Harry T. Eason Wins Baby Derby

Harry Trent Eason became Mr. Fort Benning of 1948 and winner of the fifth annual Baby Derby, sponsored by The Bayonet in cooperation with Columbus merchants, as he made a somewhat belated appearance at 9:27 p. m. Thursday, Jan. 1, at the Station hospital.

Little Harry Trent, son of Mrs. Leona G. and S-Sgt. John T. Eason, weighed seven and three-quarter pounds at birth. His father is an aircraft engineer with Squadron A, 319th Air Force Base unit, at Lawson field.

Hospital attaches, who announced Harry Eason the first child born in the new year, said that four babies were born within 20 minutes of each other before midnight Dec. 31. The runner-up in the baby contest was a girl, born to Mrs. Helen Hampton, wife of S-Sgt. Joseph Hampton, Schooi Troops, at 6:27 a. m. Friday, Jan. 2.

Mr. 1948, as winner of the Baby Derby, has been awarded approximately one hundred dollars worth of merchandise by Columbus merchants.

The father of the new king" is a veteran of more than 7 years' Army service, having enlisted for duty with the 11th Engineers in 1936. He joined the Air Force at Maxwell field, Ala., Nov. 25, 1938, and served later at the Bainbridge, Ga., air base, Courtland Air Base, Ala., and in the China-Burma-India ares until November 1945. He reenlisted in the Air Force at Lawson field June 6, 1946.

ASSIGNED TO 319th

Lt. Frank A. Athanson has been assigned to the 319th Field Artillery battalion's Battery B as assistant executive officer, officials have announced. Lt. Athanson returned from Europe in November 1946 for duty at Fort Dix, N. J.

Benning Citizens Asked To Help Locate 'Buddy'

LOST: A dog. Purebred male setter. Answers to the name "Buddy." Small, he is white with black markings. Finder please notify Lt. Col. William E. Means, Tactical section, the Academic department, the Infantry School.

But there is more to the story than this. Buddy is a valuable dog —and a good bird dog. But he is valuable for many more reasons.

Buddy belongs to Col. Benjamin W. Hawes, retired to disability after he lost a leg in the Colmar Pocket of the Bulge while serving with the 36th Infantry division. Buddy means a lot to this young veteran.

He is a children's pet. Colonel Hawe's little girl and infant son both idolize the tiny setter. Ben, Jr., refuses to sleep or eat happily until "his Buddy" comes home.

Laura, eighteen months older than little Ben, knows she should hold in the grief she feels. But her chin trembles occasionally when she thinks no one is looking.

Colonel Means, who was taking care of the dog while his friends were traveling, wants to see the dog returned to its masters, too. He feels badly that Buddy should have vanished while he was instructed with the care of his classmate's property. The two men were classmates at West Point, both graduating in 1935.

He took Buddy into the field on the afternoon of New Year's eve, to hunt quail. This is a sport of which Buddy is very fond.

After returning, Buddy was left on the lawn while Colonel Means drove off to do some shopping. The dog, impetuous as many fine dogs are, followed the car until outdistanced. That was the last we know of Buddy. He was standing by the Fort Benning Children's school at the time.

A lot of people want to see Buddy back at home. So, if you see a small white setter with black markings, you might ask him if his name is "Buddy."

Units To Receive Colors Saturday

The 325th Infantry regiment and the 319th Field Artillery battalion, two of Fort Benning's newest units, will be presented with the colors of their respective units by Major General James M. Gavin, commanding general of the 82nd Airborne division, in ceremonies scheduled for 11 a. m. Saturday, January 10, at Stilwell field.

Formerly deactivated units at Fort Bragg, North Carolina, the 325th and 319th are comprised of personnel from the now defunct 37th Infantry regiment and the 83rd Field Artillery battalion, which have been reduced to zero strength and absorbed by the 82nd Airborne division.

Division Reorganized

The famous 82nd Airborne division has recently undergone a huge reorganization program which has brought the outfit back up to wartime strength. The reorganization of the 82nd constituted the consolidation, reorganization, and the absorbing of units of School Troops here. Headquarters of the 82nd have been established at Fort Bragg, N. C.

General Gavin will uncase and unfurl the colors for presentation to the unit commanders, Col. Charles D. Hoyle, commander of the 325th Infantry regiment and Lt. Col. John A. Gloriod, 319th Field Artillery commander, who will in turn present the colors to the color bearers.

The 325th, while it was still a glider unit, played an important role in World War II. After its deactivation in 1919, the 325th In-

Col. Williamson To Be Honored For War Duty

Lt. Col. Ellis W. Williamson, instructor in the Tactical section, Defense committee, of the Infantry School, has been awarded the Legion of Merit for meritorious service while commanding the First battalion, 120th Infantry, 30th Division, in the European theater.

Major General Leland S. Hobbs, commanding general of the Third Army, will arrive here January 14 to make the presentation of the Legion of Merit to Col. Williamson, one of the most decorated veterans of World War II.

Joining the 30th division (National Guard) in July 1935 as an enlisted man, Col. Williamson rose from the ranks of a private in the band of the 120th Infantry in 1935 to regimental commander of the same outfit as it was being deactivated in December 1945.

A native of North Carolina, Col. Williamson attended Louisburg Junior college at Louisburg, N. C., Atlantic Christian college at Wilson, N. C., and the University of North Carolina.

Landing with the allied forces at Normandy, Col. Williamson in later campaigns throughout the E.T.O. distinguished himself as a leader of men, winning decoration after decoration. He holds the Combat Infantry badge, the Silver Star with four clusters, Bronze Star with three clusters, Purple Heart with two clusters, British Distinguished Service Order, E. T. 5 New Courses To Be Offered In Winter Term

Five new courses will be offered at the Infantry Center's vocational night school during the winter quarter, which begins Jan. 19, it was announced today by Capt. Willard E. Chambers, information and education officer.

These additions to the curriculum include courses in public speaking, American government, intermediate French and Spanish, and a special course in English for Spanish speaking students, Capt. Chambers said.

Registration for the winter session will be held from Jan. 8 to 19. This may be accomplished at either unit information and education offices or at the vocational school's headquarters located on Indian Head road at the site formerly occupied by the Reception Center. After Jan. 19 students may register at the school only, Capt. Chambers said.

New Classrooms

Six new classrooms and considerable equipment have been added to the school, Capt. Chambers disclosed, bringing the total number of buidlings occupied by the education unit to 14.

Classes will be in session from 6:10 p. m. on Monday and Thursday nights only during the winter quarter, and each student may carry a load of two courses. Fee for each course will be 50 cents.

All Fort Benning troops and their dependents are eligible to enroll for courses in the vocational school, Capt. Chambers said. A total of 37 classes will be in session during nights of operation with 29 different courses offered.

Among the courses and their instructors are public speaking and

'Spook Suit' Wearer To Visit Uncle Here

Risking his life in an experimental "pressure suit" he tested for the Air Force is all in the day's work to Captain Harold J. Jacobs of Wright field headquarters, Air Material command.

Soon to visit his uncle, M-Sgt. Gerard G. Millet, sergeant major of the Automotive section of the Infantry School, Captain Jacobs was lifted to a simulated height of 106,000 feet and lived—although blood boils at 63,000 feet without protection.

The young scientist, who served as a "human guinea pig" in a series of air pressure experiments in the "altitude chambers" at Wright field, has been hailed as pioneer in his work to surpass the boundaries of atmosphere.

A graduate of Louisiana State university medical school, Captain Jacobs volunteered for the hazardous duty in April, 1946. In earlier experiments, he tested the pressure suit—known as the "spook suit" because of its weird appearance—at a height of 65,000 feet before being lifted to the almost vacuum of 106,000 feet.

The highest flying American plane of World War II, the B-29, went to a height of only 47,910 feet on one test flight. The experiments of Dr. Jacobs and his colleagues will make possible flights within less pressure, Army officials have stated.

GETS YMCA LATCHKEY — S-Sgt. Herbert M. Hinton, left, who at dedication ceremonies Jan 4 represented the more than 4,000,000 Fort Benning soldiers who used the services of the Eleventh street USO during the war, receives the key to the building from Lt. Col. Edgar O. Hobbs, center, after the former had received it from A. H. Chapman Sr., right, chairman of the club's management committee.

Eleventh Street YMCA Is Formally Dedicated

As the year 1948 began, the Columbus Army-Navy YMCA was formally rededicated to the enlisted man of the United States armed forces.

In impressive dedicatory ceremonies Sunday on the second floor of the Eleventh street building, S-Sgt. Herbert M. Hinton, Company B, 325th Infantry regiment, received a symbolic key to the building from Lt. Col. Edgar O. Hobbs, Infantry Center Public Information officer, who represented the men and women who maintain and run the building in its capacity as 'a home away from home'

Often seven years service to the enlisted men of Fort Benning, the former USO structure was returned to the agencies of the Army-Navy "Y". The enterprise began as a branch recreational unit of the YMCA in a covered tent on the main post in 1939.

In 1940, headquarters for the YMCA activity for the serviceman moved to its present location on Eleventh street as officials ruled that civilians could not maintain recreational facilities on a military post.

The warehouse was the best available location. Operations for the rebuilding and refinishing of the building began at once.

The year 1940 saw the organization of United Service Organizations. The YMCA national organization played a prominent part in the USO as the Columbus branch went under the banner of aid to servicemen.

As Fort Benning expanded, more than 4,000,000 men found the USO-YMCA to be a home away from home. The facilities expanded from one floor of a shabby old building to the three floors and basement of modern design which now stand in a renovated building on Eleventh street, once again displaying the sign of the Army-Navy YMCA.

With the end of 1947, United Service Organizations disbanded and their buildings, facilities, and property reverted to the original organization.

Colonel Hobbs presented the key of the building to Sergeant Hinton, who stated, "I am very proud to accept this key. The YMCA means a lot to me as it does to every man in the service."

He then threw the key out the front door to indicate that the Army-Navy YMCA would never again close, but would be open 24 hours a day, 365 days a year.

Capt. Kilpatrick Named To Head School Units PIO

Captain Charles W. Kilpatrick, formerly assistant Infantry School public information officer, has been recently appointed School Troops public information and tropp information and education officer, replacing Lt. Thomas Murphy, who has left the Army.

Capt. Kilpatrick, who assumed his new duties January 1, is a professional soldier who first enlisted in 1929. A graduate of the Army Information School at Carlisle Barracks, Pennsylvania, he came to Fort Benning in 1946.

Leaving Company G, Third Infantry regiment, as first sergeant, he attended Officer Candidate School here to graduate as a second lieutenant in August, 1942. He was later assigned as communications officer of the First battalion of the 172nd regiment.

He served as commanding officer of Company D, First battalion, 172nd Infantry regiment, from January, 1943, to March, 1945, through the campaigns of North Solomons, New Guinea, and Luzon. Capt. Kilpatrick wears the Silver Star, Bronze Star, and the Purple Heart with cluster.

In addition to the duties of troop information and education officer and public information office, he is assigned as recruiting officer of School Troops. Born in Los Angeles, Calif., he is a graduate of Spring Valley high school in Ohio.

Scout Head Lauds Benning Courtesy

In a letter of thanks to the public information office, E. B. Harrison, of the Lanett, Alabama, Boy Scout activities committee, expressed his appreciation for the arrangements made for a tour by the scouts of Fort Benning on December 30.

Especially commended were the mess personnel and the military police escorts. Mr. Harrison stated:

"We have never been more nicely taken care of than when we visited Fort Benning. The Scouts got a real kick by being escorted by the M.P.'s, while the meal we ate was delicious and well served, and the dining hall was neat and beautifully decorated. Lawson field personnel were equally as nice—eager to let the Scouts see all they wanted to. Again we thank you for making these plans."

College-Going GIs May Reenlist Now On Standby Basis

Recognizing that veterans using their GI Bill of Rights benefits have jammed the housing accommodations and classes at most of the nation's colleges and universities, the services have now made it possible for short-term men to continue in uniform on a steady basis until the institution they wish to attend under the GI Bill has room for them.

Under the new plan those serving short-term enlistment in the Army or Air Force who have unused educational benefits under the GI Bill of Rights may extend their enlistments to three, four, or five years with the promise that that they will be discharged at any time subsequent to completion of their original term of enlistments in order to use their educational benefits.

Discharge will be granted when an application is accompanied by a letter from the registrar or other appropriate official of an accredited educational institution stating that the applicant has been accepted for enrollment during a specific school term. In every case, discharge will be accomplished by a full month before the beginning of the school term.

Colonel Cooper's Son Graduates With Honors

T-4 Robert R. Cooper, son of Col. and Mrs. Paul Cooper, Tactical section of the Infantry school, who is at present on duty with the 22nd Constabulary squadron in Hersfeld, Germany, has graduated from the United States Constabulary school in Southern Germany as an honor student, it was learned here this week.

The course consists of a complete study of the duties of key personnel in the constabulary, with emphasis on the reasons behind the policies of the American occupation authorities. T-4 Cooper's rating as an honor student means that he was in the top five per cent of his class.

Tenth Company Student Boasts Model Airplane Construction As Hobby

Among the interesting hobbies pursued by students of the 10th company, Student Training regiment, is that of Pvt. Jesse A. Budd, who builds small gasoline powered model airplanes, some of which are capable of making up to 100 miles per hour around a 100-foot circle.

The tiny ships are controlled by the use of small wires stretched from the operator to the speeding airplane.

Pvt. Budd has several models with which he experiments frequently. His ambition is to enter his plane in the national model contests, where valuable prizes are offered to winners in the various events.

The snappy reply back was—"I did."

The Marshall Plan

The Congress began discussion yesterday on one of the most important and most controversial bills ever to come before that august body, the European Recovery Program, or more simply the Marshall Plan. What the outcome will be only those closest to the legislative body of our government would dare guess, but everyone in this country, as well as those whom the program will affect, are anxiously waiting for the answer.

Although everyone is interested in the Marshall Plan, many do not know just what it is. In the following paragraphs we will attempt to explain it as described by the Department of the Army.

General George Marshall, Secretary of State, in a speech at Harvard university last June 5, suggested a plan for European recovery in which the United States would be willing to assist in a workable program, but with the initiative taken by the countries concerned.

Marshall meant that the U. S. would consider assistance to those nations of Europe who would cooperate individually and collectively in a program to restore the economy and independence of outside help of each country.

Grasping at the idea, 16 western European nations met in Paris last July 12 in a Conference on European Economic Cooperation, and late in September completed a draft of a recovery program which it then presented to the U. S. Government. As a result and on the basis of this and other information the Congress is now in session discussing the advisability of granting aid to Europe. The Congress, as selected by the people of the U. S., will, of course, make the final determination.

Just what will constitute the European Recovery Program?

First, each country participating in ERP must make a concerted effort to produce as much as possible for its own consumption and export. Secondly, there will be created by each participating nation an internal financial stability; third, maximum cooperation between the participating countries; and fourth, a solution of the problem of the participating countries' deficit with the American continent, particularly by increasing European exports. The aim of the ERP is to create by 1951 a self-supporting Europe, which can afford a reasonable standard of living.

The ERP, as it has been outlined, will naturally cost the U. S. a great deal of money, but this money, according to Secretary of State Marshall, should take the form of grants or loans, depending in each case upon the capacity of the particular country to repay the debt. In any country, according to the Marshall Plan, where such repayment would only deter the recovery, imports of supplies which are quickly consumed, such as food, fertilizer, fuel, and essential raw materials should be financed by grants.

As the leading natiton in the world, and the greatest the world has ever known, we can not lose sight of the importance of this program. It is well for all Americans to take an interest in it and what it means. An informed public is one of the greatest assets a country can have.

THE TRUTH ABOUT 1948

By

CHAPLAIN JOHN A. DeVEAUX

Much has been written and spoken concerning the New Year. Many of the leading minds would have us believe that this year is filled with forebodings, mysteries, and uncertainties. I recently heard an outstanding speaker bemoan the fact that he did not know what the future held for him.

I had to constrain myself from answering "nothing." For that is exactly what the New Year holds for us all.

This year or no other year controls our destinies. It is not our stars or our years that make or break us, it is we ourselves. As Jesus said of the Sabbath let it be said of the year. Man was not made for the year but the year was made for man. 1948 has no power for or against us. The year is to be LIVED.

If we earnestly resolve to live full and free, the year will be a year of freedom and fullness. You shall have freedom and fullness in spite of any prevailing condition or circumstance, even if the fig tree fails to blossom, or the vine becomes barren. Even if the herds are scattered and the stalls be empty, still there will be freedom and fullness and reasons to praise your God.

It is not what the year shall do with us, but what shall we do with the year. To be sure there will be many who will be miserable failures. They will not fail because 1948 willed it so, they will fail because they considered themselves as lesser breeds, the victims of fate, law, and creed. They will fail because they do not have the will to win. They will fail because they do not have the courage to fight.

There will be teeming thousands, however, who will conquer. They will conquer often with broken tools and twisted swords. They will have victory, not because of fate, but from surer and stronger powers. They will win because they are determined to give full measure running over. They will go forward because they will refuse to be afraid. They will be victorious because they will be "Strong in the Lord, and in the power of His Might."

We all wish each other a "Happy New Year." This has been the custom from time immemorial. This time let us not only wish each other a Happy New Year, but let us do something about it. Let us make it a happy year for all people everywhere. If it were mine to add another law to the Ten Commandments it would be this: "Thou shall not fear." The truth about 1948 is that it is just another year with one more day added.

Your Red Cross

BY

MURRAY E. HILL

For nearly a year I have been writing this column weekly. Never do I undertake the writing of it without wondering who is going to read it, if it is read, the readers' reaction.

There is so much about the Red Cross which one can write that rather than being an easy task it is a difficult one.

To you who might be reading this column, have you read previous columns? Do they contain information about Red Cross which interests you? Have you further questions concerning Red Cross, its services and activities, which you would like explained? Can you think of other subjects in which you are thoroughly familiar, but in your opinion would be interesting to other readers?

These are the questions that I would like to ask if I had an opportunity to meet you face to face.

It, therefore, follows that I earnestly request you to write or call me voicing your opinions concerning Red Cross services, activities, and this column.

And I am also asking for it when I earnestly request if you have any criticism to make that you call or write me. Every suggestive criticism might be the one thing we need to make this, your Red Cross, a larger and better operation.

In closing, your Red Cross field director earnestly requests that you personally take a more active interest in your Red Cross at Fort Benning, entering its activities, volunteering your services, studying its activities in which you are unable to participate, for this is your Red Cross, as we have so urgently repeated time and time in the past.

Dog Face

I am a ground-force soldier;
Sure, I've had dirt behind my ears—
And at times the mud I slept in—
Was mixed with my own tears!

Yes, I squawked while training;
And hated each parade!
Yet, 'twas I who took the strong-points—
With rifle and grenade!

I fought with knife and bayonet;
Used every type of gun!
I cursed the Arctic winters
And the blazing Tropic sun!

Sure, I heard about the A-Bomb;
And Germs they say will win!
But nothing's ever settled—
'Til the ground-force men go in!

So I'll stick to my old outfit;
For no matter where the place,
When there's a job that must be done—
They'll call the old Dog Face!

25th Infantry Male Chorus On Concert Series Program

By AL WISE

Music lovers of Fort Benning and vicinity who plan to attend the Community Concert series program scheduled for January 23 at the Main Post Theater when the 25th Infantry Male Chorus will be featured will have the opportunity of hearing one of the outstanding artists within the organization-T-Sgt. Arthur J. Patterson. Sergeant Patterson is director of the chorus.

A native of Houston, Texas, Sergeant Patterson graduated from Phyllis Wheatley high school and received his first certificate for having passed the graded course in music from the Laura A. Green Studio of Music. Entering Prarie View State college, Tex., he matriculated in piano, organ, harmony, theory, and conducting under Prof. O. Anderson Fuller, and later majored in piano, with a minor in school music. Following his graduation from college, he taught for a three-year period in the Houston and later Beaumont, Texas, public school systems, and during the summer vacation periods continued his study of music appreciation, English, and Spanish.

It was at Hampton Institute, Va., that he first met and later studied with the late Dr. R. Nathaniel Dett, one of America's most beloved and outstanding composers. Under Dr. Dett, he took an advanced course of study in piano and choral conducting.

Sergeant Patterson has been a member of the 25th Infantry since 1940 when he joined the regiment at its home station in Fort Huachuca, Ariz. It was there he met Chaplain (Maj.) John A. DeVeaux who was then and is still regimental chaplain. It was then, also, that he assumed the position as regimental organist which he has held through the years.

When Col. Le Grande A. Diller, commanding officer of the 25th Infantry, requested the organization of a 25th Infantry chorus, it was Sgt. Patterson who recruited, rehearsed, and brought to the fore the outstanding organization which has added another triumph to Fort Benning's many successes.

Krupa, 18-Piece Orchestra Play NCO Dance Sunday

The ace drummer man, Gene Krupa, with his 18-piece orchestra and two vocalists, will make an appearance on the Post Sunday night when he plays at the Post Non-commissioned Officers' club from 7:30 to 11:30 p. m., it was announced this week by First Sgt. Charles W. Lowe, president of the club.

The show will be broadcast from 10:30 to 11 p. m. on station WDAK in Columbus, and the featured vocalists for the evening will be Buddy Hughes and Dolores Hawkins.

Members of the Post NCO club can bring one female guest to the dance Sunday, Sergeant Lowe announced, and can purchase tickets from a limited supply at two dollars each for other guests. The tickets will be on sale at the club anytime this week.

Krupa, known as the "kid with the heat-beat," has played many outstanding engagements including shows at Meadowbrook in Cedar Grove, N. J.; the Sherman hotel in Chicago; Palladium in Hollywood; and the 400 Club in New York.

Although he first sat at the drums when he was 13, his big breaks started in 1929 when he joined Red Nichols in New York and played in the revue, "Strike Up the Band." In 1934 he landed with Benny Goodman, and stayed there until the time was right to step out and organize his own group which has hit big time success with no trouble at all.

Krupa is reported to lose as much as three pounds in a day's playing, and he has to eat like a farm hand to maintain his weight of 142 pounds. He has ruined so many suits with perspiration that he's lost count. A health and exercise authority measured Krupa's exertion during a jam session, and declared his drumming compared with a five-minute handball game at top speed, a 14-foot pole vault, a six-foot high jump, or a 24-foot broad jump. Two swing numbers in a row, as Krupa plays them, are more enervating than a mile run or four line plunges on the football field.

Our last Christmas story for 1947 concerns the children's Christmas party, which was sponsored by the Lawson field NCO club on December 21 for children of all enlisted personnel of the base. The club really opened its heart and its check book to provide a big treat for approximately 125 children. In addition to a splendid toy each child received a giant Christmas stocking jammed with good things to eat and small toys. Santa Claus was the guest of honor at the party. He arrived by plane, and base operations informed the kids of his arrival through Chaplain John Bryden, who assisted Santa in passing out the gifts. S-Sgt. John Burniston (with the aid of a few pillows) was responsible for a delightful imitation of the he-whiskered old gentleman from the North Pole. The youngsters were also entertained with movie comedies, Christmas stories told by Chaplain Bryden, and an ice cream and cookie feast.

Locals Face Road Tour Next Week

Most of the coming week's basketball activity will take place on foreign soil, but the inspired Tallismen will make one appearance on the home court Monday night when the Doughboys play host to the Parris Island Marines. The skirmish with the Leathernecks will be the first meeting between the two quintets this season.

Last Monday night the locals played their first game for Post fans since the turn of the New Year, and showed much improvement in rallying to defeat the Tyndall field Tornadoes, 43-40, in a thriller.

Although the Benning quintet was without the services of Bob Seibert and Bob Ward, Coach Tallis put an inspired team on the floor. Although slow starting, they finished in a blaze of power that has heretofore been lacking. Tallis, deciding that his center-pivot offense was not clicking, revamped his attack over the holiday, and employed a round-the-clock assault against the Floridians. Then, too, a change in the defense, a switch to a zone, brought about surprising results. With the help of Harold Haberman and Bob Ward, the locals were able to hold their foes to seven baskets in the second half, and thereby go on to win behind the sharp shooting of Harold Corizzi.

New Leader

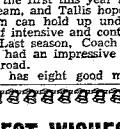
Corizzi, who has been in the top bracket with the scorers, soared to a considerable margin as the basket-making leader. Haberman, who had led the Doughs most of the season, relinquished his top notch position to Corizzi as a result of Monday night's fracas.

Haberman, playing his best defensive game of the year, fell short in his shooting as did Doug Scovil, but both men will probably be back to normal when they get on the road this week.

As was pointed out, the Doughs will play only one home game this week, but will play four games away. Tomorrow night, the Jacksonville Navy courtmen play host to Benning at the Navy gym, and Saturday the Doughs journey South to meet Green Cove Springs.

To Play Marines

The Parris Island game, slated for the Main Post gym, will divide the road trip, but the Doughs will be off again the next day to meet a vaunted Troy State Teachers college five, and then down to Pensacola to tangle with the Navy Flyers.



Next week's play on the road will be the first this year for the home team, and Tallis hopes that his team can hold up under the strain of intensive and continuous travel. Last season, Coach Tallis' charges had an impressive record on the road.

Tallis has eight good men he can call on, but reserves are sadly lacking on the squad. Haberman, Kinard, Corizzi, and Scovil are all good shots, and Harold Lutz, although not a precision shot, is a superlative player on defense. Bill Weber has shown great improvement since the beginning of the season, and has developed a very fine shot from the basket's sides. Bob Henderson, a rangy center and forward and a lad that was the big gun on the airborne team, has been a valuble mainstay for the Doughs. Henderson ranks high in the scoring standings.

Tallis continues to impress his team with the importance of precision passing and faking. Passing has picked up considerably, but is still shaky under the basket. Tallis has outlined a fine break offense, but it has been ineffective too many times because the players have failed to look down court on many occasions. The head mentor hopes to have his break-away offense smoothed out in a few days.

The team that whipped Tyndall field Monday night was an inspired group over the team that had been playing before the holidays. There's still a long way to go before tournament time, and Tallis is confident that his team is capable of attaining an efficiency needed for a good showing.

3. For what baseball teams will the following men play in 1948: Stan Spence, Jeff Heath, Red Embree, Eddie Stanky?
4. Can you name the two major league records set by Ralph Kiner in 1947?

3. Spence has been traded to the Boston Red Sox, Heath to the Braves, and Embree to the Yankees. Stanky, however, remains with Brooklyn.

Airborne Gym Set For Huge Sport Program

As a mecca for athletic and physical training enthusiasts, the Airborne battalion gymnasium is becoming increasingly popular.

Basketball, volleyball, boxing and wrestling are among the sports which attract troopers in numbers sometimes as high as 200 per week end. In addition to facilities for sports, the gym also offers its guests steaming hot "massage action" showers, individual lockers, cokes, up-to-the-minute news display, and a quiet lounge furnished with overstuffed furniture and soft indirect lighting and supplied with the latest newspapers and magazines.

Although the airborne athletic program is principally for the benefit of the average individual, the gymnasium is also used for training purposes by more outstanding in the world of sports. Among them is Sgt. Jack Luse, Olympic track prospect, who was originally lured to the gym by the "special showers and rub-down tables."

Beginning with the New Year, instead of confining its off-duty schedule to Wednesdays and week ends, the airborne gymnasium threw open its doors on a daily off-duty basis in an effort to satisfy the growing demand for more play time.

Ward, Seibert Leave Benning

Fort Benning, and particularly cage mentor Ced Tallis, suffered the loss of two able men during the Christmas holidays when Bob Seibert and Bob Ward left the Post via the Old Road of discharge.

Both Seibert and Ward were outstanding gridders on the football team this past season, and both were engaged in basketball when their army careers ended.

Ward, picked by his coaches and teammates alike as the "Player of the Year," was one of the finest guards ever to play for a Fort Benning team, while Seibert, a letterman for two straight years with Post elevens, played superlative football week after week.

Post In Line For Big Track Meet

At the present time, there is a big question mark as to where the Army Air Force Track and Field meet will be held.

Some weeks ago Fort Benning was given first consideration as the favorable site for the huge affair. The chief of special services in Washington recently issued a memorandum explaining that the vicinity of San Antonio, Tex., was being given much thought now, and that the situation was far from decided.

APPLICATIONS DESIRED FOR POST BOXING TEAM

Applications for a post boxing team have been made available to all personnel at Fort Benning through their organizations, it was announced today.

Under the coaching of Jim Wilson the leather-pushing program is expected to begin with inter-team bouts here, and then continue with contests with other Army and Air Force installations in the area.

Pointing for victory in the Third Army boxing tournament in March brings a definite goal within sight of the gladiators. Victors in the area contest will be eligible for the All-Army tournament to be held at Fort Sheridan, Illinois from June 1-20.

"We want men who will be interested in boxing and in representing their post in what we hope will be the launching of new honors for the athletic program at Fort Benning," Wilson stated.

"We want to know the man's weight and experience. But experience is not necessary for qualification on the team. I want to make that clear. We know that if the right men come out, we can have the greatest boxing team this post has ever seen. Applications can be obtained in company orderly rooms and should be submitted to the athletic office," he concluded.

Bowling Tourney Set For Tuesday

Although Ced Tallis and his Doughboy basketeers will be on the road a great deal of the time next week, there will be plenty of sports activities around the Post with the biggest item the Third Army bowling tournament which will begin next Tuesday night at the Post alleys.

Besides the high scoring Doughboy keglers, Fort McPherson, of Atlanta; Fort Bragg, N. C., the Florida Military District; and the "Volunteers" of the Tennessee ORC instructors, will also enter teams in the annual bowling competition.

The Post keglers, in the defending champion category this year, are led by an ace pinman, Capt. Arnie L. Millican, the team's high average scorer. Millican boasts an impressive game mean of 180, and last season aggregated one of the highest scores in Post loops when he buckled the woden pins with a devastating 265.

Millican, acting team captain, will have the services of many of the members of last year's champion team, and will get the top seeding in the tourney.

Such men as Bob Burns, Bob Zeigler, Bob Short, and Joe Patti are well known in Post bowling circles, and were all members of the Third Army champs of 1947. Burns' average is second to Millican's at 177, while Ziegler and Patti follow closely behind with respective averages of 175 and 174. Short's mean total 168. Ewell Knuth, Jesse Wheeler and Walter Carlock round off the local's aggregation.

The four-day tourney is slated to wind up Friday night when the trophies to the winner and runner-up teams will be awarded. What precedes the presentation of the awards promises to be one of the most thrilling bowling tournaments on the post in many seasons.

Benning's close military neighbor, Fort McPherson, of Atlanta, will bring along an eight-man team that is coached by Gene Martina. Although the Atlantans have not participated in any major competition this season, they are rumored to have a very fine team, and may present a definite threat to the defending champions, the Fort Benning Doughboys.

Fort Bragg will bring substantially the same squad that represented the North Carolina post last year. Their eight-man team consists of Joe Batola, Fred Alexander, Prentiss Wells, Bill Gates, Al Watson, Jim Fleming and Jim Ronerson. Fort Bragg has always been a big power in any and all Third Army competition. Their most recent appearance on the Post occurred when the Braggonians lost out to a strong Doughboy baseball team at Gowdy field for the Third Army diamond crown.

Two new teams are making their joint debut as far as Fort Benning is concerned. The Florida Military District and the Tennessee ORC instructors are sending teams for participation in the competition.

Post School Units End Gridiron Play

The Headquarters and Headquarters company team came through with the punch of champions in outscoring its opponents 228-38 in the School Troops touch football tournament play-off held over the Christmas holidays.

Starting on the company level they took Company C to the tune of 36 to 18, then, in order, company A 18-0, Company D 36-0, and Company B 42 to 6.

Sparked by Craver and Scott's passing and receiving this jaugernaut machine bowed out the 756th Tank battalion 42-6 and the 204th Transportation Truck battalion 30-0. Their last opponent, made up from the Special Unit battalion with players mostly from the 548th Airborne regiment, fell 24 to 8.

BAYONET SPORTS EDITOR

Well, the hum-drum of holiday activities have about come to an end, and most of the personnel here have settled down to the serious business of getting the New Year started in the right fashion.

Everybody agrees that the holidays were fine, but judging from various comments, most parties are delighted that the rush of Yuletide and the New Year is over for another year.

Football came to quite a finish, particularly in the West. Because of Michigan's remarkable feat in defeating Southern Cal 49-0, many of the nation's sports writers turned about and changed their decision of the best team in the country.

Of course, the original poll, which picked Notre Dame, will stand up even against the cry of such resounding complaints that came from every corner of the United States. The Rose Bowl game was a Post-season affair, and really shouldn't be the medium, as many writers have pointed out. But it is accepted that the Wolverines were out to better the score the Irish had run up.

Some weeks ago, if you will recall, I mentioned that the comparative scores of the Notre Dame-Southern Cal game and the result of the Rose Bowl might be the deciding factor in choosing the No. 1 team in the country. I was a bit surprised when the poll was taken before the Rose Bowl game was played, but, as I said, many, very many, of the sports writers turned about and changed their opinions.

It was a great season of football. Already the forecasters are predicting just what schools will have the strength next year. I have a point to bring up about that item, too. I heard, from the lips of a reliable source, that Kentucky had journeyed up to Ohio recently, with a wagon full of money, and walked off with six of the All-Ohio high school football players. This source also disclosed that a personal friend of his was among the lads who have "decided" to play for the Wildcats next year. This same lad had always wanted to go to Notre Dame, but how could he turn down a good scholarship? There has been a great deal of talk in papers about the subsidizing of players, and that little story really gives a good insight into the picture. Watch Kentucky next year, and trace the home of many of their players, particularly freshmen.

Well, I suppose those states like Ohio and Michigan and West Virginia can give up some ball players. I would venture to say that they have enough material up there to supply the Southeastern Conference.

While on the subject of football, it might be of note to inform all sports enthusiasts that Glenn Davis, former All-America halfback from Army, arrived Monday night. Davis will be here for a 22-week infantry course. Asked about his plans, Mr. Outside did not have much to say about himself, but did answer that he planned to play baseball while on the Post. Davis was a top-notch centerfielder as a cadet at the Academy.

Ced Tallis and his basketball team got off on the right foot Monday night when they clipped the Tyndall field quintet 43-40. Word got around that Tallis had made but one New Year's resolution, and that was to put a winning ball club on the floor from here on out.

If the Doughs continue to play the same brand of basketball for the remainder of the season they exhibited against the Floridians Monday night, it is safe to say that the Doughboys of 1947-48 will have another good season.

The Third Army bowling tournament gets underway Tuesday night with five teams competing for the crown. The Doughboy bowlers will be led by Capt. James Millican this year. Millican is the high scorer for the keglers this season; his average stands at an impressive 180.

* * *

Boxing will about wind up the discussion for the week. The A&R office is still crying for men to come out for the pugilist sport. Elaborate plans have been made to make this the biggest boxing season in many years at Fort Benning, and it is hoped that any interested parties will contact the Infantry Center athletic officer.

Tallismen Subdue Tyndall Field Five

Fort Benning's determined Doughboy cagers turned the tables on a fiery Tyndall field quintet Monday night, when the Tallismen staged a savage second half attack and not only overcame a 25-19 intermission deficit but went on in a blaze of glory to open the New Year with a hard-fought 43-40 victory.

The high scoring Harold Corizzi found his range midway in the last stanza, and paced his soldier teammates to their well earned victory. Corizzi, with his dazzling exhibition, dropped in seven baskets from the floor, and added three more from the foul line, in scoring 17 markers, enough to give him top honors for the evening. It was the fire of Corizzi that blazed the way for the Doughboy attack, for with Corizzi's shooting and the devastating defensive play of Harold Haberman and Bob Kinard, the Dougs held the Floridians to only 14 markers in the last half.

Fast Moving Game

A thrill-packed tilt, with plenty of fast moving action, describes Monday night's tussel. It was the Doughs' first appearance since the turn of the new year, and it was the first game Tallis has employed his new offense and defense.

Although the newly employed offense was slow in the opening minutes of the game, Doughboy courtmen were red-hot by the time the intermission whistle sounded.

Tyndall field, known as the "Tornadoes," lived up to their nick-name in the first half, holding the Benning five completely at bay until minutes before the half ended. They further stretched their lead in the third period when a burst of cross fire saw the lower-Statemen jump to a 31-21 advantage.

Corizzi Rolls

But it was then that Corrizi began to roll, and the "Tornadoes" lost much of their damaging power from that point on. The Doughs commenced their rapid climb upwards, and when the three-minute gun was heard by the 300 watchful fans, the refusing Doughboys were out in front 39-38. Doug Scovil and Bob Kinard sunk two fast ones, and with almost two minutes remaining in the battle, the locals had finished their scoring.

Led by the ever agile Haberman, the locals staged a game of delay, holding the ball until the game's end.

Haberman Off

Corizzi and Haberman made a spectacular combo in the Doughs' initial performance of 1948. Although Haberman, usually a high scorer, was off with his shots, his great defensive play and the work off the back board surpassed by far any of his past achievements in defense. Corizzi supplied the points, and Haberman was the big gun in keeping the opponents away from the home basket. Bob Geist, veteran cager and former Ohio State star, captured the praise of many for his sharp shooting and cool-headedness during the bitterly contended game. Geist, sinking shots from impossible angles, led his team's scoring with 13 points.

In the night's preliminary tilt, a Doughboy B squad surprised the vaunted Goo-Goo quintet 44-41. Wolf, of the Goo Goo, and Al Ratner, of the Doughs, shared the scoring laurels, each chalking up 16 markers.

Lawson Initiates Ground Safety Slogan Contest

Safety jingles are making pockets jangle at Lawson field since the opening of the ground safety slogan contest on January 6.

The interesting and profitable contest, which was initiated by Col. Gilbert T. Collier, base commander, to arouse interest in the importance of ground safety, is open to all military and civilian personnel of the base, and offers weekly and monthly cash prizes.

Slogan examples: 1. Machinists, would you run Alcatraz without guards? 2. You're never so GOOD you can afford to be careless!

Dough Keglers Drop Decision

The Montgomery Rebels took a five-game total pin fall bowling match from the Fort Benning Doughboy B's last Sunday at Montgomery when the Rebels topped the locals, 4,614 to 4,449.

Crysel of the Rebels, was the high scorer of the match, averaging a neat 1,007 for five games, and also took individual honors when he buckled the pins with a smashing 257 for a single game. Bob Short, veteran Benning bowler, tallied the highest score for the losers with a 222, but Bob Burns captured the match laurels with 925.

The Doughs made the highest score for a single game when the Post keglers took the third stanza, 982-869.

The return engagement will be rolled on the Post bowling alleys on Jan. 11, it was announced early this week.

Benning Bowmen Hold Successful Boar Hunt

One of the most successful boar hunts of the season came to a colossal close last Sunday when the Benning Bowmen returned from their two-day hunt decorated with the tusks of two big boars.

Lt. Col. Richard Mays, the club's new governor, drew first blood Saturday afternoon when he tagged a 200 pounder decisively in the wooded area around Jamestown and First Division roads. Capt. Jim Eliot, another marksman archer, belted the second Sunday afternoon, after chasing his vicious prey from a thicket, and brought home the biggest loot of the day, a beautifully tusked 300-pound boar.

It was of note that both boars were killed under identical circumstances. Col. Mays related that while there was a considerable number of archers on the hunt, the boars were killed singlehandedly since the killing came under such remarkable conditions. It happened that as Col. Mays was returning to the parked vehicles Saturday afternoon, he ran almost into his unsuspecting prey, and had him floored minutes later.

The following afternoon, Eliot, together with the hunting party, had surrounded a thicket that was housing a pair of boars. As one escaped, Eliot took up the chase, while the other bowmen stayed behind in hopes of snagging the dormant animal. After an exciting chase, the expert archer, Eliot, loosed his arrow into the boar that he had cornered, and summoned for help in assisting the return of the booty.

Col. Mays related that it was a very fine hunt and that all had enjoyed it greatly. Col. Mays also said, "We hope to schedule another one in about two weeks," but couldn't say definitely whether it will be arranged.

Archery, as the club's governor pointed out, is a sport that takes a great deal of skill in that no firearms are employed. As Mays put it archery "puts hunting on a different level . . . makes it more sporting."

He also brought forward the fact that it is difficult to kill an animal as large as a boar since their hides are so tough. "It is almost impossible to kill one with a single arrow," Mays explained.

Asked about the progress the club had made, Mays replied that it was coming on splendidly, but the response hasn't been as good as had been expected. The club embraces all persons interested in the sport, Colonel Mays explained. He is anxious for any and all parties that have a yen for archery to come out to the range on week-ends.

Bowl Classics Present Doubts

Some weeks ago, most of the notable sports scribes of the nation acclaimed Frank Leahy's Fighting Irish eleven as the No. 1 football team in America today, but last Thursday, New Year's day, at Pasadena, Calif., some 93,000 Rose Bowl spectators rose up in protest and answered the decision with a like number of contemptuous "Oh Yeah's."

The reason for the bitter rebuttal on the part of these 93,000 shocked people was quite simple. Indeed, it must have been warranted, for that tremendous crowd, a crowd that had literally been collected from every corner of this immense nation, had witnessed one of the most smashing defeats in the history of football. Michigan, the winner of the Big Nine title, the contender for the mythical National Championship, the team that Fritz Crisler had appraised as the best he had ever coached, had annihilated the West Coast Champions, Southern California, 49-0.

Hot Contests

New Year's Day was a day of many hotly contested ball games. Some winners had to pray hard until the final gun, others had to take advantage of the last minute breaks to insure their victory, and some others ended in deadlocks. But at Pasadena, the assault of the devastating Wolverines from Ann Arbor, Michigan, was so complete and so decisive that the publicized California sun shrunk behind the clouds in utter humiliation, while the nightmares of Jeff Cravath, Trojan mentor, rose to preposterous magnitudes. The "blitzkreig" of Hitler's armies in the early years of World War II was no more impressive than the power, speed, and precision of the Michigan force that was witnessed on the first day of 1948 at Pasadena.

Aside from the many records that Michigan smashed, the football world, for the first time in how many years, saw what might be considered an invincible team.

Which Is Better?

So great was the shock of Southern Cal's defeat that the Associated Press has decided to take a re-count of sports writers as to their opinions about the best team in his nation. Jan. 4 an AP release, began like this "Which is the better team, Michigan or Notre Dame?" From that point, the correspondant went on to speak of the "hot stove" of controversy over the big question. In the most recent poll of writers the edge favored Notre Dame . . . now, it is evident that many of the ideas on the question have been altered.

Of course, the only way of really determining the better team would be a scheduled game between the two schools. That is out of the question at the present time. But the question, in reality, is one that will go unsolved in the minds of many, many interested persons.

Beyond a shadow of a doubt, the best bowl games of the day were played in the South and the Midwest. Georgia Tech, fighting for a victory in the Orange Bowl, had to recover a last minute fumble on its goal line to insure their victory over Kansas. Kansas had pushed all the way to the Tech six-inch line, but their costly fumble provided Tech's chances.

SMU-Penn State Tie

SMU and Penn State swapped halves and ended in a 13-13 draw before 47,000 Cotton Bowl fans, while Georgia flew rapidly from behind to deadlock the Old Liners from Maryland 20-20 in the Gator Bowl.

Probably the best game, as far as thrills and hard fighting football is concerned, was the clash between Bobby Lane and his Longhorn compatriots and the Crimson Tide from Alabama. Alabama, hailed as the comeback eleven of the Southeastern Conference, ran afoul of the talented Bobby Lane, the fair-haired boy of Texas, and went down, swinging feet, by the score of 28-7.

Pre-game dope had it that Alabama was on an even par with the Longhorns, but a group of hefty and shifty Texans had a different idea about the situation. Some say that the score should have been 40-0, while others explain that a last quarter let-down by Alabama, together with the desperation passing of Harry Gilmer, ruined the Tide's chances for a victory.

But the fact remains, that the Midwest and the Southwest ended the football drama as the strongest teams in the land, the medium for comparing the top grid aggregation's throughout the country.

Cut Off Games

Michigan and Notre Dame have come to such prominence, and have reached such heights in precision and deadliness on the gridiron, that they are having a difficult time, and that's a conservative statement, finding schools to play them. Army and Georgia Tech, long rivals of the Irish, have severed their annual games with Notre Dame; others are trying to find a way out, too. Ohio State, humiliated by Michigan for four straight years, yearns for a face-saving outlet from their yearly clash with the Wolverines. The big question today is simply this: Just how good can those two teams get? Most agree that both have surpassed the great Army of recent years. Notre Dame proved that when she deadlocked the Cadets in 1946.

Football on the Pacific Coast has deteriorated something below the tolerable level. The Rose Bowl will lose its precedent in not too many years unless something is done about it. The Sugar Bowl, and the Orange Bowl are all planning more improvements. Just this year, the Orange Bowl added thousands of seats and now can accomodate 60,000 people.

What does it all mean? The nation got pretty hot when that contract with the Midwest was signed, a contract that stipulated that only the winner of the Big Nine title could accept, or even get, a bid to the Rose Bowl. What happens to the competition? To what will the other teams out of the "Select Nine" look to. Very simple, the other bowls throughout the country.

It's high time somebody revamped the entire set-up, and after the 49-0 affair at Pasadena, it is believed that somebody, or even some big group, will do something about that situation.

The cover is closed now, and final, on the Book of Football for this season. What is in store for next year no one knows.

GI HUMOR—

The owner of a big furniture store was in New York to buy some stock, and he met a really beautiful girl in the hotel elevator. But she was French and they couldn't understand a word of each other's language. So he took out a pencil and note book and drew a sketch of a taxi. She nodded her head and laughed and they went for a ride in the park. Then he drew a picture of a table in a restaurant with a question mark and she nodded. They went to dinner. After dinner he sketched two dancers and she was delighted. They went to a fancy night club and had a wonderful evening dancing. At length she asked for his pencil and pad. Obtaining same she immediately drew a picture of a four poster bed. He was dumbfounded. He to this day has never been able to figure out how she ever knew he was in the furniture business.

Analyst Arrives During January

Mark M. Riegel, personnel research analyst of the Adjutant General's Office, Department of the Army, Washington, D. C., is scheduled to arrive here January 26 to conduct a study of the Food Service School in conjunction with the new Army career plan.

The entire field of Army jobs is being surveyed, and each of them is being assigned to a field of specialization in which all jobs of a like nature are being placed. A tentative listing of the various career fields of specialization has been compiled by the Department of the Army, with emphasis on function instead of branch.

During his visit to the Food Service School here, Mr. Riegel will conduct validation studies of technical proficiency tests for MOSs in the food service field. These technical proficiency tests are designed for use in the Career Guidance Plan for enlisted personnel.

These studies will involve administering the tests in the pertinent MOSs and comparing the information obtained with information concerning the performance of the men in their jobs.

A corporal hauled a man into a police station and charged him with lifting his wallet. "I'm guilty, Judge," confessed the man, "Please give me a sentence and a divorce, too."

"Why a divorce?" asked the Judge

"I opened the corporal's wallet," said the defendent, "and the only thing I found in it was three pictures of my wife."

Trio Leaves Soon For Staff College

The Infantry School is slated to lose three members of its staff when Col. Charles E. Beauchamp, Lt. Col. Benjamin T. Ammons, and Lt. Col. John D. Cone leave late this month to attend the Armed Forces staff college at Norfolk, Va.

Colonel Beauchamp, chief of the training literature and visual aids section, arrived in October, 1945, to serve as chairman of the attack committee of the tactical section. In July, 1946, he was named chief of training literature and visual aids.

A graduate of West Point class of 1930, Colonel Beauchamp served in the G-3 section of Headquarters, European Theater of Operations during the past war.

Colonel Ammons, executive officer of the weapons section, who served with the Tennessee National Guard for 15 years prior to entering active duty in 1940 with the 30th division, served with that same division during the war until it was deactivated in 1945. He came to Fort Benning in 1946 from Fort Bragg, N. C., where he was commanding officer of the 804th Replacement Depot. Colonel Ammons acted as weapons section suply officer for six months before assuming his present duties as executive officer.

Colonel Cone, chairman of the intelligence committee and an instructor at the Infantry School, arrived at Fort Benning in July, 1947, from the E.T.O. He served with the 65th division during combat in the Rhineland and Central Germany, and also saw duty with the Third Army.

The three officers will be placed on permanent change status following the completion of the five months course at the Armed Forces Staff college.

Recruit Caravan Now On 2-Week Alabama Tour

Embarking on its third trip since its organization, the School Troops Recruiting Caravan left January 8 on a two-week tour of central Alabama.

Other tours covering towns in Georgia have proved so successful in stimulating enlistments that the Birmingham Recruiting Director has requested a special tour to include towns in that area, officials said.

Three new members have been added to the caravan's roster for the present tour. They are T-Sgt. Andrew A. Boland, T-Sgt. Edwin L. Skeeter, and T-4 John P. Stocken. T-Sgt. Leo G. Kelley is again in charge of the caravan.

Sgt. Boland, 378th Ordnance company, is carried as public information clerk. A graduate of Central high school in Scranton, Pa., he also attended the Army Information School at Carlisle Barracks, Pa., and the Army Engineering School at South Dakota State college under the ASTP training program.

Sgt. Poland participated in the campaigns of Ardennes, Alsace, Central Germany, and the Rhineland with the 101st Infantry regiment of the 26th division. He was held prisoner-of-war from the time of the special tour to Le until his liberation at Cologne.

Sgt. Skeeter, 121st Evacuation hospital, 30th Medical group, entered the service in 1934. He was recently transferred from the Station island area hospital to a similar assignment as mess steward here. Skeeter served with the Army of Occupation with the 51st Military Police battalion in Korea.

Hailing from Swagersville, Pa., T-4 Stocken, 325th Infantry regiment, has been appointed mess steward of the caravan. A graduate of Tripps high school, Swag-

New Courses Get Underway

The first in a new series of six Reserve and National Guard indoctrination courses got under way at the Infantry School Tuesday with 64 officers, representing practically every branch of the Army, in attendance.

A continuation of those held here in the past, the new series will serve as refresher courses. Each will last two weeks, with two-week intervals between sessions.

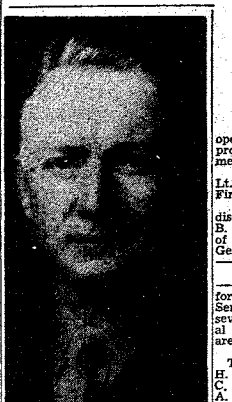
The course is open to all commissioned members of the Army with an attendance ranging from colonels to second lieutenants. The two-week sessions are offered to bring Reserve and National Guard officers up to date on the organization of civilian components and policies of the Department of the Army, plus latest weapons and infantry tactics as demonstrated at the Infantry School.

The group will also be briefed on the latest methods of instruction.

Exchange Explains Reason For Price Increase On Candy

For those who have been griping about the hike in prices of the large chocolate bars to 20 cents, Army Exchange Service Headquarters has an explanation.

Since the first of the year spiraling wholesale costs have pushed the price up on several PX items, including the favorite chocolate bar. The job of keeping prices on these popular bars has been a tough one, as revealed by PX Headquarters. The new price is not an increase, it is merely passing on to the customer some of the increased cost price, it was pointed out. PX officials want it emphasized that there is no incerase in PX profit as a result of this change.



So the next time you have to plunk down 20 cents for the big chocolate bar, remember the cost of ingredients have gone up 360 per cent, yet the popular confection at the PX has gone up only 17 per cent.

TURKEY FORD OPENS

Normandy Field Quiet Following Final Jump

Cries of "Geronimo!" no longer will echo in the environs of time-honored Normandy field across the Chattahoochee river in Alabama, for the traditional jumping ground for fledgling troopers has been returned to its native condition as Turkey Ford field opened for students of the Airborne battalion.

Turkey Ford, near the Infantry School rest camp, was prepared for the first jumper by Post engineers by the morning of December 20. The first foot struck the earth before noon of the same day as Lt. Col. David P. Schorr, Airborne battalion executive officer, landed to open officially the field for use. His name was drawn from a hat.

"The Featherbed," as Normandy field has become known, has been used since early 1944 as the drop zone for qualifying parachutists. It acquired that nickname because of its plowed earth which was never allowed to re-pack. The former peanut field, as tradition has it, was further plowed by the feet of the more than 62,000 jumpers who made more than 350,000 parachute jumps there.

Named in honor of the invasion jumps in France, Normandy field is the ground upon which more parachutists have landed than on any other field in the United States, and possibly in the world. The last group of students to qualify upon this field made its final jump on December 19.

Officials of the Airborne battalion stated that the changover from Normandy field to Turkey Ford was made because of difficulties in crossing the Chattahoochee river by pontoon bridge when the water was high.

and sent overseas in 1943 to North Africa.

He later participated in campaigns in southern and northern Italy with the 88th "Blue Devil" division, which was the first to enter Rome, and liberated the Italian capital in June, 1944. After three months service with the Army Ground Forces in Washington, Colonel Davidson returned to Europe —his fourth overseas assignment—where he remained until the end of the war.

Colonel Davidson arrived at Fort Benning in the summer of 1947 from Fort Sill, Oklahoma, where he was a member of the staff of the Field Artillery School. He left here January 5, and will be joined by his wife, Edis, and his two daughters, Betty and Jane, before he sails for Italy sometime in June.

Lawson Sergeant Gets New Duties

T-Sgt. Earl Keel, Jr., has been named S-1 sergeant major to succeed M-Sgt. James A. Vance, Lawson field officials have announced. He was originally finance clerk, and served in that capacity for 15 months.

He entered the service in October, 1942, and attended the Air Force Administration school in the early part of 1943 at Chillicothie, Mo. He left for the CBI in February, 1944, serving with the 10th and 14th Air Forces, returning to the states in January, 1946.

Enlisted Committee Recently Appointed Board Members

A committee of enlisted men has recently been appointed by the Fort Benning Army Exchange to serve on its advisory board for 1948.

The committee includes M/Sgt. Drew G. Jones, Squadron A, 319th AAF Base unit; M/Sgt. Henry D. Settles, Service company, 325th Infantry regiment; M/Sgt. Joseph H. Jenne, AGF board No. 3; M/Sgt. James A. Broadwater, Company A, ISD; 1/Sgt. Ernest W. Scruggs, Headquarters and Headquarters company, STR, and T/Sgt. Charles H. Motto, Headquarters company, Second battalion, 25th Infantry regiment.

The committee members, who meet once a month, serve as representatives of their respective organizations. A report is made by the members to the Army Exchange office on complaints or suggestions that will enable the Army Exchange to function more satisfactorily, officials said.

Captain Alley Assigned Unit's Education Chief

A member of the organization since July 1946, Capt. Alley was commanding officer of Battery A, before his assignment as liaison officer. During the war he served with the 82nd Airborne division as commander of a parachute artillery battery in the ETO.

Colors Presented To Benning Units

Two of Fort Benning's newest organizations, the 325th Infantry regiment and the 319th Field Artillery battalion, received the colors of their units last Saturday in impressive ceremonies at Stilwell field.

Addresses Troops

"The men of the Infantry School," Gen. Shepard said in an address to the troops, "have just been presented with the standards of the 325th Infantry regiment and its component unit, the 319th Field Artillery battalion. Together these two organizations make a combat team.

"These are the colors of the soldiers of the United States Army. They have led the fight from Valley Forge to the bloody beaches of Normandy and to the bitter campaigns of Central Europe. They are your colors. Protect them, cherish them, defend them."

The colors of the 325th Infantry regiment carry battle streamers for Ste Mihiel, Meuse-Argonne, Lorraine, Normandy, Sicily, Naples-Foggia, the Rhineland, the Ardennes, and the campaign of Central Europe as well as the Distinguished Unit citation and the regimental Combat Infantry standard.

In the bitter fighting from landings at Casablanca and jumps in Sicily, Italy, France, and Germany, the 325th Infantry regiment received the following decorations:

Lists Decorations

A Congressional Medal of Honor, nine Distinguished Service crosses, two awards of the Legion of Merit, three Soldiers' medals, 88 Silver Stars, four British Military medals, three Croix de Guerre, one for army, one for division, and the third for regiment, 211 Bronze Stars with "V" for valor, and 12 battlefield commissions.

The 319th Field Artillery battalion has received a Presidential Unit citation with cluster, the Belgian Fourragere, the Netherlands orange lanyard, and the French Fourragere. The battalion participated in the campaigns of the Ardennes, Central Europe, Normandy, the Rhineland, and Sicily. In addition the unit received a bronze arrowhead for participation in the Nijmegan-Arnheim operations.

Monroe Attending Monmouth School

Former commanding officer of Headquarters and Headquarters battery, 319th Field Artillery battalion, Captain Frank V. Monroe, has departed to attend a 13-week course at the Associate Basic Signal and Radio School, Fort Monmouth, N. J.

Captain Monroe has commanded Headquarters and Headquarters battery since May 1946, when it was then known as the Field Artillery battalion and later designated as the 83rd Field Artillery battalion.

He served two years overseas in the Philippines and New Guinea, and has been awarded the Bronze Star, Asiatic-Pacific Theater ribbon with three battle stars, American Defense ribbon, and Philippin Liberation ribbon with one star.

Capt. Tucker To Attend Sill's Artillery School

Captain William O. Tucker, Jr., liaison officer of the 319th Field Artillery battalion, is scheduled to leave soon to attend Associate Basic course No. 2 at the Artillery School, Fort Sill, Oklahoma.

Captain Tucker joined the 319th late in November, 1947, after 43 months service in Europe. Upon completion of the 13-week course, which commences January 23, Capt. Tucker will return to his organization.

"Did you take French in college?"

Captain Stanley Joins 11th Airborne Division

Capt. Felix W. Stanley, formerly commanding officer of the Airborne battalion's Company E, has left for duty with the 11th Airborne division in Japan, officials have announced.

Captain Stanley, a member of the Airborne battalion since Feb. 14, 1946, has been replaced by Capt. Raymond H. Neilson, formerly executive officer of Headquarters and Service company.

NOW IN THIRD WEEK

Class B-8 of the Airborne battalion's Company F entered its third week of training last Monday with 96 enlisted men and seven officers enrolled.

Benning Youth Returns To Train In 'Back Yard'

Pfc. George L. Weaver, 18-year-old airborne student is now training in his own back yard. Born at the Fort Benning Station hospital in 1930, Weaver spent ten years of his childhood in an NCO house in the area now occupied by the parachute drop towers.

"When the Weavers moved out, the paratroopers moved in," Weaver said. "Now I have moved in with the paratroopers. It felt like old home week when I first reported for airborne training right in my own back yard."

Weaver is not only a native Benningite, but a thoroughbred Army brat. His father, Loyd L. Weaver, who is now enjoying a sportsman's life deep in Missouri's game country, spent 30 years in the service and retired several years ago as a master sergeant. George is the youngest of three brothers—also in the Army.

Further, four of his uncles donned Army garb for an active career, two of whom have since retired. Not only that, George claims his grandfather was not the first of the Weavers under arms for Uncle Sam. "Ever since the United States had an Army there has been a Weaver or two in the ranks," he said.

Now well into his second year of Army service, Weaver intends to acquire what he maintains is the outstanding symbol on the Weaver family coat of arms—ten hash marks!

Before his assignment here, Weaver spent a year overseas with the 88th division. He volunteered for airborne training, and was transferred to the 82nd Airborne division at Fort Bragg, N. C. Shortly after his transfer to the 82nd, he was assigned to the Airborne Training battalion, and is now in his fourth week of training.

Three Alabamans Join Benning Unit

Three Alabama men have joined the ranks of the 319th Field Artillery battalion, it was announced today.

They include T-4 Joe T. Armstrong, Troy; Pfc. Madison L. Davis, Goshen; and Sgt. Mike W. Goode, Anniston. All have been assigned to Battery A.

Other assignments to Battery A within the past week are Pvt. John S. Salzillo, M-Sgt. William H. Boles, and S-Sgt. William T. Howell.

Planning Ahead

Fort Benning is playing host this week to a Selective Service conference, composed of members of the Army, Navy, and Marine Corps who have been earmarked for duty with state Selective Service boards should it ever become necessary to reorganize them. We welcome them to Fort Benning, but for more than hospitable reasons. We are glad they are here because we are glad to know that someone is interested in knowing how to mobilize our country, if the need ever arises, in the most rapid and most efficient method possible.

This bears out our contention that we should always be prepared to defend ourselves, for this board is responsible for studying past Selective Service procedures and making recommendations for future military commitments. America's preparedness, as we have pointed out many times in the past, depends to a great extent upon passage of Universal Military Training legislation. Should the Congress deem it wise and necessary and the President agree, Selective Service boards will likely be called upon to aid in the enlistment program for our youth.

Despite this, however, training of Selective Service personnel and making plans for the future is one of the most sensible things ever done in peacetime. There will doubtless be a great number of people to raise the hue and cry against the government for being "warmongers." Some will cry out in protest of conducting such conferences during 1948, supposedly a year of peace. Ordinarily, we, too, would think it unnecessary, but with other countries in the world still under arms and in this era of atomic warfare we believe that we would indeed be foolish not to prepare for mobilization prior to the dropping of the first bomb, or the firing of the first guided missile.

It makes us feel safer and more secure, and understandably so. We hate war just as much as anyone, but we realize that so long as there are people in the world who live by different codes, so long as there are people who can not see eye to eye, there is always at least a possibility that one or the other will sooner or later fire a shot. And it is just as easy for America to be prepared to meet any set of circumstances as it is sit on our haunches and wait for something to happen.

We must keep our lives geared to future developments. We have learned the fallacy of living in the past, with little or no thought for what the future holds. So with a few people thinking ahead, five, ten, twenty, even one hundred years ahead, there is more of a chance that we can, if called upon, mobilize within a few months instead of a few years as we did during the last war. As we have said so many times, "it's better to be safe than sorry."

Hula hula dancers have it easy; all they have to do is stand around and twiddle their fums.
Can and Will are cousins
Who are never out of luck.
Will is the son of Eenergy
And Can is the son of Pluck.
Can't and Won't are cousins, too—
Aalways out of work.
Won't is the son of Never Try,
And Can't is the son of Shirk.

A fellow was taking his girl home after a show and he said, "I have a riddle for you. "What's the difference between a taxicab and the subway?"

"I don't know," she replied.

"Well, if you don't know," he said, "we'll go home in the subway."

Bishop: "But how on earth did you manage to keep the cannibals from eating you?"

Returned Missionary: "It was easy. You see, I have a cork leg. As soon as I landed I pulled up my trousers, cut off a slice and gave it to the chief. He decided I wasn't worth cooking."

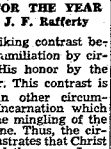
A LABAR-TOON



Chaplain's Corner..

THOUGHTS FOR THE YEAR
By Chaplain J. F. Rafferty

There is a striking contrast between Christ's humiliation by circumcision and His honor by the name of Saviour. This contrast is apparent also in other circumstances of the Incarnation which denotes a sublime mingling of the human and Divine. Thus, the circumcision demonstrates that Christ is truly man, and the name Jesus which He assumes proclaims Him truly God.

In the year which is beginning we may exemplify this contrast in our own lives.

We may spiritualize and divinize our earthly existences by weaving into human textures the rich golden threads of God's graces.

A life which concerns itself entirely with worldly affairs can have but little value in the eyes of God. A life which completely disregards the soul's ultimate destiny is a life which is being lived in vain. A life which spurns the Author of life, and scorns acts that merit God's friendship is a life which leads to eternal death.

The currents of our lives may be directed through very ordinary channels, but if the sky above these courses is illumined by the presence of God, the Ocean of Eternity into which these lives are flowing will sparkle with the brilliance of light celestial.

As we begin another year, we may call to mind the words of Jacob: "Terrible indeed is this life," every moment and action of which evolves before the face of the Most High God. However, if w try with all our hearts to be faithful even the most common and ordinary actions of our lives will have infinite value; and any portion of the earth where we walk, or any place that we sleep, will be to us an open door to heaven, will be as a luminous ladder to mount with the angels to God.

Athletic Wac: "What can he do?"

Ex-Chorus Wac: "How much has he?"

Literary Wac: "What does he read?"

Business Wac: "What has he accomplished?"

Old Maid Wac: "Bring him on!"

Then there was the clever cat that ate cheese and breathed down the rat role with baited breath.

An airman had to take to his parachute because of engine trouble. On his way through space he met an old lady floating up.
Airman: "Hey! have you noticed a Spitfire going down?"
Lady: "No, have you seen a gas stove going up?"

There once was a rooster who came strutting into the barnyard on Easter morning and discovered a nest of colored eggs. Perplexed for a moment, he took a good look at his wife and dashed across the barnyard where he promptly shot a peacock who was living there.

There comes to us the tale of about a half a dozen soldiers who rapped at he pearly gates. The doorman shouted into headquarters that guests had arrived.

"What nationality are they?" headquarters queried.

"Americans," the doorman replied.

"Well, let them in. They'll apply for a transfer in six weeks, anyhow."

Sarge: "Awright. Write it down.

Your Red Cross

BY MURRAY E. HILL

We Americans are somewhat inclined to think of the Red Cross in terms of the American National Red Cross. Have you ever had an opportunity to give thought to the Red Cross in other countries? You can not help but be impressed with the intense Red Cross interest and sincerity of these foreign Red Cross societies, especially when it is realized that the population of some of these entire countries is no larger than that of some of our largest chapters.

The foreign Red Cross societies' worst problems are financial. European monetary systems are unstable. The people suffer from poverty, heavy taxes, and shortages of food, clothing, and other necessities. It is no surprise, therefore, that Red Cross societies have extremely limited resources to draw upon.

While the European Red Cross societies' broad objectives are the same as ours, they have, in many instances, entirely different methods of fund raising. For one thing, they do not have the direct approach. Actually, they spend little time on advising the general public of the scope of their work.

It is true that they use some very artistic posters, but none of them have the simple guide word "Give." In studying the various methods used abroad, one can not help being impressed with the striking uniform pattern in the various methods of fund raising. Common to all is their dependence on some form of subsidy from their government.

In Italy, for example, most of the funds come from the government. This sum is supplemented by contributions. And when individuals are solicited, they expect something tangible in return for their money. They buy drinking cups, children's toys, calendars, guide books, dictionaries, and other articles, all marked, of course, with the Italian Red Cross symbol. There is no commercialism of the Red Cross emblem, however, for all the profits accruing from the sale of Italian Red Cross articles go to the Red Cross.

Another method by which the people of European countries support their own Red Cross is by offering their services instead of money. This is not to be confused with the Volunteer Service of the Red Cross. As an example, in one Swiss village 2,000 tuberculosis children were accomodated for six months at the expense of the villagers.

Some European countries hold flag days, tag days, or other types of Red Cross solicitation. The British Red Cross stages a successful "penny-a-week" drive. Other European countries report many unique methods of raising money.

At a recent conference of 12 European societies they all hoped to do away with their present methods, and eventually adopt the method of the American National Red Cross which is to keep the people advised of Red Cross activities throughout the year and once a year ask them for a free will offering.

Mrs. Blake, Mrs. Thomas Hostesses At Luncheon

The ladies of the Weapons section enjoyed a delightful and unusual luncheon at the Officers club last Friday. The hostesses for the luncheon were Mrs. Frank Blake Jr., and Mrs. Charles B. Thomas, who used great originality in decorating the table.

The placecards were small calenders with the name of the guest written across the face of the calender. The centerpiece was a doll in a highchair wearing a crown marked 1948. From one end of the table to the other were clever and unique displays depicting each month of the year. January was shown with a small wastebasket filled with old bills and discarded New Year's resolutions. February was a Valentine box and March appropriately an income tax blank and asperin bottle. April featured an Easter basket, May was a May pole and June a bride's gift, a miniture girl graduate and a diploma. July was amusing with a firecracker, a cap gun and bandaides and ungentine. August was a travel folder, sunglasses and leg makeup, and September was appropriately shown by a football and pencil box. October was a pumpkin, November was a display of cranberries, cookbook and picture of a turkey, while December brought it to a close with a gift package, tree ornaments and a tiny Santa Claus.

Out-of-town guests included were Mrs. D. B. Homer, guest of her sister-in-law, Mrs. C. D. McFerren, Mrs. H. W. Halterman of Fort Meade, Maryland, guest of her daughter, Mrs. J. S. Sandlland and Mrs. Robert H. Bull, guest of Mrs. Thomas. There were 30 guests at the luncheon which was held in the Palm room and bridge was played in the afternoon.

Miss McManus Wed At Chapel

An impressive candlelight ceremony marked the marriage of Miss Dorothy Louise McManus and Lt. Robert Waite Tierman at the Post Chapel Saturday evening at 8 p.m. Chaplain (Col.) Wallace Hale officiated and the organist was Mrs. Lily Garrett with Miss Margaret Denny as soloist.

The chapel was beautifully decorated with palms, gladioli and chrysanthemums. White tapers burned in cathedral candelabra and the pews were marked with white flowers.

Col. William Hasselback was best man for Lt. Tierman and ushers included Maj. Robert Stumm, Capt. Francis P. Smith, Lt. Bill Williams and Maj. Charles Tiernan Jr., brother of the groom.

Miss Louise Horne, maid of honor, wore a gown of blue satin with high neckline, wing sleeves and a peplum which formed a bustle. She wore long white gloves and carried pink carnations.

The bridesmaids were Mrs. Carolyn Brown, Miss Jean Hightower, and Miss Elizabeth McManus, sister of the bride. Their gowns and bouquets were similar to those of the maid of honor.

Little Shirley Cary, flower girl, wore a baby blue gown trimmed in pink satin bows. She carried a white basket out of which she scattered rose petals.

The bride, given in marriage by Dr. A. E. Hurst, was radiant in her gown of cream satin fashioned with a low, round neckline of lace, long sleeves and fitted bodice and a skirt which extended to form a train. Her fingertip veil was fastened to a cluster of orange blossoms. Her only ornament was a strand of pearls, gift of the groom. The bride carried a prayerbook centered with a purple orchid showered with streamers and tuberoses.

A reception followed the ceremony in the Palm Room of the Officers Club with Mrs. Eileen Bernard keeping the bride's book. Assisting in serving were Mrs. Mary Carey, Mrs. Eileen Bernard and Mrs. Carol Moyer.

Out of town guests for the wedding were Col. William Hasselback of Owossa, Mich., Mack Patten of Bayb ridge, Ohio, Major Charles M. Tiernan Jr., of Fort Knox, Ky., Mrs. Charles M. Tiernan Sr., of Lansing, Mich., Capt. and Mrs. Anthony Shoc s of Roswell, Ga., and Capt. Thomas Martin of Linden, N. J.

Benning's Accident Rate Shows Slight Decrease

The accident rate at Fort Benning is still high, in that a total of 98 cases were reported and five were killed. There were 324 fender accidents—32 of these preventable. Total cost in repairs, fenders and damaged vehicles ran to $10,170.00. Almost $10,000 was spent rendering vehicles to military personnel.

Seventy-eight men were involved in accidents in privately owned vehicles. Sixty-nine were injured, nine were killed.

However, last year's accident rate is far better than this. The chief of 1947 was 59 men injured in government cars. Ninety-seven cases were either killed or injured, in accidents in private automobiles.

Most accidents were caused by speeding and by the failure of the driver to reduce speed, while on curved or on wet and slippery roads, the post safety rule prevailed. Seventy-five accidents occurred, including two fatalities because the drivers failed to retain complete control of their vehicles.

Carelessness by the driver—in not checking his position in connection with pedestrians and other cars before moving—caused 18 accidents.

Making rapid turns, without making sure the way was clear, caused 17 accidents, mostly between fenders, trucks, and privately owned vehicles.

A comment found at all drivers, following the war about the cheerful, caused 26 road accidents.

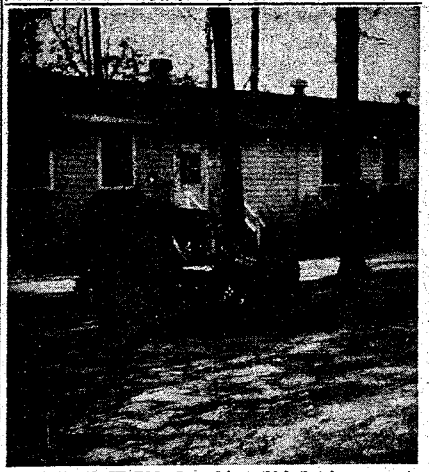
Drivers who completely disregarded the road as they turned to wave to friends, neglected to signal for a turn, or failure to obey traffic signals made 14 road violations.

A drivers' training school has been inaugurated at Fort Benning for the improvement of safety provisions for the men of all organizations. Improvement of the accident rate is to be primarily attributed to this program, according to Capt Freeman Jones, post safety officer.

"Our aim is to make a professional driver of all the men here, and naturally, if a man is a professional driver, he is a safe driver," he said.

LOOK OUT, sir!—Twenty-seven accidents involving Fort Benning trucks during the past year resulted because at fifteen an alert driver found himself in a left-hand turn. This truck and automobile collision could have been prevented, but signals must be used to be observed.

SPEEDING BRINGS DEATH.—Death came to two people, the driver and his passenger, when this vehicle overturned several times after the driver, traveling at an excessive rate of speed, lost control. Seventy-five accidents occurred here because of failure to reduce speed on curves.



DEATH TRAP.—Worst accident of the year occurred on Hinerville road killing two and costing the government approximately $40,000. Excessive speed and high center of gravity do not go together.

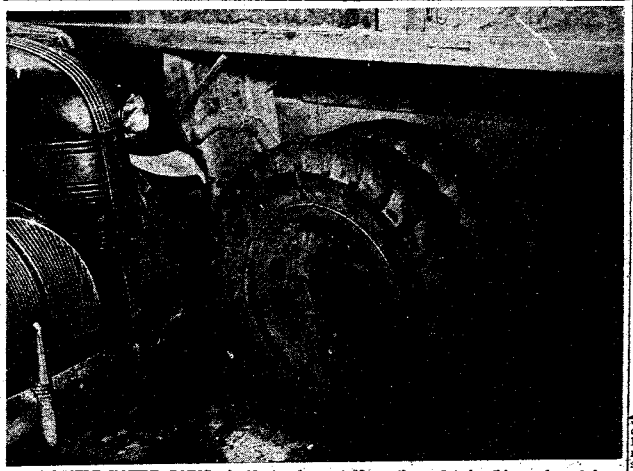
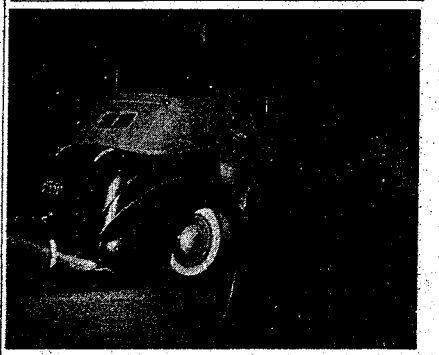
DANGEROUS TOYS—The jeep was not made for a plaything. This one turned over three times and skidded 193 feet, but no one was seriously injured. Although there were a total of 268 government vehicles involved in accidents last year, 92 per cent of these were caused by carelessness and could have been prevented.



JEEPS CRACK UP TOO—Some drivers think that jeeps can not be wrecked, but this photo is a silent reminder that it can happen. The driver of this vehicle completely wrecked it although he claimed he was traveling at not over 25 miles per hour near the vocational school.



SLEEPING DRIVERS—This wrecked automobile bears witness to the fact that it is dangerous to drive while sleepy. This driver tried to get home despite the fact that he needed sleep. Dozing drivers caused 69 injuries and nine fatalities in private vehicles during 1947.

ONE-ARM DRIVING—Although one-arm driving caused very little damage here, even one accident is too many. This private vehicle would not have been damaged had the driver exercised a little more caution.

LOOK WHERE YOU'RE GOING—Accidents of this kind do not cause much damage, but they do add greatly to the cost of operation. Military personnel lost 1,819 days in hospitals during the past 12 months, and twice this number of days were lost by injury in private vehicles both on and off the post.

AN EXPENSIVE NIGHT OUT—This accident occurred on Cusseta road, proving that liquor and driving are not compatible companions. Although only two fatalities were reported on the reservation, this figure jumped to nine in privately-owned vehicles.

Unit Chapel Closed Temporarily

The School Troops chapel has been closed temporarily and the chaplain's office moved to the Main Post chapel, it was announced today by Chaplain Russell O. Kirsch, assistant Infantry Center chaplain.

The change has been made to allow Service company, 325th Infantry regiment, to resume operation of their dining hall and thus relieve the strain of mess facilities of Headquarters and Headquarters company. The dining hall is expected to reopen sometime later this week, Capt. Elmer Navarre, company commander, said.

A new location for the School Troops chapel will be set up within a short time.

SPORTS

Marines Pummel Tallismen 43-39

Parris Islanders McAuliffe Sparks

A hard fighting Doughboy quintet surrendered a six-point intermission advantage late in the third period, and went down swinging before the combined blows of a determined Parris Island five Monday night at the Main Post gym, 46-39.

Monday's defeat marked the locals' sixth setback in eleven starts, and was the first game since the new year that the Tallismen have fallen below the 50-point mark in any game.

The margin of victory and defeat rested in the person of one man, a certain Tom McAuliffe, who bewildered the players and fans alike with his unbelievable ball handling. It was McAuliffe that set up the Parris Island scoring thrusts, and it was he, with his fireball but accurate passing, that ripped the Doughs defense in the final period. McAuliffe, in emerging as the night's outstanding player, gained himself a spot with the foremost basketball players ever to see action on the Benning floor.

Lead at Half

Harold Corizzi took the Doughs through the first half in handy fashion, racking up 11 of his total 14 markers during that period of play. The Benning cagers appeared on their way to victory as they fired away at the slow starting Marines, and the Doughs held a comfortable 23-17 rest period margin.

But the determined Leathernecks, remembering the crushing defeat handed them by the soldier gridders last fall, rallied in the last half, and cut the Doughs lead to shreds. It was the floor work of McAuliffe, teaming with the shooting of Bob Utz and Ed Bolton, a former Parris Island halfback, that sent the visitors soaring to the top as the game neared its nerve-racking end.

Terrific back board play by both squads increased the competition and game vigor, and added much color from the spectator's point of view.

Cops Scoring Honors

Harold Haberman, who has consistently distinguished himself as a great defensive man, gave the winners more trouble than any other one man on the court. Harold Lutz played a fine game, one of his best of the season, and added nine markers to the Doughs' total. But it was again the sharp shooting Harold Corizzi who copped scoring honors for the locals. His aggregate total for the night was 14.

In the preliminary Monday night, Tom Halstead's Doughboy reserves outpointed the fast moving Jordan high basketeers in a practice game that proved to be one of the most interesting tilts played on the home court this season.

Although Jordan kept pace with the Doughs most of the way, the Dough B's pulled away late in the third period, and never relinquished their lead from that point on.

Jack Abell, a very able Jordan spark, led the scoring with 27 points, a remarkable achievement in that he played only three quarters.

Artillery Cops Volley Crown

Battery B of the 319th Field Artillery battalion overcame all obstacles in their way and emerged as the School Troops volleyball champions.

The artillerymen exhibited a fine brand of ball, and because of excellent coaching and determination they swept to the championship.

The big barrier to the newly-won crown came from Company A of the 325th Infantry which forced the champions to go the limit of three games. After humbling the infantrymen, the artillery found little difficulty in sweeping over the 204th Transportation battalion, Company K of the 50th troopers, and the 756th tankers.

Joe McFall, captain of the squad announced after the championship game that Battery B would represent the 319th in the intramural volleyball league that got underway Tuesday.

Two Chinese and an Irishman arrested for fighting, stood before his Honor the Judge awaiting sentence.

Judge: "What is your name?"

Prisoner. "Ah Wah."

Judge: "Ah Wah, 30 days."

Judge: (To second prisoner), "What is your name?"

Second Prisoner: "Ah Sing."

Judge: "Ah Sing, 30 days, and what is your name?" (directed to the Irishman.)

Irishman: "Ah Hell, give me 30 days too."

Lawson Field To Participate In Sports Show

Officials of Lawson field announce today that the Lawson field sports department would participate in the Air Force sports program and would compete in the Southern Sports Area.

The Southern Sports Area begins east of the Mississippi and south of the southern boundaries of Kentucky and Virginia.

This program includes tournaments in basketball, bowling, golf, softball and baseball. The tournament for basketball will be played at Eglin field, Florida, February 29, 1948. The bowling tournament will take place March 30, 1948, at Greenville Air base, Greenville, S. C.

A combination of officers and enlisted men will make up the teams for basketball and bowling to represent Lawson field. Plans for the other tournaments will be announced at a later date.

Airborne Boxers Hold Initial Show Here Friday Night

The first card of the Airborne battalion's winter boxing program will be presented tomorrow night at 8 p.m. at the A Stage gym, where preparations are being made to accomodate a crowd of over 500 fight fans.

Eight three-round bouts will feature every Friday night session. The majority of the fighters are airborne students who have had previous experience in the ring and who are anxious to further their pugilistic ambitions. Fighters from other units, however, are welcome to use the airborne program to test their prowess, officials said.

Prizes will be awarded to winners in each of the matches, and this policy will be continued throughout the season, it was announced.

Sand Hill Enjoys Large Attendance

Votaries of the ancient Scottish sport thronged the broad stretches of the Sand Hill golf course Wednesday, Saturday, and Sunday for a grand total of 60 enlisted men, 11 officers, and 12 guests, it was announced Monday by Lt. Joseph Watson, club officer.

Prominent among the civilian enthusiasts was Dr. T. H. Holmes, well known Atlanta physician, who headed a party of six from the gateway city for a 36-hole session here as guests of Lt. Watson. The course was closed for a brief period recently while necessary work was done on the greens and fairways. Since its reopening, it is one of the top sports' rendezvous in the Sand Hill area.

"Do you owe any back house rent?" she asked.

"Ma'am," he replied with certain dignity, "we got modern plumbing."

Doughs Gain Split In Jax Road Trip

Although the Doughboys outscored their Jacksonville opponents, they returned home last Monday with an even split from their most recent journey into the palm-tree country of Florida.

The Doughs dropped the first game last Friday night to the Jacksonville Flyers, 55-53, in one of the closest tilts of the season. Although the locals were on the wrong end of a 30-20 count at the intermission, they barreled their way back in the final half, but victory was denied them when scored just a fraction of a second after the final whistle came. The official said "No-go," and the Doughs suffered their fifth defeat of the season. The following evening, Ced Tallis took his basketball team 20 miles south to Green Cove, and whipped the East Coast sailors there 52-38 in a fast finishing battle.

Corizzi, Scovil Lead

Ir Friday night's tilt, it was Harold Corizzi and Doug Scovill again doing all the scoring. All year these two courtmen have been fighting it out for the basket-making lead, and in the Jacksonville game, they supplied the fire to keep the locals in the running.

But it was Harold Lutz that nearly turned the tables in his team's favor. With seconds to go, the red-haired fireball broke away on a fast break, and was in the air when the whistle sounded. The ball left his hand steadily and sailed straight for the hoop, invading the netted loop, but the officials ruled that the ball had not left his hand before the whistle sounded, and the decision went to the Jacksonville Navy.

Bob Henningsen, in scoring 26 points, outclassed all other performers last Friday night. Henningsen was the dazzling spark that gave the Floridians their hard-earned victory, and it was his superb shooting that sent the Flyers to a 30-20 advantage when the halftime was sounded.

Find Range

In the third period Corizzi and Scovil began to find their range, and began belting the opposing basket with beautiful shots from difficult angles. As the minutes ticked away, the locals were steadily climbing up to a par with the Navy quintet, and for the final three minutes of the game, the question of victory or defeat was still in the balance.

The following night at Green Cove, Lady Luck treated the Doughboys more politely, and stayed to see the soldier five take the sailor quintet 52-38 in chalking up their fifth victory.

Although the game was slow getting started, things picked up in the second canto when Corizzi and Haberman began to hit the hoop more accurately. The intermission saw the Doughs with a 27-23 advantage.

The situation remained tight in the third canto, and the locals weren't able to pull away until late in the final quarter when they gained a comfortable margin of ten points, and rolled on to a brilliant finish.

So the Sanity Code has been adopted by the National Collegiate Athletic association. Off-campus recruiting has been upheld, but aid to prospective athletes, in the form of pecuniary compensation has been limited. This move came just subsequent to Ford Frick's caustic criticism of the NCAA, that had accused professional baseball of adopting a practice of "stealing" material before it was ripe.

Actually, this move by the NCAA is a fine and pointing evidence that the athletic leaders of the land are making an earnest effort to keep amateur sports on an amateur basis and professional sports on a professional basis. Practices by some schools, and even conferences, especially football, were so alarming, that it looked as though college football, as well as other sports, were being so subsidized that the sports were destined for a sad ending.

Although the aids already given will be allowed, further financial assistance will be limited. No coach, scout, or any other athletic official will be permitted to recruit players by employing a financial inducement incentive. That does not mean that these same officials will be permitted to bring to a prospect's mind the legal aid that is permitted under the new constitution.

This new ruling may or may not improve the situation. There are already those that will attempt to work around such a law. There are flaws in the new NCCA ruling, but for the most part it is an admirable move toward making sports competitive again, and not as it has been for the past ten years, a big business.

You will recall that last week, I mentioned a recent Kentucky recruiting program up in Ohio, Michigan, and other Mid-western states. This sort of "robbery" is just what the NCAA hopes to eliminate.

Rain has returned to Georgia after a long three-week sojourn in some other part of the nation. The weather during the holidays and the ten-day period following the return to work, was blessed with sunshine and fairness. Yet the sudden turn from fair weather to cloudy skies won't put too much of a damper on post sporting activities this week. Tomorrow night, the Doughboys make their final bid for another Third Army bowling crown. Practically all week five kegler aggregations have been going full steam at the post alleys.

All this time, Ced Tallis and his Doughboys were appearing here and there for their scheduled basketball games. There was really a heart-breaker lost to the Jacksonville Flyers late last week, 55-53. Harold Lutz dumped in the lying hooper, but the officials said no—the whistle had sounded a few breaths before the spheroid invaded the netted loop. Say what you will, however, this Benning cage five has been coming along, and will continue to make better showings as the season moves on.

Tallis has not ceased being amazed at the accomplishments of his squad. Early in the season, I recall his bemoaning his lack of material, but he was, nevertheless, set on putting a good club on the floor. Although the Doughs have dropped half their games, you must admit that in no game were they ever out of the running. To Oglethorpe, they lost 65-64; to Jacksonville, 55-53; to Howard, 43-40; to Phenix City twice, by very slim margins. The team is really beyond reproach by the self-appointed critics. Those same people are seldom seen at the ball games, I might add.

Baseball season around here is slated for an early start this year . . . a good idea. If I don't miss my guess, all you diamond enthusiasts better get your gloves out, and start brushing the dust that has accumulated since 1947. As I see it, the grand old game should get underway sometime next month, probably late in the month. That may be a little early, but it won't start any later than March 15.

Just a word about sport schedules. Some years ago, there was no need to worry if your team was getting started late or early; no sports events ever ran into each other. But such is not the case today. Just take basketball, football, and baseball for a platform to work from. Some schools played their first football game as early as September 20 last year. The regular season of baseball hadn't even been completed, much less the World Series. Such men as Charlie Trippi left his baseball team, to meet his football commitments. Right here on the post, Kendrick was late getting his material as result. Ced Tallis ran into the same difficulty —either that, or basketball started too soon. Sports are running into each other. It really doesn't give the coaches of the various teams a reasonable length of time to get their new squads into shape. Football used to begin early in October. The Mid-west still does this, and it would be a grand idea of the whole idea were revived. Basketball, too, should be moved up—say, in early January. Baseball, of course, has a longer run than any other sport, but this is understandable. Just a thought, but it seems that such a revival of schedule-making would improve the situation for all parties concerned, and it would help early attendance.

OFFICERS' GOLF TEAM DRUBS MAXWELL CLUB

Although the day was blessed with plenty of invigorating sunshine, the match was held in a genuine winter atmosphere with the thermometer playing tricks and that same cold was accompanied by a brisk breeze that played havoc with many of the tee-off drives.

Capt. Paul S. Grant fired a 78 for the Benning linkmen to capture the low for the winners, while James W. Wilson took the day's honors with a two over par 74.

The Benning team is one of the most representative ever to appear on a course, since it has men from Lawson field, the Artillery School Troops, and various other units.

Capt. Grant teamed with J. Moore to capture all nine possible points in their round, and supplied the best overwhelming victory of the day.

A luncheon was prepared for the Benning guests after the match, and Lt. Col. Matt C. Bristol, in charge of the tournament committee on the Post, announced that the trip was not only successful, but very enjoyable.

Col. Bristol further announced that a film on golf has been planned for the Officer's club Feb. 3 at 7:30 p. m. An hour-long film will be shown on the game of golf, and a ten-minute film on archery vs. golf.

"Do you owe any back house rent?" she asked.

Local Athletes Score Success In Tournaments

Fort Benning, represented by its renowned Doughboy athletes, has scored another laudable success in the Army sporting world. Year after year, the headlines and by lines of local and sectional newspapers have carried the news of another great victory for the Benning soldiers on the field of sports.

There have been a number of reviews of just what the Doughboys have accomplished through the past year, but it might be interesting to bring to view the enviable record the Doughs made in Third Army sport participation during 1947.

If the victorious Post teams continue to lead the way as far as Third Army trophies are concerned, and other trophies for that matter, new rooms will have to be built to house the handsome awards the Doughboys have won.

Win Many Trophies

Fort Benning athletes were entered in ten different sectional Army tourneys during 1947. They never returned home without some sort of trophy, and they never took honors below runner-up. In the ten tournament outings, the locals captured six crowns, and finished the other four in the second slot.

Under the able tutelage of Ced Tallis, Fort Benning perhaps put the finest basketball team in its history on the floor last year. It was hard to believe when the Post five dropped the Third Army crown in the final game to their ancient North Carolina rivals, Fort Bragg. Yet, when the Doughs later went on to belt every foe to annex the Southeastern AAU championship, Bragg fell before the mighty Dough courtmen by a decisive margin. So it was that the Doughs took second honors in basketball, swimming, softball and boxing.

But only in the one major sport, basketball, did the Doughs falter, as far as a championship is concerned, for in baseball and track the Doughs swept to undisputed possession of the coveted laurels while they were acclaimed unbeatable in football by the sectional elevens.

Take Diamond Laurels

In track and baseball, Bragg again arose as the contender, but at Gowdy field Herb Bench and his diamond demons slipped by the strong Braggonians 4-3, and had earlier in the year, run roughshod over the same cindermen. Also in baseball, although they were not in the league, the Post ball and bat men clipped the Georgia State champions in three out of the four games they played. Thomaston, one of the most heralded nines in this state, succumbed to the strong Benning team three times by safe margins. They were only able to capture a long victory that was won in a grueling battle at Gowdy field.

An agile group of somewhat aged soldiers surprised the Third Army when the "Doughmen" completely outclassed all opponents, including the defending champions from Fort Bragg, to add another hitch to the long list of Benning winnings. The affair took place at the Oliver General hospital in Augusta some months ago.

Boxing is fast becoming one of the major sports here. Although the local pugilists were outpunched in Third Army competition during the last year, Post boxers did come back strong in the Southeastern AAU tournament later in the season. This year boxing has been built up even more and many of the Benning leather-pushers are aspiring for a position on the Olympic team that the Army will enter.

So once again, the new cycle of athletics have begun. Ced Tallis is again in the title roll, and although the Doughboy basketeers are not having the resplendent success that they had a year ago, the season is far from over, and the situation looks much better than it did at first.

Sport Quiz

2. Although the majority of American sports were adapted from similar games played elsewhere, one is considered to be truly ours in origin. Can you name it?

3. Jackie Robinson's pay for his first season with the Dodgers was approximately: $5,000; $10,000; $20,000; $30,000?

4. What became of Herman Wedemeyer, All American halfback from St. Mary's in 1945?

ANSWERS

1. Rhose Island State; Notre Dame; Yale; North Carolina State! UCLA.

2. Basketball, invented in 1892 by Dr. James Naismith, is the only major sport that is truly American in origin. Although baseball is considered to be our national pastime, it is actually a derivation of cricket and sundry other sports. Football, too, is a contorted form or rugby and soccer combined.

3. Robbie's actual earnings from the Dodger organization alone amounted to about $5,000, although his public appearances, endorsements and other activities netted the Negro ace much more than that.

4. Wedemeyer, All American as a sophomore, received little mention in '46 when his team's record was poor. In '47, his last opportunity for new glory, Hawaiian Herman was injured early in the season.

Local Keglers Blast 'Rebels'

A preview of the Third Army bowling tournament was staged last Sunday at the Post Alleys when the Doughboy keglers outpinned a strong Montgomery Rebel team 4184 to 4036.

Bob Burns, accurate rolling local, paced the winners with a high set of 912, and also posted the top score for a single game with a neat 213. Sexton, of the Rebels, took honors for his team and for the entire match with a match aggregate of 914, but fell short of Burns' mark in toppling the pins for a 209 in a single day.

The Doughs' second team also took a five-game set from the Rebels' reserves, 4,156-3,703. Harris had high score of 835 for the Doughs, while Ewell Knuth rolled the singles' top with a 206. Millman rolled high singles of 197 while Kyle had a set total of 838 for the losers.

DOUGH FORWARD WINS TOP HONORS IN SCORING

With 22 regularly scheduled games still remaining before the Doughboys, Coach Ced Tallis has already shown signs of the prediction that he made when he said his soldier cagers were capable of averaging 60 points per game if they really settled down and started playing good basketball.

Behind the able tutelage of the veteran cage mentor, the Doughs, although losers in half their games, have boosted their game average above the 50-point mark, and seem to be on an even keel at this stage of the season.

Although Tallis has had to revamp his entire squad because of injuries and discharges among the ranks, his team has continued to live up to its reputation as a fighting ball club. Even though the locals have met defeat in half their outings, the Doughboys have never been routed by an opposing team.

Since the Oglethorpe game that went to the Atlanta team, 65-64, Harold Corizzi has held the basket-making leadership. In recent games Corizzi has been tallying over 15 points per game, and his average has soared higher than any other man on the squad. Behind Corizzi come Doug Scovil, a lad who worked his way to the varsity after two games with the reserves. In the eight tilts that Scovil has seen action, he has averaged 11.5 points, while the scoring leader holds the top spot in means with 13.5.

The Fort Benning Gun club, sponsored by the Officers' club, has been organized by officers interested in skeet shooting.

Plans are being made to enter teams composed of high scorers in shoots recognized by the National Skeet Shooting association, in which the club is registered.

Newly-elected officers of the Benning Gun club include Lt. Col. D. E. Hoffmeister, chairman; Maj. E. B. Kitchens, vice-chairman; and Capt. R. E. Carey, secretary-treasurer.

High scorer for Sunday's shoot included W. S. Golden, who bagged 49 out of fifty chances, Capt. M. A. Pullman, P. R. Heinmiller, and A. F. Weist and Dr. C. A. Peacock.

Bibb Quintet Scores Cage Win Over Flyers

The Lawson field Flyers, handicapped by the absence of high-scoring ace Louis Button, faltered in the final moments to drop a 66-55 count to the Bibb Manufacturing combine in their cage tussle last Saturday night on the latter's floor.

Paced by center Hyder and forward Harrel, who accounted for most of the tallying for the winners, the Bibb five picked up an early lead, and was never headed.

The Flyers were dealth another hard blow when Guard Bob Livingstone suffered a leg injury. He will be out of the lineup for sometime.

Artillery Keglers Bow To Weapons Group

The officers of the 319th Field Artillery battalion dropped another league match in the Post officer's bowling league to the Weapons section team by a total pin score of 2,250 to 2,160 last Monday night.

The point score showed three for the winners and a single game for the artillerymen which came as a result of a 827 in the second game.

Georgia State College Are Doughs Next Foe

Most of the week's basketball activity will take place in the Main Post gym with the locals playing host to a strong Georgia State Teacher college quintet tomorrow at 8 p. m.

Tomorrow night's tilt with the Douglas, Ga., collegians will be the first meeting of the two court aggregations this season, but gives promise of being one of the toughest battles of the year. The Teachers have a fine record this year, and have posted wins over Howard college of Alabama and the Jacksonville Flyers, both winners over the Doughs this year by very close counts.

The Doughs will finish up their recent three-day road trip tonight when they clash with the Tyndall field Flyers at the Florida base tonight. Last week, when Tyndall acted as guests, the Doughs came from behind to score a 43-40 upset victory, and the experts are picking the locals to give a repeat performance tonight.

The Doughs will return home tomorrow morning sometime, and go through limbering-up exercises tomorrow afternoon in preparation for the Georgia State tilt.

A capacity crowd is anticipated for the game set for Saturday night on the Main Post. The subject concerned is the Oglethorpe university game at the Post gym. Some weeks ago, The Talismen dropped a heart-breaker in Atlanta to the university quintet, who, after 40 minutes of thrilling basketball, came out on top, 65-64.

Passing and faking are the big topics of discussion in Doughboy practice sessions, and Tallis has revised his entire plan of offense and defense. The new methods used seem to fit the team for better than the attack used by the squad last year.

Oglethorpe is a very strong and steady team, and holds a definite height advantage over the locals, but Tallis feels that the sharp shooting Harold Corizzi and Doug Scovil, together with the great defensive play of Harold Haberman, will be enough to give his five the margin of victory in this second meeting of the two quintets.

Two formidable service teams finish off the week's work for the Doughs, and both features will be staged again at the Main Post gym. Monday night will bring the Maxwell field Flyers to the Post, and the game is set fo. 8 p. m. After a day's rest, the Talismen will play bost to Keesler field.

"Easy, my dear," he retorted. "Three were on the sugar and three were on the mirror."

Post Building Plan Awaiting Senate Okay

A $1,445,050 building project soon will be forthcoming at Fort Benning if the House of Representatives follows the example set by the Senate Tuesday.

A United Press dispatch from Washington, stated that the senate passed bills authorizing appropriations of $354,771,160 for Army and Navy improvements, both in the states and overseas.

The amount approved by the senate for Fort Benning is apparently earmarked for the building of family quarters and utilities, although the certainty of this could not be established here Tuesday night.

Officials at Fort Benning said that many appropriations had been asked for building and other works there, but they could not determine whether this was for the family quarters or for other purposes.

The measure must still be passed by the House. The Senate gave unanimous approval by a voice vote, without debate, Tuesday and sent the bills to the House.

Bullets Wind Up On Wrong End Of Scoring

BY ROBERT D. PHILLIPS

The sharp-shooting 25th Infantry Bullets wound up on the tail end of a 2 to 1 count in their efforts to crash into the upper brackets of the victory column last week. Tying up with the Panthers of Clark college, the Wolverines from Morris Brown, and the Orioles from Columbus, Coach Jones' courtment lost to the two collegiate fives, but came back strong Friday night to come near annihilating the underdog Oriole quintet by the lop-sided score of 65-32.

Playing in the new Magnolia gym in Atlanta Monday night, the Bullets employed an air-tight defense which held the Clark cagers at bay for the first 12 minutes of play. During this period of the game the two fives fought on even terms, with the difference in the score never advancing more than one point. Leading at half-time 19-12, the revengeful Panthers were never again caught up with or headed.

Williamson Stars

Scheley Williamson, who connected for 18 points, was the offensive star of the collegians. His long set-shots from mid-court brought thunderous rounds of applause from the approximate 1,400 cheering students and alumni who saw their hometown five get sweet revenge for their two lickings at the hands of the Bullets last season. Jimmie Smith and Freddie Hamer, who scored 11 and eight points respectively, were the standouts for the soldiers.

The Bullets, hungry for victory, returned to their home soil Wednesday night, only to meet with disappointment, and a taste of bitter defeat for the second consecutive time when Morris Brown college lashed them with a well earned 58-42 thrashing. Bill Whyte, the Wolves brilliant forward, was the big gun of the evening, as he dashed hurriedly over the hardwood flipping in goals from all angles to run up a total of 27 points.

Displaying an impregnable brand of defensive basketball matched with a fast breaking offense, the Morris Brown quintet held a 24-14 lead at the midway rest period. The accurate shooting of Lewis Smith, who accounted for 12 digits, and Bill Whyte, who scored 14 of his 27 points during the second period, kept the winners well out front.

Take on New Life

The Sandhillers were a rejuvenated five of fighting ball hawks during the waning minutes of the last stanza. Taking on new life which included a blistering blaze of sped and bullet-like passing, Bob Chandler, Jimmie Smith, and Thomas Taylor started the Bullets on the up-hill trail, but the hefty lead built up by the collegians in the early stages of play rendered the rally fruitles.s Tommy Watford, Gerard Garcia, and the Morgan twins turned in a brilliant defensive game for the losers.

With Friday night's win over the lowly Orioles, the Bullets broke even in their four games played to date. From the very beginning it was clearly evident that the visitors were playing out of their class as the Bullets romped to a 33-15 lead at half-time. The Bullets were never threatened and coasted from then on in to run up their highest score of the current season, humbling the Orioles by the unbelievable count of 65 to 32.

Bespectacled Harry Moore and Thomas Taylor shared scoring honor with 10 points each. Floyd Skillern got nine and pivoter Jimmie Wheeler got eight to grab third and fourth place honors in scoring. All players had a chance at the slaughtering as Coach Jones emptied the bench of reserves in his effort to slow down the massacre.

SUMMERS IS PROMOTED

S-Sgt. Aldon E. Summers, Eighth company, Student Training regiment, has been promoted to the grade of technical sergeant, officials said today. At present Sergeant Summers is a student in Infantry Non-commissioned Officers' class No. 2.

Doughs Smash Flyer Loopmen

Aided by the never missing Harold Corizzi, the Doughboys scored their most smashing defeat of the basketball season last Wednesday night when the locals routed the Craig field Flyers 71-23 before a hand-full of cold-nipped spectators.

For the first time in eight games, the Doughs topped 70 markers, and kept their average above the 50-point mark. The Doughs, on the victory train since the turn of the new year, afforded the only heat to the cold Main Post gym, and in winning by such a lop-sided margin, staged the biggest scoring spree that local fans have witnessed all season.

In the first seven minutes of the breeze win, the Doughboys, racked up 23 points before the visitors ever realized that the ball game had started. Harold Corizzi accounted for more than half this total, and although he played far less than half the tilt, Corizzi tallied almost as many points as the entire Craig field quintet.

In scoring a total of 20 points in about 14 minutes, Corizzi soared higher in his scoring lead, and brought his game average well over the 15-marker men. Passing, dribbling, and faking with expert skill, the former New Jersey star stole the show as the night's hero. His only competition came from another dead-eyed cager, Doug Scovil, who dropped six in from the main, floor, and added another from the foul line in racking up 13 points.

The first stanza was a fast breaking, errorless, and precision function exhibition of devastating basketball. So complete was the Benning start that the quarter whistle saw the Doughs far ahead of their opponents, 25-6. Tallis sent his reserves in at that point, and added another string in the second canto. However, Craig field was completely outclassed, and faltered behind, 38-16, at halftime.

At the end of three complete periods, the Talismen were far out in front, holding the visitors at bay with a 55-21 count. Eight baskets in the final quarter compared to a pair of Craig field charity throws finished the scoring.

Cecil Mellinger, in scoring seven markers, took the honors for the losers and played a great game in the face of the heavy odds.

More Alaska Rescues Made

SEATTLE, Jan. 14—(AP)— Two more mid-winter rescues from small Alaska vessels wrecked out to the "westward" — in waters west of Kodiak island and along the Alaska peninsula—have saved upwards of a score of passengers and crew members.

The 15 passengers and crewmen of the Aleutian Mail, all suffering from exhaustion and exposure, were taken off the beach and the grounded vessel by a boat and salvage crew late yesterday, the Coast Guard cutter Cedar radioed.

The Aleutian Ma'' had grounded near Arch Fo..., on Unimak island, early yesterday, and the self-propelled Army barge BSP 1527, turning to go to its aid also grounded and nearly met disaster. Floating free, the barge's crew of approximately nine messaged at noon yesterday that the craft would stay afloat only an hour longer.

Later, however, fishing vessels rescued those aboard and headed for Kings Cove, on the Alaska peninsula. The Army tug Boister was to attempt salvage of the barge.

Recent Bride Wed On Post

A charming bride of last Saturday afternoon was Miss Jimmie Ruth Slappey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James B. Slappey, who became the bride of T-5 Jesse L. Briggs at a beautiful candlelight ceremony at the Post Chapel. Chaplain Wallace H. Hale performed the double ring ceremony before a gathering of friends and relatives and the nuptial music was presented by Mrs. L. H. Averitt with Mrs. Wm. A. Jackson as soloist.

The only attendant to the bride was Miss Jean Prince, a cousin, whose gown was an off-the-shoulder model with a tight basque waist in yellow taffeta. She carried a nosegay of white and yellow carnations with green satin streamers.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was met at the altar by the groom and his best man, Captain H. J. MacDonald. Her wedding gown was of white bridal satin fashioned with a marquisette yoke outlined in corded satin thread and seed pearls. It had a full skirt and fitted bodice and full skirt which lengthened to form a train. The long fitted sleeves ended with a point over the wrists. She carried a white prayer book with gardenias and white satin streamers. The bride's only ornament was a family heirloom, an antique gold pin.

At the reception immediately following the ceremony, the bride's table was overlaid with a white linen cloth centered with a three-tiered wedding cake. This was topped with a miniature bride and groom and at each end of the table were bowls of white snapdragons and candles.

Mrs. Slappey chose a black and white suit with black accessories for her daughter's wedding and wore white carnations. Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Briggs, parents of the groom, were in attendance, and Mrs. Briggs wore a light green suit with back accessories. She also wore white carnations.

The six tables were arranged with floral centerpieces and pine cones, and later in the afternoon several tables of bridge were in play.

Sunday evening the main lounge of the Officers' club was the scene of a reception for the Basic Class, Associate Basic Class, Communication Class and the Airborne Student Officers Class. An especially fine program was presented by the Art and Literature Group of the Fort Benning Woman's Club on Monday afternoon at the Officers' Club. Mrs. William C. Rhinehart presied at the meeting and introduced Mrs. Robert Hill, president of the club. Mrs. Hill announced the prospective opening of the Red Cross sewing room with Mrs. C. M. Crawford in charge. Mrs. Hill also reminded the ladies of the general meeting of the Woman's Club on February 2 at the Polo Hunt Club, at which time the guest speaker will be Mr. Bruce Thomas, and his topic will be World Affairs. Mention was also made of the box supper to be held on February 13, Mrs. Wiley O'Mehundro in charge of arrangements.

Mrs. Rhinehart then introduced Mrs. Thomas M. Cathcart Jr., who gave a splendid resume of the life and works of Beethoven, the great composer. She illustrated her talk with a recording of Beethoven's Fifth Symphony, which she explained was a musical interpretation of Beethoven's philosophy of life. Of Beethoven's nine symphonies, his beautiful Fifth Symphony has always had the greatest appeal.

Mrs. Cathcart, the wife of Major Thomas M. Cathcart, who is stationed at Fort Benning with A.G. F. Board No. 3, is well qualified in this work as she has been a student of fine music for years and is an abel instructor in piano technique. Assistant Football Line Coach Gets ROTC Duty

Everybody on the post seems to know Pete—he was assistant line coach of the 1947 football Doughboys. His curly black hair, six feet, and 205 pounds are recognized everywhere, from the 319th Field Artillery, where he has been assigned, to the catacombs of Doughboy stadium, where he has worked in the athletic and recreation office.

Orders have been received which assigns S-Sgt. Peter Demetros to ROTC instruction duty at Tennessee Military institute. He will serve as assistant to the Professor of Military Science and Tactics at the private prep school in Sweetwater, Tenn.

Now 33 years old, he moved with his parents to Atlanta 20 years ago from Ohio, and promptly won a place as end on the Southern prep championship team at Tech high, where he was named All-State guard.

After starring as end at Mercer university in Macon, Ga., he coached football at Wright's Military school in Mobile, Ala., and at Tech high. As the international situation worsened and war broke out in Europe, Pete signed on in the Merchant Marine.

Three weeks after Pearl Harbor, he was in Army uniform. The man who had run over prep and college teams in the South was made an athletic instructor in the Fourth armored corps after coaching two championship teams in the Eighth Armored division.

Participating in the first desert maneuvers with the Fourth Armored corps, Pete spent weeks under the blazing sun of the California and Mojave deserts as a tank commander.

Entering Officer Candidate School at the end of 1942, he was commissioned March 1, 1943. He was on desert maneuvers again as he went into the field with the 177th Field Artillery battalion. He later coached a championship softball team while on duty with the 100th division.

Pete Demetros, by this time a first lieutenant, joined the 196th Field Artillery battalion in Normandy as part of the First army. Duty with this unit continued through five major battles in the European theater.

When the second Free French unit entered Paris, he was with them as artillery observer. In this capacity, he was one of the first Americans to re-enter the capital city of France.

"We pulled on into northern France with the Fifth Armored division," he said. "By the time our battalion had reached Aachen, we were attached to the First Infantry division.

"We then hit Hurtgen forest with the Fourth. As we reached the Bulge, our outfit was transferred to the 99th Infantry division. We were pushed back and came up with the Ninth for counter-attack."

Joins Fourth Armored

"We pulled into the Sudetenland with the 79th division, and then joined the Fourth Armored in the drive towards Prague. In these last days of the war, we were occupied primarily with the rounding up of former Nazi big-shots—ex-Gauleiters and Unterfuehrers—and other obvious war criminals."

When the war ended, the 196th Field Artillery battalion was near Prague. As soon as Sergeant Demetros was informed that he was eligible to return to the States, he sought leave to Greece to find his mother and sister, trapped there while visiting relatives by the outbreak of war.

"I found my people—almost starved and without clothes and shelter. I immediately made arrangements for them to come home. They live in Atlanta now."

In the course of his active army career, Sgt. Pete Demetros has been awarded the Purple Heart medal, the Bronze Star with "V", the ETO ribbon with five battle stars, the Combat Infantryman's badge, the Merchant Marine medal, the American Theater ribbon, the Victory medal, Good Conduct medal, the Occupation ribbon, and a Presidential Unit citation, awarded while serving with the Third battalion, 395th Infantry regiment of the 99th division as forward observer during the Battle of the Bulge.

Truckers Promoted

Pfc. Johnnie Lopezz, Everett Wells, Roy Hicks, Victor J. Edwards, James McCard, Warren Allen, Thomas C. Wright, and Arthur Pullum, all to technician fifth grade; and Pfcs. Julius Hill and Clarence E. Walker to corporal.

