Gen. Walsh's Infantry School Report

Basically the Ground Mobility Department's mission is to develop the future Infantry leaders' comprehension of the ability of a tactical unit to move effectively under combat conditions.

This comprehension is achieved by establishing the intended design characteristics of ground vehicular equipment; discussing methods of training personnel to operate the equipment effectively; and demonstration of the system essential to maintaining an acceptable level of vehicular combat effectiveness.

In addition to leader training in vehicular mobility, specialist classes are also instructed in detailed technical know-how of the Army maintenance system.

Specifically, the mission of the Department is:

To prepare and present instruction in technical training pertaining to maintenance, organization and employment, including capabilities and limitations, of mechanical ground movement equipment of Infantry, airborne Infantry and armored Infantry units.

To initiate, develop, review, and evaluate doctrine, organization, procedures, techniques and materiel requirements in areas of assigned instructional responsibilities. This will involve present time frame as well as future time frame as directed.

To prepare and revise Army field manuals, training programs, training tests, training circulars, training film scenarios and other training literature pertinent to assigned areas of instruction.

To review instructional material prepared by the Department of Non-Resident Instruction pertaining to assigned areas of instructional responsibility.

To conduct, coordinate and submit recommendations on special surveys and studies pertaining to areas of instructional responsibility as directed.

To accomplish this mission

Col. Pavey Is Named New Chief of Staff

COL. SHERRARD

Col. Sherrard Departs For Overseas Position

A top staff change takes place here this Saturday when Col. Kenneth G. Pavey succeeds Col. Robert G. Sherrard, Jr., as chief of staff of The Infantry Center.

Col. Sherrard departed the post this month on leave, and will be reassigned to Headquarters Caribbean Command at Quarry Heights, Panama Canal Zone, effective February 5. He has served as chief of staff of The Infantry Center since June, 1959.

Col. Pavey has been assigned at Fort Benning since April, 1959, as assistant chief of staff, G-3. He had last served as comptroller, U. S. Army, Alaska.

A graduate of the University of Nebraska, Col. Pavey was commissioned a second lieutenant in the Army Infantry Reserve in 1932. He has held a variety of troop and staff positions.

Foremost among these have been tours as an Infantry battalion commander; on the staff and faculty of the Command and General Staff College; assistant chief of staff, Operations and Training, Continental Army Command, and assistant chief of staff, G-4, Headquarters, U. S. Army Europe.

He commanded the 9th Infantry Regiment at Fort Lewis in 1956, and remained in command of the unit when it went to Ladd Air Force Base, Alaska, and was reorganized as a battle group.

Col. Pavey has attended the Command and General Staff College and the Army War College.

Among his decorations and awards are the Bronze Star Medal with Oak Leaf Cluster and the French Croix de Guerre.

January Quota For Dependents O'Seas Closed

Third Army has informed this headquarters that numerous messages are being received by the commanders of the Army in Europe and the Pacific requesting authority for dependent travel to foreign areas in January.

This results from previous announcements that travel to certain foreign areas would be curtailed after this month.

Travel for 3,200 dependents in January has been approved and port calls issued according to the Third Army message. No further authorizations for travel of dependents in January is contemplated, and all personnel are requested not to make applications for request for dependent travel during January.

January 7 Writers League To Hear Editor

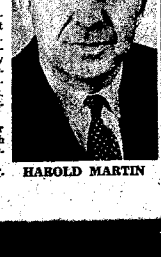
Harold H. Martin, associate editor of The Saturday Evening Post and columnist of the Atlanta Constitution, will be the guest of honor at the chapter banquet of the Armed Forces Writers League here January 7.

The reception and dinner given by the Sword and Pen chapter of the organization will begin at 7 p.m. in the Main Officers' Open Mess.

Membership in the Armed Forces Writers League is open to all military personnel, dependents and civilians connected with the services. Meetings are held the second Thursday of each month.

Mrs. Cecil Stafford has succeeded Sfc Clay Lacy as vice-president of the group, Sgt. Lacy will enter the Information School at Fort Slocum, next week.

Other officers of the organization, which was initiated at the post last summer, are Lt. Col. Steve W. Mulkey Jr., president; Chaplain (Mrt.) Roy Lemoine, secretary - treasurer, and Mrs. Peg Teeters, Major Rolfe Hillman and Capt. John H. Hook, Steering Committee.



Reservations for the charter banquet may be made with Capt. Hook at FA 5-3659 during duty hours.

Mr. Martin will speak briefly at the event. He is the author of the current best-seller, "Father's Day Comes But Once a Year: — And Then It Always Rains."

A native of Commerce, Ga., Mr. Martin received a journalism degree from the University of Georgia. He was a sports writer on the Atlanta Georgian and when it folded in 1939, went to the Constitution as a columnist.

During World War II he serv.

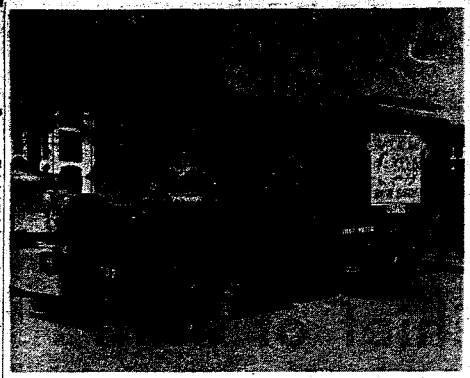
Final ceremonies are slated January 26 for Mechanics Class 6, with 49 men, at 11 a.m. in Ground Mobility.

Writers



ed in the Pacific as a Marine, first as an intelligence officer and then as a writer dealing principally with Marine Corps aviation exploits. Stationed on Okinawa, he wrote a story about a lady pig, "The Fat'Lady of Okinawa," which was published by The Saturday Evening Post.

Following the war, Mr. Martin was a contract writer with The Post and during the Korean conflict became a regular staff writer for the magazine. He continued writing a column three times a week for the Constitution.

During the last decade Mr. Martin has maintained his residence in Atlanta but has covered assignments in the Pacific, Europe, the Far East, South America as far south as Buenos Aires and North America as far north as Thule, Greenland and an ice island adjacent to the Pole.

His latest expedition was to Liberia for a story about one of the few tranquil spots left in Africa.

Mrs. Martin will accompany her husband to Fort Benning. They will tour the post January 8 before returning to Atlanta.

To Commemorate Civil War

Centennial to Feature Elaborate Ceremonies

(AFPS) — Bruce Catton, probably the most popular of Civil War historians, has called that great conflict "the Hamlet, and King Lear of the American past. . . the unforgettable experience that teaches us something basic about life which we would not know otherwise."

If Mr. Catton is right, the nation is in for an intensive refresher course about the stirring events of 1861-1865 in the year ahead. The Civil War Centennial Commission, headed by Major Gen. Ulysses S. Grant III, the 79-year-old grandson of our 18th President, has been working industriously on an elaborate program of observances and re-enactments of major events ever since Congress set it up in 1957.

On March 4, 43 days after President-elect Kennedy takes the oath of office, another President will be inaugurated in Washington. His name? Abraham Lincoln, in the person of actor Raymond Massey whose performance was memorable in Robert E. Sherwood's "Abe Lincoln in Illinois," the Pulitzer Prize-winning play for 1939.

"The South may have lost the war, but it appears to be winning the centennial," says Earl S. Betts, the CWCC's executive director. So far the facts bear him out. Forty-three states are planning centennial observances at a total cost of $3 million, and more than half of that sum will be spent by Southern states where many of the war's major battles were fought.

From 1861 to 1865 there were about 1,000 engagements of Union and Confederate forces, of which the CWCC considers only 100 significant of mention. Of the 100, 36 will be commemorated by ceremonies including, of course, such major battles as Bull Run, Shiloh, Mechanicsville, Antietam, Fredericksburg, Chancellorsville, Gettysburg, Chickamauga, Chattanooga, the Wilderness, Spotsylvania, Atlanta, Nashville, and the naval battle between the Monitor and the Merrimac off Hampton Roads, Va.

While the nation salutes both the Blue and the Gray, the publishing and entertainment industries will not be idle in documenting and dramatizing the conflict. In 1960 alone, 250 books about the Civil War rolled off the presses to swell the enormous body of histories, biographies and fiction already in print. The 1961 output is expected to exceed that mark.

In television one of the major networks has slated a special documentary titled "1861—the Crucible," and another is reserving 22 hours for Civil War programming in the first six months of the year alone.

Finally, on the nation's movie screens, Scarlett, Rhett, Melanie and Ashley will swirl through the war and the Reconstruction as "Gone With the Wind" comes off the Hollywood shelf again to enthrall a new generation.

Safety Program Wheels

The Student Brigade's drive on safety was conducted literally on wheels this year. Using a sound truck that broadcasted music, three noon periods were devoted to publicizing the safe driving tips of "Sgt. Safety."

Sgt. Safety was a Student Brigade creation designed to caution drivers about the hazards of long auto trips. "Live" voices were used to impart reality and hold the attention of the audiences.

The mess areas were the important objective, considering the hour and the large numbers of soldiers gathered for their lunch.

The program was held in conjunction with the over - all Fort Benning drive to reduce traffic accidents and fatalities.

SPEAKER . . . Col. Kenneth J. Hodson, chief of Military Justice of the Department of the Army's Staff Judge-Advocate Office in Washington, D.C., was guest speaker at the Columbus Lawyers Club meeting last evening at the Ralston Hotel. He discussed military justice in the Army.

AER Drive Is Cited By Third Army

Of the $678,098 contributed to the joint annual fund campaign of Army Emergency Reuef (AER) and the Army Relief Society for 1960, $108,835 was contributed by Third Army personnel, according to Major Gen. Edward F. Witsell (USA, Retired), AER Director.

Gen. Witsell made the above figures known in a recent letter to the Third Army commander, Lt. Gen. Paul D. Adams.

At the beginning of the 1960 fund campaign it was suggested that each command or installation with an AER Section in its headquarters raise as its "fair share" goal approximately 15 per cent of the amount spent by that AER Section for assistance during 1959. In order that those commands which met or exceeded the suggested "fair share" goal might be especially recognized for their efforts, the Officers and Board of Managers of AER inaugurated a "Certificate in Appreciation" to be awarded eligible activities at the close of the campaign.

Gen. Adams was advised by Gen. Witsell that installations in the Third Army area which have been sent such certificates were Fort Benning, Fort Bragg, Fort Campbell, Fort Gordon, Fort Jackson, Fort McClellan, Redstone Arsenal and Fort Rucker.

200 Million Yearly Take In Iraq Oil

Iraq, located in southwestern Asia, is one of the modern Arab states which arose after WWI from the ruins of the Ottoman Empire. Somewhat larger than California, Iraq's 171,598 square miles contain approximately six million people. And about 80 per cent of them derive their living directly or indirectly from the soil.

Oil is the only mineral extensively exploited and this industry ranks first in Iraq, accounting for a $200 million profit each year. An estimated 18 million date palms make Iraq the world's largest producer of dates. Other fruits grown are oranges, apples, apricots and lemons.

The population of Iraq is not particularly homogeneous. Divided by native language, the breakdown is roughly 79 per cent Arabic, 16 per cent Persian and 2 per cent Turkish. Arabic is the official language but English is widely spoken as a second language among commercial, professional and governmental personnel.

Over 90 per cent of the people are Moslems, a little more than half of whom belong to the Shiite sect rather than the orthodox Sunnite group. Education in its early stages is free but lacks adequate facilities for universal implementation. In 1947, 87 per cent of the population over five years of age was illiterate. This percentage, however, has been declining steadily.

Iraq has been a U. N. member since 1945 and its government is a constitutional monarchy with a Senate and Chamber of Deputies. Justice is administered by courts of various grades.

Sgt. Arlee Grubbs' topside topics

For the second month of 1961 the temporary enlisted promotion quotas released by the Army to field commanders shows an increase. The February allocations are 14,635 for some 2,200 more than this month's quota. Again the big news was improvements in grades E-7 and E-6, with the promotions to E-5 also up for February. The frozen MOS picture remained about the same for the February allocations which look like this by grades: To E-9, 164; to E-8, 527, to E-7, 707; to E-6, 1,354; to E-5, 2,749; and to E-4, 9,134. This is an increase in every pay grade over January.

P-2 Pro Pay to Eight New Jobs

The Army has announced the new $60 extra a month in P-2 Proficiency ratings for some 800 enlisted personnel in 24 skill levels of eight new MOS's. The ratings and the payments became effective the first day of January. The MOS's listed by the Army were 248, 252, 294, 823, 986, 987, 056 and 058, all in skill levels beginning at one and ranging through seven.

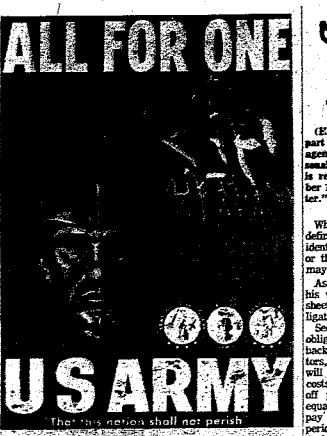
'Yank' Magazine Special Edition

The famed 'Yank' Magzine that was born in World War II and at its peak in 1945 employed some 500 officers and enlisted personnel to publish some 16 editions from all theaters of operations, is publishing a special 1961 edition. The magazine ceased regular weekly publication at the end of World War II, but the Office of the Armed Forces Information and Education, Department of Defense, maintains the name and copyright by publishing one issue each year. The magazine which had a peak circulation of 2.5 million weekly, is spotlighting the American serviceman's educational opportunities in the special 1961 edition.

Air Force '20 or More' Quota

The Air Force has announced a program intended to be into full swing by the beginning of Fiscal Year 1963 for control of re-up quotas for personnel with more than 20 years service. This is said to be part of a controlled program designed to keep a balance in MOS and skills for airmen at all levels and not to have an overbalance of skills in the top grades.

Alien Registration Cards



Just a reminder to all those personnel who may not be citizens of the U.S. that they are required to forward an address card to Washington during the month of January each year. These are notification of current address forms and are available from any U. S. Post Office. When completely filled in with the required information they should be returned to the same Post Office from which obtained.

Senior Officers Joint Course

A joint combat operations course is being taught for the first time at the Air Forces Air-Ground Operations School, Keesler AFB, Miss. The two-week course has been specifically designed for general and senior field grade officers. The first students graduated last month and the maximum attendance for each class has been set at 75. The course covers concepts, doctrine and techniques of joint combat operations.

Off-Duty Employment

Such job offers are not uncommon, especially here at home. Civilian business people in general like to employ servicemen; they trust them and respect their capacity to do good work. Likewise, local commanders are generally lenient in permitting a man to take an outside job once they're assured that it will in no way conflict with or impair his military performance.

So it becomes a matter to which the man himself should give some candid thought, whether he's already got a part-time job or knows where he can get one. Is it one that will prevent his getting enough sleep, thereby causing him to be late for duty? Is it one that will leave him physically or mentally fatigued, thereby reducing his military efficiency? Is it one that requires lengthy travel back and forth?

These are all matters which concern him as a serviceman. But there is another important aspect. What about his wife and children? A job that keeps him away from home is bound to affect their lives by making him remote to the domestic circle. And when growing youngsters are concerned, there's no substitute for a dad's influence.

The Judge Says . . .

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is part II of an article "Mismanagement—Prime Cause of Personal Money Problems", that is reproduced for the November 1960 "Army Personnel Letter.")

When an individual with a definite financial problem is identified, the unit commander or the legal assistance offices may help by:

Assisting the serviceman and his wife to set up a balance sheet showing income and obligations in a graphic manner.

Seeking ways to reduce fixed obligations (possibilities: turn back to the vendor boats, motors, TV's, etc., if the creditor will accept them); reducing costs by having a soldier living off post sign up for a fuel equalizer plan so that he may pay for his fuel bill over a period of 12 months instead of during the winter months alone; selling the second car; or, if eligible, moving the family into on-post housing to reduce costs.

Suggesting that the soldier secure loans from his or his wife's family, loans on his life insurance, loans from banks where his credit is established, or from credit unions, but never from a "loan shark," because of very high interest rates and dangerous default provisions in most small loan agreements.

Suggesting that the soldier contact all of his creditors telling them of his situation and asking if they will accept reduced payments until paid in full, but avoid using the services of "debt lumpers" because of the high fees charged.

In extreme cases, advising the soldier and his wife to avoid filing voluntary bankruptcy. In this case, the legal assistance office may refer the service member to a member of the local bar for the purpose of filing a "Federal Wage Earners' Plan" under the provisions of Chapter 13 of Title 11 U. S. Code.

This plan, if approved by the court, may result in each unsecured creditor being paid off in full by a trustee of the Federal Courts over a period of up to three years from funds paid monthly by the soldier to the trustee.

The advantages of using the Federal Wage Earners' Plan over voluntary bankruptcy proceedings may be summarized as follows:

Reduces costs to individuals. Typical costs under the wage earners' plan are $30 for filing fees, and $150 average attorney's fees, for a total of $180. In regular bankruptcy, the filing fee is $50 and attorney's fees will average $250, making an average total cost of $300. Additionally, successful completion of a wage earners' plan may save assets that would otherwise be sacrificed in bankruptcy.

Chaplain's Corner

Chaplain (Capt.) Robert C. Young

Many voted for him, many did not. Many did not vote at all. Regardless of our personal opinions, we as Christians now have an obligation to support President Kennedy.

Many of us will not agree with everything that President Kennedy does in the next years to come, so we will have differences of opinion, and in some cases strong differences. This is natural for any time two or more people come into contact they will have differences.

However, this does not mean that we bring our differences out into the open for the world to see, anymore than we fight with our loved ones in public. I think one of the ways in which we can support our new President is to offer good, constructive criticism.

This can be done in a variety of ways but perhaps two of the best are through letters written to our congressmen and even to the President himself. Let us hope that our country will never get to the place where we are so self-satisfied that we cannot criticize ourselves. If that happened we would be in mortal danger.

Lonely decisions will be made by this new Chief of State — decisions that he alone will be able to decide. Often he will wish that others could choose, but his very position will force him to make choices that will often be unpopular with a large number of people.

Vast responsibility will make it necessary for him to find moments of relaxation so that he can tackle his job with a clear and fresh mind. Let us never be overly critical of others.

Above all we as Christians can pray for the President. The power of prayer is beyond comprehension — let us use it for the right.

Our Father God, we humbly ask thy blessing upon President Kennedy in the task he has been cloaked with of guiding the destiny of this country and influencing countless millions of people the world over. Make him strong in body, for sleepless nights and long vigils will sap his strength.

Grant him the Wisdom of Solomon, for crafty schemers will try to confuse his mind with all sorts of deceit.

Fill him with strength of purpose, for it will be easy to give in at times and to follow the course of least resistance. Four into his mind thy spirit, for harshness and vengefulness can only lead us to the brink of war and Thy Son hast said "Blessed are the Peacemakers."

Above all, may his faith in you never be shaken, but constantly deepened, for those things that are impossible by men are possible thru thee. Amen.

Day, Night Classes To Start January 9

First classes conducted by The Infantry Center Educational Development Section in its 1961 program will begin January 9 in Building 2512. Leading off will be eighth grade mandatory classes on duty hours.

High School level courses including English, general mathematics and beginning German will be conducted on duty from 1 to 5 p.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays for six weeks beginning January 12.

Off duty courses starting the same day will include English, general mathematics, American government, general science, beginning algebra and fundamentals of electricity. These classes will be held from 6:45 to 9:15 p.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays for ten weeks.

Registration began January 3 and will continue through January 12.

College level courses will be offered starting January 23, with algebra listed as the first course. These courses will also be conducted Tuesdays and Thursdays both on and off duty for nine three-hour sessions.

An additional course on the slide rule will be offered during duty hours beginning March 2.

BOOKS in REVIEW

THE WAR by Louis L. Snyder. (Messner, 1960)

"This book covers, 'the entire history of World War II . . . from the events and causes leading up to it, the battle strategy on both sides to the momentous conferences, the war crimes trials, the peace treaty negotiations and events that followed."

THE GREEN-EYED MONSTER by Patrick Quentin. (Random House, 1960)

"Andrew Jordan, married to the glamorous Maureen, torments himself with 'she loves me,' she loves me not'. After her murder he is still the victim of his doubts and her deceptions. But the devastation left at her death extends to all the members of his family and while there can no longer be any question of her innocence, there is his — to be established before the police."

"An account of the Lady Franklin Bay Expedition to the Arctic in the early 1900's. About twenty-five men, under the leadership of Lt. Adolphus Greely spent three years in the frozen wastes, the last year . . . starving, sick and dying, until only seven were left when the relief ship finally broke through the ice."

NOW WE ARE ENEMIES by Thomas J. Fleming. (St. Martins, 1960)

"A vivid re-creation of the Battle of Bunker Hill. The reader will meet the officers and men of both sides, and the suffering spectators as well. The book brings to light some of the most baffling aspects of a battle long clouded by myth and rumor."

Three Arts League Concert January 12

ROGER WILLIAMS

Famed pianist Roger Williams will give a concert January 12, at 8:30 p.m. on the stage of the Royal Theater, 1020 Talbotton Road in Columbus. He is appearing under the auspices of the Three Arts League.

A special box office for the sale of tickets to the concert will open Monday, January 9 at 10 a.m. in the lobby of the Ralston Hotel on 12th Street in downtown Columbus. The Ralston box office will be open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Thursday, the day of performance.

On Thursday at 5 p.m., all remaining tickets will go on sale at the Royal Theater box office. There are good seats left in all parts of the theater, according to Three Arts officials.

Roger Williams first zoomed to fame with his all-time hit recording of "Autumn Leaves," which he followed with a number of other hit records and albums. He has sold more records than any other instrumentalist.

In his performances, Mr. Williams usually runs the complete musical gamut. He plays the classics, popular music, jazz and a bit of rock 'n' roll spiced with novelties and stunts while he chats and jokes with his audience. His ability to play two pianos simultaneously is unfailingly popular with audiences.

Roger Williams is one of the most "accessible" stars in show business and sometimes spends two or three hours after his performance chatting and signing autographs for his audience backstage. He has announced he will be available after his performance at the Royal to meet the audience.

450 Attend New Years Reception

Major Gen. Hugh P. Harris, commandant of The Infantry School and commanding general of The Infantry Center, entertained with the traditional New Year's Day open house at "Riverside," the commanding general's quarters.

In addition to the host, the receiving line included Mrs. I. Edward Jenkins of Newport News, Va., Gen. Harris' daughter. Capt. G. S. Meloy introduced the guests to the receiving line.

Four hundred and fifty guests were invited to the event. They included senior officers from the post and the Division, retired Army personnel, prominent Columbus and Phenix City civilians and the senior officer from each of 26 Allied nations with students attending The Infantry School, and their wives.

Seasonal decorations were used throughout the spacious rooms opened to the guests. In the dining room the pair of silver punch bowls was banked in arrangements of holly.

ANN ROBERTS CHECKS MODELS
Mrs. M. Patterson (L), Mrs. R. Stewart

Spotlighting Personalities

BY PAT RYAN

The Woman's Club is proud of Ann Roberts, charm and modeling teacher. She has helped build self-confidence in her Army-wife students by instructing in the art of figure control, make-up, and modeling.

Ann has been teaching for the past two years at Fort Benning. She also teaches at Auburn University (through the home economics department), and other civic and woman's-club-sponsored organizations in Georgia and Alabama.

Ann can claim former beauty titles such as Miss Phenix City, Miss Columbus Cardinal and Russell County Maid of Cotton. She learned her personality secrets well.

Ann has helped many Benning wives to establish themselves as either professional models or capable participants in the various Army-wives sponsored fashion shows. As many of the women have agreed: "You never know when you might be called upon to model for your group!"

Ann has wisely remarked upon the importance of personal charm which every woman should develop. The modern Army wife is recognized as a helpmate in her husband's career, when she knows how to be charming in the world of social circles wherever she goes.

Mrs. Robert Chenoweth, chairman for the Woman's Club charm and modeling school, can be called at MU 9-0650 to register for Ann Roberts' classes.

Classes begin Wednesday, January 11, with modeling during the day, and the charm courses in the evening. The charm course also instructs in the choice of wardrobe, hair - styling, and posture, along with exercises. The modeling course is offered for beginning and advanced pupils.

School Teaches 8,000 Students 'Ground Navigation'

BY SP5 LARRY BENEDICT

Could you get out of a warm bed at 2 o'clock tomorrow morning, fly in darkness into country you've never seen before, and find your way around?

With only a compass and a map, could you figure out where you are on the ground to within a few feet and then move to a particular spot on the heavily wooded side of a distant hill?

To most of us the obvious answer is no. We have enough trouble finding an address on Main Street in the old home town.

And this is nothing like finding an address on Broadway or Main Street, or following signposts on paved highways. Direction finding in the wilderness requires "trained instinct" that characterized the Indians and frontiersmen.

To one large group of highly trained professionals, this ability is just another detail — a chore they may be called upon often to perform under any or all conditions.

These individuals are soldiers of The Army who have found a way to recapture some of the "lost art" of the Indians and frontier scouts.

Any Infantryman will tell you he doesn't have time for trial and error when the chips are down neither does he have time for leisurely getting to know each area he may operate in. The oldtimers learned the ground that way, but the modern soldier needs to recall some of their tricks and add a few of his own.

It's the Army's job to furnish this preparation, and The Infantry School's mission to present it to leaders to be carried into the field.

Of several fields of self preservation and field efficiency, one which always has expert attention at The Infantry School is summed up in a recently renovated course titled "Ground Navigation." The course was designed by the Map Reading Committee of the School's Special Subjects Department.

An ideal way to teach navigating on the ground would be to transport young leaders back in time to the frontier days and let them follow a scout or Indian of the day until they absorbed the "feeling" for finding their way over open country.

The next best thing is for the expert instructors of the Map Reading Committee to present all the tricks of the trade to the students, along with regular refresher courses on military maps and compasses.

In World War II, individuals and small units could "stay with the wagon train," and get by with little detailed knowledge of military map reading. They were usually close enough to other units on their flanks and at their rear so that accurate orientation could be maintained. Today, small units are spread over many times the ground formerly occupied in the field, and they must be able to navigate on their own.

Each individual rifleman is a unit in combat, and in modern Pentomic warfare tactics he must rely on his own training and ability more than ever before.

What happens when an average young American finds himself in the woods or wide open country with just a map and compass? He instinctively looks around for a road, buildings, signposts or some other familiar objects.

If he can't find these familiar man-made "street corners," he will begin to think and look at his map - looking first for large, obvious landmarks such as rivers, high mountains, towns or highways and railroads.

Then, if he can't find these, he must re-examine the area around him and look for some of nature's own signposts, such as terrain features and stream patterns.

So the Army's goal was to dig up some of the secrets of the oldtimers to make ground navigating sort of a sixth sense or instinct, pass these along to officers and non-commissioned officers here, and have them take the tips and knowledge back to their field units.

Members of the Map Reading Committee set up the present course in approximately one week, after about a month of planning. It covers some 1000 by 2000 meters of pine wooded country, with a maximum change in elevation from its lowest to highest points of only 165 feet. To the novice, it all looks alike.

With 20 starting stakes, 22 control stakes on the control road and 66 position stakes scattered throughout the area, more than 200 different combinations of the problem can be run at the same time. Thus a student may see others constantly while he is engaged in the course but he is really on his own to find the correct solutions to his questions.

The student finds his starting stake, and must accurately plot this on the map and record the coordinate. Then he is off through the brush, using as own selected route, to a given coordinate in the woods where he will find a position stake.

He will follow a designated compass reading to a lettered stake on the control road. Then off again cross country to a position stake. Several times he must locate position stakes — by pacing, and being constantly aware of the features of the ground around him.

Position stakes are close together, and hitting the right one to match the correct solution on the master board at the end of the course is tough. The student must be extremely accurate in determining distance, and in reading or "feeling" the ground.

It's a mistake to rely on "the first trail to the right" without a minute check or educated awareness of the other features around the trail. And in estimating distance, paces while going downhill will cover more ground than those taken while walking uphill. Even when using a compass, a slight error is often too much. One half a degree off will cause an error of from nine to 10 meters at 1000 meters.

Knowing that there will be those who get off to a bad start, the instructor allows enough time for the students to reach the control road, and then he cruises from one end to the other in a jeep, asking each student how he's getting along. If he needs help, he will get it in the forms of tips on the best methods, and review, rather than the solution.

Headed by Major George W. Abrahamson the committee is authorized seven officers and five non-commissioned officer instructors and an operations sergeant, each selected for background and aptitude in map reading and experience in the field.

Under their guidance, about 8,000 students completing the map reading and navigating classes each year are much more at home in strange country. They are better prepared to devote valuable time previously spent on orientation and movement to weapons, equipment and tactics.

Aviators Told to Fly Low and Slow

(ANS) Army aviation, with its modern refinements and increasing contribution to battle field mobility, can look back with humor on an ordinance passed here just 58 years ago.

It was the first recorded action to make flying safer in a Florida city and read, approximately, as follows:

"No air machine will fly over any part of the city of Jacksonville at a height of ten feet at a speed in excess of eight miles per hour or at a height of 20 feet in excess of 15 MPH, or at a height of 50 feet in excess of 30 MPH or at any altitude whatsoever at a speed in excess of 50 MPH.

"Air machines will be equipped with warning horns, braking devices, safety devices and a parachute to let the machine down if the engine stops.

Holiday Season Closes; Div Marks One Fatality

By Div. PIO

As the holidays come to a close in the beginning of a new year, the members of the 2nd Infantry Division can be justly proud that the goal of 43 deathless days was marred by only one fatality.

Through the efforts of each individual in conducting themselves in a safe mature manner in traffic, and recreational holiday activities, accidents within the holiday period were kept to a minimum.

Many contributing factors threatened to increase holiday accidents; including longer nights and more travel during the hours of darkness, with visibility reduced by fog, rain or snow; high speeds; increase in mileage traveled, with more frequent long trips and consequent fatigue; increased use of intoxicants; more exposure to firearms in hunting or in handling of weapons, and overheated homes and flammable decorations.

"Emphasis programs in the past," stated Brigadier General William L. Hardtke, Assistant Division Commander, recently, "have reduced holiday accidents to favorable proportions and appeared to have a carryover effect in the months following." He pointed out that a similar emphasis program during the winter holidays last year was "very successful" in that there were no deaths involving military or civilian personnel and disabling accidents were reduced by 50 per cent.

Nine Attend Staff College At Kan. Post

By Div PIO

Nine 2nd Infantry Division officers are attending the Associate Command and General Staff Officer's Course, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, which began its four-month course Thursday, January 5.

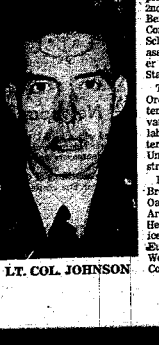
Attending from Division Artillery are Captain Elmer D. Spence, 15th Artillery, assistant S-3; Lieutenant Colonel Francis P. Sheridan, 17th Artillery commander; Captain Joseph R. Fitch, 87th Artillery S-2, and Captan Sylvester A. Frontczak, 17th Artillery Battery A commander.

Lieutenant Colonel James R. Gaunt, former assistant to the Chief of Staff, is attending, along with Major Frank J. Tolocka, Assistant G-3.

Officers from battle groups and other major units attending include Major Harlis M. Goss, 1st Infantry S-4; Major John Swango, assistant 9th Infantry executive officer, and Major Edward B. Blackman, assistant Division Aviation commander.

In addition to those officers attending the Associate Command and General Staff Officer's course, 10 Division officers are slated to attend the Staff Officer's regular course, which commences in August. Through error, the Bayonet last week listed the starting date as January 5.

Lt. Col. Takes Top Position At 37th Arty



By Div Arty PIO

Lieutenant Colonel Floyd L. Johnson recently assumed command of the 6th Howitzer Battalion, 37th Artillery, replacing Major Donald B. Roof who was assigned as Assistant S-3, Headquarters 2d Infantry Division Artillery.

Lieutenant Colonel Johnson was a student at the Command and General Staff School prior to being assigned to the 2nd Infantry Division Artillery. Before attending the Associate Command and General Staff School, Colonel Johnson was assigned as Deputy Comptroller with Headquarters United States Army, Alaska.

The Colonel is a graduate of Oregon State College, has attended the Field Artillery Advance Course at Fort Sill, Oklahoma, and received his Masters Degree from Syracuse University in Public Administration.

His decorations include the Bronze Star Medal with two Oak Leaf Clusters and the Army Commendation Medal. He also has been awarded service medals for service in the European Campaign, during World War II and the Korean Conflict.

Div Takes to Airwaves To Provide Information

By Div PIO

The 2nd Infantry Division is on the air each week, with radio and television coverage of unit news.

Tuesdays and Thursdays a five minute radio news show is aired on WRBL, at 11:54 a.m. Monday through Friday, on WGBA, individual news items of division happenings are aired during the afternoon. Friday evenings, WTVM (channel 9), carries a summary of the week's news of the division.

These news shows, prepared to meet the standards of commercial radio and television, are aired by members of the Radio and Television Department, Sergeant First Class Gordon Alderman and Don Baird.

Sergeant Lacy's face is familiar to division personnel, as the man with the news of the division. For the past several months, Sergeant Lacy has broadcast the 2nd Division news on WTVM, Friday nights at 6:30.

More recent additions to the air-waves are the news broadcasts on radio, prepared and presented by Privates Alderman and Baird.

These shows are prepared for the entertainment and information of not only 2nd Division personnel, but for the residents of Columbus and the surrounding area, and include news of promotions, sports, and awards both to units and individuals.

Sergeant Lacy, the division's television spokesman, has left for an eight week course at the Information School at Fort Slocum, New York, and in his absence the television chores will be shouldered by Private Alderman.

In addition to the local radio and television news coverage, the members of the Radio and Television Department are responsible for home town news. This includes printed news releases of individual interest, as well as taped interviews. Releases are prepared when a member, of the division has been engaged in activities of interest to civilian personnel. When practicable, a taped interview with the men involved is prepared, and is sent through the Home Town News Center to radio stations in the individual's home town area.

Tots Enjoyed Holiday Party By 15th Arty

By 15th Arty PIO

The one through ten year old dependents of members of the 1st Howitzer Battalion, 15th Artillery, commanded by Lt. Col. Jonathan M. Grant, were treated to a Christmas Party in December.

The party was held in the day room of the battalion's Headquarters Battery, which had been decorated to provide a Christmas atmosphere.

Sergeant Joseph R. Arruda entertained the guests with a comedy skit and led the children in singing Christmas Carols. The children were presented individual gifts by Santa, and refreshments were served.

Adding to the highlights of the party was a visit by Brig. Gen. Charles H. White Jr., Commanding General of the 2nd Infantry Division Artillery.

BAYONET 1961 BABY DERBY WINNER
Mrs. Pietz and son Ferdinand at hospital

'61 Baby Derby Won By Division Couple

Winner of the 1961 Baby Derby sponsored by the Bayonet is Ferdinand Heinrich Pietz, son of Sp4 and Mrs. Rudolf Pietz, who weighed in at Martin Army Hospital at 12:43 a.m. Sunday at seven pounds, 11½ ounces.

He is the first child for the couple, who reside at 37 Artillery Drive, Columbus. He also is the first member of the Pietz family to become a U. S. citizen, as his parents are both from Germany and have not completed citizenship formalities.

On presentation of a written statement from the attending physician attesting to the time of birth, the couple became eligible for a host of prizes offered by Columbus merchants — more than 35 gifts in all.

Included in the list of derby awards are gift certificates, a Sterling Silver baby cup, clothes, services and goods ranging from meals out to auto servicing, and gasoline.

The first baby of the year contest is open to all military personnel, with only a stipulation that the baby must be born at Martin Army Hospital. Sponsor for the annual event is the Bayonet.

Huray Given Silver Leaves At 23rd Inf

By 23rd Inf. PIO

Lieutenant Colonel Frank T. Huray, executive officer of the 23rd Infantry, was promoted to his present rank in a surprise ceremony December 29 in the office of the Battle Group Commander.

Representatives of the major staff sections of the Battle Group looked on as the Battle Group Commander, Colonel Louis A. Kunzig Jr., and the Deputy Battle Group Commander, Lieutenant Colonel Richard A. Perkins, pinned the silver leaves on the shoulders of Colonel Huray.

Colonel Huray, before becoming the 23d Infantry Executive Officer, served as S-3 of that same unit. The "We Serve" executive officer is a veteran of more than 20 years' service. He has served in all parts of the world, and among his many decorations he holds the Combat Infantrymans Badge, Silver Star, Bronze Star and the Purple Heart.

Before joining the 23rd Infantry, Colonel Huray served as the Second Division Information Officer and as executive officer, 2nd Battle Group, 9th Infantry.

Signal Officer

Major Goes To Orient Duty

Major Claire Rasmussen left the 122nd Signal Battalion January 2 to attend the Military Assistance Institute, Arlington, Va.

Upon completion of the course, he will depart for his new assignment in Thailand with the Military Assistance Advisory Group, Bangkok.

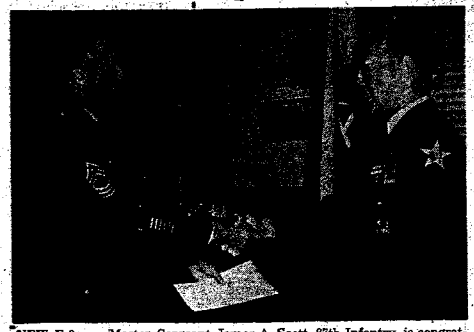
Major Rasmussen has been with the 122nd Signal Battalion for more than two years. He has served as the battalion S-3, and for the last nine months had been the Assistant Division Signal Officer.

11th Slated For Korean Duty in Feb

By Div PIO

When the troops of the 1st Battle Group, 11th Infantry return from their Christmas leaves they will be faced with only six more weeks of stateside duty before embarking for Korea.

The 1st Battle Group, 11th Infantry was the first Army unit to be designated for the new OVUREP (Overseas Unit Replacement) system.



"The method, which was begun by the 11th last February is defined as the method of unit replacement designed to provide peacetime support of the Army's doctrine of unit replacement."

The main body of the battle group will be preceded to Korea by an advance party of 46 men—16 officers and 30 enlisted men—whose mission will be to insure the orderly transfer of supplies, equipment and property at the overseas destination.

The remainder of the battle group will be divided into two echelons—a forward and a main. The forward echelon will travel from Fort Benning by commercial airline to the west coast. From there to Korea they will fly by military transportation. In Korea, they will assist the advance party in their duties.

The main echelon will then proceed from Fort Benning to Oakland, Calif., by troop train and from there to Korea by Troop transport.

Once in Korea the 1st Battle Group, 11th Infantry under the command of Colonel George D. Patterson will become the 2nd Battle Group, 3rd Infantry.

NEW E-8 . . . Master Sergeant James A. Scott, 87th Infantry, is congratulated by Major General Frederick W. Gibb, 2nd Infantry Division commander, on his promotion to the temporary grade of E-8, during a brief ceremony in the general's office recently. Other E-7's being promoted during the same ceremony were Master Sergeants Ralph A. Cavedo, 9th Infantry; Pedro Delgado, 11th Infantry; Elmer E. Gibson, Division Artillery, Mikio Tomita, 2nd Aviation Company; and William R. Roberts, 2nd Administration Company.

204 Finish 1st 8 Weeks At 87th Infantry

By 87th Inf PIO

In graduation ceremonies recently 204 trainees of record-smashing Company C, 1st Battle Group, 87th Infantry completed Basic Combat Training.

The trainees were addressed by Colonel R. E. Connor, Commanding Officer of the 87th Infantry, Colonel Conner presented awards to those trainees who had distinguished themselves by outstanding marksmanship or as top scorer in the 2nd Infantry Division Proficiency Test.

Recruit John A. Whitcavage earned the first place M-1 Rifle marksmanship award with a score of 231 points. Recruit William L. Lockwood, firing 226, received the second place award.

Company C set a new record in the 2nd Infantry Division Proficiency Testing with a company average of 85.66 per cent. Three men of company tied for the top individual position in the proficiency testing. They were Recruits Richard Hilton, Chester A. Martin Jr., and Frederick J. Sautter. Each attained an individual score of 96 per cent.

Company C's Proficiency Test Record toppled that of another 87th Infantry company, Company B, who had held the record with a score of 89.56.

This cycle was the last for Company C prior to entering OVUREP training.

It is commanded by Captain Roy D. Sims with Lieutenant Laurence Ondecker as executive officer. The company First Sergeant is Jimmie L. Trainham.

Do It Yourself Weather Display

(AFPS)— The "Do It Yourself" craze is far from dead, but has just about reached the "ultimate" at the U. S. Army Electronic Proving Ground in Arizona.

The Army's Meteorology Department has installed in the lobby of Greely Hall, the Proving Ground's main technical building, a weather briefing display console that enables the viewer to brief himself on current weather conditions and draw his own conclusions on the weather forecast.

A large surface weather map, a national weather resume, a local forecast for those who want the official word, the day's total (when there is any) rainfall, and a running total of the annual rainfall are all posted each morning.

Captain Abdul Jaber of the Jordanian Army visited the 23rd Infantry and the 69th Armor recently.

While touring the 23rd, Captain Jaber visited all staff sections for briefings, toured the Trophy Room and viewed a Communications display before going to Wagner and Galloway Range to witness Automatic Rifle and light machine gun firing.

Captain Jaber, who is presently undergoing training with the Infantry School, was escorted around the 23rd by Captain Carroll Heape of the 23rd's S-3 section.

Tours 69th

At the 69th, the Jordanian captain visited with the Tank Battalion Commander, Lieutenant Colonel Harry H. Hiestand and was then briefed by the Battalion staff before touring the battalion area.

The captain was escorted around the 69th Armor area by Captain Arnold Dryer of the 69th's S-2 section.

Barracks Shine As Soldiers Seek Extra 40 Winks

By 69th Armor PIO

The daily grudge of routine cleaning chores for members of Headquarters Company of the 2nd Medium Tank Battalion, 69th Armor, has become a thing of the past with the innovation of weekly competition.

Each section of the company is placed on a point system based on daily and weekly inspections of the barracks by Company Commander, Captain Arno M. Apel, and unit First Sergeant, First Sergeant Charles E. Smith.

Since the inception of the barracks competition, the job of never ending house cleaning chores has become one of challenge. Each section strives to outshine their rivals in this phase.

Incentive for all the hustle and bustle in housecleaning is the prize of one week without revelle or a Saturday morning off. Thus far, the transportation section commanded by Lieutenant John W. McCrary and Sergeant Dan L. Rogon, has led the other sections in the competition.

The men of this section can be seen on a regular work morning blithely catching that wonderful "extra 40 winks" while the remainder of the company stands reville.

9th Conducts Hq. Company Officer Shift

By 9th Inf PIO

The 9th Infantry underwent major changes in its Headquarters and Headquarters Company in a shifting of officer personnel recently.

The company received a new commander when Captain John Trickey replaced Captain Raymond Whittaker. Captain Whittaker departed the Battle Group yesterday for his new post with the 87th Infantry, Captain Trickey's old unit.

Another major change saw Major Robert Street and Captain Thomas A. Austin III change jobs. Major Street now heads the 9th's S-3 section following the changeover while Captain Austin has taken over as the Battle Group S-2 and Training Committee Chief.

The Adjutant's section received a new addition when Captain Paul Burns was assigned as assistant S-1 to Major Robert S. Kirk, the 9th Infantry Adjutant.

Major John Swango's S-4 section received a new member when Chief Warrant Officer (W-4) Herman Goldman was assigned as property book officer.

Lieutenant William E. Ledgerwood's reassignment from the 9th's Company E to the S-3 section completed the Manchu unit's current changes as announced last week.

Division Units Slate PX as Troop Topic

BY SAM SALERNO

Many of the major units of the 2nd Infantry Division have scheduled "Your Post Exchange" as the troop topic for the coming week. This should prove to be a very interesting topic.

"Your Post Exchange" will cover such items as WHAT IS THE POST EXCHANGE. Your post exchange plays a big part in furnishing your dayroom with the television you watch in the evenings, the furnishings that make your barracks more like home, and the recreational facilities you enjoy so much.

WHY WAS IT ORGANIZED?

The principle reason was to stop the American soldier of 1776 from being cheated by traveling merchants known as "sutlers." They cheated soldiers and loaned them money at "loan shark" rates of interest.

HOW WAS IT ORGANIZED

A consolidated exchange was set up for Georgia and Florida at Headquarters, Fourth Service Command. There were branches at post and installation level. This was an experiment which proved to be a smart idea and was continued while the Seventh Army and Third Army succeeded the Fourth Service Command. Eventually the consolidated exchange was shifted under the Atlanta Regional Office, Army Exchange Service. So efficient were the Regional Offices, that four more were established.

HOW DOES THE SOLDIER SPEND HIS PX DOLLAR?

Averages have been figured to find out what the soldier buys in his PX. The average soldier will spend his PX dollar as follows: 16c for tobacco; 4c for magazines and stationery; 15c for clothing and insignia; 9c for bottled drinks; 4c for jewelry and watches; 8c for toiletries; 3c for candy; and 16c for various items of a miscellaneous category carried by an exchange. He then spends some 25c of his PX dollar in the cafeteria, snack bar, or service activities.

WHO MAY BUY IN AN EXCHANGE?

You the serviceman and your family are first on the list of reasons the exchange service exists. All Army and Air Force personnel on active and their dependents may trade in the PX. The list includes reserve personnel on active duty for more than 72 hours, unremarried widows of servicemen who have died in line of duty, honorably discharged hospitalized veterans, all retired military personnel, and widows of retired military personnel.

HOW ARE PRICES FIXED ON PX ITEMS?

Yes, the PX does make a profit. But that same profit comes right back to you. Your exchange is geared to serve you in two ways. First, at reasonable cost. Second, to support the Army and Air Force morale, welfare and recreation programs.

IS THE PX SELF-SUPPORTING?

With only a few exceptions the Exchange Service is self-supporting. The military who are engaged in exchange operations are paid through normal military pay channels.

DOES THE PX HELP OR HINDER THE LOCAL COMMUNITIES?

The local community definitely gains substantial economic advantages when there is a PX in the area. Much of the merchandise sold in the PX is purchased from that community.

WHAT IS THE TRUE VALUE OF THE PX TO ME THE SERVICEMAN?

One of the many conveniences is the fact that almost all military installations are far removed from the nearest town. Transportation often becomes an immediate problem for daily needs. It takes more time and money to go into town than the items are worth in many cases. Your PX stops this inconvenience.

HOW CAN I SAFEGUARD MY PX PRIVILEGES?

So many people do not realize that to be of help in any cause it is necessary that the cause be thoroughly understood. This is your first step—become familiar with your Exchange Service; what it does, how and with what. You cannot talk intelligently about anything if you don't know what you are talking about. You can boost your privileges if you appreciate them. Sometimes our American way of life tends to make us "think" our benefits and privileges into unalienable rights. It is true that your military benefits and privileges are needed and that they are just and right, but this does not make them law.

CAPABILITIES

"In other times, military power was the chief tool of a would-be conqueror. Today, the conflict is not limited to military pressure. We must be able to cope with a combination of military, economic, political and psychological aggression. We must have strength adequate in kind, quality, and amount to respond immediately to any move of which the Sino-Soviet bloc is capable." Secretary of the Army Wilber M. Brucker.

Lieutenant and Mrs. James P. Newbill announce the arrival of a baby girl born on December 25, 1960 at Martin Army Hospital. The Newbills met in Lorraine, France, so their daughter has been named Linda Lorraine.

Ladies Gather During Section Celebrations

Mrs. B. F. Parks, wife of Major B. F. Parks, Assistant G-1 of the 2nd Division, was hostess to the ladies of the G-1 Section in her home on December 15. The ladies were met at the door by a huge Santa Claus.

Home made Christmas goodies were on the serving table which was laid with a linen cloth. Christmas candles were nestled in greens throughout the house and a cherry fire was lit in the fireplace.

Mrs. Gustav M. Bachnarach, wife of Colonel Gustav M. Bachnarach, was the guest of honor. Mrs. Bachnarach came laden down with mistletoe which she shared with the ladies present.

Cook Of The Week

Our guest cook for the first week in 1961 is Mrs. R. E. Connor, wife of Colonel R. E. Connor, Commanding Officer of the 1st Battle Group, 87th Infantry. Mrs. Connor calls Cincinnati, Ohio, her home town and state. She and Colonel Connor live at 209 Lumpkin Road with their five children; Pete age 14, Liz age 13, Casey age 10, Robby age 8, and Ann age 4. Mrs. Connor finds a family of seven too time consuming for developing a hobby, but when she does it will be music and bridge. Mrs. Connor gives us a recipe for Cheese Pie.

Cheese Pie

2 cups strained Cottage Cheese
1 tablespoon milk (a bit more if it looks too dry)
1 beaten Egg
1 cup Sugar
2 eggs

To strain cheese run through Foley Food Mill or, Blender. If you have neither use an electric mixer; it won't be as smooth, but if will be just as good.

Mix all ingredients together and pour into pie crust or graham cracker crust. Bake at 450 degrees for fifteen minutes and fifteen minutes at 325 degrees.

CO Marks New Years Reception

The Battle Group Commander of the 23rd Infantry, Colonel Louis A. Kunzig Jr., and his wife received the Officers and Ladies of that Battle Group at a New Years day reception in the Officer's Reading Room.

Colonel and Mrs. Kunzig were joined in the receiving line by Mrs. Kunzig's mother, Mrs. Thomas J. Cassidy of Tyler Texas; Colonel Kunzig's niece, Miss Sylvia Kunzig of Columbus, Georgia; and Cadet Louis A. Kunzig III, the son of the Battle Group Commander who is in his second year at the United States Military Academy.

The receiving line was followed by refreshments.

7 Recommended for Capt at 11th Inf

11th Inf PIO

Seven first lieutenants of the 1st BG, 11th Infantry, were named for promotion to the rank of captain in a recommended list recently published by Department of the Army.

Leading the list in the 11th Infantry is 1st Lieutenant Henri M. Weinberg, Assistant Supply Officer (S4) of the unit. A veteran with the division for some years, Lieutenant Weinberg made the move to Germany when the division was still the 10th Infantry Division. He held assignments with the 87th Infantry and the 9th Infantry prior to his assignment to the 11th Infantry when that unit becomes the Army's first OVUREP battle group in February of this year.

It is expected that Lt. Weinberg's promotion will become effective late this month.

Other 11th Infantry officers on the recommended list include Lieutenants Winston A. Dahl, Dave R. Kingsbury, Theodore J. Livesay, William E. Lozier, Frank J. Nugent, and Edward W. Nidever.

All of these officers, except Lt. Weinberg, will accompany the 11th Infantry when it moves overseas to the Far East Command in February of the new year. Lt. Weinberg expects Department of the Army orders for movement to the same overseas area as an individual replacement.

Wilbanks Made Re-Up Non-Com

By 122nd Signal

Specialist Sixth Class O. D. Wilbanks has been named Reenlistment NCO for the 122nd Signal Battalion, replacing Sergeant First Class Martin Lawrence.

Specialist Wilbanks formerly served as an audio visual aids supervisor for four years at Redstone Arsenal, Alabama. In this capacity, he handled audio visual aids for Major General John Medaris and rocket expert Dr. Werner Von Braun.

A veteran of 17 years' military service, Specialist Wilbanks participated in the Omaha Beach invasion of Normandy during World War II.

Ceremony Held for Two Retirees

Two senior Non-Commissioned Officers of the 23rd Infantry retired recently after serving more than 20 years active Federal service apiece.

Before the Colors, assembled Company Commanders and guidons, Sergeant Robinson was awarded the Army Commendation Medal for outstanding and meritorious service as a platoon Sergeant, in Company E, 23rd Infantry.

Sergeant First Class Dorsey received a letter of commendation from the Assistant Division Commander, Brigadier General William L. Hardick for his work as a member of the Division Proficiency Test team. He also received a letter of Commendation from the Battle Group Commander.

At a short reception following the ceremony approximately 25 fellow NCOs expressed congratulations and good wishes to the two "new civilians."

Stop and Fall

When asked to explain why she did not halt when a policeman ordered her to do so, a woman told a Bristol, England, judge that she weighs 210 pounds "and I was afraid if I stopped running I'd fall over."

37th Arty Wins DivArty Crown In Basketball

The 6th Howitzer Battalion, 37th Artillery Basketball Team has captured the title of Champions of the 2nd Infantry Division Artillery Basketball Tournament by winning out over the 1st Howitzer Battalion, 15th Artillery, in a close game.

The score during the entire contest shifted from one team to the other up until the last four seconds of play, at which time Bill Stallard put the ball through the hoop to make the score 32-31 in favor of the 6th Howitzer Battalion, 37th Artillery.

Immediately following the game, Brigadier General C. H. White, Jr., Commanding General, 2nd Infantry Division Artillery presented first and second place trophies to the team captains of the 6th Howitzer Battalion, 37th Artillery and 1st Howitzer Battalion, 15th Artillery.

Trains Combine Talent, Speed in Hoopster Five

By Div Trains PIO

Division Trains Athletic and Recreation Office, presently conducting the Company level Basketball Tournament, boasts a fine array of hoopsters who are competing for a spot on the major unit team.

The 19th Transportation Battalion will send out two hook shot specialists, Lee Burch, field and Roger Shultz; two board-men who have shown plenty of bounce during practice sessions, Roy Robinson and Thomas Williams; and an outside man with a good push-shot, John Hefner.

Administration Company and the 702nd Ordnance Battalion will be represented at the Trains tryouts by Larry Peterson, Tom Edwards, Tom Gray, Victor Weber, Steve Mayer, Henry Horfman, Frank Forsyth, and Vernon Bishoff.

Headquarters and Headquarters Company combined with the Military Police Detachment have considerable court-talent and hope to supply some outstanding players to vie for positions on the Trains major command level team.

The 2nd Medical Battalion's Robert Lee, Frank Glenn, and John Brown will be fighting hard for berths on the Trains' hoop squad. Brown is a holdover from the Trains basketball team of last year and has also played football and volleyball.

To contribute their share to the Trains team, the 2nd Aviation Company will send out James Adams, Larry Lark, and Jerry Jones.

A total of 40 men are out for the Trains major command team. Of these 40, 15 will be chosen to represent Division Trains against battle groups, Separate Battalion, and Division Artillery this month when tournament play is slated to get underway.

Company A Wins Best Mess Plaque At 11th Infantry

By 11th Inf

The 11th Infantry's Best Mess Plaque was permanently awarded to Company A, 1st Battle Group, 11th Infantry on December 21, during a brief ceremony held in the office of Colonel George D. Patterson, battle group commander.

The plaque, which was awarded to Company A for the months of July, September and October, will be placed in Company A's mess hall. The plaque is retired to any company who wins it three months out of a year.

The award, based on sanitation and food preparation, was presented to Sergeant First Class Howard M. McNew, Company A's Mess Sergeant.

YOUR FAULTS

Do not think of your faults, still less of others' faults; in every person who comes near you look for what is good and strong; honor that; rejoice in it; and as you can, try to imitate it; and your faults will drop off like dead leaves when their time comes.—John Ruskin

Capt Receives Commendation

By 7th CAV PIO

Captain Everett J. Oliver received the Army Commendation Medal upon his retirement from the service on December 31, 1960. He was cited for his outstanding organizational abilities.

Capt. Oliver served with the 3rd Reconnaissance Squadron, 7th Cavalry, as the Squadron Logistics (S4) Officer from Christmas of 1958 until his retirement.

He and his family plan to make their home here in Columbus as he is already connected with several local business firms. (See Photo Page 11)

A Round-Up of the Year's Sports

Advanced Marksmanship Unit Heads Sports Activities For '60

As 1960 moves over to make room for 1961, a glance back over the major sports events on post shows some interesting points.

Highlighting the sports action for nearly every month in the beginning of the year, firers from the Advanced Army Marksmanship Unit here, shattered standing records in nearly every major match entered.

The Fort Benning Doughboys, post grid squad, also drew large crowds as they fielded a fighting team after remaining off the scoreboard for one season.

Some of the main sports events here on post in 1960 by the month are as follows:

JANUARY

The post Soccer Team defeated the Auburn Soccer Club for the third consecutive time, winning two straight games at Auburn after an earlier victory in December 1959.

Hazel Walkers' "Arkansas Travelers", an all-girl touring basketball team, defeated two post men's cage teams during exhibition action at Briant Wells Field House. The two teams were from the 151st Engineer Group and the 87th Infantry.

FEBRUARY

Post boxers made nearly a clean sweep of honors at Jacksonville, Fla., in Golden Gloves competition, but could take only four of nine bouts from a strong Fort Campbell team later the same month. Of the 13 fighters entered at Jacksonville, 11 were either champions or runners-up.

The Infantry Center volleyball team defeated the Atlanta YMCA by taking eight of 12 sets in a match at Atlanta.

MARCH

A hard-hitting, fast-shooting Army Pistol Team, led by Sfc William Blankenship Jr., dominated all phases of the 1960 Dixie Pistol Matches and established a new national record for individual centerfire shooting at Jacksonville, Fla.

A four-man team from the post Advanced Army Marksmanship Unit completely dominated the National .22 Caliber Pistol Matches at the Federal Penitentiary in Atlanta as Sfc Arthur Gideon led the team to a sizzling 1,165 point score and a new national indoor record.

The Student Brigade and WAC cagers were eliminated from Third Army basketball competition at Fort Gordon.

Taking half the trophies offered, Fort Benning's Judo team won four of six first places and added two second and third places each in the Southeastern Open AAU Judo Tournament at the YMCA in Birmingham, Ala.

Riflemen from AAMU swept through a three-day firing session by winning all but a single match from guest marksmen of the Air Force in matches here on post.

APRIL

Post AAMU marksmen took nine major awards and accounted for six new records in the 1960 Third Army Rifle and Pistol Championships here.

Post Junior Rifle Club members dominated the individual phase of the Thomaston, Ga., 1960 Outdoor Smallbore Matches and placed teams second and third in the four-position event.

MAY

Capt. Robert A. Himes, of the Infantry School, was extended to the 36th and final hole of competition in the annual post Country Club Golf Tournament before he was able to eke out a one-point decision to take the 1960 championship.

A sharpshooting five - man Army International Rifle Team, from post AAMU, fired an aggregate 5,900-295x score to defeat the International Rifle Team from Canada in post Gallery competition.

Capt. Joseph F. Gregory fired his way into pistoldom's Hall of Fame when he won the Grand Aggregate Pistol Trophy at the Fiesta of Five Flags in Pensacola, Fla.

JUNE

The annual post Fish and Skish Tournament was held at King's Pond.

Post Tennis players copped three of four singles matches and swept the doubles competition against the visiting U.S. Military Academy here on post.

A seven member team from the swimming team of the Youth Activities Club captured seven medals and nine ribbons in the Albany, Ga., Invitational Swimming Championships.

A post football squad was organized. (Fort Benning did not field a team in 1959.)

SEPTEMBER

The post baseball team was eliminated from the Third Army Baseball Tournament with a 2-2 record as Fort Gordon copped first place.

OCTOBER

The Doughboy Grid squad dropped the first two games of the season, Eglin AFB, 17-8 in the opener, and a 27-20 decision to Brooke Army Medical Center the following week.

Post AAMU firers copped the Brown Boss Trophy in the Infantry Trophy Team Matches with the Canadian School of Infantry.

Capt. David Pinney, of the Student Brigade, a member of the post Sky Divers' Club, captured individual honors with the highest single score at sport parachute competition with Fort Campbell, Fort Bragg, and Fort Rucker.

NOVEMBER

Five sharpshooters from post AAMU swept four of the five titles in the International Military Sports Council shooting matches in Athens, Greece.

The Doughboy grid squad won two straight games with a 14-7 victory over Lackland AFB and a 14-9 revenge over Eglin AFB.

DECEMBER

Doughboys closed their season with a 4-4 record as they captured wins from Fort Lauderdale, Fla., a semi-professional team, and Norfolk Naval Base.

Post AAMU, firers swept team firing events in a special Army-Air Force Invitational International Rifle Tournament at Lackland Air Force Base.

Female Cagers to Play All-Male Team on Post

Hazel Walker's female basketball sextet has been booked by the Infantry Center Special Services Office to play an all-male team on January 29 at Briant Wells Field House, it was announced today by sports officials.

The sextet, owned, originated and coached by Hazel Walker, is famous for the many victories over men's teams during the past season, the girl's team enjoyed a highly successful season, winning 201 and losing 19 of 220 tilts.

The admission is free and the public is invited to watch the top-notch female team in action.

The men's team representing Fort Benning will be announced at a later date by sports office officials.

Reenlistment bonuses may take any shape it has been proved during the past holidays. This came about when I re-upped and, in lieu of a cash bonus, was treated to a session of Florida fishing by the USAIC's Reenlistment Officer.

Guests of Capt. and Mrs. Don Fann down at Vedlee, Fla., M-Sgt. and Mrs. John LeVert and daughter Jeanie plus me, were treated to a visit to the Myrtka River where Capt. Fann and his brothers had a fish camp set up.

A fine bass river, it produced enough delicious fish for a riverside fish fry and brother LeVert's eyes are still a little glazed over how a bass can bend a rod tip.

Cash is lovely stuff but, to my mind, the bonus "paid" by the Fann family was appreciated to a far greater degree in that it was not dictated by regulations but by angler hospitality. Especially appreciated was the lick of cornpone whomped by up by Capt. Fann's Dad who has been rated a master Florida corn-pone batter whomper for many years.

It is only fair to say that this type of bonus is not "standard issue" at the USAIC Reenlistment Office; paid only upon the rarest of occasions, it will be replaced by cash payments during the coming year.

Open season on deer has been closed in the Alabama area and, at this writing, is due to close in the Georgia area on January 5. Georgia squirrel hunting will also close on the 15th of January but the bushytails will be legal game on the Alabama side until the 15th.

A deer count will be published when the Fish and Game people get their reports compiled, something which brings up another subject. . .

Even though the turkey season has been open for nearly two weeks, not a single gobbler kill has been reported. Post regulations make gobbler kill reports mandatory and all turkey hunters are reminded that their victories should be made known as soon after the kill as is possible.

Quail and rabbits will be legal game for another month, or better, and bird hunters are making good bags

The Surgeon Says

Is Your Auto A Death Trap?

BY 1ST LT. JOSEPH A. FRATE

Carbon monoxide, the colorless killer, is responsible for many deaths each year in the United States.

Carbon monoxide is formed by the incomplete combustion of carbon. Stove, furnaces and automobiles exhaust fumes are common sources of this lethal gas. It is dangerous to leave children in a parked car with the newer type heaters on that drew in the exhaust from the car in front.

Carbon monoxide, in combination with hemoglobin, leaves insufficient amounts of oxygen in the blood stream which travels to all parts of the body. When this occurs, the skin takes on a bluish hue, drowsiness nausea and weakness sets in finally terminating in death.

Lethal as this gas is, it need not cause death providing preventive measures are adhered to. Your automobile can be a death trap regardless of its age therefore it should be checked periodically and kept in good condition. Carbon monoxide builds up more under the hood when the engine is idling, however, don't think that it can't happen when you are driving on an open highway.

Monoxide gas seeps through the slightest openings in the firewall; floor boards, and heating and cooling system.

In cold weather, the heating system draws in outside air, which is mixed with monoxide gas, warms it and passes it through to the interior of your car. The same applies to summer - time driving. Cool air passing through your cooling system into the car carries with it the deadly monoxide gas.

In wintertime, with the heater running, windows closed tight, and you and your occupants expiring carbon dioxide (expired air that you breathe) contributes to the possibility of your becoming asphyxiated. Whenever the motor of your car is running, make sure that you have a window slightly open in order to facilitate the continued circulation of air. This will also cause expired air and any carbon monoxide that has been built up to escape out the open window.

Monoxide poisoning can occur in your home as well as your automobile. Gas heaters, oil heaters, stoves, furnaces and other fuel burning apparatus are common sources of monoxide gas. Never have a home or room "sealed tight." A window or windows should be slightly opened to allow fresh air to circulate in the rooms. A so called "air-tight" home will provide an excellent opportunity for monoxide gas to build up in.

To insure the lives of your loved ones, check and make necessary repairs to your automobile, furnace, stove, heaters and any other fuel burning equipment and appliances that you may own. Remember—the life you save, may be your own.

In Our Nation

Indian War Vet Is Now Oldest!

(AFPS) — "There used to be about 40 of us Indian War veterans, but all those fellows are gone now . . ."

Clinton H. Hamilton, 93, was reminiscing in the Soldiers' Home here. He is one of two old Indian fighters living in the Home, the other being John C. Ford, 96.

In all, the Veterans Administration still has 41 of these Indian fighters on its rolls. They are — if you classify the drawn-out struggle as a legitimate conflict between two powers — the nation's oldest living war veterans.

Although television is an important recreational factor in the Soldiers' Home, neither Hamilton nor Ford is able to give his opinion of the Indians versus scouts fare that floods the airwaves. Poor vision caused by advanced age prevents their watching TV.

But Hamilton, although hard of hearing, can still talk energetically about his youth. "I was born in Collinville, Ill., on December 3, 1867, and when I was nine I ran away from home," he says. "I lived with a Sioux Indian chief for five years. He wanted to learn to speak English. I learned Sioux and later Mexican."

And of another custom: "The Sioux buried their dead in a sitting position, facing south because the Indians love the south wind."

Both Hamilton and Ford, who served as an Indian scout in the Dakota Badlands in 1890-91, admire the Indians and feel that they got a shabby deal from the settlers who took over their country. But both men are reluctant to elaborate on their views.

Says Ford gently: "I find it best, best for me, to let time go by. I don't try to take hold of it. I just let it go."

Balance of Payment Problems Get Added Defense Level Study

(AFPS)— Secretary of Defense Thomas S. Gates Jr. has taken further steps to implement President Eisenhower's directive concerning the balance of payments problem. In the President's order, paragraph 6 directed the heads of all government departments and agencies which have personnel stationed abroad to "take all measures to make reductions in personnel and dependents stationed abroad when such reductions can be accomplished without impairing the fulfillment of essential U. S. policy objectives."

A Defense Department spokesman said the phrasing of the paragraph, particularly the clause reading "when such reduction can be accomplished without impairing the fulfillment of essential U. S. policy objectives," means that no cutback of overseas combat-effective forces is anticipated.

In his memorandum, Mr. Gates referred to paragraph 6 of the order and said he would like a preliminary report by January 9, 1961, from the military departments and Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff "of the actions accomplished and the actions which are contemplated or under study with the expected date of completion in order to comply with the directive of the President."

He said, "It is recognized that the first report will be brief in nature and may of necessity include proposed actions which may be modified later."

Among the actions Mr. Gates said he thought should be studied were:

A further examination of all activities to determine those which can be eliminated, consolidated, reduced or transferred to the United States. Such examination should include all military headquarters, bases, posts, units, military schools, recreation centers, welfare, community support and other such activities.

A detailed and energetic audit to insure that each activity is manned at minimum levels necessary to carry out U. S. objectives.

A review of the requirements for all properties and installations in foreign countries with the purpose, where feasible and financially advantageous to the United States, of disposing of them.

Judy & Tracy Harrison's teen talk...

Hi! Yes, the holidays are over and now back to the familiar grind, school.

The bustling holidays will not easily be forgotten, however, with the friendly "get-togethers", the lovely parties and the mad whirl of the Christmas-New Year season.

The ballroom, decorated in appropriate yuletide trimmings, presented a perfect setting for the JADA Queen and her court.

The Delta Sigma Beta Sorority held a social on December 19, at Brat Barracks, for their Christmas festivities. Members of the sorority and their guests were present at the party.

The Follow-Me Club held a roller skating party on December 17 at Idlehour Park. Refreshments were served at the Follow - Me Club afterwards. From what we hear, fun was had by all. Also, the Follow-Me Club is holding elections this Sunday, so members be sure to attend.

Private parties also ranked high on the social calendar over the Holidays.

And, of course, welcoming back the college kids was fun. Returning home from the holidays were Bobby and Dewise Cain, Lou Kunzig, Bill Birdsong, Jerry Harrison, Mindi Merritt, Louise Rashid, Wally Hayes, Dan DeYoung, Katey DeYoung, Kay and Lynn Williams, Marty Leeney, Jan Donaghey, Barbara Whittman, Pat Clifford and many more.

School has started now and our many school activities are coming into focus again. Basketball, plays, club meetings, and similar events that happen will be featured as usual in our column, so bring us your news.

Bye for now, see you in two weeks.

Army Develops New Equipment

(ANS) — A truck mounted, 80 cfm air compressor and an improved marine fire and salvage equipment set have been developed by the Army Engineer Research and Development Laboratories.

The compressor, designed to meet Army requirements for a mobile unit as ground support equipment in the Redstone Missile system, consists of a six-cylinder, five - stage, air-cooled air compressor driven by an air-cooled gasoline engine. It is capable of discharging pressures from 750 psi to 5,000 psi.

Mounted on a M-45 truck chassis, the compressor weighs 7,500 pounds.

Deer Provided With Reflectors

(AFPS)— When the State of Alabama gave 36 deer to the Army's Redstone Arsenal, the major concern of the Post's game warden, Sgt. Buford Harrison, was that the deer would not be killed off at night by automobiles.

With a little ingenuity, Sgt. Harrison believes he has solved the problem.

Each of the deer are now equipped with reflectors, which are visible fore and aft. The reflectors are about one inch wide and three inches long and are clipped to the deer's ear.

SMaj Stanley R. Baker, who was promoted to his present rank while in Germany early last year, is now, the sergeant major of the 39th Transportation Battalion, Infantry Center Troop Command.

SMaj Baker entered the Army in February, 1941, and took basic Infantry training at Camp Landing, Fla., before transferring overseas where he participated in campaigns in North Africa, Italy and Sicily.

Returning to the States in 1945 for discharge, SMaj Baker took a three - month break in service before reenlisting for Italy later the same year.

In 1948, he was assigned to Fort Wright, N. Y., where he was made first sergeant of a transportation unit.

