The Device Branch of the Training Aids Section is responsible for the new projector. Adapting two viewgraph projects to function as a unit, personnel of the branch have achieved a fluid presentation of slides illustrating infantry tactics with an illusion of motion.

One projector throws a basic transparency on a screen. A second projector, loaded with a negative transparency, superimposes marching troops, directional arrows and military symbols on the picture, keyed to the instructional narrative.

With the use of a roller, the second projector can provide a continuing overprinted text, descriptive of the basic picture.

Still another effect is accomplished by use of a black and white transparency on the first projector and a matching color transparency on the other. Dimmer controls fade out the black and white and tone in the color.

Using issue equipment and parts made on the post, the cost of the valuable projector was $90 for two dimers and $32 for two iris diaphragms.

The new technique of producing slides provides a great saving in man - hours and material. Its greatest advantage, however, is the speed with which the Training Aids Section can produce the many two by two - inch, 35-mm color slides used by instructional departments of The School.

Although the slides depict tanks, planes, missiles, Infantrymen, parachutists, equipment and terrain, the basic pictures for the slides are taken in an area no larger than an executive desk.

Under a suspended camera, an illustrator assembles a picture as a typesetter sets up a page to be printed.

The cutouts are made of cardboard, plastics or ceramics, painted with water colors or tempera. For most slides, the cutouts are photographed on an opaque surface. To get a three dimensional effect, a sheet of glass forms the foundation.

Speed in production is accomplished by use of the cutouts, for they are returned to stock, ready for reuse.

A further economy is in the adaptibility of the cutouts. A plane on a landing strip becomes a plane in flight by covering the still propeller with a disk that gives the impression of rotating blades. A target in one picture becomes a direct hit in the next by the addition of the symbol of an explosion.

The whole process is simplified by a dual compartment stall designed and built by the illustrators and photographers. Nicknamed the "guillotine," the stall accommodates two teams setting up and photographing pictures with camera as suspended above each compartment. Paralleling the "guillotine" is a rack for the letters and cutouts, within easy reach of each illustrator.

Under the direction of the Editorial and Pictorial Office of The Infantry School, the Training Aids Section was activated in April, 1960, using machinery, equipment and personnel previously assigned to various instructional departments.

Bringing with them the skills and techniques of experts, the illustrators, photographers, draftsmen, carpenters and model makers concentrate in one session a fuction heretofore spread throughout the school.

Lt. Col. Gerald F. Fifield, chief of the Training Aide Section, defines a training aid as 'anything that assists a man in learning a job." This may be anything from a blackboard and chalk to an electronic device, he added.

Not to be confused with an R and U (repair and utilities) outfit, nor to be expected to preclude chart and carpentry activities of individual departments of The School, the Training Aide Section prepares art work and devices of a technical nature.

In addition to providing training aids, Col. Fifield is prepared to act in an advisory capacity to instructors. From a brief description or a rough sketch, he and his men can develop a device, slide, viewgraph or other training aid that will fill the need of the instructor.

Invention

Mechanic's Job Eased By 'Dolly'

The 1st Armored Rifle Battalion, 58th Infantry, 1st Infantry Brigade, is constantly looking for new ideas to cope with its heavy maintenance requirements.

A maintenance dolly invented by 2nd Lt. James R. Daniels and Sgt. Larry P. Woody was recently adopted by the battalion for use by its units.

The dolly, made of surplus and salvage parts, can be pulled by vehicle or man and it reduces the need of drivers constantly going to the mechanics for tools.

The dolly is loaded with tools, on racks, to supplment the tools which a driver normally carries. Besides tools it carries a 100-pound grease gun, paint for spot painting, anti-freeze and oil.

Sergeant Major (E-9) Thomas A. Mingey, recently assigned to the Infantry Board as the unit sergeant major, first entered the Army in 1943 and took basic training at Camp Wolters, Tex.

After basic, he participated in both the Ardennes and the Central European campaigns of World War II with the 5th Infantry Division, with which he served until the end of the war.

At the outbreak of the Korean conflict, Sgt. Mingey was assigned to Fort Dix. In July, 1950, he was re-assigned to Company C, 5th Regimental Combat Team first as platoon sergeant and later as first sergeant. He participated in the UN Fall Offensive of 1950, the first UN Counter-Offensive and the UN Summer Offensive of 1951, with that unit.

In September, 1953, he returned to Fort Dix, and was later selected for an assignment to the military academy at West Point as non-commissioned officer in charge of ranges.

In May 1958, Sgt. Mingey was assigned to the 25th Infantry Division in Hawaii where he served as first sergeant of Company B, 1st Battle Group, 27th Infantry. He was promoted to master sergeant (E-8) later the same year, and promoted to his present rank in June, 1960.

Among his decorations and awards Sgt. Mingey holds the Combat Infantryman's Badge (2nd Award), the Bronze Star, and the Purple Heart with two clusters.

BOOKS in REVIEW

MEET ME TONIGHT by Martha Albrand. (Random House, 1960)

The first person Sarolta saw in Brussels, where she had come to meet her husband, was Farkas, the man responsible for the imprisonment and death of many of her family and friends in Hungary. It soon became evident to her that both Farkas and her husband were involved with the leader of the Hungarian underground, for reasons which drew Sarolta into a life-and-death struggle to save herself and those she loved.

Florida Fair Visitors See Rangers In Action

Visitors to the Central Florida Fair will be given an opportunity to see Fort Benning's Rangers in action at Orlando through tomorrow.

The team, headed by Major Christopher M. Gooch, Jr., departed last Saturday. The Rangers are hosted by the Air Force at the Orlando Air Base during the Florida stay.

They are making their appearance as guests of the Fair Committee to "tell the Ranger story" through a series of some 12 demonstrations, radio and TV appearances and speaking engagements.

A highlight of the trip, Major Gooch said, was an appearance on the daily TV program "Orbit" Monday on Orlando's Station WLOF-TV.

In cooperation with city officials, the Rangers "stormed" the station and appeared in full battle dress behind 1st Lt. John W. Foss, who explained the Rangers' presence and outlined their training objectives.

The TV appearance, several speaking engagements, and the Fair demonstrations were arranged by Msgt. J. C. Meachum of the Army Recruiting Service.

The local team is making afternoon and evening appearances during the Fair, and is demonstrating two phases of the training received by Ranger students at Fort Benning.

A "rappelling tower", a replica of the one used here was constructed by the Fair Committee. It is used to show methods by which Rangers traverse the roughest mountain terrain by use of ropes. Spectators learn how the evacuation of wounded and the transportation of battle supplies are accomplished through Ranger mountain-climbing know-how.

Ranger personnel also exhibit skills of hand-to-hand combat, including defense against an armed or unarmed enemy, and the use of the Ranger knife and bayonet.

Main Officers' Open Mess Supper Club Annex To Open Wednesday

The Supper Club of the Main Officers' Mess will open March 8, Lt. Col. Daniel W. Rachal, Mess secretary, has announced.

Built from Mess income, the ultramodern white structure of reinforced concrete and brick is joined to the main mess by a glassed-in corridor. It will be the scene of organizational functions and will operate as a supper club with music and entertainment six nights a week.

Dean Hudson's Orchestra will appear in an opening week engagement March 8 through 14.

The spacious ballroom of the new building may be divided by aluminum panels into as many as five sections. The room will accommodate 500 persons served banquet style and 336 at individual tables.

The diamond - shaped, acoustical ceiling features lighting fixtures shaded with the color of the combat arms. An outer corridor circling the building facilities privacy and efficient service for paneled areas.

The complete kitchen equipment includes a "radar" oven which can cook steaks in 1½ minutes. Guests may select their meat or fish from a freezer display case which fronts on the outer corridor.

Bath houses for men and women and a beauty shop will be in the supper club basement.

Harris, Armstrong of St. Louis, Mo., were the architects and engineers for the supper club.

Glenn Cunningham, former Olympic track star and the greatest American miler of our time was in Albany, Ga. yesterday, officially opening the 1961 Easter Seal campaign in Southwest Georgia.

Seriously burned when he was 8 years old, Cunningham was told that he would never walk again. By remarkable perserverance, he not only walked, but ran to establish new world records in the 1930's, and to become an Olympic champion.

His record for the mile held for a decade and today, other records that Cunningham made still hold.

Holder of a B.S. degree from the University of Kansas (where he was voted top honor man, class of 1934), Cunningham also has an M.A. degree from the University of Iowa and a Ph.D. from New York University. Dr. Cunningham has a national reputation in the field of physical education.

Yesterday morning, Cunningham spoke at the kick-off breakfast in the New Albany Hotel. Southwest Georgia Easter Seal volunteer leaders attended.

Cunningham arrived in Atlanta February 28th on behalf of the 1961 Easter Seal Campaign. He has made a series of personal appearances on television and radio.

Winning Awards is Habit For Young James Tilton

James T. Tilton, son of Sfc. and Mrs. Keith Tilton, has been selected winner of the Student-Teacher Achievement Recognition program at Baker High School in Columbus.

The STAR awards, sponsored by the Georgia Chamber of Commerce and local chamber, are based on the combined scores made on the literary and mathematics sections of the college board examinations taken by all seniors who plan to enter college.

Tilton choose as his STAR teacher Miss Katrina Yielding, instructor in government and history. The program recognizes outstanding student scholastic achievement and honors the teacher selected by each school's winner as the one who has contributed the most to his educational background.

Seventeen-year-old Tilton has attended Baker since February 1957, when his father was assigned to Lawson Army Aviation Command. Sgt. Tilton served 13 months in Korea in 1959-1960 while his family remained in Columbus. He is again stationed with the unit.

Young Tilton ranks first in his class, is a National Merit Scholarship finalist and achieved the highest score on the National Merit test of any student in Muscogee County. An outstanding debater, he is a member of the Baker debate team which will participate in the Berkeley Forum Invitational Debates at Emory University this month.

DATING BACK

The Army National Guard is in one sense older than the United States itself. Some of its present day units trace their histories to colonial militia units formed more than 300 years ago.

Last month he was named "Boy of the Year" by the Columbus Optimist Club. He has served as president of the Baker Student Council, Key Club and the Junior Class and a member of the varsity football, basketball and track teams, Teen-age Grand Jury, Latin Club, "B" Club, Thespian Society and the school annual business staff. He also was the school's "Voice of Democracy" winner.

In the annual voting, Tilton was named "Best All-Around," "Most Representative Boy" and "Boy Most Likely to Succeed."

Infantry School Report

To most people at Fort Benning the name "Ranger Department" means the tough and realistic training in mountain and jungle operation which is given to those officers and NCO's who have volunteered for the Ranger Course.

This is only a half truth. The Ranger Department actually has a threefold mission. Equally as important as training the Ranger student is the mission of conducting resident instruction in infantry tactics and troop leading of small units up to and including the rifle platoon.

All newly commissioned second lieutenants of the Infantry receive their platoon tactical training from the Ranger Department. This resident instruction is presented to approximately 5,000 students annually.

The majority of these students have had little formal military instruction and are enrolled in either the Infantry Officer Orientation Course or the Officer Candidate Course. Ranger Department presents all the tactical instruction which a newly commissioned officer must have if he is to be effective when he receives his first command.

To accomplish this task of transforming men into qualified platoon leaders, the Ranger Department is organized into four resident committees, the Attack Committee, Defense Committee, Patrolling Committee, and the Combat Conditioning Committee. Each of these committees consists of approximately 15 officers who are experts in their particular type of tactical operation and are fully conversant in all tactical operations of the rifle squad and rifle platoon level.

Almost all instruction is conducted in the field, with emphasis placed on practical work by the student under the close supervision of an instructor. Through this device, the student is able to exercise his initiative and solve many of the tactical problems which will confront him as a platoon leader.

Through the media of critique, the students learn not only where they have made errors but also a correct way to accomplish the mission, be it a problem in offensive tactics, defensive tactics or in patrolling.

The third mission of the Ranger Department is to conduct resident instruction in physical training, bayonet and hand to hand combat. This instruction

Change Due On Safety Inspections

Effective March 15 a change in the safety inspection of privately owned motor vehicles will be implemented on post.

For vehicles already registered, a safety inspection will be required 30 days before the expiration date of the registrant's auto insurance policy.

Charge for the inspection will be 50 cents. If the vehicle does not meet the required standards of safety, there will be no charge for re-inspection if the vehicle is returned within 10 days of the initial rejection.

Hours of operation for the Vehicle Inspection Station will be from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Mondays through Fridays and 8 to 12 a.m. on Saturdays.

Inspection of privately owned vehicles of personnel stationed at the Ranger Camp near Eglin Air Force Base, Fla., and at the Ranger Camp at Dahlonega, will be conducted as specified by the respective camp commander.

First Place in Members Is Aim of AUSA Drive

The Columbus-Phenix City-Fort Benning Chapter, Association of the United States Army, will conduct its annual membership drive starting today and continuing to April 10.

The third largest among the national association's 122 chapters, the local group has set membership campaign sights on becoming AUSA's leading chapter in point of members, according to chapter president William J. Schloth of Columbus.

Already acknowledged by the national association to be among the most progressive and influential of all chapters, the local group has been noted for its swift and powerful support of AUSA action in matters of National Defense and of the Army and its personnel.

The drive is to be a tri-pronged effort by the chapter's three member groups, The Infantry Center, the 2nd Infantry Division and civilian community groups, to further strengthen chapter ranks.

The 16-man chapter Membership Committee, which will spark the drive, is headed by Ernest W. Higgins.

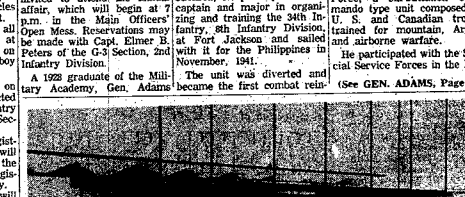
GEN. ADAMS

Gen. Adams Will Speak At USMA Annual Dinner

Lt. Gen. Paul D. Adams, commanding general of Third Army, will be the speaker at the U. S. Military Academy Founders' Day dinner here March 17.

Graduates and former cadets of the Military Academy are invited to attend the annual affair, which will begin at 7 p.m. in the Main Officers' Open Mess. Reservations may be made with Capt. Elmer B. Peters of the G-3 Section, 2nd Infantry Division.

A 1928 graduate of the Military Academy, Gen. Adams assumed command of Third Army last October. He is a native of Heflin, Ala.



Preceding World War II Gen. Adams served successively at Fort Benning, Panama Canal Zone, Presidio of San Francisco, the Philippines and Fort Jackson. He participated as a captain and major in organizing and training the 34th Infantry, 8th Infantry Division, at Fort Jackson and sailed with it for the Philippines in November, 1941.

The unit was diverted and became the first combat reinforcements landed in Hawaii following the attack on Pearl Harbor.

As a lieutenant colonel, Gen. Adams went to Fort William H. Harrison, Mont., in August, 1942, from Hawaii to help train the First Special Service Force, a six-battalion commando type unit composed of U. S. and Canadian troops trained for mountain, Arctic and airborne warfare.

He participated with the Special Service Forces in the Kis-is presented to approximately 6,000 students annually.

In addition, the Ranger Department has Army wide responsibility for the development of the new Physical Combat Proficiency Test which will eventually replace both the Physical fitness and the Physical Achievement Tests.

The Ranger Department, which is best known for its Ranger Course, also takes justifiable pride in the accomplishment of its mission of conducting realistic instruction in Infantry Tactics to the newly commissioned officers who have chosen to become Infantry leaders.

ka Operations in the Aleutian Islands and the Naples-Foggia Campaign in Italy.

In January, 1944, then-Col. Adams assumed command of the 142rd Infantry, 36th Division, leading the regiment for a year in Anzio, Rome-Arno, Southern France and Ardennes-Alsace Campaigns.

He became assistant commander of the 45th Division in January, 1945, and was promoted to brigadier general three months later. With the 45th Division, he served in the Rhineland and Central Germany Campaigns.

At the close of World War II, Gen. Adams reverted to the rank of colonel and was a student at the National War College in 1946-1947. He then served on the staff and faculty of the Command and General Staff College for three years, heading the Department of Operations and Training for the latter two.

When the Army War College was reorganized in 1950, he was G-3 officer of the initial faculty.

In November, 1951, Gen. Adams was again promoted to brigadier general and went to Korea as assistant commander of the 24th Division.

He next commanded the division in Japan, then returned to Korea in January, 1952, as chief of staff of X Corps. During that summer he commanded the 25th Infantry Division in combat.

After briefly resuming his duties as X Corps chief of staff, Gen. Adams was chief of staff of Eighth Army from August, 1952, to May, 1953.

Returning to the U. S., Gen. Adams commanded the 101st Airborne Division at Camp Breckinridge for five months before serving two years in successive assignments in the Department of the Army as deputy G-3, acting G-3 and G-3.

In August, 1955, Gen. Adams was named commanding general of XVIII Airborne Corps and Fort Bragg.

He reported to U. S. Army Europe in July, 1957, as commanding general of the Northern Area Command. A year later, Gen. Adams was named commander of American Land Forces, Specified Command, Middle East, heading all Army and Marine Corps Forces ashore in Lebanon.

From October, 1958, to March, 1959, he was deputy commanding general of Seventh Army and commander of Seventh Army Support Command. In April, 1959, Gen. Adams received his third star and assumed command of V Corps in Europe.

Among his decorations are the Distinguished Service Medal with Oak Leaf Cluster, Silver Star, Legion of Merit with Oak Leaf Cluster, Bronze Star Medal with three Oak Leaf Clusters, French Croix de Guerre with Gold Star, Republic of Korea Distinguished Military Service Medal and Colombian Order de Boyaca.

AUSA Drive

The Infantry Center's campaign will be directed by Major Gen. Hugh P. Harris and conducted by Col. William A. McKee, Infantry Center G-3 and chapter secretary - treasurer.

Col. McKee said the drive was to be based upon the point that member potential in the local civil-military community was far greater than that indicated by the present membership which is 2,107.

"Although we'd gain certain prestige as AUSA's largest chapter," Col. McKee said, "our actual objective is to gain that added strength which is represented by that comparatively huge potential."

Chapter recognition of problem areas, basic needs and a continuing struggle to gain rightful recognition of the Army by the public and its positive action in those directions have won high approval of post personel, both military and civilian, according to the chapter secretary.

The progress of bills before Congress which have been designed to adjust those laws affecting retired pay are being closely followed.

All Infantry Center members of the chapter have been alerted to the plan to bring the campaign to all major commands.

Membership applications may be procured at Room 316, Building 35, or through telephone contact with that office at 5-3444.

DISCUSS ASSIGNMENT . . . Brig. Gen. R. H. Tucker, III, (L) chief of the Infantry Officer Directorate, Office of the Deputy Chief of Staff for Personnel, Department of the Army, talks with Capt. Robert P. Morris about his coming assignment as an ROTC Instructor. Career class officers graduating May 25 received their assignments during Gen. Tucker's visit last week. Although the entire week of May 13-21 is observed as Armed Forces Week by presidential proclamation, Armed Forces Day is celebrated annually on the third Saturday in May and this year falls on May 20.

Officer Candidate Cleans Course

PROVOST MARSHAL GENERAL . . . Major Gen. Ralph J. Butchers (C), provost marshal general of the Army, visits with Col. Harry W. Gorman (L), provost marshal of Third Army, and Lt. Col. James E. Farmer, Infantry Center provost marshal, during his recent official visit to the post. It was Gen. Butcher's first visit here since assuming his present duties last December. (Sig Lab Photo by Sgt. Whitten)

A husky six-foot Officer Candidate of the 50th Company, 5th Student Battalion, The Student Brigade, stepped up to a Browning Automatic Rifle 200 yards from the target line on Fiske Range recently, eased himself into a prone position and cracked to a buddy: "I'm going to max this course."

Then Officer Candidate Philip A. Brown proceeded to do exactly that. Each of his forty rounds for record sank into the bull's eye, giving him a perfect score of 200.

Candidate Brown's feat has not been matched by an Infantry School student in the past five years, according to his instructors.

Captain Charles McGaha, chief of the Red Team, Small Arms Committee, labeled Brown's performance "an outstanding achievement."

This was the first time the blonde, crew-cut Officer Candidate had fired the BAR for record. His only previous contacts with the weapon were back in 1953 when he fired it for familiarization at Fort Jackson, and again last year when he fired the familiarization course at Fort Leonard Wood.

Candidate Brown said later that much of the credit for his remarkable score belongs to the expert instruction he received from the Small Arms Committee personnel who handled the BAR phase of instruction.

"The instruction given by the committee was really outstanding," the 24-year-old soldier said. "This was evident from the overall company scores and from my own." Virtually every member of the company succeeded in attaining at least a qualifying score of 120, and many fired well above that figure.

The Browning Automatic Rifle record course consists of a total of forty rounds fired from ranges of 290 and 300 yards. The first five rounds from each range are fired without time limit. The last fifteen rounds from both ranges must be placed within forty seconds, at the same time changing the cartridge magazine three times.

BLIND FLIGHT

On September 24, 1929, Lt. James H. Doolittle made the first all - blind flight at Mitchell Field, N. Y., with a completely covered cockpit (but accompanied by a check pilot). He took off, flew a short distance, and landed.

In Opening Post Matches

Gen. Surles Defines Shooting Improvements as 'No Accident'

The high level of marksmanship in today's Army isn't the result of any accident, Brig. Gen. A. D. Surles Jr., deputy commanding general of The Infantry Center, said at exercises opening The Infantry Center's 1961 Rifle and Pistol Championships Tuesday.

Speaking before automatic rifle, service rifle and pistol teams of major commands gathered on McAndrew Range, Gen. Surles congratulated all participants and their unit commanders for the high level of support offered the Army's marksmanship program.

"This continued support, better ammunition, better weapons and better coaching methods have all combined to lift competitive scores year after year," Gen. Surles said.

The deputy commanding general then indicated that though many marksmen would be selected to represent the Post in Third Army competition, there would be others who would return to their units to try again next year.

"I sincerely hope that all of you, whether you are selected or not, will retain high interest in this program," he added. Gen. Surles closed by reminding the competitors and spectators that the whole idea of the competitive marksmanship program was to advance overall levels of Army marksmanship capabilities and offered his best wishes for "good shooting, good weather and good luck" during the competition.

The matches continue through today and will determine individual and team champions for 1961.

According to Lt. Col. Burton C. Boatright, match executive officer, the event constitutes the first major competition within the Army's annual competitive program.

Following the matches, selections will be made for makeup of Infantry Center teams to shoot in the Third Army matches opening at Benning April 3. In turn, he said, the Third Army will use its championship competition from which to select representatives to carry its colors in the Army matches at The Infantry Center in June.

Two-Way Tie Ends Soldier Of Month Try

A two-way tie for first place in Soldier of the Month competition at the 428th Medical Battalion recently ended with Privates Donald S. Girton, Headquarters Detachment and Richard G. Painter, 696th Medical Company, being awarded duplicate watches, as awards.

Pvt. Girton, a native of Bellevue, Kentucky, has a Bachelor of Science degree from Purdue University, Lafayette, Indiana, with a major in Forestry. Presently he is assigned to the Wild Life Management Section as a wild life aid.

Pvt. Painter, from Chicago, Illinois, is a graduate of Saint Bedi Academy, Peru, Ill. After finishing the Basic Medical Technician Course at Fort Sam Houston, Texas, he was assigned to the 696th Medical Company as an ambulance driver and aid man.

Certificate Cites Col. Freudendorf

Col. Chester M. Freudendorf, deputy director of The Infantry School's Weapons Department, has been awarded a Continental Army Command Certificate of Achievement for outstanding performance of duty as director of the Small Arms Firing School at the 1960 National Rifle and Pistol Matches, Camp Perry, Ohio.

Cuban Rebel Doctrine Published

The current Army Magazine features the first in a three-part series on how the Cuban Rebels won control. The book, "La Guerra de Guerrillas," by Ernesto (Che) Guevara, Castro's top field commander during the revolution and now Minister of industries and a driving force behind Communism in Cuba, is reportedly flooding Latin America, and has been called by Army a "must" for every American soldier.

Pentagon Asks for 55,000 More Men

The Army has prepared a plan in response to a decision by the administration to increase conventional U. S. forces, which would add 55,000 men and up to three new divisions to the Army. A related proposal would increase the Marine Corps from 175,000 to the approved strength of 200,000.

Association of the U. S. Army Drive

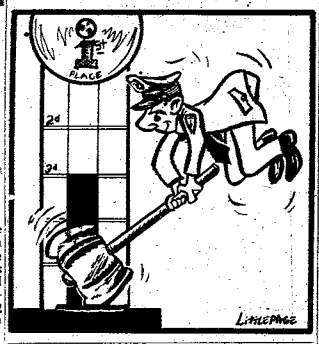
Because of the vital importance of this post and number of Regular Army officers and enlisted men serving here, the local chapter of the Association of the U. S. Army has set its sights on nothing short of first place in membership. All personnel of the post will be approached to join if they are not now members, and are reminded that the association is the strongest pro-Army organization in existence, dedicated to the welfare of the Army.

West Point Applications Sought

The Army is encouraging applications from enlisted men for admission to the U.S. Military Academy. Deadline for 1961 applications is June 30. Personnel officers have information on procedures, and the local West Point Society will furnish information through Col. (Ret.) Claude M. Howard, head of the Admissions Committee — who may be reached at MU 9-8805.

Chemical Readiness Being Pushed

Together with the Navy and Air Force, Army officials are working on delivery systems for Chemical warfare weapons. This may be a real shot in the arm for a readiness program which has been largely shelved for lack of funds and interest recently.



Aircraft Called Main Soviet Project

In a recent briefing before the House Armed Services Committee by Major Gen. John M. Willems, assistant Army chief of staff, Gen. Willems indicated the Soviets now placed their principle reliance on long - range aircraft as an intercontinental striking force, rather than on missiles. The remark was made in an opening statement during a meeting called to investigate any possible "Missile Gap" between the U. S. and Russia.

Large Helicopter Order Placed by Army

An order for over 25 million dollars worth of helicopters from the Vertol Division of Boeing Airplane Company has been announced in Washington. Troop carrying "Chinook" aircraft, which can carry three tons of cargo or 33 soldiers 100 miles at a cruising speed of 130 knots are involved in the order.

The Judge Says . . .

(Editor's Note: This is the sixth in a series of articles to be presented in this column concerning Federal Income Tax.)

Many taxpayers do not understand the proper method of reporting income from rental property. Basically, the amount of rent minus depreciation and other rental expenses is reported in Schedule G, Form 1040.

Depreciation allowance must first be computed in Schedule I. The most common method of computing depreciation is by the straight line method, whereby the cost of the house is recovered in equal installments over its expected life.

The rate of depreciation is determined by dividing 100 per cent by the number of years of expected useful life which the house has at the time it is put on the rental market. The useful life is generally 25 to 50 years, depending on the age and condition of the house. Thus, the rate of straight line depreciation is usually two per cent to four per cent.

DEPRECIATION

The cost of a rental house for depreciation purposes is the purchase price plus closing costs and subsequent improvements to the property. From this must be subtracted salvage value (about 10 per cent of the cost) and cost of the lot on which the house is built (land cannot be depreciated). This cost divided by the rate gives the yearly depreciation.

A house which is on the rental market is subject to depreciation regardless of whether it is occupied by tenants. If the house was first offered for rent after January, 1958, only a proportionate part of the yearly depreciation may be claimed.

A taxpayer who rents out his home must use a different method of computing his cost for depreciation purposes if the house has declined in value between the date of purchase and the date it is offered on the rental market. Those in this category should consult the Legal Assistance Office for further advice.

RENTAL EXPENSES

In addition to depreciation certain other rental expenses are deductible in Schedule G. Simple repairs are fully deductible, but renovations or substantial additions must be added to the cost of the home and recovered by depreciation.

Insurance and taxes on rental property are deductible, together with agent's commissions, advertising costs and any other expenses directly connected with rental of the house.

The Ability to Laugh Is a Precious Asset

(AFPS) The services do everything possible to keep their people fit and healthy wherever they are. The food is nourishing, the quarters are clean and comfortable, the medical and dental care is modern and thorough, the recreational and athletic facilities are of the best. Does it follow, then, that each member of the service is in the pink of condition?

It doesn't—not if you include a healthy personality in your estimate of a man. His outlook on life, as much as his physical condition, can determine his state of mind. If he's morose, apathetic, secretive, quick to resentment, there's a good chance that he needs something other than vitamins or tonics.

But one of the most powerful of all tonics that might fix him up isn't bottled and doesn't cost a cent. It's the ability to laugh, to find in every day something worth chortling over and worth passing on to others. It may be a joke, it may be that inimitable comic strip "Peanuts," it may be something that happened to you or somebody you know on the way to work. The important thing is to see and appreciate the humor of it.

You can't do this for long and remain a victim of what the Germans call Weltschmerz—pessimism which in its extreme chronic state becomes melancholia, long recognized by doctors as a very real illness. A man may feel that the state of the world today, the uncertainties of tomorrow, his own personal dilemmas, all justify a dim view and rule laughter out of his daily life. But did any man have more cause for brooding than Abraham Lincoln?

Said Lincoln: "With the fearful strain that is on me night and day, if I did not laugh I should die."

An American Tragedy; Vets and the Red Cross

(Editor's Note: The following guest editorial by Harold Anthony Gregory is reproduced from the October, 1960, National Amvet newsletter as a service in the interests both military readers and the Red Cross)

There is a generation of Red Cross defamers in existence in the U. S. whose hard core center is the returned World War II overseas veteran.

Not all of them mind you, but enough of them in each community to cost the American Red Cross perhaps hundreds of thousands of dollars annually in withheld contributions.

For regardless of the millions that the Red Cross has given on behalf of the people to disaster victims and for emergency needs, regardless of the homes it has built and repaired and people it has brought together, lives it has saved, the returned veteran remembers only, with branded, dyed-in-the-mind anger, the fact that he had to pay for Red Cross coffee and doughnuts while overseas.

The real tragedy here is not that it isn't true that the Red Cross sold coffee and doughnuts overseas, but that the veteran does not know that the Red Cross was forced, against its wishes, by the then War Department to require American soldiers to pay for meals and lodging.

A copy of the War Department letter asking the Red Cross to make the charges was posted on many overseas Red Cross club bulletin boards, but I haven't found a veteran yet who said he had read it.

President Eisenhower, when he was Chief of Staff, issued the following statement to the press on April 10, 1946:

"During the current Red Cross fund campaign vast numbers of patriotic Americans have responded generously to the cause. Already the majority of chapters have reached or exceeded their local goals. In some communities, however, I understand the campaign is lagging, and I am surprised to learn that one of the reasons given is that complaints are being levelled at the organization's overseas operation by returning servicemen. For the most part these criticisms have grown out of a Red Cross policy of making nominal charges to our forces for food and lodgings in fixed Red Cross installations abroad. These complaints are distressing to me since this particular Red Cross policy was adopted at the request of the Army, so as to insure an equitable distribution among all service personnel of Red Cross resources."

Hospital Stages Mock Disaster

BY IDA C. EVANS

The routine at Martin Army Hospital underwent a rapid change recently as officials tested a plan to handle mass casualties in case of a disaster.

It all started when the paging system flashed an "all call." In a matter of moments, a large waiting room was converted into a Sorting Station. The hospital was ready to receive simulated casualties of a "mock" disaster.

The realistic "dry run" will provide material for a critique of the hospital's disaster plan. Based upon the results of the rehearsal, a large scale test will be staged in the early fall. The more elaborate test will involve not only the ability but the capacity of the hospital to handle disaster victims, officials said.

To prepare the waiting room for the preliminary test, chairs were hastily removed, litter supports were placed in rows and sorting teams assembled.

A large sign reading "Sorting Station" was placed at the entrance. Other signs read "Immediate Treatment," "Walking Wounded" and Minimal Treatment."

Litter bearers stood ready by the door. Outside, traffic was cleared from the area. Military policemen were on duty to direct ambulances. Guards stood at each hospital entrance and elevator to control movement in the building.

The hospital was alerted when a telephone call reported a fictitious crash of two troop carriers at Lawson Army Aviation Command.

The test plan provided for "on the scene" emergency treatment by the 3rd Field Hospital of the 428th Medical Battalion.

Actually, the time allotted for emergency treatment was used to conduct a dramatic "make-up" job to make 50 robust members of the battalion look like crash victims.

Regular stage make - up kits and moulages (plastic moulds) under skilful fingers produced a variety of typical injuries with such realism that accurate "diagnosis" was possible.

The make - up was applied by personnel trained in a mass casualty course at Fort Sam Houston. The technique is used to lend realism and effectiveness to disaster rehearsals.

After the presumed emergency treatment on the scene of the crash each casualty was tagged to designate the type of injury.

Among the litter "patients" unloaded at the hospital were men with simulated burns and fractured jaws, an "amputee" and one made up to appear to have a metal splinter of the plane imbedded in his cheek.

There were walking "wounded" made up to depict facial burns broken arms, cuts and abrasions. Some, wearing no make-up, had instructions to simulate shock cases.

Keeping literally to the spirit of authenticity in the rehearsal, some of the men playing the part of patients demonstrated the psychological effects of a plane crash.

On duty in the Sorting Station were four Tylage (sorting) teams, comprised of a doctor, a clerk and a medical specialist. The teams checked each patient and directed him to the proper treatment station.

The hospital chaplain, Capt. Lincoln H. Barr, mingled with the patients. In a true emergency, he said, there would be Catholic, Protestant and Jewish chaplains on hand to comfort and advise the casualties.

Col. David G. Elmer, chief of the hospital's Department of Surgery, was in charge of the Sorting Station.

News and Views

Things are really cooking from the many - splendored plans of many resolved women. To mention a few choice recipes, there's: bowling, Basil Rathbone, and beef stroganoff. The beef stroganoff goes something like this: round steak, garlic, onions, chicken consomme, fresh mush - rooms, and sour cream. Sounds good, doesn't it ?'ll you'd like to know exactly how to make it, it's in book by Mrs. Gabriel Ivan. That recipe, by the way, was donated by Mrs. A. T. Stafford, program chairman of the Woman's Club. Speaking of Mrs. Stafford, she cooked up an appearance on Rozelle's TV show this past Tuesday morning with "Bunnie" Guinn, secretary of the Womans Club. Their subject: Basil Rathbone, of course.

The recipe for Basil Rathbone has been: reading, writing, and elbow grease. If you don't think it's work just selling tickets, ask Mary Ann Woodyard, Jan Rose, Liz Bliss, Mary Ann Kalina, or any of the Women who have so kindly volunteered their time to sit at Theatre 1 at show time.

Many of the soldiers have taken a new interest in Basil since our fair ladies have been confronting them with tickets and talk. They've been bowling them over.

Naturally, now that I'm speaking of bowling, the recipe for success in this absorbing sport has been "a race to the last!" says Mrs Herman Crawford, chairman of the Woman's Club Bowling Clinic.

Trophies were presented at a luncheon recently to honor their winners. First place team winners were: Marian Blakely, Lucille Bowe, Kay Stoffel, Iris Atkinson, and Betty Junko, called the "Cellarettes." (This name developed from the fateful fact that their names originally fell at the bottom of the list).

Theme of decoration at their festive luncheon at the Custer Terrace Officer's Club? Why, big, black bowling balls, of course . . . with real yellow "pinnies" blossoming from the fingerholds!

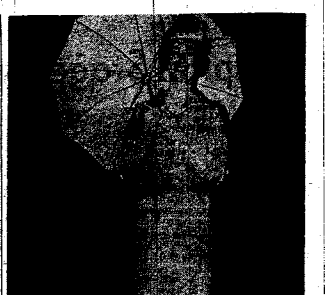
Jewel Johnson on Etiquette

DEAR JENNI: Should a woman shake hands when she is introduced to someone? I always feel awkward doing so and am afraid my hand will be left dangling, yet I need something to bridge the pause after our names have been repeated. What do you do?



NOT HANDY

DEAR NOT HANDY: Shaking hands is coming back into vogue for women after having more or less disappeared from the American scene. It is now considered quite proper for a woman to extend her hand in greeting to a man or woman on being introduced or on saying goodbye. The only time it's improper to shake hands is when you must reach awkwardly across others to do so.

A younger woman may wait for an older woman to extend her hand in greeting first, but she never waits for a man to extend his hand, no matter what his age or rank. Her femininity holds precedence here.

Of course you can't always shake hands. Armed with a glass, purse, gloves, and perhaps a cigarette, it would be embarrassing and impossible to accept an extended hand. I'm sure you would not extend your hand to one so encumbered.

You will have to take each introduction as a separate situation and decide at the moment whether a hand shake is feasible. I personally, try to shake hands whenever possible with other women. It adds a cordiality and sincerity to the meeting. However I rarely extend my hand to men, unless we meet over a business transaction. This last is simply my personal preference.

SGT. FOSTER FANS HIMSELF
With 70 Bonds, Almost All For $100

70 of Them

Sgt. Foster's Bonds Promise Easy Life

"A bond a month" has long been the plan of MSgt Howard F. Foster and someday when he retires to Florida he'll cash in on his foresight.

The 70 U.S. Savings Bonds he's accumulated would be an inspiring, material sight if spread out before the soldiers he counsels at the Personal Affairs Branch of The Infantry Center's Adjutant General Section. All but a few are in denominations of $100. To other soldiers he recommends the Army Savings Bond Program, which will be emphasized during a drive on post this spring.

There is nothing flashy, or, as Sgt. Foster admits, unusual, about possessing so many bonds. Many military and civilian personnel are taking advantage of the Army's payroll deduction plan for buying savings bonds and countless others buy "across the counter," he said.

To Sgt. Foster and his wife, the bonds mean a comfortable retirement in Florida sometime in the future. He has already served 20 years in the Army and came here last month from Okinawa.

Though the sergeant could cash in all 70 bonds at once, he plans to cash only one a month to supplement his Army retirement pay. This is in line with his systematic purchasing of one bond a month since June, 1950. Others were bought before that time.

He bought them "across the counter" but also recommends the Army's withholding pay plans for buying Series E Savings bonds. The soldier or civilian employee simply signs an allotment authorizing the Army to deduct from his pay for this purpose, a minimum of $6.25 a month amounts, in three months, to a $25-value bond.

"If the soldier doesn't readily cash the bond in, additional monthly payments will push him toward $50, then $100 bonds. But the advantage is that he may cash in 60 days after purchase," Sgt. Foster said.

"As for me," he added, "an advantage is not only that they pay three and three-quarters per cent interest, but are exempt from state and county taxes, can be cashed in at any bank without carrying charge, and can be easily replaced in case of fire, theft or loss."

Although the Army Savings Bond Program continues the year-round at Benning, a drive in the spring emphasizes to soldiers this form of saving. This year's drive begins in April.

The Surgeon Says

Educational Help Given By Nurses

By Major Lillian D. Stiggins

The Army Health Nursing Program at Fort Benning has been an active part of the overall Preventive Medicine Services since 1956.

The aim of this particular type of nursing service is to promote health, prevent disease and reduce illness through a health education service to the military community and to individual family members. The Army Health Nursing Program is to the military community what the Public Health Nursing Agency is to the civilian community.

It is designed to help solve health problems which arise within families of the military population. Although the service is primarily preventive in nature, direct nursing supervision and nursing care may be rendered to any case by a doctor's special referral and order.

Two Army Health Nurses and two civilian nurses are assigned to this program and work under the direction of the Chief of Preventive Medicine. The office is in the same building with other Preventive Medicine Activities, third floor of the old hospital, Building 396. The services are accomplished through home visits, clinics and classroom instruction.

The home visiting service is primarily to mothers and their babies. At least one visit is made to the first-time mother after she is discharged from the hospital and other follow up visits are made as indicated by the health needs in the home.

Premature infants are closely followed in the home for several months or longer. The nurse discusses infant growth and development, diet and feeding schedules and emphasizes the importance of early immunization against contagious diseases.

When there is a need or request, the nurse may give a demonstration bath and help the mother prepare a formula. More than 200 home visits are made monthly under this program. Other home visits are made in cases of certain communicable diseases, pediatric cases, and various medical cases upon referral of a doctor.

Health education services are offered in the classroom, the clinics and on the wards. All expectant mothers are invited to attend a series of prenatal classes which are held periodically in the classroom on the first floor of the old hospital.

These classes are taught by a doctor and an Army Health Nurse. They offer an excellent opportunity for the expectant mother to learn more about the reproductive system, growth and development of the unborn baby, hygiene and diet, the naturalness of childbirth and what to expect of the newborn baby. First-time mothers and fathers are particularly encouraged to attend a series of these classes.

NCO Academy Initiates New Evaluation Program

By NCO Academy PIO

A new student evaluation program has been incorporated into the Noncommissioned Officer Academy's "New Frontiers" instructional theme.

Under the program recently adopted, students rate their classmates twice while attending the academy. The ratings are made at squad level, and require the student to rate every member of his squad, excluding himself, with ratings being rendered at the end of the second week of instruction, and again during the fourth week.

In addition to the ratings which are rendered by students, the Tactical Noncommissioned Officer now has a definite voice in assessing a student's overall development. The Tactical Noncommissioned Officer renders ratings on all members of his platoon, and

Linguist, Traveler Marks Debut In Div's 'At War With The Army'

BY 9TH INF. PIO

An accomplished linguist and traveler, Private Paul DeWinter of the 9th Infantry will make his Fort Benning stage debut in March in Service Club Number Two's production of "At War with the Army."

Assigned to the 9th Infantry's Company E as an acting corporal and assistant platoon sergeant, DeWinter has spent all of his eight months in the 2nd Infantry Division. He took his basic training with the 2nd Engineer Battalion and his advanced Infantry instruction with the 9th Infantry.

A native of Antwerp, Belgium, the 21-year-old DeWinter speaks and writes four languages fluently. These include Flemish, English, French and Spanish. He also has a good knowledge of Italian and Portuguese.

Still a Belgian citizen, DeWinter expects to receive his United States citizenship by naturalization in September. He officially entered this country on an immigration quota from his native Belgium in 1956. However, DeWinter first entered the United States as a high school student in 1952. He was so impressed with America and her people that he decided to make his home in the U.S.

Lived Underground

Although living under the rule of Nazi Germany from 1940 to 1944, DeWinter was too young to remember very much concerning the occupation of Belgium during World War II. He does recall the terrific and terrible explosions in Antwerp caused by German V-1 and V-2 rocket attacks late in the war. He remembers living underground between the attacks.

DeWinter and his family departed war - torn Belgium in 1948 for Venezuela, where his father works now as a contractor. DeWinter attended high school on a student visa in Worchester, Massachusetts. He graduated with a bachelor's degree from Assumption College in Worchester in 1960, just prior to entering the Army.

Europe

DeWinter's travels have taken him all over western Europe. He returned to Europe in 1958 and spent two summers months traveling. His travels also have taken him over much of Canada, Mexico, South America and the eastern United States. He hopes to visit the Middle East and Africa on his next trip.

Being essentially a French-American college, Assumption offered DeWinter a chance to act in many French plays. He holds membership in Delta Psi Omega, National honorary dramatic fraternity. He also sang in the college glee club and appeared in William Shakespeare's "The Taming of the Shrew" and "Othello."

DeWinter will portray the role of Corporal Clark in "At War with the Army" which will be staged at Service Club Two March 19, 25, and 27.

He currently has his application in for Officer Candidate School and hopes to enter the OCS program in April with the next class. The jovial, but serithese ratings, like those rendered by the students, involve a numerical standing and a brief description as to why an individual merits rating above or below average.

The new program was adopted in order that a student's overall development and military aptitude could be assessed as early as the second week of instruction by both his fellow students and the Tactical Non commissioned Officer.

The net result of the new student evaluation program is another step in the academy's effort to improve its program of instruction to insure better overall development of the 2nd Infantry Division noncommissioned officer.

Prior to the incorporating of the new student evaluation program, students were rated once during their attendance at the Academy. This rating was made during the fourth week of instruction and each student was required to rate every member of his platoon. This meant that each student had to rate approximately thirty individuals ranking them in order of merit from one to 30. The system had definite drawbacks, the primary one being the difficulty of rating 30 platoon members individually, after having been associated with them for only 24 days or less.

Two Skunks

Aromatic Pair Appear, Smell Up Malone Range

By 38th Arty PIO

An inspecting officer might come across some interesting things in the course of a day's duties. At least that proved so recently when an officer was making a training inspection of Headquarters and Headquarters, Battery, 5th Howitzer Battalion, 38th Artillery.

He discovered there were skunks in the area.

In addition to supervising the training, it became essential that an officer instructor check a certain foxhole on Malone Trainfire Range because it possessed two skunks instead of one trainee who was supposed to be firing the course.

No one at first wanted to do anything about the situation for a good reason. But when the inspecting officer became interested, immediate and definite action was taken. Sergeant First Class David L. Wait and Sergeant Virgil E. Hauschild, based on their prior experiences as woodsmen and soldiers, attacked the problem with force, wisdom and speed.

After a preliminary study, the two noncommissioned officers made a snake snare and with great care and judgment, snared Marcia (who had already been named) and evicted her from the foxhole. However, Sam, the other skunk, had too small a head over which a snare could be placed.

But no one had the desire to go into the foxhole to throw him out. Although he was not vicious, he possessed great potential as a fighter.

A conclusion was reached that if a tree limb was left in the foxhole, Sam, could climb out during the night to try to locate Marcia. A ladder-like tree was carefully placed in the foxhole to enable Sam to leave.

When the battery arrived the following day, Sam was missing but the aroma lingered on. SFC Wait and Sgt Hauschild, in addition to receiving plaudits of their fellow soldiers, made happy all individuals concerned, especially the officer in charge of training.

Otherwise, Headquarters and Headquarters Battery, 38th Artillery, had their first successful experience on the trainfire range.

CIVIL WORKS

Some of the great civil works achievements of the Army Engineers are the Panama Canal, the Alaska Highway, Washington D.C. Public Works and the St. Lawrence River Improvement.

'Chute Packing Proves Exacting for Trainee

By 23rd Inf. PIO

To most people a "streamer" is something that is thrown at a New Years Eve party but to Recruit Ralph E. Massmer, currently undergoing training with Combat Support Company, a "streamer" is a thing to be avoided at all cost.

Before entering the service Rct. Massmer was a civilian parachute packer employed at Graham Air Force Base in Marianna, Florida. Incidentally a "streamer" in packers lingo is a chute that does not open. It should be mentioned that Rct. Massmer has never been responsible for a "streamer". He has known of three pilots that have used his chutes in emergencies and in all cases they functioned perfectly.

He says that it takes about an hour and fifteen minutes to pack the complex Air Force chute. The actual packing, he explains, is the least of his worries.

There is a mass of other equipment such as an altimeter which automatically opens the parachute at 150 feet, the seat belt which of course holds the pilot in his seat, and the explosive charge which blows the pilot free of the aircraft.

Rct. Massmer, admits quite freely that it was not unusual for a pilot to refuse to wear a chute that he had packed but he says it was due mostly to superstition and it didn't bother him one bit.

Now that Rct. Massmer is in the Army he says that he will have to "think about it a while" before deciding whether or not to put himself on the other end of the deal and volunteer for airborne training.

Academy Enters Training Course For Army Cooks

By Academy PIO

The 2nd Infantry Division Noncommissioned Officer Academy has enlisted a new field of instruction — training cooks! Officially called Cook's Helper Orientation Course, this course is designed to orient selected personnel, without previous experience, in the duties, functions, and responsibilities of the Army Cook. The course is of two weeks duration with the majority of instruction being on-the-job training.

The course was established to assist division units in training mess personnel to fill the existing shortages in that field. The first class of ten men began their training on March 6. Other classes will be scheduled as the need arises.

Eight hours of formal instruction are included in the program.

Meeting Creates Odd Bridge Hand

87th Infantry ladies bridge group dealt the following unusual hand. How would you bid knowing: that east and west are vulnerable, north and south have no score; and it is the next to last hand of the evening? Comments are by Mrs. Daisy D. Krellick director of Fort Benning Tuesday evening duplicate sessions. Daisy holds 365 master points in duplicate and is the ranking duplicate player in the Columbus Ft. Benning area.

Opening Lead — ♣6

South is too weak to open the bidding as dealer. West has 10 points in high cards and chooses to pre-empt. Although west has 13 points with distribution she must deduct one for lack of an ace. 6 of the points are in the long spade suit putting it in the pre-empt category. With one hand left to play west is anxious to keep the opponents scoreless. She can afford to go down two tricks and her hundred honors will make the penalty even softer. West sees seven sure tricks. North passes. East bids 4 clubs. Playing in clubs she has 17 points including distribution and the self - sustaining club suit. She cannot raise spades and lacks the 19 points for jump shift to game in her own suit. She knows her partner has less than 11 high card points. South bids 4 hearts. South has 12 points in high cards with two for singleton ace. "Sacrifice bidding" is souths plan as she goes on the defense too.

West rebids spades, knowing east has some high cards by her response, North sees no way to stop 4 spades by west and all the rubber bonus that goes with it except to raise her partners sacrifice to 5 hearts. Three passes follow. Neither west nor east can venture a double.

The lead is club 6. If east leads clubs it should be the 9. Taken with east's ace, east would lead back the king if the dummy had a second club to follow suit and west would play the 6, playing high low and showing she is out of clubs. Leading 6 then 9 indicates she has more clubs. A far better lead altogether is the king of spades since it is not necessary to lead east's suit in this case. South set up a nice cross trump of spades in her hand and clubs to the dummy, but she could not make the jack or ten good with east holding a fist full. There's no place to stuff the two little diamonds, thus going down one. This cost them 50 points. A very worthwhile forfeit compared to the 900 points for west and partner as the hand plays nicely at 4 spades. An Evening of bridge at the home of Mrs. Roy Sims yielded the above hand. High score was Mrs. James Lindsey and second high Mrs. George Thom. Both winners were guests of the 87th.

7th Cav Moves To Honor New Officer-Fathers

By 7th Cav PIO

Officers of the 7th. Cavalry have taken steps to recognize that "unsung hero" — the new father.

A trophy, inscribed "Fatherhood Award" presented in compassionate recognition of fathers' contribution to parenthood," has been designed, and is passed on to each new father among the officers' ranks.

Designed by Captain Samuel H. Epps, adjutant, the revolving award depicts a male figure with arms raised in victory, a stove with its head sadly lowered, denoting the acceptance of the father's secondary role in the household, a small child and the "Garry Owen" crest. Engraved plates indicate the new father's name and date of the "great event."

Signal Unit Improves Mess Hall Atmosphere

BY 122ND SIGNAL PIO

The ultimate in "Do It Yourself" projects was recently completed in Company B, 122nd Signal Battalion the complete renovation of the unit dining room.

Inspired by the imagination of Private First Class Herbert Davidson, a volunteer group worked during off-duty hours in accomplishing a remarkable transformation of dining room facilities. The highlight of the renovation was provided by two existing hand painted murals, used as a split partition to separate the dining room from the kitchen and serving area.

The entire dining room has been paneled with sized strips of white pine, finished to provide a bright, cheerful atmosphere throughout the dining area. Also included in the renovation project was the addition of new light fixtures, drapes, and the installation of a colorful, vinyl plastic tile floor.

Not content to "rest on its laurels," Company B is now preparing to tackle its next project, the complete renovation of the kitchen facilities.

2nd Division Gymnasium Offers Many Facilities for Conditioning

SIGN HERE . . . Sergeant Aldon Lutimer, NCOIC of the division gym, signs out a pair of sneakers to Private Ampshul Ramsey of the 23rd Infantry.

By Div PIO

The 2nd Infantry Division Special Services has afforded the men of the "Indianhead Division" many recreational facilities to be used during their off duty time. One of the best equipped and least used of these facilities is the 2nd Division Gymnasium.

Located in building 3402, behind Theatre Number 6, on Bourg Street, the division gym may be used by officers and enlisted men from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m., Monday through Friday, and from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m., on Saturday and Sunday.

The noncommissioned officer in charge of the gym, Sergeant Aldon Luttmer, is available to issue gym shoes to any man desiring them.

Besides an official size basketball court, which is often used for volleyball as well, the gymnasium offers equipment which may be used for individual physical conditioning.

Among the equipment available is the rowing machine, the leg conditioning bicycle, the parallel bars, the heavy and speed punching bags, floor mats for wrestling and judo, a complete set of lifting weights, and volleyballs, basketballs and medicine balls. Boxing gloves are also available.

On request, the entire gym may be used by a single unit or team for the purpose of practicing or training.

MP Association Holds International Golf Event

The Military Police Association International Golf event is now under way on post. Deadline for the tournament is set for April 6, when all official score cards must be turned in to the post Military Police Corps.

Masters Golf Tournament defending champion Arnold Palmer will pit his first round score against any score turned in by players in the charity handicap.

The Callaway System of figuring handicaps, which is a deduction of the worst holes as compared to the score, will be in effect in the men's division. Ladies entering the tournament may either use their own handicap with an additional seven strokes or else conform to the Callaway System.

Any round played on a U.S. Golf Association recognized golf course by a participant in the tournament may be turned in as their official round. The 18 holes may be played at any time prior to April 6.

Tickets and score cards can be purchased at any time from the post tournament co-ordinator, Lt. Robert E. Noonan. He may be contacted by calling 5-2312.

Additional places and individuals who will be selling the tickets will be announced at a later date.

Seventy five per cent of each dollar collected by the Military Police will go to worthwhile charities in the local area.

Swimmers Needed By YAC Team

Five classes of swimmers in girls and boys divisions are needed by the Youth Activities Club Swimming Team, according to Pfc George Watkins, team coach.

Boys and girls are needed for the eight-year-old and under, 9 and 10, 11 and 12, 13 and 14 and 15-year-old and over classes.

Many of the classes must be filled immediately since a meet has been scheduled for March 18 in Atlanta. If 15 members can equal or better the winning times in the Fort Benning Invitational Swimming Championships held February 25, the team will make the trip.

Any dependent on post who wishes to become a member of the YAC Swimming Team is asked to report to the coach at Briant Wells Field house at 4 p.m. today.

TSB Cops Cage Championship

The Student Brigade, champions of the Major Unit asketball League, will represent the post in the Third Army Basketball Tournament at Fort Gordon March 13-17.

The Student Brigade closed out regular league action last week by banding former season leader The Infantry Center Troop Command an 87-51 defeat at Briant Wells Field House.

Troop Command, who led the league for most of the season, gave way to The Student Brigade quintet in the closing weeks and dropped to third place behind the 1st Battle Group, 29th Infantry, 1st Infantry Brigade.

The 29th managed to scrape together a 14-3 record, good enough for second place in the listings while the Troop Command eagers, after remaining undefeated for eight straight contests, closed out league action with a third place 10-7 league worksheet.

The top three teams were the only quints to manage a percentage over .500 for the season. Fourth place was taken by the 428th Medical Battalion with a 9-10 slate to round out the top four teams in the loop.

The 1st Armored Rifle Battalion, 58th Infantry, 1st Infantry Brigade; 2nd Howitzer Battalion, 10th Artillery, 1st Infantry Brigade; and the 151st Engineer Battalion rounded out the seven-team league.

Final standings and percentages of the teams are:

TEAM	W	L	Pc
Student Brigade	16	1	.941
29th Infantry	14	3	.824
Troop Command	10	7	.588
428th Medics	9	10	.474

Soccer Club

Five Games Scheduled For Season

Five games have been scheduled for the Fort Benning Soccer Club, according to The Infantry Center sports officials.

The busy season will start tomorrow, when the Doughboy booters go to Redstone Arsenal in Alabama for an afternoon contest.

The post club hosts the Fort Bragg Soccer Team at Doughboy Stadium March 18. Game time is 2 p.m.

On March 25, Benning's soccer squad goes to Louisiana to face the tough New Orleans Soccer Club, a civilian team.

The team goes to Auburn, Ala., April 1 in a return engagement with the Auburn Soccer Club. In the first meeting between the clubs played at Doughboy Stadium February 11, the pair battled to a 4-4 deadlock.

Benning and Auburn will meet in a rubber match April 8 slated for Doughboy Stadium at 2 p.m.

The starting lineup for the Fort Benning Soccer Team was announced by Pfc Bela N. Toth, captain of the 1961 Doughboy booters.

The squad will play tomorrow at Redstone Arsenal, Ala., against a group of German Air Force enlisted men who are enrolled at the arsenal as students.

Of the 11 - man Fort Benning starting squad, only two are native Americans, Sp5 Roland Muse who is the right fullback, and Pfc William Delfyett left fullback.

The Fort Benning Doughboy Soccer Team has no coach but the players have organized themselves and a three - day a week routine to get in top shape for the schedule which has been arranged so far.

BIG BASS . . . Three lunker bass from Harp's Pond are held by Sgt. Roy Andrews, of the 1st Armored Rifle Battalion, 58th Infantry, 1st Infantry Brigade, which he caught in a 45-minute period. The big ones weighed six, seven and eight and three-quarter pounds. The big fellow on the right gave Andrews a 20-minute battle before he was netted.

Two Post Players Nominated For Volleyball Team

Two members of the Fort Benning Volleyball Team, which won the Third Army laurels at Fort McClellan last week, have been nominated to try out for the Department of the Army team.

Sfc Ralph W. Dunahoo and Sp5 Daniel Dangulian were named following the Third Army Tournament.

Should the pair make the All-Army team, they will participate in interservice volleyball competition at a site and date yet to be selected.

Today's Sportrait

Today's Sportrait features Officer Candidate Howard K. Prickett of the 50th Company, 5th Student Battalion. The Student Brigade, who worked as a professional sports car driver in 1956.

Assigned to the 4th Infantry Division in Germany at the time, the youthful soldier obtained special permission from his superiors and signed on as a member of the team of crack drivers sponsored by the famed Porsche automobile company.

OC Prickett drove in 13 road races in the next seven months, piloting a sleek black Porsche RS Spider to victory in two events.

How does it feel to slide behind the wheel of a $20,000 racer and compete against some of the best drivers in Europe? "I was just plain scared the first time," the genial young OC Prickett came to feel more at home in the long road grinds.

SP4 PRICKETT

The first time out, he recalls, he finished an unimpressive 22nd in a field of 35. By his sixth start however, the rugged young speedster had notched himself a win.

In tuning up for a competition, OC Prickett and his partner would drive hundreds of miles over closed courses, coming to know every bump and bend.

OC Prickett's racing career was cut short when he was transferred to another part of Germany.

The 25 year old officer candidate has pretty well closed the book on his professional driving. "Racing was something I always wanted to do, and just had to try," he smiles. "I enjoyed it but I wouldn't want to do it for a living."

"Keep your line wet if you want to catch fish," "Keep your hook in the water if you want to eat tonight," and all those other rules followed by the successful angler make a lot of sense when you think about it.

Of course, indication is made that, to catch fish, you have to keep at it — hit-and-miss fishing usually rules out success.

To clear up the whole thing, you're referred to the picture elsewhere in this edition which shows one Fort Benning angler who holds proof of the value of the keep-at-it technique.

Twenty-odd pounds of beautiful bass — three fish of six, seven, and eight and three-quarter pounds—were hatched all over Harp's Pond by SSgt Roy Andrews of the 58th Infantry's 1st Armored Rifle Battalion. The pic tells who won.

Roy reported that he used spinning gear and bait minnows which he fished very shallow. The big fellows were enticed out from under snags by Roy who just happened to fail to say where in Harp's those snags were — a lapse of memory peculiar to most of us anglers.

Now — all three were taken within 45 minutes one recent Sunday morning and with six pound test monfilament. Twenty of those minutes were spent in trying to land the big fellow. Roy kept maneuvering him toward a net held by fishing buddy Sgt. John Hardin but each time the lunker would dive. This trick caused both men to hold their breaths in fear of hidden snags but the battle closed when Hardin finally netted him.

Roy makes the usual claim that the "big one got away"—but he showed no disappointment. How could anybody be disappointed when he has had 45 minutes like those must have been?

The 58th's personnel sergeant major is a strong advocate of the rules listed above. As he puts it: "Keep at it — and you're bound to be there, sooner or later, when they decide to hit."

I'd like to be able to take his advice but I'll be tied up with the annual marksmanship program which has opened and which will run to late June.

As for hunting — Msgt George Davis, Wild Life Aide NCOIC has asked me to remind you of the Spring Gobbler Season which opens March 20. Gobblers only — and the word is that your gobbler is out there but you'll have to go get him . . . so now's the time to start practicing your turkey calling.

Movies Shown Here On Atlanta Raceway

Films of the 1960 Atlanta 500 race are being shown here and briefings are being given on the Atlanta International Raceway, which has earned the title of the "World's Fastest Track."

The films are being shown at Service Clubs and in the Red Cross recreation hall and the wards at Martin Army Hospital.

Raceway public relations manager, John E. Reeves, is giving the briefings. He said the competition for this year's Atlanta 500, slated for March 26, will be much keener and Fort Benning personnel will have a special chance to see it.

Tickets, exclusively for post personnel may be obtained from The Infantry Center Special Service Section. Plans are also under way to provide special transportation for military personnel who are planning to attend the 1961 Atlanta 500 race.

"Fireball" Roberts, one of the nation's leading stock car drivers, openly claimed he's not letting anyone win the race but himself.

Joe Weatherly, who is still at the Daytona (Fla.) Raceway, expressed his views by saying he has no objections to anyone placing second, but he has already mapped his strategy to take top laurels.

In the meantime, 1960 winner, Bobby Johns, said he'll be back to defend his title against some of the top drivers in the National Association of Stock Car Auto Racing (NASCAR) circuit.

Patterson-Johansson Match Draws Top Price at Ringside

When ringside fans pay $100 for the Ingemar Johansson - Floyd Patterson return bout March 13 at the Miami Beach Convention Hall, it will be the first time in history that two fighters have been matched three times for that price tag.

A similar peak price prevailed for the first and second Johansson - Patterson fights. The Swede scored a thrilling third-round upset at the Yankee Stadium in 1959, and in 1960, Floyd regained the crown in the Polo Grounds.

Local fans, of course, will see the rubber match larger than life via closed-circuit TV at Columbus' Municipal Auditorium for a fraction of the ringside cost.

Since the turn of the century, only the second Joe Louis-Billy Conn fight on June 19, 1946, also at Yankee Stadium, raked a $100 top in this country prior to the Johansson - Patterson goes. The Louis-Conn bout drew an attendance of 45,266 and grossed $1,025,564.

James J. Corbett figured in two other $100 bouts back in the Gay Nineties', although only the first row demanded that price in each case. When Gentleman Jim fought a 61-round draw with Peter Jackson at San Francisco's California Athetic Club in 1891, the price of all seats beyond the first row was one year's club membership dues of $66.50

Actually, the greatest ringside price on record was 25 guineas paid at the Ted (Kid) Lewis-Georges Carpentier bout in London in 1922. At the rate of exchange then current, that was nearly $125.

Post Team Named Net Champions

Fort Benning won the Third Army Volleball Championships for the third straight year last week, defeating the Fort Bragg team in two straight games, 15-10 and 15-1.

The tourney was played at Fort McClellan.

The post entry in the championships advanced to the finals and won the title, remaining undefeated throughout the competition.

Generals Set Example

Polio Shots Urged For Those Over 40

The post's commanding general recently rolled up his sleeve and took the first shot in a post-wide drive to encourage military personnel over 40 years of age to get polio immunization.

Major Gen. Hugh P. Harris took his polio shot in a temporary "clinic" set up in the office of the chief of staff.

Following Gen. Harris were Brig. Gen. L. A. Walsh Jr., assistant commandant of The Infantry School; Col. Bryan C. T. Fenton, commander of Martin Army Hospital, and other key personnel of The Infantry Center and School.

Lt. Gen. Paul D. Adams, commanding general of Third Army, has suggested that the polio immunization program be intensified during the next few weeks in accord with a nation-wide effort sponsored by the National Conference on Polio Control.

The Third Army surgeon, Col. A. Vickoren, advocates that all military personnel and dependents be encouraged to take at least three basic shots before the polio season begins.

Vaccine is available at unit dispensaries on the post.

Dependents may obtain shots at the Dependent Immunization Clinic in Building 396 in the old hospital. The clinic is open from 8 to 11 a.m. and 1 to 4 p.m. Mondays through Fridays. No appointment is necessary.

Although parents of young children are more liable to exposure to polio than older adults, the above 40 group runs a special risk in failing to become immunized against the disease, according to Major Robert H. Quinn, chief of preventive medicine on the post.

There is a higher incidence of paralysis among older people who contract polio, Major Quinn said. However the mortality rate from the disease is lower for the above 40 age group, he added.

As compared with the civilian population, the occurrence of polio among military personnel and their dependents is relatively low, officials said. The risk is considered sufficient military importance to justify a voluntary immunization program available to all for whom the Armed Forces provide medical care.

E-8 HOWARD

First Sgt. (E-8) Clabern Howard of Company A, 806th Engineer Battalion, 151st Engineer Group, entered the Army at Fort Thomas, Ky., in October, 1939. His first unit assignment after basic training was with the 1st Infantry Regiment, 6th Division, at Fort Jackson.

During World War II he served with the 37th Infantry Regiment as a machine gun squad leader at Dutch Harbor, Alaska.

Returning to the States in 1944, he served as field first sergeant of the replacement training center at Camp Robertson, Ark., until discharged in July, 1945.

After staying out of service for three months, Sgt. Howard reenlisted at Fort Campbell. A year later he went to Fort Knox for the job of road and range supervisor with the post Engineer Section.

Next, Sgt. Howard was transferred to Okinawa and the 606th Engineer Battalion, attached to the 5th Air Force. He was sent to Korea with the unit in 1951 as battalion maintenance sergeant.

Back in the U. S. in 1953, he was assigned to the 419th Engineer Brigade at Beale Air Force Base, California as brigade maintenance inspector.

In 1955 he reenlisted at Fort Knox, Ky., and next spent a tour in England.

Back in CONUS again in 1957, he was assigned to the 806th, first at Fort Rucker, and then here when the unit was moved to the post in 1959.

He was promoted to his present grade in 1960, having served as first sergeant in the battalion since April, 1958.

First ROTC Cadets Get Orientation

Sixteen cadets from North Dakota State University at Fargo visited the post March 7 for an Infantry orientation. This was the first of 11 groups expected here through April.

They toured the 1st Infantry Brigade area, stopping at Company B, 29th Infantry for a briefing on functions of an Infantry company and demonstrations by the 26th Scout Dog Platoon.

Later in the morning they received an Airborne landing orientation at Wilson Field and visited Wigle Hall, the Officer Candidate School Hall of Fame.

After lunch with the officer candidates they went to Fryar field to watch Airborne students train. From there they went to Eubanks Field for an orientation.

Arrangements for the visits of the ROTC cadets are made by The Infantry Center Reserve Components Section.

The Civilians You Work With

Gilda Haman sees some 500 letters per week as a correspondence clerk at The Infantry School's Department of Non-Resident Instruction.

Since Christmas, she says, mail has poured in steadily from military units around the world enrolled in the department's five programs. She helps answer questions concerning enrollment, credit hours earned, progress status, and other details of the Army Extension course program.

She has been employed at DNRI since 1955. Before that she worked at Fort Gordon and at Headquarters, Salzburg, Austria, USAEUR. She was in the Women's Army Corps at Camp Blanding, Fla., from 1944 to 1946.

Army Flyer's Top Rating Awarded To Lawson CWO

The Special Instrument Card, the Army Aviation's highest instrument - flying rating, was recently awarded to CWO Harry M. Fletcher, 1st Aviation Company, Lawson Army Aviation Command, for his completion of the stiff requirements for this award.

The Special Instrument Card is awarded to those Army Aviators who have been rated for over five years, logged over 2,000 flying hours, flown at least 50 hours pilot time under actual instrument conditions, completed a comprehensive instrument flight-check, and have a record of sound judgement and safe flying.

The "Special" aviator has his own flight-clearance authority under all weather conditions.

CWO Fletcher, a Senior Army Aviator with over 5500 flying hours, was originally rated as an Air Force pilot in 1944, and entered the Army Aviation program in December 1951.

Currently serving as unit Instructor Pilot for the AC-1 "Caribou" twin-engine transport aircraft, CWO Fletcher is also the "Caribou" Standardization Instructor Pilot for Third Army.

Says Candidate Levy

Americans Take Freedom 'Too Much for Granted'

CANDIDATE LEVY

"I think many Americans take their freedoms too much for granted," says an officer candidate of the 50th Company, The Student Brigade, at The Infantry School, who knows what it is to live under Communist oppression.

Candidate Rudolf Levy fled his native Czechoslovakia in 1948, not long after the Red coup that rang the Iron Curtain down around that eastern European country's borders.

As a young student in a town near Prague, he took part in resistance to the new regime. His anti-Communist activities led to his being placed under surveillance by the secret police and on several occasions he reports he was picked up for questioning.

Told that arrest and imprisonment were impending, Levy and a compatriot elected to flee the country. It was a hard decision for the young student to make, because he was leaving his parents behind. He has not heard from them since.

Setting out across country on foot, Candidate Levy and his friend trudged some 250 miles in seven days. But the end of this long trek — during which time he was entirely off the land — was the hardest as the Czech border was heavily guarded to prevent crossings into the American Zone of West Germany.

Joining the Army in 1952, one of Levy's first assignments was as an interpreter for the Neutral Nations Inspection Team in Korea. He has also served in Japan, Fort Lewis, Alaska and Fort Ord.

Leaving his home was the hardest thing he ever did, the 30-year-old soldier says, but his flight from political oppression led to the three happiest days of his life.

"The first was when I got out from behind the Iron Curtain; the second was when I put on the U. S. Army uniform, and the third was when I became an American citizen in 1957."

PONTIAC

Winner of MOTOR TREND'S

CAR of the YEAR AWARD!

'61 PONTIAC TEMPEST

(All 28 American car manufacturers were competing for this award.)

The Pontiac Tempest is the MOTOR TREND CAR Of The Year for 1961 and as such has been granted the annual MOTOR TREND AWARD.

The Decision was reached by the editors of MOTOR TREND after long and careful study of the entire field of American motor cars. In a year of outstanding cars, it is clear that the Tempest is the car most outstanding for progress in design.

The basic premise of the MOTOR TREND AWARD is that the progress in design recognized must be a distinct advance toward a better car. The Tempest fills this requirements fully.

Only once each year is one car selected for such special merit by MOTOR TREND. In 1961 there are many cars, many of them all-new, that represent worthwhile and welcome progress in design.

Yet the Tempest surpasses them all — not only by the total number of its design achievements, but also for what they are.

The New Pontiac Tempest sets many new trends and unquestionably is a prototype of the American car for the Sixties.

Quotes From March, 1961 Motor Trend

NOTE:
PONTIAC is the only American Automobile to ever win this coveted, "Car of The Year Award" two of the last three years.

7,000 Respond To Post Drive

More than 7,000 money envelopes signed by military and civilian personnel of the Post in support of the 1961 Federal Service Joint Campaign for National Health Agencies and the Federal Service Joint Crusade have been reported to The Infantry Center Funds Division.

Major Edward L. Whitehead, project officer for the drive, said that probably many contributions have not yet been reported by project officers of activities and called for a speed-up of turn-ins to the Funds Division.

The volunteer campaign began at Fort Benning almost a month ago.

At the end of the post-wide canvass April 1, contributor's envelopes for the health agencies will be forwarded to Atlanta headquarters for opening and counting. The National Bank of Fort Benning has volunteered to open envelopes and count the money to go to the Joint Crusade, which will be forwarded to campaign headquarters in New York City.

Latest activities making turnins include the Infantry Human Research Unit and The Infantry School's Communication Department, Airborne-Air Mobility Department, Department of Non-Resident Instruction and Special Subjects Department and The Infantry Center's Purchasing and Contracting Section, Inspector General's Section, Dental Detachment and Finance and Accounting Section.

Personnel are being personally contacted for donations by key men appointed in the sections and units. There is no dollar goal at the post but contributions are encouraged.

AUSA Aims Efforts At Local Civilians

A concentrated drive for new members from the Columbus-Phenix City civilian community is being planned by the citizens' chapter of the Association of the United States Army, according to chapter president William J. Schloth of Columbus.

The drive, scheduled to open April 1, will be a phase of the chapter's over-all spring membership campaign, in which The Infantry Center is already engaged.

Earnest W. Higgins will direct the chapter's Columbus efforts to bring in new members. The Phenix City activities will be directed by Arnold Thompson.

Some 2,700 membership applications have been received from AUSA's national Headquarters in Washington. They have been distributed to campaign workers throughout the chapter's ranks in anticipation of positive reaction to the drive, Schloth said.

Planned efforts of the local chapter are designed to trade upon the comparatively large membership potential present in the local civilian - military community, the chapter president said.

At present, the local group is the third largest chapter in the national association. It is viewed in Washington as one of the most powerful and progressive, he said.

Drives being conducted by the chapter's Infantry Center and 2nd Division member groups are based upon a program of orientation of newly arrived personnel in regard to the chapter, its parent AUSA and association objectives.

Both groups have experienc-

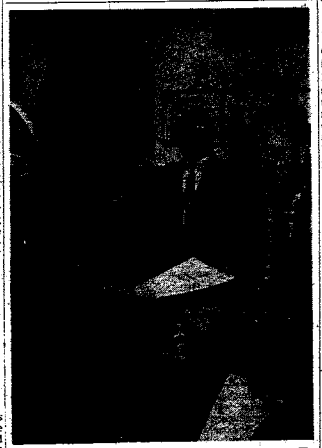
Retirement Opportunity

Key Personnel Being Sought By Tactical Analysis Group

Qualified personnel retiring or being released from active duty in the near future are being sought to fill vacancies in the newly established Army Strategic and Tactical Analysis Group (STAG), in Bethesda, Md.



This group, under the jurisdiction of the Deputy Chief of Staff for Operations, Department of the Army, will participate with military personnel in developing and performing large scale war gaming activities.

Approximately 20 operations research analysts in grades GS-13 through GS-16 will be recruited under Civil Service for key positions in this large technical organization within this fiscal year.

Applicants should have an educational background in mathematics, engineering or physical science with appropriate experience in operations research work. They may submit inquiries to: Civilian Personnel Office, Office of the Chief of Staff, U. S. Army, Department of the Army, Pentagon, Room 3C683, Washington.

Computers will be used by the group in assisting other Army agencies in war gaming activities, and representing the Army in joint war games involving the Navy and Air Force.

A more detailed description of the work involved ranges from scientific methods of research and analysis dealing with defenses and terrain, through strategic and tactical maneuvers and related problems such as communications, weapons systems, support facilities and organization structures, to the use and evaluation of models representing operations in the abstract and mathematical simulation of operations.

Exams

Infantry, 1st Infantry Brigade.

Candidates taking the exams have been nominated to the academy by their congressmen or have qualified under one of the separate quotas for enlisted men in the Army or Air Force or sons of veterans who died during war service. Those passing the tests will qualify for entrance to the academy in the class which starts in July. Only one class, which is comprised of 750 candidates, is admitted each year.

Examinations taken by the candidates include College Board Tests in mathematics, English composition and scholastic aptitude, a series of physical aptitude tests to measure coordination and development and a thorough medical exam.

Identical examinations are being held simultaneously at approximately 35 other Army and Air Force installations in this country and overseas.

This afternoon the examinees will take a half-day break from the tests to tour the post.

They will visit The Infantry School Weapons Pool, tour the Main Post area, including Lawson Army Aviation Command and will stop at Eubanks Field to sit in with an Airborne class.

A 92-Year-Old Top Sergeant--or Older?

According to the Armed Forces Press Service, the American Medical Association has released a report stating that Americans may live as long as the fabled Hunzukuts of northern Pakistan during the next century. The report says there is evidence that men in Hunza, a remote region in the Himalayas, live to be 120 or even 140 years old.

April EM Promotions May Total 16,487

More than 1,000 fewer than in March, Army enlisted promotions as authorized in quotas sent to major commanders will total 16,487 during April. A breakdown shows 179 to E-9; 346 to E-8; 729 to E-7; 981 to E-6; 2,989 to E-5 and 11,263 to E-4.

Plans Would Scrap Battle Groups

Plans to provide the Army with more "flexible" divisions, "better suited" for action in all possible parts of the world and under all conditions, will be presented for consideration this year to Gen. George H. Decker, chief of staff. The proposal will recommend units more like present armored divisions, which could be used in brigades.

Record of 18,000 Pro-Payments Set

Approximately 18,000 proficiency payments were approved in a recent DA message, setting a record for first pay- ments and retentions. The payments were made as a result of November testing in 56 MOSs and 198 skill levels.

Reenlistments May Hit New Record

Regular Army reenlistments are expected to hit a new record number — between 76,000 and 78,000—during this fiscal year, if figures for the first five months hold up. So far, 31,702 have taken another hitch. Since 1957, when the Army was cut to its present authorized strength, the best year has been 1958, a recession year, with a total of 77,029.

George Washington would be classified 4-F if he were to appear before a Selective Service Board today. The first president had teeth, and "some sort of Catarrh," which would rule out any chance of his serving, according to Gen. Lewis B. Hersbey, director of Selective Service.

Amateur Radio Club Cited for Flood Duty

The Fort Benning Amateur Radio and Electronics Club has been cited by the American Red Cross for its assistance during the flood in Columbus last month.

