Meter Rifle Championship in matches concluding at Fort Benning Tuesday.

Wigger put together scores of 1,158, 1,161, 1,144 for a total aggregate of 3,493 to outdistance Ray Carter, USAR, Johnson City, Tenn., in second place by 23 points. David Kimes, another Army Reservist from Monterey Park, Calif., finished third with 3,432.

A total of 40 competitors were on hand from across the nation as the two-time Olympic Gold Medal winner showed his championship form. His second day score of 1,161 unofficially surpassed his present world record mark of 1,160 fired last year during the World Shooting Championships in Seoul, Korea. His latest win gave him an even 40 national championship titles won over a period of 16 years, more than any other competitor in any other sport.

In team competition, the USAMU "Blue" squad of Wigger (1,158), Ernest Vande Zande (1,126), Phil Whitworth (1,137) and Earl Ellis (1,127) combined for a total score of 4,548 points to defeat the U.S. Army Reserve "Gold" team at 4,543.

In more competition this week, this year's U.S. CISM 300 Meter Rifle Team trials are underway at Fort Benning's Parks Range with the top five finishers to represent the U.S. during the CISM Championships this November in Cairo, Egypt.

Early results show a tight race between Wigger and Webster Wright, U.S. Navy, for the number one and two positions while David Boyd, USMC, Whitworth, Ronald Buttermann and James Meredith, all members of USAMU, are in another tight race for the remaining positions on the team. Complete scores and final U.S. CISM team members will appear in next week's Bayonet.

Second looks

The Autumn Road Race in Dothan, Ala. was the site of a fine showing by the Columbus Track Club this past weekend. CTC runners placed 2nd, 5th, 9th, 14th, and 23rd to take the team title, with Fort Benning's George Gilkes coming in 5th. Way to go guys!

Last minute entry

This week's last minute entry is the Willow Creek Road Race. Actually, this sounds more like an all day party than anything else. The 3,000 meter race is at 9 a.m. tomorrow. The bloody mary party and brunch, racquet ball, handball and tennis matches all beginning at 10. The wine and cheese party starts up at 2, and on it goes, complete with live music.

Anyone wishing to participate in the race may preregister at the Columbus Square Athlete's Foot for $3 today. It's $4 tomorrow. The other festivities don't seem to require anything besides showing up.

FALCONS 30

The Falcons blitzed the Cowboys 30-0 at Blue Field, Saturday, to widen their first place berth with a 5-0 record.

The first score came on the sixth play of the game when Falcon, Ron MacIver, drew first blood after a 30 yard run by Antoine Owens. Owens added the extra points on an end run. The Falcons continued their domination of the first period when Antoine Owens scored another TD with an extra point run on the next series of downs. In the second period, Albert Atzbach punctuated his star performance that day by scoring from the Cowboy 10 yard line. MacIver converted to end the half 24-0.

In the second half the Cowboy defense fired up and began to hold the Falcon offense. The period see-sawed and was highlighted by several long drives by both the Cowboys and the Falcons. But in the first minutes of the final period the Falcons' MacIver moved the ball to paydirt once more to leave the score at 30-0.

In addition to MacIver, Owens, and Atzbach, other Falcon standouts were Mike Melson, John Felt and Blayne Allen.

MP STEELERS 12

In an exciting, hard-fought game, the Seahawks threw the Grasshopper Division into a three-way tie for first place by beating the previously undefeated Steelers 16-12. The Steelers struck first as Alex McKindra ran 10 yards for a touchdown on the fourth play from scrimmage. The conversion attempt was stopped and the game turned into a defensive battle. Both teams threatened frequently, but the defenses held on until the start of the fourth quarter when the Seahawks Mike Wall broke free for 45 yards to tie the game and then ran the conversion to make the score 8-2. On the Seahawks' next offensive series, Clay Vanmeter galloped 68 yards for a touchdown and the conversion was run by Bryan Richardsen. Late in the quarter, Steeler Shea Briscor ran a punt back 45 yards for a TD, but once again the Steelers failed to convert. Bud Hall anchored the touch Seahawk Defense while Todd Walker and Neil Williams provided excellent defensive rushing for the Steelers.

MP COWBOYS 6

QB Eddie Biondoletti ran for three touchdowns and passed for two more touchdowns. Bill Cypert shared the QB duties with Eddie Biondoletti and passed for two touchdowns. Jeffrey Elliott caught two of the TD passes; Eddie Biondoletti caught one and Bill Cypert caught one. Chucky Rishe had three nice runs and accounted for an after TD extra point. McKenzie. Defensive players J. Sells, D. Shipman, A. Bell, G. Slayton, W. Brickner and Gary Noble with one sack.

MP COWBOYS 6

The game Saturday Oct. 6 played between the MP Cowboys and (E) Steelers was a complete hard working game until the end. The defensive players for the MP Cowboys were Eric Stephens and Mike Chamberlin. The offense was led by Victor Maas and his ability to catch the ball and run for extra yardage. The ground attack came with Danny Chamberlin's extra effort to gain further yardage.

Ben Duncan hit Teedy McCon with a three yard scoring pass to tie the score at 6-6. Jimmy Johnson scored a touchdown in the 2nd half to put the Cardinals ahead 12-6. Kevin Sparks swept left end for 40 yards to score and Ben Duncan added 2 points to make the final score 20-6. The offensive line of Al Smith, Bill Lewis, Dan Perry, Brad Simmons, and Bobby Allen did a fine job of blocking for the Cardinals.

The Patriots opened the game with a flea-flicker on the first play which was good for a 67 yard touchdown. The Patriots, behind the excellent running of Kevin Williams who rushed for 79 yards in 8 carries, assisted by the blocking of ends Justin Courtney, Mark Wright and Gary Stephens racked up 261 yards total offense. The Lavoie Bucaneer defense held the Patriots to their lowest point total of the season and the least number of offensive yards in a single game. However, the Patriot defense continued to be awesome, holding the Bucaneers to only 104 yards total offense and forcing a fumble which Billy Moore picked up and ran 18 yards into the end zone for one of the two Patriot touchdowns. Ruggers win tough one here

By the final whistle, the Flyers Rugby Football Club and the Auburn University RFC knew that they had been in a dog fight.

After 80 minutes of rugby, the Flyers emerged with their third straight shutout and their fourth win of the season. It took the Flyers 20 minutes to score with Chuck Baker taking a Leo Brooks pass and racing forty yards for the try. Another try by Mark Vaughn made the score at the half 10-0. The Flyers increased their lead to 13-0 with a Mike DeMayo penalty kick. Mike Cogar finished the scoring for the day with the Flyers third try making the final score Flyers 19, Auburn 0. DeMayo ended the day with seven points, having converted two "extra points" kicks. Unlike American football, the "extra point" is usually kicked from where the ball crosses the try line (goal line), and is not centered under the goal posts.

In the B-side game, the Flyers scored first, with a try by Matt Lindley five minutes into the match. Auburn evened the score, and the match ended in a 4-4 tie. Both games had outstanding defensive play by both the Flyers and Auburn. Several goal line stands stopped scoring drives all afternoon.

In addition to a fine afternoon of rugby, the game was a benefit match for the Special Olympics. Over $80, in donations from the fans, spectators and the players themselves, was presented to the Special Olympics after the match.

Nathan Carter, short order cook for the Infantry Hall cafeteria, prepares a ham and egg sandwich for one of his many hungry customers on the go.

PX Short order cook enjoys work

By Debbie Harrison

When Nathan Carter isn't singing his heart out with the Friendship Baptist Church choir, you can expect to find him Monday through Friday cooking to his heart's content at the Infantry Hall cafeteria.

Ever since Carter could remember, he always wanted to be a cook. In 1964 he started working at the PX cafeteria. First as a dishwasher, and later progressing to their counter attendant. Then in 1975, he got his chance to become a cook when a former short order cook, Luke Howard, trained him to take over the job before resigning. Carter mentioned, "It took me about a month and a half to really be a good short order cook."

Carter enjoys meeting new friends and getting to know a lot of the customers he cooks for. Through the years, Carter has seen many military people leave at one rank and return another and he has also met some important people. One who used to frequent his breakfast line was former post commander Maj. Gen. William J. Livsey. "He was always my first custommer every morning for breakfast," said Carter.

Carter enjoys his job as a short order cook. He loves serving most of the customers who come to order breakfast because the people are very pleasant. Some of his frequent customers are surprised that he doesn't have to write down any of their orders. He seems to memorize exactly what they want.

A long-time cafeteria breakfast customer, Martha Daffin, civil service employee, commented, "All I have to say is the usual and he remembers exactly what I want everytime."

Besides cooking, he also likes to sing, listen to music and travel. But even when he isn't working he still loves to cook. He feels that cooking is a hobby and an art. "You have to enjoy what you are doing to love your work," he said. "When I'm at work sometimes I sing to myself while I'm at work."

His main goal in life is to continue cooking and maybe someday be manager of the PX cafeteria.

BAYONET newspaper holds seminar for soldiers

By Cliff Purcell

Recently, the Fort Benning post Command Information personnel attended an instruction seminar conducted by the Columbus Ledger-Enquirer staff. The learning experience and tour was coordinated and led by Mrs. Frances Moore, who has served as the Bayonet coordinator between the post and the newspaper company for approximately six years.

The professionals who presented segments of the seminar were heads of departments and supervisors from the composing, advertising, platemaking, photography and the computer section. The BAYONET office on post is one of the few Army Civilian enterprise newspapers who typeset their stories using a Video Display Terminal (VDT). The VDT is connected via telephone to the publisher computer located at the Ledger-Enquirer building in Columbus. This enables the BAYONET staff to transmit our stories directly into the computer downtown.

Lt. Col. (Ret.) Paul Timm, assistant to the executive editor, presented a class on the tools of a journalist and give instruction on the VDT's capabilities. According to Timm, a newspaper, like the BAYONET, is not just articles, photos and advertisement but it is a complete thing. Timm said, you cannot departmentalize when you talk newspapers. He concluded his remarks by demonstrating the latest in VDT's the portable Teleram.

Allen Horne, photographer, and Ralph Holloway, graphic arts specialist, gave instruction on how to improve photographs and their reproduction. Joe Veasey, the general platemaking assistant supervisor, explained the use of color and the methods used in shooting color for newsprint.

Donnie Sanders from the composing department, explained the computer interface with the post VDT and the typeset machine downtown.

The BAYONET's success and size largely depends on the sale of advertisements. The use of retail, classified and national advertising was explained to the group by Randy Givens, BAYO-NET advertising manager and Richard Heath, the advertising director.

The 12 enlisted and two officers were taken on a guided tour of the facility and saw the making of a newspaper in progress. Major units represented were the 197th Infantry Brigade, 1st Infantry Training Brigade, Committee Group, 36th Engineer Group, The School Brigade, TASC Photo Lab and the BAYONET staff from the Post Public Affairs Office.

"Watching the BAYONET newspaper come together is exciting to me. I've written stories for the paper before but now I can get a true picture of all the behind the scenes action going on to make a newspaper," commented Sp4 John Sacco, Committee Group while at the seminar.

For many of the soldiers, this was their first time to see a newspaper being published and view the new computer operation of the BAYONET. Another soldier commented, "This seminar and tour was the most informative and professionally conducted one I have attended since entering the Army."

Nichols awarded Eagle Scout

By Pat Brown

Charles M. Nichols, son of Lt. Col. and Mrs. James M. Nichols, Fort Benning, has been awarded Scouting's highest rank, Eagle Scout, during an Eagle Court of Honor held here.

Nichols, who has earned 23 Merit badges during his seven-year scouting career, has been involved in scouting activities in the states of Alabama, Washington and Kansas, as well as in Georgia, and overseas, in Germany. He has served as Quartermaster, senior Patrol Leader, junior Assistant Scout Master, and is now second vice-chief of the local Order of the Arrow.

His Eagle project involved the renovation of a day care nursery in Heidelberg, Germany where he directed redecoration of the nursery while creating and building a number of wooden games and two easels for use there.

The 18-year old Pacelli senior plans to pursue a military career and has applied for admission either at West Point or the Air Force Academy.

He received his Eagle charge from Chaplain (Maj.) William Erbach, who is also an Eagle Scout.

DoD changes ID card procedures

WASHINGTON (ARNEWS) — A new DoD directive on ID cards is bringing the changes in procedures for all categories except active duty military personnel, according to officials at the Adjutant General Center (TAGCEN).

Only the retired and Reserve Component ID card forms have changed. The old ID cards for these categories remain valid until they require replacement because of expiration, mutilation, loss or change of status, officials say.

Other changes in ID card procedures include:

- DoD civilians and their dependents as well as foreign nationals and their dependents will have to renew their ID cards every two years. Previously these cards were issued for periods of six years.

- The new Reserve Component ID cards will still be red, but will include Geneva Convention category. This will facilitate mobilization in case of a national emergency.

- Retiree ID cards may now be renewed at any military installation, regardless of branch of service. The new ID cards will be blue for retirees, rather than the old grey color.

- All personnel applying for an ID card for a dependent must now list all dependents on the application form. This form will eventually be sent to DoD Health Affairs, where the information will be computerized so a child's eligibility for medical treatment can be verified. This will provide for dependent children under 10 years old who are not issued ID cards.

- All active duty personnel will now be required to present proof of eligibility, such as birth certificates, marriage licenses, divorce certificates and adoption papers, when applying for dependent ID cards. Up until now, the Army was the only service that accepted the signature of officers, warrant officers and senior NCOs as proof of dependent status.

- Active duty dependent ID cards will now be issued to expire on the sponsor's FTS or on the dependent's birthday three years later (whichever is sooner).

In view of these changes, TAGCEN officials recommend that soldiers make sure that they have documents on hand for verification of their dependents' eligibility.

A revised AR 606-5 containing the details of these changes will reach the field late this fall, according to TAGCEN.

New Gray-Green Army Shirt

Some personnel who have purchased this shirt have been observed wearing other than authorized items on the shirt.

The rules are very simple; officers wear their rank on the green shoulder marks worn on the epaulets of the shirt with a standard nameplate on the right pocket flap (Chaplain will wear branch insignia above the left pocket); enlisted personnel wear the standard nameplate on the right pocket flap and bright pin-on insignia of rank on the shirt collars. Military Police wear the MP badge attached to the left pocket button by a leather fob.

The above named items are the only ones that are authorized for wear with this shirt — NO badges, ribbons, decorations, distinctive unit insignia, shoulder patches, etc. etc. etc.

Authorized items are required for wear on this shirt regardless of whether the shirt is worn as an outer garment, with the Army Green Uniform (under the coat) or under the optional windbreaker.

Glad you asked

SFC Roland Lynch

598th Maintenance Company

I like the steady income, travel and education. What pleases me the least are inspectors going around the housing areas inspecting. I've gotten nasty letters about my yard, and other yards looks worse than mine. Let's don't play favoritism on yards in the housing areas.

Cpl. David Kromer
Company B, 1/58th Infantry
Mechanized, 197th Infantry Brigade

The benefits are what I like about the Army. What pleases me the least is the caliber of some people (for example- always being late). Nothing is done to reprimand them.

Sgt. Marcus Garza
2nd Combat Support Hospital

I like the job security. What I don't like is that there is a lot less discipline now days.

PFC James Haymon
Company B, 2/69th Armor,
197th Infantry Brigade

What pleases me the most are the benefits and the job itself; in civilian life you don't drive a tank. What pleases me the least is the long hours in the field.

What pleases you most and least about the Army?

Pvt. 2 Ruth Fitzgerald
988th Military Police Company

I like the challenge because I'm a female in a man's army. I don't like some of the hassles you have to go through.

Sp4 Rogelio Farias
Combat Support, 3/7th Infantry

I like the benefits and my duty as a red-eye gunner. I don't like the harrassment you have to put up with.

Capt. John Stills
DPCA, Fort Polk, La.

What I like about the Army is the job opportunity training experience you get. The unwillingness of the chain-of-command to deal with soldiers' problems may be perceived to do nothing with the Army but it may affect the performance on the way the soldier works.

PFC James Jolly
988th Military Police Company

I like the benefits and options for advancement which you couldn't get in a normal job. The pay is good if you are single and I enjoy the pride in serving. The least thing I like in the Military Police Corp is that it gets a lot of static; there are so many things we are not allowed to do. We can't be a nice guy to help someone out without always having to go through channels and filling out paperwork.

Improvement on guardrails can prevent tragedy

To the Editor:

I am writing this letter in hopes that it may cause some positive impact by not having to run the red tape gamut. My subject is guardrails, specifically those on the road leaving and entering the main entrance to Fort Benning. The reason I am addressing this subject is because three weeks ago a young soldier in this unit was killed in an accident involving one of those guardrails. It is indeed true that fatigue and alcohol were the major contributing factors, but the device that could have saved his life appears to have actually taken it. His car hit the front end of the guardrail at such an angle so as to cause the flattened, knife-like edge to pierce his vehicle at the lower front edge of his door. The rail carried him into the back seat of the car causing severe injury to him and then continued out the back of the car taking most of the rear passenger area and trunk with it. This instrument left in its wake a widow and two-month-old baby, along with many friends who admired this soldier for his kindness and friendly attitude. I am not trying to blame his death on anyone or any agency except the errors in his judgment. It would be my suggestion to those empowered to take action that the ends of the guardrails be buried, as has been done on the highways for many years, and possibly avert another tragedy such as this one.

2nd Lt. R. W. Olsen

Lower ranks ungrateful?

To the editor:

In your last publication of the BAYONET in the "Glad You Asked?" section, all of the 12 military were asked the question, "When was the last time someone told you thanks for a job well done? Who was it and why?" All of them responded in the same manner, which was someone with a higher grade. Which brought to mind a couple questions. Is it that they just don't care if the lower grades thank them or not? Or care enough to remember? Or is it that they've never been thanked by a lower grade? But if they had, it would have been nice if just one of them would have mentioned it. I think I would have said my wife.

Sp Ricky McKinney

General thanks banks

To the editor:

I wish to share with BAYONET readers my personal appreciation for the way local banks responded to the recent pay crisis.

Faced with a late pay day pending legislative approval of the resolution authorizing payment of federal salaries, banking institutions in the community readily agreed to deposit money for both military and civilian personnel having deposit accounts. The promise that at least some of Fort Benning's soldiers and civilian workers would receive their pay on time was most reassuring.

For their generous cooperation in time of great need, I sincerely thank the National Bank of Fort Benning, Columbus Bank and trust, First National Bank of Columbus, and Trust Company of Columbus.

197th vs 82nd in Bold Eagle

Bold Eagle 1980 began Sunday as green parachute canopies filled the Florida sky when the 3rd Brigade, 82nd Airborne Division dropped over 2,000 men and 162 tons of equipment in support of the operation at Eglin Air Force Base.

Bold Eagle is an exercise designed to evaluate the effectiveness of tactics, techniques and procedures of multi-service units in a combat situation, using an excess of 20,000 personnel from the Navy, Air Force and Army.

The 3rd Brigade 'dropped in' to play part of the friendly forces battling the opposition army, played by Benning's 197th Infantry Brigade. The action began Monday afternoon when the 197th started moving against the 82nd's advance units and continued through the night and into early Tuesday morning, with the 197th gradually forcing the 82nd back.

Encounters using strategy and tactics are expected to continue throughout the week and next week's issue of the BAYONET will give further details.

Camellia is an apartment motel. We don't rent rooms, we rent furnished apartments with all the features of a regular motel plus added conveniences that cannot be provided with just a single room - and all at the same, or most times lower rates than the single-room motel. For example, our "standard" unit is comprised of two bedrooms, combination living room-dining room, bathroom and fully furnished kitchen including refrigerator, stove, cooking utensils, and table service for six people. These are some of the "extras" but at no extra cost. Our 100 units are in separate buildings with usually four apartments in each building, which adds to a person's or family's privacy.

Fort Benning temperature standards announced

The normal heating season on Fort Benning will start when the average outside air temperature between 6 a.m. and 10 p.m. falls below 60°F for three consecutive days.

When heating is authorized, the following temperature standards are the maximum heated space temperatures to be maintained by the heating system provided for that purpose. Space temperatures may be exceeded at times when unavoidable heat comes from other sources such as cooking, equipment heat load, lighting heat load, groups of people, etc. Space temperatures will be based on dry-bulb thermometer reading, not on equipment thermostat settings.

Max Heated Space Temp	Functional Areas
80 Degrees F (27 Degrees C)	Intensive care, special care nursery, special treatment rooms, special processes, i.e., paint shops, drying rooms, etc.
76 Degrees F (24 Degrees C)	Operating and delivery rooms.
75 Degrees F (21 Degrees C)	All other occupied medical and dental facilities.
68 Degrees F (20 Degrees C)	Living quarters, lavatories & showers, clubs, theaters, libraries, PX facilities, chapels, museums, classrooms, dining halls and commissary store. (Night set back to 60°F.)
65 Degrees F (18 Degrees C)	Areas or that portion of areas where personnel seated or standing involving little or no exercise. Includes as a minimum: offices, hangers, lean-tos and warehouses, shops and like areas.

60 Degrees F (16 Degrees C) Issue and similar rooms, gymnasium activity areas, bowling alleys, craft shops and living quarters during sleeping hours.

55 Degrees F (13 Degrees C) Shops, hangars, warehouses, similar buildings or portions of buildings where personnel work in a standing position and exercise moderately, i.e., sorting or collecting to or from bins, light packing and crating work. (Night set-back of offices during nonworking hours.)

40 Degrees F (4 Degrees C) Shops, hangars, warehouses and the like where heat is required to protect from freezing; where personnel do work involving considerable exercise, i.e., foundries, heavy packing, crating and stacking; and when buildings are not occupied for 24 hours or more.

No heat when the outside temperature exceeds 60 degrees F (16 degrees C) except for medical, dental and special process facilities.

Exceptions to standard temperatures are made for medical activities, special purpose functions and personal medical reasons. Requests for personal medical waivers are initiated by the person's physician and approved only by Chief, Professional Services, ATZB-MAH for military occupants and by the Occupational Health Clinic, MEDDAC for civilian personnel. Requests for other temperature standard exceptions will be justified by the major command/directorate and forwarded to DFAE, ATTN: ATZB-FE-U for consideration and approval.

Building occupants are prohibited from starting, tampering or altering their heating systems to provide heat under conditions other than described above. Any temperature lower than the standard is also permissible provided that no structural or freeze damage occurs to the facility.

Each organization energy conservation officer (ECO) will assist his unit or office to implement the procedures of Appendix B, USAIC Reg 11-27, using the self-help technique to the maximum extent.

Each family housing occupant will implement the conservation procedures provided in DA Pam 210-2, USAIC Reg 420-24 and from the mandatory Self-Help Course of the Facilities Training School. Additional suggestions will be published in the Benning Bulletin.

CFC update

At the beginning of the sixth week of the Combined Federal Campaign, a total of $138,973.42 has been received in pledges and donations. The post goal is $325,000.

James Schoonover, post project officer, reminds military and civilian personnel here that the payroll deduction plan is the simplest way to give. "In this way," he stated, "you can make a much larger contribution to this extremely worthwhile cause with very little impact on your own standard of living. And remember, it's all tax-deductible!"

EERs halted for all Army E-4s

WASHINGTON (ARNEWS)--The Army is doing away with evaluation reports on E4's.

Effective Oct. 1, 1979 Enlisted Evaluation Reports (EER'S) and Enlisted Evaluation Data Reports will no longer be prepared for soldiers in that pay grade, according to a DA personnel official.

EER'S with an end month of September 1979 or earlier for E-4's will be completed and forwarded to the U.S. Army Enlisted Records Evaluation Center (USAEREC) as usual, the official says.

If a soldier has not been previously evaluated, an initial evaluation report will be prepared three months after promotion to pay grade E5 beginning Oct. 1, the official stated. A single report form, the Senior Enlisted Evaluation Report (DA Form 2166-5A), will be used. This means that E5's will receive the senior EER beginning Oct. 1, explained the official.

The official commented that DA Form 2166-5 will not be used for any report with an end month after September 1979.

The latest available Enlisted Evaluation Report Weighted Average (EERWA) will be used for an E4 soldier competing for promotion to E5 until the March 1980 promotion standing list. The E4's EERWA will no longer be used after that date.

According to the official, March 1980 was chosen as the start date for commander's input because of the recomputation period so that all soldiers on an E5 promotion list will have their points awarded using the same method.

During the interim, Oct. 1, 1979 -- February 1980, E4 soldiers who have no EERWA will continue to use the latest available average EERWA for soldiers in grade E4 to compete for promotion.

However, the official added, most soldiers recommended for promotion during this period will have an EER because they must have at least four months time-in-grade, with maximum wavier, to compete for promotion.

Officials say that at the end of March 1980, all E4's on a standing list for promotion to E5 will be competing on the basis of their commander's promotion points rather than the E4 EERWA. These points will be used in determining the June 1980 promotion point cut-off scores, stated the official.

In the other change, the Enlisted Evaluation

Data Report USAEREC Form 10A will not be prepared for soldiers in grades E4 and below after Oct. 1. USAEREC Form 10A's will be issued for those E4 EER's/SQT's with an ending month of September 1979 or earlier. Soldiers in grade E-5 - E9 will continue to receive USAEREC Form 10 A's with EER and SQT data as usual, commented the official.

Halloween

Motorists must use special caution

While the young folk of the nation are off in their own world of fantasy this Halloween, motorists should do their very best driving so we can keep them in our own world of reality. The National Safety Council cautions you to be especially cautious on this special night.

The main thing to bear in mind is that the youngsters garbed in outlandish costumes for their trick or treat ventures may be concentrating so much on having fun that they neglect their own safety. Many of the young fun seekers will be wearing face masks which severely restrict their vision. A number of youngsters will be in cumbersome costumes that prevent them from moving about easily. Virtually all will be hampered by big shopping bags for their trick or treat goodies.

The National Safety Council offers these safe motoring tips to make this Halloween safe for both children and adults.

- Make sure your headlights and windshield area are as clean as possible to assure good visibility.

- Obey all traffic signs and regulations, and slow down more than you normally would in residential areas.

- Watch for children darting from between parked cars.

- Be on the lookout for children in dark clothing walking down the road, on the shoulders, in the median and everywhere else you would not normally expect them.

What do you do if you are the chauffeur and in charge of a car pool of candy seekers? More important than anything else, your job is to concentrate on the job of driving and not allow yourself to become distracted by the noisy crowd of kids around you. Control the children at all times whether in or out of the car.

The majority of Halloween accidents occur when excited children dart from between cars, oblivious to traffic. The National Safety Council urges parents to consider these child savers:

- Map out a route for your children, marking stops at only those homes where you know the residents.

- Tell the children to cross the street only at authorized crosswalks and never between parked cars.

- Remind them to look in all directions before crossing the street, and to watch for and obey all traffic lights.

- Instruct them to use sidewalks, not streets, for walking from house to house, and remind them to always wait on the curb, not the street, until it is safe to cross.

- Make sure the children are easily visible to motorists; select a light-colored costume and generously apply reflective tape to the back, front and sides; decorate the trick or treat bag with reflective tape and give a flashlight to at least one of the children.

- Encourage the children to do their trick or treating during daylight hours.

- Make sure costumes fit children properly and do not restrict vision.

- Always have an adult with the children to serve both as a guide and a quieting influence.

Haunted house set to scare

By Sharron Calabrisi

Not only does October bring cooler temperatures, football games and falling leaves, it also brings Halloween's ghosts and goblins.

This year there will be more in store for post trick or treaters than going around loading up on candy.

McGraw Manor Community Life Program Association is having a haunted house under the supervision of Sp4 Jeffrey E. Harrington, Chapel Activities.

The house will be open Tuesday and Wednesday for all ages. It will feature such creatures as Frankenstein's monster, a werewolf, Dracula and witches.

"The original idea came about to help support the community in different activities," Harrington explained. "This will help keep the kids off the streets and give them something to do." Older kids will participate by dressing up as the ghouls at the haunted house.

The children will walk through the different rooms where they will encounter creepy, scary things. There will also be an apple bobbing contest and candy will be given out.

This is the third year the haunted house has been held. "It is the biggest attended activity we have here," concluded Harrington.

The haunted house will be in Bldg. 11303 in the McGraw housing area (off Custer Road). For more information, call 544-1068 or 544-2986.

Guidelines announced

Benning parents are urged to limit their children's trick or treat activities on Halloween, Wednesday, to the hours of 6-9 p.m.

The post Provost Marshal's Office recommends the following precautions be taken:

- Parents should check all edible items prior to children consuming them.

- Parents are requested to put front and back outside lights on.

- Owners of dogs are requested to secure their pets to prevent injury to children.

- Adult escorts are requested for small children during the time period.

- Carry a flashlight and wear light color clothing while walking.

- Motorists are reminded to drive slowly while in the housing area. Violators will be cited.

The military police will have patrols in each housing area during the night.

Oct. 28

Fort Benning returns to Standard time Sunday at 2 a.m. and residents are reminded to set their clocks back one hour.

Stray animals cause problem

During the month of September, the game warden picked up 51 stray dogs, eight stray cats and investigated 94 complaints about pets and stray animals.

USAIC Regulation 210-10 requires that pets be kept indoors or secured outdoors on the owner's premises. Owners of animals are responsible for controlling their animals at all times. Pet animals, when outside, will be leashed or under voice control and sight of a responsible individual. Animals which do not respond to voice commands are considered to be uncontrolled.

Animals which have been involved in bite/scratch incidents will be declared a nuisance and in accordance with USAIC Regulation 210-10 the owner directed to remove the animal from the installation.

Game wardens will pick up animals found or reported running loose on post and turn them over to the veterinarian for confinement and disposition. If the pet is identifiable by a registration tag number or other identification the owner will be notified to claim the animal. Owners must pay the Fort Benning Animal Care Fund for confinement of their stray animal, in accordance with AR 40-905. If the animal owner cannot be identified, the animal will be confined for a period of three working days prior to disposal.

Animals not claimed may be adopted by new owners or disposed of as authorized by the veterinarian.

Benning personnel use METRA to commute to work

By Debbie Harrison

In the latter part of August, George E. Heberling, director of Resource Management, came up with an idea as an approach to energy saving for Fort Benning military and civilian personnel.

Heberling called METRA and talked to C.L. Moffitt, METRA manager, who agreed to try a plan for Fort Benning personnel to commute to and from work. Heberling then presented Moffitt a survey map of post buildings which would have the most possible METRA customers commuting from the North Columbus area. Buildings 89 (Finance and Accounting Division) and 85 (Military Pay Section) were selected. METRA approved a charter bus based on getting enough people to ride METRA.

A three-day "free" trial run was started on Sept. 2 to attract customers and test the route to see which areas would be eliminated. Only the Oakland Park Shopping Center was deleted from the route.

The charter bus first picks up people on the south side of the Allendale Shopping Center in the Windsor Park area at 7 a.m., Peachtree Mall at 7:05 a.m. and Starmount Shopping Center at 7:23 a.m. It then arrives promptly at the Building 89 parking lot at 7:37 a.m. and Building 85 parking lot at 7:41 a.m.

In the evening, the charter bus leaves the Building 89 parking lot at 4:15 p.m. then arrives at Building 85 a few minutes later to take people home.

People may pay either by the day or the month. Daily prices for one way is 75¢ (exact change required), or a monthly pass may be purchased for $22.50. The pass is only valid for the one-month period. Customers may also buy a package of 34 tickets for $25.

A daily passenger, Sharon Robins, who works at the post Travel Section, said approximately 23 people per day travel round trip on the charter bus. Since Robins began riding the bus, she said she has cut her gasoline consumption considerably.

Another daily passenger, Madge Bunderick, who also works in the post Travel Section, commented, "The main advantage of riding the bus is you get to relax, get to know the people you work with in the office better and catch up on reading or the latest crochet."

"After a long day at work it's nice to know you can relax. I think it will prevent a lot of stress-related accidents. Everything works out fine in the long run," Robins added.

The only inconvenience passengers have mentioned is having to travel to the pick-up point.

Dependents paying more for Army medical care

The Defense Department announced that effective Oct. 1, 1979, dependents of active duty, retired and deceased servicemembers will be charged $5 per day for inpatient care at uniformed services hospitals. The previous charge was $4.65 per day.

New cost-share requirements went into effect on the same day for inpatient care received from civilian sources by spouses and children of active duty servicemembers under the Civilian Health and Medical Program of the Uniformed Services (CHAMPUS). These individuals will pay $5 per day, with a minimum cost-share requirement of $25 if they are hospitalized for less than five days. Previously, they paid $4.65 per day, with a minimum requirement of $25.

By law, the inpatient cost-share requirement under CHAMPUS for spouses and children of active duty servicemembers is based on the charge at uniformed services hospitals.

The new rate does not apply to CHAMPUS cost-sharing of inpatient care for retirees or dependents of retired or deceased members. Individuals in these categories who are eligible for CHAMPUS pay 25 percent of the allowable medical facility charges and professional fees.

Inpatient charges at uniformed services hospitals are adjusted periodically to reflect changes in uniformed services pay. Previously, this adjustment was made at the start of a calendar year. Beginning last year, however, the adjustment was made at the start of the fiscal year.

The increase from $4.65 per day to $5 per day is approximately the same percentage increase as the pay raise that went into effect on Oct. 1.

Influenza:

Influenza virus infections occur every year in the United States, but they vary greatly in severity and geographic distribution. Last year the predominant flu viruses circulating were A Brazil and A Texas. This year it is uncertain which strain will predominate. However, the flu vaccine for 79/80 contains both these viruses as well as the B Hong Kong strain.

Military personnel are required to receive an annual flu shot unless exempted by a medical waiver. Civilian employees are urged on a voluntary basis to get the flu shot. Employees in an "essential service category;" e.g., fireman, DFAE maintenance workers, commo-electronic workers, airfield key personnel, hospital employees; are especially urged to obtain the flu shot. This is so that in the event of a widespread flu epidemic, these essential services will not have to be curtailed. Dependents over the age of 13 and retirees may receive the flu shot also on a voluntary basis.

Personnel who fall into one or more of the following categories should receive flu immunization to prevent serious complications from the flu:

- Over the age of 65
- Chronic heart disease
- Chronic lung disease
- Chronic kidney disease
- Diabetes
- Chronic severe anemia
- Conditions which impair the immune system

Pregnant women may receive an influenza immunization if desired since there is no evidence that the flu shot is harmful to the fetus. Children under the age of 13 should be immunized against influenza only if they suffer from one of the chronic diseases above or it is recommended by their physician. All civilians must sign a consent form prior to receiving the flu shot.

Benning soldiers, civilians to receive 'shot in arm'

The influenza vaccine has been 'cleaned up' in the last few years. The number of mild side effects, (i.e., fever, sore arm) have been significantly reduced. The incidence of Guillain-Barre Syndrome (GBS) in recipients in the 1978-79 flu vaccine was not significantly different from the occurrence of GBS in those not receiving the flu vaccine.

The schedule for influenza immunization clinics will be announced later, when finalized, but are being planned for Nov. 14-30.

Modern helicopters such as these are used for medical evacuation by the 498th.

498th: Air ambulance service rises to occasion when needed for medical emergencies

By Pat Barham

The MEDIVAC helicopters of the 498th Medical Company have been a welcome sight over many battlefields in the past, however, during peacetime operations the 498th also provides air ambulance service to Fort Benning, Columbus and the surrounding area.

The 498th Medical Company's aircraft are able to respond to any situation faster than in times past when land vehicles were unable to reach injured persons. CWO-2 Thomas W. Locke said, "We have handled many types of injuries; everything from broken legs to premature births." Locke explained that if a 498th helicopter was needed anywhere in the local area "it could be loaded, airborne, and at the scene within 30 minutes." The 498th provides the only helicopter service for Columbus and if a life or death, or other serious situation arose, helicopters would be dispatched off post.

The first helicopters used for the evacuation of troops (during the Korean conflict) left patients unattended and exposed to unfavorable conditions during the fight.

Now, helicopters assigned to the 498th are equipped with medical equipment and trained personnel to assist the wounded or injured. According to Locke, "Our helicopters are fully equipped with everything from band aids to oxygen."

Although the unit may go for weeks at a time without responding to an emergency, 24 hour stand by crews are on call, ready to act should the need arise. The capabilities of the helicopter are almost unlimited. This is due to the reaction time, mobility, and range capabilities of the aircraft.

Locke said that, "Should a pilot crash into trees, making conventional rescue impossible, the 498th is equipped with hoist capabilities designed to retrieve the pilot for transportation to medical facilities."

Due to the nature of the service, only emergencies dealing with life or death, or a serious situation are handled by the 498th. If called, the unit will respond when help is needed, but should a priority emergency arise the unit's first mission is to respond to the priority call, he said.

When ever or where ever needed, the modern helicopters and professional crews of the 498th Medical Company are ready to respond in an instant to carry out their mission — saving human lives.

Simulated accidents are used to train the 498th.

Mass casualty exercise successful

Martin Army Hospital's (MAH) mass casualty exercise was labeled a success by the evaluating committee and it was realistic enough to fool many people.

Its purpose was to test the USAIC's Mass Casualty Augmentation Plan and the Medical Department Activity's Emergency Preparedness Plan in the case of a large scale accident.

Forty 36th Engineer Group soldiers were supposedly hurt in a range accident caused by a mortar explosion. They were assigned various fake injuries and moulaged for realism.

Range control was notified of the accident at 1:50 p.m. and by 2 p.m. the first MEDIVAC helicopter was on the scene. Not long after that, the ambulance began arriving with doctors from the Family Practice Clinic on board.

The patients were screened, evaluated and stabilized before their trips to the hospital. There a tent was set up for further triage admissions and critiquing of the patient's preliminary treatment.

These exercises are done to find out what problems will develop in handling the situation. The biggest problem discovered was in communications. Too many people had the need to be on the radio at the same time. A revamp of the network may call for a central console. This and other minor problems will be evaluated and changes will be recommended before the next mass casualty exercise.

Ambulance driver, Leon Chisolm (c), watches an aidman prepare to piggy-back carry one of the lesser injured patients to the triage tent at MAH.

Dr. Joseph Dziados and ambulance driver Allen Garner treat a man's badly injured leg before transporting him to MAH.

SFC Rhinehart Ligman, Meddac, adds make-believe blood to Sp4 Raul Mendoza's fake amputated hand. Ligman prepared all of the mass casualty exercise's simulated injuries.

Badly burned from an errant mortar round, Sp4 James Robertson, 586th Engr Co, waits for medical help during the simulated range accident exercise.

Congratulations

The first Commander's Resources Management Award is presented to Col. Stephenson, Directorate of Industrial Operations, by Maj. Gen. David Grange, Jr., post commander. This award was established to recognize exceptional management improvement within a unit or activity. This semi-annual award differs from the Army Suggestion Program in recognizing units or activities instead of individuals. The Senior Program, Quick Return on Investment Program, the judging group, determined that DIO demonstrated the greatest involvement in the various management programs and displayed diverse, innovative initiative which reduced Fort Benning resource requirements.

Cut the cake

Participating in the cake-cutting ceremony honoring the 38th anniversary of the Military Police Corps are (L to R) Sgt. Charles Jones, Law Enforcement Command Soldier of the Year, Pvt. Holiday schedule announced

WASHINGTON (ARNEWS) — This year's Christmas-New Year holiday period is from 7 a.m. Dec. 20 (Thursday) to 5 p.m. Jan. 3 (Thursday), according to DA CIR 612-21.

For soldiers using commercial transportation only, commanders may authorize departure as early as noon Dec. 19 and return as late as midnight Jan. 3.

The DA circular encourages commanders to authorize residents of Puerto Rico enough leave to permit them to be with their families in Puerto Rico for Three Kings Day (Jan. 6).

All personnel should be afforded the opportunity to take leave during the holiday period. Excess leave (leave without pay), however, will be authorized only in emergency situations or under unusual circumstances when advance leave cannot be granted, according to the circular.

Soldiers who do not receive mid-month pay may request a local payment in an amount up to one-half their estimated net pay for December. Such payments may be made by check or cash on the date best suited to local requirements, but soldiers should make their requests as early as possible.

Every effort will be made to avoid requiring PCS travel during the holiday period. Travel and port calls may be scheduled during the period, however, at the request of the individual.

Army to mail W-2's in January

WASHINGTON (ARNEWS) — W-2 Forms (Wage and Tax Statement) for 1979 will be sent out at the end of January, Army finance officials announced recently.

Last year, the forms were sent out in December and, officials explained, about 80,000 were incorrect. Corrected forms were sent out, but after many soldiers had already filed their income tax claims. Sending the forms out in January will allow any late changes to be made before the W-2s are issued, officials said.

This may, however, delay filing your tax statement, officials cautioned. You can figure your taxes using the cumulative figures on your December Leave and Earnings Statement (LES) but you must wait to file your income tax statement until you get your W-2.

Officials advise you use this time to consult your unit tax assistance officer for any help you may need.

Former airborne training director here dies

Funeral services were held yesterday at the Main Post chapel for retired Col. Lamar A. "Bill" Welch, distinguished veteran of three wars and director of the Airborne Department here from 1964 to 1972. He died Monday at Martin Army Hospital at the age of 64.

Members of the Airborne Department served as pallbearers and provided the color guard and firing squad. He was buried in the Main Post cemetery.

A graduate of The Citadel, Welch enlisted in the Army in 1939. He served as battalion commander of the 1st Battalion, 424th Infantry, 106th Infantry Division during World War II and was seriously wounded during the Battle of the Bulge.

He also served in the Korean and Vietnam wars. In 1955-56 he served as senior adviser to the Nung Division, a south Chinese group of mercenaries, at Son Mao in Vietnam; as commander of the 1st Airborne Battle Group, 505th Airborne Infantry, Mainz, Germany, in 1959; as intelligence officer with V Corps, Frankfurt, Germany, 1960-61; and as deputy commander, Special Warfare Center, Fort Bragg, N. C., for 10 months in 1961-62.

In 1962 he volunteered for duty in Vietnam where he served as deputy commanding general, U. S. Army Advisory Group, Vietnam (MAAG) from August 1962 to August 1963.

Following his service in Vietnam, Welch became director of airborne training at Fort Benning. During his eight years as director, he made many innovations in the methods followed in airborne training, including altering the position paratroopers take during falls, adding padding to the airborne helmet to cushion the base of the skull and opening airborne training to ROTC juniors.

At his retirement in 1972, he had made 750 parachute jumps, nearly 700 of them with the 200,000 students who attended airborne school while he was director.

Welch was the recipient of the Distinguished Service Medal, the Bronze Star Medal with V Device and one Oak Leaf Cluster, Purple Heart, Bronze Star Medal, Army Commendation Ribbon with two Oak Leaf Clusters and the Master Parachutist Badge.

The colonel was born Oct. 25, 1914, in Dothan, Ala., son of Mr. and Mrs. William Marvin Welch. Since his retirement he had resided at 1014 Peachtree Dr., Columbus, and was well known for his work with underprivileged children.

Survivors include his widow, Helen Jerry Welch; two daughters, Mrs. Frances Kelper and Mrs. Sally Stewart; a son, Joseph Welch; three stepdaughters, Mrs. Jerry Mock, Mrs. Leigh Seawell and Mrs. Kristin Joiner; two sisters, Mrs. Bessie Hatton and Mrs. Nancy Cartwright; and five grandchildren.

The family suggests that contributions in his memory be made to the Salvation Army or Valley Rescue Mission.

Benning youth chosen

Timothy E. Fry, 10-year-old son of Sgt. 1st Class and Mrs. Chester Fry, of 228 Lavoie Ave., Fort Benning, will be joining more than 1,000 delegates, alternates and official observers from across the nation next month in Washington, D.C. to help shape a national information policy at the first White House Conference on Library and Information Services.

The conference, to be held Nov. 15-19 at the Washington Hilton Hotel, will recommend to the president policies and programs to deal with the future of libraries and information services through the 1980's and beyond. The conference will be the first national forum to address the diverse library and information needs of people throughout the country in the light of the technological revolution that has brought the nation into the Information age.

Timothy, who will be the youngest participant, was chosen on the basis of his contributions to the Washington State Governor's Conference held earlier this year. His father was stationed at Fort Lewis, Wash. at the time.

Timothy was nominated to attend the Washington State Conference by two local librarians who had noted his keen interest in reading and the quality of his school work.

Anyone interested in having their ideas concerning libraries and information services presented at the conference may write Timothy at his home address by Nov. 5.

18 countries send top shooters here

Story and photos by Tommy Poole

Over 100 participants representing 18 countries were on hand at Fort Benning last week for the International Coaches Clinic hosted by the U.S. Army Marksmanship unit.

Nations came from as far away as South Korea and Australia along with those from Europe and South America including Austria, Denmark, Norway, Sweden, West Germany, France, Colombia, Costa Rica, Chile and Guatemala to mention a few.

Designed primarily for the exchanging of ideas, the week long clinic consisted of instruction and demonstration in all disciplines used in international shooting events such as the Olympics, Pan American Games and World Championships. Next year in Moscow, there are seven shooting events on the Olympic Games schedule including international skeet and trap, 50 meter free rifle, 50 meter prone, rapid fire pistol, free pistol and the relatively new 50 meter running target event.

The Army's top competitors included Olympic Gold Medalist Lones Wigger and this year's Ladies World Champion Karen Monez in rifle, National Champion Charles McGowan in pistol and world record holder Joe Clemmons in skeet, demonstrating their prowess along with instruction by USAMU's top shooting coaches.

The International Coaching Clinic began several years ago as a form of goodwill and to exchange information on the latest improvements in both equipment and shooting techniques.

Yoon Deok of South Korea peers through a spotting telescope to locate his last shot.

Jose Tararico, one of Brazil's finest pistol marksmen and a member of their national team, practicing the international rapid fire event.

William Krilling, USAMU, veteran coach and former shooting member of many winning U.S. Teams, discusses the finer points of the kneeling position used in international rifle competition.

Always use common sense when running on roads

By Tom Breeding

In case you haven't noticed, there are more people on the roads lately. Specifically, not cars, not cyclists, but more runners. Many would argue that common sense dictates all the rules necessary for running safety in an urban area. Because this unfortunately named 'sense' is considerably more rare than its name would suggest, more amplification is needed.

There are specific post regulations governing running safety. USAIC Reg 210-5, Sec. 13, 79 addresses the topic directly, using the same rules outlined in USAIC Reg 190-5 for pedestrians. The former begins with the general observations that roads are designed for cars, there are tracks provided for running, and running alongside roadways is hazardous. While all these statements are true, there are other considerations.

Anyone who runs more than a couple of miles a day immediately recognizes one fact: it is boring running around the same old circle over and over. Common sense and the Regulation proceed from this point.

- Always face oncoming traffic. Or, as one runner said, "Look at 'em head on so if you can't dodge 'em, at least you can spit in their eye before they get to you."

- Yield to all vehicular traffic when crossing a road.

- Use crosswalks whenever possible. Remember, even though USAIC Reg 190-5 says that a pedestrian having entered a crosswalk has the right of way, that fact alone will not prevent your being struck by an inattentive motorist.

- Always be on the lookout for the other guy. You have a lot less protection and a lot more to lose than he.

Running during times of reduced visibility presents further problems. The runner must redouble vigilance. This is his best protection. The other is visibility.

- Wear highly reflective clothing. Many items of running attire are created to fulfill this requirement. If these are unavoidable or unaffordable, create your own by liberal application of a reflector tape. You can find this tape at most auto supply and hardware stores.

- Carry your own light. There are a number of ways to do this, including the obvious hand held flashlight. Bicyclists have long sported a small, flat flashlight with a band of elastic to attach it to either an arm or a leg. Other marketing innovators have created a variety of small lights that clip on or stick to almost anything.

While this list is not exhaustive, it should stir old and new runners alike to do one thing: think. Think before you go out running.

Think while you are running. The natural high provided by a solitary trek down a scenic road should not distract you too much. That next driver might be asleep at the wheel.

Doughboys down Macon, 26-12

By Deb Hilgeman

In most cases, consistency is a virtue but for the Fort Benning Doughboys, consistency has spelled trouble for them in four of their seven games this season. The problem is, the Doughboys keep letting their opponents score while the last strains of the National Anthem are still echoing through the stadium. Then they have to struggle from the onset just to rise from being underdogs and a victory is even more elusive.

That was the story Sunday afternoon in Doughboy Stadium as the home team downed the Macon Chiefs 26-12, despite allowing the visiting team to steamroll down the field with the opening kickoff for a 91-yard touchdown. The Chiefs took a 6-0 lead with only 14 seconds played but it had the wake-up effect of a cold shower for the Doughboys, who went on to outplay the Chiefs for the remainder of the game.

Eleven plays after the opening bombshell, Doughboy tailback Leroy Benson scored a four-yard run capping a forty-yard drive. The effort was aided by defensive back Edward Gandy who intercepted a Macon pass and returned it 29 yards, giving the Doughboys the ball on Macon's 40. Wayne Jackson's PAT was wide to the right and the score was tied at six-all.

Benning grabbed a 12-6 lead when linebacker Henry Baker recovered on Macon's 28 after the Chiefs fumbled the Doughboy kickoff. Tailback Coybern Jones made the points with a nine-yard run around the right end.

The Doughboys went on to make it three in a row when cornerback Ted Walker chalked up another interception, this time on the 50, laying the groundwork for a Leamon Hall pass to Benson, who ran in from the 10 with 8:32 remaining in the half. Jackson kicked the point after, giving the Doughboys a 19-6 lead.

The Chiefs earned their final points early in the third quarter when Ward Whyte's punt was blocked out of bounds on Benning's six-yard-line and two plays later, a pass to the end zone narrowed Benning's lead to 19-12. The PAT was blocked by Al Gardiner and Gandy.

Benning ended the scoring in the final seconds of the third quarter when Greg King swept around the left for an eight-yard run and Jackson came up with the extra point.

Both offenses took turns trading fumbles and interceptions throughout the game and Doughboy Head Coach Ralph Santaliz said later that he is still waiting for his offense to "come around." According to him, the problem is that the offense is a series of individual efforts and teamwork is needed.

The Doughboy defense, however, was not exempt from mistakes in Sunday's game and contributed their share of the 36 penalties called against the teams.

The Doughboys, now holding a 3-3-1 record, meet Southern College Sunday at 2 p.m. in Doughboy Stadium.

Steelers 14 (Game 1) Cowboys 6
Steelers 12 (Game 2) Cowboys 6

The football game against the Steelers and the Cowboys played last Saturday, Davy Verren in the 3rd quarter ran a 35 yard touchdown run around the left end - that was the start of the Steeler rally. Also included in the rally was Xavier Carter who ran a 65 yard run — this led to another touchdown by Davy Verren. This led to a winning score of 14-6 Steelers favor. In the second game which was played to break the tie that existed between the Steelers and the Cowboys resulting from the first game of the season, Steelers Xavier Carter scored the first TD in overtime to tie the game. The game then proceeded into overtime, the Steelers outstanding defensive line held the Cowboys. The Steelers went on to score the winning touchdown to end the game — final score 12-6. Greg Copeland was the outstanding defensive player.

Termite League

The Termite League Falcons ran the ball past the Bulldogs three times Saturday, to win, 18-0.

As with many Falcon games this year, the first quarter found defense pitted against defense, and ended in a 0-0 tie after only 15 plays. In the second quarter, Ron MacIver broke loose on a 40 yard run to score. The Bulldogs blasted back, but were unable to score before the half ended.

In the second half, the Bulldogs came back, not only holding the Falcon offense, but pushing the defense around a little too. Finally, Antoine Owens engineered a 53 yard run to pay dirt to make the score 12-0. Again the Falcon extra point failed. In the final period, Owens broke loose from his own 25 yard line to run 75 yards final score, but for the third time the Bulldogs denied the Falcons their conversion. As the final gun sounded, the scoreboard read, 18-0, Falcons.

Besides usual star performances by MacIver and Owens, Falcon standouts included, Ron Ingram, James Trew, and Johnny Rosato.

Brant Bargwell, Jason Kelley and Clifford Holder were Bulldog offensive standouts. Robby Johnson, Ricky Hillyard and Junior Bailey led the strong Bulldog defense.

Benning team eliminated in TRADOC tournament

The Fort Benning soccer team was eliminated from the TRADOC tourney Tuesday night after suffering a 2-1 defeat at the hands of the Fort Dix, N.J. team.

Eleven teams representing posts from the Eastern United States competed in the first TRADOC soccer tourney which began Monday at Fort Gordon, Ga.

The Benning soccer team found themselves at a disadvantage at the outset due to a number of players unable to play because of commitments to operation Bold Eagle. The remaining players drove ahead but suffered an opening round setback in the double elimination tourney.

After the opening loss, they found themselves competing in a must win situation in the losers bracket. The 'Follow Me' team rose to the occasion to defeat Fort Rucker, Ala. Rucker scored first to take an early 1-0 lead but at the 12 minute mark, Benning's Jose Olivero scored on a penalty kick to even the score. Then two minutes later Ignacio Alvarado scored again to give Benning the lead 2-1.

Alvarado scored again at the 30 minute mark to extend the Benning lead to 3-1 which was the last score for the Benning team. Rucker scored again just before the half which proved to be the last score of the game as both teams played to a scoreless tie in the second half. Benning won 3-2 to move into the game against Fort Dix.

Hunting and firearm safety

The hunting season is open, and for the next few months many people who take part in this activity will find enjoyment turning into tragedy.

For safe hunting, all personnel MUST acquaint themselves with the many hazards inherent in hunting and related activities.

Guns and ammunition function as designed — and will do so even when "no one intended or expected the weapon to fire." Young males — below 24 years of age — are the most susceptible victims.

Individuals should know the ten commandments of gun safety

I. Treat every gun with the respect due a loaded gun. This is the first rule of gun safety.

II. Guns carried into camp, home, and automobile or when not in use, must always be unloaded, and taken down or have actions open: gun always should be carried in cases to the shooting area.

III. Always be sure barrel and action are clear of obstructions, and you have ammunition of the proper size for the gun you are carrying. Remove oil and grease from chamber before firing.

IV. Always carry your gun so you can control the direction of the muzzle, even if you stumble: keep the safety on until you are ready to shoot.

V. Be absolutely sure of your target before you pull the trigger: know the identifying features of the game you intend to hunt.

VI. Never point a gun at anything you do not want to shoot; avoid horseplay when handling a gun.

VII. Unattended guns should be unloaded: Guns and ammunition should be stored separately beyond reach of children and thoughtless adults.

VIII. Never climb a tree or fence or jump a ditch with a loaded gun: never pull a gun toward you by the muzzle.

IX. Never shoot a bullet at a flat, hard surface or the surface of water when at target practice: be sure backstops are adequate.

X. Avoid alcoholic drinks before or during shooting, and leave "quick-draw" gun play to the experts.

Benning trains first Cambodian enlisted soldier

By Glenn Griffin

Pvt Set Thay Som is a Cambodian. He is also a U.S. soldier and a member of Echo Company, 2nd Battalion, 1st Infantry Training Brigade.

Som is the first Cambodian to join the U.S. Army. He has lived in Elizabethtown, Penn. since 1975 when he left Cambodia.

Som lived in the southern province of Kampot. In 1972, at the age of 15, he joined the Cambodian Army. Som fought until 1975, principally along the Mekong River. When the government fell in April of 1975, Som and other soldiers were able to take a ship to Malaysia. From there Som went to the Philippines.

The Edward Zell family of Elizabethtown sponsored Som's entry into the U.S. In the last four years, he has learned English and worked as a carpenter.

He enlisted in the Army because, "I like the Army better than being a carpenter." In comparing the training here to the training he had in Cambodia, Som pointed out that he used U.S. weapons while in Cambodia. He said that instead of blanks, the Cambodian training used live ammunition. Most importantly, Som said that during his training his unit went on three actual sweeps of enemy areas for a week at a time.

Som says he like the training here. "He gives 110 percent," said SFC Cary Rutland. From here, Som intends to join the 101st Airborne Division.

Company bugler 'earning his keep'

By Pat Astran and Glen Griffin

When 28-year-old PFC Dayv A. Neiburg plays the bugle, it is more than just boyish exuberance. He also plays the cornet, trumpet, flugelhorn and a bit of the harmonica.

Neiburg has been playing one instrument or the other since he was eight. His mother, a country and western singer, provided the musical atmosphere that encouraged his study.

Neiburg is currently training with Echo Company, 6th Battalion, 1st Infantry Training Brigade. He is no stranger to the Army, however. He served before with the XVIII Airborne Corps as well as in a Minnesota Reserve unit.

When 1st Sgt. Arthur Hill of Echo Company discovered Neiburg's talent, he set him to work as the company bugler. Waking up to Neiburg's playing may not make waking up any easier, but at least it is different.

It isn't easy to keep a bugler to yourself, Echo Company has learned. Neiburg has been tapped to play at 6th Battalion retreats and chaplains' prayer meetings, too.

VA Q&A

Q—My friend received claims forms for collecting the GI life insurance based on her former husband's death. She was reluctant to apply because she thinks she lost the right to the insurance due to divorce. However, I persuaded her to fill out and return the forms. Was I correct in persuading her to do this?

A—Yes. Divorce does not affect an individual's right to insurance benefits. Whoever is properly listed as beneficiary by the insured veteran will be paid the insurance benefits.

Q—I have a service connected disability and was discharged prior to World War II. Does service during this period qualify me for an automobile grant?

A—The VA automobile grant is available to veterans who are entitled to VA compensation for loss or loss of use of a hand or foot, or who are blind, regardless of the period of service.

Q—I am being transferred to Australia because of my job. I have a home I purchased with a VA guaranteed loan. If I sell my present home, may I get a loan to buy a home in Australia?

A—No. GI loans are granted only for property in the United States, Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands or Guam.

Q—I am a World War I veteran with a service connected amputation. Am I eligible for a specially adapted automobile from the Veterans Administration?

A—Yes, if you meet all requirements of the law passed last year providing this benefit for World War I veterans. Check with your nearest VA regional office or seek assistance through local veterans service organizations.

Alabama U. plays here tonight

By Gary Jones

Avid followers of the pigskin sport will have an opportunity to see the nation's number one ranked football program in action here tonight at 7:30 p.m. in Doughboy Stadium when the University of Alabama JV's take on the Doughboys.

The Doughboys, even though suffering a few narrow losses, are having an outstanding season with a 4-3-1 record to date and are hoping to extend their present two game winning streak to three against the Baby Elephants. The Alabama JV team, although not quite as strong as 'Bear' Bryant's first line crew, will be a tough opponent for the Doughboys. "Alabama will dress about 80 players for the game, many of which have seen varsity action," explained Ralph Santaliz, Doughboy coach.

When the season began, Doughboy Stadium was nearly filled for each game "which really helped the team," Santaliz said. However, the dwindling attendance lately has almost nullified the Doughboys' homefield advantage.

"About 55 percent of our players are playing with one type of injury or another," said Santaliz. The players all work their regular jobs and practice during their off duty hours only. "The only thing they receive is the satisfaction they get from playing," the coach added.

The Doughboys hope to have some fans in the stands tonight against the Baby Elephants. One Doughboy coach optimistically commented, "If we have 3,000 fans to cheer us on, Alabama will never cross the 50-yard line."

Training holiday set for Nov. 23

American soldier upholds tradition

By Matthew Boison

The American Fighting Soldier. He hasn't changed much over the years. Oh, yes, the uniform and weapons have changed to give the soldier better adaptation to changing tactical warfare, but our attitude hasn't changed.

The American Fighting Soldier is still the most powerful and most feared weapon on earth. "Damn the torpedos," "I haven't begun to fight" and General McAuliffe's inspiring one word during WWII, "Nuts," show the spirit the American Fighting Soldier has had and will always have.

We Americans hate to lose at anything. We strive to be the best at everything we do. We have come from out of the blue, dropped from the sky, faced staggering odds and still won.

Vietnam was no exception. The anti-war demonstrators said, "A war with no purpose." Others said the war in Vietnam was a slap in the Americans' face that America could not turn its back on.

We fought with pride as many on this post will remember. But if we waste time dwelling on the past we will miss out on the future and all its new challenges.

The American Fighting Soldier is still a proud machine; nothing will change that. America, like the team that we are, will always pull together in adverse situations and live up to the motto, "American ingenuity will conquer all." We train hard during peacetime for a situation that may arise anytime or anywhere, and if that occasion ever arises, American will rise up forcefully to meet that challenge.

The 36th Engineer Group is ready for that situation whenever and wherever it may happen. The 36th Engineer Group thought you'd like to know.

Fort Benning victim writes charitable letter to thief

To the Editor:

I'd like to take this time, if I may, to use your column to express my gratitude. Thank You. Dear Very Kind Person, or Persons:

This afternoon, my 18-year-old son went to the P.X. Mall. He left home at 12:35 p.m., he arrived home again at 12:55 p.m. The total time he was gone was 20 minutes. From the time he parked his car in the parking lot, until the time he returned to the car, you had helped yourself to his C.B. antennas . . . those weren't just any antennas, they were "Beer Can" Huslers, and by no means inexpensive (you know quality when you see it). We want to thank you very much for helping yourself. We know you must have been desperately hungry to have taken such a chance in broad daylight. We hope you get enough money from the antennas to feed your hungry children. Had you just waited and approached my son to ask for a few dollars, he would have been more than happy to help you, or if you had come to us, we would have helped. It surely wouldn't have been the first time we had added more water to the stew to feed a few more hungry mouths. We don't have much ourselves, as we have unsurmountable medical bills due to a very ill son of ours, but we'd have done what we could have. No, we're not mad or bitter; we understand that things are tough and we know that what you did was well justified in your own mind. We pray that your hardships are over soon, before you get caught.

There are agencies on post and off that can offer you and your family assistance to help you over the rough times. Don't be ashamed of asking them for help, we've had to do it a few times ourselves, but even if you don't go to them, promise me one thing; before you do something like this again, think about your loved ones and the burden you'll put on them if you are caught.

Loving you the Christian way,
Patricia D. Horner

Coach supports team

To the Editor:

This is my first year of coaching football in the States. As time goes on, I have discovered the fundamentals and techniques of the sport that I did not know, even though I had played football for eight years. Even as a coach, I am not excluded from learning the skills of the game.