In 1951 SMaj Baker was assigned to Korea, where he had the job of first sergeant and truck master on Koji Island.

Returning to the U.S. in 1953 SMaj Baker took a civilian component job as ROTC instructor at Mississippi State University, a position he held for three years before transferring to Europe.

In Germany, his most recent assignment before coming to Fort Benning in October, 1960, SMaj Baker was the sergeant major of 53rd Transportation Battalion.

SMaj Baker holds the Army Commendation Medal along with other theater and service ribbons.

The Male Bag

DEAR SARGE

DEAR SARGE: I'm an Army sergeant with over 12 years service and have been married for eight years. Lately I've been having another sergeant from my company over as my house guest frequently. I enjoyed his company and thought he was a good friend. Well, two days ago I came in from duty and my wife informed me she wanted a divorce so they could be married. I was just plain shocked and haven't been myself for two days. I love my wife and don't want to lose her. What should I do?

SHOCKED

SHOCKED: Just pull a little shock action on this joker. Tell him the party is over and to move on out. Looks like your hospitality was stronger than his friendship.

DEAR SARGE: I am a nineteen year old soldier with about a year in the Army and find myself on overseas orders, for Europe. I've been told that many of the European girls are very beautiful and eager to go with American soldiers. Also, I've been told by buddies in my unit that have had a tour over there that plenty of soldiers are marrying these girls. I just wonder if this is right?

WONDERING

WONDERING: You give me the answer to that one when you complete your tour.

DEAR SARGE: I'm a young Pfc and have just met a girl that is pretty, blonde and built and find myself getting very serious over her. The only problem is that she must have a dozen boy friends chasing after her and she doesn't seem to want to give me a fumble. What would be the best thing to do about this situation?

PFC

PFC: You might try a good movie.

DEAR SARGE: I am just past my 25th birthday and have been going with a serg. I sent for over a year now and I feel we should get married. I've tried every type of hint and suggestion but he just doesn't seem to get the message and ask the big question. Do you think I should just come right out and ask him?

ANXIOUS

ANXIOUS: Ask him not me. But you had better be sure he's not getting the message but just doesn't want to read it loud and clear.

Writers League To Washington; Associates Okey

(AFPS)— The National Board of Directors of the Armed Forces Writers League (AFWL), meeting at Fort Myer, Va., in November, approved proposals to extend full membership privileges to associate members and to move League national headquarters to the nation's capital.

The AFWL, founded in 1954, is a world-wide organization of service-connected writers and artists. Under the new eligibility proposal, any citizen of the United States whose interests coincide with the aims of the League may now apply for regular membership.

Candidate Fry

This Soldier Doesn't Stop Earning Honors

Officer Candidate Charles H. Fry, 53rd Company, The Student Brigade, is trying to add another first to a long list of honors he has earned since entering the Army in 1961, shortly after his eighteenth birthday.

Scheduled for graduation in April of 1961, he entered the OCS class as a master sergeant.

Earning the rank sergeant first class during Korean combat he next volunteered for the Army's Special Forces, and completed training at Fort Bragg.

Next he went to an assignment in Germany where he was named honor graduate from the Intelligence and Language School and was named Distinguished Graduate of he Seventh Army Noncommunisioned Officers Academy — graduating with highest overall record in the history of the Academy.

He now has some 108 parachute jumps and 12 free falls to his credit and set an all-time record while attending the Navy Underwater Swimmers School at Key West Florida.

In Germany he put the schooling to good use when he made a dive to some 150 feet to retrieve the body of a German drowning victim.

Dental Interns Train Under Benning Program

Dental interns training here are instructed by a staff of experts in the various fields of dentistry, according to Col. Stuart M. Mitchell, post dental surgeon.

In addition to the local staff, approximately 40 eminent consultants throughout the Southeast come to the post at regular intervals to work with the interns. Each consultant is a specialist in some phase of dentistry.

As chief of the Infantry Center Dental Service, Col. Mitchell is responsible for conducting the dental training program.

Serving with Col. Mitchell on a Dental Education Committee in addition to Col. Faillo, are Col. Edward G. Austin, chief of orthodontia; Col. Frank C. Jerbi, chief of prosthodontia; Lt. Col. Thomas K. Goodman, deputy dental surgeon Lt. Col Hosea F. Sawyer chief of operative and crown and bridge dentistry; Major James C. Conway, chief of periodontia, and Major Willard G. Fischer, chief of radiontia and oral diagnosis.

Approved by the Council on Dental Education of the American Dental Association, the dental intern training program covers examination, diagnosis and X-Ray, periodontia and oral hygience, oral surgery, operative dentistry, crown and bridge and prosthodontia.

The caliber of instruction here is high, officials say. The instructors and consultants, both military and civilian, are men who have achieved recognition as specialists in their fields.

Interns are selected during their senior year in dental college from candidates at schools approved by the American Dental Association.

As at other installations maintaining dental internships, the program at Fort Benning is constantly surveyed by military consultants to the surgeon general, appropriate divisions of the Office of the Surgeon General and the Surgeon General's Professional Education Committee.

Col. Mitchell, Col. Faillo and other members of the Dental Education Committee maintain a close scrutiny of the program.

From a physical viewpoint, the Dental Service and Martin Army Hospital provide for the intern an opportunity to use the most modern laboratory, oral surgery and radiological facilities.

The library is stocked with the latest textbooks, dental periodicals and other reference materials.

Professional opportunities for the dental intern at Fort Benning are excellent. Each intern is encouraged to make a clinical study. Such papers may be offered for publication in appropriate journals.

Four young dentists are currently undergoing the training. All first lieutenants, three of them are in the Army and one is an Air Force officer.

Missile Master Net Completed In Ten Areas

(ANS)—The Army announced December 14 successful completion of a network of electronic centers designed to coordinate air defense of key industrial and population centers in this country.

Third Army's Entertainment Contest Here

Information has been received by The Infantry Center Special Services that the 1961 Third Army All-Army Entertainment contest will be conducted here during March and April.

The directive calls for the "recorded" phase to be conducted on March 24 and the "live" phase to be held from April 12 to April 22.

Plans are currently being set into motion in preparation for the Army level of competition.

FOXHOLE DIGGER . . . Members of the Infantry Board are testing this digger in search for an excavator that will enable modern soldiers to prepare positions in a minimum of time. This model is capable of digging most types of individual and crew-served weapons positions up to a depth of six feet and can dig a four-foot deep trench at the rate of 12 linear feet a minute.

At Fort Detrick

Relay Station Is Largest

(AFPS) — More than a quarter of a million messages per day can be handled by the Army Signal Corps East Relay Station which was put into operation at Fort Detrick, Md., in mid-December. A network control station for the Strategic Army Communications System, it is the largest automatic communications relay station in the world. It was built at a cost of $25 million.

While sending 275,000 messages a day the station can receive and store up to 5,000 additional messages for later transmission.

Through use of this center and two other similar installations, the Army has almost split - second control of its world - wide commands. Ft. Detrick's station connects with commands throughout the Atlantic and Western Hemisphere. Another station at Camp Davis, Calif., forms the link with the Pacific and Eastern Hemisphere, while the third relay center at Fort Leavenworth, Kans., acts as the hub for both stateside and overseas communications. In case of destruction or other interruptions to one of the stations, the other two can take over its mission.

Messages are received and relayed automatically as compared to the "torn-tape" method of semi-automatic tape relay centers where operators remove perforated tape messages from revolving machines and transfer them to outgoing machines. Skilled operators, sitting at control consoles, monitor the fully automatic relaying of the messages from incoming to outgoing, in automatic stations.

A prototype automatic station relay at Fifth Army Hq., was capable of handling up to 22,000 messages per day with two or three operators while a semi-automatic station in the same headquarters, employing 15 to 20 persons, worked tiriously to process half that many messages.

The new station has long distance radio, cable and wire channels to provide teletypewriter, voice, data, facsimile and other communications to the widespread points it services. It is linked by "troposcatter" to the Army's overseas radio receiving station at La Plata, Md. and by micro-wave radio to the radio transmitting site at Woodbridge, Va.

Troposcatter is a method of bouncing radio signals off atmospheric layers high above the earth, reducing much atmospheric interference. Both the troposcatter system and micro-wave radio communications are difficult to tap or sabotage.

Short Run

The producer of a new London play, "The Importance of Oscar," turned down a hosiery firm's offer to supply the female members of the cast with free stockings. It's a one man show.

First TV Was Shown in 1925 On Navy Ship

(AFPS)—The first demonstration of television in the United States is generally held to have occurred in 1927 when picture images were transmitted between New York and Washington.

The fact is, however, that a gifted but little known inventor, C. Francis Jenkins, had given the Navy a demonstration all of two years earlier, causing Secretary of the Navy Curtis D. Wilbur to predict that in any future wars "we'll be sitting at our desks and watching the battle in progress."

According to a Washington newspaper, the demonstration took place on June 13, 1925.

A Pictorial About U. S. Weapons Is Published

A book that goes a long way toward clarifying the accuracy of claims about the United States' firepower and ability to defend itself is "A Pictorial Arsenal of America's Combat Weapons" by Will Elsner, published last week. (Sterling, $3.95)

In this picture-filled volume, for which Major Gen. J. B. Medaris, former chief of our missile program, has written a stimulating introduction, can be seen photographs of each weapon (more than 100) our nation possesses, from grenades to atomic cannon, with statistics and descriptions which tell clearly and concisely exactly where in our over-all program the weapon fits, and at what stage of development it currently is.

For anyone now in the Army, this should be required reading. More important, for anyone who is public - minded enough to want to know for certain exactly where America stands in the cold war, this is the fact book to which all debates can be referred.

Some of the weapons pictured and described are relatively unknown to the public; some have recently been declassified some are familiar. Many are so much alike that confusion naturally arises about their differences and functions; this book straightens out the problem.

Army Honors Brazilian Dead

BRAZIL (ANS)— A tribute by U. S. Army personnel to Brazilian brothers - in - arms killed during the Italian Campaign of World War II (1943-1945) was made by a select color guard from the 1st Battle Group, 3d Infantry (Old Guard) Regiment from Fort Myer, Va., at reburial ceremonies here on December 20, the Department of the Army has announced.

The remains of 465 members of the Brazilian Expeditionary Force who have been buried in Italy since the war were reinterred during commemorative exercises at a new War Memorial.

It Can't Be Done

You Understand Women? These Tips May Help...

It can't be done. That's the considered opinion of countless theorizers, from traffic cops to tragic poets, who've tried to fathom feminine motives.

Said one 19th century versifier, an Englishman with the unlikely name of Coventry Patmore:

A Woman is a foreign land
Of which, though there he settle young
A man will ne'er quite understand
The customs, politics and tongue.

Other thinkers, more successful with the pretty and puzzling sex, have milady all — well, almost all — figured out. One such person has compiled some of these valuable clues to making a hit with Her . . . and Her . . . and Her.

Act Devoted

Brush imaginary dust from her shoulder, hold hands under the dinner table, touch your lips to the glass her lips have touched — and don't worry if the gesture seems old hat or corny. These suggestions, for instance, come from a 2,000 year old treatise on "The Art of Love." Did they work? So well that Ovid, the author, was obliged to write a sequel telling men how to avoid entangling alliances!

Act Jealous

A man who's unreasonable—within reasonable limits, of course — is one of the most effective ego-builders a woman can have. Therefore, grumble a bit when she smiles fetchingly at another man. If you're still single and not yet at the going-steady stage, ask if she's free for a date in a tone that implies you think you're competing with at least two other guys. Never let her suspect that you know you're her only beau — even if you know it for a fact!

Know What To Say

Suppose she's made an obvious effort to look glamorous and you can't remember whether you've seen the dress before. Or you'd like to compliment her on her flair for fashion but you wouldn't know the difference between an Empire line and a chain gang. Get out of it graciously — and effectively — by saying simply, "How lovely you look!"

If you're married, never respond to that inevitable question with "of course I love you." It sounds much too brusque. Instead, say "You don't know how much." This leaves her about where she was before, but she'll love it and you'll be off the hook — especially if you don't know how much, either.

Most women resent the condescending "little woman" approach, so, if you compliment her on her knowledge of batting averages or the international situation, don't sound as if it's a miracle that she knows these things. Virtually every woman likes to be proud of her man's intellect, so profit from the example of a gent who was famous for—among other things — his ability to converse on any topic. His name: Giovanni Giacomo Casanova.

Read Her Signals

Many men suspect — and many women cheerfully admit — that women have a language of their own, expressed in tonal variations and pauses between words as well as in the words themselves. You'll never speak it, but for optimum success with bilingual ladies, it behooves you to understand a little of it.

What out for the significant pause. Have you asked her if your pooch can come along on your romantic evening stroll, and has she hesitated just a few seconds before saying yes? Drop the subject; if Rover comes along, you'll be in the doghouse. The same goes for a cautious, overpolite tone; if she'd really love to go to your class reunion, she'd have said so heartily. Be alert, too, for the hint so indirect as to be the opposite of what it sounds like "Don't bother to get anything for my birthday" really means "don't forget, now" — and don't you forget it.

But if you think this is tough, ponder what your fathers and grandfathers went through, to understand women circa 1900, some young men resorted to the pseudo-science of phrenology, scanning the shape of milady's head and the distance from her nostril to the corner of her mouth for clues as to her intelligence, temper, and virtue!

Income Tax Course To Begin Next Week

Post personnel will be prepared to meet the demands of the annual income tax season.

The Staff Judge Advocate Section of The Infantry Center has planned a two-day course of instruction for 185 selected officers and enlisted men from The Infantry Center and the Division who will be available to advise members of their units in filling out the tax returns.

The course will be conducted January 9 and 10 in The Infantry School's Walker Hall. Classes start at 8:30 a.m. and continue throughout the day.

The staff judge advocate, Lt. Col. Kenneth C. Crawford, is preparing a pamphlet on income tax laws to be distributed to personnel attending the course.

Further information concerning the income tax school may be obtained by telephoning 1st Lt. Robert S. Poydasheff, chief of the Staff Judge Advocate Section's Military Affairs Division, at 5-2632.

3 Colonels Will Attend Senior Study

Three officers assigned to the post have been selected to attend the top service schools in 1961-1962.

Col. Glenn H. Gardner, director of The Infantry School's Communications Department, and Col. Lewis W. Leeney, commander of Lawson Army Aviation Command, will go to the National War College at Fort McNair, Washington, D.C.

Attending the Army War College at Carlisle Barracks, Pa., will be Lt. Col. Kenneth C. Crawford, staff judge advocate of the Infantry Center. Among his classmates will be the President's son, Lt. Col. John S. D. Eisenhower.

Gen. Walsh's Infantry School Report

Col. John Bisbing, director of the Department of Non-Resident Instruction and Infantry Reserve Officer Training Corps Advisor, The Infantry School, has the responsibility for providing instructional material to support the training of 250,000 ROTC students.

This challenging task has been met and is being successfully accomplished through the mechanics of a well-organized team consisting of committees of the Department of Non-Resident Instruction, Editorial and Pictorial Office, the Army Field Printing Plant, and Third Training Aids Subcenter.

The 250,000 ROTC students are enrolled in four major programs. At the high school level, the Junior Division is conducted by active duty Army personnel who are assigned as instructors.

The National Defense Cadet Corps Program is also conducted at high school level. While course objectives and content are similar to the Junior Division, the instructors, however, are civilians, usually retired military personnel, who are hired by the respective schools to present the military training.

The third major program is the Military Schools Division, in which 14,000 cadets are enrolled in 40 military institutes and military junior colleges.

The ROTC division familiar to most is the four-year Senior Program conducted in colleges and universities throughout the United States and territories. The Infantry School supports 248 Senior ROTC units, with a cadet enrollment of 155,500 students; 204 General Military Science; 13 Infantry branch and 31 other branches comprise the designation of training offered.

The General Military Science curriculum is keyed to produce second lieutenants who, by their education, training, and inherent qualities are suitable for continued development as officers in any branch of the Army. The branch material type, as the name implies, is designed to train cadets for commissions in specific branches.

The basic instructional aid provided by the Department of Non-Resident Instruction to support the ROTC programs is the ROTC Subject schedule which serve as guides for Professors of Military Science and their assistants in preparing and presenting

JAMES TILTON
Earns Optimist Award

Year's Top SchoolBoy Is Named

James T. Tilton, 17, son of Sfc and Mrs. Keith Tilton, has been named "Boy of the Year" by the Columbus Optimist Club.

A senior at Baker High School, James has attended the school since February, 1957, when his father was assigned to Lawson Army Aviation Command. Sgt. Tilton served 13 months in Korea in 1959-1960, but is again assigned to Lawson.

Young Tilton ranks first in his class and achieved the highest score on the National Merit Scholarship Test of any student in Muscogee County.

He has served as president of the Baker Student Council.

Ceremonies Mark Change Of Command

Col. Otto R. Koch Jr., has assumed command of The Student Brigade of The Infantry School.

Officiating officer at the recent change of command ceremony was Col. Julian H. Martin, deputy assistant commandant of The Infantry School.

Col. Koch succeeds Col. William A. McKee, who has been named G-3 of The Infantry Center.

Since August, 1960, Col. Koch has held the position of director of The Infantry School's Department of Non-Resident Instruction. He has been succeeded in that position by Col. John Bisbing, formerly chairman of the Command and Staff Department's Advanced Tactics, Intelligence and Operations Committee.

Col. Koch came to Fort Benning from an assignment with the Military Assistance Advisory Group in Iran, where he served from 1959 to 1960 as advisor to the II Corps of the Imperial Army.

He was commander of the

Col. William A. McKee assumed the duties of G-3 of the Infantry Center last Saturday.

He succeeds Col. Kenneth G. Pavey who became Infantry Center chief of staff on that date.

Col. McKee came to the post in July, 1959, and initially served as deputy director of The Infantry School's Weapons Department. Since last May he has commanded The Student Brigade.

A 1936 graduate of the University of Iowa, Col. McKee received a commission as a second lieutenant through that institution's ROTC program. He entered active Army duty in October, 1940.

From August, 1942, to September, 1945, he served in successive assignments as S-3 and 1st Battalion commander in the 29th Infantry Regiment in Iceland, England, France, Belgium and Germany. He assumed command of the 1st Battalion three months after Col. Pavey, his predecessor in

National Safety Honors Lt. Gen. Adams To Make Award

A National Safety Council Award of Honor plaque has been awarded to Fort Benning for effecting a major improvement in all phases of military installation safety program for 1960.

Formal presentation of the coveted award will be made by Lt. Gen. Paul D. Adams, commanding general, Third Army, at ceremonies scheduled at The Infantry Center today.

Acceptance of the award on behalf of the entire installation will be by the Infantry Center's commander, Major Gen. Hugh P. Harris.

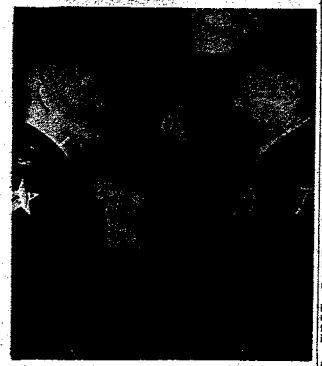
AMVETS National Commander Views Airborne Here

A parachute instructor at Fort Benning for nearly two years during World War II, Harold Russell of Wayland, Mass., national commander of AMVETS, viewed Airborne activities at The Infantry School Tuesday.

Russell received two Academy Awards for his performance in "The Best Years of Our Lives" and in the last decade has circled the globe as vice president of the World Veteran's Fund. He is serving as national commander of AMVETS for the third time.

He observed a demonstration of Airborne training by the Airborne-Air Mobility Department on Eubanks Field, then toured the Infantry Museum. He was guest of honor at a luncheon in Grain Hall, the non-commissioned officers mess.



Russell was inducted into the Army in 1942. While stationed at Benning he held the rank of sergeant and made 51 jumps.

Among the approximately 20

Officers' Mess Addition

Supper Club Heads 1961 Construction

Construction and repair contracts amounting to approximately $732,000 were completed here during 1960, according to figures from The Infantry Center Engineer Section.

In addition, district contracts amounting to some $2,957,000 were also completed last year.

The major post contracts for the year included construction of the new enlisted men's swimming pool for nearly $200,000 and construction of a barracks and mess hall at the Dahlonega Ranger Camp for some $99,000.

Major district contracts included construction of facilities at Lawson amounting to about $961,000, rehabilitation of the Wherry Housing area at approximately $813,000, and construction of Trainfire I ranges for some $526,000.

Post contracts amounting to about $413,000 are scheduled for completion this year. The largest is for the addition of a supper club to the Main Officers' Open Mess for some $282,000.

District contracts scheduled for completion this year include construction of nurses quarters amounting to approximately $693,000 and construction of motor park facilities at Kelley Hill for about $495,000.

Additional contracts amounting to some $3,500,000 are expected to be let this year. They will include rehabilitation of barracks, mess halls, family quarters and construction of supporting facilities at Kelly Hill.

Overseas

Civilian Families Face Cut

Headquarters, The Infantry Center has been informed by Third Army that the number of dependents of U. S. civilian personnel overseas will be reduced.

The reduction will be made on a basis similar to the current reduction of military dependents abroad.

The reduction applies to dependents of civilian employees paid from both appropriated and nonappropriated funds.

The reduction will not affect overseas employees in a continuity position. Employees in noncontinuity positions will be reassigned to appropriate jobs in the continental U. S., if they have dependents with them overseas. This change will be made on or before July, 1962.

Overseas commands will survey all civilian jobs to determine which ones meet the requirement for a continuity position.

Factors to be considered in the survey include scarce skills, representation with foreign governments, requirement for providing back-up support for key noncontinuity military positions, responsibility for planning, executing or evaluating a major command function, or for developing specific policy guidance based on knowledge of conditions abroad, and the consequences expected to result from a change in personnel.

instruction.

Another major instructional item issued is the Instructor Manuscripts. The manuscripts, prepared to support specific subjects, contain complete narratives to supplement instruction wherein little reference material is available to insure standardization of instruction.

Practical exercises are prepared and distributed to support training in such subjects as small unit tactics, leadership, and personnel functions.

DNRI periodically prepares an infantry publicity poster, the purpose of which is to provide ROTC cadets with general knowledge of infantry and to encourage infantry as a branch selection. Brig. Gen. L. A. Walsh, Jr., assistant commandant, recently assisted the Department with the preparation of INFANTRYMAN, one of the most successful posters published to date.

Additional assistance is rendered the ROTC program through liaison visits and the procurement and distribution of special items such as military books and periodicals and special training aids.

Following a tour as professor of military science at Wentworth Military Academy, Lexington, Mo., Col. McKee attended the Command and General Staff College at Fort Leavenworth in 1940-1949. He then served as an Infantry instructor at The Signal School, Fort Monmouth, for three years.

Col. McKee was a member of the U. S. Military Mission in Iran from the summer of 1952 until the fall of the following year, when he entered the Army War College at Carlisle Barracks.

From August, 1954, to July, 1956, he was deputy chief of the Troop Information Division, Office of the Chief of Information, Department of the Army, in Washington, D.C. He next served successively as deputy chief and chief of the Plans Branch, Office of the Assistant Chief of Staff for Intelligence, Department of the Army, for 21 months.

Col. McKee went to Korea in May, 1958. He commanded the 1st Battle Group, 32nd Infantry, 7th Infantry Division until September of that year, then was chief of staff of 7th Division for nine months. Returning to the States he was assigned to Fort Benning.

Col. and Mrs. McKee, the former Mary Moyer of Marion, Iowa, have a daughter, Mary Lynn, who is a junior at the University of Iowa.

2nd Battle Group, 5th Infantry from 1958 to 1959.

From 1955 to 1958, Col. Koch was assigned to the Office of the Deputy Chief of Staff for Operations in Washington, D.C. as chief of the Western Hemisphere Division.

He served in Germany as commander of a battalion in the 12th Regiment of the 4th Infantry Division from 1953 to 1954 and as a member of MAAG in France from 1951 to 1953.

During World War II, Col. Koch served in Europe, Middle East Theater with the 66th Infantry, 9th Infantry Division and as a member of the G-3 Section, Headquarters, V Corps. He has served 80 months overseas.

Col. Koch received his commission in 1934 and entered active service the following year.

Service schools he has attended include The Infantry School, the Army War College and the Air Command and Staff College.

Among his awards and decorations are the Bronze Star Medal with three Oak Leaf Clusters and Army Commendation Ribbon.

Col. Koch is married to the former Jane West of Morgantown, W. Va.

Russell

guests accompanied Russell on his visit here were William P. Ryan of Atlanta, third national vice commander of AMVETS, and W. R. Hughes of Gainesville, Ga., acting state AMVET commander.

John E. Brown of the Charles M. Greavu Post 9 of AMVETS, Columbus, second state vice commander, was in charge of arrangements for the tour. The Columbus AMVET post is the largest in the state.

Following the luncheon Russell was scheduled to receive the keys to the city from Columbus Mayor P. Ed Johnson, then he was to go to Atlanta to open the AMVET office at the Veterans Administration Center.

percent improvement reflected over the installation's overall standing in 1959, according to the post safety director.

During the period for which it was rated the post experienced 178 less accidents, 145 less injuries and three less fatalities than it did in 1959.

The overall rating is computed by averaging out accident, injury and cost rates based upon post personnel strengths.

The reduced rate served to effect a saving of $830,000 based upon Department of Army estimates, the safety director said.

The outstanding award was jointly earned by all major commands of the installation and represents an outstanding advance toward post safety objectives.

Smiling skies are probably the biggest hope of President-elect John F. Kennedy, and the thousands of Americans who will witness his Inauguration Day next week. This may well be the great day of his life and the apex of his career — to be sworn in as President of the United States. What would be better for such a great day than clear, sunny weather. Yet the sad fact is that for the 43 presidential investitures which the country has seen since 1789 over half of them have been dampened by snow, rain, freezing cold or cutting winds. Probably President Ulysses S. Grant's second inauguration beat all the others for weather discomfort. It was zero cold, so cold that West Point cadets dropped in their tracks. At the Inaugural Ball, the dancing guests wore heavy coats to keep from freezing. They didn't — but the champagne did. Let's all hope the new administration gets off to a clear and sunny start next week.

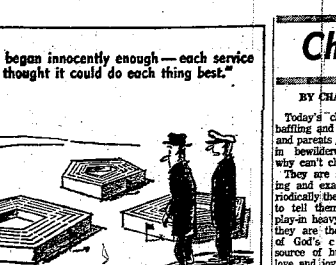
To Develop New Paratroop Aircraft

The Air Force has set aside some 30 million dollars in its Fiscal Year 1961 budget for the development of an all-cargo aircraft to meet civil standards and fulfill the needs of both the military and commercial carriers. The aircraft will have a maximum cargo capacity of 70,000 pounds and a capability of taking off fully loaded from a 6,000-foot runway. The new plane is to be turbofan-jet powered and will feature truck-bed height loading. In the military version it will also have provisions for airdropping parachute troops and heavy equipment. The aircraft is being jointly developed with the Federal Aviation Agency.

New Navy and USAF Secretaries

President-elect Kennedy has named John B. Connally, Jr., of Austin, Tex., to the post of Secretary of the Navy in his new cabinet. Mr. Connally is a lawyer and decorated Navy veteran who saw combat service in Algiers and the Pacific during World War II. Named for the post of Secretary of the Air Force is Eugene M. Zuckert, a former assistant to the same office. Mr. Zuckert is a native of New York City and holds a law degree from Yale. He was a member of the Atomic Energy Commission from 1952 until 1954.

Revised Plan on Officer Act



Recommendations for revising the Officer Personnel Act of 1947 and associated legislation designed to eliminate interservice disparities harmful to morale, were presented to the Secretary of Defense this week. The recommendations, if enacted, will provide substantially similar personnel laws and promotion opportunity for all active duty officers of each branch of the Armed Forces.

Freedoms Foundation 1960 Winner

First place winner and recipient of $1,000 and a George Washington Honor Medal in the 1960 Freedoms Foundation Letter Writing Awards Program is the Army's Pfc Ernest N. Vanover. The '60 subject was "My Vote — Freedom's Privilege." He will have a reserved seat and be a guest at several functions during the presidential inauguration next week.

This Week's Column Closer

Just read where the call "tattoo" got its origin. It was derived from an old Dutch alcoholic control signal. The Dutch word "taptoe" (shut the tap) meant a drumming which signalled the closing of barrroms and taverns in garrisoned towns. When the drummers started their second round of the town, all barrooms and taverns were to be closed and the customers in their way home.

Editorial

The Military Dime and March of Dimes

Someone recently invented the phrase, The Military Dime, to describe the Armed Forces' contributions to its first cousin — the New March of Dimes. Like the average donation to the Dimes campaign every January, the Military Dime has been put to work in the fight against three major crippling diseases, birth defects, arthritis and polio.

You may ask why?

Well, Dimes aid went to 40,000 polio victims in 1960. The total medical care program was $15,600,000. Many of those aided in 1960 and in the past were wives, or children or dependents of servicemen.

For example, in California, five years ago, the wife and sister-in-law of an Army lieutenant both contracted paralytic polio within a week's time. They have depended on artificial breathing equipment ever since. Total cost of patient aid supplied by the March of Dimes: $52,884.44.

For another example: In New York an Army sergeant today has a united family of three children and a polio wife whose breathing is done through a chest respirator. Dimes aid, totaling $23,000 in three years, helped keep the family together.

Other reasons: Crippling by the three diseases affects one out of four families of Armed Forces personnel or veterans. There are 11,000,000 Americans with arthritis and rheumatic diseases, including children. More than 250,000 infants are born each year with a significant birth defect. The cost of medical care is enormous; the human suffering involved for victim and family is greater.

Chaplain's Corner

BY CHAPLAIN (1ST LT.) FRANCIS X. MCCARTHY

Today's children are often baffling and incomprehensible, and parents gaze at each other in bewilderment, wondering why can't children be like us.

They are sometimes irritating and exasperating and periodically the temptation arises to tell them to go out and play in heavy traffic! And yet they are the most wonderful of God's creations — a source of humor, inspiration, love and joy, as we see them awakening to life and fulfilling their early promise, advancing in age and grace and wisdom before God and man.

And to parents falls the duty of teaching, ruling and sanctifying these most wonderful of God's creatures.

A child learns chiefly by imitation. He is a blank page, a movie film, a tape recorder, constantly absorbing and assimilating the attitudes, mannerisms and reactions of his parents. From them he acquires prejudices, likes and dislikes, virtues and vices.

Eighty percent of what the child will be is determined by his parents. By the time school companions and church become influences, his character is well formed and adjustment or correction is very difficult.

The child is determined by what parents are not by what they say.

He deeply desires to grow up and be like mother or dad but he is very conscious of inconsistency between preaching and practice; he is sensitive to hypocrisy; for example, he may be cautioned hourly against the use of profanity but if he says "dammit" loud and clear as he trips on the chapel steps some Sunday morning, it is almost certain he has learned this from Mama or Papa!

The child will be what the parents are. Parents cannot expect to see virtues where they haven't shown any. Children quickly recognize your goals and adopt your values whether you want them to or not; for example, years of admonition to the child to exhibit kindness and politeness to his playmates can be outweighed in ten minutes by overhearing his mother and her coffee companions systematically dissect their "friends."

The most important teaching role in the world today belongs to parents.

The Judge Says . . .

BY 1ST LT. HUGH PETERSON

Johnny Kowalski, a healthy eight-year-old full of bounce and energy, was playing ball with some of his buddies out in front of his house one day after school. Suddenly the ball got away from the boys and went bouncing out into the street.

The other boys were more prudent, but Johnny went dashing out after it. Elvis Smith, thirty-two years old, happened to be driving down the street at that moment. Upset by the rush-hour traffic and in a hurry to get home and rest, Elvis was driving faster than one should drive in residential area. He could clearly see the boys playing near the street, but he was in too big a hurry to pay much attention.

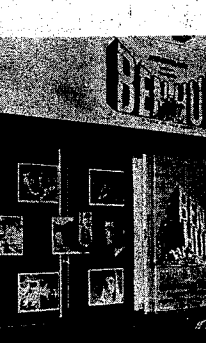
The inevitable happened. Johnny ran right out in front of Elvis, who put on the brakes and tried to swerve, but not soon enough. The little boy went sprawling across the street and up against the curb. One of his arms and two of his ribs were broken and he suffered a deep cut across his face which was sure to leave a scar for life.

The Kowalskis thought that Mr. Smith should make restitution for Johnny's pain and suffering resulting from the mishap, as well as for the considerable medical expenses involved. They therefore got their lawyer to file a suit alleging that Elvis' negligence caused Johnny's injuries.

Is it sufficient only to find that Elvis was negligent in order to make him pay? The answer is no. The rule of law that intervenes is called "contributory negligence."

Essentially this rule states that even if a person causes harm by his negligence he may not be held liable if the injured party negligently put himself in the position to be hurt. As stated in a recent Georgia case, the rule of contributory negligence applies to some children as well as to adults. The only difference is that the standard applied to children is less rigid than the one applied to adults.



Adults are held to an objective standard of what a reasonable man, guided by those considerations which ordinarily regulate the conduct of human affairs, would do. Children within a certain age range are held to a more subjective standard which takes into account the circumstances of the case, including the mental and physical capacity of the child.

In other words, there is no presumption that a child did or did not exercise due care or that he does not have the capacity to recognize danger or observe due care. This means that he is in some degree held responsible for his acts which cause damage to himself or to others. Therefore, if a jury finds that Johnny did not exercise due care in the circumstances and in light of his mental and physical capacities, they could find that although Elvis was negligent, Johnny was as much or more negligent and could not hold Elvis liable.

In declaring who is held to what standards; most states set arbitrary age limits. Georgia, for example, says that children below the age of six are not chargeable with negligence.

At the Movies

"Ben Hur", winner of more academy awards than any other movie in history, started its five-day run at Theater 1 here on post January 11, and will run through Sunday.

There will be one evening performance of the movie at 7 p.m. on each of the three remaining days of the run, plus a 2 p.m. matinee on Sunday.

Produced by William Wyler, it took more than five years to complete and involved thousands of Italian and Israeli extras.

"Ben Hur" is the story of Christ, written more than eight years ago by Gen. Lew Wallace, and stars Charlton Heston as Judah Ben Hur, a prince of Judea who rebelled against Roman authority and was forced to labor in the galleys as punishment.

Co-starring with him are Stephen Boyd as Messala, a childhood friend who becomes a bitter enemy of Hur and Jack Hawkins as a Roman officer who befriends Hur and a galley slave.

Haya Harareet, an Israeli actress, portrays Esther, a former slave of Hur whose love for her former master is long suffering and faithful and Martha Scott has the role of Miriam, a member of Hur's family who feels the wrath of Roman anger.

Infantry Magazine Features

A French colonel discusses guerilla warfare and a Pakistani major delves into Communist encroachment in the Far East in the January-February issue of Infantry Magazine which appears on the market early next week.

Lt. Col. Marc E. Geneste, French liaison officer at the Command and General Staff College at Fort Leavenworth, has written "Guerrilla Warfare" from a diary he kept while serving in Indo-China after World War II.

Educated at France's military college at Saint Cyr, he escaped to Spain from Nazi-occupied France during World War II and joined the French Free Forces. Later, he served with the 2nd French Armored Division, Third U.S. Army.

From the pen of Major M. Ikram Khan of Pakistan comes the article "The Mad Challenge." He takes the position that the U. S. should acquire and maintain bases around the world.

A member of the 12th Punjab Regiment, Major Khan was commissioned in 1945. He is a graduate of and has been an instructor in the Pakistan Military Academy. He is a 1960 graduate of The Infantry School, where he completed an associate career course.

The magazine contains many other interesting and timely articles.

BOOKS in REVIEW

BEST CARTOONS OF THE YEAR 1960, by Lawrence Lariar. (Crown, 1960)

A selection by the artists themselves, of the best cartoons they drew for the leading magazines in the country during the past year.

THE CHILD BUYER, by John Hersey. (Knopf, 1960)

"A novel in the form of hearings before the Standing Committee on Education, Welfare, & Public Morality of a certain State Senate, investigating the conspiracy of Mr. Wissey Jones, with others, to purchase a male child." The story of a poor boy of exceptional intelligence and a representative of a large corporation who seeks to 'buy' him that he may be trained to use his brains for the benefit of the company.

DENNIS THE MENACE, by Hank Ketcham. (Holt, 1960)

"More cartoons of the uninhibited sophisticated little boy who is perpetually into some mischief."

A TIME FOR VIOLENCE by Noel Mc Loomis. (Macmillan, (N.Y.) 1960)

"Set in the Texas Panhandle in the late 19th century, this is the story of Bart Wagnet, accused murderer and Catherine Lewis, an old man's widow. 'Bart's defense of Catherine — and her ranch — against the predatory Jones gives him a chance to clear his own name and bring a lawless man to trial."

DUSA's Annual 49er Party

Big 'Wild West' Night Is Coming Next Month

The entire Main Officers' Open Mess will be transformed into a Wild West dance hall for the annual 49er Party, to be held beginning at 7 p.m. February 4.

This charity gala, sponsored by the Daughters of the United States Army, is one of the highlights of the Benning social calendar. From Maggie's Chuck Wagon to the old time entertainment, members of the Officers' Mess and their guests may enjoy an evening out of the Gold Rush days. Lt. M. J. Kelly is the special representative from the Club for the party.

Rehearsals for the evening's entertainment are well under way. Featured will be beautiful can-can dancers, a famous barbershop quartet whose membership is still a well guarded secret, an eye-popping male chorus line, and many other sensational acts, all under the direction of Mrs. Rolfe Arnhym.

The costume judging will be a high spot of the affair, with valuable prizes being awarded in several categories. Most of those attending will be dressed in the manner of the Old West, but any style may be worn, although costumes are not required.

Tickets are now on sale for those wishing to avoid the last minute rush. If you are a member of the Officers' Mess and of legal age (18 for the ladies, 21 for the gentlemen), see the 49er Party project officer at any of the major commands for the tickets and the special guest cards required for the party.

MRS. GLENN MCFADDEN AND SON PATRICK

Of the Women's World

BY PAT RYAN

Mrs. Glenn McFadden, custodian of the Woman's Club and president of the Medical Wives, puts sports at the top of her interests.

As Custodian ("Keeper of the Keys"), Jean's job involves responsibility for all the Woman's Club property.

Jean now has a five-year-old son, Patrick, and manages to find time for the golf course, pheasant-shooting, and trips on the "Patty Jean", a sixteen-foot fiberglass outboard member of the family.

Jean fishes and water-skis when "Patty Jean" is put into the Gulf of Mexico, the bay off Destin, Fla., Lake Oliver or Bartlett's Ferry Dam.

As usual, her fishing tale-of-woe is that "her big one got away"! (In her case, it's king mackerel).

As "Keeper of the Keys", Jean is dependable. Also ... she seems to possess the secret keys to vitality, and just plain fun!

Laos Is Geographical Key to Southeast Asia

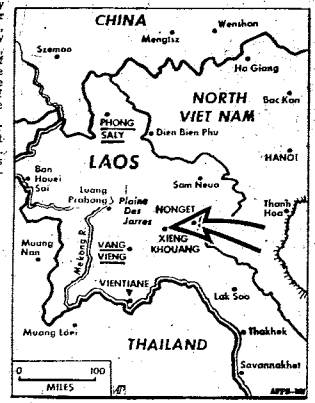
(AFPS) —Laos, a country currently occupying a major share of the world's headlines, geographically occupies a key position in Southeast Asia, making its independence of great importance to the free world. Entirely landlocked, the small nation borders on all of the mainland countries of the area except Malaya.

Some 600 miles of its border is shared with Communist China and north Viet-Nam, Free World neighbors of Laos are Burma, Thailand, Cambodia and south Viet-Nam.

Concerning the present trouble, the Department of Defense made the following statement:

"In view of the present situation in Laos, we are taking normal precautionary action to increase the readiness of our forces in the Pacific, including measures to increase the air-lift capability of the Pacific command."

Formerly a part of French Indochina, along with Viet-Nam and Cambodia, Laos became an independent country following the Geneva Agreements of 1954. Since that time there has been an almost unceasing battle for control of the country between three major political factions — anti-Communists, Neutralists and Communists.



The current government of Premier Boun Oum obtained power after a neutralist regime lost control and Leftists were unable to take over.

Laos, though not a member of the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization (SEATO), is within the treaty area. This means that the pact powers are pledged to go to the assistance of Laos should its government request such action in the face of external aggression.

A country of two million people, Laos is about the size of the states of Illinois and Indiana combined. The inhabitants are mostly of Thai origin and speak a Thai dialect. Approximately 90 per cent of the Laotians are engaged in a subsistance type of agriculture and live for the most part in villages along the main roads and along river banks.

The country is mountainous with northern ranges rising above 9,000 feet and those in the south to 5,000 feet. Deep gorges and narrow valleys cut through the mountains and the climate varies accordingly, from cool highlands to tropical river valleys. The southwest monsoon brings heavy summer rains from May to October.

One of the least developed countries of southeast Asia, its national resources are so limited that it is completely unable to maintain a military establishment for its own defense.

Shortage Exists In Information Officer Field

The Infantry Center has been informed by the Chief of Information, Department of the Army, Major Gen. William W. Quinn that an acute worldwide shortage of information officers exists.

It is planned to select otherwise qualified officers, train them at the Army Information School, and assign them to information duties, according to Gen. Quinn.

The school conducts four eight-week courses for information officers.

Boy Scout Groups Set Post Tours

The Infantry Center will host groups of visiting Boy Scouts January 14 and 21.

Forty-two Scouts from Atlanta will visit Saturday and 35 members of Troop 70 from Tuskegee, Ala., will be at the post the following Saturday.

During the visit the Scouts will see demonstrations by the 26th Infantry Scout Dog Platoon, and will be given "buddy seat" rides on one of the 250-foot airborne training towers. The ride is a simulated parachute jump.

In the afternoon they will visit the Infantry Museum and will have an opportunity to swim in the Briant Wells Field House pool.

Both groups will have the same schedule.

Chemical Chief Visits Division While Guest of Infantry Center

By Div PIO

Major General Marshall Stubbs, Chief of the U. S. Army Chemical Corps, the Pentagon, visited the 2nd Infantry Division's Chemical Section last Friday while here as guest speaker at The Infantry School. He was accompanied from Washington by Colonel Lloyd E. Fellenz, Director of Military Operations, office of the Chief Chemical Officer.

Upon arrival at the 2nd Infantry Division area, General Stubbs visited Major General Frederick W. Gibb, 2nd Infantry Division commanding general, prior to going to the chemical section. After visiting the section he departed from Muscogee County Municipal Airport.

In addition to Colonel Fellenz, General Stubbs was accompanied on his visit by Lieutenant Colonel James Talley, division chemical officer; and Lieutenant Colonel John Cassidy, Chief Chemical Committee, United States Army Infantry Center (escort officer).

General Stubbs graduated from the United States Military Academy in 1929 and served in the infantry until 1934 when he transferred to the Chemical Warfare Service, now the Chemical Corps. He obtained a Master of Science degree in chemical engineering practice from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

During World War II, he served as Chemical Officer of the 8th Air Force Service Command and later with the 9th Air Force Command where he organized the chemical section of the headquarters.

General Stubbs returned to the Army Chemical Center in 1947 for duty in the research and Development Division. After completing the National War College in 1951 he served as Chief, Research and Development in the Office of the Chief Chemical Officer until 1954, when he was assigned as Commanding Officer and later Commanding General, General, United States Army Chemical Corps Material Command.

He became Commanding General, United States Army Chemical Center and Chemical Corps Materiel Command in 1956 where he remained until he went to Fort Bragg, N. C., as Commanding General, 1st Logistical Command. He was in that post when appointed Chief Chemical Officer.

Among the decorations he holds are the Legion of Merit, Bronze Star Medal, the Commendation Medal with Oak Leaf Cluster and several foreign decorations.

Colonel Fellenz graduated from the United States Military Academy in 1934 and served with the infantry until 1940 when he transferred to the Chemical Warfare Service.

From 1940 to 1943 he was assigned to Edgewood Arsenal, serving in the War Plans Division; Post Inspector; executive officer, Smoke Project; and commanding officer, Chemical Warfare Amphibious Project, Chemical Board. He was then transferred to serve as executive officer, Allied Forces Headquarters, Mediterranean Theater of Operations.

Among his various stateside assignments upon his return, he served as Chief Chemical Section, CONARC Headquarters, Fort Monroe, Va.

Among his decorations, he holds the Army Commendation Medal with two Oak Leaf Clusters and the World War II Victory Medal.

Battery B Presented Commanders Trophy

By 12th Arty PIO

Battery B, 1st Rocket Howitzer Battalion, 2th Artillery, was recently named the recipient of the 2nd Division Artillery Commander's Trophy for Outstanding Battery of the year—1960.

The trophy symbolizing the award was presented by the Division Artillery Commanding General, Brigadier General Charles H. White Jr., to Captain Jack A. Nueberger, Commanding Officer of Battery B, during retreat ceremonies held on the 12th Artillery parade field.

Representatives of all Division Artillery units, friends and families of Battery B officers and men were present for the ceremony.

In presenting the award, General White commended the battery on its outstanding performance during the past year and urged the members of the battery and other units present to strive toward even greater goals during 1961 and succeeding years.

Battery B was given the

MR. 2ND DIVISION
Sgt. Hunter Retires

'Mr. Div' to Retire, Spend Time Farming

BY DON BAIRD

Mr. 2nd Division is taking off his Indianhead patch after more than 21 years of military service.

Sergeant First Class Alexander M. Hunter, whose personal experiences with the "Second to None" Division made him a living symbol, will retire in February to his three acres of land at Midland in Muscogee County.

The 54-year old soldier was the only division member to see action in every major battle and engagement in World War I, and his vast knowledge of division history gathered through the years proved invaluable in his last assignment — as curator for the 2nd Division museum.

Sergeant Hunter, who began his military career by enlisting in the Marine corps for a three-year hitch in 1916, has lectured to thousands of visitors to the museum, as many as 350 in a day. He was instrumental in establishing the museum in September 1958, after the Division was reorganized at Fort Benning.

Saw Combat

Except for a 22-year break "between wars," Sergeant Hunter's life has been spent in battle, in training officer candidates in Australia and as a message center chief. He was with the 23rd Infantry in Korea during 1952's skirmishes at "Punchbowl" and "Heartbreak Ridge," some 34 years after he was wounded and gassed while serving with the Division at Meuse-Argonne, France, in World War I's final hour.

Leaving the Marines after World War I, he returned to his native Westmoreland County, Pennsylvania, operated the family's 180-acre farm and coal mine and, in his spare moments, hunted bear and other big game. He went westward in 1936 and for five years "off and on" prospected for gold at such places as Weaver Creek, Arizona, and Battle Mountain, Nevada, earning only enough to meet expenses.

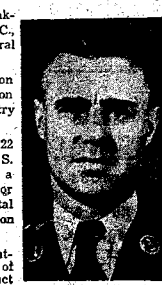
Nicolas, Brown Depart for D.C. Inauguration



SMAJ NICOLAS

Two of the 2nd Infantry Division's top-ranking NCOs are on their way to Washington, D. C., to help represent the U.S. Army at the Inaugural Ceremonies of President-elect Kennedy.

Representing the "Second to None" Division in the 100-man Army Honor Cordon are Division Sergeant Major Frank J. Nicolas and 23rd Infantry Sergeant Major Robert L. Brown.

The two 2nd Division delegates will join 22 other selected enlisted men from the Third U. S. Army area at Fort Bragg, North Carolina, for a five-day orientation period. The Third Army honor detail Monday will proceed to the Nation's Capital to become part of the 100-man Army Honor Cordon that will take part in the inaugural activities.

SMaj Nicolas and SMaj Brown, in representing the Division, were selected on the basis of individual appearance, military bearing, conduct and performance of duty.

Chaplain Added To 23rd Ranks

By 23d Infantry PIO

Chaplain (Captain) Frank E. Deese was recently assigned to the 2nd Battle Group, 23rd Infantry. Chaplain Deese comes from Greensboro, North Carolina, where he was pastor of the Westridge Baptist Church.

He has had previous military service when he served as an enlisted man, in 1949, with the 100th Airborne Division. He received a direct commission as a Chaplain in August of 1950 and was assigned to the 102d Infantry Regiment in Germany where he served until 1953.

23rd Infantry Marks 1960 as Eventful Year

By 23d Inf PIO

The "We Serve" unit trained 4,314 trainees during 1960. Of that total 2,239 were Basic Combat Trainees taking their first eight weeks of training and 1,975 were Advanced Individual Trainees. There was approximately 8,400 hours of training given during 1960.

The "We Servers" re-enlisted 23 permanent party personnel during last year and 118 trainees. There was something over $60,000 paid out in re-enlistment bonus to those 211 re-enlistees.

Sports-wise in 1960, the 23d Infantry basketball team lost the division championship crown to the First Infantry in a play-off match. The baseball team, after a shakey start, finished with a very creditable showing, thanks, in a very large measure to the left handed throwing talents of a young pitch named Jim Steinhour.

Three Commanding Officers came and departed from the 23rd Infantry during 1960. This time last year Colonel Gustav M. Bacharach was in command. On July 5, Colonel Bacharach moved up to the post of Division Chief of Staff. Then Lieutenant Colonel Charles C. Johnson assumed command. He left for a post in Europe on the 28th of November and turned the reins of command over to Colonel Louis A. Kunzig Jr.

The 23rd Infantry now turns its attention to 1961 and looks forward with anticipation to the rewards, heartaches, challenges, long hours, and the gratification that comes with the knowledge of a job well done.

AG Receives Comcenter

By 122nd Sig PIO

A new communications center for the Second Infantry Division is now in operation in the Adjutant General Administration building.

Built by men of the 122nd Signal Battalion under the direction of Lieutenant Raymond Walsh and Sergeant Amon D. Ivey, the Comcenter will handle messages more expeditiously to and from higher headquarters.

One of the features of the Comcenter is the use of On Line Crypto equipment connected directly to equipment in the Fort Benning Comcenter, thus cutting down the number of message runs to the Main Post.

Another feature of the new Comcenter is the use of a Teletype machine whose page copy also acts as a stencil. As the message comes into the teletype, the printer cuts a page copy that can be placed on a mimeograph machine to run off duplicates when needed.

13th Trans Notes Banner Year in 60

By 13th Trans PIO

The year 1960 was a banner year for members of the 13th Transportation Battalion. The officers and enlisted men had some of the following accomplishments to their credit:

Members of the battalion received a rating of Superior on the annual General Inspection; "Best Mess" award 2nd Infantry Division, Sand Hill area and the "Best Maintenance" award, 2nd Infantry Division, Sand Hill area.

Company A retained permanent possession of the "Best Mess" plaque by winning the award four times in 1960.

The award of the "Best Organizational Maintenance" plaque for large units was won by the battalion for the second consecutive year.

The battalion also won third place in the Annual Christmas decorations contest for major units of Fort Benning.

Troops Join 9th Infantry For Training

By 9th Inf. PIO

A total of 154 Advanced Individual Trainees were welcomes January 6 to the 9th Infantry and the 2nd Infantry Division by Colonel James L. Osgard, Commander of the "Keep Up the Fire" Battle Group.

Also on hand to greet the young soldiers were the officers and noncommissioned officers of Company B headed by Captain Walter D. Ginger, company commander. Captain Ginger's company will train the AIT group in their second phase of infantry instruction in Military Occupational Specialty 112, that of Heavy Weapons Infantrymen.

During their eight-week stay with the 9th Infantry, the trainees will receive instruction in the 106-millimeter recoiless rifle, the 4.2 inch mortar, the 81-millimeter mortar, map and compass work, the 3.5 inch rocket launcher, anti-tank squad tactics, bayonet fighting, first and, landmine warfare, the .45 caliber pistol, and field fortifications.

The cycle took their Basic Combat Training at such posts as Fort Knox, Kentucky; Fort Leonard Wood, Missouri; Fort Gordon, Georgia; and Fort Benning. Their average age is 20 years and their education level is 11 years.

OVUREP Unit Prepares For Infantryman's Test

By 11th Inf PIO

Thirteen officers and 122 enlisted men from the 11th Infantry are undergoing vigorous preparation for the most difficult test of the infantryman's abilities, the Expert Infantryman's Badge Test.

The physical training test will be conducted by the Second Infantry Division Test Board on January 21, and the test proper will be given by the board on January 23 and 24.

In order to qualify, an individual must have a character rating of excellent, he must qualify as sharpshooter or better with his primary individual weapon or qualify as first class gunner or better with his crew-served weapon, and qualify as expert with the bayonet. In addition he must be proficient in field stripping and assembling his primary individual weapon.

Written tests and practical exercises will cover the following subjects: first aid; military courtesy and discipline; adjustment of artillery fire; demolitions, mines, and booby traps; individual cover and camouflage; field sanitation and hygiene; basic signal communication; military intelligence; field proficiency; hand grenades; map reading; chemical, biological and radiological warfare; physical fitness, and patrolling.

A score of 250 out of a possible 500 is required for qualifying in the physical fitness test, and a score of 70 percent or better is necessary in each of the above listed areas.

Any individual whose performance in any one event is unsatisfactory will fail to qualify.

The "Wandering" 11th Infantry is in the final stages of preparation for its movement to Korea next month. They will become the 2nd Battle Group, 3rd Infantry, 7th Infantry Division upon arrival in Korea.

Pitkin Selected As Signal SOM During January

By 122nd Signal PIO

Private First Class William Pitkin Jr. of Headquarters Company, 122nd Signal Battalion, was recently chosen as the battalion soldier of the month for January 1961.

PFC Pitkin was chosen over representatives of the other units that make up the Signal Battalion, by a board of senior noncommissioned officers and will represent the 122nd Signal Battalion in the competitions for the Tactical Support Units Soldier of the Month.

NCO Academy Begins Year With New Class

On January 16, the 2nd Infantry Division Non - Commissioned Officer Academy will begin the new school year, starting with the Senior Non-Commissioned Officer Refresher Class 61-1A.

Not only will this start the new school year, but it will open the academy facilities in its new area, having moved from its old location on Kelley Hill to the 5200 block of Harmony Church.

The official opening of the academy in its new location and the beginning of another school year is another milestone in the history of the 2nd Infantry Division NCO Academy, which was organized and established as the 10th Division NCO Academy in March 1957 at Kitzingen, Germany, and later gyroscoped to Fort Benning.

Since its establishment the academy has graduated approximately 3,000 students who have not only benefitted themselves but benefitted their units also.

The move from permanent type buildings on Kelley Hill to temporary buildings at Harmony Church was done after all the buildings had been repainted and necessary repairs were accomplished. Most of the painting was done by personnel from the 2nd Engineer Battalion

Captain James W. Phillips, commandant of the academy, stated that he felt that the new area was much better suited for an academy of this type.

Trophy

award on the basis of the fine record which the battery compiled in many varied fields during 1960.

The battery was rated superior on the annual General Inspection and the annual inspection conducted by the 2nd Infantry Divison.

In addition for its work in support of Project MAN and two Joint Civilian Orientation Conferences, the battery received many letters of commendation and appreciation. The battery was also awarded the plaque for "best mess" for Division Artillery twice during the year and the 2nd Division "best mess" plaque once.

The year 1960 saw personnel from Battery B won the 2nd Infantry Division Soldier of the Month award on three occasions and the Div-Arty Soldier of the Month four times.

Four members of the battery were awarded the Army Commendation Medal during the year and various other members of the battery were commended for their superior academic records which they attained at Army Service Schools.

Battery B is the 2nd Infantry Division's 762 mm "Honest John" Rocket Battery. Its primary mission is to furnish long-range nuclear and conventional artillery support to the units of the division. It maintains a constant program of training and readiness to meet any emergency that might arise.

Monthly Lunch Hosted By 7th Cavalry Wives

Ladies of the 2nd Infantry Division Officers' Wives Club held their monthly luncheon at the Main Officers Open Mess, January 10.

Hostesses for the affair, dressed in Gypsy costumes, were the ladies of the 3rd Reconnaissance Squadron, 7th Cavalry.

Opening the entertainment portion of the monthly luncheon, which was under the direction of Mrs. Curtis F. Livingston, wife of Lieutenant Colonel Livingston, Division Trains, was Lieutenant Clark F. Butts, 9th Infantry, who narrated a 20 minute history of the U. S. Army with specific emphasis on the roles played by the American women in aiding and assisting the Army.

Private First Class David Csanyi, a professional singer and dancer in his pre-service days, also with the 9th, accompanied by Private Bob Edgerton, pianist, Division Band, sang a medley of songs commemorating the major wars in which the Army has taken part.

During the luncheon feature presentation, that of "I Am the Infantry", Lieutenants Daniel W. Caprio, William M. Barrett, and Michael S. Balch, all of the 9th Infantry, appeared dressed in the Army combat uniforms of the American Revolution, World War I, and World War II respectively. Sergeant First Class Clay Lacy of the 2nd Division Information Office acted as narrator for the skit.

Farewells were said to ladies of the 11th Infantry whose husbands are bound for Korea with the OVUREP battle group.

Cook Of The Week

Nancy Forsyth is our cook for this week. She and her husband, Lt. Frank R. Forsyth, Adjutant of the 702nd Ordnance Battalion, 2nd Division, live at 20-D Battle Park. Nancy's main interest right now is preparing for the baby she is expecting this month, but she still finds time to cook delicious dishes like the one featured today.

FROZEN FRUIT SALAD

1 Number 2 can pineapple (cut fine)
1 small jar Maraschino cherries (cut fine)
½ lb. marshmallows (cut small)
½ cup pecans (chopped)
Drain off all juices. Make boiled dressing by heating the following:
¼ cup tarragon vinegar
1 teaspoon flour
½ cup sugar

Add two well-beaten eggs and cook until thickened. Cool. Fold fruit, nuts, and marshmallows into cooled dressing. Whip one pint whipping cream and blend into mixture. Freeze in largest size flat Pyrex. Serves 15.

BROCADES

Supper Given For 11th Inf Officers, Wives

A buffet supper with eggnog, followed by bridge, was given by Lieutenant and Mrs. Winston Dahl for officers and ladies of the 11th Infantry at their home, 2516 Mesa Street, on New Year's Eve.

High score for ladies in the bridge games was won by Mrs. David Schumacher. Major Fred W. Reif was high scorer for the men.

New Arrival

Chaplain Young Assigned To Serve in OVUREP

A new OVUREP chaplain has been assigned to the 1st Battle Group, 87th Infantry, from the 2nd Battle Group, 9th Infantry.

Chaplain (Captain) Robert C. Young is not altogether a stranger to the 87th Infantry. He started his career as an Army chaplain with the 87th Division when it was reorganized to form the reactivated 10th Division at Fort Riley, Kansas.

Though Chaplain Young was assigned to Division Artillery, the 87th Infantry, then a Regiment, was also a major unit of that division. Chaplain Young moved with the 10th Division to Germany where he served with the 85th Field Artillery.

He moved with the reorganized elements of the deactivated 10th Division from Germany to Fort Benning to become a part of the famed Second Infantry Division. At this station Chaplain Young was assigned with the Divison Artillery and later the 9th Infantry, both at Sand Hill.

A native of Sheridan, Wyoming the Battle Group Chaplain is a graduate of Phillips University, Enid, Oklahoma. After graduation he attended Phillips Seminary, and was ordained as a minister of the Christian Church, (Disciples of Christ). Before entering college, Chaplain Young had served two years with the Navy as an enlisted man.

Chaplain and Mrs. Young reside in Custer Terrace with their three children, John, Susan and Lynn. John is a freshman at Baker High School. Susan and Lynn attend school at Fort Benning.

Chaplain Young will work with Chaplain (Lieutenant) Hubert Garrell who arrived at the 87th Infantry early in December. Chaplain Young will leave at the end of this month to attend the Advanced Chaplain's Course at Fort Slocum, New York before assuming full duties at Kelley Hill.

13th Trans Records 1 Million Miles

By 13th Trans PIO

For the second consecutive year the 13th Transportation Battalion has recorded over one million miles. The year ending 1960, miles total 1,151,438.

This figure represents total mileage driven by personnel of the 13th Transportation Battalion by trucks, armored personnel carriers, buses and jeeps under the direct jurisdiction of the Division Transportation Officer, Lieutenant Colonel Walter R. Johnson.

Many of these miles were logged by men of Companies A and B of the 13th Transportation Battalion in support of various elements of the 2nd Infantry Division by transporting trainees and other personnel to training sites, firing ranges, and bivouac areas in the Sand Hill, Kelly Hill, Harmony Church and Main Post Areas on the Fort Benning Reservation. The 13th Transportation Battalion's motor pool now maintains more than 180 vehicles for support of the 2nd Infantry Division. Their safety record is as impressive as their mileage figure.

This million mile mark compiled by members of the 13th Transportation Battalion on the sprawling Fort Benning Installation only proves that an Infantry Division needs wheels to move.

Among the other services rendered by the 13th is bus service from all 2d Infantry Division dispensaries to the Martin's Army Hospital and return and Sunday School Transportation to all the chapels in the 2nd Infantry Division Area.

Battery Ends 1960 Annual Training Test

By 12th Arty PIO

Battery A, 12th Artillery, completed its annual training test recently. This is a rigorous test of the battery's physical and tactical ability to function under combat conditions.

The test starts with the unit dispersed in a tactical assembly area making preparations for a move to and occupation of a firing position. This phase of the test was accomplished in the record time of 13 minutes 55 seconds as a result of the high state of training, esprit, and morale of the unit. The normal time for the emplacement of a battery of 8" howitzers is 30 minutes to 6 hours.

In the true spirit of keeping up the fire, the roar of the huge 8" howitzers continued throughout recurring Chemical, Biological, and Radiological, air, and ground attacks by the aggressors. The battery maintained support of the infantry with both conventional and simulated nuclear ammunition.

During the critique by the Division Artillery Test Team, battery personel were lauded by Division Artillery Commanding General, Brigadier General Charles H. White Jr., for an outstanding performance.

179 EM Arrive For AI Training

By 23d Infantry PIO

One hundred and seventy nine troops arrived last week, to commence eight weeks with Company B of the 23rd Infantry. The trainees were welcomed last Friday, by the Deputy Brigade Commander, Colonel Earnest C. Damerson.

The winners of this half will roll against the M.P. team for the league championship. Guscott had the high game in the league for the first half with 246. High series went to Nielsen with 611.

9th Infantry Concludes Hoop Practice Sessions

By 9th Inf PIO

The 9th Infantry Battle Group basketball squad concluded practice today prior to participating in the 2nd Infantry Division basketball tournament beginning January 16.

The "Keep Up the Fire" unit opens its play in the division tourney against Division Trains Monday at 8 p.m. at the Harmony Church Field House. On January 18, again at 8 p.m. at Harmony Church, the 9th tackles the Separate Battalion "five."

Lieutenant Max Powell, the 9th Infantry's Athletic and Recreation officer, released the names of the members of the basketball squad to include the tentative starting lineup. Scheduled to take the court will be Forwards Eugene Bedard of Company A and Jack Dispenett of Company B. The starting guards include Harry Hall of Headquarters Company and Jackie Fannon of Company A. Center for the 9th will be Rayvaughn Fryear of Company C.

The remaining six members of the team include three forwards and three guards, all of whom will see considerable action before the season draws to a close.

Working from the forward position will be Paul Askew of Company C, Sherman Miller of Headquarters Company, and A&R officer Powell. The coach of the 9th Infantry entry, Lieutenant Leonard Katsarsky of Company B, will play guard. The remaining pair of guards on the roster, Dennis Foy and Gerald Brevard, are both from Headquarters Company.

Lieutenant Powell, Lieutenant Katsarsky, Hall, and Miller were all members of the 9th Infantry's 2nd Division championship flag football squad.

Officers Change Responsibilities In Battle Group

By 11th Inf. PIO

Another officer change took place at the Korea bound 11th Infantry January 9.

Captain Eugene R. Darbonne, Motor Officer, took over the command of Company C from Captain Robert B. Stallings. Captain Stallings was assigned as Assistant S-3 Officer, Lieutenant Willie O. Carr, S-3 Liaison Officer, assumed the position of Motor Officer for the Battle Group.

UP FOR GRABS . . . The 9th Infantry's 6-7 center, Rayvaughn Pryear, (No. 15), leaps high to snare a rebound from an 87th Infantry opponent in a practice session January 10 at the Harmony Church Field House. Number 22 is the 9th Infantry's Harry Hall, a forward. The 9th opens its 2nd Division basketball tournament play January 16 against Division Trains. The 87th's initial tournament contest is January 19 versus the 23rd Infantry.

Hoop League

By 23rd Inf PIO

Action in the 23rd Infantry Intra-Company basketball tournament last weekend saw several changes in the standings. Combat Support Company dethroned the league leading Company A to take over the top spot, while the "Alphaites" dropped to third place. Company D moved into second place by their win over Company C. In other action Company E defeated Company C and Bravo Company up ended Company E. Headquarters Company was idle.

Tournament standings are as follows: Combat Support Company, Company D, Company A, Headquarters Company, Company B, Company E and Company C.

87th Begins Outdoor Play

By 87th Inf PIO

A closely contested basketball game between Combat Support Company and Headquarters Company of the 87th Infantry opened the intra-Battle Group outdoor basketball season.

William M. Fiengold was one of the high scorers for the game. He scored 14 points for Combat Support Company.

SFC Re-Ups For 6 Years At 23rd Inf

The first 23rd Infantry re-enlistment for the year 1961 came last Saturday when Sergeant First Class Anton W. Gross raised his right hand and swore to "serve honestly and faithfully" in the United States Army for six more years. The Battle Group Commander of the 23rd Infantry, Colonel Louis A. Kunzig Jr., administered the oath in a short ceremony in his office.

A veteran of thirteen years service, SFC Gross entered the Army on November 7, 1947 and took his basic training at Fort Ord, California. Strangely enough, the Field First Sergeant of the company that put SFC Gross through basic is the present Sergeant Major of the 23rd Infantry, Sergeant Major Robert L. Brown.

Sergeant Gross is no stranger to the "We Serve" unit as he saw combat in 1950," with Company M of the 23rd in Korea. He was wounded during action at the Naktong River Line. The 23rd Infantry was awarded the Korean Presidential Citation for its part in this phase of the Korean War.

Sergeant Gross' decorations include the Combat Infantryman's Badge, the Silver Star and the Purple Heart.

A married man with two children, SFC Gross' present assignment is as platoon sergeant, with Combat Support Company. He re-enlisted for the regular Army unassigned.

Holidays See Manchu Unit Lose 5 NCOs

Sergeant First Class Peter J. Centanni, a member of the engineer platoon of Headquarters Company, will serve with the Ranger Detachment at Eglin Air Force Base, Florida.

Sergeant James McInnes, a former member of the 9th's Company B, completes the list of recent Christmas holiday departures. Sergeant McInnes has departed for the Army Engineer Center at Fort Belvoir, Virginia.

TRAINS SOM . . . Specialist Fifth Class Raul De Luna, an Aircraft Technical Inspector in the 2nd Transportation Detachment, Aircraft Maintenance, was presented a Twenty-five Dollar Savings Bond and a pen set by Lieutenant Colonel Curtis F. Livingston, executive officer of Division Trains, upon being selected as the Trains "Soldier of the Month". The 39-year-old Specialist, from Raymondville, Texas, was selected above his contemporaries for his military bearing, and knowledge of military subjects.

List of Subjects Offered Range From Algebra to Social Science

By Ed. Center PIO

Personnel of the 2nd Infantry Division may pursue correspondence courses with 144 accredited colleges and universities throughout United States Armed Forces Institute.

These courses are available at high school and college level in both academic and technical areas at minimum costs to qualified servicemen, since the enrollment fee covers cost of course materials and administrative charge only.

The Department of the Army pays the cost of lesson service provided the serviceman enrolls through USAFI at your Division Education Center. Over 6,000 courses are offered to the servicemen through this particular program.

The application form, DD Form 305 (Application for enrollment in Correspondence or Self-Teaching Course) must be filled out completely, signed by the applicant and certified by the Education Officer, and forwarded to the servicing school. A money order, cashier's check, or certified check for the exact enrollment fee as quoted for the specific course requested should be made out to the appropriate college or university and mailed with the application.

Applications are reviewed by USAFI primarily for military eligibility (active duty status and completeness of data requested), and immediately forwarded to the appropriate college, which accepts or rejects on the basis of criteria established by the college. After enrollment, all correspondence relating to the course is handled directly with the college.

Enrollment is limited to one course unless the student has previously satisfactorily completed a course with or through USAFI, in which case he may enroll in two courses.

Twenty-four months are allowed for the completion of a course provided that no twelve-month period of lesson activity has intervened. Any twelve-month period of lesson inactivity results in disenrollment. Disenrollment also occurs if the course is not completed within twenty - four months from the date of acceptance of the student's enrollment by the university or college.

If a student is actively enrolled at the time of separation from active duty, he may continue the course for a twelve month period provided this period does not extend beyond twenty-four months from the date of enrollment.

If a serviceman is planning to take a course for school credit, he should, before enrolling, write to the school concerned to determine whether credit will be granted for the desired courses.

Take advantage of this most excellent educational opportunity today by contacting your Education Center.

First Sergeant Promoted To Supergrade of E-8

By 9th Inf. PIO

A young 9th Infantry noncommissioned officer with fourteen years service in the Army, First Sergeant Ralph A. Cavedo of Company B, was promoted January 1 to the supergrade rank of E-8.

Born in Richmond, Virginia, almost 32 years ago, Sergeant Cavedo has served in the "Keep Up the Fire" battle group since February of 1960. He first joined the 2nd Infantry Division in 1954 when the division was stationed at Fort Polk, Louisiana. He joined the Army in 1946, serving on occupation duty in Japan for two years.

Next came a four-year tenure in Italy before fighting in the Korean Conflict for eight months, earning the Combat Infantryman's Badge. Upon returning to the U. S. Sergeant Cavedo was assigned to the 86th Infantry Regiment at Fort Riley, Kansas. The 86th left for Germany and Sergeant Cavedo served his second European tour.