The certificate from the Muscogee County Red Cross reads: "In grateful appreciation for your around-the-clock assistance and cooperation during the February, 1961, Chattahoochee River flood."

The award was presented to Capt. Norman G. Miller, The Infantry School Communications Department and president of the club, by brig. Gen. (Ret.) W. G. Skelton, a director of the county Red Cross.

The organization operated three net control stations and 11 mobile units during the flood. The stations were located on Rice St. in the disaster area, club headquarters at the MARs Station on the post and at Red Cross headquarters in Columbus. The mobile units checked main points of interest and danger spots.

Inquiries, for information from other cities were handled by the club in addition to local Civil Defense and Red Cross requests.

The radio operation was initiated at 9:30 a.m. February 25 and contioued to 2:30 p.m. the following day.

The post group was reformed only last November. It meets the first and third Thursday of each month at 7:30 p.m. in the MARS Station, Building T-1886 off Indiana Rd.

The amateur radio operators also meet the second and fourth Thursday of each month with the Columbus Amateur Radio and Electronics Club at 7:30 p.m. in Bradley Library.

True 'Youthful' Spirit Not Matter of Years

(AFPS) Because the Armed Forces require men of high physical excellence and stamina, it is customary to think of their members as "young" — at least the image persists in the public mind, and, of course, Selective Service and recruiting programs sustain it.

But we know the image is far from totally valid because tens — or hundreds — of thousands of today's service people served in World War II. So as an age group they are in their middle years. Yet they make up the most valuable and experienced segment of the Armed Forces. Their skills are indispensable. Their administrative and command responsibilities are heavy. No one questions their value. The pertinent question is: Have they lost their youth?

"Youth is not a time of life," said an anonymous writer, "it is a state of mind . . . it is a temper of the will, a quality of the imagination, a vigor of the emotions; it is a freshness of the deep springs of life. Youth means a temperamental predominance of courage over timidity, of the appetite for adventure with love of ease. This often exists in a man of 50 more than in a boy of 20."

For this youthfulness of spirit, to be sure, they are perhaps greatly in debt to the younger men who serve with them and under them. The sheer animal vitality of youth, the glow of youthful health, is infectious — a beneficent virus that even a few young men can carry and spread throughout the group with which they work and live. The young men too have cause to be grateful, for the maturity of their elders inevitably rubs off on them. That's why the public image is not erroneous — the Armed Forces, either in years or in outlook, are "young" in the best sense of the word.

Chaplain's Corner

By Chaplain (Major) Russell K. Lee

Which is more important, faith or works? This question was much discussed during the early history of Christianity. In recent years there has been much speculation on the comparative merits of the social gospel and the personal gospel.

Both in ancient and modern times some persons have claimed that primary stress should be on the faith of the individual and his relationship with God. Other persons have held just as firmly that top priority should be given to improving social conditions and creating a better environment.

But the Word of God does not emphasize either faith or works at the expense of the other. Rather, they are like two sides of the same coin, and neither is complete without the other.

It is of the utmost importance that everyone of us comes to a personal, transforming experience of God through faith, for, as the epistle to Hebrews says, "Without faith it is impossible to please Him, for he that cometh to God must believe that He is and that He is a rewarder of them that diligently seek Him."

But it is equally important to give expression to our faith through helping to build a better world and ministering to the needs of our fellowman, for "faith without works is dead". And the Lord said of doing good, "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren ye have done it unto me."

(Editor's Note: This is the last in a series of articles to be presented in this column concerning Federal Income Tax.)

Have you ever checked to see whether you are required to file an estimated income tax return? If not, you may save yourself considerable trouble and expense by reading this article.

What is an estimated income tax return? The law requires individuals who have substantial amounts of income which isn't subject to withholding tax to pay their tax on his income in installments during the taxable year, rather than to wait until the final return is filed in the next year.

Full Tax Due

Thus, the Government has the use of the money at an earlier time and the risk of the individual being unable to pay the full tax due is cut down.

This advance estimate by the individual taxpayer is filed on Form 1040ES. The estimated income tax return. All estimated tax paid in during the year is credited toward payment of tax due when the final return is filed.

Although the rules can become quite complicated a number of general guides can be established. First, an individual whose income consists largely of salary or wages (which are subject to withholding tax) does not have to file an estimated return unless he has more than $1000 outside income which is not subject to withholding tax, such as rent, dividends, annuities, interest or profits from sale of stock.

Outside Incoming

Anyone who has more than $100.00 of such outside income must file an estimated return if his total income from all sources during the year is more than $1,000.

Thus, part-time workers or children who earn only a few hundred dollars a year do not have to file estimated returns if their income is small.

Salaried individuals may also become subject to estimated tax. A single person who makes over $5,000 per year must file an estimated return. A married couple intending to make a joint return does not have to pay estimated tax unless their total salary is over $10,000 per year.

Tax Rules

To sum it all up, the rules may be simply stated as follows:

All persons with less than $1000 total income need not file an estimated return; any single person with total income over $1,000 but less than $5,000 need not file unless he has more than $100 from sources not subject to withholding tax; any married person entitled to make a joint return and whose total income is over $1,000 but less than $10,000 need not file and all single persons with over $5,000 total income and all married couples with over $10,000 total income must file an estimated return and pay estimated tax.

The next filing date for estimated tax is April 15.

The Internal Revenue Service has begun to "crack down" on estimated tax violators, charging seven per cent interest on unpaid taxes and up to 25 per cent penalties on flagrant violators.

Forms and advice are available at the Legal Assistance Office, Staff Judge Advocate 14.

SP4 SHELTON

SP4 HICKS

Nine out of 18 Infantry Center marksmanship records fell last week as a result of The Infantry Center's annual championships held March 6 to 10.

On the pistol range 1st Infantry Brigade handgunners set two major records in taking the individual and team trophies.

Individual laurels and the Chattahoochee Championship went to Sgt. Robert E. Wilford, whose aggregate score of 839-19X went into Infantry Center record books as a new match mark. The old mark had been 837-22X.

Also entered was the new record of 2196-53X set by the 1st Infantry Brigade Team, headed by 1st Lt. Alan G. Millen. The new score replaced the old mark of 2155-42X set by the Brigade's team in 1960.

On the rifle range the 1st Infantry Brigade's Infantry Trophy Team headed by Sgt. Keith G. Barnes turned in a shattering performance in posting a total of 229 points over the all-time Infantry Center record for the course. Eight Brigade riflemen shot out 1,044 points over the "combat course" of fire against an old match mark of 715 set on post last year by the brigade.

Neither service rifle championships saw records broken because of almost impossible shooting conditions with winds clocked at over 46 miles per hour. In winning the individual crown MSgt Jesse E. McCaskill ran up an aggregate score for the week of 620-42V, 11 points behind the existing mark of 631-64V.

Sgt. McCaskill, 151st Engineer Group, had previously fired a 229-13V to win the Fort Benning Match, the National Match course, and was the only marksman of the 1961 matches to prevent a "clean sweep" of major match trophies by the Infantry Brigade.

The Brigade's riflemen came back into the win column when they gathered in the Commanding General's Rifle Team Championship Trophy. They posted a team effort of 1831-66V, 65 points off the 1960 mark which they had set. The total posted indicates the extremely adverse conditions with shooting coach Sfc Max Herrara had to contend.

Automatic riflemen took advantage of good weather at the beginning of the meet to set three out of four records.

Sp4's John H. Hicks and Jerry L. Shelton, 1st Armored Battalion, 58th Infantry, shattered the mark for the Deputy Commanding General's Championship with an aggregate score of 1527-75V for three matches. The new champions racked up a record 54 points over the old mark.

The 500-yard Automatic Rifle Match was won by Sp4 Ivan D. Cales and Pfc James R. Lawrence, who set a new mark of 460-18V over the old record of 442-8V. The third record had been set in the 300-yard match by the team of Sp4's James L. Spence and Arthur C. Jackson, 58th Infantry's 1st Armored Rifle Battalion. The pair shot a 560-35V against the old mark of 550-29V.

Winners of other matches were Pfc Allen A. Crosson, Infantry Center Troop Command, who fired a record rifle score of 99-11V at 200 yards, standing, and the 151st Engineer Group's Sp4 Earl L. Waterman, who gathered in the trophies for the 200 and 600-rapid fire rifle matches with 100-14V and 100-8V.

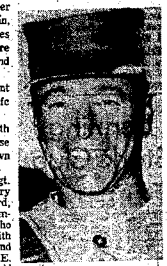
Sgt. McCaskill followed with his National Match course score of 229-13V and the crown winning aggregate.

Pistol winners included Sgt. Henry Barbian, 1st Infantry Brigade, who took the 50-yard, slow fire tilt with 100-5X; teammate Sgt. Jacob Scott, who won the timed fire event with a 25-yard score of 195-5X, and the Brigade's Sgt. Robert E. Wilford, winner of the rapid fire match at 25 yards by a tally of 193-3X.



The National Match pistol course saw a 279-9X give the trophy to the Infantry Brigade's Sgt. Charles R. Reese, and the grand aggregate was taken by Sgt. Wilford.

At ceremonies marking the close of the week-long championships, Brig. Gen. L. A. Walsh, Jr., Infantry School assistant commandant, credited the competition with long hours of hard work.

"However," Gen. Walsh continued, "it was work devoted to promotion of your professional standing."

Pat Ryan's News and Views

With all due respects to St. Patrick, President Kennedy, my English-Irish husband, and all the leprechauns drinking beer to celebrate "their" day, I will now initiate the subject of "April in Paris." Any interest I might have for Irish potatoes, Irish setters, Irish stew, Irish coffee, or Irish folklore has nothing to do with the subject for today. And I have yet to sample green beer . . . the fact that I'm only one sixth Irish sorta puts a damper on the whole thing.

The Woman's Club colleens have set aside Wednesday, April 5 for their "April in Paris" luncheon. Weather permitting, tables will be set around the Officer's Open Mess pool outside. There will be a short fashion show. There will be a sidewalk artist to sketch your portrait. There will also be an election!

Elections are always exciting. It's the suspense of wondering who will be the next to preside (?) over the lively board meetings, and be the busiest lady in town. May the luck of the Irish go to the winner!

Mrs. James (Marilyn) Grimes will be the fashion commentator for the style show. A former model of Washington, D.C. and Greensboro, N.C., Marilyn has been commentating for the past eight years. She has served as president and vice-president of Officers' Wives Clubs consecutively at Illesheim and Ludwigsburg, Germany.

She can also wield an oil-brush to canvas, having graduated in fine art from the University of North Carolina. She enjoys commentating above everything else because it gives her a chance to: "know and study fashions," "speak publicly," and to "get out of the house occasionally!"

I have a lady-friend who is married to an Irishman. Possessor of an easy-going, lazy nature, he likes to sleep his week-ends away. But my friend has a perfect "solution" for that. She just says: "Dear, you go on with your nap while I run downtown for some shopping!" It never fails to get her "Irish" up.

With that, I'll grab my shamrock and run!

WELL, WHO WAS IT?

Fifteen students at George Washington High School in Denver, Colo., were asked who was the first president to serve two terms. Six didn't know.

Semi-Annual Dance Held By Junior Dance Class

The Junior Ballroom Dancing Class will hold its semi-annual dinner-dance March 23, at The Main Officers' Open Mess. The receiving line will form at 6:45 p.m. in the Anzio Room.

Mrs. Alan F. Twichell and Mrs. George Eyster, coordinators for the class, will pour punch. After the reception, dinner will be served in the main ballroom.

All club members and guests are invited to see the exhibitions in fox trot, tango, Texas star, polka, waltz, swing and cha-cha-cha, which will be presented at 8 o'clock in the ballroom.

After the exhibitions, "Bennies" will be awarded to outstanding members of the advanced class by their instructor, Mrs. J. E. Morrow. Miss Jill Caldwell and Miss Vicki Twichell, teen-age assistants, will crown the king and queen — the boy and girl who have been voted best dancers of the advanced class. This couple will lead out the first dance of the evening.

Col. S. T. McDowell, Lt. Col. and Mrs. Robert A. Guenthner, Lt. Col. and Mrs. L. E. O'Riley, Major Joella Wallace, Major Harry Campbell, Lt. Bill Sherman, and Lt. Gary Zarybnicky will be honored guests at the party.

The Junior Classes are sponsored by The Main Officers' Open Mess and are made up of children ranging in ages from eight to 15 years old.

A new class in ballroom dancing for children will begin April 6 at the Country Club branch of the Officers' Open Mess. These lessons continue for a year. Ages eight through 11 will meet at 6 p.m. each Thursday; ages 12 through 15 will meet at 7 o'clock.

The children will learn all the newest steps in fox trot, waltz, swing, rumba, samba, tango, and cha-cha-cha and will be trained in all phases of formal dance etiquette. After six months, they have their first formal dinner-dance and are then promoted to the advanced class.

Sandra Lee Taylor's Report Card . . .

Another sister team is in the spotlight of this week's column—this time two bubbling brunettes from South Carolina, who, if the reader hasn't already guessed, are the Williams duo, Mary Beth and Louise.

Both girls are endowed with interesting and friendly personalities and are constantly on the go, meeting people and doing things.

Mary Beth, the elder, is a sophomore at Columbus High School this year and has attended CHS since the beginning of her freshman year. Louise, a freshman, is enjoying her first taste of high school since she entered CHS at the beginning of this year.

Both Mary Beth and Louise were born in Orangeburg, S.C. Since then they have lived in many areas of the U.S. and even in Canada. Among the places they have lived are Arkansas; Indiana: Bamburg, S. C.; Fort Bragg, N. C.; Fort Leavenworth, Kans.; Gary, Ind.; and Fort Benning.

Their most recent residence before coming to Fort Benning was in River's Camp, Manitoba, Canada. This last tour must have been quite an interesting one, judging from all the stories connected with it!

Both Mary Beth and Louise are active in organizations on the post and at Columbus High. In the "Follow Me Club," a fellowship club for protestant youths, Mary Beth serves as vice-president, while Louise holds the office of secretary-treasurer.

Junior Army Daughters of America is another activity facet for these two. Each of them has worked hard on JADA projects this year. Mary Beth teaches a primary Sunday School class of fourth graders every Sunday morning at the Main Post Protestant Sunday School, and Louise plays the piano for the kindergarten age group.

One of Mary Beth's absorbing interests is reading. She also enjoys creative writing, and she plans to work on the school paper next year. While attending the Brook Collegiate Institute in Manitoba, she was the winner of an essay contest. Also, at Brook she was named valedictorian of her eighth grade class. She lists American history and English as her favorite subjects. The fact that she is taking American history, which is a junior subject, during her sophomore year testifies to the advanced nature of her academic work.

Along with her enjoyment of English has come a coveted honor — Mary Beth's English teacher has chosen her to be her "student teacher" in CHS's annual "Student Teacher Day," March 23. Congratulations, Mary Beth!

Louise's interests turn toward more strenuous pastimes and she stated that physical education is her favorite subject at school. As for hobbies, she enjoys swimming and dancing and has a stamp collection.

Louise and Mary Beth both participated in the recently completed Youth Activities girls' basketball program. When she was in the eighth grade, Louise was a participant in the Faith School track meet and received the second-place award in the meet.

Louise said in regard to her opinion of Columbus High School, "I think that CHS is a very friendly school and I'm enjoying this year very much!"

Mary Beth has lived at Fort Benning for nearly two years and she states that she likes it very much because of the people she has met and because it is a very beautiful post. Her enjoyment of CHS shows in the fact that she is going to be a member of the annual staff next year.

Mary Beth and Louise are the daughters of Lt. Colonel and Mrs. Louis A. Williams, and have a younger sister, Brenda, who is in the fifth grade. Fort Benning can truly look with pride on Mary Beth and Louise Williams, who by their interest, energy, and application, are two excellent Fort Benning representatives.

100 2nd Division Men Choose Special Forces

By DIV PIO

Approximately 100 men of the 2nd Infantry Division have applied for assignment with Special Forces, according to Captain Daniel L. French of the division Adjutant General's Section.

Initial processing of applications, Capt. French said, has included a physical training test administered last Saturday in the Proficiency Test area and physical examinations at Martin Army Hospital on Monday.

He stated that the G-2 (Intelligence) Section has begun processing of the required interim secret clearances and, as of Wednesday, applications were being forwarded to 3rd U. S. Army Headquarters.

He added that all ranks of officers and enlisted men may submit applications for Special Forces. And that applications may still be submitted, except from personnel of the 1st Infantry.

Applications from permanent party personnel are to be submitted through channels to the division Adjutant General. Applications from those undergoing Basic Combat and Advanced Individual Training must be submitted so as to reach headquarters AG-Trainee Personnel Division, not later than the Monday of the second week of training.

Several weeks ago, assignment selection criteria were relaxed in order to provide a greater source of volunteers for Special Forces.

The relaxed requirements state applicants must indicate a desire for assignment to a special Forces Unit and a willingness to undergo airborne training, have completed four months of active military service rather than one year, have an interim secret clearance rather than a final, and have 18 months remaining in service rather than 33 months.

Those enlisted men with insufficient remaining active duty time may satisfy this prerequisite by extension of enlistment, reenlistment or certificate of intent to reenlist.

Division Chaplains Return From Nuclear Symposium

By JACK WILDER

Chaplain (Major) Clement P. J. Krug, assistant division chaplain, and Chaplain (Major) Alfred P. Lam, Division Trains chaplain, returned to the 2nd Infantry Division recently after attending the Military Chaplains Nuclear Symposium at the Field Command Defense Atomic Support Agency, Sandia Base, Albuquerque, New Mexico.

The Symposium, held February 28 through March 2, carried the theme of the relationship of the military chaplain to the challenge of the atomic age.

Shortly after his return to the Division, Chaplain (Maj.) Krug remarked "The challenge of the atomic age transends the material world of scientific research and weapons development and we must include a marshalling of the spiritual and moral resources." Chaplain Krug continued "it is to the chaplain that one looks to provide the leadership and inspiration to meet the challenge for the good of mankind rather than to his detriment."

Chaplain Krug, at this time, joins with the other chaplains of the division in encouraging all personnel to attend services of their choice at the chapels in the Sand Hill and Kelley Hill areas on the newly-proclaimed Religious Emphasis Day, Sunday, March 19.

SECOND SEMI-ANNUAL RELIGIOUS EMPHASIS DAY

COMMANDING GENERAL OF THE 2D INFANTRY DIVISION

A PROCLAMATION

WHEREAS the founding fathers of our nation gave due recognition to deity; and

WHEREAS it has been customary for our people in civilian and military communities to assemble themselves at appointed times for the worship of God, to offer prayers of thanksgiving to Him for His mercies and blessings, and to seek His guidance in the affairs of our lives as families and as individuals:

TV Cops May Aid Real Crooks, Says Lawman-Turned-Soldier

BY 87TH INF. PIO

Recruit David M. Winkler, 87th Infantry, had a special interest in the operations of law enforcement personnel during the recent floods in the Chattahoochee Valley.

A former deputy county sheriff in California's populous Riverside County, he often had been on duty when such emergency calls came in for help.

Before his induction, Winkler had served one year as a law enforcement officer in Riverside County, which includes Palm Springs and stretches of nearby desert-vacation land. And, although required to keep his eyes on the prisoners most of the day, he still had time "when things were quiet" to sit at the desk up front.

It was then that he received the calls for help. Winkler recalls numerous occasions when both men and women in various states of distress would enter his office for assistance.

Blasts TV

But Winkler, who studied police administration for three years at Los Angeles State College, takes his crime detection seriously, and would rather talk about his future plans than he would about what he considers his routine duties as jailer. "I'm very much interested in juvenile work—both detection and counseling—" he says, "and plan to go into this field when I return."

Winkler also holds strong views about today's "realistic" police fare on TV. "They often carry things too far and give away techniques the public shouldn't know anything about," he complains. One example he gives is the use on one show of small, concealed tape recorders. This, he feels, only tips the hands of the police in their actual work.

Winkler looks forward to the physical conditioning he'll receive while taking Basic Combat Training with the 87th. There were no "workout" facilities at his station when he left, and he had just been scheduled for the Riverside County Police Academy when he entered the Army.

He has just been appointed Platoon Guide in Company B's second platoon.

Winkler, 23, is a native of New York. His wife, Arlene, is staying at their Indigo, Calif., home.

Trans Greets New Leader: Lt Col Collins

Lieutenant Colonel Clarence G. Collins has taken command of the 13th Transportation Battalion.

A battalion troop review honoring the arrival of Colonel Collins was highlighted when the Army Commendation Medal was presented to Captain John J. Leeper upon his departure for MAAG assignment in Vietnam. Major Harris H. Cathey presented the award to Captain Leeper in recognition of his leadership as Commanding Officer of Company A from January 1, 1960 to February 28, 1961.

Colonel Collins accepted the colors and command of the 13th Transportation Battalion from his predecessor, Major Cathey, who has served as battalion commander since February when Lieutenant Colonel Walter R. Johnson departed for Iran.

Dual Job

In his new assignment, Colonel Collins serves in a dual capacity as transportation officer of the 2nd Infantry Division and as battalion commander.

Music for the special occasion was provided by the 2nd Infantry Division Band. They played the "Post Commander's March" while the new Battalion Commander with Major Cathey and Major Charlie Neal "trooped the line".

After the exchange of colors Colonel Collins responded with a brief message in which he said he was "proud to be a part of the 13th Transportation Battalion and of the 2d Infantry Division and was familiar with their fine record."

They Found Out

Burglers didn't believe a sign on the safe that said "This Safe is Unlocked" when they broke into a Fort Worth, Tex., firm. They spent hours breaking through the bottom. The safe was not only unlocked, it was empty.

FAMILY WASH

The first mistress of the White House was Mrs. John Adams. The mansion was uncompleted when the couple moved in and Abigail Adams was unimpressed with her new home, where she had to hang out the family wash in the East Room.

SFC Returns From School With Honors

Sergeant First Class Clay Lacy of the Division's Information Section returned this week from the eight week U. S. Army Information School at Fort Slocum, New York. He captured first place honors for the course.

As honor graduate, SFC Lacy received the "Army Times" award of a wrist watch and their Distinguished Individual Achievement certificate.

Subjects covered in the information course include newspaper writing, radio - television writing and production, public speaking, policy and plans of Army information and a comprehensive study of U.S. history, military history and world affairs.

During his stay in New York, SFC Lacy witnessed the fierce blizzard which swept the Northeast and marked as the worst storm since the 1880's.

"We had snow piled up by storm and wind until in some places there were eight and ten foot drifts," stated the information specialist.

While attending the course, SFC Lacy also became one of four top speakers selected by the staff of the public speaking department. For this achievement he was presented a certificate and medel flag display by the Fort Slocum chapter of the Association of the U.S. Army.

SFC Lacy is assigned to the Division's information section as information supervisor. He is also active in local community projects such as the upcoming pageant for the Civil War Centennial Commemoration which he will narrate.

By 11th Inf PIO

Lieutenant Colonel Cecil M. Sanders of North Little Rock, Arkansas, has recently been assigned as deputy battle group commander of the 1st Battle Group of the 11th Infantry, 2nd Infantry Division at Fort Benning, Georgia.

Prior to coming to the 11th Infantry, Lt. Colonel Sanders was the special staff officer of the United States Army Infantry School responsible for the coordination of all activities, to include the plans and justification, for the proposed academic building at Fort Benning.

Earlier in his military career, he spent over three years at Fort Benning first as a student in the Officer's Advanced Course at The Infantry School from July 1949 to June 1950 and afterwards as an instructor of G-1 functions in the Staff Department of the school from July 1950 to January 1953.

LT. COL. SANDERS
New Deputy CO

Lt. Col. Sanders entered the Army in July of 1930 as a Thomson Act officer and was assigned to the Sixth Infantry at Jefferson Barracks, Missouri. In July 1940, he was assigned to the Sixth Infantry (Armored), First Armored Division at Fort Knox, Kentucky until he went overseas in late 1940 to the Philippine Islands where he participated in the defense of Bataan and Corregidor at the outbreak of World War II in the Pacific.

From July 1946 until August 1946, Colonel Sanders was connected with the Army's experiments with captured V-2 rockets and the development of American rockets including the NIKE and CORPORAL missiles, first as technical operations officer of the First Anti-Aircraft Artillery Guided Missile Battalion at White Sands Proving Ground, New Mexico and later as S-3 and executive officer of the First Guided Missile Regiment at Fort Bliss, Texas.

He was next assigned as commander of the 47th Armored Infantry Battalion of the Fifth Armored Division at Camp Chaffee, Arkansas, from August 1948 to July 1949.

Following his first tour at Fort Benning as a student and instructor at The Infantry School from 1949 to 1953, he was Assistant Army Attache in Morocco until November 1956. He then became chief of plans and operations in the G-2 Section of the Second US Army at Fort Meade, Maryland, before returning to Fort Benning as an instructor in division and battle group tactics and staff functions of the Command and Staff Department at The Infantry School in April 1959. In January 1960, he was assigned as a special staff officer at the school.

In addition to the officer's advanced course at The Infantry School, he attended the Army Language School, the Strategic Intelligence School and the Command and General Staff College. Colonel Sanders holds an AB degree from Ouachita College in Arkadelphia, Arkansas.

Colonel Sanders wears the Bronze Star Medal, Army Commendation Ribbon, Purple Heart with two Oak Leaf Clusters, the Combat Infantryman Badge, Philippine Presidential Unit Citation, and the US Presidential Unit Citation with two Oak Leaf Clusters.

Colonel and Mrs. Sanders are the parents of two daughters, Janice Lynn, 13, and Joan Leslie, 11, and they reside at 100 Eames Ave.

Gen. Hardick Welcomes New OVUREP Trainees

More than 1200 officers and men of the 87th Infantry assembled in Theater Number One Saturday morning for an orientation on the OVUREP (Overseas Unit Replacement) program as it pertains to the "Conquerors."

Brigadier General William L. Hardick, commanding general of the 2nd division, was the principal speaker.

After extending a welcome to the non-prior service personnel, General Hardick recalled that when he first joined the division and was briefed on the activities of the 87th Infantry the briefing officer started by saying, "Welcome to the best battle group in the 2nd Division and for that matter, the best in the U. S. Army."

General Hardick stated "I would like to see this spirit continued to prevail throughout the battle group, if you don't believe it yourselves, no one else will."

He reminded the members of the 87th Infantry that the destiny of the battle group was now in their hands and that despite the rigorous training they would encounter, they were being afforded a great opportunity in being able to train as a unit and remain intact for the next two year period.

Chaplain Speaks To Local P-TA

By JACK WILDER

Chaplain (Major) Clement P. J. Krug, assistant division chaplain, delivered an address to the Parent Teachers Association of the Holy Family School, of Columbus, on March 9.

The theme of the address centered around "Spirituality in the home."

"The fundamental idea expressed accentuated necessity of parents putting into practice in their homes the religious and moral teachings their children learn both from the church and school" explained Chaplain Krug.

He further stated "it is useless for children to be informed of the facts of what is right or wrong unless they observe those closest to them in practicing these tenets in their personal lives in their own home with an atmosphere that is conducive to the same."

Clerk Combines Talents As Singer, Paratrooper

By Nelson Marsh

Professional singer and a paratrooper to boot. This particular combination of talents best pictures Specialist Four Clifford Warner of the 2nd Division's 9th Infantry.

Not only did the Company B supply clerk sing professionally before entering the Army in July 1958, he spent more than 19 months on jump status in the 101st Airborne at Fort Campbell, Kentucky. He joined the 9th Infantry in May 1960 from the 502nd Infantry (Airborne) of the 101st.

The young 22-year-old Palm Springs, California, native first began entertaining in high school in such Broadway musical hits as South Pacific, The King and I, Brigadoon, and The Red Mill. Warner later moved up to starring roles in Carousel, Oklahoma, and Annie Get Your Gun.

Possessor of a fine, rich baritone voice Warner sang in top night clubs in Illinois and in Nashville, Tennessee. His most important engagement came at the ultra-exclusive Smoke Tree Ranch near his hometown of Palm Springs. The ranch abounds with movie stars, sports personalities, and other celebrities who frequent the premises as a haven from their professional work.

Upon joining the Army Green, Warner journeyed to the 9th Infantry Division at Fort Carson, Colorado, where he received both his basic and advanced Infantry training. From the 9th Division Warner ventured into the land of the airborne at Fort Campbell where he secured his paratrooper badge.

Warner sang as featured soloist with the 101st Screaming Eagles Chorus and twice won the post vocalist spot in the All-Army talent contest. He starred in several variety shows at Fort Campbell and entertained at many private parties.

Since his assignment with the "Keep Up the Fire" 9th Infantry, Warner has found time to wrap his vocal talents around music for private parties, shows at the Armed Forces YMCA, local Parent Teacher Association shows, and with the Columbus First Baptist Church choir. He sings regularly on Main Post at Crain Hall, the main NCO club.

Warner rather comes by his vocal renditions naturally since four other members of his immediate family also rate as first-class musicians. Warner's father and brother both were band leaders and his two sisters still sing professionally.

The 9th Infantry's "singing paratrooper" plans to re-enter show business upon fulfilling his military obligation to Uncle Sam. His ultimate goal: to star in a successful Broadway musical comedy.

3rd Fight Best Of Title Series

BY JOSH HILL

In spite of the best right hand since Joe Louis and a 12 pound weight advantage, Ingemar Johansson's third bid for the heavyweight championship of the world was crushed by a left hook and a chopping right to the jaw, delivered by Floyd Patterson, which sent him into the black void.

The end came, as a surprise I'm sure, to Ingo late in the sixth round. In that round, Ingo had Patterson back peddling after he staggered him with the famous "Hammar of Thor" right. In my opinion Ingo made his mistake shortly after this. The big handsome Swede took too much for granted and became over anxious. He moved in on Floyd a little too fast and that's when it happened. Like a striking cobra came Floyd's left hook, a right uppercut was missed and the hook went home again following by the right that ended the fight.

As Patterson himself said, the four to one odds in his favor were way out of proportion, and Ingo proved that beyond a doubt.

For those of you who follow boxing closely, I'm sure that it came as a great surprise to hear that the two heavyweights would be using six ounce gloves for their third encounter. In the first two bouts both men were wearing ten ounce gloves. And I'm sure you will remember the damage that was done in both those bouts with ten ounce gloves. These six ounce mitts are what caused the three knockdowns in the first round. Not taking anything from either fighter because all three knockdowns came after good clean hard punches. However, I am inclined to believe that the knockdown shots wouldn't have been as damaging if they were cushioned with the four extra ounces of padding of ten ounce gloves.

Also in the first two fights, neither man was cut badly. In the first battle Patterson was battered to the canvas seven times in one round and was bleeding only slightly from the nose. In the second meeting between the two men, Patterson punched Ingo viciously until he knocked him out in the fifth round, but Johansson only suffered a small cut on the inside of his upper lip.

It was different this time. Both men were cut badly about the eyes and Floyd's nose was dripping blood like a leaking faucet before the end came. Some of you may feel that this was a result of savage fighting. I say it was because of six ounce gloves (which were used at the request of Johansson).

To give some idea how unusual it is for heavyweights to use six ounce gloves, in modern day prize fighting middleweights (148 to 160 pounds) have been boxing with eight ounce gloves, even in championship bouts. Featherweight boxers (119 to 126 pounds) do most of their fighting with six ounce gloves. So, for two heavyweights, Patterson with six ounce gloves, So, for two heavyweights, Patterson, 194 and three quarters pounds, and Johansson, 206 and one a precedent.

Unlike the first two meetings of these two heavyweight greats, nothing can be taken away from either man for his performance in their third bout. They both boxed beautifully, scored effectively and often. Ingo's agility was something to behold; Patterson's prowess was in evidence throughout the contest. The "moon over Miami" as well as the 14,000 spectators that witnessed the spectacular heavyweight title fight in the city's Convention Hall will long remember it as one of the most scintillating in boxing history.

The next man in line to challenge "peek-a-boo" Patterson is a mean puncher named Sonny Liston.

Liston has knocked out all contenders for the crown with the exception of Ingemar Johansson, whom he has never fought. He has been acclaimed by many as the best heavyweight in the ring today, and that rating includes the champ.

When and if 27 year old Charles "Sonny" Liston, of Pennsylvania, meets Floyd Patterson for the crown his long line of victories will be severed. Liston hits hard, but he is too slow to stop the champ. Liston can take a good punch, but I don't think he will be able to withstand the power packed dukes of Floyd. Sonny Liston is good but, Floyd Patterson is better

Sep Bn Cops Two Victories

By 69th Armor PIO

Monday night March 13 at Bryant Wells Field House, the Separate Battalion defeated the 87th Infantry by scores of 15 to 4 and 14 to 12, to move them into a tie for first place with Division Trains in the division volleyball tournament.

In the first game the Separate Battalion ran off 11 points before the 87th scored their first. It was a great team victory with all players participating.

In the second game it was a nip and tuck affair from start to finish. After the time element ran out the score was in favor of the 87th 11 to 10, when the Sep. Bn. received the ball and scored two points to make the score 12 to 11, the 87th then received the ball and scored one point to make the score 12 to 12, the 87th then lost the ball to the Sep. Bn., who then scored the final two points to win the game 14 to 12. It took 7 minutes in the overtime before the game was decided in favor of the Separate Battalion.

23rd Douses 9th Infantry 'Firemen'

By 23d Inf PIO

The 23d Infantry Volleyball team rocketed into a three way tie for first place in the division league last Monday night with a forfeited win over the 1st Infantry at Bryant Wells Field House.

On March 9th, Coach Ed Winckleman's volleyball six "do or die" battled with the "Keep Up The Fire" of the victorious after a full three set match. After losing the first set 15 to 13, the "We Servers" stormed back to "put out the fire" in the next two sets, 15 to 10, and 15 to 7.

The first set was not up to par for the "We Servers" but in the second and third sets the Johnny McCaskill - Andy Hammett spiking combination began to click as did the mysterious serves of Jimmy Hogan.

Tall and lanky Carl Robinson's smashing right arm was dangerous next to the net as were the quick reflexes of Don Kess.

The next game on tap for the 23rd is with Divisions Trains who is deadlocked with the "We Servers" for first place.

Boxing Champion

Lew Jenkins, former lightweight boxing champion of the world, is now stationed with the Army in Germany. Jenkins wore the 135 pound crown in 1940 and '41.

Post Cagers Down Fort Stewart; WAC Team Beats Fort McPherson

New Record Set At Third Army Tourney

An overall accent on team offense, punctuated by a new individual scoring record, brought the Third Army Basketball Tournament one of its most exciting opening days in history Monday and a promise of even more excitement once the teams start hitting the homestretch.

First round games saw Fort McPherson pound out a 108-80 victory over Fort Rucker, Fort Bragg bounce Redstone Arsenal 101-61, Fort Campbell clip Fort Jackson 89-85 and Fort Benning blast Fort Stewart 92-79.

Benning, down 47-41 at the half, staged a courageous comeback over a fired - up Stewart five. Five Benning players counted double figures. Ray Pryear with 22, Don Gallagher, 16, Larry Onbecker, 12, Ron Kennett, 12, and George Keller, 14. Dick McGowan connected for 28 for the Stewart team.

The tournament was only one game old when a new scoring mark was entered into the record books, Bill Schmidt, a lumbering center, fired 40 points for Fort McPherson to break the old mark of 39 set by Don Bates of Fort Gordon last season.

A devastating fast break, coupled with Schmidt's bombing from underneath, powered McPherson to a 61-37 lead at intermission and the "Colonels" never looked back.

Billy White took runner-up honors with 21 points. Scoring in the Bragg victory was more evenly distributed with five players dealing the double digit column, Joe Quarterman with 22, Pete Lakick, 20; John Searcy and Marchall Perkins, 16 apiece, and Fred Harder, 11.

Ken Hunsicker directed the sputtering Redstone offense with 16. Fort Campbell saw a 13-point halftime margin melt down the stretch but managed to hold on in spilling Fort Jackson into the loser's bracket.

Campbell, up 46-33 at halftime, was gasping for its life in the waning moments as Eddie Price and Bill Thomas began to hit with uncanny accuracy for the South Carolina crew. Price finished with 28 points, 22 of them in the second half, and Thomas hit 19.

Darryll Kouns, a product of West Point's basketball wars, was the guiding light for Campbell with 31 points, including two 'key' buckets with the clock running out.

With Earline Surles leading the way with 27 points, the Fort Benning WAC team outclassed a scrappy WAC team from Fort McPherson, 60-40, in the first game in the women's division of the Third Army Basketball Tournament.

Fort McPherson battled their taller opponents on even terms during the first 12 minutes of play when the lead exchanged hands on six occasions. Height began to take its toll during the later stages of the second quarter when Benning took a 26-16 halftime lead.

McPherson started fast in the third quarter, closing the scoring gap to four points, but field goals by Surles and Anne Davis again put Benning out of reach.

Stance Is Important In Controlling the Ball

BY BOB CHASE

Footwork and coordination are basic to success in bowling and should receive the greatest attention as you work toward a better bowling average. My teammates and I, as with all professional bowlers, are more concerned with this phase of our games than with any other. A like amount of concentration on coordination will improve your game.

When footwork and coordination are missing, accuracy and strength of ball delivery are poor, to be a successful bowler you must know the four-step approach thoroughly and practice it regularly.

The stance which precedes this approach is a relaxed but firm one. The body is erect, not stiff, but neither is there any bend at the waist. The ball is held just above waist high and approximately 4 to 5 inches away from the body. The hand is underneath the ball. The position should be relaxed and balanced. The bowler should not crouch or bend. This is the easiest position from which to start the step-off in a push-away motion.

Assuming that you are right handed, your first step will be with the right foot. It is at this point that a very slight forward bend at the waist is permissable, providing it is not exaggerated.

The slight bend at the waist will balance the body in the first step as forward motion is begun. The knees should not bend and allow the body to assume a crouching position. The erect body has more power to put into the delivery.

Being able to top a team of good bowlers such as ours, which finished sixth in the nation last year, calls for perfection in this start. You must work for the same perfection for any error will catch up with you in the fourth and final step and harm your delivery. Throughout the 40-yard approach there should be a natural, walking flow of movement with no hesitation after any step nor any hint of a running motion.

Now for the second step. Move the left foot forward and at the same time let the arm begin to straighten. It should straighten all the way. Don't try to double the elbow. Loss of coordination will result and accuracy will be lost. The very slight forward bend at the waist will allow for the start of a straight pendulum motion of the arm swing. The ball should be moving to the rear approximately in line with the right leg. The wrong movement here will put the ball farther back than it should be.

Third step coming up. The right leg again comes forward with the body still in a firm, slightly forward bending position. The ball now approaches the height of the backswing. Here is where the first step pays off. If you have done it incorrectly the ball will be in this position. If you have done it incorrectly the ball will be still moving backward or beginning to move forward. This is an uncoordinated delivery.

This brings us to the final step and the delivery. This is the only part of the approach which it is desirable to change from the original position of the body and its erect stance. The bending should be done with the left knee and not with the waist. Bending at the knee allows a solid footing, a firmer arm swing and better directional control. The body is much stronger in this position, allowing the arm to control the speed of delivery much more effectively and allowing turn or spin to be applied to the ball.

Tip to advanced bowlers: When bowling on a slick or fast lane, start the ball rolling as quickly as possible. The more turn or spin applied, the more the ball will "skate". A rolling ball is much more effective.

Today's Sportrait

Today's Sportrait spotlights Pfc Gar Lon Ow, of the 72nd Engineer Company, 1st Infantry Brigade, who lifted 440 pounds in three lifts to win first place in the 123 pound class in the annual Columbus Y.M.C.A. weightlifting contest last week.

Only three years ago his nickname was 'Chicken-bones', and because of the embarrassment caused by that, he enrolled in a health studio in Monterey, Calif.

Besides weightlifting, Pfc Ow has also been a member of the post Judo Club for the past year. He feels that being physically, as well as mentally, fit is the best way that he can become a good combat soldier.

"It will take the best in physical and mental fitness to protect our freedom and peace on earth," said Pfc Ow.

Born in Canton, China, in September, 1937, he escaped from Communist China in 1952 at the age of 15. In 1959 he was drafted into the Army and during basic training he was named outstanding trainee of the cycle and also captured a trophy for the highest score in the physical fitness test. Pfc Ow's ability to draw gave him the job of draftsman in the Army.

His near future goal, he says, is to win the state weightlifting championships this month.

Pitching Record

It has been 57 years since any major league pitcher has hurled 37 consecutive complete games. Bill Bineen of the Boston Red Sox set the record way back in 1904.

The 1961 Spring Gobbler Season will open on post Monday and will continue until April 15.

The bag limit for the session will be one tom turkey per duly licensed hunter.

From what I hear there are some good flocks of turkeys within post limits but just where they are is something else again . . . my informants assure me that there are fine flocks but they get rather hazy when I ask directions to a good spot.

This apparent lack of cooperation, however, isn't as selfish as it sounds; spotting of wild turkey ranges calls for a lot of time and observation and if the information were passed on — Katy bar the door!

The scout who gets soft hearted and lets his buddy in on a good spot usually finds himself eating C-Ration. The big-hearted buddy will, in turn, invite his own heavy-footed pals to share in his good fortune and just about guarantee meat on the table for all.

It isn't unusual, either, that the pals show up in boola-boola shirts and carry transistor radios and set off into the assault with more noise than the whole 66th Armor could generate.

Some of us contend that Tom is a smart bird while others claim he's stupid.

Either faction may be right —I never did get within shooting distance of a gobbler—but I do know that no turkey is going to stay around in the face of such an advance.

An idea of just how careful the turkey hunter must be can be derived from the statement of Col. Reuben Kyle (ret.). Col. Kyle asserts that the most important piece of turkey hunting equipment (aside from the weapon) is a camouflaged face mask. The Col. wears his tucked up under his cap until he needs it and then tucks the lower end well down inside his shirt.

For the inexperienced hunter going out for the first time the "sit and wait" method is highly recommended—for two reasons. Only the expert can talk a wild turkey with any hope of success, and, too, the new man would invariably scare every bird away from dozens of occupied turkey blinds by his inexpert attempts at stalking.

It is again brought to hunter attention that all kills must be reported according to state and post law. Every gobbler shot must be recorded with the Fish and Game Maintenance Association and the Association, in turn, must compile a consolidate report for submission to the state game officials. So, if and when you bag your bird, make your report as soon after the kill as possible.

Stamp Series Marking Civil War Program

(AFPS) — The U. S. Post Office Department is marking the Civil War Centennial, which begins this year, with a series of five appropriate stamps, the first of which will be released at Charleston, S. C., on April 12.

It will establish the pattern for four other stamps to be issued between now and 1965, according to Postmaster General J. Edward Day, and will commemorate the firing on Fort Sumter in Charleston Harbor which opened hostilities.

Fort Sumter was selected for the first stamp, said Mr. Day, "to represent those early events of a century ago which tragically committed the nation's peoples in an armed struggle to create once and for all what the Declaration of Independence called 'a more perfect union.'"

The stamp has as its central subject a sea coast gun of the period, the type used by both sides in the conflict. An officer is shown sighting the piece against a background of a decorative spray of palmetto leaves.

25 Entrants Expected In Post Talent Finals

Approximately 25 entrants are expected to compete in the Fort Benning phase of the All-Army Entertainment Contest to be held at Theater 1 Tuesday at 7:30 p.m.

Winners will have a chance to represent the post in the Third Army contest which will be held here, April 20 to 22.

The entertainers will be grouped into six classes, competing only against those in their respective category. Variety Band Show on Post Next Sunday

Purdue University's Variety Band Show will appear here on March 26 at Theater 1.

The Variety Band Show company, now in its fifth year, is comprised of a stage band and variety artists recruited from talent in Purdue's "All-American" bands.

Routines from a line of six dancers to the music of the Variety Band, directed by Robert McEmber, sets the pace for the fast-moving and colorful show and in addition to big band numbers, it includes a variety of special features by dancers, vocalists and other entertainers.

Inaugurated by Bob McEmber in 1958, the variety group was originally organized to perform at alumni functions in Indiana.

The Surgeon Says

The Red Cross; Always On Hand

(This week's guest column has been prepared by Mrs. Arthur A. Tritsch, Jr., an American Red Cross Staff Aide at Martin Army Hospital.)

A man has been in the hospital for endless weeks. At first during the acute phase of his illness, he was grateful for the ministering hands of the ward nurse and Nurse's Aides, and the careful attention of the doctors who handled his case.

Bed rest and sleep were all he cared for. But sooner or later that phase is past. The medical staff has been successful, and the man is all but well. But several weeks of recuperation still lie ahead.

The medical staff is now too involved with the sick to do more than keep an eye on his progress. Now boredom sets in. The lack of physical activity begins to make sleeping difficult. Where to now? Who's to care? To help? To try to make those weeks of recovery pass quickly

Here is another job willingly undertaken by the American Red Cross in Martin Army Hospital. The professional staff of social and recreation workers, and clerical, too, put their hearts into this job.

A staff of some 100 volunteers work endlessly to help in the often seemingly thankless task. But these Red Cross workers, both the professional and the volunteers, don't want or need thanks.

Their careful training and orientation has equipped them to do a job for which the only thanks lies in the fact that it had to be done, and they could do it.

There is still another job that cries to be done, and is competently handled by another brand of Red Cross volunteer. These are the Staff Aides, a familiar sight around Martin Army Hospital.

The uniform they wear is light blue, similar to that of the professional Red Cross workers, except for the yellow pin and epaulets which mark them "volunteers."

The chairman of this group is Mrs. Robert Phillips, who works some thirty hours a month coordinating the Staff Aide activities. These Staff Aides man desks, answer phones, pull files, take case histories, and perform a dozen other tasks to speed up the operation of various clinics, and ease the burdens of the medical staff.

Most of all, they bring a warm personal touch wherever they go. This is the reason for being for some 35 women who give over 400 hours each month to the hospital as volunteers.

Another volunteer service that is performed daily is done by a hard working group known as the Nurses' Aides. This group is headed by Mrs. Archie Bishop, who gives three full days a week to this service, in addition to countless hours of administration work.

Nurse's Aides undergo arduous training. There are 20 classroom hours, and 20 supervised hospital hours for each volunteer.

Sport Parachute Competition Draws Large Week-End Crowd

An estimated 1,000 spectators witnessed an intra-club skydiving contest held by the Fort Benning Sport Parachute Club last Saturday and Sunday at Sightseeing Field.

Contestants jumped from a helicopter at heights ranging from 2,800 to 10,000 feet with a period of free fall from five to 45 seconds.

Winners in each class were determined by their accuracy in landing on a target in the center of a 200-foot circle. They started with 100 points but lost a point for each foot that they landed away from the target.

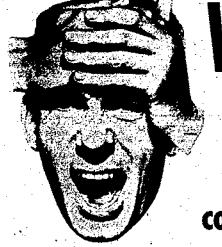
Class A, a 2,800-foot jump with a five-second free fall, was won by Sfc Robert D. Honkapillar, assigned to the 2nd Infantry Division. In second place was Sgt. Fred B. Barnburg, an instructor in the Airborne-Air Mobility Department of The Infantry School.

In Class B, a 3,400-foot jump with 10 seconds free fall, first place was captured by 2nd Lt. Wilford E. Roe with second going to Sgt. Lowell F. Jergens, instructors in the Airborne-Air Mobility Department.

The Class C competiton, a 4,300-foot jump with 15 seconds free fall, was won by Sgt. Patrick D. McTamaney assigned to the 2nd Division. Runner-up in this class was Sfc George W. Williams, assigned to 41st Company, 4th Battalion, The Student Brigade.

Class D, a 7,000-foot jump with 30 seconds free fall, was won by Capt. Jack Folta, a student in an officer class of The Infantry School. Second place winner was Sfc Roy L. D. Edwards, an instructor in the Airborne-Air Mobility Department and vice-president of the Sport Parachute Club.

The team competition, a 10,000-foot jump in which the members carry smoke grenades during their 45 seconds of free fall, was won by the three-man team of Sgt. Edwards, Capt. David R. Pinney, a student in an officers career class of The Infantry School, and Sfc John E. Luse, an instructor in the Airborne - Air Mobility Department.



Second place was captured by a two-man team of Sgt. James W. Houck, a member of the Parachute Maintenance Division of The Infantry Center Quartermaster Section, and Sfc David L. Clark, an instructor in the Airborne-Air Mobility Department.

Infantry School Report

The Infantry School Battalion is the oldest unit within The Student Brigade, having been in operation continously since April 1, 1907. It presently has six active companies playing a role in the operation of the Army Infantry School.

Battalion Headquarters functions as does any typical subordinate command on this installation. It commands, administers, conducts training, and provides logistical support, for personnel assigned to the academic departments of the School.

Headquarters is composed of a commanding officer, executive officer, adjutant, and sgt-major. It has offices for S-1, S-2, S-3, and S-4, and maintains a message center, educational office, information office, etc.

The companies comprising the rest of the Battalion carry on the activities of their higher headquarters. They all function on a smaller scale, as expected, operating in their more limited, specialized fields. Each company supplies the enlisted personnel to staff one or more of the departments necessary for the successful operation of The Infantry School.

Company A cares for and maintains the enlisted men who staff the Battalion Headquarters, the offices of the academic sections of The School, and the Human Research Development Department. It provides men for the Editorial and Pictorial Office, which produces written and visual aids for The School.

Company B staffs the communications departments of The School, and provides for and runs the sound material utilized by the various classes.

Company C mans the Department of Non-Resident Instruction, the Command and Staff Group, and the Army Field Printing Plant.

Company E provides instructors for the Weapons Department. These capable men instruct in every weapon category from the .45 calibre pistol to the T-14 missile.

Company F provides the instructors for the Ground Mobility Department, which teaches the basic officer and enlisted classes in auto and truck repair and maintenance. It also mans the Operations Department, whose sub-sections include scheduling of classes, the bleacher branch, and the weapons pool which issues and maintains all weapons used

Olympic Type Shooting

New Armed Forces Matches Launched Here This Month

The First Annual Armed Forces International Shooting Competition slated at The Infantry Center March 26 to April 3 will be the first of its type and size ever held on post.

Some 150 of the most accomplished marksmen the Armed Forces can produce are expected to participate in the meet which will be sponsored by the Continental Army Command. Sanctioned by the chiefs of staff of the respective Armed Forces and the National Rifle Association, the competition will be on World Championship and Olympic levels.

"Competition on international-type ranges among marksmen of the several active Services has been designed to further this top-level brand of marksmanship through concerted effort of the Armed Forces," said Lt. Col. Burton C. Boatright, Infantry Center match executive who will direct the shoot.

According to Col. Boatright, the program will see eight ranges and courses of fire used who comprise the greater part of America's hopes in future world competition.

Before 1955, he said, the United States evinced but little interest in so-called world marksmanship competition which called for a type of shooting far removed from that which America considered to be in the best interests of her national defense. Shooter representation in such competition was largely on an individual or personal basis, he said.

In answer to the Soviet challenge flung about that time, however, America decided that her marksmen and ar-

COL. PAVEY

Served as Chief of Staff And TIC G3 Since 1959

Col. Kenneth G. Pavey, chief of staff of The Infantry Center, has been named chief of the Army Element, MAAG (Military Advisory Assistance Group) in Ethiopia. He will depart Monday for briefings in Washington, D. C., preceding his new assignment in Addis Ababa.

Col. Pavey came to the post in April, 1959, and served as G-3 of The Infantry Center before assuming the duties of chief of staff in January.

A 1938 graduate of the University of Nebraska, he entered active Army duty that June. He was commissioned a second lieutenant in the Army Reserve the previous year. Preceding the outbreak of World War II, Col. Pavey was stationed in Panama for 15 months.

From February, 1942, to April, 1943, he was at Benning in successive assignments as a company commander, regimental S-3 and commander of the 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry.

He commanded the battalion in Europe for the following 19 months. He was named assistant provost marshal of the Seine Section in November, 1944, and provost marshal of that headquarters a year later.

Troops in the Second Cuartel area and dependents in the Capehart Housing Area will hear the May 1 concert.

Matches

rmers could and would meet that challenge if the opportunity was provided, the match executive explained.

Firing strange weapons over strange courses under unfamiliar rules, a U. S. team with but little preparation went to Moscow in 1958 and succeeded in snatching several world championships and gold medals from under Soviet noses, he said.

Since that time, the Army Advanced Marksmanship Unit at Benning has the military program to provide skilled competitors and Army marksmen have won the lion's share of U. S. team slots.

Major world shoots toward which military marksmen are working are the Cairo meet in 1962, the 1963 Pan-American Games in Brazil and the 1964 Olympic Games in Tokyo, Col. Boatright said.

Events programmed for the coming post meet include International Trapshooting, International Skeet Shooting, 300-meter and 50-meter Rifle, 50 meter Pistol, 25-meter Pistol, Running Deer and Running Roebuck Matches.

Competitors from other Services who have already indicated they'll be on the firing lines are Marine Corps Capt. William B. McMillan, world and Olympic rapid fire pistol champion, and Navy Torpedoman First Class Casper M. DeFino, 50-meter pistol marksman.

Col. Pavey

Col. Pavey was an instructor there until September, 1952. He then was a staff officer with the Army Planning Group, G-4 Section, Headquarters, U. S. Army Europe until attending The Army War College at Carlisle Barracks, Pa., in 1954-1955.

Assigned to the 2nd Infantry Division, Fort Lewis, Wash., he served initially as assistant chief of staff. He assumed command of the 9th Infantry Regiment in December, 1955, and thyroscoped with the unit to Alaska seven months later. He became comptroller of Army, Alaska in July, 1957.

Among Col. Pavey's decorations are the Bronze Star Medal with Oak Leaf Cluster and French Croix de Guerre.

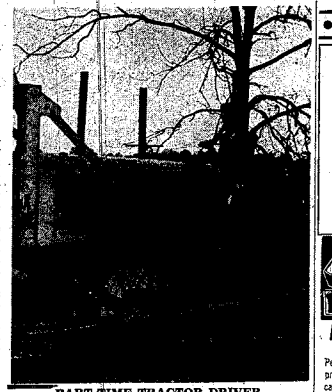
Groundbreaking

Ceremonies Held For New School



Groundbreaking ceremonies for a new elementary school were held here last week with Brig. Gen. A. D. Surles Jr., deputy commanding general of The Infantry Center driving a tractor to initiate the construction.

The brick school will include 11 classrooms, music room, library and combination auditorium - gymnasium - cafeteria. It is expected to be completed by October 1.

A contract for $309,388 was awarded to B.F.M., Inc., general contractors of Bainbridge, Ga., for construction of the facility and expansion of the general purpose room at Wilbur School.

Also present for the ceremonies were Col. John M. King, deputy director of The Infantry School's Command and Staff Department and president of the Post Dependents' School Council; Mrs. Hazel J. Scudder, superintendent of the Post Children's Schools and Major Joseph W. Markham, school officer.

Located at 29th 1st Division Road on the Main Post, the new school will be the fifth permanent instruction building in the post children's schools system. It will replace the Hospital Area School, housed in temporary buildings in the old hospital area.

Assignment Preference to Some Officers

Those officers who possess graduate degrees in physical science or engineering now are to receive more of a preference in first assignments following initial utilization tours, according to Officers Assignment Preference Statement DA Form 483. The regulation allows officers to state whether or not they desire additional utilization tours, and to evaluate their own qualifications in light of known Army requirements.

Commissaries to Drop More EM Soon

Army commissaries are scheduled to release some 1500 more soldiers to other duties within the next year, according to information released at the Pentagon recently. At Benning, authority has been granted for the hiring of 26 additional civilians in the post commissary in the near future.

Combat Arms Integration Step Taken

Thirty company grade Infantry officers are slated to attend the Career Course at the Armor School in August, and a stepped-up number of Armor officers will attend Infantry Career Course classes here, in an increased combat arms integration program. The move will also satisfy a demand for qualified officers to serve in armored rifle battalions and armored divisions.

Proper Signals Can Prevent Accidents

Capt. Donald E. Hornaday of The Infantry Center Signal Section has suggested that proper signals by drivers might save a lot of accidents. He points out that every day, drivers are seen making turns on the post without rendering a proper signal, or with no signal at all. We agree with him that "with the ever increasing number of automobiles being operated, it becomes more and more important for each driver to render every courtesy possible as a means of reducing the number of accidents."

Civilian Classes to Continue for Colonels

The Office of the Chief of Information plans to continue advanced civilian schooling in communications and journalism for RA colonels and lieutenant colonels on the selected list for promotion. Applications are being taken for a course beginning in September. A four-year utilization tour in the information field follows the course.

Army Distaff Hall Progress

Despite snow, blizzards and mud, evacuation for the Army Distaff Hall in Washington is more than 75 per cent completed, and concrete and footings have been started. This post raised $2,000 last fall for the project, and plan an annual dinner dance with proceeds going to the ADH. These efforts have been sponsored by the post Women's Club.

Red Cross Service Is Year-Round Job

(AFPS) March 15 opened the annual month-long fund raising campaign of the American National Red Cross — a month when we have a chance to show our recognition of this organization's service. That service is 80 years old. If it were to stop tomorrow, Americans would soon realize how much it has meant to the national life, how truly indispensable it is.

Certainly we in the Armed Forces would. Last year alone, the Red Cross gave help of one form or another to 81,000 service families and over 36,000 veterans and their families. There are few of us indeed who have not at some time personally been assisted by it—whether in the hospital, in expediting emergency leave, or getting badly needed financial aid.

Beyond that, our families and friends, wherever they are, have a loyal protector and guardian in the Red Cross. People caught in the recent Southern floods or in the path of the Chicago tornado found that out. Such disasters do not confine their fury to a neat 30-day period.

They strike without warning throughout the year, and every day and night of every month of the year the Red Cross is geared to cope with them.

It's the sort of humanitarian organization that we take for granted until we as individuals need its help, its experience, its advice. Then we see it anew for what it is — a unique agency that embodies the very spirit of Americanism. When we give to it we are part of it, and we can be proud of it.

The Judge Says . . .

BY 1ST LT. HUGH PETERSON, JR.

CON MEN

Gyp artists and tricksters are becoming more and more common this day and time. Their techniques and approaches range through just about everything that can be imagined; they take advantage of a person's pride, his vanity, his desire to make a fast buck, and even his personal grief.

Their aim, however, is simple — to fleece some unsuspecting man or woman, of all they can get away with. Gyp artists and con men congregate in big cities where there are large payrolls. The Columbus area, with its big military payroll and constant turnover of population, is just the kind of place such people go to work in. So be on the alert.

Schemers are often successful because they use flattery to its fullest advantage. A favorite trick is to tell the victim that, because of his outstanding reputation in the community, he has been elected to take advantage of a special offer.

People who think they are getting "something for nothing" only bear the brunt of the "clip man's" racket.

The "obituary buzzard" plays on the sympathy of mourning survivors. A keen observer of obituary notices in local papers, he delivers a COD package, bearing the name of the deceased, to the family of the late relative. The family, thinking the package to be the last thing their loved-one had ordered, pays the $5-$15 which the delivery boy-con man requests. They open the package hopefully, only to find a cheap trinket, fountain pen or even an empty box.

Some gyp artists prey on widows of semipreminent people. The fake says he is compiling a book of famous people and would like to include the widow's husband. After getting some information about the late husband from the unsuspecting woman, the con man's new creature usually runs like this: "Your husband seems so important, Ma'm, that we want to carry his picture in the book." Impressed by the image of her husband, the widow is willing to pay the $900 the theoretical publisher says is necessary for picture-printing.

The "hidden part" trick is an old favorite among gyp artists. Since most people don't understand the mechanics of automobiles, vacuum cleaners or sewing machines, they are often victims of mechanics who add faulty parts or make unnecessary, but expensive changes.

The home repair rackets occur often in rapidly expanding areas. The clipster tells a homeowner his house has been selected as a model for a new type of roofing or siding. The plan sounds convincing to the victim until he discovers — only too late — that he has signed papers promising high payment for the addition to his home.

SURVEYS AND REFERRALS

Gyp artists sometimes pretend to be taking surveys on the popularity of comic strips, for instance. In return for clipping out the daily strip and sending it to a survey company, the comics reader is told he will receive a free set of books. But after signing the contract, the prospect realizes that it calls for full payment of the books.

The 'referral' technique is an old one. A salesman makes an appointment to see both the husband and wife at home some friends 'referred' him to this address. During his talk he tells how to make some money by 'referring' him to some other 'prospects.' However, before he can pay for the leads, some papers must be signed. This is where he makes his score.

The pay promised by the salesman will be much lower than the high-interest note tricked onto the unsuspecting couple. Actually the note signed compels the couple to pay much more than the item is worth.

Chaplain's Corner

By Chaplain (Major) Roy D. Hidy

It is just a few days now until Easter. No doubt most Easter outfits have been purchased, or soon will be. To many people, Easter is little or nothing more than a time to show off new clothes.

Easter is a time to dress up. No one will deny that. It is a custom of long standing. However, Easter is more than a "new look". Easter means "new life". Therefore, if any man be in Christ he is a new creature: old things are passed away; behold all things are become new." (2 Cor 5:17).

The new clothing that a person wears on Easter can and should have a spiritual meaning. To the believer it becomes a symbol of new life in Christ. The world of nature which has been dormant all winter, takes on new life at this season of the year, a new appearance.

The gorgeous colors of spring flowers, new leaves, and sprigs of grass have never been equaled by human artists. So, the putting on of a new Easter outfit should be to the individual, an outward symbol of new inner life. But, a "new look" without "new life" is meaningless so far as the Christian is concerned.

So, on Easter Sunday be more than just a part of the Easter parade; be a worshiper of the Risen Lord, who said "because I live ye shall live also."

U. S. Government Study Course Set

The Army Education Center, Building 2512, has announced a group study course in American Government to be conducted in six periods from March 28 to April 13.

Classes are scheduled from 2:30 to 4:30 p.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays.

Three full semester hours of credits at most colleges are offered in the course.

There is no charge for the course, and no registration is required until the first class.

'One Army' Summer Training Cycle Nears

Fort Benning was wracked by the "Flood of 1961" in February, but the rising waters of the muddy Chattahoochee may have nothing on the flood of humanity that is expected to hit the Harmony Church area this summer.

The reason for this is that the Southeast's citizen-soldiers shed their mantle of "citizen" and become full-fledged soldiers for two weeks while undergoing training when their Army Reserve and National Guard units arrive.

In addition, there will be six weeks of training for Reserve Officer Training Corps (ROTC) students.

Approximately 9,500 Reservists will train at Harmony Church this summer, and an estimated 1,450 ROTC students will arrive.

Lt. Col. Edward B. Craney, chief of the Reserve Components Section, Infantry Center, said that from June 3 to September 10 the total strength of Reservists and cadets at the post will be 14,000.

This number would make Benning one of the largest summer training areas in the U. S. for Reservists, said Col. Craney and would place it near the top in the number of ROTC cadets.

Not only do the Reservists come in the summer months, but there are approximately 3,000 enlisted men and 500 officers not assigned to a unit who come here throughout the year.

Under the Department of the Army's "One-Army" concept, the Reservists will be considered as much a part of the regular establishment as the regular personnel, said Col. Craney.

The Reservists will have no laxity in training, Col. Craney promised, and said there would be "no difference at all" between the Reservists and those already on active duty.

All the Reserve units stationed here for summer training are from the XII Army Corps headquartered in Atlanta and the IV Army Corps with headquarters in Birmingham, Ala.

The 87th Maneuver Area Command and the 3202nd Army Garrison will be the first USAR units to arrive for camp, getting here June 3.

The cadets will arrive for ROTC camp June 17 and stay until completion of the course July 29. They will come from colleges in Georgia, Alabama, Florida, Mississippi and Tennessee. Students will also be here from The Citadel and the University of Puerto Rico. Yale and Notre Dame will have a few students attending camp here because they live in this area.

Preparations have been made throughout the year by the Reserve Components Section, a special staff, which is charged with supporting the ROTC camp and the USAR-National Guard training.

In the ROTC camp, the cadets will receive 264 hours of instruction, 40 of which will be presented by The Infantry School. The remaining instruction will be given by instructors in the various ROTC departments.

Some of the ROTC students will receive their commissions at the completion of camp. Eighty-seven received commissions last summer at the end of camp.

May 31 Through September 25

Application Periods Announced For Destin, Florida, Rest Camp

Booking periods for reservations for The Infantry Center Rest Camp at Destin, Fla., have been established for the summer season, as May 31 through September 25. During this period, guests will be limited to one reservation of a five day period.

Booking months have been divided into a period of approximately 30 days each, and further divided into reservation periods of five days each. Initial date of acceptance of applications for each booking month will be announced in the daily bulletin. This will be 30 days prior to the booking month and only applications for the announced booking month will be accepted.

Applications for reservations will be submitted on standard forms, which can be obtained at the Special Services Office, and at all service clubs.

Cabins at the rest camp are available at a charge of $5.00 per night as a family rate. A family is defined as the head of a family and dependents. A charge of one dollar per night will be made for each guest of a family occupying a cabin. Rental fees will be paid at least seven days prior to the effective date of the reservation at the Special Services Office.

The final date for submission of applications for reservations is April 30.

Priority for reservations will be given to applicants who have never visited the rest camp. Other priorities will be based on the length of time since an applicant last visited the rest camp and reservations determined by a drawing of applications of like priority for that period.

Persons who have been selected by drawing will be notified immediately. If reservations are not accepted, the vacancies will be filled from a waiting list. Individuals, may resubmit applications for later booking months if they are not selected from their initial applications.

Lt. McNellis Attends Two-Day Course at Auburn

First Lt. John O. McNellis, Martin Army Hospital veterinary clinic, was one of 32 veterinarians from 14 states and Puerto Rico taking part in two-day short course at Auburn University last week.

Lieutenant McNellis took part in the clinical pathology section which was held in the School of Veterinary Medicine. Dr. P. A. Teer was course leader.

Rotary Day Observance Scheduled

Fort Benning Rotary Day will be celebrated March 29 with approximately 185 Rotarians from Columbus, Phenix City and the post gathering at the Main Officers' Open Mess.

Easter and St. Patrick Spark Dental Luncheon

St. Patrick and Easter bonnets were the topics of conversation at the Fort Benning Dental Wives Luncheon held in the Anzio Room of the Main Officer's Open Mess recently.

Green hatboxes, gaily decorated with white satin bows and Spring flowers adorned the tables set for four and shamrocks and dancing leprechauns on the walls set the scene for the dual theme.

Following lunch, Mrs. Wallace Lancaster announced there would be a hat fashion show. The creations modeled were designed by the members of each table using the contents of the table's hatbox centerpiece. The very original "chapeaux" used themes of Easter baskets, fresh vegetables and fruit, bread and crackers, kitchen and bath accessories.

The table on the West Porch held a colorful Easter egg tree at one end and a white dogwood arrangement at the other.

The committee handling the luncheon arrangements included Mrs. Wallace Lancaster, chairman, Mrs. D. M. Andrews, Mrs. Robert H. Williams and Mrs. David E. Cimiello.

A short business meeting was held at which time the new officers for the coming year were introduced. Mrs. Thomas K. Goodman will serve as chairman, Mrs. Robert H. Williams is the new secretary-treasurer and Mrs. Charles H. Johnson will be the program chairman.

I know of better signs of spring than the sign of Aries. Why a ram should lead the spring parade is beyond all feminine reasoning. This astronomical aodica symbol was evidently without a doubt the working of a masculine mind: an unmarried man, unbothered by girlish whims. And, in fact, compromised upon before the days of women's voting. Anyway what I'm trying to say is that: if we could do it all over again, I'm sure the ladies would've renamed the constellation with something a little more appropriate for spring. F'instance: the sign of the baby lamb, chick, cherry blossom, spring cleaning, brother combing his hair before visiting the girl next door, or... the sign of the budding new fashions... voila!

All kinds of fashions will be on display (upon the Woman's Club models) April 5 at "April in Paris". Just circle this date for the luncheon; you'll be hearing more about this.

As I mentioned last week, an election will take place at the April luncheon. To satisfy the popular demand for the names of those nominated, here is the roll call: Mrs. Richard W. Keyes, or Mrs. Cyril D. Sterner for president; Mrs. Elliott Landiff, or Mrs. Mrs. Braxton E. Small for 1st vice - president; Mrs. Leonard L. Keene, or Mrs. Byrd Sergeant for 2nd vice-president; Mrs. Charles J. Benge, or Mrs. Eugene M. Orton for treasurer; Mrs. Charles C. Robertson, Jr., or Mrs. Joseph B. Starker for corresponding secretary; Mrs. Raymond T. Carabello, or Mrs. Ralph L. Whitt for recording secretary; Mrs. William F. Dellinger, or Mrs. Fred Bliss for custodian.

A new office to be implanted into the elected board of members is that of parliamentarian. This member will advise the rest as to correct procedure of the Woman's Club business meetings. This courageous post will go to either Mrs. Robert S. Poydasheff, or Mrs. Dion Johnson.

I wonder what it would be like to see the ladies nominated for president engage in a TV debate?

Toastmistress Club March Meet Includes a Variety of Subjects

Mrs. Grace Woolf was guest general evaluator of the recent Fort Benning - Columbus Toastmistress Club meeting.

Mrs. Woolf has helped organize several chapters of Toastmistress in the Atlanta area and has a wide knowledge of Toastmistress International.

Mrs. Royce Hurst, Toastmistress, introduced Mrs. Wilfred Losee and Mrs. Robert Morris who gave icebreaker speeches. Mrs. Losee spoke of the evacuation of her village in France during WWII; "Evacuation Days", and Mrs. Morris told of an exciting trip through Thailand, "One Thousand Miles in a Land Rover." Mrs. Losee was later voted "Speaker of the Evening".

The Topicmistress, Mrs. James Bell, then called upon several members to discuss their husbands' recent orders.

During the business portion of the meeting, the nominating committee reported and a volunteer committee was formed to head the chapter and installation banquet planned for May.

Anyone interested in this organization may contact Mrs. James Bell at MU 9-6077.

How to Become a Budding Genius

Originality of design, new ideas in flower arranging equipment, and tricks to make blooms last longer — all these can make flower arranging more relaxing and rewarding.

To achieve fresh originality and avoid monotony in your arrangements, seek contrast — of color, texture, form. Combine rough with smooth, dark with light, round with spear shapes. Use warm-hued flowers in rooms with cool or neutral color schemes, cool-looking flowers in warm-colored rooms. Have you a room in which wood paneling is extensively used? A foliage arrangement — or green leaves teamed with white blooms — is a beautiful contrast to the wood tones.

Remember that the space between flowers can be as important to the whole design as the flowers themselves. Don't go along with the reluctance of many flower arrangers to use fresh flowers and dried foliage together—you'll not only get some striking effects, but stretch your flower budget as well.

Unless you are a past master of the art — Oriental flower arranging schools, incidentally, give their best graduates the charming title of "Flower Master" — combine your daring contrasts with respect for the basic rules. Dark colors usually look best low in an arrangement, because they tend to look heavier than pale hues. If you are using a tall vase, the safe general rule lets the flowers extend above its rim from 1 and a half to 2 times the height of the container. For arrangements in low containers, the usual rule dictates that the tallest stem equal 1 and a half to 2 times the length or diameter of the bowl.

BASIC SHAPES

It's hard to go wrong if you begin with a definite design in mind. The triangle, a popular basic shape, lends itself to many variations in height and width. First establish the height and width of your composition with foliage and flowers, then fill in the center with your biggest blooms.

Flowers arranged in a circular pattern are pleasing to the eye, and you can avoid the threat of monotony by using pointed foliage to contrast with the dominant round floral shapes.

Limited for space? Try a tall torch - shaped arrangement. Gladioli, with their spear-shaped leaves, are a natural for this, but there are many other tall plant materials from which to choose. If you're designing a centerpiece for the dinner table, why not let your floral design follow a convex curve? Attractive from every angle, this type of arrangement need not be tall to be effective — and, if it's kept low, doesn't hamper across-the-table-talk.

More sophisticated shapes include the crescent, the right-angle triangle and the Hogarth curve. The serpentine S-curve, called, by English artist Hogarth "The line of beauty," is a favorite entry in flower shows.

Both crescent and right-angle triangle are attractively asymmetrical, and therefore popular with arrangers whose taste runs to the modern rather than the traditional. Before experimenting with a crescent-shaped arrangment, be sure the stems of your flowers are pliant enough to be manipulated easily. Right-angle triangle designs are usually best in shallow rectangular containers. The triangle may face right or left, depending on the niche you've selected from the finished arrangement.

Whenever a flower design is to be seen from both sides, remember to turn it around as you work, making sure that each side is as eye-pleasing as the other.

Whether your floral genius is in full bloom or still in the bud, the equipment you work with can make a significant difference in the success of your finished design. Consider containers first; you should have at least four in these basic shapes: low, round bowl, shallow, rectangular one, tall, rectangular or tall pillow vase, tall, columnar vase.

The containers should average from 8 to 12 inches in height or width. Color is as important as size and shape. Your best bets are neutral shades (brown, beige, green, gray, white and off-white) that won't compete with flower hues. If ever you do want a bright container, you may be able to use a dish or pitcher from your closet. As time goes on, you'll be surprised at the flexibility and imagination you will use in choosing flower containers; hurricane lamps, bottles, cake stands will all be grist for your mill.

Shamrocks, Lunch Theme

It was "a great day for the Irish" — and an interesting one for the ladies of the Command and Staff Department at their recent luncheon held at the Custer Terrace branch of the Main Officers' Open Mess. Tables were decorated in honor of St. Patrick and even the waiters wore Kelly green jackets!

Hostessing for the luncheon were the ladies of the Advanced Tactics, Personnel & Logistics Committee headed by Mrs. Everett V. Mead. Assisting were Mesdames Lester Barlow, John Bohen, Michael Cerrone, William Maloney, Wilbur Ross, Martin Schroeder, and Louis S. Stickney, Jr.

Guests at the luncheon were Mesdames W. L. Blair, Glenn H. Gardner, Dan Moses and Bernard D. Wheeler.

Mrs. Lee Revell, assisted by Mrs. Gwenn Peerson, put on a delightfully interesting and lively demonstration on how to mold a body beautiful to better health. As a door prize, her studio awarded a free figure and facial analysis and use of the studio for a week.

Service Club Hosts 2 Columbus Speakers

The directors of the two Columbus USO Clubs were featured guests recently at the Main Post Service Club's Enlisted Men's Advisory Council meeting.

Jenni Johnson on Etiquette

Mrs. Dorothy Westbrook, 9th Street USO, and Mr. Henry H. Bynum, 8th Avenue USO, discussed the mission of the USO, where they are located in Columbus, and what each is offering.

They explained that the junior hostesses of the clubs are girls who work in Columbus or are going to college and that they are carefully screened before being accepted as hostesses.

Mrs. Westbrook said the girls from the USO will be at some of the service club activities on Post.

"You would be surprised at how many girls do not know how to properly dress, apply make-up, or hold a conversation without letting it lag," said Mr. Bynum.

For this reason, the girls are given a five-week orientation course on these things and on the USO club in general.

Mrs. Cochran, Main Post Service Club director, said the service club will work in cooperation with the USO. She also explained the coming remodeling of the service club. It is to be completely re-decorated inside and will have a bandshell built in the patio for evening concerts.

The remainder of the meeting was given to introduction of committee chairmen of the Enlisted Men's Advisory Council, which helps plan activities for the Main Post Service Club.

The committee chairmen are: Pfc Harold Kitching, publicity committee; Sgt. Leo McCracken, clean-up committee; SSc Bismark Stith, contests and tourneys committee; MSgt. John Sysock, refreshment committee; Mrs. Cochran, program planning; Pfc Jack Gross, talent committee.

DEAR JENNI: ". . .Nor did Alice think it so very much out of the way to hear the Rabbit say to itself, "Oh dear! Oh dear! I shall be too late . ." Are you frequently in the same predicament as Lewis Carroll's rabbit? I am, and a world full of Alices do not help.

OFTEN LATE

DEAR OFTEN LATE: There are several functions to which you must not arrive late, unless of course a true emergency delays you and you can not call or send a message. One of these is the dinner party. To keep your hostess waiting and guessing about your arrival and your welfare is unforgivable.

If you find you will be a little late (maybe the baby bit the sitter and it may take from 4 to 16 minutes to reconcile both and it's a 5 minute drive to the party so you could be almost 30 minutes late) then give your hostess a call. Tell her you'll be on your way in a few minutes. This call is most important, it may not affect dinner one bit or it may save the rolls from being burned. At least you cannot spoil the dinner by calling, and you will not become nearly so distraught and upset at the delay yourself. Things will get under control faster and you'll be more at ease when you greet your hostess knowing apologies are not necessary.

This bad habit of being late is one problem which I must keep after just as the overweight person must plan her meals all the time and not give way to eating sprees. I must plan my time for I frequently try to do too much.

One day I had a very important engagement in the evening. I had to perfect a speech to give and finish sewing my dress to wear. There were several other little projects including cleaning the kitchen stove that I wanted to do that day. But for once a bit of wisdom poked her head in and I did my speech and dress first and you guessed it, I never even got to the stove.