The sport involves such tactics as play creation, time, patience, discipline, support, criticism, determination, sportsmanship, and lastly, friendship. I get involved with these players and learn what makes them "tick." I thought only doctors made housecalls, but I found that coaches do, too.

I mentioned the word "support" earlier. I must say this word is probably one of the most important things a person, whether involved in a game or on a daily basis, needs to accomplish a particular goal. These young men are at the age (10-13) when it really means a great deal to see his parents support of him. I even had one young man ask me to ask his father to come watch him practice.

Realizing that fathers have to work and have some other forms of duty sometimes, too, I feel there is time, however, for these kids. I, personally, would like to see the parents at practice and games because these kids need that support. They work hard trying to achieve a goal and would have an immeasurable opportunity to accomplish this goal if they saw that the parents really cared.

I would like to take this opportunity to thank those parents who have been supporting the team and to invite the others to practice and the games. I think the Buccaneers should be congratulated for the fine job they are doing this year, even though they have been struck with injuries. I hope the parents will give as much support as the players are giving toward winning the games.

programs in effect at Fort Benning to control stray animals and dispose of unwanted pets.

Military police assigned to the Fish and Game Section of the Provost Marshal's Office have the task of capturing stray animals on the Fort Benning military reservation. Stray animals captured by these individuals include abandoned and wild dogs and cats and privately-owned pets that are not on a leash or in a confined area. These strays are turned in to the Veterinary Activity's Impoundment and Quarantine Facility (Building 267) on 10th Division Road. If the animal is wearing a rabies vaccination tag or other identification tag, attempts are made to contact the owner. All strays are held at the impoundment facility for three working days. If unclaimed by the morning of the fourth working day, the animal is euthanized or made available for adoption at the discretion of the veterinarian in charge. If an individual's dog or cat is missing, he/she should come by Building 267 or call 545-4825/545-4444 between 8 a.m.-noon and 1-4 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Before strays are returned to their owner, the following requirements must be met:

1. Owner must obtain a copy of the Stray Animal Report, FB (MED) FL 29, on his/her pet from the impoundment facility and present it at the Provost Marshal's Office and get it officially stamped. This stamped report should then be presented to the veterinary personnel at Building 267.

2. The owner must show proof (a vaccination certificate) of a current rabies vaccination for his/her pet. If the animal is three months or older and does not have a current vaccination, the owner must pay a $2 fee and his/her pet will be administered a rabies vaccination before it is released from the impoundment facility. An impoundment fee of $1 per day will also be charged.

Unwanted animals can be turned in by the owner to the Animal Disease Prevention and Control Facility, Building 265, for euthanasia or adoption. Only healthy animals are accepted for adoption. Owners must pay a $1 euthanasia fee per animal with a maximum fee of $3 for three or more animals. Animals turned in for adoption are held for three working days. The owner must pay a fee of $3 per animal turned in for adoption. There is an additional $1 per day if the animal is held on weekends and holidays. If the animal is not adopted by the fourth working day, the animal will be euthanized at no additional cost to the owner.

Owners desiring to turn their pets in for adoption or euthanasia should present them at the Animal Disease Prevention and Control Facility during operation hours mentioned above. The owner will be required to sign a release form before the animal will be accepted.

CG's message

The entire Fort Benning community can take great pride in both their official and unofficial contributions to the success of Exercise Bold Eagle 80.

While the 197th Infantry Brigade played a major role in the exercise, both the 36th Engineer Group and 34th Medical Battalion were important participants. Overall, Fort Benning had 4,300 soldiers and 800 vehicles involved. In addition to our own participants, we received and assisted the many convoys from the 82d Airborne Division which passed through the post en route to Eglin Air Force Base and during redeployment.

During all of this convoy activity, beginning in mid-September and continuing for the next several days, our military and civilian motorists have displayed every courtesy and consideration. This sort of community response makes Fort Benning a truly great Army post.

All Fort Benning personnel and units involved in the orderly and safe movement of these units are to be congratulated.

Endangered woodpecker thrives in post forests

By Carl Diviny

Thanks to modified forestry management practices by the post Forestry Branch, Director of Facility Engineers, Fort Benning, continues to provide suitable habitat for the red-cockaded woodpecker, a federally-listed endangered species.

At one time, the red-cockaded woodpecker was commonly found from Texas to New Jersey and was most abundant in the pine barrens of Florida, Georgia and South Carolina. Today, the red-cockaded woodpeckers are confined to forests, which comprises only about one-third of their former range. Often these habitat areas will be restricted to federally-managed land areas which have escaped commercial/residential development; such as Fort Benning.

The reasons the red-cockaded woodpecker is in danger of extinction is because it has special habitat requirements. The red-cockaded woodpecker required a specific habitat-confined to a relatively open forest comprised of mature and over-mature pines (usually long leaf and loblolly-pines) with little, if any, understory (under brush or low vegetation). The roost tree must be a living pine (as opposed to other woodpecker species which prefer dead trees), but the tree is almost always weakened by Red-heart Fungus, a disease which destroys the heartwood of the mature pine, making it softer and easier to excavate a cavity.

The specific and stereotyped habit requirement may be the most critical factor in the deceased numbers of this bird. Forestry management practices which have been used to preserve habitat areas on Fort Benning include selectively suitable potential roost trees, and using controlled burning to remove understory and maintain the preferred "park" appearance.

The red-cockaded woodpecker roost/nest tree appears "whitish" and glossy around the cavity tree due to heavy resin flow both above and below the cavity entrance; this serves as an easily identifying mark for red-cockaded woodpecker trees. The resin results from the woodpecker repeatedly pecking around the cavity, causing an almost continuous flow of resin.

Cavity trees that have been inhabited for several years appear almost white and can be easily identified from a distance of several hundred meters. The shiny, sticky, resin has been postulated to serve several possible functions: trapping insects near the nest, discouraging tree snakes who are after eggs, discouraging squirrels and other birds from entering the cavity, or just to mark the tree as red-cockaded woodpecker territory.

The red-cockaded woodpecker is a small bird, approximately seven inches long with a black and white barred back, barred outer wing feathers, streaked flanks and white cheek patches. The 'red' in the name is somewhat misleading in that there are one or two red feathers over the ear of the male bird only, thus forming the characteristic "cockade" feather of the species.

Other similar woodpecker species in this area which might be mistaken for the red-cockade woodpecker are the hairy, downy, and red-bellied woodpeckers and the yellow-bellied sapsucker.

Check cashing policy changed

Fort Benning PX customers may now cash personal checks of up to $100, according to the Retail Operations Office here.

The new policy, which took effect Oct. 22, followed an announcement by AAFES Commander Brig. Gen. Duane H. Stubbs. Authorized customers are now able to take advantage of the new policy in the Main Mall exchange only. This change doubles the previous maximum dollar amount of checks customers may cash per day, not only here but at exchange facilities worldwide.

There will be no change in the acceptance of checks for the amount of purchase or in check cashing identification procedures, explained an AAFES spokesman.

The raising of the dollar amount allowable, according to the spokesman, is in response to customer requests and recognizes the continuing rise in prices. The cashing of checks is a free service provided by AAFES.

Human relations course improves skills

By Sharron Calabrisi

The Human Resources Management Course (HRMC) designed for commanders, staff officers, senior NCO's and senior civilian supervisors held it's graduation recently in Brown Hall.

The one-week course ended with a review and critique. Afterwards, Col. Richard W. McKee, deputy post commander, presented the graduates with their certificates.

The HRMC is sponsored by the USAIC Equal Opportunity Co-ordinating Office (EOCO) commanded by Maj. Jack Cherry.

The HRMC is aimed at senior personnel with a program designed to improve their knowledge and skills in preventing and resolving human relations problems in their command. This is done by increasing their skills in interpersonal and intergroup communications and in conflict intervention techniques.

"The course is designed to increase supervisors' awareness levels in relating to others," explained SFC Charles McLeod, education and training instructor.

"The course helps military and civilians relate to each others' lives and problems," commented Betty Parker, Management Analysis, Forces Development, DRM.

"You learn to deal with a person as a person, not as a soldier with a problem," added SGM Daniel Rice. "You learn to look at him as an individual with special problems all his own."

The review and critique are held after every class to see what changes are necessary to make the program more successful.

"No two classes have been the same," concluded MSgt. Jimmie Jakes, NCOIC Education and Training Branch, EOCO.

Overseas levy: Getting out of going may result in later regrets

WASHINGTON (ARNEWS) — "I'm too short to go overseas on that levy. No sweat, all I have to do is sign a counseling statement and stay here." But is it that simple?

An increasing number of career soldiers are taking this easy way out — but finding later to their chagrin that there are stiff penalties involved.

To be eligible for an overseas assignment, a soldier must have at least 12 months remaining in service upon arrival overseas.

A career soldier may extend or reenlist to meet this minimum length-of-service requirement or may sign a counseling statement and subsequently be deleted from orders, say officials.

In some cases, officials explained, soldiers are not fully aware of the consequences of signing a counseling statement, which is a self-imposed bar to reenlistment. A counseling statement places a soldier in the following status:

- Non-promotable
- Prohibited from reenlisting for at least 93 days following separation.
- DA approved waiver required to reenlist. Even if a waiver is approved, the soldier will lose at least two grades from that held at discharge.

A soldier request to withdraw a counseling statement prior to ETS can only be approved by MILPERCEN for soldiers serving in CONUS or by the major overseas commander for soldiers serving overseas, commented the officials.

A change to AR 601-280 will standardize the counseling statement and make it a DA form. Additionally, the change will make the unit commander responsible to initially counsel the soldier on his options and the effects of a counseling statement.

The soldier will also be counseled by his personnel officer after the commander's counseling session to verify and record the soldier's intentions. Previously, counseling was only by the personnel officer.

The intent of this change, say officials, ensure soldiers are aware of their options do not sign a counseling statement without knowledge of the consequences.

Part of aviation history lands here

A hot air balloon and an old L-4 observation plane used York Field in front of Bldg. 4 as an air field in the early morning of Oct. 24 in conjunction with the Museum Curators meetings being held at the Infantry Museum.

Both the balloon and the plane are from the U.S. Army Aviation Museum, Fort Rucker, Ala. The balloon was brought up by a truck to be inflated here while the L-4 was flown up, according to Col. Thomas Sabiston (Ret.), curator of the U.S. Aviation Museum.

The Army Aviation Museum's hot air balloon used York Field in front of Bldg. 4 as a launching point. The balloon demonstration was held in conjunction with the museum curator's meeting recently held here at the Infantry Museum.

The balloon is representative of the first type of military aerial observation used in the United States, first used in the Civil War. The L-4 single-engined airplane is the same model as the first observation plane used in 1941, said Sabiston.

The L-4 was piloted by James S. Kishi and C. J. Abadie Jr. flew the tethered balloon.

Preparations for the balloon began before dawn, taking advantage of the still morning air. After the balloon was inflated by powerful fans the propane burners were ignited. The heat from the burners caused small wisps of steam to rise from the balloon.

Gently, the super heated air lifted the stars and stripes-decorated balloon the handling by Abadie, no problem occurred in the many landings and ascensions as people took advantage of the moment for a brief flight.

For most, it was the first time in a balloon. The flight gave a feeling of "not quite flying", said one passenger. "The sudden shock of being in the air was felt during the first moments of flight and then joy as the wonder of being aloft was realized, the passenger said.

Vitamin E: AMA says wonder claims unsupported by evidence

By Marcia L. Beasley, AMSC
Registered Dietitian

During the last few years there has been a growing number of claims made about the wonders of Vitamin E. Enthusiasts — usually those without scientific credentials in nutrition — have hailed the vitamin as being a solution to problems of the heart and blood vessels, the answer to sterility and sexual impotence, disorders of pregnancy, rheumatic fever, arthritis, aging, acne and muscular dystrophy, to name a few. They usually say that Vitamin E deficiencies are widespread and that large doses will bring the sex and circulatory organs to a peak of strength and performance.

Claims unproven

The American Medical Association reports there is no basis for such claims. Unfortunately, at present, there is no satisfactory evidence that any of the human ailments noted above are correctible by eating, injecting or any other means of taking Vitamin E into the human body. The use of Vitamin E as a curative agent in the treatment of muscular dystrophy in the human subject has without exception met with failure. Certainly, Vitamin E is an essential nutrient and like all vitamins must be taken internally to be of use. Deficiencies of Vitamin E are thought to be practically non-existent in the United States. Doctors simply do not see them.

The chemical name for Vitamin E is tocopherol meaning "ability to bear young." Early experiments with rats suggested a connection between Vitamin E and sexual fertility. Likewise, when rats were entirely deprived of Vitamin E they showed heart symptoms and reproductive problems. The results of these studies in rats have been assumed by some to produce the same results in humans.

Vitamin E studies in humans simply have not demonstrated that rat studies are transferable. If someone you know has purchased Vitamin E, all may not be lost if they also have a pet rat. If, however, their pet is a cat, do not be misled by the Vitamin E added to the oily, fishy cat foods. The primary function of Vitamin E is to prevent the oxidation of fats, particularly of unsaturated fatty acids.

Source is widespread

One of the reasons Vitamin E deficiencies are almost unknown is that the vitamin tends to appear naturally in foods that carry unsaturated fats. It is widely distributed in the food world — vegetable oils, green leafy vegetables, legumes, nuts, meats and eggs.

Although wheatgerm is the favorite source for many faddists, it is a waste of money to buy the oil or any form of vitamin supplementation in a false hope that the body will suddenly change its need for the vitamin and that it will work cardiovascular, sexual or other miracles.

Professor Safety

To keep drunk drivers off the road, a British group has proposed a "jukebox" that for 10 pence (less than 20 cents) gives breath tests and informs the user if he is legally sober enough to drive. The St. Christopher's Motorists Security Association is seeking to install breath-testing jukeboxes in Britain's 150,000 taverns and pubs. Some British traffic officials, though, feel the idea will defeat the purpose of Britain's drunk driving law. (Courtesy of Family Safety Magazine)

After the kill has been detected, members in the defensive call to the command post to confirm the kill. The enemy vehicle is then rendered dead.

Advanced NCO course has F

The sounds of war rang through Roan Hill as the latest advanced NCO class finished its final training exercise. The three-day exercise was the culmination of a 10-week class conducted here and designed to instill greater leadership in the students.

The exercise used real situations gauged to simulate an authentic battle condition, according to Maj. Michael McCullough, chief of team four of the Command and Tactics Division, the group conducting the scenario. The field situation involves approximately 165 students and 50 support personnel, said McCullough.

The actual battles are commanded by the students who come from as far away as Germany to attend. The students act as commanders, platoon leaders, squad members and controllers, according to SFC Nathaniel McGlon, designer and writer of the problem. The problem is designed for the mechanized infantry ARTEP based on free play.

"We are taking the students and putting them in leadership positions. If not as leaders, as controllers," McGlon said.

"Right now, there are two mech platoons, one tank platoon, plus a TOW section and a mortar section in a movement to contact against a hold and enforce team with two mech platoons, one mortar platoon and one TOW section. In the run of a day a scenario would normally consist of a hasty attack, a hasty defense, and a deliberate attack as well as reconnaissance," he said. "So far, the scenario is going great. The students are enthused and highly motivated," McGlon added.

Under the training rules it is fairly easy to judge the winners and losers of each engagement, according to McCullough. With the Command and Tactics personnel acting as controllers, as well as some of the students, there are good controls concerning the confirmation of kills on each vehicle, he said.

A kill occurs when the enemy vehicle is first sighted. For example, if TOW vehicle 11 sees tank Gulf he would say, "TOW 11 kills vehicle Gulf." The controller on vehicle Gulf would ver-

Sgt. Levi Rogers, (R) tank commander of Company A, acted with the aggressors as ANCO members move to engage the enemy during their recent FTX, the culmination of their classroom instruction testing their ability to practice what they have learned.

After moving into attack positions, support fire from the APC is coordinated with the infantrymen advancing to take the hill.

Moving up slowly and using available cover, members of Company A work their way towards the enemy position before the attack.

Fighting hard and long seems to be part of the ANCO as APC gunners defend Hill Foxtrot.

FTX as free play battlefront ify the kill. Tank Gulf would stop and raise a red flag signifying its death, said one of the controllers in the field.

One of the men in the field acting as a training NCO was SSgt. Robert Nugent of the Australian Army. He said he found the training "very good and beneficial" and went on to praise the numbering method for the vehicles and the technique used in determining and verifying the kills.

The students in the field, for the most part, felt the course had helped them. They mentioned that it gave them a chance to catch up on new methods and changes in the mechanized infantry.

SSgt. Kins Wiltse of the 25th Recondo School said the course brought back some things he had forgotten and updated many methods of the mechanized infantry because "basically I'm a straight leg."

"Sure, the course was good but it could have been shorter," said SSgt. Albert Rice, 3rd Armored Division, Germany. "The FTX has been great. A bunch of NCOs fighting another bunch of NCOs couldn't be bad." Rice said he had the chance to be battalion commander at one point in the exercise but something went haywire. "I always wanted to be a colonel," he said with a smile.

"I wish I had been battalion commander. I'd give them ideas on how to fight a war. You cannot fight a war from inside these APC aluminum coffins. You've got to get out of these tracks and get on the ground," he said.

"No one can beat the infantry on the ground. There are limited places a tank or APC can go. When the troops are on the ground, they can beat any tank because of the anti-armor weapons we're using now," he concluded.

The final training exercise winds up 10 weeks of instruction that includes infantry weapons, communications, operations, career management, tactics and crew served weapons.

The Maneuver Combat Arms-Infantry NCO Advanced course, better known as the advanced NCO course, will be graduating next Friday.

Housing bulletin to be mailed

Family housing occupants at Fort Benning can be looking for something new in the mail this month, on or about the middle of November.

Facilities Engineering is putting out a housing bulletin that will better inform residents of timely things that are going on in their neighborhoods.

MSgt. Dalton Robertson of the Facilities Engineers said, "We hope to educate residents with bits of information that may help them. This may help those who sometimes do not get the 'Benning Bulletin.' Reminders will be included letting people know that winter time is approaching, what to look out for and other items of interest to residents."

Scouts attend energy seminar

By T. A. Sabel

Eight Fort Benning area Boy Scouts and two adults recently attended an energy seminar sponsored by the Georgia Power Company held at the Rock Eagle 4-H Conference Center, Eatonton, Ga.

The weekend-long seminar helped the Scouts on their way to earning an energy merit badge. Currently, there are only about four Scouts in Georgia with the energy merit badge, according to Philip E. Richards, one of the area adults attending the seminar.

The seminar covered a history of energy and modern methods of energy production including demonstrations on fossil fuel generators and hydro-electric dams. Also covered were ways to conserve energy at home, how to read a home meter and the economics of generating and delivering electricity.

Possible energy alternatives for the future and the effects of energy and the environment were stressed.

The Scouts from this area were a part of the approximately 90 Scouts attending the seminar.

Q — I retired last year at age 62 because of illness. I served in World War II but suffered no disability in service. Is there a veterans' pension available to me?

A — To qualify for non-service connected pension before age 65, a veteran must be rated permanently and totally disabled by the Veterans Administration. Over age 65, there is no such requirement. In both cases there are strict limitations on income from non-VA sources.

Q — I am a Vietnam Era veteran who is unable to find employment. Am I eligible for unemployment compensation?

A — Generally, a veteran with 90 days or more continuous active service is entitled to unemployment benefits under federal law. Contact your local state employment service for specific eligibility requirements.

Faith School changes PT program

Faith School is currently undergoing a complete renovation of its physical education program. This year the school curriculum will involve co-educational classes, except where contact sports are taught such as football, soccer, basketball and hockey.

This new approach will necessarily involve different concepts and various activities and will be in complete accordance with guidelines set forth under Title IX as issued by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. The basic philosophy of the physical education department is that each student receive the same quality instruction in all activities with special emphasis on those programs that stress lifetime pursuits. As an example, the following instructional units will be included in this year's program: swimming, archery, rhythms, golf, paddle tennis, badminton, track and field, tumbling, gymnastics and volleyball. Of course, the major team sports will remain a part of the curriculum.

In addition, students will be given a physical fitness test as sponsored by the American Alliance for Health, Physical Education and Recreation. The test was given in September and will be given again in May to determine individual improvement. Special awards will be given to those students that attain the 50th percentile on the fitness test.

It must be understood that a program of this nature requires the complete cooperation and coordination of all concerned — the student, parent and educator. The grading system will be based on participation (50 percent), attitude and sportsmanship (20 percent), skills testing (20 percent), and dressing requirements (10 percent). While there is no specific dress requirements except smooth rubber-soled shoes which can be laced (preferably tennis shoes) the school requests that children be provided the following:

- Short sleeve shirt with no buttons
- Shorts
- Socks (white)
- Tennis shoes
- Warm-up suit or sweatsuit for cold weather.

Ten little hunters

And then there was one

Ten little hunters feeling fit and fine,
One forgot his safety catch and then there were nine.

Nine little hunters flirting with their fate,
One started clowning and then there were eight.

Eight little hunters in a shooter's heaven,
One was "triggered" by a fence and then there were seven.

Seven little hunters wise to feathered tricks,
One used a faulty gun and then there were six.

Six little hunters glad to be alive,
One looked down a gun barrel and then there were five.

Five little hunters skilled in woodland lore,
One took to drinking and then there were four.

Four little hunters feeling mighty free,
One had an "empty" gun and then there were three.

Three little hunters tramping through the dew,

One shot a shadow and then there were two.

Two little hunters shooting on the run,
One tripped upon a rock and then there was one.

But one little hunter was still alive to tell
That following sound safety rules guard a hunter well!

Greg King (r) played well in the first half before being sidelined with an injury.

Kenneth Quinlan stretches to make the reception.

21-16 for fourth win

Defense lifts Doughboys to victory

By Gary Jones

The Doughboys spotted the Southern College Cougars 13 points before coming back to defensively dominate them in the second half to win 21-16 Sunday.

The Doughboy offense got off to a slow start, punting on their first possession and fumbling on their next, after moving the ball well on the ground. The fumble set Southern up in good field position which they took advantage of to score the game's first touchdown at the 8:46 mark of the first quarter on a Mark Bolan to Robert Watson pass. The extra point was no good which gave Southern the lead 6-0.

The Doughboys received the kickoff deep in their own territory where they remained bottled up and were forced to punt. Southern took the punt and drove to a first and goal at the Doughboy six-yard-line.

The defensive strongmen for the Doughboys then dug in to successfully defend the goal four straight downs. This was only the first of three goal line stands by the Doughboy's "D" who played about as well as a defensive football squad can.

The Cougars scored again early in the second quarter to take the lead 13-0 before the Doughboys finally got on the board at the 1:43 mark on a Leamon Hall to Fred Suggs pass. The extra point was good to make the score 13-7 at the half.

The Doughboys came out in the second half looking like a different team, the momentum now favored them. The Cougar's quarterback, Bolan, tried to throw a spark of life into his team on the first series of the second half but was intercepted by Doughboy linebacker Henry Baker who carried the ball all the way to the Cougar one-yard-line. The Doughboys quickly punched it through for the TD. The extra point was good to give the Doughboys the lead for the first time 14-13.

The Cougars came up with one more score against the tough Doughboy defense, set up when the Doughboys fumbled deep in their own territory. The Cougars moved all the way to the Doughboy five-yard-line but were unable to score the TD against the Doughboy's "D" and were forced to settle for the field goal. The score put them ahead 16-14 with 14:12 left in the game.

Four quarterbacks saw action in the game for the Benning team. When Hall re-injured his neck in the second half Larry Varnadoe proved himself by taking the Doughboys downfield to within inches of the goalline before sneaking it in on a second and inches play. The extra point was good to put the Doughboys ahead for the final time 21-16.

The Cougars mounted one more scoring threat but were once again stopped at the goal by the Doughboy defense. The win was the fourth of the season for the Doughboys.

DYA weekly football game highlights

GRASSHOPPER DIVISION MINI-BOWL

TC Steelers 12 Main Post Seahawks 6

The first annual Grasshopper Division Mini-Bowl pitted the Tri-city (TC) Steelers against the Main Post Seahawks. Both teams ended regular season play with 5 and 1 records. The game proved to be a battle of the defenses with the TC Steelers finally prevailing for a hard fought 12 to 6 victory.

Offensively for the TC Steelers, quarterback Eddie Biondoletti carried 12 times for 110 yards on the ground and halfback Junior White ran for 59 yards on five carries. The defensive effort for the TC Steelers was spearheaded by the aggressive and consistent play of Tony Edney, Kevin Chappell, Jeff Stone, Shane Hurt and Bill Cypert. The Seahawk defense was led by the outstanding play of Larry Holland who made eight unassisted plays.

Steelers 14 Bulldogs 0

The game between the Steelers and the Bulldogs really opened up when Davy Vereen, the right halfback for the Steelers, scored the first TD of the day in the third quarter. The last part of the third quarter was the action packed quarter of the day and it was Davy Vereen's day also as he ran 60 yards for his second touchdown. Xavier Carter cinched the game with a successful extra point.

Buccaneers 0 Tri-city Panthers 20

The Panthers again held their opponents scoreless Saturday by a score of 20-0 against the Buccaneers. Scoring TDs for the Panthers were Gary Noble with one and Michael Hoomes getting the extra points and Robert McKenzie two TDs, one being made on a pass interception. Defensive players for the Panthers were James Sells, James Boyd, Reggie Tillman and Steven Beaupre. Offensive players were Kevin Cooper, Bill Brickner, Gary Slayton, Danny White, Daryl Shipman and Petie Marshall.

Seahawks 28 Superchargers 12

The Lavoie Seahawks defeated the Superchargers by a score of 28-12. After giving up a TD early in the first quarter, the Seahawks put together three scoring drives of 75, 73 and 68 yards with Terrell Telfare taking the ball into the end zone each time. The Seahawk defense, led by Buddy Weisinger and J. Jones, caused a fumble and two interceptions, one which was run back 35 yards by C. Medley for a touchdown.

Patriots 18 Eagles 12

In an overtime game, which saw Darrin Tucker run 11 yards for the winning touchdown, the Eagles very nearly handed the Patriots their first season loss.

The win kept the Patriot record unblemished and only two games away from an undefeated season and the division championship. The Patriot coach stated that next week's 10 a.m. game against the Tri-city Panthers was to be the most important game of the season. When asked if he had any game plan surprises he stated that there was nothing new to be added but a lot of work would be done this week on the basics.

TERMITE LEAGUE

The Main Post Falcons zapped a tough Jet team 18-0, to continue their unbeaten string.

Falcon standouts were Mike Ottosen, Justin Eremerton and David Galumglema.

Christmas Seal Road Race Nov. 10.

How would you like to run in the same race with Craig Virgin, Jeff Galloway, and several other notables in the world by running? Here's your chance. The La Grange Area Track Club is sponsoring a 10K race and with that caliber of competition, it will be a race—beginning 10 a.m. at Granger Park (LaGrange H. S.) on Saturday, Nov. 10. Entry fee is $3 before Nov. 7, $5 race day.

There will also be a 1.6093K novice run (that's two miles, metric lovers) run at 9:40 for those of you who'd prefer to watch the fast folks. Also, it's only $1.

Advance warning is only fair: there are some tough hills. The turnout and the competition should be an inducement, however, so I'd recommend this one for runners, plodders and armchair athletes alike.

Warner Robins Winter Carnival Nov. 17.

The Morning Optimist is sponsoring both a 10K and a 1 mile run just before 10 a.m. in Williams Plaza, Warner Robins, GA. on Nov. 17. Why the strange time? It's for all you show-offs who like an audience when you perform your feats of daring.

There will be about 5,000 spectators and a parade, with the winners of the races in a special float at the last part of the parade (no doubt keep them down wind as much to allow them time to finish). In any rate, there will be people there, much to do that always accompanies these events: T-shirt runners' fellowship, and all rest. How could you pass it up?

Remember Nov. 17.

Fort Benning Chiefs tomahawk Clubview

After a slow start in the highly competitive Columbus Soccer League, three ties and one loss, the Benning Chiefs in the Under 8 Division have entered the win column. The Chiefs posted their first victory of the season against Clubview-I, 1-0, as Karen Anne Senecal netted the only score of the game.

The Red Devils, playing in the Green Division, Under 10, won their fourth and fifth games to claim a clear title to first place over Brookstone I. In game number four Jeff Christiansen and Tom Wellman booted in three goals to down Clubview I, 3-0. Mike Gonzales' key offensive and defensive plays helped nail down the victory. In game number five the Devils bested Britt David 5-1, behind scores by Susan Casey, 2; Jeff Christiansen, 2; and Michele McKay, 1.

The Blazers, Division Gold, Under 10, battled the St. Anne's Santos for the division lead on Oct. 16. The contest between the two undefeated teams resulted in a 2-2 tie. Chris Beasley scored both Blazer goals. Don Johnson and goalie Keith Williams played an outstanding game. In nondivision play, Brookstone I, Green Division, dealt the Blazers their first loss in a 3-0 battle, despite the heroic efforts of Johnson, Bill Cassidy and Ben Senecal to stem the onslaught. Goalie Williams had a busy night defending the Blazer net against the hard-kicking opposition.

The Under 12, Benning Santos have played three games so far, winning two and losing one.

The Cosmos, Under 16 Division, scored twice against Hardaway on goals by J. M. Butler and Ward Bradshaw as goalie Steve Latorre posted another shutout. However, a charged up Britt David team challenged the division leaders last Thursday in a see-saw pitch battle in which the Cosmos' J. M. Butler broke through a determined defense to score the winning goal in the contest's final five minutes. Benning's Pat Connolly booted the first score into the net early and Butler added another midway in the first half to go ahead 2-0. Britt David scored their first goal near the end of the first half and tied the game midway in the second period. A veritable cliffhanger!

The Benning Seniors continued to march easily toward their division title beating Hardaway in the team's first return match of the season 3-0 with goals by Charles Smith, David Courtenay and John Inks. The backfield stalwarts Reggie Hall, Scott Miller and John Britton have relentlessly provided an almost impenetrable wall to attackers. Last week the Benning Eleven gave up their first goal of the season in a pitch against North Columbus. Benning booted into the net six times with scores by Charles Smith (3), Bill Klein (1) and David Courtenay (2). North Columbus' Upton holds the distinction of that one score. The contest was whistled to a close, final score: Benning 6, North Columbus 1.

Susan Casey (6) and Michele McKay (2) of the Red Devils press the attack in Brookstone territory.

Army Military Affiliate Radio System

Send free messages via MARS

By James Sawyer

This article is to notify military, military dependents and civilians of a free means of communicating between family and friends.

The Army Military Affiliate Radio System (MARS) is a program sponsored by the Department of the Army in which military installations, military units/clubs and volunteer licensed U.S. amateur radio stations and operators participate and contribute to the mission of providing auxiliary or emergency communication. This is done on a local, national and international basis as an adjunct to normal Department of the Army communications.

MARS is not a new program; it has been operational for 30 years. The Military Amateur Radio System was established on Nov. 26, 1948, by authority of the Secretaries of the Army and Air Force. It was renamed the Military Affiliate Radio System (MARS) on Sept. 2, 1956, to describe more accurately its nature.

MARS operates on a joint service basis for determination of overall policy, procedures and practices. Operational control and direction is exercised by the Commander, U.S. Army Communications Command; Commander, Naval Telecommunications Command, Department of the Navy; and the USAF Director, Command Control and Communications.

The primary mission of Army MARS is to:

- (1) Provide DOD-sponsored emergency unclassified communications on a local, national and international basis.
- (2) Provide auxiliary communication or military, civil and/or disaster officials during periods of emergency.
- (3) Assist in effective communications under emergency conditions.
- (4) Create interest and furnish a means of training members in military communication procedures.
- (5) Handle morale and other authorized record and voice communication traffic for U.S. Armed Forces and authorized U.S. government civilian personnel stationed throughout the world.

The MARS Station here is located in Bldg. 84, directly north of the 1st National and CB&T Banks.

At the present time, MARSGRAMS may be sent to Europe, Asia, Puerto Rico, Canal Zone, Japan and any place in the United States.

Patches to Germany and Korea can be made also. You may call someone from the MARS Station or from your home free of charge, unless the call from your home to the Fort Benning MARS Station is long distance. In this case, you will be charged for the price of the call to the MARS Station at Fort Benning only.

The MARS Station is open from 8 a.m.-4:30 p.m., Monday through Friday.

The MARS staff works from this building on Main Post sending free messages both Stateside and overseas.

Lives depend on parachute riggers' proficiency

By Betty Zimmerman

One third of all Army parachutes are maintained and packed by Fort Benning's Parachute Packing Branch, according to CW3 Paul Vaglianti Jr., branch chief.

There are three sections to this branch: packing, maintenance and control, and issue. Every rigger is qualified to work in all sections and every enlisted, non-commissioned officer and officer in the field has had the same training.

Riggers repack an average of 450 parachutes a day, usually 25 per person. They support the Airborne School, Ranger Department, Jumpmaster Course and Pathfinder School. They also support National Guard and Reserve units in nine states and repack emergency ejection chutes for the Army's Mohawk aircraft.

Their maintenance section repairs approximately 26,000 items a year. This includes the actual parachutes and other components such as the lines, harnesses, pack trays and training equipment. In fact, their shop manned by civilians and military, is the only one in the Army authorized to make their own static lines.

The control and issue section, under the supervision of CW2 Bobby Joe Wadington, is kept busy, especially when Airborne classes of 400-500 students jump twice in one day. That means the issuing and return of 2,000 chutes, counting reserve chutes too.

Riggers are an unusual breed. Someone's life depends on everything they do at work, whether it's packing, repairing or inspecting a parachute. And it can be their own life as they are required to make periodic airborne jumps themselves. But they complete their missions with confidence inspired by thoroughness.

Riggers attend basic training and then Airborne School to earn their own Airborne Badge before their three-month advanced individual training at Fort Lee, Va.'s Rigger School.

Sp4 Samuel Neal prepares a parachute for patching by basting down the cut edges at the rigger's maintenance shop.

All night disco slated

Post NCO clubs will sponsor "All Night Discos" tonight at the Top Five and Hidden Door Clubs.

Entertainment, which includes bands and disc jockeys, will kick off at 9 p.m. and continue until 6 a.m. the next morning. General Manager John Lawter said of the previous all night disco, which was held on Sept. 28, 1979, "It was very successful for the Top Five Club. We had to turn some customers away at the door. This time we're expanding to the Hidden Door Club, extending the dining room hours at the Top Five and offering breakfast and free coffee. Our members asked for this and we are going to give them what they want." The Hideaway Club, which has been closed for renovations and is scheduled to reopen next Friday, will also participate in the all night dances set for later this month.

Religious activity planned

The Greater Columbus Great Commission Prayer Crusade will have a Day at Callaway Chapel next Friday. The program begins at 9 a.m. at the Ida Cason Callaway Memorial Chapel with an organ concert of sacred hymns played by Mildred Davis. Barbara Fain, noted Bible teacher and featured retreat speaker from Atlanta, will speak on prayer. A silent vigil and meditation walks in the garden will follow the chapel program. Meet at the Overlook Pavillion for a picnic lunch and fellowship at 11:30. You are asked to share a ride and bring your Bible and your picnic lunch. Members of the steering committee include Lee Ann Perkins, Sandra Crase, Jean Williams, Julia Payne, Dianna Helms and Barbara Brockmann.

Childhood diseases may still threaten young lives

By Betsy Beuke

It only hurts a minute; sometimes it doesn't hurt at all.

But when it's over, your child will be immunized against seven childhood diseases. These illnesses, some of which you may have experienced as a child, include measles, mumps, rubella (German measles), polio, diphtheria, pertussis (whooping cough) and tetanus.

These illnesses can, and do, cause crippling and sometimes death, when children are not protected against them.

Except for tetanus, these infections are highly contagious. They can easily spread from child to child, community to community, more rapidly than many people realize.

According to the Public Health Service (PHS), four out of every ten children in the United States under the age of 15 could catch one of these illnesses. Why? They haven't been immunized against the childhood diseases.

MEASLES

The most serious of the childhood infections is measles, also known as rubella, red measles, hard measles and nine or 10-day measles. It can cause pneumonia, blindness and encephalitis (inflammation of the brain). According to the PHS, one death occurs for every 1,000 measles cases.

The symptoms of a usual case are similar to a bad cold and may include a fever as high as 104 degrees. A blotchy red rash will appear on the body, gradually fading away after seven or 10 days.

POLIOMYELITIS

Polio, in its most severe form, can cause permanent paralysis or death.

Caused by one of three virus strains living in an infected person's nose, throat and intestinal tract, Type I virus more frequently results in illness and paralysis than Type II and Type III viruses.

Most people infected with polio virus will never experience paralysis. They may not even feel it, but they may still spread the disease to others.

A fairly common disease 25 years ago, Paralytic Polio dropped from 18,000 cases in 1954 to seven in 1974 after the polio vaccine was introduced. Two kinds of vaccines are available, the most widely used and preferred vaccine being the trivalent oral vaccine.

The oral vaccine is a liquid prepared from a live but weakened polio virus and is given by a dropper on the tongue. It effectively prevents the spread of polio and protects the individual for a long time.

RUBELLA

Rubella, or German measles, is usually a mild childhood disease. Symptoms include mild discomfort, a slight fever for about 24 hours and a rash that appears on the face and neck and lasts for a day or two. Young adults who get rubella may experience swollen glands in the neck and some temporary pain and stiffness in the joints.

Recovery is normally speedy and complete. What makes this otherwise mild disease dangerous is that a woman who catches rubella early in her pregnancy stands a 20-25 percent chance of giving birth to a deformed baby. The most common birth defects resulting from rubella are blindness, damage to the heart and major arteries, deafness, abnormally small brains and mental retardation.

Children who have never had rubella should be 15 months of age when they receive their measles vaccination. The vaccine is available by itself or in a combination that also protects against measles and mumps. Pregnant women or women who plan to begin their families within three months should not be given the vaccine.

MUMPS

The symptoms for mumps are painfully swollen glands in the face and neck, fever, headache and earache. According to PHS, most patients recover fully with no permanent damage.

In teenage and adult males, mumps may produce a painful inflammation of the testicles. In rare cases this inflammation results in sterility. Other complications from the mumps include inflammation of the pancreas, thyroid and kidneys and in female patients, inflammation of the ovaries and breasts.

DIPHTHERIA, PERTUSSIS, TETANUS

Diphtheria, pertussis (whooping cough) and tetanus (lockjaw) usually occur in children, but can also strike adults.

The most effective means of protection from these diseases in the form of a combination vaccine called DPT, which has been available since the early 1950s.

Diphtheria is caused by a germ found in the mouth, throat and nose of the infected person. Early symptoms include sore throat, a slight fever and chills. Five to 10 percent of diphtheria cases are fatal.

Pertussis, or whooping cough, acts like a common cold with an irritating cough. The cough gets worse and occurs in violent spasms as the disease tightens its grip on the airways to the lungs. This condition is especially dangerous in young infants. Three out of four infant deaths occur prior to when the child reaches the age of six months.

Tetanus, or lockjaw, is caused by a germ found just about everywhere. A person is not immunized against tetanus has a 50-50 chance of surviving if he gets the infection.

In 1975, there were 102 tetanus cases in the U.S.; 45 of them fatal.

The combination DPT vaccine given to children under the age of seven provides immunity against diphtheria, pertussis, and tetanus for several years. Periodically, however, this immunization must be renewed with booster shots.

No matter what you may have heard, these illnesses can be serious, their complications terrible. Don't let them happen to your kids.

American veterans endured war for freedom

WASHINGTON (ARNEWS) — Since the birth of our nation, thirty-nine million Americans have served in the Armed Forces. Of every ten who have worn the uniform, seven are living today. Our veterans — and their families — represent forty-two percent of our American population.

To most Americans, Veterans Day has a dual significance. First and foremost, of course, we honor those veterans, living or dead, who have served our country well and who believe that a just and honorable peace is something well worth fighting for — if need be, dying for.

But let us not lose sight of this second important fact: That is, we can be justly proud that the people of this great nation have had and still have the moral fiber to fight, when necessary, to defend not only our own freedom, but also the freedom of those who look to us for help.

No veteran ever liked war. Those who have seen the destruction of war at close range, hate it. But they know there can be worse things than war. One of our great American philosophers, George Santayana, has reflected that "only the dead are safe; only the dead have seen the end of war." While we hope his conclusion is wrong, we cannot afford to assume so.

Certainly war has always been hellish — and modern war especially so. Nevertheless, the idea that nothing is worse, that our proper purpose — individually and nationally — is mere survival, repudiates the heroism of all the men we honor today. If we lack the courage to stand firm for our beliefs, or if we lack beliefs we are determined to uphold, then we do not deserve the heritage which is ours, and we are unworthy of the sacrifices our veterans have made for us. They believed in the worth of our country's people and traditions, in the right of men to liberty and the pursuit of happiness, as well as life. They lived by their faith in those things. They kept faith with their country and with us who follow. It is now our turn to keep the faith. We must maintain the will, courage, and strength necessary to keep our country free.

So, on this Veterans Day, let us rededicate ourselves to continuing to seek peaceful solutions to our international problems whenever we can. But let us also resolve to be strong enough to face up to our responsibilities on the world scene.

Up through the early years of this century, America was largely preoccupied in transforming the vast expanses of this continent into a nation. Then, in 1917, we entered the First World War — and the weight of our effort turned the tide of battle.

The Second World War followed. When that ended, our country had at long last grown up and assumed its leadership as a great world power. We used that power for peace.

With a compassion and an understanding unique in history, we Americans aided friend and foe alike in recovering from the destruction of war. In the interest of the dignity and welfare of man, we developed the Marshall Plan and other aid programs to help alleviate misery and to raise hope in areas where there was only despair.

Most Americans do not know what it is to not be free. Like any abstract concept, freedom has little meaning, except in terms of contrast: freedom vs. slavery, freedom vs. death.

Some would confuse freedom with license to do as they please. History shows us that when license becomes the liberty of self-indulgence, then freedom from want becomes freedom from duty; freedom of worship becomes freedom from worship; freedom of speech becomes freedom from truth; and freedom from fear becomes freedom from care for others.

Ours is a republic built upon the solid foundation of the inalienable rights of man. To allow this foundation to erode, to allow our ideals and values to be compromised, is as lacking in patriotism as would be surrender to our foes.

We know that without order and justice, freedom will disappear. There are those who say that our principles are wobbling, that truth, honor and justice are old-fashioned. They are wrong.

Our principles are firm. There is no need for new ones. But we do need steadfast dedication to those principles we have defended since the American revolution.

Like other things of great value, freedom did not come cheaply. Part of the cost has already been paid by Americans who answered the call to military duty when their country needed them. They served in nine major wars, from the Revolution to Vietnam, earning special distinction as veterans.

Some veterans need their country's help, even as their country once needed theirs, to readjust, to recover from the wounds or to overcome hardships of age and infirmity. Most need and ask nothing in repayment of their sacrifices.

We can best pay tribute to all veterans this day by recognizing what they have achieved, and in joining them in their resolve to keep America free.

There is no greater obligation.

Holiday events announced

Since Veterans Day falls on Sunday this year, Monday, Nov. 12, has been declared a legal holiday for federal employees.

Some post personnel will interrupt their three-day weekend, however, to participate in Veterans Day activities in Columbus and the surrounding area.

The 34th Medical Battalion will furnish a color guard for the Veterans Day parade today in Thomaston, Ga. and Col. Richard Brown, chief, Directorate of Personnel and Community Activities, will speak at the South Girard High School in Phenix City.

On Sunday, Chaplain (Capt.) Tom Carroll will speak at memorial services at Riverside Cemetery on Victory Drive in Columbus.

Also, on Sunday, the 283rd Army Band will participate in the Veterans of Foreign Wars parade in Birmingham, Ala.

CG's message

During November we celebrate both Veterans Day and Thanksgiving. Although these holidays should be enjoyed by everyone, tragedy in the form of highway accidents will strike many times. Last year approximately 4,800 Americans died from auto accidents during holiday periods.

I encourage each of you to exercise both common sense and basic safety measures, especially defensive driving in all holiday pursuits and both of these holiday periods without an accident. Let's make this our goal for these and all holidays.

Veterans Day

On the occasion of the remembrance of the ending of that war . . . "to end all wars," we offer tribute to those valiant men and women who endured, suffered and died in that great conflict.

In dedication to those noble warriors, and in the hope for fulfillment of that universal quest for world peace, let us give silent pause this day, November 11, 1979.

Glad you asked

1st Lt. Craig Kindred
Company A,

1/58 Mechanized Infantry

If a person is caught and convicted he/she should be charged by the UCMJ and the conviction should not be lifted or lightened due to the individual's rank or status.

Sp5 Billy Mann

Company B,

Headquarters Company

Barracks thieves should be taken care of seriously. My opinion is if they are caught and convicted they should be put in the stockade or out of the Army, because afterwards the individual cannot be trusted.

SFC Michael Tetzlaff

524th Personnel Service Company

I think barracks thieves should be punished to the maximum. The money soldiers receive today should deter anyone from stealing at any time.

Sp4 Linda Rossman

18th Replacement Detachment

In accordance to the offense, the degree of punishment should be determined.

Sp4 Archie Weston

524th Personnel Service Company

I believe thieves should be punished severely under the UCMJ. Whatever they stole should be returned or repaid to the victim. New locks need to be put on all the doors in the billets. The CQ and assistant CQ should make security checks more often. There is nothing worse than a thief or a liar in my book.

SSgt. William Tannier

4th Student Battalion

They should be punished according to the type of crime they committed.

Capt. Gregory Hart

11th Student Company

They should be charged to the full extent of the UCMJ; the only problem is they have to be caught first.

SSgt. David Marsh

Company D, 2nd Battalion,
1st Infantry Training Brigade

They should be punished to the full extent of the law.

Sgt. Ronald Radcliff

18th Replacement Detachment

They should be punished to the maximum penalty by the UCMJ. I feel this is the lowest form of life that would steal from a friend.

Pvt.2 Carl Baker

498th Medical Company

They should be given an Article 15 or put in the stockade, depending on what they stole or how severe the crime was.

Fort Benning soldier slams Main Post Theater

To the Editor:

After attending many theaters both on and off post, my wife and I were appalled not just on one, but several occasions, by the condition and appearance of the Main Post Theater.

On one occasion in particular, after waiting in line for refreshments at the concession stand for 20 to 30 minutes, I found no ice for my drink, stale popcorn and only one person working the register. This, along with slow service since the one person working had to stop the register to make hot dogs for every other Joe in line, usually causes myself and others to miss part of the movie.

This is not too unusual, but as we entered the theater a stagnant, musty odor permeated the air ruining even the stalest popcorn, making it impossible to relax and enjoy the movie. As we watched what was left of the movie, our attention was split between the movie and howling soldiers from The School Brigade. Three-fourths of the way through the movie, two mice began darting between our seats and the aisleway. Then we discovered after trying to lift our feet, that our shoes were welded to the floor by a sticky goo resulting from spilt drinks, candy and other related items.

Maybe their budget does not allow for extravagancies such as cleaning crews, more help in the concession, or personnel to discipline those patrons unable to assume that responsibility. I think these gross actions should be dealt with. For the small price that is paid for admission, some might think this is a bargain. As for me, it's worth the extra two or three dollars to go elsewhere.

J. Barham
Fort Benning

Editor's note: The BAYONET contacted Mr. Dave Bradford, Post Theater Operations, who gave the following reply.

In response to the theater patron complaint, it is unfortunate that the patron had to wait in line for such a long time. The intent of the self-service line is to enable faster service. The concession stand opens 20 minutes prior to show time and is open during the entire movie. Normally, the self-service line requires only one person to operate the cash register; however, on evenings where anticipated attendance would warrant an additional employee, one is available. Hot dogs are made available on the self-service line; however, some patrons ask for hot dogs from the grill, which normally should not take much time, as all the attendant has to do is put the hot dog in a bun and the customer adds condiments after leaving the line. The serving line has two containers for ice and an ice machine behind the line. If the ice containers are empty, the attendant will refill them if notified or is aware of the fact. Popcorn is popped fresh daily; therefore, it can only be assumed that the corn from the supplier could have been a bad batch.

The odor in the theater is caused by spilled soft drinks, etc. on the carpet. Professional commercial carpet cleaners were contacted on Oct. 4 and steam cleaning of the carpets is scheduled for Nov. 8.

On Oct. 10 an additional employee was hired for the theater staff to allow the supervisor to be available in the auditorium for crowd control and noise reduction.

The Post Engineers, Pest and Rodent Control Section has been spraying and dispensing rodent poison throughout the theater on a monthly basis. An additional request has been submitted to the Post Engineering Pest and Rodent Section to survey the theater for further action to eliminate the rodent and insect problem and to correct any odor problems not associated with the carpet.

Verbal pollution

To the Editor:

Can anybody tell me why soldiers have such foul mouths? It is bad enough to be confined to a small space with a bunch of soldiers who don't have enough sense to notice the presence of small children.

I recently had to be on a bus with some very obnoxious soldiers with very loud, foul mouths. I saw a couple of soldiers in the front, where I was with my preschoolers, give the men in the back dirty looks but it was up to me to say something to them about language they used in my presence.

Yesterday evening was a very nice autumn night. We had our front door open for some fresh air. About 10:30 p.m. we were sitting in our living room when some soldiers walked by our house (on post). I cannot tell you what they were talking about but I can tell you that my least favorite word was used. It came through loud and clear. I got up and slammed my front door. My children were asleep but I still resent sitting in my home and being bombarded by some unknown soldier's foul mouth.

Will there ever be a day when I can again go to my husband's office party or the company ballgame or even just sit in my own home and not have to worry about having to hear a soldier use my least favorite word? It can be done, as I have known both men and women who have claimed my least favorite as their favorite word but deleted it from our conversations.

This form of pollution is rampant in the military community. It would take very little effort to improve the problem. Can we try?

Professor Safety

If last winter socked you with a large home heating bill and you want to prepare for next year by installing insulation, be aware of possible dangers, warns the Consumer Product Safety Commission.

Cellulose insulation, for example, must be kept at least 3 inches away from recessed light fixtures to avoid a fire hazard. Also keep it away from furnace exhaust flues, water heaters, space heaters and other sources of heat.

In tests conducted by the CPSC, six of eight samples of cellulose insulation packed over recessed lights began to smolder in less than eight hours, and two created open flames within 11 hours.

Camellia is an apartment motel. We don't rent rooms, we rent furnished apartments with all the features of a regular motel plus added conveniences that cannot be provided with just a single room - and all at the same, or most times lower rates than the single-room motel. For example, our "standard" unit is comprised of two bedrooms, combination living room-dining room, bathroom and fully furnished kitchen including refrigerator, stove, cooking utensils, and table service for six people. These are some of the "extras" but at no extra cost. Our 100 units are in separate buildings with usually four apartments in each building, which adds to a person's or family's privacy.

Annual influenza immunizations

Soldiers and civilians to be shot

The annual influenza immunization program will be administered to military and civilian personnel by members of the 34th Medical Battalion and the 197th Infantry Brigade (TMC #3) under the direction of Benning's MEDDAC.

Unit rosters must be prepared by the units receiving influenza immunizations. A member of the shot team will use the roster to record individuals receiving the immunizations. The roster will then be sent to the TMC Service Support Branch, Building 322, so that soldiers receiving the shot can have their health record stamped.

A soldier's yellow shot record must be presented to the shot team at the time of immunization to be stamped.

Individuals allergic to eggs must bring their health record as proof of their allergy when they go to the immunization site.

Pregnant soldiers will be required to receive influenza immunizations unless given a medical waiver from their physician.

The following schedule must be followed unless changes are cleared with Lt. Col. Harold R. Crowell, 545-2183, Community Health Nursing Service.

Benning officer earns coveted woman's award

By Matt Boison

2nd Lt. Kim (Minkinow) Harrison of the 524 Personnel Service Company was selected as one of the recipients of the coveted Outstanding Women in American award.

Harrington, a 1978 graduate of Alabama University, will be the executive officer of the 524th PCS. The 23-year-old Army officer was an academic major in international studies, specializing in Western Europe. Harrington received her commission through the ROTC program while attending the university. During her four years in ROTC, Distinguished Military Cadet and brigade commander of 1200 ROTC cadets were just a few of her accomplishments which aided her to be nominated for the received award.

"People join the Army for various reasons," said Harrington. "I joined because it runs in the family." Harrington's father is a retired Army major who received his commission through the OCS school here, while her brother attended the Air Force Academy at Colorado and will soon be a pilot.

"I enjoy my time with the Army," said Harrington, who is married to another Army officer stationed here. "I have developed a lot of different skills since I've been in," said the native Alabamian and adds, "I am looking forward to a long Army career."

Stateside reup option reinstated

WASHINGTON (ARNEWS)--Beginning Nov. 1, first term soldiers stationed in CONUS can reenlist for a guaranteed 12-month assignment at another CONUS station, according to DA personnel officials.

The CONUS to CONUS station of choice option is available, officials say, as long as there is an opening in the soldier's grade and primary MOS at the new station.

This option was available to first termers up until April 1, 1975 when it was discontinued because of a shortage of travel funds, officials said.

Soldiers stationed overseas already have the option of reenlisting for a CONUS station of choice, officials added.

Soldiers learn from historic prison

Story and photos by Pat Astran

One hundred and twenty-five soldiers of the 7th Battalion, 1st Infantry Training Brigade recently visited the historic prison at Andersonville, Ga. for a study in ethics.

When the soldiers arrived in Andersonville, they began their visit with a slide presentation on the historical background of the Confederate prison. The presentation was given by Sarah Langston, a park technician. Then Fred Sanchez, a park ranger, gave out maps of the park and printed information as others viewed the exhibits.

After the troops left the reception center, the chaplains sponsoring the trip gave a brief lecture concerning ethics, to provide information and insight about what ethics are. Ethics was explained as being what a person believes to be right or wrong. These beliefs help to make up and determine a person's ethical base in life.

After the instruction, the soldiers had time to walk through the prison to read the names on the tombstones and other tributes given to Union soldiers on the memorial stones.

The three bus loads of soldiers and their families then got together for lunch. Following lunch, some of the soldiers, cadre and families wandered down to see the covered wagon exhibit. Then the group toured various work group scenarios. The soldiers, in separate groups, began to study "Ethics of a Subordinate" and "Ethics of the Peer."

During the study on ethics of a subordinate, different soldiers acted out the parts of both the guard and the prisoner. The order given to the soldier guarding was, "Shoot anyone who crosses the deadline." When the prison was in actual use the guard stood on a 19-foot high wall and there was 10 feet between the wall and the deadline.

The following cases were re-enacted at the actual "deadline." First, a man wishing to escape; second, a man obviously sick and delirious; third, a man requesting to be shot to put him out of his misery, and fourth, a man who entered the area to retrieve some personal item such as a cup. The soldiers' ethics were tested by asking them to decide whether or not they would shoot in such a situation.

Many soldiers of yesteryear found their final resting place in this cemetery.

Andersonville Prison

Officially named Camp Sumter, the prisoner-of-war Stockade located on this site was commonly called Andersonville, after the nearby village. This location was chosen for its remoteness from Federal Armies, nearness to the railroad, and its great stands of Pines which were used as building materials. The open, unsheltered stockade was not originally designed for the large numbers of prisoners captured in the battles of 1864. Because of this, the lack of food and medicines, and the breakdown of prisoner exchanges, it became the scene of great hardship. Death claimed 13,000 of the 45,000 men who were incarcerated here during the 14 months that the Camp was in operation.

This plaque greets visitors to the prison.

Some decided to shoot and some decided not to. Then the question was raised as to whether or not the guard not shooting should be shot or punished. "Who was right? What would you have done in each situation?" These were the questions in each man's mind.

"Ethics of the Peer" is a scenario involving the Andersonville Raiders, who were Union soldiers. They had banded together to form a murderous band of cut throats. They preyed on their weaker fellow prisoners; within ten months they grew into a force of 400 to 500 strong. With no restraints put on them, they stole food, blankets, money and anything that would be advantageous to their own moral support.

A new prisoner was their favorite prey. New prisoners coming into the Andersonville prison were often confused concerning their surroundings, since the war was over for them.

Most came to the prison with valuables and because they were new, the Raiders could easily take advantage of them. If the person resisted, the Raiders would have their throats slashed or skulls crushed. A man's death at the hands of the Raiders was nothing uncommon.

Why was this "unethical behavior" tolerated? Some of the questions for each soldier to ask of himself were as follows. Did the prison officials know of these actions? Since the Raiders did trade their bounty with the guards, why did it take so long for the commander of the installation to know of this matter?

In re-enacting the parts, nine soldiers played the role of the Raiders. Five soldiers played the roles of incoming prisoners with valuables. The remainder of the group were considered as prisoners on the side line. The Raiders robbed the incoming prisoners of all of their valuables in front of the other prisoners. These actions lead up to some very good questions and, of course, the men used their own basic ethics to help answer them.

Today's soldier also learned that of food, clothing and shelter, only food was provided and it was often uncooked. The official ration was 1/4 lb. of meal and either 1/3 lb. of bacon or one lb. of beef with occasionally peas, rice, vinegar and molasses being issued. Of course there were eggs and pork; if one had the money, he could buy an egg for fifty cents of one lb. of pork for $6.00.

• See PRISON, page 11

Soldiers are drawn to one of the many statues adorning the prison grounds.

PRISON

One soldier out of history stated on the Fourth of July, "It is a sorrowful Fourth. Hunger gnaws our vitals as we have not drawn any rations for two days. We draw this evening spoilt beef and maggoty much alive with worms."

Drinking water, wood and soap were also in short supply.

As the soldiers and Chaplain Gerald W. Craft were discussing the day, a Union soldier dressed in Union attire made his way among them. All of a sudden the Union soldier said, "Hey, what are you all doing here?"

Chaplain Craft told him that they were discussing the Union and Confederate soldiers and what went on at Andersonville.

The Union soldier said, "Well, I know all about it, I was there." He came forward and said that his name was Sgt. John Ransome of the 9th Michigan Calvary and that he had served ten months in the prison and survived.

Skip Sickler, park technician, playing the part of the late Sgt. Ransome, answered questions and told the story of prison life in the first person. Sgt. Ransome explained that guards often would not shoot a delirious man, but would call a couple of men to get him.

One of the 7th Battalion soldiers then asked,

"What ever happened to the Raiders?" Sgt. Ransome proceeded with the answer, "Two Raiders were trying to sell a watch. Prisoner Dawd, another Union soldier, expressed interest but decided not to buy it, knowing he had both a watch and money. The Raiders later attacked Dawd. They seized his watch and stole his money from his waistband. Dawd was beaten, and with blood streaming down his face, he went to the gate. Capt. Wirz, commander of the prison, was upset by this action and vowed he would clear the prison of the reign of terror involving the Raiders.

Sgt. Ransome asked the soldiers, "Do you think that Dawd was aware of the fact that he had put his life on the line when he acted in outrage and made his report to the guards?" There was no account of prisoner Dawd there after.

Many more questions were asked and Skip answered them from the knowledge he had acquired from the diary of Sgt. Ransome.

67th Dining Facility 'cooks up' awards

By Matthew Boison

The 67th Maintenance Battalion Consolidated Dining Facility took its second straight 'Best Mess' award for another quarter.

"Out of my 21 years in the Army I have never associated myself with such dedicated and talented men," said Lt. Col. James D. Tipton, commander of the 67th Facility.

Winning awards as a team is not the only success the 67th Dining Facility is accomplishing. Individual awards such as 'Cook of the Month' for the 67th were awarded to Sp4 John Thomas, and 'Chef of the Quarter' to Sp4 Robert L. McDaniels.

Two members from the 67th Dining Facility are preparing to compete for the 'Post Culinary Award' scheduled for later this year. SFC James H. Whitehurst, assistant dining facility manager, and Sp4 John Thomas are perfecting their cooking skills for the upcoming competition.

"Our excellence in food preparation was even carried over into the field as shown at Bold Eagle when the 67th Dining Facility was swamped with soldiers from most of the units down there," said Cpt. John F. Cunero, a dining facility officer.

Fort Benning culinary competition scheduled

By Sharron Calabrisi

The third annual culinary competition will be held here at the Officer's Club on Nov. 16, according to the post Installation Food Service Office. The competition is open to all active Army and Department of the Army civilian food service personnel.

Judges will assess each entry on the basis of degree of difficulty in preparation, artistic ability, general appearance, craftsmanship, color combination and originality.

The eight competition categories are: cocktail canapes, cold buffet meat or fish, cold buffet dessert, decorated cakes, centerpieces, food color painting, bread, and fancy or danish pastries.

"The idea behind the show is to put the spotlight on the cook," said Elizabeth Hurt, program coordinator. "Many soldiers don't realize the cooks can prepare anything other than standard mess hall food."

Judges are: Marcel Carles, executive chef of the Big Eddie Club; Olin Bivins, Green Island Country Club chef; Luther Moese, chef, Columbus Country Club; Danny Hithfill, kitchen manager at the Hungry Hunter; Sarah Ray, home economist from Georgia Power Company; and Robert Hamilton, chef at the Fort Benning Officer's Club.

Following the judging at 11:30 a.m., the show will be open to the public until 3 p.m.

Winners will be awarded a ribbon, a certificate and a letter from Maj. Gen. David E. Grange, post commander. First place winners in each category will compete for Best in Show and will make up the team that will represent Fort Benning at the U.S. Army Culinary competition to be held at Fort Lee, Va., March 6-7.

Army sets record recruiting goal for women

WASHINGTON (ARNEWS) — Enlistment criteria will be the same for men and women under the Army's FY 80 recruiting plan as the Army is looking for more women recruits than ever, DA officials announced recently.

A recruiting goal of 173,000 non-prior service enlistees was established by the FY 80 accession structure plan. This high figure is due partly to the FY 79 recruiting shortfall in non-prior service males and females, and an increase in the attrition rate of non-prior service women in FY 79, explained DA officials. An increase in the FY 80 authorized strength also contributed to the FY 80 recruiting goal.