He was reassigned to the 7th Infantry in Germany and returned with that unit's 2nd Battle Group in 1957 and stationed here at Fort Benning. Next came a 20 month stay with the 2nd Division's 11th Infantry at Kelley Hill before joining the 9th last year.

Serving as a first sergeant rates as no new experience for the 9th's new E-8 supergrader since he first assumed "top kick" duties in 1954. He has been first sergeant of Company B since last August. Before that, however, he was the company's field first sergeant for six months.

First Sergeant Cavedo's efficiency and aptitude are attested to by the fact he has been awarded the Army Commendation Ribbon twice. His other ribbons and decorations include the Gold Conduct Medal, the World War II Victory Medal, and the World War II Occupation (Japan) Medal.

Change Seen In Chaplain Assignments

By 9th Inf PIO

The 9th Infantry exchanged Protestant Chaplains with the 87th Infantry January 3, losing Captain (Chaplain) Robert C. Young and gaining Lieutenant (Chaplain) Mace T. Jett Jr.

Lieutenant Jett joins Captain (Chaplain) Hugh C. McKeown as the Chaplains for the Manchu Battle Group. Chaplain McKeown serves the 9th Infantry as Catholic Chaplain. Chaplain Young joins the 87th Infantry as that unit begins to prepare for its Overseas Unit Replacement Program (OVUREP).

A native of Detroit, Michigan, Chaplain Jett traveled South for his education. He graduated with a Bachelor of Arts degree in 1952 from Bethel College in McKenzie, Tennessee. Chaplain Jett then attended the Cumberland Presbyterian Seminary in McKenzie, graduating in 1959.

He served in the ministry in Waynesboro, Tennessee, for one year before entering the Army last June.

Post Bowlers Tie in Meet At Air Base

The matches end Jan. 28 when the team from the Atlanta area air base comes here for the second and final round of action.

Sgt. Jack Kiggins rolled the high game and the high series for The Infantry Center bowlers, with a 288 and 663 respectively. His average for three games was 223.

Benning scored 2832 total pinfall while watching Warner-Robins hit a high of 2878 for a 46 pin lead over the locals.

Jan. 14 — Eglin Air Force Base, Fla., at the post Bowling Center, 4 p.m.

Jan. 21—Return match at Eglin Air Force Base.

Jan. 28—Warner-Robins return meet, here at 2 p.m.

Davis commented that Fort Benning fielded a good football team in 1960, and prospects for next season look even better. Being the "Home of the Infantry," naturally Benning should have the finest football team in the country, he said.

Second Lt. Frank Farella was named as the 1960 Doughboy Most Valuable Player. Lt. Farella received All - Army honorable mention for his outstanding performance at guard for the post eleven.

Davis, who was named to the Associated Press All-Southeast Conference team in 1946 and 1947, was selected to the All-American list in 1947, after playing a standout season with the Yellow Jackets at tackle.

Highlighting Davis' talk was the relating of many experiences he had as a college football player, and his one year in the professional football ranks.

After completing college, Davis was signed by the Philadelphia Eagles of the National Football League. He remarked that in his first game he found out what he was up against, namely six-year veterans and be a fresh youngster just out of Georgia Tech's classrooms.

Presiding over the banquet was Major Paul L. Beckman, Infantry Center Special Services Officer, who was master of ceremonies. Other notable guests included members of the Columbus radio, television and newspaper media and major unit commanders.

1961 Third Army Championships

Benning Will Host Tennis; Seven Other Finals Slated

A schedule for Third Army Championships during 1961 in eight sports has been announced, beginning with boxing in February and ending with baseball playoffs in late September.

Only one of the championships is slated at Fort Benning - tennis - in June. The remainder will take place at other Third Army installations.

Listed are some of the announced facts pertaining to each of the eight Army wide eliminations:

BOXING — Scheduled for Fort Campbell from February 13 to 16. Boxing finals will consist of a single elimination between a maximum of one entry in each of ten weight classes from each installation. AAU rules will apply.

VOLLYBALL — Fort McClellan will host the finals from February 28 to March 3. Company level teams from each installation will meet in a double elimination to decide the championship. Rules will be those established by the U. S. Vollyball Association.

BASKETBALL — Hosted by Fort Gordon, basketball competition will include teams of men and women representing battle groups and separate WAC companies. Dates are March 13 to 17, inclusive, and AAU rules will govern the double elimination.

BOWLING — Fort Rucker will be the site of singles and doubles playoffs with both men and women eligible. ABC rules are designated for the male entries and Women's International Bowling Congress rules will apply for female entrants. Dates set are from April 17 to 21.

TENNIS — With The Infantry Center as host, individual and team entries will compete for the Army championships from June 19 to 23. Three divisions of competition are slated: Men's Open Division, with four singles and two doubles reserved for each installation; Men's Senior Division, competing in two singles and one double entry from each post, and the Women's Division with two singles and one double team. Rules of the U.S. Lawn Tennis Association will apply.

GOLF — Scheduled for the period August 28 to 31, golf championships will be conducted at Fort Jackson. Individual and team registration will be open in three divisions; Open, Senior and womens, with play under USGA rules.

SOFTBALL — Fort Jackson will also be the location for this company level competition from September 11 to 15. A double elimination will

All-Service

Olympic Matches Scheduled

For the first time anywhere, inter-service rifle and pistol competition using international weapons and International Shooting Union rules will be conducted on Fort Benning ranges this year.

Established as a way of locating and training shooters of all services for possible competition in future Olympic matches, the events here will be fired on Parks Range and the Running Deer Range from March 27 through April 2.

Approximately 250 entrants from the Marines, Navy, Air Force, Coast Guard and Army Advanced Marksmanship Unit are expected to register for the first meet which is planned as a future annual event.

In the past, eliminations have been conducted in both .22 caliber and high power categories to select U.S. Olympic team members, with little or no advance practice using targets, rules, weapons and methods actually employed at the Olympics. The new annual sessions will enable service members to work together for a longer period and use scarce Olympic type facilities to greater advantage.

Matches will be included for small and large bore rifle and pistol. Also scheduled are Running Deer matches where rifle competitors fire at a moving target within easy sight of spectators.

Rifle firers will use three positions throughout the inter-service meet; standing, kneeling and prone while shooting at distances up to 300 meters.

These international matches are scheduled in addition to yearly events on post.

Today's Sportrait

Officer Candidate Harry B. Coleman, of the 52nd Company 5th Student Battalion, The Student Brigade is a tennis champion of the first rank. Best known on the west coast, he has a record of over 145 wins and 1 loss for all his Army and civilian school tournaments, and is the winner of more than 30 titles in America alone.

He learned the game as a high school junior, comparatively late in life for a champion, and went on to play in college for Sacramento State College, Pasadena, Calif. He won the Southern California State College, Championship, and later the California State Championship. He has 16 medals and 51 trophies as evidence of his racquet power, and played against such tennis greats as Tony Trabert and Vic Seixas.

He enlisted in the Army in January, 1960, and received basic training at Fort Ord. He took top honors there too, by being designated distinguished graduate of his cycle. Later, he won the Fort Ord Singles Championship and received the attendant trophy.

Qualifying for Infantry Officers Candidate School, Pfc Coleman came to Fort Benning in September 1960. Expecting to graduate in April, 1961, he recently signed up for both Ranger and Airborne training.

Golf Tournament

Fall Handicap Winners Named

Winners and runners-up in five flights of the post Fall Handicap Golf Tournament will receive their awards Sunday at 4 p.m. at the Country Club.

Following the presentations a party will be held for participants in the annual tournament, and their guests.

The tournament winner was Major Robert A. Himes of the Command and Staff Department, runner-up was Capt. Jack Schulig, also of the Command and Staff Department.

Flight winners and runners-up are, first flight, Major Himes and Col. Paul T. Clifford, director of the Ground Mobility Department; second flight, Capt. Schuler and Major (Ret.) William F. Watson; third flight, Brig. Gen. Charles H. White, 2d Division, and Capt. Bernard L. Garred of the Infantry School Battalion; fourth flight, Major Oliver K. Colson, 11th CIC, and Col. John J. Pavick, Infantry Center G1, and fifth flight, Col. Chester M. Freudendorf, Weapons Department, and Lt. Col. Warren E. Walters of the Infantry Board.

There were 78 entries in the tournament, which began early in November and was completed early in January.

Seventy - two Fort Benning hunters reported deer killed during the season just closed with a 12-pointer topping the list.

Heading the long list of us hunters who didn't get their bucks were two crack marksmen of the Army Advanced Marksmanship Unit, MSgts Herb Roberts and Walt Schneider....

Both spent a lot of time in the woods trying for their venison and Walt was so sure he was going to get his that he went out and bought a book on how to best cook up a buck. In fact, he became expert in the concoction of fancy marinates through diligent practice.

For the last four days of the season both men hunted like tomcats after grasshoppers until the waning minutes of the season. Neither got so much as a look at any antlers and things were looking mighty bad as sunset marked the official closing . . . deeply discouraged, both nimrods unloaded their shotguns, got in their car, slammed the door — and watched an enormous buck jump out of the brush at the roadside and stand derisively as if daring them to take a shot at him.

Turkey Report

Reports on gobblers are slow coming in but not that of Sgt. Eller of Company A, 1st Battalion, The Infantry Center Troop Command. Sgt. Eller dropped a 20-pound tom, a mighty fine turkey. There are bigger fellas on the post so I'd like to hear when you get one of the wily rascals.

Incidentally, our Wild Life Ajdes have asked me to express their thanks to all you deer hunters who turned over deer livers to the Georgia state biologists — your donations will boost studies of the southern whitetail and perhaps insure that Herb and Walt get their bucks next year if Army fate decrees Benning presence.

Now you turkey hunters are offered the opportunity of providing the same assistance. The biologists ask that you save the entrails of the gobblers you bag and turn them in to the Fish and Game Maintenance office. When you clean your bird put a big piece of wax paper beside him and toss the entrails onto it, wrap them up and stick them in your freezer or refrigerator until you can bring them in.

WORLD RECORD . . . AAMU's 1st Lt. Daniel B. Puckel, has been notified that his rifle score of 1147, fired at 300 meters, during the 1959 Pan - American Games competition, surpassed by eight points the previous free rifle record set by A. Bogdanov of the Soviet Union in 1955 to establish a new World Record. Certification came from the Technical Commission of the International Shooting Union. Lt. Puckel was a member of the 1960 U.S. Olympic Shooting Team.

Sports Carnival Titles Follow Late Playoffs

With final playoffs running into January, the Infantry Center Holiday Sports Carnival has been completed, with victories going to the Antitank Missile Committee of The Infantry School's Weapons Department; The Infantry Board, and three individuals.

The Antitank Missile Committee defeated the Infantry Board 43-33 in the final basketball action last week to capture that team championship.

Handball honors went to Major Robert W. Hakala of the Ranger Department, singles winner and Major Hakala and Capt. John J. Leffler, also of the Ranger Department, in doubles.

Major Hakala earned the individual title with a win over second place 1st Lt. Richard J. Kattar of the Special Subjects Department. Lt. Kattar and 1st Lt. N. C. Vail, also of the Special Subjects Department, were runners up in the doubles classification.

Athletic Meeting Wednesday

The sports office of the Infantry Center Special Services will hold a meeting next Wednesday at 10 a.m. in Service Club 1 for all athletic and recreation officers and noncommissioned officers of major commands.

The topic for discussion will be the Third Army sports program. The sports agenda for the post will also be up for discussion among the members of the working council.

Pistol Firer

As a member of the Infantry Brigade pistol team, 1st Lt. Alan G. Millen, of Battery D, 2nd Howitzer Battalion, 10th Artillery, 1st Infantry Brigade, won second place and a medal in recent competition. He fired 271 out of a possible 300 points in the National Match Course competition.

SOCCER TURNOUT

Special Services announced a late total of only 27 players have signed up for soccer tryouts so far, and only eight or nine of these have showed up for practice sessions. A few of these registered have had experience on the European circuit.

Sandra Lee Taylor's Report Card . . .

Today's "Report Card" gives information about three of Fort Benning's teenage personalities who are all from the same family. Marsha, Paula and Sylvia Heidt step into the student spotlight, three very attractive sisters, each of whom has a very definite personality and range of interests.

Marsha, a vivacious five foot, three inch blue-eyed blond, is the eldest of the three, a senior at Baker High School, where she is currently vice-president of the Beta Tri-Hi-Y.

Here at Fort Benning, Marsha is a member of the Junior Army Daughters of America, and serves as corresponding secretary of the group. She was elected a member of the Queen's Court recently at JADA's Christmas dance.

Marsha also belongs to the Sigma Delta Beta Sorority. This capable teenager lists music among her interests, and in conjunction with this interest, she has been taking piano lessons for the past five years.

Another activity in which she engages is Luther League, the youth organization of the St. Matthews Lutheran Church, which the Heidts attend. She is now corresponding secretary of the Georgia-Alabama Synodical Luther League.

Paula, who is five feet, four inches tall and has blond hair and blue eyes as does Marsha, is endowed with a soft-spoken, gracious charm.

A junior at Baker, Paula has belonged to the FHA Club in which she obtained her Junior and Chapter Degrees and she is now a member of the Beta Tri-Hi-Y. Paula lists sewing, swimming and reading as her favorite pastimes.

As a member of her church's Luther League, she leads the group as its president and is corresponding secretary of the Plains District Luther League. She is also a member of JADA.

Youngest of the three is Sylvia, a freshman, who broke the Heidt pattern and entered Columbus High this fall after leaving Don C. Faith Elementary School last spring.

At CHS, Sylvia is a member of one of the favorite clubs of the freshman class — the "Pep Club." Sylvia takes a regular freshman course and is enjoying her first year of high school a great deal.

Out of school, Sylvia is a member of JADA, and serves as treasurer of her Luther League.

These three girls are interesting and personable teenagers, who are doing a great deal toward representing Fort Benning teen-agers well. Marsha, Paula and Sylvia Heidt are attractive girls, contributing much to the activities in which they participate and to the people they know.

65 YEARS EXPERIENCE . . . Shown in a huddle in The Infantry Center Inspector General Section, are three members who have a combined total of 31 years of duty on the same job. (L to R) are MSgt James D. Crouse, special subjects supply inspector, 25 years service; Mrs. Josephine B. Haggard, clerk stenographer, 20 years on post; and MSgt Charles C. Geduldig, administrative assistant, who has 20 years service. (Sig Lab photo by Sp4 Longo)

Col. Ramsey Speaks Here This Morning

Students at The Infantry School will hear an address on "Congressional Relations" today by a representative of the chief of the Legislative Liaison, Office of the Secretary of the Army, in Washington.

The presentation will be made at 10 a.m. in Theater 1 by Col. Lloyd B. Ramsey. Attending will be members of career and associate career classes, faculty and staff members of The Infantry School and key personnel of The Infantry Center and the division.

Col. Ramsey was assigned to the post from 1957 to 1959 in successive positions as commander of the 2nd Battle Group, 14th Infantry, commander of the 1st Infantry Brigade and G-1 of The Center.

In 1946 he was an instructor on the Leadership Committee of The School's Special Subjects Department.

Col. Ramsey graduated from the University of Kentucky in Lexington as an ROTC honor student in 1940. He received a Regular Army commission as a second lieutenant at the time of his graduation.

NEW OAFIE CHIEF . . . Brig. Gen. William O. Blandford has been named Director of the Office of Armed Forces Information and Education, Department of Defense. He is a 1933 graduate of the U.S. Military Academy.

Fort Riley Wants Shoulder Patches For Service Club

The service club at Fort Riley has a collection of shoulder patches, and although it has grown considerably since its beginning several months ago, there are a great many patches missing from the collection.

The Main Post Service Club here will accept all patches donated and send them to Fort Riley. Any unusual shoulder patches will also be forwarded.

EXHIBIT-ON-A-TRAIN BRINGS AMERICAN HISTORY HERE
Visitors May 'Window Shop' In The Stores of the 19th Century

January 19-22

'Main Street U. S. A.' Exhibit Puts 'Good Ole Days' in Town

There is to be some exciting new entertainment in town next Thursday. Entitled "Main Street U.S.A." it is what can be called perfect family fare—there is something in this exhibition-on-a-train to interest and amuse everyone. Admission is free.

"Main Street U.S.A." is a historical traveling exhibition housed in two specially equipped railroad cars. It is sponsored nationally by the famed Henry Ford Museum and Greenfield Village of Dearborn, Mich.

Brought to Columbus as a public service by the Ledger-Enquirer newspapers, it will be open to the public for four days, Thursday through Sunday, January 19-22, at the Central of Georgia Railway Station on 6th Avenue. The hours for showing are 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. daily and 1 p.m. to 6 p.m. Sunday.

"Main Street U.S.A." graphically contrasts the retail shops and products of the 19th century with their modern counterparts. Viewers will be able to "window-shop" the 19th century and then turn and see at a glance the progress that has been made in the field. Visitors to the exhibit will see such old shops as the apothecary shop, the legendary general store, the blacksmith shop, the apparel shop and many, many more. The windows of these old shops are filled with authentic products of the 19th century.

In the creation of the modern displays, the Henry Ford Museum had the close cooperation of some 26 of America's leading industrial organizations. In direct contrast to the windows of the old shops, filled with authentic artifacts of the 1800's these organizations have created colorful and intriguing displays of the modern products of today and tomorrow. The progress that is demonstrated is truly spectacular.

Oldsters will be touched with nostalgia as they "stroll" the nineteenth century street of shops. Youngsters will have the opportunity of seeing a segment of an era that has now slipped into history. Americans, young and old alike, will be justly proud of what they see at "Main Street U.S.A."

The Surgeon Says

Outpatient Medical Care

BY COL. BRYAN C. T. FENTON

The major problem of Martin Army Hospital is the providing of clinic (outpatient) care to the large population served. The key to a satisfactory solution is the appointment system. Most private medical clinics and individual physicians in civilian life use such a system. Appointments allow an orderly flow of patients into the clinics.

This gives more time to our limited number of physicians to examine and to treat each patient. It must be realized that delays are inevitable but our goal is to reduce delays to the minimum.

Some patients can be examined, diagnosed and treated in a relatively short time. Others will require considerable time, and in some cases referral for laboratory tests, X-rays, etc. The time required for each case cannot be determined in advance, thus a strict adherence to a time schedule based on appointments, is not possible.

Appointments give the best possible method of scheduling, with resultant reduction in waiting time.

It should be obvious to all that no orderly system of patient clinic care is possible when large numbers of individuals appear without appointment. True emergencies arise which do not allow for advanced planning or the making of appointments, but these are relatively few.

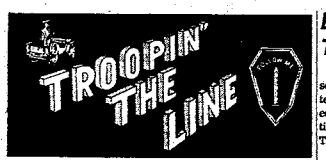
We realize that we cannot expect patients to have the judgment of a physician in determining if the condition warrants emergency treatment. However, a telephone call to one of the clinic doctors or the Professional Officer of the Day, if after hours, would help in deciding whether an emergency situation exists.

While every consideration is given to the personal convenience of the patient, it is not always possible, with the volume of patients seen, to make appointments as soon as, or at the time desired.

Demands for specific methods of treatment such as, "I want Johnny to have a penicillin shot for his cold," cannot be accepted by the physician. The physician alone is responsible for decision as to the treatment best suited for Johnny's condition and his judgment should be accepted. In the event a condition becomes worse or if there is not satisfactory response to treatment, the physician should be notified. Occasionally several modes of treatment are required before successful results are obtained.

A factor which adds much to the volume of patients seen in the clinics and consequent delays is the failure to administer home treatment for minor conditions which rarely in civilian life come to the attention of a physician unless complications occur.

Minor cuts, scratches, bruises, etc., can adequately be treated at home by the application of first aid measures. Common colds, headaches, constipation (if not accompanied by abdominal pain), diarrhea of short duration and numerous other conditions are readily treated at home by bedrest, diet, increased fluids, enemas, mild laxatives or other appropriate measures commonly known to individuals not trained in medicine.



Temperatures can be reduced and controlled in infants by cool sponge baths, increased fluid intake, small doses of aspirin, etc. In the event that common treatment measures do not produce results, medical assistance should be sought. It is felt that by the action indicated above, much can be done to alleviate the crowded condition of the clinics and reduce waiting time.

This will assist those who have more significant illnesses to obtain expeditious and more thorough examination and treatment by a physician.

It is the desire of the staff of Martin Army Hospital to provide the best and most expeditious care for military personnel and dependents at Fort Benning, and others in the area authorized medical care. To accomplish this, your assistance and understanding of the problems presented will be most helpful.

We desire to render medical care of the highest standard, in a rapid, courteous and understanding manner with the resources given us. Full and proper use of the appointment system will do much to provide the best medical care to the personnel of this Post. In turn, your understanding, self-help where possible, and cooperation will be appreciated.

We are all members of a fine organization. We must work together to obtain the most from the benefits which are available to us. Your sympathetic understanding and assistance will be greatly appreciated.

Youth Mistakes Sub As Big Sea Monster

The submarine's periscope broke surface and its skipper took view. But intsead of a vista of land or sea, he was looking into the astounded eyes of a young man.

"Down periscope!" said the skipper, and waited a few seconds before ordering it raised again.

What he'd seen was no illusion. There was the youth in a small canoe, staring at the scope as if hypnotized by some creature from the ocean depths. The weird encounter was one of the lighter incidents recorded on a historic voyage.

For the sub was the big, nuclear-powered Triton, making its submerged trip around the globe early last year. The youth in the canoe, fishing in Magellan Bay in the Philippines, went on record as being the only unauthorized person to detect the world's largest underseas craft during its 84-day, 36,000 mile trip.

It took time — in fact the search was dubbed "Needle in a Haystack" — but the identity of the young Filipino was finally discovered. He was 19-year-old Rufino Baring, living on Mactan Island off Cebu, and he admitted to being terrified when the Triton's scope broke surface.

"I was tired and thought I was seeing things," said Rufino. "But when it came back I thought it was part of a very big monster, and I was very frightened . . . I tried to get away as fast as I could because it started to move very fast."

The Male Bag

DEAR SARGE

DEAR SARGE: My husband is an Spc and works in the company orderly room of an infantry unit, and I know they don't have any women assigned or working there. The other evening he came home from the post and had lipstick on his shirt. He said he didn't have the slightest idea how it got there and some guy must be playing a joke on him. Do you think I should believe him?

SUSPICIOUS

SUSPICIOUS: Not until he tells you the skirt that smeared his shirt.

SOME CONSTRUCTION . . . Long-stemmed movie starlet Joyce Taylor is a living example of Thomas Dekker's famous 17th century quote, "Honest labor bears a lovely face."

DEAR SARGE: I'm just about fed up. I've got a husband who is a senior sergeant in the Army. We have two teen age sons and a teen age daughter. Now he trys to run the house just like the Army, with duty rosters, details and all that, putting everyone to work while he just sits around enjoying his beer. That's the part that gets me, him doing nothing. Do you think I should try to put a stop to this?

FED UP

FED UP: Better go easy. He may start handing out Article 15's and cut off the passes.

DEAR SARGE: I need some advice. I'm a nineteen year old Pfc and have been in the Army for over two years. I've got to admit that I've had a wonderful time and gone with a lot of swell looking dolls at different stations. Right now I'm going with a very pretty girl that is really sold on getting married. Do you think I should marry her?

HAPPY

HAPPY: Why marry and make one girl miserable when you can stay single and make so many happy.

DEAR SARGE: My life is getting almost unbearable. A jealous woman is about to drive me mad. That's right my girl friend is very jealous of my wife and makes me account for every minute I'm away from her to see if I've spent to much time with my wife. I got into this situation easy. Right after I came here from overseas I met this girl and went with her for almost six months until my wife came here last month. How can I get out of this situation?

WAY OUT

LOVELY LASS . . . Many a passerby turns his head when captivating Nina Shipman relaxes in the sun. Nina's appearing in the 20th Century Fox release "Blue Denim."

Know Your Supergrades

Now assigned as chief clerk in The Infantry Center Judge Advocate General Section, M-Sgt (E-8) Robert G. Monyhan in 1939 first served as an investigator for about two years in the Corps of Intelligence Police, the forerunner of the Counter Intelligence Corps, under Lt. Col. (now Lt. Gen. (ret.) Manton S. Eddy, who lives in Columbus.

Born in Indianapolis, Ind., Sgt. Monyhan completed high school in Evansville, Ind., and enter the Army there in 1934. He now has more than 26 years active duty.

His assignment at Fort Benning tops a long career of investigative and legal jobs throughout the world, during which he found time to earn a law degree through correspondence study from the LaSalle University, Chicago.

He instructed in fingerprint classification at the Provost Marshal General School in 1943-44 when it was at Fort Custer, Mich. Commandant of the school then was Milton Purvis, who, as an FBI agent, was responsible for bringing John Dillinger to justice.

E-8 MONYHAN

Other assignments Sgt. Monyhan held were as investigator in charge, 35th Criminal Investigation Detachment, Manila, in 1947; 515th CI Detachment in Okinawa in 1948 and 1949, and the 52nd CI Detachment in Frankfort, Germany in 1953.

Before coming to Fort Benning he was assigned as Intelligence operations chief in Darmstadt, Germany. He left there for his present post in 1956.

Sgt. Monyhan's citation for the Army Commendation Medal awarded him for his work in the Philippines following World War II begins: "For assistance in restoration of law and order in the Philippines".

He now lives in Columbus, where he and his wife plan to remain after he retires in the near future.

'Wise Guy, Huh?'

This guy tells the story of a burglar who broke into the house while he was playing poker with the boys. When asked if the burgler got anything he replied, "Yes, my wife thought it was me coming in late and the police got there just in time to rescue him."

LADY IN LONGJOHNS . . . But somehow they look different when Nancy Ann Corcoran models them. The former Miss U.S.A. makes a fetching mermaid in the swimsuit and footed tights designed for skindiving.

TSB'S SSGT CHRESTMAN TAKES INVENTORY

Library Operated For Pro-Pay Study

The Student Brigade operates a Proficiency Test Reference Library for the use of enlisted men. The library is also used by personnel to prepare for promotion or to acquire broader knowledge of the Army.

It houses different volumes in three copies of each. Material is roughly divided between field and technical manuals, regulations and pamphlets.

New material and changes are posted by S-Sgt Riley F. Chrestman, who keeps the material up to date. He is available when personnel wish to study reference material, which may be checked out weekdays during duty hours.

Army Develops A New Light Anti-Tank Weapon

Major Gen. John A. Barclay, a leading Army missile expert, today termed the Army's newest light anti-tank weapon a classic instance of how the Army Ordnance Corps and industry cooperate in weapon development.

He said 25 Army elements and industrial organizations were involved in the team effort that produced the XM72 rocket grenade. Details of the new weapon were revealed by the Army for the first time last Thursday.

Two engineers, whose idea lead to development of the new weapon, first presented their suggestion to the Army several years ago. Gen. Barclay, who was then commander of Picatinny Arsenal, Dover, N. J., was the Army officer who received their initial proposal.

The engineers suggested replacing the Infantry soldier's low velocity anti-tank rifle grenade by adding a rocket motor to the grenade and firing it out of its packing container.

The joint Army - industry team that worked out the weapon based on this suggestion stressed economy, light weight accuracy and simplicity of operation and production.

This approach resulted in a weapon weighing four and one half pounds that can be carried and fired by one man. A rocket motor propels the high explosive grenade from the packing container which also serves as its launcher tube.

Initial development was carried out under supervision of the Army Rocket and Guided Missile Agency.

The four and one half pound XM72 is carried over the shoulder in a throw away case that serves as the launcher. Each launcher is fitted with a canvas sling to permit shoulder carrying. If desired, four rounds can be carried in a canvas pack slung over the shoulder.

The carrying case is 25 inches long and three inches in diameter. A telescopic aluminum inner section is extended prior to firing. The outer section is made of a fiberglass plastic composition. The weapon can be fired from standing, kneeling or prone positions.

A solid fuel motor furnishes propulsion and burns out before the rocket leaves the launcher tube. When the rocket emerges, several narrow magnesium fins folded against the motor case when packed in the tube, spring into position and stabilize the rocket in flight.

Aiming is accomplished by a rear peep sight and graduated sight imprinted on a clear plastic rectangle at the mouth of the launcher tube. The firing mechanism is mounted on top of the launcher tube.

The warhead uses a powerful new Army Ordnance-developed explosive known as OCTOL. Teamed with the 90mm recoilless rifle, the new rocket grenade will meet the Infantry soldier's need for protection against enemy tank attacks.

The Army Ordnance Missile Command is the agency responsible for overall development of the Army's newest light anti-tank weapon. An AOMC element, the Army Ballistic Missile Agency, is commodity manager.

Gen. Walsh's Infantry School Report

The Special Subjects Department of The Infantry School, under the direction of Col. Richard W. Mabee (Colonel Harley T. Marsh on January 1) is a department presenting several important subjects to all leader type classes and most specialist type classes in residence at The School. Approximately one-fourth of the hours presented to the leader type classes are presented by this department.

For instructional purposes, the department is composed of five instructional committees, each preparing and presenting an important phase of the students' instruction. In addition, these committees review nonresident instruction, prepare and review training literature and doctrine, and conduct studies within their field of interest as indicated below.

The Leadership Committee, under the guidance of the committee chairman, Lt. Col. Harry W. Hoffman, presents leadership instruction to all leader type classes varying from a one hour block for refresher courses to a twenty hour block to the Officer Candidate students. Included in this instruction are Concept of Leadership, Leadership Traits and Principles, Human Behavior and Command Application, Problems of Command, Problems in Training and Combat, Character Guidance, Conduct of an Officer, and the Leaders' Reaction Course.

The Map Reading Committee, under the guidance of committee chairman, Major George W. Abrahamson, presents instruction to all leader type classes and to practically all specialist type classes such as Pathfinder, Ranger, Infantry mechanics and communications. This instruction includes Fundamentals and Theory of Map and Aerial Photograph Reading, Terrain Association, Ground Navigation, and Use of the Compass.

Distinguished Veterans To Inauguration

Following tradition, Medal of Honor holders, five of whom are on post, will be special guests at the Presidential inauguration today in Washington, D. C.

They will be given seats of honor next to the Presidential box at the inaugural parade and will be guests at the inaugural ball that evening.

His Record As Scholar Brilliant

President-elect John F. Kennedy has named the president of West Virginia University, Elvis J. Stahr, Jr., for the post of Secretary of the Army, to complete the high-level organization of the Department of Defense for the incoming administration.

Mr. Stahr is very often referred to as "a real brain."

He is a scholar, and a brilliant one. For at the age of 44, he has already mastered more academic heights than most men of letters accomplish in a lifetime.

His record is a top one. He was born in Hickman, Ky., and during undergraduate work at the University of Kentucky, he compiled the highest scholastic record in the school's history.

This was only the beginning. He easily made Phi Beta Kappa, earned a scholarship to Oxford University, and during three years there earned bach-

COL. BISBING

Col. John Bisbing Is DNRI Chief

Col. John Bisbing has assumed duties as director of The Infantry School's Department of Non-Resident Instruction.

He succeeds Col. Otto R. Koch Jr., who has assumed command of The School's Student Brigade.

Before his recent reassignment, Col. Bisbing was chairman of the Advanced Tactics, Intelligence and Operations Committee of The School's Command and Staff Department. He came to Fort Benning in November, 1959.

In his new position, Col. Bisbing directs a department serving approximately 30,000 students. These non-resident students are from 50 states, the Canal Zone, Puerto Rico and other points overseas.

He entered active service in February, 1941. From 1944 to 1946, he was S-3 and a battalion commander of the 378th Infantry in Europe. During the Korean conflict, from 1951 to

Mr. Stahr Served Here as Lieutenant in 1941

Elvis J. Stahr, who has been selected by President-elect John F. Kennedy to be the Secretary of the Army in the new administration that goes into office today, is seen as 2nd Lt. Stahr.

The picture was made while Lt. Stahr was stationed here in October 1941, during the early days of World War II.

He is a graduate of The Infantry School.

The president of the University of West Virginia was commissioned a second lieutenant of Infantry in 1940 and entered The Infantry School as a student member of the Rifle and Heavy Weapons Course in November 1941.

He was graduated from the course the following February.

The man picked to fill the top Army position served in North Africa and as a combat liaison officer in the China-Burma-India Theater later in World War II after departing Fort Benning.

He rose to the rank of lieutenant colonel in 1945.

eior of arts, bachelor of civil law and master of arts degrees.

Mr. Stahr received his law degree and worked with a New York law firm for eight years. He took time out for duty with the Army in World War II, including two years overseas in the Pacific Theater.

He joined the Kentucky faculty as an associate professor of law in 1947, at the age of 31. A year later Mr. Stahr was appointed professor, and dean of the law college.

A selection committee, which included Dwight D. Eisenhower, named him one of the 10 outstanding men of America that same year.

He took a leave of absence from Kentucky during the Korean conflict to go to the Pentagon as a special assistant to the Secretary of the Army. He returned to the University of Kentucky in 1954 as provost but his stay was to be short.

Two years later he returned to Washington to become the executive director of the President's committee on education beyond the high school level. Just one year later Mr. Stahr moved to the University of Pittsburgh to become vice chancellor.

He remained at Pittsburgh until early in 1959 when he was named president of the University of West Virginia, where he was the highest paid administrator in the university's history.

Mr. Stahr is a very eager sports fan, even though he chose the library over the sports field in his undergraduate years.

1952, he was deputy G-1 of the Eighth Army.

From 1952 to 1956 he was assigned to the Office of the Comptroller of the Army in Washington, D. C. The colonel was deputy chief of the Management Division of the Office of the Comptroller, Headquarters, U. S. Army, Europe, from 1956 to 1959.

Upon arriving on post he assumed duties as deputy commander of the 1st Battle Group, 11th Infantry, a position he held until February, 1960, when he went to the Command and Staff Department.

He attained the rank of colonel in December, 1959.

Col. Bisbing wears the Bronze Star Medal with four Oak Leaf Clusters and Army Commendation Medal.

He is married to the former Mary Herndon of Midway, Ga.

Re-Ups

mand had the highest percentage of first term re-enlistments with 33 per cent, followed by The Student Brigade and Troop Command.

In the quarterly all-category rating, first place honors went to Martin Army Hospital with 57 per cent. The Student Brigade was runner - up with 54 per cent and Lawson came in third with 46 per cent.

In the rating for the fiscal year plaque, which will be awarded to the command with the highest percentage of first term re-enlistees, Lawson leads at the halfway mark with 24 per cent, followed by Troop Command and the 1st Infantry Brigade.

Total re-enlistments for December jumped to 60 per cent of all eligible personnel. According to The Infantry Center re-enlistment officer Capt. Donald Fann, this is the highest mark since August.

Report

Charles F. Walrath, presents instruction to all leader type classes and some specialist courses. This committee does not have one principal subject of instruction, but is composed of the following subject areas: Training Management, Methods of Instruction, Preparation of Field Exercises, legal subjects such as Military Justice and Legal Aspects of Civil Emergencies, Congressional Relations, and educational subjects such as Army Information Program, Civil Affairs, Military Management and Effective Writing and Speaking Program. This committee presents a class on Training Aids in which students are conducted through a static display and shown the various types of training aids and how they may be made under field expedient conditions.

The Effective Writing Program is to assist students of Career classes in the improvement of their ability to write and as part of their course they write an article for publication. To provide greater incentive for students to write, The Infantry School established the Marshall Award, in honor of Gen. George C. Marshall, in 1959 which is presented to the student of each Career class whose article is judged to be the best of those submitted by members of his class. The article is featured in the first issue of "Infantry," The School magazine, published after graduation and plainly marked as a Marshall Award article.

The Medical Committee is the smallest of the five instructional committees. Under the guidance of committee chairman, Lt. Col. George T. Britton, MC, instruction is presented by medical personnel to all leader type classes and many specialist classes. This instruction includes First Aid, Medical Service of the Infantry Division and Armored Infantry Units, Medical Aspects of Nuclear Explosions, and of Civil Emergencies, Medical Planning, Management of Mass Casualties, Medical Support of Special Operations, Military Hygiene and Sanitation, and Preventive Medicine.

The Nuclear Weapons Committee, under the guidance of committee chairman, Lt. Col. Gregg N. Jennings, presents instruction to leader type classes varying from 40 hours for Career classes to two hours for familiarization to some specialist classes. This instruction includes Characteristics and Capabilities of Nuclear Weapons and Delivery Means, Nuclear Weapons Effects including Thermal Radiation, Blast and Nuclear Radiation, Techniques of Target Analysis, Damage and Casualty Estimation, Troop Safety Considerations, Rear Area Damage Control, Numerical and Simplified Systems of Target Analysis, Employment of Nuclear Weapons in Offensive and Defensive Operations at Battle Group and Division level.

To support these five instructional committees, the Department Headquarters consists of the office of the director, which directs and supervises all activities of the department; an executive officer who assists the director, and supervises the activities of the Plans Section and the Administrative and Supply Section.

Goes Regular Army

The assistant personnel officer of the 428th Medical Battalion, 1st Lt. Robert E. Murray, took the oath as an officer in the Regular Army during a brief ceremony at battalion headquarters last week. He is a graduate of the University of Kansas and the Brooke Army Medical Center.

TSB'S TOP SOLDIER . . . Sp4 Donald W. White, Headquarters Company, 5th Student Battalion, The Student Brigade, was selected the command's "Outstanding Soldier" for the quarter. He was congratulated by Col. Otto R. Koch, Jr., the Brigade commander.

Generals Visit Post

Four distinguished generals will visit The Infantry Center and Infantry School next week.

Formal military honors were accorded the Republic of China's Gen. Lo Lieh upon his arrival Monday for a day's tour of facilities and training activities.

On Wednesday Major Gen. (Ret.) Joseph H. Harper, former Infantry Center commander, arrived to address members of the local chapter of the Military Order of World Wars at a meeting scheduled at Main Officers' Open Mess that evening.

West Germany's Brig. Gen. H. E. W. Hahne also arrived Wednesday for a three-day tour.

20th Anniversary

The Armed Forces Epidemiological Board celebrated its 20th Anniversary January 11. The Board, consisting of top civilian medical scientists, was originally established in 1941 to advise the Army on preventive medicine problems of military importance.

Pfc Womack Is Tops In Battalion

Pfc Harvey M. Womack Jr., Battery C, 2nd Howitzer Battalion, 10th Artillery, 1st Infantry Brigade, was selected "Battalion Soldier of the Month" for the month of December.

He first won in the battery competition then went on to win the battalion recognition over individuals representing the other five batteries of the battalion.

A native of Georgia, he received the "Soldier of the Month" honor for his being an outstanding soldier and for his knowledge of his job, military affairs, and current events. He has been a member of the battery's eight-inch self propelled howitzer crew since his assignment here from Germany in May of 1960.

Space Might Help Cancer, Heart Study

(AFPS) — The seven Astronauts chosen for Project Mercury made the grade only after exhaustive tests showed them to be superb physical and mental specimens. In other words, space is no place for anyone not in tiptop shape.

But now, in a report to Congress by the House Committee on Science and Astronautics, comes the theory that patients suffering from cancer and heart disease might be cured by being orbited through outer space.

Outer space, says the report, offers a perfect vacuum not available in any heart laboratory, and various kinds of solar and cosmic radiation that might have beneficial effects. Effect of weightlessness are still to be explored," the report continues. "Although experience may show the disadvantages are greater, it is not inconceivable that in time some types of human coronary cases will find relief by being sent to a space station."

Noting that outer space exploration already has proved valuable in the field of medicine, the report adds:

"Perhaps some ingredient in the spectrum of radiation reaching a space ship will prove efficacious in treating some forms of cancer if the patient is sent up to a space station for therapy."

AUSA Election Set January 26

The Columbus-Phenix City-Fort Benning Chapter, Association of the United States Army will hold its annual election and installation of officers Thursday, January 26, at 8 p.m.

The meeting has been scheduled at The Infantry School's Salerno Mess.

Dinner will begin at 6:30 p. m. Presiding at the meeting will be the chapter's out-going president, Henry B. Pease of Columbus.

1961 Armed Forces Day Initial Plans Are Set

(AFPS) — Armed Forces Day 1961 will again be celebrated during the third week of May and already a manual for project officers and local committees is off the press. This special day for the Armed Forces was established in 1950 by the Secretary of Defense, with approval of the President.

Designation of a single annual occasion in lieu of different dates previously observed by individual services was in line with the creation of the Department of Defense by Congress.

Armed Forces Day is intended to symbolize the inter-dependence of all components of the Armed Forces. It affords an annual opportunity to demonstrate the working relationships between the Army, Navy, Air Force, Marine Corps, Coast Guard, Reserve Forces and auxiliary organizations at all levels of commands.

The President proclaimed the third Saturday in May 1950 as the first Armed Forces Day.

Theme for this year's Armed Forces Day remains the same — "Power for Peace."

The first observance in 1950 used the slogan "Teamed for Defense". In 1951 it was "Defenders of Freedom" and in 1952 "Unity — Strength — Freedom."

The 1952 program emphasized the fact that the Armed Forces of the United States represent "Power for Peace," a slogan so descriptive of our national effort that it has been retained.

The manual points out, however, that in some overseas areas "Partners for Peace" is used to point up our Free World alliance.

Although the Defense Department coordinates the observance nationally, designating certain areas of responsibility and assigning one of the services as coordinating authority in each area, interest and emphasis for the day are actually at local command or community level.

Sgt. Arlee Grubbs' topside topics

The Association of the United States Army has announced plans for building an Army Memorial at Independence Square in Philadelphia to commemorate the founding of the Army. This Army museum, a tribute to the American soldier, will be a part of a complete restoration project taking place at this historic old site. It will contain displays, national and unit colors and standards and other treasured relics of the Army. Initial fund raising is scheduled to begin in June when the Army celebrates its 186th birthday with funds coming from volunteer contributions from the "One Army" team, veterans organizations and interested civilian organizations and individuals. The building is planned to be a facsimile of one of the more gracious, larger buildings which stood in Independence Square during the colonial era.

Aliens Address Report

The Department of Justice has sent out a reminder this week on the importance of aliens living in the U.S. — including Army personnel and their dependents — in reporting their address to the Attorney General during January. Cards may be obtained from any Post Office and when filled in with required data should be returned to the Post Office from which received.

Medical Appeal Now Okay

Patients whose cases are being considered by hospital medical boards for disposition, now have the right to appear before the board and challenge its decision, according to a newly published revision of Army Regulation 40-212.

Air Force Says Wear Ribbons

The Air Force has issued a directive that makes it mandatory for its personnel to wear all ribbons denoting decorations beginning March 1. The Air Force said the ribbons will be worn on all uniforms, at all times, except on the shirt, overcoat, topcoat or raincoat when these are worn as an outer garment.

Retired Pay Equalization

As Congress opened the Defense Department sent the Pay Equalization Bill for retired personnel to the legislators with the hope that it will be put into law by March 1. The bill passed the House last year, but not the Senate. The bill is designed to equalize retired payments and to eliminate "discrimination against retired personnel who served their country faithfully and well."

Artillery Extension Courses

Some 22,000 Artillerymen are now enrolled in the extension course program of the Army Artillery School. The courses include missile study, and are self-study courses designed to provide an effective progressive military education. The courses are battery grade, advanced, transition, preparatory for resident study and special study for specific fields.

This Week's Column Closer

This one may well serve as a good safety reminder for all of us. A highway sign near Sherman, Texas, reads: "He who has one for the road, has a policeman for a chaser."

Editorial

Commander-in-Chief Served Country Well

(AFPS) — Eight years of service in the nation's highest office is a mighty burden for any man to carry — especially a man who had the task of leading the Crusade for Victory in World War II. As President Dwight D. Eisenhower goes into richly earned retirement at Gettysburg, members of the Armed Forces can well salute him as a Commander-in-Chief whose leadership has kept them strong and united in their mission of defending the nation.

History will remember him in those two roles that entailed epic responsibility — as President and as Supreme Allied Commander. The military historians will write of his masterful planning and coordinating ability, linking him with other great names of World War II — Generals MacArthur and Bradley and Marshall and Arnold, Admirals Nimitz and King and Halsey.

Some of them have passed from the scene — Marshall, King, Arnold, and, most recently Halsey — to be honored in memoriam. But others, like Gen. MacArthur, are still happily with us, and from his California hillside home Adm. Nimitz can look westward over the rolling waters where he led the world's mightiest fleet to victory in the Pacific.

May Mr. Eisenhower long be with us to enjoy the gratitude and affection of the nation he served so long and well. In both personality and deed, his career has been eloquent refutation of the belief in some quarters that a military man has no place as Chief Executive. When he put away his five-star Army uniform to enter the White House, our 34th President simply exchanged one symbol of selfless public service for another.

The Judge Says . . .

BY LT. THEODORE PONFIL

Sgt. John Boston is tired of riding the bus. Feeling that the bus money could just as easily be applied to car payments, he decides to buy a car. At the outset he is faced with many problems . . . the decision as to the model, year, and make of car being a relatively minor one.

The most important questions for him are "Can I afford it" and if so "How am I going to pay for it." Let's hope that John waits around for the answers to these questions since he will be mighty sorry if he doesn't.

Assuming that John is, in the auto salesman's language, a "prospect," let us trace the steps involved in the transaction. John will have many "good deals" to choose from.

He can purchase a car with a sizeable down payment, with a small down payment . . . or with no down payment at all and with almost as long as he likes to pay.

If part or all of the purchase price is financed, the dealer will have John sign a promissory note which the dealer then signs over to a bank or acceptance company. John will remain liable to whomever holds the note until the amount specified thereon plus interest is paid off.

John will have to make a down payment. Often this is accomplished by using the old car in place of any outlay of cash. But, as we assumed earlier, John-the-bus-rider has no trade-in.

So he will either take the down payment out of his savings (if he has any) or he will borrow it. If he borrows it and then finances the balance, he is really borrowing from two outfits at once.

This does not make sense since he then pays double finance charges. Moral number one: If you can't even put up a downpayment, stick to the bus.

At the present time the average down payment varies between one-quarter and one-third of the total purchase-price. The more money John pays down, the less he pays in finance charges and interest, and the sooner complete title to the car will be his.

Many people who purchase cars on the long slow "easy" payment plans are finding to their dismay that the car which they have been making payments on for the last 24 months is worth much less than the amount which they still owe.

This causes further difficulty when it comes time to trade in the old, still encumbered car. (Encumbered means that you drive it and the bank owns it.)

Remember that promissory note which John was asked to sign: the amount still owed on that goes down much slower than the value of the car. Moral number two: Don't fall for the long easy payment plans; purchase a car which you can pay off within a year or less.

Some car buyers evidently regard the installment contract method of buying a car as being somewhat akin to a Rent-a-Car system, i.e., you make an initial payment and then pay as long as you use it, giving them the keys and telling them to come and get it when you are through.

This is not the case. John signed a promissory note and he is still liable for the full price plus the full interest. This is always true. This is always written into the conditional sales contracts.

Chaplain's Corner

BY CHAPLAIN (CAPT.) STEWART W. DEBOER

There are moments when most of us rise above ourselves and our surroundings and sense of glory of service and see beyond the tiresome routine of some of the things we do each day. Those are the glorious moments.

But perhaps there is no man or woman who lives through life without feeling at times deeply discouraged and weighed down with responsibilities.

Perhaps there never was a mother with her children around her, who couldn't find cause to become discouraged with the work of the home weighing heavily upon her, with the many unmentioned duties that never quite get done, or that seem to so quickly to be undone.

And perhaps there never was a father who was faced with the problems of providing for a family who couldn't sometimes feel weighed down with the weight of all that was dependent upon him.

Fortunately we face these things as they come, and usually our power to do grows with what has to be done. But sometimes the load may look too heavy, the tasks too tedious, the work too wearisome, and at times discouraging times there may be temptation to run away from responsibility.

Thoreau once said: "That we have so little faith is not sad, but that we have so little faithfulness. For by faithfulness, faith is earned."

In the first place, anyone who runs away from responsibility loses part of his self-respect. In the second place, he can't run away from himself.

Granted that sometimes some things seem all but unbearable. Granted that any household, any assignment, any situation can become trying, tiring, burdensome, or boring.

But life is a test of faith and faithfulness, and for the sake of being able to face our Father in Heaven without a sense of shame we shouldn't run away.

". . . By faithfulness, faith is earned." — and so is happiness, and peace of mind, and self-respect. God help us to have the faith and faithfulness to endure to the end — to continue in faithful performance.

At the Movies

THE 2 WORLDS OF GULLIVER, Starring Kerwin Mathews and Jo Morrow. Gulliver, a normal-sized man, is cast adrift in the land of Lilliput, a nation of beings only six inches high. A towering giant in that country, he helps two Lilliputians find love and romance, destroys the war fleet of enemies of the country and performs other feats worthy of a giant.

HAND IN HAND, Starring John Gregson and Sybil Thorndike. This is the story of two growing children who become fast friends in the narrow-minded atmosphere of their elders. Their happy world of childhood is disturbed when it is invaded by religious prejudice. How the children come to grips with doubts and bias and overcome them with their childish resources is the basis of this film.

MARRIAGE — GO — ROUND, Starring Susan Hayward, James Mason, and Julie Newmar. A comedy-romance about a domestic crisis in the home of two college professors, who deliver lectures on marriage and morals and suddenly find their own in jeopardy in the hands of a beautiful blonde Swedish bombshell. The girl wants a "perfect" baby and has selected Mason as the appropriate father.

Sneak Preview

A sneak preview will be held Monday, January 23, at Theatre 1. There will be one show only at 8:30 p.m. at regular admission prices. This movie is a pre-release—it has not been released to the movie theaters of this area.

THE RAT RACE, Starring Tony Curtis and Debbie Reynolds. Tony portrays a colorful young jazz musician with aspirations to beat the odds in the big Manhattan scramble, while Debbie is on the ragged edge of complete disintegration under the pressure of the rat race. In a complete atmosphere of mood and circumstance, the two face an uncertain, but suspenseful future together.

Carmen Mora Heads Spanish Ballet Cast

Post personnel may have a new thrill in store for themselves in the person of the exciting Carmen Mora, who will make her North American debut this season in Columbus as featured soloist with the Jose Greco Spanish Ballet.

You will have a chance to see Miss Mora January 24, when the Greco company, 30 strong, will appear at the Royal Theatre under the auspices of the "Ballet Guild of Columbus."

As the star of her own company, Miss Mora gained considerable reknown throughout Europe and the Orient. While the current '61 tour scheduled with the Greco company represents her "in person" debut, movie fans all across the continent are familiar with Miss Mora's dazzling work as featured dancer in the recent film, "The Naked Maja".

Miss Mora is only one of a large roster of new faces that are joining the redoubtable Senor Greco this season. The roster of new talent, combined with the ever-popular stand-bys in the company may well hold the key to the most exciting and stimulating experience yet offered in the Spanish dance.

Mrs. Mariano Morales, president and event chairman for the Ballet Guild of Columbus, announced that Orchestra Reserved Seats and Balcony Reserved Seats are now placed on sale and may be obtained from members of the Ballet Guild, Kirvens and Special Services on post.

MARIA DEL ROCIO

BOOKS in REVIEW

WINTER SOLSTICE by Gerald Warner Brace. (Norton, 1960)

"A novel set in a small town near Boston. As the story, centered around the eldest daughter's love for a married man, develops the various characters grapple with the problem of what makes life worth living."

DARK LADY by Doris Miles Disney. (Doubleday, 1960)

"A summer rental in Connecticut, to work out his thesis on Deane Saxby who died without fulfilling his genius, brings Gilbert Fowler hints and promises of the dead man's past—other than literary. Fewler, reconstructing the events of 1884, gathers information . . . and comes up with a new answer to an old crime."

THE LISTENER by Taylor Caldwell. (Doubleday, 1960)

"A novel about a mysterious listener who soothes the troubled by listening silently behind a curtain to their stories of their troubles. Eventually the curtain is opened to reveal a larger than lifesize crucifix. The stories of a number of sufferers who pour their hearts to the mysterious listener are given, but it is not really a novel in the conventional sense."

TROUT MADNESS by Robert Traver. (St. Martins, 1960)

"The author calls up visions of trout fishing and the art and ritual of fly fishing, along the waters and ponds of Michigan's Upper Peninsula. From the opening day (that end of April congenial custom) to the last one of the season are pieces on his experiences. . . and especially on . . . the trout itself."

Pat Ryan's News and Views

Roger Williams shared thirty minutes of his rehearsal time before his performance last Thursday to chat with me. We talked of records, food, clothes, his career and family, and a multitude of things cheerfully volunteered by this loquacious artist.

A boyish thirty-five, Roger chose the piano by the "process of elimination" from the many instruments mastered at an early age. His routine now as a world-known professional means strict daily practice, even finger exercises with a fake piano practice - board while riding the bus between the twenty-six concerts he is giving on his present tour.

Roger, who possesses a ready, appealing smile, has dark brown wavy hair, dark brown eyes, and wears his favorite white leather jacket as often as he can. His more formal attire is designed in California, and New York.

Roger is a non-smoker, non-drinker, non-coffee - drinker even. But . . . he has to have his double order of cold sliced chicken sandwiches every late-night-snacktime! He even dares to eat steak for breakfast, unless he finds a bowl of cereal "concentrate" before him.

Contrary to what you might think, Roger doesn't worry about his hands. He doesn't carry insurance on them, boxes enthusiastically for recreation, and really gives them a beating during concert nights sometimes. In fact, he says, he has to soak his hands occasionally after a concert to ease their "throbbing. "Then", he says, "I jump in after them!"

Roger has been married for thirteen years to Joy, a "living doll", and is unabashedly in love with her. They hold hands like newlyweds, and he talks of her at every chance. The reason he knew she was the girl for him when he saw her backstage at Idaho State College is because he has "an ability to size people up immediately, and . . . he knew!

His personable agent, former stage actor Jack Roy, confirmed that Roger is "not temperamental . . . relaxed . . . pleasant to work with." Roger prefers concerts to TV work because a handshake, he says, is worth more than invisible audience. He plans to appear on Ed Sullivan's program in April however.

Mrs. Teeters Speaks During Lawson Luncheon

"A New Year — A New You" was the theme for the January 4th luncheon held by the ladies of the Lawson Army Aviation Command Woman's Club at the Custer Terrace Officers Open Mess.

Mrs. Billy Nunnelee, president, presented the centerpiece to Mrs. Bernard Teeters, President of the Fort Benning Woman's Club, who entertained the ladies with a psychology test on ego.

Mrs. Nunnelee extended a warm welcome to the guests and new members who were: Mrs. Hamilton, visiting her daughter Mrs. L. M. Thomas; Mrs. Butler, guest of Mrs. Richard Schaffer and Mrs. Edward Koenne, visiting her daughter-in-law, Mrs. James Koenne. The new members were: Mrs. Aaron Trim, Mrs. Charles Thompson and Mrs. Edward Reid, Jr.

The ladies of the 94th Transportation Company were hostess.

Airborne Ladies

Mesdames O. G. Garrett, Victor K. Harwood, and Donald Hare were hostesses for the recent luncheon of the ladies of the Airborne-Air Mobility Department of The Infantry School. Guest speaker was Mrs. L. B. Killingsworth, a representative of the Merle Norman Studio of Columbus, who gave a talk and demonstration on proper complexion care. Mrs. Earl L. Bessent assisted her in the demonstration. Mrs. Willard E. Harrison made announcements for the group and bade farewell to Mrs. John F. Sadler.

52nd Company

Wives of the 52nd Officer Candidate Company recently met for coffee in the unit day room. Mesdames Irvin Travis, Victor Tullar, George Hartford and Wayne Halstead were hostesses. Mrs. Otto Koch was introduced during the business meeting and Mrs. Robert Sage gave a talk to the ladies on calling cards. Rehearsals Set For 49er Party

Preparations are in full swing for the annual 49er Party to be held on February 4 beginning at 7 p.m. at the Main Officers' Open Mess.

Maggie's Chuck Wagon will begin serving Western food as soon as the doors open. The Daughters of the United States Army sponsor the benefit each year.

Last year more than $5,000 was distributed to post charities.

Mrs. Hattie Weeks, the oldest Army daughter at Fort Benning, has been named Grand Madame for the third successive year.

Guiding the rehearsals of the entertainers are Mrs. Rolfe Arnhym and Major Austin J. Yerks, the master of ceremonies.

There will be two separate can-can lines. The first boasts girls who could grace any stage of the "Old West," and includes Mrs. Arnhym, Mrs. John L. Hofues Jr., Mrs. Richard J. Bean, Mrs. Al Meenlieb, and Miss Karen Lincoln.

A trifle less decorative but no less spirited is the second line, which offers Capt. Maurice O. Edmonds, Capt. Richard B. Schaefer, Lt. Robert L. Wheaton, Lt. Richard J. Bean, and Lt. Robert E. Joseph.

Other attractions will be an antique booth manned by JADA, roving photographers with Polaroid cameras, and light footed taxi dancers.

Those planning to attend are reminded that any style costume is appropriate. Sourdoughs and their calico gals will be rubbing elbows with beatniks. Costumes, however, are not required.

Members of the Officers' Mess may obtain tickets and guest cards from the 49er project officer at any of the major commands. Tickets will also be on sale from February 1-3 at the Main Mess, Lawson Annex, and Salerno Mess during the noon hour.

Mrs. J. L. Waldrop, director of religious education on post was guest speaker at the January meeting of the Riverside Toastmistress Club.

Mrs. Waldrop recited the inspirational and always appropriate "Christmas Story" by Gladys Murrell.

Toastmistress, Mrs. A. R. Carlisle, introduced Mrs. E. D. Bjorn who spoke on "My Trip to New York" and Mrs. A. L. McLendon who spoke on "A Friend in Need is a Friend Indeed."

Mrs. M. H. Steffen was general evaluator of the meeting. Anyone desiring further information regarding the club may contact the membership chairman, Mrs. Richard Evers at 4-1156.

Catholic Team On Family Life Sets Post Visit

Fort Benning will host the Catholic Institute on Leadership Development and Family Life on January 29, 30, 31 and February 1.

Sponsored by Department of the Army and the Family Life Bureau of the National Catholic Welfare Conference, The Institute is touring military posts in an effort to more closely unite the military Catholic leader to his family and job.

The team from the Institute will be composed of two priests, a doctor and a married couple.

Further information can be obtained from the post Catholic chaplains or unit information officers.

SEWING CLASS

Tailoring and sewing classes began last Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. at the Woman's Club Building. Mr. Addoph Ansley will instruct. Mrs. Robert Chenoweth's course in basic sewing began yesterday. Those interested in either class may call Mrs. Phillip Kaplan, LI 4-3498.

Class Hosts A General's Reception

Brig. Gen. L. A. Walsh Jr., assistant commandant of The Infantry School, and Mrs. Walsh, were honor guests during the "General's Reception" held last Saturday evening by Infantry Officers Orientation Class 9.

The event is a social highlight of the class and offered the student officers' wives and guests an opportunity to meet the general, his wife, The FIRST PICTURE . . . The Army has released this picture showing for the first time its Davy Crockett nuclear projectile. Mounted here on a jeep, the weapon is small enough to be carried by one man and operated by two men. The Davy Crockett will give armor and Infantry troops low-yield, close-range nuclear capability. It can also fire conventional warheads. The weapon's effective radius is small enough that troops using it and nearby friendly troops would not be endangered.

Centennial Notes

Civil War Arms Major Problem

From the beginning of the War between the States, 100 years ago, to the end of the conflict in 1865, the major problem of both the Union and Confederate Armies, was one of supply—ammunition and arms supply to be exact.

Some of the arms used dated all the way back to the Revolutionary War, such as the French Model 1763 Charleville Musket, sometimes called the Lafayette.

In fact, about midway through the war, the Union Army listed as "official" 79 different models of rifles and muskets, 23 models of carbines and musketoons (shorter than the rifle and musket) and 19 various pistols and revolvers. To add to the confusion, practically every one required different ammunition.

The situation in the Confederate Army was similar. In addition, many individuals and even whole units purchased and carried a large variety of unofficial arms, needing still more types and sizes of ammunition to make them usable.

Practically anything that could be fired was put into service, some of the weapons being more dangerous to the shooter than to the enemy.

Despite the many different calibers, the basic bullets fired in the muzzle-loading shoulder arms were "Minie balls" named after the French Army captain who developed them in 1847.

The original idea was to have a loose-fitting round ball that could easily be pushed down the barrel of the weapon and then enlarged by striking it several times with the ramrod. The bullet that evolved from the experiments was conical and had a hollow base that expanded against the rifling when fired.

Using the Model 1855 rifle of .58 caliber in connection with the Minie ball, marksmen of the era were able to hit man-size targets up to 400 yards, and the rifle was capable of putting 10 consecutive shots in a four-inch bullseye at 100 yards.

Boy Scouts Seek Aid Of Parents

There are about 400 Boy Scouts organized into seven Cub packs, seven troops and one Explorer post. Each unit can use the active support of from 10 to 20 adults, Col. Patterson, who expressed appreciation for existing parental support, said the number now falls below the need.

Some of the Cub packs could double their membership if enough women volunteered as den mothers, he said.

Men can serve in at least six capacities. The recognized organization of the Boy Scouts of America calls for camping, public relations, advancement and health and safety chairmen serving in each troop under a committee chairman. Other supervisory posts are secretary and treasurer.

Anyone wishing to volunteer services may telephone MSgt Archie Siler, Youth Activities Club representative of the Boy Scouts, at 5-3416.

6,507 Pints in 1960

Gen. Harris Cites Post Blood Donors

Personnel at Fort Benning volunteered 6,507 pints of blood to the Army Blood Donor Program during 1960, the second highest number since the program was inaugurated about 10 years ago.

Last year's donations were barely short of the 6,837 pints donated in 1958, according to John A. Cramer, American Red Cross field director on post.

Post volunteers numbered 8,619 during the calendar year.

According to figures released by the Red Cross, 1,861 pints of blood were donated by the 1st Infantry Brigade, topping all previous records for donations at the post in a calendar year by a major organization.

The 428th Medical Battalion volunteered 90 pints of blood during 1960; The Infantry Center Troop Command, 718; The Student Brigade, 56; 56; The 151st Engineer Group, 456; Lawson Army Aviation Command, 102, Infantry Board, 7, and civilian employees, 21.

The number of pints donated by The Infantry Center was 3,351 and by the Division, 3,156, Cramer said.

At a recent regional blood center conference in Atlanta, Major John F. Hare of the 1st Infantry Brigade, accepted, on behalf of the post, a certificate of appreciation from the American National Red Cross "for dedicated service and sustained cooperation and constant support of the Atlanta Regional Blood Program."

It was presented by Hugh Rodgers, chairman of the regional program.

Major Gen. Hugh P. Harris, commanding general of The Infantry Center, in a letter to Cramer and the post's Red Cross staff, said, "The personnel of Fort Benning are justifiably proud of this accomplishment and are indebted to you for the outstanding manner in which you coordinated and supervised the installation blood donor program. You and your staff are to be congratulated for your part in this and all programs of the American Red Cross at Fort Benning."

Washington Speech

(AFPS) — The services rendered to individual members of the military services by the American Red Cross could not be duplicated by the Armed Forces, according to Gen. Lyman L. Lemnitzer, Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. Speaking in Washington, Gen. Lemnitzer called the Red Cross "a key partner in the national security effort."

He cited one example of aid given an overseas-stationed soldier and his seriously ill wife and traced the vast network of Red Cross facilities that was employed to render assistance to the couple.

He explained that for the Armed Forces to duplicate the structure for this one function would be "staggeringly expensive" not only in terms of dollars but in the number of people diverted from their primary duties.

The General said that "the people who are in the front lines of this Cold War must carry out their duties with the same devotion and determination, and in many respects, with the same acceptance of discomfort and hardship, as if they were actually in battle.

"A vital factor in their ability to do so," he said, "is the knowledge that, thanks to the Red Cross, any emergencies which affect their families will be dealt with promptly and effectively. Aside from the fact that in doing this the Red Cross is furnishing a great humanitarian service, it is also making a vital contribution to the strength of our national security effort."

Speaking of the national security effort, Gen. Lemnitzer said, "We all recognize that this effort is not a passing thing. Of necessity, it must go on as long as the Communist threat to the Free World persists. The personal problems affecting our soldiers sailors, airmen and Marines which grow out of the activities required to support his effort will also continue to be with us.

"The Red Cross has played a vital role in helping to make it possible for these problems to be met and overcome in the past. Our knowledge that this great humanitarian organization stands ready to continue to furnish the same assistance is assurance that we shall be able to meet and overcome the problems of the future with equal success."

GC Speaks At Academy Opening Mon

By NCO Academy PIO

Major General Frederick W. Gibb, Commanding General of the 2nd Infantry Division, officially opened Class 61A1 at the 2nd Infantry Division Noncommissioned Officer Academy in their new area at Harmony Church on January 16.

In addressing the class of forty-six senior NCO's and guests, General Gibb said that the period of instruction that would be received by the NCO's during the following four weeks would give them an opportunity to actually accomplish those things they would ordinarily expect from the trainees, which they are responsible for training.

General Gibb cited the need for better trained NCO's and stated that World War II and Korea had proven the NCO to be an indispensable asset to the combat commander.

CG's Championship Matches Set At Easley and Pistol Club Ranges

BY GEORGE HOBD

The Commanding General's Championship Matches, the last match to be held before a team is selected to represent the division in later Army marksmanship matches, will take place January 26 and 27.

Approximately 90 rifle firers, 70 pistol shooters and 10 automatic rifle teams are expected to participate, according to the 2nd Division Marksmanship Detachment, the unit supervising the matches.

Sites for the matches are the Main Post Rifle and Pistol Club for the pistol contest and Easley Range, located on Main Post, for the rifle and automatic rifle matches.

The 9th and 23rd Infantries are to enter one rifle and pistol team each in addition to two automatic rifle teams as a minimum requirement.

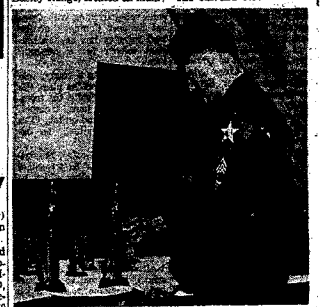
Other division units — Division Trains, Division Artillery, Division Headquarters Company, 122nd Signal Battalion, 7th Cavalry and 69th Armor — are to enter one rifle and one pistol team each.

Entries by the 1st, 11th and 87th Infantries are optional due to their OVUREP status. However, men from these teams cannot be selected for the division team, according to the Marksmanship Detachment.

The Marksmanship Detachment will study the match results and the scores of the Fall Training March held last December in order to select the 2nd Infantry Division Marksmanship Team. The announcement of the team will be made at a later date.

Additional entries, team and or individual, are authorized if coordinated with the Match Executive Officer prior to entry date. All of the matches will be fired concurrently.

Registration and entries for the Commanding General's Championship Matches are to be submitted to the Assistant Chief of Staff G-3 (Marksmanship) prior to 12 p.m., January 21. Rifle and pistol team entries may be made not later than 5 p.m. the day prior to firing a team match.



Rifle-Teams will consist of six firing members, two alternates, one team captain, who may be a firing member, and one non-firing team coach.

Pistol-Teams will consist of four firing members, a team captain who may be a firing member, a non-firing coach, and two alternates. All team members may compete in the individual matches.

Automatic rifle — Each team will consist of two team members.

Shooting caps and jackets may be worn while on the range only. Additional authorized equipment include shooting glasses and boxes and spotting scopes and binoculars.

Major John W. Ward, commanding officer of the 2nd Division Marksmanship Detachment will serve as the executive officer for the matches while Captain Cecil Patterson, officer in charge of the detachment's rifle team will serve as chief range officer. Lieutenant Burleigh Cubert will be assistant range officer for the pistol matches and Sergeant First Class O'Ryan O. Hinsley will serve as statistical non-commissioned officer.

New 11th Inf

Personnel Arrives Here For 6th OVUREP Unit

11th Inf. PIO

Staff officers and other key cadre personnel for the Army's sixth OVUREP (Over-seas Unit Replacement) unit arrived on Kelley Hill last week and began preparations for the arrival of the remainder of their cadre and the replacement of the 1st Battle Group, 11th Infantry.

The new unit will officially become the 1st Battle Group, 11th Infantry (6th OVUREP unit) some time in March or April of this year.

The sixth OVUREP unit's commander, Colonel John E. Arthur, arrived here today after completing a week's orientation with the 2nd Infantry Division, and was briefed by Colonel George D. Patterson, 11th Infantry commander, and the other battle group staff officers.

The new 11th's staff officers are: Executive Officer, Lieutenant Colonel Charles F. Austin, recently returned from the Command and Staff College; Major Walter P. Blanton, S-1 (personnel), who served as assistant G-1 (personnel) until January 1960, and more recently completed a year with the University of Omaha and the Command and General Staff College; Major James R. Sessions, S-2 (intelligence), also a recent graduate of the Command and General Staff College; Major Wiley McGarity, S-3 (training), who comes to the 11th from the assistant G-3 (training) slot; Major Frank J. Spiegelberg, S-4 (logistics) who was assistant G-2 (personnel) before joining the "Wanders".

The A cadre, consisting of 168 enlisted men, 30 officers and three warrant officers are scheduled to arrive January 22. Current plans call for the arrival of the B cadre (125 enlisted men and 25 officers) by March 12.

Promotions

Master Sergeant Mikio Tomita, 2nd Infantry Division Air Operations Sergeant, 2nd Aviation Company, was promoted to the rank of E-8 on January 1. Sergeant Tomita joined the 10th Infantry Division in 1953, served with it in Germany and then returned to the states when it was redesignated the 2nd Infantry Division. Sergeant Tomita was awarded the Army Commendation Medal for "outstanding duty" while serving in Germany.

Captain's bars were pinned on Captain Henri M. Weinberg, Assistant Supply Officer (S-4) of the Korea bound 11th Infantry, last week in the office of the deputy commander of the battle group. Lieutenant Colonel James C. Bagley, acting commander during the absence of Colonel George D. Patterson, who is on leave, officiated at the informal ceremony. In addition to his promotion, Captain Weinberg has received orders for transfer to the Far East Command as an individual replacement. He will not accompany the 11th Infantry.