You can imagine the panic if I'd cleaned the stove first. Don't attempt too much, and for delays which seem to be chronic such as fussy children allow some extra time just in case, and you won't have to run that red light. TO BUDGET TIME IS MUCH MORE DIFFICULT THAN MONEY . . . NOTHING IS ON SALE.

Post Hosts 100 Florida ROTC

The post played host to 100 Florida ROTC cadets last week — one of three groups visiting The Infantry Center in March and April — who attended briefings on Infantry operations, Army aviation and the "Role of the Infantry".

Representing Florida Agricultural and Mechanical University and Florida State College at Tallahassee, the cadets also visited the Infantry Museum and 1st Infantry Brigade.

Arrangements for the group's visits are made by The Infantry Center Reserve Components Section.

Guest speaker for the occasion was the Division G-1 (Personnel), Lieutenant Colonel Byrd R. Sergent. He gave the future non coms tips gathered from his experience as a member of various promotion boards during the past few years.

Following his address, Colonel Sergent presented the Certificates of Graduation to the 27 Division and 18 Infantry Center students.

Overall Honor Graduate, Private First Class Henry A. Horsman, and the Honor Graduate for Academics, Private First Class Lovell C. Crandall, are assigned to the same company, Company B of the 702nd Ordnance Battalion. Honor Graduate for Military Aptitude was Specialist First Class Thomas S. Turner, Troop C, 7th Cavalry.

Delivering the invocation and benediction for the graduation was the 2nd Division Chaplain, Chaplain (Major) James H. Fiser. Colonel Sergent was introduced to the graduates by the Academy Commandant, Captain James R. Woodall.

'At War' Closes Benning Sat-Sun; To Play Rucker

By Div PIO

The Sand Hill Actors Guild production of "At War with the Army" concludes its three-day Fort Benning run Saturday and Sunday at 7:30 p.m. at Service Club Two in the Sand Hill area.

The three-act farce-comedy, directed by Lieutenant Nelson L. Marsh of the 9th Infantry, features Private Ashley Hopkins of Division Trains in the role of "the Last Private." Starring in "At War" are Corporal Joseph Wachter of the 15th Artillery. Private First Class David Csanyi of the 9th Infantry and Private Richard Mitchell of the 13th Transportation Battalion.

The Actors Guild Spring 1961 presentation officially opened last Sunday night, March 19, before an enthusiastic standing-room-only house of 450. Two full-dress rehearsals on March 18 were open and more than 250 people viewed the play's final preparations.

Transportation

Transportation will be provided at Service Club Number Four for all Kelley Hill personnel wishing to attend. The closing Sunday night will be open to all civilians as well as the military. Admission to both performances is free and an abundance of free parking is available.

Despite some lighting trouble in the first act on opening night, "At War with the Army" flowed along smoothly and kept the packed house audience laughing from start to finish. Pvt. Hopkins drew a loud round of applause for his portrayal of the newly-inducted recruit.

Chorus Needs 1 Bonnie Piper

By Div PIO

It would appear that the 2nd Division doesn't have many bonnie bagpipers with, in its ranks.

In fact, an extensive search has failed to uncover a single musician who has mastered the instrument, traditional, of course, to Scotland.

Specialist Four Lester Gibbs, director of the 2nd Division Band Chorus, needs a piper for several Highlander-type selections the Band Chorus plans to present during its forth coming Spring Concerts.

This yet-to-be-delivered piper, says Gibbs, need not sound Scottish — as long as his bagpipe does.

Interested pipers should contact Gibbs at the Division Chaplain's section, Liberty 4-7514 or Liberty 4-7223.

1st Infantry Commences Final OVUREP Training Phase Here

BY JOHN O'CONNOR

The 1st Infantry began the last phase of its OVUREP training recently when the battle group mobilized to complete the first in a series of field training exercises.

This Advanced Unit Training phase aims at drawing the elements of the battle group together to produce a cohesive combat-ready unit by May. 12.

The field exercise took place in the northeastern part of the reservation. An operational readiness alert preceded the three-day exercise in which Company C acted as an aggressor unit opposing the battle group.

Aggressor patrols harassed battle group positions to simulate realistic combat conditions. Chalk marks were placed on vehicles and weapons to indicate their capture. Umpires reported casualties and deaths during the mock battle. Propaganda broadcasts were carried over loudspeakers nightly to further approximate combat conditions.

The field exercise emphasized both defensive and offensive strategy. An offensive action was launched by the battle group allowing each company to attack the aggressors as they retreated.

A tank and mechanized infantry attack was also launched against the aggressor forces, employing units of the 2nd Medium Tank Battalion, 69th Armor and the 13th Transportation Battalion. Close air support was provided by helicopters from the 2nd Aviation Company. The helicopters were also used for observation and simulated evacuation of casualties by air.

The completion of AUT will be followed by Army Training Tests for the battle group. The 1st Infantry is the second OVUREP unit to train with the 2d Infantry Division and will leave for California in July.

Div Men Win Honors At Post Talent Show

BY DIV PIO

A 9th Infantry tenor, an instrumental combo and two comedians and an organist from the 1st Infantry won top honors at Tuesday night's Fort Benning-level phase of the All-Army Entertainment Contest.

Private First Class David Csanyi's renditions of "I'm Gonna Live Til I Die" and "Stranger in Paradise" were enough to cop the top vocal soloist award. Runner-up was Lt. Douglas Campbell, Headquarters, 1st Infantry.

The Joe Henderson Combo, composed of 2nd Division Band members, walked off with top honors in the instrumental group division.

The 1st Infantry's Private Ted Pugh earned a first-place spot with his comical skit. Pugh then teamed with Pvt. Charles Cook, also of the 1st, to grab off top honors in the specialty group with a comedy dance. WAC PFC. Roberta Rowe, Main Post, won runner-up honors with a Hula Dance.

Organist Private Peter Casiani, 1st Infantry, won a top spot in the instrumental soloist division. Private Rudolph Thomas, 702nd Ordnance Battalion, played the steel drums to win the runner-up position in that category.

11th Welcomed By Gen. Hardick, Col. J. E. Arthur

BY 11TH INF. PIO

Theater 11, Harmony Church was the setting last Saturday morning for the official greeting of the cadre officers and enlisted men of the 11th Infantry by the Division Commander and the Battle Group Commanding Officer.

Brigadier General William L. Hardick, division commander, called the cadre's attention to the challenge they face in converting themselves and untrained civilians into a combat-ready battle group in the period of 33 weeks. He also pointed out the big advantage in working with the same personnel with the lowest possible turnover, throughout the two year mission of the battle group.

The Cadre then heard their commanding officer, Colonel John E. Arthur, discuss many facets of the task ahead of them. He outlined the problems and demands the officers and men of the cadre will face during the next several months. He covered the standards of performance, personal affairs, goals and objectives stemming from the mission of the Sixth OVUREP Unit, the first to be constituted from "zero" personnel strength. The other five OVUREP units have been constituted by redesignating existing battle groups, with retention of considerable cadre personnel.

Colonel Arthur closed his talk with a reminder that the non-prior service personnel will soon be arriving, and called on the cadre to be completely ready to receive and train them.

2 Units Qualify For Savings Bond Purchase Award

Combat Support Company of the 87th Infantry and Company A of the 2nd Engineer Battalion have qualified to receive Minute Man Awards for their participation in the savings bond program, according to the division Finance Office.

The awards, presented for 65 percent participation by units of at least 100 men, are made on a yearly and a training cycle basis.

Applications from the two division companies have been forwarded to Third US Army, the Finance Office said. These units qualified for the award on the training cycle basis. Presentation of the awards is to be made at a later date.

Lieutenant Ronald R. McGee, of the Finance Office, said this is the first time during this calendar year that any division units have qualified for the Minute Man Award.

Helicopter Helps 1st's Mail Clerk Perform Duties

By 1st Inf PIO

Until recently, battle group mail clerk, Private Franklin D. Richardson seldom ventured from his tiny 1st Infantry mail room. During the battle group's initial field training exercise of Advanced Unit Training, he was required to make field mail deliveries. The exercise was being conducted in a remote section of the reservation and Pvt. Richardson braced himself for what he thought would be a jolting ride by jeep to field headquarters.

His transportation arrived, and five minutes later, he found himself and his airmail hovering over Fort Benning in a helicopter. Within twenty minutes he was distributing mail in the field. The helicopter was supplied by the 2nd Aviation Company which gave close air support to the battle group against mock aggressor units.

The flying mail clerk of the 1st Infantry is grounded once again, but there are future field exercises scheduled which may require maildrops and his assistance.

Sioux, Thai Join 87th Inf As BCT Cycle Starts

By 87th Inf. PIO

The past two weeks have provided the 2nd Division's Conqueror's with their long awaited troops. The non-prior service personnel represented almost every section of the country; however, it seems most troops have entered from the Mid-West and Plains States. Training began on March 6 with the Basic Combat Training cycle.

Among the first soldiers to arrive was Recruit James T. Standing Bear, a Sioux Indian from Norris, South Dakota, where he was employed as a cattle rancher. Recruit Standing Bear arrived with nine other men from Fort Riley, Kansas. Three new-comers into the Army were assigned to Company A, commanded by Captain Alan T. Brownell.

Captain Ronald R. Berkey, Company B commander boasts that he has the most unique soldier in Sermjot Payaknili who left Thailand in 1958 to attend aeronautical engineering in the U.S.

The young Thai from Bangkok now hopes to gain his U.S. citizenship and remain here after his discharge. And, in flawless English, he adds that he may continue in the Army, making it his career.

87th's Commander Cites Company D's Efficiency

By 87th Inf PIO

Company D of the 87th Infantry was recently cited by Colonel Robert E. Connor, battle group commander, for its performance as a holding company during the battle group fill of non-prior service personnel.

In a letter of appreciation addressed to the Company Commander, Captain George E. McKenna, Colonel Connor thanked the company for its services and stated "The courteous, cordial, and efficient manner in which the non-prior service personnel were greeted reflects highly upon your unit and the 87th Infantry."

Company D received a total of 715 recruits for the "Conquerors" and was responsible for them until permanent company assignments were given by the Battle Group.

Korea-bound soldiers were met at any time of the day or night by "spit-polished" NCO guides and were escorted into the company area. Recruits arriving in the daylight hours were fed and given introductory classes in military courtesy and in dismounted drill, subjects fundamental to their becoming OVUREP soldiers.

Personnel arriving at night were fed and promptly quartered in the Company D area. Groups ranging in size from five to 105 were received on little or no notice. One group of 94 unloaded from buses at 1:30 a.m. hours.

Overlapping of incoming recruit shipments filled the Company D area with as many as 180 new soldiers at a time; in addition to the normal complement of the company. After records processing by the 87th Personnel Section, the recruits were moved to their permanent companies to begin their two-year OVUREP cycle mission training to become men doing men's jobs, ready anywhere, anytime, after October 7, 1961.

Two 87th Sport Chutists Grab Top Spots in Intra-Club Contest

By Div PIO

Two 87th Infantry NCOs recently walked off with first place honors in their respective classes in an intra-club skydiving contest held by the Fort Benning Sport Parachute Club.

Sergeant First Class Robert D. Honkapillar, Company A, walked off with first place in the "Class A" competition, a 2,800-foot jump with a five-second free fall.

The "Class C" event, a 4,300-foot jump with 15 seconds free fall, was won by Sergeant Patrick D. McTamany of the 7th's Company B.

An estimated 1,000 spectators witnessed the intra-club contest at Sightseeing Field in which contestants jumped at heights ranging from 2,800 to 10,000 feet with a period of free fall from five to 45 seconds.

Winners in each class were determined by their accuracy in landing on a target in the center of a 200-foot circle. The chutists started with 100 points, but lost a point for each foot that they landed away from the target.

McGee Holds Distinction In Fast Rank

By 87th Inf PIO

The Platoon Sergeant of the 1st Platoon, Company E, 1st Battle Group, 87th Infantry, is one of those people one hears about, but seldom ever meets.

Sergeant First Class George R. McGee has the distinction of having risen from Private First Class to a Platoon Sergeant in two and one-half months.

Sfc McGee entered the service in 1946 at the age of 18, and, like most young men of the day, served his three year enlistment and returned to civilian life. Finding jobs hard to get, he enlisted again in 1950 and was immediately sent to Japan to join the 19th Regiment of the 3rd Infantry Division. He was sent to Korea, but due to a severe case of frostbite, was returned to Japan and hospitalized until spring of 1951.

He again returned to Korea as a member of the 1st Cavalry, serving as an ammunition bearer. In mid summer he was promoted and assigned to a rifle squad as assistant squad leader, later to become squad leader when his squad leader became a casualty. Promoted to Sergeant, he then became assistant platoon sergeant and later that month was promoted to a platoon sergeant.

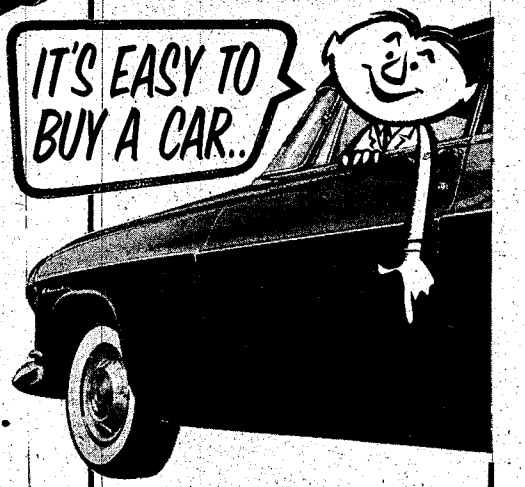
Carden Saves Soldier's Life At Rifle Range

By 7th Cavalry PIO

Recruit Robert D. Carden, Troop A, 7th Cavalry, displayed outstanding courage recently and is credited with saving the life of a fellow soldier.

The event took place on Malone Range Number 10 when a sudden near-hurricane-force gust of wind up-rooted a large pine tree. The familiar timberman's cry of "Timber" sounded by Recruit Joey Robinson was not heard by the soldier, who was standing directly in the path of the crashing tree.



Recruit Carden, who had heard the warning and had moved to safety, suddenly noticed his friend was unaware of the pending disaster. Carden raced back into the danger area and quickly hurled himself at his friend pushing him to safety.

March Luncheon Held By Indianhead Ladies

It was a great day for the Irish when the Ladies of the Big Indianhead held their regular monthly luncheon at the Sand Hill NCO Open Mess, on Thursday, March the 9th. The tables wore the green, flaunting traditional shamrocks, clay pipes, and Kelly green derbies in a creditable salute to St. Patrick.

The highlight of the afternoon was a showing of spring hats, selected for their suitability to take a basic costume from a morning shopping spree to an early evening cocktail party. Models were the Mesdames Lupe Barron, John P. Hoebee, Thomas J. Tobin, and Thomas V. Ramsey. Mrs. Lawrence W. Smith was the fashion commentator.

The hat doorprize was won by Mrs. Melvin Hanson, the gay St. Patrick's Day cake by Mrs. Stephen J. Regan. Decorations were by Mrs. Joseph Volker.

It is with a good deal of reluctance that the club said goodbye to Mrs. Harry H. Holliday, one of its most active members. Mrs. Holliday has capably discharged her duties as treasurer since last June. She has also acted in the capacities of program chairman and sergeant at arms, as well as volunteering her services wherever they have been needed for Post organizations are well as the ladies club.

New members for the month of March are Mrs. Ralph Register, Mrs. Melvin Hanson, Mrs. William Thorman, and Mrs. James Patterson.

As the fulfillment of a vow to low score Ladies of the Big Indianhead bowlers, on Friday, March 10th, the club president, Mrs. John Popik, gave a coffee honoring Mrs. Robert P. Jemison and Mrs. Harry H. Holliday, both of whom achieved the unexpected. Mrs. Holliday, since she will not be present for the end of the year bowling awards, was presented a trophy for one of the ranking scores of the season.

The Mission For a Chaplain

By Chaplain (Capt.) Frank E. Deese

It was 7:20 in the evening, just getting dark.

A long train stood on the siding at one of our southern military posts. An entire battle group of combat ready men had just finished loading and were ready to leave for the west coast and thence to our northernmost outpost in Korea.

As the battle group chaplain of the outfit replacing the departing men, I stood with other officers of my headquarters to see them off. All the men and their duffle bags, were now on board.

The Colonel who commanded came swiftly along trainside to mount his car directly in front of us. As he came abreast our group he stopped and called to me. I stepped forward, wondering, I had known this man for only a month, but what he said to me that evening I'll always remember.

These were his words: "Chaplain, speak to my little girl soon, I believe she's about ready to make her decision for Christ." He mounted the train and it moved off into the darkness.

In the stillness I turned to my car, my heart overflowing. Here was a full colonel, charged with tremendous responsibility, facing long months away from home; his last thought in that hour — that his little one should know Christ.

A heart overflowing, yes, then the crushing question came, how many parents in good settled home situations are showing concern for their children in every area except the one great area, the relationship to Christ?

A Quick Look At Important Safety Facts

Regardless of the type of work you do, you are much safer on the job than when you are away from it.

37 are killed by motor vehicles.

30 die through accidents in the home.

18 lose their lives away from both work and home.

—But only 15 are killed on the job.

Much the same situation exists with regard to accidental injuries.

So you cannot be safety minded only while you are at work. Your safety is your full time job.

The Code Says

BY DIV PIO

Today, the career men and women of the Armed Forces serve as bulwarks of democracy both here in the United States and in many lands around the world. These career professionals are backed up by others who are serving their military obligations on active and reserve status.

Together this joint team which makes up the Armed Forces of the United States is prepared to defend the life, liberty and pursuit of happiness concepts which mark the American way of life as a distinctive pattern of individual freedoms.

As a written guide for members of this joint team, the Code of Conduct was established during the 50's. This simple expression of high ideals confirms the principles which have always marked the American fighting man.

Today, we of the Armed Forces uphold this Code since it means that our descendants will also be free to enjoy the American way. The Code is printed conveniently on a wallet-sized card to be carried by servicemen and women everywhere; but, more importantly, it should be committed to memory as an expression of our ideals.

Here is the first of the six articles contained in the Code of Conduct. Learn it by heart for you must represent it by heart:

I AM AN AMERICAN FIGHTING MAN. I SERVE IN THE FORCES WHICH GUARD MY COUNTRY AND OUR WAY OF LIFE. I AM PREPARED TO GIVE MY LIFE IN THEIR DEFENSE.

1st Inf Slated For Quick Serve Meal Testing

By 1st Inf PIO

The 1st Infantry has been selected to test new types of quick-serve rations which may result in new and better meals for soldiers in the field.

The new rations consist of dehydrated food products arranged in 21 menus for the three meals. With these rations, a soldier needs only to add water, hot or cold, to obtain a tasty meal. The rations are packed in six and twenty-five meal packets. A six meal packet can be prepared by one man, while two are needed for the preparation of the 25 meal packet.

This is the second time the 1st Infantry has acted as a test unit during its QMUREP training. Last November, 250 men of the battle group were selected for the testing of a new type combat boot, the Fort Knox V Last.

The U.S. Army Infantry Board is conducting these taste tests, with 2nd Division Quartermaster Company handling the ration issue.

Practice Speeds Radio Operators In Proficiency

By 2nd Engr PIO

The Communications Section of the 2nd Engineer Battalion has inaugurated a program of training for radio operators designed to develop and maintain the proficiency of its personnel.

The belief that "practice makes perfect" was translated into action under the direction of Lieutenant Preston L. Johnson and Sergeant Larry M. Bonnot through the use of a unique training device designed by the members of the section. It uses a radio set AN-GRR-5 as a continuous wave producer in order to simulate a code oscillator. A telegraph key breaks the wave and thus simulates the dot-dash effect of an actual sender.

Four men or more can be trained at one time, Sgt. Bonnot stated that the program of four hours practice a week has increased proficiency demonstrably.

7 Branches Top Unit Assignments

By 9th Inf. PIO

In keeping with its extensive and flexible training program, the 9th Infantry also provides an excellent Infantry proving ground for officers of seven Army technical and administrative service branches while these officers are serving out their Infantry detail.

No less than 26 Regular Army officers are representing their basic technical or administrative services while completing their two-year combat branch detail obligations with the "Keep Up the Fire" unit.

Most of the detail officers are assigned to the 9th's line companies as Infantry platoon leaders. However, others fill such jobs as assistant staff officers, Battle Group Team Instructors, and as company executive officers.

The detail officers, numbering two captains and 24 lieutenants, thus are gaining first-hand knowledge of the Infantry's methods of operation. Together with the knowledge accrued from their own basic branches, these officers will emerge with a comprehensive and extensive acquaintance of the Army's combat and supporting elements.

Two Captains

Leading the 9th Infantry's squadron of detail officers are the two captains, Paul Burns and James George. Captain Burns, the 9th's assistant adjutant, is the sole representative of the Finance Corps. Newly - promoted Captain George serves as executive officer of Company B and will depart in April when he returns to his basic branch, the Military Police Corps.

The largest contingent in the 9th from any one branch comes from the Transportation Corps with nine detail officers. The TC group includes Lieutenant Robert Chenoweth, assistant S-2; Lieutenant Warren Dunnington, courts and boards officer; and Lieutenant James Izatt, on temporary duty with the 2nd Engineer Battalion.

Transportation Corps officers serving as 9th Infantry platoon leaders include Lieutenants William Barrett, Company E; James Dowds, Company A; Earl Patterson, Company B; and Grady Webster, Company D. Lieutenant Frank Gundaker is executive officer of Company E., and Lieutenant Theodore Benson serves as Combat Support "exec."

Military Police Corps

Captain George heads the six-man Military Police Corps group on Infantry detail with the 9th. A Company B platoon leader, Lieutenant Alvin Aucoin is included. Other detail officers are Lieutenants William Brett, on temporary duty with the 2nd Engineers; William Oakes, Company D platoon leader; Daniel Caprio, liaison officer with the S-3 section; and Billy White, Company A executive officer.

Quartermaster Corps

The Quartermaster Corps is well represented with five officers on detail. All are platoon leaders in the 9th Infantry. The quartermaster detail officers are Lieutenants William Hannen, Combat Support Company; Charles Miller, Company D; Laurence Sorini, Company C; James Howard Company E. and Jerry White, Company B.

Other Branches

Other branches represented in the 9th are the Adjutant General's Corps, the Chemical Corps, and the Ordnance Corps. Assistant adjutant, Lieutenant Harry Wise, is serving on detail from the Adjutant General's Corps. Lieutenant James Newbill, weapons pool officer, lists Ordnance as his basic branch.

The Chemical Corps assemblage is headed by the Company C executive officer, Lieutenant Sheron Weary. The other Chemical Corps officers are Lieutenants Thomas Ginez, Company A; and William Speicher, Company E.

HE SAW WWII INSIDE A GERMAN WORK CAMP

BY 11TH INF. PIO

A young man who spent the greater part of World War II living in a German work camp presently is assigned to the 11th Infantry.

Specialist Four Wsewolod Budkiewicz, who speaks seven languages, was born in Luck, Ukraine, in 1936, but moved with his family in 1941 to Germany, where his parents were required to work in a German work camp until the end of World War II. They later were freed and transferred to a Displaced Person Camp in Germany.

While living in Germany, Budkiewicz graduated from high school, attended a machinist school and, in 1958, joined the U.S. Army. He subsequently studied English for six months at Fort Jackson, S.C., thus becoming proficient in his seventh language.

He attributes a great part of his fluent command of German, Russian, Polish, Ukrainian, Bulgarian and Czechoslovakian to an uncle, a language professor at Latwien University, and his father, who speaks many languages fluently.

Budkiewicz would someday like to become a U.S. citizen. His parents, however, must stay in Europe because of his mother's failing health.

23rd Beats 'Conquerors' Two Straight

By 23rd Inf PIO

The 23rd Infantry's volleyball spikers exploded onto the floor of The Harmony Church Field House Monday night and put on a display of teamwork and coordination which aided them in copping two straight sets from the 87th Infantry.

The 87th rolled up a quick seven point lead in the early minutes of the first encounter leading the 23rd 8-1. The 87th's lead was gradually narrowed, and the set ended with the 23rd on the right end of a 15-10 score.

In the second set the "We Servers" took the lead and held it from the very beginning. The final score of that match was 15-5, 23rd.

An Olympic Event

Modern Pentathlon Is Mystery to Many

(AFPS) — It's been an Olympic event for 47 years, yet the modern pentathlon remains a mystery to many rabid sports fans.

A popular event throughout Europe, pentathlon in the United States is synonymous with Ft. Sam Houston, Tex., where the Army puts hopeful candidates through a year-round training schedule.

Pentathlon is a Greek word meaning five contests and was first used to condition warriors for battle. It was introduced as an Olympic event by the Greeks in 776 B.C. Then, as today, only the most versatile athletes excelled in pentathlon.

It probably receives little publicity here because the five sports comprising the pentathlon are minor. Also, only four athletes make up a team which competes for the United States just three or four times a year.

A pentathlon champion is crowned after scores are totaled in each of the five sports: shooting — pistol or revolver (20 shots at 25 meters); fencing — with epee (dueling sword); cross-country run — (4,000 meters); riding — (3,500 meters cross-country) and swimming — (300 meter freestyle).

In 776 B.C the five contests were running, jumping, throwing the discus and javelin and wrestling. Pentathlon was forgotten after the games were abolished in 394 A.D.

The Olympics were revived in 1896 but the pentathlon didn't become one of the events until 1912 when it was smashed modern pentathlon, retaining only running from the original Greek version.

It is considered a military event and one of the most rugged on the Olympics schedule. Pentathlon athletes are rarely specialists in any of the five sports but have acquired the basic skills of all.

Benning Junior Bowlers Cop Two Wins at Albany

Two teams of Fort Benning's teenage bowlers traveled to Albany, Ga., for a return match with the AJBC Bowlers. The Senior Team, led by a big 556 series tossed by Curry Bagley, revenged a previous defeat by Albany's Senior Team. Benning bowlers took this one by a total of 64 pins.

Also in good form for the Benning seniors were Mike Rezecki with 551, Tom Schroder, 470; Jeff Scott, 456; and Jerry Sonich, 424. Senior AJBC bowlers consist of boys from 15 through 18 years of age.

Jim Weiss was the big gun for the Junior Team (14 and under) piling up enough strikes and spares for an impressive 527 series. The Junior Team defeated their opponents for the second straight time, this one by a margin of 126 pins.

Strong support was added in the match by the other four juniors, Jerry Walding, David Lee, Dicky Bolen and Austin Yerks.

The first match against Albany was held here two weeks ago. In that match, Albany defeated the Benning seniors and Benning won in the junior division.

Parents and fans that accompanied the teams made up a men's team and a women's team and bowled match games against the adult stars of the Midtown Lanes in Albany. This gave the Albany teams some consolation as both of these matches were won by the Albany Stars.

Basketball Banquet

A meeting and banquet was held last week at the Black Angus Ranch on Victory Drive by the post Basketball Association for the purpose of electing new officers. Capt. Richard Ziegler was elected president, Capt. Sidney Bryant, vice president; and Capt. Joseph Hickey, secretary. Major George Eyster is the outgoing president.

YAC SWIMMER OF THE WEEK . . . Mary Ellen Maycrink, 7, was chosen as this week's swimmer of the week, from the Youth Activities Club Team. YAC Baseball Registrations

Registrations for the Fort Benning Youth Activities Baseball League will start Monday.

Registration cards will be distributed at the schools and also may be obtained at YAC headquarters in Building 1054.

Deadline for the age groups is April 15. Registrations are requested to be turned in to YAC headquarters as soon as possible to form the teams. There will be 52 teams entered in competition this season. The YAC baseball season, including Biddy, Pony and Doughboy Leagues, opens April 25.

Basketball Champs

Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 806th Engineer Battalion won the 151st Engineer Group basketball championship by defeating Headquarters Company, 151st Engineer Group, 70-35. The company has a 7-1 record for the season.

WAC Cagerettes Win One Game, Lose Two

BY PFC JOE KUCHERA

The Fort Benning Doughboy Basketball Team, representing the post in the 1961 Third Army Basketball Tournament at Fort Gordon last week, fought back gallantly in the finals but could not overcome the strong attack and full court press of the host Fort Gordon entry, losing 78-60.

It was the second loss of the tournament for the Doughboys, the first of which was also handed them by Fort Gordon, represented by the Provost Marshal General Center "Saints", in Thursday's play, 73-71.

The Fort Benning WAC team, gaining an impressive 60-40 victory over the Fort McPherson WAC team in opening round action of the women's tournament, lost in succession to Fort Jackson, 36-34, and host Fort Gordon, 35-26, to be eliminated from further competition.

Second Lt. Don Gallagher, ex-North Carolina State star, led the Doughboys in the tournament, scoring 93 points in four games for an average of 23 points per game. Also providing valuable points and rebounds were Pfc Rayvaughn Pryear and 1st Lt. Larry Ondecker.

Reserves proved invaluable to the Fort Benning squad, bringing much needed relief to weary courtmen. Pfc Earl A. Maxwell, a scrappy five-foot five-inch guard; Pvt. George B. Keller, Pfc Dave Brewer and Pfc Carroll Emery, provided spot relief for the starters.

Spd George Taylor at forward for the post cagers, was instrumental in the control of the backboards as was 2nd Lt. Ron Kennett.

Pfc Earlenie Surles was the mainstay for the WAC cagerettes, tallying 55 points in three games for the Fort Benning women. She was closely followed by a brilliant all-around performance of Spd Anne Davis.

The men's team opened tournament action on Monday night, walloping the Fort Stewart quintet by a 92-75 count. The Doughboys were next pitted against the Fort Bragg entry, again taking top honors, 71-64.

In the third round of action for the local quintet, coached by Sfc Bob Kinard, the Fort Gordon Saints nipped the visitors by a mere two points, 73-71. Fort Gordon leaped off to a fast 5-0 lead before the Doughboys could manage a field goal, and raised the scoreboard total to 44-33 at the half-time intermission.

In the second half the Doughboys hit hard and fast in the opening minutes, paced by Lt. Gallagher, who tallied 20 points in the last 20 minutes of the game. His jumpshots from 25 feet seemed to be guided by radio beam, with none touching the rim as they swished through for the two points.

Of the 10 men's teams entered in the tournament, it was Fort Gordon, Fort Benning, and for a slight instant, Fort Jackson taking most of the top honors.

Fort Jackson, losing to Fort Campbell after drawing an opening round bye, swept through losers bracket, eliminating three teams, Fort Rucker, Ala., Fort McPherson and Fort Bragg, before losing to Fort Benning, 65-62, to be eliminated themselves.

Tournament champion Fort Gordon team members received wrist watches as individual prizes along with the championship trophy while the Fort Benning Doughboys were awarded the runner-up and individual awards of electric shavers. The champion and the runner up in the WAC division were also presented with individual awards in addition to the trophies.

So, another Third Army Basketball Tournament goes on record, with Fort Gordon taking top laurels for the fourth straight year.

The Surgeon Says

Gray Ladies Aid MAH Patients

This is the second in a series of guest articles prepared by Mrs. Arthur A. Trilsch, Jr., of the American Red Cross Staff at Martin Army Hospital—Editor)

It was during the Korean War, in the emergency room of the Tokyo Army Hospital. A group of wounded men had just arrived, and were lying in litters, waiting to be assigned to wards.

A young woman, in a familiar gray uniform, passed among them, lighting cigarettes, but mostly just being there. Her warm smile lit the grim room like a chandelier.

One soldier, badly wounded, and somewhat younger than the rest, looked up as she bent over him. The ghost of a smile crossed his face, and he said, "I know who you are . . . you're a Gray Lady." That was all he said before he closed his eyes for the last time.

"You're a Gray Lady." Those are the words some forty ladies at Martin Army Hospital are proud to hear. They wear their uniform like a badge . . . and well they might.

The simple gray cotton dress, with its snow white collar and cuffs, brands them a Red Cross Volunteer Gray Lady . . . one of the hundred or more Red Cross Volunteers who come to work each week at Martin Army Hospital, giving over 1800 hours a month. They go about their jobs, putting a heart and soul into a hospital.

Each year the American Red Cross trains hundreds of women to do jobs only they can do. The harrassed and overworked nurses and doctors do more than their best in days that are too short to get everything done.

The ward carpamen and paid hospital workers have functions that leave no time for errands, and relief from boredom. Who then can lend a sympathetic ear to a lonely soldier? Who is available to run errands for a bed ridden patient, who knows no one?

Who has time to play a game, write a letter, organize a bridge or pinochle group, set up a chess tournament, even run an all-request radio show; or quiet a frightened child in the pediatric clinic?

The Red Cross Staff are the ones who make it their job to get these functions done. They are largely Gray Ladies, wives of men stationed here at Fort Benning, whose chairman, Mrs. C. E. Wolfinger, typifies the kind of unselfish effort Gray Ladies are noted for.

They are the women to whom 'love thy neighbor' is not a motto to be cross-stitched on a sampler, but a creed to be lived by. They are warm-hearted with a love of life they want to share.

They purchase the uniform you see them wearing. They give freely of their time. But most of all, they willingly and eagerly perform jobs that would be left undone were they not there to do them.

So, if the next time you are at Martin Army Hospital, you see this fresh gray uniform, pause for a moment. Is she comforting a child in the pediatric clinic? Is her warm and vital presence calming a man having a cardiogram made?

Is she hurrying down the corridor, clipboard in hand, intent on performing some personal service? Or is she organizing a game on an orthopedic ward?

The senior operator of the Earthmoving and Excavation Platoon of Company B, 577th Engineer Battalion (Construction), excavates and deposits 10 cubic yards of material in five minutes.

The only trained and experienced tractor operator at the start of the job, he has since trained 12 other operators, two of whom are now working on the project. Under his experienced hands another operator is gaining valuable training. He insures that each man knows how to maintain as well as operate the equipment.

Sp5 Bollivar entered military service with the Navy in 1945, seeing service with the Seventh Fleet in the Pacific until discharged in 1946. In 1947, he enlisted in the Army and attended the Diesel Engine Repairmen's School at Aberdeen Proving Grounds, Md. He joined the Corps of Engineers in 1949 and came to the 577th Engineer Battalion in July of last year.

He has had overseas tours of duty in Italy, Austria, England, Germany, France, Turkey and Korea.

BOOKS in REVIEW

TOO MANY CLIENTS by Rex Stout. (Viking, 1960)

When the big business man, who lived in New York's fashionable East 60s but maintained an expensive love-nest in one of New York's worst neighborhoods, is murdered, Nero Wolfe is called in. In fact he is called in three times, the first two times by very wrong people. Hence before he can start to unravel the murder, he has to solve the unique problem of . . . the wrong clients.

THE TASTE OF COURAGE by Desmond Flower. (Harper, 1960)

A compilation of writings on World War II, drawing not only from factual but from fictional sources, apparently from the latter where it is felt that these are largely autobiographical and represent the equivalent of actual combat statements. Sources are both Axis and Allied. Sequence is season by season and theater by theater.

THE KING FROM ASHTABULA by Vern Sneider. (Putnam, 1960)

The people living on the Nakashima Islands — after U. S. Army rule — vote to determine their future form of government. Recalling their long and glorious history of kingly reigns, six hundred years previous, the citizens decide to restore the monarchy. The bumpy road to new Golden Age makes up this amusing story.

THE CAVALCADE OF BASKETBALL by Alexander M. Weyand. (Macmillan, 1960)

The author describes the invention of basketball by James Naismith, disposes of counterclaims as to its origin, traces its development, and records the colorful deeds of the great teams and players — collegiate, AAU, and professional. Annual All-American teams for each category are included.

Jewish Personnel to Observe Passover March 31-April 8

Jewish personnel on post will observe the Passover from sunset March 31 through sunset April 8.

The schedule for the season includes a Passover Seder at 6:45 p.m. March 31 at Okinawa Mess, Bldg. 2754; Passover and Sabbath services at 9 a.m. April 1 and 2 at the Jewish Center, Bldg. 1071; Passover and Sabbath services at 8 p.m. April 7 at the Jewish Center, and Passover and Sabbath services and a Yizkor memorial service, beginning at 9 a.m. April 8 at the Jewish Center.

Wives of Jewish personnel attended a special class on the background of the Passover last week at the home of Capt. and Mrs. Donald Berman. The class includes the history of the annual religious event and suggestions for a meaningful celebration of the occasion in the home.

Reservations for the Passover Seder should be made before March 27 by telephoning the Jewish Center, 5-1894.

The Seder is sponsored by the National Jewish Welfare Board, the Columbus Armed Services Committee of the Jewish Welfare Board and the Baltimore Serve-A Committee, a division of the Welfare Board, under the auspices of the post chaplain.

It is traditional for Jewish personnel to spend the Passover with their families and worship together in family groups, whehever possible. It is also customary for devout Jewish families to invite to their homes, members of the Jewish faith who cannot return to their own homes for the Passover.

Arrangements are being made in Columbus and Atlanta to provide this home hospitality for single Jewish personnel at Fort Benning, according to Chaplain (1st Lt.) Norton D. Sharge), Jewish chaplain.

The Passover commemorates the struggle of the early Israelites for freedom after 210 years of slavery in ancient Egypt. In the year 1300 B.C., Moses led his people out of Egypt; after a long period of opposition from Pharoah, Rameses II.

The events connected with the Exodus of the Israelites are commemorated throughout the Passover observance.

The traditional Seder (order) is both a family meal and a worship service, with prayers, songs and blessings performed in a given order, established and recorded in the Haggadah, an ancient book whose oldest portions date back at least 2,500 years.

The special foods on the Seder table have a particular significance to the Jewish people, commemorating some event connected with the Exodus.

The unleavened matzoth represents the bread the Jews ate on their hurried flight from Egypt when they could not wait for the bread to rise. Bitter herbs are symbolic of the bitterness of slavery. The haroses mixture represents the mortar with which the Jews made brick for Pharoah's great cities.

The shank bone is a reminder of the paschal lamb offered as a sacrifice in the Temple of Jerusalem during the spring pilgrimage of the Hebrews. Roasted egg is a symbol of the freewill offering made during the sacrifice.

Parsley or watercress is served to represent the continual rebirth of growing things.

Gossima Top Game In 19th Century

By Pfc Leif Farne

Gossima? What in the world is that? A new space development perhaps, or maybe the latest secret weapon of the Army?

Gossima is not the name of something just developed. It is an old name, a name now forgotten, but what it stood for is still with us today, ever growing in popularity. Gossima is the name attributed to a game back in the 19th century.

The game grew in popularity, until Parker Brothers in New England developed it further, and in 1890 started manufacture of complete sets of equipment for the game. They called it ping-pong, after the sound the ball made going from paddle to paddle.

The ping pong sets put out by the Parker Brothers were not the end, as you well know. In 1926, a group of men representing different countries met in Berlin, Germany, and founded the International Table Tennis Federation.

This changed the name ping pong, which was a trade-mark, to table tennis, although the name ping pong is still in wide use. Later the U. S. Tennis Association was formed, and held their first Championship Matches in 1932.

Table tennis today, a fast moving sport can be enjoyed at any one of your Army service clubs. Service Club 1, located on the main post, has scheduled tourneys every Wednesday night at 7:30 p.m.

Miss K. DeYoung In Stunt Night

Miss Kathleen DeYoung, daughter of Col. & Mrs. Edward M. DeYoung, took part in the stunt night program for the sophomore class at Wesleyan College.

Stunt night, a traditional competition between classes, was held last week in the Porter Family Memorial Auditorium on the campus.

Sponsored by the campus YWCA, proceeds from stunt night benefit the Emmett Johnson Scholarship Fund.

The stunt night program was the climax to the annual Parents Day program at Wesleyan.

Gen. Walsh's Infantry School Report

Progress During 54 Years Noted on TIS Anniversary

(This is the first of a two-part outline of the missions and personnel of The Infantry School's Instructor Training Course conducted by the office of the Director of Instruction. The second and final article will appear next week — Editor)

"Teaching — like any art — comes naturally to a few, can be acquired by many, but may be improved only with practice." On this basic premise the Instructor Training Course was established.

The excellence of instruction at The Infantry School is due to the high standards maintained in the Instructor Training Course. No instructor assigned to the Infantry School teaches unless he has successfully completed this course.

The officers and enlisted men who comprise the Instructor Training Section are experts in the fields of lesson organization, speech, and presentation techniques.

Actually, the section, headed by Lt. Col. Robert L. Waters has a fourfold mission. The primary mission is the training of new instructors. Not "qualification of new instructors" for that would imply that all who attend the course become qualified. This is far from the fact. Even under ideal conditions there exists about a 20 per cent attrition rate.

Other Missions

A secondary mission is the professional assistance to departments on instructional matters. This includes everything from advice in organization of material to recommendations for the selection of training aids, which brings us to the next mission.

The third mission is that of experimentation and selection of new training aids — devices and techniques.

The fourth responsibility of

HENRY CABOT LODGE
Will Remain at Post Overnight

Henry Cabot Lodge Speaks Here April 7

Henry Cabot Lodge, former ambassador to the United Nations, will visit Fort Benning April 6 and 7 to address officer career classes at The Infantry School.

He will speak on "The United Nations" at 10 am. April 7 in the Main Theater. Faculty and staff officers of The Infantry School and Infantry Center also will attend.

Mr. Lodge is scheduled to arrive at Lawson Army Aviation Command at 12 p.m. Thursday. Major Gen. Hugh P. Harris, commandant of The Infantry School will host an official reception for the visitor at 7 p.m. in the Main Officers' Open Mess.

An official luncheon given by Gen. Harris in the Main Officers' Open Mess the following day will precede Mr. Lodge's departure from the post.

Mr. Lodge recently was named consultant on international affairs for Time, Life, Inc. He is a major general in the Army Reserve.

A 1924 graduate of Harvard University, Mr. Lodge received a bachelor of laws degree from Northeastern University in Boston in 1938. He worked on the Boston Evening Transcript in 1923 and the New York Herald Tribune in 1924.

After serving two terms as a member of the Massachusetts General Court, he was elected to the U. S. Senate from Massachusetts in 1936. Re-elected in 1942, he was the first senator to resign to enter the service in World War II.

An active Army Reserve officer since 1926, Mr. Lodge served as a major with the First American Tank Detachment in the British Eighth Army in Libya in 1942. He served in Italy in 1944. Promoted to the rank of lieutenant colonel, he was in Southern France, Rhine and Southern Germany in 1944-1945.

Among his decorations are the Legion of Merit, Bronze Star Medal, six battle stars, French Legion of Honor and Croix de Guerre with Palm.

Mr. Lodge was re-elected to the Senate in 1946 for a term ending in 1953. He was campaign manager for President Eisenhower in the 1952 presidential election and the following year became U. S. representative to the UN and the Security Council.

Enjoys World Wide Esteem

The Infantry School will celebrate it's 54th anniversary tomorrow. Conceived as the School of Musketry at the Presidio of Monterey, Calif., in 1907, six years later it's name was changed to The Infantry School of Arms and it was moved to Fort Sill, Okla.

It was not until 1918 that The Infantry School was relocated at Fort Benning. And it was Col. Henry E. Eames, first commandant of The Infantry School in it's new location, who was responsible for a proposal to situate The Infantry School of Arms on a permanent tract nine miles southeast of Columbus.

Although funds were not yet authorized Col. Eames and Major John Paul Jones, his construction quartermaster, constructed a temporary camp for several hundred men in only seven days. The citizens of Columbus were largely responsible for this feat by giving their cooperation.

GRADUATES

The first class to graduate from The Infantry School of Arms at Benning was a class of 161 West Point graduates, who completed the course here in February, 1919.

Since it's transfer here The Infantry School has had 288,111 graduates from it's courses designed to increase the proficiency and learning of Infantry officers and selected enlisted personnel.

Airborne training was introduced in 1940 under the auspices of The Infantry School and 204,425 men have become Airborne-qualified in the period

Easter Greetings

I wish to extend greetings and best wishes to all personnel at Fort Benning during this Easter season.

In a world striving to decide which philosophy of life is to win the loyalty of mankind, let us be strong and courageous in the spiritual lessons of this season. It is my hope that we shall be true to the heritage from which our Nation draws her strength.

I trust that each of you will enjoy the privilege of attending the services of your choice at this traditional time of hope for a free world where all men may find peace and happiness.

HUGH P. HARRIS
Major General, USA
Commanding

Three Stars, 1 Corps Post Proposed For Gen. Harris

Major Gen. Hugh P. Harris, commanding general of The Infantry Center and commandant of The Infantry School since April, 1960, has been nominated for the rank of lieutenant general by President Kennedy, and named as the next commanding general of I Corps in Korea.

The promotion must be confirmed by the Senate.

In the I Corps post, Gen. Harris will succeed Lt. Gen. John L. Ryan, Jr., who has been announced to succeed Lt. Gen. Robert M. Cannon as commanding general of Sixth Army. Gen. Cannon will retire August 31.

Also nominated for promotion by the president was Lt. Gen. Guy S. Meloy, Jr., deputy commanding general of Eighth Army in Korea, who has been marked for four-star rank.

Gen. Meloy served as assistant commandant of The Infantry School in 1951, and as Commandant from January, 1953 to June, 1954. He is slated to command Eighth Army on the retirement of Gen. Carter B. Magruder on June 30.

Gen. Harris was deputy chief of staff for operations, plans and training at Continental Army Command before coming to The Infantry Center. He was promoted to major general in December, 1955.

Monday is Summer Uniform Time

Military personnel at Fort Benning will change from winter to summer uniforms on Monday.

The first Monday in April is announced as the changeover date by Major Gen. Hugh P. Harris, commanding general of The Infantry Center.

For summer, officers are required to have Army tan and Army khaki uniforms. Enlisted men must have khaki uniforms and are authorized to purchase Army tans. For enlisted summer wear Army tan is authorized on an optional basis.

Personnel Excused For Church

Fort Benning military personnel, including students attending The Infantry School, may be excused from assigned duties and classes today to attend church services, Infantry Center and Infantry School officials have announced.

There will be no Easter academic holiday at The Infantry School. The two officer career classes had spring holidays March 18 through 26.

The Fort Benning Children's Schools will have holidays March 31 and April 3, according to Mrs. Hazel J. Scudder, school superintendent.

Report

tle section is the maintenance of instructional standards. This is accomplished by personal contacts with the various instructional departments and through a system of follow-up inspections whereby the members of the Instructor Training Section observe each of their graduate instructors in action.

Personnel

Major Raymond G. Wilson is deputy chief of the section and in addition, The Infantry School TV project officer. This duty requires recommendations for the programming, planning and continuing study of TV as a teaching device.

This project lies within the ITS scope of experimenting with new training techniques as well as devices. TV is but one of the many devices being examined for possible inclusion in The Infantry School Instructor's arsenal for better instruction which includes cellomatic (a double vugraph projector capable of "fading" in and out, horizontal and vertical "wipes", vignetting, etc); technimation (showing flow and linear movement), fluorescent or black light effects and other dramatic ways of making Infantry instruction vivid and lasting.

Capt. John C. Royles (unc.) tions as the expert in testing procedures and programs of instruction. In addition he devotes considerable attention to classroom management problems such as creating and maintaining a more compatible classroom environment for learning.

Capt. Mack M. McGahee is the authority on lesson planning, preparation of lesson outlines, and control of interest. Proper detailed lesson planning is receiving schoolwide emphasis and appears to have finally come into its own.

Capt. Bernard D. Wheeler, the section's expert in the field of speech, is in constant demand for recordings and programs where effective speaking is needed. Capt. Wheeler is also the administrative and operations officer for the section, which involves arranging for classrooms, smoothing schedules and facilitating the flow of paperwork.

W. William F. Freeman, the educational advisor for the section, maintains close contact with civilian institutions to insure that our educational philosophy is in line with current and "forward" thinking in that field. He is available to all agencies in The Infantry School for professional advice on all facets of the teaching and learning cycle.

MSgt Herbert Pennington is the senior enlisted instructor and the operations and administrative sergeant. As Capt. Wheeler's assistant he is continually abreast of all happenings in and relating to the section. His most difficult task is the scheduling and control of the groups during the course.

In addition to the instructors mentioned above, MSgt Richard J. Doucette, Cpl. Freeman Reid and Sp4 John J. Foley, the enlisted group leaders of the section, spend many hours in the satisfying job of teaching others how to become effective instructors.

54 Years

since that date.

One of the main responsibilities of The Infantry School is the Officer Candidate School which has turned out more than 70,000 second lieutenants. The first officer candidate class opened in July, 1941, and the last World War II class graduated in December, 1946.

The officer candidate program was discontinued until February, 1951, and the Korean conflict.

ALMOST CLOSED

In January, 1919, an economy-minded War Department ordered the camp abandoned and the buildings salvaged. But Major Jones found the dictionary defined ("salvage" as "save" and ordered the building painted. A few months later, in 1920, Congress approved a plan making Camp Benning a permanent installation, after the War Department had held a conference and decided to maintain the post.

1920 was a big year in the history of The Infantry School. The War Department officially changed the school's name from The Infantry School of Arms to The Infantry School.

In addition to prescribing the courses of instruction the War Department gave The Infantry School two additional missions: To train efficient commanders and staff officers and to prepare officers for the advanced training given in the general service schools.

ENROLLMENT

Despite the developments by the War Department, enrollment in The Infantry School slacked off in the 1920's and 1930's. In 1927, there were fewer than 6,000 officers and enlisted men taking courses, at the School.

This small number can hardly compare with the peak years of 1942-43 when there were 52,000 graduates from The Infantry School. The next highest period in enrollment was 1952-53 when there were some 17,000 graduates.

Major Gen. Hugh P. Harris is commandant of The Infantry School.

Brig. Gen. L. A. Walsh Jr., is the assistant commandant of The Infantry School, while Col. Julian H. Martin serves as deputy assistant commandant.

NG Officer Candidates Face Rigid Nine Weeks

From every state in the U.S. and Puerto Rico, National Guardsmen come to the Officer Candidate School to find out if they have the prequisites to become Second Lieutenants. Such a group is now assigned for nine weeks to the 5th Student Battalion, The Student Brigade.

They will receive a specialized type of training which is unobtainable through weekly drills and two weeks summer encampment. Training for the Guardsmen is comparatively rigorous at first, but they desire to become combat-ready Infantrymen, and strive wholeheartedly to accomplish their mission.

When the awaited day arrives, and those that persevere graduate, these Guardsmen return to their home units to face a selection board composed of field grade officers.

The board meets approximately an hour, and decides if the individual who recently completed OCS has the qualifications to become a second lieutenant.

For Two-Day Tour

Norwegian Army Chief Visits Infantry School

Lt. Gen. Bjorn Christophersen, commander in chief of the Norwegian Army, visited The Infantry School Monday and Tuesday.

He was accompanied by Lt. Col. Aksel Sinding, Norwegian military attache in Washington, D. C., and Major Arne Aurader, G-3 Section, Norwegian Army High Command. Lt. Col. Robert H. Musser was the Department of the Army tour director.

Gen. Christophersen was welcomed by Major Gen. Hugh P. Harris, commandant of The Infantry School at Lawson Field Monday.

A 17-gun salute was rendered the Allied officer in honor guard ceremonies on Chapel Field. Gen. Harris was the local commander for the event.

Following an official luncheon hosted by Gen. Harris at the Main Officers' Open Mess, the Norwegian Army commander viewed a demonstration of Airborne training on Eubanks Field. Then he was briefed on activities of Lawson Army Aviation Command and trooped the line at a display of Army fixed-wing aircraft and helicopters.

Gen. Christophersen next visited The Infantryman Statue, attended an orientation on scheduling of classes and instructional facilities at The Infantry School and toured the post via Battle Park, Custer Terrace, 2nd Infantry Division, Harmony Church and Martin Army Hospital by car.

Later, he witnessed a firing demonstration presented by The Infantry School's Weapons Department on Hook Range.

Tuesday morning the Allied general observed instruction in patrolling, battle group map maneuver and capabilities and limitations of mobility means. He saw the Rangers in action at Victory Pond.

Major Stewart C. Moody, who is assigned to The Infantry School's Command and Staff Department, was the project officer for the visit.

CHANGE OF VENUE

An 18-year-old in Mobile, Ala., court on a four-count robbery charge, asked for a delay in sentencing while he decided whether he stood a better chance with a jury trial. While the court pondered the matter, the defendant walked out of the courthouse and disappeared.

April 3 to 13

Post Shooters Set Sights On 6 Third Army Trophies

The Infantry Center's 1961 competitive marksmanship squad will enter the Third Army championships as defender of two of the six major trophies to be shot for at Fort Benning April 3 to 13.

The USAIC's rifle team, under command of 2nd Lt. Ivan W. Flowers Jr., 1st Infantry Brigade, and holder of the Third Army Infantry Team Trophy, will shoot for a repeat win in 1961.

"We're also aiming to better the record for the rifle team trophy match now held by the 82nd Airborne Division and a good share of individual honors," Lt. Flowers said.

The Third Army Automatic Rifle Team Championships, won in 1960 by Fort Benning's 1st Armored Rifle Battalion, 58th Infantry, will have six two-man teams fighting for its retention.

The auto-riflemen will be captained by MSgt Richard L. Haynesworth, Infantry Brigade coach.

The defending pistol team champions, the Signalers from Fort Gordon, will be opposed by a strong USAIC pistol squad under Capt Durward A. Duke, USAIC Troop Command.

WASHED UP

Alfred Hintermeier, 21, was sentenced to a year in jail by a Vienna court for deserting the Austrian Army. He said he went AWOL because he didn't want to wash every morning.

Individual pistol honors will be defended by Sgt. Don E. Evans, crack 101st Airborne Division marksman.

Whether Sgt. William Brushwood, 82nd Airborne Division rifleman, will defend his crown won in 1960 is as yet unknown.

In all, some 700 marksmen from all active and reserve commands in the Third Army are due to participate in the week-long shoot, according to Lt. Col. Burton C. Boatright, match executive.

International Skeet Shoot

Major Gene Stalcup Leads Army To Win

Major Gene S. Stalcup, Army Advanced Marksmanship Unit, smashed 100 straight clay targets to lead the Army Skeet Team to victory in the First Annual Armed Forces International Shooting Competition to continue at The Infantry Center until tomorrow.

The score tallied by the Army's Skeet coach was the only perfect string turned in during the match which saw team entries from the Marine Corps, the Air Force and Navy in competition.

The Army's team total of 393 out of 400 clay "birds" was six points ahead of the runner-up Marine Corps team which eked out second place by posting 387x400, a single bird in front of the Air Force. Navy shotgunners broke a combined total of 379 targets.

High Marine gun was jointly held by Major B. E. Loss Marine Corps School, Quantico, Va., and Major Oliver R. Davis. Both smashed 98 out of 100 targets.

Two Air Force gunners also shot out 98s to tie for high Air Force team gun. Major Frank A. Knapp and MSgt Hal Myers scored twin honors.

Navy Commander Robert L. Livingston connected with 97 out of 100 to lead Navy efforts in the match.

Shooters will now continue to complete the second half of 200-target strings which comprise the individual Skeet match for the competition.

Moonshiners Not Prosecuted In Soviet Union

Police in the Yaroslavl region northeast of Moscow got orders to go easy on moonshiners and prosecutions dropped from 300 in 1958 to 20 last year, the newspaper Literature and Life said Sunday.

Of the 20, only one was punished. Without saying what officials ordered this, the newspaper demanded serious action against illicit stills.

Liquor is heavily taxed in the Soviet Union, with the result that moonshining is an extensive industry in some areas.

Summer Uniform Reminder

Department of the Army officials have warned that the new lightweight green winter uniform for officers and enlisted men is not authorized for summer wear. The white uniform, white mess uniform, blue uniform and blue mess uniform and evening dress uniform may be worn on designated appropriate occasions, a post announcement states.

Commanders Back Red Cross Campaign

Messages in strong support of the annual Red Cross funds appeal have been circulated by President Kennedy; Gen. Herbert B. Powell, commanding general of Continental Army Command, and Lt. Gen. Paul D. Adams, commanding general of Third Army. All call attention to the vital services performed by the organization on behalf of service personnel and their families, and ask our support.

Summer's Hazards Are Nearing

Safety officials are busy preparing statistics and hints designed to reduce summer accidents. We jump off with the classic reminder that if minimal caution is used in activities which are obviously dangerous such as using power mowers, taking long auto trips and swimming or engaging in other outdoor sports, there is no need for YOU to be a casualty this or any other summer.

Medical Warrants to Qualified EM

Warrant officer appointments are offered by the Army Medical Service to enlisted men who are trained in medical equipment maintenance. The Office of the Surgeon General is making a limited number of the appointments on a yearly basis. Concurrent active duty for a minimum of three years is written into the offer.

AUSA Drive Nets 770 to Date

The concentrated three-pronged membership drive by the local chapter of the Association of the U.S. Army has resulted in 770 applications being forwarded to the national headquarters as of this week. Goal of the drive is to surpass the present leading chapters in terms of membership, which calls for a total of well over 3,000. The chapter is at present in third place with about 2,500 members.

Summons to Service For Every American

When the 35th President of the United States—our Commander-in-Chief — took the oath of office two months ago, no words in his inaugural address rang clearer and more eloquently than those near its conclusion:

"And so, my fellow Americans: ask not what your country can do for you—ask what you can do for your country."

Those simple words were addressed to every U. S. citizen, but they have a very special import for a special group of citizens—for us, the members of the Armed Forces. The words are still fresh in our memory, and there is no better time than now to examine them as they pertain to each of us. Do we ask what the service can do for us—what we can get out of it in benefits—or do we ask what we can do, and are doing, for the service?

Easter Means Spring, And A Brighter Spirit

(AFPS)—Easter is many things, and all of them are good and welcome. It is the moving story of the Resurrection — in Heywood Broun's words "the story of the fundamental fight between life and death, between hope and despair."

Easter is also the happy time of bunnies and brightly dyed eggs and fashion parades down the nation's avenues when people blossom forth in their new spring finery. Above all, Easter is spring. The season may have officially begun March 21, but it takes Easter to really usher it in.

In winter those of us who live and work in cold climates do a lot of wistful talking about how agreeable it would be to spend the year-round on a tropical island. It might, perhaps, but on that island we'd be missing the seasonal rebirth that is one of nature's great miracles — the greening grass, the budding trees, the spring flowers, the return of the birds, the warming sun in skies of fresh, clear blue.

Few of us can be witness to this transformation without feeling an infusion of new vitality, a lifting of spirit that influences everything we do. Tasks that seemed onerous when the snow was coming down and the winds were howling suddenly become less drab and burdensome. Yesterday's chore is today's challenge. You have to be a sour-puss indeed to resist the chemistry of spring's optimism.

The services can benefit from this new drive of energy the season gives us. We can apply it to our jobs, make it productive of a superior performance that will do us credit. It isn't likely to go unnoticed by the people above us. They too feel the springtime tonic.

Chaplain's Corner

By Chaplain (Capt.) Lincoln H. Barr

Have you ever stopped to think what a difference "attitudes" make in your life? Really they tend to shape, mould or even warp, your entire life. God's Holy word tells us that, "As a man thinketh in his heart, so is he." So you can see that if we are, as we think, then our attitudes are most important.

Let me share with you three illustrations that need not be enlarged upon. All three deal with a small girl. She was being reared in an average family where her parents felt she was receiving good training.

One day she returned home to proudly announce that the nice man next door had given her an apple. Her mother asked, "And what did you say to him?" To which the small girl replied, "I told him to peel it." Is this your attitude of life, thinking the world owes you a living and should peel your apple for you?

The same little girl showed signs of musical interest so her parents bought a lovely piano. They placed it in the living room and eagerly awaited her reaction. She came in, looked it over carefully, walked around it and asked, "Where do you plug it in?"

Isn't this a common attitude too many of us have? Finally one day she ran into the house as a rain storm had ceased and announced something strange was in the sky. Her mother seeing a rainbow explained its beauty and significance, to which the girl replied, "What's it advertising?"

See what we mean — Attitudes — so important. "As a man thinketh in his heart, so is he."

Easter Message

As Easter is a celebration of triumph in the Christian calendar, let it be for you a season of renewed hope, assurance and strength. Chaplains at Army installations around the world will welcome you at services of joyous worship. Bear witness to your faith by being among those worshippers who will join in hymns of praise from meridian to meridian and from pole to pole. May God grant you a blessed Easter.

The Judge Says . . .

By Lt. Lawrence D. Sledge
(First In A Series on Georgia Income Tax)

The State of Georgia conceived and gave birth to the income tax law in 1931. The law was passed in high hopes that this would provide a prolific source of public revenues which would satisfy the skyrocketing costs of doing state business.

Disappointingly, however, the ensuing years were filled with unavailing attempts at collection. Meanwhile, Georgia looked wistfully at her Uncle Sam, and observed the easy methods he used in successfully filling his coffers with similar tax revenues.

Finally, in 1960, she could afford to procrastinate no longer and like Uncle she used the direct approach and simply withheld a certain percentage of the income from each employee working within the State of Georgia.

This ultimatum has somewhat perturbed many of the visitors to our Legal Assistance Office. Those who seek solace here are many times woefully distressed when they receive answers to such questions as the following:

(1) Must I pay the tax?

(2) What kind of return must I prepare and file?

(3) What if I am a legal resident of State X, have just moved from State A, and have been employed here since arriving in Georgia?

(4) What can they do to me if I fail to file?

(5) What if I haven't filed any Georgia tax before and have been living and working in Georgia for a number of years?

These are a random sampling of the questions we receive each day, and their perpetual recurrence indicates that the general public needs to have answers at their disposal. Therefore I should like to answer these queries in a general fashion in the following paragraphs and subsequent articles.

Should there remain any doubt or further questions in your mind after reading this, please feel free to bring your questions to Legal Assistance and our staff will be happy to clarify these areas.

AND ANSWERS

First, tax liability depends on the status of the individual. The general rule is that all persons gainfully employed within the State of Georgia are subject to the tax, and they must file a return to determine whether a refund is due because of excessive withholding or whether any further tax is due the state.

The type of return to file depends upon the individual's status as a resident. If he is a resident of another state, he should file a return in that state and a non-resident return in Georgia. If he is a resident of Georgia, a resident return filed in Georgia would be fitting. These forms, along with any Federal forms you desire, are in the Legal Assistance Office.

Military personnel stationed in Georgia are not required to pay Georgia income tax unless they are residents of the state. However, if they have off duty employment within Georgia, they must file a Georgia return on this income.

In the next installment we will discuss the evasive issue of residence, where one should file his state tax, and what can happen if he fails to file any tax at all.

TIS Guest Roster Lists Many VIPs

GEN. HARRIS
School Commandant

GEN. WALSH
Assistant Commandant

COL. MARTIN
Deputy AC

Looking over the guest roster for the last 54 years, since the beginning of The Infantry School, one can see a list of names belonging to important people of the last half century, both past and present.

Attracted by the techniques and results of the Ranger, officer candidate, advanced officer training programs, Allied students and Airborne courses, such great men as President Warren G. Harding, President Franklin D. Roosevelt, President Harry S. Truman, President Dwight D. Eisenhower and General John J. Pershing have visited and inspected The Infantry Center and Infantry School at Fort Benning.

The coming of a VIP to Benning is a usual occurrance and normal post operations are seldom disturbed. Only the areas to be toured are alerted.

ALLIED VISITORS

During and since WWII many Allied nations have sent both military and civilian personnel to Benning to attend courses under the military assistance to Allied Nations program.

Among the Allied VIP's to visit Benning during WWII were British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden and Field Marshall Sir John Dill, the chief of the British Joint Staff Mission in Washington.

Gen. Henri H. Giraud, commander of the French Armies in North Africa and Major Gen. Salfador Sanchez, chief of the Presidential General Staff of Mexico have also paid visits to The Infantry Center.

Among the heads of state to visit the post were King Hussein of Jordan, Emperior Haile of Selassie of Ethiopia, and Crown Prince Constantine of Greece. Truong-Vinh Le, president of the National Assembly of Vietnam and Prince Muhammed bin Talal, the youngest brother of King Husein, have also stopped at Fort Benning on occasion.

The Laos Army Chief of staff, Major Gen. Sounthone Pathammavong, and Field Marshall Montgomery were among the foreign military leaders who have visited the post.

Many military leaders of the U. S. are frequent visitors and many of them have taken courses or been stationed here sometime during their military careers.

The Infantry School is not only the largest Infantry training facility in the U. S. but also a show place of the techniques and equipment used in our modern Army for land warfare.

Language Studied By Allies

Twenty-three Allied students at The Infantry School are enrolled in a special volunteer English class, the first to be conducted for them at the Educational Development Section.

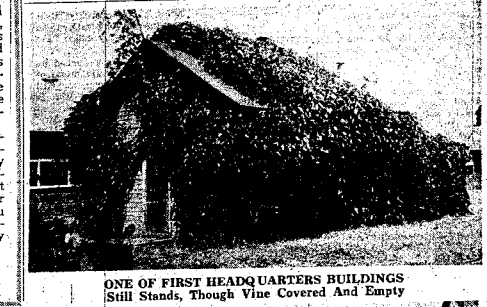
Classes were arranged by Major Robert C. Miller, chief of the Allied Liaison Section of The Infantry School, after some Allied students expressed interest in this means of improving their conversational English.

Crawford Thompson, assistant education officer at the Educational Development Section, instructs the off-duty classes which meet at the section Tuesdays and Wednesdays from 7 to 9 p.m.

The group study has already served as a "springboard" for the Allied students in getting better acquainted with the local community, Thompson said.

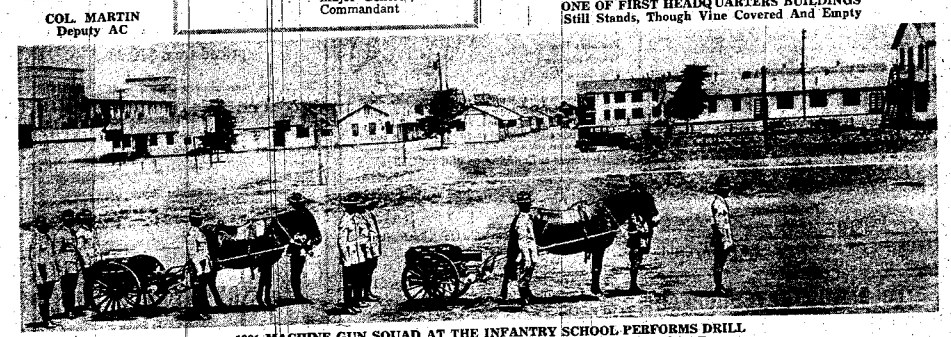
Anniversary Message

TO ALL PERSONNEL OF THE INFANTRY SCHOOL



I extend congratulations and best wishes to all personnel of the United States Army Infantry School on the occasion of the 54th anniversary of The Infantry School, 1 April 1961.

The Infantry School mission is of vital importance to the national defense. The exacting tasks of preparing Infantry officers and selected Infantry enlisted personnel to perform those duties which they may be called upon to perform in peace and war, especially in command and leadership positions; qualifying Airborne and Ranger personnel; and, developing organization doctrines, tactics, procedures and techniques and producing training literature and training aids related to the employment of Infantry units and combined arms demand the best that each of us has to offer.



For fifty-four years, The Infantry School has trained America's finest fighting man, the Infantryman. Technological advances have required changes in techniques and equipment but the Infantry soldier remains the deciding factor in warfare. Today, because of these advancements he must be the most self-reliant, the most skillful and the most versatile soldier in the history of America.

You may well be proud of your achievements during the past year. You have preserved the proud traditions of the Infantry and have accomplished your objectives despite severe shortages of resources. I want to thank you for your support and your devotion to duty. I am confident that you will maintain the high standards of proficiency in the future that you have so ably exhibited in the past.

Hat Show Tops Monthly NCO Wives Club Events

Hats, lovely spring hats, bedecked with ribbons and bows, feathers and flowers; hats in pink, blue, green, yellow, red and white.

As some 70 members of the NCO Wives Club met for their monthly luncheon at Crain Hall, nine members became models to show the newest in spring hats. There was the broad brim and the cloche, the doll hat and whimsey, the flower hat and the sailor.

The hats were furnished by a Columbus hat shop and many of the ladies took this opportunity to select that new Easter Bonnet.

Mrs. Robert Edwards and Mrs. Oscar Mercer were hostesses as Mrs. Coolidge Brumley did the narration for the hat show. Modeling for the occasion were the Mesdames Joseph Sparacino, Chester Baird, Tomito Fortez, Raymond Faust, Henry Speech, James Walton, Laurie Rentrop, James Shetfey and Aaron Bowen.

With the additon of some 45 new members in the past month, the Wives Club continues with a great variety of activities. During March, a cake sale was held by the club with the proceeds going into a special fund for library books for the post elementary school system.

Also in March, a course in basic ceramics was started by the club ceramic group. These courses under the able direction of Mrs. Wallace Scott, are free to any member of the NCO Wives who cares to join the group.

Mrs. Jo Harris, well known beautician spent an afternoon recently giving new and glamorous hair styles to club members. From grey to blonde, brown to red, long to short, club members modeled new hair styles by Mrs. Harris.

A covered dish supper for husbands, crazy hats carnival, household bingo and many other activities are scheduled for members in the near future. For information on any club activity, those interested may contact Mrs. Floyd Hightower, president, at 4-3596 or Mrs. Grady McCoy, 4-2525.

Infantry Board Easter Luncheon Spotlights Furs

Lovely mutation mink furs and chic Easter bonnets highlighted the Infantry Board ladies luncheon in the Corregidor Room of the Main Officers Open Mess last week.

Elegance was the keynote of the day in the Easter decor carried out on the luncheon tables by the hostesses, the ladies of the Small Arms Department.

Flanked by perky Easter bunnies and colorful eggs, beautiful Easter bonnets, accented by accessories spilling out of the hat boxes, carried out the Easter motif on the luncheon tables. Furry Easter bunnies were used in arrangements throughout the luncheon room. Name tags, fashioned after cotton-tailed bunnies, completed the Easter theme.

A film , "The Royal Family of Fine Furs", telling the story of the mutation mink fur from the breeding farm to the final phase of the finished fur, preceded the showing of the furs. With the furs, ensembles and accessories, and the hats by Miss Fountain, the guests were able to get a glimpse of the highest fashion in mutation mink.

Modeling were the Mesdames Woodrow H. Myers, Robert R. Sine, Melvin E. Gustafson, Herbert P. Underwood and James W. Bricker, Mrs. R. A. Sayers provided the commentary for the showing.

As a result of the recent potluck and recipe luncheon held by the Infantry Board ladies, a recipe book of their favorites was compiled by them and appropriately called "Pot Luck".

Special guests welcomed by Mrs. Thomas Clarkin, president of the ladies group, included Mrs. M. C. Holton, who is here visiting her son Col. Earl F. Holton and family; Mrs. C. M. Freudendorf and Mrs. W. B. Todd, guests of Mrs. Warren Walters; Mrs. Bina Swetnam, mother and guest of Mrs. Hugh W. Robbins; Mrs. William Hancock, guest of Mrs. Lawrence B. Zachow; Mrs. R. Kennedy and Mrs. D. Burnett of Australia, guests of Mrs. Gordon Gunton and Mrs. C. M. Honour, guest of Mrs. Melvin E. Gustafson. Welcomes were also said to Mrs. R. A. Sayers, a guest.

Hostessing the luncheon and the "Royal Family of Fine Furs" fashion show were Mrs. Robert C. Williams, Mrs. Warren Walters, Mrs. C. O. Shanahan, Jr., Mrs. Melvin E. Gustafson, Mrs. Herbert P. Underwood and Mrs. James R. Duboski.

Following a short business meeting conducted by Mrs. Charles C. Robertson, Jr., there was a drawing for a door prize donated by Mrs. Alston. Mrs. Elmer H. Briggs was the winner of the ceramic planter filled with artificial lily of the valley.

Pat Ryan's News and Views

For a rollicking round-up of previews and reviews I've corralled a whiskered columnist who answers to the tune of "Dixie", as well as a Dixie charmer.

The Dixie charmer is Ann Roberts whose last modeling class for beginners starts Monday, April 10. Her last charm course starts Wednesday, April 15. Mrs. Robert Chenoweth may be called for class registrations.

Ann will coach the girls modeling at the Woman's Club "April in Paris" luncheon Wednesday, April 5. Their combined efforts should mean a very pleasant, professional show. Iris Chenoweth, resplendent with Palm Beach suntan, will be one of the models. (Don't fade before the luncheon, Iris!)

The columnist is Tom Sellers, Ledger-employed, who told me over hilefuls of fish and apple pie about the centennial pageant taking place April 26 and 27 at the Columbus Municipal Auditorium.

Doubtful at first, Tom asked, "Are you a Yankee?" ... his eyes narrowing ever so little, but a good-natured smile showing over his "beard". I said to him as I say to anyone that I'm neither fish nor fowl. I'm just interested in any present-day project which might have an appeal to people.

Historically - minded people, southerners, those delighting in centennial costumes, and maybe even Yankees will enjoy this pageant, authorized by Clay Lacy and Tom Sellers himself.

Something else coming up is the Woman's Club big art, flower and ceramic show at the country club April 29 and 30. But more about that later.

First, it's "April in Paris" staged in the heart of Dixieland ... Fort Benning, Georgia. How's that for cosmopolitan?

The decorations were done in a Saint Patricks' Day theme. Forty ladies attended the occasion.

Jenni Johnson on Etiquette

DEAR JENNI: When we go to parties my husband leaves me almost inside the door and I don't see him for the rest of the evening until it's time to go home. This is not peculiar to my husband for most of the ladies are in one corner, and their husbands in another. What can I do?

PARTY-WIDOW

DEAR PARTY - WIDOW: If it is a small party in a home it's up to the hostess to "spike" her party, introduce a game, in other words keep the guests enthused. However here is a suggestion and could apply whether you are host and hostess or not.

If your husband is in a corner with the other man approach the group and when you catch his eye ask him to do a small favor for you, when he goes, you sit down. Of course you can't expect the man to continue the same topic of conversation, so you should have a comment in mind that will permit you to be included in the conversation.

You may find yourself in the midst of the battle of Bunker Hill and feel as if you're watching a game of table tennis. If the discussion is completely out of your realm, sincere admiration for the baffling conversation you interrupted is usually effective.

But don't put on a front of understanding for they are sure to know it's fake and then you'll have to run back to the women's corner.

Your husband will have a more appreciative view of your presence at parties when he returns to see you chatting with his friends. When he returns excuse yourself...don't overdo it. Soon he may remember that you are an asset not just someone he brought along because the invitation was addressed Mr. and Mrs. Good luck!

Support For Joint Drive Is Expected

Today is expected to boost donations from the post's military personnel to the 1961 Federal Service Campaign for National Health Agencies and the Federal Service Joint Crusade.

It is believed many contributions have not yet been reported to The Infantry Center's Funds Division by project officers in post activities.

To Tuesday the division had received 5,856 money envelopes from personnel in support of the health agencies and 5,131 envelopes for the Joint Crusade. Major Edward L. Whitehead, project officer, for the drive, requested that all contributions be reported to the Funds Division by April 7.

Latest activities to report are The Infantry Center's Engineer and Information Sections and The Infantry School's Weapons Department.

The six weeks volunteer drive began in February. Military and civilian personnel have been personally contacted by key men appointed in each activity. There is no post dollar goal but donations are encouraged.

The health agencies are concerned with the treatment, cure and prevention of cancer, arthritis and rheumatism, mental health, multiple sclerosis, crippling and blindness. The Joint Crusade aids Radio Free Europe, American-Korean Foundation and CARE.

Annual YAC Membership Drive Is On

Honorary memberships in the Youth Activities Club will be given added emphasis today in the club's current membership drive when all personnel will be asked to support the club.

The aim of the drive, which began March 3, is to create more interest and participation in the Youth Activities Club and its program for post youth.

Lawson Army Aviation Command kicked off the drive by turning in 25 regular and over 800 honorary memberships to boost the club's members to over 640 regular and 725 honorary.

Those with children in activities of the club are urged to become regular members in the organization, according to officials. Others interested in furthering its program are asked to support the club by becoming honorary members.

The Fort Benning Youth Activities Club supports youth activities on the post, including the Scout, recreation and athletic programs.

Profile of a Man Doing a Man's Job

Sp4 Richard James Searles is a man doing a man's job with the Military Police Company, which controls traffic, escorts VIP's, enforces laws and regulations and many other duties here at Fort Benning.

Sp4 Searles is a traffic patrolman with the PMO, and is concerned mainly with traffic control both on and off post.

Although he may be called to work anytime of the day, his normal working day begins at 7 a.m. with helping direct the traffic coming on post, then directing traffic on school corners, and in the afternoon working with the speed watch. Directing traffic off post is also one of his many jobs.

Sp4 Searles has been with the post PMO since graduating from Military Police School, at Fort Gordon, Ga., in May of 1959.

At Lawson With 90 Per Cent Educational Development Record Sought by Unit

The first Aviation Company, Lawson Army Aviation Command, has had 90 per cent of its officer and warrant officer personnel participating in the Educational Development Program during the past fiscal quarter.

At the same time, 45 per cent of the unit's enlisted personnel have been studying under the Army wide program.

