Holiday recalls fond memories

By Frances Moore
BAYONET Coordinator

Tuesday Nov. 11 is Veterans' Day and most of us associate parades, flag waving, and the sale of poppies with this holiday. Having spent 34 years of my life married to a military man, I consider myself a veteran of this great land of ours - America and associate many things with this honored holiday.

As I reflect on my Army life, I realize how much more it was and is than just packing foot lockers, moving, and tagging along five or six months behind my husband.

I recall the time in '48 I sailed on an Army ship to Japan and the young Japanese girl who worked for me that had lost her husband in the war. I thought of the other ocean I crossed by airplane in '55 enroute to Germany and that day on the mountain top in Heidleburg. In the midst of the cemetary that day, I recall looking at the rows and rows of young German boys laid to rest there, finding it hard to imagine that just a few short years before they had been our enemy.

Remembering our trip to Holland I thought of the young Dutch former pilot we met that guided us around his country with such pride. During the time spent with us he shared the terrible loss he had been forced to endure from the loss of his family (they were shot in the last days of the war). We became friends with the owner of a small German restaurant and learned that during World War II my husband's unit had fought on one side of a mountain, his on the other. One of the girls that worked for us had left all her family in East Berlin, in order to be free and live in the West.

Then, I think of this land of ours. How much of it I've been privileged to see and how much there is that I've yet to see. I think of how very beautiful America is, the freedom we have, the way of life we enjoy, our schools, churches and the many opportunities available to our children.

I think of the lump I get in my throat when I hear the 'Star Spangled Banner' during a parade as I watch Old Glory pass. I remember the ones who served so bravely in our Armed services (and the families waiting for them on the home-front), many giving their tomorrow so that we might have today.

I remember the sound of retreat on an Army post or a bugle blowing at a military funeral. I picture an Army marching proudly in a parade.

I remember Arlington Cemetary, the rows upon rows of tombstones and the majestic tomb of the unknown soldier.

I think of all who wear the uniform of the country now, as well as those who once wore it, and I realize anew what a privilege it is to be a part of American military life. Most of all, I realize how wonderful it is to be an American.

When will things change?

Despite tragedy, accidents will remain

By Don Rhodes
BAYONET staff writer

Danger lurks in even the most innocent appearing activity.

This statement was tragically demonstrated by the recent death of SSgt. Aaron C. Carney, a member of the Fort Benning community.

The untimely, accidental death of a young man is always a numbing shock. The shock penetrates even the most complacent individual and brings, if only for a short time, deep thought. And from that, questions.

"A simple hunting trip, who would have thought that. . .?"

"Why and how does something like this. . .?"

"How could he have prevented. . .?"

"Did he have a family? Wow, I'll bet he had a family."

Sympathy is extended by some. Empathy is shown by others. Family becomes the uppermost thought in the majority of minds.

"Are they OK?"

"Will they be taken care of?"

"Jeez, what about my family if it happened to me?"

At this point, the most common "self" defense mechanism comes into play: Rationalization. All the questions have been answered, but the mind refuses to consider them and accept the reality of these types of situations. It rationalizes, "Ah, well, this can't happen to me." And therein lies the basic horror of these situations.

Nothing is learned. The opportunity is there but so is the overpowering reluctance to reach out and grasp it.

The mind trudges ignorantly back into complacency.

Outings aren't planned any better. Situations are reacted to, not thought through and possibly, less dangerous alternative actions are not chosen when they are available. The rationalization allows the body to become a happy, mindless robot.

And the ultimate horror is that an untimely, accidental death of a young man is allowed to be an untimely, accidental death - and nothing more.

Safe hunters take friends

Lone hunters are accidents waiting to happen

By Dave Bristow
BAYONET staff writer

The danger of hunting alone has tragically been brought to light after a soldier here was found dead Tuesday. He went hunting alone, his family not knowing where on post he was hunting. It took a massive two-day search by helicopters and ground vehicles before he was found.

Hunters will tell you about the good hunting they've experienced here. Each year they anxiously await another season so they can walk in the woods and enjoy the excitement of bagging their limit. Unfortunately, hunting, especially alone, can be dangerous.

Soldiers are familiar with what we call the "buddy system" - taking a friend along with you for safety reasons. You never know when you might need that friend for more than just conversation.

I have a good friend who really enjoys hunting. Sometimes, if he can't find someone to go with him, he goes alone. He drives a small pick-up truck which he's quite proud of. He feels safe about his truck because he's driven it so much and he knows how to handle it in any situation. However, sometimes a driver can get too sure of himself. No car or truck is so strong or so good it can't get bogged down somewhere in the woods, or even worse, flip over.

Fort Benning is a big reservation. It has many thick wooded areas not designed for motor vehicles. Hunters should check with the Provost Marshal's Office for the safe places to hunt, and more importantly, where not to take a vehicle.

Hunters must let their families know where on the reservation they will be hunting. The exact location, if known, is best. Nobody is an expert on everything that can happen out there in the woods. And when the unexpected happens, a buddy should be there to help out.

Vets gain new benefits

ATLANTA——Georgia veterans stand to gain some new and improved benefits if legislation proposed by Georgia Commissioner of Veterans Affairs Pete Wheeler meets with approval in the 1981 Georgia General Assembly.

Appearing before the Senate and House Committees on Defense and Veterans Affairs, Wheeler said he would like to see the new "Handicapped Parking Permit" law ammended so that veterans with HV (handicapped veteran) and DV (disabled veteran) license tags on their vehicles might use specially-marked parking area without having to obtain special permits and paying a $3 fee. This law became effective last July.

Wheeler also is asking for an increase in the homestead exemption now in effect for certain disabled veterans. The Veterans Administration currently grants certain severly-disabled veterans up to $30,000 assistance in acquiring specially-adapted housing sometimes referred to as "paraplegic homes." Georgia's homestead exemption on such homes is now limited to $25,000; Wheeler wants the exemption figure increased to equal the amount of the VA grant.

In addition, Wheeler is recommending that a provision be made for a homestead exemption of $12,500 for any dishonorably-discharged Georgia veteran with a wartime service-connected disability rated permanently and totally 100 percent. Under present law, even with such disabilities they are not considered qualified for the specially-adapted housing grants and exemptions.

Wheeler is recommending a change in legislation so that qualified Vietnam veterans may obtain free business license. Presently, veterans rated at least ten percent disabled and who otherwise qualify are exempt from payment of city, county and state business license taxes and fees. But the law does not provide this benefit to veterans of the Vietnam war.

Wheeler still is seeking free hunting and fishing licenses for all Georgia veterans who served during wartime and who received honorable discharges.

Retired veterans will have a legislative request entered on their behalf; Wheeler is asking for a state income tax exemption on the first $5,000 of retirement pay recieved by retired military personnel.

Soldier dies near bridge

The body of a Fort Benning soldier missing since Saturday was found Tuesday at about 11:25 a.m. He was found under his pickup truck on an old, seldom used road near Eddy bridge on the Alabama side of the reservation.

Investigators said the soldier, Sgt. Aaron C. Carney, 33, 10th Company, 1st Battalion, The School Brigade, was apparently fatally injured while trying to free his truck, that was stuck on some roots in the road. They said a vehicle jack and handle were found next to the truck.

Carney, the subject of an intensive search since Monday morning, left his Fort Mitchell, Ala. residence at about 5 a.m. Saturday to hunt on the reservation.

When he failed to show up at home and for duty with his unit Monday morning, searchers from several units on post started a methodical search for him. The search spread into Alabama Tuesday and Carney was found by a patrol from the 988th Military Police Company.

Searchers said the incident happened in an area with dense foilage, making it almost imposible for the truck to be spotted from the air. An investigation into the incident is continuing.

Veterans honored

A salute to Veterans Day will be held at the Kelley Hill Recreation Center, Bldg. 9079, Nov. 9 at 2 p.m.

The commemoration ceremony will honor all veterans and their families. Invited guests include the Columbus and Chattahoochee Gold Star Wives Clubs, the Veterans of Foreign Wars (VFW) Posts 665, Columbus; and 5[illegible], Fort Mitchell.

Retired Col. Wallace Veaudry will speak on the topic, "Looking Back" and Col. Michael Spigelmire, 197th Infantry Brigade commander, will talk about "Looking Forward."

The 283rd Army Band and the Infantry Center's choir will entertain with their music and a social gathering with refreshments will follow the formalities.

Col. Davis retires here

Maj. Gen. Donald E. Rosenblum pins the Legion of Merit (third award) on Col. Addison D. Davis III as the post sergeant major, CSM Harvey Parrish, looks on.

Col. Addison D. Davis III retired Oct. 30 ending a long career in the Army. The ceremony was marked with traditions dear to all soldiers as his son, 1st Lt. Addison D. Davis IV, commanded the troops at the ceremony.

Davis, a graduate of the Citadel, the military college of South Carolina, began his career with the 28th Infantry Regiment, the Black Lions, as platoon leader. His career brought him to the 27th Infantry Regiment in Korea and later to Fort Knox, Ky., Pacific Command, Vietnam and Europe. He ended his career as Fort Benning's Chief of Staff.

He has attended both the advanced and basic infantry officer's courses, the Airborne School, the Jumpmaster School the Command and General Staff College and the Army War College.

Some of his awards are the Silver Star with Oak Leaf Cluster, Legion of Merit with Oak Leaf Cluster, The Bronze Star with V devise and Oak Leaf Cluster, the Purple Heart with Oak Leaf Cluster, the Army Commendation Medal, the Korean Presidential Unit Citation, the Vietnamese Cross of Gallantry and others.

Davis, active in community organizations, plans on remaining in Columbus.

Pay option

Soldiers send checks to financial organizations

(TRADOC NEWS SERVICE)--A pay option offered to Army members is "check to financial organization," which means the Army Finance and Accounting Center sends a check directly to the financial organization you name on the authorization (JUMPS--Army Pay Elections, DA Form 3685).

Most financial organizations participate in a "guranteed deposit" program whereby the organization agrees to deposit the amount to your account on pay day. The Army has recently adopted the slogan "Sure-Pay" to encourage participation in the guaranteed deposit program. If you are not using Sure-Pay, here are seven reason why you should consider it:

S--your pay is SECURE...there's no chance of loss or theft.

U--the system is UNIVERSAL...it's offered wherever you're stationed in the Army. All you need is a checking or savings account at any bank or credit union.

R--Sure-Pay is RELIABLE...your check is guaranteed to be deposited in your account on pay day.

E--Sure-Pay is EASY...no waiting in lines to cash your check.

P--Your check is PROTECTED.

A--All soldiers may use Sure-Pay.

Y-YOU benefit.

Not only do you benefit--your family and unit also reap the rewards of Sure-Pay. When you're away on manuevers or field excercises, you don't have to worry about your family being provided for--your pay check will automatically be deposited in to your account. This eliminates the administrative burden placed on commanders by those soldiers who fal to provide for their dependents.

An often-overlooked advantage of the program is the establishment of a credit rating so vitally needed in our contemporary society.

Sure-Pay is easy to start. First, open a checking or savings account at any bank or credit union. Next, fill out a DA Form 3685 to show how much pay is to be deposited and the name and address of your bank or credit union. Don't forget to put your account number on the form, too. Turn the DA Form 3685 into your Personnel Administrative Center for transmittal to the Finance and Accounting Office. Then, the U.S. Army Finance and Accounting Center, Fort Benjamin Harrison, Ind., will send your pay directly to your bank or credit union. Your Leave and Earnings Statement is proof that your check has been deposited.

The advantages of Sure-Pay makes sense. If you're not using the system, maybe you should be.

DoD issues schedules

Columbus wages set

Two new pay schedules for the Columbus wage area have been issued by the Department of Defense. These schedules apply to all Federal employees who are covered by the Federal Wage System. The new pay rates are based on surveys of rates by private industry in the area.

The first schedule, effective Oct. 1, provides catch-up increases that were withheld under the Fiscal Year 1980 7.02 percent pay limitation program. The increaswe for nonsupervisory employees in grades WG 4-13 ranges from 2 cents to 13 cents per hour. Nonsupervisory employees in grades WG 1-3 did not receive any catch-up increase since they were paid at the full unrestricted pay rate established for FY80.

The second schedule, effective Oct. 5, is based on a Locality Survey conducted in Aug. This schedule provides additional increases for nonsupervisory employees ranging from 33 cents to 72 cents per hour. Increases for working leaders and supervisors are commensurate with nonsupervisory employee increases.

Payment to Fort Benning employees will be made in two steps. First, the current pay period (Oct. 18-Nov. 1) which will be paid on Nov. 13 will include the new pay rates. Next, a catch-up payment for the period Oct. 1-18 will be paid with the Nov. 1-15 pay period on November 26.

With this second payment, all wage grade employees will be paid up to date.

German POW's remembered here

Memorial services commemorating German prisoners of war will be held Nov. 16 at 10 a.m. in the Fort Benning cemetery.

There are 41 German soldiers who died in prison camps in or around Fort Benning buried at the post cemetery.

These services takes place all over the United States at other Army installations where German soldiers are buried, on this German holiday that occurs the third Sunday of November.

Lieutenant Colonel Rolf H. Halama, German liason officer, will make a short speech and then place a wreath upon the graves. The German Club Heimatland of Columbus will also take part in the ceremony and invited guests include Col. Bobby J. Harris, Fort Benning's chief of staff.

Check purchases slow refunds to seven days

DALLAS--The Army and Air Force Exchange Service (AAFES) has adopted a new refund policy affecting merchandise purchased by check. Effective November 1, payment or refunds of $100 or more for merchandise purchased by check will be delayed for seven days from the date of purchase. This seven-day delay pertains to customers in the fifty United States and overseas customers who drawn checks on local banks. For overseas customers who draw checks on stateside banks, the waiting period is 14 days.

This policy was adapted from the business world which requires that certain checks clear the accounts they are written on before the customer can received cash.

Customers who desire to return merchandise valued at $100 or more must wait for at least seven days from the date of purchase before returning it to the exchange for refund.

A flexibility in the system allows refunds to be made earlier if the bank confirms that the check has cleared.

AAFEES will continue the policy of returning the customers check if the merchandise is brought back on the day it was purchased and the check is still at the store.

Also, if the customer writes a check for more than 100 dollars to over several purchases, and only wishes to return a portion of the purchase (valued less than $100), his money will refunded with no waiting period.

AAFEES stresses the importance of presenting the sales receipt at the time of the return. The receipt is proof of the date of purchase. It also indicates whether the customer has paid in cash or by check.

Customers who cannot produce a sales receipt ( must wait seven days or 14 days for overseas purchases drawn on stateside banks) from the date the refund is requested to receive payment.

Customers who are being transferred may return merchandise immediately and make arrangements with the exchange to receive their refund by mail

Field training hits target

Members of the 2nd Battalion, 10th Field Artillery demonstrated their skills at a recent ARTEP at Fort Stewart, Ga.

It could have been just another ARTEP, but when the 2nd Battalion, 10th Field Artillary goes out, they do it with a bang.

The eight-day ARTEP in the hot and humid atmosphere of Fort Stewart, Ga. gave the 2nd of 10th the chance to show their artillery expertise.

Under the command of Lt. Col. Richard E. Entlich, the Rock's Support, as the 2/10th is popularly known, began their exercise here. They drove the 110 vehicles the 250 miles to Fort Stewart without a single acccident. This speaks well of the level of safe professionalism the unit practices, said a spokesman for the unit.

In mock battles against Fort Stewart's 24th Infantry Division the unit showed its capability as artillarymen. Throughout the ARTEP they were scored on their tactics and ability to hit their targets.

During the ARTEP, they not only had to defend themselves against their attackers, but keep up constant support fire throughout the mock battle. The hordes of the 24th Infantry Division quickly found out that the Rock's Support could ably defend themselves and keep up the much needed support fire at the same time. As in many battle situations, the 2nd of 10th had to quickly move out, set up at a new position and begin the attack anew. Those witnessing the spectacle gave ready praise to the Rock's Support, according to a spokesman for he artillary unit.

Perhaps the training gained in the field exercise is best summed up by PFC Curtis Lueallen, a training clerk for Battery A. "We got better training on the ARTEP than we would have gotten here. We had to learn more about the MOS," he said.

About life in the field he said, "We were out in the field eight days and it was different than being in garrison. We had to cooperate with each other since we couldn't go where we wanted after the training and had to stay together."

With a history dating back to the days of World War I, the unit has a long and distinguished past. The unit gained ther nickname when, during the second battle of the Marne, they blunted a masssive German attack while supporting the 3rd Infantry Division, the Rock of the Marne.

From the Korean War to the present, the unit has continually shown that it is alsways ready to give accurate and rapid artillary support when ever and where ever it is needed.

AUSA sponsors meal

Potential cadets attend meeting

By Tom Sabel

Nearly 100 potential West Point cadets recently learned a great deal about admission to the academy at a meeting sponsored by the Association of the United States Army (AUSA).

Cadets for the academy are selected from interested high school graduates or enlisted soldiers who meet the elegibility requirements. According to an AUSA spokesman, this meeting was not soley for future academy students but also for students who may be attending the United States Army Military Academy Preparatory School. The preparatoy school gets students ready for the rigors of the academy, added the spokesman.

The meeting also explained various aspects of academy life: life of the cadet, military training and the academic life. Graduating students receive a bachelor's degree in engineering.

Admission to West Point is based on many things, said the spokesman; such as high school records, college entrance examination scores and participation in extra curricular activities. Prospective cadets are chosen through application to the academy and nominations from local congressmen and Senators.

The spokesman added that the possible cadets were,"...very attentive." He added that some of those at the meeting may well indeed go on to the academy.

One of the featured speakers at the meeting was Capt. Troy Tailor, a West Point representative as well as several recent academy graduates. A question and answer period followed the speeches.

Sheriff's Target

During any given month here an average of 130 soldiers are reported absent without leave(AWOL) to the military police. Most are trainees and many, I'm sure, are not aware of the consequences of their actions.

When a soldier goes AWOL, notification that he or she is a fugitive wanted by the Army is made to the individual's family, the hometown police, the Federal Bureau of Investigation(FBI), the military police and the military personnel center.

Provost Marshal
Col. Ward

The individual's security clearance is withdrawn, allotments to the soldier'sfamily and/or financial institutions may be stopped, government life insurance may be discontinued but worst of all, the soldier brings embarrassment to his family and discredits his assigned unit.

Almost everyone who goes AWOL is later apprehended. Once apprehended they are fingerprinted, photographed and subject to confinement pending a determination by a courts-martial. If court-martialed, soldiers can receive up to one year confinement and a dishonorable discharge.

Most soldiers who go AWOL claim to have personal business to take care of or had problems that nobody wanted to hear about. Once apprehended and returned to military control they indicate they do want to stay in the Army, at least long enough to receive an honorable discharge.

If you think you really need a leave or pass, discuss it with your leaders. Level with them. If an emergency keeps you from reporting back to duty on time, call your unit commander and ask for an extension.

Many soldiers who go AWOL are not aware of the seriousness of the act. AWOL is a serious offense, yet some soldiers seem to think AWOL is only a form of playing hooky.

They don't realize the costs, penalties, embarrassment and grief to themselves and their families that this thoughtless act can bring. Remember, a criminal record is forever. Don't become a criminal. Don't go AWOL.

OUR GOAL

CFC

The Combined Federal Campaign (CFC) had reached $320,775, or 98.7 percent of the goal as of Tuesday.

Campaign officials are optimistic that turn-ins will enable the CFC to reach its goal today. Campaign officials also report that this year's CFC has reached this level of contributions earlier than any of past campaigns.

The CFC Project Office, 545-1332, will remain open in the Army Community Service (ACS) Conference Room, Bldg. 83, through Nov. 13 for late turn-ins.

Not forgotten

Last Tuesday marked one year the 52 American hostages have been held captive in Iran. Fifth graders at Herbert J. Dexter school here, wanted to do something about the situation to show they care. So in rememberance of the hostages, Allyson Hayes tied a yellow ribbon around the old oak tree at their school, with the boys help of course.

Marines celebrate

The United States Marine Corps will be 205 years old Monday. To celebrate the event there will be a uniform pageant and cake cutting ceremony at the Main Post Officers Club Saturday night beginning at 8 p.m. Maj. Gen. David E. Grange Jr., post commander, will be the guest of honor. Dancing will be from 10 p.m. til midnight. The music will be provided by Benning's 283rd Army Band.

Drac' is back!

The laboratory at Martin Army Community Hospital had a famous visitor from Transylvania last Friday. Seems like Drac' just couldn't resist having a sample of blood from Rosa Porter. Rosa didn't seem to mind either. After all, she was at the Hematology clinic for a blood test anyway. Actually, Count Dracula is really none other than medical lab technician Sue Hudnall, who like the other lab technicians, couldn't resist the fun of dressing up for Halloween.

Savings increased

The Department of the Treasury announced the approval of a 1 percent increase in the rate on U.S. Saving Bonds and Saving Notes. The increase rate on Series EE Bonds purchased on and after Nov. 1 is increased from 7 percent to 8 percent, compounded semiannually when bonds are held to maturity.

All outstanding E, EE, H, and HH Savings Bonds, as well as outstanding Saving Notes (Freedom Shares) will also benefit from a 1 percent increase to their next maturities. In general, the interest increase will be effective with the first semiannual interest period that begins on/or after Nov. 1.

The Department of the Treasury also announced that the term to maturity for Series EE Bonds has been shortened from 11 to nine years.

Eddie Maddox clears away dead branches in the shrubs to stimulate new growth.

Groundskeeper gets serious on soil

By Tom Sabel

Eddie Maddox is a familiar site to anyone working in Infantry Hall. Most of the students taking classes have seen him. However, few people would recognize him if they should meet him on the street.

For 10 years Maddox has been the groundskeeper around Infantry Hall, caring for the many shrubs, trees and lawn around the building. The green lawns, tightly trimmed shrubbery and clean, uniform appearance are the responsibility of Maddox. While most see him always smiling and saying hello to passers by, there is another side of Eddie Maddox, the serious side of this man of the soil.

"It'll soon be time to chip around the shrubs," said Maddox as he caressed the soil with his hands. He tells of how the decaying wood chips add much needed mulch to the soil. "We put down a real thick layer of chips and the weeds won't come through," he added.

The hot, dry summer has been particularly bad on the bushes with many of them dead or dying. "Some of these that look dead are only dried out on top. There's plenty of green underneath," he said, breaking the dried branches from the top of the bush. A few fresh green leaves began to poke through the dry branches. "See the green. This will all grow back greener and better than before."

Maddox's knowledge comes from experience and watching others. "If somebody comes up to me and suggests something, I'll listen. A lot of times they will come up good ideas I can use around here. I may not always agree with what they're saying, but I'll listen," he added.

"My own suggestions on replanting have been accepted and they always worked," said Maddox. "I just had a feeling that the new shrubs would grow better. In the last ten years just about everything I've gone for has worked out. I must be lucky," he said with a smile.

It may be luck but it's probably the innate green thumb of a man who loves the soil.

Maddox would liked to see installed is an automatic sprinkler system. "It takes one man all day to walk around and move the hoses and sprinklers. That man could be doing something else," said Maddox.

It's not surprising that his lawn at home is as beautiful as the one surrounding Infantry Hall.

Holiday shoppers tipped

Christmas shopping time again...Already?

If you plan to do your Christmas shopping through the mail, you better get started. Avoid any disappointments during the holiday season.

Around this time of year, consumers are beginning to see advertisements appearing in magazines and elsewhere offering mail order catalogs, generally directed towards Christmas gift buying. Shopping by mail is often convenient, time saving and in most cases quite satisfactory. However, there are a few important things to keep in mind.

- Beware of exaggerated claims for products or unrealistically low prices for merchandise.
- Carefully read catalogs. They are your best guide to ordering. Always keep a copy of the ad or brochure you order from.
- Before you place an order, check with the Better Business Burea for a company realiability report.
- Before ordering, find out if the merchandise is offered on a satisfaction guaranteed or money back basis.
- Place your order at least 4 weeks before you want the merchandise. Check for a cut off date for orders after which delivery will not be guaranteed.
- Pay by check or money order and be sure to include any shipping and handling charges. Never send cash through the mail.
- Check your order promptly upon receipt to make sure the item is what you ordered, that it is intact and satisfactory. Notify the company at once if it isn't.
- The Burea has a phamphlet available that explains the Federal Trade Commissison rules and regulations that apply to mail order. For a copy of your free phamphlet just send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Better Bussiness Burea, Post Office Box 6889, Columbus, Ga. 31907.

And remember...It's not too early to place your Christmas shopping orders.

Leases: Careful reading of contracts before signing a necessity

"Whatta ya mean I've got to fix the leak in the pipe? I just moved in yesterday! I'm only renting this place! Look here, my lease says...What? You mean it says I've gotta fix the leak?"

Sad story, but carefully reading the lease is only of the things you should do before you sign.

Just because a lease says you have to do something doesn't mean that every landlord is out to get you. It does mean that there are two sides to the rental story--the landlord's and yours, and you both have rights. These rights must be clearly put in writing and understood by both parties before anything is signed.

The Housing Referral Office (HRO) is the place to start. All military personnel must report to the HRO before signing any rental or lease agreement for off-base housing. This is true for newly arrived soldiers as well as for those who want to move into another apartment or house off-post.

The HRO personnel will give you information on general housing conditions in your area. They'll tell you what places are 'off limits' because they don't come up to standards of health, cleanliness, or maintenance or are located in a high crime area. Some places do not comply with the Equal Opportunity Housing Law. A short visit with the experts at HRO could save you time and a lot of hassle.

When you find a place to rent, you'll usually be asked to pay a security deposit befoe you move in. This is normally about one month's rent. The landlord will use this money if there's a need to repair damages caused by you or your family which are worse than 'normal wear and tear.' The exact meaning of 'normal wear and tear' should be spelled out in the lease so you don't get stuck with repairs that are the landlord's responsibility.

If you leave the place in good shape, your security deposit will be returned. You should make sure this is written down in the lease also.

If you want to be treated fairly, be a good tenant. Pay your rent on time, avoid damage and make repairs if damage happens that's your fault. Control your children and pets, follow the house rules if it's an apartment complex and give the proper notice if you have to move.

Landlords have been known to raise the rent if they've had a bad experience with a tenant. Would you enjoy cleaning up a dirty place crawling with roaches and badly in the need of repairs? NO? Well, neither does the landlord. He may begin charging more rent if has to pay cleaning and repair bills every time a tenant moves out. In areas where a lot of military people live, high rent can be a problem. Good tenants help to keep the cost of rent down.

The landlord has legal rights and so do you, the tenant. If you have already signed a lease and find that the landlord has covered up damages or gives you problems that you can't live with (like constant harassment for no reason), you may be able to get legal advice from the local JAG (Judge Advocate General) office before you do anything. An Army lawyer will talk to you about your lease problems free of charge.

Renting a place to live doesn't have to be an unhappy experience. Know your rights and play by the rules. Make a happy home for yourself and your family no matter where you hang your hat.

Heberling awarded

George E. Heberling, director of Resources Management, received the Department of Army's Decoration for Exceptional Civilian Service in a Nov. 5 ceremony at Fort Benning.

.This decoration is the Department of Army's highest achievement award given to civil servants and equates to the Army's Legion of Merit.

George E. Heberling

Heberling was cited for exceptional achievements while serving at the Infantry Center's financial manager from Sept. 1972 until March 1980. During .this period, he provided outstanding leadership in directing the resources management program by reducing manpower, reorganizing and expanding new missions and maintaining a 99.9 percent utilization rate of available funds.

He has received the Meritorious Civilian Service Award twice and 17 outstanding performance ratings at Benning.

Postal Vegas offers unreliable

(AP)--Postal officials warn that Las Vegas vacation offers being sold across the country may promise more than they deliver.

Chief Postal Inspector Kenneth Fletcher says at least a dozen companies are making the offers by mail and telephone.

In general, they are asking for a service charge of $25 to $50, sometimes requesting credit card numbers. The number is supposed to confirm identity, but Fletcher says is is actually used to bill the individual through the credit card company.

Fletcher says the firms claim the vacation certificates are good for three days and two nights lodging in Las Vegas and include meals and a gambling package worth $250.

He says that when buyers of the certificates send in hotel reservations, they get letters advising that no rooms are available. When refunds are requested, the reponse is a letter asking for patience.

Fletcher says that anyone who has fallen victim to one of these schemes should contact the Postal Inspection Service or local postmaster.

Quarters winterized for cold

By Becky Bulgrin

Old-man winter is just around the corner. And people, naturally, will be trying their best to keep warm, just as they did everything possible to keep cool during the dog days of summer.

Common sense tells us to wear warmer clothing outdoors, but what about the times we're at home and it feels like being inside an icebox?

During this "energy-conscious" time, keeping the heat turned up sky-high isn't the answer. Besides, that costs money. However, there are things that can be done, while at the same time conserving energy and saving money.

It's called "self-help winterization," which means winterizing your quarters (or billets) yourself, along with aid from the self-help program on post. Supplies are free - all you have to do is attend a one to two hour class for information and instruction.

The self-help classes are mandatory for soldiers living in family housing and soldiers living in billets have the option of attending similar classes, which are given separately (they are called troop classes and are about three hours long).

After attending a class, soldiers (or their spouse) are certified and given a card. This card, along with a military I.D., enables them to draw free supplies from the self-help issue point. Soldiers not living in family housing must also fill out a work order request (form 4283) and are shown how to do this at the troop classes. Both classes are given at the Facilities Training School on Vibbert Ave. by appointment.

Soldiers can get into a class within two-three weeks after calling, or sometimes much sooner, according to Dominick DeCarlo, chief of the Facilities Training School, DFAE, and manager of the self-help program.

The classes are not given for the purpose of winterizing quarters - they are given year-round, but soldiers should be aware that supplies for this purpose are available at no charge, according to DeCarlo.

Supplies available at the self-help issue point (located in warehouse 466 on Edwards St.) are weather stripping, caulking, and polyethylene. Also available are glass and putty for the troops to repair broken window panes. Troops can also get sheet rock (plaster board) and tape to repair walls, and they are shown how to do it at the classes. An evaluator is sent out for tasks such as these to see what is needed, and goes back to make sure it was done correctly.

"People are limited to what they can do as far as winterizing," said DeCarlo. "But you'd be surprised how much the little things count, such as just keeping the windows closed."

A few more common sense tips to keep warm this winter, while conserving energy, are:

- Turn the thermostat down at night, wearing warm clothing and using more blankets.
- Close off unoccupied rooms.
- Use kitchen, bath, and other ventilating fans sparingly. (In just one hour these fans can blow away a houseful of warmed or cooled air. Turn them off just as soon as they have done their job).
- Keep windows near your thermostat tightly closed, otherwise it will keep your furnace working after the rest of the room has reached a comfortable temperature.
- Dust or vacuum radiator surfaces frequently. (Dust and grime impede the flow of heat).
- Keep draperies and shades open in sunny windows; close them at night.

"Winterization works hand in hand with energy conservation, and if people do their part, it can be a great help," concluded DeCarlo.

"WHEN YOU'RE A CIVILIAN AGAIN, AN EXTRA $1,300 A YEAR SURE COMES IN HANDY."

"I got out of the Army in February of 1977, right when all the prices were going up. Food. Clothing. Gas. You name it and it went up.

"Fortunately, when I was out-processing, someone asked me if I wanted to make some extra money with a local Army Reserve unit, and I said yes.

"It's good I joined right away, because it took me a couple of months to find a good full-time job.

"Even with a regular job, the extra $1,300 I earned with the Reserve came in handy. It was the difference between barely making ends meet and being able to put a little money away.

"By going direct from Active into the Reserve, I was also able to keep my rank of E-4. I'm now an E-5, pulling in over $1,600 a year. Not bad for a weekend a month and two weeks annual training.

"I'm also taking advantage of some other benefits. I buy a lot of my auto supplies at the PX. I carry low-cost government life insurance through the Reserve. I also think the retirement package is a good deal.

| How much can you make part-time with the Army Reserve? | Per Weekend | Per Year |
| E-3 with 2+ years | $73.08 | $1231.41 |
| 3+ years | 76.04 | 1248.03 |
| E-4 with 3+ years | 80.52 | 1360.44 |
| 4+ years | 86.80 | 1459.35 |
| E-5 with 4+ years | 89.24 | 1510.38 |
| 6+ years | 95.08 | 1602.36 |

"A side benefit that's helped me is the additional training I've picked up in the Reserve. I was an MP on active duty but have become an Accounting Specialist in the Reserve. Right now, that's helping me with the business degree I'm working toward at a local college.

"So I can recommend the Army Reserve to anyone coming off active duty. The extra income is good, and it's nice being with people who can appreciate what you achieved in the service."

ETV: Training programs key to success of attempts to visualize exercises

By Bill Powell and Rick Saltzman

"ETV? What's ETV? Is it some type of new weapons system?"

ETV is the abbreviation for educational television. WFBG-TV is run and supported by ETV but training is where it's at.

Fort Benning Educational Television is ready to make training programs to present training exercises and other training procedures.

This makes life easier for those in charge with maintaining the readiness of military personnel. The way this happens is that someone in charge of training on a post wants to show a better way to fire the M-16A1. A change is approved and it becomes new policy. Then comes the problem of how to show all the affected companies and commanders what it looks like in practice.

This is where ETV comes in. The training people tell the folks at the television facility what they need and the management people advise what would be best. After a work order is filled through Training Audiovisual Support Center (TASC), which is the agency ETV is under, the work begins on producing a program showing the changes in procedure.

Once the work is begun there are a lot of decisions to make. Whether the program should be done for television, motion picture, slide-tape or audio needs to be decided upon. ETV has the facilities to make a program in any of these ways. After the decision is made scripts are written, cameras are assigned, the program portions are recorded, the program portions are edited together, the finished product is checked and the program is given to the people who requested it. This is how an idea goes from first step to a finished product.

The ETV staff includes 35 people, of which seven are military. All are total professionals dedicated to turning out a good product, according to Supervisory Audiovisual Production Officer Bennett Yielding.

The television facility is under the Training and Doctrine Command (TRADOC) and is one several facilities at various posts around the nation. Each facility makes programs requested by commands on their posts. They also issue catalogs available worldwide listing programs they've made for training purposes. Once someone realizes he wants a program, a request is sent for the program and ETV makes sure that the program is copied and sent to the requestor.

The section using a lot of recorded programs is called playback. This is usually the last place a program goes after recording. Here the finished program is transferred to another form for sending to requestors. WFBG is based in this area and consists of three videotape players, a tape recorder and a switcher which is hooked up to Alert Cable, Channel 13 and Channel 5.

The WFBG-TV studios resemble most small town TV stations. The main difference is WFBG broadcasts to building 4 and Fort Benning only and so far none of the programs are live.

Producing and directing a training film or an information program takes just as much skill and creativity as a broadcast in a full-time, commercial TV station.

The civilian and soldier TV technicians and broadcasters have civilian experience or diplomas from military broadcasting schools. Some of the ETV civilian technicians served in uniform at American Forces Television and Radio Service outlets around the world.

Most of the films, tapes and other programs which are produced at Fort Benning's ETV facility are used for training purposes.

The programs and other films from Fort Benning's large ETV film inventory are broadcast from building 4 Monday through Friday on channels 5 and 13. The most current program is "The Benning Report" which is produced on tape every Friday afternoon and aired weekdays at 12:30 p.m. and 5:30 p.m.

See the WFBG-TV schedule in this issue of the Bayonet. Regular topics include military history, health, religion, public service announcements and subjects of interest to soldiers and their families.

Viewers are invited to appear on WFBG-TV. From soldiers to athletes, WFBG would like to learn about their jobs or sports. Civilian employees, dependent wives and children are invited to appear on the show. There are many different and interesting professions, interests or hobbies left to be explored. The Benning Report broadcasters are eager to interview. Call SSgt. Rick Saltzman or Sp5 Bill Powell at 545-2201.

By Rick Saltzman and Bill Powell

"Ten seconds to air...Five seconds....This is the Benning Report, with Sp4 Bill Powell with news and SSgt. Rick Saltzman with Sports..."

The "Benning Report" is off and running late Friday afternoon. For the next 15 minutes,under the glare of television lights, and the unforgiving eye of T.V. cameras, the anchorman and sports reporter, along with their interviewees, work to bring Fort Benning news about itself.

Fifteen minutes on the viewer's home screen and it's all over. But behind that 15 minutes stands the creative talents of several people and many hours of diligent work and coordination. The combined talents of the Public Affairs Office and Educational Television facility mold together in creating "The Benning Report".

The program planning includes the coordination of guests, the script, the questions asked, what slides to use, what videotape would best illustrate the mission of a guest's organization. This does not neglect needed shots,camera angles as well as a million other small but significant details.

The whole operation is scrutinized by many people to insure everything is just right. Suggestions are made on where to improve or what stories can be used next time. Lt. Col. Charles Belan, Public Affairs Officer, Maj. James Baker, Chief of Educational Television and Bennett Yielding, Supervisory Audio Visual Production Officer oversee operations.

At the actual production level Randy Amos works as director of "The Benning Report" while SSgt. Rick Saltzman and Sp4 Bill Powell are producers.

The program would be incomplete without the Air Force Weather Detachment's forecasts under the direction of Maj. Gibson Morris. Everyday duty weather forecaster SSgt. Randy Thompson calls in the weather forecast for Fort Benning.

The lights go out when the taping session is over and the equipment is put away. The staff goes their separate ways when the week's taping is over.They can go home content knowing of ajob well done to bring Fort Benning it's news. But there's always that lingering thought as the door is closed to the T.V. studio that it starts all over on Monday.

Doughboys lose at wire

By Becky Bulgrin

The game between the Doughboys and Auburn's junior varsity went right down to the wire Sunday afternoon in Doughboy Stadium. The War Eagles scored in the last 31 seconds, edging out a 29-22 win over Benning.

It was a tie game until Auburn Tiger quarterback Scott Villar threw a 29-yard sideline pass to Chuck Clanton to set up the win. While Clanton's reception was spotted on Benning's ten, the Doughboys argued that the pass was out of bounds. The call was controversial, but the referee called it in bounds. After two more plays Lionel James scored the winning TD from the seven.

The Doughboys scored the first three points of the game in the second quarter when Charles Mata kicked a 22-yard field goal. The Tigers came on strong, taking a 14-3 halftime lead on 44 and 55-yard touchdown passes by Villar to Chris Woods and Chuck Clanton.

It was the Doughboys' turn to take charge when Howard Hunter recovered an Auburn fumble on a first down. A gain of seven and an offsides penalty against Auburn put the Doughboys on the Tiger's 34. An 18-yard run by Sammy Lockhart put the Doughboys only 16 yards from their goal. On the next play, Ronald Scott shot up the middle, breaking several tackles and going around left end to score. A missed attempt for an extra point left the score at 14-10.

When an offsetting penalty against Auburn called for a re-kick, a hard and fast tackle by Doughboy Willie Shiver allowed only a 12-yard return for the Tigers from the four-yard line.

Although penalties and incomplete passes prevailed for both teams, the Doughboys managed to score again with 2:14 left in the third. A fantastic double-reverse option pass by quarterback Leamon Hall went to tight end Clennie Brundidge, who scored on the 43-yard play. Although the extra-point attempt failed, the Doughboys held a 16-14 edge over Auburn.

With 3:51 left in the game, running back Lionel James ran for two up the middle, scoring another six points for Auburn after four straight first downs. Opting for a two-point conversion, Villar connected with James to give the Tigers a 22-16 lead.

On the Auburn kick to the ten, running back Richard Fletcher made a 27-yard return, putting the Doughboys on their own 37. After a three-yard rush, Sammy Lockhart dashed up the middle for a 50-yard run. With time running short, Hall scored on an 11-yard keeper, tieing the game.

With only :31 remaining, Auburn's James managed to score the winning touchdown and Barton's kick for the extra point was icing on the cake.

Doughboys earn pride

By Tim Boivin

The Doughboys earned everybody's heart who was in Doughboy Stadium Sunday afternoon during their game against Auburn. Twice they battled back with fire in their souls like a boxer who had been knocked down.They weren't ready to roll over and play dead and by the end of the ball game, Auburn knew they had been in a battle.

In the end, when the scoreboard read Auburn 29, Fort Benning 22, there was disappointment, anger and disgust in Doughboyland. There needn't be, though, because if this game was scored on the basis of heart and effort, the Doughboys were the clear victors.

The Doughboys outplayed Auburn in every phase of the game. They fell victim once again to falling behind early and not being able to quite catch up in the end.

Coach Ralph Santaliz wandered aimlessly around the parking lot at the end, fire in his eyes and in his words. He wanted this victory, he could taste it better than one of his well known stops at Taco Bell on road trips. But in the end there was a sour taste because of a questionable call by a referee.

The Doughboys play Georgia Tech's junior varsity Monday afternoon at 3 p.m. in Atlanta at Grant Field.

They'll also be playing in a game which means a lot to them. For despite their 3-5 record, they've played each game with more pride and determination than the one before. I'll be there to watch and cheer them on. Hopefully, in the last home game against Alabama State Nov. 23, fans will show up to support these gutty soldiers.

Track team grows

The track team I've been proposing for the last few weeks is starting to fly. A meeting was held Wednesday night at Crain Hall for anyone interested in starting the team. Eleven people showed up with three others begging off because of previous engagements. But the groundwork has been laid.

By the end of the night, after visiting the Doughboy's practice session, I had 13 people lined up for the team. However, all of them were men. There is room, under Title IX, for women to compete in sports on Fort Benning.

Another meeting has been scheduled for 6 p.m. Thursday at Briant Wells Field House. This meeting is for people to become more acquainted with each other and to check out the equipment stored under Doughboy Stadium.

I would like to take this opportunity to invite any women on post who want to run as part of the track team. If any women are interested, or any more men for that matter, please contact me at 545-2201/2202 or come to the meeting Thursday.

1/58th rep wins 6-0

Charlie whitewashes IOAC

Charlie Company's Cougars, 1/58th Infantry, 197th Infantry Brigade, defeated the Infantry Officer Advanced Course (IOAC) 4-80, Tuesday night 6-0, in their first game of the post flag football tournaments.

The only score of the game happened right after the opening kick-off on the Cougar's first series of downs. Ten yards from goal, Douglas Brown ran for six after a pass from Cougar quarterback Kelvin McAlister.

But the Cougars failed to move the ball no more than 20 yards after their opening score and got no more first downs due to strong playing by IOAC defensive linemen Ed Johnson, Ernie Morgan and Bob Richardson.

Although IOAC offense was constantly moving the ball, their efforts to score were stifled by a strong overall Cougar defense and four interceptions.

Danny McKnight made one interception in IOAC's end zone during the first half and another in the second at the one-yard line. Frank Binns also made two interceptions for the Cougars, one at a crucial moment near the end when it looked as if IOAC might score.

Tom Heineken showed outstanding punting for the Cougars, putting IOAC deep in their own territory twice.

IOAC's closest attempt at a touchdown was called back after a penalty for holding the flags.

IOAC went into the post tournament with a 5-1 season record and the Cougars were 10-4. Both teams will continue to play in the double-elimination tournament.

Seahawks outlast Cowboys

By Bob Pate
BAYONET Correspondent

The Seahawks, refusing to accept defeat, came from behind to beat the Cowboys 14-12 in Youth Activities(YA) Grasshopper League football action Saturday. The Cowboys scored on a kick-off and punt return but were unable to sustain any offense against the superb Seahawk defense. The Seahawk defense has had only one touchdown scored against it all year.

Key players for the Seahawk defense were Shawn Gentry, Max Chapa, Sam Byrd and Ray Hoggard. The running backs provided the sparks for the Seahawks as Bryan Richardson scored two touchdowns and Larry Holland scored an extra point. Key Seahawk blockers were Steve Cook, Bryan Sharkey and Richard Gerding.

Holly Robinson rampaged 85 yards to score and Don McIver rambled 35 yards for another touchdown in the Buccaneers 12-0 shutout of the Patriots. Players contributing to the defensive gem of a game in the Termite League were George Baily, Jason Boswell, Ned Moultrie, Matt Larson and Clarence Catchings.

In the PeeWee League Pete Marshall passed for 88 yards to compliment the good running of Donny Harris, Xavier Carter and Tyrone Crawford in the Tri-City Panthers 30-0 romp over the Lavoie Cowboys. Holmes scored two touchdowns as did Mike Guynn. Crawford and Marshall scored extra points. Other outstanding players for the Panthers were Tim and Ray Evans, Jeff Bryant, Aaron Harris and Dale Murphy.

In another PeeWee game the Main Post Patriots and the Main Post Jets battled to a 6-6 tie. Outstanding players for the Patriots were Chris Howard, Kevin Williams, Tommy Rynder, Paul Clayton and Tom Rickard.

In an exciting, rollercoaster, come-from-behind win, the Tri-City Panthers clinched the Midget League title with a 22-20 squeaker over the Lavoie Seahawks. At the end of the first half the Seahawks were shutting out the Panthers 14-0. Then a third quarter rally put the Panthers ahead 16-14.

The Seahawks refused to give up and scored again, taking a 20-16 lead with four minutes left in the game. The Panthers came back against a dug-in and determined Seahawk and scored with only 59 seconds left in the game for the final score of 22-20.

The Panthers hung on for the final 59 seconds to win and clinch the title. Scores were made by Donnie Gales, Kevin Sparks, Ike Wychce and Terry Irvin.

In one final game, the Falcons shut out the Fort Rucker Packers 12-0. No highlights were available.

Fort Sill takes TRADOC crown

Benning kickers take third

By Tim Boivin

The Fort Benning soccer team drove to a third place finish in the TRADOC tournament held recently at Fort Gordon, Ga. behind three players named to the all-tourney team.

Benning's goalkeeper Rene Garcia, center fullback Eloy Almeida and center halfback Rafael Sermino were named to the all tournament team. Garcia gave up under two goals a game throughout the tournament.

Benning opened up against Fort Belvoir with a 3-1 victory behind two goals by Hubert Louizaire and another by Kevin Keys. Five different Doughboys scored as the Doughboys whipped Fort Bliss 5-0 in their next game. Louizaire, Ross Sermeno, Kevin Keys, team captain Bill Duffy and Rene Cortez as Garcia shut out the Virginians.

Fort Sill, the eventual tournament champion, shut out Benning 3-0 in their next game. Then, in the championship game of the loser's bracket in the double-elimination tournament, Fort Gordon dropped the Doughboys out with a 3-1 victory. Louizaire scored the only Doughboy goal.

A total of 11 teams took part in the tournament. Benning coach Jim Hallums commented on the team's finish, saying, "Considering the short time we had to practice for the Army's largest soccer tournament, the results we came away with were tremendous."

Fort Benning is always looking for talented additions to their soccer team. The team competes in the Alabama Soccer League and still has eight games left. Anyone interested in playing can come to practices either Tuesdays or Thursdays at 6:30 p.m. in Gowdy Field on Ingersoll Street across from the Main Post Theater.

Fort Benning has a game this Sunday against Auburn here in Gowdy Field beginning at 2 p.m. Their next two games are also at home, Nov. 16 against the Montgomery Spurs and Nov. 22 against Fort Rucker. Game time is 2 p.m. for both matches. Fort Benning's record is now 4-2.

Horses part of Army history

By Edwin Kennedy
Benning Hunt Club correspondent

Horses have played an important part in the history of the Army. They have served not only with the cavalry, but also with the artillery, infantry and signal corps as well.

Horse-drawn artillery did not leave the Army inventory until the early 1940's when complete mechanization of that branch occurred.

The infantry used horses to pull Gatling gun limbers and carriages.

During the 1920's and early 1930's the horse/mule-drawn machine gun cart was used to carry the M1917 heavy machine gun and its accompanying ammunition boxes. An example of this cart is featured in the National Infantry Museum here.

It was only natural that with an abundance of horses and lack of other entertainment that horses be used for recreation as well as work. During the pre-World War II period of the 1930's Fort Benning had as many as 250 horses in its stables. The stables were located where there now stands a motor pool at the end of the 24th Infantry's cuartel.

Fox hunting, competitive showing and polo became popular pasttimes during that golden era of horses on Fort Benning. The post could boast of several teams belonging to the 83rd Field Artillery, 24th Infantry Regiment and the 29th Infantry Regiment. The teams often had matches on French and Blue Polo Fields, which are still located on the main post adjacent to 1st Division Road and Running Avenue.

Horsemen such as these(circa. 1920) were preeminent during the roaring twenties at Fort Benning. Horse shows, like tomorrow's Hunt Club Horse Show, have a storied past in the Army.

With the complete mechanization of horse units during the 1940's the use of the horse declined. The abolishment of the horse calvary in 1948 signalled the end of a glittering, golden era. The horses stabled at Fort Benning were shipped to Fort Lee, Va. to be sold.

The privately owned mounts of the Fort Benning Hunt Club are the only vestiges of the long association of the Army with horses here. The Hunt club is located on Marne Road on the way to Main Post.

Storied past brings back memories

Hunt Club hosts horse show

By Edwin Kennedy
Benning Hunt Club correspondent

Fort Benning's Hunt Club will host their annual Fall Horse Show tomorrow beginning at 8:30 a.m. on French Polo Field on the corner of Yeager Street and 1st Division Road. The show is expected to last until approximately 3:30 p.m.

Each year the show provides enjoyment for children and adults who participate in it but also for those who come to enjoy the beauty of the horses. Admission to the show will be free and there will be refreshments sold on the show grounds. Parking for the show will be on the east end of Blue Polo Field.

This year there will be competition in dressage as well as jumping. A total of 11 classes will be judged by Mary Lewis of Atlanta. Both forms of riding have their roots in military application.

Dressage was used by early calvary soldiers in order to train their mounts to respond to natural aids such as leg pressure and weight shifting. This was done in order to maneuver about the battlefield during times of great duress.

Likewise, jumping had a practical application for soldiers. The ability to jump permitted the soldiers to negotiate obstacles on the battlefield without having to bypass them.

Military saddles, some of which are spotlighted in the showcase in the Bldg. 4(Infantry Hall) display room, were designed with this in mind. Most cavalries of the world adopted small, lightweight saddles which would hinder the horse as little as possible.

Fort Benning's horse stables used to be located near the present day Veterinarian Clinic but today they have been moved to the Hunt Club on Marne Road down the hill from the hospital on the way to main post. This horseman was practicing during the 1930's for a horse show.

Lions hold shoot

The Cusseta Lions Club have scheduled their annual turkey shoot for Nov. 15 from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.at the intersection of highways 27/80 and 137. Each shot will cost $1.50. In case of bad weather the event will be rescheduled for Nov.22.

How About That?

By William W. Erbach, Sr.
36th Engineer Group Chaplain

We read a lot in the newspapers about children who run away. Maybe everyone thinks about running away at some time during his life. Have you ever thought about running away?

I can remember a story about a little boy who ran away. He was standing on the corner down from the house where he lived. A neighbor came by and asked him what he was doing, and he said that he was running away from home. The neighbor commented that he hadn't run very far, to which the child replied, "I've gone so far as I can go. I'm not allowed to cross the street, you know!"

I can remember a neighbor who had a puppy that ran away from home. He was trying to train it, and everything was going wrong. The puppy had drunk water from the aquarium. He had left nose marks on the windows. And he had smashed the lamp on an end table with his wagging tail.

They swatted him with newspaper and then he took off. He was later found drunk from the park pond, and he had left nose marks on the park shelter-house windows. But nobody cared. My friend watched him from a distance as he slunk home.

When he was welcomed with pats and hugs, he perked up. I think he had learned a mighty lesson. It is better to live by a few rules and be around people who cared for him, than to have his own way in everything and be all alone. How About That?

The lesson can be handy one when we become a little strained at the situation we find ourselves in. How far can you really run from yourself? Are the rules really that bad or is it only your reaction to them? And finally, it is better to live with a few rules and be around people who care about you, than be a complete free spirit, all alone.

Bristle Block's toys recalled

WASHINGTON--(ARNEWS)--The Bristle Blocks Toy, made by Playskool, Inc. has been withdrawn from sale, Army and Air Force Exchange Service (AAFEES) officials say.

The toy does not pass consumer product safety commission standards. The plastic, push-together blocks have wheels that come apart easily and could create a potential hazard to youngsters.

Bristle Blocks come in three styles, all of which are affected by the recall. Model numbers include 806, 807 and 808. However, AAFEES only sells model 806.

Benning Report wants opinions

By Bill Powell

WFBG-TV and "The Benning Report" is asking for cards and letters from the viewers to let us know what you like and don't like. If you'd like to see someone who's making news on post on "The Benning Report" then write or call and let us know at the Fort Benning Public Affairs Office, Bldg. 4, Room 601, Fort Benning, Ga. 31905 or call 545-2201 or 545-2202. Following are the highlights of next week's programming:

●"Big Picture-U.S. Army in Berlin-Parts 1 and 2" brings you a look at the Army in Berlin from VE Day 1945 to the Berlin Crisis in the summer of 1961.

●"An Alliance of Neighbors" gives insights into the mission and activities on the U.S. military forces in Latin America and how they help the those countries thwart communism.

●"Spectrum" is a four hour music, information and specials program giving good radio entertainment. The Army Information Radio Service and WFBG will bring the best music of the holiday season plus the special program, "The Best of Radio's Christmas Past." Check times and days of programs in the BAYONET or the Benning Bulletin.

Art contest

The 12th Annual Amateur Art Contest and Exhibition will be held at Kelley Hill Recreation Center on Nov. 22 and 23. All military, active and retired, federal employees, and their dependents 16 years and older are eliible.

Categories in the contest are: charcoal, sculpture, open media, pen and ink, pencil, oils, water color, pastels, photography, acrylic and mixed media.

All entries must be the work of the person entering. Entries will be accepted Wednesday at 1 p.m. Deadline for the entries will be Nov. 20 at 8 p.m. Each piece of art work entered must be titled, and should be matted or framed if applicable.

Ribbons will be awarded for first and second place in each category, plus a best of show ribbon. Each person may enter as many categories as he/she chooses, however only two pieces per category will be accepted from one artist.

Memorial gift program

The American Heart Association's "Memorial Gift's Program" is a service providing a meaningful way to make memorial gifts, send get well wishes, or to honor other special occassions of friends and family.

Contributions to the American Heart Association through this service go toward funding heart programs of research, education and community service.

When gifts are received, the Heart Association will send an acknowledgement card especially designed for the occassion or memorial to the indvidual or family the donor wishes to honor. The amount of the gift remains confidential, and contributions are tax deductible.

Residents of the Fort Benning area who wish to have a Memorial card, Get Well card or Special Occassion sent, may do so by mailing to the following:
American Heart Association
P.O. Box 5744
Columbus, Ga. 31907
Inquiries may be directed to 563-4547.

Cat show

The Kelley Hill Recreation Center, Bldg. 9079, will hold its 13th Annual Cat Show at 2 p.m. Nov. 16. Categories include Shorthair, Longhair, Exotic Breeds, Kitten and Siamese. Only one entry per person. Pet owners must present proof of shots and declawed cats are not eligible to enter. Ribbons will be presented to First and Second Place winners in each category and a Best of Show. Registration begins at 1:30 p.m. The show is free. All military personnel, Federal employees and their dependents are eligible for this activity. For more information call Wednesday through Saturday from noon-8 p.m. 544-3079/1721.

Laundry closed Tuesday

The Quartermaster Laundry will be closed Veterans Day(Tuesday). Units who normally pickup or turn in laundry on Tuesdays will conduct their business with the laundry on either Monday or Wednesday. ## Library art funs

Hey kids! Looking for something to do after school each day? Join us at the W.C. Bradley Memorial Library for an afternoon of art fun.

Ruby Nixon, from the Parks and Recreation in the Columbus area, will teach kids how to make various Holiday crafts for the upcoming season. This After-School Drop-In program will run every Wednesday at 4 p.m. during the first three weeks in November. The program is free for kids of all ages. For more information call 327-0211.

Musicians needed

Musicians are needed for the 283rd Army Band. Soldiers interested should be able to read music and have at least one year in the military left. In addition, they should have not recieved an enlistment bonus and have no record of disciplinary actions. Indviduals meeting the above requirements should contact CWO 2 John O'Preska, commander, at 545-5313/5080 for an interview and audition.

Selected personnel will have an opportunity to obtain a secondary MOS as a bandsman and eventually have an opportunity to attend the Army School of Music at Norfolk, Va.

Musical duties at Fort Benning include participation in Concert Band, Marching Band, Stage Band and Combo.

ROTC scholarships

High school seniors who are interested in beginning their college careers with the Air Force Reserve Officers' Training Corps four-year college scholarships for the 1981-82 academic year should submit their applications to the Air Force Base, Ala. 36112 by Jan. 15, 1981.

Students should contact their high school guidance counselor for an application. Students competing for Air Force ROTC scholarships are required to take either the Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT) or the American College Test (ACT) as part of the application process. When taking the test this fall, students should request that their scores be sent directly to the Four-year Scholarship Branch, Office of the Registrar, Air Force ROTC, Maxwell AFB, Ala., 36112.

The minimum SAT scores required for a scholarship application are 500 in math and a composite, math and verbal score together, of 1,000. For the ACT, the minimum score in math is 19 and the composite score is 22.

T.V. forum

A series of free public forums examining the impact of television on the American Society will begin Monday at the Turner Center at Columbus College.

"Television and Society: An Examination of Values" will focus on current concerns about television in three two-hour sessions Monday, Nov. 18 and Dec. 2 from 7-9 p.m.

On Nov. 18 Dick Williams, T.V., The Atlanta Journal, will address the topic "What Is Responsible Programming and How Can We Help Define This?"

On Dec. 2, Mrs. Lovelace Hair, state editor, "Georgia PTA Today," will speak on "How Television Affects Children and How Parents Can Assist Children With Their Viewing".

Audience participation will play an important role in the forums. Advance registration is not required and there is no fee. For more information call 568-2023.

TRAINING EXTENSION COURSE

TEC lessons are developed by Army schools to help every soldier . . TEC emphasizes performance-oriented training . . . increases individual and unit proficiency . . results in better job performance and higher SQT scores. TEC sets uniform standards for all soldiers. The same lessons are available everywhere. There are printed lessons, lessons on audio tape and TEC lessons on tape and film combined. NCOs can use TEC to train one soldier or a group of soldiers. There is no pressure to finish in a limited time. A lesson can be repeated as often as necessary. The Army Research Institute discovered that TEC-trained soldiers learn skills better and remember longer than other soldiers do. Take advantage of the TEC program. It could lead to promotions and higher pay. Ask your CO or NCOIC about TEC (Training Extension Course) today!

Veteran's checks upped

WASHINGTON (ARNEWS)--Compensation checks for veterans, surviving spouses and children of deceased veterans will increase this month, Veterans Adminstration (VA) officials say.

The increase, which is due to recent Congressional action, was signed into law Oct. 7.

The law increases rates by 13 percent for veterans rated as 10 to 0 percent disabled, and 14.3 percent for those more seriously disabled. Also, Dependency and Indemenity Compensation (DIC) rates will increase for surviving spouses and children of veterans.

Several other VA benefits are affected by the new law. These include:

- Increasing VA Home Loan Guarantees for conventional homes from $25,000 to $27,500 and Mobile Home Loan Guarantees from $15,500 to $20,000.
- Paying up to $5,000 for special housing adjustments for certain veterans with service-connected disabilities.
- Supplying headstones or grave markers for veteran's spouses or children buried in state veteran cemeteries; and,
- Improved pensions for military retirees whose retirement income falls below the poverty level.

The law also provides relief for veterans who obtained mortagages during high interest rate periods, and later found they could refinance at lower rates.

In the past, officials say, VA required that a mortgage be paid off and the property sold before a veteran could get another VA Loan. Now, the new law allows refinancing of a present VA Guaranteed Mortgage Loan.

The law does, however, limit benefits for veterans in Federal, State or Local prisons on felony convictions. After 60 days confinement, veterans will receive compensation or DIC at lesser rates.

Detailed explanations of the new rates will be enclosed with forthcoming VA checks, officials comment.

Allowances raised for Bill users

WASHINGTON (ARNEWS)--Veterans using GI Bill educational benefits for training should see a bigger check starting this month, according to Veterans Administration (VA) officials.

The Veterans Rehabilitation and Education Amendments of 1980, signed into law Oct. 17, 1980, call for a 10 percent increase in educational allowances under the GI Bill.

Education checks due Nov. 1 for an estimated 600,000 veterans-students and dependents in training will include a five percent boost. The balance of the 10 percent hike, officials say, will be included in checks due Feb. 1, 1981. Those veteran-students who start training under the GI Bill after Jan. 1, 1981, will get the full 10 percent increase at one time.

Single veterans who are full-time students will receive a November check for $327- $16 more than the October check. Beginning February 1981, these students will get $342.

Monthly payments for veterans with two dependents will be increased from $370 to $389 in November, and to $407 in February. Educational benefits for veterans with two dependents will rise from $433 to $443, to $464 by February 1. For each additional dependent the extra allowance will rise from $26 in October, to $27 in November to $29 by February.

The new law also calls for major improvements in VA's Vocational Rehabilitation program for service-connected disabled veterans, officials comment. A 17 percent increase in monthly allowances will be included in the November checks of about 11,000 trainees, along with increased job counseling and placement services.

VA Tutor Assistance payments were also increased by 10 percent under the new law. In addition, the amount VA can pay under correspondence or flight training for students who enroll in these programs after Sept. 1, 1980, has been changed.

For them, VA can pay 70 percent of the total charges for correspondence training or 60 percent of the charges for flight training, according to VA officials. Students enrolled September 1 or earlier will continue to get 90 percent of the total course charges paid for through VA.

Officials comment that flight training students, for the first time, will be eligible for educational loans based on needs of up to $2,800.

Another change called for by legislation affects the way VA will pay veteran-students training while in jail. Veterans imprisoned on a felony conviction will no longer receive monthly educational allowances but will be reimbursed for training expenses.

When will it all end?

By William A. Cauthen Jr.
PAO, Fort Jackson, S.C.

It seems like every month there is another major personnel cut, either military or civilian. One time it's "convert military slots to civilian;" next, it's "cut civilian slots to meet year end limitations;" then, it's "cut military slots from the training base to beef up the line units." How long can it go on?

The easy way to stop the slicing away of muscle (the fat is long gone) is to simultaneously cut functions. In order to create (get authorization for) a slot, a lengthy job description and justification must be prepared. It only seems logical that when a position is cut, the work requirement that created the position should go also.

But it doesn't work that way. The answer is "reorganize your work." Easy to say — difficult to do. What happens when you only have one-of-a-kind in a highly specialized field?

The way most managers operate is to cut from the bottom. The GS3 and PFC clerks go, then the real stubby pencil workers go, and pretty soon you are left with an average grade work force at the GS 8/field grade level (many of whom have long since forgotten how to work) and there's no one left to "empty the garbage."

Another result of the "cut slots, not functions" approach is that quality rapidly begins to fall. It follows just as night follows day, that if you used to spend one man-day doing a project and doing it well, and personnel cuts will allow you to spend only half of a man-day, then the quality will be half as good. What ever happened to the old saying "If it's worth doing, it's worth doing right?"

Often times, the first reaction of high-level manpower folks is "automate it." Great. How do you automate fixing a broken pipeline, composing a news story, planning a budget, drafting a training schedule, counseling a problem soldier, treating a sick person, holding a trial, preaching a church service, conducting drill and ceremony classes, cooking a meal for 1,000 student soldiers, putting out a fire, guarding lives at a pool, patrolling the post at 2 a.m., etc.?

In a lot of areas, it is time to bite the bullet. "Can do" is a super attitude and philosophy, but at some point, our leaders must be honest and say "No more cuts without a cut in mission;" or they must be willing to accept less than the best.

Marines remember roots

Editor's note: the following letter is printed to honor the Marines serving here on their 205th anniversary.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

Nov. 10, 1775 marked the beginning of the United States Marine Corps. Since that date the Marines have been in the forefront of our nation's defense during periods of both peace and war. On every occasion they have demonstrated their readiness to fight, to take on difficult tasks and to carry out the mission. The unique spirit and dicipline which has served the corps so well over the past 205 years continues as Marines prepare for success on the battlefields of the future.

Marines at Fort Benning continued their tradition by hosting the Marine Corps Birthday Ball at the Fort Benning Officer's Club last weekend. Maj. Gen. David E. Grange Jr., post commander, was the distinguished guest of honor.

The official theme of this year's pageant was centered around the various Fort Benning schools attended by Marines. The pageant closed with the traditional cake cutting with the oldest, retired 1st Sgt. Charles F. Waller, and the youngest, Lance Cpl. Michael R. Trimmer, Marines present. The Marine Corps Birthday Ball was formalized by the 13th Commandant of the corps, Gen. John A. Lejune who, on Nov. 21, 1921, published orders to take place and that his personal message to the corps always be read as part of the ceremony.

To all our displaced soldiers of the sea and their families, we wish them a happy 205th birthday.

Poor planning

To the Editor:

The class of IOAC 1-81 arrived at Fort Benning full of enthusiasm and looking forward to a delightful six-month tour. Part of this is obtaining a house and setting up a home. After seeing all the empty houses on post vacated by IOAC class 3-80, we expected no problems in obtaining a house. Housing informed us there is a waiting period for on post housing due to painting and repair work. Although there is a waiting list for housing, it is of little use because of its instability. One could be on the list indefinitely. It seems to me that we are at the mercy of a poor and unfair system which creates anxiety and frustration.

The class of 1-81 is presently living in either guest housing or off post. Very few have been lucky enough to get a house on post.

Obviously, there is a lack of prior planning when a class of 143 students arrives on post and is informed there would be housing on post when, in reality, there is not enough housing to accomodate these families on post. If we had been informed that housing was critical, we could have planned accordingly. Instead, we were given false expections.

Hopefully, a lesson has been learned and mistakes will be corrected prior to the arrival of class 2-81.

Karen Price

Mid-careers eligible for bonuses

WASHINGTON (ARNEWS)--Thousands of mid-career soldiers with six-to-10 years of service became eligible for reenlistment bonuses on Oct. 1, 1980, according to DA Personnel Officials. Over 60 new Military Occupational Specialities (MOS) were added to Zone B of the Selective Reenlistment Bonus (SRB) program.

Mid-career soldiers are generally soldiers at the sergeant-staff sergeant level. Officials said that most of the MOS's were in the Combat Arms Career Fields. The few Combat Arms MOS not previously designated for a Zone A SRB in FY 80 were also added to the SRB program on Oct. 1.

Zone A includes soldiers who reenlist between 21 months and six years active service, while Zone B include those soldiers who reenlist between six and 10 years of active service.

Officials explained that as a result of new legislation, bonuses also became available for soldiers in selected skills who have between 10 and 14 years of service. The Army's FY 81 Zone C Program will permit about 400 highly skilled linguists and other technicians to reenlist and receive a bonus in FY81. In the past, there were provisions for bonuses only in Zones A and B.

Alsom as a result of the recent legislation, the maximum authorized payment for the SRB program was increased from $12,000 to $16,000, officials added.

The officials explained that perhaps the most significant legislative change was one that extended the maximum years of service for bonus computation from 12 to 16 years. As a result, soldiers in Zone B may now reenlist for up to six years and recieve a bonus based upon the total additional obligated service. In the past, pointdd out, a soldier with nine years' service who reenlisted for six years at ETS could only be paid a bonus based upon three more years of service rather than full six years.

Using this example, an Infantry staff sergeant can now reenlist and receive a lump sum Zone B bonus of about $5,500. Prior to Oct. 1, 1980, a bonus was not available for MOS 11B (Infantryman). Had one been available then, the same soldier would have received only about $2,4000 under the old pay scales.

This new program will support the Army's aim of improving cohesion and stability.

Soldiers are encouraged to contact local reenlistment NCO's for more details, the officials stated.

Inpatient care rates increase

The Department of Defense has announced that on Oct. 1, 1980, the dependent rate for inpatient care at Military hospitals increased to $5.50 per day. This charge is applicable to dependents of active duty members, dependents of retirees and to surviving dependents of deceased members. The previous charge was $5 per day.

This change also affects CHAMPUS, since by law the inpatient cost-share requirement for spouses and children of active duty service members is based on the charge at Military hospitals. Therefore, now these individuals will be required to pay $5.50 per day or $25, whichever is greater.

This change does not affect CHAMPUS cost-sharing requirements for retirees, dependents of retirees or surviving spouses and children of deceased members. The law provides that these beneficiary categories are responsible for 25 percent of the reasonable cost/charges for both inpatient and outpatient services — with the Government cost-sharing 75 percent.

Inpatient charges at Military hospitals are adjusted annually to reflect changes in Uniformed Services pay. The increase from $5 to $5.50 per day is approximately the same percentage increase as the pay raise that went into effect on Oct. 1.

Veterans get guaranteed loans

There aren't many things that last a lifetime, but a GI home loan can serve a veteran's changing needs throughout life if he pays attention to Veterans Administration eligibility requirements.

The term "GI home loan" is a bit misleading. According to Atlanta VA Regional Office Loan Guaranty Officer Ralph Franks, it is actually a "VA guaranteed loan." That means the federal government guarantees a portion of the veteran's mortgage. This protects the private lender and eliminates or greatly decreases the veteran's downpayment. Franks noted that the interest rate on a VA guaranteed loan was generally set below current market rates and that repayment time is generally longer than with rates and that repayment time is generally longer than with conventional home loans.

Franks directs the GI home loan program throughout Georgia. Veterans must establish their eligibility with any VA regional office which then issues a certificate of eligibility showing the amount of the veteran's loan entitlement.

"A veteran's current full entitlement is $25,000," Franks explained. "That means we can guaranty up to $25,000 of a mortgage. A general rule of thumb is that most lenders will lend up to four times the amount of the guaranty."

The entitlement limit has been raised periodically over the years and this means many veterans who used their original entitlements to buy homes prior to October 1978, the last entitlement increase, now have additional entitlement with which to obtain another GI home loan.