Reenlistments

Sergeant George H. Crouse of the 9th Infantry's Company C reenlisted for three years, choosing the Signal Corps Center at Fort Monmouth, New Jersey, as his next assignment.

Sergeant First Class Lyle E. Bjoraft and Master Sergeant Luke Green, of Division Trains, recently reenlisted during a ceremony at Division Trains Headquarters.

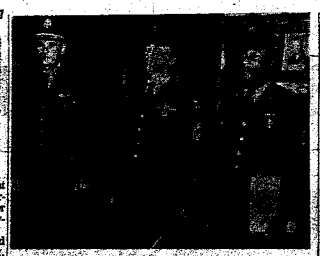
First Sergeant Oliver M. Garner, 2nd Medium Tank Battalion, 69th Armor, signed for six additional years service.

Sergeant First Class Aloysius J. Tomaszak, 13th Transportation Battalion, reenlisted for a period of 4 years in a ceremony at battalion headquarters.

Sergeant First Class William M. Parker Jr., Headquarters Company, 122nd Signal Battalion reenlisted for six years to fill his own vacancy.

Reenlistments for the month of January at the 2nd Engineer Battalion include: Master Sergeant John C. Gray, Headquarters Company, for United States Army Infantry Center; Sergeants First Class Clarence E. Roberts, Company E; Ralph L. Sooby, Company D; Carl Miller, Company B; and Staff Sergeant Mike D. Fox, Company B, all for their own vacancies; Sergeant First Class Alfred J. Schell, Company C, Regular Army unassigned; Sergeant First Class Elroy J. Dorris, Company A, for Edgewood Arsenal, Maryland.

Five recruits at Company C reenlisted for their own vacancies. They were: Recruits Leo F. Duncan; James R. Alston, Belvin W. Carrington, Lloyd E. Cooper, and Ramzy W. Alley.



Departures

Five 9th Infantry noncommissioned officers departed the battle group this week for new assignments in overseas commands.

Sergeant Noverter White, a member of the 9th's Company B, left for his new post in Korea. Three of the NCO's to depart were all assigned to Headquarters Company.

The three men, Sergeants Steve Stevens and Arnold Kessler, and Specialist Fifth Class James Smith, have departed for their new assignments in Germany.

Company A's Sergeant Calvin Moyer left for his new assignment with the 1st Battle Group, 25th Infantry, at Schofield Barracks in Hawaii.

Cadre Arrive To Organize OVUREP Unit

By 87th Inf PIO

The majority of the "B" element of the OVUREP cadre of the 87th Infantry, will have reported in by January 20. The "B" element, with the previously arrived "A" element will comprise the cadre nucleus that will organize, support and carry out the training of new servicemen who will be assigned for the OVUREP cycle.

The officers and men have been arriving at the Kelley Hill site of the 87th Infantry from other units of the 2nd Infantry Division, from the Main Post of Fort Benning, and from all of the six Army areas of the United States. Many are still in transit, but already over 60 officers and 250 enlisted men are present for duty.

Chief Warrant Officer Norwood W. Cratzer, battle group personnel officer, Specialist Fifth Class J. J. Falls, battle group personnel sergeant, and Specialist Fifth Class Marvin Hollowell, assistant personnel sergeant, and the other men of the personnel office have been kept busy days, evenings and weekends processing the new personnel.

These same new personnel, plus the older hands, have plunged into the manifold task of preparing for the OVUREP program.

The mainstay of any unit, recruits fresh from civilian life, and numbering 1020, will begin to arrive February 20. The Basic Combat Training cycle will commence March 4.

A smaller number of officers, the "C" element, will join the battle group after the completion of the Basic Combat Cycle in April.

Rct Played Rock and Roll Wants to Sing Classical

Recruit Leon D. Bonds, now undergoing training with Combat Support Company of the 23rd Infantry has enough musical talents for a one-man band.

Not only is he a singer, and a song writer but he plays the tuba, the bass fiddle, the trombone, baritone horn, trumpet, drums, piano and guitar. "I'm best on the guitar," he explains.

A native of Gloster, Mississippi, Rct. Bonds' first musical love was the guitar which he learned to play when he was thirteen. In high school he learned to play most of the instruments in the school band. He says that playing any musical instrument "just seems to come natural to me."

After graduation from high school, he moved to New Orleans, Louisiana, to take a job as a singer with a seven piece band known as the "Hi Lifers". Within a few months he was "fronting" the band as its leader. The majority of the time, he says, they were "on the road" giving "rock and roll" concerts and playing for dances. Rct. Bond says that one of the worst things that can happen to a band is to be booked into a town to play for a dance and have no one show up to dance. This has happened to him, on occasion, and he says that there is not much cal

Capt. Keebaugh Assigned CO Of 9th's Company C

By 9th Inf. PIO

The 9th Infantry's Company C, recently awarded the Battle Group Commander's trophy, acquired a new company commander this week when Captain Jerry R. Keebaugh replaced Captain Allan J. Francisco.

Captain Francisco headed "Charging Charlie" Company five months. He assumed command of the unit last August. Captain Francisco has been reassigned as the assistant S-3 of the 5th.

Captain Keebaugh comes to the "Keep Up the Fire" battle group from the Infantry School where he recently completed Associate Career Course Number 1 for Infantry officers. His last assignment was with the 8th Aviation Company of the 8th Infantry Division in Germany.

The new 9th Infantry officer has been a qualified aviator in the Army since 1954, when he earned the Army Aviator Badge. All total, he has been piloting aircraft since 1947.

Captain Keebaugh joined the Army as an enlisted man in 1947. He received his commission in 1951. His education includes four years attendance at the University of Maryland. He also took courses at Kansas State University at Manhattan, Kansas.

Captain Keebaugh and his wife have been married seven years. They have two daughters and one son. The family lives in Columbus.

Captain Keebaugh has previously served at such posts as Fort Ord, California; Fort Sill, Oklahoma; Fort Bragg, North Carolina; Fort Riley, Kansas; the 8th Infantry Division in Germany; and Fort Benning.

9th Inf Sgt Winds Up Career; Receives ACM

By 9th Inf. PIO

The 9th Infantry's Master Sergeant Carlos G. Corredor climaxed 20 years of service in the Army January 17 when he received the Army Commendation Medal in a ceremony at the "Keep Up the Fire" unit headquarters.

Honored earlier in the day with other retiring 2nd Division personnel at a Miniature Review in their honor, M-Sgt. Corredor was awarded the commendation medal by 9th Infantry Commander, Colonel James L. Osgard.

In part, the citation for M-Sgt. Corredor reads: "At all times, he insured the combat preparedness of his men through his tireless attention to detail and personal consideration for their welfare."

A native of Cayey, Puerto Rico, M-Sgt. Corredor saw action in World War II and the Korean War. His many ribbons and decorations include the Combat Infantryman's Badge, the Good Conduct Medal (three awards), The Bronze Star, and Army of Occupation Medal (Germany).

He joined the Army in 1941. M-Sgt. Corredor's overseas assignments include Europe, the Far East (Korea), and the Caribbean. He joined the 9th Infantry in January, 1959.

Now only 40 years old as he retires, M-Sgt. Corredor is married and lives on post with his wife, Rufina.

A member of the 9th Infantry's Company A., and Training Committee, the master sergeant retires officially on January 23. During his two years in the "Keep Up the Fire" battle group, M-Sgt. Corredor "Consistently produced the best platoon in his company no matter what kind of cycle was being trained — Basic Combat Trainees, Advanced Individual Trainees, or packet trainees," his commendation reads.

Sergeant Scott Assigned As OVUREP 'First Soldier'

By 87th Infantry PIO

First Sergeant James A. Scott, formerly with the 2nd Infantry Division Noncommissioned Officers Academy, will be the OVUREP "first soldier" of Combat Support Company, 1st Battle Group, 87th Infantry.

Sergeant Scott was recently promoted to the grade of E-8. He was assigned to the NCO Academy following his return from Germany in October 1959. In Germany he had spent four years as an instructor and first sergeant with the Engineer Ordnance School at Murnau.

This March Sergeant Scott will have completed eighteen years in the Army. A native of Monroe, Georgia, he entered the service in 1943 at Fort McPherson, Georgia.

Sergeant Scott shipped to England in the summer of that same year and participated in the Normandy Invasion with the 29th Infantry Regiment.

After the war he returned to Fort Benning. He remained at Fort Benning from the fall of 1945 until December 1952 when he went to Korea.

In Korea Sergeant Scott saw action with 11th Engineer Battalion. He was operations sergeant of Company C until rotated back to the United States and Fort Benning early in 1954. He moved to his school assignment in Germany in September 1955.

Sergeant Scott and his wife Kornellis, reside in Columbus. They plan to make it their permanent home.

Boy Scouts Visit Div Armor Unit On Benning Tour

By 69th Armor PIO

A troop of Boy Scouts from Atlanta Saturday were guests of the 2nd Medium Tank Battalion, 69th Armor while visiting Fort Benning for the day.

After arriving by bus at the armor unit's training area number 6, the scouts were divided into four groups. Two groups of the scouts then took rides in M59 armored personnel carrier while the other groups received a short orientation on the main battle tank of the Army, the M48A1.

Refreshments of hot chocolate and cookies were served.

After their qualifying ride in the personnel carriers, each scout was presented a certificate of an honorary tanker, signed by Lieutenant Colonel Harry H. Halstead, commanding officer of the 2nd Medium Tank Battalion, 69th Armor.

Division Names Lt Col Thompson Provost Marshall

Lieutenant Colonel John Weidell Thompson has been assigned as the 2nd Infantry Division's Provost Marshal.

Lt. Colonel Thompson comes to the 2nd Division from Europe where he was Provost Marshal of the 24th Infantry Division for approximately two years.

A native of Bowman, S. C., he graduated from Clemson College, Clemson, S. C., in 1942 with a bachelor of science degree in education and received his commission through the college's ROTC program. He also attended the Provost Marshal General School in 1943 and 1954.

Lt. Colonel Thompson has served as the Assistant Provost Marshal for the IX Corps, Korea and as chief of criminal investigation, First United States Army Headquarters among his various assignments.

Captain Davis Speights Jr., who has served as Provost Marshal for the past seven months, will become Assistant Provost Marshal for the 2nd Infantry Division.

Cavalry Ladies Host Wives Monthly Lunch

The Officers' Wives Club of the 2nd Infantry Division held its monthly luncheon on Tuesday, January 10, at the Main Officers' Open Mess. The ladies of the 3rd Reconnaissance Squadron, 7th Cavalry were hostesses.

The ladies carried out a blue and white color theme. The guests were met at the door by hostesses dressed in Gypsy costumes. The "Gypsies" were passing out fortunes. Zodiac cartoons were hung about the room emphasizing their theme. Each table in the Main Ball Room was centered by a picture of a zodiac symbol and the dates of the symbol. The head table was centered with a crescent shaped arrangement of blue and white flowers. The decoration committee was headed by Mrs. George A. Griffin and Mrs. Everett J. Oliver. Mrs. Venon H. Isom was in charge of the Sherry committee.

Mrs. Robert E. McGraw presided over a short business meeting at which time the honored guests were introduced: Mrs. Mildred Erdman, Red Cross Field Director; Miss Frances Jones, Red Cross Recreational Director; Mrs. Bryan C. T. Fenton, wife of Colonel Bryan C. T. Fenton, Commanding Officer of Martin Army Hospital; Mrs. Ellen Worrall of Columbus.

Mrs. McGraw introduced Mrs. Curtis F. Livingston, 1st Vice President and Program chairman for the club. Mrs. Livingston in turn introduced Lieutenant Clark F. Butts, 9th Infantry who narrated a History of the U.S. Army with emphasis placed on the role of the American Woman and the part she played in the Army.

Private First Class David Csyani, 9th Infantry, sang a medley of songs commemorating the major wars in which the Army has taken part. He was accompanied by Private Robert Edgarton. Private Edgarton is a pianist with the Division Band.

Sergeant First Class Clay Lacy, 2nd Division Information Office, narrated "I am the Infantry" with Mrs. George Britto narrating "I am a Soldier's Wife." Mrs. Ernest Shelton, 23rd Infantry, and Lt. Daniel W. Caprio, 9th Infantry, were dressed in costumes from the Revolutionary War. The Civil War costumes were worn by Mrs. Bruce Payne, whose husband is with the 1st Infantry, and Sgt. Myrick, Division Trains. World War I was represented by Mrs. Frank Hurray, wife of Lt. Col. Frank Hurray, 23rd Infantry, and Lt. Michael S. Balch, 9th Infantry, who wore costumes of this era. Dress typical of today was worn by Mrs. David Schumacher, whose husband is with the 11th Infantry, and Lt. William M. Barrett, 9th Infantry. The costumes for the ladies from the Revolutionary War, Civil War, and World War I were borrowed from Mrs. Ellen Worrall.

A team of individuals from Main Post Special Services and Second Division assisted with the stage, lighting, and sound. Included in this group are: Lt. Arthur Brook, Sgt. Shaeffer, and Sgt. Russell.

Door prizes were won by: Mrs. James Woodell, Mrs. Arno M. Apel, Mrs. Frank Gundaker, and Mrs. Venon H. Isom.

Farewells were said to the ladies of the 11th Infantry whose husbands will soon be leaving for Korea with the OVUREP battle group.

Cook Of The Week

Creole Weiners is the recipe brought to us this week by Sue Morse, wife of 1st Lieutenant David L. Morse, S-1 Section, 2nd Battle Group, 23rd Infantry. The Morses reside at 298-A Christian Lane with their two children, Ripley age 3 and Michelle age 19 months. Sue's hobby is bridge. She says that this dish is very good for this time of the year as it is so economical.

Creole Weiners

8 slices bacon chopped ½ inch square.
Pan broil until half done. Drain off fat.
Add:
3 cups minced onions
2½ cups cooked tomatoes (No. 2 can)
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 teaspoon chili powder

Place wiemers on top (8) cover and simmer 45 minutes. Stir occasionally. Remove cover and boil 5 to 10 minutes to reduce liquid. 1 weiner and 1 spoonful hot sauce to each bun.

NCO Wives Club Begins '61 With Luncheon By Candlelight

By Mrs. Lawrence W. Smith

The eventful new season of the Ladies of the Big Indianhead swung into high tempo with a candlelit luncheon in the newly-decorated main ballroom of the Sand Hill NCO Open Mess. Seasonal decorations were handled by Mrs. Jimmie S. Farras and Mrs. Joseph Volker.

The club bade farewell to Mrs. Winston Carbonneaux who is accompanying her husband on an Alaskan tour of duty. Mrs. Jesse Jones entered the club as a new member.

A second vice president, Mrs. Farras will act in an advisory capacity to the president in a new appointment. Other personnel changes are in the Hospital Welfare, which Mrs. Edwin Owens will head with Mrs. Thomas Reier as co-chairman.

The club will sponsor contract bridge afternoons for the ladies and evening pinochle tournaments for members and their husbands. Qualified instructors are available for those who wish to learn either game.

Div Initiates Project '61'

By Div. PIO

The Division Troop Information Office, recognizing the difficulty in teaching highly specialized or other hard to prepare topics for Troop Information hours, has initiated a program of guests speakers with prepared programs to conduct Troop Information classes in various units of the division called Project "61."

Representatives of the division general and special staffs and civilian agencies—such as the Columbus Chamber of Commerce and the Better Business Bureau — are slated for Troop Information classes to be held in January, February and March.

This "guest speaker" program, it is hoped, will accomplish the following aims: revitalize interest by all personnel in Information, assist the units in better meeting the particular informational needs of their personnel and finally, to greatly enlarge the scope of subjects available for Troop Information periods.

The Troop Information Office will act as liason between the units and the staff sections or civilian agencies which unit commanders, Troop Information Officers or S-3 sections wish to invite for special classes.

The informational needs of the individual are the prime concern of any Troop Information program. In the past, the scope of our instruction and variety of subjects, has been limited by the preparation time afforded unit instructors and the limited availability of current reference materials on more specialized subjects.

Project "61" is a partial answer to the problems of Troop Information; but, the real solution lies in a complete utilization by all commanders of Troop Information as an implement of their command.

11th Honors Division CG With Review

11th Inf PIO

The 1st Battle Group, 11th Infantry, will conduct a review this afternoon at 4:30 at Essehagger Field in honor of Major General Fredrick W. Gibb and signifying the completion of the Continental United States period of the 11th Infantry's OVUREP cycle.

The Reviewing Officer, General Gibb, commanding general of the 2nd Infantry Division, will present awards to the leaders of the outstanding squads, platoons, and company as determined by the Army Training Test results.

Following the inspection of the "Korea bound" troops, Colonel George D. Patterson, Battle Group Commander, will introduce General Gibb, who will address the battle group.

Lieutenant Colonel Charles K. Blum, Battle Group Executive Officer, will be Commander of Troops. The 2nd Division Band is scheduled for the event.

The reenlistment oath, which took place during one of the hourly breaks, was administered by Lieutenant Albert S. Britt III, Regular Army officer in charge of the National Guard training.

Hopkins Set As OVUREP 1st Sergeant

By 87th Infantry PIO

First Sergeant Harry B. Hopkins Jr., has been assigned as OVUREP First Sergeant of Headquarters Company, 1st Battle Group, 87th Infantry. Sergeant Hopkins came to the 87th Infantry from the Main Post of Fort Benning. There he had been First Sergeant of Headquarters Company, 1st Battle Group, 29th Infantry, since January 1956.

Sergeant Hopkins joined the 87th almost to the day of his fifth anniversary with the 29th. February will mark his sixteenth year in the Army.

A native of Concord, North Carolina he entered the Army at Fort Bragg and took basic training at Fort Knox. Sergeant Hopkins served in Korea with the 17th Infantry in 1954.

He has been a member of the 1st Armored Division at Fort Hood, as ROTC instructor at the University of Texas, and served with the 4th Infantry at Fort Ord, California.

MSgt Given Army Medal

The Army Commendation Medal was presented to Master Sergeant John K. Phillips, Intelligence Sergeant, 11th Infantry, by Colonel George D. Patterson, Battle Group Commander, at a ceremony held in the commanders office January 13.

The award was given for his outstanding service as Operations Sergeant and Troop Requirements Noncommissioned Officer, S3 Section, 1st Infantry Brigade, Fort Benning, during the period August 17, 1959, to November 1,1960.

Major Raymond V. Upton, Battle Group Adjutant, read the citation which stated in part: "Sergeant Phillips demonstrated a high degree of initiative, unusual skill and a thorough knowledge of troop requirements procedures."

Sergeant Phillips is the holder of the World War II Victory Medal, the Korean Service Medal, and three Bronze Campaign Stars. He has been with the "Wanderers" since November 1, 1960.

Married and the father of five children, Sergeant Phillips comes from Fayette, Alabama.

9th's Companies C and E Clash For Intra Battle Group Crown

By 9th Inf. PIO

The 9th Infantry's Companies C and E clash headon tomorrow, January 21, as the only remaining undefeated teams in the 9th's double-elimination company level basketball tournament.

Company C has captured victories over D and Headquarters Companies for a 2-0 mark. Company C crushed Company D 46-16 in the opening round and downed the Headquarters contingent 37-23 January 14.

After drawing a bye in the first round, Company E bounced previously-unbeaten Company B by a 45-33 margin. High scorer for the contest was the loser's Jack Dispennett, their center, with 21 points. Forward George Duncan led Company E's triumph with 19 points.

Company B had opened the company level tourney by downing Company A 41-40 in an overtime thriller. The Company A "five" led 26-15 at the half in that one, but fell before Company B's determined second-half comeback.

In the third contest of the second round, Company D climbed back into competition with a come - from - behind squeaker over Company A. Lead by sharp-shooting guard Turner Fuller, Company D eliminated the squad from Company A 47-46 in the last two minutes of play. Fuller canned 23 points for the winners and team mate Earnest King collected 12, all in the last half.

Company A suffered their second straight one-point defeat, which automatically eliminated them from further play. Center Eugene Bedard, forward John Devlin, and guard Richard Denny each hit the double figures for Company A with 14, 12, and 10 points respectively.

The complete schedule and team records for tomorrow's contests in the 9th Infantry area include:

Company C (2-0) vs. Company E (1-0)

Company C's Pryear leads all scorers in the 9th's tournament with 46 points. Dispennett holds runnerup honors with 36 markers, while Fuller ranks third with 29 points in two contests.

Division Soldier Chosen For All-Army Audition

By Div Arty PIO

Six foot, five inch Private George B. Keller, Headquarters and Headquarters Battery, 2nd Infantry Division Artillery left this week for the try-out on the "all Army" basketball team to be conducted at Presidio of San Francisco, California, starting tomorrow.

Private Keller, prior to reporting for military service attended Findlay College in Findlay, Ohio where he was named as an "All Conference" basketball player for 3 years. During his senior year at Findlay, Private Keller was named as a National Association Inter-Collegiate Athelics All American. In his last year at Findlay Keller averaged 24.6 points per game.

Private Keller was assigned to the 37th Artillery where he took basic combat training, the 18th Artillery for Advanced Individual Training and later assigned to Headquarters and Headquarters Battery, 2nd Infantry Division Artillery as permanent party personnel. He was the starting center of the 2nd Infantry Division Artillery Basketball team until being selected to participate in the "All Army try-outs".

Private Keller makes his home in Findlay, Ohio and hopes to make a career in professional basketball or in the teaching profession upon his release from military service.

Two other bright spots on the CANNONEERS starting five were Albert Long and John Humes. A hard playing, high jumping forward, Humes collected an impressive 17 points, besides clearing the boards of many loose balls.

Long, a ball-hawking guard also netted 17 points. His hard pressing defensive work was felt by the "Always First" five as he stole the ball several times during his tour on the court. Long's one handed push-shot accounted for most of his 17 points, although his hard driving lay-up added a few points to DivArty's total.

Other scorers on the cannoneers' squad were Jack Sanderson and Chester Todd with five and four points respectively.

The brightest spot on the 1st Infantry squad was filled by a glue fingered guard, David Jarrell, who was high point man for his team with a total of 27. The only other man from the "Always First" team to hit double figures was Roy Gordan who had 10 points.

Jarrell, a comparatively short man, did his fair share of rebounding along with Wilber Patterson who netted seven points. Another seven point man for the 1st was Lisril Gafford.

Championships in the Fort Benning Post softball tournament, the Third Army softball tournament, and the 2nd Infantry Division flag football tournament highlighted the sports scene in the 9th Infantry during 1960.

The 9th Infantry battle group softball squad cropped the Fort Benning Championship in August with a stirring 2-1 victory in sixteen innings over Company A, United States Army Infantry School Troop Command. Led by Lieutenant Billy White, now executive officer of the 9th's Company A, the

The 23rd Infantry Company level basketball tournament is gradually coming to an end with only two more games left for most teams. First place is now held by Delta Company with a 4-0 record.

Combat Support Company, now holding the second place slot has all the potential of unseating Delta from its pinnacle of victories and the driving powers of third place Alpha Company have to be contended with.

White Shines

Lieutenant White hurled the 9th to the champion's circle by winning three of the four contests captured by the victors. The 9th bagged the winner's trophy by bouncing the Fort Stewart, Georgia, squad 3 -2 to complete the competition.

Then, with Lieutenant Max Powell, the 9th's Athletic and Recreation officer, showing the way at tailback, the battle group flag football team won eleven games in twelve tries to capture the trophy.

The 9th's softball and football teams weren't the only Manchu members racking up headlines for the battle group in the sports world during 1960, however. In May Willie Williams scored an impressive boxing victory over the Fort Benning post lightweight champion, Eddie Smith, in boxing matches at Bennett Field.

Swimming

In August a pair of 9th Infantry lieutenants from Company B teamed up to capture the 100-meter freestyle relays in the 2nd Division swimming and diving meet at the Harmony Church Pool. Lieutenants Jerome Foelking and George Cochran grabbed top honors in the 100-meter event. Ninth Infantry swimmers finished second in both the 800-meter relays, and the 300-meter relays in the same meet.

Within the battle group on a company level, Headquarters Company snatched the winning plaques in both volleyball and flag football. Combat Support Company nabbed top honors in the company level basketball tourney, while Company D wound up as the battle group softball champs.

The 9th was even represented in the 1960 Olympic Games in Rome, Italy, by Lieutenant Paul J. Beacham. The 1960 National Kayak Singles Champion, Lieutenant Beachem paddled his way to a fifth place finish in the Olympics in the 1,000-meters singles competition.

9th Infantry Cops Opener From Div Trains

By Lt. Nelson Marsh

Spearheaded by center Raymond Vaughn Pryer's 27 points, the 9th Infantry derailed Division Trains 80-43 January 16 in first game play of the 2nd Division basketball tournament at Harmony Church Field House.

With the 6'7" Pryer and forward Eugene Bedard sweeping the backboards clean of rebounds, the "Keep Up the Fire" squad raced to a 35-19 halftime advantage and added 45 more points in the second half.

No less than four 9th Infantry members hit double figures in the contest. Forward Harry Hall netted 16 points, while Bedard canned 15 and forward Paul Askew collected 12.

The one holdover from last year's 9th Infantry team, Hall outhustled the Trains players throughout the entire game. Hall repeatedly stole the ball from his opponents and led fast breaks downcourt. He averaged better than 21 points a game in last year's tournament.

The Manchu "five" jumped into an early 9-0 lead in the first two minutes of play and never were headed after that. The widest margin built up in the first half twice was 18 points. Pryear hit a left-handed hook shot to push the count to 31-13, and a minute later Askew dropped in a jump shot that made the score 35-17.

Bedard led in scoring with nine points at the half, with Hall, Pryear, and Askew grouped together with eight points each.

Pryear, Hall, and guard Jackie Fannon began dropping in two-pointers from all distances to open a 26 point lead midway in the second half at 59-27.

Ninth Infantry coach, Lieutenant Leonard Katsarksy, substituted freely during the entire contest. Only Pryear played the entire 40 minutes for the 9th. Hall came out after 39 minutes of play had elapsed.

Pryear, Bedard, and guard John Devlin pumped in field goals in succession to widen the gap to forty points, 74-34, with four minutes remaining. Trains rallied to narrow the margin to the final 80-43 count.

The 9th Infantry played Separate Battalions last night at Harmony Church. Trains next plays the 1st Infantry on January 23.

23rd Inf Begins News Exchange

By 23rd Inf PIO

Colonel Louis A. Kunzig Jr., battle group commander of the 23rd Infantry, has announced the receipt of correspondence from the battle group commanders of two sister battle groups of the 2nd Battle Group, 23rd Infantry stationed here with the Second Division.

Colonel Kunzig has received letters from both Colonel Herbert C. Hicks Jr., commander of the 1st Battle Group stationed in Alaska and Colonel Joseph A. Kellin Commanding Officer of the 3rd Battle Group, a reserve unit with headquarters in Harlingen, Texas.

This program of interchange of news was initiated by Colonel Kunzig, in the hopes that it will be a continuing one and that the three battle groups of the 23rd Infantry will become more aware of each other.

Each week copies of the "Bayonet" are sent to both the 1st and 3rd battle groups and the 2nd battle group receives a copy of the "Tomahawk" the weekly publication of the 1st battle group. This printed news is supplemented with correspondence between commanders.

23rd Begins Transition In Training

By 23rd Inf PIO

The 23rd Infantry Battle Group Commander, Colonel Louis A. Kunzig Jr., has announced that the "We Serve" unit has begun a gradual transition from the committee system of training to unit training.

Present plans call for the disolving of a major portion of the committee by the end of January and the returning of committee personnel to the companies. Four officers and thirteen enlisted men will remain with the committee to instruct three specialized subjects until the last of February at which time the 23rd Infantry will be entirely under the unit system.

Committee training is a system by which all battle group instructor personnel are centralized under the battle group S-3 and generally specialize in teaching two or three subjects. Under the unit system of training the committee is disbanded and all training is done by the individual unit.

Colonel Kunzig says he feels that not only will the unit system of training mean more individual attention to the trainee, therefore a better trained soldier, but also it will produce a better rounded officer and non-commissioned officer.

9th Greets 165 AITs January 16

By 9th Inf PIO

The 9th Infantry's Company C began training a new cycle of 165 Advanced Individual Trainees January 16 in Military Occupational Specialty 111 (light weapons infantryman).

Colonel James L. Osgard, commander of the 9th Infantry, greeted the new cycle January 16 in Theater Number Seven and welcomed them to the "Keep Up the Fire" unit and the 2nd Infantry Division. Company C's new commander, Captain Jerry Keebaugh, and his officers and noncommissioned officers also were on hand to greet the AIT's.

During the next eight weeks, the company of trainees will be instructed in map and compass work, the caliber .30 automatic rifle, field fortifications, the caliber .45 pistol, the caliber .30 machine gun, the bayonet and hand-to-hand fighting.

A highlight of the welcoming program was the presentation of "I Am the Infantry" for the AIT cycle. This verse of the credo of the Infantry was given by Lieutenant James McKay, a member of the 9th's Training Committee, and Private William Brown, the 9th Infantry's courts and boards clerk. Lieutenant McKay acted as the narrator for the presentation, while Private Brown performed the part of the recitar dressed as the typical infantry combat soldier.

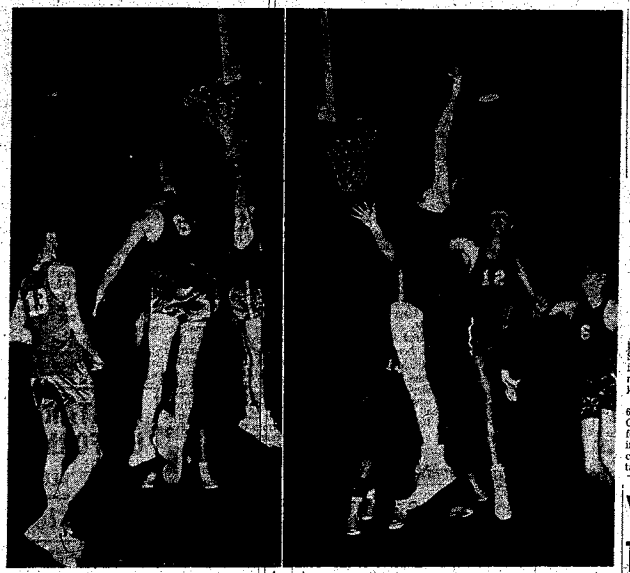
Armor Conducts Tank-Infantry Weapons Attack

Recently the tankers of the 69th Armor unlimbered their short artillery, .30 and .50 caliber machine guns, and shot up a portion of the Fort Benning terrain.

The purpose of the fireworks, was not a demonstration, but rather to show the tankers techniques involved in a tank-infantry combined arms attack.



Realism was injected into the problem by, providing the tankers with live ammunition for their .30 and .50 caliber machine guns, and the infantry with live ammunition for their rifles.

The second platoon of Company C, under the command of Lieutenant Philip E. Hawking, supplied the armor force for the attack. The infantry element was made up from members of the rest of Company C, commanded by Captain Abraham F. Muscara.

Troop Command Holds Top Spot

League leading Infantry Center Troop Command and The Student Brigade copped opening victories in the second round of the Major Unit Basketball loop Monday.

Troop Command notched a 67-41 over the 151st Engineer Group, which was then tied for the sixth spot in the standings, and the Student Brigade crushed the 2nd Howitzer Battalion, 10th Artillery, 75-48. The 10th tied with the engineers for the sixth spot.

In Wednesday evening action, the 1st Battle Group, 29th Infantry was scheduled to meet the Student Brigade in the second evening contest, undefeated Troop Command was slated against the 42th Medical Battalion.

Tonight, the 10th Artillery will meet the 151st Engineers at 6:30 p.m. The Troop Command quintet will face the 1st Armored Rifle Battalion, 58th Infantry at 8 p.m. Both games will be played at Briant Wells Field House.

In last week's action, a grudge match between Troop Command and The Student Brigade was not played. Reportedly the only state-wide swimming competition planned for 1961 involving both boys and girls from eight to 16, according to Col. C. M. Freudendorf, YAC swimming chairman.

Most members of the post team are newcomers to competition, though a sprinkling of veterans who won medals and ribbons at last year's AAU meet spark the team.

Training is conducted at the Briant Wells Field House pool each school day afternoon between 4 and 6 p.m.

All members of YAC who can swim are eligible for the team, and new members are still being urged to sign up.

Coach of the team since its formation last November is Pfc Bert Mangrum. Mangrum is going overseas this month, and the team has been seeking a new coach, Col. Freudendorf said.

Interested young swimmers and adults with coaching ability are requested to contact YAC or Col. Freudendorf at 5-4802.

1961 Marksmanship Program Shows Growth

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

International Matches To Include All Services For First Time

Army small arms competition will reach a new peak at Fort Benning in 1961, according to Lt. Col. Burton C. Boatright, match executive.

Rifle, pistol and automatic rifle teams of The Infantry Center's major commands are already in intensive preparation for competition in the annual program.

Unit and battle group-level matches have been completed and teams are practicing for The Infantry Center Rifle, Pistol and Automatic Rifle Championships slated for March 6 to 11.

However, actual competition will begin today when Match Headquarters will conduct the National Rifle Association's Sectional Indoor Pistol Championships, the first of a series of NRA matches which will receive Benning support this year.

Next on the Match Headquarters agenda will be the NRA Junior Sectional Rifle Matches to be fired Jan. 28 and 29.

Listed to follow the USAIC championships is the competition between marksmen of the Army Advanced Marksmanship Unit and their Air Force counterparts from Lackland Air Force Base, Texas, March 13 to 17.

On March 28 the First Annual Interservice International Matches will open and will continue until April 2 as the first full-scale competition of this type ever held by the Armed Forces. Top flight marksmen from the Army, Navy, Air Force, Marine Corps and Coast Guard will shoot over six courses of fire.

The Third Army Rifle, Pistol and Automatic Rifle Championships will open April 3. Marksmen from all major commands of the Third Army area, including its two Army Reserve Corps, will shoot for Third Army laurels.

The NRA's Spring Handgun Championships will be shot from April 14 to 16 while on June 5 the opening guns of the annual "All Army" Championships will blast, with firing continuing until June 15.

All competition will be under the control of Match Headquarters. At least nine Infantry Center ranges will be used for the sessions.

This Wife's Little Gun Gives Husband the Bird

BY MSGT CHARLIE QUINN

One post soldier is still bluer than the wattles of the wild tom gobbler he had recently for dinner.

An avid turkey hunter, MSgt Den Beers, Martin Army Hospital staff, planned to get his quota of one gobbler but duty prevented his joining the hunting party.

His wife, the former Dorothy Richardson of Manchester, N. H., went instead and was the only one of the party of four to bring down one of America's most wily and highly prized game birds — a big, old 15-pounder. Only three had been previously shot on the reservation all season.

"She got him with her .410 gauge shotgun, yet," reported Sgt. Beers ruefully, "and loaded with a charge of, No. 6 shot on top of that."

Experts at the game say that a 12 or 16 gauge gun with a heavy load of No. 2's or 4's is almost mandatory for such hunting.

Mrs. Beers, however, did the job neatly with her little gun, her husband admitted.

Bowlers Drop First Eglin Meet

The post bowling team dropped the first half of a match with the keglers from Eglin Air Force Base last Saturday, losing out by 25 pins.

Local bowlers have a chance to come from behind tomorrow when they take to the road and meet the Air Force team once again.

Sgt. Jack Kiggins rolled the high individual game for the Benning squad, with a 225 single game. He also rolled the second-high series with a 610.

A newcomer to the team, Major Mazick Rahaim, bowled the high series with a 613. Major Rahaim also rolled the second-high individual game with a 223.

In total pinfall, Eglin has a 25 pin lead over the Benning bowlers, 2758-2733. Benning rolled games of 913, 913 and 907 while the Air Force keglers tipped games of 910, 928 and 920 for their leading margin.

One week from tomorrow the bowlers host the team from Warner Robins Air Force Base for the second and final meeting between the two.

Columbus High Powder-Puff Football Tonight

Three Columbus High School girls from Fort Benning will participate in the annual Powder-Puff football game at Memorial Stadium tonight. The game is sponsored by the senior class.

Sam McDowell, a senior from the post, is chairman of the halftime show committee. The halftime ceremonies will feature the high school band and vocal group.

All approaches to Johnson's Pond will be taken by post anglers Sunday for their annual catches of rainbow trout.

Twelve hundred fish from eight to over 12 inches have been stocked in the little pond by the Fish and Game Maintenance Association and will be fit for the frying pan Sunday when the pond opens for the season.

A major change made over the rules of other years permits use of artificial lures only and corn, cheese, worms and all other such baits will be barred from Johnson's this year.

Fishing will legally commence at sunrise and each angler will be permitted a bag of six trout.

For those who've never been out at Johnson's I'd like to say that the going is rough. Located out near the intersection of Shimanski and Cactus trails, the pond is almost inaccessible in rainy weather.

A skilled flycaster might be able to control his backcast well enough to drop his lure where he wants it to go but there's a lot of brush on the banks which present a problem for up duks. The pond is so small that a strong wrist could snap a spinning lure to almost any opposite bank so tiny spinners and light spinning line might be the best bet.

If this year's fish are as good as those North Georgia trout supplied by state officials in the past you're in for some fine eating . . . and don't think that hatchery-bred fish aren't capable of putting up a fight.

One fat fella hung himself on my hook last year and, though I tried to steer him through the water weeds, all he needed to get away was one flick of his tail against the weed bed.

The water at Johnson's is as clear as crystal in dry weather and is the only water on the post worthy of trout planting. There might be other springs but none of them stand up in the dry season.

It's said that trout won't propagate in the pond, perhaps because the rainbow wants cold, fast water running over gravel as his nursery and Johnson's flow isn't to his liking. However, the annual planting is carried out with the idea of giving trout-hungry post anglers a full-scale lick at their favorite chow.

Wild Life Aides will be at the pond to direct the proceedings for, if the weather's nice, you may have to fish in platoons — a deal which will really take some directing. . .and good fishing.

PFC YOUNG

Pfc Allen C. H. Young, assigned to the Mortar and Surveillance Department of the Infantry Board, hails from the 50th state. His athletic achievements date back to his high school days when, as a student at Roosevelt High School, Honolulu, he was selected for the All-Hawaii interscholastic all - star basketball team in 1952 and 1953.

On graduating, he attended the University of Hawaii where he was active in varsity baseball, basketball, track and swimming. In addition he also competed in intramural sports in volleyball and football.

While at the university Pfc Young was named "Athlete of the Year," due to his prowess on the basketball court, in 1957. Upon graduation Young, a four-year letterman, joined the "50th Staters," a professional basketball team. With this team he played against the Harlem Globe Trotters on tours that took him to almost every state including Alaska and to Mexico and Canada.

It was on one of these tours, while he was en route to Europe, that he was drafted into the Army. His first tour was in Korea, where in 1959, as captain and coach, he led the 76th Engineer Battalion to the Eighth Army and All-Pacific Area Championship in touch football.

He was also voted the league's most valuable player.

During basketball season, with the same unit, as captain and coach, he led the basketball team to the Runner-up position for the Eighth Army championships. Again he was voted the league's most valuable player.

Transferred to the Infantry Board in October, 1960, Pfc Young's athletic ability greatly aided the Board to win the Post Volleyball Championship and become runners-up for the basketball championship in the recent Holiday Sports Carnival.

Game of Horseshoes

AFPS) — Of all the forms of sport and recreation that have been devised by soldiers for off-duty hours, one of the with little thought of its origin, is pitching horseshoes.

The passing of the horse cavalry greatly depleted the supply of shoes for the sport. Yet these days practically every base, large or small, has horseshoe pits.

The game originated with troops in the rear echelons of the Roman army in about 200 B.C., making it one of the oldest sports we know. The game evolved from an older but equally well known sport, discus throwing. Unable to buy the expensive hand tooled discus, the troops used cast off shoes from their horses.

Due to a difference in weight, the shoes were soon being thrown for accuracy rather than distance, and the game as we know it was on its way. Its military popularity has lasted and it was listed as the number three sport of American troops during World War II.

It took a war, in fact, to introduce the game to the United States.

Pistol Matches Starting Today

The annual cycle of competitive marksmanship for 1961 opens here today when eight major pistol teams from the Southeast begin the three-day National Sectional Indoor Pistol Matches.

The shoot, sponsored by the post Rifle and Pistol Club, will see 90 marksmen vie for national indoor honors. It is one of some six sectional matches established by the NRA and usually accounts for national records and championships each year.

Competing in the matches will be Army teams from Benning, Marine Corps teams from Albany, Ga., Coast Guard Reserve teams from Atlanta, Air Force teams from Warner Robins Air Force Base, teams from Atlanta's civilian River Bend Gun Club and a team of guards from the Atlanta Federal Penitentiary.

Official referee for the event will be Capt. (Ret.) Virgil Coart, while MSgt. Thomas Kirkman will be executive officer.

Sectional honors will be decided at the matches, results of which will be forwarded to the NRA for comparison with scores from other sectional matches and subsequent awarding of the national honors.

Firing will be with 22 caliber weapons on the 50-foot Indoor Range of the Advanced Marksmanship Unit.

The same range will be taken over on the following weekend when junior riflemen from the southeastern area will compete in the 1961 NRA Junior Indoor Small Bore Rifle Sectional Tournament January 28 to 29.

Sixty - four young shooters from five Georgia schools and from the post will shoot in their sectionals which also call for sectional and national awards.

Listed for entry are teams from the Gordon Junior Military College, Barnesville, Ga., Baker, Columbus and Jordan High Schools, Columbus, and the Robert E. Lee High School, Thomaston, Ga. Post entries will consist of a senior boys', a junior boys' and a girls' team.

Col. G. H. Huppert, deputy chief, Combat Development Office, The Infantry School, will be executive officer.

Tennis

Americans Dominate Matches

Frank Froehling of Coral Gables, Fla., defeated John Newcombe of Australia in the semifinals of the Orange Bowl Junior Tennis Championships and assured the U. S. of a winner for the first time in four years.

Carol Ann Prosen of Orlando, Fla., defeated Judy Alvarez of Tampa for the girls' 18 and under title. Maria Salvidea of Mexico City won over Margie Cooper of North Miami Beach for the girls' 11 and under crown.

Dangerous Player

When asked to comment on former All - American West Point halfback Pete Dawkins, an Oxford University coach said, "Dawkins is a much improved player since his meteoric rise to a blue (varsity letter) last year. Now he knows more about the game, is more alive to the requirements of defense and still retains a devastating power dash which, with his athletic build, makes him a danger to all defense.

Radar, Radio and Otter Help Civilian Aircraft in Trouble

Lawson Army Aviation Command recently demonstrated the value of its ground controlled approach equipment and readiness of its pilots to assist civilian pilots in trouble.

Two light civilian planes were caught above a solid overcast north of Columbus, according to the Federal Aeronautics Administration radio station. One pilot, a doctor, had no instrument training, and the other plane was fabric covered and not accurately located by radar.

Sfc Roy R. Lawson of the 70th Airfield Operating Detachment took the station at the GCA equipment and began a radar search for the craft, and Capt. Robert V. Atkinson, commander of the unit, joined 1st Lt. George R. McNutt, pilot, and Sgt. William E. Brantley, crew chief, in an Army Otter to fly up to assist the pilots in trouble.

Though one of the original craft made a safe emergency landing at Muscogee County Airfield, the 1st Aviation Company Otter contacted the plane carrying the doctor, his family and passengers and led them to a safe landing with the help of radio and GCA set.

While engaged in this rescue, another light plane was reported in the same situation north of Columbus, and the Otter made another trip to safely bring it down also at Lawson.

The last call for assistance involved an instrument trained pilot, but his radio had completely failed. Guided by the Otter, the pilot made a safe landing.

New Washington Mural Called World's Longest

(AFPS) — Art has gone underground in Washington and the result is expected to prove to be the world's longest if not largest mural.

On the rough concrete walls of a 160-yard long tunnel connecting two buildings of the Organization of American States, a young Uruguayan artist has been painting the history of the 21 American republics.

Self taught artist Carlos Paez Vilaro of Montevidio, expected to have the mural completed by the end of 1960. He has been assisted in his work by some 40 artists from the Washington area.

The mural portrays the growth of the Americas from symbolic seeds sown by the great men of the 21 republics, from Argentina's Jose de San Martin to Venezuela's and Columbia's Simon Bolivar, including George Washington and Thomas Jefferson for the United States.

On the walls facing the 480-foot mural will be inscribed excerpts from declarations by the founders of the Americas.

Nine hundreds pounds of paint and 400 paint brushes, contributed by a Uruguayan paint manufacturer, have been used in the mural. Vilaro's volunteer helpers, wielding the brushes, filled in the master's designs according to numbers and in assembly line fashion. As the artist outlined each detail, a helper applied the paint from a can numbered from 1 to 300 for which there is a corresponding number chalked on the wall of the tunnel.

The Surgeon Says

How To Prevent Cold Injuries

BY MAJOR ROBERT H. QUINN

Cold injury is produced by prolonged exposure to cold weather and includes such entities as immersion foot, trench foot, and frostbite. The severity of the injury depends upon the degree of the cold, the duration of the exposure and the environmental factors which intensify the effect of the low temperature.

Cold injury is of primary concern to the military forces. These injuries incapacitate the fighting man for long periods and in some instances render him ineffective for further duty. The more common injuries are to the feet when they are wet from water immersion and sweat.

The term frostbite is applied when chrystallization of tissue fluids occurs in the skin or tissues during freezing and below freezing temperatures. Exposure can be only a few minutes or several hours.

PREVENTION

To prevent cold injury of the feet, it is important that the feet be kept dry. Frequent changing of socks is recommended because of the fact that socks, especially wool socks, absorb moisture from the feet.

Avoid wearing "skin tight" socks and tightly laced boots. This tends to constrict and prevent normal circulation of blood to the feet. Bathe and dry the feet as often as possible.

It is important to have them clean and dry in order to prevent cyrstallization of the tissues.

It is imperative to conserve body heat as much as possible. This can be accomplished by wearing appropriate clothing and taking mild exercise to facilitate circulation of the blood.

Some victims of cold injury may have no physical or visual symptoms or warning signs. Usually, there is an uncomfortable sensation of coldness followed by numbness.

You may feel a tingling, stinging, aching sensation or even a cramping pain. The skin first becomes red, then it becomes pale or waxy white. The affected area, when frozen, is without feeling "like a stump or like a block of wood." Rewarming can be effected by walking, rubbing or other physical activity.

DEGREE OF INJURY

FIRST DEGREE — After the affected part has been rewarmed, the skin turns blue or purple, then becomes red, hot and dry. Swelling begins within three hours and the edema (fluid) persists for 10 or more days; this is less if the patient is confined to complete bed rest. Excessive sweating and coldness of the injured part may persist for months.

SECOND DEGREE — Excessive blood and fluid in injured areas are easily manifestations. Within 11 to 24 days after rewarming, the skin of the affected area turns black.

Excessive sweating persists for some time and the skin is soft, thin and easily injured.

THIRD DEGREE — This involves thickening of the fuel skin leading to ulceration. Buring, aching and throbbing or shooting pains occur which last three to five weeks. The skin of the affected area forms a black, hard, dry moss of dead tissue. After a period of 68 days, healing occurs, however sweating and blueness of he skin remains for some time.

FOURTH DEGREE —There is destruction of the entire thickness of the affected part, including the bone, which results in lass of the injured part by amputation. This may reach as high as the knee in trench foot.

TREATMENTS

Treatments of cold injury vary depending on the severity and circumstances involved. The best way to treat cold injury is to prevent it! This can be done by using the following preventive measures:

Be well protected from cold weather.

Bathe regularly.

Do not wear tight fitting clothes, or socks and boots that tend to impede circulation.

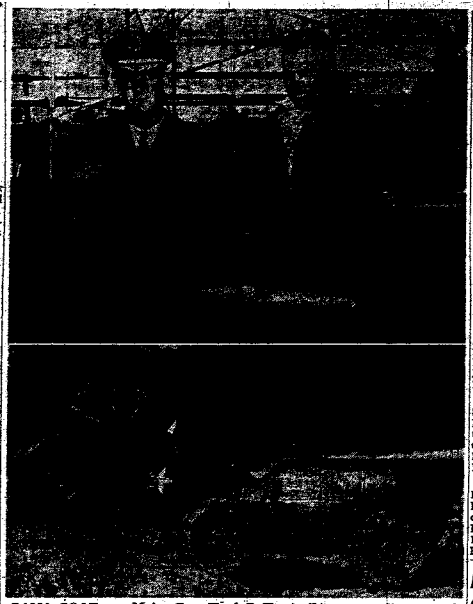
Change socks frequently.

Keep feet and hands dry.

Wear clean under clothing as well as outer clothing.

Do not stand or lie down for long periods of time.

Exercise mildly to facilitate the circulation of blood.



Maintain a proper diet.

Exercise common sense.

Brigade Answers Emergency Call For Blood Needs

Approximately 350 enlisted men and officers of the 1st Infantry Brigade have been commended for their prompt response to an urgent call for blood donors from the Atlanta Regional Blood Center last week.

According to John A. Cramer, American Red Cross field director at the post, the emergency was due to a blood shortage at the center. The Brigade was singled out for the emergency appeal in view of its past interest and blood donor record.

Presidents, Families Proud of White House

(AFPS) — "Strangely, my husband and I have lived in this home longer than in any other."

The words were those of an Army wife, Mrs. Dwight D. Eisenhower, on taking leave of the presidential mansion where she has lived for the past eight years — the White House, "national symbol and private residence" in the words of one of its historians.

President John F. Kennedy and his family, moving into the handsome mansion, will occupy a residence that has seen 32 American families come and depart, and none of them has failed to be moved by its serene beauty.

"There is a wonder about living here which has never grown dim," Mrs. Eisenhower wrote as her husband's presidency drew to a close. "I have always looked upon it with a reverence and pride which I am sure all Americans share."

The White House has borne the stamp of every U. S. President — even George Washington, for although he never lived in it our first Chief Executive chose its site and approved its design. Since it was first occupied by John Adams and his family in 1800, it has been altered, expanded and rebuilt twice until today it has a total of 150 rooms and a staff of 70.

"I never forget," President Franklin D. Roosevelt said, "that the house I live in belongs to all the people." Today the White House averages a million visitors a year, for the historic first floor is open to the public at certain hours.

Its first floor rooms, furnished in styles of the 18th and 19th centuries, cannot be changed even by the President unless the presidentially appointed Fine Arts Commission gives its approval.

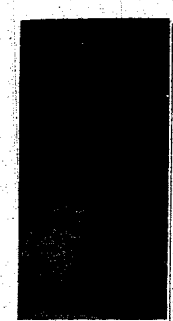
This Week In History



January 20, 1813 — A bounty of $24 was awarded to every soldier who, after February 1, enlisted in the Army for five years or the duration of the war.

January 23, 1940 — An entire battalion was sent airborne for the first time in American history. Regular Army troops were flown 500 miles in 38 bombers, deep into the territory of a synthetic enemy.

January 25, 1951 — The first UN Counteroffensive Campaign was begun. Operation Thunderbolt proceeded against stiffening resistance until February 9. Elements of X Corps reached Wonju and captured Hoengsong.

January 26, 1945 — British and American troops joined at Aachen.

The Male Bag
DEAR SARGE

DEAR SARGE: I'm so happy I just have to write about this. Last week I met a very lovely and sweet girl. I'm a sergeant, past forty, and have stayed pretty close to the barracks in the past. I don't claim to be an operator, but the very first night I met this girl she invited me out to the best place in town to dine and I bought her the finest steak in the house. It has been like that every evening since we met. The most wonderful thing is that last night she offered to let me give her a few hundred dollars to help with her sick mother she has been telling me keeps her so tied down. How do you like that for treatment?

HELPER

DEAR SARGE: I'm an Army specialist, and am married. We recently moved into an apartment house and the neighbor across the hall seems to watch everytime I come in with a little beverage. I'm not home a half-hour before he is over and ready to join me. The worse part is that his wife works nights and everytime he gets a few drinks under his belt he tries passes at my wife. Neither of us appreciate him coming over. What can I do about this situation?

UNHAPPY

UNHAPPY: Make sure the door is open when you toss him out. No use paying for damaged property.

DEAR SARGE: The soldier I have been going with for several months is a devoted camera fan. He tells me I have a very photogenic figure and asked me to pose for him in my altogether. Do you think this would be right?

MODEL

DEAR SARGE: I'm a WAC private, and am frequently told I'm very attractive. My problem is a captain here who has been trying to date me for several weeks. He is very handsome and I think I could go for him. Do you think it would be proper for me to date an officer?

WAC

WAC: I wouldn't let the tracks hold me back.

Know Your Supergrades

MSgt Boron W. Pait of the 3d Transportation Battalion, Lawson Army Aviation Command, first entered the service in September, 1927 at Charleston, S. C. He took basic training in the Panama Canal Zone with the 33d Infantry Regiment.

He was first assigned at Benning in 1940 as an instructor at The Infantry School immediately after completing an automotive course at The School. After remaining here with the school until 1944, he was next assigned to Camp Maxie, Texas, also as an instructor.

From late in 1945 until September, 1949, he served as a recruiter in Kansas City, Mo., and a National Guard Advisor in the Fifth Army area.

Discharged in 1949, he remained out of uniform until April, 1953, when he again saw duty at The School, this time as an automotive shop foreman.

MSGT PAIT

Overseas in late 1954, he served as first sergeant of Headquarters Company, 151st Engineer Battalion in Korea until the unit was returned to the states and deactivated. He remained in Korea and was next assigned as first sergeant of Headquarters Company, 11th Engineer Battalion.

Back in the States in August, 1955, Sgt. Pait had several assignments as first sergeant, section chief and line chief before joining the newly activated 10th Helicopter Company here as line chief.

He was promoted to E-8 in October, 1960, and is presently assigned as operations sergeant in the 3d Transportation Battalion.

Though originally a native of North Carolina, Sgt. Pait now calls Columbus, Ga., his home town, and plans to remain here.

Sgt. Ross; Men Make TV Lounge

With the help of the men from his platoon, and the consent of company officials, Sgt. M. Ross, of Headquarters Company, The Student Brigade, created a place to relax with TV, books, or to entertain friends, in their own platoon area.

To make the lounge, they constructed a red brick fireplace from crating materials and collected furniture from various parts of the company.

The Student Brigade insignia completed the wall decorations, and pictures on the mantle finished the scene.

Throughout his Army career, Sgt. Ross has added similar improvements to his quarters, much to his satisfaction and that of others.

His present project has been of interest to personnel all over the post.

Sky-Diver Jumps In California

Sfc Lewis Kaw, Headquarters Company, 1st Armored Rifle Battalion, 58th Infantry, 1st Infantry Brigade, is a member of the Fort Benning Sports Parachute Club, but not an Army-trained Parachutist.

In February, 1960, while in Korea, Sgt. Kaw joined the newly formed 7th Infantry Division Sports Parachute Club, where, under the direction of club instructors, he took 30 hours of ground training and five static line jumps before making his first free fall.

Sgt. Kaw also participated in the Far East Sports Parachute Meet in September of last year.

Enroute to Fort Benning from Korea, Sgt. Kaw made several free fall jumps with the Para-Ventures in Elisnore, Calif.

SO RIGHT

It seems to us that heads, hearts and hands would settle the world's differences much better than arms. — Construction Digest.

Little John Units Will Be Activated

(AFPS) — The first Little John surface-to-surface missile battalions will be activated early this year at Fort Sill, the Army has announced.

The two units are the 1st Missile Battalion, 18th Artillery, and the 1st Missile Battalion, 57th Artillery. Each will have four Little John launchers.

OC Chomko

He Says Army Gave Him a Big Chance

Officer Candidate John Chomko says he feels very fortunate to be a student in the 52nd Company, 5th Student Battalion, The Student Brigade, mainly because, prior to 1949, while living in Poland, the opportunity to come to the U. S. seemed very slim.

At the beginning of World War II, OC Chomko and his parents were separated, with OC Chomko being adopted by an Austrian family, and his parents forced into conscript labor.

He stayed with the Austrian family until the end of the war, when he was reunited with his parents. In 1949, he and his family immigrated to the States.

After finishing two years at Columbia University, OC Chomko, then a New Jersey National Guardsman, applied for the Infantry Officer Candidate School. His acceptance at OCS was again a living example to him that the Army is the "Place of Opportunity" for those willing to apply themselves.

Hawaiian Slope Radiation Study

(AFPS)—A special solar radiation study is being conducted on the slope of Hawaii's 13,000-foot volcano, Mauna Loa, by Signal Corps meteorologists from the U.S. Army Electronic Proving Ground, Fort Huachuca, Ariz.

Using a new type of pyrheliometer, an instrument which measures the sun's radiant energy by predetermined wave length bands, the team will gather data for the Army Quartermaster Research and Engineering Command.

A Dirty Trick

Freedom's Cities

A Proud Star-Spangled Baltimore Is Still Glowing

Baltimore, one of the greatest of U.S. seaports, bears the proud name of the English baron who sent settlers to colonize Maryland in 1634. By 1661 there was a settlement on the city's present site, but the town of Baltimore was not founded until 1729 as a port for tobacco shipping to England.

Among Freedom's Cities, Baltimore claims an illustrious place. The first Lord Baltimore planned it as a refuge for Roman Catholics, but he died before he could see his dream realized and it was his son who carried out the project.

Baltimore's role in the Revolution was a gallant one—she was, in fact, the nation's capital for two months after the Continental Congress moved from Philadelphia under threat of British capture. But the city's most colorful and dramatic moment in the nation's early years came during the War of 1812 when the British fleet was shelling Fort McHenry in Baltimore Harbor.

The British were holding an American, Dr. William Beanes, prisoner aboard a warship in Chesapeake Bay. U.S. Secretary of State James Monroe had given permission to a lawyer, Francis Scott Key, to try to effect Beanes' release. So Key was on the scene, in a U.S. vessel held by the British, when they began their bombardment on September 13, 1814.

It lasted all day and most of the night. Fort McHenry was enveloped in haze and smoke. Key, pacing the deck, knew that the fort's guns were small and its defenders few. Sleepless, hour after hour he peered into the blinding, billowing murk.

Then at 7 a.m. there was a break in the mist, and Key saw a glorious sight — the American flag still flying over the fort. It moved him to compose the words of "The Star Spangled Banner" on the spot. A few days later, set to the tune of "To Anacreon in Heaven," an old English drinking song, the anthem was publicly sung in Baltimore and gained immediate popularity.

Today Fort McHenry is a Baltimore landmark and a favorite of visitors to the city. Over its walls—and over Key's grave at Frederick, Md.,—the American flag is kept flying continuously.

Baltimore, by the time the young nation was fighting its second war, had become a leading shipbuilding port, partly because the Revolution had increased the demand for ships. It also had stimulated privateering as a profitable venture. Chesapeake Bay shipbuilders by 1812 had developed the Baltimore Clipper, a small, fast vessel that was heavily armed and took a high toll of British merchant shipping.

As a result of these raids, Baltimore in British eyes was "a nest of pirates" and it was to eliminate the costly nuisance that the abortive effort to take the city by land and sea was launched. But, while Ft. McHenry held firm in the harbor, the Baltimore militia beat off the enemy in the Battle of North Point.

In the postwar years the city developed a lusty, brawling character that gained it the nickname of "Mob Town." It also showed a fondness for elaborate official celebrations. Lafayette, visiting Baltimore in 1824, was greeted with pomp at Fort McHenry in George Washington's Army tent, borrowed from Mt. Vernon for the occasion. At 67, the aging hero must have been worn out by the four days of balls, receptions, dinners and parades that followed.

Outbreak of the Civil War put the eyes of the nation on Baltimore, for the first blood of that conflict was shed in its streets. On April 19, 1861, the 6th Massachusetts Regiment was passing through the city to entrain for Washington. Baltimore, as the largest border state city, had enjoyed prosperous trade with the South and Confederate sympathies ran high. A mob attacked the Union troops and in the resulting fracas lives were lost on both sides. As a result, the city was put under martial law.

If Baltimore has fewer monuments to her historic past than other Freedom's Cities, it is not through neglect or demolition of them. In February 1904 the city was swept by a raging fire which in two days engulfed 73 city blocks, wiped out 1,343 buildings and caused property damage estimated at more than $150 million. When the area was rebuilt it lost much of its colonial atmosphere.

Nevertheless, Baltimore has the name of the Monumental City — not because of the number of its monuments, but because the first monument to George Washington was raised here in 1829. A handsome Doric column, topped by a marble statue, it still stands today at the intersection of Charles and Monument Streets.

Dependents Religious Instruction

Military dependents interested in the course may attend instruction on either Thursday at 3:30 p.m. or Saturday at 11 a.m. throughout the next ten weeks.

Parents interested in Lutheran confirmation classes for their children are asked to telephone Chaplain (1st Lt.) Carl E. Lucky Jr., at 5-2422. For information concerning Episcopal confirmation classes, telephone Chaplain (Major) Harry G. Campbell Jr., at 5-2621.

Those desiring to enter their children in the general Protestant classes are asked to complete forms which have been distributed to parents and send their dependents to either the Thursday or Saturday classes.

Instruction in the classes will be conducted by Chaplains (Capt.) Richard I. Carty and (Capt.) Kermitt Johnson.

Judy & Tracy Harrison's teen talk...

The big news this week was the March of Dimes Walkathon; Pacelli High School, consisting of 140 students, beat the other three high schools in the area last Sunday with over $2,000.

Its nearest opponent in the race was Columbus High School. The big walk to Cusseta and back ended with PHS eight cents over CHS on the first report released from the March of Dimes Headquarters. PHS deserves much praise for winning this drive with their "get-out-and-get-'em" attitude.

COLUMBUS

The Powder-Puff football game, sponsored by the senior class at CHS will take place tonight. Both teams have had rigid practice sessions and we are expecting a most entertaining evening.

There will be a half time program, with the senior boys giving a contest for the girl gridders. Kick-off time is set for 8 p.m. at Memorial Stadium.

Superlatives were chosen last week, with the results to be printed in 'Blue Streak'.

The CHS annual Minstrel will be presented soon. Kay Jons from Fort Benning has been selected to participate.

PACELLI

PHS has been hard at work for several weeks in preparing for the Walkathon, in which, as we have already stated, they took first place.

Some of their money-making projects for the March of Dimes were a sophomore-junior powder-puff football game in which the juniors won, 6-0; a car wash, sponsored by the sophomore class; a girl - boy basketball game, played by girls' basketball rules and with the boys having one hand tied behind their backs (the weaker sex won this event, it seems).

An Ugliest Person Dance is to be held in the near future. Money for the March of Dimes was donated by students contributing pennies to his candidate. Nickie Taylor, a Benningite, was one of the candidates.

Semester exams began last week for all Pacellians.

BAKER

This year BHS claims the "Boy of the Year," senior Jim Tilton. This award is given each year to the outstanding boy in the Columbus area by the Optimist Club of Columbus.

The Junior Civitan Club is holding a dance tomorrow evening at the National Guard Army on Victory Drive. Fun should be had by all who attend.

SOCIAL NOTES

JADA, the junior chapter of the Daughters of the U. S. Army, is helping DUSA in the annual 49er Party. As usual, JADA will have its booth, where garters, octopi, gold dust bags and white elephants will be sold.

The girls are working hard on their committees with hopes that this annual affair will be as successful as the previous year's was. Ask your parents to go to the 49er Party and support JADA.

The only private party we've heard of was Dallas Patterson's, which was held earlier this month.

And Flying Cars

Sojourners Name New Officers

SOJOURNERS . . . Chaplain (Major) James H. Fiser was installed recently as the new president of the post chapter of the National Sojourners during ceremonies at the Main Officers' Open Mess.

Fort Benning Chapter 8 of the National Sojourners held its annual installation of officers at the Main Officers' Open Mess last week.

New officers for the coming year are Chaplain (Major) James H. Fiser, president; CWO William D. Eaby Jr., first vice-president; Col. Milton G. Schneider, second vice-president; Chaplain (Capt.) Richard I. Carty, third vice-president, and Capt. James B. Edsall, secretary-treasurer.

Other officers installed were Lt. Col. (Ret.) Clyde M. Thornhill, new installing officer; Major Fiser, commander; Lt. Col. Howard F. Mumford, chief of staff, and Capt. Edsall, adjutant. .

Post Officers

20 Will Attend Advance Schools

Seventeen post officers have been selected to attend the regular officers course at the Command and General Staff College in August.

In addition, Major Gordon E. Williams, Ranger Department, The Infantry School, will attend the Pakistan Staff College and Capt. Awbrey G. Norris, commander of Combat Support Company, 1st Battle Group, 29th Infantry, 1st Infantry Brigade, and Capt Robert Arter, Department of Non-Resident Instruction, Infantry School, will enter the Air University, Maxwell Air Force Base, Ala., next fall.

Assigned to the Command and General Staff College are Capt. Phillip Kaplan, Ranger Department; Capt. Ernest F. Conding, Ground Mobility Department, USAIS; Capt. Charles B. Lee, Major Harold D. Finney, and Capt. Wilber A. Ross all of the Command and Staff Department, USAIS.

Capt. Richard J. Barbero, Department of Non-Resident Instruction; Capt. Harold E. Dill, Airborne-Air Mobility Department, USAIS; Capt. John D. Yarbrough, and Capt. John W. McNally, both of Weapons Department, USAIS.

Capt. Paul R. Lunsford, Editorial and Pictorial Office, USAIS; Capt. Bobby J. Harris, and Capt. William P. Tyson Jr., both of the Special Subjects Department, USAIS.

Major Charles M. Honour Jr., commander of the 1st Aviation Company, and Capt. Kenneth J. Burton motor officer of the 3rd Transportation Battalion, both of Lawson Army Aviation Command, and Major John F. Georger of S-2, Capt. Charles E. Rich, S-4, and Capt. Raymond F. Singer, S-3, of the 1st Battle Group, 29th Infantry, all of the 1st Infantry Brigade.

All of the officers are Infantry with the exception of Capt. Lee and Capt. Burton, who are Artillery, and Capt. Tyson, who is a member of the Judge Advocate General's Corps.

Gen. Bernier; Dental Chief To Visit Post

Major Gen. Joseph L. Bernier, chief of the Dental Corps, Department of the Army, will visit here January 23-24.

Touring Third Army dental installations, Gen. Bernier is expected to arrive at Lawson at 1:15 p.m. Monday. He will be accompanied by Col. R. E. Hannaersberg, Third Army dental surgeon.

Military honors at the field will be rendered by The Infantry Center.

Gen. Bernier will inspect dental facilities of the post and address dental officers at Martin Army Hospital.

Col. Stuart M. Mitchell, post dental surgeon, will be host at a reception and dinner honoring Gen. Bernier at 7 p. m. Monday evening at the Custer Terrace Branch of the Main Officers' Open Mess.

January 24 Gen. Bernier will visit Major Gen. Hugh P. Harris, commanding general of The Infantry Center, before his departure for Fort Bragg.

Major Frazier On TV Program Honoring Nurses

A Fort Benning nurse will appear February 1 on Station ETV (Educational TV), Channels 2, 7 and 10.

Major Doris E. Frazier has been invited to go to Tuscaloosa, Ala., to participate in a program honoring the 60th anniversary of the Army Nurses Corps, sponsored by the University of Alabama.

Major Frazier is an instructor in Martin Army Hospital's basic operating room course.

"The Army And The Community"

Wherever he goes and whatever he does, the soldier today is a living exponent of the Army to the general public. The man in uniform enjoys a greater position in these times than ever before in the absence of a shooting war.

There are a number of reasons to account for this. For one thing, most citizens are aware that, although our country is not at war, the present state of international tension can scarcely be called peace. The feeling of the threat of war is sufficient to make most people feel grateful to the man who is a potential defender of American homes and American freedom.

Another reason for popular acceptance of the soldier is the steady and very evident rise in the quality of Army manpower. Soldiers today are better educated, more adaptable to a wide range of technical assignments, and possess better physical quality than their predecessors of previous generations. They bear themselves with a pride that stems from the realization that they fill an essential role in the Nation's life. This feeling is supported by the public conviction that the times call for living evidence of the American will to defend American principles and goals.

The soldier today is scarcely a stranger in any community. Military service is part of the life experience of three out of every five able-bodied young Americans. The same proportion of their fathers, older brothers and relatives saw service in one or more of the wars since 1917. There are thousands of American families in which the father is a veteran of World War I, a son a veteran of World War II, while another saw service during the Korean War and a still younger member served since then. This has led to understanding based upon the bond of common experience. On this foundation, members of the Army can build a solid structure of future popular support for the Army.

By establishing themselves as valuable and active members of the communities in which they make their homes, or in which they serve, all soldiers can earn increased esteem for themselves and in turn for the Army uniform. (From Troop Topics 16, Sixth U. S. Army)

CUTTING CORNERS

by Mildred Mac Mahon

You can erase rust stains from metal surfaces with an ordinary ink eraser. The usual rust solvent and steel wool need be used only in stubborn cases . . . To keep paint insect-free, all you have to do is add a few drops of citronella. This is well worth remembering especially when painting outdoors in the summer . . . If you have any scratches on dark wood furniture, you can fix them with iodine. Dab it on with a cotton swab and wipe away the excess. For scratches on light wood, rub in shelled walnut halves . . . If any of your drawers stick, you can make them slide easily by rubbing the edges with candle wax . . . The same candle will come in handy to stop castors from falling out of furniture legs. Fill the holes with melted wax and insert the castors before the paraffin sets. Let furniture stand before righting it . . . To sand a groove, fit a piece of sandpaper around a deck of cards. The cards will shift themselves to fit the shape of the groove . . . Hammer marks on wood can often be removed by covering the marks with several layers of wet paper and pressing with a hot iron to make the wood expand . . . Wood screws will work into wood easily if the threads are first rubbed gently with ordinary soap . . . If you have to measure the inside of a box, drawer or something similar, to make it easier, use a sliding curtain rod . . . If glazed spots appear on women's suede shoes, a little dry cleaning fluid should be applied to the spots. When it dries gently rub a fine sandpaper over the suede to raise the nap . . . There's a new product on the market with which you can replate worn silverware instantly . . . You can avoid housemaid's knees with a pair of rubber knee guards. Adjustable straps for all dainty knees . . . If you're short of storage space, you might be interested in an under-bed storage chest. Measuring only six inches high it fits under even the most modern type bed and its 42-inches length allows plenty of room for out of season clothing, bedding etc.