Due to field activities, missions covering a wide geographical area, and the alert status of many assigned personnel, which makes it impractical to attend group study courses, the majority have chosen correspondent courses.

Studies and tests have been completed in the field during such activities as an annual IG inspection, command maintenance inspection, continuous advanced unit training and air crew training, three separate field training periods of a week each, support to continuous Infantry School demonstrations and problems, an Army Aviation Symposium at Fort Rucker and preparation for the upcoming Caribou troop tests.

The unit was awarded a superior rating on both annual inspections taken during the quarter.

Education officer for the unit is Capt. Richard B. Shaefer. His encouragement of the program has kept text books in field packs and flight cases.

Power Mowers Are Dangerous

While mowing your lawns or weeds around the yard this summer with your power mower be sure to keep bystanders, and especially children, away. A power mower can throw rocks and other objects at a high rate of speed. The high velocity of these objects can blind, injure or even kill innocent bystanders or children playing nearby.

Canadian Liaison Officer Visits

Lt. Col. Thomas de Faye, Canadian liaison officer at Continental Army Command, Fort Monroe, was at Fort Benning this week to observe Infantry School methods of instruction. He viewed demonstrations of capabilities and limitations of mobility means presented by the school's Ground Mobility Department and leaders reaction testing at Dixie Village.

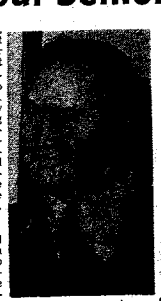
The Big Picture

(ANS) — A must for every soldier and dependent who swims during the summer season is the Army's Big Picture television program on "Mouth-to-Mouth Resuscitation," released March 18 in the Washington, D.C. area. This release will be followed by national TV presentation and showings at Active Army, National Guard and Reserve unit troop information conferences.



Knowledge of this relatively simple type of artificial respiration may help save a swimmer's life. The film shows the Army's latest and most effective techniques, giving a few easily remembered instructions.

Saving lives by this method is not limited to swimmers, but may be used to revive victims of gas poisoning, electric shock, suffocation and asphyxiation due to injury.

Leadership Factors Discussed By Georgia Tech's Dr. Harrison

Factors vital to leadership were discussed by Dr. Edwin D. Harrison, president of Georgia Institute of Technology, at the March dinner meeting of the Armed Forces Management Association at the post.

"Great people have something in common. Their personality, attitude and knowledge appeal to you. They are above the common herd," Dr. Harrison emphasized.

"The teaching profession has no higher percentage of these people than other professions. The great teacher is just as hard to find as the great businessman," he continued.

Dr. Harrison explained that these leaders are to be found in public life, the Armed Forces and in business.

He pointed out as great leaders he has known, "Gen. 'Nick' (Clark L.) Ruffner, former commander of Third Army, an absolutely amazing person; Bobby Jones, the great golfer; Lewis Strauss, controversial candidate for secretary of commerce and former chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission; Bobby Dodd, who has the highest standards and highest ethics of anyone I know, and Bob Woodruff, 'Mr. Coca-Cola'."

"What their success is based upon is their tremendous personalities. Each of them is a humble person. They are people of great humility. I do not mean they are self-effacing, but that they have absolutely no conceit," Dr. Harrison stressed.

CREDIT CO-WORKERS

"Each one of them knows that these things he has achieved were not done without the help of other people. They give far more credit than they should to others. Almost without exception they can accept and evaluate the advice given them by their co-workers. I don't mean they have to act on this advice every time, but they weigh it," he said.

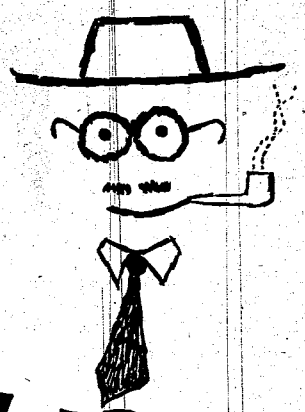
The speaker noted that great leaders recognize the fallibility of their co-workers and, if no injustice has been done, back their men when they make mistakes.

"It is vital to know enough about your job to do it right. However, almost anyone if he works hard enough can acquire a background of knowledge. Because this is the easiest to acquire of all these traits, I put it down on the list," he added.

"The common factor of all these men I know whom I would consider great leaders is consideration for others and the recognition that they have received outside assistance, and I might add, sometimes from divine sources," Dr. Harrison stated.

RESPONSIBILITY

He also mentioned the huge responsibilities of leadership and explored the reasons why some reject these burdens.



"The world now has a growing need for leadership at all levels. Our country in times of stress has always seemed to come up with more leaders. Maybe that's what it takes to make the timid people come forward to be skimmed like cream from the top. But we need these people now," he told the group.

'Instant Meal' Previewed Here, To Be Tried In Field By 1st Inf

BY DON BAIRD

Second Infantry Division key commanders, staff personnel and newsmen Tuesday were given a preview of a new "instant" meal which the soldier of the future may find not only more palatable but easier to carry and prepare.

Called the Quick Serve Meal, the 1,200 calorie, full-course meal will undergo immediate tests by the 1st Infantry to determine its feasibility as an easy-to-prepare ration for use in widely dispersed areas where the Army will not be able to employ elaborate food complexes.

By the addition of hot or cold water — depending on the nature of the food item — packages of freeze-dried, conventionally dehydrated ingredients are transformed within minutes to a meal which the Army hopes will be more appealing to the soldier's taste buds.

Lieutenant Colonel Clifford H. Reynolds, of the U. S. Army Quartermaster Food and Container Institute, told the gathering of senior commanders and newsmen that the Quick Serve Meal, in addition to being more palatable, maintains a 3,600 calorie-per-day nutritional value, and each meal is interchangable with the other.

Soup to Butts

The meals, consisting of 21 varied menus, from chicken and beef to soup and dessert, are prepared within its laminated and film bags, which are placed in disposable fibreboard containers.

Tuesday's demonstration, held at 2nd Infantry Division headquarters, featured a menu of chicken and gravy, potatoes, green peas, fruit cake, apple sauce, macaroni and cocoa. All items were either ready-prepared or prepared within their containers as the guests looked on.

In addition to the main course, companion items included salt, napkins, instant coffee, dry cream, chewing gum, sugar and cigarettes. Rifle patches, though not a food item, are included for use by the combat soldier who must keep his weapon functional and clean despite the conditions.

'Experimental'

Colonel Reynolds stressed that the Quick Serve Meal is presently in the "experimental stage." The 1st Infantry, beginning Monday, will test the meal for a week under simulated combat conditions. Further tests are planned during a 14-day exercise by the 4th Division's 12th Infantry at Yakima, Washington.

The result of these tests, say Army officials, may well determine the role the Quick Serve Meal will play in the Modern Army.

Colonel Reynolds told the gathering that the development of this "instant" meal represents a "breakthrough in food," and "may be the solution to feeding in forward areas" in the nuclear age.

In contrast to the conventional "C" rations, the Quick Serve Meal is designed for group feeding. One man — not necessarily mess personnel — can prepare meals for six men from a single package; two men can prepare a meal for 25 men from a 25-man package. The Quick Serve Meals will not replace the "C" rations, which still will be used in tactical situations.

New Course Points Out NCO's Leadership Characteristics

BY GEORGE HORD

A group of men getting a barrel out of a hole may not attract much attention from some people. But in this case, they do.

The Barrel in the Hole is one of the problems on the newly-installed Leader's Reaction Course at the Division's Noncommissioned Officer Academy. And the attention comes from those who rate the men who are running the course.

The course, consisting of ten problems, was devised and installed by instructors at the academy. Some of the ideas for the individual problems were picked up from viewing courses at other posts while one was used on an OSS course during World War II.

Running the course, which is set up by stations, takes approximately four hours. Preceding the course, an orientation period is held.

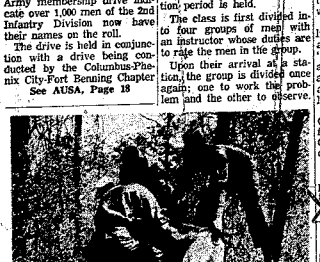
The class is first divided into four groups of men with an instructor whose duties are to rate the men in the group.

Upon their arrival at a station, the group is divided once again; one to work the problem and the other to observe.

The rater then reads the instructions for the problem. He explains what is to be done and points out the materials and equipment available for use.

Leaders Emerge

Next, the rater appoints one man in charge of the group to work the problem. However, this is only done on eight of the ten problems; it is not done on the remaining two so that a leader may "emerge" without being so designated.



Each problem has a time limit while certain objects, areas and the like are deemed "off limits." When a man or a piece of equipment touches an off-limit area, he or it is automatically out of the problem.

Purpose

The Leader's Reaction Course is designed "strictly for the man's benefit" says Captain James R. Woodall, commandant of the academy.

He explained that the purpose of the course is to identify a man's leadership

'Happy Birthday' Rates First On Hit Parade of Armor Unit

By 69th Armor PIO

Having a birthday is not merely the passing of another milestone to men of the 69th Armor's Headquarters Company.

Whereas married personnel may have their birthday anniversary celebrations at home, men who live in barracks ordinarily don't get the chance for such festive events.

But not at Headquarters.

Every "on post resident" in the 69th unit gets a party, according to a new policy instigated by the commanding officer, Captain Arno M. Apel. And, thus far, there have been no complaints.

Private First Class James Green recently celebrated his 18th birthday, marking the beginning of these birthday observances. In addition to receiving a congratulatory letter and a 24-hour pass — long a tradition in the 69th unit —he was honored with a party, complete with cake.

Spanish-Speaking 23rd Trainees Know Only 'Take a Break,' 'Chow'

BY 23RD INF. PIO

Combat Support Company of the 23rd Infantry is, of necessity, going bi-lingual.

They have, in their present cycle of AITs, 78 trainees, and of these, 56 are from Puerto Rico and six are from Mexico. This means that more than half the company is Spanish speaking.

The problem is that only about five of these trainees can speak English with any degree of accuracy. The majority of these few trainees have been appointed to positions of leadership within the Spanish speaking platoon.

However, the language barrier seems to fade to oblivion at the words "take a break," "chow," "pay call," "pass."

The difficulty was brought home last Friday when the battle group newspaper, "The Totem Pole," went to press. The Combat Support article was written half in English, half in spanish.

3 Day Exercise Highlights First's OVUREP Training

BY JOHN O'CONNOR

The Korea-bound 1st Infantry came a step closer to the end of its OVUREP training here as the unit completed the second field exercise of Advanced Unit Training.

The exercise saw the battle group repel a high speed mechanized attack by mock aggressor units in an area between highways 80 and 103 of the reservation.

Combat Support Company portrayed the mechanized aggressor unit, using its assault weapons and reconnaissance platoons during the three-day encounter.

An invasion of southeastern United States by an aggressor Army provided the background for the exercise. Aggressor armor was spearheading a drive on Columbus when the battle group attacked. A series of delaying actions followed which finally halted the aggressors short of their objective.

A nuclear explosion was simulated while aggressor aircraft staged a gas attack on Company C positions.

Litter jeeps of the Medical Platoon made repeated trips to the combat zone to remove simulated casualties. The Engineer Platoon of Headquarters Company constructed a 32 foot dry span and two fords along Randall Creek, while the Communications Platoon strung over 35 miles of wire during the exercise.

Brigadier General Charles H. White, Assistant 2nd Division Commander, observed the exercise from a helicopter, as did Colonel James H. Hayes, battle group commander.

The battle group will have completed eight months of combat training before its overseas movement in July. The unit will complete the last 13 months of its OVUREP cycle at Camp Casey, Korea, located 90 miles north of Seoul.

Your Role Today

EDITOR'S NOTE: This article is reprinted from the "TALON", newspaper of Fort Sam Houston, Texas. Its message applies to all soldiers.

"The Army is the solider, the soldier is the Army, and no Army is better than the men who fill its ranks."

This is the viewpoint of the American public toward its Army and it is a correct one. The people judge the Army primarily by the things they know, see and hear about individual soldiers.

Why are soldiers, and particularly technically trained soldiers, expected to be outstanding in their relations with civilians?

One reason for this is that they represent an elite group. The technical skills and specialized training demanded by our modern weapons and the intricacy and complexity of its equipment have resulted in the procurement and assignment of personnel far above the old Army average in intelligence and education.

Another reason is that your uniform sets you apart from other segments of the population. By your uniform, title, appearance and bearing you identify yourself as a soldier. If your actions are commendable, the credit is given to the Army much more than to you as an individual. Similarly, if they are bad, people say, "Well, that's the Army for you. If the soldiers act like that, we must not have a good Army, so why should I treat them with respect and pay my hard-earned money to support an Army." People will feel they are getting short-changed on their defense dollars.

Perhaps, common sense courtesy should be the basic element of your personal community relations. Let us consider a few phases of this:

Respect for women is an American tradition. How you act and speak in sight and hearing of women is a determining factor in how well you and other soldiers are accepted in the community. Insulting or loose behavior or speech is offensive to the average civilian.

Boisterous behavior by the soldier is seldom viewed with good grace by the civilian public. The civilian generally looks upon this conduct as an effrontery to his dignity and beyond the limits of behavior expected of a guest. Yes, we are guests in a civilian community. We must act with dignity and maturity, and with thoughtfulness for the rights of others.

Self-control is important to the military man. Self-control is the power that enables a man to live according to the rules. It is developed by the practice of self-denial, that is, by denying inclinations to do wrong for forbidden things.

A sense of humor often saves you from making a fool of yourself. Small slights, real and fancied, can be turned aside and prevented from becoming issues if you can smile and make a humorous rejoinder. When you lose your temper, you may say and do things you will long regret.

Personal appearance conveys the degree of pride in self and organization. A civilian seeing a soldier whose uniform is in a state of disarray, knows that the soldier is violating instructions, and he feels that the quality of the unit must be low.

Participation in community affairs is an excellent way for the soldier to impress the public with the fact that he is a solid citizen. There are unparalleled opportunities for building good community relations through membership or active participation in clubs, fraternal and veterans' organizations and churches.

In every area of this country, there are things that please and things that do not. A good rule to follow, and a good public relations procedure, is to show enthusiasm for the pleasing things — a new food experience, a bit of local scenery, a charming local custom or ceremony. Dislikes should be kept "under your hat."

There is an old theory that "first impressions are lasting ones." The first thing the public notices about a soldier is how he looks. It is an honor to wear the uniform of the United States Army, and a neat, well-groomed soldier attracts favorable attention to that Army.

Program Director Named At Sand Hill Service Club

By Div PIO

Mrs. Eleanor Sabota, former club manager of the Custer Terrace Officers Club, has assumed the position of program director of Service Club Number Two, Sand Hill.

The Bloomsburg, Pa., native has been in club work for six years. Prior to coming to Fort Benning, she worked at Fort Rucker, Alabama.

After receiving her bachelor of science degree from Bloomsburgh State Teachers College, Mrs. Sabota taught school for a year and a half at the Allentown (Pa.) State Hospital Clinic. After the war, Mrs. Sabota was associated with the American Red Cross in club work at the Roosevelt Club in Manilla, P.I., and Bad Tolz, Germany.

5 Members of Indianhead 'Family' in Masquers' Play

BY DIV PIO

A 122nd Signal Battalion soldier, his wife and the wives of three other 2nd Division men will appear in the Fort Benning Masquers' early-April production of "Dear Charles."

Private First Class Alan Cohen, of the Signal's Headquarters and Service Company, plays Edward the doctor in a spicy comedy about a French authoress who has some unconventional views on marriage.

Others in the cast include Patricia (Trish) Bischoff, the wife of Lieutenant Larry Bischoff of the 702nd Ordnance Battalion, and Mary (Scotty) Coleman, whose husband, Master Sergeant Guyman Coleman, is with the 23rd Infantry.

Boston Writer

PFC Cohen, a writer for a Boston publisher before answering the Army's call, is making his first stage appearance. His wife, Annarae, was born of missionary parents in the Philippines, and was confined there as a Japanese prisoner-of-war during World War II. She received her bachelor of arts degree in art from Skidmore College, Saratoga, New York.

Mrs. Bischoff, who appeared in several productions at Boston's Sinumons College, plays Martine, the authoress' daughter, in her first role for the Masquers. She is publicity chairman for the Division Officers' Wives' Club.

Mrs. Coleman, in the role of a servant, is believed to be the first French maid with a Scottish brogue. She's a native of Scotland.

"Dear Charles" will be presented at 8:30 p.m. April 7-8 at the Masquers Playhouse, Building 1045 (Old Hospital Area just off Baltzell Avenue). Admission is 90 cents.

Sports Trophies Housed In New Case at 9th Inf

By 9th Inf. PIO

With the 9th Infantry acquiring trophies and plaques at a rapid clip in the sports and shooting match fields, a brand new trophy case has been constructed to house the battle group awards.

Located in the 9th's battle group headquarters, the wood and glass trophy case also has on display awards gathered in reenlistment and training. The impressive case was built by the 9th Infantry's engineer platoon under supervision of Master Sergeant Andrew Link, the platoon's NCO in charge. A white silk lining covers the bottom of the trophy case which is constructed into the wall just inside the headquarters entrance.

Flanking it on either side are the large trophies won by the 9th as Division flag football champions in 1960, the Third Army softball champs in 1960, and the 2nd Infantry Division trophy for the Reenlistment NCO of the Month which was awarded recently to Sergeant First Class Thomas Borris.

Also featured in a prominent spot is the large wood and brass trophy taken by the 9th after copping the Infantry Center and Fort Benning softball crown in 1960. Other sports trophies in the case include: 2nd Division softball champs in 1959 and a swimming and diving award for 1959.

For shooting awards the 9th has four earned during the recent 1961 Commanding General's Championship Matches. The trophies denote champion-ship performances in the service rifle, the service pistol, and the automatic rifle categories. The rifle and pistol teams won first place awards and the automatic rifle squads took one first and one second place award.

The most unusual memento displayed comes from the 21st Infantry of the Queen's Guard from Thailand. This old regiment fought beside the 9th Infantry in the Korean War and the Thailanders presented the 9th with a plaque, a regimental crest, and the Queen's Guard arm patch.

Other plaques in the 9th's case include the Division first lorm quarterly reenlistment award for the first two quarters of 1960-61, a cross-country race award won in 1959, and a plaque presented to the 9th from Fort Benning Boy Scout Troop 37 for both 1960 and 1961.

Survey Tells Of Various Occupations

By 7th Cavalry PIO

A recent survey of the civilian jobs of members of Headquarters and Headquarters Troop, 3d Reconnaissance Squadron, 7th Cavalry, disclosed specialties of a wide variety and assortment.

In the transportation field there are drivers for a laundry truck, taxi cab, gas trucks, trucks in general and a train brakeman. To maintain these trucks there is a welder, service station attendant, and several mechanics.

For construction we find a carpenter, brick layer, electrician, steeple jack, laborers, painter, tin smith, roof repairman and plumber. Industries: oil field roustabout, machine operator, foreman and power saw operator. Some farmers and a chicken rancher cover the agriculture field. To feed these people there are cooks and waiters. For communication there is a telegraph operator and a lineman.

Other commercial enterprises might use a negative cutter, upholsterer, salesmen, musician, golf professional, insurance salesman, news boy and for the artistic touch a floral designer. For civic duties there is a fire lookout and a fireman.

All in all a wealth of experience and knowledge sufficient to operate a small city.

MSgt Rejoins Former Unit After 7 Yrs.

By 87th Inf PIO

Just seven years ago this Spring a young Sergeant named Eugene P. Gibbons joined Company K of the 37th Division at Camp Polk as a platoon sergeant. His job was to train Recruits in Advanced Individual Training, and Advanced Unit Training.

Today that same soldier, Master Sergeant Gibbons, is First Sergeant of that same unit, now Company B of the 87th Infantry.

This week Sergeant Gibbons, who has just rejoined the 87th after a three months assignment as First Sergeant of the Student Detachment, 2nd Division non-commissioned officer Academy, looked back on his seven years service with the same organization and reflected on the many changes during this period.

The names of the 87th Commanders and events that the 87th took part in came readily to mind for Sergeant Gibbons. He recalls Colonel Sherrard when the unit was deactivated as the 37th, reactivated as the 10th Division and sent to Fort Riley, Kansas, in 1954.

A year later, when the 10th moved to Schaufenburg, Germany, Colonel Anderson had assumed command. This was one of the Army's first "Gyrossope" movements.

Sergeant Gibbons recalls the rugged training in Germany, including a 60 mile hike to the Rhein on one maneuver.

In 1957 pentomic reorganization affected the 10th, and it became the 87th Infantry. Company K was in the process of becoming Company B and Sergeant Gibbons was still a member.

He recalls, still further back, taking part in "Operation Flashburn" when it was staged at Fort Bragg, North Carolina in 1954.

AIT's Arrive As Graduates Finish Cycle

By 9th Inf PIO

The 9th Infantry's battle group commander, Colonel James L. Osgard, welcomed 125 new Advanced Individual Trainees Monday to the "Keep Up the Fire" battle group for eight weeks of training in Military Occupational Specialty 112, Heavy Weapons Infantryman.

The new cycle will be trained by the 9th's Company C. Captain Jerry Keebaugh commands the unit.

The 9th's Combat Support Company held graduation exercises March 24 in Theater Seven in the Sand Hill area. Colonel Osgard delivered the graduation address to the 166 AIT's. A veteran of World War II, Private Carl Vadouga, finished first on the Division proficiency test.

The top award for the 106-millimeter recoilless rifle was captured by Private Ronald Barris. The number one man on the 81-millimeter mortar was Private Stanley Nelson. Private Curtiss J. Stranahan was named the "Trainee of the Cycle."

Three members of the cycle will remain with Combat Support as cadremen. Privates John Gantt, Wally Iwasaki, and Michael Davidson all were reassigned to the 9th as permanent party personnel.

Four other Combat Support graduates were retained by the battle group. Private Joseph Lockwood and Private Richard Hussar have been assigned to the 9th's public information section.

Privates James Bowers and Peter Tatistcheff will remain in the company pending assignment to Officer Candidate School.

On March 15 Captain Eugene Reardon, 69th Armor, Captain George M. Sheets from Headquarters 2nd Infantry Division and Captain Venon H. Ison, 7th Cavalry, left for Fort Stewart to coordinate Annual Tank Gunnery Qualification for the two Division tanker units.

During their stay at Fort Stewart the officers discussed housing, ranges and messing facilities for their units when they arrive in Fort Stewart in the month of May.

They returned to Fort Benning on Saturday to get their units ready for the trip to Fort Stewart.

The 69th Armor leaves for Fort Stewart on the 2nd of May and the 7th Cavalry leaves around the 12th of May.

Sgt Gets Family Travel Orders--

Master Sergeant Sol C. Simpson Jr., a member of Headquarters and Company B, 702nd Ordnance Battalion, was the first member of this unit to receive concurrent travel instructions since the previously imposed dependent travel ban.

As his alert orders were received prior to the revocation of the ban by President John F. Kennedy, he was unauthorized to travel with his family. Upon the receipt of the President's official revocation, Sergeant Simpson applied for travel of his dependents to Formosa. Five days later, he was making the necessary plans and arrangements for his family's move to the Orient with concurrent travel authorized!

By 22rd Inf PIO

Lieutenant Colonel Earnest A. Shelton was promoted to their present rank in a surprise ceremony on Tuesday.

Colonel Shelton received his silver leaves from the Division Commander Brigadier General William L. Hardick.

The "surprise" part of the occasion stemmed from the fact that the Colonel is currently on leave prior to departing for a tour in Europe. He was called at his home by the acting 23rd Infantry Commander Lieutenant Colonel Richard A. Perkins and asked to report to Battle Group Headquarters. Colonel Shelton was immediately escorted to division headquarters and into the office of General Hardick where he was told the good news.

Until a week ago Colonel Shelton was Battle Group Adjutant of the 23rd Infantry. He is a decorated veteran of World War II holding among his many decorations the Silver Star, Bronze Star, Purple Heart and the Combat Infantryman's Badge.

Lieutenant Colonel John B. Wine, assistant secretary-treasurer of the local chapter and 2nd Division G-2 (Intelligence) has termed the division participation as a "wonderful response from the career soldiers in the 2nd Division."

He added that some Indianhead units have reached 100 per cent membership of career officers and senior noncommissioned officers in the AUSA.

Local AUSA chapter officials have stressed importance on men recently transferred to Fort Benning having their mailing address changed in order that their names may be placed on the roll here. Lt. Col. Wine added that it is important that all AUSA members take an active part in the local chapter.

With over 1,000 2nd Division men on the AUSA roll, local chapter officials are hoping for a number one spot in the nation in membership.

Marsh Cited For Directing

By DIV PIO

The Sand Hill Actors Guild production of "At War with the Army" closed its four-day Fort Benning run Sunday night before an audience of 300 at Service Club Two.

Following the final curtain, the director of the farce-comedy, Lieutenant Nelson L. Marsh of the 9th Infantry, was presented a trophy for "outstanding direction" of "At War" and "A Hatful of Rain," given in August 1960 at the Sand Hill service club. Major Roy Lothner, executive officer of the Infantry Center Special Services Office, made the award to Lt. Marsh.

The four-day run of "At War" drew approximately 1300 military and civilian personnel. The Army farce goes on the road for one more performance April 9 at the Center Service Club at Fort Rucker, Alabama. A crowd of 250 to 300 is expected for the play's final showing.

Tyron Wins Navy Medal Two Times

By 87th Inf PIO

Specialist Five Robert A. Tyron, assigned to Company E, 1st Battle Group, 87th Infantry hasn't always served as a soldier; in fact he has received combat decorations while serving in the Navy.

From June 1951 to February 1953, Specialist Tryon served as flying ordnance man on one of the Navy's Privateers (PB4Y2) flying out of K-8, Kunson, Korea. His squadron was assigned operational support of the Marines as flare planes.

In addition to this primary mission the squadron would also bomb and strafe targets of opportunity along the rail and road nets leading from the North Korean coastline and Pyongyang, fly anti-sub patrols along the Korean coastline and direct the fire of the Navy's Task Force 77 on enemy radar pickets on the far coast of Korea and Manchuria. Many times they were also called upon to provide air rescue work and cover for downed UN pilots.

Although they were hit many times during their combat missions they always managed to return to their base, sometimes being chased by enemy fighters. As a result of his service Specialist Tryon has been twice awarded the Navy Air Medal given for meritorious achievement in aerial combat.

The Code Says

BY DIV PIO

In the annals of American military history there have been many outstanding examples of determination and the will-to-win. From the small band of 38 men who met the British at Lexington in 1775 to the "I shall return" of General Douglas MacArthur in WWII, the members of the Armed Forces have made their stand.

These feats of past leaders and heroes have become the foundation upon which we stand today. This is our heritage; the heritage of a nation still free to lead other nations into a free society.

What stand today's soldier will make in battle is still not known, but from all past experiences they will also demonstrate that same will-to-win which has been the guidepost of military service.

In the second article of the Code of Conduct, this determination is expressed simply and to the point:

I WILL NEVER SURRENDER OF MY OWN FREE WILL. IF IN COMMAND I WILL NEVER SURRENDER MY MEN WHILE THEY STILL HAVE THE MEANS TO RESIST.

First Aided By Platoon On Exercise

By 1st Inf. PIO

The construction of two fords and the initial phase of a 32 foot dry-span along Randall Creek enabled units of the 1st Infantry to make swift crossings of the waterway during the latest field exercise of Advanced Unit Training.

The dry span allowed tanks and armored personnel carriers to cross the creek without incident. The aluminum span was supplied to the Engineer Platoon of the battle group by the 2nd Engineer Battalion along with several road-improving vehicles.

Bulldozers carved fords along the creek's steep banks, while approaches to the dry span were improved with rock fill using a front loader and three dump vehicles.

Poor road conditions above the fords made the dry span heavily travelled. The span has not been removed as it might prove useful during future field exercises in the area.

Two NCOs Construct Unique TI&TE Room

By 87th Inf PIO

Sergeant First Class William H. Stinger and Sergeant Joseph R. Brown, Jr., Company D of the 87th Infantry, have recently completed new Troop Information and Troop Education Room, unique to both the 87th Infantry and to the 2nd Division.

Pressing forward with the theme "A Man Doing a Man's Job," SFC Stinger and Sgt Brown spent many hours of their own time to insure that the new TI and TE Room would be ready for the incoming troops of the Conqueror's OVUREP cycle.

Constructed adjacent to the Company D Dayroom, the new facility features huge showcases for informational and educational material. These showcases are each four feet high and are designed to form the letters T, I, and E. Also of particular note in the new room is the unusual chain of command board centered against one wall of the room. It is shaped like an inverted pyramid and spotlights pictures of all leaders in the command chain from the Company Commander, Captain George E. McKenna, to the President of the United States. The background of the command board is a glowing red and all framing and trim is done in gleaming gold.

The finishing touches in the novel room arrangement are framed copies of the United States Constitution and the Declaration of Independence placed above and on both sides of the door.

Directed about the theme "A Man Doing a Man's Job", materials in the Troop Education and Troop Information Room are readily available to all soldiers in Company D. Lieutenant Raul Villaronga, Company Troop Information Officer and Educational Development Officer, states that his objective in his Education and Information program is two-fold: First; to stress to the individual soldier the importance of his job and the need for it to be accomplished by a qualified, dedicated man, and second: to provide the soldier with informational and educational material to help him in the accomplishment of his mission.

Lieutenant Villaronga further stated "By providing information to increase the individual soldier's understanding and by educating him to increase his ability to understand, Company D is striving to produce able and effective fighting men, proud to be men doing men's jobs."

A team of seven bowlers will represent the 9th Infantry in the 2nd Division Bowling Tournament April 17-21 at the Sand Hill Alleys.

The 9th Infantry bowlers were selected as a result of a rolloff on March 22 at the Main Post Bowling Alley. Six of the men will compete in the division tourney and one alternate will be carried.

Nine lines will be rolled by each team entering the tourney. Only the top five scores will count in determining the division champion. The highest number of total pins felled on a scratch basis will cop the crown.

Four games were bowled by each competitor in the 9th's rolloff. Lt. Jerome Poelking of Company B downed 800 pins for an even 200 average pace. Sgt. John Raess of Headquarters Company finished in the runnerup slot with a fine 178 average.

Three other members of the team also averaged in the 170s. Specialist Five Gweldon Driggs of Headquarters Company had a 176, Private First Class Harry Hall of the weapons pool had a 176, and Lt. Frank Gubdaker of Company E had a 175 average. First Sergeant Thomas Tobin of Headquarters Company managed a 169 average.

The alternate for the 9th is Captain Matthew Ryan, currently attending the Infantry School's Advanced Career Course. He had a 168 average.

Two Recondition 9th's Unit Crest At Post Stadium

By 9th Inf PIO

The 2nd Infantry Division's 9th Infantry became the first major unit to recondition its battle group crest mounted on the west wall of Doughboy Stadium on Main Post.

Sergeant Jack Pardee, a member of the 9th Infantry's Headquarters Company, wielded the paint brush in reconditioning the colorful blue, black, yellow, and white regimental crest. Specialist Fifth Class Tommy Nuchols, also from the 5th's Headquarters Company, assisted Sergeant Pardee in the refinishing job.

More than 20 regimental crests adorn the walls of Doughboy stadium, one of Fort Benning's oldest landmarks. The stadium is the home of the Fort Benning Doughboy football, track, and soccer teams.

The once-colorful regimental crests are mounted on solid wrought-iron bases and bolted permanently to the concrete stadium walls. Many of the Army's oldest and proudest regiments are represented with their crests. Several of the units represented have been deactivated since the end of World War II.

Shy Dimaggio

In 1936 when Joe DiMaggio reported to the Yankees for the first time, sports writers were far from impressed with his shy attitude. Recently "Big Joe" recalled that day and said, "I was nearly frightened to death. I took one look at those fellows, big in size as well as name, and I just froze."

"I Beat Arnold Palmer" Golf Meet Held By MP Association

Only a few days remain before the official golf score cards must be turned in in order to "Beat Arnold Palmer," according to representatives of the Provost Marshal's Section at The Infantry Center.

The Military Police Association Inc., presenting its Fifth Annual International Golf Day, will award engraved lighters to winning golfers purchasing an official score card, playing a round under the handicap system and the matching his score with defending Master Open Golf Tournament champion, Arnold Palmer's first round score in this year's tournament.

It is possible for anyone to beat Palmer's score under the Callaway Handicap System. A golfer who fires a round in the 150's could possibly win an award.

Depending on the score variations, a golfer is allowed to deduct as many as eight bad holes from the official score. Anyone shooting par or less during the round has to play his original score.

Official entries must be turned into club pros at the course where the round is played or any military policeman so the tabulation can be made before the first round of the Masters Golf Tournament scheduled April 6 in Augusta, Ga.

Rounds can be played at any time, as long as it is completed before April 6.

Golfers, civilian and military, are invited to take part in the tournament. Seventy-five per cent of all proceeds from the event will be contributed to local charities.

The award lighters will bear the Military Police Association insigne on the front with "I Beat Arnold Palmer" engraved on the back. Awards will be presented as soon as possible after the final scores have been matched.

Pentathlon Team

Arnie Sowell and Dave Jackson of the U.S. modern pentathlon team helped pace their squad to an impressive fencing win over Johns Hopkins University. Both men are preparing for world competition events to be held this summer.

The contest with the Auburn Soccer Club is scheduled to begin at 2 p.m.

Today's Sportrait

Today's sportrait spotlights Pfc Raymond Young of Headquarters Battery, 2nd Howitzer Battalion, 10th Artillery, 1st Infantry Brigade, who has been in the sports limelight since his junior high school days.

At Galesburg Senior High School he played football, basketball, and baseball. Young lettered every year in each of those sports and in his senior year received the coveted Most Valuable Player Award. His name was etched on a plaque and still remains in the school's Hall of Fame.

In 1955 he was a member of the baseball and basketball teams playing in the state conference. In order to be eligible for the state finals, a team must first win in stiff competition at district, regional, and sectional levels. He returned to the state conference in 1956 as a member of the basketball team. The Galesburg Senior High quint in 1956 produced the best record up to that date with a 26-2 season record.

After high school, Pfc Young received invitations from the Chicago Cubs and the Baltimore Orioles plus scholarship offers from eight different colleges throughout the mid-west including Bradley University (Peoria, Ill.) and Western Illinois University (McComb, Ill). He finally accepted a joint basketball-baseball scholarship to Parsons College in Fairfield, Iowa.

PFC YOUNG

He was a regular starter on the basketball and baseball teams as a freshman.

He entered the Army in 1959 at Fort Leonard Wood, Mo., where he played one season of basketball before going to Texas for medical training. His next opportunity for sports participation came with his arrival to the 10th Artillery in June, 1960.

He was a member of the "Redlegs" baseball lineup which placed fourth last year in the post major unit competition. Pfc Young led the battery touch football squad in points last season. The team placed first in battalion, second in brigade, and third in post competition. He also led the battalion basketball team in points scored.

At Dahlonega

New Mess Built For Rangers

The Army Mountain Ranger Camp, at Dahlonega, recently opened its first permanent mess hall after nine years of using tents and a wooden semi-permanent building for a mess hall.

In 1952, the time of establishment of the camp, until 1958, the mess existed in several large tents. Then in 1958 a small wooden semi-permanent building was erected.

The dining room will seat 220 persons and at least 500 persons can be served at any one meal. This mess serves the entire camp population which rises as high as 575, but usually hovers around 400. During training cycles, the mess often operates around the clock.

Some of the major items of new kitchen equipment include: a large ice-machine, an electric dish and tray washing machine, an 80 gallon pressure-cooking steam vat, two coffee urns, two deep fat fryers and two large walk-in refrigerators.

SFC AND MRS. WEINBRECHT
On Firing Line Recently At Tampa, Fla.

Now Wife Shoots Too

Sergeant's Not Alone In Taking Pistol Honors

Pistol shooting is a family sport for Sfc Henry Weinbrecht of the Army Advanced Marksmanship Unit and his wife Mary.

Sergeant Weinbrecht took high overall honors in the .45 caliber aggregate with an 876-34x while Mrs. Weinbrecht's 776-14x gave her first place in the civilian sharpshooter class.

Mrs. Weinbrecht, not wishing to become a "range widow", took up pistol shooting at the suggestion of her husband only a little over two years ago. In her first year of competition, 1959, she was high lady competitor at the Sun Carnival Matches in El Paso, Tex.

Last year she won a similar title at the Alamo Gun Club matches in San Antonio and was a member of the record-breaking women's team at the tournament.

In addition to her first place in the .45 caliber aggregate at Tampa, Mrs. Weinbrecht, a native of Akron, Ohio, was high civilian sharpshooter in the center fire slow fire match, the center fire aggregate, the .45 caliber warm-up match, and the .45 caliber rapid fire match.

The club provides facilities for its members to keep horses on post. It sponsors group rides, breakfasts, overnight rides and horse shows.

Anyone who wishes to learn how to ride may join the beginners or advanced riders classes supervised by the club.

The Hunt Club invites all interested personnel to visit its facilities at any time.

With Rangers Help

Helicopter Crews Train In Air-Sea Rescue Work

All Rotary Wing Units within Lawson Army Aviation Command are presently undergoing specialized training in Air-Sea rescue techniques. The training is being conducted to insure that each helicopter crewman will become proficient in the techniques of recovering both conscious and unconscious persons from the water, understand correct life saving techniques and be able to perform land rescue in places too inaccessible to land a helicopter.

The course of instruction includes a minimum of four hours of class work coupled with a minimum of four hours of practical work. The helicopter crews work in pairs. Crews alternate between playing the part of the rescuers and the rescued.

A demonstration was given recently at Kings Pond showing the capabilities of Army rotary wing aircraft in these operations. The helicopters were flown by members of the 19th Transportation Company, (Medium Helicopters), and was supported by volunteers from the Ranger Department. The Rangers, simulating victims of accidents, were fished from the pond with special grappling devices.

The demonstration was witnessed by Brig. Gen. L. A. Walsh Jr., and Col. Bernard G. Teeters of the Ranger Department.

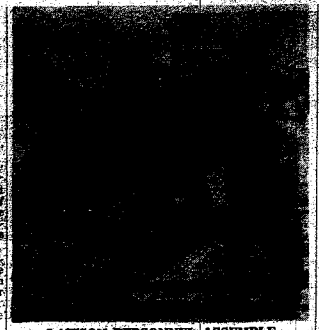
'Operation Solidarity'

Seven Lawson H-34 Helicopters Support Panamanian War Games

Seven H-34 Helicopters from Lawson Army Aviation Command were recently taken to the Panama Canal Zone where they participated in the latest Panamanian War games, called "Operation Solidarity."



The seven aircraft, led by Major James R. Woods, were combined with five H-34's from Fort Knox, two HU-1 helicopters and one H-21 helicopter from Fort Bragg to form a Provisional Demonstration Unit for the games.

After assembling, the P.D.U. proceeded to Fort Eustis, where the aircraft were loaded on the USNS Point Barrow for shipment to the Panama Canal Zone.

While at Kibbe, Canal Zone, the unit flew 215 hours in support of USARCARIB in numerous missions, including troop hauls, V.I.P. hauls, air show, Airborne assaults, air-sea rescue and support of skydivers.

The Provisional Demonstration Unit was met in the Canal Zone by one AC-1, "Caribou," from 1st Aviation Company, LAAC, and one AO-1, "Mohawk", airplane from Fort Rucker. The capabilities of these and other aircraft were demonstrated to over 200 visiting South American dignitaries in the Canal Zone.

Upon completion of it's mission, the unit's aircraft were transported to Fort Eustis from where they were flown to their home stations.

During April and May

The Infantry Board to Test New Rations Which May Eliminate KPs, Cooks in Field

The Army Infantry Board on the post has been designated the principal coordinator of a consolidated Engineer-Service test of dehydrated, quick-serve meals.

The test will be conducted during April and May and will involve several thousand men of the 2nd Infantry Division and the 4th Infantry Division at Fort Lewis, Wash.

Under the supervision of Col. Jack B. Matthews, director of the Field Equipment and Special Projects Department, Infantry Board, members of the Board and representatives of the Quartermaster Food and Container Institute and the Quartermaster Field Evaluation Agency will evaluate the practical aspects of feeding quick-serve meals to troops.

The results of applicable portions of the test will serve as the basis for recommendations to Continental Army Command as to the acceptability of quick-serve meals for use by the Army in the field.

Aspects of the quick-serve meal with which the members of the Infantry Board will be concerned during this extensive test will mainly include: the desirability of its physical characteristics; the effects of open storage and temperature on the meal; its portability and transportability; the amount of water required for preparation and its effect on Class I and water supply activities in divisional and supporting units; the advantage of the quick-serve meal as opposed to present 5 to 1 rations and operational "B" rations; the optimum module (container) sizes, and its command acceptability.

JUST ADD WATER

The quick-serve meals to be tested consist of precooked, dehydrated food products. The only thing that is necessary to prepare them is to add water (hot or cold as required) and then allow them to rehydrate for approximately 20 minutes.

As a result, the man in the field may conceivably start his day with a juice — orange, grapefruit, or tomato — or prepare a complete hot meal in a matter of minutes.

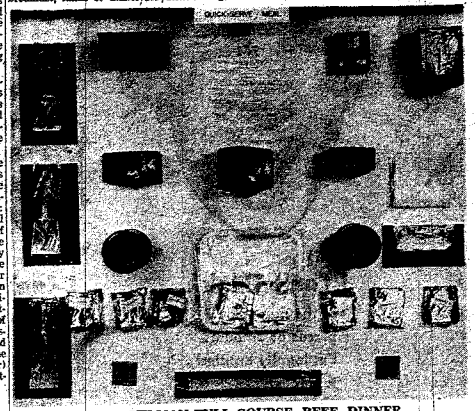
No specially trained cooks are required to prepare the meals and any soldier who can boil water and follow simple instructions should be able to prepare any one of the 21 meals currently available. In addition, the quick-serve meal eliminates the necessity for field ranges, pots, pans and KP's.

The meals are presently combined into six-man and 25-man modules for ease of supply and handling. A single person is all that's required to prepare breakfast, lunch or dinner, for six, while with the 25-man module, two men can prepare a typical lunch consisting of chicken rice soup, meat and spaghetti with tomato sauce, butterscotch pudding, bread, jam, coconut bar and coffee, cream and sugar for 25 men.

NO MESS GEAR

The modules contain all the necessary utensils for preparing and eating the meals. Included are paper trays and cups, plastic spoons, knives and ladles for mixing the food. All of these items are disposable and eliminate the necessity for dishwashing, a factor which helps offset the added water requirement for rehydrating food.

Although stoves are not presently issued to heat the water necessary to prepare the meals, several types of disposable heating units will be tested along with the meals for possible inclusion at a later date.



NEW PROCESS

The quick-serve meal is obtained by a striking new process in dehydration known as, "freeze-drying." It is used to dehydrate food items that might be heat damaged or changed in structure during the dehydration process.

In freeze-drying, the item is frozen, then dehydrated under vacuum pressure at a low temperature. The ice crystals are then removed, leaving the product porous. This process not only allows the item to retain its original shape, but also makes its rehydration quicker and more complete.

Unlike the dehydration methods used during World War II, the freeze-drying method does not alter the taste of the food or change it into masses of gray powder. From 95 to 100 per cent of the original flavor is retained and, when the foods are reconstituted, they resume their original shape and size. Hence, a steak — once reconstituted — actually looks and tastes like a steak.

Dehydrated foods promise several advantages over other types of preserved foods, the most prominent of which is the huge reduction in weight. By freeze-drying 80 pounds of cabbage, it can be condensed into two and a half pounds and then packaged in a tin.

AMU Stands Out in National Mid-Winter Pistol Matches

Match bulletins read like Army team rosters as the handgun champs from the Army Advanced Marksmanship Unit (USAAMU) from this post took all three individual subaggregates, the individual three gun championship, and three of four major team titles including the overall team championship.

Master Sgt. Richard M. Stineman scored the first major victory of the week - long tournament for the soldier-shooters as he topped the field of 400 competitors to win the .22 caliber championship with a score of 890-48X.

The mustachioed Stineman made it two in a row when, on the third day of competition he edged teammate Sfc William B. Blankenship by five Xs to take the center fire championship with an 877-44X to Blankenship's 877-39.

In .45 caliber competition, Sfc Henry Weinbrecht of AAMU fired an impressive 875-34X to win the individual match title.

Without winning a single sub-aggregate, Sfc Blankenship, the Army's perennial pistol powerhouse, moved up during the .45 caliber matches to edge the front runner Stineman by three points and win the individual grand aggregate.

Army shooters Stineman and Sfc Samuel W. Hunter placed second and third behind Blankenship as he posed his winning 2637-122X score. T-Sgt William M. Mellon of the Air Force placed fourth, seventeen points behind the winner.

TEAM MATCHES

In the team matches, Army shooters continued their sweep. Army Grey Blue squad finished one-two in the .22 caliber team match with 1726-54X and 1168-62x respectively. The Tampa Morning Tribune Trophy, awarded to the winners of the center fire team match went to Army Blue for its 1167-54x victory.

Close behind in second and third places were Army Green and Army Grey.

The "big match," the team grand aggregate, was won by the Army Blue team composed of M-Sgts. Stineman and Mack R. Salmon (Coach), Sfc Blankenship, Sfc Floyd D. Oliver, Sfc Hunter, and Sgt. Floyd D. Thomson, with a total of 3488-167x. In second place was Army Grey with 3477-144x. Air Force Blue followed in third place with a 3474-123x score.

Post YAC Elects New Officials

The members of the post Youth Activities Club elected a new board of governors for the coming year at their annual election held during the regular March monthly meeting last week. The new officers will be installed at the club's April meeting.

Col. Samuel W. Koster, commander of the 1st Battle Group, 29th Infantry, 1st Infantry Brigade, was elected president. The new first vice-president is Lt. Col. Terrence W. Huck of 2nd Division.

Other new board members are Major Albert E. Pokorny, The Infantry School and Major Edgar A. Hinton of the 2nd Division. SMaj Earl F. Wilson, Infantry Center Troop Command, was also elected to the board of governors.

During the meeting, Col. Lewis W. Leeney, commander of Lawson Army Aviation Command, presented the club's current president, Col. Harley T. Marsh Jr., The Infantry School, with a $600 check representing new memberships in the club from his command, and to kick-off the club's membership drive on post.

The Surgeon Says

Your Medical Service at MAH

By Col. Robert J. Hoagland MC

The Medical Service of the Martin Army Hospital is one of the subdivisions of the Department of Medicine. It consists of five medical wards, for patients with conditions classified as "medical" and skin diseases.

One of these medical wards is set aside for patients with contagious diseases — in the broader sense of the word (ie. including pneumonia and similar diseases). Two medical wards are set aside for enlisted men who do not have contagious diseases. One medical ward is designated as an officers' ward, and another is a women's ward.

Most of the patients are hospitalized because of illnesses which require investigation or treatment. However, an increasing number of patients must be admitted for administrative reasons—for example, members who are on the TDRL (Temporary Disability Retired List) are ordered in for routine re-evaluations, at intervals of six to eighteen months, for as long as five years.

The Cardiology Clinic, a part of the Medical Service, is supervised by Major James A. Ewart, who is the hospital cardiologist and also in charge of the Officers' Ward.

In this Clinic about one hundred fifty patients are seen monthly and about one thousand electro-cardiograms are taken, and interpreted by Major Ewart and Colonel Robert J. Hoagland, MC, who is Chief of the Department of Medicine.

Another member of the Medical Service, Capt. Raymond H. Bishop Jr., has been instrumental in laying the groundwork for the hospital Radioisotope Laboratory and is in charge of two wards.

Colonel Hoagland and Capt. Bishop are diplomats of the American Board of Internal Medicine and members of the American College of Physicians.

Captain Leo R. Cardillo is in charge of the Women's Ward and performs examinations of the stomach and esophagus with instruments which enable him to inspect these organs. Capt. Bob Carlisle is in charge of the ward for contagious disease.

These last three officers have other duties including troop dispensaries, routine physical examinations and patient follow up in the Medical Clinic.

The officers of the Medical Service are aided by five interns who have been selected from many applicants for this desirable internship. The great range of disease presented by patients on the Medical Service and the supervision of highly qualified senior officers give the interns superior experience in the field of internal medicine.

The patients on the Medical Service consist of military and dependents, who are active or retired and who live at Fort Benning or in the vicinity.

Increasing numbers of patients are being transferred from other Army and Air Force installations in the Southeast; and retired personnel who live as far away as Florida come directly here for hospitalization. Naturally, the volume of cases necessitates working hours which are usually over fifty-five hours, and sometimes in excess of sixty hours, a week.

However, the challenges presented by the illnesses encountered, the stimulating effects of the Intern Training Program, high professional attainments of colleagues, and a superior esprit de corps contribute to the highest levels of professional knowledge and interest and patient care.

Clinical research is conducted almost all of the time. Several officers of the Medical Service have published important articles in medical literature and have addressed civilian hospital staffs and national medical societies on diseases which have been clarified by their efforts.

In summation, the Medical Service is a subdivision of Martin Army Hospital, is staffed by highly competent Medical Officers, takes care of patients with non-surgical or psychiatric disorders and is performing outstanding service for the Army in the Southeast.

GED Policies Changed

The Army Education Center has recently announced a change in USAFI policy on GED retests.

In the past it has been required only that an individual be enrolled in a group study or correspondence course and wait the prescribed time to be eligible for a retest in a part failed. It is now necessary that an individual continue to attend a course and complete the course by taking the end of course test in order to qualify for a retest of a part failed.

Those who were enrolled since December 7, 1960, at Fort Benning who did not complete courses are advised to do so by taking the end of course test at an early date if they expect to be eligible for retest on the GED test.

"Dear Charles"

Masquers' Latest Is French Comedy

Contemporary France is the setting for The Masquers' April production, "Dear Charles," which will be presented at 8:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday, April 7 and 8, at The Masquers Playhouse.

The three-act comedy by Alan Melville is a French comedy that centers around Denise Darvel, the main character portrayed by Margo Carter.

Although never wed, Miss Darvell has three children, the eldest Walter, played by Pvt. Glenn Gray; Jan Bruno, played by Pfc John Obrys, and the daughter, Martino, played by Patricia Bischoff.

Walter and Martino announce their intention to marry another brother and sister, Jean-Pierre, not casted, and Lucienne Duchemin, played by Judy Harrison.

Denise feels obligated to tell her children she has never married and on the advice of Edward, played by Pfc Alan Cohen, a doctor and a good family friend, does so with hilarious results.

Throwing a complication into the matter, she invites the three fathers who do not even know about their children to a meeting.

First is Sir Michael Anstruther, played by Spc4 Chuck O'Donnell, who is the father of Walter; Jan Letzaresce, played by Pfc Vince DeDario who is also the director, father of Martino, and finally, Dominique LeCler, played by Pvt Steve LeBow, who is the father of Bruno.

Adding to the general confusion throughout the play is the loyal but excitable maid, Martha, played by Mary Coleman, a native of Scotland.

The surprising and hilarious conclusion to the comedy comes with the visit of Madame Duchemin, played by Mrs. Helen S. Vogel, who is the mother of Lucienne and Jean Pierre.

Easter Egg Hunt Will Be Held For MOOM Tots

The annual Easter Egg Hunt for the children of members of the Main Officers' Open Mess will be held on French and Gordon Fields tomorrow at 2 p.m. This event is conducted for children ten years old and younger.

Children in the age group two through five will assemble at the east end of French field. Children in the age group six through ten will assemble on the south side of Brown Hall on Ingersoll Street.

Prizes will be awarded to the finders of selected eggs and in addition, all participants will receive a bag of sweets.

Merit Certificates Deadline Nears

Eight major units of the post are eligible for a Third Army Certificate of Merit for Educational Development of military personnel to be presented at the end of the fiscal year in recognition of the best overall Army education program.

The award will be presented after June 30 by Major Gen. Hugh P. Harris, commanding general of The Infantry Center.

Figures released by The Center's Educational Development Section at the end of the second quarter show the 151st Engineer Group in the lead with 24.9 per cent of personnel engaged in the Army's education program.

Other unit standings are the 428th Medical Battalion 24.5 per cent; participating: Lawson Army Aviation Command, 21.2 per cent; The Infantry School's Student Brigade, 21 per cent; Infantry Board, 20.5 per cent; 1st Infantry Brigade, 19.5 per cent; Infantry Center Troop Command, 15.3 per cent, and Martin Army Hospital, 12.7 per cent.

All figures are based on a six-month average in percentage and number of personnel.

New standings will be released to unit commanders at the end of the third quarter March 31, according to Leonard Sr. Ozley, supervisor at the Education Development Section. Units still have one more quarter in which to compete for the Third Army Certificate of Merit for Educational Development, he added.

Third Army's goal is 25 per cent of personnel in each unit engaged in education activities.

CG Greets Shooters Of All Services

America's participation in future world and Olympic marksmanship competition may be largely dependent upon the Armed Forces, 150 crack marksmen from all the military services were told by Major Gen. Hugh P. Harris, commanding general of The Infantry Center, on Monday.

"A great deal of interest must be stimulated within the several services to speed advancement of international-type shooting," Gen. Harris said in an address opening the First Annual Armed Forces International Shooting Competition which will end here tomorrow.

700 Dogs Are Expected In Atlanta Canine Show

A record entry of more than 700 dogs is expected for the Atlanta Kennel Club's 61st All-Breed Dog Show to be held April 15, according to Paul M. Haynam, show chairman.

Conducted by the oldest kennel club in the South, the Georgia capitol city's event will be staged at Lakewood Park, site of the State Fair, from 9 a.m. until the best-in-show judgment is made late in the day.

Mr. Haynam has announced that more than $2,000 in trophies, cash and ribbons will be presented to owners and handlers of dogs judged as winners of the various classes and groups. In addition to $50 in cash and a $50 silver trophy given to the best-in-show winner by the sponsoring club, top awards will include the $100 H. G. Hastings' trophy for the best local dog in competition.

Prospects for the heavy entry from throughout the United States and Canada are due to the added attraction of specially shows scheduled for the following day at nearby Marietta, Ga.

On April 16, the Combined Specialty Clubs of Atlanta will conduct separate competition for Cocker Spaniel, Afghan Hounds, Boxers, German Shepherds, Great Danes, Shetland Sheepdogs, Kerry Blue Terriers and Pekingese. Most of these entrants will compete with approximately 40 other breeds the previous day.

VOL. 19, NO. 30 — FRIDAY, APRIL 7, 1961 — FORT BENNING, GA. — 36 Pages — Price 5c

Major Gen. Harrell Named To Be Next Post Commander

GEN. HARRELL

Major Gen. Ben Harrell, commanding general of the 101st Airborne Division, Fort Campbell, will succeed Major Gen. Hugh P. Harris as commandant of The Infantry School and commanding general of The Infantry Center.

He will arrive at the post this summer.

Gen. Harris has been nominated by the President for the rank of lieutenant general and named to command I Corps in Korea.

Gen. Harrell was assigned to Fort Campbell last June from Continental Army Command, Fort Monroe, Va., where he was deputy chief of staff for operations, plans and training.

A 1933 graduate of the U. S. Military Academy, Gen. Harrell was born in Medford, Ore., and considers Eugene, Ore., his home. He is married to the former Harriet Campbell of Medford. They have two sons, Charles and Hunter.

Gen. Harrell was stationed at Fort Benning from December, 1945, to July, 1949, in successive assignments at The Infantry School as assistant director of training, Academic Department; director, Combat Requirements Section; commander, 27th Infantry Regiment; chief of the Operations Training Committee, General Subjects Section, Academic Department, and chairman of the General Subjects Section.

He was graduated from The Infantry School's officer advanced course in 1940 and Airborne course in February, 1949.

Gen. Harrell's World War II service includes command of the 15th Infantry Regiment, 3rd Division, in the Mediterranean

Gen. Walsh's Infantry School Report

(In this, the second and final article on the Instructor Training Course at The Infantry School, the techniques and conduct of the course are discussed—Editor)

The Instructor Training Course is a four week cycle encompassing formal instruction on instructional methods, speech and presentation techniques, lesson planning, testing, and the practical work conducted in groups. The class is divided into eight-man groups under the supervision of an ITS instructor.

All student practical work is conducted in these groups. The group work consists of thirteen exercises. The first exercises, a two-minute biographical sketch and a three-minute talk, are designed to overcome fear of the platform and to control initial stagefright.

These are followed by a five-minute talk which is the three-minute talk just presented with humorous story or incident included. The objective here is to point out the importance of appropriate humor to effective instruction.

The requirement for the second five-minute talk is a demonstration of some object or item to determine the student's ability to demonstrate either a function or the item itself. This exercise is quite often the turning point in the student's progress. The fact, that a student

Gen. Mark Clark Speaks At Coming AUSA Dinner

General Mark W. Clark (Ret.), president of The Citadel in Charleston, S. C., will be guest speaker at a meeting of the Columbus-Phenix City-Fort Benning Chapter of the Association of the U. S. Army to be held at Friant Wells Field House Tuesday, April 11 at 7 p.m.

Gen. Clark is scheduled to speak on "The Education of American Youth". Tickets to the event are available at the Chamber of Commerce.

The address by Gen. Clark will highlight the evening's activities which will begin with a social hour followed by a dinner.

The four-star general will be the guest at an official dinner at the home of Major Gen. Hugh P. Harris, commanding general of the post on Monday, and an official luncheon on Tuesday at the Ida Cason Callaway Gardens.

The retired general was born at Madison Barracks, N. Y. Shortly after graduating from the U. S. Military Academy at West Point in 1917, he joined the American Expeditionary Force in France where he saw action in the Vosges Mountains, and the St. Mihel and Meuse-Argonne offensives.

He returned to the U. S. in 1919 and, after several assignments, graduated from The Infantry School in 1925. For the next fifteen years he served in various assignments in the U. S.

In August of 1940 Gen. Clark was named Assistant Chief of Staff for Operations of the General Headquarters, U.S. Army. He became Deputy Chief of Staff of the Army Ground Forces in January 1942 and Chief of Staff of that organization in May.

He went to England in June 1942, and the following month was named Commander of the European Theater of Operations. In October 1942 he became Deputy Commander in Chief of the Allied Forces in the North African Theater.

Shortly before the actual invasion of North Africa Gen. Clark made a trip by plane and submarine to French North Africa from London for a secret rendezvous with a group of French officers to arrange details of the proposed landings.

Following the landings he induced Admiral Darlan to repudiate the Vichy regime and order all French forces in Africa to cease resistance to the Americans and British.

Gen. Clark was named commander of the Fifth Army which participated in the amphibious invasion of Italy in September 1943. He remained as head of the Fifth Army until December 1944 when he was placed in command of the 15th Army Group consisting of all Allied fighting forces in Italy. He held this command until the close of hostilities in Europe.

Following the surrender, he was appointed Commander in Chief of the U. S. Occupation Forces in Austria and U.S. High Comissioner for Austria.

He returned to the U. S. in June 1947 to command the Sixth Army with headquarters at the Presidio of San Francisco, Calif. In September 1949 he was appointed Chief of Army Field Forces at Fort Monroe.

The four star general was appointed Commander in Chief Far East Command, on April 30, 1952, and served simultaneously as Commander in Chief, U. N. Command; Commanding General, U. S. Army Forces, Far East and Governor of the Ryukyu Islands.

Signed Armistice

On July 27, 1953 Gen. Clark signed the military armistice agreement between the U. N. Command and the military commanders of the North Korean Army and the Chinese People's Volunteers ending the fighting in Korea.

Relinquishing his commands on October 7, 1953, Gen. Clark returned to the States and relired from active military service on October 31, 1953.

Gen. Clark became president of The Citadel, the military college of South Carolina, on March 19, 1954.

From the summer of 1954 until May 1955 he served as chairman of the task force investigating intelligence organizations of the U. S. Government.

Gen. Clark has been awarded the Distinguished Service Cross and the Distinguished Service Medal with three Oak Leaf Clusters, Navy Distinguished Service Medal, Legion of Merit, Bronze Star with "V" for valor and the Purple Heart.

He holds honorary degrees from the University of Naples, University of Vienna, Oxford, University of Florence, Oberlin College, University of Southern California, University of San Francisco, University of Arkan, Loyola University and Clemson College.

Theater in September, 1943, and duty as deputy chief of staff of the division. After several months of combat in the Volturno and Cassino areas of Italy, he made the landing at Anzio.

Gen. Harrell was appointed G-3 of VI Corps in the Mediterranean Theater in February, 1944. In August, 1944, he landed in Southern France in the ANVIL invasion. Taking command of the 3rd Division's 7th Infantry a few days later, he led it through numerous combat actions until the capture of Strasbourg, France, in December, 1944.

He then returned to Italy as G-3 of Fifth Army, remaining there until his assignment to Fort Benning a year later.

After leaving The Infantry School in July, 1949, Gen. Harrell went to Fort Campbell to the 11th Airborne Division, where he served in successive assignments as commander of the 511th Airborne Infantry Regiment and as chief of staff.

Following a year as a student at the National War College, Fort McNair, Washington, D. C., he went to Paris in August, 1952, to serve as a staff officer at SHAPE (Supreme Headquarters Allied Powers Europe). A year later he went to Berlin to command the 6th Infantry Regiment for 12 months, then to serve as chief of staff for the U. S. commander in Berlin.

Gen. Harrell was named executive officer to the assistant secretary of the Army for manpower and Reserve Forces in August, 1955. Six months later he was selected to head the Infantry Branch, Career Management Division, Office of the Adjutant General, Department of the Army. He was promoted to brigadier general the following month.

In July 1958, he went to Korea as assistant commander, 7th Infantry Divison, and commanding general of the 7th Infantry Brigade. Promoted to major general in August, 1959, he returned to U.S. to serve as assistant deputy chief of staff for operations, plans and training at CONARC. He stepped up to deputy chief of staff for operations, plans and training in April, 1960.

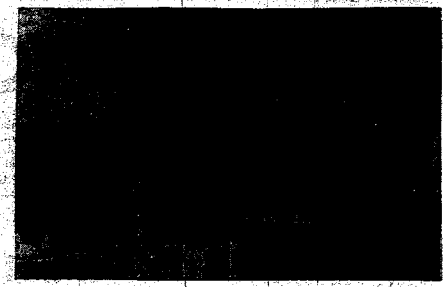
The fourth practical exercise is entitled Impromptu I. A subject is given to the student just before he goes to the stage. Here the objective is to determine the student's ability to think on his feet.

In sequence, the next exercise is a ten-minute lecture. This has been prepared and rehearsed by the student so he can present a logical and complete unit of instruction. Since this is the first time a lesson outline is required, the student is critiqued on organization as well as presentation.

The next practical work session expands the ten-minute lecture into a twenty-minute conference with no additional material, but with questions and planned discussion added to demonstrate forcefully to the students the time consuming quality of a conference which he must weigh against the greater learning potential of the conference over the lecture. Here the student is rated with respect to conduct of the conference and the control of discussion.

Just recently a formal class on persuasive techniques was added to the course. This is followed by a practical work period wherein the student takes a preassigned subject and develops it into a speaking presentation with the sole purpose of convincing the group.

Third and Fourth Weeks



Normally everything described thus far, including the formal instruction, occupies the first two weeks. The third week begins with a twenty-minute conference. This subject is expanded to a 30-35 minute conference later in the week. Here the student again prepares his own lesson outline and rehearses carefully prior to presentation.

While the 20-minute and 30-35 minute presentations are on the same subject, the student must decide whether to add material or to secure more discussion of the same teaching points. Once again a logical outline and proper presentation techniques are the major areas on which the student is graded.

The third week is brought to a close with Impromptu II workshop. Here the student is assigned a subject just prior to going to the platform as in the previous impromptu class. However, the difference lies in the added requirement of feeding off difficult student questions and comments.

The fourth week is devoted entirely to the 50-minute practice final and the final. In these exercises the student prepares in his own words and presents a 50-minute lesson taught by his committee as a prototype of his future presentations. For the first time in the course, he is responsible for all material, visual aids and sound equipment of the classroom.

Members of his department are encouraged to attend these presentations to see him in action. With successful completion of these, the student graduates to become an accepted and qualified member of the faculty of The Infantry School.

Enlisted Promotions Increase by 759

There have been 759 more enlisted promotions authorized for May than for April, but those to E-6 and E-7 are considerably lower—down 802 and 509 respectively. The May outlook is: 185 to E-9; 444 to E-8; 100 to E-7; 179 to E-6; 3,399 to E-5; and 12,940 to E-4 for a total of 17,246. All in all, however, those in grades E-5 and E-6 are due to fare much better this year than last, due to the retirement increase in the next higher grades.

Magazine Plugs for Non-Nuclear Force

In its April edition, Army Magazine helps focus understanding attention on the drive for a larger, mobile, non-nuclear conventional striking force, able to meet local threats anywhere quickly. The article is drawn from Arthur T. Hadley's recently published book, "The Nation's Safety and Arms Control".

Law Day Celebrations Coming

A slightly closer look by most Americans wouldn't hurt when Law Day observances are announced this month and when the day comes May 1. The whole spectrum of conflict between the Free World and so-called Communist countries revolves around this thing called law. A series of articles on the subject will appear in the Bayonet beginning with the next issue. They will be prepared by The Infantry Center Staff Judge Advocate Section.

Your Bayonet's column titled This Week In History will carry a daily listing of events during the Civil War, along with those events of earlier and later years which are of general Army interest. Other interesting facts and photos of events of that time are planned as they become available.

ARC Praises 1st Brigade

Expressing appreciation for "the largest donation during a two-day visit by the Red Cross bloodmobile thus far in 1961," Field Director John A. Cramer has sent a letter to the 1st Infantry Brigade applauding the donation of 715 pints of blood.

His letter stated, "the 1st Infantry Brigade, as usual, did an outstanding job in support of the Army blood donor program."

Col. Charles T. Horner, Jr., brigade commander, also commended the fine "giving" spirit of his command at a time "when the brigade was so heavily committed" to support roles for The Infantry School's problems.

All donations together this other month...year from the unit total 1,004 pints, five pints ahead of last year's figure as of this week. The unit expects to surpass last year's total donations of 1861 pints, which set a new record from Infantry Center units for a calendar year.

20 Years of Bonds--The Best Investment

It will be 20 years ago May 1 that President Franklin D. Roosevelt bought the first U.S. Defense Bond. Seven months and one week later we were at war, and millions of Americans poured their savings into the program in an inspiring demonstration of practical patriotism.

They never regretted it. Their money paid for the ships and planes and tanks and guns that won the war. Defense Bonds became Savings Bonds, and people went on buying them. They buy them today because there is no better investment for the future.

What people? "People" are us—but as people who make up the country's Armed Forces, many of us stationed around the world, we have a special and a vital reason for taking part in the bonds program. For us bonds are not only a first-rate investment. They are an easy means of giving our voluntary support to the President's plan to reduce overseas spending by individual members of the Services and their dependents, as well as civilian employees of the government.

Our country believes in us as intelligent men and women who, when we see a problem that must be solved, do everything we can to help solve it. "I am aware," says Secretary of Defense McNamara, "that there is a general and marked desire on the part of military personnel and their dependents to cooperate in every way toward improving the balance of payments situation. This responsible attitude . . . is of major importance in assuring the success of the program."

The Judge Says . . .

By Lt. L. D. Sledge
(Second in a series on Georgia income tax.)

Some rather interesting questions of residence often arise, and possibly you are in a dilemma as to your exact status on this point. Generally, when one votes, pays personal property taxes, purchases a home and takes a homestead exemption, he has done acts which indicate establishment of residence in that state.

There are only a few of the many acts which one may do to establish his residence. Residence eccentricities often grow into technical areas which the layman is unable to untangle alone, and he should visit this office for assistance.

The third inquiry of this series involves the question, in which state should I file my state income tax? If the taxpayer is not a member of the military, has been employed in a state other than Georgia during the year, and that other state is his state of residence, he should file a non-resident return in Georgia and a resident returned in his home state, should that state have an income tax law.

He should file non-resident returns in the states in which he has been employed in the past year, and file a resident return in his home state.

He owes taxes in each state, and these must be paid. Then the full amount of income made in all states is computed in the return filed in his resident return, and after the tax is computed thereon, the taxpayer receives a credit directly against the tax as computed in the amount he has paid the other states. Thus he is not taxed twice on the same income.

The answer to question number four, "What can be done if I fail to file a Georgia Income Tax form2", usually gives the taxpayer an unexpected jolt, when he realizes that he possibly can have a large debt of which he was not aware.

It is quite usual for people to fail to file for State tax because in the past there has been no means of checking. But this year monies were actually withheld, and the space on the return makes the stinging query of: "Have you ever filed in Georgia before?

If not, why?" Many times the only truthful answer is, "Because I didn't want to, that's why!" Of course this answer would not be at all satisfactory to the Revenue Agents of Georgia.

If one fails to file, the law provides a penalty of either $5.00 or 25 per cent of the tax, whichever is greater, in addition to 6 per cent interest on the tax that is due for the year.

The measures available for enforcing this debt are the same as are applicable to any legal obligation, i.e., through the procuring of a judgment and the seizing and selling of property to satisfy the debt, garnishment of wages, etc.

These extreme measures are seldom applied because when such debt becomes due and certain, the little individual feels that the State is too big to tangle with and normally finds some means of paying it, avoiding the writs of seizure and associated embarrassment.

In the following publication we will see what powers the State has and what it can do to you for your failure to file in the past years; also we will discuss one of the common attempts to escape the tax, and how escape is becoming less probable with the growing sophistication of our enforcement procedures.

Chaplain's Corner

CHRISTIANS, AFTER EASTER

Since before Christmas, Christians by contemplating the birth, life, teachings, and sufferings of Jesus, have been preparing themselves to commemorate the great events of His death and resurrection.

Especially throughout Lent there is a greater fervor and intensity of devotion in Christian churches. All of this seems to build up to the great climax of Easter.

Then, it appears that the great bubble has burst, and it's all over. People seem to pack up for the summer and we settle back to do it all again next year, perhaps.

This is quite a contrast from the first Easter. For the events leading to Good Friday seemed to the disciples to be a great tailspin, things were going wrong and the final act of disillusionment was the crucifixion and death of their beloved Jesus.

Friday, Saturday, and early Sunday, it seemed to be all over. A great disappointment, shattered hopes, empty faith.

Then on Easter and a few weeks thereafter, they met, saw, touched, spoke, and ate with the Risen Christ. The same power of God which had raised up Christ invaded their broken and shattered lives. Instead of being over, it had just begun.

Those men went from there a powerful, hopeful, faithful proclaimers of the great victory which had been won for them by God in Christ.

Instead of merely observing the days as they pass by, and quietly making observance of another Easter come and gone, may it be our experience, also to know the Lord Christ, risen from the dead. May He dwell in our hearts by faith that we may know the power of His endless life.

With Easter just past, instead of being over, our life has just begun, never to end.

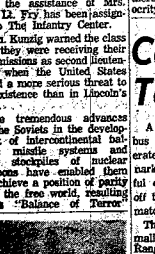
OCS Graduates Told Threat To U. S. Existence Greater

Brig. Gen. William B. Kunzig, assistant commander of the 1st Infantry Division, Fort Riley, addressed the members of The Infantry School's officer candidate class 2 today at graduation ceremonies held at Eubanks Field.

After delivering the graduation address Gen. Kunzig pinned the gold bars of a second lieutenant on the honor graduate, 2nd Lt. Charles H. Fry, with the assistance of Mrs. Fry. Lt. Fry has been assigned to The Infantry Center.



Gen. Kunzig warned the class that they were receiving their commissions as second lieutenants when the United States faced a more serious threat to its existence than in Lincoln's time.

The tremendous advances by the Soviets in the development of intercontinental ballistic missile systems and their stockpiles of nuclear weapons have enabled them to achieve a position of parity with the free world, resulting in a "Balance of Terror" which nullified the deterrent power of the U. S. and could give the Soviets the advantage in limited wars.

Emphasizing that limited war is as serious a threat as an all-out war, Gen. Kunzig stated that the importance of the Army is as great as ever, and that as we cannot hope to match the Soviets in quantity we must make up the difference in quality. He stated that there was no place for mediocrity in the Army.

Colorful Columbus Guard Helps To Start Third Army Matches

A detachment of the Columbus Guard, a historic Confederate unit, joined military marksmen yesterday in a colorful opening exercise, to kick off the 1961 Third Army Rifle matches, at Fort Benning.

The matches were to be formally opened at McAndrew Range on Dixie Rd., under a backdrop of the massed colors of the 13 states of the Confederacy. However, inclement weather forced participants indoors at Theater 1.

The Columbus unit was invited to the opening by Lt. Col. Burton C. Boatright, the match executive. The Guard's appearance highlighted the Third Army's observance of the Civil War Centennial during the matches which are scheduled to continue until April 13.

During the competition rifle, pistol and automatic rifle marksman will shoot in matches named for the Confederate states. The Georgia Match, the National Match course, will be fired by riflemen tomorrow, while pistol marksmen will compete in the Dixie Match, in which they will shoot for excellence in competition awards.

In the Third Army International rifle and pistol championship matches, which began Monday, April 3, pistol competitors from the 101st Airborne Division, Fort Campbell, Ky., lead other competitors entered.

Sfc. Harold Wilson, of the Screaming Eagles, won the International Rapid Fire Pistol with a score of 277 out of a possible 300 points.

While Sfc Wilson was taking the rapid fire trophy, teammate Sp4 James P. Duggan was winning the 50-meter International free pistol half course competition. His score was 281 out of 300.

Of the first three places in each of the two matches, 101st Airborne Division marksmen accounted for five in all.

With More Small Cars Don't Trust Yellow Line

(The following article has been prepared by Pfc Ross S. Huff from information gathered by The Infantry Center Safety Director's Office on small cars and their effect on road safety — Editor)

With the growing number of small foreign cars now owned and operated by the men at Fort Benning there is a growing new hazard on our highways and roads here.

Although the smaller cars have many advantages, the road regulations and markings are set up for the larger American automobiles. This does not in itself present a large problem, but the driver himself is where the problem is created.

When driving the smaller type automobile the driver must take time to adjust to the differences in vision, size and acceleration.

The low center of gravity of the small car improves when cornering or rounding curves; however, the lower height of the car reduces visibility of oncoming vehicles traversing dips in the roadway. For this reason many areas of the highway indicated as safe for passing by the absence of yellow lines, are in reality unsafe. The safe operator of the small car remembers that when surrounded by heavy traffic his view is often blocked by larger vehicles and adjusts his operation accordingly. The small car operator also remembers that he cannot be seen as readily in rear view mirrors.

The driver and passengers in "compact" cars are surrounded by less protective metal when compared to larger cars. Damages to imported compact or sports cars involved in accidents are normally quite extensive, thus creating additional incentive for alert save driving at all times. The use of seat belts would materially lessen the injury potential in small car accidents.

While several of the sports cars are capable of unusually rapid acceleration, the reduced power of most compact and imported cars requires increased distance when passing, and additional caution when crossing major thoroughfares. Overloading the vehicle will tend to further reduce the rate of acceleration.

ONE ARMY FACT

"In the long and grueling war which would follow a nuclear attack on the United States, our Army's reserve strength would be one of the decisive factors influencing the ultimate decision." — Gen. Decker

When Buying on Time Beware of Doubletalk

(AFPS) Buying things "on time" can be convenient and provide many necessities otherwise out of reach; but if not done wisely the results can be frustrating and perhaps disastrous.

Top level experts, economic and legal, understand this. Trouble is some people who use credit don't.

The lure of easy credit and lack of judgment motivates people to buy all kinds of goods whether actually needed or not, although it is recognized that if done wisely credit buying can be a great benefit.

Pentagon's Size Stuns Sightseers

WASHINGTON (AFPS)—Daily the sightseers' buses filled with visitors to the nation's capital circle the world's largest office building, covering 34 acres in view of the Potomac.

The guide reels off statistics and the sightseers gape incredulously, as well they might. They are looking at the Pentagon, sometimes called the "Concrete Carousel"—the seat of the Department of Defense.

Five national Capitol buildings could fit inside the area of this five-sided building which has parking facilities for 9,300 cars. A building where 25,000 military and civilian employees work under 3,000 clocks and drink 30,000 cups of coffee daily.

A person covering all of its corridors would walk 17½ miles; yet he could cover any maximum distance between any two of its offices—1,800 feet—in six minutes.

If he wearied of climbing any of its 150 stairways, he could avail himself of any of its 19 separate escalators, or pause to refresh himself at one of its 550 water fountains.

It's estimated that upwards of 270,000 people spend a dime a day to talk business with Pentagon employees of its 60,000 telephones.

But one statistic must forever remain undetermined. That's the number of jokes that have been coined about people getting lost in the building's pentagonal, labyrinthine vastness.

You've probably experienced an urge for a new car, new furniture or new appliances just because your neighbor or friend had "exactly what you want." Well, multiply all of those urges by actually signing on the dotted line and you're headed for trouble.

Being in the Armed Forces you have a fixed income just as millions of other American wage earners.