"Suppose a veteran bought a house in 1960 with a $12,500 loan, $7500 of which was guaranteed by VA," Franks said. "Now, since the present entitlement has risen to $25,000, the veteran still is entitled to a guaranty of $17,500. He could secure another VA home loan, even though he already had bought his first home with a VA guaranteed loan."

Like any loan, the GI home loan must be repaid. Franks noted that many veterans mistakenly believe their liability to VA and the federal government ends when they sell their home.

"The veteran remains liable to the government for the unpaid balance of the VA guaranteed loan even after the sale unless he seeks, and receives, a release from liability from VA."

The release of liability means the VA will not attempt to collect from the veteran should the buyer later default on repayment of the VA guaranteed loan. Without the release, said Franks, the VA could hold the veteran liable long after the house was sold.

The loan guaranty officer advised veterans selling houses with unpaid GI home loans to apply to VA for a release of liability before signing the contract to sell, or include a clause in the contract making sale conditional of receipt of that release. The VA regional office which processed the original loan will then determine the credit worhtiness of the new purchaser to justify the release.

Deadline closing

Need to use rebate cards soon

WASHINGTON (ARNEWS)--Exchange catalog customers have until Nov. 17 to use their rebate cards for merchandise they order from "Exchange Catalog '81," Army and Air Force Exchange Service (AAFES) officials say.

Customers who bought goods from last year's catalog are eligible to use the cards, which are good up to five dollars off on merchandise ordered from this year's catalog.

AAFES customers using the overseas editions of the 1980 catalog must have bought at least $50 worth of merchandise between July 1, 1979, and June 30, 1980, to qualify for a $5 rebate. Those within CONUS must have placed orders worth $20 or more by the same deadline to get a $2 rebate, officials say.

The rebate program was offered as a reward for customers who used the AAFES and Navy Exchange catalogs before June 30, officials explained. Rebates are only useable in the new joint services Exchange catalog '81."

Rebates (in postcard form), were mailed to eligible customers in August and advised them of rebate amounts. If ordering from the new catalog, customers need only include the card with their order.

Servicemembers who transfer from overseas may use the rebate in the U.S. edition of the new catalog, and vice versa. AAFES officials sav.

Letters

Infantry Officer Advanced Course (IOAC) students (company grade officers) compete equally with permanent party company grade officers for assignment to on-post family quarters. Family quarters occupied by IOAC students are not dedicated houses solely for occupancy by successor IOAC student groups; therefore, the 54 houses vacated by IOAC Class 3-80 were not exclusively available to Class 1-81.

Housing availability projected for personnel on the waiting list is developed from a number of sources and not limited to the known houses that are vacant receiving maintenance and repair work. For example, data is received from the post transportation office which identifies occupants who have set up a date for shipment of their household goods; cyclic estimates of probable vacates are made based on data during the month of June (school end) than vacate during the month of October; also, based on experience data IOAC Class 3-80 should have vacated 78 houses instead of the 54 they did vacate.

In addition to the unexpected low number of vacates by Class 3-80, availability of reasonably immediate housing to Class 1-81 was recognized prior to the classes arrival because of the need to manditorily assign families of both Class 4-80 (104 families) and Class 5-80 (73 families). This was necessary to have houses occupied and not vacant. Because it was recognized that IOAC 1-81 would have waiting times in excess of three weeks the policy of mandatory on-post occupancy by IOAC students with families was rescinded for Class 1-81. A number of the families in both IOAC 4-80 and 5-80 would most likely not be in quarters had they not been required to occupy on-post quarters.

To date, 39 families of IOAC 1-81 are in on-post quarters and 23 are still on the waiting list. As a point of comparison, Mrs. Price waited 30 days for on-post quarters and the average junior enlisted family waits three months. Not only prior, but continuous planning takes place with regards to housing IOAC students and their families in as short a period of time as possible.

Occupants of family quarters can greatly assist the Housing Office in the planning stages of identifying and projecting vacant houses by informing the Houing Office, in advance, of the occupant's intent to vacate. Under most circumstances, each occupant should be able to advise the Housing Office 45 days in advance of intended vacate dates. To further help planning, a program of mandatory pre-termination inspections (approximately 15 days prior to actual vacate date) will be implemented at Fort Benning very shortly.

Many factors and a great deal of planning are involved in the establishment of a sound housing assignment policy. The objective is to try and provide the best possible service to all families arriving at Fort Benning. That does not guarantee that everyone will be completely satisfied. However, as the result of Mrs. Price's experience some changes will be made to current policy which will hopefully better serve future IOAC families. At a minimum, we will provide better information so that the IOAC families will be better able to make a more informed housing decision and enjoy a delightful six-month tour which Fort Benning is certainly capable of providing.

The following is offered as one reason why Mrs. Price may have perceived the system to be "poor and unfair." Quarters are not reserved or set aside for members of IOSC classes. Eligibility criteria result from many years experience and are in the overall best interest of all personnel. Student officers are placed on housing waiting lists based on this criteria; therefore, many officers other than IOAC 1-81 students were on waiting lists and eligible to occupy the many quarters that Mrs. Price observed being vacated by Class 3-80. Said another way, there were fewer quarters available for Class 1-81 than the casual observation might indicate.

The waiting list instability mentioned by Mrs. Price may have been the result of the arrival of an individual form overseas. This individual's eligibility date for quarters is his date of departure from overseas. As a result, the family's position on the waiting list may be well in advance of a family such as the Prices who moved to Fort Benning from a CONUS installation. The Housing Office is unaware of these types of changes in the waiting list until the family from overseas applies for Benning housing.

At the time the Prices applied for housng, the Housing Office, based on past experience, was optimistic that quarters would be available for the Prices upon their arrival at Fort Benning; however, past experience did not hold true. Fewer officers than those of previous IOAC classes moved off post, the percentage of families in 1-81 was much larger than anticipated and 80 sets of company grade quarters were redesignated as enlisted quarters. These actions considerably changed the housing availability picture that had been presented earlier to the Prices. One of the proposed chances mentioned earlier will guarantee the percentage of members of a particular IOAC class that will be assigned on post housing. Although this percentage will be be 100 percent, it will provide better planning information for all students on their way to Fort Benning.

We hope their housing experience has not dampened their spirit and their tour at Fort Benning will be in fact delightful. As a minimum, Mrs. Price should feel some degree of satisfaction in the fact that future students will receive better information on which to make their family housing decision.

Mac makes rounds

By Brian Adams
BAYONET correspondent
1st Infantry Training Brigade

The small DJ-5, military jeep, sits idling in the S-4 parking lot. Sitting inside with a fresh cup of hot coffee is Sp5 William B. (Mac) McMurphy, NCOIC and driver for the lst Infantry Training Brigade message center.

Every morning it is the same ritual with Mac as he makes his way around Fort Benning delivering and picking up the mountains of paperwork that are necessary for the operation of the brigade. "I'm never any good until I've had my first cup of coffee," he said.

The oldest of six children born in the small Georgia town of Moultrie, Mac had already seen a lot of the country by the time he left home at 16. "My father is a long-haul trucker," he said. "I rode with him from the time I was 14-years-old until I left home."

In January 1973, after working odd jobs for fouryears, Mac joined the Army. "I joined for a few reasons," he said. "Some personal, but mostly out of patriotism."

Mac was stationed here with Headquarters and Headquarters Detachment, 67th Maintenance Battalion, 36th Engineer Group. In 1976 he transfered across post to the School Brigade where he worked in the battalion headquarters. "One year later I was transferred overseas and assigned to the LAND-SOUTHEAST joint services command in Izmir, Turkey," he said. "I worked in the Alert Operations Center, which was responsible for carrying out all alert procedures invovling the southeastern flank of the European Command." He was awarded the Army Commendation Medal for his work with foreign soldiers in the command. Married in 1974 to his wife Vickie, Mac enjoys sharing his life with her and their son William Jr. "I attribute a lot of my success to my wife," he commented. "She has helped me a lot by just being supportive and by sticking with me through the good times as well as the rough times we've had."

The honor graduate of his Basic Leadership Course, Mac explains this as one of the areas in which she really showed her support of him and his chosen career. "She helped me make it through this course," he said. "If it weren't for her going over the class requirements and tests with me, asking me questions, making me work to graduate, I don't think I would have made the 975 points that I did," he said.

Makes Army career

Although driving and maintaining the vehicle takes up about 65 percenrt of his duty time, Mac still finds time to make sure his office work and responsibilities are up to date and in order. "I'm responsible for all of the correspondence coming to and leaving the brigade," he said. "Responsible in that I have to make sure that it gets to its proper destination," he said.

"I like the job, but sometimes it does get a little routine, doing the same thing day in and day out," he said. " However, it does have its interesting and fun times too, which more often than not overrides the dull moments," he said.

"Making sure that a brigade staff has all of their supplies is also part of my responsibilities," he commented. "This means that I have to make at least one trip a week to the Self Service Supply Center (SSSC) for pens, pencils, paper, paperclips etc.. also. This takes up a lot of time too," he said.

Unsure for awhile on what to do and where to go in the future, Mac and his wife decided he should reenlist. "Seeing as I have 8-years in the service already, we decided that I should reenlist and make the Army my career," he said. "Besides, I like the Army. The pay is good, I like the benifits and the personal problems that we were having awhile back worked themselves out. So why get out just to start over as a private again working for someone else," he commented.

Just two weeks after reenlisting for anywhere, Mac got his orders sending him overseas. Where is he going? "I'm going to Berchtesgaden, Germany," he said with a smile.

Vets treated for stress

Veterans are not barred from receiving Veterans Administration medical care and compensation for a problem that develops years after they leave military service.

Recent VA guidelines for physicians and disability rating boards reemphasized this principle with regard to emotional problems related to stress endured during military service.

Claims of this type formerly had to be considered under six or more disability classifications. The new guidelines define a specific new category, called post traumatic stress syndrome, under which veterans may claim service connection for a condition that manifests months or even years after some life threatening experience.

To qualify for service connection under the new guidelines, a veteran must have a condition specifically diagnosed by a VA physician as well as as history of life-threatening experience such as combat service or a period as a prisoner of war.

This experience must be consistent with the nature and circumstances of his service, and it must be considered by a VA medical examiner to be the precipating cause of a traumatic stress disorder.

The new classification describes the syndrome as "encompassing a life-threatening stressor, reexperiencing the event, numbing of respone to or involvement with others and having at least two of several specific symptoms not present prior to the traumatic event." These may involve such disorders as hyperalertness, troubled sleep, guilt feelings about surviving when others have not, memory impairment, avoidance of activities that arouse recollection of the traumatic event and intensification of symptoms by exposure to events that resemble the traumatic event.

To make a claim for compensation payments a veteran should seek the assistance of a veterans benefits counselor at the nearest VA regional office, or he may get help in filing his claim from a represenative of one of the national service organizations.

A veteran needing medical care may receive treatment in a VA mental hygiene clinic, a psychiatric ward, a day hospital or in alcohol or drug abuse dependence treatment programs. Techniques that have been especially successful include rap sessions, group therapy, Pentothal or hypnotic interviews or indvidual psychotherapy. The method best suited to each patient's needs is prescribed in each case.

Senior raters receive first profile report

WASHINGTON (ARNEWS)--Army officers who served as a senior rater for at least five other officers during FY 80 will soon recieve their first senior rater profile report, said MILPERCEN officials.

The new report, they explained, is part of the new Officers Evaluation Reporting System (OERS) and provides a way to track and maintain the rating history of each senior rater. It is expected to reduce the inflated scores assigned to officers under the OERs.

Officials said selection boards and career managers will now know an officer's rating tendency along with other information when they evaluate the officer's performance for promotion, command and service school actions. The profile shows how the senior rater has evaluated officers of the same grade and whether the rater follows overly high or low rating trends.

The senior rater profile report is being sent to those qualifying officers who met this year's cut-off date of Sept. 18.

Senior raters of other military branches and DoD civilians who serve as senior raters may request a copy of their senior rater profile reports by writing HQ, MILPERCEN, ATTN: DAPC-POE, 200 Stovall Street, Alexandria, Va. 22332.

NCOA trustees improve local chapter

By Gary Jones
BAYONET editor

A friend of the soldier and his family for over 20-years - the Noncommissioned Officers Association's local chapter is undergoing a rebirth in order to better serve its members in the Fort Benning/Columbus area.

"The 'Follow-Me' chapter, although established here for a long time, hasn't been taking the right approach," said retired Sgt. Maj. Charles J. Riddle, NCOA public relations representative. "We intend to make many improvements for the benefit of the soldier."

Presently the NCOA service center is located at 1710-A South Lumpkin Rd. (Columbus)."We have a lot to offer our members but due to our location I feel that some families might not come to the service center," explained Riddle. According to Riddle the Follow Me chapter haspurchased a nearby house (located at 2414 South Lumpkin Rd.) in order to relocate the service center. The grand opening for the new service center is scheduled for Dec. 10, time to be announced.

"The NCOA offers a wide range of benefits to its members. Perhaps one of the most important is its role as the soldiers' voice or lobbiest in Congress," explained Sammy Kay, senior NCOA counselor for Georgia. "We are the only military association that is present every time both the House and the Senate are in session."

Strong voice in Congress

According to Kay, the NCOA has more clout in Washington than any other military service association because it represents members from not only the Army but the Navy, Air Force and Marines as well."Everyone that works for us is are retired enlisted military," said Riddle.

"In order to join the NCOA, you must be E-4 through E-9, a veteran or widowed spouse of a veteran" said Riddle. "We do have asssociate memberships for officers who were prior enlisted members (E-4 through E-9).However, according to Kay, the NCOA does hand-out honorary memberships to civilians and officers with no enlisted background but only if they have made some signifficant contribution to the military. Bob Hope, Martha Ray and Gen.(retired) Omar Bradley are among the honorary members of NCOA.

Job service helpful

According to Kay, another valuable feature of NCOA is its employment placement service for veterans (this service is also available to non-members). During an NCOA job fair held in Columbus last month, jobs were found for over 200 veterans. Another recent job fair held in Jacksonville, Fla. helped over 800 veterans find jobs.

Another way NCOA helps find jobs for veterans is with the resume form provided each member. "About 60 - 90 days prior to a member's ETS, the form should be filled out and mailed to the NCOA office in San Antonio, Tex. We look at the members qualifications, the area the member plans to settle in and then send a list of all the jobs open to him in the area, according to Kay.

The NCOA offers many other benefits to its members. To many to list in

Record proves - seatbelts save lives

By Anita Langford
Fort Benning safety office

What's the leading cause of accidental death among servicemembers here? It's automobile accidents-especially those in which the driver and occupants are not using seatbelts. Of the 24 Fort Benning servicemember killed in automobiles in the past three years, not one was wearing a seatbelt. What's your excuse for not buckling up? With both Veterans Day and Thanksgiving being observed in November, and many people driving long distances to be with families, it's time to take another look at some questions and answers about seatbelts.

QUESTION: Who should wear seatbelts?

ANSWER: Everyone. Although children under 4 years old and weighing less than 40 pounds preferably should be held by child restraints, it is better to fasten them into place with a lap belt only than to leave them unprotected. The medical profession advises pregnant women to wear seatbelts. The belts, worn low over the abdomen, provide considerable protection for both the mother and the unborn child. The shoulder harness also be worn to prevent the woman from being thrown into the steering column or dashboard. The most frequent cause of death for an unborn child is the death of the mother.

QUESTION: Can my failure to wear seatbelts endanger others?

ANSWER: Yes. In some cases drivers have been thrown from behind the wheel during a minor accident. The cars proceeding without drivers subsequently were involved in a second more severe accident, which might have been prevented had the driver been belted. Even passengers who are wearing seatbelts can be seriously injured by flying passengers who are not using belts. The unbelted passengers may strike, even crush, their companions in serious accidents.

QUESTION: How effective are seatbelts?

ANSWER: Seatbelts reduce the chances of serious or fatal injury from an accident by more than 60 percent. Seatbelts save 3,000 lives each year. If every American buckled up, the Federal Government estimates that 16,000 fatalities would be avoided annually and 231,000 moderate to serious injuries averted.

QUESTIONS: What happens during an accident?

ANSWER: Experts have established that an accident involves two crashes-the initial crash of a motor vehicle into some other object, and the second collision of the passenger with the car interior or some outside object such as the pavement, a tree, or wall. In a frontal collision at about 30 m.p.h. into an immovable object, the front of the car will collapse a foot or two before the car comes to a full stop. Generally, the passenger compartment remains undamaged by such a collision. The passenger, however, will continue moving forward at 30 m.p.h. until something solid enough to stop him gets in the way, most likely a steering column, dashboard, or windshield. Although some parts of the body, such as hips, can safely absorb a lot of impact, the head is quite fragile as the occupant is thrown forward in a crash, the head is likely to be one of the first parts of the body to strike a hard object.

It's the second collision, the "human collision" that causes serious even fatal injury. Some people mistakenly believe they can protect themselves by bracing themselves with their arms and legs. But collisions usually happens too fast to permit this. Even if there is time, the forces involved in a collision are too great to withstand. In a 30 m.p.h. crash, an occupant strikes the interior of the car with a force of several thousand pounds!

QUESTION: When should seatbelts be worn?

ANSWER: Seatbelts should be worn at all times. Although some people claim that belts are needed only on long trips, this is not true. Expressway driving is actually safer than short trips on urban and rural roads. More than half of all automobile accidents causing death and injury occur at speeds lower than 40 m.p.h. Some fatalities have happened at 12 m.p.h.--about the speed you travel in a parking lot. Every person who uses the road risks injury or death.

QUESTION: What about escaping from a car in case of fire or submersion?

ANSWER: Some people argue that belts will prevent them from escaping quickly if their car catches fire or submerges. Quite the opposite is true. First of all, less than one half of one percent of all crashes involve fire or water. Secondly, rather than trapping occupants, seatbelts help them remain conscious so they can exist faster. The unbelted passenger who is knocked unconscious during a collision has no chance of escaping a burning or sinking car.

What's your excuse for not wearing seatbelts?? Think about it-then buckle up for the November holidays and everyday!

Treasury Bonds' interest raised

WASHINGTON (ARNEWS)--The U.S. Treasury Department will raise interest rates by one percent for all U.S. Saving Bonds and Saving Notes starting this month, according to the Interagency Savings Bond Committee.

All Series E, EE, H and HH Saving Bonds, as well as outstanding Saving Notes (Freedom Shares), will be affected by the interest rate increase. Saving Bonds Committee officials say the increase will begin with the first semiannual interest period that begins on or after Nov. 1, 1980.

Rates for Series EE Bonds, bought on or after Nov. 1, 1980, will jump from seven to eight percent when they are held to maturity. Officials add that the maturity time for these bonds has been shortened from 11 to nine years.

Series HH Bonds will have their rates increased from 6-1/2 to 7-1/2 percent. The maturity period for these bonds remains at 10 years.

Series E and H Bonds, along with Saving Notes, will also benefit from the additional one percent rate increase starting in November, officials explain. The maturity period for these bonds/notes will not be change.

The increases are a result of recent legislation which allows the U.S. Treasury secretary to raise interest rates one percent during any six-month period. This authority only affects the interest rates for Saving Bonds and Notes. In the past, interest rate ceilings were fixed by law and increases were determined by Congress.

Officials note that since the yields will improve on all outstanding bonds and notes that have not reached final maturity, owners will generally benefit from holding onto the bonds and notes rather than cashing them. They add that a further rate increase of up to one percent may be made as early as May 1,1981.

Savings Bond and Note owners should check with their local Finance and Accounting Office or local banks for details.

Costs shared

Drugs and medication provided by a hospital for use beyond the hospital stay will now be cost-shared by CHAMPUS under the same rates as hospital care. A limit of $15 has been set, to restrict the benefit to cover only an amount of drugs and medication considered sufficient to facilitate the patient's transition from hospital to home — "take home" drugs.

The new policy, which took effect Sept. 29, 1980, means reduced costs for beneficiaries in many cases:

- For dependents of active duty members, CHAMPUS will share all costs of authorized take-home drugs that do not exceed $15 since they will be included in the $5.50 per day rate (the FY 1981 rate for active duty dependents).
- For retirees and their dependents, CHAMPUS will share 75 percent of the cost ($15 or less) regardless of whether or not the $50 outpatient deductible had been met.

OER changes

Regs affected

The Officer Evaluation Reporting System (OERS) regulation USAIC Supplement 1 to AR 623-105, Subparagraph (11), third sentence has been changed to:

"Any change not requiring an OER must be reported to AG Officer Personnel Branch for posting to DA 2-1, item 35 (Assignments)."

The information provided by the indvidual officer is posted to the DA Form 2-1, Personnel Qualification Record. This information is also used to calculate non-rated periods of time on the Officer Evaluation Report. To date, over 10 percent of the OER packets prepared by the OER Section are incorrect because the individual officer does not report changes to the Officer Records Section. The individual officer must report all changes of duty, change of rater, PCS, TDY or ETS. A DF is sufficient for notifying the Records Section of changes. Include your phone number in case clarification is needed.

Shoplifting fight joined

WASHINGTON (ARNEWS)--A major effort to aid the fight against shoplifting, America's number one crime, was recently announced by the Army and Air Force Exchange Service (AAFES).

AAFES will join forces with Departments of the Army (DA) and Air Force (DAF) in setting up anti-shoplifting programs on military posts worldwide, officials say. The National Coalition to prevent shoplifting will provide guidance to the two military services.

DA will sponsor its anti-shoplifting campaign starting Dec. 1, 1980, DA officials say programs running past Dec. 20, 1980, will be carried out by local commanders.

Most of the anti-shoplifting programs on posts will include:

*Displays in PX lobbies;

*Postes and signs in other exchange facilities such as service stations and snack bars;

*Handing out national coalition pamphlets which educate students and parents on the subject of shoplifting;

*Taking part in shoplifting prevention programs of civilian organizations, Chambers of Commerce, Women's Clubs, High School and Junior College Distributive Education Clubs;

*Holding special programs at installation schools and clubs;

*Giving post media and broadcasting units publicity and advertising material. Anti-shoplifting packets will be sent to posts this month, and will include graphics, posters, radio and T.V. tapes and,

*Supporting action and policies that will improve methods of operation. These include such things as hiring more store detectives during the holiday season, holding anti-shoplifting workshops for employees and publishing convictions in post newspaper.

In addition, the coalition will prepare a special pamphlet for servicemembers. This will explain the consequences of shoplifting servicemembes. This will explain the consequences of shoplifting in terms of loss of rank, pay and exchange shopping privileges, and how shoplifters may be ineligible for certain civilian careers.

Presently, crime prevention programs for military services are conducted throughout the year, with emphasis on shoplifting during the Christmas holiday shopping season.

According to the coalition, shoplifting losses in the U.S. come to $16 billion a year. Shoplifting losses in military retail operations are large enough to justify a prevention program, say AAFES officials.

During the 12-month period ending Jan. 25, 1980, a total of 1,724 shoplifting incidents occured in AAFES facilities worldwide. Offenders were arrested and punished, officials say.

Of the 10,724, 39 percent involved Active Army or Air Force servicemembers, and 53 percent were military dependents of other services and military retirees made up the remaining eight percent, officials say.

The incidents, which were reported, involved goods valued at $147,000. Of this figure, all but $7,000 was recovered say AAFES officials.

Anti-shoplifiting programs will emphasize shoplifting and the effect it has on military morale, welfare and recreational activities.

Cashiers soldiers' ready friends

Though they are behind bars most of the day, they still have helped nearly every soldier stationed here. In fact, whenever a soldier arrives, leaves or has a pay problem, these workers behind bars are a great help to the soldiers.

The workers in cages are the four cashiers at Fort Benning's three financial disbursment centers. Through the hands of the cashiers passes money in amounts to stagger the minds of most people. Before the military changed over to paying the soldiers with checks instead of cash, millions of dollars would pass through their hands each year. "But that all changed eight years ago," said James L. Sellers, a cashier with 14 years experience as a Fort Benning cashier.

Sellers estimates that 100 people come into his life each day. These people do not always realize the importance the cashiers play in their lives. If the cashiers were not there then inprocessing soldiers would not be reimbursed for their ticket costs, cab fare or the other costs the soldiers may have payed out of their own pockets in getting here. Outprocessing soldiers would not get the money they need to get to their next duty stations. Soldiers going TDY would have a much rougher time of it if the cashiers were not there to help.

Fortunately, the cashiers are ready to help soldiers and civilian workers coming to their windows.

The service has not always been as quick as it is now, according to one of the cashiers. "It used to take a long time to get reimbursed for travel pay but now the soldiers can get paid the same day they inprocess," he said.

While nearly 100 customers come to each cage window a day, there are times when the numbers leap upward. When an AIT class comes through is one such time. "They bring them in by the busloads and we have to take care of 50 to 70 soldiers at a time," said Sellers.

Selected buyers to get weapons

Washington, D.C.--As part of its effort to increase military preparedness through civilian marksmanship training, a Defense Department agency will conduct a lottery in January to select qualified purchasers for 600 M-1 rifles.

The Office of the Director of Civilian Marksmanship(DCM), part of the U.S. Army, will choose purchasers for the .30-caliber rifles, well-remembered by infantrymen who served in World War II and Korea.

The DCM, established in 1903, has sold more than a million small arms to civilians, beginning in 1910. The sales were and are designed to help develop marksmanship with service rifles among civilians. Sales were for many years restricted to members of the National Rifle Association until a U.S. District Court ruled the NRA membership requirement unconstitutional in 1979.

The court ruled that the rifle sales and the DCM program as a whole ". . .may validly be regarded as acheiving a vital government end" and upheld several other purchase requirements for the rifles.

The rifles are highly prized by martial arms collectors, but the purchase requirements will insure that all will be sold to high power rifle competitors, especially junior shooters just starting their competitive careers.

Although applications on file for the 600 rifles to be sold this year, applicants not drawn at this lottery will be retained for future drawings. Director of Civilian Marksmanship, Col. Jack R. Rollinger, U.S. Army, said that applications had been filed by state and that the lottery would be conducted to assure proportional distribution of the rifles among the states.

Prospective purchasers must be citizens of the United States, 18 or older, must belong to a DCM-affiliated club or state association and must present proof of high power rifle competitive activity. All those precluded from purchasing firearms by the 1968 Gun Control Act, including convicted felons, those with mental disorders, alcoholics, drug addicts and illegal aliens, are ineligible for the purchase program.

The restrictions are designed to ensure that the rifles are sold to marksmen who will use them in sanctioned tournament competition. The M1 rifle is highly prized among the more than 17,000 Americans who compete in high power rifle shooting, an event which grew out of military training.

Shooters fire rifles, mostly in the .30-'06 caliber used in the M1 or in the 7.62mm NATO used in the Army's M14 rifle, at ranges of 200 to 1,000 yards. They are required to change positions from standing to sitting to prone during the course of a match and to fire 10 shots in 60 seconds, reloading between strings of shots. The course of fire was designed to simulate the demands of combat marksmanship.

The Civilian Marksmanship Program operated by DCM was intended to improve the combat marksmanship of the nation's soldiers by promoting shooting competition among civilians, especially those who might be called on to serve during time of war. This pre-induction training, it was thought, would provide the Army a cadre of trained marksmen, and would serve as introduction to military life for the teenaged participants in the program's junior clubs.

DCM helps more than 2,000 junior rifle clubs throughout the nation through the long-term loan of rifles and the issue of ammunition, targets and awards to the clubs, which must include at least three adult leaders and 10 junior (age 10-20) shooters. DCM-affiliated clubs are often allowed to use Army Reserve and National Guard training centers which have rifle ranges.

The Civilian Marksmanship Program has been the center of political controversy for more than a decade. Congressional opponents have repeatedly tried to kill the program, but have again and again been rebuffed. The program was, however, vastly scaled down in 1968 in what was billed at the time as a response to the war in Vietnam. The entire DCM pistol club program was shut down and the agency's budget was slashed. The sales program, which previously sold every rifle, pistol and shotgun declared obsolete, was trimmed to a mere 300 M1 rifles per year, but later raised to 600.

With the DCM sales program severely constricted, the Army accumulated more than 650,000 M1 rifles available for purchase by qualified citizens. It announced plans to scrap more than 300,000, but the Army plans aroused a storm of protest from NRA members.

Qualified purchasers should send requests, accompanied by all required documentation (photocopy of proof of age, club or state association membership cards and of classification card or temporary score record book) to the Director of Civilian Marksmanship, Rm. 1E053 West Forrestal Bldg., Washington, D.C. 20314. No information about the status of requests is available from the National Rifle Association.

How About That?

By William W. Erbach, Sr.
Chaplain 36th Engineer Group Combat)

The first time I saw a gumball machine I was fascinated by it. Here was a machine that was really something. I watched a boy put a nickle in the machine and out came a ball of gum. I, too, wanted to try the machine, but all I had in my pocket was a couple of pennies.

I thought about the situation for awhile, and then I decided to try one of my pennies in the gumball machine. The machine certainly couldn't be expected to know the difference, because it was only a machine. It would take someone like Mr. Edlin, the store owner, to know the difference between pennies and nickles.

So I dropped my penny in the slot and pulled the lever. Of course, you know what happened? Nothing. My penny was gone and I had no gum to show for it. Well, I had another penny, so I tried again. Surely the machine must have made a mistake, but alas, the same thing happened again. HOW ABOUT THAT?

Well, you might think I wasted my money, but that wasn't entirely true. For two cents I learned an important fact about life. Oh, the message didn't come to me until very much later when I saw another boy trying to do the same thing...but there it was, in big bold letters for me to see; two wrongs never make a right!!!!

Now you may be smart enough not to put pennies in a nickle machine, and that's good, but too many of us use other methods to try to make two wrongs equal a right. Can you think of any?

VAQ&A

Survivors pay mortgage

Q–If a veteran dies before a home loan guaranteed by the Veterans Administration is repaid, will the VA pay off the balance?

A--No. The surviving spouse or other co-borrower must continue making payments. However, mortgage life insurance, available from private companies, can provide protection against a survivor inheriting large monthly payments.

Q--I was in the Army from Feb. 3, 1956 through Feb. 2, 1958 and was honorably discharged. Recently I have become totally disabled due to an accident which was non-service connected. Am I eligible for any disability payments from the VA?

A--No. In order to be eligible for a VA pension, a veteran must include at least one day during a wartime period.

Q–I am receiving a non-service connected Veterans Administration pension. My wife died in June. There have been no other changes in my dependency or income status. Must I report social security benefits paid her up to the time of her death?

A--Yes. However, you should show the cost of your wife's illness and burial if you paid for it yourself. These are allowable exclusions which serve to reduce countable income for VA purposes.

Q--May a veteran obtain a VA guaranteed loan on a home which appraises lower than the sale price?

A--Yes. But the veteran must pay the difference from his own resources withou borrowing. VA will not guarantee a loan in excess of the appraised value of property.

USE BAYONET CLASSIFIED

EIB

Soldiers must prove their combat skills . . .

By Rick Kiernan
BAYONET corresspondent
1/29th Infantry Battalion

Which came first? The Expert Infantryman's Badge (EIB) or the Combat Infantryman's Badge (CIB)? If you guessed CIB, you're wrong! The EIB was authorized by Congress Nov. 10, 1943., four days before the CIB.

The EIB is a thorough test of the Infantry skills required of a soldier holding any Career Management Field (CMF) 11 Military Occupational Speciality (MOS). Officers possessing a Primary MOS 11 may also compete for the award. The testing for the Expert Infantryman's Badge is a thorough and grueling one with no room for even the slightest error.

Testing is done in three phases. The first portion is a series of requirements which must be completed before skill testing begins. It consists of qualifying expert with the M-16 rifle; completing a 12-mile road march in three hours or less; scoring 400-points on the PT test with a minimum of 60 in each event; and the successful completion of a day and night land navigation course.

The second phase consists of the hands on portion or Skill Component (SC) portion of the CMF 11 Skill Qualification Test. EIB candidate must receive a "GO" rating at all the testing stations in order to continue. All officer EIB candidates must follow their track of either light or heavy infantry to their required SC tests.

The final phase or roundabout stations consists of a variety of topics but may also be taken upon successful completion of all previous phases. Roundabout includes: call for/adjust indirect fire; camouflage/concealment (personal and equipment); processing enemy personnel; movement under direct fire; indentification of Opposing Forces (OPFOR) Armored Vehicles; and limited visibility firing techniques.

When all is said and done, the EIB candidate is challenged in every aspect of his job description. Even Infantry officers must complete all of the SC tests of their enlisted counterparts. For this reason there is a genuine professional camraderie amongst Infantrymen who proudly wear the badge on their left breast.

The EIB completely disproves the old saying, "Jack of all trades, Master of None," by proudly recognizing a soldier who is professionally competent in all combat skills.

Qualifying as an expert with the M-16 is the first step toward earning the Expert Infantry Badge(E.I.B.).

Being able to supply mortar support is the mark of an expert infantryman.

E.I.B. skills are valuable in the field.

E.I.B. candidates must be able to engage the enemy with the M-60 machinegun.

E.I.B. winners must be able to protect themselves in a contaminated environment.

CIB

. . . have them tested under fire

Although infantrymen the world over strive, suffer and study for both the EIB and CIB, they cannot be worn together.

Normally, a CIB recipient would prefer to wear a badge that shows his combat experience. However, there has been frequent discussion as to why and how the Expert Infantryman's Badge could be worn with the Combat Infantry Badge. Proposals have included replacing the silver with a gold wreath around the rifle to denote a dual awardee.

Criteria for the CIB is not as specific as the [illegible]y units required a minimum of 30 days under fire or assigment to an infantry unit for that period during the Vietnam conflict. A second award of the CIB is indicated by a star over the wreath. Usually this would reflect combat experience in two sucessive wars.

A few CIB arguments arose in 1965 following action in the Dominican Republic. Generally, there are only a few infantryman on active duty today wearing two stars above the CIB. This would indicate service in World War II, Korea, and the Republic of Vietnam. Fort Benning's commanding general, Maj. Gen. David E. Grange, Jr. is one who does.

Sheriff's Target

Shoplifting is reaching epidemic proportions! Nationwide, approximately $5 billion worth of merchandise is stolen annually.

So far this year, there have been 193 cases of shoplifting reported to the military police by the Exchange system here. Of these, 140 incidents involved active duty military, 32 involved dependents (14 of them were juveniles under the age of 17!), and 21 cases involved retirees.

Provost Marshal Col. Ward

Most people who shoplift don't do it out ofnecessity. They shoplift for kicks, to beat the system or to impress friends..Some people try to rationalize their shoplifting by thinking it doesn't hurt anyone. Actually, shoplifting hurts the most those who can afford it the least. Big stores and well-to-do customers don't suffer nearly as much from shop- lifting and related costs as do small, independent stores and low-income shoppers.

In the past, stores often let shoplifters off with a lecture as long as the merchandise was returned to the shelf, but now that the shoplifting problem is so serious, they are prosecuting offenders. Today, stores use elaborate surveillance systems, more guards, plainclothes detectives, television scanners, and electronic tags on merchandise. These methods work and more shoplifters are being caught red-handed.

Military shoplifters judged guilty by courts-martial can receive a bad conduct discharge, forfeiture of all pay and allowances and up to six months confinement at hard labor. Juveniles guilty of shoplifting are processed and then released to the Juvenile Court in Columbus. The judge usually sentences a juvenile to probation from one to three years. During this probation period the juvenile cannot enter a retail outlet without being accompanied by a parent or guardian. If probation is violated or a second shoplifting incident occurs, the juvenile will be taken back into Juvenile Court. The loss of exchange or commissary privilges is automatic for all indviduals caught shoplifting. The chances of the privileges being reinstated are minimal. Think about it; is it really worth it?

Help stop the shoplifting epidemic. Shoplifting is a crime. It takes your money and everyone else's. It's going to take individual and community concerns such as those below to put an end to shoplifting:

- If you see it, report it. You and other shoppers end up paying for what the shoplifter takes.
- Encourage honesty. There is too much apathy as far as crime is concerned.
- Explain to your children that shoplifting is against the law...not a game or a joke.
- Know where your children are and what they are doing.
- Know what they bring into the house and where it came from.
- Set an example. Your children look up to you. Obey the law yourself.

For more information or assistance, please call the Crime Prevention Section, Provost Marshal Office, telephone 545-7115 or 545-4164.

Horse Show beautifies day

By Tim Boivin
BAYONET sport's editor

The Fort Benning Hunt Club held their annual Fall Horse Show Saturday under beautiful sunny skies on French Polo Field. A crowd of approximately 500 spectators milled around the courses, many of them interested spectators from the Youth Activities games on the field adjacent to French Polo.

The courses were set up by a Columbus veterinarian, Dr. Carole Meschter, and Dr. Meschter was also on hand at the show in case any of the horses were in need of any attention.

In Division one, Kim Hawkins rode Court Jester to a 52.2 score to take the crown. Heather Lofton rode Payday to a second place finish with a 55.8 tally.

Mounted on Monsieur Toque, Ann Overtow took the blue ribbon in Division two with a score of 45.0. Second place went to Cathy Knight on Candy Bar with a 56.4

Dana Reiss strutted atop Coya to take the third division with a 54.6. Missy Parker, aboard Patchy, came up five points behind with a 59.4 to place.

Lee Anne Schachnow was one of four riders to take a doubleprize. She took both the fourth and fifth division aboard Junon with respective scores of 47.4 and 54.6. Maxine Strupe took second in the fourth division riding A Breezy Formal to a 54.0 score, while Linda Marcotte rode Sandy to place in the fifth division with a 64.8

Another person to double her pleasure was Mary Baltikauski, who rode Reinbeau to a 61.7 and 64.2 to take the crown in the seventh and eigth divisions. Beth Massey rode Jonathon Swift to second in the seventh with a 55.6 and Strupe, again aboard A Breezy Formal, came in second with a 60.0 in the eigth division.

One other person to win twice was Joyce Johnson aboard First Fiddler, taking the ninth and tenth divisions with a 57.6 and a 57.0 respectively. Terry Lahnstein rode Chasseur to second in the ninth division on the merits of a 54.7 score while Billie Stewart rode Heather to the first of three second place finishes with a 54.3. Stewart came in second also in the eleventh and twelfth divisions with 48.3 and 52.3 scores respectively.

The winner of the eleventh and twelfth divisions was Carole Pritdand on Keystone, with a 54.6 and a 53.0.

BAYONET commentary

Courage, sportsmanship not dead

Elizabeth Barwick gets help adjusting the stirrups from retired SFC Lenis Ingram and retired MSgt. James Williams just before riding her horse, Rebel in early morning competition.

By Don Rhodes
BAYONET staff writer

I didn't consider going to the horse show Saturday an opportunity, but now, looking back on it, I can actually say that going to the show was well worth it.

I figured it would just be a bunch of people in frilly clothes, sitting stiffly on English saddles (I'm from Texas), riding around in circles on a bunch of fancied up horses.

Danged if I wasn't totally wrong.

In fact, there wasn't a rodeo atmosphere, but then it wasn't a rodeo. It was a horse show, right here at Fort Benning, and it didn't cost me a thing except a quarter for a cup of coffee.

The competition was stiff. The riders expectations of going home with a ribbon or trophy were high. The disapointment of not winning was overwhelming, yet bravely and graciously accepted. Especially by one young lady.

Elizabeth Barwick, seven-years-old and a second grader at Brookstone school, didn't win a ribbon or a trophy. She rode a horse named Rebel in one of the early morning competitions. For such a tiny girl, she showed a lot of heart getting up on that big ol' critter.

She showed a whole lot more heart when the competition was done. She was left sitting on Rebel in the middle of the arena, with no ribbon, while the winners trotted off to momentary fame and congratulations and with ribbons to hang on their bedroom walls.

Elizabeth rode Rebel out of the arena after the winners had left. I didn't see who helped her get off that huge, four-legged hay-eater, but she couldn't have done it by herself.

What she did, all by her own little courages self, was, with tears of disappointment streaming down her cheeks, walk over to her friend Lee Ann McQuade, who won a green ribbon, pat her on the shoulder and say, "Good show."

Elizabeth could barely get the words out. But it was obvious she sincerely meant them.

And that, was a refreshing experience for me.

I thought that kind of courage, sportsmanship and show of love for a friend, by our younger generation, was gone. Replaced with the philosophies and selfishness of the "me" generation. With its "win at all costs" attitude exhibited by so many of our athletes and coaches today. So vividly demonstrated by coaches yelling at kids, illegal hits by football players and baseball pitchers throwing at batters have all seemingly become part of the norm. Until Saturday I didn't realize people under 30 knew what the word sportsmanship meant.

I was wrong. You've reopened my cynical old eyes. You're the winner Elizabeth. If I had a blue ribbon two-feet wide and five-feet long, I'd give it to you to hang on your bedroom wall.

Doughboys come home victorious

By Tim Boivin
BAYONET Sports editor

Fort Benning's Doughboys started out with a bang Monday afternoon against Georgia Tech's junior varsity and survived a last minute Yellow Jacket attempt to tie the game for a 21-13 victory.

With 9:51 left in the first quarter Doughboy running back Sammy Lockhart eluded two tacklers on a right sweep and rambled 51-yards down the sideline for the first score of the game. The Doughboy's newest addition, kicker Rene Garcia, booted the first of three extra points to put the Doughboys ahead 7-0.

The two teams exchanged four fumbles with the end result another Doughboy touchdown. Leamon Hall went around left end on a keeper for a touchdown from 11-yards out with 12:11 left in the second quarter. Garcia's extra point gave the Doughboys a 14-0 advantage.

After Hall was intercepted, Tech went 77-yards in six plays with Rusty Bennett scoring from six-yards out to cut the deficit to 14-7. Tech quarterback Andy Thomas then cut the lead in the fourth quarter on a two-yard-run and the Yellow Jackets were within one, 14-13. However, they missed the crucial extra point and the Doughboys still had the lead.

With 4:49 left in the game, Hall gave the Doughboys breathing room on a one-yard-sneak after a three play, 44-yard drive.

Up, up and away!

Fort Benning's rugby team took on the Auburn Tigers Sunday on Stillwell Field here and came away with a 26-0 whitewash win. The defense, as evidenced by the score, did a good job but the backs also pulled through in the clutch while the scrum overpowered Auburn to win most of the scrummages. The score was 16-0 at halftime and Benning coasted home from there. Benning's next opponent is Emory University of Atlanta tomorrow at 2 p.m. on Stillwell Field. Admission is free of charge.

USO drawings held

Hawk's tickets available

How would you like to see the Atlanta Hawks in action?

Boring? Hogwash!

By Tim Boivin
BAYONET Sports editor

The mood is sweeping the nation and its effects haven't passed Fort Benning. It's a mood of general apathy and unhappiness that people aren't willing to do anything about. On Fort Benning, it can be seen in the people who stay in the barracks on weekends and then complain that there isn't anything to do.

I don't know if the troops are complacent, if they just don't get the word on the activities available from their commanders or if they just want to be bored. Whatever it is, the troops sure aren't spending what I call their bored time attending the free activities that go on during weekends here.

Last weekend was a prime example. Friday night a boxing smoker was held at Briant Wells Field House. The intermission show was fantastic, with Columbus LEDGER-ENQUIRER columnist Jack Swift and his Columbus Karate Academy providing the entertainment. A crowd of approximately 300, on a post of 25,000 soldiers, showed up to watch the smoker. There was no admission charge for the event.

When I got back to the barracks soldiers were complaining about how there wasn't anything to do. The next day I went to the Hunt Club's Annual Fall Horse Show. It was a beautiful day and the horses were a fine sight. The competition wasn't anything exciting but it was a wonderful way to spend a nice, leisurely day. Again, there wasn't any admission charge.

Sunday I went to a rugby match between Fort Benning and Auburn. Again, it was a beautiful day and the competition was good. Rugby is a physical sport and very exciting, kind of a cross between soccer and football with no protective padding. It was an educational experience for me with people willing to help me understand the game and, again, there was no admission charge.

Monday the Doughboy football team travelled to Georgia Tech and outclassed a Yellow Jacket team that probably practices twice as much as our own gridiron specialists. The Doughboy's final game is Nov. 22 here against Alabama State's junior varsity at 7:30 p.m. The best support so far has been from the 1st Infantry Training Brigade's drill instructors who have their troops bussed in for the games.

Doughboy football games are the only sporting event on post that there is a fee charged for admission. This is so the football program can stay on its feet and continue to prosper.

For you soldiers out there who say you're bored with nothing to do, I say hogwash! I just hope commanders get the word out to the troops about what's on the agenda each weekend free of charge. Fort Benning, just like any other place in the Army, is what you make of it. It's a challenge that many soldiers seemingly aren't able to meet today.

2nd CSH flags down 608th

The 2nd Combat Support Hospital, 34th Medical Battalion, remains in the post flag football championships after defeating the 608th Ordnance, 67th Maintenance Battalion, 7-6 Monday night by a tie-breaking penetration win.

The game was not only a tie-breaker, it was a heartbreaker for the 608th as they lost their place in the championships.

John Thompson won the game for Support after connecting with a 40-yard pass by Larry Hood for the one point deepest penetration. A key tackle by Support's Charles Oliver during the overtime play helped prevent the 608th from scoring.

It was an even game throughout as both teams showed good passing and outstanding defense. A 20-yard pass by Julius McClean to William Seabrook gave the 608th the first score of the game.

Thompson also made Support's first score after connecting with a 40-yard touchdown pass from Hood.

Although the 608th made two interceptions, Support's strong defense prevented them from scoring. Eddie Harris made one during first half action and Robert Lewis made another in the second half.

The 2nd Combat Support Hospital went into the playoffs with a 10-0 season record and team captain Willie Langford said this win was the result of a "team effort."

The post flag football championships ended last night and results will be published in next week's BAYONET.

Doughboys win smoker

By Becky Bulgrin
BAYONET sport's staff writer

Fort Benning's boxing team managed to come out on top in a smoker Friday night at Briant Wells Field House. Taking four of the seven bouts, Benning exhibited some good boxing against teams from Fort Stewart, Columbus, and Tuskegee ROTC.

Although the crowd wasn't as large as normal, they cheered Benning on as the Doughboys came out by winning their first three matches.

Troy Stringer took the first fight of the night against Stewart's Daniel Garcia. They both started out strong, but Stringer pulled out a lot of punches right at Garcia's face, while Garcia threw more body punches. Stringer won by the judges' decisions of 58-57, 59-58, and 58-55.

One of the highlights of the night was the match between Benning's Daren Turman and Stewart's Christopher Lyons. They started out toying with each other, then when Turman started throwing some good rights, Lyons started backing away. In the third round, Lyons' left jabs weren't connecting and Turman had to keep going after him. The crowd loved it as Turman knocked Lyons around, making him lose his teeth guard. Turman won with a perfect score of straight sixties from the judges' cards.

William Gonzales took Benning's third win in a close match against Essu Hunter of Columbus. In one of the more physical fights of the night, Hunter threw a lot of good punches, but drew back and hesitated before connecting. Gonzales showed some good moves as he danced around, ducking and punching. Gonzales won 59-58, 59-57, and 59-58.

The fight between Benning's Greg "Slim" Staten and Stewart's Ronald Vincent was the heartbreaker of the night. It looked like a close match from the start as both were throwing plenty of strong punches. The crowd really perked up when they started punching hard during the third round. They tired each other out and started doing a lot of clinching. Vincent won by a split decision of 59-58, 56-59, and 59-57.

A show by the Columbus Karate Academy featuring Jack Swift, Ledger-Enquirer columnist, entertained the crowd during intermission. Willing participants in the show were Post Commander Gen. David E. Grange, Jr. and Col. Bobby J. Harris, post chief of staff. They helped hold arrows at Swift's neck as he knocked the arrows away with one forceful thrust.

After two bouts took place between boxers from Muscogee and Fort Stewart, Roderick Williams came out and took Benning's fourth win. It looked like a close match at the start. Then, Williams started throwing more hard and fast punches than his opponent, Fort Stewart's Edgrado Rodriguez. Williams knocked Rodriguez down flat in the second round. Rodriguez held on and got in some good punches during the third round, but Williams got in more. Williams took the match by a 59-57, 60-57, 58-59 split decision.

Benning lost their last two matches when Stewart's Albert Hodge defeated Willie Thompson, giving him two standing eight counts and dropping him to his knees. Benning's Dwayne "Scrap Iron" Edwards lost to Stewart's Ulysses "Killer" Martin in the match billed as the main event of the night. The lightweight bout proved to be a good fight as Edwards didn't back off from the hard and fast blows by Martin. Edwards took stomach punches over and over from Martin and came back for the face. He lost by a 58-59, 58-59, 57-60 decision.

Briant Wells Field House fell eerily quiet when Columbus Ledger-Enquirer columnist Jack Swift had five volunteers point arrows at his neck. Swift, using the thrust of his upper body, snapped the sharpened arrows without so much as a drop of blood spilled. Among the volunteers were Col. Bobby J. Harris, Fort Benning Chief of Staff(second from left) and Maj. Gen. David E. Grange Jr., Fort Benning post commander(fourth from left). Swift was on hand along with his Columbus Karate Academy students to provide a thrilling intermission show.

Pathfinders first in, last out

A pathfinder student begins his descent from the 35-foot rappelling training tower here.

By Sharron Calabrisi

"Hotel Control, this is Hawk One at CCP, over."
"Hawk One, Hotel Control; wind three one zero at five, clear to land."

This is the radio language helicopter pilots and pathfinders on the ground use to direct aircraft to the remote landing zones prepared by pathfinders in combat areas.

Pathfinders provide navigational assistance and control to Army aircraft. More specifically, their major duties include conducting reconnaissance of landing or drop zones for Army aircraft and preparing those zones to include establishing and operating visual and electronic navigation aids.

They also furnish ground-to-air communications to provide information, guidance and air traffic control within the area of operations and provide advisory service to aviators concerning mortar and artillery fires.

Then, they help in the assembly of air-delivered troops, supplies and equipment, and lastly, operate drop zones for Air Force aircraft when their combat control teams are not available.

They provide limited weather observations to include wind velocity and direction, cloud cover, visibility, approximate ceiling levels and density altitude.

Pathfinders can be delivered by any of a variety of ground, sea or air transportation means. They may enter an area by helicopter, rappelling or parachuting. They secure the area and prepare it for the main assault force.

The first Pathfinder School was founded in North Witham, England in 1944. The students were volunteers from the 82nd and 101st Airborne Divisions. They were preparing for the 1944 invasion of Normandy. The school closed at the end of World War II, but in 1946, it was reopened here.

Classes continued here until 1951 when the U.S. Air Force combat control teams assumed the mission of providing navigational assistance to Air Force aircraft. However, when the Korean War began, more Army aircraft were being used so the Department of the Army directed the U.S. Army Infantry School to re-open the Pathfinder School.

As the years progressed and equipment became more sophisticated, the training did also. The course provides the student with hands-on instruction in a field environment.

In 1975, the airborne qualified requirement temporarily was lifted and helicopter rappelling emphasized. But, now all students must once again be airborne qualified to enter the course.

The pathfinder course is three weeks long, with the first week primarily geared toward drop zone techniques. The second week centers on helicopter landing zones and the third week encompasses a 50-hour field training exercise. The students go out and clear a landing zone to establish a drop zone for both night and day operations, using all the techniques and procedures taught during the previous two weeks of instruction.

The pathfinder motto is Semper Primus which is Latin for Always First. Their badge is a torch with wings, symbolizing "lighting the way." They also have a saying — first in last out.

Family arguments solved

By Bill Powell
WFBG Broadcaster

WFBG-TV is Fort Benning's Command Information Station. In order to insure the most interesting programming possible, viewers are urged to send in any suggestions for the WFBG-TV Schedule or "The Benning Report" to: Fort Benning PAO, Bldg. 4, Rm. 601, Fort Benning or call 545-2201. Highlights of next week's programming are:

- "The Clerk" is the story of an office worker who is bothered by the constant routine in his job and aspires to a more challenging position.
- "Dealing with the Unexpected" shows you how different people deal with changes in what they expect out of life.
- "Voyage to Rome" is not a tourist film. It is the story of the Apostle Paul and the voyage he takes to state his case for his religion before the emporer Nero.
- "Family Crisis Intervention" takes an in depth look at how to deal with family arguments and problems and, hopefully, how to solve the problems.
- "Big Picture-Beachhead at Anzio" documents the establishment of an ally beachhead at Anzio in WWII.
- "Take Ten-Your Appearance" is program showing the importance of dressing correctly in your uniform and how to take proper care of it.
- "Spectrum" is your four hour music and specials program. It features all types of music from Top Forty to Soul. In just a few weeks "Spectrum" brings you the best of Christmas in a special program called "The Best of Radio's Christmas Past."

MAC flies vacationers

"Hey MAC, fly me to Bermuda."

"Or Germany, Italy, Greece, England, Spain, Iceland, Hawaii, Philippines, Samoa, Japan, Australia, New Zeland."

"So who's MAC?"

MAC is the Military Airlift Command and he's willing to take active duty or retired military on overseas vacations if he has space available.

Here's how it works.

As a routine part of its mission, MAC makes passenger and cargo flights to military bases around the world. Sometimes there are extra seats on these flights which MAC then offers to "space available" passengers.

But these space available seats are awarded by priority. Military, dependents, DOD civilians and other personnel traveling on authorized leave for family emergencies are Category One. They get first consideration for space available seats.

Active duty military and dependents on leave, and military patients on convalescent leave, come under Category Two.

Category Three is used mostly by foreign exchange officers and student dependents rejoining their families in other countries.

Retired military and their dependents on vacation may also use MAC space availability, but are placed in the lowest priority-Category Four. Retirees must also sign a "Flight Certificate" stating that travel is not for personal gain or connected with any business venture.

The biggest problem facing space available travelers is time. Depending on where you are going, where you leave from and the type of flight, travelers may wait hours, days or weeks for seats.

For instance, MAC schedules daily flights to Germany and Japan, while flights to Bermuda or New Zealand may be scheduled weekly or not scheduled at all during certain times. Not getting "Space A" on a flight to Germany may mean waiting until tommorrow. Not making a flight to Bermuda may mean waiting until next week.

If time is the biggest problem in flying space available, saying money is the biggest advantage. Would you believe MAC charges only $10 a person each way for overseas flights? It's true!

You should do several things before starting a trip. Once you decide where you are going and have had your leave approved, check with a post transportation official to find out if you need a passport or visa. Will your shot records need to be updated? Will you be renting a car on arrival? Will you need an international driver's license? Plan on taking enough money to cover extra expenses, like food and lodging, in case your flight by someone with a higher priority. Know where you should call in case you have to ask for a leave extension.

Once you have taken care of all the details, start packing! But remember, baggage is limited to two pieces and not more than 66 pounds total weight.

Now go to the appropriate MAC site and leave your car in long-term parking. Report to the Space A counter and request to be placed on the register to go to five different places.

The register determines who gets space available seats on a "first come, first served" basis. Be prepared to present a military ID and leave authorization. If you don't have them, you won't fly. Wear your Class A uniform unless the leave paper gives you permission to travel in civilian clothes.

When signing the register, look for the "Scheduled Flights" board. This tells departure times for all flights. Make a note of the departures you are interested in, find the softest chair you ca, and settle in for the wait.

MAC officials will call the names of Space A travelers about 90 minutes before each flight. If your name is called and you aren't there, you will be dropped from the register. You may register again, but your name will go on to the bottom of the list.

Travelers aren't required to wait in the terminal, but sometimes being close-by pays off. Every now and then an unscheduled flight will come in and, if space available, MAC will ask if anyone wants to take it. Missing an unscheduled flight will not cause you to be dropped from the register of scheduled flights, but it will be missing a good chance.

Sooner or later, patient travelers make it to the top of the register. Have a great trip...but don't forget to allow enough time to return...you gotta do the same things to get home!

Awarded Army Commendation

Drill corporal revives soldier

By Brian Adams
BAYONET correspondent
1st Infantry Training Brigade

Drill Cpl. Billie R. Hobbs, Company D, 5th Battalion, 1st Infantry Training Brigade, recently received the Army Commendation Medal for saving the life of a fellow soldier, Pvt. Robert Erwin, also of Company D.

Hobbs, a prior serviceman and a former Emergency Medical Technician(EMT) in St. Augustine, Fl., was on duty in the orderly room when members of the platoon came rushing in to tell him that there was a man having problems breathing.

"I went over to the barracks to see what was wrong," he said. "I found Pvt. Erwin lying on the floor unconcious and not breathing."

"Loosening all of his clothing, I began to revive him by artificial respiration, and he began to breath on his own," Hobbs said. " We propped him up in a sitting position hoping that this would make it easier for him to breath, but Erwin drew into a tight ball and quit breathing again."

"This time," commented Hobbs. "I started doing mouth-to-mouth until he started breathing on his own again. When I put him in the sitting position, he started breathing easier, and by this time the ambulance could be heard coming down the road."

Erwin was taken by ambulance to Martin Army Community Hospital, where it was learned by Hobbs later on, he had suffered muscle spasms from the neck down."This is the first time I have ever heard of that," commented Hobbs. "and I worked as an EMT for 11 years."

Hobbs did a stint with the 82nd Airborne Division from 1965 to 1967 and with the 11th Special Forces (Reserve Unit) after he was discharged from active duty. He left November 14 for a second tour with the 82nd and plans on making the Army a career. "I like what I'm doing and I like the Army," he said.

Health management system

Service eligibility computerized

By Brenda H. Andrews
ARNEWS Associate Editor

A new way of checking who's entitled to receive military health care services will affect every single person in the military community over the next two years.

You won't lose any benefits--that's if you're entitled to them. But the system will help flush out those abusers who cost the government $50-60 million in fraud last year.

The Defense Enrollment Eligibility System(DEERS), already underway in parts of CONUS, requires all active duty and retired servicemembers and dependents to be registered for medical benefits. Each service branch will automatically enter its military members in the program. However, sponsors must insure their dependents are enrolled in DEERS when they receive their ID cards.

DEERS will allow the Department of Defense (DoD) for the first time to keep close tabs on the number of people eligible for military health care.

"Right now, we don't know exactly how many people are legitimately entitled to military health care, despite all the record-keeping and files maintained by DoD and the services," declares Dr. Michael J. Mestrovich, Director of Health Systems Planning for DoD.

Once a dependent is enrolled in DEERS, the person's name goes into a computer. DEERS data gathered during enrollment is stored in computers at Monterey, Calif. and Alexandria, Va.

Until the system is well under way, no one will be turned away from a military health facility. However, those who are later proven ineligible may have to pay the government for the services they received.

DEERS is actually a benefits program. Government audit agencies estimates that CHAMPUS pays as much as $50-60 million a year to ineligible persons.

As a result of an agency report, Congress directed DoD to develop a program to correct this problem. DEERS is the first step to setting up a reliable accounting of people entitled to health care.

Although DEERS is now being introduced to support medical care service for the military's nine million dependents, it may eventually be used to plan and manage other military benefits, such as commissary and exchange services.

DEERS enrollment is coming to Fort Benning after the holiday season. Watch the "Benning Report" and the "BAYONET" for further information concerning when, where, and how the enrollment will be accomplished.

Keep an eye on DEERS. One day it may be more important than even the time-honored ID card.

Two-wheeler wallows down road

By Tom Sabel
BAYONET Staff Writer

Lately, I have been doing my part in conserving energy by riding a bicycle to work.

No accolades, please, I fell into this situation by a fluke. I found the bicycle at a garage sale for $12 and it's a lot cheaper than cranking over the old car every morning.

Perched high above the pavement on two spindly wheels gives this former auto fanatic a different perspective - one of fear. In my avid car driving days I saw other cars as traffic in my way, potential competitors at traffic light drag races and bicycles as an animal too dumb to get off the road.

That all changed rather drastically when I began riding my bike. Suddenly I was the object of motorist's derision. Angry glances were cast over drivers' shoulders as they whipped past me. I quickly developed the instinct of hearing cars approaching from the rear and make a move as close to the curb as possible. Most of the drivers give me more than adequate room but there are some who are trying to read my name tag and are coming too close.

Some motorists do not realize that I have to obey the same laws they do. When I make a left turn, I have to use the left lane like any vehicle on wheels. Unfortunately, I do not have the speed cars and trucks have and so I am constantly passed.

The numbers of bicycle commuters are growing. At the parking lot by Infantry Hall there is a long bike rack. On sunny days, the rack is almost full. On cold overcast days there are still a few bicyles in the rack. While locking or unlocking my bike, I have noticed other bike riders, both officers and enlisted. As if in a secret brotherhood, we notice each other and a quick smile creeps across our faces.

I am grateful to my fellow bicycle riders. I don't feel as alone in my morning and evening gauntlets. For the motorists with whom I share the roads, be wary of the bicyclists for they are such tender targets.

Reports on rise

Measures taken to control strays

During the past few months the number of stray pets picked up here has increased. Because of this, stronger control measures have been started with the military police keeping a closer watch for stray animals.

Owners should remember that when their pets are outside, they must have them on a leash, or under voice control while keeping them in sight. Pets that do not respond to voice commands are considered uncontrolled and will be picked up just like strays. Pets must wear their registration/rabies vaccination tag attached to their collar or harness, according to a post spokesman.

The first time a pet is picked up and impounded by the military police the owner will receive a letter of warning. If it happens again the owner will be directed to remove the animal from the installation.

Besides letting pets run loose, there are two other quick ways to get it removed from post. If a pet is involved in an unprovoked biting or scratching incident it will be immediately removed from post. Plus, pets declared a nuisance (unduly noisy or other similiar problems) for a third time will be removed from the post.

All uncaged pets over 3-months-old must be registered here within 14 days of arrival. They must be taken to the Veterinary Control Facility, Bldg. 265, where they will be examined for infectious diseases. They will also be given any needed immunizations and their rabies tag.

Pets may be kept outdoors but they must be secured in their owner's yard. Outdoor housing for pets must be portable so that the owner can remove it when transferred.

Pets have always been a part of the history of Fort Benning. In fact, Calculator, a dog that became the pet of the entire Infantry Center, is buried with a monument in memory of the love and affection held for him, at the rear entrance to Bldg. 35.

The health, safety and tranquility of Fort Benning residents requires that the rules pertaining to pets be followed. In order to keep your pet, play by the rules!

Why inspections?

To the Editor:

What I am about to ask is not meant to be a joke, but a serious question..

Why is my living space, that huge 12 by 15 foot room shared by two enlisted members in the barracks, inspected while my married counterpart's on-post housing is not, except upon departure?

As I understand it, room inspections are necessitated by military discipline and cleanliness. Doesn't family housing need to be clean? (Anyone ing need to be clean? (Anyone who thinks every unit in family housing is clean is deluding themselves.) I maintain commanders would be surprised beyond their wildest expectations if they arrived unannounced at units in family housing. From what I have seen, few units in family housing are as clean as most barracks rooms. And as far as discipline is concerned, doesn't the married soldier need it? Since when should a marriage certificate exclude a servicemember from these supposed disciplinary devices? If there's a "need" for me to roll my underwear into little balls, shouldn't my married counterpart be subjected to this belittling military procedure?

I, of course, know family housing is not inspected like the barracks be- the dependent spouse would not tolerate it. And imagine what effect that inspection would have on hubbie! And besides, it is argued that to inspect family housing would take an inordi-

Basic training a week longer

WASHINGTON (ARNEWS)--Basic Training (BT) for new soldiers will be longer and tougher beginning at some training posts in January, announced officials at the U.S. Army Training and Doctrine Command (TRADOC). By the end of FY 82, all training installations will offer the new BT program.

The program, outlined by the Army Chief of Staff Gen. E.C. Meyer, will extend Initial Entry Training (IET) for new soldiers from seven weeks to eight weeks. It also extends the One Station Unit Training for Combat Arms skills by one week. This extension, said officials, allows for more physical conditioning, training in new subjects and higher standards for courses.

According to one official, the increased IET program promotes the Army's cohesion and stability efforts. It is designed to "provide a new soldier to the field who is motivated, disciplined, physically conditioned, trained in common soldierly skills and is ready to take a place in the field after qualifying for his or her MOS," he said.

The one week extension means new soldiers will receive 97 more hours of training than now offered. The added time will allow for instruction in new subject areas and additional time for subjects now taught. It will also formally recognize the time soldiers spend on refresher training and on maintaining their clothing and weapons.

Under the extended program, more emphasis will be placed on physical training, weapons familiarization and qualification, individual tatical training, marches and bivouacs, and basic rifle marksmanship.

Soldiers will also recieve new training in the following courses: communications training on radio and telephone procedures; map reading and terrain recognition; opposing forces training and orientation; and obstacle courses for confindence and conditioning.

Soldier saves other's life

It was like a movie scene. Someone was choking and out of nowhere, someone comes from running over and saves their life.

But this actually happened in the 15th Finance Company barracks when Pvt. Delores Thomas was choking and Pvt. Kevin Graham knew what to do.

"I just saw her standing in the hall choking on something," Graham explained. "I ran over to her and used the Hiemlich Maneuver to dislodge whatever was stuck in her throat."

Graham learned this first aid techniques at a summer camp in Maine where he worked for eight years.

He was awarded the Army Commendation Medal by Col. Frederick E. Bittl, 36th Engineer Group commander, in a company formation on Nov. 10.

The Boston, Mass. native has been in the Army nine months and works in 15th Finance's travel section.

Fairer shake of justice

Trial counsels divided

WASHINGTON (ARNEWS)--Army Chief of Staff, Gen. E.C. Meyer has decided that soldiers get a fairer shake of justice when the Defense and Trial Counsels don't work in the same office.

Since January of this year, soldiers have had a separate military organization providing defense counsel services, according to an official of the Army's Judge Advocate General's (JAG) Office. It was a test program.

On November 7, Gen. Meyer decided the test was sucessful and approved the permanent creation of the U.S. Army Trial Defense Service (USATDS).

According to the JAG official, the Separate Defense Counsel Service will serve two primary purposes. First, USATDS will improve the efficiency and professionalism of Defense Counsel Service for soldiers through the use of a direct defense chain. Secondly, the new organization will help end perceptions of soldiers and others that the Defense Counsel could have a potential conflict of interest in carrying out duties.

DA officials comment the separating of Defense and Prosecution duties of JAG wll impact favorably on Army efforts to promote cohesion within the service and improve Legal Services offered to soldiers and families.

The Army began testing the USATDS structure in May 1978 at some Training and Doctrine Command (TRADOC) posts within the continental U.S. (CONUS). The pilot program, in September 1979, was expanded to all units in CONUS, Alaska, Hawaii and Panama. By January 1980, the official commented, USATDS was operating on a test basis in all Army Commands, including those in Europe and Korea.

Final evaluation of the USATDS structure was made in April after reviewing comments from each of the major Army Commands, 35 General and 50 Special Court-Martial Convening Authorities, and over 200 military lawyers assigned as Staff Judge Advocate, trial judges and Defense Counsels.

CHAMPUS stops reimbursement

Providers of medical services who are listed as suspended, excluded or terminated by the Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) will be denied reimbursement under CHAMPUS, according to a recent instruction from the Office of CHAMPUS.

The Secretary of the Department of Health and Human Services (formerly Health, Education and Welfare) may, for purposes of reimbursement under the Social Security Act, suspend, exclude or terminate any provider who has been determined to have furnished supplies or services which were substantially in excess of the needs of individuals, or to be harmful to individuals, or to be of a grossly inferior quality.

CHAMPUS reimbursement, under the DoD CHAMPUS Regulation, is also denied to any such provider listed by HHS. In cases where CHAMPUS payments are made directly to the beneficiary, reimbursement will be denied for services rendered by the listed providers.

CHAMPUS fiscal intermediaries (FI's) who process and pay CHAMPUS claims have been instructed to review monthly listings issued by HHS. When a provider within the contract jurisdiction of an FI is suspended, excluded or terminated by HHS, the FI will issue a notice to the provider advising that, based on the HHS action, CHAMPUS benefits will be denied for the period beginning 15 days following the date of the notice and continuing until the provider is reinstated. Notices to providers are to be issued n longer than 14 days after receipts of the HHS listing.

The FI will also provide a copy of the notice to Uniformed Services Health Benefits Advisor(s) serving the same locality as the provider involved.

A beneficiary who received services from the provider on or after the date of the FI notice also will be notified. The special notice to the beneficiary will indicate the effective date of and the reason for the suspension, exclusion or termination of the provider from payment under CHAMPUS.

CHAMPUS may pay claims for otherwise covered services or supplies provided to the beneficiary by the provider who was suspended, excluded or terminated within seven days of the beneficiary notification. In ths case, payment will be made directly to the beneficiary (or sponsor).

Carribean Islands only

POV processing quick

WASHINGTON (ARNEWS)--Servicemembers and Federal Civilian Employees will find Privately Owned Vehicle(POV) processing quick and easy at the U.S. Army Cape Canaveral, Fla., Outport, say Military Traffic Management Command (MTMC) officials.

The MTMC outport at Cape Canaveral provides POV processing for eligible members on Permanent Change of Station (PCS) orders for the Carribean Islands.

Official say the Outport has weekly sailings to the Grand Bahama Andros, Grand Turk and Virgin Islands. Sailing to Puerto Rico and Antigua are scheduled every 12 to 14 days.

POV's can be turned in at the Outport as late as a day before sailing and will normally make it out on the next outbound ship. Officials say this is possible because of the small number of cars going to the islands. Outport workers are able to process paperwork swiftly and get POV's on their way.

Because of the Outport's location, families can combine visits to such tourist spots as Disney World and Cypress Gardens when taking their POV for turn-in. Also, officials comment, Orlando, Fla., is only 50 miles from Cape Canaveral and the Kennedy Space Center is located in the Outport's immediate area.

Those members planning to ship POV's to any of these islands should contact the Cape Canaveral Outport. Shipping information, turn-in dates and sailing times are available by calling Autovon: 467-5358, or commercial: (303) 853-5358/5359.

Scaled range adds realism

By Gil Carlon
BAYONET correspondent
197th Infantry Brigade

A scale model tank gunnery range was recently built to give 197th Infantry Brigade tank crews a chance to practice firing outside of the regular tank gunnery season.