Today's make-up fashions call for vivid, well-defined eyes and the shape and coloring of your eyebrows play an important part in creating this exciting new high-fashion effect.

Glamorous-looking eyebrows can be achieved with a professional touch if you make sure that the end of your eyebrow pencil is sharpened to a chisel or wedge shape instead of a point. With a single-edged razor blade, make a flat, broad edge on two sides. Use the flat edges for overall shaping and for filling in. To sketch in the individual hairs, use the sharp, narrow edges.

Now at your PX ... Famous Clearasil Medication

Gets Inside Pimples to Clear Them Fast!

You see a pimple on the outside of your skin ... but the real trouble is on the inside, because a pimple is actually a clogged, inflamed skin pore.

That is why Skin Specialists agree that the only medical action you need for truly effective external medication of pimples and acne is the Clearasil action, which brings the scientific medications down inside the pimple ... where antiseptic and drying actions are applied. And Skin Specialists know that this is the reason why CLEARASIL medication works so fast, so effectively, to clear pimples.

Doctors' tests prove Clearasil will work for you. In Skin Specialists' tests on 202 patients, 9 out of every 10 cases of pimples were completely cleared up ... or definitely improved while using CLEARASIL. CLEARASIL is guaranteed to work for you—or money back.

How Clearasil works fast to clear pimples

1. Gets Inside Pimples. CLEARASIL's "keratolytic" action gently dissolves and opens pimple cap so clogged pore can clear quickly ... and active medications can get inside. No other type medication provides this vital action.

2. Stops Bacteria. Now, CLEARASIL's antiseptic medication penetrates to any lower infection, stops growth of bacteria in and around pimple. Relieves inflammation and encourages quick growth of healthy, smooth skin.

3. Dries Up Pimples Fast. CLEARASIL's oil-absorbing action works to dry up pimples fast ... removes the excess oil that can clog pores, cause pimples. Helps prevent further outbreak.

SKIN-COLORED ... Hides Pimples While It Works

The instant you use CLEARASIL, embarrassment is gone because CLEARASIL's skin color hides pimples amazingly, while its three medical actions work fast to clear them up.

Floats Out Blackheads. CLEARASIL softens and loosens blackheads, so they "float" out with normal washing. And CLEARASIL works at the source of the blackhead problem by drying up excess skin oil which can clog pores, cause pimples. CLEARASIL is greaseless, stainless ... pleasant to leave on day and night for uninterrupted medication.

Proved by Skin Specialists' tests, CLEARASIL medication is guaranteed to work for you or money back. Tube, 69¢.

FORT BENNING, GEORGIA, HOME OF U.S. ARMY INFANTRY CENTER

VOL. 19, NO. 20 FRIDAY, JANUARY 27, 1961 FORT BENNING, GA. 28 Pages — Price 5c

Gen. Walsh's Infantry School Report

When one hears the name — Fort Benning, his thoughts turn almost immediately to the exacting Officer Candidate Program which produces highly qualified second lieutenants who serve our Army so capably.

An interesting, yet little known fact, is that 47 of our states conduct a similar program which produces well trained second lieutenants who serve with distinction as National Guard Officers. Some 2,500 candidates participate annually in this training which closely parallels that offered in the Fort Benning Officer Candidate.

Each National Guard State Officer Candidate School falls under the jurisdiction of the respective Adjutant General. A National Guard officer serves as the commandant for each academy. He in turn carefully selects other National Guard officers to serve as tactical officers.

A National Guardsman must fulfill stringent prerequisites to be selected as a candidate for the State OCS Program. He will be required to spend about one year in the course.

The candidate's initial training usually consists of a two week active duty training period conducted at a Military Reservation. During this phase he is introduced to and becomes thoroughly acquainted with the high standards required by the Academy. Military training is rugged and consists of weapons, map reading, and tactics training.

On completion of the "Summer Camp" phase, the candidate engages in eight or ten "weekend" training sessions. This training is conducted in National Guard Academy classroom which are comparable to or surpass the best provided at Fort Benning.

The candidate is required to report to the Academy at noon on Saturday and will remain there until late Sunday afternoon. He attends classes Saturday afternoon and evening, Sunday morning and afternoon. A supervised study session is usually scheduled Saturday night. To insure the most conducive educational atmosphere, the candidate is provided excellent quarters at the Academy site.

Instruction at the "Summer Camp" and "Weekend" sessions is presented by experienced National Guard Officers. The Infantry School is the sole agency which assists these instructors by preparing and

GEN. TRAPNELL

Gen. Trapnell Speaks Here To Canadians

Lt. Gen. Thomas J. H. Trapnell, commanding general of XVIII Airborne Corps, STRAC (Strategic Army Corps) and Fort Bragg, will discuss the concept and role of STRAC in a special presentation here next Thursday for the Canadian National Defense College.

He will speak at 8:40 a.m. in Wharton Hall following a talk by Major Gen. Hugh P. Harris, commandant of The Infantry School.

Gen. Trapnell will be at The Infantry School February 1 and 2.

A 1927 graduate of the Military Academy, Gen. Trapnell was commissioned in the cavalry. At the outbreak of World War II he was serving in the Philippines. He was a prisoner of war of Japan from May, 1942, to August, 1945.

After graduating from the Command and General Staff College at Fort Leavenworth in 1947, the three-star general attended The Infantry School's Airborne course. He commanded the 505th Airborne Regiment and Airborne Division, at Fort Bragg the next three years.

Gen. Trapnell was at the Army War College in 1950-1951, then assumed command of the 187th Airborne Regiment.

distributing instructional material. A problem is prepared for every period of instruction conducted in this program. Each problem consists of an instructor and student act.

The student act outlines the home study assignment that normally contains a pre-class requirement. Each phase of instruction is followed by an examination which is administered by the state and graded by the Department of Non-Resident Instruction. Within 48 hours after receipt of the examinations, they are graded, recorded, and returned to the appropriate school.

The National Guard State Officer Candidate Program has proved to be extremely successful. The Department of Non-Resident Instruction, the Infantry School agency designated to provide instructional material support, is proud of its participation in a perfect example of a "One Army Concept" project.

GEN. HARRIS (L) MAKES PRESENTATION OF BEST MESS TROPHIES TO WINNERS

Best Mess Winners Get Awards

Major Gen. Hugh P. Harris, commanding general of The Infantry Center, presented trophies last week to the two winners in the post best mess hall contest.

They were Mess 1, 5th Battalion, The Student Brigade, which was tops in the garrison unit class and Battery C, 2nd Howitzer Battalion, 10th Artillery, 1st Infantry Brigade, first in the field unit category.

The mess stewards accepted the awards on behalf of their respective units. They were Sfc Jessie Weaver Jr., steward of Mess 1, and Sfc's Linis C. Ingram and Elwood Gibson, steward and assistant steward of Battery C.

The winners, representing Fort Benning in the Third Army best mess contest, were inspected earlier this month by judges for that competition. The Third Army winners are expected to be announced soon.

The post competition was held in conjunction with a contest to determine the best mess hall in the Army.

One Army Conference

A planning conference to arrange support for the 1961 ROTC Summer Camp is scheduled for February 1 in the conference room of The Infantry Center's Reserve Component Section in the Harmony Church area.

Heading the session will be Lt. Col. Edward B. Craney, chief of the Reserve Component Section.

Attending the meeting will be representatives from the major commands on post which supply support troops, instructors, transportation, weapons and administrative personnel during the six-week summer camp.

This year the camp will operate from June 17 to June 29.

Courses taught at the camp include military tactics, weapons and general military subjects.

An estimated 1,500 cadets from approximately 33 colleges and universities in the South are expected to attend this year.

Post Supports March of Dimes

In cooperation with the March of Dimes campaign conducted by The National Foundation for the Prevention and Treatment of Polio, Arthritis and Birth Defects, Major Gen. Hugh P. Harris, commanding general of The Infantry Center, has authorized placement of Dimes containers throughout the post.

The familiar receptacles have been distributed to all organizations, clubs, post exchanges and the two commissaries.

In addition, a coin card has been issued to each dependent school child through the cooperation of the post children's school system and the principals and teachers.

A regular annual voluntary drive, the March of Dimes campaign this year will continue through the first week in February. The drive started early in January.

Arthritis and birth defects were included in the March of Dimes fund program two years ago. Birth defects afflict one out of 16 babies born in the U. S., and arthritis and rheumatism affect 11 million Americans.

Contributions so far appear to match the excellent results on post in the past two campaigns, according to drive officials.

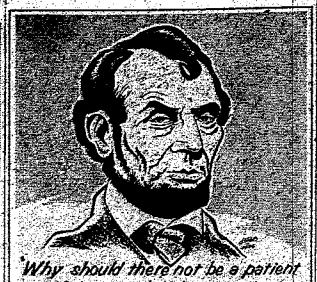
Sgt. Arlee Grubbs' topside topics

The military budget for 1962 sent to Congress by the President last week is the second highest service outlay since the days after World War II and asks for a contemplated expenditure of some $42.9 billion for the military functions of the Defense Department during Fiscal Year 1962. The Army is scheduled for a $10 billion budget during the next fiscal year. The 1962 budget, as far as the Army is concerned, provides for a further increase in the field of procurement for the ground forces. The Army estimates it will spend some $1.6 billion in this field. Broken down, the Army plans $156 million for procurement of some 261 aircraft, $507 million for missiles, with another $384 million listed as going for "other" procurements. Research and development expenditures for the Army stand at $1.1 billion. Rifles and machine guns employing the standard NATO ammunition, new Infantry personnel carriers, and tactical missiles — including the Pershing and Davy Crockett — which provides Infantry units with a close range atomic support weapon, were listed as high priority for active Army forces. The Army gave its active forces for the new fiscal year to include 14 divisions and 870,000 personnel. The retired pay for the Department of Defense was given as costing an estimated $926 million which is a jump of some $151 million over the past fiscal year.

Defense Pamphlet Gives Space Score

The latest tally of U.S. and Russian space probes, earth satellites launched and those still in orbit has been released by the Department of Defense. Two space probes are listed for each. Pioneer IV and Pioneer V, launched in 1959 and 1960 by the U.S. are now in solar orbits. The first Russian shot, Lunick I launched in January 1959 is in solar orbit, while Lunick II, launched in 1959, impacted on the moon. In earth satellites, the U.S. lists 31 placed in orbit, with 16 still circling the earth. Russia has placed seven in orbit with one still orbiting.

Permanent Grades to the Field



The largest semi-annual quota of permanent enlisted grade appointments since the system was reinstated in 1958 has been released to the Army's major field commanders. Over 12,000 in grades E-4 through E-6 have been authorized for the period January 1 to June 30 of this year. A breakdown by grade reads: 400 to E-8; 2,500 to E-7; 3,500 to E-6; 5,000 to E-5 and 1,000 to E-4. No quota to E-9 was given as no E-8 has acquired the necessary time in grade. Permanent appointments do not result in a change in pay, but are designed to give recognition to those individuals who are best qualified in the temporary grades.

Rhodes Scholarships to USMA Cadets

Cadets Larry D. Budge and Howard D. Graves, Military Academy Class of '61, have been named for Rhodes Scholarships. This brings to 45 the number of West Point graduates to earn the honor since the Academy began to compete in 1924.

Chaplain's Corner

By Chaplain (1st Lt.) Robert C. Hartley

Everyone despises the person who is a traitor to his country, even the enemy who uses him to their own advantage. The traitor is only the end result of his own lack of loyalty to something bigger than himself. But what is not so obvious is the disastrous result of divided loyalties, no matter what the degree of division may be.

The Master Teacher once said, "No man can serve two masters..." (Matthew 6:24) This truth of this statement is so borne out in our experience that it does not require proof - but it does need to be called to our attention often. For some reason, a large number of people today seem to scorn anything resembling true and deep loyalty to spouse, to country, or even to God.

Some synonyms of the word loyalty are "fidelity" and "allegiance." Fidelity is a beautiful word, stressing the faithfulness of one to another. Allegiance emphasizes the fact of one's owing "liege" or loyalty to something or someone more elevated than oneself.

Every life needs the central force, unifying and integrating, of a supreme love—a supreme loyalty. Without this, one is like the team of horses which is not pulling together, but expending its energy fighting against each other.

When President Kennedy took office he became president, not merely of the states which "went" for him, but rather he became President of the United States. He will give the same degree of leadership to each section of our great nation, and his administration will receive the support of each section. This is the true strength of our nation — the loyalty of her people.

Your responsibilities are numerous. You should likewise have a variety of interests, recreations, and pursuits. Certainly we need to be tolerant of others. But divided in our own allegiance—never! This is a matter of basic choice within oneself, and the vote must be unanimous.

Practical Joke Often Backfires on the Joker

High spirits are a sign of high morale. A commanding officer or any officer has good reason for worry when men go about their duties with dull faces and listless attitudes.

He should also be concerned when high spirits get out of hand as expressed in irresponsible pranks and so-called "practical" jokes. They may not be maliciously intended, but they can be causes of property damage and personal tragedy.

Take the recent case of the man at a Christmas office party whose body was found in a ventilation shaft. He was believed to have hidden from his fellow workers with the idea of playing a joke. His family found little to laugh about over the holidays.

And there was the college fraternity initiation not too long ago, resulting in a student choking to death. The number of such tragedies is almost endless. They are all examples of carrying things too far.

There is a great deal of such "fun" in the services where the boys of yesterday are reluctant to behave with the maturity their uniform deserves. Ask any service doctor or safety officer how many accidents have been caused by witless pranks with no harm intended. Horseplay in the barracks, clowning on the job, misuse of weapons and equipment—all for laughs.

The man who resorts to such buffoonery to enjoy himself at someone else's expense is a potential menace to himself and others. Don't ever excuse his antics with palaver about high spirits. Don't enlist yourself in the tomfoolery he dreams up. Give him a wide berth; if his joke backfires it's fitting that he should be his only victim. (AFPS)

The Judge Says . . .

BY LT. THEODORE PONFIL

Let's go back to the question, "Can he afford it?" The dealer wants to sell John the car and will do anything he can to make John believe that he can afford it.

The actual cost of the car is far higher than the total amount of money that passes through the dealer's hands. John must leave a margin of future income each month that he can draw on for expenses, and also leave a margin for emergencies.

Now let us consider some of the automobile expenses that John will have...not emergencies, but just plain day to day expenses. First he is going to have to register the car in some state. Very likely he will have to pay a purchase or excise tax. This may approach $100 if the car is fairly new. Then there must be insurance.

Massachusetts and New York are two of the many states that say you must have liability insurance. If you hit someone, and can't show that you were driving carefully, then you, not some insurance company, will be paying for the injured party.

If the car is fairly new, John will want to buy collision insurance, for reimbursement of car damage. And then fire, wind, and theft, usually called comprehensive coverage.

If John is 25 years old or over, he can keep the total insurance cost close to $100; if under 25, the insurance premium total may well run as high as $200.

Then comes the repair bills. Two months driving and the car needs a ring job. Cars have a way of getting sick... quite often, in fact.

And then gas and oil. Liability insurance, collision insurance, inspection, registration, comprehensive coverage, excise, sales and use taxes, new ring job, grase, tires, battery, snow tires, chains, parking fees, traffic tines, towing costs ...two, three, four, five hundred dollars.

How much out of each paycheck, and yet enough left to still pay the monthly finance payments? And to still have a reserve margin for emergencies, for the risks of buying on time.

Too many risks, too many expenses...miss a payment and the whole balance is in default.

This may seem like a bad dream, but it's true. It's far easier to consider all these things ahead of time than to get into the living nightmares that plague those who are up to their necks in debt.

This is serious talk and serious business. We are talking about men dealing in the commercial world where other men are out to make money.

Caveat emptor, goes the old Latin phrase, "Let the buyer beware." There is no deal so hot that it can't wait for a bit of inspection. Caveat emptor... if you can't afford it, you don't need it. Above all, consider before you buy.

BOOKS in REVIEW

SHAKE THIS TOWN by Robert V. Williams. (Viking, 1960)

Petey Catanzaro, out of the army and into a continued probation for a crime in the past, returns to Dungeness, New Jersey, weighed down with the problem of his future as a better-than-average middle-weight fighter and that of his father's death which the police call accidental but Petey feels sure is murder.

SEA BEARS by Fredericka Martin. (Chilton Co., 1960)

Portions of this book appeared first in: The Hunting of the Silver Fleece, published by Greenberg in 1946. The author tells the story of the fur seal-its characteristics and way of life, the inroads made by unscrupulous Russian and American fur hunters especially in the Pribilof and Aleutian Islands and what has been done and is now being done to prevent its extinction.

THE DEAN'S WATCH by Elizabeth Goudge (Coward-McCann, 1960)

Set in a small cathedral town in East Anglia, this is the story of two nineteenth century men who learn through their devotion to each other that love is the key to life. A painfully shy Dean and a tormented old clockmaker are the central figures here, but surrounding them are a host of others including children.

Masquers Will Cast New Play

The Masquers, selected as its next play, "Dear Charles," by Alan Melville, to be presented at the Masquers Playhouse on April 7 and 8.

Tryouts for the play, with six male roles and an equal number of female roles, begin next Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in Building 1045 in the Old Hospital Area.

"Dear Charles" is adapted from the play "Les Enfants d' Edouard," which was written by Marc-Gilbert Sauvajon and Frederick Jackson.

Rehearsals for the gay French comedy, after the cast has been selected, will begin on February 6.

All members and anyone interested in the Masquers are invited to attend a general meeting next Monday at 7:30 p.m. at the Playhouse.

Social Notes

Infantry Board

Mesdames Thomas R. Clark, Gordon A. Gunton and William E. Barrineau were hostesses for the recent luncheon of the Infantry Board ladies held at the Martinique Motel restaurant to launch the 1961 social season for the group.

Mrs. A. D. Surles Jr., Mrs. William Ray and Mrs. McCaffrey were guests of Mrs. Jack Mathews; Mrs. Keyes and Mrs. Blair attended as guests of Mrs. Clarkin; Mrs. Cyril Sterner was the guest of Mrs. Earl Holton; Mrs. Glenn Gardner, guests of Mrs. Richard Wiltmann; Mrs. Earl Pendley of Dallas, Tex., and Mrs. Thomas Goodman, guests of Mrs. Harold Maness; and Mrs. B. A. Gunton of Canada was the special guest of Mrs. Gunton during the luncheon and fashion show.

Farewell Dinner

Col. and Mrs. Richard W. Keyes hosted a social and farewell dinner at their home last Friday evening honoring Col. and Mrs. John Bisbing, who departed the Command and Staff Department for a new position with The Infantry School. Approximately 20 officers and ladies of the department were present. Col. and Mrs. Julian H. Martin were special guests.

Student Wives

Ladies of student officers attending The Infantry School's Associate Infantry Officer Career Class 2, 2nd Student Battalion, The Student Brigade, recently held their January coffee in the Corregidor Room of the Main Officers' Open Mess. Mrs. Lawrence E. Enterkin was chairman of the event. Mrs. Julian H. Martin and Mrs. Vern L. Joseph poured. Thirty-two ladies attended.

Beauty Salon Week

A troop of beauty operators invaded Martin Army Hospital Tuesday, in an advance celebration of National Beauty Salon Week. They gave beauty parlor treatment to patients during the entire day. The operators are members of the Columbus Hairdressers and Cosmetology Association, Unit 12. Mrs. Juanita Boykin was chairman for the volunteer services.

Can-Can and Taxi Dancers, Barbershop Quartet, and Chuck Wagon

49er Party Rehearsals Into Final Week; Features Entertainment Of The Old West

The gaiety and glitter of the "Gold Rush Days" returns to the Main Officers' Open Mess on the evening of February 4 for the annual 49er Party.

The Silver Dollar Saloon opens its doors at 7 p.m. to provide refreshment and amusement, while hearty Western vittles will be available at Maggie's Chuck Wagon.

A barbershop quartet has been scheduled to serenade the patrons, and a look under the handlebar mustaches reveals Brig. Gen. L. A. Walsh, Jr., Brig. Gen. A. D. Surles, Jr., Col. Earl Holton, and Lt. Col. Arthur DeLuca. They will be accompanied by Col. Sydney E. Sacerdote, chairman of the party.

A bevy of beautiful taxi dancers, presided over by Mrs. A. C. Lieber, will be on hand to twirl around the dance floor for a donation to charity.

To prepare the way for the miners, drovers, lawmen, and their ladies swarming into town, the "49er Caravan" will begin rolling at 1 p.m. on the day of the party. It will be made up of Maggie's Chuck Wagon and a horde of young riders from the Fort Benning Hunt Club.

Costumes are urged for the spirit of the event, but are not required.

The Army Daughters sponsor the affair annually to raise funds for Fort Benning charities.

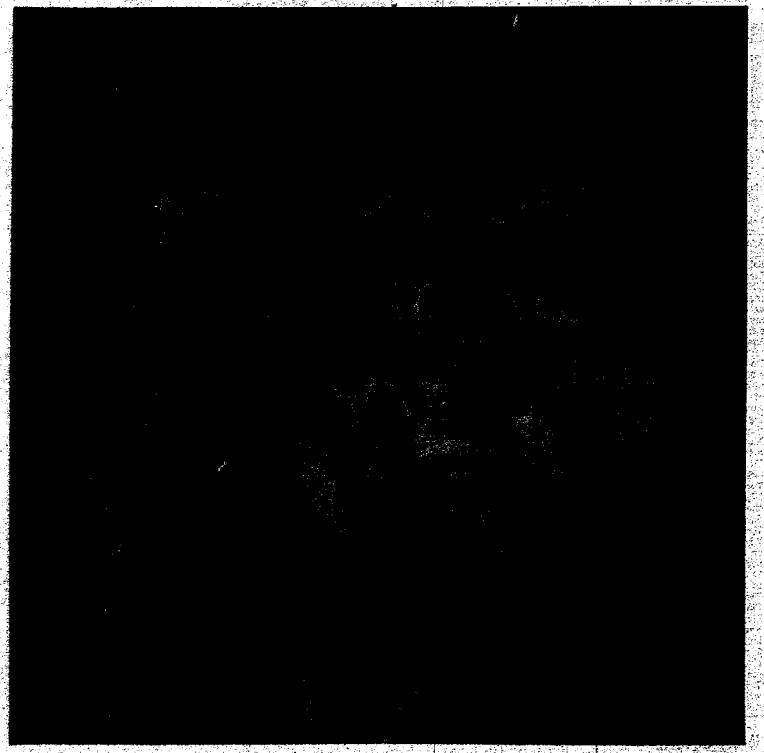
Distaff Hall Building Construction

Construction began in the Washington, D. C. area last month on the $3,500,000 Army Distaff Hall, a 300-unit residence hall for widows of Army officers.

The construction start was made possible by two years of untiring and devoted work by the Army Distaff Foundation, a non-profit organization incorporated in the District of Columbia, by the fund raising efforts of Army Wives Clubs throughout the world, and by contributions by business and industry.



The project is being built under an FHA-insured mortgage of $4.2 million under terms of Section 231 of the National Housing Act covering housing for the elderly. The FHA loan commitment is the largest yet made under the program.

Distaff Hall is the first home planned by one of the Military Services to help care for elderly female dependents.

Construction will be of brick and stone. The three-story building will be fully air-conditioned. It will contain all of the latest developments designed for the convenience, comfort and safety of its residents.

All but 54 of the 300 resident units will have kitchenettes. Some have separate bedrooms; others bedroom alcoves. Most, however, are one room efficiency apartments.

In the building there will be 716 rooms. Included are a dining room that will seat 300 persons, a chapel and social and recreation rooms. A 25-bed infirmary and doctors' treatment and examining rooms also are provided. The Walter Reed Army Medical Center is only a mile away.

Dental Wives

Luncheon Features Vocalist

A musical program was the highlight of the Dental Wives' luncheon held last week in the Anzio Room at the Main Officers' Open Mess.

The program introduced by Mrs. Wallace Lancaster, featured Pfc David Canty, accompanied by Miss Grace Jenkins. Pfc Casanyi, a tenor, sang selections from "Kismet," "Guys and Dolls," "Brigadoon" and several other popular ballads. Miss Jenkins also accompanied Mrs. Lancaster's vocal rendition of "Something Wonderful".

Mrs. Robert Ziehm was chairman of the committee handling the luncheon arrangements assisted by Mesdames Ralph P. Gigliotti, Jimmy Burden, and Norman Golovan.

Guests attending the luncheon were Mrs. Maude Pendley and Mrs. Clair Rasmussen.

The next meeting of the group will be a coffee on February 16, to be held at the home of Mrs. Thomas K. man.

Cupid Strikes 6 Lieutenants

In the past eight weeks six lieutenants of Detachment 21, 2nd Student Battalion, The Student Brigade, who are members of Infantry Officer Orientation Class 8, have announced engagements and marriages.

Engagements announced were those of 2nd Lt.'s William J. Foster, William F. McGowan and Elbert Cooper Jr.

Stork Does Days Work With Twins

The stork was working on a crash basis last Thursday at Martin Army Hospital as three sets of twins arrived within 10 hours.

First to put in an appearance at one minute past midnight was a girl, the daughter of Sgt. and Mrs. Robert E. Stinson. Her twin brother arrived nine minutes later.

The twin daughters of Capt. and Mrs. Meryl A. Griffiths arrived at 7:10 and 7:19 a.m.

Two more girls, daughters of Capt. and Mrs. Octavio Perdomo of Bogota, Colombia, arrived at 10 and 10:15 a.m. A member of the Colombian Army, the captain is enrolled in an Infantry officer career course at The Infantry School.

Of the Women's World

BY PAT RYAN

Mrs. John Holt, Allied liaison board member of the Woman's Club, sews pretty dresses for her daughter, and has an "International Project". She is designated by the Woman's Club to contact and help all Allied wives who come to this post.

At the moment she has ladies from Chile, Argentina, Venezuela, Great Britain, Colombia, Peru, Denmark and Guatemala under her wing.

A native of Vienna, Austria, Mrs. Holt ("Suzie") worked as an interpreter with the Vienna Area Engineer Operations, where she met her husband. She had previously attended Vienna Women's Business College, where she learned to speak English.

Her first sight of America was as an Army bride to Fort Belvoir. She was "Habbergasted" by American traffic, impressed by the "very practical" supermarkets, and delighted with the various electrical appliances. But one thing remained the same the world over: people.

Her neighbors had a welcome tea for her. She has enjoyed this friendly atmosphere at many other Army posts, and in a civilian community while her husband attended Stanford University.

Besides her international contacts here, Suzie is Secretary of the Fort Benning P-TA, sews, knits, plays bridge, has a son, Bill, age eight, and a daughter, Kitty, five.

Her favorite Viennese recipes are also her family's favorites: wiener schnitzel, and apfel strudel.

Suzie's story is one of friendliness and active family life. This sort of thing can be catching. I'm sure our Allied wives have caught the gesture of welcome from her. Suzie would like for them to hear from you, too.

Suzie's problem, now, is that most of her Allied wives speak Spanish, and she doesn't. She would appreciate it if those interested in volunteering as sponsors would contact her at MU 9-1328. Also, she would be interested to hear from anyone who could lend or volunteer household items (from utensils to furniture) to the Allied visitors. A building in The Student Brigade area has been designated to store any such forthcoming items.

Sandra Taylor Earns National English Honor

Sandra Taylor, regular Bayonet columnist and a student at Columbus High School, has been named one of the nation's outstanding students of high school English. The National Council of Teachers of English has named her a national winner in its annual Achievement Awards competition.

Last spring a committee of English teachers from CHS nominated Sandra and two other girls to represent Columbus High in the competition. Two tests, three pieces of composition and two supporting letters from high school personnel were the basis used by a committee of state judges for evaluating nominees.

In announcing the winners, James R. Squire, Executive Secretary of NCTE, said that although the students receive no cash award, finalists previously cited by the Council have often received preference in admission and financial grants from colleges of their choice on the grounds that excellence in English is one of the hallmarks of a potentially capable college student.

9th Revamps AIT to Unit Responsibility

By 9th Inf PIO

The 9th Infantry has completed a transition to a more complete unit system of training.

This has been done in an attempt to streamline and increase the effectiveness of the instruction in the battle group's Advanced Individual Training program in Military Occupational Specialties 111 (light weapons infantryman) and 112 (heavy weapons infantryman).

The 9th's Training Committee has been reorganized into a battle group instructional team consisting of two sections. The former general subjects and light weapons teams of the committee have been dropped, with a majority of the subjects being placed in the hands of the line rifle companies themselves for the necessary instruction.

In reorganizing the 9th's committee system, a total of 12 officers and 21 noncommissioned officers were reassigned to the companies from the Training Committee to aid in teaching unit level subjects.

Instruction in the heavy weapons MOS was retained at the battle group level so that all companies in the 9th Infantry would have the capability of conducting a heavy weapons cycle.

This was done to provide variation from one cycle to the next for the cadre of the companies, and will allow the training load to be proportionately distributed throughout the 9th's companies.

Division's 23rd Infantry Launches Drive for Association Membership

By 23rd Infantry PIO

Colonel Louis A. Kimzig Jr., battle group commander of the 23rd Infantry has announced the kick-off of the 23rd Infantry drive for membership in the Second "Indianhead" Division Association.

The Second "Indianhead" Division Association was formed in 1919 by Major General John J. LeJeun who, at the time, was commanding general of the Second Division, part of the Army of occupation in Germany after World War I. His purpose in founding the association was to keep the men who had fought so valiantly with the division together as much as possible.

The association was at its peak when sailing orders arrived shipping the division back home. Discharges and transfers made the task of keeping the association active a major one. This task was met by forming branches of chapters from coast to coast. Members kept in touch, and still do, with the "Indianhead" a monthly newsletter sent to all members of the Association.

The objectives of the association are "to promote, maintain and cherish among its members the comradeship engendered by active service together in the Armed Forces of the United States. . . . to preserve, honor and never forget the sacred dead of our Division."

In 1936, a marble monument, dedicated to the World War I dead of the division, was unveiled in Washington, D. C. at an initial cost of $125,000. Present plans call for an addition to honor World War II and Korean dead.

The "We Serve" Associate Chapter, the 23rd Infantry branch of the Association, has as its President Lieutenant Colonel Frank T. Huray and Vice President First Sergeant Charles W. Bernatovitz. Colonel Kimzig said that the goal of the drive is 100 per cent participation of all permanent party of the Battle Group.

1st Finishes Third Phase Of Training

By 1st Inf PIO

With the mission to become "Combat Ready by April 22, 1961", the 2nd Battle Group, 1st Infantry, has marked the completion of Avanced Individual Training, and moved into the fourth phase of its OVUREP cycle, Basic Unit Training.

The "Semper Primus" OVUREP unit, commanded by Colonel James H. Hayes, established record highs for the 1st Infantry in the 2nd Infantry Division's AIT proficiency tests with battle group scores of 85.7 percent for MOS 111 and 85.7 percent for MOS 112. As tangible evidence of the high degree of training proficiency achieved by the group, only 13 of the nearly 700 personnel tested failed the test.

Company A, commanded by Captain Roy J. Young, took the honors for the line companies with 91.6 per cent in the MOS 111 test and 85.5 per cent in the MOS 112 test.

3 Answer Call For Rare Blood; From 1st Inf

The men, Privates Theodore C. Kincaid and Roy E. Fry, Company C, and Hugh D. O'Donnell, Company A, donated the blood — type A negative — after being contacted by the Division Chaplains Section.

Father Andrew Mullen, pastor of St. Patrick's Church initiated the search for possessors of the rare blood type through the Division Chaplains Section. That section in turn located the men through the Red Cross where their eligibility to donate was verified.

2nd Division Unit Holds Semi-Annual BG Review

By 9th Inf. PIO

Officers, enlisted cadre and Advanced Individual Trainees of the 9th Infantry marched in their unit's semi - annual Battle Group Review last Saturday at Weatherby Field.

Colonel James L. Osgard reviewed the 750 troops following an awards ceremony which saw the 9th's Company C win the Battle Group Commander's Trophy. Company C's outgoing company commander, Captain Allan J. Francisco accepted the large trophy from Colonel Osgard.

This trophy symbolizes the top achievements by a company during the preceding six-month period.

Awards presented were: Best Mess to Company D, Best Maintenance to Company A and the safety plaque for December to Headquarters Company.

The review, conducted in lieu of this month's Commanders Conference, also saw the presentation of 15 Proficiency in Marksmanship Certificates to members of the 9th.

The 9th Infantry Pistol Team captured the top spot in the Open Class for the National Match Course Team for the pistol. Captain James Bartosh accepted the award for the team members who are: Captain Thomas J. Towle, Lieutenant Billy White and Sergeant Harold Perkins.

Sergeant Perkins also received one second place and two third place awards in the Open Class for the pistol.

The unit automatic rifle team won a certificate for its first place finish in the Open Class for the 500 - yard Rapid Fire Aggregate. The team was composed of Specialist Fourth Class Otis Rittenberry and Private James Arnold.

Another 9th Infantry automatic rifle team captured two awards for third place finishes in the Open Class. Private First Class Balvin Bryant and Private James Washington were the team members.

Sergeant Anton Hermann of Combat Support Company won four of the certificates, including a first place in the New Shooter Class for an individual slow fire match. He was also awarded certificates for a second and two third place finishes.

OVUREP Unit Greets New Battle Group CO

BY 11TH INF. PIO

Colonel John F. Arthur has arrived on the scene to begin his tasks as commanding officer of the "new" 1st Battle Group, 11th Infantry.

The word "new" is used here to describe the unique situation wherein the "old" 1st Battle Group, 11th Infantry, commanded by Colonel George D. Patterson, and which departs for Korea next month, will receive a new unit designation upon arrival in Korea.

At that time Colonel Arthur's organization, which is the sixth OVUREP Battle Group, will officially become the First Battle Group, 11th Infantry.

Colonel Arthur was born in the Army at Fort Monroe, Virginia and attended public schools throughout the country as occasioned by the changes in assignments of his father, Col. Robert Arthur, Retired. He graduated from Boston University in 1937 with the degree of Bachelor of Science in business administration, and a commission in the Army Reserves, entering on active duty in April 1942. He was integrated into the Regular Army in the first integration after World War II.

He has attended an impressive array of military schools, including the basic and advanced courses of the Infantry School, the Engineer School, Assault Course, the Air-Ground School, the U. S. Army Command and General Staff College, the Armed Forces Staff College, the Strategic Intelligence School and the U. S. Army War College.

Colonel Arthur comes to his new command from the U. S. Army Command and General Staff College, where he was Chief of Doctrine. In this capacity, the Colonel was responsible for overall development and coordination of all doctrine and studies promulgated by that College, at the level of Division, Corps, Field Army and larger organizations.

Colonel Arthur's post-war assignments have been varied, including Command duty with the 15th Infantry, Third Infantry Division here at Fort Benning in 1948-50; G-3 of the U.S. Military Mission to Iran in 1950 - 1953, and duty on the Army General Staff as a member of the Office of the Assistant Chief of Staff, Intelligence, Department of the Army 1953-1956. He spent time in the Estimates Branch of that office, where he was responsible for preparation of National Intelligence Estimates for use by the National Security Council. He also served for a period as Assistant Chief of the Production Division, responsible for the production of Army Strategic Intelligence, and later served in the Plans and Policy Branch of the Executive office, of the Assistant Chief of Staff of Intelligence.

During World War II, Col. Arthur was an instructor here at the Infantry School and later served in the Far East with the Sixth U.S. Army, participating in the Leyte and Luzon Campaigns. In August of 1945, following the atomic attack of Nagasaki, he entered the island of Kyushu, Japan, with a small detachment prior to the occupation to release some 11,000 Allied prisoners of war from Prison camps in that area. He later served in General Headquarters, United States Armed Forces Far East, in Tokyo before returning to the US and the Command and General Staff College in 1947.

Promotions

Recently receiving the silver bars of 1st Lieutenant were the following officers of the 69th Armor: Lieutenant James C. Gibbs, support platoon leader, and Lieutenant H. Douglas Oliver, transportation section leader, both of Headquarters Company, and Lieutenant Maxey D. Baker, executive officer of Company D.

Captain Edward J. Bourgeois Jr., 22nd Infantry, recently was promoted to his present rank, and was immediately assigned as company Commander of Company D.

A 1953 graduate of the University of Connecticut, Captain Bourgeois is a Regular Army ordnance officer. He came to the 22nd Infantry from Korea where he was assigned to the 65th Ordnance Company.

Captain Bourgeois previously served as executive officer, Company D, and is a recent graduate of the Associate Company Officers course and the Airborne Course at the Infantry School.

Second First Class William E. Sammons recently received his commission as a second lieutenant in the Army Reserve. SFC Sammons currently is assigned to Headquarters Battery, 12th Artillery.

MSGT Barbara A. Crocker, operations sergeant of the 7th Cavalry, recently received his promotion to Captain in the reserves. Sergeant Crocker has served with the 7th Cavalry since January 1952. He entered the service in May 1944, and saw action in World War II and Korea. Sergeant Crocker has been decorated with both the Silver Star and Bronze Star.

Reenlistments

A little too late for Christmas, but just in time to pay the Christmas bills were the Re-Up bonuses received by the following Tankers recently.

Sgt. Louis F. Tidwell, Company B, 3 years for his own vacancy; Sgt. John D. Long, Company B, 6 years for his own vacancy; Sgt. Donald J. O'Donnell, Headquaretrs Company, 6 years for his own vacancy; SFC William J. Wilson Company A, 6 years for his own vacancy; SgS Jack Petillar, Company A, 3 years for his own vacancy; and SFC Lloyd D. Dowell of Company B took 6 years to go to school at Fort Knox, Ky.

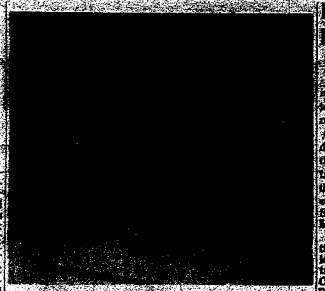
Sergeant First Class Milton C. Jemeau reenlisted for three years. A veteran of 15 years service, the 9th Infantry NCO has been reassigned to the Automobility Department at the Infantry Center.

Sergeant First Class Lloyd Storey of the 9th Infantry's Company B reenlisted for six more years as a Regular Army enlistment. He has served in the Army 15 years.

Private First Class Robert F. Chafin, Headquarters Battery, 37th Artillery, reenlisted for a six-year tour to fill his own vacancy.

Sergeant First Class Barton Lawrence Recruiting NCO of the 122 Signal Battalion reenlisted January 23. Sergeant Lawrence has 15 years of service and for the past fourteen months has been the Recruiting NCO for the Battalion.

Assignments



Division's gain was the 69th Armor's loss as Major Donald Valeska moved to Assistant Division staff from Executive Officer 69th Armor. The position of 69th Armor Executive Officer is being ably filled by Major William M. Hearn, who recently joined the Tankers from Embassy duty in Vietnam. Also involved in the game of "move up one" being played by the Tankers recently Captain Eugene E. Reardon who becomes the S3 from S3 Air and 1st Lieutenant Albert S. Britt III who moved from Liaison Officer to S3 Air.

The other two changes involved the S-2 and S-3 sections. Lieutenant Daniel W. Capitio, the 9th's assistant S-3, has been reassigned to the S-2 section as liaison officer.

Lieutenant Capito's job in the S-2 section was assumed by Lieutenant Robert T. Chadoweth. Lieutenant Chenoweth joins the staff from his former position as a team chief on the Training Committee, recently reorganized into an instructional team.

One officer and eight NCO's from the 9th Infantry have been reassigned to the 11th Infantry (5th Overseas Unit Replacement Program). Leaving the 9th were: Lieutenant Ross Wisne of Company E, Specialist Fifth Class Charles Clear of Combat Support Company, Sergeant First Class Pryde Booth of Company C, and Sergeants James Burns of Company A; Robert Gulley of Combat Support; Ralph Key of Company A; and Robert Eldridge of Company D.

Two E-5's were included in the group as First Sergeant Ishmael Rangel and First Sergeant Ralph Cavedo departed for the 11th Infantry.

EM Graduate At Training At Theater 7

By 9th Inf. PIO

Colonel James L. Osgard, commander of the 9th Infantry, delivered the graduation address to 172 trainees of the 9th's Company A on January 21 upon their successful completion of Advanced Individual Training in Military Occupational Specialty III.

The graduation exercises for the light weapons infantrymen were conducted in Theatre Number Seven. Colonel Osgard presented awards to the company's top firers of the caliber .30 machine gun, automatic rifle and the top scorer on the proficiency test.

Taking top honors for the firing of the automatic rifle was Private Francis P. Conerly with a score of 197. Private Robert C. Stack, Jr. took top honors for the firing of the machine gun with a score of 215. Private Stack also scored highest on the proficiency test with a score of 97.

Other training for the light weapons infantrymen during the eight week course included land mine warfare, flame thrower, History and Traditions of the United States Infantry, and rifle and weapons squad tactics.

Upon graduation from the 9th's Company A, commanded by Captain Paul Osborne, the Advanced Trainee graduates departed the battle group for Fort Bragg, North Carolina, and Germany.

40 Post Scouts Hosted to Barracks Campout

By 9th Inf PIO

The 9th Infantry welcomed 40 members of Fort Benning Boy Scout Troop 37 January 20 for the troop's annual barracks campout at the "Keep Up the Fire" battle Group.

Arriving late Friday afternoon the Boy Scouts stored their gear in a Combat Support Company barracks prior to the banquet prepared for the troop in the Combat Support mess hall.

Immediately following the banquet of steak with all the trimmings, Eagle Scout Danny Catchings presented a plaque of appreciation to 9th Infantry commander, Colonel James L. Osgard, for hosting the troop both in 1960 and 1961. Last year Company C provided the barracks and facilities for the campout.

Also on hand for the banquet were members of the Scout Council and the Scoutmasters of Troop 37 headed by the head Scoutmaster, Major Homer E. Rhoads.

Prior to bedding down for the night, the troop was treated to a movie at Theater Number Six. The Boy Scouts saw "Night Passage" with James Stewart and Audie Murphy.

On January 21 the Scouts were taken on a tour of the 2nd Infantry Division Museum before attending the 9th Infantry's battle group review at Wetherby Field. The review concluded the Boy Scouts week-end campout with the 9th Infantry.

All of the members of Troop 37 are dependents of Fort Benning military personnel.

Combat Support Company mess personnel, supervised by the Mess Steward, Sergeant First Class Alvin Bergeron, prepared the January 20 banquet for the Scouts to include a large one - layered white cake with white icing and red and brown borders. The words "Welcome Troop 37 1961" stretched across the top of the special cake.

DivArty Beats Seperate Bn. 53–32

UP AND IN . . . John Humes (10) DivArty forward is ready to let go with his one-handed jump shot while team mate Lawrence Eberly (13) screens for him. Humes made the shot and wound up with a total of 14 points scored against the opposing team of Separate Battalion.

Cannoneers Undefeated, 1st Upsets Trains 62-50

BY JOSH HILL

The 2nd Division Artillery "Cannoneers" rolled over a game, but out-classed Separate Battalion quintet, 53-32, as the second week of the division's major unit basketball tourney got under way January 23.

Sparked by the double figures of center Jack Sanderson, forward John Humes, and guard Albert Long, who scored 15, 14, and 10 points respectively, the DivArty five copped its second straight win of the 1961 hoop season.

DivArty took command from the outset and smothered every attempt the Separate Battalion made to overcome the Cannoneer power house. When the first half ended DivArty was on top by a 34-14 margin.

Cannoneer forward Larence Eberly made a contribution of several rebounds and six points to the DivArty victory. Other scorers for the cannoneer "courtsmen" were John Thompson with four, Marcus Woodham three, and Cornelius Mitchell scoring one.

Walter Crawley of the Separate Battalion was the only member of his squad to cop double figures in the scoring department with 10 points. Other point poppers for battalion were Virgil Brown and Roger Miller both with six points; Harold Gaither, five; Gerald Jennings, four; and George Poore with one point.

In another hoop duel during the evening of January 23, the 1st Infantry halted Division Trains 62-50 to come back after suffering a defeat at the hands of the cannoneers.

For Division Trains, it was their second consecutive loss. Both teams got off to a slow start in the first half of play. The "Always First" five lost the ball 17 times. The Trains squad failed to capitalize on most of these losses and the half ended with the 1st in front by a slim 29-27 margin.

In the last segment the 1st Infantry came alive and scored 34 points as compared to 23 tallies by the Trains hoopsters. This 11 point margin in the second half insured the 1st of the victory.

Scoring for the 1st Infantry were Isril Gafford and David Jarrel netting 12 points each, P. Young got 11; Wilber Patterson 10, Roosevelt Franklin seven; William White, four; and Leo Farrell, Chapel Grant, and Frank Telatko each got two points.

High man for the Trains squad was Kenneth Parham with 18 points. Following him were Miles Finley with 11, John Brown, nine; Lee Burchfield, seven; Harold Vann, six; and William Patrick along with John Mason copped two each.

The site of these major unit basketball games is the Harmony Church Field House every Monday and Thursday evenings. Opening tap-off times are 6:30 and 8 p.m. Division members and dependants are admitted free.

23rd Inf Closes Company Loop Basketball Play

By 23rd Inf. PIO

The 23rd Infantry company level basketball season will close this weekend with one contest, between headquarters Company and Combat Support Company, to play.

The fate of Della Company, who finished the season with a 5 and 1 record to cop a temporary hold on first place, will depend on the outcome of this game. With Combat Support Company currently sporting a four and one record, a win over Headquarters Company tomorrow would mean a tie for first place and necessitate a play-off.

The league standings now are companies D, Combat Support, Headquarters, A, E, B, and C.

HONOR STUDENT

Private First Class Orvan G. Hatfield of Headquarters Battery, 12th Artillery is feeling rather proud of himself these days and rightly so. He has just returned from Fort Gordon, Georgia, where he became the honor student in class 38A of the Army's Radio - Teletype operators school.

23rd Practicing for Comeback

By 23rd Infantry PIO

Basketball dribbling within the 23rd Infantry this past week sounded like the staccato of machine gun fire due to a loss to the 87th Infantry department on the 19th by a mere two points scored in the closing seconds of the game. In view of this loss, the team fared very well on field goals and ball control. In the free throw department the losses were heavy.

GIs Squeak Seminarians By One Point

By 11th Inf PIO

Fifty men from the 11th Infantry made a Day of Recollection at Saint Joseph's Seminary, Holy Trinity, Ala., January 21. The spiritual conferences were given by Father Dominic Cangemi of the Trinitarian Fathers.

The day began with High Mass followed by a spiritual conference, and then lunch. At the conclusion of the afternoon conference, Benediction was given. The GIs met the seminarians on the basketball court at 3 p.m. At the end of the first half, the GIs were trailing by nineteen points, but a hard fought second half resulted in a GI victory of 42 to 41.

Dinner was served at 6 p.m. The guests were the acting Post Chaplain, Chaplain (Lieutenant Colonel) Edward Curran, the Division Catholic Chaplain, Chaplain (Major) Clement P. J. Krug, and the 11th Infantry Catholic Chaplain, Chaplain (Lieutenant) Francis X. McCarthy. Father George, the Superior at Saint Joseph's Seminary, spoke to the men of the 11th and wished them God's blessings for their tour in Korea.

Club Prepares Three-Act Play For Production

Tryouts for the Service Club 2 forthcoming production "At War with the Army", will continue January 31 at 7 p.m. at the Sand Hill service club.

Readings for the three act comedy - farce, written by James B. Allardice, were held January 17 and January 24. Production dates for the play will be March 19, 26, and 27 at Service Club 2.

The director of the production, Lieutenant Nelson L. Marsh of the 9th Infantry, announced that rehearsals will commence February 7. The cast will rehearse twice a week on Tuesdays and Thursdays.

Lieutenant Marsh, who directed "A Hatful of Rain" last August for the service club urges all interested personnel — whether military or civilian —to try for a part in the play. "At War with the Army" will contain a cast of 11 men and three women. No parts have been definitely cast as yet, the director announced.

Avn Capt Gets Special Rating

By Avn PIO

Captain Louis H. Jacquay of the division's 2d Aviation Company was awarded the Special Instrument Rating recently.

The special instrument card is awarded to those Army aviators that have flown a sufficient amount of instrument time under actual weather conditions. This special card gives the aviator authority to clear his flights under all weather conditions.

Captain Jacquay is a Senior Army Aviator with over 2100 flying hours and is qualified to fly all the aircraft attached to the 2nd Infantry Division.

Lieutenant Colonel Robert E. McGraw, division aviation officer, has selected Capt. Jacquay to attend the Instrument Examiners School at Fort Rucker, Alabama. He departed for this assignment January 17.

THROUGH THE RANKS

James A. Garfield, the 20th President of the United States, went off to war as a lieutenant colonel of the Ohio volunteers and performed so brilliantly that at the age of 21 he became the youngest brigadier general.

EXHIBITION SUNDAY . . . These girls, members of the Hazel Walker professional Arkansas Travelers basketball team, will meet the league leading Infantry Center Troop Command quintet and another unannounced post team Sunday evening at Briant Wells Field House. Admission to the 7 p.m. program is free for all military and civilians.

Boxing Team Will Travel To Florida

The post Boxing Team will participate in the 18th Annual Golden Gloves Amateur Boxing Tournament at the New Sports Coliseum in Jacksonville, Fla., Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, January 30 to February 1.

The tournament, which is open to all amateur boxers in the South who are 16 years of age and over, will have competition in both the Novice and Open Divisions.

The bouts will offer a galaxy of awards including championship, runner-up and third place team trophies, Best Boxer Trophy, individual golden gloves to the winners and silver gloves to the runner-up in each weight class. Awards will be the same in both divisions.

Individual jackets and boxing trunks will be presented to the eight Open Class champions, who will be sent to New York to participate in the Eastern Golden Gloves Championships later this year.

The deadline for entries in the boxing program is 2 p.m. Monday, January 30. Official weigh-ins and physical exams will be held from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m., the same day as the deadline and the opening bouts.

Retired Major In Fish, Game Coordinator Job

Major (Ret.) Roy T. Johnson, who retired from active duty last February and has served as chief of the Game Management Program at the A. P. Hill, Va., military reservation since then, has been employed as Fish and Wildlife coordinator on post.

As a civilian member of the G-1 Section, The Infantry Center, he will serve on the post's Fish and Wildlife Board as a member without vote. He will be responsible for conduct of the reservation fish and game program in cooperation with the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

Crackling fires and hot coffee were much appreciated by some hundred post anglers who visited Johnson's Pond last Sunday to try for messes of rainbow trout.

"Opening day" conditions were less than ideal for the stalking of the little pond's complement of 1,200 fat trout. The reservation came in for its share of low temperatures and lines kept freezing to the rod guides, stiffened reel grease made operation of some reels less than easy.

Despite the adverse conditions 75 trout were taken, most of which fell to small spinning lures.

The fishing comes as a special program provided by the Post Fish and Game Maintenance Association through cooperation of the officials of Georgia state fish hatcheries.

Each year the state has provided trout plantings which were first put into Pine Knot Creek. These creek plantings didn't work out because the fish took off for parts unknown and it was finally decided to put them into Johnson's near the intersection of Shimanski Trail and Cactus Road.

At first, any bait was permissible but it was found that little sport was experienced in hauling out the hatchery-bred trout which were just waiting to be fed.

This year it was decided to limit trout fishing to use of artifical lures only. This will require a bit more skill and, because the fish won't be removed wholesale, they'll get a chance to get acclimated and provide more challenge to angler ability.

The daily bag limit has been set at six fish per angler per day and the little pond will be open for fishing on days indicated by the Range Control Section. Johnson's is smack in the middle of a big training area — and training comes first — so don't forget to contact the Section at 5-4091 if you want to go out for a lick.

Doughboys And Auburn Play Twice

Seventeen hopefuls turned out for soccer practice at Doughboy Stadium only a few hours after a plea for players was made by The Infantry Center Special Services Sports Office.

Reports indicate the number will increase when the Doughboy soccer team takes to the practice field for a scrimmage session.

A call for soccer players was given at a meeting of major unit athletic and recreation officers and non-commissioned officers by Capt. Charles M. Todd, sports officer.

Sfc Arthur Lunt, his assistant, reported two games have been scheduled with the Auburn University Soccer Club. The games will be on a home-and-come basis. No definite dates have been announced.

Meanwhile, at Doughboy Stadium players continue conditioning practices, sharpening reflexes, loosening fight body muscles and getting the feel of the field.

OC LYBRAND

Enlisting in the Army in 1959, he went to Germany with the Army

Officer Candidate John G. Lybrand of the 52d Company, 5th Student Battalion, The Student Brigade, may be one of the fastest track runners on post.

Born in 1940 at Bristol, Va., he soon moved with his family to Bradenton, Fla., where he attended high school and started running for record.

It was in high school that he made his first mark in the mile run, with a time of four minutes, 23 seconds as a member of the school's champion mile relay team.

In 1958, in AAU competion, he chopped four seconds off his time for the mile by whizzing home in 4:19.

After high school, Candidate Lybrand entered The Citadel, and continued to take part in distance running events. He set a freshman record for the cross country race.

He ran in an area championship race, and then the European Championship meet. His time for these 1,500 meter runs was 3:56 — fast enough to be considered outstanding by other participants and observers.

While attending OCS there is little time for outside competition, but OC Lybrand manages to run around the Airborne training area each evening, and always sets the record for company and inter-company events.

Last year he won the annual cross country race held at Benning, and plans to try again this year.

Candidate Lybrand expects to graduate in April, and to continue his Army career.

Troop Command

Cage Tourney Leaders Hold Loss-Free Record

The Infantry Center SPORTS FOLLOW ME

The Infantry Center Troop Command basketball quintet strengthened its hold on first place in the major unit league during last week's action at Briant Wells Field House, notching three wins to keep its undefeated record intact.

With two victories last week, The Student Brigade moved into second place ahead of the 1st Battle Group, 29th Infantry. 1st Infantry Brigade, which split with a loss last week and one win this week through Wednesday's standings.

Keeping hold on the fourth spot in the league was the 428th Medical Battalion, which also split in two encounters, while the 2nd Howitzer Battalion, 10th Artillery, 1st Infantry Brigade, tied for fifth place, adding one win and two losses to its record.

Also coming out on the short end of tilts last week and early this week were the 1st Armored Rifle Battalion, 58th Infantry, 1st Infantry Brigade, which dropped one, and the 151st Engineer Group, with three losses through last Tuesday's games.

This week's games show the 10th Artillery scheduled for two more games; the 428th Medics, 151st Engineers and 29th Infantry, each with one more game, and Troop Command, Student Brigade and the 58th Infantry with one game each.

A major change in the basketball league went into effect Tuesday with rescheduling of games from Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays to Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Thursdays of each week, with games remaining at 6:30 and 8 p.m.

Troop Command, which won three games last week, 76-41 over the engineers, 87-60 over the medics and 81-53 over the 58th Infantry, met the artillery in a night cap last night.

Tuesday's games saw the 29th Infantry score 85 points against for the engineers, and the medics gain a 93-45 win against the artillery team.

Wednesday night The Student Brigade met the engineers, and the 58th Infantry played against the artillerymen.

In the early game last night, the 29th Infantry was scheduled to play the medics.

Other scorers from last week were Student Brigade, 75, artillery 76, engineers, 59.

29th Infantry 68 and the artillery 76, engineers, 59.

Come From Behind

Post Keglers Win Series Over Eglin

The Post Men's Bowling Team, staging a comeback from a 25-pin deficit, swept a two-part series over Eglin Air Force Base in the second half of the competition last Saturday at the Bowling Center.

Infantry Center Keglers tripped a pinfall of 2,655—101 pins better than the Air Force team's 2,557—to gain their first win of the year. This is the first completed match. Another match, half over, with Warner Robins AFB, is scheduled for completion tomorrow.

Pfc Jack Walsh rolled the high series for the Benning team, a solid 538. He also rolled the second and third highest games of the afternoon, a 206 and 202. Capt. James Buskoski was the second high series bowler with a 540, which included the high game of 207. Sgt. Jack Kiggins rolled the third high series of 526.

In Eglin's pinfall of 2,557 were high series of 529, 525 and 517. The three highest games bowled for the Air Force squad were 186, 183 and a 182.

The post team seeks its second win of the season with no series defeats, tomorrow when it hosts the Warner-Robins squad at the Bowling Center. The match is scheduled for 2 p.m.

The visiting Air Force team, like the Eglin squad, carries an edge in total pinfall of 46 pins, in the first half of the series, which was rolled January 14 at Warner-Robins, the host team scored a 2,878 while the Benning team fired a 2,832.

Basketball

WAC Team Bows Twice To Marines

The Fort Benning Women's Army Corps basketball team suffered a double defeat over the weekend, losing 37-34 and 39-29 to the Women Marines from Parris Island.

The games were played at Briant Wells Field House last Saturday and Sunday.

Pfc Earlene Surles paced the WAC sextet with 21 points Saturday and also was the high scorer Sunday with 20 points.

These were wins 10 and 11 for the Women Marines, who sport undefeated records.

STANDINGS . . . Major Unit Basketball League standings, through Tuesday's games are:

Team	W	L
Troop Command	3	0
Student Brigade	6	1
29th Infantry	6	2
428th Medics	5	5
10th Artillery	2	7

Civilians Get Wage Meeting

Approximately 200 civilian employees in foreman positions will be subject to changes in the Wage Board Supervisory Pay Plan approved by the Army-Air Force Wage Board, Washington, D. C., which prescribes and approves all plans affecting wages or grades of civilian employees paid on an hourly basis.

No employee will lose pay as a result of the revision, which applies to lead foreman, foreman and general foreman positions, according to William A. Buzbee, chief of the Salary and Wage Division, Infantry Center Civilian Personnel Section Laundry and Army Field Printing Plant employees are not affected by the changes.

Buzbee plans a detailed orientation to Fort Benning employees concerned next week. He will explain major features of the revision, which include: reduction in the number of pay steps rates from four to three by elimination of the fourth or merit step rate. Administrative step increases will no longer be utilized to recognize superior performance of employees.

No change in grade will result from this revision.

Linguist

Maybe He Even Digs Americans

If the 52nd Officer Candidate Company, 5th Student Battalion, The Student Brigade, ever needs an interpreter of European languages they have the answer in the person of Officer Candidate Jan F. Sveen, a native of Oslo, Norway.

OC Sveen came to this country in 1957. He acquired schooling and travel in Europe, and has the ability to read, speak, and write Norwegian, Swedish, Danish, Icelandic, German, French and English.

Upon arriving in New York City in September, 1957, he immediately registered in Boston University, and graduated from the School of Business Administration in 1959. While attending college he skied for two years on the varsity team.

For a brief period before entering the service he taught Norwegian at a school of language in Boston. He entered the Army in September 1959 and received his basic at Fort Dix. After several months in Korea he reported to Officer Candidate School in October 1960.

The annual business meeting of the West Point Society of Columbus will be held on January 31 in the Salerno Mess.

A social hour beginning at 8 p.m. will precede the business meeting, which will be held from 6-7 p.m.

All members of the Society, and those graduates and former cadets of the Academy who are not members are being urged to attend by Major Gen. (Ret.) F. E. Gallagher, president of the Society. Gen. Gallagher said that many new items of business will be up for discussion at the meeting including election of new officers and committee reports.

Dress for the affair will be informal.

Doctors Begin Aid to Buena Vista

Post authorities have received written approval from the Georgia Medical Association for physicians from Martin Army Hospital to aid Buena Vista in controlling an outbreak of hepatitis.

The first visit by the Army physicians will be made after duty hours today.

Without a doctor since the first of the year, the nearby community recently issued an appeal for medical aid.

Physicians at the hospital volunteered to help if approval by proper authorities could be obtained.

The Surgeon Says

Normal Seasonal Health Problems

BY MAJOR ROBERT H. QUINN

At the present time personnel of post and the adjacent area are experiencing typical seasonal health problems such as head colds, gastroenteritis and influenza. To assist in the care of these diseases, prevent exposure of others and reduce the number of hospital visits, the following information is provided:

HEAD COLDS

This condition with associated nasal congestion and coughing, appears to be longer in duration than is usually the case and frequently develops into "chest colds." Experience has shown that this condition is best treated by bed rest in a moderately warm, ventilated room.

Aspirin or APC tables or capsules should be taken as required (dependent on age of patient) for control of temperature and general relief of symptoms. Cough syrup in moderate amounts should be taken if coughing is bothersome and disturbs rest.

The patient should drink large amounts of liquids (water, fruit juice, etc.). The duration of the acute stage of this condition is usually three to five days if bed rest and above treatment is followed; however, some nasal discharge and coughing may persist up to four weeks.

GASTROENTERITIS

This disease now prevailing is caused by a virus and the usual symptoms are nausea and diarrhea. The disease does not respond to antibiotics (wonder drugs) and should be treated by bed rest and by following the directions indicated for "head colds" with substitution of diarrhea mixture for cough medicine.

In addition, the diet should consist of soft foods without roughage. This disease lasts from one to three days if the treatment indicated above is followed.

(NOTE: In the case of infants and young children — with diarrhea, you should call the hospital pediatric clinic (4-1201, 4-1801).

INFLUENZA

This disease is characterized by fever which may range from 100 - 104 degrees, generalized weakeness and muscular aching; a cough is often present and there may be a moderate sore throat. This disease is also caused by a virus which does not respond to antibiotics (wonder drugs), sulfa drugs or other specific medications.

Vaccination against influenza is advised only before epidemics, not during epidemics. The treatment for this condition is again bed rest and the other treatment indicated for "head colds." This disease lasts from two to five days if the treatment indicated above is followed.

GENERAL ADVICE

Dependents are requested to refrain from going to the hospital clinic for treatment of the above conditions because of the following:

The conditions indicated (unless complications develop) can be adequately treated at home.

There is danger of passing the diseases to others by crowding the hospital clinic waiting rooms.

Additional patients prolong the waiting time for patients whose illness may be helped by visits to the hospital clinic.

The visit to the hospital will not result in any advantage to you since the course of the disease is ordinarily self-limited by following the treatment indicated at home.

Exposure to the cold, damp air is inadvisable.

(NOTE: If the disease does not appear to respond to the treatment prescribed, as shown by a rise in temperature, profuse diarrhea or other alarming symptoms, individual should report to the hospital clinic.)

MEDICATION

Medicines referred to above (aspirin, APC's, cough medicine, or diarrhea mixture) which will make the patient more comfortable by lessening symptoms, may be obtained at the Hospital Pharmacy by an adult member of the family, without prescription, for the period of duration of these seasonal diseases. Those requesting medicines will inform the Pharmacy as to the age of the person requiring same.

REAP the difference in PREMIUM Royalcaps
What you DON'T SEE makes the difference
RUBBER
You don't see the difference between ordinary rubber and Deluxe U. S. Rubber Co. cold rubber, but that difference is measured in extra miles that mean better tire value. You don't see the perfection, the freedom from defects of every casing chosen to bear the Royalcaps Label—but that perfection spells dependability and long wear.
EQUIPMENT
You don't see the automatic treadbuilder, the modern steam curing molds, high speed buffer — but Royalcaps are produced in one of the best equipped plants in the Southeast. The Equipment makes the difference between a Premium Royalcap and other retreads.
ABILITY
You don't see the deft and knowing hands that handle every detail in the making of a Royalcap—but exceptional ability is the mark of every technician in the Royal Tire Service recapping plant, and every man takes pride in producing the best recap on the market.
PRECISION
You don't see the "Coordinated Dimensions" which measure the safings for every Royalcap mold. Every tire is different in size and for every Royalcap the mold is adjusted specifically for that tire —to microscopic precision. You don't see such precision — but it makes the difference in Royalcaps.

Gen. Surles Makes Awards On February 2

Brig. Gen. A. D. Surles Jr., deputy commanding general of The Infantry Center will present Work Simplification Certificates to 62 personnel in supervisory positions at a ceremony in Wharton Hall February 2.

Twenty-eight civilian employees, six officer and 28 enlisted men will receive the certificates in recognition of time, money and labor-saving ideas they submitted after completion of 10-hour work simplification courses at the post last year.

Savings or benefits of approximately $38,000 were realized from ideas.

Engineer Training Aids Local History

The post is joining Columbus representatives of the Georgia Historical Society in their attempts to determine the condition of the old Confederate gunboat sunk in the Chattahoochee River within the reservation boundary.

Personnel of the 151st Engineer Group, commanded by Col. S. Y. Coker, are using a bulldozer to partially expose the old craft.

Major George Hutchings, operations officer of the 151st, is directing the unit's assistance. Major H. G. Weigand, of The Infantry Center Engineer Section, is the engineer coordinator for the project.

The old gunboat, the "Chattahoochee," is estimated to be approximately 150 feet long and 40 feet wide. It lies at a right angle with the river, with almost one-third of its length buried in the post side of the river bank.

A temporary road has been cleared to where the sunken craft lies. Work has been started with a bulldozer to partially uncover the prow of the boat buried in the bank. Water pumps furnished by post engineers then will be used to wash additional dirt from the craft so its condition may be determined.

If the old derelict is found to be in salvagable condition, the Georgia Historical Commission plans to renovate it and make it one of the featured attractions of a proposed Confederate Naval Museum at Columbus.

Sergeants Elected Officers

Barracks 113, Association of Regular Army Sergeants, recently elected a new slate of officers to pilot the organization for 1961.

Elected to the board of trustees were Sgt. Robert E. Fishburn, Reception Station; MSgt. Charles E. Lindsey, Company B, Infantry School Battalion, The Student Brigade; and MSgt. John L. Hicks, 122nd Signal Battalion.

Plans are being formulated for the formal installation of the new officers, the date of which will be announced later.

Know Your Supergrades

Recently promoted to E-8, MSgt Henry J. Hand, first sergeant of the 41st (Airborne) Company, 4th Student Battalion of The Student Brigade, has the distinction of being the first supergrader promoted in the unit in 1961, and the first since the Brigade has been commanded by Col. Otto J. Koch, Jr.

Sgt. Hand entered the Army in 1942, and took his basic training at Camp Blanding, Fla.

He volunteered for airborne training in 1943, and became a cadre member of the 517th Regimental Combat Team at Camp Toccoa, Ga.

Later in 1943 he was assigned to the 82nd Airborne Division in Europe, where he remained for the duration of WW II.

Following the war, Sgt. Hand served in Alabama on reserve-component duty until his discharge in 1946.

After three years as a civilian, Sgt. Hand was once again on duty at Benning in 1948, where he became a first sergeant in the Ranger Department of The Infantry School, then called Airborne Ranger companies.

In late 1951, he was assigned to the 508th Ranger Combat Team here, where he served until March, 1954. During this period he served as first sergeant, battalion sergeant major, and finally regimental sergeant major.

Overseas in 1954, he served as first sergeant of the 82nd Ordnance Company, and then was transferred to Japan as post sergeant major at Camp Chigammui.

He returned to the States for a brief time, with the 187th Airborne to Fort Bragg, but quickly returned to Japan with the 540th Parachute Company as first sergeant.

In January, 1959, Sgt. Hand was again at Benning, with the Airborne Department in his present assignment. He is now expecting new orders.

Sgt. Hand has been a master jumper since 1951.

The Male Bag

DEAR SARGE

DEAR SARGE: I am the wife of an Army officer. My problem is a decision I must make about our teenage daughter. She is a junior in high school this year and has asked for a strapless evening gown for the school's spring formal. My question is simply this. Is she old enough to wear a strapless gown.

UNDECIDED

UNDECIDED: If she is big enough to hold it up she is old enough to wear it.

DEAR SARGE: Do you believe in long engagements? Well, I've been going with a sergeant on the post for almost nine years now. He has been overseas, and back again, but we wrote the entire time he was away. I keep telling him it is time we were married, but he always has a reason why we should wait a while longer. I am beginning to wonder if we'll ever get married. What do you think?

LONG WAIT

LONG WAIT: Its a long game for a name.

DEAR SARGE: I've got the meanest first sergeant in the Army. I'm a private, just finished basic and have been assigned to my company only two months. The first sergeant is always on me about my area in the barracks, about the way my uniform looks, the way my shoes are shined, or something else. Yesterday he "chewed" me good and finished up by saying I had just about made the top of his list. What did he mean by that?

PRIVATE

PRIVATE: Shape up or ship out!

DEAR SARGE: I've been going steady with an Army specialist for the past six months and we became engaged last month. Just a few evenings ago we were in my apartment and he started to get fresh with me. I told him I wouldn't stand for it and he would have to behave. He just got mad and said if I didn't want passes I shouldn't display my figure so much with the type of clothes I was wearing. Could he be right about my dress?

OFFENDED

Infantry Chorus Seeks Members

The Infantry Chorus is currently conducting a recruiting program for new members. Several engagements are in the planning stage for the chorus, both on and off post.

Personnel desiring to participate in the chorus may contact the recreation and entertainment branch, The Infantry Center Special Services Office, by calling 5-3512 or 5-1702.

PHELPS

POSEY

Annette Phelps has been secretary to The Infantry Center G-1 since last September. She previously held a secretarial job with the Infantry Board for a year and a half.

A resident of Phenix City, she attended Central High School and studied for two years at Troy State College, Troy, Ala.

Theodore E. Posey is chief of the Automatic Data Processing Systems Division, Office of the Comptroller, The Infantry Center. He has held his present position since February, 1958.

Altogether Posey has 21 years experience at Fort Benning, having served in the Ordnance Section and in other assignments with the Comptroller since 1940.

He is a graduate of Columbus Industrial Night School, now known as Jordan High, and is a lifelong resident of Columbus.