If you decide to take the "bull by the horns" and buy that new car without considering other monthly obligations, you may suddenly wake up to find the "outgo" outdistancing the "income."

As one economist put it: Like drawing a nine to an ace-high straight in a poker game — it won't stretch.

According to statistics consumer credit has been going up at a startling rate and a nationally known bankruptcy referee recently noted:

"... A new generation of young people are coming along with a 'built-in appetite for luxuries' who will not only buy necessary household appliances, but television sets, autos, boats trailers and above all, motor boats."

There is no complete solution, he declared, because the average consumer does not bother to figure interest or budget his purchases according to his income.

Unhappily, that is only one facet of the story. Military legal assistance officers point out that each individual serviceman has the responsibility to keep his personal and financial affairs in good order and to incur only those obligations he can meet according to income and ability to pay.

The serviceman who becomes over-extended and who cannot pay his lawful debts as they become due, loses his credit, embarrasses himself and his family and many reflect discredit on the Armed Forces in his community.

As one saying goes: It's no joke to go for broke.

Miss Ga. Pageant

Beauty To Be a Judge

Debbie Drake, 29-year-old native of Corpus Christi, Tex., will be a judge in the Miss Georgia Pageant to be held May 11-13 at the Municipal Auditorium in Columbus.

The pagent is sponsored by the Columbus Jaycees.

Well qualified as a judge of beauty, Miss Drake is herself a trim 5' 5½" blue-eyed, 115-pound blonde. Her measurements are 38-24-36, due partly to an early interest and devotion to home improvements and exercise, which led to her television career.

Five days a week Miss Drake conducts the Debbie Drake Show on TV in Indianapolis, Ind., following experience as supervisor of women's departments in various health studios throughout the country.

Pat Ryan's News and Views

The adoirt art of tailoring was displayed at the Woman's Club luncheon Wednesday by Gina Irizarry, Gussie Higgins, Barbara Burden, Rita Hiatt and Latty Stanley. They modeled their own. This "fashion show" was pre-planned to give credit to Mrs. Phillip Kaplan's tailoring courses. Those interested in joining the next session, please call Mrs. Kaplan. Rozell's TV show this coming Monday morning will feature another art, something along the sewing line, of centennial costumes being modeled for a contest.

Most of these dresses boast home-stitching. You can imagine how every "Susie and Sallie" in Columbus is busy getting costumes ready for the centennial pageant April 26 and 27 at the Municipal Auditorium.

Speaking of arts and crafts, Mrs. Carl Lange has been briefing me on the Woman's Club art show at the Benning Country Club April 29 and 30. She tells me that the Mesdames Steve Mulkey, Milton T. Lewis, Marvin E. Crain, Robert Glasson, M. G. Schneider and Fergus Monahan will be among those "hanging".

The judge for the adult art and children's art hangings from Auburn University's faculty, who has exhibited paintings in New York City.

Veronica Lange has been the art teacher for this past season for the Woman's Club. She received her art training at Monterey Peninsula College, California, and the Carmel School of Art, under the special guidance of Louise Cadeiro Boyer. Veronica has exhibited paintings in Carmel, California and elsewhere.

Easter was lovely of course. The churches were all packed. I heard the choir sounded particularly good at St. Michael's Episcopal Mission Friday night. As a mother of a small child, however, there's only one hangover from the week-end: would anyone care for some deviled eggs?

ART SHOW ENTRIES . . . Mrs. Milton T. Lewis (L), and Mrs. Steve Mulkey (C) will be exhibiting paintings at the Woman's Club Art Show to be held at the post Country Club April 29 and 30. Sandra Lee Taylor's Report Card . . .

A blue-eyed blonde with a charming personality and a winning smile is the subject of today's "Report Card." Barbara Hare, daughter of Major and Mrs. John F. Hare, steps into the student spotlight for this week.

Barbara is a junior at Columbus High School, and has attended CHS for the past three years. That she maintains A and B averages in her courses of English, plane geometry, physical education, French III, and American history, while being active in organizations at school and at Benning gives proof of Barbara's ability and versatility.

"Plane geometry is my favorite subject," she stated, "because math has always been my best course. I'm really enjoying plane geometry this year, and plan to major in mathematics at Sweet Briar College."

Among Barbara's hobbies are swimming and cooking. She is a supporter of the Youth Activities girls' sports program here on post. Having recently completed the basketball season, she is now participating in the baseball program. Another of her interests is a post card collection, which includes cards from all over the world.

The Columbus area is really "home" to Barbara as she was born in the Columbus City Hospital June 20, 1944. But she claims Florence, S. C., as her true hometown, since it is that of her parents. Before coming to Benning, Barbara lived in Cookville, Tenn., where her father was associated with ROTC.

In Cookville, Barbara graduated third highest in her eighth grade class at the Tech Training School. Before living in Cookville, Barbara and her family were not only "eye witnesses to history," they were participants in it.

While living in Trieste, Italy, when Barbara was in the third grade, they were forced to flee from Marshall Tito's attempt to take over Italy. After this event, Barbara's father was transferred to Berlin, Germany.

Barbara engages in many activities here at Benning and at CHS. At the beginning of this year, she was elected a homeroom representative to the Junior Red Cross. She's a member of the Sigma Delta Beta Sorority here on post, and in this organization she holds the office of property mistress.

Barbara is also very active in the Benning chapter of the Junior Army Daughters of America. She has accepted the co-chairmanship of one of JADA's big dances, the spring formal, to be held in May.

Also she was selected as one of twelve JADA members to be a model in the fashion show at the April luncheon. Barbara belongs to the Presbyterian Church; is a member of the Main Post Protestant Sunday School, and attends "Follow Me Club" on Sunday evenings.

Barbara has two younger sisters, Johnnie Louise, 13, and Emma Louise, 2, her father, Maj. John F. Hare, is adjutant of the 1st Infantry Brigade.

This charming teenager, who is enjoying her high school days immensely, is really one of the cutest juniors at Benning!

And Singer Pfc David Csanyi (R) Performs as Soloist

At Reenlistment Jamboree

Reenlistment Idea Connected With Pleasure for Lawson Men

A variety show preceded by the naming of Miss Lawson Army Aviation Command highlighted the activities of Re-enlistment Day held by the command last week.

Miss Lawson, Spt Patricia D. Randall, was introduced to the command by SMaj. Walter K. Earley. Specialist Randall is a dental technician and a member of the WAC Company, Infantry Center Troop Command.

The idea of a unit Re-enlistment Day was originated by SSc Joseph I. DeMarco, the Army career counselor at Lawson Army Aviation Command, to emphasize the choice of the Army as a career.

The variety show included vocal and instrumental solos, selections by the Infantry Chorus and specialty acts. DeMarco's Combo played several selections and accompanied the soloists. Sgt. DeMarco served as master of ceremonies.

Members of the combo are Sgt. DeMarco, the leader, and Mr. Irvin Mellman of Columbus, on the piano. The four other members, all of the 2nd Infantry Division Band, are Sgt. S. Goldstein on the saxophone, Spt Eugene Cordray on the bass, Sgt. Russell H. Jennings on the drums and Spt W. T. (Ric) Carley on the electric guitar.

Carley sang "Mack The Knife" and "Re-Up Blues" a special number for the program. He is the author of "Young Love" which he also sang for the group.

The Fort Benning Infantry Chorus under the direction of 2nd Lt. Ronald Weimer added to the afternoon's entertainment by singing "Hike, All You Doughboys", "Russian Picnic", "America, Our Heritage" and the chorus of "There is Nothing Like a Deme."

A member of the chorus, Pfc. David Csanyi, 2nd Division, added "Autumn in New York" and "Live, Live, Live" to the program as vocal solos. "My Funny Valentine" and "Old Black Magic" were solos by Lt. Weimer.

Miss Joan Shepherd contributed to the entertainment with "Birth of the Blues" and other numbers. Miss Shepherd is now appearing at the Supper Club of the Officer's Open Mess.

A Hawaiian Hula specialty number was performed by Pfc. Roberta Rowe of the WAC Company.

Another specialty number on the program was an interpretation of the "Gay Nineties" by Miss Barbara Lawrence.

Closing the show were members by the combo featuring Specialist Carley.

At a command and staff conference earlier in the day Col Lewis W. Leeney, commander of Lawson Army Aviation Command, made his company commanders honorary carrier counselors in support of the aims of Re-enlistment Day.

9th NCO, 21-Year Vet, Was POW for a Year

By 9th Inf PIO

A Man doing a man's job . . . this theme of Project Adam-J fits the 9th Infantry's Master Sergeant Alfcus Stokes perfectly.

As first sergeant of the 9th's Company A, Sgt. Stokes headlines the company's enlisted men and the unit administrative matters. On hand at 5:30 a.m. for reville when the company is in cycle, he puts in long hours to insure that his unit runs smoothly.

The Company A first sergeant has served nearly 21 years of service in the Army. He lists more than 200 airborne jumps to his credit, including three combat jumps, all with the 509th Parachute Battalion in North Africa during World War II.

Sgt. Stokes saw action in North Africa, and was captured by the Germans in December 1942. After spending almost a year as a prisoner of war in an Italian concentration camp, he and all his fellow prisoners escaped in September 1943 following the Italian surrender to the Allies. The prisoners escaped by overpowering the Italian guard and breaking down the gates to the compound.

Following the breakout many of the prisoners were recaptured by the Germans advancing down the peninsula to defend against the Allies. However, Sgt. Stokes managed to elude the enemy and lived "off the land" for 53 days before reaching friendly lines. He earned the Bronze Star Medal.

Also participating in the Korean War fighting, he served with the 187th Airborne Regimental Combat Team. A native of Florida who now calls Columbus home, Sgt. Stokes holds the Master Jumper's Parachutist Badge.

Prior to joining the 9th Infantry in February, the Army veteran was assigned to the Infantry School's mortar committee of the Weapons Department. With Company A temporarily out of cycle, the first sergeant is engaged in supervising a beautifying program for the 9th Infantry rifle company.

The beautifying project includes a large replica of the 2nd Infantry Division Indianhead insignia with a large "A" for the company designed and set in cement.

Scaled Mt. McKinley, Too

Ex-British Frogman-French Jumper, He Now Trains as U. S. Fighting Man

BY RICHARD HUSSAR

A 23-year old trainee whose life reads like a Jack London novel is undergoing Advanced Individual Training with the 9th Infantry.

Ronald Earl DuBois, a recruit in the 9th's Company B, is a former paratrooper with the French and Canadian armies, an ex-British frogman and a one-time hunting guide in the woods of Alaska and Canada.

Scaling the 20,320-foot Mount McKinley also is among the fetes of this young Canadian whose mother, on an occasion, served as chief cook for Queen Elizabeth.

Joining the French Army at the age of 15, DuBois jumped with eight fellow paratroopers into the thick jungles that rim the Algerian borders. Lost in unfriendly territory, they hid by day from the Algerian Rebels and traveled by night. With rations but for a day, a compass and a map, they soon found their way to friendly troops.

Frogman

Still longing for adventure, DuBois joined the British Army in 1954. He served a one-and-a-half year stint as a commando, during which time he was steeped in underwater demolition work and frogman tactics. He became proficient with such silent weapons as the knife and bow and arrow in underwater combat.

Following his discharge, he returned to his native Canada. He joined the Canadian Army in 1956, serving as a paratrooper with the Princess Patricia Canadian Light Infantry. DuBois spent two years as a platoon sergeant specializing in light weapons, mine warfare, Russian warfare tactics and Japanese-type warfare. He still has two brothers in the Canadian Army.

Following his discharge from the Canadian Army, DuBois worked as a hunting guide in Canada, bagging 27 moose, 29 black bears, and 37 deer. Boredom again overtook him, and he shipped out on a fishing boat bound for Alaska. There he fished, hunted wild mountain goat and climbed the 20,320-foot Mount McKinley.

Hawaii

From Alaska, his travels carried him to Hawaii, Panama and the United States. After extensive travel in this country, DuBois enlisted in the Regular Army. He was named the "Outstanding Trainee of the Cycle" on completion of his basic training cycle at Fort Leonard Wood, Missouri.

Now planning on a career in the U. S. Army, DuBois hopes to attend Officer Candidate School or join Special Forces when his Advanced Individual Training cycle graduates in May. With the 9th's Company B, he acts as a platoon guide while striving for MOS (Military Occupational Specialty) 111, light weapons infantryman.

AUSA Membership Grew From Group To 2,500

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first of a series of stories on the Association of the United States Army written in conjunction with the Columbus-Phenix City-Fort Benning Chapter's membership drive which ends May 10. The following is taken from an interview with Lieutenant General Reuben D. Jenkins, retired.

The Columbus - Phenix City-Fort Benning Chapter of the Association of the United States Army got its start in a conversation between two generals at The Infantry Center.

Those involved were General Herbert B. Powell, then a Major General, commandant of the Infantry School, and commanding general of the Infantry Center—and Major General George Lynch, retired and now living in Columbus, who was then Commanding General of the 3rd Infantry Division.

Others were contacted and in July 1956, a group assembled at the Main Officer's Open Mess to forward the idea of establishing a chapter of the Association of the United States Army in this area. The group consisted of Generals Powell and Lynch; Lieutenant Generals Manton S. Eddy and Reuben E. Jenkins, both retired; Mr. Maynard Ashworth, Mr. T. G. Reeves and Mr. J. W. Woodruff.

The chapter grew from this group to an organization today that numbers between 2500 and 2600.

A charter was presented to the chapter at a meeting in March 1957, held at the Columbus Country Club. At that time there were some 1000 names on the rolls of the Columbus-Phenix City-Fort Benning Chapter of the Association of the United States Army. And at the charter presentation the Country Club was packed.

Presenting the charter was the Honorable Mr. Hugh Milton, assistant secretary of the Department of the Army for manpower and personnel. He was accompanied by Lieutenant General Walter Weible, now retired, then executive vice-president of the Association.

The local chapter started with an estimated 125 civilian members from the surrounding community. Since that time the number has grown to between 400 and 500. Chapter officials are hoping for an increase in this number during the present drive.

Sgt J. M. Porter
. . . DIVISION SOM

BY 23rd Inf. PIO

Some 249 men recently finished eight weeks of Advanced Individual Training with Company C of the 23rd Infantry. The acting Battle Group Commander of the "We Serve" unit, Lieutenant Colonel Richard A. Perkins, spoke at graduation ceremonies held in Sand Hill's theater number 6. Six trainees were honored at the graduation for outstanding achievements during the training cycle. Privates James D. Lucas and Gerald E. Gray were awarded trophies for firing the highest and second highest scores, respectively of the cycle was Private John R. Dove.

Private Thomas G. Heath fired highest score with the Browning Automatic Rifle and Privates Hal T. Arrington and Paul E. Bishop tied for second place. The outstanding trainee with the light machine gun.

Muster Planned For Texas A&M Men at Mess

Former students of the A & M College of Texas who live in the vicinity of Fort Benning and Columbus are to gather at the Main Officers Open Mess on April 21, 7:30 p.m., to carry on a 58 year old tradition. They will attend the 58th anniversary Muster of Texas A & M men.

The local muster will be one of more than 500 similar ceremonies set to be held over the world where former students of Texas A & M College pay homage to the Texans who won the freedom of the state at the Battle of San Jacinto near Houston some 125 years ago.

For further details, contact Captain James W. Phillips, chairman of the muster for this area. He urges all A & M men to attend the April 21 program.

The April 21 Muster is one of the greatest traditions to be found in American colleges and universities. Thousands of A & M men participate in the program each year.

Science Fiction Writer at 69th Has No Time for Ghoul Friends

BY 69TH ARMOR PIO

A 25-year old 69th Armor medic with a king-size imagination has been "living" in the future for more than 10 years—literally speaking, that is.

He's a writer of science fiction.

Private First Class Thomas E. Purdon left college in 1954 to pursue a field dominated by people who weave tales of the unlikely, and has since had short stories and novelettes published in practically every leading science fiction magazine.

But there were lean years.

"When I first left college," he said, "I went through some pretty rough years. Once I had a decent job I found myself spending most of my money for literary coaching. To get the money for that, I cut down on food.

Rye Bread, Water

"For six months, at one time, all I had for dinner six nights a week was a loaf of rye bread and some water. Another time, I lived for a month on spaghetti."

In the meantime, Purdon wrote 70 stories and collected "a couple of thousand" rejection slips until selling his first story in February of 1957.

Since then, Lady Luck has been more kind to this promising young Philadelphian. Most any night — during any spare off-duty moments — Purdon may be found at the library conducting research or working on his "next."

Monsters, Ghouls

Contrary to popular belief, says Purdon, science fiction writers do not necessarily deal with prehistoric monsters rising from the sea nor werewolves and ghouls who walk the streets during the day as ordinary men.

"True science fiction," he says, "deals with the future of man and his society. The science fiction writer explores the danger and the good possibilities of the modern world."

One of his most recent stories was sold the same week Purdon received his "greetings" from Uncle Sam.

Its title: "The Man Who Wouldn't Sign Up."

RWI System Used By 1st Infantry

By 1st Inf. PIO

Telephone booths are hard to locate in remote field areas but the 1st Infantry has little difficulty is making phone calls as it employs a unique RWI (Radio-Wire Integration) system developed by the Signal Corps.

The system permits the battle group to carry on normal telephone communications no matter how isolated its position.

RWI involves the breaking down of radio frequency into wire frequency as it is received at a field switchboard operated by the 122nd Signal Battalion. This switchboard relays the signal to a switchboard at Sand Hill where the connection is made.

RWI has eliminated the problem of stringing wire to rear command areas, while also insuring instantaneous communication in any emergency.

The Amazing Story of Your Nose And Just How It Works for You

Without it, your food would be tasteless, you'd have less reason to call anyone a stinker, and there'd be a terrible gap between your eyes and your mouth. It's your nose — and there are dozens of other reasons for concluding that it's not to be sneezed at. Biologically and historically, it's one of nature's most noteworthy creations.

Few people realize just how sensitive their noses are. When you sniff appreciatively at the perfume of a girl you pass on the street, your human nostrils are registering a quantity of fragrance so tiny that the most delicately calibrated machine in existence can't detect or record it! Less fortunately for you, our nose can also catch a cubic inch of ethyl mercaptan (smells like a combination of cabbage, garlic, onions and sewer gas) even when it's been diffused through an area the size of a football field.

Yet combine two strong odors of the right type — and you won't smell a thing! Scientists have found certain "odor opposites" — lemon and frying fish oil or wintergreen and stale tobacco limburger cheese and boiled vinegar — which cancel each other out.

Though they credit their noses for the "come and get it" lure of a sizzling steak or a freshly baked pie, most people don't know that they taste their food and drink primarily by smelling it. Your tongue distinguishes only four broad flavor categories: sweet, sour, salty and bitter; it's your nose that tells you of the thousands of gradations and blends. With every mouthful you take, fumes of odor rise through the back of your mouth and up your nose to tickle the olfactory nerve — and convince you that the steak is a little too "done," the peach pie a shade too tart, the bourbon aged to perfection. Plug up those gifted nostrils and shut your eyes tight — and ham will be indistinguishable from lamb; vintage claret from weak vinegar, apple from onion!

Your subtle sense of smell is monitored by a deceptively simple apparatus. Two flat postage-stamp-sized membranes, one in the upper part of each nostril, comprise your olfactory organ. When an odor reaches the tiny hairs of these membranes, it sends electrical impulses racing to your brain, which translates these signals into the appropriate reaction, "ah," "ugh" or something in between.

As far as science now knows, there is no limit to the number and range of smells that this ingenious apparatus can pick up and identify. Have you heard that some sensitive noses can smell fear?

Odor experts say it's true — and that the really discerning set of nostrils can even distinguish between several different kinds of fright!

No less amazing is the power of these "receivable" odors to dog our memories, influence our buying patterns, and perform other psychological sleight-of-hands. A British psychologist uncorked a bottle of citronella — and the subject of his experiment promptly "heard" mosquitoes in the room. Another participant in the same experiment sniffed cassia oil, and got a vivid mental picture of his childhood doctor. Faced with a choice between stockings which had been very lightly scented and hosiery left unperfumed, women in a recent market research survey were three-to-one in their preference for the scent ed hose. Asked for the reasons for their choice, they mentioned "color," "texture," "sheen" — not one noticed the dollar-coaxing scent!

Though it's possible to run on and on about noses, suffice it to say that your nose is a remarkable instrument that should be treated with respect and tender, loving care. Pamper it with perfumes, reward it with aromatic foods and beverages.

Awards Given at Manchus CO's Confab

By 9th Inf. PIO

The presentation of a Certificate of Achievement highlighted the 9th Infantry's monthly Commanders Conference recently in Theater Number Seven.

The award was presented to Master Sergeant Elmo Smallwood, first sergeant of Company B, by 9th Infantry commander, Colonel James L. Osgard. M.Sgt. Smallwood earned the certificate while a first sergeant with the 2nd Battle Group, 4th Infantry of the 3rd Infantry Division in Germany.

Colonel Osgard recognized to the assemblage of officers and NCO's that Sergeant First Class Thomas W. Borris, the 9th Infantry career counselor, has led the Division in recruiting for the two past months. A trophy was given to Sergeant Aubrey Walker for being named the 9th's soldier of the month.

The 9th's monthly best mess, maintenance, and safety plaques also were presented by Colonel Osgard. The awards were taken by Company B, Company A, and Headquarters Company, respectively. Newcomers to the "Keep Up the Fire" battle group were introduced to the group.

Spring Creations Used As Theme Of Luncheon

"Creating Spring Ensembles" was the theme as the ladies of 2nd Division Artillery held their monthly luncheon on Tuesday, March 28, at the Custer Terrace Officers' Club.

Spring fabrics and hats were on display from two stores in Columbus. A pink hydrangea was the centerpiece on the head table, and on each side was a sewing basket spilling its contents of sewing accessories and a toy sewing machine surrounded by fabric.

The other tables were decorated with small dolls draped with swatches of material, patterns, trims, skirt marker and other aids to sewing.

Hostesses were the ladies of the 15th Artillery. Mrs. Jonathan M. Grant was chairman of the event and her committee chairmen were Mrs. Earl L. Duncan, Mrs. Thomas L. Williamson, Mrs. Andrew J. Kilgariff, Mrs. Jack C. Hughes, and Mrs. Elmer D. Spence. Spence.

Mrs. Clarence W. Clapsaddle Jr. presided over a short business session and introduced Mrs. Ray Rogers, a new arrival. Farewells were said to Mrs Richard S. Fleming and Mrs. Clarence M. Bratt. Door prizes were won by Mrs. Everett E. Mann and Mrs. Thomas L. Williamson.

Highlight of the event was the appearance of Specialist Four Joseph G. Verdon of the 15th Artillery, who performed three Irish dances. Specialist Verdon, a native of Ireland, has appeared on the Ed Sullivan Show.

Ladies Gather, Have Coffee At Main Club

The ladies of Company D served as hostesses for the 2nd Battle Group, 9th Infantry ladies monthly coffee on March 28, in the Normandy Room of the Main Officers Open Mess.

Doughnuts, danish pastries, assorted fruits, coffee and tea were served from a table centered with an Easter scene of baby chicks, eggs and the traditional Easter rabbit.

Mrs. James L. Osgard, wife of the Battle Group Commander, welcomed newcomers, Mesdames Rocco Birbiglio, Robert Given, Albert Baxter, Joel Finn, William Patterson, Robert Herr and David Voss. Also welcomed were special guests, Mrs. John Kelly, sister of Mrs. Robert Chenoweth, and Mrs. Frank Skurpski, sister of Mrs. Baxter. Farewells were said to Mrs. Robert J. Kirk, Mrs. James L. George and Mrs. Earl A. Patterson who will accompany their husbands on change of assignment.

Mrs. Sam S. Younger, wife of Captain Younger, commander of Company D, introduced other hostesses including Mrs. William H. Oaks, Mrs. Earnest L. Isbell, Mrs. Albert Baxter and Mrs. Joel Finn.

TIO Informed; Status Changed By Latest News

"We must keep our soldiers informed. The informed soldier performs in a better way." This was one of the quotes made by Lieutenant Gregg DeWolfe at the Troop Information Conference held on March 28.

Lieutenant DeWolfe is the Division Troop Information Officer and as such he has energized the Indianhead TI program, bringing in programs such as Captain Harry Ball of the Ranger Department and his "Snakes Alive" demonstration.

But, as the young officer talked with unit TI officers he was unaware of a bit of information which would change his entire status.

Near the completion of the meeting Lieutenant DeWolfe was called to the phone. After the call, he placed the receiver on the hook in a robot-like motion, grabbed his hat and sped out of the office.

Result of these un-officer-like antics; Lieutenant DeWolfe is today "Daddy" DeWolfe. The call informed him of the latest in news; Mrs. DeWolf delivered a perky son, Christian Paul, at Martin Army Hospital.

Over 400 Attend Sunrise Service

Easter Sunday was observed by over 400 of the 87th Infantry at the Annual Sunrise Service. Under the direction of Chaplain Hubert Garrell and Lieutenant Jesse Dumas, the movement to Main Post went without incident.

The project was made possible through the combined efforts of the 15th Transportation Battalion and the 2nd Division Military Police Detachment. Colonel Robert E. Connor, the Battle Group Commander, expressed his sincere appreciation and commendation to all those who assisted in the worthy project.

Ladies Discuss Clothes, Cards At Unit Coffee

Over the monthly coffee cups the ladies of the 87th Infantry "brainstormed" two topics recently. . . fashions and bridge.

What style formal gown to wear to the Battle Group dinner dance? And how many officers and ladies will attend the first monthly bridge party?

The first question provoked some lively fashion descriptions, surpassed only by the gowns themselves as the officers agreed the following evening at the supper club.

The bridge party question was eagerly discussed and Mrs. Alan Herwedel, bridge chairman, later announced all the plans set for several tables of bridge on April 8.

Hostesses for the coffee in the Normandy Room were the ladies of Company C; Mrs. Roy Sims, Mrs. Joseph Towell, Mrs. Cicero Wilkenson. Mrs. Douglas Syverson had the honor of pouring.

Platoon Supports TIS on Problem

Cook Of The Week

Our cook of the week is Nancy Evers, wife of Capt. R. E. Evers of the 2nd Division's MI Detachment. Nancy is the mother of a boy, 4, and a girl, 3. She is a graduate of Penn State and lists the Toastmistress Club and bridge as her favorite hobbies.

Her recipe for barbecued cheese buns has become a favorite of her friends. She serves it often as a "snack" after evening bridge, instead of something sweet.

Barbecued Cheese Buns
1 c. grated processed American cheese
2 tablespoons chopped onion
2 tablespoons stuffed olives, chopped
6 c. tomato sauce
2 tablespoons prepared mustard
1 tablespoon bacon or English muffins
Softened butter

Combine cheese, onion, olives, tomato sauce and mustard. Split buns. Spread with butter. Top each half with cheese mixture. Place in pre-heated broiler about 3 minutes or until cheese melts.

Anniversary of Civil War Recalls Leaders Ideas

Americans everywhere have joined hands in observance of the 100th anniversary of the American Civil War.

The curtain went up Sunday, Jan. 9, 1961, officially opening an observance that will cover the years 1961-65.

President Eisenhower has urged all citizens of the United States to "rededicate and reconsecrate" themselves to the great ideals which motivated our ancestors a century ago.

It has been said that the American Civil War was more than a test of arms. Rather, it is said, it was a spiritual proving group as "eternal as the human spirit."

Maj. Gen. U. S. Grant, 3rd, (USA, Ret.) chairman of the Civil War Commission, in an open letter to all clergymen appealed for emphasis on the religious role in the Civil War.

"We base our appeal," he said, ". . . upon the thesis that they were all good Americans who participated in it — that the Civil War did not divide us — it united us.

"The charity of Lincoln, the unflinching fidelity to God of Lee and Jackson, and Grant's dedication to the cause of peace — surely these are the lessons which must be remembered by Americans long after the Centennial has passed."

A pamphlet prepared by the Civil War Centennial Commission on the religious role in the Centennial takes a closer look at these three great men.

"Behind the striving of ministers — allied in God though opposed in principles — stood the supporting authority of Lincoln, Grant and Lee.

"Though depredations occurred, Lincoln persistently insisted that Southern churches be unmolested. Long before the war's termination many Southerners had more than a mere premonition of his leanings toward reconciliation.

"Lee's unswerving devotion to God and duty shone in his military genius and later in his presidency of struggling Washington College where he strove to heal the emotional hurts of the war."

Of Grant the pamphlet said: ". . . Grant's benevolence broke dramatically through the iron of his will at Appomattox. His never-slumbering passion for peace is reflected in a letter he wrote when informed that all denominations prayed for him in his fatal illness some years after the war was ended:

"Yes, I know, and I feel grateful," he said. "All I can do is pray that the prayers of all these people may be answered so far as to have us all meet in another and better world."

And during his last sickness, Gen. Grant wrote: "I have witnessed since my last illness just what I have wished to see since the war: Harmony —harmony and goodwill—between the sections . . . we now look forward to perpetual peace at home, and a national strength which will screen us against any foreign complication.

"I believe, myself, that the war was worth all it cost us, fearful as that was."

Thus, as present-day Americans start their observance of the 100th anniversary of the Civil War, our nation's President declares:

"I would urge in all our commemorations of the Civil War Centennial, that we look on this great struggle not merely as a set of military operations, but as a period in our history in which the times called for extraordinary degrees of patriotism and heroism on the part of the men and women of both the North and the South.

"In this context we may derive inspiration from their deeds to renew our dedication to the task which yet confronts us — the furtherance, together with other free nations of the world, of the freedom and dignity of man and the building of a just and lasting peace."

Quartermaster Expands NCO's Career Program

(AFPS)—The Army Quartermaster Corps is expanding its program which gives qualified noncommissioned officers continuing responsible assignment in key supply positions both in the States and overseas.

The program, known as the Quartermaster Noncommissioned Officer Career Development Program, began operations in 1955 with 98 participating NCOs. Membership had grown to 250 in 1960 and is expected to reach approximately 900 in the near future.

Originated following a QMC decision to form a cadre of highly trained noncoms who could be assigned to depots, supply control centers and supply points on a world wide basis in the event of future mobilization, the program has been very successful, according to the Army. Other technical services have used it as a guide for similar programs.

Management of the program is exercised by the Office of the Quartermaster General with close coordination of assignments with the Adjutant General's Office. Regulations provide for the identification of participants so that such assignments can be properly monitored.

The typical noncom receives successive assignments planned to develop his skills by having him assume responsibility for accomplishing difficult jobs at various supply echelon levels. By rotating between key positions overseas and in the United States, he is able to use his experiences in those areas to the advantage of both the Army and himself.

Individual performance is monitored on an annual basis by OQMG. Each man is rated by his commanding officer who uses standards similar to those for commissioned officers. High standards of performance and interest must be met for continued participation in the program.

Applicants for the QMC program must hold certain MOSs, be less than 45 years old, be of good moral character and must be recommended by a QM officer of field grade or higher.

Presently included in the program are: MOS 456 (Light Equipment Specialist), 457 (Heavy Equipment Specialist), 557 (Warehouseman, General Supplies), 553 (Warehouseman, Subsistence), 764 (Quartermaster Supply Specialist) and 774 (Parts Supply Specialist).

An ancient fable tells of the spider attempting to weave a web without success. Six times the spider climbed and tried to spin the silken thread into a home and six times he fell back. He should have quit then and there, many would say.

But the fabled spider made a seventh attempt and this time he spun the web with success.

For we Americans in the military service, there may come a time when we seem thwarted in our attempts at success. As in Korea during the early 50's when many American fighting men found themselves in the hands of the enemy.

This would seem the final gesture—without arms, surrounded by a hostile armed enemy, unable even to speak English, far from home and comrades.

But, one is always an American fighting man; whether in the front lines slugging it out with the enemy or miles behind enemy lines as a prisoner.

We must be like the spider in this case and never give up hope. As a prisoner we must not become a pawn of the enemy. Let the enemy never forget that we are Americans and will continue to resist at all costs.

The outstanding lesson of Korea learned by bitter experience by those captured was that you must never accept any favor from the enemy.

Though tempted by special privileges, more food, letters from home and many countless other devices, those soldiers who resisted all favors were never enmeshed by the enemy's grasp.

But the prisoner who accepted a favor, however slight, became a special object of attention of the captors. For here was a man who showed a weakness—basically, showed a tendency to forget he was still an American fighting man.

This is what the Code of Conduct says in Article 3:

If I am captured I will continue to resist by all means available. I will make every effort to escape and aid others to escape. I will accept neither parole nor special favors from the enemy.

23rd Pair Get RA Commissions

By 23rd Infantry PIO

Two officers of the 23rd Infantry were sworn into the regular Army last Monday in a short ceremony in the Battle Group Commander's office.

Lieutenant Colonel Richard A. Perkins, acting battle group commander of the "We Serve" unit, administered the oath to First Lieutenants Robert L. Arment and Roger B. Woods who took RA commissions in the Infantry.

Lt. Arment who hails from Youngstown, Ohio, served as an Armor officer from November 1956 to April 1960 while assigned to the 33rd Tank Battalion in Germany. He came back into the Army, after a short stint in civilian life and assigned to Company E of the 23rd Infantry. His present plans call for attendance of the Airborne and Ranger courses in the near future.

Lt. Woods is a native of Osgood, Indiana, and a 1955 graduate of the University of Indiana. He served from October 1955 to June 1960 with the 1st Infantry Division, 11th Airborne Division, 24th Airborne Brigade and the 24th Infantry Division. Part of that time was spent in Army Intelligence in Germany. He is both Ranger and Airborne qualified and is assigned as Executive Officer of Headquarters Company, 23rd Infantry.

Barron Assigned To 11th Infantry OVUREP Status

By George W. Nelson Jr.

After eight years in the same company, Company B of the 23rd Infantry, Sergeant First Class Lupe Barron is moving on to greener pastures. Greener pasture in a literal sense, that is. He has been selected to serve with the 11th Infantry of OVUREP fame, on Kelley Hill.

SFC Barron was inducted into the service in the early days of World War II. Serving in General Patton's 3rd Army, he participated in campaigns from France to the Rhine. Deciding to become a career Non Commissioner Officer rather than return to his former occupation of mining coal Sergeant Barron reenlisted. In October 1951, he first came to Company B which, at the time, was Company F of the 145th Infantry Regiment based at Camp Polk, Louisianna. SFC Barron recently re-enlisted for his own vacancy.

SFC Barron is married and the proud father of two boys and one girl. Upon retirement he plans to return to his home state of Oklahoma and try his hand as a restaurateur.

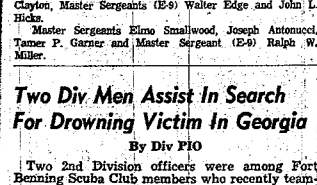
Two Div Men Assist In Search For Drowning Victim In Georgia

By Div PIO



Two 2nd Division officers were among Fort Benning Scuba Club members who recently teamed up in an effort to locate a drowned man at Hawkinsville, Georgia.

Lieutenants Clarence Moorer, 9th Infantry motor officer and Ronald Cramer, a platoon leader with the 9th's Company D, were flown by helicopter with fellow Scuba members to the scene of the drowning, 100 miles east of Columbus on the swift Ocmulgee River.

The Fort Benning club was called into action March 24 following futile efforts to locate the victim by other Scuba clubs. Arriving at the scene within two hours, the team, equipped with self-contained underwater breathing apparatl, scoured the swift currents in vain until nightfall.

Returning home for the night, club members resumed the search the following day, but to no avail.

Although unsuccessful in their mission, the divers' efforts helped foster better community relations, said Lt. Moorer, vice president of the Fort Benning club.

General Praises Service Schools

BY USAIS PIO

Modern Army developments still require the knowledge imparted at service schools like th U. S. Army Infantry School, Brigadier General Charles H. White Jr., declared Saturday in an address to 231 Infantry School graduates.

Gen. White, assistant division commander, told the graduates of the associate officer career class No. 2 that the Infantry School is "the authority world-wide on Infantry. It is known throughout the U.S. and the armies of our Allies."

"Almost daily," he said, "there have been advances in the fields of mobility, firepower, and communications. The principles and techniques taught by the service schools and in the field manuals remain solid in their application in today's Army."

The Army, he added, must "maintain current conventional capabilities to meet any contingency. . . keep pace with rapidly changing developments and . . anticipate and even guide long range developments.

Separate Battalion Team Wins 2nd Division Volleyball Crown

BY 69TH ARMOR PIO

Monday night, at Harmony Church Field House, the 69th Armor, representing Separate Battalion, won the 2nd Division Volleyball Championship by defeating 23rd Infantry by scores of 15-4 and 10-7, giving them a season record of six wins and no losses.

On their way to the championship the 69th Armor defeated 1st Infantry, 87th Infantry, Division Artillery, 9th Infantry, Division Trains and 23rd Infantry.

In both the encounters Monday night the "tankers" jumped into the lead and were never behind.

The first game saw the 69th Spikers doing most of the point making as the final score of 15-4 indicates. In the second game it was a different story as the "We Servers" matched the Armor men point for point right down the wire until late in the game.

On several occasions the second game was tied with both teams fighting for the lead. In spite of a game well played, the men from the 23rd went down in defeat. It came in the last minutes of the game when the 69th Armor scored four straight points to break a 6 to 6 tie and win it 10 to 7. The "We Servers" picked up their seventh point with only seconds of playing time remaining.

As a reward for their Championship performance the 69th Armor team and coach will receive a team trophy during the division's monthly miniature review. Individual trophies will be presented to the Armor Spikers tomorrow during a ceremony in the battalion area.

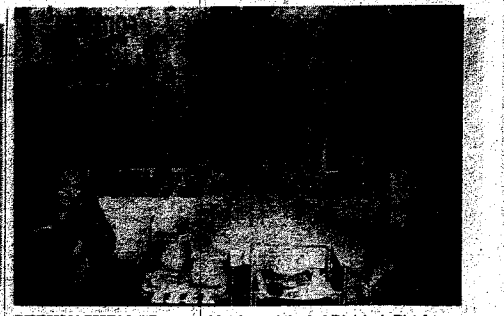
9th Edges 87th



By 9th Inf. PIO

The 9th Infantry volleyball six edged past the luckless 87th Infantry crew, two sets to one, in division volleyball tourney play March 30 at the Harmony Church Field House.

Both squads alternated between bot and cold volleyball, with the "Keep Up the Fire" netmen finally gaining the upper hand. After the Manchus slipped by the 87th group 12-10 in overtime in set number one, they swept to a10-1 lead in the second set. However, the Manchusmen ran out of gas and saw a 12-5 lead vanish with the 87th's 10-points-in-succession comeback rally. The 87th took the set 15-12.

The "Two-Niners", representing 29th Infantry, were awarded the first place trophies as winners of the league championship.

The Two-Niners took the title in a tense roll-off held at the Main Post Alleys last week. This botly contested three game series against the Redlegs, representatives of the 2nd Howitzer Battalion, 10th Artillery, was not decided until the final frame of the last game.

The new league champions, displaying the clutch bowling which had moved them into a tie with the Redlegs by the close of the season, came through to overcome an 88-pin deficit and sink the Redlegs, 2538 to 2519.

On their way to the league championship, the Two-Niners also rolled first and second high team series, and first high game, 985.

The Brigadeers, of Headquarters Company, 1st Infantry Brigade, captained by Major Joe T. Ely, bowled into third high team series and second high game with 983.

Individual awards were led by Capt. Raymond P. Singer of the champion Two-Niners, who picked up five trophies, the most notable of which was second high individual three game series. Capt. Allen L. Junko led the league with his 187 average, and posted third high individual three game series.

Among the events in which Lt. Yerman set records are the 1600 meter relay, one mile relay, two mile relay, sprint medly, Swedish sprint medly and the 660-yard run.

His most recent establishment of a world mark was during the 1960 Olympics in Rome, as the 1600 meter relay team surpassed the standing mark.

He has been a member of four well-known teams during his brief career, including the U. S. National Team, which competed against Russia in 1958 and 1959; the Pan American Track Team in 1959 the All America Track and Field Team, and the 1960 U. S. Olympic Track Team.

Lt. Yerman is also a top notch football player, earning three letters in college football at the fullback position. He played on the 1959 University of California Rose Bowl team.

While attending the University of California, he studied Personnel Relations. He graduated early this year with a degree in this field.

Lt. Yerman plans to attend a school of law in addition to continuing in the sprints if time permits.

Concentration Is First In Bowling Importance

BY BOB CHASE

Coordination, concentration and hard work pay off in bowling as they do in any sport. Once a bowler has learned the basic principles of the game, his degree of success depends upon these factors.

Almost every successful athlete owes a large part of his success to coordination. That's why a 140-pound Ben Hogan could hit a golf ball as far as many 200-pounders. It's the reason a Nellie Fox can be one of the best hitters in baseball despite a small physique.

But before practice on coordination and concentration, most bowlers need to study the basics of good bowling form. In instructing bowlers as part of my work in our program I find that the best place to begin is in the proper selection of equipment.

I tell all beginning bowlers to start with a conventional grip ball. This ball is one which allows the fingers to be inserted up to the middle joint of the fingers. The other grips are the finger-tip grip, which allows insertion of the fingers only to the first joint, and the semifingertip, wich allows insertion of the fingers to a point halfway between the first and second joints of the fingers.

Although most of us on my team use the fingertip grip for more control of ball rotation, I think it's mistake for average bowler to use this ball until he has fully mastered the basic techniques of the game. In perfecting coordination, the weight of the ball is a major factor. The conventional grip is a stronger grip in that it distributes the weight of the ball over more finger area, thus giving the effect of less weight.

Once coordination is achieved the more advanced grips can be tried. They afford more control over the various types of balls which can be discussed in a later article.

Of course some bowlers are not beginners in leagues such as those I work with. Some of you reading this article also are very likely in a more advanced phase of the game. In this case, if you have used the other grips or want to try them, go ahead.

Some bowlers will increase their confidence, and hence their scores, with the added spin possible with these grips. If you should try one of these advanced grips, don't get too far down the road with it. Use it consistently over a period of a week or 10 days.

If you have not in that time developed the confidence and control you should have by then, revert to the conventional grip and remain with it until you have more experience.

Tip to the advanced bowler: The fingers, not the thumb, determine the amount of lift or turn applied to the ball in the delivery, since they are in contact with the ball longer. For this reason the fingers should be placed firmly into the ball before the thumb is inserted.

POWER HITTER

Baseball men continue to be amazed by Harmon Killebrew's power. Baltimore manager Paul Richards spoke on the subject recently. "Killebrew can knock a ball out of any park," Paul said, "including Yellowstone.

Cub Scouts Make Model 'Engine' of Scrap Parts

In the hands of creative young lads, an old barrel, tin cans, a pasteboard box and scrap lumber and other materials were turned into a "steam engine" here.

The realistic engine has a base of wood with a barrel placed on top for the boiler. For the cab the Scouts cut out windows and the back of a box and placed it at the rear of the boiler. Metal ends of cardboard barrels were used for the two large drive wheels on each side.

A large tin can forms the smokestack and others of various sizes were used for the headlights and the two other stacks on top of the boiler. The cowcatcher is made out of scrap lumber. For added realism they painted the entire engine black except for the drive wheels and the ends of the cans used for the headlights.

Den mother is Mrs. Leander R. Hathaway, Jr., Mrs. Frank C. Jerbi is assistant den mother for the month.

Members of Den 3 are Carl Braun, David Welch, Patrick Montgomery, Don Bruce, and Darryl Livingston.

Post Turn-In Of Envelopes Near 20,000

During the past week contributor's envelopes reported from post personnel have almost doubled to approximately 20,000 and many more are expected as the 1961 Federal Service Joint Campaign for National Health Agencies and the Federal Service Joint Crusade winds up at the post.

Collections officially ended April 1 but officials at The Infantry Center's Funds Division expect a busy week as more money envelopes, the result of last payday's collections, are reported by project officers in various activities. Today is the deadline for turnins to the Funds Division.

As of Wednesday morning 9,493 envelopes signed by military and civilian personnel have been reported to the division in support of the health agencies and 9,062 envelopes for the Joint Crusade.

The National Bank of Fort Benning has volunteered open and count donations for the health agencies, which will then be sent to state campaign headquarters in Atlanta. Envelopes for the Joint Crusade are being forwarded to headquarters in New York City. Dollar amounts contributed by post personnel to each of the drives will be announced later.

'Old Soldier' Whiskey, Will Rest in Peace

(AFPS) — The inexorable march of superhighways is dooming many historic buildings and other landmarks on the reservation of old Fort Snelling, Minnesota, now property of the Veterans Administration.

But one landmark the engineers will spare. It is the grave of Whiskey, one of the most famous horses in Army annals. Whiskey lies buried in the grassy pasture where he roamed for years after the Army officially retired him.

His story began in 1921 when he came to Fort Snelling in a consignment of horses from Montana. Whiskey was young, high-spirited and frisky. One soldier who noticed it was Lt. William R. Hazelrigg, a Kentuckian and a good judge of horseflesh.

Hazelrigg took Whiskey in hand and trained him to become one of the country's most celebrated jumpers and trick-performing steeds. He delighted audiences at fairs, exhibitions and military functions. He could jump over a span of mules hitched to a wagon, he could take incredibly high barriers, and he never failed to excite audible admiration when he jumped through a flaming hoop.

But Whiskey grew old, and at last the Army retired him on August 10, 1936. A special investigating board had reported that "it would be a severe blow to the morale of officers and enlisted men if the animal should be sold or destroyed."

Put out to pasture, Whiskey took a sentimental fancy to an Army mule. When his friend was shipped off to Texas, he was disconsolate; he was the only horse left at Fort Snelling. He went into a decline and finally died in 1943 at the extraordinary age of 32.

Old Whiskey was buried at the fort with full military honors. Today his grave is still cared for by VA engineers, and an offering of four artificial roses decorates the headstone. That's how the Army felt about Whiskey.

Recently promoted to E-8, 1st Sgt. Calvin C. Willis is now assigned to the 50th Company, 5th Student Battalion, The Student Brigade.

He enlisted in the Army in May, 1948, and received his basic training at Fort Jackson. His first assignment was with the 1st Squadron, 8th Cavalry, 1st Cavalry Division, in Japan. He was a squad leader and later platoon leader there.

In May, 1949, he was assigned to the 49th Artillery, 7th Infantry Division, also in Japan, as a machine gun instructor. Then a corporal, he was soon assigned as battery motor sergeant and later as battalion motor sergeant.

Sgt. Willis returned to the U. S. in September, 1951, for an assignment with the 66th Signal Battalion at Fort Bragg as motor sergeant and later as a pole line construction foreman.

E-8 WILLIS

In May, 1953, he was assigned overseas again, this time with the 31st Surgical Hospital in Germany. He was the group motor sergeant during this tour, returning to the U. S. in April, 1956.

His new assignment was with Company C, 4th Infantry, 3rd Infantry Division. His responsibility within his unit grew from that of platoon leader to first sergeant, during the span of nine months.

Sgt. Willis came to The Student Brigade in October, 1957, as Human Research operations sergeant. He then served as a trainfire instructor, and finally as first sergeant of Detachment 24, 2nd Student Battalion, and Headquarters Company, 5th Student Battalion.

A few weeks after his promotion to E-8, Sgt. Willis transferred to the 50th Company, his present assignment.

High School Courses To Be Offered

Seven high school courses will begin April 11 at The Infantry Center's Educational Development Section.

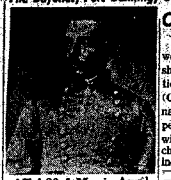
The one-hour classes will meet on Tuesday and Thursday evenings at the section, Building 2512, beginning at 6:45.

The courses offered to military personnel without charge, and with text books supplied, are English; general mathematics, American government, general science, beginning algebra, fundamentals of electricity and introductory electronics.

Four subjects will be in session during the first hour and three during the second to enable students to attend two classes during the cycle.

A college-level course in trigonometry is offered at the section concurrently with the high school classes. It begins at 6:30 p.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays.

Engineers Pass Bond Sale Goal



The 577th Engineer Battalion kicked off its annual savings program last week with the enthusiastic support of most personnel in the battalion.

In the first month of the drive, the 577th had 78.8 per cent of its personnel participating. Company A led the way with 90 per cent, Company B was next with 83 per cent. Headquarters Company had 70 per cent and Company C had 69 per cent of their personnel buying bonds.

Since all companies have already obtained the goal of 65 per cent for the Minuteman Award, the 577th has set a new goal — 80 per cent of its personnel buying one or more bonds.

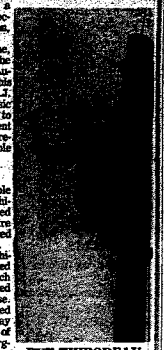
Profile of a Man Doing a Man's Job

Pvt. James Thibodeau is a pole lineman in the wire section of the Post Signal Section, at Fort Benning.



A native of Rumford, Maine, Pvt. Thibodeau enlisted in the Army for three years in August 1960 and received his basic training at Fort Dix, N.J.

Upon completion of basic training he was reassigned to Fort Gordon, where he went to the Signal School and received his training as a pole lineman.

Although the jobs of a pole lineman are varied, Pvt. Thibodeau is mainly concerned with the repair of open wire lines, running multi-colored wire lines and setting poles.

The importance of Pvt. Thibodeau's job is demonstrated by the urgency with which lines must be repaired when damaged or out of use. A pole lineman may be called to work at all times of the day or night and in all kinds of weather, because of this urgency.

Sergeant's Millionaire For A Day

(AFPS) Sfc Roger Brown of the 52nd Artillery Brigade at Highlands AFS, N. J., was a rich man, almost a millionaire, for a few hours at least. Trouble is, he didn't know it.

Sfc Brown went into a local bank to buy a money order for $18.80 which he planned to send to his own bank in New York. He'd forgotten to bring a deposit slip, however, so he returned home with the money order in his pocket.

A couple of hours later the phone rang. It was the bank calling. Would Sfc Brown please check the amount stamped on the money order?

He did, and it wasn't $18.80. It was $800,018.80, an amount to make anybody's eyes pop.

Sfc Brown took the money order back to the bank where a very red-faced teller rectified the whopping error.

U. S. Team Finishes Second In International Matches

The U. S. International free Pistol Team received a trophy for winning second place in world competition, it has been announced by the National Rifle Association.

The announcement came in a letter and match bulletin received by team captain, Lt. Col. Burton C. Boatright who revealed that the squads scored but four points behind the winning Swedish team.

The Swedish 10-man team scored a total of 5,447 out of a possible 6,000 points in the postal match in which teams from 11 countries participated.

The U.S. team was composed of 1960 Olympic Trial marksmen who tried for the U.S. team at finals conducted at The Infantry Center last year.

High individual score among the 110 world-level competitors was posted by Sfc Nelson E. Lincoln of the U.S. team. His 558 out of 600 points topped efforts of Swedish shooter Torsten Ullman by two points, Col. Boatright said.

Sgt. Lincoln of the Army Advanced Marksmanship Unit, had just won the Free Pistol Match fired in the First Annual Armed Forces International Shooting Competition recently completed at this post when he was informed of his team's second place win.

United States progress in international free pistol competition was also underscored by the first 10 scores turned in by shooters in the Benning match of 60 shots, slow fire at 50 meters, Col. Boatright pointed out.

All four of the Armed Services competing had men in the top 10 places and who fired a compositive score of 5,441.

This score averages out 544.1 points per man," Col. Boatright said, and added that the Swedish shooters won the postal match by averaging 544.7.

Other countries participating included Switzerland (5,333), Japan (5,300) Finland (5,298), Germany (5,239) Italy (5,222), France (5,136), Great Britain (5,101), Canada (4,968) and Denmark (4,917).

ONE ARMY DEFINITION

The Army is a team of many parts, each subordinate to the whole; each with a vital mission that contributes to the one overall Army mission — the security of the U. S. This spirit of "oneness" is that element which measures the strength of the whole as greater than the sum of the parts.

Decorated French Liaison Officer Addresses Career Course Students

Lt. Col. Paul L. Aussaresses, French liaison officer at The Infantry School, will speak to the school's Officer Career Class 1 April 6.

The Allied officer will talk on "The French Army" at 3:15 p.m. in Pratt Hall.

A veteran French Army paratrooper who has made 101 jumps, the last seven at Fort Benning, Col. Aussaresses was assigned to the post last August. He has been an airborne enthusiast since receiving paratroop training in England in January, 1944. The French officer subsequently made two combat jumps behind the lines in Europe.

A native of Paris, Col Aussaresses was commissioned in the Infantry at the age of 20 after graduating from the French Army school at St. Maxdent. He served as an anti-tank platoon leader following the invasion in Europe.

Escaping to England via Spain in 1942, he joined the Free French Forces in training. Col. Aussaresses underwent airborne training at Ringway, near Manchester, England. His first instructor was a U. S. Army lieutenant named Knox.

In August, 1944, the French officer jumped with an otherwise all-British team in Toulouse, France. They spent a month working with the Maquis (French underground) to prepare for the arrival of the Seventh U. S. Army. Following additional training in England, Col. Aussaresses jumped with a U. S. Army team in April, 1945, on an undercover assignment behind the lines in Germany half-way between Berlin and Magdeburg.

A tour in France from 1945 to 1948 was followed by three years in Indo-China with the 1st Paratroop Regiment. The then-Capt. Aussaresses commanded an airborne company in Tonkin in the northern segment of the country.

In 1951-1952 Col. Aussaresses served with the French Occupation Forces in Baden-Baden, Germany, and attended French military school for instruction in Russian. He was ordered to Algeria in 1953 and assigned to headquarters of the 1st Paratroop Regiment, the same unit in which he served in Indo-China.

On leaving Algeria in 1958, later he departed for Fort Benning.

Col. Aussaresses is an officer of the Legion of Honor, has been awarded three Croix de Guerre and has the British decoration of "mention in dispatches."

Meteorology Course Attended

A 1st Infantry Brigade enlisted man is attending an 11-week Artillery Ballistic Meteorology course at the Artillery and Missile School, Fort Sill. Pfc Robert E. Kelley of Headquarters Battery, 2nd Howitzer Battalion, 10th Artillery, departed for the instruction last week.

Hunting, Fishing Licenses Extended

The expiration date of the 1960 Georgia Hunting and Fishing licenses has been extended until April 25, it was announced by the Fort Benning Fish and Game Maintenance Association.

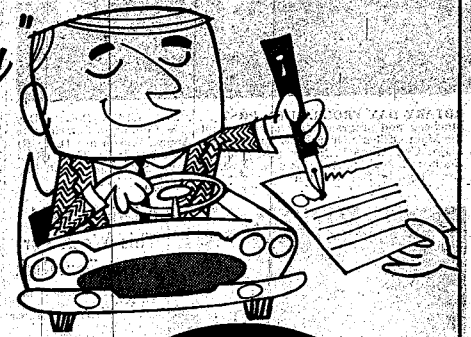
Association memberships have also been extended until this date. New association memberships will be available after April 20.

Contribute 220 Pints of Blood

Members of the 2nd Howitzer Battalion, 10th Artillery, 1st Infantry Brigade, donated 220 pints of blood in their recent Red Cross blood campaign. Many who wanted to donate were ineligible because of recent return from Korea. Top unit in the drive was Headquarters Battery, with 53 pints contributed.

Visit By HumRRO Director Set

Dr. Meridith P. Crawford, director of HumRRO (Human Resources Research Office) at George Washington University, Washington, D. C., is scheduled to arrive at the post Sunday for a three-day visit.



He will confer with Dr. Carl J. Lang, director of the Infantry Human Research Unit. Discussions will be held with members of the local staff.

Dr. Crawford will depart Tuesday afternoon for Fort Rucker, to visit personnel of the Aviation Human Research Unit.

HumRRO is a non-governmental agency, part of George Washington University, under contract between the school and the Department of the Army.

In International Matches

Records Surpassed By Army, Marines

New records and a perfect score were the tale of the closely contested First Annual Armed Forces Shooting Competition, held at Fort Benning last week, with the Army's marksmen taking 20 of the 23 titles at stake.

Competing against top flight riflemen, pistolmen and shotgunners from the Marine Corps, Navy and Air Force, the Army shooters, all of the Army Advanced Marksmanship Unit, accounted for 19 of the 23 individual matches and swept all 10 team events.

New Records

Four world's records were surpassed and one equaled during the matches which were of the style seen in world championships and in Olympic competition. All new marks set can not be entered as world records since they were not fired in world competition but will be set as Armed Forces records.

The Army's Major Gene S. Stalcup was the only contestant to turn in a perfect score. In the Individual Skeet Match, Major Stalcup exceeded the word mark by one point when he broke 200 out of 200 clay targets for the perfect score. The standing world record for this match is 199x200 established in the Pan-American Games of 1959.

Major Stalcup earlier smashed 100 straight targets to lead the Army Skeet Team to victory in the matches.

A second world's record was surpassed when the Army's International Center Fire Pistol Team shot a score of 2334/400. The score exceeds but does not replace the present world mark set by a Czech team in 1958.

LT. COL. MAJOR STALCUP
Individual Honors

A Marine was the first non-Army competitor to break into the winners column. Gunnery Sgt. James E. Hill downed 22 competitors in the 50-meter International Free Rifle Match of 40 shots from the kneeling position. Sgt. Hill shot out 386 of 400 point to win.

The Army's 1st Lt. Tommy G. Pool, shooting in the three-position International Free Rifle March at 50 meters, fired 40 shots to tie the world record of 396 out of 400 points in the prone position and then went on to pass the kneeling position mark by shooting a 392 out of 400.

In the standing position he totaled 366 points for a record breaking total for the match of 1156x1200. His kneeling score topped the existing mark by one point while his three-position total surpassed the recognized record by seven points.

The Marine Corp's Capt. Willard B. McMillan firing in the Rapid Fire Pistol Match posted a 593 out of 600 points to by-pass the world mark for this match by one point.

FOOD AND TOOLS

In South Vietnam, 4,000 refugee and other resettled families are getting a double measure of American help: CARE farm tools to work their land, plus 6-month food rations to sustain them until their first harvest. Contributions to the CARE Food Crusade, New York 16, N.Y., feed the 22,000 members of the families.

Army Distaff Foundation's New Officers

Six new members were elected to the board of directors of the Army Distaff Foundation in Washington, D. C. at the recent annual meeting, to replace members whose terms had expired.

The announcement of these new members of the board of directors was made by Lt. Gen. (Ret.) Leslie R. Groves, president of the Foundation.

The other officers at the Foundation whose terms have not expired continue as members of the board.

In addition to the board of directors, there is a small full time staff consisting of Col. (Ret.) Julian B. Lindsey, assistant to the president; Col. (Ret.) Richard Sears, assistant treasurer; Lt. Col. (Ret.) Virgil W. Bond, administrator; and Mrs. J. L. Searles, executive secretary.

Briefings Held This Week For Major Gen. Dick

Major Gen. William W. Dick, Jr., deputy chief of research and development, Department of the Army, Washington, D. C., visited The Infantry School Monday through yesterday.

Gen. Dick arrived at 1:50 p.m. Monday. After conferring with Major Gen. Hugh P. Harris, commandant of The Infantry School and post commander, he was briefed on the organization and mission of The Center and School and scheduling of classes and instructional facilities, and observed demonstrations and classes.

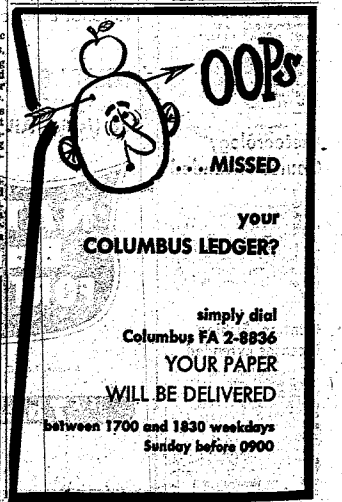
This Summer

Classes on Safe Cycling Due for Post Children

To promote safe driving habits and instill in the minds of youngsters the principles of the "rules of the road," the Provost Marshal Section has arranged several three-hour bicycle operators schools for this summer.

The dates and times of the classes will be announced later.

Dependents between the ages of six and 14 inclusive who operate bicycles on post are required to have a valid bicycle driver's permit, which will be issued after successful completion of the course.



During the three-hour instruction, the first hour will deal with classroom training on the use of hand signals, traffic regulations, signs and devices, courtesy while driving, riding at night, defensive driving and other subjects necessary for the safe operation of a bicycle.

In the second and third hours of instruction, each student will receive practical application on an outdoor training course and undergo an operator's proficiency test.

Transportation for each student's bicycle will be furnished to and from the class area. Sponsors of dependent children may obtain registration information from the Registration Branch, Provost Marshal Section.

BRING FORTH THE CHILDREN by Yul Brynner. (McGraw, 1960)

As special advisor to the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees, Yul Brynner has visited the refugee camps in Europe and the Middle East. Here he tells of the tragedy of the people he saw there, and with sympathy pleads for homes, jobs, and education for them.

ARSENIC AND RED TAPE by Edmund G. Love. (Harcourt, 1960)

The author writes "Amusingly of twelve bureaucrats whom he has endured in his business, military, and private life. Three of the more obnoxious include an overzealous lady whose efficiency drove away two husbands, an employer who ruled his office with ludicrous regimentation and a supermarket department chief who waged a private war against the customers.

INDEPENDENCE FOR AFRICA by Gwendolen Carter (Praeger, 1960).

A professor of government at Smith College presents this report on present-day Africa based on her travels through many of the countries south of the Sahara from August 1958 to September 1959. Full of facts and interviews with leaders, descriptions of projects and populations, it is designed to illustrate some of the main problems: land division, education, medical needs, lack of administrators, and Negro-white hostility.

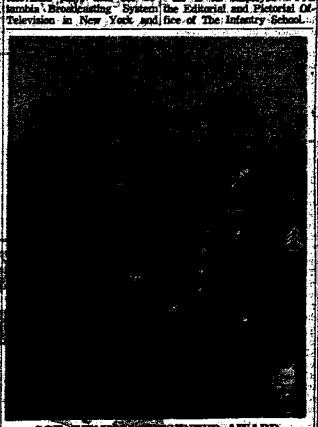
Sgt. Graham Gets Award For Heroism



Sgt. Lonnie M. Graham, 15th Engineer Group (Combat), was recently awarded the Army Commendation Medal for performance of an act of heroism, last August.

While fishing with a companion on the Chattahoochee River, below Goat Rock Dam, he capsized small boat capsized in the rough water of the dam's tailrace. Two men were left clinging to the capsized boat. It was caught on a submerged snag by the anchor line.

Even though he has a permanently disabled hip and is a non-swimmer himself, he took the boat across the rock strewn water and with the help of his companion helped the two men to safety.

Both victims were fully clothed and one was a nonswimmer.

For his courageous action in saving the men from an almost certain death, Sgt. Graham was awarded the commendation medal.

The Civilians You Work With

One of the three purchasing agents in the Purchasing and Contracting Office, The Infantry Center, is Mrs. Olive Allen—and she's been there for almost 20 years.

A native of Columbus, she has worked in her present section except for three years with the Quartermaster Section and a short time with the Finance Section, since first coming to work at Fort Benning in 1940.

Mrs. Allen is a graduate of the Lorena Hall School (now closed) in Columbus, and Agnes Scott College in Decatur.

A relative newcomer to the post, Mrs. Dorothy A. Crandall is a clerk-stenographer with the Protocol Division, Secretary General Staff. She has been in her job about one year.

Originally from Omaha, Neb., Mrs. Crandall worked at the Presidio of San Francisco before coming to this post. Her first assignment here was a temporary one with PROJECT MAN last May.

She says she finds working with foreign visitors' itineraries interesting and informative work, and her job is closely related to the visits of all VIP's who come to The Infantry School and Center.

A man appeared at a newspaper office to place an ad offering $100 for the return of his wife's pet cat.

"That's an awfully high price for a cat," the clerk ventured.

"Not for this one," said the man. "I drowned it."

"What makes you think your wife is getting tired of you?"

"Every day this week she's wrapped my lunch in a road map."

"No," said the actor sadly. "He doesn't do a darned thing."

"Then why do you take him around with you?" the producer asked.

"Because," explained the actor, "he's my agent."

"Help! Help! An alligator has just bitten off my leg!" yelled the swimmer.

"Which one?" inquired a friend on the bank.

"How do I know? All alligators look alike."

Small Bottles Mean Big Loss To All Soldiers

The lowly soft drink bottle has become a major problem on the post. This small glass container that brings cool, refreshing enjoyment to parched throats on hot, sultry days becomes a major headache when empty.

At Fort Benning an average of 16,000 cases or 384,000 bottles of soft drinks are delivered to vending machines each month. Of this number an average of 3000 cases or 72,000 bottles are lost each month.

This costs the Post Exchange approximately $1500 every thirty days and represents a direct loss to Recreation and Welfare Funds of the Army since these funds are generated from exchange profits.

MAH Lab Tests Play Vital Role

By Captain Albert C. Hunt, MC

Many people think of the laboratory as a place with weird types of apparatus and people anxious to stick fingers and arms. Some may be wondering what is learned from the laboratory tests, and if they are worth the pain of feeling like a pincushion.

In this article we will discuss the function of a hospital laboratory, some of the tests, and how you can help us render top service.

The laboratory at Martin Army Hospital did a total of almost 500,000 different tests and procedures during 1960. This number ranks it as one of the busiest in the Army and one of the busiest in the country for its size.

These tests ranged from simple blood counts to the determination of the different types of proteins in the blood by their electrical behavior in solutions. Some of the determinations involve measuring millionths of a gram of a substance, as in one of the tests for an over active thyroid gland. The laboratory does many tests for many chemicals in the blood, thus giving a check on the functions of the different organs of the body.

Other tests show the presence or absence of the many factors involved in the clotting of the blood, as in tests for hemophilia. Slides of the blood and bone marrow are studied to aid in or confirm diagnoses of the different types of anemia and leukemias. Material can be cultured to identify the types of germs present in infections.

Although the laboratory is a consulting service for other doctors, working in the laboratory are doctors who have had up to four years training in laboratory medicine aside from medical school and internship.

These doctors are the Pathologists, or "Doctors' doctors". They examine all tissue removed at operations. This is done with the microscope, using sections of the tissue only 5-10,000 of an inch thick, which has been stained in a special way.

Sometimes a surgeon will want to know at once if a tumor is malignant. He sends a small portion to the laboratory where it is frozen by carbon dioxide, a thin slice is cut and stained, and it is examined with the microscope.

Usually the diagnosis can be made this way, and the surgeon can then determine how extensive an operation is needed. Other officers in the laboratory have degrees in and are specialists in bacteriology and chemistry. The civilian technicians and enlisted technicians many of which are college graduates, have all had extensive training.

Many of the tests have to be done under special conditions, so when you are told by one of the laboratory personnel to come in without eating, it is done so that the test will be more accurate.

Due to our work load, some tests can be done only on certain days so you may be asked to return at a later date. All of this is done so that we can do a larger volume of work, and thus care for more patients.

One last word: The state marriage laws vary considerably, so that when anyone is contemplating marriage, we urge him to have the "blood test" drawn at least ten days ahead of time, so that we can process it and have the result in plenty of time for any waiting period required by the state in which he is going to be married. Most states accept a blood test result during the 30 days prior to marriage, so come in early and avoid disappointment.

They were also briefed on The Infantry School organization, mission, scheduling, facilities and instructor training, Range Control Section of The Infantry Center, training aids, and logistical support provided by The Center.

OBEYING DIRECTIONS

Des Moines, Iowa, city officials called a motorist into court to find out why he snipped the file numbers from four traffic tickets when he paid the fines by mail. The motorist said that he was only following directions clearly stated on the tickets—"A record should be kept of the summons number when sending the summons and required fine to municipal court by mail."

In 428th Medical Battalion

Realism Highlights Pre-ATTs By Post STRAC Medical Units

By Ida C. Evans

From medic to fighting man at the first sound of "aggressor" fire is just part of the training for members of the 50th Medical Clearing Company and the 690th Medical Ambulance Company.

This quick transition was demonstrated frequently during nine days of preliminary ATTs (Army Training Tests) conducted recently by the 428th Medical Battalion, to which the two STRAC (Strategic Army Corps) units are attached.

Normally considered non-combatant soldiers, medics will fight, but only to protect patients and other individuals, according to Lt. Col. Raymond J. Caldbeck, commander of the 428th.

Conducted to evaluate the combat readiness of the two companies and the Headquarters and Headquarters Detachment of the 428th in preparation which followed later, the exercise was conducted under realistic combat conditions.

FREQUENT MOVES

The test included at least six moves to demonstrate rapid deployment from one area to another in support of a fast developing tactical situation.

At each location, a complete operating unit was established. With a threat of "known enemy" nearby, tents were pitched, surgery was set up, wards were established and security measures were taken for defense of the perimeter.

Every man dug a foxhole for his own protection. In addition, H-shaped foxholes were prepared to accommodate two litter patients and an aidman in case of attack.

Ambulances of the 690th Medical Company brought in "patients," men skillfully made-up to appear to have been wounded in action. Realism was achieved by the use of plastic molds called moulages. There were "amputees," men with "wounds" and other realistic fbattle casualties."

The busy routine of unloading patients, administering emergency treatment, performing necessary surgery, giving glucose and preparing patients for evacuation to the rear was often interrupted by the sound of "aggressor" fire.

MEDICAL CORPSMEN CAPTURE 'ENEMY' During Attack On Medical Clearing Station

At the first shot, corpsmen moved "litter patients" to the foxholes and continued treatment while administrative personnel grabbed rifles and engaged the enemy.

A team of umpires observed every phase of the exercise and made recommendations for a critique to improve the performance of the command.

Realistic

"The over-all operation was gratifying," Col. Caldbeck said. "The training was realistic and personnel of the command benefited by participating in this actual type activity," he added.

Field training is normally conducted from time to time to keep up the proficiency of the companies, Major Egbert V. Bunger, executive officer of the battalion, said.

The battalion participates in joint Army-Air Force exercises. The pre-ATT test is conducted to reveal any minor discrepancies. The company commanders will conduct special training in areas pointed out in the critique, Major Bunger added.

The 50th Medical Clearing Company may provide clearing facilities for corps and Army troops and troops in the Communication (Logistical Support) Zone. The company is equipped to accommodate 240 patients, normally, and 360 patients under emergency conditions.

The company may establish small specialized treatment facilities. During combat, the company receives, sorts and provides temporary medical and surgical care for patients until evacuated. Minor illnesses, wounds and injuries are treated on-the-spot.

The medical company may be assigned to Army, independent corps or a communication zone.

Capt. Benjamin Kilpatrick commands the company.

The 690th Medical Ambulance Company, normally attached to a medical battalion, may operate independently under the supervision of appropriate medical staff officers.

The company provides ambulance evacuation in a combat or communication zone. It may reinforce ambulance facilities of other medical units.

The 428th also provides personnel and equipment in support of The Infantry Center and School.

During the training tests, a professional compliment of doctors was provided by Martin Army Hospital.

Gen. Walsh's Infantry School Report

"Highball One, Highball One, this is Pathfinder Control. No Drop, No Drop, No Drop."

"Pathfinder Control, this is Highball One, Understand. No Drop."

With these simple words, Pathfinders help prevent the loss or serious injury of students attending the Pathfinder Course here at The Infantry School.

To Captains Theodore N. Frost and Giles R. Thomas of the Airborne-Air Mobility Department, this was just another day of instruction.

But the job in which they are experts and the instruction which they are imparting to their students is just as important here today as it may be in combat tomorrow.

Bitter experience during World War II taught the U. S. Army that unless a positive guidance system is employed, minutely detailed all-important plans can go awry and the delivery of troops and equipment to a battlefield can be completely ineffective.

It is imperative that specially trained individuals and groups insure that this precious cargo is delivered with the maximum degree of safety and where it can best serve toward the successful completion of the combat mission. The men who perform this job for Army aircraft are the Pathfinders.

The Pathfinder Course, as taught here at The Infantry School, is five weeks long and encompasses 220 hours of instruction. During this instruction both officer and enlisted students are taught the fundamentals of Pathfinder Guidance.

Specifically, Pathfinders learn how to control air traffic, how to guide aircraft, how to select drop and landing zones, how to mark and prepare these zones for the delivery of troops and equipment, and how to perform radiological survey of an objective area.

Although the Pathfinder as

Roster Hits 2900 Mark

One hundred more members are needed to bring the Columbus-Phenix City-Fort Benning Chapter of the Association of the U.S. Army to its stated membership of over 3,000, it was announced at the annual dinner Tuesday night, at which Gen. (Ret.) Mark W. Clark was the principle speaker.

Membership is constantly being increased on a year-round basis, and it is expected that the local chapter will exceed the 3,000 member figure in the near future.

Gen. Clark

Speaking before a vast audience of over 600 members of the chapter, Gen. Clark gave a highly inspiring review of the schools of higher learning who are turning out capable leaders of tomorrow.

Gen. Clark, who is now president of The Citadel, expressed his feelings on the training and education of the young military officers by saying, "If all colleges would turn out whole men, the future of our country would be much brighter."

"I am glad the people up in Washington are expressing more interest in the ground forces," the four-star visitor stated. "I am also happy over the increase in the Army. It will make us more apt if we are catapulted into a war."

Must Train Youth

"If we are to survive," said Gen. Clark, "we must meet Communism head on and we must be strong and unafraid. We must train our most precious asset, today's youngsters, so that they can meet and handle the Communist threat."

One of the steps in the early training of the nation's youth, sponsored by The Citadel, is a summer camp for boys between the ages of 11 and 15.

These boys take over the campus and go on hikes, camp out and learn the most important steps in becoming good leaders and good citizens.

Upon completion of summer training, each of the boys are awarded "Junior Defender of America" badges.

Remarking about these boys, Gen. Clark said that very few, if any, of the summer-trained youngsters get into trouble, most of them too busy at working hard, living up to the award.

Third Army Matches End With New Records Posted

As the Third Army 1961 Rifle and Pistol Championships officially drew to an end yesterday another page of Army marksmanship history was filled with new records and fine performances. Lt. Gen. Paul D. Adams, Third Army commanding general, was principal speaker at the award ceremony yesterday in Theater 1. He also presented the awards to winning shooters and teams.

With only the final results of the last team matches left to be tallied and all of the individual matches completed at press time, a quick look at the score books show the outcome of the closely contested matches.

The first record to fall was in the 50-meter International Free Rifle Match, as 1st Lt. John R. Foster, of the 2nd Infantry Division, posted 544 out of 600 points. The division rifleman then went to the 300-meter Free Rifle Match and shattered the all-time mark by 39 points with a 545x600.

A two-gun automatic rifle team from the 82nd Airborne Division's 1st Airborne Battle Group, 508rd Infantry, won the Commanding General's 1961 Automatic Rifle Team Championship, consisting of short, mid and long range firing,

Letter From Secretary Stahr On President's Budget Message

(The following message from Secretary of the Army Elvis Stahr, Jr., has been released pending distribution of the full text of the President's budget message.—Editor)

"I have directed that the full text of the President's special defense budget message be sent to all major Army units around the world. I invite your careful attention to this important document and, especially to the many points which are so encouraging to the Army. Particularly significant was the President's clear indication that the re-appraisal of our defense policy and posture has only begun and will continue vigorously:

"Among the objectives advocated by the President, and long endorsed by the Army, which point the direction of the continuing re-appraisal are the following:

"Sufficiently powerful and mobile forces to prevent the steady erosion of the Free World through limited wars.

"A flexible, selective, swift and effective force to react to an attack on any part of the Free World with any kind of weapons.

"Increases in non-nuclear fire power and battlefield mobility to permit deliberate choices in weapons and strategy and reduce the danger of unnecessary escalation of a small war into a large war.

"The expansion of special forces trained in guerrila warfare.

"The provision of adequate airlift and sealift to move elements of the Strategic Army Corps.

"Substantial improvements in supporting tactical aircraft.

"Additional emphasis on research and development on limited war requirements.

Stepped-up procurement of modern weapons and equipment.

"The new budget request is but a beginning toward achieving our goals for the Army of the future, but it is apparent that a forward step is being taken toward modernizing the Army's materiel. However, to me the most important conclusion is that the President's stated principles point in a new direction and make it clear that our ability to deter all forms of armed aggression, and to deal effectively with localized wars, will be major objectives in the years just ahead, even while we are further enhancing the deterrents to total war. Under this approach, our military establishment can become a flexible supporting instrument of our foreign policy.

"It should be clear to all of us that the future holds new and challenging opportunities and responsibilities for the Army and increased recognition of it's key role as an instrument of measure force in the defense of freedom."

Three Generals Reassigned; Gen Farrand Retires

Brig. Gen. Frederick C. Weyand, who was scheduled to assume deuties as deputy chief of information in Washington, D. C., after completing his tour as chief of staff, Communications Zone, U. S. Army Europe, has been ordered to the Office of Chief of Legislative Liaison, Washington, D. C.

in their favor in the training of youth," the featured speaker commented, "they lie to their youth but we tell ours the truth."

Major Gen. Hugh P. Harris, commanding general of The Infantry Center and commandant of The Infantry School introduced Gen. Clark to the membership. Following the address, Gen. Harris presented the retired guest with a miniature replica of the Infantryman statue.