By aligning an attached M-16 rifle with the 105mm gun of a tank, the crew can practice tracking and firing on a variety of targets. Thus, using the M-16 rifle costs nine cents per round, instead of the $84.90 price of a 105mm training round. This means that Brigade tank crews can now fire more often and be better prepared for actually firing the main gun at Turrentine range.

According to the commander of Company C, 2nd Battalion, 69th Armor, Capt. Keith A. Breedlove, "This training will increase a gunner's probability of hitting his target with the first round from his main gun during platoon tests later this month."

PFC Robert J. Ferrone, also of Company C, 2nd, 69th Armor, added: "I feel it has a significant bearing on how I would qualify and it also gives me the chance to familiarize with the crew before moving to Turrentine."

The model range, built by Company C, 43rd Engineer Battalion, is located at Brinson Range and contains fifty pop-up targets. Because of the 1/60th scale model, the tankers can simulate firing at the enemy up to 3,200 meters away. Each tank crew and platoon must qualify by hitting 70 percent of the pop-up targets on the model range before they can move to the platoon tests at Turrentine Range.

The post Training Aid Support Center built two model villages and lakes on Brinson Range to help add even more realism to the training.

nate amount of time. Well, doesn't inspecting rooms in the barracks in order to make sure my shirts are buttoned take an inordinate amount of time? Is it any less absurd to inspect my room but not my married counterpart's quarters? (now that I button my shirts as they hang in the wall locker, am I a better soldier?)

While I question the need to inspect T-shirts, I do feel that this experience should be enjoyed by all soldiers, regardless of marital status. Shouldn't everyone know what it's like to listen to an irate sergeant upon his discovery of a dust bunny under a bed or an apoplectic C.O. at seeing a Playboy foldout (a sin of indeterminable magnitude at a former unit)?

In all seriousness, what with equal opportunity, if these disparaging practices are a military necessity, marital status should not preclude a soldier from having to follow them. If marrieds can be excluded from these types of inspections because of their supposed innate maturity, I request this 29-year-old E-5, with five years of disciplinary-free service, be excused from the same.

Bonuses: Certain MOS's can now receive up to $4,000 in added incentives

WASHINGTON(ARNEWS)—People can now enter the Army in certain MOS skills and receive up to $4,000, say DA officials.

A recent change in the Enlistment Bonus(EB) program raises the award level by $500 to $1,000 for many MOS skills already covered under the program. The hike applies only for those individuals enlisting on or after Nov. 4. Those in the Delayed Entry Program(DEP) with an active duty date on or after Nov. 4 are not eligible for the bonus, however.

All EB enlistees must meet the following eligibility requirements:

- Must be a high school graduate as defined in AR 601-210.
- Must score 31 or higher on the Armed Forces entrance test.
- Must enlist for a period of four or more years.
- Prior service enlistees must not have more than four years of previous active service. Also, they must have had a break of more than three months following their last seperation. Reserves National Guard people who have completed Initial Active Duty for Training(IADT) are exempt from the three month break requirements.

MOS authorized a $4,000 level EB under the change are: Career Management Field(CMF) '19(armor), 11B, 11C, 11H, 13B, 13E, 13F and 98GLKP(Korean).

Other MOS with EB levels for enlistees are:

- MOS authorized $3,500 level EB-12B.
- MOS authorized $3,000 level EB-05D, 05G, 05H, 05K, 98GLRU(Russian) and 98GLAP(Arabian/Syrian).
- MOS authorized $2,500 level EB-05B(Special Forces only), 05C, 12E, 13C, 13R, 15D, 16D, 16E, 54E, 82B, 93E, 96C, 98GLAE(Arabian-Egyptian), 98GLCM(Chinese-Mandarin), 98GLCX(Czech), 98GLGM(German), 98GLPL(Polish) and 98GLLA(Spanish-American).
- MOS authorized $1,500 level EB-05B, 12F, 16C, 17K, 21G, 36D and 82D.

Extra three months added on

Discharge reviews extended

Veterans Administration chief Max Cleland recently reminded veterans with less than honorable discharges, that the 15-year limitation on applying for review of such discharges has been waived until April 1, 1981. This will give them an additional three months to apply.

Cleland pointed out that applications for a discharge review, or for correction of a veteran's records, may lead to eligibility for VA benefits in cases where former servicemen and women were previously ineligible.

VA benefits eligibility is based upon discharge from the service under conditions other than dishonorable. Cleland said, however, that upgraded discharges do not lead automatically, in all instances, to eligibility.

Boards for the Correction of Military Records, or VA itself, may assist veterans to overcome this restriction if the veteran can show compelling circumstances in extenuation of such an absence.

Discharge Review Boards and Correction Boards are maintained by the Army, Air Force and the Navy, and applications for such reviews may be obtained from any VA regional office and from national veterans service organizations in each community.

Cleland said applications and a free information package on the program may also be obtained by writing to: DoD Discharge Review, P.O. Box 21, St. Louis, Mo. 63166. Veterans should include their service number and branch of service.

Reserves try to reduce workload

WASHINGTON (ARNEWS)--The Army is working to reduce the administrative workload of the Army Reserve (USAR).

A special Task Force under the Reserve Component Coordination Council (RCCC) is seeking help identify administrative work which could be cut back or done away with.

Too much administrative paperwork has been a problem for a long time in the USAR, say RCCC officials. Army Chief of Staff, Gen. E.C. Meyer, made a commitment to reduce that workload. The Task Force is a result of that commitment.

Studies and visits by the Task Force during the past year show that paperwork is gumming up the system, hurting training, morale, job satisfaction and retention, as well as overall readiness.

As of early this month, 45 of 97 Task Force findings have been solved by doing away with the requirement or reducing the workload.

Some of the administrative reductions have been significant.

Although the Task Force has made a lot of progress in its first year, it doesn't consider the mission to be over. "We see the situation as a problem which will require continous attention," says Lt. Col. Dennis J. Flynn, the Task Force leader.

Examples of administrative streamlining include:

- Use of the same form, DD 398, for National Agency Checks and Special Background Investigations.
- Requiring serial number inventory of weapons quarterly instead of monthly.
- Reducing the administrative work in maintaining a Morale Support Fund (formerly the Unit Fund), and
- Authorizing commanders to give document register signature authority to unit technicians.

Task Force findings being resolved at press time include:

- Supporting selected units with a property book NCO through the full-time manning program to reduce unit technician workload.
- Improving Reserve capability to give the Skill Qualification Tests (SQT) or modify the SQT requirements for the USAR, and
- Permit pen and ink changes to training schedules.

Flynn asks that reservists, guardsmen and active duty soldiers give the Task Force the benefit of their experience. Soldiers do not have to have a solution to the problem to make a suggestion. The important thing, officials stress, is to point out requirements which take away from training time.

The Task Force sees trends which indicate adminstrative problems may be increasing. There is a growing demand for more information and this causes paperwork requirements to increase, comment officials.

Information available from one report is sometimes duplicated on another document and requirements are rarely done away with, say Task Force officials.

Task Force studies found the administrative workload placed on RC units is seen by the unit commanders as "unnecessary and unrealistic, seriously degrading mission accomplishments."

The Task Force believes that the commanders are right and is doing something about the situation, now.

Written suggestions may be sent to RCCC Task Force, c/o Headquarters, Department of the Army (DAAG-PLM), Washington, D.C. 20310. Calls are being accepted at Commercial (202) 694-4670 or Autovon 224-4670.

Bonus given to language MOS

WASHINGTON (ARNEWS) — Individuals enlisting in the Army after Sept. 30 in MOS 98GO (Arabic Egyptian) are now receiving a $2,500 bonus, according to DA Personnel officials.

Officials note that those enlisted in the Delayed Entry Program (DEP) before Sept. 30 for MOS 98GO are not eligible for the bonus. This includes those DEP people with an active duty date on or after Sept. 30.

The latest addition to the Enlistment Bonus (EB) program brings the total language MOS authorized a $2,500 bonus to six.

Educational benefits improved

WASHINGTON (ARNEWS) — Recent changes to the Veterans Educational Assistance Program (VEAP) will improve educational benefits for soldiers, say Army officials.

New legislation, which went into effect Oct. 17, permits servicemembers to save as little as $25 or as much as $100 per month toward their education under VEAP. Before, soldiers had to contribute at least $50 and no more than $75 per month to take part in the program.

Another change in the law also lets soldiers make lump sum payments into their VEAP account instead of contributing monthly. Further, soldiers in their last six months of service may now attend a high school completion program without affecting their VEAP entitlements.

None of the changes, however, affects the maximum amount a servicemember can save under VEAP, officials note. For every dollar a person contributes in the program, the Veterans Administration (VA) matches it with $2. Individuals may contribute up to $2,700 and get matching VA funds of $5,400 for a maximum total of $8,100. This sum may be increased by special incentives for soldiers in selected skills.

VEAP replaced the GI Bill for Education in 1977 as a five-year experiment. Its success in recruiting soldiers as an educational assistance program is still being studied.

A Department of Defense (DoD) report presented to Congress last February recommended that the contribution range be extended to $25-to-$100 monthly to make VEAP more attractive to servicemembers.

The report also suggested that members be allowed to use VEAP benefits during their first term. This policy, however, remains the same. Servicemembers must complete their first term of service or six years, whichever comes first, before drawing VEAP payments.

VEAP is slated to end in December 1981 unless the President recommends an extension to Congress before June 1, 1981, and Congress approves. If VEAP continues, funding may shift from VA to DoD, officials add.

NCO makes warrant officer

With 15 years in the Army and the rank of Sergeant First Class, Gregory Reimers was commissioned a warrant officer (WO1) recently.

Reimers is now a maintenance officer for the Maintenance Management Division of the Weapon, Gunnery and Maintenance Division.

He has been in Armor for most of his career, but studied automotive technology at Central Texas College, Killen, Texas.

After, two months at the Motor Officers Course at Fort Knox, Ky., Reimers will report for duty in Germany.

Publications decreasing

WASHINGTON (ARNEWS) — Soldiers won't be so bogged down in the future with the large number of publications now in the field, say Department of the Army (DA) officials. A review project, now under way, will help shave the number of Army pubs.

Since July, DA staff heads and MACOM commanders have been reviewing Army publications to determine which ones are needed. Those publications which are no longer being used, especially those over five years old, will be cut. Wherever possible, others will be combined with related pubs or revised if they are out-of-date.

Earlier this year, Army Chief of Staff, Gen. E. C. Meyer, ordered an Army-wide reduction in the number and size of publications. Officials say the Army's concern with publications relates directly to readiness.

Field units, they explain, are now overloaded with too many publications. This includes administrative, training, technical and command publications. Also, with tighter funding and budgeting, the Army can't afford to waste money in printing, reprinting and storing unneeded publications, officials note.

A report, issued in September by the DA Adjutant General's office, shows MACOM commanders are fully supporting the project. Early responses indicate that during FY 81 about 79 publications may be recalled. Ninety-four others are being considered for consolidation.

A final report should follow within the next six months, say officials.

Sheriff's Target

"Please help me! My husband came home late, he was drinking, we had an argument and now he's beating me. I'm 5-months pregnant and I'm afraid he's really going to hurt me..."

With this telephone call, the military police became involved in one of the 24 domestic disturbances occurring last month at Fort Benning, one of 146 so far this year. These type incidents usually start as arguments over money excessive drinking or coming home late. At some point, either the husband or wife loses control and their angry words are replaced with physical blows. These incidents normally end with the wife being transported to Martin Army Community Hospital for treatment of injuries and then to the ACS Battered Wives Shelter for her protection. The husband usually ends up at the MP desk, charged as the subject of an assault and then released to his unit.

Provost Marshal Col. Ward

While military police involvement in the domestic disturbance ends when aid has been rendered to the victims and the offenders have been charged, complications for the family involved may only be beginning. What may have been a minor misunderstanding has now escalated to a matter of significant concern to the command. The family must now deal with the embarrassment of official intervention into their private lives and the lasting reaction of their neighbors to their "breach of peace." Because of command interest, concern and responsibility for the welfare of all families residing in family housing, couples involved in domestic disturbances are required to respond to their chain of command in writing of their actions designated to rectify the situation. Subsequent disturbances may result in the family being required to clear quarters and move off the installation. Additionally, the military member has now been identified and marked as someone other than a model soldier. The family affair has become a public incident of Army concern which may hound him for the remainder of his Army career.

The consequences of domestic disturbances can be severe, but they are avoidable. If the troubled couple would only "count ten" and seek help before the declining relationship gets out of control, the disturbance can usually be avoided. There are many agencies both on and off post that can offer assistance before is it too late. On post aid is as close as a telephone call through the Chaplain's division, the Army Community Services Program, the American Red Cross or the Martin Army Community Hospital counselling services.

The military police mission is clear: protection of individual rights and property with a goal of making Fort Benning a safe place to train and live. In domestic disturbances, our military police should be a court of last resort.

"WHEN YOU'RE A CIVILIAN AGAIN, AN EXTRA $1,300 A YEAR SURE COMES IN HANDY."

"I got out of the Army in February of 1977, right when all the prices were going up. Food. Clothing. Gas. You name it and it went up.

"Fortunately, when I was out-processing, someone asked me if I wanted to make some extra money with a local Army Reserve unit, and I said yes.

"It's good I joined right away, because it took me a couple of months to find a good full-time job.

"Even with a regular job, the extra $1,300 I earned with the Reserve came in handy. It was the difference between barely making ends meet and being able to put a little money away.

"By going direct from Active into the Reserve, I was also able to keep my rank of E-4. I'm now an E-5, pulling in over $1,600 a year. Not bad for a weekend a month and two weeks annual training.

"I'm also taking advantage of some other benefits. I buy a lot of my auto supplies at the PX. I carry low-cost government life insurance through the Reserve. I also think the retirement package is a good deal.

| How much can you make part-time with the Army Reserve? | Per Weekend | Per Year |
|---|---|---|
| E-3 with 2+ years | $73.08 | $1231.41 |
| E-3 with 3+ years | 76.04 | 1248.03 |
| E-4 with 3+ years | 80.52 | 1360.44 |
| E-4 with 4+ years | 86.80 | 1459.35 |
| E-5 with 4+ years | 89.24 | 1510.38 |
| E-5 with 6+ years | 95.08 | 1602.36 |

"A side benefit that's helped me is the additional training I've picked up in the Reserve. I was an MP on active duty but have become an Accounting Specialist in the Reserve. Right now, that's helping me with the business degree I'm working toward at a local college.

"So I can recommend the Army Reserve to anyone coming off active duty. The extra income is good, and it's nice being with people who can appreciate what you achieved in the service."

BACKGROUND ON . . .

TURKEY

FACTS AND FIGURES

Geography: Partly in Europe and partly in Asia, Turkey has an area of 296,000 square miles (slightly smaller than Texas and Louisiana combined). The capital city of Ankara has a population of 2.6 million, but Istanbul is the largest city with a population of 3.86 million; other large cities are Izmir (1.66 million) and Adana (1 million).

People: In a population estimated at 43 million, Turks make up 90 percent of the citizens. Kurds account for 7 percent, and the remainder are Arabs, Greeks, Armenians, Jews. Most Turkish Moslems belong to the Sunni sect of Islam.

Government: Parliamentary democracy, with a President chosen by the Grand National Assembly's members who are elected directly by the voters. A Prime Minister, appointed by the President, is usually the leader of the political party or a coalition which commands a majority of votes in the Grand National Assembly.

Economy: Gross national product $35 billion with a labor force 68 percent agricultural, 8 percent manufacturing. Exports: cotton, tobacco, textiles, steel.

U.S. & Turkey: Turkey became a full member of NATO in 1952; Armed Forces include 775,000 regular, 700,000 reserves. Also a member of the United Nations, CENTO, European Community, Council of Europe. Several thousand U.S. military personnel and dependents are stationed in Turkey; two NATO headquarters near Izmir have large U.S. contingents. As a result of Turkey's invasion of Cyprus in July 1974, Congress voted to end arms sales on February 5, 1975. On July 25, 1975, Turkey took over control of all U.S. installations. A new tentative base agreement was reached in March 1976, and in August 1978, Congress reversed the arms embargo.

Bad Checks: Revised Georgia law makes soldiers' bad checks lifetime criminal offense

By Roberto Rullan
BAYONET Staff Writer

Do you remember the old Army joke about the wife who told her husband that there was a lot of money in the bank because they had a lot of blank checks....?

As of today, there appears to be military families who think like this. Some people are still not aware of what can happen to them when they start writing bad checks. "A person commits a criminal offense when they write checks that are going to bounce," said Robert W. Paulk, Municipal Court at Columbus.

New Georgia law

Georgia law concerning bad checks changed July 1. Now, the punishment imposed by the judges is more severe than before. "With the new changes, the judge has no choice as to punishment, and should rule in accordance with the new criminal code of the Georgia State Court," said Lieutentant Trudie Farley, deputy marshal of the Columbus Municipal Court.

"We try several cases a day and at least 60 percent are for bad check offenses," said Paulk, "and some of these are military personnel." Military personnel coming to the Fort Benning/Columbus area should be aware of the new state law concerning this offense. By being in the military, the indvidual is subject to the Uniform Code of Military Justice and to the state law.

"After a warrant is issued against a soldier, he will be brought to trial the same as any other citizen," said Paulk."The only thing that we need to issue the warrant is to have the returned check, which in this case, will be the evidence. If the check is returned because the account has been closed, the warrant is issued immediately," he said.

"When the check is returned because of "insufficient funds", the store or indvidual to whom the check was written, must notify the person who wrote the check.

Payment plus a service charge of $5 or five percent of the amount must be paid in full. If you receive the notification and ignore it, you are subject to be brought to trial, according to the new Georgia Criminal Code.

"After the warrant is issued by the Court Clerk, is forwarded to the Post's Provost Marshal; the indvidual's commander is then notified to set a time and a place for the soldier to be turned-in to the civilian authorities and placed under arrest," explained Paulk. This is the beginning of the soldier's headaches.

Civilian court tries soldiers

When a soldier arrives at the Government Center in Columbus, he is under the jurisdiction of the Municipal Court. He will be commanded to appear in front of the Judge Ernest C. Britton, Muscogee Municipal Court. If found guility, the soldier will be sentenced according to:

- Upon conviction of second offense, the defendant shall be fined not less than $50, which sentence shall not be suspended, probated, deferred or withheld.
- Upon conviction of third offense, the defendant shall be fined not less than $100 or shall be imprisoned not less than 30 days, which sentence shall not be suspended, probated, defered or without.
- Upon conviction of a fourth or subsequent such offense, the defendant shall be imprisoned for not less than 30 days, which sentence shall not be suspended, probated, deferred or withheld.
- Upon conviction of a first and any subsequent offense, in addition to the punishment hereinabove, the defendant shall be required to make restitution of the amount of the check, together with all costs in court in bringing a complaint under this section.

Bad check record forever

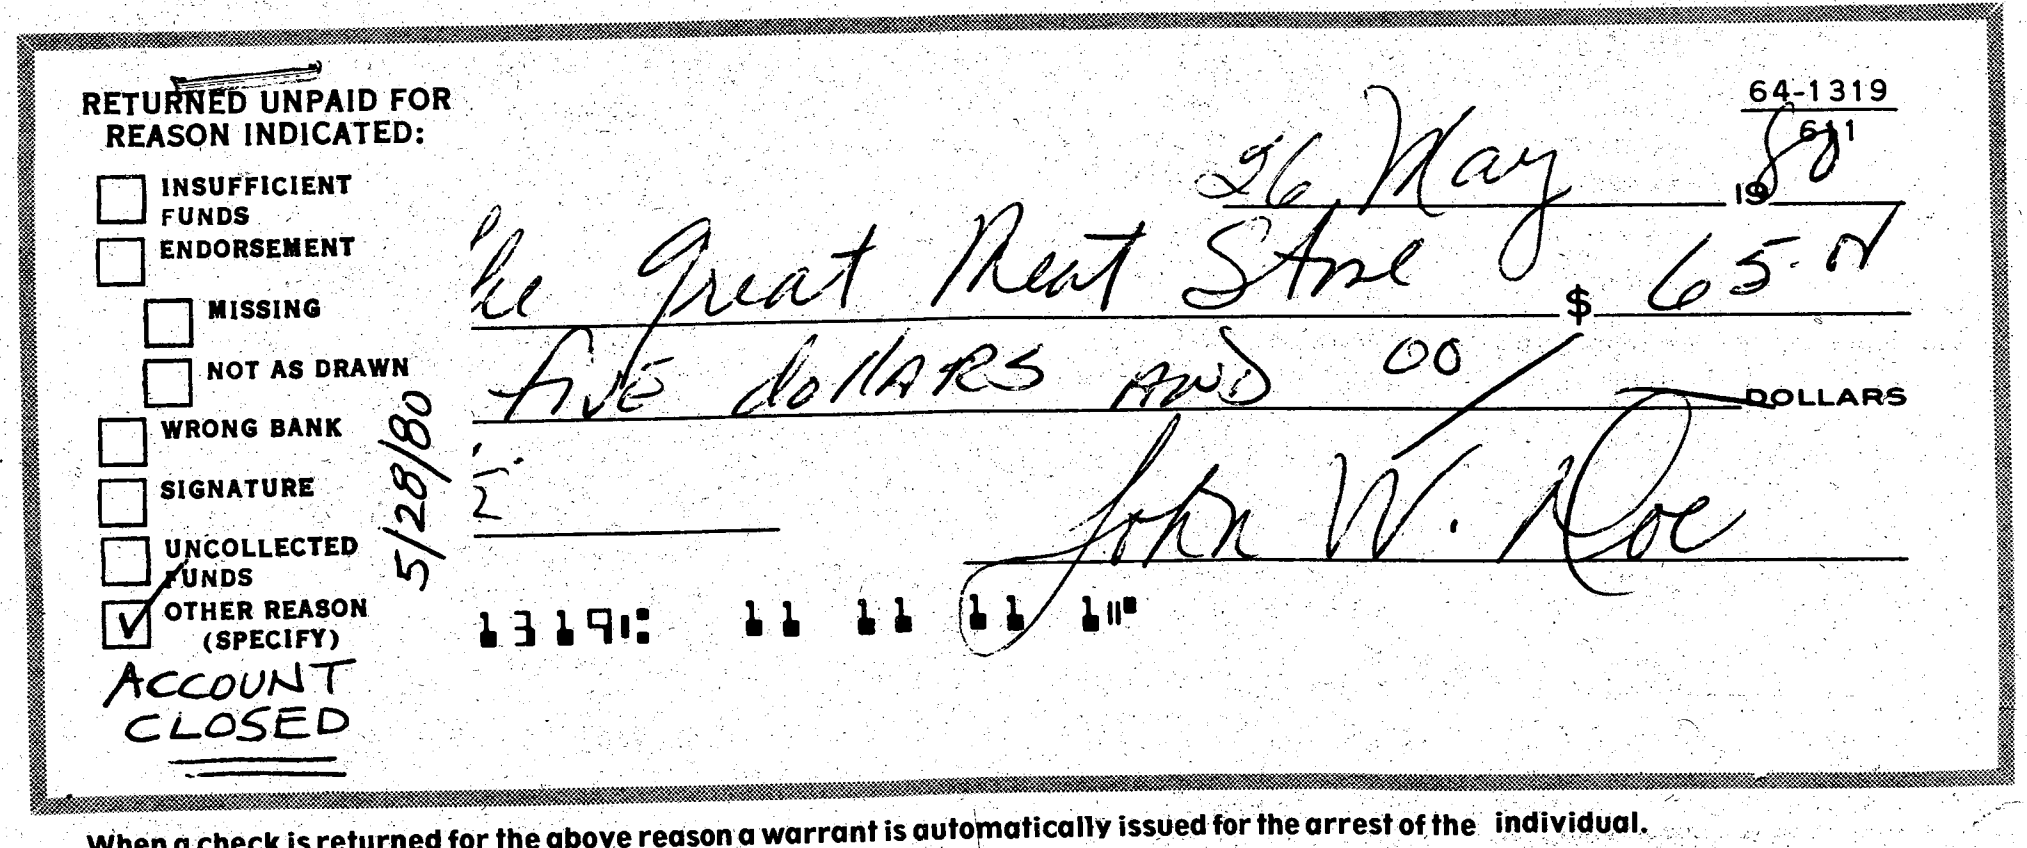
If you write a bad check off-post there is a chance you might end up in jail and your check cashing privileges suspended for good. "Checks are the largest single monetary exchange in the world," said Paulk. Therefore you should learn how to keep a good checking account which will protect your integrity and your future. Once you are convicted for writing bad checks it will remain in your Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) records for the rest of your life.

Here are some tips that you should follow to keep out of trouble:

- Make sure that you have sufficient funds to cover all checks that you write.



When a check is returned for the above reason a warrant is automatically issued for the arrest of the individual.

When a check is returned the individual must pay the full amount of the check plus $5 or five percent of the amount. If the individual ignores the check a warrant is issued for their arrest.

•Maintain a good balance in your checking account.

•If you change banks and there are some outstanding checks, make sure that you leave sufficient funds to cover them and to include all bank costs.

•If you have a guaranteed deposit, make sure that your money is in the bank before you write any checks.

•Don't write any "mysterious checks" a few days before any payday and then try to cover them on a later day.

You should remember that checks are an easy way to pay, to make any monetary transactions, and overall, a checking account is a privilege. The law applies to everyone-civilian and military personnel-. BAD CHECKS ARE BAD NEWS.

Bad checks on post cancel privileges, ruin career

By Roberto Rullan
BAYONET Staff Writer

"Bad checks on post is a major problem," said 1st Lt. Daniel E. McCarthy, check control officer here.

When a soldier writes a bad check on post he is risking his future, his integrity and probably his rank, said the check control officer. If a check is written at the post exchange, commissary, beverage store or any other place on post and is returned by the bank because of insufficient funds or a closed account, the individual is facing trouble, added the officer. Once the check is back from the bank, no changes can be made.

Computer cancels privileges

Until the soldier is contacted the check is placed on hold. At this time the soldier's social security number will be placed in a computer so no other checks can be cashed on post. Everytime a person wants to pay by check, the check needs to be approved by the salesperson before shopping. The salesperson enters the soldier's social security number into the computer and if the number has been placed in the computer a "hold" sign will appear and the check will not be approved.

"The first offense can be cleared by paying the full amount of the check plus a service charge within seven days after receipt of notification," said SFC John Parkman, NCOIC of the Bad Checks Roster.

"If the individual fails to pay the amount within the seven days, his or her name may appear on the Bad Check Roster," said McCarthy.

ID cards overstamped

"Once the name is placed on the Bad Check Roster, the individual's ID card will be overstamped with 'No check cashing privileges' and will remain on the list for an indefinite period of time," said Parkman.

Under the Uniform Code of Military Justice, Article 134, an individual may receive an article 15 for this offense. That's where the real problems can start for the soldier. If the soldier has a guaranteed deposit and the check cashing privileges have been suspended, the soldier may have to go to the bank on payday just to have cash for on post shopping.

Being transfered to another CONUS post or overseas won't give a new lease on the check cashing life of the soldier. The computer entry with his social security number will follow him around. A copy of the Bad Check Roster is also forwarded to the check control officer of the new installation.

"The only way a person may be taken off the Bad Check Roster is by paying the check or checks within the seven days after notification and this applies only to the first offenders," said McCarthy.

"Also a person can be taken off if there was a bank error," added Parkman.

"If a dependent writes a bad check, the name will also go to the list but under the sponsor's social security number and first name," said McCarthy.

The voice of experience

Those on the bad check roster commented on their situation. "Since my ID card was overstamped and my name placed on the roster, I have experienced only hard times," said one private first class.

"I wish I could start my checking account all over again," said a private 2.

"Sometimes before payday I used to write a couple of rubber checks to get by until payday and try to cover them up later," added a staff sergeant.

Sometimes people can make mistakes in their check books, but most of the time people write checks knowing that there is no money in their accounts, said Parkman. "A checking account is a privilege which can be taken away even because of an honest mistake," stressed Parkman.

How About That?

By William W. Erbach, Sr.
36th Engineer Group Chaplain

Can you imagine a world without clocks? What would your home be without an alarm clock or a a kitchen clock?

A thousand years ago there were no clocks. Back then people told time by the sun, but what about nighttime or on cloudy days? I read about a monk who lived many centuries ago called Brother Augustin, and he had a rather unusual way of telling time.

A book of psalms was his clock. Brother Augustin lived in a monastary and his job was to ring the bell that would wake all the other monks to call them to prayers.

In the evening he would begin to read the psalms. He would count the pages that he read, and when he had finished a certain number of pages, he would jump up and run to the church belfry and ring the bell. How About That?

Of course, sometimes the plan would fail. One night he fell asleep himself and when he woke up the sun was high and his superior scolded him for falling asleep. He really needed a better way to tell time, but his Bible was his clock.

I think that one of the most important things to think about when we mention time is that it is a gift given equally to everyone. We all have exactly the same number of hours in the day. The rich or powerful don't get 26 hours and the poor and lowly only get 21.

We all have the same 24 to work with, even though sometimes we wish it were more. How we use our time is not always up to us because there are certain things that must be done, but each of us has at least a few minutes, or even perhaps hours, during the day when we can do as we please.

Think about that time, that precious gift, and make the best use of them for yourself and those around you.

To get second star

Brig. Gen. Edward L. Trobaugh will soon be a major general. Gen. Trobaugh began his military career at West Point, the U.S. Army Military Academy, and was graduated in 1955. His career has been highlighted by assignments as the Tactics Instructor with the Ranger Department at Eglin Air Force Base, physical education instructor at West Point and Deputy Commanding General, U.S. Army Infantry Center, Fort Benning. Among his many awards are the Silver Star, the Legion of Merit and the Distinguished Flying Cross.

Dunked as Christians

Troops baptized here

By Brian Adams
BAYONET correspondent
1st Infantry Training Brigade

Following a short and simple church service on Sunday, Nov.16, 13 men from the 5th Battalion, 1st Infantry Training Brigade, stepped forward single file into Victory Pond.

Despite the cold weather and the threatening rain clouds, they stepped into the pond one at a time to be baptized.

"Are you prepared to lay down your life in the name of God," Capt. Henry Haynes, Chaplain for the 5th Battalion, asked. It may have seemed unusual, or even blasphemous, by some to conduct such a ritual in Victory Pond, but it really wasn't if one were to take a look at where and when John the Baptist performed this same right on Jesus Christ.

Haynes and Lt. Col. Richard C. Moore, 5th Battalion Commander, stood in the pond, lowering each man into the water backwards after his 'Yes' response to the priest's question. Haynes would look at the men lining the pond in observance of this day and say, 'In the name of the Lord Almighty, I now baptize you.'

The men were wrapped in a wool blanket after leaving the water and most stood and watched along with the others as their peers were going through the same process.

There was no special religion to which the men of 5th Battalion were baptized, rather as was Christ. they too were baptized Christians.

Wholly Moses a goose egg

When people talk about the great movies of our time which will be remembered pratically forever a few titles come to mind. There is one movie which will never be mentioned on the same list.

The movie I'm talking about is called "Wholly Moses". Never have so many stars been wasted in so little. This movie boasts more stars from television and movies than there is room for in this column. It sort of makes you wonder how such people could allow themselves to be stuffed into such a "turkey".

The story line is about a guy in Moses' time who almost ended up taking Moses' place with the daughter of Pharaoh. The writers must have reasoned this would have made him the leader to the promised land instead of Moses. The rest of the story is a series of how this guy almost took Moses' place.

Dudley Moore, who was so good in "10", has as his leading lady Lorraine Newman, formerly of "Saturday Night Live". I watched them both struggle for the duration of the movie as tourists to the Holy Land projecting themselves into the characters they're reading about in a sort of Dead Sea Scroll. I can tell you now that no matter how hard these talented people tried, it only made me wish "Wholly Moses" was in the Dead Sea along with the scroll.

In conclusion I give "Wholly Moses" zero stars and a fond wish that it finds it's way back to where it won't bother anyone.

USAIB post flag champions

By Becky Bulgrin
BAYONET sport's editor

The United States Army Infantry Board (USAIB) pulled out two straight wins over Company B, 3/7th Infantry, 197th Infantry Brigade, Nov. 13, to earn the title of Post Flag Football Champs.

Since USAIB lost one game during the playoffs to the 3/7th, they were ready for revenge. They took the first game by a score of 6-0, and the second 8-6.

Theodore Demps made an interception for USAIB on the 3/7th's 10-yard line and second down after the start of the first game.

Joe Foreman drove for the only score of the game on a 45-yard touchdown pass from USAIB quarterback Ralph Milliken.

Although no more points were scored, both teams kept the ball moving. Milliken deflected a 3/7th touchdown pass on the fourth down, giving USAIB the ball.

Demps made another interception for USAIB on 3/7th's third and 15 during second half action. He then made a fantastic connection with a bomb from Milliken, but failed to score.

It was 3/7th's turn for an interception when Arthur Jones grabbed a USAIB pass to take over the ball. Then, USAIB's Larry Riley made two good defensive stands, turning back the 3/7th when they threatened to score twice.

David Ayers played a strong defensive game for the 3/7th. He stopped two USAIB touchdowns, and was the only man there to stop one on the 20-yard line. The 3/7th's Robert Harrington and Archie Spinner showed strong defense and offense, although their efforts failed to come through.

Spinner continued his strong defense when he made a good block, taking a man out of play who was ready to score on an end run near the start of the second game.

USAIB's Demps continued to make a good show as he caught his third interception of the night right after the 3/7th gained control of the ball. He grabbed his fourth on a later play when he intercepted a 3/7th bomb on USAIB's own 30.

USAIB was ready to score when 3/7th's Ocie Meadows and Ronald Williams broke up the play and was ready to score again when 3/7th safety Everett Evans blocked a long TD pass.

Demps didn't let up, but this time he threw a 50-yard touchdown pass to Joe Foreman resulting in the first score of the game. Demps was barely stopped by the line of scrimmage before throwing the bomb.

Foreman went on to make the two-point conversion on a pass from Milliken, which ended up saving USAIB's win.

The 3/7th's only score of the game was on a pass to Ayers from Williams.

Grasshopper Division

The Seahawks swooped over the Cardinals Saturday for a 6-0 win in the YA Grasshopper Football Division.

The Seahawks were heavily favored coming into the game, but the Cardinals failed to get the word. They still played their best. The Cards' defense, led by Neil Williams, Spencer Curtis and Rodney Cole, held the explosive Seahawks to a lone score.

The Seahawks' only score came in the 2nd quarter on a fine run by Bryan Richardson, led by the great blocking of Brandon Chitwood and David Deprospero.

Defensive standouts for the Seahawks were David Hernandez, Max Chapa and Chris Turner.

The Panthers showed their defensive power and versatility of their offense by upsetting the Cowboys Nov. 12, 40-6.

The Cowboys scored their only touchdown early in the first quarter. After that it was the Panthers' game. David Gage, Ladell Bryant and Styrom Traylor made key plays for the Panther defense to contain the Cowboys' offense and force a safety in the fourth quarter.

The Panthers' touchdowns were scored on runs by Anthony Pollard and Gus Wyche and passes to John Hewins. Other key players were offensive center, Joseph Perez, and running back Chris Price.

The Cowboys recovered quickly from their loss by holding the Panthers scoreless in their next game. Unfortunately for the Cowboys, their only touchdown was called back because of a personal foul, and they also remained scoreless.

The Panthers came through again when a tie-breaker was played, defeating the Cowboys 1-0. The key play was made by Dorsey Rice, who carried a pass from the Panther's 30-yard line to the Cowboy's 15.

The Cowboys tried to bring the ball back, but were stopped two yards short by Panther Chris Price.

Termite Division

The Buccaneers defeated the TC Steelers 12-0 in recent Termite Division football action.

Ron McIver scored on a two-yard run following a 52-yard scamper by Hollie Robinson to set up the TD run. Robinson also scored on a ten-yard run.

Outstanding offensive players included Chris Rutherford, Chris Conners and James Titus. Defensive standouts were George Bailey, Tim Terry, Ned Moultrie, Jason Bargewell and Clarence Catchings.

Midget Division

The TC Panthers defeated the MP Falcons, 20-6, placing the Panthers at a second place tie with the Lavoie Seahawks in YA Midget Division Football.

Donnie Gales scored all three Panther TDs, two on long pass plays of 35 and 45 yards and one on an interception returned 80 yards. Ike Wyche scored a two-point conversion on a quarterback keeper.

Pee Wee Division

The Tri-City Panthers defeated the Patriots 14-8 Saturday in a good defensive game of Pee Wee Division football.

The Panthers scored their points in the first quarter on a TD by Tyrone Crawford and an extra point conversion by Xavier Carter. Helping set up the next TD was a 40-yard pass from Pete Marshall to Mike Holmes. Key defensive players were Steve Barmore, Patrick Sebay, Jeffery Bryant, Marvin Howard, Curtis Rucker, Dale Murphy and Anthony Bruce.

The Tri-City Area has closed out the regular football season and is going into the Mini Bowl tomorrow with two teams tied for first place and three others in first place. The Panthers shared first place with the Main Post Seahawks in the Grasshopper Division. Taking first place in the Termite Division was the Tri-City Steelers. First in the Pee Wee Division is the TC Panthers and in the Midget Division, the TC Panthers. The championship of the Grasshopper Division will be decided tomorrow when the Panthers and Seahawks meet in the Mini Bowl at Doughboy Stadium.

The BAYONET would like to make a correction on a YA Football score printed in last week's paper. The scores were reversed - the Cowboys defeated the Cardinals, 12-0.

Charity ball?

By Tim Boivin

It's been disclosed that the Philadelphia Phillies will get $34,693.18 per player for winning the World Series. One player, Pete Rose, did what I feel should be done with the money in the first place. He donated his share to charity.

The Royals got $32,211.95 a piece for losing the Series. Just think what could be done if all the money was donated to charity.

Suppose they donated it to one of those good causes that feed starving children milk. $34,693.18 times 25 is $867,329.50. That would buy 17,346,590 undernourished children their daily recommended requirement of milk at a nickel a piece. With the Royal's money added(that was just the Phillies), make that 33,452,565 undernourished children fulfilling a basic nutritional need to survive.

Lest we forget, what about the other sports like basketball, soccer, football and hockey. Using the Phillies and Royals purse as a basic guide, 167,261,825 children could be given that milk. That ain't no steak and potatos but it is a staggering amount.

Fort Benning soldiers just got through donating to a particular charity and realized more than 100 percent of their goal. Many of these soldiers compete in sports because they love to, something that is sorely missing in today's pro sport's world.

Many pros make over $100,000 dollars a year, and that is fast becoming the norm, not the exception. Pro sports is a business now, not fun-loving competition like it used to be. The question often arises, what happened to our heroes? They went into business.

Many teams give their players rings when they win the championship. It is valuable, both in price and sentiment. That should be enough without tagging on $34,693.18 or $32,211.95 for playing in the Series.

My OIC just made a good point while I was writing this. He said I was being too harsh on the pros, that many do work in the ghettos and such. I aknowledge that and appreciate it. But for the others, the next time a pro athlete into the bookoo bucks sees a poster of a frail, undernourished child in some faroff land, maybe he'll realize just how lucky he is and, like Pete Rose, do something about it.

Alabama State last opponent for Doughboys

Fort Benning's Doughboys will play their last game of the season Sunday at 2 p.m. against Alabama State University's Junior Varsity in Doughboy Stadium.

According to Head Coach Ralph Santaliz, the Doughboys want this game "real bad" to come out with a season record of 5-5.

"The team is ready and wants this game more than the others," he said. "And we need all the support we can get to get us over the hump."

Fans will be seeing a lot of different players in this game because of recent injuries and soldiers leaving the post, according to Santaliz.

"But we've had some good practices and the team is prepared to win," he said.

The coach went on to say that they expect to see a lot of second and third string Varsity players from Alabama since the Varsity doesn't have a game this weekend.

Alabama's JV record is 2-3, according to their coach, George James. He says the team uses a 52 defense, and a split backfield, strengthening them to four-deep secondary coverage.

James also said they run a Veer offense, mixed with passing.

Key players to look for are quarterback Eddie Shy (number 12), right halfback James Smith (number 21), wingbacks Charles White and Michael Bush (numbers 5 and 83).

New court

Subcontractor Richard Hardwick (kneeling) and fellow worker Charlie Mahone prepare to lay the last stretch of boards on the Audie Murphy Gym basketball court. The new hardwood floor is expected to be complete at the end of this month. New floors will also be put in the weight room, racquetball, handball and squash courts.

Knockout smoker

Benning's boxers romp at Augusta fights

Fort Benning's boxing team traveled to Augusta, Ga. last weekend and came home with eight wins out of the 13 bouts they fought.

Benning was up against teams from all around Georgia, including Summerville, Hilda, Greenville, and Augusta, and displayed some of their best boxing ever, according to boxing coach Anthony Stoddard.

The victories included a knockout by Greg Staten, who is known for his "knockout" fights, and technical knockouts by Daren Turman and Augusta Miranda.

Benning's Carlos Young was knocked down twice but bounced back both times to come out with a win. Other winners were Roderick Williams, Troy Stringer, Darl Miller and Allan Richmond. Willie Gonzales snapped a four fight winning streak when he lost his match.

"We need to fight against stiffer competition if there's any hope of coming out ahead in the FORSCOM tournament in January," said Stoddard.

Benning will continue to get ready for the tournament as they travel to Warner Robins Air Force Base Saturday to trade punches with their boxing team. They will then meet with boxers from Fort Bragg when they take another road trip to North Carolina on Nov. 28.

Benning will fight here again Dec. 13 when they put on another "big smoker" against boxers from Fort Gordon and the Marines from Albany.

Specials top programs

By Bill Powell

Some new programs and season specials will be coming soon to WFBG-T to brighten the season. Following are the highlights of next week's programming:

*"Army Total Force Story" examines and explains the Army's total force concept. This concept would use the same cost and maintenance guidelines while increasing the effective strength of the Army from 13 to 24 divisions.

*"The Zombie" tells the story of a young adult who, after making a few mistakes, turns to a negative, unambitious existence resembling a zombie.

*"Take Ten-Saving Gas" gives tips to improve your gas mileage and explains reasons why the gas mileage of your car might not be what it could.

*"Big Picture-A Nation Sings" brings you a musical return to the Civil War years featuring the Army Band and Chorus.

*"Spectrum" brings you four hours of the latest music available from TRADOC's Public Affairs Office and the Army Information Radio Service.

We Give Thanks...

for harvests, harbors, hearths, and health. For Shakespeare, schools, blue jeans that fade, and dreams that don't. For hope, progress, proms, promotions and Proust. For elections, debates, rebates, Edison, and "They lived happily ever after."

Despite the sea of Middle East troubles, and economic problems at home, we are thankful for homes, homecomings, children, friends, families, Old Glory waving in the breeze, bands, marching feet in a parade and the sound of the Star Spangled Banner being sung.

For turkey, pumpkin pie, anticipation of Christmas, a roaring fire, an afternoon nap, a country that's beautiful.

Most of all we are grateful for the opportunity to serve America, land of the free, home of the brave.

'A joint in the ear won't hurt'

Attitudes toward marijuana in this country have spun around like a drunk in a cyclone.

Forty years ago, few people had heard of the stuff, and many who had, thought it was the total mind blower.

THE 1937 ARTICLE in American Magazine could have been describing somebody freaked out on yet-to-be invented LSD.

"In Los Angeles, Calif., a youth was walking along a downtown street after inhaling a marijuana cigarette." For many addicts, merely a portion of a 'reefer' is enough to induce intoxication. Suddenly, for no reason, he decided that someone had threatened to kill him and that his life at that very moment was in danger. "Wildly he looked about him. The only person in sight was an aged bootblack. Drug-crazed nerve centers conjured the innocent old shoe-shiner into a destroying monster.

"Mad with fright, the addict hurried to his room and got a gun. He killed the old man . . . 'I thought someone was after me,' he said . . . 'Something just told me to kill him.' That's marijuana!"

FROM THIS WILDEYED view of pot, which put it in the same league with dangerous narcotics like opium, heroin and cocaine, opinion swung to more tolerant outlooks. Marijuana became the good green grass of home and party.

Teenagers said it was like beer, only faster. Adults said that maybe, like cigarettes, it could damage lungs, brain or heart in the long-run, but what the hell, worry about that later.

Some agreed it was probably harmful, but it was the only way a fellow could cope with a world of drill sergeants, Vietnam, hardnosed bosses and boring jobs.

Even some doctors said they had studied the stuff, and decided the health dangers were too far out or fuzzy to classify. Maybe it dulled the brain, caused chromosome damage, male sex hormone loss, lung cancer, but they couldn't prove it.

THEIR DOUBLE-TALK declarations, widely publicized on TV and in the newspapers, made it easy to ignore what any kid could tell them. When you're high, you're high, no matter what from. And if you're stoned and driving a car, you don't see straight, judge distance or speed well, and sometimes you hit things. Like bridges and divider walls and other cars and people.

And sometimes then you're dead, the same as if you hit the bridge because you were drunk on booze.

They could also tell the professors that the reason you use the stuff is to cop out from trouble, boredom and the rest of the real world, get high and let it all fly by. You get passive. You don't mind work and the sergeants and the bosses and the teachers — the hell with 'em. Let somebody else do it. You don't care. Besides it feels good, and of course, it's easy to get.

THE TROUBLE IS, even if you don't smash yoursef against a telephone pole, you've become some sort of human zero. You don't learn much in school. You don't work hard at your job, and responsibility is a big word with little meaning. You're too busy to worry if the baby has the right food, because you're slave to a habit, and need the 50 bucks for this month's pot.

The good news is, a lot of young people are starting to smarten up. They've figured out that the potheads are life's dwarfs. And they're telling the 'experts,' who aren't sure whether marijuana is bad for you or not, to stick it in their ear.

They know what some experts apparently don't, that that's one of the ways a joint won't hurt you much.

Happy Thanksgiving!

Turkey eaten after swallowing pride

By Tom T. Turkey
Special guest commentator

"Some turkeys are born to greatness, some achieve greatness and others have greatness thrust upon them."

That was written by my great-great-great, etc. grandbird, William Shakesfeather. He wrote it with his own quill dipped in cranberry sauce.

Before...

...and after

You see, my famous ancestor was proud to be the first turkey cooked at the Pilgrim's first Thanksgiving. In fact, grandbird's bronzed wishbone is displayed in Washington, D.C.

Being roasted with my belly stuffed with giblets is not greatness, it's suicide. I wasn't hatched just to share a dinner plate with corn-on-the-cob and buttered biscuits. My brother turkeys may want to prance around, fluffing up their feathers, trying to prove they're King Shakesfeather....but noooooo, not me! I don't believe that old American bunk that turkeys are the traditional meal.

Will Americans 'round the world eat bald eagle on November 27? Not the national bird! Benjamin Franklin wanted us turkeys to be the national bird and that's good enough for me.

None of my feathered friends should be meals. Turkeys have pride. My goal in life is to convince you to eat steak, fish, grilled cheese sandwiches or anything but ME!

Please, I've got a wife and three eggs! I have a second mortgage in a two-room nest. Stay away from me with that knife! Here are some coupons for McDonalds.

I'm not well, my veterinarian says I've got swine flu. Leave me alone! I'm too young to fry! Say, I know a cat who didn't pay his income tax, here's his address. You won't give up, will ya? You've got a yen for my hen or any turkey. Oh well, if I can't lick you, I'll join you. Here's my resignation. Be gentle. Gobble, gobble. Happy Thanksgiving.

Funding affected by aid

If you're nearing 65 you need to consider how Medicare will affect your CHAMPUS benefits.

CHAMPUS eligibility ends when any beneficiary other than the spouse or child of an active duty servicemember becomes eligible for Medicare at 65 or becomes entitled before their 65th birthday so Medicare will take effect when CHAMPUS benefits end.

Medicare has two parts; Part A, Hospital Insurance, and Part B, Medical Insurance. Part A is usually a benefit of Social Security; Part B must be applied for, is voluntary and requires premium payments. Many Medicare benefits fall under Part B rather than Part A.

However, whether or not you opt to take Part B, once you become eligible for Part A all CHAMPUS benefits are terminated. Part A is not 100 percent coverage. The first $180 of each hospitalization must be paid by you and the deductible may go up again next year. There are also outpatient deductible charges.

If you're not entitled to Part A of Medicare, you can apply for Part B, pay premiums and still remain eligible for CHAMPUS benefits. CHAMPUS would then treat Part B as a private hospitalization insurance and only help with the costs that Medicare doesn't pay. If you get Medicare before you're 65, you're still covered by CHAMPUS but the Medicare insurance is again treated as private insurance.

If you're not entitled to Medicare at 65, make sure you get a new ID card showing you're still covered by CHAMPUS, not Medicare. If you become eligible for Medicare later, you'll then lose CHAMPUS benefits like others do at 65. If you can't get a new ID card at a military installation, contact Commander/U.S. Army Reserve Components/Personnel and Administration Center/Attn: AGUZ-ED-SO/9700 Page Boulevard/St. Louis, Missouri 63132.

Spouses and eligible children of active duty servicemembers who are entitled to Medicare remain eligible for CHAMPUS but Medicare must pay first. A spouse under 65 and children of a retiree continue to be eligible for all CHAMPUS benefits until they're eligible for Medicare Part A.

The next regular enrollment period for Medicare's supplement insurance will be Jan. 1 through March 31, 1980 and will be held during that period each year. Coverage will begin July 1 of the year enrollment has begun.

The monthly premium for the medical insurance normally increases by 10 percent for each year an individual delays signing up after first becoming eligible for enrollment, about age 65.

Medicare's supplemantal medical insurance can help pay for benefits not under hospital insurance--doctor's service, outpatient physical therapy, speech pathology service and home health care.

The Veteran's Administration(VA) program provides for service-related illnesses or injuries. CHAMPUS will not cover these medical costs. So, retirees must use the VA program for such illnesses and injuries. If CHAMPUS mistakenly pays bills the VA should handle, they will recover that amount.

Alexander to resign

WASHINGTON (ARNEWS)--Secretary of the Army Clifford L. Alexander, Jr., submitted his letter of resignation Monday, effective Jan. 20, 1981. Mr. Alexander was sworn in as the 13th Secretary of the Army on Feb. 14, 1977.

Secretary Alexander said, "Until that time I intend to continue to perform the duties of my office and to continue working on behalf of the people of the total Army to insure they receive the highest level of support in their professional lives and pursuits."

Secretary Alexander has been a major proponent for the all-volunteer Army and has fully supported those programs that enhance professionalism among the Army soldier and civilian force. During his tenure, a number of successes have been achieved including a significant increase in the number of combat units and numerous career enhancement programs, such as pay increases, cost of living and travel entitlement programs, increased opportunities for women in non-traditional roles, and guarantees of equal opportunity and fair treatment to all members of the Army team. He has continuously emphasized the soldiers' needs before Congress and in formulating Army policy.

The Secretary has not yet finalized his plans after January 20th.

Beneficiaries must pay share

CHAMPUS beneficiaries who do not pay their share of the cost of medical care are violating CHAMPUS rules.

A recent survey by the Defense Audit Service found that the practice of waivering a beneficiary cost share is fairly common among some types of providers, particularly providers of mental health services.

Sometimes, the survey found, a provider will agree to participate in CHAMPUS and to write off the beneficiary's share of the cost. But CHAMPUS by-laws require the beneficiary to pay a portion of the cost of medical care. Providers who routinely waive the cost share don't really write off that amount, they raise their fees to all patients to make up the difference.

Some of the things that might happen if CHAMPUS learns that a provider isn't making reasonable efforts to collect the beneficiary's share of the cost or that a provider and beneficiary have an "agreement" not to pay the cost share are:

- The provider's charges might be reduced by the amount of the cost share.
- The provider and beneficiary might have to pay back CHAMPUS payments.
- The provider could lose approval to treat CHAMPUS patients.

While CHAMPUS officials realize that paying a share of the cost of medical care can sometimes be a problem, they counsel that the beneficiary should talk it over with the provider. In most instances, a doctor or a hospital will be understanding and willing to work out a program of payment that the beneficiary can manage.

The Military Departments have been directed to advise beneficiaries that any effort to negotiate a "deal" with a provider to routinely waive payment of beneficiary cost-sharing amounts is also considered to be a fraudulent act.

Drug counseling just one dial of phone away

Editor's note: the following commentary was first printed in the HUACHUCA SCOUT. It was written by an Alcohol and Drug Control Office counselor there but the situation could just as easily have happened here-The Ed.

The counselor's telephone rings in the middle of the night — it's a man 1,500 miles away, who two years before was in the Fort Huachuca drug/alcohol control program and released from the Army as a "failure." In a voice filled with emotion, he says, "I've reached the end of the line, I can't go on, I remembered you and the things you said, will you help me?" The counselor says, "Hold on, just hang on, and someone will contact you, and I will call you back." Within a couple of hours and a phone call or two, someone was at the man's door, to give him the help, the hope, that he was now ready for.

Then, there was the young mother whose self-image was so low, who was overweight, a compulsive eater, who found that speed would curb her appetite. The full realization that she was trapped hit her one day as she was leaving a counseling session. She laid her head against the car door and began sobbing, "I don't want to go home because I know I will either start speeding or eating." But then one day a phone call comes. "I just want you to know that I am O.K. now." She had lost her husband, had been shot in an argument over drugs, but as she said, "It's been over a year now, and I'm finally free of all drugs, and my weight is normal."

Failure? Successes? A counselor (or this counselor) feels a particular kind of pain when saying goodbye to a client who seems not to have found an answer for himself, whether it's an ETS, a PCS, or especially the "Rehab failure." We are told to think of those who make it, and that's what we try to do. The above cases may not have reached a particular "goal" set up for him by himself, the Army, or even sometimes the counselor. But somehow a seed was planted and in time it began to grow. And believe me, it's a happy day at the Drug Center when a counselor comes in and shares a letter or a phone call such as the above.

Then there are those who are "ready" when they get to us whether by self-referral or through other channels. The sergeant who had been thrown out of grammar school for being drunk and who never took another drink after coming into the program.

This man's job performance became outstanding, he was recommended for special schools, and now calls from a post overseas on the anniversary of his sobriety to say, "It's been another year since I've had a drink and life is great."

Some walk in looking tired, older than their years, unable to concentrate, full of apathy, or angry and frustrated, marriage problems, money problems, job problems — feeling ashamed and disgusted with what they're becoming, and not seeing a way out. To see the same person after a few months come in smiling, feeling hope for the first time in a long time. The ones who rush in to tell about the good things that are happening to them. Or the one who has reconciled with his family saying, "I brought my wife and baby down today so you could meet them." The pride and happiness in their eyes and in their voices is evident.

I remember a commander who cared enough about one of his men in the program to come in and say, "He is doing a great job, but he seems to be worried about something. I don't think he feels comfortable enough to talk to me, maybe he will talk to you."

The supervisors and commanders who take a few minutes to look behind the anger, the hostility, the "don't care attitude" and take the time to say, "I care about you as a person" and to send him for help.

It may not even be a drug or alcohol problem, but to those leaders who see a troubled person and take a few minutes to let him know somebody cares, I want to say a sincere thank you. The person concerned may not always know how to say it, but he tells us when he says, "My C.O. (or first sergeant, or supervisor) is an O.K. guy. He cares about his people."

Letters to the Editor

Education benefits?

To the Editor

I have been hearing a great deal of discussion surrounding the Armed Forces plight of not only getting adequately educated enlistees, but keeping the good soldier in the Army. When I enlisted in the service, one of my considerations was the educational benefits provided under the GI Bill. Many of those I trained with, who had at least a high school education, some college, or professional training, also considered this an important factor. Unfortunately, the message being given to many of us by the termination date of GI benefits, Dec. 31, 1989, is get out and use your benefits while you can.

Since this incorporates most individuals who enlisted prior to December 1976, we are essentially dealing with the mid-career soldier who has the 5-10 years of experience the Armed Forces says they so desperately need. It seems to me an attractive bargaining feature for the reenlistment NCO would be to grant the same educational benefits for those reenlisting along with his choice of school, duty station, etc. This would not be a reenlistment option but a matter of course, and entail the permanent re-establishment of the old GI Bill benefits.

I intend to de-activate in 1983, after seven years, and go Enlisted Reserve because this is the only way I could afford to go to school. I am curious as to how many others are getting this same message?

Veterans still eligible for treatment of Post Traumatic Stress Syndrome

WASHINGTON (ARNEWS)--Veterans who develop service-connected medical problems years after leaving the military are still eligible for medical care and compensation, Veterans Administration (VA) officials say. These veteran's claims will now be considered under a new category called "Post Traumatic Stress Syndrome."

The new disability category, VA officials explain, was started to serve former servicemembers who develop emotional problems related to the stress of military service. Recent VA guidelines to doctors and disability rating boards focus on this issue.

In the past, veterans claiming a present medical condition was service-connected would have their claim reviewed under six or more disabilty categories. Officials say a condition which could be considered under the Post Traumatic Stress Syndrome Category may appear months, even years after some life-threatening military experience.

To qualify, a veteran must have a condition identified by a VA doctor, as well as a history of a life-threatening experience such as combat service or being a prisoner of war.

Experiences must agree with the nature and circumstance of a veteran's service and must be considered by a VA medical examiner to be the cause of a stress disorder.

Some stress disorders in veterans include:

- Being hyperactive;
- Having difficulty sleeping;
- Feeling guilty about surviving when other servicemembers did not;
- Having impaired memories;
- Avoiding activities that remind them of traumatic events; and,
- Having greater shock symptoms after being exposed to events that are similar to a traumatic event.

Veterans who want to make a claim for compensation payments should talk to counselors at their local VA office. Help is also available from national service organizations, officials add.

Veterans can get treatment at a VA mental hygiene clinic, a psychatric ward, a day hospital or in alcohol or drug dependence treatment programs.

Sucessful care techniques include rap sessions, group therapy, hypnotic interviews or indvidual psychotherapy. Veterans will be treated with the methods best suited for them, officials say.

Contract marriages pose problems

By Betty Zimmerman and Sharron Calabrisi
BAYONET staffwriters

I thee wed-not for love, but for bread!

"Want to draw an extra $250 a month for quarters and rations?" "How?" "Let's get married. We can move out of the barracks, collect the extra money, get out of G.I. parties, details and still do our own thing." "Sounds good."

All too often, that's all the thought young soldiers put into entering a "contract marriage". Besides the fact such marriages are a fraud, and thus illegal, their conversation should have continued-"What if we get caught or fall in love with someone? What if I want a divorce and you don't?" "What if you run up bills, am I responsible?" "What if I get pregnant?

These are all possibilities that many couples don't explore. But according to Capt. Thomas E. Smith, a Fort Benning legal assistance officer, they should.

Eventually, he hears all the ensuing problems from one or both of the contract marriage participants. He can only advise soldiers and send them to a civilian lawyer, however.

An example of what he hears is: My 'contract' wife is pregnant. It is not mine, but she's threatening to make me support it. "I don't even sleep with her. Then she walked out one day, taking many of my personal belongings. How do I get them back?

A local attorney adds to the list of problems that may occur. Couples married to each other should know that even if they consider their marriage a business arrangement only, they can still be found guilty of adultery, both a criminal and civil offense in Georgia, if they have sex with anyone other than their spouse.

Divorces cost from $150 and up, and depending on what state you are in when you decide to call it quits, you may encounter many unforeseen problems.

Some states have a residency requirement that must be met before filing for a divorce and or waiting period before it's final. Others are "community property" states, which mean your partner can claim half of your assets.

Should one partner be overseas and wish to be difficult, he or she can delay the divorce until their return under the Soldiers and Sailors Relief Act.

In short, as Capt. Smith offered, "Calling a marriage 'contract' doesn't make it any less of a marriage legally, and the problems created may be greater than the ones solved.

Music inspires troops

Band performs on Kelley Hill

By Gil Carlon
BAYONET correspondent
197th Infantry Brigade

The 283rd Army Band recently performed for the soldiers on Kelley Hill.

According to SSgt. Alfred Hunter, 197th Brigade Chemical Section, "I thought the band was very inspirational and boosted morale. Music has always been an art that inspired the best in soldiers." Sgt. Timothy E. Kyzar of the 72nd Engineer Company added, "I enjoyed the band and wish they could do this more often."

The band was first organized in 1916 as the 34th Infantry Band at El Paso, Tex. and was reorganized in 1944 as the 283rd Army Band. CWO 2 John Opreska, Band Master, has 34 members who can perform in different variations such as a marching band, concert band, stage band and combo.

The 283rd Army Band's headquarters is located on Main Post in Bldg. 2836. Anyone interested in playing for the band should contact CWO 2 Opreska at 544-5080.

Commanders aid homebasers

Post commanders in the Continental United States(CONUS) and Hawaii now have more say in homebasing assignment decisions on commissioned and warrant officers.

Since October, under the Army's Homebase Advanced Assigned Program(HAAP), soldiers are informed of their next assignment in CONUS before going on an overseas tour. This affects the ranks E-5 all the way to 0-5 who are stationed in CONUS and Hawaii and get orders to dependent restricted overseas areas.

Post commanders have expressed an interest in being a part of the homebasing decisions on officers, particularly when returning members to the same installation. Because of that interest it was decided to include those commanders in the decision-making process of the program.

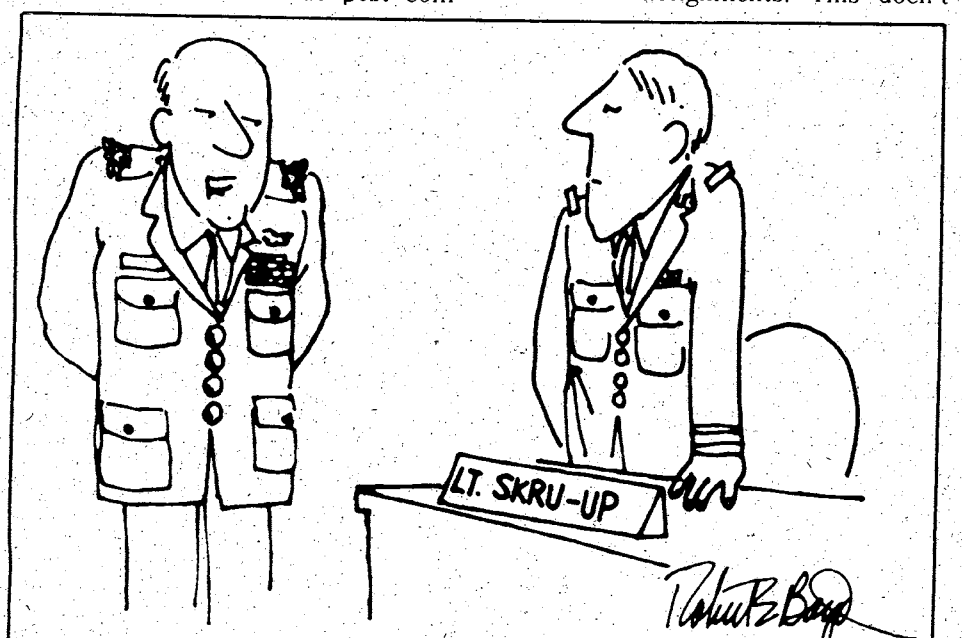
The decision to include post commanders in HAAP for commissioned and warrant officers does not reduce the assignment committment to individual officers. This is because the Military Personnel Center(MILPERCEN) retains final authority in all decisions under HAAP.

To involve post commanders in the decision-making process, the following procedures are being used:

- When alerting an officer for a dependent restricted overseas short tour, the assignment manager will inform the officer of the options available under HAAP.
- If the officer wants to return to his current installation under HAAP, he must apply through the post commander to MILPERCEN. The post commander's comments on DA Form 4187 will be considered in making homebase assignments. This doen't give the commander veto authority on officer HAAP assignments because MILPERCEN will make the final decisions.
- Request for a HAAP assignment must be sent to MILPERCEN and arrive no later than 30 days after the initial alert. If the request is not received within 30 days, an advanced CONUS assignment will be determined by MILPERCEN.

A revised regulation governing commissioned and warrant officer assignment policies(AR 614-100) is being staffed with the above changes included.

The procedures for enlisted homebase assignments have not changed. In indiviual cases where the post commander does not agree with enlisted homebase assignments, the commander may address the action to the MILPERCEN commander for a decision.



"You've given the outfit a bad name."

Sheriff's Target

Most soldiers have heard talks on drug use, drug abuse, and drug offenses, but how many actually listened to what was said and considered the medical and legal consequences?

When the unit commander or drug and alcohol NCO mentions drug use at company formations, you might hear a response from your friends of, "I'll never get caught," or "It's not harmful to my health." You may even say that yourself. The reality is, sadly, that many of those same people are saying, "I don't believe I got busted," while at the MP station, or "I'll never mess with this spices, all made to look like marijuana. The pusher is only looking for easy money — money which they will get whether they sell real drugs or a fake substance. He doesn't care about the effects of what he sells on the user.

Provost Marshal Col. Ward

Either way, the buyer loses. The use, possession, or sale of amphetamines, cocaine, PCP, marijuana, or whatever one chooses to call the stuff (dope, grass, uppers, angel dust, black beauties, etc.) is in violation of the Uniform Code of Military Justice. The outcome of apprehension could be anything from an Article 15 to a court-martial conviction resulting in confinement at hard labor for up to five years and a dishonorable discharge. A court-martial sentence is a federal conviction which will stay with an individual for the rest of their life.

Illegal involvement with drugs or controlled substances like marijuana will eventually catch up to the user/abuser. The drug suppression effort here is a 24-hour operation, and all can be part of it. Your contribution in assisting this effort can be made by calling the Turn-in-a-Pusher line (545-5237) or the military police station at 545-5222.

Courts Martial results

Pvt. 2 Billy Stanford, Company C, 3rd Battalion, 7th Infantry, was tried on November 19 and found guilty of one count of sodomy, one count of possession of marijuana and one count of escaping from confinement. He was sentenced to confinement at hard labor for 120 days, forfeiture of $334 a month for four months and a Bad Conduct Discharge.

Pvt. 1 Donald W. Anderson, Company D, 1st Battalion, 1st Infantry Training Brigade, was tried on November 20 and found guilty of one count of larceny (he stole $29) and one count of destruction of private property. He was sentenced to confinement at hard labor for six months, forfeiture of $334 a month for six months and a Bad Conduct Discharge.

Pvt. 2 Johnny C. Rhodes, Company C, 1st Battalion, 58th Infantry, 197th Infantry Brigade, was tried on Oct. 19 and found guilty of one count of failure to repair, one count of disrespect to an officer, one count of breaking restriction and one count of assault on a NCO. He was sentenced to confinement at hard labor for six months, reduction to E-1 and forfeiture of $250 a month for six months.

Hite Bowl memorializes Airborne soldier

By Betty Zimmerman
BAYONET staff writer

Located about 200 yards from the northwest corner of Fryar Drop Zone in the Alabama portion of post is a 38-year-old amphitheater named the Hite Bowl.

It was reportedly used as a troop entertainment center during WWII and later for some Basic Airborne Course graduations. Boy Scouts have had camporees there and occasionally Easter Sunrise Services were also held there.

The bowl was neglected and periodically allowed to deteriorate through the years. The last time it was renovated by the Airborne Department was in 1978 when it was used for a graduation that also honored the Original Airborne Test Platoon that had congregated here for their first reunion.

Although built in 1942, it didn't receive its name until late 1943. The honoree was Lt. Col. James C. Hite who was the commander of the 1st Battalion, 515th Parachute Infantry. The 29-year-old University of Washington graduate died in a parachute mishap while giving a demonstration for an airborne class on Sept. 7, 1943. It was his 29th jump.

A monument, located about 50 yards from the amphitheater, supposedly marks the spot where Hite hit the ground following his chute's malfunction.

Rumors circulated at the time and persisted through the years that Hite was testing a wet parachute. But according to Maj. Gen. Melvin Jais who was stationed here at the time, this was not true. The investigation determined that for unknown reasons Hite's main and reserve parachutes failed to open.

Hite had served with the original 501st Battalion, the 502nd Battalion that later became a regiment, and the 515th Parachute Infantry. He entered the service at Seattle, Wash. where he was an area director for the National Youth Administration.

Authority increases vets' aid

Improvements in the way the Veterans Administration helps disabled veterans are the "most important since the program was established in 1943", according to Max Cleland, Administrator of Veterans Affairs.

Cleland was referring to recent legislation which gave his agency broad new authority to improve vocational rehabilitation for disabled veterans. The law also increased GI Bill education allowances.

The Congressional action, approved by the President on Oct. 17 permits VA to go beyond its traditional role of preparing disabled veterans for the job market to helping place them in jobs suited to their individual disabilities.

For those veterans disabled so severely that employment is unfeasible, VA can now provide "independent living" counseling and support. A pilot program to be launced next fiscal year will offer special help for up to 500 severely disabled veterans per year with the goal of helping them live in the community with a reduced level of help from others or independently.

The mandate also strengthened the Labor Department's Disabled Veteran Outreach Program designed to help veterans to find work. A nationwide network of veterans to find work who are specialists in employment counseling, now working at state and local employment offices, will be expanded to 2,000 and 25 percent of the new specialists in each state will be located at VA facilities.

Other program modifications made possible by the "Veterans Rehabilitation and Education Amendments of 1980" include:

- Veterans eligible for both vocational rehabilitation and the GI Bill may now receive the higher payments of the GI Bill while at the same time receiving many of the services of the vocational rehabilitation program.
- Monthly allowances were increased by 17 percent.
- The basic eligibility period was increased from nine to 12 years afters the veteran leaves service. During the period the veteran normally receives 48 months of payments and services, but extensions are permitted in both categories for veterans with serious employment handicaps.
- Veterans training in federal agencies may now receive the higher institutional training allowance rather than on-the-job rate.
- Individual written rehabilitation plans leading to jobs or independent living must be developed for each veteran by VA. The veteran may appeal if he does not agree with VA's plan for him.
- With certain exceptions, incarcerated veterans may receive training allowances
- VA may now pay room and board in lieu of subsistence allowance for a veteran pursuing rehabilitation at a special facility.
- Employers may be reimbursed by VA for certain necessary added cost in developing on-the-job training programs for disabled veterans.
- VA may now conduct research and special projects related to rehabilitation, develop on-going professional training for counseling and rehabilitation personnel, and recruit an advisory committee of service connected veterans and personnel distinguished in the general and special fields of rehabilitation.