Though he doesn't work with electronic data machines, he is responsible for testing data processing equipment and recommending machines for specific uses.

Center Names Lt. Viau to Job

First Lt. Wallace E. Viau has been named chief of the Personal Affairs Branch of The Infantry Center Adjutant General's Section.

Begins Sunday

Catholic Family Life Conference Scheduled Here

A Catholic Institute on Leadership Development and Family Life will be conducted beginning Sunday to February 1 in Buildings 1102 and 1003, in the old hospital area.

Sponsored by the Department of the Army and the Family Life Bureau of the National Catholic Welfare Conference, the institute will be staffed with experts in their respective fields.

Topics to be considered in group sessions include counseling, Christian leadership, vocations, the Catholic child, chastity, and family and personal problems.

Two groups sessions are scheduled for Sunday. From 2 to 5:30 p.m. there will be a conference for married couples and from 7:30 to 10:30 p.m. a conference for unmarried people.

The Institute team will be composed of Father Gerard J. Murphy, S. J., Professor of Sociology at St. Peter's College in New Jersey; Father Timothy A. Curtin, S.J., assistant to the Jesuit Provincial in New York; Mr. and Mrs. Edward Schneider of New York; Dr. (Major) Robert Quinn, Chief of the Preventive Medicine Division on Post; and Capt. Fergus Monaghan of the Mental Hygiene Section on Post.

Mr. and Mrs. Schneider are the parents of five children and are active leaders in the New York area in the Christian Family movement, a movement of socially active Catholic couples which numbers more than a hundred thousand families in the U.S. and has been transplanted into Europe, Africa and South America. Mr. Schneider was a three letter man at Manhattan College and played professional football with the New York Football Giants.

MR. AND MRS. SCHNEIDER AND FAMILY

In order that everyone may have an opportunity to attend the conferences, the Chaplain Section has arranged for Tot Town nursery to be open during all of the conferences. The tab for the nursery will be paid for by the Chaplain Section.

Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday from 9 to 11 a.m., there will be conferences on counseling for officers and non-commissioned officers. At the same time, enlisted men will meet to discuss the "Call to Serve." The two groups are scheduled to hold follow-up sessions at 10 a.m. Wednesday.

Joint conferences for married and single women will be held Monday and Tuesday from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m.

Separate conferences for Catholic young people in the seventh, eighth and ninth grades and in the 10th, 11th, and 12th grades will be conducted at 6:30 p.m. Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Two workshops are planned for Monday night at 8 p.m. One group will be comprised of married couples and the other of unmarried people. The groups will meet again on Tuesday night at 7:30.

The schedule of masses during the conference includes:

SUNDAY — Main Post Catholic Chapel, 7,8,9,10 and 11 a.m.; Hospital Chapel, 8 a.m.; 1st Infantry Brigade Chapel, 9:30 a.m. and 12:15 p.m.; Harmony Church Chapel 1, 9 a.m.; Harmony Church Chapel 2, 10 a.m., and The Student Brigade Chapel, 11:15 a.m.

MONDAY — Main Post Catholic Chapel, 6:45 a.m. and 12 noon, and 1st Infantry Brigade Chapel, 5 p.m.

TUESDAY—Main Post Catholic Chapel, 6:45 a.m. and 12 noon, and The Student Brigade Chapel, 5:50 p.m.

WEDNESDAY — Main Post Catholic Chapel, 6:45 a.m. and 12 noon, and 1st Infantry Brigade Chapel, 6 p.m.

Korean Officers Visit

Ten Republic of Korea Army officers, including seven generals, are observing newly developed techniques and training at The Infantry School.

They are Brig. Gen. Chungkwon Chang, commanding general, Capital Division; Brig. Gen. Heejoon Kim, commanding general, 32nd Reserve Division; Brig. Gen. Dangwook Han, deputy commanding general, III Corps; Brig. Gen. Kyoungman Choi, deputy commanding general, II Corps; Brig. Gen. Kyongwon Pak, commanding general, 50th Reserve Division; Brig. Gen. Kyungsoon Chang, director of training, Office of the Deputy Chief of Staff for Operations; Brig. Gen. Saeho Lee, commanding general, 26th Infantry Division; Col. Changwook Paik, chief, Security Division, Office of the Deputy Chief of Staff for Intelligence and Col. Dougsam Cho, training guidance officer, and Lt. Col. Jaehoo Kim, director of training, both of the Office of the Deputy Chief of Staff for Operations.

IG Conference

Lt. Col. Robert F. Galer, inspector general of The Infantry Center is attending an inspectors general orientation course in Washington, D. C. The conference is expected to end today.

The American Red Cross handled 11,539 cases involving servicemen and their dependents during 1960, according to John A. Cramer, Red Cross field director at the post.

Cramer, in an annual report to Major Gen. Hugh P. Harris, commanding general of The Infantry Center, indicated that in almost 1,000 of these cases more than one type of service was extended. This overlapping increased the number of services extended to 12,497, broken down into major areas in the report.

As the Army's official agency for informing personnel in the event of family emergencies, the Red Cross helped, in 2,697 cases, obtain leave and extension of leave when soldiers were needed at home. Generally, soldiers, upon entering the Army, are requested to inform their families to reach them, in case of emergency, through the Red Cross.

The field office assisted, in 425 cases, veterans and dependents obtain discharge and government benefits.

The 2,333 cases at the post during the calendar year, the Red Cross extended its reporting service. At the request of families or of servicemen, inquiries were made as to welfare of persons who had ceased communicating. These cases included hospital or doctor's reports or family statements.

Counseling on personal problems was given in 2,522 cases and on family problems in 3,777 cases. Other services extended to post personnel during the year numbered 743 cases.

According to Cramer's report, financial assistance was given by the Red Cross in 1,284 cases at Fort Benning in the amount of $77,814. Aid in cases of emergency leave accounted for $54,804 of this sum, family assistance, $22,415, and personal needs $594.

The Red Cross staff at Fort Benning consists of 18 professional and seven clerical workers. There are offices at Sand Hill, Martin Army Hospital and the Main Post. Service was maintained on a 24-hour per day basis throughout the year.

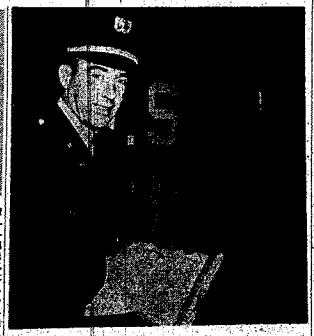
Gen. Walsh's Infantry School Report

The Weapons Department of The Infantry School is organized with a department headquarters and four instructional committees. The department is directed by Col. S. T. McDowell. The Weapons Department is the largest instructional department in The Infantry School and is currently authorized 154 officers, 13 graded civilians, and 507 enlisted personnel.

Col. McDowell has been the Weapons Department director since June 1957. He has continually stressed the point that "weapons are only as good as the men who employ them, and these men are only as good as their instruction."

The department director is assisted by the deputy department director, Col. C. M. Freedendorf and a staff which is headed by the department executive officer, Lt. Col. Blackburn Stephens. The staff of the Weapons Department headquarters is organized into four sections: the Administrative Section, the Research and Analysis Section, the Operations Section and a Budget and Supply Section.

The four instructional committees are each headed by a committee chairman. The largest committee is the Small Arms Committee which is headed by Lt. Col. Robert A. Gaenther. The Machinegun Committee chairman is Lt. Col. David B. Wright. The Anti-tank Missile Committee has Lt. Col. Lester E. O'Riley as its chairman and the Mortar Committee chairman is Lt. Col. Thomas B. Ross.



Each committee is further subdivided into teams and each is headed by a team leader. The members of these teams in each committee are considered the "workhorses" and they are the experts on their specific weapon or weapons. Many officers by their competent work and knowledge of a weapon or a weapons system have become known as Capt. Trainfire, Capt. SS-10, Lt. 4.2-inch Mortar or Major Machinegun at The Infantry School.

CWO FITCH LOGS IN THOUSANDTH HOUR
Symbolically The Helicopter Shows Number 1000

May Hold Army Record

'Copter Pilot Scores a First

CWO Ralph M. Fitch Jr., 1st Aviation Company, Lawson Army Aviation Command, has just logged in his 1000th hour as first pilot on the Army's H-37 helicopter.

He is believed to be the first Army aviator to hit the thousand mark in the twin-engine H-37, the Army's largest operational cargo helicopter.

The warrant officer's flying career has paralleled the growth of Army aviation as a source of mobility for the ground combat forces since the early 1950s as he has flown everything from the tiny "Hornet" ram-jet helicopter to the giant "Flying Crane."

A 13-year Army veteran, CWO Fitch is an instrument-rated senior Army aviator with over 4,500 flying hours in his log book. He earned his wings in late 1952 and then served a year here on post with the 508th Helicopter Company.

His next assignment took him to Eniwetok Atoll in the Pacific where he island-hopped his "choppers" in conjunction with atomic tests being conducted.

In May 1964 he returned to White Sands Proving Grounds in New Mexico flying the helicopters in support of the

USO To Mark 20th Birthday

Col. Pavick To Represent Fort Benning

Fort Benning representatives will take part in a program marking the 20th Anniversary of the United Service Organizations, tomorrow at the Ninth Street USO beginning at 8 p.m.

Major Gen. Hugh P. Harris, commanding general of The Infantry Center, will be represented by Col. John J. Pavick, G-1, at special cake cutting and anniversary ceremonies, and entertainment will be provided by post entertainers through arrangements with Special Services.

A Birthday Ball, with music by Gertrude Handley's Orchestra, will be held at 9 p.m.

MRS. PATTERSON
Will Present Award

Patterson Award Winner Named

A 23-year-old second lieutenant who traveled all the way from Fort Bragg to lead his Platoon in the Army Alaska's "Willow Freeze" maneuver and war games is headed south again.

Named winner of the Patterson Memorial Award, 2nd Lt. Howard R. Mosley will leave Alaska, and his unit, the 1st Airborne Battle Group, 187th Infantry, 82nd Airborne Division, to return to Benning for honor ceremonies scheduled February 11.

Lt. Mosley was named for the award following his selection as the top officer candidate graduate in Fiscal Year 1960. He was the Honor Graduate of The Infantry School's Officer Candidate Class 1-60, which graduated in December 1959.

The award is made annually to the outstanding soldier-graduate of the Infantry Officer Candidate School. Each year there are approximately four OCS graduating classes, each with an honor graduate. At the end of the year the records of each honor graduate are reviewed by the Department of the Army, with one man selected as top of the outstanding group.

First presented in January 1953, the Patterson Memorial Award consists of a scroll, inscribed service pistol and $250.

Dog Handler Swaps To Chimps For Space Probe Special Duty

Sp5 Clyde R. Preest is on a temporary duty special assignment with the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's "Project Mercury," which is the multi-million dollar program to place a human into space orbit.

The Army specialist, a combat Infantryman and a veteran of the Korean conflict, has been with the 26th Infantry Scout Dog Platoon — which is attached to the 1st Battle Group, 29th Infantry, 1st Infantry Brigade — for five years.

His selection for the "Project Mercury" assignment was based on his experience in handling animals for the past five years. He was selected to assist in caring for, handling, and training the chimpanzee that would proceed man into space.

SPACE CHIMP

Sp5 Preest departed post in October for Holloman Air Force Base in New Mexico where he attended a two week course in the care, training and handling of the chimps.

Following the course he returned to Benning for a month then was ordered to Cape Canaveral, Fla., where he will do his part in the completion of the mission of "Project Mercury."

His duties on the special assignment have carried him to Norfolk, Va., and Newport, R.I. in the past weeks.

ons Department permits the department to carry on its various and complex missions:

First mission is to prepare and present resident instruction on all infantry weapons to include related ammunition, fire control instruments and equipment. During Fiscal Year 1961, the Weapons Department will participate in twelve different type courses, ranging from the Career Course to the Allied Pre-course Orientation.

The second mission is to develop doctrine and techniques pertinent to infantry weapons and initiate material requirements.

The third mission is to prepare and revise pertinent Programs of Instruction, Field Manuals, Training Circulars, Special Texts, Army Training Programs and Tests.

The fourth mission is to conduct evaluation, user tests and studies, and prepare recommendations, replies, and reports on matters and material related to infantry weapons.

One example of a Weapons Department project is the Multilite Sight which is a Small Arms Committee project. The Multilite Aiming System permits a gunner to deliver accurate fire at night with a direct fire weapon. It was developed and preliminary testing was conducted by personnel of this department. Continuing liaison has been effected with Springfield Armory, civilian contractors, the Infantry Board and other agencies during Ordnance engineering tests and Continental Army Command Board Service tests.

Fifth mission of the department is to maintain liaison by means of correspondence and visits to other service schools, units in the field and other agencies.

The sixth mission is to present weapons demonstrations and orientations for military, civilian and allied visitors.

In addition to the above missions, each year the Weapons Department conducts a Small Arms Firing School at Camp Perry, Ohio, in conjunction with the National Rifle and Pistol Matches.

The preponderance of the Weapons Department instruction is given out of doors on ranges extending from the close in ranges on Dixie Road to Wallis Range which is about 18 miles from the Main Post. The Department performs the major portion of maintenance on these including rebuilding of firing lines, installation and repair of targets, planting grass and digging drainage ditches. The Weapons Department is known as the "Do It Yourself Department."

USO

USO to provide recreational, religious, spiritual, social and educational needs of Armed Forces members. These six are the Young Men's Christian Association, National Catholic Community Service, National Jewish Welfare Board, Young Women's Christian Association, The Salvation Army and the National Traveler's Aid Association.

Tomorrow's birthday program, according to club director William J. Gabel, will turn the tables on the USO organization and its volunteers.

"All year long, the USO is operated for servicemen and women," Gabel said, "and tomorrow they are honoring us."

A similar program is scheduled next week at the Fifth Street USO, another of the three local branches. The third is the Traveler's Aid USO, which provides family counseling for service families.

Master of ceremonies for the observance tomorrow evening will be George Gingell, local television executive, and officials invited to take part include Columbus Mayor B. Ed Johnson.

Entertainment from post will include a vocalist, instrumental numbers, a Special Services master of ceremonies, and other selected acts. Two floor shows are scheduled.

On a national scale, USO club activities were abandoned for a short time between World War II and the Koreso conflict, but the Columbus club continued operation throughout the years since it was completed in 1942.

The club auditorium can accomodate 1,200 persons. There are facilities for many forms of recreation and relaxation, including a library, music room, lobby, snack bar and TV area.

In Columbus, the Ninth Street club is maintained by USO and the extended efforts of one member, the National Catholic Community Service, and the Fifth Street club is operated by the USO, YMCA.

Press replied." I found them a constant source of amusement with their incessant chatter, comical expressions and crazy actions. I was greatly impressed with their ability to master simple and complex tasks in order to receive food and water. When they were hungry the Chimps pulled handles and pushed buttons like full-fledged engineers in order to feed themselves."

The little animals possess many of the qualities of man and will be closely observed on the effects of space travel on them. Their recovery following the space flight should be a great step forward in counteracting some of the problems that will face the first U.S. astronauts.

week from this coming Saturday.

Secretary Patterson's Army record shows distinguished service to his country. He enlisted as a private in the New York National Guard in 1915, served on the Mexican Border the following year and rose to the rank of major in France in 1919. As a captain in the 306th Infantry in the Argonne, he earned the Silver Star — the nation's third highest combat decoration — for gallantry and the Purple Heart.

More than 100 of his friends created a fund in the New York Community Trust from which the yearly awards are made.

After serving as assistant secretary of war and undersecretary of war, Secretary Patterson died in a plane crash in New Jersey in January 1952.

Lt. Mosley who is now with his battle group of paratroopers undergoing cold weather training at Fort Richardson, Alaska, entered the Army in August 1955. He served four years as an enlisted man earning the rank of sergeant first class.

He entered officer candidate school here in July 1959. The lieutenant is also a graduate of the Army's Ranger, Airborne and Jumpmaster schools.

"Due to is consistently outstanding performance, professional knowledge, level-headedness, leadership and desire to help others, Lt. Mosley is one of the more highly regarded nucleus of pilots for the Army's four H-37 companies."

Infantry School officials said.

"Throughout the course, he was the top student leadership-wise and stood near the top in academics. He has proven himself strong in physical stamina and coordination by his high Physical Fitness Test scores and his successful completion of Airborne and Ranger schools," they continued.

TO ALL MEMBERS OF THE ARMY:

We deeply appreciate the opportunity to have worked closely with the Army and we are most grateful for the friendliness and the many courtesies and kindness extended to us.

We consider our association with the members of the Army during our service with the Defense Department one of the most stimulating and satisfying experiences of our lives.

We will continue to follow with keen interest the problems of national security and the activities of the Army and will strongly support them in carrying out their vital mission of defending the United States and the Free World.

A request for material on the life of General of the Army George C. Marshall has been sent out by Forrest C. Pogue, director of the George C. Marshall Research Center, Box 831, Lexington, Va. Photographs, letters and papers relating to Gen. Marshall's career are requested for use in an authorized biography which Mr. Pogue is now writing.

New Map-Making Process Tests

Designed to reproduce colored maps, a printing machine using an electrostatic process is under development by the Army Engineer Geodesy, Intelligence and Mapping Research and Development Agency, Fort Belvoir. Electrostatic printing is a new method based on the fundamental phenomenon of the mutual attraction between particles having an opposite electrical charge. A photo-conductive coating applied to paper has the unique property of being an insulator in the dark and a conductor in the light. When combined, these phenomena result in the basic fundamentals required for the new process.

Army Educational Goals Defined

A new regulation on the Army's Program of General Educational Development has been sent to field commanders. The regulation stresses and more clearly defines educational goals for officers, non-commissioned officers, specialist, and other enlisted personnel. It says officers are urged to obtain an undergraduate degree; warrant officers the equivalent of two years of college; and enlisted personnel a high school degree or the equivalent, but this goal is to be especially stressed for NCO's and specialist.

Booklet Describes Japan, Her People

The Office of the Armed Forces Information and Education, Department of Defense, has issued a new up-to-date pocket guide to Japan, designed to acquaint Army personnel headed for the Far East with the people of Nippon, its customs and traditions. Profusely illustrated, the 134-page booklet concisely describes the islands that make up Japan, giving highlights of their history. It provides useful tips for getting around the country and a glossary of common Japanese words for the visitor on his first tour.

Synthetic Skin Experiments

The Army may stand to gain from encouraging experiments with a synthetic skin under research by the Veterans Administration. The material used is a combination of polvinl sponge and silicone rubber, which is rigid when dry but becomes soft, pliable and elastic when moist. These synthetic skin grafts used in animals by the VA have been maintained for periods up to 104 days. The development should prove invaluable in treatment of Army casualties who suffer massive burns.

This Week's Column Closer

Marine Lt. Col. Frederick E. Hughes must believe the old saying, "Build a better mouse trap and the world will beat a path to your door." He has just been awarded a patent for magnetic fishing lure. The jet pilot's new artificial bait takes advantage of the earth's magnet. The fisherman lets his line go slack, the lure turns in the water to align itself with the earth's magnetic poles, and in doing so wiggles with a movement the fish are supposed to find irresistible.

Editorial

Ben Franklin Stands In Greatest Company

(AFPS) — This month will see observances of the birthdays of two great Americans, Washington and Lincoln, and as in former years speakers and editorial writers will be eulogizing their places in the nation's history. That's as it should be, but 255 years ago, on the 17th of January, a man was born in Boston who belongs in their company—yet how many of us pause to think of the enormous and varied contributions Benjamin Franklin made to his time and his country?

For this man's accomplishments, viewed in our own day of professional specialization, seem almost incredible. Printer, author, publisher, inventor, scientist, philosopher, statesman, diplomat—in any one of these fields he would have distinguished himself. His service to the Revolution would itself have made him one of the American immortals, for he helped to draft, and signed, the Declaration of Independence. Throughout the war, his acumen and patience in representing the new nation in France were masterful, and when victory came, wise old Ben Franklin was at hand to help to draft, and sign, the peace treaty.

What lesson is there for us today in this astonishing life? For one thing, its fullness, its richness, it reflection of a complete man driven by an insatiable intellectual curiosity about men and things. He could, as much as any man of his time, be proud of his life, of all he had done for his countrymen. Yet it was Franklin who told his wife, "I wish the good Lord had seen fit to make each day just twice as long as it is. Perhaps then I could actually accomplish something."

Yes, here was a patriot about whom it is impossible to read without getting a new sense of human dimensions and what it means to leave "footsteps on the sands of time." In the great American gallery we should never take him for granted as a stock historical figure.

The Judge Says . . .

(Editor's Note: This is the first in a series of articles to be presented in this column concerning Federal Income Tax.)

WHO MUST FILE

A return must be filed by each citizen of the U.S. if he has a gross income of $600 or more, whether he resides at home or abroad. A return must be filed even though the individual's exemptions and deductions are such that there will be no final tax liability.

As a matter of fact, it may be to the taxpayer's advantage to file a return even if his gross income is less than $600, for it is possible that a refund of taxes is due to him because of amounts withheld from his wages.

The return will serve as his claim or refund.

FORMS AVAILABLE

Three principal forms are available for use by individuals. They are Form 1040 "Punch Card" Form 1040A and the "Wage Earner's" two-page Form 1040W.

DIFFERENT FORMS?

An individual may elect to use Form 1040A, the easiest of the three forms, if his gross income in filing separately (or the combined gross income of husband and wife in the case of a joint return) is less than $10,000 and consists entirely of wages subject to income tax withholding (and reported on Form W-2) and not more than $200 total of other wages, dividends, and interest.

If gross income is $10,000 or more, Form 1040A cannot be used. Form 1040A can not be used by the taxpayer who wishes to itemize deductions, claims exclusion for sick pay, or claims deductions for travel or per diem.

The newest form, Form 1040W, is a streamlined version of the regular 1040.

It is a two page form designed for wage and salary earners who can't use Form 1040A because their income is $10,000 or more, or because they wish to itemize deductions, or claim the dividends exclusion, the dividends received credit, the sick pay exclusions, or estimated tax payments.

This form can also be filed jointly by husband and wife. Form 1040W can not be used if more than $200 is received from dividends and interests.

Form 1040 is the regular long form tax return which can be used by any individual for any situation. The two preceding forms are merely short form exceptions to this basic return.

EXEMPTIONS

Next week "Exemptions" will be discussed in this column and in subsequent weeks we will outline general areas of the tax method.

Any assistance required in your personal tax problems should be received from your unit tax adviser.

Should the unit tax advisor feel that your problem requires further assistance, he will refer you to the Legal Assistance Officer, SJA Section, The Infantry Center. Please contact your Unit Advisor first.

Chain of Command Pictures to Come From Third Army

A message from Third Army last week stressed that requests or questions for chain of command pictures or negatives on the President of the United States, Secretary of Defense and Secretary of the Army should not be made to that headquarters.

The message said these will be furnished and necessary action taken to fulfill station requests as soon as they are available.

Chaplain's Corner

By Chaplain (Capt.) Hugh C. McKeown

Every serious minded person in America today is aware of the frightening dangers of Communism. No longer can it be considered a mere political philosophy. By deed and intent it is a conspiracy — a diabolical way of life with the fixed purpose of degrading human personality to the level of brute beasts. Yet, Communism is but one of the concrete expressions of materialistic atheism.

Even if Communism were destroyed overnight, that which spawned it would still be in our midst. The de-spiritualizing process which has taken place in the world in the last seventy-five years is approach its logical consequences in our own day and age.

The denial of God's right to man's obedience of His Divine laws of Charity and Justice has set up nations in armed opposition threatening the very existence of the human race.

In every country that the godless have undermined and eventually destroyed, they first broke down respect for the laws of God. They made their own laws of right and wrong!

They taught their followers to live by hate. On the other hand, those who believed in God, who followed in their own lives His precept of charity towards all men, instead of opposing these evil designs with good, all too frequently underestimated the dynamism of this immoral way of life. They withdrew into a world apart, abandoning their fellowmen to ruthless oppression.

Materialistic atheism and all its fruits will become a bitter memory of history when men of good will begin to fight fire with fire by unceasingly and relentlessly exposing the deceits of the enemy, by sincerely bringing back into all phases of human relationships respect for and obedience to the laws of God.

It is a truism to say that when men respect the rights of God, they must needs respect the rights of their fellowmen. The two obligations are inseparable. Then, the peace which the world hungers for will come. It's as simple as all that, and it's just as true.

At the Movies

LOOK IN ANY WINDOW—starred in the flick with Paul Anka and Ruth Roman is Gigi Perreau, who is cast as Anka's next - door neighbor as the story of their parents indiscretions unfolds to reveal the true feelings of young people caught up in a society they not only did not create, but of which they do not even approve.

THE GRASS IS GREENER — The story finds a titled Britisher and his countess suddenly involved in a gay and amusing love-game when a touring oil millionaire makes a play for the countess. (Cary Grant and Deborah Kerr).

CIRCLE OF DECEPTION—It stars Suzy Parker and Bradford Dillman. Prior to the Normandy invasion, British intelligence conceived a hoax in which an agent is to be given (unknown to him) false information, sent into occupied France, captured and "broken" by the enemy. The daring counter-plot will set up an Allied trap if the Germans can be deceived.

THE UNFORGIVEN — Burt Lancaster, Audrey Hepburn, Audie Murphy and John Saxon are cast in a western drama. It is a mighty saga of the frontier West, telling of a family's feud with an Indian tribe, the object of the bloody battle being the daughter of the family around whom there's a mystery of birth.

Special Services Host Entertainment Contest

Following post level eliminations, Fort Benning has been selected as the site for the Third Army phase of the annual All-Army Entertainment Contest.

The Army area competition will take place here in March and April, the recorded portion at Service Club 1, and the live presentations at Theater 1.

Each year, the eliminations are conducted to select top-notch entertainers from throughout the Army, to tour installations and record their talent for use around the world.

Benning personnel are preparing now for the post level contest, which will be held in March. The recorded phase is slated for March 10, at Service Club 1, and the live phase will be held first at unit level in all service clubs, and post finals will be held at Theater 1, March 21.

All military personnel with more than 90 days service remaining, except those taking basic training or attending courses of instruction, are eligible to compete.

Complete information for those interested in entering is available at service clubs or Special Services.

CIRCUS AERIAL SENSATION . . . Spain's Carmen Del Teide will star in her dangerous trapeze act for audiences at the Ringling Bros. and Barnum-Bailey Circus which is scheduled for performances at the Municipal Auditorium on February 10-12. Plenty of animals, including a herd of 20 elephants, will be on hand for the children.

Three Arts League Ballet Is Tomorrow

The sensational young ballet group, the Robert Joffrey Ballet of New York, with full orchestra and company of 25, will be presented at the Royal Theater tomorrow evening at 8:30 by the Three Arts League.

The ballet is receiving tremendous acclaim wherever it is seen. The dancers are young, Robert Joffrey is young, and his company's success has been the talk of the artistic world. The ballet was organized in 1956 and its success was instantaneous. During the next three seasons, the company's exciting repertoire and brilliant dancing won rave notices from New York to San Francisco, from Chicago to Seattle in the course of its sold-out tours.

The Robert Joffrey Ballet is a distinctly new kind of dance attraction. Unlike the customary ballet group, there are no "stars" backed by a corps de ballet. Instead, each member of the company is a soloist.

The company is made up of youthful dancers but not inexperienced ones. They were dance stars of the highly-praised production by the New York City Opera of "Orfeo," conducted by Leopold Stokowski. They were flown from New York to Texas last November to dance in the special gala season of the Dallas Civic Opera. Individual dancers have studied and won honors from the finest ballet schools in Europe and America.

His program here, all classical, will include "Pas Des Deesses;" "Pastorale," with music by Charles Turner; and "La Fille Mal Gardee" (The Ill-Guarded Daughter). The music is by Peter Hertel.

The box office is open today at the Ralston Hotel for the sale of tickets. The Ralston telephone number is FA 3-5511. It will move to the Royal Theater tomorrow afternoon.

BOOKS in REVIEW

NOTHING TO DECLARE by Manning Coles. (Doubleday, 1960)

Contains the following stories, all featuring the exploits of the British Special Agent, Thomas Elphinstone Hambledon: The Blue Envelope; It Pays to be Honest; Set a Thief; Out of Luck; An Angel on my Foot; Nothing to Declare; Handcuffs Don't Hold Ghosts; The Case of the Six Indignant Footmen, The Dip; Here Lies; Holiday Romantic; Buyer Collects.

Highlight of Luncheon

Woman's Club 'Comedy Skit'

The Woman's Club luncheon and comedy skit Wednesday at the Main Officers' Open Mess portrayed the theme of a service wife, her travels and troubles, in the decorations and skit entitled "Oh, The Life Of An Army Wife."

Mrs. Douglas Niles, decorations chairman, featured a large modified silver kiosk covered with travel posters. Road signposts, and caricature drawings by Mrs. Joseph H. Devin ("Danila") added to the globe-trotting atmosphere of the club. Danila's caricatures behind the sherry table in the Anzio room expressed the stimulation of travel, sports, homemaking, hostessing, and partying.

Colorful flags decorated the tables in the main dining room. These miniature flags represented the different countries giving an international zest to the occasion. Mesdames Robert S. Rose, Raymond P. Singer and Guy S. Meloy also helped with the decorations.

The skit, narrated by Mrs. Bernard Teeters, began with "Susabella," played by Mrs. Dwight Carr, reading "Army Wife" handbook as a lieutenant's wife. Her husband was played by Mrs. George Simmons.

"Myrtle McGirdle," played by Mrs. A. T. Stafford, entertained with a monologue. Mrs. Rolfe Arnhym, dressed in a blue and silver military costume with silver marching hat, did a tap dance to "Stars and Stripes Forever", accompanied by Mrs. S. D. Middleton on the piano. Mrs. Richard Perkins, dressed in a Hawaiian muumuu danced a comic hula to "Cock-Eyed Mayor of Kaunakakai," accompanied by Mrs. Thomas Ware on the uke.

Escapades in Germany and Japan were enacted by several of the aforementioned cast. Mesdames Hennen, Morse, Perkins, William Guinn, Byron Pickering, Frank Spettel, dressed in bright Japanese kimanos, sang a comic "Cherry Blossom" song, accompanied by Mrs. Thomas Ware on the piano.

Susabella, who eventually becomes a colonel's wife, finds herself still reading the "Army Wife" handbook at the end of the skit!

Also attending as special guests will be the wives of three Allied officers. They are Mrs. Oscar Bonilla, Chile; Mrs. George Cusell, Argentina; and Mrs. Gonzalez of Guatemala.

Tomi Johnson on Etiquette

Dear Jean: I had always belived that military wives with their great variety of social activities and experiences would be most considerate and prompt when accepting or declining invitations. I am shocked to find many occasions when guests fail to acknowledge these invitations. Please discuss this in your column.

Disillusioned

Dear Disillusioned: Failure to acknowledge an invitation no matter how casual the affair, is of course extremely rude. Frequently a casual invitation is neglected because it is made in such a "by-the-way" manner. If someone suggests you call or visit and a time and address is mentioned, then you are obligated.

An immediate reply is required. If you are not certain whether you can accept, then express your doubt and decline unless you feel you can decide and let your hostess know in ample time. If you do accept, then only a real emergency can excuse your absence. This should be applied to even the most casual invitation.

For example: Your neighbor asks you in for a cup of coffee when she sees you out hanging up the laundry, and you accept. Then the phone rings back in your house, etc. An hour later, you remember your neighbor who put away her ironing and made a pot of coffee for you.

Mrs. Adams Is Hostess

Mrs. Sam J. Adams, Jr. entertained the ladies of the Infantry School's Communication Department at her home last Friday.

The table, appointed in silver and laid with an embroidered linen cloth, was presided over by Mrs. Glenn H. Gardner. A gay arrangement of yellow chrysanthemums graced the serving table.

Mrs. Francis Nugent, was welcomed to the group.

After a short business meeting, it was announced that Mrs. Henry B. Edwards, Jr. and Mrs. James V. Chriss would be luncheon hostesses for February, and Mrs. Donald W. Croyle and Mrs. Foy E. Privette, Jr., coffee hostesses.

Thrift Shop volunteers for the coming month are Mrs. James T. Carter and Mrs. Samuel E. Holland.

Lawson Wives

Ladies of the 1st Aviation Company, Lawson Army Aviation Command, were entertained at a coffee in the home of Mrs. William D. Melton recently. Mrs. James A. Easter was co-hostess. Mrs. Richard Schister, president of the group, conducted a short business meeting. Mrs. Steve Carrig attended as a guest and Mrs. Melton won the door prize.

NCO Wives Give $100 To March of Dimes Fund

Some fifty members of the Noncommissioned Officers' Wives Club gathered at Crain Hall last Wednesday for a covered dish luncheon.

Major Lillian Stiggins, Martin Army Hospital, and a representative from Fort Benning to the Muscogee-Chattahoochee Chapter of the National Foundation for the Prevention and Treatment of Polio, Arthritis and Birth Defects, attended as guest of honor.

Mrs. Floyd Hightower, NCO Wives Club president, presented Major Stiggins with a check for $100, representing the club's donation to the annual March of Dimes fund raising campaign.

Hostesses for the luncheon were Mesdames Robert Lamb and George Forrester.

The following evening 1st Lt. Robert F. Poydesheff of The Infantry Center Staff Judge Advocate Section, was guest speaker to the ladies at a meeting in the club room. His topic was the "Legal Rights of the Army Wife."

Present for the event was a young student from Columbus College that the Wives Club is sponsoring. Mesdames J. W. Hay and Arthur Langford were hostesses for the meeting.

Protestants Set Day of Prayer Observance Here

Protestant ladies of the post have announced plans to observe the 75th annual World Day of Prayer on February 17.

Services will be conducted at The Infantry Center Protestant Chapel at 10 a.m.

Arrangements for the services are being made by Mrs. Arthur J. Estes. The program chairman is Mrs. Richard C. Wittman.

The World Day of Prayer is observed by women of 145 countries on five continents and originated in this country in 1887.

Engineer Ladies

Mesdames Bernard Furida, Orville Munson, John C. Potter, Jr., Harold G. Weigand, Alexander Page, Reil S. Crandall, chairman; G. L. Brickhouse, Flaye J. Carpenter, John Holt, Albert Pokorny, Neal Messerly, Jr., James Phillips, Ronald Brown and H. A. Armstrong were hostesses for the January meeting of Engineer Officers' wives held recently at the Main Officers' Open Mess. The affair was a "Treasure Island" luncheon and the hostesses were dressed as pirates. Mrs. James Phillips acted as pirate leader and scroll maps were given to each guest. Tables were decorated with the replica of a "treasure chest" and a large painted pirate ship hung on the wall.

Command, Staff

Mrs. Elmer H. Briggs home was the scene of a recent coffee given for ladies of the Company Tactics Committee of the department. Mrs. Richard W. Keyes presided at the silver service. Wives of officers of the Advanced Tactics, Personnel and Logistics Committee met for coffee last week in the home of Mrs. George E. Albert. Mrs. Everett V. Mead introduced a newcomer to the group, Mrs. Martin F. Schroeder. A short business meeting was held and Mrs. Keyes was guest of honor for the group. In another recent coffee held by officers' ladies of the Command and Staff Department the ladies of the Headquarters and Fundamentals, Review and Doctrine Section, were entertained by Mrs. John M. King and Mrs. Eugene M. Orton at the home of Mrs. Orton. Mrs. John L. Blackwell welcomed Mrs. Kenneth S. Austin as a newcomer to the group.

Potluck Supper

The wives of the students in Infantry Officer Orientation Class 9 held a potluck casserole supper in the lounge of Detachment 20, The Student Brigade recently, while their husbands were on bivouac.

Group Bids Mrs. McKee A Farewell

The ladies of headquarters, The Student Brigade, enjoyed their January coffee at the home of Mrs. James C. Donaghey.

Hostesses for the occasion were Mrs. Donald J. Fitzgerald and Mrs. Claud L. Franklin, Jr. The table was decorated with lovely silver candelabrum and flowers.

Mrs. William A. McKee poured for the group. She was bid farewell and presented with a silver demitasse spoon. Farewells were also expressed to Mrs. Donald Fitzgerald.

Welcomed into the group were several newcomers; Mrs. Otto R. Koch, Jr., Mrs. William H. Gyami, and Mrs. Doyle Smith.

Guests for the occasion were the wives of the battalion commanders; Mrs. Vern L. Joseph, Mrs. Richard W. Ulrich, Mrs. John H. Ramsburg, and Mrs. Keith L. West.

NCO Wives Annual Tea Announced

Final plans and preparation are taking place this week for the Annual Membership Tea to be given by the NCO Wives Club.

The Tea, which is to be held at Crain Hall, is scheduled for 2 p.m. on February 8.

The NCO Wives give this Membership Tea annually as a way of introducing others to the many activities of the club. An invitation is extended to all NCO wives to attend this function and become acquainted with the members and activities of the club.

Serving on the committee for the Tea are the Mesdames Raymond Faust, chairman; Wade Rothwell, William Decker, Grady McCoy and Clement Petty.

Mrs. William Krilling is in charge of decorations and Mrs. Joseph Sparacino, publicity.

For additional information please contact Mrs. Floyd Hightower, 4-3596 or Mrs. Raymond Faust, 5-1440.

Butler's Host Bridge Group

The home of Major and Mrs. Olva B. Butler was the setting for the Infantry School's Combat Developments Office bridge party recently.

Lt. Col. and Mrs. Nell G. Stewart were welcomed to the group.

A covered dish supper prepared by the ladies was served buffet style. After supper the guests proceeded to play contract bridge.

Present were: Mrs. Harriett Sterner, Lt. Col. and Mrs. Ellsworth Cundiff; Mrs. John T. Joseph; Lt. Col. and Mrs. Jack H. Murray Jr.; Lt. Col. and Mrs. Rodman E. Lindow; Major and Mrs. John B. Holt; Major Kenneth E. Dohleman; Capt. and Mrs. P. Joseph Hickey and Capt. and Mrs. Richard D. Reish.

Highlight of the evenings play was an opening bid of seven hearts by Col. Murray. The contract was successfully completed. Honors for the evening's play went to Col. Murray, Mrs. Joseph and Mrs. Reish.

NURSES SEEN DURING A WEEKLY MEETING (L), WEIGHING A NEW BABY (C) AND MAKING A YOUNG PATIENT COMFORTABLE

Nurse Corps Marks 60 Years Of Service To Army

By IDA C. EVANS

Celebrating the 60th anniversary of the Army Nurse Corps, nurses at Martin Army Hospital gave a tea from 2 to 4 p.m. yesterday in the American Red Cross Lounge at the hospital.

Among the guests invited were Major Gen. Hugh P. Harris, commanding general of The Infantry Center; Brig. Gen. A. D. Surles Jr., deputy commanding general; Brig. Gen. L. A. Walsh Jr., assistant commandant of The Infantry School, and other senior officers on post.

Guests from the surrounding civilian community include Mrs. Leona Bishop, director of nurses at the Columbus Medical Center; Sister M. Paula, director of the School of Nursing at St. Francis Hospital, and Mrs. Kathleen Simmons, president of the Third District, Georgia State Nurses Association.

Nursing is a profession of "unequaled opportunities in the service of one's fellow man," according to Lt. Col. Miriam C. Schaupp, chief of nursing service at the nospital.

"No matter where we serve, nor under what working conditions, in peace of war, there is a deep and abiding satisfaction in caring for the sick and injured," she continued.

"The modern psysical layout of Martin Army Hospital with the ultimate in equipment and facilities enhances the patient care program and provides a challenging and most rewarding experience for newly commissioned as well as the more experienced military nurse," Col. Schaupp said.

Martin is one of two military hospitals in the U.S. conducting a basic operating room course. Under the supervision of Major Doris E. Frazier, two courses are conducted each year with an enrollment of four or five student officers in each class.

The hospital also provides a preceptorship in anaesthesia for nurses. In this program, students serve one year at the hospital working in that specialty.

Martin Hospital is authorized 74 military male and female nurses, ranging from second lieutenant to lieutenant colonel. The number of nurses actually assigned to the hospital varies from time to time.

Oldest of the women's military services, the Army Nurse Corps was established by an Act of Congress February 2, 1901.

Army nursing actually began during the American Revolution when Gen. George Washington asked Congress for a "matron to supervise nurses," and "nurses to attend the sick and obey the matron's orders."

Women were recruited to care for the sick and wounded during the Civil War. They were organized and placed under the supervision of Dr. Elizabeth Blackwell and Dorothea Lynde Dix.

On the authority of the surgeon general, Dr. Anita Newcomb McGee screened female applicants for nurses during the Spanish-American War. She procured 1,200 nurses to serve on a contract basis in the U. S. and overseas.

Issuance of a nurse's license began in 1903. Nurses who served in World War I were the first registered nurses to serve in action. At the end of the war, there were 21,480 nurses on duty with the corps.

Originally called the Nurse Corps, the name was changed to Army Nurse Corps between World War I and World War II.

Profile of a Man Doing a Man's Job

PFC MCLAWHORN

Pfc Edsel W. McLawhorn, Company C, 1st Battle Group, 29th Infantry, 1st Infantry Brigade, is working hard each day at learning the skills of the modern Army Infantryman.

He entered the Army in December 1959 and completed his basic training and advance Infantry training here on post.

His next assignment was with his present company.

Pfc McLawhorn, who recently qualified as expert with the M-1 rifle on the trainfire course, is seen here sighting in on another familiar weapon of the Infantryman — the bazooka.

The young Infantryman is a member of The Infantry Center Honor Guard and has rendered honors for many of the distinguished visitors coming here.

President Lifts Ban On O'Seas Dependents

President Kennedy's decision not to bring home military dependents in order to cut down U. S. dollar spending overseas drew cheers on Capitol Hill Wednesday and brought sighs of relief at the Pentagon.

The military immediately took steps to cut down elsewhere on spending by its personnel abroad. The Defense Department said the first effort will be aimed at slashing "expenditures for major consumer durable goods and tourism."

At his news conference, President Kennedy said the order to bring home the dependents, issued by former President Dwight D. Eisenhower last November, would be lifted as soon as necessary arrangements could be made.

The President added that Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara has been able to work out arrangements for equivalent savings in personnel costs. Thus, he said, the shift "does not imply any weakening of our determination to protect the value of the dollar."

President Kennedy said the chiefs of staff "have been most concerned about the effect of the order on the morale and on the high rate of enlistment."

Kennedy's decision was described as a wise one by Sen. Leverett Saltonstall, R-Mass., of the Senate Armed Services Committee. He added that he never believed it would be very helpful in solving the gold reserve problem, which the extra dollar spending overseas helped cause.

This was echoed by Sens. Harry B. Byrd, D-Va., Howard W. Cannon, D-Nev., Francis Case, R-S.D., and Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz.

Commander Speaks At Fort Knox

Major Gen. Hugh P. Harris, commandant of The Infantry School, addressed officer advanced classes at The Armor School at Fort Knox, Wednesday morning.

He was accompanied by Capt. G. S. Meloy, aide-de-camp.

Col. Paul T. Clifford, director of The School's Ground Mobility Department, was at Fort Knox to coordinate the presentation.

Gen. Harris flew to Murfreesboro, Tenn., Tuesday to speak at a luncheon of the Murfreesboro Rotary Club.

Engineer Speaks To Civic Club

Major Albert E. Pokorny, a member of the Field Engineer Committee of the Command and Staff Department, The Infantry School, addressed a luncheon meeting of the Columbus Sertoma Club at the Columbus Country Club Wednesday.

He discussed "The Army Nuclear Power Program," which deals with supplying electrical power to isolated Army bases by use of nuclear reactors.

On February 14 a similar program will be presented to the Phenix City Sertoma Club.

The civic club presentations are a kick-off to Army cooperation with the local engineer society in the observance of National Engineer Week, February 19-25.

9th Wins Top Spots In CG's Match

Delegates Impressed By DC Inauguration

The Division's delegates to the Inauguration returned from the Nation's Capital highly impressed with the Third U.S. Army's performance in the colorful, historic event.

"Men from the Third Army," said Sergeant Major Robert L. Brown of the 23rd Infantry, "represented not only this Army area, but the Army as a whole . . . they were, without a doubt, the finest group of soldiers I have ever seen."

Sergeant Brown and Division Sergeant Major Frank K. Nikolas were among 100 select soldiers chosen throughout the country to make up an Army Honor Cordon.

The delegates spent approximately one week at Fort Bragg, N.C., undergoing final fittings of their new "dress blues," and a series of rigid inspections. Arriving in Washington on January 18, they were billeted with Company A of the 3rd Infantry, the "old guard" which performs the ceremonial details in the Nation's Capital.

'On the Mark'

On the day of the Inauguration, they were "on the mark" at 10 a.m., stationed on the roadway leading from the platform where the new Commander-in-Chief was to take the oath of office. "When President Kennedy took the oath," said Sergeant Brown, "I was but about 35 feet away."

One of the most amusing moments of the entire trip took place a few minutes after Kennedy's Inaugural speech. Posted next to Sergeant Brown was a combat veteran of many years' service, "every inch a soldier." It was cold, and after being on their post for three hours, tears began to well in the eyes of the old soldier. Soldierly instinct kept him from wiping the tears away.

After a while, a kindly old lady noticed his plight, reached over and said, "Yes son, it was a moving speech, wasn't it?"

Infantryman's

EIB Given To Four Div Lieutenants

By Div PIO

For the first time since the 2nd Infantry Division was reorganized in 1958 it has awarded the Expert Infantryman's Badge to division personnel.

Four officers of the 2nd Division were presented the badge by Brigadier General William L. Hardick, who has assumed command of the 2nd Division, during ceremonies held in his office on January 26.

The officers, all members of OVUREP battle groups, are: Lieutenant Edward W. Nidever, Company C, 11th Infantry; Lieutenant John D. Fudge, Combat Support Company, 11th Infantry; Lieutenant Jon N. Schuster, Company C, 11th Infantry and Lieutenant Samuel P. Liton III, Company A, 87th Infantry.

In order to receive this badge, the men had to pass rigorous tests which covered all phases of their military training.

An individual must be well versed in 14 subjects as well as efficient with his weapon. Some of the subjects—both written and practical — on which the men are tested include:

First Aid, Military Intelligence, Biological and Chemical Warfare, physical fitness and military bearing and courtesy.

The test is administered by the Division Proficiency test committee.

Armorer Earns 6 Big Trophies In First Meet

By 69th Armor PIO

One of the most surprised people at Commanding General's Championship Matches last Thursday and Friday was a modest, unassuming tank mechanic from the 69th Armor. Specialist Fifth Class J. L. Ellis.

Ellis' surprise was brought about by the fact that he had just won six out of eight first place trophies in Open Classification. This means that Ellis, a new shooter, bested all the other competitors, either new or old shooters.

For Ellis, a veteran of 12 years' Army service, this was his first high powered rifle match, although, Ellis says, "I must admit shooting is my hobby, I just never got around to entering a match before."

He is aided in his hobby by his second love—hunting.

In talking about his feat, Ellis has the highest praise for the Division Marksmanship Detachment. "They are a good bunch of guys," he stated. "Every time one of them saw me doing something wrong, they would tell me how to correct it, and it always worked."

Colonel Austin Assumes Duties as 11th Inf XO

By Div. PIO

Bringing with him a reputation as author, lecturer, educator and authority on management — as well as a recently acquired set of crossed rifles —Lieutenant Colonel Charles F. Austin reported to the 2nd Infantry Division on January 4, to begin his service in the Infantry as executive officer of the "new" 1st Battle Group, 11th Infantry, the Sixth OVUREP unit.

A native of Kansas, Colonel Austin reported from the U. S. Army Command and General Staff College, where he graduated from the associate course in December. He previously spent five years helping "build" the U. S. Army Management School (formerly the Command Management School) at Fort Belvoir, Va. This school is the senior leadership school of the Armed Services, whose student body not only cuts across the three Services, but also includes senior executives of the various Government departments. In his role as "Professor" Austin, he lists about 2,600 graduates in the grades of lieutenant colonel through major general, rear admiral and civilian grades of GS-13 through GS-17.

Harvard

Prior to joining the faculty of the Command Management School, Colonel Austin attended two - year course at the Harvard Graduate School of Business Administration, graduating in 1955 with the degree of master in business administration with high distinction, the highest honor that school awards. He is presided however, of his baccalaureate degree, acquired over a ten-year period of night school effort at several educational institutions, culminating in the award of the degree of bachelor of science in military science from the University of Maryland. He also is a graduate of the internationally - famous course in group dynamics conducted in Bethel, Maine, by the National Training Laboratory in Group Development.

In 1959, Col. Austin completed the General Management Course conducted by the American Management Association at New York City and Saranac Lake, New York. This is an executive development course attended by senior executives from business, industry and on inspection.

Manchus Take 3 Firsts, Score Over-All Victory

BY GEORGE HORD

Teams and individual firers from the 9th Infantry swept six top honors last week in the Commanding General's Championship Matches, taking first place spots in pistol, rifle and automatic rifle firing competition in addition to two second place awards and a third place spot.

The 9th's rifle team took first place in that match, scoring 1332-62v's out of a possible 1500. Trailing in respective order behind the 9th were teams from the 3rd Reconnaissance Squadron, 7th Cavalry with 1326-47V's; and the 2nd Medium Tank Battalion, 69th Armor, scoring 1325-64v's.

In pistol firing, a 9th Infantry team captured first place in that event, marking up a score of 1014-10v's out of a possible 1200. Second and third place positions went to teams of Division Artillery (1005-6x's) and Division Headquarters (986-10x's), respectively.

Captain Thomas Towle, of the 9th Infantry, was third place winner in the individual new shooters pistol match, scoring 1494-13x's of a possible 1800, while Sergeant Harold Perkins placed second in the Individual Grand Aggregate Open pistol competition with 1668-23x's.

First and second place awards went in automatic rifle competition to 9th Infantry teams. The first place team, consisting of Private Bruce Busby and Private First Class James Arnold scored 1412 of 1800, and the second place team of Specialists Fourth Class Odus Rittenberry and James Washington scored 1317.

Third place award in automatic rifle competition was won by Specialist Fourth Class Victor Vermea and Private First Class Richard Manley of the 23rd Infantry with 1182.

11th Nears Rendezvous With Korea

By 11th Inf PIO

Familiarization training with helicopters and strenous physical conditioning road marches highlighted training last week of the 1st Battle Group, 11th Infantry.

The Army's first OVUREP Infantry unit bore down, in order to obtain maximum benefit from the time remaining before its departure for Korea on February 19.

Personnel of the 2nd Aviation Company conducted the instruction for the 11th units, with one company scheduled per day. Captain Neese V. Davis and Captain Donald E. Masters supervised the program, which began with indoor classes in Theater 9 on Kelley Hill in the morning, and the moved outdoors to Essabagger Field. There, static display stations covered loading and lashing of equipment in helicopters.

The grand finale came when troops loaded into two H-34's and one H-37 for a ride over the Kelley Hill area.

Major Joseph Paus and Captain Robert Stallings, both of the 11th Infantry staff, worked with Captains Davis and Masters in arranging the training. The 2d Infantry Division aviation officer, Lt. Col. Robert E. McGraw, visited the classes

ON TDY . . . Lieutenant Colonel Harry A. Clark Jr., 2nd Division Inspector General, departed the division February 1 on temporary duty orders to attend the University of Maryland at College Park, Md. Colonel Clark will receive his bachelor degree in military science upon completion of the courses he will be taking at the university. Replacing Colonel Clark is recently promoted Lieutenant Colonel Kenneth L. Eggleston. Prior to being assigned to the IG Section, Colonel Eggleston was Executive Officer of Division Trains.

Reenlistments

The 9th Infantry's Career Counselor, Sergeant First Class Thomas W. Borris, announced the reenlistments of two 9th Infantry noncommissioned officers from Headquarters Company.

Sergeant First Class (E-7) Loren Cox reupped for six years as a Regular Army unassigned personnel. Currently the 9th Infantry communications chief, the native of Shelburn, Indiana, has credit for more than 14 years service in the Army.

Sergeant First Class (E-6) Walter White, the 9th Infantry's Battle Group Training Aids NCO, chose to reenlist for six more years in his own vacancy. SFC White has 13 years in the Army and hails from Pinchueyville, Illinois.

Corporal Ronald C. Sherman received the oath of reenlistment from Captain Everett T. Hamilton, commanding officer of the 2nd Aviation Company.

Promotions

A silver bar was added to the 9th Infantry ranks January 26 when Lieutenant Nick Powell of Company C was promoted to first lieutenant.

Lieutenant Herman R. Lawrence of the 2nd Aviation Company was promoted to the rank of captain on January 25.

Departures

The 9th Infantry lost one officer and three noncommissioned officers this week. Captain (Chaplain) Hugh C. McKeown was reassigned to the 2nd Division Chaplains Office. Sergeant James Shephard of Headquarters Company departed the 9th for 11th Infantry (6th Overseas Unit Replacement Program). Specialist Fifth Class Julio Poolcano of Headquarters Company left for his new post in Germany. The third 9th Infantry NCO to depart the battle group, Sergeant Martir Feliciano, currently is enroute to his new station at Fort Eustis, Virginia.

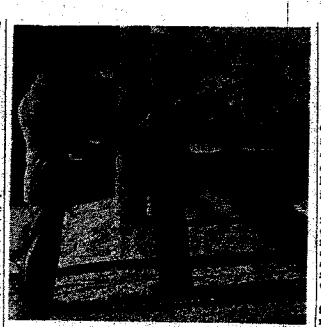
Lieutenant Marcellus H. Jago departed the 2nd Aviation Company on February 1 for reassignment to the Fourth Armored Division in Germany.

First Lieutenant Kenneth G. Sonner departed the 2nd Aviation Company on January 28 for Helicopter School at Camp Wolter, Texas and reassignment to Puerto Rico.

Arrivals

Lieutenant Huey S. Wright recently arrived at the 2nd Engineer Battalion from Fort Belvoir, Virginia were he attended the Engineer school. He is assigned to Company A.

Lieutenant D. R. Kingsbury has been assigned to the 1st Infantry, as the S-3 Air. Lieutenant Kingsbury came to the 1st from the 11th Infantry where he served as the assistant S-3.



The 7th Cavalry added to it's ranks another E-8, Master Sergeant Leroy J. Allmendinger, squadron supply sergeant. A veteran of 16 years service, the last three and a half in the 7th Cavalry, Sergeant Allmendinger will soon the 23rd Infantry as Battle Group Supply Sergeant.

Lieutenant Montague Upshaw joined 9th Infantry from the Infantry Center where he recently completed the Infantry Officers Orientation Course. He has been assigned to the 9th's Company D.

Sergeant First Class John Rice has been assigned to the 9th Infantry's Company B from the 2nd Engineer Battalion.

New 87th Cadre Given Orientation on OVUREP

BY 9TH INF PIO

"Anytime — Anywhere—After 7 October — is our OVUREP motto," declared Colonel Robert E. Connor, 87th Infantry commander, during an OVUREP orientation last Saturday in Theater 11.

Assembled together for the first time, the 450 officers and enlisted men of the "new" cadre were addressed by Brigadier General William L. Hardick, acting 2nd Infantry Division Commander, and Colonel Connor.

General Hardick welcomed to the "Indianhead Division" the new personnel who had come to the 87th from outside the Division. He reminded old hands, and those who had joined from other units of the Division, of the outstanding accomplishments of the 87th Infantry.

Speaking of its record as a training unit of the Division, General Hardick said, ". . .the 87th Infantry Regiment has always done just a little more than it was expected to do."

Previewing the OVUREP program General Hardick said, "At first, there will be the individual training, then small unit training and, finally, you will see the whole picture develop. I am sure that you will take immense satisfaction and pride in welding your part of the team into shape, and then watching it take its place as an integral part of the battle group."

Colonel Connor emphasized that their initial mission was detailed by their OVUREP motto. That they must produce a disciplined, combat-ready Battle Group by October 7.

He described the OVUREP task as a four-phased one. The first, to organize, review and train themselves. Next, to prepare the detailed plans for the reception of the non-prior service personnel in February, and, to give the new soldiers their individual training. Finally, in order to attain their goal, to train as a unit, and form a combat unit "Second to None."

Following the address by Colonel Connor, Major D. L. Crandall, adjutant, presented the highlights of the 87th Infantry.

'Farewell' to Honor 11th Advance Party

BY 11TH INF. PIO

An informal "farewell" ceremony will honor 24 officers and men of the 1st Battle Group, 11th Infantry, who will depart next Tuesday for Korea as an advance party for the Army's first OVUREP unit.

BIDS FAREWELL . . . Major General Frederick W. Gibb, Division commanding general, speaks his farewell address to members of the Korea-bound 11th Infantry. General Gibb wished the OVUREP unit well in a ceremony at Essenbagger Field.

Brigadier General William L. Hardick will join Division staff members and Colonel George D. Patterson, battle group commander, at 6:15 a.m., on the quadrangle behind the 11th's headquarters building.

After addresses by General Hardick and Colonel Patterson, the group will board busses for Muscogee County Airport and the plane which will take them on the first leg of their Korean journey.

At Travis Air Force Base, Calif., the group will join 22 other advance party members of the 11th who have been on leave.

Representatives of all staff sections and companies are included in the advance party, which will precede the main body in arranging for the unit's arrival in Korea and assumption of its mission.

Following Tuesday morning's ceremony, General Hardick and his party will move to the Airport to "see off" the advance party.

Music at the ceremony will be provided by the 2nd Infantry Division Band, directed by Chief Warrant Officer Mariano Morales.

175 AITs Close Training at 23rd

By 23rd Inf PIO

Approximately 175 trainees of Company E, 23rd Infantry heard their Battle Group Commander, Colonel Louis A. Kunzig Jr., deliver the graduation address as they completed eight weeks of AIT last Friday.

Colonel Kunzig told the graduating trainees that although their individual training was over they should "continue the learning process," and always be on the alert for "opportunities to learn more".

Following his talk, Colonel Kunzig presented trophies to the trainees who had excelled on the range. Award for firing the highest score with the light machine gun was won by Private Gordon Morton and Private James Rich was awarded second place with that weapon. Privates Donald Mazziers and Jerry Carter won awards for firing first and second places respectively with the Browning Automatic Rifle.

After the graduation the troops departed for assignments in Alaska, Korea, Fort Bragg, Fort Campbell, Europe Hawaii and Fort McPherson.

9th Inf Chapel Notes Two Changes In Operation

By 9th Inf. PIO

Ninth Infantry Chaplain Lieutenant Mace T. Jett announced two changes in the 9th's Chapel Number Four this week.

The 9th lost its Catholic Chaplain as Captain (Father) Hugh C. McKeown was reassigned to the 2nd Division's 11th Infantry at Chapel Two.

Chaplain Jett also announced a change in the chapel choir arrangement. The Chapel Four choir has been moved from upstairs in the choir loft down the front of the altar. This move was accomplished to obtain better response from the congregation and to give more enjoyment to the congregation by the choir. The move also serves to enhance the beauty of the services.

The 9th's Chapel Four choir is directed by Specialist Fourth Class Lester B. Gibbs, a member of the Division Chaplain's office. Organist for the group is Lieutenant Duane Russell, aide-de-camp to Brigadier General Charles H. White Jr., Division Artillery Commander.

government from the United States and foreign countries.

Finance

Entering the Army as a private in March 1942, he served in supply and finance activities with the Army Air Corps and was commissioned as a second lieutenant in the Finance Department, served as a traveling consultant during World War II, as deputy chief of the Audit Agency, Germany Command in the Canal Zone in 1948-50, and attended the Finance Officer Advanced Course in 1950-51 class. Following that he set up and organized the office of, and served as Comptroller on the staff of the Chief, Counter Intelligence Corps.

While serving on the faculty of the Command Management School, Colonel Austin performed actively in two other roles, that of author and lecturer on leadership and management and as guest instructor at many military schools and civilian educational institutions, including the U. S. Army War College, Harvard Graduates School of Business Administration, the U. S. Army Medical Service School, the George Washington University, the U. S. Army Armor School, the Veterans Administration National Management Institute, the Womens' Army Corps School, the U. S. Army Chemical Corps School, the State Department Foreign Service Institute, the U. S. Army Signal Corps School, the Department of Agriculture Executive Development Program, the Management Course of the American Management Association, the U. S. Army Security Agency School, the Fort Stewart Officers' School, and the "Human Factors in Decision-Making" seminar at the AMA Academy of Advanced Management, Saranac Lake, New York.

Articles

Colonel Austin published three articles last year and has two forthcoming in the near future. "Management's Self - Inflicted Wounds", a formula for executive self-analysis, appeared in "Army" in April 1959, and later was widely reproduced and republished for dissemination to supervisory personnel by business, government and military organizations in this country and abroad. "The Loneliest Man in the Military (is the man with a new idea)" appeared first in "Armed Forces Management" in March 1959. A formula for successful suggestion programs and for the establishment of a "climate for creativity" in organizations, it also received wide dissemination, including reproduction and distribution by the National Association of Suggestion Systems to its 1200 membership firms. "The Care and Feeding of Innovators," a part of his crusade for creativity and innovation in the Army was published by Army in its December 1959 issue. The March issue of the same magazine will contain his next article, a "second installment" of his formula for executive self - analysis, under the title of "Management's Self-Inflicted Wounds". His second article this spring, "Why I Chose the Infantry" will appear in the March issue of Infantry Magazine and will contain his reasons for his transfer last April from Finance Corps to the Infantry. His continuing literary goal is a small book on executive self - analysis, on which he has made substantial progress.

Project Adam J Initiated In 3rd Army Commands

BY DEW PIO

"Troop information is a command activity consisting of any means used by the commander to develop in the soldier an understanding of his role in the Army and to keep him informed of the military and civil events, conditions, policies and actions which affect him as an individual." — Army Regulation 355-5.

With the above definition in mind, Lieutenant General Paul D. Adams, commanding general, Third U.S. Army, and his staff have developed an Information Project for all commands of the Third Army Area. It is called PROJECT ADAM J — "A Man Doing A Man's Job."

PROJECT ADAM J

It was recognized by General Adams and his commanders that the present Information Program was lacking in certain specific areas. Misdirected stress was given monetary remuneration and privileges while values worth fighting for seemed less-emphasized.

Other areas thought lagging were discipline, training, group identification, competition and "team" identity in today's Army.

Within these areas problems of unawareness of responsibility, honor and prestige on the part of the individual soldier are born and bred.

It is the desire of General Adams and his staff that with the full implementation of Project Adam J and its theme, "A Man Doing A Man's Job," the new soldier and the old, the civilian and the rest of the world will know the Army as an organization to be proud of, and better understand the honor in serving ones country.

Adam J also points to each soldier as a "mirror" of all fellow servicemen. By the same token, the individual must be fully aware that his actions, appearance, speech and bearing are observed at every opportunity by others, both civilian and military.

Stress is also being placed on the competitive spirit the Army offers to young men as well as the methods of training and instilling discipline.

The project is an effort to increase the individual soldier's awareness of his part in furthering the Army's mission. He should also be aware of the importance of the contribution he and his unit make to our country's security. The Army's essential mission in deterring or winning any type of war to insure security in the free world must be important and real and personal.

All commands of the 2nd Division are now in the process of offering suggestions as to ways and means in which Project Adam J may be implemented throughout the Second Infantry Division.

A soldier properly informed of his mission, duties, responsibilities and honor is the best salesman-spokesman for the and bearing are observed at every opportunity by others, both civilian and military. "public will see the soldier as he sees himself."

EXPERT INFANTRYMAN . . . Lieutenant Jon N. Schuster, Company B, 11th Infantry, has the Expert Infantryman's Badge he earned pinned on by Brigadier General William L. Hardick, 2nd Division Commander during the temporary absence of Major General Frederick W. Gibb.

Major Gets ACM During Ceremonies

By 57th Inf PIO

Major Frederick J. Boulais, S-2 of the 57th Infantry, has, on his retirement from active service, been awarded the Army Commendation Medal for outsanding and meritorious service.

Boulais in special ceremonies held January 30 in the Battle Group Headquarters.

Mrs. Boulais was present for the presentation as were the principal battle group staff officers and company commanders. Coffee was served at an informal reception in honor of Major Boulais.

Major Boulais retired on the completion of twenty years active service. He is a veteran of Pearl Harbor and the Pacific Theater in World War II.

The Major has served with the 82nd Airborne Division as a member of the 325th Infantry. Major Boulais participated in the establishment of the Chinese Nationalist Airborne School, and the airborne training of their Army in Formosa.

He has, in the past, also been assigned to the Infantry School and to Fort Dix. Recently he spent a tour in Laos. Major Boulais attended the Advanced Officers Course of the Infantry School and also completed the Unconventional Warfare Course at Fort Bragg.

9th Inf Begins New AIT Cycle

By 9th Inf PIO

A total of 148 Advanced Individual Trainees were welcomed January 30 to the 9th Infantry by Colonel Ernest Dameron, deputy brigade commander, during ceremonies at Theater 7.

Also on hand to greet the young soldiers were the officers and NCOs of the 9th's Combat Support Company, commanded by Captain Wilham P. Sewell. Captain Sewell's unit will train the AIT group in their second eight weeks of infantry instruction in Military Occupational Specialty 112 (Heavy Weapons Infantry men).

During training, they will receive instruction in the 106-millimeter recoilless rifle; the 4.2 inch and the 81-millimeter mortars, map and compass work, the 3.5 inch rocket launcher, anti-tank squad tactics, field fortification and land mine warfare.

The new 9th Infantry cycle took their Basic Combat Training at such posts as Fort Jackson, S. C., Fort Leonard Wood, Mo., Fort Rucker, Ala., Fort Dix N. J., and the 2nd Division's 7th Cavalry.

The group has an average age of 20 years per man and an educational level of 11 years. The new 9th Infantry cycle numbers four college graduates among its members in addition to 18 other men who attended college for one or more years. Also included are a pair of foreign-born trainees, one from Germany and another from Ireland.

Cook Of The Week

Mrs. John R. Marcello is our guest cook this week. She is the mother of three children: John age 9, Marie age 3½ and Douglas age 2½. The Marcello family lives at 4466 Mahaffey Drive, Columbus. Mrs. Marcello wants to share her favorite recipe for Spaghetti and Meatballs.

Spaghetti and Meatballs

Sauce

Brown ¼ onion in 1 tablespoon of Wesson Oil in 4 quarts sauce pan. Add 2-1 pound cans of tomatoes and boil slowly for 1 hour. Add 1 small can of tomato paste and 5 cans of water, using paste can as a measuring cup. Add 1 tablespoon of salt, ½ teaspoon of garlic salt, ½ teaspoon of oregano, a dash of black or red pepper. Boil slowly for 2 more hours.

Meatballs

Take 1½ pounds of hamburger, 2 eggs, 1½ tablespoons of grated romano cheese, 1 tablespoon of parsley flakes, 5 slices of white bread soaked with water and broken into bits, salt and pepper as desired. Mix well and roll and form individual meatballs. Brown meatballs in frying pan in small amount of grease. Add to sauce at least one hour before sauce is cooked.

Serves a family of five.

Armor Ladies Hear Col. Goto

Officers and Ladies of the 2nd. Med. Tank Battalion of the 69th Armor presented the second in the series of a "Know Your World" program at the Lawson Officers Club January 29th.

Lt. Col. Yoshido Goto, Japanese Self Defense Forces, who is currently a student in the Infantry Officers Career Course spoke on Japan and showed color slides of his country.

The atmosphere was further enhanced by tape recordings of Japanese music during the presentation. Japanese miniature dolls and paper fish were displayed to help explain the childrens holidays.

The subject of the third in a series of a "Know Your World" program conducted by 69th Armor will be announced at a future date.

Catholic Chaplain

Father McKeown Begins New Duties on Kelley Hill

Chaplain Hugh C. McKeown has assumed duties as Catholic chaplain for the three Infantry battle groups on Kelley Hill.

In ministering to all 2nd Infantry division personnel living on Kelley Hill, Chaplain McKeown will succeed Chaplain Francis X. McCarthy, chaplain of the 1st Battle Group, 11th Infantry. Chaplain McCarthy will leave with the 11th Infantry when that unit, the Army's first OVUREP battle group, departs for Korea on February 19.

Chaplain McKeown moves into the office formerly occupied by his predecessor, located in the 11th Infantry headquarters, Building 9010. It is expected that his office will be moved to the new chapel, now under construction in the Kelley Hill area. The new chapel, for all faiths, will be completed in the latter part of this year.

Chaplain McKeown, an Army veteran of eight years, has held varied assignments, from the Baffin Islands in the Far North, to Korea and Japan in the Far East and to Europe, as well as several state-side assignments.

He was commissioned in 1952, and was given an initial assignment with the 12th AAA Battalion at Fort Hancock, New Jersey.

69th Officers, Wives Play Bridge

The Officers and their Ladies of the 2nd Med. Tank Battalion of the 69th Armor gathered at the home of Capt. and Mrs. Bruce A. Davis, 129-A Arrowhead, on the eve of January 27 for their monthly mixed couples bridge. Those attending were: Col. & Mrs. Harry H. Hiestand; Capt. & Mrs. Robert C. Culverhouse; Capt. Abraham F. Muscari; Lt. Turner.

Lt. Vernon A. Corea and Lt. Erwin E. Turner Jr. Guest players for the evening were, Capt. and Mrs. Walter D. Hall and Mrs. Arthur Tritsch.

High scorer for the evening was Capt. Davis with Capt. Culverhouse, second high. Low prize was awarded to Mrs. Tritsch and travelling prize, by Lt. Turner.

87th Ladies Meet At Officers Club For Jan. Coffee

Ladies of the 87th Infantry enjoyed a demonstration of a Toastmistress meeting at their January coffee last Friday in the Normandy Lounge of the Main Officer's Open Mess.

Hostesses were Mmes. Ronald Berkey, Robert Lowery, Kenneth Mellon. Pouring at the coffee was Mrs. William Gordon.