The total of 23,000 women enlistees for FY 80 is due primarily to the Army's objective of achieving an end strength of 85,000 women by FY 85, according to officials.

Another change eliminates the "highest grade completed" requirement, remarked officials. This change will allow any applicant, who otherwise qualifies, to enlist regardless of their formal education level.

The MAP is a questionnaire containing 60 multiple-choice questions concerning home life, school experience, interests, attitude and work history.

Although the Armed Forces Qualification Test (AFQT) remains the basis for enlistment qualification, a screening questionnaire called the Military Applicant Profile (MAP) will be used to measure the potential for service, or retainability of 17-year-old male non-high school diploma graduates (NHSDG), officials state. The MAP will also be used on a test basis for NHSDG women during FY 80.

CFC needs donations

By Pat Brown

With less than a month remaining in the annual Combined Federal Campaign (CFC), the post is more than 40 percent short of this year's goal of $325,000.

CFC spokesmen attributed this to the fact that donations and pledges are just beginning to trickle in from some of the larger units. They are optimistic that by the deadline, Nov. 30, the post will reach or exceed its goal.

James Schoonover, CFC project officer, once again emphasized that the payroll deduction plan is still the most popular and simplest way to contribute to the CFC. "In this way," he stated, "we are often able to make a larger and more meaningful contribution by spreading our donation over a 12-month period."

Three agencies benefit from proceeds received from the CFC. International Services support eight organizations dedicated to alleviating poverty, establishing health programs and generally improving the quality of life throughout the world.

Thirteen organizations underneath the auspices of the National Health Agency receive funds to assist in the research, cure and alleviation of major diseases causing death, disabilities and suffering to patients and their families.

Money received by the United Way is used to support necessary and worthwhile programs in the Tri-Community.

Benning's Army Community Service

Anne Brandenburg, ACS volunteer supervisor, handles all incoming calls to help families with problems or information on ACS programs.

Self-help, service and stability. Those three words project the basic concepts of the Army Community Service (ACS).

ACS combines the expertise of military trained, civilian staff and volunteer workers to provide a myriad of services to the members of the military community.

Conveniently located at the yellow archway in Bldg. 83, the Welcome Center is the core of ACS. Many of the ACS programs available are based there.

Welcome packets containing an abundance of information regarding Fort Benning are always available for incoming personnel. Individuals planning a PCS move may take a look at reference packets the Welcome Center has on file or ask assistance in obtaining one on any installation throughout the world.

The Welcome Center also provides a place complete with TV and magazines where dependents may take a break while incoming personnel complete in-processing. A play area complete with toys is available to keep children occupied. When clients first walk in the door at ACS, they are greeted by a volunteer worker manning the reception desk. After determining the client's need the receptionist directs the client to the right place.

Lending Closet

The Lending Closet Program is open to soldiers PCSing to Fort Benning as permanent party or to attend IOBC, IOAC or OCS when accompanied by their dependents. It is also open to allied officers accompanied by dependents. The service is not normally available to airborne students.

Essential household items are loaned to servicemembers in the event their own household goods have not yet arrived. Most items are issued for a 30-day period with two-week extensions available on many items.

Soldiers PCSing to another post who already shipped their household goods are also eligible for the service, but all items borrowed must be returned 72 hours prior to departure. Exceptional situations are handled on an individual basis by the chief of ACS.

Food Locker Program

The Food Locker Program provides food for families in emergency situations. Often times, due to financial problems a soldier's pay is not sufficient to cover expenses for the entire month. If a soldier runs out of food for his/her family, ACS provides the soldier with a three-day food bag to feed the family.

If, after three days, the soldier needs more food, ACS will examine his/her case carefully before deciding how to handle it. Usually, ACS will give the soldier food and money to help supplement the soldiers' income to get through the emergency, according to Capt. Frank Master Jr., chief of ACS.

Clothing Closet

ACS maintains varieties of clothing for men, women and children. This clothing is provided free of charge for people who require clothing as a result of fire or similar disaster, so they can start over again. Also, other individual cases of extreme hardship cases will be considered.

Financial home management

Another alternative to assist the servicemember in alleviating a crisis is counseling in financial home management. Experienced financial home management advisors are available in the event a servicemember is having difficulty effectively managing his/her finances.

After calling for an appointment at the ACS Welcome Center, the soldier is asked to bring pay vouchers for the previous three months, all credit contracts, a list of utilities and rent expenses, food bills, any letters from creditors, saving statements, and anything else that might help the counselor understand the soldier's financial situation more clearly.

The financial home management advisor gives the soldier a form to fill out listing income and expenditures. By looking at the form, the financial home management advisors can decide the proper course of action to pursue.

Depending upon the circumstances, the financial home management advisor may contact the soldier's creditors and explain the situation using the information provided on the form. In the letter, the advisor will ask the creditor to lower the payment. However, this is done only if the servicemember shows serious intent to take care of his/her payments and signs an agreement to take care of his/her obligations.

Financial home management advisors help the client until he/she learns to be self-reliant. The most common problems, according to Carol Simms, ACS financial home management advisor, are buying little things that add up and not putting any money aside for unexpected circumstances. The financial home management advisors help get finances straightened out and show the clients how to keep it that way.

Families have a friend at ACS

ACS is a friend for military folks

Army Emergency Relief

ACS offers viable alternatives when the issue of food is not the answer. In the event immediate monetary assistance is required, an ERA loan may be arranged if the proper conditions are met. AER assists active duty and retired personnel, including widows and dependent children of deceased soldiers to include National Guard and Reserves on active duty 30 days or more.

Financial assistance may be extended either as a non-interest bearing loan, as an outright grant, or as a combination of both. Whether or not a loan is given by AER depends upon the servicemembers' financial state, management of funds, existing emergency situations, if any, and his/her ability to repay the loan, according to 1st Lt. Leslie Beckstrom, AER officer.

Some of the more typical categories assisted are: non-receipt of pay, allotments or allowances; loss of pay or other personal funds; emergency medical, dental or hospital expenses; funeral expenses; travel expenses due to leave of an emergency nature; payment of initial rent or payment to prevent eviction and privation of dependents due to emergencies not covered above.

An active duty servicemember needing an AER loan should bring the matter up to his/her commanding officer or first sergeant. DA Form 1103 must be completed and signed by the company commander. The servicemember should take two copies, along with a pay voucher for the current period, to the Welcome Center. A military I.D. card and supporting documents relating to the hardship are also required. Details are available in USAIC Pamphlet 608.4.

Big Brother

ACS sponsors two programs dealing exclusively with children. The Big Brother Program, dealing with boys six to 14, is keyed toward boys whose fathers are deceased or on overseas assignment. The program brings a man and boy together on a one-to-one basis, not so much as a replacement for the boy's father, but as an alternative. The Big Brother spends time with the youngster by taking him to athletic events, teaching him hunting, fishing, etc. The intent is to give the little brother someone he can look up to and imitate. Active duty or DA civilians interested in the Big Brother Program should call ACS at 545-4679. Also, boys who need a Big Brother should contact ACS. Qualifications to become a Big Brother include that the individual is willing to spend a few hours a week with a "little brother."

To apply for a Big Brother, the boy's mother must contact ACS and set up an appointment for an interview. After finding out the little brother's needs, the ACS worker finds a suitable Big Brother and arranges for the three to meet. From then on, it's the Big Brother's responsibility.

Special children

ACS also has a program designed for handicapped children. The Special Children's Program provides recreational outlets for handicapped children who might otherwise not be given the opportunity to enjoy the various activities other children have. Periodically, the children participate in picnics, trips to Callaway Gardens and Westville, holiday parties, arts and craft sessions and other activities. ACS completely funds the program. A one-week summer day camp highlights the Special Children's Program.

Citizenship classes

ACS provides citizenship classes two times a year to assist dependents with passing the naturalization citizenship exam. The fall class is presently in session. Information on classes offered in the spring will be announced later.

Community Life Program

The Community Life Program Centers consist of a Community Life coordinator, a military representative of ACS, elected mayor selected from the community, and a secretary and treasurer, usually detailed by major commands responsible for the specific housing area. This is the core of the Community Life Program. The Community Life Program may form various committees: publicity, recreation, welcoming committees, etc., depending on the involvement of people in the community. Presently, there are four Community Life Centers; McGraw Manor, Custer Terrace, Lavoie Manor and Bouton Height/Davis Hill. Also, one Community Life Center is located off post at the Air View Trailer Park.

The Community Life Programs are devoted to the improvement of "quality of life," in the communities limited only by the imagination of participants. They also facilitate communication between communities and post officials.

International Wives Club

The International Wives Club is an independent group of foreign-born wives of military personnel.

Although the function of the group is mostly social, the group does sponsor G.E.D. classes free to all military dependent. Qualified teachers and instructional materials are provided by the Muscogee County Adult Education Department. G.E.D. classes are held at Building 83 on Monday and Thursday evenings from 6:15 p.m. to 9 p.m. September through June.

Annual social activities include family picnics, Halloween parties for the club's children, garden parties, Christmas dinners, luncheon and fashion shows, baby showers and an anniversary dinner-dance. Fund raising activities the club has include yard sales and a Christmas bazaar.

Meetings are held on the first Tuesday of every month at 7:30 p.m. at ACS.

ACS volunteers

A strong corps of volunteer workers is essential to an effective ACS operation. Fort Benning's ACS volunteer supervisor is Ann Brandenburg, who has over six years service as an ACS volunteer. According to Ann, as she is called by everyone, volunteers are always in demand. Persons interested in volunteer work may call Ann at the Welcome Center, 545-1169/1233, for information.

Currently, the ACS needs volunteers to work at the reception desk and repair toys for the ACS Toys for Tots Program. ACS is still collecting repairable toys to be given to needy families for Christmas through Nov. 31. Contact MSgt. Alonza Morris at 545-4679 for information.

Beat the holiday rush

Mail dates announced

Art Rushing, officer-in-charge of the Columbus Post Office, recently announced the suggested overseas mailing dates for the month of November.

"Even though it may seem a bit early to mention the Christmas holiday season before Thanksgiving, it really is necessary to do so to benefit those who are mailing overseas, either to armed forces or to those who have friends and relatives in foreign countries," Rushing said.

Correct APO address needed for mailing

WASHINGTON (ARNEWS)—If you want that mail to get to your buddy or cousin at an APO address, be careful.

Effective Oct. 1, 1979, APO mail without a correct and complete address will be returned to the sender, according to a DA official.

Military postal personnel will not be able to correct improperly addressed mail sent to APO locations because of staff reductions, the official explained.

The postal service has agreed to return first class and other mail to the sender if not correctly addressed, but officials stressed that government and private mailers should insure that all mail has a complete and accurate address. The address must include current unit designation or the individual's unit and box number and the five-digit APO number.

Famous last words

"Alcohol doesn't affect me"

Do you think you can drive after drinking alcoholic beverages? Are you one of those people who says, "I'm more alert after a couple of drinks," or "Alcohol doesn't affect me . . . let me drive. I haven't had an accident yet," or "I drive better after a few drinks than most people do sober?"

If you are one of these people, you are just fooling yourself and sooner or later you will probably pay the price either by being killed in an auto accident or by killing someone else. Let's take a close look at the problem of drinking and driving. Maybe you'll change your attitude.

In 10 years (1961-71) in Vietnam, 45,000 U.S. soldiers were killed by the enemy. In this same 10 years, 274,000 U.S. citizens died in crashes involving alcohol. Alcohol is a factor in more than 50 percent of all highway fatalities. With approximately 118 million drivers and 95 million drinkers the result is about 46,200 deaths in U.S. highway accidents each year.

Drinking alcoholic beverages is generally acceptable in the United States today as part of our way of life. Eight out of 10 men over 21 and six out of 10 women drink at least occasionally. That adds up to almost 100 million people . . . most of whom consider themselves "responsible adults."

People like to drink with meals to add flavor to foods, with refreshments at sporting events, with guests after work to unwind from the day's tensions, and at parties to help relax and encourage conviviality. In a year, Americans drink about 275 million gallons of hard liquor, 1,600 million gallons of beer and 170 million gallons of wine.

With this much alcohol being consumed, it's a pretty safe bet that some of these drinkers are driving. Are you one of them?

When you drive under the influence of alcohol you have three strikes against you. Alcohol affects your vision. It causes blurred and double vision, it reduces side vision, it reduces your range of vision and it interferes with color determination. With all these effects working against you, you may never see a hazard while you are driving and even if you see it, the picture you see may not be accurate and you will therefore react incorrectly.

Alcohol affects your judgment. Even if you perceive the hazard correctly, you may not pick the right course of action.

If you do pick the right course of action, your reaction time may be slowed sufficiently by the alcohol to make it impossible for you to take the necessary actions in time.

It's not necessary for the alcohol to cause all three of these effects to get you in trouble, just one of these crucial steps being short circuited is enough to get you killed.

Face facts! While it's true alcohol affects different people differently, the way it works is predictable and preventable. Sooner or later, if you drink and drive you will have trouble, either an accident or trouble with the law. If you know you're going to be driving, think — don't drink; that's the best thing.

However — if you intend to drink — the next best thing is:

- Eat first, have something in your stomach to slow down the rate of absorption.
- Drink slowly, sip don't gulp. Space out drinks to give your body time to handle them.
- Know what you are drinking, know how strong it is.
- Set a limit. Plan beforehand to stop after a certain number of drinks — stick to your decision.
- Stop in time, give your body a chance to reduce alcohol to a safe level before you drive.
- Be honest with yourself. If you know you're drunk enough to raise your blood alcohol concentration over .05 percent, be smart — don't drive.

Enlistment bonus changes announced

WASHINGTON (ARNEWS) — Beginning Oct. 16, cash enlistment bonuses for seven MOSs increased and two more MOSs now offer recruits a cash bonus. MILPERCEN officials announced recently.

The cash bonus for the following MOSs is increased from $2,500 to $3,000: 05D (EW/SIGINT Identifier Locator), 05K (EW/SIGINT Non-Morse Interceptor), 11 H (Heavy Antiarmor Weapons Crewman) and 13F (Fire Support Specialist).

Recruits enlisting for one of the following MOSs will receive $2,500 rather than $1,500: 05G (Signal Security Specialist), 12B (Combat Engineer), 15J (Lance/Honest John Operation/Fire Direction Specialist).

Additionally, two more MOSs, 82B (Construction Surveyor) and (Topographic Surveyor), will offer enlistees a $1,500 bonus.

Anyone who enlisted in the Delayed Entry Program (DEP) for one of these MOSs before Oct. 16 will not receive the new bonuses, officials said. They will receive the bonus (if any) listed on their DEP contract.

To be eligible for a cash bonus, enlistees must:

- Be a high school diploma graduate
- Be in mental categories I-III

- Enlist for four or more years.

Prior service enlistees are only eligible for cash bonuses in one of the following MOSs: 05D, 05H, 05K, 98G (EW/Sigint Voice Interceptor), 11B (Infantryman) and 11H.

Problems and blessings from students' situation

By T. A. Sabel

Faith School is just one of the schools serving the children of military personnel at Fort Benning. Its problems and blessings are typical of the educational system here.

The largest problem the school faces is the transiency of many of the students. As the parents are reassigned to different posts and bases around the world, families often follow. Some of the students spend as little as two months at the school while others receive their entire early education at Faith, according to Suzanne Williams, assistant principal.

"But the transiency of the students isn't necessarily bad," she said. "Many of the students are more worldly than the foreign parents they can bring in a greater diversity than would usually be found," she added.

Pat Wainwright, eighth grade English teacher at Faith School, teaches the class a new list of vocabulary words.

"The biggest drawback is the lack of continuity in the study program. The philosophy of the schools at Fort Benning is to take the student where he is and take him as far as we can," said Williams.

The student's large capacity for adapting is 'quite remarkable,' according to Williams. She said new students are quickly accepted by older students.

"Some of the students arriving aren't strangers when they meet here. They have met in other bases or overseas," said Pat Wainwright, eighth grade English teacher.

"The survival techniques these students have developed is something to see," said Dan McDuffie, eighth grade science instructor. "I would venture to say the diversity of backgrounds has helped the students rather than hindered. I taught in civilian schools in Columbus and I found students there much more isolated than students at military schools."

"We try to teach the students skills which will be useful in later life," commented Lula Arrington, eighth grade math and algebra instructor.

"We tend to get away from the strictly academic studies and go more toward the practical," added McDuffie.

"I might add, we get a lot of help and support from parents. They sense the difficulties the students have being military dependents and are willing to do more for the students than their civilian counterparts," concluded McDuffie.

Fort Benning Flyers conquer Georgia Tech 12-9

The Flyers Rugby Football Club subdued a stubborn Georgia Tech team last Sunday.

Georgia Tech dominated the entire first half, capitalizing on penalties and mistakes made by the usually precision-minded Flyers team. After several unsuccessful attempts to get the ball in the in-goal, the Georgia Tech team seemed content with letting their ex-football team's place kicker put the ball through the uprights from 35, 40 and 45 meters out. This resulted in a 9-0 lead over the Flyers at the half.

However, the Flyers did not give up as the second half began. The Flyers worked the ball down to the five-meter line where winger Lon Buck took the pass from the scrum half, John Sladley, and dove into the in-goal for the score. The conversion attempt by the Flyers was short, making the score 9-4 Tech's favor.

From then on it was the Flyers who dominated the game. The Flyers executed precision passing and gang tackling as winger Kurt Webber picked up a loose ball and raced into the in-goal. Again the conversion was a failure, making the score 9-8 Tech's favor.

Again and again the Flyers knocked at the door with little success. From the 10-meter line, the Flyer scrum won the ball where number eight Bill Ivey controlled the ball inside the scrum. The scrum pushed the ball forward with six members on the four-meter line. There Ivey fed the ball to scrum half John Sladley who faked outside and cut inside for the winning score. Final — Flyers 12, Georgia Tech 9.

The next Flyers' game is against High Country Sunday at 2 p.m. on Stilwell Field.

Coast Guard holds boating classes here

The Columbus Coast Guard Auxillary is offering a free, three lesson, basic boating safety course on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday from 7 to 9 p.m. The classes will be at Infantry Hall, Building Four, Fort Benning.

The course covers basic boat handling, trailering, rules of the road, federal and state requirements for equipment, aids to navigation, weather and boating safety tips.

The family boat is for fun — fishing, water-skiing, cruising, relaxing, exploring and vacationing. The Coast Guard Auxillary recommends that all members of a "floating family" learn basic boat handling and safety measures to add to their boating fun and prevent injury or damage. Everyone is invited to make safe boating a "family affair."

Alabama JVs stop Fort Benning win streak at two

By Gary Jones

The Doughboys played tough through three quarters against the nation's number one ranked football program before a 24-point surge in the final period lifted the University of Alabama JVs to a 34-7 victory last Friday in Doughboy Stadium.

"Alabama used quite a few players in the game and just wore us down toward the end," explained Doughboy Head Coach Ralph Santaliz. Numerous Doughboy penalties and mistakes, as well as the Junior Crimson Tide's depth of talent, played a big part in ending the Benning winning streak at two games.

The game started with both teams exchanging punts. On the Doughboys' second possession, quarterback Larry Varnadoc (starting for injured Leamon Hall) dropped back to pass, was intercepted and the Junior Tide took over on their own 45-yard line. Alabama couldn't move the ball and punted to the Doughboy one-yard line. The Doughboys took over but couldn't move through the Tide's defense. They made their first big mistake of the day by fumbling on a third and nine situation deep in their own territory. Alabama recovered and took it in for the score and extra point to lead 7-0.

The defensive units for both teams played tough the remainder of the first half with the only other score coming on a Tide field goal. The score stretched the Alabama lead to 10-0 at the half.

In the second half the Doughboys came out looking like a new team, as has been the case in practically every game this year. The Doughboys' defense, playing hard, forced Alabama into a fumble on their own 45-yard line where the Doughboys recovered. The Doughboys, with Hall back at the helm, then moved to a quick first down and proceeded downfield. Due to penalties, the Doughboys found themselves facing a punting situation on fourth and 25 but decided to go for it. Hall dropped back and unloaded a bomb to Fred Suggs waiting in the end zone. Suggs missed the reception but pass interference was called which gave the Doughboys the ball on the Tide's one-yard line. Hall sneaked it across for the score on fourth and one to make the score 10-7 in favor of Alabama.

With the score only three points apart, the Doughboy defense really dug in. Alabama had the ball fourth and one at the Benning three-yard line where they decided to go for it. The Doughboys held and took over but again the offense ran into problems and couldn't pick up a first down.

Following the Doughboy punt, the Tide marched quickly downfield to score the TD and extra point to widen their lead to 17-7. On the next Benning possession, Hall was intercepted by a Tide defender who ran it back to the Doughboy 30 before being brought down. The Doughboys, still trying to pull a win out of their hat, got tough to force Alabama to settle for the field goal. The Tide's score stretched the lead to 20-7.

Then the Alabama scoring onslaught began. The Tide quickly moved downfield for another TD and extra point to widen their margin to 27-7. This score seemed to break the spirit of the Benning team. On their next possession, the Doughboys were intercepted, ending any hope of a win. With the score out of reach and the Doughboy defense tiring, the Junior Tide quickly moved across the goal line again. The extra point was good to stretch the Alabama lead to their final margin of 34-7.

The loss dropped the Doughboys to the .500 mark with a 4-4-1 record. The Doughboys' next opponent will be Alabama State University at 2 p.m. Sunday in Doughboy Stadium. Sunday's gridiron clash is the last home game of the 1979 season for the Doughboys.

The Doughboys, hampered by numerous injuries, are still hoping to close out the year with two more victories. "We should be able to play with them (Alabama State) if we don't make too many mistakes," said Santaliz. Greg King, a Doughboy running back, didn't see action against the Junior Tide but should be back in action alongside standout runner Leroy Benson against Alabama State. With King back, the Doughboys should have a more potent ground attack against State, according to Santaliz.

The Doughboys charge the Crimson Tide line, trying for the block. However, the field goal was good to stretch the Junior Tide's lead to 10-0 early in the game.

Gerald Mooring (L) tackles the Alabama runner. Mooring started the season as a back-up quarterback but due to the many injuries on the team he was moved to cornerback to fill in for injured Edward Gandy.

Attention Doughboy fans!

The Morale Support Activities Division will sponsor a 'VIP Excursion Trip' to the Doughboys vs. Fort McClellan football game Nov. 17.

Seats for the charter bus to see the last Doughboy game of the season will be on a first come first serve basis. Individuals planning to go should notify the Morale Support Activities Division not later than Nov. 15 along with either cash or check payment of the $20 charge. For more information call 545-4615.

Doughgirls scrimmage in preparation for season

The Doughgirls Basketball Team played their first scrimmage game in preparation for the 79-80 season last Tuesday.

The game pitted the Doughgirls against the Chattahoochee Valley Community College, with the Chattahoochee team winning the game with a 77-57 score.

Coach Hezzie A. Baines of the Doughgirls said, "The girls handled themselves well even though some of them never played on the team before. It was good experience for the girls since there were only three other girls returning from last year.

"We have some new talent capable of rounding out the team as the season starts," he added. "Our forward positions are strong which will help our weaker guards. With a little support I feel certain we will take the championship."

The Doughgirls will play the following teams through the season:

Nov. 23-24, 1 p.m.-3 p.m. — Fort McClellan — *Here

Doughboys open season with win

With the close of the Doughboy football season coming closer the Doughboy basketball team, coached by Tony Resino, has four players returning from last year's squad.

James King, 6-foot 8-inch starting center; Fredrick Nelson, 6-foot 5-inch guard, and forward Tony Haycliff are returning this year to lead the team as the season starts. Resino said some of the players on the team still play with the Doughboys football team but at the close of their season many hopefuls for the team will probably play basketball.

The only problem this year is in the height department, he added, and even though the team is working hard, this may become a factor later in the season. The Doughboys had their first scrimmage against Columbus College, winning 70-59. "The men are really working as a team, with everyone trying to help each other since most of our teams this year are going to play us some good ball," Resino said.

"If the team has support from the fans there will be some good ball played," he added.

Marksmanship team travels to Egypt

Thirteen personnel of the U.S. Army Marksmanship Unit will depart next week as members of the U.S. team that will compete in the CISM Shooting Championships to be held in Cairo, Egypt, Nov. 16-24.

Representing the United States in rifle events are Lones Wiggers and Phillip Can-nella, both former CISM individual winners, James Meredith and Philip Whitworth. Other members of the rifle squad include this year's winner of the CISM rifle tryouts, Webster Wright, U.S. Navy, and David Boyd, USMC, who qualified but later withdrew for personal reasons.

In the pistol team tryouts, all slots were taken by members of USAMU and included Charles McCowan, former National Champion, Erich Buljung, William Huffman, Marvin Black, Thomas Woods, this year's Interservice Champion and Waymond Alvis, team coach.

Colonel Stanley J. Parmentier, commander of the U.S. Army Marksmanship Unit, will act as team captain and chief of the U.S. delegation, a position he also held during last year's matches in Visby, Sweden. Mr. Fred Keifer, USAMU, will serve as assistant team manager and Dalton Graham, also with the USAMU, will act as the team armorer.

The United States will be out to defend its CISM team championship title, having won the previous two years in succession and for ten of the last 11 years.

Martin Edmondson, last year's National Mixed Run Champion, is one of the top running boar competitors in the United States. This event was added to the Olympic program in 1972.

Winner of two All Army and Interservice Rifle Championships plus this year's 1,000-yard Leech Cup trophy, William Lee is one of the top high power rifle competitors in the country.

Augusta Turkey Trot Nov. 18

By Tom Breeding

The Augusta, Ga. Track Club and WIBF-TV sponsor a six-miler Sunday-after next. But why go that far for just another race when there are so many closer? The entry fees are reasonable: $3 before Nov. 13, $4 thereafter, including race day. T-shirts to all who register, a flat, fast asphalt course and all the standard racing amenities make the race attractive, but Augusta?

The punch line: the first male finisher, the first female finisher, and the first wheelchair finisher will each receive an identical grand prize. The prize is an RCA color console television set. Now THAT's incentive.

Of course, a lot of other good runners and wheelers are aware of this, and I suspect the competition will be quite keen. Proving this premonition is the men's record of 28:46, and women's 38:31. Sorry, I don't have one for the wheelchair.

I do have entry forms, though, and a telephone number for those of you who may want to call Augusta with such legalistic questions as whether a perfectly fit specimen can enter in the wheelchair division. (I have faith in the inventive mind of the average American soldier.)

Lite Track and Field Run Dec. 1

While there are several area races during the Thanksgiving holidays, details are still sparse. This next Columbus run should adequately soften the blow of temporary disappointment.

Miller Lite Beer and the Dixie Beer Company present both a 3k and a 10K run at 9:30 and 10 a.m., respectively. The race features an appearance by Olympian Harvey Glance, T-shirts to the first 300 entrants, medals for the top three age group finishers, splits at each mile and a flat course with little or no traffic.

The site is easy to find: Dixie Beer on 4th Street behind the Farmer's Market. There's plenty of parking. ALL proceeds go to support the U.S. Track and Field Team.

There will be something for everyone, but the real drawing card is the proclamation at the bottom of the flyer: "Lite Beer and fluids will be served following the runs."

Y'all come.

Marathons

The marathoning season is upon us. Callaway runs Nov. 17. Fort Benning hosts the TRADOC Marathon Championship Dec. 5-8, further details appearing elsewhere in this issue of the BAYONET. I'll soon have details on Savannah, Atlanta and the Columbus Marathon, too. The featured plug today concerns Huntsville, Al.

The Third Annual Joe Steele Rocket City Marathon is already legend. The course, temperature, timing and aid stations all recommend the race for neophytes and old veterans seeking to establish a new personal record. The Marathon Information Book which is mailed to all entrants tells virtually everything one could wish to know about the run, including facilities in the Huntsville area, records, and history of both the Huntsville Marathon and marathons in general.

If there are any of you plodders out there who have been considering taking the ultimate challenge, I'd heartily recommend this as a first marathon. As always, I have the details, or know those who do. Call 544-4177 rule out additional Fort Benning runners. Race Director Anthony Knight stated that as many as wanted could run in the races, but the team would be limited to six members.

Since the scoring for team championship requires that there be an entrant in each category, anyone interested in participating should contact Knight at 544-4516, or drop by his office at Doughboy Stadium for further information.

Even the casual runner might qualify for the team, so don't hesitate — apply. Further information will appear in MAKING TRACKS or in a separate short feature.

Fort Benning swimmers place at Atlanta meet

By Barry Cuda

Twenty-one Fort Benning DYA swimmers traveled to Atlanta Nov. 3-4 to participate in the Tara Tarpons Indian Summer B-C Meet. This was the first meet for most of the Barracudas and offered an excellent opportunity for these youngsters to 'get their feet wet' in competitive swimming. Even though most did not place, they established times which they can all look forward to improving in future competition.

Reader suggests Fort Benning carpooling program

To the Editor:

On May 23 the Energy Resources Conservation Board (ERCB) considered a proposal for providing carpool incentive by reserving the first two or three rows of parking spaces in the east and west parking lots of Building 4 for carpool cars only. The ERCB did not elect to pursue this program.

On Aug. 3 a similar proposal was submitted. This revised proposal envisaged the following:

1. Preparing a locator board with "Riders Wanted" and "Ride Wanted" cards to be printed.

2. The locator board and cards would be placed in a central location in Building 4 (in lobby, library, etc. ...)

3. The maintenance function would include stocking the "Riders Wanted" and "Ride Wanted" cards, issuing "carpool" cards to be placed in the window of cars in the reserved spaces, and monitoring the carpool reserved area to insure that only "carpool" cars park there.

Letters to the Editor

4. The total cost for the locator board, all cards, designation of reserved space areas and posting of "Carpool cars only" signs would be approximately $200.

The ERCB evaluated this proposal and ascertained that the savings would only be about 122 gallons of gas per person per year for each carpool member. It was apparently decided that this savings was insignificant because the ERCB decided against the proposal and presented the opinion that "artificial incentives are not needed, and would simply create an administrative problem."

My question for the ERCB is simply, "What are your priorities?" The savings of 122 gallons of gas per person per year does not appear insignificant, nor does the total implementation cost of $200 seem exorbitant. In fact, the implementation cost would be recovered by the establishment of one additional three person carpool.

The alternative of providing lip service and promulgating directives and news releases appear somewhat impotent at best. If similar carpooling programs were started at Buildings 35, 85 and 89 the potential savings can be significant. I think the ERCB needs to restudy this proposal and adopt it, or at least propose a reasonable alternative. Artificial incentives are needed.

More dissatisfied moviegoers

To the Editor:

I am forced to concur with certain adverse comments regarding the Main Post Theater as stated in the Nov. 9 BAYONET.

My wife and I attended the 6:30 p.m. feature at the Main Post Theater on Nov. 9. After purchasing the reasonably priced tickets, we walked past the long concession line. Though I wanted to buy a box of popcorn, the line's length quickly dissuaded my interest. We encountered neither mice nor gummy residue. The air, however, was extremely dank as described in the BAYONET letter.

After ten minutes of the movie, I decided to return for a box of popcorn and a drink. The line was still very long and amazingly slow. Remembering the BAYONET's letter, I decided to wait. The line eventually shortened and I rounded the rail enroute to the cash register. The man in front of me reached for a medium cup and dipped into the ice container. I first noticed a disgusted grimace on his face and then a small, dark speck moving in the cup. On my inspection, the speck became a 3/4 inch long insect. Just then, an identical insect darted over the soft drink dispenser and under the machine's drain. I gathered both vermin into a cup and took them to the concessionaire. She apologized and said the days' spraying had 'brought them out.' She was right — I counted five more insects on the way out of the area.

The post theater system exists solely to serve the military community. The nature and decorum maintained by its clientele can be controlled by military authority. The physical environment, however, must be maintained by Mr.

Bradford and his associates so that a high quality of service exists. I must concur with the author of last week's article — it is worth a few extra dollars to go to an offpost theater. Yet this is unacceptable. Many service members, especially the young infantrymen with dependents, can not afford to go off post to a movie. They are the ones who most frequent a post's theater system. Must they settle for dramatically less for a few dollars off?

A military recreation system is considered a benefit of the service. The post theater system at Fort Benning is much less of a benefit than it should be for our soldiers. The silhouette poster distributed at Fort Benning rhetorically asks, "What have you done for him (the soldier) lately?" If conditions in the theater do not improve, we can honestly say that we haven't done very much.

Emergency leave? Bring your uniform

WASHINGTON (ARNEWS)—Soldiers coming home from overseas assignments on emergency leave should bring their uniforms with them, according to MILPERCEN officials.

Some soldiers on emergency leave wind up requesting a compassionate reassignment or hardship discharge, officials report. These soldiers must be attached to a nearby unit pending a decision. This may take up to a month, a MILPERCEN spokesman continued.

Soldiers without enough uniforms to meet duty requirements, officials say, will have to buy them. One seasonal Class A uniform and two duty uniforms are recommended, officials added.

We want letters!

The BAYONET welcomes letters on any subject that concerns military and civilian personnel at Fort Benning. All letters must be signed to be considered for publication in the BAYONET. Effective with the Oct. 5 issue only letters complete with the writers name will appear in this column.

CHAMPUS needs corrected names

Individuals submitting CHAMPUS claim forms with incorrect names could find their repayments from CHAMPUS delayed.

According to Civilian Health And Medical Program of the Uniform Services (CHAMPUS) officials. Incorrect or inconsistent use of beneficiary and military sponsor names on forms may delay the processing of individual claims and later reimbursement.

To avoid this problem, individuals should use the name appearing on their ID cards when filling out and signing all CHAMPUS forms.

When a person is admitted to a hospital or receives treatment in a doctor's office, the name used should be the same as the one appearing on the CHAMPUS claim form.

Incorrect names may also create problems for organizations processing claims when they issue deductible certificates.

Officials say the inconsistent use of names on CHAMPUS forms is only one of the reasons that claims are returning or delayed--fill out the forms carefully and completely.

Camellia is an apartment motel. We don't rent rooms, we rent furnished apartments with all the features of a regular motel plus added conveniences that cannot be provided with just a single room - and all at the same, or most times lower rates than the single-room motel. For example, our "standard" unit is comprised of two bedrooms, combination living room-dining room, bathroom and fully furnished kitchen including refrigerator, stove, cooking utensils, and table service for six people. These are some of the "extras" but at no extra cost. Our 100 units are in separate buildings with usually four apartments in each building, which adds to a person's or family's privacy.

ATTENTION ALL MILITARY PERSONNEL:

DON'T RISK YOUR CAR INSURANCE GOING UP EVERY 6 MONTHS.

READ THIS NOW.

Do you know that many auto insurers today offer only 6-month policies?

Do you wonder whether that's good or bad? Does it mean it could cost you extra money?

Well, what it means is this. Your auto policy has to be renewed every 6 months. Its rate can change with every renewal. And even though companies don't raise rates every time, rate increases happen all too often. Especially in these inflationary times.

But unlike most other companies, GEICO still issues 12-month auto policies at low rates, with convenient payment plans to fit your budget. Up to 9 payments if you wish.

How can GEICO offer this 12-month rate protection and low rates too?

Good drivers: you're one important reason.

GEICO insures good drivers. And good drivers are the best inflation-fighters around. You have fewer accidents. You cost us less. So you are one reason we can afford to charge you less.

"Good" doesn't mean "perfect." Good drivers may occasionally be involved in accidents. That's only human. An accident doesn't have to bar you from GEICO. And once you're a GEICO policyholder, an accident doesn't mean you won't be renewed. In fact, 98% of GEICO's policyholders are offered renewal each year. That tells you something about GEICO's loyalty to its policyholders.

Find out about GEICO low-cost auto insurance. When you call, you'll talk directly to a GEICO staff insurance counselor, not a salesman. There's no pressure. And no extra sales expense to inflate the cost.

Superior service for over 40 years

In the United States, its possessions, and Canada, you'll enjoy GEICO's excellent service and protection. And when you are based abroad, we can arrange for the same first-rate coverage to continue through International Insurance Underwriters.

GEICO has been saving money for good drivers since 1936. Today, of the more than 1,000 stock companies that insure autos in the U.S., GEICO is the 5th largest. Big enough to be everywhere you may need us.

Over 3,500 GEICO claims representatives all over the country are there to serve you. To answer questions. To settle your claim promptly and fairly.

You deserve the same sort of good deal that thousands of your fellow servicemen have been getting from GEICO for over 40 years. Find out exactly how much you may save. Mail the coupon today.

NOTE: Even if you do not meet GEICO's underwriting requirements, you may still obtain high-quality protection and the same reliable country-wide claim service from our affiliate, Criterion Insurance Company, at somewhat higher rates...and with a wide variety of payment plans to suit your budget. Criterion operates in the District of Columbia and every state except Mass., N.J., and So. Carolina.

Save money with these heating tips

By TIM BOIVIN

With winter coming and heating oil at an all time premium, homeowners and soldiers should begin to think about winterizing and conserving heat in their home.

Nov. 5 marked the official opening of the heating season at Fort Benning.

The temperature standards set for your residence should be followed. However, there will still be some warm days before old man winter sets in, so heat may not be needed at the set level for your building.

During weather below 30 degrees fahrenheit, outside or open faucets should be insulated to a fast drip to prevent damage to the plumbing.

The world's oil won't last forever, so do your part to conserve some and make it last a little longer. It will save you money, too.

HOW TO ...

Paper a wall, plant a posie, paint a room, pick a picture, plan a pea patch, plan a house, patch plaster, pitch a roof, plan a porch, plan a pool, pot a plant, preserve a relic, protect a garden, pulverize pests, pick a place to live.

Come on in. We'll show you how in Dining facility earns award

The dining facility personnel of Company D, 4th Battalion, 1st Infantry Training Brigade, learned recently that they had earned the top rating of all dining facilities in the Brigade. It was a fine pat on the back for a rather thankless job. Often, the only time that mess hall personnel can tell they are doing a good job is when no one is complaining. For the D-41 staff, however, care and dedication have gotten them recognized as the best.

The award is based on the Dining Facility Review conducted by the Brigade. Altogether, there are 132 items evaluated under five major areas: dining facility administration, receipt and storage, sanitation, food preparation, and supervision. Points are deducted for those items that are less than satisfactory.

What goes into winning the award? Sp5 Wilbur Brooks stated, "We feel honored to be distinguished as one of the best mess halls and I attribute that to our having some of the best personnel in ITB."

Cooperation throughout the chain of command was certainly a factor that allowed D-41 to come out on top during the recent evaluation. Said Sp4 Ralph Holly, "The company commander, Capt. Charles F. McAteer, purchased paneling out of his own pocket for our dining facility. That means he gives us a lot of support and we try and do our best for him."

YOU'D BE SURPRISED WHAT YOU CAN GET IN YOUR NEXT ENLISTMENT JUST BY ASKING.

If you've always wanted an assignment in Europe, but somehow the Army always had other plans for you, now you can make your own plans. You can reenlist for Europe. Or Korea. The Canal Zone. Hawaii. Alaska. Or, if you're serving overseas, a new duty station in the continental United States. And all you have to do is ask. One soldier who did is SP4 Ralph Cook, 3/68 Armor, Mannheim, Germany.

"Getting to Europe is something I always wanted. They work you harder here, but I do get to see a lot. I like the architecture. The customs. The people. I've been to Munich twice now, and the Oktoberfest is just madness. Really fun?"

In your next enlistment, you could end up with a lot more than a new overseas assignment. Chances are pretty good you'll make more rank, earn more pay and move up in responsibility. So talk to your Reenlistment NCO. And find out exactly how far you can go in your next enlistment.

KEEP A GOOD SOLDIER IN THE ARMY. REENLIST.

A M60A1 tank crew from Troop A, 15th Cavalry guard a position overlooking a stream fording site.

A member of the 3rd Brigade, 82nd Airborne Division, contemplates his fate after being taken prisoner by soldiers of Troop A, 15th Cavalry. Prisoners were interrogated by members of the 179th Military Intelligence Detachment.

A commander and one of his aides plan a breakout to get his company back to friendly lines.

Bold Eagle 80

They had been searching the skies for two days when the first C-141 air transports appeared over the horizon. Within minutes the men of A Troop, 15th Cavalry reported to the 197th Infantry Brigade Headquarters that the 82nd Airborne Division had begun their operations.

Exercise Bold Eagle 80 began with the 82nd Division jumping onto selected areas of Eglin Air Force Base, Fla. and then consolidating their positions against an expected onslaught by the Opposing Forces, (made up in large part by the 197th Infantry Brigade). The Opposing Forces attacked with fierce determination along two axes of advance running east to west across Eglin AFB. The 2nd Battalion, 69th Armor attacked along the northern axis while the 1st Battalion, 58th Infantry advanced in the south.

Pushing hard, the 197th overran the 82nd Airborne defenses and seized objectives deep within the enemy's rear area early on the second day. The Brigade then pulled back in order to permit the 82nd Airborne forces to take the offensive.

"Every member of the 197th Brigade, whether combat or support, can be proud of the success of the Brigade in the high pressure environment of simulated combat," said Col. Michael F. Spigelmire, commander of the 197th.

"It was gratifying to see the comprehensive maintenance performed under field conditions," he added. Engines were changed by crews and mechanics from Company D, 197th Support Battalion. The 72nd Engineer Company's water purification unit purified over 60,000 gallons of water, the 179th Military Intelligence Detachment processed 76 prisoners of war, and the 298th Signal Detachment maintained reliable communications during the exercise.

"The members of the 197th Brigade involved in the exercise gained both a sense of accomplishment and confidence that they can do their job in a combat situation if they should ever have to. They have proven they can move, shoot, and communicate in a very hostile environment." Spigelmire concluded.

PFC Ricky "Red" Railey (L) and Sgt. Ricky "Doc" Jewell of Company C, 3/7th Infantry, take a break while awaiting an airborne assault against the 82nd Airborne.

How about that?

Failure not the end

By WILLIAM W. ERBACH SR., TIC Chaplain

Take a balloon. Blow it up. As it is blown it gets larger and larger. At last it breaks, and although we had expected it, we are still startled when it happens.

Dreams and life goals are much like the balloon. They are certainly real. We, in our own way, inflate them sometimes far beyond their capacity to exist and then they burst.

Unfortunately, there are too many remnants of broken dreams around that, in their way, become monuments to failure. In the prairies of the Dakotas or the deserts of the great Southwest you see deserted, abandoned farms that are the stark reminders of dreams, hopes and aspirations of the men and women who had to move away. Those dreams vanished like the bursting of a balloon.

What happened? Many things, but there they stand - monuments. And so it is in many yet smaller places and things even in our own lives: a job, a love, a special car or possession - all defeats. But need they be?

There is a story told of a Scottish king named Robert Bruce who crawled into a cave to rest. As he lay thinking about the failures he had in battle he noticed a spider trying to spin a web. Over and over the spider tried to swing across the mouth of the cave but failed. When the spider finally managed to attach its web to the other side of the cave, Robert Bruce might have thought of the valued phrase, "If at first you don't succeed, try, try, again." HOW ABOUT THAT?

We must all try our best at all times but we should never be disappointed when things go wrong and all our hopes are blasted, for these things happen and we don't always know why. There will be many broken balloons, many blasted hopes, many abandoned farms in life, but we must always try, try, again.

Education:

Army wants college education to be sought by today's soldier

By TERRY RAGAN

All right, soldier, it's time to shape up your brain.

Which is not to say you aren't smart. After all, you're in the Army, aren't you? The only service right for you, right? You did well on the battery of tests you had to take. You've graduated from high school, or have taken and passed the GED equivalency tests — compliments of Uncle Sam.

And to boot, your body is in the best shape it's ever been in. You're feeling great, making great money, have an incredible attitude and the whole world is open to you.

Then comes the day you can't make rank because you have no formal education beyond high school. And that day isn't far away. Military schools are one thing; you need all the military schooling you can get to be the kind of soldier the Army wants and needs. But there's another kind of schooling the Army is talking about — college courses taken in pursuit of a degree.

Uncle Sam already wants his officers to have a degree and, the higher the rank, the more advanced the degrees have to be just to keep up with the technology and the advances in management — to name two areas. To make E-7 and to attend some of the advanced NCO schools, you have to have an associate degree or the equivalent of two years of college.

It's time to shape up your brain.

Some men and women join the Army to avoid school and education in general, to find a job where they can be happy and not have to use their minds.

Forget it. You can't hope to make rank or stay in the Army without taking college level courses and proving your interest and commitment to bettering your mind. You can't get away from it — it's what the green machine wants and expects.

Some men and women join the Army to take advantage of the opportunities to get an education while on active duty. They believed the ads about "do something with your life" and they're out there doing it.

They've got the right idea and it ain't easy. You miss classes because of guard duty or CQ. You spend a lot of stolen hours (hours stolen from your sack time) reading, translating hurriedly-scratched notes, writing the term paper due tomorrow. You have to sacrifice your fun time to the demands of another kind of machine — the university.

That's shaping up your brain.

Is it hard to get into college? Not really. You can handle it, especially when you think about the paperwork you waded through to get into the Army. There's nowhere near the paperwork involved in getting into Columbus College or Troy State or Georgia State University or Embry Riddle — the four schools at Fort Benning that offer college courses. It's going to cost you some money; Columbus College charges $16 per quarter hour which amounts to $80 per five-hour course.

Not bad, especially when Uncle Sam will pick up most of the tab. And if you're entitled to full G.I. Bill benefits, the government foots the entire cost. At any rate, the Army will have what it wants — a smarter you.

You'll have what you want — a degree paid for in full or in large part by the Army.

That's using your brain.

There's a lot of talk going around about how you just don't need a college degree to get a good (and a good-paying) job any more, that a vocational or technical skill learned at a vo-tech school is just as good. Maybe you agree. See and talk to a Fort Benning education counselor about that. Get some answers.

Will a college degree make you richer? In the Army, yes — in the sense that a degree goes hand in hand with higher rank. And higher rank means more money — more than the equivalent in the civilian sector for the same experience and education. Believe it.

So get yourself enrolled. Prove to your boss, your company commander and Military Personnel Center that you're a cut standards he expects of himself, and the kind of soldier who knows where the future lies in the Army.

Soldier, it's time to shape up your brain.

Q — I let my VA National Service Life Insurance policy lapse last year. What can I do to reinstate it?

A — Lapsed NSLI term insurance can be reinstated within five years by meeting the health and monetary requirements. You will need a physical examination and, upon making application, you must pay two monthly premiums, one for the month of lapse and one for the month of reinstatement.

Q — I was disabled as a result of service during the Vietnam War and convalescence required a number of years. Now I understand I am ineligible for full educational entitlement under the GI Bill because of the 10-year delimiting date. Is this true?

A — No. If your disabilities were severe enough to prevent you from attending school during the 10 years following your discharge you may be granted an extension of your delimiting date. Contact your nearest VA office for assistance.

PROSTITUTION

Alive and well on Victory Drive

Story and Photos by GARY JONES

Joyce S. is an attractive 24-year-old black prostitute who haunts the bars on Victory Drive hoping to find Fort Benning trainees with a little time to spend and a lot of money in their pockets.

According to Joyce, on a good night she may service as many as 12 trainees. "Trainees are my best customers because there are a lot of 'em and when they get a pass all they want to do is eat, drink and get a shot of leg."

Joyce, like many Columbus area street prostitutes, says she does it for the money and tries to stay away from the "bad scenes" such as violent pimps, perversion and setting the customers up to be ripped off.

However, many Benning soldiers have found out these "bad scenes" do exist. However, "very few cases of soldiers being ripped off by prostitutes or their pimps are ever reported," according to David Hopkins, spokesman for the Columbus Police Department.

The string of porn shops and topless bars adorning Victory Drive act as a lure to lonely soldiers. But the often young, inexperienced soldiers may wind up in an alley with their heads bashed in, pockets empty and desires unfulfilled.

Unless the soldier is injured seriously enough to require medical treatment, the only one to find out about the 'bad scene' are his buddies back in the barracks.

"We often hear the same story over and over," Hopkins explained. "The victims usually describe being hit from behind and looking up to see only a big guy in blue jeans and sweat shirt running away. Many are embarrassed to admit to being ripped off by either a prostitute or her pimp."

One Benning soldier from the 1st Infantry

Training Brigade related an incident where he was ripped off. His bad scene started at a motel on Victory Drive. He was approached by a working girl after he circled the parking lot several times looking for prospects.

When he pulled over to talk to a slightly clad girl, she greeted him with the typical question, "You looking for a date?" When he answered 'yes' she then asked him how much money he could spend. One soldier, trying to act "cool", made the mistake of flashing the contents of his wallet (it was payday night).

The girl asked him to park and then pointed to the window where he would pay the motel owner (really her pimp) $5 for the temporary use of a room. He followed the girl into the room, which looked as if it had seen many such visits during the evening. She asked him to expose himself so that she could be sure he wasn't a policeman.

Then they agreed on the price. She asked him for a smoke and when he didn't have one she excused herself to go buy a pack at the motel office. As soon as she was gone her pimp entered the room to take the rest of the soldier's money. Similar scenes happen to other unsuspecting soldiers.

The typical answer area prostitutes give when asked why they do it is "for the money." When asked if she liked what she was doing, Linda C. said with a smirk, "Sure I love it." She then looked down as her eyes started to fill with tears and said, "If you want the truth, sometimes I look in the mirror and hate what I see." Linda C. is 23-years-old but when you get close she appears to be about 35.

Why do they do it?

Linda C. works the motels and bars along Victory Drive. She, like Joyce S., works this area because of the high number of trainees found there. "I leave my little boy with a baby sitter when I go out at night. I tell him I'm going to work. He cries and wants me to stay home. I just hope he'll understand and still want me when he gets older," she said.

Many of the area prostitutes are lured into the 'world's oldest business' by enterprising pimps who often treat the girls "like money-making pieces of meat," according to Linda C. Many times the pimps will turn a girl on to some form of drug and keep supplying it until he gets the girl firmly hooked. Then the supply line is severed. To support a really bad habit can run as high as $200 per day for a girl.

The pimp then tells the girl he will keep her supplied if she will turn tricks for him. At first, usually the girl refuses but soon submits when she finds it impossible to support her habit on her own.

Many prostitutes are divorcees with children to care for. The pimps use this fact against them by threatening harm to the children if the girl tries to quit selling herself. There is also the girl who works the streets or bars simply because she likes to. However, these girls are the exception rather than the rule.

The danger of VD

Whenever dealing with a prostitute there is always the chance of running into physical violence but there is another danger, although just as damaging, that is less visible.

Over a four month period from June 18 to Oct. 22, there were 382 cases of venereal disease treated at Fort Benning medical clinics. Of the reported cases, 72 were admittedly from contacts with prostitutes, according to Sigsbee Mainous, post VD control officer and a member of the Fort Benning Disciplinary Control Board.

The two areas where the majority of the cases were contacted are the Victory Drive and Baker Village areas, Mainous said. The most common form of VD contracted in this area is gonorrhea which, with early detection and treatment, can be cured. But another form of VD, Herpes simplex type two, is on the rise. To this date there is no known cure for this type of VD, which appears as small blisters on the infected person's genitals. The disease clears up rather easily but reoccurs without warning or further sexual contact.

Drive

The only sure way not to contract VD is not to have sexual relations but there is a way to minimize the chance. Before starting relations with a prostitute, soldiers should protect themselves with a prophylactic. Immediately after having relations the genitals should be washed with warm water and soap and the person should urinate to dislodge any germs they may have come in contact with before they fully take hold in the inner walls of the sex organ.

Hustlers, another kind of rip off

Prostitutes present a problem to unsuspecting soldiers but there is another type of girl who rips-off soldiers. Many soldiers perceive these girls to be prostitutes but there is one difference — at the end of an evening the soldier finds he has spent a great deal of money and received nothing in return except a hangover.

These girls can be found in many bars in the Columbus area. They are usually waitresses or dancers who work in the clubs. The girls hustle the guys but not for money in exchange for sex. Out rather, for money in exchange for high-priced drinks and the promise of sex that is never carried out.

The girls usually single out guys who come in alone. They flirt and tease in order to pressure the guys into buying the drinks at an inflated price. Legally, as long as the girl doesn't sit down with the customer, no crime is committed. However, many soldiers feel they have been cheated after purchasing drinks for a girl who all evening really seems interested in him only to find out at closing time that she is leaving alone and never had any intentions otherwise.

These girls get a commission on the drinks they sell. They make their most money selling bottles of wine or champagne to the lonely soldiers. The wine is usually the inexpensive kind that can be purchased in a liquor store for about two to three dollars but in some bars and clubs it sells for between $10 and $20, depending on the club and type of wine or champagne sold. As long as the price is posted, the inflating of prices is not only legal but commonly done, even though it is very unpopular with the young soldier who has just spent his whole pay check.

The girls get the soldiers to continue buying them bottles of wine or champagne by getting them drunk. Once this is done, the soldiers' judgment is impaired and they often don't realize how much money they are spending until the evening is over and they check their wallets for cab fare back to the barracks.

Although the girls get the soldiers to buy them drink after drink they almost never get drunk, while several soldiers at night stagger out the door, having been drank under the table by their pretty companions. The girls accomplish this in several ways. One way, and perhaps the easiest, is to continually fill the soldier's glass after almost every drink while only sipping theirs. However, even just sipping wine or champagne over the course of an evening would get the average girl intoxicated so they have various other plans to get rid of the alcoholic beverage in their glass.

A very effective way the girls remain sober is to excuse themselves to the ladies room, taking their drinks with them. While in the ladies room they pour out the contents of their glass and refill it with ice cubes and highly watered-down coke, which in the dimly lit clubs appears to be the same drink they left with.

Occasionally, a customer will buy a girl a mixed drink or beer which they can't exchange in the ladies room. She will then signal the other girls, who take turns helping her drink it so she doesn't get drunk.

Most young soldiers who undergo Benning training before moving to another post only go downtown a few times during their stay here. During this short period they can't hope to learn all the 'tricks of the trade' the girls can use to separate them from their money. Two things that have been around Army posts for a long time are prostitutes and young soldiers who put themselves in a position to be ripped-off.

Don't set yourself up for a "bad scene."

Army prenatal leave policy changed

WASHINGTON (ARNEWS)—Pregnant soldiers are not guaranteed four weeks of leave before delivery, according to MILPERCEN officials.

A recent change to AR 630-5, "Leave, Passes, Administrative Absences, and Public Holidays," eliminates the reference to four weeks of prenatal sick in quarters.

Now, according to officials, the soldier's physician must decide how much leave the pregnant soldier needs.

Previously, pregnant soldiers were allowed up to four weeks of prenatal absence. While only a target period set by the Surgeon General's office, officials say, many soldiers assumed the four week maximum absence to be an entitlement. Many pregnant soldiers did not take advantage of the prenatal absence policy, but some who did abused the policy.

According to annual pregnancy rate figures, there were more than 7,830 pregnant soldiers in the Army in FY 78. Of these, 2,626 had abortions while on active duty, over 3,100 remained on active duty and delivered, and 2,068 chose to leave the service because of pregnancy.

According to the new policy, soldiers becoming pregnant while on active duty will remain on duty during the prenatal period, except when limited by a temporary physical profile. Her attending physician will decide when she can no longer perform her duties.

Officials say they are not unsympathetic to the plight of pregnant women. The policy, however, was changed because it was being abused and manipulated.

Though the policy on prenatal absence has been changed, the postpartum leave policy remains the same. Leave for the new mother normally will not be more than six weeks after the soldier is released from the hospital. According to officials, the six weeks of leave may be extended if the new mother's condition requires more recovery times.

HSC helps to keep soldiers healthy

By ROBERT BRATT, U.S. Army Health Services Command, Fort Sam Houston, Texas.

WASHINGTON (ARNEWS)—A sick soldier cannot fight.

A unit with too many sick absentees cannot prepare for or fight a battle.

An army of sick soldiers may lose a battle—may lose a war.

The quality and quantity of medical care directly affects the accomplishment of unit missions and troop morales in a large and very important way.

The U.S. Army Health Services Command (HSC), with headquarters at Fort Sam Houston, Texas, is deeply involved in providing soldiers and units with the best possible medical care available. All members of the command are dedicated to that commitment.

There seems to be a tendency these days to list medical care as just one other item along with such things as the craft shop, special service library and gym as nice to have items, not essential to unit readiness.

If one can visualize hundreds of American soldiers in Vietnam with malaria or uncared for gunshot wounds, or a soldier with a broken leg or malignancy, then one would realize these soldiers have directly impacted upon the readiness of their units.

Conversely, more wars have been lost by disease than by enemy action, and medical care is one element of the soldier's life which accompanies him everywhere in the world, in peace and in war.

Medical care is absolutely essential to unit readiness and its importance far exceeds that of a morale factor.

Army leaders at all levels of command are aware of the importance of a healthy Army, especially those who deal with and lead troops on a daily basis in combat units.

At a time when the Surgeon General is attempting to justify and obtain from Congress resources needed to maintain a strong, deployable and ready medical force to accompany the soldier into combat, it is imperative that medical care be viewed as a major contribution to unit readiness.

Medical soldiers need to be convinced that their mission is a military one and that their wartime role is primary. It is essential that all soldiers join together in support of the direct role the health care system has in mission accomplishment and the importance of the medical soldiers who provide that health care.

Politics:

Soldiers can be involved in upcoming election year

By T. A. SABEL

For everyone who is unaware of current events, there is an election year coming up!

Despite certain restrictions, soldiers can become politically active. The guidelines covering the serviceman's political role are covered in Army Regulation 600-20.

All qualified servicemembers can, and are encouraged, to register and vote. Expressing personal opinions on the issues and candidates can be done as a private citizen, not as a representative of the U.S. Army.

Servicemembers may make monetary contributions to a political party or to a political party or to a political committee favoring a particular candidate or group of candidates. These contributions are subject to the limitations shown in sections 607 and 608 of Title 18 of the U.S. Code. They cannot solicit or make contributions to a member of the armed forces or a U.S. federal employee for political purposes.

Members can join political clubs and attend meetings when not in uniform. They can also attend partisan (a group adhering to a particular party or faction) meetings as well as nonpartisan meetings or rallies as a spectator when not in uniform. They cannot participate in partisan politics management or campaigns or make public speeches in the course of political campaigns. Nor can they serve in an official capacity or as a sponsor of a partisan political club.

Letters may be written to newspaper editors expressing personal opinions on public issues, as long as it is not an attempt to promote a partisan political cause. Personal letters not for publication may be written supporting a particular political candidate or cause if it is not part of a letter writing campaign.

A small bumper sticker can be displayed on POVs but not large signs, banners or posters.

The servicemember cannot distribute partisan political literature, conduct public opinion surveys, march or ride in partisan political parades.

Servicemembers cannot use their position or influence to affect the outcome of an election. Supervisors and bosses cannot tell workers how to vote or what stance to take on an issue.

In short, soldiers in today's Army can be politically involved only as a private citizen and in a manner that does not give the appearance of the servicemember as a representative of the armed forces.

Gosh, Audrey, you know I don't care if you're a Republican or a Democrat . . . Just voting is the important thing!

Register on leave

WASHINGTON (ARNEWS) — While visiting friends and family back home over Thanksgiving or Christmas, why not register to vote in 1980?

Most states now make it easier for servicemembers, their spouses and dependents to register and vote absentee. But the best method of making sure you're on the "books" is to register in person.

If you plan to be home during the holiday season, call your county clerk for information on voter registration.

You may also be able to request your absentee ballots for upcoming state primary and general elections.

According to Federal Voting Assistance Program (FVAP) officials, local election officials understand the problems of service people and their families. They will do what they can to help individuals obtain an absentee ballot.

Even if your state does not allow early registration, you should still contact local voting officials while you're home. It may make it easier for you to register by mail later and get your absentee ballot.

The FVAP will begin a comprehensive program in January to help soldiers and their dependents register and vote during 1980 by absentee ballot.

Overseas soldiers get increase in COLA

WASHINGTON (ARNEWS)—Soldiers stationed in Germany will see a raise in their Cost Of Living Allowance (COLA) and Station Housing Allowance (SHA) this month, DA personnel officials announced recently.

Due to a drop in the value of the dollar, the DoD Per Diem Committee raised the rates Oct. 3, officials said.

The Per Diem Committee monitors the rise and fall of the exchange rate of the Deutsche mark (DM) to the dollar. As soon as the exchange rate reached the "trigger point" of 1.72 DM to the dollar, the increase was approved, officials said.

Along with the value of the dollar, a number of other factors affect the amount of COLA and SHA soldiers receive, a DA spokesman explained.

Where soldiers are assigned, for example, impacts on their allowances. Some areas provide full support in the way of commissaries and exchanges, while others only provide limited services or "partial support". Still others, have no services available. Soldiers stationed in partial support or "no support" areas receive more money for COLA.

In determining COLA rates, the Per Diem Committee annually compares the average price of about 150 goods and services at the overseas station with the average price of similar goods and services in commissaries, exchanges and commercial stores in the U.S.

In May, the survey showed that prices for the United States had risen nine percent compared to only a 2.4 percent increase in Germany. In this case the COLA was cut since the cost of living in the United States had increased more than in Germany.

COLA, the spokesman stressed, is designed to give soldiers stationed overseas the same buying power as their counterparts state-side.

Another price survey in August resulted in a further cut, the spokesman added.

Soldiers receive a housing allowance (SHA) when the cost of rent, utilities and moving-in expenses are higher than the Basic Allotment for Quarters (BAQ), the spokesman said. Surveys are conducted each year and these costs are averaged out then compared with the BAQ rates.

Consequently as BAQ goes up, SHA goes down. As housing costs go up, SHA goes up. SHA is also affected by the exchange rate, he explained.

The following chart shows the changes in COLA and SHA for an E-4 with two years service and one dependent in the Frankfurt area during the last six months.