THRIFT MEASURES TO BE ENFORCED

With President Truman's order restricting the use of heating and motor fuels, Maj. Gen. John W. O'Daniel, Infantry Center commander, has announced that the local conservation board will begin bearing down in its thrift program with emphasis placed on more careful use of material, utilities, and equipment.

Mindful of the increasing wastage of gas, fuel, and electricity by military and civilian personnel and their families, unit organization officers in their meeting Monday planned to adopt a "get tough" policy for violaters.

GEN. JACOB L. DEVERS . . . visits here Saturday

President Truman's order has directed that federal buildings using oil for heating be limited to 68 degrees, and in order to save gasoline, government cars be limited to 40 miles per hour.

In discussing the prevalent shortage of fuel, the board sought ways and means of curbing excessive use of fuel in some instances, and at the same time to improve the heating arrangement in others. Major H. W. Rodenmayer, assistant C-4, who presided over the conference declared that "since there is a definite shortage of fuel, people residing on the post must be careful not to waste fuel. With the fuel shortage situation what it is, people here are lucky they have any heat at all."

In its "get tough" policy, the board will begin to bear down on its general overall conservation of minor things, such as unecessary damage of doors, windows, stairs and other equipment in buildings and quarters, and the excessive use of electric light bulbs.

Attention will be focused on electric lights burning outside during the daytime nd excessive use of electricity in homes. If the wastage of electricity is not curbed, steps will be taken to read all meters and those found exceeding their quota, will be forced to pay for the excess, it was announced.

While curbing the use of too much electricity in some places, a concerted effort is being made to improve lighting facilities in various buildings; especially mess halls, where fluorescent lighting is contemplated.

Due To Arrive On January 24

General Jacob L. Devers, commanding general of the Army Ground Forces, will arrive Saturday, January 24, for a two-day tour of the Infantry Center, it was learned today.

Following a conference with Maj. Gen. John W. O'Daniel, Infantry Center Commander, and heads of the Infantry School, General Devers will inspect various installations on the post.

During his visit to the Infantry School, the AGF head will make a study of Infantry methods and techniques, and will study the school's functions and activities. Demonstrations of weapons and the latest infantry techniques are also on the agenda.

A graduate of West Point in 1908, General Devers served as an artillery instructor at Fort Sill, Okla., throughout the first world war, and later became an instructor at the Command and General Staff School at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, and the Army War College, Washington, D. C.

For a short time during World War II, the general commanded U. S. armed forces in Europe. He was credited with building and training, in a short space of time, an armored force at least equal in size and power to the Panzer machine that the Nazis spent years in building.

New Army Show Appears Jan. 29

Military personnel who have been yearning for the return of live talent stage productions, will get an eyeful January 29 and 30 when the sensational new army personne l show, "Something to Brag About," will be presented at the Main theater.

Described as the army's answer to the end of USO Camp Shows, "Something to Bragg About" is a musical comedy which was organized experimentally at Fort Bragg, N. C.

Produced as an experiment to determine if the army could furnish its own entertainment from talent available on army posts, the new show has met with smashing success since its inception. Acclaimed as one of the best soldier shows ever presented, it has been playing to packed houses during its tour throughout the Third Army area.

The performance is arranged by Miss Kippy Lynn, civilian actress technician, who has been employed by the army for the purpose of organizing and directing these performances.

Four shapely and very talented actresses will dance, sing, and entertain. Leading the parade will

Benning Survives Brief Cold Wave Without Privations

Except for a slight gas shortage, a number of frozen water pipes and a couple of burst water mains, Fort Benning survived the recent unusual cold snap without any great privations, according to post engineer officials.

The post, when caught in the throes such as the recent spell, undergoes unusual steps to combat a cold wave, and in this case, post engineers were well perpared to handle any conditions arising from the freezing weather.

Local residents were a little short on gas in heating their homes, due to the loss of pressure in the lines caused by the great demand for other purposes. Fuel oil was substituted for gas in the large central heating plants here when it became apparent that gas was getting low. Several large water mains burst in the areas including the one at Lawson field and one at Sand Hill, where water supply for fire fighting equipment was temporarily blocked.

A total of $5,000 will be donated to the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, Inc., from funds derived from the 1947 Community Chest Fund, it was announced this week by Maj. Gen. John W. O'Daniel, Infantry Center commander.

This sum, approved by General O'Daniel, will represent Fort Benning in the national March of Dimes campaign now being conducted.

No further drive for donations to the foundation will be conducted here, the general said, although any contributions from persons desiring to aid in the campaign will be accepted.

Unit commanders have been instructed to place boxes, jars, or other suitable receptacles adjacent to bulletin boards along with March of Dimes posters. Commanders have further been instructed to appoint personnel to collect contributions daily from these receptacles.

Any money collected will be turned over to Lt. Col. Wesley U. Moran, Infantry Center representative for the March of Dimes, at room 225 in the Infantry School building.

General O'Daniel also announced that any individual who desires to make a substantial contribution may deliver or mail it to Colonel Moran or to the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, Inc., 120 Broadway, New York 5, N. Y.

Sand Hill Unit Has Birthday

The first battalion, 25th Infantry regiment, one of the elements scheduled for reorganization, was honored with a parade and review during the regiment's 78th observance of organization day Wednesday, Jan. 14, at the Sand Hill area parade grounds. Participating units included the First and Second battalions, 25th Infantry; 998th Field Artillery; and the 25th Infantry band.

The units were assembled at 10:30 a. m., and James W. Stevens, adjutant, presented the troops to Col. Le Grande A. Diller, regimental commander. The First battalion, under the command of Lt. Col. Robert W. King, then marched to the post of honor on the right of the reviewing stand.

During the ceremonies, Pfc. Cliff King, Jr., Company C, 25th Infantry, received the Purple Heart for wounds received in "action against the enemy" while a member of Company I, 370th Infantry, in Italy.

With music furnished by the 25th Infantry band, the units passed in review before Col. Diller, his staff, and the honorees. A large group of visitors, friends, and relatives witnessed the evenis.

be Miss Lynn, author, director, and dancer. Others are Billie Dobson, of "Mortgages and Whiskey Don't Mix" fame, T-3 Margaret Reed, and Emiline Kinner. About 32 soldiers from Fort Bragg will be in the supporting cast.

Termed a brilliant success in its premier performance last month at Fort Bragg, the show is catching on fast. "Book" of the show was written by Miss Lynn and Miss Anita Carroll during similar duty in Europe during the war, and is described as flexible enough to be used by almost any type of troops.

As a result of the success of the Fort Bragg experiment, it is contemplated that over 100 civilian actresses would be employed by the government to organize similar shows in other camps. The organization will be known as "CAT."

The idea for the organization of such shows using the talents found on army posts was conceived and made a project at Third Army Headquarters by Colonel W. G. Skelton, assisted by Major Joe C. Harvard.

The new program, which appears to be the answer to the army's discontinuance of USO shows, has had a good beginning, and it is probable that similar organizations will be created in other camps throughout the nation.

Vet, Civilian Honored At Formal Ceremony

A Fort Benning soldier and a retired veteran of 27 years service were honored at a formal review and ceremony at Stillwell field January 15 when Private First Class Otis Morris, Company B, 325th Infantry regiment, and Jack Paciono, of Columbus, were presented with awards by Col. Charles H. Royes, commanding officer of School Troops.

Pfc. Morris received the Silver Star and Bronze Star. He was awarded the Silver Star for gallantry in action near Kibwe, Mindanao, Philippine Islands, on May 7, 1945, and was awarded the Bronze Star for "exemplary service in ground combat on August 1, 1944" in the Pacific.

When his rifle company was "pinned down in an open field by heavy enemy machine gun and rifle fire, from well prepared positions concealed in the adjoining woods, Private Morris crawled to a forward position and knocked out a machine gun, allowing his company to move to cover. He again went forward under fire to administer first-aid to a wounded comrade, remaining with him until he was successfully able to move the wounded man to the company area for further medical treatment."

Morris was awarded the Bronze Star while serving with the 124th Infantry regiment of the 31st division in the Pacific.

Mr. Paciono received the Army Commendation ribbon for service from December 8, 1941 to May 1947 while assigned as sergeant of the guard at the Infantry School. He was retired from the service on July 1, 1947, after 27 years in the Army. He now resides in Columbus.

122 Students Enrolled For Airborne Training

A total of 122 students in the Airborne battalion's Company C have entered their third week, having begun training Monday on the 34-foot towers.

Cadet leaders of the company are Capt. B. J. Anderson, Lt. K. B. Watts, Lt. D. S. Carroll and Lt. F. R. Baker.

Williams Joins Special Service

The Infantry Center special service office has announced the addition to its staff of S-Sgt. Robert H. Williams who has been appointed publicity agent for the athletic and recreation branch.

Formerly attached to School Troops, Sergeant Williams returned to Fort Benning in November of last year from Keesler field, Mississippi, where he reenlisted in October 1947. A native of Crystal Springs, Mississippi, he entered the service the first time in 1940, served two years in Puerto Rico, and then came to Fort Benning to attend the Officer Candidate School in 1942.

After being commissioned here in November, 1942, he joined the 31st Infantry division at Camp Shelby, Miss. As first lieutenant he was rifle platoon leader with the 155th Infantry regiment of the 31st division in the Pacific theater.

With the 31st, Sergeant Williams participated in campaigns at New Guinea, South Philippines, Mindanao, and Luzon.

In assuming his new assignment, Sergeant Williams will handle publicity for all special service and athletic and recreation activities on the post.

RIVER CROSSING FAILED

TIS Student Served With 'Lost Battalion'

The Rapido river crossing and the "lost battalion" of the 36th Infantry division are stamped indelibly in the memory of T-Sgt. Buddy M. Yeomans, who is enrolled in the enlisted motor course at the Infantry school.

Sergeant Yeomans, now assigned to the Student Training regiment's 10th company, was a member of the 141st Infantry regiment of the 36th division during the war, and participated in the crossing in Italy.

Attempting to cut the main supply route of the German troops who were pressing U. S. forces on the Anzio beach head, the American division began crossing the river Jan. 21, 1944. With the Germans firmly entrenched on the other side and the river too wide and too rapid for rubber life rafts, the attempt failed after heavy casualties had been inflicted.

Sergeant Yeomans was among those who crossed the river, but who swam back when it became apparent that the crossing had failed. Three fourths of his company were either killed or wounded during the operation.

In October, 1944, the sergeant was with the First battalion of the 141st when it was trapped by the Germans near Belford gap in France. The battalion was cut-off five days, and all attempts to supply them by air failed. Finally, the unit was rescued by the 442nd Infantry regiment, composed of Japanese-American troops.

Sergeant Yeomans participated in five campaigns while assigned to the 36th division, including the invasion of Salerno on Sept. 9, 1943; Anzio – Nutuno, Naples – Foggia, Rome-Arno, southern France, the Rhineland, and central Germany. He was in the invasion of southern France.

For his war service, Sergeant Yeomans was awarded the Silver Star, Bronze Star, and Purple Heart with cluster.

Following completion of the motor course, he will return to the Ninth Infantry regiment of the Second division at Fort Lewis, Wash., where he will resume his duties as motor sergeant.

Special Service Sets Tour Dates

Through the efforts of the special service officer, many local firms have shown an interest to conduct tours through their factories, plants, hospitals, and other points of interest in order to acquaint enlisted personnel with the methods of operations of these various installations.

As a result of this, the special service office will make available the necessary transportation for these tours that will take place on Wednesday afternoons, it was announced early this week. These tours take from three to four hours, and it will be necessary that from 25 to 30 persons express a desire to make these inspections before arrangements will be made to conduct the tours.

Each week, a notice will be posted in the Bayonet as to the time and place, and this will be done in a week's advance of the tour.

Vehicles used for the express purpose of transporting persons on these tours will leave the bus station near the Main PX at 1:30 p. m.

All men wishing to participate are requested to submit their names at least three days in advance to their recreation officers of tours published, it was further requested.

Customer: "What's wrong with the Half Man-Half Woman' act today?"

Packed Audience Sees Sand Hill Variety Show

By AL WISE

Prominent on the 25th Infantry's 79th annual observance of organization day, Jan. 14, was the one-hour and 15-minute variety show staged before a packed audience at Theater No. 7. The classy acts were presented by the 25th Infantry and 999th Field Artillery with music by the 25th Infantry orchestra. S-Sgt. Jesse R. Owens served as actor-producer.

Prior to the beginning of the show, Chaplain (Major) John A. DeVeaux, serving as master of ceremonies, introduced Col. commander, Lt. Col. Robert W. Le Grande A. Diller, regimental King, Lt. Col. Archer G. Brill, and Maj. R. C. Stump, commanding officers of First and Second battalions, 25th Infantry, and the 999th Field Artillery, respectively. All four commanding officers eulogized the outstanding record maintained by the regiment, and each commended the present personnel for a "good job well done."

Trophies were awarded to S/Sgt. William Henry, captain of the First battalion basketball quintet, winners of the recent regimental intra-mural basketball tourney; T/5 Alan Cuffey, who was adjudged the outstanding actor during a recent talent show, and S/Sgt. Jesse R. Owens, actor-producer for having successfully organized the show and declared "hope" in his role as a comedian. During a review held by the First battalion Friday afternoon, Sergeant Henry presented the basketball trophy to Col. King for permanent placement in the battalion trophy room.

Sparkling, scintillating, and entertaining throughout, the show completely won its audience with its well paced timing and variety. Acclaimed for their talented work were Franky G. Lumpkin, Cordell Moses, and David B. Smith for their vivid one act pantomine, "A Night in Harlem"; Alan Cuffey "Study in Terpischore"; Tommy Terrell, boogie woogie specialist, and the vocal offerings by David A. Johnson. Producer Jesse R Owens, participating as a performer, had the audience "rollin'" in the aisles with his rapid fire comedy skit, while rounding out the program to a full pleasing balance were James Thomas, vocalist; Clifford Adams, soft shoe dancer; William Penney, jitterbug routine, and a guitar solo by Oliver Keys. The 25th Infantry orchestra entertained with several specialty numbers.

Captain Alley Gets New Assignment

Capt. Herman L. Alley, former liaison officer for the 319th Field Artillery battalion, has been named battalion intelligence officer, replacing Capt. Donald L. Schupp, who has been named adjutant.

Captain Alley has been a member of the 319th since July, 1946, as battery commander and liaison officer. He served 32 months in Europe as commander of the 456th Field Artillery battalion's Battery A.

His decorations include the Purple Heart, ETO ribbon with six battle stars, American theater and American defense ribbons, Victory and Occupation medals, Bronze arrowhead, French and Belgian Fourrageres, and Netherlands Orange Lanyard.

10-YEAR VETERAN TAKING AIRBORNE TRAINING HERE

Among the many former combat infantrymen enrolled for training in the Airborne battalion's Company F is Capt. Garland Bodby, veteran of 10 years service.

Upon graduation, he was assigned to the 80th Infantry division at Camp Forrest, Tenn. While there he was placed on special duty as a physical instructor at the Second Army's Ranger School. He sailed with the 80th division for England in 1944.

Landing in France in August, 1944, Captain Godby, as a company commander, saw action in France, Luxemburg, and Germany. His company was filmed, while in combat, for the Signal Corps production, "The True Glory".

Following wounds received at Ringel, Luxemburg, in January, 1945, Captain Godby was evacuated to the U. S. for hospitalization at McGuire General hospital in Richmond, Va.

After his discharge from the hospital eight months later, the captain was assigned to the occupation forces on Okinawa, where he served as commanding officer of the 785th Military Police battalion. During this time he visited the Philippine islands, Japan, and China.

Captain Godby was intergrated into the Regular Army in July, 1946, as a first lieutenant, and returned to the States shortly afterwards.

AIR FORCE INAUGURATES WEEKLY NETWORK SHOW

"The Air Force Hour," a series of Sunday afternoon radio shows, featuring an all-soldier cast, was inaugurated at 2 p. m. last Sunday over the Mutual Broadcasting system. The program was heard locally over WSAC, Columbus' newest radio station.

The new show will be presented from 2-2:30 p. m. each Sunday, and will include music, news, and entertainment. Each program will be highlighted with a news commentary by a guest newspaperman, who will give a factual report on the latest developments in aviation.

James J. Strebig, aviation editor for the Associated Press, was the guest reporter on last Sunday's broadcast.

"The Air Force Hour" features classical and popular musical selections by the 65-piece Air Force orchestra, the largest service orchestra in the country, which is directed by Maj. George S. Howard, of Reamstown, Pa. Music for the inaugural program included "Poinciana," the popular "I Wonder Who's Kissing Her Now," "Jingles All the Way," "Through the Looking Glass Suite," and "Old Man River."

Another highly interesting portion of the program was a recorded on-the-spot interview with Sgt. Harold Lichty and Sgt. Charles Lutz, who took a microphone to a pressure chamber to describe the actual experience of explosive decompression to which high-altitude fliers are subjected. On-the-spot interviews with Air Force personnel in this country and throughout the world will be conducted at each program to give an up-to-the-minute account of interesting and unusual jobs performed by USAF personnel in the air, on the line and in the laboratory.

Fear Of Career Tests Unjustified, Army Says

Army headquarters has announced that the soldier's private misgivings about the tests to be included in the Army career guidance program are wholly unwarranted, since the new promotion system soon to be adopted will not include subjecting the unwary soldier to tests containing wordy sentences, unfamiliar terms, vague theories, double talk, or tricky questions.

The career guidance plan encompasses more than the promotion plan, and the promotion plan contemplates more than exaggerated tests, officials said.

Although tests will play an important part in the new system, they will not be the only factor determining elegibility for promotions. Qualifications will include time in grade with from six to 18 months required for promotion from sixth to fifth grade, plus five years total service from second to first grade.

The soldier's efficiency in performance of his duties will be evaluated by a new Efficiency Report form, which is now being prepared for distribution throughout the army. The form covers the important elements of the soldier's job efficiency, including leadership, supervisory ability, and other personal characteristics relating to his ability to do the job.

The soldier's ability to do the job, not his ability to 'write about it,' will be discovered by the new type job-knowledge tests. Questions contained in the tests will emphasize simplicity and practicality, thereby reducing the influence of mere verbal skill and ability, authorities pointed out. Furthermore, the new program will emphasize performance tests, covering all phases of every Military Occupation Specialty in the new career job structure. Applicants for promotion will be required to execute standard tasks —firing weapons, assembling a distributor, typing a paragraph, or whatever tasks are identified with the soldier's job.

Citizens, Military Council

Reference is made from time to time in the Columbus newspapers of the Citizens and Military Council and of the program which this body is endeavoring to carry out. It is thought a brief recital of just what is the Citizens and Military Council, who makes up its membership, and what it is striving to accomplish might be of interest to our many readers, especially so because of the benefit its programs will have on Fort Benning.

This council was created in October, 1946, when Major General John W. O'Daniel, commanding the Infantry Center at Fort Benning, invited a group of civic and business leaders to meet with him in order to talk over mutual problems of Columbus, Phenix City, and Fort Benning. Out of this initial meeting grew what is now known as the Citizens and Military Council, and which today is composed of the Mayor of Columbus, the Mayor of Phenix City, the Chairman of the Muscogee County Commissioners, the Chairman of the Russell County Commissioners, the Presidents of both the Columbus and Phenix City Chambers of Commerce and of both the Junior Chambers, the heads of the four local radio stations, the Publisher of the Columbus Ledger-Enquirer Newspapers, the President of the Columbus-Phenix City Ministerial Alliance, the Superintendent of Schools of both Columbus and Phenix City, the President of the Columbus Merchants Association, the Chairman of the Aviation Committee of the Columbus Chamber of Commerce, the Director of the Board of Public Safety, and outstanding Negro representatives from Columbus, Phenix City, and Fort Benning. Several key commanders from Fort Benning, together with General O'Daniel, make up its members. The council meets regularly on the third Friday of each month at the Ninth Street USO building in Columbus.

Out of this group of civic and business leaders have come recommendations for improved recreational facilities for the large numbers of both white and Negro soldiers, and for other projects such as the beautification and safety of Victory Drive. This body is advisory in character and deals with and through the regularly constituted civic and business bodies.

The proposed plan for the beautification and safety of the Victory Drive was prepared and submitted by the council to city and county authorities, and it has been just announced by the Chairman of the Muscogee County Commissioners that this plan has won the approval of the State Highway Commission, which has asked the Muscogee County Commissioners to put it into effect. And, along this line, the Columbus Chamber of Commerce has recently appointed a committee to work with the council and the commissioners, which committee is composed of outstanding men and women in Columbus and Fort Benning, who are interested in this project and who can contribute much in ability and effort toward securing its fulfillment.

While material improvements can be seen, and progress noted from month to month—such as the 'clean-up' of the road through the Post, and the 'clean-up' of the drive from the traffic circle to town, done by the County and the City Commissioners, yet another improvement has been noted by many of those deeply concerned, and that is the improvement in relations between the Fort and local communities.

The fact that the civic and business leaders of the three communities do meet regularly each month, and with nearly always a full attendance, makes for better understanding of each other's problems and ideas as to how best to try to solve them for the good of all. With the council having a continuing membership, composed as it is of the yearly elected heads of the civic and business organizations and the key commanders from Fort Benning, has resulted in friendships and appreciation for one another, and has made for real cooperation in helping solve these same problems.

Perhaps the one thing that has been accomplished is that the Army has patterned its other such bodies along these lines, and numerous requests have been received from other cities asking as to its workings and composition as a guide in setting up similar bodies.

Letter Box

We are taking the liberty of reprinting a portion of a letter received from Chaplain (Maj.) Emmett G. Jones, formerly assistant Infantry Center chaplain. Chaplain Jones is now on duty in Straubing, Germany.

"You still have the best Army newspaper I've seen, and on my way to Germany I covered a lot of ports and have seen several papers here. It's a good paper. Keep up the good work . . .

"Whether people tell you you are doing a good job or not, the fine results must be a real compensation in themselves . . .

". . . and the news from Benning will be a welcome relief in my isolation . . ."

THIS DAY

Editor's Note: This is the thirteenth in the series of This Day which presents a chronicle of American events, highlights of history that mark each day in the narrative of our nation. Today's column recalls the events between January 16 and This Day, January 22.

JANUARY 16, 1776 . . . On This Day, 172 years ago, Colonel Richard Gridley was appointed the first Chief Engineer of the Army . . . Admiral George Dewey, who distinguished himself during the Civil War and against the Spanish in the Philippine waters, died in Washington 31 years ago in 1917.

JANUARY 17, 1706 . . . On This Day, 242 years ago, Benjamin Franklin was born in Boston, Mass. Franklin was probably America's greatest diplomat and leader . . . It was on this Day in 1917, 31 years ago, that the U. S. purchased the Virgin Islands in the West Indies from Denmark for $25,000,000.

JANUARY, 18, 1782 . . . Daniel Webster, one of the most brilliant men America has produced, was born in New Hampshire on This Day, 166 years ago. Webster is remembered for his eloquent oratory in the Senate of the U. S. Although he aspired to be president, he never rose higher than the Secretary of State . . . On This Day, 64 years ago, in 1884, the leader of the famous Greely Arctic Expedition, Lt. Horace Greely, died.

JANUARY 19, 1807 . . . This Day, 141 years ago, marks the birth of Robert Edward Lee at Stratford, Westmoreland county, Virginia. A graduate of West Point in 1829, he served with the U. S. Army, but when Virginia seceded from the union, Lee followed his natie state and became military leader of the Confederacy. . . . On This Day, 139 years ago, in 1809, Edgar Allan Poe, famous author, was born in Boston, Mass.

JANUARY 20, 1801 . . . On This Day, 147 years ago, President John Adams appointed John Marshal Chief Justice of the U. S. . . . On This Day, 46 years ago, in 1902, the Panama Canal commission recommended the purchase of property rights of the canal, as offered by the French company for $40,000,000.

JANUARY 21, 1824 . . . This date marks the birth, 124 years ago, of Thomas Jonthan Jackson, born in Clarksburg, W., Va. Jackson, who acquired the name "Stonewall," was shot in the arm by his troops who mistook him for a Federal officer. His arm was amputated and pneumonia developed. He died on May 10, 1863.

JANUARY 22, 1883 . . . It was on this day that John C. Calhoun made his famous speech in Congress, hailing from South Carolina, he resigned the vice-presidency to become a senator. His message was strong and to the point as he vigorously defended the "state's rights" theory. Had Calhoun approached the subject of nullification, and the question of slavery differently, the history of our country might have been vastly changed.

By MURRAY E. HILL

The longer that I am with Red Cross the more impressed I am in the confidence the American people have in it as demonstrated over and over again in overflowing measure. Nineteen million school children contribute their time and finances. Literally millions of others, both adults and teen-agers, contribute money and countless hours of volunteer work to this, their organization.

I have been interested in the psychology of why people give both time and money to the Red Cross. Of course there are some simple reasons why people give to any cause.

Compulsion—pressure of one degree or another emanating from an influential individual or group is a common device to encourage giving. One may have established a habit pattern in giving. One often hears the declaration, "I always give to my church and to the Red Cross." To admit either would make the spokesman feel bad. Occasionally one gives to be noted on a special givers' or sponsors' list, honor rolls, bronze plaques, etc.

These, and there are others of similar character, are not usually sufficient motives in that they are not deep enough nor persistent enough to cause the constant giving of time and money year after year.

I have been looking around to see what was the psychological reason. Many have been the replies. One that I think best I secured from a hardheaded banker who said, "I give to the Red Cross both time and money because I like the genius of its organization. It has, in a sense, the sponsorship of the government. It is referred to often as a humanitarian arm of the government. It is a liaison channel between our military forces and our homes at all times. It has not been unusual for the government to call upon the Red Cross to do certain things according to its specifications. This is true among disaster societies. It makes an annual report to Congress and its financial accounting is to the War Department.

"Together with this government tie, I like the sponsorship of the American people of Red Cross interests. This is truer than ever in these later years. National—area—chapters tie-up spread a network over this entire country which allows the most remote community to register its voice on policy and program.

"A people's partnership is more than a glib phrase. It is a dynamic reality. It is in harmony with the American way. I am a responsible trustee of its purposes and problems. In my circles of activity, am the Red Cross, and, joined with 142,000,000 other Americans, have in it a potential that is atomic. That is why I contribute both time and money to my Red Cross."

And very well expressed, too. I would like to hear from you readers why you are interested in volunteering your time in teaching first aid and water safety courses, knitting, sewing garments, acting as nurses' aides, as well as donating your money to its support. Drop me a line and let me have your reasons for supporting your Red Cross.

IMPOSSIBLE NEUTRALITY

By Chaplain R. O. Kirsch

"Remain neutral" is an exhortation frequently heard today. In certain circumstances it is good advice. If we are ignorant of the merits or demerits of a case, not to remain neutral is both absurd and wrong. But in connection with Christ and His cause it is a different matter.

We cannot remain neutral here because the battle between good and evil in which He is so supremely engaged is every man's battle. We may not be in a position to take sides in a controversy on poor art or good art; poor philosophy or good philosophy. We know so little, it may be, about either, and, in any case, we are not vitally affected. But regarding the war between good and evil we are so affected. We are in this strife; this strife is in us; we are part of it; we cannot escape it. Hence, though we may not be aggressively for the evil or aggressively for the good, we are not being neutral. Our very non-aggressiveness is helping the evil.

If we take no pains to cultivate thoughts of God; engage in no acts of worship; if we do not devote ourselves to forwarding His purposes; give Him no love; do not cultivate prayer; show no interest in being, or in helping others to be, what He would have men be, our very supineness is itself activity against Him. The religion of "I never did anyone any harm" is a most subtle snare; its seeming harmlessness is most deceivingly harmful. "Why should I bother?" does not mean neutrality—it means treason.

We cannot be neutral because Christ's way is the only way. Lazy indifference, apathetic drifting are choices of another way just as much as active rejection of His way. The alternatives are the narrow way and the broad way. If you do not deliberately and willingly chose the narrow, you are already on the broad. There is no middle way. "He that is not with Me is against Me."

"You ain't got no cause to worry, lady," the driver assured the passenger as she straightened her hat while the taxi continued to swerve and skid down Main Street one wintry day. "I ain't goin' to land back in no hospital now after 18 months in one overseas."

"How dreadful," she murmured sympathetically, "You must have been seriously wounded."

"Nope," he replied cheerfully, "never got a scratch. I was a mental case!"

He ordered a Georgia license plate last year. It came on January 9, 1947. He got number 16870C. The year went merrily by until December was almost over.

An order for a new plate was again necessary. Again Sergeant Lumpkin ordered it through the provost marshal. Again it arrived on January 9. The number 16870C.

Fort Benning Shares In Girl Scout Project

The Fort Benning girl scouts will be among the millions of girl scouts all over the United States who will, in the next few weeks, devote their time and effort to a fine project, one in which all past personnel can take part.

"One hundred thousand will be clothed by us!" This is the resolution of the scouts who will do their share to help ship kits of children's clothing to devastated countries across the seas.

Each girl scout troop on the Post has pledged to ship one box of clothing. The distribution of these kits will be by the American Friends Service Committee, who also selects the countries to which the kits will be shipped. Selection will be made on the basis of greatest need. Good quality and sound workmanship are stressed so that the wardrobes will be neat as well as sturdy. To those who donate, the committee has asked that all items be clean and in usable condition.

Boxes for clothing donations are placed in the main PX, Block 12 NCO club, Pine Lodge NCO club, and the Officers' club. These boxes will be located at these points until Thursday, January 29.

The following list for the three type boxes to be packed and sent by the Girl Scouts is the official list published by Girl Scout headquarters:

Gray and Mrs. Arnie L.Millican. Anyone unable to take donations to these boxes is asked to contact Mr. Millican, 2948, or Mrs. Gray, 3755, and donations will be called for. Piano Team Set For Male Chorus Concert On Friday

The Fort Benning presentation of the 25th Infantry male chorus at the Main Post theater Friday evening at 8:30 promised to be one of the outstanding events of the winter. Since their highly successful debut at Service Club No. 2 on Thanksgiving Day, the soldier choristers have been in great demand. Engagements have been filled in several Post chapels, Spencer High in Columbus, and the 11th Street YMCA.

Tech. Sgt. Arthur J. Patterson will direct the male chorus assisted by Sgt. Willis M. Brown. By popular demand the two-piano team of T-Sgt. John E. Williams and T-3 Troy M. McCall Jr. will figure prominently on the program. Both artists possess a wide musical background. Sgt. Williams matriculated in piano, harmony and music theory at Indiana State University and Sgt. McCall studied piano and music appreciation at Livingston college, Salisbury, N. C. and was taking graduate work at the time of his induction into the Army. Sgt. Willis M. Brown was a member of the famed Tuskegee Institute choral group. He will be heard in several solo numbers.

Personnel wishing to purchase tickets may obtain them from the 25th Infantry and the 999th Field Artillery as announced Monday by Capt. James E. Vansant. Military personnel may use tickets for dependents and guests.

Benning's P-TA Has Fine Program At Post School

Parents and teachers of the Fort Benning P-TA enjoyed a fine program on Friday evening at the school auditorium when Col. A. A. Cardona gave a talk on "The Importance of Cooperation between Parents and Teachers" and spoke of the importance of close contact between parents and teachers in helping the individual child.

The fact that the child is born with instincts which must be tempered with the conscience which is instilled in the child by parents was brought out, and the great importance of parents thoroughly familiarizing themselves with all school policies in order to see that their children comply with them.

An announcement was made about the Easter Bazaar which will be given the end of March with details to be made known later. It is with regret that the Post P-TA organization loses Mrs. Frederick Bull, who leaves for the West Coast with Major Bull, and will join him in Japan as soon as permitted.

This month's room prize, given to the class whose children had the largest attendance at P-TA, was won by the first section of the first grade, which is taught by Miss Grimes.

Doughboys Retain Third Army Title

Bragg Defeated In Close Match At Post Alleys

Cheers and spasmadical groans marked the activity at the bowling alleys last Thursday, but the final cry was a definite sound of glee and satisfaction, for the Fort Benning Doughboy keglers had defeated Fort Bragg, N. C., by a close margin, holding on to their Third Army bowling crown by virtue of a 2,752-2,691 pin count.

The relief rolling role, taken by Doughboy Ewald Knuth, pulled the Doughs out of a none too comfortable position, and afforded them the necessary margin to retain their title. Knuth pulled one out of the hat with a turkey in the final frames of his game, and the Doughs wound up on the long end of the score.

The local pinmen now have two laurels tucked snuggly away, having won the crown just a year ago under the same tight circumstances. The Doughs had to weather four other teams to fight their way to the finals, and had defeated Fort Bragg early in the tourney to take the top-seeded position in the final outing.

No Defeats

In winning with a clean slate, the Benning team became the only tourney entry to finish the meet without a blemish. In the double elimination tourney, each squad had to be defeated twice before being eliminated from competition. Bragg, after their first defeat by the Doughs, had nipped each of their other opponents, and won their way to the finals with the locals.

Benning barreled over Fort Bragg the second day of the meet by a close pin count, but found the going even tougher in the final match. After taking the first game of the championship match by a comfortable score, the Benning team lagged, dropping the second by some 30 pins. Nevertheless, the final tilt in the three-game playoff saw the Doughs embark with 18 pins over the contenders.

The consistent bowling of Team Captain Arnie Millican and the relief pin toppling of Ewald Knuth broke the deadlock of the two top-notch groups. Benning rallied splendidly to capture the finale, 928 to 885, and in so doing set one of the highest match marks posted in the tourney.

Sets Scoring Honors

Although Benning walked away with the prize, Fort Bragg did get some compensation. Joe Bitala, ace Bragg bowler, took high point honors for the entire tourney when he threw a sizzling 254 in the first day of play. His mark, although threatened three different times, stood high through the three-day competition. In the championship match, two men tried extremely hard to better Bitala's mark, but crippling blows late in their respective games pulled tehir scores short of the top level that Bitala set.

Bitala not only holds the high in individual games, but took the average laurels with a blistering 568 match mean for an average game of 189. Frank Olsen, of Fort Jackson, followed with 529 for a game medium of 177, while Doughboy-Arnie Millican copped third ribbon with a 522 and a game average of 174.

Following the regular team competition, the singles and doubles events were played. The trophies again went to the Doughboy keglers, with Arnie Millican teaming with another export, Phil "Pappy" Harris, to clinch that divisional crown. Together, the two Post pinmen amassed, 1721 pins in their matches to outclass Bragg's Joe Bitala and Fritz Alexander, who totalled 1679.

But Joe Bitala, the leading bowler of the tourney, outclassed all other contenders for the All-Events trophy. Bitala, besides posting the higher score and the high average, rolled the greatest number of pins, 2863.

Another Braggonian came closer to Bitala's record than anyone else in the running, but was followed closely by Benning's Arnie Millican. Fritz Alexander set the pace

Bragan, chief of special services, presents team captain Arnie Millican with the Third Army bowling trophy following the Doughs' smashing win over a strong Fort Bragg, N. C., kegler aggreation. The Doughs' copped their second bowling crown in as many years, and added another victory hitch to a long belt of wins over the 1947 season.

Post Five Seeks Win Over Flyers

The Doughboys hit the road again tomorrow night, but this time Ced Tallis will direct his wards to a spot not too distant from Fort Benning.

After a very strenuous two weeks, a period that saw the locals matched with ten different teams in 14 nights, the Doughs take on a weak Columbus Manufacturing quintet at the latter's court tomorrow night at 8 p. m. This will be the second meeting of the two clubs, the first going to the Doughs by a 46-32 margin.

Four games are slated for the Doughboys' agenda this week with the toughest test being the skirmish with the Pensacola Flyers set for Tuesday night on the Main Post gym floor. The last time the two squads met the Floridians clipped the Tallismen 56-52 in a thriller that was anybody's ball game until the final gun.

Pensacola Loaded

Pensacola is loaded with talent this year, and also is blessed with the services of an All-Navy forward, Bob Gallagher, who caused so much trouble during the recent engagement. Besides being a high scorer—he tallied 18 markers against the Doughs—he is a standout in his floor play especially on rebound work and breaking up opposing offenses.

The Flyers generally have former Navy players from the Naval Academy, and this year boast the talents of two former Annapolis stars.

In spite of the loss to the Pensacola crew Ced Tallis is very confident that the club will make a good showing, especially with the match set for the home court. When asked about the loss, the only one on the recent road trip, Tallis commented that the Doughs had played superlative ball, but were simply outscored.

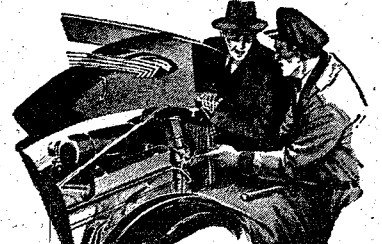
Tallis On Leave

For the first time in two years, the locals will be without the guidance of Coach Sed Tallis. He will be on a short leave this week, but has handed over his coaching assignment to Lt. Louis Grizzard, an able mentor of sports at Fort Benning. Grizzard has been prominent in Post athletics for many seasons. He will tutor the Doughs in Tallis' absence, and in a very few weeks, his job will become a fulltime duty.

Tallis has remarked, and Grizzard has confirmed, that Pensacola will be in for a tough fight when they appear here Tuesday night. A speedier up offense, together with the tightening of the zone should give the soldier quintet a better chance at a much desired victory.

Two other tilts will round out the week's work, but both games will be played on foreign courts. Monday the Doughs journey to Montgomery, Alabama, to tangle with the Maxwell field Flyers, the same squad that appeared here last Monday night. Thursday, Piedmont college, of Demorest, Ga., will be the hosts to the Doughs.

New Foe



The game with Piedmont will supply a new foe for the locals, since it will be the first engagement for the two court aggregations. Little is known of the power of the collegians this season, but past performances would give them ratings along with the Georgia State Teacher's college and Oglethorpe university, both outstanding basketball schools in this section.

Barring illness or a change of plans, the same five will take the floor during the week. High scorer Harold Corizzi will be leading the lineup with Dough Scovil, Harold Haberman, Harold Lutz, and Bok Kinard shaping up the remainder of the Post quintet. Corizzi, has been the big spark in the Dough attack this season, averaging a neat 15 points per game in the 16 games he has played.

Doug Scovil continues to push the scoring leader, and has developed into one of the most versatile shots on the team.

Basketball season hit its midway mark this week with the Doughs still clinched at the .500 mark. So far this year, Ced Tallis and his Dough basketeers have been able to win but half of their games . . . many have looked down on this.

When you talk to sports enthusiasts, especially those who only read the newspapers, they will pour out their opinions without too much coaxing, and at times, little or none. Tallis and his ball club may have been the target of a great deal of criticism, some meant to be instructive, while the remainder has been, unfortunately, malicious and detrimental to the team.

The question at hand at present is, What, if anything, is wrong with the Fort Benning basketball team? Up to this point they have lost as many games as the Doughboys of last year, and yet they haven't even entered a tournament.

Well, if you have been out to see the locals when the games were being played on the home court, you would have leave to make a statement about the team. On some occasions they have looked bad—very bad, but then again they have looked like champions on other occasions, and, yet, sometimes, on their best nights, the score went to the opponents.

Sports are like anything else. You have your ups and downs. The Doughs made such a record last season that this year's team looks inferior to many. Perhaps they haven't the "get-up-and-go" that the '47 quintet had . . . perhaps, I say. But Ced Tallis has this to say about that. He would rather, I am not quoting, but relaying his comment in substance, work with this squad (1948) than any other he has ever coached. Last year's squad was a good bunch, but did not have the willingness to work and learn that the ball club has this year. Take your pick of which team you want . . . I've had mine some sometime.

It boils down to this. There's nothing wrong with the club that time can't heal. Take into consideration that no player has ever played with a teammate before . . . it's an entirely new team, besides. Many of the losses have been close. No defeat was more than ten points, six were two or less. So don't criticize too vehemently.

Then there's the question about the rooters, as few as there are. The same faces (and you can almost count them on your fingers) turn out for the ball games here on the Post. Well, I'll grant that the gym is cold, and something should be done about it . . . and soon. Sitting in an ice cold gymnasium this time of year is rough. The chiefs of some department ought to get their heads together and get the malady remedied.

But that's not the point right now. The other night, last Saturday to be exact, the preliminary game featured two girls' teams. A crowd? It was packed to the gills. Some departed in peace after that particular gall game had been concluded . . . If I was Walter Winchell, and had a microphone, I would scream, HUH into it.

Congratulations to the Fort Benning Bowling team. That was a job well done. Looke like to me that the Fort Benning athletes are pretty well running away with everything the Third Army has to offer.

This was the Doughs' second championship in two years—very fine bowling.

Indeed, Lutz is what is commonly termed, a versatile athlete. During his Army career at Fort Benning, he has excelled in football, diving and swimming, basketball, track and a number of minor sports.

Lutz began his athletic career, as far as the Army is concerned, as an expert pole-vaulter. He participated in the Third Army track meet, and walked away with his share of ribbons. By that time summer had come, and he was daily down at Russ pool. He copped the diving honors in the Post meet, and took second in the Third Army competition. Diving was just a sideline with Lutz.

But he reached his greatest heights as a ward of Capt. Butch Kendrick, who led the successful grid team. Lutz, besides being an able end who could snag passes and thwort opposing runners, distinguished bimself as an after touchdown artist. Alabama's Red Drew got wind of the red-head, and quickly scooped him up for his Crimson Tide.

Basketball will be his final sport at Fort Benning. A varsity player, Lutz has been a big man when it comes to defense. He makes his share of baskets, too.

Lawson Quintet Bumps Archer

The Lawson field Flyers wound up another week of basketball with an even .500 average, winning from the Archer Mills quintet, and dropping an 11-point decision to the Bentley Sport Shop five in a regular Y.M.C.A. league tilt, 66-55.

The Bentley game turned into one of the highest scoring contests the Flyers have engaged in this year, and featured two former Georgia Tech hoopsters, Hoyt Blackwell and Arthur Copeland, who banged away for 23 and 21 points respectively, to give the Columbus cagers their victory.

The Lawson five also wound up with a scoring ace, Jim King, who hit the nets for 16 markers. Bentley, with their varsity playing to the limit, held a 32-24 margin at the intermission.

It was Jim King doing the high scoring in the Archer Mill tilt with the Lawson team taking a well-earned 39-29 victory. A fast starting half ended with the winners holding a 25-23 advantage, but slowed up in the final stanza, closing out with the Flyers in front 39-29.

King took the limelight with 16 points, but was followed closely by Sierer, who tallied 14.

In the last two quarters, the Flyers grabbed a six-point lead, and held it that way until the final minutes of the ball game, when two baskets boosted the margin to ten.

Officers Shoot At Skeet Club

Despite the chilly weather, many local nimrods were on hand for the Sunday morning shoot at the Officers' club skeet range.

Cold hands and icy winds played havoc with many of the scores, but the sharp shooting of Capt. M. A. Pullman stood high in spite of the cold handicap. The sharp shooting Pullman fired 48 x 50. Also shooting in the 40's were Lt. Col. Hoffmeister, Capts. Carey and Heinmiller, and Dr. C. A. Peacock.

Several new G.I. skeet guns have been issued to the skeet committee and are available at the range to all members and their guests, it was announced. It was further announced that plans have been completed for the weekly shoots, and that all will be eligible.

in the final match, the championship outing, in rolling a hot 232. Millican rolled a 226 the same afternoon.

Benning won its way to the finals by downing first the Tennessee ORC instructors, and then crippled the Bragg finalists by a close margin. The finalists' cinch came the morning of the championship match, when the Doughs belted Fort Jackson by a comfortable margin.

Bragg defeated Columbia, (S. C.), Fort McPherson, and Fort Jackson, (S. C.), but entered the finals with a lone defeat suffered at the hands of the winners.

Last Thursday night, following the tourney play, Colonel Onto P. Bragan, chief of special service here, presented the trophies and awards to the winners. In addition to the high scoring awards, Benning was given the Third Army trophy, while Bragg received the runner-up award. Players of the play-off teams were awarded small trophies.

Benning Courtmen End Road Travel

A group of travel-weary Doughboy cagers rolled through the main gate before dawn last Friday, but had little hope of much rest that day since the Georgia-State Teacher college five was on the agenda for that evening.

The three-day road trip which terminated Friday had seen the Doughs cover the states of Alabama and Florida ,where they had added two more wins to their record and suffered a lone defeat.

After dropping a thriller to the Parris Island Marines at the Main Post court, the Tallismen embarked the following day to tangle with a strong Troy State Teacher Quintet at Troy, Alabama. Last Tuesday night's game between the two court fives marked the first meeting of the squads, and the third collegiate team the Doughs have faced this season.

Defeat Teachers

Troy, basing their claim to a championship team on a fine defense, were favored to clip the Doughs who have not fared too well this season. But Tallis, and his Doughboys were in no mood for such an event, and late in the game caught fire to drop the collegians, 50-36.

It was a double victory for the locals, since the previous college cagers the Doughs have played clipped them for wins. Harold Corizzi, holding tenaciously to his basket-making lead, again took scoring honors hitting the loop six times from the floor and adding two more from the foul line.

Although the Doughs held a seven-point advantage at halftime, the teachers rallied late in the third quarter to make it a tight affair. However, Doug Scovil and Bob Kinard began finding their range, and staged a Doughboy burst of power that sent the locals on to a comfortable winning margin.

Score 33 Points

Journeying south the next morning, the Doughs stopped off at the Pensacola Naval Air base for an engagement with the Navy Flyers. Although Corizzi, teaming with Haberman, produced 33 points for Tallis' quintet, the fire from the host camp was too heavy, and the Doughs wound up on the short end of a 56-52 count.

Pensacola had a far more difficult time with the army cagers than they have had with other service court aggregations. Although the Doughs trailed 26-22 at intermission, they were never out of threatening range, and overtook the lead on a number of occasions during the last half. Harold Corizzi, Doughboy scoring for the second time in as many nights, connected for 19 markers against the Flyers. Harold Haberman, recovering from a recent slump, hit the loop for 14 to take second honors.

The Doughs found more than the disappointment of a defeat in the repatedly sunny state of Florida. The mercury had followed the trend of the northern section of the nation, and caught the visiting Doughboys with a wave of cold-nipped weather.

Ced Tallis and his Benningites faced their fourth test in as many days the following night, when they were the guests of the Tyndall field fliers. In the previous meeting of the two squads, the Doughs had rallied splendidly to defeat the Florida Flyers, 43-40, and they were out to give a repeat performance.

Doug Scovil, Corizzi's scoring mate, ran wild in the Tyndall game, clicking off basket after basket, and when the night's totals were tabulated, the rangy Californian had 26 points to his credit, or less than the scoring record set by Corizzi against Oglethorpe university some weeks ago.

Although the Doughs were late getting started, being behind at halftime, they came back remarkably in the second stanza, and were unstoppable from that point on. With some 11 minutes remaining in the ball game, Tyndall held a 31-21 advantage, and appeared to be well in control of the situation. But the locals put on a determined show, and the scoreboard soon read 46-32, with the leaders reversed. While the Doughs had limited their foes to a single charity throw, they had compiled 27 more markers to their total.

Bob Geist, former Ohio State forward, led the Tyndall scoring with 17 markers, but fell far short of the mark set by Scovil.

Coach Ced Tallis was quite impressed with the showing of his team, and was ready to remark, "they really played fine ball on the trip." Although he did not wish to make excuses for the Pensacola loss, he did point out that Benning faced some really fine ball players, Gallagher, a forward that led the Pensacola scoring, is an All-Navy cager, while the Flyer quintet was further strengthened by stars from Annapolis.

'Guard' Sergeant Taking TIS Course

Typical of the many National Guardsmen presently taking courses at the Infantry School is T-Sgt. Walter S. Welhelm, a member of the 51st division in Florida.

Sergeant Wilhelm served in Europe during the war with both the First and Ninth armies. Just after the Battle of the Bulge he went into combat with the Fourth Infantry division's Eighth regiment, seeing battle in Germany and Belgium. He participated in campaigns in Normandy, Northern France, the Rhineland, and Central Germany.

As a civilian, Sergeant Wilhelm is employed as caretaker for his National Guard unit. His duties include administration work and maintenance of equipment.

Former Doughboy Coach Visits Post

The former star quarterback from the University of Tennessee, tutored the Doughs from 1944 to 1946, and led the 1946 eleven through their first undefeated season in many years. In that same year, Meek had the valuable services of such men as All-Americans John Green and Dick Pitzer, and another West Point star, John Sauer.

Working with the renown Jim Tatum, head coach at Maryland, Meek saw the Old Liners come through one of their most successful seasons, and finally go on to tie Wally Butts' Georgia Bulldogs in the Gator Bowl at Jacksonville New Year's Day.

Praises Georgia

When asked about the Gator Bowl, Meek remarked that Maryland simply ran amuck for 55 minutes and then let down. As a result, Georgia took advantage and came from a 20-7 deficit to tie the Easterners. But he was complimentary about the Georgia team, commenting that they (Georgia) "had the same kind of ball club Butts will always have." He further pointed out that had the Bulldogs had a break-away runner like the form star, Charlie Trippi, they would have been twice as potent.

People in this section of the country are naturally interested about the opinions held of Johnny Rauch, who ended the season as the nation's No. 2 passer. Meek thought that Rauch actually played better ball last year, and also remarked that in the past season, he was one of the finest defensive men in the Southeastern Conference.

Asked about Maryland's prospects for next year, the former Benning grid head replied that they would have substantially the same squad that played at the university last season. Only three men will be lost, but they will again have the services of ace Lou Gambino, who was picked as the outstanding college football player of the Washington area. Gambino was the big Maryland spark in the Gator Bowl.

Shows Interest

Meek showed particular interest in many of the Doughs who played with Butch Kendrick's squad this past season, and expressed hope that he will be able to get some of the players at Maryland. In contrast to the Southeastern Conference ruling, Maryland and the Southern Conference allow freshmen to play varsity ball.

He was especially impressed with Harold Lutz, Harold Haberman, Bob Ward, Bob Seibert, Jim Mitchell, Eddie Roberts, and Bill Tuminella. He hopes to talk to many of the former Benning gridders in a hope of getting some of them to consider Maryland as their choice of a college.

Meek recently attended the Washington Touchdown club meeting, where Jim Tatum was selected the outstanding college coach of the year. The Washington club, which is considered the top touchdown club in the country, chose Sammy Baugh as the outstanding professional ball player, John Lujack as the college best, and Gambino as the leading ace in the Washington area.

Maryland, who had broken Delaware's winning streak at 32, had one of its best seasons in years, losing only to Duke, 19-7, and to North Carolina, 19-0. They tied the North Carolina States 0-0, and later tied Georgia on New Year's Day.

Maryland nearly pulled one of the biggest upsets of the year, when they were holding the mighty Justice aggregation from North Carolina. For three quarters, the two clubs had batted away at even terms on a soggy field amidst a heavy rain. But late in the fourth stanza, with but eight minutes to go, North Carolina scored three touchdowns to hand Maryland their second and last defeat of the season.

GOOD SHOW—Jeff Fleming, right, Fort Bragg bowling team captain, commends Doughboy Captain Arnie Millican on his team's fine performance after the Doughs had clipped the Braggonians in a tight battle for their second straight Third Army kegler crown. Benning was the only team in the tourney that finished without a blemish.

Scovil Stands Out As Tallismen Win

Ced Tallis and his revived Doughboys played their best home game of the season last Saturday night before a capacity crowd at the Main Post gym. The locals, exploding late in the fourth quarter behind the sharp shooting of Doug Scovil, looked like the champions the Post team was last season, and went on to take sweet revenge from Oglethorpe university, 53-44.

In spite of the tension and wear of six games in as many days, the Tallismen exhibited almost faultless basketball in the final stanza by whipping their Atlanta opponents. Superb passing and defensive play stymied the Doughs' foes as Benning point-makers built up a slim, halftime lead.

Saturday night's victory over the collegians marked the second meeting of the two clubs, and gave them an even series split, Oglethorpe winning the first in a 65-64 thriller.

The dazzling play of Doug Scovile, Benning forward, provided most of the scoring thrills for the jam-packed stands who watched in awe as the rangy Californian hit the hoop 12 times from the floor and added another to his total of 24 with a charity toss. Scovil, accurate from every point on the floor, also stood out for his excellent passing and defensive performance.

Sharing honors with Scovil was the all-round Bob Kinard, who was the key man in the Benning floor attack. Kinard, besides being a steady basket maker, has been an invaluable man on Tallis' squad all year. His passing, faking, and floor generalship has been outstanding.

For three quarters, the two teams battled away at even terms, but the Doughs took the upper hand seconds before the intermission, and retired from the floor holding a 26-22 advantage.

Immediately after the second half gun had sounded, both squads began trading baskets, and seconds later the score stood at 30-26, with Scovil and Harold Corizzi leading the way. Oglethorpe rallied midway in the third canto and stole a two-point lead over the Doughs. Scovil sank two from the far corner, Corizzi broke away on a fast break and added another from a rebound position, and the Benning quintet took a 41-32 lead. They never relinquished their top margin from that point.

With nine minutes remaining, Tallis called for a delaying game which worked splendidly for three minutes, but the Doughs again took to making baskets and furthered their bid for a well-earned victory.

A. Z. Johnson, who was the second highest collegiate scorer last year, kept Oglethorpe in the running with beautiful shots from the corners and from his pivot position. Although Johnson, who has maintained a 20-point game average this season, copped the loser's scoring honors, he fell far short of Scovil's mark in that he tallied but 15 markers.

A much-improved defense and a faster moving offense was the difference between victory and defeat. The Doughs, by keeping the ball moving at all times, managed to outrace their opponents, and their determined work as far as rebounds were concerned kept the Oglethorpe sharp shooters from getting many good shots at the hoop.

Last Saturday night's victory put a golden finish on the rugged schedule the Doughs faced last week. In six nights the Tallismen had faced as many foes, and had in that course of time added four more wins to their record, losing two over the week's time.

DOUGHS DEFEATED IN FINAL SECONDS

A handful of basketball enthusiasts sat nervously at the Post gym last Friday night watching the seconds rapidly tick away on the time clock. And as the clock sounded off the ebbing minutes of the tight tilt, that same handful of people saw the Doughboys edged in a thrilling, but heartbreaking affair, 46-44, by a strong Georgia State Teacher's college quintet.

After three full minutes had elapsed, neither team had invaded the netted area of their opponents' basket, and the game continued through the first half at an exceptionally slow pace.

The Doughs had returned the same day from a grueling road trip that had carried them across the state of Florida and Alabama, and the tension of continuous travel weighed heavily on the locals during the ball game. The teacher contest marked the Doughs' fifth start in as many nights.

Although the first half was slow getting underway, leaving the quintets in an 18-18 deadlock at the intermission period, both squads let loose in the final half for a regular tit-for-tat affair. No more than three points ever separated the leader from the follower, and the lead changed hands practically every time another basket was chalked up.

Tight defensive play stymied the offense of both teams temporarily, but as the third stanza was at the midway point, Benning's Harold Corizzi and the teacher's Jim Connor, started a shooting barrage that ended with the opposing cagers locked at 35-35.

The Douglas, Ga., squad ran up a brief lead, but were fast overtaken by the determined Doughs, and again the race was on. At the three minute whistle, the visitors enjoyed a two-point lead, and attempted a delaying game which fizzled when shifty Bob Kinard stole a pass to turn it into a Benning score. The squads traded baskets in rapid succession to lock the score again, this time at 44-44, and it appeared that an overtime would be played.

With 21 seconds remaining in the tight battle, Benning lost the ball beneath the basket, and the race against time was on. Jim Conner passed to Frank Bagler, who fired a set shot almost from the center circle. Without a sound the spheroid hit the hoop with the winning marker.

Harold Corizzi, former New Jersey court star and now the Doughboy high scorer, had anther big night in spite of the long trip he had taken. Corizzi, finding his range in the last half, finished a good night with 24 points, one of his loftiest marks this season. Corfizzi's chief competitor was Jim Connor, ace teacher forward, who connected for 21 markers.

HAROLD CORIZZI LEADS BENNING POINT MAKERS

During the past week sharp shooting Harold Corizzi,, who claims New Jersey as his favorite tramping grounds, reached new heights in his basket-making career, hitting the hoop at a 16-point average pace.

Corizzi, who overtook Harold Haberman early in the season, has been firing at a terrific rate for Ced Tallis, and boosted his point-making lead again this week. Corizzi not only retains his high point leadership, but has maintained the best game mean on the team, a mark over the 15-point level.

Scoreless in 1 Game

In only a single start this season, a season that has seen the locals engaged in 16 contests, did the loop-hitting forward go scoreless. Against the Phenix City Tigers, the second game of the year, Corizzi, campaigning for a starting slot on the varsity, failed to tally a point, but made up that lone deficiency in later performances.

The secret of Corizzi's success is his alertness and ability to take a bounding ball off the basket. Corizzi has not been distinguished as a man that fires from any angle on the court. Most of his shots are pivots from the middle, fast breaks, or rebounds off the backboard.

Has Good Record

Another man doing much of the Doughboy scoring is Doug Scovil, a rangy Californian who started out with Dan Halstead's reserves. Scovil's favorite poise is an outside one, and he usually sinks his markers from the corners far from the basket. Perhaps the best eye on the court, Scovil has maintained a high average just shy of Corizzi's, but his total falls almost 40 points below the scoring leader.

Scovil had his best night against Oglethorpe university last Saturday night. Scoring 12 times from the floor, Scovil shone with his spectacular hoopers from the corners.

Harold Haberman, star Benning guard, has gone into a slumj, but continues to spark his compatriots with outstanding defensive performances. Bob Kinard, another gaurd, has been one of the best courwrt generals on the floor, and is beginning to take his toll of the enemy basket.

Doughs Score Smashing Win Over Maxwell

Two scintillating forwards, Doug Scovil and Harold Corizzi, scored 49 points in collaboration Monday night, and provided most of the fireworks as a fighting Doughboy quintet battled a strong Maxwell field five, breaking away in the third quarter to rout the Flyers by an overwhelming 66-50 count.

It was the most complete rout the Doughs have run up against formidable opposition this season, and after the revived soldiers had sapped the life from their determined foes, they poured on a barrage of shots that annihilated any semblance of a defense.

Paul Davis and Al Schultz, Maxwell forward, captured the scoring laurels for the losers tallying 11 and 10 points respectively.

For the first time in the season, the Benning cagers were without the tutelage of Ced Tallis, the man who led the 1947 squad to the Southeastern AAU crown. But Tallis had entrusted the reins of tutor to capable Louis Grizzard, who found elation in seeing his newly acquired team push on to their first spectacular victory.

Grizzard, a staunch advocate of fast moving and close guarding basketball, pushed his courtmen to the limit, and after the rout was complete, allowed his reserves to finish the skirmish.

Besides the superb shooting of the two high basket makers, the Doughboys were outstanding for their terrific floor play and particularly for the furious battle they waged for possession of the ball throughout the point fest.

Although the locals jumped to an early lead which stretched to ten points before ten minutes had elapsed, the rejuvinated Flyers staged a comeback led by Paul Davis and Al Schultz that enabled the Maxwell team to climb within three point sof the leaders when the intermission bell sounded.

But the hope of triumph was short lived, for the Benningites came back in the final stanza stronger than they had left the court.

Maxwell opened the final canto with a basket, the result of a fast break play, and stood but one point behind their venerable victors. With the count at 28-27, Maxwell took on a new complexion, but that same complexion turned to a ruddy blush as the Doughs exploded for successive baskets to run the score to 46-27 before another whistle sounded.

Just short of the 50-point mark, Grizzard called for a delaying game which was carried out for three minutes. Fearing that his team might get cold, he signalled for more baskets, and the Doughs were on the scoring road once again.

Although most of the hoop-connecting came from Scovil and Corizzi, Harold Haberman, Harold Lutz, and Bob Kinard were outstanding for their defensive play. Kinard was the only man that failed to hit the loop, but sensing an off night, declined numerous shots in favor of his teammates. Kinard and Haberman sparked the Doughboy attack with accurate and stage setting passes.

BULLET BASKETEERS END POOR CAGE WEEK

BY BOB PHILLIPS

Old man hard-luck played havoc with the Bullets' chances of dominating the win column in five games played during the past week. Triumphant only one time out of five outings, the soldiering cagers muffed their many opportunities to better their record when they failed to make good a greater portion of their many chances at the free throw basket. In the five games the Bullets were only able to make good 55 out of 112 tries from the free throw marker.

Getting off to a losing start Tuesday night at the 25th Infantry field house, the Bullets dropped a hard fought 47-37 battle to the fighting Tigers from Fort Valley State Teachers college. The visiting crew held a 24-14 lead at half-time which they never relinquished. Gerald Garcia, the Bullets' brilliant forward piled up 12 points to take honors as the game's top scorer. Bill Wakefield and Mel Young who scored 11 and 10 points respectively were the offensive stars for the Fort Valley five.

On Wednesday the Bullets journeyed to St. Augustine, Florida, where they suffered a low-scoring 27-22 loss to Florida Normal college. The collegians held a slim 8-7 lead at intermission.

Midway the second period Gordon Burke and Freddie Hamer, scoring five and six points each, teamed up to give the losers a short lived 17-10 lead. With Billy Morton clearing the way with 10 points, the Floridians quickly overcame the deficit and went into the lead for keeps. Bill McKinney and Eddie Vickers, who got six and five points respectively, played starring roles for the winners, while Jimmie Smith, Gerald Garcia, and Thomas Taylor played their usual great game for the Bullets.

Playing the first game of a double bill at the Main Post gym Friday night, the Infantry cagers were a vindicative quint, as they turned back the Clark college Panthers in a nip-and-tuck five-minute overtime scuffle 45-41. The victory was sweet revenge for the soldiers, having dropped a 42-36 scrap to the Panthers earlier in the season. The game was chucked with thrills from beginning to end, with one team and then the other taking the lead.

Gordon Burke started the Bullets off in front with a two pointer from close range. The Panthers fought back viciously and romped to an 8-2 lead, only to see the winners come back and tie things up at 10-all minutes later. A two-pointer by Gray of Clark and Burke of the Bullets tied the score again at 12-12. Two digits by Thomas Taylor gave the Bullets a 14-12 half-time lead.

Sweeney flipped in a goal at the beginning of the second period to deadlock the score for the third time at 14-14. Jimmie Smith matched two points with Gray's dua for a fourth tie 16-16. The Bullets pulled out front, 28-24, on the flawless shooting of Smith, Burke, Hamer, Garcia, and Taylor. The Panthers fought back to tie up the count for the fifth time at 36-all. The Bullets were leading 38-37, with minutes ticking away at a rapid pace when Sweeney connected with a free throw to deadlock the game again at 38-38, sending the closely fought contest into overtime play.

During the five minutes' overtime the Bullets combined a smooth passing attack, accurate shooting, and an air-tight defense to score seven points, while holding the opposition to three. Hamer led the winners in scoring with 13, followed by his team mate Taylor who bucketed 10. Sweeney of Clark hit the hoop for 18 points to rank as the game's high scorer.

In a two-game series played at Marietta and Atlanta, Georgia, Saturday and Sunday against the Atlnta Browns, the Bullets were again victims of defeat. In the first game they were nosed out by a single digit, 36-35. Trailing at the half the Bullets rallied to come within one point of knotting the count and possibly winning, when the final whistle blew ending the game in favor of the Browns. Bob Jones of the victors and Gerald Garcia of the losers shared scoring honors with nine points each.

Sunday afternoon at the Magnolia gym in Atlanta, the fast breaking Browns continued their winning ways by stopping the Bullets 38-31. Despite the fact that the visitors held leads of 9-4 and 9-12, the Browns never gave up. Tight defensive play by both fives highlighted the first half which ended in an 11-11 knotting. This time the Bullet's ever dependable and elusive Garcia outpaced the Browns Bob Jones by scoring 18 points to Jones' 11. John Simpson and June Howard were the other standouts for the Atlantans, while Gordon Burke, Thomas Taylor, and Jimmie Smith turned in a great game for the Bullets.

Trooper Pugilists Fight At Battalion

BY VINCENT GIARRATANO

A crowd of four hundred fight fans was kept on its toes at the Airborne gymnasium Friday evening as the Airborne battalion opened its winter boxing season with a fast moving, action-packed card, which drew talent from student and cadre rolls of all companies of the battalion.

The first event on the evening's program was a smooth contest between two promising feather-weights, Frank Suennati, 125 popnds, from Company B; and Edward Couch, 130 pounds, from Company D. Both men showed plenty of spirit and did their best to carry the fight. All three rounds were close, which Couch gaining an edge in the second when he staggered Sennati with two good rights to the head. Couch won by a unanimous decision.

Fast Slugging

Bout two consisted of a round and a half of fast and furious slugging. Alvin Cooke, at 135 popnds from Company E, and Manuel Dominguez, at 132 pounds from Company G, were both aggressive from the start, with plenty of leather flying from bell to bell in the first round. The second round saw them both rush out with the same determination, taking and giving until Cooke sprained his right arm and was forced to call a halt to the fight, a TKO victory going to Dominguez.

3-Round Decision

Bout four ended in a three-round unanimous decision, with Elijah Vinson, of Company D winning over Donald Roeling of Company C. Roeling, though rough and ready, could not evade the straight jabbing and smooth boxing of his opponent.

The fifth encounter ended in another close decision, John De Leva of Company B at 155 pounds, outpointing Robert Bailey of Company D, at 159 popnds. Bailey tired in the second, but definitely slowed in the third.

Bout six proved to be the thrill of the evening when Francis Meager of Headquarters and Service company, weighing 176 pounds and possessing dynamite in both hands, stopped Marin Mareno of Company F at 178 popnds, by a TKO in 45 seconds of the second round. Meager drew blood at the outset when he connected with two hard fights to Mareno's nose, then followed through to stagger in. In the opening of the second Mareno went halfway to the mat under a barrage of head blows by Meager, supporting himself on the ropes. The action continued until Meager set Mareno down again, this time all the way to the canvas. The referee stopped the bout, declaring that Meager was too strong for his opponent.

Close Fight

Bout seven brought together hard hitting Jim Cantrell of Company G and Joe Stenger of Company B. Cartmill fought his way through Stenger's cool defense to win a unanimous but close decision.

The main event was a display of "brute force" slugging on the part of Gene Rogers of Company D against the more scientific, though defensive, boxing of Corrie Holloway of Company E. Rogers tipped the scales at 174 pounds and Holloway at 171. Holloway's nose started to bleed in the second, but in spite of this he staggered his rival almost to the point of a knock-out. Holloway went down twice for a nine-count. The split decision was awarded to Rogers.

Another top-notch card will be presented to fight fans at the Airborne gymnasium Friday, Jan. 23 at 8, when the 504th Parachute Infantry regiment will pit several fighters against talent from the Airborne battlion.

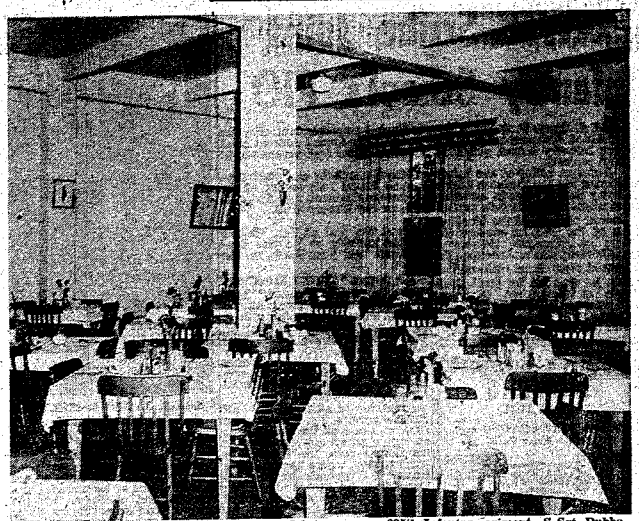
Schupp Named 319th Adjutant

Capt. Donald L. Schupp, formerly intelligence officer with the 319th Field Artillery battalion, has been named adjutant of the battalion, it was announced this week.

Captain Schupp enlisted in the 116th Field Artillery regiment in 1939, and attended Officer Candidate school at Fort Sill, Okla., graduating in August, 1942.

He was assigned to the 10th Field Artillery battalion of the Third Infantry division, making the initial assault landing with the unit in the invasion of French Morocco on Nov. 8, 1942, as an artillery forward observer. Later he joined the 17th Field Artillery regiment, 13th Field Artillery brigade, as a member of the Second battalion, serving as forward observer during the Tunisan campaign.

In Sicily Invasion



In the Sicily invasion he was motor officer and assistant train commander, and in Italy in 1944, upon reorganization of the artillery regiment into separate battalions, he was transferred to the 36th Field Artillery group headquarters as assistant plans and training officer. He served with the unit until the end of the war. During his tour of overseas duty, the captain saw action in Africa, Sicily, Italy, France, Germany, and Austria.

Captain Schupp returned to the States in July, 1945, after 33 months in Europe, and was released from the army in November. He was recalled to active duty in December, 1946, and assigned to the 83rd Field Artillery battalion, now 319th. He is a graduate of the Adjutant General's school at Carlisle Barracks, Pa.

The captain's decorations include the Bronze Star, ETO ribbon with eight battle stars and bronze arrowhead for the invasion of Europe, Victory and Occupation medals, and American Defense and American theater ribbons.

Assigned To 319th

New assignments in the 319th Field Artillery battalion: Cpls. Stanley M. Stephen and Edward A. Neejer, T-5 Charles G. Kurth, Pfc. Leonard H. Fulmer, and Pvt. Steven Hubicsak, all to Headquarters battery; T-5 Wilbert R. Lemon, Pfc. Edward J. Gentile, and Pvt. James Thompson, to Battery A; S-Sgt. James E. Rychel, T-3 William Dennis and Sgt. Thomas Britt, to Battery B; and S-Sgt. Forrest F. Salvester, to Service battery.

Canadian Army Soldier Here On Liaison Duty

He wears a Canadian uniform of khaki battle dress, with the inverted stripes of a corporal. He is stationed at Fort Benning, a long way from Ottawa.

The tall, lean, brown-haired corpooral, wearing the black beret of the Armored corps, draped his legs over the arm of a chair as he explained the significance of the insignia on his headgear.

"The black beret is the symbol of the Armoured corps, composed of tank and reconnaisance units. The wreath of the corps, topped with a silver crown, carries a heavy tank and a scroll bearing the word "Canada." It is the crest of the Canadian tanker, and he refuses to let any other touch it. It becomes a symbol of honor to him."

Values Boots Highly

The buckle of his black web belt glistened a mirrored image from the shine of his black assault boots. (That's what they call them north of the border). Similar to jump boots, they are highly valued since they are no longer issued. He wears his pants bloused, just as the American infantryman. On his chest were the ribbons of the France and Germany star, the Canadian Voluntary Service medal with clasp, and the Victory medal.

A plan of exchange has been set up between Canada and the United States. It is under this liason program that Corporal "Chuck" Stephens is on duty at the Infantry Center from Canadian Army headquarters in Ottawa.

"I've had four and-a-half years in the Canadian Army—in the Royal Canadian Armoured corps. That's almost as much time as my father has in our regular army. He's a corporal in the Royal Canadian Corps of Signals—like your Signal corps."

Served in Holland

After enlisting in July 1943, in Ottawa, he went overseas to join the First Canadian army in Holland. After the end of hostilities, his unit joined the Third Canadian Infantry division at Oldenburg, Germany.

"Sitting out the occupation of Germany until June 1946," he continued, "I was returned to Canada for discharge. It came through in October of that same year and I re-enlisted the same day.

"Yes, I've decided to stay in the army. It's a good outfit, and I really can't lose by staying in. Our army is very much like yours. We can retire after 20 years on half pay and with 70 percent pay after 35 years. And a lot of soldiers pull that 35 years, too."

The Canadian soldier, if he is a specialist, can be rewarded with what is known as "trades pay." Corporal Stephens, during the interview, revealed this fact when he indicated his 12 dollars special pay.

"You know, I really like Fort Benning. New experiences are always welcome with me, and this is one of the best tours of duty I've ever pulled.

"I like the States too," he concluded, "but of course, they are just like Canada. Same people, same form of government, same way of life. Canada and the United States are brothers on one continent with the same principals of freedom and independence."

"Why do you call your slacks sailor pants?"

"Because they pinch me in the same place sailors do."

Ex-War Scribe Joins Infantry School's PIO

T-Sgt. James F. Quinn, a former combat correspondent with the First Allied Airborne army in Europe, has been named enlisted chief of the Infantry School public information office and supervisor of special projects.

Assistant editor of the Infantry School quarterly and staff photographer for the Training Literature and Visual Aids section of the Infantry School prior to assuming his new assignment, Sgt. Quinn is no stranger to public information work or the literary field.

Author of some of the bloodiest tales of the war, he covered the action at Nijmegen, Eindhoven, and Malmedy in the Ardennes. He garnered first hand information when he was hit by shell fragments at Eschweiler, Germany, and again at Dusseldorf, where his jeep was blown from underneath him by artillery. Dusseldorf marked the end of Sgt. Quinn's combat activity as he was hospitalized and sent back to the states.

His poems, "Combat Jump" and "Reveille of the Damned," have been cited as the grimmest yet most genuine and inspirational to be written about World War II. Such leaders as Maj. Gen. William M. Miley, Maj. Gen. Gerry Chapman, and Maj. Gen. James M. Gavin are a few of ETO veterans who have commented most favorably on his work.

A veteran of nine and one-half years of service, Sgt. Quinn at one time was one of the oldest men on active parachute status. After his release from the hospital in August, 1946, where he was being treated for wounds incurred at Dusseldorf, he turned down his discharge, and came back to the Airborne School here where he had qualified as a jumper in July, 1942.

Born in Pendleton, Ore., Quinn acquired his interest for writing and newspaper work from his father who was a publisher, now retired. His literary ambitions were realized at the early age of 15 when some of his material was received and published by the Oregon State School Board. Since then he has made great strides in the literary field.

While editor of the Dorchester News in Massachusetts, he wrote juvenile tales for school children, which was quite a contrast to the "bloody" tales he penned as a paratrooper during combat.

Sgt. Quinn has also worked for the Chicago Daily News, Chicago Tribune, Boston Post, and served on the editorial staff of the Houghton-Mifflin corporation, one of the nation's largest publishing houses.

Columbus Rabbi To Serve Local Jewish Troops

Rabbi Joseph I. Weiss, Columbus, has been appointed auxiliary chaplain for Jewish personnel here, it was announced today by the Department of the Army.

Rabbi Weiss will work directly with Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Wallace M. Hale, Infantry Center chaplain, and assist men of the Jewish faith in their program of worship, officials said.

The Columbus rabbi, whose pulpit is the Temple B'Nai Israel, graduated from the University of Cincinnati in 1934. He was ordained and received the degree of Master of Hebrew Literature from Hebrew Union college in 1939, and his Doctor of Philosophy from Webster university in 1943.

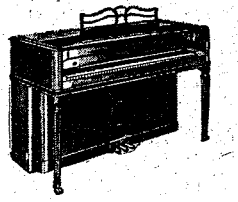
From 1939-1943 Rabbi Weiss had a congregation at Temple Oheb Shalom in Goldsboro, N. C., and served as an army chaplain from 1943 until 1946. He saw service in New Guinea, the Philippines, and Japan.

Local officials said that Rabbi Weiss will arrange appropriate services for Jewish men as well as acting as adviser, conducting weekly discussion groups, and making visits to hospitalized Jewish troops.

Gravely Attending Ordnance School

Cpl. Edgar C. Gravely, of the Lawson field teletype section, left Jan. 15 for Aberdeen, Md., where he will attend the Ordnance school for 13 weeks, officials have announced.

Gravely reported to Lawson from Scott field, Ill., 13 months ago, and will return here upon completion of the course at the Ordnance school.



Originally of Chester, Pa., he entered the service in July, 1946.

He fascinated me so I kissed him. Then he started to unfascinate me, so I slapped him.

Marshall Inspects Post During Visit

Secretary of State George C. Marshall, assistant commandant of the Infantry School from 1927-1932, made a whirlwind tour of Fort Benning Jan. 22, following a brief visit to Columbus.

Arriving at Fort Benning early last Thursday morning, Secretary Marshall went immediately into conference with Maj. Gen. John W. O'Daniel, Infantry Center commander. At 9:15 a. m. he began a short tour of Infantry School classrooms.

The former Army chief of staff witnessed a special infantry firepower demonstration, "the Mad Minute," at Hook range from 9:45-10:15 a. m., and at 10:30 a. m. visited Biglerville mess, the recently renovated student officer's mess in the Student Training regiment area, and the ration breakdown building.

Prior to boarding his plane at 11:27 a. m. for Atlanta where he was to speak before the National Cotton Council, Secretary Marshall visited at the quarters of General O'Daniel.

The State Department head, accompanied by Mrs. Marshall, arrived at Fort Benning by plane Jan. 21, and was met by General O'Daniel, Brig. Gen. Whitfield P. Shepard, assistant commandant of the Infantry School; Brig. Gen. Reuben E. Jenkins, president of Army Ground Forces board No. 3; Col. John C. Blizzard, chief of staff; and Col. Joseph A. Nichols, deputy chief of staff.

Wives of the greeting officers were also present, and Mrs. O'Daniel presented Mrs. Marshall with a bouquet of flowers.

Wednesday night the Columbus Chamber of Commerce honored Secretary Marshall at a banquet at the Ralston hotel, the guests including civic leaders, officers and directors of the civic clubs, and high ranking Fort Benning officers. Mr. Marshall spoke briefly to the gathering of approximately 120 civilian and military leaders.

During his five years as assistant commandant of the Infantry School, Mr. Marshall transformed the school into an important service institution of command for infantry officers. He met Mrs. Marshall, a Columbus woman, during his tour of duty here. While in Columbus Mr. and Mrs. Marshall were guests of Mrs. R. E. Dismukes.

Comic Strip Begins In Today's Bayonet

The Bayonet introduces on page 4 of this issue a comic strip, "Gold Brick," a three-panel cartoon without dialogue, drawn by Cpl. Charles Slaughter, III, Company C, Infantry School detachment.

Corporal Slaughter, a former commercial artist and staff artist in the Navy, is a 22-year-old Regular Army soldier, who hails from Houston, Tex. During 1945-1946 he served as staff artist for All Ashore, a Navy weekly, published at the Naval Separation Center, Nashville, Tenn. Prior to that he was employed by a commercial printing house in Houston, and did some free-lancing, including nightclub murals.

"Gold Brick" will be a regular weekly feature in The Bayonet.

General Devers Ends Three-Day Tour Of Benning's Infantry Center

Sunday he conferred with Major General John W. O'Daniel, Infantry Center commander, and Brig. Gen. Reuben E. Jenkins, president of Army Ground Forces board No. 3.

Inspects Food School

The four-star general began his inspection of Fort Benning early Monday when he visited the ration breakdown section, meat cutting plant, and Food Service School. At 8:45 a. m. he inspected training of the 325th Infantry regiment's First battalion and toured the Airborne section of the Infantry School, visiting classes in session.

At a press conference with newsmen at 10 a. m. Monday General Devers said that he was greatly impressed with the Infantry School. "I think it is tops among service schools, and it seems to get better every year."

He also heaped praise on the ration breakdown plant and the Food Service School as well as the training units here.

"Despite the shortage of personnel, every man seems to enjoy his work. His sometimes long working hours seem to be compensated for by the fine results he gets," the general said. "I have never seen an installation where the morale is higher."

Sees Demonstration

During the afternoon he visited the colored service club on the main post, the Infantry Center vocational night school, and the Station hospital.

At 2:30 p. m. he toured the Sand Hill area, and inspected the Company E, 25th Infantry regiment, mess hall. He inspected Biglerville mess at 3:10 p. m., and at 3:30 p. m. reviewed a large number of Fort Benning troops at French field.

Units participating in the huge review ceremony included four companies from the 325th Infantry regiment plus elements of Headquarters and Headquarters company and Service company, four companies of the 25th Infantry regiment, two batteries each from the 319th Field Artillery battalion and the 999th Field Artillery battalion, Company K of the 504th Parachute Infantry regiment, Company C of the 307th Engineer battalion, one company of the 756th Tank battalion plus five M-26 tanks, and the School Troops air section.

Gavin Here

Maj. Gen. James M. Gavin, commanding general of the 82nd Airborne division, came to Fort Benning especially for the review, and was in the reviewing stands along with General Devers, General O'Daniel, and Col. Charles H. Royce, commanding officer of School Troops.

During the Monday morning press conference, General Devers told newsmen that Fort Benning is now as small as it will be unless the army decreases. "We are interested in increasing the population here," he said.

"UMT will increase the size, so far as personnel are concerned, of Fort Benning since it has been selected as a training site provided legislation is passed," General Devers said.

Questioned about housing for enlisted men, General Devers said that housing had top priority at present, both for married enlisted men and junior grade officers. He also said that equalization of pay for ground forces enlisted men is slated to be worked out.

During his stay at Fort Benning General Devers was honored at a reception and dinner by General and Mrs. O'Daniel and at a dinner by General and Mrs. Jenkins.

Artillery Officer To Go Overseas

WOJG Crawford H. McInturff, motor officer for the 319th Field Artillery battalion, will leave Fort Benning in March for Fort Lawton, Wash., for shipment to Yokohama, it was learned today.

Mr. McInturff joined the 319th Field Artillery battalion in January, 1947, as maintenance and motor transport officer. Prior to that time he was assigned to the G-4 section of the War Department in Washington.

During the war he was motor transport officer with the Seventh Armored group and Combat Command C of the 13th Armored division.

Sgt. Saul Moves From S-3 Office To Liasion Section

S-Sgt. Earl V. Sauls, Headquarters and Headquarters company, 325th Infantry regiment, has been transferred to Infantry Center headquarters for duties with the School Troops liaison-section, officials said today.

Sergeant Sauls will be responsible for coordinating troop requirements for units of School Troops.

Prior to entering the service in 1941, Sergeant Sauls was employed as a salesman by a bottling company in Bradenton, Fla. During the war he served with the 88th Heavy Bomb group and later with the 40th division in the Philippines and Korea.

Before his transfer he was assigned to the plans and training section of the School Troops S-3 office.

TRAINED 300 GREEKS

'Chuting' Nothing New To Airborne Student

Lieutenant Wagner decided upon his adventurous calling when he was selected, along with eight other men, to form the cadre of the 122nd Infantry Greek battalion at Camp Carson, Colo. Then a staff sergeant, he was to aid in training 300 Greeks for participation in the Balkan operation.

The unit was transferred to OSS control and sent to the Congressional Country club in Washington, D. C., for five months of special training.

Early in 1943 the 122nd was sent to Palestine via Cairo, Egypt, where Lieutenant Wagner attended the British Parachute school for two weeks. The most amazing thing about this school, according to Lieutenant Wagner, is that the students are required to make a parachute jump from an aircraft during the first day of training. He says the British claim this method eliminates a majority of the men who would likely "freeze" in the door.

The only instruction with which the British school dealt, except actual parachute jumping, were parachute landing falls, control of the parachute while in descent, and physical training. Lieutenant Wagner made six training jumps, and 22 additional jumps prior to and in preparation for combat.

The Infantry School student made his only combat jump into Greece in late 1943, withdrawing soon after with the aid of Greek guerillas. His unit next went to Vis, off the coast of Yugoslavia and from there fought its way along the islands off the Dalmation coast.

Lieutenant Wagner returned to the U. S. in 1944 for convalesence, and was later assigned to the 84th Infantry division which he joined at Gellenkeshin, Germany. He fought with the unit all the way to the Elbe river. He was discharged "on points" shortly afterwards.

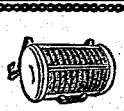
Reenlisting in the army, Lieutenant Wagner applied for admission to the Army Officer Candidate School here, graduating Aug. 9, 1947. Upon completion of his associate basic course, he requested airborne training and was assigned to the Airborne battalion.

Post Regiment Lists Leaders

Three new platoon leaders have been appointed in the 325th Infantry regiment, it was announced this week.

Lt. Daniel P. Halstead has been named a platoon leader in Company D. Enlisting in the army at Monterey, Calif., in 1942, he graduated from Officer Candidate School in 1943, and served in Europe with the Second Infantry regiment of the Fifth division as a platoon leader of a rifle company.

Lieutenant Halstead served as backfield coach of the Doughboys during the 1947 season. He was also an assistant basketball coach prior to his recent assignment.



Lt. Ashley Ivey has assumed platoon duties with Company B. A member of the army team since 1942, he, too, graduated from Officer Candidate School in 1943, serving with the 492nd Bomber group from September, 1944, until the end of the war. He was with the military government office on Okinawa before coming here.

Alabama Man Reenlists Here As Staff Sergeant

James M. Watkins, of Phenix City, Ala., a former staff sergeant, has joined the Air Force for another three-year hitch, Lawson field recruiting officials announced today. He was reenlisted in his former rank of staff sergeant, and assigned to the aircraft maintenance section.

Sergeant Watkins is a graduate of several Air Force aircraft mechanics' schools and the Electronics school at Chanute field, Ill. He originally entered service at Fort Benning in July, 1941, and received his discharge from the Air Forces in March, 1945, at Randolph field, Tex.

FAREWELLS ARE SAID — State Department head George C. Marshall, right, says goodbye to Maj. Gen. John W. O'Daniel, Infantry Center commander, a few moments before boarding his plane for Atlanta where he was to deliver an address during National Cotton Council.

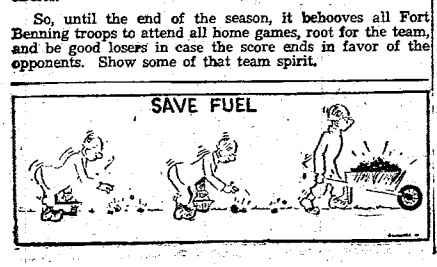
A Great School

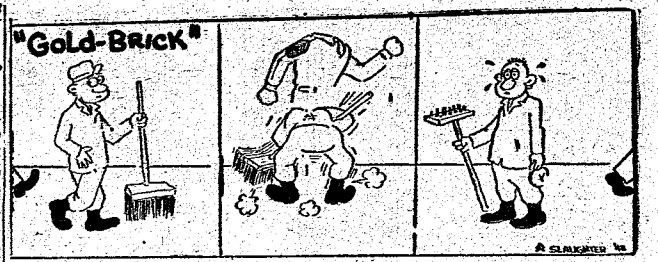
General Jacob L. Devers, during an interview with newsmen last Monday, told us something we had secretly believed for a long time, something, however, which we could not proce since we had not been visitors at any of the other service schools for several years. According to General Devers, the calibre of instruction at the Infantry School is as high as at any other army school in the nation. Furthermore, he believes that it gets increasingly better every year.

We have always taken a great deal of pride in the Infantry School because of the tremendous job it has done since it was established in 1918. Its importance has grown through the years, and during the last year, the Officer Candidate School, a part of the Infantry School, turned out more than 60,000 second lieutenants of infantry, to say nothing of the many thousands of other graduates of the various courses. In addiition it has been proven, as a look at the records will show, that former students, instructors, and commandants of the Infantry School have become among the greatest military leaders. Men falling in this category would be too numerous to list, but, as examples, here are a few: Eisenhower, Marshall, Devers, all general officers who have made military history.

A total of more than 10,000 students will go through the Infantry School during the 1947-1948 academic year, including representatives from practically every major nation in the world. The fact that foreign nations send students to Fort Benning every year is proof positive that the Infantry School is great. If it were not, it is understandable that those nations, who are eager to make use of the facilities and instruction available here, would not do so. Instead they would look to some other nation for their army's military education.



It should be a source of pride to every man stationed here, as well as those who take courses here, that the Infantry School is held in such high esteem, for after all it is the Doughboy's alma mater.



Team Spirit

The Bayonet would like to say a few words here concerning the Doughboy basketball team. Despite the fact that they have won only eight games this season, there is no reason to belittle them. They have shown a great spirit of team work, a never-say-die attitude against all opponents. Above all, they have worked hard to make themselves into a championship team.

Regardless of any setbacks, any losses they may incur on the hardwood, The Bayonet will back them up. Naturally, we would like to see them end the season as champions, but we realize that this can not be done every year. The season, however, is far from over yet, and there is still time remaining to make a great name in service basektball circles.

So, until the end of the season, it behooves all Fort Benning troops to attend all home games, root for the team, and be good losers in case the score ends in favor of the opponents. Show some of that team spirit.

BY MURRAY E. HILL

A week or so ago I suggested if anyone read this column I would like to hear from him. One of the nicest letters we received is quoted below in its entirety. It was doubly appreciated because it came from a staff sergeant whom I had never met. Here it is:

"Dear Sir:

"It is with a great deal of pleasure that I take advantage of the opportunity afforded by your column in today's issue of The Bayonet to reply briefly concerning the activities of the Red Cross. My ill phrased remarks must of necessity be brief as it is impossible to put into one short writing all my feelings toward the Red Cross and its diversified activities here and elsewhere. In fact, as well as thousands of others, would find words inadequate to express my thoughts along this line.

"It is my firm belief that the Red Cross at home and overseas during the recent war did more for the physical and mental welfare of men and women serving with our armed forces than all other non-military organizations combined which were connected with the various arms and services. And most assuredly the ARC is carrying on every bit as valiantly in the post war period with its many problems of readjustment and rehabilitation.

"It was my good fortune to have daily intimate contact over a period of approximately four months with one of the field directors serving with a unit of the Seventh Army in Germany during the closing phase of combat there, and that association was most profitable and inspiring. Personally I have received prompt, generous, and understanding aid from ARC representatives on three different occasions while a hospital patient and at two different times in connection with emergency leave. For those things I will always owe a debt of gratitude. I also have first hand knowledge from many of my friends who have had similar gratifying experiences.

"I peruse your weekly column in The Bayonet with enthusiasm and a feeling of thankfulness for the innumerable benefits and services you and your staff are daily affording to the personnel of Benning. I feel that the value of such unselfish devotion of time and talent cannot be underestimated nor too highly praised and that AMERICA deserves the whole-hearted support, both morally and financially, of all personnel residing here.

"It was my opportunity and pleasure while serving as an I&E NCO last year to present as my weekly topic at troop information and education hours a story of the history and development of the ARC and its activities during peace and war. During that week approximately 1,200 men heard the story. Naturally there were varying attitudes and opinions, but I trust that the overall result was very profitable.

"All good wishes for success and prosperity in 1948!

Sincerely,

RA34142973, Det Hq, ISD."

A lady left New York for Sao Paulo to have a good time. She attended a carnival and paraded the streets at night, singing and dancing. Next day she went to the bank and asked the teller:

"Is this 5,000 reis?"

"Yes, Madam," the teller assured her.

"Will you give it to me in American money?" she asked.

He gave her 57 cents and she stood and stared at it for a long time.

"And I gave him his breakfast, too," she said angrily, walking away.

THE MARCH OF DIMES
By Chaplain R. P. Canis

Last June five children at Fort Benning were stricken with the dreaded disease poliomyelitis. Swimming pools were closed, and theaters and all public meeting places were closed to children. For all Benning residents this meant inconvenience through hot summer days. For those five children and their parents it meant weeks of worry, anxiety, and uncertainty as to how this disease would affect these little ones.

All five cases benefitted in some measure from the generosity of thousands of Americans who, in the past ten years, have given generously to the annual March of Dimes. One of those children has been at the Warm Springs Foundation since last July. She will be there for many months to come. The writer of this article humbly thanks God for all American neighbors whose gifts have made possible her months of treatment at this hospital. For this little girl is his daughter.

CANIS

This year other children in America will be stricken with poliomyelitis. It is still on the march. It will not be stopped until science finds a way to stamp it out. The March of Dimes is your opportunity to hasten that day, to help those already stricken, and to minimize the threat that yours might be the next home stricken.

Will you help those who cannot help themselves? Will you share in this gift? Will you answer the plea of 1948's polio poster boy? PLEASE GIVE TO THE MARCH OF DIMES!

THIS DAY

Editor's Note: This is the 14th in a new series of This Day which presents a chronicle of American events, highlights of history, that mark each day in the narrative of our nation. Today's column recalls the events between January 23 and This Day, January 29.

JANUARY 23, 1845 . . . On This Day, 103 years ago, Congress passed an act, which fixed the Tuesday following the first Monday in November as the date for all Presidential elections throughout the nation. Since the election of Zachary Taylor, the President has been chosen by the people of the U. S. . . . In 1869, 79 years ago, Susan B. Anthony and Elizabeth Cody Stanton appeared before a Senate committee to present the cause of woman suffrage.

JANUARY 24, 1841 . . . On This Day, 134 years ago, Gen. Andrew Jackson defeated the Creek Indians in southern Georgia and Alabama . . . And it was on This Day, 100 years ago, that James W. Marshall discovered gold in California. Marshall found the gold on the property belonging to John A. Sutter. He and Sutter tried to keep it a secret, but the news leaked out. Soon there was a gold rush to California, the advance guard of the historic "Forty-niners." Oddly enough Marshall and Sutter both died in poverty.

JANUARY 25, 1787 . . . On This Day, 161 years ago, a group of New Englanders under Daniel Shays were defeated as they attempted to seize the Federal arsenal at Springfield, Mass. . . . It was 66 years ago in 1882 that Charles J. Guiteau was convicted of the murder of President James A. Garfield and sentenced to be hanged on March 4, 1882 . . . On This Day, 33 years ago, in 1915, Alexander Graham Bell, the inventor of the telephone, talked to his assistant in San Francisco, which was the first trans-continental telephone conversation in history.

JANUARY 26, 1830 . . . On This Day, 118 years ago, Daniel Webster made his famous speech in the Senate of the U. S. Webster's speech was in reply to a speech by Senator Robert Y. Hayne, of South Carolina, regarding "state's rights" . . . In 1837, 111 years ago, the state of Michigan was admitted to the Union . . . It was 55 years ago, in 1893, that Maj. Gen. Abner Doubleday, the inventor of baseball, died.

JANUARY 27, 1796 . . . James B. McHenry was appointed by President George Washington as the third Secretary of War on This Day, 152 years ago . . . On This Day, 35 years ago, James Bartlett Hammond died suddenly in St. Augustine, Fla. Born in Boston, Hammond was one of the most proficient short-hand writers in this country and made improvements on the typewriter.

JANUARY 28, 1899 . . . On This Day, 49 years ago, General George Sears Greene, who for several years before his death was known as the oldest living West Point graduate, died at Morristown, New Jersey . . . A famous soldier and civil engineer, he was founder of the American Society of Civil Engineers . . . On This Day, 46 years ago, the Carnegie Institution at Washington was founded.

JANUARY 29, 1843 . . . It was exactly 105 years ago that William McKinley, the 21st President of the United States, was born in Niles, Ohio . . . On This Day, 87 years ago, Kansas was admitted to the Union as the 34th state . . . It was exactly 22 years ago on This Day, in 1926, that Lt. John A. Macready of the Army Air Service established a new altitude record at Dayton, Ohio, when he flew 38,704 feet above the ground.

A long, lanky, hatless individual in a state of joyful inebriation came sailing merrily into the City Hall, and dropped anchor before the window of the Registrar of Births and Deaths.

"Why do you say 'gentlemen'?" asked the man behind the window. "Can't you see I'm alone here?"

"Alone?" shouted the astonished father. "Only one of you? Then I'd better go home and take another look. Maybe it isn't (hic) twins after all."

Fort Benning Womans' Club To Present Bruce Thomas

At the open meeting of the Fort Benning Womans' club on February 2 at the Polo Hunt Club at 2:30 p. m. Bruce Thomas, free-lance foreign correspondent and lecturer, will present his new lecture, "The Orient Is Our Business." This will be a story of Asia in the remaking, a first hand report of Mr. Thomas' recent trip to the Far East.

Mr. Thomas has an excellent background for reporting of affairs of the Far East. While attending the University of California, his interest in Asia took him on his first trip there, shipping on the Pacific liners as a sailor. From 1919 to 1935, he was almost a commuter to Japan, China, and the Philippines, and some of his tours were in connection with his position as the Director of Adult Education courses for the University of California.

During the last war, he made several trips to Europe, bringing back in the fall of 1945 another of his already famous "I Was There" lectures to American lecture platforms "Confidential Report on Europe."

He accompanied American troops in the Normandy invasion in 1944, and his reporting of his eye-witness account of the battle action resulted in his epoch-making 1944 lecture, "We Return to Conquer." He covered the Alaskan campaign in 1943, reporting on the Japanese occupation of Attu and Kiska. Having lived in Alaska and visited the territory on 15 other occasions, he was able to interpret the future economic and strategic value of Alaska to the United States.

For these reasons of extensive travel and lecture experience, Bruce Thomas has earned recognition as one of America's most widely sought speakers because of his honest, vivid, and dynamic type of reporting. His new lecture on the Far East has proven to be one of his best and the members of the Fort Benning Womans' club will gain tremendously in up to the minute information on that part of our world.

LECTURER TO SPEAK — Mr. Bruce Thomas will present his lecture to members of the Fort Benning Woman's Club on Monday afternoon at 2:30 p.m. at the Polo Hunt club. His lecture, "The Orient Is Our Business," has been well-received from lecture platforms in the United States, and this will be his first appearance here.

Choir News

The choir has hardly recovered from the Christmas program, but plans are already being made for Easter and Holy Week programs. The choir expects to present a full cantata at the Vesper Service on Palm Sunday. There will be the traditional Sunrise Service on Easter Sunday which has proved so inspiring in years past.

Thursday evening a president and secretary for the Chapel choir will be elected. Vivian Moore and Lois Minor were appointed "wardrobe mistresses", and Gene Graham and Al Skaggs will serve as librarians.

Gene Graham has recently married, and his new bride will sing the solo February 8. Mr. Rex Lavender, prominent vocalist of Columbus, will sing the Offertory solo on February 1.

Mrs. James K. Terry will direct the music for the morning service February 8, when Mr. Garrett will be in Atlanta attending choir school, under the direction of James M. Kelly, at the Central Presbyterian church.

Interested personnel on the Post are urged to come out for choir practice, as night problems are cutting down on the bass and tenor sections of the choir. Several choir members are away at college. Miss Millicent Scudder, daughter of Col. and Mrs. Irvine C. Scudder, is home for mid-semester vacation. She sang with the choir last Sunday, and will attend again next Sunday.

People who have enjoyed the beautiful tenor voice of Sgt. George Lewis for many months will be interested to learn of his marriage in November to his girl from Missoula, Montana. Sergeant Lewis will continue with his fine singing. A note from Ruth Shure states that she is singing in the choir in her hometown while waiting to join Chaplain Shure in Japan.

The choir was pleased to have Mrs. Ruby Mohr, of Chicago, guest of Chaplain and Mrs. Hale, as a guest vocalist recently with the choir.

The youth choir has a large membership and the children are making good progress with their singing as well as learning proper church behavior and worship. Parents are invited to rehearsals at any time. The girl's ensemble has some new members: Nancy Bush, recently graduated from the youth choir; Shirley Burke, Jessie Westerman, and Jeanie Buskirk. This group is gradually increasing and doing fine work. Three of the members sing in the adult choir also. Voice instruction is being given this group. The two groups of young singers perform on alternate Sundays at vesper service.

Mrs. O'Daniel Is Guest At Student Wives Lunch

A luncheon of special interest last week was the first luncheon of the officers' wives of Advanced Course No. 2 Mrs. Jack B. Street and Mrs. T. W. Hungate were hostesses, and planned the affair as a meeting ground for students' wives who have had no other meeting for their group prior to this time.

Mrs. Irvine C. Scudder acted as honorary hostess, and gave a resume of post activities to the ladies to enable them to participate in those activities during their stay at Fort Benning. The ladies were honored with the attendance of Mrs. John W. O'Daniel at their first luncheon meeting. She was presented with a beautiful corsage by Mrs. Street, the occasion being her birthday.

The attractive and original table decorations for the luncheon were the work of Mrs. Street and Mrs. Hungate. The centerpiece was a small red school house centered by two alarm clocks set for 6 a. m. The length of the table featured displays appropriate to the occasion, pamphlets and training manuels, pencil boxes, toy tanks, jeeps, guns, toy soldiers, and calendars marking off the days.

The attendance of 58 students' wives at this first luncheon showed the enthusiasm and interest in this kind of group meeting so that the luncheon will be a monthly affair. The next luncheon will be at the Officers' club on Thursday, February 19, with Mrs. Alan L. Peck in charge of arrangements.

Brat Barracks News

By TERESA NAEHR

Despite inclement weather, a roaring fire in the huge fireplace greeted us, as we raced to the lodge from buses Friday evening. It was our weiner roast, and two buses were required to transport our group of 60-odd to the rest camp. Food was wonderful, even though we roasted our faces along with the weiners. Through some mistake in shopping, we only had half enough buns, so "Crummy" was dispatched in the jeep, thru the rain, to round up some more.

Marshmellows were toasted and there were plenty of soft drinks. We took along our own records, and with the assistance of several so-called "callers," we engaged in our currently popular square-dance. After we were worn with our cavorting, we settled down in couples to a slower rhythm.

Some of the boys always have to run after somebody especially if that body is the possessor of that weapon, the WATER GUN!

Trying to get Craig to eat onions like the rest of us were Gil Collar, Howie Miller, and Dick Burman. We cleaned up the place as well as we could, and left about eleven, after a wonderful party.

The Barracks were shinning clean Saturday evening, due to the efforts of Mary Jane Sullivan, Jessie Westerman, Betty McNulty, Craig Thorn, Gil Collar, Meryle Griffiths, and Dick Sugg. All of them assisted Mrs. G. in preparing lunch in the kitchen.

Saturday evening, despite the Girl Scout party, quite a few came to the club, and we had lots of fun. Joan Goss and Zimmie and some others made fudge, and a gang of the boys collected dimes and went and bought ice cream. Everyone danced and played games until a late hour.

Sunday afternoon was featured by tiny jet-propelled autos racing along wires strung down the hall. Harold Edris and Earl Ormiston were the envied builders and operators.

Attention is called to the election of officers and general discussion meeting Friday evening at 8. Saturday is Evelyn's birthday party, to which we are all looking forward.

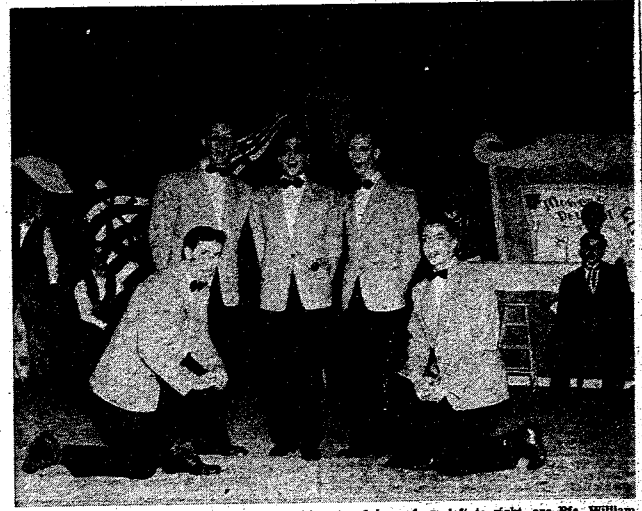
Program By 25th Chorus Friday Well Received Here

A near-capacity audience at the Main theater last Friday night thoroughly enjoyed the first all-posi appearance of the 25th Infantry male chorus under the direction of T-Sgt. Arthur J. Patterson, assisted by Sgt. Willis M. Brown. In addition to numbers by the chorus, there were several well-received renditions by the featured pianists, T-Sgt. John E. Williams and T-3 Troy M. McCall, Jr.

The mixed program included Biblical numbers, spirituals, solo numbers, and piano specialties. The Warsaw Concerto, played by T-Sgt. John E. Williams, drew tremendous applause, as did the two piano numbers, Deep Purple, played with perfect timing by John Williams and Troy McCall.

One of the best numbers presented by the chorus was Water Boy, featuring the fine voice of T-4 Samuel L. Rawls. Sgt. Willis M. Brown, associate director, sang Old Man River as a solo, and his encore, Without A Song, was equally well-received. His vocal part in Listen To The Lambs added to the success of that selection by the chorus.



Maj. Gen. and Mrs. John W. O'Daniel attended with Col. and Mrs. LeGrande A. Diller. Col. Diller commands the 25th Infantry and can take pride in the excellence of the 25th Infantry male chorus and their pianists.

'Something To Bragg About' To Appear Friday, Saturday

Enthusiastically aclaimed by audiences throughout the Third Army area, the sensational new army personnel show "Something to Bragg About," will appear Friday and Saturday at 8 p. m. at the Main theater.

Music, girls, comedy, and choruses are in the offing for the Benning audience, who will view a live talent soldier production that has been termed the army's answer to the end of U.S.O. Camp Shows.

Produced as an experiment to determine if the army could furnish its own entertainment with the talent on hand, the performance met with a brilliant success in its premier at Fort Bragg, N. C., last month and has been making a solid hit with audiences since.

The play is a two-act musical comedy, the first act with a "Gay Nineties" theme and the second on collegiate life. The first act, built around the "Gay Nineties" theme, has side-shows carousel, carnival scenes, and a great many choruses. The second act, depicting collegiate life, is on the "hep" side.

The cast includes four talented shapely actresses, plus an array of 32 soldiers from Fort Bragg. Heading the list of beauties will be Miss Skippy Lynn, civilian actress technician and singer. Others are Billie Dobson, of "Mortgages and Whiskey Don't Mix Fame," T-3 Margaret Reed, and Emiline Gordon.

The play was arranged and directed by Miss Lynn, who has been employed by the army for the purpose of organizing and directing stage productions utilizing soldier talent. As a result of the success of the Fort Bragg experiment, it has been announced that many more civilian actress technicians will be secured by the government to organize similar shows in other camps.

The idea for the organization of shows such as "Something to Bragg About," using the talents available on army posts, was conceived and made a project at Third Army headquarters by Colonel W. G. Skelton, assisted by Major Joe C. Harvard. Fort Bragg was selected as the proving ground for this idea, which was approved by Brigadier General Russell B. Reynolds, chief of special services of the Department of the Army.

The "Book" for the new program was written by Miss Lynn and Mis Anita Carroll during similar duty in Europe during the war. Appearing to be the answer to the now defunct U. S. O. Camp Shows, the musical comedy presentation has made such a hit that it may be the forerunner in the creation of similar organizations in other camps through the nation.

OH, YOU BEAUTIFUL GAL — Miss Skippy Lynn and Pfc. Nicholas Dorrell, as Suez and Bobo, get together in one of their acts in "Something to Bragg About," which appears here for a two-night stand Friday and Saturday at the Main theater.

Bayonet Scribe Reports Training Of 'Trooper

By DICK BARKEE

After succeeding in the completion of his course and, despite the demands on his ability and stamina, an airborne student qualifies and receives his paratrooper wings after five weeks of intensive training.

A vast maze of unfamiliar equipment, nylon lines and billows of parachute silk, aches and pains in the rigors of physical training and calisthenics, the thud as hurtling bodies strike the drop zone grips greet the airborne student in training.

Airborne instruction in the Infantry School continues as over 600 students a month complete their courses in basic jump techniques to win their wings and graduate to such famed units as the 11th Airborne division in Japan and the 82nd Airborne division at Fort Bragg, N. C.

From the initial stage when they stand awaiting instructions outside Headquarters and Service company, the Airborne battalion, until they stand massed on the parade ground to receive their wings in a student company, the students resemble fish out of water as they are told to "Doubletime!" "Jab!" "Give me twenty!"

Physical conditioning for the strenuous course begins the program. The trainee goes on from there with instructions in loading techniques, jumping from mock-up towers, and training with "wind machines," free falls and the "buddy seat," and finally completes his course as he bails out from troop carrier aircraft hundreds of feet above the ground.

"Geronimo" becomes the cry as the newly qualified paratrooper, one of the toughest soldiers ever turned out by the United States Army, hurtles into the front ranks of the line soldiers defending the United States of America. The Airborne soldier—we salute you!

ONE THOUSAND AND ONE — The airborne student counts seconds one by one as he experiences the shock of the opening 'chute. This is the student's first taste of the parachute. Known as the 34-foot tower training, this part of his instruction takes place during he second and third weeks.

HOW TO LOAD A JEEP—Another item in first week training is learning how to load a jeep into an aircraft. Here a group of students watch while other students do the actual job. They all get a chance at it before graduation.

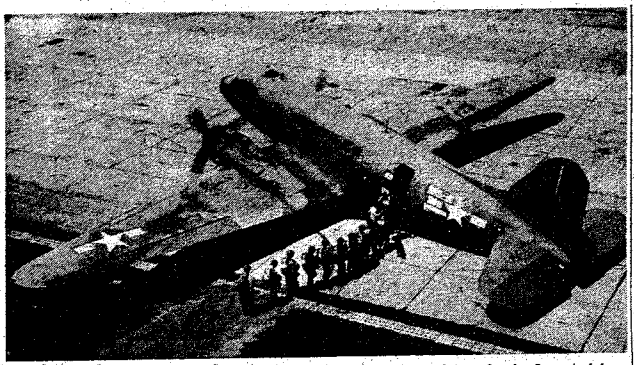
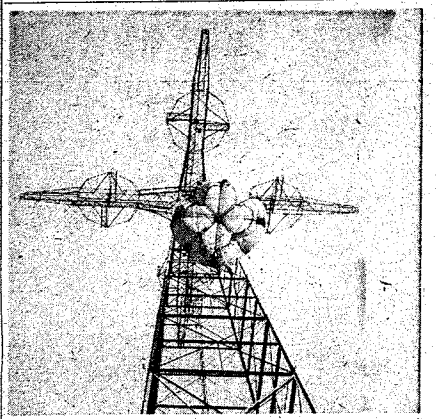
3440th Enlisted Men Awarded Promotions

The following enlisted members of Headquarters and Headquarters detachment, Section I, 3440 ASU, were awarded promotions last week:



Pfcs. Ignatius A. Mayshock, Eugene W. Burress, and James D. Bolden, all to the grade of corporal; Pvt. Ollie J. Jowers to technician fifth grade; Pfcs. Thomas Jennings and Thomas Greenlow, both to technician fifth grade; and Pvt. Clarence G. Peterson to private first class.

Definition of a hustle: Deceitful little seat full.



3 Troopers Promoted

Three members of the Airborne battalion's Company E were promoted to the grade of private first class last week, it has been announced.

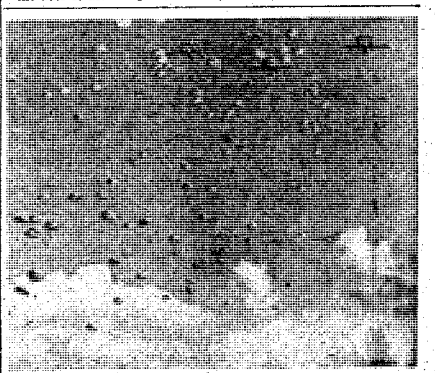
LOADING UP—Soon to split the skies, the airborne students enplane for a "live" jump,, which will complete their five weeks of arduous training.