Mrs. Robert Connor presided over the brief business meeting, outlining plans and activities for the ladies of the 87th whose husbands are OVEREP and will leave for Korea the end of the year. Welcomed newcomers were: Mmes. Hubert Garrell, Robert Young, Frank Spettel, Hoyt Herston, Norwood Kratzer, James Gritz. Bridge chairman, Mrs. Alan Borwedel, gave a report.

Mrs. Connor introduced Mrs. Dion Johnson, an 87th wife and president of the Fort Benning Columbus Toastmistress Club. A demonstration of a typical Toastmistress program followed. Mrs. A. R. Carlisle acted as topicmistress, calling on Mrs. Holman Edmond who gave an impromptu topic. Speaker Mrs. David Bear gave an icebreaker speech "A Hatful of Experiences", and was critiqued by Mrs. Carlisle. This unique program was thoroughly enjoyed by the ladies of the 87th Infantry.

QM Wives Gather For January Coffee At Durham's Home

Mrs. James T. Durham and Mrs. Monroe H. Watts were hostesses for the monthly coffee of the Quartermaster Officers' Wives of Fort Benning Wednesday, January 18 at the home of Mrs. Durham on Wickersham Drive.

Coffee was served with assorted pastries from an attractively appointed table featuring a centerpiece of fresh greenery and candles.

Mrs. Raymond T. Caraballo presided over a short business meeting. Plans were begun for a spring luncheon to be held in April.

First '61 Coffee

Mesdames Don Chabot, Robert Cuyle and Gilbert Clausen were hostesses for the recent coffee of the ladies of Lawson Army Aviation Command headquarters held in the Normandy Room. Mrs. William Poncavage was welcomed as a newcomer and Mrs. Charles Long of California attended as the guest of Mrs. Cuyle. This was the first meeting of the New Year for the group.

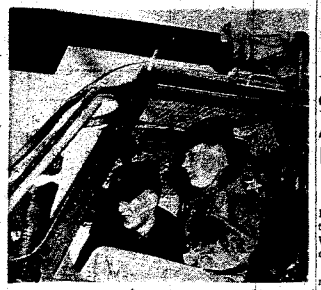
OVUREP Troops Receive Army Aviation Orientation

By 2nd Aviation PIO

Prior to their departure for Korea, the 1st Battle Group, 11th Infantry, received an aviation orientation and field demonstration on Army Aviation. During the week's training, the 2d Aviation Company gave the 11th Infantry an inside look at Army Aviation and some of the ways it could support them.



The project officer and principal instructor for the training was Captain Donald E. Masters. The classroom work gave the men a look at the different missions that Army Aviation performs and a general look at the Army aircraft of the present and future.

One company per day was given a two hour classroom orientation and then taken to Essenbagger Field where the field demonstrations took place. The fixed wing aircraft demonstrated air resupply to open the field demonstration. A static display of helicopters was set up on the field and the men were shown how to load and unload the various types of helicopters. The SD-1 Drone section gave the men a first hand look at the newest member of the division aviation team. The Drone is radio controlled pilotless aircraft used for air reconnaissance.

The highlight of the day's training for the men of the 11th Infantry was the helicopter rides in the H-37 and H-34 helicopters. The H-34's were furnished by the 21st Transportation Company and the H-37 was furnished by the 19th Transportation Company.

Towle Gets Captain Bars At 9th Inf

By 9th Inf. PIO

The 9th Infantry gained a new set of "railroad tracks" January 17 when Captain Thomas J. Towle received the promotion to his present rank.

A 1954 graduate of Seton Hall University in South Orange, New Jersey, Captain Towle majored in marketing research analysis. He is a native of Newark, New Jersey.

He earned the Army Aviation Badge after flight training at Camp Gary in San Marcos, Texas, and Fort Rucker, Alabama. Captain Towle also graduated from the Provost Marshal School at Fort Gordon, Georgia. In addition he holds the Parachutist Badge.

Captain Towle has been in the 2nd Infantry Division since December 1959 when he was assigned to the 11th Infantry. He joined the 9th in February 1960, serving as executive officer of Company E. Just prior to his promotion, Captain Towle was reassigned to the 9th's S-3 section. His slot as Company E executive officer was taken by Lieutenant Frank Gundaker.

Ninth Inf Loses Two NCOs

By 9th Inf PIO

Three 9th Infantry companies greeted new first sergeants January 23 as two of the units lost their old "top kicks" to the 11th Infantry's sixth Overseas Unit Replacement Program.

First Sergeants Ishamel Rangel, Headquarters Company, and Ralph Cavedo, Company B, departed the 9th for assignments with the 11th's Headquarters Company and Company E, respectively.

Sgt. Rangel's replacement is First Sergeant Thomas Tobin, of the 9th's Company D. He is a veteran of the Korean War, has 13 years' Army service and has been a member of the 9th since the 2nd Battle Group's organization in June 1958. Assuming Sgt. Tobin's old duties is Sergeant First Class Harry L. McBee, Company D.

Sergeant First Class Elmo Smallwood replaces First Sergeant Cavedo in Company B. A veteran of the Korean War, Sgt. Smallwood joined the Army in 1942. He joined the 9th in December 1960 from the 4th Infantry in Germany.

Sgt. Cavedo returns to the 11th Infantry for the second time after spending a year in the 9th. He previously served in the 11th for 20 months. A veteran of the Korean War and 14 years in the service, Sgt. Cavedo was promoted January 1 to the supergrade rank of E-8.

First Sergeant Rangel departed the 9th after serving the unit since its formation in June 1958. He previously was assigned to the 2nd Battle Group, 15th Infantry, in the old 10th Infantry Division before it was redesignated the 2nd Infantry Division in 1956. He has been in the Army since 1943, seeing action in World War II and Korea.

9th's Co E Gets A Commander; Flight-Qualified

By 9th Inf. PIO

The 9th Infantry's Company E gained a new commander this week when Lieutenant William E. Ledgerwood took over the unit reins.

A native of Knoxville, Tennessee, Lieutenant Ledgerwood succeeds Captain Meryl A. Griffiths, who joined the 9th's S-3 section. Lieutenant Ledgerwood's previous assignment was assistant S-3 with the 9th. He joined the "Keep Up the Fire" battle group last October, serving as a platoon leader under Captain Griffiths.

Lieutenant Ledgerwood graduated from the University of Tennessee at Knoxville with a bachelor's degree in retailing. He was commissioned in 1954, and obtained his Aviator's Badge at Fort Rucker, Alabama, thus becoming the second 9th Infantry company commander that is flight-qualified. Captain Jerry Keebaugh of Company C is the other 9th Infantry unit commander holding flight credentials.

Lieutenant Ledgerwood served with two aviation companies while in Europe. He has also served at Fort Riley, Kansas.

The new Company E commander lives in Columbus with his wife and two children.

First Infantry Cadre Receive 'Refresher' Course at Academy

By 1st Inf. PIO

The noncommissioned officers of the 2nd Battle Group, 1st Infantry have completed a 24 hour block of tactical instruction conducted by the 2nd Division NCO Academy.

This refresher instruction in tactical training at the beginning of the basic unit training phase of the OVUREP cycle is intended to serve as the basis for common understanding of tactical doctrine by the squad and section leaders and platoon sergeants of the group.

With the Mission "Combat Ready by April 22, 1961" ever in mind, the 1st Infantry will apply the principles and techniques acquired during this brief course to further the tactical proficiency of its small units.

This phase of instruction supplements eight weeks of training conducted in July and August 1961, during which these leaders prepared for improving the individual training phases of the OVUREP cycle.

Sergeant Retires At 2nd Engineer

By 2nd Engr Bn PIO

Sergeant First Class Clayton L. Carter, Company C, 2nd Engineer Battalion, was honored at a retirement-farewell retreat review this week at Marshall Bowl in the 2d Engineer area.

Lieutenant Colonel A. L. Parsons Jr., commanding officer of the Engineer Battalion, presented the certificate of retirement to Sergeant Carter. The parade also honored the completion of Basic Combat Training for Company C, 2nd Engineer Battalion.

Manchus Playing Top Basketball

9th Downs 87th, 23rd For Four Straight Wins

BY LT. NELSON MARSH

Smashing victories over the 87th Infantry and the 23rd Infantry hoisted the 9th Infantry "Manchus" into undisputed possession of first place in the 2nd Infantry Division basketball tournament pending the outcome of the February 2 contest between the 9th and Division Artillery.

Four Wins

The 9th Infantry squad now boasts of four wins without a loss following their 75-49 romp January 30 over the 23rd Infantry and a lop-sided 71-28 slash over the 87th Infantry January 26, both at the Harmony Church Field House. Division Artillery ranks as the only other unbeaten team and hold a perfect 3-0 mark.

A 46-point second half burst disposed of the 23rd Infantry after a tight first half which saw the 9th on top, 28-25. Four of "Keep Up the Fire" roundballers struck for double figures led by center Rayvaughn Pryear's 20 points. Pryear connected on six of seven foul throw attempts and added 12 goals from the floor. Thought missing seven minutes of the game, he still managed to pick off 23 rebounds and added 10 assists to his evening's work.

Guard Harry Hall canned 15 points, connecting on seven of seven foul throws. Hall's fellow 9th Infantry guard, Dennis Foy, dropped in 10 points and played an outstanding floor game. Forward John Devlin pumped in 10 points for the victors, hitting six of eight foul throw attempts.

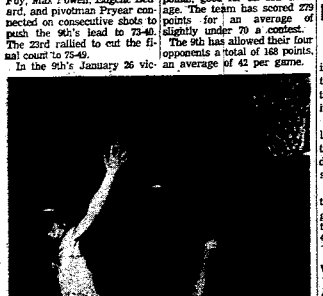
For the night the 9th only misfired on four of 25 foul throw tries for a fine 84 per cent mark. The 9th Infantry "five" added 27 field goals.

After the tight first half, the winners turned on their great speed and raced to a 40-27 lead before the 23rd connected on a single foul shot.

The 9th then iced the contest with seven straight points to take a 47-28 lead. Later on Foy, Max Powell, Eugene Bedard, and pivotman Pryear connected on consecutive shots to push the 9th's lead to 73-40. The 23rd rallied to cut the final count to 75-49.

In the 9th's January 26 victory over 87th Infantry, forward Bedard shot in 23 points to lead the point parade. Pryear dumped in 18 points in the 9th's one-sided 71-28 victory. A total of eight 9th Infantry players hit the scoring column.

The 9th jumped into a quick 13-2 lead with Bedard's fall-away jump shots showing the way. The contest was decided in the first half when the 9th hit for 14 points in succession, leaving the scoreboard read 31-8 at the intermission.



Hall, Pryear and Bedard hit field goals to run the second half count to 37-8 before the 87th could recover and score themselves. The 9th proceeded to burst into another scoring binge, hitting 21 points-in-a-row for the final 71-28 count.

Committing only 11 personal fouls themselves, the 9th hit on 15 of 29 foul throw attempts and added 28 goals from the floor.

Pryear Leading

In the four contests played thus far by the 9th, Pryear leads the point-makers with 85 markers and an average of 21-25 per outing. Hall has connected for a 14.8 average on 59 points and Bedard holds the number three slot with 47 points, good for an 11.3 average. The team has scored 279 points for an average of slightly under 70 a contest.

The 9th has allowed their four opponents a total of 168 points, an average of 42 per game.

FIELD GOAL FOR HALL . . . Guard Harry Hall of the 9th Infantry travels high enroute to a layup against the 23rd Infantry. Paul Arceneaux (4) of the 23rd tries unsuccessfully to stop the swift Hall who counted 15 points in the 9th's 75-49 triumph. Number 13 is the 9th's Max Powell coming in to assist Hall.

WHO'LL GET IT? . . . The 9th Infantry's Harry Hall (foreground) contests the 23rd Infantry's Charles Kinning for a rebound during the 9th Infantry victory January 30 at the Harmony Church Field House. Other players for the 23rd are Lester Loomis (11) and Jimmy Hogan (behind Hall and Kinning).

MPs Rolling In 3rd Place For NCO Club

By MP Det PIO

The 2nd Infantry Division Noncommissioned Officers Club's entry in the Keglers Handicap League downed Cassady's Phillips 66, 3-1, at the Baker Village Bowling Center January 26.

John Nielsen rolled high game and series of the match with 203 and 571, respectively. Other team members who bowled against the Cassady's were Robert A. Schultz, George Kennedy, Richard C. Guscott, Ronald Greft, Douglas Newkirk and Royal Souther.

The NCO Club team, composed entirely of personnel of the Division Military Police Detachment, is now tied for third place in the six team league, one point below second place, and three points from first. They now carry a 6-6 record for the second half of league bowling, with 12 weeks of bowling remaining.

Victors for the first half of the league play, the NCO Club has strengthened its team with the addition of Robert A. Schultz, and expects to sweep through all competitors to take the overall League Championship.

9th Inf's Co C Unbeaten In Intra BG Hoop Fest

By 9th Inf. PIO

The 9th Infantry resumes competition tomorrow February 4 in company - level basketball play with Company B (2-1) facing Company E (1-1). The winner plays the Headquarters Company (2-1) "five" for the right to meet unbeaten Company C (3-0) for the battle group championship.

Company C disposed of Company E in the first of three games contested January 28 at the Harmony Church Field House. Company C retained its perfect mark with a 61-32 triumph over previously unbeaten Company E Center Rayvaughn Pryear lead the victors with 20 points, with team mate Paul Askew dumping in 16.

Headquarters Company dropped Combat Support Company from further play in the double-elimination tournament by a score of 53-36. Forward Harry Hall scored 22 points for the winners with Headquarters Company guard Dennis Foy pumping in 11. William Hazen paced Combat Support with 15 points.

Company B eliminated Company D from the tourney 57-50 in a tight, closely - contested affair decided in the final two minutes of play. Company B's center, Jack Dispennett, emerged as the high scorer for the day with 21 markers. Forward Jimmy Sandifer dropped in 20 points for Company D, with team mate Jimmy King contributing 12. Forward Melvin Siegel also scored 12 for Company B.

Pryear's 75 points for three contests leads all players entered in the 9th Infantry basketball competition. Dispennett ranks second with 67 points, with his 31 against Company D ranking as the highest for one game in the tourney.

Askew ranks third with 41 points for three games and an average of 13.7, Hall holds the number four spot with 39 points, good for an average of 11 points per outing.

Bankhead Leads 87th Inf Past Trains, 47-45

By 87th Inf PIO

Scoring the first and last goals, the "Conqueror" basketball team defeated Division Trains, 47-45, Monday evening at Harmony Church Field House.

The 87th Infantry, trailing ten points in the second period, closed the gap in the third, and maintained the essential lead for victory during the closing minutes of the game.

Specialist Fourth Class Melvin Bankhead Jr., was high-scorer for the 87th with 19 points. Lieutenant Joe M. Clement scored ten points.

Both of these valuable players come from the cadre of the recently-activated Company E of the 87th Infantry.

Next Monday, February 6, the Conquerors will play Division Artillery.

Bowlers Fighting For Top Position In 69th Armor

By Sep Bn PIO

Tumbling pins and thundering balls were the order of the day as the Separate Battalion bowling league continued its hot action.

An intra-family scrap highlighted events January 25, as the Hurlers of the 69th Armor defeated the Panthers. The score was a close 3 to 1.

In other actions that night the Hilltoppers of the 2nd Engineer Battalion whitewashed the Paladins of the 69th Armor, 4 to 0.

Volleyball Opens At Company Level In Separate Bn.

By Sep Bn PIO

With the division company-level volley ball tournament slated to start in March, the Separate Battalions will begin a tournament of its own to select a representative.

The "pre-tournament" play will be between units of the 2d Engineer Battalion, 122nd Signal Battalion, and the 69th Armor. It will be run during the month of February.

The winning company will represent the Separate Battalions in the division tournament.

Second Pole Installed At MARS Antenna Site

By 12 Signal PIO

The 2nd Infantry Division's MARS (Military Affiliate Radio System) station will soon have a new antenna system, thanks to the help of men equipment of Company D, 2nd Engineer Battalion and Headquarters Company, 122nd Signal Battalion.

Using a crane and crew furnished by the engineers, signal Sergeant First Class Curtis Dills and a team directed the installation of a mamouth pole, the second of a four-pole system planned for the MARS station.

The pole measured 90 feet and weighed 7,000 pounds. It was set into a hole 14 feet deep.

Directing the crane and crew from the engineer battalion were Lieutenant Herman Marlow Jr. and Sergeant Ralph Sooby.

The first 90 foot pole was set into place earlier by an H-37 helicopter from Lawson Air Command. Two sixty-foot poles will be set into place sometime in the near future.

With the new antennas, the MARS station will give better service to the division and amateur radio operators as well, and will cut down on the amount of ground interference to radio signals with the present antena system.

It is also expected to give more wide spread coverage of the world by opening up the use of higher frequencies, enabling radio operators to contract stations in Europe.

At the present time contact has been made with all states except North Dakota and with foreign countries as far away as Argentina and the Union of South Africa.

Maj. Armstrong Named New 9th Exec Officer

By 9th Inf. PIO

The 9th Infantry filled its vacant battle group Executive Officer slot January 16 when Major George E. Armstrong joined the "Keep Up the Fire" unit.

The 9th's new Executive Officer recently completed serving his last assignment at the Uruguaian General Staff School in Montevideo, Uruguay. Major Armstrong fills the post vacated when Lieutenant Colonel Curtis F. Livingston departed the 9th earlier last month to take over as executive officer of the 2nd Division Trains.

A veteran of both World War II and the Korean War, Major Armstrong holds the Silver Star, the Purple Heart, and the Combat Infantryman's Badge. He saw action in four campaigns in the Korean fighting.

A native of Streator, Illinois, Major Armstrong attended the University of Maryland. His overseas assignments include Uruguay, the Antilles, Germany, Korea, and Japan.

Personnel Honor First Sergeant Upon Departure

By 9th Inf PIO

The officers and enlisted men of the 9th Infantry's Headquarters and Headquarters Company honored First Sergeant Ishmael Rangel with a departure party January 20 in the unit mess hall prior to his leaving the 9th for the 11th Infantry (6th Overseas Replacement Unit Program).

Coffee and cake were served at the party, attended by the officers and noncommissioned officers of Headquarters Company. The cake for the occasion was baked under the supervision of the unit mess steward, Sergeant First Class Troy L. Hayes.

The large one-layer cake was colorfully decorated with white, pink, and pale green icing and contained the words: "Good Luck 1st Sergeant Rangel from the 9th Infantry" in yellow icing.

First Sergeant Rangel extended his thanks by having a party the same evening for all members of Headquarters and Headquarters Company.

First Sergeant Rangel's assignment with the 11th Infantry will be with Headquarters Company. He served the 9th since June 1958.

17th Arty Becomes First Division Unit To Begin Trainfire

By 17th Arty. PIO

The 17th Artillery became the first unit in the 2nd Infantry Division to begin training basic Combat Trainees in Trainfire. Battery A began training on January 23 followed on the 24th by Battery B.

The 467 recruits in the battalion are receiving instruction on the new Malone Trainfire Complex. Trainfire is divided into seven phases: Orientation, Mechanical Training, 25 Meter Firing, Battlesight Zeroing, Field Firing, Target Detecting and the Record Course.

The officers and cadre of the 17th Artillery are enthusiastic about the new method of marksmanship training. It is believed that Trainfire will produce a Battle - Oriented Rifleman with confidence in his weapon and his ability to use it properly.

WAC Team Hosts Game

The post WAC basketball team will host a sextet from Fort Jackson tomorrow at Briant Wells Field House at 7 p.m.

In a twin bill last weekend, the post team dropped two games to the Eglin Air Force sextette, 41-29 in Saturday's contest and 25-18 on Sunday morning.

High scorers in the games last week for the post squad were Pfc Earline Suries with 14 points in Saturday's game, and Sp4 Anne Davis, with 12 points in the same game.

Tomorrow the post WAC's will seek their first win against four straight defeats.

Bowling Record

The Infantry Board "Aces", comprised of Capt James R. Rokoski, captain and high league scorer, Capt. Herbert P. Underwood, Major Melvin E. Gustafson, Capt. James W. Bricker and Capt Jesse C. The popular Fort Benning Mixed Doubles Bowling League completed its first half of the current tournament with the Yogi Bears leading. The Sunday evening league has seen a 713 series and a 269 game posted so far.

All-Army Basketball

Lt. Whitehead On Tryout List

Second Lt. Robert J. Whitehead, former Wheaton College, Ill., basketball star, has been selected for participation in All-Army basketball tryouts with more than 50 other hopefuls from throughout the Army. He is assigned to the 1st Battle Group, 29th Infantry, 1st Infantry Brigade.

Practice and team tryouts actually began January 21 at the Presidio of San Francisco, though only about 25 of those selected had arrived.

Coached by veteran Hal Fischer, three time All - Army basketball coach and former Olympic player, the prospective cagers are undergoing a grueling seven-day week training schedule in preparation for the Interservice Championships at Lowry Air Force Base, Denver, Colo., March 14 to 17.

The team already made a debut against the powerful Olympic Club of San Francisco yesterday in a benefit game for the March of Dimes.

A 12-game schedule has been set for the All-Army tryouts, including the Stardust Invitation Basketball Tournament in Las Vegas February 9-11.

Coach Fischer, who has coached three All-Army teams to victory at the Interservice Championships, is hoping for an even better team this year.

With an impressive list of basketball greats, including eight former All - Americans, Fischer expects to break many of the records that were set by his team last year at the championship.

"Time is the toughest foe on our schedule," said coach Fischer, "We'll be gradually cutting down to a squad of ten men by the end of February."

Army Shooters

Team to Visit South America

Seventeen shooters from the Advanced Marksmanship Unit leave tomorrow to participate in international rifle and pistol matches in four South American countries.

The group will pass through Miami tomorrow and make their first Latin stop at Lima, Peru, Sunday to fire in a five-day series of matches.

From Peru the team will fly to Buenos Aires, Argentina on February 12. After a week of shooting in Argentina, they will travel to Rio De Janeiro, Brazil, and then to Caracas, Venezuela.

The contingent is scheduled to return to post on March 6.

Competition during the Latin tour will include 50 and 100 meter small-bore rifle events, 300 meter free rifle shooting, rapid fire and center-fire pistol as well as free pistol firing, and service rifle matches, traditionally conducted with the standard weapons of the host country.

In addition, a demonstration of International trap shooting will be presented.

All firing will be conducted under International Shooting Union rules.

Heading the AMU squad will be Major Michael Tipa, officer in charge of the AMU's International Group. Capt. Victor M. Calderon will serve as liaison officer and interpreter for the team.

The trip is being made at the invitation of South American governments and military officials who formed friendships with Army shooters during the 1959 Pan American Games, the international matches held in Panama last Spring, and at the 1960 Olympic Games in Rome.

At NRA Sectional Matches

Junior Rifle Crown Won by Mary Hussong

Mary Hussong, 16-year-old member of the Fort Benning girl's team, retained the National Rifle Association's Junior Sectional Indoor Rifle Match girl's championship last weekend in the 17th annual sectional matches held on post.

Her 371 score out of a possible 400 placed her high above a large percentage of the boy competitors. She won the girl's crown last year also.

Mocar posted 383 points over the smallbore course to win the trophy by a single point. Baker High's Robert A. Nugent, in posting 382, gathered in the trophy awarded to the high ROTC cadet, but split second place scoring honors with Arthur Partain of the Benning boys team.

Team honors were taken by a Thomaston, Ga., Robert E. Lee High School Team with a score of 1483, nine points over the Opelika High School total of 1474. The Opelika Club was awarded the High ROTC Team Trophy.

Third place in team standings was won by the Jordan High riflemen.

"New Shooter" trophies, special awards donated by the post Rifle and Pistol Club, went to John E. Keboe of Coral Gables, Fla., Gordon Military School of Barnesville, Ga., and to Joan Childry of Benning's girls' club.

Winner of the trophy awarded to the high "sub-junior" marksman under 13 years of age was Benning's Jerry Yearty.

The shoot was conducted on the indoor range of the Advanced Marksmanship Unit, where presentation of awards was made by Brig. Gen. A. D. Surles Jr., deputy commanding general, The Infantry Center.

The matches were sponsored by the Rifle and Pistol Club, under the supervision of Col. G. H. Huppert.

NEW SHOOTER . . . Joan Childry, of the post Junior Girl's Rifle Team, won a new shooter award during the National Rifle Association Sectional Indoor Rifle Tournament last week.

Sunny skies last Sunday made the air a little less chilly for a full platoon of junior anglers who caught a fine mess of trout out at Johnson's Pond. The day was set aside to let the kids get a lick at the pond's rainbows and nearly 100 trout fell to sub-caliber fishermen.

The Pond will now revert to its original standing — open to all post anglers who hold valid fishing licenses. Lures are restricted to artificials only and you're reminded that the pond will be open on all days when the area is not reserved for training purposes.

Johnson's is a long way out so you'd save a lot of bother (for everyone) if you'd first check with the Range Control Office at 5-0091.

Now — here's where I get my tongue a'lappin' like an old garrison belt. It has been reported that more and more instances have been cropping up where boat fastenings have been forced. These acts, apparently, have been done to bypass the paying of boat fees or to save the time it takes to draw keys from the Harmony Church office of the F&C Maintenance Association.

Until now, the Association hasn't felt that misuse of its property would be to such a degree. One member of its staff is responsible for the boat service rendered on a dozen ponds and he finds it impossible to be at more than one place at a time.

Personally, its no fun to travel away up to Hedley's or Averett's with visions of a good day of fishing only to find your boat missing.

In other instances, the seats of the wooden boats much preferred by bass-stalking anglers have been found smashed.

It usually follows that the individuals who pull these tricks are those who'd screech the loudest if boat service was discontinued. As it is, the association is removing its wooden boats and putting to metal craft in an attempt to safeguard against forcing of hasps.

If past acts are any example I wonder whether there won't be some who'll carry a blow-torch in their fishing kits — after all, cold chisels are a bit too obvious in by-passing the token 50c fee!

At any rate, things have come to the point where the association is going to stop "heading over backward" and take definite action to prevent further occurrences.

Top ground gainer last year for the Fort Benning Doughboys was Sp4 Ralph C. Zeringue, assigned to Headquarters Company, 151st Engineer Group, as a radio mechanic.

This Raceland, La., native played football for three years in high school from 1954 to 1956, and lettered each year as fullback.

In 1956, he gained over 1,000 yards in rushing, made 10 touchdowns, and was captain of the team.

He received an award as "outstanding backfield" player in 1955 and 1956; was given honorable mention for All-State in 1956 and played in a Louisiana High School All-Star game.

Specialist Zeringue was granted a football scholarship to Southeastern Louisiana College at Hammond in 1956. He played for two years under the coaching of Stanley Galloway, and lettered in 1958.

SP4 ZERINGUE

In June, 1959, he entered the Army, and continued his interest in physical education whenever possible.

Football did not take all his time in school either, as he found time to make letters in track twice, and letters in football three times.

He ran the 440 and 880, and took part in broad jumping competition, and was a member of the Raceland High School track team in 1956 which won the district championship.

At Southeastern, he also lettered in track in 1958.

Action Called for in Soccer, Swimming, at Athletic Meeting

Athletic prospects for The Infantry Center during 1961 was the main topic of discussion at a meeting of major unit athletic and recreation officers and noncommissioned officers recently at Service Club 1.

Among the individual sports discussed were soccer, bowling, swimming, boxing and tennis. Spot reports were made on each.

Capt. Charles M. Todd, Infantry Center sports officer, presided at the meeting.

Soccer was the first and most important subject discussed. According to Capt. Todd, a soccer coach with experience is badly needed for the Doughboy soccer team.

The squad, which holds practice sessions each Monday, Wednesday and Friday from 2 to 5 p.m., has a maximum of 11 men turning out for each of the conditioning periods at Doughboy Stadium so far.

Screening personnel records has indicated that 32 men, one officer and 31 enlisted men, have had experience in playing soccer, of whom only a fraction have registered for the post squad.

Among the players who are listed as having experience are some who have gained high recognition in the sport, and traveled throughout the European soccer circuit.

The soccer season will last approximately through April, with games to be scheduled on a home-and-home basis with nearby colleges and military installations.

About 50 qualified lifeguards and water safety instructors are needed to man five swimming pools on post. Among the pools which are staffed by Special Services lifeguards are Sand Hill, Harmony Church, the new Carey Pool, Briant Wells Field House pool and the Main Officers' Open Mess pool.

According to Capt. Todd and The Infantry Center sports NCO, Sfc Arthur Lint, water testing will be held at Briant Wells Field House pool until February 17, followed by the training of swimmers passing the test to qualify as a senior American Red Cross lifeguard. Training in the second phase will continue until March 3, being held Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. until noon.

Running simultaneously with the training of new lifeguards will be the retraining of old guards from 1 to 5 p.m. Personnel from the new class and the retraining class who are qualified will advance to the third phase.

Water safety instructor conditioning is the third phase of the program, with a class of 45, which will be trimmed to 30 before the opening of the qualifications for becoming an instructor.

The conditioning period opens March 6 and lasts to March 10 from 8 a.m. until noon. Water safety instructor qualification will be held from March 13 to 17, with the class of 30 being cut to 20 or 25 who will be qualified as water safety instructors.

After training and testing, the qualified instructors will operate the swimming pools, give swimming lessons and train other persons hopeful of qualifying as senior Red Cross lifeguards and water safety instructors.

The post boxing team is in need of a flyweight, bantamweight and heavyweight to field a complete team for the Third Army 1961 Boxing Championships scheduled for Fort Campbell next month.

Capt. Todd requested each of the major unit officials to screen possible fighters to fill these vacancies.

CUTE RECRUITER . . . Marian Green appears in a portion of the 1960 All-American football team film featuring the All-America stars as picked by more than 500 members of the American Football Coaches Association.

Post Volleyball Tournament Set February 14-21

A double elimination volleyball tournament has been scheduled on post February 14 to 21, according to Special Services Sports Office officials.

As many as 25 teams are expected to enter the eight-day tournament, and games are to be scheduled at Briant Wells Field House and other locations on post.

Details on registering for the tournament have been made available to all units.

Student Brigade Threat Upsets Basketball Calm

The Student Brigade threw the major unit basketball tournament into a tie for first place last Tuesday night when they defeated the 428th Medical Battalion 66-59 for a record of eight wins to one loss.

In their last game through Tuesday's schedule, The Infantry Center Troop Command had lost their first game of the tournament to the 1st Howitzer Battalion, 10th Artillery, 1st Infantry Brigade, by a score of 69-66.

The 1st Battle Group, 29th Infantry, 1st Infantry Brigade, remained in third place after Tuesday's game, with a record of eight wins and two losses.

Still in fourth place early in the week was the 428th Medics team, despite two losses in the past week, to the 29th Infantry and The Student Brigade.

Highest score recorded during the week's play was a 119 posted by The Student Brigade against the 151st Engineer Group, who scored 52 points in the game.

Keglers Vie for 2nd Series Win

Members of the post bowling team, who hold one series victory to date over Eglin Air Force Base, will meet Fort McPherson in the first of two contests tomorrow at the post bowling center.

For the second half of the series, the Benning team will go to Fort McPherson February 18.

A match scheduled for last weekend against Warner Robbins Air Force Base was postponed by the airmen, and no new date has been set for this final competition. The Warner Robbins keglers hold a 46-pin lead following the first half of the series on January 7 at the air base.

Range Control Scheduling Like King-Size Chess Game

By MSgt Charles Quinn

Sixty-eight full scale firing ranges, and as many, or more, training areas occupy almost every foot of the reservation outside the four major cantonments.

Daily troop training requires live firing of weapons ranging from the .22 caliber target pistol to the gigantic Honest John rocket, and from weapons in the experimental-development stage to artillery support fires for Infantry, along with training which does not involve actual firing.

Such far-flung and tremendous movement calls for close cooperation and coordination of the highest type between "using units" and one of the post's least-known staffs, the officers and men of the Range Control Section.

The section, attached to The Infantry Center's G-3 Section, has a staff of two officers, 41 enlisted men and three civilians —and one of the most critical jobs on post.

Major George C. Walsh, chief of the section, admitted that the job could be more than hectic at times.

"Equitable distribution of assignments to the various ranges and training areas is our main problem," he said. The major explained that each unit has its own training program to follow.

The huge and complex system of ranges and areas is in constant use, sometimes around the clock, by units conducting their own brands of training.

Each has its own demands for space in which to maneuver, and for defense against interference by other troops, the firing of neighboring units, or by the casual intruder.

According to Capt. Wesley S. Turner, assistant to Major Walsh, these demands must be met in their entirety. He explained that, in turn, units must comply with the demands outlined in the Army's training plans for its Infantry. More often than not, the time element permits little leeway for commanders to "pick and choose" range or area assignment, he said. Training requirements must be met. If they aren't, unit and Range Control schedules suffer a chain reaction.

"Brush fires or driving storms among other things may make range use impossible and that's when scheduling becomes a kingsize chess game," MSgt. Levern Sloan, pointed out.

"When that happens," he added, "the whole office staff goes into action trying to switch this unit onto that range at a time desirable to everyone and still stay well within the realm of absolute safety."

Matters are taken in stride, however, and the switching is usually done at a cost of only slight headaches.

The secret of assignment procedure is use of coded situation maps showing every range and training area within the bounds of the reservation.

One section of a daily map may be outlined in green and indicates use of that area into which student parachutists would be jumping. Another, also ringed in green but with an inner, broken line in red, indicates that demolitions would be detonated there on that particular date.

Straight red lines which dominate most of the map surface tell the use of dozens of ranges for firing during daylight hours, while lines of a red-yellow combination warn of night firing.

Timing, another key to success, is the responsibility of the using troops, Major Walsh stated, and is carefully observed.

As an example he cited use of an area slated for a night problem over which artillery shells would be arcing shortly after dawn.

"It follows," he said, "that the officer-in-charge of the night problem must assure vacating the area well in advance of the artillery shelling."

Headaches really start for the staff when sometimes massive maneuvers and demonstrations, which have taken weeks of coordination and preparation, are within minutes of "zero hour" when frantic signals are received from forward observers.

In one such instance an observer had fortunately seen the flash of a yellow picnic cloth seconds before the area was to be enveloped by flame and steel of artillery batteries. A family had selected the exact center of that particular impact area in which to spend a lazy afternoon.

The conclusion is drawn, then, that there must be some system by which such disastrous interruptions could be prevented.

Here, Major Walsh explained that Army regulations governing use of firing ranges were specific in this respect. Before any shot is fired, according to regulations, a series of safeguards must be established. Most familiar of these is the huge red range flag which flies every second a range is in use.

Entrances to all approaches from which the big flag is not plainly visible are guarded either by posted sentries or by barricades upon which warnings, including the significant skull-and-crossbones, are prominently displayed. Outer limitations of the firing area are posted with warning signs. When the operation warrants, additional warnings are published in local civilian newspapers and announced over radio and TV stations for days in advance, the range control officer explained.

Caribou Pilots Get Test Ready

The 34 pilots and supporting personnel of the 1st Aviation Company at Lawson Army Aviation Command have gone into high gear in preparation for the first large scale troop tests of the YAC-1 Caribou aircraft in April and May.

Sixteen of these pilots, who have completed transition to the newly developed "Big Birds," have kept the four Caribous received last October in almost constant operation.

In December alone the unit logged 1,510 hours of pilot flight training, and one caribou recently completed the first international flight by a Lawson based plane.

Capt. Robert A. Gwaltney, a company pilot, returned a Caribou to the factory at Toronto, Canada, for special modifications. Co-pilot was Capt. Paul H. Brown of the Lawson Transportation Field Maintenance unit, and crew chief was Sp5 John T. Shye, factory trained and assigned to the specific craft.

Commander of the 1st Aviation Company is Major Charlen M. Honour Jr.

The Surgeon Says

Asphyxiation Can Be Deadly

By Major Robert H. Quinn

Frequently, we hear or read about someone strangling to death. Often it is revealed that this strangulation resulted from nausea. How does this happen? How can it be prevented?

The medical term for strangulation is asphyxiation. It occurs when the passages or airways to, and in, the lungs are clogged with such things as food, water, body fluids, gas, etc., or because the muscles that control breathing become paralyzed.

This occasionally happens due to eating, drowning, pneumonia, gas poisoning, and electrical shock or paralytic polio.

Asphyxiation is caused by a loss of oxygen in the blood. It produces unconsciousness and, if it lasts long enough, death results. Asphyxiated persons suffer first from dizziness, their faces flush, then it becomes more difficult to breathe, and their skin becomes blue.

To keep food from being the cause of asphyxiation care must be taken to chew it thoroughly and to swallow slowly. If a cough is felt coming on while the mouth is full of food the obvious thing to do is to spit it out. Another preventive measure as well as good manners and common sense is not to try to talk with the mouth full of food. Following these two simple rules greatly lessens the chance of aspirating food particles.

One of the more prominent problems in this area is the asphyxiation by eating regurgitated food. This is highly acid and contains digestive enzymes which cannot be tolerated by the lungs. When such food is sucked into the esophagus (windpipe) it may stop up a branch of this vital organ.

If this happens then the portion of the lung whose air is supplied by the plugged bronchis (branch) absorbs the air that was already in the area before the plug occurred.

This absorption will cause that part of the lung to collapse and if the area involved is large enough, death will result. However, the person usually survives this initial collapsing but such a condition is often followed by the development of pneumonia and infection which may be very difficult to control.

Whenever the windpipe has a plugged-up branch it produces a condition in the lung very favorable to the growth of germs. In view of this it is essential that help be obtained as soon as possible by calling a doctor, the police, fire department or an ambulance.

The lungs are a collection of air sacs with blood vessels running around them. Under normal conditions the blood takes oxygen from the air in the lungs and circulates it through the rest of the body. However, when one or more of the bronchi branches becomes stopped up and a part of the lung collapses, that area becomes hard and the blood cannot circulate through it.

The body's main defense against infection and disease is the blood. It contains antibodies so it follows that an area without a good blood supply is a choice place for germs.

The two main points to remember when treating a person suffering from asphyxiation (strangulation) is to immediately clear the throat and airways of all foreign matter and pull the tongue forward so that it won't choke the individual. Then administer artificial respiration, preferably the mouth to mouth method.

The foreign material can be removed from the person's mouth with the finger and the head turned to the side so that any liquid present will drain out. When administering mouth to mouth artificial respiration, breathe directly into the victim's mouth in order to inflate the lungs. Then remove and allow his lungs to empty. Repeat this procedure about 20 times a minute until the victim resumes normal breathing.

Remember — Most accidental asphyxiations should never have occurred. Use common sense — follow a few simple rules — and live longer.

Searchlight Will Honor Year's Best

Special awards will be established for presentation to military and civilian personnel on post who submitted the most beneficial suggestion to "Operation Searchlight" during 1960.

The Army-wide special emphasis program, encouraging time, money and labor-saving suggestions from personnel, began at the post about a year ago and ended December 31.

During "Operation Searchlight," military personnel submitted 2,913 suggestions and civilian employees, 965. In 1959 the military number was 290 and the civilian 491, according to the executive secretary of the Incentive Awards Committee which reviews suggestions.

The special awards, presented as a climax to the campaign, will not be granted until after March 31 to allow time to process and adopt suggestions received through December 31. Any suggestions submitted during 1960 and adopted by March 31 may be considered.

GEN. POWELL
CONARC Commander

The Continental Army Command Marks Its Sixth Anniversary

The Continental Army Command celebrated its sixth anniversary on Wednesday. On February 1, 1955, the Office, Chief of Army Field Forces was redesignated Headquarters Continental Army Command.

First to command the new organization was Gen. John E. Dahlquist, Chief of Army Field Forces from August 1953 through February 1956. A year later the name was changed to United States Continental Army Command, its present title, generally referred to as USCONARC.

Where the Office, Chief of Army Field Forces merely supervised and suggested training procedures for troops located within the continental limits of the United States, USCONARC today assumes complete responsibility for all activities of Army troops in the U.S. and the Military District of Washington, except for ARADCOM and certain technical service troops for which he has certain specified responsibilities.

Its present commanding general, Gen. Herbert B. Powell, the third commander since its organization, is second in command only to the Army Chief of Staff, Washington, D. C. He is assisted by Lt. Gen. Gordon B. Rogers, deputy commanding general for Developments and Lt. Gen. Paul L. Freeman Jr., deputy commanding general for Reserve Forces.

This extensive field command encompasses 95 major posts, camps and stations; 315,000 military personnel or nearly half of the Active Army; 70,000 civilians and over two million Army reserve personnel not on active duty.

The command is responsible for the combat, service and technical training of individuals and units which make up the Army in the field; the ground defense of the continental United States in the event of an enemy attack; the development of tables of organization and equipment for units normally a part of the Army in the field and for the continued research, development and tests of new weapons, material and equipment for the Army; supervises the curricula and instruction of the world's largest school system, including some 300,000 resident and non-resident students annually in 90 service schools; the development and control of the Reserve Forces and ROTC, by establishing criteria for and supervising the training of approximately 400,000 National Guardsmen and 300,000 Army Reservists in units, thousands of individual reinforcements and 240,000 cadets in more than 625 universities, colleges and high schools.

In the final analysis, the primary task of USCONARC is to organize, equip and train the ONE ARMY TEAM for sustained operations in modern warfare.

Tactics

British American Seminar

The Infantry School Ranger Department will hold a seminar on small unit tactics today.

Present at the seminar will be Lt. Col. John McLaren, British liaison officer, and the Defense Committee of the Ranger Department.

Purpose of the seminar is the exchange of views on the small unit tactics as employed by the British and American Armies.

Col. McLaren, of the Somerset and Cornwall Light Infantry School, has seen service in Normandy, Germany, Greece and the Middle East.

IT PAYS TO STAY IN

Army careerists are eligible for Social Security benefits that are worth thousands of dollars after retirement.

Gen. Johnson Is Visiting School Today

Major Gen. Harold K. Johnson, commandant of the Command and General Staff College, Fort Leavenworth, is visiting the Infantry School today.

He is being briefed on School activities and will confer with officers of the school's Combat Developments Office.

Gen. Johnson also attended a talk on the concept and role of STRAC given by Lt. Gen. Thomas J. H. Trapnell, commanding general of XVIII Airborne Corps, STRAC and Fort Bragg, yesterday morning in Wharton Hall.

Safety Pointers To Post Scouts

Boy Scouts of Troop 12 here on post received instruction on safety from the assistant safety director of The Infantry Center. The group discussed bicycle, water and home safety and fire prevention.

The instruction will be of value to the scouts in meeting their Safety Merit Badge requirements and each youth will receive a certificate of attendance.

Appointment Desk

The Central Appointment Desk at Martin Army Hospital handled 17,525 appointments in three months. Total number of patients treated during that time was 116,200.

Girl Scout Leaders Meet; Institute Set

The Fort Benning Association of Girl Scouting will host an Institute for Region VI on February 6-7.

The training is open to key people selected by councils to include personnel committee members, neighborhood chairmen, troop organizers, troop consultants, trainers, staff, program committee members, camp committee members, public relations members, finance committee members, and board members.

Instructors for this training are Mrs. Thelma Langley, Mrs. Theodore Grant, and Miss Sue Hammock, all from the National Staff of Girl Scouting.

The Orion Neighborhood Association of Girl Scouting held its regularly scheduled meeting on January 25.

Mrs. Harold Wilder, chairman, introduced the guests from the Concharty Council of Columbus.

They were Mrs. Jimmy Petran, Mrs. Charles Skipworth, Mrs. R. W. Ulrich, Mrs. Richard Hecht, Mrs. James Miner, Mrs. Luke Teasley and Miss Marty Kurtz.

Notes from the Red Cross at Martin Army Hospital were read thanking the Scouts and Brownies for their help during the Christmas holidays.

The program ended with a movie and a report on the National convention held last November.

Detachment 24 Gets A Guidon

A new guidon, originated by 2nd Lt. Steven Berry, a student officer, is being made for Detachment 24, 5th Student Battalion, The Student Brigade.

The design, approved by Lt. Col. Vern L. Joseph, battalion commander, bears both English and Greek inscriptions, along with Roman numerals.

The finished guidon is being made by the student officers' wives and is expected to be completed within the next few weeks.

Civitan Speaker

Major Christopher M. Gooch, Jr., chairman of the Combat Conditioning Committee of The Infantry School's Ranger Department, spoke on Ranger training at last week's meeting of the Phenix City Civitan Club.

REAL COOL . . . June Blair, who appears in Warner Brother's flick "A Fever in the Blood," is cooling it alongside her Hollywood pool. With her around just tell us the soldier who wouldn't be a man doing a man's job.

Hollywood Lowdown And Inside Briefs. . .

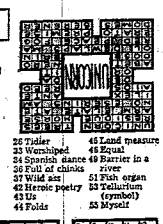
Joseph Pevney, who is directing Warner Bros.' "Portrait of a Mobster," is staging a nightclub act for his wife, Mitzi Green, whom he directed in the Broadway musical, "Let Freedom Ring" . . . Actor Werner Klemperer, originally cast for the role of Rudolph Hess in Allied Artists' "Operation Eichman," was promoted to head villain when he was switched to the part of Adolf Eichmann . . . Lloyd Nolan, who has completed his starring role in Warners' "Susan Slade," expects to be back on the Broadway stage this season.

After finishing her title role in Warners' "The Roman Spring of Mrs. Stone," Vivian Leigh will tour Russia, Australia, South America and the Far East for two years with Shakespeare plays . . . Nancy Kwan, who made a big hit in "The World of Suzie Wong," will star in Ross Hunter's film production of "Flower Drum Song" in the role created by Pat Suzuki in the Broadway musical play . . . and Pert Kelton, who played the mother in the original stage version of Meredith Wilson's "The Music Man," will ditto in Warners' screen adaptation.

Director Gordon Douglas answers the demand for fresh movie talent by offering five exciting young personalities in Warner Bros.' "Claudelle Inglish": Diane McBain, Will Hutchins, Chad York, Robert Logan and Robert Colbert . . . United States Olympic decathlon champion Rafer Johnson, who has decided on a film career as an actor, has been named among the nation's ten outstanding young men of 1960 by the U.S. Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Lovely, blonde Leslie Parrish has been named "The Best Undressed Woman of the Year" by her fun-loving fellow actors on the set of Warner Bros.' "Portrait of a Mobster" because of a bedroom sequence in which she wears a filmy chemise in the fashion of the 1920's . . . International star Yves Montand, who is an accomplished linguist, is dubbing his lines in French and Italian, as well as English in 20th-Fox's screen adaptation of William Faulkner's "Sanctuary" . . . Horst Buchholz has been signed to a multiple picture contract by producer-director Billy Wilder and for two more pictures with Joshua Logan on the basis of enthusiastic reaction to his performance in Logan's production of "Fanny" for Warner Bros.

MM . . . Still as lovely as she appeared in this picture 10 years ago, Marilyn Monroe wouldn't need the western rig to get any Infantryman to be her valentine.



HEART-STOPPER . . . Looking for a heart-warming sight to kindle a gleam in your eyes? Here's demure Joyce Nazari wishing with all her heart to be your Valentine.

MSgt (E-8) John R. Young Sr., operations sergeant of the 39th Transportation Battalion, took his basic training at Fort Benning and has served here several times before his current assignment.

His basic training was with the 29th Infantry Regiment in 1934, and he stayed in a rifleman's job, working up to sergeant, until he served his first tour overseas as a platoon sergeant in 1937 in Hawaii.

Back at Benning in 1940, he was assigned as motor sergeant with the 2nd Armored Division. He was reassigned the next year to Camp Chaffee, Ark., as a truckmaster.

A master sergant by that time, he was next transferred to Fort Campbell as a first sergeant in the 14th Armored Division. Sgt. Young went to Europe in 1944 with the 14th.

E-8 YOUNG

In 1945, he returned to the States and served as first sergeant at Fort Campbell, and a year later was back at Benning serving as supply and operations NCO at the post motor pool.

Sgt. Young went from here to Korea in 1951 and joined the 35th Infantry Regiment, again assigned as a first sergeant.

Following the Korean conflict he returned once again to Benning, this time as operations sergeant and deputy maintenance chief in the motor pool.

He was assigned to his present position in 1958, and promoted to E-8 last November.

Among his decorations he holds the Bronze Star Medal and the Army Commendation Medal.

This Week In History

February 4, 1861 — The Confederate States of America was created at Montgomery, Ala.

February 5, 1844 — Lt. J. C. Fremont's Army Expedition began its attempt to cross the Sierras.

February 6, 1901 — Walter Reed proved transmission of yellow fever by the Stegomyia mosquito.

February 7, 1808 — Army Lt. Zebulon Pike and his company reached the Rio Grande River during the exploration of the Arkansas and Red Rivers.

February 8, 1942 —The Japanese evacuated Guadalcanal.

February 9, 1864 — 109 Union prisoners escaped from Libby Prison in Richmond by means of a tunnel they had secretly dug.

February 10, 1763—The Treaty of Paris ended the French and Indian Wars; France ceded Canada to Great Britain.

Comm Instructor

First Lt. Francis O. Nugent has been assigned to the Communication Department of The Infantry School as an instructor. He came to the post from an assignment in Korea.

Judy & Tracy Harrison's teen talk...

Hi! This is Judy and Tracy again to bring you the top school news.

As many of you know, this week was the "break" between the two semesters of the school year and for many of us, that meant semester and six weeks tests. At this time, many of our college friends came home for their "break" and renewed old acquaintances. All of this was soon to stop, however, for we are all back to work and are at our best to make highest grades ever.

COLUMBUS HIGH

"Waitin' for the Robert E. Lee" and "Are You From Dixie" are only two of the songs that will be heard at the CHS "Minstrel Show," plus banjos strumming, dancing, impersonations, and many other acts tonight and tomorrow night at the CHS Auditorium, for a small admission price.

This should prove to be a wonderful show as others have been, so get your friends and come on down to the CHS "Minstrel Show" for a wonderful night of fun.

Superlatives were recently chosen at CHS and from the senior superlatives comes Fort Benning's Sam McDowell, chosen as the "wittiest". which comes as no surprise to any of us.

The Teenage Grand Jury is planning a dance with a night-club scene as their theme. The Jury is made up of members of the Columbus, Baker and Jordan High Schools and is naming its nightclub the "Co Ed Jo Club." The dance is to be held February 25 and will feature the "Rocket Squad" band.

BAKER HIGH

A Junior Civitan Dance was recently held and among the lovely attendants to the Queen were two Benningites, Jane Johnson and Beverly Chapman.

Another Benningite, Harold Greer, was recently named the outstanding "Boy of the Week" at CHS while Carol Josey was named the "Girl of the Week."

Five Benning friends, Cody Sinclair, Marta Davila, Judy Rush, Barbara Brooks and Maureen Garecki, who are Baker's ROTC sponsors this year, received the ROTC Sponsor Achievement Award recently.

SOCIAL NOTES

Brat Barracks, the post teenage club, recently held an election for new officers. They are: president, Tompa Gray; vice president, Ken Wessner; secretary, Micki Sweet; treasurer, Kathy King; and program chairmen, Judy Lamb and Dave Ingle.

Dues have been omitted from the agenda, but a dime admission charge will be collected each time you go to Brat Barracks.

The Follow-Me Club recently welcomed their new sponsors, Captain and Mrs. William Hawkins. We've been asked to invite any of you that are interested as new members to join the Follow Me Club. They meet in Building 2606 at 6 p.m. on Sunday nights.

Artillery Names Best

Headquarters Battery, 2nd Howitzer Battalion, 10th Artillery, 1st Infantry Brigade, took top honors in the 10th Artillery Honor Battery monthly competition. A parade was held recently to present the Honor Battery Streamer.

The win was the third consecutive month the battery held this distinction since the program was instituted five months ago. Battery C took top honors in the first two months' competition with Headquarters Battery placing second.

An Honor Battery Streamer is attached to the winning battery's guidon in the monthly competition. As an added incentive, the winning battery is given one day off as a reward for their outstanding work.

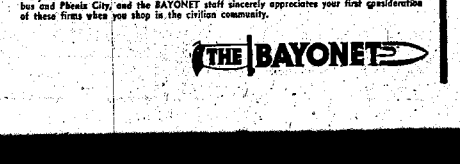
College Class Hears Talks By Post Officers

Major Freeman Jones, chief of the Criminal Investigation Division of the Infantry Center's Provost Marshal Section, spoke on "Criminal Investigation in Relation to Military Justice in the Army" to a University of Georgia extension class in military law earlier this week.

Capt. William P. Tyson, Jr., an instructor on the Training Committee of the Infantry School's Special Subjects Department, gave a talk on Civil Defense to the same class Wednesday.

Chaplains' Briefing



Chaplain (Major) James V. Harvester, chief of the Administrative Program and Budget Division of the Chaplain's Section at Continental Army Command at Fort Monroe, attended the monthly post chaplain's briefing here last week.

Flying Club Opens A Membership Drive

Memberships in the Post Flying Club are open to all military and civilian personnel, and a current drive is under way to sign up those with experience or interested people who may never have been in the air.

At reasonable rates, all services are offered by the club, including instruction from the ground up, use of club aircraft and the company of other members ranging from those taking their first lessons to fully qualified licensed pilots.

According to club officials, about 12 hours of dual flight are required, followed by 40 or 50 hours of solo flight, to qualify for a private pilot license.

Full information on club facilities, fees, instruction and costs of operating the club's planes is available at the clubhouse Building 2406, or by calling 5-2945.

Aircraft operated by the club are club property, and members may make arrangements for their use for periods of up to 15 days when qualified.

The Civilians You Work With

SIMMONS

GANUS

Margaret Simmons has devoted the past two years to work in the Protocol Division, Secretary General Staff, The Infantry Center.

Her primary duties are with U. S. visitors to the post, but she doubles in brass to pay all bills pertaining to foreign distinguished visitors on official tours, and she takes care of the commandant's welfare fund.

She has worked at Benning for five years, previously with The Student Brigade.

Columbus is her home, and she attended high school here.

Melvin Ganus worked up through every job in the Pictorial Services Division of The Infantry Center Signal Section to his present job as division chief.

He has spent ten years with the photo laboratory, the last four in his present assignment. A native of Alabama, he is a graduate of Central High School, and continued his education through University of Georgia extension courses.

He served during World War II with the famed Seabees (Naval Construction Battalions) in the Pacific.

Lab Technicians Get Certificates

Pfc Clara A. Lyle, Pvt. Roger P. Paye and Pvt. Floyd E. King Jr., were presented certificates of completion of a laboratory technician course in ceremonies last week at Martin Army Hospital.

Moe's Papa After Ride With Girls

(AFPS) — Moe's quite a guy. In less than a week he fathered 13 offspring at the Air Force School of Aviation Medicine in Texas.

You may remember Moe as the mouse who went along with two females, Sally and Amy, on a rocket ride 600 miles into space last October 13. It carried them 4,400 miles down range from Cape Canaveral, Fla., to Ascension Island in the South Atlantic.

Sally and Amy were the nation's first animals to travel through the Van Allen radiation belt, spend more than 20 minutes in the weightless state, and subsequently be recovered and give birth to offspring. The Air Force sent them on the ride to collect data on the possible effects of space radiation on future astronauts.

The chief of the school's Department of Space Medicine, said the mice received less than one-tenth of a roentgen, about the amount one gets in a chest X-ray.

Amy was the first to deliver her offspring — a litter of five. Sally, in an adjoining cage, gave birth to seven mouslings six days later.

The three mice, all laboratory born, are black. Any primary radiation particle hits on them would cause white hairs in their coats. Sally and Amy do show a few tiny white streaks which might mean they sustained such hits.

"We plan to breed the daughters of both Sally and Amy when they are from 12 to 16 weeks old," the doctor said.

Canadians Visit The Infantry School This Week

The entire student body of the Canadian National Defense College, accompanied by the school's commandant, Rear Adm. A. H. G. Storrs of the Royal Canadian Navy, and five staff officers of the college, were briefed on new developments in Army tactics and techniques Wednesday and Thursday.

The Infantry School is the only Army installation on the Canadian party's nine-day tour of U. S. stations.

The Allied officers viewed demonstrations of Ranger and Airborne training and an Infantry - tank team attack. They were also briefed on the concept and role of STRAC by Lt. Gen. Thomas J. H. Trapnell, commanding general of XVIII Airborne Corps, STRAC and Fort Bragg.

Staff officers accompanying Adm. Storrs were Brig. A.F.B. Knight, Canadian Army, Air Commodore W. P. Gouin, Royal Canadian Air Force, and George P. Kidd, Department of External Affairs, all of the Directing Staff ; Col. G. M. C. Spring, and Wing Cmdr. G. G. Wright, Royal Canadian Air Force, executive staff officer.

Canada's senior service school, the National Defense College is at Kingston, Ontario. The 28 students include six officers from the U. S. and Britain.

Course members are T. G. Belcher, U. S. Department of State; Capt. A. G. Bridgman, Royal Canadian Navy; W. E. Cowie, Defense Research Board; J. H. Currie, Department of Labour; D. W. Franklin, Department of Finance; C. S. Gadd, Department of External Affairs, Capt. D.C.E.F. Gibson, British Royal Navy; Group Capt. R. F. Harman, British Royal Air Forces; Lt. Col E. R. Heuchan, Canadian Army; Col. M. C. Holden, U. S. Army; W. M. James, Department of Defense Production; Group Capt. E. H. Johnston, Royal Canadian Air Force; Brig. J. R. B. Jones, Canadian Army, and L. J. J. Heureux, Defense Research Board.

Brig. R. C. Lempriere-Robin, British Army; Group Capt. N. L. Magnusson, Royal Canadian Air Force; Capt. H. A. McCandless, Royal Canadian Navy; Group Capt. G. E. McCormick, Royal Canadian Air Force; J. R. Neville, Civil Service Commission; Capt. C. P. Nixon, Royal Canadian Navy; Col. A. D. Powers, U. S. Air Force, and M. H. G. Rogers, Commonwealth Relations Office.

Capt. E. H. Russell, Royal Canadian Navy; Col. R. L. Rutherford, Canadian Army; Capt. F. W. Snyder, U. S. Navy; Group Capt. J. A. Sproule, Royal Canadian Air Force; Supt. E. H. Stevenson, Royal Canadian Mounted Police, and G. G. Thibault, Department of External Affairs.

Gen. Walsh's Infantry School Report

Despite recent freezing temperatures, summer camp field training of the One Army components is the current primary concern of the 12 writers presently assigned to the Editorial Committee of The Infantry School's Department of Non-Resident Instruction.

Although summer field training is not scheduled to begin before June, instructional material is now being prepared for the 1961 summer camps of the Reserve Officers Training Corps, and the Army Reserve schools. Material will be in the hands of instructors by April to allow time for instructor study, planning, and rehearsals.

Instructional materials for the ROTC are normally outlines of the subject matter to be covered but, where required, a complete instructor manuscript or all material for a practical field exercise is furnished.

Reserve School material provides a complete outline of instruction, instructor narrative together with suggested charts, sketches, and necessary maps for each hour of instruction, as well as student sets for the handling of each field exercise required by the program of instruction. In all cases, the latest Department of the Army policy and The Infantry School position and doctrine is reflected.

Yearly revision of instructional materials is necessary to reflect the constant changes in tactics, weapons, doctrine, and nomenclature. Current revisions will consider the comments obtained by Editorial Committee writers from ROTC and Reserve school instructors, cadets, and students during the 1960 summer field training.

In addition to the instructional materials for the Infantry branch and general military science Reserve Officers Training Corps units and the Infantry branch of reserve school instruction, the Editorial Committee prepares the instructional material used in the Proposed Academic Building

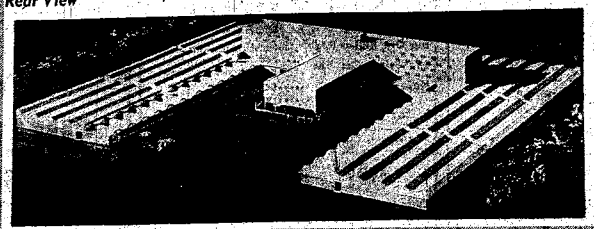
Front View

Congressman Carl Vinson (D-Ga.), Chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, announced in Washington this week that a new academic building for The Infantry School is one of the major items contained in the Army proposed Fiscal Year 1961 military construction authorization program which has been presented to the Congressional Armed Services Committee.

The proposed 10 million dollar building is designed to consolidate effectively the numerous elements of The Infantry School in one central location.

Current plans call for the proposed new structure to be built in the vicinity of the jump tower on Eubanks Field. This will be near the newer student officers' quarters and other facilities of The Infantry School.

At present The Infantry School activities are using some 225 widely dispersed temporary type structures built during World War II as barracks, mess halls, fire stations, hospital wards and maintenance sheds.



The present main Infantry School building which was constructed in 1935 when the School had 458 resident students each year as compared to the 12,000 resident students now, will become available for use as The Infantry School headquarters.

The proposed academic building will be a modern, reinforced structure containing classrooms, a library, an auditorium and administrative space.

Congressman Vinson emphasized that this important new facility at The Infantry School is a necessary addition to our renewed efforts to modernize and augment our balanced defense potential.

No construction details on the proposed new building have been released at this time, however, the architectural drawings seen are one concept of the new academic building showing a front and rear view as prepared by the firm of Abreu and Robeson, Inc., Architects and Engineers, Atlanta and Brunswick.

state National Guard academies and the Infantry subcourses of the Army extension course system.

Committee responsibilities include the periodic revision or rewriting of 15 pre-commission subcourses, 31 Infantry career subcourses, 3 refresher subcourses, and a six-lesson course for noncommissioned officers. Each subcourse parallels instruction received in resident classes of The Infantry School and is complete with textual material, lesson questions, solutions, maps, overlays and sketches as required, and examination.

Over 200 Reserve problems (instructional periods of from one to six hours duration) are kept up to date for the 158 reserve schools, and 15 blocks of instruction of approximately ten lessons each are furnished to 55 National Guard academies.

ROTC material goes to some 300 high schools with junior division ROTC units, 186 National Defense Corps high school units, 40 military schools, and 250 senior division ROTC units in colleges scattered throughout the United States. Over 200,000 high school, college students are enrolled.

Current enrollments in the extension course program of The Infantry School are now in excess of 35,000.

Total students of military subjects served through instructional material prepared by the Non-Resident Department's Editorial Committee exceed 200,000.

Col. John Bisbing is director of the Department of Non-Resident Instruction.

Korean Foundation and CARE.

About 350 project officers on the post are expected to attend a kick off meeting at Theater 1 at 9 a.m. February 15.

Brig. Gen. A. D. Surles Jr., deputy commanding general of The Infantry Center, is scheduled to give the keynote address launching the drives.

Also on the program will be Brig. Gen. Charles H. White Jr., commander of 2nd Division Artillery; Col. (Ret.) Howard C. Deliert of Atlanta, state chairman for the Federal Service Joint Crusade, and Robert M. Clark Jr., of Atlanta, chairman of the state committee for National Health Agencies.

Following the meeting, project officers will brief selected key men in their units and staff sections on how the joint drive will be conducted. Each key man will personally contact 25 persons. Enlisted personnel in the sections are asked to donate through the key men in their units. Officers and civilians in the sections are asked to turn donations over to key men appointed in the sections.

According to Major Edward L. Whitehead, project officer for the post drive, no dollar goal has been set, but 100 per cent participation is encouraged.

"Donations will be made on a voluntary basis," he said, "and donors may remain anonymous if they wish."

Envelopes will be distributed by the key man.

At the close of the campaign, the National Bank of Fort Benning will dispatch the money collected for the Joint Crusade to its headquarters. Envelopes containing contributions for the National Health Agencies will be forwarded to the state headquarters in Atlanta.

The joint campaign is being conducted among federal employees and military personnel in the U. S., Puerto Rico and Panama Canal Zone from January 1 to April 30.

Major Writes Law Handbook

(AFPS) — A new handbook that deals with virtually every legal situation people in uniform might encounter both as servicemen and citizens has been written by Major Earl Snyder of the Air Force.

Titled "Every Serviceman's Lawyer," the 641-page volume deals with such subjects as civil rights; what happens if a man is mentally ill; what he has to do to get married or divorced; what are the rights and duties of the service husband, father, mother, wife, son and daughter; and the rights of the serviceman renting, buying and mortgaging a house and borrowing money.

Registration Under Way For College Courses

Registration is under way for college level courses in the slide rule, psychology and American government to begin at The Infantry Center's Educational Development Section in February and March.

The psychology course begins February 28, the slide rule classes March 7 and those on government March 28. Courses will be conducted during duty hours. Hours of instruction will be announced later.

Enrollment in high school classes in progress at the section is 621, the highest number in several years. English, mathematics, fundamentals of electricity, American government and general science are high school subjects being offered. First year college classes in German and algebra also are in session. Most of the classes will be offered again about March 1.

Army Honors Chaplains Who Gave Their Lives

(AFPS) — Special medals have been posthumously awarded to the four heroic Army Chaplains who died in the sinking of the torpedoed troop transport Dorchester in February 1943. Former Army Secretary Wilbur M. Brucker presented the medals to kin of the chaplains in a ceremony at Fort Meyer, Va.

The chaplains, all first lieutenants, assisted in getting troops into their life jackets and aboard life boats. When the life jacket supply ran out, each chaplain removed his own and gave it to a serviceman. They were last seen kneeling in prayer on the slanting deck — arms linked — as the troop ship sank.

Previously, in December 1944 the War Department made a posthumous award of the Distinguished Service Medal to the four. The chaplains were: Clark V. Poling, Schenectady, N. Y., and George L. Fox, of Vermont, both Protestants; John P. Washington, Arlington, N.J., Roman Catholic; and Alexander D. Goode, Marion, Ind., Jewish.

Concharty Council Conferees Told of Post Youth Programs

"We in the Army are well aware of your objective of making our girls happy, resourceful citizens," Brig. Gen. A. D. Surles Jr., deputy commanding general of The Infantry Center, told 51 Girl Scout leaders this week.

The group of West Georgia women were participating in a two-day training course for key selected adults. The program includes training institutes in recruitment, selection and retention of leaders and community relations.

"We intend to continue to support your program fully," Gen. Surles said on behalf of the post at the opening session of the Scout meeting.

Mrs. Richard Hecht of Columbus, vice president of Concharty Council and coordinator for the training program, introduced Gen. Surles and Mrs. Charles Skipworth, also of Columbus, Concharty Council president.

Col. Harley T. Marsh Jr., director of The Infantry School's Special Subjects Department and president of the post's Youth Activities Club, discussed the operation of YAC.

"Our purpose is pretty well described on the masthead that appears on our stationery. It reads, 'Our Capital Assets Are 2,000 Children,'" Col. Marsh said.

☆ ☆ ☆ ☆

"We have a wide range of activities in YAC. Our major activities are broken down into two areas — sports and Scouting. In addition to sports such as football, basketball and baseball, we have fencing, golf, tennis, swimming, bowling and the Junior National Rifle Association," he explained.

"To give you an idea of the magnitude of this program, we currently have over 400 boys and girls participating on 42 basketball teams," he added, noting that YAC also administers "Brat Barracks" teen-age club, a summer camp and a Youth Employment Bureau.

"We have over 850 boys and girls active in Scouts at the post. Unlike most communities where a school or church sponsors a troop, YAC is the sponsoring institution for all Scouting on the post," Col. Marsh pointed out.

He said that Benning has more than 400 girls in 31 troops, 17 Brownie, 12 intermediate and two senior troops.

The speaker emphasized that the YAC program requires facilities, adult leadership and money.

"We have 18 playgrounds and 20 buildings including a summer camp for our needs. Some 500 adult volunteer leaders help to make our program successful. Our Number One target is the parent. No youth program is going to be a success unless you have the parents' interest," he stated.

University Officials Tour Post

Dr. Leslie L. Martin, dean of men of the University of Kentucky, and Jack Hall, director of men's housing at the university, were briefed on newly developed tactics and techniques at The Infantry School last week.

They viewed demonstrations of Ranger and Airborne training, Infantry weapons and an Infantry-tank team in attack before leaving the post Friday. Dr. Martin also toured facilities of the Quartermaster Section.

In 1954, Dr. Martin then professor of education at the University of Kentucky, helped establish the guidance program of the post Children's Schools. He was consultant for guidance workshops provided as in-service training for the Children's Schools faculty by the post P-TA in 1954 and 1955.

SPECIAL NOTICE

ALL ARMED FORCES PERSONNEL

For the first time, a new product is now available in your Post Exchange which revolutionizes shoe care and provides armed forces personnel with an ideal and inexpensive way not only to protect their shoes, but to maintain that "inspection-day" shine at all times.

Manufactured by the Lloyd Aerosol Laboratories of Houston, Texas, this new product is sold under the brand name of SHINE, and is the first aerosol spray polish that really works. It is guaranteed not to crack or peel if used as directed.

SHINE works on any colored leather except white or suede, and a light coating applied once or twice each week will give a high gloss to your shoes, as well as protect them from mildew. Water, the most damaging of all elements to leather, will not harm your shoes when you use SHINE. It completely waterproofs leather when properly applied.

The most important factor for armed forces personnel in the use of SHINE is that no buffing is required. Similar products have been on the market in the past which, when used, built up an unattractive coating that eventually cracked or peeled, or required the same amount of buffing as paste waxes. But SHINE eliminates all this. Here is a product that produces an instant shine within seconds after applying, needs no buffing for a high gloss, and maintains that gloss in spite of dirt or water.

If other spray polishes have been used unsatisfactorily, they can be removed from your shoes with acetone, inexpensively purchased at any drug counter.

For best results, shoes should be wiped with a damp cloth to clean them of all dirt before SHINE is applied. If the leather is badly scuffed or discolored, apply a light coating of wax containing a stain to even the color of the leather. Then just spray on a light coating of SHINE with a side-to-side motion, allow to dry for 30 to 60 seconds, and you have a shine that will pass the most rigid inspection. And the gloss will stay on your shoes. When shoes become dirty or mud-caked, merely clean them with a damp cloth, and the shine is still there.

A light application once or twice each week is all that is required to maintain this high shine, and the cost per shine of this product makes it actually less than any liquid or paste wax now on the market. The generous 10 ounce can will last from four to six months, making each shine cost less than 3 cents each.