DATE	COLA	SHA
May 10, 1979	$79.50	$154.50
May.11- Aug.20	$60.00	$163.50
Aug.21- Sep.30	$39.00	$181.50
Oct.1- 2	$40.50	$169.50
Oct.3- present	$51.00	$186.50
TOTAL CHANGE	$28.00	$24.00
May- Oct. 1979	(DOWN)	(UP)

The overseas commands keep the Per Diem Committee informed on any changes that impact on these allowances, the spokesman concluded.

If you are unlucky enough to be in a traffic accident, the odds on your surviving are better if the accident happens on a city street rather than a rural road. More accidents occur in the city with more injuries and property damage results than in the rural areas, but statistics show a higher percentage of fatal accidents occurring in rural areas. Doughboys roll past Hornets, 46-36 for 5th win

By GARY JONES

The Doughboys' last home game of the season, played here Sunday against the Hornets of Alabama State University, turned out to be a game of firsts for the Benning grid-iron team.

It was the first time this year the Doughboys were in control of the game from start to finish, it was the first time in many games that the Doughboys have scored first and it was the first time this year that the Doughboy offense reached the potential that many Benning fans have expected all year.

Edward Cochran, 598th Maintenance Company, sacks the Hornet quarterback for a loss. The Doughboy 'D' harassed the Alabama State signal caller all afternoon, once catching him in the end zone for an 8-yard loss and safety.

The Doughboys, coming off a 34-7 defeat at the hands of the University of Alabama JVs, wasted no time scoring despite soggy field conditions. The Doughboys received the opening kickoff and then marched downfield to score on a one-yard Leroy Benson run. Benson gained 47 yards during the drive. Wayne Jackson kicked the point after to give the Doughboys the lead 7-0.

The Hornets came right back to score. The extra point was no good, setting the score at 7-6. The remainder of the first quarter turned out to be the calm before the second half Doughboy explosion. The Hornets drove back downfield but the Doughboy 'D' dug in to force them to settle for a field goal. At the end of the opening quarter the Hornets were leading 9-7. The Hornet lead was short lived as Tim Welcome sacked the Alabama State quarterback in the end zone for an 8-yard loss and a safety to tie the score at 9-9.

Then quarterback Leamon Hall and the Doughboy offense went to work with a 29-point explosion. The first score of the second quarter binge came on a 14-yard pass from Hall to Frederick Suggs.

The Doughboy 'D' held the Hornets three downs before intercepting a short pass to take over on the Hornet 49-yard-line. Hall came back on first down with a long bomb to Suggs in the end zone. The extra point was no good. Then, following the kick, Welcome recovered a Hornet fumble, and two plays after that Hall again hit Suggs in the end zone to stretch the Doughboy lead to 13 points. Hall scored the next one himself on a one-yard sneak to stretch the Doughboy margin to 36-9.

Columbus native Walter Shelley, Hornet quarterback, threw a 51-yard touchdown pass to John Lewis on a halfback option with 24 seconds left in the half. Shelley was State's leading rusher with 36 yards on 12 tries and had two kickoff returns of more than 40 yards.

The Doughboys scored quickly in the second half after a fumble recovery by Henry Baker. It took the Doughboys just three plays to go the necessary 18 yards, the last an 11-yard draw play by Harry Bartlett for the score to widen the Doughboy margin to 43-15.

The Hornets closed the gap with a 41-yard score on a flea flicker in the third period, and scored twice more in the fourth period when McCarey hit Franklin for a 38-yard scoring strike and Lewis for a 70-yard TD in the closing seconds.

Jackson concluded the scoring for the Doughboys with a 28-yard field goal on the first play of the final period. The kick put the score at 46-36 in favor of the Doughboys. The win raised the Doughboy record to 5-4-1. The Doughboys play their last game of the season tomorrow against Fort McClellan in an away game.

Benning Marksmanship Unit - winning 23 years

By TOMMY POOL

For over 23 years the U.S. Army Marksmanship Unit stationed at Fort Benning has been winning. Not only winning, but dominating practically every state, regional, national or international shooting tournament it enters including the Olympics, World Championships and Pan American Games to mention a few.

Immediate success!!

Since 1956, when the unit was formed, USAMU has turned out no less than eight Olympic gold medal winners, over 30 world records held individually or as team members, over a 100 National Champions and countless national shooting records reported to be near the 1,000 mark.

It wasn't always that way however. Just after World War I, when competitive shooting began to attract interest, not only in the United States but in Europe as well, Army teams were winning their share of the annual National Championships. In international competition, the United States was the team to beat, as Americans were practically making a clean sweep in the World and Olympic shooting events in the 1920's and 30's.

Everything came to a halt for World War II and Korea, with the Nationals resuming again in the early 1950's. The only difference now was that the Marines were winning at the Nationals and the Soviet Union was winning practically everything in World and Olympic competition.

President authorizes unit

In late 1955, President Eisenhower directed that a unit be formed with the mission of improving overall marksmanship standards within the Army and, in addition, to train personnel in those shooting events required to help bring the United States to its rightful position as the best in the world.

Success in national competition was almost immediate. U.S. Army Teams have won the National Trophy Rifle Team Championship 15 times to five for the USMC, with the USAF, USN, National Guard and USAR winning once each since 1956. In pistol, U.S. Army Teams have won 19 times to three for USMC and twice for the USAR. Dominance in international competition took a while longer. There were several outstanding individual performances in the early going however, such as two world championship wins by Verle Wright, U.S. Army Ret., at the 1958 World Championships in Moscow. In the 1962 World Championships in Cairo, Egypt, then Gary Anderson won four world championships. He went on to win two Olympic gold medals and four more world championships after he left the service.

It wasn't until the 1964 Olympics however that the United States, with help from the members of USAMU, began to take the lions' share of the gold. Incidentally, it was 1964 when Lones Wigger won his first Olympic gold. He also notched a silver and won his second gold medal in 1972 during the Munich Olympics. Since 1960, USAMU has been placing an average of 70 percent on U.S. Shooting Teams representing America in the World Championships, Pan American Games, the Olympics, CISM and the recently organized Confederation of the Americas Championships.

Producing Olympic winners

Members of USAMU's International Rifle, Pistol, Running Target and Shotgun Branches are training hard for the upcoming Olympic games to be held next July in Moscow. All those knowledgeable in the shooting circles agree that the Soviets will be tough on their home range. East Germany will also have a strong entry to contend with.

Next year's U.S. Olympic tryouts will begin in April here at Fort Benning with the Running Boar National Championships. Smallbore rifle and pistol will be held at Phoenix, Ariz., in June and Shotgun in San Antonio, Tex., during the same period. There will be two rifle events (Smallbore 3 Psn and English Match), two pistol (Rapid Fire and Free Pistol), two shotgun (International Skeet and Trap) and Running Boar for a total of seven shooting disciplines during next year's Olympics with two shooters for each event by each country.

Preparing for Soviets

In the last Olympics, one of the shooting events, the 60 shot Smallbore Rifle Prone Match, called the English Match, had more competitors than any other single event in the Games, including track and field.

In addition to its competitive mission, USAMU, is firmly committed to improving the marksmanship skills of the individual soldier. USAMU and its three Marksmanship Training Units #1, #5 and #6 located at Forts Meade, Riley and Ord, are presently engaged in providing "How To Do It" Basic Marksmanship Clinics for M16 rifle and .45 caliber pistol at FORSCOM posts throughout CONUS. These clinics are aimed at battalion instructor cadre involved with marksmanship qualification and familiarization.

This year alone, USAMU and its three MTU's have presented over 200 marksmanship clinics to active Army, ROTC and law enforcement agencies totaling over 50,000 student man days.

Standing in the ready position at station one, Sgt. Joe Clemmons is the present world record holder in International Skeet set in 1977 at Mexico City.

In one of over 200 marksmanship clinics conducted during 1979, SFC Dewey Clayton is one of USAMU's top M16 rifle instructors.

Striving for an Olympic gold medal will be upper most in the minds of the personnel at USAMU in preparation for next years Moscow Games.

DYA weekly football highlights

The Steelers downed the Main Post Falcons in Termiter League action Saturday to ruin a Falcon undefeated season. The Falcons drew first blood early in the first quarter when Antoine Owens ran the ball in from the Steeler 40-yard-line.

On the next series of downs the Steeler's Nathan Vereen marched back, broke loose, and tied the score at 6-6. This was the first time the Falcon defense had been scored on during the season.

The feat didn't seem to impress the Steelers, though. Just after the second period began, a Steeler sweep around their left end and Xavier Carter drove the ball 20 yards to pull the Steelers ahead 12-6. John Ware's extra point added a third blow to the Falcon defense's record, putting the score at 14-6.

The remainder of the period saw much effort on the part of both teams, but ended without another score.

Midway through the third period, the Steelers began to move again from their own 48. The march ended a few plays later when the Steeler' Scott Merritt cashed in for another six points. The extra point attempt was no good, leaving the score at 20-6.

With just two minutes gone into the final period, the Falcons began to come back. Ron Maciver added 5 yards and six points to his statistics. The Falcon extra point was good and the Falcons were back in the ball game with a score of 20-14.

The Falcons grabbed the ball back with only 2½ minutes left in the game. They began to move, but got stalled around the 20-yard-line when time ran out, leaving them on the short end of a 20-14 score.

The season record for both teams remains at 7-1, each team handing the other its only defeat for the season. The league championship will be decided tomorrow at Blue Field at 10 a.m.; when the Steelers and Falcons clash "for the third and final time" this year.

Tae Kwon Do Club tested for awards

By PHIL WARGO

The Fort Benning Tae Kwon Do Club was tested Sept. 22 by the American Tae Kwon Do Association. Nineteen students tested for higher color ranks, which consisted of a series of hand and foot techniques performed in sequence.

Forms are based on the imaginary existence of up to eight enemies providing practice in meeting oncoming attackers from all quarters. Students were also tested in pre-arranged sparring three steps, two steps, and one steps requiring students to apply defence attacks and counter attacks with another student as an opponent.

Students were tested for green belts and higher ranks, which is the most important and difficult since it simulates actual combat. This also uses all of the offensive and defensive techniques the student has learned.

The testing board judges were Phil Wargo, a fourth degree black belt and an instructor for the club; and Hank Farrah, a second degree black belt and a former Battle of Atlanta welterweight champion.

Congratulations to the following students who achieved their new rank: Pete Stankovich, 3R Green Belt; Victor Crandal, 5R Green Belt; Clifton Gipson, 6R Green Belt; Arialdi Minino, 6D Green Belt; Jeff Bullock, 6R Green Belt; Wanda Gipson, 7D Yellow Belt; Birgit Crandall, 7D Yellow Belt; James Murphy, 7D Yellow Belt; Jim Shierling, 7D Yellow Belt; Robert Moore, 7D Yellow Belt; Alan J. Murphy, 7D Yellow Belt; Marvin Johnson, 7D Yellow Belt; James A. Neal, 7D Yellow Belt; Larry K. Day, 7R Yellow Belt; Timothy Richards, 7R Yellow Belt; George Malsui, 8R Yellow Belt; Peter Stankovich, 8R Yellow Belt; Karen S. Wargo, 8R Yellow Belt; and Sharon P. Wargo, 8R Yellow Belt.

For more information on how to join the club, contact Phil Wargo at 687-7629 or 545-2577. You may visit a class in session any Tuesday from 6:30 p.m. until 9 p.m. or Saturdays from 9:30 a.m. until noon.

Stagg Bowl football action here

The eighth annual Amos Alonzo Stagg Bowl will be played at Phenix Municipal Stadium Saturday, Dec. 1 and the winner will be the undisputed champion of NCAA Division III.

The title game, televised regionally by ABC-TV, is sponsored by the Phenix City Lions Club and Phenix City Shrine Club, with proceeds benefiting programs for the deaf, blind and crippled children.

All tickets are $5 and are available from any Lion or Shriner. The ticket headquarters is open in the Village Green Shopping Center on the Phenix City Bypass.

The two opponents won't be known until Nov. 24. NCAA has devised a special plan for its Division II and III championships. Eight teams are selected, on the basis of season records and strength of opponents, for the first round of playoffs. The four survivors square off the following weekend to determine two Stagg Bowl opponents.

The 1974 game was decided by two points, the 1976 and 1977 games were both three-pointers and last year Baldwin-Wallace knocked off perennial small college power Wittenberg, 24-10.

In terms of money, the Stagg Bowl is responsible for thousands of new dollars in the tri-community and provides thousands of dollars to the charities.

For more Stagg Bowl information, contact Stagg Bowl Publicity and Program Chairman John F. Brand, 298-7811, extension 2632 or at home 297-3488.

Former director honored

By PAT BROWN

Mrs. Marguerite I. Waldrop, former director of Religious Education here, was presented the Department of Army Meritorious Civilian Service award Oct. 31 in a ceremony held at the Infantry Center Chapel Annex. The Meritorious Civilian Service award is the second highest award a Federal employee can receive.

Maj. Gen. David E. Grange Jr., post commander, made the presentation.

Mrs. Waldrop served as director of Religious Education from March 1958 until her retirement last March. As director, she was responsible for planning and directing the Religious Education Center's training activities and workshops.

During her 21 years here, she initiated a number of programs and activities. Some of these were: Leadership Training and Teaching Readiness workshops for teaching personnel and youth leaders, Marriage Enrichment workshops, Protestant Women of the Chapel and youth retreats, the annual Sweetheart Banquet and Personal Growth and Literacy Mission workshops.

Mrs. Waldrop is the widow of a former pastor of the First Baptist Church of Columbus, John, who died in April 1957. A native of Milledgeville, Ga., she taught science in the Columbus public school systems from 1938-1939, before her marriage.

She resides in Columbus where she is now involved in volunteer work and church visitation programs.

Reservist's record "outstanding"

The 3rd Brigade of the 70th Division, a reserve unit currently on annual training here, is proud to have in their accompaniment SSgt. Carolyn R. Miller. Miller's personnel record covering her outstanding military career just begins to uncover what a truly accomplished soldier she is.

In recognition of Miller's accomplishments, she has been selected to receive the prestigious "Eugene S. Pulliam Military Achievement Award." This coveted award is presented to the top Reservist in each military department within the state of Indiana.

Miller was presented the award at the annual Veteran's Day banquet award dinner, held recently at the Murat Shrine Temple in Indianapolis, Ind.

The presentation was made by the honored guest speaker — Congressman Robin Beard from Tennessee. Congressman Beard is a member of the House Armed Services Committee and has served four years in the Marine Corps and is an active major in the Reserves.

Miller's military career spans over ten years. She served five years in the regular Army as an administrative specialist in Washington D.C. and in Germany. Most of Miller's Reserve time has been spent with the 70th Training Division. Miller is a career reservist approaching her promotion to sergeant first class.

During her military career Miller has received the following decorations: Army Commendation Medal with one Oak Leaf Cluster, National Defense Service Medal, Good Conduct Medal and the Army Reserve Component Achievement Medal.

Change of command

Second Lieutenant Timothy Gruen (R) returns the guidon to 1st Sgt. Pascaul Mesa as he takes command of the Headquarters Unit, 2nd Combat Support Hospital. Gruen, a recent graduate of the West Georgia College at Carrollton, Ga., replaces 1st Lt. Larry D. Block (C).

Soldier of the Quarter

Soldier of the Quarter, Sp5 Irma Scheurer, MEDDAC, a clinical specialist working in the pediatrics section at Martin Army Hospital, receives her award from Maj. General David E. Grange Jr., post commander. Among other awards, Scheurer received the Department of the Army Certificate of Achievement, USAIC Commandant Certificate of Merit, an AUSA Certificate of Achievement, and an engraved wristwatch from AUSA.

Civilian receives award

Henry F. Hamilton, chief, Supply Division, Directorate of Industrial Operations, was presented the Commander's Award for Civilian Service upon his retirement here last month after more than 31 years with the federal government.

Airborne Department selects top instructor

By JIM SHELNUTT

The Airborne Department's Instructor of the Quarter for July-September is Sgt. James R. Sane from Rutherfordton, N.C. Sane is an instructor for the recently reactivated Pathfinder Branch of the Airborne Department. Along with 17 other instructors, Sane instructs students in helicopter landing zone operations, air traffic control procedures and sling load procedures (moving artillery and infantry units by cargo aircraft).

He has been with the Pathfinder Branch since July of this year. He entered the Army in January 1975. Sane is Ranger qualified and completed Airborne School in June 1975. "I like what I'm doing; the soldiers I work with are true professionals," he said.

Sane reenlisted in September for six more years. "I am a career minded soldier; I like the Army, it has been good to me," added Sane.

Sane competed for the honor with soldiers from the Airborne School's ground, tower and jump branch; the Jumpmaster School; Pathfinder School; and the Condition and Drill Branch. The Instructor of the Quarter selection was based on outstanding performance of duties, knowledge of individual MOS, efforts of self-improvement, and history of the Army and Airborne. For his efforts, Sane will receive a savings bond from the HHC unit fund, an Iron Mike statue, Certificate of Achievement and a letter of appreciation from the Airborne Department director, and a 96-hour pass.

Col. Dan H. Ralls (R), inspector general, congratulates Lt. Col. Julian R. Gunnels on his retirement and award of the Meritorious Service Medal, second Oak Leaf Cluster. Gunnels was awarded a second Oak Leaf Cluster to the Meritorious Service Medal upon his retirement Oct. 31. Gunnels has served in the Army for 25 years with his last job being assistant inspector general at Fort Benning. He is the son of Nathan and Louise Gunnels of Richland, Ga. and son-in-law of Joseph Fussell, Ga.

Go to jail

The town marshal (right side of right picture) breaks a grin as the Judge, Col. (Ret.) Robert Poydasheff (formerly Benning's SJA) sends one of the 49er's to jail. The marshal soon finds that it doesn't pay to laugh at the judge (left picture) when she is thrown in jail herself. These judicial proceedings were all part of activities at the Benning Officer's Club during Forty 49er night. 49er night was sponsored Saturday by the Officer's Wives club to raise money for the many charitable organizations they sponsor.

ACS volunteers receive awards

By TIM BOIVIN

The first volunteer to work for Fort Benning's Army Community Services (ACS) received a silver tray Friday at the ACS awards luncheon commemorating 4,000 hours of volunteer service.

Mrs. Edna Mark was one of the 77 recipients of awards of recognition handed out at the luncheon.

Mrs. Mark also received her 10 year guard pin. She has worked on every committee involved with ACS activities.

The ceremony took place at ACS headquarters in Building 83 and the presentations were made by Mrs. Lois Grange, wife of the post commander.

Mrs. Mark said, "I get satisfaction from meeting people through ACS and thinking that I can do something for them."

Mrs. Mark said that ACS has improved greatly since she first volunteered. As examples, she pointed out, "We have a food locker program, a lending program, and we distribute welcome packets to the new soldiers, all of which we didn't do when I first started out."

Mrs. Mark said her immediate plans were to continue to work at ACS, hopefully for another 10 years.

Silver trays were also awarded at the ceremony to Ann Brandenburg and Donna Cline for 3,000 hours of volunteer work they have done for ACS.

Capt. Julio Mastin, ACS officer, said, "These people give so much and collect so little in return. This ceremony is just our way of showing our appreciation."

Officers' Club member disagrees with policies

To the Editor:

I would like to know why anyone should join the Officer's Club here. Despite the fine facilities, the club does not provide much to its dues-paying members.

The prices for food are high; $2.75 for a hamburger in the Lexington Room is a good example. For a recent banquet, it was cheaper for the 36th Engineer Group to go to the Trade Center than use our own Officer's Club.

Tennis courts and swimming pools cost extra to use. While this is the result of an Army regulation requiring separate club areas to show a profit individually, it is still true.

The club does not have the best interests of its members at heart. How many of those civilians from Bldg. 35 who eat lunch at the club pay dues? Sometimes, there are more civilians than military in the club. For the past several months, the finest lounge in the club (The Concord) has been off limits to anyone in fatigues. I have not met a single club member who approves of this measure, yet we all seem impotent to change a policy that has made the Concord Lounge into a civilian bar. If the club wants to cater to civilians, let THEM pay the dues.

Letters to the Editor

The Officer's Club has failed to provide proper service or consideration to its dues-paying members. I plan to resign my membership if the present conditions prevail. Some of my friends have already resigned.

Lt. D. A. Ratliff
72nd Engineer Company

Editors note: The BAYONET contacted Mickey Granger, main club manager of the Officer's Club here. This is his response to Ratliff's letter:

The price of the hamburger question for $2.75 includes a 1/4 hamburger and salad bar. Naturally, because the hamburger comes with a salad bar it costs more. However, a person can get regular cheeseburger for $1.25 the Coffee Lounge.

Prime rib at the Officer's Club is a dollar a pound cheaper than the Trade Center. Drinks are twice for the price of one at the Officer's Club compared to the Trade Center.

Most of the people who are from Bldg. 35 are members who are tired or presently GS-7, WG-7, above. These people all pay dues.

The dress code does not permit the wearing of fatigues in the Concord. The club itself cannot change the policy.

Camellia is an apartment motel. We don't rent rooms, we rent furnished apartments with all the features of a regular motel plus added conveniences that cannot be provided with just a single room - and all at the same, or most times lower rates than the single-room motel. For example, our "standard" unit is comprised of two bedrooms, combination living room-dining room, bathroom and fully furnished kitchen including refrigerator, stove, cooking utensils, and table service for six people. These are some of the "extras" but at no extra cost. Our 100 units are in separate buildings with usually four apartments in each building, which adds to a person's or family's privacy.

Hospital's lady barber gathering hairy fan club

By DAVE BRISTOW

There is an exceptional barber working in the shop at Martin Army Hospital these days. The barber is a lady and a pretty one at that!

Pretty Sue Roberts, the new barber at Martin Army Hospital, cuts the hair of patient Mane Siaki. The lady loves her work and so do her customers!

Sue Roberts does all the hair cutting and razor clipping at Martin Army—and her customers, to include the patients, seem to like this just fine.

After the pleasant surprise of having a pretty woman cutting their hair, customers discover the barber to be quite good at her trade. Sue used to cut hair for many soldiers of the 2nd Division in Korea before coming to the United States in March of 1969.

“Some of my customers look somewhat surprised when they see a lady barber in here, but after they get their hair cut by me they always want to come back. I have many regular customers and I can give them any kind of cut they want. I cut hair for doctors, medics, retired people and patients alike. I guess I'm popular. Everyone wants me to cut their hair. I like that. If business picks up maybe I'll get another barber in here to help me.”

Sue adds that all her customers are “nice” and she never gets any complaints. Sorry guys, the lady barber is happily married and has three lovely children.

Hospital barber shop hours are 7 a.m.-2 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Airborne hosts ladies

The Airborne Department recently sponsored a ladies' day for selected guests and the wives of personnel assigned to the Airborne Department, 4th Student Battalion, and Parachute Park Branch.

The purpose of the event was to acquaint the ladies with the important roles their husbands play in training paratroopers. The day long event included tours of all three Basic Airborne Course Training Areas, a visit to Fryar Drop Zone, demonstrations by Parachute Pack Branch and lunch in the 45th Airborne Company dining facility.

The activities were concluded at Eubanks Field where the ladies were given the opportunity to test their nerve by riding the 250-foot tower "Buddy Seat" ride. Those ladies with enough resolve to complete the ride were presented with certificates by the Department director, Col. Joseph Villa.

Handicapped insp

By TIM BOIVIN

Day after day people the world over go to work just like any other day. But on Fort Benning, some of the people go to work thankful to have a job to go to; they are handicapped.

The Finance and Accounting Office (FAO) works with Goodwill Industries to screen handicapped personnel for jobs. They employ seven handicapped people at this time. Another handicapped person works for the Milliken Telephone Exchange on post.

Dot Russell, the administration officer at FAO, said, "Our management chain embraces the handicapped employment program. This doesn't mean that employees are selected because they are handicapped, it just insures that they are considered the same as anyone else."

Goodwill Industries trains the handicapped people before they are sent for a job interview. A placement officer keeps track of a new employees' work record and if they do not do a good job, they are brought back for further evaluation.

Larry Thornton works in Bldg. 85 as a file clerk. That is pretty amazing for a man who had his hands cut off when he fell into a corn cutter at the age of 14 in Holy Trinity, Ala.

Larry said, "When I first found out I would have to spend the rest of my life without my hands, I realized it was something that I would have to make the best of."

Larry went through rehabilitation at St. Judes Hospital in Montgomery, Ala. where they taught him how to clothe and feed himself and how to write with the help of hooks in place of his hands.

Thanksgiving Traditional day date

It's Thanksgiving again, and Sarah Josepha Buell Hale might have second thoughts about it.

The idea was born

It was her idea in the first place, making Thanksgiving an official, Nationwide holiday. And it was thanks to her years of badgering governors and finally President Abraham Lincoln, that it came to be - though, today, perhaps not what she had in mind.

The modern Thanksgiving seems to be that annual holiday when we pay the supreme All-American salute to overeating, when go-get-'em stores are well into their Christmas sales, when television football imposes a trance on all those already stupified by the dinner table.

Some Americans do find time to give thanks, usually as the family gathers around the groaning board. That's what Mrs. Hale had in mind for the day - giving thanks.

Tradition Plus

But just as turkey is the day's traditional attraction, Thanksgiving through the years has been stuffed with politics, commercia- lism, and indifference, the National Geograph- ic Society says.

In 1621, the Pilgrims set the style for future Thanksgivings with their now famous celebra- tion at Plymouth in the Colony of Massa- chusetts. They fed enormously on wild tur- keys, geese, ducks, wood pigeons, partridge, beechnut stuffing, home-brewed beer, wine from wild grapes, lobster, oysters, codfish eels, venison, pumpkins, cornbread, and suc- cotash.

ire others worked as a vacuumer, an apartment manager, and a teacher's aid before work at Fort Benning Nov. 1 this said, "I feel sorry for the handicapped people who don't do anything constructive with their life because if they take time to think about it, there is still a lot in life for them."

only thing Larry can't do now that he is unable to do is participate in sports. Larry said, "I'm just happy that I'm healthy and that I have people to love and I can love them." Yola Sumbry is Larry's vocational counselor. She describes Larry as "very friendly and happy-go-lucky. He uses his hands just as if they were his hands and has been an inspiration to other people in evaluation with him."

Tyrone Hardy flashes his office-famous tricky-Dicky victory sign to a passing employee.

Larry said, "Right now, I don't have any children but I get a great thrill out of working with retarded children through the Columbus Association of Retarded Children."

Tyrone Hardy works with Larry in Bldg. 85. He has a speech impediment and is very near sighted. He's known in his office for his non-stop working and his 'tricky-Dicky' victory signs.

back to 1619

They had unexpected guests drop in for dinner: 90 Indians.

They carried on with fun and sport, such as target contests between colonists with firearms and Indians with bows and arrows, and Miles Standish awed the assembly by parading his 20-man regiment back and forth.

They celebrated for three days, beginning each morning with prayers.

Despite all the going-ons, nobody knows exactly when the first Plymouth Thanksgiving occurred - though many historians say October.

Apparently the hungry Pilgrims were too busy eating to note the date. And it was two years before they had another Thanksgiving celebration.

Early Thanksgiving

The Massachusetts party was not the scene of the first solemn giving of thanks in the New World. Colonists at Jamestown, Va., observed a day of "Thanksgiving" on Dec. 4, 1619, on the banks of the James River.

No matter which group was first, the harvest home festival of thanks became a custom associated with the New England colonists. George Washington took to it as his troops joined Yankee celebrators during the Revolution. As President, he proclaimed that a day of thanksgiving should be observed on Thursday, Nov. 26.

His successors, however, sometimes chose dates in April, May, and August as Thanksgiving or, as with Thomas Jefferson, ignored it altogether.

In 1863, Lincoln finally proclaimed the fourth Thursday in November as the National annual day of giving thanks.

Tyrone said, "Because I was born with my handicap, I sort of suffered through my childhood but I didn't have any real problems."

Goodwill trained Tyrone through its supply program for a job. Since he cannot do heavy, strenuous work, the file clerk job is ideal for him.

Lorene Carswell is Tyrone's immediate supervisor and said, "Tyrone has not made any errors that I know of in the year he has been here. He has only missed one day and has never been tardy."

Tyrone said, "I work hard at my job and feel a personal reward for it. I'm just thankful that I'm able to have a job and hold onto it."

Lorene said, "When Tyrone is working, he is hard to talk to. He won't take a break until his break time or lunch. If you say something to him, he will just flash you the 'tricky-Dicky' victory sign."

Yola Sumbry describes Tyrone as being able to overcome his many disabilities. She said, "He is very humorous and has a very good memory. He can quote football scores from a year ago and when the Watergate hearings were going on, he kept abreast of them."

Linda Stewart is a telephone operator at the Milliken Telephone Exchange on post. When she was an infant she suffered from spinal-meningitis and, as a result, she lost her right hand and both feet when she was two-years-old.

Linda is only working on a temporary basis but she said, "I want very much to work here permanently so I work hard."

Linda is described by her supervisor, Marilyn Anderson, as being a very enthusiastic employee. Linda said, "I don't let my handicap stop me from doing what I want. I enjoy being in the public eye."

Linda feels a handicap should not stop a person from doing anything any other person can do. She said, "I wish to encourage other handicapped people by showing them what I can do. Instead of hiding in a corner, we can get out and lead normal, healthy lives in today's society like anyone else."

Linda has other friends who also are handicapped. She said, "We all accept what we can do and we do great."

Linda summed up her feelings about her life, saying "I grew up with my handicap and I have always taken things one day at a time. I am married with two beautiful children and am thankful for all that I have. People need to realize that we are of a real world, too."

Dot Russell seemed to sum up the view many people have about handicapped people compared to what they really do. She said, "Some seek sympathy but that's not true of our people. They don't dwell on their handicap. They're here to work and they do a wonderful job."

Dot concluded, "We are fortunate to have the dedicated talent our handicapped employees contribute. Although they may not realize it, they are a part of the best group of people on this or any other installation."

Benning's solar project to supply 25% of need

A $3 million solar water heating project to be built here — the world's largest — has been approved as part of the fiscal 1980 budget.

Congress has yet to put the final touches on this year's bankroll but when it is settled the Army Corps of Engineers could solicit bids for construction as early as July and construction could take about nine months.

Post Assistant Master Planner Capt. Pat McDonnell said a site near Lawson Army Airfield has been chosen for the 80 solar ponds, which could supply hot water for more than 4,000 troops in nearby buildings in the 2700-2800 blocks. Hot water, compliments of the sun, will also be used for a post laundry facility. As much as 25 percent of their hot water needs could be filled.

The idea to heat water by using the sun is not new, according to Richard Parsons, industrial technologist with Lawrence Livermore Laboratory and project solar energy consultant. "This idea was originally developed in 1860," said Parsons. "A similar concept was used in 1910 in Arizona to pump irrigation water to a heat engine."

A prototype solar heater was completed about two weeks ago to show contractors what's involved in the project. The prototype, located near Lawson Army Airfield, is one-fourth the size of the actual pond which will be 16 feet by 200 feet. The prototype was designed and built by Lawrence Livermore Laboratory of California.

According to McDonnell, figures show the system will save 460,000 gallons of fuel oil a year at a cost of $225,000 (June 1978 data). The system's life span is expected to be roughly 15 years. Then major repairs must be made. Normal maintenance would cost about $17,000 per year.

The system works like this: About a half million gallons of water from underground wells is pumped into the solar ponds. After sitting in the sun all day, the water, at temperatures ranging from 80 to 140 degrees F, flows by gravity into storage tanks. That water is then used as needed during that night and the next day. However, during that day another batch is being heated in the ponds and the process cycles again.

Off limits areas not an arbitrary decision

By T. A. SABEL

Reading the off-limits list one afternoon, Sp4 Humperdumper noticed one of his favorite places on the list. "What the heck are they doing, putting the Barf and Gag Pub off limits? I've never had any problems there," thinks the GI.

Decisions declaring places off-limits are made when written complaints and reports of conditions relating to venereal disease, prostitution, liquor violations, alcohol and drug abuse, disorder, illicit gambling and other undesirable conditions applying to servicemembers are made to the president of the Armed Forces Disciplinary Control Boards (AFDCB).

Imposing an off limits status is made only after the owner of the establishment is notified in writing of the undesirable conditions affecting servicemembers.

The soldier, having a complaint against a specific establishment, should not use the AFDCB before other channels have been exhausted. Instead, the soldier should work through the post Legal Assistance Office, Better Business Bureau, or the Equal Opportunity Office, as means of seeking redress.

Normal community relations works to attempt corrections of the conditions. If actions taken through community relations are unsuccessful, and the owner fails to correct the adverse conditions, then the off limits conditions is recommended by the board and approved by the post commander.

After the corrections have been made, the owner can petition the AFDCB explaining in detail what has been done to correct the conditions. Then an investigation will be made and reported to the local board. The local board will recommend either the removal or continuing of the off limits sanction to the commander.

Military police reports are given to the commander on servicemembers observed in an offlimits area.

Don't be victim of holiday crimes

AFPS — with the holiday period fast approaching, and many soldiers taking leave, some precautionary measures need to be taken to prevent burglaries while you are out enjoying your holiday celebrations.

Most burglars will completely avoid a house that appears to be occupied. To deceive burglars and make them think that you are still home, the following anti-burglary safeguards should be taken while you are away.

- Don't leave messages on your door or mailbox indicating your absence.
- Seek the help of neighbors to keep mail, newspapers and advertisements from collecting while you are gone.
- Have someone take care of your lawn while you are gone. This is a major indicator to a burglar that the house is unoccupied.
- Have someone take out your trash cans on the scheduled days, even if they are empty.

- Purchase an electric timer to turn your houselights and a radio on and off during evening hours.
- Advice your local police, as well as a reliable neighbor, when your home will be unoccupied for any extended length of time and where you can be reached.

For the record

To avoid confusion, the Larry R. Jones identified in last week's issue of The BAYONET under the "4 barred from Benning" article on page 32, is Larry Ray Jones, 423-82-2144, 901 Joy Rd. Lot F-33 in Hilton Mobile Homes in Columbus. He was barred from Benning for wrongful possession with intent to sell (marijuana), according to a PMO official.

SAFETY SAMPLER

Holiday decoration accidents account for thousands of needless injuries each year. Check your tree lights carefully before you try to use them.

Pioneers defeat IOAC 4-79 for flag football title

By GARY JONES

Company A, 1/29th Infantry, 197th Infantry Brigade (Separate) is known around post for being perennial softball contenders but recently they also proved themselves on the gridiron by taking the post flag football title.

Flag football has been a popular company level sport here this fall with only a few variations from the NFL and college variety. Instead of playing four 15 minute quarters like regular football, flag football has two 20-minute halves with the clock only stopping at the final two-minute mark of each half. Also, instead of a 100-yard field, flag football participants must negotiate an 80-yard field.

"For a long time people have under-rated us out here on Kelley Hill as far as football is concerned," explained Paul Hylnsky, Company A, 1/29th coach. "They think all we can do is play softball but we proved that we can play football too."

The 1/29th Pioneers lost early and had to come back through the loser's bracket to win the double elimination post tourney. The Pioneers got revenge for the loss they suffered in the Brigade tourney to the 179th Military Intelligence Detachment. The Pioneers finished second to the 179th in the Brigade tourney but defeated them in the semi-final round of the post tourney to eliminate them from play.

"We've been wanting this championship for a long time," explained Hylnsky. "It was a combined effort. Everyone on the team contributed to help us win."

The Pioneers moved into the finals against the undefeated IOAC 4-79 team. In the first of two back-to-back games, the Pioneers defeated IOAC 4-79 18-6. In the second game the defense of both teams really dug in as the first half was played to a scoreless tie.

Then with eight minutes to go in the game, the IOAC 4-79 team scored. The 2-point conversion was good to give them the lead 8-0. Then at the four-minute mark, the Pioneers put some points of their own on the board to even the score at 8-8. Regulation time ran out and the Pioneers had to go into overtime to win under "penetration rules."

In flag football, when an overtime period is needed "penetration rules" go into effect. The two teams get four tries to advance the ball into the opponent's territory. They alternate possession and the team with the farthest 'penetration' is declared the winner.

The Pioneers were declared the champions by the overtime 'penetration' win. They finished the season with a 13-4 record.

You can run the "absolutely flat, fast, scenic (sic), loop winding past or in sight of all major landmarks in Plains, including the home of the PRESIDENT, JIMMY CARTER." The first 100 finishers will receive T-shirts, and the first three finishers in each of eighteen age groups — nine each for men and women — get plaques.

The facilities are sufficient for a good size crowd, and the tourist traps abound. The entry fee, including race day, is $4. If it's anything like the June version, it will be a good run, and 10 a.m. will certainly be much cooler this time. For further information, contact Lt. Col. John W. Moore, 327-0102 or Allan Taylor, 562-0187.

Doughboy tailback Harry Bartlett (#42) raises a cloud of dust as he's brought down while tight end Larry Anderson blocks.

Doughboys rout Volunteers in finale

The Fort Benning Doughboys completely dominated their final game of the 79 season by holding the Fort McClellan Volunteers to a 26-0 rout.

The Doughboys' defense stymied the Volunteer's offense on the first series of downs, forcing them to punt. The Doughboys took over on their 30-yard-line and proceeded to drive it down for the score four plays later with a Leamon Hall to Frederick Suggs pass. Wayne Jackson's kick was good, giving the Doughboys a 7-0 lead.

The next Doughboy score came with five minutes remaining in the half and capped an 82-yard-drive. Leroy Benson ran five yards for the points and Jackson's kick widened the margin to 14-0.

The Volunteers crossed the midfield line for the first time in the ballgame with the help of three face mask penalties and carried the ball to the 11-yard line where the Doughboy defense once again rose to the occasion and forced the Volunteers to attempt a 28-yard field goal which was wide.

The half ended with the Doughboys still dominating 14-0.

The Doughboys received the second half kickoff and once again capped an 80-yard drive to put the final nail in the coffin as they scored with a quarterback sneak by Hall. Jackson's kick was wide setting the score at 20-0 for the Doughboys.

The final tally came in the fourth period as the Doughboys substituted freely. Coyburn Jones came off four weeks of inactivity to carry it in from the five.

The game ended 26-0 for the Doughboys with reserve quarterback Milton Ortiz moving the ball to the Volunteers' 1-inch line.

The Doughboys ended their winning season with a 6-4-1 record. A season wrap up will appear in a future issue of The BAYONET.

Fun run, bike race slated Saturday

By PAT BROWN

A Thanksgiving fun run and bike race will be held here Saturday in front of Crain Hall at the intersection of Ingersoll Street and Dixie Road. The public is invited to come out and join the fun.

There will be four competitions with plaques going to the first and second place winners in each division. The five-mile 10 speed bike race begins at 8 a.m. and the five-mile race for all other bikes at 8:30 a.m. All bicycles will be checked for safety conditions. Headgear is recommended but not required.

The two-and-a half mile fun run begins at 9 a.m. and the five mile runners will start 15 minutes later. All participants in both the bike race and fun runs will receive a red, white and blue patch similar to the one pictured above.

An awards ceremony will be held at 10:30 a.m. in front of Crain Hall with Lt. Col. Richard E. Crotty, chief, Morale Support Activity Division presenting the awards.

Entry forms may be obtained at the Sports Office, Bldg. 394, Doughboy Stadium or at any of the post gyms. For further information, call 2nd Lt. Tony Knight at 545-2332/4178 or 544-4516.

Free tickets to be given

Free tickets to the Stag Bowl Game at Phenix City are being given away by the Association of the U.S. Army (AUSA). The 200 tickets bought by the AUSA will be given out through various departments on post. AUSA purchased the tickets for the use of young enlisted soldiers as a means of repaying them for their work in supporting the Army and AUSA. If enough soldiers respond, buses may be made available.

The following departments have tickets for distribution: USAIC, USAIS, Headquarters Command, 36th Engineer Group, 34th Medical Battalion, MEDDAC, 197th Infantry Brigade, LEC, SJA, IG, Chaplain, Infantry Bd., DPCA, DIO, DSEC, DPT, DFAE, PAO, DPC, IS&CA, USACC, USAMU, Committee Group, EOCO, AG and ITB.

Hunters take heed!

Fort Benning's hunting and fishing regulations require all hunters taking deer on the reservation to bring the deer to a check station located at Building 5883 in the Harmony Church area.

The purpose of this check is to obtain management data on the deer herd. The data includes weight, number of points in case of bucks, ratio of does to bucks, adult or yearling, age, areas deer are being taken in and parasites on deer.

Hunters, check in your kill and encourage your hunting partners to do likewise. If, for some reason, your kill has not been checked in this year, call the Fish and Wildlife Branch (544-6120) or the Buildings and Grounds Division (545-7533), DFAE and provide as much of the data as you can.

TRADOC run slated

Six of Benning's best distance runners will be selected soon to take part in the Training and Doctrine Command (TRADOC) Marathon Dec. 6.

Seventeen TRADOC post teams are scheduled to arrive here Dec. 5 for the three-event marathon.

Distances to be run are 26 miles, 13 miles and six miles. Each team will have two women, two entrants over 40-years-old and two open-class runners.

The scoring system will be similar to cross-country scoring. Each team member scores points according to their place of finish. Penalty points will be given if a team does not enter someone in a division. The winner will be the team with the least points.

DYA weekly flag football game highlights

TERMITE LEAGUE

In the league championship game played Saturday in Doughboy Stadium, the Steelers downed the Falcons 14-6 to create a tie for the league championship.

The previous Saturday's game was voided so this game was for the championship as well as a makeup for the last regular season game. Both teams wound up with 7-1 records, the single loss by each team being inflicted by the other team.

Even before the kick-off, it was obvious that both teams had come to play some tough football. The Falcons won the toss and elected to receive. The ball was kicked to Antoine Owens who immediately galloped 70 yards for a touchdown. The PAT was no good and the Falcons started off with a 6-0 lead.

The remainder of the half was a see-saw battle with the Falcons making a long drive but stalling on the Steeler 20-yard-line at the end of the half.

The second half and the game belonged to the Steelers. Taking the kick-off, the Steelers promptly scored on their third play, a 45-yard run by Davey Veeren. The PAT by John Ware was good and the Steelers were ahead 8-6.

The Falcons fought back throughout the last two quarters but were unable to score. Late in the fourth quarter, Xavier Carter ran 40 yards to the 1-yard-line. On the next play the Steelers iced the game with a 1-yard run by Carter. The PAT failed.

The hard fought and well played "Termite Bowl" ended as the Falcons tried in vain to score a tying touchdown. Both teams received championship patches from League Commissioner Chuck Chapman following the game. The league runner-up patches were awarded to the Bulldogs at their banquet later in the day.

PEE WEE BOWL

PATRIOTS 20

EAGLES 14

The Main Post Eagles fiercely contested the Tri-City Panthers in a two-hour battle on Thursday, to earn their spot on the Pee Wee Bowl Roster and again meet the Patriots.

The Eagles (5-4) found the Patriots (9-0) to be as tough as always. On the first play from scrimmage, a flea-flicker pass from Billy Moore to Darrin Tucker was good for a 65-yard touchdown. The point after attempt by Tucker was good and the Patriots had a seven-point lead with only twelve seconds elapsed in the game.

The Eagles returned the favor early in the second quarter when Bernard Lee returned a Patriot punt 70 yards to the Patriot 5-yard-line to set up their first score. The point after attempt failed and the teams went into halftime at 7-6.

In the third quarter, Patriot linebacker Jimmy Thompson intercepted an Eagle pass and returned it 75 yards for a TD. Tucker's point after was good to pad the Patriot score to 14-6.

In the fourth quarter, Moore completed a 25-yard pass to Kevin Williams and Tucker scored on the next play to build the score to 20-6. It looked as if the game was put away, when Lee again got his hands on the ball and broke half a dozen tackles to score on a 30-yard end sweep. A two-point conversion attempt was good and the score was 20-14 with over three minutes left.

The Patriots were then unable to move the ball and the Eagles had another opportunity. After driving 40 yards, Tucker made the second interception against the Eagles to end the Eagle hope for a bowl championship. The win left the Patriots undisputed Pee Wee Division champions. Both teams received a much deserved standing ovation from the spectators as they left the field.

Benning's Veterinary Activity

Food inspection vital

By BETTY ZIMMERMAN

Contrary to popular belief, the major concern of the Army's veterinary services is not treatment of animals. "It is public health through food inspection for wholesomeness and insurance that the quality of all post food products meets contractual requirements," according to the head of the local activity, Lt. Col. William M. Sims Jr.

Food inspectors, assigned to the Veterinary Activity, work at the commissary, troop issue points and food storage warehouses where they continuously check the condition of incoming food products. They also make sanitary inspections of local establishments that furnish Fort Benning food.

For example, at the Troop Issue Subsistence Activity, Dry Storage, all non-refrigerated foods are checked for identity, count, net weight and overall condition.

SSgt. James Gilmore and Sp4 Brenda Schulke inspect a basic unit load of C-Rations by pulling a random sample from the 5,685 cases. If particular defects are repeatedly found, then the entire lot will be reinspected. Leaking packages, swelled cans and seepage are some of the problems they watch for during a closed package inspection.

Other inspectors at the cold storage warehouse must continually monitor the area's temperature and rotation procedure of stored refrigerated foods. They also inspect incoming shipments for count, condition and identity.

The commissary food inspectors also have a large job. All food products sold to the military or their dependents must be guaranteed fresh and wholesome. This requires constant inspection of incoming products and stored items, both cold and dry.

Other aspects of veterinary service are zoonotic disease control (diseases transmitted from animals to man) and the medical care of military dogs. Immunizations are also given to post pets as a method of disease control. Approximately 1,000 stray animals are impounded each year by the facility in another effort to prevent outbreaks of rabies and other diseases.

So, even though the Army's animal inventory has decreased over the years, its need for wholesome, sanitary food has not. And seeing that the food suppliers and handlers meet this need is the Veterinary Activity's main job.

Roads to close

Due to military training exercises Tuesday, the Lawson Army Airfield area and adjacent roads will be closed to the public from 8:30 p.m. to midnight. Military police roadblocks will be established at the following locations:

- Alabama Highway 165 and reservation boundary
- Dixie Road and Jecelin Road
- Bilko Street and Bradshaw Road.

The area will reopen to the public when the training exercise ends.

CFC goal close

As this year's Combined Federal Campaign (CFC) enters its final phase, Fort Benning campaign officials want to ensure that all assigned personnel are contacted by the unit key persons or project officers and appraised of the many essential services that their contributions provide for.

These efforts are made possible only through the contributions received by the 46 agencies participating in the drive.

To date approximately one-third of the federal civilian and military population in the Fort Benning, Columbus and Phenix City area have forwarded their contributions to the CFC officer at Fort Benning and the United Way in Columbus. Funds now total $269,168 against the CFC area goal of $325,000 and officials say they are confident that the goal will be reached as it has every year since the campaign began in this area nine years ago.

The following activities at Fort Benning benefiting from the contributions received from the CFC are youth activities programs which include, in part, youth athletic activities, Scouting programs and junior rifle activities, the Army Community Service, the Dental Health Program in the installations, dependent schools and the local office of the American Red Cross. Without these contributions many of the services these agencies provide for the people could not be accomplished, according to a CFC official.

Fort Benning receives more than $100,000 of funds from the Combined Federal Campaign.

Prepare for Exodus

By TIM BOIVIN

THE CHRISTMAS HOLIDAY period for post soldiers and civilians will begin Dec. 20 and continue until Jan. 3.

The Christmas Exodus Program has been set up to aid soldiers of the 1st Infantry Training Brigade and anyone else interested with travel plans.

Soldiers involved with the program will be bused from the Sand Hill Theatre parking lot to Atlanta's Hartsfield International Airport, according to Jerry Newman, post transportation official. Trailways, Greyhound and Transportation Unlimited buses will be transporting the soldiers.

Newman said, "Columbus Airport can not handle the volume of soldiers who will be departing during the Christmas rush period."

The Exodus program will shuttle soldiers to Atlanta's airport from 1 a.m. on Dec. 19 until noon Dec. 21. Anyone from the Main Post area interested in taking part in the program should contact Mr. Taylor Owens at Bldg. 18 as soon as possible or on Dec. 1, 10, 11 and 12.

Anyone from Sand Hill, Kelley Hill and Harmony Church should get their airline and bus tickets on the above dates at Bldg. 3001, the old Patton headquarters building.

Anyone with travel plans for Puerto Rico should contact Owens in Bldg. 18 or anyone at Bldg. 3001 on the above dates.

TRANSPORTATION PERSONNEL will be at the Sand Hill Theatre parking lot to assist soldiers. Drill sergeants will be on hand in the Atlanta and Columbus bus depots and at the Atlanta airport.

Newman recommends, "Take only one bag and have your name and organization on the inside and outside of the bag."

HERE ARE SOME TIPS for travelers who will be enjoying Christmas away from Fort Benning:

- Have you planned leave time according to your reporting schedule?
- Have you made travel reservations?
- Have you checked baggage limitations?
- Have you placed identification tags on your luggage?
- Do you have your travel tickets?
- Do you have your luggage-ticket stubs?
- Do you have the telephone number to contact at your next post if necessary to call?
- Do you have travelers' checks in place of a large cash sum?
- Do you have sufficient funds to cover your plans?
- Do you require medication for air sickness?
- Do you have all carry-on luggage?
- Have you kept track of all travel expenses (receipts)?
- Have you checked the time zone changes?
- Have you arranged for transportation to the post from the airport?
- Do you know when to report to your unit?

To carpool or not to carpool is energy question

WASHINGTON (ARNEWS) — Notice your gasoline bills going up lately? Is your budget strained by that second car? Carpooling may be the answer to your problems.

A car uses about the same gas whether there are four people riding or just the driver alone. At a dollar a gallon, gasoline is a bigger reason than ever to find ways to cut down on your driving. And when you think about the costs of maintenance, oil, tires, repairs, insurance, depreciation, finance charges, licenses and taxes, a car owned just for commuting becomes quite a burden.

According to the Consumer Information Center, there are two basic types of carpools — the shared-driving and shared-riding carpools. In the first, each member takes his turn driving, while in the shared-riding carpool, one member always drives and the others pay their share of the costs.

If you commute 10 miles each way in a standard sized car, the Consumer Information Center estimates that you could save $524 a year by joining a four member shared-driving carpool. In a shared-riding carpool, that saving would be about $562.

There are benefits of carpooling beyond saving money. Many carpoolers enjoy the conversion and companionship during an otherwise unpleasant commute. It is also comforting to realize that for every extra passenger in the carpool vehicle, there is one less car clogging the highways and streets. The same applies to the often scarce parking spaces at the work location.

It only takes a little extra effort to set up a carpool. Why don't you do it today?

Reader says post burger bar too much hassle

To the Editor:

I was delighted to hear of the opening of the AFEES Run-In-Chef Burger Bar on Main Post a few months ago. It is so convenient for those who have a short time for lunch to have a place to go for a quick meal. However, on my initial visit the other day, I had to wait approximately 10 minutes for a coke and french fries. The person waiting on me kept forgetting what size and what kind of drink I wanted. The french fries were lukewarm and greasy. I figured since it's new, things would get better when they got in full swing.

I returned a few days later. I ordered soup and a salad. The service was slow and, to add insult to injury, the attendant forgot the spoon and fork, which meant waiting in line again. I returned the next day only to find that the same kind of soup was still on the menu.

Still believing that the Burger Bar might change overnight, I again went to the Burger Bar for lunch the next week only to find that tomato soup was still on the menu. I was getting tired of tomato soup so I ordered a fish sandwich and french fries. Needless to say, the fish was dry and the fries again greasy.

I have learned my lesson; I won't be going back. I'd rather brown bag it than wait in line for 20 minutes to eat greasy food. Why does something so nice have to be so mediocre? The employees in that place wouldn't last five minutes in Burger King.

Reader agrees

To the Editor:

I was quite happy to read in the Nov. 9 issue of The BAYONET that someone had finally spoken out on the sorry state of the Main Post Theatre. With the exception of the mice, my wife and I have experienced everything J. Barham described in his letter.

We had decided not to attend the Main Theatre any more although it is quite convenient to our quarters and supposedly provided for the benefit of the military community (no one could regard this theatre as a benefit).

At any rate, we decided to give it another try upon reading in Mr. Bradford's reply of all the actions he had taken. On Monday evening, Nov. 12, we went to see the showing of "Dracula." "A stagnant, musty odor permeated the air," as J. Barham described it. Keep in mind, this was only four days after the scheduled carpet cleaning.

Contrary to Mr. Bradford's letter of reply, the concession stand did NOT remain "open during the entire movie." Further, if, in fact, "an additional employee" had been hired it was not evident.

We, too, understand that their budget may not allow for extravagances, however, if someone operates a business they should provide the basic services — even if it is only for this country's servicemen.

Reader gives suggestion

To the Editor:

I am writing out of concern for the residents of Fort Benning. I think there should be a system, where as, the post maintenance personnel could patrol the housing areas and stop where work is needed to be done. The residents should have some sign that they could place in their windows when they need service. For example, during an emergency, when you call for service the telephone line is constantly busy. When you finally make contact, it takes about three days before they come to see about the emergency problem. In this case it was gas leaking in to the house from the stove. On the system mentioned the post maintenance could check out the problem and distinguish how severe it is. Also, by having communication in

Parents thank coaches

My wife and I are writing this letter to express our deep felt thanks to the coaches of the Main Post Falcon's Football Team (Termite Division).

We would like to thank Maj. John Sawyer, 1st Sgt. James Trew and his son, Jerry, for the many long hours they have spent working with the members of this team. Yes, we had a winning season, but most of all we're thankful for the fundamentals — sportsmanship and teamwork — that were taught to these boys.

My son has learned a lot during the 12 weeks he has been associated with this team, and again we would like to say 'thanks' to these coaches for a job well done.

Glad you asked

How do you feel about the medical services you receive while on active duty?

Pvt. Tracy Penson
Company C, 4th Battalion,
1st Infantry Training Brigade

I think it is alright. If you are working on the job you know you have proper hospital care if something happens.

Ursula Treyz, Dependent

I think it's lousy. There are not enough doctors to provide adequate medical care for the people at Fort Benning. In general, the waiting time is too long for an appointment. And when you do get an appointment it doesn't mean you are going to get a doctor to see you.

Col. Joseph Villa
Airborne Department

I think it is adequate, particularly at Fort Benning. I am pleased with the dental care they have for dependents. I've found in most cases that medical care has been very responsive to my soldiers.

Sgt. Edward Ostrowski
23rd Company, Infantry Officer
Basic Course

They are fantastic and I'm going to miss them when I get out next month. They have done outstanding dental work on my teeth.

2nd Lt. Craig McIntosh
22nd Company, Infantry Officer
Basic Course

I am disappointed in the majority of the medical care they have to offer. I've gone on sick call and when I go, it takes an arm and a leg to receive proper medical care. The fact that it's free is great. But TMC has a long way to go to make the free medical care worthwhile.

Sp4 Walter Norman
U.S. Army Communications
Company

It's right on! It beats everything with the prices of things today.

Sp4 George Czarnonycz
698th Medical Company

I think the medical benefits are great. If I was working as a civilian I couldn't afford it and, also, the emergency care is excellent.

Pvt.2 Ralph Wilbanks
2/69th Armor (CSC)

I like to know that it is always there and you can always depend on medical care when you need it.

Sp4 Rita Thomas
498th Medical Company

I think they are great because on the outside medical care is very expensive.

CG's message

I am pleased to join Columbus Mayor Harry Jackson in proclaiming the week of Dec. 10 as International Week at Columbus and Fort Benning.

Fort Benning's association with our international friends dates back to the early 1920s with the initiation of the Infantry School's program for training allied students. Since that time, we have trained 14,500 students representing approximately 90 countries. We now have 64 allies attending classes who represent 29 countries.

In paying tribute to our international friends, several activities are planned. The Allied Student Division will have a display on the first floor of Infantry Hall in the glass-encased room next to the elevators. The display will consist of items of interest from countries around the world. Movies and slides of allied countries will be shown and music from those countries played intermittently. The display will be open to the public from 10:30 a.m. to 8 p.m., Monday through Friday. Wives of allied officers from various countries will prepare food from their respective homelands and offer it to the visitors.

"The Rozell Show," WRBL-TV, Columbus, Ga., will devote its entire program daily to International Week. The show can be seen on Channel 3 (Cable: Channel 4) from 8 to 9 a.m. The shows will feature singing, allied ladies cooking their favorite dishes and other items of interest about various nations.

We salute our international friends on this special occasion and cordially invite everyone to participate in International Week.

Shopping carts can pose danger for children

FORT MONROE, Va. (TNS) — Now that the Christmas rush is near, parents are reminded to keep an eye on children riding in shopping carts.

Never leave a child unattended in a shopping cart, even for a second. The holiday decorations and brimming store shelves attract small children and often cause them to climb out or stand up in the cart for a better look.

Push the cart slowly, and be especially careful when leaving the store for the parking lot with a merchandise-laden cart with youngsters. Children left unattended can cause carts to start rolling, possibly into the path of a moving car. Since it gets dark early now, and inclement weather makes parking lot conditions even more hazardous, the need for caution is all the more important.

Camellia is an apartment motel. We don't rent rooms, we rent furnished apartments with all the features of a regular motel plus added conveniences that cannot be provided with just a single room - and all at the same, or most times lower rates than the single-room motel. For example, our "standard" unit is comprised of two bedrooms, combination living room-dining room, bathroom and fully furnished kitchen including refrigerator, stove, cooking utensils, and table service for six people. These are some of the "extras" but at no extra cost. Our 100 units are in separate buildings with usually four apartments in each building, which adds to a person's or family's privacy.

Camouflage uniform approved

WASHINGTON (ARNEWS) — Soldiers will find a new uniform item in their clothing issue bags in September-October 1981, according to DA officials.

Army Chief of Staff Gen. E. C. Meyer approved the camouflage uniform Nov. 3.

According to officials, the camouflage uniform will replace the durable press utility uniform (fatigues) now being issued. The Army will begin phasing out the utility uniform after the camouflage uniform becomes an issue item.

The camouflage uniform is expected to be in clothing sales stores by late 1981.

The new uniform fabric is 50 percent nylon and 50 percent cotton. It is considered a temperate zone uniform, according to officials.

How about that?

Life holds discoveries if one only looks

By WILLIAM W. ERBACH SR.
TIC Chaplain

Have you ever played word games and come across a word that was especially fascinating? I have. The word was "serendipity." Aside from the singing group that had adopted it as their name, I had never heard this word, and yet it kind of rolls off your tongue in a lively sort of way. But what did it mean?

The word was coined by Horace Walpole in 1745 in a fairy tale called "The Princess of Serendip." Serendip was the former name of Ceylon. The heroes of the tale were always making happy discoveries by accident. Thus, the word means the faculty for making happy, unexpected, accidental discoveries.

There are serendipities in all of life if you are alert. Some of the greatest discoveries in medicine have been made that way. You can find happiness, you can find new friends if only you are alert for them. If you go out of your way to be kind, unexpectedly someone will be kind to you. If you defend some other person, someday unexpectedly you will find one will be kind to you. If you refuse to cheat, unexpectedly you will find some other person who admires and respects you and, because of you, will not cheat. How about that?

Fort Benning taxis get same increase as e

Look for this sticker.

By TIM BOIVIN

Taxi fares at Fort Benning have been raised in accordance with the recent increase granted by the Columbus Metro Council.

Mr. Jerry Newman, an official with the Post Transportation Office, said, "Even though there has been an increase, cheap transportation is still available to the soldier without a car."

As examples, Newman cited the shuttle bus provided by the post and the METRA system that travels into Columbus. Newman said, "The shuttle bus is free and the METRA bus charges you 60 cents for a ride that may run as high as $7. in a cab."

The taxi fares now run 50¢ for the first one-fifth mile, 60¢ for the first one-sixth mile or 70¢ for the first one-seventh of a mile. Newman suggested, "A rider should first check the side of the cab for the prices and wait for the cheapest cab to come along. He should also make sure that the cab has a blue medallion in the window."

Cabs with the blue medallion in the window are the only ones authorized to work on Fort Benning. Additional fares are added to the total for bags, suitcases, other people or duffle bags. Riders are charged 10¢ for each additional one-fifth, one-sixth or one-seventh of a mile.

If a rider has a complaint about a taxi or its driver, he should either report it to his first sergeant or to Newman at Transportation. Newman said, "Most of the complaints we receive are misunderstandings about fares."

Taxi drivers are allowed to operate on post on a point system. Newman explained that drivers lose points for cruising, illegal solicitation, overcharging, overloading or service complaints.

For a first offense, the driver loses two points. For the second offense, the driver gets a 10-day suspension from operations on post. For the third offense, the driver gets a 30-day suspension from operating on post. For a fourth offense, the driver gets his permit to operate at Fort Benning revoked.

Newman said, "We have three sergeants

Engineers undergo explosive training during field exer

When the 1st Platoon of Company B, 43rd Engineer Battalion went on a field training exercise recently with the rest of the unit, they had the task of setting abatis.

An abatis is a defensive obstacle formed by fallen trees that serve as a temporary road block, slowing down the enemy and keeping them from advancing.

Abatises are made from trees blown five feet above the ground at a 45 degree angle facing the enemy. These trees are blown from both sides of the road and fall into a predetermined pattern.

The explosives are tied into a ringmain made of detonating cord. This enables all the explosives to explode at the same time.

Lastly, the blasting cap is placed on the cord and hooked to the 50-line detonator machine and the explosives are ready to blow.

Sgt. Dennis Brown and PFC Richard Faulk tape the blasting cap to the detonating cord to get ready to set off the explosion.

PFC Richard Faulk ties the two ends of the detonating cord.

Pvt. 2 Daniel Caprio ties detonating cord to the TNT to secure the charge to the tree.

USAIC marksmanship tryouts draw Benning's best shooters

By DAVE BRISTOW

It's that time of year again when a soldier gets the opportunity to try out for the USAIC marksmanship team and show everyone just how good a marksman he or she really is.

These competitive soldiers come from different units all over post as they compete in either the combat rifle team (M16A1), 45 Caliber pistol team, M-60 machinegun team, composite rifle team (M-14) and the composite pistol team.