CONTROLLED FALL — Fourth week training in the Airborne battalion's Basic Airborne course is concerned with controlled jumping from the 250-foot towers, highest structures on the reservation. These famed jump towers are usually the first sight to greet the eye of the Fort Benning visitor.



GOING ON A RIDE—Inside the plane the future paratrooper is calm. He has faith in the high calibre instruction he has received from his soldier teachers, and he knows that he must not fail.

READY FOR THE JUMP — About to make their first jump, airborne students at the Infantry School hook up and stand in the door of their airplane awaiting the word of the jump master.

PROUD MOMENT—After successfully completing five weeks of airborne training, the Airborne battalion's student training companies pass in review to receive their prized symbols of proficiency—the paratrooper wings.

AIRBORNE — The skies over Fort Benning look like this when the airborne soldier jumps from an aircraft. Round, white blossoms of parachute silk fill the sky as the paratrooper hits the air.

Maxwell Toppled In Exciting Battle

Corizzi Shines With Sparkling Hoop Exhibition

Paced by the scintillating shooting of Harold Corizzi, who eventually tallied 22 markers, the Doughboys clipped the victory hopes of a strong Maxwell field five in the final seconds of a thrilling battle last Monday night at Maxwell 54-53.

When the two teams met previously, the Tallismen had little difficulty in downing the airmen on the Post floor 66-50, but this week's engagement was a different story since their ace forward, Bob Priester, was on hand to strengthen the Maxwell attack.

Tuesday night's win over the Alabamans marked their ninth victory of the season, and gave them a double decision over the nearby Air Force aggregation.

Great Defensive

In a game that exchanged hands not less than 14 times, the Doughs had to coupie the shooting of Corizzi with the great defensive play of Harold Haberman, and Harold Lutz to earn the win. In the final minutes, the clock showing two minutes, 46 seconds, the losers were on the long end of a 53-48 count, and it looked very much as though the out-of-staters were getting set to avenge their previous loss.

Some 30 fouls were called on the two clubs, and afforded ace Bob Kinard a trip to the shower late in the final half. In the closely contended match, both teams worked frantically for the lead they so needed.

Throughout the duke, the margin of lead was never safe, and not until the final minutes did the hope of victory ever really shine on the Maxwell quintet. But the decision lay with the locals, and the complexion of the ball game changed when Corizzi, Haberman, and Doug Scovil broke the ice with shots that annihilated Maxwell's lead, and turned the blue ribbon over to the determined Benning soldiers.

Corizzi Leads

A customary thing took place on the Maxwell court. Harold Corizzi, boasting an average over the 16-point mark, posted another top count with his 22 points. In the last five games, the spectacular forward has tallied night's totals of 21, 20, 22, 23, and 22, for an amazing average. It was Corizzi's pivot shot from the foul line with seconds to go that afforded the victory for the locals.

Ced Tallis, who has ably coached for the past two seasons, returned from a recent meeting to the tutoring for the Maxwell tilt. Tallis coached his final game for Fort Benning Tuesday night. He leaves the Army in a very few days.

Bob Priester played havoc with the Doughs, keeping Maxwell a dangerous contender from the starting whistle to the final gun. The hardwood expert accounted for 18 markers, and missed tying the ball game with 14 seconds to play. With the hands pointing to the 14-second spot, Priester drew a charity throw, and could have put the game into an overtime had he ripped the cords.

Monday's fracas was quite a different story from the tilt played on the home floor. The Doughs employed seven different defenses, and at one stage of the game completely abandoned a defense and leaned on the Long Island university attack that is simply a passing device.

Fall Back on Zone

The forwards remain up near the center line, and a three-man zone is used to take the ball off the back-boards. Everything went fine until the Maxwell team got too hot, and at that point the Doughs fell back on their usual zone.

With the count standing at 53-48, and two minutes, 46 seconds remaining, the Doughs called time out to revamp their attack. A burst of power saved the day. Haberman dumped one in from the center, Scovil hit the hoop from his favorite corner, and Corizzi gave the home team the lead with a pivot shot from the foul line.

NOTICE

Tomorrow night at the Main Post gym boxing will get a big send off when some 20 pugilist enthusiasts take the gloves in hand for a ten-bout affair which marks the beginning of the boxing season at Fort Benning The bouts are slated to get under way at 8 p. m., it was announced by the athletic officer.

Local Bowlers Buckle Albany In Close Match

Fort Benning's Third Army championship bowling team journeyed to Albany, Ga., last Sunday and brought back another blue ribbon when they nosed out the Albany keglers by a 4,556-4,443 pin count.

The Doughs rolled their highest single game of the season when they bucked the pine for a sizzling 1,822.

Ewald Knuth, who exhibited such superb relief rolling in the Third Army competition held here two weeks ago, rolled the highest individual game, a fallistering 248, and also accounted for the most impressive match aggregate when he finished the match with a 956.

COMPLETES COURSE

T-5 Elbert Cain, Battery B, 319th Field Artillery battalion, has recently completed course D at the Food Service School, and has rejoined his organization for duty with the food service section, officials announced today.

POST COURTMEN TO ENTER THIRD ARMY TOURNAMENT

week that the Fort Benning Doughboy basketball team will be entered in the Third Army cage tourney which is slated to be held at Fort Jackson, S. C., from February 19-16.

The post quintet, runners-up in last year's competition, will embark as a 'dark horse' since they have fallen short of the record made by the Tallismen last season.

To date no information is known of the number of teams that will be entered, but it is expected that most of the installations in the Third Army area will make an entry in the competition.

Last year Fort Bragg, N. C., nosed the Doughs out by a single point, and the locals will be pointing to regain their mastry among the cage aggregations in this area. Fort Benning, which later went on to capture the Southeastern AAU championship, entered the 1947 competition with the finest record of any contestants, but faltered in the final game to give their Fort Bragg contenders a 52-51 victory.

The tournament will be a double elimination, and a team will be eliminated upon losing two games. Play will be governed by the rules of the National Basketball committee, it was also announced.

Sport Quiz

(AFPS)—1. Joe Louis and Max Schmeling were in the ring together: 10 rounds, 13 rounds, 15 rounds?

2. In the last Olympic Games, held back in 1936, Jack Lovelock was a surprise star. Just what did he do?

3. Who is the manager of the Boston Red Sox?

4. What could Albie Boothe, Phil Rizzuto and Ralph Beard claim to have in common?

ANSWERS

1. Schmeling knocked out Louis in 12 rounds in 1936, and lasted less than one stanza in 1938. Total—13 rounds, give or take a few seconds.

2. Lovelock, a New Zealander, upset highly favored American ace, Glen Cunningham, in the 1,500 meter event.

3. Just thought you might slip upon this one. It's Joe McCarthy, longtime bossman of the Yankees, who has replaced Joe Cronin.

4. Booth, Yale football immortal; Rizzuto, crack Yankee shortstop; and Beard, star of the Kentucky basketball squad, are all little men—mighty mites in comparison to the players who provide (or provided, in Albie's case) the opposition, yet all were headliners.

It's beginning to look very much as if the Fort Benning Doughboy basketball team is turning into a two-man scoring aggregation. Harold Corizzi and Doug Scovil have been making themselves so outstanding for their basket making that post fans are beginning to wonder if Coach Louis Grizzard couldn't use these two men exclusively.

Of course, that is a little far fetched, but the figures that the the two dazzling forwards have amassed is almost inconceivable. In the last three games, the post quintet hit the cords for 172 points, of which Corizzi and Scovil made 121. Not just for the books that total gives these two collaborators (basketball, that is) a percentage of 70.3.

Corizzi has managed to outdo his running mate Scovil. The dark-haired Jersey standout has boosted his game mean to 16.4, and has totalled 279 points in his 17 games. He is not a fancy shot, one that brings a stand full of court fans to their feet in awe. He is just a hard fighting ball player who has the coveted knack of getting himself where his "vigilant watchers" aren't looking. Then, too. Corizzi is one of the finest defensive men on the team, especially when it comes to stealing balls from the back board. Corizzi makes a great percentage of his markers from that position—as the take-off man under the back board.

Scovil, on the other hand, is the dead-eye forward, but, like every other sharp shooter, he has off nights, and though he will score 30 points one night, the following engagement may see him cut that total in half. Nevertheless, Scovil has tallied 229 markers and pushes Corizzi for the leading average since he has played in fewer varsity games than Corizzi has.

But the answer to why these two cagers have accounted for so many points is simply because the offense has been built around their ability. Scovil, dead from corners, is often "fed" the ball so that he can take his favorite shot at the hoop. Corizzi is the man on the fast break, and there you can see just why 70 per cent of the team's scoring has been done by two men.

The other night—it was last Friday—I sat on the scorer's bench and watched the Doughboys beaten 63-58. Usually, when the post team loses a ball game, I feel a bit down-hearted, for when you keep up with a club, know that team's players, and boast as a supporter, you naturally want that club to top the scoring.

But I must admit, I felt no such feeling when I saw the Co-lumbus Manufacturing company quintet take home the blue ribbon—the ribbon wasn't good enough for the locals to put before the public eye. It is never a good policy to criticize officials, especially when talking of somebody else's officials. There is a certain respect and finaliness that a referee or an umpire retains as a right, and it should be that way. But then, there is also the question of honesty and integrity of that referee or umpire. First and foremost, he MUST be impartial as he must be final and exact.

The umpiring simply "reaked with sour grapes" in that ball game. The Doughs, enjoying a long lead until the hosts got hot, just couldn't compete with a red-hot team, and an umpire that refused to notice the mistakes of his team. The Millers were a hard team to beat—that's granted—and they played a good ball game—also granted; but, the Doughs couldn't move a muscle, dribble a ball without a whistle charging them with some ridiculous infraction of the rules.

At first there was bitterness among the players on the post five. I suppose they thought about walking off the court at times. After minutes of this, their bitterness turned into amusement. In fact, they were laughing out loud at some of the calls . . . technical fouls? Why! yes.

This is not a criticism of the Mill team or its athletic staff, but it certainly is meant for and directed at the man who posed as the head umpire.

Capt. James Walker has been working overtime in getting the ISD baseball diamond into shape. It looks as though the detachment coach is trying to compete with Gowdy field. Incidentally, the ISD moundsmen are really setting the stage for a bang-up season. Already the books have been closed for tilts with the Columbus Cardinals and a team from Ohama, Nebraska. Letters are out to Georgia, Georgia Tech, Alabama, and Florida inquiring about ball games.

Bill Tuminella, former grid center for Butch Kendrick, is on his way out of the army. In just a few more days, the massive Tuminella will return to the civilian world where he plans to continue his education.

Although this isn't to be taken as final, Tuminella, on dependable sources, is slated for Alabama. The Crimson Tide will have plenty of Fort Benning next season—too bad the SEC has the freshmen ruling.

HARDWOD COMBINE BOASTS HAROLD TRIO

When it comes to basketball, the Fort Benning Doughboys might easily be termed a "Harold-ed" team, and there wouldn't be too much disagreement arising from the statement.

The fact is that the Doughs are decidedly "Harolded," having three men whose first name is Harold. A forward and two guards carry this title, the more intimate rooters for the team having some difficulty in attracting the attention of their favorite by merely screaming "Harold."

Harold Corizzi, leading Doughboy scorer, Harold Lutz, ace defensive man, and Harold Haberman, the all-round courtman, ate all playing on the ball club and all three are varsity members.

During football season, it wasn't quite so confusing, but it was a little mixed up when the coach cried for Harold, or "tell Harold to tighten up on his end." It so happens that both Lutz and Haberman were first string flankmen on Butch Kendrick's grid eleven, playing opposite ends, and again the spectators found some difficulty in getting their names straight.

It would be interesting if opposing court aggregations got wind of all this. Just imagine your opposition screaming Harold every minute of a ball game. You might very well have three heads turning about constantly, none of them ever knowing just who was being addressed.

But it remains a fact that all three of these men are among the top athletes on the post today. Lutz is, perhaps, the most versatile of the three, having made letters in track, football, swimming, and soon in basketball.

Harold (Lutz) was the big spark on Capt. Francis Naughton's Third Army champion track team last summer as far as the pole vault ing was concerned. He topped the bar at 11' and over and captured the honors in that division. A stellar flankman during the football season, Lutz distinguished himself as such an extraordinary end that Red Draw from Alabama promptly got him signed for his team. Lutz will go to Alabama following his discharge in a few months. Not only was he an excellent offensive and defensive man, but he had affixed to his right leg one of the finest kicking toes in this section.

Haberman was another standout on the ball team, grabbing honors every week. A fine pass receiver and defensive man, he added much strength to a very powerful Benning forward wall. On the basketball court he is one of the trickiest players the opposition has had to contend with.

Corizzi, although new to Fort Benning athletics, has already made a big name for himself as a leading basket maker. The dazzling forward has totaled 279 in the 17 games he has played for a game average of 16.4 points per outing.

So it is not difficult to explain when telling someone that the 1948 basketball aggregation is a very "Harolded" team. One wouldn't go far wrong should he spell it "heralded."

Four Artillerymen Receive Promotions

They included Cpls. Donald G. Bludworth, Jack Dickey and Laymon H. West and T-5 Bill Corn, all promoted to technician fourth grade.

Manchester Five Upsets Doughboys

Early last Wednesday, Coach Louis Grizzard learned that the Keesler field Flyers would be unable to appear for their regular game at the Post gym, and contacted a Manchester team which quickly accepted the invitation, and further edged the Doughboys in a hard fought fracas, 54-48.

Keesler, which filled the Doughs' regularly scheduled bill, called early Wednesday, and announced the cancellation of the game because of inclement weather. Manchester, calling themselves the Blue Boys, took up the challenge and emerged victors over their soldier hosts.

The score gives no idea of the determination and furiousness of the night's play. The game, marked by devastating defensive play and hard fighting zest, provided an early trip to the showers for two over-anxious cagers, Harold Lutz of the Doughboys and J. McIntosh of the Manchester team. In the thrilling tilt, 34 fouls were called by the overworked officials, with the Doughs taking the honors in that division with 18.

Fine Defense

Although the Doughs suffered another loss, they exhibited one of their finest defensive games of the season, but faltered because of bad shooting in the fast moving affair. Harold Lutz and Harold Haberman, held to six points between them, sparked the Doughboy defense with spectacular back-board work and interceptions of opposing passes.

In spite of the fact that the game was a veritable "rough and tumble" affair, it was one of the cleanest games to be played on the post floor this season. Fouls were numerous, but were accountable because of the fight and determination of both quintets. Not until the final second was the game settled when the sharp shooting Horace Denny dropped two in from the outside line to virtually sew up the visitors victory.

But the game was not always so close, for after nine minutes the Blue Boys had as surprised the Doughs with a 14-0 lead, and although they were hard pressed on numerous occasions, their lead was never relinquished.

A necessary time out was called by the Dough floor general, Bob Kinard, and from that point on the locals settled down to better ball. Fighting ferociously to overtake their leaders, Harold Corizzi, who eventually topped the scoring with 21 markers, began to find his much needed range, and the halftime whistle came as a welcome to both contestants.

Spark Manchester

Manchester took the floor for the final stanza holding a 27-22 advantage, the result of the accurate fire of Rufus Braddy, Horace Denny, and Leroy Boswell, the three men who sparked the entire Manchester offense.

For the next ten minutes the tilt was waged at tremendous speed with both squads striving earnestly for a margin of lead. At the ten-minute period the visitors held tenaciously to a close 35-33 advantage.

It was then that Leroy Boswell and sensational Horace Denny, versatile Manchester forward, began to prod through the Doughboy defense with shots from the far corners. Only the accurate shooting of Harold Corizzi and the great defensive work of Harold Haberman and Harold Lutz kept the locals from falling far behind.

Although Lutz was retired from action late in the last half, he played his most magnificent game of the season, disregarding all obstacles in an effort to save the day. Haberman, too, in the role of a determined defensive spark, stayed the Manchester attack time and again with his spectacular interceptions.

Harold Corizzi, the dazzling Benning forward who has led the scoring since the early days of the season, again took the scoring laurels for the night, hitting the hoop for 21 points. He was closely followed by Rufus Braddy who tallied 20 markers.

Guard, Reservists End 2-Week Course

Sixty-five officers, representing practically every branch of the Army, were honored in graduation exercises Saturday, following their completion of a two-week Reserve and National Guard indoctrination course at the Infantry School.

The first in a new series of such courses, they serve as a refresher to civilian components. Each course lasts two weeks, with two-week intervals between sessions. The next course commences February 8.

The Reserve and National Guard officers were brought up to date on the organizations of civilian components, and policies of the Department of the Army. They were also briefed on the latest methods of instruction, plus latest innovations in all phases of the infantry.

Huge Crowds See Trooper Pugilists

By VICTOR GIRRATANO

A total of 450 boxing enthusiasts were kept on their toes during an action-packed eight-bout card at the Airborne gymnasium Friday, January 23. The second program of the Airborne battalion's winter season brought into the ring two guest fighters, Skennandore and Schmeling, from the 504th Parachute Infantry regiment, who displayed exceptional ability and won their fights.

The policy of enlivening the program with outside talent will continue and broaden as the season progresses.

The evening's opener saw Frank Spennati of Company B, at 123 pounds, come back after dropping a decision the previous week to win over newcomer Billy Scklensker of Company D, at 129 pounds, a strong featherweight who wielded a smashing left hook, but who couldn't evade the strong right of Spennati. Spennati's height and reach added to his advantage. The bout was an even match and full of action.

In the second bout Ray Alvarado of Company F and Manuel Dominuez of Company G sent chills down the spines of the spectators with a shower of telling lefts and rights that continued without let-up throughout the bout. Dominuez, the aggressor, repeatedly rushed Alvarado, but Alvarado, a defensive fighter, eventually overwhelmed him with smart counter-punching. Alvarado was awarded the unanimous decision after outboxing and stopping his opponent in the third.

The third bout brought together Bob Mombaerts of Company G, at 140 pounds, and Lon Kelly of Company F, at 136 pounds. Mombaerts, a native of Belgium who lived there throughout the German occupation, is handicapped by a shoulder wound. Kelly used a cool, calculating defense, stalking his opponent, lashing out at every opportunity with strong blows that usually found their mark. Mombaerts, with excellent form, a fine stance, a strong left jab and a rugged infighting technique—and also a wicked shiner at the end of the bout—outpointed Kelly with his aggressiveness.

In the fourth bout Edward Couch of Company D outclassed Don Roeling of Company G and dropped him for the nine count in the third.

Bout number five was a clean, fast show between two good middleweights. Lucious Hollis of Company G faced Henry Everhart of Company E in three fast rounds in which both boys displayed the bes in scientific tactics, using plenty of good footwork and throwing plenty of leather. Everhart gained an advantage in the second which he held through the third and was awarded the decision.

Bout six brought John De Leva of Company B, at 161 pounds, who outpointed his opponent last week, to face Bob Fletcher of Company G, at 158 pounds. In three rounds of good boxing De Leva carried the fight to Fletcher who counterpunched with good straight lefts and strong right crosses. At the end Fletcher had the edge and the decision.

In bout seven the crowd went wild when two hard hitting, fast punching light heavies, both displaying exceptional style and stamina, fought through three rounds. Larry Skennandore of Company K, 504th Parachute Infantry regiment, eked out a split decision over Robert Bailey of Company D.

Bout eight, the main event and the thriller of the card, brought back Jim Faires of Company C, who at 178 pounds won his bout last week by a KO in the first round, to face Paul Schmeling of Company K, 504th Parachute Infantry regiment. Schmeling won by a TKO in 1:15 of the second round to avoid further injury to Faires' nose, which was bleeding profusely. Schmeling hit hard and threw more punches than his opponent although Faires' wide lefts hurt Schmeling on several occasions.

This week the third boxing card of the Airborne program will be staged at the Airborne gymnasium. Ring lights will be switched on promptly at 8 p. m.

Eddie Roberts To Be Civilian

During the days when the entire nation was saturating itself with the spirit of the gridiron, the promising young fullback was making a name for himself on Butch Kendrick's young but dangerous football team.

Roberts, soon to become a protege of Wally Butts, will enter the University of Georgia where he plans to play football.

GEORGIA BOUND — Eddie Roberts, alternate fullback on Butch Kendrick's Post eleven last season, will leave Fort Benning Saturday after receiving his discharge from the Army. The versatile Doughboy gridder has signed with Wally Butts' Georgia Bulldogs and hopes to see action next season.

Council Appointed For Post Athletics

A new athletic and recreation council was appointed here last week by Maj. Gen. John W. O'Daniel, Infantry Center commander, to coordinate athletic activities of all units and to dictate policies as desired by the commanding general, it has been announced.

The board is composed of Col. LeGrande A. Diller, commanding officer of the 25th Infantry regiment; Col. Charles H. Royce, School Troops commander; Col. Wiley H. LAWSON FLYERS DROP 2 GAMES IN OUTINGS

Dan Halstead's fast moving Doughboy reserves held on tenaciously to a slim recess advantage last Monday night at the Main Post gym, and went on to defeat a strong Lawson Field quintet 54-52 in a fast moving battle that saw the lead change hands 16 times.

Lawson dropped a second tilt to the Manchester Blue Boys this week 71-59, and so closed out another week of their loop schedule.

Sherwood Mierers, shifty Doughboy forward paced the reserves' victory over the Flyers. Although the fracas was slow getting under way, both quintets began hitting the hoop in the second stanza, with the intermission whistle finding the Doughs out in front 23-20.

But the final half was a series of fast shooting and little defensive efforts with the lead shifting with practically every basket. The Doughs continued to lead most of the third canto, but late in that period, Max Sierer and Charles Daughtry began to take their toll of the Benning cards and gave their teammates a six point lead over their contenders. But the hopes of victory were short lived for the Doughs came barreling back with a barrage of shots that couldn't be equalled by the Flyers, so with three minutes remaining in the ball game, the Doughs were out in front 52-46.

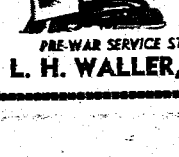
Halstead sent in his own seconds, who finished the game although they were hard-pressed until the final whistle.

The Manchester Blue Boys were the next quintet on the Flyers' bill who journeyed north to meet the Millers, Manchester, the team that had previously handed the Doughboys a 54-48 defeat again held mastry on the tilt, downing the Lawson five 71-59.

But the tilt wasn't settled until the last minute when Horace Denny and J. McIntosh bucketed baskets that sewed up the Manchester victory.

Lou Button, fast moving and accurate firing Flyer led the night's scoring with 18 markers, and played one of his finest games of the season. Clark totalled 14 for the winners.

Dough Center Leaves Army



Fort Benning will feel the loss of another great athlete this week when Bill Tuminella, veteran Benning gridiron center, sheds his Army garb and begins his education at the University of Alabama.

Tuminella, who won many honors on 100 yards of turf at Doughboy stadium, has, on reliable sources, picked the Crimson Tide for his future football activities.

As a gridder on Butch Kendrick's fine eleven this past season, Tuminella distinguished himself as one of the finest centers ever to perform for the post. The coach of the Quantico Marines summed up Tuminella when he paid tribute with "He was the finest center ever to play against a team that I have coached."

When Wally Butts, coach of the former All-Americans Frankie Sinkwich and Charlie Trippi, visited Fort Benning, he had high hopes of getting the able lineman at Georgia next year. Butts, an expert on detecting football talent, held Tuminella in high esteem.

BULLET COURTMEN ANNEX DOUBLE WIN

BOB PHILLIPS

Playing against top-notch competition in a three-game series last week, the fast-breaking Bullets reached their peak of hardwood proficiency as they turned back two of their foes and lost to the third. In chalking up the two wins, the Bullets were masters of the opposition and were ever cautious to take advantage of all miscues made by the opposing lives.

Bounding back from a two-game losing streak, the soldier cagers met and defeated the highly rated Alabama A & M college five Thursday night at the field house. A mixed audience of army and civilian rooters were on hand to see the Bullets humble the collegians by the count of 44-37.

Slow Start

Getting off to a slow start, the contest gained speed as it progressed and besides from bringing victory to the soldiers proved more thrilling to the onlookers. Setting a terrific pace in the opening minutes of play the Alabamans' 11-8 lead faded when Bill Humphrey and Joe Morgan, the other half of the Morgan twins, flipped in pointers to tie the game at 11-11. Scrappy little Bill was a workhorse all evening as he played superbly on both defense and offense. Alabama streaked to a 15-11 lead minutes later, but Humphrey's accurate shooting and Garcia's two-pointer deadlocked the score again at 15-all. Goals by Burke and Garcia gave the Bullets a narrow 21-19 half-time lead.

Nose Benedict

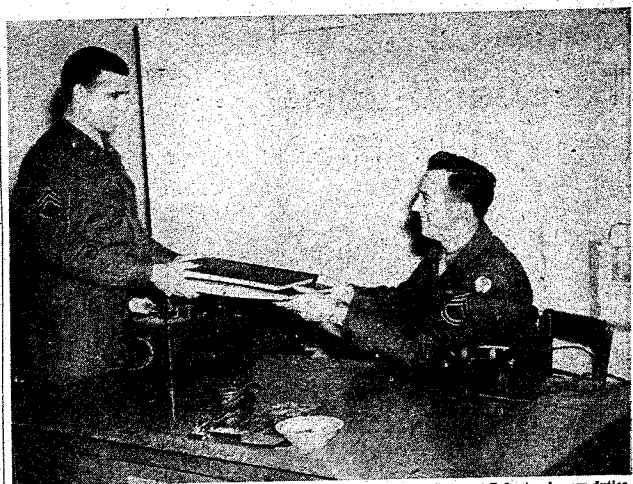
The lone defeat of the trio of games came Friday night at the Main Post gym where a small following of patriotic backers witnessed a slow and loosely played melee in which the Bullets were narrowly nosed out by Benedict college, 25-23. The Bullets took to the court with high hopes of making it two in a row, but the fighting little Tigers emerged from a 12-12 half-time score to outshoot the soldiers 13 to 11. A leaping one-hand shot from the portside by Gordon Burke started the Bullets off out front.

During the course of the low-scoring battle the count was tied six times, including a 12-12 recess knotting. Seconds after the last stanza got underway, Eugene Williams' duo gave the Benedict five a brief 14-12 lead, which was erased promptly when Bill Humphrey connected for two. Jimmie Smith ripped the cords with a free-throw and Harry Moore pushed in a basket from the starboard to give the Bullets a three-point lead.

With James Moultrie, the Tigers' capable guard, leading the way, the visitors hit the victory trail for keeps, and were never headed or caught up with. A rally in the waning minutes of play saw the Bullets completely outmaneuver the rangy collegians, but they fell short of making up their three-point deficit. Gordon Burke managed to sneak through a field goal seconds before the final buzzer sounded, ending the game in favor of Benedict.

Share Laurels

Harry Moore and Gordon Burke shared point laurels with six each, one more than their teammate Thomas Taylor, while James Moultrie and Berry Glenn walked off with those of the Tigers with 10 and seven respectively.



Having dropped a single game to the Florida Normal college five some two weeks past, the Bullets moved back into the win column Saturday night at the field house by mauling the campus lads, 38-24. Playing before a packed house of civilian and olive-drab well-wishers, long and lanky Freddie Hamer got the Bullets out front quickly with a hesitating push-shot from the palm of his hand. From there on in the vistors played catch-up ball, but to no avail, as the winners romped to leads of 7-0, 9-3, 12-5, 14-7, and 16-9 at the mid-way period.

Florida Moves Up

Shortly after the opening of the second half, Florida moved up to within two points of knotting the score, but goals that came with the quickness of lightning by Garcia, Smith, and Taylor hurriedly put the trying visitors on the short end of a 23-14 count. Again the collegians made a bid to come within striking distance when Grisby and Ed Vickers bucketed two pointers, but the shooting accuracy and fast-breaking tactics employed by the Bullets proved too much for their out-classed rivals to cope with. Bullet, Hamer, Taylor, Smith, and Humphrey connected perfectly time and time again to give the victors a 24-20 lead. Sharp-shooting Harry Moore made the Bullets' last two baskets, while Nat Washington and Theodore Saulters added two each for Florida to end the scoring and the game. Scoring laurels of the game ended in a three-way tie, with Moore and Taylor of the Bullets and Rodell Murray of Florida getting eight points each.

Thursday night's preliminary game saw accurate shooting Dick Hil and flashy Ed Suber run amuck in scoring 12 and 11 points respectively to break a 9-9 half-time tie and lead Company B to a smashing 38 to 25 victory over Company E.

In Saturday night's prelim, the Grays and Blues from Girard high school's sextet tangled in a hard ought scuffle which saw the Grays finally come out victorious and alive, holding an 18-14 triumph. Agnes Ivy got 12 of the winners' scores, while Eleen Hughey registered nine for the losers.

Benning Quintet To Make Bids In Tournaments

As the month of January draws to a close court enthusiasts begin to eye with anticipation and caution the tournaments that will beset the nation next month.

The Doughboys, ailing from one of their poorest seasons in many years, will be prepping with continued and intensive training throughout the first half of February in preparation for the Third Army and Southeastern AAU tourneys slated for the last part of the month.

Third Army competition will begin February 16, and will wind up on Feb. 19, according to reports received in Post Headquarters here. The Doughboys, edged out last season by Fort Bragg, N. C., will enter the competition as the underdogs this season.

Atlanta will also greet the locals again this year, when the 1947 Southeastern champions tangle with strong competition in a hope of successfully defending their title this season.

But the Doughs have been playing under a disadvantage all year, and will meet tournament whistle with a skepticism that was entirely foreign to the former quintet. Football season caused a delay in getting court action started, and, therefore, was instrumental in the locals' early defeats. Last year's squad had all but disappeared by the time Ced Tallis was able to get his team lined up, and inside of two weeks all the remnants of the team Tallis had tutored in 1946 had left the Post either by discharge or transfer.

Under these handicaps, the season started with a none too impressive debut with the Post five bowing to Howard college 42-40. From that time on the Post cagers have wandered through good and bad days, and to date have managed to win only eight of their 19 starts.

Next week the Doughs enter the crucial pre-tourney schedule that will see most of the week's action on foreign floors. After journeying to Fort Jackson to meet the Red Devils who were beaten decisively here, the locals will take on the Parris Island Marines and then Howard college, both victors over the Tallismen.

They return here Wednesday morning but their rest will be short lived, since Eglin Field appears on the register for that night.

Harold Corizzi and Doug Scovil continue to set the pace in the scoring department with a tight race between the two forwards. Corizzi, in averaging 16.4 points per game, threatens to crush all previous scoring marks set by Benning tourtment. During last week's action, the stellar soldier cager hit the hoop for a 21-point average in three games.

Louis Grizzard, pinch-hitting for Tallis, and soon to become fulltime coach, has revamped his offense, and has centered it around Corizzi and Scovil. As a result most of the basket-making has come from these two men.

Grizzard, a staunch advocate of tight defense, has improved the Doughs' back board work and pass interception abilities considerably. He maintains, that a tight defense will better give his marksmen more chances to get shots at their own basket. He does not have faith in free shooting games that take a heavy toll on the durability of his players.

Although the locals have dropped 11 games, they have averaged 48 points per outing and have outscored their opponents, 912-875.

The Doughs have lost many a close tilt, some by ne and two points.

Harold Corizzi Retains Honors In Score Race

Harold Corizzi, the fast moving, accurate eye Doughboy forwad, continued to set the pace last week in the scoring department by averaging over 20 points in the locals' last three outings and boosting his season's total points to a sensational 279.

Corizzi furthered his leadership in last week's engagement by averaging 21 points per game in his three outings. The Jersey cager has totalled 279 points for the season now, and has stretched his game mean to an impressive 16.4.

The versatile courtman has been virtually unmolested in his persistence to hold tenaciously to the high scoring honors he captured from Guard Harold Corizzi early in the season. Besides attaining great heights in the point-making department, Corizzi maintained a high defensive proficiency along with the defensive sparks, Harold Lutz, Harold Haberman and Bob Kinard.

Doug Scovil, second to Corizzi in scoring, had another good week, and, except for a poor night against the Manchester Blue Boys, kept his good average along at a steady pace.

Haberman, who has been in a considerable scoring slump, surprised his opposition last Friday night, when he dumped in six last-half baskets on the Columbus Manufacturing game. Haberman has continued to distinguish himself as the Doughboys' foremost defensive man.

Young Singer Starring In WDAK Broadcast

In what may easily turn out to be the first break in a predicted bright career came to Cpl. Danny Stackpole, Parachute Rigger course student when he was presented with a 15-minute spot over radio station WDAK.

Program director Ed Wescott of WDAK, after getting wind of young Stackpole's talents, made a surprise visit to Service club No. 1, and signed the young tenor for a radio appearance. He is presented each Wednesday from 5 to 5:15 over WDAK.

A native of Buffalo, New York, where he is well known for his vocal talents, the 22-year-old Danny has been singing for the public since he was eight years old. From a boy soprano he graduated to solo work at local concerts and community festivities. When his tenor voice began to attract attention, several well known singers encouraged him to follow a singing career, and he soon enrolled in a singing school. It wasn't as bad as he thought it would be, for he liked singing, and has been rewarded for his long hours of practice with a rich appealing voice.

On his second "hitch" in the Army, Danny returned to the armed services under the Disabled Veteran's Enlistment Act on May 20, 1947. Stackpole has been awarded the Purple heart with cluster, plus a Bronze star for action in the Hurtegan Forest offensive in the ETO with the Ninth Infantry division.

WDAK program Director Wescott predicts a bright career for Danny. "With a few lucky breaks Danny will be headed for brighter things," he stated.

Twin Boys Lose Race To Parachute Wings

BY WALTER N. MURPHY

When Lt. John D. White began airborne training with Company A of the Airborne battalion on November 24, he knew he had a race on his hands—one between the arrival of a pair of parachute wings and the arrival of a pair of twins to Mrs. White.

The wings won the race when Lt. White graduated on January 17 with Basic Airborne class 6 A. This was all very fine with Lt. White, for one thing—or rather one pair—at a time was enough. Three days later on January 20, the Whites became proud parents of twin boys, John Dal and George Dale White, born thirty-three minutes apart at City hospital in Columbus.

Lt. White, a veteran of France and Germany campaigns, has been at Fort Benning since July 1946, and is a native of Denver, Colorado. He entered the service five years ago at the age of eighteen. Mrs. White is the former Miss Carolyn Lapham of Columbus.

Mrs. White and the twins are now at home, and all are doing fine. "There was only one thing I was worried about", declared Lt. White. "That was during that thirty-three minute interval between the twins. I was afraid that the second one might be a girl".

TILLERY PROMOTED

Turkish Officer Taking Airborne Training Here

The Congressional Library and coffee—those are the two things that have impressed us so far.

So reports the first Turkish officer ever to take airborne training, Lt. Necil Ulusay who is now in his third week of airborne indoctrination at the Infantry School.

The young lieutenant, neat looking man of 27, left Istanbul in December, 1947, and, after visiting New York and Washington, D. C., reported to the Infantry School. A guest officer of Company C, Airborne battalion, Student Training regiment, Lieutenant Ulusay will be the first Turkish officer to qualify as a military parachutist and glidierman when he completes the basic course early in February.

Turkey, explained the young officer, is making plans to modernize its Army, and one of the first aims is the establishment of a parachute training unit. As the first Turkish paratrooper, Lieutenant Ulusay, will undoubtedly play an important role in its organization. Before returning to Turkey, he plans to take every airborne course offered by the Infantry School in order to become as thoroughly indoctrinated as possible in airborne methods and procedure.

"Many of us in the Turkish Army are anxious to come to the United States to take airborne training at the Infantry School", he said. "And perhaps later we shall be permitted to do so. It is a marvelous school. I expect to learn much and profit immensely by my studies."

Although the Turkish Army has no airborne component, the Turkish government sponsors the Turk Kusu, a civilian parachute and glider club, which has branch clubs in all parts of Turkey. Here a Turk can become a parachutist and a glider pilot at no cost to himself.

Lieutenant Ulusay hails from the port town of Izmir in western Turkey on the Aegean Sea. He was sent to a military preparatory school, and then won admittance to the National Military Academy at Ankara, the "West Point" of Turkey. Commissioned a tank officer in 1941, he reported for duty on the Syrian border in the summer of the same year. In 1943 he was transferred to central Turkey, and in 1944 to Galipoli on the Dardanelles from where he left for the United States. This is his first venture outside the boundaries of Turkey.

"I am really overwhelmed by the friendliness of Americans", he remarked with a broad smile. "I already have many friends. It is a very wonderful feeling to be liked when you are away from home, especially by Americans. American soldiers are very sincere, very trustworthy, and good fellows. I am most happy to be here".

The two things which have impressed Lieutenant Ulusay most in America are the Congressional Library and coffee, the former because of its immensity and complete files, and the latter—"Well, it's this way," explained the young officer. "In Turkey we have a beverage called the coffee bean. In this 'coffee' is a strong blend of the coffee bean that makes the beverage rich and aromatic and as thick as syrup. It's a tradition that has been in existence for some centuries." Lt. Ulusay's first cup of American coffee was a "Shock"—a mild tragedy. "I thought it was a very bad joke," he said, "or a medicine, in an event a very horrible mistake", he smiled.

When queried why a Tank Corps officer had been sent to an airborne school, Lieutenant Ulusay replied that each army division in Turkey chose one physically qualified officer to compete for the right to attend the Infantry School in the United States as an airborne student. He had been chosen from the tank division, and at a test in Ankara he had been selected from a group of 21 officers by virtue of his better knowledge of the English language.

"Only one thing aggravates me at this moment", he admitted as he pondered over his cup of coffee. "I am afraid my friends in Galipoli would be puzzled and displeased", he went on, raising his cup. "This watery, weak, and tasteless liquid", he mused slowly, "I like it".

Fifteen-Year Vet Assigned to 319th

A veteran of 15 years service, 1st Sgt. John F. Chandler, has recently been assigned to Service battery of the 319th Field Artillery battalion.

A former member of the 83rd Field Artillery battalion here from 1923 to 1940, Sgt. Chandler during the war, was assigned to Headquarters and Headquarters battery, 13th Field Artillery brigade in Italy. Later he was transferred with his unit to the 36th Field Artillery battalion which at that time was on the Anzio beachhead.

Joining the 36th at Rome, he was assigned as first sergeant of Headquarters and Headquarters battery of that organization. He wears the ETO ribbon with four battle stars, bronze arrowhead for European invasion, the American Defense Ribbon, and the Victory and Occupation ribbon.

CALDWELL DISCHARGED

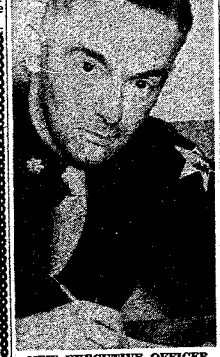
T-5 Emil H. Caldwell, Battery A, 319th Field Artillery battalion, has been discharged from the Army, officials said today. Prior to his discharge he was a prime mover driver for the battery.

Bradley Slated To Be Named Chief Of Staff

Proclaimed for some time as the choice to succeed Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower as Army Chief of Staff, Gen. Omar N. Bradley has been formally nominated for the post by President Truman.

The nomination is now before the Senate for approval, but there seems to be no doubt of Bradley taking over the Army's top post, according to Washington insiders.

The specific date on which Bradley will take over as Chief of Staff has not been announced, but it will be effective on the first week in December of last year when he began his nationwide tour of Army installations.



The specific date on which Bradley will take over as Chief of Staff has not been announced, but it will be effective on the date he is sworn in. Gen. Eisenhower has previously revealed that he expects to vacate his office around February 15.

Formerly chief of the Veterans Administration, Gen. Bradley left the post two months ago. Since he left the Va post he has been conducting a nation-wide tour and survey of the Army department's facilities in his re-indoctrination into Army life.

The "Doughboy's General," as he became known during the war was a Fort Benning visitor the first week in December of last year when he began his nationwide tour of Army installations.

Emerging from World War II as one of the country's most outstanding and popular military leaders, Gen. Bradley served as commander of the famous 12th Army group in Europe. He was an instructor from 1929 to 1933 at the Infantry School, and in 1941 he took over as commandant.

Gen. Eisenhower, who withdrew last week as a possible presidential candidate, is resigning to accept a position as president of Columbia university.

Hobby Shop Opened By Lawson Section

The shrill buzz of electric saws, the steady whir of electric drills, and the resounding staccato of hammers marked the official opening of the manual arts shop at Lawson field last Monday afternoon.

A project of the individual services office, the hobby shop is housed in an abandoned mess hall in the old 76th Troop Carrier squadron area near the Squadron A barracks, and is under the supervision of Sgt. Harold Cline.

The shop will be open to base personnel from 2 to 9:30 p. m. Monday through Friday. The woodwork hobby shop provides another recreational activity where base personnel can spend their leisure hours, Maj. James Hayden, individual service officer, said.

In addition to the hobby shop, individual services section supervises a well stocked library, a comfortable and spacious study room, a fully equipped gym, a squadron day room, and the recreation hall.

The new shop boasts ample work bench space and a large assortment of electric and hand tools for all types of woodwork. According to Sergeant Cline, with the availabe space and equipment woodwork enthusiasts will be able to turn out anything from a tie rack to a boat. The sergeant and his assistants will be on duty as supervisors and instructors, and personnel will be provided with certain types of materials. Materials not available at the shop will be provided by the hobbyists.

As soon as tools and materials are available metal work and plastic departments will be added to the shop, Sergeant Cline said.

Post To Select Rifle Candidates During February

Tryouts of candidates who will represent Fort Benning on the Army Ground Forces rifle team, will be conducted during the months of January and February, it has been announced.

A squad of 30 riflemen and 12 pistolmen will begin practice fire this month. From this group 18 riflemen and six pistolmen will be selected to compete for Third Army tryouts at Fort Riley, Kans.

A rifle and pistol squad of 30 to 40 members will comprise the Army Ground Forces team which will enter the National Matches staged annually at Camp Perry, Ohio.

Candidates for the squad to represent AGF will be chosen to form the team from members of all Regular Army arms and services of the Zone of Interior. Those selected will form the team that will compete in the National Matches in Ohio which will be resumed this year.

Approximately 150 AGF candidates will assemble for try-outs at Fort Riley during April and May. The Third Army squad will have a quota of 30 members, of which approximately three-quarters will be rifle entrants and one-fourth pistol entrants. Fort Benning has been assigned a quota of nine riflemen and three pistolmen, Fort Bragg will have 10 riflemen and four pistolmen, while Fort Jackson's squad will consist of three riflemen and one pistol expert.

Chiefs of the Engineer corps, Ordnance department, Transportation corps and the Military Police corps have expressed a desire to support their own teams in the National Matches.

NG Commissioned Grades Now Open

Major General Kenneth F. Cramer, chief of the National Guard Bureau, today announced a new policy on the direct appointment of second lieutenants to the National Guard that materially increases the number of former enlisted men who can now qualify for commissions.

Former enlisted men of all grades having a minimum of six months service in the Army of the United States between December 7, 1941, and June 30, 1947, are now eligible for direct appointment as second lieutenants in the National Guard if they meet the following requirements:

(1) They are graduates of an accredited college or university where no advanced Reserve Officer Training course was given, or, if it was given, their period in school before graduation was too short to permit them to complete the ROTC course.

(2) They are 21 years old and have not passed their 28th birthday at the time of appointment in the Guard.

Commissions as second lieutenants in the National Guard are also open to advanced ROTC graduates without previous military service.

Hitherto, direct appointment as second lieutenants was limited to eligible warrant officers and enlisted men of the first three grades whose war record attested their professional fitness.

SPRING MEETING SET BY SELECTION BOARD

Selection boards to recommend officers for promotion to regular army grades from captain to lieutenant colonel will meet at Washington during the spring the Department of the Army announced today.

The first board, to study qualifications of majors for promotion to lieutenant colonel, is scheduled to meet early in next month. Selection boards for the grades of colonel, brigadier general, and major general have already convened, and the general officer board have made their recommendations.

Personnel of the new boards has not yet been announced.

To Study Records

The lieutenant colonel board will study the records of all line officers below the grade of lieutenant colonel in the regular army who, by July 1, 1948, have at least 16 years service. In addition, any line officer who has served as a temporary general officer will be eligible.

The major board, whose date of convening has not yet been set, will recommend line officers for promotion among those who are lower in grade than major and who will have over ten years service on July 1. The captain board, also scheduled to meet later, will make recommendations from the list of regular line lieutenants with over five years service.

No estimate of the number of eligible officers involved was immediately available.

No Vets Considered

Similar boards will work on promotion recommendations for chaplains, Medical Service Corps members, doctors of the Medical Corps, and dentists. There will be no selection of veterinarians at this time.

The only selection for chplains will be to the grade of lieutenant colonel, from among those chaplains below lieutenant colonel with over 16 years service on July 1. The Medical Service Corps board will examine records of lieutenant colonels, all permanent majors, and all captains with over 13 years service on July 1. Majors of this corps will be selected from among all permanent captains and those first lieutenants who have over seven years service.

It is expected that Medical Corps lieutenant colonels (doctors) will be chosen from among all lower officers with over 16 years service, and majors from those officers with over ten years service on July 1. Somewhat similar selection will be in force for dentists, except that selection of dental majors will probably go only to those officers with over 11 years service.

It was pointed out that the years of service cited in each case refer to years "for promotion purposes" as distinguished from years "for pay purposes." The effect of this will be to equalize opportunity for consideration among all regulars whether their service is computed on an actual basis or on an age basis, as it was in the case of many officers integrated into the regular army in the two programs of 1946 and 1947. The army also emphasized that under the Officer Personnel Law of 1947 officers not recommended for promotion by this year's boards will not be considered to have been "passed over." Excepting only the initial promotions, the law provides that after an officer has been "passed over" for promotion on two consecutive occasions he will be removed from the service.

Vocational Night School Enrollees Now Over 1,000

As registration at the Infantry Center's vocational school draws to a close tomorrow night, total enrollment figures, according to Capt. Willard E. Chambers, information and education officer, have reached over 1,000.

Of this figure, almost 110 of the students are dependents of men stationed at Fort Benning. The new policy which enables wives to enroll with their husbands is expected to enlarge the registration of the school and to make it possible for many married men to take courses.

Another course has been added to the 28 already offered. Nine weeks of instruction in supply administration will be available under the same terms that govern the other courses. Studying primarily the conditions of unit supply, the course will include practical work in forms and orientation in army regulations governing supply.

Already crowded, the course in typing will no longer be open for further enrollment, Captain Chambers stated. Openings still exist in all other courses and those who wish to do so may enroll until tomorrow night.

For the first time since the vocational school was inaugurated, advanced courses are offered in French and Spanish.

RETURN TO DUTY

Sgt. Bert L. Bouck, T-4 William R. Wise, and Cpl. Charles Crankshaw have returned to duty with the 319th Field Artillery battalion's Service battery following completion of the enlisted motor mechanics course at the Infantry School.

Artillery Group Taking Infantry School Course

Tryouts Planned For Firing Team

Local Entries Vie For Places

Opportunity still exists for men interested in competitive firing to enter the tryouts for the AGF rifle and pistol teams, according to Capt. Frank Palmer, team coach and advisor.

Third Army directives that tryouts for the team will be completed by March 6 have been complied with as eager marksmen from all post organizations demonstrate their skill at Simpson and Shelton ranges. Successful candidates will travel to Fort Riley, Kans., in April or May for further training and competition for positions on the Army Ground Force team.

The Infantry Center has received an invitation to the Tampa Midwinter Shoot which will be held in March, although at the present time, it is unknown whether or not a group of pistoleers from this post will participate, officials said.

Tryout at Riley

Members of the AGF rifle and pistol teams will leave for Riley for tryouts before traveling to Camp Perry, Ohio, to compete in the National Rifle matches sponsored by the National Rifle association in August.

Although contests for the rifle and pistol teams have been keen, Captain Palmer said that there is still room for any man who either has had experience in competitive shooting or who desires to follow the sport in the future.

Tryouts for the two teams will continue through Feb. 27 with riflemen firing at Shelton range on Monday, Tuesday, Thursday, and Friday afternoons, and the pistol sharpshooters firing Monday through Friday mornings at Simpson rainge.

Applicants for team positions will be required to fire courses for record six times during the month of February. Eighteen riflemen and six pistol shots will be selected from these record scores for the elimiantion rounds at Riley, Captain Palmer revealed.

The record course here at Ben-

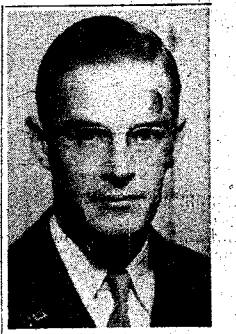
Analyst Arrives Here February 9

Mark M. Riegel, personnel research analyst of the adjutant general's office, Washington, D. C., is slated to arrive here February 9 to conduct a study of food service matters in conjunction with the new army career plan.



Originally scheduled to arrive January 26, Mr. Riegel will confer with Lt. Col. L. J. Fitzgerald, Food Service supervisor, prior to setting up an examining board of food service personnel to qualify men for MOS.

During his visit Riegel will conduct validation studies of technical proficiency tests for MOSs in the food service field. These technical proficiency tests are designed for use in the Career Guidance Plan for enlisted men.

These studies will involve administering the tests in the pertinent MOSs and comparing the information obtained with information concerning the performance of the men in their jobs.

The food service field is just one of the many fields in which properly qualified and schooled personnel can move up to chief warrant officer, officials said.

The entire field of Army jobs is being surveyed, and each of them is being assigned to a field of specialization in which all jobs of a like nature are being placed.

Certificates of merit and lapel pins will be presented to all those whose pictures merited forwarding to the all-army level of competition, officials revealed. Winners of the second and third place awards in each category will also receive photographic merchandise as their prizes.

Officials of leading magazines and newspapers will judge the contest. Many of these same publications have already made application for the printing of the prize-winning snapshots at the conclusion of the contest.

Interest in the competition reportedly has been widespread. According to Miss Dorothy M. Kitterman, special service official from Washington, the State department has requested many of the photographers for distribution in a good will campaign in other countries. This series is said to be planned as an "Americana" collection. Many magazines also requested permission to reproduce this group as a whole.

Airborne Class Begins

Class B-10 of the Airborne battalion's Company A began another cycle of training last week with five officers and 146 enlisted men enrolled as students.

Last week members of the class studied computation of loads, loading and lashing equipment in aircraft, and other glider problems.

ning will include ten rounds at 200 yards in the offhand or standing position, ten at 200 yards in rapid fire in a sitting position, rapid fire of ten rounds at 300 yards in a prone position, and ten at 500 yards in prone position at a slow rate of fire.

The National matches to be held at Perry will include ten rounds at 600 yards and 20 rounds at 1,000 yards, both in a prone position and both at a slow rate of fire.

Pistol competition will include ten rounds at 25 yards in ten seconds of fire, ten at the same distance under time fire (20 seconds), and ten rounds at 50 yards in slow fire.

Capt. Frank Palmer, rifle and pistol mentor, has long been ranked as a distinguished marksman and served on the Infantry Rifle team for many years before combat eliminated the more peaceful contests.

Six years of team and individual competitive firing in the national matches at Camp Perry, from 1935 to 1940, make him well fitted to coach a new group of rifle and pistol shots. Prior to Pearl Harbor, he was an enlisted man in the 29th Infantry.

Gallo to Assist

M-Sgt. Joseph Gallo, one of the outstanding pistol marksmen on the post, is to assist Captain Palmer in the instruction of the team candidates. Sergeant Gallo, who placed fourth in last year's Tampa pistol competition with the .45 calibre pistol, will participate again this year on the Infantry Center pistol team, in the tryouts for the AGF pistol team, and in the Perry matches in August and September.

Last year, the Infantry Center's pistol team won high honors in the Tampa Midwinter Shoot, placing sixth of 40 competing teams in the .22 target pistol match course; seventh of 40 in the .38 Firestone Trophy match; tenth of 40 opponents in the .38 City of Tampa Trophy match and eighth of 40 teams in the National Team match.

Also to assist in the coaching and shooting of the pistol team candidates is 1st Sgt. Russell A. Stow of Headquarters and Headquarters detachment, Section One, 3440th ASU. Sergeant Stow participated with the other local delegates at the National matches last year at Camp Perry, Ohio.

"The candidates we have had so far have been excellent. However, we would like to get as many rifle and pistol experts as possible for this competition," Captain Palmer declared.

"The infantry, above all other branches of the service, should provide the basic backbone of competitive shots for the AGF team. We are looking forward to the finest group of marksmen ever to enter competition as a team from the Infantry Center."

In 1939 Colonel Ramee was a student in the regular course at the Infantry School, and in 1940 he returned to attend an advanced officers communications course. After four years overseas duty, he was assigned in August, 1946, to the Training Literature and Visual Aids section, which he now heads.

THE CONCORD PIANO

On September 13, 1913, we sold the Chase Conservatory of Music 14 upright Concord pianos, all of which remained in continuous use for 29 years—until the death of Mr. Louis Chase, President of the Conservatory.

The school was closed after his death in January 1942 and these pianos, after being in extreme hard use for 29 years were sold at from 60 to 75 percent of the original price and every one of them was still in perfect usable condition and still are today.

This speaks for the merit of the Concord piano. Hundreds have been sold in this territory and not a single dissotisfactory one.

We have just received a shipment of these fine pianos and for a few days we will offer one of the most popular styles at the low price of —a $565 value, measured by any standard of value—others proportionately priced.

Such prices are unusual and are at a less price than offered by any other dealer anywhere on this same piano or one of a comparable value.

Bayonet Theater Reviewer Lauds Fort Bragg's Soldier Production

BY PEGGY WARD

Presented under the auspices of the Army's chief of special services, the Fort Bragg show, "Something To Bragg About", was presented to Fort Benning audiences last Friday and Saturday evenings at the Main theater.

This show was the initial and successful attempt at producing soldier shows in the United States. The ground work was done by Miss Skippy Lynn, a member of the Civilian Actress Technician organization, which has been initiated by the Department of the Army to assist personnel in producing their own soldier shows.

CATs Assist

Civilian Actress Technicians can be provided throughout the six army areas to assist in every phase of theatrical production. Members of this organization must have technical education and a complete knowledge of theatrical production in order to assist and advise in the stage production, lighting, make-up, costuming, and all phases of theatrics, officials said.

This was proved to everyone who saw the show Friday or Saturday, as Miss Skippy Lynn not only wrote the show, assisted by Miss Anita Carroll, while they were both serving in Europe, but she staged the production, assisted with the original music and lyrics, and acted as technical advisor. Miss Lynn also entertained with her own acting and singing in the production and she is indeed a well-rounded actress to have participated actively in the show as well as doing much of the behind-the-scenes work.

Harmonizers Tops

One of the top attractions of the show was the quartette, the Harmonizers, who were so well-received that they came back for two encores. Members of the Harmonizers quartette were T/Sgt. Oliver O. Gaines, Sgt. Willie Harlow, Sgt. Edward McGrady, and Pfc. David Mothershed.

Three excellent dance numbers were given by Miss Emiline Gordon, one of the four feminine members of the show. Miss Gordon studied dancing several years under instructors all over the United States.

In addition to Miss Lynn and Miss Gordon, Miss Billie Dobson played the heroine and T-3 Margaret Reed, a Fort Bragg Wac, played the humorous part of Miss Hephzibah.

The Fort Braggadeers, another singing group, was ably led by T/5 Gene T. Montefiore, who also sang two solo numbers and demonstrated his excellent voice to an enthusiastic audience.

EM Design Sets

The sets, designed and executed by Cpl. Gerald Duffy, Pfc. Al Hansen, Pvt. Robert Hart, Pfc. Fred Schnaars, and Pvt. Sam Turnbull, were simple props, with the exception of the carnival scene, but were so cleverly designed and placed on the stage in front of plain backdrops that the effect desired was well given. Outstanding was the stylized juke-box in the college scene and the merry-go-round in the carnival scene. The swinging bar door and the lamp post in the first scene made an excellent and unobtrusive background for the songs and dances presented during the show.

The cast had put in references to Fort Benning and Columbus in the script for their presentation here, and these, of course, added great amusement for the audience, bringing the show close to home so that the fact that it was produced first for Fort Bragg was completely forgotten. It seemed to be a show just for its Fort Benning audience.

The troop has now gone to the Oliver General hospital in Augusta, Ga., where they will present "Something To Bragg About" to the men there. The show is aptly named, the title being submitted by T/Sgt. Walter L. Beddingfield at Fort Bragg, and should prove to be the first of a series of fine productions for future presentation throughout the six army areas.

NURSES TO OBSERVE 47TH ANNIVERSARY

On February 2, 1901, the Army Nurse corps was officially established as a part of the United States Army. This week marks the 47th anniversary of the service organization.

Although the honor roll of the United States Army has been studded with the names of women since the days of Molly Pitcher in the Revolutionary War, it was not until April 16, 1947, that members of the Nurse corps were granted permanent commissions in the Regular Army. During World War II, they operated as officers with a relative rank status.

Included in the same act of Congress which established the ANC as a part of the Regular Army, an active reserve section for women was established in the Officers' Reserve corps. Before 1947, the enrolled membership of the American Red Cross Nursing Service was considered the "reserve" of the Army Nurse Corps.

With the present reorganization and stabilization of the U. S. Army, an additional 25,000 nurses are needed to accept commissions on an inactive status. All graduate, registered nurses under the age of 45 may apply for appointment in the Reserve corps.

Those who have had no military service may request a call to active duty, and receive an eight weeks period of basic training at the Brooke Army Medical service at San Antonio, Texas. Initial call to active duty will be for a period of one year.

Those nurses who do not desire immediate active duty but who wish to join the Officers' Reserve corps, may be assigned to Army headquarters for local reserve activities. Applications for reserve appointments in the Army Nurse corps will be received by the Adjutant General, Department of the Army, Washington 25, D. C.

STR Units Announce Week's Promotions

T-5s William B. Dickson, Clyde F. Buckslew, and Edward R. Masilla to technician fourth grade. Cpl. James E. Smith to sergeant and Pfc. Milbert S. Prochnow to technician fifth grade.

Bragg's Soldier Show

In their performance at the Main theater last Friday and Saturday, the cast of "Something to Bragg About," the new soldier show experiment, gave a really creditable performance and truthfully "have something to brag about."

There is no use in kidding ourselves—the show is not up to par to the ones we were so used to seeing overseas during the war, but that is no fair comparison. When you consider all the factors—that iit was an al soldier cast, none of whom have had any professional experience, with the exception of the four girls; that this is an experiment using the talent available at the post—then you must say it was a grand performance.

"Something to Bragg About" is still in its infancy, and it will improve with each and every performance. It has great potentialities. Our hats are off to the producers, directors, and cast of the show. It is something the Army has needed for a long time. If handled corectly, the idea of "home produced" shows can sweep the nation's camps and installations.

Much of the credit for the two-act musical comedy goes to Miss Skippy Lynn, a petite little eyeful who directed the show, helped write the book, played the leading feminine role, and all but carried the entire show on her little shoulders. She did everything but play in the orchestra, but it is asking too much of Miss Lynn to perform all these duties forever. If she were to receive just a little hit more professional help from some other feminine member, we believe Miss Lynn could then reveal her real talents.

Of all the acts in the show, the Harmonizers quartet and Miss Emiline Gordon loom as the most professional. The Harmonizers, who were called back for several encores, have harmony and rhythm and are headed for greater heights. Miss Gordon, pretty blond dancer, is a graceful artist; Cpl. Gerald J. Duffy as Hic-Up Hugh, or the Drunk, almost stole the show with his antics.

Until someone else can do hetter with the material on hand, we will say this, the present inexperienced cast is doing all right, and deserves a world of credit. It is a step in the right direction. And to the cast of "Something to Bragg About," keep up the good work and many happy landings on your tour.

Chaplain's Corner...

BROTHERHOOD IN OUR DAY
By Chaplain G. L. Hayden

Against a backdrop of international tensions and intrigues precipitated by war and the inevitable clash of opposing and powerful ideaologies, which have produced untold suffering, privation and want throughout the world, Brotherhood Week appears again. The very nature of conditions affecting the lives of human beings, both here and abroad calls for an entirely new concept of the term Brotherhood.

In its present usage it is a misnomer. It was intended, however, to implement the welding together of human society into a cooperative, altruistic system, which would finally prohibit the occurrence of such tragedies now existant on every hand. We have interpreted the word, "Brotherhood," to indicate some small segment of society, which operates primarily for the benefit of its own constituency. Tha is to say, its chief concern is to sponsor such activities as will improve the status of a particular group.

Institutionalized Christianity in its many denominational divisions, along with other systems of religion, has followed much the same pattern in its application of the principle of human brotherhood. It is true, however, that during the last two decades the church the last two decades the church has led in spreading what is known as "Brotherhood Week" each year during February, with emphasis being placed on showing a more tolerant attitude toward persons of other faiths or religious beliefs. This is a partial approach to the real meaning of Brotherhood, but it does not go far enough.

Brotherhood, in its truer sense, indicates a relationship between individuals that are equal, children of a common parent, fellow citizens, or countrymen. It is a relationship in whic hthe rights, privilges, and responsibilities of all are given equal consideration, and where each individual concerns himself with promoting the whole of society in every field of constructive thought and action.

Such a relationship is the imperative need of our time. Only by its realization will world society stem the tide of fear and mistrust which threatens to engulf us.

A study of the teachings of Jesus Christ will reveal the true meaning of brotherhood, and the importance of its practice. "For whosoever shall do the will of God, the same is my brother and my sister, and mother" (Mark 3:35). Like Cain of old, we cannot escape the eternal question compounded by God in the day of man's infancy, "Where is Thy Brother?" The murderers answer, "Am I my brother's keeper?" will not suffice when the voice of our brother's blood crieth out to God from earth.

"What comes after the No. 1?"

"No. 2 type."

"And then?"

"Then you buy a dog."

"That's the guy I'm laying for," muttered the hen as the farmer crossed the yard.

To be happy with a man you must understand him a lot and love him a little. To be happy with a woman you must love her a lot and not try to understand her at all.

LETTER BOX

To the Editor:

Who won the ball game? The pitcher says he did because he allowed only a few hits. The shortstop claims he did with the distinction of stopping a hot liner and shooting the ball to first in a decisive moment. The centerfielder felt that he should win the laurels because he jumped three feet and caught a high fly with his back to the wall, thus preventing a home run and two extra scores.

None of these things alone would have won the ball game. They all contributed. It's The Team.

So it is in the Army. The work of each of us is dependent on the work of others, and contributes to the success of all. Temperamental soldiers and holdouts are better left behind if they spoil the work of the team as a whole. Unfriendliness or jealousy is very likely to be reflected in our work and to reduce efficiency. As all are working with the same aim, the success of our country, one should know his associates well, be friendly and lend a helping hand when necessary. It will give our work and duty an air of friendliness and help us on to greater achievements and a better America.

Remember this also, Joe, soldiers alone did not win the war. We had a home front that should also come in for their part of the credit. It's good to be an American. Team work is the foundation of our America, with each of us playing an important part.

BY MURRAY E. HILL

You will remember a week or so ago that I published the reasons a hard-headed business executive gave for contributing to the Red Cross. It seems that, while his reasons were logical, some of the other comments I have received from individuals since that time have proven that there are perhaps as many individual reasons as there are individuals.

Take for instance the visionary secretary whose contributions was perhaps one hundredth of that of the business executive. Yet, she could see the drama of her giving, for she writes, "I give to the Red Cross because it goes places where and when I cannot go. It goes there, in meeting needs, just about what I would like to do if I could be there.

By giving I hire nearly 8,000 pairs of hands. By my modest gift last March, I operated the total Red Cross for 10 seconds. Close your eyes and imagine what that means to me. I stand by the bedside of every veteran in our hospitals. By my little gift I wait in thousands of Home Service offices to help with the entangled problems of families.

I follow to the ends of the earth my neighbors' sons in uniforms to serve them when they are lonely and in emergency needs. When disaster strikes a community, no matter where it may be when it happens or how difficult to get there, I by my little gift, am suddenly in the midst, setting up first-aid stations, clothing depots, food centers, shelters, and later rehabilitation procedures.

I have a whole book of proof that I was in nearly 300 seriously stricken areas this past year. I stood behnd thousands of teachers in first aid, water safety, and accident prevention. I have a big part in the school system where 19,000,000 Junior Red Cross children are learning responsible, trustworthy citizenship. You see, through my giving, I am having a slightrole in this great drama."

Since I seems to have touched off a spark of interest to all who contribute time and money to the Red Cross, I would like to hear from you, too, why now, or in the past, you are interested in contributing your hime or your money to the Red Cross.

A poor unfortunate man who lived close to a railroad yard in the suburbs of a large metropolis wrote the following about the racket made by the switch engine:

"Gentlemen:

"Why is it that your switch engine has to ding and dong and fizz and spit and bang and hiss and pant and grate and grind and puff and bump and chug and hoot and whistle and toot and wheeze and jar and jerk and howl and snarl and puff and groan and thump and boom and crash and jolt and screech and snort and slam and throb and roar and rattle and yell and smoke and smell and shriek like h— all night long?"

A young man, who was in a hospital all banged up, was visited by a minister. "You'll soon be all right," said the minister, "just keep smiling."

"I'll never smile again," the patient replied.

"Nonsense,' said the minister.

"It's no nonsense," the patient insisted, "I got this way because I smiled at another fellow's girl."

"Did you test this stuff, Joe?"

"Yeah, I poured some in the ash-tray."

"Did it turn green?"

"Dunno, can't find the ash-tray."

Presiding at the general meeting of the Fort Benning Woman's club on Monday at the Polo Hunt club, Mrs. Robert B. Hill introduced Mrs. Paul Hamilton as the new treasurer, to replace Mrs. James R. Davidson, who left the Post with Colonel Davidson February 1. Mrs. Hill extended her appreciation to the members of the club for the gift of a flowering plant, sent to her during her recent illness. She announced the date of the next general meeting as March 1, at which time a luncheon and spring style show, under the direction of Mrs. Irvine C. Scudder will be presented at the Officers' club.

A report was given by Mrs. Joe Morey on the progress of work at the new nursery school building. She urged help from the fathers and mothers of small children on the painting and remodeling as well as decorating and curtain-making, in order to open the school the middle of February.

Progress on plans for the Country Fair box social to be held at the Officers' club, February 13, at 7 p. m., were announced by Mrs. Wiley O'Mohundro. Members of the Woman's club are reminded to get donations in promptly to Mrs. Lloyd Brown for the booths and to Mrs. R. K. Boyd for the fish pond. Mrs. Alan Strock has gathered together a group of people with talent, who will give a floor show at the party.

Mrs. Frank Ward reported on the next Home and Garden group meeting to be held on February 23. Mrs. Grady Porter, president of the Garden clubs of Columbus, will give a talk on quick-growing plants for the information of ladies who would like to have spring flowers with a minimum wait, and Mrs. Charles Royce of Fort Benning will bring her book on Japanese flower arrangement, which is out of print, to display, and will speak briefly on that topic.

Of interest to members of the Fort Benning Woman's club will be the meeting of the Art and Literature group, under the chairmanship of Mrs. Richard Sandusky and Mrs. William Rhinehart, at the Officers' club, February 9, at 2:30 p. m.

Mrs. Mack Anthony, of Columbus, will review the new book, "The Bishop's Mantle," written by Agnes Sligh Turnbull. Of interest is the fact that the book is written about a minister's wife, and will be reviewed by Mrs. Anthony, a minister's wife.

Christening Held At Post Chapel

A recent christening at the Infantry Center Catholic chapel was that of Leo Benedict Sullivan, Jr., son of Capt. and Mrs. L. B. Sullivan. Chaplain John Rafferty officiated, and the godparents were Miss Mary G. Sullivan, sister of Captain Sullivan, and the baby's great uncle, J. B. Sullivan, of Boston, Mass.

The christening robe worn by the baby for the ceremony was a family heirloom, and had been worn for the christenings of the father, one uncle, and two aunts. The baby was wrapped in a cashmere shawl, which had belonged to Mrs. David Sullivan, the baby's paternal grandmother.

The christening, held at four in the afternoon was followed by a reception at the Sullivan's quarters for friends, at which Miss Mary Sullivan assisted.

WELL-KNOWN LECTURER PRESENTS PROGRAM—The Fort Benning Woman's club presented Bruce Thomas in his new lecture, "The Orient Is Our Business," on Monday at the Polo Hunt club. Mr. Thomas is one of the 10 most traveled men in the world and his background for Far Eastern reporting is probably unexcelled with his record of 19 trips to China alone and almost as many to Japan, Korea, and the Philippines. Greeting Mr. Thomas is Mrs. John W. O'Daniel. Left to right are Mrs. Irvine C. Scudder, Mrs. O'Daniel, Mr. Thomas, and Mrs. Robert B. Hill, president of the Woman's club.

Bruce Thomas, Lecturer, Gives Startling Facts From His Travels To Woman's Club

By PEGGY WARD

One of the most entertaining afternoons enjoyed by the Fort Benning Woman's club members, and perhaps one of the most startling, was Monday's general meeting for February, at which Mrs. Irvine C. Scudder introduced to Fort Benning women the famous lecturer and war correspondent, Bruce Thomas.

Mr. Thomas' presentation from the lecture platform is informal, and cleverly punctuated with humor plus Mr. Thomas' own amazing conclusions drawn from his wide experience not only in travel and interviews with the prominent members of church, school, and military, and business circles of the countries he visits, but also conclusions drawn from his actual eye-witness "I Was There" reporting.

Being one of the ten most-traveled men in the world, Mr. Thomas has up-to-date factual material to present on the spur of the moment about almost any country in the world. His question forum after Monday's lecture brought out this ability to a fascinated audience.

Mr. Thomas started his story on Monday with his trip to Bikini as the only lecturer to make that trip on the press ship purely for the purpose of getting lecture material on Operations Crossroads. The ship carried most of the prominent reporters from UP, AP, and INS, plus men for Life, Time, Fortune, and magazines of similar status. Bob Considine was one of the correspondents to make the trip and it was he who started a ship-to-ship open forum, thereby giving the newsmen some splendid information to file everyday to their papers and magazines. Mr. Thomas reports that the present atom bomb is at least 50 times more powerful than the bombs used for Operation Crossroads.

A background of the Pacific islands from the Spanish rule after Magellan's voyage to the present day American protection took the audience members on a verbal trip to China, on which was the concentration of Mr. Thomas' lecturer.

Having been to China 19 times, and having pulled no punches on his reporting of conditions there at any time, he is no longer granted a visa to visit that country. He urged that America keep sending good missionaries to China, not the "Aunt Mables" and "Uncle Joes" who had taught Sunday School for 20 years and heard the "call," but those who were trained for that particular job, which is much more exacting work than a pastorate or parish in America. Mr. Thomas feels that all American troops should be brought out of China as there will probably always be civil war in that country, and that they are working up to another Boxer Rebellion right now. One of the reasons why Bruce Thomas can no longer get a China visa is his expose of Madame Chiang-Kai-shek, reporting that she pulls the Chinese silk over the eyes of Americans.

In the question forum, Mr. Thomas, in his element, enjoyed giving startling information about Spain, Germany, Turkey, Russia, and some recently released facts about the war, which had not been made public at the time of the events for reasons of security. Having covered the Olympic Games in Berlin in 1936, Bruce Thomas had nothing good to report about German sportsmanship, which was borne out in the war.

Mr. Thomas travels to Miami from here. He has a home in California which he sees much too seldom, and a 19-year-old son in college, a small daughter of 2½, and his wife, who has accompanied him on trips whenever possible. He is a large man of amazing vigor and platform poise which would be envied by the budding lecturer—and his background of extensive travel—which is to be envied by anyone who loves to travel, to seek, to find out facts about the peoples of the earth. That Mr. Thomas can combine these two things in the way he does is the art which has made him one of America's most-sought lecturers and reporters.

Benning Cub Scouts Have Stunt Night At Post School

At a meeting of the Fort Benning Cub Scouts on Friday evening, January 30, at the Post school, a stunt night was presented for parents with points given to the winning Dens. Den 4 of Pack 1 was the winner of the evening, with Den 5 of Pack 2 and Den 2 of Pack 1 taking second and third place, respectively.

The winners presented a "Scouty Fair" which won the acclaim of the audience, and the portrayal of den meetings in song by Den 5 of Pack 2, took a close second, with a pantomime of the family car of the early 1900's well done by the third place group.

Credit for the fine work with these embryo scouts goes to the cubmasters and their assistants as well as to the Den Mothers. Pack 1 has Lt. Col. Charles S. Stanley as denmaster with Major Frederick Kent as his assistant. The Den Mothers are for the four dens, Mrs. D. C. Landon, Mrs. R. H. Cole, Mrs. F. T. Kent, and Mrs. R. P. Canis.

Pack 2 is under the leadership of Lt. Col. Robert H. Cole and Major Joseph M. Flesch, and Den Mothers are Mrs. R. Short, Mrs. David Schoor, Mrs. J. E. Thomas, and Mrs. Moore. Pack 3 leaders are Lt. Col. Laurence C. Brown and Lt. Col. Sanford H. Webster. Den Mothers of the two dens in this pack are Mrs. G. Henderson and Mrs. L. C. Brown.

These boys work throughout the year for a system of points, with the den leading in points receiving a special prize in May. A plaque is also presented to the leading den in point score at each monthly meeting, being turned over at the next meeting if the leading den has fallen behind for the month. At the present time, Den 2 of Pack 1 is leading, and they are the proud possessors of the plaque. An inspection to determine the best-appearing cub is also made at each pack meeting, and the winner receives a lanyard with whistle which he may keep.

The February project is art, in the form of woodwork, painting, or any type of handcraft. The results of this work by the boys will be displayed when the project is completed.

The scoutmaster at Fort Benning is Sgt. Harry D. Duffield, who acts as Scout Executive for Fort Benning.

New York at the Waldorf-Astoria hotel and the Pennsylvania hotel, the Claridge in Memphis, Book Cadillac hotel in Detroit, and the Trianon Ballroom and Edgewater Beach hotel in Chicago, and many other prominent hotels and clubs.

Throughout the war, Ted Weems devoted his time and talent to the men of the Merchant Marine, enlisting in the U. S. Maritime Service as a C. P. O. He proved the value of music to the Merchant Marine so ably during his service that he was advanced before leaving the service to the rank of Lieutenant (j. g.)

Ted Weems' biggest business venture is promoting the stars he has under contract. Among those included are Perry Como, Merylin Maxwell, Mary Lee, and Elmo Tanner. He and his orchestra have recorded for the Victor company for ten consecutive years, plus some recordings for Decca. His recording of "Heartaches," originally done in 1931, has hit the all-time high sale of three million copies for both RCA Victor and Decca, and is responsible for Ted's having placed first in practically all of the major orchestra popularity polls for 1947.

Bayonet Presents Post Sports History Of Year

At Fort Benning, the nation's most complete Army post, athletics play a very great part in the daily life of personnel. And under the directorship of the special service office, Fort Benning enjoys one of the most extensive and well-rounded sports programs to be found in the country.

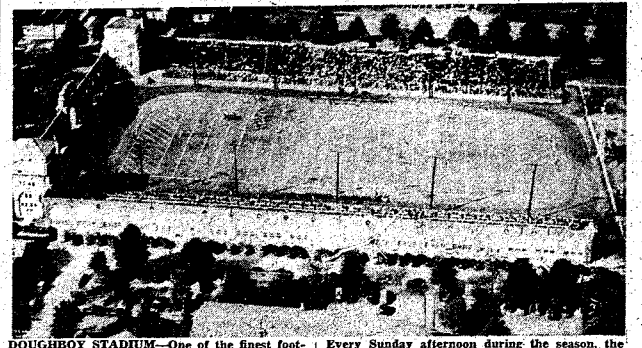
Athletics themselves come under the direct supervision of Captain William Fannin and T-Sgt. Frank Salmeri, who have been prominent in athletics and particularly post sports for many years. Both Fannin and Salmeri contributed most of their time and efforts towards the furthering of sports, and have afforded a big asset to the local program of an overall coverage of activity for personnel.

As athletic officer, Captain Fannin is the main cog in the vast and expansive wheel that rotates the various phases of athletics around the calendar. There is scarcely a day when there is not some sporting program to witness or participate in. Indeed, Fort Benning has one of the finest plans for athletes to be found anywhere.

No major sport, no minor sport, has been overlooked by the men who conduct the program. Enthusiasts, either football or ping pong, have the most modern conveniences with which to further interests and skills. Fort Benning teams have been represented in every type of competition in this section as well as the country. Fort Benning teams boast one of the most impressive records to be found in the South.

During the past year, Doughboy aggregations have annexed many championships, and have never returned with a ribbon lower than a second place award.

One of the chief purposes of the sporting agenda is the development of athletes. Under the tutorship of military coaches, Benning has sent forth some of the nation's finest athletes and sportsmen.



The pictures to be seen in this display give only a limited idea of just how complete and intensive the athletic facilities are. Though they cover the calendar, as far as seasons are concerned, there is much more to be seen by the ardent follower of post sports. Under the sponsorship of the athletic branch, units and organizations participate in a complete intramural program, which also covers all phases of athletics.

DOUGHBOY STADIUM—One of the finest football stadiums in this section is to be found right at Fort Benning. A Benning grid eleven has not lost a ball game on local sod in over two years. Every Sunday afternoon during the season, the stands at Doughboy stadium are filled with thousands of football fans.

ANOTHER BLUE RIBBON — Bill Miller, fast stepping Doughboy cinderman, breaks the tape as he adds another five points in winning the 440-yard event in good 50.1 time. The Benning trackman completely outclassed Fort Bragg, N. C., to capture the Third Army Crown.

Local Basketeers Belt Parris Island

Give Best Show In Most Recent Road Journey

Fast moving Benning basketeers arrived on the post last Sunday night, and there were more smiles on the team than had ever been the case in the past. The Grizzard-coached Doughboys brought back a trio of victories, and had to report only one defeat in their recent five-day road trip.

The most smashing and avenging win of the journey took place at Parris Island, S. C., last Sunday afternoon when the hardwood artists routed the powerful Marines, 55-33. It was a grand revenge for the locals who had bowed to the Leathernecks, 46-39, when they appeared here two weeks ago.

Bob McAuliffe, the versatile cager who had been instrumental in the Parris Island victory, was handcuffed during the entire skirmish, and the Doughboy sharpshooters rolled merrily along to their most impressive win of the season. Harold Corizzi led the Doughboy attack with a grand aggregate of 22 markers, while his forward running mate, Doug Scovil, hit the hoop for 17.

Big Defensive Spark

Harold Haberman was again the big defensive spark, exhibiting his usual fighting spirit besides taking time to throw in eight points for himself.

The Doughs were never threatened through four periods of fast play, and held a 27-17 advantage when the two teams left for recess at halftime.

On their first night out, which was last Thursday, the Benning cagers slipped a mediocre Piedmont college quintet a 57-41 defeat in a game which saw the locals in command from the opening whistle to the final gun.

Taking advantage of a fast start, the Doughs barreled on to a comfortable halftime lead, and then behind the combined hoop hitting of Corizzi and Scovil, the victory was sewed up late in the third quarter when the Doughboy attack completel ran amuck.

Scores 24 Points

The collegians were able to keep tab on the fast moving soldiers most of the way, but as the final quarter rolled around the Doughs staged a vicious assault that completely disorganized the Piedmont defense.

Only once did the Doughs falter on their road trip, and although they lost out, 59-54, Coach Grizzard reports that his squad played the finest defensive game of the season.

The Doughs got off to an unusually slow start, and as a result were on the short end of a 31-21 count at the intermission. But the Doughs eventually outscored their opponents from the floor, with the reason for defeat lying with poor charity throwing.

Muff Charity Throws

The Doughs muffed ten charity throws, while the Jackson cagers swished through for every one except three. Although Corizzi took the scoring honors for the Doughs, it remained for Jackson's Bill Lamont to provide the scoring thrills for the fans. Lamont led the night's scoring with 27 markers, and added to his sparkling performance with a fine defensive ball game.

Perhaps the most thrilling engagement of the trip was the unexpected game with South Carolina's Shaw field, a game that ended on the bright end for the Doughs, 47-46.

But it was a hard earned victory for the locals who had to go the limit for the victory.

Although the Doughs scored the least points in the Shaw game, Harold Corizzi tallied his highest amount of the trip, a sizzling 27-point aggregate. The balance of the scoring came from consistent Harold Haberman who added 11.

Grizzard remarked during a short interview after the arrival of the team that the Doughs were a different ball club all the while during the road jaunt and that they exhibited top-notch ball in every appearance, and played like champions against Parris Island. He made special mention of veteran Bob Elnard, whom he commended highly for his terrific defensive play.

The coach mused further that he was of the opinion that when tournament time rolls around in a few weeks, the Doughs will be at their peak, and will make a better-than-average show against the toughest opposition, and have a better than even chance to walk off with the blue ribbons.

LEWIS McAFEE SIGNED AS NEW SPORTS EDITOR

T-Sgt. Lewis McAfee, a former editor of the Holdenville, Okla., Daily News, has recently been assigned to the Bayonet staff, and takes up duties this week as sports editor of the Benning paper, replacing Sgt. Raleigh Greene, who is leaving the Army.

The sportscaster is a new-comer to Georgia and has just returned from an overseas tour in Germany, where he has been stationed since the occupation forces took control.

Sgt. McAfee, hailing from Oklahoma City, Oklahoma, arrived in the States four weeks ago for his first view of native soil since he left for foreign lands in November, 1944.

Before entering the Army over five years ago, McAfee contributed his efforts and time to Midwestern sports, and also was an organizer of various athletic clubs and teams while acting as sports editor of the Holdenville paper.

Finding much pleasure in writing, particularly athletics, the new Bayonet sports editor, applied upon his arrival at Fort Benning, for a position with the sports department of the Bayonet.

McAfee enlisted in the Army in December, 1942, and then took his basic training with the 331st Medical regiment at Camp McCain, Miss. Following a successful completion of the basic course, McAfee was assigned to the 30th Medical battalion, the same outfit he embarked with for England.

When the war ended, McAfee, together with his unit, left for occupation duty in Germany. His journalistic abilities were not overlooked, however, and he was made editor of the Wotenburg paper, a position that he held until his return to this country late in December.

McAfee was quite amazed when told of the extensive athletic program made available to post personnel, but mused that he was delighted that his new assignment would keep him in such close contact with sports.

Aside from his ability to write sports, and his knowledge of the subject, McAfee has learned much from his experience in being a player himself. An expert linksman, shooting in the seventies, and a better-than-average softball player, McAfee has had the opportunities to learn sports at their foundation.

Links Champion Gets Post Duty

Chester B. Jawers, a young professional golfer, has joined the ranks of the 325th Infantry regiment, it was announced early this week.

The expert linksman has been an ardent follower of golf for seven years, and since he has been a member of the armed forces, Jawer's interest in the game has been stimulated by a number of tournament permormances.

Prior to his enlistment in 1946, the young linksman and his brother were instructors in various country clubs, and later offered fast and skillful exhibitions for the fans of the Warren Valley golf course in Detroit, Michigan. Jawer also competed in the U.S. Junior Hearst tournaments in which he placed high in the final count.

Upon graduation from Mackenzie high school in Detroit, Jawer entered the army. Following completion of basic training, he shipped to Italy where he served with the 88th division and Trust troops.

He competed with 67 applicants in the Mediterranean theater-championship event, and his subsequent low 70 average won him first honors in the competition.

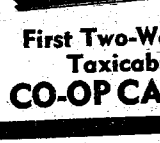
GET ENGINEER DUTY

New assignments in the 307th Airborne Engineer battalion's Company C during the past week included 1st Sgt. Thomas B. Mathieson, T-4 Eugene Guarda, Pvt. Leopold Tomayka, and Cpl. Robert Hilchey, officials have announced.



NEW ADDITION — T-Sgt. Lewis McAfee has joined the staff of The Bayonet, and will take up his duties this week as sports editor. The former editor of an Oklahoma Daily recently returned from an overseas tour in Germany.

Ladies Bowling Team Defeats Montgomery

Members of the Woman's club bowling team made a trip Sunday to Montgomery, Ala., to compete against the Montgomery ladies' team. Ladies participating from Fort Benning were Mrs. Everett Meade, Mrs. Elvin Kreilick, Mrs. Frank Blake, Mrs. A. J. Van Oosten, and guest bowler, Mrs. C. W. O'Bienness.

Mrs. Arnie L. Millican, in charge of the Fort Benning team, announced that the Fort Benning team won the victory at the Blue and Gray bowling alleys in Montgomery with 47 pin falls over the Montgomery team. Total pinfalls for the benning ladies were 3,613 as against 3,566 for the Montgomery team.

BY RALEIGH GREENE
BAYONET SPORTS EDITOR

Not too many weeks ago Robert "Butch" Kendrick, who successfully coached the 1947 Benning gridders, left for duty with the 11th Airborne division in Japan.

The post will lose another coach next week, when Ced Tallis sheds his Army uniform for the suit of a general manager of a baseball club. The court mentor will take a discharge in a very few days, and will then take up his duties as general manager of the Thomasville baseball club, a farm team of the Detroit Tigers.

Tallis, as most cage enthusiasts know, has turned in a splendid record, and will long be remembered for his excellent job with the basketball teams he has coached. Tallis will be replaced by a very able man, Louis Grizzard.

Grizzard has long been among the sports prominents, and has had a world of experience in working in the field of athletics. Post fans have not been too prone either to laud or belittle the team since Grizzard took charge, and most give the idea that they are simply waiting to see just what type of team Grizzard will produce.

Unfortunately the memory of last year's squad is still too clear in the minds of many. As a result the basketball team is the target of all too much criticism. And, consequently, a coach is liable for the same thing—after all, these people say, he coaches them.

* * * * *

Football, of course, draws the greatest crowds of any post athletic activity. But second to that, it looks as though boxing is the game people want to see. Last Friday night, when the pugilistic art received its boost at the main post gym, some 1,800 fans showed up early to see the fighters make their debut. I understand the audience to see "Something to Bragg About" was much less attended than the fights, a little tough for the folks who worked so hard to make that performance a success. I also understand it was a big success. I wonder if Benning will do something like that? A little off the subject again. Well, after all, it is a sporting subject.

* * * * *

Glenn Davis is playing basketball—the first since he played with the Cadets at the Point. Davis didn't feel that his talents were developed enough for the post team, but reports have it that the former All-American halfback is pretty nimble on his feet. He has two eyes that are fairly accurate, it seems.

We will all be hoping, and, perhaps praying, that Davis will be performing for the baseball team this season. Well, he may be good at the mound sport, but I'll have to see him play before I'll put him on my team ahead of such outfielders as George Dickson, Woodie Burt, Bill Brooks, and a few others.

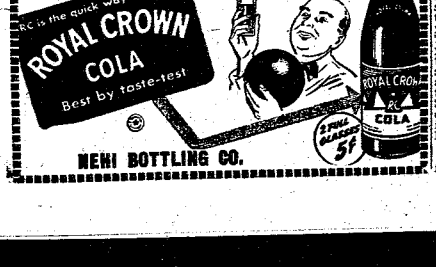
This reporter has seen almost a complete around-the-calendar cycle of post athletics, but the time has come that will make it impossible for me to have the opportunity of writing this column for each Thursday edition. You see, I have recently run afoul of that Army circular that entitles a man to take his leave of military life after a certain duration of time. Being a young character, I have taken advantage of this thing called discharge, and will, therefore, take my leave, relying on a very capable Lewis McAfee, who is the new sports editor, to carry on.



But in my association with Fort Benning sports, I have come to be like many players and sports enthusiasts. After a person deals in sports and with those who play them for a given length of time, he feels somewhat attached to what he is doing. So it is with me.

Fort Benning is surely to be congratulated on its fine work with athletics, and, though I have never done so before, I should like to take this opportunity to congratulate men like Capt. William Fannin and T-Sgt. Frank Salmeri, who are the men behind the scenes. Such men never really get much recognition for the work they do, and although they are an invaluable cog in the wheel of athletic programs, they never get the credit due them. So consider that done by me.

As long as Fort Benning concentrates on an extensive sports program, I believe it will always be tops among the posts in this country. As in everything else, there is room for improvement, but the item of time and experience still remains as the best cure for any malfunctions in an organization. I suppose there is less red-tape in Army athletics than in any other department—a good thing.

So it is that this little column, as far as I am concerned, is coming to an end. When you read this, the sunny state of Florida will be my abode.

In closing, I would mention the fact that I have been chided on many occasions for not giving the Airborne battalion more publicity. You know, after an outfit makes as good a record as the troopers have, they seem to comprise at least 50 per cent of every team and usually win most intramural competition, it would seem that they could rest on the rewards of their laurels.

Doughs To Enjoy First Cage Break

One more game, and that one at home, and then Lou Grizzard and his high riding Doughboys will journey to Fort Jackson, S. C., to take a shot at the Third Army basketball crown that will be the eventual prize of the best court aggregation in the Third Army area.

Although the Doughs' latest road trip was not completed in time for this deadline, their record for the week is an impressive one. In fact it is, perhaps, the finest they have turned in all year. While on the road last week, the Benning hoopsetters downed three opponents, while suffering only one close set-back, which came from the hands of a once-beaten Fort Jackson quintet.

Following the thrilling loss to the Pensacola Flyers, the Doughs loosed their anger on Piedmont college, and completely outclassed the students, 57-41, in a tilt that was all army. That game had marked the first meeting of the two teams, and reports have it that the Benningites showed more spunk against Piedmont than many of their previous showings.

Jackson Stages Upset

Fort Jackson, a team that had fallen before the locals some weeks ago surprised the Georgia soldiers in the final minutes of play, walking off their court with a 59-56 victory tucked snuggly beneath their belts. Although the Doughs appeared on their way to another victory, the Jackson cagers enlivened in the final half, and went on to outshoot their Benning opponents.

Saturday night and Sunday afternoon provided the Doughs with a much desired pair of wins. Parris Island, S. C., an outfit that had come from behind to defeat the locals, were humbled in a close 55-53 battle Sunday, while Grizzard's cagers had played to an even closer margin the previous night, clipping Shaw field 47-46.

The significance of this new victory spree is important since the tournaments, and the Doughs will participate in two in as many weeks, are only days away. Last year, the Doughs were outpointed in the final game of the Third Army competition, and lost out in a tourney in which they were slated to win hands down. Yet the record the team has made this year is far less impressive than Tallis' aggregation produced a year ago. Grizzard is determined to get himself and his boys a big silver cup, and will spend the balance of the time, with the exception of the game with the Troy State Teacher's college next Friday night, prepping for the all-important tourney to be held at Fort Jackson from Feb. 16-18.

Using Faster Offense

The new coach is using a much faster offense than his predecessor used. He maintains that a fast offense produces more points, and that if your team can out-run an opponent, they will usually come out on top of the scoring. At times, Grizzard has completely disregarded a defense and has spent all the minutes of a period trying to make baskets. It seems to be working rather well, and Grizzard feels that his marksmen are good enough shots to outscore the average Doughboy foe.

He is also using more men than Tallis did, thus saving reserve that may be needed in the final minutes. Although by doing so, he may limit the net output of the five men that comprise the playing group. All in all, however, the tactics of the new mentor seem to be pulling in good results. The team is winning, and is far ahead of their season's average now.

She was the kind of girl that wore the kind of dress that kept everybody warm but her.

FLYERS STAGE SPLURGE TO DOWN DOUGHS, 63-57

After piling up a 34-30advantage during the first half, Fort Benning's Doughboy cagers succumbed to a last minute scoring spree and dropped a 63-57 contest to the Pensacola Naval Air station in the Main post gymnasium last Tuesday night.

The Doughs' attack was sparked by Harold Haberman who dumped in seven field goals for a 14-point total in addition to playing his customary brilliant defensive game. However, high scoring honors for the home five were taken by Harold Corizzi whose six field goals and seven charity tosses contributed 19 points to his squad's total.

All-American Adg Back, captain of the Flyer quintet, was high point man for Pensacola with 28 tallies gained through 12 field goals and four free heaves. Accurate shooting by Back and teammate C. Betty accounted for the final splurge that downed the Benning basketmen.

An obscure second string forward, Al Ratner, turned in the game's surprise performance for the Doughs by finding the bucket for nine counters.

During the opening minutes of the fracas, it became eaarmarked as a nip and tuck battle with each team getting its chance at the driver's seat. After a scoreless two minutes, the Pensacola lads surged ahead by a 9-3 count only to have the home five work it into a 15-15 tie a few minutes later.

The Doughboys' intermission advantage held good until four minutes before the final whistle when the Navy broke loose with an offensive drive that netted them 14 points while its defenses held the local hoopsters to five.

Before the classic ended, it developed into a comedy of personal fouls. Of the total of 36 refractions, 20 were charged against the Doughs and 16 against the Flyers.

Trooper Cagers Win Split In Week's Play

Company C of the 307th Airborne Engineers, played two off-post games last week, dropping a 48-39 decision to the Southern Bell Telephone quintet, and then taking a thrilling 39-38 victory last Monday night.

Grady Duke, who also coaches the team, paced the troopers in both game tallying 17 and 14 respectively.

Troopers Hold Fight Program

Fans who attended last Thursday night's boxing matches at the Airborne battalion gymnasium got cheated out of witnessing a knockout when Len Fletcher, 175-pounder, had to be satisfied with winning a decision over 180-pound Bob Jones in the main event of the evening.

The husky gloves expert gained the unanimous approval of the judges after he had peppered Jones with a steady, three-round rain of blows.

The eight three-round battles resulted in six other decisions and one technical knockout.

Winning decisions were Calvin Kee over Billie Schlensker, Lon Kelly over Cliff Batchelor, Bob Mambaerts over Al Newberry, Gene Peterson over Gene Burnett, Bob Fletcher over Larry Skennandore and Dick Stough over Arthur Voss.

Several promising newcomers will feature tonight's card when gloves participants of the Airborne battalion meet in the unit's gymnasium at 8 p. m. to stage a weekly boxing show.

In pointing out that interest in the intra-battalion matches is mounting steadily, the Welfare and Recreation office announced that more than 500 fans witnessed last week's bouts.

Nehi Bottlers Top Infantrymen Five

The Nehi bottlers officer court quintet outpointed the 325th Infantry five last Tuesday night at the Main post gym 35-26 in one of the "foulingist" games in post basketball circles.

The two teams hardly had time to pitch in any basket because of the 48 fouls that were divided between them. The infantrymen drew 26 whistles from the overworked officials, while the bottlers were penalized the remainder.

An exceptionally slow starting affair, the 325th jumped to a 5-1 advantage at the end of one quarter, but their game advantage was short lived as the Nehians came back in the second canto, leaving for the recess with a 16-10 lead.

In the second half it was Nehi all the way, with the 325th fighting vainly to overtake their leaders. Cauley topped the night's scoring with 11 points, while Weaver of the infantry five took the scoring honors for the losers with eight.

NEW COURSE OPENED

A new class, composed of 262 enlisted men and officers, began training Jan. 27 with the Airborne battalion's Company E, officials have announced.

BEST WISHES—Ced Tallis, who has tutored the Fort Benning Doughboy cagers for the past two seasons, wishes his best to Lou Grizzard, who succeeded Tallis last week as head basketball mentor. Grizzard has a splendid record in post athletics and is expected to carry on in fine fashion.

Basketball Mentor To Leave Service

Last Tuesday night at the Main Post gym, far back in the Doughboys' dressing room, a scene of farewell and good wishes could have been seen, for Capt. Cedric Tallis, who has given his able tutelage to Benning basketeers for the past two seasons, was saying his goodbye as a coach to the Doughboys, and was also wishing his successor, Lt. Louis Grizzard, the best for the remainder of the season.

After nearly two years, the retiring court mentor will abandon his basketball leadership in favor of a man who has been prominent in post athletics for many years. Tallis will leave the army early next week to take a position as general manager of the Thomasville baseball club of the Georgia-Florida league. Thomasville is a member of the Detroit Tiger farm system.

Coach Grizzard, remembered this year for his splendid job with the Fort Benning softball team, assumed the coaching responsibility early last week when Tallis was attending a meeting in regards to his future position. Grizzard, a staunch advocate of fast-moving basketball, has done a considerable amount of jumbling in an effort to find an offense and defense that will best suit his newly acquired team.

The Doughboys' new mentor is by no means a novice at the skilled game of basketball. During the 1946 season, Grizzard tutored the 204th Motor Pool team that made a good showing in the intramural league.

Although he will have but a short and limited time to whip the Doughboys into the kind of team he wants, he hopes to have a well-manned aggregation by the time tournaments roll around in two weeks.

A native Georgian, Grizzard served in Europe, where he was commissioned on the battlefield.

Tallis, as coach of the basketball team, had an impressive record in his two years. At the time of his retirement, the post five had dropped 11 of their 21 games, and although the fortunes of the Benning courtmen were not quite so blessed as last year's, Tallis always made it a point to commend his team. On one occasion he ventured to remark, "I would rather work with this group of men than any other I have ever coached at Fort Benning."

The team he led to the Southeastern AAU championship last year had an excellent record of 33 wins in 42 outings.

Before Tallis came to Fort Benning, before he ever became an officer in the army, his interests were closely affiliated with the world of sports. As a student at Concord college, Tallis played with the varsity basketball team, and, in 1939, coached the collegians for whom he had once played.

After his assignment overseas, where he served in the Aleutian islands and later in Europe, Tallis resumed his coaching profession here, where he tutored basketball from 1946-48 and coached the School Troops baseball team in 1946.

NEHI BOTTLERS GAIN LEAGUE CAGE LEAD

Exhibiting the type of court performances that kept them in the league leadership for weeks, the Nehi bottler Reds, composed of Fort Benning personnel, won the first half championship in the Columbus Y. M. C. A. tournament last Thursday by decisively whipping a game but outclassed Cataula Athletic club, 41-29.

The Reds had to come up to their able 21-11 advantage, Cataula put on a scare into the eventual champions when they burst forth in the opening stanza, and held a 10-5 advantage at the period's end.

Although they left the floor for the halftime recess with a comfortable transpose into a 10-point lead.

Although Nehi was the slight favorite in the tourney seeding, the fast moving Cataula quintet looked as though they were staging one of the big upsets in the competition. However, the Nehi club started hitting on set shots in the second canto, and rapidly pulled up and then passed their hard-pressed foes.

Especialy effective was the smooth-working man-to-man defense set up by Nehi, holding the accurate shooting Cataula club to just one free throw during the entire second period.

Dale Balliet, who also does the coaching, hit four long shots in succession that started the bottlers on a scoring spree that saw a five-point deficit fade and

Now that the first half of the league has been completed and the Nehi team entrenched in the top position, Coach Balliet reports that his basketeers will be hard at work to finish out their court agenda. They have seven games to play, with a record impressive enough to cop the Y. M. C. A. crown. Should the bottlers topple their opposition, they will be in line for an invitation to the Bibb City Invitational tournament. The Bibb competition embraces independent teams in this section, and is always one of the most hotly contended tourneys held in the Columbus area.

Of particular interest is the fact that the Nehi club is made up entirely of Fort Benning men. An idea arising from a desire for recreation struck oil with 23 men who turned out for the squad when the quintet was organized last October. The members of the team manage on their own time, practicing and playing three times weekly. Most of the games are played with local teams in and about Columbus.

The bottlers have an impressive record of 18 wins in their 20 starts, and although they dropped a decision to Lawson field early in the season, a return engage-

Sport Quiz

1. Back in 1923 the heavyweight champion of the world knocked an opponent down seven times in the first round, only to land suddenly in the first row of seats himself. He climbed back to win by a KO in the second. Who was the champ and who was the defeated challenger?

2. Two sets of brothers, all of whom won great fame cavorting in major league outfields, came to the big time from the San Francisco Seals. Name them.

3. Bob Davies, brilliant offensive star of the Rochester Royals professional basketball club, will always be remembered for one particular skill. Just what can the blond forward do that no one else can do half as well?

ANSWERS

1. Jack Dempsey was the champ at that time, and Luis Angel Firpo, Argentina's "Wild Bull of the Pampas," was the challenger. When he sent the Manassa Mauler through the ropes, sport saw one of its most thrilling moments in history.

2. Joe and Dom DiMaggio, and Paul and Lloyd Waner.

3. Davies, a sensational ball handler, is famed for his ability to dribble on the dead run. His trick of transferring the ball from one hand to the other, behind his back while on the dead run, is a sight to behold.

Bullet Basketmen Split Cage Battles

By BOB PHILLIPS

Breaking even in a two-game series played last week the Bullet hoopsters annexed their sixth victory in 14 outings this season. After dropping a hard-fought 38-34 battle to South Carolina State college at Orangeburg Monday night, the GI cagers returned to Columbus Friday night to outdo the Columbus Orioles by the top-heavy score of 41-20.

Playing before approximately 1,200 spectators, the Bullets were forced to yield to a heartbreaking setback after jumping off to an early start, and holding it until four minutes before the game ended.

Gordon Burke, the Bullets' brilliant forward who connected from far and near all evening, teamed up with teammate Jimmie Smith to give the soldiers a 5-0 lead shortly after the opening whistle. With Burke leading the way the rampaging Bullets continued their blistering pace by romping to leads of 8-2 and 11-5 before five minutes of playing time had elapsed. The loosely playing college lads were forced to call timeout in order to get themselves together and halt the terrific beating being inflicted upon them by the unmerciful visiting quintet.

After the break the college five, headed by McGhee, Arrington, and Blackmon, began closing in on the Bullets and at the half a scant 19-17 margin favored the Benning group.

Determined to maintain their lead, the Bullets went to work promptly after the opening of the second stanza to widen the count to 23-18 with Smith, Garcia and Wheeler sparking the offensive. Smith, who connected from the floor four times for a total of eight points, supplied the fans with frequent thrills as he utilized his leaping one-hand push-shot to perfection.

With only four minutes remaining to play and the Bullets still out front 29-26, bedlam broke loose when state's brilliant forward Don Hinds flipped in two quick one from way out to give his squad a one-point lead. Fighting to hold their slim lead, the collegians stationed Bill Harris under their goal for the sole purpose of shooting. Trying desperately to steer himself clear of the Bullets' guards, the towering center made good three out of five tries to ice the game for the collegians.

State's Arrington was the leading point-getter of the game with 12. He was followed by Burke who pocketed 10, one more than State's Don Hinds.

The Bullets returned to Columbus Thursday night to knock the props from under the stubborn but completely outclassed Orioles by the wide margin of 41-20. Meeting the Bullets for the second time this season, the Orioles suffered their second humiliating defeat. The frolicsome Bullets, desirous of getting things over in record time, quickly piled up leads of 8-5, 11-5, 15-5, and 17-7 at the half-time break. Hamer and Taylor, with six and four points respectively, led the way for the winners in the first half.

Bill Humphrey, Garcia, and Wavelan Simms were the pacesetters for the Bullets during the last period, and, despite the fact that they toyed with Columbus five a greater part of the melee, they were never threatened and coasted easily to victory.

Employing an impregnable defense the Bullets held the Orioles to 13 points in the second half, and, at the same time, went on a shooting spree to garner 24 for themselves. Point honors for the losers went to Ulysses Pace, who came off the court with eight to his credit; while Garcia's nine placed him at the top of the helm for the winners and the game. Humphrey, Hamer and Simms shared equally in point circles with six each.

Forward Sets Scoring Pace For Cagemen

An exceptionally good week on the court enabled Harold Corizzi, key offense man for the Doughboy cagers, to retain individual scoring honors, and push his 22-game total to 389 tallies.

Corizzi's outstanding performance of the week came during a game at Shaw field, S. C., in which the eagle - eyed bucket shooter dropped in 11 field goals and five free throws for a 27-point total.

The accurate forward's 17.6 game average gives him a comfortable margin over the quintet's other offensive spark, forward Doug Scovil, with a season's total of 286 counters. Scovil's game average dropped to 13 points as a result of two bad nights during the week's engagements.

Harold Haberman, top defense artist for the Doughboys, not only continued his brilliant duties at guard, but worked his way out of a scoring slump and found the cage for 51 tallies in the week's contests. Bob Kinard held fourth place on the scoring roster with a scant three-point edge on Harold Lutz.

Although offensive measures of the Doughs showed some improvement over the past, greatest strides were made in the direction of building up a strong defensive wall which has paved the way to victory in four out of the last four encounters. Defensive standouts on the squad have been Haberman and Kinard.

158 ENROLL IN COURSE

A total of 158 students in the Airborne battalion's class B-7 graduated Jan. 22, officials said this week.

THE HARD WAY — C. Petty, Pensacola center, is thwarted by Harold Lutz (18) as he attempts a shot at the Doughboy's basket. However, in spite of the miss, the Floridians went on to defeat the Benning cagers 62-57 in a thrilling battle at the Main post gym last Tuesday night. Bob Gallagher, (19), Pensacola All-Navy forward, is also shown.

Packed Bleachers See Pugilist Debut

Two knockouts highlighted the card when 24 Fort Benning hopefuls staged tryout bouts in the Main Post gymnasium Friday night. The 12 three-round battles also included three technical knockouts and seven decisions.

Following the fights, Coach John Wilson expressed satisfaction with the appearance of the pugilistic aspirants, and shared the opinion of 1,500 spectators that prospects for the post boxing team are generally good.

One of the most popular bouts ogt the evening was the third performance evwhich resulted in a third-round knockout victory for Manuel Dominquez over Wilfred Padillo. After being knocked down during the opening minutes of the contest, the 126-pound Padillo staged a game comeback, but was definitely outclassed by his dexterous opponent.

KO In Opener

The classic's other KO was scored in the opener by Enrique Martinez, who needed one minute and thirty seconds of the second round to put Joseph Antonio on the mat for keeps. The knockout punch was a hard right which climaxed a series of right-hand pokes Martinez had been working in since the outset of the scrap.

A technical knockout was the route to victory taken by John Salzillo in the program's seventh clash as he opened a cut on Frank Voit's lip, and forced him to stay in his corner after the second round. Salzillo, who is boxing for his first year, impressed the fans with a very fine left which had Voit floored twice during the second period.

Wilburn Wins

Another TKO came in the tenth contest when Clifford Wilburn kept his opponent, Adolfo Vargus, from coming out for the third round. Wilburn got off to a slow start, but found his mark during the second period when his terrific right sent Vargus to the floor twice.

The ring physician refused to let the card's eleventh performance continue after Norman Clark had inflicted a cut over the right eye of Rudolph Lefthand to ring up the final TKO of the evening.

One of the evening's most evenly matched bouts was the sixth clash which went to Luther Jones on a split decision. Jones' rival, Fred Delgado, managed to keep the fight action packed, and it was the opinion of many of the spectators that the voting should have favored the loser.

Split Decision

Lester Holt gained the only other split decision of the evening when he outpointed Robert Bailey in the fifth engagement. The fight was marked with slugging, but didn't involve enough mixups to hold the interest of the fans.

Other decisions were eked out by Wisdom Stewart over William Thomas, Francis Poole over Willis Powell, Emil Krolewicz over Steve Mash, Wilbert Wilson over Jerald Edwards, and Lawrence Jones over Gene Rogers.

Participants were drawn from the 325th Infantry regiment, Student Training regiment, Airborne battalion, Section I, 3440th Army Service unit, 204th Transportation battalion, Infantry School detachment, 25th Infantry regiment, 319th Field Artillery battalion, Medical detachment, 3440th Army Service unit, and Company K, 504th Airborne Infantry regiment.

Artillery Keglers Lose To Infantry

The keglers of the 319th Field Artillery battalion dropped four points to the officers of the 325th Infantry regiment last week in the post officer's bowling league by a pin count of 2362-2246.

Elmer C. Navarre copped high honors for the winners with a 184 average, while Dayton Warren again paced the losers with a 191.

Doughboy Basketeer Receives Discharge

Sherwood Myers, versatile forward on Lou Grizzard's Doughboy quintet, left the Army today and plans to return to Perdue university next week.

The former paratrooper played with the post five until last week when he reported for separation.

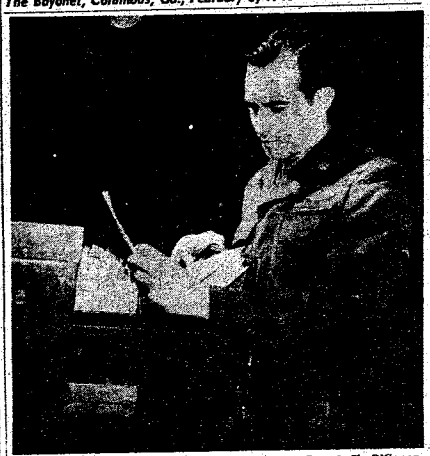
PRACTICES FUTURE TRADE—Pfc. Vincent F. Gillio, one of two disabled veterans who recently reenlisted for Army service, is shown here working on a typewriter. Gillio plans to enter the Army Office and Repair School at Camp Lee, Va., where he will develop his future Army trade.

TWO DISABLED VETS PLAN ARMY CAREERS

Brains, not brawn, will be the keynote of the successful army careers of two Bay State enlisted men, Pfc. Vincent F. Gillio and Cpl. Joseph E. O'Conor, now awaiting transportation to army schools from Fort Benning.



Both men are determined to overcome their physical handicaps, imposed by wounds received in combat, by becoming technicians or specialidsts in their respective occupations. This, they have discovered, may be accomplished through their enrollment in service schools. Both men are now awaiting shipment to the large army school facilities at Camp Lee, Va.

Pfc. Vincent F. Gillio, who will attend Army Offfice and Repair School, is a native of Boston, Mass., with four years and nine months of service to his credit. Almost three years of Gillio's service has been spent in army hospitals, where he underwent many operations to save his right arm, which was shattered by enemy shrapnel during action at Wiltz, Luxembourg.

Among the many decorations awarded him for service with the 26th Infantry division are the Bronze Star Medal and Purple Heart.

The second Bay Stater, who is scheduled to leave Fort Benning for the Army Service School at Camp Lee, is Cpl. Joseph E. O'Conor of Attleboro, Mass. Corporal O'Conor recently re-enlisted under War Department Circular 6 (Disabled Veterans Enlistment Act) with the intention of attending army specialists' schools. Since he is not mechanically inclined, the young corporal has decided to take an office administrative course at Camp Lee.

O'Conor's partial disability is the result of five German machine-gun bullets through his left arm and shoulder, received on the Anzio beachhead with the 98th Infantry division.