Membership Report

In other business, Ernest W. Higgins, first vice-president, gave the membership report which was 1503 from The Infantry Center, 1104 from the 2nd Infantry Division and 425 civilians from Columbus and Phenix City for a grand total of 2,900.

Amid his report, Higgins said that the chapter was ranked third largest in the organization. The official count was made Dec. 1, 1960, before the present membership drive.

Gen. Clark is a graduate of many higher schools of learning in the Army, has commanded the Fifth Army and Sixth Army, has commanded United Nations forces in Italy and helped negotiate the Austrian Peace Treaty.

In addition to being awarded the Distinguished Service Cross, Gen. Clark has also been awarded many other top decorations of the U.S. and many foreign countries.

such no longer operates with Air Force aircraft, the Air Force calls their men combat control teams; in the ever expanding field of Army Aviation, the Pathfinder is an essential member of the Army team.

More and more the ubiquitous Pathfinder proves his value not only to the Airborne unit, but today also to the "straight-leg" Infantry unit. Air Mobility is here to stay for all units, and it is the Pathfinder who will insure that combat units are delivered at the right place, safely and effectively.

The United States is at peace. Yet, when the "Old Soldier" hears the Pathfinder command of "Execute! Execute! Execute!," he sees the spirit of the Airborne and "Those devils in baggy pants" floating down from the skies on their clouds of silk, and on target.

Interim Ceiling on RA Officers Lifted

President Kennedy has approved the recommendation by the Secretary of Defense to remove the manning ceiling on regular officer strength. Ceilings were set in 1956 by President Eisenhower at 39,600 for the Army and 55,540 for the Air Force. As of December 31, 1960, there were about 37,200 RA officers. The lifting of the ceiling will allow the Army to continue procurement of new regular officers on a planned and orderly basis.

3,000 More P-2 Payments Okayed

Commanders in the field will conduct reviews of all EM drawing proficiency pay 1, but who have MOSs which have been authorized for P-2 payment, in an effort to select additional qualified personnel for the extra increases in pay. Total P-2 payments expected under the review number 3,000.

Here Are Some of Those Bottles

Which Chapter, We Wonder?

If all the people on the post who have said "I'm already a member," when approached to join the Association of the U.S. Army are really members, how come the local chapter isn't the largest in the association by about 20,000?

We Don't Do It This Way, But--

A polite remark the other day about a typographical error in the Bayonet brings the following story to mind:

Many years ago a small mid-west paper had it in for the local police force, and editorially never missed a chance to take a pot-shot. One day, however, in a straight news story an oversight resulted in police lieutenant So-And-So being referred to as "a defective on the police force." After getting a hot demand for an apology, the paper printed a box on page 1 containing the following: "We regret having made a typographical error in referring to Lt. So-And-So as a defective on the police force. He is, of course, a detective on the police force."

Overheard During Third Army Matches

Coach to shooter on rifle range: "There's a fishtail. Watch that cloud. Mirage is good and fast. Take a dab right. Let 'er go. WRONG TARGET! Okay now, a half left is too much. Hold steady. Come up a minute. Hold it. Stay away from 9 o'clock. Shoot. Call it."

And we thought baseball players had a language and signals all their own . . .

Army Will Switch To Metric System

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — The Army will soon switch to the metric measurement system to establish a common unit in operations with NATO and other Allied Nations.

Nuclear damage radius, air and road distances and mine fields depths are among the areas that will now use the metric measure.

Conversion of meters to inches amounts to approximately 39 inches or 3.28 feet per meter. Thus, 100 meters is equal to about 328 feet.

Civil War Observation Can Prove Educational

Why refight the Civil War? some people ask. After a century has healed old wounds, why look back to four years of national agony? Far better to forget the most tragic chapter in American history and congratulate ourselves that such a conflict could never happen again.

This view is persuasive only if plans for the Civil War Centennial Commemorations which were launched this year conceived of the observance as a sort of romantic military rodeo. But their purpose is quite different.

"We do not want simply to string together a series of holidays, reviving here the exultation of victory and there the sadness of defeat," says the Centennial Commission. "Rather, the Centennial must give us a new understanding of the way in which Americans built from sacrifice and suffering an enduring nation and a lasting peace."

In this objective there is profound value. To look back with a century's perspective and study the Civil War as the first truly modern war, an epic test of the American character, can be not only educational but inspiring. The great internecine struggle has been so larded over with phony heroics and sentimental myths that it is time to dispell them and see events as they really happened.

The Armed Forces will play an important part in many of the activities contemplated by the Centennial Commission, furnishing bands, troops and exhibits for ceremonies scheduled to run into 1965. As we participate, our comprehension of the Civil War is certain to broaden and deepen as well. "The Centennial observance," says the Commission, "must be a new study of American patriotism — a study which should give us a deeper understanding of the immense reserves of bravery, of sacrifice and of idealism which lie in the American character."

Chaplain's Corner

By Chaplain (Major) Clement P. J. Kreg

Johnny and Mary are married. Johnny, who is nineteen years old is a private in the Army. Mary, his wife, is sixteen years old. She left home to marry him. They are married but a few months and they are madly in love.

They live presently in a fifty dollar a month apartment in Columbus. Their furniture was bought on time payments amounting to thirty eight dollars per month. They bought only the furniture. Just before they got married they bought an engagement ring, a wedding ring, and a wrist-watch for each other as wedding presents. All this costs them twenty dollars a month for a year. Their phone bill, gas bill, and electric bill find them about twelve dollars each month.

Their second hand auto, which they look upon as necessary transportation to get Johnny to and from work, takes twenty-five dollars gasoline each month besides another thirty-three dollars a month in payment on a loan.

Since they are responsible for each other, they decided to take out two small life insurance policies that cost them another eight dollars each month.

All together they owe $186 on the first of each month for at least a year. Between them they received from the United States Government and the Army $91.20 plus $45.80 plus $25.00. All this equals $170.10 each month. Hence, they are short $15.90.

Where they get the money to pay for food, soap, toothpaste, shoes, shoe - polish, laundry, drycleaning, repair and replacement of socks, suits, dresses, underthings, bed sheets, pillow-cases, etc is a mystery.

Johnny tells Mary, "I love you." Mary whispers to Johnny, "I love you too." This is how they live. After a few months of married life they are ideally happy. Each first of the month they renew their love and affection.

This is the miracle of the modern day. They feel sure this is why God made them. God performs miracles. Why can't they?

The Judge Says . . .

"Respect for the law is the key to preserving our American heritage of freedom and human dignity — a heritage that has showered more blessings and advantages upon more people than any other system of government in world history." John C. Cornelius, President, American Heritage Foundation.

May 1, 1961, marks the celebration of Law Day USA. This day has been set aside by the President to encourage us to reflect upon the great heritage of individual liberty under law that we enjoy as American citizens.

Law Day USA is a time for giving thought to the blessings that flow from the Constitution and Bill of Rights — for understanding the meaning of the rule of law. To that end thousands of programs are held throughout the nation on and near May 1 in schools, churches, courthouses and before organizations of all kinds.

Three Objectives

The objectives of Law Day, first proclaimed in 1958 by the President, are: to foster deeper respect for law by teaching how laws serve all citizens; to encourage responsible citizenship by demonstrating that individual rights and freedoms involve individual obligations; and to promote national strength and unity by reaffirming faith in the "rule of law", as the foundation stone of American life and government and as an example to the world of what reliance upon the rule of law can mean to peoples of all nations.

Recognize Rights

In observing Law Day, it is of great importance that we recognize our rights, under law as American citizens. Among them is the right to live where we please, to worship as we choose, to vote secretly and as our conscience dictates, to a fair and speedy trial, and to manage our own affairs.

These rights are fundamental in the American system and all too often are taken for granted by many of us for this very reason. On May 1, the people living under communist domination will parade in spectacular fashion before their self - perpetuating dictators whose words are the law of their land. Our celebration will commemorate quite a different way of life.

Based on Dignity

Our law is born, developed, and enforced by the people themselves. Opposed to our tradition of law and justice is the powerful Communist ideology that has only contempt for justice and substitutes for the law the will of a handful of dictators.

Since our law is based upon the dignity of man, justice for the individual, and freedom for all, it is imperative that all people affected by our system have an understanding of the concept of our law and the function of our courts. Our legal system should never be taken for granted.

J. Edgar Hoover has said, "If this nation is to remain strong, able to resist the spreading tentacles of Communism, Americans must do more than give lip service to its laws — they must be the conscience of each citizen in his day-to-day life."

The Surgeon Says

Heart Disease Number 1 Killer

By Major Doris V. Matthias, ANC

Of all diseases, heart disease is this nation's number one killer. Until heart disease strikes, few people give thought to the heart; its action, its function and its workload.

The heart is a hollow muscle located in the front and center of the chest between the lungs, with a large part of it lying directly behind the sternum. It is about the size of a closed fist and closely resembles a strawberry in shape. The heart is the muscle pump which propels the blood through a closed circuit of blood vessels.

The normal heart rate is from 70 to 80 beats per minute. This varies with age, weight, sex, the amount of exercise and the temperature of the body. In 24 hours the heart beats approximately 100,800 times and receives and pumps out again some 10,000 quarts of blood. This action expends enough energy to raise a 150 pound man to the height of the Empire State Building. This is a normal workload, not confined to an eight hour day.

As with any mechanism, the heart is subject to breakdown. Within the family of heart disease, there are many types of breakdowns. Perhaps the most alarming is commonly referred to as a "heart attack."This too is a general term denoting a type of heart disease with variation in the degree of damage to the heart muscle and the area of the heart involved.

Care is Vital

Of great importance is the care of the patient in the critical period immediately following a "heart attack." Because of the variation in the type and degree of heart damage, the medical care is tailored to meet the needs of the individual patient.

Other aspects of care may be considered to be universal in the care of the "heart" patient. Such aspects would include limitation of activity, freedom from anxiety, and elimination of excitement in this critical period.

Because heart action is a continuous function, every effort must be made to limit that work to a minimum. This is accomplished by complete bedrest. A body at rest requires less heart action, fewer heart beats per minute than an active body. Any activity will accelerate the heart beat and increase the danger of extending the damage of an already damaged heart.

Minimal self-care activities can usually be resumed after 72 hours, as determined by the doctor. In the period following a heart attack, such activity can include walking, sitting up in bed, dressing or undressing one's self, feeding one's self, shaving and bathing one's self. Even though the patient may no longer experience severe pain or discomfort, these activities are best accomplished with assistance.

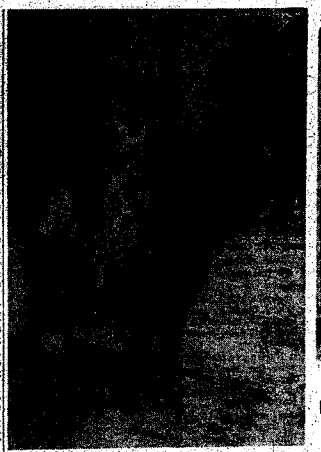
Often Affects Young

Heart disease all too frequently affects the comparatively young man who leads an active life. He is somewhat chagrined to suddenly find himself being confined to bed, being fed, shaved and bathed and being forced to call for assistance to meet the normal demands of the body.

He lacks understanding of the disease and the reasons for this enforced dependence. This need must be met by the medical team responsible for his care. Insight and understanding will aid him to learn to be inactive and accept the care that he requires at this time to aid him in recovery.

Anxiety and fear can accelerate the heart beat and place an added strain on a damaged heart. An individual inevitably experiences a certain amount of apprehension when he feels that he has suffered a heart attack. With only one heart, no replacement and no shutdown for repairs, how can it be otherwise?

He requires reassurance and calm, competent medical care to allay this apprehension. Other sources of worry and anxiety should be eased or eliminated. Peace of mind will do much to aid the patient to recovery.



Boss Can Help

The active young man who has suffered a heart attack quite frequently holds a responsible position of employment. The heart attack, being the sly attacker that it is, has not allowed him to foresee the need of a replacement for this enforced absence. This may cause him concern, and no doubt causes the employer some concern as well.

The employer can do much to relieve the patient's anxiety. To bring the patient's job to his bedside shows little concern for the welfare of the patient.

Again the patient requires reassurance that his job is secure. The patient's welfare should take precedence over the loose ends of business, which can be tied up later as the patient's condition warrants.

Perhaps the patient is also worried about family problems, or financial problems. These worries can be eased by friends or welfare agencies. Perhaps the underlying fear, though not voiced, is a fear of death. Of immeasurable value is aiding to establish peace of mind is the Chaplain.

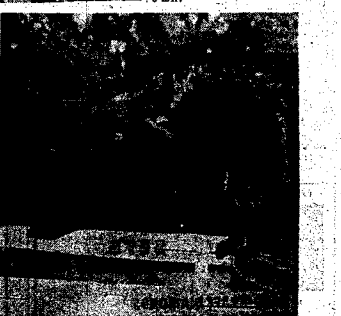
Initiation Cut in Half

Fort Benning Hunt Club Seeks New Memberships

The Fort Benning Hunt Club, with over 65 privately owned horses and nearly 15 club owned mounts, has cut initiation fees in half to emphasize a new membership drive now underway.



The Hunt Club is the sponsor of many activities, among value in aiding to establish sions over the 30 miles of bridle paths criss-crossing the Fort Benning Reservation and horsemanship and horsemastership contests sponsored by the club.

The Hunt Club is also on hand in time of an emergency. During the recent floods the club members were called upon and participated in a cattle drive that saved hundreds of head of beef stock. Over 675 head of cattle were rounded up and driven to the club corrals, where they were kept for ten days until the flood waters receded.

Under the new revitalization program the Hunt Club is planning the purchase of more horses that would be gentle enough for youngsters and teenagers.

Further information may be obtained by calling Lt. Col. Chester Davis at 5-1612 or 5-4347.

At 'April in Paris' Meet

Mrs. Sterner Elected Woman's Club President

Two hundred and twenty five ladies attended the Women's Club "April in Paris" luncheon and election recently at the Supper Club. Red and white checkered tablecloths brightened the tables on the club's sunny patio where luncheon was served.

Miniature flower carts, bright balloons, and a simulated "arc de triumphe" completed the decorations directed by Mrs. Douglass Niles.

Mrs. James Grimes was commentator for the several style shows, ranging from the luncheon to the sophisticated evening dress in the "April in Paris" theme. "What well-dressed left bank Parisians are wearing." Homemade outfits, complements of the tailoring classes, were modeled by the ladies who made them.

Lastly, the Woman's Club modeling school, taught by Ann Roberts, treated the ladies to a full-fashioned style show sponsored by Kirven's, the Misses Paul Hiatt, Davey Stanley, Joseph McCormick, James Higgins, Ruddie Irizarry, Samuel Koster, and Jim Burden who also towed a white poodle on lease.

Mrs. Bernard Teeters, outgoing president, introduced the nominated ladies, and the "raison d'etre" of the luncheon was climaxed after the counting of the ballots.

New officers realized for the forthcoming year are: Mrs. Cyril D. Sterner, president; Mrs. Bruxton E. Small, 1st vice president; Mrs. Byrd Sergent, 2nd vice president; Mrs. Charles J. Benge, treasurer; Mrs. Joseph B. Starker, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Raymond T. Caraballo, recording secretary; Mrs. William F. Dellinger, custodian, and Mrs. Dion Johnson, parliamentarian.

There will be an installation breakfast May 10 for these new officials. All Woman's Club members are invited to attend this breakfast.

Guests to the luncheon were the Mesdames Robert McGraw, Curtis F. Livingston, John B. Wine, Arnold Dryer Jr., and James Meiish all from the 2nd Club. Mrs. John Popik, president of the ladies "Big Indian head" and Mrs. Floyd Hightower, president of the NCO Wives Club were also special guests.

Joan Johnson on Etiquette

The Easter holidays found many families dining out. The new supper club has attracted many officers and their ladies. My husband and I were among those enjoying such a meal. As I watched those 'round me, several points of etiquette came to mind. I decided to check my favorite authority, Amy Vanderbilt, on a few of them.

(1) What do you do with the wrapper on a lump of sugar? Do you put it on the tablecloth, in the saucer of your cup, or in the ash tray? I would put it on the tablecloth and Amy agrees. Putting it in the ash tray might start a fire and to put in in the saucer could fill my cup when I try to set it down. If I leave it on the tablecloth the waiter will clear it off with the crumbs.

(2) What is the best way to dispose of a tea bag on a string served in a cup of tea? Remove the bag by the string with the fingers, let it drain for a minute and place it in the saucer or on a butter plate if one is available.

(3) What's the proper way to get the attention of a waiter or waitress in a restaurant? Amy says the diner should lift his hand, or one finger, in a summoning gesture. If this fails call as quietly as possible, "Waiter!," or "Waitress," (not "Miss!"). Glass rapping, a European expedient, should be resorted to only in desperation. You may also ask another waiter or waitress to fetch yours. A good waiter will be attentive to your needs at all times.

It has been said that man can't keep a secret. To keep a secret means to preserve a secret. To preserve means to perform. If I may stretch a point, perform, as a second form is a form preserved. In conclusion, most women will share a secret lest it become bitter. In ceramics there are many secrets. Trade secrets: methods of firing and mixing. The women of the ceramics workshop know these secrets, and they will be sharing their knowledge with you at the art show Sunday, April 30 at the Benning Country Club. It will be open to the public from 2 to 5 p.m.

Saturday, April 29, the judges will be busy judging oils and watercolors, ceramics, and floral arrangements. Then they will relax with a luncheon.

So when you go to see this Woman's Club function Sunday, all the ribbons will have been awarded. You can stare and appreciate, muse and ponder, wonder and wish you could go home and do something creative too! You may also partake in the teatime planned for the Sunday event.

Mr. Louis Cheney, of Auburn University, will judge the adult art and children's art. Mrs. J. Lee Rentz of Valdosta, Georgia, and a member of the Georgia Ceramic Association will judge ceramics. Mrs. Robert Lewis, Jr. will judge the floral arrangements. This listing is incomplete so far, but more information will be available later.

Tailoring classes begin Tuesday, April 18, at 7:30 p.m. at the Woman's Club building.

An installation breakfast for the new club officers will take place Wednesday, May 10. All members are invited to this breakfast.

1st Infantry Brigade Holds Annual Formal

The main ballroom of the Main Officers Open Mess was the scene last Friday of the 1961 1st Infantry Brigade formal. Amid the gala decorations for the occasion, the officers and ladies of the brigade gathered, resplendent in their dress uniforms and formal gowns.

The evening meal was preceded by a receiving line at which the old and new members of the brigade had ample opportunity to become better acquainted. Greeting the guests in the receiving line were Col. Charles T. Horner Jr., brigade commander, and Mrs. Horner; Lt. Col. Charles T. Cyprino, executive officer; Col. Samuel W. Koster, commander, 1st Battle Group, 29th Infantry, and Mrs. Koster; Lt. Col. Norris E. Smith Jr., commander, 1st Armored Rifle Battalion, 69th Infantry, and Mrs. Smith; Lt. Col. Edgar M. Sinclair, commander, 2nd Howitzer Battalion, 30th Artillery, and Mrs. Sinclair.

Chairman for the affair was Major John F. Georger.

Others in the committee whose time planning helped to make the ball and evening memorable were Capt. Bruce M. Brand, and 1st Lt. Juan J. R. Martinez.

Included in the attractions was the "dinner call" given by the brigade Drum and Bugle Corps.

During the entertainment following dinner, the brigadeers and their ladies received a preview of the Third Army Entertainment Contest in the person of Pfc David R. Cesnyl, a fine vocalist, and Pvt. Ted Pugh, whose novel interpretation of Army life brought "tears" of laughter to the audience.

Also lending his voice to the entertainment was 2nd Lt. Ronald L. Weimer, who served as master of ceremonies. The finale was a spectacular presentation of close order drill by the brigade Drill Team, performed with fixed bayonets.

A pleasant wind-up to an evening filled with merriment was provided by the music of the Jack and Merle Combo, as dancing prevailed into the evening. Approximately 300 brigadeers and their guests attended the 1961 formal.

Just What is Glamour?

The gleam of stainless steel has it — and it shows up everywhere. Gems and precious metals have it in a different way. All minks have it for all women, and some women have it for all men. But almost every woman can endow herself and her home with that elusive sparkle we call glamour.

It's not just good looks, though that's certainly a large part of the glimmer of glamour. Nor is it merely the connotation of wealth and luxury; stainless steel, though it has the trim modern sleekness customarily found in moneyed homes, is actually one of the most economical materials used for flatware and tableware. And who hasn't known women who managed to look out-of-this-world on a very down-to-earth clothing budget?

"Magic; a spell of charm" is the sober dictionary's definition of glamour. Scholars trace the word back to the old Scottish glamer and the still older English gramarye — both meaning magic. In those good old days a girl could buy her glamer from the local witch in the form of powered mandrake root mixed with various other herbs (you just add water) to form instant love potion.

A more helpful definition is offered by Gloria Wright, a girl eminently qualified to recognize glamour when she sees it. Moving around the country demonstrating housewares to TV audiences, department store customers and women's groups, she meets literally hundreds of women every week. Says Miss Wright: "Glamour in a woman is flair — and flair can be cultivated. The glamorous woman has learned how to present herself. She's also learned to display her home to best advantage—the right setting is important for any gem. Because this knowledge has given her self-confidence, she projects that easy, effortless quality essential to true glamour."

Here are Miss Wright's suggestions for giving both the homemaker and her home an aura of glamour.

FASHIONS IN LIVING

A woman's glamour begins with her home. Sound odd? It isn't, really. That's where she spends most of her time, and the way her time is spent — whether her household tasks are done haphazardly or with scheduled efficiency, whether or not she succeeds in creating a decor that's eye-pleasing and comfortable for both family and guests — is bound to affect the way she looks and acts. But with just a little intelligent effort, any woman can sparkle in the perfect setting.

Space — make more of it! Skillful placement of chairs can often make one lamp and end table do the work of two. Never kitty-corner chairs or sofas — it's wasteful of floor space. You can buy bookcases that are hung from a wall, consuming no floor space at all!

STYLING — make the most of lines and textures. Polish wooden surfaces to a high sheen; set them off with the gleam of stainless steel ashtrays, candy dishes, fruit bowls. With more floor space, you can really show off the lines, period or modern, of your favorite piece of furniture.

COMFORT — at least one man-sized chair and ashtray are musts for the single girl who'd like to make eligible callers feel at home. If married, be sure there's at least one corner of the house where hubby can stow ashes and newspapers to his heart's content. The glamorous woman flatters a man's masculinity as much in the way she arranges her home as in the way she does her hair.

LIGHTING — you should be able to control it, key it to your family's various moods and activities. You can buy a dimming switch that will adjust room lighting to any level desired, from soft lights and music to the brightest "task light."

ACCOUSTICS — you and your home should both possess quiet charm. Deep-piled rugs with rubber goods underneath, floor to ceiling window drapes and paintings along a stretch of wall not only add touches of gracious luxury, but help soak up sound as well. If floors don't muffle noise adequately, inexpensive acoustical ceiling tiles in a variety of handsome designs will absorb up to 85 per cent of the sound that strikes them.

ENTERTAINING — keep it simple. Three or four kinds of canapes and one good cheese dip at a buffet are ample; one showy dish (it can be either main course or dessert) set off by plain, old-reliable fare, is enough of a triumph for any dinner hostess. Use casserole dishes suitable for both cooking and serving; a gleaming stainless steel serving tray will impress your guests and save you many hectic trips to and from the kitchen. At least two weeks before a party, draw up a day-by-day list of advance preparations you can make.

GROOMING

If you'd be glamorous, your grooming should create one dominant effect: sleekness. Make-up and hairdo; softly flattering, dramatic but not theatrical for The Big Evening and always flawlessly neat. Clothing; simple in line and perfect in fit. Jewelry; bold or delicate as your preference dictates, but sparse.

EXPERIMENT till you find your look — and don't be scared by fashion dogma. The latest thing is for Hollywood stars to accent the roundness or squareness of their faces with make-up instead of trying to copy the perfect oval formerly thought to be the ideal of beauty. One look that's striking on all women: matching your blouse, sweater or neckerchief as closely as possible to your hair color.

Boost morale and be prepared for un-expected guests by wearing pretty, crisp housedresses and fresh lipstick even when you do the grubbiest chores. Take frequent "coffee breaks" from housework to comb hair and freshen lipstick.

Don't wear glamour at night while he's home; put your hair up while doing your daily chores and hide the pins with a gay bandanna.

Dress the way he likes you to. Glamour, like the beauty that may not be a part of it, is largely in the eye of the beholder.

When you entertain at home, you'll be your gracious self in medium-height heels, a dress and hairdo simple enough so that you can forget all about your own appearance and concentrate on your guests.

Sound easy? It is. Make your home gracious and spacious, groom yourself simply and adopt a softly feminine manner — and the next time you hear someone say, "My, isn't she glamorous!" they just may be talking about you.

SEATO Is an Important Factor in the Struggle With Communism

An historic conference took place at Manila in the Philippines in September 1954. There, representatives of eight nations met to approve and sign the South-East Asia Collective Defense Treaty. The Conference marked the formation of SEATO, the South-East Asia Treaty Organization.

Since that date the member nations of SEATO have worked together to maintain conditions of security necessary to peaceful progress and development. This work has been successful despite great distances and many political, social and economic differences between the members — Australia, France, New Zealand, Pakistan, the Philippines, Thailand, the United Kingdom and the United States.

The peoples of South-East Asia have been constantly subjected to pressure, and in some cases open conflict, inspired and directed from outside.

SEATO stands against this pressure as a collective security alliance. Its aims are freedom and democracy through mutual cooperation.

SEATO's chief permanent official is the secretary general, who is assisted by a deputy. Under the highest official come the various offices and committees, both civil and military.

The Council of Foreign Ministers is the actual governing body. It meets yearly, while the Permanent Working Group meets daily, under the chairmanship of the deputy secretary general, to study views and proposals of the member governments.

The military counterparts of the Council Representatives are the Military Advisers, made up of one high ranking officer from each member. One of the main tasks of the Military Planning Office is the standardization of procedures among the armed forces of the member nations.

The planning office has carried out military exercises of three general types: sea and air force maneuvers, air-supported ground units, and land operations supported by naval forces. SEATO exercises to date include Albatross, Sealink, Up and Teamwork II, Phiblink, Air Progress, Saddle.

SEATO's goal as a defensive alliance provides a force against outside intervention through proper coordination, better equipment and singleness of purpose among its members' armed forces.

Post Woman's Club to Present Four $250 Scholastic Awards

The Woman's Club of Fort Benning will present scholastic awards of $250 each to four outstanding seniors of the high school graduating classes of 1961 in the Columbus — Phenix City area, who are dependents of military personnel.

The father of the applicant must expect to be on extended duty with the Armed Forces on May 31, 1961.

Primary consideration will be given to those students who have high scholastic ratings and have shown outstanding qualities of citizenship. The decisions of a board chosen by members of the Woman's Club will be final.

Purpose of the scholastic award is to further the education of individuals selected. Monetary awards will be forwarded directly to the institution selected at the time of the student's enrollment. If for any reason the winner of the award is unable to attend the 1961 fall session of the institution, the board, after consideration of all the circumstances, will determine whether the grant will be extended or awarded to the alternate student.

The scholastic award is intended for boys and girls who will register and attend a school beyond the high school level. Excluded from this will be service academies and other similar institutions which educate without expense to the students.

Students who are eligible for and interested in the scholastic awards may obtain application from the principal's office. Applications must be returned to the principal's office by April 20, 1961.

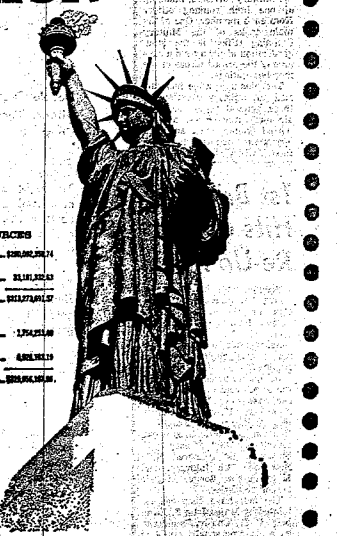
President Takes Post With USO

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — Both President and Mrs. Kennedy will be officially supporting service morale activities as conducted by the United Service Organizations, Inc., the USO's National Chairman, Harvey S. Firestone Jr., has announced.

The President, in a letter to Mr. Firestone accepting the Honorary Chairmanship of the USO, told him:



"I know the real services which the USO provides in meeting the social, educational, welfare, entertainment and spiritual needs of the members of our Armed Forces throughout the world. I pledge my full personal encouragement and help in its work in this country and abroad."

Meantime, Mrs. Kennedy became Honorary Chairman of the Metropolitan Washington USO. It maintains the Lafayette Square USO in the Belasco Theater building close by the White House.

Government Rights Caused Civil War

The basic issue and main cause of the Civil War was Civil Rights. The war was fought principally to settle the basic issue of whether or not the Federal Government had the right to compel a state to remain in the Union. In most cases the seceded states issued statements declaring that acts sponsored by anti-slavery forces violated the "constitutional compact" and thereby released the slave states from their obligations, and asserted the right of self-determination. These official statements were, in effect, declarations of independence.

Division Marksmen Capture Third Army Rifle-Pistol Meet

Second Infantry Division marksmen Wednesday won their second major victory in the Third United States Army Rifle and Pistol Championships.

The six-man rifle team, coached by Master Sergeant Clifford Alexander, posted a total score of 1418-86V to win the Third Army commander's 1961 Rifle Team championship.

The winning score of 1418-86V, compared to the match record of 1145-131V, reflects the effects of a wind officially recorded at 40 knots, which roared across the range.

Tuesday, the Division's four-man pistol team, coached by Sergeant First Class William V. Mosely, broke the record in winning the Third Army commander's Service Pistol Team Match. In this, the first major victory for the Indianhead marksmen in the match, the pistoleers scored 1114-26X. The previous record, set by the 82nd Airborne in 1958, was 1109-31X.

Yesterday afternoon, Lieutenant General Paul D. Adams, Third Army Commanding General, attended the closing ceremonies of the matches, and presented awards to the winning marksmen.

Red Cross Bloodmobile Comes to Div Next Week

By Div PIO

Men of the "Indianhead" Division will roll up their sleeves Thursday and Friday in an effort to help the Division realize a goal of 500 pints of blood during the Red Cross Bloodmobile's visit.

The Bloodmobile will be located at Building 9012, in the area of the 87th Infantry's Company D, Kelley Hill.

Hours of operation will be from 8:30 a.m. until 3 p.m.

Officials hope that Division personnel will again surpass the goal of 500 pints on this bi-monthly visit. More than 200 pints above the goal was collected on the Bloodmobile's last visit.

Officials point out that anyone between 18 and 59 who is in good health and weighs 110 pounds or more may contribute. One pint may be donated each eight weeks, but not more than five times in any year.

Four people need blood desperately every minute of the day, officials say. Martin Army Hospital utilizes an average of 125-150 pints of blood per month.

The American National Red Cross Bloodmobile is sponsored by the 2nd Division every other month.

Growth Marks AUSA History

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second of a series of stories on the Association of the United States Army written in conjunction with the Columbus — Phenix City — Fort Benning Chapter's membership drive which ends May 10.

The Association of the United States Army was formed by merging the associations of two military branches in August 1950. These two were the United States Infantry Association, formed in 1892, and the United States Field Artillery Association, organized in 1907.

The AUSA was further augmented and strengthened January 1, 1955 when the United States Antiaircraft Association joined the new group.

It was recognized that in order for the AUSA to become a potent instrument in behalf of the Army as a vital part of our national defense, the activities of the Association would have to be explained and many new ventures would have to be undertaken.

To promote this expansion and these new ventures, the Association, by vote of the 1956

Fixed Bayonet Replaces Swords of Samoan Dancer

By 9th Inf PIO

Twirling two broad-edged swords high in the air, Recruit Pila Patu swirls to the conclusion of one of his native Samoan specialty dances.

Assigned to the 9th Infantry's Company D in Advanced Individual Training, Patu hails from the island of Tutulia in American Samoa, located 2,300 miles southwest of Hawaii in Central South Pacific.

Of Polynesian extraction, Patu has been in the professional entertainment business for four years. Officially billed as "A Samoan Native Hula Dancer", he specializes in song and dance routines from his native land.

Wearing his native costume of a loin cloth, and playing a ukulele, Patu has been billed in many clubs and night spots in western United States. He has appeared in Las Vegas, Nevada, at The Dunes, the Wagon Wheel, and the Holiday Hotel. Patu also has been featured at the Nebraska State Fair in Lincoln, using the swords to perform the Samoan war dance.

Major National Guard and Reserve unit staffs from the seven Southeastern states will join active Third Army staff units for the tactical command-post type exercise. The U.S. Air Force also will participate with the Army components in the exercise, thus assuring maximum realism in staff play.

Third Army officials emphasize that the exercise play is not based on any existing war plans.

Missiles, Gas

Atomic, missile, electronic and gas warfare principles will be used, and combat intelligence, civil affairs operations, and logistical support will be practiced. In addition, Army aviation will be prominently displayed.

Supervisory control of "Lucky Foxtrot" will be maintained by the exercise controllers. Participating commanders and staffs will have a free hand in meeting and dealing with combat problems during the maneuver play.

Altogether, commanders and staffs of 53 headquarters, ranging in size from a Field Army down to combat and support units will take part in the Fort Gordon exercise.

Dancer

Jayne Mansfield as his top show business thrill. The pair performed an impromptu dance at The Dunes in Las Vegas last year. Patu also was a guest at a party for actress Elizabeth Taylor and her singer-husband Eddie Fisher while appearing in Las Vegas. Here he performed his native dance routines by request of the other guests.

Patu includes in his list of credits a short movie made in Hollywood, California. He also "hit the boards" for a small role in the hit musical, "South Pacific."

Currently receiving instruction in advanced Infantry training for MOS (Military Occupational Specialty) 111, Patu plans to return to show business after his military obligations are completed in early 1963.

AUSA

annual meeting, was reorganized and new bylaws were drawn up.

One of the salient features of the reorganization was the removal of all active duty personnel from the AUSA's governing body so that the greatly broadened activities of the Association could be carried out without bringing active duty personnel in conflict with the officials of the government.

Since its reorganization in 1956, the Association has grown to approximately 60,000 members.

It has organized over 100 chapters and some 57 Reserve Officers Training Corps companies.

The Association of the United States Army has also instituted an industrial membership program which, in interest of national defense and fostering a Modern Army, has attracted 66 of the largest corporations in the country.

The editorial of the AUSA's magazine, ARMY, has been increased and the efforts of the Association to inform the Congress, the press and the general public of the basic factors required for a strong Army as part of our national defense have been tremendously accelerated.

The Association of the United States Army is a non-profit, educational association organized under the laws of the District of Columbia. In the words of the Association's governing body, in a statement adopted December 14, 1951:

"The Association of the United States Army shall be an organization wherein all who are in accord with its objectives may join in the exchange of views and information on military matters, and in fostering, supporting, and advocating the legitimate and proper role of the Army of the United States and of all its elements, branches, and components in providing for and insuring the Nation's military security."

23rd Recruit No Stranger To Jumping

Floridian Lists 251 Sky Dives Since Age of 16

At least one of the 23rd Infantry's airborne volunteers will have some prior experience behind him when he gets to jump school.

Recruit Edward L. Chaney, of Company B, is a sky diver with 251 jumps behind him. He says that his only regret is that, although he has jumped for 15 years, his "advanced" age of 31 will not leave him enough time to reach his goal of 1,000 jumps.

Chaney, who hails from Tampa, Florida, made his first jump when he was 16. "Some of the fellows at the local airport were jumping on weekends at fairs and such, and they let me have a try at it," he said. "I got scared and almost didn't go out the door, but my cousin was with me and I knew if I didn't he'd never let me live it down."

Both he and his cousin jumped, he said, but Chaney continued while his cousin married and was grounded by his wife.

Air Force

Sport jumping has not been Chaney's only brush with the silk.

While serving with the Air Force during the Korean conflict he was a member of an Air-Sea rescue unit that specialized in survival. When a pilot was downed on a remote island behind enemy lines, Chaney jumped in and helped him survive until they could be evacuated. He made 12 such leaps before 1953 when he left the service after four years.

Before returning to Tampa in 1959 Chaney went to Cincinnati, Ohio, where he formed the Cincinnati Parachute Jumping Association, the first sport jumping club in Ohio, according to the 23rd Infantry Recruit.

Students

Chaney feels that the present popularity of sky diving is due to exservicemen and, surprisingly enough, college students. Just as last year's fad for the collegians was stuffing 20 or so people in a telephone booth, this year it's sports jumping. He says that he doesn't think the fad will last long among the students, but their participation is giving the sport a shot in the arm for popularity.

Chaney entered the Army early this year and took basic training with the 57th Artillery in Sand Hill. He says he plans to go "all the way" this time and make the Army his career, with an immediate objective of earning the coveted jump wings.

WMAH'S VOICE OF COUNTRY MUSIC
Robert Winegar Cues His Next Platter

He's Mr. Country Music at MAH

By 122nd Signal Bn PIO

Mixing the old, old favorites with the "new" sound of country music, Private First Class Robert A. Winegar spins his platters over Martin Army Hospital's WMAH at 9 a.m. each Tuesday and Thursday.

His normal duties are as an aircraft navigational equipment repairman for the Division's 122nd Signal Battalion.

But — not being content to work only as a radio repairman — Private Winegar began a correspondence course to become a disc jockey.

Winegar at first worked around Martin Army Hospital's own patient-beamed radio station during his off-duty hours. Then came an offer by Murray Pendleton, station manager, for a show of his own — an hour's program of country music twice weekly.

Winegar comes by his love of country music quite naturally. He's a native of Roanoke, Virginia, which claims several country and western-type stars as native sons.

A musician as well as DJ, this young father of two daughters placed second in the Air Force European Talent Contest as a member of an instrumental combo while serving in the Air Force. He also has auditioned for stars Wilma Lee and Stoney Cooper and the Clinch Mountain Clan of the Grand Ole Opry.

NCO Throttles 3-Car Train Thru Enemy Fire in Korea

By 9th Inf. PIO

Recently promoted to first sergeant (E-8), Elmo Smallwood of the 9th Infantry's Company B holds an Oak Leaf Cluster to his Bronze Star for his daring exploits during the Korean War.

A veteran of three South Pacific battles in World War II, Smallwood manned the controls of a South Korean train for the first time in his life in July 1950 to speed five wounded buddies to safety through a heavy enemy barrage.

Smallwood was in charge of a three-car Quartermaster rescue train running into embattled Taejon. He had to run it himself because the South Korean fireman had been killed and the engineer wounded.

Old "219" nosed into the Taejon trainyard at 4:30 p.m. to pick up the wounded of the 34th Infantry Regiment, with which Smallwood fought throughout World War II. The engineer saw that the track was ripped up 100 yards ahead and started the train running back.

"Then all hell broke loose," Smallwood relates. "The North Koreans had been lying in ambush on both sides of the track and opened up with two machine guns, mortars, and about 10 rifles."

Smallwood, who had been lying on top of the train, climbed into the engine cab. He discovered the fireman riddled with bullets that had pierced a three-inch steel guard and gone out the other side. The fireman's body was leaning against the blistering-hot firebox and was burning. The engineer had been critically wounded.

Smallwood, who rates in the lightweight class, pulled the dead fireman aside and grabbed the throttle. It was the first time he had run a train, but there was no one else to do it. To make matters worse the train's caliber .50 machine gun atop the cars were jammed.

The noncom pushed and pulled levers until the train began travelling in reverse. He headed for a tunnel with mortar shells dropping right behind him. With machine guns firing and small arms bullets whistling, Smallwood drove old "219" through the tunnel and south to safety.

"I didn't know whether or not we could take the curves at the speed we were going, but I didn't slow down for five miles," he recalls.

Smallwood, who earned the Bronze Star and three battle citations for fighting in New Guinea and the Philippines, took the train with the steam blowing from ruptured pipes, to within three miles of Okchan, a town 12 miles south of Taejon.

There at Okchan old "219" died of its many wounds. Its water box was punctured and the boiler resembled a sieve, but Smallwood had made it.

For his daring exploits in running the rescue train through the enemy, he received the Oak Leaf Cluster to his Bronze Star. The first sergeant entered the Army in 1941, three months before the United States Pacific Fleet was attacked at Pearl Harbor, Hawaii.

Mortar Men Perform For USAIC Committee

By 1st Inf. PIO

The heavy mortar platoon of Combat Support Company 1st Infantry fired a 120-round demonstrational exercise at Coolidge Range recently at the request of the newly-staffed Heavy Mortar Committee of USAIC.

The purpose of the demonstration was to display a TO and E 4.2 mortar platoon in action to the committee. The platoon, commanded by 1st Lt. Duane Hicks, has the distinction of being the only mortar platoon to receive its training from the Mortar Committee.

The 4.2 heavy mortar was formerly an artillery weapon until it was assigned to the Infantry in 1955. The mortar platoon has about 85 men at full strength, comprised of enlisted men and officers.

It has six mortars divided equally into two firing sections — red and blue. Other sections include: survey, fire direction center, forward observer, counter-fire, wire and liaison section.

Scores Heavy

The platoon scored heavily on its Army Training Test with a 91.4 average. Its five man survey section, headed by Sergeant Jimmie D. Shoemaker made a perfect score on the test. The platoon's accuracy on the ATT was needle-sharp, as some rounds were direct hits on an ice box several hundred yards away.

The forward observer for the exercise was Lieutenant James R. Myers, who relayed ranges and adjustments to the fire direction center. FDC computed firing data from this information and radioed the firing sections their missions.

Captain Everett R. Murray of the Mortar Committee was controller for the exercise. The Mortar Committee is soon to begin instructing new officer classes at USAIC in the Davey Crockett and heavy mortar.

Trainee's Civilian Job: Helping Design Cadillacs

By 57th Inf PIO

A trainee in the 57th Infantry has more than a routine interest in the instrument panel of the new Cadillac.

He helped design it.

Recruit Patrick W. Furey was a designer at the Cadillac Studios in General Motors' styling section before answering the Army's call. Now undergoing training with the 57th's Company B, the New York native speaks with knowledge of the ways of Detroit when talking about cars and styling.

When he left Detroit, Furey, and four other designers, were working on the '63 line. "We were responsible for the interior of all models," he said this week. "I was concerned mainly with the instrument panel."

What goes into the designing of the interior of the car advertised for its "quiet elegance"? According to Furey, who's spent three of his 24 years in the Motor City, "It's fifty percent function, twenty-five percent cost, and twenty-five percent looks."

Taking these factors into account and coming up with a workable, marketable car in the Cadillac tradition requires two years of planning. The designers at this point are free to sketch at will, with nothing but the interior dimensions and basic body style at hand. These they get from a full-scale clay model.

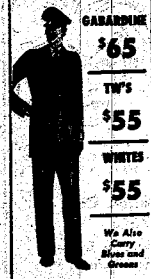
Standards

Out of their ideas, one is chosen. Whichever design is selected must meet a variety of standards such as safety, cost and popular tastes. Occasionally, this brings the designers down to the week of production. When this happens, Furey says, the designers have "flock of bulls," to keep the "look of bulk," to maintain the car's luxury appearance.

Tight-Lipped

What is the shape of the Cadillac to come? Furey is tight-lipped. "Like the Army," he says, "there is a security aspect."

But he will comment on current trends. The use of wood in instruments panels is a popular trend, but one he doesn't personally care for. He points out that the Rolls Royce has used wood on its dash; now Chrysler, Cadillac and Lincoln work it into their designs.



Furey is a native of New York.

And he drives a Corvette.

New Flag Is Born

During the battle of Bull Run (First Manassas) in 1861, the Confederate forces discovered that their "Stars and Bars" flag looked dangerously like the Stars and Stripes when no wind was blowing. The Confederate Armies thereupon adopted the famous battle flag with the cross of St. Andrews.

The Show Goes On --Despite Flat Tires

BY DIV PIO

"The Show Must Go On" . . .

The 30 members of the cast and crew of the Sand Hill Actors Guild's production, "At War with the Army," proved the old show business adage again last weekend as they overcame obstacles and inclement weather in taking the farce-comedy to Fort Rucker, Alabama.

Getting a late start, the Service Club Two actors had journeyed only 30 miles before mechanical difficulties beset their bus. With the bus unable to continue the trip, the actors made the most of their plight by rehearsing "At War" and holding impromptu singing and acting sessions.

The director of the group, Lieutenant Nelson L. Marsh of the 8th Infantry, and five members of the guild returned to Fort Benning via the property van which was accompanying the bus. The six men picked up their own private autos, after obtaining official sanction, and returned to the stranded cast.

Despite flat tire and two autos losing the way, the Fort Benning actors finally arrived at their destination — although four hours late. However, when Sunday morning dawned a heavy sandstorm followed by Alabama rains beat down on the guild members. All the problems were alleviated, though, and "At War" was presented successfully to a closing night performance Fort Rucker audience of more than 110.

Parties

Entertained royally by the Fort Rucker Center Service Club and its theatrical group, the Fort Benning men and Columbus women of the "At War" crew were treated to a party at the Center Service Club Saturday.

Following the final act of the farce, Miss Madeline Parks, director of Fort Benning Service Club Two, was presented a bouquet of roses in appreciation for bringing the play to Fort Rucker. The Fort Rucker dramatic group paid Fort Benning a visit with their "Bus Stop" production last month.

The Sand Hill Actors Guild presentation of "At War with the Army" drew more than 1,400 during its four-day Fort Benning and one-day Fort Rucker run.

Miles Home Scene Of Armor Coffee

The home of Mrs. Robert H. Miles, 3511 Meadow Drive, Columbus, was the scene of the monthly coffee for the ladies of the 2nd Medium Tank Battalion, 69th Armor, on April 5. Mrs. John C. Sims was cohostess.

A brown and yellow theme was carried out at the serving table. A centerpiece of yellow mums highlighted the brown linen tablecloth. Mrs. Harry H. Hiestand poured.

Mrs. Harold Roeder was welcomed to the group by the ladies. Farewells were said to Mrs. James A. Clifton.

Here & There

GUESTS

Lt. Col. and Mrs. Leonard L. Keene, 3rd Squadron, 7th Cavalry, entertained Easter guests. They were Mrs. Keene's mother, Mrs. Esther Crist, and her niece and nephew, Belinda and Eric Barr.

Lt. and and Mrs. R. P. Richards, Troop C, 7th Cavalry, entertained Lt. Richards' parents, Mr. and Mrs. David Richards from Indianapolis' Indiana. Mr. and Mrs. Richards were on their way home from Mexico where they celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary.

DESSERT BRIDGE

A dessert-bridge party to honor Mrs. Hortense Lambert, mother of Mrs. Larry A. Wheeler, was held at the home of Mrs. Arthur A. Tritsch, Jr., on Tuesday afternoon, April 4. Mrs. Lambert is visiting from Freemont, Nebraska. Mrs. Wheeler's husband is Lt. Larry A. Wheeler, Marksmanship Detachment, 7th Cavalry. High score for the afternoon went to Mrs. George A. Griffin, Jr.

Safety Tip

Any speed is too fast, brother, if you drive one way and look the other.

Service Club Plans Horseback Riding

A horseback riding party will be held tonight for 2nd Division men, according to Eleanor Sabota, program director of Service Club Two.

Interested riders should report at 6:30 p.m. to Service Club Two. Transportation to the Fort Benning Hunt Club will be furnished.

Enthusiasts Gather For Bridge Hand

The 87th Infantry ladies bridge group dealt these cards. For those who enjoy the challenge of finesses this could be a hand of hands. Mrs. Ernest Dameron offers the comments below. Duplicate player and bridge enthusiast here at Ft. Benning, Mrs. Dameron encouraged the bridge players of the 87th Infantry as their first lady last year.

Opening lead 7♠

South is flabbergasted to find herself playing a 3 heart contract. During the actual play of the hand she made 4 hearts thanks to her opponents. Notice how beautifully everything finesses. The lead of 7 spade by west finesses east. The lead should be the 3 of trump, hearts.

However looking at the hand north cannot stand a heart contract. There are no trump possibilities, especially after south boldly bid no trump, north's bid should be 3 no trump. South with 12 high card pts and north with 14 and they have all suits stopped twice between them is an ideal no trump. Again south plays it and all problems finesse away. West must lead, and a heart is about the only thing which will not jeopardize her other honors. South can cover all easts hearts. South can finesse away clubs leading the 9 and then the 3. The clubs set up, the Ace of spades and the Ace and king of diamonds are good. Makes 5 no trump, a game with 2 over tricks . . . by far the superior contract.

This amazing hand also makes 5 clubs by north. East leads the J of spades . . . top of sequence thru strength of board.

High score for the afternoon bridge at the home of Mrs. Alan Horwedel, from which this hand was chosen, was Mrs. Dawson Luke. Second high was Mrs. James Gritz. And an evening of bridge yielded Mrs. Horwedel first and Mrs. Donald Carlson second.

Little White House Tour Planned Sun.

Division personnel will have an opportunity Sunday to tour the Little White House at Warm Springs.

A Special Services bus will leave Service Club Two at 11:30 a.m. for the afternoon tour of the Georgia home of the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt, located some 97 miles north of Columbus.

The bus will return to the division in time for the evening meal.

The Scoreboard:

Trains' Loss an Upset?

BY CAPT. MILTON LEWIS
Division Special Services Officer

Something of a major upset occurred last week at Harmony Church Field House when Separate Battalions knocked off the vaunted Division Trains volleyball team to win the Division Championship.

The consensus throughout the Division before gametime was that Trains has a little too much class and teamwork for the sometimes brilliant but often erratic Separate Battalions team.

After a shaky start, which cost them the first game, the winners, led by the tremendous spiking of the 69th Armor's Lee, roared back to wrap it up going away.

Division Trains, showing only the loss to Separate Battalions, nailed down the runner-up spot while a surprising 23rd Infantry team captured third place by downing the 9th Infantry after the Manchus had eliminated Division Artillery in the three-way tie for third place.

Bowling Tips

Last Step In Approach Determines Accuracy

By Bob Chase

Once coordination of approach and delivery has been achieved, it is time to perfect balance. In my work with our bowling program, I stress with each bowler the absolute necessity of a straight line approach.

You must train yourself to accomplish the entire approach in a straight line and along the intended path. Balance and proper delivery depend upon it, and your ability to control the direction of the ball is much improved.

The final step of the approach must be practiced conscientiously. Without balance in this step you cannot deliver a firm, accurate ball, and balance here depends upon coordinated movement throughout the approach.

Last Step Is Critical

The final step, since it is the one off which the ball is delivered, determines the balance and power of your delivery. It should be a smooth, gliding step — a sure step. The swing of the arm is coordinated with the step and follows through in rhythm with the step.

When the foot makes contact with the floor in this final step, and the knee is flexed, allow placing the ball on the desired spot on the lane, the arm swing or follow through causes the weight of the body to slide forward on the foot.

All of us on the team use a certain amount of slide. I don't know of any top bowlers who do not allow some slide. But do not use too much, so that it is an uncontrolled, erratic flaw in your delivery. The slide allows a smooth coordination between approach and arm swing and helps eliminate any tendency toward a jerking motion in the delivery.

Must Control Angle

Any deviation from an angle other than the desired one, even though you may place the ball on the intended spot at the conclusion of the delivery, You must control the angle, which means a straight line approach.

Another ill effect resulting from other than a straight line approach is "reaching." This means allowing your arm to swing away from the body in an attempt to place the ball on the desired spot. In extreme cases the entire body may turn in an attempt to compensate for a faulty approach.

The straight line approach, the erect body position and the coordination of the arm swing will bring you to the foul line in a balanced position. The right leg is to the rear to counteract the bend of the knee to place the ball on the line.

The left arm is slightly back to counterbalance the follow through of the right hand in delivering the ball. The delivery foot is firmly planted and the eyes follow the path of the ball. There is no rush, no hurry and no feeling of forcing the ball. The smooth, coordinated delivery will insure getting maximum results.

Fort Benning Baseball Players Prepare to Open 1961 Season

By Pfc Joe Kachera

It's Fort Benning baseball time again.

With opening day just around the corner, coaches of the seven teams in the Major Unit Baseball League jockey the positions and make last minute evaluations of players to form the nucleuses of what they think will be the teams best suited for opening games.

This year's league will be closely contested with pre-season predictions showing teams comprised mostly of green and inexperienced ball players.

Defending post champion, The Student Brigade, coach Sfc Bob Kinard, said that only a few of his 1960 Infantry Center championship squad have returned this season.

The Student Brigade recently opened pre-season workouts, late because of a change in the starting date of the league.

But all the other six teams in the circuit have been practicing for some time and have a probable starting lineup.

Some Fine Talent

The 1st Armored Rifle Battalion, 58th Infantry, 1st Infantry Brigade, has some fine talent this year. In four pre-season games, the 58th Infantry defeated three of four opponents, the 1st Battle Group, 29th Infantry, 1st Infantry Brigade in two games, and the 151st Engineer Group once. The only loss was handed them by the 2nd Howitzer battalion, 10th Artillery, 1st Infantry Brigade.

The 58th Infantry is coached by Sfc James L. Gregory, who reports a little better than average performance in each of the vital statistics. Only one returnee from last years squad was on hand for tryouts.

"Defensively we look exceptionally fine and the pitching is good. So far as the hitting goes, right now it's fair but we expect it to pick up," reported Sgt. Gregory.

The 58th is the only team which reports having a professional player on its staff. According to Sgt. Gregory, the third baseman, Pvt. Robert Pazo, had experiences in the Pacific Coast league.

"But over-all we are still green and need a lot of experience," the 58th Infantry mentor added.

The Infantry Center Troop Command entry, headed by M/Sgt. George Durer, is having a rough time also in getting a team together. Two of the big worries bothering the coach are the pitching and hitting departments, which loom as the most important aspects of the game.

With only a returning nucleus of one man from last year's team, Sgt. Durer also reported that the speed was faltering on the base paths.

Five Hurlers

The 428th Medical Battalion, under the direction of Sgt. Robert F. Liebsch is starting to take shape. The coach reports a possibility of five hurlers, of whom only two are of starting assignment caliber.

Hitting is turning out to be the big problem in the 428th Medics' lineup, while speed poses no problem at all. Only three returnees from the 1960 diamond squad head the list of candidates.

The 10th Artillery shows a little prospective for the coming season and is aiming for the league defending champions. The Artillerymen are being coached by 2nd Lt. Larry G. Quinn and Sfc. Curtis V. Newman.

Sgt. Newman reports that there are no professional players in the club, although a couple of semi-professionals, Pfc Ray Young, who tried out with the New York Yankees, and Pfc Harry Forenz, who tried out with the St. Louis Cardinals, were on the roster.

Of the candidates trying out for starting positions, coaches are having a hard time making tentative selections, since there are at least two men who have shown outstanding performances in each of the positions. On the pitching staff alone, six good starters are in the bullpen, and the hitting has been good. In three practice games, the 10th Artillery has defeated the 151st Engineers 12-4; 58th Infantry, 5-3; and the 29th Infantry, 9-0.

The 29th Infantry chargers, coached by 2nd Lt. Guy L. Schottler, have only two men returning to the squad.

Although three pitchers are capable of starting assignments, the team has been shaping up slowly. The men seem to have fairly good speed on the base lines.

151st Engineers

The 151st Engineers round out the seven-team circuit. The Engineers are coached by Sgt. James W. Hill, who reports the team doesn't look "too bad", although a lot of improvement could be made. No predictionals are on the roster and only one of the men has had college baseball experience.

Speed poses no immediate problem to the Engineers. The mentor said on an over-all basis, the team looks like "nothing extra, but average." In two pre-season exhibitions, the 151st Engineers have dropped both, one to the 10th Artillery and the other to the 58th Infantry.

Play in the Major Unit League is scheduled to terminate around the middle of September, leaving plenty of time available for possible play-offs to determine the Fort Benning representative in the Third Army Baseball Tournament scheduled for September 25 to 29 at Fort Bragg.

Fort Gordon is the defending Third Army champion. Fort McPherson was the 1960 Third Army runner-up in the tournament, held at Fort Benning's Gowdy Field.

Today's Sportrait

Today's Sportrait spotlights Lt. Donald A. L. Brice, who hails from that colder land to the north, Canada, and is a recent graduate of the Infantry Officer Candidate School. Lt. Brice attended OCS with the 52nd Company, 5th Student Battalion, The Student Brigade.

Lt. Brice has a special reason to like cold weather, because of its close association with his favorite sport, hockey. Born in Ontario in 1933, he started playing hockey at the tender age of four, and has been at it ever since.

When he was in the 10th grade in high school, he moved to Wallaston, Mass., and attended Eastern Nazarene Academy and College, and Western Maryland College, playing hockey regularly.

He entered the Army in 1956, spent two years with the 101st Airborne Division, and was later sent to Germany as a member of the 543th Signal Company.

While in Germany, Lt. Brice tried out for, and made, the 7th Army hockey team. He was to join the team October 3 of last year, but received his orders to attend OCS.

Paratroopers 'Clean Up' During All-Army Boxing

Paratroopers landed feet first on top of their non-jumping Army cousins in the 1961 all-Army boxing elimination finals at Fort Campbell last Friday night, capturing ten of ten weight division crowns.

Seven of the winners are with Fort Campbell's 101st Airborne Division. The remaining three titles were won by soldiers of the 82nd Airborne Division at Fort Bragg, and the 504th Airborne Battle Group, U. S. Army Europe.

Featured in the final card at the Fort Campbell Sports Arena were Campbell heavyweight James Johnson and David Napper of Fort Bliss.

Johnson, a roly-poly 208-pounder, maneuvered his bulk in and around the ranch teller Napper to garner a decision with sledge hammer blows to the head and body of the Texas heavyweight.

A clear-cut victory, one of Johnson's crashing overhand rights felled Napper for a mandatory nine count midway in the third round for the coup-de-grace to Napper's title hopes.

Fort Campbell's flyweight Robert "Moose" Carmody kicked off the evening's fight card with a decision win over Fort Bragg's Gill Yanez. The former National AAU champ was unable to penetrate the Carmody "peek-a-boo" defense, while Carmody attacked with flurries of lefts and rights.

Johnny Joiner, Fort Campbell bantamweight, retained his 1960 All-Army championship by outpointing Placens Abeyta of Army Europe. Joiner's head-on assault against Abeyta proved too much for the Europe champion.

A speaking right by Eli Dorch of Fort Amador, Canal Zone, temporarily downed Fort Bragg's Hand Aaron in the third round of the feather-weight match, but the seasoned Aaron regained his feet and fought on to a decision triumph. Aaron's win, despite the knockdown, was a decisive victory over the less aggressive Dorch, who repeatedly backed off from Aaron's machine-gun combinations.

In a toe-to-toe battle of endurance, James Grant of the 504th Airborne Infantry, Europe, received the judge's nod over Les Norris of Fort Carson, in the lightweight contest. An in-fighting duel, the hard-charging Norris was forced to take a back seat to Grant's short, powerful right hand.

Jimmy Carter, of Fort Campbell, walked off with the All-Army light welterweight laurels by outpointing Jammy Scates of Fort Bragg. Carter's dramatic leaping hooks overwhelmed Scates' counter punching style in a match that went the three round distance.

Fort Campbell's welterweight Ray Owens decisioned Tellierro McGee of Europe with a smooth counter-punching technique that had McGee bleeding from the nose and mouth at the closing bell.

Carlton Brooks of Fort Campbell and William Parks of Fort Bragg copped championship honors in the light-middle and middleweight classes with Brook's decision over Ruddy Stringer of Fort Sam Houston, and Parks' point defeat of Fort Sam's middleweight Paul Letoir.

In 1955, Sgt. O'Neill returned to the U.S. with the European Rifle Team, completing the first "leg" toward his Distinguished Marksman's Badge.

(Three Excellence in Competition Badges are required for a firer to receive his Distinguished Marksman's Badge. Each of these competition badges are called "legs"; first, second, and third. ED.)

Sgt. O'Neill fired with the 6th Army team in 1957, going to All-Army and finally receiving his Distinguished Badge the same year during the National Matches.

Sp5 Kaiser's Problem Column

DEAR VERNON: I have been in the Army for 12 years, (working as a cook), I have been very conscientious about my job and like it very much. My Company has been selected to test the New Rations, where you need add only water. For the first time I am worried about my job.

HASH SLINGER

DEAR HASH SLINGER: Don't give them any water.

DEAR VERNON: When I enlisted in the Army, I was told I would have romance, travel, etc. So far all I have seen is my first sergeant and a lot of kitchen police. When does the romance and travel start?

KP

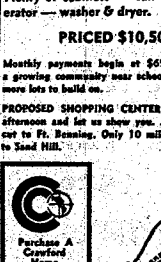
DEAR KP: I don't know, I was told the same thing.

DEAR VERNON: It seems every time our mess hall has spaghetti for lunch, I have spaghetti at home for dinner. How can I stop my wife from this habit?

INDIGESTION

DEAR INDIGESTION: Try not going home for dinner.

DEAR VERNON: I have only been in the Army for a short time. I am now an acting sergeant. I eat in a mess hall that feeds two companies. One company recognizes my rank but the other does not.



ACTING JACK

DEAR ACTING JACK: Apparently you have one company snowed.

'Long Thrust' Asks MATS Lift 7,000

Washington (AFPS)—The effectiveness of reinforcing NATO's European defenses with American stateside forces will be tested in May.

Three Army Airborne battle groups (7,000 fully equipped soldiers) from Fort Campbell, Ky., will be airlifted across the Atlantic by MATS aircraft and will immediately engage in tactical maneuvers in Germany.

Appropriately named Long Thrust, the exercise will be under the control of Gen. Lauris Norstad, NATO Supreme Allied Commander, Europe.

In the European area Gen. Norstad has assigned responsibility for planning and conducting Long Thrust to French Gen. Pierre Jacquet, Commander-in-Chief, Central Europe (CINCENT).

Participating in the exercise are the following Army units: 101st Airborne Division, 2nd ABG, 187th Infantry, 1st ABG, 327th Infantry, 1st BG and the 501st Infantry.

XII USAR Corps CG Visits Post For First Time

Major Gen. Walter B. Yeager, commanding general of the XII Army Reserve Corps, made his first visit Monday to Fort Benning since assuming his present duties Sept. 1.

Purpose of Gen. Yeager's visit is to meet the personnel in the Columbus Reserve subsector command, to see the facilities at the post and the Columbus subsector and to observe firing in the Third Army 1961 Rifle and Pistol Championships.

Rifle and pistol shooters from the XII Corps are among the approximately 700 marksmen entered in the competition which continued through April 13.

Serving a purpose similar to that of JOOCs held at Fort Benning, the displays of the various services depicted the new trends and developments in the Armed Services.

The 1st Brigade portion of the display was coordinated by Col. Samuel W. Koster, commander, 1st Battle Group, 29th Infantry. Officer in charge was 2nd Lt. Gary J. Thompson. Battle group SMaj James D. Rogers also accompanied Lt. Thomerson to Florida with the display.

The businessmen and leaders of the Central Florida area witnessed in the Army display the multitude of new equipment presently becoming front line equipment in the Army. The new medium range radar unit, which can detect a man at 1500 meters and vehicles at 18,280 meters, and the 106mm recoilless rifle mounted on the Army's new Mechanical Mule were two of the most prominent features taken to Florida. The latest Infantry weapons — the M-60 machine gun, and the M-14 rifle were also displayed.

UN Medal Awarded 2 Officers

Two officers assigned to The Infantry School have been awarded the United Nations Medal.

Major Gen. Hugh P. Harris, commandant of The Infantry School and post commander, made the presentations in ceremonies attended by key officers of the post.

A commemorative decoration established by the secretary-general of the United Nations, the UN Medal is given to military personnel who have served with the UN Observation Group in Lebanon, UN Truce Supervision Organization in Palestine or the UN Military Observer Group in India and Pakistan for six months or longer.

Judy & Tracy Harrison's teen talk...

Well, Spring has finally "sprung" and many, many things are happening in the area schools.

First of all, let's remind all seniors from post that they are eligible to apply for a scholarship sponsored by the Women's Club of Fort Benning for the college of their choice.

Now let's get down to the school news.

COLUMBUS

The CHS National Honor Society inducted new members a few weeks ago. Tommy Stephens and Carlyle Parks were the Kennington selected for this high honor.

Ruffles, lollipops, short dresses and trousers were the mode of fashion for the CHS senior Kiddie Day, a day of much fun and good memories.

The junior class is working hard now to present the Junior Senior Prom, scheduled for May 20. This will be the second Junior Senior Prom to be held at Columbus High.

Class rings are also the talk at CHS and this time by the future seniors of '62.

Cheerleader tryouts and baseball practice are also getting underway.

"Devils's Den," the annual CHS night club, will be sponsored by the senior Tri-Hi-Y tomorrow night in the high school auditorium. Admission price is 50 cents and the door for the grand opening is 8 p.m.

BAKER

BHS took honors again, theatrically speaking, with their presentation of Shakespeare's "Romeo and Juliet" last week. Mike Teters, Ray Bixler, Norma Snuff, Bill Griffith, David Roberts and Newton Griginer were a few of the fine cast.

Student council officers have nominated for the next school year at Baker High, reports state, and cheerleaders have been elected this week, but as yet names aren't available.

The annual for this school year was sent off recently, showing that school is almost out for another year!

Judy Rush was crowned queen at the Baker High School ROTC Ball and the remaining sponsors stood as her court.

PACELLI

"Off to Macon" is where the girls' gym class at PHS will be going this Saturday. The girls will play a basketball game there, having raised the money for the trip by various projects during the school year.

The C.Y.C. has many projects lined up for this month, starting with a picnic at Ida Caron Callaway Gardens on April 23 and a speech by Miss Carilyn Carney, attorney-at-law, on April 30.

Mike Wagner has been selected as the school newspaper's new editor.

Rates ATT Superior

An annual Army Training Test rating of "superior" was earned by the 3rd Transportation Battalion (transport helicopter), Lawson Army Aviation Command recently.

Following the tests, Lt. Col. William B. Dyer, battalion commander, said "this organization is ready to set up and operate anywhere."

Post Protestant Groups Attend Church Classes

Protestant groups on the post are conducting classes in the meaning and requirements for church membership.

In an effort to give military personnel and their dependents an opportunity to identify themselves closely with the denomination of their choice, chaplains on the post meet with prospective church members to give instruction in specific beliefs and policies of their church.

Baptist doctrine and requirements for church membership were discussed last week at the 1st Infantry Brigade Chapel.

Methodist classes for individuals preparing for church membership are under way. The fourth session was held last week at The Infantry Center Chapel.

Parents are expected to attend the meeting with their children.

Presbyterian classes were also conducted at The Infantry Center Chapel.

Episcopal Confirmation classes are held each Sunday at 9:30 a.m. at St. Michael's Episcopal Mission.

Lutheran Confirmation classes are conducted from 4 to 5 p.m. each Friday at Lawson Army Aviation Command Chapel (Main Post Chapel 2).

Individuals with other church preferences have been referred to ministers of the surrounding civilian community.

A course of instruction in Biblical history and religious beliefs common to all Protestant denominations was held on the post January 11 through March 22. Approximately 50 boys and girls attended the classes.

Upon completion of the general course in religion, members of the class were directed to chaplains of their chosen faith for denominational instruction and counseling.

Infantry School Report

Two versatile new weapons are coming into the hands of Infantrymen throughout the Free World. By design and capability they eliminate a variety of previous models, they increase the Infantryman's firepower, and they subtract weight from the load of the individual soldier.'

These are the U.S. Rifle 7.62 mm, M14 — replacing the M1 rifle, the carbine, the M3 submachinegun, and the Browning automatic rifle — and the machinegun 7.62mm, M60 — superseding all ground mounted caliber .30 machineguns.

Army Ordnance in 1945 began a research and development program whose mission was to provide the Army with a new all-purpose small arms weapon. The weapon that emerged from this program and was ultimately adopted by the Army in May, 1957 was the M14 Rifle — a weapon described authoritatively by Lt. Gen. John Hinrichs, chief of the Army Ordnance Corps, in the March 19, 1960 issue of the Army-Navy-Air Force Register as follows: "The M14 Rifle is not only a good weapon; it is the best military rifle in the world."

T44 Rifle

The T44 rifle (M14) was developed by Springfield Arsenal from the original rifle planned in 1945. Subsequently a competition between this rifle and the Belgian Fabrique Nationale (FN) Rifle, designated the T48 for test identification, was conducted over a period of almost six years.

In the final analysis the T44 was accepted, primarily because it was more suitable for American mass production techniques and training than the Belgian weapon.

The M14, designed and production-engineered at Army Ordnance Springfield Armory in Massachusetts, is capable of delivering both automatic and semi-automatic fire. The weapon is chambered to fire the .30 caliber rifle cartridge. This rifle, without bipod and fully loaded with a 20-round magazine, weighs 10.32 pounds. The addition of the bipod increases the weight of the fully loaded weapon to 12.06 pounds.

Rapid Fire Rate

The M14 Rifle has an automatic cyclic rate of 700-750 pounds per minute. This compares with the maximum cyclic rate of 600-675 rounds per minute of the .30 caliber machinegun or the M60 machinegun's

Visits With Gen. Adams

Gen. Eddleman Addresses MOWW Dinner Meeting

Gen. Clyde D. Eddleman, vice chief of staff, Department of the Army, Washington, D. C., and Lt. Gen. Paul D. Adams, commanding general of Third Army, arrived at Fort Benning yesterday for orientations on The Infantry Center and a tour of Infantry School training problems today.

GEN. EDDLEMAN

Gen. Eddleman addressed a dinner meeting of the Military Order of World Wars in the Main Officers' Mess last night.

The visiting generals and their party arrived at Lawson Army Aviation Command. They were welcomed with honor guard ceremonies at Chapel Field.

Accompanying the generals on the tour are four officers from the Department of the Army, Col. W. R. Bond, Office of the Chief of Staff, Lt. Col. J. H. Farley, Operations and Training Division, Office of the Deputy Chief of Staff for Operations, Lt. Col. C. W. Ryder, Jr., executive officer to the vice chief of staff, and Lt. Col. C. L. Crain, Office of the Deputy Chief of Staff for Personnel.

Major E. M. Murphy, aide-de-camp to Gen. Adams, also made the tour.

Tour Division

The visiting party was scheduled to tour the 2nd Infantry Division during the afternoon.

According to an itinerary released, Gens. Eddleman and Adams were scheduled to attend several briefings and orientations this morning on the organization, mission, history, and scheduling of classes and instructional facilities of The Infantry School.

Also on the schedule was a visit to The Infantry School's "Oscars of the Third Army Entertainment World" will be presented tomorrow night to the finalists of the 1961 Third Army level of the All-Army Entertainment Contest.

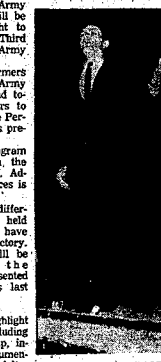
Over 80 hopeful performers squared away in the Army area finals last night and tonight, with grand winners to be featured in a Showcase Performance and the awards presentation Saturday.

All phases of the program are being presented in the Main Theater at 7 p.m. Admission to all performances is free.

Although completely different programs are being held each night, contestants have the same chance for victory. Third Army finalists will be presented Oscars about the same size as those presented to motion picture stars last Monday night.

Seven Categories



Seven categories highlight this year's contest, including vocal soloist, vocal group, instrumental soloist, instrumental group, individual specialty, specialty group and team production. Awards will be made to each of the classes, the first six receiving oscars and the team production being awarded a plaque.

The plaque captured in the team production number will be carried back to the victorious installation for permanent display.

Ten installations, including Fort Benning, have sent over 30 contestants here for the Third Army eliminations.

Winners of this level will ad-

Investment Expert To Open Bond Drive

Col. John R. Fox, an investment expert from the Office of the Chief of Finance, Department of the Army, Washington, will be the guest speaker at the April 25 kick-off of the 1961 U.S. Savings Bond Drive on the post.

Brig. Gen. A. D. Surles, Jr., post deputy commanding general, is scheduled to be on the program with Col. Fox at the 11 a.m. meeting in the Main Theater. The general will lend command support to the annual drive which ends May 15.

The kick-off meeting will be attended by key military and civilian personnel who will conduct the person-to-person canvass. They will represent special and general staff sections, major units, departments of The Infantry School and other activities. Second Infantry Division also is participating in the drive.

Objective Set

Fort Benning's overall objective is 65 per cent participation of military and civilian personnel in the Army's payroll deduction and allotment plans for buying U.S. Savings Bonds.

Drive Pulls In 35,000 Envelopes

More than 35,000 money envelopes signed by military and civilian personnel of the post in support of the 1961 Federal Service Campaign for National Health Agencies and the Federal Service Joint Crusade have been reported to The Infantry Center's Funds Division and more were expected in the aftermath of the drive which ended earlier this month.

More than 15,000 envelopes were turned in by project officers in units and activities after pay day to increase the number to 18,304 envelopes for the health agencies and 17,252 for the Joint Crusade.

Officials at the Funds Division said that four wooden boxes of sealed contributor's envelopes, weighing 150 pounds each, have been shipped to the New York City headquarters for the health agencies, where they will be opened and donations counted. Five footlockers full of envelopes for the Joint Crusade have been sent to the 550 rounds per minute.

To provide additional firepower for the rifleman, a 20-round magazine was developed and is used with the M14 Rifle — a significant increase over the 8-round clip used in the .Ml Rifle. The magazine may be reloaded without removing it from the rifle by the use of a disposable 5-round magazine loader. Still under development is a 10-round expendable loader with the ultimate goal being a 20-round version.

Recent changes in the production model M14 Rifle include the addition of a hinged butt plate enabling the firer to hold the weapon steadier during automatic fire, and a fiberglas hand guard which permits the barrel to cool rapidly and insures that smoke from a hot barrel will not obscure the firer's sight picture.

The Infantry Board here at Fort Benning is currently testing a proposed production model biped which, if perfected, may be used on the M14 modified for its role as the replacement for the time proven Browning Automatic Rifle.

As the M14 rifle program progressed, Ordnance also pressed forward the development of a supplementary, long-range automatic weapon system; because the combat rifleman and new lightweight, versatile machinegun capable of delivering a heavy, sustained, accurate volume of fire.

The machinegun, 7.62mm, M60 was the ultimate result of this effort. With its light weight and long-range accurate fire, it is suited to be employed well forward in rifle squads and platoons. Its flexibility makes it compatible with current tactical organizations and their operational concepts.

The M60 has an organic bipod, hinged shoulder rest, and a total unloaded weight of 23 pounds; ten pounds less than its predecessor, the caliber .30 M 1919 A6 machinegun. Pinless mounting adapters permit the gun to be mounted on the present lightweight M2 tripod.

Mounting and dismounting from the tripod can be accomplished in a matter of seconds, and a "quick-change" barrel allows the machinegun to keep a sustained volume of fire on the target for long periods of time.

Trained gunners can change the barrel in 3 to 4 seconds with no requirement to unload. Of great assistance to the Infantry, there is no requirement to set headspace on this machine-gun; nor does the changing of barrels destroy the zero of the gun.

The weapon's light weight permits the effective use of the gun from the hip, or shoulder, in the assault and during special operations. It is very simple in design and requires less than one-half the mechanical training time formerly necessary for the caliber .30 weapons.

Minimum maintenance is required to keep the gun operational. The Infantry School teacher that the gas system should not be cleaned each time the gun is fired — but only when sluggish operation is indicated.

Walker Hall to observe the School's Command and Staff Department's Combat Logistics Instruction, conducted by the Advanced Tactics Personnel and Logistics Committee.

This visit will be immediately followed by a briefing on Armored Infantry Battalion Task Force offensive, by the Command and Staff Department, in Pratt Hall.

Classroom instruction at the School's Communications Department and the School's Ground Mobility Department were set to be observed by the party.

Train Fire record firing conducted by the Weapons Department at Simpson Range was also slated.

The itinerary calls for a briefing on the Special Subjects Department's leader reaction course training, held at Dixie Village, then to see the Ranger Department's orientation at Victory Pond.

A briefing at The Infantry Center's test headquarters for AC-1 Caribou aircraft is next on the schedule of visits and orientations.

An official luncheon in the Supper Club of the Main Officers Mess in honor of the guests is also scheduled for today.

On the schedule for this afternoon is a visit to an Airborne orientation conducted by the School's Airborne - Air Mobility Department, at Eubanks Field.

The visiting generals and their party will leave Fort Benning tomorrow following an honors ceremony at Lawson Field.

the post canvass. First Lt. Wallace E. Vian, The Infantry Center's personal affairs officer, is assistant general chairman; 3; Frank Spear of Smiths, Ala., employed at The Center's Civilian Personnel Section, is assistant general chairman for civilian employees.

Col. Fox recently concluded a world-wide lecture tour of Army installations. The investment expert was personally selected early in 1960 by the former secretary of the Army, Wilber M. Brucker, to spark a concerted drive with a goal of making the Army highest in percentage of participants among 57 Federal Government agencies which have Savings Bond programs.