Ten members from each category will be chosen to best represent Fort Benning at this year's annual FORSCOM marksmanship match in April. The winners will go on to compete in the Army-wide marksmanship championship at Benning in May.

One aspect of the marksmanship match that people may be unaware of is the two-mile run with field equipment which all the shooters endure before going onto the firing line to compete.

SFC James D. Smith, who is the rifle coach assigned to the USAIC Marksmanship Detachment, said of the run, "Each soldier has to run the two-miler with all his web-gear while carrying his weapon to simulate combat readiness before shooting on the firing line. This gives the soldier a more realistic idea of what it would be like to have to fire after running."

One of the soldiers who ran and came in with a good time was SFC James Cunningham, Company C, Committee Group, who said, "I'm 37-years-old and I've got one of the best times out here today (19 minutes and five seconds). I think that says a lot for us old timers!"

A young soldier who seemed to be really enjoying his shooting performance at Easley Range was Cpl. Larry D. Burdette, Battery B, 2nd Battalion, 10th Field Artillery. "The instructor calls out my hits and lets me know how I'm doing. I'm having a good time shooting," Burdette said.

These soldiers will find out today who has been selected to represent the best shooters at Fort Benning — and may the best man or woman win!

High above the airborne tower field, brother and sister await their first jump.

Jubilant after the jump, PFC Glen Howard and Sgt. Gracie Howard, of Fort Bragg, congratulate each other for a successful first jump off the airborne tower. They are looking forward to their plane jump coming up next.

No sibling rivalry with these airborne trainees

Story and photos by T. A. SABEL

The first brother and sister team in the history of airborne training is currently going through the rigorous training here, according to SFC Gerald A. Douglas, platoon sergeant, 2nd Platoon, Tower Training Branch.

Sgt. Gracie A. Howard and PFC Glen D. Howard, both stationed at Fort Bragg, were anxiously waiting last week for their first jump from the 250-foot tower in the crisp, sunny, Georgia morning.

"We've been giving each other several boosts in morale support along the way," said Glen.

"Airborne training is rough and they don't cut any slack for women. But if a woman wants to go airborne, we have to take the punches along with men," Gracie went on to say.

Their attending airborne school together was not planned. "I thought she would be going a week before me," said the brother. While together at home in Fayetteville, N.C. they found they would be attending the school as a team.

Gracie said she was glad they would be together, and looking forward to the moral support she would receive from her brother.

Another brother, who had gone airborne, influenced them in their decision. Glen said, if his brother could do it, so could he. His sister said, if her brothers could do it, she would show she was just as good as them.

Gracie added, "I hope nothing ever goes wrong with either of us jumping, but it's what I want to do and what he wants to do."

Later in the morning they jumped, almost simultaneously. When they landed, the thrill of excitement flushed their faces as they ran to each other in mutual congratulations.

New Christmas mail program eases delivery

By TIM BOIVIN

The Columbus Post Office has announced a program called "Shop early, mail early" to help alleviate the Christmas mail rush during December.

The Columbus Chamber of Commerce's Retail Merchant's Association and the Distributive Education Clubs of America (DECA) of three area high schools are participating in the program. The three high schools are Shaw, Spencer and Jordan.

DECA will be delivering packets to local merchants on proper packaging. They also will have booths set up in Columbus Square near Schwobilt's Men's Clothing and in Peachtree Mall near Sodbuster and Billie's Men's Clothing.

DECA will man the booths on Thursdays, Fridays and Saturdays through Dec. 15. They will be giving packaging tips and zip codes for throughout the United States. Zip code directories will be available free for Georgia.

Dixie Harris of the Post Office staff said that if someone is very late with their mail the only way they can be assured of delivery is if they send it express.

Harris said, "If people will give us three days to work with their mail we will get it where it is going."

Harris also reminded people of the new letter size standards established by the Postal Service. He said, "Only envelopes 3½ inches high and five inches long will be accepted. Some of last year's cards are smaller so make sure they are of the proper size."

See the box on the following page for information on suggested overseas mailing dates.

Civilians awarded

Three Directorate of Industrial Operations civilians received sizeable suggestion awards at the Commander's Conference Nov. 28.

Phyllis A. Bill, Transportation Division, was granted an award of $915 for proposing the installation of an automatic wash and wax machine at the transportation motor pool. The time saved by the machine relieving drivers and personnel of the manual work resulted in an average annual savings in manhours of $42,916.

Barbara H. Farmer, Maintenance Division, received $825 for suggesting that Army oil analysis laboratory addresses be overprinted onto Department of the Army mailing labels. As a result of this suggestion, each laboratory will forward addressed labels to installations and activities required to mail samples. Due to eliminating delays and address errors, savings will result in $14,915 annually.

Charlie Grier, Services Division, was awarded $660 for proposing a modification of the Colmac trouser press unit. His suggestion prevents damage to the thin material covering trouser zippers and zipper locks thus eliminating customer complaints and damage claims for replacement of approximately 2,400 trousers per year, resulting in an annual savings of $14,400.

Honor grads named

Basic Airborne Class 5-80 graduated Nov. 19 with 2nd Lt. Frederick L. Hoon and Pvt. 1 Stephen J. Scott as the honor graduates.

Second Lieutenant Gregory King was named honor graduate of the Airborne Department's Jumpmaster Course that graduated Nov. 16 at Fort Benning.

Twenty-two other students also successfully completed the concentrated course that teaches them to be totally responsible for the safety of a plane-load of paratroopers from the time of jump notification until the mission is completed.

Fifty-three officers and forty-one enlisted men earned their Ranger tabs Nov. 15 when class 10-79 graduated.

The two distinguished honor graduates were 2nd Lt. James C. Yarbrough and PFC Donovan L. Alexander.

The honor graduates were 2nd Lt. Gene C. Kamena, Sp4 Michael Tolle and PFC Andrew H. Stay. Capt Brian W. Anderson and Marine Sgt. Richard R. Scriven were presented the Merrill's Marauder Award.

Command change done 'on location'

Eglin Air Force Base, Fla. was the site recently of a unique change of command ceremony for the 298th Signal Detachment, 197th Infantry Brigade (Separate).

1st Lt. John G. Bayless assumed command of the detachment from SFC Nathaniel Johnson Jr. who had been in command since August. The ceremony took place during the Bold Eagle 80 exercise.

After the change of command, Johnson was awarded the Army Commendation Medal; proof that his short lived career as a detachment commander was a successful one.

Col. Michael F. Spigelmire, commander of the 197th Infantry Brigade, pins the Army Commendation Medal on SFC Nathaniel Johnson Jr., 298th Signal Detachment, as 1st Lt. John G. Bayless looks on.

Post officer's son promoted at NGC

North Georgia College cadet Mark Winston Harris, son of Col. and Mrs. Bobby J. Harris of Columbus, Ga., has been promoted to the rank of cadet first sergeant for the 1979-80 academic year. Cadet First Sergeant Harris will serve as first sergeant of Bravo Company for the college's 500 person Corps of Cadets. He was selected for the promotion by the college's Military Review Board on the basis of military performance, academic achievement and peer evaluation. North Georgia College is the senior military college of Georgia and one of the nation's four recognized military institutions.

AUSA to award senator

The National Association of the U.S. Army (AUSA) has announced that the Honorable Sam Nunn, U.S. Senator from Georgia, has been selected to receive the Jim Woodruff Award for Distinguished Service.

The award will be presented by Maj. Gen. (USAR) (ret) Robert Cocklin, executive vice president of AUSA, at the Columbus-Phenix City-Fort Benning Chapter's general membership meeting Dec. 10 at the Columbus Convention and Trade Center.

The AUSA meeting will begin at 6:30 p.m. with a social hour in the North Hall of the Convention and Trade Center. Dinner will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the dining gallery.

Tickets at $10 each are available at the post Public Affairs Office, Infantry Hall, Room 604; Protocol Office, Infantry Hall, Room 646; Deputy Post Commander's Office, Bldg. 35, Room 322, and from Charles Thebaud, Columbus Bank & Trust Co., downtown.

The Award for Distinguished Service was established by AUSA in 1973 and renamed for Woodruff in 1977, who was serving as AUSA's national president at the time of his death in October 1976.

The award was established to recognize distinguished service to the country on the part of officials holding national level elective or appointive offices.

Cleaning lady enjoys her work

By DEBBIE HARRISON

Ella Jane Williams is a rare commodity nowadays. She starts to work early at Infantry Hall and always sings and with a smile on her face while she works.

Williams is a cleaning lady, working under a government contract through a civilian janitorial service. Before coming to Fort Benning, Ella worked as a housemaid for five years until a friend told her about a position available here through Industrial Maintenance.

Ella Williams likes making each sink sparkling clean.

"I enjoy working every day. It seems to make other people happy to see a clean building where everyone can work in a nice atmosphere," Ella explained. "To make my job a little easier, I sing and before I know it, I am finished with all the offices."

Through the years Ella has received many favorable comments about her work. Ella got her job on the sixth floor when the commanding general's aide praised her work. She was even presented a letter of appreciation. Her civilian counterparts told Ella, "that no one takes care of the offices the way you do."

When Ella is not working at Infantry Hall you can find her at home tending to her garden of roses, chrysanthemums and variety of indoor and outdoor plants. Sometimes Ella goes out to the country on Sundays to Talbot County, her birthplace, to go to the Power Southern Baptist church to be with her congregation and enjoy gospel singing.

Williams resides in Columbus with her husband Frank and has eight children and eight grandchildren.

The chipper little grandmother is content with her present position and says she has no aspirations to advance to a supervisory position. "I don't like bossing people around, plus more responsibility usually brings more trouble," she laughed.

Safety contest ongoing

Maj. Gen. David E. Grange Jr., post commander, kicks off the first annual Fort Benning Safety Contest. The display, located in the lobby of Bldg. 4, contains a number of safety hazards in a kitchen and workshop scene. To enter, count the hazards, then on a card, write your name, unit and phone number along with the number of hazards you spot. Drop your card in the box provided at the display. Awards will be presented to the ten individuals who come closest to the number of hazards without exceeding the actual number.

Responsibility comes with job

By PAT BARHAM

Responsibility is nothing new to PFC Ronald J. Henderson, personnel actions specialist, for the AG Casualty and Survivor Assistance Office in Building 83.

As a clerk for the casualty and survivor section at Benning, Henderson has the responsibility of reporting deaths of all active duty and retired personnel to the Department of the Army. This includes answering questions and referring the next of kin, as well as assisting the bereaved to other offices for assistance.

Henderson has been here since April 1978, after attending basic and AIT at Fort Jackson. According to Henderson, "My job is very challenging since our office deals with Department of the Army and other casualty offices throughout the CONUS area where Army personnel are stationed."

Henderson's hours are long since the clerks are on call 24 hours a day, seven days a week. "You never know what will happen; every time the phone rings our office has a new situation to deal with," Henderson said.

Some of Henderson's duties include typing, handling all paper work for casualties and briefing officers and NCOs on the deceased before the officers and NCOs notify next of kin.

Henderson handles an 80-county area extending from Georgia to Florida, and parts of Alabama. "We are a tight knit group in the office," Henderson said.

"We work together trying to make our office the best casualty assistance section around."

Direct deposit aids retirees

WASHINGTON (ARNEWS) — Nearly half of the retired pay accounts at the U.S. Army Finance and Accounting Center (USAFAC), Fort Benjamin Harrison, Ind., are now being handled through the federal government's direct deposit program, according to a USAFAC official.

Banking institutions on Fort Benning are participating in the program and have the authorization form (SF 1199A) necessary for direct deposit, according to local bank officials.

Army retired pay was added to the program last June and, after three months, 42 percent of the nearly 452,000 accounts are part of the program. Finance officials estimate the usage figure will reach the 70 percent mark within the next two years.

Under the program, retirees can have their pay deposited directly into their personal checking or savings accounts on the date of payment, according to the official. In addition to the convenience offered by the new program, it eliminates the problem several retirees are still experiencing in the check-to-address program, he explained. The Army receives approximately 250 letters each month requesting stop payment on checks which have been lost or stolen, thereby delaying receipt of their money for up to six or eight weeks.

To enroll in the new program, the official explained that retirees should contact their commercial financial organization to complete an authorization form (SE 1199A). The form can be obtained at any financial organization, such as a bank, savings and loan association, or federal or state-chartered credit union. He emphasized that USAFAC does not distribute the blank forms.

Payments can be credited to the financial organization of the retiree's choice anywhere in the United States, Puerto Rico, Guam, or the Virgin Islands.

The direct deposit program handles more than 12 million federal payments a month, according to the official. Besides Army retired pay, other payments include regular Social Security, Supplemental Security income, civil service annuity, railroad retirement, VA compensation and pension, federal salary, Air Force active duty and retired pay, and Navy retired pay.

E-6's to be selected for course

WASHINGTON (ARNEWS) — A DA board is scheduled to meet in early April at Fort Benjamin Harrison, Ind. to select E-6s to attend Advanced NCO Education System (ANCOES) courses during FY 81, according to MILPERCEN officials.

The board will consider E-6s with a date of rank of April 1, 1975 through March 31, 1978 and a Basic Active Service Date (BASD) on or after Oct. 1, 1963. The board will not consider anyone who has been previously selected, has an imposed or initiated bar to reenlistment or has been denied reenlistment through the qualitative management screening process, officials added.

Eligible E-6s should make sure their qualification records, enlisted efficiency reports, enlisted evaluation data reports and photographs are up to date.

Soldiers being considered by the board may write a letter to the board president about any matter important to the consideration of their record. These letters must include the name, Social Security number, and grade and be addressed to: President, ANCOES Selection Board, C/O Commander, USAEREC, ATTN: PCRE-RB, Fort Benjamin Harrison, Ind. 46249.

Letters of recommendation from the soldier's current chain of command will not be accepted, officials said.

New savings bonds to be sold

Starting Jan. 2, 1980, a new savings bond called Series EE will be in effect. The following chart gives a comparison of the differences and similarities between the old type Series E Bonds and the new Series EE Savings Bond. As noted, the biggest differences are the denomination, issue price, and date to maturity; however, there is no effect on the overall interest rate or the amount of interest received.

Since savings bonds are a long-term investment, they are usually held to maturity. Therefore, the changes entailed by the new Series EE Bond are not as great as they would seem to be at first glance.

The Doughboys' basketball team split two games over the weekend with Fort McClellan at Briant Wells Gym.

In a game Friday night, the Doughboys lost the game at the free throw line as Fort McClellan outscored them at the charity stripe, 23 to 8. The final score was 83 to 82.

Jackie Gordon and Frank Mickens combined for 47 points to pace the Tigers from Fort McClellan. Mickens had 25 while Gordon dumped in 25. Joe Woods added 14 for the Tigers.

Luke Fencher paced the Doughboys with 23 points while James King added 14 and Tony Haycliff had 12.

In Saturday afternoon's game, the Doughboys blew out the Tigers 97-92 with near flawless free throw shooting and an early eight-point unanswered scoring spree. The Doughboys were assessed a technical foul before the game for hanging on to the rim during the pregame warmup.

Jackie Gordon popped in the free throw to start the game and then added a quick basket after the inbounds play to make it 3 to nothing. The Doughboys then scored eight straight points as they were off and running. They opened up a nine-point lead with just five minutes gone in the game as the Tigers never led after their initial three points at the beginning of the game.

At the half, Fort Benning led 55 to 45. The Doughboys quickly doubled that lead in the first three and a half minutes of the second half. The Tigers did not give up and quit, however. After a slam dunk by the Doughboys' Frederick Nelson, the Tigers called time out and regrouped. They then slowly chiseled away at the lead and cut it to as close as 93 to 88 with just over a minute remaining.

However, that was as close as the game was going to get as the Doughboys' Nathaniel Harris stole the ball and was fouled while attempting to shoot. He missed the first free throw, one of only three misses at the charity stripe all afternoon for the Doughboys, but proceeded to make the second. That made it 96 to 90 as Darryl Bedenfield added a free throw with seven seconds left for the Doughboys and Mickens scored at the buzzer for the Tigers.

It was just a case of too little too late for the Tigers as the Doughboys upped their record to 3 and 1.

The Doughboys had six players in double figures, enough to offset the high scoring trip from McClellan. For the Doughboys, Jerry Berry led the way with 19 points, Luke Fencher and Frederick Nelson added 16, Nathaniel Harris dumped in 15, Anthony Chatmon had 12 and Tony Haycliff scored 10. Fort McClellan had three players in double figures with Frank Mickens leading the way with 28. Joe Woods had 26 and Jackie Gordon had 23 for McClellan.

Coach Tony Resino of the Doughboys attributed the Doughboys' high spirit Saturday as a matter of pride. He said, "We played sorry Friday night and felt we were a better team than that. We had to have a little pride and go out Saturday and play better."

Coach Resino attributed Saturday's win to the depth of the bench for the Doughboys. He said, "We have a new system this year; I start five players and play them for ten minutes. Then I put in a fresh five players and they do just as good a job. Most military teams don't have that kind of depth and we can usually wear them down."

The Doughboys' next game will be against Robbins Air Force Base tonight at 7 p.m. at Santiago Gym in Sand Hill. They will also play there tomorrow at 3 p.m. against Robbins Air Force Base.

Benning Tae Kwon Do members receive trophies

By PHIL WARGO

The Fort Benning Tae Kwon Do Club cleaned house in the Green Belt Form Division at the recent 1979 Southeastern Tae Kwon Do Karate Championships held in Cullman, Ala. Nov. 17.

Nine club members, including four children, participated in the event which hosted well over 200 competitors from four different states. Winners were awarded trophies.

The first place trophy went to Arialdi Minino, 2nd place to Victor Crandell and 3rd place to Cliffon Gibson, all from Fort Benning.

Tae Kwon Do, a Korean martial art developed through centuries of Eastern civilization, has evolved into not only an effective method of weaponless self-defense, but also an intricate art, an exciting sport and a trenchant method of maintaining physical fitness.

Tremendous skill and control are required in Tae Kwon Do. While blocking, kicking and punching techniques all contribute to making the art one of the most exciting and competitive sports, its challenge lies in the adept use of techniques without having body contact.

Complete control over punching and kicking movements is paramount in stopping just centimeters short of the opponent. Through the coordination of control, balance and technique in the performance of the "forms," Tae Kwon Do is regarded as a beautiful and highly skilled martial art. It is also one of the most all around methods of physical fitness since it uses every single muscle of the body and is considered the ultimate in unarmed combat.

Doughgirls sweep two from Tigers to remain undefeated

By TIM BOIVIN

The Doughgirls remained undefeated after four games as they swept two games from Fort McClellan's Tigers last weekend.

Friday night the Doughgirls defeated the Tigers 77-64 behind 22 points by Rockette Earlie and 18 points by Phyllis Colbert. Sylvia Jones had 11 points but her main contribution was the 26 rebounds she pulled down. Mariette James also had 12 points.

Saturday the Tigers hung close through the first half but were blown out by an eight straight point Doughgirl scoring spree with about 10 minutes left in the game.

The Doughgirls were leading 36-34 when Earlie popped in six straight points and James added a basket to give the Doughgirls a commanding ten-point lead.

The Tigers pulled to 47-43 with four minutes left but Earlie made two free throws and followed that with a basket. Cheryl Kaufman and James added baskets after that to put the game out of reach, 55-42.

The only excitement after that came at the end of the game. The Tiger's Stephanie Gregory stepped into the free throw lane too quickly and a shot by Sue King was nullified. Then Gregory fouled Kaufman and was given two technical fouls, one for kicking the ball and one for berating the referee. Kaufman made three straight to make the final 59-47.

Phyllis Colbert led the Doughgirls with 20 points and Earlie added 18. James had 11 points and Sylvia Jones pulled down an amazing 36 rebounds.

Coach Hezzie Baines felt this year's team is better than last year's third place TRADOC team. He said, "Fort McClellan was the most physical team we should have to play this year. That was the only worry I had, whether or not we could handle the big teams."

Next Saturday the Doughgirls play the Atlanta 76ers at 7 p.m. at Santiago Gym, Sand Hill. Coach Baines said, "The 76ers are basically a pro team. They have two girls who can dunk the ball and their center is 6'5". Their average size is 6'1" and the only way I think we can beat them is if we run and press them into errors."

Making Tracks

By TOM BREEDING

DON'T FORGET ...

Several things. First, there's the Lite 3K and 10K Runs tomorrow at the Dixie Beer Co. on 4th Street at 9:30 a.m. Then we have the TRADOC Marathon on Thursday right here at Fort Benning. While I'm sure few of you will actually participate, see if you can get out to watch the events. Finally, we will present you the Faith School Christmas Race on next Saturday. The two miler starts at 10 a.m. and five mile at 10:30 a.m. This one, too, is here, and specifically designed to encourage local running. Get on out and support these local events.

ATLANTA MARATHON Dec. 29

For those who will be staying in the area during Christmas, this race is a true challenge. This past August, the Dannon Yogurt folks sponsored a 10K over part of the course that will be used for the marathon and half marathon. I can personally attest to the fact that this course has hills — real hills.

Call 544-4177 for further details.

PROPAGANDA SUMMARY

In case you chairborne types have not noticed, the past few weeks have been, on the whole, truly beautiful to behold. What could be more satisfying than going on a nice, leisurely run, communing with nature and breathing deeply that beautifully crisp, clean air that you can't even see? It'll do you whole worlds of good, and might even develop into the one habit you have that will provide some long term benefits. And, of course, if you start feeling competitive, we've got the races.

U.S. shooters take gold medals in Brazil meet

Thirteen members of the U.S. Army Marksmanship Unit spark-plugged the U. S. Shooting Team to a virtual sweep of all the competition during the recent Grand Prix of Brazil held in Sao Paulo Nov. 9-16.

Ernest Vande Zande, USAMU, scored two individual victories for the United States in winning the 50 meter rifle and 100 meter air rifle events while adding three more gold medals. Ronald Plumb, USAMU, won the final rifle event in English Match competition with a one point win over Vande Zande scoring 594 points out of 600 to Vande Zande's 593. The U.S. squad of Plumb; Vande Zande; and John Foster, USAR, Bozeman, Mont., went on to take the team match over Brazil by seven points, 1,187 to 1,180.

Karen Monez and Linda Baily, of USAMU, dominated the women's events with Monez winning both the air rifle and 50 meter rifle events. Baily won the rifle prone championship and placed second to Monez in air rifle. Wanda Jewell scored 1,147 points to tie teammate Karen Monez in the 50 meter rifle, but lost on the tie breaking procedure and was awarded the silver.

In shotgun competition, Joe Clemmons, the present world record holder, defeated Matt Dryke in a shoot-off for the gold medal in skeet competition. The USAMU shooters ended the regulation event tied at 196 out of 200. Clemmons went on to break 25 straight in the shoot-off to Dryke's 23. The U.S. team of Clemmons, Dryke and Dean Clark defeated Chile in the team championship, while Brazil finished third.

Ernest Neel scored 194 out of 200 in the international trap event to win by a narrow one bird margin over Marcos Olsen of Brazil. In team competition the squad of Neel, Lee Bannerman and George Leary won the gold metal over Brazil, 431 out of 450 to 417.

The U.S. squad won a total of eight out of nine team events, losing only in air pistol to Brazil. In individual competition, U.S. shooters took home a total of 15 gold, eight silver and seven bronze medals. Over 200 participants representing seven nations were on hand for the matches including Brazil, Canada, Chile, Venezuela, Mexico, and Colombia.

TRADOC run slated

Six of Benning's best distance runners will be selected soon to take part in the Training and Doctrine Command (TRADOC) Marathon Thursday.

Seventeen TRADOC post teams are scheduled to arrive here Wednesday for the three-event marathon. They are: Carlisle Barracks, Pa.; Forts Dix, N.J.; Eustis, Va.; Gordon, Ga.; Jackson, S.C.; Monroe, Va.; Lee, Va.; Bliss, Tex.; Benjamin Harrison, Ind.; Knox, Ky.; Belvoir, Va.; Leavenworth, Kan.; McClellan, Ala.; Rucker, Ala.; Sill, Okla.; Leonard Wood, Mo.; and Fort Benning.

Distances to be run are 26 miles, 13 miles, and six miles. Each team will have two women, two entrants over 40-years-old and two open-class runners.

The scoring system will be similar to cross-country scoring. Each team member scores points according to their place of finish. Penalty points will be given if a team does not enter someone in a division. The winner will be the team with the least points.

Four competitors in the TRADOC Marathon from Fort Benning are:

Edward A. Santa, DENTAC, Over 40-26.6 miles.

Robert Kuwik, Jump Command Airborne, Open-class 26.2 miles.

David Johnson, 690th Medical, 34th Medical Battalion, Open-class 26.2 miles.

William Shackelford, USAIS: Tactics Division, Over 40-13.1 miles.

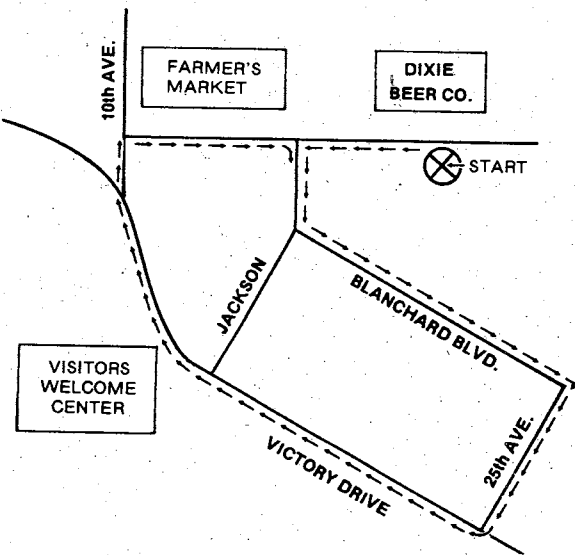

Hot team braves cold nights

Fort Benning's representative in the Columbus Recreation Department's Fall Women's Softball League captured second place with a 10-2 record.

The "Army Brats" two losses were to "Magic Oven," the league and tourney champs. The "Brats" team members are soldiers' wives and civilian employees at Benning.

Playing in the cold night air on Mondays and some Tuesdays were Linda Laine, Marilyn Wood, Sandy Moore, Sherrill Mc Canty, Donna Finch, Josephine Sanders, Tonya Thomas, Wonda Donnelly, Julia Anderson, Gloria Wright and Betty Zimmerman, player-coach. Nathan Wood was the assistant coach.

Editors note: Deadline for sports events is Monday at noon of the week of publication. All sports must be triple spaced, typewritten, upper and lower case for copy editing. Due to staff limitations, there will be no exceptions to this policy. Name and phone number must accompany copy.

Downtown races slated tomorrow

The Lite Track and Field Run tomorrow looks like a sure winner for everyone who participates.

The 3,000 meter novice run begins at 9:30 a.m. and the 10,000 meter run begins at 10 a.m. Both races begin at Dixie Beer on 4th Street in Columbus behind the Farmer's Market.

Runners will not be impeded by any hills and the double loop course will be on roads with little or no traffic. Ample parking will be available at Dixie Beer and restrooms will be open.

Awards include T-shirts to first 300 registered participants, five silver trays and five plaques for Open Division; medals for 1st, 2nd and 3rd finishers in each age group, and give awards in the open category of the 3K run.

A special appearance will be made by Olympic gold medalist Harvey Glance who will conduct a 60-yd. dash and answer track related questions.

Lite Beer, soft drinks and Gatorade will be served following the runs.

There's still time for the $5 late registration entry fee and all proceeds from this Columbus Track Club event will be used to support the activities of the U.S Track and Field Team.

PX gasoline prices rise, hours change

The PX operated gas stations will be raising their prices and adjusting hours to meet changes in the gasoline allocations, according to Norm Williamson, a DPCA official.

The rising gas prices reflect the rise of prices in the community surrounding Fort Benning. However, the prices will remain somewhat lower than prices off post, he said.

The Main Post station will be open from 8 a.m. to 5:30 p.m., Monday through Friday. The Main Mall station will remain open from 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Monday through Saturday and 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. Sunday and holidays. The Sand Hill, Harmony Church and Kelley Hill stations will not change hours and will remain open 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.

However, due to the system of daily allocations, the stations may close earlier than normal, said Williamson. The reason he gave for this is that they would rather stretch the monthly allocations throughout the month rather than run short during the final days of December.

"There shouldn't be a shortage but there may be a few inconveniences," he said.

Allied officers 'foreign policy asset'

By T. A. SABEL

Monday has been declared International Week by Mayor Harry Jackson of Columbus and Maj. Gen. David E. Grange Jr., post commander, in recognition of the 14,000 students from some 90 countries who have been trained here since the early 1920's.

Currently, 29 countries are represented with 63 students from as near by as Mexico and as far away as Pakistan, according to Capt. William Boner, chief of the Allied Students Training Division.

THE STUDENTS ARE HERE for training as well as being introduced to the American culture, Boner said. The training is an integral part of the American foreign policy. "It's probably the longest lasting asset of foreign policy we have," he said. He explained further, "The officers trained here are the up and coming people who, in the future, will be very influential. Some could eventually become the leaders in their countries. If they leave Fort Benning with a positive feeling towards the American people, culture, economy and military, they'll keep those values. When home, he'll remember what he physically saw and felt while here."

Charlotte Osterburg, program coordinator, emphasized, "Before they come here all their exposure to America has been in books, newspapers and movies. But when they get here they realize we're people too."

TRANSITION TO AMERICAN CULTURE is done on social and academic levels. Academically, allied officers are given either a one or two-week orientation course, said Boner. He explained, "They are given English enhancement classes explaining some of our military terminology. Since our maps are different from theirs and the terrain may be totally alien to them, courses are given in map reading and orientation. We also introduce them to our weapons system."

THEY ARE ALSO TAUGHT subjects on American culture, political institutions and process, agriculture, industry, society and economics. "Some of the concepts are totally new to the allied officers. Some have no idea how our government works. We take them to Plains, Ga. and they can see and believe a Georgia peanut farmer can become president. They can see many Americans living in small rural towns and realize that not everyone lives in a large city."

The stressing of American culture gives a better understanding of how our Army works, said Boner. "In some of the foreign armies when a commander says 'do' it is done, there is no discussion. But in our Army there is a great deal of discussion, because in our society there is much discussion. To understand the military, they need to understand the culture because that's where we came from."

EACH ALLIED OFFICER and his family, if they are here, have a volunteer civilian sponsor, according to Osterburg. The sponsors have no training except to treat them as any other friend and to consider

Advertise Army's importance

By WILLIAM E. TAYLOR
Chief, Army News Service

WASHINGTON (ARNEWS) — "Every citizen who enjoys the protection of a free government owes not only a proportion of his property, but even of his personal services to the defense of it."

These are the words of our "founding father" and first President of the United States, George Washington.

The need for service to country is no less today than it was when Washington was president. Because of this basic need of society, military service is vital to the lives of all Americans.

As Gen. George S. Patton Jr. said: "No army is better than its soldiers. The soldier is also a citizen. In fact, the highest obligation and privilege of citizenship is that of bearing arms for one's country. Hence, it is a proud privilege to be a soldier, a good soldier."

In recognition of the need and value of service to country, Army Chief of Staff Gen. E. C. Meyer has asked Army people everywhere to dedicate December to making the American people aware of the contribution made by the military services. "I envision all components of the Army participating in this program," Meyer said.

"Army personnel, military and civilian, active, Reserve component and retired are encouraged to seek forums where they can express to the American public the need and value of service to our country," Meyer added.

As Army people take time to visit friends and relatives over this holiday season there will be many opportunities to let people know more about military service.

As French philosopher Jean Jacques Rousseau said just before the United States became a country: "As soon as public service ceases to be the chief business of the citizens, and they would rather serve with their money than with their persons, the state is not far from its fall."

Let us do all we can to insure that the United States does not fall into this condition.

CG's message

A national day of recognition on Dec. 22 will focus on the contributions of General of the Army Omar Bradley, whose 64 years of selfless service symbolize that the challenge of military service to our country is both an honor and a citizen's responsibility. The tribute to Bradley will be highlighted by the presentation of the Department of Defense Distinguished Service Medal during the halftime of the nationally televised Sun Bowl football game.

Young men and women in uniform would do well to emulate the contributions of Bradley to America. But Americans of all ages must share the view that military service to their country is vital to our existence.

As we approach the Dec. 22 tribute, I encourage each of you — both military and civilian, active and retired — to use this occasion as your opportunity to speak out on the need and value of service to our country. In your day-to-day associations with other people, I would ask that you emphasize that military service is both an honor and a citizen's responsibility. We must continue to address the positive aspects of military service and stress that America's future is today's challenge.

America: We're still the one

By MATTHEW BOISON
36th Engineer Group Public Affairs Office

America: we're still number one. American ingenuity, are source America will never run out of, has brought this nation to rise above all others.

America gave the world light with the help of Thomas Edison. With Henry Fords' dream, this nation made the automobile affordable through mass production to Americans. Although other countries have improved upon our inventions, it still takes American ideas, hard work and ingenuity to start them.

The Wright Brothers made it possible for the world to shed their worldly ties and fly. United States Army researchers wanted a system to deliver fresh food to the soldiers in the field and created the vacuum canning system which is still in use today.

Armstrong, Aldrich and Collins were the first men to walk on the moon and they were Americans. America is the only country that gives its citizens the right to free speech, to contest what they might feel is wrong and the opportunity to create without limitations.

In the future, American automobiles will be powered by American grown corn; gasohol. We will long survive all political crises with strong willed, intelligent Americans.

We are now faced with a crisis with Iran. If this situation gets out of hand we may lose 49 Americans. Forty-nine Americans that have no decision in their fate. We at the 36th Engineer Group are deeply concerned for the imprisoned hostages welfare. But this is a great nation and, as always, we will prevail.

Man was not born for himself alone, but for his country.

Plato, 428-437 B.C.

Ask not what your country can do for you. Ask what you can do for your country.

John F. Kennedy, 1961

National strength lies only in the hearts and spirits of men.

The Barron brothers, Privates Joel and Roy, from Lamar, Miss., and members of Company B, 4th Battalion, 1st Infantry Training Brigade, look so much alike its hard to tell who is who as they ready an 81mm mortar for firing. This is a unique situation in the Army since not only are both brothers mortarmen, but they are in the same company as well!

MP's here marking property

In order to help Benning residents enjoy a crime-free holiday season, post military police are now operating a property identification booth at the Main Mall.

The display is entitled 'Operation Identification' and will be in operation during normal Main Mall hours until Dec. 24. The display features a video tape TV presentation on dangerous situations to avoid as well as numerous pamphlets with valuable information on subjects ranging from how to walk to school safely, to rape, drunk driving and tips on how to protect your home.

Another feature, and perhaps the main reason for the MP stand at the Main Mall, is to assist people in marking their valuables purchased during the Christmas season. "It is suggested that persons use their social security number to mark valuables because it is easiest to trace," said SSgt. Ronald Hiles, MP on duty at the display.

The MPs are using an engraving pencil to mark valuables for anyone who has a valid ID card, free of charge.

Letters to the Editor

Knowledge makes soldier

To the Editor:

Recently, I attended an Equal Opportunity Training (EOT) class. The topic was "Women in the Army." One of the subjects discussed was females in combat arms. Most men attending the class favored women in combat arms, so long as they served competently.

After attending the class, I did a lot of thinking about women in the Army and I looked to my dictionary to see what it said about a soldier. According to Webster's Dictionary, a soldier is 'one engaged in military service, an enlisted man or woman, and a skilled warrior.'

I am sick of women complaining about not having a combat arms MOS. Anyone wanting to learn about combat arms can obtain information and learn on their own. After all, the field is the test. In a combat situation, even supply clerks or nurses may find it necessary to pick up arms and fight. Then one must be prepared to be a skilled soldier regardless of his/her MOS.

Times are not propitious for a woman to hold a combat arms MOS, but their skills can be developed. I have been blessed, having been at the 1st Infantry Training Brigade as a photo journalist, to acquire all the knowledge I want about 11 Bravos (infantrymen) and 11 Charlies (mortarmen). I can go to the field and learn first hand about combat arms. Everyone does not have this opportunity, but for a real soldier, there are no blocks to knowledge in any field.

I may not be labeled an "Infantryman," but if my country needs me, I will be ready — even in combat!

ATTENTION ALL MILITARY PERSONNEL:

DON'T RISK YOUR CAR INSURANCE GOING UP EVERY 6 MONTHS.

READ THIS NOW.

Do you know that many auto insurers today offer only 6-month policies?

Do you wonder whether that's good or bad? Does it mean it could cost you extra money?

Well, what it means is this. Your auto policy has to be renewed every 6 months. Its rate can change with every renewal. And even though companies don't raise rates every time, rate increases happen all too often. Especially in these inflationary times.

But unlike most other companies, GEICO still issues 12-month auto policies at low rates, with convenient payment plans to fit your budget. Up to 9 payments if you wish.

How can GEICO offer this 12-month rate protection and low rates too?

Good drivers: you're one important reason.

GEICO insures good drivers. And good drivers are the best inflation-fighters around. You have fewer accidents. You cost us less. So you are one reason we can afford to charge you less.

"Good" doesn't mean "perfect." Good drivers may occasionally be involved in accidents. That's only human. An accident doesn't have to bar you from GEICO. And once you're a GEICO policyholder, an accident doesn't mean you won't be renewed. In fact, 98% of GEICO's policyholders are offered renewal each year. That tells you something about GEICO's loyalty to its policyholders.

Find out about GEICO low-cost auto insurance. When you call, you'll talk directly to a GEICO staff insurance counselor, not a salesman. There's no pressure. And no extra sales expense to inflate the cost.

Superior service for over 40 years

In the United States, its possessions, and Canada, you'll enjoy GEICO's excellent service and protection. And when you are based abroad, we can arrange for the same first-rate coverage to continue through International Insurance Underwriters.

GEICO has been saving money for good drivers since 1936. Today, of the more than 1,000 stock companies that insure autos in the U.S., GEICO is the 5th largest. Big enough to be everywhere you may need us.

Over 3,500 GEICO claims representatives all over the country are there to serve you. To answer questions. To settle your claim promptly and fairly.

You deserve the same sort of good deal that thousands of your fellow servicemen have been getting from GEICO for over 40 years. Find out exactly how much you may save. Mail the coupon today.

NOTE: Even if you do not meet GEICO's underwriting requirements, you may still obtain high-quality protection and the same reliable country-wide claim service from our affiliate, Criterion Insurance Company, at somewhat higher rates...and with a wide variety of payment plans to suit your budget. Criterion operates in the District of Columbia and every state except Mass., N.J., and So. Carolina.

Pharmacy changes

The Pharmacy Service at Martin Army Hospital is instituting two changes to the current operating policy that are aimed at increasing patient service.

Effective now, physicians may write prescriptions for patients on chronic medications for up to 120 days at a time. The previous policy restricted prescriptions to 30 days at a time with up to three refills. The new policy will allow patients on chronic medications from having to return to the hospital once a month just for a prescription refill.

The second change involves the reopening of the High Speed Pharmacy for the hand out of selected over-the-counter medications without a prescription. The High Speed Pharmacy reopened Monday at its previous location near the Emergency Room and will operate from 9 a.m.-12:30 p.m. and 1-3 p.m. on Monday through Friday.

In order to accomplish the reopening of the High Speed Pharmacy, the operating hours of the Outpatient Pharmacy will be reduced from the present schedule of 8 a.m.-11 p.m. seven days a week to 8 a.m.-9 p.m. Monday through Friday and 9 a.m.-9 p.m. on Saturday, Sunday and holidays.

The following items will be available at the High Speed Pharmacy: Tylenol drops, Tylenol tablets, Mylanta or Gelusil II, children's aspirin, regular aspirin, Cepacol lozenges, Coricidin D, Robitussin, Donnagel of Kaopectate, analgesic balm, nose drops, antiseptic ointment and Anusol suppositories.

Camellia is an apartment motel. We don't rent rooms, we rent furnished apartments with all the features of a regular motel plus added conveniences that cannot be provided with just a single room - and all at the same, or most times lower rates than the single-room motel. For example, our "standard" unit is comprised of two bedrooms, combination living room-dining room, bathroom and fully furnished kitchen including refrigerator, stove, cooking utensils, and table service for six people. These are some of the "extras" but at no extra cost. Our 100 units are in separate buildings with usually four apartments in each building, which adds to a person's or family's privacy.

Tired of interference?

CB'ers, advocates invited to public seminar

During the past few years tremendous advances have been made in the field of radio and television communications. Communications by radio and television from any point on earth, and sometimes from points beyond earth, have now become commonplace. In recent years the growth of the two-way (CB) radio, permitting personal communications from motor vehicles and homes, has been explosive.

These advances in communication technology are not without problems. The radio frequency spectrums is becoming crowded and interference problems, due to lack of compatibility between the different radio systems, are becoming widespread. This is evidenced by the thousands of complaints of interference to home electronic entertainment equipment, (televisions, tape recorders, stereo's, electronic organ, telephone and other audio equipment) received by the Federal Communication Commission (FCC) each year.

Obviously, control of some of these factors is not within the jurisdiction of the FCC. The quality of the television signal received at your home is one such factor, because such quality is most often influenced by the distance you live from the television station, and the intervening terrain. Also, the FCC has no standards for the design and installation of television receivers and associated antenna systems.

As you begin to identify the type of interference you are experiencing, keep in mind that not only must the equipment be able to receive and amplify the desired signal, it also must reject all unwanted signals and noise. This means that even if the equipment that is allegedly causing the interference is being properly operated, it is still possible to experience interference.

Television interference (TVI) and other entertainment system interference has caused great concern for many people in the Columbus/Fort Benning communities for Citizen Band (CB) operators and non-CB'ers as well.

Therefore, the Federal Communication Commission (FCC) has been invited to attend A "Concerned Citizens" seminar on Dec. 13, at the Kelley Hill Recreation Center (Bldg. 9079) at 7:30 p.m. The seminar will be only for one night and is open to the public. There will be several Citizen Band groups represented, REACT, RUSH and several CB clubs from the communities.

Fort Benning residents urged to properly dispose leaves

Now that winter is here, Fort Benning residents are reminded of the proper way to dispose of leaves. All leaves should be raked and bagged when possible. Bags are available at the Facilities Engineer Self-Help Warehouse 466 and may be picked up between 7:45 a.m. and 3 p.m. daily.

Leaves not bagged should be piled on the curb, NOT left in the street as this causes drain clogging.

ALLIED OFFICERS

the cultural differences concerning food and alcohol.

Osterburg elaborated: "The visiting officers don't want any special treatment. If the sponsoring family is having beans and franks for dinner, the allied visitor would rather eat the beans and franks with the family."

"THEY WANT A PLACE they can relax and escape the military community; a place they can lie on the floor in front of the fireplace and watch television," added Boner. "Even that is an exposure to our culture."

The allied officers are trained alongside American officers. Each allied student has a student sponsor to help them through the course. They are matched up as closely as possible concerning age, backgrounds and families, according to Boner.

THE BIGGEST PROBLEM in training the students is the language barrier. "If an ally has difficulty, it simply may be because of the language," Boner said, adding, "That is not often a problem since it is a requirement of the school for officers to pass an English proficiency test. In most countries they need to know English before becoming officers."

In Boner's opinion, the idea of officers knowing more than one language is a good one. There are multi-lingual American officers but they are the exception, he said. Boner is impressed with the allied students' multi-lingual talents.

FRIENDSHIPS among the allied officers and their sponsors, both civilian and military, tend to be deep and long lasting. "Some of the visiting officers and sponsors have been keeping in touch for more than 10 years," said Osterburg. "Several of the sponsors have taken the opportunity to visit the officers in their own countries.

"We're very proud of the program. They may not go home the most technically trained officers in the world, they may not have liked everything they've seen, but they do go home with a positive attitude," commented Boner.

THE OVERALL CALIBER has impressed Boner "but then I may only be seeing the cream of the crop."

According to both Osterburg and Boner, the best sentiment of the program is the opportunity for officers of different countries to get together and learn not only about America but each other's countries as well. "If the world could get along as well as these officers here, it would be fantastic," finalized Osterburg.

Allied soldiers train here with U.S. officers Army

By T. A. SABEL

According to one Infantry Officer Basic Course instructor, allied officers are very good students. Seldom does the language problem exist since most students already speak good English.

Three of the allied students, far from their own warmer homelands of Malaysia and Liberia, worked with the rest of the students in their days out in the field. Each evoked feelings of mutual camaraderie as they struggled, along with the rest, to the solution of the day's problem.

Capt. Ismail Iskandar, son of the crown prince of Malaysia, was particularly impressed with the system of training, the friendliness of Americans and the equipment available to the troops. "You have everything here. All the latest equipment is here to train with."

1st. Lt. Joseph J. Beyan of Liberia found the close interaction of instructors and students important and beneficial. "Everyone encourages you to learn. When I was discouraged, many helped me along and encouraged me to keep going," he explained.

Another student from Liberia, 1st Lt. Emmanuel N. Sayon hopes to open his countrymen's eyes to the military developments he learned while here. "I intend to give the knowledge I learned here to those who haven't had the fortunate opportunity to take American training," he said.

Capt. William Boner, chief of the Allied Students Training Division, considers the positive attitude the students have for America an essential part of his job. In this reporter's opinion, he's succeeded.

CG's message

I am pleased to join Columbus Mayor Harry Jackson in proclaiming the week of Dec. 10 as International Week at Columbus and Fort Benning.

Fort Benning's association with our international friends dates back to the early 1920s with the initiation of the Infantry School's program for training allied students. Since that time, we have trained 14,500 students representing approximately 90 countries. We now have 64 allies attending classes who represent 29 countries.

In paying tribute to our international friends, several activities are planned. The Allied Student Division will have a display on the first floor of Infantry Hall in the glass-encased room next to the elevators. The display will consist of items of interest from countries around the world. Movies and slides of allied countries will be shown and music from those countries played intermittently. The display will be open to the public from 10:30 a.m. to 8 p.m., Monday through Friday. Wives of allied officers from various countries will prepare food from their respective homelands and offer it to the visitors.

"The Rozell Show," WRBL-TV, Columbus, Ga., will devote its entire program daily to International Week. The show can be seen on Channel 3 (Cable: Channel 4) from 8 to 9 a.m. The shows will feature singing, allied ladies cooking their favorite dishes and other items of interest about various nations.

We salute our international friends on this special occasion and cordially invite everyone to participate in International Week.

CFC nears goal

This year's Combined Federal Campaign (CFC) has reached about 92 percent of the $325,000 goal, with over $300,000 collected so far, according to James Schoonover, DPCA office.

According to Schoonover, the CFC technically ended Nov. 30 but due to some unit's participation in the recent training exercise, 'Operation Eagle,' there are still late contributions coming in. "We anticipate all collections to be turned in by Dec. 15," Schoonover said.

Persons wishing to make last minute contributions may do so at the CFC headquarters in Bldg. 83 at the Welcome Center until close of business today. However, starting Monday persons wishing to make contributions must do so at the CFC headquarter's new location in Rm. 627 in Bldg. 4. Unit project officers are urged to complete as much of their collection as possible prior to the CFC headquarters moving to its new location.

Anyone who is short of cash but would still like to make a contribution is reminded they may do so through the payroll deduction plan. This way, no money would be deducted until the January paychecks.

Boot weds bride in barracks

By JOHN BAKER

Pvt. 1 Michael Brown, Company C, 5th Battalion, 1st Infantry Training Brigade, of Columbus and his bride, Susan Lunsford of Macon, made news Nov. 28 when they were married in Brown's barracks. The private's buddies provided the music, singing hymns as well as cadence songs.

Brown says the idea to be married in the barracks started as a joke. "Because of the high standards set for us by our drill sergeants, we refrained from wearing our boots in the barracks. "My friend, PFC Warren Nelson, suggested that I get married in the barracks so that I could walk right down the middle of the floor with shoes on," he explained.

The idea "didn't seem bad" to Brown and his fiancée. With permission through the chain of command, the couple made the arrangements.

Company C Executive Officer 2nd Lt. Peter Sammarco said, "I believe this is the first time anything like this has been done."

Wearing the protective mask, the 43rd Engineer Battalion takes a one-and-a-half-mile confidence run.

“Gas” masks make FTX unique

Story and photos by MATTHEW BOISON

On Nov. 13, the 43rd Engineer Battalion went to the field on an ordinary Field Training Exercise (FTX). Or was it?

“The overall mission of the FTX was to practice combat engineering and combat skills,” said Maj. Raymond F. Powell, executive officer of the 43rd Battalion, “except we did it all in protective masks.”

The 43rd started off its exercise with a two-day pre-FTX training period. These two days before the actual FTX were used to train the soldiers on overcoming the psychological barriers concerning the protective mask. “It’s all psychological,” said Powell.

“The use of the mask becomes normal once you get use to wearing it.”

The soldiers of the 43rd were subject to physical training exercises with the protective mask on. Later, the soldiers took on the task of running one-and-a-half miles with the mask on to prove to themselves that the protective mask cannot hamper them or their work.

During the two pre-FTX days, soldiers played football in the protective masks, among other various programs and sports designed to orientate the soldier with his new piece of equipment.

“The men were surprised they could react as well as they did with the mask on,” said

Powell. “People think they can’t breath in a mask while doing strenuous exercise but they can.”

Nuclear, biological and chemical warfare (NBC) is nothing new to tactical warfare as it was used more than 60 years ago in World War I against and by the Germans. Various steps have been taken to increase the NBC training over the years. According to Maj. Nolan J. Adams, a USAIC chemical officer, “research and development efforts have been increased greatly to better the individual protection equipment of each individual soldier so he will be able to function easier and be better protected while fighting in an ‘NBC’ environment.”

The soldiers of the 43rd not only had to wear the protective mask for six hours continuously in the field, but also performed all their duties while wearing the protective mask. Foxholes had to be dug, campsites had to be set up and torn down, policing the area and even talking on the communications equipment was done wearing the protective mask.

“In the USSR, NBC is taught as part of their training mission,” said Adams. “In order to make it realistic, live chemical agents beyond the tear gas stage are used, but it’s diluted so as not to severely injure or kill the Russian soldier.”

The 43rd, as part of their NBC training, had also set up a battalion decontaminatin center for personnel and battalion vehicles. “The 43rd Engineer Battalion was the first on Fort Benning to break their location and mobilize their battalion to another area while wearing protective masks,” said Adams.

“FORSCOM requires that we practice six hours a year with full chemical suit, mask and boots,” said Powell. At the end of the training exercise the 43rd Battalion had met and fulfilled the mission Oriented Protective Posture’s (MOPP) four requirements.

A member of the 43rd Engineer Battalion decontaminates a vehicle at the mock vehicle decontaminating station.

Volunteers needed for EOD duty

Are you interested in travel, teaching, and an everyday mission other than training? The Explosive Ordnance Disposal specialty is extremely undermanned in pay grades E-1 through E-4.

The training is tough but the rewards are tremendous. Training for this specialty MOS is in two phases. Phase I is located at Redstone Arsenal, Al. and lasts two weeks. During this phase the student is exposed to various methods of rendering-safe hazardous chemicals.

Phase II is located at the Naval Explosive Ordnance School, Indianhead, Md. This phase is approximately 13 weeks in length. During this period of instruction, the student is taught the ins and outs of neutralizing most military ordnance that an EOD technician may encounter.

To be eligible for this schooling, an individual must meet certain prerequisites. You must have a GM score of 90 or above. Active time remaining in service upon completion of training must be a minimum of 13 months and as an applicant you must be eligible for a security clearance.

Upon successful completion of this course, MOS/55D (EOD Specialist) is awarded. Individuals are then assigned to one of the many detachments within CONUS or overseas.

Some of the benefits an individual receives is the addition of $55 monthly for performing demolition duty, instructing civilian and military law enforcement and safety personnel, TDY travel, sometimes extensive, to areas all around the country, and last but not least, working conditions associated with a small organization. Most detachments contain a maximum number of 13 personnel.

If this line of work of appealing to you, contact the 89th Ordnance Detachment (Explosive Ordnance Disposal) at 545-2914/4154.

Best Christmas yet for Ricky who

This year the Thatcher family is very thankful. After years of wondering if their youngest son, Ricky, would survive childhood and live a normal, healthy life like other little boys his age, it finally came true that he would.

A 50-50 chance

While the Thatchers were stationed in Honolulu in 1975, Ricky was born what is termed a 'blue baby' at Tripler Medical Center. Within hours of his delivery, he had developed difficulties in breathing and serious heart defects.

A cardiologist was called in who told Ricky's mother, Pat, that her baby would need a heart catheterization (a small incision is made and a long instrument inserted through the vessels, arteries and heart. The instrument photographs the heart's work.) Pat was told Ricky had a 50-50 chance of surviving the procedure. Ricky was born without a pulmonary artery, he had a hole between the two chambers of the heart and an artery which normally closes at birth remained open. The Thatchers were told their son would not live to see his first birthday.

Too ill for surgery

In 1976, the Thatchers were transferred to Fort Lewis, Wash. to be closer to relatives in case Ricky had to be rushed to the Mayo Clinic for immediate surgery. Fortunately, they were able to wait until this past summer for the surgery. "The doctors waited so Ricky could grow stronger. Then, hopefully, he wouldn't have to have any more surgery," explained Pat.

The first year-and-a-half of Ricky's life was spent in and out of Madigan Army Hospital. He was constantly hospitalized with ear infections and high fevers complicated with seizures.

Then, a couple of years ago, Pat was told her son was able to go home for the Easter holidays. Consequently, while she was driving home to pick up her two children, Tammy, 9, and Bobby Jr., 8, Ricky developed a blood clot. Pat rushed him to Oak Harbor Naval Base so they could MEDEVAC him back to Madigan Hospital. Ironically, the shaking of the helicopter apparently dissolved the blood clot.

Last year the Thatchers came to Fort Benning and Ricky was taken to see Dr. George Armstrong, a cardiologist at Martin Army Hospital. Dr. Armstrong comes in once a month from the Columbus Medical Center to see patients here. But shortly after arriving here, Ricky began turning bluer around the circulating areas and lost strength. In addition, his heart beat was abnormally fast despite medication to slow it down.

Constant hospitalization

In September, Dr. Armstrong suggested that Ricky be sent to the University of Alabama in Birmingham for a heart catheterization. The operation was postponed until February because Ricky was too ill to undergo the procedure.

The years of rising hospital bills drained the Thatchers financially. Even though CHAMPUS paid most of the medical costs, the family had to borrow money from the Army Community Services so they could be with Ricky in the hospital.

The child's condition had become so serious that Dr. Armstrong suggested he have open heart surgery at the University of Alabama in late May. The surgery was a success and Ricky's suffering was ended. Six hours later, when his parents went to see him in the Recovery Room they noticed a big change. "The first thing I looked at was his fingertips and mouth. They were perfectly pink; his coloring was so much different than before," commented Pat.

Ricky began gaining weight and grew about three inches in height since last Christmas. "I noticed this morning when he put on a pair of pants he got last Christmas they looked like 'high water.' Ricky even plays a lot better. Before the surgery he couldn't even walk down the hall without running out of breath," Pat added.

This year, Ricky celebrated his fourth birthday. Friends and relatives showered him with cards and gifts! Now Ricky is able to participate in games like any other normal little boy his age.

Ricky is looking forward to starting kindergarten next year with his brother and sister who attend Wilbur Elementary School here. Except that he cannot be involved in contact sports such as football, he will be able to live a normal life. Now most of Ricky's days are spent at the Tiny Tot Nursery where he enjoys just being a little boy, playing like others.

Limitations slight

Ricky's father, SSgt. Bob Thatcher, works at the Infantry Hall for the Special Security Group and is presently on TDY attending the Advanced Non-Commissioned Officers Education System at Fort Benjamin Harrison, Ind. When Ricky and his dad talk on the phone, Ricky always asks, "When are you coming home?" and his dad replies, "By Christmas."

This Christmas will be the best of all for the Thatchers. "We now know Ricky will be able to live a happy and full life," expressed Pat.

PFC Pat Barber of HHC, 4th Student Airborne Battalion, applies some finishing touches to one of the many bicycles that have been turned into the Army Community Service's Toys for Tots Program. ACS is accepting toys that are not in need of repairs through Dec. 14. Information on the Toys and Tots Program is available through ACS at 545-1169/4679.

Headquarters, Bldg. 83, are ones that are not in need of any repair and are immediately usable.

The Fort Benning Toys for Tots Program is open to families of active and retired soldiers living in the community. Names of families in need of toys are usually given by interested third parties but families who identify themselves as being in need of toys will also be considered.

Capt. Frank Mastin, ACS officer, said, "So far, as in the past, this program has been well received. We have a substantial amount of toys but names of families have been coming in through all of the Community Life Centers so we don't expect any leftovers."

Recipients of the toys who live in McGraw Manor, Lavoy Manor, Custer Terrace, Bouton Heights and Davis Hill may pick up their toys at their respective Community Life Center on Dec. 21 from 8 a.m. until 4 p.m.

Recipients of the toys who live in other areas and off post may pick up their toys on Dec. 21 at ACS headquarters Bldg. 83, from 9 a.m. until 4 p.m.

Unit commanding officers are reminded that Santa Claus suits are available from ACS just by coming to Bldg. 83 and signing a hand receipt.

For any information on the Toys for Tots Program or the Santa Claus suits contact ACS at 545-1169/4679.

Doughboys' bell tolls too soon in heartbreaker

By TIM BOIVIN

The Doughboys blew out Warner Robbins Air Force Base by 20 points Friday night and then lost in overtime Saturday to split their weekend series at Santiago Gym, Sand Hill.

The Doughboys fell behind early Friday night in the first half. Two free throws by Nate Harris gave the Doughboys the lead, 13-12, and Fred Nelson followed that with a basket. Harris hit a basket and Larry Varndoe stole the ball and scored two straight baskets to give the Doughboys a 21-12 lead.

Nelson led the Doughboys with 17 points and Harris and Luke Fencher had 12 each. Don McCants led Robbins with 14.

In Saturday's game the Doughboys lost a tough one, 77-76. They led 40-35 at the half and scored eight straight points with three minutes gone in the second half. Fred Nelson dunked a shot to finish off the spurt and give the Doughboys a 52-41 lead.

Later in the game the Doughboys lead had been cut to three points, 66-63, mostly on the second half shooting of Robbins' Marv Epps. Epps did not score in Friday's game and only had one point at the end of the half Saturday. He exploded for 21 second half points, most while shooting from the perimeter.

A three-point play by Epps pulled Robbins into a tie. Epps hit another basket to put Robbins into the lead and the Doughboys lost the ball on a missed shot at their end. Robbins went into a stall with three minutes left.

Fred Nelson fouled Robbins' Doug Compton and Compton missed the free throw. However, Luke Fencher touched the ball while it was on the rim and the referee ruled the shot good. This gave Robbins a 69-68 lead with two minutes left.

Fencher hit on a shot to pull the Doughboys within one but Coach Tony Resino was hit with a technical foul call. With less than a minute left, Robbins' Ron Martin stepped to the line and missed. Epps then went to the line with a chance to give Robbins a two-point lead and he missed.

The next half minute of play was a series of fouls, missed shots, and missed free throws. Nate Harris missed with 19 seconds left and then fouled Robbins' Bob Johnson. Johnson missed the free throw but Robbins recovered the rebound.

The Doughboys' Tony Haycliff fouled Johnson again. With eight seconds left Johnson made one out of two free throws to give Robbins a two-point lead, 70-68.

The Doughboys hurried the ball upcourt and Fencher hit a shot with one second left. He was fouled by Johnson and stepped to the line with a chance to win the game. He took a stabilizing deep breath and then shot. The ball bounced agonizingly off of the rim.

The first two-and-a-half minutes of the overtime period were scoreless. Robbins Matt Byrnde fouled Tony Haycliff and he made both free throws to give the Doughboys a 72-70 lead.

Robbins' Marvin Montgomery made one out of two free throws and Milton Lawrence scored on a layup to regain the lead, 73-72. With 35 seconds left, Lawrence hit two free throws to extend the lead to three.

The Doughboys' Jerry Berry was fouled with 29 seconds left by Montgomery and he sunk both free throws to cut the lead to one. Fencher then hit a jumper to give the Doughboys a one-point lead with 21 seconds left.

Lawrence then hit two free throws with 13 seconds left to give Robbins back the lead, 77-76. Berry fouled Johnson with seven seconds left but he missed both free throws.

Luke Fencher of the Doughboys gets ready to release a jump shot from the corner in Saturday night's game against Warner Robbins Air Force Base. Fencher led the Doughboys with 24 points, 12 rebounds and three blocked shots in the 77-76 overtime loss.

The Doughboys inbounded the ball to Berry and he drove around the left side to the base line. He put up a jump shot that went in but he had miscalculated the time left and the ball left his hand a second after the buzzer had sounded.

Coach Resino said he thought his team had been outthusted in Saturday's game but they had a chance to put the game out of the reach a couple of times but just couldn't. He said, "We were outthusted but the fact that several players had duty and missed practice during the week was probably the reason.

That's something we have to live with, for we are soldiers first, basketball players second."

Resino said he felt the Doughboys should have "run Robbins out of the gym." The only bright spot he could find about Saturday's game was the performance of Luke Fencher.

Fencher had about a dozen rebounds, blocked three shots and scored 24 points. Jerry Berry added 16 in a losing effort.

Robbins was paced by Epps' 22 points and Lawrence added 14. Compton popped in 12 from his pivot position for the victors.

The Doughboys' next games are at Fort Rucker today and tomorrow. They return to Rucker next weekend for a double elimination Christmas Tournament between eight teams from the Southeast.

Exceptional children try for Special Olympics

By DEBBIE HARRISON

Many children have dreams of participating in the Olympics. But for some children, this would be an impossible dream were it not for the Special Olympics.

The Special Olympics offers the handicapped child a chance to compete with others, on his or her own level. This is done with athletic events such as track and field, swimming, floor hockey, etc. The Special Olympics lets these children do things they never thought they could do before.