SERGEANT LANE TRANSFERRED

S-Sgt. Dewey H. Lane, formerly with the ammunition section of the 83rd Field Artillery battalion's Battery A, has been transferred to the 3440th Army Service unit, it was announced today.

Sergeant Lane, who has been in the army for the past 23 years, has spent his entire service career at Fort Benning. He enlisted Nov. 25, 1924, for duty with the 29th Infantry, serving with both Company F and Company L. He served as a labor foreman, in charge of the detail responsible for planting the trees and shrubbery on the main post. He also supervised much of the clearing of the woods for the first runway at Lawson field.

Sergeant Lane had been a member of the 83rd since last October.

Class 9 In 5th Week

The Airborne battalion's class No. 9 entered its fifth week last Monday with 12 officers and 176 enlisted men enrolled. Last week the students learned to pack parachutes and jumped from the 250-foot towers.

Boxing Tryouts Resume Friday

A continuation of tryouts for the Main post gymnasium at 8 p. m. Friday will feature at least 10 bouts, the athletic office announced today.

Coach John Wilson expressed hope that the scraps Friday night, together with the battles last week, will enable him to select this season's post boxing team.

Although no matches have been scheduled for the Benning pugilists, several letters have been written and other contacts made in an effort to arrange meets, and it is expected that a schedule will be ready for publication in the near future, Coach Wilson said.

The coach was gratified with the enthusiasm shown at last week's fights, and is hopeful that an equal amount of interest will be displayed throughout the season.

"The fact that the post's first series of bouts attracted more than 1,500 boxing fans indicates that it already is a popular sport with post enthusiasts. They are beginning to recognize boxing as one of the major sports," Wilson pointed out.

According to the coach, prospects for the team's success this season are very good, and the scrappers will be able to provide plenty of competition for other teams desiring a berth on Fort Benning's fight menu.

Present plans are to enter the post glovers in the Southeastern Amateur Athletic union's meet, tentatively slated to be held in Atlanta near the end of the season.

Complete 2-Week Radio Class Here

Nine men were graduated recently from the two week voice radio course offered by the signal supply office of the 325th Infantry regiment's Headquarters company.

The graduates included Pfcs. Harold J. McFalls and Charles J. Golden, Company A; Pfcs. Antoni Kajan and Robert Michaud, Company D; Pfcs. Alfred S. Luvandowski and Peter Amyette, Company C; and Pfcs. George Bennett, Carl D. Morris and Wesley W. Waites, Headquarters and Headquarters company of the First battalion.

The short course covered all phases of two inantry radio sets, and the graduates will return to their organizations to serve as radio operators within the rifle platoon.

APPROACHING SIXTH WEEK

A total of 105 students of an original 120 are still enrolled in the Airborne battalion's Company C as the class approaches its sixth week of training. Included among the students are four medical officers and one from Turkey.

'Well Sir, It's This Way' Smirks Mr. Groundhog

By DICK BARKER

Each year, on Feb. 2, the Groundhog, or Woodchuck, is required, by popular law, to leave his burrow to look for his shadow. If he sees that black thing hanging around his feet, he knows winter will last another six weeks, and goes to his nice warm burrow to sleep it off.

Hungry, the mongrel dog, took us to the front door. Knocking politely, we were greeted by Mrs. Woodchuck, who gave us a very dirty look and promptly slammed the door in our faces.

It was cold, waiting around the corner. And nothing seemed to happen. Hungry was out somewhere going the rounds with a squirrel who seemed to have quite a capacity for straight brandy, when Ol' Man Woodchuck came to the door.

He looked as foolish as any groundhog could look when still in his nightshirt, standing at his front door in the early part of February. Then, the impolite so-and-so, he actually yawned! Didn't cover his mouth either.

Much disgusted, we came out of hiding to get the low-down, determined to leave that uncouth neighborhood as soon as possible.

"Oh, there you are!" he exclaimed. "Well, where's the photographer? Yes, I'll give you the story now. Everybody here? Newsreels, camera men, television (I sold the rights to this last November), wire services?"

Then came the story of Groundhog Day, or rather Mr. W's version of it:

"Many, many years ago, when I was but a young chuckling, before I had acquired this middle-aged spread, I made it my habit to stay out and carouse into the wee, small hours. Why, sometimes I never went to bed until half-past January!

"My nineteenth winter was unusually bad. I had become a dissolute pauper. I was starving, my fur in tatters—I wasn't even able to attend the annual Woodchucks' ball—nothing to wear.

"Instead I spent most of the winter sponging drinks from friends. Along about the end of January, they threw me out, and I staggered home. The sun came out as I approached my front door, and I, without even thinking, made the classical remark that it was to be a long, cold winter, and that it had better last another six weeks so that I could get some sleep.

"A passing reporter overheard me and used it in an animal interest story. That winter was 1888, and you know what happened that year!

"My remark became a fabulous prediction. The next year, my humble abode had become a place for pilgrimage by thousands. I rented parking space until now I am a millionaire!"

"After making my pile and marrying, I retired from the active field. Raising a large family, I taught them the job until I now have branch offices in every large city. I come out now only because I can't give up the practice."

At that moment, a single thin ray of sunlight managed to pierce the fog overhead. The Groundhog sighed, while the mingled onlookers shivered.

"That does it. Another winter completely shot. Guess I'll go back to bed."

And so, with a soft adieu we said good-night to the little tycoon and crept softly away—to see if we couldn't locate a few drops of bourbon somewhere.

If that doesn't work, we'll just have to move in with Hungry.

1st Lt. Max H. Sinofeld, Headquarters battery, 319th Field Artillery battalion, has returned to Fort Benning following a three-month course at the Army Information School at Carlisle Barracks, Pa.

The lieutenant served as an enlisted man from May, 1941, until May, 1942, at the Post of San Juan in Puerto Rico. Returning to the states, he attended Officer Candidate School at Fort Sill, Okla., graduating in August, 1942.

He went overseas in May, 1944, serving with the 81st Chemical Mortar battalion in Europe until the end of the war. From then until his return to the states in June, 1947, he was on occupation duty. He has a total of four years overseas service.

2 TIS Classes Set Graduation For Saturday

Graduation exercises will be held Saturday morning for members of the Infantry School's communications chief and radio repair courses, school officials announced today.

A total of 32 students are slated to graduate from the radio course, while 29 will receive diplomas from the communications course provided there are no failures before then, authorities said.

The communications course, which has been in session for the past five months, was concerned with methods of communications within an infantry division, including some battle proven tactics which would enable a communications chief to assume the duties of a communications officials said.

Students enrolled in this course represent practically every branch of the service, and included as well two men from the Philippine islands and three from Puerto Rico.

The five-month radio repair course covered, during the first three months, the fundamentals of electricity and radio, including laboratory work. The last two months were spent in test and repair of infantry radio equipment.

Students in this course represent several installations in the U. S., including Fort Benning's Army Ground Forces board No. 3, and the Philippine islands.

Hobby Shop Program Illustrated By Chief

Inspecting hobby shops in the Third Army area, Miss Dorothy M. Kitterman, chief of the hobby shop section of the special service office, commented last week on the activities of the army shops as she visited the one in Doughboy stadium.

"In the hobby shop program," she stated, "we are trying to give army personnel the opportunity to develop their latent talents and find a release for their spare time.

"Then too," she continued, "men who engage in a constructive hobby such as carpentry can make extra money in their spare time by selling the bookends, cabinets, chairs and tables they make. They can practically furnish their own homes with the things they build."

"Everyone likes one special activity better than any other. If it is something he can do in his free time, it becomes his hobby.

"A hobby gives a person confidence. People learn for the first time what they can do as they use their hands in a creative manner. People who can express themselves throuh an avocation are the ones who have no emotional problems.

"With the tremendous increase of interest in technoloy, it has become increasingly important to develop latent skills in both civil and military personnel. A man trained, even self trained, in photography, amateur radio, or metal working is valuable, both to the Army and to himself.

"When the man has had experience in one of these fields, the army can place him where he will be happier and where he is more highly needed. With this extra training, the man has the chance to select a new field of employment—can change his entire life.

"The war of tomorrow, if there is to be another war, will require photographers, radio men, technicians of all kinds. It will be a technicians' war, if and when it comes."

The Fort Benning hobby shop, Miss Kitterman revealed, will soon have facilities for photography, radio work, plastics, leathercraft, and other hobbies. Equipment for further development will be added as the need and demand for such expansion develops, she stated.

"Skill is not necessary in the hobby field. A man can learn by doing, and what counts is his willingness to try. We all must wade before we can swim. I'd like to get this across to everyone here at Fort Benning. Try your hand. Develop your ability through experience," she concluded.

Scouts Observe Founder's Day

Fort Benning's 150 Boy Scouts are this week celebrating the 38th anniversary of the Boy Scouts of America.

During the week, according to Scout Commissioner Harry P. Duffield, all local Scouts have been requested to wear their uniforms at all times, and to attend their respective chapels in a body Sunday, Feb. 15.

Sergeant Duffield will explain the activities of Fort Benning Scouts during a radio broadcast over WSAC scheduled for 6 p. m. Saturday, Feb. 14. The scout commissioner also said that he would address an appeal during the program to all boys at Fort Benning who are not affiliated with the scouting movement to take advantage of the opportunity offered here to join.

The Fort Benning Scout organization is composed of three cub packs, two troops, and one senior unit which is now being formed.

Among the many activities in which the local Scouts participate are summer and overnight camping trips to the Boy Scout camp, located on Upatoi creek at the site of the old Quartermaster rest camp; collecting and repairing of toys for distribution to needy children in the vicinity at Christmas; an annual father-son banquet; handicraft work; assisting in directing Christmas holiday traffic in Columbus; and ushering at the annual Peanut Bowl football game in Columbus.

Anyone interested in becoming a Scout or cub may contact Scout Commissioner Duffield at 2381.

Top-Notch Talent Seen In Friday Variety Show

Presented under the supervision of special service, the two-hour performance featured music, pantomime, choral groups, dancing, comedy, and a few surprise acts. The 25th Infantry orchestra, under the direction of S-Sgt. Odell Butler, furnished the music throughout the program.

Under the direction of S-Sgt. Jess Owens producer-actor, the show continued to please the patrons in another smashing performance. Last night's performance displayed some of the most versatile acts seen here in a long time. Sgt. Owens padded together talent with a professional touch that gave the show everything in the way of musical and comedy entertainment.

Sgt. David Johnson, popular baritone, was heard with the orchestra in several renditions of the most popular hit tunes of the day. Pfc. Tommy Terrell, boogie-woogie pianist, 1st Sgt. Oliver Keys, along with singer Pfc. James Perry and dancer Pfc. Cliff Adams, were featured in solo performances. Sgt. Owens, who produced and directed the show, gave the audience a treat with his boxing pantomime.

Thirty-Year Vet Retires In April

A veteran of two world wars, M-Sgt. Antonio P. Martins director of the 196th Army band, will have climaxed 30 years of army service in April of this year.

Born in the Cape Verde islands, he came to the U. S. at the age of 13, and became a resident of New Bedford, Mass. Volunteering for army service on April 8, 1918, at Springfield, Mass., he was assigned to the 308th Pioneer Infantry regiment which saw 14 months of action with the American Expeditionary Forces in France.

Following his discharge at the end of World War I, he re-enlisted in the 24th Infantry as a member of the unit's band.

He was reassigned to the 25th Infantry in 1922, remaining with the regiment until 1940 when he was sent as a cadreman to the 367th Infantry band at Camp Clayborne, La. His World War II service was with the 196th AGF band in Europe.

Sergeant Martins came to Benning February 1, 1946, as a member of the 196th AGF band of the 107th combat team. His son, Guadalupe A. Martins, saw active service in the army during the last war and was separated with the rank of first sergeant. Following his retirement Sergeant Martins plans to return to New Bedford, Mass.

World War II. He commanded the 41st Infantry company during World War I and the 24th Infantry regiment in World War II.

The Seventh will be the largest single unit at Fort Benning, and will eventually take over the duties of the 325th Infantry regiment. It will become the permanent School Troops organization for Fort Benning, performing the functions and activities of the former School Troops unit.

Lt. Col Everett W. Duval, interim commanding officer of the 25th Infantry, has been named executive officer of the new unit. Lt Col. Jack M. Duncan will serve as S-3, Captain Philip Grant as S-1, and Lt. Robert N. Ives as liaison officer during the initial stages of organization and training. Also temporarily assigned are Lt. Martin B. Roller, Lt. Olin E. Smith, Lt. Leonard Pfeifer, and Lt. Calvin R. Randall.

Outstanding Background

The Seventh Infantry regiment is one of the oldest fighting units in U. S. military history. Its service dates back to 1798 when it was organized to assist in the struggle for independence as a unit of the Continental Army. The regiment was disbanded in 1800, but eight years later in 1808, it was re-activated to subdue Indian uprisings, and has been an active unit since that time.

The Sevethn, whose first engagement with foreign troops was against the British Redcoats at Louisiana in 1814, became a component of the Third division shortly after Dec. 7, 1941, and saw its first action in World War II in the invasion of North Africa in November, 1942.

One of the most decorated units in the European theater, the Seventh won its honors in a long string of engagements, beginning with the invasion of Africa, and ending with the march into Munich in April of 1945.

Earned 10 Batle Sars

The Second battalion of the Seventh Infantry was the first to reach Salzburg, Austria, and at the same time squads of the Seventh also entered Hitler's mountain hideout at Berchtesgaden. At the close of the war, the Seventh had earned 10 battle participation awards, including Algeria-French Morrocco, Tunisia, Sicily, Naples-Foggia, Anzio, Rome-Arno, Southern France, Rhineland, Ardennes-Alsace, and Central Europe.

The combat team's 10th Field Artillery battalion was organized in 1917 at Douglas, Arizona, and fought in France during World War I as part of the Third Field Artillery brigade of the Third division. For its famous stand while with the Third division on the Marne river, the 10th acquired the motto, "the Rock's Support." For its action in France the regiment, now a battalion, was awarded the Croix de Guerre by Marshal Petain.

The 10th Engineer battalion was the first unit of the Third division to set sail for France in 1917. While assigned to the British forces in World War I, the regiment performed the feat of building 16 bridges in 40 days. During World War II as a combat battalion, the 10th Engineers engaged in infantry fighting during the heavy periods at Anzio beachhead.

Enlistment in the new Seventh Infantry Regimental combat team will be restricted solely to former servicemen of the Army, Navy, Air Force, Coast Guard, or Marine Corps. At least 80 per cent must be men who saw service in the Third division.

Local recruiting stations have now received a list of necessary qualifications and requirements for enlistment into the new unit, officials said.

Diller became a member of his original staff, being appointed the general's aide de camp. At the outbreak of the war, he was given additional duties as theater public relations officer.

During General MacArthur's departure from Corregidor December 21, 1941, Colonel Diller was a member of the party. They reached Australia after being picked up by a B-17 at Mindanao, following a rough voyage in P. T. boats over China seas. He saw service with MacArthur as public relations officer throughout the Papua and New Guinea campaigns, the reconquest of the Philippines, and during the initial stages of the Japanese occupation.

He rose from the ranks to the grade of brigadier general, which rank he held from February 14, 1945, until April 1, 1946.

Colonel Diller received his second lieutenant's commission in 1923 as an honor graduate of Syracuse university's ROTC unit. He has been awarded the Distinguished Service medal, Silver Star, Legion of Merit, and the Philippines Distinguished Service star.

The New Look

We have been asked on numerous occasions recently our opinion on the so-called "New Look" as it applies to feminine wearing apparel, but have really had little chance to note the effects, mainly because in this part of the country the female species hasn't taken to it too readily. However, during the past few days it has been brought forcibly to our attention by a member of The Bayonet staff and other ladies who drop in the editorial offices to request space in the publication for announcements and other items of social interest to families here at Fort Benning. And we have finally decided that we definitely do not like the New Look.

Among the reasons for our dislike of the new style is the utter waste of material, to say nothing of the lack of stylishness. It has always been our opinion that either man or woman, in order to appear well groomed, should by all means accentuate his or her better features rather than hide them. And provided he or she has unattractive features where there should be attractive ones, then it is case of "playing them down" and accenting those which are good. Now, in this New Look, there seems to be an effort on the part of the fashion experts to do away with this basic tenet of good grooming.

For women who have a tendency to plumpness this use of five to twenty yards of material, just in making a skirt, is outrageous. It not only makes the woman who wears the outfit look like the side of an oversize barn, but it also makes her look uncomfortable. We wonder what she will feel like during the hot summer months, when, in the past, she has usually attempted to wear as little as possible to keep cool.

We will admit, although it sounds inconsistent, that the New Look does have certain advantages for certain women. We speak, of course, in favor of those who fail to have the "figure". For them, the New Look has been a real attempt to make "something out of nothing", and for these women we agree that this new style is of paramount importance. However, women in this category are not so many as those in the other, and to make the "figured" woman wear yards and yards of material, covering the best parts of her anatomy, is a shame and disgrace.

Topping this off is the mere fact hubby's pocketbook has felt a pinch since the little lady must keep up with the Joneses. Several months ago, prior to advent of the monstrous New Look, the long-suffering husband was forced to dig into his savings to buy the wife a new peacetime wardrobe, and now he is suffering again.

We do not like to seem vitriolic, but we can't help but believe that this trailing and bustle business is an affront to mankind, sabotage of the worst sort. Mere man can never hope to do anything about it, however, but we do hope that women will realize what they have done before they begin to wear shawls and button shoes.

Welcome Seventh

It is with a great deal of pleasure that The Bayonet welcomes to Fort Benning the Seventh Infantry Regimental combat team, one of many colorful units attached to the famous wartime Third Infantry division in Europe.

Of special interest to all Fort Benning personnel is that fact that the Third division was commanded during six major European campaigns by Maj. Gen. John W. O'Daniel, who today commands the Infantry Center. The new unit which has been in existence since 1798 (as the Seventh Infantry regiment), has a colorful background which will add much to the prestige of Fort Benning. By the same token it is a feather in the combat team's cap to be stationed at the world's most complete army post.

An able commander, Colonel Hamilton Thorne, who directed army officer candidates at Fort Benning for some time, has been appointed. The staff of officers and non-commissioned officers has been carefully selected to insure the best for a top-notch organization, and it should be an inducement to men who are contemplating reentry into the army and who meet the necessary qualifications to request duty with the Seventh.

The Bayonet is proud to have The Seventh at Fort Benning.

An aspirant to public office suffered from a cleft palate and arranged to have it corrected. The surgeon commenced the preliminary preparations. A trial feeding of a cup of tea through a tube in the patient's side was made by the nurse, whereupon the patient gave a tremendous yell. The doctor admonished and consoled him.

"I warned you it would be exceedingly painful."

"It wasn't that," replied the man.

"What was it then?" asked the doctor.

"No sugar!" was the answer.

The husband returned home unexpectedly, he flung the door open and saw his wife holding hands with a stranger.

"What is this?" shouted the husband. "Who is this man?"

The wife looked at the stranger. "My husband is within his rights," she said sternly, "What is your name?"

Chaplain's Corner...

CHRIST AND THE RICH
By
Chaplain J. F. Rafferty

There is a certain picture we often see which has a particular message for the world today. This very popular picture was painted by the German artist, Heinrich Hoffman about 1890. Hoffman was rather famous as a religious painter. His specialty was depicting scenes from the life of Christ. In the picture already mentioned Hoffman chose the incident between Christ and the rich young man.

The incident can be found in the 19th chapter of the Gospel of St. Matthews. There was a certain young man who came to Jesus, and asked Him what he should do so that he might have life everlasting. Jesus answered in His usual way: Keep the Commandments and he would be saved.

The answer did not quite satisfy the young man. He said that he had been keeping the Commandments ever since his youth, and he then asked if there was anything more he could do. In answer Jesus said, "If thou wilt be perfect go, sell what thou hast given to the poor and thou shalt have treasure in heaven and come and follow me." But this was too much for the rich young man and without another word he turned and walked away very sad.

Jesus, of course, did not chide the young man or rebuke him for his decision. He left the man perfectly free to do with his possessions as he wished. Yet, by choosing the worldly instead of the heavenly treasure, the young man lost a real opportunity. Had he accepted Christ's invitation and followed his advice, he would have made himself immortal. He could have taken his place among the other Apostles, and like them would have become honored and revered throughout Christendom.

Today he would have been fondly remembered as one of the greatest saints and benefactors of all time, but now he is completely ignored and forgotten. We do not know what happened to him. We do not even know his name. He may have gained Eternal Life—we are not sure. He was just another person so attracted to earthly wealth that it distorted his sense of values. He failed to understand that there are more important and more glorious things in life than riches.

The rich young man was just another person because there are so many people in this world afflicted in the same way. Their desire for wealth completely obscures all the finer and nobler things in life. It is too bad that it is usually so late in life when they finally discover that money is not everything.

GI Humor

The man took the object of his affections to attend an open air opera on a beautiful clear and warm summer evening. During the first act, he found it necessary to excuse himself. He asked an usher where the men's room might be found.

"Turn to left and walk down to the big oak tree and there it is." The man did as he was told. In due time returned to his seat.

"You should know," she haughtily replied. "You were in it."

The country youth had driven into the country fair with his sweetheart. They passed a booth where fresh popcorn was for sale.

"My, Abner, ain't that nice?" exclaimed the girl.

"Ain't what nice?" asked Abner.

"Ain't what nice?" asked Abner.

"Why the popcorn; it smells so awfully good," replied the girl.

"It does smell kind of fine," drawled the youth. "I'll jest drive a little closer so you can get a better smell."

A well-dressed Scotchman had fallen into the rive and was in danger of being swept away by the current and drowned when a brave youth jumped into the stream, and after great exertion brought the man safely to shore.

Your Red Cross

Learning how to serve one person a well-balanced meal on 30 to 40 cents is a neat trick if you can do it in this time of high-priced living.

But that's just what your Red Cross nutrition service is doing in a leadership training course designed to teach preparation of a balanced meal to serve eight at a cost of approximately three dollars. The meal includes a meat, two vegetables, a salad, and a dessert. This course is being taught to housewives throughout the southeast, and those leaders are in turn teaching good nutrition to their neighbors at "kitchen parties".

These courses, while primarily meant for groups of young housewives in low-priced housing projects, are claiming the attention of wives throughout the country. It is of added interest to know that many groups of teen-age girls are starting nutrition classes in high schools. Officers' wives in and around Augusta, Ga., have formed such classes. The wives of medical students attending the University of Georgia have started nutrition classes. Especially designed classes for veterans' wives are being taught in the vicinity of Tuskegee institute at Tuskegee, Ala.

This is a little known activity in which your Red Cross is engaged, but it is, nonetheless, important. Wowuld you like to start a nutrition class? If you would, contact your local Red Cross chapter in Columbus, for I am sure that if enough ladies on the post and in Benning Park Homes were interested in organizing a nutrition class, Mrs. Bruce, the very able executive secretary of the Muscogee county chapter, would be glad to start such a class.

New Medical Unit Now In Training

A new medical company which will eventually be assigned to the 325th Infantry regiment is now undergoing a period of activities and training at Harmony Church area, it was announced this week.

The first of its kind to be assigned to an infantry regiment, the new medical unit will cover all phases of medical training during its eight-week training period.

Ted Weems Presents Band At Post NCO Club Sunday

At the Post NCO club Sunday February 15, 7:30 to 11:30 p. m. will be Ted Weems and his famous band, one to reach the top on almost every popularity poll for orchestras in 1947. All members of the club are invited to attend and may bring additional feminine guests if they wish. Dress for ladies will be optional.

Ted Weems and his group have been at the top of the name-band lists for years, and some of their engagements have been at the Palmer House and the Edgewater Beach hotel in Chicago, the Waldorf-Astoria hotel in New York, the Cincinnati Netherland-Plazza, and the famous Palomar Ballroom in Los Angeles. They have had many road engagements in the largest theaters in the country in addition to long-term bookings in the best hotels.

Ted's first musical endeavor was an attempt to master the violin. Although he earned his first pocket money playing his violin in a Philadelphia dance hall, he decided to switch to the trombone, and in partnership with his brother, Art, they organized a band and began life as bandsmen in the Trianon Ballroom in Newark, N. J. When Art, left the band, Ted continued on his own and piled success on success with some composition of his own, record sales, and continued bookings in the best hotels and show circuits.

Two of Ted Weem's compositions, which enjoyed wide popularity, are "Martins and the Coys" and "Egyptianella." Although he did not write "Heartaches," his 1932 Decca recording of that tune became a smash hit again in 1947. It has set a record for high sales, selling over three million copies. Ted's flair for music came from his musical family, and in his youth, the family pointed together for regular concerts in their home. Art Weems is still in the music busines as a booking agent, as is brother Robert.

Throughout the war, Ted devoted his time and talent to the men of the Merchant Marine, enlisting in the U. S. Maritime Service as a C. P. O. He wanted to prove the value of music to the Merchant Marine, and did this so successfully that he left the service with the rank of Lieutenant (j. g.)

Ted Weem's biggest business venture is promoting the stars under contract with him. Among these are Perry Como, Merylin Maxwell, Mary Lee, and Elmo Tanner.

Today, Ted Weems, who stands six feet tall, is about 170 pounds, looks healthier, and if anything has increased his famous smile and sense of humor. His enthusiasm for his band and the future of popular music is more sincere than ever.

Speaking of today's bands, Ted remarks, "I think the quality of the average band from now on will be far above anything we've known in the past. Bands will be a solid combination of sweet and hot music, with the accent on individual performers backed up with smooth orchestrations. I've noticed that people have taken more to dancing lately, and this is visual testimony to the enjoyment that bands are providing in these times of needed relaxation."

Silver Tea To Be Given By Benning Girl Scouts

The Girl Scouts of Fort Benning will entertain with a silver tea on Friday, February 27, from 4:30 p. m. at the Girl Scout cabin, in memory of the founder, Juliette Lowe, and the proceeds will go to the "Juliette Low Fund."

Mrs. Juliette Low, founder of the Girl Scouts in the United States, lived in England part of her life, and became interested in scouting through Lord Baden-Powell who founded Boy Scouts. She returned to her home in Savannah, Georgia, in 1912 and organized the first girl Scout troop there.

Although Mrs. Low started the first American troop, the Girl Scout movement was begun in England in 1907, the same year the Boy Scouts were organized. The association spread to other lands before it reached the United States, first to Australia, Finland, and South Africa, then to Denmark, Poland, and Canada. In some countries the group is called Girl Guides, but its the same association.

In 1927, a few months after the death of Mrs. Low, the "Juliette Low Memorial Fund" was begun in memory of her intense interest in the girls of all nations, and her belief in the far-reaching importance of personal friendships among them. It was her foremost desire that the girls of every nationality know and value friendship with each other.

Girl Scout troops and friends of girl scouting all over the United States contribute to this fund every year. The income from this yearly project is used to take girls from different countries to a camp where they may live together, which is the finest way to get acquainted. The fund will continue to be used in any way which seems best for bringing about a better understanding among the young people of all countries.

The Benning Girl Scouts are now busy making invitations and redecorating their cabin. Mrs. A. C. Brill is the chairman of the tea committee, assited by the Scout leaders and members of the council. The parents of the Girl Scouts are invited to attend as well as those who are interested in girl scouting, other than from the parent viewpoint.

The Fort Benning Girl Scouts urgently need talented post wives to offer their time and talents to hobby work for the troops. Of particular interest to the girls is instruction in arts and crafts, music and dancing, dramatics, sports and games, nature study, and homemaking. The arts and crafts work will include carving, jewelry making, weaving and leather work. Group singing, ballroom and folk dancing are planned under the music and dancing work and all phases of dramatics will be stressed, such as make-up and costuming in addition to acting. Popular sports are badminton, volley ball, swimming, and cycling and the girls wish to study birds, trees, and flowers in nature study. Homemaking, which will be of great value to the future wife and mother, will cover the simple details of this art, and great interest has been shown in this phase of the planned hobbys. Post women who can donate their time and instructive ability to this project are asked to contact Mrs. H. H. Walker at 2023.

An outstanding party of last week was a dinner given at the Officers club by Capt. and Mrs. Preston O. Gordon in the small lounge.

The table was unusual and effective, done entirely in the Japanese motif. A gold damask cloth overlaid the table, and in the center was an exquisitely carved figurine around the base of which were twined red berries and greens. The Girl Scouts will pack their boxes for overseas shipment in March. Any surplus clothing will be given to Chaplain Wallace Hale for distribution as he sees fit.

The senior and intermediate Girl Scouts are at work on their first aid course under the direction of R. L. George, of the Fort Benning Red Cross field office. The course has had fine response from the girls, and is one of their most worth-while endeavors.

MAJOR GENERAL JOHN W. O'DANIEL
... COMBAT COMMANDER OF THIRD INFANTRY DIVISION

7th Has Colorful Past

From French Morocco, Tunisia, Sicily, Southern Italy, the Anzio beachhead and through Southern France, the Third division made military history by crushing the Germans in its onward rush over the Vosges mountains, through the Colmar pocket, and the final smashing drive across Germany to the Berchtesgaden in Bavaria and Salzburg in Austria.

Through long days of combat and an ever increasing toll of casualties, the Third emerged from the second World War without a peer for distinguished service.

The history of the Third Infantry division is best summed up in the words of General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower to Major General John W. O'Daniel, who commanded the Third from the beaches of Southern France to its final victories at Salzburg and Berchtesgaden:

"The Third U. S. Infantry division entered World War II with a reputation for gallantry and reliability already established by its brilliant performance in the first World War," he said. "Never once, in World War II, either in the Mediterranean or in the Western European theater, has the division failed to add a still greater luster to its record. My own service in the division covered slightly more than the year 1940. Three years later, in Tunisia, it was a rare privilege, during an inspection of the division, to meet on a foreign battleground many of the officers and men who had been my comrades on the west coast of the United States.

"The Third division has added to its battle streamers the names of many fierce engagements in French Morocco, in Sicily, in Italy and in Western Europe. None of these names will ever recall a single instance when the division gave up a foot of ground or failed to attain the objectives assigned by its commander.

"The most pleasant thing that we old soldiers can talk about among ourselves is the memory of successful battles; the future reunions of the Third division will be most enjoyable affairs."

Out of the 8,160 awards for valor to officer and enlisted personnel of the division there were 39 Congressional Medals of Honor. There were also 138 Distinguished Service Crosses presented to men of the Third, plus six Distinguished Service Medals, 2,190 Silver Star medals, 215 Legion of Merit medals, 200 Soldiers' medals, and thousands of Purple Heart medals. The division and its units received more than 17 Distinguished Unit citations for outstanding service in combat, as well as 10 battle stars.

Capt. Lillyman Attends School

Capt. Frank L. Lillyman, former commander of the 501st Parachute Infantry battalion's Headquarters company, has been transferred to the Military Police school at Carlisle Baracks, Pa., officials said today.

Captain Lillyman, who attended the U. S. Military Academy prior to entering the army in 1932, was commissioned from the ranks.

During the war, he served overseas with the 101st Airborne division and the OSS in the Normandy, Northern France, Ardennes-Alsace, Central Europe, and the Rhineland campaigns.

Captain Lillyman was awarded the Distinguished Service Cross as the first man to parachute into Normandy at the time of the invasion. He also wears the Bronze Star medal, Purple Heart with two clusters, Distinguished Unit badge with two clusters, French Croix de Guerre and Fourragere, and the Order of William of Nassau of Holland.

To Head Hospital Red Cross Staff

Mrs. Margaret J. Strickland, formerly casework supervisor for the Red Cross chapter at the U. S. Naval hospital, Dublin, Ga., has been named assistant field director in charge of Red Cross activities at the Station hospital here, replacing Miss Lacy Darter, who has been transferred to Oliver General hospital, it was announced today by Murray E. Hill, Fort Benning field director.

Mrs. Strickland has been affiliated with Red Cross work for four years, having served the U. S. Naval hospital at Charleston, S. C., Finney General hospital, Northington General hospital, and the regional and station hospital at Fort McClellan, Ala.

Combat Team's History Dates Back To 1798

Its illustrious history in the defense of the nation dates back to 1798 when it was organized to assist in the struggle for independence. After less than two years as a unit of the Continental Army, the regiment was mustered out of the service on June 15, 1800, but, because of Indian updisings, was re-activated on May 3, 1808, and has seen active service ever since.

The first of more than 37 battle streamers which now adorn the regimental colors was won in the Indian War of 1811. On November 7, 1811, with the forces under command of William Henry Harrison, who was later President, the Seventh defeated the Indian forces of Tenskwatawa, the Indian Prophet, in the Battle of Tippecanoe.

The Seventh's first engagement against foreign troops was the British Redcoats at Villier's Plantation, La., December 23, 1814.

On January 8-9, 1815, the Seventh won fame in the Battle of New Orleans, with forces under command of General Andrew Jackson. Behind a breastwork of cotton bales the Seventh Infantry sharpshooters shot down hundreds of British Redcoats. Over 2,000 British soldiers were killed in this engagement, with but one dozen American casualties. Since that battle the regiment has been known as the "Cotton Balers."

From 1815 to 1846, the Seventh was under the command of Colonel Matthew Arbuckle, and was stationed for a while at Fort Gibson, located at the junction of the Grand and Arkansas rivers near the present site of Muskogee, Okla. It was out of this post that the regiment marched against the Seminole Indians under their celebrated chief, Osceola, in the Florida War of 1839-1842.

During the Mexican War, it participated in the siege of Vera Cruz, which ended with Mexican capitulation on March 24, 1847.

During the War Between the States, the Seventh, as a Federal unit, added 11 battle streamers to its famous regimental colors. At the close of this war, it once more became engaged in quelling Indian uprisings. Among its many great exploits was the rescue of what was left of General Custer's command in the massacre at Little Big Horn.

The regiment saw action against Spain in Cuba in 1898, adding two more battle streamers to its colors. In 1901 and 1902 it fought on Luzon and Samar in the suppression of the Philippine insurrection.

In World War I, the Seventh distinguished itself in six major campaigns, and was awarded the Croix de Guerre by the French government.

Exercise Yukon In Third Phase

Phase three of "Exercise Yukon" in Alaska is now under way, General Jacob L. Devers, commanding general, Army Ground Forces, announced today.

Two-hundred fifty "winterized" infantrymen recently packed white Yukon sleds and boarded Fairchild C-82 flying boxcars at Big Delta, Alaska, and departed for Galena, Alaska, 400 air-miles away, where they will "defend" an air strip against assumed aggressor forces. This was the beginning of a five-day problem designed to test the Army's ability to fight and survive in the Arctic regions.

A platoon of medical corpsmen and a section of 105mm artillery are supporting the assault force. These are the first medics and artillery to be airlifted over such a great distance and employed in a tactical situation.

The composite, company size, combat team is from the Second battalion, Ninth regiment, of the Second (Indian Head) division, stationed at Fort Lewis, Washington. Lieutenant Colonel Frank G. Forrest, veteran of the war in Alaska, is commanding the force.

Commanders of both air and ground units are in full agreement that Arctic defense exercises demand the utmost of men and machines, as the armed forces probe the problem of "man versus cold" in solving the Alaskan defense question.

Honaker Is Assigned To Artillery Battalion

Among the men recently assigned to the 310th Field Artillery battalion's Headquarters battery is 1st Sgt. Harry R. Honaker, who has returned to the U. S. following a 50-month overseas tour.

Sergeant Honaker was a member of the 21st Field Artillery battalion's Battery A for 38 months. He wears the Bronze Star, Soldier's medal, ETO ribbon with five battle stars, and Good Conduct, Victory, and Occupation medals.

Seventh Second Oldest U. S. Fighting Regiment

The parent unit of the Seventh Infantry combat team, now in the process of organization at its temporary headquarters, is the second oldest fighting regiment in the U. S. Army, with a distinguished record of military service dating back to 1798. Under command of Colonel Hamilton Thorn, former overseas commander of the 24th Infantry regiment, and later commander of the Third Student Training regiment at the Infantry Center, the Seventh Infantry regimental combat team will temporarily be stationed in the Harmony Church area of Fort Benning.

U. S. Army recruiting stations now have the official criteria on enlistments for direct assignment to the Seventh. Enlistments in the Regular Army for a period of three years to the Seventh Regimental combat team, have been authorized by the Department of the Army for individuals meeting the following qualifications.

Enlistments are restricted to white applicants with prior service in one of the armed forces, (Army, Navy, Air Force, Coast Guard, or Marine Corps), since May 12, 1945. Approximately 80 percent of the personnel, who enlist for direct assignment to the Seventh, must have a record of prior service in the third division; and the remaining must have a record of service in units other than the third. All enlistments accomplished under this criteria will be for no less than three years, Regular Army unassigned. No promise will be made to personnel enlisting for service with the Seventh as to the permanancy of the geographical location of the unit, but if the unit is transferred to a new location, all personnel will be transferred accordingly.

Lt. Col. Everett W. Duval, interim commanding officer of the 25th Infantry, has been named executive officer of the Seventh. To date, only a small number of staff personnel have been assigned to the Seventh. Present staff assignments include Lt. Col. Jack M. Duncan, S-3, Capt. Philip Grant, S-1, and Lt. Robert N. Ives, liason officer. Among officer personnel on temporary assignment are Lt. Martin B. Roller, Lt. Olin E. Smith, Lt. Leonard Pfeifer, Lt. Calvin R. Randal.

The complete organization of the Seventh Infantry Regimental combat team will include three additional former combat units: the 10th Field Artillery battalion, which fought in France in both world wars with the Third Division; Company A, 10th Engineer Combat battalion, also a fighting member of the Third Infantry division since World War I; and the 751st Heavy Tank battalion.

Pugilistic Tryouts Feature Knockout

Boxing Crowd Sees Delgado Trounce Rival

Final tryouts for the Doughboy contest in the Main Post gymnasium last Friday night reached a grand climax in the fourth bout when Fred Delgado landed a hard right to the head of his welterweight competitor, Luther Jones, that put him on the mat for the full count.

The speedy scrapper threw his knockout punch one minute and 30 seconds after the bell proclaimed the opening of the second round.

A full house of spectators saw Jones, who eked out a decision over Delgado in the preceding week's contest, start the first round off with a two-fisted, pile-driving attack that floored his opponent during the initial seconds of the opening round. However, Delgado retaliated early in the second period with a short left that knocked Jones down. He regained his footing, but kept it only a few seconds before Delgado's powerful right found its mark.

Opener TKO For Thomas

Billy Thomas emerged victor by a TKO in the opening bout of the 10-classic program after closing out the first round with a deluge of blows that hurt John Mitchell so badly that he had to call it quits without facing Thomas for a second frame.

Mitchell, however, took the initiative in the starting seconds of the contest and bombarded his 130-pound rival with a series of hard lefts giving way to the superior tactics of Thomas.

In a flash that turned out to pack a lot more action than the opener, Lucious Hollis outfought Francis Poole to annex himself a decision in the evening's second contest.

The fighters, who appeared to be more evenly matched than any other contestants of the evening, mixed it up from the outset of the bout, but Hollis gained a slight first-round advantage of hammering Poole's mid-section.

The game Poole hit the comeback trail during the final round, and launched a barrage of wallops that had his victorious competitor staggering all over the ring.

Second TKO Scored

The card's second TKO came in the third match when body blows delivered by Wilfred Padillo forced Tony Cionti to weaken and finally accept the towel mid-way through the second section.

After both scrappers had put up a rather dull first round, Padillo went down early in the second. Quickly getting back on his feet, the 136-pound glover cut loose with a bombardment that drove Cionti into the ropes.

In the first post-intermission bout, Frank Voit won a decision over John Greene, whose efforts to protect his head and face deprived him of the opportunity of getting in many very good punches.

Voit hit the mat during the opening seconds of the initial period, but came back to pepper rights to Greene's head.

The losing battler obvtously was tired during the final stage of the match, but managed to leave his mark on the visitor's face.

Brilliant Debut Continues

John Salzillo, whose debut with the Fort Benning pugilists this year has been nothing short of brilliant, added another victory to his record when he emerged from his three rounds with Bob Fletcher with the balloting in his favor.

The bolut winner drew blood from his rival early in the fight by working in some tricky counter-punches with his left hand, and took advantage of Fletcher's make it the target of his attack. mauled nose by continuing to

Before the classic had ended, Fletcher had his fling at the offense. During the final stanza, the battered youngster came through with a slugging spree that had Salzillo groggy.

Spectators saw a demonstration of some fine footwork and boxing style when Lawrence Jones took an early advantage over Lester Holt and coasted to an easy win by decision.

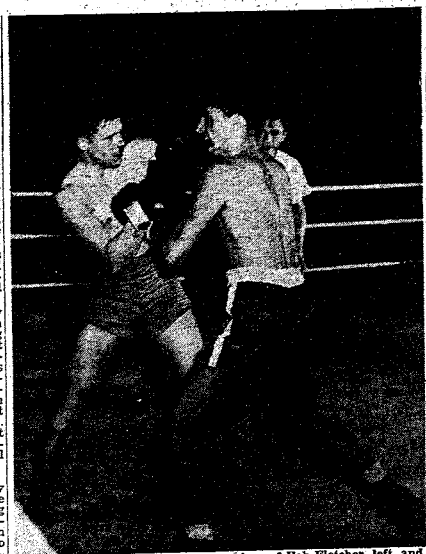
During the first two stages of the clash, Janes kept completely out range of his opponent, but didn't throw in enough hard bloows to put the outclassed Holt in any anguish. The first half of the last period still saw Jones doing more work with his feet than his hands, but the husky pugilist poured in enough hard ones toward the end of the round to have Holt on the ropes.

Easy Victory for Clark

Norman Clark, one of the most promising of this year's ring hopefuls, won on easy TKO over William Stephens, who, after being on the receiving end of repeated hard body punches, falied to come out for hte second round.

Although Stephens drove in some good blows and didn't balk at mixing it up, the cool, collected ring tactics of Clark gave him the advantage from the outset of the contest.

Wilbert Wilson made a strong bid for the welterweight berth on the Doughboy pugilist octet by ringing up a unanimous decision over Emil Krolewicz in one of the most interest-packed bouts of the evening.



Although he was faced with a stubborn scrapper with lots of ability to ammount slugging, the fast-working Wilson exhibited powerful pokes with boht fists that staggered Krolewicz twice in the commencing stanza.

Rapid Recoveries

The outpointed fighter made rapid recoveries from the stunning wallops of Wilson throughout the second and third rounds, and displayed good ring style during the entire bout, but Wilson's speed proved a decided advantage.

The card's closing engagement turned out to be a slugfest with Clifford Wilburn needing the full three rounds to score a decision over Jake Williams.

The most damaging blow of the scrap was struck by Wilburn during the second round when he got in a powerful left that drove Williams to the floor for the count of nine. However, fans witnessed a good recovery on the part of the floored boxer, and saw the fight conclude with an exchange of punches.

Benning Officers Have Tournament At Local Gun Club

Additional interest in shooting at the Fort Benning Officers' club skeet range has been created through the initiation of weekly "skeeto" tournaments, held from 9 a. m. until 1 p. m. each Sunday. The tournaments are open to all officers and their guests, it was announced.

Last Sunday's high gun prize in the Class "A" division went to Capt. Pullman, and the runnerup was Capt. Robert E. Carey.

Both Class "B" and Class "C" resulted in ties, and trophy winners were decided by flipping a coin. In the Class "B" contest, Dr. C. A. Peacock won the coin toss, and Lt. Col. Donald E. Hoffmeister took the runnerup prize. Lt. Col. Woodrow took high gun honors from C. A. Peacock Jr., in the Class "C" division by calling the coin toss correctly.

Veterans of the skeet range believe that the installation of classes in the tournament will appeal to novices in that they will be assured of being equally matched.

Cage Tourney Attracts Locals

Setting their goal at the capture of the Third Army basketball trophy, Fort Benning's Doughs will leave today for Fort Jackson, South Carolina, where they will participate in the annual tournament starting Monday evening.

Inspired by marked defensive improvement during recent encounters, the Doughs will compete in a field of approximately five army quintets.

Since the local lads haven't chalked up a very impressive won and lost record this season, they are not rated as tourney favorites. However, Coach Lewis Grizzard predicted that the highly lauded Fort Bragg, North Carolina, cagers won't be "riding on a gravy train" when they came up against the Benning group.

It will not be known which team the Doughboys will draw in their initial match until after a meeting of coaches at Fort Jackson Monday morning, the post athletic office announced.

"We are going to be up against some tough teams, but the boys have shown such marked improvement during their last few games that I wouldn't rate their chances to win at nil. In last Sunday's game at Atlanta, the team put on the best demonstration of defensive power they have shown this season.

"Fort Bragg looms as the tournament favorite, but they can bet that they are going to have a real scrap on their hands when they tangle with the Doughs. They won't be riding on a gravy train," the coach said.

If Coach John Wilson can fill three gaps in his boxing team lineup, prospects will be good for the Fort Benning pugilists this season. Although he is planning to do a little shifting by taking off enough weight to get some of his welterweights in the light-weight bracket, the coach has no known candidates for the bantam-weight and featherweight spots.

The present difficulty with the gloves squad is that too many wel-terweights and middleweights are attempting to get berths on the squad. This, however, gives the aspirants in those weights the opportunity to demonstrate their talent more frequently, and should provide assurance that those spots on the squad will be handled more capably than other weight divisions.

Norman Clark will be the likely candidate to fill the lightweight vacancy on the squad if he can get his 142 pounds down to 135. Just in case he can't, however, Francis Poole, who weighed in at 140 during last Friday's bouts, may be able to take off enough to gain the berth.

Number one contender for the welterweight division (if Wilson fights lightweight) is Wilbert Wilson, 147-pounder. Lawrence Jones looks better than any other candidate for the middleweight spot, and Richard Donaldson undoubtedly will take over the light-heavyweight responsibilities. In his heavyweight position, Wilson plans to place 210-pound Lester Beard.

Switching to the basketball scene, we find the Doughboys girding their loins for battle in the Third Army tournament which opens Monday night at Fort Jackson, South Carolina.

After getting a first-hand account of last Sunday's game between the Doughs and the Atlanta Rebels, it appears to this writer that the Fort Benning aggregation will not be so far outclassed in the tournament as had been the popular belief.

Before departing, Coach Lewis Grizzard hailed the support given the main-stringers by the usually benched part of the team as a factor vital to the squad's success.

A lot of controversy has arisen over the fact that one of Fort Benning's cage teams was ordered to leave the floor during the over-time period of the Doughboy-Rebel game last Sunday because of excessive personal fouls. In answer to those who are of the opinion that an extra period of play justifies an increase in the permissable number of fouls, I quote Titus B. Lobach, national sports official and authority on rules:

"Overtime periods are merely the extension of a regular game and additional fouls are not permitted."

Looking forward to the coming London Olympic games, it appears that the United States' basketball representatives will have to revert to playing under 1935 regulations.

The 1935 international rules, which have not been revised due to the war, provide for a center jump after each field goal, and the ex-pulsion of a player after he has been charged with only four per-sonal fouls.

OLDTIMER COACHES DOUGHBOY RINGMEN

Seniority honors for time spent in a Fort Benning coaching position are claimed by 1st Sgt. John Wilson who is in the outset of his 13th season as Doughboy boxing mentor.

With the exception of a few months during 1944, Wilson has served with the army at Fort Benning continuously since his first enlistment in 1926, and came into post ring prominence long before he assumed his coaching duties in 1935.

In addition to his army ring experience, the veteran coach fought nine years professionally before he assumed his coaching ward the development of a strong pugilistic aggregation to repre-sent Benning in boxing circles.

The "golden years" of the post's ring activities are hailed by Wil-son as those from 1935 to 1939 when the local cohes fought their way to championships in prac-tically every tournament they en-tered. Climaxing these seasons' victories were the smashing triumphs scored by Coach Wil-son's boxers in the Southeastern Amateur Athletic Union meets of 1936, 1937, and 1938 in Atlanta.

Although his best squads were produced during the early stages of his coaching career, Wilson doesn't regard the fact that this is his 13th year on the job as a token of ill luck. He has expres-ed profound satisfaction with the appearance of this year's pug-ilistic tryouts, and believes that he has some individual glovers with even more talent than was shown during the period 1935-1939.

The counsellor predicted that his chief difficulty with his 1948 team will be finding fighters with weights corresponding to those required to fill each of the eight berths on a full team.

Emphasizing his need for ex-perienced glovers, Wilson pointed out that Flyweight Enrique Mar-tinez is the only member of last year's six-man team, with which Fort Benning won the Georgia Golden Gloves championship, to return to the 1948 lineup. In his first tryout bout this season, Mar-tinez rang up a second-round knockout over Joseph Antonio.

To assist Coach Wilson in training this season's battlers is Danny Allen, a professional who was one of Benning's Southeast-ern AAU champs in 1937 and 1938.

COLORFUL RING HISTORY HELPS AIRBORNE TUTOR

By WILLIAM D. AUSTIN

Sgt. Vincent F. Giarantano of the Airborne battalion's welfare and recreation office, who acts alternately as trainer, coach and second, is the man responsible for turning out the smoothly run, evenly matched boxing cards that have been attracting fans to the Airborne battalion gymnasium each Thursday night.

Giarrantano, who hails from New York's east side, first learned to fight as a kid in the streets. Later, he starred in the welter-weight division of the Golden Gloves where he won eight straight bouts before losing in the finals. As a professional, he was always a popular drawing card because of his cool, scientific de-fense and clever, aggressive, mill-ing style. In 1940 he achieved the goal of every aspiring young fight-er—a match in Madison Square garden.

Most of the credit for his box-ing ability, Giarrantano gives to the training he acquired as a school kid in "hell's kitchen."

"There," he explained, "it was either fight or get knocked around. Kids learned to stick up for their rights."

Believing the incidents of his life should be put into words, Giarrantano has decided to write a book using himself, under an-other name, as the principle char-acter.

In August, 1942, his promising ring career was interrupted when he joined the Army. Since then, he has put his technical knowl-edge of boxing to good use, turn-ing out some outstanding service teams. His Keesler field team was undefeated in 1947 Army compe-tition.

DOUGH CAGERS BEAT MANCHESTER TEAM

A sparkling performance turned in by Guard Harold Haberman helped Fort Benning's Doughboy cage quintet edge out the Calloway Millers of Manchester, Georgia, 47-45, on their home court February 4.

Coach Lewis Gribbard deviated from his usual policy of starting Forwards Bob Kinard and Harold Corizzi, Guards Harold Haberman and Harold Lutz, and Center Doug Scovil to place five second-string hoopsters in the starting lineups. However, the basketball mentor relieved Forwards Al Ratner and Bob Henderson, Guards Eckler Pandezic and Slater Nash, and Center Frank Tatum after the Millers had gained themselves a 10-7 lead at the quarter.

In the last half, the hustling Manchester squad gradually cut the Doughboy advantage until the Benning lads had only a two-point margin at the closing whistle.

Not only did Haberman stand out in defense for the Benningites but took scoring laurels for the visitors by chalking up 14 tallies, all on field goals. High scorer for the Millers was Forward Benny, who dropped in seven attempts from the floor, and hit four charity heaves for an 18-point total.

Another powerhouse in the Doughboy lineup was Henderson, who, during the one period of activity he saw, notched five counters on two field goals and a free toss.

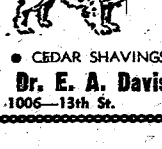
Gridder Bob Ward Reported Enrolled At Maryland Univ.

The Bayonet learned today that Bob Ward, sensational guard for the 1947 edition of the Fort Benning Doughboy football eleven, has enrolled at the University of Mary-land.

Chosen as Player-of-the-Year here during the past grid campaign, Ward was one of the most sought after fine-men in the South. He had re-ceived numerous offers from schools throughout this area, and at last report was head-ed for Alabama. But a mes-sage from Bill Meek, former Doughboy coach and now assistant at Maryland, reports that the Benning grid great is now definitely at Mary-land.



Meek, who visited the post early in January, was in-strumental in nabbing Ward for future performances with the Old Liners of the South-ern conference.

Cole Cops Top Berth On Golf Links' Ladder

Lt. Col. William R. Cole climbed to the top rung of the "ladder" tournament at the Fort Benning Officers' club golf course last Saturday when he toured the links in 74 strokes to nose out Lt. Col. Matt C. C. Bristol and Major William Wykoff.

Carding a 75 on the 18-hole layout, Colonel Bristol retained his second-place berth, and Major Wykoff, who held the top spot prior to Sunday, dropped into third spot when he needed 77 blows to complete the course.

At present, it was revealed, about 43 local golfers are participating in the "ladder" tourney. However, Colonel Bristol, who is chairman of the club's tournament division, expressed hopes that more efavorable weather conditions soon will prevail to stimulate interest and increase the field of contestants.

The tournament, explained the chairman, started last October, and is to continue indefinitely. Original places on the ladder were assigned on the basis of players' old handicaps, but have been changed frequently through a system of challenging. Tourney rules provide that any golfer may challenge either of the two linksmen next above him on the ladder, and, by winning the match, step into the position formerly held by the loser.

Colonel Bristol stated that positions on the ladder will be revised in the near future in accordance with the scores chalked up in the 36-hole qualifying round for the championship division of the forthcoming annual post golf tournament.

Race For Post Volley Ball Title

Player-coach Milton T. Denny's team of volleyball magicians of the Second battalion, 25th Infantry regiment, have played top rate ball since the opening of the post tournament on January 13.

Having won three out of five games, the Second battalion ball boppers resting in third place in a league of an even dozen competitors.

Before losing to the first place ISD team last Tuesday night, the Second battalion netmen were deadlocked for second place with the Student Training regiment team.

Despite the losses suffered by the team, it still is very much in the running, and promises to make a strong bid for championship honors before the tourney's end on February 25.

Composed of such talented players as Milton T. Denny, Samuel T. Smith, Columbus Bryant, James Randolph, Walter Clayton, Ellonso Gant, Claude Wright, Earl Johnston, Jesse Arrington, and Eugene Thomas, the team matches height with ability, and looms as a definite threat for the championship.

Doughs Beaten In Extra Time

Although they were overwhelmingly favored to win, it took the Atlanta Sports Arena Rebels two overtime periods to eke out a 58-56 triumph over the Fort Benning Doughboy basketeers on Atlanta soil last Sunday afternoon.

Stubborn Dough defenses, which have improved by leaps and bounds during the last few encounters, kept the professional Rebels from getting more than a handful of set-ups in the entire game.

Although the powerful Atlantans heaped up an 11-3 advantage during the first seven minutes of the opening stanza, the Fort Benning lads bounced back to take a 25-24 lead at the intermission.

Shortly after the visitors had overcome the home five's early edge, the fracas developed into a nip and tuck affair with the lead changing hands 16 times.

Center Doug Scovil was the Doughboy hero of the game when he dropped in two charity tosses during the final seconds of play to knot the score at 54-54 and send the contest into extra periods.

During the first overtime, top-scoring Kermittez of the Rebel quintet made good a try from the floor only to have Guard Harold Haberman shoot a Doughboy goal to knot the count again at 56-56. The Atlantans' winning tallies came with four seconds to play in the second extra stanza when Dismond flipped in an unorthodox field goal to boost the sports arena team's score to 58.

Outsized in every respect, the Fort Benning cagers put up one of the most brilliant defensive performances in this season's history with Harold Lutz, guard, employing ingenious tactics to keep the lanky opposition players from getting in close to the Doughs' bucket.

One of the spectacular plays of the game came when pint-sized Al Ratner, Benning forward, stole the ball from the Rebel player measuring almost a foot taller than himself. Forward Bob Kinard of the invaders, although he also was grossly outmeasured, acted brilliantly on defense.

In addition to his game-salvaging efforts, Scovil was the top scorer for the Doughs, piling up a total of 16 tallies. Close on his heels was Forward Harold Corizzi, who contributed 15 counters to the Benning total as well as being outstanding in playing opposition rebounds.

Doughboy Coach Lewis Grizzard said that sports arena spectators dubbed the contest as son of the est and most closely fought they had witnessed on that court.

Artillery Bowlers Score Series Win Over Infantrymen

The 319th Field Artillery battalion officers took three out of a possible four points from the General section of the Infantry School in the post officers' bowling league on February 2. The pin score was 2,272 for the winners and 2,255 for the infantry keglers.

Artillery scoring was led by Lt. Dayton L. Warren, who had a match average of 266. Lt. Col. Charles H. Chase paced the losers by averaging 165 per line.

The lone point taken by the infantry group came when they outdid the 319th officers in the third game of the series.

Airborne Boxers Give Fourth Show

By VINCENT F. GEARRATANO

The walls of the Airborne gym again echoed the cheers of an excited crowd of boxing fans Thursday night, February 5, as the Airborne battalion presented its fourth weekly eight-bout card.

The opener saw Johnnie Harris, Headquarters and Service company, gain enough of an edge over Willis Powell, Company A, to win a split decision after three tough rounds of continuous slugging betwewen the two 152-pound pugilists.

The second bout came close to copping top honors for the night when Manuel Dominguez, 133 pounds of Company G, entering the ring with an injured right hand (the result of a KO he scored over his opponent in a thrilling bout at the Main post gymnasium on January 30), won by unanimous decision over 135 pound Gil Nealy, Headquarters and Service company. Nealy, a hard counter puncher, was staggered by Dominguez' straight lefts.

Clarence Williams, 135-pound Company C battler, won a decision over Calvin Kee, 132-pounds, of Company G in-a smooth bout in which the advantage went to Williams because of his height. Kee made a desperate effort,-but could not get past his opponent's left.

Bout four, another lightweight contest, ended when Alvin Cooke of Company C scored a TKO over Wes Harris, Headquarters and Service company, after onem inute of the first round had expired. Harris fell with an injured nose after taking a strong, roundhouse left from Cooke.

The second thriller of the evening was the fifth bout, in which Al Newberry, welterweight of Company K, 504th Parachute Infantry, outpointed Glenn Sample, 140-pounder of Headquarters and Service company, in three fast rounds to win by unanimous decision.

Bout six sent the fans to their feet when middleweight Larry Skennandore, Company K, 504th Parachute Infantry, and Henry Everhart, Company C, staggered each other time and again with hard left jabs, and rolling right hooks. Although the three action packed rounds showed possibilities of being a knockout victory, a very close split decision went to Skennandore.

The light-heavyweight fight brought back another favorite, Pal Schmeling, of Company K, 504th Parachute Infantry, to face strong spirited Len Fletcher, Company G, in a hard-hitting, rugged bout high-lighted by a knockdown for each man in the first round. Schmeling's intensive training gave him the advantage plus a close decision.

The main event was a heavyweight battle between Bob Billingsley, Headquarters and Service company, and Jim Jackson, Company G. The bout ended with Billingsley winning by unanimous decision, after throwing in strong rights to the mid-section of Jackson throughout the contest.

Champ Girl Team Will Play At Gym

In the near future, the Atlanta Sports Arena Blues, girl basketball champions of the world, will play a match in the Main gymnasium with another girls' team, still to be designated, the Fort Benning athletic office announced today. The date for the engagement has not been decided definitely.

Last Sunday afternoon, the Atlanta champs drubbed a Des Moines, Iowa, aggregation 33-12 in Atlanta.

Bullet Scoring Tops Opposing Basket Teams

Despite the fact that the Bullets are winning only at an even clip, they can boast that they are far ahead of opposing teams in total points scored.

Matching a record of eight wins against eight losses the sharp-shooting Bullet cagers have piled up a total of 636 points as compared to 535 for the combined opposition, a difference of 101 points.

Before launching their current three-game winning streak, the wild-scoring Bullets trailed in games won five to eight, but held the upper and in scoring by 37 points.

Since the opening of the season, the infantry courtmen have been paced by such shooting aces as Gerard Garcia, Gordon Burke, Freddie Hamer, Thomas Taylor, and Jimmie Smith.

In facing some of the top-notch teams in this section, the Bullets have been close on the heels of every victorious foe at the sounding of the last buzzer, statistics show.

The Bullets started their scoring rampage on the night of December 19, by trouncing the Columbus Privateers, 51-12. A further check shows that the Bullets did not fair so well at the beginning of 1948, when they absorbed beatings on January 5 and 7 from Clark and Morris Brown colleges by scores of 42-36 and 58-42, respectively. However, they came bouncing back on the night of January 9 to puncture the Orioles from Columbus, 65-32. On January 13 and 14, they lost two more by bowing to Fort Valley, 47-34, and Florida normal, 27-22. They turned the tables on Clark college on January 16 by beating them in an overtime match, 45-42, but lost two more to the fast-breaking Atlanta Browns on January 17 and 18 by the close counts of 36-35 and 36-31.

Starting January 22, the Bullets entered a four-game series on a win-one, lose-one basis. On that date, they turned back the highly touted Alabama A. and M. college five, 44-37, lost to Benedict college, 25-23, got even with Florida normal the following night, 38-24, lost a heart-breaker to South Carolina state college on January 26, 39-34 and came to pste the Columbus Oriloes January 29 by a 41-20 score.

Hitting their winning stride, the Bullets bimped into the Bob Savoy five on February 4 and sent them sprawling, 50-21. Trailing in games won 8-7, and determined to continue their high-csroing, up-and-coming Bullets moved in on the Tigers of Benedict college at Columbia, South Carolina, and almost drove them out of their own back yard by blasting them 50-35.

WELTERWEIGHT HOPE—Norman Clark, speedy 142-pound Doughboy scrapper undoubtedly will be Fort Benning's boxing team representative in the welterweight division this season. The Sand Hill champion of 1947 has fought 24 battles during his three years at Benning, and has yet to taste defeat.

Three Transferred

T-4 Benjamin F. McIntosh, Battery B, 319th Field Artillery battalion; Pfc. Wilkie R. Daniels, Battery A; and Pfc. James Mathis, Service battery, have been transferred to Headquarters battery for duty with the personnel section, officials said today.

Benning Links Tourney Scheduled February 21

Qualifying rounds to decide pairings in the annual Fort Benning golf tournament will be played at the post course on March 1, Lt. Col. Matt C. C. Bristol, head of the tournament division of the post golf committee, announced today.

All members of the Fort Benning Officers' club are eligible for participation in the tournament, Colonel Bristol pointed out.

The tournament chairman said that all aspirants for the championship division will be requied to give him their names prior to February 20 in order that pairings for the qualification rounds may be arranged.

Unlimited Flights

Linksmen desiring to compete in the championship bracket of the tourney will be required to submit two 18-hole cards, the first round to be played on either February 21 or February 25, and the final round to be played on either February 28 or February 29. However, candidates for flights other than the championship division are required to play only one 18-hole qualification round, which may be played any time during the nine-day qualifying period, Colonel Bristol explained.

The tournament docket will be comprised of an unlimited number of flights, depending upon the number of entries, Colonel Bristal said. The championship division will consist of the 36 participants who fire the lowest scores. These will be paired to play 18-hole maatches, the winners to be placed in the championship flight, and the remainder to be entered as first flight contestants. Other flights will be formed to include 16 players each, using scores recorded during the qualifying round as a basis.

Competing in the tourney, which is expected to attract a field of between 100 and 125 post linksmen, will be Lt. Col. William R. Cole, last year's post champion.

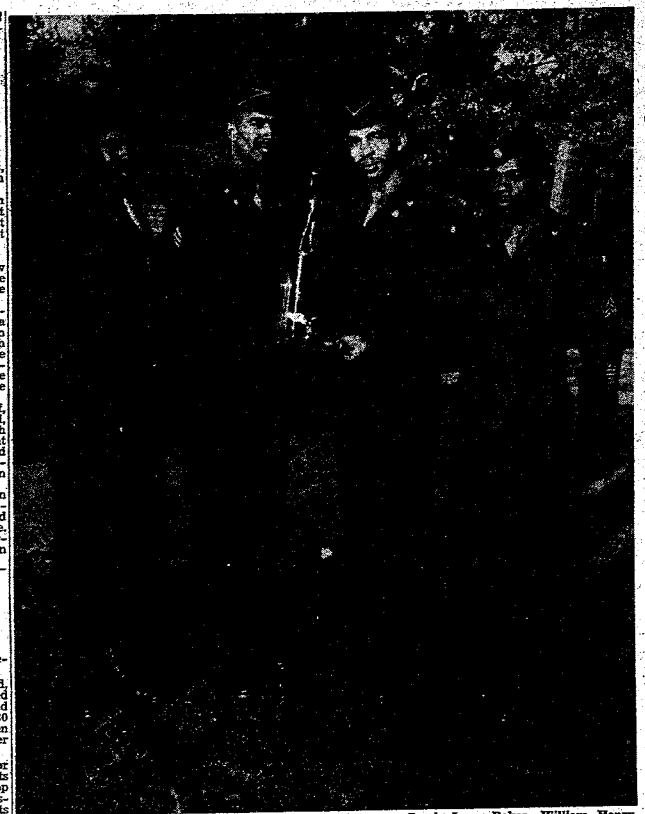
Flyer Squad Has Unfortunate Trip

Triumphant in only one of their three week end cage encounters, the Lawson field Flyers returned to Fort Benning from Atlanta last Monday morning.

The Flyers opened their road trip by taking a 56-48 licking from the Atlanta Naval Air station five last Friday night, and ended it by dropping a contest to the Fort McPherson five by a 53-48 count on Sunday afternoon. Their lone victory came on Saturday night when they nosed out the Atlanta Ordnance quintet 64-62.

Playing their initial classic on the air gobs' home court, the Lawson cagemen surged into an early lead by dropping in seven tallies before the Atlanta squad could find the bucket, and still held a margin of 11-10 at the end of the first quarter. However, the navy lads reversed the trend during the second period to gain themselves an intermission advantage of 25-18.



Although the scoring honors changed hands during the third and final quarters, the larger Atlantans closed out the game with an eight-point advantage.

Returning to the Naval Air station floor for their clash with the Ordnance lads Saturday night, the Flyers again took the initiative by heaping up 19 points during the first period while limiting their opposition to four counters. A second-quarter splurge by the Atlanta five whittled the local squad's lead to 24-16 at the half-way mark, but the Flyers clung stubbornly to their narrow margin until the final whistle found them two tallies in the lead.

The Lawson field representatives moved to the sports arena in Atlanta Sunday afternoon where they failed to lead off with the scoring, and couldn't manage to overcome the nine-point scoring interval which favored the Fort McPherson cagers at the half.

Early during the second half, the Flyers hit the comeback trail, and tied the score at 41-41. With six minutes to go and the count again knotted at 43-43, the Third Army basketeers staged a scoring spree that netted them a win by five points.

Flyer standouts were Button and King, who took scoring honors, and Livingston, who played an outstanding defensive game. Clark turned in a sparkling performance for the Fort McPherson clash.

BULLETS CHALK UP TWO, EXTEND WINNING STREAK

BY BOB PHILLIPS

Making a clean sweep of a two-game series played last week, the high-scoring Bullets found their wins and losses columns running neck and neck for the first time this season. The Bullets have now won eight and lost eight in 16 hardwood outings.

In going about their basketball chores, the Bullets left no doubt in the mind of any spectator as to their superiority over their outclassed rivals. A brilliant brand of ball, complete with sizzling passing, fastbreaking and accurate shooting, the cagey GI hoopsters chalked up huge scoring margins in both games.

Wednesday night, the Bob Savoy semi-professional five from Birmingham, Ala., invaded the territory of the Bullets, and before the game's end, came near being annihilated. The Sandhill quintet blasted them with a terrific 50 to 1 drubbing.

Taking the initiative in scoring, Thomas Taylor and Gerard Garcia gave the Bullets a commanding 14-7 lead from the start. Never seriously threatened, the winning five scored freely to remain out front all the way.

Holding a 20-11 half-time lead, the free-scoring Bullets poured baskets in during the second stanza to rack up a total of 30 points, while the badly beaten Alabamans could do no better than 10.

Garcia set the scoring pace for the Bullets, pocketing 12 points to stand aloft as the game's top point-getter. Rangy Roland Russell, a newcomer to the Bullets aggregation, turned in a great game his first night. Along with veterans Thomas Taylor and Freddie Hamer the hustling Russell shared second place scoring by getting eight points.

The scoring punch for the visitors was supplied by the Reynolds brothers, Alter and Jimmie, each connecting for six.

Friday, the Bullets moved across the state line into Columbia, South Carolina, anxious to repay the Tigers from Benedict college for a defeat handed them several weeks ago. The revengeful Bullets extended their winning streak to three games by thumping the trying Tigers, 50-35.

With Garcia and Burke again leading the scoring with 14 points each, the rampaging GI quintet snatched a comfortable lead at the start, and held it all the way. Taylor, Russell, Wheeler, and Humphrey came in with frequent goals to give the Bullets a 27-19 half-time margin.

Led by Bob Webb and Leroy Jackson, the fighting Tigers made several bids to move in on the Bullets, but could go no closer than nine points of the victors' lead. The collegians were outscored during the second period 23 to 16.

Bob Webb, Leroy Jackson, and G. Williams, with seven points each, were the offensive stars for the Benedict five, while Berry, Glenn and Eugene Williams looked great on defense.

In Wednesday night's preliminary game, Company B continued its winning ways by breaking a 20-20 tie in the opening minutes of the second stanza and breezing to a smashing 42-26 win over Company A. Dick Hill, with 14 points, Bill Henry, who scored 11, and John Suggs' 10 counters led the Big B five to victory. Jimmie Gurr flipped in 10 tallies to stand out for the losers.

Combat Photographer Chooses Lawson Post

Shooting your way through life can be interesting as well as profitable, according to the story which Sgt. Benjamin Meszaros, Lawson field photographer, relates.

A New Yorker by birth and a Californian by choice, Sgt. Meszaros' picture-shooting expeditions, for the past 11 years, have taken him from mountainous Mexico to remote sections of frozen Alaska.

His profession, which began as a hobby when he was a kid, also took him overseas during the war, as a member of an Air Force combat camera unit. He was stationed in Greenland, Iceland, and England, and later as a photographer for Ninth Troop Carrier Command he covered the North African, Sicilian, and Italian campaigns. While on leave in Africa his attraction for unusual photography took him to the Medina, a section of Casa Blanca comparable to the Casbah in Algiers. He explored the catacombs with his camera, and also photographed a rajah's fabulous marble palace and its pretentious gardens. His ETO tour ended shortly after he covered the Anzio beachhead landing.

Commended by Williams

While stationed overseas, he received a letter of commendation for his outstanding accomplishments as a combat cameraman from Maj. Gen. Paul L. Williams, who commanded troop carrier activities in the ETO and later headed Ninth Air Force.

Meszaros began his service career with the ground forces in February, 1941, and transferred to the Air Force in March, 1942. He doffed his khaki uniform in September, 1945, and later opened a photography studio in Key West, Fla., in partnership with another Air Force veteran. But the quiet routine of studio work failed to hold the attention of the adventure craving photographer for long.

Late last fall, while recalling some of the exciting assignments he covered as a roving photographer, he decided to close the studio deal with his friend and headed for Greenville, S. C., to join the Ninth Air Force and once again serve under General Williams. He was unable to find a suitable opening at Greenville Air Base, however, so he motored to Lawson field, and signed up for a five-year hitch with an initial assignment as photographer and laboratory technician with the base photo lab.

Trek to Alaska

Sergeant Meszaros relates that one of the most exciting ventures with his camera, before he started shooting pictures for Uncle Sam, was a trek to Alaska at the age of 17, when he stowed away on a lumber boat. To insure himself employment he made the trip during salmon fishing season, and spent several months there working on fishing craft and shooting a series of pictures on the rugged life of Alaskans. He also spent considerable time photographing the majestic Alaskan mountains and lakes.

Although he prefers to shoot personalities, innovations, and interesting events, photography in any form is his favorite subject. Having chosen the Air Forces as his career, the veteran photographer plans to attend the Air Forces photography school and add aerial photography to his picture-taking qualifications.

MAJ. C. H. THOMPSON
... gets new duties

Maj. Thompson Replaces Mason

Major Clarence H. Thompson has assumed his new duties as post transportation officer, replacing Major William O. Mason, who is scheduled to leave the Army, officials announced this week.

Arriving here in December from Japan where he was supply chief at general headquarters, Major Thompson became assistant transportation officer until he took over his new duties last week.

Entering the service in 1933 at Aurora, Ind., Major Thompson was initially assigned to the 10th Infantry for four years, and later went on duty with the 145th Infantry of the National Guard. He came to Fort Benning in 1938 to attend the non-commissioned officers' instructor's refresher course and was discharged in 1940.

The day following his discharge he was placed back on active duty as an officer, and served as post personnel officer and adjutant at Fort Thomas, Ky., until May, 1943, when he was transfered to Washington to serve in the planning division of the Army Service Forces.

In August, 1944, Major Thompson made his second trip to Benning to attend the Infantry School's advanced course. Following completion of the course, he went to Italy, where he became executive officer of the 13th battalion of the 24th Replacement depot. He later was named assistant adjutant general of the depot.

From Italy Major Thompson was transferred directly to the Philippines. On his return to the states he was attached to the plans and policy group of the Army Service Forces at Washington. In September, 1946, he was assigned overseas duty again, this time in Japan, where he was assigned to general headquarters of the Far Eastern Command. He arrived at Fort Benning during the early part of January.

In taking over his new duties as assistant adjutant to Maj. Elmer G. Owens, Capt. George F. Monsarrat replaces Capt. Philip S. Grant, who has been transferred to the Seventh Infantry Regimental combat team.

Enlisting in the service in Memphis, Tennessee, in 1941, Captain Monsarrat attended Officer Candidate school in 1942 at Fort Sill, Okla. He served with the 98th Pack Field Artillery until it was replaced by the Sixth Ranger battalion, activated at Port Moresby, New Guinea, during the early part of 1943. Post To Observe Holiday Feb. 23

Monday, Feb. 23, has been declared a legal holiday for all Fort Benning's civilian and military personel in observance of the birthday of George Washington, Infantry Center officials announced today.

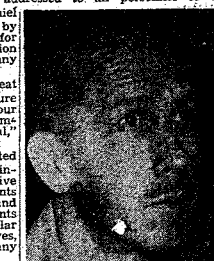
Red Cross Opens Fund Drive Here

Moran Named TIC Chairman

Lt. Col. Wesley U. Moran has been appointed chairman of the 1948 Red Cross fund-raising drive at the Infantry Center which opens here March 1, it was announced today by Maj. Gen. John W. O'Daniel, Fort Benning commander.

No quota has been set, but a suggested amount for contributors, covering officers, enlisted men, and civilian employes, has been published based on proceeds reported during the 1947 campaign.

In a letter on Feb. 17, addressed to all personnel of the Infantry Center, General O'Daniel pointed out that expenditures by the Red Cross during 1947 for disaster service and rehabilitation alone exceeded the record of any one of the previous ten years.



"I heartily endorse this great humanitarian cause, and am sure that you will desire to do your full share in helping this campaign to attain and pass its goal," he said.

According to the anticipated contribution list these figures include for general officers, five dollars; colonels and lieutenants colonels, three dollars; majors and captains, two dollars; lieutenants and warrant officers, one dollar and fifty cents; civilian employes, one dollar; and enlisted men, any amount desired.

Colonel Moran said that Red Cross membership cards will be issued to all those who contribute one dollar or more.

Unit commanders have been instructed to cooperate to the fullest extent in the fund-raising appeal and to ensure that all military and civilian personnel here are given

An emergency water purification unit from the Company C of the 307th Airborne Engineer battalion is now in Columbia, Tenn., where it was rushed last Saturday to meet a crisis caused by ravaging flood waters.

The swirling Duck river cut the city of Columbia in half, with nearly 200 families evacuated in the worst flood in the city's history. When the water plant failed, the Department of the Army dispatched the Fort Benning unit to aid in the purification of the water.

Led by Lt. William R. Chaires, 12 men of the 307th purification unit left Fort Benning by truck Saturday afternoon, arrived in the flood stricken town at 1 p. m. Sunday afternoon, and by 3 p. m. the unit was pumping 2,300 gallons per minute. The crew will remain in Columbia and central Tennessee for at least 10 days, and will return when the city's water purification is well under control.

Soldier-Brothers Meet Here For First Time

They were brothers, but they had never ever seen each other. After all these years Pvt. Henry McGill and Corporal Woodrow McGill finally came face to face with each other for the first time in their lives at Fort Benning.

It's one of those odd stories in life where a fellow left the homestead, and in the meantime has a brother but never sees him until finally late in life they run across each other accidently.

It was quite a happy occasion for both men when they met here last week in the 66th Truck company.

Born near Kingree, South Carolina, Henry McGill, taking Horace Greeley's advice, left home for the west. In 1918 he enlisted in the army in Phoenix, Arizona. About five years later he learned that a brother, Woodrow, had been born.

The other brother, Henry, had been assigned to the Navy and later to the Tenth Cavalry at Fort Sheridan, Illinois, until 1944 when he was sent overseas with the 65th Ordnance company.

Woodrow, the younger brother, in the meantime had come into service in 1943 at Camp Blanding, Fla., and served overseas with the 1326th Combat Engineer battalion of the Third Army in Europe.

The brother is Private Henry McGriff, a truck driver in the 666th Transportation company, and Corporal Woodrow McGill is a dining room orderly with Service company, First battalion of The Student Training regiment.

The brothers had even been assigned units at Fort Benning on June 9 and 26, 1947, respectively, with neither knowing of the other's whereabouts until they met last week.

At 10:30 a. m. he inspected a battery of the 319th Field Artillery battalion in training. Later toured Sand Hill where he viewed the Second battalion of the 25th Infantry in squad and attack weapons. Just before noon Gen. Devine completed his Sand Hill tour with an inspection of the 999th Field Artillery battalion.

During the afternoon he attended a lecture by Brig. Gen. William W. Brougher who spoke to all officers of the Infantry Center at the Main Theater at 1:15. He concluded his tour of Fort Beenning with a visit to Army Ground Force board No. 3.

The general left the post by plane Thursday morning for Shreveport, La., where he was scheduled to deliver an address at a Reserve Officers Association gathering later in the day.

Claims First Place On Flying-Time List

Claiming first place on Lawson field's flying-time list is 1st Lt. Ernest C. Ford, assistant operations officer for the past 19 months.

The 27-year-old veteran of the Southwest Pacific has flown 3,500 hours since he won his wings as a staff sergeant pilot at Luke field, Ariz., in 1942, and his record includes 1,111 combat flying hours which he logged on 364 front line missions as a troop carrier command pilot.

Lieutenant Ford, who weighs in at 143 pounds and is a little over five-and-a-half-feet tall, pilots gliders as well as powered aircraft. He has been in the service since 1940, and entered pilot's training in October, 1941. After receiving his wings he underwent transition training in Douglas aircraft in Milwaukee, Wis. He flew overseas from Hamilton field, Calif., in October, 1942, with the Sixth Transport squadron, which was the first air force outfit to fly to the Pacific theater in a group. His squadron commander was Lt. Col. John H. Lackey, Jr., who landed the first American transport on Japan's Atsugi airfield following the surrender of the Japanese.

LT. ERNEST C. FORD

Overseas Lieutenant Ford's outfit became a part of the 54th Troop Carrier wing with Port Moresby as its home base. Its mission was the delivering of troops and equipment to the front lines and evacuation of wounded from combat areas.

After his return home in January, 1944, Lieutenant Ford spent two years at Sedalia Air base, Mo., as flight leader and flying safety officer, before being ordered to South America for his second tour of duty overseas. In July, 1946, shortly after completing his South American assignment at Bogota, Columbia, he reported to Lawson field, and since that time, in addition to his duties as assitant operations officer, he has participated in paratroop and glider training programs. Rated an instrument check pilot and an instructor pilot, Lieutenant Ford also serves as an instructor pilot in the Lawson field inactive training program for pilots of the 325th Troop Carrier squadron (reserve) of Columbus.

In addition to his significant flying record, Lieutenant Ford holds more DFC awards than any other pilot on the base, a decoration which he has received six times. His other decorations include the Presidential Unit citation with two clusters, Air medal with one cluster, Asiatic-Pacific ribbon with two battle stars, and the American Defense ribbon.

Originally of Manzanalo, Colo., Lieutenant Ford received a regular force appointment last summer and plans to remain in the service.

Examining Board Accepts 3 Airmen For Cadet Training

Three future air force pilots successfully completed interviews and examinations before the final Aviation Cadet Examining board at Lawson Air Force base last week, and have been scheduled to enter the 52-week pilot's training course at Randolph field, Tex., March 1.

The applicants were Sgt. Robert Reid Fields, Houston, Tex., Sgt. Charles O. Doyle, Jr., Memphis, Tenn., and Cpl. Lewis Roger Striegle, Muskegon, Mich. Another applicant accepted by the board last week was Lt. Alton W. Herring.

According to board members, a new air force policy permits former applicants, who failed to pass the requirements of the final examining board, to reapply for admission to the cadet training program.

The pilots' training program, which will be tripled during 1948, is open to officers and enlisted men of all branches of the armed forces as well as qualified civilians.

For complete information interested personnel are requested to contact the Aviation Cadet Examining board at extension 3312 or 2088.

The absent-minded office manager pulled the typewriter down on his lap and began to unfasten the ribbon.

Belgian Underground Vet Taking Airborne Training

Veteran of underground combat against the German invaders of his native Belgium, Pfc. Robert A. Mombaerts will complete his airborne training Saturday with Company G of the Airborne battalion.

The 19-year-old Belgian served with the underground from the period before D-Day until the end of the war in Europe, disrupting German communication and troop transport lines.

He was a high school student in the town of Vaux Sous Chevremont when the grey-clad hordes swarmed across his homeland. His father, as police commissioner of the city administration, was forced to continue at his post under German supervision.

As a true patriot, his father served best his native land. As director of civilian police activity, he was able to collect information of great value to the local resistance movement. Discovered, he was killed by the Gestapo as he attempted to flee.

Private Mombaerts became the sole support of his widowed mother, and he soon entered the underground organization to aid in the liberation of his country.

Wounded in the shoulder shortly before the Battle of the Bulge, he was treated at an Army hospital and convalesced home, where he completed his interrupted education.

After the war ended in Europe, his mother married an American soldier. Adopted by his new father, he entered the United States 16 months ago, established his citizenship, and entered the United States Army.

"I am proud to be called an American citizen and to serve my new country as a soldier," he declared. "I like America because the people are able to think for themselves, and can do as they please. They are very friendly, and they have been very kind to me."

Private Mombaerts had planned to become a lawyer like his father, but with the added difficulty of a new language to learn, he is undecided. With seven months of service in the army, he plans to reenlist.

"I like the democratic attitude of the American Army. Officers and leaders are picked here for their ability and not for their family. Any man who is qualified can reach the top without regard to his previous station in life," he added.

TIS Course Opens With 30 Enrolled

The group is composed of representatives from the regular army, National Guard, and reserves, and also includes members of the Philippine army, Puerto Rico, and Hawaii.

The Red Cross

Everyone at some time during his life has or will come into contact with one of the world's most extensive relief organizations, the Red Cross, an organization which knows no creed, no race, no denomination. And at this time each year, we are called upon to contribute our nickels, dimes, and quarters to the American unit of this international "corporation" to aid in the fulfillment of its gigantic program.

In a sense, as has been pointed out to us on numerous occassions by Murray E. Hill, field director at Fort Benning, the American Red Cross belongs to each of us. Our contributions make it possible for the Red Cross to continue to operate, thus we are stockholders. Our interest and our efforts toward making it a success pay us all dividends, just as though we were stockholders in a commercial enterprise.

The greatness of the American Red Cross was proved ten-thousand fold during World War II when overseas chapters organized recreation centers with dormitory facilities, cafeterias, lounges, washrooms, and varied social programs for the servicemen in addition to coming to his aid in time of need. Most overseas servicemen took these Red Cross "halls" for granted. But how many ever stopped to think how those off-duty hours would have been spent without such an organization?

Through the personnel who operated these overseas clubs the weary GI was able to keep in closer contact with the happenings at home. There were American newspapers, magazines, and other such items which enabled the soldier in a foreign land to read about his hometown and what his neighbors were doing. In addition, if there was ever a time when a message to the serviceman or from the serviceman needed to be expedited, the Red Cross was always standing by to deliver it.

There were, of course, other things done by the Red Cross, including the lending of money. During the rapid turnover of troops during the war, many soldiers failed to get paid on the last day of the month. And when money was needed for some legitimate cause by any serviceman, regardless of rank and without collateral, he always got that money.

Now during peace time the military branches of the Red Cross serve an equally good purpose. They arrange for emergency leaves, lend money when necessary to the welfare of an individual soldier or the soldier's family, provide entertainment for hospitalized personnel, arrange for visits by families of the hospitalized, instruct personnel in first aid, water safety, and other beneficial projects, provide layettes to expectant mothers, provide sewing rooms and information, and do so many other jobs that it would be well-nigh impossible to list them all.

We have dealt here only with the Red Cross as it applies to service personnel, but there, of course, are other types of work done by this great organization which are as varied as the work done by the military chapters.

Everyone should feel it his duty to give generously to the Red Cross during its present drive to insure that this humane organization will continue to flourish. It should be a source of pride to each Fort Benning citizen to know that he is helping to maintain the chapter here. Remember it is your chapter, and upon your interest depends its success.

Your Red Cross

By MURRAY E. HILL

Just 12 days from today you will be asked to contribute to your Red Cross. As President Truman so ably phrased it, "Many times a year the people turn to the Red Cross, once a year the Red Cross turns to the people."

It is well for you to remember that you are not asked to contribute to the support of the Red Cross at Fort Benning for the amount contributed here annually is hardly enough to pay the combined annual Western Union and telephone bill. If it was not for the generosity of others throughout the nation it would not be possible to have a Red Cross at Fort Benning.

It would be well for you to re-examine the true meaning and spirit of your Red Cross.

Your Red Cross exists only to serve. That has been its purpose since inception. It is no static monument to tradition, however noble, rather it is a vital moving force for human betterment, and, as such, it strives constantly to improve upon tradition by searching out new ways of improving the welfare of the people it serves.

The Red Cross reaches into every community in our land. The Red Cross is doing something about the health, safety, and disaster preparedness in your community. Your Red Cross remains the constant friend and counselor of the man in uniform and the veteran.

Your Red Cross brings cheer and comfort to those less fortunate who may be bedridden, blinded, or permanently maimed. Your Red Cross rushes to the aid of the injured and the homes—your own family's and your neighbor's—in times of catastrophe.

In an age bordering on despair, your Red Cross flag shines as a ray of hope on the long and treacherous road to enduring peace. You, as a member of the Red Cross, have proven one of the mightiest instruments of our time for the alleviation of human suffering.

So, again it will soon be Red Cross time. It's your Red Cross, it's your policy. It's your gesture of goodwill toward your neighbor. Let your donation be ample and an indication of your confidence in your organization of which you are a vital stockholder.

THE LESSON OF LENT

By Chaplain Wallace M. Hale

The forty days prior to Easter are called "Lent," and during this time Christians are encouraged to meditate on the religious lessons involved—and the lessons are most interesting indeed.

The Lesson of Lent is one that should be of interest to every person, regardless of religion, because it is a lesson of religious imperialism that over rides the God-given rights of an individual. The fact that Jesus was killed because of what He taught is a story that has been repeated a million times. To think that one man would kill another because they disagree in their ideas of God seems impossible, and yet the greatest wars of the world have been fought on the basis of religious beliefs.

The death of Gandhi a few days ago is a modern application of the idea of a man who taught a doctrine of peace and yet died by the hands of force. It seems that the world will continue for a long time to use weapons to attempt the conquering of man's spirit, but the true Lesson of Lent is that no spirit can be conquered by force. It can only be conquered by love that understands and appreciates the problems of the individual.

We must stand for the right. Sometimes it is necessary that we fight for the right with the most powerful weapons at our disposal; but we must learn that really to conquer we must develop peace in the hearts of our enemies and ourselves that obliterates any desire on either side to destroy the other, but encourages the desire to help preserve and help the other.

APPEAR HERE FEBRUARY 25—The world's supreme artists in their fields, Paul Draper and Larry Adler, form a concert team now firmly established in the affections of the American public. Although these two young Americans have developed their talents to a point accepted by leading music critics as legitimate art, there is also unanimous agreement that they have succeeded in making concert going a lot of fun.

DRAPER-ADLER COMBINE HEADS CONCERT SHOW

Paul Draper, the great American dancer, and Larry Adler, top harmonica virtuoso, who make up one of the concert stage's most popular attractions, will appear on the Fort Benning Woman's club-sponsored concert series at the Main theater, Wednesday, February 25. Draper and Adler are in the midst of their seventh transcontinental American tour.

The collaboration of Draper and Adler dates from their Chicago recital of December 1940 prior to which each member of the team had made a success on his own. Larry Adler had his prelude to fame at the age of 14, when he won a contest prize for the playing of a Beethoven Minuet on his harmonica. With this start, he began trooping the country, and an English producer, C. C. Cochran, heard him play and engaged him promptly for appearances in London. There he became the vogue, gave command performances for George VI, King Haakon of Norway, and King Gustav of Sweden. He toured Australia, New Zealand, and South Africa. His record of "Smoke Gets In Your Eyes" sold more than 200,000 copies and his records of classical numbers by De Falla, Kreisler, and Ravel are today prize recordings.

In this country, Adler has appeared as soloist with the leading symphony orchestras of the country, the New York Philharmonic, the orchestras of Philadelphia, Cleveland, Detroit, Pittsburgh, Cincinnati, Rochester, Kansas City, St. Louis, and San Francisco. He made a European concert tour in the spring of 1947.

Draper comes from a family of varied talents. His father was the lieder singer Paul Draper, his mother Muriel Draper, writer and novelist, and his aunt is beloved by thousands for her one-woman theater, Ruth Draper. How Paul Draper came to tap the classics is a mystery, but when he did, he also tapped a reservoir of hidden genius. Draper has at the tip of his toes all the precise beauty of the classical ballet, and he has always been his own choreographer, composing dances to such classics as Bach's Fantasie in C minor and Beethoven's Sonata. He has appeared as a soloist with the Boston Symphony orchestra and his newest motion picture is the "The Time Of Your Life".

That the joint appearance of these two artists in a recital is of the highest artistic order is borne out by their reviews. Wrote Herman Devries in the Chicago Herald-American, "This sort of entertainment is an ornament to the finest in music".

Service Club Dance Classes Are Increased

Dance classes at Service Club No. 1 have been increased to two a week, Mrs. Paul Frank, instructor, announced this week.

Personnel have displayed such great interest in the instruction in rhumba, samba, tango, jitterbug, fox trot and waltz on Tuesday evenings that an advanced class is now to be held for two hours at 8:30 p. m. every Thursday night, she said.

TANDEM BICYCLE EXPERTS—Mrs. William North and Lt. Col. Ernest Peters take advantage of one of the amusements offered at the Fort Benning Woman's club Country Fair last Friday evening at the Officers club. Other attractions of the evening were square dancing, auctions, and fortune-telling, which followed the box supper.

Costumed Crowd Attends Woman's Club Country Fair

BY PEGGY WARD

Everyone who attended the Fort Benning Woman's Club Country Fair Box Social on Friday evening will readily admit that it was a huge success—an evening with a complete program of entertainment, decor, and amusements which would be hard to beat.

Mrs. Julian Dayton did a superb job with her able and attractive staff in taking over Colonel Tibbett's little establishment and converting it into a real Country Fair complete with a Mike Benning General Store, two fortune-telling booths, with colorful parachute tops, the usually calm and dignified dining room informally done up in gay style with costumed guests adding the right touch of gaiety, and an effective use of greens giving an atmosphere of the open country, only without the precipitation!

Staffing the booths for the evening were Martha Brown, Charlotte Tarbox, Barbara Davies, and on the fish pond was pretty Betty Skeggs, assisted by Mrs. William Beachler and Mrs. Warren Chapman. Cigarette girls, complete without the "new Look" were Peggy Groneweg, Leslie Tibbetts, Ruth Ross, Gloria Halprin, and Helen Moore. Rosebud reclined in the fireplace and was the only one who slept through the evening. Auctioneers for the evening's festivities were kept on their toes by General O'Daniel's fine work, and Peter's Tandem bike was a huge success with couples riding around the main lounge, which is certainly something you didn't expect to see in the club.

No adjectives would adequately describe the floor show, which was handled expertly by Colonel Strock as a wonderful emcee, and it was a real treat to have Gene Strock, who also worked as chairman of the floor show committee, give one of her hilarious songs—complete with Mrs. Don Landon's lovely ballet, premier ballerina with the F. B. W. C. troop, of local fame anyway. The guests for the evening were signally honored by having an appearance of an eminent violinist, Lee Majeske, Esq., who offered a selection for his discriminating audience. Ann Elzier, with her really lovely voice, completely charmed her audience, as did Janet Miller, and the male quartette, Colonel McCormick, Connor, Blakefield, and Gibb. Lt. Wells Lang had a rather bad time with his dinner partner of the evening, but finally escaped with his bachelorhood intact. But anyone can tell you that it was nip and tuck for awhile.

During the evening, the floor show entertained the guests, and then the guests entertained everyone ith square-dancing and musical chair numbers. Mrs. W. H. O'Mohundro, the general chairman for the Country Fair, looked charming in a peasant outfit and has set a precedent for party-giving which will be long remembered and, we hope, repeated.

Has Leap Year Party At Club

One of the most original section parties to be given recently was that of AGF board No. 3 at the Officers' club. Hosts for the occasion were Col. and Mrs. Earle Johnson and Maj. and Mrs. Carl A. Sachs.

Using leap year as an inspiration, the Johnsons and the Sachs followed through on the theme by having the arrangements of partners taken care of in a novel way. A cluster of balloons was suspended from the center light fixture on the back porch, and when the balloons were released, the ladies each got one in which was the name of her dinner partner for the evening. A shrimp bowl was served with cocktails, and dancing in the main lounge followed dinner. Fifty-six guests attended the festive event.

Miss Mary Fleming Weds Capt. Schupp At Impressive Ceremony On Saturday

The Infantry Center chapel was the scene late Saturday afternoon of the wedding of Miss Mary Rebecca Fleming, of Geneva, Ala., and Capt. Donald L. Schupp, of Fort Benning and Bartow, Fla. The impressive ceremony was performed by Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Wallace M. Hale in the presence of friends and out-of-town guests.

The chapel was beautifully decorated for the occasion with white gladioli and stock, and cathedral candelabra held white tapers. The wedding music was played by Miss Margaret Denny.

Acting as best man for Captain Schupp was Capt. John M. Hart, and the ushers were Maj. Robert Stump, Capt. Charles H. J. Carter, Capt. Ralph A. Sciolla, Lt. Thomas F. McGlynn, Lt. Francis M. Crist, and CWO James A. Rouse. They were all in uniform with white gloves and sabers.

Miss Lois Fleming acted as maid of honor for her sister, and the bridesmaids were Miss Emily Stone, of Washington, D. C., and Miss Flora Wallis, of Chicago, Ill. Their gowns were deep rose, moire taffeta, fashioned with fitted bodice, cowl neckline, tiny cap sleeve, and long matching moire taffeta mitts. The bride's attendants carried bouquets of rose carnations, and the maid of honor wore a tiara of split rose carnations.

The radiant bride entered on the arm of her brother, Capt. Herbert J. Fleming, by whom she was given in marriage. Her blonde beauty was enhanced by her gown of ice blue satin, designed with a fitted bodice, sweetheart neckline, and long fitted sleeves. The full skirt was held out with a hoop and ended in a train. The veil of illusion was shoulder length and matched the gown. She carried a bouquet arranged with two white orchids surrounded with fressia.

As the bridal couple left the chapel, the ushers formed an arch of sabers. Waiting for the couple was a field artillery caison drawn by jeeps which was decorated with crepe paper streamers. The bridal couple was escorted around the post on the caison before going to the Officers' club where the reception was held.

The bridal table, arranged on the east porch of the club, held a large frosted wedding cake, which the couple cut with a saber. Approximately 100 people attended the reception.

Among the many out-of-town guests who attended the wedding and reception were Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Fleming, parents of the bride, Miss Lois Fleming, sister of the bride, Capt. Herbert L. J. Fleming, the bride's brother, from Racine, Wis., Mr. William D. Fleming, Geneva, Ala., Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Fleming and Miss Jean Fleming, Montgomery, Ala., Mr. and Mrs. Ernest E. Schupp, parents of the groom, Mrs. Anna S. Connor, an aunt of the groom, and Mr. and Mrs. J. Martin Hass, all from Bartow, Fla.

Following the reception, the couple left for a honeymoon trip to Florida. Mrs. Schupp wore a pink wool crepe suit with a pink flower hat and brown accessories for her traveling ensemble.

Captain Schupp graduated from Suhmerlin institute, Bartow, Fla., and the Florida Business college, Lakeland. He received his commission from Officer Candidate School at Fort Sill, Okla., in 1942. His war record includes eight campaigns in French Morroco, Tunisa, Sicily, Naples-Foggia, Rome-Arno, Southern France, Rhineland, and Central Europe. He wears the Bronze Star, ETO ribbon with eight battle stars and Bronze arrowhead, American, Defense and Theater ribbons, and Victory and occupation medals. His present assignment is adjutant of the 319th Field Artillery battalion.

Captain and Mrs. Schupp will be at home in Benning Park homes when they return from their wedding trip.

Miller, son of Col. and Mrs. Maurice L. Miller, of Governor's island, New York. Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Wallace H. Hale officiated, and the wedding music was played by Miss Margaret Denny.

Maid of honor to the bride was Miss Nancy Waggoner, of Tulsa, Okla., who wore a gown of rose crepe with a shirred bodice and full skirt. The bridesmaid, Miss Jane Poling, of Dallas, Tex., wore a gown of gray crepe fashioned exactly like that worn by the maid of honor. Both attendants carried heart-shaped bouquets of iris and pink carnations.

The bride entered the chapel on the arm of Col. Fay Ross, by whom she was given in marriage. Her brunette beauty was enhanced by her gown of ice blue satin which was fashioned with a fitted bodice buttoned down the front from a high neckline, long fitted sleeves, and a full ballerina length skirt. Her headdress was a matching halo of satin with a fingertip-length veil of illusion. Matching satin sandals completed the ensemble. The bride's bouquet was a white satin muff covered with orchids and sprays of hyacinths and split carnations.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the small lounge and Patio room of the Officers' club. The bride's table held a three-tiered wedding cake, which the bridal couple cut with the traditional saber. Miss Alice Butler, of Tulsa, Okla., assisted, and was in charge of registering guests in the bride's book.

Mrs. Miller graduated from Shepherd high school in Conroe, Tex., and attended Oklahoma Baptist university. She has been a hostess for American Airlines, based in Tulsa, Okla., for the past two years.

Colonel Miller graduated from East Orange high school and from the United States Military Academy with the class of 1941. Dough Rated As Underdogs In Tournament

At the annual Third Army cage tourney in Fort Jackson, S. C., this week, the Fort Benning Doughboys began making preparations for a trip to Atlanta Sunday to defend their inheritance from last year's squad—the Southeastern Amateur Athletic Union title.

This season's Doughboy quintet is a complete revision of last year's title winners. The last remnant of the 1947 version to bid the Benningites adieu was ex-Coach Ced Tallis, who made his departure slightly over two weeks ago to accept a position as business manager of the Thomasville, Ga., baseball club of the Georgia-Florida Class D league.

In assuming the coaching duties, Lewis Grizzard took on an entirely revamped squad with a not too impressive record for the season, largely due to inexperience and lack of height.

According to Coach Grizzard, the Doughboys' prospects for a successful defense of their title are "not so good." He pointed out, however, that the 1948 cagemen are handicapped largely by their lack of height rather than by lack of effort.

The mentor agreed with ex-Coach Tallis in saying that the efforts put forth by this year's Doughs exceed that expended by last year's quintet.

Averaging only about five feet, eleven inches, the title defenders undoubtedly will find it difficult to stand out in rebound plays against the height-advantaged aggregations expected as entries in the meet. The Doughs probably will rely principally upon their recently-improved defense to gain advancement in the tournament.

An unusual feature of last year's Doughboy tournament play was the fact that the local lads downed two teams which had eliminated them from previous tourneys to annex the Southeastern AAU crown. The Fort Bragg hoopsters had taken Third Army honors from the favored Doughs only to yield 57 to 43 to the Benning attack in the Atlanta classic. After having lost the Georgia state cage title to the Sports Arena Rebels, the local basketmen nosed out the Atlantans 43 to 42 on their home court in the finals of the AAU tourney.

A 47 to 38 win over the Bessemer, Ala., Royals, a 74 to 48 swamping of a Lyerly, Ga., quintet, and a 57 to 43 victory over the Atlanta Aces assisted the Talismen in their climb up the AAU ladder last season.

By winning the southeastern trophy, the Benningmen achieved the opportunity to represent the section in the National AAU meet in Denver. However, the Doughs returned to Fort Benning after they were eliminated through a second-match defeat.

TWO TOURNEYS PLANNED BY BENNING SKEET RANGE

Two registered shoots have been scheduled by the Fort Benning Officers' club skeet range, it was announced yesterday. Both contests are open to all post officers who are members of the National Skeet Shooting association.

The first meet, slated for Sunday, April 4, will be an invitational initiation shoot, and the 1948 club championship tournament will take place on Sunday, May 2.

An emblem furnished by the national association will be the target for skeet shooters in the club championship tourney, and chevrons will be presented by the club to high gunners in Classes A, B, and C. Winners in each of the three classes in the initiation meet also will receive club chevrons.

In addition to the scheduled tournaments, the weekly "Skeeto" meets still will be held at the range each Sunday, it was pointed out.

Pairings Made For Golf Meet

A total of 75 Fort Benning golfers have registered for the annual officers' club tournament, and pairings for Saturday's first qualifying round have been made, Lt. Col. Matt C. C. Bristol, chairman of the tournament division of the golf committee, announced today.

Should weather conditions permit, the two qualification rounds for the championship division will be played on Saturday and Monday. However, should unsuitable weather prevail, the opening round will be postponed until Monday and the final 18 holes played on Wednesday.

Golfers who have signed up, but have not been advised as to their pairings and starting times may get information by calling Frank Goss, golf club professional.

Colonel Bristol urged all participants to tee off at the designated starting time, and explained that pairings and tee-off times would be the same for both rounds of qualification.

Columbus Quint Edges Out Nehi

After gaining a 22 to 19 halftime advantage, the Nehi cage quintet bowed out to a stronger Columbus Cannufacturing company aggregation 28 to 26 in a preliminary conest at the Main Post gymnasium Friday night.

The four-period clash found the Columbus manufacturing leading 14 to 10 at the end of the first quarter, and on the high end of a 24 to 23 count at the three-quarter mark.

SC Collegians Swamp Bullets In Cage Clash

Undergoing an "off night," the Benning Bullet cagers suffered their most humiliating defeat of the season in the Sand Hill field house Thursday night when they were trounced by the South Carolina State college quintet 72 to 35.

The loss was the second in as many engagements for the hapless Benningites, and it was the first week this year that the Bulletmen hadn't netted themselves a triumph.

From the beginning, the free-scoring collegians, behind the perfect shooting of Dick Arrington and Milton Hale, grabbed the lead, which mounted swiftly and steadily as the game progressed. The pair scored 22 and 21 points respectively. At the half the score stood at 25-11, favoring the victors.

Gordon Burke matched a two-pointer of Hale's in the opening seconds of the first stanza to throw the game into a two-all deadlock. The Bullets fought hard, but were never again a serious threat. Holding the upper hand all the way the college five scored at will and won easily.

The rampaging college lads got the jump again on the Bullets as the second half opened, running up a total of 47 points to 24 for their victims.

Scoring their second win over the Bullets in as many meetings this season, the collegians played a fast game, complete with swift passing and good shooting.

Top point getters for the Bullets were Burke and Roland Russell, each connecting five times for a total of 20 points. Wavelan Simms, who scored six points, and Thomas Taylor starred defensively for the soldier courtmen.

With baseball season about to make its 1948 debut, the question in most fans' minds is what sort of peace negotiations, if any, can be made between the National and American leagues (representatives of organized baseball) and the Mexican league.

Although a framework of an arrangement has been set up between the office of Commissioner A. B. (Happy) Chandler and High Commissioner Alejandro Aguilar Reyes of the Liga Mexicana, officials of the National league indicated in a recent New York conference that they definitely are opposed to any type of plan that would offer amnesty to organized baseball's so-called contract jumpers.

Provisions of the reciprocal relations plan are reported to include:

Recognition of the Mexican league on a dual major-minor status virtually similar to that which the Pacific Coast league recently sought unsuccessfully.

Payment of $25,000 for any player bought by a major league club from a Mexican league team, with all such deals subject to confirmation by Commissioner Chandler.

Right of the Mexican league to acquire players from the minors below class AAA on a scale ranging from $7,000 for a class AA player to $1,950 for a class D player.

Amnesty for all players who jumped to the Mexican league, provided their clubs are willing to take them back.

National league officials, however made it fairly clear that they are not in sympathy with the clause that proposes amnesty for the 18 players who disregarded contracts to go off a share of the South of the Border wealth. Although no vote was taken at the recent parley of loop officials, League President Ford Frick indicated that his circuit would take a definite stand against reducing the five-year suspensions given the jumpers.

If the National league executives persist in their viewpoint, it will be a serious, and perhaps permanent barrier to the establishment of peaceful relations with the tamale loop.

The 18 players affected by the National circuit's stand are: Luis Olmo, Roland Gladu and Mickey Owen, Dodgers; Dan Gardella, George Hausman, Sal Maglio, Napoleon Reyes, Adrain Zabala, Roy Zimmerman, Ace Adams and Harry Feldman, Giants; Rene Monteagudo, Phillies; Max Lanier, Fred Martin and Lou Klein, Cardinals; Alex Carrasquel, White Sox; Murray Franklin, Tigers, and Roberto Estalella, Athletics.

Tom de la Cruz, Reds, and Roberto Ortiz, Senators, although occupying a place on the "general ineligible list" are not listed with the contract jumpers. They may, however, figure in the picture produced by the National league stand.

Still scanning the national baseball picture, we find death has claimed two all-time "greats" in hurling history, Herb Pennock and Mordecai "Three-Fingered" Brown, during the past few days.

Pennock long stood out as a possibility for baseball's Hall of Fame, but his availability for election has been brought out only through his demise. Although charges have been made by Ernest J. Lanigan, director of the museum and veteran baseball writer and statistician, that Hall of Fame picks have been "cheapened," it is the opinion of this writer that both Pennock and Brown have earned, and are entitled to, a place among the game's immortals.

Hogging the Fort Benning sports spotlight are the basketball tournaments in which the Doughboy quintet is taking, and will take, part.

The showing made by the Doughs in their first Third Army tourney encounter should be evidence that this year's output of cagers won't be able to go very far in the annual meets. At least, it is doubtful that their post-season record will be as gratifying as that of last year's hoopsters.

The competition they are facing in the Army tournament is proving tough enough, but it will be much stronger when the locals go to Atlanta to defend their Southeastern Amateur Athletic Union title on Sunday.

It isn't lack of ambition or effort that makes this year's Dough aggregation a letdown from the 1947 squad, but largely a lack of height. It stands to reason that a team with a height average of only five feet, eleven inches, won't stand out on rebound plays against players averaging well over six feet. Despite the fact that the Doughs have played brilliant offensive, as well as defensive, ball most of the season, they have had to take lickings from several quintets whose only ability has been their height.

Squad Begins 1948 Workout

At least six men who placed on Fort Benning's post baseball nine last season will be back for service with the Infantry School detachment when practice sessions for this year's team get under way Tuesday, the unit's athletic and recreation office announced.

The ISD baseballers, last season's runners-up in the post circuit, have six returning players plus some other men who gained post prominence through last year's contests.

As the season opens, however, the ISD is hopeful of having Mound Ace Isaac Silcox back for the initial tilt. Hurler Silcox, although he underwent an operation for appendicitis recently is now progressing nicely after a five-day stay in the Station hospital.

FORT BENNING GOLF CLUB—The Fort Benning Officers' club golf course will be the scene of the annual post tournament to get under way with qualification rounds scheduled for Feb. 21 through Feb. 29. Match play in all flights will start March 1 and continue during the entire month.

QUESTIONS

(AFPS)—1. You are in an argument about the Olympics, and it is your contention that there have been only 11 Olympic games to date. Yet you are shown a foto of this year's Olympic medal, which is "marked "14th Olympiad." Should this convince you that you are wrong?

2. One of the greatest track stars in American history was only a high school student when he won the 800 meters run in the 1912 Olympics. Name this cinder path immortal?

3. Which nation scored the most points in the Olympics held in Berlin in 1936?

4. Has any Olympic ace ever pole vaulted over 15 feet; high jumped over seven feet; broad jumped more than 27 feet?

ANSWERS

1. It should not. Since the first games in Athens in 1896, there have been only 11 meetings; the games in London this summer will be the 12th. An Olympiad, on the other hand, is the four year period between games. The London games in August will commence the 14th four-year period, or Olympiad, since 1896.

2. Ted Meredith, then a student at Mercersburg Academy in Pennsylvania. His time for the event has been only bested twice since 1912.

3. Germany totaled the most points. According to Olympic rules, however, no nation is officially declared the victor. Only individual stars are honored. The point system for nations is unofficial. United States teams have won all the other Games except the ones in 1936.

4. The answer is NO to all questions. Earle Meadows holds the pole vault record with a mark of 14 feet 3 1-4 inches. Cornie Johnson has the high jump mark of six feet 7 15-16 inches. The broad jumping record is held by Jesse Owens at 26 feet 5 5-16 inches. All three are Americans.

Doughs Victorious Over College Five

Launching a second-half scoring spree, Fort Benning's Doughboy cage squad wrapped up a victory to take with it to the annual Third Army tournament when the local lads tacked a 66 to 48 loss on the Troy State Teachers' college at the Main Post gymnasium last Friday night.

By taking last night's game, the Doughs made it two for two over the Alabamans, having downed the Troy lads 50 to 36 earlier in the season.

Although the 'Benningites' defense wasn't as spectacular as in their game with the Atlanta Sports Arena Rebels the preceding Sunday afternoon, it still proved a tough puzzle for the Trojans to solve. Defensive tactics of Harold Lutz, Harold Haberman, and Bob Kinard of the Doughs kept the visitors from being able to drop in many from close range, but the accurate eyes of Tommy Garrett and Bill Williams found the cage for several buckets from the outer expanses of the Troy court.

Pierce 'Bamans' Defense

The Doughs' success came through being able to pierce the Alabama defenses to rack up numerous tallies from directly beneath the invaders' goal.

After taking the lead during the initial second of the contest, the home quintet managed to stay in front during the entire classic. However, the collegians' offensive brought them to within one point of knotting the count twice during the opening stanza.