Some 26,000 handicapped veterans are currently receiving VA vocational rehabilitation services. More than 839,000 have trained in the program. In fiscal year 1980, VA expenditures in vocational rehabilitation exceeded $90 million.

Guidelines on these programs for VA field offices are being developed at VA Central Office in Washington.

Travel cheaters get punished

By Tim Boivin
BAYONET Staff writer

A welcome relief for many soldiers and civilians in their day to day duties is when they are going on TDY. What many people on TDY orders don't realize is if they falsify their reimbursement vouchers they can face a $10,000 fine and/or five-years imprisonment.

SSgt. Donald Smallwood, NCOIC of the Travel Section of Finance in Bldg. 85, said, "People sign the back of their voucher right under the line stating the penalties for falsifying their vouchers. Even then we get people falsifying their vouchers."

Sharon Robbins, a voucher examiner in Bldg. 85, said, "It isn't just one stereotype that falsifies their vouchers. It runs the gamut throughout the ranks and including civilians."

Robbins further explained, "It gives you a cynical view of all types of people when you review these vouchers and see people cheating. It makes you untrusting of everybody and that's wrong because there are a lot of honest people here. It's just that the dishonest outweigh what the honest people do."

What are some of the pitfalls that get people in trouble for falsifying their orders? Smallwood answered, "People have to settle their vouchers with us within 15 days of the termination date of their TDY orders. If they don't, we send a disposition form to them requesting they come in and settle."

If the people still don't settle, Smallwood said, "We have the advance amount taken out of their paychecks. This will not be a pro-rated collection but a lump sum collection."

Receipts needed

Receipts should be kept of all expenses and be itemized daily to insure prompt service upon returning to Fort Benning. Smallwood added, "They should also keep track of their housing expenses and we run into some problems there also. People will come in and say they stayed with relatives or friends and bring a receipt saying they payed $100 for lodging. We can't honor those receipts. They must be hotel or motel lodgings."

Smallwood went on to say, "We've also had people who doubled or tripled up in rooms all claim they payed the full amount for the room. Then there's the people who bring their spouses with them and try to charge it on their voucher. It isn't too hard to check things like that."

Travel varies

When getting transportation needs fulfilled for TDY people also have to watch their step. Smallwood elaborated, "Anybody going on TDY needs to take their transportation request(TR) to either the airline or bus ticket office and keep a record of it. The TDY orders are used to substantiate the TR. We get people who will use a TR and then swear up and down they paid for the ticket."

Smallwood further elaborated by saying, "They are only authorized one day for travel. When traveling by privately owned vehicle(POV) to some of the advanced Army schools in the United States, they are still only authorized one day for travel. Any extra time that is needed for travelling by POV must be accompanied by a DA 31 form or something in the remarks section of the TDY orders stating that a pass has been given for the extra time. Usually it's leave but there are times when a pass has been authorized."

Inflating taxicab fares is another well-used but ill-advised method used by personnel on TDY orders. Robbins gave one example, saying, "We had one person who lived just a few blocks from Columbus Airport claim an eight dollar taxicab fare. That's a little farfetched to imagine."

People returning from TDY also have bad habits of sending TDY vouchers in shotgun envelopes that aren't readable or don't have the right type of forms for the type of TDY they went on. If they had advanced funding, they need four copies of their TDY funding form and three copies of their TDY voucher with the receipts."

Smallwood went on to add, "If someone goes on TDY and there is not any government quarters or meals available we need two copies of a statement of nonavailability of government quarters or meals. That will be issued to them at their TDY destination. Also, for TDY trips to foreign countries we need the present conversion rate for that particular country or countries."

TDY advances are limited to 30 days unless the company commander or the order-issuing authority approves up to 60 days. Smallwood and Sharon agreed on one topic, the way people alter their orders.

Robbins said, "We get people typing things into the remarks column that will get them extra money. They use typewriters that have different type than what's on the orders."

Smallwood added, "On most of these things all we have to do is call someone to doublecheck figures, receipts or number of persons in a room. If it looks like there is a discrepancy in the orders we just call the Adjutant General's office."

TDY can be a welcome relief from the usual day to day operations. However, if you do get caught cheating on the funds you may be in for a long vacation chopping rocks and a lighter wallet.

Non-alcoholic drinks provide safer trips

By Lisa Lyonbird
THE RANGER, Fort Lewis, Wash.

When hosting a cocktail party this holiday season, offer more than just liquor to your guests. It is important for a host or hostess to make sure that all of the guests are comfortable; offering an array of beverages supporting the guests who drink moderately and those who abstain.

Providing non-alcoholic beverages allows moderated drinkers to alternate the alcoholic with the non-alcoholic drinks, keeping their intake at a moderate level. These drinks can be mixed at a bar allowing those who abstain from drinking to feel less conspicuous and to take part in social drinking without alcohol.

With cocktails, serve foods with low-calorie, high-moisture content. Raw vegetables and light dips are ideal as they will slow the rate of alcohol absorption into the bloodstream. On the other end of the scale are salty foods which act as a stimulant to thirst and should not be served.

Carbonation will speed alcohol absorption and should also be avoided. Don't double up on drinks. Some people count drinks and by doubling up, they'll be drinking more than they can handle.

The body can only absorb one alcoholic drink per hour. Alternating the alcoholic drinks with the non-alcoholic drinks would lengthen the time between liquor drinks, giving one drink time to take effect before drinking another.

Overindulgence should be discouraged. As the host or hostess you are responsible for all the guests' safety, to include the trip home. Only time can sober up someone who has drank too much, taking about an hour for every drink. A cold shower will not speed up the process nor will black coffee.

Towards the end of the party put away the alcoholic drinks allowing the guests enough time to sober up for the trip home. This time is ideal for bringing on the non-alcoholic beverages.

These drinks are made as punches or mixed individually at the bar in the same manner as alcoholic drinks. If no bar is present or greater quantities of the non-alcoholic mixed drinks are desired, recipes can be made larger and served in punch bowls.

References to common terms used in mixing alcoholic drinks will be used in our non-alcoholic beverages. A jigger is a standard measure used in the making of mixed drinks. It measures one and one-half ounces of liquid, more or less, depending on the size of the drink and personal preference.

Child's game turns to tragedy

"Beat the door" may be a fatal game for those children playing it.

The game is simple. Raise an automatic garage door open, then while one child operates the closing mechanism, another child tries to "beat the door" before it closes.

In the first half of 1980, there were four confirmed deaths due to children being pinned against the ground by an automatic garage door. The U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission's survey of such accidents confirmed reports of 14 fatalities between 1970 and 1978.

From the survey, the Commission determined that children nine years of age and under are most often involved in automatic garage door injuries and deaths. A two-year-old youth in Wisconsin is believed to have used a broom handle to trigger the door mechanism into closing.

Aside from prohibiting all "beat the door" games, parents should warn children of the risks of intentionally or accidentally activating automatic doors.

Another step that can be taken with garage door openers that have an automatic reverse mechanism which stops and reverses the door upon impact with an object is to adjust the mechanism for sensitivity. The owner's manual should have instructions on how to do this. If not, consult with the manufacturer.

The easiest step to take, the Commission reported, is to relocate the operating switches. Place the box at adult eye level, preferably in a deep enclosure which will prohibit the switch from being operated by a stick or similar object.

If the garage door mechanism is operated by radio controls, these controls should be locked in the car, not left on the seat or dashboard.

Hanukkah celebrates equality

The Jewish festival of Hanukkah commemorates a historical event in the search for religious equality. Also called the Feast of Lights of the Feast of the Maccabees, this year it begins at sundown Tuesday and lasts until Dec. 10.

Hanukkah commemorates the rededication of the second Temple of Jerusalem in 165 B.C. following its desecration three years earlier by the army of the Syrian king, Antiochus IV Epiphenes. The Maccabees defeated the Syrian king's attempt to suppress the Jewish faith.

The Menorah, an eight-branch candelabrum, plays an important role in the celebration of Hanukkah. Every evening for eight days, the candles are lighted to commemorate the victory of the Maccabees and to recall the miracle that occurred in the Temple.

According to tradition, the light in the Temple was required to burn continuously. Antiochus' army destroyed many of the sacred vessels in the Temple and pillaged the holy oil. With oil sufficient to last only one day the Temple light burned for eight days until reinforcements and replacements arrived.

In keeping with the festive spirit of Hanukkah, small gifts are exchanged among children and family members each night when the candles are lit.

The word Hanukkah means dedication. During the holidays Jews rededicate themselves to the ideals of religous freedom and recall the courage and self-determination of the Maccabees. The light of the Menorah challenges Jews never to allow darkness to reign, or defeat and humiliation to prevail. It is a reminder to keep the light of faith and the glow of human dignity always burning.

How About That?

William W. Erbach, Sr.
Chaplain 36th Engineer Group(Combat)

Have you ever heard someone say, "I don't want that thing, it's a white elephant?" I heard a story about how the term came to be.

In far off India, Ali and his father, Japhur, hunted elephants. One day they caught one in their trap. Ali exclaimed, "A white elephant-he looks very special." They fed the elephant, treated it kindly and led it home. News of the white elephant spread and before long many people were coming around to see this strange beast. But once the newness wore off people stopped coming around.

Japhur said, "The elephant must work!" So he took it to the forest where he planned for it to carry timbers with its strong trunk. But immediately a large crowd gathered. "White elephants never work; it's bad luck!" Japhur tried to sell the elephant, but nobody wanted an elephant that couldn't work.

"I have a idea", Ali smiled. "Each year we take the maharaja a gift; this year let's make his gift the elephant." "Good idea", said his father, "only a maharaja can afford a white elephant. Working people need working elephants."

So they went to the palace and the maharaja welcomed the gift. Ali and Japhur hurried home, laughing all the way. They had gotten rid of burden. As time went on they made jokes, and they called any useless item a white elephant. How About That?

How would you like to have a white elephant? In today's language, a white elephant can be anything that is useless, and this can include people. Do you know any people who are white elephants? People who have never worked? People who do not do their share of the work? People who belong to a group but do not shoulder their share of responsibility? We all need to examine our lives and make sure that we are not white elephants at home, at work, or in any club that we belong to.

Gas quiz holds surprises

With gasoline prices soaring ever higher, it may be time to stop driving for a few minutes and see just how much you know about gas mileage.

The test below should not take more than a minute to mark your answers. It may take a few minutes to read the answers since some are shockers. Grab a pencil, get comfortable and start marking.

1. When does your car get its worst mileage?

a. After many hours on the highway.
b. Climbing hills.
c. After you've driven 10 miles.
d. After you've taken a long trip.

2. When should you check your tire pressure?

a. When your tires are cold.
b. At each fill up.
c. After you've driven 10 miles.
d. After you've taken a long trip

3. How much energy loss is caused by one fouled spark plug?

a. No appreciable loss.
b. Three-five percent.
c. Seven-10 percent.
d. 25 percent loss

4. To save gas, when leaving a stop sign you should:

a. Accelerate as fast as the car will go.
b. Accelerate very slowly.
c. Get to cruising speed as soon as safely possible.
d. Motion speedier motorists to pass.

5. You'll increase fuel efficiency 20 percent by:

a. Slowing from 55 miles per hour to 50.
b. Slowing from 70 miles per hour to 55.
c. Driving normally at 20 miles per hour.
d. Coasting down inclines.

6. How much gasoline does the average American driver use per year?

a. 200 gallons.
b. 1,500 gallons.
c. 800 gallons.
d. 2,000 gallons

7. Which of the following costs you gas mileage?

a. Permanent roof racks.
b. Underinflated tires.
c. Accelerating slowly and gradually.
d. All of the above.

Answers

1. D---You get your absolute worst mileage in a car with a cold engine, so much so, in fact, that you may get only two or three miles from a gallon of gasoline. Studies show that Americans accumulate 15 percent of their total mileage on trips of five miles or less, but these trips use a full 30 percent of the nation's gasoline.

2. A---Check tire pressure in the morning or when you haven't been driving the car for several hours. Do this weekly. You can lose five percent of your gas mileage if the total of underinflation on four tires is only 10 pounds.

3. C---One plug in a V-8 engine misfiring only half the time at 55 miles per hour reduces your gas mileage by seven percent. Two plugs misfiring could cut your mileage by at least 20 percent.

4. C---Tests show that your car runs less efficiently in its accceleration mode than when you're cruising. So one gas-saving strategy is to get through acceleration as soon as you can, rather than speeding up slowly and gradually.

5. B---The most efficient cruising speed varies from car to car but it's usually between 40 and 45 miles per hour. But in any car, you can save as much as 20 percent by slowing down from 70 miles per hour to 55 and you won't get traffic tickets if you're doing the legal limit.

6. C---Studies show that the average American motorist uses 800 gallons of gasoline per year. Imagine how much you could save if you used only five gallons less a week!

7. D---All of the above is the correct answer. Permanent roof racks cause aerodynamic drag which makes the engine work harder. Underinflated tires and long, drawn-out accelerations are gas guzzlers.

Alcohol, drug abuse defined

By Tom Sabel
BAYONET Staff writer

Alcohol abuse has been around since before Noah; and while drug abuse is a late comer to western civilization, its affects are equally as harmful.

The problem exists here, as in any other part of the country. While the problem of drug and alcohol abuse was once looked upon as an evil, current thinking has redefined the abuse as an illness which can be cured.

The BAYONET recently talked with members of Fort Benning's Alcohol and Drug Control Office. We spoke with 2nd Lt. Stanely Randall, the administration officer, Capt. Rodger Smith, officer in charge and Mrs. Anne Anthony, one of the Benning House's counselors.

BAYONET: Between alcohol and drug abuse, which is higher here?

Randall: Basically at Benning we have more alcohol abuse than drug abuse. You can get alcohol more readily than you can get drugs.

Anthony: Yes, there has been an increase in alcohol abuse.

Randall: I don't know if its due to the economy with fewer jobs and more people coming into the military and being able to buy alcohol, where in the civilian world they wouldn't be able to purchase it.

BAYONET: I'm almost hearing you say that it is the younger soldier who has the problem?

Anthony: We are seeing an increase in the younger soldiers.

BAYONET: Statistically, which age group has a higher level of alcohol abuse? Has it been broken down by rank and age group?

Randall: It really hasn't been broken down. It is hard to say because you might have many people covering up for friends.

An emptied mug can have fatal side effects for drivers.

BAYONET: People who have been in the Army for awhile usually have friends who will cover up for them and are not as likely to surface with a problem as the young soldier who develops a problem and has no one to cover up for him.

Randall: That's right.

Anthony: Actually, we are talking about alcohol abuse as opposed to alcohol addiction.

BAYONET: What's the difference?

Randall: Well, I would say the abuser would be, ah, what would be a nice word to describe it, say you are at a party and you happen to be drinking and while driving back you get a ticket that's a good example of an abuser. An abuser is someone who is drinking on duty, and who cannot perform his job up to his former standards. An addict is someone who in order to feel normal has to have a drink. They start the morning with a drink just to get going.

BAYONET: What do you look for in an abuser, what specifically shows up in someone either addicted to or abusing alcohol?

Randall: We look for performance on the job.

BAYONET: Would this be a change in job performance?

Randall: Right. If he is on alcohol there is no way that he can perform his job up to standards.

Anthony: This would show up in different ways like he would be quicker to lose his temper, have a shorter fuse. He would start showing up late, just a minute or two and maybe even longer.

BAYONET: And these would be accumulative...

Anthony: Right. We look at an overall picture of the indvidual during the initial interview. The Army breaks it down to three categories along the lines of the American Medical Association. These categories are 30-30, 30-31 and 30-32. The 30-30 is the drinker who doesn't drink all the time. The 30-31 case is the one who is a excessive drinker, the one who goes on periodic binges. The 30-32 case is the heaviest drinker, who is habitually drinking and is addicted both psychollogically and physically.

BAYONET: What is the difference between the psychological and the physical addiction. Does the psychologically addicted feel the need for a drink but wouldn't go through withdrawl if he stopped and the physically addicted alcoholic has to have a drink.

Anthony: Right. But that's dependent on how much he drank. He could go through withdrawls if the amount was large enough. Physical dependency is the last stage. During the psychological dependence he could be drinking every day and when he stops he could go through some kind of withdrawl. It might be a mild to extreme form of DT's.

BAYONET: Exactly what are DT's?

Anthony: They are the symptoms of withdrawl and they can be anything from sweating and stomach cramps to hallucinations, vomiting, nauseau and headaches. There could be internal bleeding.

Also, depending on what study is read, there is a 10 to 25 percent mortality rate if the person isn't under medical care. The hallucination can be audio, visual or both.

BAYONET: Ten to 25 percent mortality rate?

Anthony: If they are not under medical treatment. A lot of people aren't aware there is a mortality rate. It's pretty scary.

BAYONET: So supposing a heavy drinker, a 30-32, would come in; would you then refer them to Martin Army Community Hospital?

Anthony: Quite often. Again it depends on the individual, it would depend on their physical condition as to whether he will be referred to the hospital. Everyone coming into the program has to be medically checked. His general condition is also taken into account; he might be suffering from malnutrition.

l as illness

Usually the DT's start 12 to 48-hours after the last rink. It occurs as the alcohol is leaving the system. owever, I know of one individual whose DT's egan five hours after his last drink. He was in our ffice and went into alcoholic convulsions and we ere fortunate enough to get him to the hospital on me.

AYONET: An alcoholic convulsion?

nthony: Right. They are similiar to an epilectic eizure. This is because of the alcohol leaving the han's system.

AYONET: What about dependent wives? I have eard of some dependent wives who, after their ormal chores sit around and drink. Is that rue? Does it happen, is it reported?

andall: For dependents the program is voluntary. f they call up and say I have a problem and I need o talk to someone about my problem, they can ome into the program. But it is strictly on a oluntary basis for dependents and civilian employ-es.

AYONET: But not so for military personnel.

andall: If the commander has decided that the ndvidual is nowan abuser of alcohol or drugs he's hen placed in the program. The indvidual has no ay so at all.

AYONET: Wouldn't there be a some problems hen if the person is ordered here and is thinking hat he does not have a problem. Wouldn't he then ot react to any treatment or counseling?

andall: We always run into that problem. One of he symptoms of the alcohol and drug abusers is heir saying, "I don't have a problem." It is enial because he is ashamed of his problem. He nows he is having a problem with it. It may be roblems at home, with his wife, but the outside orld doesn't know about it. He might say to mself, "Sure I drink now and then." But he is not elling the reason he has this problem.

nthony: Various studies have shown that even hough the person denies his problem that through oluntary or involuntary participation the impor-nt thing is exposure. The outcome, statistically, nows the success rate to be pretty much the same. 's suprisingly very close. Getting them exposed to rehabilitation program is the main thing, regard-ss of how they goth there.

AYONET: What is the success rate here?

andall: Around 86 percent.

nith: Yes, 86 percent as opposed to TRADOC's 75 76 percent.

AYONET: What do you attribute your high ccess rate to?

andall: Great workers like Mrs. Anthony. Our ounselors have been in the business for a good long hile and they're professionals at it.

nthony: We have a really good mixture of ounselor's here. We used to have a perfect mixture ith two former drug abusers but they have ft. But we have alcoholics on the staff who have een dry from ten to 20 years.

AYONET: When you say dry,...

nthony: They'll be alcoholics the rest of their lives. ut they are dry non-drinking alcoholics.

AYONET: Is that a goal to work for?

nthony: Total abstinence?

AYONET: Right.

nthony: It depends on the individual. Our two staff embers are the kind who would never think of ying to take a drink. But that doesn't apply to veryone. We strive for total abstience for a given ngth of time. Then we try to get them involved in ternatives to drinking.

AYONET: Do you handle the younger clients fferently than the older?

nthony: Again, it's an individual thing. The aver-e age of our clients is around the middle 20s.

Work increases as alcohol abuse decreases.

There are a few 17 and 18-year-olds, and a few 38 and 39-year-olds.

BAYONET: Most of them around 25-26-years-old...

Anthony: I would say around in that area. But back to the earlier question of what to do. There is a world of things for them to do other than going to a party and drinking. Our whole culture encourages drinking.

BAYONET: If we can leave alcoholism for a while and go on to a topic which always raises a few eyebrows and that's drug abuse. Specifically, of the illegal drugs available, is marijuana still the major one used?

Anthony: Right.

BAYONET: How easy is it to get in this area?

Randall: You can get it without any problem at all.

Anthony: Frankly, I think it is a lot of easier than alcohol to get. You aren't going to go into any company that I'm aware of and not be able to find some. At any street corner you can pratically get it. Even at my age I've been offered marijuana and I'm supposed to be over the hill.

Randall: Any number of times you are at a CID meeting you can hear of a civilian on post selling marijuana. They can come on post from any town and sell it. They go out to where the trainees are. They know that many of the trainees are inexperienced, easy to manipulate and are looking for a good time since they have been in the woods so long.

BAYONET: It's easy to get, and you, Mrs. Anthony, say it's easier to get than alcohol?

Anthony: I would say so, because you don't have to go the class six store to get it. You can get it from your buddy or your next door neighbor.

Those coming into the program aren't, for the most part, strictly marijuana users. They're using chemicals as well. It's rare when we get a strictly marijuana user. He would be one smoking five to 10 joints a day, day after day after day. The one who smokes a couple of times a week has more of a legal problem than a rehabilitation problem.

Anthony: Right. If he's doing it every day that's showing us that he is dependent on a mood or mind-altering drug to enjoy himself as opposed to depending on himself for enjoyment. He doesn't have a natural high because he's high on drugs. We can work with him.

Abuse

BAYONET: You mentioned marijuana being used in combination with certain chemical drugs. What kind of chemicals are prevalent in use here.?
Anthony: PCP, speed.
Smith: Yes it is. Most people who smoke alot usually use chemicals as well, such as PCP. The amount used depends on the person. One person can have a little sniff of PCP and not get off on it while someone else would. It depends on body chemistry. You might have a person who spent a awful lot of money of PCP to get high.

BAYONET: What about amphetamines?
Anthony: With the major commands I work with I'm finding very little PCP, thank God. That stuff can be pretty scarry.
Athony: I have had people who have taken both acid and PCP and have said that PCP is by far the worst. They don't know what's going to happen, their physical strength is magnified by God knows how much. They can become very dangerous. They can flip out for a few hours, a few days.
BAYONET: In other words, it's not predictable.
Anthony: That's right.
BAYONET: What about LSD? Is it still around as much as in the past?
Anthony: I don't think so, not as much as it was. At least I'm not seeing it. It shows up only occassionally.
Smith: You wouldn't find a person with acid in a military community, not if he is with the combat arms branch. The person couldn't perform. Acid alters the mind so much that he wouldn't have any kind of mental or physical coordination. You could identify him right off. That's the reason it is easy to detect people coming into the Army who have used those types of drugs because they just can't perform. That's why you will hardly ever see it in a military community.
BAYONET: Or at least it doesn't surface.
Anthony: I think that with continued use it would show up.
BAYONET: What about cocaine?
Randall: I have seen very few instances of cocaine use. I don't think we have too many in the military today who are on hard drugs. In the time I've been in the Army I've seen one indvidual who used heroin and one who used cocaine. Amphetamines have become pretty popular now.
Anthony: I've had several former heroin users who became involved with it in Europe.
BAYONET: I understand it has become a bigger problem in Europe. Is that an additional problem for the soldier who has been using harder drugs in Europe and comes back to the states and finds the supply not so readily available?
Anthony: Not with the clients I have had contact with. The ones I've known had begun rehabilitation over there.
BAYONET: How is the use of drugs by age groups? How does it break down by age groups, rank? Is it primarily the younger ones?
Randall: It's across the board. I've seen an E-7 picked up for the use of marijuana and he was 33-years-old.
BAYONET: What are the commanders doing in this situation?
Anthony: There is recognition of the situation. The commanders know that some of the soldiers will be smoking marijuna.
BAYONET: The commanders are admitting that yes, people do smoke marijuana.
Anthony: Right. You can't control every person in your company or battalion. When they're off duty, they're off duty. If they want to smoke, they will. They already know the consequences if they get caught. If they want to take that risk to seek marijuana and smoke it then OK. They know the risks.
Athony: A lot of them will play the game of "It's OK where I come from" but the fact is that they are not where they come from. They are on a military base and they know the consequences if they get caught.
Smith: As an added incentive to not smoke, every unit that I've been through has a bulletin board with all the Article 15's posted. It can become very embarassing to see your name on the board as being caught with marijuana, having been charged x-number of dollars and given so many days extra duty for possession and use.
Randall: Use of marijuan is more readily accepted by society now.
BAYONET: If someone get an Article 15 for marijuana, are they referred here?
Anthony: Anyone involved in either a drug or alcohol incident is referred here for an appointment and evaluation. Some of those are put on the program or are sent through our educational course.
Randall: In the course we discuss how a person can become dependent on drugs or alcohol.
Anthony: The ironic part is that a lot of people think being sent here as punishment when, in reality, it is a chance for them to get some help. Unfortunately, because of the stigma attached to coming here there is a difficulty we have to overcome.
BAYONET: But there is no record of their going through the rehab program.
Anthony: We keep a confidential program recordon the indvidual here in the office that is stored for a year and then destroyed.
Smith: But those records are for official use only.
Randall: As far as the military career goes the only people who need to know you are going through the program are your commander, counselor and first line supervisor. We also bring in the family as part of the treatment.
BAYONET: If some of our readers think they might have an alcohol or drug problem how do they go about contacting you.
Smith: They can call 545-4415 and ask to speak to a counselor or they can just walk in to see us at Bldg. 2213.

VA Q&A

Q. My husband was killed in service. I am now financially able to purchase a home. Will the Veteran's Administration(VA) guarantee a loan for me?

A. Yes. Call or visit the nearest VA regional office. Assistance is also available through veteran's service organizations.

Q. I recently retired from the military after 20 years of service and I plan to go to school under the GI Bill. Will I receive an allowance for my dependents?

A. Additional allowance is available for dependents if the veteran attends school on at least a half-time basis. Dependents include spouse, minor children and unmarried children between 18 and 23 attending school.

Q. I have completed both college and specialized training with VA educational benefits. Now I wish to go into business for myself. Does the VA make business loans?

A. The VA does not make business loans. However, loans and business management advice for veterans are available through the Small Business Administration.

Q. I am a 100 percent service connected veteran receiving compensation. I am also attending school full-time and receive education benefits. I receive allowance for my dependents(a wife and two children) under both programs. One of my sons, aged 17, will begin college this fall. He will not be 18 until early next year. How long will I receive pay for him as my dependent?

A. He will be included in your compensation and educational allowance until he reaches age 18. He will then become eligible for benefits under the VA dependent's education program.

Q. I served in the Air National Guard from Feb. 1 1955 until March 1 1958. I was on active duty for training several times during this period for a total of 285 days. Am I eligible for a VA home loan guarantee?

A. No. To be eligible for VA home loan benefits a veteran must have served at least 90 days on active duty wartime service or more than 180 days of active duty during peacetime. For purposes of eligibility for home loans, active duty for training is not qualifying service.

Q. Can I make arrangements in advance for the burial of my wife and children in the event one or more of them dies before I do?

A. No. Application for burial in a national cemetary must be made at the time of death of an eligible veteran or an eligible dependent. The selected mortuary, VA cemetary or any VA office will provide information and assistance in matters pertaining to burial and allowances.

Q. Do I have to make a downpayment on a VA guaranteed home loan?

A. VA does not require a downpayment on loans it guarantees for veterans if the sale price of the property is not more than its appraised value. However, the lender may require a downpayment.

Shoplifters marked for rest of life

Shoplifting is one good way to ruin your future. Shoplifters are taken away in handcuffs and the mark of being convicted of this crime may follow you the rest of your life.

Shoplifting is taking something from a store without paying for it. In plain words, it's stealing.

Why do people do it? There are several reasons. Very few people shoplift because they have a need for an item they cannot afford to buy. Most shoplifters come from middle-income families. One of the biggest reasons is for "kicks". The shoplifter wants to see if he or she can get away with it. Professional shoplifters do it for additional income. They take expensive items they can resell. Some shoplifters do it to "get even" with stores for high prices.

Young people nationwide make up more than half of all shoplifters. According to a survey done by the National Coalition to Prevent Shoplifting(NCPS), headquartered in Atlanta, girl shoplifters outnumber boys four to one. This may be because girls usually go shopping more often and the items they are interested in...jewelry, cosmetics, clothing, etc....are easily taken and hidden.

The Christmas shopping season is when a large amount of shoplifting takes place. The second busiest time is late summer before school starts.

To many, shoplifting doesn't seem like something to be very concerned about. They think, "Why not take it? It's just a misdemeanor and I'm not hurting anyone!" That isn't true. It's a serious crime that affects all of us. You may get an Article 15, a year or two in prison if you're in the military, a hefty fine and possibly a dishonorable discharge.

Dependents don't have a much brighter picture. They may face six months in jail and a $100 fine for taking something that doesn't belong to them. PX and commissary privileges may also be taken away for a period of time.

The crime hurts the rest of us in the wallet. Stores are forced to raise their prices to cover losses, buy additional security devices and hire special security guards. Higher taxes are needed to meet the rising police and court costs brought about by the arrest and trial of shoplifters.

Shoplifting is our nation's most expensive crime. The NCPS tells us the monetary loss is more than $16 billion each year. Bank robberies in 1979 were $47.5 million.

How can you help? If you see someone shoplifting, report it. If your children bring home something new and you suspect they might have stolen it, question them about it. Set an example by being honest yourself. Support tougher laws and enforcement against shoplifting.

It's time we took this problem seriously. We all have too much at stake.

Used car dealers take troops for costly ride

By Tim Boivin
BAYONET staff writer

You're just an innocent troop with a big bonus for enlisting(or reenlisting) and you're driving on the Manchester when you spot Macho Mikes Magnificent Musical Mobile Machines used car dealership. Macho Mike comes out in full disco gear; toothpick hanging at a 45 degree angle from the corner of his mouth, maroon V-shirt open to the belly button, flared suede jeans and a medallion hanging down to his chest saying "I'm a Libra and have I got a deal for you!".

Your kind of guy, that Macho Mike. But behind that get-up many times is just a money-hungry car salesman who knows a sucker when he sees one. And you're a prime target right now as he zeros in for the kill, sweet-talking you with all the great one-liners he can muster. And in the end, another troop bites the dust, literally, as he's stuck out at Sand Hill with a car that won't run. What a deal Macho Mike had for you, huh?

Check out what you buy when you decide to purchase a used car. The American Forces Information Service gives the following hints about buying used cars:

- Does the car have heavy blue exhaust? The engine may need an overhaul and that's expensive! How's your membership at the Millionaire's Club, anyway?
- Does the car cough, burp and jangle like a new born baby? Either the transmission or engine may be giving up. It's a long walk from Sand Hill back to Main Post, unless the tow truck driver that's charging you $30 is nice enough to give you a lift.
- Does it have a sooty tailpipe? This means oil burning at its worst. A light gray color is the way it should look. Are you a shiek who can afford barrels and barrels of oil?
- Is there uneven wear on tires? This may indicate trouble with the front end. Swerving across the Lindsey Creek Bypass is just a gas during rush hour, isn't it?
- Are the brakes OK? If the pedal is "mushy" or the brakes grab, you may have a big bill ahead. So much for that weekend at Panama Beach you were planning next payday.
- Have a mechanic check it. Ah, at last you're getting smart. This is the best advice of all. Have a pro check the car out for you before you buy. It doesn't need to be A.J. Foyt, but don't get one of those guys who knows everything and is still walking to work because his car hasn't run in six weeks.

With the help of these hints, you can tell Macho Mike he can keep his car(and deal, too) and get a fine running machine for yourself.

Adopt me

This cat exemplifies the kind of homeless animal often left abandoned here. Due to the large number of animals found, they can only be held for three days until they are put to sleep. You can go to the veterinary clinic on post and adopt one. A loving friend can be yours for only $7 to cover the cost of vacinations and blood tests. Adoption hours are 8 a.m. until 4 p.m. Monday through Friday.

A, B, or C? WHICH TIRE FOR YOU?

Reading the information on the sidewall of a tire may never become a popular pastime, but it is one that can make you a better consumer.

In fact, it could save you gas and may even your life.

Starting on April 1 of this year every tire sold in the United States will have to give its life history to the buyer. The information will be molded into the sidewall of some tires, while the latest tire to join the group, the radial, will have it pasted on a sticker until the companies have time to change the tire molds.

The information that the sidewall must carry will range from the type of tire it is to how much of a load it can carry safely.

This information is required under a federal law called the Uniform Tire Quality Grading System.

Take the time to learn a little more about it since it makes buying the proper tire as easy as A-B-C.

New information that must be displayed on every tire covers—

- the traction or stopping power of the tire. This will be shown as "A" or "B" or "C". An "A" tire will stop a car faster and in a shorter distance than a "B" or "C" rated tire. Good drivers can safely use the latter; a poor driver who slams the brakes on would need an "A" tire,
- temperature resistance, or how cool a tire will run. Again, "A" is the highest rating and "C" the lowest. If you drive at highway speeds for long distances, get a tire designated as "A". On the other hand, if your car is used mostly to run around the installation, a "C" tire will be more than sufficient,
- treadwear or how long you can expect a tire to last under normal driving. Here the government changed the type of designation to numerals. A tire that will wear out fastest will carry a number "80" on the sidewall. The higher the number, the greater the mileage a tire should provide when it is properly inflated, has been balanced, and is on a car with proper alignment. Thus, a tire rated "150" should give 50 percent more miles over the road than one graded "100."

Other Information

But that's not the entire story that a tire can tell the buyer.

Every tire must also include the following information molded on the sidewall—

- the size, such as "FR78-14" which shows that it is a radial tire, part of the 78 series, and fits a 14-inch rim,
- the load range the tire can carry safely; this shown as "B," "C," "D," "SL" (Standard Load), and "XL" (Extra Load). The seller will have charts showing the different loads the various tires can carry,
- the maximum load and the maximum cold inflation pressure,
- the designation "tubeless" or "tube-type,"
- the letters "M" or "S" or both if the tire meets the definition of a snow or mud tire,
- the letters "DOT" to indicate compliance with the Department of Transportation's tire standards, and
- the tire identification or serial number. When buying a new tire, make certain that the seller records your name, address, and the ID number. This will enable the manufacturer to notify you in case of a recall notice.

So, the next time it's tire-buying time, lay off the television for a few minutes and take the time to read your tire's story.

Doughboy defensive back Charles Mata goes for the tackle on Alabama's number 23 during the Doughboys' final game of the season.

Defeat ends season

By Becky Bulgrin
BAYONET Sports Editor

Fort Benning ended its season on a losing note Sunday afternoon at rain-soaked Doughboy Stadium, dropping a 28-12 decision to Alabama State's junior varsity.

The Doughboys finish with a 4-6 record, and the Hornets improved their record to 3-3.

The Hornets drew first blood, taking the opening kickoff and driving for a touchdown. Alabama State had to score twice, its first touchdown being canceled by offsetting penalties.

Running back Alfonza Edward went over from the 1, and Archie Moore's conversion gave the Hornets a 7-0 lead with 11:56 left in the first quarter.

In the second quarter, Alabama State mounted a 10-play drive for its second touchdown. The Hornets had three first downs in the push, and scored on running back Michael Cason's 1-yard run. Moore added the PAT, and Alabama State led 14-0 with 11:08 remaining in the half.

Benning scores

Alabama State stopped the Doughboys and forced a punt, but a turnover set up Fort Benning's first touchdown. Defensive back Charles Mata recovered a Hornet fumble, giving the Doughboys good field position.

Quarterback Leamon Hall moved Fort Benning to the end zone in 10 plays. Alabama State almost spiked the drive, but a pass interference call on fourth down gave the Doughboys a first down at the 1.

Sammy Lockhart scored on the next play, but the Mata's kick was wide and Alabama State led 14-6 at the half.

The third quarter developed into a punting duel with neither team able to mount an effective offense in the rain.

Alabama State kept the Doughboys bottled up in their territory, and the Hornets had great field position at the Fort Benning 46 following a Thomas Hagan punt.

Four plays later, James Smith took a pitch from quarterback Eddie Shy and raced 26 yards for the third Hornet touchdown. Moore added the PAT, and Alabama State increased its lead to 21-6 with 42 seconds left in the quarter.

Alabama State threatened again in the fourth period but lost a fumble at the Doughboy's 5-yard line.

Two plays later, corner back Michael Flen intercepted a Hall aerial and returned it 20 yards for six points. Moore's conversion gave the Hornets a 28-6 lead.

Dougboys strike back

Fort Benning struck back swiftly, moving 75 yards in three plays after the kickoff. Hall combined with Donald Smith on a 67-yard scoring pass with 10:04 left in the contest. The Doughboys went for two points and had two chances after a pass interference penalty, but Hall's pass was incomplete.

The rainy weather affected both teams. Hall threw five interceptions, and Fort Benning lost three fumbles. Shy was also intercepted twice. Alabama State fumbled eight times but lost the ball just twice.

The crowd, which was limited by the rain, was entertained by the Carver High School band at halftime.

Space case

By Tim Boivin
BAYONET Sports columnist

This is a fable I wrote expressly for a soldier I came across at the Doughboy's final game Sunday.

Once upon a time, in a far-away galaxy(this is the space age, you know), lived a Zinod named Zigbunk. Zigbunk was the chief supporter of his favorite asteroid-hockey team, the Gozzlejugs. The Gozzlejugs weren't that great but Zigbunk loved them and even wrote about them in his paper, the Galaxy Gazzette, with adoring words.

One day Zigbunk had a prior commitment but was able to witness the opening falling-star. Satisfied that he had fulfilled his obligation as a supporter of the Gozzlejugs, Zigbunk headed for the stairway to heaven(i.e. the exit)

A funny thing happened to Zigbunk on his way out of the forum. A security Zinod, one rank lower than Zigbunk in this militaristic society, stopped him to say his antennas were out in the cold galaxy air when they should be kept warm. Zinod appreciated the correction and started to encase his antennas.

But the security Zinod continued to berate and harangue Zigbunk for not having his antennas properly encased. Zigbunk didn't appreciate this in the least, especially since he was being chastised in front of a bunch of fresh Zinods training to be Gozzlejug supporters.

Things weren't going well for Zigbunk that day, so he just encased his antennas and went on about his business while the lower ranking Zinod gloated in his false sense of superiority.

When Zigbunk got to work the next morning, he was really steaming. The fact that the Gozzlejugs lost didn't help matters any, but the security Zinod really orked(i.e. irked) him. So he came up with an idea for his column that day.

He wrote a story about a humanoid sportswriter on a military post who followed a football team faithfully for a full season and couldn't understand why others didn't share his enthusiasm. Still, this weird humanoid kept coming to the games and preaching to others that they should take advantage of this relatively cheap entertainment.

On the last game of the season a military policeman stopped the sportswriter and chastised and berated him for wearing his sleeves rolled up. He questioned the sportswriter's intelligence in keeping his sleeves rolled up. This bothered the sportswriter for two reasons.

First, he was one rank above the policeman in the military. Second, he was being insulted in front of some very impressionable soldiers in training who came each week to watch the game. Now the sportswriter knew why people didn't want to come to the games. They didn't like being hassled over nothing in their leisure time.

The morale of this story is: To care for someone is to necessarily correct them. To cheat someone is to unnecessarily chastise them.

Mini Bowl closes YA football season at Doughboy Stadium

By Bob Pate
Youth Activities Correspondent

Pee Wee Division

The Tri-City Panthers not only took the Pee Wee Division Championship, they also won the Mini-Bowl game Saturday, defeating the Main Post Jets 16-6.

Coached by Leroy Sells and Bob Theriault, the Jets played a good defensive game. Good runs by Mike Guynn, Xavier Carter, Pete Marshall and a 12-yard scamper by Tyrone Crawford resulted in the first TD of the game. Mike Guynn made the extra points.

In the second quarter, the Jets quarterback dropped back to throw a pass which was intercepted and run back for the Panther's second TD by Mike Holmes. Tyrone Crawford scored the extra points.

The Jets scored their lone touchdown in the fourth quarter. The Panthers scored another TD on a long run by Xavier Carter but it was called back on penalties. Good defensive players for the Panthers were Byron Chony, Bill Brickner, James Sells, Dale Murphy, Leslie Lane, Tim Evans, Ray Evans, Jeff Bryant, Rookie Bruce, Donny and Arron Harris, Marvin Howard, Curtis Rucker, Patrick Sebay and Steve Barmore.

Termite Division

The Buccaneers defeated the Tri-City Steelers 8-6 in the Termite Division game. Hollie Robinson scored for the Buccaneers on a two-yard run, set up by a 25-yard run by Jason Bargewell.

Outstanding defensive players were Kevin Daily, George Daily, Ron McIver, Maurice Meminger, Ned Moultrie, Clarence Catchings and Kenneth Abeyta. Outstanding offensive players were Chris Rutherford, Chris Cannon and Scott Kelly.

Midget Division

The game between the Tri-City Panthers and the Seahawks at the Mini-Bowl Saturday turned out to be a long battle in Midget Division play.

Lasting one hour and 40 minutes, with two overtime periods, the Panthers finally pulled through, defeating the Seahawks 26-20.

With less than two minutes left in the game, the Seahawks were ahead 14-6. The Panthers scored with 16 seconds left in regular time, making it 14-12. A diving play by Terry Irvin for the two-point conversion tied the game, forcing overtime.

During first overtime play, both teams scored but failed at the conversion attempt. In the second overtime, Irvin scored the winning TD on a 10-yard pass completion. Ike Wychc scored three touchdowns for the Panthers, helping them on to victory.

As coach for the Panthers, I would like to congratulate the Seahawks and their coaching staff on an outstanding game. The Seahawks never quit and demonstrated good sportsmanship and excellent effort. In a game like that, there are no losers.

Foosball, more than a 'game'

By Becky Bulgrin
BAYONET sports editor

Tournament Soccer, better known as "foosball," has been around for sometime. However, its popularity has grown enormously during the past few years in areas all over the world.

Tournaments are being played for winnings in the thousands of dollars and competiton is stiff. This year's U.S. Tournament Soccer tour will be conducted with $1 million in prize money.

Just ask Derek Harvey, a "foosball champ" who has been playing the game for ten years. A 26-year-old first lieutenant with the 1/29 Infantry, 197th Infantry Brigade, Harvey recently won the Southern Foosball Championship, along with partner Gary Barnette. Together they won six straight tournaments in the southeast.

Harvey has been competing in national tournaments for seven years and won two straight national championships in 1976 and 77.

According to Harvey, foosball fans are trying to give the game the recognition it deserves. "We want people to know it's a 'real sport', not just another 'bar room game'," he said.

Recent coverage of the game has been shown on national television and there are magazines about the "sport." There is even a "foosball hotline" for information on tournaments across the nation.

Harvey says he comes from a "foosball family" and that foosball is a big part of his life. "I was discouraged for awhile because I couldn't find enough time to practice or anyone to practice with," he said. "I actually tried to quit playing, but couldn't."

"This was partly because of my partner, Gary," he added. "I owe it to him for keeping me at the game and winning more tournaments."

A graduate of Arizona State University with a political science major, Harvey admits that he "loves the game."

"It's fun, I like the competition, and the friendships made by playing are great," he said. "There's a real comraderie among players."

Besides the local tournaments, Harvey has flown to tournaments in Boston, Minneapolis, and Chicago, to name a few. He is going to Denver, Col. this weekend to compete in a $30,000 tournament and to Las Vegas this February for the $250,000 U.S. Western Championships.

He has also competed in the German and Spanish Nationals and says, "It's really interesting to see all the different people playing the game."

While not working as Battalion Adjutant for the 1/29th, Harvey participates in local politics, enjoys reading, and likes to hunt and fish when he can find the time.

He calls himself a foosball "enfoosiast" and says he could talk for hours about the game. "Reflex, dexterity, and hand to eye coordination are just some of the important things needed to play foosball, along with practice," he said.

There are many more tips for learning to play and improve the game of foosball. Look for more information on the "sport" when Harvey presents his "foosball mini-series" in upcoming BAYONETS.

Also, look for Harvey as he talks about the game on WFBG TV's Benning Report in December.

Gym-i-niks entertain soldiers with acrobats

By Rick Kiernan
BAYONET correspondent

"They flew through the air with the greatest of ease," and they did it to the delight of soldiers gathered at the Harmony Church Recreation Center on a recent Sunday afternoon.

These young acrobats go by the name "Gym-i-niks." They are a group of girls who receive gymnastics training from Shelly Jebavy, who has been competing as a gymnast for seven years.

Sponsored by the Officer's Wives Club, the group consists of girls eight to 13 years of age. Jebavy has been teaching at the OWC School of Dance for almost two years and teaches other youngsters besides the Gym-i-niks, from 3-13 years of age. She instructs a total of 89 students, including boys, five days a week.

Aside from the physical training and muscle toning, Jebavy feels the gymnastics training gives the youngsters confidence and poise.

"This is important to young people," she said, "and it's reinforced each time they perform in front of an audience."

Following their performance at Harmony Church, the Gym-i-niks are looking forward to performing at several on-post events. They will also be appearing in the Columbus Christmas parade Dec. 9 and are scheduled to put on a show at the OWC Activities Center Dec. 19 in conjunction with a bake sale. Admission will be 50¢ for the combined event.

Station offers holiday theme

By Bill Powell
WFBG Broadcaster

Thanksgiving marks the beginning of the holiday season followed by Christmas and New Year's. WFBG-TV will offer various programs to celebrate the holidays. Be on the lookout for these programs in the coming weeks. Following are the highlights of next week's schedule:

●"Beyond the Call" is a program which features the stories of Medal of Honor winners and what they did to deserve the nation's highest military award.

●"The Chaplain in Combat" tells the story of the chaplain and the tough duties he's called upon to perform during war.

●"Soldier" is a program that gives you a closeup look at the life of a combat soldier. (See separate review of this program on pg. 29)

●"Spectrum" will feature the sounds of Christmas from next week until WFBG-TV closes down for the holidays on Dec. 19.

You may be eligible for a Rotary scholarship. Ask your local Rotary Club.

"Soldier" offers impression of combat

By Bill Powell
WFGB Broadcaster

Being a soldier is just another job. These words are the ones that inspired Col. Dandridge M. "Mike" Malone to make an audiotape that became the basis of a television program called "Soldier".

Col. Malone tells the story of what it's like to be a soldier. He talks about the signing of the contract, basic training, the first clumsy attempt at spit shining a boot, a soldier's first leave, first assignment and days and days of endless, unrelenting and unforgiving war in a faraway country called Vietnam.

Colonel Malone paints that lonely sound of artillery rounds pounding ever closer and the cries of wounded comrades in the night.

"Soldier" is not the story of just one, but all soldiers. Colonel "Mike's" words will bring back memories to anyone who remembers that first time they held-up their right hand to enlist. It will also give newer soldiers a vivid impression of the horror, fear, comraderie, and trust that war brings to all soldiers.

"Soldier" is a compelling and worthwhile program which will bring back memories for some, create strong impressions in others, but will most of all be an unforgettable look at the lives of all soldiers through the eyes and words of Colonel Dandridge M. "Mike" Malone.

Families should be advised that Colonel Malone uses some salty language to puntuate his descriptions of life as a soldier.

Runner comes long way to triumph in marathon

By Becky Bulgrin
BAYONET sports editor

Kim Nutter, a 21-year old runner from Fort Benning, entered her first race in June because she "just wanted to win a T-shirt."

Nutter has come a long way since that three-mile race and recently took first place for women in the 26.2-mile Callaway Gardens Marathon.

She laughed as she recalled her first race. "It was a Guess and Go Run in which entrants try to guess their finish time," she said. "I didn't even think I'd finish, and I guessed a time of 45 minutes for only three miles."

But she did finish and came in with a time of about 20 minutes. "I got my T-shirt, but I also got 'the fever'," she said.

Nutter said she started "jogging" less than a year ago for an average of three miles a day. She now averages 10 miles a day and 20-24 miles one day a week.

She says winning a marathon seemed like a "far-off" goal at first but she now has "marathon fever" and will continue to improve her marathon time. Nutter won the Callaway Gardens Marathon in 3hrs., 34 min., 6 sec.

"The second place woman came in 14 minutes behind me," she said.

Nutter says she does a little warm-up before running and more stretching afterwards. The wife of WO1 Richard Nutter of the 498th Medical Company says "running an ultra-marathon" (more than 50 miles) is her goal for the future.

Fort Bragg next up

Boxers win fights

Fort Benning's boxing team came home from last weekend's road trip to Warner Robins with three out of four bouts in the win column. They went up against boxers from Warner Robins and the Rufus Boxing Club.

Anthony Morris broke his losing streak after winning a very impressionable bout, according to boxing coach Anthony Stoddard.

James Pirtle also defeated his opponent and Greg Staten won by forfeit. Roderick Williams fought in an exhibition bout against Warner Robins' Frank Mitchell, who is the Georgia state champ. Williams gave away seven pounds for the close fight, which was judged by the crowd, according to the coach.

Stoddard added that Benning used this fight to prepare for Friday's fights at Fort Bragg. The boxers from Bragg are supposedly the Army's best and this will be a semi-showdown before the real showdown at the FORSCOM tournament in February.

Benning's next home smoker will be Dec. 13 in Briant Wells Fieldhouse at 7 p.m. They will face boxers from Fort Gordon and the Marines from Albany.

It may be be their last home match because the team will be training for a month to get ready for the FORSCOM tournaments, according to Stoddard.

Admission is free and a big turn-out is expected, according to a sport's office official. There are also 100 free ringside tickets available on a first-come, first-serve basis. Anyone interested should come by Crain Hall, Bldg. 229.

In other boxing action, the Muscogee County Boxing Team presents Georgia Amateur Boxing Dec. 6 in Bibb City (a section of Columbus).

The fights get under way at Comer Auditorium (2nd Ave. and 43rd St.) at 7:30 p.m. General admission is $3, ringside seats are $5 and student tickets are $1.50. For information call Leon Juhan at 563-2842.

Exodus insures happy holiday

By Brian Adams
BAYONET Correspondent
1st Infantry Training Brigade

The Christmas Leave operation, 'Exodus 80', for 1st Infantry Training Brigade soldiers or any permenant party soldiers who wish to take part is scheduled to begin at 12:01 a.m.on 18 Dec.

Soldiers participating in this operation will be loaded on buses and/or taxis at the Exodus site, Theater #3 Sand Hill, to take them to the airline terminal at Columbus Metropolitan Airport.

Even though Dec. 18 is 2-weeks away, the first step of 'Exodus 80' is already underway within the 1st Infantry Training Brigade, as soldiers preparing to leave purchase their tickets from the Scheduled Airline Ticket Office (SATO).

"The SATO ticket agents have been briefing the units as they come into training." explained Sgt. First Class James Wadsworth, NCOIC of the S-3 office. "All of the units on board, now, have their reservations and those that come onto training status within the next few days will receive their briefing the day they arrive."

Besides working a normal shift, the SATO office has also started working a different schedule to accomodate the Exodus operation. "The office is working as early as 7 a.m. and as late as 6 p.m." said Wadsworth. "They are even working Saturdays and Sundays to accomplish the task at hand."

Although SATO has upped its hours for the 1st Infantry Training Brigade and the operation, the use of the ticket office is not restricted to only them. "It is open for anyone's use," explained Wadsworth. "We prefer that people from main post use the main post SATO office, but they won't be turned away should they turn up out here.

"The last chance to pick up tickets for reserved seats will be Dec. 16," he said. And according to a Ticket agent at the SATO office, "The longer someone waits to make reservations, the more his chances are that he won't find a seat available." He also commented, that reservations for flights leaving Dec. 19 are already booked up.

As the ticket office is open to all customers, so is the Exodus site (Theater #3 in Sand Hill.) An estimated 8,000 soldiers from ITB alone will be processed through the site during the 3-days that it is in operation but permanent party personnel and their dependents can use it too. "It's easier", explained Wadsworth. "I have all the transportaion going anywhere and the site, though far from main post, is centrally located and better equiped for the large amount of vehicles of all types that will be being used."

If this isn't enough to make you feel comfortable on your trip home, and you think you might have problems in Atlanta, don't worry. "There will be 36 Drill Sergeants in Atlanta acting as liasons during the Exodus," explained Wadsworth. "Thirty-three of these men will be at the airport alone working 3, 11 manshifts. They will also be at the bus station and the railroad station," he said.

When Exodus ends on the 20th of Dec., 'Exodus Return 81' will swing into operation. The return site, (Kimbrough Gym), also in Sand Hill, will be prepared for the returning soldiers expected between 3 January and 8 Jan. 1981. "This site will also be open for use by the whole post," commented Wadsworth. " The 36th Engineer Group and the 18th Replacement Detachment will also be involved with us on the return portion to provide assistance to permanent party and those new replacements comming to Fort Benning."

The same type of operating procedures, such as the liasons in Atlanta, transportation and other measures will be practiced at the return site as were used at the Exodus Site," he said. "This is all just part of the services that we want to provide to the soldiers to make their Christmas Leaves an easier undertaking."

Here are some tips for travelers who will be enjoying Christmas away from Fort Benning:

- Have you planned leave time according to your reporting schedule?
- Have you made travel reservations?
- Have you checked baggage limitations?
- Have you placed identification tags on your luggage?
- Do you have your travel tickets?
- Do you have your luggage-ticket stubs?
- Do you have the telephone number to contact at

Alaska bound

Maj. Gen. David E. Grange Jr., post commander, Col. Michael F. Spigelmire, commander of the 197th Infantry Brigade, and Lt. Col. H.T. Fincher, commander of 1st Battalion, 58th Infantry (1/58th), 197th Infantry Brigade, encourage enthusiastic soldiers of Company C, 1/58th on their way to Alaska Monday. According to Capt. Danny D. McKnight, Company C's commander, the soldiers are ready and will do well on the winter training exercise in extreme cold weather. The 283rd Army Band sent them off with a musical salute. The day before the company left Fort Benning the temperature in Alaska was 0 degrees Fahrenheit and there was three feet of snow on the ground.

Attention Women!

A recent attack and rape of a Fort Benning women and the attempted rape of another has Fort Benning Miliary Police especially concerned. The reason: the person used a flashing blue light on his dashboard, much like a police car light, to get the women to drive off the road. This is the second such attack in this area in the last two months. For the new MP advice on what to do when being pulled over by a car with a police type light flashing in the dashboard, see the post Provost Marshall Col. William Ward's Sheriff's Target column on page 12.

Letters to the Editor

Editor's note: The following letter was received by Maj. Gen. David E. Grange and he wanted to share it with readers of The BAYONET.
Dear General Grange,

I would like to express my appreciation and that of the Government of Liberia to you for the kindness and courtesies extended on our recent visit to the United States of America. The conduct of all the personnel from Fort Benning involved with our visit was exemplary and will go a long way in continuing the close relationship between my country and yours.

Fort Benning is my school and I appreciated the opportunity to visit there and see all the familiar sights again. It is truly the home of all infantry soldiers the world over.

I extend sincere best wishes from all the members of the delegation to you and to all who assisted in making our visit a success.

Sincerely,
Samuel B. Pearson

Editor's note: The following is in response to a letter on barracks inspections by Sp5 John Jacobsen of HHC, Headquarters Command that was printed recently.

To the Editor:

Military discipline and order are absolutely essential to maintaining a tranquil and healthy environment for all concerned regardless of the place of residence, the barracks or government quarters.

In both the barracks and government quarters standards of living conditions are established. Personnel who violate or fail to maintain these standards are subject to both judicial and administrative action.

More frequent inspections are required of soldiers residing in the barracks for very obvious reasons. A large number of people with varied living habits and standards reside in a relatively small area within the barracks. Frequent inspections are required to protect all concerned by ensuring that a sanitary, healthful and secure environment is maintained.

Inspections also assist in maintaining accountability of personnel as well as government property and they act as a deterrent against unlawful removal of such property.

Review of Military Police blotters, chronological listing of incidents requiring intervention and or assistance by the MP's for the period Nov. 26-30 reveals that 18 of 80 incidents reported occurred in or immediately adjacent to a barracks area. A major objective of inspections is to significantly reduce or eliminate the causes for such incidents.

For personnel residing in government quarters, administrative action can and all too frequently does result in servicemembers being directed to terminate quarters. In October and November 54 servicemembers received warning letters that failure to maintain a proper household on their part would result in more stringent measures being taken. Failure to adhere to an initial warning resulted in eight soldiers in the grades E-3 through E-6 being directed to terminate occupancy of government quarters during these same two months.

There are a number of measures taken to insure occupants of government quarters maintain desired standards. When signing for quarters, a servicemember acknowledges his commitment to maintain desired standards. Within three weeks from date of occupancy, the sponsor and/or his spouse must attend a self-help program where occupancy responsibilities are further defined.

Each housing area has an area coordinator, and in areas consisting of multiple housing units, a building coordinator is also appointed. These coordinators are specifically responsible for insuring occupancy standards are maintained.

Complimentary to the area coordinator system are actions taken by the MP's and designated units. Each housing area is the responsibility of a designated commander. Last and perhaps most importantly are the neighbors.

As is the case in the barracks, those who reside in the area will not tolerate conditions adversely impacting on their surroundings or the overall tranquility of the neighborhood. Many cases identifying failure to maintain occupancy standards are brought to the attention of appropriate authorities by a disgruntled neighbor.

Command inspections are also conducted to insure occupants are maintaing their quarters. On Sept. 5, Custer Terrace and McGraw Manor occupants were inspected for police of the area, grass cutting, edging, trimming of shrubs, cleaning of flower beds, etc. Servicemembers who failed to take corrective actions were directed to report to Marshall Auditorium at 7:30 a.m. Sept. 6 with their company and battalion commanders.

At this meeting, the servicemember was required to explain why he/she had failed to take necessary corrective action. Appropriate disciplinary action was taken against a number of personnel who did not comply with these instructions.

A further survey is under way for all the Fort Benning housing areas. This survey will confirm occupancy by authorized personnel, vehicle, weapon and pet registration and will also serve to insure compliance with acceptable occupancy standards.

The bottom line is that individuals residing in housing areas are required to maintain acceptable occupancy standards and that they, like any other servicemember who fails to meet these standards, are subjected to administrative and judicial actions.

Living in family housing is a privilege, not a right. You either maintain occupancy standards and conduct yourself in such a manner as to contribute to a wholesome and healthful environment or this right is denied to you and your depenndents.

Rest assured that while the rules regarding barracks occupancy may be somewhat different from those applied to your fellow soldier residing in family housing, the standards are basically the same, and likewise the consequences for failure to maintain these standards are equally applied.

Col. Dennis J. Harron
Assistant Post Commander

'Have I got a deal for you!'

For only $9.25 I'll make you one of the best deals going today.

But for now, a different subject.

Have you looked around your front door of your quarters lately? If you haven't, go out and take a look. Did you see a little round hooch-amajig there and it looks like a can opener? Don't know what it is? I'll tell you. It is a flag holder for the good old American flag.

Every soldier living on post is, or should be, a career soldier and flying the American flag is one way of showing our love for America and our devotion to the Army. If everyone living in quarters and the soldiers living off post flew the flag every day, maybe, just maybe, the people of America would start getting behind the good old USA and the esprit of the "old days" would return.

Now for the good deal. The post exchange sells the American flag for only $9.25. That includes the pole. So get yourself a flag and fly it each day at your home and show America that WE DO CARE.

Door to door survey starts Tuesday

A one-hundred percent door-to-door survey of the occupants of the Lavoie Manor Housing Area will be conducted during the period Tuesday through Friday, to confirm occupancy/use of government quarters and to collect data useful to installation management.

Sponsors will make arrangements to be present or have an adult member of the family present between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. for the period of the survey. Additionally, sponsor/representative will have the following information readily available to assist the survey team:

- Unit and unit telephone number of sponsor.
- Dependents' date of birth and schools attending.
- Year, make, serial number, state tag number and post registration number of privately owned vehicles.
- Serial number and post registration number of privately owned weapons.
- Registration number and immunization date(s) (distemper and rabies) of pets.

Members of the survey team will be dispatched in 2 person teams and can be identified by arm bands marked HOUSING SURVEY.

Data resulting from the Lavoie MAnor Housing Survey will be analyzed, refined and used to improve installation management and community life and to survey the remaining post housing areas subsequent to Jan. 1. Specific dates and addtional information will be released at a later date.

Retired Col. surprised by 524th's turkey day feast

By Tim Boivin
BAYONET staff writer

Thanksgiving is a time for remembering and appreciating all the good things in life.

For a retired soldier who spent the day here, having Thanksgiving dinner in the 524th Personnel Service Company, thanks were also in order for being able to spend a day where he spent part of his service years a half-century earlier.

Col. (retired) Claude A. Black and his wife, Virginia, were the guests of Lt. Col. Norman Morrissette and his wife, Beth. Beth's mother is Virginia's sister and the visit brought back fond memories and stories from both families over the feast made by the 524th cooks.

Black is a 1925 graduate of the United States Military Academy at West Point and first arrived at Fort Benning in 1928 for the Cook and Bakery School and Mess Officer's course as a second lieutenant. He also spent the end of that year and part of the next here for a company officer's course.

In 1932-33 Black was here for the Infantry Tank School and he returned from 1935-40 to use his knowledge as an instructor in the tank section of the Infantry School. Black said, "When I left here I helped start the Armor School at Fort Knox, Ky."

Beth Black added, "We lived at 602 Wickersham Avenue when we were here and that address is still there."

Col. Black said, "The things I've noticed about the post that have changed include the trees, which were just saplings when I was here. Now, their enormous oak trees. Fort Benning is more like a city now but then it was like a garrison. This dining facility is unbelievable. I was in a state of shock when I saw the facility and food. What we ate would cost $8-10 back home."

The Black's were here during a golden era in Fort Benning's history. Col. Black said, "Lt. Col. George Marshall was assistant commandant of the Infantry School(later he earned the rank of General of the Army and is probably best remembered for his plan as Secretary of State to rebuild Europe following W.W. II.) He was really Mr. Fort Benning. Future Gen. Omar Bradley was just a captain in

Electric lights may be fire hazard

Think safety for happy holidays

All holidays are times for happiness. But especially is Christmas a time for family happiness. Take a few moments out to make certain this year, and every year, is one that will be memorable.

Whatever the family tradition may be on candles as decorations, these should not be used anywhere in the house except perhaps on the festive table. Under no circumstances should they be used on the tree.

While artificial trees are making great gains each year, there are still the traditionalists who like the piney scent as well as the cheery sight of a real tree

This means shopping around for one that is beautiful as well as safe. What you're looking for is a tree that has been cut down within a week or two of the holidays, not one that has been cut down in early fall and stored.

If a tree is freshly cut, it will have moisture in it. There are several quick ways to check moisture. Try pulling a few needles off. If that is hard to do, the tree is a fresh one. Reach way inside and try breaking off a small branch; if it's flexible, it's fresh.

Everyone likes to display the tree so the family can enjoy it and the neighbors can see it. But, wherever it's set up it should not block a door or other exit from a room or be close enough to flammable objects such as curtains to pose any hazard.

Every kind of electric light is potentially dangerous because of the heat it generates. Christmas tree lights are no exception. In fact, they may be more dangerous because they are displayed on a tree which itself could catch fire. And there are paper-wrapped packages all around the base of the tree.

Whatever you do, don't use electric lights or candles on metallic trees. Although they should be safe when the manufacturer's directions are followed, there is always the possibility of a short in one of the light strings. If this occurs, the entire tree could become energizded and cause a serious injury if not a death.

Before stringing any lights, check out each string individually. Before plugging it in, go over the entire wiring, especially the areas around the base of the sockets. Check the lights to see that they are tight in the socket, then plug in the string to make certain that all the lights work.

Never place more than three strings of tree lights on one extension cord. Make it family policy to check each night before retiring to see that the tree lights are out. When the extension cords are disconnected from the outlets, place them high enough up in the tree so small children will not be able to reach them and light up the tree without supervision.

Before hanging any ornaments, check each one for breakage. If you have metal ornaments from years past, use them in windows, not on the tree where they could pose shock hazard if there is a defective wire.

Since many decorations are handed down from generation to generation, there is also a possibility that some of the old metallic icicles are still in the boxes. If so, throw them away and get the new plastic icicles.

If you haven't done so already, install a smoke detector in the room where the tree will be displayed.

Christmas present wrappings have a way of getting scattered around the room in the confusion of Christmas morning. Some toys have electric motors which can heat up. And, of course, there's always the token cigarette smoker.

Don't take chances. If there is any type of fire, you want to be alerted quickly. In fact, smoke detectors make good presents to give. Give one to yourself or a loved one and have a happy, and safe, holiday.

CFC successful

All Military and Civilian Personnel

The Tri-Community Combined Federal Campaign for 1981 has been succesfully concluded. As a result of the enthusiastic participation by personnel at Fort Benning and employees of other federal offices in the tri-community area, over 112 percent of this year's objective of $325,000 was achieved.

The concern for others demonstrated by military and civilian personnel of Fort Benning is in keeping with a true American tradition. The 56 agencies assisted by this fund drive will receive direct benifit from your contributionswhich are so vital to continuation of humanitarian programs in our community and throughout the country.

We should all be proud of our campaign achievemnet and deeply grateful for the unselfish generosity of those who gave. Project officers, key persns and campaign volunteers throughout the tri-community area who contributed to the success of this fund drive are especially commended.

Please accept my congratulations and appreciation for your exemplary suport of this most worty endevor.

Gen. Meyer to speak at AUSA

United States Army Chief of Staff General Edward C. Meyer will speak at the Columbus-Phenix City-Fort Benning Chapter, Association of the U.S. Army fall membership meeting Dec. 16 at the Columbus Iron Works Trade and Convention Center.

The meeting will open with a social hour at 6:30 p.m. followed by dinner, election of new officers and Gen. Meyer's address.

Tickets for the events, at $10.50 each, are now on sale at the Columbus Bank and Trust Company's downtown office, and at the Public Affairs Office, Protocol and by unit sergeants majors on post.

General Meyer, a native of St. Marys, Pa., was born Dec. 11, 1928. He was graduated from the U.S. Military Academy in 1951 and commissioned a second lieutenant in Infantry.

He became assistant deputy chief of staff for Operations and Plans in 1975 and deputy chief in 1976. He has been chief of staff of the Army since June 22, 1979.

Col. Black is introverted about his medals, but his wife isn't and said, "He has the Legion of Merit, a Bronze Star of Combat, five Battle Stars, the French Croix de Guerre with Palm and the Soviet Order of Wars for the Fatherland. He doesn't like to publicize that last one at all."

Col. Black added, "That's right. If we go to war with the Russians, that one goes back where it came from."

Board has eye on businesses

By Tim Boivin
BAYONET staff writer

They're known as the strip, boulevard or main drag. Every Army post has one, usually located outside of the main gate. The strip is also a haven for ripoff men, conmen, burglars and connivers.

Every Army post also has an Armed Forces Disciplinary Control Board(AFDCB) to deal with complaints from servicemembers concerning local civilian business establishments.

Violations investigated

The Fort Benning AFDCB deals with irreputable businesses in an area that goes east to Lawrence County, west through Chambers, Lee and Russell counties in Alabama, north to Troup County and south to Terrell County. cities included in the area are LaGrange, Dawson, Columbus and Phenix City. Robbins Air Force Base is also part of the board's responsibility.

SSgt. William Capps of the AFDCB said, "We handle everything from drug activity to Better Business Bureau(BBB) violations, including prostitution, venereal disease or race discrimination complaints. Depending on the complaint, we call in advisers from the staff judge advocate(SJA), preventive medicine, Criminal Investigation Division(CID), public affairs office, personnel office, commanders, the BBB or, if it has to do with Robbins Air Force Base, the chief of security police there."

The AFDCB is chaired by the Fort Benning Provost Marshal, Col. William Ward. If action is taken against a business, Capps said, "It could be in the form of a warning or, if the situation warrants it, the business could be placed off limits to all military personnel."

Soldiers with any type of complaint should go to their company commander first. Capt. John Phelps of the legal assistance section of SJA said, "Many times a company commander can resolve the problem without having to come to us or go before the board. The BBB can help commanders resolve the problem because many businesses have a good reputation and want to keep it."

The only time a legal assistance officer will appear before the board is when invited to appear as an advocate for a soldier. Even then, Phelps emphasized, "We are just there in an advisory position. We don't have any weight in the actual decision-making process."

Local civilian authorities also attend the board meetings and give information on the "hotspots" for drug dealing, prostitution and other crimes. Capps said, "The local police reports are very helpful in determining what establishments are good for the soldiers and which ones aren't."

MSgt. Ellis Dandy of the Equal Opportunity office here said, "When the commander brings a charge of discrimination to us, we check it out. Many times soldiers misplace where the problem lies. We gather all the particulars and as much information from every possible source and then advise what the soldier should do."

Soldiers charged

If soldiers are found in an off limits establishment, they are brought to the Provost Marshal's Office, charged and normally released to their unit commanders. What happens from there depends on the gravity of the events surrounding the apprehension and the commander's judgement.

Capps concluded, "We want solid complaints before the board. We feel anything that makes it before the board is grave enough that we just don't ignore it. However, by using the chain of command, soldiers can eliminate a lot of wasted time and probably resolve the majority of their problems."

In a future BAYONET a complete list of off-limits establishments will be published after the present one is revised.

Team helps unit organization

By Tim Boivin
BAYONET staff writer

How many times have you heard soldiers say, "My company's all screwed up. Priorities are all messed up, we don't have enough soldiers to accomplish the mission and there isn't enough equipment for the soldiers we do have."