Earlier this year, Richard Dunkin, chief counselor from Columbus College, attended a Non-Commissioned Officers Association

(NCOA) meeting at the Fort Benning Follow-Me Chapter with Olive Moody, NCOA chapter president. At the meeting, Dunkin mentioned, "They needed someone to support the exceptional children in the Fort Benning/Columbus area, by providing a chaperone and transportation. Then the exceptional children in the area would be able to participate and compete with others in athletic competition in the Special Olympics. Through the help of concerned NCOA members, they provided the services from Fort Benning."

Last week at Baker High School in Columbus, 20 teenagers of active, retired and civilians got aboard a bus, with chaperone Sp6 Pat Eismann, NCOA trustee (MEDDAC) and Coach David Newby, to compete in the regional statewide competition of floor hockey (Nov. 28-Dec. 1) at Brunswick, Ga. If the Baker High School team wins, they will go to the Warner-Robbins AFB for Track and Field competition in spring, 1980. And then on to the national-level Special Olympics.

The people who are helping to support the Baker High students for the Special Olympics are: Sp4 Leian Ferr, coordinator for Compay B, 197th Support Battalion, Sp6 Pat Eismann, NCOA trustee from MEDDAC, MSgt. Chester Bruce, NCOA chairman for Martin Army Hospital, 1stSgt. Daniel Kerr, vice chairman, SFC Sygbee Nash, NCOA trustee and SFC Orlando Duran, treasurer.

Doughgirls remain undefeated

By TIM BOIVIN

The Doughgirls remained undefeated through five games as they slid by the Atlanta 76ers, 70-61.

Although the 76ers left some of their taller players at home, the Doughgirls worked all week on their rebounding and it payed off as they continuously got second and third shots off of offensive rebounds.

Phyllis Colbert led the Doughgirls in scoring with 16 and Cheryl Kaufman dropped in 15. Cynthia Hughes paced the 76ers with 17 while Sharon Freeman added 12.

The Doughgirls led by only three at the half, 38-35, but burst into a seventeen-point lead with seven-and-one-half-minutes to play. The 76ers could not get any closer than the final nine-point margin after the big lead was opened up.

Coach Hezzie Baines of the Doughgirls said the key to the game was the rebounding display his team put on. The Doughgirls ended up with 78 rebounds, 35 of them coming off of the offensive boards.

Baines felt the overall bright spot for his team was the contribution Kaufman made in the pivot. He said, "She has been adjusting to the pivot position and I think she has finally gotten the feel of it."

Although the Doughgirls have been getting contributions from their front line, Baines is looking for more production from the guard position. He said, "I think I may try Marietta James or Peggy Penick at guard to try and get things going."

The Doughgirls' next opponent will be Fort Rucker and Coach Baines feels that to gain victory his team will have to run on them.

The Doughgirls' next games are tonight and tomorrow at Fort Rucker, Ala.

'Cudas host meet

The Fort Benning Barracudas Swim Team hosted their 5th Annual Pilgrim Invitational Meet on Dec. 1-2 at Briant Wells Pool. Over 400 swimmers from 14 teams from Georgia and Alabama participated in the meet which offered several longer distance events than usual. The Barracuda Swim Team expresses their appreciation to the officer candidate students and team parents who volunteered their time and effort to insure a smoothly conducted meet.

Most of the Cudas will swim in Montgomery, Ala. on Dec. 15, while others will travel to Atlanta to compete that same weekend.

Faith School Christmas race to be held tomorrow

Faith School is sponsoring a two-mile and a five-mile race tomorrow. Both races will begin and end at the Ingersoll Road entrance to Faith School.

Many of Faith's students have signed up for the two-mile event with more expected to enter on race day. Students at the school have been initiated to long slow distance (LSD) running in their physical education classes. Currently, each student runs a half mile before the regular activity classes begin.

Each of the four instructors have been active in road racing, and the students picked up the enthusiasm for physical fitness.

Some of the area's top runners will be competing for the awards. Bruce Skiles, whose 5:12 in the Plains Peanut Run won the five mile race, will lead the pack. Other top contenders will be Dave Fields, George Gilkes, Amy Byers, Rory Foster, Zach Dopfel, Scott Beard, and Mike Moore.

The ladies field will be lead by Barbara Flournoy, Lisa Perella, and Patty Pfiffer.

Many out-of-towners are also expected to challenge the locals for the 156 medallions to be awarded from the 13 different age groups in each race.

The top three male and female finishers from each group will win medallions and the top three male and female finishers in each race will receive trophies. All finishers in both races will receive a T-shirt, designed by Kathy Jay, sixth grade teacher at the school. Patches will be presented to each runner who completes their race. Merchandise awards will also be awarded the top runners in the five-mile event.

Late registration entry fees are $3 for those 19 and under, and $4 for adults. Registration on race day will be at the Faith gymnasium from 9 a.m.-9:45 a.m. The two mile race will begin at 10 a.m. with the five-mile run starting at 10:30 a.m.

Awards presentation will take place inside the gym at noon. For more information, call 545-2309 or 324-4970. Immediately after the five-mile race (Maj. ret.) Dave Fields will have a physical fitness clinic for all school age persons that did or did not participate in either of the two races in the school gymnasium

Swim for Your Life Program benefits soldiers

By PAT BARHAM

All swimmers can run, with the exception of those physically impaired. However, it should be noted that nearly half of the runners don't have swimming skills.

Since it has become a requirement for all physically able personnel to run five miles in order to be prepared for combat, many people have taken to the roads. One mile of swimming is equal to five miles of running.

Running often produces numerous injuries complicated by peer or command pressure to continue running. This can result in increased profiles, temporary and permanent.

According to Ray Pierce, coordinator for the Swim for Your Life Program, "During my many years of instruction, "I can't recall a single case of profiling a soldier due to conditional swims.

"I do, however, see a constant flow of runners learning to swim in an effort to repair the damage caused by running."

The Swim for Your Life Program is designed to contribute to the physical and mental well-being of the individual participating in the program. Since the program is a voluntary activity, active duty, retired, and their dependents may swim in the Swim for Your Life Program at Briant Wells Pool from 11 a.m.-1 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Swim for Your Life is divided into three phases: preparatory, sustaining and advanced. These divisions of proficiency are progressions with each phase leading to the next higher level.

Once an individual enters the program, a progress card is kept showing the advancement of the student. During regular swimming hours, instructors and life guards are available to the students, at the pool, enabling them to receive personal instruction if needed.

For more information on the Swim for Your Life Program contact Ray Pierce, Bldg. 394, at 545-2281

Company basketball season starts

The Headquarters Command basketball season began last Monday and will end Feb. 13. All games will be played on Monday, Wednesday, and Tuesday nights. The league champion (who is the recipient of the trophy) will be decided by regular season record. At the completion of the regular season there will be a double elimination tournament between the top four teams in the league to decide which team will represent Headquarters Command in the post playoffs.

- The home team for each game is responsible for insuring that the jerseys of the two teams are of a different color.

- If a team fails to show for a scheduled game (at game time) the game will be forfeited. Rosters must be submitted 10 minutes prior to game time.

- A player can play on the post basketball team and his unit team.

Benning versus Benning in tourney

The two undefeated Fort Benning under-10 soccer teams clashed on Nov. 20, in the only Benning versus Benning match-up for the Columbus City Championships. The blazers edged the Red Devils 2-1 in a hard fought game to gain a tournament finals berth.

Both goalies, Steve Traub of the Red Devils, and Keith Williams of the Blazers, played exceptional games as the two clubs combined both outstanding team play and individual effort to mount strong attacks on the others' goal.

Jeff Christensen scored the Red Devil's goal and Clayton Wright and Ben Senecal Scored for the Blazers. Dan Bradshaw, Don Johnson, Bill Cassidy, and Jaun Turner all played well for the Blazers. Standouts for the Red Devils were Susan Casey, Michele McKay, and Donald Schemedeke.

ALL GAMES WILL BE PLAYED IN AUDIE MURPHY GYM

233 runners brave chilling race

Story and photos by DEB HILGEMAN

The 233 runners who braved the 29 degree Georgia winter weather for the Lite Track and Field Run on Saturday, Dec. 1 were rewarded with one of the "best run area races in a long while," according to Race Director Lt. Col. John Moore of Fort Benning, who added, "Even if I do say so myself."

The runs went "very well" according to Moore, despite the relatively small turnout. "We were hoping for more people but the cold weather hurt us," he explained.

The early morning races included three and 10-kilometer runs conducted in downtown Columbus on flat roads with minimal traffic. Silver trays and plaques were presented to winners and T-shirts went to the first 300 registrants.

A special appearance was made by 1976 Olympic gold medalist Harvy Glance who presented awards and answered questions on various aspects of running and training.

The Columbus Track Club event was sponsored by the Dixie Beer Company of Columbus and proceeds went to support the activities of the U.S. Track and Field Team.

Benning's Chuck Briscoe didn't finish first in the 10-kilometer run, but it wasn't from a lack of effort.

William Telafair lives up to the slogan on his T-shirt as he gasps his way past the turn around point in the 10-k run.

Tribute to Pearl

By A. Presley

December 7, 1941. On this date, 38 years ago, on a bright Sunday morning, Japanese aircraft flew in low over the island of Oahu (AH-Wa-Hoo) dropping bombs on Schofield Barracks, Hickam Air Force Base and Pearl Harbor. More than 2700 Americans were killed in that sneak attack, another 700 were wounded, while 18 of America's fighting ships were sunk or damaged and 188 aircraft destroyed. "A day that will live in infamy," said President Franklin D. Roosevelt the following day, when he went before Congress to ask for a declaration of war. It was the beginning of World War II, and today, we pay tribute to the American servicemen that fought and died in that war, assuring that this country would remain free

Senator tours Benning

By CLIFF PURCELL

The Columbus-Phenix City-Fort Benning chapter of the Association of the U.S. Army (AUSA) met at the Columbus Iron Works Monday night with keynote speaker Sen. Sam Nunn (D-Ga.).

Speaking on the current Iranian crises, Nunn said the United States "must be prepared to take action and that action must be swift and certain" if the American hostages are harmed or killed.

On a tour of Fort Benning during his visit, Nunn visited the 1st Infantry Training Brigade and received a briefing on the Infantry Fighting Vehicle (IFV).

The 1979 Merit Chapter AUSA Regional Award for Excellence was presented to the local chapter by Col. (Ret.) Fred Best, president of the Third Region AUSA. Col. (Ret.) Jake Riley was presented the AUSA National Citation for Exceptional Service Award by Maj. Gen. (Ret.) Robert Cocklin, executive vice president of national AUSA headquarters. Cocklin, along with Mrs. Woodruff, presented the AUSA Jim Woodruff Jr. Award for Distinguished Service to the Country to Sen. Nunn.

Local chapter President Bethell Edrington Jr. was presented a Follow Me statue by Col. Addison D. Davis III, Fort Benning's chief of staff, for his service to the chapter and the tri-community area. Davis said the statue represents the "spirit of the infantry; Edrington represents that same spirit. He is not afraid to give his all and to stand up and be counted when service to the community and the Army is needed."

Glad you asked

Do you think Fort Benning should have a post tackle football team?

Pvt. Marvin Sellers
4th Student, Airborne Battalion
Yes, it is hard to go to games off post without transportation. With a post tackle football team, such as the Doughboys, it is a lot closer for everyone on post to attend.

Sgt. Patricia Morton
Headquarters, Headquarters Company, 197th Infantry Brigade
Yes, it provides entertainment for the troops and better morale.

Sp4 Mike Thurston
187th Pathfinders

I think they should have tackle football. Army football is a tradition, it builds team effort and spirit. Plus, it gives troops something to do during weekends.

Sp5 Melvin James
Company A, 197th Infantry Brigade
Yes, it's better than flag football.

2nd Lt. Bradley Vrooman
U.S. Army Training Center, Fort Jackson, D.C.
Yes, it's good for morale and gives people a place to go on weekends to watch a sport.

Freddy Hood, civilian Columbus

PFC Pat Barber
4th Student Airborne Battalion
Yes, because there is no special activity on post for troops to attend.

Sp5 Johnny Thomas
Company A, 197th Support Battalion
Yes, I think every post should have a football team. A lot of troops are interested in football. They should have a team to support the interest of troop morale.

SSgt. Paul Bean
72nd Engineer Company
No, it is a waste of money. We are soldiers, not jocks.

Yes, a lot of young players have a chance in the Army to experience tackle football. After they get out of the Army, maybe they would like to play professionally.

Sp4 Vertan Howard
15th Finance Company
Yes, for better morale of the troops. For those who play on the team, it gives them something to look forward to at their next post.

Engineers contribute to nation

By MATTHEW BOISON

The peaceful contributions of the Corps of Engineers to our national development include the creation and maintenance of our port and waterway systems which greatly improved the transportation of goods on the Mississippi and Ohio rivers. In 1927, a disastrous flood deluged large areas surrounding the Mississippi River. On May 15, 1928, the Army Corps of Engineers was called upon to prevent this catastrophe from ever happening again. With a combination of levees and floodways, the Army Corps of Engineers constructed a system capable of containing the greatest flood of record.

Between 1881 and 1952 there were twelve great floods that plagued the Missouri River. Damage totaled in the billions and hundreds of lives were lost. In the early 1930's, the Corps of Engineers began building in Montana the world's four largest dams: Oche, Garrison and Forts Peck and Randall Dams. With this accomplished, the main stem of the Missouri River was under control and improvements of the lower channel could be started.

Other architectural feats constructed by the Army Corps of Engineers include the construction of a large portion of public buildings in Washington, D.C., including the Pentagon building, the Washington Monument, the Capitol itself and the Library of Congress.

The Corp's most outstanding feats were the construction of the Panama Canal and the Alaskan Highway. Working under the worst possible conditions, suffering from disease and devastating weather, the Army Corps of Engineers accomplished what was said to be impossible.

Further along in history, the Army Corps of Engineers built a series of public works of incalculable value to our nation. These great accomplishments by our Army during peacetime has made our nation's Army unique among the world's great armies.

Military ranks third in public's confidence according to poll

WASHINGTON (ARNEWS) — The military ranks third among ten key American institutions in the most recent Gallup opinion poll of public confidence.

The poll showed that the American people had the most confidence in "the church or organized religion," followed by "banks and banking" and "the military."

The least confidence was shown in "big business," "Congress," "organized labor" and "television."

The question asked was: "I am going to read you a list of institutions in American society. Would you tell me how much confidence you, yourself, have in each one — a great deal, quite a lot, some, or very little?"

The percentages saying they have a "great deal" or "quite a lot" of confidence are as follows:

- The church or organized religion 65 percent
- Banks and banking 60 percent
- The military 54 percent
- The public schools 53 percent
- Newspapers 51 percent
- The U.S. Supreme Court 45 percent
- Television 38 percent
- Congress 34 percent
- Big business 32 percent

Jewish holiday begins tomorrow

The Jewish festival of Hanukkah commemorates a historic event in the search for religious equality. Also called the Feast of Lights or the Feast of the Maccabees, it is celebrated for eight days. This year it begins tomorrow.

Hanukkah commemorates the rededication of the second temple of Jerusalem in 165 B.C. following its desecration three years earlier by the army of the Syrian king, Antiochus IV Epiphenes. The Maccabees defeated the Syrian king's attempt to suppress the Jewish faith.

The Menorah, an eight-branch candelabrum, plays an important role in the celebration of Hanukkah. Every evening for eight days, the candles are lighted to commemorate the victory of the maccabees and to recall the miracle that occurred in the temple.

According to tradition, the light in the temple was required to burn continuously. Antiochus' army destroyed many of the sacred vessels in the temple and pillaged the holy oil. With oil sufficient to last for only one day, the temple light burned for eight days until reinforcements and replacements arrived.

In keeping with the festive spirit of Hanukkah, small gifts are exchanged among children and family members each night when the candles are lit.

The word Hanukkah means dedication. During the holidays Jews rededicate themselves to the ideals of religious freedom and recall the courage and self-determination of the Maccabees. The light of the Menorah challenges Jews never to allow darkness to reign, or defeat and humiliation to prevail. It is a reminder to keep the light of faith and the glow of human dignity always burning.

Letters to the Editor

Biker has close call on road

To the Editor:

I'm an avid motorcyclist with a wish to live to see my 100th birthday, but at the growing rate of inconsiderate motorists on this post I'll be lucky to see my next birthday.

This isn't the first incident that has happened to me. While riding my motorcycle through post doing the speed limit, a car pulled up directly behind me within approximately 15 feet from my rear end. He rode that way for the next two miles. The individual had several chances to pass, even when I slowed down to allow him to.

Let's say at this particular time there was an unavoidable obstruction in the road and I lost control. Could you, as a tailgater, stop in time without hitting me? My chances of survival are slim to none. Can you live with my death on your conscience?

In comparison, how would you feel if an 18-wheeler rode your bumper, knowing that if you had to stop fast, it would probably destroy both you and your automobile. This leaves me with an unpleasant feeling. How easily a life could be taken for such needless driving behavior. Give bike riders a chance.

Dental assistant appointed director

By BETTY ZIMMERMAN

One of Fort Benning's dental assistants has been appointed a Director of the Certifying Board of the American Dental Assistants Association's board of trustees.

Edna Kelly of Salomon Dental Clinic, Sand Hill, was selected as one of the seven directors at the 55th Annual Session in Dallas, Texas Oct. 21-27.

The directors serve as policy decision makers during three-year terms in matters concerning the education and certification testing of dental assistants.

Mrs. Kelly is an expanded function dental assistant which means she can do more than a regular assistant in helping the dentist. For example, she can fill teeth after an operative dentist does the drilling which saves him a lot of time. She obtained this position by constantly continuing her education even though it wasn't required.

The Phenix City native has been a dental assistant since 1954 and employed at Benning's Dental Activity (DENTAC) since 1964. She credits DENTAC with making her educational and vocational advancement possible.

Mrs. Kelly is a strong advocate of education for dental assistants. She feels that chairside assistants should want to know why they do a procedure as well as how to do it. In fact, her personnel feelings parallel the objectives of the American Dental Assistants Association.

They are: to SHARE in the responsibility for quality dental health care delivery to all; to ADVANCE the practice of dental assistant toward the highest standards of performance attainable by supporting and encouraging formal education and in PROVIDING quality continuing education; to ENDORSE a recognized national and or state credential for the dental assisting profession; and to COMMUNICATE effectiely with all members of health related professions.

As a dental assistant (Expanded Function), Edna Kelly is allowed to fill a patient's tooth after the dentist completes the drilling.

How about that?

Be considerate of others

By William W. Erbach Sr.
TIC Chaplain

I heard this story told once and it made me very pensive about other people's troubles. It had to do with a boys' college in the East. There was a dining hall in this small college to which everyone went three times a day to eat. The tables were served by a fairly mature woman whom I'll call Mary.

Mary was very popular; her smile and her happy nature added much to the atmosphere of the dining hall. All the boys loved and respected her. There was always a warm repartee going on during the meals.

One morning during the usual rush there was a crash. Mary had dropped a whole platter of dishes with an unearthly bang. At this, loud guffaws, a chorus of wisecracks, and plenty of laughter focused on Mary. This was their opportunity to kid Mary and they did not miff it.

When Mary picked up the wreckage and wiped the floor, and allowed the boys to expend all their ammunition, she simply said to them, "Boys, I guess I've just got tears at my fingertips, for my boy was killed in Italy yesterday and I just got word. I think I've just got tears in my fingertips!" How about that?

A silence fell over the room and a lot of boys had embarrassed looks on their faces. That simple statement struck them like a ton of bricks and they were all apologies and penitence. But it taught them a lesson. It taught them that often when people stumble and fall, when they don't seem to be able to co-ordinate enough to do their work, when their eyes are out of focus, their fingers clumsy, their physical responses sluggish, be very careful with your clowning and ridicule. It may very well be that for some reason unbeknown to you they may have tears at their fingertips. Helping is called for, not hooting.

Breakfast program starts at Wilson School

Residents of the Lavoie Manor area will be the first to benefit from a pilot breakfast program which will be introduced at Wilson School beginning on Jan. 9.

A team from the School Food and Nutrition Division of the Georgia State Department of Education recently completed an in-depth evaluation of the school lunchroom program in the dependent schools. The review was generally most complimentary; however, this team strongly urged the introduction of a breakfast program in those schools where it was feasible.

The superintendent and staff of the dependent schools have selected the Wilson School in which to introduce the program, as the Lavoie Manor children who attend Wilson walk to school. This will allow the sponsors of these children to take advantage of the program without having to revise transportation schedules.

The school breakfast program is operated much along the same lines as the lunch program, with families meeting eligibility requirements for free or reduced priced lunches also being entitled to free or reduced priced breakfasts. Sponsors in the Lavoie Manor area will be receiving additional information from the school concerning the program; such as the price of regular breakfasts, times breakfast will be served and menus.

The success of the program in the Wilson School will be monitored and the program extended into other schools when possible.

Some toys pose danger

A child's life is exposed to unintended hazards. Parents sometimes unthinkingly present additional opportunities for children to be injured. These tips are intended to help you make your child's life safer.

- Care should be exercised in selecting toys for children. They should be appropriate to the age of the child for whom intended. Some are unsuitable for young children, such as dolls made from highly flammable plastic materials, sets containing electrical motors operating from 110 volt "house current," those which cannot be readily and completely cleaned, furniture and other painted items on which lead or other toxic paints are used, those having sharp points or edges, and those toys containing pressurized or explosive materials.

- Boys and girls who receive gift bicycles and sleds are seldom skilled in their use. Before permitting unsupervised use of these toys, be sure your children can handle them with skill, and know and observe regulations and precautions for each.

- Electrically heated toys, such as toy electric stoves, wood burning tools and plastic molding toys, get just as hot as many electric stove burners. Parents should supervise closely the use of all such toys.

- Small children taste many things which attract them. Poinsettia leaves and berries, mistletoe leaves and berries, and holly berries are poisonous to small children when eaten. These plants should be kept out of the reach of small children.

- Jequirity beans — small black, or red and black, hard shelled beans — are extremely poisonous if chewed or swallowed. Sometimes jequirity beans are used as eyes in dolls and other toys, necklace beads, clothing ornaments and other decorations. Whenever jequirity beans are found, they should be discarded to avoid accidental poisoning. Your local health department can identify jequirity beans for you.

- Synthetic fiber and lightweight cotton clothing is often highly flammable. It is wise to buy clothing which is treated with fire retarding chemicals. Sometimes laundering or dry cleaning removes the fire retarding chemicals; so follow directions when laundering or dry cleaning. Look on the label for information about the fire retarding chemicals in the clothing you buy.

ITB cook - soldier of the quarter

It was a proud day for Sp4 Constance Landes as Col. H. C. Van Meter presented her with the Soldier of the Quarter Award. The trophy was presented in the presence of the staff and cadre of the 1st Battalion, 1st Infantry Training Brigade in the mess hall on Nov. 28.

Landes was pleased with her award and said, "It feels good (to win) because people think all a cook can do is cook, but they don't think a cook can be a soldier. We're soldiers too, all it takes is dedication."

She also won Chef of the Quarter in 1978 and was an honor graduate of the Primary Leadership Course. Landes is from Montrose, Pa.

First Battalion mess sergeant, SFC John Howard, commented, "She's one of the better cooks in the Army and one of the better people."

Sp5 Irma Scheurer was named the Medical Department Activity Soldier of the Year in an annual banquet held recently at the Top 5 Club at Fort Benning.

"I think being named Soldier of the Year is fantastic," she said the night of the banquet as her husband stood by proudly. She attributes her being selected through hard work and an excellent working relationship with her NCO in charge.

Scheurer is a clinical specialist working in the pediatrics section of Martin Army Hospital. "I love working with the kids. It's really rewarding when we help the kids get better."

Success is no stranger to Scheurer, having been named Soldier of the Year in 1977 while working in Germany for the U.S. Army Medical Command. The dedicated soldier has received three Army Commendation Medals, two while in Germany and one while at Fort Benning.

At the banquet, she received the Reginald Bayona Soldier of the Year plaque and a $100 bill.

CSM James W. Hardin, the guest speaker, stressed the idea of the total community of the Army. He also spoke on the social side of the job stretching beyond the 9-5 job.

Operation Identification in full swing for holidays

Operation Identification, being conducted by post military police, is in full swing to help Benning personnel discourage the theft of their personnel property.

The crime prevention display at the Main Mall will continue to mark any item valued at $25 or more for any person with a valid military ID card during normal PX hours until Dec. 24. The MPs use an engraving pen to mark an item (usually with the last four numbers of a person's social security number) so that, if stolen, it can be identified. This service is free of charge.

In order to benefit the greatest number of persons possible, the Crime Prevention Section of the military police has a team going from door to door in many post housing areas. "We will mark anything that the people want marked but we are primarily hoping to mark bicycles," said SSgt. Ronald Hiles, MP team NCOIC. "Bicycles are the most common item reported stolen in the housing areas."

"Marking my property really worked for me," explained retired Navy Chief Buford O. Bennett. "More than half of the houses in my neighborhood were hit (robbed) during the last year. However, I had my valuables marked and had placed warning stickers on my windows and doors and my house was never touched," he explained.

Anyone interested in placing such stickers on their windows and doors may obtain them at the MP station on Main Post, according to Hiles. After Jan. 1, 1980, persons wishing to mark their valuables may sign out an engraving pen from the MP desk at the MP station (Bldg. 215) by persons with a valid military ID card, Hiles said.

Troy Archuleta (center) looks on as PFC James Smith (L) and Sp4 Bruce St. Sauver (R) use an engraving pen to mark his bicycle.

QRIP gives bucks to military, civilian workers

Would you like to spend between $1,000 and $100,000 of the Army's money and get paid for it?

There is a way! The Army's Quick Return

Toys for Tots in final day

By TIM BOIVIN

The Toys for Tots Program is in its final day today for collecting toys.

The only toys being accepted today by the Army Community Service (ACS) are toys that are immediately usable and do not need repairs.

ACS Headquarters is located at Bldg. 83 but donations can be made at the various Community Life Centers on Fort Benning.

The Fort Benning Toys for Tots Program is open to families of active and retired soldiers living in the community. Names of families in need of toys are usually given by interested third parties but families who identify themselves as being in need of toys will also be considered.

Recipients of the toys who live in McGraw Manor, Lavoy Manor, Custer Terrace, Bouton Heights and Davis Hill may pick up their toys at their respective Community Life Centers on Dec. 21 from 8 a.m. until 4 p.m.

Recipients of the toys who live in other areas and off post may pick up their toys at ACS Headquarters, Bldg. 83, on Dec. 21 from 9 a.m. until 4 p.m.

Unit commanding officers are reminded that Santa Claus suits are available from ACS by coming to Bldg. 83 and signing a hand receipt.

For any information on the Toys for Tots Program or the Santa Claus suits, contact ACS at 545-1169/4679.

Giggles recalled

WASHINGTON (ARNEWS) — A toy "Giggle Stick" has been voluntarily withdrawn from sale in PX outlets, according to an AAFES announcement.

AAFES and the toy's manufacturer are asking customers to participate in the recall of the "Giggle Stick."

The hazardous item is a hollow, yellow plastic tube which makes noises when shaken. The company has found that the red endcaps of the toy can be removed, allowing reeds to fall out. The reeds can cause choking if swallowed by small children.

Customers are advised not to let children play with the toy and to return it to an AAFES store for a full refund, explained an AAFES official.

A redesigned "Giggle Stick" will soon be available, according to the announcement. Customers should look for the words "New, Improved" on the package.

on Investment Program (QRIP) and Suggestion Program combine to give all military and civilian employees this opportunity.

The gist of the program is as follows. First, you need an idea. It must save the government money and it can be done by purchasing off-the-shelf commercial equipment that will pay back its cost within two years.

You then submit your idea to the Directorate of Resources Management for consideration. Detailed data is not required on the initial submission and if your idea is considered feasible, they will help you work out all the details and savings figures.

Additional information may be obtained from Ed Smith, 545-3554.

AR 670-1 provides uniform information to soldiers

By GARY JONES

The proper wear of the uniform is the most basic thing any soldier must learn during his/her military career.

Just what is proper is often confused by the many changes presently being put in effect. Army regulation 670-1 is the authority or reference point for information on how to properly wear the military uniform.

An item causing some confusion is the new Army Green Shade 415 Shirt that has recently become available for purchase in the PX system on a limited basis. This shirt when worn with the Army Green Trousers will replace the Khaki uniform (which will be authorized for wear until Sept. 30, 1980) and eventually will replace the Army Tan Shade 445 uniform which will be authorized for wear until Sept. 30, 1985. The Army Green Shade 415 Shirt officially has replaced the Army Tan Shade 446 Shirt, which will continue to be authorized for wear until Sept. 30, 1985.

Comfort important

According to officials, the new shirt was designed to allow soldiers maximum comfort, versatility and simplicity. To obtain these characteristics, the shirt is made of very lightweight and loosely woven material. According to textile technologists, the shirt fabric is too light and too loosely woven to adequately support decorations, awards, badges and other accessories without ultimately damaging the shirt beyond repair.

The only other items authorized for wear on the new shirt is the insignia of rank and nameplate. However, chaplains will wear their branch insignia (cross or tablet) over their left breast pocket, and military police will wear the MP badge attached to a leather fob which will be fastened to the left breast pocket button.

New raincoat worn

Another item being replaced is the Army Green Raincoat. The new Army Black Raincoat with liner will replace both the Army Green Raincoat and the Army Green Overcoat. At present the Army Black Raincoat with liner is an optional item that may be purchased through the PX system. The Black Raincoat with liner won't become a part of the mandatory items commanders may order troops to wear for formation until becoming a part of the soldier's basic clothing bag issue some time in the future.

Other items being phased out are the Women's Army Green Cord Garrison Cap (which will be authorized for wear until Sept. 30, 1980), and the Army Green Cord uniform (which will be authorized for wear until Sept. 30, 1980) that is being replaced by the Army Green (AG-388) Shirt and Jacket uniforms.

Many items that have been a part of the soldier's uniform inventory for many years also sometimes cause confusion as to their proper wear. One such item is the Coat, Cold Weather, more commonly known to soldiers as the Field Jacket. The Field Jacket is often worn with the wrong uniform and even worn with their civilian attire by some soldiers. However, the Cold Weather Coat is only authorized for wear with the Cold Weather, Hot Weather, Utility, Hospital Duty and Food Service uniforms.

Confusion results

A lot of confusion has resulted since the policy governing seasonal wear of the uniform was changed to allow soldiers to choose which uniform they want to wear, depending upon the weather. Previously there were set dates for soldiers to change seasonal uniforms Army wide.

Now, for example, soldiers wearing the Utility uniform may wear the sleeves on the shirt either up or down depending on personal preference. However, commanders may still dictate whether sleeves will be up or down for a formation.

In some instances, similar civilian items may be substituted for military issue items. One example is the handbag carried by female soldiers. Civilian design black dress handbags may be carried by female soldiers when in uniform provided they are of approved specification or pattern. In other words, if at a casual glance the handbag appears to be the same as a military issue handbag, then it is acceptable to carry.

This story contains just a fraction of the useful information that can be obtained by reading AR 670-1. Any time a question arises on the proper wear of the soldier's trademark, why guess? Check the reg.

Soldier's allowance upped for clothing

WASHINGTON (ARNEWS) — An increase in clothing allowance rates has been approved by DoD, according to Army finance officials.

The increase is retroactive to Oct. 1. Officials anticipate the new rates will appear in the December end of month pay.

The monthly basic maintenance allowance for male soldiers has increased from $5.10 to $5.70 and from $6.80 to $7.50 for women. Soldiers begin receiving this allowance after their first six months of service.

The monthly standard clothing allowance which soldiers begin receiving after three years service is increasing from $7.20 to $8.10 for men and from $9.90 to $10.80 for women.

Fort Irwin chosen as National Training Center

WASHINGTON (ARNEWS) — Tired of those weeks of three-day exercises where you don't even fire your M-16 or set up your ratt rig? The National Training Center (NTC) at Fort Irwin, Calif., will change that.

In August, the Army announced its selection of Fort Irwin as the site for the NTC. According to DA officials, Fort Irwin is being used by some combat battalions now and should be up to maximum training use by 1985. Fort Irwin is now run by the California Army National Guard (CANG).

Maj. Dave Barth, NTC project officer at U.S. Army Forces Command (FORSCOM) Headquarters, Fort McPherson, Ga., explained that the idea for a national training center first surfaced in 1976. "It was decided that the Army needed an area where battalion engagement simulation and live fire exercises could be conducted in a realistic combat situation within CONUS," he stated. "Fort Irwin offers the area and facilities to support that kind of training."

When fully operational, every FORSCOM mechanized armor battalion with its supporting units will rotate through the NTC for two weeks of intensive training every 18 months, according to a DA official. Units will deploy and redeploy under realistic mobilization conditions. While at the NTC, units will be in the field 100 percent of the time under simulated combat conditions, the official added.

Barth commented that training at Fort Irwin NTC will focus on battalion exercises against an opposing force (OPFOR) and battalion live fire exercises using computer-controlled targets.

Realistic combat

"We will focus on pitting one Army heavy combat battalion against an appropriate sized unit during the engagement simulation play," Barth said. "The exercise will be monitored and recorded by an operations group using the central computer. Full electronic warfare jamming and other realistic combat tactics will be used against the Army battalion. We want the training to be as intensive and realistic as possible.

"Everything that happens will be stored in the computer to provide quick feedback for the unit on how it fared during the exercises," he continued. "We'll also be able to provide the unit with a record copy of the entire exercise, to include audio-visual tapes, so they may use it to evaluate and improve their training programs."

Units scheduled for training at the NTC will be notified by FORSCOM in the future. Barth explained that NTC personnel will make coordination visits to units at their home stations to discuss arrangements for NTC training.

When units arrive at Fort Irwin, they will draw equipment, participate in tactical engagement simulation exercises, live fire tactical exercises, and turn in the equipment.

Presently, the U.S. Army Intelligence Command and School (USAICS) is developing the organization and manning plan for the OPFOR. According to Barth, OPFOR equipment will include M551 Sheridan reconnaissance vehicles made-up to look like potential adversary vehicles and will arrive at the NTC between March 1980 and July 1981. This will be done under the direction of the U.S. Army Training and Doctrine Command (TRADOC).

An NTC test is scheduled for January through March 1980 to test the training procedures to be used at Fort Irwin, stated Barth. A large scale exercise, Gallant Eagle 80, which will involve some 18,000 personnel, is scheduled for Fort Irwin in early 1980.

Modern facilities

Soldiers permanently stationed at the NTC can expect Fort Irwin to compare favorably with most CONUS posts in the facilities and services offered such as the PX, theater, snack bar, cleaners, gas station and commissary, officials say.

Lt. Col. Julian Amador, operations officer for the CANG at the Fort Irwin training site, remarked that Fort Irwin has 19 barracks which can hold over 4,500 people. All the barracks have air conditioning and heating. In addition, he added there are 262 BOQ/BEQ room spaces available, 18 company size (200 capacity) dining facilities and one consolidated (1,000) dining hall.

The most important feature of Fort Irwin is the wide range of training possibilities it provides. The post's exercise areas can handle one total force combat brigade for free-play ground and air exercises at any one given time, commented Amador.

The air space over Fort Irwin is controlled by the post, so aircraft exercises can be conducted at any time during the day or night. There are also small arms ranges, tank fire ranges and ranges where air-to-air and air-to-ground aircraft exercises can be conducted.

Fort Irwin is located in the upper Mojave Desert area, midway between Los Angeles and Las Vegas. The post, an area almost the size of the state of Rhode Island, has been under the control of the CANG since 1972.

According to Barth, Fort Irwin will become a FORSCOM post in July 1981. It will be manned by over 2,700 military personnel and almost 500 DA civilians as "it develops into one of the Army's highest training initiatives," explained one DA official.

VA alerts spouses

The Veterans Administration is making a special effort to acquaint a quarter of a million surviving spouses of veterans as to their possible eligibility for an additional monthly benefit payment just authorized by Congress.

VA Regional Office Director V. Ralph White said the new added payment of $45 a month will go to Georgia widows or widowers now on VA Dependency and Indemnity Compensation rolls who are so disabled as to be confined to their homes or immediate premises, yet not so ill as to require nursing home care or the aid and attendance of another person.

White said VA's problem is that, although the agency knows the identity of those receiving DIC and aid and attendance payments, it has no way of knowing how many of the DIC recipients are sufficiently disabled to be eligible for the new benefit.

"Prior to passage of this new benefit, these individuals were not covered by a confining disability that did not require nursing home care or aid and attendance, so they have never applied," he said.

To alert potential beneficiaries, White said his agency has enclosed a notice of the new benefits category with its November DIC checks.

IFV

3-month operational test on new fighting vehicle yields positive results

By CLIFF PURCELL

Available Infantry Fighting Vehicle test data lends credibility to key production questions such as, is the IFV/CFV supportable, trainable, maintainable, and fightable? Today, the answer to all those questions is yes, according to an IFV information sheet.

The first three months of FY 80 marked the most active time period yet in the history of the IFV/CFV program, with the simultaneous conduct of operational and developmental testing as well as detailed preparation for the Army System Acquisition Review Counsel (ASARC) and Defense System Acquisition Review Counsel (DSARC).

The IFV Operational Test (OT II) began on Oct. 15 and ended Nov. 26 with initial positive test results. Vehicle reliability exceeded the materiel need requirement throughout the OT; organizational mechanics demonstrated that they could maintain the IFV in the field; and perhaps of greatest interest to the infantry community, the infantry soldier demonstrated that he could be trained in a reasonable period of time to proficiently operate the turret and its associated weapon systems. A detailed analysis of all OT II data is currently being conducted by the Operational Testing Agency with final results anticipated prior to ASARC.

Developmental Test (DT) results to date are also positive, with DT vehicles also exceeding the materiel need reliability requirement in every respect. DT is scheduled for competition in June 1980.

Associated topics of interest coincidental with the anticipated fielding of the IFV/CFV are as follows:

- Separate MOS: The U.S. Army Infantry School initiated action in November requesting a separate MOS (11M) for IFVV infantrymen through Skill Level 4. The skills required to operate the IFV are such that sustained proficiency of IFV specific infantrymen is essential.

- New Equipment Training (NET): The IFV/CFV NET Plan is currently being drafted and will be available for staffing in the second quarter of FY 80. The NET concept calls for training both individual and collective skills over an eight-week period through platoon level proficiency.

- Gunnery/Ranges: As a result of analyzing OT II gunnery training, USAIS is developing a five-table IFV/CFV gunnery program consisting of one stationary sub-caliber table, one stationary main gun table, two squad combat evaluation exercises (one mounted, and one with dismounted sequences), and a platoon battle run. The details of those ranges are being coordinated with U.S. Army Europe and Forces Command by Directorate of Training Development, USAIS, and TRADOC Systems Manager, Fighting Vehicle Systems.

- USAIS IFV Task Force: A USAIS IFV Task Force was formed in October to coordinate all actions associated with training IFV Infantrymen at USAIS in consonance with the IFV fielding plan. Responsibilities include, but are not limited to, development of program of instruction, gunnery program, and special tests.

M240 machine gun designed for IFV

WASHINGTON (ARMS) — "The results have been superb. The M240 is a superior machine gun, its assignment to U.S. units has been a true contribution to combat effectiveness, and its availability is greatly appreciated by the rank and file soldiers of our units."

The USAREUR Commander-in-Chief Gen. Frederick J. Kroesen had those words to say about the new armored vehicle machine gun adopted for the Army's present and future tanks and other armored vehicles.

The M240, or Belgian MAG 58, has been issued for all M60A1 and M60A3 tank battalions in USAREUR and these units have all completed at least one tank gunnery period with the new machine gun.

The M240 will also be mounted on the new IFV, Infantry Fighting Vehicle which will be at Fort Benning in late 1982, according to Maj. Ted Sevren, office of TRADOC Systems Manager.

The M219 had been the standard armor machine gun since 1959, but its service record has not been good, according to Army officials. The Israelis, for example, had problems with M219 reliability during the 1973 Mideast War.

As a result, the Army began seeking a replacement, an official said. The Belgian MAG 58 (now known as M240) was the selected alternative. The M240 is a highly reliable weapon and, on the average, it fires 13.6 times as many rounds between failures as the M219.

Records clerk necessary job

By DAVE BRISTOW

Your Military Personnel Record (201 file) is very important. Inside are documents concerning everything a soldier has accomplished since he or she first entered the service.

Sp5 Arthur L Perrin, a native of Alabama and member of the 524th Personnel Service Company, is one of the enlisted records clerks tasked with the responsibility of ensuring 201 files are kept accurate and current.

Many times the job of records clerk seems never ending and repetitious. However, the posting of new documents and doing away with the outdated ones is a job every records clerk must face daily.

"I've worked here with the records section for about a year-and-a-half now. There are always lots of new documents for me to post and entries to be made. Sometimes this can be new promotion orders for a soldier, MOS orders, a letter of achievement, or verification of additional schooling."

Perrin added, "I handle the records for the 67th Maintenance Battalion and also some of the 34th Medical Battalion. I may find myself having to pull as many as 40 or 50 records a day to keep up with the incoming distribution. I would encourage all soldiers to check their records every chance they can. Many times soldiers have important documents that need to get posted in their records."

When not working at the office, Perrin likes athletics. This year he made the Doughboy football team as a wide receiver. "I wish I could have seen a little more action as a Doughboy, but we ended up with a pretty good season, 6-4-1."

"I enjoy the administrative job I've been given. It's not an easy job with so many people coming in but we realize the importance of the 201. Just give us time and have patience when you come to review your records and we will always do our best," he concluded.

Doughgirls couldn't stop Flyers

By TIM BOIVIN

The Doughgirls' basketball team ran up against the Fort Rucker Flyers in a battle of the unbeaten last weekend and by the time the dust cleared, neither team was without a loss.

In Friday night's game, the Doughgirls could not stop the hot shooting of the Flyers' guard, Donna Townsend, in their 55-50 loss. Townsend hit from practically every spot within 25 feet in racking up 25 points for the night.

The Doughgirls were led by Earlie Rockette with 20 points and Phyllis Colbert with 14. However, those two carried the brunt of the scoring as no other Doughgirl scored more than four points.

Doughgirls' coach Hezzie Baines said, "After Friday's game, I told my guards (Jeanette Dent and Geneva Walker) to play Townsend right up to her face the full length of the court Saturday."

Coach Baines' strategy was perfect as the Doughgirls' defensive full court pressure seemed to shake Townsend Saturday. Townsend ended up with only five points and continuously had a hand in her face as she shot. Many of her shots were way off.

Marietta James led the Doughgirls with 12 points and Phyllis Colbert had 11. Coach Baines said "James and Peggy Penick did a great job of filling in at center in place of Cheryl Kaufman, who was not released by her company commander in time to make the trip. We have to have full cooperation from the company commanders if the post wants to have a competitive basketball team."

The Doughgirls are now 6-1 while Fort Rucker is 9-1.

Doughboys lose two, fall to .500

By TIM BOIVIN

The Doughboys lost two basketball games over the weekend to Fort Rucker's Flyers.

The Doughboys were overcome by a combination of hot shooting from the Flyers' guard, George Clash, some questionable officiating and their own ineptness at the free throw line.

In Friday night's game, the Doughboys lost 95-91. The Doughboys fell behind late in the fourth quarter by as much as 12 points after staying close through the first three quarters.

The Doughboys pulled to within two points, 93-91, on a basket by Melvin Hudson with 15 seconds left. However, Anthony Chatmon had to deliberately foul the Flyers' Clash and he converted both free throws.

Clash led the Flyers with 23 points and consistently hit a shot he should have patented from the top of the free throw line.

The Doughboys had four players in double figures. Luke Fencher led them with 18 points, Fred Nelson had 16, Jerry Berry threw in 14 (mostly from the corner) and Tony Haycliff dropped in 13.

The Doughboys were at a slight disadvantage as the clock referees were screened from play throughout the game by the team's benches, which were situated in front of them. Before the half and again at the end of the game the Doughboys lost approximately 15 seconds because the clock continued to run.

In Saturday's game, the Flyers' Clash put on an awesome offensive shooting display to take the yeast out of the Doughboys' recipe, 108-101. Clash hit from the top of the circle throughout the game to tally 29 points.

The Doughboys placed five players in double digits, led by Nate Harris' 26 points. Harris scored many of his points by twisting, turning and shooting off balance while driving on taller opponents. Tony Haycliff added 20 points, Nelson had 18, Varnedoe dropped in 15 and Jerry Berry contributed 14.

The Doughboys' next games will be played in the eight-team Fort Rucker tournament next weekend. Coach Tony Resino feels the Doughboys should do well even though they only have a .500 mark of five and five. He said, "We have our big guy, James King, and a 6'8" center, Eric Schlossberg, who played four years at West Point, joining us."

New Tae Kwon Do class beginning

Tae Kwon Do (Korean karate) lessons are available at Fort Benning. Phillip J. Wargo, a 4th degree black belt holder, conducts a school for post personnel.

His twice weekly classes are for everyone, six to 60, whether they are officers, enlisted, dependents or civilian employees. The club meets in the Officers Wives Club lounge on Tuesdays and Saturdays. Registration for new classes beginning Feb. 9 are now being accepted. A person may register either before or after regularly scheduled classes. The present schedule divides classes into three categories: Beginners — Tues., 6:15-7 p.m. and Saturday, 9:30-10:30; Regular classes — Tues., 7-8:45 p.m. and Saturday, 10:30-noon, and Children—Sat. 9-10 a.m.

The club has been in operation for one year and recently, three members of the club placed first, second and third in the green belt form division at the 79 Southern Tae Kwon Do/ Karate Championships held in Cullman, Ala. on Nov. 17.

In addition to regular classes, a rape seminar is given to all females who register as students during the course. This seminar is followed up by practical works in the various self-defense techniques taught as it pertains to a street situation.

More information about the club may be obtained by calling 545-2577 or 687-7629 after duty hours.

Doughboy season in review

Story and photos
by DEB HILGEMAN

Someday Fort Benning may be known as the place where Army tackle football (post-level) was reborn. The Fort Benning Doughboys have hosted over 50,000 fans in Doughboy Stadium over the past four years and set a standard followed by Forts Ord, Bragg and McClellan. 'The Home of the Infantry' was close behind Redstone Arsenal in 1976 in reactivating post varsity football programs that had been dormant for more than a decade following the Vietnam era.

Tough college schedules

The Doughboys earned their popularity with consistently tough college schedules. In the last two years, the Doughboys played 12 varsity-level college teams, including three conference champions.

The 1979 team played Auburn University's junior varsity and outlasted them 20-19. The Doughboys even took on the number one football program in the nation this year, the University of Alabama J.V.s, and held them to a standstill (10-7 Alabama's favor in the third quarter) through most of the game. It took some of Bear Bryant's first stringers to join the ranks of the junior varsity before the Doughboys, injured and exhausted, finally conceded. Alabama went on a scoring spree and the game ended 34-7. And in four years of playing semi-pro and other Army teams, Fort Benning is undefeated.

From the initial four-game season in 1976, the Doughboy schedule expanded to 13 games last year and of the 11 teams on this year's schedule, only two were against other Army posts (Bragg and McClellan).

1979 Doughboy Head Coach Ralph Santaliz predicted at the start of the season that his team would finish with at least a .500 record and the Doughboys delivered 6-4-1. That bested their 4-9 record of the previous year but many Doughboy followers felt this year's team played better ball than the record indicates. The Doughboys' season opener against the Carson-Newman College Eagles ended in a 27-all tie as the result of an Eagles' conversion play in the final seconds of the game. That game could have gone either way but mental mistakes prevented a Doughboy victory.

Even when the Doughboys lost, however, it was never without a struggle. In an early season game against the Georgia Tech J.V.s, the Doughboys played in a driving rainstorm that caused the stadium lights to black out with three minutes remaining in the final quarter. The game was called with the Doughboys trailing 10-7. Had nature cooperated, the Doughboys, who were holding Tech deep in their own territory, might have been able to pull out a victory.

The biggest heartbreaker

The biggest heartbreaker for the Doughboys this season, however, was the game against the University of Central Florida played in the Tangerine Bowl in Orlando, Fla. in a win tagged "controversial" by Orlando newspapers. The Doughboys were edged 7-6 after a 44-yard winning field goal was nullified on a call of illegal procedure (not enough men to hold the line) in the final minutes of play. What sparked the controversy was that the flag was not thrown until after the ball had sailed through the goal posts.

While the Doughboy defense has traditionally been the main stay of the team, this year's offensive line featured the caliber of athlete that has been sorely lacking. Quarterback Leamon Hall, former West Point All American, was invaluable this season paired with former teammate Greg King. The duo scored again and again with a special play, known as the 'reverse draw.' And when running back King was injured later in the season, Leroy Benson, who replaced him, developed into a remarkable talent.

Nucleus of talent

A good football team is usually developed with time from a nucleus of talented players and that nucleus for the Doughboys is still in their defense. Doughboy veterans Ronnie Carter, Kenny Burkes, Al Gardiner and Ron Hilliard slice through offensive lines like a hot knife through butter. Defensive Coordinator Dave Bankston voiced the pride of these players saying, "The key to Benning's football program has always been the defense and we're proud of it."

Military turbulence is an inherent disadvantage for Army teams, both players and coaches. "Continuity of the coaching staff is vital in any successful football program," Santaliz explained. "A turnover in coaching staff results in changes of coaching philosophy, techniques and methods. Guys who played last year learned to do things a certain way and had to adjust to the changes." When the season ended, the Doughboys had lost five of their original coaches and foresee losing all but two for next year's program.

Duty plus practice

One unique aspect of the Army football player is that he not only puts in two to three hours a night at practice but is also required to give a full day performing military duty. Since military duty overrides the football program, it often results in inconsistency at practice. "This was very evident in several games this year when the Doughboys could have easily won if only we had the opportunity to practice as a full team. That would have eliminated the mental mistakes that occur when teams don't play as a unit but as individuals," Santaliz said.

While Army teams occasionally get a known athlete such as Hall, most of the Doughboy athletes were high school players who are fulfilling their dream of playing college level football. This is a far different situation than was faced by Army teams in the 'old days.' When the draft was in high gear during the late 50s and early 60s, so were post football teams. Posts often had the athletic

Heavy rain dampens TRADOC Marathon

By PAT BARHAM

Splish-splash squish went the tennis shoes of the TRADOC runners last Thursday as the annual TRADOC Marathon got off to a watery start.

Members from 11 posts participated in this year's TRADOC marathon hosted by Fort Benning. Fort Sill, Okla. placed first with a total of 28 overall team points with Fort Benning placing second, four points behind Sill, with a 32 point overall team score.

In the individual winners bracket, Fort Belvoir's Bialon took first place in the 26.1 mile open with 2:53:05 and second place went to Fort Leonard Wood's Chilo with 2:54:50.

In the Senior Division, Santa from Fort Benning came in first with a 3:25:47 while Fort Sill placed second with a 35:20:09 time. In the 13.1 Open Division, Fechter from Fort Dix took first place with a 1:12:33 while Perez of Fort Gordon came in second, 1:15:17. The Seniors bracket found Baker from Fort Benjamin Harrison taking first place 1:18:53 and Moore from Fort Gordon placing second with 1:22:18.

performed well: first place went to Benning's Kathy Carlson, 42:45, with Jones of Fort McClellan coming in second with a time of 44:01.

Lt. Tony Knight, coach of the Benning team, said "The team fared well considering they only met for practice once before the race." Knight added Carlson joined the team after he received a tip on her running ability, though she had never run in competition.

In the future, Knight plans to have more time in preparation for the annual run and hopes Benning will place first in next year's marathon.

Kendrick JROTC rifle team wins American Legion match

The American Legion, Charles S. Harrison Post 35 JROTC Rifle Match conducted Dec. 1 at Fort Benning's Parks International Rifle Range, was won by the Kendrick High School JROTC Varsity Rifle Team, coached by Billy Frost, with a score of 2474 X 3000. The Baker JROTC Varsity Team won the second place trophy with a score of 2434 and Spencer High School placed third with a score of 2374.

Cadet William Haracourt of Spencer High School won the American Legion first place gold medal as the top individual firer with a score of 536 X 600, Cadet Walter Scott of Baker won the silver second place medal with a score of 527, and Cadet Danny Wigger of Spencer won the bronze third place medal with a score of 525.

Bowl game slated

Among the thousands of spectators expected to witness the annual Sun Bowl college football game, is General of the Army Omar Bradley.

The nation's highest ranking officer is to be honored during half time of this nationally televised game.

The military tribute is part of a national day of recognition emphasizing the need and value of service to the country.

The Sun Bowl will be played in El Paso Texas on Dec. 22.

This year's clash will pit Penn State University against Tulane.

Blazers win championship

The Fort Benning Blazers' unique style of play paid off as they captured the under 10 Columbus City Soccer Championship by defeating Brookstone I, 3-1, on Nov. 29.

The Blazers, who compiled a 4-0-2 regular season record and won four tournament matches, rotated the offense and defense at each quarter so that each player learned at least two positions and had the chance to score.

Against Brookstone, the Blazer White team combined teamwork and good passing to set up scores for Dan Bradshaw, Don Johnson and Jim Allen. However, it was the outstanding defensive effort by the Red team that turned back the Brookstone offense at crucial times and started the successful Blazer attacks. Goalie Keith Williams played his usual superb game and stopped several strong shots by the aggressive Brookstone offense.

The coaches, "Are proud of the Blazers and glad that they won because they listened and worked hard together to play good soccer. The tournament victories especially were team efforts, everyone contributed."

Second Looks

For the few of you in the Fort Benning area who were not there, last Saturday's Faith School run was a runaway success. Virtually everyone of importance attended including such luminaries as Col. J. and ran, in full Santa Claus. No mistake; Ross Franklin and Santa Claus. No mistake; Santa Claus there and did, in fact, run in full Santa Claus garb: red with white trim. Franklin wore track shorts. Both finished respectively.

Columbus' Bruce Skiles won the five-mile race with a blistering 24:46 — that's under five minutes per mile! — and is apparently in top form for his shot at an Olympic game marathon berth. His opportunity will come tomorrow at the Huntsville, Ala. marathon.

Anne Wright of Macon, Ga., won the women's five-miler with an equally impressive 30:59, running away from the rest of the field. She was 36th overall.

Wendell Angel, Army runner and Olympic hurdling hopeful, won the two mile race with a 10:20. (Not bad for a sprinter!) Meanwhile, his female counterpart, Miss Lisa Perella, 16, handily defeated the rest of the women with a 12:52, placing 29th overall.

Though the competition proved keen and the conditions ideal — 45 degrees, clear, no wind — the races were a success for another reason: the turnout. Almost 600 people ran in the two races and well over half of them were teens or younger. The staff at Faith School deserve a hearty round of applause for putting on such a fine event, but deserve much more credit for motivating our youngsters.

Statistically, the race was an unqualified success: it was the largest in Columbus-Fort Benning history. It was also a great deal of fun. I'm looking forward to the next Faith extravaganza. You look for it, too. It'll be here next May.

Huntsville marathon Dec. 15

Since there are no area races except the Dec. 29 Atlanta Marathon between now and the first of the year, I'll unabashedly plug this one. James Cambron will take a group of Fort Benning and Columbus runners up through the wilds of uncharted Alabama for what is reputed to be the best run marathon in the business. Indeed, if their race is anywhere near as thoroughly organized as their prerace instruction and history manual, this race must be among the best.

The fact that Bruce Skiles is using this race in his attempt to meet the tryout standards for the Olympic trials, is also a considerable indorsement. So stay tuned.

Fun run slated

The Christmas Fun Run will be held next Friday, not today as reported in last week's BAYONET. The race will be held in front of Crain Hall at the intersection of Ingersoll Street and Dixie Road. The public is invited to participate in the events.

The pre-race ceremonies will begin at 2 p.m. A two-and-a half mile run begins at 2:15 p.m. and the five-mile runners will begin 15 minutes later. This year a special family fun run will be held for the first time and will begin at 2:45 p.m.

Awards will be given to the first and second places in the first two events. The first and second place families to finish will also receive awards. The awards ceremony will take place after the run.

A special patch will be given to all participants in the run.

cream of the crop to choose from and rosters were decorated with names such as Rosey Grier, who was on Fort Dix's defensive lineup in 1957. Post teams of that period enjoyed a popularity that has only recently been revived to a degree and thousands of soldiers crammed the bleachers and fields to watch their fellow soldiers fight over the pig-skin.

That popularity eventually led to the demise of the game as it existed then. Competition between posts became so keen that football players were often treated as prima donnas and soldiering became almost a secondary MOS. In 1964, then Army Vice Chief of Staff Gen. Creighton Abrams ended the varsity football program and the criticism of this move was drowned out by the reality of change — the 'only game in town' no longer had the top-caliber athletes to choose from that it needed to survive.

Coach Santaliz, who brought his Redstone team to play and lose to Benning in 1976, recalls the changes Army football programs have undergone since their revival: "The trend has changed regarding post teams having a lot of college stars. Now you get guys who played in high school but never had the opportunity to play college-level ball for one reason or another. For instance, some of the Doughboy players could have been playing college football but either they were too small or attended a high school that didn't have enough collegiate exposure."

Playing for the Doughboys has resulted in numerous players being offered athletic scholarships at different institutions. For example, Ron Hilliard, linebacker for this year's team, received a scholarship from Carson-Newman College, whom the Doughboys tied in their opener 27-27. "As soon as the game was over, the Carson-Newman coach, Ron Case, came over and offered Ron a scholarship based on his performance. There are also about a half dozen players on this year's team being considered for scholarships by teams we played this season," Santaliz said.

What the Doughboys have contributed to the game with dedication and sacrifice, the Fort Benning command has contributed with support for the program. The 10,000-seat Doughboy Stadium was recently renovated with new turf, Olympic all weather track, lighting system and seats. Despite these expenditures, the Doughboy program pays for itself.

To predict the future of Army football teams, however, would be mere crystal ball gazing. Many commanders are reluctant to organize a program that they feel would detract from a soldier's readiness. At this season's awards ceremony, post Morale Support Activities commander, Lt. Col. Richard Crotty, emphasized, "It is the time to talk up Doughboy football and convince the disbelievers that it is living and growing." For now, at least, the Doughboys are definitely alive and well and gaining favorable exposure and publicity for the entire Army.

Post "Genie" gets soldiers home for Christmas

By DEBBIE HARRISON

The Christmas Exodus Program at Fort Benning will never be the same again, thanks to the Scheduled Airline Ticket Office's (SATO) $90,000 computer, called "Genie," which decreases the time a soldier has to wait for a reservation or buying an airline ticket.

The Christmas Exodus Program has been set up to aid soldiers of the 1st Infantry Training Brigade and anyone else interested with travel plans.

"In the past, the Christmas Exodus Program had to be conducted at the Sand Hill Finance Center (pay site). Soldiers had to wait for SATO personnel to thumb through scheduled flight catalogs and call the airlines to confirm available seating on a flight," said Mildred Willis, post SATO ticket agent.

With the new computer, it is less time consuming. "All a soldier has to do is make a reservation and, with a touch of a few buttons, his/her ticket is ready in half the time," Willis noted.

Fire greatest home hazard

"FAMILY OF 5 DIE IN HOME FIRE — Short Circuit in Christmas Tree Lights Blamed."

Every year we see headlines like this in newspapers during the Christmas season. We often remember the hazards common to the season only after reading these headlines.

Fire is a great destroyer of life and possessions. Here are some tips to help you avoid a fire in your home.

- Fresh Christmas trees do not catch fire as easily as do dry ones. Christmas trees will not dry out as readily if the cut end is kept in a container of water. Christmas trees should not be placed near heating units or fireplaces. Lighted candles, matches and other "open" flames should be kept away from Christmas trees. Indoor Christmas tree lights should be turned off before going to bed or leaving the house unattended, even for short periods of time.

- Before using, inspect Christmas lights carefully for short circuits, broken insulation and exposed wires. Avoid "overloading" circuits when "hooking up" your Christmas lights. Do not use metal foil under "burned out" light bulbs hooked in "series" to keep others burning.

- Christmas tree lights should be approved by Underwriters' Laboratories for the use intended. Outdoor lights should not be used inside; nor should inside lights be used outdoors.

- Tissue gift wrapping papers catch fire readily. Gift wrapping paper and wrapped parcels should be kept away from "open flames." Used gift wrappings and other paper materials should be discarded as soon as possible. Accumulated waste paper invites a fire in your home.

Before the 1st Infantry Training Brigade got prepared for Christmas Exodus, Jerry Newman, post transportation coordinator, had the soldiers fill out forms telling where they were going. Using this information, Newman organized transportation arrangements.

Earlier this week, 18,000 troops completed their last step of preparation for Christmas Exodus at SATO's new office at Harmony Church, Bldg. 3001, the old Patton headquarters building. Next week, soldiers involved with the program will be bused from the Sand Hill Theatre parking lot to Atlanta's Hartsfield International Airport between 1 a.m. on Dec. 19 until noon Dec. 21.

Willis added, "There are still more flights available but customers will have to be flexible."

'Why the Viet Cong Fought'Fort Benning soldier writes war book

By Cliff Purcell

One of the more unpleasant shocks for the American forces fighting in the Vietnam War was the incredible tenacity of the enemy. The Viet Cong's (VC) ability to endure the most concentrated firepower in history amazed soldiers and observers. What accounted for the almost unbelievable discipline of an army primitive by our standards?

Lt. Col. William D. Henderson, battalion commander of Headquarters Command, analyzes in a book he authored the VC's motivational principles implemented by cadres at company, platoon and squad levels. These principles produced an army of disciplined soldiers ranked among the most proficient and reliable in the world.

Small wars possible

It is likely we will be seeing this type of adversary army again, according to Henderson, who has a Ph.D. in International Relations. "If our strategy in Europe and elsewhere is successful and we achieve deterrence in nuclear and conventional war into the 1980s, it is very possible we will see smaller wars similar to the limited wars of our recent past. In such wars we will likely be facing armies organized and built using techniques and principles successfully used by the Chinese and North Vietnamese and described in my book."