Benning's first tallies came a split second after the game-launching tip-off, when the Doughs' offensive artist, Harold Corizzi, dropped one from close in to put his aggregation in the lead, 2 to 0. A steady output of goals by Forward Corizzi and Guard Harold Haberman helped the Doughboys maintain a slight advantage throughout the first period, and, at the intermission whistle, the host team was on the top side of a 25 to 18 score.

Repeat Performance

A repetition of Corizzi's performance of the early stage of the tussle gave the Doughs their start for the second half. Forward Doug Scovil, who had been relatively inactive during the initial half, came to life during the last period to assist Corizzi and Haberman in increasing the Benningmen's margin over the invading five.

High scorer for the local squad was Corizzi, who found the bucket for nine court shots and sank one charity heave to notch 19 counters. Individual honors for the Teachers were taken by Williams, whose six field goals and four free ones contributed 16 tallies to the visitors' total.

Liberal use of their reserves was made by the Trojans as a total of 10 cagemen saw service in the game. Not a single Troy player held the floor for the entire contest. Coach Lewis Grizzard, however, was more sparing in utilizing his substitutions. The starting Dough basketmen stayed on the court during the whole first stanza, but Forward Al Ratner and Guard Bob Henderson came in as replacements in the closing period.

The visiting lads outdid the Benning squad in fouls by being charged with 13 infractions while the local lads committed 12 misdemeanors.

KOs Climax Boxing Meet

By VINCENT F. GIARRATANO

Two knockouts were scored in the fifth weekly boxing show of the Airborne battalion, Student Training regiment, in the Airborne gymnasium last Thursday night.

Gil Nealy scored the evening's first KO in the final round of his battle with Blair Conard, and the sixth bout produced the final flooring punch when Bob Fletcher sent John Townsend to the mat 40 seconds after the start of the second stanza.

Besides the two actual knockouts, two other bouts caused the fans to hold their breath in anticipation of two more possibilities.

The remaining bouts proved to be contests of boxing stamina and punch delivery.

After two unsuccessful attempts Calvin Kee, 130 pounds of Company A came through to win by a split decision over a shifty, fast moving newcomer, Johnnie Mitchell, also 130 pounds, representing Company F. The second bout gave the 135-pound Nealy his KO victory. He took punishment in a hard first round but came back in the second to floor Blair Conrad, 130 pounds of Company K, 504th Parachute Infantry. Conrad successfully confused his opponent until Nealy saw his opening, delivered a Sunday punch, and stopped Conrad in one minute and 18 seconds of the third.

The next bout brought the crowd to their feet when Johnnie Harris, 142 pounds of Company F, and Julius Martin, 145 pounds of Company E rushed each other through the three rounds with a steady rain of leather, both refusing to give ground. A split decision went to Harris.

Bout four was a hard fought, even contest that boasted an almost profesional appearance. Lucious Hollis, 148 pounds of Company G, successfully delivered body blows and won by unanimous decision over Jimmy Cartmill, 150 pounds, who showed good boxing form, fast and hard retaliation, and a lot of spirit.

Two newcomers, showing plenty of promise and possessing good possibilities, kept up the tempo of the evening in a hard-fought match which resulted in Don Ward, 150 pounds of Company F, winning by unanimous decision over Archie Smith, 150 pounds of Company F.

Continuing an unchangeable pace of high-fevered excitement, Bob Fletcher, 163 pounds representing Company G, stopped John Townsend, 160 pounds Company K, by knocking the 504th Parachute Infantry lad out in 40 seconds of the middle round. Townsend suffered a nine-count fall in the first, but showed plenty of fighting spirit by continuing the round and answering the bell for the second.

The main event upheld the spirit of the show when Jim Webb, 165 pounds of Company E, copped a hard though unanimous decision over Len Fletcher, 170-pounder of Company G, after three hard, well-fought rounds.

The sixth card of the Airborne Winter Boxing program will start at 7 p.m. tonight at the Airborne gymnasium.

Featured in the main event will be hard-hitting Lucious Hollis of Company G, the Airborne battalion, and clever Al Newberry of the 504th Parachute Infantry.

Commended As Escort

T-4 Ralph Keesling, Headquarters detachment, Section I, 3440th ASU, who is presently on escort duty with the Atlanta, Ga., Distribution depot, has received a letter of commendation from the parents of a deceased serviceman, and an official of a veterans' organization, it was learned here this week.

Benning Bulletmen Beaten By Tigers

By BOB PHILLIPS

The Bullet basketeers met with stubborn resistance in their battle for basketball supremacy in the Sand Hill field house last Tuesday night, and were forced to yield a 50 to 41 verdict to the Tigers of Tuskegee, Ala.

A full house of fans saw the fighting Tigers dash from behind five times and break themselves loose from seven deadlocks to claw out a hard-fought but clean-cut decision over the Bullet five.

The closely fought hardwood contest saw the score tied seven times during the first stanza, including a 27-27 half-time locking.

Each time the Bullets surged ahead, the pint-sized Tigers came clawing back to tie up the contest or take the lead.

Going into the last minutes of the first half, Gordon Burke, Bullet sharp-shooter, who kept the twines staeming all evening with his long set shots, teamed up with Taylor and Hamer to push the locals ahead, 19-15. Determined not to be left behind, the collegians fought back furiously to even up the count at 19-19. Bill Humphrey's bucket gave the Bullets a short-lived two-point lead, but Tony Carter's two-pointer sent the game into a 21-21 tie for the contest's sixth deadlock.

Burke, playing like the veteran he is, repeatedly came through with some spectacular shooting from far out. The stocky-built forward flipped in eight field goals and made good four out of four charity chances for a total of 20 points. The hefty score racked up by Burke credits him with scoring more points in a single game than any individual member of the Bullet team this season.

Early in the final stanza, the Tuskegee quintet got behind the accurate shooting Gene Thomas and towering Bill Roseborough to surge ahead for keeps.

Benning Drops Tourney Opener To Jacksonites

Fort Benning's Doughboys went one down in the initial round of the annual Third Army cage tourney Monday night when they succumbed to the host Fort Jackson, S. C., five 57 to 34.

By losing the opener, however, the Benningites did not void their chances to take possession of the Third Army trophy. Two defeats are necessary before any team may be ousted from the meet.

Sharing top spot with the Fort Jackson cagers are the Fort Bragg, N. C., basketmen, who copped their first match from a weak Fort McPherson, Ga., aggregation by a 75 to 21 verdict. Camp Gordon's cagers drew a bye in the opening session, but were paired with the Jacksonites for the second day of play.

The Doughboys drew Fort McPherson for second-round competition, and the favored Fort Bragg basketballers remained idle Tuesday.

In the Monday night game, the Fort Jackson squad got off to an early start and held the advantage throughout the contest. By the time the half-time whistle had sounded, the victors had heaped up a 29 to 16 margin.

Partially accounting for the Doughs' defeat was the inability of scoring aces, Harold Corizzi, Doug Scovil, and Harold Haberman to pierce the Jackson defenses and score from the court. Not being able to work the tactics that have made him top Dough scorer for the season, Corizzi managed for only 10 tallies against the South Carolina lads, and yielded Benning scoring honors for the melee to Haberman, who found the bucket for 11 markers.

Jackson's scoring was paced by Forward Hamblin, who accounted for 21 Jackson scores by dropping in eight from the hardwood and making five successful attempts from the charity line.

Vocational School Originator Leaves

Originator of the Infantry Center's vocational school, which is believed to be the largest and most extensive in the army, Capt. Willard E. Chambers, troop information and education officer of the Infantry Center, has bid farewell to Fort Benning following separation from the service last Saturday.

Also head of the USAFI registration center and testing center here, Captain Chambers originated the idea of the vocational school while heading the information and education office.

Started in 1946 with one class of elementary Spanish and 16 students, the school has progressed to one of the largest in the army. Today the institution has an enrollment of approximately 2,000 officers, enlisted men, and their wives who have a choice of 26 courses, ranging from elementary subjects to courses of advanced technical skill. A total of 19 qualified instructors handle 39 classes.

Upon his arrival at Fort Benning in December, 1945, Captain Chambers became head of the information and education office at the Airborne School, and, following the consolidation of the Airborne School with the Infantry School, he assumed duties as chief of the Infantry Center's troop information and education office.

Although he has left the Army, Captain Chambers will get a chance to view the future progress of his undertakings here as he plans to stay in Columbus, where he will become president of Dolly Ann Bakeries, Inc.

A former sales manager in Columbus, Ohio, Captain Chambers enlisted in the army in April, 1942, and eight months later attended Officer Candidate School here. Following graduation, he was assigned to the 507th Parachute Infantry regiment with which he served in Europe until the end of hostilities. He was commanding officer of the Second battalion.

He took part in the campaigns at Normandy, Ardennes, Rhineland, Central Europe, and the Battle of the Bulge. He wears the Silver Star, Bronze Star with cluster, Army Commendation ribbon, ETO ribbon with four battle stars, and the Distinguished Unit badge.

Regiment Adds New Company

A new unit, Company G, has been added to the 325th Infantry regiment's Second battalion, according to reports released this week.

Commander of the new company is Lt. George A. Galion, veteran of more than six years army service. He served with the 11th Field Artillery battalion attached to the 24th division from 1941 until 1944 when he came to Fort Benning to attend the Parachute School.

Overseas he served with the 13th, 17th and 101st Airborne divisions in the campaigns of Central Europe and the Rhineland. He graduated from the Officer Candidate School here in 1946.

First Sgt. Robert L. Rogers, who entered the army in 1938, has been named first sergeant of the new company. He saw combat during Central Europe and Rhineland campaigns.

T/Sgt. George W. Fussell, veteran of the 78th division's 290th regiment, has taken over the duties as operations sergeant. He also saw action in Northern France and Central Europe. Sergeant Fussell recently returned from occupation duty in Korea.

Horton Gets Artillery Post

First Lt. Fred C. Horton has been named ammunition train commander of the 319th Field Artillery battalion, succeeding First Lt. William H. McBroom, who has been appointed commanding officer of the battalion.

Lieutenant Horton, formerly Battery B reconnaissance officer, has been a member of the 319th since February, 1947. During the war he served with Headquarters battery of the Fourth Division Artillery, Fourth Infantry division, in Europe for 18 months. He then went to Japan where he became an instructor in the Eighth Army's Automotive School for six months.

The lieutenant returned to the U. S. in January, 1947, following a total of two years' overseas service.

Among his decorations are the Bronze Star medal, bronze arrowhead for the Normandy invasion, ETO ribbon with five battle stars, Pacific Theater, American Defense, and American Theater ribbons, and the Victory and Occupation ribbons.

Forty Try Out For ASU Nine

Baseball season got off to an early start at the 3440th Army Service unit in the form of a training get-together Tuesday afternoon. Approximately 40 men from the unit indicated their aspirations toward landing a spot on the team by attending the session.

Although the 3440th ASU didn't produce a baseball nine last year, the unit's athletic and recreation office believes that the acquisition of several players prominent in 1947 Fort Benning baseball circles through intra-post transfers will bolster its chances of undergoing a successful season.

161 Students Graduate Wednesday Afternoon

Having completed five weeks of intensive training, 11 officers and 150 enlisted men of class No. 9, Company D, Airborne battalion, received their "wings" in graduation ceremonies Wednesday afternoon.

Originally scheduled for last Saturday, the graduation was moved up to Wednesday because of inclement weather. The students make their final jumps Monday and Tuesday to climax their five-week training period.

TED WEEMS PLAYS FOR DANCING — Music from "Out of the Night to You," emanating from the Pine Lodge NCO club was presented by Ted Weems and his nationally famous orchestra last Sunday evening. Featuring whistler Elmo Tanner and vocalist Shirley Richards, Weems and his versatile band were aired in a half-hour broadcast over station WDAK.

PHILIPPINE GUERILLA VETERAN AT BENNING

Veteran of the Bataan Death March and the guerilla warfare in the Philippine jungles, S-Sgt. Gonzalo Aspe of the Philippine army is now a student in Infantry Radio Repairman's course No. 2 and assigned to the 10th company of the Student Training regiment.

Sergeant Aspe joined the Philippine Constabulary in May, 1941, and at the outbreak of war, he was inducted into the United States Armed Forces in the Far East and assigned to duty on communication lines at Little Bagicio, Bataan.

The peninsula fell as the last center of resistance in the islands shifted to Corregidor and a last ditch stand. Sergeant Aspe became a prisoner of the Japanese in the forced march from Bataan to San Fernando, Pampanga.

At San Fernanda, there was an improvised jail, and when Sergeant Aspe collapsed from ill health, a compassionate Japanese doctor ordered his release on restricted conditions: he was to report to the nearest Japanese army headquarters every week for a physical check-up and to indicate that he had not tried to escape.

After several months he was permitted to return home to mend his shattered health. He soon joined the local resistance movement at Camarines. From the time he joined the guerilla band until the Philippines were liberated, he spent his time in direct combat with the enemy invaders.

There were raids by moonlight on communication lines linking military outposts and swift, noiseless attacks which eliminated unsuspecting sentries. There were the flames of burning buildings and supplies as the raiding party melted back into the jungles. Trains and trucks were derailed, wires cut, traitors punished, through the guerilla resistance movement.

After the Philippine islands had been completely freed of their invaders, Sergeant Aspe joined the military command of the Philippine army for duty as a clerk-typist in the G-3 section. Winning honors in a competitive examination, he was granted an opportunity to attend the radio repairman's course at Fort Benning.

6 Detachment Men Earn Promotions

A total of six enlisted members of the Infantry School detachment were among Fort Benning enlisted men promoted last week.

S-Sgt. James P. Miller, Company A, was promoted to the permanent rank of technical sergeant, while T-5 James E. Schultz Company A, was advanced to technician fourth grade. Pvt. Chas. F. Beegle, also of Company A, was appointed private first class.

Other detachment promotions included Pfcs. George H. Sheriff and Joseph L. Willis to corporal and Pvt. Ross J. McLelland to private first class. All three men are assigned to Company H.

Lt. Hamilton Appointed Reconnaissance Officer

First Lt. Claud S. Hamilton, who returned last November from duty in the Philippines as a member of the 86th division and the 12th Infantry division Philippine Scouts, has been named reconnaissance officer of the 319th Field Artillery battalion's Battery C, it was announced today.

Sgt. Vizzard Assigned To Personnel Section

Sgt. Gail J. Vizzard, who has just returned from Leghorn, Italy has been assigned to the 319th Field Artillery battalion's Headquarters and Headquarters battery for duty with the personnel section.

During the war he served overseas with the 18th Armored division.

Infantry School Soldier Recalls Bikini Bombing

Pfc. Donald S. Goodman, on duty with the Special Subjects committee of the Infantry School's Airborne section, doesn't say much about the patch on his right sleeve, a blue one with red lightning issuing from a white cloud. It was only after he'd been asked several times that he finally admitted it was connected with the Bikini atomic bomb project in the summer of 1946.

Asked for more details, he finally obliged.

"I signed up for a three-year hitch in the Air Corps in 1945 at Keesler field, Mississippi. In 1946, we were sent to Clovis field in New Mexico on a highly secret mission. Nobody knew what the score was or where we'd be sent next."

Learn of Mission

The Florida paratrooper then went to Roswell Field, also in New Mexico, for overseas processing and for the first time, he and the men with him learned their mission—Bikini!

"We were organized into the Air Instrumentation and Test Requirement unit of the 1.53 Provisional group," he continued, "to handle radio-controlled B-17s. These soon became known as drones, and were the ships which flew through the atomic cloud in the tests at Bikini."

After clearing New Mexico, the unit flew to San Francisco and then followed the Pacific island route to Hawaii, Johnston island, Kwajalain and Eniwetok atoll, a barren island group 259 miles from Bikini.

Natives Evacuated

"When we arrived on the island," Private Goodman recalled, "we found that all of the native population had been evacuated, with the exception of about 75 men who had been hired as a work crew to help us. The other 200 natives had been sent to an area where they would be safer from the effects of atomic radiation.

"Our barren little atoll became a temporary base for the drones. From April, when we arrived, until July, we trained eight hours a day with these new aircraft, practicing landings, takeoffs, and air maneuverability."

On July 1, the first in the series of atomic bomb explosions at Bikini atoll took place. The blast, which occurred above the surface of the water inside the atoll, was visible from far over the horizon.

Rode Over Bomb Area

"I was working in operations at the time," he continued. "Because of my duty, I was able to find a ride directly over the bomb area, and was able to see the actual explosion. A colonel from Kwajalein atoll gave me a ride in his ship, and with the aid of black goggles, to protect our eyes from the atomic radiations, we could see as much as anyone else at the time."

Work continued at the coral base for the drones. As the guided planes were brought in and landed, rubberized atmosphere bags, which had been dragged through the atomic cloud, were removed from the aircraft and immediately flown back to the United States for analysis.

"The island was pretty badly battered when we got there," he said. "Taken from the Jans by the 27th division, the beaches were still littered with rubbish and we had to work constantly to maintain the airstrip the Navy had built there.

'Gateway To Hell'

"There was a hole down at one end of the island—a big one, filled with water. There had been a Jap munitions dump there at one time . . . until an American shell hit it. Because we could see no bottom to this pit, we called it the "gateway to hell." We almost managed to convince ourselves that it had no bottom and really led to the infernal regions."

By riding in the pilotless planes, Private First Class Don Goodman and the other men from his organization became the first to ride across the Pacific ocean completely by remote control.

Mailing letters on Eniwetok before leaving, they made sure the mail bags were loaded on the same planes, thereby becoming the first airmail ever to be sent in radio-controlled planes.

The Jacksonville, Florida soldier now awaits his discharge in order to study art under the G. I. Bill in the Art Students' League in New York City. After that he plans a career of crative art work in oil painting.

Research Indicates PX Derived From Romans

You have probably walked into the Post Exchange a thousand times and never once gave a thought as to how it all began. They say it began with the Romans in the years B. C.

This said that in Caesar's time those issued by what we know today as the Quartermaster, were warehoused in the "Via Quintana," the Fifth avenue of ancient Rome. The name "canteen" was derived, and no doubt the legionnaires of the seven-hilled city called it the "VQ," much as today's soldiers call it the "PX."

In the early American Army, troops responded excitedly to the call "Sutler's coming" much as they do today to "Chow," or "Come and get it" Sutlers were traders who would sneak into isolated military reservations loaded with knives, tea, tobacco, and whisky and would leave with most of the soldiers' pay. Since they didn't have as many cigarettes, or the habit, the American soldiers then must have shelled out plenty.

Old-Time Black Market

The Sutlers, blackmarketeers of their day, often cheated and overcharged the soldier proportionate to the distance he was separated from town. In 1866 Congress became disgusted with the tactics of the Sutlers and abolished them.

Trading establishments, commissaries, and other schemes followed but none were satisfactory. Then in July, 1895, Post Exchanges were established by an act of Congress. The mission of the PX 53 years ago is little different from the mission of the army exchanges today.

World War I found the PXs operated as canteens by various civilian welfare organizations, but the idea was not too successful, so the army decided to take over. Plans for an organization, operated by the army, for the army, with profits going toward the welfare of the army, were established.

Prior to World War II, PX profits were divided on a strength basis. It proved unfair because the soldier at a large post received many diversified recreational activities with low costs on PX items, while the soldier on the small, lonely outposts suffered as prices were high, profits nil, and recreation was practically nonexistent.

Profits Shared

Today, through a new system known as "centralization," the Army Exchange Service has changed all that. No matter where a soldier is stationed, his share in exchange profits are equal.

The way a soldier benefits through PX profits works like this. A soldier spends a dollar in his PX. The profit is around six per cent, which means that six cents is paid into a welfare fund. This returns to the soldier at a rate of $1.43 per man each month as amplified recreational programs or facilities.

It's a long call from the Roman who used to buy his "stuff" on the Via Quintana to today's soldier who may buy a wide variety of items. If a Roman could walk into one of the Army's modern PXs today he would probably exclaim: "Rome was never like this."

Safety Contest To Close Soon

Only one more week remains in the Lawson field base safety slogan contest, ground safety officials have announced. Entries for the final contest will be accepted until noon, February 26.

The deadline for the seventh in the series of weekly contests is set for noon Thursday. Contest judges will meet Friday morning to select the winner of this week's five-dollar award.

Designed by Col. Gilbert T. Collar, base commander, in an effort to encourage safety consciousness at Lawson field and launched Jan. 5, the contest has paid out a total of 40 dollars in weekly and monthly prizes.

At the close of last week's close contest approximately 250 entries had been submitted. Five dollars is awarded for the best weekly slogan, while ten dollars goes to the best slogan of the month.

108 Men Rejoin AF During Week

Approximately 108 men enlisted in the air force at Lawson Air base last week, according to Capt. James E. Sever, recruiting officer.

The greater number of these men were processed and sent to the Air Training Command at San Antonio, Tex., for a 13-week basic training course before assignment to technical schools.

Fifty enlisted with previous service and were given direct assignments. Four remained at Lawson, while 37 were sent to Keesler Air Force base, Miss., and nine were sent to Birmingham Air base.

"Say, Tony, those rabbits you sold me all have the hiccoughs."

"Sure, boss, dey are Belchin hares."

Erstwhile Lt. Colonel Now Sergeant Major

Rising from the ranks of buck private to lieutenant colonel, then reenlisting again as master sergeant following his discharge, M-Sgt. Henry D. Settles is back at Fort Benning as sergeant major of the 325th Infantry regiment.

Enlisting in 1931, Sgt. erstwhile lieutenant colonel, Settles ran the gamut of promotions from private to master sergeant, then was commissioned in 1942, finally holding the rank of lieutenant colonel until his discharge in January, 1947.

Upon entering the Army at Fort Benning he was assigned to the 29th Infantry regiment and later transferred to Headquarters company, 501st Parachute battalion, to assume duties as first sergeant of that unit. Then he was transferred to the pre-war organizations of the 502nd, 503rd, and 504th Parachute battalions here as sergeant major.

After receiving a reserve commission through competitive examinations, Sergeant Settles was ordered to active duty as second lieutenant in 1942 and sent to Tampa, Fla., for assignment with the Third Air Force as assistant A-4.

As a captain in 1943 Settles was sent to Battle Creek, Michigan, for completion of pre-overseas training. With the 394th Bomb group, he served as executive officer through the campaigns of Northern France, Normandy, Central Europe, Ardennes, Alsace and the Rhineland.

He was promoted to the rank of major in early 1944, and after his return to the States he joined the 73rd Bomb wing, transferred to the Eighth Air division, and then was assigned to the Eighth Air Force where he became lieutenant colonel, serving as assistant A-4.

Discharged in January, 1947, Settles reenlisted as a master sergeant, and was sent to Fort Benning to become sergeant major of School Troops.

To Command Artillery Unit

First Lt. William H. McBroom has been named commanding officer of the 319th Field Artillery battalion's Service battery, succeeding Capt. Frank J. Arnold, who will leave Fort Benning soon for duty in Guam, officials announced this week.

Lieutenant McBroom, who joined the 319th in July, 1946, served as ammunition train commander prior to his new assignment.

He was assigned to the 701st Tank Destroyer battalion of the First Armored division in Africa and Italy during the war, returning to the states in September, 1945, following 39 months overseas. Before coming to Benning, he was on duty at Fort Bragg, N. C.

Lieutenant McBroom wears the Bronze Star medal, ETO ribbon with five campaign stars, American Defnese and American Theater ribbons, and the Victory and Occupation medals.

Medal Of Honor Winner To Head RCT Company

Capt. Jack L. Treadwell, Congressional Medal of Honor winner and one of the most decorated officers in the army, has been chosen to command the first letter company of the Seventh (Cotton Baler) Regimental combat team now in process of organization here, according to Col. Hamilton Thorn, commanding officer of the new unit.

Captain Treadwell has been named to command Company E, which will function as a receiving unit to indoctrinate and refresh incoming "Cotton Balers" with a three-week course in the latest infantry methods.

Outstanding combat soldiers from camps, posts, and stations both in the United States and overseas are being carefully screened in an effort to build the entire structure of qualified infantry, artillery, tank, and engineer personnel to create the Seventh Regimental combat team.

Part of Third

Formerly a component of the famius Third Infantry division, the Seventh has reserved 80 per cent of its overall strength for former members of that division. The remaining 20 per cent will be composed of personnel from other combat units.

Born in Ashland, Ala., Captain Treadwell was educatin in Oklahoma, where he attended Southwestern university. He enlisted in the army shortly following his graduation from Southwestern.

In recognition of his qualities of leadership under battle conditions, Captain Treadwell was commissioned in Italy on the field of battle. Up to that time he served as a platoon sergeant with the 180th Infantry regiment, and had been awarded several distinguished decorations, for his heroic conduct under fire. Several months after winning his commission as first lieutenant, he was presented with the nation's highest award, the Congressional Medal of Honor, for heroic action in leading the disruption of the Siegfried Line on March 18, 1945, near Nieder-Wurzbach, Germany. The following month, on April 13, he was promoted to captain.

Captured 6 Pillboxes

The award for valor was won by Captain Treadwell when he was a lieutenant commanding Company F of 180th Infantry regiment. He single-handedly captured six enemy pillboxes and 18 prisoners. Murderous enemy automatic and rifle fire with intermittent artillery fire had pinned down his company for hours at the base of a hill defended by concrete fortifications and interlocking trenches. Eight men were dispatched to attack a single point, and all had become casualties on the bare slope when Captain Treadwell, armed with submachine gun and hand grenades, went forward alone to clear the way for his company.

Taking pill box after pill box in daring single-handed assaults, he finally captured the enemy commander of the hill.

In the confusion caused by his whirlwind attacks and the capture of their commander, the Germans quickly fell prey to further rushes until the stronghold was fully captured. Inspired by the performance of their leader, the men of Company F stormed after him and overwhelmed resistance on the entire hill. A wedge was thus driven into the Siegfried line, making it possible for the battalion to take its objective.

Captain Treadwell's decorations and awards for combat also include, the Distinguished Service Cross, the Silver Star medal, the Legion of Merit, the Bronze Star medal, the ETO ribbon with eight battle stars and bronze arrowhead, the French Croix de Guerre, and five lesser medals and decorations.

CAPT. JACK L. TREADWELL

10 Troopers Promoted

Ten enlisted members of the Airborne battalion's Company D were last week promoted to the grade of private first class, officials have announced.

OFFICIAL WAR DATA READY FOR RELEASE

The Department of the Army announced today that approximately 89 per cent of all official War Department documents pertaining to combat operations of the army in World War II are now available for examination by historians and other writers.

The available documents include reports of action, operations journals, and unit historical reports rendered to the War Department by ground forces during the war. Practically all of those made by regiments and smaller units are included as are most of those rendered by divisions, the majority of those rendered by corps, and many of those rendered by armies. The available operations reports, if assembled and bound, would occupy a shelf three-quarters of a mile long. It is estimated that the available general files of the overseas air, ground, and service forces would fill 36 miles of shelf space.

While hostilities were in progress most of these records were classified as secret, but during the last two years a great deal of progress has been made in removing the secret classification and making them accessible to writers. The only exceptions were those documents involving the scurity of the nation and those covered by binding agreements with other agencies or governments.

The operations reports and other records available for examination are in custody of central records depositories maintained by the adjutant general of the army in Washington and St. Louis, and in various regional records offices. The files of demobilized overseas organizations are in St. Louis.

The procedure followed is for writers who seek access to such records to apply to the Public Information division for authorization to examine files pertaining to a particular subject, operation or order. The authorization is normally given to all recognized historians, writers, and scholars. The location and availability of the files are then determined and the researcher is permitted to examine all unclassified material bearing on the subject.

Local Amateur Woodworkers Find Hobby Shop Popular Off-Duty Spot

Long rows of power machinery hum in the Fort Benning hobby shop as busy men intently follow the lines of their materials in the production of beautiful furniture.

The hobby shop, located in Doughboy stadium behind Service club No. 1, is open to all military personnel who work in wood. Furniture for the home, den, kitchen, and study is produced as lamps, desks, beds, and coffee tables flow from the assembly line of amateur carpenters, joiners, and wood workers.

Light from the windows fell on the solid wooden work benches and upon the work on them, highlighting vises, miter saws (which cut accurately at angles for proper fitting), drill presses, lathes, power saws, and joiners which filled the long room.

Open to All

Facilities are available for all kinds of wood work and are open to all, whether officers or enlisted men. All tools, nails, screws, and other equipment are furnished by the special service office.

"We provide everything but the lumber," T-Sgt. Robert E. Vande Venter, who supervises the work, stated. "While we can obtain salvaged wood, most of the men prefer to buy their own in order to get lumber in first class condition."

He pointed out projects in the process of completion, including kitchen cabinet a man was making for his wife, a desk, lamps, and radio cabinets.

Several men were making lamps of wood and of shell casings. One had almost completed a magnificent coffee table with a checkerboard top of maple and walnut. All that remained to be done was to join the legs onto the table and to finish the highly polished surfaces.

Insufficient Space

"We have more men coming in all the time," Sergeant Vande Venter continued. "We've had so many men on some nights that we've been unable to accommodate them all.

"Because of this, we plan to expand as soon as possible. When the special service office moves, we are to use their old offices as well as our own. Of course, it would help if we knew what the men want to make so that we can make plans for the future.

"If everybody would let us know what they wanted to do, we could do a great deal more towards helping them with their projects. For example, we want to start some work in leathercraft. We have the leather and the tools, but we just haven't been able to find anybody who knows the ropes in leathercraft to carry the ball."

He continued with the statement that plastic work, which has been discontinued, would be resumed if sufficient interest was shown.

"We hope that the classes in plastics at the vocational school will bring men to us who want to work with the versatile and unusual material," he stated.

Cedar logs, lying on the sawdust covered floor, brought the explanation that many men who are interested in hunting have brought them in to make turkey callers.

"They groove a cylinder of cedar and fasten a tongue of wood in the groove. After chalking the sides of the hollow, they can rub this tongue of wood in the groove. After chalking the sides of the hollow, they can rub this tongue against the sides, making a sound just like the turkey hen."

The hobby shop of the special service office is open on Mondays, Tuesdays, Thursdays, and Fridays from 6-9 p. m., and on Wednesdays and Saturdays from 1-5 p. m.

Soldier Production Planned for Benning

Plans for a soldier variety show utilizing the talents of soldiers and members of their families are now under way at Fort Benning, the infantry center special service office has revealed.

All personnel, whether talented or not, however, are urged to participate in the organization of an entertainment program, officials said. Although talent is needed, the hunt is also on for carpenters, electricians, designers, writers, artists, and others who are interested in lending a hand in producing the show. All those interested are requested to inform their unit special service officer or submit their names to the Infantry Center special service office.

There are a number of talented pesons here, and with a little cooperation and organization Fort Benning has prospects for a fine soldier entertainment program, which will be able to compare favorably with any other installation, according to the special service office.

An example of what can be done with soldier talent was seen here the latter part of January, when the Fort Bragg, N. C., show, "Something to Bragg About", was presented for Fort Benning audiences. Since the end of U. S. O. Camp Shows, the army must now rely on its own talent available at the post, officials pointed out.

Produced as an experiment to determine if the army could furnish its own entertainment with the talent on hand, the Fort Bragg show has met with brilliant success since its inauguration. The show has turned out to be the forerunner in the creation of similar soldier shows.

Fort Benning, along with other installations, is now in the process of finding the answer to the now defunct U. S. O. Camp Shows.

Shaw Appointed Recruit Chief

Returning last December from overseas duty in Korea, Maj. Llewellyn D. Shaw has assumed duties as recruiting officer of the Infantry Center, replacing Lt. Col. Wesley U. Moran who has been acting recruiting officer, it has been announced.

Major Shaw arrived at Fort Benning February 15 to take over as officer in charge of carrying out the army recruiting plan for the Infantry Center. He will be assisted by Sgt. Ronald Titus.

Commissioned in the Second cavalry in 1925, Major Shaw returned to active duty in February, 1941, with the First Armored division at Fort Knox, Ky. From the First he was transferred to the Fourth Armored division, at Pine Camp, N. Y., and later served with the Eighth Armored at Fort Knox and the Ninth at Fort Riley, Kan.

From the Ninth Armored be went overseas in September, 1945, to the Philippines. Following a year's tour of the Phlippines, Major Shaw sailed for Ascom City, Korea, where he remained for 15 months prior to his return to the states last December.

BENNING SCHOOL SETS NEW RECORD

Now past the half-way mark in the winter quarter, the Infantry Center vocational night school has established the finest record in the history of the institution, according to Lt. John E. Cunningham, education officer.

"Of the 11,043 students who enrolled at the beginning of the winter session, 60 percent, or 735 students, are still enrolled", declared Lieutenant Cunningham. "This is an exceptionally high percentage for this stage of the course", he said.

"With this extremely high record at the half-way mark, we are looking forward to the successful completion of the best quarter the school has had. All our courses are still going strong, with classes in typing and sketching proving to be the most popular", the post education officer continued.

Two classes in typing are now being offered, because of increased interest in the subject.

General Hickey Inspects Board 3

Maj. Gen. Doyle O. Hickey, chief of the Research and Development division at Army Ground Forces headquarters, Fort Monroe, Va., conducted a whirlwind tour and study of activities at Army Ground Forces board No. 3 last week.

Arriving at Fort Benning last Friday afternoon from Atlanta where he conferred with Lt. Gen. Alvan C. Gillem, Third Army commander, General Hickey was met by Brig. Gen. Reuben E. Jenkins, president of the local board. Saturday he met with board No. 3 officials and inspected the boad's installations and facilities. He also conferred with Maj. Gen. John W. O'Daniel, Infantry Center commander.

General Hickey, who commanded the famous Third Armored division in Europe, joined the division at the Desert Training Center in California in 1942, transferring from the Field Artillery School at Fort Sill, Okla. He went overseas with the division as commanding general of Combat Command A, participating in the campaigns at Normandy, Belgium and Germany.

General Hickey took over command of the Third Armored division shortly after Maj. Gen. Maurice Rose was killed in action near Paderborn, Germany, following the battles at Cologne, the Roer river line, and Houfalize.

The research and development division chief has been awarded the Legion of Merit, Silver Star with oak leaf cluster, and the Bronze Star medal with oak leaf cluster.

EM Will Serve As Red Cross Representatives

Enlisted men will serve as company representatives for the 1948 Red Cross fund-raising drive at Fort Benning, it was announced at a meeting of local chairman last Friday by Lt. Col. Wesley U. Moran, who is heading the Infantry Center campaign.

Colonel Moran also urged that unit commanders utilize officers' and enlisted men's wives at the pay tables on the February and March paydays to accept contributions.

Daily reports will be made to the Infantry Center campaign head beginning March 1.

REPORT DUE IN APRIL

Although a preliminary report is due at National Red Cross headquarters a few days after April 1, Murray E. Hill, local field director, said that any donations will be welcomed after that date.

Mr. Hill praised Fort Benning chairmen, many of whom have served in that capacity before, for their past cooperation and work toward making the drive successful.

Posters, pamphlets, and other types of literature, and window and counter displays are available at the Red Cross office on Vibbert avenue for use in units and activities on the post. Mr. Hill also told the chairmen that jars in which contributors could place their donations were also available.

SAND HILL UNIT GETS NEW LOOK

One big happy family—that's Company G of the 25th Infantry regiment's Second battalion, and one visit to the company area gives just that impression.

The company has undergone a complete and attractive facelifting process, giving the area a home-like appearance in which each member takes exceptional personal pride.

Under the command of Captain William Royston, Company G has climbed to the top among the companies of the battalion and batteries of its sister unit, the 999th Field Artillery battalion.

The home-like environment hits the visitor soon upon entering the area or any one of the barracks. Minus the usual olive drab background, the interior of the barracks is expertly painted a light pea-green. The squad rooms, aside from being attractively painted, are furnished with the latest ficilities, including large mirrors.

The section that really hits the eye is the latrine. But the word latrine would certainly be inappropriate here—bath room being a better word for it. It is complete with shower curtains, paper towel and trash containers, floor mats, and brightly colored venetian blinds for the windows.

A class room with a seating capacity of approximately 100 men is the pride of the company with elaborate set-up and facilities. The mess hall, now under the expert supervision of S-Sgt. George N. Davis, has also been attractively arranged.

Lt. J. Kenneth Thomas serves as executive, mess, and recruiting officer. The remainder of the company's roster includes Lt. Willie M. Macon, first platoon leader and safety and fuel conservation officer; Lt. Bernard B. Pryor, 2nd platoon leader, supply and information and education officer; Lt. Russell Cheatam, third platoon leader, mail, and athletic and recreation officer; Lt. Harry E. Sutton, weapons platoon leader.

Paratroop Group Earns Promotions

Seventeen enlisted men of the 504th Airborne Infantry regiment's Company K were awarded promotions here last week, it has been announced.

The group included Cpl. Trinidad Priete and T-5 Joseph L. Lofthouse to the grade of sergeant, T-5 Blair H. Conrad and T-5 Robert W. Summer to technician fourth grade, Pfcs. Thomas E. Beech and Vincent McCormick to corporal, and Pfc. John W. Reep to technician fifth grade.

Promoted from private to the grade of private first class were Newell O. Sharp, William L. Sosebee, William R. Morgan, Bill H. F. Buchanan, Jake H. Wright, Charley E. Hendrix, George H. Burgess, Robert E. Manley, Joel A. Ruark, and Robert F. Terrett.

Shortly after returning home, he was separated from the service as a master sergeant, and later reenlisted at Chanute field, Ill., where he spent 12 months prior to coming to Lawson early in 1947.

ENGINEER MEN PLAN STAFF VISIT

Major John R. Huba and Mr. Milton Pierson of the Maintenance Division of the Chief, Office of Engineers, Washington, D. C., are scheduled to arrive at Fort Benning Tuesday, March 2 to inspect Army Ground Forces Engineer units on the post.

The two engineer representatives will confer with officers of Company C, 307th Airborne Engineer battalion for the purpose of assisting in solving any problems with organizational maintenance and field maintenance support to engineer troop equipment, as well as parts supply and support.

Mr. Hill requested that representatives list the name of each contributor in their activities with the amount given for forwarding to the national chapter.

All reports and donations from units and activities will be submitted to R. L. George, treasurer, at the Red Cross at the convenience of the individual representative.

Mr. Hill urged that each representative contact every man and woman in his activity to ensure that all have an opportunity to contribute.

"In a survey of 10 towns the size of Columbus, it was found that the greatest difficulty in attaining the goal lay in the fact that all individuals were not contacted," he said.

Unit and activity chairmen were also urged to hold meetings frequently with the representatives they appointed to help in the drive.

OFFICER CORPS TO BE REDUCED

Lt. Gen. Willard S. Paul, director of the Personnel and Administration division, Army General Staff, today enlarged on a recent announcement by the Department of the Army that non-regular officers on extended active duty must meet certain age-in-grade requirements.

Numerous applications have been received from officers for exceptions on their behalf, General Paud said, but added, "It is necessary that we reduce the total commissioned personnel of the army. This will be accomplished in two phases, first, by reducing the number of non-regular officers on extended active duty, and secondly, by application of the Officer Personnel Act of 1947, to reduce the number of regular officers on the active list.

STRONGER MILITARY FORCE IMPERATIVE, DEVINE SAYS

"America with its increasing committments must have authority to speak its piece in shaping world affairs, and that authority must be backed up by a much stronger military force than we have today", declared Maj. Gen. John W. Devine, chief of Army Ground Forces plans and training division, in an interview with newspapermen here last Thursday.

The former UMT Experimental unit commander, who toured the Infantry Center last week, was enthusiastic in his support of universal military training. "Universal Military Training is the most democratic solution to our problems", he stated. "It may not solve them", he continued, "but it can be of great help, and will at least give us something to work with."

The two-star general asserted in his interview that "we have already wasted too much time, and it may be too late now to work but a UMT program to function efficiently. Provided Congress passes the bill, it will take at least two or three years to get the UMT program functioning properly."

COMPARES UMT TO COLLEGE

When queried as to the recent contention by several groups that army life is not conducive to the best training for American youth, the general was quick and emphatic to answer, "There is absolutely no basis for any such contention, and I can prove it.

"The standards of our Fort Knox unit compare favorably with that of freshman college classes. Those people who have visited our camp and have seen UMT at work, have had nothing but praise for the program. Some even hoped that their children could get such training."

The AGF training chief, who was here with Gen. George S. Patton and the First Armored corps at Sand Hill in 1942, could not divulge the exact placement of UMT throughout the country, saying "it is still a secret". However, he did comment that if a unit were established at Fort Benning it would be entirely a separate unit. The training of the group would be handled by a force of 5,000 men.

NO MECHANICAL WAR SEEN

As to the possibilities of a "push button war" and the part the soldier would play in it, the general commented, "This push button business is still experimental. If war comes within the next five years or so, we must count on the weapons we have now, which have been improved some. We cannot count on "push button" tactics, and the chances of any such war in the near future are slim".

Favoring a standing army strong enough to back up our arguments and to provide a sort of "hammer in our hand", the training leader contended that the U. S. must have something to strike back with, in event of trouble. He maintained that in addition to a standing army, we must have an efficient reserve of civilian components as provided for through UMT.

"Today we do not have that reserve to fall back on, and that is what is worrying our military leaders," he claimed.

CLAIMS EDUCATION NEEDED

"The country must be educated on the universal military training program," the general asserted. "Too many people know too little about UMT. They don't quite understand and realize just what it is."

He further declared that if

MAJ. GEN. JOHN W. DEVINE

.....urges UMT . . . . . .

UMT fails, there is only one alternative, conscription.

Arriving here from Savannah, Ga., on Feb. 17 where he addressed the National Exchange club at a luncheon given in his honor, General Devine toured the Infantry Center during which time he viewed the latest developments in infantry methods and techniques and attended various Infantry School classes.

The geneарl left the post shortly after the press conference for Shreveport, La., where he delivered an address before a reserve officers association gathering

Children's School Board Appointees Announced Here

A new Children's school board has been appointed to take office on April 1, it was announced this week by Maj. Gen. John W. O'Daniel, Infantry Center commander.

Those named to the board include Col. Edgar E. Enger, president, Lt. Col. Robert H. Cole, Maj. Frank Raymond, Maj. Edward J. Ormiston, Capt. Henry Robertus, Jr., Capt. John J. Sullivan, and M-Sgt. Robert L. Short.

The new members will attend all board meetings between now and April 1 in order to acquaint themselves with the duties which will be required of them when they take office, according to the announcement.

ERC SERGEANT PRAISES ARMY TRAINING PROGRAM

In o out of the service, the army's extensive training program wins wide recognition, attracting interest for those who wish to return for further training and study, according to Sgt. John H. Payne of the Enlisted Reserve Corps.

Attached to the 10th company of the Student Training regiment, Sergeant Payne has reported to Fort Benning to attend Radio Repairman's class No. 2. A student at the Tyler Commercial college in Tyler, Tex., where he attended radio classes under the G. I. training bill for the past 12 months, Sergeant Payne chose to further his study in radio by following army methods of repair as taught in the radio repair course here.

Entering the service in April, 1944, he completed basic training at Camp Hood. Tex., and was transferred to Fort Meade, Md., leaving there for Europe. Following his arrival at Glasgow, Scotland, he was assigned to the Company E, 15th Infantry, Third division in the Volges mountains, France.

Surviving the attack on Hill 351, where his company suffered severe casualties, Payne returned for replacement to another company with which he went back into action again. Just outside of the Colmar pocket he was wounded by enemy shrapnel and sent to the 48th hospital in Paris. After recovering from wounds, he returned to his outfit to participate in the battles of Bamberg and Neurenburg.

After cessation of hostilities, Payne remained as communications sergeant with the occupation forces and a year later was separated from the service. The interest be cultivated in radio while serving with the occupation gave him the incentive to follow radio and was the main factor that resulted in his pursuit of further knowledge at the radio repairman's course here, he said.

A SOLDIER'S HONOR

The subject of honor applies to all persons, whether civilian or military, and is, regardless of what anyone might think to the contrary, probably the most important tenet by which each American citizen lives and is judged. Honor, as is applies to the soldier, is no less necessary than it is as it applies to a member of any other profession. Indeed, one might even say, it is more important when one wears the uniform of the United States Army.

The difference here is of paramount importance to each man who has claimed the army as his career. First of all, the mere fact that a man is a soldier puts him in a more or less special category. His acts are judged as the criterion of the army. His honor reflects the honor of his profession.

When a soldier commits an act unbecoming to the standards of good character, his misdeeds are taken as a reflection of the army as a whole. Too many people have a poor impression of the army already, because of the lack of honor of a few, to allow the soldier to be lax in his morals.

When the soldier in uniform goes into a civilian community, he has no more right to become a hoodlum than his civilian counterpart just because he is government property. When he goes into a civilian community in civilian clothes he still has no right to break the laws of that community. No matter how clever he might consider himself, his little ungentlemanly or law-breaking acts will soon be found out, and he will be punished accordingly. If punishment to the perpetrator of a misdeed were the end of dishonorable practices, this lack of basic honor would not be felt in so many ways. However, it goes much further than that. Its effect is felt on the entire army. One broken law, and the honor of the army suffers.

The army is a profession, but unlike that of civilian doctors, lawyers, teachers, and others, the individual soldier can cause the entire structure of the organization to be branded unfit for association. Just why such an idea exists in the minds of those who do not belong to the army is one of those unsolved mysteries, but exist it does; consequently there is nothing for the individual soldier to do except to be a gentleman at all times.

A soldier's honor covers such items as public drunkeness and driving under the influence of alcohol. Driving and drinking are probably the most incompatible of all things which fall under the so-called heading of "fun". Why anyone should think that roaring along a highway or through a city's streets while reeling from overindulgence in intoxicating beverages is a "good time" is something we can not understand.

Another way in which a soldier's honor manifests itself is in his dealings with his fellow soldiers. Truthfulness and honesty are prime requisites for the building of an upstanding character. No one should think that he is hidden away from such things just because he is in the army. The real fact of the matter is: his characteristics are more subject to criticism among members of his profession than they are in civil life because he lives and works much more closely with his comrades in the army that does the civilian.

Uprightness of character, trustworthiness, and truthfulness should be, at all times, the mark of the United States Army soldier.

BOOKSHELF

GUS THE GREAT

One of the most remarkable books to come off the presses during the past few months is Thomas W. Duncan's Gus the Great, the heart-warming story of a man whose bubbling energy led him into some of the most colorful adventures we have ever read about.

Mr. Duncan got his idea for the book after finding the remnants of a once-great circus during his travels one summer, and he claims that a part of his story is based on facts. Regardless of what the source of his story is, however, everyone who reads it is sure to feel a glow of satisfaction. It is too bad that there are so few writers with Mr. Duncan's ability. Our bookstores and libraries would be so much busier than they are at present.

Gus, whose life begins as the illegitimate son of a woman with such a zest for living that the reader will soon forgive her for her escapades, seems destined for a dull and drab future in a small railroad town in the mid-west. But because of his burning desire to make a name for himself and his unsated love of circus life, he manages to change all that.

One of his mother's male friends, a newspaperman by trade, arranges for his education and raises him to manhood. Gus goes to the nearby city, gets a job on the newspaper, rises to city editor, and meets the man who finally sets him on the path to wealth and fame.

In order ta raise the funds with which to buy his circus, he marries a wealthy, fat, unattractive girl whom he never learns to love. Then begins his adventuresome career, rich, poor, rich, and then poor again. Full if feeling, humor, understanding, and a gay, carefree outlook. Gus the Great manages to gather around him all types of people, the great and the near great, the powerful and the powerless, the kind and the heartless.

The author weaves so many characters into his book that the reader sometimes almosts forgets Gus in his interest in some new person. He has done this so carefully, however, that each one seems to have a meaning to the plot.

Gus the Great is truly one of the books of the year, every page filled with adventure, fun, and yet a quiet dignity. If there were only more people with Gus's ambition, his driving power, the world would be a far more interesting planet.

By MURRAY E. HILL

There is just time enough between now and the fund campaign which begins on March 1 to give two extracts from two more letters I received from people who have explicit reasons for giving either their time or money to the Red Cross. Read bere what a little gray-haired mother, whose son had been a paratrooper has to say.

"It was late in 1944 when my son wrote that he felt that he bad met me in a German prison. He, a captured paratrooper, with a thousand other Americans had been transported under brutal conditions to eastern Germany, arriving there more dead than alive and with morale so low as to be almost hopeless. On passing into the prison barracks a suitcase bearing the emblem of the American Red Cross filled with food parcels and comfort articles was given him and others, and morale shot so high as to ring the gong at the top. Well, of course, I just couldn't be there but by my gift I was nevertheless well represented, for my son wrote, 'It was next to getting something straight from you, Mom.'"

I think one of the greatest reasons why all give to the Red Cross was perhaps expressed best by a local minister who stated, "I give to the Red Cross because I believe it has something to do with world peace. No father or mother in America wants a war, but you cannot live in a modern world without being alarmed with our compactness, our nearness to other nations or peoples. Disturbing pictures haunt the mind. Suspicion is breeding hatred and bitterness. I am convinced that the various Red Cross conference tables, beginning in the smallest communities and extending to the League of Red Cross Societies in Geneva, are highly potential in building a chain of understanding throughout the world. The American Red Cross within our own borders, and as the strongest member of the League of Red Cross Societies, offers to men and women of good will a limitless opportunity to share in this exciting adventure of International Good Will. And so I give to the Red Cross to further such purposes."

Three ways to avoid embarrassment when you fall on the dance floor, (1) Just lie there; they'll think you fainted, (2) Get up gracefully and (3) Start mopping the floor with your handkerchief; they'll think you work there.

Chaplain's Corner...

THE CONQUEROR

By Chaplain L. A. Ellis

Several days ago I was called home due to the critical illness of my good mother. The Sunday I was there I attended services at my home church. While awaiting worship service to begin with the pastor in the little church office, my attention was strangely drawn to an engraving hanging on the wall. There was nothing so unusual about the little steel engraving that it should have attracted my attention at this particular time. Perhaps thoughts of my mother's illness and anxious concern for her well-being are the only reasons I can give for noticing the engraving that morning and thereby receiving the message I am now passing on to you.

As I remember it now, the engraving pictures a den: the light shining through high barred windows falls on gnawed bones, human destruction. A desolate sight indeed! Seen in the dimness are lions growling, teeth gnashing, and tails wagging. These are hungry lions, eager for their prey. Their wild eyes are fixed sharply on a man, yet, they make no effort to spring. Before them stands a tall, gaunt figure, robed in black, his hands tightly tied behind him.

No, you cannot see his eyes. But somehow you get the feeling that they must be kindly as he looks fearlessly down at those starving creatures, for not the slightest motion or line in that slender body shows fear or hate or threat. Standing there, he is indeed the conqueror. Sure of himself because he has merged that self with God in whom has perfect faith.

Oft times in life we all experience fears, anxieties, and troubles. They lie crouching in front of us like those vicious lions. Seemingly they are stronger than our strongest strength. If this be the case with you as it was with me that Sunday morning, may the picture of Daniel in the lion's den prove to you again and again that with real faith in God, one can conquer, even though tied tightly with handicaps, doubts and responsibilities; can conquer by calmly attending to duty and fearlessly believing that evil can never overpower good no matter what life's situations are.

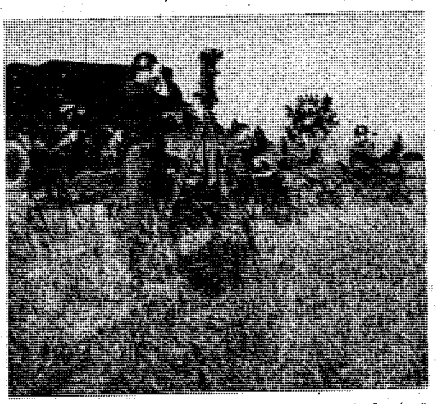
999TH FIELD ARTILLERY BATTALION IS IMPORTANT UNIT AT BENNING

The 999th Field Artillery battalion, now serving as a Schools Troop unit at Sand Hill, has become an integral unit at Fort Benning since its inception in 1946.

Redesignated the 999th Field Artillery battalion in 1943 from the Second battalion of the 578th Field Artillery regiment, which had been organized as a reserve unit of the Third Corps area in 1921, the unit was reorganized for combat and participated in action from Normandy to the plains of Germany.



The five battle streamers seen waving from the battalion standard at all formal parades and ceremonies attest to the battle history of the 999th. Beginning at Normandy as part of the Fifth Army Corps, the unit supported the infantry in its relentless drives across France into Germany. Upon its return from Europe the 999th was deactivated at Camp Kilmer, N. J.

Reactivated in May 1943 at Fort Benning, the artillery unit was a part of School Troops on January 1, 1943, along with the Second battalion of the 25th Infantry regiment.

Commanding the 999th is Maj. Carey A. Clark, who recently replaced Maj. Robert C. Stump. Maj. Cloyd V. Taylor serves as executive officer and adjutant, while Capt. Robert L. Mayo is S-3 officer. The intelligence office is headed by Capt. Deward W. Sims.

Other officers on the unit roster include Lt. Norman A. Nelson, food supervisor, Lt. Russell Francis, motor repair and maintenance officer, and Capt. Charles L. Pickett, who serves as liaison officer and troop information and education officer.

DOUGHS TRIUMPH IN FIRST AAU TOURNAMENT ENCOUNTER

Chalking up a 68 to 65 victory over the Pancelot Mills' cage five in their opening match in the Southeastern Amateur Athletic Union tournament in Atlanta Monday night, the Doughboy basketmen made preparations to meet an E-Z Mills five in the Sports Arena Tuesday.

Harold Corizzi, leading Dough scorer for the season, again took individual honors in scoring in Monday evening's contest when he found the bucket for 25 markers. An outstanding offensive performance was turned in for the Doughs by Forward Al Ratner, who dropped in a total of 14 tallies.

In another feature contest in Monday night's tournament play, the Fort Bragg, N. C., hoop squad, winner of the recent Third Army tourney in Fort Jackson, S. C., edged out the Stevens Sporting Goods team by a 54 to 46 count.

While the local lads were busying themselves with the AAU meet chore, the post athletic and recreation office was making arrangements for a week-end of cage activities in the Main Post gymnasium and the NCCS auditorium in Columbus.

Friday evening, the Doughs will meet the powerful aggregation from the 82nd Airborne division of Fort Bragg at 8 p. m. in the Main Post gym. The Braggmen will be the same five that eliminated the Benningites in the finals of the Third Army meet, and are making a strong bid for the AAU trophy. The main event will be preceded by a preliminary tilt between two squads not yet announced.

The Doughs will tangle with the Columbus Sports Shop delegates in the NCCS auditorium at Ninth street and First avenue in Columbus at 8:30 p. m. Saturday. A preliminary game, featuring two girls' teams will get underway at 7:15 p. m.

NEHI COURTMEN WIN OVER BIBB BUCKET QUINTET

Paced by the accurate shooting of Center James Cowley and Forward Howard Balliett, the Nehi Bottling company cage quintet jumped over the Bibb Manufacturers 72 to 46 in a preliminary game in the Main Post gymnasium last Friday night.

The Nehi squad took its lead in the contest's initial seconds, and had worked up a 17, 12 advantage by the end of the first period. By intermission time, the victors had increased their margin to 40 to 18, and the three-quarter mark found the bottling company five sporting a 60 to 29 advantage.

Cowley, who has been relatively inactive in the Nehi courtmen's last few encounters, came to life in Friday night's clash, and chaulking up 26 counters by sinking 13 shots from the court. Balliett took second-place honors when his 10 field goals accounted for 20 Nehi points. Scoring honors for the Bibb bucketmen went to Forward Harrell, who dunked nine hardwood attempts and made a charity for a 19-point total.

EX-BENNINGITE ACHIEVES PRO RING RENOWN

Stepping out of the Fort Benning ring and into the professional boxing ranks, Jesse Underwood, last year's Doughboy featherweight entry, already has earned himself a prominent spot in national fight circles.

The 126-pound scrapper took up professional fighting following his discharge from the army at Fort Benning in June of last year, and has triumphed in 24 out of 27 ring contests. The Ring magazine, nationally-known boxing periodical, has named Underwood as a likely contender for the world's featherweight crown.

Underwood, whose weaving tactics inside the ropes made a popular figure with Benning boxing enthusiasts, underwent an undefeated season with the Doughs last year, and climaxed his 1947 activities by taking possession of the Georgia Golden Gloves featherweight crown.

S-SGT. JOHN CAPONE
.....New post umpire

CAPONE NAMED CHIEF ARBITER FOR POST NINE

John Capone, who graduated recently from an umpire school at Sanford, Fla., conducted by Arbiter George Barr of the National league, will be chief balls and strikes called for Fort Benning's 1948 baseball season, Capt. Bill Fannin, post athletic and recreation officer, announced today.

In addition to heading the post umpiring staff, Capone will conduct a local course for diamond officials prior to the opening of the season, slated for March 15.

Capone was one of three army men from the Third Army district to complete the clinic. Approximately 150 others, mostly minor league officials, were enrolled in the school.

During the course, Capone gained actual game-calling experience by umpiring for the Sanford farm team of the New York Giants, managed by ex-Giant Hurler Carl Hubbell.

Although he never has been a ball player, Capone spent last season officiating in U. S. Constabulary league games in Germany. He returned to the states last October.

BAYONET SPORTS EDITOR

For post golfers who would like to take a fling at a sporty layout, we might suggest a round on the nine-hole Sand Hill course. Linksmen from other units on the reservation are not only authorized, but encouraged by Sgt. Elfedy Ivy, club pro who recently received a commendation for his course duties, to play the grounds.

After having toured the layout last week, this scribe would like to praise the efforts of the lads from the loamy country to build themselves up one of the neatest nine-nine-hole courses in this area.

Sporting smooth-putting grass greens, the Sand Hill clubers may be assured a touch of year-around fairway greenery since grass rotation is practiced through the use of winter rye during the cooler months and bermuda for the summer.

Not only have the strokers from the sand mounds planned numerous improvements for the coming year but are endeavoring to add another nine holes to the present layout.

Even though they didn't take the number one spot in the recent Third Army basketball tournament, the Fort Benning Doughboys still are the pride of post athletic fans.

In the Fort Jackson, S. C., meet, the Doughs racked up wins over teams that had a definite height advantage. The scrappy locals put forth with both defensive and offensive tactics that had every squad puzzled until the undefeated Braggmen solved their plans to cop the army championship to the tune of 83 to 60. Commenting on the meet, Coach Lewis Grizzard said:

"It is gratifying to know that we were ousted by a bunch of fellows who actually had a better team than we did. It wasn't just one of these tourney upsets that one so often reads about. During our stay at Ft. Jackson we received the utmost courtesy and hospitality. Excellent billeting and messing facilities provided by the host installation made playing conditions very enjoyable."

The coach praised the work of his "subs" in the tournament, and pointed out that in two encounters won by the Doughs, second-stringers played most of the game.

Shortly following their elimination from the South Carolina tournament, the locals began making arrangements to defend their Southeastern AAU crown in the annual tourney, which opened Sunday in Atlanta.

Before departing, Coach Grizzard cited the morale of the Benning basketmen as excellent, and gave them a "good chance" to recapture the southeastern trophy. By Winning the trophy for three successive years, the Doughs would be entitled to its permanent possession. A win this year would be the second for Benning.)

When asked if he planned to change his tactics against the Fort Bragg five when the two teams clash in the Atlanta meet, the Doughboy coach said that he didn't believe it would be necessary. He added that he expected the North Carolinians to be weakened through the anticipated loss of two star players that furnished the main offiesive spark in the Third Army tourney.

Although his name usually is associated with Doughboy football activities, the contributions of Bob Scallorn to the Benning cagemen are not to be overlooked. Since the outset of the 1948 season, he has served as team trainer and manager. Scallorn, who has worked under both ex-Coach Ced Tallis and Coach Grizzard, earned a prominent spot in post sports circles by starring as quarterback on last fall's Dough football eleven.

BENNING EDGES NAVY, 65 TO 60, IN CAGE CLASH

Faced with a surprise second-half offensive launched by the navy Bullets of Green Cove Springs, Fla., the Doughboy cage quintet needed the final seconds of a contest at the Main Post gymnasium last Friday night to eke out a 62 to 60 triumph.

The game featured a one-night stay at Benning for the Doughs, who had been eliminated in the Third Army tourney finals the night before, and were making preparations to leave for Atlanta the following day to defend their Southeastern Amateur Athletic Union crown.

Doug Scovil, Doughboy center, was the Benning hero of the game when he connected with repeated attempts from the floor to keep the local lads in the running against the hard-driving Bullets. The lanky center also annexed individual scoring honors for the Doughs by chalking up 13 counters on six field goals and a free heave.

LEAD AT HALF-TIME

Mid-way through the opening stanza, the home five had gained themselves such a comfortable margin the Coach Lewis Grizzard replaced his starters with a complete aggregation of second-stringers. The substitutions held the edge provided them by their predecessors, and wound up the half on the high end of a 38 to 21 score.

Although he yielded scoring honors to Scovil, and saw service in less than one-third of the game, Paul Myers, second-string forward, was a big spark in the Benningites' defense. He dunked five from the court, and made two successful tries from the free line to contribute 12 tallies to the home quintet.

During the initial minutes of the second half, the Dough substitutions continued to perform floor duties, but the starting five came back into action after the visitors had worked the score into a 43 to 43 tie. Even the defensive tactics of Coach Grizzard's first team couldn't halt the Bullets' scoring spree as the Florida bucketmen took the lead four times before the final whistle blew.

GOBS TIE SCORE

After knotting the score for the first time, a goal by center Mac McTrusty put the gobs into the lead. However, Scovil hit the hoop for the Doughs to tie it up again. McTrusty and Scovil each hit again before Ted Levenson scored a two-pointer to give the invaders another brief fling at the lead. After a court shot by Bob Kinard of the Doughs that deadlocked the clash again, the lead changed hands frequently until two minutes before the close of the contest when Scovil dunked a field goal and Harold Lutz made a charity toss to give the Doughs a three-point margin.

Scovil secured the game for the local five when his field goal and free throw during the closing seconds proved too much of an edge for the sailors to overcome, even with the help of field connections by Bob Wagner and Leo Succi.

McTrusty took individual honors for the Green Cove Springs squad by putting in seven hardwood attempts and a free shot for a 15-point total.

DOUGH JUNIORS BEAT VILLAGERS

Avenging their loss of last week, the Doughboy Junior cage quintet eked out a 21 to 17 victory over the Baker Village Tigers in the Main Post gymnasium last Saturday night.

High-scoring honors for the victors were annexed by Robert Lindquist, who dropped in six court shots for 12 points. John Katz paced the losers' scoring by flipping in three hardwood attempts and one charity toss for seven points.

Saturday night will be the final game of the season for the midget version of the Doughboys. They will play a return contest with the Baker Village five before their attention to spring baseball workouts.

NEW GOLF CLUBHOUSE—An architect's drawing shows the rear of the Fort Benning officers' golf course as it will appear upon completion. The renovation project, which calls for the construction of two additions to either side of the main club building and the annexation of a rear terrace, got under way last month, and probably will be completed during the latter half of May.

IMPROVEMENTS AT LOCAL GOLF LINKS SCHEDULED FOR COMPLETION IN MAY

Completion of the renovation project at the Fort Benning officers' golf club house, scheduled for the latter part of May. will culminate approximately two year's anticipations of post linksmen.

Although plans for the improvements were formulated during the spring of 1946, actual construction was held up until last month because of the lack of building materials. materials.

The entire program, which calls for extension to and rehabilitation of the former club building, is being sponsored with funds of the post officer's club.

ADDITIONAL FACILITIES

Upon completion, the edifice not only will provide added facilities for golf enthusiasts, but will offer accomodations for limited social events, Col. Frank Ward, chairman of the Officers' club golf committee, pointed out. The mode of construction wil enable parts of the club house peculiar to links activities to be shut off from those to be used for social gatherings.

Until the work on the new building is finished, golfers will continue to use the two temporary structures near the site of the new club for a pro shop.

More space for members and their guests will be provided through the addition of two wings, one on either side of the building, and an open air terrace on the rear side of the building.

TO HAVE BALLROOM

The west addition will serve as a moderate-sized ballroom for small parties and the east wing will be utilized as a golf shop and small bar with the men's locker room situated on the east side of the building.

Not only will the proposed terrace provide accomodation for dances and parties for larger groups, but may serve as an observation point for spectators during links tournaments since it will offer an excellent view of the ninth, eighteenth and practice greens.

The center section of the new building will house a general lounge, the women's lounge, and the women's locker room.

LARGE RLOCKER ROOMS

Both men's and women's locker rooms will be larger and more adequate than in the former edifice, it was pointed out. The new building also will furnish better facilities for the preparation of refreshments.

Present work on the course, Goss pointed out, includes putting in women's tees on several holes and the installation of a better drainage system around some of the greens.

TOURNEY MEDALIST—Using the technique that earned him medalist honors in the annual Fort Benning Officers' club golf tournament Monday, Lt. Col. W. R. Cole strokes in a long putt. In chalking up the low qualifying score, Colonel Cole, defending champion, had rounds of 74 and 76 for a 150-total.

Skenandore Wins Boxing Encounter

A full, three-round match was needed by Larry Skenandore, middleweight boxer of Company K, 504th Airborne Infantry regiment, to gain a unanimous decision over Chuck Smith, of Company F, Airborne battalion, at the Airborne gymnasium last Thursday night.

Showing superior gloves tactics from the outset of the battle, Skenandore had his hapless opponent on the ropes during the first round, and punches thrown by the Company K lad during the second stanza had Smith on the verge of dropping to the mat. The game battalion fighter, however, came back for the third round and put up a battle until the final bell.

MEDAL HONORS TAKEN BY COLE

Landing a field of approximately 75 officer golfers of Fort Benning, Lt. Col. W. R. Cole, defending champion, Monday added a 76 to his Saturday score of 74 to card a 36-hole total of 150 in the qualifying rounds of the annual post officers' club golf meet.

Colonel Cole finished only one stroke ahead of Lt. Col. C. W. Davis, who carded rounds of 75-76 for a 151 total. One stroke behind in third place was Maj. Mills Brown, who toured the layout in rounds of 78 and 74 for 152.

Following Monday's qualifying round, the 32 linksmen carding the lowest 36-hole scorers were placed in the championship division of the tournament, and matches will be played starting Saturday to determine which 16 of the candidates will be placed in the championship flight. Those who lose their initial matches automatically will get a berth in the first flight.

In his first match, Colonel Cole will be paired with Capt. Augustauskas, who fired rounds of 83 and 86 for 169 in the qualifying play.

Lt. Col. Matt C. C. Bristol, tournament division chairman of the golf committee, reminded post officers who are links enthusiasts that Sunday is the final day for qualification in other flights of the tourney.

Chapel Ceremony For Miss Lynch

Of interest at Fort Benning is the engagement of Miss Julia Ball Lynch, daughter of Mrs. Mary Westmoreland Lynch, and W. R. Lynch, of Huntsville, Tex., to Mrs. James Kade Pickard, son of Mrs. Julia Pickard, and Dr. L. J. Pickard, of Abilene, Tex.

Miss Lynch is the sister of Maj. W. R. Lynch, who is stationed at Fort Benning with the General section of the Infantry School. She is a former student of the Sam Houston, Teachers' college and is now secretary to Congressman Tom Pickett in Washington, D. C.

Mr. Pickard attended the New Mexico Military Academy and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. He is employed with an engineering firm in Washington.

LUNCHEON CENTERPIECE—Mrs. Roland Anderson, left, who made a perfect replica of the Infantry School for the student wives of Advancer Class No. 1 luncheon, is assisted in final arrangements by the other hostesses, Mrs. T. Mifflin, Mrs. Roy E. Doran, and Mrs. Hughes L. Ash. The most unusual centerpiece of the spring season for section luncheons, Mrs. Anderson made her model to exact scale. Following the luncheon, it was presented to Mrs. John W. O'Daniel, honor guest, as a gift from the student wives.

Tea Will Be Event Of February 27

The Fort Benning Girl Scouts will entertain with a Silver Tea at the Girl Scout cabin on Friday, February 27, from four to five-thirty. The mothers of members are invited and asked to bring a friend. It is hoped that the guests will respond generously, as the proceeds of the tea will be used for the Juliette Low Memoial Fund. This fund is used for the furtherance if the Girl Scout Movement, and to enable the Girl Scouts of all nations to get better acquainted. Mrs. Arden Brill is the general chairman of the tea committee. She will be assisted in arangements by Mrs. Carl E. Frisby and the members of the council and leaders.

The older scouts will assist in serving tea and a program will be presented by the Brownies and Entermediate Group. The girls have all been working hard on decorations and entertainment and they hope that there will be a large turnout for their tea.

Student Wives Give Second Luncheon at Club

Mrs. Roland Anderson, Mrs. Roy E. Doran, Mrs. T. Mifflin, and Mrs. Hughes L. Ash were hostesses for the initial monthly luncheon of the wives of student officers in Advanced class No. 1 on Friday at the Officers' club.

One of the most effective luncheon tables of the year, the centerpiece was a replica of the Infantry School building, which was made by Mrs. Anderson. Carrying out the monograph theme, Mrs. Anderson used toy soldiers placed around the small school building to show assignment of the monograph, homework in preparation and planning amid the atmosphere of the home, practice with maps and overlays, and graduation from the advanced course. Near the ends of the table, the hostesses had beautiful arrangements of spring flowers and presented the honor guests, Mrs. John W. O'Daniel, Mrs. Irvine C. Scudder, and Mrs. Peggy W. Groneweg with beautiful small replicas of the spring bouquets in the form of corsages.

The name cards given to the 70 ladies attending were made up with tiny spring flowers on each card. Mrs. Roland Anderson, presiding at the luncheon meeting, gave a speech of welcome to all the ladies attending. She presented Mrs. Scudder, who gave an impromptu talk, in which she expressed her delight at the enthusiastic spirit of the group and added her best wishes for future luncheons as successful as the first one.

Gen. Gillem Speaks Here

Lt. Gen. Alvan C. Gillem, Jr., commanding general of the Third Army, is slated to deliver an address to officers of the Infantry Center Wednesday, March 3 at 1:15 at the Main Theater.

General Gillem commanded the 23rd Corps, Ninth Army in the European Theater of Operations. He assumed command of the 23rd Corps prior to its departure overseas, directed its final preparation for combat, and led it through all of its battles in Europe, including the campaigns in the Rhineland and Central Europe.

The Third Army commander served as Commanding General of the Armored Force at Fort Knox, Ky., from May 1943 to November 1943. He previously had served as commanding general of the Third Armored Division and the Second Armored Corps.

Following his return from Europe, Gen. Gillem resumed his duties with the 23rd Corps, which had meanwhile moved to Camp Cooke, California. In August, 1945, he took command of the Seventh Corps at Camp San Luis Ohispo, Calif., later accompanying that organization to Fort Ord, Calif. He was named commanding General, Nanking Headquarters, China in April 1946.

Upon his arrival from China, he was assigned to the office of Chief of Staff in June 1947 and shortly thereafter he was named commanding general of the Third Army.

EXTENDS ENLISTMENT

T-Sgt. Roy P. Fisher, of the Lawson Air Force base AACS detachment, recently extended his enlistment from three to five years for the purpose of attending radio mechanics school at Scott Air Force base, Ill.

'Combine 2' Set In March

The Ninth Air Force and the Infantry Center will join hands during the week of March 14-20 for the presentation of a large scale air-ground course, designated "Operation Combine II" at Greenville Air Force base, S. C., and Fort Benning before 175 students of the Armed Forces Staff college.

Designed to show the tactical role of the air-ground team in action, the exercise will be patterned after the Air Indoctrination Course and "Operation Combine I" presented at Fort Benning during 1947.

Maj. Gen. William D. Old, Ninth Air Force commander, pointed out that since only one class will attend, the number of personnel and aircraft participating will not be as large as that of previous courses.

1. March 15 at Greenville Air Force base, S. C. Model display of control facilities of a combat tactical air force.

2. March 16 at Lawson. Reconnaissance and intelligence lectures, skits of planning conferences. Aircraft and equipment loading displays. Airborne, troop carrier, and tactical air demonstration.

3. March 17 and 18 at Fort Benning. Infantry ground problems.

Officials announced that in addition to providing valuable technical air training for participating units, the exercise would give a graphic overall picture of the air-ground team in action from the planning to the execution stage of a mission.

Approximately 80 airplanes, including C-82s, C-54s, FP-80s, C-47s, L-13s, Helicopters, P-51s and gliders fro Ninth Air Force units will participate.

500 RESERVISTS SLATED TO ATTEND TWO-DAY CAMP

Approximately 500 reserve officers will invade Fort Benning March 20 to attend a two-day contact camp sponsored by the Georgia Military District.

With attendance on a voluntary basis, the contact camp will offer reservists a chance to keep in closer contact with the army, its changing methods and instructions. The Reserve Officers of this district will fire weapons and witness demonstrations by School Troops during their two-day training period.

Considered to be the logical station for a contact camp in the Georgia area, Fort Benning was selected because of availability of demonstration equipment and personnel.

Reserve officers from areas near and around Fort Benning are slated to attend.

O'Daniel Addresses Fund Drive Leaders

Maj. Gen. John W. O'Daniel, Infantry Center commander, declared that "the inner compulsion that the Red Cross is worthy of support is the greatest asset of our drive" as he delivered the key address to 150 Red Cross fund campaign workers at a "kickoff breakfast" Monday morning at the Ralston hotel in Columbus.

Broadcast by each of the four local radio stations, General O'Daniel's topic, "Why Do People Give to the Red Cross", gave a start to the 1948 fund campaign to raise $41,000 for the Muscogee and Russell county chapters.

The Infantry Center commander in his speech cited the various classifications of donors, those of compulsion, habit, and notoriety. He emphasized that the organization, the humanitarian arm of the government, reaches far and wide and conserves human resources.

Gen. Walter S. Fulton, Muscogee Red Cross chairman, and Gordon Young, campaign chairman, who presided over the breakfast, told workers that the drive must be completed in 15 days.

Here at Fort Benning Lt. Col. Wesley U. Moran has been named to head the Red Cross drive. Assisting him will be Mrs. John W. O'Daniel, Mrs. Frank Ward, Maj. Thomas W. Catheart, Maj. A. W. Petrosky, Maj. Clyde R. Russell, Capt. Charles W. Kilpatrick, Capt. James L. Walker, Capt. Leonard V. Bailey, Capt. Francis B. Smith, and Lt. Reed Hines.

Members of the women's committee on the post met at the Officer's club Thursday afternoon to formulate plans for the drive. Mrs. O'Daniel has been selected as honorary chairman, while Mrs. Frank Ward will act as chairman. Members of the committee include Mrs. Lloyd Brown, Mrs. Fay Ross, Mrs. Burton Lucas, Mrs. Douglas Sugg, Mrs. George Davis, Mrs. Paul Hamilton, Mrs. Eric P. Ramee, Mrs. Wayne Archer, Mrs. Irvine C. Scudder, Mrs. Charles H. Royce, Mrs. Wiley O'Muhundro, Mrs. Reuben E. Jenkins, Mrs. John C. Blizzard, Mrs. David P. Schorr, Mrs. F. H. Bockoven, Mrs. Hamilton Thorn, and Mrs. Wallace M. Hale.

Plans are also under way for a bridge benefit to be given at the Officers' club March 19 at 7:30 p. m., under the direction of Mrs. Walter Johnson.

PREJUDICE THREATENS AMERICA'S DEMOCRACY, FORT BENNING OFFICER WARNS PHENIX GROUP

Speaking on "Americanism" with emphasis on prejudice and its threat to democracy, Lt. Billie Bingham, of Fort Benning, delivered a potent address to a gathering of the Phenix City, Ala., Junior Chamber of Commerce Monday night at Summerville lodge.

Pointing out how prejudices are developed, Lieutenant Bingham stated "It is only natural and human to be curious about things and people about whom we know very little. Curiosity leads to suspicion, suspicion quickly converts itself to fear, and fear grows into hate. One fears the things he suspects, and hates the things which make him afraid.

"Prejudices develop, too," Lieutenant Bingham continued, "from a feeling of insecurity or frustration. We may feel uncertain about our ability or prestige. To strengthen our own confidence and feeling of self - importance, we often search for someone to look down upon as "inferior" or some group to blame for our failure and misfortune.

"Rumors are also dangerous," he confided. "Rumors foster prejudice. The man who spreads rumors about any racial or national group is doing a harm to his community and to the nation. He may not realize the danger, but he is weakening the United States and our way of life, nevertheless."

"Almost 13 million people in the United States were born in Europe. The men who built America, who clear her forests, span her rivers, dig her coal, plow her fields, work her machines,—the men who made America strong and free are men of every race, color, religion and nationality and this we must always remember," Lieutenant Bingham concluded."

Top-Flight Dance Bands to Continue At Popular Pine Lodge NCO Club

The ultra-modern Pine Lodge NCO club, which has brought some of the nation's most famous orchestras to Fort Benning, will continue to feature top-flight dance bands, according to Sgt. Dean White, club manager.

"Furthermore," Manager White said, "the club will adhere to its present policy of presenting some type of entertainment seven nights a week. The Board of Governors are aware of the tremendous increase in club patronage, and are devoting their efforts to assure the members and their guests of an evening of enjoyment, every night in the week."

Sgt. White further declared that the club president, M-Sgt. Charles Lowe, speaking in behalf of the entire Board of Governors, had assured him that there will be no let down in the high caliber of entertainment — despite the increase in operational expense.

Asked what he meant by "top-flight" dance bands, White said that the bands featured at the Pine Lodge Club would be the best in their particular category. "By that," he said, I mean that we will not concentrate on big names. Rather we will select the best novelty bands, swing orchestras, rhumba orchestras of national, international, or purely local fame, — depending entirely on their appeal to our G. I. club members. Now, you wouldn't expect us to book Fred Waring, or Phil Spitalny and his enormous all girl orchestra, would you?"

SGT. DEAN WHITE
....NCO Club Manager

Waring's orchestra sometimes consists of 150 members plus a large choral group. The Spitalny group is even larger.

White, who has been managing the Pine Lodge Club since the first of last year, said that the club will continue to expand not only in entertainment policy, but also in size. Plans are now being considered to make several outstanding additions which will be announced as soon as they have been approved.

All Army Branches Comprise STR Unit

Among the ex-sailors, S-Sgt. Perry E. Bowen, who was a Pharmicist's mate in the navy.

One of the foot-trodding infantrymen is S-Sgt. Richard F. Brough, a lieutenant with the Third division during the war, while one of the sharpest soldiers in the outfit is Artillerymen T-4 James F. Banks.

Taking the rugged training in stride along with the younger trainees is Capt. Ansel L. Fent. Capt. Fent served in the China-Burma-India theater, seeing action on the Burma and Lido roads.

Company F now boasts the only man in the European theater who carried a bow and arrow as sidearms. He is Lt. Orville C. Lee of Sioux City, Ia., who met a former Fifth division war comrade, S-Sgt. Emrel C. Redmond of Pineville, Ky., for the first time in three years at the company.

One of the most interesting tales of the war can be told by 1st Sgt. William B. Hardin, who spent 10 years, in Brest, France. Leaving France in 1939, he returned before the invasion with the famous O. S. S. brigade that played havoc within the enemy lines by working in close cooperation with the underground. He later became lieutenant in the Counter Intelligence Corps.

M-Sgt. Robert S. Bemus, now student first sergeant of the company, was an Air Corps engineer in the Pacific until three months ago.

Fifteen Enlisted Members of STR Promoted Here During Past Week

A total of 15 enlisted members of School Troops organizations were among those promoted here during the past week.

They included the following promotions to sergeant:

4 POST SOLDIERS RETIRE SATURDAY

Bidding farewell to the Army after long years of faithful service, four Fort Benning soldiers were honored at an impressive retirement ceremony and parade last Saturday at Stillwell field.

Col. Charles H. Royce, commanding officer of the 25th Infantry regiment, presented certificates of merit to the four men.

Honored after lengthy service were 1st-Sergeant Pablo Rojas and Sgt. Aubrey B. Neal of School Troops, T-Sgt. Garland A. Kimrey, of the Military Police Detachment Section, 3440th ASU, and Pfc. Charles Hanaee, of Headquarters detachment, Section 1, 3440th ASU.

Sergeant Rojas, who retired after 30 years service, has a career that covered two world wars. He was wounded in action in the Meuse-Argonne forest while serving with the 38th Infantry in the first world war. After the Armistice, he remained in Germany as part of the army of occupation at Coblenz. Sergeant Rojas remained with the Eighth Infantry until 1941 when he began his tour at various installations. He returned to Fort Benning in 1946 to serve the remainder of his time until retirement.

Sergeant Neal, who compiled 22 years of army life, entered the service in 1924. After serving at Fort McKinely, P. I., and Fort Belvoir, Va., he was shipped in 1933 to Panama for duty where he served until 1939. Following a tour of duty at Fort Lewis, Wash., he went overseas with the 87th division in 1942. Sergeant Neal participated in the campaigns in Northern France, Central Europe, the Rhineland, and the Ardennes. He arrived at Fort Benning in 1945.

Pfc. Hanafee, whose last assignment was with the Headquarters detachment, 3440th ASU, arrived at Fort Benning in January, 1947.

COMPARE THESE WITH 'NEW LOOK'

Then, compare the hemlines of the two modest maidens with that of the young woman standing directly in front of you as you gaze into a full-length mirror.

No, the pictures don't represent a prevue of things to come in the world of fashion, but date back to Oct. 26, 1929, when Alma Peache, Major Stephen McGregor, and Landon Reed were featured in a show, "Supressed Desires", presented at Fort Benning.

After comparing the wearing apparel of Misses Peache and Reed with that of a decoy selected from today's smarter set, The Bayonet statistics submits that:

1. The modesty of the actresses doesn't come up to that of today's femme jolie in that their hemlines are more than an inch higher than the "new look" advocates.

2. The 1929 garb does no more to conceal feminine contours than the 1948 fashions.

Don't get the wrong idea, gals—this isn't a campaign to get you to shorten your dresses, or don attire which will accentuate your best features: too many fruitless efforts along those lines already have been made.

NINTH STREET USO OPERATES AS NCCS CLUB

Continuing as a serviceman's club, the former Ninth Street USO in Columbus has been renamed the National Catholic Community service.

Under the supervision of NCSs, serving the nation's peacetime forces, the club will continue to help the serviceman in any possible way through its trained staff and volunteer workers, officials said. Remaining in the same building, NCCS has retained the staff, services and equipment which formerly fell under the USO organization in Columbus.

The NCCS according to the announcement, has been designed to appeal to everyone. The serviceman, veteran, hospital patient, and their families are welcome in the club. Holding universal appeal, the program has been specially designed to meet a wide variety of personal and leisure needs, they said.

HERE'S THE REASON

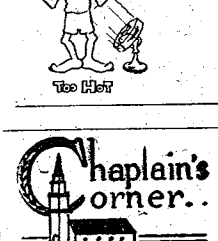
We would like to explain, if possible, the reason for the omission of several news items from last week's Bayonet and to explain to our readers the difference in make-up from that of the past.

Most Fort Benning citizens already know that there has been a labor-management dispute at the Ledger-Enquirer, the corporation which publishes The Bayonet. Consequently, a commercial printing house in Columbus has been engaged by the Ledger-Enquirer to print the paper.

Since the printing concern is primarily a job pirnting house with only flat-bed presses, which must be fed by hand, and one linotype machine, there has necessarily been some delay. Because the concern does not publish daily newspapers, there has been no reason to buy a larger kind of headline type, which accounts for the similarity of each page and the apparent strict conservatism of the last issue of The Bayonet.

There are, however, some definite assets over past issues, the main one being the larger text type, making The Bayonet a little easier to read. Naturally, when the actual printing is done directly fro mthe type form without recourse to mats, followed by casting in metal to fit the rotary presses, we get a clearer make-up. This is especially true with pictures, which, in several cases in last week's paper, reproduced a great deal clearer in their final form than the original print would indicate.

Bayonet readers also probably noticed the use of an italic type as cutlines under pictures, a departure from past practices. This was made necessary because of the lack of a bold face type by the commercial printing house. This same italic type was also used for by-lines and sub-heads in the body of news stories and features.



Because it takes approximately 24 hours without letup to print the 6500 copies of a 12-page Bayonet by the process we are now using, we have been forced to keep the number of pages small in order to assure everyone a copy before the week-end. At this time of the month, the advertising is greater, which, naturally, consumes much of the space provided we use only 12 pages. In addition, as we pointed out in the beginning, the type face is somewhat larger than that to which we have been accustomed, taking up even more space. This has necessitated, obviously, a deletion of much copy, making it a matter of selecting only what we in the editorial offices consider to be the most important and colorful news of the week. We are endeavoring, under the circumstances, to give Fort Benning as balanced a weekly as we have in the past.

The commercial house now doing our printing has done an excellent job despite the shortage of newspaper type. Fact is, we have no idea how we would be able to publish each week without them.

We hope that you will not discontinue to submit news for publication just because one week has gone by without your articles appearing in print. We are still trying to bring all the news of importance to our readers as quickly as possible. Sometimes this means a drastic "cutting" of articles submitted, but by doing that we are able to include more variety in each week's publication.

The Bayonet hopes that the differences which have caused this sudden change in appearance will soon be worked out to the satisfaction of all concerned so that we can return to our old style. We miss it, too.

By CHAPLAIN R. O. KIRSCH

Sometime or another during this life every one of us will have to face pain or trouble or suffering or grief. Now is the time to reflect on such possibilities for ourselves, and to consider how we can best face such trials when they do come. People in trouble do not want to be lectured to or argued with no matter how kindly. Pain with them is not a talking point. It is the point of a dagger piercing them to the quick. But they will welcome someone who touches them quietly and says: "I have been through exactly what you are now bearing. It stopped after a time. Now I am free. And you will be."

That is why the Bible says, "Consider Him". That is why the church holds up the cross. Our human pain meant so much to God that He stepped right down into the midst of it and bore every bit of it. The Christ bore our pain in order to show us how and why to bear it. At the beginning of His work He said that the sad and poor, the broken-hearted, the prisoners, sick, blind, and wounded drove Him here; that He came to share with them, and to deliver them. All through His life He made His promise. He never turned away from people's suffering. He did it for love. The sufferer belonged to Him.

Near the end, in passing on His work to His followers He said that we, too, are to feed the hungry, take in the homeless, clothe the naked, heal the sick, visit and befriend the captive—and in doing that, we do it to and for Him. So He refused to limit Himself in the enormous suffering of His time. He burst through to all men in all times. Wherever suffering is, He is there. When this truth dawns on us, it can mean more than anything else. You can go through it all because of Him, with Him, for His sake.

He said not:
Thou shalt not be tempted,
Thou shalt not be travailed,
Thou shalt not be afflicted;

But He said:
Thou shalt not be overcome.

Walking along a street a man was attracted by frightened screams from a house. He ran to investigate and found a frantic mother whose small boy had swallowed a quarter. Seizing the child by the heels, he held him up, gave him a few shakes and the coin dropped to the floor. The grateful mother was lost in admiration.

"You certainly knew how to get it out of him," she said. "Are you a doctor?"

Your Red Cross

I know of a man who is a hopeless cripple. Yet, in spite of his infirmities, he has built up a thriving bee and honey business. Then along came a flash flood and wiped him out overnight. This man needs help to be rehabilitated. Would you like to contribute to a fund to aid him in getting back into business? Well, you already have. Your contribution you have made to the Red Cross last year has already made it possible for this man to go back in business. Read what he has to say for himself:

"Dear Sirs: I feel quite sure there must be many people like myself and my wife, who have always read and heard about the splendid work the Red Cross has done, but have never really appreciated it until it has been brought home to them. So we hope our experience may enable them to understand better just where the money is going, and the hope and courage it gives in cases like ours.

"Owing to the physical handicap of a lame leg, I have not been able to get around and make a living, so when I started in the bee and honey business it seemed I'd found a way to provide for us adequately. I placed a mortgage on our home to finance my start and had contracts for pollination in orchards this spring. That—with my honey—would pay off the mortgage and enable us to finish building our home.

DISASTER STRIKES

"Then came the sudden flood of December 11. The Green River (in Washington) swept my entire stock away, leaving us with the prospect of losing our home and nothing to start with again.

"But then the Red Cross stepped in, helped obtain a stay of foreclosure of mortgage, bought and replaced my bees and equipment, and aided financially enough to tide us over until pollination time this spring. Now we are able to build our business up again. We can see a hopeful future.

"We can never express in mere words the lasting gratitude of myself and wife for the wonderful help the Red Cross has given us...."

The above heart warming story of how your Red Cross helps families to take up life again where it levaes off, when disaster strikes, has often been told. It's impossible for you to make a contribution every time a disaster. It's impossible for you to be there to render a helping hand. But you can contribute to your Red Cross today, any amount, and by your contribution literally thousands of unfortunates such as this man, will be helped during the coming year.

Post P-TA Program Thursday Well-Received at Main Theater

Presenting a program for the benefit of the Fort Benning P-TA at the Main theater on Thursday evening, Fred Lowery and Dorothy Rae were extremely well-received by a large audience.

Sgt. Ben Cortese and his orchestra provided musical accompaniment, and added to the program with some of their own arrangements and specialities.

To start his part of the program, Fred Lowery gave several bird whistles and then whistled Stardust, which completely delighted the audience. The appearance of the beautiful singer, Dorothy Rae, was definitely appreciated, and she was gowned in white chiffon trimmed in white ostrich and silver sequins. Dorothy captivated the audience with both her straight numbers and also with her clever parodies on old standbys such as "It Had To Be You". Dorothy also surprised the audience with two of her own compositions. Her charm and gaiety added immesurably to the show and her voice was as charming as her apperance.

Fred Lowery's version of the William Tell overture was one of his best as well as "Indian Love Call", which he made on record for Columbia Artists, selling over one million copies. Dorothy Rae's singing of "St. Louis Blues" showed her voice to its best advantage.

The teacher for the new class will be Capt. Elmer B. Scovill, who is with the Airborne section of the Infantry School. Captain Scovill graduated from the Detroit, Michigan Eastern high school and attended Wayne university. He came into the army with the 32nd division in 1940, and served in five campaigns. Captain Scovill came to Fort Benning last August, and will continue his interest in church work through his new class.

Benning Woman's Club Tours Local Ration Breakdown Center

Escorted through the Ration Breakdown center, the meat-cutting plant, the Post bakery, and the Food Service School on Thursday morning by Lt. Col L. J. Fitzpatrick, nine members of the Fort Benning Woman's club, enjoyed seeing the workings of those organizations which handle rations for post personnel. Those attending were Mrs. Frank Ward, Mrs. L. J. Fitzpatrick, Mrs. F. B. Outlaw. Mrs. Fay Ross, Mrs. J. A. Vilhauer, Mrs. W. C. Rhinehart, Mrs. Earle Johnson, Mrs. N. E. Roberts, and Mrs. T. M. Brinkley.

On the day of the tour, the ladies saw 24,000 rations in individual stockpiles for each mess. The warehouse also has a huge cheese cutter and a large scale for weighing coffee out in pound bags to insure fresbness for each mess each day. Outside the warehouse were the ration trucks, three for dry foodstuffs, with individual sections inside the huge vehicle for segregation as to the different messes to which it would be delivered, a bakery truck, and a meat truck.

In the meat-cutting plant, the ladies saw a display of meat, which is kept ready for inspection at all times. A side issue of the meat cutting room is a small room for fat-rendering. The freezer room in whicb a 30 day supply of meat is kept at all times, is kept at a temperature of 28 degrees. Between the meat storage room and the loading platform is the assembly room with large shallow metal meat boxes, in which the cut meat is put for truckage to the individual messes. Each metal box is marked with the number of the mess, and the amount and kind of meat.

From there, the ladies were conducted to the Post bakery, where Maj. Abraham Pfefer explained the workings of the mixers and the ovens, assisted by M-Sgt. Booker, head baker. The Post bakery put out as much as 58,000 pounds of bread a day during the war.

DOUGH BOXERS MAKE PREPARATIONS FOR THIRD ARMY RING TOURNAMENT

Fort Benning's Doughboy ring team will make its 1948 tournament debut next Monday when it leaves for Fort Bragg, N. C., for participation in the annual Third Army boxing meet.

The local ringmen, runners-up in last year's meet, will leave Sunday with 15 post gloves representatives. It will have an entry in every weight division, and alternates in all classes with the exception of flyweight, bantamweight, featherweight and heavyweight

Last year's runner-up honors in the army tourney were won with a six-man squad. Later in the year, the same sextet won the Georgia Golden Gloves championship.

Enrique Martinez, scrappy 112-pounder, is the only member of the 1947 aggregation to return to Benning activities this year. The flyweight puncher didn't get an opportunity to hattle in last year's army tourney because other posts were unable to place entries in the weight class.

Altbough he didn't see service with the Doughs last year, Wisdom Stewart, Benning's featherweight representative, gained a lot of popularity with the post's ring fans in last week's matches with Eglin Field by chalking up a second-round knockout over Charles Quintana.

Lightweight Norman Clark will be out to extend his streak of pugilistic triumphs in the tourney by representing the Benningites in the 135-pound division. Although Clark failed to make a very impressive showing in the bouts with Eglin Field's Flyers, he still won his decision over Jimmie Weaver.

Middleweight duties for the local pugilists will be taken care of by Lawrence Jones. The slugging Jones failed to make an appearance in last week's contests, but is considered a powerful element in the Benning lineup. Light heavyweight Richard Donaldson also remained idle during the match with the Flyers since the visitors couldn't supply a fighter of similar weight.

Lester Beard, a slugging 205-pounder, will be the heavyweight for the Doughs in the army meet. In the local's previous engagement, he lost a unanimous decision to 210-pound Joe Golombek of the Flyers.

Alternates who will accompany the Dough delegates to the Fort Bragg tournament are Lightweights Francis Poole and Bob Rogers, Welterweights Emil Krolewicz and Fred Delgado, Middleweights Clifford Wilburn and Jake Williams, and Light Heavyweight John Salzillo.

He: I'd like to propose a toast.

She: Nothing doing, Big Boy, I want a regular meal.

Doughs Squeeze Past Sport Shop

Even the offensive might of Glenn Davis, all-american pigskin star turned cageman, couldn't keep a Columbus Sport Shop quintet from dropping a 50 to 39 basketball decision to the Doughboys of Fort Benning at the NCCS auditorium in Columbus Saturday night.

The tilt was the first for the Doughs since they were ousted in the quarterfinals of the Southeastern Amateur Athletic Union tourney in Atlanta last week.

With Forward Harold Corizzi and Center Doug Scovil taking the initiative, the Benning five grabbed the lead in the opening seconds of the game, and ran up a 24 to 19 margin during to first half.

The Columbus cagers threatened the Doughs' lead early in the first half, and succeeded in knotting the score once before the Corrizzi-Scovil scoring combination broke loose. The goal-shooting spree of the sport shoppers that deadlocked the contest was led by Davis and Forward Bob Ozier.

Corrizi, scoring mainstay for the Doughs, again took individual honors for the local lads, as well as for the game, when he racked up 25 tallies on nine court goals and seven from the free line. The loser's scoring was paced by Davis, who accounted for 17 counters with six field shots and five charities.

WIN IN NATIONAL PIN TOURNAMENT

A five-man Fort Benning bowling squad recently won the nation-wide Young Man's Christian Association pin tournament, and will be presented with a plaque by national YMCA headquarters.

The win was the second for the Fort Benning keglers in the past three years. Local bowlers took top honor in 1946, and were in second place in the 1947 contest.

Rolling a three-game, five-man total of 2822, the Fort Benning edged out Seattle, Wash., with 2785, and San Diego, Calif., with 2713. High man for the locals was Sgt. H. D. Burns, who carded games of 195, 203 and 189 for a total of 597.

Benning's team was scored by a representative of the Columbus YMCA, who made a telegraphic report of the score to the national headquarters.

TRACK AND FIELD WORKOUTS BEGIN

Workouts for the annual Fort Benning track and field meet to be held on the post layout April 13 and 14 will get underway this week, Capt. Bill Famin, athletic and recreation officer, has announced.

The A & R officer pointed out that the local field is undergoing a general reconditioning, and that pits and standards will be available for practice sessions.

In announcing the forthcoming post tournament, Captain Fannin said that competition in the events will be on an individual basis rather than intramural eliminations.

Following the Fort Benning meet, champions in each event will be placed on the Doughboy team to represent the post in the Third Army track championships to be held on the local field April 22 and 23.

Last year, the Doughboy squad copped the Third Army title here by swamping a Fort Bragg, N. C., delegation. However, none of last year's champs will be here for participation in the 1948 events.

Captain Fannin encouraged tryouts for the Dough team by announcing that participation is open to all Fort Benning personnel.

Both the post and Third Army meets will comprise 15 events: the one-mile run, 440-yard dash, 100-yard dash, 120-yard high hurdles, 880-yard run, 220-yard dash, two-mile run, 220-yard low hurdles, one-mile relay, pole vault, high jump, discus, shot put, javelin, and broad jump.

DOUGHBOY CAGE TEAM HUMBLES LAWSON FIELD HOOPSTERS 67-46

Soothing the humiliation of their recent defeat in the Southeastern Ameteur Athletic Union tournament, the Doughboys returned to Fort Benning Friday night to romp over the Lawson Field Flyers 67 to 36 in a cage till in the Main Post gymnasium.

Not once after they grabbed the lead during the opening seconds of the clash were the Doughboys threatened with a Flyer rally.

Mainstays Harold Corizzi, Doug Scovil and Harold Haberman dropped in court shots for the Benningites before Center Lew Button of the Lawson lads could find the bucket for a two-pointer.

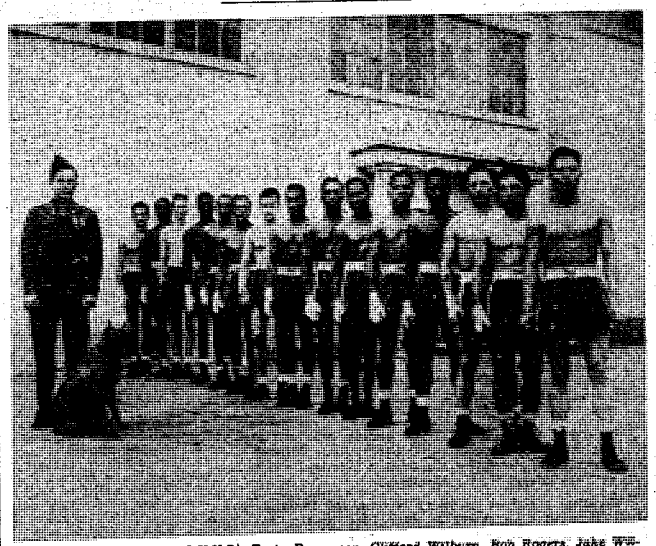
After working up a comfortable margin in the initial phase of the first half, Coach Lewis Grizzard turned the Dough floor duties over to his reserves and used practically every player on his roster before the concluding whistle sounded. The intermission found the Doughs holding a 34 to 17 advantage.

Harold Corizzi, accurate-shooting Benning forward, took high-point hours for the game by dropping in five field goals and a free throw for a total of 13. Flyer scoring was paced by Button, who tallied 12 counters on four court tries and a like number of charity heaves.

Standouts for the Dough reserve aggregation were Forward Al Ratner and Center Frank Tatum. Ratner turned in a brilliant performance in cracking the Flyer defense to hang up eight tallies, while Tatum's height enabled him to chalk up eight Benning scores.

BRAGG RENEGES

The contest was played in lieu of a tilt scheduled to match the Doughboys against the tournament-worn five of the 82nd Airborne division of Fort Bragg, N. C., Third Army champions. The originally-slated match was cancelled by the Bragg five following their elimination from the Southeastern AAU tournament.



Following their victory over the aviators, the local quintet began making preparations for contests listed on this week's docket.

Saturday evening, the Grizzardmen will meet a Piedmont college squad in the Main Post gymnasium at 8 p. m. A contest Monday night between the locals and cage representatives from the Jacksonville, Fla., Navy base will be held at the post court Sunday afternoon.

SLANTS on SPORTS

By Lewis Mc Afee
Bayonet Sports Editor

Although it is unlikely that he ever will be as popular on hardwood courts as he was on the gridiron, Glenn Davis proved in the Columbus Sport Shop's tilt with the Doughboys last Saturday night that he isn't trying to coast to basketball renown on his all-American football reputation.

Davis put up a clean, hard fought game, both defensively and offensively, and led the sport shop five in scoring with 17 points. The erstwhile Army back was the offensive spark in the Columbus cager's second period comeback, and his accurate long ones knotted the score with victorious Doughs on two occasions.

Prospects for a Third Army boxing title are pretty good for the Doughs according to Coach John Wilson, who os preparing his gloves for the annual tourney, which begins at Fort Bragg, N. C., Monday.

Boasting a fighter in every weight, the Doughs have admitted seven newcomers to their 1948 lineup. Enrique Martinez, 112-pound scrapper who helped the locals battle their way to the Georgia State Golden Gloves championship last year, has returned to take over flyweight duties for the 1948 version.

Wisdom Stewart, who didn't appear very spectacular during the pre-season tryout bouts, earned himself a lot of popularity in the fights with Eglin field, Fla., last week by winning a knockout triumph over Charles Quintana in the featherweight division. Stewart demonstrated a high degree of ring knowledge, and seemed to be confident in his methods of approach.

Two Dough fighters who didn't get to enter the ring last week will take over berths on the main squad when the Benning octet boxes in the Fort Bragg meet. They are Richard Donaldson, light heavyweight, and Lawrence Jones, middleweight.

With backetball fading out the Fot Benning athletic spotlight, diamond activities are taking its place of prominence in local sports circles. Sixteen units have started spring training for the intra-mural contests to be held at Gowdy field during the latter half this month.

Although it's still a little early for predictions, it looks like the Airborne battalion, Infantry School detachment, Student Traning regiment, and the 325th Infantry are going to be the big guns in the 1948 post playoffs.

The Airborne nine, last year's post titlists, are coming back for the 1948 season with six of last season's champs, and Coach Herb Bench believes his team might to be equal, if not stronger, than that of the 1947 team.

Harold "Pie" Traynor, former Pittshurgh Pirate thirdsacker, and the late Herb Pennock of American league hurling fame, have received the 75 percent of ballots required by the Baseball Writers' Association of America to place them in the national sport's hall of fame.

The admissions of Traynor and Pennock to the hall are the first since January, 1947, when Carl Hubbell, Mickey Cochrane, Bob "Lefty" Grove, and Frankie Frisch were honored with the elections.

The 1948 election increases the number of ballplayers in the hall of fame to 50, with five others having been selected for meritorious service.

During his career in the majors, Pennock saw service with three American league clubs, the Philadelphia Athletics, the Boston Red Sox, and the New York Yankees. His best year was 1923 when he won 19 and lost six for the New York Yankees, but his percentage soared above the .500 mark in 17 out of his 22 years in professional baseball.

All of Traynor's major leauge service was seen with the Pirates. Making his Pittsburgh debut in 1920, "Pie" played continuously with the smoky city nine until 1937 with the exception of part of the 1921 season when he was farmed out to Birmingham of the Southern association. His batting average topped .300 in eleven seasons, and reached .366 in 1930.

Others receiving more than 20 votes in the 1948 poll were Al Simmons, 60; Bill Terry and Charley Gehringer, 52 each; Paul Waner, 51; Jimmie Foxx, 50; Dizzy Dean, 40; Harry Heilmann, 40; Bill Dickey, 39; Rabbit Maranville, 38; Gabby Hartnett, 33; Joe Cronin, 25; Dizzy Vance, 23; Ray Schalk, 22, and Tony Lazzeri, 21.

SIXTEEN GOLFERS WIN CHAMPIONSHIP FLIGHT BERTHS IN GOLF TOURNAMENT

Sixteen officer linksmen of Fort Benning qualified for the championship flight of the annual officers' club golf tournament by winning their first matches at the club course Saturday afternoon. Losers in the matches automatically were placed in the first flight.

In announcing the completion of qualifying rounds, Lt. Col. Matt C. C. Bristol,, tournament division chairman of the golf committee, said that seven different flights have been arranged to accomodate more than 100 golfers who turned out for the meet.

First round matches in the championship bracket will be played on Saturday at starting times designated by the tourney committee. However, contestants in other flights have been given a one-week period ending Saturday in which to complete their initial matches.

Match play in all flights will continue throughout this month.

In last Saturday's championship division elimination matches, five contestants had to go extra holes to gain themselves berths in the top flight. The longest match of the day came when Capt. Herb Bench had to carry his opponent, Lt. Col. Emil P. Eschenburg, 22 holes to eke out a one-up margin. Col. Frank Ward needed 21 holes to hang up a win over Lt. Francis J. Carr.

Lt. Col. W. R. Cole, defending champion and medalist in this year's tourney, had no little trouble in eliminating Capt. Anthony S. Augustauskas by taking a two-and-one verdict. Capt. Augustauskas, whose qualifying score was 19 strokes higher than the medalist, put up a stuborn battle against Colonel Cole, and had the defending champ down during the out nine.

TECHNICAL KNOCKOUT SPARKS SEVENTH AIRBORNE FIGHT CARD

By VINCENT F. GIARRATANO

A technical knockout scored by Johnnie Harris over Joe Smiley in a welterweight bout at the Airborne battalion gymnasium last Thursday night, highlighted the seventh weekly Airborne boxing card of the winter season.

Approximately 800 fight fans witnessed the matches, which turned out to be the most action-packed card of the winter program.

One of the best bouts of the evening was the main event, a middleweight scrap that went to 163-pound Bob Fletcher of Company A on a split decision. However, his opponent, Chuck Smith, hard-fighting, 163-pound lad from Company E, succeeded in landing a left hook during the second stanza that sent Fletcher to the mat for a nine-count. He also put up a smart defense against Fletcher's driving jab and cross, but couldn't solve enough of the victors haymakers to swing the balloting in his direction. Both Fletcher and Smith are relatively new in the fight game.

The card opened with Tom Shane taking advantage of height and reach to rack up a unanimous decision over Tom Duval in a lightweight battle.

In the second bout, a split decision went to Middleweight John Traynor, who slugged it out for three rounds with Bob Compas.

Strong roundhouses and hooks thrown to his head by Lee Ward, Company E middleweight, proved too much for Bob Snowden, 151-pounder, as he was forced to yield a unanimous decision in the fourth contest of the evening. Snowden's emphasis was placed on body punches.

In the fifth bout, Ashley Spikes withstood a first-round rush by Don Ward to carry on a full, three-round battle, and take a close point advantage in another middle-weight classic. Spikes demonstrated unusual ring knowledge, in coming back to win.

Sending his opponetn, Joe Hobby, middleweight boxer from Company B, to the canvas four times, helped 160-pound Jim Webb gain a unanimous decision in the sixth classic of the program. Hobby took a nine-count during the middle stanza, and took three trips to the mat in the final period.

Heavyweight Don Clifford took the seventh bout of the evening by throwing plenty of leather to the head of Andy Walters, who took some gruelling punishment but managed to carry the fight the full three periods.

KEEPING POSTED

By BOB WILLIAMS

What may have been mistaken for an alert call ever afternoon at approximately three o'clock, has turned out to be candidates for baseball teams madly rushing to practice. With 16 teams scrambling for post honors, it looks like a heated battle for the championship.

Intra-mural league games will be played on Gowdy, ISD, Watson, and Bullet fields this year. Not only is a fine brand of ball expected, hut a competent staff of umpires will be available. The athletic officer has announced that a baseball umpires' school will conducted prior to the outset of league play by John Capone, graduate of the George Barr umpire school at Sanford, Fla.

T-Sgt. Frank Salmeri has been preparing the complicated baseball schedule for the coming season. Few realize the work required to put on the numerous sports activities, which, Fort Benning can boast, are second to none.

Capt. Herb Bench, manager of the Airborne battalion baseball nine, has predicted this year's team will be as good, if not better, than the one that copped the post championship last year.

That hammering and pounding out Station hospital way, is for the new library currently being prepared for operation in that area. This month should see the patients and hospital personnel enjoying the comforts and advantages of this much needed project.

Names of unit champions are being submitted for the huge recreational sports tournament to be held at the Main Post gymnasium on the nights of March 11 and 12. Champs in table tennis, horsehoes, handball, badminton, and numerous other activities will be fighting for post crowns.

The Hobby Shop, after a forced curtailment of activities for a few days because of electricity troubles, is open again for the enjoyment of all personnel.

The popular theater officer, 1st Lt. Howard R. Smith, Jr., is enjoying a 20-day leave in New York, and will meet his German bride as she arrives by air from Frankfurt, Germany. 1st Lt. Carl Ficker has assumed the duties of theater officer during Lt. Smith's absence.

Enlisted men who consistently shoot below ninety, and are familiar with the rules and etiquette of golf, are eligible for playing privileges only at the post officers' links. Persons falling in this category who desire these privileges, should submit a letter, endorsed by the commanding officers to the secretary of the officers' club, who will make arrangements for the club professional to accompany them around the course.

The ISD added another trophy to their rapidly mounting display when they defeated the Airborne battalion, Student Training regiment, last Thursday night to clinch the post volleyball championship. The Student Training regiment copped second place honors.

WANTED: GI talent for a soldier show. If you can sing, dance, act, or play any instrument, your talent is needed. Don't be bashful—just go to ServiceService club No. 1, or call S-Sgt. Williams at 2183. and arrangements will be made for an audition.

FORMER PROFESSIONAL IS TRAINER OF AIRBORNE BOXING AGGREGATION

Latest addition to the Airborne battalion's boxing roster is Hewett C. Tippins of Headquarters and Service company, who serves as gloves instructor in addition to his routine duties in the unit welfare and recreation office.

After a pugilistic debut in his home town of Brunswick, Ga., at the age of 10, "Tip" developed a strong interest in gymnasiums, speed bags, and other boxing accoutrements, and, by 1939, he had fought his way to the Southeastern Golden Gloves lightweight crown.

Shortly after his 18th birthday in 1940, Tippins enlisted in the army, and punched his way to the lightweight title of the Eighth Infantry division. Coming back to Fort Benning and his home state upon completion of basic training, the pugilistic expert joined the 502nd Parachute Infantry regiment in time to compete in and win the post lightweight title. The same year, he went on to take the lightweight tiara in the 101st Infantry division championship meet.

Tippins continued adding to his accumulation of gloves achievements by taking lightweight honors in the Piedmont Golden Gloves session and ennexing the tourney's "Best Boxing" trophy. In the Southeastern Amateur Athletic Union's gloves meet in Carlottee, N. C., he repeated in the lightweight class to take top honors by coming out on top in 39 battles.