Commanders now have a way to help evaluate and, if need be, re-organize in order to run their units more effectively. Since 1977 the Army has instituted the Organizational Effictiveness(OE) program to come in and make suggestions to unit commanders, heads of offices and civilian managers to improve their operations.

Maj. Stephen Carbonetti of the OE team here said, "OE belongs to the commander or manager. The only way this program is going to be successful is if the commander takes action to make changes. That's the key to our program."

Volunteers trained

OE staff officers are trained at Fort Ord, Cal. Sgt. Maj. William Drosdick, also with the OE team here, said, "The Army has a board that screens volunteers for OE. E-7's through E-9's and O-3's through O-5's are eligible for the program. E-6s are eligible only in exceptional cases."

Drosdick added, "The course is 16 weeks long and credits are given on a post-graduate level. The criteria for officers include promotion potential, command time, degrees in either Behavioral Science or Management and they must have attended the officer advanced course. Enlisted soldiers must have troop time, attended the non-commissioned officer advanced course, promotion potential and a degree in Behavioral Science or Management is preferred, but it can be waived."

OE only comes in on the commander or manager's request. The problem-solving process OE uses has four steps but, Drosdick explained, "The first step is assessing the situation. Then we plan around the assessment that was made. The third step is to institute the changes we have planned. Around six months later we come back to follow-up. This insures what we have done is right for the organization."

Strengths help problems

When looking at the situation when they first come in, OE uses the obvious strengths to improve on the problems. How long it takes OE to finish their project depends on the detail the commander or manager wants to go, what they want and the size of the organization.

Carbonetti said, "Some of the methods we use in gathering data when we first come in includes observations, individual interviews, group interviews, questionnaires, surveys, records and reports, or a combination of all of these. We present this information to the commander so he can determine the status of the organization."

Based on the assessment the commander makes with the help of OE, objectives and plans actions are designed by the commander to effect the desired changes. What-to-do issues are attacked first and then the how-to problems are resolved. OE insures at this point that what is planned has some measurable criteria to be used in the follow-up step to determine the success of the operation.

When it comes to implementing the changes, Drosdick explained, "It's good to first have transition meetings. Whenever a new commander comes on post they aren't as well informed as the commander or manager who just left because they don't have the experience of working with the unit previously. A transition team helps in getting the new commander informed with input from all sides."

Without the transition team, Carbonetti interjected, "It would take six months for a new commander to be fully informed and use his knowledge to its fullest potential. Even when changes are made in mid-stream through OE, it still takes about that long without a transition team. A transition team can cut that time substantially."

Workshops vital

Drosdick emphasized, "Our workshops and courses usually are the most vital improvement made. We give workshops on counseling, leadership management, human resource management and now we even have stress and anger classes. Some of these classes are among the best in this area, if not the best."

The end result, Carbonetti added, "Is a more effective level of training of the middle managers. This makes them more effective in day-to-day operations and relations with employees."

The follow-up evaluation is based on the measurable criteria set up previously and determines whether the objectives were met. Follow-up may even lead to a new assessment by the commander.

The most appealing element of OE is that all of the information gathered, used and things done are kept confidential. OE only answers to the commander on manager who requested assistance.

Goals set

OE has a 24-hour answering service at 545-4373 for those interested in either going through training to become an OE or commanders or managers needing assistance.

Drosdick added, "The goal of OE is to have an OE officer in every battalion in the Army. We're far from it and, although no target date has been set, we have made great strides in that direction in just three years. Fort Benning has OE's in Martin Army Hospital, 197th Infantry Brigade, 36th Engineer Group and on Main Post."

43rd Engineers tested at Rucker

By Sharron Calabrisi
BAYONET correspondent
36th Engineer Group (Combat)

The 43rd Engineer Battalion and the 586th Engineer Battalion (Ribbon Bridge) went to the field for their annual Army Training and Evaluation Program (ARTEP) recently at Fort Rucker, Ala.

The entire battalion consisted of 204 vehicles and approximately 767 personnel.

"Fort Rucker was selected because it provided an unknown environment to the troops and an adequate distance for a road march so the best conditions for an evaluation could be made," commented Maj. Raymond Powell, 36th Engineer uator of the ARTEP. His battalion assigned the tasks and evaluated the 43rd's ARTEP.

During the 43rd Engineer Battalion's recent ARTEP, a backhoe prepares a position for an airtransportable bunker.

"Combat engineering tasks included constructing a log crib, which is used in roads to impede the enemy's movement," explained 1st Lt. Jeffery C. Benchich, training officer, 43rd Engineer Battalion. "One of the construction engineer tasks was to build concrete paths to be used as helipads."

Maj. William Allen, 36th Engineer Group training and operations officer (S-3), was in charge of the 36th's tactical command post during the ARTEP, which supplied communications, S-2, S-3, and supply (S-4).

The 43rd was tested on construction engineering tasks, combat engineering tasks, tactics, guard, actual demolitions, and movement in both day and black out situations to include extensive rafting operations by the 586th to support night river crossing operations.

There were several tasks that will remain as permanent sites at Fort Rucker, such as a timber bridge that was repaired, the construction of an artillery battery site, and asphalt road repairs.

Other tasks included installing protective mine fields, setting up water points, and combat patrols.

"The ARTEP showed that the 43rd Engineer Battalion and the 586th Engineer Company (RB) were combat ready," concluded Lt. Col. Johnson, chief evaluator.

Hops give soldiers free ride

Many soldiers on Fort Benning miss out on a good thing when they take commercial airlines for transportation home on leave or pass. If they had checked first with the Operation's Desk at Lawson Army Air Field, the soldiers might have saved a lot of money through some prior planning around a military hop to their destination.

SFC Eddie McAdams of Operations said, "A lot of times these planes leave here with just the crew members on board. When soldiers are planning to go home on leave, they should call us to see if a flight is going their way. We might not get them all the way there but as far as we get them is gravy and less money out of a troop's pocket."

When going on a military hop, soldiers need to have the following items:

- Either a DA Form 31 or a copy of their pass authorization.
- They must be in Class A uniform.
- They must have ID cards and dog tags in their possession.

Although all flights are subject to change, soldiers can call on a daily basis to find out the status of a trip. McAdams said, "We don't have round trips but once someone gets to a destination they can check there to see if one is coming back this way on the day their planning to come back. We can also assist on getting hops out of Maxwell and Robbins Air Force Base, which aren't too far away. However, dependents are not allowed to fly on our hops."

Once a soldier gets down to the Operation's Desk on the day of the flight, they will not be bumped, regardless of rank. Even with airlines cutting prices, military hops are a great way to go somewhere inexpensively. The schedule for December is as follows:

- Today at 7 p.m. a flight is leaving for Little Rock AFB in Arkansas. A flight is also scheduled to leave for Oklahoma City, Ok.
- Tomorrow a flight is leaving for Rickenbacker AFB in Ohio.
- Thursday a flight takes off for McGuire AFB in New Jersey.
- Dec. 12 flights take off for Nashville, Tenn. and Charleston AFB in South Carolina.
- The lone flight going out Dec. 13 is for Rickenbacker in Ohio.
- The only flight going out Dec. 18 is bound for Charleston AFB in South Carolina.
- Dec. 20 Westover AFB in Massachusetts is the final destination in December.

All soldiers should check on the departure time of their flight two days beforehand and each day thereafter. Soldiers should arrive the day of their flight as early as possible to insure there isn't any mix-up in the flight.

Sheriff's Target

Recently there have been two reported incidents of RAPE — one in the local civilian community and one on the installation.

In both incidents, the female victims were stopped while driving alone in their automobiles by a male utilizing a small flashing blue light attached to the dashboard of his vehicle giving the false impression that the vehicle was occupied by a law enforcement officer. Unfortunately, such was not the case! The white male turned out to be a determined rapist.

Provost Marshal
Col. Ward

CAUTION: Do not stop your vehicle on the Fort Benning reservation for any vehicle utilizing a flashing blue light attached to the dashboard. If you observe this, proceed immediately to a well-lighted, populated area such as the Military Police Station, Outpost #1 at the main entrance, the Mall when it's open, etc., or anywhere that people are present. Operators of law enforcement vehicles equipped with similar types of blue dashboard lights are aware of this situation.

This week's article discusses the crime of RAPE. Please read it and become aware of the crime.

What is the most frequently committed violent crime in the United States? What violent crime strikes at women of all ages, from five-year-old girls to 80-year-old women? The answer to both of these questions is RAPE. Today a RAPE is committed in the United States approximately every two minutes. The next victim could be your mother, your daughter, your sister, your friend, or YOU.

RAPE is a sexual act forced on a woman who is not willing. It is a violation of a woman's body, mind and spirit. It is a crime of anger in which sex is a weapon. Sometimes it is forcible sexual intercourse, often it is repeated intercourse plus some form of oral or anal sex. It is almost always accompanied by verbal abuse and psychological humiliation.

Who are the potential victims of this crime of anger? Not just some woman somewhere, but you! RAPE knows no color, no ethnic grouping, no age limit. It does occur most often to young women. In cases involving female military personnel, almost 50 percent of the time the assault occurs on post. It need not happen to you. A study has shown that the single most common contributing factor to the occurrence of RAPE was the acceptance of a ride from a stranger. How many times this year have you been a possible victim?

Does the victim have something to do with making herself the victim? SOME men assume that a woman, who is dressed seductively, is "looking for action." Seductive dress could be an invitation to a RAPE attack. Skimpy or scanty or even tight fitting clothing may mark YOU as a possible target.

Intoxication is another contributing factor to a RAPE attack. Avoid having too much to drink at a party or a club. Intoxication clouds judgement, makes you less perceptive of danger and even dangerous situations. Women who are intoxicated may become a prime target for the rapist. Know your drinking capacity and if possible have a trusted friend escort you.

There are measures that you can take to decrease your chances of becoming a victim of a RAPE attack:

- Never hitchhike, or accept rides from strangers or enter a vehicle with a group of males, even if you casually know them.
- If possible, never walk alone — there is safety in numbers. If you must walk alone, be alert and take the following precautions:
- Walk in well lighted areas.
- Walk in the middle of the sidewalk.
- Avoid dark alleys, doorways or isolated areas.
- Do not respond to catcalls, whistles, or remarks.
- Keep your hands free and never overload yourself with packages.
- When driving, always keep your car locked and look in the back seat before entering. Keep your windows rolled up, if possible.
- If your car should break down, raise the hood and remain in the car. If a motirist stops, ask him to call the police or a tow truck. When help arrives, ask to see appropriate identification before unlocking the door or rolling down the window.

If you are a RAPE victim, report it immediately to the military police. It is especially important that you report the crime because if you don't, he may RAPE you or someone else again. The next time you may not be lucky enough to live through the experience. When you report a RAPE to the police there are certain things you must do:

- It is important that you do not douche or wash.
- Do not wash or destroy clothing.
- Report all details of the attack.
- Describe the attacker.

The military police will see to it that you receive immediate medical care. Medical treatment is important not only for your well-being but also to collect evidence. You will be examined and treated for bodily injuries.

When the police apprehend the suspect, you will have to be a witness in a court proceeding. You will be asked detailed questions which you must answer to the best of your ability. Always keep in mind that this is necessary in order to keep the rapist from attacking you or others again.

Remember there are preventive measures that you can take to decrease your chances of becoming a RAPE victim. The purpose of this article was not to scare you — but to make you AWARE.

"WHEN YOU'RE A CIVILIAN AGAIN, AN EXTRA $1,300 A YEAR SURE COMES IN HANDY."

"I got out of the Army in February of 1977, right when all the prices were going up. Food. Clothing. Gas. You name it and it went up.

"Fortunately, when I was out-processing, someone asked me if I wanted to make some extra money with a local Army Reserve unit, and I said yes.

"It's good I joined right away, because it took me a couple of months to find a good full-time job.

"Even with a regular job, the extra $1,300 I earned with the Reserve came in handy. It was the difference between barely making ends meet and being able to put a little money away.

"By going direct from Active into the Reserve, I was also able to keep my rank of E-4. I'm now an E-5, pulling in over $1,600 a year. Not bad for a weekend a month and two weeks annual training.

"I'm also taking advantage of some other benefits. I buy a lot of my auto supplies at the PX. I carry low-cost government life insurance through the Reserve. I also think the retirement package is a good deal.

| How much can you make part-time with the Army Reserve? | Per Weekend | Per Year |
|---|---|---|
| E-3 with 2+ years | $73.08 | $1231.41 |
| 3+ years | 76.04 | 1248.03 |
| E-4 with 3+ years | 80.52 | 1360.44 |
| 4+ years | 86.80 | 1459.35 |
| E-5 with 4+ years | 89.24 | 1510.38 |
| 6+ years | 95.08 | 1602.36 |

"A side benefit that's helped me is the additional training I've picked up in the Reserve. I was an MP on active duty but have become an Accounting Specialist in the Reserve. Right now, that's helping me with the business degree I'm working toward at a local college.

"So I can recommend the Army Reserve to anyone coming off active duty. The extra income is good, and it's nice being with people who can appreciate what you achieved in the service."

Airport NCO helps soldiers

Soldiers need to help other soldiers. That's just what the Liaison NCO's at the Columbus Metropolitan Airport do.

"Our job is to welcome the new soldiers going to Fort Benning, answer any questions they may have and direct them to their new assignment," said SSgt. Bob Wells, one of the Airport Liaison NCO's.

Located behind a counter just inside the terminal, the first thing the Liaison NCO does is make an announcement so the soldiers will know where the airport's Military Liaison Booth is.

"After greeting a soldier, the first thing we ask is what units he's going to," said Wells. "If he says he doesn't know, we ask him for a copy of his orders and tell him."

"We also make sure all his baggage came in. If it didn't the airport makes arrangements to send it to the soldier as soon as it arrives," he added.

Wells went on to say that maps of post are available for the soldiers' use. They can locate their new unit and find the quickest route to get there.

Information distributed

"We also give them a Welcome Edition newspaper which gives information about Fort Benning and the community, along with the latest copy of the BAYONET," he said.

If soldiers don't have prior arrangements for transportation, the Liaison assists them in getting it.

Taxis are really the only transportation available," said SFC Eugene Steele, another Liaison NCO. "Although they get reimbursed for the fare, we try to save the soldiers money by grouping them together to take the same taxi if they're going to the same place."

A pamphlet is available which lists taxi fares to different locations. Also, taxi overcharge slips are available if soldier feels he's been overcharged. The slip is turned into the orderly room, which in turn contacts the taxi company or the Airport Liaison, if needed.

"Some people arrive with Metra bus tickets, but can't use them here because there are no buses available," said Steele.

"What we'd really like to have is a carry-all for taking the soldiers to post," he added. "We feel this would be a big help, and save both time and money."

One of the main problems the Liasons encounter is soldiers who arrive withno money and have to wait for transportation, according to Wells.

"But most of the time, it's not their fault," he commented. "Sometimes they didn't receive any pay at their last unit or they have some other problem."

Departures helped

"The Liaison then calls the Transportation Motor Pool (TMP) for transportation," he continued. "We really don't have many problems with TMP - we realize they have other missions - so we explain to the soldiers that's why they have to wait."

Although their main job is to help arriving soldiers, the Liaison NCOs also assist those leaving. "This is a highly visible place for soldiers to be seen," said Wells, "so we make sure they are in the correct uniform and maintain the proper military appearance."

"If we let them know something is wrong and they correct it, that's fine," he continued. "But if they give us a hard time, we'll write them up if we have to."

Another thing the Liaisons watch for is soldiers going into the bar and drinking too much before getting on the plane. "We try to make sure they act like soldiers since they are in the public eye," said Wells. "The Airport Security Police are a big help and keep us informed about what's going on throughout the terminal."

fatigues undesirable

Wells added that it would be a big help if a drill sergeant would come to the airport with the soldiers who are going home after graduation from the 1st Infantry Training Brigade.

"I've been here since March and have only seen a drill come out one time," he said. "And it really helped things go more smoothly."

Fatigues should not be worn to the airport except in certain cases, according to Wells. "They should be worn only when seeing someone off, meeting someone, or if the person's a drill sergeant," he said. "Also, if a soldier has fatigues on, he can't go into the bar."

Another problem encountered by the Liaisons is when soldiers in training come back from emergency leave with no money.

Wells said when this happens he calls their company and is often told there is nothing they can do, so he has to call elsewhere on post for transportation. "This doesn't happen every time, but it does happen," he added.

Liason helps out

Both Wells and Steele said they have ended up taking some soldiers back to post themselves at one time or another. "They end up sitting here until the airport starts closing up," said Steele, who lives in Phenix City. "So what can we do, we can't just leave them here."

There is only one Liaison on duty at a time, and he must perform his job of helping and keeping order of all the soldiers in the airport.

Besides Wells and Steele, there is SFC Donald Tundy, who is the NCOIC of the airport's Military Liasion office. Other Liaisons are Sergeants Allen East and Eddie Gunn. They are all either assigned or attached to the 18th Replacement Detachment, 36th Engineer Group.

Christmas safety brings holiday cheer

'Twas weeks before Christmas and all through the world People are preparing for the holiday twirl
Here are some reminders for you holiday celebrants
For a happy holiday without any accidents
If you buy a tree
fresh it should be
With the needles all tight while the branches feel springy
Keep water in the stand and check all the lights
For broken insulation and loose sockets will bite
Don't overload circuits use extension cords sparingly
If you leave or go to bed be sure to unplug your tree
If you have a fireplace keep your tree away from it
And don't burn gift wrappings or leave combustibles close to it

If you come in a car and have a bit too much to sip
Let someone sober drive to insure a safe trip
Make sure your car is prepared for winter conditions
Watch out for pedestrians and leave early for your destination
Keep your things locked help prevent crime
Lock your doors when you park don't leave keys behind
Keep your packages and other valuables out of sight
At night park your car in places with lots of light
Leave a spare key with a well trusted neighbor
Dont hide it outside even amateurs look there
And when you're away make you're house looked occupied
So use a light timer and hide your valuables inside
Tell all of your kids not to play alone or in the woods
To stay away from strangers for they just might happen to be hoods
If you are attacked shout or blow a whistle
The attacker should run like a supersonic missile Enjoy the holidays and the enjoyment of giving
Be safe, not sorry
and cherish the gift of living

More Support helps make milita

By Becky Bulgrin
BAYONET staff writer

There are people seen all around Fort Benning everyday wearing dark blue pants, light blue shirts and blue and white hats - not the usual military uniform.

However, these people are not only a part of the military, they are a big part with an important job. They provide services for various recreational activities, programs and facilities around post for the military population in the area.

They are soldiers or DoD civilians themselves and work for the post's Morale Support Activities Division. Morale Support Activities helps give soldiers something to do instead of spending their off time stuck in the barracks. The list of services and activities provided by Morale Support is long including sports of all kinds, outdoor recreation such as camping, boating or fishing, and photography, to name just a few.

So, if you're bored, don't want to travel far, but think there's nothing to do around here, you might be surprised to find that Morale Support Activities offers the following:

Sports

Sports activities include a post level football team, the Doughboys, who just ended their season with a 4-6 record. There are also company level flag football teams who compete for the post flag championship at the end of their season. There is company level softball in which both men and women can participate. A men's team is formed to compete in TRADOC competition, and there is a post women's team which also competes in TRADOC. The men's team took first in TRADOC tournaments this season. Unit level soccer teams play in intramural competition, with a post soccer team selected from the best players of the teams. Benning has a boxing team which competes with other Army teams and teams around the area. Company level basketball is getting ready for their season, along with the post level Doughboys and Doughgirls basketball teams, which compete in the TRADOC tournaments in March. Benning's tennis team participated in TRADOC's tennis tournament and the post is now looking for people interested in participating on a track team.

Sports for dependents include Youth Activities football, soccer, baseball and a girl's softball team. There is also a Youth Center and gym on post and a monthly calendar is put out for announcing other dependent youth activities.

Morale Support has the job of maintaining fields and grounds for these activities, providing uniforms and equipment for the post level teams, and is responsible for entering teams in the TRADOC tournaments.

Morale Support also sponsors Swim for Your Life and Run for Your Life programs.

There are six gyms on Fort Benning, five outdoor pools and one indoors at Briant Wells Fieldhouse. Some of these facilities have racquetball, handball and squash courts, weight rooms and saunas. These facilities are also maintained by Morale Support, and the workers must work weekends and evening hours to keep them open.

Arts and Crafts

The main post Arts and Crafts Center offers woodworking, ceramics, leatherwork, and a photo lab. Morale Support workers offer instruction in these crafts and maintain the center. A music center is located on the second floor with many different instruments that can be signed out and played there. The hours of operation are Tuesday through Friday, from 1:30 to 9:30 p.m., Saturday from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Sunday 11 a.m. to 7:30 p.m.

The Kelley Hill Arts and Crafts Center also offers woodworking and a photo lab. They are open Tuesday through Friday from 1:30 to 9 p.m. and Saturday from 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. They are closed on Sunday and Monday.

Auto Crafts shops are also located on main post and Kelley Hill. The one on Main Post is open Tuesday through Friday from 1:30 to 9:30 p.m., Saturday from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Sunday 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. Their number is 545-2564 for more information. Kelley Hill's is open Tuesday through Friday from 1:30 to 9 p.m., Saturday from 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. and Sunday, 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. Their number is 544-1467.

There are three Recreation Centers on post. Two of the centers, located on Harmony Church, are oriented to the 1st Infantry Training Brigade and offer games, T.V. and special events. The other one is located on Kelley Hill and is geared toward personnel in the 197th Infantry Brigade.

Outdoor Recreation

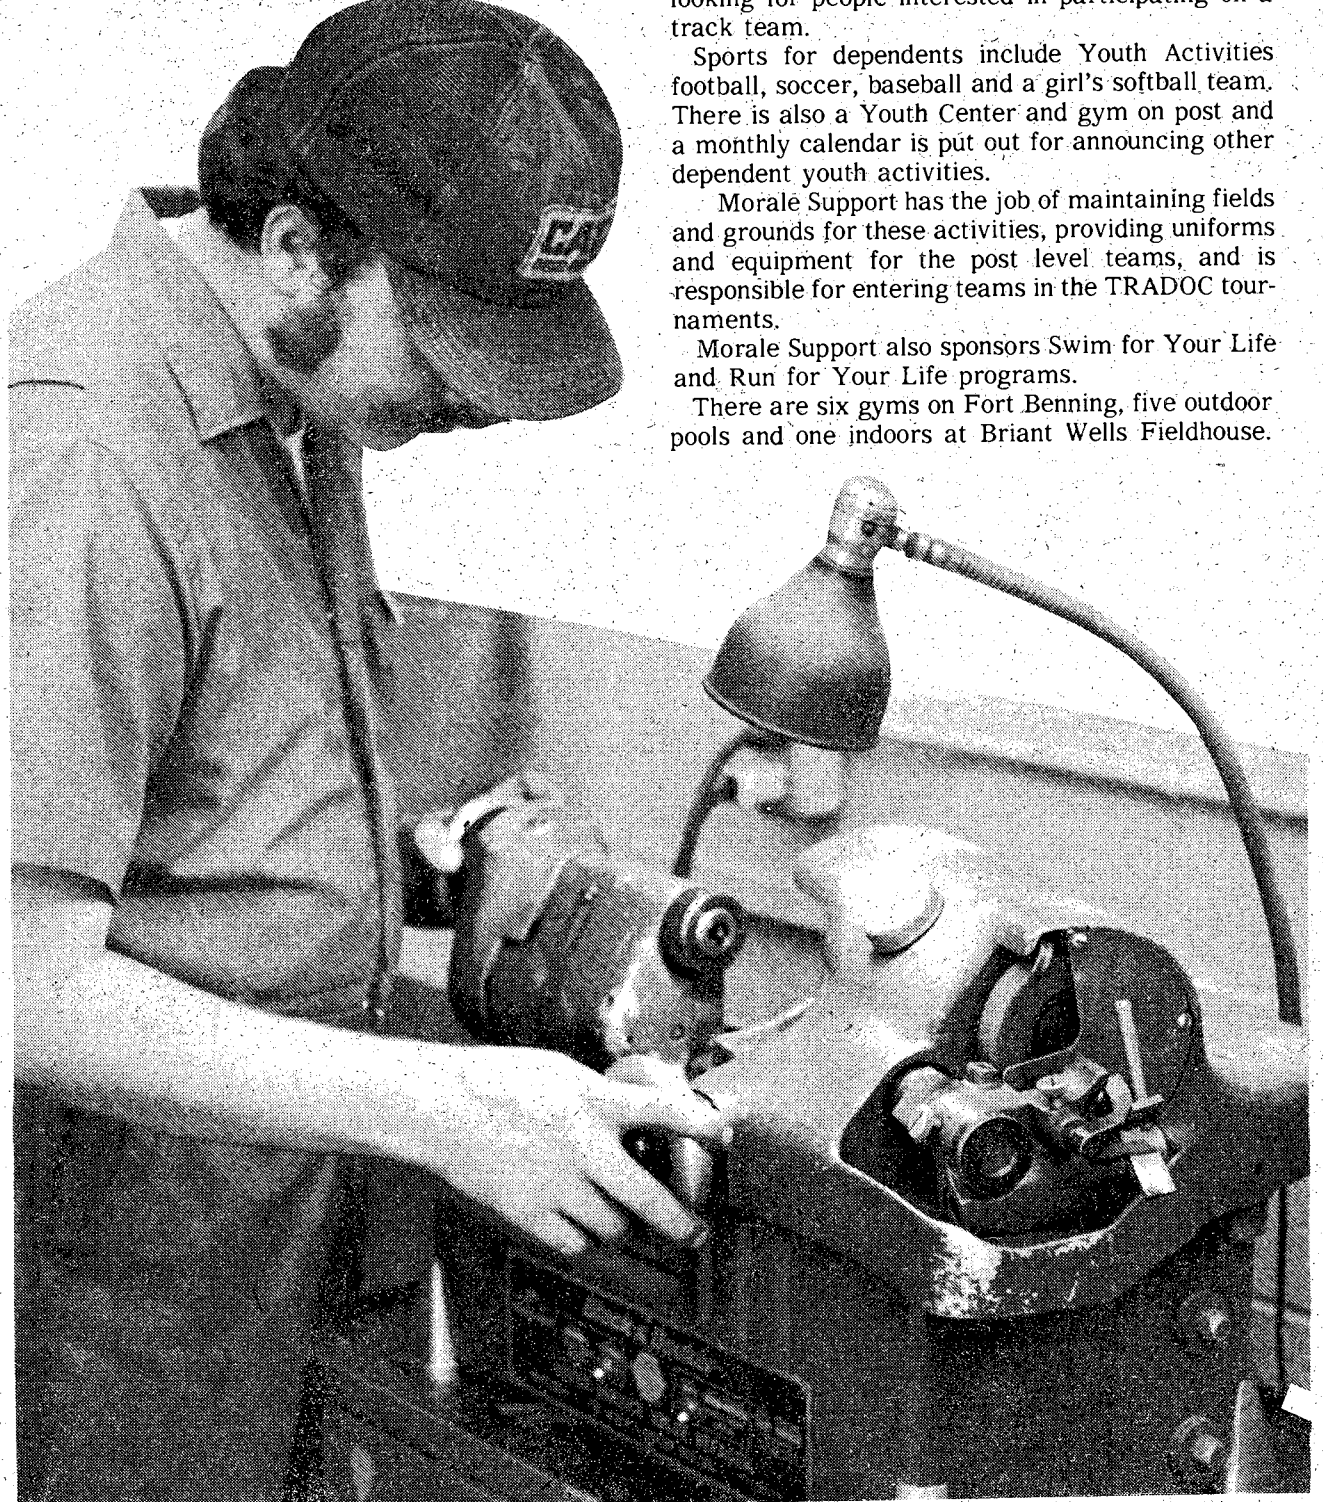
There are two 18-hole golf courses on Fort Benning where golfers can participate in tournaments. A Clubhouse and Pro Shop are part of the "Follow Me" golf course.



Morale Support worker Wayne Sanders, civilian, works with one of the many machines available at the Auto Crafts shop on main post. People can use the equipment to work on their vehicles at the shop six days a week.

Call 545-5057 for more information.

For further information about programs and activities call the Morale Support Activities Support Branch at 545-7453.

According to Maj. Goodman, chief of Morale Support Activities Division, there is not as much participation in the post activities which are offered as there used to be. "This is partly due to people living off post, or living close to home," he said. "Another reason is that a lot of people don't know these things are available."

Goodman went on to say that it takes a lot of dedication for Morale Support workers to work the hours they do. "We try to serve the customer as best we can," he said. "Like being open during the hours which are convienient for his use."

Morale Support operates on a budget, and according to Goodman, it's like being in a business. "Hopefully, we will get enough money to provide more services to people and be able to keep the current ones available."

Just because Morale Support workers are involved in a job to provide recreational services and activities to people, doesn't mean their job is a recreational one itself. These people must work hard and are here to provide and maintain services for the benefit of other's leisure time activities.

So the next time a friend says there's nothing to do, you'll know better. There's plenty if you really want to get out and do it.

Coach wants grapplers with experience to train

By Becky Bulgrin
BAYONET sports editor

Sports activities of all kinds are a big thing here. Wrestling, another well-loved sport, will be added to the list if people continue to show an interest in the idea.

A team is in the making and the man behind it is Dennis Williams. He's been the assistant coach for the All-Army Wrestling team for the past two years.

"I'm looking for people with some kind of wrestling experience who can be trained to compete for the All-Army team in February," said Williams.

Army personnel from all over the world wrestle at the All-Army camp in West Point, N.Y. Eliminations are made to come up with the All-Army team. The team competes in the 1981 Interservice Wrestling Tournaments, which will be held in San Francisco. Wrestlers who do well in the Interservice Tournaments get the chance to participate in the National Amateur Athletic Union (AAU) tournaments.

Williams will train wrestlers in the Olympic style wrestling. This includes Greco Roman wrestling, where legs cannot be used at all, and Freestyle, where legs can be used. Wrestlers on the All-Army team need to know both styles.

Williams won the Olympic wrestling trials in 1976, and was ranked number four in the AAU for 1978, which included wrestlers from all over the United States. Last year Williams went to Bagdad, Iraq for the CISM Wrestling Championships and came back with a Silver Medal.

"Due to my job and because my commanders don't think they can operate without me, I may not be able to compete in the All-Army competition myself," said Williams. "But I still want to give other wrestlers a chance to."

Williams will be training interested wrestlers this month and next for the competition. Training will take place at Briant Wells Fieldhouse and the number of days per week depends on the number of people interested and Williams' work load. Times will be from approximately 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. There are already many people interested and anyone else who would like to participate should contact Williams at 544-6489 for more information.

YA basketball

Youth basketball registration will continue through Monday at Youth Activities, Bldg. 1054, from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Registration fee is $10 for the first child, $7.50 for the second child, $5 for the third and thereafter free.

The Youth basketball team draft will be conducted at Bldg. 1054 Wednesday at 6 p.m. Coaches will draw teams starting at approximately 8 p.m.

Also, there will be a Youth basketball coaches and officials clinic at the Youth Activities gym, Bldg. 1055, on Dec. 13 at 10 a.m.

Doughgirls tryouts

There will be a Doughgirls basketball team organizational meeting Monday at 7:30 p.m. in Briant Wells Fieldhouse. Between 12 and 15 players are needed for the team.

Practice is scheduled to start Tuesday and the season runs through March. For more information call the coach, Perry Graves, at 545-2461.

'Cudas open season

The Youth Activities Swim Team opened the Amateur Athletic Union (AAU) short course season by participating in Columbus, Atlanta and Augusta in November.

Four swimmers competed in the Columbus Acquatic Club Halloween Classic. This was an A-B meet with more than 300 participants. The Barracudas placed in several events and got a look at the competition they will be facing in the future.

On Nov. 15 and 16, 20 Barracudas traveled to Atlanta for a B-C meet. This was the first competition for many members of the team. Although Lyman King was the only Cuda to place, all of the swimmers gained experience and established times for future competition.

Roland White and David Christensen participated in an A-B meet in Augusta on Nov. 23 and 24. Both swimmers won awards in each of the six events in which they competed. White won two first places, a second, a third and two sixth places. Christensen won three third places, a fourth and two fifth places.

The team works out daily from 5 to 6:30 p.m. at Briant Wells Field House. If anyone is interested in joining the team, contact Col. Christensen at 689-5710 or Maj. White at 687-3634.

BAYONET correction

The BAYONET would like to make a correction on last week's story about Youth Activities football competition. Leroy Sells and Bob Theriault are coaches for the Panthers, not the Jets.

Doughboys tip off

The Fort Benning Doughboys basketball team is ready to go! They will start their season with two games this weekend against the Albany Marines.

The first game takes place tonight at 7 p.m. at Briant Wells Fieldhouse and the second is tomorrow at 2 p.m., also at Briant Wells. There is no admission charge.

According to the coach, Oliver Green, this year's team is basically new. "There are only four returning players," he said, "and I think we have a better team this year."

Green went on to say that the team will be playing a different style of ball. "We'll be playing a more collegiate type game, and will be running more pattern offense and basically a man to man defense."

He added that the team is a larger one overall this year according to height.

"We expect a good game against Albany, but we should come out successful both games," he commented.

Green was the assistant coach here last year and before that was the assistant coach for three years in Hawaii. He has been coaching basketball for the last ten years, mostly for military teams.

The games played during the season are called exhibition games to prepare the Doughboys for the TRADOC tournaments in March.

The next game will be Dec. 14 at 2 p.m. in Briant Wells Fieldhouse. The Doughboys will compete against a team from Bellwood Heights in Columbus.

Marksmen earn Brazil golds

By Tommy Poole
BAYONET Correspondent
U.S. Army Marksmanship Unit

Ernest Vande Zande and Erich Buljung scored individual gold medal victories and sparked the United States to the overall medal winning nation in the IV Grand Prix Shooting Championships of Brazil held Nov. 17-21.

Eleven members of the U.S. Army Marksmanship Unit, along with 14 Army Reserve marksmen, accounted for the U.S. total of seven gold, 10 silver and four bronze medals to outscore runner-up Argentina with three gold, one silver and three bronze.

In individual action, Buljung captured the initial gold medal for the U.S. in the Air Pistol event with 388 points out of 400. Jean Faggion of France finished second at 386, followed by Philippe Cola of France at 385.

Buljung also picked up a gold team medal in the Center Fire event and a silver medal in the Air Pistol team event.

John Kailer finished second in Standard Pistol at 571 points to win the silver behind Oscar Yustom of Argentina, who fired a winning 573 points out of 600.

Vande Zande won the 50-meter English Match with 598 points out of 600, one point ahead of Daniel Nipkon of Switzerland at 597. Lones Wigger finished third at 595.

Vande Zande also scored a gold in the Air Rifle team event and two silvers in the 50-meter Three Position and English Match events.

Army Reservist Karen Monez placed second in both the 50-meter Three Position and 10-meter Air Rifle events, losing the Three Position match by one point to Peter Heinz of West Germany, 1,159 to 1,158 points. Her score of 381 points was six behind Hans Minder of Switzerland in the Air Rifle event.

In shotgun competition, this years National Trap Champion, Earnest Neel, broke 189 targets to finish second behind the former Olympic and World Champion, Michel Carrega of France, who scored 192 out of 200 birds.

The U.S. team of Neel, Dan Wenner, and Robert Green won the event, however, scoring 421 targets to Canada's 410. High lady honors went to USAMU's Wendy Loomis, who totaled 161 targets.

In international skeet competition, Argentina's Roberti Firmo scored a winning 197 out of 200, while USAMU's Matthew Dryke finished third at 193 followed by Dean Clark in fourth place at 192. The U.S. and Great Britain tied in the skeet team event with identical scores of 421 followed by Chile in third place at 418.

Erich Buljung, of the United States Army Marksmanship Unit, takes steady aim. Buljung defeated competitors from eleven other nations in this year's IV Grand Prix of Brazil, scoring 388 points out of 400 in the ten-meter Air Pistol event.

Doughboy fullback Donald Smith (20) fights off a tackle attempt by Carson Newman College's Tony Boston (16) during the Doughboys' first game of the season Sept. 13. The Doughboys played before a crowd of 7,000 and came away with a 23-13 victory over the Eagles. Smith joined forces with surprising star Christian Lamar to power their way throughout the game past the Eagles' defensive wall.

Doughboys look to next year

By Becky Bulgrin
BAYONET sports editor

The Fort Benning Doughboys' season shot off to a good start when they defeated rivals Carson-Newman 23-13 in their first game. But it ended in defeat against Alabama State's junior varsity 28-12, while the Doughboys tried to come out with a 500 season.

According to Head Coach Ralph Santaliz, the team played better than the record shows. "We just happened to have a tougher schedule this year," he said. "We only played one non-college team and ended up playing three varsity teams. And all the teams we defeated were good ones."

Running back Christian Lamar starred in the first win as he carried the ball six straight times on the Doughboys' last scoring drive.

While Newman was a junior varsity team, Benning faced Miles College in the season's second and was shot down by the varsity team 40-21.

Lamar scored first from the two, quarterback Leamon Hall scored on a sneak from the half-yard line, and Gregory Knight was hit by a Hall 60-yard touchdown pass. Andre Tyler kicked for the extra points.

The Doughboys came back from Fort Bragg with a 23-12 loss to the Dragons in a penalty ridden third game defeat. Hall made the Doughboys' points on two one-yard quarterback sneaks.

It looked as if there was no end in sight for the Doughboys' losing streak as they were wiped out by the University of Alabama's junior varsity 30-8 in Doughboy Stadium Oct. 3.

But the Doughboys came out of their slump to take their second win by defeating the University of Florida. With the return of wide receiver Freddie Suggs and the passing by Hall, the Doughboys pulled out a 48-26 victory over the Gators.

Suggs caught two touchdown passes and Clennie Brundidge caught three from Hall, who connected on 24 out of 39 for 340 yards. Hall also ran for two TDs during the well-deserved win. Defensive tackle Eddie Adams recovered a Gator fumble just before the Doughboys' final score. Lamar led a good running game with 157 yards in 31 carries and interceptions by defensive back Howard Hunter and Fred Wilkens added to sweet victory. Andre Tyler and Reginald Terry made the extra points.

The Doughboys didn't let up and went on to defeat the Citadel junior varsity Oct. 18 in Doughboy Stadium. Taking advantage of eight Bulldog turnovers, Benning took their third win 35-21.

Head coach Ralph Santaliz cleared the bench during the game, which resulted in touchdowns by five different players. Defensive back Charles Mata intercepted at the Doughboy six. Nine plays later wide receiver Julian Hardy scored on a 24-yard Hall pass.

Eddie Adams recovered a Bulldog fumble and two plays later Lamar scored from the one. Defensive back Larry Connor intercepted on the Bulldog 48 and after six plays Hall connected with tight end Larry Anderson on an 18-yard pass just inside the goal line.

The Doughboys took a third quarter Bulldog kickoff 79-yards in 11 plays and scored when Hall hit Suggs from 29-yards out.

Hall passed 52-yards to Richard Fletcher to increase their lead to 35-14, before the Bulldogs scored their final TD.

The Doughboys, with many injuries, traveled to Jacksonville (Ala.) State University and were defeated by the Gamecocks 31-14. It didn't help the offense when the Doughboys were missing two receivers and three linemen. Robert Jackson scored from the six with 2:02 left in the first half and James Marshall added the final score in the second. Larry Anderson connected for the two-point conversion.

A heart-breaking defeat for the Doughboys came when they faced Auburn's junior varsity Nov. 2 in Doughboy Stadium. The War Eagles scored in the last 31 seconds, edging out a 29-22 win over Benning.

A 22-yard field goal by Mata gave the Doughboys their first three points. Ronald Scott broke several tackles and went around left end for the second score after an 18-yard run by Sammy Lockhart. A fantastic double-reverse option pass by Hall went to Brundidge, who scored on the 43-yard play, giving the Doughboys a 16-14 edge over Auburn.

Lockhart dashed up the middle making a 50-yard run, then Hall scored on an 11-yard keeper to tie the game before Auburn made their winning TD.

With only two games left, the Doughboys needed to lift their spirits and did when they came home from Georgia Tech with a 21-13 victory over their junior varsity.

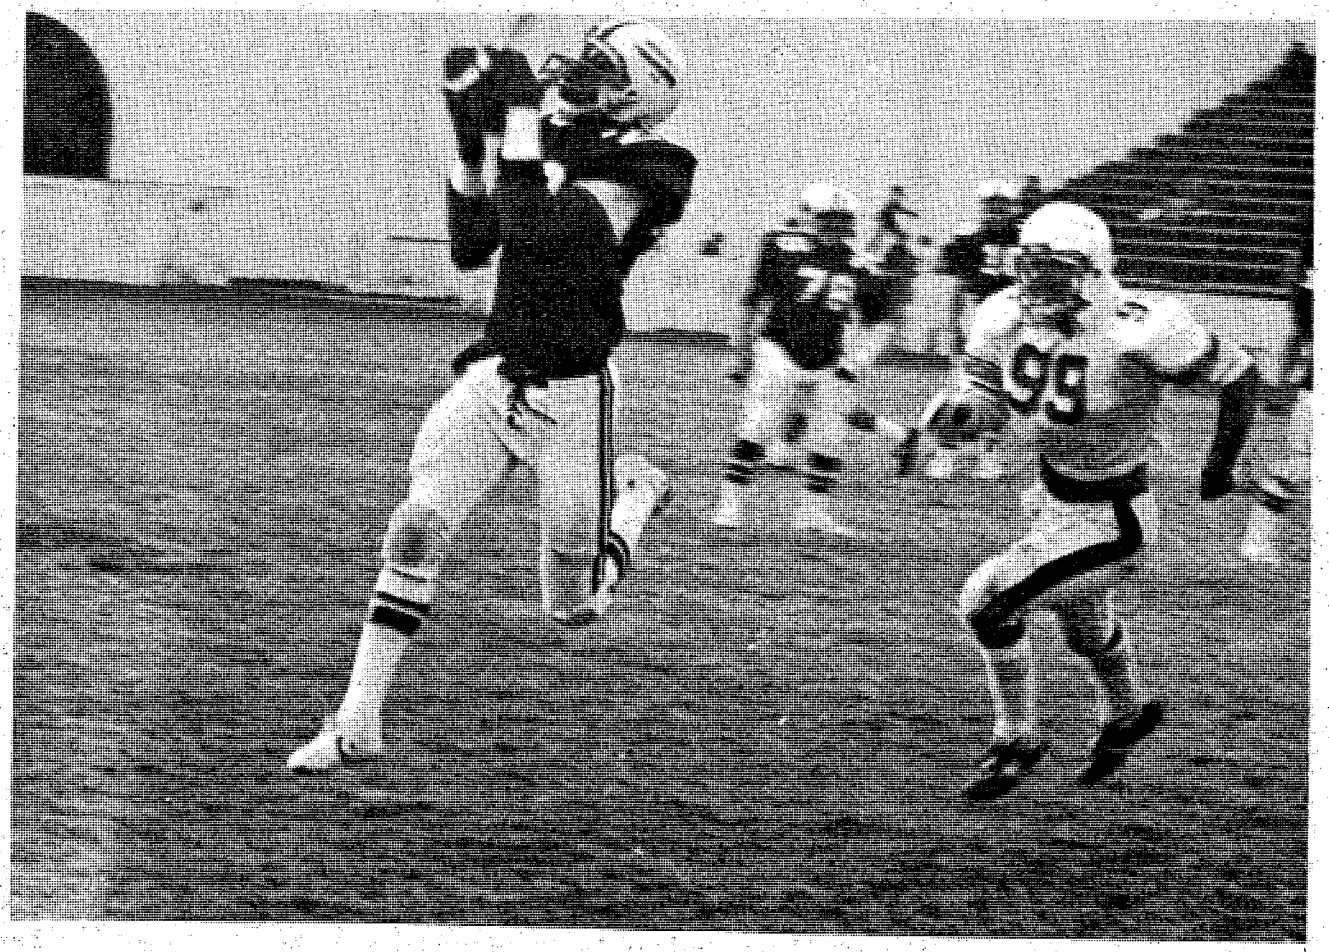
With 9:51 left in the first quarter, Lockhart rambled 51-yards down the sideline for the Doughboys' first score. Hall scored on a keeper from 11-yards out in the second and scored again on a one-yard sneak after a three-play, 44-yard drive.

Santaliz said one thing that hurt the team was players not being able to make it to practices. "Next year we're going to see if we can get the team members off for practice," he said. "Some of our losses were due to a lack of practice before the games."

The coach also said practice started too late this year, and plans on having it start in the spring for the next season.

"Other advantages for next year are all the coaches should be returning except for one, and we expect to play more junior varsity teams."

Santaliz commended the assistant coaches and everyone on the team for doing a fine job. He also said that everyone would like to thank William J. Northquest, 1st Infantry Training Brigade commander, along with the other officers and drill sergeants, for bringing their training soldiers to the games. "They all gave us outstanding support throughout the season."



Doughboy wide receiver Julian Harden jumps high in the air to connect with a pass from quarterback Leamon Hall as an Auburn University defender trails behind. It was a heartbreaker for the Doughboys when they lost to Auburn's junior varsity in the last 31 seconds of the game 29-22.

Spoils go to victors

By Tim Boivin
BAYONET Staff writer

. What with all the uproar over whether or not Vince Dooley is going to Auburn and leaving Georgia, a major news announcement escaped the sport's editors all over Georgia.

As a sport's columnist, I have been offered a job with a new amateur sport's magazine called "Outside Sports Unillistrated" as a contributing columnist. Well, there was a little thing called loyalty, what with all the things The BAYONET has done for me(weekend work and nights), so I talked over what Outside Sports Unillustrated(OSU) was going to give me with my editor.

The first thing they offered me was a key to the executive washroom. Boy, what a step up. I was just getting used to the communal facilities in the barracks. On top of that, they said they'd give me my own coffee cup and it would be ceramic, to boot. Sure beats those styrofoam thingies I've had to use for the past year.

Also, and this was the biggie, they said besides being the actual physical sport's columnist, I could do the administrative work for the column. This was a real step up. Before, all that I had to do was type the words but now I had a chance to fill out all the paperwork that went with it.

My editor knew he couldn't match what they offered me, especially since their previous columnist had been booted out by avid, not to mention livid, readers. He made the unAmerican mistake of attacking Joe DiMaggio's coffee commercials in a column. Americans may be unhappy but they're still patriotic. Any dumb two-fingered typist knows that. That's blessed territory he infringed, something I know better than to do.

Well, my editor said he couldn't give me the key to an executive washroom, but he promised to write my name on the subway walls someday. He also promised to look into getting me a fresh styrofoam cup each week. As for the paperwork, he thought I was nuts but he said, "If you want the paperwork you can have it. It's a pain in the neck and has been ever since you were here. Just getting the danged column off the ground used enough paperwork to fell a Sequoia."

It took me a long time to mull it over. Meanwhile, no sensationalist press were calling me in the middle of the night to find out what I would do. A whole state didn't hang in the balance and, besides, anybody can write a column. Look at me.

I finally decided to stay. The paperwork was what did it. My dad's been bogged down in it for years and I always wanted to follow in his footsteps. Besides, you can't beat that taste of fresh styrofoam every Monday morning. Besides, after drinking all that coffee, you get the best gossip while talking to your buddies in the communal latrine facilities.

Boxers battle best

The Fort Benning boxing team traveled to Fort Bragg last weekend to compete against their team which is rated number one in the United States.

Although they only won three out of the nine bouts fought, Benning put on a good show against Bragg and learned a lot from the fight, according to boxing coach Anthony Stoddard.

"We got a chance to work out with Bragg's team prior to the fight," he said. "It was good experience and we ended up having a lot of close matches against them."

Benning's Roderick Williams won by a decision against Fort Bragg's featherweight, who is rated number one in the Army. According to Stoddard, Williams beat him on speed alone and the last round was the deciding one.

"He just started punching in that last round and didn't stop," said the coach.

A highlight of the night was Kelvin Green's bout, according to Stoddard. "After losing the first two rounds, Green went for broke and knocked out his opponent with 1:10 to go," he said.

Benning's Dwayne Edwards won his fight after a recount because the match was so close. He ended up winning by one point.

According to Stoddard, William Gonzales fought a very close bout and the decision was questionable.

Gregory Harris, a newcomer to the team, fought his first open fight at Bragg and lost by a split decision.

Other close fights were lost by Willie Thompson, Greg Staten and Augusta Miranda. Heavyweight Donald Larsen, back with the team after a break, also put up a good fight, according to Stoddard.

Five Benning boxers will fight tomorrow night at 7:30 in Comer Auditorium. Billed as Georgia Amateur Boxing, the competition is being presented by the Muscogee County boxing team.

Ringside seats are $5, general admission is $3 and student tickets are $1.50. Comer Auditorium is located in Bibb City (a section of Columbus) on 2nd Avenue and 43rd Street.

Benning's next home smoker will be Dec. 13 in Briant Wells Fieldhouse at 7 p.m. They will face boxers from Fort Gordon and the Marines from Albany.

The team is going to try to have one more home match in January, but this may be their last one before preparation for the FORSCOM tournaments in February, according to the coach.

Admission is free and there are 100 ringside seats available on a first come, first-served basis. Anyone interested should come by Crain Hall, Bldg. 229.

Tornados take crown

Fort Benning's youth soccer team, the Tornados, recently took first place in the Columbus Youth Soccer League championships, then went on to take first in the City Tournament.

The Tornados had an undefeated season, with one tie, during regular league play and won every game during the playoffs before taking the League Championship. The top four teams in each division of the League then played in the double elimination City Tournament.

The Tornados were defeated 3-2 during double overtime play in one game of the City Tourney. They came back to take the City title by defeating the same team 1-0.

Benning had a total of nine teams competing in the Columbus Youth Soccer League, which started its season in September. There were two teams in the under eight age group, two in the under 10 age group, two in the under 12 group, two in the under 14 group and one team in the under 19 age group. The Fort Benning II Tornados are in the under 10 group.

The teams consisted of military dependents and just finished their season at the end of November.

Clauson tours Fort Benning

By Brian Adams.

Sgt. 1st Class James S. Clauson, TRADOC Drill Sergeant of the year, toured Fort Benning and the 1st Infantry Training Brigade recently.

Like other installations he has visited since replacing SFC Robert E. Hall as the top Drill Sergeant, Clauson was here to evaluate the Initial Entry Training (IET) program and the Drill Sergeants.

"The soldiers I've met and had the oportunity to talk with are highly motivated," he said. "They are ready to join the force."

"These men here," he commented, pointing at the group of drill sergeants standing next to him, "are responsible for this attitude. They are what make the difference."

During his tour of Fort Benning, Clauson was taken to the various ranges within the Malone Complex, the Drill Sergeants School and he also attended some conferences directed torwards the IET held at Bldg. 4.

As an advisor and a Point of Contact between TRADOC and it's sbbordinate units, Clauson has made a few suggestions on how training could be improved.

"First, I would make the Drill Sergeant School a more rigid, live-in lock step course," he said. "I would also get Department of the Army assignments branch to assign drill sergeants at 110 percent of authorized strength to units. I would like to see at least 3 drill sergeants per unit at all times," he said.

The one program that Clauson suggested and has had initiated has been a mini- drill sergeant school. "This school is designed for cadre at Advanced Individual Training schools that aren't normally pusshing troops," he said. "It's 3 weeks in endurance and takes platoon sergeants back to the basics of military discipline, i.e. drill and ceremony, counseling, inspections, etc... "

How About That?

By William W. Erbach, Sr.
36th Engineer Group Chaplain

There was a boy on our block named Ronald who collected things. He collected all sorts of things. His mother called them piffle and wifle. Ron would find things that other people would discard. People gave him things. And he would buy some things that caught his fancy. And where did all these things go?--you guessed it, right in him room. Finally, when most of the space in his room was filled up, Ron's mother told him that something had to go. This presented a serious problem.

He decided to take a walk around the block to think it out. On his journey he saw a garage sale. This was a new thing to Ron, and he thought that the garage itself was for sale. It had a lot of open space, which was just what he needed. He saw a sign that said ten cents.

He plunked his dime down quickly at such a bargain and was he surprised to find that his dime had bought him a broken lamp. But he wasn't disappointed, it had given him an idea. He decided to have a garage sale of his own. So he sorted through all the things that were crowding up his room, and saved only the best. The rest he put in a garage sale. At the end of the day Ron's room was neat, but all up and down the street his playmates' rooms were cluttered with Ron's piffle and wiffle. How About That!!

Sometimes I think that our minds become cluttered with piffle and wiffle. I think we should all occasionally have a garage sale of our minds, keeping the best ideas stored in our brains and discarding the rest. Some of the good ideas we want to keep--like those thoughts of good and beauty and kindness and love. Some useless ideas we need to get rid of--like selfishness, hatred, ugliness and greed. Then our rooms, too, will be straight and neat, and filled only with that which is important and helpful.

WFBG-TV (Channel 13) highlighted

Holidays, U.S. Navy spotlighted

By Bill Powell
WFBG broadcaster

WFBG-TV, with the arrival of December, will featureprogramming to help get the holiday spirit going.

Next week also marks the begining of a cooperative effort between WFBG-TV and the Department of the Navy. In the weeks to come, there will be some programs not only celebrating Christmas but telling the story of what the Navy does in our nation's defense. This feature focuses on the pride our sea-going comrades take in their mission but explainsthe many rich traditions of the United States Navy.

Following are highlights of next weeks programming:

- "Heritage and Horizons" is a program which focuses on the U.S. Navy, it's history and traditions.
- "The Little Drummer Boy" is an offering to help achieve the spirit of Christmas. This program tells the many stories associated with Christmas. A little boy goes to the birthplace of the Christ Child and has no gift to give him, finally he gives him the only gift he can.
- "Tuffy, the Sea Teacher" is the story of a dolphin who teaches facts of the seas for the Navy's porpoises and provides insight on what the Navy is doing with the knowledge learned form sea creatures.
- "One Station Unit Training" is a program designed to give a closeup look at the "OSUT" program here.
- "Christmas in Hong Kong" features the story of a little Chinese refugee boy in Hong Kong who learns the true meaning of Christmas.

Infantry Hall cafeteria to close

As the holidays near with students taking Christmas leaves, Infantry Hall (Bldg. 4), will be less active the usual.

Due to this fact, the cafeteria in the building will close for the holidays starting Dec. 19 until Jan. 5. "With the Infantry School students all gone on Christmas break and everyone else on half-day schedules, it's not economically feasible to operate the cafeteria as normal," explained Norm Williamson, Chief of the Personnel Services division, DPCA.

Several agencies and staff sections will have individuals working during this time period in the building. Those individuals will need to hall-out the brown bags and thermal containers if they want something other than sandwiches for lunch during this time period.

There will be a snack cart operating in the East wing of the building according to Williamson. "The snack cart will offer coffee, milk, various cold sandwiches as well as hot dogs and an assortment of pastries.

Holiday activities offered

Soldiers who remain here instead of going home during the holidays will have plenty of activities to help them enjoy the holiday season.

Operation Holiday, sponsored by the Fort Benning, Columbus, Phenix City chapter of Association of the United States Army in conjunction with many local merchants, will make the season an unforgetable one for the stay-behind soldiers.

Collectively, the AUSA chapter and the merchants have arranged for soldiers to tour local food manufacturing businesses, attend Atlanta Hawks basketball games, attend the Blue-Gray football game, the Peach Bowl and will also sponsor visits to the Little White House (Franklin D. Roosevelt's summer home) and Andersonville (the Civil War Prisoner of War Camp) There are also many other activities lined up, all a part of what is being called Operation Holiday.

Many activities scheduled will be open to the Infantry Training Brigade soldiers, others will be open to the School Brigade and the rest of the post, in that order, on a first come first serve basis. Class A's are required for many activities, but civilian clothes may be worn for others. Soldiers must check with their point of contact to insure they wear the proper attire. All transportation and the entry expenses are free to the soldiers.

The schedule of activities and point of contact are listed below.

Editor's note: To the AUSA members and the local merchants who are making this possible for our soldiers, Fort Benning extends its thanks and the warmest seasons greetings.

Post cleanup

Phase one of the Post Cleanup was held during Dec. 1-6.

The efforts of everyone, those who live and work at Fort Benning, both military and civilian, were truly commendable and indicative of a sense of pride and cooperation. The post never looked better, in spite of the leaves.

To every soldier, civilian employee and dependent - thank you for making Fort Benning a home in which we can all be proud!

Award winner

The 13th Annual Culinary Arts Show was held here last week and one the proud winners (first place for pastry) was SSgt. Clinton Jones, a cook from the 34th Medical Battalion. Another soldier who outclassed the rest of the competition, winning a "Best of Show," two first places and a third place was Sp5 Sue Dingler, 36th Engineer Group. For more information on Dingler's cooking wizardry, see the story on page 3. Photo by Dave Bristow

Insure happy holidays, be responsible host

The holiday season is a time of family gatherings and friendly get-togethers.

It's also a time when people drink too much.

If you're a host or hostess for a holiday party, take a responsible approach to serving alcoholic beverages.

Here are some guidelines on how to be good host or hostess or a guest.

Mix It Up

Almost everyone who arrives at a holiday party is immediately invited to go "get a drink." This year, take the new arrivals around the room and give them a chance to get acquainted before sending them off to the bar. It will give more warmth to your party.

At the bar, have a wide selection of all types of beverages, including soft drinks for those who either do not want to drink alcohol or who want to "ride for a while."

Pace It

If you, as host or hostess, are mixing the drinks, make them on the light side.

If you hire a bartender for the occassion, take the time to brief the indvidual before the party to pace the drinks, not push them.

Have plenty of snacks-forget the calories just for the holiday season-at the bar and around the room. And make certain that as many as these snacks as possible are not heavily salted.

A handful of salted peanuts seem to invite another drink.

A piece of cheese on an unsalted cracker gives your guest something to nibble on while at the same ime does not make them thirsty.

Singles, Only

Some guest find themselves drinking more than they normally would at parties. This comes from the friendship that is found there.

Make certain that your guest are served "single shots," not doubles. And whatever you do, don't push the drinks. It's not embarrassing for you as a host or hostess to have a guest standing talking without a drink in hand.

What is embarrasing is the guest who drinks too much because of doubles or pushed drinks.

Eat Early

If your holiday party includes dinner, serve it early.

A cocktail party is just that-a few cocktails.Make certain that your guests know that dinner will be served at a certain time and that they have just so much time for cocktails.

If wine is to be served with the meal, take the amount of alcohol into consideration when figuring how much drinking should go on at your party.

At the end of your dinner, make certain that coffee is served.

This isn't going to sober someone who has had too much to drink, but it can be the "one for the road" instead of another glass of alcohol.

If It Happens

If a guest does have too much to drink at your holiday party, make certain the indvidual does not drive.With a spare bedroom in the house, your problem can be solved easily.

If that is not possible, call a cab, and tell the indvidual that you will personally see his or her car is delivered the following morning.

Get the indvidual's friends on your side by asking that they help you.

It's possible that your local police department is offering "free rides homes" during the holiday season. If so, use that service.The secret to not having a drunk guest is being a responsible and caring host or hostess.Happy holidays!

WFBG to presents important show

. A new service designed to check the medical care eligibility of active duty and retired personnel and their dependents is the subject of an interview on next week's Benning Report on WFBG-TV.

The military program is called the Defense Enrollment Eligibility Reporting System or DEERS.

Army broadcaster Sp5 Bill Powell will talk with 1st Lt. Daniel McCarthy, the Fort Benning DEERS representative. DEERS was established to assist the health services keep track of military and retired individuals and their eligible dependents. DEERS is also a method of preventing unauthorized people from receiving health care.

During the next few years, medical eligibility will be determined by using the computerized information in the DEER system.

Enrollment begins on Fort Benning in January and sponsors are urged to secure required documentation for their dependents by then.

The information is very important, so don't miss next week's Benning Report. The program will be aired at 12:30 p.m. and 5:30 p.m. Monday through Friday.

New policy started for soldiers caught by police

A new policy on soldiers who are apprehended by the Military Police and proccessed through the M.P. station has recently been changed.

The soldier may be released to a commissioned officer or the first sergeant of the apprehened person's military unit. They are the only ones who can sign a DD Form 629 (Receipt for Prisoner or Detained Person) to obtain the release of military personnel apprehended by the military police.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

Recently, class 7-80 of Infantry Officer's Basic Course(IOBC) graduated. Most of the regular Army lieutenants and reserve lieutenants on extended active duty will attend other schools at Fort Benning and other posts.

Approximately 50 of the lieutenants will be attending Ranger school. Unfortunately, an additional 20 qualified lieutenants who volunteered for Ranger school will not be attending. IOBC did not receive enough Ranger slots for these students.

A recent change of allocations of Ranger slots only authorizes each combat branch a certain number of slots or a set percentage of the slots available for each class. The problem with this system that the number of qualified volunteers changes with each basic course.

Because of fewer volunteers, other basic courses have just enough qualified lieutenants to fill their allocations. This is unfair to these 20 infantry lieutenants. A system which would insure competition for these slots in all combat branch basic courses, while also distributing the overflow to all combat basic courses, needs developing.

A suggestion for this system would first determine the number of volunteers for Ranger school in each combat branch basic course. From this information, the slots would be given to the basic course so that the same percentage of volunteers from each branch be able to attend Ranger school. This allows for variations in volunteers from basic course to basic course. In other words, instead of 20 qualified infantry lieutenants not being able to attend Ranger school, there would be eight infantry, four armor, four field artillery and four engineer lieutenants not attending this class.

Even if this system is not feasible, some action must be taken to prevent these inequities from happening again. Because of the inequities, 20 qualified infantry lieutenants will not be attending Ranger school in the near future.

Cook wins on second try

By Sharron Calabrisi
BAYONET Correspondent
36th Engineer Group (Combat)

The second time around can prove to be successful especially in the case of Sp5 Elizabeth B. Dingler, 524th Dining Facility.

Dingler took the overall Best of Show in the Culinary Arts Show held Friday at the Officer's Club. She also took first place and third place in food color painting and first place in the center piece category.

Last year, Dingler took second and third place in the food color painting category. "Last year was my first show, and I did it just to have something to do," she explained. "I went to Fort Lee, Va. as a member of the Fort Benning Culinary Arts Team and learned a lot tnat helped me this year," she added.

The Atlanta, Ga. native started preparing for this year's show in September. "You don't learn any of this in cook school, I've had to do it all on my own."

While trying to get ready for the show, Dingler had final exams in school, plus her job in the dining facility as a clerk. "I sometimes put in more than 14-hours a day in the dining facility then, several more at home with my 4-year-old daughter, Angel.

Dingler will soon receive her Associate Degree in Home Economics and is working toward her Bachelor's degree in Business Management.

During her two years here, Dingler has been cook of the month twice, chef of the quarter for Fort Benning and NCO of the quarter for 36th Engineer Group.

Touches on school's advantages

Col. Harris speaks at college day

DAHLONEGA, GA.--North Georgia College (NGC) in Dahlonega held its annual "Military College Day" recently and Col. Bobby J. Harris, chief of staff, U.S. Army Infantry Center, Fort Benning, and a 1952 graduate of NGC was guest speaker for the event.

High school students are invited each year to visit the campus and sample military college life and scores of prospective cadets turned out for this year's activities. Visitors were treated to everything from classroom academics to mountaineering demonstrations and the use of small arms and small unit tactics.

In his remarks, Col. Harris touched on the advantage of a military education at North Georgia and emphasized the "espirit de corps" which characterizes graduates of the school.

North Georgia College is the senior military college of Georgia and one of only four recognized senior military colleges nationwide.

Station provides free service

By Tim Boivin
BAYONET staff writer

Soldiers are in danger of losing a service that allows them to communicate, free-of-charge, anywhere in the world. The Military Affiliates Radio Service (MARS) is a good deal that may turn sour if soldiers and civilians alike don't begin to take advantage of the free message service it offers.

MARS is actually an emergency back-up communications network for use during natural disasters such as hurricanes, earthquakes and tornados. However, most of the time there isn't emergency situations, so MARS is used to send telegrams to family and friends of soldiers and Department of the Army civilians alike.

Every military installation is supposed to have a MARS station and, therefore, messages can be sent not only to other desinations in the United States but overseas too. Sgt. James Van Hoover, NCOIC of Fort Benning's MARS station, warns, "The big push on MARS right now is if the soldiers don't use the facility they're in danger of losing it. There's a general lack of knowledge that the facility can perform a vital communications mission for the community."

Depending on the distance, a MARS message can take from 30 minutes to three days. In the U.S., the eastern sector is serviced through Fort Meade, Md., the central sector is by Fort Sam Houston, Texas and the Western sector by Presido of San Francisico.

Van Hoover said, "We can send messages either by teletype or voice over the radio. The 197th Infantry Brigade was very supportive in getting us a teletype machine, especially Maj. Martin Estrada. However, the MARS station only operates half the time it should because we're short-staffed."

The MARS station operates eight hours a day but is supposed to be in operations 16 hours a day. However, Van Hoover explained, "We only have a two-soldier staff and in order to keep it going 16 hours a day, we would need six soldiers on our staff. When a natural disaster is in the area, we put in some long hours to maintain communications."

If a soldier can get released from his unit, the MARS station would welcome the assistance. 05C and 05B MOS's would be helpful, but aren't necessary. Van Hoover emphasized, "If I had a staff to meet the demands of 16 hours of transmitting messages, this facility could be used to its utmost capability for the good of the Fort Benning community."

MARS, which has been in existence since 1948, is busiest during the holiday season. Van Hoover said, "Soldiers, especially those in training, have a long break and the ones who don't go home send holiday greeting to their folks. The MARS station also has the capability to run the phone patches overseas."

Van Hoover explained, "In order to send a message a soldier should either pick up a form at one of the locations they're distributed or if there aren't any available, ask the first sergeant for one. We have posters with forms in the Infantry Hall (Bldg. 4) lobby, the Martin Army Community Hospital lobby, and the 1st, 3rd, 6th and 7th Battalion at the 1st Infantry Training Brigade. We're hoping to get a display in the post exchange since a fairly heavy amount of traffic goes through there each day."

Messages can also be phoned in at 545-3059, which is also the number to call for anyone interested in working at the station.

Survival of the privilges of a MARS station depends on soldier's use of them. It is a free service that is cheaper than any other form of communication to families and friends at home. Van Hoover concluded, "Soldiers have got to take an active interest in the station for it to realize its full potential in benefiting the Fort Benning community."

Beautifying post

. There will be a post-wide clean-up of outlying training areas Dec. 17-19.

The clean-up effort is designed to concentrate on picking up all trash and refuse throughout the training areas on post. Families living in government quarters are enouraged to continue their work at beautifying their housing areas in a total effort to keep Fort Benning beautiful.

50 percent discount given

Airlines reduce fares for troops

WASHINGTON(ARNEWS)---The list of major airlines offering a 50 percent fare reduction is growing.

Eastern, Northwest, Piedmont and Braniff Airlines are now offering the discount to active duty military personnel traveling on leave or pass, say Military Traffic Management Command(MTMC) officials.

These four airlines join Trans World Airlines(TWA), American, Continental, United, USAIR and Western Airlines which already offer the reduced fare. With the exception of USAIR, which has no expiration date,, the reduced fares are offered on a trial basis until March 31, 1981.

TWA started the move to reduce furlough fares on Oct. 15 in response to an appeal to the presidents of the major airlines by Maj. Gen. John D. Bruen, MTMC commander.

"The respnse by these 10 airlines is a definite boost to the morale and welfare of military personnel everywhere," Bruen said. "We are looking for increased carrier participation, to include all airlines, plus an indefinite extension date past March 31, 1981."

"I am particularly pleased that USAIR has no expiration date for the furlough fare discount," he added.

TWA and USAIR offer the 50 percent discount on all domestic routes, while the other eight airlines provide the reduced fare on selected routes only.

Piedmont offers the 50 percent fare on selected routes with no restriction on dates of travel. Airlines do not offer the 50 percent discount on Dec. 19, 20 and 24, 1980 and Jan. 3, 4 and 5, 1981.

Travelers are encouraged to shop around for the lowest fares, say MTMC officials. Some excursion fares offer good savings but there are restrictions on length of stay and ticket purchase deadlines depending on the airline.

New disease has no cure

By Tim Boivin
BAYONET staff writer

A new venereal disease has come into prominence in the past few months that is scaring men and women, single and married alike, the world over.

Herpes Simplex Virus type two (HSV2) is a communicable disease usually transmitted through sexual intercourse, that has the entire medical and social world on its toes because of its epidemic proportions.The most frightening aspect of the disease is that there is not a known cure.

Fort Benning's venereal disease control officer, Dr. Sigsbee Mainous, sees a lot of cases coming back from Korea but insists the problem isn't just there.

Mainous explained, "I get a history from soldiers that shows recurring HSV2 they insist cleared up in Korea.

Symptoms painful

The symptoms of HSV2 will generally appear two to six days after exposure to an active carrier of the disease. Sores develop in the area of the men's shaft of the penis and around the anus. Mainous' assistant, Sp5 Robin Galbraith added, "Both men and women can incur painful urinization, generalized aching and fever."

Mainous further elaborated, saying, "Women are more apt to have pain than men. In my experience of examining these people, the men have more of an itching, stinging or burning but the females suffer more from the pain. We have had patients that couldn't sit, stand or even walk and are in bad shape."

Mainous and Galbraith treat an average of about 15-20 cases per month. Galbraith said, "Right now, HSV2 is more prevalent than Syphillis but Gonorrhea is still the most frequent, showing up in about five to six cases a day.

Sores kept dry

The treatment Mainous and Galbraith use is saline soaks, which is a combination of table salt and hot water. Mainous explained, "This treatment dries up the sores. We want to keep the sores dried up, so we strongly discourage ointments. Using a powder also helps keep a person dry and between the two, it should take three to four days to dry."

The sores will heal by themselves without the help of the soaks, but Mainous cautioned, "It only takes three to four days with the soaks, while it takes longer without them. While waiting for the sores to heal, no sexual intercourse should take place or else the disease will surely be transmitted."