Personal Contact

In the units and sections "canvassers" are being appointed, each to personally contact 25 persons. Officers and civilian employees will be canvassed where they are working. Officers assigned to duty with troops and all enlisted personnel will be contacted through their units.

Two letters, explaining optional bond purchasing plans for civilian employees and for military personnel, will be distributed at the beginning of the drive. Military personnel may indicate on the letter the plan they prefer if they wish to buy bonds. Bonds may be bought for as little as $6.25 per month. Civilians can sign a Pay Reservation Application for the deduction of as little as $1.75 bi-weekly.

Charity

National Bank of Fort Benning Area employees will tabulate dollar results to be forwarded to Atlanta campaign headquarters.

Latest activities to make turn-ins to the Funds Division include the Main Officers' Open Mess, Post Exchange, Martin Supply Center, 151st Engineer Group, The Infantry School's Training Aids Section and The Infantry Center's Staff Judge Advocate, G-4, Provost Marshal and Civilian Personnel Sections.

"Rolling Along of 1961," the world-touring soldier show of the year, will be assembled from the grand finalists of the DA level of the All-Army Entertainment Contest.

After successfully hurdling post level competitions throughout the Third Army area, contestants began arriving at Fort Benning April 11 for rehearsals, billeting and briefings before the contest opened.

Installations entering contestants in the eliminations are Fort McClellan, Fort Gordon, Fort Campbell, Fort Stewart, Fort McPherson, Fort Jackson, Redstone Arsenal, Fort Bragg, and Fort Benning.

Fort McClellan, composed mainly of WAC entertainers, will enter all seven categories while Fort Gordon will enter only two, the instrumental group and vocal soloist.

Fort Campbell, entering five classes, will vie for Oscars in vocal soloist, instrumental soloist, individual specialty, vocal group and specialty group.

Fort Stewart is entering a vocal soloist, instrumental soloist, individual specialty and vocal group.

Fort McPherson will place competitors in three categories, vocal group, instrumental soloist and vocal soloist. Fort Jackson will be in contention specialty and specialty group.

Five classifications will be entered by Redstone Arsenal, including individual specialty, instrumental soloist, specialty group, vocal soloist and vocal group, and Fort Bragg will field a complete show covering group which will compete in all seven categories.

Fort Rucker has entered contestants in three classes, instrumental soloist, vocal soloist and individual specialty and host Fort Benning will enter all classifications except the team production.

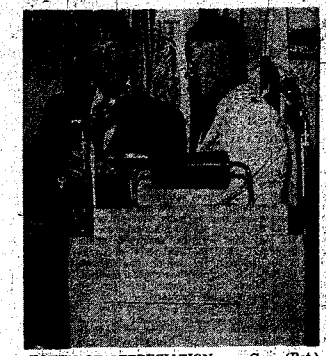
Top Performers

Among the outstanding vocal selections which will be heard will be "I Can't Say No," by Fort McClellan's Spc Kathleen Blair ;"When I Fall in Love" and "Love Is A Crazy Thing," by Fort Campbell's Pfc Ronald A. Washington; "September Song," by Pfc Richard B. Wynn, Redstone Arsenal, and "Over the Rainbow" and "Danny Boy," by Fort Rucker's Sp4 Leon J. Johnson.

Individual specialties are many and varied for the Third Army contest, including tap dancers, impersonators, baton twirlers and comedians.

Instrumental soloists will also present a full program of entertainment, including "Harlem Nocturne," by saxophonist Pfc Charles J. Blum who is representing Fort McPherson. Several other piano, organ and accordion selections will be given.

Competition in this level will be much keener than ever seen before at Fort Benning.



"Rolling Along of 1960," which is still on tour of major posts in the world, is one of the fine examples of top Army entertainers in a world where everyone is striving to reach the national tour level.

The siren for the warning system will be augmented by vehicles with loud speakers emphasizing that the exercise is a test, said Major Roy W. Preston of the G-3 section, The Infantry Center.

The Civil Defense exercise will be held at the Columbus level approximately 4 p.m. April 27. Headquarters for the Columbus practice will be the National Guard Armory. Certain schools will hold a practice evacuation.

Includes Radio

Conelrad will go on the air during the first 30 minutes of the test on the 28th, from 4 to 4:30 p.m.

On April 26, Armstrong Circle Theater is turning over its time to Civil Defense authorities so that activities taking place in a test exercise such as OPAL 61 may be shown.

MP Commendations Are Well Deserved

On some of these rainy, windy mornings and late afternoons, the duties of a military policeman must seem rather thankless to the traffic control MPs on the post. We feel that the recent letters commending their work have been well earned, and wonder if others get a lift from their cheery welcome as we come to work or go home after a full day. It must not be easy for them to always have a smile and a "good morning" or "good night" for one and all, but they never seem to look tired. Mighty fine job, we say.

He Kept Refusing Promotions

Friends of a Eufaula, Alabama, doctor think he may have been the only surgeon to go through five years of World War II service as a captain, repeatedly refusing promotions so that he could keep working at surgery. It's refreshing to hear of someone who rates satisfaction of a job well done above monetary reward. As one of the first doctors called to duty in 1939, he must have performed a whale of a lot of operations in the ETO before he returned late in 1945. . .

The newly published second Original idea was to use them volume of the official history for incendiary raids on Japan of the Army Chemical Corps tells of the time during WW II when bats were drafted to do their bit as bombs, but never got the chance to perform. Seems the bats didn't get the word on the missions, and among other things some just took off and were never heard from again. One squeaked through during a test flight and set fire to a hangar with his incendiary bomb and burned up a commanding general's car, and they all ate too much. The project was passed from the Army to the Navy to the Marines, and finally cancelled.

The Judge Says . . .

BY 1ST LT. GEORGE S. LYONS

LAW DAY USA

Law Day U.S.A. dramatizes the contrast between the American concept of freedom and justice under law, and the suppression of individual freedom under communism. It is, therefore, appropriate that on May Day, the traditional day on which the communist world parades its military might, the symbol of its philosophy of rule through force and fear, we in the United States demonstrate in a different manner.

On this date we demonstrate our faith in the rule of law as the best safeguard of human freedom and dignity.

Rule of Law

When lawyers speak of the rule of law, they mean the system under which the rights of people are governed by established rules, where the freedom and the dignity of the individual are assured, and where disputes are decided by impartial courts.

The rule of law, in this sense, does not exist in communist countries. In sharp contrast it does exist in most countries not under communist control. In some of the newer countries, the nature and extent of the observance of the rule of law remains to be worked out.

Our own tradition of living under the rule of law has been called the greatest legacy of freedom in the history of civilized peoples. Our country is the greatest in the world not alone because it is the wealthiest and the most productive, or because it has raised standards higher than those before, but because it has been guided by the precept that individual rights and opportunities are of paramount importance.

Yet the mere assertion of rights and principles of government in Constitutions and laws would not be enough. They must be given meaning and substance by independent courts and a legal system dedicated to preserving them. Such a legal order has enabled our country to attain its present place of world leadership and has given Americans their unusual freedoms and opportunities for individual achievement.

Law Day, May 1, 1961, is a reminder of the fact that this country and its system did not arise by mere chance, but have been formed by brilliant and competent men down through the years. Therefore, the adage that our country is "a nation of laws and not of men," is not without meaning.

Consider, for a moment, our concept of separation of government functioning in the United States. The military function of our government, an executive function, is the operation which is set up to protect our country from the aggression of any other nation. Yet, the protection of individual freedom has been secured through legislative and judicial decrees protecting the people against a military state.

Mr. Justice Clark, associate justice of the Supreme Court of the United States, has said, "One of the basic aims of 'Law Day U.S.A.' is to impress the American people with the value of their judicial system and its importance in the protection of their individual rights." It is sincerely hoped that this will be the spirit of Law Day U.S.A. on May 1, 1961, at Fort Benning.

Chaplain's Corner

By Chaplain (Major) James H. Fisher

Many years ago, a Dutchman by the name of Van Diemman sailed out through the West Indies and went north until he struck what we now call the Japanese Islands. He passed through a small channel just south of the island known as Kyushu.

From these straits, he passed on into the China Seas, and then back down to Java and Sumatra. He was the first known non-Oriental to have navigated these waters. The straits now bear his name and are known as the Van Dieman Straits.

He was one of the many pioneers who blazed trails over which many subsequent men have passed. Many of you have or will pass through these straits yourself. You pass through safely because someone else led the way.

The world owes a great deal to hardy souls who have led the way across uncharted seas and through trackless wildernesses. Advances in the fields of medicine, mechanics, space, and, in fact, in all the phases of life have first been seen through the eyes of one or a few who then led others along the path.

This is true in all of your life. The charts of other men's lives have become the maps by which we direct our steps.

It is said that when a Sahara camel train starts across the desert, it follows the old trails, and when a sand storm comes up and wipes away the trail, the camel stops and waits for the sun to come out and then that caravan blazes a new trail for others to follow.

Most of your life is built on example and you in turn will influence the lives of others by your example.

This is true of your life with other people and is equally true of your life with God. Most catch a vision of God through some deep spiritual experience and through that experience, later generations are made more aware of their relationship to God.

For example, your conception of God is quite different from the idea that people had around the burning bush. The ideas of your children will differ still, but they will be built on your experience and example.

Yes, others have gone through the straits and now you follow them. But remember—when you walk today, others will follow tomorrow.

President Stresses Deterrent In Budget Message to Congress

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — President John F. Kennedy has sent a message on the defense budget to Congress asking that the nation's ability to deter or confine limited war be strengthened by expanded research on non-nuclear weapons and increased flexibility and training of conventional forces.

The President emphasized that "the primary purpose of our arms is peace, not war," and asked that the means for beefing up our deterrent power be included in the proposed fiscal 1962 budget.

The security of the free world is as much endangered by being "slowly nibbled away" as from nuclear attack, Mr. Kennedy said, regardless of the nation's strategic power. Therefore, more effort should be made to boost the capacity to deal with guerrilla forces, insurrections and subversion.

The message specifically recommended an additional $123 million to accelerate limited warfare research and development programs and to introduce entirely new programs.

The President said that Secretary of Defense McNamara had already taken steps to increase the production of airlift aircraft. He called for the addition of $172 million to the budget for the production of 129 longer range, modern airlift planes through fiscal 1962.

He also recommended an additional $40 million for the construction of new amphibious transports and $84 million to increase the Navy's ship modernization and rehabilitation program. Another $230 million was requested for procurement of such conventional items as helicopters, rifles, electronics and communications equipment and improved artillery and infantry ammunition.

The President asked for authority to increase Army personnel strength to expand guerrilla warfare units, to bolster Marine Corps strength to bring it to authorized levels, and to add personnel to the Navy for Polaris crews and the Air Force for ground alert expansion.

In line with recent studies of the nation's entire defense strategy by the Secretary of Defense, the Chief Executive's message outlined our basic defense policies. It asked for an improvement in missile and bomber deterrents, continental warning systems and improved control of our strategic deterrent.

The missile capability outlined by the message the President said, "makes unnecessary and economically unjustifiable the development of the B-70 Mach 3 manned bomber as a full weapons system at this time."

A recommendation was made that the program be retained and at the same time slowed down, to include only research on the problems of flying a bomber type of airframe three times the speed of sound.

Mr. Kennedy cited the Polaris missile as "virtually immune to ballistic missile attack," and strongly recommended that the Polaris program be accelerated and expanded.

The message also requested a speed up in the development of the long-range Polaris A-3 to make it available a year earlier than scheduled, including the allowance of more of the missiles for practice firing to provide "proving ground" data.

More Minuteman missiles were requested for practice firing, and a recommendation was made that the three mobile Minuteman squadrons funded in the January budget be temporarily deferred and replaced by three more fixed-base squadrons.

An additional $50 million in new authority was requested for the FY '62 budget to allow the Skybolt program to go forward "at an orderly rate."

Mr. Kennedy asked for additional funds to provide the materials necessary to place one-eighth of the entire heavy bomber force on airborne alert at all times. The proportion of B-52 and B-47 forces on ground alert should be increased to about one-half the total force, the President said.

As a step toward improving our continental warning systems, the message asked for added funds for the development of the satellite-borne Midas system.

The following points were emphasized by the President as vital to our basic defense policies:

Our arms will not be used to strike the first blow. . .

Our arms must be adequate to meet our commitments and ensure security. . .

Our arms must be subject to ultimate civilian control and command at all times, in war as well as in peace. . .

Our defense posture must be designed to reduce the danger of irrational or unpremeditated general war. . .

These policies, the President said, emphasize improved command and control—"more flexible, more selective, more deliberate, better protected and under civilian authority at all times."

Invulnerable and continuous command posts and communications centers, the message said, are the beginning of a "major but absolutely vital effort" to achieve a unified, nation-wide, indestructible system of defense.

Gen. Adams Speaks, Presents Trophies, At Close of Third Army 1961 Matches

The Third Army's 1961 Rifle and Pistol Championships closed at The Infantry Center late last week with ceremonies and presentation of trophies by the Third Army commander, Lt. Gen. Paul D. Adams.

In an address before some 700 competitors and ranking staff officers of the Third Army's major commands, Gen. Adams noted competitive shooting to be hard work demanding much self-discipline.

"I'm especially gratified because of the increase in matches and shooters over last year's competition," Gen. Adams said.

He also noted the number of records broken during the past session and the National Guard and Army Reserve successes on both the rifle and pistol ranges.

The Army commander closed his remarks with personal wishes for success in the All-Army competition in which Third Army teams will compete here in June.

The ceremonies followed the final match of the competition which was won when The Infantry Center's "Gold" team smashed the record in the Infantry Trophy Match.

The Infantry Center riflemen shot a score of 906 to surpass the old record by three points and retain the trophy won in 1960.

Second place was won by the 2nd Infantry Division's "Chiefs" with an 861. Third place was taken with an 845 by the 82nd Airborne Division's "Red" team.

New Officers Elected By Toastmistress Club

Pat Ryan's News and Views

Children are funny. That's what Art Linkletter might have said with a shrug during his past visit to Columbus. Mr. Linkletter was confronted with a panel of children at WRBL-TV for an unrehearsed exercise of his famed interviews with-tots. The children had the advantage. They had known for days that they would be quizzed by this TV star. One mother had practiced asking her four-year-old questions. Finally, the little girl put a stop to this routine by sighing, "Now Mother, don't worry . . . I'll say the right thing!"

There were four of them . . . three girls and one boy ranging from a three-year-old to a five-year-old. They had waited and fidgeted for over an hour in the TV studio, with their mothers close by to smooth petticoats, comb hair, and persuade the boy to keep his cap on.

The cameras were readied, the lights were fixed with staring bet eyes, and the children were led into seats for the "performance."

At least two dozen people stood around in the off-camera dimness, waiting, watching and listening. The mothers were holding their collective breaths, huddling together "where the children couldn't see them" (as advised).

Art Linkletter's authoritative, confident, teasing voice was evidently too much for the shy youngsters. No miracles happened. No historical comments. The children melted into something akin to stage fright. "They're not members of the actors' union, that's what's wrong," Art said, ". . . and we have no prizes! Why, even a three - year-old nowadays knows about payola!"

Yes, children are funny. But it's a brave man who will put himself to the mercy of the unpredictable youth . . . on live TV.

Pat's postscript concerns the closing of the Thrift Shop's doors on Thursday, April 27, for inventory. Also, Ann Roberts announces her charm course will begin Wednesday, April 19, and her modeling class on Monday, April 24.

Sandra Lee Taylor's Report Card . . .

A saucy pony tail and sparkling brown eyes are the outstanding qualities of the "Report Card" personality of today. Susan Bachsarach, a pert 4'11" senior, the daughter of Col. and Mrs. Gustav M. Bachsarach bounces into the picture as a very interesting and interested Benning teenager.

Susie has lived at the post for the past two years, and during that period she has acquired a number of honors, positions, and a great many friends.

Among her hobbies, Susie lists horseback riding on her own horse, Rayo, and many an afternoon after school finds her at the Hunt Club making use of her membership there.

She also is an avid reader and plays the piano. In the past Susan has enjoyed collecting stamps and rocks. Along more athletic lines Susie played on the YAC basketball team this year and last year.

Active in Washington

Before moving to Benning, Susan lived in Pullman, Washington for four years. During her sophomore year at Pullman, Susan was elected vice-president of her class and was captain of the "A" volleyball squad. She also participated in the 4-H program at Pullman.

Susan, her parents and brother, Moore, 13, have also lived in Panama, a tour which they enjoyed very much. Susie was born in Philadelphia, and has also lived in Washington, D. C.

Since she moved to Benning, Susie has attended Columbus High School where she now ranks among the top ten seniors of a graduating class of 512 students.

Because of this distinction, Susan was one of the nominees for graduation speaker at CHS. She was also given a National Merit Scholarship for coming within a few points of NMSQT semi-finalist rank.

Almost All "A's"

Needless to say that while at CHS Susie has made straight A's for every grading period except a very few. At the beginning of this year, Susan was selected to be member of the "Superior - Talented Student" program at CHS. This STS program is designed to give the students with the greatest abilities the chance to use them to the fullest degree by participation in such extra activities as college courses.

Other activities in which Susie participates at Columbus High include the National Honor Society, the Future Teachers of America, and she is secretary of her Latin IV Club.

Recently it was announced that she had won one of the top eight places in the Civitan essay contest entitled "How to Prepare Our Youth For a More Effective Citizenship." The winners were entertained at a banquet last Tuesday evening at which the winner sequence was announced.

Best Costume

Two weeks ago CHS held its annual senior "Kiddie Day," and every senior homeroom elected two "kiddies" whom the members deemed as the best dressed. Susie, attired in a yellow dress complete with pantaloons and baby shoes, was elected from her homeroom.

Another distinction is the fact that her physics teacher, Mr. Benjamin Pate, asked her to be his student teacher during the recent "Student-Teacher Day." About CHS, Susan remarked that she enjoys the school more and more every year. She stated that her two favorite subjects are Latin IV, taught by Mrs. Josephine Christopher, and Government, taught by Miss Mary Fort, district STAR teacher.

Here at Benning Susie is a member of Sigma Delta Beta Sorority and was previously treasurer of the club. As a member of Junior Army Daughters of America, she was given one of the higest honors this organization can bestow—one of the six members elected to the Queen's Court at the JADA Christmas Ball.

Susan has been accepted at Washington State University in Pullman, Washington, and is looking forward to her college career there.

As a student and as a person, Susan Bacharach has proven herself able to attain the highest of goals and we of the post salute this darling teenager.

Student Brigade Holds Spring Formal Dinner

The Main Officer's Open Mess was the scene last Friday evening of The Student Brigade Spring Formal Dinner Dance. Amid the spring-like decorations for the occasion, the officers and ladies of the brigade gathered for dinner and dancing.

In the receiving line, where the members of the brigade had the chance to become better acquainted were Brig. Gen. L. A. Walsh Jr., assistant commandant, The Infantry School; Col. Julian H. Martin, deputy assistant commandant, and Mrs. Martin; Col. Otto R. Koch Jr., commanding officer, The Student Brigade, and Mrs. Koch; Capt. Donald R. Kennedy, adjutant, The Student Brigade, and Mrs. Kennedy.

The formal was sponsored by 4th Student Battalion.

Others in the committee whose work and planning helped make the evening one of enjoyment were the officer's wives.

Adding his talents to the entertainment was Capt. Donald E. Maltzon, commanding officer of Detachment 22, 2nd Student Battalion. He played the trumpet with the band and also played some solo numbers. One of his renditions was of "Stardust."

Decorations, which at first glance looked like real flowers, were actually made of tissue paper. An orchid, a real one, was given to each lady present.

Music provided a pleasant wind-up to the merry evening as dancing prevailed in the late evening. About 180 officers and ladies of The Student Brigade attended the 1961 formal.

Reception Held For Gen. Walsh

The Infantry Officers Orientation Class 14 recently held a reception for Brig. Gen. L. A. Walsh, assistant commandant of The Infantry School, giving the class members an opportunity to meet and discuss the functions of The School with him.

The class is presently in its 6th week of training. A three day bivouac with several patrols and platoon exercises were scheduled for this week.

Other guests present were Col. Otto R. Koch, commander of The Student Brigade, and Mrs. Koch; Lt. Col. Vern L. Joseph, 2nd Student Battalion commander, and Mrs. Joseph; Major Richard K. Delaune, deputy commander of the 2nd Student Battalion, and Mrs. Delaun.

Lt. General Adams Visits, Observes 1st Inf Exercise

Highlights OVUREP Unit's Final Field Training Exercise in Division

BY JOHN O'CONNOR

A visit by Lieutenant General Paul D. Adams, Third U. S. Army commanding general, highlighted the 1st Infantry's final division field training exercise.

General Adams arrived by helicopter last Thursday and toured battle group positions before observing a tank attack against aggressor forces.

Brigadier General William L. Hardick, division commanding general, accompanied General Adams on the tour, led by Battle Group Commander Colonel James H. Hayes.

The Engineer, Medical and Reconnaissance platoons received their Army Training Testing during the four-day exercise. The Medical platoon was swamped with "casualties" when a nuclear blast was simulated on Company E positions. The platoon used five litter jeeps to remove the make-believe casualties to the field hospital for treatment.

Road Blocks

The aggressors countered with radio - jamming, aerial gas attacks and propaganda leaflets.

The battle group ATT will be a three-day exercise beginning April 26. It represents the culmination of nearly eight months of training for the unit.

Korea

The unit will move to Korea in three groups: advanced party, forward echelon and main body. The advance party will leave a month earlier than the main body. Personnel in this party will fly to Korea as will those in the forward echelon.

The main body will sail from Oakland, California in late July. Pre-embarkation leaves for the battle group are scheduled during May and June. The unit will become part of the 32nd Infantry when it reaches Korea.

Sitting Bull 'Gets His' . . . Finally

By Cav PIO

A smashing blow of an old Cavalry carbine to the chin of Sioux war chief Sitting Bull has finally revenged the defeat that the troopers of the 7th Cavalry suffered some 85 years ago in the hills of Montana.

This event took place last week in the Historical Center in the headquarters of the 3rd Reconnaissance Squadron, 7th Cavalry as the old muzzle loading cavalry carbine on display suddenly fell and smashed the framed picture of Chief Sitting Bull hanging below.

Sergeant Edward J. Gannon, squadron duty NCO, alerted by the loud crash, stood viewing the carbine resting on the remains of the chief's picture, was heard to murmur, "poetic justice."

Four Star General Tours Div

General Clyde D. Eddleman, vice chief of staff, United States Army, paid the "Second to None" division a two-hour visit yesterday.

He was accompanied by Lieutenant General Paul D. Adams, Third U. S. Army commanding general, making his second official visit to the division within a week.

After being welcomed by Brigadier General William L. Hardick, division commanding general, the two visiting generals attended a general staff briefing, and observed record firing by the 15th Artillery's Battery B at Malone Trainfire Range.

General Eddleman was guest of honor at a Division Miniature Review, held at 4:15 p.m. at the division headquarters parade field.

General Eddleman and General Adams also visited the 23rd Infantry's Trophy Room while in the division.

23rd Infantry Celebrates 100th Birthday Sunday

By 23rd Inf PIO

Knight Field, in the Sand Hill Area, will be the scene this Sunday of Organization Day celebrating the 100th anniversary of the 23rd Infantry.

Captain David H. Martin Jr., battle group project officer for the affair, has announced that numerous activities of interest to 23rd Infantry personnel and their dependents have been scheduled.

A Non-Commissioned Officers' party and a formal Officers' party have been planned for tomorrow evening. A special Organization Day chapel service is in the offing for Sunday morning, while the Sunday afternoon festivities are designed to entertain and inform the spectators while testing the military and athletic skill and stamina of the participants.

Events

The afternoon program will open with a ceremony highlighting the rededication of the Battle Group colors. This will be followed by the military events which will include, among others, a drill squad competition, rifle disassembly and assembly contest and a grenade throwing event which will be judged on both accuracy and distance.

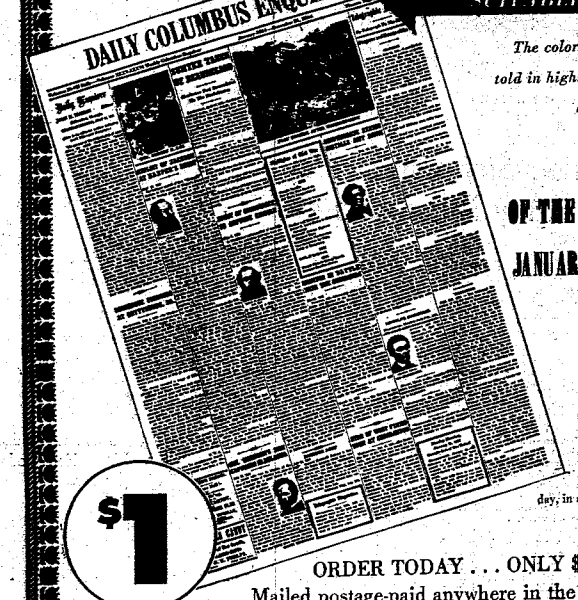
Next on the Organization Day agenda will be an abbreviated softball game with the line companies "all stars" taking on the "giants" of Headquarters Company. The finals of the Battle Group horseshoe pitching tournaments will also be held.

Probably one of the most interesting events will be the Organization Day pentathlon. In this activity each competitor will be required to perform five events without interruption between events.

They will have to chop through a log five inches in diameter, drive five stakes finish with the surface of the ground, put a weight of approximately 15 pounds for distance, dig a "regulation"-size fox hole and push a 6 quarter-ton vehicle for a distance of 25 yards.

All through the afternoon there will be rides for the children on numerous military vehicles and an informative and interesting display of equipment organic to the battle group.

Barbecue



The day will come to a close with an old fashioned "pit cooked" barbeque which will be served in the evening.

Among the honored guests for the occasion will be Colonel Joseph B. Mullin, battle group commander of the 3rd Battle Group, 23rd Infantry, a reserve unit with Headquarters in Harlingen, Texas. An invitation has also been extended to Colonel Herbert C. Hicks Jr., battle group commander of the 1st Battle Group, 23rd Infantry in Alaska.

On Monday, the 24th, the battle group will follow a holiday schedule.

23rd Commemorates Historic Battle Date in April

By 23rd Infantry PIO

On Sunday, the 2nd Battle Group, 23rd Infantry will celebrate its "Organization Day" in honor of those who have served in the unit during its 149 years of service.

The day chosen for this celebration and remembrance has a special meaning to the men of the 23rd. On April 25, 1873, Major George M. Randall and his First Battalion of the 23rd Infantry engaged the fierce Apache Chieftain Del-She, or "Red Ant" as he was better known.

Here is the story of this battle that took place 87 years ago high atop Turret Butte in the Arizona Territory:

Renegades

A renegade band of Apache Indians made a raid in Arizona's rugged and then little-known Tonto Basin, where they overpowered a party of young Englishmen. The Apaches killed most of the party immediately, but two were captured, tied to cactus plants and shot full of arrows.

Normally, the U.S. Cavalry would have gone in pursuit, but a disease had crippled most of their horses. The only remaining retaliatory force, Major George Randall's battalion of the 23rd Infantry, took to the trail of the Apaches.

The Indians had a day's start, but Major Randall knew where he was going. This was not the first time this particular Apache band had caused trouble, and no doubt they would follow their usual hit-and-run tactics.

Their chief, Red Ant, would lead his warriors straight back to their village atop Turret Butte, so named because the mountain is shaped like the turret of an old castle with steep walls and a comparatively flat top.

Surprise

Just as Major Randall suspected, Red Ant and his men returned to Turret Butte, but once there the wily chief neglected to take his customary precautions against surprise.

The 23rd Infantry Battalion arrived at the foot of Turret Butte after dark on April 25. Major Randall knew it would be disastrous to attempt to storm Turret Butte by day, for, if warned, Red Ant could easily hold off the battalion. Everything, then, depended upon the 23rd Infantry making the climb up Turret Butte without alarming the enemy above.

All excess baggage was left behind, and each soldier was cautioned to take the greatest care not to dislodge a stone or even strike the barrel of his rifle against a tree or rock. For hours they scrambled upward. It seemed almost impossible for so large a body of men to make the climb without being discovered.

When they reached the top it was midnight, and off to one side Major Randall could see campfires in the Apache village. It was a welcome sight, for it meant that Red Ant and his men were still there. However, the soldiers had to sit down and wait until daylight for the attack, since in the darkness most of the Indians would escape.

The sudden blare of a bugle at dawn sounded the charge. This was the first knowledge the Apaches had that the 23rd was upon them.

Col. Holland Assumes Helm at Ordnance Bn

By 702nd Ord BN PIO

Lieutenant Colonel Wilbur F. Holland, former Senior Ordnance Adviser to the Royal Thai Army, Thailand, has assumed command of the 702nd Ordnance Battalion and duties as 2nd Division Ordnance Officer.

He succeeds Major Benjamin R. Schulte, who has retired. Lt. Col. Holland was born April 21, 1914 in Manassas, Georgia. In 1936, he graduated from the Georgia Normal Business College. He then attended the University of Georgia, graduating with a degree in Agricultural Economics in 1942. While attending the university, he participated in the Reserve Officer Training Corps program and was subsequently commissioned as a second lieutenant. He entered service in Savannah, Georgia.

During his tenure of service, he has attended service schools at Fort Lee, Virginia and Aberdeen Proving Ground, Maryland, and at numerous other locations. He considers the Depot Administration course at Fort Lee, Virginia, as one of the most important schools attended.

Served With 81st

In May 1942, Colonel Holland participated in battle campaigns in New Guinea. One year later, he found himself engaged in the initial assault of the Philippine Islands on the Leyte Peninsula. In September 1945, he landed in Japan under full combat conditions with the 81st Infantry Division, although the surrender negotiations had been completed.

Upon his return to the United States, he assumed command of the Second Enlisted Training Command, Aberdeen Proving Ground. His next assignment was as instructor for Reserve Officers Training Corps at Rutgers University.

IX Corps Officer

From September 1953 until February 1955, he served as the Maintenance and Supply Officer, IX Corps in Korea. For meritorious services rendered during this period, Colonel Holland was awarded the Bronze Star.

His next assignment was as Post Ordnance Officer at Fort Chaffee until March 1959. He was then, assigned as Senior Ordnance Adviser to the Royal Thai Army (JUSMAG) in Thailand. For outstanding performance of duty in this position, he was awarded the Army Commendation Medal.

AUSA Affords 'Voice' On Vital Army Issues

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the third in a series of stories on the Association of the United States Army written in conjunction with the Columbus - Phenix City - Fort Benning Chapter's membership drive which ends May 10.

Why should a career soldier — officer or non-commissioned officer — become a member of the Association of the United States Army?

There are many reasons why one should do so. And one of the main reasons is your interest in your future, whether it be in the Army or in civilian life.

If you believe that a strong, modern, mobile Army is essential to our nation's security, then you should join the AUSA. And if you think that the Army needs a strong, unified voice to speak on vital issues, then you belong in the AUSA. And if you are deeply interested in efforts to make the Army more attractive as a service career, then you should recognize the advantages in becoming a member of the AUSA.

But in order for the AUSA to strengthen its membership so that its voice can be heard by all, your membership, along with other individuals, is needed to make the voice of the AUSA stronger.

At the 1960 annual meeting of the Association of the United States Army, the AUSA pledged itself to continue to work for the best interests of those dedicated men and women in the Army, and specifically to advance those programs adopted by the membership in preceding annual meetings.

Those included: (1) The adoption of career incentives for officers and enlisted men and women to increase the effectiveness of the Army and improve the morale and esprit of the members of the Army and its families such as troop and family housing; medical and dental care for dependents; high standards of service at reasonable cost in commissaries, laundries and post exchange; adequate retirement pay; and concurrent travel for heads of families and their dependents to overseas stations.

And (2) to continue efforts to increase the number and quality of young men applying for appointment to the United States Military Academy.

The Association continues to support all efforts to strengthen the ability of the United States Army to speak with a unified voice on vital issues.

With "the well-being of the United States Army" as a goal, the Association of the United States Army believes that such unity will give it strength.

'Blossoms' Is Theme At Potluck Luncheon

BY MRS. LAWRENCE W. SMITH

The Ladies of the Big Indianhead planned their April 13 potluck luncheon, given at Service Club Two, around spring blossoms, as prevalent in this area today as they were 100 years ago, as a salute to the beginning of Centennial events in Columbus.

Branches of snowy dogwood backed by rosy azaleas, interestingly arranged in an Oriental bowl, sparked the entrance-way to the club's main lounge. Camellias, bright and pink and fragilly exquisite, centered the lace-covered serving tables, which were weighted with gourmet food from treasured and inspired recipes.

The doorprize, a typically Southern arrangement of peck roses and heather, was won by Mrs. Bert Bazzard.

Repeated

The potluck luncheon, unquestionably the most successful and heavily attended luncheon of the season, will be repeated due to popular demand. The affair was arranged and hosted by Mrs. Joseph N. Volker, Mrs. Jimmie S. Farres and Mrs. Lawrence W. Smith.

New members for the month were the Mesdames Cornelius Jackson, Henry W. Wentz, Richard O. Funk, James W. Tolbert, Alvin A. Craft, Jack Doan, Samuel Gordon and Donald O'Donnell.

Egg Roll

Another well-received April club activity was an Egg Roll for children of members on the grounds of the Sand Hill NCO Club Open Mess. Volunteers for the day were mesdames John Kritko, Jimmie S. Farras, Warren Ottley, Adam Dempsey, Wesley Cason, James D. Speer, Henry Baker and Robert P. Jemison. In peacetime service of the Armed Forces the constant theme of "Teamwork" is stressed. By teamwork we accomplish our many missions necessary to maintain the way of life that is distinctly American.

In this concerted effort, molded by teamwork, the United States Armed Forces stand today as the forward bastion of our country's foreign policy.

Teamwork has other merits also, for instance, the merit of letting the soldier know that he doesn't carry the burden of the mission alone. Beside the soldier and behind the soldier are partners involved in the same mission. Remember, it takes a team.

Similarly, when a fighting man becomes a prisoner of war, he must bear in mind that teamwork is still of the utmost importance. By teamwork he will be better able to withstand the propaganda of the enemy captors. By teamwork he will be able to present a united stand before the enemy.

None of us desire to become prisoners of war, but, if we do, we should have formed already in our minds our course of action. In determining this course of action we must realize that teamwork and unity with our fellow prisoners will form the best basis for our actions.

Or, as the Code of Conduct says so well in Article 4:

IF I BECOME A PRISONER OF WAR, I WILL KEEP FAITH WITH MY FELLOW PRISONERS. I WILL GIVE NO INFORMATION OR TAKE PART IN ANY ACTION WHICH MIGHT BE HARMFUL TO MY COMRADES. IF I AM SENIOR, I WILL TAKE COMMAND. IF NOT, I WILL OBEY THE LAWFUL ORDERS OF THOSE APPOINTED OVER ME AND WILL BACK THEM UP IN EVERY WAY.

Totem Pole Represents Single Page In 23rd's Historic Past Heritage

by 23rd Infantry PIO

From its War of 1812 beginning until the present, the 23rd Infantry has a colorful and significant history.

The 23rd Infantry was organized in Canadiaqua, New York, and fought during the War of 1812.

On September 21, 1861, after a series of reorganizations with other infantry regiments, the 23rd became part of the 14th Regiment, V Army Corps during the Civil War and saw action at Manassas, the Peninsular Campaign, the battles of Fredericksburg, Chancellorsville, Spotsylvania, Cold Harbor, Gettysburg and Petersburg.

After the purchase of Alaska in 1867, the 23rd served as garrison for the new territory. The unit remained in Alaska from 1869 to 1870, making the 23rd the first large American force to occupy the territory.

The 23rd fought in the Indian Wars in Arizona during the 1870s and was stationed in almost every state and territory west of he Mississippi between 1867 and 1898.

When the Spanish-American War broke out, the 23rd was on its way to the Philippine islands. Returning home after the conflict via the Suez Canal and the Straits of Gibraltar, the 23rd became the first United States regiment to circumnavigate the globe.

In 1917, the 23rd Infantry was attached to the 2nd Infantry Division and was shipped to France and World War I. There, the 23rd took part in the battles of Lorraine, Aisne, Marne, Saint Mihiel and the Meuse-Argonne.

During World War II the 23rd returned again to Europe with the landing at Normandy. After hard and bitter fighting the unit crossed Europe to Czechoslovakia, where it was located at the end of the war.

In August 1950, the 23rd entered combat again when the Indianhead Division relieved the 24th Division at the Naktong River in Korea. While in Korea the unit saw action on Bloody Ridge, Heartbreak Ridge, Old Baldy and the Arrowhead.

At Chipyong-ni, the 23rd received the Distinguished Unit Citation as it helped withstand the frenzied attack of five Chinese divisions.

Returning from Korea, the 23rd was caught up in the Army's reorganization plan. As a result the 1st Battle Group was formed and stationed at Fort Richardson, Alaska. The 2nd Battle Group of the 23rd followed the 2nd Infantry Division to Fort Benning in 1958.

1st Infantry Pvt, Ex-Ecuadorian, Lived True-to-Life Fish Story

BY 1ST INF PIO

There is something fishy about Private Pedro DeGenna, Headquarters Company, 1st Infantry.

Perhaps it's because the supply and maintenance platoon truck driver was a commercial tuna fisherman while living in Manta, Ecuador.

The Van Camp Company, of Ocration fame, maintains a cannery and fishing fleet in the small coastal town, so DeGenna decided to make some extra money outside of his teaching job.

He signed on the S. S. Marianne, a 100-foot craft with a crew of 20. DeGenna describes tuna fishing as "strenuous work."

When a school of tuna is sighted, bait is shot from a small bait spreader and a metal gangway is lowered to almost water level. Men stand on these gangways and fish with only hooks, as tuna strike at anything that hits the water when they are feeding. The average tuna is about 30 pounds. When one is hooked, the fisherman whips the tuna from the water and guides it to the deck above. The hook has no shank, allowing the fisherman to free the hook as the fish is in mid-air.

24-Hour Job

Tuna boats fish day and night, using radar and sonar to locate schools when the lookout has poor visibility.

Sometimes fishermen on these metal gangways are completely submerged as the boat is rocked by high waves. Tuna fishermen take chances because the greater the catch the larger each crewman's share will be. DeGenna remembers boating 60 tuna by himself within two hours.

The 23-year-old private has excluded tuna fishing as a life's work. His three years at California Polytechnical College will be used toward becoming an electrical engineer.

Records Shatter as 9th's Foster Breezes Through Rifle Matches

BY 9TH INF. PIO

The 9th Infantry's number one rifle marksman, Lieutenant John Foster of Company A, swept through both the recently-concluded Armed Forces International Matches and the Third Army Rifle Championships at Main Post. In the process he shattered nearly all existing records for both championship matches.

Lt. Foster began by capturing 544 points out of a possible 600. He ended by firing his way to the Third U. S. Army's 1961 individual championship with an 820-55V total aggregate during the service rifle competition.

In between Lt. Foster has taken Distinguished Rifle victories and trophies at an ultra-rapid clip. He blasted his way in the International Matches to another crown in his specialty, the 300-meter Free Rifle Match.

Standing Match

Enroute to the Third Army Army Individual Championship, Lt. Foster grabbed first place honors in the 200-yard standing match with a 99-3V score; the slow fire rifle aggregate with 485-34V; and the rifle "off hand" aggregate with 194-6V. He also nabbed a third place in the rapid fire aggregate with a fine 385-21V, just one point back of the winner.

The Commanding General of the Third Army Lieutenant General Paul D. Adams, made the award presentations, to Lt. Foster at Theater Number One April 13 together with the other match winners. Lt. Foster also helped the 2nd Division rifle squad to a third place triumph in the team matches section of the Third Army Rifle Championships.

A native of Springfield, Ohio, who attended Montana State, Lt. Foster will remain attached to the 2nd Division Marksmanship Detachment in preparation for the World Rifle Championships scheduled for June in Oslo, Norway. Lt. Foster toured Europe in 1960 with the U. S. Olympic Rifle Team prior to placing seventh in the 300-meter free rifle event in the Summer Olympics in Rome, Italy.

The Scoreboard:

It's Softball Time!

BY CAPT. MILT LEWIS
Division Special Services Officer

One would hardly know by the weather of late, but the softball season is almost upon us. The old familiar cry of "play ball" will be heard on May 1 as all eight major command teams swing into action under the lights.

With two games scheduled nightly on Monday and Thursday at Sand Hill and Kelley Hill, the double round robin event should provide plenty of action for fans through the Division.

Division Trains, last year's defending champions, should be hard-pressed to repeat this year. Several of the clubs look tough and the nucleus of the fine 9th Infantry team that copped both the USAIC and Third Army Championship last year will be on hand to contest the outcome right down to the wire.

All games scheduled at Sand Hill will be played at the recently-renovated field off Arrowhead Road across from the Auto Craft Shop. Kelley Hill games will be played on the lighted diamond at Essebagger Field where two additional rows of lights were recently installed on the poles in right and left field.

Sep Bns Shaves 9th's Lead in CG's Trophy Race

By 9th Inf. PIO

The 9th Infantry's lead in the race for the 2nd Division Commanding General's Trophy was shaved to a mere five points following the winning of the volleyball division tournament by Separate Battalions.

The Separate Battalions representatives scooted to second place with a total of 190 points in the contest for the coveted sports trophy awarded twice yearly. Division Trains currently holds the trophy, last presented in December 1960.

In holding the top spot in the scramble for the next awarding of the trophy in June, the 9th Infantry has collected 195 points. The "Keep Up the Fire" unit picked up 105 points basketball crown and 40 points in placing fourth in the Division volleyball tourney. The 9th won six, lost none in basketball and piled up a 3-3 mark in Division volleyball play.

Division Artillery holds the number three spot in the trophy contest with 170 points.

Div Hq Co Takes 27-11 Victory

A powerful offensive attack of Division Headquarters Company rolled to a 27-11 victory over the 2nd Quartermaster Company team in a wide open, loosely played softball game Tuesday.

The game was characterized by pitching difficulty on both sides and sound, timely hitting by Headquarters Company.

Bowling Tips

Different Deliveries Are Used By Keglers

By BOB CHASE

So far in our discussions of proper bowling techniques, we have concerned ourselves with the basic considerations which are common to all shots in bowling, regardless of the type of ball delivered or the effect desired.

Now it is time to discuss the types of ball deliveries, or the types of rolling balls, as we shall call them.

There are four basic variations in rolling balls. They are the full roller, the semi-roller, the spinner and the semi-spinner. The terms are descriptive of the action of the ball in each case.

In manner of delivery, the rollers and the spinners fall into two categories. The rollers are delivered with a full arm motion, the wrist being firmly locked. All motion is imparted with the arm as a unit. The spinners are given their lateral spinning motion with a varying degree of wrist twist.

Regardless of what you may have thought, all of us on our team, and almost all professional bowlers, use the roller or semi-roller. The spinning balls are used infrequently. The spinning balls are much more difficult to deliver and control. In addition, spinning balls are not as strong as the rollers and are much more easily deflected from the desired course once contact with the pins has been made.

The spinner and semi-spinner are delivered with the same motions. The difference is in the degree of wrist snap. The spinner is delivered with maximum wrist snap, the semi-spinner with a lesser amount. Since bowling is a game of repetition, the ability to deliver the ball in the same fashion every time is as important here as is a grooved swing in golf. For this reason the spinners are seldom used by my teammates and I. The rolling balls are much easier to deliver and to duplicate.

I use the full roller to achieve maximum striking force. Some bowlers prefer the semi-roller.

In delivering the full roller, the ball at the start of the approach is held with the hand supporting the ball underneath and, looking down at the ball, with the thumb at a position corresponding to about 11 o'clock on the face of a clock. The arm and hand continue coming straight up after the ball is released, imparting lift to the ball. The hand must come up as though you were lifting it over your head.

More revolutions can be given the ball by adding turn to the lift. This is applied by turning the hand and arm as a unit in a counter-clockwise direction as the follow through takes place. Do not pull the arm across the body. This will cause you to pull the ball to the left.

The semi-roller is delivered in the same basic fashion except that the hand is turned more under the ball at the start. The thumb would occupy a position corresponding to between 12 and 1 o'clock as you look down at it. At the point of delivery of the ball, the hand is rotated quickly to the top of the ball in a counter-clockwise direction, with the thumb under the ball at the point of release.

Let me emphasize that there is no wrist action here, it is coordinated, smooth motion of the entire arm, with the wrist locked. Over-turning is caused by wrist action and by not following through.

Although I favor the full roller, others on the team favor the semi-roller. I feel they are equally effective. The full roller's advantage is that it can be started rolling sooner. If you are now using a semi-roller, stay with it and perfect it along with the rest of your game.

SPORTS

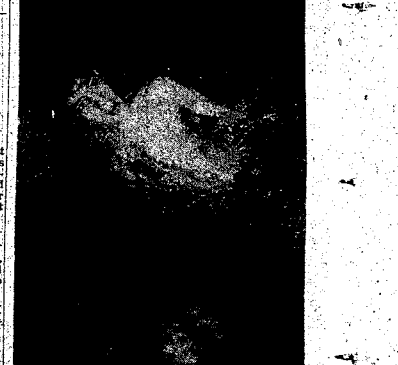
1st Brigade

Officers Open Softball League

The 1st Infantry Brigade softball circuit with its three leagues consisting of 23 teams went into action this week, marking the opening of the 1961 season.

The 1st Armored Rifle Battalion, 58th Infantry, officially opened its softball league as Lt. Col. Norvin E. Smith Jr., battalion commander, pitched the first ball. The 1st Infantry Brigade Drum and Bugle Corps played the National Anthem for the opening ceremonies.



As 200 spectators observed, Sp4 Douglas D. Davis of Headquarters Company, 58th Infantry, pitched a no-hitter to defeat Company C (Patton) 66th Armor, 11-0. Sp4 Davis, who allowed only one walk throughout the entire game, also hit a triple in the fourth inning to deep center field, driving two men across the plate.

Another highlight of the game was a home run in the fifth inning by Headquarters Company catcher, Sp4 James R. Hovermale, with one man on.

The Redlegs League got off to a good start with Lt. Col. Edgar M. Sinclair, 10th Artillery commander, throwing out the first ball to open the season and a game between Headquarters Battery, 10th Artillery, and Headquarters Company, 1st Infantry Brigade. Headquarters Battery won by a score of 9-3.

Other Redleg teams seeing action were Battery A defeating Battery B, 29th Artillery, 12-3, and Battery C winning over Battery D, 9-4.

In the Two-Niners League of the 29th Infantry, the 183rd Chemical Platoon copped the opener over Headquarters Company, 29th Infantry, by a score of 17-3.

Third Army

Teams Open Bowling At Rucker This Week

Drawings for opening round lanes and a welcome banquet highlighted the first day's action of the Third Army Bowling Tournament, being held at Fort Rucker this week.

Actual competition began Tuesday, with all 13 mens' teams answering the bell, with the exception of Fort Bragg, who started Tuesday night. The women's division opened Wednesday afternoon.

At the welcoming banquet held at the NCO Open Mess, the 78 men and 13 women bowlers and special guests sat down to a steak dinner and a speech by Col. Duncal S. Ruckers, deputy center commander.

Fort Bragg, the defending champions of 1959 and 1960, and Fort Campbell, are pretourney favorites. Sp6 Toutou Kawamara, who was last year's Third Army All-Events champion, brings a 195 p/n average into the tournament and is the number one roller for Bragg. Bragg has a current 190 team average.

Fort Campbell, who just returned from the National Bowling Congress Tournament, brings a 194 team average and is led by Sfc Ed Plante, who boasts a 199 average.

Heading the list of lady entries is Sfc Esther Cooke of Fort McPherson, who took all-events honors in last year's tourney and her current average is 170. Sfc Cooke won the All-Events title in the All-Army Bowling Tournament in 1956.

One half of last year's double champions is also back. MSgt. Charles Bowers of Fort Stewart has a new partner this year, MSgt. George Troha, and they both have 180 averages.

178 ROTC Cadets Visit In Second Spring Group

The second group of Reserve Officers Training Corps cadets from Southern colleges to see the Army in action at Fort Benning this spring arrived 178-strong last week.

Seventy-three ROTC students from Tuskegee Institute arrived about noon Thursday followed later in the day by 37 students from Georgia State College of Business Administration at Macon, 65 from Jacksonville, (Ala.) State College and 32 from the University of Miami, Coral Gables, Fla.

Brig. Gen. A. D. Surles, Jr., deputy commanding general of The Infantry Center, welcomed the cadets Friday in the 1st Infantry Brigade area.

After the general's welcoming address, the ROTC cadets observed the 1st Brigade's static arms display. They were conducted on a two-hour tour of the brigade area. Lunch was served at the 29th Infantry's mess.

The training problems were observed by the young men in the afternoon. The Infantry School's Airborne-Air Mobility Department presented an Army aviation orientation problem at Fryar Field and The School's Command Staff Department conducted a "Role of the Infantry" problem at the Main Theater.

THE FOXES OF THE DESERT by Paul Carell. (Dutton, 1960)

This is a detailed account of the Afrika Korps and the other German forces who served in the African campaign from 1941 to 1943 in World War II. Dominating the story are the personality and strategy of the German commander, Field Marshal Rommel, the wily "Desert Fox", who was the leading opponent of such British and American commanders as Wavell, Auchinleck and Eisenhower.

WHO KILLED SOCIETY by Cleveland Armory. (Harper, 1960)

The author of "The Proper Bostonians," presents a spirited survey of American social doings and undoings from the early days through the Four Hundred to today's 'publicity.' It is illustrated with drawings by Charles Dana Gibson. Special inserts list the names of the original Four Hundred and all American families entitled to coats of arms.

BATTALION OF SAINTS by Richard Wormser (McKay, 1961)

Leading the troop of men and women across the wilderness, rugged Ned Springer had much trouble as he fell in love with the Mormon girl, Nancy, already betrothed.

Libraries Show Gain For Week

National Library Week, designed to stress the value of reading and the greater use of libraries, ends tomorrow.

Among the libraries all over the country participating in the event are the Main Post Library and its branches and the post school libraries.

Mr. Carl Ficker, head librarian on the post, says National Library Week has been a success here. The libraries at Sand Hill and Kelley Hill have shown an increase in attendance especially, said Ficker.

The Kelley Hill Library is the newest library in the 2nd Infantry Division area.

Closing events of the week will be a book bingo at Service Club 4 at 7:30 Saturday night and a coffee hour at 2:30 Saturday afternoon.

The Surgeon Says

Catch Cancer With Checkups

By Major Robert H. Quinn, MC

Any reputable doctor can detect conditions that may mean cancer by utilizing his education, experience, hands, eyes, ears and standard instruments that every doctor has in his office.

The doctor will begin his examination by asking some very basic questions that he uses as a guide prior to beginning your physical examination. He may begin his questioning by asking if you have any sores that refuse to heal, especially around the tongue, lips or in the mouth. With a tongue depressor, a flashlight and a finger covering he will examine your mouth and throat for any sores, lumps and any other abnormalities.

His next question may be if you have noticed any lumps or thickening in the breast, armpits, neck, groin or other parts of your body. He will examine your scalp and neck for scaly or bleeding sores, black moles, unhealed or tender scars and glands in the neck and armpits.

Has Special Equipment

He will examine you thoroughly if you answer yes to his question pertaining to any unusual discharge or bleeding from any natural body opening. If you do have any of these symptoms, he will use some special equipment to examine the source of the bleeding or discharge. If need be, he will refer you to a specialist who has the training, experience and instruments to more thoroughly evaluate a particular symptom.

Any change in normal bowel habits is not necessarily dangerous but it warrants a thorough examination just the same. Anxiety, constipation, common colds, and other disease may alter your bowel habits temporarily, but a continued change needs to be examined and the cause eliminated.

Rectal bleeding should always be evaluated by a physician, and in most cases it will probably be due to a less serious reason such as hemorrhoids (piles), etc.

Beauty marks, moles, warts and birthmarks are signs that are visible to the naked eye and should be examined by your doctor. He will ask if you have noticed any bleeding, change in size, shape or color in these visual abnormalities.

Chronic indigestion and difficulty in swallowing is another important question that the doctor may ask you. By applying gentle pressure with his fingers to the abdomen, he can usually detect any change in the normal size of your internal organs. X-ray studies may be required, depending upon your symptoms and what he has determined by physical examination.

Hoarseness or a persistent cough may warrant examination of the chest to determine the cause and possible treatment of these symptoms.

The doctor's last question may pertain to your weight and appetite; normally, any great change should warrant a thorough examination. The gaining or losing of weight may be related to other diseases or glandular malfunctioning and may or may not be related to cancer at all. However, caution will not be thrown out the window. Every pertinent sign, symptom and/or bodily change will be examined and evaluated.

Takes About One Hour

This complete physical examination will take about one hour. Within a day or two, all clinical reports will have been assembled and recorded. At the completion of your physical examination, the doctor will inform you of your physical condition. You can help your doctor by helping yourself — see him immediately if you have any of the above mentioned symptoms. Early discovery means quick recovery. Don't hesitate and be too late!

(NOTE: The second in a series of cancer education programs will be held in Theater 1, at 1:15 p.m. April 26. Col. David G. Eisner, MC, Chief, Department of Surgery, Martin Army Hospital, will be the speaker.

Need 'Working Knowledge' Now

'It's Too Late When You're in Trouble' Gen. Huebner Says of U. S. Civil Defense

Civil defense is government at war, Lt. Gen. (Ret.) Clarence R. Huebner, director of the Civil Defense Commission of New York, declared at the post last week in emphasizing the importance of civil defense preparedness.

"All soldiers and civilians should have a working knowledge of nuclear warfare. It's too late to look for a plan or new leadership when you're already in trouble," he told officer career classes of The Infantry School in the Main Theater.

"All of you are trained thinkers," Gen. Huebner said to the student officers. "You have the ability to think fast and straight and put your thoughts into action in a minimum of time. You have to think the same way in civil defense."

The speaker stressed the element of surprise as offering the initial advantage to a nuclear attacker.

Enemy bombers, submarines, intercontinental ballistic missiles, sabotage, biological, chemical warefare and propaganda threaten our national security, he added.

"Russia has the largest submarine fleet in the world. We don't know just how large it is or whether it has missiles. About 30 are lying off our Atlantic Coast everyday," the three-star general stated.

"Sabotage is with us. There is a devoted hard core of Communists in the U. S. Look at what they did at the Un-American Affairs Committee hearings in San Francisco. And we are being flooded with propaganda all the time," he added, noting the books about U. S. soldiers succumbing to brainwashing in Korea.

New York Plan

Gen. Huebner explained that the five-point New York civil defense plan deals with detection warning, information, use of warning time, post-bomb rescue, relief and recovery after attack.

GEN. HUEBNER (R) TALKS WITH GEN. HARRIS (L) And Capt. Edward J. Vaughn, Infantry School Student

"We have men living in terrible, out-of-the-way places such as Texas towers to give us warning," he said, then outlined the SAGE (Semi-Automatic Ground Environment) System. "We still have interceptors (planes), but our main defense is the missile sites."

"Military defense information is converted into civil defense information at Colorado Springs (Colo.) and distributed throughout the country on the National Air Warning System. This is probably the biggest telephone system in the world. It can get warning to all cities in New York in two or three minutes," he continued, adding that another system in New York gets a warning to the counties almost as quickly.

"It's terrifically slow below the county level, sometimes as long as 15 minutes," the speaker commented on the problem of warning individual townships. He said that red light warnings can be flashed to locations in Nassau County in four minutes. The Westchester County Public Alerting Network offers the advantage of using telephone, which permits information in addition to the warning alert to be transmitted.

"The warning is implemented and carried to the people by sirens. There are 700 in New York City. In country areas, we are dependent almost entirely on volunteer firemen," he said.

The retired general brought out that newspapers plan to disseminate civil defense instructions, but will probably face distribution obstacles.

"Our main reliance is upon the radio broadcast system," he said. "Because of homing devices which can be put on planes and missiles, all AM and television stations will be closed and radio bands reduced to the two CONELRAD channels, 640 and 1240 kilocycles."

"It is personal carelessness to die from radiation. There is no escape from radiation by running. The only escape is mass between you and the particles," Gen. Huebner stated.

He disclosed that in New York estimates of casualties following a nuclear explosion, 77 per cent would be from fallout and only 23 per cent from blast.

He commented that teams in each county of New York have been trained to evaluate information when they receive it and that townships are forming area survey teams. There also is the need for teams with rescue groups to provide information on radiation.

Gen. Huebner displayed a fallout effects map of New York with overlays giving entry stay time, leave shelter time, evacuation from fallout areas, return time after evacuation, and death and radiation sickness data for specific distances from a nuclear explosion.

"Relief must be based on staff estimates. You cannot wait on definitive estimates, or it will take too long to get the relief there," he pointed out. "We will depend mainly on telephone communications. However, in the destroyed area we will have to depend on radio and 'lanterns.'"

Major Fitzpatrick Lions Club Speaker

Major John F. Fitzpatrick, Jr., operations and training officer of The Infantry School's Ranger Department, spoke on "Ranger Training" at the April 19 meeting of the Phenix City Lions Club.

The luncheon meeting was held in the Elite Cafe. Eddie Exell, program chairman, was in charge of arrangements for the event.

Major Fitzpatrick was assigned to the Ranger Department in July, 1959, following his graduation from the Command and General Staff College, Fort Leavenworth, and served 14 months as commander of the Florida Ranger Camp at Eglin Air Force Base before assuming his present duties.

CAPT. CHARLES QUALLS FASTENS 'CHUTE
He's a Member of the 120th Detachment Team

At Fryar Field

NG Special Forces Conduct Mass Drop

Approximately 130 members of Special Forces detachments, Alabama National Guard, participated in a mass parachute drop at Fryar Field recently.

Guardsmen with the 118th Special Detachment at Montgomery, the 116th and 119th from Birmingham and the 120th from Huntsville, arrived by three Air Force C119s at Lawson Army Aviation Command. They were transported by the 76th Troop Carrier Squadron, Bates Field, Mobile, Ala., the first time the Air Force Reserve carrier unit has flown the Alabama National Guard units for the quarterly air drop at Fort Benning.

Personnel of the Advanced Airborne Training Committee of The Infantry School's, Airborne-Air Mobility Department at the post provided support for the Guardsmen, veteran paratroopers, in preparation for the air drop. Capt. Giles Thomas, with the department's Pathfinder Sub - Committee, was project officer for the operation.

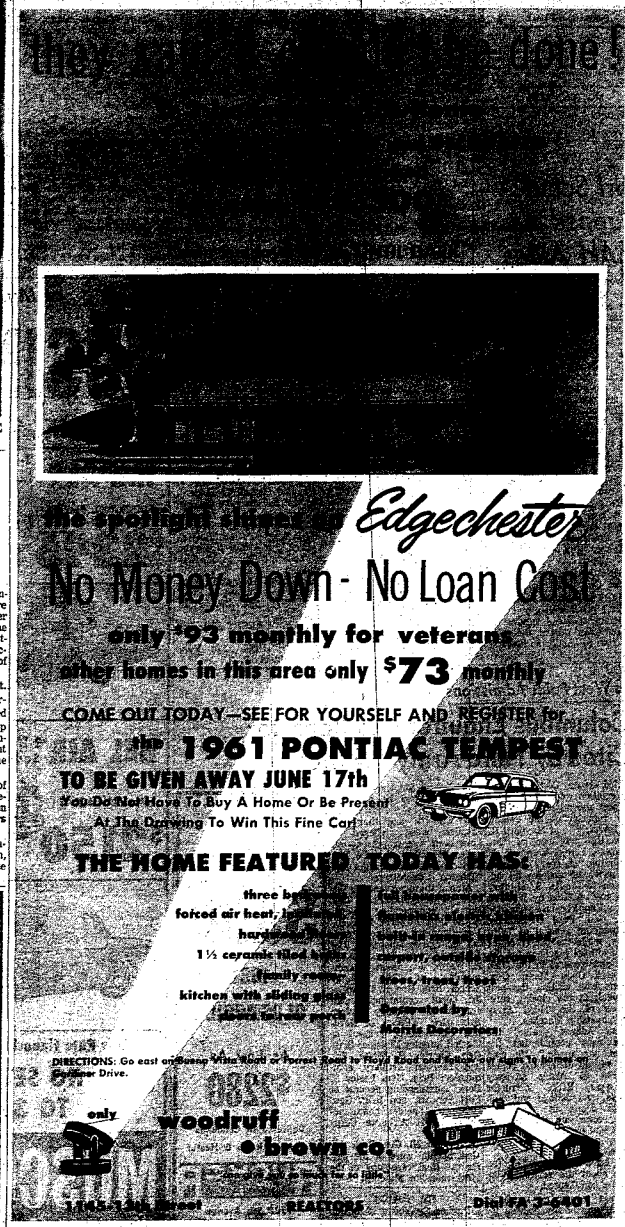
After embarking from the aircraft, the Guardsmen were instructed by members of the Advanced Airborne Committee on parachute landing fall training, using mock towers set up at Lawson.

Following the refresher instruction, the Guardsmen were issued parachutes and other equipment. Personnel of The Infantry Center Quartermaster Parachute Maintenance Section assisted in this phase of preparation for the jump.

After a briefing by Capt. Thomas on details of the operation, the Guardsmen loaded into aircraft for the mass drop over Fryar Field. Capt. Richard A. Hippler, Air Movement Subcommittee, was drop zone control officer.

Miss Jo Anna Thompson of Monigomery, "Miss 118th Special Forces Airborne," was on hand to greet the paratroopers when they hit the ground.

Among the jumpers was Major Gen. Henry V. Graham, adjutant general of the State of Alabama.



Gen. Harris Speaks At Dixie Lions Club

Major Gen. Hugh P. Harris, post commander, was the speaker at a luncheon meeting of the Dixie Lions Club in Montgomery last week.

"Role of the Infantry" was the topic of his address. The meeting was held in the Jefferson Davis Hotel.

John Y. Reynolds, secretary of the organization, was in charge of the program.

For Enlisted Men

Promotion To Depend On Scores

WASHINGTON (ANS)—Implementation of the Promotion Qualification Score (PQS) system for use as an enlisted promotion criteria on a permissive basis by local commanders has been approved effective with the May, 1961, MOS Enlisted Evaluation System testing program.

The Department of the Army will announce a PQS for each 4 digit MOS tested during May. Commanders have been encouraged to use this PQS as an enlisted promotion eligibility criterion to grades E5 and higher, but the PQS at this time is not a mandatory requirement for promotion eligibility.

Enlisted men will be tested in their PMOS.

Department of the Army has stressed that meeting the PQS criteria does not automatically qualify the individual for appointment to a higher grade. Final authority and responsibility rests with the appointing authority.

Mandatory adoption of PQS system is withheld pending testing in all MOS and modification to current Enlisted Evaluation System testing procedures.

Law Day Message

LAW DAY 1961

May 1, 1961, is the fourth annual observance of Law Day USA. It is a day on which all people are urged publicly to demonstrate their appreciation of the rule of law as the guardian of individual liberties. Individual responsibilities include observing laws, supporting those who bear the responsibility for enforcing the laws, and instilling respect for the law in young Americans by example. By such a demonstration we are signifying our recognition that ours is a nation governed by the rule of law rather than the rule of men. We therefore reaffirm our heritage and continue to safeguard those priceless rights granted to us by the Constitution and Bill of Rights.

Our Law Day observance challenges the world to stand fast and protect the rights of men and nations.

HUGH P. HARRIS
Major General, USA
Commanding

Law Day

are to foster deeper respect for law, encourage responsible citizenship and promote national strength and unity.

Every American shares the responsibilities that go with individual liberties, officials said.

Our system is dependent upon voluntary compliance with laws, they added.

Law Day U. S. A. is an effort to strengthen voluntary obedience to law through the church, home, school and community agencies, both as a deterrent to crime and as an antidote to tyranny abroad, according to officials.

To be captained by Col. Peter Agnell, Air Force, the U. S. team will be composed of six trap, six skeet and five running deer gunners.

Attendance at the finals here will be upon invitation of the sponsoring International Shooting Committee of the National Rifle Association in cooperation with the Continental Army Command.

Fifteen of the competing shotgunners will come from the Armed Services while some 35 civilian trap and skeet experts will be vying for team slots.

They Can't Get Mad on March 29

A newspaperman in Phoenix, Ariz., has come up with plans for a National Bookiender's Day.

We don't have all the rules, but Don Fedora has suggested that March 29 be declared the day for returning borrowed books, whether to individuals or libraries, though they may have been sitting around the barracks or house for months or even years.

Nobody is playing the game if they get mad at you on that day, even if the book returned is their favorite one, and he has even arranged for the public library to waive late charges on items returned March 29.

He reports a side benefit this year — Don gained 11 books, and only had to give up seven.

THE FOLLOWING ENTRIES, we hear, are IN A LITTLE BOYS DIARY:

December 25 —Got a new air rifle for Christmas, but it's raining so I can't go hunting.

December 26 — Still raining. Can't go hunting.

December 27 — Still rained in. No hunting.

December 28 — Still raining. Shot Uncle Joe.

Over 20 Million Saved--Just a Start

Every soldier and Army civilian will be asked to come up with one suggestion for improving methods, saving time, and-or saving money, during month of May, Gen. George H. Decker, Army chief of staff, has designated the month "Chief of Staff Suggestion Month," following the success of Operation Searchlight, which resulted in the saving of more than 20 million dollars plus intangible benefits. They don't come to mind in enough detail to do any good, but most of us have heard enough good suggestions through the years that if they were lumped together, they'd probably save billions. Most of them were never put on paper. Let's make this month long effort a realistic, productive effort to improve all the little details that make for a better functioning Modern Army. . .

$1,341 Lost

Can anyone figure out where all those soft drink bottles are going? During March, the Post Exchange lost $1,341 on account of bottles missing from vending machine areas. This is a lot of dough, but it's made up of little careless acts of a great many of us. Now we'll clean a few out of our office. . .

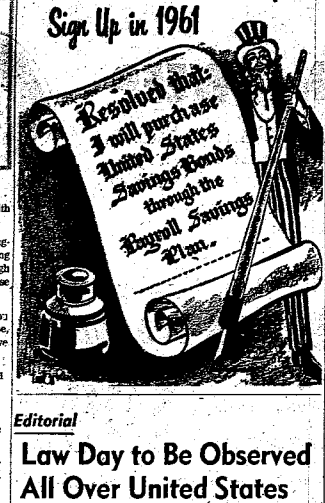
Can Take Starch Out of Us



Recognizing that starched fatigues are warmer than those without heavy starch during the hot summer months, a proposal being considered on the post would make it possible for unit commanders to arrange with the Quartermaster Laundry to leave it out during designated periods. This could make for more comfortable participation in a lot of field exercises if approved and not abused by us. The final responsibility for looking sharp while on main post and going to and from home or PX or barracks is always ours.

To Direct Next Masquers Play

Phyllis Tritsch has been selected to direct the forthcoming production of the "Girls in 509", to be presented by the Fort Benning little theater group, The Masquers. The play is a two - act comedy by Howard Teichmann.

Miss Tritsch has a wide background of experience. A graduate of Hunter College, she started in Little Theater work at Fort Hood, Texas, playing the part of a shoplifter in a detective mystery. She has worked at the Ivoryton and Savo Playhouses in Connecticut.

At the Ivoryton Playhouse, she worked with such show business personalities as Arlene Francis and Buddy Ebsen.

Law Day to Be Observed All Over United States

Editorial from the Office of the Staff Judge Advocate)

Law Day will be observed throughout the United States on May 1, but its significance should not be confined to a single period of time. The importance of the principles thus symbolized are such that they should remain with us throughout the year. In fact, they are an objective to the construction of a peaceful and orderly world.

Traditionally, May 1 is the date on which the communist world shows its military strength exemplifying the rule of force and fear. However, in the United States, since 1958, the day has become one in which the people can re-affirm their faith in the rule of law. Thus, there are two basic aims in this demonstration of democratic principles:

One is to foster increased respect for law so that the Nation may grow in moral strength as it grows in population, resources, and world leadership.

The other is to allow the American people to rededicate themselves to freedom for the individual under just laws administered by independent courts. In this fashion we can emphasize the contrast between the rule of law and the rule of force under totalitarian systems.

We in this country have firmly established the paramountcy of law over force, the system of civil liberties that protects an individual from tyranny in any form, and the rights of private enterprise. Under the Constitution we have said that there are certain things that the Government can not do and others that it must do. In the final analysis this system is guaranteed and enforced by the sovereignty of the state. That is the foundation of our national strength, unity, and freedom.

We have learned that resort to force leads to disorder, fear, confusion, and chaos. This is the essential meaning of the rule of law. Now we are in the process of applying this principle to powerful and aggressive states that, in the course of expanding their influence, use force or subversion. In a time of nuclear weapons the rule of law is mandatory and the only method of making peace firm and secure.

Chaplain's Corner

By Chaplain (Capt.) [illegible]

No man can live without his God. The only question is, who shall rule over him? If he does not have the true God to bless and sustain him, he will have some false god to delude and betray him.

Every man has something in which he hopes, on which he leans, to which he retreats and retires, with which he fills up his thought in empty spaces of time; when he is alone, when he lies sleepless and is not pressed with other thoughts, he has something, good or bad, to which he goes.

In sorrow or trouble, a man seeks that from which he hopes to derive comfort and peace; this thing has a good right to be called his God.

Man was made to lean on his Creator; but if not on Him, then he leans on the creation in one shape or another. This is necessity of our being, and the real question to be decided is, on what shall he lean?

The ivy does not grow alone, it must twine around some support or other; if not the sturdy oak, then the ragged thorn, around any dead stick what-ever rather than have no stay or support at all.

It is just so with the heart and affections of man; if they do not twine around God, still they will, they must, twine around something. The heart with its thousand tendrils, even in reaching forth to God, clasps whatever is in its path.

We often do not recognize the need expressed in our own longings. What we all need is God; the eternal help, the source of succor and all supply. The bread and water of life. Feeding upon Him, we begin to learn the first principles of peace.

The Judge Says . . .

By 1st Lt. George S. Lyons

For 171 years our government has served as an inspiration and a beacon light for oppressed peoples of the world who seek freedom, justice and equality.

The heart and sinew of this system is Law. It distinguishes our governmental form from those operated by the rule of force. The freedom and justice grounded in a just system of laws, protected by the courts are one of the keystones of America's strength and her principal claim to moral leadership in the world community.

This concept of government under law, the antithesis of communism, is proclaimed on May 1 as the nation celebrates "Law Day USA."

It comes at an hour in our history when world order is in peril, when even within our own boundaries a wave of rebellion against law and order seems rising, especially among our youth.

Whether it be a traffic violation, a scuffle at the bar, cheating a customer, or trying to steal a whole country, the end result of disrespect for human rights and law is chaos and trouble.

Laws are made not alone to curb the evil-doer, but to give reasonable regulation to the lives of all people. It is through this dual function of law that Americans enjoy liberty and opportunities inherent in a free society.

Everyone Equal

No citizen is relegated to the sidelines in the fight to preserve law and order as our way of life. Each day we can strengthen our system in some way. By respecting and obeying all laws; by aiding public officials in the prevention of crime; by bearing witness against crime, and by serving on juries when we are called.

"Law Day USA" is not an experiment. It is the root of our very existence. As we observe this occasion, let us think of some of the rights we enjoy in America, and be thankful as we make the inevitable contrast with citizens of other nations. The principles of Americanism hold that everyone has:

The Right to good education.

The Right to live where he pleases.

The Right to work where he wants to.

The Right to worship according to his conscience.

The Right to a fair and speedy trial, if accused of crime.

The Right to vote secretly for candidates of his choice.

The Right to own property.

The Right to start his own business.

The Right to manage his own affairs.

The Right to make a profit or fail, depending on his own abilities.

Law Day is a proper reminder of the precious heritage which guarantees these rights and that their continuance depends upon respect for law and order.

Girl Scouts Produce A Radio Quiz

Members of Girl Scout Troop 85 climaxed their activities towards their Radio-Television Badge by entertaining the patients at Martin Army Hospital recently with a radio program.

The girls have been working on the badge for the past two months. Writing a quiz on Girl Scouting, to be given on the radio, was the final requirement, and in fulfilling this, with the assistance of personnel of Station WMAH, they were able to air their script.

Mrs. R. B. Gingrich, Mrs. R. C. Young, and Mrs. Edward Daniels accompanied the troop.

Post Military Police Praised; Letters Cite Special Instances

The Military Police Company, Infantry Center Troop Command, has been presented several letters of appreciation and commendation recently.

One of them is from the Columbus Police Department. Another is from the Continental Army Command.

One of the most recent letters of appreciation came from Columbus Police Chief E. S. Moncrieff, who expressed his thanks to military policemen who aided the Columbus Police during the February flood crisis.

The letter said, in part:

"The fine cooperation we received from you and other agencies, enabled us to handle our part of the situation more adroitly than we ever could have without your help. The manner in which you and others came forward to offer their assistance, renders me proud that I live in a community such as ours.

"However, the recent flood crisis was no exception since we have always enjoyed the full cooperation of Fort Benning, and shall continue to endeavor to provide the fine relationship that now exists between Fort Benning and the Columbus Police Department."

Gen. Herbert B. Powell, commanding general of the Continental Army Command, said in a letter to Major Gen. Hugh P. Harris, commanding general of The Infantry Center:

"The performance of duty by the Military Police at The Infantry Center during the visit of the Secretary of the Army at the ceremonies attendant to the Robert P. Patterson Memorial Award was outstanding."

Lt. Gen. Paul D. Adams, commanding general of Third Army, who initially received the letter, also penned his appreciation and commendation to the letter before sending the message to Gen. Harris.

The post commander added his own congratulatory message, saying:

"It is indeed gratifying to receive correspondence of this nature and I desire to commend you for this evidence of exemplary performance of duty which elicited such favorable comment."

Col. John J. Pavick, G-1 of The Infantry Center, capped the letters of appreciation by expressing his pleasure and "utmost" congratulations."

Cpl. Paul K. Fay, a military police traffic controlman, recently received a letter of appreciation from Capt. George H. Benford, foreign VIP action officer at the post. It was followed by a similar message from Lt. Col. James E. Farmer, Infantry Center provost marshal.

In each of the messages, Cpl. Fay was cited for "meritorious service performed in the presence of foreign visitors."

Major Gen. R. J. Butchers, provost marshal general of the Army, sent his congratulations to Gen. Harris regarding the Fort Benning Military Police Corps.

ROTC Cadets From 3 Areas Tour Benning

Approximately 155 ROTC cadets from Auburn University, Mercer University, Macon, and Wheaton (Ill.) College visited the post last weekend to see the Infantryman on the job.

Following a welcoming address Friday by Brig. Gen. A. D. Surles, Jr., deputy commanding general of The Infantry Center, the cadets toured the 1st Infantry Brigade area and observed a static arms display. They also attended an Army aircraft orientation at Fryar Field.

Thirty cadets from Mercer University arrived Thursday and 114 from Auburn University arrived Friday morning.

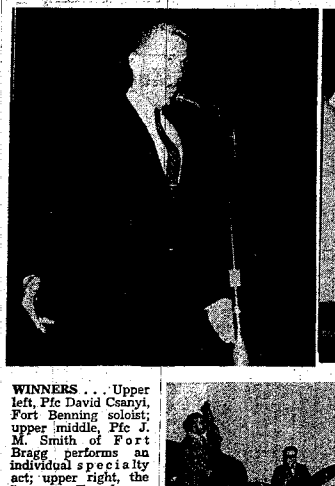
State Sec. Of Africa's Mali Tours

The secretary of state for defense of the Republic of Mali, Mamadou Diakite, visited Fort Benning Tuesday for a whirlwind look at Infantry School tactical training and techniques.

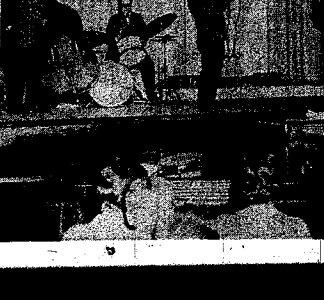
He was accompanied by Arva C. Floyd of the U. S. Department of State and Lt. Amara Danlaga of the Mali Army.



Located in former French West Africa, Mali became completely independent in June, 1960. It elected to remain within the French community. A landlocked nation, Mali borders Algeria, Niger, Upper Volta, Ivory Coast, Guinea, Senegal and Mauritania. It is nearly twice the size of Texas with a population slightly less than that of Georgia.

Col. Sydney E. Sacerdote, chief of the Associate Arms Group of The Infantry School's Command and Staff Department, was the project officer for the visit.

BUT WOULD WE LAUGH?



Alec Guinness says that British and American jokes are much the same. The only difference," he finds, "is that at home in London we tell them with a broad 'A'."

At Communications Department Luncheon

Ladies Group Speaker Is Post Legal Officer

The Infantry School Communication Department ladies met in the Normandy Room of the Main Officers Open Mess April 14 for their monthly luncheon. Hostesses for the luncheon were Mrs. Charles Benge, Mrs. Herbert Aycock and Mrs. Foy Privette.