Jumping with the first assault wave on D-Day in Normandy, "Tip" received chest and side wounds which resulted in his evacuation to England. Once recuperated, he returned to the ring to poke his way to the finals in the Rainbow Corner Red cross tournament in 1945, Tippins had a short fling at the professional ranks, and took six straight professional bouts in Miami, Fla. However, he decided that a large quantity of enemy lead he had absorbed during D-Day activities would be too great a handicap for him to overcome.

IRRC Wins 19-9 Softball Triumph

In an intra-post softball contest last Wednesday afternoon, the Infantry Radio Repairmen's course No. 2 romped to a 19 to 9 victory of the post Communications Chiefs.

Radioman Lane backed up a fine job of hurling by John Taylor and William Taylor by hitting a grand-slam homer for the winners.

While teaching a course in short story writing, a college professor informed his students that a short story would always hold a reader's interest if it began by mentioning either Diety royalty, or sex. In the first set of short stories the professor received, one freshman started his story with "My God," cried the princess," get your hand off my knee."

Motor School EM Win Volley Games

In a volleyball tilt at the motor school court last Tuesday, the enlisted men of the chassis group put up a successful defense of their school crown by taking two straight contests from the group's officers, 22 to 20, and 21 to 9.

LAWSON FIELD FLYER DIAMOND NINE INITIATES 1948 PRACTICE SESSIONS

By JIMMIE HENLEY

Sports interest at the Lawson Air Force base has switched to baseball during the past week with the inception of spring tryouts for the base diamond nine.

In addition to participating in the Fort Benning league and the Southern Air Force tournament in Orlando, Fla., the Flyers will field a team in the playoffs for the national Air Force tourney, scheduled for Aug. 6 at Chanute Field, Ill. Open dates in the Lawson schedule will be filled by arranging contests with local industrial teams, James H. Hayden, business manager, said.

Approximately 25 hopefuls have reported for training and workouts, and various positions on the squad soon will be assigned.

Team Coaches Max Seirer and Paul Blake will prepare the Flyer nine for play in the Fort Benning league which is scheduled to get under way about April 1.

Seirer, who hails from Collier, Kansas, has palyed Kansas semi-pro baseball for several years, and is versatile in all types of sports. He established an outstanding reputation as a member of the Flyers' basketball squad this year.

Blake's army baseball career dates back ten years. Prior to entering the army, he played semi-pro ball in Alabama. A southpaw hurler with the Lawson field nine last year, Blake was named outstanding player for the latter part of the season.

Doctor (complacently) "You cough more easily this morning."

Patient (queruously): "I should, I've been practicing all night."

DOUGHS WIN RING BOUTS FROM EGLIN

In their first match of the season, Fort Benning's Doughboy ringmen scored a victory over the Eglin Field Flyers of Pensacola, Fla., by taking five out of seven bouts at the Main Post gymnasium Monday night.

The Doughs took the first five bouts in succession, but dropped middleweight and heavyweight contests at the close of the evening's card.

Wisdom Stewart, Benning featherweight, initiated the card for the home glovers by chalking up a knockout, the only one of the evening, over Charles Quintana of the Flyers. Although the two battlers went through the opening period without doing much damage to each other, Stewart started the second round by throwing in hard punches with both hands, and sent his opponent to the mat 59 seconds later.

Quintana apparently was staking his chances for a win on his ability to slug, but Stewart's footwork kept him well out of reach of his foe.

Benning Squads In Bibb Tourney

At least two post basketball teams will represent Fort Benning in the Bibb Manufacturing company's hardwood tournament which opens next Monday at Comer auditorium in Columbus, the post athletic and recreation office has announced.

Doughboy Mentor Lewis Grizzard will coach a team represenfing the 204th Transportation Truck battalion and the Nehi Bottling company will field its aggregation of Fort Benning officer cagers.

The Dough coach said that he will use several of this year's post team stars in the truck battalion's lineup.

Benning Bullet Cagemen Score Triple Win In Basketball Contests Staged Last Week

By BOB PHILLIPS

Hungry for victory, the high-flying Bullet basketeers took to the floor against three opponents last week and finished with three wins and no defeats to climax a season of 12 wins and 11 losses.

Against the 837 points scored by their combined competitors, the Bullet cagers stacked up 941 to better the opposition by 104 points in the scoring department.

Motoring to Augusta on Tuesday, the Bullets tamed the roaring Lions of Paine college at the city auditorium by the top-heavy score of 59-35. The game was closely fought throughout the first half, with the score being tied three times. However, the Bullets held a 24-17 lead at the intermission.

The second stanza saw the free-scoring Bullet quintet completely overpower their fast-fading rivals, and go on to win easily. The Bullets, stellar forward, Gordon Burke, pumped in 18 points for the night's work, and walked off the court with the game's top-scoring honors.

Freddie Hamer and Bill Humphrey put the Bullets in front 27-17 a few minutes after the opening of the second half, but the fearless Lions came roaring back behind the sharp shooting of Jimmie Clayton and Gene Daggett to tie up the game at 29-29 and 31-31 before Burke slipped through two quick ones and Ed Freeman made a charity throw and a two-pointer to make the count 36-33. After that it was all Bullets as Burke and Hamer kept pouring them in from all angles.

With but one minute to play, the badly beaten Paine college five were fortunate in getting one more basket as the buzzer sounded ending the game 59-35 in favor of the high-geared soldiers.

Clayton and Freeman were high-pointers for the losers with 13 and 10 points, respectively. Hamer came second to Burke with 15.

Determined to continue their winning streak, Coach Jones' rampaging courtmen returned to their home court Thursday night to dump the traveling Crusaders from Columbus 52-37. With the exception of a 2-2 deadlock shortly after the opening of the game the Bullets kept the lead all the way.

Holding a 23-16 lead at halftime, the Bullets were hard pressed after about eight minutes of play when the Crusaders came fighting back to close up the local scoring gap to 32-28.

Burke finished with nine points, one more than team mate Roland Russell, who should have scored more, but was ejected from the game on excessive fouls. John Jones of the Crusaders took second place in point honors with an even dozen.

Out to get revenge for two previous setbacks at the hands of the Brown Boy Bottlers from Atlanta, the Bullets tangled with the Capitol city five in a savagely fought contest here Sunday, and emerged with a 32-38 triumph.

The game which saw the local five run rings around the visitors in the first half was frequently interrupted by heated arguments between the players and officials.

Trailing at half-time, the Bottlers came storming back in the second stanza to come close to catching the Bullets. George Finch, who bucketed 12 points for the visitors, led the attack, which subsided with five minutes to play, when the Bullets strengthened their defense to hold the surging Bottlers at bay. Besides playing a brilliant defensive game, Jimmie Wheeler topped the Bullet scorers with nine, while Burke and Humphrey each notched six.

Post Donations To Fund Drive Show Increase

Contributions to the 1948 Red Cross fund-raisng campaign at the close of business on March 8 totalled $2,882.70, exceeding by $447.19 the amount collected one year ago on that day, Murray E. Hill, field director, announced this week.

Largest single unit contribution on March 8 was $313.80 which was turned in by the Infantry School detachment's Company A.

Other outstanding donations were made by Company H, 25th Infantry; Battery B, 999th Field Artillery battalion; Company H, Infantry School detachment; Company E, 25th Infantry regiment; and the Food Service School.

Red Cross officials at Fort Benning said that the women's division was shelping the drive tremendously. One project, which has resulted in a total of $53.75 worth of collections, is designed to appeal to each man's pride in his home state. Jars with the name of each state painted on their sides have been placed in the lobby of the Main theater, and patrons are asked to place their donations in them.

Tables, manned by members of the women's division, are located in the post office, post exchange, post exchange grocery, bank, Main theater, and the Infantry School lobby.

Enlisted men are serving as unit representatives for the drive, and Red Cross officials reported that this has helped to boost the total collection.

The drive for funds to operate the American Red Cross will continue here through the March 31 pay day, Lt. Col. Wesley U. Moran, Infantry Center chairman, said.

AIR MANEUVERS BEGIN TUESDAY

Some 75 planes, ranging from helicopters and C-82 "flying boxcars" to FP-80 jet propelled reconnaissance aircraft, are completing rehearsals in preparation for "Operations Combine II", a series of air-ground demonstrations which begin Tuesday, March 16, at Lae field in Fort Benning's Alabama area.

An advanced detachment of Ninth Air Force headquarters personnel from Greenville, S. C., arrived here last Thursday to conduct flying practice missions in preparation for the exercise. The group is headed by Brig. Gen. Jarrad V. Crabb, deputy commander of Ninth Air Force.

Some 175 students from the Armed Forces Staff college, Norfolk, Va., will arrive Monday to witness the air-ground demonstration. The huge show gets under way Tuesday, featuring the mass paratroop drop from C-82s in the afternoon. Observers from various other branches of the armed esrvice will also be on hand through-

3RD ARMY'S NEW HEAD CHAPLAIN VISITS BENNING

A combat veteran who landed on Utah beach 24 hours after D-Day and stayed with his foot soldiers all the way to Berlin, Colonel Wilson took as Third Army chaplain on February 29, replacing Chaplain (Col) Ralph W. Rogers.

A native of Illinois, Chaplain Wilson was with the 19th Infantry division in Europe and stayed on after V-E Day as senior chaplain of the AMG in Berlin for six months. Later he became chief of chaplains of the Mediterranean area.

Credited with 225 days of front line combat in Europe, most of it in the Third Army which roared across the continent behind Gen. George S. Patton, Jr., Chaplain Wilson was awarded the Bronze Star for meritorious service in France, Luxemburg, Belgium, and Germany.

The thing that impressed him most, he relates, was "the great significance men place on communion". He estimates that he gave more than 2,000 holy communions during his 11 months of combat. He pointed out that the number does not seem too huge if you visualize a big service on a Sunday, but all of these communions were to groups of six to a dozen men, kneeling in an open field in combat beside guns and jeeps while mortar and machine gun fire went on on all around.

Chaplains Plan Easter Sunrise Services Here

Final plans are being completed for the traditional Easter sunrise service slated for 6:30 a. m., March 28 at Fort Benning's picturesque Horseshow Bowl.

Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Wallace M. Hale, Infantry Center chaplain, announced Monday that a replica of the garden tomb of Christ in Jerusalem would this year replace the usual human cross which has been used in the past.

Scenery for the symbolic tomb which will form the background for the altar will be designed by Mrs. David Milotta, and will feature a huge rock rolled away from the opening of the tomb with a figure of an angel standing guard.

Fort Benning troops and their families and civilian guests will be seated in the center of the bowl this year instead of on the sidelines as in the past, Chaplain Hale said.

The altar will be formed from earth rather than from a temporary stage, and will be banked with dogwood, red buds, and green foliage, Chaplain Hale said. All seats on the altar will be camoflaged with foliage.

The 25th Infantry male chorus, the Infantry Center chapel choir, the Infantry Center youth choir, and 72nd Army band will provide religious music. The choirs and the band will be seated to the right, left, and in front of the altar.

The program will open with a concert of sacred music by the band, followed by a call to worship by the band's trumpeteers.

SAND HILL UNIT HAS FAMILY DAY

The first 1948 Family Day celebration was staged at the Sand Hill area last Sunday, honoring married personnel of the Second battalion, 25th Infantry regiment.

The occasion, sponsored by Mrs. Kate L. Trent, recreational hostess at Sand Hill, attracted visitors and guests from the Main Post, Columbus, and neighboring communities.

Climaxed by a program in the recreation rooms of Service club No. 2, the day's festivities opened with games.

During intermission the guests were entertained by the much heralded Variety Show. Composed of personnel from Sand Hill units, this is the same show that has won much praise in performances in post theaters.

With S-Sgt. Jesse Owens directing the cast, the show opened with "boogie-woggie" piano renditions by Pfc. Thomas Terrell. Pfc. Cordell Moses, with vocal renditions of "Embraceable You" and "Night and Day", and the twin piano team of Pfc. Thomas Terrell and Pfc. Carl Perkins came in for loud praise.

AWARDED HONOR BADGES AT MEET

A record crowd of over 200 attended the monthly park meeting of the Fort Benning Boy Scouts at the Polo Hunt club last Friday night, at which time the largest number of awards to be presented at a single meeting since the unit was organized here over two years ago were awarded.

In the highlight of the evening Donald Thornhill was awarded the Webelos badgs, the highest honor awarded to a cub scout. The badge was presented by Sgt. Harry Duffield, scoutmaster, who welcomed Thornhill into Troop 27.

HENRY 'HOT LIPS' BUSSE FEATURED FOR NCO CLUB DANCE ON SUNDAY

The Post NCO Club, Pine lodge, will present another outstanding band on Sunday evening, March 14, from 7:30 to 11:30 p. m. when Henry Busse, the famous "Hot Lips" trumpet man, brings his name band here. Charge will be one dollar a couple. with additional feminine guests being invited to accompany members, at one dollar per guest. Dress for ladies will be optional.

Henry Busse is bringing his featured vocalist, Miss Betty Taylor, and Tommy Nichols for his Fort Benning presentation. The background of Henry Busse and his orchestra is outstanding, as they are one of the most versatile groups in the business. In addition to playing engagements in the leading hotels of the nation, they have had engagements in theaters, have made movie shorts, records, and transcriptions. They are also popular radio performers, having been guest artists for the Bing Crosby show, Fitch, Chase and Sanborn, and others.

Henry Busse was born in Holland and came to the United States with a suitcase, a battered trumpet, and three dollars in cash. His Dutch determination brought him to the top in his chosen profession, via a musical apprenticeship playing in "joints", working with one band and then another, taking his own men on the road and going through the same process all over again until the band bearing his name was able to command big jobs and salaries to match. His band really got its start in Cincinnati with a lot of important air time over WLW. They went to the Chez Paree for one show—the engagements there usually last seven weeks—and stayed three years, Then they played the New Yorker, the Coconut Grove, New Orleans' Roosevelt hotel, and the Palace in San Francisco. As a band they were made.

Busse has become famous in his own right through recordings featuring his playing, such as "When Day Is Done" and "Hot Lips". While his style of horn playing is not the type to make the jitterbug-set delirious, he has a modern band that the youngsters like. He caters to the kids when playing for school dances but for hotel engagements the sweeter style of music is more popular. Versatile Henry Busse takes care of both, whicb goes a long way toward explaining his nation-wide popularity. As a busy bandsman, he has little time for playboy preoccupations, but likes to play golf and ice-skate, and is an avid spectator where football and baseball are concerned.

ENVIABLE RECORD COMPILED BY 319TH

A full year of accident-free driving, during which time an average of 81 vehicles per day were dispatched a total of 292,-035, miles is the proud record compiled by the 319th Field Artillery battalion.

Driving over all types of roads, many times under adverse conditions, approximately one-third of the huge mileage was driven with the 105 mm howitzer as a towed load.

Much of the credit for the fine record is due to the almost flawless status of maintenance which, during the same period, was consistently better than the standards set by Army Ground Forces, officials said. Shop and motor records were maintained with an average of 0.18 deficiences per month as compared to the 2.50 deficiencies per month as allowed by AGF standards.

The battalion's motor records have been cited by many inspecting teams of higher headquarters. The standards of maintenance and shop record were established through the efforts of WOJG Crawford H. McInturff, motor officer, and M-Sgt. Henry J. Benson, battalion motor sergeant, who supervised and corrected the maintenance.

The final prayer will be said by Chaplain (Capt.) Russell O. Kirsch, assistant Infantry Center chaplain.

In the final day of the exercise Thursday, March 18, an abbreviated demonstration in the morning of a battalion in defense with air support will be conducted. Students of the Armed Forces Staff college and other observers will move in the afternoon of the same day to Eglin field, Fla., where they will witness another edition of the exercise as conducted with the Air Proving Ground command.

Operations on opening day will get under way at 4 p. m. when FP-80 shooting stars make a low-level photo reconnaissance of the grandstand. Action begins shortly thereafter as P-51 Mustang fighters dive-bomb an enemy supply dump in the target area. Eight minutes later the Mustangs will Napalm bomb a mock village.

At 4:10 p. m. the P-51 Mustangs begin their rocket attack and strafing of flak tower in the enemy village. The pathfinder team will arrive immediately following and will be dropped from C-82s. At 4:14 hundreds of paratroopers will be dropped in the eenmy area from C-82s. Once the paratroopers land, eight CG-15 gliders will be released from four C-82s. Troops will be re-supplied from C-82s a few minutes later.

An aerial dog-fight between an FP-80 jet-propelled Shooting Star and a P-51 Mustang is scheduled for 4:29. A minute later a helicopter is scheduled to land in front of the grandstand to pick up a messenger. Following a wire-laying demonstration by a C-82 flying boxcar, simulated evacuation of wounded troops will be executed from the road in front of the grandstand by glider snatch pick-up.

BACHELOR OFFICERS ORGANIZE MESS IN FORMER WAC DETACHMENT AREA

Completed through plans carried out by the tentative mess council, the bachelor officers' mess, located at the corner of Pearman and Ingersoll streets, has been in operation for about a week and a half, serving the first meal March 1.

The mess hall was formerly one of the buildings in the old WAC detachment area. Rebuilt with new interior innovations and decorations, the new officers' mess will be run by the bachelor officers themselves.

The Food Service School, which supplies most of the personnel and kitchen equipment, has been placed in charge of the kitchen, while assistance in the operation has come from G-4 headed by Col. Thomas M. Brinkley, the post engineer, Col. Harold A. Stewart, and the food supervisor, Lt. Col. Lyle J. Fitzpatrick.

Personnel of the ration breakdown section, under Capt. Harry D. Balliet, were responsible for the rehabilitation and improvement of the building.

All permanent officers now living at the bachelor officers' quarters on the post are eligible to use the new mess. Membership is still open, and bachelor officers desiring to use the facilities can contact any of the mess council members, or inquire at the mess hall.

Members may sign for either of the two different meal plans, one calling for two meals per day and the other for three meals. Now being served cafeteria style, the meal schedule calls for breakfast from 6:30 to 8 a. m., dinner from 11:30 a. m. to 1 p. m., and supper from 6 to 8 p. m.

Meal hours for Sundays and holidays are breakfast from 8 to 11 a. m., dinner from 12 to 2 p. m., and supper from 6 to 8 p. m.

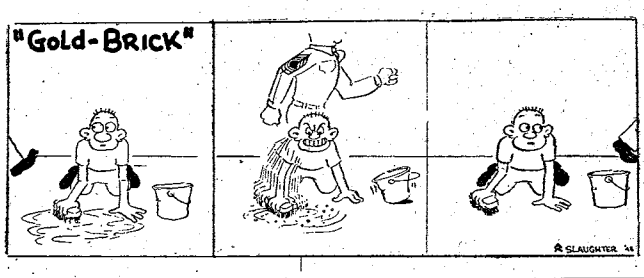
AMERICANISM

What do we mean when we say, "I am American"?

We haven't thought too much about this since the downfall of Nazism, but it was brought to our attention rather forcibly this week when we were accused of practicing discrimination. Since we have been editor of The Bayonet, there has, to our knowledge, never been an instance when we have been guilty of suppressing or slanting any kind of news because of a man's color or creed. On the contrary, we recognize no specific breed of American citizen. To us all Americans are Americans—simply that and nothing more.

It has never entered our mind that anyone, other than those people who oppose the American way of life, should be denied equal rights with all others, whether it be printing a news story of his accomplishments in The Bayonet or the exercise of equal voting privileges. This accusation was, consequently, quite a blow to us.

The Bayonet believes that there is no such thing as race in America. This country was discovered, explored, and settled by people from practically every western European nation, the section of the then known world which had the highest and most advanced civilization. These settlers came to the shores of America for three primary purposes, the least among them persecution. Our constitution is based on the precept that all men are created equal with certain rights which are inalienable. Among these rights are life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness.



Being endowed with a feeling of nationalism, without bitterness or bias against any section of the United States, we believe that all Americans are brothers. Indeed we believe that all mankind are brothers. Under this theory, how can any American be put in a select class, all alone, with the right to look down his nose at anyone else? Of course, we believe that all Americans, born under the banner of freedom, have a slight advantage over people born in other countries. Still, this does not give us the right to say we are a superior people. This is even more true in the case of one American speaking of another American.

True, some have more opportunities than others. Some are able to get a greater amount of education. Some are members of families with vast wealth. Some even "hit it lucky", and make their own fortunes. But the fact remains that underneath all this polished veneer, we are brother Americans.

If we profess to be American, we certainly can not harbor any ill feelings or any prejudice for any man merely because his skin is not the same color as ours. This applies not only to the white man in his dealings with those of color, but also to the man of color in his dealings with the white man.

Lieutenant Billy Bingham expressed very aptly our own ideas on Americanism when he spoke to the Phenix City Junior Chamber of Commerce last week. He said that prejudice against any group of citizens threatens our democracy, and that "the men who built America, who cleared her forests, spanned her rivers, dig her coal, plow her fields, work her machines—the men who made America strong and free are men of every race, color, religion, and nationality, and this we must always remember".

Yes, that is one thing we must always remember if we want to keep America strong and free.

Chaplain's Corner..

THE KING'S STANDARD

By

CHAPLAIN H. E. LAURION

If we choose Christ as our model, and we do precisely that as Christians, then we cannot escape His standard. The Standard of the King is the cross. There is no escape from God. The cross is a stumbling block for those who refuse it. Unto those who seek God it is the way of salvation and the royal road to heaven.

Thus the poet Joyce Kilmer utters a soldier's prayer based on the acceptance of the cross, a thought that will ever be immemorial.

My shoulders ache beneath my pack,
Lie easier Cross upon his back.
I march with feet that burn and smart
Tread holy feet upon my heart.

Men shout at me that may not speak,
They scouraged Thy back and smote Thy cheek
I may not lift my hand to clear
My eyes of salty drops that sear
Then shall my fickle soul forget
The agony of Bloody Sweat.

My rifle hand is still and numb
From Thy pierced palms red rivers run
Lord, thou hast suffered more for me,
Than all the hosts of land and sea,
So let me render back again,
This millionth of Thy gift.
Amen

The peace which the world is thirsting for can be found only in the cross. The King for whom men are looking will never be found in a political leader, a worldly potentate, an economic adviser. For the peace of hearts is not of this world's making. It is founded in the spirit and in God. We cannot find the King unless we choose the road that leads to him. That road is most assuredly the Cross. Look to your standard this holy season of Lent. Is it rooted in worldliness? Are our hearts unworldly in the sense of seeking the Kingdom of God? Is the standard of the thorn-crowned King our standard? If so, we accept, we embrace.... the Cross.

The Old Salt Says: "A wise husband will buy his wife such fine china that she won't trust him to wash dishes.

"I wish to marry your daughter, sir."

"Do you drink, young man?"

"Thanks, but let's get this other matter settled first."

Mrs.: "Before we were married you always caught me in your arms."

Sgt. "Yeah, and ever since I've been catching you in my pockets."

Your Red Cross

By MURRAY E. HILL

Every March during the Red Cross fund campaign there is something that always comes up that is outstanding and this year has been no exception. I have been deeply touched by the offers of service and contributions from unexpected places, but that which perhaps was the most touching and certainly the brightest spot in the entire campaign so far were the activities of two little boys less than 11 years old.

Along the first part of last week, during one of those terrible rainy afternoons, these little boys came into the Red Cross office looking as wet as the proverbial drowned chicken. They had with the major that looked almost as big as they were, and in this jar they had $4.32.

On introducing myself, I was launched into a most delightful conservation with young Allen Ormiston, son of Major Edward J. Ormiston, and equally as young Larry Roelofs, son of Lt. Col. Thomas B. Roelofs. The boys told me that, although they had not been asked to do so, they had decided to do something for the Red Cross.

Said Larry, "A man gave Al and me 25 cents to take his pants to the Post Exchange, and I said to Al, 'wouldn't it be nice if we could do something for the Red Cross?' We talked it over, and decided instead of giving 25 cents we would give a nickel to the Red Cross and buy two boxes of shoe polish and see if we couldn't earn more money for the Red Cross." And so they did. They teamed up and went into business, the shoe shining business.

In spite of the rain Tuesday afternoon they set up their business under a bush and by 5 p. m. brought in their first $4.32. I thought, of course, when they said they would see me again the next day it was only a childish statement but little did I know these two young men.

In spite if the weather on Wednesday afternoon they again set up business under the same bush. Around 5 p. m. they proudly arrived at the Red Cross office soaking wet, but with $8.42 in their jar.

You know, when I talked to these two kids it certainly made me want to do more for the Red Cross. Now that you know their story, how do you feel?

GI HUMOR

OUR TOP-KICK SAYS: "A good wife is a woman who will stick to you through all the troubles you wouldn't have had if you hadn't married her."

As the harassed driver approaches an extremely narrow and dangerous pass on a tortuous road in the Rocky Mountains, he is reassured by a roadside sign reading: "Oh yes you con....Millions have."

Sick Book Jockey: "Say, I asked that nurse to put a hot water bottle at my feet and she walked out."

S. B. J.: "Man, how they specialize these days."

502: "How do you like the new Adjutant?"

055: "O.K., but he's a little narrow minded."

502: "What makes you think so?"

055: "He thinks words can only be spelled one way."

Soldier: "Nice dog you have."

Barber: "Yeh pretty good."

Soldier: "Stays by you pretty good, too."

Barber: "Yeah, pretty good."

Soldier: "Got him trained, eh?"

Barber: "Naw, when I make a mistake and nick off an ear or something he likes to be on hand."

Local Courtmen Win in Tourney

Dough Triumph In Bibb Classic Led By Corizzi

Romping over a Cataula Atbletic club quintet to the tune of 82 to 25 in the opener of the Bibb Manufacturing company cage tournament at Columbus' Comer auditorium Monday night, the Fort Benning Doughboys made preparations to meet the Phenix City Sports shop hoopsters Wednesday evening.

Upon completion of the tourney, the Dougbs will hang up their uniforms for the 1948 season.

In Monday night's game, the Cataula quintet found itself completely outclassed during tbe opening stanza when the Benning five surged to an early lop-sided lead. Led by eagle-eyed Harold Corizzi, the Doughboys had gained themselves a 19 to 6 margin at the contest's first time-out break.

Mid-way through the initial period, the army bucketmen had heaped up such an advantage that Coach Lewis Grizzard delegated the Dough floor duties to his reserves. Carrying on in expert fashion, the B-stringers wound up the first half on the top side of a 45 to 16 count.

Taking possession of the court to start the final half, the Benning subs continued to outplay the Cataula lads until the score stood at 68 to 19. The main Dough squad took the floor for the game's final ten minutes, and managed to hang up twelve more tallies for the Grizzardmen.

Doughboy scoring was led by Corizzi, who penetrated Cataula's defense to drop in 12 field goals and two charity heaves for 26 tallies. B-string Center Bob Hedneтson took over second place on the individual scoring roster by chalking up 11 markers on four shots from the court and three free tosse s.

Top spot on the Cataula scoring list was taken by Guard Jim Camp, whose four successful hardwood attempts and two gratis throws accounted for 10 scores for tbe defeated aggregation.

Although he turned in a brilliant defensive performance, Harold Litz Doughboy guard, was the only one of the army men who failed to score during the clash.

Scovil Quits Local Cagers For School

After swapping his Doughboy basketball garb for "civvies" last week, Doug Scovil, who starred at center for the local cagers this season, has returned to his home in San Francisco, Calif., preparatory to resuming his schooling.

At the time of his departure from Fort Benning, Scovil had not definitely decided which university he would enter, but indicated a preference for Stanford.

During his army career at Benning, Scovil offset his court performances by being a member of the Doughboy football and track squads. Playing at end for the Dough gridiron eleven last fall, Scovil turned out to be an unusually capable pass receiver. His track and field activities were climaxed by taking first place in the 880-yard run to help the local delegates capture the Third Army championship last year.

The lanky athlete's accuracy on long shots from the basketball court enabled him to wind up in second place on the Doughboys' individual scoring roster for the 1947-48 cage season.

Bowling Squad Wins By Forfeit

Officer bowlers of the 319th Field Artillery battalion chalked up four points in the post officers' bowling league Monday afternoon by accepting a forfeit from the Lawson field keglers.

AF TRACKMEN SCHEDULE MEET

Lawson Air Force base will be host to contestants from several Air Force bases in the Southern Air Force track meet to be held at Fort Benning in June. Lawson will enter its own team in the meet under the leadership of Captain Richard B. Overfield.

Overfield, a veteran track star, who still holds state high school championship for Kansas in the 100-yard and 200-yard dashes, has stated that Lawson shows promises of having a good track and field team this year.

Individuals participating in the Southern Air Force track meet who demonstrate outstanding talents will be given a chance to compete in the National Air Force track classic in Colorado Springs, Colo., in July.

THIRD ARMY SLATES TRACK TOURNEY ON FORT BENNING FIELD NEXT MONTH

Fort Benning will be host to track and field teams of the Third Army area in the annual tournament, slated to be held on the local layout April 27, 28, and 29.

Originally scheduled for April 22 and 23, the meet was postponed a week since the earlier dates conflicted with maneuvers to be staged by some of the participants.

The Third Army classic will be preceded by a post tournament to be held here April 13 and 14, at which time representatives for the Doughboy post team will be selected. It was pointed out that competition in the post meet will be on an individual basis, and units will not be permitted to enter teams in the tourney.

In the army meet, the Doughs will be the defending champions. The local trackmen took possession of the crown on the Benning field last year by scoring a one-sided victory over Fort Bragg, N. C.

Although first place winners in the post tourney will receive gold awards, and will be rewarded with berths on the Dough squad, second place winners in all events will get silver medals, and men who place third will be awarded bronze medals.

The field for the post team will be open since all members of the 1947 champs have taken leave of Fort Benning.

Events to be included in both the post and army meets are the one-mile run, 440-yard dash, 100-yard dash, 120-yard high hurdles, 880-yard run, 220-yard dash two-mile run, 220-yard low hurdles, one-mile relay, pole vault, high jump, discus, shot put, javelin and broad jump.

ENTERS FOURTH WEEK

The Airbornes battalion's class No. 11 entered its fourth week of training here last Monday with a total of 117 enlisted men and nine officers enrolled.

TWO DIAMOND TILTS WITH COLUMBUS SCHEDULED BY BENNING AGGREGATION

The Doughboy baseball nine will get its first taste of working as a diamond combination this season when the local lads meet the Columbus Cardinals for a two-game exhibition series this month.

The first tilt has been scheduled for the afternoon of March 21, and will be played at Golden park in Columbus. To return the Doughs' visit, the Redbirds will come to Gowdy field for a game at 2 p. m. on March 24.

However, the Doughs will not begin their regular season schedule until after the post's intra-mural playoffs have been completed.

Citing his prospects for a successful year, Coach Herb Bench pointed out that the majority of the members of the 1947 Third Army championship Doughboy squad will be back for this year's classics.

The coach believes that his principal difficulty in forming the 1948 team will be acquiring a competent mound staff. Although three hurlers have returned to the Doughs this year, there are still berths on the post team for able pitchers. The coach also lamented the fact that he is suffering from a shortage of catchers. He anticipates filling out his battery gaps with talent he may discover during the post league play.

Moundsmen returning from last year are Ken Watts, Ike Silcox, and Andy Boland. Chick Shiver, who saw service as a receiver last year, will be a candidate for a catching berth.

The special services office is now located in the southwest tower of Doughboy stadium. The offices of Capt. Peter L. Kelley, youth officer of Fort Benning, and Sgt. Harry Duffield, scoutmaster, are located on the first floor of this office.

Handball players will be glad to know that all four courts at the Main Post gymnasium have received a face lifting. Gloves and balls can be drawn from the charge of quarters on duty at the gym.

Tonight is the night for the first elimination rounds in the recreational sports carnival at the Main Post gymnasium. All eliminations are to be completed tonight, and the finalists will meet for the post championship tomorrow night.

The 25th Infantry chorus will present a concert at Service Club No. 1 on March 14 at 8:30 p. m. This chorus has been a continually popular feature, having many successful engagements both in Columbus and at Fort Benning.

Attention model airplane enthusiasts! Model airplanes are now available at the Main Post hobby shop. Flying models, solid models, and gliders are on hand, and all equipment for assemblying the planes is available.

Work is being carried on at a rapid pace at the post swimming pools, and the athletic officer has announced that they will open on May 5, if favorable weather exists.

The redecoration of Service club No. 1 is now underway. The interior will receive a much needed paint job, plus many other necessities for brightening up this popular recreational spot.

Dances are being held the first Friday of each month at the Army Navy YMCA clubs in Columbus. Dances for white personnel are held alternately between the 11th street YMCA and the NCCS club. Dances for colored personnel are held at the fifth avenue YMCA. Transportation will be furnished all personnel desiring to attend, and will leave from Service club No. 1 at 4 p. m. and 7:30 p. m. Music is furnished by bands from Fort Benning.

Fort Benning's first senior scout unit was organized here this week with an initial membership of twelve boys. All boys fifteen years of age or over are eligible to join this unit, and are urged to call Sgt. Duffield at 2176 for information.

BISHOP ASSUMES ATHLETIC DUTIES

An active participant in sports, Lieutenant Bishop attended Texas Agricultural and Mechanical college, where his athletic record included football, baseball, soccer, basketball, volleyball, swimming and track. During his army tour, the new A and R officer played basketball with the 78th AACS unit at Langley field, Va.

A graduate of the Fort Benning Infantry Officer Candidate school and the Army Cryptographic school at Scott field, Ill., Lieutenant Bishop hails from Dallas, Tex.

Kayo Scored By Airborne Middleweight In Semi-Final Program Of Winter Bouts

SGT. VINCENT F. GIARRATANO

As the Airborne battalion winter boxing season draws to close, the fighters on the weekly cards show a marked improvement which, if continued, will allow the season to bow out gloriously, and leave fans looking forward to a summer program of thrills for the admirers of pugilism.

The summer season will be initiated about June 1 in the outdoor ring, directly across from the Airborne gymnasium. Next week's card will conclude the winter series.

Last Thursday night's show highlighted the season, and turned out to provide plenty of thrills and chills for a capacity crowd of 900 fans that left standing room only.

In a fast moving, action packed card, top honors were copped by Don Ward, 150 pounds, of Company F, when he scored a clean knockout over Tom McGillicuddy, same weight, of Company D. The Company F middleweight faced strong opposition in the first round, but carried the rest of the bout to drop his opponent for the nine count in the second, and end it after seventeen seconds of the third when McGillicuddy took his final trip to the canvas.

Company A of the 504th Parachute Infantry was well represented by four good, popular fighters, who were matched for their farewell appearance prior to returning to Fort Bragg, N. C., and spring maneuvers.

Paul Schmeling upheld the 504th's pride by leaving undefeated after his Thursday night win by unanimous decision over Heavyweight Len Fletcher of Company C after three rounds of hard blow exchanges. The lads put on the type of slugfest which fight fans like to see.

Al Newberry, Company K's classy little welterweight, dropped a unanimous decision to James Hall, 145 pounds, of Company C, who had a tough fight on his hands, but eked out his victory through the smart use of left hooks and roundhouse rights that gained him the lead.

Newberry's loss was compensated for by 135-pound Brooks Huffman's TKO score over Charlie Patrick of Company D in 45 seconds of the second round. Patrick was forced out of the battle by a pulled shoulder ligament.

The 504th dropped the feature of the evening when Larry Skennandore, 159 pounds, failed to score a win in his main event return go with Bob Fletcher, a light heavyweight of Company A. Skannandore's usual tactics of carrying the fight to his opponent, crowding and throwing plenty of leather, didn't quite measure up to Fletcher's cool counter punching, good boxing, and measured haymaker right, which he landed with telling effect in all three rounds. The decision, in Fletcher's favor, was unanimous.

Heavyweight Don Clifford, 194-pounder of Company B, drew blood early in the first round and kept it flowing from the nose of hard-hitting John Howard, 187 pounds, of Headquarters and Service company, to win a split decision.

In the light heavy class, Andrew Walters of Company B outpointed Jack Price of Company D despite the staggering effects of Price's roundhouse rights.

John Traynor, 152 pounds, of Company F, packing a mean wallop in either hand, won by unanimous decision in his bout with John Carver, 155 pounds, of Company C, who made a stand for the three rounds, but couldn't chalk up enough points.

219 GRADUATE

High Scores Mark Weekly Pin Activity At Sand Hill Lanes

Chalking up a single-line total of 266, William Owens of Columbus took high-game honors from a field of approximately 150 military and civilian keglers last week at Sand Hill's modern, six-lane bowling alley.

Military personnel who attained high scores in the week's bowling included M-Sgt. William T. Carver, who rolled 248 to lead the army keglers, and M-Sgt. William F. Bivens, who took second place with 245.

The week's top woman bowler was Mrs. Mildred Thomas, who racked up a score of 233. Taking second place was Mrs. Virginia K. Armstrong with 212, while an even 200 score gained Mrs. George Brant third place.

In company competition, Company G outpointed Headquarters battery, 999th Field Artillery battalion, 2,026 to 1,777, and Battery B of the 999th battalion turned back Battery A of the same unit by a score of 1,722 to 1,659.

DOUGHS SWAMP ELM CITY COURTMEN IN FINAL HOME GAME OF 1948 SEASON

In the opening session of a two-feature basketball classic at the Main Post gymnasium Tuesday night, Fort Benning's Doughboys rang up an 83 to 34 triumph over the Calloway Millers of Elm City.

The game, sandwiched between contests in the Bibb Manufacturing company tournament now in progress at Columbus' Comer auditorium, was the final home clash for the Doughs, who will put away their uniforms upon completion of the Bibb meet.

The lop-sided victory was the second win by a wide margin in two days for the Benning squad. In their Monday night tourney encounter, the locals swamped a Cataula athletic club quintet 82 to 25.

Taking the lead during the initial minutes of the game, the Doughs could have written their own ticket in the scoring department of the Elm City game. However, Coach Lewis Grizzard elected to let his reserves perform most of the home team's floor duties.

Displaying excellent defensive tactics, the Doughboy cagers held the Millers' opportunities to shoot from the floor at a minimum. The losing squad managed for only 11 field goals, but built up their score by dunking 12 charity heaves.

Leading the Doughboy individual scoring roster for the first time this season, Forward Al Ratner notched 18 tallies for the home cagers by dropping in eight shots from the field, and getting two for two in charity attempts. Harold Lutz, Benning guard, who has been a defensive standout throughout the season, proved that he was versatile in the game by dunking seven field goals for a 14-point total.

Ratner was the only player forced to leave the game on excessive fouls. He was charged with his fifth infraction during the closing minutes of the contest.

Forward Bill Webb copped individual scoring laurels for the visiting quintet by totaling 10 counters on three floor shots and four free heaves. Close behind was Forward Babe Whatley, who racked up nine Elm City points.

CANDIDATES BEGIN PRACTICE SESSION FOR BULLET SQUAD

By BOB PHILLIPS

Despite the turnout of more than 80 candidates in answer to Player-Coach Charlie Toliver's call for diamond aspirants, wet grounds and intermittent rains have hampered the Bullets' opportunity to get in outside practice, and have driven the baseballers to the field house for their daily workouts.

Limbering-up exercises and light ball tossing have occupied most of the time allotted to last week's practice sessions.

Coach Toliver, a veteran of many years of baseball, and a better-than-average diamond strategist, plans to cut his huge squad of 80 down to no more than 20 by the end of this week.

Looking over his charges, Coach Toliver expressed confidence that he can field a team which will be a strong contender for the post championship.

Holdovers from last year's team, who are making an equally good showing this year, are Shortstop Gordon Burke, Catcher Nick Nichols, Third-baseman Booker T. Jones, and Pitchers Walt Scott and Horace Smith.

Newcomers who are making a potent bid for team berths are Pitchers Charles Patrick and Willie Conerly, Second-man Odie Brown, First-baseman Columbus Bryant, Catcher Oscar Robinson, and Outfielders Richard Hall, Leon Coleman, and Gerard Garcia.

Hart, McGlynn Receive Letters Of Appreciation

Capt. John M. Hart and 1st Lt. Thomas F. McGlynn, both members of the 319th Field Artillery battalion, have received letters of appreciation from Brig. Gen. Reuben E. Jenkins, president of Army Ground Forces board No. 3, for assistance in recent tests of the 81 mm and 4.2 inch mortars, it has been announced.

According to General Jenkins, Captain Hart's and Lieutenant McGlynn's "invaluable assistance" was "essential to the proper evaluation of these experimental weapons".

SPORTS QUIZ

1. Soon the major league baseball teams will head South for Spring training. If you were a sports writer and traveled with one of the clubs you might send this story back to your home-town paper. Only first, of course, you would have to fill in the blank spaces.

"The world's champions (a) opened their 1948 training season here today, with manager (b) at the helm. Brightest news is that (c), sluggish left-fielder out last season with an injured back, is in shape. His return, plus the addition of Red (d) to the pitching staff, makes this ball team look like the club to beat in the coming pennant race."

2. If you followed another club, your story might run something like this:

"Although they finished in a tie with the Phils for last place in the (e) League last summer, the (f) have a much improved ball team this year and hope to go higher. (g), slugging outfielder who blasted (h) home runs to tie with Mize for the league leadership, will head the stickmen, a potent lot even with the loss of veteran (i), former Tiger star."

SLANTS on SPORTS

By Lewis Mc Afee
Bayonet Sports Editor

With the conclusion of the Bibb Manufacturing company basketball tournament, members of the 1948 Doughboy squad will hang up their trunks and jerseys—most of them for keeps. All of this year's main-stringers either have left or are leaving the army in the near future, but some of the reserves are planning to return to the Doughboy court next season.

Center Doug Scovil, one of the year's offensive standouts, is the only member of the cage squad who didn't remain until the close-out of the schedule. However, Forwards Bob Kinard and Harold Corizzi, and Guards Harold Haberman and Harold Lutz, plan to shed their uniforms to take a fling at civilian life within the next two months.

Up to the time they entered the Bibb tourney, the hapless Doughs had chalked up 20 victories against 15 defeats, and were eliminated in both of the major tournaments they entered.

During the season, when the Benning lads became involved in a close one, lady luck obstinately refused to smile on them, and, as a result, they were forced to yield 11 tilts in which a Dough field goal would have tied or reversed the score. The only teams which were able to take the local cagers by more than two points were the Fort Jackson, Fort Bragg, and E-Z Mills aggregations.

According to Coach Lewis Grizzard, what the Doughs lacked in ability was made up for in conscientiousness, spirit and discipline. He cited the cagers as "not only a good bunch of ballplayers, but fine soldiers as well". Coach Grizzard said that, at the time he took over the helm from Ced Tallis, he was more than pleased to be associated with a team which had been so well indoctrinated with the ideals of sportsmanship and fairplay.

With baseball workouts well underway on Fort Benning diamonds, the Doughboy post nine will stake their chances for a recapture of the Third Army title on the return of several of last year's Gowdy field stars, plus numerous talented newcomers to post baseball circles.

Coach Herb Bench definitely is looking for mound talent, however, and assured aspirants for hurling jobs that his pitching staff is somewhat undernourished. Two of last year's ace lefthanders, Ike Silcox and Ken Watts, are back with the Doughs this year, but the coach has hopes of bolstering his pitching roster with some capable relief hurlers.

An enigma clouding the 1948 season is the likelihood of Glenn Davis, all-american gridiron star with a reputation of an all-around athlete, entering the race for an outfield berth on the Doughboy squad. To establish eligibility for a post on the Doughboy aggregation, it would be mandatory that Davis play on a unit team in the Fort Benning intramural league.

The ring death of Sam Baroudi, Cincinnati, Ohio light heavyweight, in Chicago on Feb. 20, has touched off a series of investigations into Illinois boxing activities. However, to date, the Illinois Boxing commission has taken no official steps to prevent a recurrence of such a tragedy.

One plan under consideration for reducing the number of Illinois ring deaths is the adoption of heavier gloves for both championship and other than championship bouts. It is possible that the commission already has voted in the use of gloves with more padding.

However, a more needed factor than added glove padding is a more thorough physical examination for fighters prior to letting them enter the ring. A complete medical history also should enable boxing commissions to determine whether or not a boxer should be kept out of the ring for reasons of health protection.

A survey of ring deaths will show that several fatalities can be attributed to a physical ailment of the fighter that was not revealed prior to the time he entered the squared circle. Still other fatal ring accidents have occured in cases where boxers had undergone recent hospitalizations, and the fact of treatment or hospitalization had been either withheld or disregarded.

Although Ezzard Charles, who landed the blows that allegedly caused Baroudi's demise, announced after the [illegible] he would retire from the ring, he decided to reconsider a continuation of his boxing career. Undoubtedly Charles' decision was encouraged by Sam Crandall, father of the deceased fighter, who admonished him not to give up fighting. Crandall told Charles: "Our family bears no bitterness. Don't give up your career".

SOLDIER WHO HELPED PERFECT AIRBORNE ARM STATIONED HERE

Editor's note: This is the first in a series of feature stories compiled and written by students in the Infantry Center vocational school's journalism course.

by
ED WEBER

To jump from an airplane that is speeding along at about 110 miles an hour takes plenty of thought, brawn, and the proverbial "guts". But to be one of the first to perform the feat for the army, especially when the parachute was hardly perfected, took something more than that.

Cpl. George Ivy, now with the Airborne battalion here, was one of the original test parachute jumpers for the army who made the modern chute, perfected it, jumped with it, and helped to make the parachute infantry what it is today.

It all started back in June, 1940, when a select group from the 29th Infantry regiment here volunteered to experiment with the parachute, with which the Army at that time was planning great things. The men were processed, mentally and physically, and then work began with 48 enlisted men and two officers.

LIVED IN TENTS

Tents were erected near Lawson field where the strenous training began. Hikes and runs for miles and miles that made the lungs seem to want to burst training with "dumbell bars" that seemed to make the arms as heavy as lead were the order for the day as this initial crew began its airborne training. Finally, the men learned to pack parachutes and made mock jumps from small platforms in order to gain the knowledge of position before the actual jumping.

The B-18 bomber and the C-39 transport planes were then used as the jump planes. The small doors in the fuselage of these two planes were hardly adequate, and made the task hazardous.

"Before the actual jumnipg began", states Corporal Ivy, "we were sent to Heightstown, N. J., where we made leaps from the 125-foot naval towers.

"That 125-foot tower", continued Corporal Ivy, "seemed miles in the air as I was slowly hoisted to the top. The men below seemed to be ants running around with no place to go. My chute was overhead and suddenly I was released. A quick gust of air hit me in the face, and then came the contact with the ground, my body bouncing with the impact."

Following preparatory training at Heightstown, the small group was sent back to Lawson field, where the actual jumping was to be made. Lots were drawn for positions of jumping from the respective plane. Corporal Ivy was in the first plane to leave the field.

Last minute inspections were made of equipment, chutes, reserve chutes, helmets, boots, men were placed in position, and, finally, came the takeoff. After all the strenuous training, the jumpers were now on their way in the climax of their new assignment.

A certain Corporal Wallace was the first to jump, the first man ever to jump for the U. S. Army in this new undertaking. His chute opened neatly, he glided earthward, and landed safely. One man refused to leave the door for his leap, but the rest of the crew, undaunted, followed behind Corporal Wallace.

"It was my turn to go", says Ivy, "I hooked up on my cable and then leaped from the small plane, felt the pressure and gust as the air hit me. There was a sudden jolt as the chute opened, and as I looked up at the blossom of silk over my head, I murmered a slight prayer of thanks."

JUMPED WITH PISTOLS

During the experimental stages of parachute jumping, the men jumped with pistols, firing while dangling in mid-air. Rifles were later used, but when the chute opened, the rifle was lost in the process. The task of jumping with arms was remedied later when Corporal Wallace, the first man to jump, devised the Wallace Bag, and helped perfect the now-famous Griswold container. The container, strapped to the leg, contains the stripped rifle.

Corporal Ivy then goes on to explain, "After these first few jumps we made more experimental jumps at different altitudes. One of these leaps, at the height of 400 feet, was performed before Gen. George C. Marshall and then Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson.

Corporal Ivy, later in the experimental training program, ran into a bit of tough luck, breaking his ankle as a result of a poor landing fall during a leap in September, 1940.

With the training completed, the small test platoon then became the nucleus with which the huge airborne training program was begun here, finally developing into the parachute infantry of World War II fame.

Queried on what particular jump was his hardest, Corporal Ivy remarked, "the next one".

Womans' Bowling

The Fort Benning Womans' club bowling team completed another successful month with wins over the Montgomery womans' team. Here at home the high prize for February went to Mrs. J. J. Van Oosten, with Mrs. Duncan winning high in the intermediate group. Of interest to members of the club is the appointment of Mrs. Athel Bangert as chairman of the group to replace Mrs. Arnie Millican who is leaving. Mrs. Elvin Kreilick is in charge of receiving donations to be used to raise money for bowling. Winners each month will have a chance to win the seasonal high score prize at the end of the season. An event of March for the ladies' bowling team will be a match with the enlisted men's wives team.

Disaster doesn't knock!

Youngsters are busy in a schoolroom . . . . . an explosion tears the building apart

A disabled veteran builds a little business in his home . . . . . a river flood sweeps it all away

Happy young couple is enjoying a party . . . . . fire destroys the building, killing and maiming

ANY of these tragedies could happen to you and yours . . . for Disaster doesn't ask permission. It strikes without warning.

But where Disaster goes and Panic prevails, there too is the Red Cross. Prepared for action, calm in the face of danger, experienced in the succor of suffering humanity, the Red Cross brings relief quickly, generously, efficiently.

And . . . afterward . . . the Red Cross stands by the injured and the desolate through difficulties Disaster caused . . . to help rebuild their homes, restore their strength, and give them new courage to carry on.

The Red Cross doesn't stop to ask questions—it knows no boundaries, no prejudices, no limitations. All it asks is your help—for it cannot exist without you.

EASTER MORNING—This scene will be reenacted March 28 at the Campbell King Horseshow bowl when Fort Benning troops, their families, and civilian guests gather for the traditional Easter sunrise service. Approximately 1,000 troops will form the living cross as shown here.

Reveal Easter Service Theme

Fort Benning's impressive Easter sunrise service at the Campbell King Horseshow bowl will be based on the theme, "He is Risen", Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Wallace M. Hale, Infantry Center chaplain, said this week.

"All parts of the program will point toward the poignant Easter message that Christ is risen," Chaplain Hale pointed out.

The traditional living cross, composed of 1,000 Fort Benning troops, will be in the center of bowl, and the Easter music will be furnished by the Infantry Center chapel choir, the Infantry Center youth choir, the 25th Infantry regiment's male chorus, and the 72nd Army band. Chaplain Hale announced.

The services will get under way at 6:30 a. m. March 28 when the trumpeteers from the 72nd Army band sound the call to worship. This will be followed by the procession into the bowl of the three choirs who will take their places to the left, right, and in front of the alltar.

The background for the altar will be formed from green foliage, dogwood, and red buds, Chaplain Hale said.

The invocation will be delivered by Chaplain (Capt.) John E. Bryden, Lawson field, followed by an anthemn by the youth choir. Chaplain (Capt.) Gerald L. Hyaden, 25th Infantry regiment, will give the pastoral prayer, ending with the Lord's Prayer and a choral response by the chapel choir.

A second anthemn will be rendered by the male chorus, followed by the Easter sermon to be delivered by Chaplain Hale.

The final prayer will be said by Chaplain (Capt.) Russell O. Kirsch, assistant Inantry Center chaplain, and the musical portion of the service will close with a hymn. The whole service will end with the benediction by Chaplain (Capt.) Leonard A. Ellis, Section II, 3440th Army Service unit.

All Fort Benning troops and their families and civilians from surrounding communities are invited to the service, Chaplain Hale said.

Giant Parade Planned For Army Day Fete

'Combine 2' Ends Here

The Infantry School took the spotlight in Operation Combine II Wednesday when it presented the "mad minute" and the infantry-artillery-tank team in an attack for the 175 students from the Armed Forces Staff college, Norfolk, Va.

Following two days of air force demonstrations at Greenville Air Force base, S. C., and Lawson Air Force base, the Infantry School's participation opened Wednesday at Hook range with a display of standard infantry weapons, trends of development, and resources of fire power. Highlight of this demonstration was the "mad minute", the simultaneous firing of all types of infantry arms.

During the afternoon the Infantry School presented the infantry-artillery-tank team in a simulated attack at the junction of Helmet trail and Underwood road.

Troops participating in this demonstration include an infantry battalion, tank company, infantry heavy mortar platoon, and supporting artillery. Purpose of the action is to show the cooperation between these units in overcoming obstacles and opposition.

An abbreviated version of the battalion in defense problem was demonstrated Thurs-

Benning Troops, Tanks Slated To Participate in Cavalcade

A giant motorized cavalcade of troops, tanks, and equipment will invade the Columbus business district Tuesday, April 6, as Fort Benning joins Columbus in observance of Army Day.

Fort Benning officials announced this week that a total of approximately 800 officers and enlisted men would take part in the mammouth parade of military might as it moves slowly down Broadway at 10 a. m.

Among post units slated to participate in the celebration are elements of the 325th Infantry regiment, the 319th Field Artillery battalion, the 999th Field Artillery battalion, the 307th Engineer battalion's Company C, and one platoon of military policemen. Also included in the hour-long parade will be 20 tanks from the 756th Tank battalion and the 72nd Army band.

Meanwhile, along a Broadway parkway, a static weapons display will be open to the public. The exhibition will also include, in addition to infantry weapons, an off-duty education material display prepared by the Infantry Center vocational school.

Reviewing officer for the parade will be Maj. John W. O'-Daniel, Infantry Center commander. The reviewing stand will be located at the intersection of Twelfth street and Broadway. With General O'-Daniel will be Infantry Center staff officers.

The cavalcade will start at Fourth avenue and 14th street, moving down to 13th street, along 13th street to Broadway, and down Broadway to Eighth street where it will end.

It is expected that civilian units and floats will also be included in the parade, officials said. The parade marshal will be appointed by the Columbus Chamber of Commerce, sponsors of the Army Day celebration in Columbus, at a later date. It is also expected that business houses in the city will decorate their show windows, depicting this year's Army Day theme, "A Strong America is a peaceful America."

The only Fort Benning troops participating in Army Day observances outside this area will be a composite group of around 200 men who will parade in Columbia, Tenn., on April 6, officials announced.

TWO-DAY CAMP BEGINS SATURDAY

Some 500 reserve army officers from throughout Georgia will arrive at Fort Benning Saturday to attend a two-day contact camp sponsored by the Georgia Military District.

The contact camp, with attendance on a voluntary basis, will offer reserve officers a chance to keep abreast of the various changes in army techniques. The reserve officers will fire weapons and witness demonstrations by the Infantry School during their two-day training period.

Fort Benning was selected because of the availaiblity of demonstration equipment and its Infantry School, officials said.

Following registration Saturday morning, March 20, the reserve officers will witness demonstrations of standard infantry weapons and trends of developments during the afternoon at Hook range.

The group will fire weapons Sunday morning and from 1 to 2 p. m. will visit the Airborne section where they will ovserve tower and ground training and other airborne demonstrations. A demonstration of aircraft loading at 2:30 p. m. at Lawson field will be followed by glider towing and landing operation at 3:30 p. m.

A parachute jump exhibition at 3:45 p. m. will climax the training tour.

TWO PROMOTED

day morning by a rifle company, two batteries of 105 mm howitzers, one battery of 155 mm howitzers, one platoon of 81 mm mortars, one platoon of 4.2-inch heavy mortars, one platoon of machine guns with organic heavy and light guns, one 75 mm rifle squad, one platoon of medium tanks, and air support.

Purpose of the demonstration is to show the proper battalion defense technique followed by a counterattack.

Operation Combine II got under way officially Monday when the staff college students, who had arrived at Fort Benning Sunday, went to the Greenville base for air force demonstrations.

Tuesday the students and observers witnessed additional air force demonstrations at Lawson, including skits and displays.

The air-ground demonstration, which used both Ninth Air Force and Company F, 504th Airborne Infantry battalion, took place Thursday at Lae field in Fort Benning's Alabama area.

Originally scheduled for Tuesday afternoon, the demonstration was postponed until Thursday afternoon because of inclement weather.

From the moment the P-80 jets flashed over the grandstands at 3:58 p. m. until the friendly airborne troops captured the "enemy village" 37 minutes later every eye was busy following the flight paths of some 80 aircraft of various types which participated in the show.

Feature of the operation was the mass dropping of 132 paratroopers from C-82 airplanes.

Eleven minutes after the show began a C-82 dropped a pathfinder team with P-51s furnishing close cover. Following the mass drop, the paratroopers went into action, cleaning out the "enemy village".

More equipment and reinforcements were landed from CG-15 gliders towed by C-82s. At intervals during the operation, more C-82s, with support from P-51s, made resupply runs over the area. The "wounded" were evacuated by snatch pickup of a glider by a C-47 transport plane.

The entire operation was designed to show the close cooperation between the air and ground arm of the armed forces.

Among the host of air, ground and, navy leaders on hand were Air Vice-Marshal Sir Leslie O. Brown, commandant of the British School of Land-Air Warfare; Lt. Gen. Delos C. Emmons, commandant of the Armed Forces Staff college; Maj. Gen. Robert M. Lee, deputy commander of Tactical Air Command; Brig. Gen. John Bennett, air reserve; Brig. Gen. Clyde D. Eddleman; Brig. Gen. Charles Y. Banfill; Brig. Gen. Franklin Rose, National Guard; and Rear Admiral Francis P. Old.

Ground Forces Headquarters Gets New Name

Secretary of the Army Kenneth C. Royall announced today that Headquarters, Army Ground Forces, has been redesignated Office, Chief, Army Field Forces. The change involves not only the name but also the functions of the organization.

The new office will be the field operating agency of the Department of the Army within the continental United States. It will have general supervision of all matters pertaining to the training of all individuals and units utilized in a field army. This will include army combat, service, and administrative units, Organized Reserve Corps units, and Reserve Officers' Training Corps unit.

The six armies in the United States, formerly commanded by Army Ground Forces, will now be directly responsible to the Chief of Staff, United States Army. The commanding general of each of the armies and the Military District of Washington will command all units and installations within their area except those under the control of a chief of a service or another Department of the Army agency.

The Office Chief, Army Field Forces, will remain at Fort Monroe, Va., where the headquarters of Army Ground Forces is located at the present time. General Jacob L. Devers will continue as Chief, Army Field Forces.

4 Named Unit PIO Non-Coms

Public information non-commissioned officers have been appointed for each of the 319th Field Artillery battalion's batteries, it was announced this week.

They include T-4 Dick Bilyeu, Headquarters battery, T-4 James L. Colborn, Service battery, T-4 Gene T. Newsome, Battery A, T-4 Charles D. Farmer, Battery B, and T-5 Harmon F. Cagle, Battery C.

Officials said they would assist the battalion public information officer in securing timely news items for publication.

PHILIPPINE ARMY MASTER SERGEANT ENROLLED IN COMMUNICATIONS CLASS

Escaping from a Japanese concentration camp following the infamous "Battan Death March" and later victimized by the tropical scourge of malaria, M-Sgt. Zacarius Boria, of the Philippine Army, who is now attending the Infantry School, eluded the invading Japanese forces long enough to lead a band of guerrillas in harassing jungle warfare in the Philippines until the eventful downfall of the Sons of Nippon.

Now a student in Communications Chief class No. 2 and assigned to 10th company, Student Training regiment, Sergeant Doria will win his commission in the Philippine Army following completion of his course here.

A modest and reserved individual, whose outward expressions belie his survival of many experiences in the past eight years, Doria at the beginning of the war, was attending Maysua Institute of Technology in the Philippines. Completing two years of work towards a degree in architecture, Sergeant Doria also held a commission in the R. O. T. C. unit at the school.

When hostilities broke out, he volunteered for the army, to begin one of the most eventful experiences of the war. He began his duties as a sergeant on Bataan, shortly after entering the service.

After the fall of Bataan, Doria was captured, and made the death march with the other prisoners. At the end of the march he was placed in a Japanese concentration camp, and seven days later a chance for escape came. Doria took that chance, and made his escape good.

As the days rolled by guerrilla action against the Japs was increasing, and in 1943 he joined a band of gurrillas that was operating along the Lingayan gulf on Luzon. Here it was that the first contingent of American troops hit the Philippines. As soon as the first troops hit the island, Doria met them, guided them through the jungles, and offered valuable information, which later proved instrumental in the success of the Americans in the dense jungles.

GEN. BYERS CLAIMS FUTURE STANDING ARMY WILL BE AIR TRANSPORTABLE

By ANDREW H. PLANEY

"The Airborne division is destined to become the American standing army of the future", declared the new commander of the famous 82nd Airborne division, Maj. Gen. Clovis E. Byers who is now undergoing basic airborne training at Fort Benning.

In celebrating on the prospects of the role the airborne division will play in future undertakings, General Byers asserted that "all army units will eventually be air transportable". He pointed out that during the Pacific operations the 32nd Infantry division, without any previous airborne training at all, became air transportable.

The alert, strapping 48-year old general, taking the rigorous and strenuous training in stride with the rest of the students, expressed delight at being given the command of the 82nd Airborne division, which compiled one of the most magnificent records of the war.

Maintaining the tradition of the airborne arm of the army, which has always prided itself on being lead by an "airborne" commander, General Byers is rushing the course a bit, in order to be back to his headquarters at Fort Bragg, N. C., in time to prepare for coming maneuvers. Not missing any of the phases of the tough training grind, he is completing a normal six-week course in three weeks, which is quite a feat for a 48-year old.

Although a bit tired at times from the daily grind, the two-star general is as fit as a fiddle and will be in the group of approximately 160 students who will receive their "wings" March 27, climaxing the completion of the course.

"The airborne training program is so well organized and so progressive that it is a challenge and an inspiration to anyone who undertakes it," General Byers stated. "Although it seems physically strenuous, it is not unreasonably so," continued the airborne leader.

Lauding the instructors at the school here he said, "the instructors by their snap, alertness and precision instill the spirit with a lasting mark that stays with the student throughout his tour of duty as a paratrooper."

Fort Benning came in for quite a bit of praise from the Pacific veteran. "The discipline and courtesy of the troops here is something to behold, about the finest I have seen, and the standards of the Infantry Center and the Infantry School are superior to anything I have encountered."

Former chief of staff of the Eighth Army in Japan, General Byers returned in January of this year after 65 long months overseas. He was ordered back to take command of the 82nd, replacing the youthful Maj Gen. James M. Gavin who has become the chief of staff of the Fifth Army.

Navy Veteran Chooses Army

Another navy veteran, Cpl. John Ukropec of the 10th company, Student Training regiment has chosen the army to further his training.

Ukropec joined the navy in 1944, and following his boot training at Bainbridge Naval Training station Bainbridge, Md., he attended Electrical Maintenance School. Upon completion of his course he sailed for Guam, where he was stationed for eight months with the electrical maintenance section at the naval station there.

Shortly after his return to the states, Ukropec was discharged from the navy, and went to work with the Western Electric company as a cable inspector. After a few months the navy veteran decided to enlist in the army in June, 1947, for the purpose of continuing his training in the radio and electrical fields.

A boy in long pants got on the bus for a dime; a kid in short pants got on for a nickel; and the pretty girl in the blue dress got on for nothing because she had a transfer.

CHAPLAIN H. PELT ....Arrives Here

CHAPLAIN NAMED TO LAWSON POST

Chaplain (Capt.) H. Pelt, of Marianna, Fla., has arrived at Lawson Air Force base to take over the duties of base chaplain. He suceeds Chaplain (Capt). John E. Bryden, who has been appointed base chaplain for Dow Air Force base, Me.

Lawson's new chaplain has been a member of the Chaplain's Corps since June 1943. After undergoing training at the Chaplain's School, Harvard university, and the Chaplain's Transition School at Kelly Air Force base, Tex., he went overseas with the 39th Bomb group in January, 1945. He has also served with the Second Air Force at Dyesburg Air Force base, Dyesburg. Tex., and Pope Air Force base, N. C.

Classes Attract Big Enrollment

Students from various sections of the country arrived recently at the Eighth company Student Training regiment to enroll in Enlisted Motor class No. 4 and Infantry Non-commissionel Officer's class No. 4.

Approximately 89 students began the 18-week motor class courses Monday, March 15. Included in the group, which will hold their classes at the Automotive section of the Infantry School, are 35 National Guardsmen and personnel fro mvarious posts throughout the nation.

The NCO class No. 4 also got under way Monday, March 15, with 64 students enrolled.

158 Students Receive Wings

Following completion of a six-week training course, 158 students of Company B, Airborne battalion, received their wings at graduation ceremonies last Saturday morning.

Lt. Col. David P. Schorr, chief of the Infantry School's Airborne section, made the presentations.

A total of 203 enlisted men and nine officers were originally in the class when it began training. By the conclusion of the course last Friday, the group had been cut to 150 enlisted men and eight officers.

Under the command of Capt. Herbert G. Bench, Company B's next class, will get under way March 28.

POETRY, LYRICS OF BENNING SOLDIER PUBLISHED IN VALIANT HOUSE BOOK

A soldier by vocation and a writer by avocation, T-5 Charles A. Hawthorne, whose writings appear in a book of songs and poetry by outstanding American writers, is presently assigned as company clerk of the 396th Transportation Truck company here.

Beginning his literary undertakings as class poet and writer for the high school paper and yearbook back in his home town of Richmond Va., Hawthorne's work drew wide attention. His works now appear in the book, "Important American Poets and Songwriters", which is a consolidation of song lyrics and poetry of promising and important American writers. Published by Valiant House and edited by Edith Warren, the publication sells for eight dollars per copy.

Honored with the distinction of being the only soldier in the U. S. Army whose works appear in publication, Corporal Hawthorne has been writing for about six years. After finishing school in Richmond he moved to New York where he followed various careers in business, school work, and writing. He has collaborated with various band leaders and music directors in putting lyrics into song, among them Erskine Hawkins and Dew Tomlin.

Both poet and songwriter, the 396th company clerk credits his Philadelphia born wife, Loraine, as the inspiration for his poetry. Since the publication of the book in which his work appears, he has been advised by his New York collaborators to concentrate on writing song lyrics and hopes to have a few of them published in the near future.

Since entering the service, Corporal Hawthorne has been continuing his education with correspondence courses in business administration. He entered the army in January, 1944, and reenlisted in May, 1946, being assigned to the 396th here.

Frink Assigned I and E Duties

T-3 George W. Frink, who has recently returned from occupation duty in Japan, has been named information and education non-commissioned officer of the 30th Medical group, officials said this week.

Sergeant Frink, who entered the army Nov. 17, 1941, at Jefferson Barracks, Mo., served as a sergeant at Camp Berkeley, Tex., following completion of basic training training there. In July, 1943, he was transferred to the 188th General hospital at Camp Robinson, Ark., going to England with the unit in March, 1944.

At the hospital he was in charge of the dental clinic enlisted men, serving as an X-ray technician. In February, 1945, he joined the 106th Infantry division in France.

After his return to the U. S., Sergeant Frink was assigned to the 118th Station hospital in Japan, working in the dental clinic until January, 1947, when he became information and education and plans and training non-commissioned officer.

He returned to the U. S. from Japan in December, 1947, arriving at Fort Benning in February.

Prior to entering the army, Sergeant Frink was a mechanical engineering student at Washington university, St. Louis, Mo.

Lawson Wins Safety Award

Lawson Air Force base has been awarded a P-80 Green Flying Safety Pennant by its parent organization, Tactical Air Command headquarters, Langley Air Force base, Va., officials announced today.

The bright green pennant is four feet wide and seven feet long with the symbol P-80 embossed in large white letters. It represents 498 P-80 hours flown at Lawson during the latter months of 1947 by the 71st Fighter squadron of March Air Force base, Calif., without an accident.

A flag pole will be installed over base operations to display the pennant.

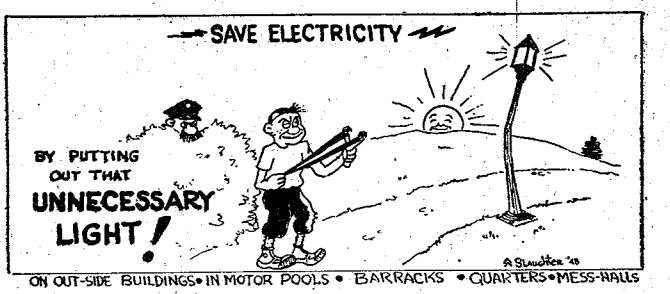
THE ARGUMENT FOR UMT

In the face of what appears to be a growing world crisis, it is reassuring to know that the Congress has decided to begin debates on Universal Military Training. Most Washington experts had conceded even before the opening of this session of the Congress that UMT legislation was doomed for at least the next 12 months unless some situation of such gravity arose as to force our law-making body to plan some long-range defense program.

With the European Recovery Program virtually assured of passage and the money bill to back it up in the offing, we think that the universal training program is the next most important item on the Washington agenda. And, as we have advocated from the moment of its introduction, Universal Military Training ought to be pushed through immediately.

The opponents of such training have been much louder in their protests than the advocates in the arguments for it. Although all those anti-UMT have been branded communistic, there are doubtlessly some members of the opposition who are perfectly sincere in their beliefs that it will do no good. We, therefore, would like to answer the charges that it won't work with our reasons why it is not only will be absolutely satisfactory but also why it must pass.



One argument advanced by the opponents is that it will cost too much money. They claim that research in nuclear physics and other modern scientific methods of warfare will suffer from lack of funds provided UMT passes. This to us is a case of unsurpassed ridiculousness. In the first place, scientific research appropriations are not included in the appropriations for military commitments. They are debated, approved, and put into effect on entirely different bills; consequently that argument has no validity. At the same time, as was proved during the session in 1947, Congress, although they cut army appropriations drastically, barely skimmed the surface off research appropriations. Monies for scientific development and research are now at all time high except for the period between 1942-1945.

Another argument is that UMT will take too many officers and enlisted men away from service schools where they could be learning the latest techniques in warfare. The opponents claim that these men would be teaching basic training to a group of young boys when they could be enrolled in schools for scientific study and that time would be wasted when the need for men trained in such specialized categories is so great. This, too, seems ridiculous in that the army would never allow a thing like that to happen. The present plan of rotation insures that no officer or specialized enlisted man grows state in any job. All qualified personnel are given an opportunity to attend any service school for which he is eligible. Now just because UMT is passed, there is certainly no reason to believe that the army would abandon this plan. It would continue as it has in the past.

We have discussed here only two arguments opponents have advanced because we have covered the others previously. These are the latest ones that have come to our attention.

Now for a word on why it must be passed. Unless we build up a strong reserve force, training American youth how to fight should it ever become necessary, we are going to find ourselves in much the same position as 1941, and even then we had a conscription bill on a small scale. That helped to bridge the gap, although precariously, between 1941 and the invasion of Europe in 1944, almost three years later! How can anyone honestly believe we will have even three months to train a fighting force should another war come? Such blind reasoning is without precedent in this era of atomic energy.

Universal Military Training is, therefore, vital to the well-being of our nation and our continuing government of democracy. If it fails, who can say what will happen next?

Your Red Cross

By MURRAY E. HILL

The Red Cross is primarily a service organization. The Red Cross serves people in need, but, more often than not, their need is not something popularly considered "relief"—such as meat and potatoes, clothing, or money to meet the rent.

Take these examples:

A child swimming at a picnic is caught in the rapids of a river and screams for help. A Red Cross-trained lifesaver plunges in, rescues him, and resuscitates him....

A whole community is stricken with influenza or typhoid or polio, and scores of Red Cross-trained nurse's aides are recruited to assist the graduate nurses available....

Far out in the country a farmer is injured by his tractor. A son responds to give him first aid learned in classes taught by a Red Cross-trained instructor. ...

Near death from loss of blood, a motorcycle accident victim is given transfusions of blood supplied from a blood center staffed and maintained by the Red Cross....

A veteran of the war has received all of the government benefits to which he is entitled. But something from his harrowing war experience has retarded his rehabilitation. He needs no groceries or money or anything that can be handled. He needs intelligent counsel, sensible sympathy—a friendly hand on his shoulder. And the Red Cross hospital service worker does just that....

In every case—the child saved fom drowning, influenza, or polio, the farmer injured by the tractor, the war veteran needing counsel—all were aided immeasurably by the Red Cross. But not without cost in salaries paid to people who serve these people in need, or who train or supervise people to serve others in need.

Relief cannot always be wrapped up as a tangible commodity. Part of the annual budget of the Red Cross is expended for direct "relief", such as groceries, clothing and shelter; but services, the larger item in the budget, is just as essential to the welfare of humanity.

Chaplain's Corner..

CHAPLAIN W. M. HALE

I would like someday, after I've gone to Heaven, to go to a movie that God took on Palm Sunday in 33 A. D. I would like to see Jesus coming into Jerusalem, riding the young spirited colt. I would like to see the crowds, mass hypnotized by the genuine spontaneous love and enthusiasm of his followers who really knew Him and had faith in Him. I would like to hear the conversation of his enemies and the comments of strangers who had never heard his name mentioned before.

I believe I could then understand Palm Sunday in a manner that is not possible now, though I do believe it is possible to comprehend the basic lessons of this great entrance into the Holy City.

Palm Sunday is a lesson in the yearning of the masses for stability. They had tried to find a stable in the soil and in the cities. Now, they had heard of a Kingdom that was of the heart and of God. Their physical conditions did not limit their advancement in the Kingdom of the Spirit. If they were rich, they were still poor in the part of their being that really mattered, and their seeking for the truly good destroyed all monotony or lack of purpose that might have affected them before. If they were poor, they might not be able to overcome the handicap of environment, education, and social obstacle, but they could become sons of God and inherit the Peace that passeth all understanding. .... Yes, it is no wonder they shouted the praises of Jesus as he came to Jerusalem. He had offered to the world the one hope and idea it had always needed.

The rest of the Palm Sunday story would be one of the enemies who would deny the masses this one central hope and would destroy any individual who opposed them. But, the lesson of Easter is that the hope of the Spirit can never be destroyed.

Cardinals Meet Doughs Sunday

Two-Tilt Series To Be Launched At Golden Park

Using the remnants of the 1947 Third Army championship diamond squad as a nucleus for this year's nine, Coach Herb Bench will take his Fort Benning Doughboys to Columbus' Golden park Sunday afternoon for the first of a two-game series with the Columbus Cardinals of Sally league.

The Redbirds will return the Dough's visit by playing the second exhibition tilt at Gowdy field next Wednesday afternoon.

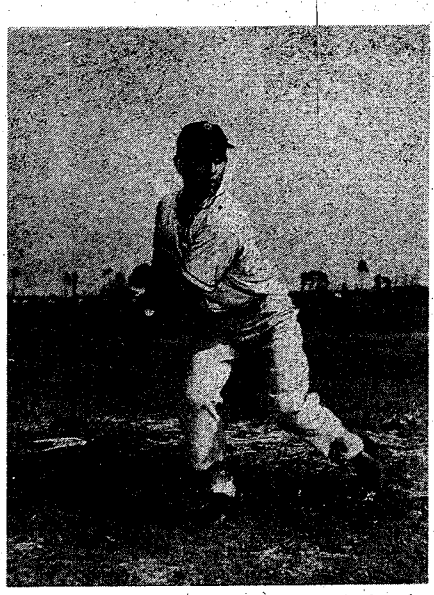
Although Bench hasn't named his mound choice for the contests, he indicated that Ken Watts, ace southpaw who won eight and lost one for the Doughs last season, probably will start in one of the games, and hurling duties for the other clash probably will be delegated to John Wyatt or Bo Boland. Other moundsmen likely to see service during the two-game campaign will be Hal Grinolds, Lefty Blake, and Onie Ohnesorgen.

The diamond coach said that the catching berth was the most wide open spot in the Dough lineup, but added that he was encouraged by the showings made by Bob Ziegler and Red Cothran.

Bench has worked out a tentative lineup for the tilts with the Cards, but said that several changes may be effected after the Doughs' final practice sessions this week.

Tentatively slated for the center garden spot is Glenn Davis, all-American pigskin toter, who has developed into one of Benning's most capable base runners. However, the speedy athlete is being pushed hard for the outfield spot by Don Perrody and George Dickson.

Other fly-catching potentials listed by Bench are Woody Burt, who probably will be pulling them down in right field, and Bill Brooks, who is favored for the patrolling duties in the left garden.



Another anticipated change may find Paul Bonair switching from short to the receiving spot. If this revision on the roster is effected, Blondy Burnett probably will go to short from third base, and Ralph Terry will come into the lineup as third sacker.

Bob Kinard appears to be the leading contender for the second-sack spot, and Herb Lauve undoubtedly will perform the Doughs' first-base chores.

The Columbus nine initiated their pre-season drills last Monday with 29 players, and the tilt with the Doughs will mark their embarkation on a 13-game exhibition schedule.

BOWLING TIME CHANGE

A change in hours of operation has been announced by the Main Post bowling alley, and took effect last week. On weekdays, exclusive of Wednesday, the lanes will be open from 5:45 p. m. until 10 p. m., and the Saturday, Sunday and Wednesday schedule will be from 1 p. m. until 10 p. m.

SOUTHPAW HURLER—Ken Watts, ace lefthander who has built himself up an unequaled reputation at Fort Benning, is the property of the Airborne battalion diamond nine this year. His record for the 1947 Doughboy season shows eight victories against one defeat. He is slated to make an apparance when the Doughs meet the Columbus Cardinals in a two-game series later this month.

PEPPERELL BLASTS DOUGHBOY QUINTET FROM BIBB BASKETBALL TOURNAMENT

Elimination in the quarterfinals of the Bibb Manufacturing company's cage tourney at Comer auditorium in Columbus last Thursday night marked the close-out of the Doughboys' 1948 hardwood season.

Taking their first two contests in the meet, the Benning lads were ousted 53 to 49 by a height-advantaged aggregation representing the Pepperell Mills of Opelika, Ala.

The 'Bamans, utilizing several Auburn stars, got off to a slow start, and were trailing by 13 tallies at one time during the first half of Thursday night's classic. However, a scoring spree during the closing minutes of the opening stanza put them into a 29 to 29 half-time deadlock with the Doughs.

Continuing their offensive drive from the outset of the final period, the Opelika lads worked up a 10-point advantage before a Dough splurge gave the locals a brief fling at the lead.

Center Hill took high-scoring honors for the Alabama quintet as well as the game by dunking eight court attempts and a charity try for 17 counters. Individual honors for the Doughs were taken by Harold Haberman, who managed for 14 tallies on six field goals and a pair of free tosses.

However, the Wednesday night game was quite a different story for the Doughs. In their most one-sided victory of the season, the Benningites succeeded in bombarding the Phenix City Sport shop five 71 to 19.

Letting his reserves take over court duties mid-way through the opening stanza, Coach Lewis Grizzard didn't let his regulars see service for more than six minutes of the entire contest.

A half-time score of 35 to 8 favored the Doughboy quintet.

Harold Corizzi's 16 points led the individual scoring for the Doughs and the game while Forward Elroy Hicks took team honors for the Phenix City cagers with eight counters.

158 'TROOPERS

A total of 158 students are enrolled for training in the Airborne battalion's Company D, officials have announced. The class is now in its third week.

Doughboy Junior Nine Begins Loop Play Wednesday

Fifty-two young diamond aspirants turned out for the Doughboy Juniors' initial baseball practice session last Monday and will continue their workouts daily until they open their schedule next Wednesday.

Capt. Peter L. Kelley, Fort Bening youth officer, announced the organization of a school league to be comprised of teams representing each grade of the local school. The loop schedule will be climaxed with a school championship tournament in May.

However, the termination of the school season will not mark the close-out of the midget Doughs' diamond activities. During the summer vacation, they will compete in the American Legion tournament to be held in Columbus later in the season.

POST INTRA-MURAL LEAGUE CLASSICS BEGIN ON MARCH 31 AT GOWDY FIELD

A pre-season ceremony and a twin bill will herald the inception of Fort Benning's 1948 intra-mural diamond classics at Gowdy field on Wednesday afternoon, March 31. Slated for 1 p. m., the ritual will be followed by a tilt between the Lawson field Flyers at 1:30 p. m., and, at 3:30 p. m., the Infantry School detachment and will meet a squad from the Student Training regiment.

Eight teams will take the field in the post race, and each entry will have two scheduled games with each other nine.

Although original plans called for the use of four post diamonds during the contests, the limited number of entries have made it practical to slate all games for Gowdy field, Capt. Bill Fannin, post athletic officer, pointed out.

Play in the post league will be divided into two periods, the first half continuing through May 5, and the last half getting underway on or about May 8. Contests throughout the race will be of seven-innings duration, and the playoff for the post championship, to be staged prior to July 15, will consist of nine-inning tilts. However, a tie between two squads of either division for top place honors will result in matching the two deadlocked teams for one nine-inning clash. A two-for-three game series between the first and second phase winners will decide the post championship.

Each Wednesday, Saturday, and Sunday of the season will feature two games, the first to be played at 1 p. m., and the nightcap to be held at 3 p. m. Night games will be played at 8 p. m. each Tuesday, Thursday, and Friday of the schedule. Capt. Fannin said that each Monday night will be held open for playing contests that may have been rained out or postphoned during the preceding week.

In the first night classic of the season on April 1, the special units of the 3440th Army Service unit will meet the 204th Transportation Truck battalion and, on the night of April 2, the 328th Ordnance battalion will clash with the powerful Airborne battalion aggregation, defending post champion.

The first half of a twin bill on April 3 will pit the Student Training regiment nine against the Lawson Flyers, and the final game will see the 204th Truckers take the field against the Medics. Another double program on April 4 will bring the Airborne lads and the ISD Profs together in the opener, and the 3 p. m. classic will feature the 328th Ordnance diamondmen and the 3440th ASU delegation.

Winding up the first week of play, the Lawson Flyers will tangle with the 204th Truck battalion lads in a night game on April 6.

Boasting the return of six of last year's championship nine, Coach Herb Bench of the Airborne diamond stars of last season, and did not hesitate to predict a long string of victories in the team's intra-mural participation.

In addition to the six returnees and a host of promising newcomers to Benning baseball circles, the parachutist nine has acquired Ken Watts, ace southpaw of the 1947 Doughboy post team, and Leonard Kerney, hard-slugging outfielder, who saw service with the STR squad in last year's post race.

Bench expressed his belief, however, that the ISD's Profs will be anything but a pushover, and dubbed them as "the team to beat" in this year's lineup. Coaching duties for the ISD nine have been taken over by James L. Walker, who piloted the Airborne lads to their post title last season.

Coach Walker cited his weak link as his hurling staff, and has hopes that a lot of power at the plate will be able to offset his shortage of moundsmen.

Showing promise of being a dark-horse aggregation in the scramble for post laurels this year, the STR nine is using four returning diamondmen as a nucleus for this year's delegation.

Coach W. C. Beachler, who is starting his first year as mentor of the STR lads, is looking to Glenn Davis, former Army and all-American gridiron star, to strengthen his outfield by taking over fly-chasing chores in the center garden.

Coming back for the STR's 1948 season are Catcher W. V. Church, Pitcher E. D. Stewart, First Sacker Phillip Irby, and Short Stop W. C. Crapps.

DIAMOND PRACTICE MOVED OUTDOORS

By BOB PHILLIPS

Compelled to hold their practice sessions in the Sand Hill field house during the initial phase of their spring diamond workouts, the Bullet nine took advantage of the weather last week to get in some outdoor training.

During the week's workouts, Player-Coach Charlie Toliver whacked a group of over 80 baseball aspirants down to a squad of 34 team potentialities, and viewed his hopefuls with a lot of satisfaction.

With Moundsmen Walter Scott and Horace Smith returning from last year, Coach Toliver has strengthened his hurling staff with the addition of Southpaw Willie Conerly, Charles Patrick, Eugene Thomas, and Haskell Perry.

In addition to veterans, Gordon Burke and Booker T. Jones, infielders who are making good showings in the workouts, are Billy "Pee Wee" Humphrey and Odie Brown at second base, flashy Willie Wise at third, and towering Anthony Hardy on the initial bag.

Hard-hitting Nick Nichols, who back-stopped last season, has been trotting into the outfield daily. Whether the Bullets' king of swat will hold down one of the outpost positions throughout the season, or go back to his old position remains to be seen. Rounding out the fly-chasing delegation are Gerard Garcia, Leon Coleman, Harry Dandridge, and Clifton Elzy.

FIVE ISD EM PROMOTED

Five enlisted members of the Infantry School detachment were awarded promotions here during the past week, officials have announced.

They include Pvt. Alvin L. Kushner, Company A, to private first class; Pvt. Bill Allen, Company B, to private first class; Pvt. George Keisling, Company A, to private first class; T-5 Roland M. Glasser, Company A, to technician fourth grade; and Pfc. Charles W. White, detachment headquarters, to corporal.

SLANTS on SPORTS

By Lewis Mc Afee
Bayonet Sports Editor

Experience paid off big dividends for the Fort Bragg Assasins, whose year-around ring training was one of the primary factors that enabled them to walk off with the Third Army boxing trophy for the second consecutive year.

The Airborne pugilists looked every bit the part of champions in their Fort Bragg squared circle, and, even, the North Carolinian who lost his finals match to a representative of the Fort Benning fight team displayed a brand of stamina and courage that comes only through continuous training.

According to Lawrence Jones, the Doughboys' stellar middleweight and winner of his class in the Third Army meet, the only thing that kept his Fort Bragg opponent, Eugene England, from being the victim of a knockout was his ability to "take it". Jones' powerful pokes battered England all over the ring, but the Bragg middleweight was staggered only slightly by the barrage.

Three other Benning fighters, Flyweight Enrique Martinez, Bantamweight Joseph Antonio, and Heavyweight Lester Beard, might have had their decisions reversed had they been able to absorb punishment in the quantities of which the Bragg boxers were capable. All three started out their opening rounds by carrying the fight to their Bragg competitors, but, in all cases, the host leather throwers bided their time to come through with telling blows that put the Doughboy entries to the canvas.

Norman Clark fought his way to the lightweight tiara, but didn't have to face an Assassin delegate to accomplish the feat. His knockout victory came over the Fort Jackson, S. C., lightweight, John Best, in the second round of their battle.

Coach John Wilson branded the Fort Bragg victory as "well-deserved", but chalked the Doughboys' failure to capture the trophy up to lack of experience. The local ringmen have had several intra-post cards during the winter boxing season, but have had only one match with a visiting squad.

More timber in the sprinting and jumping field is needed if Fort Benning's Doughboy trackmen are to make a successful defense of their Third Army title when the annual meet opens here April 27. All of the squad which took possession of the 1947 title has taken leave of the post, and suitable replacements in all events have not been obtained to fill out this year's team, Capt. Bill Fannin, post athletic officer said.

The athletic office hopes to have enough talent come out of the post tourney on April 13 and 14 to place a capable man in each of the 15 events comprising the Third Army classic. Potential trackmen are being asked to place their entries with their unit athletic officers, or by calling the athletic and recreation office.

Doughboy Baseball Coach Herb Bench will he able to run many of last year's diamond regulars into his starting lineup for next Sunday's game with the Sally League's Columbus Cardinals, but is somewhat skeptical about the power of his battery staff.

The local nine has three potentially good starting hurlers in Kenn Watts, Bo Boland, and John Wyatt, but more talent in the relief department of the mound chores is needed.

Although three receivers have indicated a desire to lahor behind the plate, Bench said that the Dough catching spot is "wide open".

Statisticians in the major loops have ceased figuring their teams' successes or failures in terms of runs and games—now, their pencil-pushing has gotten down to pitches and hits. If this keeps up, Associated Press Sports Writer Frank Eck figures that the daily tea mstandings soon will be using six or eight columns instead of the present day one or two.

Following the 1947 major league season, a figure-happy Cincinnati Red statistics expert got out his pencil and figured that seven singles in the right places during the season would have put the hapless Cincy team in a first division berth for the first time since 1945. The gent even went so far as to point out the exact times and games where a single would have given the Reds fourth place and dropped the New York Giants into the fifth spot in the lineup.

Maybe statistics are the reason why Brooklyn Dodger hurlers issued 38 bases on balls during the world's series contests last year. It seemed as though the Flatbush moundsmen knew exactly what kind of pitches the New York Yankee batsmen liked to swing at, and kept their tosses out of range, even if it became necessary to hand out a walk.

Bragg Pugilists Cop Fight Title

Doughboys Place Three De'egates On Army Squad

Punching out triumphs in six out of eight bouts in the annual Third Army ring tournament last Thursday night, the host Fort Bragg Assassins copped the coveted trophy from Fort Benning's Doughboys for the second consecutive year.

Although they took titles in only the lightweight and middleweight divisions, the Benning light heavyweight representative, Dick Donaldson, will accompany colleagues, Lightweight Norman Clark and Middleweight Lawrence Jones, as a Third Army delegate to the National Armed Services' Chicago tournament in June. Donaldson dropped his finals match with Fort Bragg's Bill Kingsland, but will replace the titlist in the Third Army's lineup for the national meet since the Bragg boxer will be unable to meet eligibility requirements.

Only two of the Dough pugilists failed to advance to the finals in the Bragg tourney. Featherweight Wisdom Stewart lost out in his opening bout when he dropped a close decision to Tom Adams, of Fort Jackson, S. C., and Wilbert Wilson, Benning welterweight, was edged by Jackson's Ray Gill.

In battling his way to the lightweight title, the Doughs' veteran Clark eased through the opening day by taking a forfeit from Fort Bragg's representative, Beto Garcia who was forced out of the Assassins' lineup by a muscular injury sustained prior to the outset of the meet. In his finals bout, the crafty Clark sent Fort Jackson's John Best to the mat for the full count in 2:30 minutes of the initial heat.

Jones' first day victory came as the result of a technical knockout scored over Jim Thompson of Jackson, in 2:01 minutes of the middle stanza. The classy Benning middleweight won his finals classic by handing Gene England, of the Assassins one of the most terrific shellackings of the meet to gain himself a unanimous decision.

The Doughs' Donaldson coasted to victory in his first bout by hammering the Atlanta Ordnance's Remo Sabucco with a three-minute barrage of blows that gained him a TKO after the initial round. The Benning light heavy delegate lost his match to Kingsland, former European theater light heavyweight champ, after going a full three rounds.

Benning's flyweight delegate, Enrique Martinez, scrappy 112-pounder, remained idle during the first day's matches, but ran into some unexpected dynamite when Charles Cox, of the Assassins, floored him for the count of ten in the second period. Martinez' left jab kept the classy Cox at bay during the opening round, but the Bragg flyweight found the Doughboy's head with three rights, and sent him sprawling two minutes after the second-round bell.

Joseph Antonio, Dough bantamweight, who also got a rest the first day of the meet, was another kayo victim. The trooper victor, Frank Spinetti, was wary of Antonio's wicked lefts during the opening period, but, after 2:25 minutes of the second round sent the Dough pugilist to the canvas with a flurry of rights to the head.

Advancing to the finals without having to enter the ring, Doughboy Heavyweight Lester Beard, yielded on a knockout to Junius Emerson of the airborne aggregation. Beard started the match off by firing a series of rights that Emerson managed to dodge. Taking the offensive toward the end of the opening heat, the Bragg boxer staggered Beard with a series of looping lefts, and went on to chill the Doughboy heavyweight with a one-two punch after 45 seconds of the middle frame had elapsed

Clark, Jones and Donaldson will join the Fort Bragg victors in May for the purpose of training as a team for the armed service classic.

Columbus Squad Schedules Game With Tech Aces

The Columbus Sport Shop's all-West Point cage team of Fort Benning's Student Training regiment will meet an all-star team comprised of Georgia Tech athletes at the Jordan high school gymnasium at 8:30 p. m. March 27.

Herman Haggard, Sport shop coach, said that he expected to find such athletic figures as Bob Davis, George Matthews, Dinky Bowen, Bill Buzbin and Jimmy Pettitt in the Tech all-stars lineup.

Banquet Climaxes Season's Activity Of Bullet Cagers

The post's Bullet basketeers were entertained at a banquet at the Sand Hill noncommissioned officers' club last Friday night to climax a season in which the team stacked up a record of 12 wins and 11 losses in a 23-game schedule.

Brief appreciative talks were given by each member of the team as well as by Coach Lloyd D. Jones, who expressed his appreciation for the cooperation given him by the squad. S-Sgt. Robert D. Phillips was the master of ceremonies.

Grace was said by First Sgt. Charles Jones against a background medley of soft musical tunes played by T-Sgt. John Willimas. The banquet menu included turkey, green peas, dressing, cranberry sauce, hot rolls, and fruit salad.

Members of the team in attendance were Gordon Burke, Gerard Garcia, William Humphrey, Anthony Hardy, Thomas Taylor, John Morgan, James Smith, Joe Morgan, and James Wheeler. Players who were unable to attend were Freddie Hamer, Wavelan Simms, Roland Russell, and Assistant Coach Robert Harris.

Arrangements for the festivities were made by T-Sgt. Walter Brown.

CHICAGO BOUND—Three Fort Benning Doughboys who will represent the Third Army in the National Armed Services ring tournament in Chicago in June are, left to right, Lightweight Norman Clark, Light Heavyweight Dick Donaldson, and Middleweight Lawrence Jones. Although Clark and Jones took possession of the Third Army crowns for their weight divisions, Donaldson lost a finals decision to Bill Kingsland of the Fort Bragg Airborne Assassins. Ineligibility of Kingsland landed Donaldson the berth on the army team.

RETURNING DIAMOND STARS BOLSTER AIRBORNE CHANCES FOR POST CROWN

By VINCENT GIARRATANO

The Airborne battalion's 1948 baseball team, combining the remains of last year's championship nine with promising new material, hasgone into spring training with the winning of the post trophy as an objective.

With the post championships for 1946 and 1947 in their pockets, a repeat this year will give the Troopers permanent possession of the coveted cup.

Coaching this year has been taken over by Herb Bench, who did a bang-up job of coaching the champion Doughboys last year.

The Airborne's new team will be built around a select group of diamond artists, who have starred on ball clubs of past seasons, Coach Bench pointed out.

Ralph "Bugs" Terry, who turned in a fine job at third base for the 1947 Troopers, is shaping up very well, and is expected to fill the position again this season. One of last year's dust-kicking infielders, Paul "Boney" Bonair, undoubtedly will be given the shortstop assignment, and Bob Kinard, hero of the final game of the Third Army tournament last year, who drove in two runs with a single clinch the trophy for the Doughboys. will be back this year as the parachutists' second baseman.

Ken Watts, left-handed moundsman who held the Dougt hitting record and hurled eight victories in nine assignments last year, will top the Airborne pitching staff this year.

Other ball players prominent in post diamond circles who will see service with the Airborne nine this year are Sam Cunningham, who shows signs of being a second Mickey Vernon in the outfield; Henry Griffin, oldtimer in Benning ball who is one of the best clutch hitters in the business; Len Carney, a versatile fielding star who was rated at last year's best all-round player on the Student Training regiment's team, and "Red" Cothran and Bob Ziegler, catchers wha have had distinguished records on past airborne squads.

Now prospects who are making potent bids for spots on the team are "Onie" Ohnesorgan, Jesse "Slim" Budd, Herb Myatt, and Bob Henderson, who recently completed a successful season with the Doughboy basketball quintet.

KEEPING POSTED WITH SPECIAL SERVICES

By BOB WILLIAMS

The intra-mural baseball league has been cut to eight teams for the first half of the season, and, as a result all games will be played at Gowdy field.

A gala variety show will be the main attraction at Service club No. 1 Sunday, March 21, at 8:30 p. m.

First Sgt. E. M. Barfield of the 121st Evacuation hospital captured the post singles crown in table tennis tournament at the Main gymnasium March 11. He then teamed with Pfc. Bruce Jewell of the Airborne battalion to cop the doubles crown.

The Infantry Center track and field meet will be held at Doughboy stadium April 13 and 14. All persons planning to participate are asked to contact their athletic officers, or call 2258.

The 3440th Army Service unit could come up with a surprise in the intra-mural baseball league this year. Although fielding no team in 1947, it boasts four starting burlers and three relief men. If the infield can be rounded into shape they promise to be an awfully hard nut to crack.

A huge variety show, featuring a combination of local and military talent, will be presented at the 11th St. YMCA Saturday, March 20, at 8 p. m.

Several exhibition games have been played by the intramural league squads, and reports indicate that a lot of new talent will be available for the post team this year.

Spot Rivers and his orchestra will play for a dance at the NCCS club 100-9th Street in Columbus, on Saturday night, March 20. Dancing will be from 8 p. m. until 11:30 p. m.

An informal dance will be held at Service club No. 1 on Friday, March 19, at 8:30 p. m.

When the Gowdy field flag is flying, it means a baseball game will be played there that day.

"I didn't raise my daughter to be fiddled with," said the cat as she rescued her kitten from the violin factory.

Bowl Game Film Showing Slated By City Church

George Matthews, Georgia Tech back from Columbus, will narrate a complete technicolor film account of the Kansas-Georgia Tech Orange Bowl football classic at 8:15 p. m. Saturday at Saint Paul's Methodist church in Columbus.

In announcing Saturday night's program, the William E. McTier class of the church extended an invitation to all personnel of Fort Benning to attend. The film showing will be preceded by a chop suey supper at 6 p. m., and will be presented without additional cost to persons attending the supper, it was pointed out.

A class representative said that the cost of the program will be one dollar per person, and urged those desiring to attend to make reservations by calling the church no later than Friday night.

RECEIVE TROPHIES—Runners-up in the table tennis division of the recreational sports meet held recently in the Main Post gymnasium are awarded trophies by Col. Onto P. Bragan, Fort Benning special services officer. Being congratulated is Pfc. Gerard Garcia, singles runner-up, while the doubles runners-up, Cpl. Calvin Gray and Sgt. John Wyatt, await the colonel's handshake.

BARFIELD SCORES TRIUMPHS IN POST NET TOURNAMENT

Displaying the form that has gained him many table tennis championships during the last ten lears, First Sgt. E. M. Barfield of the 121st Evacuation hospital won the post singles title in the table tennis division of the recreational sports meet at the Main gymnasium last Thursday night.

After coping the singles title, Sergeant Barfield teamed with Pfc. Bruce Jewell of the Airborne battalion to take possession of the double crown.

Runner-up honors in the doubles classic were taken by Gray and Wyatt.

Barfield won his first championship at Fort Benning in 1938, was champion of Australia in 1943, took runner-up laurels in the Mediterranean theater classic in 1947, and returned to the United States to walk away with the Camp Kilmer, N. J., championship the same year.

The main event ended with a technical knockout in the third when 150-pounder Jim Hall, of Company C, suffered a cut over the left eye after a fast mix-up in the clinch with Johnnie Harris, 148 pounds, of Company F.

The ninth card marked the end of the airborne program until the summer season opens in the outdoor ring about June 1.

Bowling Team Pilot Receives Transfer

The lanes expert's assignment here has been with the communications section of the Infantry School's academic department. He came to Fort Benning in June, 1946, from Fort McClellan, Ala.

Starting his bowling career in 1938, Captain Millican has been a member of the Doughboy pin squad for the past two years, and piloted the local keglers to the Third Army championship last year.

Among his laurels, Captain Millican boasts high - scoring honors for a three-game set in the annual Young Men's Christian Army-Navy tournaments with a 664-total. His highest seasonal average is 192, heaped up while he was a member of the Fort McClellan bowling aggregation, and his best single game score is 279.

CAGE SEASON ENDS WITH HUGE DINNER

Switching from a hardwood court to a banquet table, the 1947-48 Doughboy cage team wound up its season with a steak dinner at the Firm Roberts cafe in Columbus last Saturday night.

The dinner, given only for members of the squad and Coach Lewis Grizzard, came at the conclusion of the Bibb Manufacturing company tournament, in which the Doughboys advanced to the quarterfields only to be eliminated by a Pepperell Mills five from Opelika, Ala.

During the season, the local court representatives piled up a record of 28 wins and 16 losses, but failed to walk off with any tourney championships. The Doughs lost out in the finals of the Third Army meet at Fort Bragg, N. C., and were defeated in the semi-final of the Southeastern Amateur Athletic Union tournament in Atlanta.

Airborne Battalion Shuts Winter Card

The Airborne battalion ended its winter boxing season last Thursday night with a nine-bout card that sent a capacity crowd of fight fans home with an exciting, spine-tingling evening.

Two knockonts brought stellar honors to Kenny Johnson, middleweight of Headquarters and Service company, who stopped George Crawford, 156-pounder of Company D, in 40 seconds of a spectacular first round; and to Tim Wood, 136-pounder of Headquarters and Service company, who dropped 140-pound George Stuehm of Company F in one minute of the second stanza.

Little Johnny Mitchell, Company F's bantamweight, carried off a unanimous decision from Joe Dorsey, 125-pounder, who fought hard to do his home town of Columbus proud, but couldn't score enough points.

Don Ward, 150-pounder of Company F, wound up his season by taking a unanimous decision from hard-hitting Dale Manders, of Company G, to add to his sensational record of KO's and TKO's and decisions.

Fast moving, hard - fisted Floyd Singletary carried his fight to Tom McGillicuddy, and outpointed him to win a unanimous decision.

Leamon Sullivan, after showing good boxing form at the beginning of the bout with Vernon Warner, was surprised by his opponent's tactics when Warner took the lead in the second, and carried the third to win by unanimous approval.

Light Heavyweight Dave Carter dropped hard-fighting Frank Chadwick for the nine-count in the first round, and floored him again in the second but Chadwick fought through the third stanza only to lose by unanimous decision.

Mel Boley, 141-pounder, holding an advantage through height and reach, came through three rounds of hard trying, via the roundhouse right and left route taken by Don King, to win by decision.

Mile-Long Cavalcade On April 16 To Feature Army Week Celebration

Army Week celebrations in Columbus will feature a mile-long parade of Fort Benning troops, equipment, and tanks on Tuesday, April 6, emphasizing this year's theme, "A Strong America is a Peaceful America".

A white-helmeted mounted military police platoon will lead the cavalcade of approximately 800 troops and their commander, Lt. Col. Harry M. Grizzard, as they move down Broadway at 10 a. m.

The troops will be dressed in steel helmets, battle jackets, web belts, and arms with bayonets fixed, officials said this week.

Following the custom established here last year, the parade will be entirely motorized, and will begin at Fourth avenue and 13th street, moving down 13th street to Broadway, and down Broadway to Eighth street.

As yet no marshall for the parade has been named by the Chamber of Commerce, sponsors of Army Week.

Troop units taking part in the procession include elements of the 325th Infantry regiment, 15 medium tanks from the 756th Tank battalion, 504th Airborne Infantry regiment's Company K, one company from the 25th Infantry regiment, elements of the 319th Field Artillery battalion, and elements of the 999th Field Artillery battalion.

Music will be provided by the 72nd Army band.

Reviewing officer for the parade will be Maj. Gen. John W. O'Daniel, Infantry Center commander, who will be accompanied by his staff officers. The reviewing stand will be located at the intersection of Twelfth street and Broadway, and the army band will be stationed opposite the stand.

Civilian floats, military components, and bands will also take part in the cavalcade of military might, officials said.

Chamber officials said this week that city merchants would honor the army during the week from April 5-10 with window displays.

During the morning and afternoon of April 6, an army exhibit from Fort Benning will be open to the public in a Broadway parkway, Infantry Center officials have announced. The exhibit will include a display of infantry weapons and an army educational display, sponsored by the information and education office.

Information and education officials said this wek that it is hoped that the United States Armed Forces institute's mobile caravan will arrive here in time to be included in the exhibit.

JENKINS ASSIGNED ARMY ADVISORY DUTY IN GREECE

Brig. Gen. Reuben E. Jenkins, president of Army Ground Forces board No. 3 since November, 1946, is scheduled to leave early in April for Athens, Greece, where he will serve as a member of the American Mission for Aid to Greece, it was announced this week.

The mission, an advisory group, is headed Maj. Gen. James A. Van Fleet.

Col. Earle A. Johnson, formerly deputy president of the local board and now acting president, will assume formal command of the unit on April 1, officials said. A successor to General Jenkins has not yet been appointed.

General Jenkins, who was commissioned from the ranks in 1918 following 18 months as an enlisted man, served as deputy G-3 of the Mediterrean theater from August, 1943, until the invasion of southern France in July, 1944. He joined Sixth Army group headquarters, commanded by Gen. Jacob L. Devers, now Army Ground Forces head, on July 31, 1944. On Aug. 15, 1944 he joined the Seventh U. S. Army-First French Army combine as G-3, remaining with the organization until his return to the states in July, 1945.

HOMAGE TO CHRIST

Sunday throughout the world, Christians will pause to pay homage to the greatest figure in their religion, Jesus Christ.

On that day, the Christian churches will be filled to capacity, probably for the first time since Christmas celebrations.

On that day the ladies will don their new hats and pin on their dresses bright corsages, symbolical of the year's first spring celebration.

During the afternoon the children in all Christian communities will search for brightly painted eggs, which have been given the sanction of the Christian world by the fact that they are called Easter eggs.

Protestant churches, including the members of that faith here, will begin their observance of the Ressurection by attending sunrise services, the hour symbolical of Christ's rising from his tomb.

Of all Christian celebrations, Easter is probably the most sacred. For it was on Easter morning that Jesus Christ proved to all those who doubted his kinship to God that he could perform the miracles he claimed. On that morning he arose from his burial place in the garden in Jerusalem.

None of us can hope to live as pure a life as Christ, but we can attempt to deal fairly with our fellow man, abide by his teachings, and pattern our lives as closely as possible to the Golden Rule. One does not have to be a Christian to believe in his teachings. They are as applicable to any religion.

Living a day-by-day life of honesty, integrity, understanding, and a desire to help our fellow man will result in a far happier life for all of us. We will feel better at the end of day. We can face our problems without flinching because we will know we have not betrayed him. We can walk down the street with heads high because we will know that we have not broken faith with mankind.

At night we will be able to sleep with a clear conscience because we will know that that day we have done our best to make the world a better place in which to live, and we will awake the next morning with a desire to do even more.

This does not require a constant old-fashioned piety, where one assumes a false modesty, a shocked atttiude at the evils of the world, or a false shell in which we may hide ourselves from reality. It does, however, require a constant vigilance over our character, a longing to help others, and a right to expect help from others when we are in need.

If we live by the Golden Rule, we will be able to accept defeat without bitterness, we will be able to turn the other cheek, we will not hate our enemies.

On Easter Sunday, it behooves all Christians to analyze their lives and to ask themselves whether or not they could face death witb the same calmness with which the man whose life we honor faced it.

Chief: "Are you the young lady who took my order?"

Hash House Mannah: "That's me, sailor."

CPO: "Hmmmmm! And you don't look a day older."

"What time is it?"

"I dunno.'

"Haven't you a watch?"

"Yeah, but it's an hour slow."

There once was a lady from Guam
Who said, "Now the ocean's so calm
I will swim for a lark."
She encountered a shark—
Let us now sing the twenty-third psalm.

The club bore was boasting of his ability to distinguish between different beverages. Finally one of the listeners took a flask from his pocket and asked the connoisseur to taste it and tell him what it was. The man tasted a mouthful and promptly spat it out. "Great Scott!" he said. "That's gasoline."

"I know," came the bland reply. "But what brand?"

GI HUMOR

Recruit MacTavish appeared for his first riding instruction wearing only one spur. Upon being questioned by the instructor as to the reason for this MacTavish replied, "Well, sir, if one side of the horse goes, the other side is bound to follow."

"Dear Clara," wrote the young man, "pardon me, but I'm getting so forgetful. I proposed to you last night, but I can't remember whether you said yes or no."

"Dear Will," she replied, "so glad to hear from you. I knew I said "no" to someone last night, but for the tlife of me I couldn't remember who it was."

Our Troop Information Program non-com got ten dollars for a short leave last week.

He spoke back to a traffic cop.

Two women in an insane asylum were always knitting. "Gee," sighed one of them, "I wish some tall, dark and handsome man would throw his arms around me and hug and squeeze me until I gasped for breath."

Said the other: "You might have been crazy when they put you in here, but you're making sense now."

Young man: "Sir, could I—ah, er—that is, I'd like to—but—well could I—"

Fother: "You want to marry my daughter, son? Of course, it's alright!"

Young Man: "That wasn't what I wanted to ask you. Could I borrow ten bucks?"

Father: "Certainly not, I hardly know you."

Style note: The new cut of women's skirts has turned out like prohibition. The same joints will be there but they will be harder to see.

"Did you participate in many engagements on the continent?" an inquisitve old lady asked a returned soldier.

"Only five," replied the ex-GI with becoming modesty.

"And you came through all of them unhurt?"

"Not exactly," he replied sadly. I married the fifth."

"My plate is damp," complained a traveller in a London hotel.

"Hush," whispered his wife, "that's your soup."

"I understand your wife is a finished singer."

"No, not yet. But the neighbors almost got her last night."

The new inmate was taken to the rock pile on his first day in jail. A guard handed him a sledge hammer and pointed to a large rock.

"Okay, bud," he ordered, "go ahead and crack this rock."

The prisoner eyed the rock curiously. "Why?" he inquired. "What's inside?"

Soldier: "Nice dog you have."

Barber: "Yeah, pretty good."

Soldier: "Stays by you pretty good, too."

Barber: "Yeah, pretty good."

Soldier: "Got him trained, eh?"

Barber: "Naw, when I make a mistake and nick off an ear or something he likes to be on hand."

CHAPLAIN G. L. HAYDEN

"What shall I do then with Jesus, which is called Christ?"

The above text contains the most important question of our time. To answer it is a "must" in every life. As James Russell Lowell has said:

"Once to every man and nation
Comes the moment to decide,
In the strife of truth with falsehood,
For good or evil side."

Pilate, the maker of this inquiry, was not a Christian, but he found it difficult to justify his decision in the case of "The People vs. Jesus Christ". The truthfulness of his statement, "I find no fault in this man", is attested by his effort to escape the lashings of his own conscience by merely washing his hands. In leaving Our Lord to his fate at the hands of mob violence, Pilate did more than sanction the death of an innocent man. He gave comfort and support to the forces of hate and evil in their persistant struggle to enslave the hearts of men.

"What then shall I do with Jesus?" is a question for serious consideration by every individual. We must answer it. It demands that we "take sides" in the great moral conflicts of life. It is not enough to say, "I find no fault in this man". The evil in our hearts and in our society cannot be overcome by indifference. If Pilate, an alien to the cause of Christ, could not escape retribution for his complicity in the reurder of our Lord, how sad must be the fate of so called Christians who stand mute and indifferent toward the evils of our day.

Of his followers Jesus Christ demands a loyalty born of courage. The fear of reprisals from any source whatsoever should never influence a Christian to compromise with sin. Are you willing to take the "risks" in volved in courageous living? If not, we are Christians in name only.