Even though the sores will dry up, that doesn't mean the disease has disappeared. No known cure has been discovered for HSV2 and relapses occur under stress.

Mainous explained, "Some patients have flare-ups often, associated with nervous tension, being emotionally upset, fatigue and even exposure to the sun."

Galbraith added, "I have one patient in Florida who gets flare-ups after a good drunk weekend."

Mainous has been in the veneral disease field for 35 years and, he said, "When I started we just called it fever blisters and forgot about it. The doctors I worked with didn't know what it was, they just called it Herpes. There wasn't a type one or two."

With HSV2 cases on the upswing, medical research is digging deep for a possible cure. Among the ones advocated by varying doctors, but so far not accepted by the medical establishments, are vitamin C, zinc, ice packs and an ether solution.

However, Mainous remains wary of any claims of cures. He said, "A few years ago we thought giving smallpox vaccinations each week for five weeks would work. That fell through and we went back to the soaks. As with cancer, scientists are working daily to find a cure."

Course designed to reduce deaths

By Becky Bulgrin
BAYONET staff writer

An Advanced Cardiac Life Support (ACLS) class was held here Dec. 3 and 4 for physicians and allied personnel in the Fort Benning, Columbus and Phenix City area to teach skills associated with the recognition and treatment of heart attack patients.

The course was held at Dental Clinic No. 1, which is the post's newest medical facility. It included basic Cardiopulmonary Resuscitation (CPR) training, along with the application of drugs and resusitative equipment to patients.

Participants included nurses and dentists, physicians from the Medical Center in Columbus, and respiratory therapists from Cobb Hospital in Phenix City. Sponsored by Family Practice at Martin Army Community Hospital (MACH), the course was designed to reduce deaths among patients who have heart attacks.

According to Dr. Magdi B. Hanna, chief resident of Family Practice at MACH, and one of the directors of the class, ACLS will improve the approach to and standardize the procedure for treating patients who arrive at the hospital after a heart attack.

"Other people besides the doctor will know what should be done until the doctor arrives," he said. "They won't panic and can take the initial steps which are vital to help the patient."

Dr. Hanna is a certified teacher of ACLS, along with the other director of the class, Dr. David G. Seibel of MACH's Family Practice Clinic. Dr. Dan Cabaniss, head of the department of medicine from the Columbus Medical Center, supervised the course.

There was no charge to the 29 participants, who were trained from 8 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. both days. Instruction consisted of lectures and classroom activity in the morning and practical application in the afternoon. Participants were given a written and practical examination on the course of instruction the second day.

According to Dr. Hanna, the majority of people passed the course. They received a card and certificate stating that they are ACLS qualified.

At this time it is the only program in Georgia, and the clinic is one of only two Army medical facilities to offer the training. The other is Brooke Army Medical Center in San Antonio, Texas.

Dr. Hanna said that MACH has already sponsored about seven ACLS courses and plans to hold another one in March. "We try to give three to four classes a year to accredit as many people as possible for the ACLS course," he added.

About 660,000 people die from heart attacks each year, and 360,000 die within the first two hours and before arriving at a hospital.

Much can be done to reduce this enormous death rate by prevention and treatment, according to Dr. Arnold Sladen, Chairman of the Committee on Emergency Cardiac Care, American Heart Association. The delivery of Advanced Cardiac Life Support to the heart attack patient may prevent a cardiac arrest, while the delivery of ACLS to a person with a cardiac arrest may result in the person making a full recovery and returning as a useful member of society. Many thousands of those who die unnecessarily from heart attacks can be saved.

New standard PT test in effect

By Ralph E. Resch, Jr.
Special to the BAYONET

If you're not in shape, now's the time to get ready for the new physical training test.

Monday, the Army retired the old Physical Training (PT) tests such as the Advanced Physical Fitness Test (APFT), Staff and Specialist Physical Fitness Test (SSPFT), Minimum Physical Fitness Test (MPFT), etc.

There is now only one physical test which will be given to all soldiers regardless of sex, rank or duty position. It's called the Army Physical Readiness Test (APRT) and consists of three events - pushups, situps and two-mile run for soldiers aged 17 to 39. Currently, soldiers aged 40 to 60 do only the two-mile run (these soldiers are required to have a mandatory medical screening and participate in a six-month training period prior to testing).

Let's take a look at this new test and see how it's done.

First, both men and women will take the same three events and perform them in the same manner. The repetitions and running times have been adjusted to allow for physical differences.

Second, the new FM 21-20 will be in distribution before the end of this year. The following is how each event is performed:

The pushup

The event supervisor gives instructions for the pushup: The pushup event measures the strength of your shoulder-girdle muscles. On the command "get set," assume the front leaning rest position and place your hands where they are comfortable for you. The arms, back, buttocks and legs must be straight from head to heels. This will be the start position.

On my command "go," you are to begin your pushups by bending the elbows and lowering your entire body until the tops of your upper arms, shoulders, and lower back are aligned and parallel to the ground. You will then return to the start position by locking you elbows. This is one repetition. At the end of each repetition, the scorer will count the number you have performed correctly.

You may rest at any time, but you cannot rest your body on the ground. If you do not keep you body straight, or if you fail to completely lock your elbows, that repetition will not count, and the scorer will repeat the number of your last correct repetition. Correct performance, and not speed, is important. You will have two minutes in which to do as many correct pushups as you can.

A demonstration is given and any questions on the event are answered.

The situp

The event supervisor gives instructions for the situp: The situp event measures your abdonimal muscle strength. On my command "get set," assume the start position by lying flat on your back with your knees bent at approximately a 90-degree angle, and with feet flat on the ground with another individual holding your ankles on the ground with his hands only. No other method of bracing or holding the feet is authorized.

Your fingers will be interlocked behind the head with the back of the hands touching the ground. Your arms and elbows need not touch the ground. On my command "go," begin raising the upper body forward to the vertical position. The base of the neck must at least reach the vertical position. After you have reached the vertical position, lower your upper body to the ground until the upper portion of your back has touched the ground. Again, your arms and elbows need not touch the ground. This is one repetition.

At the end of each repetition, the scorer will count the number of repetitions you have performed correctly. You may rest in the up or down position at any time, but if you lower your legs, fail to keep your feet on the ground, fail to keep your fingers interlocked and behind your head, arch your back to raise your upper body forward, or do not attain the vertical position, that repetition will not count, and the scorer will repeat the number of your last correct one. Correct performance, and not speed, is important. You will have two minutes to do as many correct situps as you can.

A demonstration is given and any questions on the event are answered.

The two-mile run

The event supervisor gives instructions for the two-mile run: The two-mile run tests your ability to complete a prolonged run. You will be running individually. At the start, all soldiers will line up behind the starting line. Time will not begin until the last soldier crosses the starting line. When given the command "go," each soldier will begin running at his own pace. You will run the distance on (here the number of laps around the track, or other description of the running area are given). You will be scored on your ability to run the distance in the least possible time. The number on your chest is for identification. Make sure the number is visible at all times. Turn in your number when you finish the run, and return to your equipment for the cool-down period. Do not remain near the scorers or the finish line, as you may interfere with the scoring.

Any questions on the event are then answered.

Soldiers in the sixth week of initial-entry training must score at least 50 points in each event and 160 points overall. Prior to graduation, a soldier must achieve the Army standard of 60 points per event and 180 points overall.

In the field, the minimum Army standard for all soldiers, except those 40 years and above, requires a score of 60 points per event and 180 points overall.

The testing uniform consists o fatigue trousers, T-shirt or fatigue shirt, and combat boots. Additonal clothing may be worn at the commander's discretion during cooler weather.

Soldiers who begin an event incorrectly will be stopped immediately and toldwhat they did wrong. They will then be sent to the end of the line to retake the event.

Any soldier performing an event who develops a temporary symptom (such as muscle cramps) and stops, and does not continue during the two-minute period will receive the number of repetitions performed correctly up to that point. The soldier will not be given another turn at taking the event.

Any soldier who stops to rest may continue to receive credit for correct repetitions he performs after resting. Soldiers will not be allowed to retake any one event unless he retakes all three events.

This test is designed to be conducted with a minimum amount of equipment or facilities. It's easy to administer and prepare for.

So, have a happy APRT in the 1980's and make sure your DA #12 series (Request for Publications) to Baltimore are up-to-date so you get your new FM 21-20.

Brothers work to train troops

Jerry, Ron and Rick Van Cleve go their separate ways for 50 weeks of the year, but during the other two, their work is identical, sometimes frustrating, but always rewarding, they say.

The Van Cleve brothers are members of Company E, 1st Battalion, 423rd Regiment, 3rd Brigade, 70th Division, a reserve unit with headquarters in Livonia, Mich. Each year they spend two weeks on active duty training as drill sergeants. For the past two years they have been at Fort Benning and on both occasions they have been drills with Company E, 3rd Battalion, 1st Infantry Training Brigade.

How do they perform? "They are really good," said SFC Robert B. Sanders, senior drill for the company. "They come here and take charge from day one. They are highly motivated and a great help to us."

When interviewed while their troops were engaged in Military Operations in Urban Terrain training, Ron spoke for the three brothers when he said, "All of us feel that we have an obligation to serve in the reserves. The reason we are here is to help build a stronger Army."

Two of the brothers, Jerry and Ron, both served tours of active duty in Vietnam before entering the reserves. Jerry was with Company B, 577th Engineer Battalion from 1968 to 1969, and was awarded the Purple Heart. Ron was assigned to the 1st Signal Brigade for 26 months from 1969 to 1971.

Strangely enough, their paths crossed at the 22nd Replacement Center at Cameron Bay as Jerry was returning to the states. "We really had a party that night," said Ron.

Jerry, 31, and his wife Clay, live at 107 West Canal St., Antwerp, Ohio. He is employed in the tire test lab of the B.F. Goodrich Company.

Ron, 30, and his wife Joyce, live at 902 North Third St., Decatur, Ind., where he is a light construction foreman for a telephone company.

Rick, 20, and his wife Rita, live at Hicksville, Ohio. He is a machinist.

Different factors could decide

What toy should your kid have?

It's that time again! How do you decide what toys to purchase for your children?

Is your decision based on nostalgia of your own childhood, toys that you immensely enjoyed or deeply yearned for? Do advertisements provide the basis for your choices? Or do the children have the last word?

Safety

Safety is a primary consideration in toy selection. The U.S. Public Health Service estimates that every year in this country alone some 7,000 children are injured by toys.

Parents need to examine carefully each propective purchase to determine its suitability, that is, its safety related to the child's level of development. Is the toy well constructed, with a basic design that fundamentally safe? Are there small pieces that could come loose or fly off and be swallowed, or lodged in the eye? Is there metal that might cut, or wood that might splinter?

Many toys are inherently dangerous, such as firecrackers, knives, and darts. Others are easily diverted from their intended purpose and misused, such as water pistols. Some are dangerous because they are given to children too young to handle them. These toys should have the preferred age range along with other directions and warning conspiciously labeled. Toys have been known to carry disease. Parents need to check carefully this potential because children will often put toys into their mouths, or kiss or sleep with their toys. Even some that are advertised as sanitary have been found to harbor infectious organisms. Plastic straws with many loops are an example.

Phychological effects

How many of us consider the disturbing or damaging psychological effects that toys can produce?

The stereotyping of sex roles is often accomplished by the toys that are allowed or denied a child. A girl may be made to feel guilty because she has no interest in dolls; whereas, a boy may feel threatned if he has no interest in footballs.

That toy guns, knives, or other weapons promote violent behavior in children is strongly suspected but still largely unproved. The more important problem is the confused double message parents send children when they make a gift of an instrument of symbolic harm. We want to teach respect for life, yet murder is made to look like fun, and war is made to look like fun, and war is made to look like play.

Learning

Toys facilitate learning. Another major concern, then, should be the purpose of the toy. To a large extent, a parent can control what the child plays with and thus what a child will learn.

A wise parent buys toys that teach or help develop a new skill. He considers a balance; some toys involve the child with other people, developing social graces, while others allow the child the solitude to develop manual and other personal skills.

Among a child's toys should be those that provide opportunity for imitation as well as for creativity. Other wise selections are toys that allow the child to involve himself in the problem solving and decision making in play situation. What the child can do with the toy is more important than what a toy can do. With many children today expecting to be entertained constantly, a parent should select some toys that will develop their ability to entertain themselves.

Age Levels

An infant is best served by toys designed to awaken sight, sound, and touch. For infants six months and under, mobiles are ideal. These are toys that can be suspended on strings and turn about at the slightest breeze. From six months to a year the child is interested in things he can take apart and throw. Large muscles are being developed during this age. Often regular household items are more interesting than commercially designed toys. The one-year-old doesn't want to be alone for long periods of time and needs something to play with in every room. The two-year-old should have push-pull toys and large objects into which he can climb, peek, hide, or peer. He is easily frustrated, so should not be given toys that are difficult for him to handle. The three-year-old is usually predictable. He is beginning to develop an indvidual taste. He should be given a variety of toys until his preference is apparent. The four-year-old is imaginative and role-plays often; costumes are suggested. Scissors are a must at this age! (The round blunt tips are best for this age.) The four-year-old is becoming susceptible to advertising, and is beginning to desire what others have. These whims do not indicate what is best at this age. The five-year-old is a natural collecter. This is a good time to use toys to teach classification and organizational skills. At six many children begin selecting toys popular with their sex. From seven on up,

Tankers fire for precision

"Gunner! Battlesight! Tank!" the Tank Commander (TC) sounds off with his fire commands. "Identified!" the Gunner responds. Immediately the TC commands "Fire!"

Twelve seconds later, the target 1,100 meters down range erupts into flames. "Target. Cease fire!" and another target has been hit. The four-man-crew from Company B, 2169th Armor Battalion trained for speed and accuracy in their Turrentine Range target engagements.

Realistic training

The unit switched from Brinson Range's familiarization gunnery to realistic training at Turrentine Range last month.

Turrentine Range is where Fort Benning tank crews compete to win the Armor firepower award. Bravo Company's First Sergeant James M. Maffett has been with the unit for six years and said, "I can't remember when I've seen a more highly motivated group of soldiers. They work every day of the year for this moment and I really feel we owe it to ourselves to let these troops get as much live fire training as possible. This is their bread and butter."

High morale

When Maffett was asked what he felt was the reason for the abnormally high morale, he explained, "With the new tanks we've been receiving and the good support we've been getting, it makes the soldier feel like he's really contributing to the overall mission of the unit."

The crew on Bravo-34's tank was anxious to get its turn on the firing line. One of its crewmen recently scored 100 percent on the hands-on portion of his SQT test — which is a feat any soldier could be proud to achieve. Sp4 David Kemmerly said, "I feel we'll shoot well on this course and I'm confident that we'll outshoot the other platoons as well."

Bravo Company took a break over the Thanksgiving holidays and returned on Dec. 1 for more battle runs. The live fire training on Turrentine will enhance the Battalion's survivability on tomorrow's battlefield, according to the company commander. Thus, it goes without saying that Fort Benning Tankers can really identify with Turrentine Range.

YOU'D BE SURPRISED WHAT YOU CAN GET IN YOUR NEXT ENLISTMENT JUST BY ASKING.

If you've always wanted an assignment in Europe, but somehow the Army always had other plans for you, now you can make your own plans. You can reenlist for Europe. Or Korea. The Canal Zone. Hawaii. Alaska. Or, if you're serving overseas, a new duty station in the continental United States. And all you have to do is ask. One soldier who did is SP4 Ralph Cook, 3/68 Armor, Mannheim, Germany.

"Getting to Europe is something I always wanted. They work you harder here, but I do get to see a lot. I like the architecture. The customs. The people. I've been to Munich twice now, and the Oktoberfest is just madness. Really fun."

In your next enlistment, you could end up with a lot more than a new overseas assignment. Chances are pretty good you'll make more rank, earn more pay and move up in responsibility. So talk to your Reenlistment NCO. And find out exactly how far you can go in your next enlistment.

KEEP A GOOD SOLDIER IN THE ARMY. REENLIST.

Sheriff's Target

I would like to take one more opportunity to discuss the serious crime of shoplifting. America's number one crime, this offense occurs most frequently during the Christmas shopping season.

Shoplifting losses in the U.S. come to $1.6 billion a year. Over 10,000 shoplifters are caught each year in AAFES facilities. As a matter of interest, over 200 have been caught here so far this year.

Col. Ward
Provost Marshal

The majority of shoplifting incidents on post involve active duty military personnel. Without a doubt, this is an excellent way to ruin your future. Military shoplifters found guilty by a court-martial can receive a bad conduct discharge, forfeiture of all pay and allowances, and up to six months confinement at hard labor.

The next large group of shoplifters are female military dependents. These dependents wives and daughters are also prosecuted. They may receive six months in jail and a $100.00 fine, in addition to losing their PX and commissary privileges. Juveniles guilty of shoplifting are processed and prosecuted by the Juveniles guilty of shoplifting are processed and prosecuted by the Juvenile Court system in Columbus. Juveniles 17 and older will generally be prosecuted as adults before a court.

AAFES stores (PX's) have beefed up their security and floor detective staffs for the duration of the holiday shopping period. Do not ruin your future by engaging in a needless act. Help stop the shoplifting epidemic. If you see someone shoplifting, report it! You and other shoppers are paying for what the shoplifter takes. If your children bring home something new and you suspect they might have stolen it, question them about it. Set an example by being honest yourself. Remember this is the season for giving, rather than taking.

Weapons must be registered

All privately owned weapons brought on post for any reason must be registered with the Provost Marshal's Office in Bldg. 215. The indvidual weapon is not required to be brought in but the complete description of the firearm is needed to include make, model, barrel length, serial number, and caliber. The registration is free and is valid for a period of two years.

Where you are going to keep the weapon is another important question. If you are going to live in the billets, you need the company commander's signature and the weapon must be secured in the unit arms room. If you reside in post quarters, USAIC Regulation 210-5 allows you to retain the weapon and a small amount of ammunition providing you take adequate measures to protect the weapon from being stolen or from unauthorized use.

Post regulations state, that when transporting weapons in a vehicle, handguns will not be placed in glove compartments, under the seat, or in any other way concealed. At all times they will be readily observable by post law enforcement personnel. One exception to the regulation is that authorized shotguns, rifles, or a bow and arrows may be transported in the trunk of the vehicle.

Pet owners are encouraged to be familiar with their responsibilities under USAIC Regulation 210-10 dealing with pet control. All pets over three months of age maintained on post must be registered with the Post Veterinary Animal Disease Prevention and Control Facility, Bldg. 265.

Privately own vehicles must be registered within three working days after being brought on post. A valid state operator's license, a registration certification for the vehicle, proof of ownership, current Georgia or other state motor inspection sticker, minimum insurance coverage and seat belts in the front seats are necessary for registering.

Herpes

HSV2 is more painful to woman than men. Also, HSV2 can pose problems during pregnancies, Mainous said, "Fetus' of infected women can suffer blindness, brain damage and even death if the disease is not caught. If an expectant mother has a history of HSV2, she should notify her obstetrician so the doctor can examine her and make sure the HSV2 isn't active."

HSV2 is believed to cause cancer of the cervix, although this hasn't been proven. A safeguard, Mainous explained, "Is for women to have pap smears once every six months instead of annually. This allows doctors to diagnose the cancer and, if treated early, cure it."

If HSV2 is active at the time the baby is ready to be delivered, the doctors will perform a Caesarean Section birth instead of allowing natural childbirth. Galbraith explained, "The Caesarean will completely bypass the infected area and the baby will be safe from infection."

Cotton underwear advised

As a preventive measure, Mainous emphasizes, "We recommend women wear cotton underwear instead of nylon stockings. This also helps keep the women dry. The nylon stockings prevent air circulation, which causes the moisture."

Mainous also recommends condoms, saying, They help but that doesn't mean they prevent the disease."

If someone suspects they have HSV2, or any venereal disease for that matter, they should either call the venereal disease clinic at 545-1900 or (women) contact the gynecology clinic. Patients may also be referred to the clinic from their unit dispensaries.

Hours for the venereal disease clinic for men are 6:45 a.m. to 10:45 a.m. Monday through Friday and 12:30 to 2:45 p.m. Monday through Thursday for females. The building is located behind the Infantry Museum on main post.

iday season is supposed to be a joyous many people the holiday season is not one one of sadness and depression. For sol- rom home and their families, the holiday n be particulary difficult.

st don't want them to send me pictures of y around the Christmas tree because I not there and what I'm missing," said one dier here. It's almost like the Grinch had ir Christmas.

separation

soldiers far from home, chaplain Capt. ch sees the ritual of Christmas as an im- y to get rid of the holiday blues. "There is fill what is being missed and for many e rituals of the season, decorating the apping presents, getting together with friends and family, is missed," he said.

"The best thing a soldier can do for himself is to not sit alone in his room. He should extend his family, through friends, groups in the barracks, and observe a lot of the traditions of Christmas. Soldiers should express themselves in terms of celebration. Maybe they could set up a small tree, hang some decorations, send Christmas cards, get involved in the chapel programs and do many of the things they did at home to celebrate Christmas," he continued.

"When I was out at the 1st Infantry Training Brigade I noticed that the soldiers who didn't go home over the holidays were the ones who didn't have strong family ties, didn't have a strong feeling for Christmas or didn't have the money to get home. My strongest sympathies went to those who didn't have the money to get home and sincerely wanted to," said the chaplain.

The chaplain sees the Christmas depression coming from suppressed feelings. "The soldiers don't have to supress those feelings. They need to express them and I've found the rituals of the season as a good way to express their feelings," concluded Fritch.

However, separation from the family is not the only c se of holiday depression. Dr. Martin Harrow, a psychologist with Michael Reese Medical Center in Chicago sees a commercialized pressure put on many people to enjoy themselves. "There's a real pressure put on all of us to be happy at Christmas time. It's an expectation unique to the season. Nobody runs around saying, 'Happy Labor Day'. If you don't act happy at Christmas you risk being labeled a killjoy." said Harrow.

For those who are with their families and still feel depressed Dr. Saul Siegel, a psychiatristwith Michael Reese Medical Center, offers a few words of realistic hope. "If you want to feel better during the holidays, you've got to stop kidding yourself that everybody else is having a better time. Everybody isn't," said Siegel.

problem

here are those who feel left out because financial lack preclude their giving and they would like. They feel robbed of the g at a time when it is a joy to give. As pproaches, much shoplifting and other vities increase because of the desire to giving game.

ssion at Christmas seems such a major ion. Traditionally a happy season of , feasting, and sharing, how can anyone be at Christmas?

of holiday depression are understand- predictable, and hopefully preventable. A e is aloneness, isolation from family and ost affected are those separated from ficant others by circumstances beyond rol. The holiday reminds the isolated, in cannot be ignored, that they are alone. itself is not merely the problem. Every- some solitary times to think, to wait, to No one with good mental health chooses solitude on traditional family days such as ng and Christmas.

lowered self-worth sets in, which makes matters that much worse. Perhaps this is why consumption of intoxicating spirits increase sharply during the holidays.

Not uncommon also is a postholiday depression. There is a steady buildup of joyful expectancy. There is big spending planning, and work, all mounting to a zenith. Then Christmas Day--and it's all over so fast: It is an "Is that all?" experience. Expectations are not always realistic. It is all over so quickly, and now there is only the cleanup and going back to the grind. Depression!

Holiday depression for most can be ridden out. Like a roller coaster, it dips down, down, down; but hang on, and it will bottom out and pull up again. Most humans having swing in moods. True depression may not be merely a Christmas problem. There is likely a deeper reason, and the Christmas stress merely causes the depression to surface as a symptom.

Mental health

Depression is a real mental health difficulty. It need not be ignored, and there is help. Grief, loss, guillt, negative situations, physical separation because of ill health, may be a precipitating factors. A physical checkup may be in order. Chronic fatigue may be a problem. It helps at times simply to rest, to get away if possible and sleep as much as you like for several days. If there is grief, the emotions it elicits need to be expressed openly and honestly.

Negative situations is one's life are not relieved by ignoring or denying them. This is not a responsible approach. Negative situations must be faced if we are to adjust to life's situations. Realities, however painful, must be admitted, accepted, assessed, adjusted to, and acted upon. If a sympathetic listener can be found (and I admit they are hard to find nowadays), it helps much to confide. Merely organizing one's thoughts into sentences often help put them into manageable perspective.

If the cause of the depression is guilt, the response called for is restitution and apology. Make up for the hurt. If aloneness plagues, reach out to someone else. Do something to brighten the life of another. Even a smile or a phone call depending upon others to make you happy, decide to make happiness happen yourself.

Activity helps. Physical activity is a manifold blessing. Productive labor or creative exercise won't hurt at all, especially if carried on with friends. Smile. Straighten your shoulders. Take a deep breath and walk with a spring in your step. Whistle. Sing. We have a positive duty to resist melancholy.

Hold on. Ride it out. Weeping may endure for a night, but joy cometh in the morning.

ACS will miss special volunteer

The Fort Benning Army Community Service and many foreign-born wives lost a good friend recently with the death of Miss Lucille David.

Lucille David

Miss David, a member of the Retired Senior Volunteer Program, had been a volunteer teacher for the ACS Citizenship classes for more than seven years. Her efforts aided many in becoming United States citizens. She will be missed by all.

David, 78, was born in Columbus and became a Muscogee County educator. She taught in Muscogee County schools for 50 years, the last 16 of which she was principal of Beallwood School.

A clerk and charter member of Beallwood Baptist Church, she worked in the Sunday school department for 60 years.

She also belonged to the Philonian Study Club, was a lifetime member of the National Eduction Association, was president of the American Association of University Women, and president of the Muscogee County Education Association.

Postal service increases for holiday season

By Tim Boivin
BAYONET staff writer

The Columbus Post Office will have the following contract branches in operation for the convenience of customers at times when regular postal facilities might be closed.

The Windsor Park Contract Station, located in Lee Drug Store, Windsor Park Shopping Center, will be open from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. Monday through Friday and 9 a.m. until noon on Saturday.

How About That?

By William W. Erbach, Sr.
36th Engineer Group Chaplain

Can you imagine a world without clocks? What would your home be without an alarm clock? Without a kitchen clock.

A thousand years ago there were no clocks. Back then people told time by the sun, but what about nighttime, or on cloudy days? I read about a monk who lived many centuries ago called Brother Augustin, and he had a rather unusual way of telling time. A book of psalms was his clock. Brother Augustin lived in a monastary, and his job was to ring the bell that would wake all the other monks and call them to prayers.

In the evening he would begin to read the psalms. He would count the pages that he read, and when he had finished a certain number of pages, he would jump up and run to the church belfy and ring the bell. How About That?

Of course, sometimes the plan would fail. One night he fell asleep himself and when he woke up the sun was high and his superior scolded him for falling asleep. He really needed a better way to tell time, but this Bible was his clock.

I think that one of the most important things to think about when we mention time is that it is a gift given equally to everyone. We all have exactly the same number of hours in the day. The rich or powerful don't get 26 hours and the poor and lowly only get 21. We all have the same 24 to work with, even though sometimes we wish it were more. How we use our time is not always up to us because there are certain things that must be done, but each of us has at least a few minutes, or even perhaps hours, during the day when we can do as we please. Think about that time, that precious gift, and make the best use of them for yourself and those around you.

Soldiers drenched in pond training

Victory pond recently was the site for some unusual training for members of the Combat Support Company, 3rd Battalion, 7th Infantry, 197th Infantry Brigade.

The training involved rappelling over Victory pond and the external loading of an M561 Gamma-Goat. The training also included a technique called "helocasting". Helocasting is when soldiers free fall from a chopper, in this case, into the water.

This technique "is used mainly in jungles, mountains and along coastlines where helicopters normally can't find a place to land," Capt. Ray Soto. Commander of the 132nd Aviation Section, explained.

Toys

children can handle and enjoy most kinds of toys.

Make-believe is a child's way of easing into the realities of life. Through play, a child can learn to accept the limitations of this world.

Toys can bridge the gap between dreams and reality, between the carefreeness of childhood and the responsibilities of adulthood.

Children need toys. Ever since there were children, toys have been a part of childhood. But the dependence need not be on complex mechanical devices or elaborately constructed exhibition items. Around the home are playthings that can provide amusement and education for the children. Even elements in nature--mud, sand and water--can give unlimited enjoyment.

When a parent spends money on an expensive toy, he often become obsessed with preserving it as long as possible. This preoccupation can get in the way of the child's normal healthy play.

Ultimately, the value of any toy is determined by how much a child really likes it and plays with it. However, parents must shop for toys on the basis of their own mature and informed judgement. If a toy is safe, physically, psychologically, and spiritually; if it can serve a purpose for the child at his development level; and if it is reasonable in terms of the family budget, then it is a whole purchase

Doughboys open season victorious

By Becky Bulgrin
BAYONET sports editor

Fort Benning's basketball Doughboys opened the 1980-81 campaign last weekend with a two-game sweep over a Marine team from Albany, Ga. 99-71 and 83-67.

The Doughboys outclassed Albany's "Devil Dogs" Friday night from the opening tip-off thanks to their superior size and speed. Benning's 6'4" veteran small forward, Harry Lyons, paced the potent Doughboy offense to an early 21-10 lead with 10 first-half points (the Doughboys play by NCAA rules). The Doughboys quickly expanded the lead to 20-points with 6:21 remaining in the half.

The Doughboys' only other returning player from last year's 26-5 team is speedy 5'6" guard Nathaniel Harris. He played only briefly during the first half due to the large lead, adding four points and two assists.

Doughboy coach Oliver Green said the game plan had been to play a slow-down ball control offense but because of their height, Benning found its running game worked surprisingly well.

The Marines scored first in the second half but their success was short lived as the Doughboys started to dominate the boards at both ends. Lyons, the hot hand for the Doughboys in the first half, was ejected five minutes into the second half on a flagrant foul, but Robert Thomas filled the scoring gap with his game high 26 points.

The Doughboy big men closed off the inside to the Albany Marines. Center Samuel Powe and forward Robert Hooper towered over the smaller Devil Dogs, pacing Benning to 46 team rebounds.

FORT BENNING 99
Harris 5 3-5 13, Thomas 11 4-6 26, Powe 1 0-1 2, Hooper 4 1-2 9, Mack 6 0-0 12, Lyons 4 4-4 12, Roberts 3 3-3 9, Williams 1 0-1 2, Petway 1 0-0 2, Anderson 4 0-0 8, Hicks 1 0-0 2, Hayes 1 0-0 2, Foundtain 0 0-0 0, Neblett 0 0-0 0.
ALBANY MARINE BASE 71

Saturday's rematch

The Doughboys had a tough time in the first half before capturing their second victory over the Devil Dogs in Saturday's rematch.

"We underestimated Albany after winning so easily Friday night," said Coach Green. "While we were too relaxed, they came out scrapping. They were ready from the outset to make it tough for us to beat them again."

The score remained close throughout the first half, and the teams were tied 34-all with 1:05 on the clock.

Albany controlled the ball until the Doughboys stole it with four seconds left. Lyons was fouled and he sank two free throws, giving Fort Benning a 36-34 halftime lead.

Albany shot back to take over 44-42 at 16:01 in the second half. Guard James McCallum scored on a full-court pass by Hobson Bethune to continue their lead.

However, it didn't last long as Benning's 6'6" forward Robert Hooper shot up on a bounce pass by Mike Mack for a 48-48 tie. A free-throw by Harris put the Doughboys in the lead. They again dominated the boards and never lost the lead again.

The Doughboys next game will be Sunday at 3 p.m. in Audie Murphy gym. They will face a team from Beallwood Heights in Columbus.

FORT BENNING 83
Lyons 7 6-6 20, Hooper 8 3-3 19, Thomas 8 1-3 17, Mock 7 3-5 17, Harris 5 0-0 10.
ALBANY MARINES 67
D.C. Hill 6 4-11 16, McCollum 7 0-2 14, Johnson 6 2-3 14, Gutierrez 4 0-0 8, Bridges 4 0-0 8, McKee 1 2-2 4, Jackson 1 0-0 2, Bethune 0 1-2 1.

Doughboy forward Robert Hooper (number 33) jumps high for the opening tip-off at Saturday's game against the Albany Devil Dogs. The Doughboys' Mike Mack (number 10) and Albany's Hobson Bethune (number 14) are ready to get the jump for their teams. Benning defeated Albany 83-67.

The Doughboys' Nate "Little Bit" Harris goes for the hoop during the game against Albany at Briant Wells Fieldhouse Saturday. The 5'6" guard went five for 10 to help Benning on to victory.

Armchair Sports

Starstruck oddsmaker

By Tim Boivin
BAYONET Sports columnist

The in thing to do in the newspaper sporting business, what with Jimmy the Greek handicapping for CBS, is for the sport's editor to handicap weekly professional and collegiate football games.

Well, pressure was on me and I respond well to pressure. So I put together my own little system for handicapping football games. Nothing fancy, and don't take my predictions as the final, authoritative word, but here goes.

Previous games, season records and personal hot streaks aren't used as a basis for the system. Instead, I vary my variables on such things as astrology, birds and how I slept the night before the final tallies are put in for the paper.

- Whichever team is favored by Las Vegas, I double that figure and give that advantage to the underdog. Say the Falcons are favored by three over the Forty-Niners. I give the folks from Blueberry Hill a six point advantage. At my height, you'd go with the underdog everytime, too.
- If any of the Falcons were on the cover of SPORTS ILLUSTRATED, I take away another two points because of the well known jinx associated with that magazine.
- If the moon is in the second house and Saturn aligns with the star on Hollywood Henderson's front teeth, that can only mean trouble for the Falcons. That star he has on his teeth isn't anything to chuckle about and I've never messed with the stars. Tack on another five against the Falcons.
- If I fell off my bunk the night before, bad vibes begin to set in about the team whose locale I'm in. It's a bad way to start off the day. Even Wheaties can't ease the hurt after you've fallen down a six foot drop. Besides, who wants to give points to a team that has everything going for them after you can't even sleep properly without hurting yourself. Falcons lose another two points here.
- If a buzzard dropped down on the Falcon's punter the week before the game and circled around for five minutes, I deduct one of two things. Either he's going to be rushed a lot on the day of the game or else...well, I won't go into the or else part. Anyways, the kicking game suffers no matter which of the two things happen. Falcons probably drop another two here.
- My final point, and one that should be well taken, is what went on the previous week on each city's sport's scene. If the Falcons won in a blowout, the Braves trade for another player that's sure to bring the pennant to Atlanta(that would be the fifth I know of in the year I've been here) and the Hawks have kept their noses clean, then I reverse my train of thought and root for them. If none of this happened, the Falcons are underdogs by 17 points. Of course, I would never bet on that.

Soccer on a table

By Derek Harvey
Special to the BAYONET

In the short span of eight years Tournament Soccer (TS) has secured the loyalty of hundreds of thousands of active foosball players.

Tournament Soccer has been the major reason for the development of professional foosball. But for most people, foosball is just another game in the recreation center, dayroom or the local pub. However, few people who have come into contact with the game are aware of how to play the game properly, or how the game was developed into a "first class professional sport."

Over the years, TS has developed a national professional tour of tournaments from one $5,000 tournament in 1973 to the Million Dollar Tournament tours with $250,000 championships. With the annual series of tournaments open to all entrants, new players are stepping up everyday to take home their share of the prize money.

Tournament Soccer is a participant sport, complete with superstars, traveling pros, and an intensity of interest to rival established spectator sports.

No wonder the "Tour," which was highlighted by the $250,000 World Championships, was featured in SPORTS ILLUSTRATED under the headline, "A Real First Class Professional Sport."

It takes many hours of dedicated practice and a lot of playing time for someone to become a competitive professional foosball player.

Tournament play

Major tournaments have several different categories of play - singles, doubles, mixed doubles, and open doubles. Of course, in order to attract new players, there are the novice and rookie class events which allow players to develop and eventually make the transition to the more powerful and complicated professional ranks.

As a game of competition, foosball requires a quick-thinking mind and fast reflexes. It is not a game which necessarily takes brute power, but is a type of competition that totally exhausts the mind.

If you want to become competitive professionally, you need to put yourself into training. Unlike football or boxing, it is not a sport that requires a lot of hard physical work. Foosball requires a lot of mental concentration on strategy and tactics. A good game is much like a well-planned chess game.

Foosball basics

There are three basic phases in the production of competitive foosball players. Each of us has the capabilities necessary to master these phases. If you are a dedicated fooser, these three points could be the start towards winning in local competition and going on to the professional level.

First, nothing in the world will win a tourney if you haven't spent time to improve your motor skills. This involves personal incentive. You're not going to learn how to shoot a good bank shot overnight, no matter how much you wish for it.

Second, people who miss out on the "foos money" forget how important "foosball theory" is. Practice entails more than just shooting each shot 150 times a day. One must analyze what is right and wrong with each play. Is the ball positioned properly? Are you coming off the ball at the right point? Are you shooting a wrist shot where a roll would be more effective? Is your passing sequence accomplishing what it should? Percentages of shots improve when one knows the "hows" and "whys" of every play executed. Of course, you will only learn these things by playing the game.

Third, concentration and determination, "the head game," is vitally important. It is essential to have a high level of confidence in yourself that won't allow intimidation to interfere. These things will win a lot of matches when motor skills are inconsistent.

A final point I'd like to make is that anyone can play foosball at whatever level of skill desired. It's a game open to everyone of any size, age or sex. Practicing motor skills, getting a grasp of "foos theory" and a good sense of self worth are what the best players have.

These are just some of the many prizes foosball competitors take home after winning events in the Million Dollar Tour.

First racquetball tourney success

Fort Benning's 1st Invitational Racquetball Tournament ended Sunday at the new Racquetball Center on Ingersoll Street.

There were 43 participants in the tournament and they all received T-shirts. Trophies were awarded to the first and second place winners in each category. The tourney results are:

Men's A Singles - Dave Pendleton defeated David Zeigler. A tie-breaker had to be played for the win. The scores were 20-21, 21-17 and 11-4.

Women's A Singles - Beth Shwedo defeated Ren Scott, 21-5, 21-10.

Men's B Singles - Ralph Santaliz defeated Jeff Goodrum on a tie-breaker, 21-9, 14-21, 11-6.

Women's B Singles - Sally Entlich defeated Kim Minkinow 21-7, 21-3.

Men's C singles - David Fridovich defeated Lee Reeves 21-4, 21-5.

Men's Senior Singles - Joe Gorecki defeated Gene Hanratty 21-8, 21-18.

Men's A Doubles - Mark See and Alan Kahn defeated Terry Miller and Larry Hill, 21-10, 21-14.

Women's A Doubles - Beth Shwedo and Kim Minkinow won by a forfeit.

Men's B Doubles - Stan Kay and bo Whatley defeated Ralph Santaliz and David Vardeman, 21-10, 21-18.

Men's C Doubles - William Northquest and Gene Hanratty defeated Ron Chapman and Steve Wilkinson, 21-8, 21-4.

New courts open

There's a new Racquetball Center on post and it will be open for use starting tomorrow.

Located behind the old Credit Union and next to MISO on Ingersoll Street, the facility features four new courts for free racquetball/handball play. Racquets, balls and eye protectors can be signed out for players' use.

Restroom facilities are available, but there are no showers. However, people can use the showers at Briant Wells Fieldhouse located nearby.

The center will be open Monday through Friday from 11 a.m. to 9 p.m., and Saturdays, Sundays and holidays from 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. Reservations must be made for courts except between 11 a.m. and 1 p.m. on weekdays. These hours are "challenge courts" time and players take turns challenging whoever may be there.

For more information and reservations call 545-1474.

Pruitt headlines Columbus fights

Boxers gain experience

Sean Pruitt, son of Lt. Col. and Mrs. Ken Pruitt, headlined the Georgia Amateur Boxing fights held Saturday at Comer Auditorium in Columbus. He defeated Evander Hollyfield of Atlanta, last year's AAU State Champion.

Pruitt gave away 17 pounds to challenge Hollyfield and was four inches shorter, but still out fought him all three rounds on points, according to the judges' cards of 20-18, 20-19, 29-17.

Pruitt came out strong until Hollyfield started using his weight and muscle in the second round to force Pruitt against the ropes. However, Pruitt quickly came off the ropes connecting with a left hook, dazing Hollyfield who then retreated into the roes. Pruitt clinched the unanimous decision in the third round by counter-punching effectively.

Twenty-year-old Pruitt is currently ranked seventh in the nation among amatuer boxers in the welter-weight class. In a nationwide poll of 50 amateur boxing coaches to select the National Amateur Boxer of the Year, he was one of only 12 boxers to receive votes.

Pruitt's next big fight will be Jan. 16 in Chattanooga, Tenn. for the Regional Boxing Tournament, consisting of boxers from Tennessee, Georgia and Alabama. He will then go on to compete in the State (Georgia) Golden Gloves boxing tourney in Atlanta this February.

Five members of Fort Benning's boxing team also competed in the same fights. Dwayne Edwards came home the only victor, defeating an Auburn boxer by a technical knock-out.

According to the acting boxing coach for Benning, two new boxers on the team were sent to get some experience. Larry Golden, fighting in the 125-pound weight class, was pitted against Muscogee's Donny Bell Flowers, one of their best fighters. "Although the ref stopped the match late in the second round, Golden looked really good," said the coach (Coach Stoddard couldn't be there). "He's going to be a real fighter and someone to look out for."

Another new addition to the team, Anthony Robinson, also fought his first bout to give him a feel for it, according to the coach. But the fight was stopped after the first round.

Benning's Augusta Miranda started out winning the first two rounds of his bout. After getting tired and trading punches with his opponent, Miranda lost out in the third. Anthony Morris lost by a TKO in the first round of his match.

Benning will put on a home smoker tomorrow night in Briant Wells Fieldhouse at 7 p.m. They will face boxers from Fort Gordon and the Marines from Albany.

Admission is free and there are 100 ringside seats available on a first come, first serve basis. Anyone interested should come by Crain Hall, Bldg. 229.

Youth soccer team 'champs'

Fort Benning's under 14 Youth Soccer Team, called Liverpool, recently took first place in the Columbus Youth Soccer League City Tournament. They are currently playing in the Georgia State Championship.

Liverpool defeated the Northside Stars 8-2 in the second round of the championships Sunday in Atlanta. Darrin Tucker scored four unassisted goals to lead the team to victory.

J.M. Butler and Daryl Grogan added two goals each for the winners.

Liverpool ended their regular season play with five wins and one loss. They were defeated 3-0 in their only loss, but came back in the tournament to defeat the same team twice (5-3 and 7-0).

Liverpool moves into the under 14 quarterfinals of the Georgia State Championship Tournament tomorrow at Benning's Gordon Field. Action gets underway at 11 a.m. as they face another Atlanta team, the Fury. Admission is free.

Army looks for 'super athletes'

WASHINGTON (ARNEWS)--Are you a strong swimmer? Do you like to run? The U.S. Modern Pentathlon Training Center is looking for athletes to join their full-time training program.

Male and female soldiers are eligible for the program, say Pentathlon Center officials.

The Center, the only one of its kind in the United States, is located in San Antonio, Texas. It has a full-time Olympic staff that trains athletes for Olympic and International Modern Pentathlon competition.

Modern Pentathlon is made up of five sports - riding, fencing, shooting, swimming and cross country running.

It's a demanding sport that calls for a combination of running and swimming abilities. Only proven athletes will be considered, comment officials.

To qualify, men have to run two miles in 10 minutes and one mile in 4 minutes and 45 seconds. Women have to run one mile in 5 minutes and 10 seconds. The swimming requirement is 100 yards in 54 seconds, or 300 meters in 3 minutes and 40 seconds for men, and 100 yards in 1 minute and 10 seconds for women. Running and swimming times must be verified by a coach, AAU/NCAA official or a post recreation services officer.

Experience in riding, fencing and shooting is preferred but not required. The training program will teach athletes these skills, say officials.

Soldiers who apply must be volunteers for the program and have a minimum of one year remaining in service on the date of reassignment to the Center.

Those selected are given a 90-day trial period at the Center to meet standards for full-time training. Pentathletes will perform some military duties along with training five and a half days a week.

If you feel you can meet the challenge, send a letter of qualification and a copy of your DA Form 2-1 to the Officer in charge, ATTN: Public Affairs, U.S. Modern Pentathlon Training Center, Bldg. 189, Fort Sam Houston, Texas 78234.

Post basketball action's gearing up everywhere

The Doughgirls basketball team will start their season this weekend with two games at Audie Murphy Gym (behind the chapel on Sightseeing Road).

Admission is free as they face Fort Rucker tomorrow at 2 p.m. and Sunday at 1 p.m.

According to the coach, Perry Graves, the team is new this year, with no players returning from last year's team so far. He said it's a little early to tell what kind of team they'll have, since the Doughgirls have only been practicing for a week.

"But we do have a lot of good talent on the team and we expect to come out on top against Fort Rucker," he said.

The Doughgirls will face different teams throughout the season to get ready for the FORSCOM tournaments in March.

Other basketball action starting up is the company-level games. The BAYONET would like to publish results of the games. Call the BAYONET sports desk at 545-4622 to turn in scores.

Youth Activities' basketball opening day and first games will be held Jan. 10 at the Youth Activities Gym, Bldg. 1055. Ceremonies will begin at 10 a.m.

Atlanta Marathon

The Atlanta Marathon and Half-Marathon will take place Dec. 20 at 10 a.m. in Atlanta.

Sponsored by the Atlanta Track Club, both races start and finish at Westminster High School (located at West Wesley and Ferry Roads off I-75 North).

Entry fee is $5 on race day. T-shirts for all finishers can be bought for $3.50 and awards will be presented to winners in each age group.

For more information call Bruce LaBudde at (404) 231-9064 or 432-3056.

Free Fun Run

The Columbus Track Club will conduct a free Fun Run at Cooper Creek Dec. 21 at 3 p.m.

Runners can choose to participate in a three, five or 8 to 10-mile race.

Cooper Creek is located at Milgen Road off Exit 5 on the Bypass.

Savannah Marathon

The 4th Annual Savannah Marathon and Half-Marathon are scheduled to take place Jan. 10 at 9 a.m. in Savannah, Ga.

Sponsored by the Savannah Striders Track Club, the marathons take place on a flat course, with aid stations set up every three miles.

T-shirts will be presented to all starters. Entry fee is $5 and deadline is Dec. 31. For more information write to John Burke, c/o Savannah News Press, P.O. Box 1088, Savannah, Ga.

Run For Your Life Program

Due to the increase of running in the military world-wide, TRADOC has approved an extension of runners' miles logged per day for the Run For Your Life Program. Up until Nov. 20, every runner was authorized three miles per day. On Nov. 20, TRADOC approved logging of up to four and five miles a day.

Running times and categories for the new authorized miles are:

Men under 40 - four miles, 34:00, five miles, 42:00; Men over 40 and women under 40 - four miles, 38:00, five miles, 47:30; Women over 40 - four miles, 42:00, five miles, 52:00.

TRADOC is currently working on a number of alternatives which will further publicize the program. They will also provide additonal incentives and define procedures for participants in the program. (Information from Run For Your Life Program, Appendix C, FM 21-20). For more information contact Bob Kuwik at 545-2252.

USAMU, Military Police Co. win firing awards

By Tommy Poole
BAYONET correspondent
U.S. Army Marksmanship Unit

Randy Stewart of the U.S. Army Marksmanship Unit won all three events and shattered the existing national record by five points last weekend during the Southern Running Target Championships held here on Hibbs Range.

Stewart scored a total of 586 points out of 600 in the Standard Runs event in a field of 20 competitors and erased the two-year-old record of 581 held by Martin Edmondson, also of USAMU. Robert George, USAMU, placed second with 560 followed by Army Reservist Donald Harmon at 553 points to finish in third position.

The mixed runs and air rifle events were also taken by Stewart who missed tying another national record by only one point in the mixed runs match scoring 386 out of 400 points. His total of 715 points in the air rifle event was eight points ahead of runner-up Robert George who finished in second place at 707. Harry Lucker, Columbus, Ga., finished third in the event at 696 points.

In team competition the US Army squad of Stewart, Ga. James Reiber and Wesley Vaughn scored successive wins in all three team championships over the U.S. Army Reserve team. The U.S. Army totaled aggregates of 2,240 to 2,106 points for the USAR in standard runs; 1,472 to 1,398 in mixed and 1,389 to 1,298 points in air rifle competition.

Pistol championships

In other shooting action, Jerry Reynolds of the Internal Revenue Service won the individual championship in Saturday's Law Enforcement Officer's Pistol Championships here at Phillips Range.

Reynolds fired a score of 870 out of a possible 900. Second place went to Guy Patterson, Richland police department, with 863, and Richard A. McLain, 988th Military Police Company, was third with 857.

Reynolds also headed an Internal Revenue Service team that won the team championship with a score of 1,154 out of a possible 1,200. Other members of the team were Randy Carter, Michael Stephens and Michael Schmidt.

Second place went to the Columbus Police Department team composed of Bruce Robinson, Kenneth Kyser, Arnold Robinson and Bill Rawn. They combined for a score of 1,109.

Another Columbus team, composed of Barry Davis, Billy Jeter, Gilbert Slouchick and Brent Kirkland, took third with 1,068.

The 139th Military Police Company team placed fifth. Shooting for them were Gary Lowen, Charles Parker, Thomas Bolden and Charles Sturgill, Jr.

Randy Stewart of the United States Army Marksmanship Unit, scored 586 points out of a possible 600 to break the existing national record by five points in Running Target competition held here recently. Stewart is the 1980 National Champion and was selected as a member of this years United States Olympic Team in tryouts held last June.

'Get Smart' style comedy dated

Don Adams 'bombs' in comeback

By Bill Powell
WFBG Broadcastor

Those who remember the old TV series "Get Smart" will probably think of Don Adams and the catch phrases "Would you believe...?" and "Sorry about that Chief." Well, I did too. I picked up my memories of "Get Smart" and went to the movies to see Don Adams once again portray Maxwell Smart in "The Nude Bomb". Afterall, "Star Trek" got a comeback in the movies why not "Get Smart"? After seeing "The Nude Bomb" I could think of quite a few reasons why it shouldn't.

"The Nude Bomb" is, as the title suggests, KAOS's latest weapon and they threaten to make the whole world naked. A prospect really unexciting unless you happen to live in Bo Derek's neighborhood. Of course parody was always "Get Smart's" biggest gimmick and this movie appears to try and duplicate the comedy of years age. Unfortunately the time for this sort of comedy may be past, considering zanies like Robin Williams populating the entertainment world.

Just what was wrong with "The Nude Bomb"? Basically it just wasn't funny. The acting was okay, maybe we've grown past it as I've suggested. Maybe better writing is the key but as far as my impression went "The Nude Bomb" is just what the title says. One Star.*

Lots of good advice, for all kinds of problems, for all kinds of people.

WFBG's final programs for '80

By Bill Powell
WFBG Broadcaster
Special BAYONET Correspondent

WFBG-TV will feature another week of Christmas programming to ring in some holiday cheer.

All of WFBG's faithful viewers will be able to tune in programs which convey the essence of the Christmas Spirit. The upcoming week is WFBG-TV's final week of programming for 1980. However, look for even more new things and surprises in 1981, starting January 5th. Happy and safe holidays from all the folks who are responsible for keeping WFBG-TV on the air. Following are highlights of next week's programming:

- "Teenage Christmas" brings the story of how a church youth group learns the true meaning of Christmas by helping a needy family with its Christmas celebration.
- "Big Picture-The Spirit of Fort Benning" takes a look at this post, it's mission, influence and history.
- "The Benning Report" repeats a special interview with 1st Lt. Daniel McCarthy on the Defense Eligibility Enrollment Reporting System (DEERS).
- "The Christmas Spirit of Brotherly Love" is learned at Christmas by a small boy.
- "Three Wise Boys" is a story of how the boys find the deeper meaning of Christmas that people search for during the holiday season.
- "Take Ten-Drinking Myths" gives a good look at drinking, it's myths and effects. This program should be a special interest to those who enjoy drinking, but have a lot of notions that just might be wrong.

PX gasoline

In the near future, leaded premium gasoline will not be available from the Fort Benning Exchange gasoline supplier. An unleaded premium will be available to replace the leaded premium.

Commissary

The Fort Benning Commissary will be closed at 3 p.m. Dec. 24 untii Dec. 26.

Lamar Welch Leapfest

The Airborne Department will sponsor the annual Lamar Welch Leapfest today at Fryar Drop Zone from 1-5 p.m. All units and personnel assigned to Fort Benning and on jump status have been invited to participate.

Approximately 60 teams made up of three personnel each will have one opportunity to hit their target, which will be the "pea gravel pit". The team with the lowest total distance score from the target will be declared the winner. The winning team will receive a team trophy and each member of the top three teams will receive an individual trophy.

Contestants will be jumping from a UH-1H helicopter at an altitude of 2,000 feet. The MC-1 parachute will be used by all jumpers. The public is invited to attend.

The Physical Therapy clinic will be closed Tuesday from 2:30-4:30 p.m. for an RRREO seminar. The clinic will reopen Wednesday.

Talent Tree

The Talent Tree will be closed Thursday until January 20, 1981. All Christmas items must be withdrawn Thursday after 2:30 p.m. When the Talent Tree reopens consignments and withdrawl will be on Wednesdays from 10 a.m.-noon. All work must be approved by the Art Council. For more information call 687-4634, from 10 a.m.-2 p.m.

All of the working women in town read The Sunday Ledger-Enquirer.

Well, practically.

Actually, it's 9 out of 10.

There are over 38,000 adult women in the Columbus-Phenix City area who have full- or part time jobs outside the home.

That's almost half of the adult female population. Among those employed women, 9 out of 10 read The Sunday Ledger-Enquirer.

If one of your target markets is working women, you can reach just about every one of them with one ad this coming Sunday. Your ad representative can help.

Airline offers holiday cheer

ATLANTA--Eastern Airlines will offer Christmas hospitality at the Atlanta International Airport to military passengers traveling home for the holidays. Two military lounges are now open until Christmas Eve from 8 a.m. to midnight.

A lounge on each Eastern concourse will be in the Caribbean Room, between gates B21 and B23, and in the New Yorker Room, between gates C14 and C16. Each will have Christmas decorations, complimentary coffee and soft drinks, holiday goodies, and a TV set.

"As in the past years, the lounges will be staffed with volunteers from the Silverliners (former flight attendants organization) and the Pilot Wives Club," said Joesph L. Feldman, director airport services.

"This year with the new terminal we can offer much better facilities to our armed forces," said Mr. Feldman.

Military bases in the southeast begin letting out mid December and about 10,000 troops are expected through Atlanta from places like Fort Mc Clellan, Fort Stewart, Fort Benning, Pensacola Naval Air Station, Fort Jackson, Eglin Air Force Base, and others.

Holidays to be happy here

By Brian Adams
BAYONET correspondent
1st Infantry Training Brigade

Dear Mother:

I know how much you wanted the family to be together for Christmas, but I'm sorry to say that you are going to have to celebrate without me this year, as I am not going to be able to make it home.

Don't worry though, there are a lot of other soldiers remaining behind, and besides, the brigade has a lot of activities planned to help us enjoy the holidays. . .

For some people just coming into the Army, this will be the first time away from home and family during the Christmas holidays.

To make these soldiers feel more at home and a little less lonely during this special time of year, the 1st Infantry Training Brigade and other units on post are putting together a holiday activities schedule for the soldiers remaining behind.

"Operation Holiday" has been successful in the past through close coordination between the surrounding communities and Fort Benning.

This year, through the same spirit, the soldiers will be offered trips to various sporting events such as "the Blue-Gray game", "the Peach Bowl" and free trips to the Atlanta Hawks games.

There will be several tours to Roosevelt's "Little White House" in Warm Springs, Ga., four trips to the Civil War Prison Camp at Andersonville and several tours to various industries in the tri-community area.

A special "Operation Appreciation" is scheduled for the soldiers of the 1st Infantry Training Brigade on Dec. 20 at the First Baptist Church in Columbus. More of a social event this year, rather than a religious trip, the church plans on giving the soldiers home cooked food along with cookies, cakes and soft drinks. There will also be some entertainment to keep them in a festive attitude.

To the AUSA members and the tri-community residents and merchants who are making these events possible again this year for the 1st Infantry Training Brigade, the brigade wishes to extend its appreciation and the warmest seasons greetings.

. . . the holidays aren't going to be the same without you and the family, but with all of the things happening and all the holiday spirit being extended toward us, I'm sure that I will have a very nice Christmas this year.

Give my love to everyone and say Merry Christmas for me.

Love,

Guidelines important for publication

By Don Rhodes
Command Information Officer
BAYONET OIC

We at the BAYONET receive submissions from soldiers, spouses and others requesting we put their story, article, picture or announcement in the paper and we love it! We wish we could get more requests of that type. However, those who submit material should keep the following facts in mind.

Much of the material submitted to us is not in the writing style used by newspapers and therefore either gets rewritten or not used, depending on how much time we have available to rewrite it.

Written material should be in an easy flowing, conversational style. Manuscripts that read like technical manuals or regulations will seldom be used because of the extreme difficulty of rewriting them. We don't want to create an error in fact which we can do very easily when translating technical material we are not familiar with.

In feature writing, quotes should be used as much as possible and attributed to the person who said them. In other words, John said, ". . ." or Mary said, ". . ." This lends credibility to the story because the readers know they are getting someone else's opinion besides the writer's.

Don't use big words just for the sake of using big words. It's OK to use urn instead of cinerarium. Most of us are more used to two or three syllable words. With the limited amount of time most people have to read a newspaper, the features or articles with large, difficult words take longer to read and probably won't get read at all. Sometimes of course, there isn't any other word that can be substituted.

Don't write in militarese. Use plain talk. Here are two good examples of plain talk and militarese. The difference is obvious.

Plain talk:

I came home today feeling a little tired for no particular reason. My wife was cooking supper and, judging from the pleasant smell, I was going to like it. In appreciation, I put a little more oomph than usual in my back-from-work kiss.

Militarese:

I returned to my place of residence from my office arriving at that place at approximately the normal time, 1720 hours, and experiencing without sufficient reason a feeling of fatigue. I discovered that my wife Helen was engaged in the preparation of the food for our supper, and in accordance with the pleasant smell that I could detect by means of my nose, I became convinced that it would be delectable. In appreciation thereof, I kissed Helen, my wife, putting therein more than the normal fervency for the occasion.

Pictures sometimes accompany the material submitted to us. We have some very specific guidelines about pictures. Any cliche, static photograph of someone smiling into the camera or shaking hands is called a "grip and grin" and DA policy is that as few as possible of these types of photos will be used in military papers. These type photos are great for albums and bulletin boards but not newspapers.

We have used "grip and grins" much more frequently than we would like for one reason or another. We are embarking on a concentrated effort not to use them in the future. Good action shots are the best. We can use only black and white photos or color slides. Because of expense and work involved we much prefer the black and white photo.

If what you submit does not get used, don't get discouraged. There is only so much room in the paper and we include what appears to be of interest to the majority of readers.

We need as many submissions as possible because there are so many stories out there, there is so much going on at the same time, that we can't possibly be staffed to cover each event.

Give us a call, we'll be glad to help out as much as possible. Our editor is Sp4 Gary Jones, extension 545-2201/2202.

Letters to the Editor

Thank you

To the Editor:

My family and I were pleased to see so much participation by the military people in the Christmas parade Monday. The scout troops and the soldiers added greatly to our enjoyment of the parade.

The floats had been well thought-out and were well-executed. I hope Fort Benning personnel will continue to support the parade each year.

As former military ourselves, we know the importance of being a part of surrounding civilian community by participation in such events.

We appreciate the time and effort expanded by all who were involved.

Sincerely,
Ruth Laney

Editor's note: The following letter was received by Maj. Gen. David E. Grange, Jr. and he would like to share it with readers of The BAYONET.

Dear Maj. Gen. Grange,

The purpose of this letter is to express my gratitude for Fort Benning's outstanding Combined Federal Campaign participation. We asked for help and we got it. Exceeding your goal by 16.8 percent is a singular accomplishment.

Please express mine and the community's heartfelt thanks for a job well done to the Fort Benning military community. The human services provided through their generous giving are vital to the tri-community's continued well-being.

Again, my thanks and congratulations for a job well done.

Sincerely,
Tom Black

Beret's return mocked

Editor's note: The following letter and reply was published in the already released Dec. 22 issue of ARMY TIMES. Under the headline 'Ridiculous Photograph', the letter was datelined Fort Benning.

To the Editor:

The return of the maroon beret to airborne units was mocked by the ridiculous photograph which you displayed on the front page Dec. 8. The maroon beret is the symbol of the world's most elite fighting force and to

So ugly it's pretty

SFC Harley Chase proudly shows the bottom part of a Christmas tree he trimmed. The tree was too tall for one of the offices in the Infantry Center, so the base had to be cut off. Chase decided that enough of the tree remained for him to decorate for his own office.

Holiday messages

During this holiday season, we wish to extend to all uniformed and civilian members of the United States Army, our greetings and best wishes.

The celebration of Hanukkah and Christmas reinforces our resolve to attain a world of peace, freedom and human dignity. Your dedication and service to our Nation and the free world continue to be constant sources of inspiration to all who seek peace and good will.

We wish you and your families the very happiest of holidays.

Secretary of the Army

Over 1,900 years ago the Prince of Peace came with the message, "Peace on earth, good will toward me." Somehow our world seems to have forgotten that message. I trust that the celebration of His birthday this year will cause all of us to consider it anew. A contemporary poem by Sally Buckner expresses this desire for me:

Risk your heart to
Love's fierce danger:
Reach your hand
Across the manger;
Touch the souls of
Friend and Stranger
Thus in love's
Participation Be your Christmas
Celebration.

At this holiday season, I extend best wishes for a joyous Christmas and a Happy New Year to all military and civilian personnel at Fort Benning.

Editor's note: The model is a staff officer (not a Sergeant Major) who was asked by Department of the Army officials to model the maroon beret and other uniform items for ARMY TIMES so that a color picture would be ready to accompany the anticipated story on the beret decision. The photo session was conducted with the assistance of a representative of the Army Uniform Board. The subject of the photograph was the beret, not the model. No offense to anyone was intended.

Tragedies can ruin holiday season

By Tim Boivin
BAYONET staff writer

Safety

With the holiday season upon us, there are safety reminders that everyone should follow to have safe and happy holidays.

Every year tragedy strikes somewhere in the world because people are negligent in following a few basic rules for the holidays.

Chestnuts are all right to roast on the open fire but position your tree away from the hearth of the fireplace so your house doen't roast also. If it is at all possible, do not use excessive extension cords or wiring that is faulty.

During the holiday season celebrating is done with a considerable amount of good cheer but sometimes a little too much holiday spirits are consumed. If you are drinking, don't drive. If someone at your party is not any condition to drive. Keep them overnight, call a cab or let someone sober drive them home.

If you have to drive in hazardous conditions slow down and keep enough space between cars to be able to stop in time to prevent an accident. Be sure your car is properly prepared to operate safely in hazardous weather.

Crime

With many persons away from home during the holiday season, open season is declared by crooks on vacated houses. If you have to stay away for an extended period of time, have a neighbor keep an eye on your house while you are gone. Make your home look and sound occupied by buying timing devices to turn on and off your lights, television and stereo.

Make sure your house is completely locked up. Cancel newspaper delivery and have the post office hold your mail. Contact your local police department and let them know you will be gone. Some police departments will occassionally check to make sure your home is secured.

If you are home, don't open your door to strangers. Install a peep-hole or chain latch so you can properly identify callers before letting them in. Be especially careful at night, indoors or outdoors, because criminals use darkness as a shield. Try to stay in well lighted areas.

If you are attacked, shout "help" or "rape". Some women carry a whistle to unnerve an attacker and alert assistance. If you are confronted by a criminal, cooperate. They may be under the influence of drugsso do what they say and do it quickly. Try to avoid physical injury at the same time remember identifying features and report the incident to the proper authorities immediately.

If you are driving, keep your doors locked and your seatbelts fastened. The seatbelts not only protect you in case of an accident, but it also prevents someone from pulling you from the car. Be sure you know your route home.

Children are very naive about associating with strangers. Be sure your child knows she/he should stay away from strangers at all times. If a strange person drives up and asks for directions, stay a safe distance away from the car.

Children should not play alone in the woods or near empty or deserted buildings. Parents, keep track of where your children are. Be sure to take down the license number of any strange car that a neighborhood child gets into. If a child is followed to or from school, they should tell a policeman or their teacher immediately.

New dental clinic to open by Jan. 5

The new dental clinic (Dental Clinic No. 1) is expected to be fully operational Jan. 5, according to Maj. David Odom, executive officer of Dental Activities (DENTAC).

"If everything goes the way we've planned, the clinic will be open to treat patients by then," he said.

Active duty personnel in the following commands will be treated at the clinic:

- The School Brigade
- Headquarters Command
- United States Army Infantry Board (USAIB)
- United States Army Communications Command
- Army Research Institute
- United States Army Criminal Investigation Division (CID)
- The dependents of all active duty military personnel.

Although all the equipment is new, the same specialities will be offered as in the past at other clinics, according to Odom. Routine check-ups and care are given by appointment only; however, patients in an emergency situation can walk-in.

The 78-chair facility is one of only three of its size in the Department of Defense. The others are at Fort Hood, Tex. and Fort Bragg, N.C. The clinic cost $3.4 million to construct and another $2 million to equip. Located on Santa Fe Road near the main mall, the facility also houses the headquarters for DENTAC.

Sheriff's Target

The holidays are here! " 'Tis the season to be jolly!" It is a time of good cheer, parties, fellowship, sharing and giving. However, it is also a time when our exposure to potential problems is increased.

The Christmas and New Year's holidays are traditionally celebrated at parties with such drinks as egg nog, champagne and other alcoholic beverages. There is no problem with their use in moderation, but often the spirit of fellowship and good cheer at parties encourages overindulgence. It is easy to lose track of how much you've had to drink when you are having a good time. You may be less careful about spreading the drinks out over an appropriate period of time for them to be safely absorbed by the body.

Col. Ward
Provost Marshal

Drinking impairs the ability to drive in that it slows body and mind reflexes and reactions. So do yourself a favor by planning ahead to take a taxi, the post shuttle bus or riding home with a friend who has had less or preferably nothing to drink. If you are attending a party on post, and live on post, and feel that you need a ride home to your billets or government quarters, let us do you a favor — call the MP Desk (545-5222/5223) and we will dispatch an MP patrol to take you home — no questions asked.

As mentioned above, the holidays are a time for giving and shopping for gifts. During this period, schools are out and children are home; consequently, there is a great increase in incidents of young children being left unattended in the home and resultant tragedies (fire, electrocution and asphyxiation) from a lack of supervision.

USAIC Reg 210-5 specifies that children under the age of 12 will not be left alone or unattended at home or allowed to babysit for younger children. Also children under the age of eight will not be left unattended in parked vehicles. To be on the safe side, either take them with you, take them to the nursery or hire a competent babysitter. Christmas is a most joyous time for our families and especially our children; let's not ruin it through neglect.

This is also the season for taking annual leave and going on vacation. A few precautions will greatly increase the likelihood that your home and property will remain secure while you are away.

Prior to going on leave or away for the holidays, properly secure all of your valuable property either inside your quarters or in a locked storage shed. Call or stop by the Military Police Desk and request that your quarters be checked by military police patrols during your absence — we want to help you!

Leave one or two lights on in the house to give the appearance that you are at home. Make arrangements to have your mail and newspapers stopped during your absence or have them picked up daily by a neighbor.

Like everything else, nothing comes easy. It takes a little prevention on your part to insure a happy holiday. Help yourself by helping us to help you. From all of us in the law enforcement business — Merry Christmas and Happy New Year!

Income tax form preparation classes were held here Dec. 15-17 for approximately 175 unit tax officers.

The Staff Judge Advocate's (SJA) office brought in two tax assistant specialists from the Atlanta Internal Revenue Service.

Their classes centered on proper completion of long and short forms, moving expenses, child care deductions, earned income exemptions and other items applicable to military personnel.

The SJA representatives presented information on state taxes and residency requirements.

The unit tax officers are now prepared to help their soldiers correctly complete their forms early next year.

Toy maker defeats Scrooges

By Mary Combs
Smithsonian News Service

Sixty-three years ago this season, a committee of bureaucratic Scrooges nearly ruined the spirit of Christmas Day. But in the end, like Scrooge, they were captivated by the charm of that very special holiday.

Charged with conserving the nation's resources during World War I, the U.S. Council for National Defense proposed clamping an embargo on the buying and selling of holiday gifts, a plan reminiscent of the spirit of self-denial praticed by the Puritan fathers, who had banned the celebration of Christmas altogether.

The hero of the hour was A.C. Gilbert, inventor of the Erector set and president of a year-old trade association, Toy Manufacturers of the U.S.A. Armed with an assortment of their wares, Gilbert and a represenative group of manufacturers set out for Washington to convince the Council that most toys would not drain materials or manpower from the war effort.

The Boston Post reported that Gilbert and company were at first so intimidated by the dignified atmosphere of the office and the serious manner of the Council members that they hurriedly stowed the toys behind a couch. (The boxes already had been efficiently and hilariously inspected by security guards.) Gilbert embarked upon an eloquent defense of the role of toys in molding the patriotic character and skill of American youth.

His audience thus primed, out came the toys, followed by the Council's swift capitulation. According to the Post account, "From the moment he opened them...the secretaries were boys again. Secretary (of the Navy) Daniels was as pleased with an Ives submarine as he could be with a new destroyer...he kept fast hold of it...'Toys appeal to the heart of every one of us, no matter how old we are, said another cabinet member. And it was because they did...that the boys and girls of the United States are going to awake this Christmas morning upon a day as merry as Christmases in the past."

Those eager middle-aged "boys" were playing with toys barely dreamed of by their great-great-grandparents. And neither generation could have guessed that their playthings--a link to today's line of electronic toys--would end up in the collections of museums such as the Smithsonian Institution.