The book says there were no "up and out" policies in the VC Army. Every attempt was made to keep the very best men, regardless of ages, giving personal influence and proven experience on their subordinates and towards the mission. "Proven leadership" was the key force, said Henderson.

"Why the Viet Cong Fought" challenges conventional Western thought which attributes VC success to the individual soldier's dedication to the communist cause and Vietnamese nationalism. Henderson examines the sophisticated motivation and control systems used by the North Vietnamese command in detail.

Combining practices based on psychological principles with intense indoctrination and a moral informants system, the Viet Cong provided their army with a system which motivated and disciplined soldiers and deterred unhappy troops from voicing complaints or deserting.

Frequent self-criticism sessions using peer group pressures helped soldiers accept the principles of discipline.

Trios were key

The three-man cell, the basic combat unit of the North Vietnamese Army, was another key to the system. Its small size reduced the frequent confusion and breakdown of authority occurring on the modern battlefield. Most significantly, the three-man cell served as the building block of the Viet Cong soldier's control and motivation.

The 190-page book gives the readers an informative analysis of the Viet Cong's Army in three areas — organizational structure, including the party, army and other avenues giving goals and policy; the human element which controls and motivates the soldiers; and the force of the cadre-leadership on the soldiers and the individual commitment towards engaging in combat as desired by the organization.

"Why the Viet Cong Fought" is based on hundreds of interviews with captured VC and communist documents. The book helps to understand the nature of modern war and why and how the Viet Cong endured.

Research began while Henderson was completing his doctorate in International Relations at the University of Pittsburgh. According to Henderson, he had no idea the project would grow into a book. A publishing company interested in the subject pushed the idea of a book to reality.

His background gives strength to his credibility. He has taught military psychology and international relations at West Point and co-authored the "Handbook of World Conflicts." He has also published several articles in "The Study of Leadership," U.S. Military Press, co-authored "The Changing Army: A Cognitive View of the Future" and wrote "The Disruptive Potential of a Unionized Military," an article published in the Washington Post.

Publication this month

"Why the Viet Cong Fought" is scheduled to be published this month. The book is Henderson's first single-authored. He said the main point of the book is the attempt to influence our own leadership.

Leadership is a continually changing event and Henderson's analysis of the Viet Cong's leadership sheds new light on an army using control methods of small group organizations, surveillance, isolation under conditions of sustained combat and hardship in order to hold ultimate control of the battlefield.

MPs offered language school

WASHINGTON (ARNEWS) — Junior grade military police (MP), E-3 through E-5, with a flair for languages are being sought for assignments in Germany, according to MILPERCEN officials.

MPs who have passed the Defense Language Aptitude Battery (DLAP) may volunteer for German language training and then be assigned to Germany, officials said.

The 32-week course is held at the Defense Language Institute, Presidio of Monterey, Calif. Dependents may join in these classes on a space available basis. Quarters for students and their dependents are available at nearby Fort Ord, officials added.

MPs interested in applying should check

DA Circular 350-1 and submit a DA Form 4187 through channels to the MP career branch.

Anyone wishing to volunteer who already speaks German but does not have a language fluency test score in their records can take a language proficiency test to qualify, officials said.

Check with your local MILPO for details.

"SORRY, SARGE, I'M JUST A PHONE WATCH: THE GUY THAT WORKED HERE DIED."

Keep Ready for Trouble

At least once in a lifetime, every driver will probably face a potentially serious emergency behind the wheel.

It might be a brake failure, a stuck throttle, or an engine fire. The time to plan what to do in these situations is now. Why not think ahead with these tips from the Department of Transportation?

If you lose your brakes completely, try pumping them to bring up brake pressure. If this doesn't work try shifting the transmission into a lower gear. Even if your car has an automatic transmission this might help. Then apply the emergency brake. If you're still out of control on a hill or mountainous road, it may even be advisable to side-swipe a hillside or guard-rail as a means of slowing the car down.

In newer cars with power steering or brakes, what feels like a complete failure could really be just a problem with the power assist. Steering and braking are still possible. It just takes much more physical effort.

In this case, apply steady foot pressure on the brake to take advantage of any remaining power. Steer carefully avoiding sudden wheel movements that may be hard to correct without power.

What if you lift your foot off the gas and the car keeps accelerating? The throttle's stuck. Carefully turn the ignition key to the off position, but don't turn it so far as to engage the steering lock.

How about fire? Some sorry drivers learn too late that it's smart to carry an extinguisher in the car. But if you try to fight an engine fire, be careful opening the hood. Cover your hands with a rag, turn your face away, and get back as soon as the hood opens. If fire nears fuel lines or gas tank, give up and get away.

Chances of being in these potentially disastrous situations may seem slim. But you've undoubtedly experienced a "mini-emergency" like unruly kids, a bee in the car, or a small fire in an ashtray.

Don't let small emergencies like these distract you from driving. Pull off the road before settling the kids down. Don't try to put out small fires while driving, except for closing the ashtray to smother flames until you can get off the road. As for bees, it's better to be stung than to lose control of the car.

For more tips on coping with emergencies large and small, get a copy of How To Handle Motor Vehicle Emergencies. It's free from the Consumer Information Center, Pueblo, Colo. 81009.

YOU'D BE SURPRISED WHAT YOU CAN GET IN YOUR NEXT ENLISTMENT JUST BY ASKING.

If you've always wanted an assignment in Europe, but somehow the Army always had other plans for you, now you can make your own plans. You can reenlist for Europe. Or Korea. The Canal Zone. Hawaii. Alaska. Or, if you're serving overseas, a new duty station in the continental United States. And all you have to do is ask. One soldier who did is SP4 Ralph Cook, 3/68 Armor, Mannheim, Germany.

"Getting to Europe is something I always wanted. They work you harder here, but I do get to see a lot. I like the architecture. The customs. The people. I've been to Munich twice now, and the Oktoberfest is just madness. Really fun."

In your next enlistment, you could end up with a lot more than a new overseas assignment. Chances are pretty good you'll make more rank, earn more pay and move up in responsibility. So talk to your Reenlistment NCO. And find out exactly how far you can go in your next enlistment.

KEEP A GOOD SOLDIER IN THE ARMY. REENLIST.

NBC: soldiers guide to survival

By JOHN BAKER

The training of today's infantry soldier consists of two basic parts: how to do his job and how to survive on the battlefield.

Of prime importance to the soldier is learning the defenses against nuclear, biological and chemical (NBC) attack. Without proper defenses against this type of attack the unit and entire unit of any size could be wiped out. The survival and success of the unit in accomplishing its mission rests upon the individual soldier's ability to recognize nuclear, biological and chemical attacks and to take prompt and effective protective action.

Immediate action

Upon sighting the bright flash that indicates a nuclear blast, the soldier is instructed to immediately fall to the ground, head facing away from the blast with the feet and legs together; the helmet resting back on the head, and the weapon completely underneath the body with the hands and arms also tucked underneath the body.

If he is in a foxhole, the soldier must drop to the bottom of the foxhole. The soldier should remain in either of these positions until the initial blast and a second reverse wave passes over.

When all debris stops falling, the soldier should prepare to continue the mission by checking himself and others for injury as well as inspecting his weapon and equipment for damage. The elapse time between the bright flash of light and sound of the blast is noted, and the soldier will submit this information as a NBC 1 report.

The infantryman must also be able to recognize a biological (germ) or chemical (gas) attack. Germs or chemicals may be delivered by explosives, missiles or aircraft. The effects of a germ attack may take from a couple of hours to two weeks to fully present themselves.

If warned of a germ or gas attack, the soldier must immediately put on his protective mask and prepare to continue the mission. Anyone recognizing a germ or gas attack will immediately put on his protective mask and give the signal for gas, that is, extending the arms to the sides at shoulder level, making fists with palms upward, and then moving the fist to the side of the head and back to the starting position to alert all within viewing distance of the attack.

The sound alarm for a gas attack is metal clanging on metal for those who may not be able to see the visual signal. The M8 alarm system will be issued to units to help warn of a chemical attack. This system will be installed upwind, as a gas will travel with the breeze. Warning of a germ or a gas attack may also come by field telephone or radio.

Some early warnings of a gas or germ attack may be: shells that explode less powerfully than high-explosive rounds, a low-flying aircraft spraying mist, any device spraying a mist or fog, bombs that pop instead of explode, or the presence of mist or dew-like vapor on vegetation at an unusual time of the day.

Dead or dying vegetation, wildlife or people is a warning sign that a chemical or biological agent may already have been used. Soldiers observing such an area should mask at once and give the alarm signals.

NBC

The essential item of equipment used by the soldier to protect himself against the hazards of an NBC attack is the protective mask. Some of these masks provide the soldier with water drinking and mouth-to-mouth resuscitation capability. The protective mask filters the air the soldier must breath and keeps chemical agents and contaminated particals out of the eyes, nose and mouth.

The soldier must be able to put on the mask, clear all possibly contaminated air from it and check the mask for proper seal—all in nine seconds or faster. The mask hood must be put on in an additional six seconds. It covers the head and shoulders, protecting against chemicals or germs comming in contact with the head and neck area.. the mask hood has openings for the protective mask's eye lenses, air inlet valves and voicemitter, and is fitted over the protective mask.

The soldier also carries two decontamination kits, one for decontaminating the skin and one for the decontamination of clothing and equipment. In case the enemy uses nerve gas, the individual soldier carries two nerve gas antidote injectors. With the safties removed, three pounds of pressure on the tips of these spring-loaded injectors will cause them to automatically inject the nerve gas antidote. The soldier will, if he experiences the syptoms of nerve gas poisoning, remove the safties from these injectors and press them to the meaty portion of his outer thighs for ten seconds. After the injection the welts are massaged and the injectors clipped to the shirt collar to indicate the man has received them. The soldier may give himself two injections simultaneously, but no more than two may be given.

The soldier must be throughly familiar with the systems of the various nuclear, biological and chemical agents, as well as the first-aid measures so as to be able to administer prompt and effective self-aid and first-aid to victims of an NBC attack. Burns, cuts and scrapes which may result from a nuclear blast are treated as one would normally treat such injuries. Treatment for stoppage of breathing must be conducted, realizing that the area has been contaminated with radioactive particals.

In an NBC attack where a blistering agent is used, the soldier must first take a deep breath and hold it. Lifting his protective mask away from his face and holding it above and away from his head, he must then use his hand to rinse out the eyes with his canteen, using the bridge of his nose as a divider. He should tilt his head to either side while rinsing the eyes so as not to get contaminated water on his clothing or equipment.

Once the protective mask is in place, the soldier must clear the mask by forcefully exhaling through the mask with one hand over the outlet valve and one hand over the voicemitter. Once the mask is cleared, it is checked for an air tight seal by sealing the inlet valves with the hand and inhaling. the mask should form suction to the face, insuring that no air is leaking into the mask. Having decontaminated his eyes, the soldier will continue to decontaminate the skin, clothing and equipment and continue with the mission.

The soldier will carry amyl nitrate ampules for first-aid in case he or any members of his unit are stricken with the syptoms of blood agent poisoning. If a soldier is unable to continue with the mission, he should take cover, lie still and keep warm until help arrives.

Beyond the equipment and procedures for confronting NBC situations, the soldier must have the will to survive and win on the battlefield. He must be concerned about his buddy's welfare and have the courage to take prompt and effective action.

Abortion

Women pay own, according to DoD

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — The Department of Defense announced that the following guidance has been issued to conform with the provisions of Section 118 of The Continuing Resolution, enacted as Public Law No. 96-86:

After midnight, Oct. 11, 1979, and continuing until further notice, Department of Defense appropriated funds may not be used to pay for abortions except:

(a) where the life of the mother would be endangered if the fetus were carried to term;

(b) where such medical procedures are necessary for the victims of rape or incest and such rape or incest has been reported promptly to a law enforcement agency or public health service; or

(c) where medical procedures are necessary to terminate an ectopic pregnancy.

This action eliminates the use of DoD appropriated funds for abortions to avoid potential long-lasting physical damage to the health of the mother that is now life-threatening.

Claims under the Civilian Health and Medical Program of the Uniformed Services (CHAMPUS) for abortions performed after midnight, Oct. 11, 1979, will not be paid unless they come within the criteria for payment cited above.

Payments for abortions performed under the CHAMPUS Program before midnight of Oct. 11, 1979, that would have been payable under the eliminated exception are suspended pending final action on the DoD Appropriation Act of FY 1980 and evaluation of the impact of Public Law No. 96-86.

The policy regarding payments for procedures to prevent pregnancies are not affected.

This policy restricts the use of DoD appropriated funds to pay for abortions; it does not prohibit or restrict any person from otherwise seeking or obtaining an abortion for any reason.

Pregnancy deferment open to some

WASHINGTON (ARNEWS) — PFC John Stone's wife is pregnant with their first child. A few more months and he'll be a father, an occasion he wouldn't miss for anything in the world. But, Uncle Sam has other ideas. John is on orders for Korea.

What can John do? According to MILPERCEN officials, if a soldier's port call is scheduled during his wife's eighth month of pregnancy, his departure may be postponed for up to six weeks after the baby is born. It may be delayed even longer if complications arise.

Officials say the soldier must ask for a 'pregnancy deferment' at his home station. Some soldiers are waiting until they out-process from their old unit and go on PCS leave to ask for a deferment, an official pointed out.

Requests for pregnancy deferments submitted after the soldier has left his unit are only considered in emergency situations, the official stressed.

Pregnant women soldiers who receive overseas orders must also request a pregnancy deferment through the installation commander. Their orders will be changed or canceled since pregnant soldiers are not normally sent overseas.

Those who want to go overseas must ask for an exception to policy from MILPERCEN. Usually, officials say, exceptions are granted for women in the early stages of pregnancy. Exceptions will not be made, however, for women on orders to unaccompanied short tour areas.

36th Group has formal dining-in

By MATTHEW BOISON

The 36th Engineer Group Officers recently conducted a formal dining-in which was a unique experience for most of the 36th.

Today's formal dining-in is derived in part from customs growing out of the conduct of the British officers' mess whose ancestral roots are in the eighteenth century. Historically, the British officers' mess was conducted in a fraternal atmosphere in the surroundings of traditions and customs. Nevertheless, practical joking, occasional horseplay and even dueling constantly surfaced among the members of the mess. Hence, there are contradictory strains running through a dining-in which simultaneously make possible a rich appreciation for membership as an officer in a proud unit and the enjoyment of a good time.

The 36th dining-in had three phases. First was the formal dinner with posting of the colors, toasts, meal and guest speaker, Col. Richard McKee, deputy post commander, who compared our present situation with the "Old Army." His conclusion was that we are really "pretty darn good today."

Phase two was the punch ceremony with all ingredients having significance to the history, valor or fidelity of the 36th Group. Phase three began with the president's statement, "Ladies and gentlemen, remove your coats." Competitive games, skits and singing closed out the gala affair.

Col. Charles L. Shreves, commander of the 36th Group, was president of the mess. He concluded the activities with the comment that great armies have great traditions. "Be proud of your heritage, your country and your Army," he concluded.

CSM Earl R. Brown insures the color guard is 'squared away' for the dining-in.

43rd Engineers win in parade

A giant yellow bucketloader, its front end loaded with gaily wrapped presents and its cab occupied by none other than Santa Claus himself, won top honors in the mayor's parade last week.

The big machine belonged to the 43rd Engineer Battalion at Fort Benning and the group did its best to make the monster look like a toy. Its sides bore the trade name "Tonka Toy" and on the rear, behind a four-foot Christmas tree, was a giant wind-up key that unwound as the giant behemoth wove its way down Broadway.

"A lot of soldiers put a lot of work into the preparation of this project," said 2nd Lt. Jeffery C. Benchich, executive officer of "Charlie Company," 43rd Engineer Battalion. "The soldiers enjoyed working on this project and they were proud of it."

NCO Club admitting E-4's

The Top Five NCO Club has opened its doors to soldiers in the grade of E4 in addition to the top five graders and changed the name to "Fort Benning Main NCO Club." This change, effective Dec. 4, was the result of studies conducted over the past few months and a meeting of major unit command sergeant majors and unit representatives.

Admitting E4's to the club is expected to increase revenue, but more importantly, aligns the NCO Club with Army Regulation 230-60, which designates grades E4 through E9 for membership in an NCO club.

According to Jimmy L. Stewart, assistant branch manager of NCO Clubs at Fort Benning, "Civilian employees at the post in comparable grades to E4-E9, will also be eligible for membership."

The other club affected, The Hidden Door, will now serve those in grades E1 through E3. The Hideaway and Sand Hill clubs will remain "all ranks facilities."

Post office gives packing tips

By TIM BOIVIN

Christmas packages will stand a better chance of arriving at their destinations in good shape if mailers follow a few simple instructions provided by Art Rushing, officer-in-charge of the Columbus Post Office.

"Select a corrugated fiberboard box with the 'burst test' number printed on it," Rushing said. Burst test numbers are usually found in a little circle on the bottom of the box.

Rushing added, "The higher the pounds-per-square-inch number, the sturdier the box." Boxes rated 125 pounds may be used for many types of merchandise weighing up to 20 pounds. A box rated 175 pounds can hold up to 40 pounds of goods. Fragile or breakable items such as cameras or glassware should be packaged in a 275 carton.

Books or other dense and heavy materials also need stronger boxes which can be found in appliance stores. Seams should be checked to make sure they aren't broken.

Rushing said, "Make sure the contents are well cushioned and there is empty space in the box. Use crumpled newspaper around the item, on the top, bottom and sides of the package. Foamed plastic shells and air pocket padding also are good cushions."

Rushing urged customers not to use brown wrapping paper or twine cord. He said the wrapping paper can be ripped off and the twine can get caught in the processing machinery.

Rushing recommended putting a slip of paper with the recipient's name and address and your return address inside the box. Three types of sealing tape are recommended to close and seal the box. They are filament-reinforced pressure sensitive tape, kraft paper reinforced with nylon or glass, and pressure sensitive tape.

Masking and cellophane tape are not recommended because of past poor performance.

Smudge proof ink should be used for the address which should appear in the lower right-hand corner of the box. The return address should be in the upper left-hand corner. Be sure to include zip codes for both addresses.

Priority mailing speedy method

There is a fast way to mail Christmas packages that many last-minute shoppers may have overlooked, according to Art Rushing, officer-in-charge, Columbus Post Office.

Priority mail affords first-class handling for packages weighing over 12 ounces and up to 70 pounds. It's fast and consistent, offering next-day delivery up to 150 miles from the originating post office and delivery in three days anywhere in the United States, during the Christmas season.

"It's the ideal service for people who want prompt package delivery yet avoid the higher cost of express mail," said Rushing.

Priority mail can be sent from any post office, station or branch or through rural carriers to any address in the United States and even to foreign countries. The service is available with insurance, return receipts, COD, certificates of mailing and special delivery.

Renovations going well

I had the chance to peek at our club's renovations recently. I was delighted with what I saw. I know the NCO wives will be pleased with the new look inside and out. On behalf of the NCOWC, thanks to everyone who helped with the renovation.

NCOWC luncheon

The NCOWC Christmas luncheon will be held at the Top5 NCO Club Wednesday at noon.

For reservations contact Mrs. Robert Dunlap, 689-8751.

You may pay!

"Harry, you really wrecked that jeep."
"So what? They'll never catch up with me. You know all the paperwork that will be involved."

Sorry Harry, more and more soldiers are having to pay for damaging or losing Army property.

As part of an Army-wide effort to improve property management, a new Report of Survey system went into effect in January.

Reports show that along with holding more soldiers responsible, the new system has reduced the average processing time from about 73 days to 53 days.

"Under the old system, things were so wound up in approval, appeals and the "gross negligence standard" that it took forever to get a report processed," a DA spokesman said. "With the new system, we get right back to the person we suspect is liable."

Negligence is now defined as "an act or omission which a responsible person would not commit under similar circumstances." The most you can be charged for losing or damaging property, other than personal arms and equipment, is one month's base pay.

If you lose your M-16 rifle, for example, and it's your own fault, you can be charged for the full amount. But, if through negligence, you do several hundred dollars worth of damage to an Army vehicle, you can only be charged one month's base pay for the damage. You are also subject to further action through an Article 15 or court martial, however.

Christmas leave can be dangerous to health

By T. A. SABEL

Christmas means many things to most people — presents, going home, Christmas dinner and a time of joy.

For me, Christmas will invariably bring memories of indigestion. When my family gets together, as we try to do every year, we eat and eat and eat. The traditional Christmas turkey is only the extra fattening topping of a several day gorge. After arriving home, the refrigerator and cookie jar were visited immediately after the hugs and kisses. However, some relatives would wait till after their coats had been removed.

These gormand habits could easily be curbed if no one in the family knew how to cook. Being raised on a farm in northern Indiana, the winter's fallow time gave all of us more than enough opportunity to learn. My sister Jo's Swedish Limpa, a type of rye bread, is so good (even stale) it beats the heck out of Wonder Bread. My other sister, Pennie, makes a brandy-soaked fruit cake heartily enough to challenge the strongest teetotaler. Children have been trampled for my brother Doug's yogurt cheese cake. (Don't ask me how he makes it, I only help eat it.) Dad's sweetheart coffee cake baking in the morning could raise Rip Van Winkle to a fit of rampaging hunger. Top these with umpteenth dozen cookies stockpiled since before Thanksgiving, Mexican wedding cakes, spritzer, pfeffernuesse, plus the obligatory chocolate chip, brownies, decorated sugar cookies and a few scattered store-bought ones brought in by some well-meaning neighbor.

Somewhere along the line Dad brings forth a gift to the family, a five-pound box of cheap chocolates. Advertised as nougats, caramels, creme and jelly-filled, they usually arrive short on the good ones and a surplus of obnoxious white cremes. Quickly, the better chocolates are found and eaten. For the rest of the holiday we are haunted with this box of chocolates occasionally poked through by some bored person hoping to find one decent goodie.

Much to their surprise, someone has been there before them, searching with their thumbnail and absconding with the good ones. More than once have I been left sitting with a box of white cremes, each of which has been rudely violated by a thumbnail. I ate the white cremes anyway.

Traditions, like time, keep changing. My parents cook with a wok. Dad organically grows his own vegetables. Mom does mac-rame. My brother grows alfalfa sprouts and my sisters are all on diets.

However, even though I won't be there I know there'll be shaved ham for occasional sandwiches, plus cheeses, wine, breads and cookies.

... and the Army wonders why I have a weight problem.

Reader suggests post Burger Bar be franchised

To the Editor:

Further to Ms. H. Pulliam's letter which appeared in the BAYONET Nov. 30, I, among many (silent) patrons, totally concur with the displeasure toward the quality of food and service rendered in the AFEES Run-In-Chef Burger Bar on Main Post. The initial purpose of the establishment in question had failed, both from the service point of view and undoubtedly from the capital gain aspect. Any business which lacks drastically in the above mentioned areas is doomed to become bankrupt.

Therefore, what do we need in its place? Competition! The building should be leased to a civilian franchise such as Churches, Burger King and the like, who are technically qualified in their field of fast food service and unmatched recipes. The government would be receiving revenue from the franchise for rent, and at the same time, a ball park figure of give and take 10 percent of the monthly profit can be contributed to AFEES by the lease holder for operating at Fort Benning. In the long run this benefits all patrons of the AFEES network, regardless if you buy from the Main Exchange or the Mini Mall. All parties would benefit, both from the patron and entrepreneur point of view. Professionalism in catering and managerial logic is all that is needed to save Building 106. If not, like Rome — it would just be a matter of time.

Close PX on Christmas

To the Editor:

It is with much sadness that I notice that the Post Exchange in Custer Terrace is going to be open on Christmas Day for a few hours. It appears that we are living so fast and that our conveniences are so much in demand that we can't give all our people ONE DAY off a year to celebrate the birth of the Christ child. These employees, I am sure, would rather be home with their families than working a few hours.

It has always been my opinion that only emergency services should be performed, such as hospitals, firemen, policemen and required security personnel on duty those days.

Surely we can go without going to the Post Exchange to spend our money and get what we forgot to get the day before Christmas. I suppose that if we knew when the world was going to end, someone would want the Post Exchange to be open until 30 minutes before the time of final destruction to satisfy their desires.

May God forgive the persons responsible for the stupid decision on keeping that ONE POST EXCHANGE open for a few hours on Christmas Day.

Holiday message

The holiday season is a time for joy and happiness. It is also a time for reflection.

We must never forget that the peace we enjoy has been based on our Army. From the Revolutionary War through the conflict in Vietnam runs an unbroken line of soldier and civilian service to the cause of freedom. Service is the foundation of our democratic heritage. It's an honor, as well as an obligation. Our freedom depends on it today as much as in the past. But today, as in the past, we face also the challenge of complacency. It's too easy to forget the lessons of history.

In the past we've been caught off guard and had to play catch-up. In the future, we won't have that chance.

Our accomplishments at Fort Benning during 1979 have been many, and we all take great pride in these achievements. Our challenge is to continue to lead the way in developing the finest soldiers in the free world.

Mrs. Grange and I wish you and your loved ones a joyous holiday season and a New Year filled with happiness and prosperity.

Army message

With the approach of Hanukkah and Christmas, we extend our personal greetings and best wishes to each member of the United States Army.

The holiday season is a time of expectation that renews the hope for a more secure and peaceful world. No one contributes more to this commitment than you, the American soldier. By your personal sacrifices, you strengthen our resolve that all mankind may enjoy freedom and individual dignity.

We wish you and your loved ones a joyous holiday season, and a new year filled with happiness and prosperity.

Safety message

The Christmas and New Year holiday season is a time of good will, of being with family and friends, and a time of great religious significance to millions of people all over the world.

As I extend my best wishes to all Fort Benning personnel, I sincerely desire that each of you derive maximum pleasure from this holiday season. I am concerned with the many factors that may cause this season to become a time of tragedy for some. I refer to the devastating impact on the family of anyone involved in a serious accident. The carefree spirit of the season often results in a relaxation of the normal precautions and inhibitions that serve to keep people from harm.

This is a season when we should think of others. Let us all be concerned and exercise due caution and restraint during the holidays to help protect us from accidents, thereby assuring family, friends and others a merry Christmas and a happy New Year.

Winter increases driving hazards

Normally, the public roadways are among the most dangerous areas of the world, but add to that the hazards associated with winter driving and it becomes even more dangerous.

Safety begins before the engine is started, so make sure everything is in good working order. Even with a vehicle in top notch running order it's hard enough to cope with ice and snow. Additionally, with faulty equipment you stand even more of a chance of becoming a traffic statistic.

Water, frost, snow, sleet and ice all reduce traction and seriously affect the control of your vehicle. Each tire depends on the friction of an area the size of a hand for traction, so slow trips are the safest.

In order to compensate for slippery surfaces, increase safety margins and always expect the unexpected. If there is more room between the obstacle and the vehicle you will have more time to react on slippery roads.

Also, signal your intentions early to give the other drivers on the road time to react to your move. An early signal can cut down on many of the problems you might otherwise encounter.

One of the biggest problems people have when driving on ice and snow is stopping. In order to bring the vehicle to a stop, use the brakes sparingly and avoid locking them at all cost. Once locked, the wheels will have a tendency to act like runners on a sled.

Instead, pump or fan the brakes until you come to a stop. To do this, apply the brakes for an instant and release them. Repeat the procedure until you've slowed sufficiently.

During the winter driving season, you should always carry a set of properly fitted and maintained tire chains for use on slippery road surfaces. At the first sign of a bad road, put the chains on and keep them on until you reach a clear surface.

Chains on the rear wheels help out as far as traction is concerned, but do little for directional control. So chains are needed all the way around a vehicle. The chains are really effective while you're moving either straight ahead or back.

A lot of problems arise when visibility is poor. Many factors can lessen visibility, such as rain, snow, sleet, fog, glare or slush blowing off passing vehicles.

The best thing to remember when driving in limited visibility conditions is not to overdrive your eyes. Make sure you can stop within the distance you can see. If conditions get too bad, don't press your luck. Instead, pull over to the side of the road, turn on the warning flashers, and wait until you can see again. It's better to get there a little late than not at all.

There are many other hazards associated with winter driving, but these few are some of the more frequent causes of accidents. Don't let them be your end.

Gasoline pricing system changes

The Army and Air Force Exchange Service (AAFES) announced it expects to begin pricing gasoline by the half-gallon at the Fort Benning service station beginning today. The change results from prices exceeding the mechanical ability of gasoline dispensers to compute gasoline sell prices above 99.9 cents per gallon.

The dollar amount shown on the pump will be doubled to determine the total sale price of the gasoline. A decal on each pump will be used to show customers the actual price of the gasoline per gallon. Other decals on the pumps will indicate that pricing is by the half-gallon.

To maintain uniform prices once any grade of gasoline exceeds 99.9 cents per gallon at the service station, AAFES will begin using the half-pricing procedure for all grades of fuel. This method of pricing will be commonly seen at commercial stations, as well as AAFES, until equipment can be modified. The half-pricing concept was first used during the 1973-74 oil embargo when gasoline pumps could not compute prices above 49.9 cents per gallon.

With muzzles in salute to the dying sun, tanks lined the crest of the hill overlooking Turrentine Range, silent after a day of rigorous training by Troop A, 15th Cavalry.

Intense month-long field training

15th Cav switches to M-60s

Story by T. A. SABEL

With muzzles in salute to the dying sun, tanks lined the crest of the hill overlooking Turrentine Range during A Troop, 15th Cavalry's last days of training. The month-long field training was intense, according to 2nd Lt. Francis Witt, 1st platoon leader of the 15th Cavalry. The unit was switching over from Sherman tanks to newer M-60s and several of the men were "green" at the start of the training, he said.

The main difference between the Sherman and the M-60, other than size, is the types of armament systems used.

Troop Commander Capt. John Kelly said the training is going on at a rapid pace. "We received the M-60s in late September and, although many of the men have trained on the tank, most need a refresher." "There have been some surprises," he added, "but the men are doing very well even though we've been training 16-18 hours a day.

"Despite the long hours, morale has been high. The competition between the platoons has been fierce. Everybody wants the 'Beer and Braggin' Rights,'" said SSgt. Harrison Wood, one of the platoon sergeants.

The competition among the platoons is intense and members in the 1st platoon tent declared they were the FIRST platoon. The Tank commander SSgt. Jeff Weatherbee, Troop A, 15th Cavalry, prepares to give another command as loader Pvt. Ronnie Savage and gunner Sp4 Charles T. Austin (with field glasses) checks the target after a successful fire mission.

2nd platoon retorted by saying they were second to none.

Perhaps the small hand-lettered sign made from the lid of a cardboard box emphasized the intense competition. The sign, tied on one side of the tent flap, said 'Third Herd Only'.

One member of the first platoon commented on the training and competition: "We've got it in hand because we are tankers. We've had to slow down our training so the other platoons could catch up."

A member of the '3rd Herd' said he would rather be out in the field, even if the weather wasn't the best. "Here in the field we've fewer hassles and squabbles than in garrison. Out here, we don't have to be spit-polished soldiers. We can come out here and do our jobs and we do a darn good job of it."

Whether the 1st will be FIRST, or the 2nd is second to none, or if it was 'Heard from the herd' doesn't really matter. With the motivation, drive and spirit of the platoons, each deserves the 'Beer and Braggin' Rights' from the month of long hours and serious training.

Y'all come back

WASHINGTON (ARNEWS) — Cash bonuses and eased enlistment requirements are now being offered to people with prior service, according to DA personnel officials.

Beginning Nov. 27, prior servicemembers can enlist for cash bonuses in any of the MOSs currently offering cash bonuses under the enlistment bonus program.

Previously, only six MOSs offered a cash bonus to people with prior service, officials explained. Also, only those with four or less years service and a break in service of more than three months were eligible. This restriction has been removed, officials said.

Bonuses ranging from $1,000 to $3,000 are now offered for enlisting in one of the following MOSs: 13E, 82U, 82B, 54F, 43F, 15F, 12F, 12E, 05C, 05B, 98G, 96C, 16E, 16D, 15J, 13B, 12B, 11C, 05G, 19D, 13F, 11H, 11B, 05K, 05H and 05D.

Prior servicemembers who enlisted in the Delayed Entry Program before Nov. 27, however, are not eligible for a bonus, officials said.

To be eligible for a cash bonus, both new recruits and prior servicemembers must:

- Be a high school diploma graduate;
- Be in mental categories I-III;
- Enlist for four or more years;
- Not have previously received an enlistment bonus, or a reenlistment bonus or be currently eligible for one.

The Army is now allowing prior servicemembers with or without a high school education to enlist in some MOSs for three years but without a cash bonus. The two-year enlistment option, however, is not available to prior servicemembers, officials added.

In the past, people with prior service had to enlist for at least four years unless they were enlisting for training in a combat arms MOS. A high school diploma or GED or higher aptitude scores were also required.

In an effort to equalize the enlistment criteria for prior servicemembers, the Army is now allowing those without high school diplomas or GEDs to enlist as long as they are in mental categories I-III A. Those who are high school graduates in mental categories I-II B can enlist.

Aptitude scores required of prior servicemembers are also now the same as those required of new recruits, officials added.

The Army has raised its FY 80 prior service recruiting goal from 12,500 to 14,000, officials said.

Santa pays soldiers

By JIM SHELNUTT

The 14th of December, 1979 was like any other day in 45th Company, 4th Student Battalion, The School Brigade, as the soldiers lined up to receive their paychecks and I stood by as photographer to take a few pictures.

I heard names being called off in the background. For some unknown reason, the troops were being aligned in alphabetical order. Then I heard the call, "Let me have the first three."

All of a sudden, I heard a thunderous, "HO, HO, HO!" Since I know that not too many people go around saying, "ho, ho, ho," I realized it could only be one man — Santa Claus himself — taking time out from his busy schedule to stop by 45th Company to pay the troops.

When I asked the bearded figure his real name, he looked me straight in the eyes and said, "Santa Claus." Merry Christmas!

USO receives coffee gift

By DAVE BRISTOW

Last year at Christmas some 8,000 soldiers wandered into the USO headquarters inside Atlanta's Hartsfield International Airport for hot coffee and perhaps someone to talk to which makes for an awful lot of coffee for those weary travelers!

This year the USO is getting some help making all that good coffee. SGM Raymond B. Burton of the Director of Personnel and Community Activities Department (DPCA) at Fort Benning learned of their problem, coordinated with the NonCommissioned Officer Association (NCOA) and Association of the U.S. Army (AUSA) — and as a result today USO will be donated 65 lbs. of coffee and 25 lbs. of sugar to help their cause.

How about that?

Judging others wrong

By WILLIAM W. ERBACH SR.

TSB Chaplain

If you stand in front of a window on a very cold day, close it enough so your breath can blow on it, and you will notice that moisture from your breath will condense on the glass. If you continue to blow, as more and more moisture accumulates, frost will form. First thing you know, you can't see through that section of the glass to the outside anymore. This is the sort of thing that happens when we pass judgement on someone else. Whether our judgement is correct or false makes no difference. Judging clouds our vision and we can no longer see that person clearly.

That is bad enough but, unfortunately, that is not all that happens. Our judgments then affects the attitude of other people toward the person that is doing the judging. Then, immediately, other people's attitudes towards us are changed.

You cannot throw mud on someone else without getting some on yourself. Try pointing your index finger at someone. Notice that your thumb as well points in that direction. But also notice that three other fingers are pointing at you. How About That?

St. Augustine told of a man who prayed to God about his neighbor. He said, "Oh God, take away this wicked person." God asked, "Which one?"

Safety

With the holiday season upon us, there are safety reminders that everyone should follow to have safe and happy holidays.

Every year tragedy strikes somewhere in the world because people are negligent in following a few basic rules for the holidays.

Chestnuts are all right to roast on the open fire but position your tree away from the hearth of the fireplace so your house doesn't roast also. If it is at all possible, do not use excessive extension cords or wiring that is faulty.

During the holiday season celebrating is done with a considerable amount of good cheer but sometimes a little too much holiday spirits are consumed. If you are drinking, don't drive. If someone at your party is not in any condition to drive, don't let them. Keep them overnight, call a cab or let someone sober drive them home.

If you have to drive in hazardous conditions, slow down and keep enough space between cars to be able to stop in time to prevent an accident. Be sure your car is properly prepared to operate safely in hazardous weather.

Crime

With many persons away from home during the holiday season, open season is declared by crooks on vacated houses. If you have to stay away for an extended period of time, have a neighbor keep an eye on your house while you are gone. Make your home look and sound occupied by buying timing devices to turn on and off your lights, television and stereo.

Make sure your house is completely locked up. Cancel newspaper delivery and have the post office hold your mail. Contact your local police department and let them know you will be gone. Some police departments will occasionally check to make sure your home is secured.

If you are home, don't open your door to strangers. Install a peep-hole or chain latch so you can properly identify callers before letting them in. Be especially careful at night, indoors or outdoors, because criminals use darkness as a shield. Try to stay in well lighted areas.

If you are attacked, shout "help" or "rape." Some women carry a whistle to unnerve an attacker and alert assistance. If you are confronted by a criminal, cooperate. They may be under the influence of drugs so do what they say and do it quickly. Try to avoid physical injury but at the same time remember identifying features and report the incident to the proper authorities immediately.

If you are driving, keep your doors locked and your seatbelts fastened. The seatbelts not only protect you in case of an accident, but it also prevents someone from pulling you from the car. Be sure you know your route home.

Children are very naive about associating with strangers. Be sure your child knows she/he should stay away from strangers at all times. If a strange person drives up and asks for directions, stay a safe distance away from the car.

Children should not play alone in the woods or near empty or deserted buildings. Parents, keep track of where your children are.

Be sure to take down the license number of any strange car that a neighborhood child gets into. If a child is followed to or from school, they should tell a policeman or their teacher immediately.

Energy conservation

The official holiday season post lighting policy has been announced. Exterior lighting for Christmas decorating is limited to Infantry Hall, Martin Army Hospital, selected Chapels and Community Life Program Centers. All other billeting and housing areas must use unlighted exterior decorations.

Interior lighting should be reasonable and limited to a minimum of display. Interior and authorized exterior lighting will be confined to the hours of 6 p.m. until 10 p.m. except on Christmas Eve until 2 a.m. Christmas morning. Lighted candles will not be used under any circumstances.

Dentists' 'r

One of the most valuable aids to a dentist is his or her assistant.

Fort Benning's Dental Activity (DENTAL) has 90 civilian and 10 military dental assistants (DAs) working at their seven clinics.

Although no formal schooling is required to become a DA, Benning does require previous experience. Civilian employees gain this experience by on-the-job training with a civilian dentist. Military attend school at Fort Sam Houston, Texas.

Moves are underway by the American Dental Assistants Association to eventually require certification of DAs, acquired by passing a national exam. But this action is purely voluntary now and in most cases doesn't even earn the certified DA additional pay.

Expanded function (EF) dental assistants have had specialized schooling and therefore are allowed to do more than a regular DA. They are limited to reversible procedures, so they do no injections or drilling, but they can fill teeth prepared by the dentist. There are 26 DA(EF) on post.

Chairside assistants at Benning use the 'four hand sit-down method' to help the dentist. They work in teams made up of one dentist, two expanded function assistants and one and a half DAs. The half is accounted for by one DA working two bays at the same time by shifting her services to whichever one needs her help.

Thom Graham (L) lines up the x-ray machine to get a good shot of a trainees' troubled tooth.

Assistants

'Right hand man' must be competent in expanded role as many patients using this team. He can drill one person's tooth and move on to the next while the DA(EF) fills it for him. Then he comes back to check the finished filling and the other DA(EF) finishes the second patient. A regular DA helps the DA(EF) as well as the dentist.

Dental assistants' duties are numerous. They are even required to operate dental x-ray equipment, develop and finish the film. Benning has five DAs who do this exclusively, but all DAs must know how because they may have to do it sometime. Other duties accomplished by DAs are:

Routine Duties

- Receives and routes patients,
- Schedules appointments,
- Takes down medical histories,
- Obtains and records vital signs,
- Sterilizes instruments, materials and equipment,
- Prepares surgical trays and packs;

- Keeps equipment in a clean and operative condition,
- Stores and maintains supplies,
- Prepares and arranges instruments and materials needed for each treatment,
- Prepares patient and work area,
- Anticipates dentist's needs at chairside and passes instruments and materials to and retrieves same,
- Keeps mouth cavity clear using high speed evacuator, suction tip and irrigation,
- Retracts tissue, tongue and cheeks,
- Maintains aseptic condition,
- Stabilizes tissue and cuts sutures,
- Keeps alert to patient's condition for signs of shock, fainting or other distress,
- Provides individual oral hygiene instruction,
- Relays dentist's post treatment care instructions and
- Maintains a daily worksheet reflecting number of patients, time in and time out of chair and procedures performed.

Dental assisting is a tedious job. It requires the assistant to know dental instruments, materials and standardized dental procedures. They learn dental anatomy and facial bony structure. And, of course, they must develop skill and dexterity in manipulating instruments in patients' mouths. In order to give hygiene instruction, they must also learn preventive dentistry, causes of decay and oral hygiene practices.

These duties vary depending on the specific section the DA is working, but all must know all of the skills. New assistants are rotated throughout the services to acquaint them with the peculiarities.

Recordkeeping, chairside assistance, radiographic and clinical maintenance duties together make up a significant part of total dental care services. In addition to helping the dentist, performance of these duties affects the attitude of patients and efficiency of the dental clinic.

Guard dogs, handlers strut stuff for JROTC

Story and photos by TIM BOIVIN

The 139th Military Police Company, Working Dog Platoon, held a demonstration for members of the Jordan High School Junior Reserve Officer Training Corp (JROTC) Dec. 12 on the art of handling guard dogs.

Sp4 Ricky Widner, a dog handler with the 139th, said, "The purpose of this demonstration is to change some of the misconceptions people have about guard dogs and the control their handlers have over them."

The demonstration consisted of four parts: marching movements with the dogs and the handlers, capture of a fleeing suspect by the dog, detection of narcotics and detection of explosives.

The marching movements were done without the use of leashes to demonstrate the vocal control the handlers have over their dogs. This included changing places to confuse the dogs and then calling their dog to their side.

The handlers then gave their dogs the command "lay." One by one the handlers walked over the row of four dogs to demonstrate the obedience of the dogs to their commands.

The dogs and their handlers then proceeded to the obstacle course which resembled the type used by lion tamers. The dogs jumped two different sized hurdles, went through a hollow drum and climbed over a wooden bridge.

As the handlers left the field with their dogs, two handlers who were planted in the audience ran across the field and began a simulated fight. One of the other handlers released the dog to capture the suspects.

One suspect stopped while the other one tried to flee. The dog passed up the one who stopped and took after the other one. The dog took down the suspect and held him until his handler arrived on the scene to search the suspect.

Widner explained to the JROTC members that, "This shows that the dog will not bite unless the dog's life or the handler's life is threatened. Even though the suspect tried to escape, the dog did not bite until the suspect started to hit him."

Another handler demonstrated the controlled aggression of his dog. He placed a muzzle over his dog and then another handler agitated him by slapping and yelling at him. The handler released his dog and the agitator was taken down as the dog used his body weight and the momentum he had gathered from his speed.

Widner said, "Our dogs can run 70 yards in six seconds, which averages out to 35 miles per hour. Even though they may weigh as little as 60 pounds, their impact on a person is great because of the momentum from his speed."

If a dog has to bite, he certainly has the tools to do it. Widner said, "Our dogs have 42 teeth which can apply 500 pounds of pressure."

Sp4 Ricky Widner, 139th Military Police Company, watches as his dog, Chico searches a vehicle for explosives. Once Chico locates the explosives he will sit down, so as not to disrupt it and cause an explosion.

Grange approves new award

A prestigious new award which will be presented annually to the 1st Infantry Training Brigade's (ITB) "Drill Sergeant of the Year" has been approved by Fort Benning Commander, Maj. Gen. David E. Grange Jr.

The award, established to honor Col. (ret.) Donald C. Shuffstall, will consist of a service pistol with engraved case and a plaque to contain the names of future recipients. The master plaque will be on permanent display in ITB Headquarters at Sand Hill.

Richard A. Leandri, prominent Florida businessman, a staunch Army supporter and a personal friend of Shuffstall, will sponsor the annual award. It will be presented in May of each year during the last ITB graduation ceremony of the month by Shuffstall and Leandri when they are available.

In announcing his intention to establish the "Don C. Shuffstall Award," Leandri noted that Shuffstall served 36 years in the Army's Infantry Branch. "He served with distinction in three wars, and prior to receiving a commission, was a drill sergeant as an enlisted man," Leandri said. "It is fitting that the award named in his honor will be presented to an individual who has excelled in the training of infantry soldiers."

Shuffstall, who now resides in Shalimar, Fla., was Public Affairs Officer at Fort Benning before retiring on May 31 of this year.

Soldiers eligible for HMS award

WASHINGTON (ARNEWS)—Two more disaster relief operations have been approved for award of the Humanitarian Service Medal (HSM), according to MILPERCEN officials.

Soldiers who were "direct participants" in the following operations are now eligible for the HSM:

North Carolina Flood Relief: north, east and south of Asheville, N.C.: Nov. 9-Dec. 21, 1977.

Snow Blow/ Snow Blow II: Mass., R.I., N.H., Maine, Ohio, Ind., Mich., and Conn.: Jan. 26-Feb. 12, 1978.

Soldiers must have been present in the operations area, officials stressed. The following may be used to verify a soldier's participation:

Certificates, letters of appreciation or achievement.

Copies of TDY or special duty orders.

After action reports, situation reports, rosters, unit files, etc.

Statements from supervisors, commanders or other officials who were in a position to verify the soldier's direct participation in the operation area.

These operations are in addition to several other relief operations such as the Enewetak Radiological Cleanup, previously approved for the award.

Civilian receives 50-year service pin

John M. Miller Sr.

John M. Miller Sr. enlisted in the Army 50 years ago and he's still employed by the Army although he's now a civilian.

On Dec. 12, Miller was awarded his 50-year Federal Service pin, becoming only the second person in the post's 62-year history to reach that milestone.

Miller, 68, is now chief of the Inspector General's (IG) Funds Section, a post he hopes to hold until his 70th birthday.

The first 26 years of his five-decade career were spent in the Army with tours in the Panama Canal Zone, Iceland, England, France, Germany and Fort Benning.

The remaining 24 years have been spent working for the same IG office. He assumed the same job as a civilian that he held as an Army man.

Hypothermia is silent winter killer

Hypothermia is a killer! It stalks its victims in 30 to 50 degree weather. You could be its next fatality during a cold weather exercise.

Hypothermia is the subnormal temperature of the body caused by exposure to the cold. It is the number one killer of outdoor recreationists and could be a major killer of soldiers involved in winter training.

There are two steps in this killer's method of operation. The first step is exposure and exhaustion. The instant your body begins to lose heat faster than it can produce heat, you suffer from exposure.

In the second step, your energy reserves become exhausted and, unknown to you, cold reaches your brain. Judgment and reasoning are lost, loss of hand control and further decline of the body's temperature results in death if there is no treatment given to the victim.

There are several precautionary measures that can be taken to prevent serious injury to soldiers during the period of exposure and gradual exhaustion.

Beware of the wind

A slight breeze carries heat away from bare skin much faster than still air. Wind drives cold air under and through clothing. Wind also refrigerates wet clothes by evaporating moisture from the surface, thus reducing its ability to keep in the body's heat. This can be prevented by wearing woolen underwear, long wool pants and sweaters to insulate the body.

Understand cold weather

Most hypothermia occurs in air temperatures between 30 and 50 degrees. Many people underestimate the danger of being wet at such temperatures — with fatal results. The cold that kills is cold water running down neck and legs, water held against the body by sopping wet clothes and cold water taking body heat from the surface of the clothes. Don't ask, "How cold is the air?" Ask instead, "How cold is the water against my body?"

Below is a wind chill chart that will help you determine the temperature in relation to the velocity of the wind.

By following these basic C-O-L-D guide lines, the chances of becoming a cold victim are reduced. Stay healthy — stay cold.

How C-C-C-Cold Is It...?

(Wind speeds greater than 40 mph have little additional chilling effect.)

How Cold is Cold? Both temperature and wind affect the heat loss from the surface of the body. The effect of these two factors is expressed as an "equivalent temperature," which approximates the still-air temperature which would have the same cooling effect as the wind and temperature combination. For example, from the table above, with a temperature of 20°F. and a wind of 20 mph the effect on exposed flesh is the same as -9°F. with no wind.

Doughboys take Rucker Holiday Tourney gold

By TIM BOIVIN

The Doughboys, led by tournament Most Valuable Player Fredrick Nelson, took first place at the Fort Rucker Holiday Tournament for the second year in a row last weekend.

Nelson hit for an average of 19 points per game in the four games the Doughboys had to play.

The closest any of the teams came to the Doughboys in the final score was 26 points by Warner Robbins Air Force Base in the first game Friday night and by Moody Air Force Base Saturday morning. The average margin of victory for the Doughboys was 29 points.

DOUGHBOYS 106

WARNER ROBBINS AFB 80

The Doughboys fell behind early, 2-1, but three times in the first half scored 10 straight points to open up a 55-29 lead at the half.

This game marked the debut of 6'8" center Erich Schlossberg for the Doughboys, and what a debut it was! Schlossberg led all scorers with 21 points, many of them coming on tip-ins and shots from underneath the basket after rebounds.

The Doughboys had five other scorers in double figures. Nelson and Luke Fencher each had 19, Silas Anderson had 12, guard Nate Harris drove for 11 and Melvin Hudson poured in 10 from his forward position. The leading scorer for Robbins was Milton Lawrence with 20.

The second half was played evenly as Robbins never was any closer than 24 points and the Doughboy's lead sometimes grew to as much as 32.

DOUGHBOYS 98 MOODY AFB 72

Before this game began the Moody bench chanted "Remember, the fat man must go" in reference in Doughboy's Head Coach Tony made his Buddha-like presence felt as he jostled with the crowd and exhorted his team from the bench.

The Doughboys responded to the pre-game vocal taunts by opening up an early 5-0 lead and never looking back as they led throughout the game. The Doughboys led by seven at halftime, 39-32, and hit countless lay-ups off the fast break as their front line controlled the boards and got the ball down the court fast.

The Doughboys suffered their only setback of the tournament as forward Tony Haycliff twisted his ankle and had to be helped from the court. Because of the depth of the Doughboy's bench the injury had hardly any effect on their style and quality of play.

The Doughboys had six players in double figures again this game as Nelson led the way with 19. Fencher had 16, Harris 14, Larry Varnedoe and Silas Anderson both hit for 12, and Schlossberg drilled in 10.

DOUGHBOYS 106 FORT RUCKER 72

The Doughboys got revenge for the two losses the Flyers pinned on them the previous weekend as they ran away from the Flyers behind Harris' 22 points.

The Doughboys opened up a 48-36 bulge at halftime and after a basket by Rucker's guard John Epps, an offensive foul was called on Epps as Harris had established his position before the shot. When Epps came down after releasing the ball, he sent Harris reeling as he came full force into Harris. The Doughboys bench was on its feet with the call and this seemed to inspire their teammates on the floor as they outscored the Flyers 12-4 before Rucker called time-out.

Rucker came out of the time-out with a man-to-man defense and the Doughboys just ran around picks, screens and the like to open up an 87-60 lead with 4:35 left in the game on a lay-up by Varnedoe, the Doughboy's ball-handling guard. After a free throw by Epps, Varnedoe scored on another fast break basket for an 89-61 lead as the Flyers bench dejectedly kept their eyes glued to their feet on the floor.

Coach Resino then took his starters out of the game one by one and congratulated them on their performance as the Doughboy's reserves put the finishing touches on the 34-point victory.

Harris again led the Doughboys as he powered past the taller players on the floor for 22 points. Nelson dropped in 18, mostly from inside after battling for rebounds, and Varnedoe, usually more concerned with bringing the ball up the floor, scored 14 on one-handed push shots from the outside and fast break lay-ups.

Coach Resino instituted a 3-2 zone to combat the outside shooting of Flyer's guard George Clash, who had hurt them the previous weekend with shots from the top of the free throw circle. In this zone the guards were free to cover the wings while the center came out and kept a hand in the face of Clash when he shot.

This seemed to rattle George as he scored a sub-par 15 points. The zone worked so well that Coach Resino planned to use it in the final if they had to play Rucker again, as was the case. Epps led the Flyers with 25 points, most coming in the fourth quarter on bombs from the corner after the game was out of reach.

DOUGHBOYS 102 FORT RUCKER 71

Fort Rucker advanced to the championship game by virtue of their 107-91 victory over Fort McClellan in the loser's bracket semi-final. The Flyers played that game at 10 a.m. Sunday and only had an hour off before they had to play the Doughboys. They knew they would have to beat the Doughboys then and again at 3 p.m. to win the championship. The Doughboys were well rested as they had not played since 8:30 the previous night.

Coach Resino exhorted his players before the game to run up and down the court as fast as they could. He said, "They just got through a tough game with McClellan and if they're not tired now, I want you to run and make them tired by halftime."

Fredrick Nelson lets go with one of his jump shots on his way to being named Most Valuable Player at the Fort Rucker Holiday Tournament. Nelson averaged 19 points per game from his forward position to lead the Doughboys to the tournament championship for the second year in a row.

The strategy didn't seem to work in the early going as the Flyers stayed close, on the baseline shooting of Epps and inside baskets by Marcus Sherman. The Doughboys were behind 36-35 when the Flyer's fatigue began to set in with about two-and-a-half minutes left in the first half.

First, the Doughboy's Fencher hit from about 18 feet and then Schlossberg muscled his way inside for a basket. Schlossberg was fouled by Sherman the next time down the court and he converted both free throws.

Nate Harris hit a jumper from 10 feet to make the score 43-36 at the half.

The Doughboys' Fredrick Nelson was uncharacteristically quiet in the first half as he only scored two points. In the second half Nelson, who keeps the team loose with his antics, loosened up himself and exploded for 17 points and broke the game open for the Doughboys.

Most of Nelson's baskets were in the 10-15 foot range that he seems to have mastered. After the game, Nelson attributed his success to Coach Resino. He said, "I have a lot more confidence in my shot and I credit Coach Resino for that. Without him I might have let it bother me but he just made me keep trying it."

Fencher had 21 points with many of them coming off of his sweet, swishing 20-25 foot bombs at a 45 degree angle from the hoop. Every time Luke would let one go, the bench in unison would let go with a yell of "YANK" and the ball would inevitably swish through. Coach Resino said, "When Luke gets into the stream of the game, there isn't a better player on the floor. He rebounds, he shoots and he plays tough, aggressive defense."

Nate Harris had 16 points and seemed to spark the Doughboys with his continuous drives into the land of the big man underneath the basket. Despite his smallish physique, Harris was not shy about going up for rebounds and often he skyed higher than the bigger players on the floor.

Erich Schlossberg ended up with 16 points in the championship game and was the mainstay of the 3-2 zone that put the clamps on Flyer's guard George Clash. He also provided rest for the front line without a drop in the scoring punch. Coach Resino said, "With Erich, we have an awesome front line no matter who we have on the floor. We don't have to worry about foul trouble. When we get James King back, we're going to be so big there shouldn't be any team that we can't stay on the floor with."

Larry Varnedoe had eight points and broke the press that Rucker tried to use when they fell behind. He was the man who brought the ball upcourt and set up the plays.

In the reserve section, the Doughboys had players they put on the floor and kept the Doughboys moving. These included Darryl Bedenfield, Silas Anderson, Stuart Roberts and Anthony Chatmon.

The Doughboys next games are against Fort Rucker Jan. 4 and 5 at Briant-Wells Field House.

BAYONET commentary

Our teams need your support

By TIM BOIVIN

Congratulations to the Doughboy basketball team that took first place in the Fort Rucker Holiday Tournament for the second straight year. The victory was very satisfying for the team but could have been more satisfying if they had any type of support in the stands.

It is getting pretty bad when the only folks cheering for the Doughboys are the teams that had already been eliminated from the tournament, as was the case in Sunday's final against Fort Rucker.

Fort Rucker is only two hours up the road from here. On a post this size, it would not be inconceivable that at least a few supporters would show up. However, not one was to be seen in the stands all weekend.

The Doughboys are 9-5 this year and can rarely pull more than 50 people into the gym at home. Not only are the Doughboys having a good year but the Doughgirls have only suffered one loss in seven games this year. That was against unbeaten Fort Rucker and they came back against the Flyers and some bad officiating the next night to give Rucker its first loss in 10 games.

This post, with more than 20,000 soldiers assigned to it, should be able to support two fine basketball teams with a better following than 50 people. The games are free and played at Brian Wells Field House next to the post office. Come out and support the Doughboys in their next game against Fort Rucker Jan. 4 and 5. The Doughgirls will precede the men's games.

MARATHON

Fred Dyer proved there is life after 40 at last Saturday's Huntsville Marathon. His 2:57 provided the best time for all the Fort Benning runners, and a good time it was too, considering the biting winds. Fort Benning's Zachary Doppel, James Cambron and Charles Briscoe posted times of 3:13, 3:17 and 3:30, respectively. But the big news — as usual — was Columbus' Bruce Skiles.

Bruce blazed to the Olympic trials with a time of 2:21.46, roughly 5:24 per mile for 26 miles 385 yards. Still, the competition was so strong, the best the Kendrick High coach could do with tenth place. A total of eleven runners qualified for the May Olympic trials in Buffalo, N.Y.

Congratulations to Bruce and all the runners. Just finishing demands a great deal of respect.

Today's Fun Run is about the only thing happening in the area for the rest of this year. For the last entrants who did not read of the run last week, call 2nd Lt. Tony Knight for details: 545-2332/4178 or 544-4516.

The next big one is the Savannah Marathon on Jan. 5. Fort Benning will have a group going in case anyone else is interested.

Firearms shipments to Italy banned

WASHINGTON (ARNEWS) — "Hey, Joe. Hear you're going to Italy on orders. Don't take that handgun with you."

Privately-owned firearms cannot be shipped to Italy by military or civilian personnel or their dependents, according to officials of the Southern European Task Force (SETAF). The ban on importing personal firearms began last April.

SETAF officials say the ban was started because of more strict enforcement of a 1975 law concerning importation of firearms. Formerly, firearms brought into Italy by people under military orders were registered by SETAF police agencies.

Military personnel with firearms who are already enroute to Italy should contact the SETAF Provost Marshal's Office immediately on arrival, the officials explained.

According to the SETAF provost marshal, firearms can be taken away and destroyed if they are imported illegally and are unregistered. Heavy fines and stiff prison sentences also face violators of Italy's firearms law.

The 1st Battalion, 58th Infantry (Mech), 197th Infantry Brigade, (SEP), recently conducted a four-day field training exercise (FTX). The FTX began with a two-and-one half hour road march, followed by digging-in defensively and camouflaging their position. The following days were spent conducting tactic maneuvers such as movement to contact, withdrawing from positions under enemy pressure and tactical road marches.

The 1/58th Infantry was supported by the 3rd Battalion, 7th Infantry, 197th Infantry Brigade, (SEP), which proved no match for the Fighting Patriots.

CSM Kyser of the 1/58th stated, with his ever-present cigar tucked between his lips, "Lately there has been some controversy over who wins or losses FTX's, but this time we won it."

Ever alert for the enemy, PFC Michael Fulmore, Company B, 1/58th Infantry, keeps the careful eye of the trained infantryman over the battlefield.

MP DOGS

Next, a dog searched a vehicle for narcotics. Two bags of marijuana were placed underneath the bumper and the dog sniffed around the truck. When the dog found the marijuana, he grabbed the package with his teeth and pulled it out. As a reward, his handler gave him a rubber ball.

If the narcotics dog found drugs but could not reach them, he would scratch, jump and bark at the place they were hidden.

A new vehicle was brought out onto the field with an explosives wrapper on it. An explosives dog sniffed around the truck and when he smelled the wrapper, he sat down.

Widner told the audience, "The reason the dog sat down was because many bombs are the type that will go off under the slightest amount of applied pressure. Therefore, the dogs are trained not to do anything but sit once they have found the device."

The bomb dog, named Chico and handled by Widner, has a 100 percent success rate in finding bombs so far.

The only dogs used by the Army are German Shepherds. The reason for this is the German Shepherd's double coat of fur, which makes it easy for a Shepherd to adjust to different types of climate. If it is too warm, a Shepherd can shed a coat of fur in less than two weeks. If it is too cold, a coat can be added in less than two weeks.

The guard dogs also have been trained by the West Georgia Correctional Institution in Columbus to pick up a scent and track a lost, escaping or hiding person.

Both handlers and patrol dogs go through a 10-week training course at Lackland Air Force Base in San Antonio, Texas. An additional nine-week course is required for both the dog and the handler if they want to go through the narcotics or explosives detection course.

Widner said, "Whether or not a dog goes on with the handler to a permanent party station depends on if the post needs a new dog."

At the end of the demonstration, the JROTC cadets gathered around the handlers and the dogs to pet the German Shepherds and ask the handlers questions. Many of the Jordan High School students were surprised that the dogs didn't bark at them and actually enjoyed the attention they were getting.

Dinner closes Scouting year

The Fort Benning District Boy Scouts, Chattahoochee Council, recently rounded up their year with a pot luck dinner held at the Harmony Church Recreation Center.

The annual event, carrying the theme of 'Scouting for All Season', was held to honor adult volunteers who have significantly contributed to this year's Scouting program.

The dinner began with a musical concert presented by the Explorer Post 79 Colonial Band under the direction of Bill Drollinger. They played a variety of selections from Sousa marches to jazz.

Lt. Col. B. J. Maynard, toastmaster, introduced the guests which included Chief of Staff Col. Addison D. Davis III and Dr. Robert E. Bennet, guest speaker.

Gary Starling, local Boy Scouts of America representative, gave recognition to the various Scouting leaders and representatives of the local Scout troops. Starling later gave the district progress report and was given a Department of the Army Certificate of Achievement for his efforts. The award was presented by Davis.