Our course was clearly definded. It was laid out by Jesus Christ himself. For hi mit led to the Cross, but how else could the crown be obtained? The joy of ultimate victory will come only to those who are strong in defense of justice, righteousness, mortality, and truth. But certain defeat will haunt the indifferent, and those who boldly say, "Let him be crucified".

Your Red Cross

Orchids go this week to the Student Training regiment.

Yes, our hats are off to them for the splendid donation they made to the Red Cross fund campaign. Not only was their contribution sizable, but their list of contributors showed a larger average individual donation than perhaps any other organization on the post.

It wasn't at all an exception to the rule to be able to run down the list and see where one enlisted man gave two dollars, another six dollars, another five dollars, another three dollars, So, I say, special recognition should be given the officers and enlisted men in the Student Training regiment for their whole-hearted cooperation and participation in the fund campaign.

The field director would like to thank personally Capt. Leonard V. Bailey for heading up the solicitation committee in the regiment, but, in all due respect to Captain Bailey, there is evidence of keen interest shown all down the line. So, I would also like to thank those unknown individuals who took an active and interested part.

The campaign closes March 31 or April 1. Perhaps you have not yet made your contribution. It is not too late. Your contribution can be made at the Red Cross office on the main post either as a miscellaneous contribution or as credit to any organization you desire.

Little Miss Muffet decided to rough it
In a cabin quite old and mediEval . . .
Arounder espied her
And plied her with cider,
And now she's the forest's prime evil.

The absent-minded office manager pulled the typewriter down on his lap and began to unfasten the ribbon.

Zeke, freshly recruited and from the mountains, walked into thet orderly room and seeing an electric fan for the first time, exclaimed, "By golly, that's a lively squirrel in that cage, haint it?"

HOME AND GARDEN GROUP HAS FLOWER ARRANGEMENT TALK BY MRS. GROSS

Members of the Fort Benning Womans' club thoroughly enjoyed the meeting of the home and garden group on Monday afternoon, when Mrs. Wilfred Gross, of Columbus, spoke and gave demonstrations on flower arranging.

Meeting in the main lounge of the Officers' club, Mrs. Frank Ward introduced Mrs. Gross, the founder of the Perenniel Garden club of Columbus.

New ideas presented were the fact that it is always wise to evaluate your flower container, rather than have it rest flush with the table. Camillas may be used to advantage in tall arrangements by putting the tiny flower stem in a small bamboo twig or gladioli stem, so that it will be as useful as a long-stemmed flower and still get water through the second stem in order to stay fresh. It is also wise to anchor camilla heads with florist wire so that they won't drop off at the completion of an arrangement. It is not necessary to use the commercial flower holders—chicken wire or short twigs will make a fine flower holder. Gladioli always show off to better advantage when used with a contrast, such as magnolia leaves, she pointed out.

Mrs. Gross fascinated her audience wtih an underwater arrangement, which she made up in a brandy inhaler. Fixing the small grouping with one white iris, one white camilla, and bits of fern and green leaves to hide the needle holder, she lowered the arrangement into th inhaler, filled it with water and added a tablespoon of citric acid and a tablespoon of baking soda. This resulted in a coating of pearly bubbles on the flowers and greens, which was especially attractive when placed near a light. This type of arrangement will stay pretty for about one to two days.

Closing the meeting, Mrs. Ward read "The Legend of the Dogwood", and announced that the last meeting for the home and garden group would be April 26, at which time Mrs. Scott Fulton, wife of Brig. Gen. Fulton (ret.) will give her popular lecture on interior decoration.

TO BRING MUSIC TO—The Concert Series at Fort Benning, sponsered by the Fort Benning Womans' Club, will bring the beautiful opera, movie, and radio star, Rise Stevens, to a post audience on March 30 at the Main theater at 8:30 p. m.

CONCERT SERIES BRINGS RISE STEVENS TO MAIN THEATER ON MARCH 30

Eagerly awaited by post concert lovers is the Community Concert program to be presented on Tuesday, March 30, at 8:30 p. m. at the Main theater, when Rise Stevens will make a Benning appearance.

Rise Stevens is the beautiful slim blonde who has streamlined opera. Known as the greatest "Carmen" of all time, Rise is equally at home singing such roles as the boy Hansel and Cherubino in "The Marriage of Figaro". Proving that the opera star need not be well-upholstered to have such a rich and beautiful voice, Rise Stevens brings vivid youth and charm to the stage which immediately puts her personality across the footlights.

Born in New York of Norwegian and American parentage, Rise began her career at the age of ten as youthful prima donna on a children's radio program. Opera followers know that she has portrayed many male roles in opera, and probably got her real start from them. Although she is now best known for her singing of the role Carmen, she has been on many radio programs and in successful motion pictures, has made records, which in 1946, put her on top as the only classical singer to sell 1,000,000 in one year. Her most recent movie is "Carnegie Hall".

BENNING NURSERY SCHOOL ENJOYS QUARTERS REMODELED BY PARENTS

A visit to the Post Nursery school on Blessing street in one of the old barracks is a trip worth taking—a sweeter and more attractive group of youngsters would be hard to find, and the fact that the barracks building was remodeled and decorated by the fathers and mothers of the children is truly amazing, especially as a "before" and "after" contrast is available—The barracks next door is the "before" type.

Starting before Christmas, with the building available and paint furnished by the post engineers, parents of nursery-school age children undertook a big job with Maj. Robert N. Eddy as the guiding force, and Mrs. Eddy also doing some of the heavy work as well as supervising the making of curtains and decoration material by mothers. Mrs. William H. Wicoff added some very attractive touches with her large cut-outs of nursery characters to decorate the walls of the large playroom.

Walls were painted gray midhigh in each room with pastels from mid-wall to ceiling. Curtains of target cloth are tied back with bright checked oilcloth bows. Pictures and cut-outs made by the youngsters decorate the small rooms, where the children are segregated according to age groups. At present, the children are busy at work on Easter bunnies and cut-outs for the Easter season.

The Nursery school is sponsored by the Fort Benning Womans' club. Chairman of the Womans' club committee for Nursery school activities is Mrs. Joe V. Morey, and Mrs Robert Eddy and Mrs. Lloyd B. Ramsey assist. Teachers for the Nursery school are Mrs. Preston Gordon, principal, Mrs. Robert P. Canis, Mrs. Allen Scullen, Mrs. Frank A. Blake, Mrs. H. L. Taylor, and Mrs Joseph Szabo.

In addition to the building with its well-equipped classrooms, the play yard outside the building is neatly fenced-in with a white fence and contains an assortment of yard toys such as wagons, tricycles, jungle-gyms and a large playhouse, which was moved from the other Nursery school yard.

The Nursery school is now operating to capacity, but parents may put children's names on the waiting list. A fee of seven dollars per month is charged per child and the school hours run from 9 a. m. to 11:30 a. m. five days a week. Further information may be had from any one of the Womans' club committee members.

Chapel Ceremony For Miss McNeese, Dr. Beidleman

At a lovely spring wedding at high noon on March 20, Chaplain Robert P. Canis officiated when Miss Statia Helen McNeese, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Statia J. McNeese, of Bassfield, Mass., was given in marriage to Dr. Barkley Beidleman, son of Rev. and Mrs. Harry J. Beidleman of Hanover, Pa.

The ceremony was performed in the Infantry Center chapel, and Miss Hazel Turnage, head recreation worker at the Station hospital, played the wedding music.

Dr. Beidleman had his brother, Edward Bayard Beidleman, as best man. His ushers were Capt. Harold Jackson and Capt. Nathan Lane, both of Fort Benning.

The bride was attended by Miss Evelyn McNeese, her sister, who was gowned in blue taffeta made on the same lines as the dress of the bride.

Given in marriage by her brother, Col. George M. McNeese, the lovely bride wore a wedding gown of white satin, with a high neckline, long-sleeves, and a train. Her illusion veil was caught to her head with a seed pearl coronet. She carried a prayer book with an orchid.

Following the ceremony, a reception was given at the Officers' club. Out-of-town guests included Mrs. McNeese, mother of the bride, and her sister-in-law, Mrs. George McNeese. Miss Constance R. Beidleman, aunt of the groom, also attended.

DOUGHBOY BOXERS WILL DEPART SOON FOR CHICAGO MEET

Fort Benning's three Third Army boxing team delegates will leave here with Coach John Wilson on April 15 for Fort Bragg, N. C., where they will undergo an intensive workout period to prepare for the National Army-Air force tourney to be held in Chicago in June.

The three Dough fighters who earned berths on the squad are Lightweight Norman Clark, Middleweight Lawrence Jones, and Light Heavyweight Dick Donaldson. The remaining five spots on the eight-man squad will be filled by the airborne pugilists of Fort Bragg, who poked their way to team laurels in the recent Third Army meet.

More than 150 boxers representing army and air Force commands in the Zone of the Interior and overseas will compete in the event. They will come from the European Command, the Far East Command, the Pacific area and the Caribbean, as well as the six army areas, Military District of Washington and the major air force commands. During the course of the tournament, the boxers will be billeted at Fort Sheridan, Ill.

Aside from stimulating interest among army and air force personnel in recreational sports activities, a major purpose of the tournament is to qualify boxers in the two services for possible participation in the 1948 Olympic games in England next summer. From this tournament a boxing team will be formed from which one man in each weight will be chosen to represent the army and air force in the Olympic boxing finals in Boston, Mass., June 28 and 29.

Pre-Season Diamond Tilt Dropped by Dough Nine

Columbus Takes 7-5 Verdict To Open Exhibition Schedule

A poor sixth inning in the field proved costly for the Doughboy diamondmen as they dropped a 7 to 5 exhibition tilt to the South Atlantic league's Columbus Cardinals at Golden park last Sunday afternoon.

Approximately 4,000 spectators witnessed the classic, the first of the 1948 season for both teams.

Both squads used practically every player on their team rosters, and each had two flings at the lead before the host Cards crossed the plate three times in the bottom half of the sixth to gain permanent possession of a two-run margin.

Although outscored, the Doughs matched the Columbus aggregation's six safeties, and gathered four extra-base blows to the home nine's one.

Card Pitcher John Clark ran into trouble in the top half of the initial frame when he scooped up a slow grounder hit by Centerfielder Glenn Davis, Dough lead-off man, but tossed wild to first base allowing the Benning runner to pull up at second. Clark then whiffed Bob Kinard and George Dickson in succession, but Woody Burt, batting in the army clean-up spot, slapped a long two-bagger over the leftfielder's head to bring in Davis with the game's first tally.

The Redbirds came back in their half of the first to knot the count when Tyre Wright drew a walk, Francis Haus went down swinging, Raymond Sowins got a free pass to first but was retired at second on Stoney Langston's grounder to short. Wright came in from third when Bruce Smith singled sharply to center.

The Doughs scampered to a two-run lead in the second inning when Herb Lauve drew a base on balls, and scored when Pitcher Ken Watts picked off one of Clark's choice offerings and banged a triple into deep center. The Dough hurler raced across the plate on Dickson's leftfield fly.

Remaining scoreless and hitless during their half of the second, the Cards picked up a tally in the third when Haus advanced to second on a wild pitch by Watts after starting the inning off by getting a walk and scored when Smith doubled into left-centerfield.

Taking over Card mound chores in the third frame, David Cyrus got credit for the Columbusites' win, while Andy Boland, who went to the rubber for the Doughs in the fourth, was charged with the loss.

The home nine rapped Boland for two counters in the last half of the fourth when Wright singled to left center to score Ray Coss, who got on base by taking four straight balls, and Martin Debish, who was safe at first when Dickson dropped his fly to left.

Both teams went through the fifth frame without crossing the plate, but the Doughs got a short-lived fling at the lead in the top side of the sixth.

Woody Burt and Blondy Burnett worked Card Hurler Raymond Weiss for free passes to first, and moved up to third and second, respectively, when Paul Bonair laid down a sacrifice. Both scampered home when Upright, who had replaced Lauve on first base slammed a two-bagger into left.

The Redbirds had their biggest inning of the game in the sixth when three players toured the sacks on two scratch infield singles, a walk, and a costly error by Paul Bonair, who had moved from short to catcher to start the frame for the Doughs. The three runners, Richard Loeser, Eddie Pullins and Weiss, scampered across the plate after Bonair failed to hear Umpire Harris rule Paul Porubski out under the infield-fly regulation when he hit a high pop-up in front of home that the Dough receiver misjudged. Trying to catch Porubski at first, Bonair whipped the ball wild into right field, allowing Weiss and Loeser to score. Pullins raced for the plate with the third tally when Bonair failed to field the throw in from right due to a hand injury sustained earlier in the same play.

The local diamond delegation held the Columbus squad scoreless during the remainder of the game, but was unable to overcome the two-run advantage piled up by the home nine.

Sunday's game was the first of a two-game series matching the Doughs with the Cards. The second game was slated for the Benning team's home territory Wednesday afternoon.

BENNING BASEBALL LEAGUE ACTIVITY BEGINS WEDNESDAY AT GOWDY FIELD

A diamond tilt between the 30th Medical group and the Lawson field Flyers at Gowdy field at 1:30 p. m. next Wednesday will launch the 1948 Fort Benning intra-mural baseball campaign.

The opening clasb will be preceded by a 30-minute inauguration ceremony, in which high-ranking post officers and prominent Benning sports figures will participate.

A six-day-a-week schedule has been worked out by the post athletic and recreation office, and approximately nine games will be played each week until the end of the first half of loop play in May.

All contests will be played at Gowdy field.

Represented in the first phase of the Benning circuit will he the Infantry School detachment. the Airborne battalion, the Student Training regiment, the 3440th Army Service unit, the 204th Transportation Truck battalion, Lawson field, the 30th Medical group, and the 328th Ordnance battalion.

With the initial half's conclusion about May 5, teams from other units will be matched for a second period of play in the post race, scheduled to begin about May 8. Championship teams in each division then will be matched for a best-two-out-of-three series for the post title in July.

All encounters during the regular campaigns in both halves will be of seven innings duration, but the post crown playoff will feature nine-inning tilts. However, should a playoff game in either division be necessitated because of a deadlock, it will consist of nine frames.

Unless inclement weather interferes, two games will be played on the field throughout both phases of the campaign each Wednesday, Saturday, and Sunday afternoon. The opening clash will start at 1½ p. m., and the nightcap will get underway at 3 p. m. Each Tuesday, Thursday and Friday night during the loop play, a single game will be played at 8 p. m. Monday night it was pointed out by the A & R office, has been reserved to play off contests that may have been postponed during the preceding week.

All eight teams entered in the initial phase of play will see activity during the first week.

Following the game between the medics and flyers Wednesday afternoon, the ISD nine will meet the STR squad. In Thursday's night classic, the 3440th ASU will tangle with the 204th Transportation battalion truckers, and the Airborne battalion's defending post champs will be matched with the 328th Ordnance lads on Friday night.

Saturday's twin bill will feature games between the Lawson field nine and the STR, and the medics will clash with the transportation team.

In what should prove to be one of the best contests of the entire schedule, the ISD diamondmen will be brought together with the Airborne battalion aggregation at 1 p. m Sunday. The day's final clash will be between the 328th Ordnance and the 3440th ASU.

Winding up the first week of play, the Lawson Flyers will tangle with the 204th Truck battalion team in Tuesday night's game.

COMPLETES 4TH WEEK

Airborne Class No. 12, composed of approximately 125 enlisted men and 10 officers, completed its fourth week of training Saturday, March 20.

Under command of Lt. Bernard S. Kern, of Company C, Airborne battalion, the class began its instruction February 23

Mitchell Retires From Post Grid

Jim Mitchell, backfield star on the 1947 Doughboy football eleven, has been discharged from the army, and left last week for Athens, Ga., where he will enter Georgia university.

The well-known post athlete, who received his high school diploma fter passing the army's General Educational Development test, plans to major in physical education at the school.

During the 1947 pigskin season, Mitchell saw service in eight Doughboy gridiron encounters. Seven of the games found him in the quarterback spot, and he took over fullback duties in one contest. In addition to his football participation, he has played center on the 325th Infantry regiment's basketball team, and has been a pitcher on the Infantry School detachment baseball nine this season.

POST MARBLES CHAMP COPS THIRD PLACE IN CITY-WIDE SCHOOL MEET

Dale Griffith, who recently was crowned Fort Benning marble champion after winning the post school tournament, added to his accomplishment by placing third in Columbus city-wide school mibs meet at Wildwood park last Friday afternoon.

In a phase of the city school tourney held for the second-place winners at each school, Jimmy Southerland, runner-up at the local school meet, took second-place laurels.

Trophies won by the two lads were presented at the Fort Benning school last Tuesday by Col. Roy E. Lindquist, chairman of the post youth council.

The local marbles meet, conducted by Capt. Peter L. Kelley, post youth officer, was scored by Ribert Lindquist, Wallace Griner, Flinn Van Buskirk and David Schon. Captain Kelley and Principal Gleny V. Bonner were judges.

Winners for each class who participated in the title playoffs were: second grade, Michael Fitzgerald; third grade, David O'Mohundro; fourth grade, Larry Gunn; fifth grade, Dale Griffith; sixth grade, Jimmy Souerland; and seventh grade, Neil Stillinger.

SLANTS on SPORTS

Maybe the Doughboy team went to Columbus' Golden park last Sunday for their exhibition game with the South Atlantic league's Redbirds unblessed by the Gods of good fortune, but it is unlikely that that is the sole reason it suffered its 7 to 5 setback.

The local diamond squad muffed its chances of emerging with a triumph by committing several mental errors which resulted in, or set the stage for, Card tallies. The inadequate handling of fielding chances, coupled with lack of experience in the hurling and receiving capacities, probably cost the Doughs a ballpark contest which they otherwise would have won.

A bit more mental alertness might have given Pitcher John Wyatt a chance to work himself out of a none-out, bases-loaded hole in the sixth inning. However, the fielding of Porubski's infield pop-fly allowed the three runs to cross the plate that gave the Cards their winning margin.

Centerfielder Glenn Davis, going in to run for Blondie Burnett after the latter had drawn a free pass to first, got caught napping down the second-base line by Card Curler Augusto Zande, and First Baseman Herman Upright, who drove a long one into left-center during the sixth frame, was tagged out at third when he slowed up his gait between the second and third sacks.

Coach Herb Bench, however, cited the Dough prospects for a successful season as very good, and expressed satisfaction with the showing the Benning team made against the Class A league Cards after only two spring training get-togethers.

Impending transfers and discharges of regulars are giving Coach Bench a lot of headaches. Two first-stringers, Second Baseman Bob Kinard and Shortstop Steve Nemeth, definitely will be lost to the Benning team soon.

Kinnard expects to be discharged in May, and Nemeth already has been released from active duty, but stayed with the Doughs to complete their two-game series with the Columbus nine. The hard-hitting infielder will go from Fort Benning to Roanoke, Va., where he has inked a contract for the Class B Piedmont league club, and Bench predicts that he will move up to Scranton, Pa., of the Class A Eastern league before the end of the 1948 season.

The Infantry School detachment nine will have to start its drive toward the 1948 Fort Benning league title without the services of Third Baseman Blondie Burnett, who injured his arm in last Sunday's Doughboy-Cardinal game.

According to a medical examiner, Burnett is suffering from a sprained elbow, and will have to carry the arm around in a sling for a least 10 days.

From where we're sitting it looks like there are at least nine clubs, any one of which could finish in one of the top spots in the major leagues this year. To break it down, we might say five National league teams easily could wind up holding that circuit in 1948, and the American league has at least four clubs which are strong pennant possibilities.

Even though their record of past seasons doesn't stack up with the Brooklyn Dodgers, St. Louis Cardinals and the Boston Braves, the New York Giants are coming in this year with their strongest in a decade, and the pitching staff of the Cincinatti Reds' makes them a decided threat in the National circuit race.

Although the Boston Red Six and the New York Yankees appear to be the most potent aggregations in the American league battle, the Detroit Tigers and the Cleveland Indians have a good array of twirlers which may prove their way to a league title.

of the Doughboys' Third Army championship team of 1947 who probably will appear on the 1948 lineup are shown during a practice session at Watson field. The diamond Terry, and Paul Bonair, all infielders who will see service during the early stages of the season with the Airborne battalion baseball squad.

ISD Diamond Nine Rallies To Triumph In Sand Hill Contest

Two costly errors in the top half of the last inning resulted in two Infantry School detachment runs which beat the Sand Hill Bullets 8 to 7 at Bullet field last Wednesday afternoon.

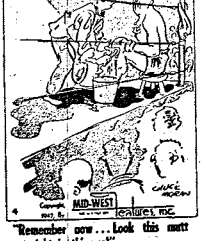
Although billed as a practice affair, the tilt took on all the earmarks of a big-time game. Spectacular fly catches by Willie Wise and Willie Battles of the Bullets, and superb infield work by Herb Lauve and Smitty Smith of the ISD aggregation highlighted the fielding activity, while the Bullets' Gordon Burke collected four for five, and Bill Brooks of the ISD banged three safeties in four appearances to star at the plate.

Getting nine safe hits off three Bullet hurlers, the visitors scooped up two runs in the first, three in the second, one in the fourth and two in the seventh. Although gathering 10 base blows to top their opponents, the Bullets failed to convert them into tallies that might have given them the game. The home nine picked up two scores in the first, two in the third, and one each in the fourth, fifth, and final periods.

Pitchers Horace Smith, Willie Conerly and Eugene Thomas worked the mound for the Bullets, while John Wyatt and Hal Grinolds did the ISD hurling.

April Canine Exhibit Planned By City Club

Thoroughbreds from all parts of the United States as well as Canada and Cuba will be shown at the Columbus Kennel club's fourth annual dog show to be held at the exhibit hall on the Columbus fair grounds, April 20.



The program also will feature a local competition, which will be open to all dogs belonging to Fort Benning personnel, and others residing within a 50-mile radius of Columbus.

Maj. V. F. Goodsell, chief ring steward, announced the deadline for entries as April 7, and advised interested post dog owners to obtain entry blanks by calling Club President D. S. Estes at 5371 or Secretary-Treasurer S. L. Speight at 3-7537. Completed entry blanks should be sent to Mrs. Goodsell, show secretary, at P. O. Box 177, Columbus.

All dogs entered in the show must be pure bred, but it is not essential that the canines be registered with the American Kennel club.

Entries may be made in 112 different breeds, and the show will include both regular and non-regular classes. Special awards to be made by the kennel club include trophies for the best dog in the show, best local dog in the show, best dog in each of six local variety groups, best dog in each of six regular variety groups, and the best of regular breed and variety.

Swim Team Begins 1948 Drill Session

"Build 'em up, loosen 'em up and tire 'em out," is the slogan adopted by Trainer Hewitt C. Tippins, who is working on the winter-weary muscles of the two remaining veterans of last year's Doughboy swim squad the temporary "out-of-water" area in the Airborne gymnasium.

The two members of the 1947 team, who currently form the nucleus of the 1948 Benning tanksters are the Infantry School detachment's William G. Thomas, last year's post champion in the 50-yard and 100-yard free style distances, and Swimmer-Coach Walter H. Murphy, Third Army 100-yard free style champ.

In addition to the two veterans, two promising newcomers who expect to begin training this week are William Tulley, ISD breast-stroker, and Edward Stiles, also of the ISD, who performs free-style swimming.

The Southeastern Amateur Athletic Union and Third Army championships will highlight the Dough activities of the 1948 summer season. Other encounters including the Fort Benning title race, will round out a busy season for the Benning squad members.

According to Coach Murphey, the development of new material is primary among the needs of the aquatic delegation.

Murphey expressed belief that the untimely illness of Thomas, ace Dough sprinter, last year affected the outcome of the Third Army pool classic, in which the Benning aggregation was runner-up to Fort Bragg, N. C.

In taking over the helm for 1948, the Dough mentor, who has built up a reputation as competitor and teacher in swimming circles both in the United States and Europe, advocated a well-rounded water safety program for swimming enthusiasts.

"People, including soldiers, often drown in cases where elementary instruction in watermanship would have reduced the number of deaths by drowning considerably," Murphey explained in stating his intention of offering swimming courses this year. His proposed instruction will include beginning swimming, combat swimming, and water landings, both on individual and group basis.

AUSTIN RECEIVES ARMY DISCHARGE

William D. Austin, guard on the 1947 Doughboy football eleven and prominent figure in Airborne sports circles, has been discharged from the army, and has returned to his home in

After spending the summer months at home, Austin expects to enter college and resume his gridiron activities. He has not decided which school he will attend, but indicated a preference for "some southern" university.

The youthful grid star's chores with the Airborne battalion included public information and special services clerk and assistant coach and matchmaker for the parachutist boxing aggregation. Prior to joining the Airborne battalion, Austin was assigned to the 501st Parachute Infantry battalion.

Thigpen Assigned To Artillery Unit

Pfc. Iverson Thigpen, who recently reenlisted for a three-year tour of duty, has been assigned to the 319th Field Artillery battalion's Headquarters and Headquarters battery, it was announced this week.

Pfc. Thigpen now has more than seven years' army service, including 42 months with Headquarters company, Base Section No. 2, in the Pacific.

He will serve in the battalion's air section as an airplane and engineer mechanic.

TRANSFERRED TO TIS

Sgt. Willie Hollman was transferred recently from Company G, 325th Infantry regiment, to Company B, Infantry School detachment, for duty as a clerk in the General section of the Infantry School, it has been announced.

MOORE CONTINUES LINKS TRIUMPHS TO ENTER TOURNAMENT SEMI-FINALS

Matched against Moore in tomorrow's semi-finals season will be Maj. Mills Brown, present occupant of the top herth in the club's ladder tournament, who copped a 4 to 3 win from Lt C. M. Maloney in last Saturday's round of play.

In the other semi-finals match, Col. Fay Ross, who won his last match from Maj. James W. Hungate, edged Capt. Philip S. Grant, 1-up, to place himself among the quartet of championship contenders.

Providing favorable weather conditions exist, the finals contest will be played on the local course the first Saturday in April.

Semi-finals matches in six other flights are to be played this week, and the championship in the divisions decided prior to April 3.

Capt. Anthony Augustauskas, who was toppled from the championship division playoff by Colonel Cole, gained his way to the first flight semi-finals and will meet Lt. Col. Robert J. Rosa next Saturday. The other first flight match will be between Capt. Clyde B. Carroll and Col. Gilbert T. Collar.

Holliday Sees ISD Diamond Squad As Threat To Airborne Battalion's Post Championship

By LORIS G. HOLLIDAY

With their eyes fastened on the post championship crown of 1948, the Infantry School detachment's baseball Profs started spring training last week witb a group of veteran club weilders which has earned them the reputation of being one of the most powerful nines in this year's post race.

The team started getting into shape under the watchful eye of Coach James L. Walker, who piloted the Airborne battalion to its 1947 championship. The coach is being assisted by John Seymour, former Southern league player who sometimes dons a mask and protector to direct play from behind the plate.

The Profs have a lineup of hurlers that would gladden the heart of any manager. Stemmed by Curve-ball Artist John Wyatt, Lefty Lanier, Strike-out Expert Doyle Feeber, and Ike Silcox, speedy righthander, the Profs have few misgivings as to what the season holds in store for them. The starting moundsmen are backed by a string of veteran pitchers, all of whom have proved themselves witb other post unit squads. These include Hal Grinolds, former 37th Infantry pitcher and third baseman; Charles Hiested, ex-Student Training regiment hurler, and Weldy Welton.

The outer-garden representation features George Dickson, who led the post league last year witb a batting average of .415; Bill Brooks and Woody Burt, both of whom flirted with the .400 batting mark, and George Hill, a five-year man on Benning teams who was a member of the ISD post champ teams of 1942 and 1943.

Not satisfied with having a hard-hitting outfield, Coach Walker has built up a machine of ball-shagging infielders that nothing short of a ferret could get past. The first baseman, Herb Leuve, a .375 hitter last year, is generally recognized as one of the fastest fielding stars on the post. He is assisted at the second sack by Smitty Smith, who is one of the fanciest ball-handlers to be found in Benning diamond circles. Pegging them around from the short stop position with bullet-like speed is William Hojenacki.

Performing from behind home plate is Chick Shiver, who has played on post teams for the past three years. He is not only recognized as one of the post's best catchers, but consistently hits a championship brand of ball.

STRONG STR TEAM BOWS TO BULLETS

By BOB PHILLIPS

The Bullets were forced to use a last-inning rally to squeeze out a 7 to 6 win over a Stubborn Student Training regiment baseball team at Bullet field last Saturday afternoon.

Starting to run the Bullets ragged, the STR nine shelled starting pitcher Charles Patrick from the mound in the second stanze after running up a 5 to 0 lead. Willie Conerly then took over the Bullet hurling assignment until the fifth frame when he was yanked by Coacb Charlie Toliver in favor of Eugene Thomas.

Going into the last half of the seventh frame with a 6 to 5 count favoring the STR, Hirron Collier doubled to left, Thompson made a spectacular, one-handed stab of Gordon Burke's high pop-up behind the plate, and Odie Brown doubled to right to score Collier and knot the score at 6 to 6. After stealing third, Brown trotted home with the wining tally when Nick Nichols lifted a high one to deep center field.

Betting power for the Bullets was furnished by Hardy and Nichols, who collected three-baggers, and Collier and Brown, who doubled. The STR hiting was led by Davis and Howard with two safeties each.

THREE MORE POST HARDWOOD STARS DISCHARGED HERE

Separation of three more members of the 1948 Doughboy basketball team last Saturday leaves only one first-string representative of the local hoop squad performing army duties at Fort Benning.

The three departed cagers are Guard Harold Haberman, Forward Al Ratner, and Guard Harold Lutz. Players who previously had tossed in their Doughboy uniforms for a fling at civilian life include Center Doug Scovil, Forward Harold Corizzi, Trainer Bob Scallorn, and Hugh Weber, second-string guard.

The remaining first - team Dough representative is Forward Bob Kinard, who expects his discharge in May.

In addition to his court activities, Lutz has established himself a reputation of being one of Benning's most versatile athletes. He was an end on the 1947 Dough football squad, the post's diving delegate on its swimming aggregation, and was pole vaulter and shot putter on the Third Army champion Benning track and field team.

After visiting his home town of Clinton, Iowa, for a few days, Lutz plans to enter either Iowa or Alabama University.

Haberman, who wound up the season high on the Dough individual scoring roster, also was a standout during Fort Benning's grid season. He chased passes from the right end spot. The offensive cage artist, who calls Manitowac, Wis., his home, plans to enter the University of Wisconsin soon.

Also planning to continue his schooling, Ratner indicated a preference for Western Reserve college, and plans to enroll after a short stay at his home in Cleveland Heights, Ohio.

Corizzi, who held the top spot on the individual court scoring list for the 1948 season, also has elected to continue his education and plans to resume his studies at Colgate University soon. He lives in Clifton, N. J.

EASTER MORNING WOESHIP—The center of the Easter sunrise services at Campbell King Horseshow bowl was the stage, pictured here, which accomodated the three choirs and the Chaplains participating in the service. Grouped in the foreground is the Infantry Center youth choir, in the center the 25th Infantry male chorus, and on the far end the Infantry Center chapel choir.

Benning Observes Annual Easter Sunrise Service

An unseasonable cold spell failed to chill the Easter spirit of early morning worshippers as approximately 3,000 Fort Benning soldiers, their families and guests gathered in solemn prayer at the traditional Easter sunrise service held Sunday at the Campbell-king Horseshow bowl.

The theme of the morning service, delivered in the sermon by Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Wallace M. Hale, was based upon the words of the angel to Mary "He is not here; He is risen".

Sponsored By Chaplains

Sponsored by the Protestant chaplains of the post, the sunrise service was the first of the many scheduled Easter services that conducted by various units and chaplains of all denominations here.

Three choirs the Infantry Center chapel choir, the Infantry Center Youth choir, and the 25th Infantry male chorus, and the 72nd Army band provided the Easter music amid the natural greenery and surroundings of the bowl. Centered in the middle of Horseshow bowl were 1,000 soldiers in the form of a perfect cross.

A ten-foot green cross centered on white-lattice work formed the background for the stage where all the choirs and speakers were situated. Under the cross was the altar, banked with easter lilies in full bloom, and on either side of the cross were green rectangular wreaths that provided the frame for the national and Christian colors that were placed there immediately following the choral processio. At the top level of Horseshow bowl cabin, flying in the early morning breeze, were massed the guidon bearers of the various military organizations serving at Fort Benning.

Sacred Concert

The actual observance, which was preceded by appropriate musical selections by the 72nd band under the direction of Warrant Officer Richard Velasco, opened with a sacred concert. Following was a call to worship at 6:30 a.m. by trumpeteers and the processional hymn, "Alleluia", by the combined Infantry Center and youth choirs and the 25th Infantry regiment's male chorus.

"Sunrise on Easter Morning", by Olds, sung by the Infantry Center chapel choir followed the invocation delivered by Chaplain (Capt.) Chester H. Pelt of Lawson field. The scripture read by Chaplain (Capt.) Robert P. Canis hospital chaplain, and the pastoral prayer by Chaplain (Capt.) Gerald L. Hayden of the 25th Infantry preceded the Lord's Prayer.

The Halleluah Chorus from Handel's Messiah, sung by the 25th Infantry male chorus, preceded the benediction by Chaplain (Capt.) Leonard A. Ellis, Section II, 3440th Army Service unit. The 72nd Army band provided the musical background for the recessional at the close of the program.

Terminal Leave Pay Bill Slated For New Airing

Veterans who forfeited their terminal leave pay when they accepted reenlistment furlough bonuses may still get a chance to collect their leave compensation, provided a bill introduced to Congress by Representative James H. Morrison, D., La., is passed.

According to Representative Morrison, Public Law 704 (terminal leave pay), which was approvde by the 79th Congress, August 6, 1946, has proved an injustice to thousands of enlisted veterans. The argument centers around the reenlistment furloughs which were offered as an inducement for enlistment under provisions of law in effect prior to the enactment of Public Law 704.

To correct the matter, Morrison recently submitted H. R. 3514 to the 80th Congress. The bill provides that reenlistment leave taken prior to the enactment of Public Law 704 shall not be considered as leave taken within the meaning of the Act.

The Louisiana politician argues that under the provisions War Department Circular 310 (October 6, 1945), which stemmed from Public Law 72, re-enlistment furloughs were offered enlisted men who reenlisted within 20 days of discharge, or who were discharged for the purpose of re-enlisting or enlisting in the service. On the strength of this promise, says Morrison, a great number of men took advantage of the financial aspects of such an offer.

Thousands of men who accepted the offer soon discovered that Public Law 704, which did not exist at the time of their enlistment, had stripped them of their wartime accured leave pay, he said, and in a majority of cases, it had consumed their terminal leave pay.

AGF Board 3 Observer Reports On Army's Arctic Test Maneuver

With the completion of Exercise Yukon, the army's test maneuver in the arctic, Lt. William D. Hackett, mountain climbing expert, has returned to Fort Benning to resume his duties at Army Ground Forces Board No. 3.

An observer for Board No. 3 Lt. Hackett was a member of the group that included four companies of the Second Infantry division which conducted operations in sub-zero temperatures to acquire data on tactics and doctrine for cold climate combat.

According to the board observer the operation was a very real one, the elements of nature. In spite of furious arctic winds, which sometimes rose to speeds exceeding 50 miles per hour, huge C-82 "flying boxars" shuttled groups of over 200 men from the home base at Big Delta to outlying airfields.

Exercise Yukon, which has provided on-the-spot training for the participating troops, has, according to officials, also added immeasureably in the preparation of plans for the defense of U. S. northern ramparts. The light, warm clothing used by the troops, and the superior lubricants used in vehicles, were developed as a direct result of Task Force Frigid staged several months ago, in which board No. 3 played an important part, they said.

With about 260 trips up the lofty peaks of the world behind ly qualified as an observer in this type of winter warfare. Before entering the service, he was a ski instructor at the Timberline lodge in Oregon. With 19 years of skiing experience behind him, Lt. Hackett has competed in class "A" slalom and downhill events held at most of the resorts in the northwestern United States.

Also an edept mountain climber, Hackett has scaled all the major peaks in the northwestern section of the continent, including the twin peaks of Mount McKinley, 23,300 feet above sea level. He scaled Mt. McKinley while acting as the army ground forces observer during operation "Whitetower". He also gained the distinction of being the first American soldier to reach the summit of the loftiest peak in Germany during the war.

Other foreign peaks he has ascended include the ranges in the Canadian Northwest, in Mexico, and several sections of the Alps in Europe.

Beginning his military services as a first sergeant instructor for the army's mountain troops, Lieutenant Hackett was sent to the Officer Candidate School here. After graduation from OCS in 1944, he was assigned with the 87th Mountain Infantry regiment in Italy. He has been awarded the Silver Star, Bronze Star, Combat Infantry badge, ETO ribbon with two battle stars, Army of Occupation medal, and the American Theatre him, Lieuteanant Hackett is looking to the future when he proposes to organize and lead a mountain climbing expedition to South America.

LOCAL MACHINE GUNNER FIRES SECOND 'POSSIBLE'

To fire a perfect score is quite and honor, but to accomplish the feat twice is something else again. T-Sgt. Horace Nelson, company C, Infantry School detachment, proved that it was no accident the first time as he fired a "possible" with a light machine gun during a demonstration at English range Monday.

Sgt. Nelson, assistant instructor in the machine gun group, Weapons section of the Infantry School, is believed to be the only soldier at Fort Benning ever to perform the feat, did it once during a similar demonstration last November.

Using a 1919 A-6 light machine gun on a 1,000-inch range, Sgt. Nelson fired a perfect score of 104 on the last two exercises of a four-exercise target. In the exercise he score in each space in exercises 7-8 and 9-10 to tally 30 and 48 points respectively for each exercise. With two points awarded for each space, he placed in each of the 13 total spaces for a bonus of 26, which gave him an aggregate of 104 and a "possible."

In February, 1947, Sgt. Nelson fired a perfect score with the 1917 A-1 water-cooled machine gun. Hitting perfectly in all four exercises on the target, he amassed a "possible" of 200.

A native of Phenix City, Ala., the machine gun expert, is a veteran of 11 years service. He entered the army at Fort Benning in August, 1934, and was discharged in 1937. He came back again in February 1941 to serve with Company E of the Infantry School detachment, and later with the Officer Training Center at Fontebleau, France. He came here on his return from Europe.

Civilian communities all over the country will next week begin the second annual observance of Army Week, seven days set aside to review the accomplishments of the world's greatest fighting machine and now the world's greatest preserver of the peace.

Although Congress passed legislation in 1937 for an Army Day, it wasn't until 1947 that an entire week was reserved for the army. During time of war, everybody looks toward the army for protection of their homes, their ideals, and most of all their freedom; but during time of peace, the average person has a tendency to forget the existence of the organization which assures him that he will be able to live without fear. As a result it is only logical that the Congress would name a week for U. S. citizens to take cognizance of the military, the men who make their career the protection of the civilian.

The U. S. Army has come a long way since a handful of men answered the call to colors in 1775, the year that marked the beginning of our fight for independence from England. The U. S. Army at that time was a ragged, underfed, underpaid groupe of men whose ideals of freedom correspond with the ideals of the American soldier of 1948. But what they lacked in snappiness they more than made up in courage.

During the next few years, until the beginning of the War of 1812 — sometimes called our second war of independence — the army began to show some improvement. At least it was conposed of war-hardened veterans, who had been trained under the strickest of disciplinarians: George Washington.

Under Winfield Scott and Zachary Taylor, our army began to show more promise than ever. The troops withstood the fever and heat of Mexico to bring quick settlements of disputes during the Mexican war. Again the army was called upon to quell the disturbance between the North and South during the Civil war, proving again the greatness of the organization.

World War I brought to the foreground the real ability of this greatest fighting team the world has ever known. Overcoming what at times appeared insurmountable odds, the U.S. Army soared on to victories which brought peace, happiness, and prosperity to the world.

During the latest conflict with an enemy, the army was again called upon to prove its worth. World War II is still too clear in the minds of the infantry soldier here to talk about the accomplishment of the army during those bloody campaign all know too well what the army did toward vanquishing ruthless foes from our country.

We are proud to be affiliated with such an organization as the United States Army, an organization which has never been guilty of a crime against its country, an organization which stands ready at all times to defend the honor of its country.

A poor unfortunate man who lived close to a railroad yard in the suburbs of a large metropolis wrote the following about the racket made by a switch engine: "Gentlemen:

Why is it that your switch engine has to ding and dong and fizz and spit and bang and hiss and pant and grate and grind and puff and bump and chug and hoot and whistle and toot and wheeze and jar and jerk and howl and snarl and huff and growl and thump and boom and crash and slam and throb and roar and rattle and yell and smoke and smell and shriek like heck all night long?"

Any time you feel indispensable take a walk through a cemetery and read the headstones. Those guys were pretty hot stuff too.

Father: "Don't you think our son gets his intelligence from me?"

Mother: "He must, I've still got mine."

"How long have you been working in this office?"

"Ever since I saw you coming down the hall."

The left fielder had missed three easy fly-balls. When the inning was finally over, he returned to the bench and alibied: "I guess I'll have to get glasses."

"Glasses?" roared the coach. "You're too far gone for glasses. What you need is radar"

One-armed drivers are nearly always headed down the aisle of a church. Some will be led . . . others will be carried.

Given the unpleasant task of breaking the news to a woman that her husband had committed suicide, the chaplain went to the widow's house. "I bring you bad news," he said. "Your husband just jumped into the river."

"Oh,' she sighed, "him and his new fountain pen."

Floridan: (Picking up a watermelon) "Is this the largest apple you can grow in your state?"

Californian: "Don' squeeza da' grape."

M.P., on traffic duty: "Say, you! Didn't you see me wave at you?"

Slick Chick: "Yes, and you had better be careful, Im engaged to your first sergeant."

AFTER EASTER

By

Chaplain E. P. Canis

Easter and its pagentry are over. In memory and in spirit we have witnessed one more the climax of the greatest story ever told, the Resurrection of the Lord, Jesus Christ. Once again the sun has set on another Easter Day; and we find ourselves walking in the sunset of the Resurrection Light.

Two disciples once found themselves walking down that sunset trail. It was the night of the first Easter. They were bemoaning the fact that the Lord was no longer with them, when suddenly a stranger walked beside them, talked with them, and dined with them; and, in the breaking of bread, they recognized that stranger as the Risen Christ.

This is a typical experience of the average Christian life. It is easy to feel Christ very near to us on festive days and Holy Days. In the crowd we have no difficulty seeing Him and singing His praises. But when we get down into the valley of every day living, we suddenly feel alone; and, with the disciples, moum the fact that Christ is gone.

The two disciples on the Emmaus Road found christ in a stranger who happened their way and recognized Him when they opened up their hearts to Him and shared the hospitality of their home and the breaking of bread with Him.

In just this way Christ comes to us each day. We find Him in the lives of those with whom we live, and work, and with whom we enjoy fellowship. The stranger who brings Christ to you may be a lonely buddy in need of friendship, a sick neighbor whom you can help, or one who is lost and is looking for something on which to pin life's hopes. Strangely enough by sharing Christ with those who need Him, we find Him for ourselves; and we recognize Him, as the disciples did, through our deeds of mercy, charity, love, and kindness administered in His Name. And every day becomes an Easter Day; and Christ is risen indeed.

BY MURRAY E. HILL

You who are reading this probably enjoyed Easter, but did you give one thought one single time to the patients in the hospital during Easter week or Easter Sunday?

You may not have thought about them but the Red Cross girls at the hospital went through a very strenuous week to see that no patient at the hospital failed to enjoy Easter week and Easter Sunday. It is interesting to note that many joined hands to make this a most successful Easter holiday at the hospital: the patients, the Red Cross girls, different organizations in town, and others on the post.

The activities began on Tuesday, March 23, when a party for the patients was arranged in the Red Cross recreational hall with girls from the Army-Navy YMCA in Columbus attending, and did they have fun! The most interesting activity of the evening consisted of a contest for patients to design spring hats using only such items as paper plates, cups, newspapers, crepe paper, pins, and any other thing that was handy. The winning creation was designed by S-Sgt. James C. Campbell and Sgt. Ernest Ingison, under the direction of the Red Cross recreational workers, made up Easter baskets. On Good Friday the baskets were delivered to the youngsters and a special entertainment for a party for the kids was provided by Pfc. Duncan and Miss Levine, Red Cross recreational worker.

During a tough campaign in the Pacific Theater signs began to appear in various areas encouraging the men to protect themselves.

One sign read:—"Wear your helmet—not for looks, but for safety." Another was worded: —"Bury all cans—not for looks but for safety."

Some wag presently composed his own signs which stated: "Take us home not for looks, but for safety."

The soldier was painting the CO's office, but the sergeant was under the impression he was not making enough progress.

Hearing no sound from the CO's office, the sergeant shouted, "Hey, soldier, are you working?"

"Yeah," the EM shouted back.

"I don't hear any noise," the sergeant screamed.

"I'm not putting it on with a hammer," was the gentle reply.

Missus: "Your head is like a doorknob."

Top Kick: "Whateyamean"

Missus: "Any girl can turn it."

Mrs. Top Kick: "Oh, darling what a perfectly charming home! Lets take it on a ten-year lease. It's so adorable it leaves me speechless."

Top Kick: "Ten-year lease my eye. If it works that way on you, I want it for life."

Aviation will not be completely safe until you don't have to take that taxi ride to the airport.

Mess Sgt.: "What are you looking for."

K.P.: "I just rinsed the ice in this warm water and now I can't find it."

"And so I told her that I loved her and that we'd be married in the summer."

"July?"

"No, I meant it."

Recruit: "Barber, do you have another razor?"

P.X. Barber: "Sure. Why?"

Recruit: "Id like to defend myself."

"My ancestors came over on the Mayflower."

"It's lucky that they did; the immigration laws are a little stricter now."

'TIS MASTER SERGEANT AWARDED DIRECT COMMISSION DURING WAR

Commissioned on the battlefield, awarded the Distinguished Service Cross for evtraordinary heroism in the field, and in addition cited by the commanding general of the Third Army, for "devotion to his men and to duty" M-Sgt. Joseph J. Smyth, Company C, Infantry School detachment, now serves as an instructor in small arms in the Weapons section of the Infantry School.

With eight years of overseas service, including 18 months of combat with the 80th division and 16 years in the army, Sergean Smyth recalled last week incidents of his service in Hawaii, China, the Philippines, and Germany.

"On April 2, 1945, we were trying to take Wahlheiden, Germany. They threw us out of there and some of my platoon were hit. I couldn't just leave them there. So I stuck around for awhile."

What Sergeant Smyth neglected to add was the account of his performance on the outskirts of the German town. His citation reads:

"When a murderous hail of enemy mortar, machine gun, and small arms fire forced forward elements of Lieutenant (then Technical Sergeant) Smyth's company to withdraw from the town, he gallantly elected to remain behind to treat and evacuate the wounded. When hostile machine gun fire threatened to thwart his efforts, he picked up a BAR, firing it from the hip as he advanced. He quickly overran the enemy positions, wiping out two of their machine gun emplacements and crews, killing 21 hostile riflemen, and wounding 19 more."

For this action, the heavy set man known as "Smitty" received the Distinguished Service Cross and was awarded a field commission as a second lieutenant on April 5, 1945.

His initial enlistment in 1931

Overseas with the 60th division, Sergeant Smyth joined the 318th Infantry regiment at Metz serving with the Blue Ridge division from Normandy until the final drive into Austria at the end of the war.

Holding the Purple Heart, Bronze Star medal, Distinguished Service Cross, and the ETO ribbon with three battle stars; Sergeant Smyth plans to retire at the conclusion of 20 years of service.

Wednesday Night to See Last Concert With Gyorgy Sandor

Rounding out an exceptionally fine concert series, sponsored by the Fort Benning Womans' club will be an appearance of the internationally famous pianist, Gyorgy Sandor, at the Main theatre at 8:30 p. m. on April 7.

Gyorgy Sandor, who is a native of Budapest, began his career there at the age of 18 as a student of the great Hungarian composer-pianist, Bela Bartok, and a pupil in composition of Zoltan Kodaly. For seven years after his debut, he appeared as soloist with the leading sympathy orchestra of Europe. He made his American debut in Carnegie hall in 1939, winning immediate recognition from the press and pubic for his artistry. After six months in the United States, he was called to South America, where he created a sensation in season after season of successes.

From 1942 to 1944, Sandor was in the service of the United States, being allied with the Signal Corps, Intelligence, and Special Service schools. Immediately after his discharge, he returned to the piano, presenting two Carnegie hall recitals, a coast-to-coast tour, then returning to Latin America for his first post-war concert tour. Sandor is a Columbia record artist, two of his finest albums being "The Piano Music of Liszt" and Rachmaninoff's Second Piano Concerto. South America recalls him each summer and his fame in the Latin countries is rivalled only by his present.

His hobbies are interlinked with his career. He considers playing the piano as much a hobby as a career, deriving great pleasure from each performance. Next he places people on his list of professional and personal enoyments. Meeting thousands of people on his transcontinental tours, he enjoys exploring personalities of each nation and type. Sandor also finds time to include languages in his array of talents. He has mastered five fluently: Hungarian, French, German, English and Spanish. He plans Portuguese as his next lingual venture.

Much of his popularity with his audiences as well as with orchestra conductors, is because of his extensive repertoire of piano and concerti. He not only has the standard number of piano and orchestra blendings at his talented fingertips, but a repertoire which includes 22 piano-with-orchestra compositions, ranging in period from Bach to Bartok. His gift of extraordinary intreptation has made his "one of the most impressive pianists of this generation". He has received warm praise with every orchestral appearance, notably the New York Philharmonic, Miami Symphony, the National Sympathy, in Washington, D. C., and the Philadephia orchestra. Whenever and wherever Gyorgy Sandor plays he rouses his audience to enthusiasm and return engagements are eagerly anticipated.

Easter Luncheon For 325th Ladies

Wives of officers in the 325th Infantry regiment met for a luncheon on Thursday afternoon at the Officers' club Palm room. Hostesses for the party were Mrs. John Gloriod, Mrs. A. B. McCarthy, Mrs. Dayton Warren, Mrs. Ralph Sciolla, Mrs. Thomas McGlynn, Mrs. Francis Crist, Mrs. Henry Mitchell, Mrs. John Hart and Mrs. Charles Carter.

Using the Easter theme with exquisite taste, the hostesses had hand-painted name tags and bridge tallies in the form of small bunnies, and the place cards at the tables were in the form of brightly-colored Easter eggs in in small nests of greenery with each guest's name printed on the top of the egg. The Palm room was a beautiful pastel bower with each table laid with a white cloth over which pastel streamers of crepe paper were used. Centering each table was an Easter basket full of arrangements of pastel spring flowers. Napkins were also in the pastel shades.

Bridge followed the luncheon, which fifty-five ladies attended.

Section Luncheon Guests See Japanese Decor of Authentic Beauty of Officers' Club

At a section luncheon of exotic beauty last Thursday, Mrs. Carl E. Frisby, Mrs. O. C. Thompson, and Mrs. Richard Womer acted as hostesses to wives of officers in the Communications section and received the guests in beautiful Japanese kimonas, with Japanese sandals and elaborate coiffures to complete the costume effect.

The east porch of the Officers' club was the scene of the party and was transformed into a Japanese garden with the use of wisteria and spires, Japanese lanterns, Japanese dolls, and a plaster-of-Paris model of Mt. Fiji centering the table. In addition to the decorations, there was displays of Satsuma porcelain and Kamakura hand-carving to illustrate talks given by the hostesses on those Far East arts.

Mrs. Frisby, who made arrangements for the luncheon and brought her Japanese things for the enjoyment of the ladies attending, spoke bruefly on O-Bon, or the Festival of Lanterns in Japan, with the lantern decorations giving an authentic touch.

The luncheon menu carried out the Japanese theme, with sukiyaki as the main course, and a delicious Japanese wine served first followed by the Japanese fish course. Name tags were handmade by Mrs. Frisby depicting Japanese ladies with their various odd hair-arrangements. Place cards were tiny scenes of Japanese points of interest.

Communications wives and guests who attended the luncheon, which was folowed by bridge, were Mrs. Paul Hamilton, Mrs. H. H. Van Vliet, Mrs. Athel Bangert, Mrs. Robert P. Zeigler, Mrs. George Fegar, Mrs. John Herrington, Mrs. Clarence A. Martin, Mrs. Alan Swain, Mrs. George Roper, Mrs. William Hill, Mrs. P. J. McDonnell, Mrs. J. L. Ford, Mrs. John Flecher, Mrs. C. G. MIDDLEWEIGHT CHAMP—Lawrence Jones, classy Fort Benning middleweight, works out in the Main gymnasium in preparation for the National Armed Forces tournament to be held in Chicago in June. Holder of the Third Army tiara in his weight division, Jones will leave next week with Doughboy champs, Lightweight Norman Clark and Light Heavyweight Dick Donaldson, for Fort Bragg, N. C., to work out with the 82 Airborne

Columbus Blanks Doughboys, 2-0

The Columbus Cardinals' 2 to0 triumph over the Fort Benning Doughboys at Gowdy field last Wednesday afternoon gave the city diamond nine a clean sweep of a two-game exhibition series with the army ball team.

Although being held to three safeties by a quartet of Card hurlers, the Doughs turned in a brilliant fielding performance, and executed five double plays in the course of the tilt. Dough fielding stars of the game were Second Baseman Bob Kinard, who figured in all five double outs, and Bill Brooks, who make a somersault catch in short left field to rob Card Catcher Bob Worthington of what appeared to be a "Texas-league" single in the seventh frame.

Dough double plays in each of the first three innings nipped possible Card rallies, but the pro club managed to push across a tally in the fourth before the Benning nine repeated its fielding performance of the first three stanzas.

City Nine Scores

Hal Grinolds, who took over mound duties for the army squad in the fourth was charged with the loss. He was nicked for the inning's lone score when Francis Haus singled to left, advanced to second on a passed ball by Dough Catcher Chick Shiver, and raced home when Ray Sowins drove a sharp one-bagger to center.

The Cards crossed the plate with their second tally in the top half of the eighth when Edgene Czaplicki drew a walk, advanced to third on a single to center by Bill McKenna, and came in before McKenna was run down by Lefty Lehner, Dough first sacker, between first and second on a double-steal play.

Loop Features Airborne--ISD Game Sunday

Sunday afternoon's diamond tilt between the Airborne battalion, defending post champion, and the Infantry School detachment's Profs at Gowdy field will highlight the first week of play in the Fort Benning baseball circuit.

In tonight's league classic, the Airborne lads will tangle with the 328th Ordinance battalion, winner of the second division of loop play of the 1947 season. Although the Ordinance battalion hasn't named its starting mound choice, Coach Herb Bench of the parachutists probably will start Bob Cronin.

Although Bench is starting Cronin, a newcomer to the Airborne line-up this year, he has given due respect to the hitting power of ace southpaw, Ken Watts, and will break him into the line-up as first-sacker.

In the first game of a double program Saturday afternoon, the Student Training regiment will tangle with the Lawson field Flyers, and the nightcap will be between the 204th Transportation truck battalion and the 30th Medical group. The games are slated for 1 p. m., and 3 p. m., respectively.

The Ordinance lads will take the field again Sunday against the 3440th Army Service unit nine. The game will follow the Airborne-ISD tilt.

After remaining idle Monday night, Gowdy field will be the scene of a Tuesday night clash between the Lawson field aggregation and the 204th truckers.

Cub Scouts Tour Lawson

The operations officer, Capt. James O. Collier, conducted the boys up and down the flight line, taking them through several types of aircraft including the C-47 and the C-82 troop carrier and cargo planes.

TALLIS HAPPY WITH PRO NINE MANAGERSHIP

Cedric N. Tallis, versatile ex-Benning sports figure, is "genuinely happy" in his new job as business manager of the Thomasville, Ga., baseball club of the Class D Georgia-Florida league, his first civilian occupation in seven years.

In addition to being business manager for the Thomasville farm team of the Detroit Tigers, Tallis also serves in the capacity of general manager and vcie-president.

Tallis' sports career at Fort Benning involves two sports—basketball and baseball. Although he didn't see active service on Doughboy hardwood courts, the popular athletic figure coached the local quintet in the Southeastern Amateur Athletic Union cage title in 1947, and stayed on as court mentor during the 1948 season until his release from active duty in January.

His diamond activities at Benning came during pauses between overseas tours in the Aleutian Islands and Europe. In his first season with the Doughboy nine, Tallis hurled eight victories and was charged with one defeat. His lone loss was to Ewell Blackwell, ace mound performer for the Cincinnati Reds, who was playing for a post unit nine at that time.

Another outstanding performance from the hill for Tallis came when he pitched the Doughboys to a 4 to 1 exhibition triumph over the Atlanta Crackers of the Southern Association.

Legion Circuit To Be Formed

Opportunity for Fort Benning's youthful diamond aspirants to play in the Columbus American Legion baseball circuit this year has been announced by Capt. Peter L. Kelley, post youth activities officer.

Play in the loop this year has been divided into two age classes. The "midget" league will consist of teams composed of youths 16-years-old or under, and a "junior" league will be open to teams made up of not more than three 18-year-olds, and the remainder 17-year-old or younger.

The post officer said that sponsors have been obtained for Fort Benning teams, and will equip players getting squad berths.

Interested individuals or teams on the post are asked to contact Capt. Kelley for additional information.

UNUSUAL SPORTS RECORD COMPILED BY POST UNIT

By AL WISE

By virtue of an impressive record obtained in an around-the calender series seasonal sporting endevors, Service company of the Student Training regiment claims the diadem as being the most sports conscious unit on the post.

During the recent, post-wide basketball season, Service company entered a quintet in the annual court intra-mural loop, and, in an impressive style, copped the league title and trophy. The court squad consisted of Thomas Taylor, Joseph Morgan, and Donald Jackson, forwards; James Wheeler, center, and John Moran, Phil Irby, and James Smith, guards. Following the close-out of the intra-murals, all members of the team with the exceptions of Irby and Jackson joined the Fort Benning Bulet five.

Service company's array of athletic successes are basically attributed to the joint efforts of the unit's athletic and recreation section supervisors, 1st Lt. Thomas J. McCorlew and S-Sgt Robert Harris. Sergeant Harris coached the basketball team to its championship, and later managed the Bullets.

The unit's athletic activities are not confined to any mere seasonal sport. Its representatives on the current regimental diamond squad include Willie L. Weaver, righthanded hurler, Phil Irby, initial-sacker, and Howard Thompson, catcher.

Ten candidates, James Wheeler, Robert Peters, Harold McClung, Robert Ponton, John Morgan, James Smith, Richard Brinksley, Cotex Hamilton, and Grover Finch are undergoing daily practice sessions for the ensuing Benning track and field meet next month.

First Sgt. Richard Collins, for many years one of the outstanding amatuer tennis players in this sector is again staging a recruiting drive for members for his annual troupe. As in the past, contests will be staged with service teams and members of the Southeastern Inter-Collegiate Atheletic conference.

The ancient Scottish game of golf also has its followers in Service company. They are S-Sgt James Price and T-5 Jasper Logan.

PULLMAN WINS "SKEETO"

Class A high-gun honors in last Sunday's "skeeto" program at the Fort Benning Officers' club gun range went to Capt. Milton A. Pullman, and Dr. C. A. Peacock of Columbus was the runner-up. Lt. Col. Charles E. Woodrow fired the high gun in the Class B competition, and Lt. Col. D. E. Hoffmeister took runner-up honors.

TO HEAD HOSPITAL UNIT

Maj. Hillas B. Brockett, recent returnee from Japan, has assumed command of the 121st Evacuation hospital, officials said today.

Major Brockett, who has been in the army for 22 years, spent the past 30 months in the Pacific.

SLANTS on SPORTS

By Lewis Mc Afee
Bayonet Sports Editor

The track and field team to represent the United States in the London Olympic games will be made up of winners in the Intercollegiate games in Minneapolis and the Amateur Athletic Union meet in Milwaukee, according to Dean Cromwell, head coach for this year's U. S. Olympic cinder track performers.

The way Cromwell figures it, the U. S. won't mop up at the Olympic games, but he figures it will make its customary good showing.

Asserting that the U. S. is better equipped than any other nation expected to field a team in the meet, the head coach pointed out that the big difference between the U. S. team and squads of other nations lies in the training and coaching.

Cromwell expects the Swedes and Finns to be the big guns in the mile, 1,500-meter, 5,000-meter, and 10,000-meter events, but pointed out that long runners from Sweden and Finland have been dashing off five or ten miles at a clip since they were mere youths.

He predicted that the Scandinavian teams will need some of their long legmen in consideration of the way the U. S. Gil Dodds is running.

The way the New York Giants have been swatting them out during their tour of the Pacific coast states, it looks very much like the hickory wielders of the Polo Grounds might shatter the record for round-trippers set by their 1947 sluggers—221.

In 11 pre-season tilts on the coast, the Giants smashed out 17 circuit blows, and grouped 15 of them in seven contest. Nine lumber-swingers took part in the clouting.

Throughout the displays of slugging, however, Manager Mel Ott's mound staff, if anything ,was weaker than the one he sported last year. It looks very much like Ott will have to delegate his number one mound spot to Larry Jansen again this year.

Maybe the reason Master Mel is placing emphasis on power at the plate instead of whipping himself up a more dependable hurling lineup is because he is a past master at the art of fence-busting. Ott holds the National league record for the most homers during a life-time career in the circuit.

A higher premium will be placed on four-base clouts at Pittsburgh's Forbes park this season with the added height to the "Greenberg gardens" fence in left field.

With an added elevation of eight feet to the fence, it will require a wallop of approximately 351 feet to clear the barrier, whereas a 1947 drive of 343 feet did the trick.

However, Pirate officials don't expect the added wire to interfere with the brand of wallops produced by the Pirates' Ralph Kiner, whose 51 homers last year placed him in a tie with the Giants' John Mize for major league round-tripper honors.

Instead of the middleweight boxing divisions having the world-wide color it could have had, the incident involving Rocky Graziano has made it one of the ring's black marks, as well as reducing fight fans' interest in the middleweight class.

About the only way the weight class will ever restore interest is to throw the crown in the ring and let ethical bouts decide the fighter to wear it.

As far as the suspension of Graziano is concerned, the main argument has been along two lines:

First: Granted he was guilty, he has served his sentence, and paid the law's penalty. Isn't that enough? Why punish him further.

Second: A war deserter should not be allowed to make a $250,-000 killing by running away. His penalty should have been death before a firing squad or at least 10 years in a stir. A weak-minded court let him off too easily. If many young men find in time of war and come back for a clean-up, why hang around and be a target for enemy fire?

For many golfers who think that the ancient game of golf is broken down into three distinct divisions—wood play, iron play, and putting, such masters of the sport as Bobby Locke, Ben Hogan, Jimmy Demaret, and Sam Snead offer this bit of advice. "Keep Swinging."

Infantrymen Edge Truckers Nine, 5-2

In a School Troops league baseball game at the 204th Transportation Truck battalion diamond last Tuesday afternoon, the First battalion, 325th Infantry regiment, nine dumped the truckers 5 to 2.

The tilt had all the earmarks of a pitchers' duel until the fifth frame when the Infantrymen pushed four tallies across the plate. A trucker rally in the bottom half of the seventh was nipped by the invading squad after it had netted the host nine one run.

POST LINKS TOURNEY ENTERS FINAL ROUND

A new champ will be crowned at the Fort Benning Officers' club golf course Sunday afternoon after the completion of the 36-hole finals match between CWO Devery Moore and Major James Hungate.

Both finalist have made surprising strides in their march toward the post title, sweeping aside some highly favored contenders for the annual meet's tiara.

Among Moore's victims is Lt. Col. W. R. Cole, last years tournament winner.

The sharp-shooting Moore shot close to par golf last Saturday afternoon to edge Maj. Mills Brown five-and-four, and enter the tourney finals. Hungate, also crowding par, eked out a two-and-one decision over Col. Fay Ross, whose scramble to the semi-finals was one of the meet's biggest surprises.

In addition to Cole and Brown, Moore's list of trimphs also includes a 20-hole, one-up win over 1st. Lt. John Henion. Hungate entered the semi-finals quartet with a one-up victory over Capt. Phillip S. Grant.

Last week's consolation championship flight matches went to Cole, who beat Col. W. S. Lewis two-and-one, and Capt. Herb Bench, who won a one-up decision over Lt. Col. C. W. Davis, runner-up to Cole for tournament medalist laurels, one-up.

In the first flight semi-finals, Lt. Col. Robert J. Ross won over Capt. Anthony Augustauskas, and Capt. Clyde B. Carrol downed Col. Gilbert T. Collar.

Although Sunday has been slated for the championship finals matches, contests in all other flights are to be played prior to Sunday in order that awards may be made on that day.

Tuskegee Swamps Bullets

BY BOB PHILLIPS

In the first contest of a two-game diamond program for the Sand Hill Bullets last week, the host Benning nine was stopped cold after the third inning by the Tuskegee Tigers of Alabama, who clawed their way to a convincing 9 to 3 victory on Tuesday night.

The opening innings of the game were played on even terms, with the Bullets scoring the first run in their half of the initial frame on a walk to Jojo Hughes and timely singled by Odie Brown and Nick Nichols.

Knotting the count with one run in the second, the big bats of the Tigers exploded in the third when they pushed over four more tallies on as many hits plus three Bullet miscues. A towering four-bagger by Jesse Jones which rolled past the scoreboard toward the super highway was included in the Tiger hit barrage.

Gordon Burke and Hughes crossed the plate for the home nine in the third to put an end to their scoring in the game.

While holding the Sand Hill aggregation scoreless the rest of the way, the Tigers went on to add one in the fourth, two in the seventh and one in the eighth. Visitor batting laurels were shared by Clarence Cole, Oscar Stanback, James Cole, James Patmon, and John Fulghram, each collecting two safeties.

Performing mound duties for the Tigers were Barland, Simmons, Grisby, and Singletom, while the losers employed hurlers Willie Conerly and Eugene Thomas.

1ST SERGEANT LIVED TEN YEARS IN FRANCE

Many a war-tale has been spieled, but if he chooses to tell it, one of the most interesting could be narrated by 1st Sgt. William B. Hardin, Company F, Airborne battalion, who spent 10 years in Brest, France, prior to the war.

Leaving France in 1939, he returned before the invasion with the famous OSS brigade that played havoc within enemy lines by working in close cooperation with the underground.

Joining the Kentucky National Guard in 1940, he went overseas in the early part of 1942, but later returned to the states to attend Officer Candidate School here.

Commissioned in April, 1943, he went to Europe again in 1944, where he was assigned to thee Office of Strategic Services. Following VE Day, Sergeant Hardin was transferred to Japan where he served in the Transportation corps.

Hardin then returned to Europe in February, 1946, serving with the CID and the infantry, with his duties taking him to many corners of the earth—England, Scotland, Ireland, Newfoundland, Canada, France, Belgium, Holland, and Italy. During his tours over seas he learned to speak French and Italian fluently.

Separated from the service in 1947, Hardin reenlisted in his present grade last November.

AIRBORNE GENERAL FINISHES TRAINING

The second high-ranking officer of the 82nd Airborne division to undergo Airborne training at Fort Benning in recent weeks, Brig. Gen. Robert M. Cannon, concluded the rigorous course last week and won his "wings" in graduation ceremonies Saturday.

The square shouldered, raw-boned general, who closely resembles the late Gen. George S. Patton Jr., follows in the footsteps of Maj. Gen. Clovis E. Byers, commanding general of the 82nd Airborne division, who completed his airborne training here two weeks ago.

A veteran of 22 years service, the 46-year old general Cannon transferred from the Sixth Army to assume command of the division artillery of the 82nd Airborne division. Following the completion of his training here, he returned to Fort Bragg, N. C. and the 82nd Airborne division.

Taking the short course of a normal six-week grind, General Cannon climaxed strenous sessions of calesthenics, parachute landing falls, and mock tower jumps, with the final jumps from aircraft to win his "wings".

Like Maj. Gen. Clovis E. Byers, he believes that the Airborne arm of the army will play an important part in the future, emphatically asserting that air transportation of troops is the most effective means of transportation. He also stated that landing troops and supplies by parachute enlarges the field of operations since direction and radius in combat air traffic is practically unlimited. He illustrated this by pointing out that the forces of the late Gen. "Vinegar Joe" Stilwell received their supplies, including ammunition, from the air and para-drop, for over a period of two years of warfare in the China-Burma-India theater.

In his opinion, Airborne training has no equal. It is evident, he remarked, by the mental attitude and physical condition of Airborne trainees. He sees no room for improvement in the course for training here and he labeled the instructors at Fort Benning Airborne section as men of the highest possible caliber.

A West Point graduate, he received his commission in 1925 and received his first assignment with the field artillery at Fort Warren, Cheyenne, Wyoming. Later he served as a field artillery officer with the Philippine scouts from 1931 to 1934.

The beginning of the war found him an instructor at the Field Artillery school, Fort Sill, Okla., from where he went to the China-Burma-India theater with the Stilwell mission in February 1942. After serving in China and India he moved over to the Northern Area combat command at the head of the famous Ledo Road in Northern and Central Burma.

He was awarded the Distinguished Service Cross for outstanding service as Chief of Staff of the Northern Combat Area Command. He returned to this country in April 1945.

DUO ACCLAIMED FOR WAR DEAD ESCORT DUTIES

Two former Fort Benning soldiers, Sgt. Duel A. Perkins and T-4 Paul E. Swan have been commended and highly praised by friends and relatives for performance of duties as military escorts for World War II dead.

Appreciation and thanks for the manner in which both men carried out their escort duties were expressed in separate letters received by Col. R. B. Thornton, commanding officer of the Atlanta General Distribution Depot of the American Graves Registration service.

Sergeant Perkins, of Violia, Ga., was praised by the parents of a deceased son recently returned to Bristol, Tenn., for burial. In a letter to Colonel Thornton the parents wrote, "We wish to express our sincere appreciation and thanks to Sgt. Duel A. Perkins, for kindness and assistance beyond duty to us and all concerned during his stay with us".

A funeral director, assisting a Gold Star family with the burial of a deceased veteran recently returned to Blackshear, Ga., also in a letter to Colonel Thornton said, "This firm compliments the army for having men on duty such as sergeant Swan. At all times he conducted himself as a gentleman. We are delighted with the good work he has done and delighted to know him".

Sergeant Perkins and T-4 Swann were selected for escort duty on the basis of their excellent records and their ability to handle difficult problems.

Skilled Civilian Pool

We might as well resolve ourselves to the fact that things will never be the same again. No matter how we try to get back to our old pre-war "way of life," we find more and more in these critical days that we must keep up with the trend of times.

The world has been thrust into a predicament from which it may never extricate itself. This nation of ours, upon which the rest of the world is looking for salvation, may undergo certain changes within the next few years that may appear "radical". To the layman, but the trends of the times will warrant such changes.

One of these changes now being contemplated is the formation of a "government reserve corps", comprised of skilled men for specific jobs with the government during an emergency. The government has been encountering difficulty in hiring skilled men to work on low government pay, the result of which is being seriously considered by congress. The result may be a "government reserve corps."

With the inauguration of the Marshall Plan, which got rolling this week, the best qualified men our nation can muster, are necessary to administer this plan and make it work. The free peoples of the world look to the Marshall plan as their only means of salvation. If it fails, —we fail.

Plan Expanded

So the need for skilled men is essential. But how can we lure good men from their civilian occupations into the government fold?

The plan proposes to set up a pool of specially skilled men from which the government would "borrow" for specific emergency tasks. These men would be granted a leave of absence from their private jobs. Their salaries would be pieced out by their employers, so they would not have to take a cut in income.

Originally the plan was devised to get the best possible workers into the supervisory jobs which will be created once the Marshall Plan is put into operation. It called for men experienced in the field of foreign relations, but now the interest in the "reserve corps" has mounted so high that it is being expanded to permit the hiring of emergency trouble-shooters for the U. S.

The proposed plan could also supply temporary specialists for the occupation areas and for the special commissions dispatched by the United Nations.

In the past it has been difficult to get such qualified personnel. Men are needed who know taxation, labor relations, transportation, shipping, foreign trade, public information, industrial management and education. Some such experts have already been acquired, but they are only a handful.

Specialization Realized

The government reserve corps" was hatched by a group of young men who had to turn down certain government offers, because of low government pay. With the cost of living such as it is, these men felt that they could not afford to leave their private jobs to accept government offers. But this group of young men did not stop there. They realized the need of specialized men by the gavernment, and the plight of such men as they, who are willing to accept "special assignments" with the government, but are stymied by the current cost of living. Thus the plan was devised.

The men who devised the plan are all specialists in their particular field, men who during the war served in administrative jobs with the military and government. According to their setup the whole "corps" would run from a small office, headed by some well respected American. That office would search wartime lists and files for citizens who had performed special tasks. These people would get invitations to "join" the corps. Others who feel that they can be of help to their government, can volunteer to offer their services in case of emergency.

Only after passing the usual government tests of character, integrity, skills, and patriotism, would these particular specialists be put on the available list of "trouble-shooters".

Army Considers Reserve Recall

Peacetime power is being asked of Congress by the Army to call up reserve officers to handle its expected manpower increases according to reports eminating from the nation's capitol.

The hint for peacetime power was dropped by Gen. Jacob L. Devers, commander of Army Field Forces (Formerly Army Ground Forces), at a news conference last week.

Seeking an increase of 282,000 men under a temporary revival of the draft, the Army hopes to obtain enough reserve officers to handle this new manpower by voluntary means. If voluntary requirement doesn't work, new peacetime legislation will be required to "draft" the needed officers.

It was also reported that many Army camps will be reopened under the proposed expansion and peacetime training programs. The great need for more doctors and dentist was also expressed by officials.

Your Red Cross

BY MURRAY E. HILL

Let's talk this week about first aid and water safety. Perhaps you think it is a little early in the spring to begin to talk about the dangers of swimming or the accidents that can happen on picnics.

Actually, only three weeks from today, the swimming pools open. We have plans now for a very broad swimming program throughout the post for the summer. If you can't swim, you will be given an opportunity to learn the fundamentals of swimming and water safety. If you can already swim and want to qualify as an expert, you will also have the opportunity to do so.

To put over this large swimming program we will need instructors, both civilian and military. A brief survey on the post has disclosed a half-dozen well qualified instructors, but we will need more. This is a direct appeal to you, whether you are civilian or military, whether you are an officer of an enlisted man —to volunteer your services if you are an American Red Cross Water Safety instructor. Perhaps your card authorizing you to instruct has run out. If this is true, we can requalify you.

The Girl Scouts have already completed a first aid course and are now thoroughly prepared to take care of any difficulties or accidents that might occur on their hikes and camping trips. The Red Cross would like very much to conduct other first aid courses for both military and civilians. We have plans now to conduct these classes in off-duty hours, after school, on Saturdays and at any other time that may prove convenient for those wishing to take the course.

There is a need for instructors in first aid as well as instructors for water safety. I sincerely urge all of those on the post, holding a first aid instructor's certificate to call the Red Cross office. Probably you would like to teach a class yourself and pass on your knowledge to others.

Let's make Fort Benning, especially among our dependents, a safe place by discovering to teach all of the fundamental principles of First Aid and water safety. Your suggestions concerning this important subject will be eagerly received at this office.

Play in the Fort Benning school softball league got under way Tuesday, March 30 with the seventh graders pounding out a 28-7 triumph over the sixth graders and the fifth grade squad downing the fourth grade crew, 20-4.

Big gun in the seventh grade victory was David Schorr who collected three for four. Leading the fifth graders in their win were Robert Luther and Jimmy Dunn.

In games played Monday the fifth graders pulled an early upset to edge the seventh graders 7-6, while the sixth graders disposed of the fourth grade softballers, 28-15.

League games are played each Monday and Thursday at 4 p.m. and 1:15 p.m. respectively, until the end of May.

The two baseball teams being formed on the post are shaping up well for league competition which commences in two weeks. The Midgets, will be represented in the 18 year and under age group, while the Juniors enter the 17 years of age and under competition.

A meeting of all leaders and committee members of the Boy Scouts and Cub Scouts will be held Tuesday April 12 at 7:30 p.m. in the post school auditorium.

Chaplain's Corner..

"EASTER AND PEACE"

By

Chaplain John F. Rafferty

Christ never promised the type of peace which the world promised. "My kingdom is not of this world," he said. He could have summoned legions of angels if He wished to impress His torturers with their own fleas and impressions of power. But no, His power and the only majesty that really matters is that of the spiritual realm.

Once more in our day the powers of darkness have rallied in the crucifixion of Christ and Christendom. The church, the foundation of society is threatened with all the instruments of cunning and deceit that come with atheistic rule.

Two gospels are being preached today throughout the world. One is the gospel of love and immolation, the other is the gospel of hate and ungodliness. We may be shocked at the taunts of the crowds as they hurl words of vengeance at the leaders of Christendom. But the Passion and Resurrection of Christ reminds us that this has been the lesson of Christian history and that when the church suffered here greatest ignominies in the eyes of man, she accomplished best her mission in the sight of God.

At the very moment when even the apostles were growing faint and feeling keenly in Defeat of Calvary, Our Blessed Saviour was being seen by a repentant Magdalene in the Garden of his Resurrection, and walking in the glory of His Divinity in the Easter morn.

In the language of God, that is to say in the spiritual life, the deciding factor between pronounced success of compar-tive failure in self-sanction. The struggle for sanctity turns on this one thing. This is manifest in the lives of the saints. God is not satisfied with the Christian world at this moment. The pagan world and atheistic communism is an evidence of this fact. The Cristian world will have to suffer great trials to overcome its miserable mediocrity.

The peace of Easter was preceded by all the sorrowful travail of Gethsemane of Golgotha on the part of the Master. We must guard the citadels of our souls these days with the only weapons that are really effective—with prayer and mortification that we may be worthy of the promises of Christ. The peace of Christ was never promised except by a spiritual struggle. The crown of heaven is won only by the warriors who carry a cross.

They were talking on the phone and he said: "Where can I get hold of you next Thursday?"

And she said: "I don't know, I'm kinda ticklish."

BRIDE AND GROOM OF SATURDAY—Lt. and Mrs. Paul Livingston Applin, Jr., leave the Infantry Center Chapel following the ceremony Saturday afternoon. Mrs. Applin is the former Miss Sally Watson, daughter of Col. and Mrs. Bernard A. Byrne, of Fort Benning. Lieutenant Applin recently graduated from the Associate Basic Class and is assigned to the 325th Infantry at Fort Benning. They will reside in Benning Park upon returning from a Virginia wedding trip. (Photo by James Quinn)

Miss Sally Watson Is Bride of Lt. Appun at Chapel

At a beautiful spring wedding of Saturday afternoon at the Infantry Center Chapel, Miss Sally Dunn Watson, daughter of Col. and Mrs. Bernard A. Byrne, became the bride of Lt. Paul Livingston Applin, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul L. Applin, of Tallahassee, Florida. The Rev. Mr. Colin Campbell, of Columbus performed the ceremony before a gathering of family and friends.

The lovely chapel was beautifully decorated for the occasion and the use of dogwood, bridal wreath, and smilax gave the effect of a spring garden. White tapers were used in the cathedral candelabra and the pews were marked with bridal wreath tied with white satin ribbon. The wedding music was played by Miss Margaret Denny at the organ.

The ushers took their places at the first strains of the wedding march. They were Numa Watson, brother of the bride, Lt. Samuel T. Rhoades, and Lt. Alvin B. Kiellman, all of Fort Benning, Lt. Alan T. Sylvester served Lieutenant Applin as best man.

Miss Tippy Byrne, sister of the bride entered as flower girl and was gowned in rose crepe fashioned with a fitted bodice and long, full skirt. She wore a matching bonnet with blue trim and carried an old-fashioned nosegay.

The bridesmaids were Miss Geraldine Fox, of Sun Valley, Idaho, and Miss Alyce Lawrence of Woodward, Okla. Their gowns were pale green taffeta off-shoulder models and they had net head-veils to match. Each carried a sheaf of deep pink roses.

The matron-of-honor was Mrs. Charles H. Morgan, of Redding Pa., whose gown was pink taffeta slong the same lines as the gowns of the bridesmaids. She also carried roses.

The lovely blonde bride entered on the arm of her father, by whom she was given in marriage. Her gown was ivory satin designed with a fitted bodice with a net yoke and full skirt which ended in a train. Her ivory net veil was fingertip length and was caught to the head with coronet of orange blossoms. She carried a beautiful bouquet of gardenias, white roses and orchids.

A reception was held at the Officers' Club immediately following the ceremony in the small lounge and Palm Room. The bride's cake was arranged on a small table encircled with bridal wreath. The tea table was centered with a spring bouquet of white tulips, roses, and smilax. Smilax and bridal wreath were used in profusion throughout the two rooms.

Among the out-of-town guests coming for the wedding were the parents of the groom. There were 160 guests at the wedding and reception. Miss Leslie Tibbets kept the bride's book.

Lt. and Mrs. Applin left during the evening for a wedding trip to Virginia.

Lieutenant Applin graduated from Pascal High School, Fort Worth, Texas, and from Virginia Military Institute in Lexington, Virginia.

Mrs. Applin is a graduate of Columbus High School in Columbus, Ga., and attended Stevens College in Columbia, Missouri.

The couple will make their home in Benning Park upon returning from their trip. Lieutenant Applin is assigned to the 325th Infantry at Fort Benning.

Adding to the out-door menu provided by the girls was hot buttered popcorn, which was popped in an old-fashion popcorn popper which was brought to the picnic by Sharon Smith, daughter of Col. and Mrs. Aubrey Smith, recent winner of the Easter egg hunt.

The Benning Scouts are looking forward to their annual "Court of Awards" which will be held on April 30.

P-TA Plans Fine Program To Be Held On April 15

The regular monthly meeting of the Fort Benning Parent-Teachers Association will be held at the Children's School on April 15 at p.m. This will be a joint meeting of all mothers, fathers, and friends who are interested in the P-TA and the Children's school.

Our teachers who have given their untiring efforts to our children will be on hand earlier in the event some of the parents might wish to visit with them in their classrooms to see the work the children are doing, and to discuss any problems with them that they wish to clear up.

This should prove to be one of the best meetings of the year as guest speaker for the evening will be Capt. Peter L. Kelley, Post Youth Officer. To most of the members, he will need no introduction because of the splendid work he is doing, and the message he will bring will be of vital interest to each parent.

Another highlight of the program will be an extensive Art Exhibit in the School Auditorium showing the progress each child has made during the year. This is one of the projects that the P-TA has had the privilege of sponsoring, and it is one to be proud of. The Junior Choir from the Infantry Center Chapel will give several muscial selections and the officers for the school year 1948-49 will be elected at this meeting.

It is urged by Mrs. Albert Haley, president of the P-TA that one hundred percent attendance by parents be achieved, and she extends a hearty and cordial welcome to interested persons to attend this outstanding meeting.

Moore Captures Post Crown

TITLIST WINNER BOASTS RECORD

In winning the Fort Benning officers' club golf championship last Sunday, CWO Devert Moore didn't exactly open himself up a new field of achievements.

The local links expert, who added the post crown by winning the 36-hole finals match from Maj. James S. Hungate 6-and-5, also holds the Panama amateur title, and was the Pacific Theater army open champion of 1946.

Crowding par throughout the tournament, Moore took five successive elimination rounds to cop the title, and scored upsets over some highly favored contenders for the crown. Lt. Col. W. R. Cole, defending post champion, was among Moore's list of victims. Other golfers ousted by the new champ in his climb to the finals were Lt. Col. Charles R. Meyer, 1st. Lt. John Q. Henien, and Maj. Mills Brown.

Following his triumph over Hungate in Sunday's match, Moore was presented with a silver platter by Maj. Gen. John W. O'Daniel, the infantry center commander. As runner-up, Hungate received a similar trophy.

The medalist award went to Cole, who also won the championship consolation flight.

In addition to the three major awards, General O'Daniel also made 18 other presentations to winners and runners-up in each of the six numbered flights, and the consolation victors in each division.

Moore grabbed the lead in Sunday's play on the first green, and never lost it until the match ended on the 31st hole.

Winding up the first nine with a two-hole margin, Moore increased his lead on the fourth hole when Hungate carded a bogey 5, but dropped back to 1-up on the sixth green when Hungate stroked a par 5. He regained his 2-up lead on the eighth hole with a par 4.

Moore increased his edge on the second nine of the morning round to three holes by winning the 10th, 12th, 13th, 16th, and 18th holes. The 11th, 15th, and 17th holes were taken by Hungate.

Picking up two more holes on the first half of the afternoon round, Moore held 5-up advantage over Hungate as the finals classic went into the home stretch.

The titlist then knocked in a par on the 10th hole, and halved the 11th, 12th, and 13th holes with Hungate to close out the match on the 31st green.

In addition to his Panama and Pacific theater victories, Moore was two-time winner of the officers' Pacific theater tourney—1946 and 1947. Reaching the finals in last year's Pacific army classic, had to be satisfied with a tie for honors in the theater open since he was transferred to the United States before getting a chance to play the winner of the enlisted men's division of the meet.

Moore also won the club championship of the Anniston, Ala., Country Club before his departure for the Canal Zone in 1944, and placed ninth in the Panama open medal play tournament in 1947.

Recalling his win over Dr. Herbert Mitten to take the Panama amateur title, Moore labeled it as a "bitter victory."

The links expert tells the story of the death of his "second", Lt. Col. Charles Tanner, then commander of the Anti-Aircraft artillery forces in the Canal Zone within five minutes after the championship match was over.

"Colonel Tanner had been on hand all day—offering me all the assistance he could. He rushed through everything he did that day in order to insure me of playing under the very best conditions.

"I promised him that, if I should win, I would buy him the best refreshments the club had to offer. When the match ended he said that he would meet me in ten minutes for the repast. However, he didn't meet me—less than five minutes from the time I left him, he dropped dead from heart trouble." Moore related.

Silcox Hurls 2-0 League Victory

Moundsman Gives Only 3 Safeties

Exploding the myth of the Airborne battalion's diamond power, Ike Silcox, Infantry School detachment right - hander gave up only three hits in besting Southpaw Ken Watts 2 to 1 in a Gowdy field mound duel Sunday afternoon.

Going the route for the Profs, Silcox whiffed eight parachutists, and yielded only two free passes to first. Working the first four frames for the Airborne nine, Watts was replaced on the hill by Bob Cronin, speedy right-hander, after the Profs' winning tally had romped across the plate.

The ISD lads managed to nick Watts for four bingles in his fling at mound chores, but went hitless and scoreless after Cronin had taken over hurling duties for the Airborne.

Profs Score First

After three scoreless stanzas, Airborne catcher Tom Gallagher let one of Watts' offerings slip past him to permit the Profs to cross the plate first.

William Hojnacki, ISD shortstop started the fourth inning off by going down on strikes, but First-sacker Herb Lauye worked the Airborne southpaw for a walk. Going to third when Paul Bonair, parachutist shortstop, muffed one off the bat of Silcox, Lauve raced home on Gallagher's passed ball.

However, the Airborne lads came back in their half of the fourth to knot the score.

Watts Tallies

Pitcher Watts led off in the Airborne's half of the fourth, and reached second on an error by Hal Grinols, ISD second-sacker. Advancing to third on Henry Griffin's roller to short, the southpaw moundsman came home while Hojnacki and Lauye teamed to put Gallagher out on a grounder to short.

Rightfielder Woody Burt went out from short to first to start the ISD side of the fifth, but Catcher Chick Shiver picked off one of Watts' offerings for a single. Trotting down to second when Centerfielder Bill Brooks drew a base on balls, Shiver made a clean steal of third, but was tagged out at the plate when he tried to score on a passed ball. However, Brooks went to third on the play, and came home when Airborne Second-sacker Bob Kinard misfielded a blow by Hojnacki.

After Cronin came to the mound for the parachutists, he set the ISD team down in order, fanning three of the six batters who faced him.

Meet Again April 25

The win over the Airborne nine placed the ISD team in a four-way tie for the Fort Benning league lead since all four scheduled first-round games were played last weekend.

Other teams sharing the top spot with the Profs are the Student Training regiment, the 204th Transportation Truck battalion, and the special units of the 3440th Army Service unit.

A return engagement, with the ISD assuming the role of home team, will be played between the two teams on Sunday afternoon, April 25, at Gowdy field.

SPEED BOATING EXPERT SEEKS RACE LAURELS

Following his graduation from the enlisted motor class of the Student Training regiment, T-5 Don Wallman plans to convert his hobby of motor boat racing into a profitable undertaking.

Wallman, who operates a red and white striped comet hydroplane with a 22-horsepower outboard motor, entered 18 speed contests last year, and, on 16 occasions, placed third or better. He plans to form a racing partnership with a friend in time to try for the Mid-western championship this year.

Although he has been racing only two years, Wallman already has achieved a place of prominence in water racing circles in the vicinity of his home town, St. Louis, Mo.

Commenting that the racing sport is filled with spills and thrills, Wallman cites an incident that occured during his latest race in which he narrowly escaped serious injury when the engine of the boat he was driving exploded, hurling metal and flame in all directions.

In addition to racing, Wallman has other hobbies which include woodworking and model aircraft construction.

The boating enthusiast came to Fort Benning to attend the motor course from Headquarters and Headquarters company, Third battalion, 138th Infantry regiment of the Missouri National Guard.

PROF SET ACQUIRES EX-PRO BALLPLAYER

Joe Smith, formerly under contract to the American league's Philadelphia Athletics, has tossed in his civvies and a contract with the Macon Peaches of the Sally league to sign again with the army and don the uniform of the Infantry School detachment's Prof diamond nine.

Starting his athletic career while a pupil in Columbus' Jordan high school where he performed in baseball, basketball and football, Smith attracted the attention of Philadelphia scouts, who inked him to a pact, and sent him to their farm at Johnstown, Pa.

After performing for the Pennsylvania club, Smith saw service with Birmingham of the Southern association, and Columbia of the Sally circuit.

Following a three-year tour of duty with the army, the new star in the ISD lineup signed up with the Macon Peaches as an outfielder, and was one of th South Atlantic loop's leading hitters during the 1946 season.

Smith's assignment with the Profs probably will be in the infield.

During his tour with the army, Smith saw service in Europe, and was awarded battle participation stars for the campaigns of Normandy, Northern France, the Ardennes, Central Europe, and the Rhineland.

Commenting on his withdrawal from professional baseball, Smith said:

"It's not only the security of the army, but the fun of playing with these who speak your language."

ASU Nine Takes League Opener

Hurling seven innings of two-hit baseball, Earl Simpson, mound ace of the 3440th Army Service unit diamond nine, handed the 328th Ordnance lads a 4 to 1 setback in a Fort Benning league contest at Gowdy field Sunday afternoon.

Simpson held the Ordance team scoruess for the first six innings, but Catcher Edward Goode raced across the plate with the flame pot nine's only score in the bottom half of the seventh when Bob McCachren drove out a single.

The first AUS tally came in the top-side of the second when Second-Baseman Willie Banks singled and went all the way around on a stolen base and Ordnance errors.

Bob Williams, AUS shortstop scored again for the visitors after he lined out a double in the fourth inning. The final runs for the 3440th came in the first half of the seventh when Banks and Johnnie Reynolds scored on a two-bagger by George Henry.

Although charged with the loss, Pitcher Bob Glover of the Ordnance squad yielded only four hits to the invaders, and struck out 12 AUS batters.

Trucker Team Dumps Medics In League Tilt

Leading 7 to 4 in the seventh inning, the Medics of the 3440th Army Service unit were the victims of a last-minute spree staged by the 204th Transportation battalion, and dropped an 8 to 7 diamond decision at Gowdy field last Saturday afternoon.

The 204th rallied in its half of the seventh to push across four tallies to add to the four scored earlier in the game.

The Medics got off to a bad start in the first inning, allowing the 204th three runs on two hits and two errors by Third-baseman Hector Pachieo who had trouble making his throws to first good.

The two more Medics then settled down to hold the 204th lads scoreless for the next three innings, but gave up another run in the fifth.

Scoring one run in the third frame, the Medics rallied in the fourth to get four more counters. Going into the last inning, they added two more tallies and seemed to have the ball game in the bag.

Although they lost the game, the Medics showed signs of offering stiff competition to the other teams in future league play.

Coach C. W. Overbay believes a little infield practice will work kinks out of some of the shortfielder's arms, and enable them to be more accurate on their pegs to first base.

Heading a better-than-average pitching staff are Southpaw Paul Lewish and Right-hander Arthur Botier. Lewish fires a fast ball with amazing accuracy and Botier uses a hop on his curves.

Continuing their bating practice, the Medics are making preparations to meet the Infantry School detachment in their next Gowdy field tilt Sunday afternoon.

Softball Circuit Begins At Base

Lawsen Air Force base's intra-sectional softball league got underway this week with initial victories going to the Squadron A motor pool and headquarters ball teams.

Squadron A squeezed by the line maintenance crew to the tune of 12 to 11, while the motor pool smeared the medics 29 to 1, and headquarters won a 1 to 0 shutout over the officers by virtue of a forfeit.

If the first round of play in the league can be considered an indication of strength, it appears that the motor pool ten will be the team to beat.

With nine teams taking part in the softball circuit, play will continue until May 27 when playoff swill be held to determine the base champions. The best 15 players of the league will be selected by Coordinator John C. Burnisten to form the Lawson field team, which will compete in the Fort Benning league, and play against Columbus industrial squads.

Three teams yet to see action in the loop are the military police, the S-4 delegation, and the base operations term.

STR Captures Loop Game From Flyers

Paced by the beeming bats of Bill Church and Fred and Glenn Davis, the Student Training regiment diamond squad romped over the Lawsoon field Flyers 17 to 8 in the Fort Benning league opener at Gowdy field Saturday afternoon.

Church lashed out three singles in three appearances for a perfect day at the plate, while Fred Davis got two-for-two and Glenn Davis rapped out two base hits in four turns at bat.

After gaining a 2 to 1 margin in the first frame, the STR lads battered Flyer pitchers for a barrage of hits that produced seven runs in the bottom half of the second. Adding two more in the third, the students concluded their scoring by notching three each in the fifth and sixth innings.

The Flyers' big inning was the top of the fourth when they crossed the plate three times. A pair of tallies in each of the last two stanzas gave the air base lads their total.

Ernie Stewart, who started on the hill for the STR was credited with the win, while Starter Ed Hamel was charged with the loss.

PERRODY LEAVES — Don Perrody, shifty left halfback on the 1947 Doughboy grid eleven, has left Fort Benning for an assignment with the 11th Airborne division in Japan. In addition to his football record, Perrody boasts a string of achievements in baseball, basketball, and track, dating back to his highschool days. The scrappy athlete's assignment here was with the Airborne battalion of the Student Training regiment.

DOUGHBOY GRID ACE DEPARTS FOR JAPAN

BY VINCENT GIARRATANO

With the latest outgoing group of Airborne battalion personnel has gone Don Perrody, speedy left halfback on the powerful 1947 Doughboy football team, who has been given an overseas assignment in Japan with the 11th Airborne division.

The highlight of Perrody's Benning gridiron career came when he was named "player of the week" following the Fort Benning-Fort Sam Houston football game last fall.

In addition to his grid accomplishments, the shifty little backfield man boasts an enviable record in baseball, basketball, and track.

Enlisting in the army in Febuary of last year, Perrody was graduated from jump school in June. Assigned to Headquarters and Service company of the Student Training regiment's Airborne battalion here, he became active on the battalion football team. His name became known to more and more sports fans as he distinguished himself as a capable pass flipper and shifty runner in Doughboy stadium.

Perrody's athletic ability, spiced with colorful versatility, also put him in the limelight as a trackman, as well as an up-and-coming baseball player on the Airborne's 1948 intra-mural team.

The 19-year-old athlete attended Ohio State university for one year prior to his enlistment. While at the university, his name appeared frequently in the varsity football lineups.

In appreciation of his active part in the Fort Benning sports program, Perrody recently was awarded a commendation for outstanding ability, sportsmanship, and loyalty by Col. Otto P. Bragan, post special services officer.

SLANTS on SPORTS

By Lewis Mc Afee
Bayonet Sports Editor

Pre-season guesses were that pitching weaknesses would prevail on the majority of teams in the Fort Benning 1948 intramural diamond league. However, pitching seemed to be the strong points as the teams took to Gowdy field for the loop's opening contests last weekend.

The scarcity of bingles in Sunday's contests should be indicative that post teams, generally speaking, will boast powerful mound delegations this year.

Earl Simpson took weekend hurling laurels by tossing a two-hitter against the 228th Ordinance for the 3440th Army Service unit team, but Bob Glover, working the hill for the losers allowed the service unit nine only four safeties.

Ike Silcox gave up only three singles in pitching the Infantry School detachment Profs to a 2 to 1 decision over the Airborne battalion, but his team mates were able to nick Ken Watts and Bob Cronin for only four one-baggers.

The weakest pitching demonstration of the opening tilts was put on by the Lawson field Flyers in their game with the Student Training regiment aggregation Saturday afternoon. After the students had pounded Ed Hamel for nine tallies in two innings, Dan English moved from second base to the mound, and, although he reduced the percentage of STR safeties, was charged with five costly wild pitches.

Plenty of accuracy from the mound didn't help the Medics of the 3440th Army Service Unit in their tilt with the 204th Transportation battalion. A total of 10 errors made almost any infield ball a sure trip to first for the truckers.

Summing it up, I would say the teams stacked up as follows during the opening round of play: Pitching—good. Catching—fair. Hitting—fair. Infield—below average. Outfield—good.

Following their National Amateur Athletic Union victory over Kentucky at Madison Square garden, the Phillips Oilers of Bartlesville, Okla., had their entire starting lineup named to the United States' Olympic cage team, whose victory in the London games this summer is almost a foregone conclusion.

In addition to getting five berths on the U. S. team, the Oilers had their coach, Omar (Bud) Browning, named to pilot the quintet in the Olympic contests.

Selected from the Oklahomans were Center Bob Kurland, Guards Lou Beck and Gordon Carpenter, and Forwards Jack Renick and R. C. Pitts.

Also placing five men on the squad, the runner-up Kentucky quintet will send Center Alex Groza, Forwards Wallace Jones and Cliff Barker, and Guards Ralph Beard and Ken Rollins. Oth-ers named were Don Barksdale, center of the Oakland, Calif., Bittners; Vince Borrys, former Notre Dame star with the Denver Nuggets; Rev. Jackie Robinson of Baylor, and Ray Lumpp of New York university.

Murray Dickson of the St. Louis Cardinals recently hurled the second no-hit, no-run ball game of spring training history in blanking the New York Yankees in a Florida exhibition tilt. The only other no-hitter on record was pitched by the late Cy Blanton in a pre-season tilt between his PittsburghPiratesand the Cleveland Indians in 1939.

Rumor has it that Fritz Crisler may be quitting his post at the University of Michigan for a more lucrative position in Chicago. The change, according to the Detroit News, will take place before June.

Whether or not Crisler planned to remain at Michigan had been a matter of wide speculation since his resignation as head coach of the Wolverine football team. His associates in the athletic department of the school had admitted that he might be considering taking leave of athletics entirely.

His decision to quit as field general of the Wolverine gridiron squad came at the climax of one of Michigan's most successful seasons in which they rolled along undefeated to a Western conference and Rose Bowl championship.

light heavyweight, who claims to be the deserving No. 1 contender for Gus Lesnevich's crown, doesn't believe a proposed bout between the champion and England's Freddie Mills is giving him a square deal.

As a matter of fact, he is so convinced of it, that his manager, Jake Mintz, will file a claim to the world light heavyweight title if the National Boxing association allows the match to be fought.

In a telegram to Abe Greene, NBA president, Mintz accused Lesnevich of "taking the easy way out for the third time by running to England to defend his light heavyweight title against washed-up Freddie Mills".

In their first meeting on a ball field since Leo Durocher's season-long suspension in 1947, Baseball Commissioner A. B. (Happy) Chandler wished the manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers "good luck" at Vero Beach, Fla.

Although he posed with Chandler and Dodger Press-cameraman, Durocher wore no smile as he returned to the bench.

The first college basketball game played with five men on each team was between Yale and Pennsylvania on March 20, 197. Original basketball rules called for nine players on a squad.

In 1947, Grizzard moved up to Fort McPherson where he was charged with the responsibility of coaching the Third Army Headquarters' diamond nine.

During the latter part of 1947, Grizzard returned to Fort Benning, and was named to coach the Doughboy basketball team when Capt. Ced Tallis left the army for a position as business manager of the Thomasville, Ga. baseball club.

In addition to assisting Maj. Paul C. Westerman in coaching the 3440th nine, Coach Grizzard will command Section two of the service unit.

Prior to entering the service, Grizzard served as athletic instructor for several Georgia high schools.

Grizzard Assists In Coaching Spot

First Lt. Lewis Grizzard, prominent figure in Fort Benning athletic circles for the past two years, has been named to help pilot the diamond nine of the 3440th Army Service unit in the 1948 post baseball circuit.

Coming into the Benning sports spotlight in 1946, Grizzard took over the helm of the 204th Transportation Truck battalion's baseball and softball teams, and coached the Doughboy softball club to Third Army runner-up honors later the same year.

GRINOLDS GETS MOUND CHORES WITH ISD NINE

Breaking into the Infantry School detachment's mound lineup, Hal Grinolds, ace right-hander, brings with him an outstanding reputation in both army and professional diamond activities.

Before entering the army in 1942, Grinolds played with the Chattanooga Lookouts of the Southern Association and the Washington Senators of the American league. Although his service with the proclubs was performed around the third sack, Grinolds' diamond versatility makes him one of the most likely candidates for a spot on the ISD hurling staff.

Coming to Fort Benning about two years ago, Grinolds played baseball and basketballwith the School troops' Vets in 1946, and performed on the 37th Infantry regiment diamond during the 1947 season.

Grinolds recently was transferred to the ISD from the 325th Infantry regiment, where his duties included athletic and recreation office administration. He has been assigned a similar position with the ISD.

The unit nine's schedule will include games with other service terms of Fort Benning, and nearby semi-pro diamond clubs.

Team aspirants who have reported for the daily drills are Pitchers Cortez Hamilton and John Carter; Catchers Luther Gilmore and Melvin Roberts; Infielders James Smith, Joe Morgan, Russell Wesley, Donald Jackson, Ames Growe and Harris; and Outfielders Thomas Taylor, Hunter Sterling, John Morgan, Donald Patton, Herman Taylor, and Eugene Grant.

A veteran of 41 months overseas service, Sgt. Irvin Kalin has been recently assigned to Company B, Infantry School detachment for duty as clerk with the operations section of the Infantry School.

Armys Health Better In 1948 Report Shows

The United States Army was in better health during the past winter than during any like period in past years for which comparable statistics are available, it was revealed today by the army medical department.

Hospital admission rate average for the past 25 years has dropped considerably, according to the report. Comparable figures for the past quarter century disclose an average January hospital admission rate in the army of a little over 14 per 1,000 troops each week, while the weekly rate for January, 1948, was 9.4 per 1,000.

The February, 1948, rate was 50 per cent lower than the average for the past 25 years. The rate this year was approximately tene-and-one-half cases of illness per 1,000 troops per week, while the 25 year average was about fifteen-and-one-half cases per week.

Due to respiratory infections, the normal peak load of illness in the army almost always occurs in February. This year was no exception, but influenza respiratory diseases constituted a low quantity of total illness, thus holding the peak down below the average.

It was pointed out that the improved health was reflected in figures on all kinds of illness, which declined 40 per cent in the army between January 1947 and this year.

From 7 p. m. until 10 p. m. each Monday, the skating facilities will be open to officers and their families, and the same hours each Tuesday will be reserved for enlisted men only.

The period from 1 p. m. until 5 p. m. each Wednesday and Sunday has been set aside for enlisted men only, but families and female guests of enlisted personnel will be admitted between 7 p. m. and 10 p. m. on the two nights.

Service Center Opened In Post's Sand Hill Area

Leisure hours are not wasted for personnel of the Second battalion, 25th Infantry regiment now that a service center has been established at Service Club No. 2.

There is no waiting around for the want of something to do. The service center, under the direction of Miss Valerie H. Deslandes, is doing the job of supplying Second battalion personnel and their dependents with numerous helpful hobbies.

Such hobbies as model aircraft and midget auto designing, arts and lettering, leathercraft, sewing and mending, woodcraft, painting, rug-weaving, plastics, photography, and metal crafts are available for interested hobby-seekers, according to Miss Daslandes. Displays of the numerous hand - made articles created at the service center can be seen at the craft shop.

Miss Deslandes is assisted by Miss Mamie L. Kemp, secretary, and George W. Youngblood, artist and program assistant.

Retrenched personnel can now avail themselves of the opportunity of becoming an expert craftsman. Plans are now underway to increase the already large number of hobbies.

History of Local Society Goes Back to Year 1274

The Holy Name Society of the Catholic men of Fort Benning which holds its monthly meeting at a breakfast Sunday morning at the Polo Hunt Club, following a special mass at 8:30 at the Catholic chapel, has a history which dates as far back as 1274.

Requiring no dues or obligations of any kind, the Holy Name Society here meets once a month when all members gather to receive holy communion in a body, following which they hold their monthly meeting.

With Chaplain John F. Rafferty, Infantry Center Catholic Chaplain, as spiritual adviser and director, the aim of the Society is to promote the spiritual welfare of the Catholic men on the post. In three months 150 Catholic men have joined.

At the meeting next Sunday there will be an election of officers for the next three months term. Transportation will be furnished for those without cars from the chapel to the Polo Hunt Club.

A local group of Catholic men congregated on January 15 of this year to form the local chapter of the Society and adopted a constitution to fit the needs of the personnel here on the post.

At the At the February 3rd the group adopted the constitution and elected officers. Capt Peter L. Kelley was elected president, T-Sgt Raymond LeBlanc, vice-president, and Capt Carlos L o z a n o, secretary. President Kelley formed the three standing committees and appointed the chairman, naming Maj. Thomas L. Gendron to head the Membership committee, Capt. Eldon Campbell chairman of the Program committee, and Capt. John Sullivan to lead the Sick and Visgil committee.

At the time of its establishment in 1274, the Society aimed particularly to counteract and repair the damages wrought by the Albigensian heresy which denied the Divinity of Christ. Since the time of Pope Pius X, the frequent reception of the Sacraments and a monthly corporate communion have become th principal practics of th Society.

of Lyon, Frac was called, ga On of the purposes of the Council was to check the wide-spread profanity of the name of Jesus.

During the plague in 1432, a society for the veneration of the name of Jesus was formed in Lisbon, Portugal. Shortly thereafter, the society was approved and endorsed with many indulgances. It eventually became the Holy Name Society of today.

Through the ages the Society has fostered the reverence of the Holy Name of Jesus by assisting its members to develop a sound spiritual life. While the particular form of activity varied, the substance was the same.

Travel Marks Military Career of ISD Topkick

First Sgt. Thomas H. Fay, Company C, Infantry School detachment, is one of those men who has bounced from post to post all over the United States, not to mention his tour of duty in Europe during World War II.

Enlisting in September, 1936, in Boston, Mass., Sergeant Fay joined the Third Cavalry regiment at Fort Ethan Allen, Vermont. The Third was a traveling regiment, moving to Fort Meyer, Va., and then to Fort Oglethorpe, Ga.

Promotions brought a first sergeancy to Fay in June, 1942, and in July he was transferred to Camp Atterbury, Ind., as a member of the cadre supplied from the Third Cavalry to the newly activated 83rd Infantry division.

In November, 1942, Sergeant Fay came to Fort Benning to attend the Officer Candidate School. Following his commission as a second lieutenant of Infantry March 3, 1943, he was assigned to Camp Wolters, Tex., as a heavy weapons instructor at the Infantry Replacement Training Center.

He continued his instruction activities when he was transferred to Fort Sill, Okla., as a member of the 170th Separate Infantry battalion, a unit which was used for demonstrations of teamwork between artillery and infantry forces. His next post was Camp Bowie, Tex., where the battalion continued its demonstrations duties.

Fights In ETO

In March, 1944, Sergeant Fay embarked for Europe, joining the 29th Infantry regiment in bivouac near Plymouth, England on April 3.

Omaha beachhead, or "Beach-Red", on June 6, 1944, and the 115th Infantry regiment of the 29th received the Distinguished Unit citation for its action at St. Laurentsur Mer. Sergeant Fay was out of action for three months after being wounded by shrapnel in his left leg in Normandy on June 21.

The 29th participated in the capture of St. Lo, the bitter fighting for Brest, and the capture of Meunchen-Gladbach, Germany. The first major action the division saw at St. Lo was followed by the fall of Vire. With the Second and Eighth divisions, the 29th advanced on the fortress city of Brest, capturing 13,000 prisoners.

Pilot Training Enlarged

The Air Forces' pilot training program will undergo considerable expansion during the next two years, the Lawson Air Force Base Cadet Examining Board learned this week from Air Force headquarters, Washington, D. C.

Among the proposed changes is a pay increase for cadets from the present 75 a month to $117. The request for the pay raise was placed before a Senate Armed Services Subcommittee recently by a reresentative of the Air Forces Personnel Procurement Division. Immediate expansion plans call for a quota of 1,040 students for the next aviation cadet class, which will get underway at Randolph AFB, San Antonio, Tex., and Goodfellow AFB, San Angelo, Tex., on July 1.

The 12-month pilot's training course is open to single men between the ages of 20 and 26 and a half years, who have completed two years of college or can pass an examination of that equivalent. Applicants must also successfully complete a physical examination and a personal interview.

Applications and complete details for entering the July 1, class are available at the Lawson Air Force Base Cadet Examining Board, building 2319, Ft. Benning 6631, extension 3312.

Civilian Employee Tells War Time Experiences

Editor's note: This is the second in a series of stories compiled and written by students in the Infantry Center vocational school's journalism course.

BY ALBERTA GUFFEY

He has more lives than a cat!

In spite of losing his right foot when he stepped directly on a land mine, and in spite of being lost in enemy territory and alone with his German prisoner—all in rapid succession—Theodore J. Suchaski, civilian employee at the Ordnance ammunition area, still feels he has a "few lives to go."

Judging from his experiences, one would think that Suchaski would be choosey in his work. But no, a rather determined guy, he handles explosives and says he is very careful where he steps.

Owes Life To German

"I owe my life to a German prisoner" Suchaski declares. "I had captured him that morning, and we were walking along a dry creek bed when I stepped on a land mine.