The 19th century saw the industrialization of America and the growth of the United States from a fledgling nation to a world power. The changes were reflected, and sometimes anticipated, by a parallel growth in the toy world. Mass-production techniques and increasing prosperity and sophistication played a role in this surge, but in the end, youngsters wanted--as always--toys that were copies of things in the real world.

Toy revolution

Toys advanced from being generally home creations or imports to the products of large-scale manufacturing enterprises. In 1882 author James Lukin commented: "Talk of the march of the intellect--the march of toydom beats it all hollow: I do not believe a modern baby would look at such rude creations as delighted the babies of 50 years ago...the really instructive and highly interesting toys of our time, the scientific and mechanical ones (were) a class utterly unknown in olden days."

Lukin went on to describe the earliest "mechanical" toys, powered by fine sand poured over a wheel that animated cut out figures. Like almost all early toys, these "rude creations" were made of cardboard or wood.

It was the increased use of metal for toys that ushered in the new era in the 1830's and 40's. Metal made possible elegant and detailed shapes and, more importantly, added truly durable wheels and gears to the stock of parts.

By the mid-1840's, the toy business had grown so large that almost every town, no matter how far from the beaten track, had a toy store, or at least a store which sold toys. Woodworth's Fancy Store in New York proudly advertised the arrival of the most popular playthings in December 1844 "by packet from Le Havre--locomotives, mechanical and Automaton toys for children."

Toy manufacturing was interrupted during the Civil War, but emerged from the conflict raring to go. Industry and America were on the move, and soon most toys moved somehow, with the help of wind-up clockwork, friction motors, gravity devices, magnetism and, finally, steam and electricity.

There also was a significant and increasing vogue for realism. Wilkins Toy Works, for example, got its start when one Mr. Wilkins found that his model clothes-wringer sold better than the real thing. Like other enterprising men of the time, Wilkins knew a good thing when he saw it. He plunged into production of small versions of trains, carts, wagons, fire engines--anything that moved.

The second half of the 19th century was the golden age of wind-up toys; steel springs continued to be cheaper and safer than steam and electricity. The period saw the success of such manufacturers as Ives, producer of the realistic submarine the Secretary of the Navy clutched fervently in that meeting room in 1917.

Vehicle toys

From mid-century, the boom in vehicle toys led to copies of every kind of horse-drawn conveyance, eventually moving from horse to horsepower. One of the first wind-up toy automobiles on the American market--if not the first--was produced in the 1890's by H.T. Kingsley, who simply removed the horse from a sporty carriage model and added a steering wheel.

Animated pull-and push-toys remained hugely popular. In the 1880s a new variation arrived and considerably raised the noise level on Christmas morning. These toys were fitted with chimes or bells automatically struck as they rolled merrily along.

Although electrical motors were sold by themselves and "shocking machines" were a popular novelty, there were no real electrical toys in the 1880's. Steam engines were somewhat less dangerous, running on small quantities of alcohol, and toy steam trains and locomotives were very popular.

Electric trains

The first electric train seems to have been produced in 1896, but the quintessential boy's toy did not come into its own until the new century. In 1903 Joshua Lionel Cowan issued a catalog of model trains featuring a small electric motor of his devising--and Lionel trains chugged into their place in history.

The Great Depression and World War II meant the disappearance of many old, established firms and the toys they made. But a new generation swiftly filled the gap. The post-war baby boom brought unprecedented focus on family life and children. Nowadays, a major new toy emerges with a pedigree of psycholgical and education testing and marketing analysis.

Not so long ago, computers and calculators were sophisticated and expensive scientific equipment. This year, stockings will be filled with electronic games and devices, and some children will have more up-to-date equipment in their toy boxes than their parents have in their offices.

Whatever developments the future may bring, whatever unimaginable dreams our grandchildren may confide in their letters to Santa Claus, parents will greet them with the mixture of dismay, wonder and nostalgically recall that there has always been the lot of Santa's helpers, and, like the boys and girls of 1917, they will awake to a merry Christmas morning.

Drunk drivers beware

The Columbus Police Department will be out in force during the holiday season doing all they can to keep drunk drivers off the roads and traffic accidents down to the minimum.

Public Affairs spokesman for the department, David Hopkins, said,"During the holiday season there is more traffic on the roads than normal. With more people driving, more accidents are likely to happen. People who drink and drive don't help the situation at all. We will be cracking down on these drivers.

"Our officers will be concentrating on writing more tickets and making themselves more visible to the public. In addition to our squad cars being out in force, we will have themotorcycle squad out too.

The motorcycle police officers can get in between traffic more readily in some cases than a car. They're main responsibility will be investigating accidents. But all in all, increasing our visibility and cracking down on drunk drivers will be our main concern over the holidays. People who drink should not drive."

Editor's note: The military police will also be heavily patrolling on post to insure soldiers are not speeding over the holidays or driving under the influence of alcohol. Use of radar units on post will be increased. Additionally, if you are at a party on post and feel you need a ride home to your billets or government quarters, you may call the MP desk and a MP patrol will take you home. For more information concerning what the military police will be doing during the holiday period read 'Sheriff's Target' in this issue of the BAYONET.

Blackhawk extra added attraction

An extra attraction was added to the Commander's Conference held here last week when a Blackhawk helicopter was made available for anyone who wanted to take a ride in it.

PFC Freddie Cannon, B Company, Headquarters Command, took advantage of the opportunity. "I've never been on a helicopter before," he said. "I really liked it. We were dipping in and dipping out. It was nothing like an airplane ride. It was fascinating."

Cannon's sentiments weren't echoed by SSgt. Jo Anne Mueller, A Company, Headquarters Command. She said, "Today was my birthday so I went for the ride. It will be another 31 years before I ever ask for another helicopter ride. It was a nice experience but once every 31 years is enough."

Sp5 Coni Phelps, A Company, Headquarters Command, said she would like to ride again. "It was very exciting," she said, "but next time I'd rather not ride with Mueller. She kept screaming in my ear."

Evelyn L. Hansen of the Resource Management Office has been helping manage the resources for the Blackhawk for seven years. She thought the ride was very interesting. "Especially how they got down near the terrain and the river," she said. "The manueverability seems very good."

The Blackhawk is an outstanding helicopter, according to SSgt. David A. McLamore. McLamore, who is stationed at Fort Campbell, Ky., was the crew chief of the Blackhawk. He said, "It's more impressive than the Huey in speed; it carries more troops and requires much less maintenance." McLamore has been crewing Blackhawks for about 18 months.

The Sikorsky Aircraft Division, builder of the helicopter, had John Labansky on hand to answer questions about the Blackhawk. "It's quieter than the Huey," he said. "It will hold 14 combat equipped troops and the seats in the helicopter are all crash worthy and will absorb shocks of 10 to 12 G's."

Sikorsky began delivering the helicopter to the Army about 18 months ago and hopes to have 105 Blackhawks in the Army's inventory by the end of this month.

"WHEN YOU'RE A CIVILIAN AGAIN AN EXTRA $1,300 A YEAR SURE COMES IN HANDY."

"I got out of the Army in February of 1977, right when all the prices were going up. Food. Clothing. Gas. You name it and it went up.

"Fortunately, when I was out-processing, someone asked me if I wanted to make some extra money with a local Army Reserve unit, and I said yes.

"It's good I joined right away, because it took me a couple of months to find a good full-time job.

"Even with a regular job, the extra $1,300 I earned with the Reserve came in handy. It was the difference between barely making ends meet and being able to put a little money away.

"By going direct from Active into the Reserve, I was also able to keep my rank of E-4. I'm now an E-5, pulling in over $1,600 a year. Not bad for a weekend a month and two weeks annual training.

"I'm also taking advantage of some other benefits. I buy a lot of my auto supplies at the PX. I carry low-cost government life insurance through the Reserve. I also think the retirement package is a good deal.

| How much can you make part-time with the Army Reserve? | Per Weekend | Per Year |
|---|---|---|
| E-3 with 2+ years | $73.08 | $1231.41 |
| 3+ years | 76.04 | 1248.03 |
| E-4 with 3+ years | 80.52 | 1360.44 |
| 4+ years | 86.80 | 1459.35 |
| E-5 with 4+ years | 89.24 | 1510.38 |
| 6+ years | 95.08 | 1602.36 |

"A side benefit that's helped me is the additional training I've picked up in the Reserve. I was an MP on active duty but have become an Accounting Specialist in the Reserve. Right now, that's helping me with the business degree I'm working toward at a local college.

"So I can recommend the Army Reserve to anyone coming off active duty. The extra income is good, and it's nice being with people who can appreciate what you achieved in the service."

Army reservist wins Guard award

Recently, SFC Ronald Robinson, U.S. Army Reserves, was awarded the National Guard Minuteman Award. Why is an Army Reserve NCO getting a National Guard award and what's so big about it?

Robinson, assigned to Headquarters, TRADOC and attached here, has the job of advising and counseling Army Reserve personnel who are training here. However, Robinson does more than what his job calls for. He has been providing the same duties for National Guard soldiers as well, since 1978 and that's why he was recently awarded the National Guard Minuteman Award.

SFC Ronald Robinson

Brig. Gen. Herbert R. Temple, Jr., Deputy Director of the Army National Guard presented Robinson the award Dec. 10. Brig. Gen. Temple said, "Although it's not common for a Reservist to get this award, Robinson has made lasting contibutions to his relationship with indvidual guardsmen, the National Guard and the total Army. Through his dedication, time, efforts, confidence and knowledge of their indvidual needs and desires, he is able to enhance the productivity of the highly qualified and trained guardsman."

MSgt. James McCall, the National Guard liaison who works with Robinson, said the ratio of guardsmen and reservists here is about nine to one in favor of the guard. "Robinson was recognized for his tremendous help to the many guardsmen, along with his help to the reservists."

Robinson joined the Reserves in 1975 and came on active duty the following year. He arrived here in 1978 and is presently headquartered with the 1st Infantry Training Brigade.

The 39-year-old Pennsylvania native says he has appreciated being allowed the opportunity to serve on active duty. "I have especially enjoyed working with the active Army personnel and civilians of this post as a "citizen soldier", " he added.

Robinson lives on post with his wife, Judy and their two children Brooks (age six) and Helen (age four).

"I plan to continue to serve in the USAR in whatever capacity my country and family will allow," Robinson concluded.

How About That?

William Erbach, Jr.
36th Engineer Group chaplain

Sometimes there is nothing harder in life than to just endure, but to endure we need strength. Now there are two kinds of strength. There is the strength of the mighty oak, and there is the strength of the mighty oak that withstands the wind. There is the strength of the locomotive that tugs and pulls the weighty train across the bridge, and there is the strength of the bridge that upholds the work of the locomotive and train. One is an active strength and the other is a passive one. One is the power to keep going and the other is the power to stay still. One is the strength by which we overcome, and the other is the strength by which we endure, and like the two leg of balance one needs both to stay upright.

In todays world with its moral, economic and social ills it is essential that we have both kinds of strength. The ability to take it, to endure, is being able to take bad news without pessimismn and reverses without losing morale, being able to make sacrifices without self pity. Life is almost a constant battle of endurance. Yes we need also to work to overcome the roadblocks that confront us, and with the help of our active strength with a large dose of our friends and family we can overcome almost everything. But we can't win constantly, so we must be like the oak, bend but not break. How About That?

Richard Neibuhr gave us a prayer that should be constantly on our lips and at least in our thoughts: "Grant me the strength to accept the things I cannot change-The courage to change the things I can-And the wisdom to know the difference." Your own active and passive strength come into play in all you do, but have you found the balance that allows you to bend and not break, or grow where others have failed? You are the best judge of that.

Tonka magic

The 43rd Engineer Battalion won first place again this year in the annual Columbus Christmas parade. This year it was Company D with a dump truck painted like a TONKA toy. The men responsible for the float were CWO3 Jim Dunn, maintenance officer, 2nd Lt. William Skoda, platoon leader, 2nd Lt. John Buxton, construction officer, S-3 section. The dump truck was the main attraction at the Christmas tree lighting ceremony held Monday. Brig. Gen. Ed Trobaugh gave remarks and lit the trees to officially open the season. The Benning Belles and the 283rd Army Band were also featured.

The 'Perfect' Tree

Old-fashioned Christmas

The Christmas tree in the lot is shaped perfectly and will just fit in that nook in the living room. The price is right.

Then the salesman whacks the bottom of the tree against the ground to spread the branches and a rain of dry needles falls to the ground below. The tree won't last through the holidays and it could be a fire hazard.

In addition to making sure that needles are firmly attached to the tree, there are several other simple procedures that can make selection of a "perfect" Christmas tree easier.

- Determine where the tree will be displayed in your home and then select one that is the right height and shape; cutting large portions off either end will alter the tree's natural taper.
- Test to see if the needles are resilient, a sign of freshness; needles should not be brittle.
- Smell it: a fresh tree has a distinct fragrance.

And here are some tips to help make sure that the tree remains in good shape throughout the Christmas season.

- Cut the butt again when setting up the tree.
- Store the tree outside if it is purchased several days before you plan to set it up and decorate it.
- Be sure the base is well supported and the tree is placed away from fireplaces, radiators, electric heaters, televisions and any other source of heat.
- Keep the tree in water at all times.
- Keep open flames away from the tree and never leave your home with the Christmas tree lights on.
- Check electric cords for fraying and worn spots that could lead to fire; don't overload circuits; don't place electric toys directly under the tree and don't use combustible decorations.

Donated toys make Christmas happier

The Sav-A-Toy Project sponsored by the Army Community Services here has been very successful in attracting donations from various indviduals and organizations in the area. Many families here will have a happier and fuller Christmas holiday as a result.

ACS appreciatess everyone who has contributed but would like to add special thanks to those organizations that have made sizeable donations: Battalions of the 197th Infantry Brigade, the 36th Engineer Group, The School Brigade, 1st Infantry Training Brigade, MEDDAC, DENTAC and most of the Infantry Hall Directorates. One special donation was received from the children of the Religious Education School of Temple Israel in Columbus. Individual donations have been too numerous to itemize but are equally as important.

Army Community Services wishes to take this opportunity on behalf of the receiving families to publicly recognize those who have been able to participate in this program. We thank you for your kindness, your generosity and time and hope that your holiday is also a bit warmer this year.

Benning's musicians work hard

By Becky Bulgrin
BAYONET staff writer

A day in the life of a band member includes practice, performing commitments and more practice.

Members of the 283rd Army Band, naturally, do these things just as members of any band. At the same time they are soldiers and perform their duties like all soldiers.

"Even with our tight schedule, we're still soldiers. We participate in the 12-mile road marches and five-mile runs monthly," said CWO 2 John O'Preska, Jr., the bandmaster. "Of course, we qualify yearly at the rifle range and take the semi-annual PT tests too."

Sp4 Dan Nazworth disassembles his trombone after practice.

Many of the band's members said a lot of people think they have a "sham job" and do nothing but play their instruments all day.

"We have to do details and pull CQ duty just like any soldier," said Sp4 Kenny Rogers, percussionist. "And if we have a gig the day after CQ duty, we have to be there."

Job no "skate"

Trombonist Sp5 James Porter was a tank driver before receiving a secondary MOS as a band member through on-the-job training. He admitted that he thought his new job would be "a skate." "Little did I know that I'd be working about every other weekend and on most holidays when everyone else is off," he said, "but I'm not saying I'm not satisfied with my job."

Porter explained, "I feel I'm accomplishing more than when I was as a tank driver because the band gets out and does things for the troops. It gives you a different feeling; I feel I'm doing something worthwhile."

The band, assigned to Headquarters Command and attached to Company A, has performed more than 500 commitments this year through November, according to O'Preska.

The band also has its share of inspections. Besides the usual inspections of rooms, etc., the band is inspected before going out for each assignment.

Along with the many graduation, change-of-command and awards ceremonies on post, the band has performed for Gerald Ford, General Omar Bradley and Prince Charles of England. Traveling around the area and to other states for many different parades is also a part of the band's busy schedule. They have traveled as far as Brunswick, Maine for commitments, according to O'Preska.

Saxophonist Sp4 Keith Welch had other ideas about the parades he would play in when he joined the Army to be in the band. "My recruiter said we'd do a lot of parades," he said. "But his idea of a parade was different from mine."

"A parade here means anytime you march; I was thinking more of dressing in Class A's and people cheering as we went by," explained Welch.

Although the band travels around, Sp4 David Moser, who plays the trombone, said they don't do the kind of traveling he thought they would. "I figured I'd get to play in the jazz band and tour around," he said. "We really don't travel that much and when we do, it's usually not that far away."

Getting to one job at 5 a.m. and finishing another late that night is not an unusual day for the band, according to O'Preska. "Our hours vary widely and we don't have a routine schedule."

"Along with working during the very early hours, it's also not unusual to play in the rain and cold," commented Welch. "It gets pretty bad when you're marching in 20-degree weather and your lips get all messed up."

Leave policy different

Because of their busy schedule, the band's leave policy is different from everyone elses. They can only take leave during two specified times of the year, once during the summer and once during the Christmas holidays, unless it's an emergency situation. But most of the band members said they don't mind the policy.

"It's a good thing because we know we'll get Christmas and New Years off every year," said Rogers. Members of the band are also allowed only one four-day pass every six months.

Although the 283rd Army Band doesn't have a jazz band, the 36 soldier-musicians make up a marching band, concert band, stage band and combo.

"A lot of us wish people would request a stage band once in a while instead of just marching all the time," said Sp4 Mark McGarry, trumpet player. "We do have one and we'd like to use it." Other band members echoed that it gets to be the same old # out still have time for soldiering

hing; marching all the time.

Before receiving a primary MOS as a band member, the soldiers must complete a six-month course at the School of Music at the Naval Amphibious Base in Norfolk, Va.

McGarry got disillusioned while attending the school. "When I joined the Army I was under the impression that I could play my trumpet and become really good at it," he said. "But I also play the French horn and when I got to the School of Music I was told to audition on that instead. I was also told more French horn players were needed and that I could still play my trumpet. So when I auditioned on the horn, I found out I could no longer play my trumpet at the school."

"Finally, two months after I came here, I was able to play my trumpet," continued McGarry. "But six months without playing it really hurt. I plan on going to the Berkeley School of Music in Boston and I could be a lot better on the trumpet right now."

The musicians can use their own instruments if they have them, and instruments are provided if they don't .

As far as continuing to be a musician after getting out of the Army, Sp5 Charles Panco, who plays the French horn, says the experience he's getting now won't help. "That's because we're not getting enough of the practical experience we need, only marching," he commented. "But don't get me wrong, I still think this is good duty."

Although they have their problems just as in any other job, most of the band members agree that being in the band IS good duty.

Trumpet player Sp5 Gary O'Brien summed it up when he said, "Not everyone can be a band member. It takes a certain talent and we're proud of what we do."

Practice, commitments and working throughout the weekend are just a part of the band members' duties. A day in one of these musicians' lives is also a day in the life of a soldier.

Band member Sp4 Ben Caballero cleans his trumpet after a full day's use.

Members of the band perform in their honor guard khakis.

Benning's William Gonzalez (r) takes on Albany's J.T. Hayes in a bout that was looking very close from the start.

Hayes falls to his knees after Gonzalez comes on strong. This was only one of the four times Hayes went to the floor.

The Fort Benning boxing team hosted their last smoker Saturday night and ended up stealing the show. After getting off to a bad start, Benning came back with a knockout, two technical knockouts and another win to take four of the seven bouts they fought.

The 10-bout card included boxers from Fort Gordon (in conjunction with the Augusta, Ga. boxing club), the Albany Marines, one boxer from Greenville, S.C. and another representing Tuskegee ROTC.

After Benning lost its first two bouts, William Gonzalez came out moving fast and broke a two-fight losing streak with a TKO against Albany's J.T. Hayes. The fight looked close from the start when both were throwing a lot of hard, fast punches. Things really got going in the second round and the crowd was yelling as Gonzalez knocked Hayes down twice for two standing eight counts, the second time after Gonzalez threw a strong uppercut.

Gonzalez didn't let up and, after knocking Hayes down a fourth time, the referee stopped the fight at the end of the second round.

The crowd's excitement grew when Benning's Dwayne "Scrap Iron" Edwards faced Fort Gordon's Brian Sloan in a continuous punching match. Sloan's nose started bleeding in the first round but he held on to come back with some good blows.

Edwards pounded on Sloan's head in the third round and defeated him by the judges' decision.

The highlight of the night and Benning's third victory happened when Larry Golden came into the ring. He knocked Albany's Victor Lugo out after only 42 seconds. Lugo started out throwing more punches, but when Golden connected with a hard right to his face, Lugo went down for much more than the count of 10.

Rodrick Williams took Benning's fourth victory by a TKO against Fort Gordon's Noah Newman. Even after taking a standing eight count in the first round, Williams came back and started punching furiously.

Williams threw more hard body and head punches in the second round and the referee called the contest at the end of the round.

In addition to the exciting boxing, the crowd was entertained during intermission with a fine performance by the Columbus Karate Academy, featuring Columbus Ledger-Enquirer columnist Jack Swift.

Although the boxers did well, Benning coach Anthony Stoddard said they were let down by the small crowd of people who showed up. "It has an effect on the boxers when they're expecting someone and they're not there," he said. "It seems they box better away from home because they're not expecting a crowd. So when they hear people cheering them on, the boxers love it and come on stronger."

Benning's boxers are preparing for the FORSCOM tournaments at Fort Campbell which take place Feb. 9-13.

Football vacation?

By Tim Boivin
BAYONET columnist

The end of the regular season 'tis near and housewives all over the Earth are rejoicing; for there will be no more football until at least March, when the draft rolls around.

A whole two months of vacation for those lovable laborers who have to sandwich a big Sunday dinner between the end of the Falcons latest, last-minute victory and the Special Sunday Night Edition of ABC's Monday Night Football. And that roast had better be hot, or else!

There's also the Thursday Night Edition and the Saturday Morning Special Animated Edition of Monday Night Football on the drawing board. The only thing lacking is someone with the capability to caricaturize Howard Cosell's voice without mispronouncing the big words. This is, after all, educational television, and we wouldn't want the kiddies to be misinformed(not to mention the daddies who get up to watch the animated version), now, would we?

Football has passed baseball as the National Pasttime and is no longer the diversion spent on Saturday and Sunday fall afternoons. The season begins with the draft, then there's the spring workouts, the rookie camp, the free agent camp, the free agent rookie camp and then the real thing, the summer camp. I wonder how it feels for a grown man to be sent to summer camp.

Summer camp is when the experts who aren't ever there tell you on the nightly newscasts who are the key, and not so key, players. And it is also the time when the sportscasters are still on speaking terms with the coach, before the first loss.

The exhibition games, usually held in sweltering heat, are meaningless exercises in futility as none of the teams want to showcase what they really have, except last year's losers, who have to in order to get fans in the gate to pay for their option on next year's first draft choice, 6'8" Hunk Harrasson.

Hunk plays his ball at Macho U. for the Macho Masochists and has a cute, curly mustache for those women who watch the shaving cream commercials while preparing that big, Sunday dinner. He's also a soft-spoken, Eastern-educated liberal for those of us who think football is a war, oops, game of strategy.

The problem facing the losers is that Hunk has never been on a losing team and doesn't want to play for the cellar-dwellars. He will play in only one of three places; Los Angeles, for his movie career; New York, for his image; and Paris, France. Hunk, after all is a renaissance man when it comes to culture.

So for those Sunday-suffering housewives who haven't the nerve to switch the Falcons game with two minutes left and the Atlantans on the two so the kids can watch Mutual of Omaha, here's a toast. Have a nice vacation and wait until next year!

Doughboys clinch win

By Becky Bulgrin
BAYONET sports editor

The Fort Benning Doughboys met their match Sunday afternoon, in height and heavy-scorers, against the Cascade L team from Beallwood Heights but still edged out a narrow win to remain undefeated.

Even with the absence of their starting 6'8" center Robert Hooper, the Doughboys clinched a 105-103 victory over Cascade L for their third straight win of the season.

Forward Harry Lyons dropped in a game-high 29 points for the Doughboys and a new player, Warren Terry, added 22. The team's leading scorer so far this year, Robert Thomas, added 17.

Gary Wilson led Cascade L with 22 and Farley Wilson put in 19 more.

The score was close throughout the first half as both teams shot up and down the court making points. Cascade was ahead 46-43 near the end of the half, then Lyons stuffed in an attempt by Terry to leave Cascade with only a one-point advantage. After two scores by each team, Terry was fouled with seconds left in the half. He went to the line and made good to squeeze out a 49-48 halftime lead for the Doughboys.

The Doughboys fell 13 points behind at 10:47 in the second half with a score of 78-65. They finally regained the lead at 3:48 when Gregory Hicks dropped one in. Hicks scored again to increase the Doughboys lead to 91-88.

Nathaniel Harris came back to his usual fast, scoring game to add 12 points in the half for a total 17-point game. The Doughboys remained in the lead with the exception of a 93-93 tie at one point before their victory.

According to Doughboy coach, Oliver Green, the thing that hurt the Doughboys was their transition from offense to defense. "It took us most of the game to get it right, but it paid off in the end," he said.

The Doughboys next game will be Jan. 10. Further information will be published in the upcoming BAYONET.

Brigade soccer results

The first brigade-level fall soccer league ended its season Dec. 11.

Two teams from The School Brigade, IOAC 4-80, 12th Company, 13th Company and IOAC 5-80 are tied with 5-1 records. There will be a play-off between the teams to determine the first and second place winners. The date and time has not been determined.

Third place was taken by the 36th Engineer Group, fourth went to the 197th Infantry Brigade and the 34th Medical Battalion placed fifth.

Power Lift championship slated

For all of you who are into pumping iron: the West Georgia Open Power Lift Championship will be held Saturday, Jan. 31, at Columbus College.

Sanctioned by the U.S. Powerlifting Federation (USPF) and the Amateur Athletic Union (AAU), the championship is open to all weight classes. This is a Class II Open Division Power Meet.

There will be three events: squat, bench press and dead lift.

The weigh-in for the 114- 181-pound division begins at 7:30 a.m. E.S.T. The weigh-in for the heavyweight division begins at 12:30 p.m. E.S.T.

There will be trophies for first through third places and medals for fourth and fifth places in each weight class. There will also be a Best Lifter trophy in the light and heavy divisions.

The meet is open to all registered AAU athletes who have not achieved the status of Class I or higher. AAU and USPF cards will be provided at the meet.

Meet directors are Dick Reno of Atlanta and Bill Orr of Columbus. For more information, call Coach Orr at (404) 568-2046.

Free Fun Run

The Columbus Track Club will conduct a free Fun Run at Cooper Creek Sunday at 3 p.m.

Runners can choose to participate in a three, five or eight to 10-mile race.

Cooper Creek is located at Milgen Road off Exit 5 on the Bypass.

Atlanta Marathon

The Atlanta Marathon and Half-Marathon takes place tommorrow at 10 a.m. in Atlanta.

Sponsored by the Atlanta Track Club, both races start and finish at Westminster High School (located on West Wesley and Ferry Roads off I-75 North).

For more information call Bruce LaBudde at (404) 231-9064 or 423-3056.

YA Grasshopper Division champions named

By Tom Gage
Youth Activities football correspondent

The Youth Activities football Grasshopper Division championship was played recently between the Main Post Seahawks and the Tri-City Panthers. The result of this closely fought game was a 7-6 tie-breaking win for the Panthers.

Both teams had suffered their only loss during the season to each other and were fully aware of one another's capabilities as they fought for the title.

The Seahawks scored first early in the second quarter and the Panthers scored late in the third on a 7-yard-run by Gus Wyche. He shot up the middle behind the blocking of Joe Perez, Ladell Bryant and Donald Lane.

In the last 10 seconds of the game, the Panthers' Styrom Traylor made the big saving play by closing a five-yard lead. He overtook the Seahawk's ball carrier eight yards short of a TD after a 35-yard chase.

Both teams' coaching staffs had two minutes at the end of the fourth quarter to prepare their teams for the all important tie-breaker. Jim Price, offensive coach for the Panthers, stressed the need for better blocking, quicker execution of plays after the snap and running the ball to the outside corners more.

This play was so successful the Panthers were able to move the ball to the Seahawks' 1-yard-line. Defensive coach John Hewins instructed the Panthers on their second play. Then on the last play of the game, Wyche took the snap at the 28-yard-line and downed the ball for the winning point.

Other members of the championship Panther team are Johnny Barmore, J. J. Blackwell, Chris Butler, Ricky Butler, Mark Cascolan and Jason Rice.

Doughgirls ripped

By Becky Bulgrin
BAYONET sports editor

The Fort Benning Doughgirls basketball team opened their season last weekend with two games against a much more experienced Fort Rucker, Ala. team. Benning was soundly defeated by the Flyerettes in both games, 82-15 and 77-31.

"We'll get there," said Doughgirl coach Perry Graves. "A lot of our girls have never been on the court together; we've only been practicing for a week and some of our best players didn't show."

According to Rucker's coach , R. Jackson, the Flyerettes are a veteran team, with all the players except three returning from last year's 23-9 team.

Veteran forward Gladys Chalmers led the Flyerettes with a whopping 31 points in the first game on Saturday with Donna Townsend adding 13 to their one-sided victory.

The Doughgirls stayed close until 5:11 of the first half Saturday with Rucker leading 18-6. Then the Flyerettes exploded in the last five minutes, increasing their lead to 28-6 at the half. From there, it was all downhill for the Doughgirls. They scored only nine points to Rucker's 54 in the second half. Team captain Teresa Irving, 5'9" forward, put in four points for the Doughgirls, along with 5'9" center Melody Blackburn and 5'4 forward Sharon Parker, who also added four each.

Although the Doughgirls managed to raise their score during Sunday's game, the Flyerettes still outclassed them, even while using five different starters.

Chalmers was then put in and again dominated the boards for Rucker while leading her team with 22 points.

Both teams were heavily penalized throughout the game but the Doughgirls were constantly called for fouls. Six Benning players fouled out in the second half. Irving was Benning's high-scorer Sunday with 17 points.

The Doughgirls next game will be tommorrow at 2 p.m. in Briant Wells Fieldhouse. They will face the PM 76ers, a team from Atlanta.

Experts respect hazards

By Sharron Calabrisi
BAYONET correspondent 36th Group

To support five counties in Alabama, 44 counties in Georgia, Columbus, Fort Benning and the 36th Engineer Group, it would take a pretty large group.

This is not the case with the 89th Ordnance Detachment EOD (explosive ordnance disposal.) The 11 personnel assigned to this unit do the job, and do it well.

"We're a special group of people and it takes a special group of people to do this job," commented SFC Francis F. McDevitt, senior supervisor.

The training the EOD technicians go through is quite intense. There are three phases to their training, beginning at Red Stone Arsenal, Ala. They learn about chemical munitions and hazards for two weeks. The second phase is 13 weeks long. The technicians learn conventional munitions at Indianhead, Maryland. For six weeks they learn about nuclear weapons and their hazards.

The EOD technicians don't just sit around waiting for explosives to dispose of, they all function in other duties in the unit as administration clerks, supply, maintenance, and training.

"We respond on an as needed basis," explained DeVitt. "If there are bomb threats to either the Columbus area or Fort Benning, we will respond only after the local police or the military police have investigated first."

"There is always a degree of anticipation when we respond to a call, but we must always act calmly. We respect the explosives for what they can do," Devitt commented.

The EOD technicians are on call 24 hours. "When the need arises, we respond in teams of two for safety," DeVitt explained.

In a war-time situation, the EOD technician would assist the combat arms. "We would be required to keep vital areas operational," DeVitt explained.

The EOD technicians are constantly keeping up with the times, "We have to attend a refresher course between 48 and 60 months after we complete the basic course," DeVitt added.

"People should look at EOD as a public service because we're here to eliminate hazards," DeVitt concluded.

Post's DPCA wins management award

The Directorate of Personnel and Community Activites won the Commander's Resources Management Award for the rating period of Jan. 1-June 30.

This award, a part of the Department of the Army Productivity Improvement Program, was established to recognize exceptional management improvement within a unit or activity.

DPCA was selected for the award because the directorate demonstrated the greatest involvement in the various management programs and displayed diverse, innovative initiative which reduced Fort Benning resource requirements.

Four DPCA management improvement actions were implemented or approved during the rating period resulting in first year savings of $429,201.

Puppet show

Oops we goofed! Last Friday we said the "Aladdin" puppet show would be performed at the Kelley Hill Recreation Center last Saturday at 2 p.m. For those who were disappointed to find that there was no show don't dispair! The show was originally scheduled for, and will be performed tomorrow at 2 p.m.

Admission is free and the show is an entertainment extravaganza suitable for the whole family.

Chess Tournament

The Fountain City Chess Club, located at 3852 Gentian Blvd., Columbus will sponsor a U.S. Chess Federation-rated three round Swiss system chess tournament tommorrow.

Registration will be from 8:30-9 a.m. With the tournament starting at about 9 a.m.

The time control will be 40 moves within one hour and a second time control will be 20 moves within 30 minutes with accumulation of time.

The entry fee is $7.50 for adults and $5 for minors 18 and under. Membership in the U.S. Chess Federation is required and can be obtained at the tournament site. For more information call 545-4242 or 682-0864.

Christmas Lighting Policy

The Exterior lighting policy for Christmas decorations has been established for the Fort Benning community.

Only selected chapels, Martin Army Community Hospital, Infantry Hall and Community Life Centers may use exterior lighting and will be allowed to have one lighted Christmas tree. Interior lighting and authorized exterior decorations may only be used from 6-10 p.m., except on Christmas Eve, when lighting may stay on until 2 a.m. Lighted candles are not allowed to be used. For more information call 545-4652.

Puppet extravaganza

Marionettes from the show "Alladin" go thrugh their paces during a recent show. The Vagabond Marionettes is one of America's most distinguished professional puppet theaters for children and they are coming here to perform the show. They will appear at the Kelley Hill Recreation Center Saturday at 2 p.m. The show features magical effects, including flying carpets, disappearing canes, appearing palaces; spectatular scenery and costumes, classical music and large hand-crafted puppets. The show is free to the military community.

The Tot Town Nursery located at Bldg. 1051 on 1st Division Road is planning an extra-special New Year's celebration for them. The doors will be open from 6:30 p.m. to 3 a.m. New Year's Eve. Cost is $6 for the first child and $3 for each additional child.

Parents should bring their child's shot records when signing them in. Reservations should be made by Monday.

For more information call 689-8968.

Deer hunting

Last week we wrongly reported that hunting was prohibited on the Alabama side of the post. What we meant to report was that deer hunting from a vehicle is prohibited on the Alabama side of Fort Benning. However, for those intrepid woodsmen who don't mind roughing it on foot, deer hunting is allowed.

Hunters should remember that theyy aren't permitted to drive vehicles on to wilddlife openings and food strips including cross-country rye strips are strictly prohibited.

Live Christmas Trees

The Youth Activities Annual Live Christmas Tree Sale will be conducted now until Tuesday from 4-8 p.m. at the Main Mall PX. Quality Balsam Fir and Scotch Pines trees will be available and are from five to 10-feet-tall. Prices begin at $8.

For more information call 545-3070/2343.

Christmas tree cutting

Military units and occupants of on-post family housing desiring to cut Christmas trees on the reservation may cut them in the following areas:

- Area A-bounded by Good Luck Road, Yankee Road and Jamestown Road.
- Area E and I-bounded by Hourglass Road, Red Diamond Road, Box Springs Road and Central of Georgia Railroad.
- Area O-bounded by Buena Vista Road, Schatulga Road, Moore Road and the reservation boundary on the north.
- Area Q-bounded by Jamestown Road, Crosbie Road, Old Cusseta Road and Lightning Road. For more information call 544-6416.

Morale Support Activities

The Morale Support Activities Division wants everyone to enjoy the holiday season here, So with just a few exceptions, all of the Morale Support sponsored activities will be open. Following is a list of the ones that will be open during the holiday season.

- Briant Wells Fieldhouse basketball, weights, racquetball and swimming pool.
- Crafts shop including automotive, ceramics, woodworking and photo lab. All will be closed Christmas Eve until Friday and New Years until Jan. 2.
- Sports fans can bowl, golf, use the outdoor rentals and picnic, fish and go boating at the Uchee Creek Recreation Center.
- Kelley Hill Recreation Center (closed Christmas Day and Friday). Tommorrow at 2 p.m. take the youngsters to a Kiddie Puppet Show. There's a Christmas Eve party 6 p.m.
- The main library and Music Center.
- Go cart riding is located behind the Reenlistment building parking lot (weather permitting.)

At the Youth Activities center various sports will be offered. Tommorrow night at 8 p.m. dance at the teen semi-formal disco. On Dec. 27 have fun at the teen New Year's Eve party at 8 p.m.

TMC's schedule

During the holiday season (Today19-Jan. 5) sick call will be held at the following locations and times:

- TMC # 1 from 6:30-11:30 a.m. (Main Post)
- TMC #8A from 7 a.m.-3:30 p.m. (Harmony Church)
- TMC #5 from 6:30-11:30 a.m. (Sand Hill)
- On Christmas and New Year's Day sick call will be held at the Emergency Room of Martin Army Community Hospital.

Facilities Engineers

Starting Friday until Jan. 2, only emergency work order requests will be processed by the Director of Facilities Engineers work force here.

This policy is due to the holiday schedule and annual leaves taken by civilian employees. Customers are requested to limit their calls to emergencies only.

For more information call 545-2919.

Lighting policy set

The Exterior lighting policy for Christmas decorations has been established for the Fort Benning community.

Selected chapels, Martin Army Community Hospital, Infantry Hall and Community Life Centers may use exterior lighting and will be allowed to have one lighted Christmas tree. Interior lighting and authorized exterior decorations may only be used from 6-10 p.m., except on Christmas Eve, when lighting may stay on until 2 a.m. Lighted candles are not allowed to be used.

For more information call 545-4652.

DEERS program

During January, February and March 1981, every active member assigned here will be required to enroll their dependents in a new system called DEERS.

This system will be used to determine eligibility for medical care. To enroll, sponsors must complete an I.D. Card application form (DD Form 1172) which lists all dependents and provide documents which verify the dependent status. Call 545-3381 for more information.

Children's Film

The Children's Department at the W.C. Bradley Memorial Library will feature the classic children's film, "The Adventures of Tom Thumb" at 2 p.m. Dec. 29 and Dec. 30. The film will be shown in the library meeting room and is free to the public. For more information call 327-0211.

DoD vacancy

A DoD-wide vacancy announcement service has been established by the Centralized Referral Activity (CRA), Dayton, Ohio. This service is to announce job opportunities throughout the Department of Defense. A new vacancy listing has been received in the Civilian Personnel Office. The listing contains description of duties, and instructions on making applications. Interested indviduals may review the list in Room 100, Bldg. 35 or call 545-7653/1610.

Education assistance

The deadlines are approaching for the submission of applications and related documents to obtain Army Emergency Relief (AER) Education Assistance.

Dependent children of active, retired and deceased Army personnel are eligible to apply for loans or scholarships from AER for the school year beginning September 1981. This assistance is available for post-secondary, vocational or undergraduate college studies. Financial aid forms, which must be submitted in conjunction with applications, are due at Headquarters, AER by Feb. 15, 1981.

For more information and applications come by the AER office, Room 112, Bldg. 83, or call 545-4043.

Highway is peacetime battleground

By B. Selling
197th Infantry Brigade

What causes the most deaths and injuries to the peacetime soldier? Car accidents do. Many of these accidents could have been avoided if someone used a little more common sense.

It is shocking to note that in fiscal year 1979, the Army lost 301 soldiers, the strength of two infantry companies, to such accidents. Two thousand other soldiers were injured, some permanently. What is at the heart of this matter?

Drunk driving. It is the number one cause of POV accidents. Speeding and fatigue are also at the heart of that matter. Had someone been more safety-concious, accidents would have never occured.

Safety is everybody's business because it keeps the soldier alive. A soldier's life needs to be safeguarded from accidents. This can be done by following some of these tips:

- obey the speed limit.
- be alert especially on unfamiliar roads.
- don't drive long trips without frequent breaks. Long hours behind the wheel tend to make you drowsy.
- take a buddy with you. Having someone to talk to and to help you do the driving is a safer way to travel.
- don't be ashamed to let a buddy who is more alert and more sober drive. If he lets you drive when you've had too much too drink, you both are in trouble.
- use your head. If you are tired or drunk, don't drive. Also, do your car racing on an authorized track, not on the interstate.

Remember, POV safety can be a lifesaver - possibly yours!.

C. G.'s message

The Christmas-New Year holiday season is a time of joyous fellowship and gala festivities. As families and friends gather together, we should each make a special effort to place the welfare and safety of those around us ahead of our personal desires, thus assuring fond memories of the season for everyone.

As a member of our Fort Benning family, each of you bears a great personal and moral responsibility to pursue all your seasonal activities safely in order to prevent needless accidents which may result in tragedy. Although Fort Benning has not recorded an accidental death during this period since 1975, approximately 1,100 Americans will die this year as a result of holiday accidents. It will take a concerted effort by all of us to prevent a tragedy among our personnel.

If your plans for the season include driving, allow plenty of time for rest breaks when traveling long distances, be alert for drivers under the influence of alcohol, and think "defensive driving" whenever you are behind the wheel. While decorating your home for the festivities, use fire retardant decorations and approved electrical devices, and be sure to keep mistletoe and poinsettias away from small children.

I sincerely hope you and your families enjoy the holidays to the fullest extent possible and I look forward to working with you in the coming New Year.

Medal given for creek rescue

On March 29, 1977, Sp5 Alzonia Wilson was not supposed to be on duty, but he was filling in while a friend went to lunch. He was a member of the Military Assistance to Safety and Traffic (MAST) team. The call for help came in from Alabama. Three Auburn University students were stranded on the Saugahatchee Creek with no way off the river.

The weather was bad. The students could not swim the swift current of the rain swelled creek. After their canoe overturned, the students managed to steer the canoe to a clump of trees in the middle of the river. They climbed to the top of the trees and waited for help. The Alabama State Patrol could not get the students off the river. The MAST team arrived on the scene and the State Patrol directed the MAST helicopter to the students.

The crew of the helicopter examined the situation. They could not drop the jungle penetrator because it might get caught in the trees. The MAST team could not leave the students in the trees, which left only one alternative. Sp5 Wilson, then a member of the 498th Medical Company, 34th Medical Battalion, strapped himself to the jungle penetrator and was lowered down to the students. Finding the students healthy, he directed the helicopter using hand and arm signals toward the trees and the students.

One student at a time was strapped to the penetrator and Wilson and raised to the helicopter. Wilson made the 100-foot trip three times. The students were saved. The pilot submitted Wilson for a Soldier's Medal, the highest peacetime award given for heroism.

On December 16th, 1980 Wilson, now a staff sergeant assigned to Company B, NCOSI, was awarded the Soldier's Medal. According to Wilson, the paperwork had to be rewritten once or twice and then was approved by the then Commanding General, Maj. Gen. Will Latham. The paperwork finally went all the way to Department of the Army. Department of the Army approved the award.

The Soldier's Medal is not the first award Wilson has received. He has previously been awarded the National Defense Ribbon, three Good Conduct Awards,and the Air Crewmember Badge. Wilson has been a squad instructor with the Primary Leadership Course since its beginning and hopes to soon get an assignment working in his primary skill, as a medic.

Health plans cut illness cost

Rising medical costs mean military families may need help with their portions of CHAMPUS bills. An awareness of individual and family needs, CHAMPUS coverage and limitations, and the options of private supplemental insurance should all be considered when health care coverage is examined. Be sure that your health coverage program can save you unnecessary financial hardships.

Several service-oriented groups have supplemental insurance plans to help pay that amount if CHAMPUS does not cover the entire cost. Some plans also cover the deductible. Others supplement Medicare coverage for members over 65 and their spouse, or hospital income plans which provide a cash income whenever the insured is hospitalized.

These plans are all limited. They don't cover any injury or sickness as a result of war, or treatment for alcoholism or drug addiction. They also often exclude coverage for pre-existent conditions during the initial months of the policy.

Premiums for these supplemental plans are usually much lower than for other health plans which cover the entire cost of medical care. However, CHAMPUS does not officially approve or recommend any of the plans. Among the plans available:

- The Air Force Sergeant Association, P.O. Box 9081, Washington, D.C., 20003, is open to active or retired enlisted in the United States Air Force(USAF), Air National Guard, Air Reserve, Army Air Corps or their reserves and former enlisted who are now commissioned or warrant officers.

- The Army Logistics Association, Suite 300, 1000 Connecticut Avenue, N.W.Washington, D.C., 20036, is open active, retired or reserve members of uniformed service, civilians who represent industry and government employees.

- The Association of the United States Army, Dept. CFM, 2100 M Street, N.W. Washington, D.C., 20036, is open to anyone interested in the Army and national security.

- The Fleet Reserve Association, 1303 New Hampshire Avenue, N.W. Washington, D.C., 20036, is open to active and retired members of the United States Navy(USN), Marine Corps and Coast Guard.

- The National Association for Uniformed Services, 956 North Monroe Street, Arlington, Va., 22201, is open to all ranks of active, reserve and retired members of all uniformed services. Widows may participate even though their husbands had not previously participated.

- The Navy League of the United States, 2100 M Street, N.W. Washington, D.C., 20037, is open to any American citizen of good character. Widows may participate even though their husbands had not previously participated.

- The Reserve Officer's Association, One Constitution Avenue, N.E. Washington, D.C., 20002, is open to any regular, reserve, active or inactive officer of the uniformed services.

- The Retired Officer's Association, 1625 Eye Street, N.W. Washington, D.C., 20006, is open to past or present commissioned or warrant officers in the seven uniformed services.

- North Carolina Blue Cross/Blue Shield, P.O. Box 2291, Durham, N.C., 27702, is open to military retirees and eligible dependents.

- The Mutual of Omaha Insurance Company, 1666 Connecticut Avenue, Washington, D.C., 20009, is open to all ranks of active, reserve and retired members of all uniformed services.

- The Non-Commissioned Officer's Association(NCOA), NCOA/CHAMPUS Aid Health Plan, Academy Life Insurance Company, One Valley Forge Plaza, Valley Forge, Pa., 19482, is open to active, retired, reserve and National Guard E-4 through E-9 members of the uniformed services and their dependents.

Border battle fought with computer

Editor's note: the information for the following feature was compiled from interviews and news releases from the 197th Infantry Brigade.

By Tim Boivin

The 197th Infantry Brigade responded to a Soviet attack on the northern border of a friendly nation last week.

Sound a little far-fetched? With the Computer assisted Map Manuever Simulation (CaMMS) the capability to train for such an attack is available to the 197th.

Capt. Bob Babicke, in charge of deploying the Soviet forces, explained, "Headquarter units of each Battalion in the brigade are out in the field. They call in their position to the S-3's at the 197th's Aviation hanger at Lawson Army Air Field. The S-3's tell them where to station themselves by looking at the current Soviet positions on the CAMMS board."

Babicke added, "The board is like a big 'Risk' game board of the area. I move the Soviet troops where I feel they should be. All of the movements are fed into a computer and sent by phone lines to Fort Leavenworth, Kan. This exercise lasted from 10 a.m. Tuesday until noon Thursday."

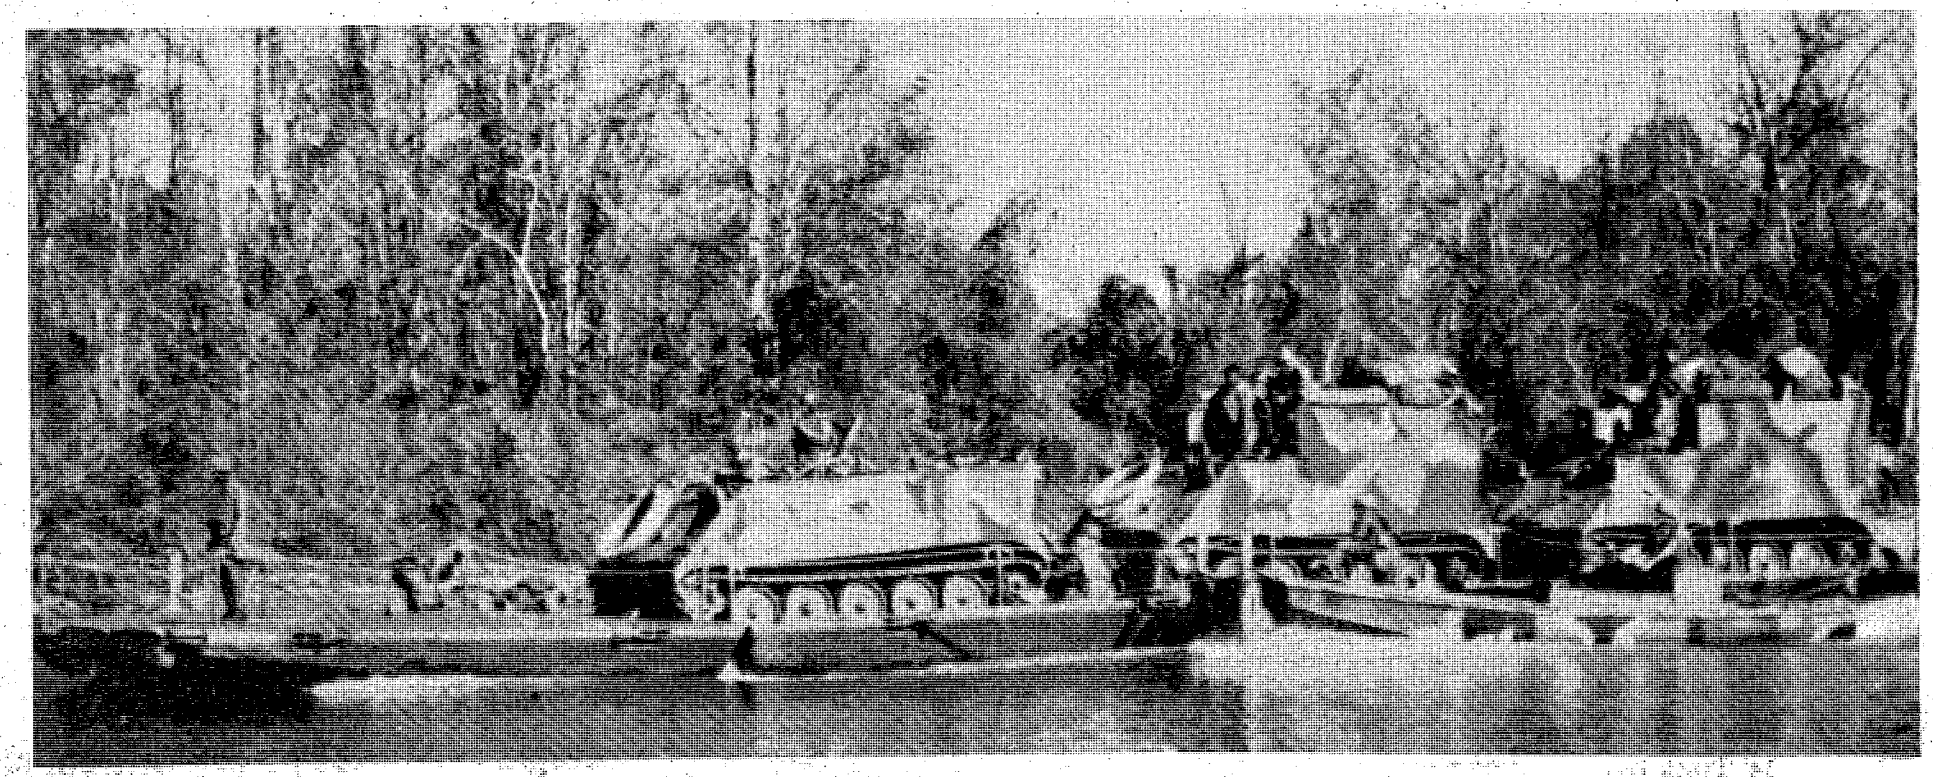
Through the use of special forms all aspects of the war are programmed into the computer at Fort Leavenworth. Maj. Kenneth D. Martz, chief CaMMS controller, emphasized, "This system allows us to train in any type of terrain in the world without sending the soldiers there. When the computer gives us the results, it shows everything including casualties, equipment losses, fuel oil and ammunition consumption."

"It familiarizes the commanders with the enemy's weapon systems," said Capt. Mitchell S. Dossett.

The exercise had four objectives for the 197th. They were:

- Exercise commanders and the staff in combat, combat support and combat service support operations in a mid-intensity environment.
- Exercise intelligence gathering and dissemination systems.
- Exericse the reporting chain from the company to corps level
- Review brigade and battalion tactical standard operating procedures.

In a recent CaMMS exercise 72nd Engineers helped the 197th Infantry Brigade cross the Chattahoochee River without delay. Using a ribbon bridge raft powered by twin deisel engines the river was crossed in nine minutes.



River crossing made easy with ribbon bridge.

Sheriff's Target

The popularity of BB and pellet guns is reflected in the tremendous sales volume of these weapons over the years. Most young boys would give their right arm to own an air rifle or pistol; indeed, many will see their dreams come true this Christmas.

Used with caution and under adult supervision, they represent a young boy or girl's first steps toward the proper and safe handling of firearms. However, there are few situations more potentially dangerous than placing one of these weapons in the hands of an inexperienced and unsupervised child.

Col. Ward
Provost Marshal

Police handle hundreds of calls each year concerning both destructions of property and personal injury resulting from misuse of pellet and BB guns. A sharp increase in broken quarter windows and vehicle windshields shattered by these weapons during the past few months indicates that Fort Benning is not exempt from the problem.

An incident that occured here last year really brings home the potential danger. A 10-year-old boy received a pump air rifle from his parents for his birthday. It was equipped with a telescopic sight and could be pumped up until the pellet it fired had almost the velocity of a .22 caliber bullet.

Unknown to his parents, the boy loved to sit at his bedroom window and fire the gun at objects outside. One afternoon he shot at a small girl playing in her yard across the street. The pellet struck her in the head; she survived simply because the boy had not had enough strength to pump the rifle up to its full capacity. A near tragedy which could have been averted had the weapon been properly respected.

USAIC Reg. 210-5 categorizes BB guns and air rifles/pistols as weapons. It requires their registration with the Provost Marshal and specifies that they may be fired on post in approved hunting areas and under the supervision of an adult.

Let's make this a happy and safe holiday season. Don't allow children to have free access to any weapons in your home and teach them to handle BB and pellet guns with common sense and safety.

Many children will be receiving bicycles for Christmas. Parents, let me urge you to protect "Santa's" investment by getting these bicycles registered with the Provost Marshal's Office. Bring information on the make, model and serial number to the Vehicle Registration Section and be issued a post decal to place on the bicycle's rear fender.

This is an important first step in safeguarding the bicycle, for it serves as a deterrent to potential thieves and gives us the information necessary to assist recovering the bicycle should it become lost or stolen.

There has been several incidents recently of gas siphoning from vehicles parked in parking lots and in front of quarters. With the spiraling cost of gasoline these days, I strongly recommend that owners equip their cars with a locking gas cap---it may be a whole lot cheaper in the long run.

DEFENSE ACTIVITY for NON-TRADITIONAL EDUCATION SUPPORT — DANTES

LESSON 1

AN ADULT EDUCATION OPPORTUNITY

If you are an adult who did not complete high school, here is an opportunity for you to study and prepare for the high school equivalency certificate (GED) in your own home. This series of seventeen lessons and mini-exams was prepared by the De Kalb County (GA) Adult General Education Program. The Defense Activity for Non-Traditional Education Support (DANTES) and your base education office, in cooperation with your installation newspaper, present this series for your benefit.

ENGLISH - LESSON I

Why should a person learn the fundamentals of grammar? For the same reason the user needs to know how a machine works -so it can be used correctly or so an old part can be replaced with a new one. Most people have little trouble being understood by friends and acquaintances when using ordinary day to day speech. If you think about it, you will realize that we do not punctuate our speech with periods, commas or question marks. Instead, we pause, raise or lower our voices, and even gesture with our hands or shoulders, depending on what we are saying or how we feel about what we are saying.

We often do not speak in complete sentences. We use single words, snatches of words or long sentences that seem to go on forever. Unfortunately, it is not always possible to write the same way as we speak. If we did, important ideas would become confused or misunderstood. Think of a legal contract or written instructions telling you how to assemble a bicycle and you get the idea how important correct writing really is. This type of writing is called "Formal English." In this first lesson, the sentence and the basic parts of speech will be introduced. The subject and verb will be explained so that you will be able to use them properly.

The Sentence

The sentence is a group of words expressing a complete thought. The sentence can be very short or it can be long and complex. Correctly written sentences must have a subject and a verb. The subject of a sentence is a noun (name of a person, place, thing, or idea) or a pronoun (a word which is used in place of a noun). To identify the subject, ask yourself who or what is being talked about. The verb tells you what the subject is doing. Example: Bobby Clark plays golf. Bobby Clark is the subject of the sentence because he is the person being talked about. Plays is the verb because this tells what Bobby Clark is doing in the sentence. In this simple sentence, only nouns and a verb are used. The same sentence could be expanded to include several parts of speech. Example: The brilliant young Bobby Clark plays a superb game of golf. In the expanded sentence, Bobby Clark is still the subject and plays is the verb, but adjectives (modifiers) and prepositions (words that connect nouns or pronouns to the rest of the sentence) have been added. While you will not be asked to identify parts of speech on the G.E.D. test, you must recognize the different parts of speech so that you can use them correctly in sentences.

Another reason for being able to identify the subject and verb in a sentence is so that you can make sure that they agree in number. Singular (naming one person, place, thing or idea) subjects require a singular verb. Plural subjects (more than one) require plural verbs. Example: John (one person) is my friend. The girls (more than one) are my neighbors. You will have an expanded study of this in the lesson on verb usage.

The singular subject takes the s form of some verbs. Example: Mary knows the new professor. John and Ann know him also. Note that the singular subject takes the s form of the verb know and that the plural subject requires the plain form. When the subject names a number of people or things collectively, a singular verb is used. Example: The family is at home this evening. The annual staff stays late each Tuesday. Some nouns are always plural and require a plural verb. Example: My new scissors are sharp. When words like eyeglasses or scissors are connected by the expression pair of, a singular verb is used.

USING ADJECTIVES AND ADVERBS FOR COMPARISON

In the earlier example, "The brilliant young Bobby Clark plays a superb game of golf," young and brilliant are adjectives describing the man, Bobby Clark. If the sentence had been changed to read, "The young Bobby Clark plays golf brilliantly, the word brilliantly would be an adverb, telling how he plays. When the word brilliant is used as an adverb, ly is added to make the word brilliantly.

Simple modifiers are no problem, but when the student uses comparative adjectives, the three degrees must be remembered.

1. Positive - expressing a quality - example: gracious, smart.
2. Comparative - expressing a higher degree - example: more gracious, smarter.
3. Superlative - expressing the highest degree - example: smartest, most gracious.

In the regular method of changing the positive form to get the comparative and superlative, use more and most. Example: beautiful - more beautiful - most beautiful. Some adjectives are changed irregularly or by changing the words. Example: good - better - best. Expressions such as more sweeter, most highest, or worsest are always incorrect.

Adjectives also describe a noun by telling what kind, which one or how many. The, this, that and these are usually used as adjectives.

An adverb can tell how, when, where or to what extent. The person can be thoroughly disgusted - tells to what extent. Watch for common errors involving the use of good and well. Good - describes nouns or pronouns and well tells how, modifying the verb.

Helen made a good pie. - adj. describes pie. She cooks well. - adv. describes how she cooks.

John is a good swimmer.
He swims well. (never good).

Many expressions used in casual speaking and writing are not considered correct in more formal grammar.

She did pretty well. - incorrect
She did fairly well. correct
Real cannot be used for very.
Amy is real pretty. incorrect
Amy is very pretty. - correct
Which Sentence is incorrect?

1. a. The group were very noisy.
   b. The use of the newspaper to entertain and inform the people has been successful.
   c. My children are going to day camp this summer.
   d. Al and Harry were happy to go to the ball game.
2. a. Before Susan leaves, she should visit Aunt Sue.
   b. Karen's best jeans were completely covered with mud after the soccer game.
   c. A pair of eyeglasses were on the table.
   d. Jim as well as some other workers has decided to leave the company.
3. a. The anxious Mother said, "No news is good news."
   b. The two boys ride to school together.
   c. One of the students takes notes for three others.
   d. Buses and a train is a part of a rapid transit system.
4. a. The movie don't begin until four o'clock.
   b. One of these cartons contains the books.
   c. His hat and coat were on the table.
   d. The apples don't look ripe.
5. a. The captain or the major gives the orders.
   b. The battery of tests were given on Friday.
   c. Please stay at the hotel in the valley.
   d. Has John or Mary been to the fair?

New management act coming

WASHINGTON (ARNEWS)--A new Defense Officer Personnel Management Act (DOPMA) will result in major changes over the next few years designed to modernize the officer management system, said DA legislative officials.

The passage of DOPMA comes after a long period of negotiations between the Senate, House and the Department of Defense (DoD) over several key issues. The bill was first introduced in 1974 and received an early approval by the House. Changes introduced by the Senate, however caused a deadlock between the services and the Senate. A recent compromise version of DOPMA finally broke the impasse which led to the Senate's approval of Nov. 21. The bill had grade tables by about 3 percent over a two year period.

Officials said this will basically sustain present officer promotion points and opportunities. The Senate's proposal had called for Field Grade cuts of 20 to 30 percent, figures viewed as too severe by the services.

The revised DOPMA sets uniform, general constructive credit ruifs its own standards for awarding such credit. Officials believe this change will attract and retain more highly educated and technically trained Army officers, especially those with medical skills.

Overall, officials aid, the Army feels that DOPMA will improve the Army's management of officers. It allows for more equity in the promotion of company grade officers and permits promotion authority for captain to be done at Command Levels below Department of the Army level.

Further, the services will have the authority to keep captains who failed to get promoted on Active duty for a maximum of 20 years and majors up to 24 years.

Other DOPMA guidelines which impact significantly on the Officers Corp are:

•A single promotion system. DOPMA end the dual-temporary and permanent-promotion system. Officials said this will end the perception of inequality between Regular Army (RA) and Other Than Regular Army (OTRA) officers serving on active duty. All active duty officers will be placed under a single "Active Duty List".

•The foundation for achieving an all Regular Force at the eleventh year Time In Service (TIS) point.

•Promotion according to speciality needs. DOPMA continues the current Army policy which requires that promotion selection boards be instructed about service skills needs.

•Three-year retirement requirement. Officers must serve at least three years in a grade to be eligible for retirement in that grade. Now, retirement requirements vary based on law and policy.

Senate confirmation of General officers. The Senate will confirm appointments to, assignments and reassignments of all generals and lieutenants generals. Now, the President can approve certain reassignments of generals. Also, the Secretary of Defense can approve most reassignments for lieutenant generals.

•Pay for involuntary separation. The maximum pay for involuntary separation is $30,000 under DOPMA. Now, officers who leave the service on an involuntary basis receive up to $15,000.

Army officials pointed out the Army has been moving in the direction of DOPMA for several years through actions such as selective continuation boards, providing guidance to promotion selection boards about speciality needs, and moving toward flexible promotion points.

DOPMA was signed into law by the President on December 12. It is slated to take effect on Sept. 15, 1981.

Sub-zero training

Snowmen learn 'survivability' in Alaska

SSgt. Peele instructs soldiers to ski.

Story and Photos by Carl Crump

"There's cold and then there is COLD, and believe me, 38-degrees below zero is cold," exclaimed one frozen but enthusiastic soldier from the Forever Forward Brigade while training in Alaska recently.

The Patriots of Charlie Company, 1st Battalion (Mechanized), 58th Infantry have just returned from some grueling, but valuable cold weather training at the U.S. Army Northen Warfare Training Center, Fort Greely, Alaska-"The last frontier."

"The entire training was geared for survivability", explained Lt. Col. H.T. Fincher, commander, 1st Battalion, 58th Infantry. "The ability to perform and survive in sub-zero weather was our goal. The instructors were true professionals, and the training was hard but in the long run it only proved that the soldiers of Charlie Company are true professionals. Patriots in every sense.

Although there was little snow during their training, the use of skis and snow shoes were obvious necessities. Captain Danny McKnight, Company C, commander stated "the Patriots of Charlie Company proved that the differential of 108 degrees from Fort Benning to Fort Greely might have slowed my soldiers down initially, but once acclimated they performed in the manner expected of them; with courage, dedication and professionalism."

"It was so cold that on guard duty, most of the guys were dancing around, just to keep warm. The Northen Lights were fantastic. Kind of like a great body of light independent all to itself."

During the 19 days of training the soldiers learned about themselves, as well as how to watch-out for each other. The squads were broken down in three- man teams, watching each other for possible frost bite and exhaustion.

This system, according to 1st Sgt. Charles Thomas, "not only furthered the cohesiveness and comradship of the unit but cold weather injuries were few and minor.

"I was impressed with mans ability to survive in that kind of weather. More soldiers should be exposed to that training."

Another soldier, Pvt. Perry Wendell, explained, "Team work was an absolute necessity," "You found out who you could trust, and who wasn't going to cop out." I didn't know what cold was until we got there. Although it averaged about 38 below zero, the wind chill factor made it lower than 50 below most of the time."

Pvt. Manuel Randon, "I learned that I could depend on my buddies and NCOs. You knew who you can trust and up there, that was really important.

Approximately 3500 soldiers, sailors, airmen and marines are training every year at the Northen Warfare Training Center. This includes mountain climbing, river crossing and cold weather training. Of that 3500 only about 1500 receive the cold weather training. Company C, 1/58th was the first Mechanized Infantry unit there. This makes Patriots a true part of the elite in today's Army.

Fort Greely is only about 80-miles from the North Pole and Alaska itself is only a rifle shot from the Russians. For that reason alone, this type of training is important, and Alaska is truly the last frontier in the United States.

Thrilling performance

Maia Hardison holds the audience captive with her dramatic reading of Clement Moore's "Twas the Night Before Christmas." Sue Hockenberry smiles at the thought of St. Nick coming down the chimney. Maia is the daughter of SSgt. and Mrs. Freddy L. Hardison. The Spencer High Drama Club gave the performance at Thursday's PTA meeting.

Top scholars named on Columbus College list

Columbus College has named 517 students to the Dean's List for the fall quarter. The regular list comprises students who took 15 or more quarter hours of course work. The special list cites students who took from 10 to 14 hours of course work. The 517 students make up 11.3 percent of the student body registered in the fall quarter. Students must maintain an academic average of 3.4 out of a possible 4.0 to qualify for either list. Out of the 571 students on the list, 34 are from Fort Benning. Their names are:

Doughgirls lose third

The Fort Benning Doughgirls held their own during the first half of Saturday's game against a team from Atlanta, but ended with an 87-52 defeat by the Paper Machine 76ers.

Although the Doughgirls only had seven players for the game, including two new ones, they improved their playing after their last two defeats. They managed to come out of the half only six points behind the Paper Machine with a score of 40-34.

"Since a lot of team members are on leave, the players all had to have dual positions because of the shortage," said Benning's coach, Perry Graves. "This caused a problem because it was very tiring for the girls, especially during the second half."

While this was only the Doughgirls' third game, the 76ers had already played 15 with a 12-3 record, according to Frank Hanson, coach for the Paper Machine.

Team captain Teresa Irving had a game-high 18 points for the Doughgirls and Sharon Parker added 11. Newcomer Shirley McCoy, who is a 5'2½" fireball, also added 11. The other new member, Katherine Payton, put in eight.

Cynthia Hughes was high-scorer for the 76ers with 18 points. Denise Jenkins was close behind with 16 and Brenda Singleton and Stephanie Champion added 14 each. Regina Dennis came through with 13 for the well-rounded scoring team.

Graves said he expects the Doughgirls to improve after they get in some more practice, especially with the addition of the new players. "We're coming along and expect to have a winning team by the time of the TRADOC tournaments in March," he concluded.

Look for information on the Doughgirls' next game in an upcoming BAYONET.

Rookie takes over, gives much thanks

By Becky Bulgrin

Help! I'm drowning in a sea of sports. Tim Boivin, how could you leave me like this? You're too good at writing this column to leave it for a rookie like me to take over! After all, you invented it.

Really though, before I go too deep, I'd like to dedicate my first column to all the people who have helped me keep my head above water since I became sports editor. Especially Tim.

Sports connections

I now realize how many hours, including weekends, Tim spent reporting sports news for a full year. Although he moved on to use his talents elsewhere, Tim still found time to introduce me to all his "sports connections" and to show me the ropes. And oh buoy, what a help they've been, too.

Since it was the middle of football season, I was first introduced to Doughboy Coach Ralph Santaliz, who was wary at first about a new sportsperson reporting on his team's games. He waded around, accepted me and is still helping a lot with other sports news.

I hope I don't get myself into hot water by mentioning his name, but Tony Knight from Morale Support Activities has also supported me with information on many things, including boxing, racquetball and running.

More coaches' support

Boxing coach Anthony Stoddard is always willing to keep me afloat with the latest boxing results when the team travels and doesn't mind my questions like, "What's a standing eight count?"

Sailing into basketball season, barely knowing the difference between a technical and personal foul, I was invited to attend the basketball official's clinic and received tremendous support from Charles Slimowicz.

Although they're new at being interviewed for basketball games, Oliver Green, Doughboy basketball coach and Perry Graves, Doughgirls coach, are both willing to answer any question I have.

There's also Will Dunham, Donald Mauk and Donald Plotner from the Sports Office, Bob Pate with Youth Activities sports news, Bob Kuwik with Making Tracks, Tommy Poole with marksmanship news, James Hallums with soccer and all the sports officials who are present at the post's different events.

Special thanks

A special thanks goes to Brian Adams for not only accompanying me, but helping me at sport's events.

The list goes on, but since I'm anchored to a 10-inch column space, I'll have to dock my typewriter.