Captain Robert S. Poydasheff, chief of military affairs, Claims and Legal Assistance, Staff Judge Advocate Section, was the guest speaker for the luncheon. Capt. Poydasheff's speech was timely since Law Day, U. S. A. is May 1.

Capt. Poydasheff mentioned that if the ladies of America are stockholders of the greatest corporation in the world, we must do something more than merely memorize and repeat the pledge of allegiance to the flag. We must make citizenship a career; we must control and limit unbridled, irresponsible criticisms of our leaders.

We should once again teach our children the glorious history of our country and the story of the lives and works of our national heros. We must be vigilant because the threat of communist world conquest by force and subversion is a very real and apparent danger.

The theme of the table decorations was "April Showers Bring May Flowers". The centerpiece consisted of a lovely arrangement of spring flowers with a beautiful pink umbrella.

Mrs. David Moore, Mrs. Thomas Black, Mrs. David Kennon, Mrs. Paul Smith, Mrs. David Hammond, Mrs. David Fleming, Mrs. Edwin Cannon, Mrs. Richard Schonberger and Mrs. Charles Hanson, whose husbands are attending the Infantry Communication Officers course, were welcomed. Mrs. Edgar Sinclair, who was the guest of Mrs. Glenn H. Gardner, was also welcomed.

Farewells were said to Mrs. William A. Van Dyke and Mrs. Samuel E. Holland. Both were presented with corsages.

Newcomer Introduced

Ladies of the Defense Committee served as hostesses for the Ranger Department Wives' April coffee held recently in the Anzio Room of the Main Officer's Open Mess.

Tiny red rosebuds set against a lacey backdrop of leaves and of greenery provided a most charming and springlike table decoration as designed and arranged by Mrs. Alvin Ornstein.

Danish pastries, small ham biscuits, assorted fruits, and tea and coffee were served.

Mrs. Jack E. Morton, newly arrived from the Mountain Ranger Camp in Dahlonega, was welcomed by the group, while farewell was bade to Mrs. Rene J. Pigeault who received as memento of the Ranger Department, a lovely sterling silver tray.

Eagerly discussed were plans for the forthcoming luncheon in May. Discussion also touched upon the coffees to be held during the summer months and many suggestions were offered.

Pat Ryan's News and Views

There is a dimension of time which centers around the phobia that the clocks are all running haywire in their breathless race to the last. Those who realize the swiftness of space and age enjoy their leisure time better than those who fret that they have nothing to do with their time. So this dimension varies from person to person, including those who don't give a darn. The phobia of time-running-out belongs to a split-personality which prefers to stay busy, but wishes the working hours could be awarded back for free ... like a bonus of time and a - half, or something. Those who have "nothing to do" can take note:

(Time for commercial). The Woman's Club can offer many worthwhile activities. Committee work or creative outlets can prove a challenge for the "inner woman" which is gregarious by nature. Many women are shy of taking on a responsibility with a woman's club because they are afraid of making mistakes which would cause a torrent of wrath upon them. This misguided opinion is overshadowed by the advantages gained by working with your chosen activity.

Anyway, the month of May is almost here and Mrs. Robert (Jan) Rose will be taking over as new publicity chairman. She announces it will be her pleasure to publicize the Woman's Club new officer's installation breakfast May 10, the pre-kindergarten graduation May 19, and the School of Dance recital ... all that and maybe even more during May.

This weekend is the art, ceramics and flower arrangement show at the Benning Country Club Sunday from 2 to 5 p.m. Come and enjoy yourself! We've enjoyed working on it for you.

Sincerely, Yours Truly

Jenni Johnson on Etiquette

DEAR JENNI: One day I looked out the window at the back yard, littered with toys as any play area is that has two youngsters, and I saw children that I'd never seen before. They lived quite a few houses away and I didn't know their parents.

They appear regularly and make themselves at home, and our toys disappear regularly. Could you mention this in your column, as I find there are others who have the same problem.

TOLERANT MOTHER

'DEAR TOLERANT MOTHER: You have my sympathy. This is of course an etiquette problem of the parents. They should feel responsible for their children's whereabouts, and what they do when out of sight. Many parents think they do wisely by letting them fend for themselves.

Walk your visitors home someday and explain to the parents that you feel responsible when their child is in your yard and as you cannot be there all the time, you want them to knock when they come to play. If they pay no attention to this you'll have to remove as many tempting toys as possible when your own children are not there to retrieve them.

You might even send a few toys home with the invaders and call the parents to tell them to keep them since they take them anyway. This might bring a more careful check of the scavengers by their own parents. Remember your own children will imitate your treatment of the intruders. Situations of this sort either perfect you for the diplomatic corp or make you miserable. Good Luck!

MAD HATTER ENTRIES AT NCO WIVES LUNCHEON
Range From Decorated Mops to Outer-Space Stations

Mad Hatter's Luncheon Tops NCO Club Events

The Mad Hatter's took over a recent Buffet luncheon held by the NCO Wives in the recreation room of their club building in the Old Hospital area.

Each member wore a hat which she had created ranging from an Outer Space Station to springtime creations of flowers, decorated mops.

Judges for the hat parade were Mrs. Elizabeth Tallent, Mrs. Bertha Bloise and Mrs. Margaret Boggs. Winner of the prize for most original design was Mrs. Roy Deetz wearing a hat depicting the Easter Egg Factory. Mrs. Walter Hutchko's spring bonnet of roses and fern was topped by a huge butterfly winning first prize as the prettiest for her

Mrs. Walter Earley and Mrs. Jack Knight, who were hostesses for the luncheon, served the many guests from a beautifully appointed table. The dining table was overlaid with an ivory cut work cloth centered with a large cake decorated with spun roses and in the shape of a bonnet, created by Mrs. Earley. At each end of the table were lovely arrangements of roses.

On April 19, the NCO Wives tucked their napkins under their chins and enjoyed the heaping plates of Italian Spaghetti and salad prepared by that marvelous chef MSgt Fritz. The delicious meal was served in the attractive recreation room of the club and was attended by a large percentage of the club membership.

The ladies put on their prettiest faces Thursday night and posed for profile sketching done by the artistic hands of Tony Mani of the Columbus School of Art. Mr. Mani, who is a well known artist in this area, demonstrated his great skill in the use of charcoal and pastels. His stimulating lecture was as artistic as his portraits.

The May calendar for the Wives Club is filled with many interesting features to be held in the club room. May 3 will be the date of the monthly business meeting. Nominees for the new slate of officers will be revealed by the nominating committee at this time.

On May 10 members will deck themselves out in their very oldest clothes for a Tacky Party at 1 p.m.

May 17 is luncheon day and this month it will be a covered dish. This is one of the favorite luncheons of club members. Eating time is 1 p.m.

May 25 at 8 p.m. will be the annual election. This is a date that should be marked on the calendar of every club member.

May 31 at 1 p.m. the NCO Wives will have a Beatnik party. An invitation is extended to all wives to don their most Beat attire and share in the fun of the club members in their club room.

Airborne Dept. Lunch

Recently, the Airborne-Air Mobility Officers' wives met in the Anzio Room of the Main Officers' Open Mess for luncheon. Hostesses for the occasion were Mesdames Eb W. Smith, Bobby E. Tharp, and Carroll F. Herron.

The decorative theme was spring planting time. Centering each table was a colorful geranium plant. Appointing the corners of the tables were arrangements of flower seed packets and flower bulbs nestled in greenery. Nearby were miniature brass garden tools.

After luncheon Mrs. Willard E. Harrison made a few announcements.

Mrs. Cabe, manager of the post florist, gave a talk about planting and care of flowers and bulbs. This was followed by a question and answer period.

Economic Theory Series Presented by Col. Schaefer

Stating that "The Constitution of the United States contains the greatest economic theory devised by humans — that of the right of the individual to benefit from the fruits of his labors," — Col. (Ret.) William H. Schaefer, president of the Columbus Chapter of the Retired Officer's Association, concluded a series of three discussions on economics.

Col. Shaefer opened the final discussion by explaining the indicators of the business cycle.

"Indicators show some change for the better," he went on, "but not enough to show great change in the immediate future."

He then explained the theories of some of the noted economists including Foster and Catchings, Veblen and Lord Keynes.

Col. Shaefer stated that "economically speaking" the theories of Veblen and Lord Keynes, "Are the basis of the New Deal, Fair Deal and the New Frontier."

In his first discussion Col. Schaefer covered, "What is inflation and what inflation has brought about in the U.S. today."

He continued in the second of the series with the effects of inflation, who pays for inflation and how does deflation or depression, occur.

In his concluding discussion on the economic philosophers Col. Schaefer told the group that Foster and Cathings and Lord Keynes based their "cures" to depression on "government spending" but he added that, "The government does not spend one penny more in true value than you would."

Col. Schaefer explained that he was not trying to convince anyone of the value of any economic theory but to give the citizen a chance to understand them.

Col. Schaefer, a member of the American Institute for Economic Research, became interested in economics while at the U. S. Military Academy at West Point.

All-Time Production Record Set in March By Post Field Printing Plant Personnel

The plant turned out 47,564,627 pages of printed material to break a previous high of 40 million pages printed in August.

Operating with 19 per cent fewer personnel than in August, the peak production can be attributed to the individual effort of each employee, officials said.

Lt. Col. Clarence W. Welch, chief of the printing plant, said that morale among the workers is extremely high.

"Everyone accepted responsibility and extended himself to make this maximum production possible," he said.

"Our projected estimate for fiscal year 1961 was 21 million pages per month," he continued. "When orders came in for more than twice the anticipated work load for March, our people tackled the problem with enthusiasm."

"It was their individual versatility that made it possible to fill the orders. When it seemed that a bottleneck might occur at one point in the process, men were shifted from their regular jobs to maintain a steady production," he added.

In March, 1960, the printing plant produced 25,444,909 pages with a working force of 110 men.

The March, 1961, production of more than 47 million pages was accomplished by 92 men. Operating hours remained the same at all times.

The largest order filled during the past month was 55,450 copies of Infantry Reference Data which required 8 million pages.

Operated by the Editorial and Pictorial Office of The Infantry School, the primary mission of the printing plant is to produce instructional literature for the school.

9th Inf Mail Clerk Tops All Third Army Vocalists

BY DIV PIO

The 9th Infantry's "singing mail clerk, "Specialist Four David Csanyi, warbled his way to first place in the vocal soloist division of the Third U. S. Army-level of the All-Army Entertainment Contest, concluded Saturday at Theater One.

Representing Fort Benning in the contest, Csanyi topped entrants in his division from nine other Third Army installations. The 25-year-old tenor, a professional singer and entertainer prior to his service call, captured the votes of the judges and the audience during the first night of the contest on April 20.

'Tonight'

Csanyi wrapped his vocal talents around "Tonight" from West Side Story and the popular upbeat number, "I'm Going to Live 'Til I Die."

Assigned to the 9th Infantry last November, the talent-loaded Csanyi has served as battle group chaplain's assistant and also as an information specialist. He was switched to the 9th's mail room in February. Csanyi sang his way to the top spot in his division in the Fort Benning phase of the All-Army Contest March 28.

Do Not 'Pander' to Popularity, British Officer Tells Non-Coms

BY PETER TATISTCHEFF

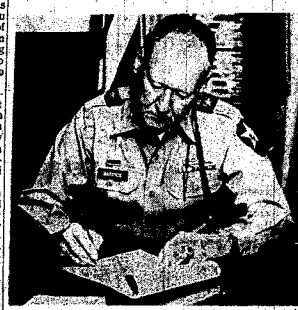
A distinguished British military officer Saturday warned non-commissioned officers against "pandering" to popularity because "it is a hard thing to gain the respect of men who know you well."

Lieutenant Colonel John S. McLaren, British liason officer to the Infantry Board and a member of the Somerset and Cornwall Light Infantry, was the featured speaker at the graduation ceremonies of the NCO Academy's Class 5-A.

All three of the traditional honor awards went to Sergeant Eugene Holland of Company A, 806th Engineer Battalion. He was cited for his military aptitude, academic achievement and overall performance.

Choosing "Down to Earth Leadership" as his topic, Col. McLaren told the graduates "you are leaders of men. I cannot think of a more honorable thing to be."

The colonel went on to point out the two most vital characteristics of a leader: his "high sense of duty" and "enthusiasm, the ability to inspire others by your own interest."



Col. McLaren issued this warning to the graduates:

"Leadership at its height means leading men by your own will and determination. As non-commissioned officers you are faced with the problem of living very close to the men you lead. It is a hard thing to gain the respect of men who know you well. Therefore, do not pander to popularity."

Col. McLaren, a 1940 graduate of the military academy at Aldershot, England, served in France as a platoon leader. On D Day he landed in Normandy as a company commander in the 6th Battalion, Green Howards. He was later wounded during this action.

In 1945, the colonel served in Greece and later in Egypt and Palestine. He was an instructor in the Company Commander Division of the School of Infantry and later became Commander of the research wing at the same school.

Captain James R. Woodall, Jr., commandant of the academy, introduced the speaker who presented the diplomas and spoke individually with the graduates.

Tour of 23rd 'Nostalgic' For Gen. C. D. Eddleman

General Clyde D. Eddleman, vice chief of staff of the United States Army, visited the 2nd Infantry Division last week, stopping off at the first unit he joined 37 years ago — the division's 23rd Infantry.

Upon his arrival in the division area, General Eddleman was greeted by Brigadier General William L. Hardick, commanding general of the 2nd Infantry Division. His tour of the division included a general staff briefing at division headquarters, viewing trainees of Battery B, 15th Artillery on the Malone Range trainfire course, a visit to the 23rd Infantry trophy room, and a miniature review.

In addressing the assemblage at the review, the four-star general said "It is a real pleasure to come back and be honored by the 2nd Infantry Division."

Recalling his joining the 23rd Infantry in 1924 at Fort Sam Houston, Texas, General Eddleman stated, "it was a famous division then and it is now."

"I know this division will be prepared to do its best if called upon to defend freedom against Communism."

Hailing from Monroe, Louisiana, Spears has nearly nine years active service time.

Two 9th Infantry NCOs reenlisted last week for a total of seven years in the Regular Army. Sergeant First Class Willie Bixler signed for four years and chose Hawaii as his next assignment. 69th Assists Local Guard In Training

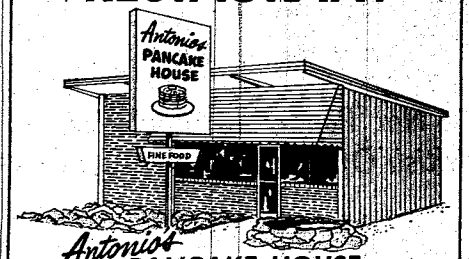
By 69th Armor PIO

The culmination of almost five months training for the tank crews of the 560th Engineer Battalion Georgia National Guard, Columbus, was reached Sunday, April 22, when the guardsmen fired the tank gun sub-caliber tables at Range 12.



The 69th Armor, which has been conducting the training for the guard units one Sunday each month since January, operated the range for the Guardsmen by providing the tanks, scorers and other personnel.

The training program included such armor subjects as turret familiarization, mechanical training of the tank gun and tank gun ammunition.

The effectiveness of the training is evidenced by the fact that 17 of the 22 "citizen-soldiers," participating qualified as expert gunners.

9th's Towe Retires Mon

By 9th Inf. PIO

The 9th Infantry's Personnel Officer, Chief Warrant Officer Lonnie E. Towe, says his farewells to the Army Monday after more than 20 years in uniform.

A native of Tennessee, Mr. Towe saw combat action in both World War II and the Korean War as an enlisted man. He was a non-commissioned officer when he gained his warrant in 1951. The holder of the Good Conduct and Army Commendation Medals, Mr. Towe joined the 9th Infantry in July 1960 from the 1st Cavalry Division in Korea.

He set to work immediately upon joining the "Keep Up the Fire" organization and completely reorganized the battle group personnel section. Working closely with the 9th's adjutant, Major Robert Kirk, Mr. Towe and his section labored long, hard hours. The time and work were well spent as the 9th Infantry personnel section swept through the annual Adjutant General's Inspection in November 1960 with a fine rating of superior.

Mr. Towe will enter government Civil Service work with the U.S. Embassy in Panama following his retirement. Chief Warrant Officer Holland Owens succeeded Chief Towe as the 9th's Personnel Officer.

AUSA Credo Believes in 'Tough, Ready, Mobile Army'

EDITOR'S NOTE: This the fourth of a series of stories on the Association of the United States Army written in conjunction with the Columbus - Phenix - City - Fort Benning Chapter's membership drive which ends May 10.

A tough, modern, mobile Army is essential to our security.

The Association of the United States Army firmly believes in this and it has set aims and objectives to forward such a program to produce such an Army.

At the 1960 annual meeting of the AUSA, a set of resolutions was adopted advocating and reaffirming the organization's belief in these objectives.

'Credo'

The Credo of the Association, which clearly voices the AUSA's position, reads as such:

"We of the Association of the United States Army hold that the security of the United States and the nations allied with us is fundamental.

"We believe that this security is attainable. We can afford it.

"The strategy of defence and containment through forward deployed forces is essential to free world security, but this strategy does not provide for retaliation if the deterrent fails. In such a case we must be prepared to carry the war to the enemy after the first nuclear strikes to bring the war to a rapid and successful conclusion.

"We must be strong — for only the strong can be free.

"If we are to leave this planet a place on which our children can work out their own destinies freely, we must be willing to meet the challenges of this fateful century with the same courage, sacrifice and patriotic belief as those who gave us our way of life."

The Association further pledges itself to continue to work for the best interests of the Army and the nation. To guide its endeavors, the AUSA adopted the following resolutions:

1. An active United States Army of not less than 1,000,000 men; and an Army reserve of a paid drill strength of not less than 300,000; and a National Guard of not less than 400,000.

'Modernized'

2. That the Army be immediately modernized by replacing all present obsolete and obsolescent weapons and equipment with new weapons and equipment with new weapons and equipment of the latest design.

3. That sufficient airlift utilizing modern aircraft be provided for immediate and assured availability to the Army.

4. That the Army be immediately freed of existing weight limitations on Army aircraft and limitations on the range and employment of missile systems.

5. That the development, production and deployment of the Nike-Zeus anti-missile missile system be placed on a national crash basis.

6. That the Army ROTC program be sustained and strengthened.

7. That the Association fully supports the objectives of the Mutual Security and Military Assistance programs.

8. That the Department of Defense and the Office of Civil and Defense Mobilization encourage local civil defense and military authorities to plan together the form of mutual assistance which may be required in the event of attack.

9. That local civil defense and military authorities coordinate plans which may required in the event of attack.

10. That the Association do all in its power to make the American public aware of chemical and biological weapons and how to protect and defend themselves against such an attack.

And 11. That the Association continue to support in every way the objectives of the One Army program.

Softball

Headquarters Company triumphed in softball over the Line Company "All Stars," 11-0 and then defeated Company C in the horseshoe finals, 21-6.

Specialist Four Jessie Jones, representing Company D, placed first in the grenade throwing contest. The event was judged on both accuracy and distance.

Combat Support Company out-tugged Alpha Company in the tug-o-war finals to cop this event.

The 23rd Infantry's Organization Day was climaxed by an old-fashioned pit cooked barbecue dinner.

In addition to General Hardick, the honored guests at Organization Day were Colonel Gustav M. Bacharach, Division chief of staff and former 23rd commander, and Colonel Joseph A. Kullin, commander of the 23rd's 3rd battle group, a reserve unit with headquarters in Harlingen, Texas.

23rd Flier Gets Wings Of Sr. Pilot

By 23rd Infantry PIO

Recently, Captain Daniel R. Stefanowich of the 23rd Infantry's S-3 office learned he had qualified for the wings of a Senior Aviator.

The notice came seven years to the month after he received his Army Aviation wings.

To qualify as a Senior Aviator a pilot must have logged 1,500 flying hours and have flown for at least seven years. It is signified by a star atop the wings worn by all qualified military aviators.

Actually, Captain Stefanowich became interested in airplanes several years before entering the Army, for he learned to fly as a civilian in Wyoming, Pennsylvania. He now has approximately 3,000 flying hours to his credit. Of these, some 2,300 hours are in fixed wing craft in which he is instrument qualified, while the remaining 700 hours are in helicopters.

$50 Search Closes Upon Quick Revelation

BY JOHN O'CONNOR

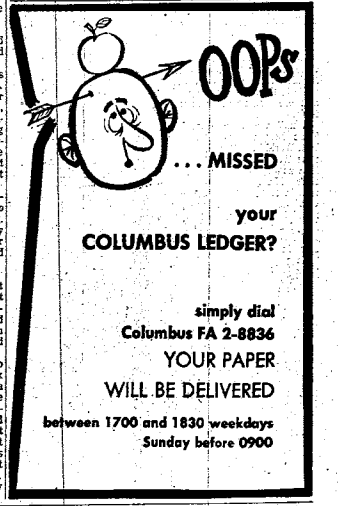
A trip to Columbus for two 1st Infantry privates turned into one of the most active evenings spent by the soldiers since they arrived at Fort Benning last September.

A short background about the central figure in the story is necessary to explain the soldiers' actions.

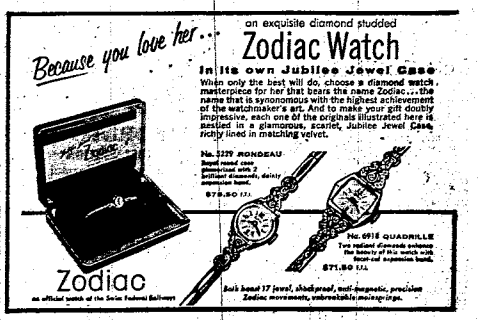
A $50 reward was being offered to anyone who could return a runaway dog which appeard recently in a dog show in Columbus. The dog is a rare Basenji breed which explains the owner's concern. The story appeared in local newspaper describing the dog, named Budget. The animal was a hairless dog and had a tail which curls into a near circle.

The animal had been sighted by many persons 'ut eluded capture.

Here is how the anonymous soldiers met up with Budget. As the two parked in the rear of a Victory Drive restaurant, one of them noticed a dog poking around a trash can. Having read the newspaper story carrying the dog's description the soldier suddenly realized that Budget was staring him right in the face.



He briefed his friend quickly and the pair advanced to within 10 feet of the dog. "Here, Budget, here boy," they called. The dog reacted to their kind words by darting around the side of the restaurant.



The chase was on.

Across Victory Drive went Budget with the soldiers hot on his trail. The dog disappeared in an immense field behind the many stores which line the thoroughfare and wasn't sighted again.

But $50 sounded too good, so the amateur dog catchers took to their auto. They began a systematic canvas of the neighborhood cheeking out every dog bark. Two hours and twenty-five minutes later, it dawned on one that Budget was a barkless dog. Darkness and their embarrassment put an abrupt end to their search.

Budget was located later, by a Columbus citizen.

Division Motor Pools Keep Infantry on the Move

By Div PIO

A motor pool, an essential part of every Infantry unit, consists not only of vehicles, but of the many men needed to serve them.

Whether the unit be an OVUREP unit or a training unit, motor pool personnel work on tight schedules to insure that every vehicle receives proper servicing, and that it is ready to move out at a moment's notice.

The 9th Infantry, typical of a training unit, maintains 119 vehicles. There are 17 mechanics working in their motor pool. These men must be thoroughly trained in all wheel and track type vehicles. In addition to these men, the unit's seven companies each day send a total of 52 drivers whose vehicles are at the service of the company training teams.

Operated under S-4, a motor pool contains, on the average, 200 vehicles of all types. Each vehicle on the daily running line is maintained in as perfect running condition as possible by their drivers and the motor pool mechanics. Other vehicles are maintained under storage sheds, ready for use when needed.

A motor pool is organized into various sections such as parts supply, painting, lubrication, and repair. The maintenance officer heads these sections. It is his job to insure that all vehicles, whether wheel or track type, be properly maintained and repaired. This includes proper lubrication, replacement of worn or broken parts, a thorough inspection and checkup every 90 days, spot welding, adjustments, painting when needed, and an assortment of other highly important activities.

Each driver has the responsibility of pulling daily operative checks on his vehicle, including correct tire pressure, correct oil level, washing of the vehicle, and the reporting of defective running and adjustments needed. The driver makes these checks before, during, and after operating the vehicle.

Most of this maintainence and servicing is accomplished at the motor pool garage. However, such major jobs as the replacement of engines is carried on by the Ordnance Corps at the next highest level.

The 1st Infantry motor pool personnel report that their 292 vehicles have travelled 442,441 miles since last September. In March alone, the speedometers registered 121,545 miles. This illustrates the amount of activity seen by a typical motor pool.

The vehicles and the many men who labor long hours maintaining or driving them are indespensible in providing the support so needed to keep the Infantry on the move.

imaginary trip to the deepest wilds of Georgia for their Troop Information class on the subject of "Poisonous Snakes."

The class, taught by Lieutenant Arnold L. Ross, was authentic in every detail. Not content with having pickled specimens to enhance the instruction, Lieutenant Ross and his assistant obtain tree branches and snake skins to hang about the room. As a final coup to the instruction, Lieutenant Ross secured the service of a local bongo player to give the sound effects needed for such a class.

Specimen

Members of the company were told of the various characteristics of each snake and its habits. Following each snake's portion in the instruction, a pickled specimen was passed about the classroom.

In addition to the instruction on the snakes, Lieutenant Ross gave a demonstration on the use of the snake bite kit.

'Prestige Welcome' Awaits New NCOs

BY CLAY LACY

Incoming non-commissioned officers at the 2nd Infantry Division's 23rd Infantry receive a cordial reception and complete briefing designed to uphold their NCO rank.

The person responsible for this "welcome mat" treatment is himself an NCO and the top non-com of the battle group.

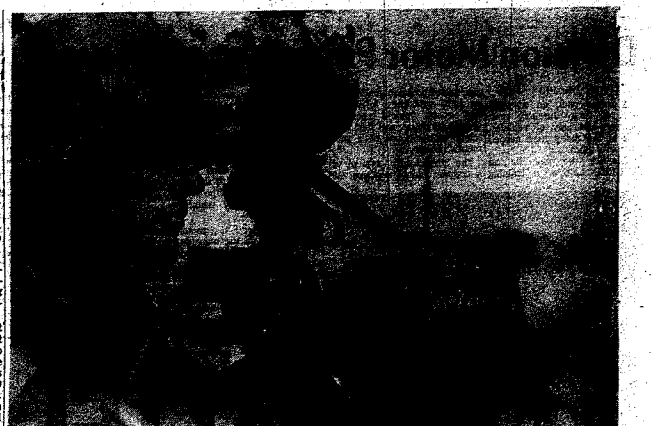
Sergeant Major Robert L. Brown has over 19 years' experience and service in the U. S. Army and has been a non-com since 1942! A native of Winchester, Virginia, he was promoted to Sergeant Major rank in May of 1959 and arrived at the 2nd Division in July the same year.

"I believe that an NCO should be shown from the start that he will be accorded the respect due him and, in this way, he will also know that I expect conduct and efficiency of an NCO level."

When a non-com reports to the 23rd Infantry, Sergeant Brown extends the welcome for the unit to him. In the initial orientation, the new member is given a briefing on the 23rd's history and his assignment within the battle group.

Next stop is an introduction to the battle group commander and the major staff officers. The 23rd's trophy room is then shown to the NCO.

For NCO's of First Sergeant rank, Sergeant Brown also escorts to division headquarters and an introduction to the division sergeant major, followed by a get-acquainted stop at the NCO Club.



Escort

Many incoming non-coms arrive at the battle group for their first tour at Fort Benning. For these members, Sergeant Brown assigns an NCO of equivalent rank or higher to escort the incoming NCO around the post and acquaint him with the various facilities.

Before the new member reports for duty in his unit he is also granted time to handle personal matters such as records check and financial settlement at personnel, getting quarters and enrolling his children in the local schools.

Sergeant Brown states that this system has benefitted not only the incoming members to the 23rd but also himself, since with this method he finds less problems arising after the NCO is established within his unit.

"We don't actually roll out a red carpet," says the genial Sergeant Major, "but we definitely let the non-com know that we're glad to have him as a member of the 'We Serve' unit."

English Comedy Slated For August Production

By Div PIO

The Sand Hill Actors Guild will next produce the three-act comedy, "White Sheep of the Family," at Service Club Two.

The Actors Guild members selected the English comedy April 19 and again chose Lieutenant Nelson L. Marsh, the guild's chairman and president, as the director for the new production. Lt. Marsh, public information and education officer for the 9th Infantry, directed "At War with the Army" for the guild in its spring 1961 presentation. He also directed "A Hatful of Rain" for the guild in August, 1960.

Lt. Marsh, a native Texan and a Journalism graduate at Texas Christian University, was awarded a trophy for his "outstanding directing" of the last two productions by the Infantry Center Special Services office.

The newly-selected "White Sheep" will be staged in August. The play calls for a cast of five men and four women. Tryouts, open to both guild members and non-members, will be conducted May 10 at Service Club Two.

The guild is currently engaged in a series of theater workshops supervised by Lt. Marsh each Wednesday evening at 7:30 p.m.

Mammoth Building Project Nearing Completion Date at Div's Kelley Hill

KELLEY HILL CHAPEL TAKES SHAPE

$1 Million Program to Provide Chapel, Gymnasium, Dispensary

By John O'Connor

A five-building construction project under the supervision and control of the Corps of Engineers, Savannah District, soon will provide Kelley Hill with a spacious gymnasium, a chapel, a combined regimental dispensary and dental clinic and two regimental headquarters buildings.

Three civilian firms have been contracted to erect the near $1 million project.

R-A COMMISSION... Captain Rolla Lowery recently was sworn in as a Regular Army captain at Headquarters, 122nd Signal Battalion, by Major Earl R. LeVier, battalion commander. The seven-year veteran is a graduate of Montana State College.

Work has begun on all five buildings, with Williams Construction Co. of Columbus leading the way as contractors for the gymnasium and chapel.

The gymnasium, being built at a cost of $255,000, is at the halfway point in construction. Work began on the structure last November and will be completed this October.

The gym is the largest building and will have a seating capacity of 1,296 for sporting events. It features a regulation basketball court, handball courts, an exercise room, a boxing ring, showers and personal lockers. Special Services offices also will be located within the structure.

Chapel

The $170,000 chapel will seat 300 for services. The building also provides for chaplains' offices and an activity wing for socials. The chapel is at the 40 per cent completion mark and will be ready by September.

Work on the regimental dispensary and dental clinic began only recently, with B. F. M. Construction of Bainbridge, Ga., handling the construction of the 245,000 dollar building.

It is at the one per cent completion stage as ground breaking is going on at present. The building is scheduled for occupancy next spring.

Headquarters

The two regimental headquarters buildings are at the eight per cent completion mark and are contracted to the Whitley and Minter Construction Co. of Brunswick, Ga. The combined cost of the two buildings is $260,000.

Kelley Hill is the center for OVUREP training at Fort Benning. The 1st, 11th, and 87th Infantry units are presently garrisoned there. The addition of these new facilities will rank it among the most modern training centers in the entire Army.

Arcos rose in three and one-half years from carpenter to foreman with the Zachary Company. GEN. HARDICK, LEFT, COL. CONNOR OBSERVE 'MASTERS' FIRING

87th Holds Trainfire Masters Competition

By 87th Inf PIO

Bickford Range was the site of the 87th Infantry Trainfire Masters Competition last Saturday.

Colonel Robert E. Connor recognized both Recruit David C. Rodriquez, Combat Support Company, who finished first, and Recruit Richard L. Carstens, who took second place. Colonel Connor stated that the actual awards ceremony would take place during the review to be held on May 6.

Brigadier General William L. Hardick, 2nd Division Commander, in his observation of the firers and their scores, noted approvingly at the progress of the non-prior service personnel.

'Best'

Captain Andrew Marquis, match director, explained that the firers represented the two best marksmen from each of the companies engaged in Basic Combat Training. Competitors were Recruit Donald Telrico and Recruit Howard Grimes, Company A; Recruit Richard Isbell and Recruit Leslie Boatwright, Company B; Recruit Jary Adams and Recruit Gerald Moore, Company C; Recruit Richard Carstens and Recruit David Garcia, Company D; Recruit Donald Olson and Recruit Joseph McCarthy, Company E, and Recruit David Rodriquez and Recruit John Russell, Combat Support Company.

Administrative personnel for the match were provided by Headquarters Company.

Bickford Range, selected because of its neutrality, proved to be quite conducive to trainfire competition. The range was very similar to actual battle field terrain.

High Water Fails to Halt 1st's Engineer Platoon

The Engineer platoon of the 1st Infantry was hard-pressed by time and drenching rain as it struggled to improve muddy approaches along Randall Creek during the battle group's first division field traning exercise of Advanced Unit Training.

On the exercise, engineers worked in ankle-deep mud to fill treacherous sections of road with rock fill, and cut a new ford along the banks of the rain-swollen creek.

Sections of the road were paved with small logs to prevent vehicles from bogging down. Nearly 1,000 hardwood logs were used in the operation with the logs having a diameter of five inches on the average. To cover one yard of muddy road seven logs were needed.

Each rifle company supplied eight men to the engineer platoon to make certain that improvements were made before the battle group crossed the creek.

On Wednesday evening, the battle group made a night withdrawal over the roads without incident. A bulldozer was at the ford to assist vehicles which bog down in the creek. Only one vehicle had trouble crossing. An umpire jeep bogged down because its front wheel drive wasn't functioning.

This is the second exercise in which road improvements by the platoon have led to swift battle group movements.

Gen Hardick's Law Day Message

1 May 1961 has been designated as LAW DAY USA. As such, this day has been set aside as a time for conscious recognition of the vital importance of the law in our free society. Since this nation gained its independence, its laws have been enacted by its citizens. The orderly processes of laws enacted by freely elected legislative bodies have been the basis of this nation's remarkable expansion and its continuing development. The personnel of the Armed Forces of the United States have fought against the enemies of individual freedom to preserve the people's right of self-government under the law. We, the soldiers, have pledged ourselves to defend the principles which made this country and its citizens free. On the First of May, each of us should pause and reflect about his rights and duties under the Constitution of the United States, laws enacted by Congress, State laws, the Code of Conduct, and the customs of the service.

'Chuck Wagon' Serves 69th Unit

By 69th Armor PIO

Mobility, the key word of Armor, now describes even the mess hall in Company A of the 69th Armor.

Using a standard two-and-a-half ton truck, the personnel of A Company created a rolling kitchen, complete with three field ranges, wall-to-wall cabinets and working space. It even boasts of direct and indirect lighting.

The mobile mess was designed by Captain Cecil O. Burbank, the commanding officer.

The mess has received extensive initiation under field conditions during the recent OVUREP training support provided by the company.

The happy smile on the face of a cold, wet tanker as he watched steaming, hot chow placed on his tray seemed to say "well done."

Tankers Set For Annual Qualification

Members of the 69th Armor moved to the field last Thursday and Friday to prepare for the annual qualification of tank commander and gunners. The group is under the command of Captain Donald D. Modica.

All preliminary firing is done with .30 Caliber Machine Guns because range space limitations at Fort Benning prohibit the use of 90 millimeter guns.

The entire Tank Battalion will move to Fort Stewart, Georgia, for qualification with the 90 millimeter gun, .50 Caliber machine gun, and the .30 caliber machine gun. There they will be tested on boresighting, zeroing, hitting the target with the first round, and firing on a moving target.

The tankers will participate in night firing problems which will test the ability of the tank crew to function as a team.

Chaplain's Mission: Bringing God to Man

By 9th Inf. PIO

"To bring men to God and God to man."

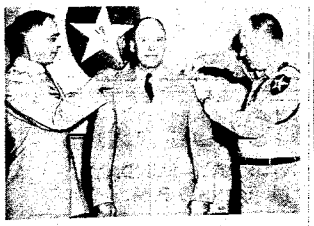
Briefly, this phrase describes the military mission of the 9th Infantry's Chaplain (Lieutenant) Mace T. Jett.

Chaplain Jett strives to complete his mission through his constant effort to spread the words of God to the officers and men of the 9th Infantry. He carries out his mission as the many chaplains before him through his strong faith and belief in God.

A 1953 graduate of Bethel College in McKenzie, Tennessee, Chaplain Jett gained his Bachelor of Divinity Degree in 1959 from Cumberland Presbyterian Seminary in Waynesboro, Tennessee. Prior to his higher education, Chaplain Jett had made his decision to work for God when he was only 13. He delivered his first sermon at this time at the request of his minister.

As 9th Infantry chaplain he holds many responsibilities and a considerably full schedule. Other than his regular Sunday services in Chapel 4, the "Keep Up The Fire" unit chaplain pays weekly visits to Martin Army Hospital.

Chaplain Jett holds private counselling sessions at all hours of the day and night in an attempt to ease personal burdens of 9th Infantry members. He also conducts character guidance classes several times monthly.



Chaplain Jett's normal duties also include those activities engaged in by all ordained ministers such as performing marriage ceremonies, baptismals, and memorial services for deceased 9th Infantry personnel.

Most of the clerical and chapel maintenance work is taken care of by Specialist Four Tony Hamby, Chaplain Jett's assistant since the chaplain joined the battle group from the 87th Infantry in January.

Married in 1951, the chaplain and his wife Shirley have two daughters. Before joining the Army, Chaplain Jett was for more than six years pastor of the Cumberland Presbyterian Church in Waynesboro. A native of Detroit, Michigan, the chaplain thoroughly believes that through personal contact with the men, he is able to help them apply the scriptures to everyday life.

Sixteen Jobs Mean 16 Tax Headaches

BY 1ST INF PIO

If anyone burned the midnight oil to meet the income tax deadline it was Private Larry R. Goodwin of Company D, 1st Infantry.

Before entering the service last September, Goodwin worked for 16 different employers. This created many headaches for the rifle team leader.

Goodwin worked as a stagehand, an electrician for film companies shooting movies on location in Florida. He has worked on the sets of several movies which include "Hate in the Head," "The Rose Tattoo," "Beneath the Twelve Mile Reef" and "Angel Baby." Goodwin made his screen debut in "Angel Baby," receiving $25 as an extra during a church scene.

Movie Stars

He has met movie stars like Cary Grant, Tony Curtis, Janet Leigh, Burt Lancaster and Jerry Lewis.

Just prior to his entering the service, he had the extreme pleasure of being master electrician for the Miss Universe contest.

Goodwin's future looks bright in many ways. Just think how easy it will be to file a return next year now that he has only one employer — the U.S. Army.

87th Recruit Top Man on New Trainfire Course

Company E of the 87th Infantry has been fortunate in receiving some of the Army's better recruit riflemen.

Among these is the Division's top recruit firer for the new trainfire course. High man with a score of 98 was Recruit Donald A. Olson from Riverside, California.

Recruit Olson attributes his skill to early experience given him by his father on their many hunting trips in the mountains of California.

Only 24 years old, Recruit Olson holds two college degrees and worked as a lumber salesman prior to being drafted.

Service Club 4 Advisory Council Plans a Full Summer Schedule

By 87th Inf PIO

The Advisory Council for Service Club 4 on Kelley Hill has been reconstituted after a lapse of several months.

The new council will assist lub director, Elizabeth Shanks, with plans for the summer program and will act as liaison with unit personnel in a recruiting program.

"We could certainly use volunteer workers on the weekend," said Miss Shanks this week, as she looked forward to a stepped-up schedule with the approach of summer.

The Advisory Council also is acting as a sounding board for new ideas. On the schedule now are several old favorites, including outdoor dances and weekend tours. Coming up in May are trips to the Little White House in Warm Springs, Ga., and the Ida Casons Gardens.

The Advisory Council represents the 87th, the 11th, and the 1st Infantry units.

Lecture on Inf. Traditions Presented to Trainees

By Richard Hassar

"You are the fighters; the first ones into combat and the last ones out!"

Thus begins the 9th Infantry's class on History and Traditions of the U.S. Infantry as presented by Lieutenant James McKay of the battle group instructional team.

The 2nd Infantry Division and the 9th Infantry feel their members need the basic knowledge and pride in their organization to insure the success of their mission. Without this pride and understanding the soldier could not properly discharge his military duties. The 9th Infantry's History and Traditions class lends great assistance in instilling a needed esprit de corps in its trainees and cadremen alike.

The class traces the early and later day history of the Infantry, pictorally presenting the Infantry's development and its traditions. The historical evolution includes the birth and advancement of both the Rangers and the Airborne.

The oration, together with the many slides of battle scenes, gives the trainee the story of the oldest fighting branch in the Army. The class traces the American Infantryman from his victories in the American Revolution through all battles and wars, both major and minor.

This account of our historical heritage is then summarized by the presentation of the epic poem "I Am the Infantry." The words of this recitation are almost sure to remain with the soldiers who hear it for years to come: "I am the Infantry. Queen of Battles. Follow Me!"

1st's Hqs Co. Drubs 'Echo'

By 1st Inf. PIO

The opening game of the 1st Infantry softball league saw Headquarters Company drub Company E by a lopsided 17-0 score.

The softball is slightly larger than a baseball, but in the hands of Co. E pitchers it seemed to be of baseball proportions to the power-packed Headquarters lineup.

Headquarters began to roll up the double figure score in the first inning when Private Franklin D. Richardson belted a waistihgh fast ball for the first home run of the season with one mate aboard.

They added two more in the fourth and went on to score 11 runs in the fifth inning on solid hitting and inefficient Co. E fielding.

While Headquarters batters worked over Co. E. pitchers, Specialist Five Luther Portis mowed Echo's batters as they struck out or popped up in the wake of his blazing fast ball.

Only one man reached third base, Private Sam Young, Echo's catcher. Young took over for Lieutenant Herbert Alford on the hill and silenced Headquarters booming bats in the final frame.

Captures 1st Place In Golf Tourney

By 9th Inf. PIO

Lieutenant Nick Powell's hot putter blazed him to the top rung in the 9th Infantry Battle Group Golf Tournament concluded April 24 at the Fort Benning Country Club.

Lt. Powell shook off a slow start and roared home with a net score of 73. He fired a scratch total of 86 and lopped off 13 strokes under the Callaway systems of handicap scoring. Under this system the worst holes are deducted to obtain the golfer's handicap. The number of holes discarded depends on the scratch score fired.

While Lt. Powell was capping the first flight, Lieutenant Sharon Weary shot to the top of the second flight with a net of 72. Lt. Weary easily captured his flight by three strokes over the runner-up, Captain Robert Gunn with a 76 net.

Captain Allan J. Francisco nabbed honors in the third flight with a fine net score of 72, top net score of the tourney. Capt. Francisco barely edged past Captain Benjamin Hamilton who recorded a net of 73.

Three Tie

Three golfers tied for the runner-up slot in the first flight. Major Robert Street, Captain William Sewell and Sergeant Hugo Jarrell all recorded net totals of 75, two strokes behind Lt. Powell's winning total.

All flight winners will receive prizes in recognition of their victories in the 9th's golf competition.

Manchu Squad Retains Three From Last Year

By 9th Inf. PIO

The "Keep Up the Fire" 9th Infantry softball squad opens the season May 1 against Division Artillery at the latters' home field in Sand Hill.

Three men return from the 9th's 1960 squad that captured both the Fort Benning and Third U.S. Army company-level softball crowns. Lieutenant Billy White, executive officer of Company A, will again lend his fire-balling slants to the 9th's cause. He fired four no-hitters in the 1960 Fort Benning and Third Army tournaments. The right-hander won 10 and lost two in 1960.

Either Lt. White or Lieutenant Robert Given, Company C platoon leader, will open for the 9th against the "Cannoneer" squad. Lieutenant Max Powell, the 9th's coach and athletic and recreation officer, will catch for the Manchus. He swatted the ball at a .343 clip in 1960.

Also returning from the champion 1960 squad is the third baseman, Private First Class Harry Hall of the 9th's Weapons Pool. PFC Hall batted .274 last season, and raked with the top bunters and fielders in the Third Army.

Signal Drops Three Games To Armor Hq

By 69th Armor PIO

The 69th Armor Headquarters Company softball team picked up three successive victories last week, running their winning streak to five in a row.

Earl Smith, Bobby Burrows and Chuck Bootle each pitched masterful games to keep the "Panthers" in first place in the Separate Battalions Softball Tournament.

Armor Hq, 7 — Signal "B", 1

April 19 — Tankers collected five hits and defeated Company B, 122nd Signal Battalion by a score of 7 - 1. Earl Smith scattered three hits and struck out seven, running his total strikeouts to 24 in 17 innings and winning his third game in as many outings.

Armor Hq, 17 — Signal "A", 6

April 20 — The Tankers defeated Company A, 122nd Signal Battalion 17-6. With Bobby Burrows picking up the victory. Virgil Brown and Gaylor Hawkins hit homers and drove in three runs each. Harold Gaither had a single, double and triple in four trips to the plate.

Armor Hq, 12 —Signal Hq, 2

April 21 — The Tankers took another game from the signal battalion with a 12-2 score as Chuck Bootle pitched a no-hitter. For the second day in a row, Hawkins hit a homer but it was the big bat of Harold Pitts, making a homer, triple and single in four trips, that paced the attack.

Gaither and Walter Crowley's defensive play saved Bootle's no-hitter. In the second inning Gaither went in the hole between short and third to police up Smith's grounder and nipped him by a step. In the fifth, Crowley took a hit from Webb on a pop fly to short left center. Crowley charged the ball to make last minute grab. Chuck Bootle had control trouble in the fourth and gave up five walks in a row to score the only runs for Signal's Headquarters Company.

Bootle struck out six, walked six but gave up no hits.

Bowling Tips

Learn to Think the Game; Self-Control Important

BY BOB CHASE

After learning to play a game, an equally important part remains to be accomplished. I refer to it as learning to think a game.

King's Pond, Fort Benning's favorite fishing spot, is due to re-open in early June, according to reports from the post's Fish and Game Maintenance Association.

The actual date will depend upon a final survey by Georgia state biologists which will continue for about a month after fishing begins.

During this study a number of controls will be in effect including regulation of days and hours when fishing will be permitted. All fish caught will be classified and recorded by the state people who expect to learn of spawning rates, fry growths, qualities of the waters and so on.

These controls and attendant studies will be beneficial to the sport as a whole and on one point in particular . . . prevention of wholesale taking of fish as happened at Weems Pond last year. Imposed limits are to be generous but not to the point where tubs could outnumber creels.

King's has also been beautified by our Wild Life Aides who have created some seven acres of picnic grounds adjacent to the water and Special Services is to provide some 30 to 40 picnic benches. These features added to increased shore lines and a carefully nurtured fish population should make the whole family happy.

Membership in the Fort Benning F&G Association now costs three dollars, a jump made necessary by the loss of the revenue usually gained through our annual Fish and Skish Tournament. Major changes in the Association's administration make planning of a 1961 spring tournament literally impossible and right now it's a matter of "everything going out and nothing coming in."

So — the added buck is to help defray expenses of pond fertilizer, seed, repairs to harrows, tractors, and all other costs incidental to an operation of this size.

By the way, those of you who haven't as yet picked up your memberships and licenses will find that the "packet deal" of membership, hunting and fishing licenses has been sold up by the non-arrival of Georgia's hunting licenses. They should be in in another two or three weeks.

Incomplete reports of Spring Gobbler hunting indicate some 14 toms taken on post. If you haven't reported yours, please give the Association a ring.

Bass fishing has been very slow but come next month things should break loose in that department once the little fellas go on their own.

. . . and that's about it for April.

Any group of bowlers which achieves success as my teammates and I have been fortunate enough to do, must learn self control as well as ball control. This is possibly even more important than the mechanics of the game.

Bowling, in common with the other sports, is as much mental as it is physical. No athlete, regardless of his skill, can be a winner unless he has ability to concentrate upon the task at hand.

Leagues Toughest

In this respect, league bowling is much more difficult than tournament bowling such as our team takes part in. This is because in league bowling there is a greater time lag between shots, plus the fact that there are a number of persons sitting on the bench discussing many things other than bowling, making it difficult to concentrate on your next shot.

You must develop this ability to think about the next shot regardless of distractions, however, if you are to achieve your maximum potential. Concentration is a valuable asset and is worth X number of pins added to your average if you can achieve it.

Nervousness is a sign of lack of concentration. Apply yourself to what you wish to accomplish on the next shot and you won't have time to be nervous.

Control Reaction

A person can help or harm his game by his reaction to the results of his shots. All of us are human, and therefore subject to a certain amount of error. This includes highly proficient bowlers such as exhibition teams as well as beginners and recreational bowlers. Not all your shots are going to hit the pins exactly as you had planned.

Should the 10-pin not fall, the properly prepared bowler realizes that the head pin was not hit fully enough to carry the 6-pin back into the 10-pin. On succeeding shots he will attempt a correction. The poorly prepared bowler will become agitated, blame fate, bad lanes or equipment and ruin several shots instead of one.

I've shot at a number of 10-pins. So have my teammates and so do all professional bowlers. Most of us consider them easy spares. We take them in stride and try not to let it damage our game.

Think about your own game to the exclusion of your opponent's. If you divide your attention between your game and his, you cannot give proper attention to your own game. Concentrate on your game and let the other fellow take care of his. If you can do this you will become a more accomplished bowler and will enjoy a fine sport to a much greater degree.

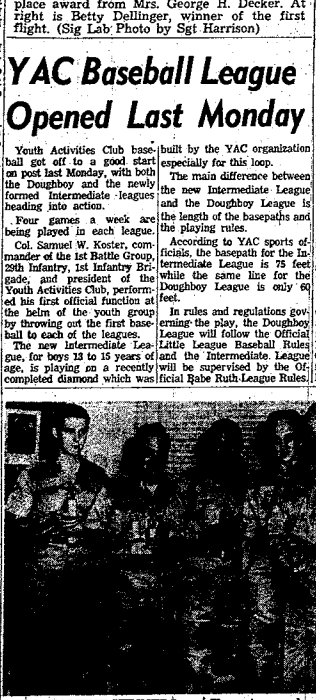
YAC Baseball League Opened Last Monday

Youth Activities Club baseball got off to a good start on post last Monday, with both the Doughboy and the newly formed Intermediate leagues heading into action.

Four games a week are being played in each league.



Col. Samuel W. Koster, commander of the 1st Battle Group, 29th Infantry, 1st Infantry Brigade, and president of the Youth Activities Club, performed his first official function at the helm of the youth group by throwing out the first baseball to each of the leagues.

The new Intermediate League, for boys 13 to 15 years of age, is playing on a recently completed diamond which was built by the YAC organization especially for this loop.

The main difference between the new Intermediate League and the Doughboy League is the length of the basepaths and the playing rules.

According to YAC sports officials, the basepath for the Intermediate League is 75 feet while the same line for the Doughboy League is only 60 feet.

In rules and regulations governing the play, the Doughboy League will follow the Official Little League Baseball Rules and the Intermediate League will be supervised by the Official Babe Ruth League Rules.

Fishing Facts; And Fantasies

"Truth is stranger than fiction" the learned angler Izaak Walton might have punned.

Truth is certainly stranger than fiction when it comes to fishing. While you may scoff at "fish stories," some of the actual facts about the world of marlin, minnow and muskellunge are more amazing than any fisherman's yarn.

Alfred Dean doubtless "reeled" when he saw what was at the end of his line one day in 1939 at Ceduna, South Australia — a white shark weighing 2,664 lb., on record as the biggest fish ever caught with a rod. Mr. Dean was just scratching the piscatorial surface, however — some whale sharks are said to weigh up to 67 tons!

This sounds like Rod propaganda, but isn't — the largest fresh-water fish, the giant Russian sturgeon found in the Volga River, has weighed in at as much as 3,221 lb. (1.44 tons), and measured up to 26 feet in length.

Smallest Fish

"Shrimps" of the finny tribe are the male guppy fish—which is smaller than a queen bee and tries to keep up with the Caribbean social "swim" — and a variety of the spiny-finned goby fish with the fancy handle of "Pandaka pygmaea." He needs a moniker like that to make any sort of splash in the chi-chi fish circles of the Philippine Island lakes, considering that he "scales" at only a fraction over three-eighths of an inch, soaking wet.

Some fish, not many, live long enough to enjoy their Social Security benefits. European pike are no pikers when it comes to longevity — some grow to an age of 60 to 70. An 81-inch-long, 215-pound sturgeon caught on July 15, 1958 in the Lake of the Woods, Kenora, Ontario, Canada, was believed to be 150 years old. But most fish are not good actuarial bets — for them it's a short and happy life, out of the mire into the frying pan.

Fish Have Meanings

Fish are not only a source of sport — mystical meanings are also attached to the denizens of the deep. The fish early became a Christian symbol: Christ fed the multitude with five loaves and two fishes, and He made His disciples "fishers of men." In parts of India the belief persists that fish are the favorite food of ghosts. In the Caribbean the notion still flourishes that men who live on fish will never grow old, because fish are always young.

Communities that are dependent on fish for their diet or commerce hold special ceremonies. Many western Europeans spit on the hook to insure a catch. In France a clergyman blesses the sea; in Alaska, the first fish of the season is specially honored. During the fishing season, the Queen Charlotte Islanders banish one of their tribe to the mountains; he may not light a fire or communicate with other members of the tribe. If he breaks the rule, he's in a "pretty kettle of fish" — but that's another story.

Kettle of Fish

A "kettle of fish" was the old Scottish way of describing a picnic featuring salmon boiled in their brine. The guests sat around partaking, gypsy-fashion, and the discomfort of this salmon orgy probably gave rise to the phrase which is still used in describing an awkward state of affairs, a muddle, or a mess. A pity that those bonnie highlanders didn't have cook stoves—but then, that would have "kilt" a perfectly wonderful saying.

Benning Golfers Place Fourth In Tri-State Meet

Major Robert Himes was the low golfer for the post squad, posting a score of 78-77-79—234.

Other Fort Benning members and scores were MSgt. Howard Holbrook 79-78-85—242; SSgt. Paul Wolfe, 78-79-80—237; Pfc Bruce Busby, 83-81-84 — 248, and Col. Paul T. Clifford, 84-87-78—249.

Shaw Air Force Base, S.C., was winner of the tournament. Parris Island won runner-up honors.

On Army Crafts

Mr. Cook Applauds Meeting

Over 35 Army representatives from the continental U.S. and overseas commands attended a training meeting for staff crafts directors which was held in Miami Beach, Fla., over last weekend.

Representing the Third Army area was Hugh E. Cook of Columbus, Fort Benning crafts director. Cook was designated by Third Army as the command representative in lieu of a command level director.

In summarizing the conference, the first to be held in three years, Cook remarked:

"This was the best training conference I ever had the pleasure of attending."

The training and discussion sessions were conducted by the Department of the Army Special Services Office. The keynote speech was delivered by Dr. Howard S. Conant, chairman, Department of Arts Education at New York University.

The concise and well conducted conference brought about successful understanding of the Army crafts program and it was suggested that the conferences be held on an annual basis, according to Cook.

Subjects of discussion ranged from evaluation of all Department of the Army craft contests, improving staff management and fund implementation, civilian career program, pertinent Army regulations concerning the crafts program and craft programs that are sometimes at off-post sites.

Lucky Foxtrot

1st Brigade Takes Part In Exercise

From April 14 to 16, 12 officers and 14 enlisted men from the 1st Infantry Brigade participated in Command Post Exercise Lucky Foxtrot at Fort Gordon.

Lucky Foxtrot was a continuation of a series of Lucky exercises which placed the Third Army in a theoretical combat situation on the European continent.

These exercises, which have been held since 1957, are designed to provide training for commanders and staff in realistic combat conditions.

The 1st Brigade, commanded by Col. Charles T. Horner, had the mission of Rear Area Security Force. Along with three Infantry battle groups and three armored cavalry regiments and miscellaneous units, the 1st Brigade had the responsibility for securing the rear area of the Third Army in which the largest portion of the Army administrative facilities were located.

New Student Evaluation System Set

Orientation Class 16, Detachment 22, 2nd Student Battalion, The Student Brigade, is acting as the pilot group for a new concept of officer evaluation at The Infantry School.

The new concept not only puts emphasis on examinations in the classrooms and in the field, but also on conduct and actions when not under direct examination. An important aspect of this system will be the analysis of leadership potential. The officers will be counselled in both their strong and weak points, helping to emphasize the strong and improve the weak.

Previously, aptitude was determined by the scores obtained on a series of examinations covering the various fields of instruction given during the eight weeks.

Allied officers from Turkey and Liberia are also enrolled in Orientation 16.

Snakebite? Don't Panic

(AFPS) — "You have nothing to fear but fear itself," says Army Sfc Bill Kennedy, paraphrasing a celebrated remark by President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Kennedy is talking to a class of basic medical specialist trainees at Brooke Army Medical Center at Fort Sam Houston. He lets his words sink in. Then to emphasize them he shakes a shatterproof cage of steel and glass on which the students' eyes are riveted.

A furious buzzing sound crackles through the room. Inside the cage, 13 vicious looking diamondback rattlesnakes, brash angrily and coil to strike. The class is spellbound. One thing Sgt. Kennedy never has to worry about is a trainee losing interest.

"These diamondbacks are still kind of sleppy," he says, "but when I get a chance to work with them for a while then you'll really hear some noise. These fellows were still hibernating yesterday and I had to smoke them out of their nest."

Deftly he reaches into the cage with a forked stick and extracts five feet of lethal crotalus adamanteus. "This fellow should give us some action," says Kennedy as several of his students hastily back away.

It's all new to the trainees, but for the sergeant it's just part of his job. Each basic medic trainee at Brooke gets such instruction on snakes and poisonous insects — and some practical advice from Kennedy based on his 35 years of experience with reptiles.

New Craft Facilities Added at 1st Brigade

Post craft shop facilities were increased recently when the official opening of three new craft facilities at the 1st Infantry Brigade Craft Shop 7 touched off the expansion movement on a large scale.

The 1st Brigade craft shop includes facilities for woodworking, automotive, ceramics, photography, leathercraft, radio and U-control models, painting and drawing and metalwork.

Officially opening the new additions to the craft shop were Col. Charles T. Horner, commander of the brigade; Major Paul L. Beckman, Infantry Center Special Services Officer; SMaj Othon O. Valet, sergeant major of the brigade, and Mr. Hugh E. Cook of Columbus, Fort Benning crafts director.

The four permanent type buildings being planned will be constructed on the Main Post, Kelley Hill and at Sand Hill. Two shops will be built on the Main Post.

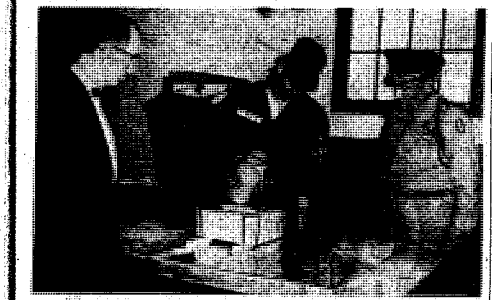
Among the facilities to be included with the new shops will be television and radio repair and all types of electronic experiments and repairs.

The craft program at Fort Benning was initiated March 1, 1955. Named as the first post craft director was Mr. Cook, who has served in that capacity since the facility was included into the special services program.

Post craft shop facilities. Most of those man hours include soldiers on their off duty time. Also included in the tabulation are the many dependents and post-employed civilians.

Post craft facilities serve between 30,000 and 40,000 military participants and between 60,000 and 70,000 dependents and civilians in the Columbus, Fort Benning and Phenix City area.

The post craft shop also serves as a central supply point for Warner Robins Air Force Base, and Bilexi, Miss., for repair items for remote control and U-Control models.



Individual order services requests are also filled here. Should a customer order a special item or group of items, individual order requests are filed and the purchases are returned here within a week or 10 days.

Future plans call for an addition of four new multiple-type craft shops to be erected on the military post. The facilities are being established as outlined in the pamphlet "Space Utilization Plans and Design Criteria for Army Permanent Type Buildings," which is authorized by the Department of the Army and endorsed by the office of the Chief of Engineers.

Graduates' Ability Doubled After Speedreading Course

After only 20 hours of instruction at The Infantry Center's Educational Development Section, 16 post personnel have, on an average, more than doubled their reading speed.

Six officers, nine enlisted personnel and one civilian employee completing the Army's speedreading course recently jumped from a class average of 250 to 576 words per minute, according to Leonard S. Osley, education supervisor.

Reading comprehension, on which students were tested, developed at the same rate, Osley added, thanks to a method of instruction using a machine called the Perceptoscope.

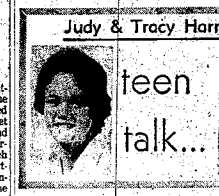
Col. John J. Pavick, The Infantry Center's G-1, who presented certificates to the graduates, called the effort to improve reading skill a great credit to the individual and of much value to the Army. The colonel reminded them of today's volume of reading matter and time considerations.

The Perceptoscope, which flashes printed pages upon a screen, was used by the class instructor, Crawford Thompson.

Completing the speedreading course were Chaplain (Major) Russell K. Lee, 1st Infantry Brigade; Chaplain (Capt.) Richard I. Carty, assistant Infantry Center Chaplain; Capts. John F. Bart, The Infantry School's Editorial and Pictorial Office, John Welch, Command and Staff Department, Russel M. Brami, 1st Armored Rifle Battalion, 58th Infantry, 1st Infantry Brigade, and 1st Lt. William U. Evans, Jr., 5th Howitzer Battalion, 38th Artillery, 2nd Infantry Division.

MSgt John C. Koon, Company C, Infantry School Battalion; Sfc's George W. Devening, Company A, ISB, David A. Doyle, Company C, 1st Battalion, Infantry Center Troop Command, and Edwin A. Thompson, Company C, ISB; Sgt Gerald C. Peterson, Headquarters Battery, 2nd Howitzer Battalion, 10th Artillery, 1st Infantry Brigade; Cpl. Thomas Myers, 1st ARB, 58th Infantry, 1st Infantry Brigade; Spc's Kenneth R. Epperson, Company A, 1st Battalion, Infantry Center Troop Command, Walter J. Owens, Company C, ISB, and Allen Young of The Infantry School.

One civilian employee, William J. Abell, Jr., of The Infantry Center's G-4 Section, was among the graduates.



New speedreading classes will begin at the Educational Development Section April 11 to meet for one month on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 4 to 6 p.m.

Connie Stevens took her two-pound Yorkshire terrier, Nui, to Hartford, Conn., for location shooting of "Parrish" — but the hotel wouldn't permit the diminutive ball of fluff. "He's very good," pleaded Connie. "And they fed him filet mignon on the plane." But the hotel stood firm. "He might bite the maid," explained hotel officials.

The big excitement at most of the Columbus schools this last week was the annual federal inspection. As yet, however, the ratings are not available. The ROTC cadets as well as the student body anticipate the final results.

BAKER

Student council elections were recently held at BHS. Herb Roberts and Tomps Grey reached the finals for the office of president, with Herb Roberts finally being awarded the office. Lloyd Hukin was elected secretary.

"Two-four-six-eight!" — a familiar cheering phrase highlighted the election of BHS 1961-62 cheerleaders. Sissy Witt was one of the girls chosen to represent her school.

Student - Teacher day will come to Baker soon, ending another school year.

"Mr. Ugly" of BHS is Ismael Nazario. Other Benningites in competition were Newton Gingrich, Johnny Redsey and Ken Wessener.

COLUMBUS

Posters and signs array the senior homerooms as the "Registered Voters Committee" campaigned for 18-year-old seniors to register and vote in the general elections.

The annual career day was held last Tuesday at CHS. The day is set aside each year to give the juniors and seniors of CHS a view of careers. The Key Club sponsors this affair.

The sophomores at CHS are planning a picnic at Yuchi Reservation in Seale, Ala., May 26. From reports received, it should be quite an affair.

Sandra Taylor, co-editor of the "Blue Streak", interviewed Art Linkletter while he was in Columbus for a business conference. Quite an interesting interview, we hear.

PACELLI

Student council campaigning is being held at PHS, too. Elections are to be held today.

The Loyalty Drive at Pacelli was won by the Junior Class. They will be rewarded by a picnic at Tom Huston's.

The Civil War Centennial Cotillion was held last week, sponsored by the CYC. The dress was the mode of the day.

Seven Sever Ties

The election of Abraham Lincoln to the Presidency in 1860 triggered the states of the deep South into enacting ordinances of secession. By February of 1861 seven states had declared themselves out of the Union. The seven were South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, Florida, Mississippi, Louisiana and Texas.

Only Nine Complete Brigade's Expert Infantryman's Testing

After three grueling weeks of preparation, the first class of the 1st Infantry Brigade's Expert Infantryman Badge test completed their training April 15. The actual test for the badge was conducted from April 17 - 21, and when the smoke cleared, nine candidates —three officers and six enlisted men — had passed the test.

Forty-one of the original class of 50 candidates had failed one or more of the 16 phases of the test. Physical training claimed the most candidates, dropping 18 by the roadside.

On Lt. Jagels (C). At Right Is Lt. Pavlic

Mines and demolitions took its share as 17 candidates failed to gain qualifying scores of at least 70 per cent. Day and night compass courses also pointed out an area of much needed work.

7 From 29th Infantry

Seven of the nine candidates who passed all phases of the test came from the 1st Battle Group, 29th Infantry. The remaining two were from the 1st Armored Rifle Battalion, 58th Infantry.

High man in the graduating group was Cpl. Richard J. Murphy, Company C, 29th Infantry, who accumulated a total of 1543 points out of a possible 1900. He was closely followed by the three officers in the group, with 2nd Lt. Daniel J. Pavlic, Company E, 29th Infantry, taking second place with 1530 points.

Won Badges

In addition to Cpl. Murphy and Lt. Pavlic, the graduating members of the class were 2nd Lt. Martin G. Jagels, 29th Infantry; 2nd Lt. Thomas C. Eidson, Company D, 29th Infantry; Sfc James H. Daniels, Company A, 58th Infantry; Sgt. Herbert O. Hardy and Sgt. George M. Jones, both of Company C, 29th Infantry; Spt Joe L. Aguilera, Company D, 29th Infantry; and Spt Robert F. Hodges, Company A, 58th Infantry.

Class 2 of the program began training on April 24, with 45 candidates. The EIB test will be administered for this class from May 8-11.

Shows Lieutenant's Determination

From Paralysis to Iron Lung And Walking Since Christmas

BY IDA C. EVANS

From iron lung to a week-end trip under his own power represents a lot of hard work on the part of a young lieutenant at Martin Army Hospital.

The patient gives the doctor, nurses and therapists all the credit for his victory over paralysis while they, in turn, say "Sam did it himself."

Air Force 2nd Lt. Samuel John Reed IV, entered Martin Hospital Christmas Day, 1960. He had been flown to the U.S. from British Guiana Christmas Eve, paralyzed from the chest down.

Christmas dinner was forgotten as doctors donned white coats over dress blues to perform an emergency tracheotomy and install the suffocating young officer in a respirator.

Two months later, after many hours of tedious concentrated effort, the patient was walking around the hospital on crutches.

Goes on Pass

Finally came the day when he was able to leave the hospital without crutches and carrying his own luggage, bound for a weekend pass.

As he stood at the door saying good-by to his doctor Lt. Reed remarked that he was not leaving by the same door he had entered Christmas day.

The doctor's reply was, "No, you were carried in, but you are walking out as you predicted."

Although many people contributed to Lt. Reed's recovery, Dr. (Capt.) Raymond H. Bishop Jr., a member of the hospital's Department of Medicine, feels the patient's attitude contributed largely to the success of his treatment.

The chief physical therapist, Major Ruth Bradley, said, "In cases like this, it's up to the patient. What he gets out of therapy depends on how hard he tries. Lt. Reed worked hard," she added.

The physical therapy used by the hospital was extensive. First the patient was helped to move his muscles as he lay on his own bed. Then came exercises on mats in a physical therapy treatment room.

As soon as he was able to sit up, Lt. Red began to study maps and to talk about getting back on the job in British Guiana.

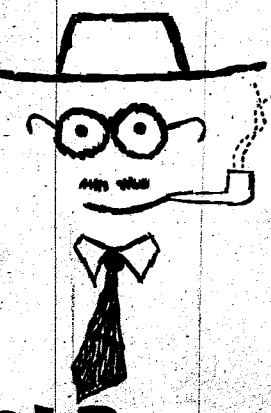
The lieutenant is a member of the 1370th Photo-Mapping Wing of MATS, based at Turner Air Force Base.

He was on a mission at Atkinson Field, 50 miles inland on British Guiana's Demerara River, when he was stricken with paralysis, known as Guillain Barre Syndrome (acute infectious polyneuritis). He is expected to rejoin his outfit in the near future.

Hunt Club Riders Win 3 Honors

The Fort Benning Hunt Club was well represented in the Columbus Quarter Club Horse Show, held April 6.

Miss Robby White, riding "Babe," took first place in the afternoon show in the western pleasure horse category. She returned with "Babe" for the evening show and took third place in the same category. Miss White is the daughter of Capt. Clyde White who is presently stationed in Korea.



Mrs. Renate Ruzich, riding instructor for the Hunt Club, took a second place award in the evening show, English pleasure class, while riding "Cossack". Mrs. Ruzich is the wife of Capt. Rudolph Ruzich, executive officer at The Infantry Center Reception Center.

This is the first time club members have participated in local riding competition.

Civil War Note

The Civil War was, after the Napoleonic struggles, the largest and longest major conflict in the 19th century. Intensely dramatic, it was the last American war wherein Infantry attacked in the open in dense formations. The Civil War saw the employment also of railroads, balloons, telegraphs, steamships, armor plate, revolving turrets, rifled artillery, long-range rifles and even breechloaders.

The Surgeon Says

Cure Cancer; Detect Early

By Major Robert H. Quinn, MD

Cancer, one of the most dreaded diseases known to mankind, can be, and is, curable, providing it is detected and treated in its early stages.

A question that comes to mind is — what is cancer? Cancer is a disorderly growth of the body's tissue cells. Beginning with one diseased cell that divides itself into two, then four, then eight cells and so on, it forces its way among normal healthy cells around it, stealing nourishment as it propagates.

This form of cancer growth is called colonization. Once a colony becomes well rooted among the healthy cells of the body, eventually a diseased member travels to another part of the body via the blood stream or lymph channels and begins to form another colony.

This method of transmission can continue until your life is snuffed out. Cancer, in order to be cured, must be arrested in its early stages before it spreads to other parts of the body.

Seven Warning Signs

People are sensitive and often refuse to discuss cancer with anyone. They fear cancer, so they don't like to think about it, not even long enough to learn a few simple basic facts which might some day save their lives. Seven common warning signs that everyone should know are:

Any sore that does not heal.

A lump or thickening, in the breast or elsewhere.

Unusual bleeding or discharge.

Any change in a wart or mole.

Persistent indigestion or difficulty in swallowing.

Persistent hoarseness or cough.

Any change in normal bowel habits.

Another good point to remember is that cancer is not contagious. It is not a communicable disease like tuberculosis or the common cold. You cannot get it by contact nor can you give it to another person.

If you think that you have any one of the aforementioned seven possible signs of cancer, see your doctor immediately. It may not be cancer at all, but why take the chance? Don't procrastinate. Do it now. In fact, see your medical doctor (MD) at least once a year for a complete physical checkup. If you are over forty-five, get a checkup twice a year.

There is no known "home-remedy" on the market today that will cure cancer. Some may camouflage the symptoms temporarily, but time is of the utmost importance. The delay in getting expert medical attention might cost you your life.

Watch Out For "Quacks"

Don't be misled by so-called "doctors" and "quacks" who advertise that they can cure cancer with salves, medicines, injections or by mechanical measures. All they accomplish is cheat you out of your hard-earned money and probably do you more harm than good. Remember, it is your life that they are toying with.

Don't be panicked by the thought of cancer but consider the possibility that you could have it with all the seriousness it deserves. You have the power to lessen the chance of becoming a victim.

Know the danger signs and if any of them appear, see a physician at your earliest convenience. A knowledge of these seven warning signs has saved many lives and some day it could save yours. Help catch cancer, the number two killer — with a regular check-up.

(NOTE: Female cancer detection clinic is conducted at Martin Army Hospital, 1-3 p.m. on the second Thursday of each month. Phone 4-1701 or 4-2933 for an appointment).

Lockheed Plant Visited by Gen. Walsh Monday

Brig. Gen. L. A. Walsh, Jr., assistant commandant of The Infantry School, and Col. Willard E. Harrison, director of The School's Airborne, Air-Mobility Department, visited the Lockheed Aircraft Corp., in Marietta, Ga., on Monday.

They toured the plant with Third Army officials headed by Lt. Gen. Paul D. Adams, commanding general of Third Army.

At Chapel Sunday

Concert to Offer Soloist, And Ancient Instruments

The public is invited to attend a concert at 7:30 p.m. Sunday at the Main Post Chapel.

The eighth in a series of monthly secular concerts, the program will feature Mrs. Ellen Jane Buckner, soprano, and the Recorders Ensemble, with Donald Carr of Columbus as accompanist.

Mrs. Buckner will sing "Sempre Libre" from "La Traviata," "Hello" from "The Telephone" by Menotti, and groups of French and English songs.

The Recorders Ensemble will play Purcell's "Fairy Queen", introductory Elizabethan numbers and selections from Handel, Fisher and Bach.

The ensemble will accompany Mrs. Buckner in a group of American mountain songs.

Mrs. Buckner's professional experience includes singing with the Dallas Opera Company, St. John Terrill's Musicals-in-the Round, Showboat, the operas, "Der Fledermaus" and "Amahl and the Night Visitors," and seven major musical comedies.

Director of music at the Main Post Protestant Chapel, Mrs. Buckner has served as a church soloist and choir director for many years. She is a teacher in the James B. Key Elementary School in Columbus.

Members of the Recorders Ensemble include Dr. and Mrs. Frank B. Schley, Jr., and Dr. and Mrs. Walker P. Rivers, all of Columbus.

A wood-wind instrument, the recorder first became popular during the Middle Ages, when it was used by wandering minstrels. Under the reigns of Henry VII and Henry VIII in England, the recorder was cultivated with intensity. Henry VIII owned 76 recorders and was an accomplished performer. The instrument was especially well adapted to the music of the Elizabethan and Shakesperian era.

With the growing popularity of the flute in the 18th Century, the recorder was little used until the beginning of the 20th Century.

Keeps Vehicles Rolling

Post Salvage Yard Yields Almost $113,000

By Pfc Del Berghoefer

Nearly $113,000 has been found in a salvage yard at Fort Benning.

The Infantry Center has made a "gold mine" out of a graveyard of unserviceable vehicles, taking repair parts from them to help keep other military transport vehicles rolling.

This salvage yard, referred to by the malevolent - sounding name of "Cannibalization Point," was established 15 months ago by The Infantry Center Ordnance Section, commanded by Col. John M. Woestenburg.

Before the CP was established, unserviceable vehicles were transferred to the local property disposal officer for sale or donation to other defense agencies. None of the proceeds of the sales was returned to the post.

Under the new procedure vehicles are transferred to the CP and all serviceable parts from them are used to fill supply requests. By doing this the installation has realized a savings of approximately $113,000. At the same time it has reclaimed nearly 30 per cent of the original investment in the vehicles.

Units and organizations send requests for repair parts to the Ordnance Section Supply Branch. Supplies are issued from inventory or from the CP. The only difference is that parts issued from regular inventory are paid for by the customer, but there is no charge for parts issued from the CP.

If the CP doesn't have the item on one of its vehicles, the request is held for a reasonable length of time then sent back to the accountable property officer for further supply action.

In addition to saving money for the Army, the practice cuts the time needed to repair a vehicle. Previously if a repair part was not immediately available, it had to be requisitioned from a central supply depot. This meant that many vehicles were idle while waiting shipment of repairs.

Under the present system a unit can make a requisition for a repair part and if it is not in stock the request will be forwarded to the CP. In a matter of several days the item will be removed, sent back to the unit requesting it and the vehicle is repaired, having been idle for only a short time.

The CP is under the supervision of the ordnance accountable property officer, Clarence J. Hammond of Columbus, who must at all times have a complete knowledge of all types of the more than 70 trucks and trailers at the salvage yard which range in size from one-quarter to five-ton.

Manager of the CP is MSgt Henry M. Bates, who has worked in ordnance units for 15 of his 18 years of military service.

Sgt. Bates emphasized that all requests for repair parts must go through proper requisitioning procedure before parts can be issued from the CP.

"We have good control because we follow our standard operating procedures very strictly," he said. "Not one piece goes out of here without proper procedures being followed."

He added that many people come directly to the CP for repair parts thinking it is a junk yard where they can pick up anything they want. This is definitely not so, Sgt. Bates said.

In addition to ordnance units, others which normally go through the Ordnance Section for repairs may requisition parts through the CP. These include the Transportation Section, Ground Mobility Department of The Infantry School and the Infantry Board.

A study is under way to determine the feasibility of a common CP for equipment of all technical services at Benning.

THAT'S DIFFERENT

Hauled into court on a charge of stealing a package of pork chops, a man in Montgomery, Ala., denied the whole story. He said the meat was beef steak.