Bennet, the associate director of student services at Columbus College, spoke on his youthful experiences with his old Scoutmaster. He stressed the importance of the Scout leader as a teacher and a model for the Scouts. He also spoke on the need to motivate and challenge the youths toward a tangible goal.

Bennet, assisted by Maynard and Starling, then presented the three district Awards of Merit to William Lord, Richard White and June Jones.

For next year, a January skill rally and a March district swimming meet are some of the events scheduled.

Foreign Training Conference held

By T. A. SABEL

The Foreign Training Conference was held this year at Fort Benning Nov. 11-13. The event is held annually at the different Army posts which work with the Security Assistance Program.

The approximately 120 attendants met to discuss problems in training foreign soldiers in the hopes of finding solutions, according to Col. Kitt M. MacMichael, Security Assistance Program director.

They were welcomed by Col. Bobby Harris, conference host, stressing in a speech the investment Fort Benning's training has been to American foreign policy. He also spoke on the vital exchange of ideas occurring among the different countries training here.

Maj. Gen. D. E. Rosenblum, TRADOC deputy chief of staff, spoke on the Security Assistance Program as a tool for diplomacy. Since many governments are buying training and technology on the world's open marketplace, America has had to change the approach in training allied students. Eighty percent of the countries training in the United States are paying for their own training, placing American training in competition with other nations, said Rosenblum.

The Assistant Secretary of State for Human Rights, Dr. Steven Cohen, spoke on the growing concern for human rights in foreign policy. He said military aid would not be sent to repressive governments unless it was in the interest of national security. "There have been tangible improvements around the world in the area of human rights. Certain tyrannies have been overthrown, specifically Amin of Uganda, Bokassa of the Central African Empire and Ndong of Equatorial Guinea," said Cohen.

Cohen does not see a conflict between human rights and national security. "The moral good and practical means of protecting American self interests are both compatible and necessary in today's world," said Cohen.

Tuesday evening a joint reception was held at the Officer's Club for the members of the conference and the allied students graduating from the Advanced Infantry Officers Course.

The six buffet tables featured roast beef, turkey and a Christmas tree of boiled, grilled shrimp as well as an array of canapes and hors d'oeuvres made under the direction of chef Bob Hamilton.

In the receiving line were Col. and Mrs. Bobby Harris, host, Col. and Mrs. Richard Simpson, senior faculty advisor for the IOAC, and Maj. and Mrs. El-Sayed, the Egyptian senior allied student.

The band, the 283rd Army Band Combo, appropriately played soft up-beat jazz, one of the few indigenous American music forms, at this international fete.

In a presentation speech Harris remarked, "Friendship today could lead to harmony tomorrow."

The evening round down with refreshments and dancing.

Pen pals ease loneliness

WASHINGTON (ARNEWS) — "Mail call" for some soldiers can be the loneliest time of the day. If you don't get any mail, you may feel forgotten.

The Louisville, Ken. United Services Organization (USO) is doing something to ease the sense of loneliness with its USO Pen Pal Program.

According to a Louisville USO official, the USO Pen Pal Program is open to everyone. All that's needed to participate is a pen, piece of paper, an envelope and postage stamp.

Soldiers, sailors, and airmen can write civilian USO pen pals or to other service members in the USO program.

To request a USO pen pal, send your name, mailing address, including zip code, and some personal information about yourself (age, hobbies, hometown, etc.) to the USO Pen Pal Program, 720 W. Muhammad Ali Blvd., Louisville, Ky. 40203.

According to the official, the requests are then matched and kits with the name of a USO pen pal and a few guidelines for corresponding are sent to each writer.

The Louisville USO became involved in this program in June 1979 after several Fort Knox soldiers asked USO program volunteers to write them in Germany to keep them abreast of changes in the States.

A Conscious Christmas Carol

'Twas the month before Christmas and all through the world People are preparing for the holiday twirl
Here are some reminders for you holiday celebrants
For a happy holiday without any accidents
If you buy a tree
fresh it should be
With the needles all tight while the branches feel springy
Keep water in the stand and check all the lights
For broken insulation and loose sockets will bite
Don't overload circuits use extension cords sparingly
If you leave or go to bed be sure to unplug your tree
If you have a fireplace keep your tree away from it
And don't burn gift wrappings or leave combustibles close to it if you come in a car and have a bit too much to sip Let someone sober drive to insure a safe trip
Make sure your car is prepared for winter conditions

Watch out for pedestrians and leave early for your destination
Keep your things locked help prevent crime
Lock your doors when you park
don't leave keys behind Keep your packages and other valuables out of sight
At night park your car in places with lots of light Leave a spare key with a well trusted neighbor
Don't hide it outside

even amateurs look there
And when you're away make your house look occupied
So use a light timer and hide your valuables inside
Tell all of your kids not to play alone or in the woods
To stay away from strangers for they just might happen to be hoods

If you are attacked shout or blow a whistle
The attacker should run like a supersonic missile Enjoy the holidays and the enjoyment of giving
Be safe, not sorry and cherish the gift of living

Army chief of staff sets goals for today's soldier

By DAVE MOONEY

WASHINGTON (ARNEWS) — There is a momentum going and growing throughout the country in support of the military.

A recent Gallup Poll on public confidence in institutions in American society showed that the military ranked third, behind the church and banks. This is an expression of confidence in our ability to do the job we are trained to do.

That job is well expressed in recent sayings and writings of our chief of staff, Gen. E. C. Meyer. He has laid out two basic goals for the Army:

- To insure that we have an Army that is capable of going to war today and tomorrow (into the 1990s).

- To create a climate within the Army that permits each individual to have the opportunity to fulfill themselves to their total capability.

To do that we first have to:

- Man the force. That is the number one priority, for without people, there is no Army.

- Modernize the force. Overcome our 10-year-break in force development and bring the right equipment into the inventory at the right time with all that is needed to properly train our soldiers to employ and maintain that equipment.

- Train the force. With supplies and ammunition and replacements and all the rest of the things our combat support and combat service support units provide — for as long as we have to.

Now if you're looking for challenges, chew on those for a while. No, better yet, chew on them only a little while and then begin to do something to meet them. It's not the Chief, nor the Army Staff, nor the Generals who are going to get this done. It's all of us, and all of us includes soldiers, officers, NCOs, veterans, students, laborers, insurance men, hotel managers . . . all Americans.

Think we can do it? I do. With real dedication on the part of those of us who wear a uniform — all the time or part of the time — and with the support of the rest of the people, brought about by an awareness of the missions of the Army, we can do it.

We can start in earnest this month. Throughout December and into the new year, the Army is promoting a program to recognize the need for and value of service to the country. The theme is "America's future is today's challenge, and serving the country is both an honor and a citizen's responsibility."

Focus was given to this program in a nationally televised tribute to General of the Army Omar N. Bradley by members of all the services at halftime during the Sun Bowl in El Paso, Tex. on Dec. 22.

But don't leave it to one televised event. Ask yourself what you can do in your neighborhood or church or school organization to make a few citizens aware that national defense is a national responsibility.

I bet we can do it.

Don't forget the candles!

By STEVE GENSER

"Daddy, may I go over to Tommy's house to play?"

"Sure son, make sure you're home early. I don't want you riding the horse after dark. Stop at Foodland before it closes and buy some candles or you won't be able to see when you do your homework tonight."

"You know Dad, it's not fair. When you were my age you had cars, electric lights and all kinds of neat things."

Fortunately, I woke up and ended this nightmare before I had to answer, but what would I have told my child?

Would I have had the courage to tell him the truth? Could I have admitted that his parents' generation had selfishly used up all the energy sources?

Would he be able to understand our apathy in the 70's when we were told we were running out of fossil fuels? That we ignored energy days and other methods to conserve?

Would he believe that a generation that put man on the moon failed to develop alternate energy sources?

How would I explain that people wasted something he never had? That people left on lights, stereos, air conditioners and televisions when they weren't even home to use them?

How would I explain the everyday use of dishwashers, hair dryers and electric can openers?

How would I explain that we could still have the energy we needed if we hadn't wasted it in the past. That I didn't want to be the only one to sacrifice a few luxuries.

Our child is yet to be born, and like most parents to be, I wonder what kind of life he will have. I want him to have everything. I wonder if we will leave him anything.

To the Editor:

I would like to take this opportunity to thank the Finance and Accounting Office (FAO) and their personnel for assisting me and my family during this holiday season. After a flood and a loss of a home through fire we will still have a wonderful Christmas and a Happy New Year thanks to them. Specifically, I would like to thank SSG Richard Benson and SFC Bobby Jones. Again, they have shown me and my family that the Army takes care of its own.

1/29th makes it a merry Christmas

By MARK CAUTHEN

Students of the Stewart Quitman Chatta-hoochee Training Center for the Mentally Handicapped will have a merry Christmas thanks to some soldiers from the 1/29th Infantry Battalion, 197th Infantry Brigade (Sep).

The soldiers threw their sixth annual Christmas party in the student's honor Dec. 19 at the center.

The afternoon festivities included disco dancing, Christmas carol sing-a-longs and a visit from Santa Claus.

SSgt. Phillip Wolfe of Company B, who planned the party, said, "The soldiers of the battalion take great pride in the work they do for the center, which includes everything from basic maintenance to throwing parties like this for the kids."

Sgt. Edward Talton, when asked what he thought of the program, said, "It makes you feel good doing something for people who really need the help."

Mrs. Ginger Kemp, the director of the center, said, "I'm glad to see the soldiers of the Army show the concern for the needs of the center and its' students."

Stable hands sought

If you like horses there may be a job especially for you at Fort Sam Houston, Texas.

Attending overseas briefing solves hardships

By GARY JONES

Perhaps one of the most misunderstood duty sections here is the Redeployment Section located in Bldg. 83.

Many soldiers view the personnel of the Redeployment Section as unfeeling villains and henchmen who separate families and try to keep soldiers stranded overseas as much as possible. However, the real mission of the Redeployment Section is solely to aid soldiers and their families who have come down on levy.

The biggest problem facing the Redeployment Section when trying to help military families is the number of soldiers who choose not to show up for their overseas orientation briefing. "On an average day about 130 persons out of 200 show up for their briefings," explained 1st Lt. Robert Newcomb, OIC of the Redeployment Section.

Soldiers going overseas receive their orientation briefing in two parts. The first part of the briefing is given in a classroom in Bldg. 4 (Infantry Hall) and takes about four hours. At this briefing a film on the new assignment is shown as well as presentations by representatives from various sections such as Army Community Services, Staff Judge Advocate, Transportation, etc. Soldiers learn what options are open to them as far as concurrent travel, joint domicile, dependent passports, special medical or educational needs of dependent children or various other needs, including possibly being deleted from levy if they meet the criteria, according to Newcomb.

Following the initial portion of the briefing, the soldiers then go individually to the Redeployment Section where a clerk sits down with them and helps to accomplish whatever needs to be done in order to make the overseas tour of duty as enjoyable as possible. This portion of the briefing usually takes from 25 minutes to an hour to complete. The amount of time it requires to process at the Redeployment Section depends on the soldier's marital status and the size of the family, according to Newcomb.

The personnel at the Redeployment Section can do a lot to make the overseas tour of duty easier for the soldier but only if the soldier takes the time to attend the briefings. "A lot of people think that if they don't show up for the briefings we will forget about them and pick someone else to go in their place but DA is the one who selects them," said CWO 4 Terry Hall, Redeployment Section. "We're not the ones who put them on levy, we just get them ready to go."

When soldiers don't show up for their briefing it usually hurts them down the road when they get ready to leave. A prime example of this is the soldier who marries a foreigner while overseas and brings his/her spouse back to the States not expecting to come down on levy again for four to five years.

Then, after maybe a year or so, they come down on levy. If they don't attend their orientation briefing they will find that when it is time to leave they won't be able to take their spouse because their spouse cannot receive a passport unless he/she is an American citizen. After only such a short period of time the spouse would have had time to become a naturalized citizen.

Had the soldier come to the briefing then, he would have known about the problem and could have taken steps to get his spouse naturalized before it was too late for the spouse to accompany him.

"There have been numerous cases where unit PSNCOs fail to inform a soldier that he was on levy, causing him to miss his briefing," said Newcomb. According to Newcomb, more command emphasis is needed to insure that soldiers are aware of their levy status and get a chance to attend their briefing.

Part of every soldier's career is serving overseas. By taking full advantage of the Redeployment Section, soldiers can make their time overseas possibly the most memorable part of their military careers.

Better Business Bureau warns about bargains

It's fun to be fooled . . . under some circumstances. But not when you're buying meat for your locker or freezer.

Don't be fooled by those "bait and switch" freezer meat ads. They're the ones that advertise bulk quantities of meat at unbelievably low prices. That's the BAIT.

When you visit the ad sponsor's establishment to inquire about this bargain-priced meat, you are sold something else at a much higher price. That's the SWITCH.

Usually, the item to which you're switched is priced MUCH HIGHER than that at which it could have been bought from a legitimate meat dealer.

What are the pitfalls to avoid when dealing with the sponsor of such ads?

- Watch out for the "switch." When you actually see the advertised "U.S. BEEF HIND" in the cooler, it will likely be the fattest, most wasteful, hunk of meat you've ever seen. Also it will probably be the moldiest. You'll shudder at the very thought of being stuck with it and will almost feel relieved when the salesman says, "Now of course, we'll sell you this if you want it . . . but, quite frankly, we know you'll be much happier with that." Then he'll switch you to some other beef priced much higher than the price that originally caught your eye. And, invariably, if you buy this beef to which your interest has been switched, you'll pay a substantially higher price than if you had bought it from an ethical dealer.

- Sometimes the switch is handled by outright disparagement as the salesman showing you the beef makes it clear that only a fool would purchase such fat and wasteful beef. Or, the salesman may tell you that the advertised carcass is sold and that they can't get anymore. Whatever his excuse may be, if he tries to switch you to other higher priced meat, you can be sure you're dealing with a "bait and switch" artist.

- Don't let yourself be unduly influenced by the "FREE" bonus offer of a ham or turkey, a bundle of meat, 75 pork chops, or some free steaks. These so-called "FREE GIFTS" are never free . . . their cost is hidden in the price of what you buy. Remember, nothing is really free if it is advertised as part of the deal.

- Look out for misleading words and phrases that are supposed to identify the cuts of meat. Take "BEEF HALF" for example. When most folks see this phrase they think of a "side of beef." In legitimate meat business parlance a "side of beef" means a fore quarter and a hind quarter from the same beef animal. But that's not necessarily what the bait and switch freezer meat dealers mean by "BEEF HALF." This misleading phrase is frequently applied to an assortment of beef which did not come from the same side of beef and which may or may not add up to the value of an actual side of beef. In fact, we know of cases where people have bought a "BEEF HALF" thinking that they were getting a side (a front quarter and a hind quarter) who actually received two front quarters. They got a "half," but they didn't get what they expected!

- Be careful about misleading words and phrases that are supposed to tell you the grade or quality of the meat. Take "Government Inspected" for example. There is no such U.S. Grade as "Government Inspected."

USDA GRADE A is another such phrase. There is no "GRADE A" in the United States Department of Agriculture's meat grade nomenclature. Meat may be USDA inspected or state inspected but, unless it bears the designation "Prime," "Choice," or "Good" (lower grades are "Standard," "Commercial," "Utility," "Cutter," "Canner"), it is not government graded. Grading and inspection are two entirely different things.

- Another aspect of grading you should know about is "Yield Grade." This is a method of indicating the percentage of yield within a grade of closely trimmed cuts on a scale ranging from 1 to 5. Yield Grade 1 reflects the highest yield of closely trimmed table-ready cuts and the least waste. Yield Grade 5 provides the lowest yield of cuts with the highest waste . . . with the numbers in between varying accordingly. "Bait and switch" freezer meat ads often carry a yield grade indication (usually yield grades 4 or 5) in very small print. If later on, you complain about poor yield, they simply point out the yield grade designation in their advertisement.

- Be alert for attempts to "load" your order. Quality hind quarters of beef sold by ethical meat dealers usually weigh less than 200 lbs. before processing. Yet many people who have bought so-called "BEEF HINDS" from bait and switch dealers find themselves with from 300-400 pounds on their hands, made up largely of cheaper cuts from the fore part of the animal.

- Beware of high pressure sales tactics. The bait and switch people will likely press you for a signed order right on the spot. They don't want to give you time to think it over . . . they want you to buy now before you have a chance to compare the over-priced merchandise to which they're trying to switch you with the prices offered by reliable and ethical dealers.

- Don't fall for "FREE CARRYING CHARGES FOR SIX MONTHS" and similar claims. You know, from your own experience, that interest on carrying charges are a legitimate and normal part of time-payment buying. If they're not itemizing these charges, you can be sure they're hidden in the price of the meat.

- Be on the lookout for deception everywhere. When advertised by the bait and switch freezer meat people "30 LBS. OF COUNTRY CURED HAM AT 56¢ A LB." can prove to be largely chunks of ham shanks and cured shoulder with few if any genuine center-cut ham slices. "25 LBS. OF PORK CHOPS, ROASTS AND RIBS AT 66¢ A LB. UP . . . CUT AND DOUBLE WRAPPED FREE" may turn out to mean just that. If your purchase weighs 200 lbs. or more there is no charge for cutting and wrapping; if it's less than 200 lbs. you're charged for it. This "CUT AND DOUBLE WRAP" phrase usually turns out to be accurate in at least one respect . . . no freezing is mentioned. Getting the meat frozen is usually your problem.

These are some of the pitfalls in buying meat from the "bait and switch" freezer meat people. Take our advice and play it safe. Buy your freezer meat from your established, locally-owned locker-freezer provisioner or meat processor who refrains from using "bait" type advertising and who wants your repeat business. He will serve you best. When in doubt, FIND OUT call your Better Business Bureau.

Cancer death rate linked to lack of will to live

By TERRI MOON

The will to live can be very strong. So can the will to die.

Dr. Lawrence LeShen, psychotherapist has conducted research on cancer and personality for 30 years. At the recent Holistic Medicine Conference held at Reed, Leshen discussed how different cancer patients react to treatment and how their personalities can affect that reaction.

"It's been known for many years that the psychological state of the patient is important in a determination of how the patient does," LeShen began. "The emotional factor is very important in the development of cancer."

Emotions affect disease

Most commonly, he said cancer patients experience feelings of despair, a state of hopelessness and helplessness. "Many have a loss of belief in the future, and don't think they'll ever have a meaning in life," LeShen said, noting the increased cancer risk facing those patients who, in their personal lives, have lost a major relationship with someone, and couldn't find a substitute. This, LeShen asserted, has a lot to do with how a patient develops cancer and how he reacts to it.

LeShen outlined a study of people with a good, a so-so, or a poor emotional outlook and their vulnerability to the disease. "Those with a good emotional outlook will probably not develop cancer. Those with a poor emotional outlook are five times as likely to develop cancer as those with a good outlook." In this study, he explains, the so-so outlook was just thrown out.

He went on to define his "good" and "poor" outlooks.

Early childhood development shapes a person's outlook, LeShen affirmed. In his research of 75 patients which lasted 15 years, he found that as children, most of the adults he studied had lost something that "played a part in shaping that person's character. As an adult, (they found) there was no longer a substitute to fill that void in life."

Three examples

LeShen cited three cases of patients who had this syndrome. "The first was the leader of a gang in Harlem. He began at age 12 and was the warlord at 15. The gang looked up to him for decisions. The leader enjoyed this very much. They all took care of each other in dangerous times. Over the years, however, the gang was split up. Some went to jail, some into the military, some died, some married. He was left alone. As an adult, the former warlord suddenly had nothing and couldn't find a substitute. He developed Hodgkin's Disease."

LeShen began working with the patient. "He wanted to become a fireman, but without a high school diploma, things looked bleak. Nevertheless, in his hospital bed, he studied for his equivalency and got his GED certificate. Signs of his cancer began to regress, to dissipate, enough so that he was able to pass a physical to become a fireman, and he did just that."

The second patient was a woman, a very prominent senior editor of a magazine in New York. "All of her life she'd fought hard to have this career. She made a lot of money, had a penthouse and was very highly regarded. But when she arrived at this destination, she found that she hated every minute of it. She also hated herself for never marrying. At her mid-forties, she developed a widespread melanoma. Eventually," LeShen reported, "I worked with her and she made a major decision: to go back to school, quit her job, get her master's and work with neurologically disturbed children, something she had wanted to do since college. I didn't see her for a couple of years, but then I passed her one day on the street. She was very happy, and we embraced. She said to me, 'Hey, you wanna know why I haven't called you' I've been too busy living my own life to have any time for any such nonsense as cancer, psychotherapy, or you!" I thought that was the best accolade possible."

The third patient was a woman whom LeShen described as coming "from the old country." Her parents had died, and she, being the eldest, was responsible for her younger brothers and sisters. "She did not even finish the fourth grade. Eventually she married, but her husband was an alcoholic, and after raising her own children, she was left with nothing. Again, the loss of a major relationship with no substitute. She developed an advanced stomach cancer."

When LeShen began working with her, the woman was living alone in a New York City apartment with little money. She often went to ballets in the city, when a neighbor gave her tickets. "When she was placed in the hospital, she began channeling her energies into writing a book about the ballet theatre in New York," LeShen recalled, adding that she met with a lot of opposition from her family and the doctors and nurses. "The family said, 'Why are you letting this old lady do this? She can't write a book!' and the hospital staff found that she was not 'a good patient' because she disturbed the other patients by writing late at night with the lights on and asking why she had to have certain procedures, when before she had been quite passive.

"But a better patient is one who has a hand in her own destiny and is fighting for her life," LeShen explained. The opposition finally went away. Unfortunately, he admitted, this story did not have the happy ending of the others. She died. "But even though she knew the book would never be published, she died singing her song."

Conspiracy of silence

LeShen says it's imperative for patients to remain thinking they have a purpose, some responsibility. "Too often the family is overprotective. They say, 'No you're ill, I'll take care of you' or 'Don't bother Daddy with this, he's sick.' They reduce the patient to an infant, although they mean well." He calls this syndrome the "conspiracy of silence."

LeShen points in many psychological factors that are often used to determine what type of person is more likely to get cancer. "During a war the cancer mortality rate drops. After the war it rises again. People have a sense of being needed in a war. After the war, other things happen: Marriages break up and people die."

He also focuses on family generations to try and pinpoint the type of person who develops cancer. "The first generation from the old country has old values, morals and ideals. They relate to solidity. The second generation is the more psychologically disturbed. They have pressures of achieving high goals. They're brought up on the first generation's values, but are exposed to other liberal ones. They have highest cancer mortality rate. In the third generation, there's hardly any at all."

LeShen referred to a study by a former Walter Reed doctor who, 15 years ago, found that Hodgkin's disease was closely related to high intelligence. "It was found through the Army Classification Test scores of 410 enlisted men who, in the two years after induction, were admitted to Army and V.A. hospitals with Hodgkin's. They were (mostly) of high intelligence," LeShen related.

No lack of compassion

Another study done by LeShen in a New York hospital revealed that "the closer a patient was to death, the longer it took the nurse to go see about the patient. This hospital and its nursing staff were supposed to be one of the best," LeShen notes. "But it was their reaction to the patients, not a lack of compassion. The nurses were emotionally exhausted from pain and death."

While there, LeShen also made note of the oncologist. He described this doctor as "good and caring," but he found the doctor to be spending less time with the dying patients. "The care of the terminal patients was less humanistic. The doctor felt helpless and felt it was difficult to meaningfully relate to the dying patient. He knew he was a healer, but was not healing. He was more concerned with the disease and symptoms than with the patient."

The patients own destiny

LeShen concluded by reiterating that "overprotecting" a patient is not the answer. "Only prisoners and babies are treated this way. The patient must have a hand in his own destiny. They must take a full, active part in their own lives and be able to make choices in their forms of treatment, and should have it explained to them. The more they have of this, the better chance there is for their resistance to reach its full potential and battle the disease."

Benefits for veterans and their families and how to get them are described in a booklet, "Federal Benefits for Veterans and Dependents." It can be obtained by sending a check for $1.50 to Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402.

Camellia is an apartment motel. We don't rent rooms, we rent furnished apartments with all the features of a regular motel plus added conveniences that cannot be provided with just a single room - and all at the same, or most times lower rates than the single-room motel. For example, our "standard" unit is comprised of two bedrooms, combination living room-dining room, bathroom and fully furnished kitchen including refrigerator, stove, cooking utensils, and table service for six people. These are some of the "extras" but at no extra cost. Our 100 units are in separate buildings with usually four apartments in each building, which adds to a person's or family's privacy.

Hints offered for promotion boards

The big day finally arrives. You're looking super-strac, and, aside from having a few butterflies in your stomach, you're feeling pretty confident.

You proceed to the appointed place and freeze... "All these sharp people are going before the board, too? I don't stand a chance!" As everyone tries to hog the mirror in the hall, try to regain the confidence you felt earlier. Remind yourself that you all are being evaluated separately.

When you're told, "You're next," and your stomach seems to drop to your knees—relax! You know you can do it! Confidence is half the trick.

When you report to the board:

- Knock LOUDLY on the door of the boardroom and enter when told to do so.
- Approach the president of the board, using proper facing movements.
- Halt at attention in front of the president of the board.
- Render a hand salute and report to the president ("Specialist Four Smith reports to the president of the board, sir!" (or sergeant major). Hold your salute until the president returns it and then make your next move as directed. Usually you will be told to take a seat.

When answering the board members questions:

- Begin all statements to the board members with "Sir," "Sergeant Major," "Sergeant," or as appropriate.
- Don't jeopardize yourself by giving answers you do not know to be correct. An incorrect answer may be worse than an honest, "Sergeant, I don't know the answer."
- Speak loudly. If you feel your voice start to waiver because of nervousness, raising your voice will help to steady it.

• Direct your answer to the person asking the question, maintaining eye contact at all times.

• If you do not understand the question, ask the board member to repeat it or rephrase it.

• Don't mumble or begin your reply with "Uh . . .," "I think," or "I believe." This indicates indecisiveness and could cost you points. Never say "I'm sorry" if you don't know the answer.

• Don't display mannerisms such as rolling your eyes, sighing, or making extreme hand gestures. Don't shuffle your feet or cross your legs. NEVER point your finger at a board member to emphasize your point or answer.

• It is helpful and impressive to repeat the question as part of your answer. For example, "Sergeant, the five colors of the map are . . ."

• When asked your opinion, be sure it is your opinion. Board members do not penalize you for an opinion they don't agree with. They only want to evaluate your knowledge, your speaking ability, and your ability to intelligently present an opinion.

When the board members have finished asking their questions you will be dismissed.

- Come to attention in front of the president.
- Render a hand salute to the president, holding your salute until it is returned.
- Leave the room and close the door unless directed otherwise.

Remember, the board members are not out to discourage or frighten you. They understand that you're nervous and uncomfortable and will do their utmost to put you at ease. (Don't forget that the enlisted members of the board were in your shoes when they were E-4s and E-5s.) Relax—the butterflies in your stomach will disappear eventually. Before you know it, you'll be wishing the next in line "Good Luck!"

Nellie receives excellence award

At a recent awards ceremony for employees of the West Georgia area exchanges, Mrs. Thusnelda "Nellie" Nearin was awarded the coveted AAFES Excellence Award.

During the awards ceremony, Mrs. Nearin was cited for outstanding end of fiscal year 1978 inventory results, her responsiveness, dedication to duty and exceptional supervising ability.

Mrs. Nearin has been an employee of AAFES at Fort Benning for over 12 years. She worked as a salesclerk and was assigned the position of Annex Supervisor of the Bookstore Branch in Bldg. 4 in May, 1976.

Gasohol Tested

Secretary of the Army Clifford L. Alexander, Jr., kicked off the Army's program to test GASOHOL at the US Army Mobility Equipment Research and Development Command (MERADCOM), Fort Belvoir, VA on December 13. GASOHOL (a trademark of Nebraska Agricultural Products Industrial Utilization Committee) is a blend of 90 percent gasoline and 10 percent ethyl alcohol. Its use in military tactical vehicles and equipment is expected to reduce the Army's gasoline consumption. Several state and local governments as well as private industries are currently engaged in GASOHOL evaluation programs.

The purpose of the Army GASOHOL program, to be administered by MERADCOM, is to identify problem areas peculiar to the Army, particularly in military vehicles and fuel handling systems. MERADCOM will purchase 200 proof, denatured ethyl alcohol and blend it with unleaded gasoline in existing fuel storage tanks. The program includes initially, a fleet test involving all of MERADCOM's 115 gasoline powered vehicles and other gasoline powered equipment; a laboratory analysis program; materials compatibility tests; military engine static tests; dynamometer tests and development of a military procurement specification. The Energy and Water Resources Laboratory will have overall responsibility for the program with support from the Services and Support Directorate. MERADCOM's Materials Technology Laboratory will perform the materials compatibility tests, and the Electrical Power Laboratory will perform the static engine tests. Later, the program will expand to the rest of Fort Belvoir and three other Army bases. GASOHOL will be used at Letterkenny Army Depot, PA; Fort Lewis, WA; and Red River Army Depot, TX in 1980.

MERADCOM is a major subordinate command of the US Army Materiel Development and Readiness Command, Alexandria, VA. MERADCOM employs about 1200 military and civilian personnel who are responsible for research, development, engineering and initial acquisition of counterbarrier systems, countersurveillance systems, energy and environmental systems, and supply distribution and construction equipment systems.

Fort Benning Hunt Club seeks interested Equestrians

Imboden's Red Dog looks on as Mrs. Lois Grange puts water into the watering trough as if to say thank you!

Phillis Stephenson an avid rider at the Hunt Club receives a kiss from her horse after offering her pet a piece of apple. Stephenson never tires of riding and sometimes rides twice daily.

Unknown to many soldiers, Fort Benning has a Hunt Club that provides horses and classes on horseback riding for them and their families.

Regular membership in the Hunt Club is open to all military personnel, active and retired. This membership by the military sponsor includes the entire family. Due to this feature many families enroll their children in organized classes sponsored by the club. Although nonmembers can rent mounts through the club, this is on a limited basis at $4 per hour.

The stables and other facilities are located on Marne Road between Lumpkin Road and Martin Army Hospital. The club itself is a non-profit organization managed and operated by the regular membership through its board of governors.

The club provides stalls and standard feeds for all mounts. Those club members with privately owned mounts that desire special and/or additional feeds have to buy them at their own expense.

Members are also responsible for medical care and shoeing of their personal mounts. There is a veterinarian that makes regular rounds at the club in order to insure all mounts at the club are in good health.

Elaine Wilson, a frequent rider at the club, said, "I try to ride as often as I can. I have only been riding for three years and although I had never had any dealings with horses before this time I enjoy the sport and I hope to continue riding." Wilson's horse is named Kine, a quarter horse/Arabian mix. Wilson added, "Each rider and horse must become a team and work in a joint effort in order to perfect the different movements required during competition."

The Hunt Club sponsors activities such as learning basic riding, techniques on private or club owned mounts, to competition in open shows throughout the Georgia-Alabama area for club members.

Military persons have the unfortunate problem of moving and traveling which keeps most families from keeping or enjoying recreational equipment due to space limitations. Many persons who normally don't have the facilities for keeping horses may, upon joining the club, keep their animals at the club.

Phillis Stephenson owns two horses and has been riding for 44 years. Stephenson, an avid rider at the club, has had no formal training but enjoys riding. According to Stephenson, "The instructors at the club work patiently with individuals interested in riding in order to make them proficient at riding."

Sgt. (ret.) Leonard Martin, club manager, said, "The Hunt Club provides an opportunity for a family that has never had any dealings with horses to become familiar with riding and taking care of horses."

The Hunt Club and its facilities are available for Benning personnel to enjoy the art of horsemanship. For more information contact Martin at 689-3945.

Lois Grange often visits her two horses at the club. Gotcha, lovingly lets Mrs. Grange pet his neck before feeding time.

And this is what it is all about. Horse, rider and obstacle.

Pregnant women should avoid heavy drinking

WASHINGTON (ARNEWS) — Drinking and driving don't mix and neither does drinking and having a baby.

Alcohol is a drug which depresses the nervous system and affects nearly every organ in our bodies. During pregnancy, this drug can affect the delicate system of the unborn baby.

In recent years, studies on babies born to women who drank heavily during pregnancy have shown disturbing results. A significant number of the infants studied were born with a definite pattern of physical, mental and behavioral abnormalities.

Called the "fetal alcohol syndrome," babies with this syndrome were shorter and lighter in weight than normal and did not "catch up" even after special care was given. These babies also had abnormally large heads, facial irregularities such as thin upper lips and small eyes, joint and limb abnormalities, heart defects and poor coordination. Many were mentally retarded and showed a number of behavioral problems including hyperactivity, extreme nervousness and poor attention spans. Some of the infants were born with all the characteristics while others showed only some features of the syndrome.

When a pregnant woman takes a drink, the alcohol travels through the placenta to the fetus. The alcohol travels through the baby's bloodstream to the same amount as that of the mother. If a pregnant mother gets drunk at a party, her unborn baby becomes drunk as well. The tiny developing system of the baby can not easily handle alcohol.

Presently, no one knows exactly how much alcohol, or over what period of time it's consumed, harms the baby. Based on studies done on animals, it is believed that a pregnant woman clearly risks harm to her baby if she drinks three or more ounces of absolute alcohol. Three ounces of absolute alcohol are equal to six average-sized drinks.

It is not yet known, however, whether less than six drinks per day during pregnancy can also harm the baby. Does a woman who has six or more drinks every third Friday night and doesn't drink the rest of the time, still risks harming her unborn baby? Some studies show that "binge" drinking also affects the baby.

Since the fetus gets a potent, long-lasting dose of alcohol each time the mother takes a drink, future research may confirm the danger of periodic heavy drinking. Present knowledge indicates that the fetal alcohol syndrome develops only when the mother drinks heavily during pregnancy. No evidence exists that heavy drinking before the mother becomes pregnant endangers the health of the baby.

Since not all the research is in yet, a few hard and fast rules should be followed.

- It is best for pregnant women not to drink any alcohol, but it is essential to drink no more than one ounce of absolute alcohol per day. That equals to two mixed drinks with one ounce of liquor, or two five-ounce glasses of wine, or two twelve ounce cans of beer. Don't save up your two drinks a day allowance for three days and then have six at a Saturday night party.

- If you're used to having a few drinks to relieve tension or whatever, don't fill the void by using tranquilizers or anti-depressants. Some of these drugs may also harm your baby. It's a good idea to make only those drugs absolutely necessary during your pregnancy. Check with your doctor before taking any drugs. Increase your chances of having a healthy, normal baby.

Forgetful car owners may give their cars better service in the future, thanks to new dashboard service monitors. Honda has introduced a new car with lights on the dash that flash when it's time to change oil and rotate tires. A mini TV screen warns the driver if exterior lights need replacement. American auto manufacturers are planning similar systems for their cars.

The nerve of an IOBC officer is tested as he conceals himself in his fighting position, waiting for the oncoming OPFOR tank to pass overhead.

An IOBC student rises from his fighting position to "KILL" an OPFOR (opposing forces) tank that had just overrun his position.

By JOHN A. HARRIS and ERNIE VILLASENOR

Capt. Ernie Villasenor, Infantry School instructor, gives the students a class on Soviet tanks.

An IOBC student camouflages himself in a tree awaiting an enemy tank which will kill by throwing a charge on the rear of the tank.

IOBC students learn — "How To Kill Tanks"

Imagine you are an infantryman, occupying your prepared fighting position. You are being engaged by enemy armor. To your front a tank is approaching at very close range. You realize now that the tank is going to run over your position.

You have three options: Run, surrender, or stay and fight. No question! You decide to stay and fight.

The tank approaches your fighting position. You slide deeper into the earth. The tank passes over the top of your fighting position throwing dirt and stones on you. When the tank continues beyond the position you come up from the ground, arm your light antitank weapon, (LAW) and engage the tank with a well placed shot in the tank's rear. WHAM! You just successfully killed a tank.

The above situation is what members of the Infantry Officer Basic Course (IOBC) experience as part of the training they receive at the Infantry School. Each IOBC student, receives eight hours of field training on "How to Kill Tanks". The instruction is provided by Team #3, Tactics Division, Command and Tactics Department at the "How to Kill Tanks" training area on 2nd Armored Division Road.

According to Capt. Don Reed, principal instructor, "To kill tanks, you must be able to identify the enemy, know his vulnerabilities, apply the fundamentals of anti-armor warfare, to include proper employment of both organic and field expedient weapons; and overcome the fear of forty tons of steel bearing down on your positions. These are the subjects covered in "How to Kill Tanks" that are taught to infantry combat leaders."

The IOBC class is placed in two groups. One group receives instruction on the anti-armor ambush and presented a tactical situation. Students plan and conduct an ambush against an OPFOR (opposing forces) tank platoon.

According to 2nd Lt. Joseph Patykula of Norfolk, Virginia, a member of IOBC Class 8-79 "The anti-armor ambush was the highlight of the training." He stated, "This was realistic hands-on training; I believe now, that infantry can successfully defeat an armor threat." After completion of the instruction, the students then receive training at five stations. At the first station, armor identification and opposing force armor vulnerabilities are discussed.

Students are then allowed to crawl all over a T-54 tank to determine its vulnerability. According to 2nd Lt. Edward C. Sayre of Phoenix, Arizona, "The highlight of the training for me was the T-54 Soviet Tank."

The students then receive instruction, using a T-54, as a target on the application of field expedient weapons to kill tanks. Field expedient killing devices means discussed include: the charge, daisy chain, eagle fire ball, shape charge and molotov cocktail.

The next two stations give the students an opportunity to test their skills against a tank. Satchel charges are thrown onto the rear of a moving tank to train and attacking armor in a constricted area such as woods or built-up areas that the infantryman would find himself in.

This is followed by the students being placed in a fox hole and run over by a tank. Student confidence is built so he knows that the individual can stay in his protected position, and come out to kill a tank.

Finally, the students receive training

Sp4 Jasper Helms, Company B, 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry, takes aim with his 'tank killing' Tow. Soldiers from the 1/29th were supporting the Infantry School in the training of the IOBC students.

Tanks''

...ive and defensive antiarmor planning using a cloth terrain model on Lee Drop Zone.

An antiarmor defense is set up on the terrain and the students see how these planning techniques are applied on the ground.

Ongoing improvements to the "How to Kill" training area are a MOUT (Military Operations in Urban Terrain) area in which the student can practice the employment of field expedients on the tanks in a built-up area; the addition of dug-in TOW/DRAGON positions with overhead cover; realistic field expedient mock-ups from TASO to be used by the students during the practical exercise; the use of a "hardened" M60 tank as a target for students firing the LAW sub-caliber as part of the execution of the anti-armor ambushes; and life size threat vehicle silhouettes (both front and side view) which will be used to demonstrate the most vulnerable areas of each.

Capt. Reed states, "The realistic effect is brought about by using actual equipment. The professional support provided by the 1/29 Inf and 2-69 Armor is really what makes this exercise successful."

Graphic training aids are a vital element of the instruction taught at Benning.

Voice of FORSCOM is heard stateside

By TOM MACLEAN

Headquarters, U.S. Army Forces Command (FORSCOM), Fort McPherson, Ga.—His voice is heard all over the United States. He considers his programs to be, "the voice of FORSCOM." He is co-winner of the "Thomas Jefferson Award," the highest award given by the Department of Defense, in two different categories and he's bidding for a third.

SSgt. Dan V. Gates is a broadcast journalist for the Office of the Chief of Public Affairs for the U.S. Army Forces Command, Fort McPherson, Ga. He produces two public service radio programs which are heard weekly in all 50 states. The radio programs, "Update" (a rock and roll format) and "Country Roads" (country-western format), are 15 minute programs which highlight the Army's role in the civilian world.

"These programs tell the public what Forces Command is all about. They tell the public that the Active Army, the Army Reserve and the National Guard are ready to fight for you, but they're also here to serve you. In case of natural disasters such as tornadoes or floods these elements assist in everything from evacuations to snow removal.

Gates points out the benefits of the programs. "'Update' is aired on over 500 radio stations and 'Country Roads' is played on more than 600." Last year the Army gained more than two-million dollars of public service advertising time free, excluding the $82,000 a year production costs."

Included in his programs are interviews with such personalities as rock stars Ted Nugent and Bonnie Tyler and country western giants Loretta Lynn, Eddie Arnold and Jerry Reed. Incidentally, Jerry Reed was involved in radio production at Fort McPherson in the late 50's.

"Big stars don't play small towns anymore. With the interviews I can get them into these places where they aren't visible. People like to hear about people. People don't like to hear about things; and, of course, the interviews enhance the shows.

The amount of commercial air play given to both programs can be attributed to Gates' own dedication. "My goal from the very beginning was to expand the program. I would say I've written five letters to radio station managers for every one that plays 'Update' or 'Roads'."

Gates' most recent efforts have been in a series of energy awareness spots. These 12 spots have been picked up by the Federal Energy Commission and are being distributed to over 1,000 radio stations throughout the U.S. The spots include such characters as the wasteful "Dr. Horace Turnbuckle" and his gas powered harmonica which gets three or four songs to the tank, or the man from the Department of Energy who sits in your refrigerator and checks the door seals for leaks.

"Those energy spots were a three-man effort," said Gates. Mike Baker, the FORSCOM Radio and TV Production Specialist, was "the man" behind the energy spots. "Mike is invaluable in the production of voices and character personalities."

Gates also attributes the success of these energy spots and radio programs to the support of the former Radio and TV Officer of the FORSCOM Public Affairs Office, Lt. Col. Charles Crescioni. "Radio is a creative business and you need the freedom to create. Lt. Col. Crescioni gave me the freedom to create such characters as Horace Turnbuckle and Herbert Ironteeth. Without this freedom I don't think we would have had as good a product."

According to Lt. Col. Crescioni, "Danny demonstrated early that he worked best with little or no supervision. All you have to do is give him a rough idea and he'll run with it, and give you a good product."

Gates' current boss, Maj. John D. Chapla, stated that "his value to the Army directly relates to the ease with which he makes contact with the civilian media world and the result of his contact is that the story of today's total army is being told on more than 1200 radio stations."

Although Gates has been working in some form of radio broadcasting "off and on for the past twelve years," he points out that "I am not a disc-jockey. I'm an air personality. DJs give the time and temperature and play music. An air personality tries to give his listeners an entire program"

Presently Danny is a part-time "air personality" for WPLO, a country western radio station, heard throughout the Atlanta area and that seems to suit him just fine. "Radio is my whole life. It's all I would ever want to do."

Air personality SSgt Danny Gates records another radio show destined for FORSCOM units all over the United States. Voices of Horace Turnbuckle and Herbert Ironteeth are not much like Dan Gates except that the man behind all the voices are the same, his.

Vets receive 9.9 per cent raise

Checks reflecting a 9.9 per cent increase in Veterans Administration compensation payments will be mailed at the end of December to more than two-and-a-quarter million veterans, 235,000 surviving spouses and more than 85,000 children of deceased veterans, VA Administrator Max Cleland said recently.

The increased payments were authorized by Congress early in November and were signed into law by President Carter Nov. 28. They are retroactive to Oct. 1. A separate adjustment check covering the increased amount due in November and December will be mailed during the latter part of December.

The new rates mean that a veteran with a service connected disability rated at 10 per cent will receive $48 a month, up from $44. The rate for a 50 per cent disability goes from $232 monthly to $255, and a veteran with a 100 per cent disability will receive $889 monthly, an increase of $80.

Additional amounts providing up to a maximum payment of $2,536 a month (up from $2,308) are paid for specific severe disabilities.

The new legislation also increases by 9.9 per cent the added amounts paid for dependents to veterans rated 30 per cent or more disabled.

The clothing allowance paid disabled veterans whose use of a prosthetic or orthopedic device wears out or damages clothing was increased from $218 to $240 yearly.

Also increased were the rates of Dependency and Indemnity Compensation paid survivors of veterans whose deaths were due to service connected causes or veterans totally disabled from service connected causes whose deaths were not the result of such disabilities.

Certain children of these deceased veterans also receive increased compensation under the new legislation. They include unmarried children under 18 as well as certain older helpless children and those between 18 and 23 who are attending VA-approved schools.

Conforti's career here began July 1959 when he was director of instruction. From June 1963 until June 1969, he served as the assistant superintendent of schools and has been the superintendent since then.

When making his announcement at the Dec. 20 School Board meeting, Conforti commended the facility, staff and support personnel for providing quality education for the post children.

The school board will select Conforti's replacement during the interim between now and June.

Carbon Monoxide is silent killer

The silent killer is a poison that is very common, insidious and whose effectiveness is closely related to ventilation. It's carbon monoxide, otherwise known as CO. CO is a gas you cannot see, smell or taste. It won't tickle your throat, make your eyes water or otherwise make its presence known. Nevertheless, it's deadly!

CO is produced by the incomplete combustion of any organic material. When a person is exposed to CO in a poorly ventilated room or a vehicle with the windows rolled up, poisoning occurs — sometimes very quickly. Since CO can combine with the hemoglobin in the red blood cells more efficiently than can oxygen, it deprives the body of the oxygen required to sustain life.

The early warning symptoms of the common cold, that people are not able to identify the problem. When high concentrations of CO are inhaled, the victim may not experience any of the symptoms, but may suddenly collapse.

Death in these cases are due to paralysis of the respiratory center.

Home heating systems, space heaters, charcoal grills and motor vehicle operation can be potential carbon monoxide exposure hazards. Despite frequent warnings of the dangers of CO poisoning, the accident statistics concerning this killer keep piling up ... in Kansas two children were discovered dead on the back floor of the car when the family stopped for gas. The children had been lying on bedding placed on the car floor. The father told police he had been suffering from headaches repeatedly during the trip ... cause of death carbon monoxide.

A group of 12 girls and women on an encampment at a lake in Texas, narrowly escaped death when their resort cabin filled with carbon monoxide from a butane stove running "wide open with all the windows closed." A six-year-old girl with the group woke up and began to cry, alerting the group in the nick of time. All were treated for severe headache and nausea — diagnosis carbon monoxide poisoning.

Carbon monoxide poisoning is preventable but it requires some action in your part.

- Has the exhaust system on your car been checked in the last six months?

- When was the last time you had your home heating system checked?
- Are you aware of possible CO hazards where you work?

Bonus program adds six MOS's

WASHINGTON (ARNEWS)—Six more MOS were added to the Army's bonus extension and retraining (BEAR) program recently, according to DA personnel officials.

The following MOS have been added to the BEAR program in the SRB zone indicated:

MOS	Title/SRB zone
05G	SIGSEC Analyst/Zone B
05H	EW/SIG Int Morse Interceptor
13E	Fire Support Specialist/Zone A
93H	ATC Tower Operator/Zone A
93J	ATC Radar Controller/Zones A & B
96B	Intelligence Analyst/Zone A

The officials added that one MOS, 24M (Vulcan System Mechanic), had been dropped from the BEAR program, and two MOS, 12E (Adm Specialist) and 54E (Chemical Operations Specialist) have been temporarily suspended from the program.

Applications for the two suspended MOS are not being accepted due to no available training seats through the first half of FY 80. Officials anticipate that MOS 12E and 54E will be reopened for submission of applications in early calendar year 1980.

The Army's BEAR program is designed to allow soldiers to extend their enlistment for retraining in an MOS which has a selective reenlistment bonus (SRB) multiplier, explained a personnel official. Upon completion of the training, the individuals are awarded the MOS as their primary specialty and then reenlist in that MOS.

Violation for interfering with Army's wiretap

WASHINGTON (ARNEWS) — "Private Harris, pick up on line two and take notes while I talk to Major Johnson about the new policy."

By following the supervisor's instructions, Harris may violate the Army's Wiretap, Investigative Monitoring and Eavesdrop Activities (WIMEA) Policy, according to DA military intelligence officials.

A serious incident report must be filed and an investigation must be conducted if Johnson is not made aware of the listening party, officials said.

If, however, Johnson is told Harris is on the line and he has no objection, no policy violation is committed.

According to officials, "wiretapping or investigative monitoring is defined as the act of intercepting, listening to or recording any telephone conversation" without the advance consent of all those involved in the conversation.

The policy prohibits people from listening in on or recording a conversation such as on an extension or speaker phone. It also prohibits recording a face-to-face conversation without prior consent of everyone involved.

During calendar year 1978, only 14 WIMEA violations were reported, officials said. Nine violations were reported during the first quarter of calendar year 1979.

Officials say this "recent rash" of WIMEA violations has caused concern that the policy is not understood by many DA personnel.

The WIMEA policy applies to all DA personnel including both military and civilians. Its purpose is to protect the rights of individuals during official telephone conversations, officials explained.

Army regulations allow monitoring or recording to be conducted only for investigative law enforcement purposes, communications management and security monitoring to ensure protection of classified information. Investigative monitoring must, however, be approved in advance by the Secretary of the Army.

Officers, NCOs may qualify for teaching reserves

FORT MONROE, Va. (TNS) — Army officers and noncommissioned officers who within one year of retirement or who have been retired within the last five years may qualify as instructors in the Army Junior Reserve Officers' Training Corps (AJROTC). The offer is open to officers up to the rank of colonel and to noncommissioned officers in ranks from staff sergeant to sergeant major.

The Army JROTC program is offered at over 650 high schools throughout the nation. It stresses youth citizenship development while providing an opportunity for students to learn about the basic elements and requirements for national security and the Army's role in support of national objectives. Instructors teach leadership development, map reading, marksmanship, methods of instruction, and military history. Classroom instruction is augmented by military drill, orientation trips, field trips, mini-summer camps held on Army installations, and orienteering.

Personnel on active duty and retirees may get further information concerning pay, work hours, benefits, etc., or making application by calling the nearest Reserve Officers' Training Corps Region headquarters.

586th build bridge at Ft. Campbell

Story and Photos by RALPH E. VAUGHAN

FORT CAMPBELL, Ky. — Fort Campbell's Lake Kyle was bridged earlier this year by members of the 586th Engineer Company (Assault Ribbon Bridge), Fort Benning, Ga., and the high flying load lifters of the 159th Aviation Battalion during the Army Readiness Training and Evaluation Program held here.

The heavy duty CH-47s (Chinooks) picked up the bridge sections from a staging area and flew them to the lake. The bridge sections, when folded up, resemble small Quonset Huts.

The "Chinooks" hovered above the water throwing up gusts of cold spray over men and machines. One section at a time was gently lowered into the water. The lifting lines were loosed and the section floated free.

The engineers from Fort Benning, with their 27-foot boats, went into action, moving toward the drifting bridge section.

Once near them, the men in the boats unlatched the section, which fell open to form a flat surface.

In tug-like fashion, the boats nudged the section toward the other sections which reached out from the shore. The boat jockeys pushed them into position while the men on the completed portion of the bridge hauled in lines and secured the new addition.

The bridge builders can extend the bridge a maximum of 10 feet a minute, according to 1st Lt. James Abcouwer, commander of the 586th Engr. Co.

The boats play a dual purpose in the construction of the bridge. They also act as anchors while traffic passes over the bridge. If the bridge were going to be used for a long time, an overhead suspension system would be constructed.

In all, 20 "Chinook" flights were made with the sections.

Neighborhood centers aid Vietnam-era veterans

Psychologist Steve Levenberg left a comfortable job at a large southern Veterans Administration hospital to help manage a new, experimental Vietnam veterans readjustment program for many of the same reasons he hopes the neighborhood "vets-centers" he is establishing throughout the Southeast will attract Vietnam veterans who have given up on themselves and the system.

"You just don't find Vietnam veterans in VA hospitals," Levenberg said. "Our traditional medical model of examination, diagnosis and treatment just wasn't designed with the alienated, troubled Vietnam veteran in mind.

"At the hospital," he continued, "I was part of that system; part of the red-tape hassle many Vietnam veterans complain about. The goal of our vets-centers is to provide the help without the hassle."

As southeast coordinator of the vets-center program, Levenberg is in the midst of setting up neighborhood vets-centers in Atlanta and 11 other cities (Miami, Fort Lauderdale, St. Petersburg and Jacksonville, Fla.; Charleston, S.C.; Memphis, Tenn.; Birmingham, Ala.; New Orleans, La.; Jackson, Miss.; Louisville, Ky.; and Little Rock, Ark.). Each center will house a four-person team led by a mental health professional and consisting of two "peer counselors" and a secretary.

Talk his language

The peer counselors have nonprofessional or paraprofessional backgrounds, Levenberg explained, but are selected for their ability to relate to the disaffected veteran, gain his confidence and "talk his language." Most are Vietnam-era veterans, themselves. Many are black and disabled.

"They will be the key to our program's success," Levenberg said. "Their ability to get involved in the community, gain the veterans' confidence and offer realistic help will determine their center's success or failure."

According to Levenberg, the centers will have three basic missions:

Outreach — Team counselors will go out into the community, make their services known and encourage Vietnam veterans to make contact and use the vets-center.

Counseling — The centers will provide an informal, non-institutional setting for Vietnam veterans to gather to work through their military experiences in a supportive environment. The team will provide no diagnoses or stigmatizing medical labels, Levenberg assured. The emphasis is to help veterans work through their problems, not treat them for a sickness.

Referral — Team members will work closely with other VA, governmental, community and private resources to provide the professional services, educational opportunities and jobs necessary to put a veteran back on the right track.

Each team will base its activities in "storefront" office space located in older, inner-city neighborhoods. These are "vets-centers", Levenberg emphasized, not "VA" centers. The teams will rely on Vietnam veterans, themselves, to help run the centers, do much of the outreach work and provide the peer support Levenberg says is so vital to getting troubled veterans to open up and work through war-related problems.

Individual therapy

"It's been ten years or longer since many of these guys have talked about their war experience," Levenberg explained. "It's there inside, working on them. Most people around them — friends, family, society — just don't want to hear about it or deal with it. It takes someone who's been there, another vet, to bring it out. That's why veterans, themselves, will provide the best therapy possible at the centers through rap sessions and group discussion."

There is no certainty as to the exact scope of the readjustment needs the vets-center program is designed to meet, but veteran leaders like VA administrator Max Cleland, who have fought for such a program for over a decade, point to recent surveys indicating that as many as 40 percent of the 1.6 million Vietnam combat veterans still experience psychological difficulties, recurrent dreams and social readjustment problems they feel are linked to their service in Vietnam.

"Our first center in the southeast (the third in the nation) will open in Atlanta in a few weeks," Levenberg said, "but our team here has been seeing veterans in temporary facilities for over a month and we have a waiting list of those we will schedule as soon as our doors open. There's plenty of work to be done."

Nearly 100 vets-centers will be operating in cities across the country by the end of the year. They will work with any Vietnam-era veteran who asks for help, but team members will focus on finding and helping those most adversely affected by their wartime service. Levenberg said many in that target group are black, in their late 20's or early 30's, have long records of employment difficulty, may have had a brush with the law and don't trust traditional service agencies. They may have less than honorable military discharges, too, but that won't keep them out of a vets-center. "Part of our work will be helping get those discharges upgraded," Levenberg said.

Apprenticeship Programs given civilian credit

WASHINGTON (ARNEWS) — More than 11,000 soldiers are using their Army training and work experience to prepare themselves for a civilian job.

They're making sure their Army training doesn't go to waste by applying their work experience toward becoming qualified journeymen in a skilled trade or craft.

The Army's Apprenticeship Programs allow soldiers working in civilian related jobs to certify their training and work experience with the U.S. Department of Labor's Bureau of Apprenticeship and Training (BAT).

As of December 1978, 11 Apprenticeship Programs involving more than 100 MOS and 71 occupations including carpenters, electricians, photographers, plumbers, etc., are registered with BAT.

Each Army Service School has prepared Apprenticeship Programs for the civilian related skills that are taught there. The programs are designed to gain formal recognition of Army skills training and experience by civilian employers.

Apprenticeship terms range from one to five years or 2,000 to 10,000 hours, depending on the trade or skill. Each 2,000 hours of work experience also requires 144 hours of related instruction.

To participate, soldiers must be working in a primary or secondary MOS that is part of the program. Soldiers may transfer from one program to another but they cannot participate in more than one program at a time.

To enter the program, soldiers must visit their local education office to complete an application form. Their past work experience will be evaluated and they will receive a DA Pamphlet 621-series which lists the number of hours required and Army Correspondence Courses available if needed.

Each soldier is responsible for recording work experience hours in a log book. Hours are recorded daily and once a week the soldier's immediate supervisor must certify the log form.

Upon completion of the program, a certificate is awarded from the Department of Labor. Although this certificate will not guarantee a civilian job, it will make former soldiers more competitive with civilians in the trade.

Soldiers who leave the Army before completing the program take their log books with them. A letter from the education office certifying the number of hours completed is also provided.

Soldiers interested in more information should contact their local education office.

Woodburning stove reduces energy cost by $700

By T. A. SABEL

A woodburning stove in an isolated building hidden in the forests of Fort Benning begs the question is it a step back in time or the light of the future?

Two years ago the Cusseta Work Station of the Savannah Engineers Timber Harvesting Project was suffering from the inadequacies of an electric heat pump as well as rising costs. "Our electric bills had been around $200 a month," according to William L. Lord, resident forester.

Claude (Buck) H. Davis Jr., forester, had the idea of bringing in a wood stove to take advantage of the ready supply of wood. The paperwork had been filled out and approved. They went shopping for a stove.

After shopping and studying the several different designs on the market an airtight stove of Scandinavian design was purchased. "We heard the salesman's promises and were skeptical," said Lord. "When the stove was installed and fired up it passed their expectations," he added.

"We load the stove in the morning and it keeps burning until the next morning. The stove, sitting in a corner of the front office, heats the entire building with ease. We have to be careful of not opening the draft too much or the building will get too hot. When we first got the stove we went overboard. We had to open the doors and windows just to cool off," Lord said.

The energy savings has been substantial. After the initial investment of $600 for the stove and $200 for a chain saw the office has saved $700 in the past two years. "Our electric bills have dropped from $200 a month to $50 a month," according to Cecil W. Parks, administrative assistant.

The work station also has a wood collecting program open to the public. Under the program anyone, after paying a $5 fee, can collect as much deadfall wood as wanted in a designated area for two weeks. The office is open Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. For further information call 544-6913.

Operation Crime Stop

Game Wardens are receiving numerous complaints that unauthorized personnel traveling on post roads in the training area and off limit areas are vandalizing government property and poaching on the reservation.

Personnel are again reminded to call the MP Desk Sergeant and notify them of incidents of vandalism or poaching. Record the license number of the vehicle. Privately owned vehicles observed in off limits areas will be stopped and the driver of the vehicle will be asked for identification and the reason he is in that area.

Unauthorized personnel in off limits areas will be cited and directed off post.

Military police have received numerous complaints on unauthorized operation of go-carts in streets and parking lots on Fort Benning.

Personnel are reminded that private go-carts are not authorized to be operated on the reservation except in areas PI, II, III and RI as specified in USAIC Reg 190-5, para 18a and b(3).

The Morale Support Activities Division (MSAD) of DPCA operates a go-cart track on main post in the parking lot, opposite the Southern Bell Telephone Company office on Marchant Street, per VOCCG, March 1978. The MSAD rents go-carts and safety equipment to interested personnel. Additionally, for a small fee, private go-carts may be operated under the supervision of MSAD personnel providing the equipment is deemed safe by MSAD personnel. Hours of operation of this track are: Friday, 3 p.m. - dark; Saturday and Sunday, 1 p.m. - dark (545-7978).

How About That?

Don't escape troubles

By WILLIAM W. ERBACH, SR.
TIC Chaplain

How many of you have aquariums or fishbowls? Fish make nice pets, but there always comes the time when there home has to be cleaned. Like all living creatures a fish needs a clean place to live.

One day, while cleaning out an aquarium, I was having a particularly hard time catching a fish. Each time I captured it, it got away. When I looked closer at my net I found it had a big hole in it. The hole wasn't very big, but it was big enough to let the fish escape. Now the fish didn't know what I was trying to do, not when it felt itself surrounded by the net it sensed trouble. It darted this way and that for a moment or two, but each time it would find the hole in the net and escape. I finally gave up trying to catch the fish. How About That.

I thought about people. They aren't even as smart as the fish. When trouble surrounded the fish it swam for the escape hole. But what do people do when they feel surrounded, when they are in trouble? They have escape holes, but too often they are counter-productive. (Bottles, Drugs).

The Church suggests that the escape hole is prayer: talk to God. Don't necessarily pour only your troubles, but that is one place to take them. Another place is your friends, but we often excuse them as we don't want to burden them. Another is our families, but sometimes we accuse them of being too close to the problem to be of help. Instead, people worry a lot until they can't eat or sleep. Or they may act foolishly and say things they are sorry for afterwards.

I've found prayer to be the best. It can be as simple as, "Thy will be done. Thank you" or, "God is with me. I give thanks." Next time you feel surrounded by trouble, be as smart as a fish. Go to the right escape hole. Pray.

HSC OWC Plans program

A program presented by the Rape Crisis Team will be featured at the Jan. 9 meeting of the Health Services Command Activity Officers' Wives' Club. The basement conference room of Martin Army Hospital is the place and 11 a.m. is the time. Lunch will follow in the cafeteria at $1.45 per person. For more information, call Mrs. Khoury 687-6068.

Q — I have moved to a new address. I have informed the post office of the change and have assurance my mail will be forwarded. Is there any additional action I must take to make sure I receive my VA checks at my new address?

A — You must also notify your VA regional office of your change of address as soon as possible.

Q — I have a disability rating of 30 percent and receive $121 a month. A friend has a 60 percent rating and receives $292. Why don't I receive half as much as he does?

A — The amount to be paid a veteran for a particular disability rating is set by law. These rates do not relate in an exact proportion to the 100 percent disability rate. The more disabled a veteran is, the heavier the impact on his employability. So the law provides proportionately more compensation to those with the most severe impairments.

Q — I bought a home with a GI loan after World War II and paid the loan off several years ago. I am now considering another loan and wonder if the old regulations limiting you to the purchase of conventional houses still apply.

A — Today's GI loan program is much more flexible. You may now buy mobile homes and condominiums with loans guaranteed by the VA.