Well, new Armchair Sports writer, will it be sink or swim? With the continuing help of everyone, I'm sure I'll make it to shore.

Sports trial camp starts

WASHINGTON (ARNEWS)--Trial Camps for soldiers wanting to compete on next year's Interservice sports team are set to begin in late January, according to DA sports program officials.

Top athletes who distinguish themselves during Interservice games may be chosen as team members or coaches to represent the United States in 1981 game competitions with military teams of other countries. The annual International games are played around the world to promote military sports and friendship among armed forces of different nations. More than 75 nations now participate yearly.

Trial camps in racquetball, basketball, boxing, wrestling, marathon, volleyball, track and field, soccer, triathlon, bowling, softball, golf and tennis are slated at different posts in the U.S.

Sports officials say local authorities should begin planning now for the events based on the following schedule:

*Racquetball (men and women)-January 27-February 7, Fort Hood, Texas.

*Basketball (men)-January 27-March 7, Presidio of San Fransico, Calif.

*Basketball (women)-January 25-March 7, Fort Indiantown Gap, Pa.

*Boxing-February 15- May 30, Fort Bragg, N.C.

*Wrestling-February 8-May 15, Fort Bliss, Texas.

*Marathon (men and women)-April 1-15, site to be determined.

*Volleyball (men)-April 1-25, Fort Shafter, Hawaii.

*Volleyball (women)-April 1-25, Fort Indiantown Gap, Pa.

*Track and Field (men and women)-April 22-May 30, Presidio of San Fransico, Calif.

*Soccer-April 19-May 22, Fort Gordon, Ga.

*Triathlon (men and women)-May 8-16, site to be determined.

*Bowling (men and women)-May 8-16, Fort Meade, Md.

*Softball (men)-July 16-August 8, Fort Indiantown Gap, Pa.

*Softball (women)-July 16-August 8, Fort Indiantown Gap, Pa.

*Golf (men and women)-August 20-28, Fort Gordon, Ga.

*Tennis (men and women)-August 9-22, site to be determined.

The Army selects indviduals for the camps based on their applications, demonstrated skills and recommendations of local officials.

Soldiers may now apply to the Morale Support Directorate, DAAG-MSP, 2461 Eisenhower Ave., Alexandria, Va. 22331. Forms and information on applying are available at local sports offices.

Sports fans overseas hear events

AFRTS broadcasts via satellite

WASHINGTON (ARNEWS)--Sports fans read on. If you have orders for overseas duty and have been worried about missing all of your favorite sports events on television and radio, you can relax.

Soldiers and their families serving overseas may be pleasantly surprised to find many sporting events available by satellite broadcast to American Forces Radio and Television Service (AFRTS) networks overseas.

AFRTS broadcasts radio programs 24 hours a day, seven days a week. These programs include news casts, sportscasts, play-by-play sports and information programs, many of which are transmitted live. The programs come from every area of the United States, say AFRTS officials here. Soldiers may tune in and hear their own hometown radio station call letters.

Television play-by-play sports events are telecast as often as possible. AFRTS maintains daily contact with the major networks to find out which games and other special events are available for the satellite telecasts.

Europe, Korea, Panama and Japan are offered televised college and pro games, special sports events, parades and presidential addresses. Presently scheduled to be broadcast in January 1981 are the Rose Bowl and Sugar Bowl on Jan. 1 and the Super Bowl Jan. 25. Other programming considered entertaining or of national interest is also provided by AFRTS.

Broadcasting from AFRTS may also be picked up on shortwave frequencies. Many remote areas may be able to pick up the continous broadcasting with shortwave radio equipment. Shortwave frequencies change four times a year and new lists are published in March, May, September and November.

To get a copy of the AFRTS broadcast schedule and the current shortwave frequency list, write to AFRTS-Washington, 1117 North 19th Street, Arlington, Va. 22209, U.S.A.

Track and Field team takes third

WASHINGTON (ARNEWS)--The U.S. Armed Forces Track and Field team tied for third place with Italy in the 1980 Council for International Military Sports (CISM) recently. Each country collected 10 medals during the year's games at Sao Paulo, Brazil.

Military teams from 14 countries took part in the annual international track and field events. Brazil garnered 13 medals to capture first place. Germany followed in second place with 12 medals.

Army members of the U.S. team winning individual gold medals are:

Lester Washington, Company A, 1st Battalion, 36th Infantry, U.S. Army, Europe.

James Barrineau, USMA MAINZ, USAREUR, first place, high jump.

Ashland Whitfield, Headquarters, Headquarters Company, 2nd Battalion, 28th Infantry, USAREUR, first place, 110 meter high hurdles.

Silver medals were awarded to the following:

Lester Washington, USAREUR, second place, 100 meter dash.

Colin Williams, Company A, 1st Battalion, 40th Armor, Fort Polk, La., second place, 110 meter high hurdles.

Harold Lawrence, West Point, received a third place bronze medal for the long jump.

Other Army members on the team were Michael Anderson, Fort Bliss, Texas; Scott Leishman, Schofield Barracks, Hawaii; John Johnson, Fort Shafter, Hawaii; Jerome Morgan, USAREUR; Phares Rolle, Fort Polk, La.; and Edward Washington, USAREUR.

The CISM games are held yearly in different countries to promote friendship and military sports among armed forces of competing nations. Other events include basketball, hockey, soccer, and volleyball.

Chinese Goju classes held here

If you think the martial-arts are exciting and would like to learn, a school is available here on Sand Hill.

The Black Dragon Chinese Goju School at Kimbro Gym holds classes on a style called Chinese Goju System.

The instructor for the classes is Sensei McCall, who holds a fourth degree black belt in Chinese Goju. He also has a first degree black belt in Japanese Goju and Shodakon karate.

McCall teaches the art every Tuesday and Thursday from 7-9 p.m. and Saturdays from 12-2 p.m. The school costs $10 a month per person to attend, but there are special children's and family rates. Students under 18 are charged $6, while the family rates are $10 for the first member and half price for each additional member.

Power Lift Championship slated

The West Georgia Open Power Lift Championship will be held Saturday, Jan. 31 at Columbus College in Columbus, Ga.

This Amateur Athletic Union (AAU) sanctioned meet begins at 9:30 a.m. E.S.T. in Woodruff Gym on the campus. If you have a current, valid I.D. card from any junior college, college, or university, admission is $1. All others pay $2.

Refreshments and T-shirts will be available. For more information, call the college at 568-2046.

Company basketball underway

Company-level basketball has started and the BAYONET would like to publish results of the games. If anyone would like their team's scores reported, call the BAYONET sports desk at 545-2201.

Youth Basketball starts

Youth Activities basketball opening day and first day games will be held Jan. 10 at the Youth Activities gym, Bldg. 1055. Ceremonies will begin at 10 a.m.

For further information call Martha Duncan, Youth Activities Sports Director at 545-3070.

Hunt Club offers fun

What sounds as good as a breezy motorcyle ride on a hot summer day? Well, since those days are over for now, how about a leisurely horse ride on a crisp winter day?

The Fort Benning Hunt Club is open year round and the colder it is, the better the horses act, according to Mike Miller. He takes care of the horses there and says, "Business is slow right now because people think we're closed, but we offer the same services as always. And the horses like the cooler weather. They're ready to go."

The Hunt Club is open to anyone who likes to have fun riding horses. It is open from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. seven days a week. Rates are $4.50 an hour for nonmembers and $3 an hour for members. Lessons in English style riding are available for anyone interested. They are given on Monday, Tuesday and Friday after 4:30 p.m. and all day Thursday. The cost for these group lessons is $2 an hour, plus rental of the horse.

So if you want to enjoy some fresh air, come on out to the Hunt Club for a day of riding. It's located on Marne Road down the hill from Martin Army Community Hospital on the way to Main Post.

Social functions taught to IOBC lieutenants

Each Infantry Officer's Basic Course (IOBC) attends several social functions as a class. One of these functions is a reception at Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Trobaugh's home.

For most new second lieutenants, this reception is their first introduction to the social graces of the Army. The reception is also the first time they have the opportunity to wear their Dress Blue uniform.

The idea of the reception is not new. The reception used to be held at the Officer's Club in the Green uniform. But since Brig. Gen. Trobaugh has assumed the Assistant Commandant's position, he has moved the reception to his home. Brig. Gen. Trobaugh moved the reception to his home to enrich IOBC and Army tradition. "We wanted the lieutenants to see how a General Officer lives. The lieutenants can go to the Officer's Club anytime, but coming to our home is a little different."

Brig. Gen. Trobaugh personally insures new lieutenants are well versed in the Army's traditional social customs by hosting a formal reception for each Infantry Officer Basic Course class.

Mrs. Trobaugh enjoys greeting the class. She feels it is a warmer welcome having the lieutenants in her home. She likes to show the lieutenants and their wives what it is like to open your home for guests. The reception is formal, but relaxed and social. Not only do IOBC lieutenants have the opportunity to see how a reception is run, but they also get a chance to talk with officers in their chain-of-command and from around Fort Benning.

Company-grade Officers and Field-grade Officers from the 197th Infantry Brigade, the Infantry School, the Infantry Training Brigade, and other units are invited to the reception to tell the Infantry lieutenants about their years of experience in the Army. Several officers from the IOBC chain-of-command attend which allows the lieutenants the chance to speak with them about training and lets these officers meet the lieutenants in a social environment.

The short time the lieutenants spend at the General's quarters is very enjoyable. The food is plentiful and the evening is rewarding, especially for those who take the opportunity to speak with either Brig. Gen. or Mrs. Trobaugh. Each IOBC lieutenant leaves the evening a little wiser as to what the Army is all about.

Lower phone deposit a possibility—AUSA

WASHINGTON (ARNEWS)--Soldiers burdened with the expense of making a large security deposit to get a telephone installed may soon be getting some relief. This may happen if a campaign started by the Association of the United States Army (AUSA) is successful.

This month, letters from the National AUSA Headquarters in Arlington, Va., have been sent to all CONUS chapters of AUSA in areas where there is a large concentration of soldiers.

According to AUSA officials, the idea came from one chapter which worked with the local telephone company which required a deposit of up to $150. Throughout negotiation with the company, the AUSA official explained, the deposit required was reduced to $25.

Better customer service

New equipment helps goal

By Ron Shehane

Because of decreasing resources and increased requirements, the Directorate of Facilities Engineering(DFAE) is looking for new ways to provide better customer service. New equipment will be installed soon in DFAE's work reception branch to improve customer service on incoming service order calls.

The equipment includes terminal display units which allow each work order clerk to enter incoming service orders directly into a machine for processing and printing. All calls for maintenance and repair on buildings and facilities that are received each day will be immediately entered into the machine by the work order clerks. The machine will print the service orders for timely distribution to the work crews.

The new equipment enables the work order clerks to give faster service by eliminating the need to manually write work orders. The new terminal display units also automatically remind each clerk of questions to ask the caller to insure that complete information is obtained so the call can be properly processed.

In addition to the terminal display units a new automatic sequencer phone unit will be added that will enhance the answering capability of work reception. This new equipment should greatly reduce the chances of a customer receiving a busy signal and having to redial.

The work reception branch consists of five work order clerks under the supervision of Eloise Enke. The branch serves over 3,000 family housing units, 280 troop barracks and all other facilities and buildings on post. The branch handles approximately 400 calls a day at 545-5181.

The new equipment is being added to enable DFAE to better serve its customers. However, it was pointed out that there are three things a customer can do to improve even more the service they receive. They are:

- Know your building number when calling for service.
- Attend the Self-Help school to know the proper work to request.
- Know your requestor identification code for troop area calls.

If you don't know your requestor identification code contact DFAE to find out before an emergency catches you without it.

Christmas lighting policy

The exterior lighting policy for Christmas decorations has been established for the Fort Benning community. Selected chapels, Martin Army Community Hospital, Infantry Hall and community life centers may use outside lighting and will be allowed to have one lit Christmas tree. Inside lighting and outside decorations may be used from 6-10 p.m. except on Christmas Eve when lighting may stay on until 2 a.m. Candles are not allowed to be used. For more information call 545-4652.

PX schedule

The following PX facilities will be open the day after Christmas:

- Main Mall Store from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.
- Main Post Mini-Mall from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m.
- Custer Terrace Shoppete from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m.
- Main Mall service station from 9:30 a.m. to 5 p.m.
- Main Post theater
- Main Mall snack bar from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.

All other PX facilities will be closed. Normal operating hours will begin Dec. 27.

Rice graduates sought

Do you know anyone who graduated from Rice University? If so, please call Lt. Col. Britton at 545-4454.

Facilities engineers

Until Jan. 2, only emergency work order requests will be processed by the Director of Facilities Engineers work force. This policy is due to the holiday schedule and annual leaves taken by civilian employees. Customers are requested to limit their calls to emergencies. For more information call 545-2919.

DEERS program

During January, February and March 1981, every active duty member assigned here will be required to enroll their dependents in a new system called DEERS. This system will be used to determine eligibility for medical care. To enroll, sponsors must complete an ID card application form (DD form 1172) which lists all dependents and provide documents which verify the dependent status. Call 545-3381 for more information.

'Tom Thumb' shown

The Children's Department at the W. C. Bradley Memorial Library will feature the classic children's film, "The Adventures of Tom Thumb," at 2 p.m. Dec. 29 and 30. The film will be shown in the library meeting room and is free to the public. Call 327-0211 for more information.

Morale Support Activities

Those staying at Fort Benning during the holidays can spend their off duty time at any of the Morale Support Activities. All of the activities will be open with the following exceptions:

The craft shops, to include automotive, ceramics, woodworking and photo labs, will be closed Christmas Eve, Dec. 26, New Year's Day and Jan. 2.

The Kelley Hill Recreation Center will be closed Christmas and New Year's Day. A Christmas party is scheduled at the recreation center tonight at 6 p.m.

A teen New Year's Eve party is scheduled at the YA center for Dec. 27 at 8 p.m.

TMC schedules

During the holiday season sick call will be held at the following locations and times:

- TMC #1 from 6:30-11:30 a.m. (Main Post)
- TMC #8A from 7 a.m.-3:30 p.m. (Harmony Church)
- TMC #5 from 6:30-11:30 a.m. (Sand Hill)

On Christmas and New Year's Day sick call will be held at the emergency room of Martin Army Community Hospital.

Army ROTC

Columbus College offers a Department of Military Science, Army ROTC program which trains students for careers in the military. This program can provide a great deal of assistance to those

DoD Vacancy

A DoD-wide vacancy announcement service has been established by the Centralized Referral Activity (CRA), Dayton, Ohio. This service announces job opportunities throughout the Department of Defense. A new vacancy listing has been received in the Civilian Personnel Office. The listing contains descriptions of duties and instructions on making applications. Interested individuals may review the list in Room 100, Bldg. 35 or call 545-7653/1610.

Education assistance

The deadline is approaching for submission of applications and related documents to obtain Army Emergency Relief (AER) Education Assistance. Dependent children of active, retired and deceased Army personnel are eligible to apply for loans or scholarships from AER for the school year beginning September 1981. This assistance is available for vocational or undergraduate college studies. Financial aid forms, which must be submitted in conjunction with applications, are due at Headquarters, AER by Feb. 15, 1981. For more information and applications come by the AER office, Room 112, Bldg. 83, or call 545-4043.

Donations needed

The Listening Eyes School for the Deaf is seeking donations of old books and magazines for their upcoming book sale in March 1981 at Peachtree Mall.

Proceeds from the sale will help support many of the school's services to preschool-aged deaf children in the community. For more information call 561-5132 or 327-0080.

Warrant Officers

Warrant officers wanting to restart the Warrant Officer Chapter at Fort Benning can attend a general meeting in Bldg. 4, classroom 4 Jan. 12 at 1 p.m. For more information call CWO3 Ford 545-2664 or CWO2 Hemmingway 545-1637.

New Year's Eve Party

The Main Mall Bowling Center will host their annual New Year's Eve Party from 11 p.m.-4 a.m. Some of the activities scheduled are bowling for five hours, breakfast, dancing or bowling in a 3-6-9 tournament. The bowling center will furnish party favors, hats, noise makers, streamers, etc. Fee for the all night party is $12 per couple, $6 per person or $4 for non-bowlers. For more information call 687-0146 or 544-1985.

PX Auto Rental

The PX Auto Rental concession located in the Main Post Mini Mall is under new management. The new concession has Ford and Chevrolet late model rental cars. They are open from 9 a.m.-5:30 p.m. Monday through Friday, 9 a.m.-5 p.m. Saturdays and closed Sundays.

Main PX service station

The Fort Benning Main Mall Service Station is now open on Sundays from 11:30 a.m.-4 p.m.

Mind challenged with new language

By Rick Kiernan
Executive Officer
1/29th Infantry Battalion

There exists a language, that every young staff officer needs to understand in order to survive in today's modern armed forces.

This new dialect is "Pentagonese," and a study of this tongue is not offered in the curriculum of the Defense Language Institute or any service school, for that matter.

The language is held almost in a "need to know" status and, simply stated, is a sophisticated version of military jargon. One of the purposes of any jargon, regardless of the verbal intent, is to conjure up the expectations of the boss in the most picturesque terms.

The roots of this dialect did not break through any foreign soil as exotic or ancient as the Greeks or Romans, but rather, through the concrete of Madison Avenue — the home of the original "image-builders."

Pentagonese is the military offspring of this civilian progenitor. Thus, as the Phoenix of old, advertising jargon arose from the staid ashes of the Fifties, and the image-minded ad men with their media vehicle burst forth as brightly as the NBC peacock, with a complete kaleidoscoe of verbiage.

With the coming of television, the audience was at TV's mercy. Everyone became slogan-conscious: "I'd walk a mile for a Camel," "The Marlboro Man," "Promise her anything but give her Chanel." The military was quick to pick up the pace (here are some examples!): "Join the Navy and see the world," "My man's a Marine" and more recently "The Army wants to join you."

The cliches were intensified by such programs as Sergeant Bilko, Hogan's Heroes, Men of West Point, and M*A*S*H. Moreover, the "straight lines" were quickly picked up by the higher echelon officers and incorporated into their welcome addresses, reenlistment seminars, and commanders' farewells.

In an attempt to clarify, simplify and add personal emphasis, certain directives immediately become Pentagonese when expressed by a commander; e.g., "Although we have tried unsuccessfully to clear the ridge of enemy snipers, I feel that perhaps Colonel Williams' artillery group with their 8-inch guns might be better utilized in a direct support role for the brigade." (Pentagonese: "Put the ball in the other guy's court!") Colonel Williams' reply to the subsequent fire mission: "Looks like Johnson's got his feet in cement." (Translation: The other unit is inflexible and can't execute any initiative or effect direct fire.) As another example, take the simple reaction of a division commander of his brigade commander's proposal on any subject. (Pentagonese: "Initially, I had some heartburn as regards the displacement of the 2nd Battalion, but then I had a 'gut feeling' that it might work!") While the above examples may only represent a few members of the higher echelon of the chain of command, they are, in truth, signs of a trend.

Why bother to learn more aout these verbal flights of fancy?

- FIRST, off, you could miss out on a lot of vital information since staff guidance is often presented in these terms.
- SECOND, and more importantly, you won't know when to laugh at the boss' jokes and when not to. After all we ALL want to be considered members of "his team" — Right? You bet!
- More seriously, at least a cursory knowledge of this jargon is needed for effective communication in your day-to-day operation.

There is then a danger in becoming a victim of ineffective communnication through overuse of Pentagonese. The eagerness to sound like "one of the guys" is the greatest danger to the new staff officer. For what else labels you MORE as a "new guy or gal" than a void in the local glossary of acronyms and cliches. Avoid this temptation!

As stated earlier, we are communicators, regardless of our particular staff function. We have a responsibility to know our commander and his policies intimately. Frequently, we have to operate with only an inference to a statement and make a hasty estimate of the situation based upon limited experience. If you can decode even some of the Pentagonese — you will survive.

The following Pentagonese primer is provided:

"PENTAGONESE PRIMER"

|---|---|
| 1. "Gut feeling" | One's instinct |
| 2. "Up to speed" | Par, current standards |
| 3. "Whole nine yards" | Entire problem |
| 4. "Orchestrate" | Coordinated effort |
| 5. "Ball of Wax" | Entire project |
| 6. "Ginned up" | Composed |
| 7. "Heartburn" | Particular aggravtion about a point |
| 8. "Some sheet of music" | In accord completely, same reference |
| 9. "Up to snuff" | Current standard achieved |
| 10. "Whipped it on me" | Informed in no uncertain way |
| 11. "Whole shooting' match" | Entire program |
| 12. "Pull your little red wagon" | Do your job! |
| 13. "Cheese gets binding" | Tightened up; tension building |
| 14. "That's your ballliwick" | Area of interest, specialty |
| 15. "Flesh it out" | Add more words to a written outline or format |
| 16. "Put the ball in the other guy's court" | Shift responsibility |
| 17. "Put the monkey on the other guy's back" | Shift responsibility |
| 18. "Feet in cement" | Inflexible |
| 19. "Screw your head on right" | Get organized |
| 20. "What the traffic will bear" | Stress factor |
| 21. "Held feet to the fire" | Acid test |
| 22. "Stem winder" | Boring dialogue |
| 23. "Put money in the bank before you write checks" | Prepare staff work |
| 24. "Sprinkle holy water" | Give approval |
| 25. "Cut water off" | Stop support |
| 26. "Squeaking wheel gets the oil" | Complain for attention |
| 27. "Put on back burner" | Postpone action |
| 28. "Rattle somebody's chain!" | Stir with probing questions. |

Phone deposit smaller in '80

In February and March 1980, Fort Benning and the Association of the United States Army (AUSA) representatives worked with personnel from the local telephone company on an agreement which made it possible for soldiers to have their phone installed with just a $25 deposit.

This was a significant reduction from the previously required deposit and considerably below that charged to soldiers at other Army posts throughout the United States. This agreement, started May 1, was recently reviewed by Col. Jack Harron, Fort Benning's Assistant Commander and Mr. Jack Leach, Acting District Manager for Southern Bell.

Based upon favorable results of the first six months operation, plans are to continue with the agreement for the forseeable future. This agreement has permitted an increased number of Fort Benning soldiers to enjoy telephone service which, because of the previously high dollar deposit, may have been otherwise unaffordable, especially to lower ranking enlisted personnel.

Increased phone service is advantageous to the soldier and the Army and is yet another example of the concern and excellent cooperation between the local AUSA Chapter and commercial firms providing services to Fort Benning personnel.

Rubber checks hurt innocent, too

Abuse of check cashing priveleges costs everybody in the long run. To hold down prices for exchange and commissary patrons and to combat the abuse of check cashing privileges:

- A fast, accurate computer system screens the customer's identification and check amount against a central record of all persons who have cashed bad checks in an exchange anywhere in CONUS, Hawaii or Alaska.
- Stepped-up action against abuse includes requesting assistance from the FBI, IRS, civil courts and the CID, if fraud or forgery is involved, or if the exchange is unable to collect on a returned check.
- Dishonored checks will cost the sponsor a $10 processing fee if it happens at the PX, commissary or at NAF(club accounts, etc).
- Banks also charge $10 for overdrawn accounts.

Military/civilian sponsors or their dependents who write personal checks which are returned will have their on-post check cashing privileges suspended for six months for a first offense. The exception is if the person pays the check and any service charges within seven days after notification, or if the bank admits making an error.

Subsequent offenses will result in a one-year or indefinite suspension. However, the commander may initiate appropriate administrative or disciplinary action.

The soldier's commander will receive a copy of the dishonored check notice, even those who are not from this post, at the same time the soldier gets it. If still on the bad check list when transferred to a new station, the new company commander will be notified of the suspension.

The retiree or civilian will receive a notification letter. The check privilege suspension list is distributed each week to appropriate dependents, and those who just ETS'd, can be arraigned in Magistrate's Court.

Persons may appeal suspensions in writing through command channels to the post commander in accordance with AR 608-16, ATTN: ATZF or check out TCFE PAM 608-1 for procedures. Unit commanders are not authorized to restore check cashing privileges.

Even if a check is redeemed through involuntary collection, the same suspension and rules for reinstatement apply.

Bad checks ruin careers!

Holiday diners greeted

A friendly Santa Claus greets diners at the 524th Dining Facility on Christmas Day. For the soldiers remeaining at Fort Benning over the holidays, the post dining facilities went out of their way to make Christmas dinner as enjoyable as possible.

Turkeys tantalize tastebuds

Twin turkeys are ready to be served to Fort Benning's soldiers at Christmas. Along with turkey the dining facilities also served ham, roast beef, egg nog, dressing and other foods to make a traditional Christmas feast for those who stayed during the holidays.

Dragon

Awesome fire soothes infantry

The Dragon is an awesome weapon for the individual soldier. The fire-belcher can knock out any armored vehicle found on te modern battlefield. With proper training, infantry soldiers have an effective weapon against enemy tanks, APCs and other armored vehicles.

Training at Fort Benning in the use of the Dragon is conducted by the 11th Company, The School Brigade. In addition to the Dragon training, they also teach the use of the TOW missile system.

Government programs aid soldiers

Sp4 Mark Jones, his wife, Judy, and three children are new to Los Angeles. He's found an apartment, but it's great. The rent is much more than he's been used to paying. The car broke down twice in one week and his daughter badly needing clothes for school. Judy is looking for a job, but that means the two youngest kids will need day care. All of a sudden the paycheck just refuses to stretch anymore. It's two weeks until payday, and there are more bills to pay and no groceries in the house. What in the world can he do?

After training and experience, soldiers can progress quickly through in their jobs. But, even with promotions, many soldiers have a difficult time making ends meet.

The President and Congress decide military pay levels, and the Army tries to help soldiers by supporting pay increases to catch up with inflation. Sometimes, though, pay raises alone don't solve the problem. But the government does have assistance programs to help those with low income.

These programs help people in need until they can get on their feet. Of course, the programs won't take care of that new tape deck you want, but they will help take care of basic necessities, such as housing, fuel and food.

The Army Community Service (ACS) office in your area has many programs that can help you financially. Also, ACS can help you apply to federal, state and local assistance programs for which you are eligible or provide the information you need to apply.

Not all area have all programs, but some you may want to ask about are subsidized housing, fuel assistance, free school lunches for your children and food stamps. Being eligible for these programs depends mostly on your income.

ACS also has a Lending Closet which provides loan items such as dishes, pots and pans, silverware, cribs, cots, card tables and chairs. Most ACS offices offer a Financial Planning Services to help you manage your monthly expenses. Among many other programs, there are those that offer help for handicapped dependents and for soldiers moving to a new location.

ACS doesn't lend money, but if a loan is urgently needed, Army Emergency Relief (AER) is the place to go. This program and the Red Cross have been very helpful to soldiers in emergency situations. To find out about AER, contact the local ACS or AER officer.

If times seem bad and you don't know where to turn, take heart. Call ACS and see if you're eligible for their programs. Help may be yours for the asking.

Locomotive retired here

The Chattahoochee Choo-Choo stands as a silent reminder of Fort Benning's past just outside the National Infantry Museum on Main Post.

The small Davenport locomotive, built in 1902, served Fort Benning from 1920 to 1946 and made its final move in July 1977. It was originally scheduled to be shipped to France but was rerouted here to take its place alongside 16 other small locomotives.

At one time these small trains spanned over 60-miles of small-guaged track here, providing transportation to Fort Benning soldiers. A 1925 recruiting poster (now on display in the National Infantry Mueseum here) boasts that soldiers here got free transportation to Columbus and back on the small trains.

The little train left its old home in front of the old U.S. Army Infantry Museum on Ingersoll Street in 1977, rode through Main Post, and stopped in front of the present museum - its new home. On its last trip, the little train didn't spew smoke cinders like the old days and so, needed some help from the soldiers of Company C, 43rd Engineeer Battalion to make the trip. Two 25-ton cranes working in tandems, operated by Sp5 Charlie Johnson and Sp4 Roosevelt Nash lifted the 30-ton train and 15-ton "VIP Car" on to two 40-ton lowbed trailers.

Checkbook: passport to advantages

Having a checking account requires responsibility on the part of the writer. A checking account does have it's advantages, among them:

- It makes paying bills easier.
- You can use the mail for some of its services, and a postage stamp is a lot cheaper than a gallon of gas.
- It's safer. You won't have to carry large sums of money.
- Cancelled checks are legal proof that you paid.

A checking account also has its disadvantages if used improperly by the writer. Those who write worthless checks are subject to:

- Both military and/or civil action to include denial of check cashing privileges.
- Punishment under Article 123a, UCMJ.
- Referral to the U.S. Magistrate.
- Bar to reenlistment.
- Prosecution in a civil court.

The writing of a check where bank payment is refused because of insufficient funds is evidence of an intent to defraud unless the amount is paid within seven days after the check writer receives the notice of default.

If you are going to start a checking account, pick a financial institution that is suited to your needs. Pick a bank that offers the services you want. Some have no service charges. Others requires a minimum balance like $100. Some want to charge a small monthly maintenance fee.

Decide how the checking account will be kept fed. Avoid running to a zero balance and hurrying to the bank to deposit just enough money to cover a soon-to-be cashed check. The Army's check-to-bank option is a good plan. It ensures that your pay will be deposited in your account on payday.

Keep your checkbook up to date and legible. Enter the amounts of the checks written, deposits, and any serbvice charges immediately before you forget. A short pencil is better than a long memory. It's too easy to throw out the sales slip you thought would remind you. The Credit Union's share drafts may have carbon copy checks, but balancing totals from check to check is not easy. Carbon copies are a good double check if you're using a register.

Keep a running balance and check it frequently. Determine the balance after each check is written or amount deposited. Keeping balances will prevent writing a bad check by accident, especially if you are "sailing close" and have not figured check printing costs or maintenance fee.

Resolve the checkbook with the statement from the bank when it arrives. Most check registers have a place to indicate that the check has been cashed. Check off all returned checks. Indicate with a circle in that block all checks that didn't make it back up to the last check that did make it. Use a checkmark one month and an X the next month to distinguish bank operations months later.

If you and the bank don't agree after you have checked the bank, contact the bank for advice on the discrepancies and missing checks. The Credit Union has a printout of your drafts in order by number. In the event that a company says that the payment wasn't received, The Credit Union will get a copy of your draft to see who cashed it. If you lose your checkbook, contact the bank immediately for your protection and their alert operations.

Operation Exodus gets soldiers home

Approximately 4,500 soldiers departed the 1st Infantry Training Brigade on their way home for the Christmas holidays during a three-day period beginning Dec. 18.

The majority of the soldiers participated in "Operation Exodus" by riding a bus.

Where they rode the bus to was a different thing altogether.

Many began the first step of their journey home by taking a bus from Fort Benning to the Atlanta International Airport where they caught flights to their final destination, while others rode a bus all the way home. Still others rode home with family and friends in Privately Owned Vehicles (POV).

During the three-day mass transit operation there was very little confusion and no problems which couldn't be handled right on the spot by the cadre or transportation personnel, according to a post spokesman.

Your flight's over there.

Soldiers pass the time waiting for homeward-bound buses.

Lines don't seem so long when your front door is hours away.

Largest training area in US opens

WASHINGTON (ARNEWS)--Active duty soldiers may soon be getting PCS orders to Fort Irwin, Calif. What's there, you ask?

Well, if you haven't heard by now, what is there certainly is one of the most important training advancements for CONUS-based soldiers to open in quite some time. In fact, according to DA Training officials, it is the Army's top training initiative.

The National Training Center (NTC) at Fort Irwin was officially activated as a U.S. Army Forces Command (FORSCOM) activity on October 16. Fort Irwin, presently run by the California Army-National Guard, will be transferred to FORSCOM control on July 1, 1981. Soldiers assigned to Fort Irwin will have the rare opportunity to be part of a new and, Army Staff officials maintain, badly needed realistic training environment.

The NTC idea has been more than four years in the making, having first surfaced in 1976. According to a FORSCOM official at Fort McPherson, Ga., "It was decided the Army needed an area where battalion engagement situation within CONUS. Fort Irwin offers the area and facilities to support that kind of training."

Fort Irwin is the largest Army post in the United States in terms of useable exercise area. Officials say the post's total land area is 642,805 acres, or three times larger than Fort Hood, Texas. About 413,000 acres of that land is suitable for maneuver training.

"However," commented a DA Training official, "Before units can participate in the advanced training concepts at the NTC, they must develop and sharpen their skills while training at their home stations." Realistic homebase training, he added, with enough manuever land will continue to be essential as the Army upgrades the cohesion and stability of its combat units.

When the NTC is in full operation, Forces Command Mechanized Infantry and Armor battalions and Armored Cavalry squadrons will rotate through the NTC for two weeks of intensive training every 18 months. The battalion will be accompanied by its brigade headquarters and supporting units, according to officials. Untis will move to and leave the Training Center under realistic Emergency Deployment conditions. Whilethere, units will be in the field 100 percent ofthe time under simulated combat conditions.

Training at the Fort Irwin NTC will focus on battalion exercises against an Opposing Force (OPFOR) and battalion live fire exercises using computer-controlled targets, officials say.

Soldiers permanently stationed at the NTC can expect Fort Irwin to compare favorably with most CONUS posts in the facilities and services offered, comment officials. A Post Exchange, Theater, Snack Bar, Cleaners, Gas Station, Commissary, and Gymnasium are some of the facilities and services available on post.

For those soldiers with school age children, Fort Irwin is served by the Silver Valley School District. There is an Elementary School building on post, owned by Silver Valley, which is not presently open. Until it opens for grades Kindergarten through Eight in the Fall of 1981, grades school children will attend Elementary School in the town of Yermo, about 45 minutes from Fort Irwin. High School students through Grade 11 will attend school in Yermo also. Officials say High School Seniors will go to Barstow High School. All students will be provided bus transportation to and from off-post schools.

Weed Army Hospital at the training post also opened on Oct. 16. The 24-bed facility will be supported by a Medical Evacuation Unit and a Medical Clinic. In addition, a Child Care Center is scheduled to open in January 1981.

Fort Irwin has 39 barracks which can hold about 3,000 people, based on the Army standard of 90 square feet of space for person. In addition, there are a maximum of 262 BOQ/BEQ room spaces available, 18 company-size (200-capacity) dining facilities and one consolidated (1,000-capacity) dining hall.

There are 506 sets of family quarters at Fort Irwin. According to an NTC official, these quarters are under contract to be completely renovated. Ninety-eight of the 506 sets of quarters have already been renovated. The remainder of the housing sets are expected to be ready for soldiers between now and mid-summer 1981. Also, officials say, new family housing construction programmed for FY82 will provide another 472 units. Funds have been made available to renovate an existing trailer parks at the post. When completed, a 50-pad trailer park will be available for soldiers' use. Another 120 family housing units are being planned for construction in FY83.

For those soldiers looking for homes or apartments on the economy, the last figures (1978) show homes selling in nearby Barstow (37 miles from Fort Irwin) for between $28,000 and $75,000. Those same figures show one and two bedroom apartments renting from $175 to $350 a month. Two and three bedroom houses rent from $200 to $425 a month. Barstow also has 16 Mobile Home Courts.

Officials say that Cable Television with a Home Box Office option may be availble at Fort Irwin by Mid-1981. Indviduals would have to pay a monthly fee for the television services.

DEFENSE ACTIVITY for NON-TRADITIONAL EDUCATION SUPPORT — DANTES

LESSON 2

AN ADULT EDUCATION OPPORTUNITY

If you are an adult who did not complete high school, here is an opportunity for you to study and prepare for the high school equivalency certificate (GED) in your own home. This series of seventeen lessons and mini-exams was prepared by the De Kalb County (GA) Adult General Education Program. The Defense Activity for Non-Traditional Education Support (DANTES) and your base education office, in cooperation with your installation newspaper, present this series for your benefit.

MATHEMATICS - LESSON I
Knowing The Basics -- Stepping Stones To Problem Solving

Know These Terms

1. Sum - the answer to an addition problem.
2. Difference - the answer to a subtraction problem.
3. Product - the answer to a multiplication problem.
4. Quotient - the answer to a division problem.

Types of Whole Numbers

1. Even numbers - an even number is any whole number which can be evenly divided by two.

Examples: 6, 14, 246 and 98.

2. Odd numbers - odd numbers are numbers which cannot be divided evenly by two. Examples: 9, 21, 343.
3. Prime Numbers - a prime number is a whole number which can only be divided evenly by itself and one. Examples: 7, 29, 83.

When writing large whole numbers it is necessary to know the "place name" for the numerals. The value of a digit (0 through 9) is determined by the place where it stands in the number. For example, in the number 143, the four is in the tens place and has a value of 4 x 10 or 40. Below is a large whole number and the names of the places above each digit.

| billion | hundred million | ten million | million | hundred thousand | ten thousand | thousand | hundred | tens | ones |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| 8 | 4 | 9 | 0 | 5 | 9 | 2 | 4 | 2 | 6 |

Work These Examples:

1. Find the sum of 246, 78, 1,292 and 4

  246
   78
 1292
-----

Note that the right hand margin must be lined up vertically so that the digits will be in the proper "place."

2. Find the difference between 946 and 1,839

 1839
- 946
-----

Note that the larger number must go on top.

The Multiplication Tables

Knowing the multiplication tables is absolutely essential in solving all multiplication and division problems - even in higher mathematics. Memorize the tables 1 through 12 and you will have moved up one important step.

1. Find the product of 472 and 86.

 472
X86
----

2. Find the quotient of 6744 divided by 8.

$8\overline{)6744}$

Averages

Americans speak in averages - average age - average income. How do you find the average of any set of given numbers? Remember two simple rules: 1. Total all numbers being averaged and 2. divide the total by the number of items added. Example: The cosmetic salesperson traveled 18 miles on Monday, 23 miles on Tuesday and 46 miles on Thursday. On the average, how many miles did she travel each day? First, add the number of miles traveled each day; then divide the total by 3 (the number of days worked).

 18          3 | 87
 23            6
 46           ---
---           27
 87           27

Measurements

Did you ever try to buy floor covering, which is sold by the square yard, for a room that is 10 feet wide by 12 feet long? You must convert the feet to square feet and then convert the square feet (sq. ft.) to square yards (sq. yds). You cannot add, subtract, multiply, or divide inches to feet or feet to yards because you must work with equivalent measure. Square measure is measure multiplied by measure; for example, feet times feet equals square feet.

Equivalent Units of Measure

Length
12 inches (ins.) = 1 foot (ft.)
36 inches (ins.) = 1 yard (yd.)
3 feet = 1 yard
5280 feet = 1 mile (mi.)
1760 yards = 1 mile

Liquid Measure
16 ounces (ozs.) = 1 pint (pt.)
2 cups = 1 pint
4 cups = 1 quart (qt.)
4 quarts = 1 gallon (gal.)

Weight Measure
16 ounces (ozs.) = 1 pound (lb.)
2000 pounds = 1 ton (T.)

Time Measure.
1 minute (min.) = 60 seconds (secs.)
1 hour (hr.) = 60 minutes
1 day = 24 hours
1 week (wk.) = 7 days
1 year (yr.) = 365 days

Units of measure can be interchanged if you follow these rules:

1. Small unit to larger unit - divide the number of small units stated in the problem by the number of small units contained in one larger unit-24 ins.

- (12 | 24)  2 ft.

2. Large unit to a smaller unit - multiply the number of large units stated in the problem by the number of smaller units in one large unit - example 2 ft. = (12 x 2) 24 ins.

HOW TO SOLVE WORD PROBLEMS

The first and most important step in working word problems is to read the problem carefully. After reading the problem, determine what information is given and what should be used when working the problem. The following steps will be helpful when solving word problems: 1. Find out what it is you are asked to do. Usually, the final sentence in the problem asks you a question such as "Find the number of..." or "How many pounds..." or "What is the difference..." 2. Identify key words. 3. Be sure that all units of measure are the same. For example, all should be in feet, yards, gallons, etc. 4. Pick out all useful facts given. 5. Solve the problem by combining the first four steps.

Can you solve these problems?

German COLA drops

WASHINGTON(ARNEWS)---Because of gains by the American dollar against the Deutsche Mark(DM), soldiers stationed in Germany will find a little less money in their pay check beginning this month.

A member of the Defense Department's(DoD) Per Diem committee explained that the index points for cost of living(COLA) and station housing allowances(SHA) will drop. The committee is charged with determining and adjusting allowance rates for servicemembers worldwide.

The decrease in the COLA and SHA index points will mean eligible soldiers will get slightly less money under the allowances which are designed to making living in Germany comparable to living in CONUS.

For example, an E-4 with one dependent stationed in Frankfurt will now get $33 COLA each month, as compared to the old monthly rate of $43.50. Under the new SHA rates, this soldier will receive $163.50 per month, nine dollars less than the old $172.50 rate.

In deciding when and how much to change the living and housing rates for soldiers overseas, the committee reviews currency echange rates for 50 countries every day. When the dollar loses enough value against another currnecy, housing allowances or per diem rates are increased for servicemembers assigned to that country.

However, when the dollar gains stregth against another currency, reductions in the allowance must be made.

Cadets anticipate summer training

FORT MONROE, VA.--Army ROTC Cadets on college campuses across the country are gearing up for their summer Basic and Advanced camps, which are expected to attract increased attendance.

Last year 3,266 students, including 750 women, attended the Basic Camp at Fort Knox, KY, making it one of the largest ever held. A total of 2,901 cadets successfully completed the training.

In anticipation of even greater student interest in finding out what Army training and discipline are all about, the capacity for this year's Basic Camp has been increased to 3,800. Basic Camp is an introduction to the Army ROTC Two-Year Program which is designed for junior and community college graduates and students at four-year schools, who did not take ROTC their first two years.

Students attend the six-week Basic Camp during the summer before their junior year of college. It gives them the opportunity to find out if Army life is really for them. A large number decide that it is.

As one student who attended the camp said, "It was an excellent training experience and the major reason for my decision to continue with ROTC. It gave me an idea of what the Army is really like and I'm now looking forward to Advanced Camp."

Advanced Camp also is six weeks long and is normally between the cadet's junior and senior years of college. Sucessful completion of this camp is required for commissioning.

Advanced Camp attendance this past summer exceeded that of the previous year and is expected to be even higher for the '81 camps.

There are three Advanced Camps conducted each summer. They're held at Fort Bragg, NC; Fort Riley, KS; and Fort Lewis, WA. Last year 7,612 cadets reported to the camps and 7,526 graduated, including 1,250 women.

Advanced Camp also gives cadets a chance to live Army life in the field. It tests their physical and mental skills, gives them the opportunity to be in leadership positions, and to find out how the things they learn in class apply under Army conditions. Cadets prepare for the rugged training during their junior year with intensive exercise programs.

In the words of one summer camp cadet, "I thought I was in pretty good shape when I got there, but by the time I finished, I knew I was. I know I can do a lot of things now I had doubts about before. I've got more respect for myself and for the other cadets, too."

All cadets are reimbursed for their travel to and from camp and are paid for the six weeks of training at the Basic and Advanced Camps. In addition, they are provided with clothing and equipment and any necessary medical attention while there.

Phillip Connella, USAMU, pratices for the military rifle rapid fire event during a pre-CISM rifle match. The XXI CISM games were held here in October with a total of 26 nations competing.

Minister Xiaoke, leader of the Chinese delegation that visited Benning in October, talked with soldiers of the 6th Battalion, 1st Infantry Training Brigade.

Thirty-nine Officer Candidate School graduates were inducted into the Infantry Officer Candidate School Hall of Fame. The Hall of Fame honors OCS graduates who have been awarded the Medal of Honor or have been promoted to at least the rank of Colonel while serving on active duty, or been recognized for prominence in the civilian community. Commanding general, Maj. David E. Grange, Jr., himself is a Hall of Fame member.

Sp4 Donald Myers, 3rd Battalion, 7th Infantry, Combat Support Company, 197th Infantry Brigade, saved the life of Erma Jean Wilson from Columbus by pulling her from her burning apartment. He was recommended for official recognition for heroism.

Ten soldiers of the 675th Detachment, 34th Medical Battalion, headed north to Fort Drum, N.Y. to participate in the "Empire Glacier 80" exercise. The group worked primarily in a permanent dispensary to handle cases of cold injuries.

SMA William A. Connelly, visited Fort Benning to observe NCO's, junior ranking soldiers and training in 19 tenant units. Connelly also was honored by the sergeant major and drill sergeants of the 3rd Battalion and 7th Battalion of the 1st Infantry Training Brigade when he was made their honorary drill sergeant. In his interview, he said, "...it (the Army) is a good life and an honorable life and those who elect to raise their right hand and become a part certainly have my support."

The 1st Infantry Training Brigade celebrated their fourth birthday.

The U.S. Army Infantry School at Fort Benning instituted a worldwide "Hotline" telephone system for questions or comments on the Army Evaluation Program (ARTEP).

February

The speed limit on 1st Division Road (Collins Loop to Lindsey Creek Bypass) was reduced from 50 miles per hour to 45 miles per hour due to the increased traffic accidents.

Maj. Gen. David E. Grange, Jr. started a 12-mile road march for soldiers assigned here on a monthly basis to ensure a high level of fitness in the event of mobilization.

2nd Lt. Richard Keith Benner of Fort Bragg, N.C. was selected to receive the 28th annual Robert P. Patterson award as outstanding graduate of the Branch Immaterial Officer Candidate Course (BIOCC) in Fiscal Year 79.

The award was established in 1952 in memory of the late Judge Patterson's distinguished service as an infantry officer in World War I and as Secretary of War in the 1940's. It is presented annually to the BIOCC graduate who displays the most outstanding qualities of leadership, academic efficiency, aptitude and character during the previous fiscal year. Mrs. Robert P. Patterson visited Fort Benning to present the award.

Members of the U.S. Army Marksmanship Unit began the new year with convincing victories in rifle, pistol and moving target competition.

In International competition in San Juan, Puerto Rico, USAMU won three out of four indvidual championships.

In pistol competition here, former National Champions, Bonnie Harmon and Charles McCowan from USAMU, gathered up most of the indidual honors, USAMU dominated all the team championships.

Pvt. 2 Daniel C. Rodgers, Company D, 43rd Engineer Battalion, received the Army Commendation Medal for his actions in preventing a rape of a 18-year-old female airborne student.

Breezy, partly cloudy skies, warm days and enthusiastic high school crowds of Puerto Rico recently greeted the Martial Arts Sports Clinicians from Fort Benning.

"Every time I perform in the islands I become super inspired. It must be the beautiful weather and scenic beaches that make me perform at my full potential", remarked James McCall, a National Guard Liaison representative from Benning.

The Martial Arts Sports Clinic was composed of McCall, David Wynn, Chief Instructor of the Rifle Marksman Committee, Fort Benning and two dependents, Regina Faust and Peggy Mark. Faust and Mark were sponsored by the Fort Benning Morale Support Activity and competed in several tournaments to earn their trip with the military members.

This was McCall's seventh Sports Clinics trip to Puerto Rico. He and Faust performed in 24 high schools in the eastern portion of the island. Wynn and Faust performed in 12 high schools in the western portion of Puerto Rico and four high schools on the island of St. Croix.

"I'm always amazed at the concentration and responsiveness that the kids in Puerto Rico have for Karate demonstrations", recalls McCall. "During the routine, they are so quiet and afterwards they asked sincere questions about the Army and my role in the service".

A part of each clinic involves group participation, where five male and five female students volunteer to practice self defense techniques.

"The students really get involved when they are in front of their classmates. The girls are particularly fascinated that they can throw a guy who weighs more than them to the ground", stated Wynn.

"Even the high school teacher and principals become excited when I break the wood over my head and demonstrate the cutting of a potato with my sword from my assistant's stomach." continued Wynn.

"I was particularly impressed with the crowd attention and response by the students on St. Croix. They are very inquisitive and I hope we have helped the recruiters show that the Army is not only 'spit & polish' but you can also become involved after duty hours in sports programs like Karate Clubs", concluded Wynn.

The recruiters in Puerto Rico attend each demonstration to introduce the clinicians and act as interpreters. Spanish is the first language here. This makes the recruiter's role in the program very significant. "I have always used each recruiter as a part of my performance. He is there interpreting each move and I have him hold the boards when I break them", stated McCall.

Are Sports Clinics different in the Caribbean? Due to a lack of a large Army installation on the island, most of the high school students enjoy Army clinics. Especially after the clinicians have performed, the students have the opportunity to ask questions about the Army.

Only those clinicians who have performed on the island can attest to the warm welcome they receive from everyone they meet. Students in Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands are very responsive to any Army sponsored event. This pro Army attitude is seen in the number of young men and women who join the Army every year.

Backpackers see unspoiled nation

by Betsy Beuke
SRNews associate editor

America's early mountain man left no trace of his presence in hostile Indian country.

Today, people are returning to that mountain man's wilderness to enjoy unspoiled natural scenes and the solitude nature offers. They're foresaking the security and luxuries of technology and indoor warmth to hike through the rugged countryside carrying 30- to 40-pound packs on their backs.

Backpacking can be a satisfying sport and an ideal form of exercise. It's a change from the rapid pace of city life, the noise and pollution around us each day.

Travel light

If you've never done any backpacking and decide to start — just where do you begin?

Unlike camping out in a car, trailer or camper, backpacking calls for more detailed planning. Your physical condition plays an important role in backpacking because walking with a pack on your back can be exhausting.

Experienced backpackers take great pride in traveling light. They may cut towels in half or saw the handles off their toothbrushes to eliminate unnecessary weight.

How much you should carry will depend on your physical condition and experience, terrain to be covered, the length of the trip and the time of year you'll be making the trip.

You should consider buying medium-weight hiking boots. Lightweight shoes aren't rugged enough and tennis shoes are definitely out. Boots should be strong enough to resist rock abrasion and be waterproof. For comfort, support, warmth and protection, they should also be padded around the ankle. Padding will hold the heel in place to prevent slipping and irritation.

According to the U.S. Forest Service, most backpackers prefer 6- to 10-inch lace boots with synthetic or rubber soles. The boots should fit comfortably over two pairs of socks — one light and one heavy — and be broken in well before the first long hike.

If you are not prepared to spend the $25 to $50 for good hiking boots, Army combat boots also work well.

Important equipment for the back-country camper includes the pack, sleeping bag, air mattress or foam pad, and a tent.

A clumsy, poorly-made piece of equipment will be a burden in the back-country where equipment breakdown could become a real problem. The framed rucksack and pack-frame assembly are both considered good for backpacking. You, however, must decide which pack will be the best for you.

The framed rucksack is basically a shoulder-suspended carrying system. Because the pack hangs slightly away from a person's back, it tends to pull backward on the shoulders. As a result, the pull may be uncomfortable with a heavy load.

The pack-frame assembly, on the other hand, puts the load high and close to the back. The backward pull is eliminated because the top of the pack tips forward. The hips then bear the weight of the load.

Sleeping bags come in different shapes and sizes so the bag that's right for you may not do for someone else. The bag should fit your body.

Sleeping bags may be made of goose down or polyester fiberfills such as Dacron and Polyguard. A synthetic-filled sleeping bag will dry quickly when wet and weighs about half as much as a down bag. They're also less expensive and more durable, but not as warm as down.

For comfort and insulation from the ground, an air mattress or foam pad should also be packed. The foam pad's only disadvantage is its bulk, while an air mattress can spring a leak.

Clothing important

A tent comes in handy when in the back-country, although some backpackers don't consider it a necessity. It does provide protection from weather and from mosquitos and other biting insects.

Other items to include in the pack are: a mess and utensil kit, first aid kit, pocket knife, hatchet, slip-jaw pliers, rope, toilet paper, towel, lightweight shovel or trowel, a flashlight with extra batteries and waterproof matches. Some back-country hikers may carry candles to light fires, toothbrushes, sewing kits, plastic bags, small single burner stoves with fuel, soap and extra eyeglasses.

Although equipment is an important element in backpacking, the clothing you wear is equally important.

A long-sleeved shirt and full length trousers are your best bet for back-country hiking. They protect your skin from brambles and unnecessary cuts, scratches and sunburn.

A second layer of insulation is usually needed early in the day or late in the evening. A heavy wool shirt or down parka will work as a second layer although each have their disadvantages. The shirt's disadvantage is its weight and bulk but it can be more easily adjusted to changing conditions. The biggest disadvantage of a down parka is that it's hard to dry when it becomes soaked through.

The third layer of insulation should be a shell parka or hooded windbreaker. It can be easily combined with a heavy wool shirt for more warmth. The shell parka should be wind-proof and water-repellent if possible.

The item of clothing that waterproofs your outfit is the poncho. Versatile and essential, the poncho covers both you and your pack if you get caught in the rain. Because of its looseness the ponch allows good ventilation.

Socks should not be left off the list of essential pieces of clothing. Two types of outdoor socks are available — the heavy, wool sock and a lightweight sock.

Mittens, a scarf and hat should also be included in the pack.

Because backpacking equipment can run into money, check with your local Outdoor Recreation Services Branch. Depending on where you're assigned, you may be able to get most of the items you need there.

'Mama, mama can't you see. . .'

By Becky Bulgrin

What happened to all the sports action on post? Well, because of the holidays and the many people who took leave to be with their families, sports activities have taken somewhat of a standstill here until things get back to a normal schedule.

But many soldiers from the 1st Infantry Training Brigade and the 4th Student Battalion, The School Brigade who stayed behind for the holidays were treated to "extra special" sports events while at the same time getting away from post. I was lucky to get tickets and traveled with the rest of the troops to Montgomery, Ala. for the annual Blue-Gray football game and to Atlanta to see the Hawks and the Boston Celtics in action. Besides being quite an adventure, it was all free.

It was Christmas Day, but I certainly didn't feel alone as I boarded one of the eight buses along with the other 322 soldiers who took the trip to watch the North vs the South. Although the Blue (North) won, the 24-23 score showed it was a game worth seeing. But the trip up and back turned out to be just as exciting. We were escorted first by the Columbus police, then by Phenix City's police and ended up rolling into Montgomery behind the Alabama State Highway Patrol. Who says the Army doesn't take care of its troops?

Most of the soldiers really seemed to get a kick out of being escorted, especially as our "convoy" made its way through red lights while passing motorists looked on with astonished expressions on their faces. One soldier sitting behind me commented, "Wait till I write home and tell everybody about this!"

After this, I was looking forward to Saturday's trip to Atlanta to see my first pro basketball game. Although we weren't escorted this time, two buses and 91 soldiers headed for the Omni to see the Atlanta Hawks take on the Boston Celtics. It was close, but the Hawks lost the game 112-107.

Thanks to the Follow Me chapter of the Association of the United States Army (AUSA), who organized the events, along with the great support of local merchants and businesses, the soldiers who participated got a chance to spend part of the holidays among many people and enjoy something they normally wouldn't be able to during a time of training. The officers and drill sergeants who accompanied their troops also deserve a big "thanks."

It was a good feeling for me, and probably a lot of the other soldiers as well, to be acknowledged and welcomed as soldiers from Fort Benning during announcements at the game.

But since the holidays aren't over yet, neither is the opportunity for more soldiers to see another sports event. The Peach Bowl takes place Friday in Atlanta and 90 soldiers will be going to this annual college football game.

"Mama, Mama, can't you see . . .? What this Army's done to me . . .? Given me the opportunity . . ., to see things I might have never seen . . .!"

Peach Bowl here I come!

'Cudas swim in AAU matches

By Barry Cuda
Special to the BAYONET
Youth Activities writer

The Youth Activities sponsored Barracuda Swim Team traveled to Montgomery and Atlanta on Dec. 13 and 14 to participate in two Amateur Athletic Union (AAU) swim meets.

Roland White and David Christensen, the Barracudas' class 2-A swimmers, swam against competitors from Maryland, Tennessee and Florida as well as swimmers from all over Georgia in an all A-meet. The meet was held in the new Dynamo facility in Atlanta.

Christensen brought home a sixth place award in the 200-yard freestyle and seventh place in the 50-yard freestyle and back stroke.

The remainder of the team faced Band C competition in Montgomery with several outstanding results. Eight-year-old Larry Hood, a novice swimming in his second meet, advanced to B times in three of his five events, and also brought home a first place in the 25-yard breast stroke and third place in the 25-yard butterfly.

Lyman King, also eight, placed first in both the 25-yard breast stroke and 25-yard freestyle in B competition, and made his A time in the 50-yard freestyle, second in 25 breast stroke and third in 25 butterfly.

Karen Abbot, age eight, placed first in her 50-yard freestyle and her brother Kyle, ten, had four blue ribbons in B competition.

Other Cudas who placed in C competition were:

10-Under Boys: Jonathan King took first in the 50 back and 50 freestyle, second in 100 freestyle, third in 50 breast stroke and fourth in 50 butterfly. John Duckett took second in the 50 butterfly, third in 100 freestyle, fourth in 50 freestyle, fifth in 50 back stroke and sixth in 50 breast stroke. Peter Stankovitch placed fourth in the 50 breast stroke, fifth in 50 butterfly and sixth in 50 back.

10-Under Girls: Michelle Craft took second in the 50 breast stroke, fourth in 50 back and fifth in 50 freestyle. Sarah Anderson placed third in the 50 butterfly and fifth in back. Tami Annan placed sixth in the 50 butterfly and Tami Cullifer took sixth in the 100 butterfly.

11-12 Boys: Raymond King placed first in the 50 freestyle, third in 50 breast stroke and 100 freestyle, fourth in 50 back and fifth in 50 freestyle.

11-12 Girls: Sarah Lucas took first in the 50 breast stroke and fourth in 100 freestyle and 50 freestyle. Alicia Angel placed fourth in the 50 breast stroke, fifth in 100 freestyle and 50 freestyle and sixth in 50 butterfly.

13-14 Girls: Erika Bradford took second in the 50 freestyle, third in 100 freestyle, second in 100 breast stroke and fourth in 100 back.

15-18 Girls: Kelly Lucas placed first in the 50 freestyle and 100 freestyle, second in 100 breast stroke and 100 back.

Other participants were Andy and Anna Erickson, Richard Edmondson, Louis Acosta and Chris Bradford.

Races to kick off cookie sale

Lace up your jogging shoes and get ready to run. The Concharty Council of Girl Scouts will be having a "Cookie Fun Run" to launch their annual cookie sale.

The event will take place January 17, at 10 a.m. at Weracoba Park (Lakebottom) in Columbus. Sponsors for the Cookie Fun Run are the Concharty Council of Girl Scouts and Courtsouth.

Under the consultation of the Columbus Track Club, the run will consist of a 1.5-mile race for the novice runner, regardless of age and a five-mile race for the experienced runner. There are eleven age geoups with divisions for male and female runners. All runners will receive a T-shirt for participation in the event.

The pre-registration entry fee is $3 for children, 17 years and under and $4 for adults. The deadline for pre-registration is January 9, after which the entry fee will be increased by $1 for both children and adults. To insure a T-shirt for the day of the race, pre-registration is encouraged.

Trophies and cookie samplers will be given to the first, second and third overall male and female runners of both races. Medals will be awarded to the top three male and female runners in each age group in the 1.5 mile and five-mile races. A one-year membership to Courtsouth will be presented to each first place overall runner.

An entry form is available on this page and forms may be picked up at Courtsouth, sporting good stores or the Girl Scout office, 1807 17th Street, Columbus, Ga. 31901, telephone (404) 327-2646.

Make checks payable to Concharty Council of Girl Scouts and mail or take to the Girl Scout office from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m.

How About That?

By William W. Erbach, Sr.
36th Engineer Group Chaplain

I remember a seminary professor who used to tell us a story. He liked its messages so well that I heard it several times during my stay. It was the story of how a great preacher would tell his classes of the great thoughts that would come to him while he was in his garden meditating.

He would quote from a Dorothy Gurney poem;

The kiss of the Son for pardon,
The son of the birds for mirth,
One is nearer to God's heart in a garden,
Than anywhere else on earth.

The students were thrilled with this inspiring story so they wanted to see this wonderful garden where all these inspiring thoughts came from. One day they came to his house and were invited into this sacred garden. They were surprised to see nothing but a rather narrow strip that was surrounded by very high walls. "But sir," they pleaded, "Surely this is not the garden from which all of your inspiring thoughts come from?" "Oh, yes, it is," he replied. "But it is so small!" "Yes, I know that it is small, I admit," but then, pointing to the sky he said, "But look how high it is!" How About That/

It is the upward look that makes life big and high and if you will, holy. It is the upward look of reverence, worship, prayer, hope and vision. It really isn't important how much space you own to put your garden in, but what you do with that space you own. Psychologists speak long and hard about ones own territory, the space we claim for ourselves, and the number of people we allow in that space and the numbers we keep out. The only space that really counts is the space between ourselves and God. It is only when we take our faces out of the dirt and off the fences that keep others out that we receive the inspiration of the place we are in. The upward look is the look toward the skies, the clouds, the orderly universe and God.

Conserve energy to save money

IN THE KITCHEN

Buying

When buying an appliance check its Energy Efficiency Ratio (EER). Sometimes efficient items sell for more but ends up costing less because they use less power.

Cooking

Gas ranges with automatic ignition use less energy than those with pilot lights. If your stove does have a pilot light, make sure it burns blue rather than yellow.

If you cook with electricity, it is best to turn off the burners a few minutes before the food is done.

Boiling water is an open pot or pan is wasteful. Always use a lid.

Pressure cookers, boiler-ovens, and range tops use less energy than regular ovens.

Washing Dishes

Run your dishwasher only when it is full. The average dishwasher uses 14 gallons of hot water per load. The "rinse hold" feature uses 3 to 7 gallons of hot water.

Running the dishwasher-and the clothes washer and dryer-in the early morning or late evening saves energy production costs because there's less demand on the utility company's generators at those hours.

Refrigerators

Set your refrigerator between 38 and 40 degrees.

In a manual-defrost refrigerator, frost should not be allowed to build up over a quarter-inch. Frost makes the refrigerator work overtime, thus using more energy.

AROUND THE HOUSE

Heating And Cooling

In most homes, 70 percent of the energy used goes into heating and cooling.

An audit of your home-call the utility companuy to see if it performs audits-could show you many ways to save energy.

You can cut the heating or cooling costs in your home significantly by installing storm windows, weatherstripping, caulking, and insulation.

A furnance that is cleaned every two years should use six percent less energy.

The damper should be closed when the fireplace is not in use.

During the heating season, keep the thermostat at 65 degrees during the day and turn it down to 55 degrees at night.

Use electric blankets for each bed and turn the heat way down.

During the cooling season, thermostats should be no lower than 80 degrees.

Using draperies and shades wisely to let in the sun's warmth during the winter and keep it out during the summer.

Hot Water

Water heating consumes about as much energy as all the lights and appliances in most homes.

A setting of 120 degrees is adequate for most families.

Repair leaky faucets promptly. One drop pe second adds up to over 2,400 gallons in a year.

Short- and medium-length showers requires les hot water than baths.

Lighting

Your lights will be brighter if bulbs and shades ar clean.

Try to buy low-wattage, krypton gas-filled ligl bulbs.

If installing new lighting, choose fluorescer lighting if possible.

Clothing

Dress right to save energy.

Wear sweaters. A light, long-sleeved sweate offers almost two degrees in added warmth; heavy, long-sleeved sweater offers 3.7 degrees; an two lightweight sweaters offer about five de grees.

Long-sleeved pajamas or a nightgown of nappe or brushed fabric will keep you warmer at night.

In hot weather, loose clothes are better tha tight clothes. The more skin surface that's exposec the cooler you'll feel.

Natural fabrics, like cotton and linen, are mor porous and absorbent.

Bring your group in for a dip.

At Red Lobster we know how to treat a group of seafood lovers. We treat 'em to plenty of juicy shrimp to dip, lots of sweet crab to dab and plenty of the lobster they love.

Just call ahead for reservations and we'll seat your group together in your own section. You can order from our lunch menu Monday-Saturday from 11:30 to 4:00 p.m. And our dinner menu is available Monday-Thursday from 4:00 p.m. till closing.

So, anyone for a dip? How about tomorrow?

Year

Goulart and Columbus Medical Center Registered Nurses Pam Campbell and Barbara Coffman.

Col. William J. Northquest assumed command of the 1st Infantry Training Brigade (ITB) from Col. H.C. Van Meter.

Sp4 Greg A. Strom, of the U.S. Army Marksmanship Unit (USAMU) defeated 90 of the top rifle competition in the country as he won the 1980 Regional High Powered Championship held in Cherry Point, N.C.

The first Officer School Candidate Commemoration Day was held here.

Lt. Col. Jerome A. Diebold assumed command of the 8th Battalion, 1st Infantry Training Brigade. Also both the battalions and its first company opened.

The Columbus-Phenix City-Fort Benning chapter of the Association of the U.S. Army hosted its sixth annual news luncheon in its continuing effort to educate the general public about what the U.S. Army is doing.

October

Fort Benning's hospital was given a new name-Martin Army Community Hospital. Health Service Command, Fort Sam Houston, Texas, added "Community" to their military hospitals to better convey their mission.

Soldiers from here attended the National Association of the U.S. Army (AUSA) meeting in Washington, D.C.

Benning celebrates its 62nd birthday.

Lones Wigger of the U.S. Army Marksmanship Unit scored a total of 3,466 out of 3,600 possible points to easily win the National 300 meter Rifle Championship.

Forty congressional staff members visited the 197th Infantry Brigade (Separate) and received an orientation on the brigade's mission, organization and weapons during their visit.

Sgt. Phillip G. Johnston, Company D, 197th Infantry Brigade was selected as Fort Benning's Soldier of the Year.

The Cohesive Unit Program (CUP) a new concept being tested by the 1st Infantry Training Brigade and the Army here, is to develop teamwork, discipline and morale in new infantry soldiers.

Soldiers going to the same unit after completion of training are placed into the same training company and in most cases, the same platoon. This creates a bond between the men which can be carried forward to their permanent party unit.

A delegation of military educators from the People's Republic of China visited here as part of an agreed exchange program set up by Secretary of Defense Harold Brown and Chinese Vice Premier Ging Biao.

The XXII CISM Shooting Championships were held here. The winner of the 25 meter Standard competition, SFC Erich Buljung, U.S. Army Marksmanship Unit, fired a total of 579 out of 600 to win the Standard Pistol event by eight points over teammate SFC John Kailer at 571.

Top scoring indviduals in the competition were Lt. Col. Lones Wigger and SFC Charles McCowan both of USAMU. Wigger's score of 581 out of 600 points in the 300 meter Standard Rifle event was unofficially four points over the present world record of 577.

In the pre-CISM pistol competition, SFC McCowan won both the 25 meter centerfire and Military Rapid Fire Pistol events with 591 and 596 points respectively. His 596 score in military rapid fire, was also two points over the existing world record for the event. SFC Thomas Wood, of USAMU, also fired a 596 in the rapid fire match, but lost first place in the tie breaking procedure.

Countries that participated in CISM were: Austria, Belgium, China, Denmark, Ecuador, Egypt, Finland, France, West Germany, Ireland, Italy, Kenya, Kuwait, Netherlands, Nigeria, Norway, Oman, Portugal, Qatar, Switzerland, Sweden, Thailand, United Arab Emirates, Uruguay, Venezuela, and the U.S.

At this year's XXII CISM Shooting Championships Finland came in first and U.S.A. finished second.

Col. Addison D. Davis III retired ending his long career in the Army.

Fort Benning's Dental Clinic No. 1 was built and will open up for customer service by Jan. 5. The builiding is the new home and headquarters for DENTAC, USAIC.

November

The Fort Benning Doughboy's season shot off to a good start when they defeated rivals Carson-Newman 23-13 in their first game. But ended in defeat against Alabama State junior varsity 28-12. While the Doughboys tried to come out with a 500 season. They finished with a 4-6 record.

According to Head Coach Ralph Santaliz, the team played better than the records shows. "We just happened to have a tougher schedule this year," he said. "We only played one non-college team and ended up playing three varsity teams. And all the teams we defeated were good ones." Santaliz said one thing that hurt the team was players not making pratices. "Some of the losses were due to lack of pratice before the game. "The coach also said pratice started too late this year, and plans on having it start in the spring for next season.

December

Sgt. 1st Class James S. Clauson, TRADOC Drill Sergeant of the year, toured Fort Benning and the 1st Infantry Training Brigade to evaluate the Initial Entry Training (IET) programs and the Drill Sergeants.

Ernest Vande Zanden and Erich Buljung scored indvidual gold medal victories and sparked the U.S. to overall medal winning nation in the IV Grand Prix Shooting Championships of Brazil.

Randy Stewart of the U.S. Army Marksmanship Unit won all three events and shattered the existing national record by five points during the Southern Running Target Championship held here.

Sp5 Elizabeth Dingler, 524th Dining Facility took overall Best of the Show in the Culinary Arts Show at Fort Benning.

The Over 40 PT test was tested here before being put into effect for the Army.

Army Reservist SFC Ronald Robinson, from Headquarters TRADOC, assigned to the 1st Infantry Training Brigade here was awarded the National Guard Minutesman Award. Robinson advises and counsels Army Reserve personnel who train here and also provides the same service for National Guard soldiers as well.

The 43rd Engineer Battalion won first place again in the annual Columbus Christmas parade. This time it was Company D with a dump truck painted like a TONKA toy. The men responsible for the float were CWO 3 Jim Dunn, maintenance officer, 2nd Lt. William Skoda, platoon leader and 2nd Lt. John Buxton, construction officer, S-3 section.

Gen. Edward C. Meyer, U.S. Army Chief of Staff spoke to a combined military and civilian audience at the Columbus Iron Works Convention and Trade Center. Gen. Meyer praised the relationship between soldiers and the Columbus and Phenix City communities. Gen. Meyer was the featured speaker at the Follow Me Chapter of the AUSA's winter membership meeting.

The 1st Battalion, 58th Infantry, 197th Infantry Brigade, traveled to the U.S. Army Northen Training Center at Fort Greely, Alaska where they trained in sub-freezing weather. "The entire training was geared for survivability," explained Lt. Col. H.T. Fincher, commander, 1st Battalion, 58th Infantry. "The ability to perform and survive in sub-zero weather was our goal.