"The prisoner applied a tornniquet on my leg and stayed with me until we were found by a scouting party late in the afternoon. The prisoner couldn't understand English, and I didn't feel like talking much anyway, I would liked to have thanked him for saving my life, but didn't even get a chance to find out his name," he said.

Suchaski was in the St. Gill area when the incident occured. "Fifteen of us were moving up along a hedgerow behind the rest of the company. We stopped and waited for a while, and, according to plans, the man in front was to notify us when the rest of the company moved so that we could follow.

Loses Company

"Finally, I decided," he continued, "to see what the holdup was. I edged up to the front of the column, and found the company gone. We had somehow got our signals mixed. Our little squad scattered to look for the rest of the company and that's when I ran into the German who was to become my prisoner."

When asked how he captured the German, Suchaski answered, "I don't know which of us was the more surprised. I rounded a bend in the creek, came upon him suddenly, and nearly knocked him over. When I recovered from my surprise, he had thrown down his gun, and was standing there with his hands in the air."

Suchaski entered the army in October, 1941. After training at Camp Croft, S. C., and Fort Benning, he went to England with Company K, 120th Infantry regiment, 30th division. He was discharged in May, 1945, and has been employed at the ammunition area since June of the same year.

Georgia's Jekyle Isle Called Ideal Spot For Relaxation

'Georgia's Jekyll Isle Called... Ideal Spot For Relaxation.

An opportunity for moments of relaxation from army duties has been brought closer to Fort Benning personnel and their families amid the majestic surroundings of Georgia's Jekyll island, the new state-owned park which officially opened March 12.

Located just off the coast of Brunswick, Ga., 251 miles from Fort Benning, the island was purchased from the state of Georgia as a recreation spot for the public.

Once the winter resort of nationally-known millionaires, the estate has not been used since 1940. Rehabilitation of the island is proceeding at a fast pace and in due time the recreational spot has the ossibilities of becoming the most popular resort in this part of the country, according to planning officials.

According to Major Edward D. Andrus, now on temporary duty with the Training Literature and Visual Aids section from the Signal Corps Photographic Center, Long Island, who has just returned from a short stay at the island, the new resort is an ideal spot for soldiers and their families.

About three miles wide and 12 miles long, the island was once the exclusive winter home for such families as the Rockefellers, J. P. Morgans, Crane, Firestones, Goulds, and others. Twenty mansions, which complete in beauty and marvels of architecture, are scattered throughout the island, which was opened in 1 with the formation of the exclusive Jekyll Island Club. Most of these homes will be turned into apartments and living quarters, while a few will be retained as museums and attractions for sightseers.

Variety Offered

Plenty of facilities are available to visitors, including swimming, fishing, boating, tennis, badminton, and many other out-door sports. An 1 hole golf course is expected to be ready in June.

Access to the island is by boat only. The steamboat Robert E. Lee has been leased as a ferry to carry passengers from the mainland to Jekyll island. The sternwheeler has a capacity of 700 persons. She will make at least three round trips daily from Brunswick. Trips to the island are scheduled at 9 a.m.

At present no autos are permitted on the island but the state is contemplating the construction of a causeway connecting the mainland to the island.

Rates are reasonable at the resort, according to Major Andrus, ranging from one dollar to three dollars per day for oms meals. Meals are optional. The extreme rate is seven dollars per day for the best of facilitis.

All Reservation Lakes Open To Post Angling Enthusiasts

A pond fertilization program has been initated by the Fort Benning Fish and Game maintenance association to improve angling conditions in the numerous lakes of the reserveation, Col. Robert D. Hill, association president, announced.

In order to obtain best results from the program, Colonel Hill said that it will be necessary for the lakes to be fished constantly.

Fort Benning has no closed season on fishing, and, at present, all ponds are open to post rod enthusiasts. Among the best known spots now open to local anglers are King's pond, Hedley's pond, Averett's pond, Harp,s pond, Weem's pond, McCurrin's pond, and Clear creek.

Among the species of fish now being hooked in the reservation's water holes are large mouth bass, bream, crappie, and catfish.

Fishing at all lakes is governed by local game laws, and Benning range guards have been delegated the responsibility of enforcing the regulations and supervising the care and keeping of the lakes and adjacent grounds.

Fishing permits may be obtained at the registeration office of the post provost marshal's building.

Anglers, the association head said, will be expected to comply with the catch limits posted on the back of their fishing permits, and must clear with the post range office before embarking on a fishing trip.

Colonel Hill said that the membership in the fish and game association now stands at about 1,500. This, he added, includes both active and retired military personnel and their dependents.

The association's board of governors consists of two officers of each major organization on the post. Board members other than Colonel Hill are Col. J. D. Frederick, Col. D. Suggs, Col. W. H. O'Mohundro, Col. H. A. Stewart.

Benning Group To Help Replace Flooded Roads

A group of Fort Benning engineers and technical experts left Sunday at 9 a.m. for Chipley, Fla., where they will aid in replacing a series of washed-out highways, officials have announced.

The Fort Benning troops will be stationed at Marianna air base, Fla., during the three weeks away from the post.

Heading the delegation is Capt Alden E. Clifford, post engineer office, and commander of troops is 1st Lt. Stanton Clift, Seventh Regimental combat team.

The enlisted group was selected from various post units, while the civilians are employed by the engineer office.

They were scheduled to report to the district engineer at Marianna, Fla.

Vocational School To Begin Tonight

Twenty-One Courses Offered Here During Spring Session

With another expected high enrollment, the Infantry Center Vocational night school, featuring several new classes in its curricula of 21 courses opens its spring session tonight.

Although the school commences tonight, enrollments will continue until April 23. However, it has been pointed out by school officials, all enrollments after April 14 will be taken at the Infantry Center registration office instead of unit troop information and education offices.

Registration, which began Monday, April 5, is expected to equal the 1,000 mark established in the last quarter. Plans for the new quarter were completed and preparations discussed at a teacher's meeting held Monday night.

The cirriculum, although it will be smaller than usual, will offer several new courses, including advanced shorthand, commercial law and the Russian language. By the beginning of the summer quarter, the ciriculum will resume operations on its normal scale.

The new courses were added through popular demand, school officials said. Students of shorthand, which is one of the most popular subjects at the school, felt the need of an advanced class while the Russian language, which was suspended last term, is expected to regain its popularity in the new spring session.

The school is open to dependents of military personnel and civilian personel who reside on the post. Classes will be held on Monday and Thursday evenings from 6:15 to 10 p. m.

The list of courses and their instructions include review arithmetic and basic math—Mr. Wall; sketching and German—Nellie May Browne; French—Roberta kotnik; photography—Dewey Brown; Commercial Law—Lt. John E. Cunningham; American history and English composition—Dave Bowen; bookkeeping and psychology—Mildred Royal, beginners and advanced shorthand—Iris O'Farrel; Spanish and American government—Marylyn Bennett; English grammar—Fredrica Heisler; Russian—Eugene Netke; Typing—Georgia Gehring; Cabinet making—M-Sgt. Alfred Cornot; Music—Joseph Villa; and Auto mechanics—Sam Breedlove.

Non-Regulars Status Clarified

The policy of the army regarding the retention of non-regular officers now on extended active duty has been clarified by a directive sent to all commanders it was announced today.

Forced separations for non-regular officers who are over-age-in-grade as defined by a circular issued by the Department of the Army early in February have been suspended for all except colonels and those who are more than 60 years of age. Suspended also are the provisions requiring separation by June 30 of officers who hold only AUS commissions without having a corresponding commission in either the Reserve Corps or the National Guard or those who do not desire to sign a new category statement before April 30 obligating themselves to a specific period of extended active duty.

Non-regular officers, including officers who desire separation under the provisions of the February circular, however, will not be forced to remain on duty against their will the directive slated. They may apply for return to civil life on or before June 30. The only exceptions are non-regular officers now occupying key positions in the army whose release by that date would seriously affect the accelerated functions of the service if a qualified replacement were not immediately available.

2 NAMED TO COUNCIL

Two new members have been appointed to the Infantry Center youth council, it was announced this week. They are, M-Sgt. David V. McLemore, Company H, Student Training regiment, and M-Sgt. Robert L. Short, Company A, Infantry School detachment.

C. and Camp Campbell, Ky., during May and June, it has been announced.

The training operation, tentatively set to begin May 8, will continue for approximately two months, and will consist of field training of ground troops, under simulated combat conditions, in cooperation with the air force.

Most of the units leaving for the maneuver have been serving as the School Troops organization here, supplying personnel along with materiel and equipment for the numerous demonstrations and exercises conducted on the post for Infantry School students. The Seventh Regimental combat team, which was organized at Fort Benning two months ago, is slated to take over the duties of School Troops in the absence of the departing units, officials said.

M-Sgt. James H. Wheatly and T-Sgt. Willie A. Minton last week became the first enlisted men at Lawson Air Force base to take advantage of the air forces' six-year enlistment extension plan.

The long term extension plan, which was recently made available to air force personnel, was authorized by an act of June 1947, which also called for five-and four-year hitches, but was not put into effect until now.

The act also authorized indefinite enlistments for the upper grades, but these are not expected to be made available until the career program is put into operation.

Sergeants Wheatly and Minton were administered the oath of extension at the base recruiting office last Monday by Lt. John H. Vincent, newly appointed recruiting officer.

Beginning his service in November, 1941, with the ground forces, Sergeant Minton saw 28 months overseas service with the Third Infantry division in the ETO, gaining six battle stars and one bronze arrow head for his campaign participations. Discharged in October, 1945, after returning from Europe, Sergeant Minton came back two years later on the same day in October, 1947, to reenlist with in the air force at Lawson. Medical Group Chief Has Outstanding Record

Present commanding officer of the 30th Medical group, Maj. Spurgeon H. Neel Jr. has a background of outstanding military service, with one of his many duties including that of surgeon of the First Constabulary brigade at Bamberg, Germany.

A native of Memphis, Tenn., Major Neel assumed command of the 30th Medical group upon his return from Europe last August.

Going overseas in December, 1944, with the 69th Infantry division, he accompanied the division in its march across Germany, which eventually linked the American and Russian lines near Leipzig. Leaving the 69th, he transferred to the 29th Infantry division, which was occupying Bremen Enclave, in June, 1945.

Major Neel returned to the states in the spring of 1946, but shortly thereafter he was back in Europe again, this time serving as executive officer of the 57th Field hospital at Bamberg, Germany, the birth place of the United States Constabulary. He became surgeon with the First Constabulary brigade, where he served until his return to the states.

The 30th Medical group head wears the Combat Medical badge, Bronze Star medal with oak leaf cluster, Purple Heart, American Theater ribbon, European Theater ribbon with two campaign stars and the Army Occupation ribbon.

The 30 Medical group which Major Neel commands, was organized at Camp Barkely, Texas, on July 25, 1942, as the 30th Medical regiment. It was redesignated the 30th Medical group in September 1943.

In October 1944, the group left for Europe, landing on Omaha beach, France, eight days later. Assigned to the Seventh and Ninth Armies, the unit participated in action in France, Belgium, Germany, and Holland.

Units comprising the 30th Medical group include, Headquarters and Headquarters detachment, 30th Medical group, 121st Evacuation hospital, 375th Medical Collecting company, and the 651st Motor Ambulance company.

2,000 Offered Chance To Try For RA Grades

The Army this week announced plans to invite an estimated 2,000 former officers, between the ages of 21 and 27, to return to active duty this summer to compete in "competitive tours" for regular army commissions.

Open to men in all Army branches except the Medical and Dental corps, who are in a special category, the new program calls for selection of all qualified personnel following a closely supervised and observed "competitive tours" at various posts.

Those selected after tours of from one year to eighteen months will be offered commissions as lieutenants in the Regular army. Successful candidates will be given credit for regular army promotion purposes for the time spent in the "competitive tours".

It was revealed that the number of vacancies available, will permit the appointment of all who meet the standards and that it is not a necessary requirement that an officer seeking training in the branches in which he served during the war.

The "competitive tour", which will begin July 15, will last one year, with an extension to eighteen months where the individual's commander considers such an extension desirable. Although the tours are labelled "competitive," the competition involved is actually against a set standard rather than against the other officers.

The only exceptions to the 27-year age limit will be the Veterinary and Medical Service Corps, where 30 will be the top age, and in the Chaplain corps, where the maximum age is set at 34. Non-regular officers now on active duty with the army may apply for the tours, provided they meet general standards.

Sergeant Is Discharged To Reenlist For Alaska

S-Sgt. James G. Kiff, who has been discharged from the army, plans to reenlist for duty in Alaska, it was learned here this week.

Sergeant Kiff, who came to Fort Benning recently following 54 months in Italy, served with the 319th Field Artillery battalion's Service battery as a supply clerk prior to his discharge.

During the war he served with the 36th and 663rd Field Artillery battalions. He has more than eight years army service

Traveling USAFI Unit Leaves Post

Mobile Registration Center Will Visit Fort McPherson

The wide-traveling USAFI mobile unit left Fort Benning April 9, following two-day tour of the post and Columbus, for Third Army headquarters at Fort McPherson, Ga. It will continue north through various installations on its way to the Military District of Washington and back to its home at Madison, Wis.

The unit, a traveling registration center, which stocks all USAFI courses, arrived here April 5, was on display on the post the morning of April 6, and was presented to the public during the Army Day parade and exhibit in the afternoon. Returning to the post, it was viewed here for another day on April 7.

Headed by WAC Captain Martha D. Allen, the unit contained samples of all types of courses offered by USAFI. Other personnel traveling with the unit included Chief Petty officer Albert F. Rietze, Sgt. Wayne W. Hembrook, and Cpl. Donald J. Madden.

USAFI is an official agency of the army, navy and air force, with headquarters at Madison, Wis., and overseas branches in various parts of the world. It is frequently referred to as the school with a world campus, and is the largest correspondence school in existence in the world today.

The core of the army education program, it will play an important role in the army career guidance plan, which was put into operation in March of this year. This plan provides for the grouping of related jobs into career fields of specialization in which the individual soldier can develop his skills and move up the ladder of promotion. Approximately 40 major fields of specialization have been established.

USAFI is proving of great value to the 250,000 members of the army who are currently participating in the army education program in various parts of the world, officials said.

More than 10,000 members of the armed forces are each month enrolled in the self-teaching and correspondence courses offered by USAFI and the cooperating colleges. Currently, 97,380 active enrollees are participating in USAFI courses in the Zone of Interior, and approximately 90,000 additional enrollees are served by the eight USAFI branches, making a total of approximately 190,000 overall participants, they pointed out.

Education At Benning

The Infantry Center's vocational school begins its eighth quarter tonight with an outstanding total of soldier graduates who have taken advantage of a Fort Benning institution of which all troops can be justly proud. This school, which was inaugurated through the efforts of information and education officials here and with the cooperation of the United States Armed Forces Institute, has made great strides toward maintaining a higher level of education for all local personnel, giving everyone an opportunity to further his training in almost every known field of learning.

The thousands of men who have attended the school attest its value; the high calibre of training offered will in the future prove the sagacity of the men whose idea it was to open such an institution.

We are constantly amazed at the many Fort Benning soldiers and their families who each quarter enroll for study. We never cease to marvel at the sincerity of those who regularly attend sessions. Since the vocational school is strictly voluntary, and since all study and class attendance is during off-duty hours, it is even more heartening, proof that the average soldier of the mid-twentieth century is not only interested in improving his education but is determined that nothing shall interrupt it.

We feel that though only a handful of men were graduated each session the school would be well worth the time, money and effort expended. Anytime even one man can be induced to better himself through study, to compete with others in his quest for knowledge, to enlarge his mind, to learn how to learn, any amount of effort is worthwhile.

All movements begin with only a smattering of the eventual possible number of adherents. That was true even with our own democracy, which floundered and almost failed before it gained a stronghold and a following large enough to ensure its final success.

This is something new in the annals of the army. The information and education section of the army is still a novice so far as the other divisions of the army are concerned, but it is fast gaining ground despite the protests of some who do not see the need for it.

Not too long ago Hanson Baldwin, military analyst for the New ork Times, declared that the information and education division had already served its purpose and that it would likely be disbanded as the army reverted to a peacetime status. He and many others, however, reckoned without the peacetime soldier, the soldier who no longer had to think about living through the day, the soldier who had free hours in which to study and think and produce new ideas. Today the information and education division has grown to such proportions that it has spread out into isolated units where only a small detachment of men need be served.

The vocational school here at Fort Benning is only one of the many ways in which the new army's soldier is proving to the world that he doesn't intend to forget his duty to himself and his family.

The enrollment this quarter will be smaller than it has been for some time, but that can be explained by the fact that the former School Troops organization will be leaving during the next month for maneuvers at Camp Campbell, Ky. They will eventually be replaced, but in the meantime there will be fewer troops; consequently the enrollment will be less. That, however, should not discourage those affiliated with the local information and education section because it is certain to increase as the garrison does.

The vocational school deserves high praise for the magnificent job it is doing in keeping Fort Benning troops well informed and better educated.

Strictly Editoralizing

BAYONET— Strictly Editoralizing

During the past few days we have been away from Fort Benning on a leisurely trip through North Georgia, South Carolina, and North Carolina, taking a breather from our duties as editor of The Bayonet. While seeing a little more of the Deep South, the idea came to us that perhaps a column such as this would keep Benningites informed on often overlooked items in the news of the army.

This, the first of many such efforts we hope, is the result of that overtime work of our thought processes.

Don't ever let anybody tell you that the army is not everywhere at once. We thought we could visit some small village in this country where the soldier was not, but we were mistaken. After traveling to several out of the way places in North and South Carolina, we became obsessed with the idea of finding some hamlet unknown to the army—a dust to see if it were possible. Well, we couldn't.

Arriving at Mocksville, N. C., a little to the west of Winston-Salem, we began to think that we had at last found that place where the khaki clad soldiers of the U. S. did not tread. Just because we did not see them, however, was no reason to believe there were none; so we began to look around. Shortly after lunch, we lowed down the street of that city of about 1,700 souls and saw, much to our amazement, a recruiting sedan with a master and first sergeant stepping out.

It seems that the territory they cover includes the village of Mocksville. Whether they were successful in signing anyone for duty in the army, we failed to find out. One thing we did learn by the experiment was that the army really does cover a lot of ground. We believe much credit is due members of the army's recruiting force, who certainly earn their money.

Riding a bus from Charlotte, N. C., to Gainesville, Ga., one night, we spent a rather rugged by a group of young soldiers.

Only two or three of a group of about 15 were making spectacles of themselves but it was enough to cast an unpleasant reflection on the others. We were siting just behind two of the soldiers, who were about 19 or 20 years old, and couldn't help overhearing their remarks.

"You know," said one, "I used to be proud of my uniform, but I'm beginning to wonder if it really does any good to feel that way. When I see and hear such carryings on, it makes me ashamed."

We imagine he spoke not only for the majority of the army, but for all the other armed forces as well.

Your Red Cross

BY MURRAY E. HILL

Your contributions to your Red Cross at this station with the printing of this paper were $19,-122.30. That is a few dollars less than last year, but we had fewer troops and fewer civilians here this year than we had last year.

Only a handful worked on the campaign. Certainly they should be given special mention in this column. I would like to thank publicly Lt. Col. Wesley U. Moran for the part he played as chairman of the whole campaign for the post. I would particularly like to thank Horace W. Tillis for acting as chairman of the civilian personnel. Here it is important to point out that a tremendous amount of the success of the campaign is due to Lt. Col. Edgar O. Hobbs, who was publicity chairman, and his very able assistant, Dave Bowan. They made the soliciting much easier for those who were actually asking for contributions.

Mrs. Frank Ward is certainly due special recognition for the splendid way in which she led the ladies division. All who attended her party certainly enjoyed themselves, and the ladies turned in a total amount of $775.-55.

For the first time the noncom clubs this year took an active part in the fund campaign and for their interest and cooperation we would like to thank Sgt. Jack White, T-Sgt. Robert L. Foster, 1st Sgt. Charles Lowe and T-Sgt. Shaw.

The following officers acted as solicitors for the military on the post: Major Thomas B. Catheart, Jr., AGF Board no. 3, Major A. W. Petrosky, Headquarters TIC, Major Clyde R. Russell, Academic department, T I S, Capt. Charles W. Kilpatrick, School Troops, Capt. James L. Walker, ISD; Capt. Leonard V. Bailey, STR; Capt. Francis B. Smith, 3440 ASU; Capt. Alta S. Kennedy, and 1st Lt. Ted Hines, Station Hospital.

Mr. Tillis had as his co-chairmen with the different personnel sections Ray L. Lloyd, William C. Key, Mrs. Roberta Hickman, Tony Dale, Mrs. Dorothy W. Bruner, J. C. Herring, Lawrence Mosley, D. B. Nicholson, W. C. Winning, Bonise Hunt, Mrs. Odell Adams, Edmund D. Rowe, Layne Hudson, and Arthur E. Medlock.

Before closing I must pay tribute to the cooperation and backing your Red Cross received from Major General John W. O'Daniel. Without his splendid interest in this campaign we who worked in the field would indeed have and a hard time. General O'Daniel's cooperation and backing was to be expected though, for he has ever been an ardent supporter of your American National Red Cross.

"How was the wedding?" asked the Chaplain's wife.

"It was fine until I asked the bride if she would 'obey' and she said 'Do you think I'm crazy?' Just about that time the groom, who was in sort of a daze, said 'I do.' And that's when things really began to happen."

Chaplain's Corner...

THE WORLD AND MY HOME

BY

CHAPLAIN A. ELLIS

Is it possible that a home, my home, wherever it is, can effect the world? By the way of answer, consider two kinds of homes and home life.

The first lives for itself. Around it is an invisible wall which shuts in the members of the family and shuts out the pain, the sympathy, the effort to understand, the hunger and loneliness of everyone else. There is money for food, clothing, education, sickness, and recreation within the walls of that home for the best, for parents and a few close friends and relatives; but not for any person at all who is different or strange. No one can see the wall, but it's there—strong, high, impenetrable.

The second is open to the world. There is no wall around it, seen or unseen. Any child would feel at home within it—the beggar, the millionaire, the white, the black, the Jew, the Gentile, the Protestant, the Catholic—all! The people of this home know and care about what is going on in the world outside. And the hopes and fears of the world flow in and out of that home, with none to stop them or keep them away.

If multiplied by a thousand or ten thousand, which of these two homes would make for a better world, one world under God? Which of these does the home out of which I came and represent resemble?

If there is any trace of a wall around my home, what can I do to tear it down. Pertinent words for me to think about are these: "He that loveth not his brother whom he hath seen, how not seen?" (1 John 4:20) can he love God whom he hath

GI Humor

The First Sgt. carefully placed a chisel against a rusty bolt. He looked at the Pfc. who held the sledge hammer and said, "When I nod my head, you hit it."

They're burying him tomorrow.

An American soldier, standing outside Notre Dame Ccathedral in Paris, saw a magnificent procession enter. "Who's the bridegroom?" he asked a Frenchman standing next to him. "Je ne sais pas" (I don't know) was the reply. Soon after, the soldier inspected the interior of the cathedral himself and saw a coffin being carried down the aisle. "Whose funeral?" he asked the attendant. "Je ne sais pas?" said the attendant. "Holy mackerel," exclaimed the soldier. "He certainly didn't last long."

Walking along a street a man was attracted by frightened screams from a house. He ran to investigate and found a frantic mother whose small boy had swallowed a quarter. Seizing the child by the heels, he held him up, gave him a few shakes and the coin dropped to the floor. The grateful mother was lost in admiration.

"You certainly knew how to get it out of him," she said. "Are you a doctor?"

In the dark of the night, it's a safe bet that the guy who is dashing out of the back door as if he were in a hurry to catch a train, is doing so because the guy who is coming in the front door has just missed one.

Sergeant Schulte, who has served at Lawson since June, 1947, both as an officer and enlisted man, has extended his enlistment to five years, giving him sufficient time for his overseas assignment.

French Army Captain Enrolled In TIS Course

A former offiicer in the renowned French Foreign Legion and now a member of the French Army, Capt. Campagnon, is among the 185 enlisted men and eight officers of Company F, Airborne battalion, now undergoing basic airborne training here.

Winner of the Legion of Honor, one of the highest awards given by the French Republic, the French officer is a veteran of the North African campaigns. With the First Cavalry regiment of the French Foreign Legion, he participated in the Tunisian campaign.

Following the Tunisian campaign, he joined the Second French Armored division, which was under the command of the famous wartime French military leader, Gen. Jacques LeClerc. At that time the Second Armored division was attached to Gen. George S. Patton's Third U. S. Army.

Combat activity did not end with the World War II for the former Foreign Legionnaire. As a commander of a tank squadron, he was sent last year with the French Army to quell to uprisings and rebellios in French Indo-China.

In addition to the Legion of Honor, the French captain, is also holder of the Croix de Guerre with eight citations.

Parachute training is nothing new to Captain Campagnon, who is a graduate of the French Army Parachute School. He was selected by the French Army to attend airborne training at the Infantry School to study methods of training used by the U. S. Army.

Upon completion of his course here, Captain Campagnon, will return to his native France where he will apply the methods and techniques used here in setting up a similar airborne course in France.

Former Local Officer Gets Chinese Medal

Col. John W. Middleton, former deputy president of Army Ground Forces board No. 3 and now military attache to New Delhi, India, received the First Class Medal of the Chinese Army, Navy, and Air Force recently, in recognition of his wartime services in China; it was learned here this week.

The presentation was made by the Chinese Ambassador to India, Dr. Chia-Lyen Lo, at the U. S. Embassy in New Dehli, in the presence of Chinese and United States Embassy officers.

Colonel Middleton headed the local board from Sept. 1, 1946, until July, 1947, when he was reassigned to the War Department general staff for training in the G-2 section. Later he assumed duties as military attache in the new government of India.

The former Fort Benning officer accompanied the Chinese Army in its crossing of the Luzver during the campaign to reopen the Burma road. As a brigadier general, he was chief of staff of Chinese training and combat command in Yunnan province from August, 1943, to January, 1945.

His services in the Far East were outstanding. He headed the Chinese training center at Kunming, commanded the United States replacement service in Shanghai, was president of the War Crimes Commission in China and later served on the staff of Gen. George C. Marshall, when the latter was special Presidential envoy to China.

Benning Girl Scouts Present Original Graduation Program

Presenting a program which was outstanding for originality and instructiveness, a group of senior and junior Benning Girl Scouts graduated on Friday evening in Red Cross first aid in the auditorium of the Childrens' school.

Murray Hill opened the evening program with a short speech about Red Cross first aid and its invaluable help in many emergencies. At the conclusion of Mr. Hill's speech a loud crash was heard from behind the curtains, and when the curtains opened, a scene of a highway crash was perfectly duplicated, with an overturned jeep and four victims scattered about the stage. From both wings, Girl Scouts appeared as though on a hiking trip and immediately set to work to give first aid to the injured. Mrs. Dayton Warren and Mrs. Carl E. Frisby, two of the leaders who completed the first aid course with the girls, did the commentary for the first aid work being done by the girls. The four cases taken care of in Act 1 were serious bleeding, head injury, broken leg, and fractured spine.

The second act was announced with commentary by Mrs. Roy E. Doran, also a leader who graduated with the girls, and showed eight seated girls with eight workers who demonstrated first aid for eight different types of fractures.

Act 3, with commentary by Mrs. Frisby, showed two methods of first aid for snake bite.

Act 4 was a contest between two teams of five girls and one victim showing the correct method of giving artificial respiration for which the judges were Lt. Col. Walden J. Alexander, Maj. Julia Martin, and Lt. Ted Hines. The winning team consisted of Mary Lou Bernar as the victim, and Workers Ann Bragan, Mary Joiner, Suzanne Stithinger, Helen Wilbur, and Charlotte Burman. The winning team scored 51 points out of a possible 60.

Mr. Hill closed the evening's program by presenting Ralph George, of the Fort Benning Red Cross field office, who had been instructor to the girl scouts and leaders. Mr. George gave out the Red Cross certificates to the graduates.

The leaders who graduated were Mrs. Thompson, Mrs. Roy E. Doran, Mrs. Carl E. Frisby, and Mrs. Dayton Warren. The girls who graduated were Mary Lou Bernard, Shirley Burke, Ann Bragan, Mary Joinez, Charlotte Burman, Barbara Lewis, Suzanne Stilinger, Helen Wilbur, Margaret Ann Edris, Thesia Ann Gray, Dona Mae Griffiths, Ann Louise Thompson, Ellen Whaite, Carol Sue Thompson, Bordan Wilson, and Barbara Young.

Art, Literature Group Hears Local Publisher For Finale

At the final meeting of the Woman's club art and literature group on Monday, April 2, Mrs. Richard Sandusky introduced Maynard Ashworth, publisher of the Columbus Ledger-Enquirer newspapers, who made his second guest appearance as a speaker at Fort Benning.

In his discussion of "Current Events," Mr. Ashworth clearified the major issues in the news for his receptive audience. Speak- mainly on the labor situation, Mr. Ashworth stated that labor is a very important factor not only in our domestic relations, but in our international relations, due to the production angle.

"Its bearing on the Marshall plan makes it even more important to maintain good labor relations, and with the Taft-Hartley law found to be full of loopholes, Congress needs to act to adjust the situation."

He also discussed the draft and UMT giving the broad picture with his own opinions in covering both American current events and world-wide events of present day importance.

Following his talk, Mr. Ashworth opened a question forum, which brought out many discussions of particular interest to the ladies present. At the close of the meeting, which was one of the best presented for the Woman's club by the group this year, Mrs. Sandusky thanked the guest speaker and the audience for fine response to this and all programs throughout the year.

Plans for the May breakfast, which will be the final event of the 1947-48 Woman's club year, are shaping up with announcements made following the group meeting Monday. The party theme will be the May Day theme, with spring decor to be handled by Mrs. Wallace M. Hale, decorating committee chairman. Cards will be mailed to all members and tickets will be sold in the main lounge of the Officers' club every morning from 9 to 12 April 26-30. The May breakfast will start promptly at 12 noon on May 3 at the Officers' club.

February awards went to Mrs. A. J. Van Oosten, advanced, and Mrs. Duncan, intermediate.

Ladies of the group will be entertained on Thursday afternoon by Mrs. Athel Bangert at a tea at Mrs. Bangett's quarters. The group are also planning a dinner dance to be held at the Officers' club on April 24 for members and their husbands. At this party trophies will be presented for the year's high scores in the advanced and intermediate groups.

Lee, and will return to Fort Benning after a 10 day visit with daughter Sue Ellen, who has been visiting her grandparents there. Captain Griffin is assigned to the STR at Fort Benning.

SPINS NO-HITTER—Collis (Lefty) Lehner, southpaw moundstwirling the first no-hit league game of Fort Benning's 1948 intramuan of the Infantry School detachment Profs, gets credit for mural season. Lehner heaved his 4 to 0 shutout over the 3440th Army Service unit nine last Friday night.

Southpaw Twirls 4-0, No-Hit Game

Win Places Profs In Loop Command

Lefty Lehner was a one-man show at Gowdy field last Thursday night when he hurled the Fort Benning league's first hitless ball game of the season — a 4 to 0 triumph for the loop-leading Infantry School detachment Props over the 3440th Army Service unit.

In addition to a brilliant mound performance, the Prof southpaw singled in the fifth frame to drive in two runs and break a 0 to 0 deadlock.

While pitching his no-hitter, Lehner faced 24 ASU batters, retired 16 of them on strikes, issued four walks, and didn't let a single visiting batter paste one out of the infield. The best effort made by an ASU player was a pop fly to the shortstop.

HALL ALSO SHINES

The game, played between intermittent showers, went through four scoreless and hitless innings before the Profs selved the hurling of Lawrence Hall, and nicked him for two runs on as many hits in the bottom half of the fifth period.

Hall, displaying top-notch form on the hill, set the powerful ISD aggregation down one-two-three during the first four stanzas, but Prof Right-fielder Woody Burt started the home half of the fifth off by lashing out a single and making a steal of second. Chick Shiver, ISD receiver, then worked Hall for a free pass to first. Beth Burt and Shived advanced on Shortstop William Hojnacki's infield out, and tallied when Lehner slammed out a one-bagger.

Bill Brooks, who had broken into the Prof lineup in center field in the fifth, closed out the inning by being thrown out at first on his roller to Second-baseman Willie Banks.

PROFS ADD TWO

Herb Lauve, ISD first-sacker, started the frame off by scratching a single through the ASU infield, and pilfered second. After George Hill had taken four balls, Joe Smith cracked out a base blow to bring Lauve home. Stopping at second on Smith's single, Hill came in when Burt banged out a clean hit.

The big gun in the ISD batting lineup was Burt, who collected two safeties out of his three appearances in the batters' box.

Lehner's display of mound talent was the second outstanding pitching demonstration staged by the Profs in as many games. The initial exhibition of mound fireworks came the preceding Sunday afternoon when Right-hander Ike Silcox bested the Airborne's ace southpaw, Ken Watts, 2 to 1 in a pitching duel. Silcox held the potent defending post champs to three bingles.

Ordnance Nine Yields 5-3 Tilt To Medical Set

Lumber swingers of the 3440th Army Service unit's Medics got behind the two-hit pitching of John Graves last Thursday night and pieced out a 5 to 3 win over the 328th Ordnance battalion at Gowdy field.

The victory pulled the Medics out of the none-won ranks after they had dropped their first tilt of the season to the 204th Transporation Truck battalion diamondmen.

Leading for the first three innings, the flame pot delegation crossed the plate twice in the first, while Ordnance pitcher, John Guth, dealt the dogs a trio of scoreless stanzas.

Andy Boland, Ordnance pitcher playing Thursday night's contest in left field, opened up the first inning by working Graves for a walk, stole second, and was batted in on a one-bagger by Center-fielder Bob Glover. The second Ordnance tally of the stanza came when Horace Basset, who advanced to third following a walk when Glover drove out his base hit, scored on a wild pitch.

The Medics, after holding the 328th scoreless for the next two innings, surged into the lead by pushing across three runs in the top half of the fourth. Singles by Otto Loroesh, Paul Lewish, and Hector Pachico, plus a walk by Bobby Broughten accounted for the Medic counters.

Twirler Graves made his team's margin a little more secure in the opening half of the seventh by blasting a triple into deep right to score John Adams and Jack Morel. However, Graves was stranded at third when Right-fielder Lawson, who had replaced Jack Seybold in the sixth frame, struck out to end the inning.

SLANTS on SPORTS

By Lewis Mc Afee
Bayonet Sports Editor

Unless some team can step in and solve the mound enigma presented by the Infantry School detachment Profs, it looks like the runners-up of last year are going to dethrone the defending champion Airborne battalion nine.

So far, batters of opposing teams have been unable to figure out staff of the Profs. The closest guess was made by the Airborne lads, just where they have to swing to get bingles of the powerful hurling who nicked right-handed ace Ike Silcox for three bingles, which netted them one run.

Combined efforts of Collis (Lefty) Lehner and and Bill Welton set down two opposing squads in successive no-hit title, and slipped the strike-out ball past 27 lumber swingers of the Medics and Special units teams of the 3440th Army Service unit.

In short, infielders and outfielders on the ISD nine haven't had much chance to demonstrate their gardening ability.

After getting off to a slow start with two successive losses, the 329th Ordnance battalion squad, which held the top spot in the second division of loop play last year, came up with two straight wins to put themselves midway up the league ladder.

The flame pot boys sport a good array of twirlers, headed by right-hander Andy Boland, but are still somewhat anemic in the hitting department.

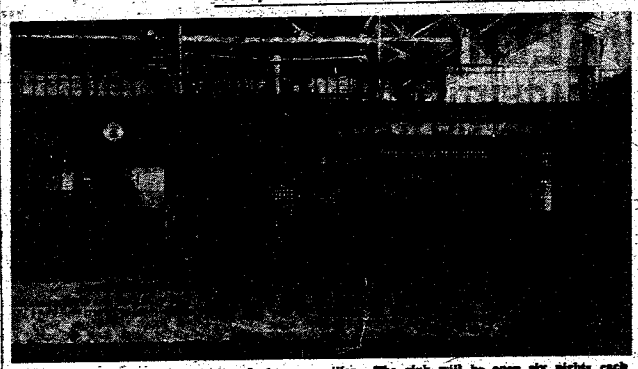
A spectacular catch by Maj. Gen. John D. O'Daniel saved the Hon. Mayor Walker A. Richards of Columbus from being charged with a wild pitch during the pre-game ceremonies of the Cardinal-Macon opener at Golden park Monday night.

The mayor, handicapped by an insufficient warm-up period, tried to put too much steam on the pitch, and got it in the dust. Then, General "Iron Mike" sprang into action, scooped up the faulty throw, and returned it to the mound where Card Pitcher Augie Zande proceeded to perform a few tricks with it.



• • • •

Looking better than they had during any of the spring exhibition tilts, the Columbus Cardinals got off to a good start in their Sally league campaign in Monday night's game by shutting out the Macon Peaches 8 to 0.

Augie Zande's excellent mound control was backed by the big bats of Catcher Ray Worthington and Center-fielder Charley Frey. The home receiver slapped out four hits in four appearances, and Frey collected three safties in his four turns to the hatters' box.

However, if the three stars of Monday night's game continue the showing they made in the opener, they probably won't be seen around Golden park throughout the season. My guess is that the Class AA and Class AA'A farm teams of the St. Louis Cards could find a spot for such talent, they may even wind up performing for the parent club.

Another thing which came to light in the Macon game is that the Columbus diamond delegates may have found themselves an honest-to-goodness first baseman, a long-needed factor of the Cards. Lefty Hallcard gave the Columbus infield a spark of heretofore unseen vigor.

NEW SKATING RINK — Fort Benning's new large skating rink, covering two-thirds of the ground floor of the Main gymnasium, opened last week for personnel of the post and their families. The rink will be open six nights each week as well as Wednesday, Saturday, and Sunday afternoons, and a schedule has been worked out to accomodate each category of personnel at Fort Benning.

Airborne Team Beats Students

Offsetting their loss to the Infantry School detachment's Profs last week, the Airborne battalion's defending champions climbed into the Fort Benning league's middle bracket last Wednesday afternoon by wallopping the Student Training regiment nine 11 to 3 at Gowdy field.

Bob Cronin, speedy right-hander, went the route for the Airborne lads, giving up only four bingles, while his colleagues were collecting 12 safeties from the students' Willie Weaver.

The STR crossed the plate with a run in the top half of the first inning when William Church, who had reached first on an error by Airborne Shortstop Paul Bonair, and moved to third on a double by Harold Brown, raced home on a wild pitch.

Airborne Scores Three

However, the 1947 champs came back in their part of the opening stanza to push across three tallies.

After Len Carney had gone out on a grounder, Ralph Terry slapped out a single and scored on a deep triple by Bonair, Bob Kinard's one-bagger scored Bonair, and a base blow by Ken Watts brought hom Kinard, who made a theft of second.

The STR lads picked up another score in the third when Weaver, who had drawn a base on balls, was batted in by Church from second base.

Three Big Innings

The Airborne nine grouped a barrage of safe hits in the fourth, fifth, and sixth frames for a total of eight runs, and widened its margin over the STR lads, who remained scoreless during the three stanzas.

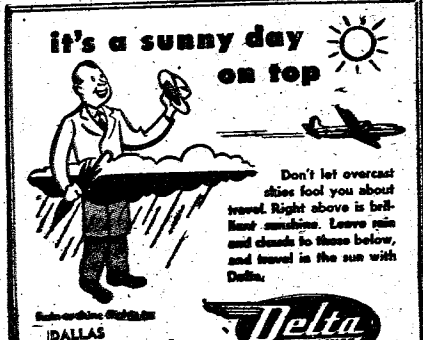
Piling up three in the fourth, the parachutists added one more in the fifth, and closed out their scoring by pushing across four runs in their half of the sixth.

Big guns in the Airborne hickory were Terry, Bonair, Kinard, and Herbert Myatt, each getting two safeties. Church, Brown, Glenn Davis, and John Fiederlein did the STR hitting, each getting a lone safety.

Summary: Two-base hit: Brown. Three-base hit: Bonair. Runs batted in: Brown, Bonair, Church, Kinard 2, Watts, Gallagher, Myatt. Stolen bases: Watts, Myatt, Obneswren 2, G. Davis, Bonair, Kinard 2. Left on base: STR 5, Airborne 7. Hit by pitcher: by Weaver (Watts and Gallagher). Passed balls: Thompson 2. Bases on balls: Off Weaver 2, Stewart 2, Pennott 1, Cronin 4. Hits off: Cronin 4 (in 7 innings), Weaver 8 (in 5 innings), Stewart 2 in 2 inning, Simonet 2 in 1 inning. Winning pitcher: Cronin. Losing pitcher: Weaver. Struck out by: Cronin 10, Weaver 6. Wild pitch: Cronin.

Post Ball Aggregations Need Manager, Players

Four more players and a manager are needed by the Fort Benning junior baseball squad, and the midget nine is in need of a manager, Capt. Peter L. Kelley, post youth activities officer, said.



Daily practice sessions are being held from 4:45 p.m. until 6 p. m. for both teams, and their participation in the American Legion league will start next Sunday afternoon.

MEDICS ARE NO-HIT VICTIMS

PARACHUTISTS HUMBLE LAWSON FIELD FLYERS

Taking advantage of 16 Lawson errors, and coming through with some timely base Knocks, the Airborne battalion diamond nine romped to a 19 to 4 triumph over the cellar-dwelling Flyers in a Gowdy field league tilt last Friday night.

With the Flyer miscues, the Airborne lads needed only eight blows, four of them good for extra bases, to cross the plate 19 times. Lawson field hitters also nicked two parachutist pitchers for eight bingles, but didn't get them in the right places.

Orville Lawson started at mound duties for the Airborne aggregation, and got credit for the win, while Russ Sanders, the Flyers' starter took the loss.

After scoring once in the first inning, the Airborne's base-runners turned the quadrangle into a race track in the bottom half of the second, and raced across the plate seven times. During the scoring spree, Dan English replaced Sanders on the hill for the Flyers.

After annexing two more tallies in the third frame, the 1947 loop leaders came through with their big inning in the fifth when they sent 8 batters to the box and pushed across nine runs.

Lawson's first counter came in during the top half of the second stanza. Third-sacker Jack Hunt walked, stole around to third, and came home when Robbie Robertson lashed a single to center.

The last Flyer score was made off Right-hander Onie Ohnesorgen who came to the rubber for the Airborne lads to start the fifth stanza.

Ordnance Wins From Hapless Lawson Flyers

A flurry of runs in the first two innings of a diamond contest at Gowdy field Sunday afternoon gave the 328th Ordnance battalion nine a 7 to 2 triumph over the Lawson field Flyers.

The win put the Ordnance team exactly half-way up the Fort Benning loop standings with two victories and two defeats. The flame pot lads, weak in the hitting department, lost their first two tilts of the season, but their triumph Sunday was the second in as many games.

Meanwhile, the Flyers dipped even deeper into the circuit's cellar, still having a zero in their wins column after three league engagements.

In the first inning of the tilt, the Ordnance team combined hits, walks, and Lawson errors to net themselves four tallies. The inning's big blow came when First-sacker Dick White lashed out a double with two men on the bags.

The 328th added two more runs in the second when Andy Boland and Horace Bassett came home on a two-bagger by Stan Letonsky, Ordnance clean-up hitter.

Before Pitcher Dan English could get the Ordnance lads' numbers, his opponents pushed another run across the plate in the top half of the fourth. However, the Lawson Flyers' bats began pounding out a rally in the last half of the stanza which was stopped by the 328th after Shortstop Garrett McBride slammed out a triple to bring home two Flyer runs.

Welton Is Mound Star For Profs

Continuing the blistering mound pace set by two other Infantry School detachment pitchers, Bill Welton went to the hill for the Profs Sunday afternoon, and tossed a 9 to 0 no-hit contest over the Medics of the 3440th Army Service unit, the second successive hitless victory for the ISD nine.

Welton's no-hit classic followed a similar performance Friday night by Southpaw Collis Lehner, in which the ISD twirler pitched a 4 to 0 win over the 3440th Army Service unit's diamond delegates.

The only hits of the 1948 season off ISD moundsmen came in the opening game with the Airborne battalion nine, when the parachutists nicked Right - hander Ike Silcox for three bingles, and lost the tilt 2 to 1. Playing only three games thus far, the Profs have yielded an average of one safety per game to opposing batsmen.

Faces 25 Batters

In handing the Medics their setback, Welton faced a total of 25 batters, giving out two walks and hitting one with a pitched ball, while one reached first on an ISD error.

The closest the Medics came to scoring was in the third stanza when Shortstop Jack Morel walked, was sacrificed to second by Pitcher Paul Lewish, and stole third. He was stranded, however, when the lead-off man, Otto Loroesh, went out to the first-baseman unassisted, and Bobby Broughton swung at a third strike.

The Profs started off their display of fireworks in the initial frame by batting completely around to push home four tallies.

The first two Prof batters to face Lewish, Center - fielder George Dickson and First-baseman Herb Lauve, worked the southpaw hurler for walks.

Approximately 9,000 reservists, National Guardsmen and United States Military Academy cadets are expected to train here during the summer, it was announced this week by Infantry Center officials.

First group to arrive will be 563 West Pointers who are scheduled to train here June 16-19.

Officials said that the Infantry School's Academic department will provide several demonstrations for the future officers during their four-day visit. Among the problems scheduled are the infantry fire power demonstration, highlighted by the "mad minute", and an airborne demonstration.

Small groups of reservists from Georgia, South Carolina, Alabama, and Florida are also expected to be here at intervals throughout the summer.

Changes In Staff Assignments Told

A change in the staff assignments at the Infantry School, involving Cols. Julian Dayton, Frank Ward, Fay Ross, and Burton Lucas, has been officially revealed.

Colonel Dayton has transferred from the chairmanship of the heavy weapons committee to become chief of the Weapons section, while Colonel Ward, formerly chief of the coordinating committee of the General section has taken over as chief, the post previously held by Colonel Ross, who has assumed command of the 3440th Army Service unit. Colonel Lucas, new president of Army Field Forces board No. 3, was formerly chief of Weapons section.

Weapons section head, Colonel Dayton, who entered the service in 1917 at Camp Sevier, S.C., saw service in both wars. He was attached to the G-3 section of the 12th Army group in France and served on the Pacific Warfare board at Manila. Colonel Dayton arrived at Fort Benning in December, 1945.

The new chief of the General section, Colonel Ward, is now in his fifth tour of duty at Fort Benning. He first came here in 1920 to attend the basic officer's class when the post was known as Camp Benning. He returned in 1940 to the Weapons section, serving until 1942. In 1946 he spent a short time here as executive officer of the Weapons section, and after duty in China, came back as an instructor in the General section.

Colonel Ward served overseas in both world wars. In World War I he was in France with the 32nd Infantry division and later with the expeditionary forces in Siberia and Vladivostok. In World War II he was G-1 of the First Allied Airborne army in Europe, and in 1946 went to China with Gen. George C. Marshall during the latter's diplomatic mission.

The present tour of duty is Colonel Ross' third at Fort Benning. He was a student at the Infantry School in 1922-23 and again from 1932-34. In 1934 he was assigned to the School's Department of Experiment, serving until 1937.

Prior to the outbreak of World War II, Colonel Ross was president of the Tank Destroyer board at Camp Hood, Texas. Overseas he was assigned to the Headquarters, European Theater of Operations, in London and Headquarters, Allied Forces, in Algiers. He arrived at Fort Benning in 1944 to assume duties as chief of the General section.

Colonel Lucas originally came to Fort Benning in 1938 as a student in the Infantry School, returning in 1931 as an instructor in the Communications section. Shortly thereafter he was placed on special duty with the Department of Experiment, later known as the Test section of the Infantry board.

3 Lawson EM Get Diplomas

The third phase of a Personnel Management school was completed at Lawson Air Force base last week with three top graders receiving diplomas.

The ten-hour course under the supervision of Lt. Frederick K. Signs stressed the management of individuals in various base sections.

The training was broken down into five two-hour conferences under the following headings: Principles of Instruction, Steps in Instruction, Accomplishing Instructions, Development of Methods of Instructions, Plans for application of methods of instructions.

The 30 men attending the class were informed they would have to put into operation two of the techniques of the course in their respective sections before qualifying for diplomas.

Benning's Night School Students Now Total 450

The spring session of Fort Benning's Army Education Center formerly the Infantry Center vocational school, opened Thursday night, April 15, with a total of 450 students enrolled.

A low enrollment was expected this quarter, officials said, since the School Troops organization composed of approximately 5,000 men is scheduled to leave during early May for maneuvers at Camp Campbell, Ky., and Fort Bragg, N. C. It will probably increase, however, they pointed out before the registration deadline on April 23.

Most popular of the 21 courses offered this term are: typing, bookkeeping, Russian, and commercial law.

Beginning Monday, April 26, an opportunity class will be offered at the education center for those men who have not completed elementary school. Enrollments for this course are now being accepted at the Infantry Center information and education office or at unit information and education offices.

Board To Name 4800 Captains

The department of the Army announced today that a selection board of seven general officers, headed by Major General Glen E. Edgerton, would meet at the Pentagon beginning April 19 to select regular army first lieutenants for promotion to the permanent grade of captain.

The Edgerton board, named in accordance with the army's new promotion system, will study the records of all permanent first lieutenants with over five years service.

Approximatley 4,800 officers will be promoted out of 6,900 whose names are to be submitted to the board.

In addition to Genral Edgerton, members of the bard will be Major Generals George A. Horkan, of Office of the Quartermaster General, Washington, and Edwin P. Parker, Jr., Provost Marshal General's office, Washington, and Brigadier Generals Wayne C. Zimmerman, of Second Army, Fort Meade, Maryland; Walter J. Muller, Army Field Forces, Fort Monroe, Virginia; Roswell E. Hardy, Office of the Chief of Ordnance, Washington, and Fay B. Prickett, Eastern Pennsylvania Military District, Philadelphia. Colonel Lawrence E. Nobles and Major Clarence M. Kenn, adjutant general officers stationed in Washington, will act as recorders.

STR'S FINANCE OFFICE HANDLES STUDENT PAY

Student-officer groups served by the Student Training regiment's finance office include air transportability, National Guard refresher, communications, air indoctrination, airborne, advanced No. 1 through 3, basic No. 1 through 6, and motor classes in addition to the regularly assigned officers.

All monies due officers attending classes here, including allowances and allotments, are paid by the finance office prior to their departure from Fort Benning, Lieutenant Parent pointed out.

The office often operates on a seven-day week in order to accomplish its mission, he said, and even on occasions goes into the field where class sessions are being held.

Lieutenant Parent is assisted by M-Sgt. Floyd O. Holmes, officers' pay section, M-Sgt. Walter J. Wolicki, travel pay; T-5 Albert J. Ziss, clerk-typist, and Miss Ruth Mitchell, finance clerk.

Post Recruiting Station Moves

Fort Benning's Central Examining board, which closed Wednesday, has been replaced by the Recruiting station which will be located in the north tower of Doughboy stadium at the corner of Ingersoll street and Vibbert avenue, it was announced today by Maj. L. D. Shaw, Infantry Center recruiting officer.

Major Shaw said the new station would not handle civilian enlistments except those of combat wounded. The primary purpose of the recruiting station will be reenlistment and reassignment of Fort Benning personnel, he pointed out.

The recruiting chief also announced that the Third Army Field Forces exhibit, organized several weeks ago, will leave today for Jacksonville, Fla., where it will be on display April 24-25.

At the end of the show in the Florida city, the exhibit will go to Humboldt, Tenn., where it will be dispayed from May 5-7 during the annual Strawberry Festival. Approximately 10,000 people are expected there during the three-day holiday, Major Shaw said.

Two pretty girls were walking down the street. Two young soldiers whistled at them.

"The nerve of them," said one of the dasmels, "whistling at us two days before pay day."

SHOW HEADLINERS—Miss Bunny Bennett, left, singer and dancer will be featured along with the 72nd Army band under the direction of 1st Sgt. Manuel Susa, in the variety show April 27 and May 3 at the School Troops rest camp. The show is produced for the benefit of School Troops now in the field.

School Troops Planning Live Talent Field Show

The first live talent show attempted at Fort Benning since the war will be staged for the benefit of troops in bivouac by the School Troops special service at 8 p. m. April 27 at the School Troops rest camp.

Produced under the direction of Pfc. Leon Pare of the 325th Infantry regiment's special service office, the show will feature a variety of entertainment, including music, dancing, instrumental and vocal specialities, comedy skits and special acts. A second show is slated for May 3.

The Harmony Highlighters, a group of five members of the 320th Field Artillery battalion who specialize in close harmony of popular and spiritual renditions, headline the list of entertainers. Cpl. Melvin Conage, T-5 James Harris, Pfc. Paul Alexander, Pfc. John Leonard and pianist Pvt. Leroy Young comprise the Highlighters.

Miss Bunny Bennett, local dancer and singer, will be featured in her vocal talent to popular ballard renditions with the orchestra.

Others in the show include Pfc. Eugene Johnson of Company A, 325th Infantry, who will present an act of legerdemain, and Sgt. Earl Rader and Cpl. John Burns, guitarsists of the 325th.

Many more acts comprise the full program outlined for the troops. Music for the occasion will be furnished by an orchestra of the 72nd Army band, under the direction of 1st Sgt. Manuel Susa.

For the troops in the field, it will be timely entertainment. The units, with their equipment, have been in bivouac for the past two weeks in preparation for the coming joint army-air force maneuver "Exercise Assembly", slated to begin May 8 at Camp Campbell, Ky., and Fort Bragg, N.C.

The two performances at the rest camp, located about 17 miles from the main post, will bring fond memories to troops who witnessed many field shows during the war, when the policy of bringing entertainment to troops in the field proved quite popular.

Strictly Editorializing

We were talking to a group of Benningites one afternoon last week regarding places to go and things to do in off-duty hours, and were frankly amazed that so many thought there were nothing except night clubs and bars in the vicinity.

It's obvious, of course, that one is limited in many respects since the surrounding towns are not large, thus can not support the variety of entertainment features found in cities of several hundred thousand or more. But there are many weekend pleasure spots, near here, and after all that's what most of us are interested in.

ONLY A LITTLE more than thirty miles north of Columbus, on the Atlanta-Warm Springs highway is a state-supported resort perched atop Pine mountain, amid the most colorful scenery in this part of Georgia. There are lakes for fishing—and we are informed that the fishing is mighty good there—a large swimming pool, an inn with excellent food where overnight accomodations may be had, cabins which may be engaged for overnight, a weekend, or longer, hiking and riding trails, and a dance pavilion.

WITH THE COMING of the hot summer months we can think of no better place to spend a weekend than at Pine mountain. For those who like photography, the scenery would be a welcome sight.

PINE MOUNTAIN IS easily reached either by bus or auto. Why not try it next weekend?

ANOTHER SPOT NEAR Fort Benning for weekend jaunts is Panama City, Fla., located approximately 175 miles southwest of Columbus on the Gulf of Mexico. Although some distance farther than Pine mountain, the Florida city can easily be reached in a few hours. Bathing and fishing are the highlights of a Panama City visit, and its sandy beaches and top-notch deep-sea fishing warm the hearts of lovers of those two sports. Good accomodations may be had either at hotels, beach cottages, apartment houses, or rooming houses.

THESE ARE BUT two of the many places nearby which afford a cooling and welcome relief after a hard week in the field or at an office desk. We feel sure you would enjoy either spot.

Report On Unification

Secretary of Defense James Forrestal recently released a statement outlining chronologically the major accomplishments of his office since the unification of the armed forces on September 17, 1947, through last March 17. It can easily be seen in his repot that the advocates of unification were correct in assuming that much could saved monetarily and that a great deal of duplication and overlapping could be eliminated.

Among the activities itemized were the inauguration of a cordinated procurement or buying program for the three services. This program was begun on October 31, 1947, and on the following day the secretaries of the three armed forces began assignment among themselves of purchase responsibilities. In other words, one service would buy for all three, eliminating competitive bidding and overstocking by any one or all of the three services.

It is obvious that such a program will conserve the armed forces budget since there will be equal distribution, according to per capita size of the military, naval, or air force establishment, on all goods consumed by the three major forces.

The Secretary of Defense took further steps in unification on November 1, 1947, when a unified Caribbean Command was set up, with Lieutenant General Willis D. Crittenberger appointed commander-in-chief. One month later, on December 1, a unified Atlantic Command was established with a naval officer placed in command: Admiral W. H. P. Blandy. In both cases the armed forces are saving manpower since there is no duplicatin in command. Money is also saved since there has to be only one supreme headquarters, eliminating rental space, office equipment, and monies for services rendered.

Another important step was taken by the unified command when, on December 19, 1947, the Research and Development Board, under the chairmanship of Dr. Vannevar Bush, met to tie together research projects within the military establishment in order to avoid duplication and overlapping. Several committees have been formed by the board which work together for the good of the whole establishment rather than for an individual service.

The Committee of Medical and Hospital Services, headed by Dr. Paul R. Hawley of the Veterans Administration, met on December 30, 1947, and discussed plans for studying and making recommendations concerning coordination of all medical services, including manpower, of the armed forces. This is definiately, we believe, a logical step toward the conservation of doctors and nurses as well as hospital space. There seems, to us at least, no reason why each service can not share the other's medical services, thereby saving thousands of dollars to say nothing of the untold conservation of medical manpower which certainly will be needed in case of atomic warfare.

January 2 to determine the best use and allocation of space. The Interdepartment Space Policy Board, created last for the national military establishment in Washington and elsewhere and to reduce the cost of government rentals and maintenance, reported on March 5 that several military offices in Boston would move from leased to government-owned space, freeing nearly 45,000 square feet for civilian use and reducing military expenditures by $73,281 annually. In addition, through this board, approximately 500,000 square feet of storage space owned by the military establishment has been offered for possible use by other government departments.

...These highlights of accomplishments of the unified armed forces further emphasize the sagacity of the new program, and prove that by working together, instead of separately, that each service benefits in countless ways. We are glad to have ourselves proven right since we advocated unification long before legislation was passed.

RUMORS OF WARS

By

CHAPLAIN CHESTER H. PELT

Yes, it is in the Bible Matthew 24:6: "And ye shall hear of wars and rumors of wars: see that ye be not troubled; for all these things must come to pass, but the end is not yet." There are two harmful results of such war rumors.

First, it causes fear that ends in the failures of our hearts, Luke 21:26: "Men's Hearts failing them for fear, and for looking after those things which are coming on the earth."

Such fear causes us to quit plans that would mean improvement, contentment and possible success in life. We sacrifice our best on the altar of fear; cling to our second best and spend our time "looking after those things which are coming to pass on the earth."

Second, the enemies of Democracy delight in our confusion, and deliberately follow a course that will add to our fear by promoting conditions that will create more confusion, trouble and strife. The more we fear and the more our hearts fail us, the greater is the victory of our enemies' gunless battles of the war of nerves. We are playing right into their hands. Unconsciously, we are doing the very thing they want us to do; fear, confusion and strife cause disunity and destroys our strength.

What shall we do?

"See that ye be not troubled." Be ready! Be prepared and ready for any eventuality. Be ready and prepared in soul, body and spirit. Follow the course of life that will add to your personal pride, happiness, contentment and good morale: Be on the alert for false rumours. Beat the enemy at his own game at home and abroad. Look unto God who will give us strength and courage and there will be no cause for fear; no heart failure and the victory is ours and the enemies of Democracy will be defeated.

A soldier and his girl went out riding in the countryside, when the two horses started to rub necks affectionately.

"Gee," said the soldier, "I wish I were doing that."

"Go ahead," blithely returned the girl, "it's your horse."

The left fielder had missed three easy fly-balls. When the inning was finally over, he returned to the bench and alibied: "I guess I'll have to get glasses."

"Glasses?" roared the coach. "You're too far gone for glasses! What you need is radar!"

Then there was the grammar teacher who fainted dead away when Johnnie said:

"Why did you bring that book I didn't want to be read to out of up here for?"

Maw: "Which foot, Paw?"

PROUD DESTINY

"Proud Destiny", a new novel with the fascinating background of the French era of Louis XVI, again proves Lion Feuchtwanger an outstanding writer of the historical novel. His discriptions of antics of members of the Court of Louis XVI give his readers a clear picture of the ensuing fall of French royalty.

Along with his European background, Mr. Feuchtwanger has spent a number of years in the United States, and has developed a rare sympathy and understanding of the American tradition which has enabled him to depict the struggles of Benjamin Franklin and the other American representatives at the capital of their French allies. The reader soon realizes that this is no light, frothy attempt at blending romance around a passage of history. Here is a tale, well told, of the beginning of a new era of thinking in politics and in the individual freedom of man. Franklin and Beaumarchais, American and Frenchman, as opposite in personality as night and day, stand head and shoulders over their contemporaries in the espionage which finally secures for the Thirteen States the aid they so sorely need in their struggle for independence. The author never looses sight of the factual history of the period and events of which he write.

"Proud Destiny" is a Literary Guild selection. It has already been purchased by Enterprise Productions at a record price for a major screen production.

BY MURRAY E. HILL

This week your Red Cross moves into the field with the troops. With the beginning of the spring training taking place in a remote section of the reservation, it would, of course, be extremely difficult for those troops taking part to get back to the main post for Red Cross service in emergencies. Therefore, your Red Cross completed arrangements this week for Daniel T. Shipp, one of the assistant field directors here, to accompany all troops leaving Fort Benning on maneuvers. Mr. Shipp will be attached to the command post and can be located by individuals or commanding officers by contacting the headquarters in the maneuver area.

Mr. Shipp will carry with him complete supplies of comfort articles which will be available to the men on an essential basis. Telegrams will be sent directly by Mr. Shipp in the field, over the main office teletype machine to any part o the United States. Wires will be delivered to Mr. Shipp while still in the field so that appropriate action may be taken as early as possible. The Red Cross will not furnish entertainment or recreation for the troops while on maneuvers as this will be the duty of the special services officer. This is another example of the efforts of your Red Cross at Fort Benning to continue to serve the troops under any emergency.

I would like to point out here, however, that if an individual or a commanding officer has any difficulty in locating Mr. Shipp while on maneuvers, he should contact the main Red Cross office, for we will continue to serve all troops at Fort the main office whenever Mr. Shipp is not immediately available in the field.

2 Post Sergeants Take Top Honors

Teet, Todd Complete Ordnance Courses At Maryland School

Fort Benning's highly rated principles of training methods and techniques received added impetus last week with the revelation that two sergeants from the maintenance and museum section, M-Sgt. Freddie Teet and S-Sgt. Hugh D. Tod, graduated as No. 1 students from the Ordnance School at Aberdeen Proving Grounds, Md.

Sergeant Teet, a member of the small arms inspecting team of the maintenance section, placed at the top of his class in small arms instruction, while Sergeant Todd, attached to the artillery fire and control team here, added more honors by finishing at the head of the class in instrument repair.

A veteran of nine years service, Sergeant Teet entered the service at Fort Benning in September, 1939. A native Georgian hailing from Eatonton, Teet served here with the 29th Infantry and the Fourth Anti-Tank battalion transferring to Fort Bragg, N. C., in 1942. From Fort Bragg he went overseas in August, 1942, with the 894th Tank Destroyer unit, which was attached to the Second Corps.

After participating in action in Africa and Italy, Sergeant Teet returned to the states for eight months, after which he joined the 69th Infantry division at Camp Shelby, Miss., went back overseas with the division. As first sergeant in Battery C, 881st Field Artillery battalion, he participated in further campaigns above the Siegfreid line, Belgium and Germany.

Discharged in June, 2945, Teet reenlisted a few months later at Fort Benning.

A Metter, Ga., product, Sergeant Todd's service dates bak to 1935 when he enlisted at Fort Screens, Ga., with the Eighth Infantry regiment. After serving three years, eight months later he re-enlisted at Fort Bragg, N. C., with the 36th Field Artillery battalion. Transferred to the 29th Infantry regiment at Fort Benning in June, 1939, Sergeant Todd moved with the 29th to Fort Jackson, S. C., and stayed with the unit until it sailed for Europe in August, 1943.

Jackson Enlists At Local Base

Clarence Jackson, the youngest member of the service-minded Jackson family of Brinson, Ga., was sworn in at the Lawson Air Force base recruiting office last week and has been transferred to the air forces' training center at San Antonio, Tex., for basic training.

Private Jackson, 18, is the brother of T-Sgt. Robert Jackson, Lawson's provost marshal sergeant who is a veteran of 14 years service. Other veterans in his family are Horace B, who served with the 29th Infantry at Fort Benning and is now retired, and John Eddie, a former member of the coast guard, who retired after 16 years service.

Sergeant: Mechanic? That "mechanic" is so dumb he thinks you cool off a motor by stripping the gears."

LOCAL AUTHOR—Mrs. Herbert E. Eitt, wife of Colonel Eitt who is a member of the Defense committee of the Tactical section, has recently had an article in print in "Mademoiselle's Living", a new magazine for smart young homemakers. Mrs. Eitt's background includes leading roles in Broadway plays and work in the ETO during the war with the Red Cross.

Candy Eitt, Army Wife, Adds To Fame With Recent Article

Mrs. Herbert Eitt, infromally known as "Candy" derived from Carmel, is a Fort Benning wife of many talents, her most recent of which has put her in The Bayonet limelight this week. Reach for your copy of "Mademoiselle's Living" magazine-or run to the nearest newsstand and turn to page 60.

Candy's article, "I'm An Army Bride", is fresh and informal, and tells a tale of an army bride who arrives at Fort Benning for her first station with her new husband to find her first home a beautiful, big set of army quarters in which her husband's friends had unpacked and arranged her furniture so that she felt right at home without going through the battle of excelsior and packing paper. Candy's knack of giving credit to are these friends would endear her to them even if her charm and personality did not immediately do so.

Candy's background is one of glamour-a stage-struk girl who made good in the big city. She attended the American Academy in New York City, was an apprentice with the Theater Group, traveled West to play in the Pasadena Playhouse, and back to New York where she had parts in, Room Service", All That Glitters", Kiss The Boys Goodby", and Time Of Your Life," to put her name in Broadway lights. With time-out during the war, Candy signed up with the war, Candy signed up with the Red Cross, wah a staff assistant then club director in ETO. She met Colonel Eitt at Bains-Les-Bains.

Candy was married at the family's home on Long Island in December, 1946. Her father, T. J. White, is an executive with Hearst publications, and it was through his friendship with the Cosmopolitan cover artist, Bradshaw Brandall, that he was presented the befutiful charcoal drawing of Candy which now adorns the Eitt living room. Candy's ability as an author comes naturally as several members of her family are in the publishing business, perhaps the most famous being Carmel Snow, editor of Harper's Bazaar.

Candy's literary ability has come to the fore in past instances-several letters to her family while she was in ETO during the war were published in Harper's Bazaar in 1944. Now Candy and Herb are proud parents of a son, Thomas Henry, who takes much of his talented mother's time, although she still supervises the smooth running of her attractive set of quarters which inspired her "Army Bride" story.

The lovely brunnette bride entered on the arm of her cousin Oscar C. Balamut, New York City, by whom she was given in marriage. Her gown was beige silk shantung and she wore a rose-trimmed bonnet with a maline veil. Her bouquet was talisman roses and white iris buds.

Upon leaving the chapel, the bride and groom passed under an arch of sabers held by Lt. Col. L. A. Smith, Maj. A. N. Brandit, Maj. G. S. Bare, Maj. R. M. Lee, Maj. S. F. Frazier, Maj. Paul Liles, Maj. L. J. Corley, Maj. G. C. Russi, Capt. R. A. Atlas, and Capt. F. W. Keating.

Cinder Path Meet Planned Tuesday

Doughboys Will Defend Third Army Area Title

Winning contestants in the post track and field tourney held in Doughboy stadium last Wednesday afternoon will represent Fort Benning when the Doughboys meet the Fort Bragg, N. C., Assassians in the three-day Third Army meet which gets underway on the local layout Tuesday afternoon.

With activity starting at 2 p.m. Tuesday, preliminaries Wednesday events will be held simultaneously with cinder path classics.

Although invitations to the meet were extended to all posts in the Third Army area, present indications are that the classic will be strictly a Fort Benning-Fort Bragg affair.

Assuming the role of defending champions, the Doughboys will have a complete team, consisting of two entries in each of the nine sentatives in each of the nine track events, and three repreield contests.

Comprising the cinder path division of the tournament will be the 100-yard dash, the 220-yar lo whurdles, the 220-yard dash, the mile run, the 440-yard run, the two mile run, the 120-yard low hurdles, the 220-yard run, and the one-mile relay. Team delegates have been selected by Coach James Hill for all events with the exception of the mile relay.

Field events to be staged include the shot put, javelin, discuss, high jump, broad jump, and pole vault.

Good Field Conditions

Doughboy stadium, which has been undergoing a general reconditioning for the past two months, is in better condition for the meet than it has been in for the past several years.

Although no pre-tournament ceremonies have been planned, James Williams, Third Army athletic officer, will be present for the meet, and will assist in the presentation of trophies.

Trophies of the commanding general of the army area will be awarded to both individual and team winners.

Tolve to Participate

Among Fort Benning's representatives in the field events will be Lt. Col. Ralph Tolve, provost marshal, and one-time Olympic team aspirant, who will participate in the discus and shot contests.

Teamed with Tolve in the two events will be Capt. Allen Scullen, winner of both classics in last week's post meet. Scullen got 115 feet, four inches with the discus, and heaved the shot 36 feet, four inches. George McAnnelly will be the third member of the discus team, and George McCall will be the other delegate for the shot put.

Tentatively slated for the javelin team are McAnnelly, Thomas Other probable field teams will be: broad jump: Ulysses Jacobs, Donald Jackson, and Phillip Tindrell; high jump: Joe Morgan, Emmett Green, and John Morgan; and pole vault: Floyd Swanson, Jack Foley, and Patrick Burns.

Track Winners

Among the track event winners in the post meet last Wednesday was Richard Overfield, who ran the 100-yard dash in 10.2 seconds to edge out Robert Towels and Richard Hill.

Trotting around the cinder track at a steady clip, John B. Jenkins finished the two-mile classic in 11 minutes, 5.5 seconds to beat Edward Beyuka and James H. Williams. Beyuka, however, finished the mile run in five minutes, one second, to cross the line before Robert B. Lewis and Chester Lenon.

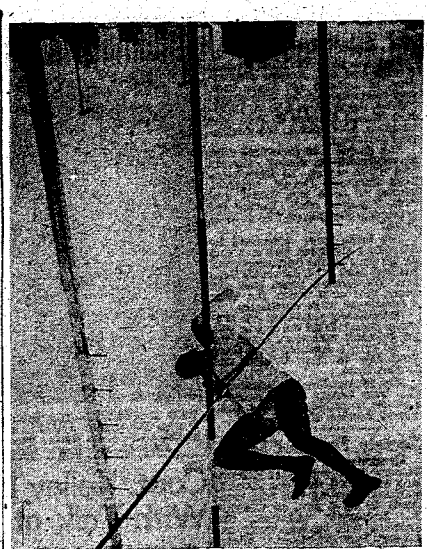
Cecil Malone stepped over the low hurdles in 28.9 seconds to come in ahead of Tindrell and Alex Bowie in the 220-yard classic. Uncontested in the 120-yard high hurdles race, David Glenn chalked up a time of 20.5 seconds.

Marvin Eisenstein, whose time of two minutes, 15.3 seconds won the 880-yard run, also came in second in the 440-yard race, just behind Douglas Lee, who turned in a time of 54.9 seconds. The 220-yard race was won by Jesse Hill, who made the distance in 24 seconds.

Sports Quiz

1. Had Fred Merkle not pulled his famous "boner" in 1908 when he failed to touch second base in what would have been the season's final game, the Giants would have won the pennant. But Fred had his fatal moment and the Giants wound up in second place. Who won the flag, just what was the rhubarb about?

2. What is the Sullivan trophy?



3. You must know that the Polo Grounds has the deepest centerfield wall of all the major league ball parks. What field has the longest rightfield foul line?

ANSWERS

1. Merkle, on first, started for second when he saw what would have been the winning run cross home plate. He quit running for second and ran into the clubhouse. Johnny Evers, cub second basemen, noted Merkle's error, grabbed the ball and and touched second base putting Merkle out. The league president decided the game must he played over and the Cubs took the play-off and the pennant, 4 to 2.

2. The James E. Sullivan Trophy is awarded yearly by the Amateur Athletic Union (AAU) to the outstanding amateur of the year, regardless of whether or not he participates in sports under AAU supervision. Recent winners include Gil Dodds. Doc Blanchard, Arnold Tucker, Greg Rice and Les MacMitchell.

MAY LINKS TOURNAMENT SLATED FOR BENNING EM

Plans were formulated at a meeting of the Fort Benning Officers' club golf course committee Monday night for a post enlisted men's links tournament to be played on the local layout the latter part of May.

The tourney, which will be sponsored by the club golf committee, will be the first of its kind at Fort Benning, and will he conducted similarly to the annual post officers' meet.

M-Sgt. Robert L. Sbort, enlisted representative on the golfing committee, said that the materialization of plans mapped at the Monday night meeting depends upon the interest in golf shown by enlisted golfers.

Entries may be made either through unit first sergeants or by calling Sergeant Short at 2873.

The enlisted committee representative pointed out that the tournament will be open to all enlisted personnel, regardless of whether or not they are members of the club. Membership in the club is open to enlisted linksmen who are capable of shooting consistently below 90.

Under existing plans, the tournament play will consist of a 36-hole qualifying round, after which the contestants will be grouped into flights in accordance with their scores. Match play rounds will determine the post enlisted champion, as well as other flight winners.

The Officers' club golf committee will work in conjunction with the special services office in providing suitable trophies for winners in each flight.

Also under consideration by the committee is the possibility of bringing the post enlisted champion together with the officer titlist for a post crown match.

BENNING GOLF SQUAD TROUNCES LAGRANGE

Chief Warrant Officer Devert Moore, recently crowned club champion, led the meet's scoring by carding a two-under-par 70, and taking three points under the Nassau scoring system from his opponent, J. H. Finney.

Using the top 18 golfers on the club's links "ladder" as nine two-man squads, the local delegation took all but two of the nine contests, and took all of the nine possible points in three of the matches.

In the first match of the day, Lt. Col. W. R. Cole, medalist in the recent club tourney, and the 1947 club champion, teamed with Lt. Col. Charles W. Davis to blank the LaGrange team of N. G. Slaughter and Cliff Hunter, Jr., 9 to 0.

The first LaGrange victory came in the second match when Bert Culpepper and R. F. Neilson defeated Maj. A. J. Hoebeke and Maj. Mills Brown 5 to 4.

Coming back to card another Benning victory in the third match, Maj. James Hungate and Lt. Col. Matt C. Bristol trounced the visiting delegation's C. S. Foster and J. C. Gwynn Jr., 8½-½.

The next match saw Capt. Philip S. Grant and Mr. Moore set back W. H. Perkerson and J. H. Finney 8-1, which was followed by another Benning victory when Maj. W. H. Wilcoff and Col. Weldon Lewis stroked a 9 to 0 win over R. M. Hammond and Bill Trotter of the LaGrange team.

The other LaGrange triumph came in the following match with R. S. Porter and W. B. King taking a 5 and 1-2 to 3 and 1-2 contest from Lt. Col. E. P. Eschenburg and Lt. John Henion.

The visiting delegation, however, saw their chances of a meet triumph fade when they lost the day's seventh match to Benning. Representing the military squad, Capt. Herb Bench and Capt. Nelson Lindstrand defeated A. B. Edge, Jr., and Hal Brady to the tune of 8 and 1-2 to 1-2.

Benning's winning streak went forward with Capt. A. S. Augustauskas and Col. Frank Ward taking the next match from Alton Daniel and Bix Gunn by a 7 and 1-2 to 1 and 1-2 count, and Maj. Jim Browning and Capt. Clyde Carroll scored a 9 to 0 victory over John Ferguson and Jack Talbert to close out the classic.

The local golfers will be the guests of the LaGrange Country club in a return match to be played during May, at which time, the "ladder" again will be used to select the post's representatives.

Prior to last Sunday's meet, the LaGrange linksmen were the guests of their opponents for a dinner in the Officers' club.

Watts Bests ASU's Hall In Hill Duel

Airborne Nine Takes 2-1 Tilt

Allowing only two safeties, Ken Watts, ace southpaw of the Airborne battalion, won a 2 to 1 pitchers' duel over Lawrence Hall of the 3440th Army Service unit in a Gowdy field tilt last Tuesday night.

After holding the ASU nine scoreless for the first six frames, the Airborne had its two-run margin threatened in the top half of the seventh when Willie Banks tripled with one on base and none out. However, a double play cut Banks off at the plate as he raced for home with the tying score.

The parachutists picked up both of their runs during the first two innings when Hall issued three bases on balls, and gave up a single.

After forcing Ralph Terry, who had driven a single to center, at second, Bob Kinard was forced in with the game's first tally as the result of successive walks to Paul Bonair, Griffin, and Herbert Myatt.

The Airborne squad picked up another counter in the last of the second when Red Cothran slammed a double into left, and scored when Terry reached first on an error by Bob Williams, ASU shortstop.

Leading off for the ASU in the seventh, Williams worked Watts for a base on balls, and came home when Banks lashed his mighty three-bagger into center, the hard-hitting ASU second baseman held third while Johnnie Reynolds grounded out from second to first, but tried to reach home with the tying tally when Alfred Turney rolled one down toward second. Taking the grounder, Kinard threw to Myatt to retire Turney, and the Airborne first-sacker whipped it to the plate in time to catch Banks. Working the mound for the full

TIC Wins Pins League Match

Fort Benning will have another crack at a Third Army title when the Fort Bragg Assassins invade the post next week with the intentions of keeping the Doughboy's from taking the area track and field crown for the second consecutive year.

Everything considered, the Doughs don't look like too much of a threat, at least they don't stack up to the 1947 cinder path edition. However, the Assassins probably will have to bring along a better team tha nthe one which took a terrific shellacking from the Benningites last year.

The entrance of Ralph Tolve, former U. S. Olympic team hopeful, into the weightheaving division of the field side of the team, is expected to bolster the phase in which the post delegation appeared weak during last week's local elimination events.

Fort Bragg, the Doughs perenniel foes, already have taken two Third Army titles from local sports squads this year—basketball and boxing. In case Benning track and field endeavors don't measure up to those of the Assassins, local enthusiasts will just have to look to the Dough diamond nine to salvage at least one major sports tiara in 1948.

* * * *

A chance for enlisted golfers of Fort Benning to realize their fondest dreams, that of having an on-the-post golf layout, may grow out of a meeting of the local officers' golf committee last Monday night.

Definite plans were mapped to have an enlisted tournament during the latter part of May, and the committee is waiting to observe the interest shown in links activities before making any commitments as to what steps will be taken to encourage greens activities for enlisted golfers.

* * * *

In the Fort Benning intra-mural baseball race, Sunday afternoon probably will be the last chance for the Airborne battalion champs of 1947, to repeat their feat this year.

If they win the 3 p. m. tilt from the loop-leading Infantry School detachment Profs, it will throw the race for the post championship into a deadlock with each team charged with a lone setback. The undefeated Profs handed the parachutists their only loss of the season when the two teams clashed before.

Although recent showings made by southpaw Ken Watts and right-hander Bob Cronin have made prospects a little brighter for the Airborne lads, the popular belief is that the ISD still has the pitching staff to be beaten.

Coach James Walker has no less than eight capable starters and almost as many relief hurlers. The most hits Prof twirlers have allowed in any single game this year was four, given up to the 328th Ordnance by right-hander Ike Silcox. And Bill Welton and Lefty Lehner have no-hiters to their credit.

* * * *

If opening-day fames in the majors can be any indication of things to come later in the season, a lot of sports saga will be in for a sad awakening.

The Boston Red Sox, picked by most sports authorities to be battling it out for the top spot in the American league with the New York Yankees, started off the season by dropping both ends of a twin bill to the Philadelphia Athletics on Boston territory. Preseason estimates had the A's placed near the cellar in the junior circuit's pennant race.

One of the reasons for the trouncing taken by the Red Sox was a young Southpaw by the name of Lou Brissie, who attained Sally league fame last year as a 23-game winner with the Savannah Indians.

Brissie, who overcome a wartime leg injury to pitch his way into the big leagues, not only hurled four-hit ball against the powerful Boston aggregation but singled in the two runs which proved to be the A's winnin margin.

* * * *

Let's take a look at what some of the top-notch sport writers for major league teams think of their team prospects for a 1948 pennant.

ST. LOUIS CARDINALS—By J. Roy Stockton, St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Pitching: Likely to be the strongest department o the team.
Catching: Not satisactory; club would welcome the opportunity to obtain a capable receiver in a trade.
Infield: First base is still uncertain. Otherwise as good as any team in the league.

Outfield: Aging, but still good, with Enos Slaughter, Terry Moore, and Stan Musial in action.

NEW YORK YANKEES—By Dan O'Daniel, New York World-Telegram.

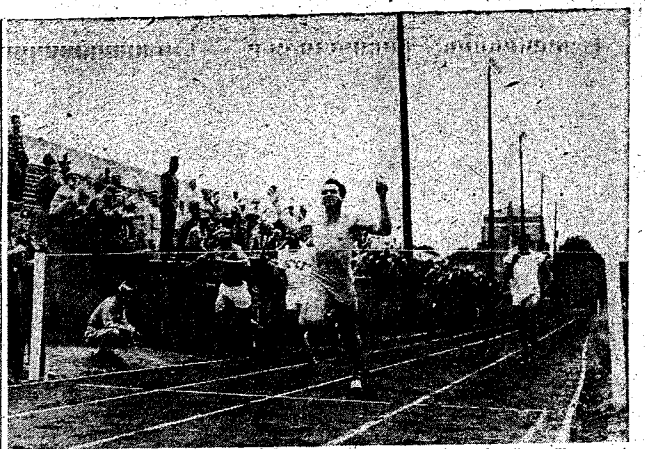
Catching: Could be more adroit and polished.
Infield: Best in the major leagues.
Outfield: Much depends on Charlie Keller's complete recovery from the operation for the removal of fractured disc in his spine; Joe DiMaggio's arm operation was definitely a success.

Season's Second Midget Auto Race Set Friday At Idle Hour



After a fast start which brought 15 racers and a neat capacity crowd to Martin Stadium last week, the 1948 midget auto season will enter its second week Friday evening, when Promoster A. P. Brewer promises another big starting field.

Jimmie Reed, last year's runner-up, ran away with the final feature Friday, took the fastest heat, and generally spread the news that he will be among those present when the purses are distributed this summer.

Bob Johnson, last year's champion, took one heat. Visiting champions Red Redmond and Carl Miller ran third and fourth in the final with George ("Kilroy") Marshman between them and Reed.

LeRoy Hicks and Hank Blalock are among favorite hot-rods who are expected to enter this Friday. Both drivers had distinguished themselves in the Idle Hour track in 1947, but the necessity for repairs on their racers prevented their appearance last week for the Inaugural.

Time trials start at 7:30 p.m., with heat racing set as soon as all cars have been qualified.

DASH WINNER—Richard Overfield of Lawson field breaks the finish-line tape after dashing off 100 yards in 10.2 seconds to take first place in the post track meet at Doughboy stadium last Wednesday. As winner, Overfield will represent Fort Benning in the Third Army track and field meet here next Tuesday and Wednesday.

Brthers Enrolled In Infantry School

Two brothers, Sgt. William J. and Cpl. John W. Taylor, members of the 279th Infantry regiment of the Oklahoma National Guard's 45th division, are among the students enrolled in the Infantry School's radio repair course No. 2.

Accomplished athletes, the Taylor brothers established an impressive record in baseball, basketball, softball and football in their hometown of Sapulpa, Okla., and since coming to Fort Benning have sparked the Student Training regiment softball and baseball teams.

Cronin Pitches No-Hit Contest

Airborne Blasts Medics For Fourth Straight

Duplicating the feats of two Infantry School detachment hurlers, Bob Cronin, Airborne battalion right-hander, chalked up a no-hitter for the parachutists Saturday afternoon when the 1947 post champs blasted out a 16-0 win over the Medics of the 3440th Army Service unit.

Cronin's hitless shutout was the second of the season in which the Medics have been victims. Last week, they were blanked 9-0 by the ISD's Bill Welton.

The fourth straight since its loss to the ISD at the outset of the post campaign, gave the champs of last year a firm hold on the circuit's No. 2 spot as they prepared to meet the loop-leading ISD nine for a showdown next Sunday afternoon.

In going the route for the Airborne, Cronin faced 29 Medic batters, giving up seven walks and striking out 10.

First-Inning Bombardment

The Airborne started its bombardment in the first inning by sending 13 hitters to the plate to pound out seven blows, good for nine runs. The seven-hit barrage included a triple by Center-fielder Ken Watts, and doubles by Second-baseman Bob Kinard and First-baseman Herbert Myatt.

Paul Lewish, working the mound for the losers, yielded two more runs in the second, and three more in the third. The final two parachutist tallies were chalked up in the top half of the sixth when Watts reached first on an error, stole second, and came home on a double by Len Carney. Going to third on a wild pitch, Carney trotted home when Myatt lifted one to the Medic left-fielder.

GALLAGHER SHINES

Spike Gallagher, parachutist receiver, had a perfect day at the plate, collecting three safeties in three appearances, and drove in two runs. Left-fielder Griffin, hitting three-for-four, was credited with batting in four runs.

A bit more conservative than the Airborne in base-running, the Medics left seven of the eight batters to reach first stranded on the paths. The Airborne aggregation also left seven runners on the sacks.

Lewish, who gave the 1947 champs all of their 14 safeties during the first five innings, went out at the start of the sixth in favor of Bob Lewis, who worked the final two stanzas without yielding any base knocks.

WINS MARATHON

BOSTON, April 19—(INS)—Gerard Cote, St. Huacinthe, Que., won his fourth Hopkinton-to-Boston marathon today after fighting off a strong challenge from Ted Vogel, Tufts college track star.

WITHIN THE LIMIT—S-Sgt. Sidney J. Kirk, range guard for Area No. 6 and caretaker of King's pond, check a string of crappie hooked by S-Sgt. G. W. Sheppard. Finding Sheppard's catch to be within the limit, Kirk permitted the angler to go home to a fish dinner.

Students Dump Trucker Team

Taking an early lead in a battle of extra-base hits, the Student Training regiment diamond delegation edged the 204th Transportation battalion Truckers 15 to 14 in a loop contest at Gowdy field Saturday afternoon.

Of the game's total of nine two-baggers, a triple, and a homerun, the victors were credited with five doubles and the three-bagger, while the 204th Truckers picked up four two-base hits and an inside-the-park homer.

During the melee, the Truckers used three pitchers with starter Dean Lucas being charged with the loss. Ernest Stewart opened the mound chores for the STR nine, and was scored with the triumph.

The STR went into the last half of the sixth on the trailing end of a 12 to 11 count, but chalked up four tallies in their stint at the plate to compile the advantage which proved to be the winning margin.

Lawson Yields Diamond Gamee To USA Squad

Making up for Tuesday night's loss to the Airborne battalion, the 3440th Army Service unit diamond nine bounced back on Thursday to swamp the cellar-dwelling Lawson field Flyers 16 to 4 at Gowdy field.

The defeat was the fourth straight for the Flyers, the only team in the post league without a win to its credit.

Hickory swingers of the 3440th managed to belt Flyer pitchers Dan English and Gordon Richards for runs in every inning except the fifth, and had their big fling in the sixth stanza when seven tallies came in.

The service unit scored three times in the first inning when Willie Banks slammed an inside-the-park home-run with teammates Bob Williams and Alfred Turney on board. Both runners had reached the bags on singles.

The 3440th chalked up three more in the second, and added two in the third before the Flyers nicked Pitcher David Waits for a tally.

With two out, Max Seirer lashed out a double for the Flyers, and came home when Ed Hamel got on by virtue of an error by the service unit squad's shortstop, Bob Williams.

Both teams underwent a scoreless fifth inning, but the Lawson nine added three more counters in its half of the sixth. However, the service unit lads put the contest on ice in their half of the inning by staging a seven-run

Turney, ASU right-fielder, had a perfect day at the plate, getting four-for-four to pace the 3440th timber wielders. Flyer batting was led by Seirer, who counted two safeties in three appearances.

Grinols Twirls One-Hit Victory

Hickory wielders of the Infantry School detachment's loop-leading Profs get behind the one-hit pitching of Hal Grinols in the last inning of a game with the 204th Transportation Truck battalion at Gowdy field last Wednesday evening, and smashed out a 9 to 0 triumph to run their string of victories to four straight.

Grinolds' single-blow mound performance kept him in step with the pace set by four other ISD twirlers, who have yielded an average of one bingle per game in the Profs' quartet of diamond tilts this season.

The contest also made the third straight shutout win for the ISD. The only tally hung up against the Profs in their 1948 campaign was scored by the defending post champion Airborne battalion in their first game of the season.

BROOKS HOMERS

The Profs also chalked up the first four-bagger of the 1948 post race—a line smash to the base of the flag pole in center field, 445 feet away from home plate, by big Bill Brooks, ISD left-gardener. Brooks' circuit wallop came in the top half of the seventh with two mates on board.

Going scoreless during the first three frames, the Profs nicked the trucker hurler, Rusty Harris, for two safeties, one in each of the first two periods.

However, the Profs came through in their half of the fourth with two tallies. Joe Smith who led off for the ISD nine, went to first when he was hit by a pitched ball. His theft of second put him in a position to score, and he trotted across the plate with the game's first tally when William Hojnacki lashed out a single. Hojnacki scored when Chick Shiver singled, and was safe at second on an error by Flash Wilson, trucker shortstop.

SHIVER GETS THREE

Pitcher Grinols made his contribution to the Profs' batting demonstration in the big seventh when he slammed out a triple to score Shiver, who had singled to start the inning, and touch off a seven-run rampage. The ISD mound star scored easily when the next batter, Center-fielder George Dickson, came through with a one-bagger.

Blondie Burnett singled and Woody Burt reached first on an error to set the stage for Brooks' circuit drive over the center-fielder's head.

Copping batting laurels for the ISD nine was Catcher Shiver, who collected three safeties out of his four trips to the batters' box.

The lone bingle for the 204th came in the bottom half of the fourth when Lucky Bryant, left-fielder, scratched a single off the pitcher's glove. He was retired attemping to steal second.

ENROLLED FOR TRAINING

Fifteen officers and 155 enlisted men are enrolled for training in class B-14A of the Airborne battalion's Company B, officials said this week. They are now ending their fourth week.

NEW CLASS BEGINS

The Airborne battalion's Company D began this week training a new class of students composed of members of Headquarters and Service company and 82nd Airborne division.

DISCUS CHAMP—Allen Scullen, discus thrower of the Student Training regiment, heaved the flat piece 115 feet, three inches to take top honors in that event in the post track and field meet in Doughboy stadium last Wednesday. Scullen, who also won the shot put contest, will be seen in the Third Army tourney here next Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday.

Medics Beaten By ASU Team

Striking out 10, and giving up five safeties, Lawrence Hall, 3440th Army Service unit mound ace, pitched an 8 to 1 triumph over the ASU Medics Sunday afternoon at Gowdy field.

The game, however, didn't take on a one-sided aspect until the bottom half of the sixth frame when the 3440th romped across the plate six times.

The Medics got their only counter in the opening half of the first inning when Shortstop Otto Loroesh reached the bag on an error by the ASU third-sacker, and scored when Paul Lewish slapped a single into right.

The 3440th surged into the lead in its half of the initial frame by chalking up two runs to gain the margin with which it went into the sixth stanza.

Bob Lewis started on the hill for the Medics, but was replaced with none out in the first after he had given up two runs to the ASU squad. Lewis was charged with the defeat.

Medics Win Upset Over STR Squad

Coming up from the lower rungs of the Fort Benning league ladder, the Medicos of the 3440th Army Service unit toppled the Student Training regiment from a second place tie with the Airborne battalion by walking away with a 13 to 6 tilt at Gowdy field last Wednesday night.

John Graves was both the pitching and hitting star for the Medics. He hurled six innings of hitless ball before giving up a single in the top half of the seventh, and collected four safeties, one of them a mighty three-bagger to right, in four appearances at the plate.

Although he was replaced on the mound in the STR half of the seventh, Graves was credited with the win. His replacement on the hill was Arthur Botjer, who allowed one bingle during his twirling fling.

Newman Hits Circuit

The Medics hung up a lone tally in the second inning when Hector Pachico led off by slamming a triple into right, and scored on a passed ball by STR Catcher William Church.

Medic bats began booming during the following stanza, and pounded out four runs, three of them the result of a screaming circuit drive to the center-field fence by Doc Newman, slugging second-sacker. The inning's first tally was scored by Graves, who opened the frame with a triple, and trotted across the platter on Bobby Broughton's long fly to center.

The students, who had undergone three scoreless periods, came to life in the home half of the fourth, and scored two runs. Both tallies, however, came as the result of walks and wild pitches.

Students Score Four

The Medics came through in the sixth with another scoring splurge, and counted five times on four safeties. Their final three runs came in the visiting half of the seventh.

Coming back in their half of the seventh, the STR aggregation scored four more runs, and got their only two safe blows of the ball game. George Maloney led off for the students with a single, and went to second when Medic Second-baseman Newman misfielder a grounder by Don Phillips. The other STR bingle was chalked up by Left-fielder Fred Davis.

GRADUATE SATURDAY

A total of 82 students graduated Saturday, April 10, from Airborne battalion's Company G it was announced this week. Of the total four were officers and 78 enlisted men.

Profs Tally 29 Times To Beat Lawson Flyers

In a lop-sided tilt called during the sixth inning Sunday afternoon, the undefeated Infantry School detachment Profs went all out in the hitting department, and romped over the Lawson field Flyers 29 to 1.

However, Lawson's run, scored in the bottom half of the fourth, snapped the ISD string of four straight whitewash triumphs.

Working on the mound for the ISD nine, right-hander John Wyatt gave up three safe blows, whiffed seven, and yeilded only one base on balls.

ISD scores were chalked up in each of the six frames, and the Prof score fest was climaxed with a 14-run sixth stanza, in which every player on the ISD roster had at least two turns at the plate.

Getting three runs in the first to start their barrage, the Profs scored four more in the top of the second, and added two in the third. Three more ISD runs came in during the fourth stanza as the result of a deep center-field four-bagger by William Hojnaki with Bill Brooks and Joe Smith on the bags.

Lawson's lone counter came when Jack Hunt worked Wyatt for a walk, stole second, and came home on a passed ball by Catcher John Seymour, Prof coach, who was working his first game of the season.

First-sacker Herb Lauve of the ISD touched off the sixth-inning bombardment of Flyer pitcher, Lew Button, by hanging up the first over-the-fence homerun of the 1948 season—a drive over the right center-field barrier. The fancy-fielding baseman also annexed hitting laurels for the contest by getting five for five.

Col. Moran Heads Local Bond Drive

Military Government Employes Urged To Spearhead Campaign

Fort Benning has joined the nation-wide United States Savings Bond campaign, "Security Loan", and is conducting a local drive between April 15 and June 30 under the chairmanship of Lt. Col. Wesley U. Moran.

LT. COL. CLAYTON M. ELA
. . . new exchange chief

The campaign has the dual purpose of strengthening national economic security savings plus relief from current inflationary pressure, officials said.

Government officials announced this week that members of the armed forces and civilian employes are being urged to spearhead the drive and set an example for their fellow citizens.

The purchase of Series-E bonds, through pay reservation or alloiment plan, is being stressed. Savings bonds in denominations from $7.50 to $750 may be purchased by cash from the cashier at the local finance office between 9 a.m. and 2 p.m. Mondays through Fridays or by the payroll savings plan.

Military personnel desiring to purchase savings bonds by payroll deductions may do so by contacting the first sergeant, company commander, personnel officer or unit or activity savings officer.

Civilian personnel desiring to purchase savings bonds by payroll savings must fill out Class A pay reservation applications which are being distributed to all activities.

No dollar quotas have been set for Fort Benning.

The following savings representatives have been designated for the activities indicated:

Ela Appointed Exchange Head

Replacing Lt. Col. Buford Strawn who will leave soon for assignment to Korea, Lt. Col. Clayton M. Ela has assumed duties as Infantry Center post exchange officer.

Arriving at Fort Benning in February of this year following his graduation from the advanced managers' class at Harvard university, Col. Ela was formerly department exchange officer in Alaska.

The new post exchange officer was recalled to active duty in September, 1940, or duty as Fort Williams, Maine, later transferring to Portsmouth Harbor, New Hampshire, where he served as post exchange officer.

He was an instructor in the army's post exchange school in Washington, D. C., until May, 1942, when he moved to Camp Edwards, Mass., as post exchange officer there.

In September, 1944, Colonel Ela was assigned to Alaska where he became the head of the department's exchange services. He returned to the states in June 1947.

Attacks By 325th RCT Repel Invading 'Enemy'

Fort Benning, with its key installations, was still in the hands of U. S. Army troops today after a coordinated attack by the 325th Regimental combat team had defeated an "agressor force"' moving toward the post along Moore road from the vicinity of Talbotton, Ga.

As a prelude to the joint Third Army — Ninth Air Force manouevers to be held in May and June, the 325th RCT moved into the field Monday for a week of problems, the first in which troops have been used involving the entire combat team. Command post exercises and small unit problems have been carried on for the past several weeks.

In the exercise just completed, the 325th moved from its bivouac area and began their attack at 10 a.m. Tuesday. The mission of the combat team was to advance north on Moore road and after making contact with the "enemy" to destroy aH of his forces in their zone of advance.

Agress roForce, the enemy, was concentrating in the vicinity of Talbotton Ga., Their troop movements had been observed moving southward along several routes from Talbotton. Contact with Agressor Force was made in the rough and heavily wooded area of Horseshoe trail and Moore road. From this point the U.S. Army troops forced their way northward against stiffening resistance. Agressor Force had gradually withdrawn and by Tuesday night the 325th RCT had fought its way to Reese pond. During the night plans for a coordinated attack by the U.S. troops were made and shortly after 6 a.m. Wednesday the efull weight of the combat team was thrown against prepared Agressor Force positions.

Critiques on all phases of the exercise were held Wednesday. The second problem of the weeks exercises was scduled to begin today.

Ordnance Unit Sets Record

The 32th Ordnance battalion, commanded by Maj. Edward J. Ormision, has set a new record in the repair of general purpose vehicles, officials said this week.

During the past 40 days, 199 major automotive repair jobs were completed by the completed by the combined battalion shops.

The 378th Ordnance Heavy Maintenance company under the command of Capt. William C. Durham, and the 516th Ordnance Medium Automotive Maintenance company, headed by 1st Lt. Robert L. Pyle, furnished the mechanics to set the new record.

Many other types of maintenance and repair are also carried out by the 326th including tank maintenance, canvas repair, small arms inspection and repair and instrument repair.

One Of Army's Original Troopers Local Topkick

One of the original group of 47 men who volunteered as test jumpers at Fort Bennin, in 1940 for the then comparatively unknown parachute infantry, 1st Sgt. Hobert B. Wade, Ninth company, Student Training regiment, will celebrate 20 years of outstanding service July 30.

The popular "topkick", who rose to the rank of major during the war, along with 47 enlisted men from the 29th Infantry opened the door on one of the most colorful chapters of the army when he volunteered as a test jumper. The group went through three months of rigorous training and as a result, the first U S. Army airborne unit was born at Fort Benning—the 501st Parachute Infantry battalion.

In September, 1941, following the completion of training here, the newly formed parachute battalion was sent to Panama where on his return to the states, Sergeant Wade attended Officer Candidate School at Fort Benning to be assigned later to the 505th Parachute Infantry regiment. He left the 505th in December, 1942, to join the 511st Infantry of the 11th Airborne division at Camp McCall, N. C.

As a captain he participated in the first airborne landing on Japanese soil, being among the 11th Airborne paratroopers who hit Nippon soil just three days before the treaty ending the war in the Pacific was signed. After two months occupation duty, he returned to the states in February, 1946, to be separated from the army. Discharged with the rank of major, Wade came back to Fort Benning again to reenlist in his former grade of first sergeant.

The Dalton, Ga., native entered the service at Chattanooga, Tenn., in July, 1929, coming to Fort Benning for assignment with Company F, 29th Infantry, a short while later. He served with Company L, 22nd Infantry at Fort Oglethorpe, Ga., before going overseas for a 26-month tour in the Philippines with Company A of the 31st Infantry. It was following his return from the Philippines and reassignment to the 29th Infantry that he volunteered for the first airborne test training group.

Sergeant Wade wears the Silver Star, Bronze Star, Air Medal, Asiatic-Pacific ribbon with three battle stars and arrowhead, American Defense and American theater ribbons and Occupation medal.

Brazilian Paraquedistas Say Estados Unidos Very Grand

BY WALTEE MURPHY

The arm of one of the Brazilian army members now taking airborne training here, 2nd Sgt. Silvio de Lima Bastos of the Brazilian Paraquedistas (Para troopers), shot up like that of an overly-zealous baseball umpire calling a runner out at first.

"We," he announced, "are much surprise. In Brazil we think the Estados Unidos is Hollywood and New York with pampas in between. But this is not so."

"No", put in 3rd Sgt. Luiz de Araujo Nunes, also of the Brazilian Paraquedistas, "It is not so. The Estados Unidos is very grand".

His hands described the width of the desk. "Much cities, much rivers. We are much fooled. The Estados Unidos is very grand, almost grand like Brazil".

"But cultivation," observed 2nd Sgt. Octavio de Barros Souza e Mello. "Everywhere is cultivation. Not like Brazil. In Brazil is jungle everywhere. Estados Unidos is cultivation."

"But we like it", 2nd Sgt. Paulo de Araujo Lima assured us. "Almost we have not yet arrived and we wish to return before we leave."

"Beg your pardon?", we interposed.

"We like it," he repeated. "The Estado Unidos, we come back one day. It is very good."

"What is it you like best about the United States?", we asked.

"Ahhh!", exclaimed Sergeant de Lima Bastos, his arms extending his arms in front of him. That, of course, the bowling".

"Yes, the bowling", agreed Sergeant de Araujo Lima. "We are not here one day and the cook from Company F, he brings us to the bowling. Now, everyday we go to the bowling"

"And he," volunteered Sergeant de Lima Bastos, pointing to Sergeant de Araujo Nunes; "is the champion Brazilian bowling of the Estados Unidos."

"The champion bowed his head and smiled. "In Brazil the bowling is not known

"Here we have much fun at the bowling. To the cook from Company F, we are very grateful."

"One hundred ninety-two he makes at the bowling," continued Sergeant de Lima Bastos. "Everytime he is the champion."

The atmosphere of the orderly room of Company G, Airborne battalion, was strained by a short silence. The champion blushed modestly.

"But most", he said, "we are come to the Estados Unidos for the business, not the bowling."

"Yes," confirmed Sergeant de Araujo Lima emphatically. "The business. The business is the jumping from the airplane. In Rio de Janeiro at the Nucleo de Formacao e Trainemento de Paraquedistas (Parachute school) we do not jump from the airplane."

"No", added Sergeant Spuza de Mello. "It rains".

"Yes", said Sergeant de Araujo Lima. "It rains very much. In rain you cannot make the jump. Some day, when it does not rain, we make the jump in Brazil."

"Yes", concluded Sergeant Spuza e Mello. "When it does not rain."

"Now that you are away from Brazil", we questioned, "what do you miss most?"

"Miss most?", asked Sergeant de Lima Bastos slowly. . . "Ha! The joke. Miss most? Ha! Most we miss the Miss, like you say. The Senorita. The fiancee. And he," the sergeant pointed across the desk to Sergeant Souza e Mello. "he has the wife".

"Yes," replied Sergeant de Araujo Lima, "the wife. . . and the nino."

"The nino?"

"The infant. The boy. One year." Sergeant de Araujo Lima described the height of a small boy, his hand two feet from the floor.

"What is the name?" we asked.

It was Sergeant Souza e Mello's turn to be shy. "the name", he said, "is Octavio de Barros Souza e Mello, Junior." He took a breath. "Paraquedista from 1966", he added, smiling.

"Yes," put in Sergeant de Lima Bastos. "Paraquedista from 1966," he laughed and raised his hand. "Viva Octavio de Barros Souza e Mello, Junior."

"Yes", said Sergeant de Araujo Lima, "and viva the cook from Company F."

TIS Course Attracts University Professor

Former military intelligence officer with the American, British and French forces, Capt. Peter J. Blumenthal, now an instructor of Romance languages at the University of Michigan, is presently on temporary active duty as a student in the airborne basic course at Fort Benning.

While overseas he was assigned for 18 months to the Office of Strategic Services, performing duties involving intelligence, counter - intelligence, investigations and other operational activities. In addition to these duties, he was attached to headquarters of the French Free Forces of the Interior, later shifting to headquarters of the First and Third armies.

A graduate of the University of Michigan, where he received his BA and MA degrees, Captain Blumenthal attended Officer Candidate School at Fort Benning, receiving his commission in June, 1943.

Assigned to the 65th Infantry division following his OCS graduation, he later attended a paramilitary course in preparation for assignment to a group of American and British forces as instructor. He also graduated from the British parachute school in February, 1944.

As a member of the OCS he was attached to the French section of British intelligence, attending all types of British intelligence courses and specializing in OSS techniques. During the invasion of France, he landed with the First Infantry division on Omaha beach and acted as liaison officer with the French underground forces during the time the American forces were liberating France.

Captain Blumenthal later became a training officer for foreign units recruited for specialized operations in unconquered territory.

Returning shortly after the close of the war, he was relieved from active duty in March, 1946, at Camp Chaffee, Arkansas.

Captain Blumenthal holds the ETO ribbon with four stars and bronze arrowhead and the combat Infantryman's badge.

will not be permitted to swim unless they are accompanied by an adult member of the family.

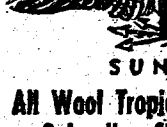
Col. Onto P. Bragan, special services officer, advised swimmers not to bring valuables to the pool since no facilities are provided for their safekeeping.

Swimmers using the pools must bring their own suits since rental suits are forbidden by army authorities.

FAWSAP Instruction

The opening of the season at Russ and Young's pools will come during the course of a two-week instruction period in first aid, water safety and accident prevention, slated to begin Monday at Russ pool.

To be taught by John Carpenter, certified instructor working out of the Southeastern American Red Cross area office in Atlanta, the course is being sponsored jointly by the special services office and the local office of the Red Cross.



Approximately 35 experienced swimmers, selected at the rate of one per company level unit on the post, will attend the classes. The instruction, it was pointed out, is not for the purpose of teaching swimming, but for qualifying experienced watermen for jobs as life guards and instructors.

Airborne Team Is Commended

Putting on the demonstration for the 817th Engineer Aviation battalion stationed at the California base, the airborne team speedily loaded and unloaded basic engineering equipment, using a C-82 Packet for demonstration purposes.

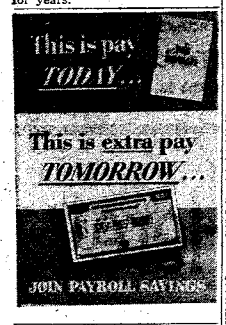
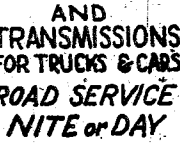
Members of the demonstration team were M-Sgt. William F. Odom, T-Sgt. Raymond A. Ashe; S-Sgts. Harold R. Dick, John W. Gray, William J. Miller, and Sgts. Jack W. Lovan and Lynn L. Mortimore.



The township's miser stomped into the local doctor's office, pounded the floor with his cane and wheezed, "You're a danged old fraud! I came to you in 1904 for a cold and you charged me three dollars."

"I cured you, didn't I?" asked the doctor.



"Cured me, he says," stormed the former patient. "Cured me! That's rich, that is. Look at me! I'm sneezing again."

Famous last words: She: "I don't think I look thirty, do you, dear?"

He: "No, darling, you haven't for years."

TO THE MEMORY OF A DOG—This granite shaft, located in the rear of the Infantry School, was erected in 1923 to the memory of Calculator, a crippled dog, who won his way into the hearts of Fort Benning troops. Poisoning caused his death.

Monument Perpetuates Memory of 'Calculator'

Now a legend with a granite shaft to perpetuate his memory, Calculator, the multi-colored mongrel dog, left more mourners after his untimely death in 1923 than many well-loved human beings. Certainly he was more widely known than most of the military personnel who passed through Fort Benning.

His name was knows, his traits affectionately discussed, wherever U. S. soldiers gathered — posts, camps, stations, scattered all over the face of the earth.

No one knows when Calculator was born. It is presumed that he was born in Georgia, perhaps on Fort Benning's vast grounds. Nor, is his first appearance remembered. He became an important figure when he began to be missed from his many tours of duty with the units training here.

Calculator's heart was much too large to embrace just one soldier, one outfit as master of his affections. He extended his adoration to the entire command, and spent his brief stay at Fort Benning in an nomadic existence that urged his restless crippled body from house to house, barrack to barrack, unit to unit, and from the fort to the city and back again—following his khaki clad masters.

Calculator was a game dog with a game leg — hence his name—for he could "put down three and carry one" faster than any master mathematician. He was said to be smarter than many humans, in that he would not accept too much hospitality from any one person — he refused to impose upon his friends. Even his transportation to and from Columbus was divided. Sometimes he hopped aboard the morning train, or, he would accomodate the bus driver who shouted for "one more and we'll go."

For his return trip to the post, Calculator stationed himself in a comfortable spot before the Ralston hotel where officers and enlisted men would check on their way to the post for the sole purpose of seeing if "his majesty" was waiting to "bum" a ride home.

When, on August 29, 1923, news of Calculator's death was made known, both the personnel of Fort Benning and the citizens of Columbus were incensed with grief and rage, for the beloved pooch was poisened murdered.

The post publication, at that time The Infantry School News, stated, "There is no one of us who has not felt indignent at the guilty vandal who would feed strychnine to a harraless dumb animal."

The News then sponsored the erection of the present memorial shaft to "stand as a testimonial to the love and affection with which the Infantry School regards dear old Calc — and as a pointing finger of warning to those inhuman morons who threw all the dictates of love and affection to the winds and killed one of the best friends man has, the dog — a real pal."

The requested 25-cent contributions poured in by boat and rail from officers and enlisted men of both the regular army and the National Guard, who had formerly served at Fort Benning. When the donations of the post had been included in the grand total, it was found that almost 1,000 quarters had been contributed.

The granite shaft with the bronze plaque inscription stands in the rear of the Infantry School building, facing the Officers' club — a monument to a crippled, mongrel dog and the warm hearts of the American soldier.