SHINE is non-toxic, colorless, and will not harm clothing or skin. One can is all you need for all colored leather. It can be used with complete confidence.

You will save hours of time and worry by buying and using SHINE. No messy fingers, no buffing, and so economical and easy to use. A "must" for those who really try to maintain that "inspection-day" appearance at all times.

Go to your Post Exchange and ask for SHINE by Lloyd Aerosol Laboratories. You'll be glad you did.

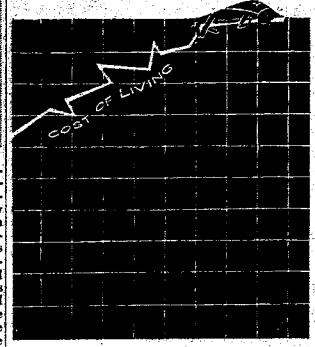
An old soldier and former president is grateful to the Armed Forces. As Dwight D. Eisenhower stepped down from the presidency he conveyed his gratitude for the support of the military during his two terms in office. In a memorandum to the former Secretary of Defense Mr. Eisenhower wrote that, "During the past eight years I have visited both in the United States and overseas, many bases and units of all the Armed Forces. In every instance, their performance has been such as to excite the pride of one who served among them so many years. As I return to the life of a private citizen, I do so with the assurance that our military forces throughout the world are a strong and effective shield for the security of the nation."

The President's Senior Military Aide

Brig. Gen. Chester V. Clifton, a 1936 graduate of the Military Academy, has been named President Kennedy's senior military aide. He was formerly the Army's Deputy Chief of Information and holds a master's degree in Journalism from the University of Wisconsin. The new military aide has had articles published in "Army" magazine, the "Saturday Evening Post," and is the co-author of a Korean war history for the "Encyclopedia Britannica Year Book." Gen. Clifton, who has been a frequent visitor to Benning in the past few years, is a combat veteran of World War II campaigns in Italy and Europe, earning battle stars for Anzio, Rome-Arno, North Appennines, Ardennes-Alsace, Central Europe and Rhineland.

West Point's Ivy in for Trimming

This spring the famed ivy many old graduates may so well remember is due for a trimming. The superfluous ivy has for years caused excessive maintenance costs on gutters, downspouts, slate roofs and masonry walls. The vines will be systematically chopped and pruned at the ground level. It is not a drive to eradicate the hallowed ivy, but a new program to keep it under strict control.



Survival Food Packet Ready for Army

The Quartermaster has developed a new, lightweight, all-purpose survival food packet that can be used in any combat situation anywhere in the world. The packet, usable even where water is severely limited, has already passed extensive tests in hot and cold climates. It is based on food bars of uniform nutrient composition, which may be bacon or cheese flavored, wheat cereal, cornflake, fudge or fruitcake. The prototype includes four bars packaged with instant beverages in a 12-ounce container to give 900 calories.

This Week's Column Closer

This is another one that comes from our sister service the Air Force and a master sergeant who's re-up bonus was in keeping with his name. Seems MSgt Ivyl P. Minimum re-upped when he had a total of 19 years, 11 months and 28 days service. His bonus was, of course, computed on his time remaining until he had his twenty in—so he drew the princely sum of 63 cents. It all added up to a minimum for Minimum!

"You bet it's a tight squeeze"

Chaplain's Corner

BY CHAPLAIN (CAPT.) HUGH C. MCKEOWN

"But let patience have her perfect work, that ye may be perfect and entire, wanting nothing." James 1:1-16

One of the end-products of our energetic pace-setting American way of life is lack of patience. So used to getting this done, to action, to speed, to the positive approach to problems, we come by our lack of patience quite understandably.

But, unfortunately for our time and temperament, God does not seem in such a hurry. We pray long and hard and very sincerely, and often nothing happens. We are tempted to doubt the efficacy of prayer, and then to wonder about the existence of God Himself.

We could learn much about patience from our Eastern neighbors. The older civilizations have found out that some things are not accomplished by speed and action. They have learned that with God time is not important. And from this lesson they have gone on to realize that we, ourselves, are not as important in the scheme of things as we would like to think.

To be sure, God cares for each of us. But His plans for us and His way of teaching includes our learning and the virtue of patience.

Our prayers are always answered, "Yes," or "No," or "Not yet." It is the "Not yet" we must learn to live with graciously in complete trust that God's way is the best way.

Editorial

Every Army Member

Recruiting people in all branches of the Armed Forces follow a simple axiom: Look Sharp. They are out to sell their particular service and they know a gift for persuasive palaver alone can't make the sale if the prospect doesn't like what he sees. Result — you'll look far and wide before you find a recruiter who in dress and deportment isn't a model of what a military man should be.

Does this make recruiters a sort of elite corps? Well, it shouldn't — not if we constantly bear in mind that every one of us in uniform is on display before the public. True, it's not our job to buttonhole young men and women and enlighten them on the benefits of a service career. But, without opening our mouths, we are daily influencing the attitude toward the service we represent.

A uniform calls for a special quality of dignity and courteous behavior. If the man who wears it doesn't measure up, the effect can be grotesque. Have you ever seen a policeman shambling along the street, elbowing pedestrians, swaggering with the authority of his pistol and nightstick? It isn't likely that you have. A man who would so abuse the responsibility of his badge wouldn't last long on the police force of any U.S. city.

Why? Because his job is not to bully but to control. He is a symbol of law and order who commands respect without demanding it. And this is every bit as true of a man wearing a military uniform. If he is neatly dressed and courteous in manner, he will find the eyes of civilians lingering on him in a sort of salute.

The Judge Says . . .

(Editor's Note: This is the second in a series of articles to be presented in this column concerning Federal Income Tax.)

Every taxpayer is allowed to deduct $600 from his gross income for each person who may be classified as an exemption. The several categories of exemption may be broken down into taxpayer and spouse; children, others.

First, the taxpayer gets a single exemption for himself, an additional exemption if he is over 65 and another exemption if he is blind. This gives the taxpayer a total of three possible exemptions for himself.

The taxpayer's spouse may be claimed as an exemption only if she files a joint return with her husband and reports all of her income, or if separate returns are filed and the wife has no income.

Exemptions

In the event she qualifies as an exemption, the number of exemptions allowed is determined by age or blindness as indicated above. Thus, the taxpayer may possibly claim a total of six exemptions for himself and his spouse.

Secondly, the taxpayer is given exemptions for each of the children that qualify as dependents. The following conditions are required to be met:

More than one-half of the child's support must be furnished by the taxpayer; if the child is over 19 years of age his income must be under $600 during the year, in which case there is no limitation on the child's income; the child must be either a U.S. citizen or have resided for some part of the year in the U.S., Canada, Mexico, Panama or the Philippines; if married, the child must not file a joint return with his spouse.

A full exemption is allowed for children born at any time during the year.

Third, in order for a person, other than a child, to qualify as a dependent, he must meet tests similar to those required of dependent children. However, all dependents other than children must have taxable income of less than $600, regardless of age.

Unless the dependent resided in the taxpayer's home for the entire year, he must be related as a parent, brother, sister, grandparents, grandchild or other relation as listed on page five of the instructions to Form 1040.

In claiming such dependents, the taxpayer must be sure to fill out the necessary information on the top of page two of Form 1040.

Support

In determining whether or not he has furnished more than one-half the support of a claimed dependent, the taxpayer should take into account food, shelter, clothing, medical expenses, etc., and his contributions must exceed the total from all other sources of the dependent's support.

If the taxpayer is in the position of furnishing only part support, along with other persons, none of whom furnishes more than one-half, he may be able to file a multiple support agreement whereby the several parties involved can claim the dependent in alternate years.

This requires the filing of a special form by the contributor.

Concordia Choir Appears At Auditorium Tonight

The Concordia Choir will appear at the Columbus High School Auditorium tonight at 8 o'clock, under the direction of Professor Paul J. Christiansen.

The 65 singers of the choir won wide acclaim on a tour of Norway, Holland, Germany and Austria with special concerts at the Brussels World Fair and the Vienna Music Festival during the summer of 1958.

Co-sponsors of the local concert are the Columbus High School Choral Department and the Columbus High School P-TA.

Singing a cappella, the Concordia College, Morehead, Minn., choir will present a program ranging from 16th century classics down through the ages to the contemporary masters.

In its years of concertising, the Concordia Choir has been lauded from Coast to Coast as one of the foremost American choral groups.

Tickets for this evening's concert are available at all Columbus music stores and at the auditorium ticket office.

A tour this year will take the group to 10 states. They travel and make appearances throughout the nation each year.

Professor Christiansen is head of the department of music at the college, and the son of the renowned F. Melius Christiansen.

Six Events on Post

Boy Scout Week Observed Here

About 400 Fort Benning Boy Scouts are taking part in the National Boy Scout Week activities which began Tuesday at the Columbus Municipal Auditorium.

A banquet, sponsored by the Alabama - Georgia Council, Boy Scouts of America, initiated a week-long observance.

All Scouts and their parents have been invited. Boys who made Eagle Scout or received a religious awrd in 1960 are guests of the council.

A ride on The Infantry School Airborne-Air Mobility Department's "buddy seat" highlighted Wednesday's festivities. Over 350 Cub and Explorer Scouts took the simulated parachute jump from one of the 250 foot training towers.

An appearance on one of Columbus' television stations, Channel 9, was Thursday's highlight for 14 post Scouts. Two boys were selected from each of the seven packs at Benning to take part in the "Popeye" program starting at 4:30 p.m.

Today, Scouts have a choice of either swimming at the Brant Wells Field House indoor pool or visiting a unit on post at 4:30 p.m.

Special rates will be given Scouts at the Benning Hunt Club tomorrow between 8 a.m. and 12 noon.

Scouts will assemble at Third Ave. and 13th St. in Columbus at 12:30 p.m. tomorrow to form for the Boy Scout Parade.

Benning's float entry was constructed by the 577th Battalion, 151st Engineer Group. Project officer was 2nd Lt. Frank A. Underwood.

The parade is scheduled to start at 1 p.m. Judging for the three best floats will be held at the Court House.

On Feb. 12, Scout Sunday will be observed. All Scouts are urged to attend the chapel of their choice with their parents. They will be recognized during services.

A retreat parade is scheduled for Monday at Chapel Field. Scouts will assemble at the parade grounds at 5 p.m. Retreat will be sounded at 5:30 p.m.

A banquet at the Sand Hill NCO Open Mess Monday at 6:30 p.m. will close the festivities. Major Gen. Hugh P. Harris, commanding general of The Infantry Center will be the speaker.

BOOKS in REVIEW

THE RANGER AND OTHER STORIES by Zane Grey (Harper, 1960)

Contents: The Ranger; Canyon Walls; Ayalanche; From Missouri.

REVOLT IN PARADISE by K'tut Tantri. (Harper, 1960)

The author, born in Scotland of Manx parents (she uses her Hindu name), was making money as a writer in California when the wanderlust took her to Bali. She describes her life there with surprising frankness, and especially her two years' torture at Japanese hands and her work with the Indonesian revolutionists."

BARUCH: THE PUBLIC YEARS by Bernard M. Baruch. (Holt, 1960)

In this review of his nearly fifty years in public affairs since 1912, Baruch describes the top-level policy-making and policy-makers he has witnessed or aided. He talks of his interest in farm problems; his view of the stock market crash in 1929; his mixed feelings about the New Deal; his role as economic adviser in World War II; and his work on the Atomic Energy Commission.

News and Views

Basil Rathbone's arrival in March to Fort Benning has the Woman's Club all atwitter. His one - man presentation of "The Best from My Bookshelf" has started the many - womaned (and manned) effort to fill the fourteen hundred and fifteen seats of the main post theatre Saturday night, March 11.

Mr. Rathbone's press department sent ahead a biography, selections of which I reprint here, which may interest you. He was born in Johannesburg, South Africa while his father was prospecting for gold as a mining engineer. His thoughts for the theatre began when he was eight years old, and he bluffed his way through his first stage interview for his Shakespearean company. He progressed rapidly, and acted altogether fifty-two roles in twenty-three of Shakespeare's plays.

Pat Ryan

Eventually, World War I came along and he served with the Liverpool Scottish Regiment of the 57th Division around Amiens, Festubert and Armentiers. He received the Military Cross for his success in the early days of daylight patrolling.

During World War II he served as president of the British War Relief in California and was a member of the Executive Committee of the Los Angeles War Chest, besides visiting camps and hospitals in the U. S.

Mr. Rathbone has made sixteen Sherlock Holmes movies (plus many others), stage plays, television spectaculars, and recordings.

He has been married to Ouida since 1926 and they have a daughter, Ouida, before marriage to Basil, was one of the film world's top writers and was for seven years chief story editor at Paramount.

The evening with Basil Rathbone here next month will offer dramatic presentations from Poe, Doyle, Shakespeare, Browning, Housman, Dylan Thomas, Shelley, and others.

Tickets will be on sale at the Main Officer's Open Mess, Main Post Theatre, and the Ralston Hotel, Columbus. The public is invited, all fourteen hundred and fifteen of you!

ATIO Committee

Mrs. Thomas Scovill and Mrs. Leander Hathaway were hostesses for the monthly Advanced Tactics, Intelligence and Operations Committee coffee which was held in the Hathaway home on February 2. Guests were served hot spiced grape juice, cheese fingers and ham sandwiches on delicious home made bread. Coffee and date-nut bread were served after a short business meeting. Mrs. John Bishing attended the coffee as a guest.

NCO Wives' Club Calls Annual Membership Tea

The old theme "hearts and flowers" took a new look Wednesday afternoon as the NCO Wives Club held their annual membership tea at Crain Hall.

The theme was carried out throughout the Crain Hall setting with the serving tables beautifully decorated with red and white floral arrangements and silver appointments. The individual tables were decorated with heart shaped place mats, cut flowers and candles.

Mesdames Samuel Marshalick and John Bayer greeted members and guests as they entered to the background music of the organ played by Merle Garrett.

Mrs. Wade Rothwell and Mrs. William Decker were at the hostess table to attend to the signing of the guest book, while Mrs. Edward Sanderson and Mrs. Robert Edwards presented heart shaped name tags to those attending.

Mrs. Floyd Hightower, the NCO Wives' Club president, greeted the ladies at pouring. She was followed by Mesdames John Montgomery, Trent Hunter, Tonito Fortez, Clifton Hobbs, Collidge Brumley, William Krilling, Frank Pound, Edward Dantzler, Grady McCoy, Wallace Scott, David Howell, Emerich Baksi and David Francis.

Mrs. Raymond Faust, the Club's vice president was coordinator for the annual tea, and table exhibits were set up to show guests and members he varied activities of the club.

At the membership table was Mrs. Grady McCoy, membership chairman for the club; Mrs. John Montgomery, Mrs. Trent Hunter and Mrs. Jesse Henson attended the ceramics display; Mrs. Jesse Chambers handled the dancing instruction table; and Mrs. David Howell attended the display and table devoted to the charm class instructions to be given by the ladies.

Red Cross activities were in the hands of Mrs. Wallace Scott and the bowling table was attended by Mrs. James Graham.

Approximately 150 ladies attended the tea.

T'Mistress Club Picks New Name

During their recent meeting members of the Toastmistress Club elected to call their group the Fort Benning - Columbus Toastmistress Club.

The club had previously been called Riverside and was changed to avoid confusion with another club by that name.

The group heard Avis Gordee speak on "An Experience With a Car" and Mrs. C. B. Ingram "Versatility". They were introduced by Toastmistress, Mrs. Richard Evers. Mrs. James Bell was general evaluator of the meeting.

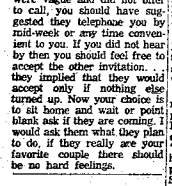
Paris Show Here For Valentine

Varel and Bailly, France's top song-writing team, and their ebullient ensemble of six male voices — "Les Chanteurs de Paris" will be a Valentine Day treat for the military when they appear in person on Valentine Day, Tuesday, February 14th on the stage of the Royal Theater in Columbus at 8 p.m.



The internationally famous duo, whose numerous hits are part of the permanent repertoire of such singers as Lena Horne, Edith Piaf, Jacqueline Francois and many others returns to the United States to present a new program of songs, satires and vignettes.

Millions of Americans have enjoyed them on the Ed Sullivan, Garry Moore and Patrice Munsell TV shows and through their best selling albums by RCA Victor and Columbia.

DEAR JENNI: I suggested to one of our favorite couples that they drop by Sunday afternoon. They were not sure, but if nothing came up they would be over. I later received the same type of invitation. How can I find out my friends intentions. FRUSTRATED.

DEAR FRUSTRATED: You brought on your own frustration when you failed to request a definite answer from your favorite couple. Since they were vague and did not offer to call, you should have suggested they telephone you by mid-week or any time convenient to you. If you did not hear by then you should feel free to accept the other invitation. . . they implied that they would accept only if nothing else turned up. Now your choice is to sit home and wait or point blank ask if they are coming. I would ask them what they plan to do, if they really are your favorite couple there should be no hard feelings.

Sandra Lee Taylor's Report Card . . .

Melvin "Buzz" Brown, a five foot, seven inch senior from Columbus High School, is today's student personality. Melvin has a variety of interests and does a great many things well.

This black-haired, green-eyed senior has just returned to Columbus, after an absence of one year in San Antonio, Tex. In all, Buzz has resided in Columbus and Fort Benning for seven years, besides living in Washington, D. C., Germany and Augusta, Ga.

Melvin's parents, Col. and Mrs. Melvin C. Brown, moved from Augusta after his father was reassigned to Carlisle Barracks, Pa. Rather than move to an entirely new high school for his senior year, Buzz decided to return to Columbus, where he now lives, and graduate from Columbus High.

Buzz has been active in many organizations during his high school years. He attended Don C. Faith School in his eighth grade year. At Faith, he was editor of the school newspaper, "The Bugle." He was also captain of the school saftey patrols. Buzz won the honor of being selected as the most active student in the post school system in 1957.

During his freshman year, Melvin's family moved to Augusta while his father served a tour of duty in Korea. At Langford Junior High School in Augusta, Melvin played center for the school's football team and earned a letter.

Back to Fort Benning came Melvin and his family, just in time for entering CHS for his sophomore year. At CHS, Melvin won several fine honors.

He was chosen the Department of the Army Junior Superior Cadet from the CHS ROTC. In recognition of his excellent sports writing for the "Cohiscan," the school annual, he was awarded the Cub Reporter Pin from the National Scholastic Press Association.

At this time he was also a member of the R. B. Daniel Hi-Y. Melvin also served as first president of the Follow-Me- Club, an organization for protestant youths at Fort Benning.

During his junior year, Melvin and his family moved to San Antonio, Tex., where he attended the Thomas Jefferson High School. He was made a member of the English Honor Society, and was a cadet sergeant in the Jefferson ROTC. Melvin also wrote sports stories for the "Declaration," the school newspaper.

Currently, Melvin belongs to various activities at CHS. The Rutledge-Minner Debator's Society claims him as a member and he serves as copy editor and sports writer for the "Blue Streak," the CHS newspaper. He has also been commander of Company D of the CHS ROTC, and is now serving as S-3 for the battle group.

In addition to these activities, Melvin is a member of the Rose Hill Baptist Church, and belongs to the Order of the Arrow, an honorary society for Boy Scouts.

Melvin recently was selected as school news reporter for the WDAK radio station, and in this capacity he collects school news and periodically reports it over the air.

Earlier in the year, he instigated the mock presidential election at CHS and served as chairman of the election committee.

Among his hobbies Melvin lists collecting records, playing all sports, and writing. He plans to attend Emory University in Atlanta next year. Melvin has an older brother, Bruce, who is a sophomore at Georgia Tech.

Interested and alert are two words that aptly describe Melvin Brown, a friendly and intelligent senior with loads of personality and a great deal of enthusiasm.

75th Annual World Day Of Prayer Local Observances Set

Protestant women of the post will observe the 75th annual World Day of Prayer next Friday, at 10 a.m. in The Infantry Center Chapel.

Arrangements for the service are being made by Mrs. Arthur J. Estes. The program chairman is Mrs. Richard C. Wittman.

Mrs. Estes and Mrs. Marguerite Waldrop of Columbus, director of Christian Education on the post, will appear on the "At Home with Rozell" program on TV Station WRBL at 9:30 a.m. next Thursday, to explain the significance of the day of prayer.

Observed by women in 145 countries on five continents, the World Day of Prayer originated in the U. S. in 1887. By 1920, the movement had spread to Canada and later was carried to Europe, the United Kingdom, Latin America, Asia and Africa.

This year, prayers in many languages will begin at the International Dateline in the Pacific and continue around the world, hour by hour until the last prayer is offered on St. Lawrence Island near the Arctic Circle.

In each country, the theme of prayers will reflect crucial problems of the particular geographical areas as the worshippers seek a concerted Christian effort toward their solution. The over-all theme for the day is "Forward through the Ages."

As part of the prayer service, an offering will be taken, the money collected is to be used to support migrant ministers in the U. S., train Indian-American youth, foster friendly relations among foreign students, train leaders in low-income farm areas, and develop Christian leadership for women overseas through Christian colleges, literature and family life programs.

The United Church Women of the National Council of Churches of Christ in the U.S., sponsors of the day of prayer, have selected three projects for the 75th anniversary. They include a training center for African writers with a goal of producing 500,000 books written by Africans for Africans, assistance to growing churches in Alaska and an exchange of information and ideas among women leaders throughout the U. S. and overseas.

Bridge Lessons

Intermediate bridge lessons will begin next Friday, February 17, at the Women's Club Building at 10 a.m. Regular classes are scheduled to resume at 11 a.m. the same day.

52nd Company

Mesdames Richard Earle, Tom Kellin, Michael Hicks and George Saunders were hostesses for a recent coffee held in company day room by candidate wives. The ladies were briefed on the forthcoming Blue Day parade. Mesdames O. R. Koch, Lowell Hesser, Gene Lutholtz and Robert Sage were guests.

Japanese Officer Visits 2nd Division This Week

BY DIV PIO

Colonel Ichiro Nakayama of the research division of the Ground Staff College, Grand Staff Defense Force, Tokyo, Japan, visited the 2nd Infantry Division and Fort Benning this week as he closed out a seven month stay in the United States.

The Japanese colonel departed the division area Tuesday morning for Fort McPherson, Georgia, from where he was to travel via bus for the West Coast prior to flying to Japan. He told division headquarters officers his purpose in traveling by bus was to see more of the United States.

As guest of the division Col. Nakayama Monday first visited with Colonel Gustav M. Bacharach, chief of staff, and then received an orientation on the organization and activities of the division's general staff sections.

After later touring the division museum, he received an OVUREP (Overseas Unit Replacement) orientation from Colonel James H. Hayes, commanding officer of the 1st Infantry. From the 1st Infantry area Col. Nakayama traveled to Brittin Range to observe an attack exercise with 81 mm mortar and 106 recoiless rifle.

Following lunch at the 1st Infantry, Col. Nakayama visited the 2nd Infantry Division Non - Commissioned Officers Academy, at Harmony Church, to visit a class and tour the academy area.

His next stop was at Division Artillery where he visited Brigadier General Charles H. White, commanding general. There he saw a metrological

Distinguished Hero Joins 6th OVUREP Battle Group

By Lt. Col. Charles F. Austin

A much-decorated hero of two wars has reported for duty as Sergeant Major of the "new" 1st Battle Group, 11th Infantry.

He is Sergeant Major Edward W. Minnick, whose combat service in the Southwest Pacific in World War II and in Korea earned him the Distinguished Service Cross, the Silver Star, the Bronze Star with Oak Leaf Cluster, the Army Commendation Medal with Oak Leaf Cluster and the Purple Heart with two Clusters.

The "first soldier" of the New Sixth OVUREP Unit comes to his new assignment from the Ranger Department of the Infantry School, where he was an instructor in patrolling. He previously was an instructor with the Platoon Tactics Committee of the Infantry School.

Decoration

It was in Korea that Sergeant Minnick was awarded the nation's second highest combat decoration, the Distinguished Service Cross, while serving as a platoon leader in the 5th Cavalry Regiment of the 1st Cavalry Division, in fighting near Waegon in September 1950. The citation describes his behavior, in part, as follows:

"After successfully attacking an enemy held hill, Sergeant Minnick, realizing that the enemy would soon counterattack, established his platoon defenses. When the contemplated attack finally came, his platoon, although vastly outnumbered, refused to give ground and for over two hours fought with the enemy, who at times approached to within 20 yards of friendly positions."

'Bare Fists'

"Attack after attack was repulsed until the ammunition supply was exhausted, but even then Sergeant Minnick, setting an inspiring example for his men to follow, closed with the enemy with his bare fists.

"Although wounded six times during the ensuing action, bleeding profusely and weak from loss of blood, Sergeant Minnick refused to allow himself or his platoon to withdraw until he was ordered to do so by a senior officer. Even then he elected to remain behind until he was certain that all the other wound-

Artillery Lieutenant Has Unique Supply Position

By DivArty PIO

A lieutenant at Headquarters of Division Artillery, just assigned as Assistant S - 4 (Supply and Logistics), has the additional duty of being the supply officer for a battalion of which he is the only man, though not a member.

Lieutenant James K. Thweatt was assigned duty of the supply officer, 1st Howitzer Battalion, 27th Artillery when it was reorganized along with other Division Artillery units under the D-series Table or Organization and Equipment, May 6, 1960.

At the time of activation of the 27th Artillery, a manning level ceiling prevented assigning officers and enlisted personnel to the unit. But shortly after activation, equipment began arriving for the 27th and it became necessary to establish an S-4 Section to assume accountability for this equipment.

Even though Lt. Thweatt is not actually assigned to the 27th Artillery he is required to furnish reports of the equipment currently on hand.

Lt. Thweatt's other additional duty is supply officer for

3 Officers Take Service Courses

By 23rd Infantry PIO

Three officers of the 23rd Infantry, including the battle group commander, left last week to attend three service schools.

Colonel Louis A. Kunzig, Jr., battle group commander of the "We Serve" unit, left for Fort Knox, Kentucky, where he will attend the ten day Senior Officers Maintenance Course.

The battle group executive officer, Lieutenant Colonel Frank T. Huray, currently is attending the Senior Officers Nuclear Weapons Employment Course at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

Captain Guy F. Baldwin, assistant S-3, has left for Keesler Air Force Base, Biloxi, Mississippi, to attend the 22-day Combat Operations Specialist Course.

Arrivals

Lieutenants Maurice F. Menefee and Robert A. Inglett joined the 2nd Aviation Company recently. Both officers graduated from the officers fixed wing aviator course 60-7 at the United States Army Aviation School at Fort Rucker, Alabama.

Private John R. O'Dell joined the 2nd Aviation Company recently. He graduated in December from the radio controlled aerial target radio maintenance course given at Fort Bliss, Texas. Private O'Dell is the first radio mechanic to be assigned to the Drone section, 2nd Aviation Company, which is scheduled to begin operations in the near future.

The 23rd Infantry welcomed to their ranks last Friday six Lieutenants who are all recent graduates of the Infantry Officers Orientation Course and the Airborne Course at the Infantry course.

Lieutenants William R. Self and James T. Boonds, Jr. were assigned to Company A while Lieutenant Gary L. Anderson was assigned to Company B. Lieutenant Nathan B. Witham was assigned to Company C. Lieutenants Robert E. Richmond and William L. Radford, Jr. joined Companies D and E respectively.

Promotions

During a brief ceremony by Major Benjamin R. Schultze, 702nd Ordnance Battalion commander, Chief Warrant Officer Philip W. Foley was presented with orders appointing him W-3. CWO Foley is a member of Headquarters and Company B.

Captain Howard F. Leavitt, company commander, Company A, 23rd Infantry, was promoted to his present rank in an informal ceremony last week in the battle group commander's office.

Two 9th Infantry noncommissioned officers received promotions to the grades of Master Sergeant and Sergeant First Class. They were Master Sergeant Harry Coffman and Sergeant First Class Richard B. Alford.

Awards

The 11th Infantry Selected as its Soldier of the Year SFC Clarence H. Walthall, Jr., a member of Headquarters Company and assistant operations sergeant of the battle group. SFC Walthall was a member of the advance party, which left here for Korea on February 7.

Specialist Fourth Class Albert J. Dean, Headquarters Battery, 15th Artillery, has been named Soldier of the Month for January by a board of senior noncommissioned officers. He is currently performing duties as chief computer in the Battalion Fire Direction Center.

Private First Class Alexander Malatesta, with only 11 months of Army service, was chosen as 69th Armor's Soldier of the Month for February. He is presently serving Company C as a clerk.

Departures

Sergeant Augusto Torres-Figueroa, a member of the 9th's Company A, moved over to the 9th's sister Sand Hill battle group — the 23rd Infantry. Sergeant first Class Pryor Booth of Company C joined the new 11th Infantry, while Company C's Sergeant George Preuss was reassigned to the Main Post Infantry Center Command here at Fort Benning.

Captain Lewis A. Kinsinson departed the 2nd Aviation Company on January 31, for his new duty assignment at Fort Bliss, Texas.

Retirement

demonstration and toured the artillery motor park.

At the 2nd Medium Tank Battalion, 69th Armor, Col. Nakayama visited with Colonel Harry H. Hestand, battalion commander. He toured the units motor pool and later inspected an armored battalion field command post at Unit Training Area Number Six.

Colonel Jack R. Looney, commanding officer of division trains, briefed Col. Nakayama when he arrived there before touring shop facilities of the 702nd Ordnance Battalion and the 13th Transportation Battalion.

Tuesday Col. Nakayama visited the 23rd Infantry where he was greeted by the acting battle group commander, Lieutenant Colonel Richard R. Perkins, who conducted a briefing. Major Charles M. Bolen, 23rd Infantry training and operations officer, oriented Col. Nakayama on basic combat and advanced individual training in the battle group. Major Bolen then escorted the Japanese colonel to Wood Range to witness light machine gun firing.

Col. Nakayama climaxed his tour in the division with a visit with Brigadier General William L. Hardick, acting division commanding general before returning to the United States Army Infantry Center.

Col. Nakayama arrived in the United States last August and attended the Associate Course, at the Command and General Staff College, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas. Since graduating in December, he has visited Fort Belvoir, Virginia, and Fort Jackson, South Carolina, inspecting training facilities and procedures, in addition to visiting Washington, D. C.

Reassignment

Sergeant First Class Eddie L. Ogletree has replaced Sergeant First Class Jesse Tew as battalion communication chief of the 69th Armor. SFC Tew has been reassigned as an instructor on the Radio and Wire Committee of the Communications Department of the Infantry School.

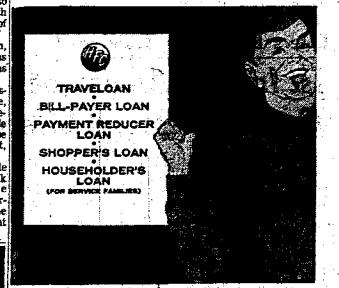
an opportunity to apply the fundamentals acquired to work as a team.

Last week the men of the "Always First" battle group experienced the opportunity of working together as a team in squads and sections with an increased emphasis on teamwork.

During this training, eleven men have to get used to operating with each other. They also have to become familiar with being a squad of a platoon of a rifle company.

Later, their platoon, in turn, will learn to work together as a company and the company as a part of the battle group.



With the battle group mission the training is progressive, reflecting realism and the realities of combat. An example is Squad Tactical Exercise Two, a 13-hour, day and night, tactical exercise.

During the exercise the rifle squad is employed as a flank guard, participates in a live fire attack, occupies and organizes a combat outpost line and conducts a night combat patrol.

Each phase includes a conference and demonstration of tactical principles, a practical exercise and critique.

The exercise insures realism not only by the use of blank and live ammunition, aggressors, terrain, but it also adds to combat conditions by making available to the squad the use of H-34 helicopters.

"Through his outstanding courage and inspiring leadership, Sergeant Minnick was able to keep his platoon completely organized and to withdraw with a minimum of loss while at the same time inflicting extremely heavy casualties upon the enemy."

A 1942 OCS Graduate, Sergeant Minnick served as platoon leader and company commander in the 145th Infantry Regiment throughout the Solomon Islands campaigns, rotating back to the States in December 1944.

Reenlists

A civilian from late 1945 to early 1949, he reenlisted to serve as a basic training instructor at Fort Knox, Ky. An early arrival in Korea in July 1950, he soon was in the thick of the action. Throughout his many citations runs the repeated statements of utter disregard for personal safety in leading and protecting his men.

Sergeant Major Minnick, in joining Colonel John E. Arthur's cadre, will help organize and train themselves and 950 non-prior servicemen into a fighting unit to back up STRAC and also replace the present "old" 11th Infantry at the end of its Korean service, which will begin in a few weeks.

OFFTRAIN has been implemented as a part of the intensive OVUREP cadre training program now in progress at the 87th Infantry. It is all a part of the many extra hours of training and preparations planned to establish a high state of readiness in the Battle Group before the arrival of the non-prior service filler personnel the end of this month.

The HUMRO unit is located at Fort Benning. This facility provides expert instruction and guidance in human leadership problems. The junior officers attending this course will have instruction based on the latest and best developments dealing with human behavior.

The 87th Infantry is the first of the 2nd Infantry Division battle groups to have the benefit of the HUMRO conducted leadership course. Later HUMRO will instruct groups of officers from the 1st Infantry and

Banquet

The 9th Infantry firers swept six top spots in the Commanding General's Championship Matches held January 26 and 27. The 9th captured first place honors in each of the rifle, pistol and automatic rifle events, plus a second place finish in the automatic rifle firing.

Captain Benjamin Hamilton's S-4 section furnished the steaks for the banquet. Major George Armstrong, the 9th's executive officer, served as toastmaster for the banquet. The gala affair was attended by members of the 9th Infantry staff, the company commanders, the company first sergeants and the members of the firing teams.

The championship rifle, pistol and automatic rifle teams were coached by Lieutenant Thomas Gibbs, Captain James Bartosh and Sergeant Richard Blanton, respectively. Captain Allan J. Francisco served as captain of the pistol squad with Sergeant First Class Joseph Parciasepe filling the captain's slot for the rifle team.

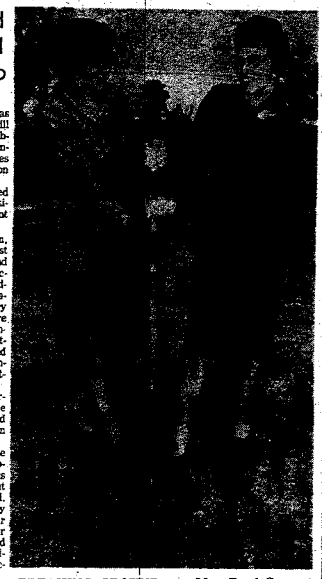
Shrubs Added To Kelley Hill By Wives Club

11th Inf PIO



An informal ceremony was held February 2 on Kelley Hill to mark presentation of shrubbery purchased by the 2nd Infantry Division Officers Wives Club and presented to Division units located in that area.

A ladies delegation, headed by Mrs. R. E. McGraw, president and Mrs. Byrd Sergent was present.

Colonel George D. Patterson, commanding officer of the 1st Battle Group, 11th Infantry and Kelley Hill Coordinator, accepted the gift, which is intended to assist in the beautification of the area. Other Kelley Hill commanders present were Colonel Robert E. Conner, commanding officer of the 1st Battle Group, 87th Infantry, and Colonel James H. Hayes, commanding officer of the 2d Battle Group, 1st Infantry.

The shrubbery has been arranged in two groups at the intersection of Ivy Road and First Division Road, the main entrance to Kelley Hill.

Coordination for the purchase and presentation of the shrubbery by the Division Officers Wives Club was carried out by club members with Lt. Col. Charles K. Blum, 11th Infantry executive officer, and Major Fred W. Reif, supply officer (S-4), 11th Infantry, and George L. Manley, Post Engineer roads and grounds section.

BREAKING GROUND . . . Mrs. Byrd Sergent left, and Mrs. Helen McGraw participate in ground breaking ceremonies at Kelley Hill where shrubbery will be planted for the beautification of the area. The two ladies are representatives of the Officers Wives Club, which donated the plants to the Kelley Hill area.

By the grace of that old bridge demon distribution, north made 3 No Trump. Examination of west's hand shows far too many pts. for a preemptive bid. North went out on quite a limb to say 3 No Trump with only 15 points preempt distribution against her, and no bid from partner who can not answer now. How would you have bid?

Mrs. Fischer recommends:

West must open with 16 points at one diamond. She shouldn't let pre-empt distribution provoke a bid which tells her partner she has less than 11 points. North's obvious overcall is 1 No Trump. East with 5 points, no ace, and no diamonds must pass. South needs 8 or 9 points to raise No Trump on 7 points with 5 card suit, lacking these she must pass. West repeats diamonds. With no support, North passes, as does East of course. South may give a competitive raise of 2 No Trump. All pass. Two No Trump is the sensible stopping place with total of 22 points between north and south. One over trick is made only because of the very unusual distribution.

Mrs. Richard Sharp, hostess, announced identical high scores for Mrs. Dion Johnson and Mrs. Dawson Luke, guest player.

Mrs. Carl Warren entertained ladies of the 87th for bridge at her home recently also. High score was Mrs. Warren, second high Mrs. W. Sanford.

Cook Of The Week

"Cola Salad" is a favorite recipe of Mrs Harry H. Hiestand, wife of Lt. Col. Harry H. Hiestand, Commanding Officer of the 2nd Medium Tank Battalion of the 69th Armor. The Hiestands live at 300 Miller Loop. Lt. Col. and Mrs. Hiestand have a son, Harry Jr., age 16, who attends Columbus High School and a daughter, Darlene, age 12 who is a 7th grader at the Faith School. Mrs. Hiestand spends her spare time with her hobbies, art, golf, cooking, and music.

Cola Salad

1 pkg. cherry flavored gelatin
1 pkg. strawberry gelatin
1 large 8 oz. pkg. cream cheese
1 large can bing cherries
1 cup chopped nuts
2 cups cola beverage (16 oz.)

Drain juice from cherries and pineapple and beat the juices.

Add the fruit flavored gelatins to hot juices and stir until dissolved. Let cool. Mix pineapple, cheese and nuts and pitted cherries. Add this mixture to the gelatin and fruit juices and blend well (beat cream cheese first and then add pineapple and nuts — finally folding in cherries gently to avoid breaking them up). Next add Cola beverage and blend again. Pour into mold and put in refrigerator to congeal. Serve with mayonnaise.

This salad serves 12 to 15 people and is especially good served with baked ham.

Mrs. Littlejohn Selected As Speaker for Meeting

Mrs. B. B. Littlejohn, director of Christian education for the 2nd Infantry Division, will be the featured speaker for the regular monthly meeting of the Protestant Women of the Chapels to be held on Wednesday, February 15, at 9:30 a.m. at the Sand Hill Sunday School.

Mrs. Littlejohn's subject will be "The Lord's Prayer".

Mrs. Frank Deese will sing "Just for Today" accompanied at the piano by Mrs. William French.

There will be group singing, using the songs "Whisper A Prayer" and "Sweet Hour Of Prayer".

This program, which has been arranged by Mrs. James Webb, program chairman for the Protestant Women of the Chapels, promises to be most informative and inspirational.

Mrs. Robert Young, president of the Protestant Women of the Chapels, 2nd Infantry Division, extends an invitation to all to attend this meeting and benefit by hearing Mrs. Littlejohn lead in the story of "The Lord's Prayer". It is not necessary to be a member of the Protestant Women of the Chapels to attend.

In charge of the refreshments for this occasion will be Mrs. Charles Harris and Mrs. Bonnie Watkins.

A free nursery will be open and available during the meeting.

Ryan Tapped For Award In Germany

By 57th Inf PIO

Specialist Fifth Class Leonard L. Ryan has been awarded the Army Commendation Medal for his outstanding service while assigned to the personnel section of the 1st Battle Group, 57th Infantry.

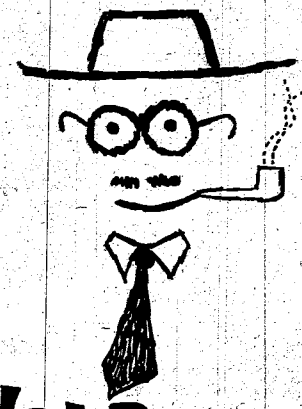
He originally joined the 57th Infantry from the 2nd Infantry Division Adjutant General's section in September 1959.

Specialist Ryan acted in the capacities of personnel administrative specialist and later as Battle Group Personnel Sergeant. In both key positions he carried out responsibilities usually only entrusted to personnel of more senior grades and service.

Late in October of 1960 he received orders for Germany. On his departure from Fort Benning Specialist Ryan was recommended for the Army Commendation Medal by Captain William H. Crisp, then personal officer. The recommendation was endorsed and forwarded to higher headquarters by Colonel Ernest C. Dameron, battle group commander under whom Specialist Ryan served.

Recently aproved, the Army Commendation Medal will be presented to Specialist Ryan by his present organization, the 1st Howitzer Battalion, 75th Artillery. The 1st Howitzer Battalion is in the vicinity of Nuernberg, Germany.

Specialist Ryan had served with the old 10th Division which he joined in 1954 and moved with it to Germany. In April of 1958 he came to Fort Benning, and was reassigned to the 57th when he reenlisted in September of 1959.



Specialist Ryan is a native of Springfield, Ill.

Talented Hoop Star Adds Experience to Manchus

By 9th Inf. PIO

Experience and team play count for a great deal in basketball as opponents of the 9th Infantry's center, Rayvaughn Pryear, have discovered in four contests against the unbeaten "Keep Up the Fire" five.

The 6'-6" Pryear brought seven years of first-string basketball competition in college and high school into the 2nd Infantry Division's basketball tournament being played at the Harmony Church Field House.

Four of the seasons were spent as pivotman for the University of Akron squad of the Ohio Conference. Twice Pryear was named to the All-Ohio basketball team while averaging better than 16 points a contest.

HOOK SHOT ARTIST
Rayvaughn Pryear

Before attending Akron, where he majored in biology and education, Pryear played three seasons for Copley High School in Akron. He was named to the all-state high school basketball squad his senior year at Copley as Pryear and his team mates swept to 24 consecutive victories without a defeat. He averaged 24 points per game while in high school.

While recently promoted to private first class in the 9th's Company C where he is a cadreman, Pryear certainly is no stranger to the military. He was a member of the Army Reserve Officers Training Corps for four years at the University of Akron and has also served four years in the Marine Corps Reserve. He enlisted in the Army last August, taking his basic training at Fort Knox, Kentucky. Pryear was given his Advanced Individual Training with Company C of the 9th Infantry, his current unit.

Pryear believes in good team play and feels a basketball squad suffers when its members play for themselves and not for the good of the team. Pryear stated that the team play on the 9th Infantry squad remains excellent and is a big reason for the 9th's fine showing in the division tourney.

Pryear's own game is well-polished and his experience and poise add a definite asset to the 9th's entry. Using his favorite shot, the overhead hook, and the tip in, he has scored 108 points thus far in four contests. His average of 21.6 points per outing ranks as one of the highest in the tournament.

23rd Names Support Co. As Champs

Combat Support Company of the 23rd Infantry was crowned the Battle Group basketball champions last Saturday after defeating Delta Company in the Harmony Church Fieldhouse amid the flare of drums and the cheers of approximately 400 spectators.

The seasonplay ended on Janury 28, but the battle group standings showed that Delta Company and Combat Support Company were tied—each having five wins and one loss.

After a close game all the way the Supporters leaped ahead during the last minutes and came to a resounding victory with a score of 61-46.

John C. Lawrence helped to lead the Combat Supporters to a triumphant victory as high pointer with 16 points. John D. Sheenan was close on Lawrence's heels with a total of 15 points.

Division Artillery Handed First Loss This Season

BY LT. NELSON MARSH

The 9th Infantry Manchus clinched a tie for the 2nd Division basketball championship with a 79-62 bombardment of previously unbeaten Division Artillery February 2 at the Harmony Church Field House.

Nine of the "Keep Up the Fire" basketball squad hit the scoring column, with three pushing into double figures. Center Rayvaughn Pryear dropped in 23 points for the 9th and guard Harry Hall counted 18. Guard Dennis Foy, the 9th's captain for the contest, chipped in with 12 points.

Three Division Artillery stalwarts hit double figures led by forward John Humes with 23 points. Guard Jackie Sanderson added 17 and guard Albert Long managed 10 points before he fouled out late in the game.

The 9th Infantry commanded a 35-29 halftime lead after a see-saw type battle in the initial 20 minutes. The Manchumen gunned the "Cannoneers" down with a hot 44-point second half barrage while holding Division Artillery to 33 points. Pryear pumped in 14 points in the second half to wrap up the 9th's fifth consecutive win without a loss in the Division tournament.

The opening minutes of play saw the "Cannoneers" jump into an 8-3 lead on goals by Humes and Sanderson. The 9th Infantry roared back with seven points in succession to cop a 10-8 advantage. Humes, who hit on seven of nine free throws, tied the score at 16-all with a charity shot midway in the half.

Forward John Devlin and guard Foy hit buckets to put the 9th into a lead they never relinquished. Seven more points gave the 9th a 29-16 advantage. Div Arty narrowed the score to 35-29 at the half.

The winners dipped into their vast reservoir of speed in the second half and raced to a quick 50-39 lead before the stunned "Cannoneers" rallied behind Humes, Sanderson and Cornelius Mitchell to narrow the lead to just five points. A six-point splurge by forward Paul Askew and field goals by Max Powell, Jackie Fannon, and Foy gave the 9th an overwhelming 79 to 45 lead. Div-Arty cut the final margin to 79-62 before the final horn.

Though outgunning the 9th at the free throw line, where they hit 22 of 31 foul attempts and a 71.6 per cent average, the DivArty squad could only add 20 field goals. The 9th connected on 13 of 26 charity tosses for 50 per cent, but threw in a concentration of 33 goals from the floor to more than make up the difference.

Sanderson dead-eyed the hoop by hitting seven of eight free throws for the "Cannoneers". Long managed to drop in four of five foul throw attempts.

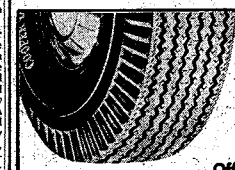
Playmaker Foy topped the Infantrymen with six of nine connections from the charity line. Powell hit both his foul shot attempts and Askew ringed in two of three tries. Pryear added 11 field goals.

Separate Battalion Bowling

Hot action continues in the Separate Battalion Bowling League. There were two sizzling games played Wednesday, February 1.

The Hurlers from the 69th Armor defeated the BB's from 122nd Signal by a score of 3-1. The Hurlers were led by Cecil Mace's three game series of 473.

In other action that night the Paladins of the 69th Armor squeaked by their brother tankers, the Panthers.



It was a nip and tuck series from start to finish with the Paladins winning the 1st game 865 to 843. The Panthers evened the series at one game apiece by taking the second game 885 to 864. The Paladins took the third game by sneaking by the Panthers 878 to 877.

Golf Pro Assigned To 23rd Infantry

By 23rd Inf PIO

"How to be a golf professional in ten very hard lessons" could very well be the title of a book, if it were ever written, by Recruit Adrian Bigras of Company D, 23rd Infantry. Although this young trainee lists his civilian occupation as "Golf Professional" he explains that anyone who makes money from the game of golf is considered a "pro." Although he has played in many tournaments the majority of his golfing time has been spent caddying and working in various golf shops. He says his ambition is to be "another Ben Hogan" but admits he has a long way to go.

A French Canadian by birth, Recruit Bigras started caddying at the age of 15 at the Laval Sur Le Lac Country Club in Montreal, Canada. One of his big "breaks" came when he caddied for Dow Finsterwald, a few years back, in the Le Batt open in Montreal. Incidentally, Dow Finsterwald finished third in that tournament and pocketed $1,800 "not that my caddying had anything to do with it" Bigras adds. Evidently he made an impression because the next year Finsterwald hired him to work in the Tequesta Country Club golf shop at Jupiter, Fla. Dow Finsterwald is the owner of the shop and the pro at the club.

Bigras lists his greatest thrill as his play in the Belvedere Open at West Palm Beach. He played against such greats as Sam Snead, Dow Finsterwald, and Cary Middlecoff. After the first day of play Recruit Bigras was leading the field and afte the three days of the tournament were completed he ended up in a tie with Sam Snead for third place. He modestly explains that on a given day, "anyone can beat anyone else" and he feels that he was "very lucky".

In discussing golf professionals in general, he says that they are a great deal like the NCOs he has met during his basic training; off duty or off the course—great guys, but on duty or on the course all business. He says that pros do pay an entry fee to all tournaments they wish to play in including "invitationals". It is usually 1 per cent of the top prize.

Bigras' future plans call for him to save enough money during his two year Army engagement so that he is able to work for about six months to get in shape, after he gets out, and then "play the tour". That is, go from one tournament to another in hopes of doing well enough to "make a small name for myself". He hopes in this way to launch the career for which he has worked so hard —"another Ben Hogan".

Tom Harp, Army's backfield coach for the past five seasons, has become the youngest Ivy League head coach (33) in history by being selected head mentor of Cornell University. Harp helped guide such West Point stalwarts as Pete Dawkins and Bob Anderson, both All-Americans.

Student Brigade Widens Lead In Major Unit Cagers' League

The Student Brigade, which moved into the lead of the Major Unit Basketball league last week, increased its margin last Tuesday with a 71-33 victory over The Infantry Center Troop Command.

Gaining the top spot through a 48-44 win over former leader Troop Command by the 1st Battle Group, 29th Infantry, 1st Infantry Brigade quintet, the TSB cagers took to the courts again last night and the night before, to beat the 2nd Howitzer Battalion, 10th Artillery, 1st Infantry Brigade and 29th Infantry.

In another contest played Tuesday at Briant Wells Field House, the 1st Armored Rifle Battalion, 58th Infantry, 1st Infantry Brigade, defeated the 151st Engineer Group, 65-59.

Troop Command's swift drop from first to third place was hastened by the 29th Infantry's victory over the former league pace - setters. The loss dropped the Troop Command to their present position.

The Student Brigade captured wins over the 428th Medical Battalion, 98-59, and a 97-55 verdict over the 58th Infantry last week, gaining enough of a lead in the cage loop to take over first place in loop standings.

The 29th Infantry, moving to second place in the standings, garnered three wins in last week's action to earn the second place spot.

The 29th won over the 58th Infantry by a 71-43 count and also defeated the Troop Command quintet, knocking them out of the top spot. The 10th Artillery fell before the 29th by a 48-44 margin.

The second round of action ended Tuesday, leaving two games to be played. Clinching the round title by 29th Infantry's victory over Troop Command, The Student Brigade, gained its crown last Wednesday.

The Student Brigade, with a 10-1 season slate and 5-0 second round record, established itself as the champion of the round and also the team to beat for the post basketball title.

Standings of the teams in the league after Tuesday's games are as follows:

Team	Won	L	Pct.
Student Brigade	10	1	.909
29th Infantry	10	2	.833
Troop Command	8	3	.800
428th Medics	5	8	.385
58th Infantry	4	9	.308
10th Artillery	3	9	.250

Keglers Win First Half Of Meet With McPherson

Fort Benning's Men's Bowling Team won the first round of a two-part series with the Fort McPherson Team last Saturday at the Post Bowling Center.

The Benning keglers took a 101-pin lead over the McPherson team, rolling a 4,695 series against a 4,585. The second and final part of the match will be bowled at Fort McPherson February 18.

MSgt Don Walding rolled the high game for the post keglers with a 224. Second high game was by Capt. Al Junko and Pfc Jack Walsh with a 222 each. Capt. James Bukosky rolled a 206 and 201 and Sfc Billy Ross, 201.

Capt. Junko turned the high series for the post team, rolling a nest 575. Pfc Walsh rolled a 938 for second-high honors and Sfc Ross was third with a 935.

Bob Kerr had 240 for McPherson's high game, followed by Johnny Wiles with a 228 and Steve Caporale with a 222. Kerr also rolled a 202.

Kerr scored the high series for the visiting bowlers, clipping a 576 for the match series honors. He was followed by Caporale with a 570 and Wiles with 877.

Golden Gloves

Post Sluggers Dominate Meet

The Doughboy Boxing Team, collecting three open division winners while copping an overall total of 15 wins in 26 bouts, captured the Open Team Trophy in the 18th Annual Golden Gloves Southeastern Boxing Championships held last week at the New Sports Arena in Jacksonville, Fla.

Champion in the flyweight class was Pfc. Edward Rydowski, who won the title by knockout over Ling Ortiz, Jacksonville Naval Air Station, in the second round.

Winner of the light heavyweight class in the Open Division was Sp4 Melvin Lonas, who won by a unanimous decision over Henry Mathews, who was entered from the Wilder Athletic Club.

In the Novice Division, Sp5 Fred Rutherford captured the lightweight title with a second round knockout over Paul Hawkins, also from the Wilder Club.

Sp4 Butler, although he lost by decision to teammate Pfc Honeysuckle in the finals, will travel to New York with the championship team to fill the slot vacated by Pfc. Honeysuckle, who has been transferred overseas. Pfc Rydowski and Sp4 Lonas are also members of the championship squad.

Benning team coaches, MSgt John J. Rivolta and Sfc Larry Jones were named as coaches for the championship open division team formed from the Jacksonville meet.

Sgt. Rivolta and Sgt. Jones will accompany the squad of boxers, including the three post sluggers, to New York for the Eastern Golden Gloves Championships scheduled for March 7, 8, and 9.

Today's Sportrait

Second Lt. Robert J. Whitehead of the 1st Battle Group, 29th Infantry, 1st Infantry Brigade, recently received a bid from Special Services in Washington to attend All - Army basketball tryouts at the Presidio of San Francisco.

The All - Army tryouts will be completed early this month.

Lt. Whitehead had sparked the 29th Infantry team in local games, playing forward. He is 23-years-old, and 6-foot four inches.

As a Wheaton College, Ill., star, he helped capture the NCAA Small College Division National Tournament Championship in 1957, and was personally chosen for Little All-American honors three years while playing for Wheaton.

Before entering the Army, he received offers from the NBA to play professional basketball.

The lieutenant has been in the service since May, 1960, and plans to return to post graduate studies on completing his service tour. His plans on finishing his studies are not yet definite.

While playing with the 29th Infantry team, he was joined by another teammate from Wheaton days, 1st Lt. Michael Easterling. They spent three years together on the college team.

Prior to his college honors, Lt. Whitehead gained All-State recognition while attending Glenhard High School in his home town of Glen Ellyn, Ill.

66th Armor To Represent Battalion

Company C, 66th Armor, 1st Armored Rifle Battalion, 58th Infantry, 1st Infantry Brigade, went undefeated for five games to win the battalion volleyball tournament.

Company D, 69th Armor, took second place in the tournament with a 4-1 record, losing only to Company C.

The battalion champions, coached by MSgt James E. Setters, defeated Company C, 1st Battle Group, 29th Infantry, 14-3 and 11-4. Company D, coached by MSgt Dale Anderson, defeated Headquarters, Company, 1st Infantry Brigade, with scores of 12-10 and 11-7.

Company C will represent 58th Infantry in The Infantry Center volleyball tourney, currently scheduled to get underway next week.

Rules Clinic On Basketball

Over 73 students attended a volleyball clinic held in Infant Wells Field House recently.

Instructor for the class was Sfc Billy Ross, who was assisted in demonstrating rules and technique of play by members of the 44th company, 4th Battalion, The Student Brigade, and The Infantry Board volleyball teams.

Officials also received an orientation and practical work in rules, signals and other points of the game.

Members of unit volleyball teams as well as athletic and recreation officers and NCO's attended the clinic.

Suggestions on Buying a Power Boat

If you're in the market for a power boat, what are the things you should know to insure that you "navigate" a good buy?

According to information supplied by boat companies, your choice of boat should be based on three factors: the amount of money you want to spend — both at the outset and in later maintenance; the kind of waterways available to you; and the purpose to which you want to put your boat.

Of the 7,800,000 recreational boats on all waters in the U.S. during 1959, about 6,400,000 had motors. Buyers in increasing numbers are finding that boating costs have come down and that you can float a power boat loan as easily as you can a car loan.

Not only have improved manufacturing techniques brought boats within budget range, but the variety to choose from makes it certain that you will find the boat suited to your particular need and purpose.

CRUISERS are the aristocrats of the power fleet. They start at 18 foot, 60 horsepower combinations, and can carry you on a weekend jaunt on your local waters, or extended off shore cruising and down the Inland Waterway to Florida or up the Mississippi River.

There is virtually no limit to the length of cruiser that you may buy, but for all practical purposes, a cruiser in the 25 to 33 feet class is probably your best bet.

If the cruiser does not come fully equipped, it can be fitted with complete head and galley —ice box, stove, sink, and storage space — as well as sleeping accomodations for two to six people in the cabins of boats up to 33 ft. long. Price range: $2,500 to $20,000.

RUNABOUTS are an increasingly familiar sight on our nation's waterways. The runabout is a compromise between the comfort of a cruiser and the adventurousness of a rough and-ready fishing skiff.

Runabouts run about 14 to 21 feet in length and clip along fast enough to pull several water-skiers. The new models combine family comfort with their sleek, dashing appearance.

One, for example, features a unique six foot sun lounge, luxuriously padded and upholstered, which folds conveniently and compactly when not in use. Standard equipment includes console drawers under the center of the dashboard for personal items, and a wrap-around safety glass windshield.

You have the option of a ski tow ring, chrome stern boarding ladder, and permanent hardtop. Smooth riding and spacious, yet nimble and maneuverable, this "family fun" boat can do speeds up to 50 miles an hour.

DORIES are a good bet, if you're interested in an off shore fishing boat.

SHOWN IS ONE 1961 MODEL 33-FOOT CABIN CRUISER Includes Sleeping Room For Four, Galley, Dinette, Lavatory

While short on comfort, these unsheltered 12-18 ft. boats can't be beat for riding the surf and swells beyond. A dory is built to ride best with a heavy load and ranges in horsepower from 15 to 100 h.p. Price: $500 to $2,000.

Naturally, no skipper would try to operate an ocean liner in a creek. In selecting a power boat, you have to consider the water you'll be navigating on.

On calm tides a light boat will do, but you'll need a heavier craft if you plan to sail the bounding main. On choppy waters you'll need stability; a boat with plenty of flare to the topsides will keep the spray out. On a placid day, you may get better speed from a boat with a low, non-resistant silhouette.

Profile of a Man Doing a Man's Job

SP5 SHEALEY

Sp5 Robert L. Shealy is a member of Lawson Army Aviation Command's 536rd Maintenance Detachment, and a recent honor graduate of the 18-week Aircraft Electrician course conducted at Fort Eustis.

The 21-year-old Army specialist is preparing on-the-job for his proficiency pay test which he is scheduled for in May, and is busy learning skills and a career in the Army's field of aviation which gives the ground combat soldier greater battlefield mobility.

Sp5 Shealy has recently re-enlisted to fill his own vacancy as shop supervisor in the detachment's electrical repair shop.

The shop maintains the complex electrical system of the Army's largest operational helicopter, the H-37.

His work includes repairing, servo - systems, generators, lighting systems, along with performing technical order modifications of aircraft electrical systems.

First Educational Films Said 'Highly Successful'

The first film series to be shown for college credit at The Infantry Center's Educational Development Section has proved highly successful, according to Leonard S. Ozley, education supervisor.

In November and December film courses in general psychology and American government were shown during off and on-duty time at the section to ascertain if college level students with general knowledge of these subjects could pass end-of-course tests with little or no added instruction. Each series consisted of 16 half-hour films shown four times.

Results of the film instruction have been even better than expected, Ozley said. Almost 70 per cent of the 98 students taking the end - of - course test in psychology qualified for college credit. Approximately 75 per cent of 73 students made satisfactory scores on the government test.

The films were produced by the Armed Forces Institute. Most colleges and universities in the United States will accept credits earned through USAFI courses if scores on the Institute's tests are deemed high enough.

The only material used to supplement the films was statistical formulas pertaining to the psychology instruction. A 30-minute question and answer period followed the government films, which emphasized important Supreme Court decisions, the Constitution and Articles of Confederation and the checks and balance system.

Enlisted Men Serve With Many Center Activities

Today all members of The Infantry Center Troop Command join in celebrating the 12th anniversary of the formation of the unit, with festivities centering around the men themselves—in the unit's mess halls.

Special meals are being prepared in all units, just as they have been in the past for holidays and specific events, but the men who eat these steaks this evening represent a complex support unit which has seen many changes in the past 12 years.

Now comprising three battalions: the 39th Transportation Battalion, the newly established 7th Ordnance Battalion and the 1st Battalion plus the WAC Company, Military Police Company and the 539th Army Postal Unit; the command has at times contained many other units.

Under the direction of The Infantry Center Troop Command commander, Col. Cecil H. Bolton, the major commanders and the executive officer of the command are: Lt. Col. Glen A. Soderstrom, deputy commander; Lt. Col. Milton A. Eddy, executive officer; Lt. Col. Lewis R. Buckner, 1st Battalion; and Lt. Col. Louis J. Maricle, 39th Transportation Battalion.

Transportation, Ordnance, Signal and administrative personnel make up the units of the Troop Command, with separate companies of military police, WAC's and postal personnel, and The Infantry Center Band.

The 39th Transportation Battalion includes the 505th, 515th and 666th Transportation Companies; the 596th Signal Company, and two companies from the redesignated 2nd Battalion. The 505th, 596th and Headquarters Detachment are STRAC units — part of the 596th is now in Alaska for operation "Willow Freeze" — and the 505th received a rating as "Superior STRAC Unit" from CONARC this year.

In addition to their regular work of supporting The Center, ROTC Summer Camp, Reserve Components and the Ranger instruction at The Infantry School, units of the 39th took part in five field exercises in the past year: Lucky Echo, Autumn Leaves, South Wind and Bright Star besides the present Alaska maneuver.

Newly activated, the 7th Ordnance Battalion began receiving units February 1. The organization will be completed by March, when it will consist of three companies, the 620th Ordnance Company (Ammunition), the 147th Ordnance Company (Direct Support) and the 539th Ordnance Company (General Automotive Support). Three detachments, the 89th Explosive Ordnance Detachment, and 21st and 25th Small Arms Repair Detachments, will round out the unit.

The 596th, 620th and 147th are STRAC units, and the 147th was also designated a superior STRAC unit for 1959.

Companies A, B and C and the Band are units of the 1st Battalion. Company A supplies personnel for the general staff sections, Signal, Ordnance, Engineer Chaplain and Chemical Sections, Protocol Division and the Third Army Training Aids Sub-Center.

Company B furnishes men for the Quartermaster and Special Services Sections, and Company C provides the workers in offices of The Adjutant General, Comptroller, Range Control, Education Center, Inspector General, Information Section, Staff Judge Advocate, Reserve Component Section, Self Service Supply Center and Purchasing and Contracting.

SUBJECT: Unit Day, 10 February 1961

TO: Commanding Officer, United States Army Infantry Center, Fort Benning, Georgia

I extend congratulations to the members of the United States Army Infantry Center Troop Command from the personnel of the Infantry Center on the occasion of Unit Day, 10 February 1961.

Your complex mission of coordinating and controlling activities of support troops of the Infantry Center is vital to the successful operation of this command. The skillful, enthusiastic and expeditious manner in which your varied tasks have been performed reflects much credit upon the officers and men of your command and has contributed significantly to the attainment of the Infantry Center objective.

I wish to express appreciation for your excellent performance and to wish you continued success in the future.

Hollywood Lowdown And Inside Briefs. . .

Angie Dickinson, starring in Warner Bros.' "A Fever in the Blood," regards the Golden Garter award she won for having Hollywood's shapeliest legs as her first "Oscar". Jackie Gleason will star with Paul Newman and Piper Laurie in 20th's "The Hustler," to be filmed in New York . . . Erskine Caldwell, one of America's leading authors, paid a rare visit to a film set to see his novel, "Claudelle Inglish," being made at Warner Bros... Ruta Lee plays the feminine lead in "Operation Eichmann," Allied Artists story on the Nazi killer.

Troy Donahue and Connie Stevens must have casting chemistry because Warner Bros., after starring them in "Parrish" and "Susan Slade," is looking for a third drama for the team . . . Marilyn Monroe may do her next picture in April if she signs for 20th's "Celebration," new title for the play, "Loss of Roses." . . . A 1930 recording of "I Wonder What's Become of Sally?" will be used, instead of a modern recording of the song, in Warners' "Portrait of a Mobster" . . . Vic Damone will do a cameo role in Jerry Lewis' "Ladies' Man."

Rafer Johnson, Olympic decathlon champ, makes his motion picture debut in Warner Bros.' "The Sins of Rachel Cade" . . . At Doris Day's request, her "Roar Like a Dove" for Columbia will be shot in Hollywood instead of England, the locale of the story . . . Clint Walker was happy while acting in the Warner Bros. picture, "Gold of the Seven Saints," because the wide open spaces where it was filmed are even wider open than his TV sets.

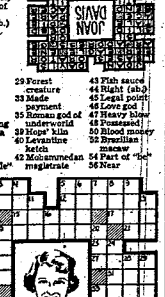
Warner Bros. will have three pictures filming in the Orient soon — "The Marauders" and "Samar" in the Philippines and "Formosa" on that Chinese island . . . Yul Brynner has been sworn in as a vice consul and will serve as special consultant to the State Department on refugee affairs... "The Music Man" sets take up more Warner Bros. studio space than any picture since "Giant" . . . With new jet service between Los Angeles and Tucson, the state of Arizona is planning a big pitch to get film locations to work in their smogless air.



STUPIFYIN' . . . Julie Newmar strolls by a sun drenched pool and seems to be practicing for her role as Stupifyin' Jones in the movie version of "Lil Abner."

E-8 FREDERICK

MSgt. (E-8) William O. Frederick, maintenance operations sergeant for the 577th Engineer Battalion (Construction), entered the Army on January 30, 1941, at Dallas Tex. He was assigned to Company A, 143rd Infantry Regiment, 36th Infantry Division, at Camp Bowie, Tex., for his basic training.

During the battle for a crossing at the Rapido River, near Cassino, Italy, during World War II, Sgt. Frederick was wounded. Recovering from his wounds, he rejoined the 36th Infantry Division in time for the D-Day invasion of southern France. In the Battle for St. Raphael, he earned the Silver Star.

Sgt. Frederick was cut off from his unit and captured later in the War during the battle of the Colmar Pocket. He was released in the early part of 1945 by elements of the Third Army.

Returning to the States, Sgt. Frederick was first stationed at Fort Sill and later assigned here at Fort Benning.

In 1950, shortly after the start of the Korean Conflict, Sgt. Frederick was ordered to Japan, where he joined the 7th Infantry Division. Landing at Inchon, Korea, he fought with the division to Seoul and then invaded North Korea at Iwon, with the Yalu River as the objective. Sgt. Frederick was again wounded just 20 miles from the Yalu River, and evacuated to Walter Reed Army Hospital.

After recuperating from his wounds, Sgt. Frederick was again assigned to post as training aids NCO for the Third Army, Sub-Center.

In addition to the Silver Star, Sgt. Frederick holds the Legion of Merit, Bronze Star, French Croix de Guerre and the Combat Infantry Badge with Star.

4 Generals From Same Ohio House

(AFPS)—A house in Lancaster, Ohio, deserves a footnote in any history of the Civil War. It's the Ewing residence which four generals called home.

They were Major Gen. Thomas Ewing, Major Gen. Hugh Ewing and Brig. Gen. Charles Ewing—all brothers.

The fourth? He was Gen. William, Tecumseh Sherman who was brought up by the Ewing family.

Lancaster is understandably proud of its contribution to the Army. For two other generals Major Gen. Philemon Beecher and Brig. Gen. Samuel P. Marchen, lived within a block of the Ewing home. They died before war came.

Cited For Programs

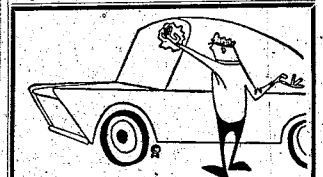
(AFPS) — The CBS-TV documentary series "The Twentieth Century," now in its fourth year, has been given the Department of Defense Outstanding Service Award in a Pentagon ceremony.

The series' producer, Burton Benjamin, accepted the award from Murray Snyder, Assistant Secretary of Defense for Public Affairs. Its citation reads:

"Certificate of Commendation to the CBS Television Series 'The Twentieth Century' for its outstanding service in ably presenting Armed Forces activities and achievements to the public."

New Slide Rule Plots Satellites

(AFPS) —A new type slide rule which quickly gives the location of a satellite moving around the earth was recently completed for use by the Air Research and Development Command.



Called the Satellite Trajectoru Simulator, the computing device pinpoints the path of a satellite and determines geographical areas visible from the satellite.

Holy Name Society

The Holy Name Society will conduct their monthly meeting and breakfast this Sunday morning at the Main Officers' Open Mess following the 8 a.m. Mass at the Main Post Catholic Chapel. Sister Mary Enunciata, R. S. M., will be guest speaker and her topic will be "Vocations." She is a teacher at Pacelli High School in Columbus.

Unitarians

Major Chang Chi-Wu of the Republic of China, a student at The Infantry School is scheduled to speak to the Unitarian Fellowship at its regular meeting Sunday evening at 7 p.m. in the 1st Infantry Brigade Chapel. Major Chi-Wu attended the University of Shanghai in the early 1940's.

Allied Speaker

Capt. Luiz Francisco Soares Albergariac Camara of Portugal, an Infantry School student, was a recent speaker at a meeting of the King's Daughters in Columbus. He spoke on his impressions of America and customs of his country.

West Germany Is the Subject Of Documentary

(AFPS) — The story of Germany's growth and development since 1945 is told in a new documentary film called "Postwar Germany."

Produced by the Office of Armed Forces Information and Education, Department of Defense, the 25-minute film is designed to support information programs dealing with the situation in Germany.

The documentary notes that the sense of a new life can be seen in all parts of Germany. It is seen in new construction throughout the Federal Republic and reflected in the mood of the German people.

Yet the other side of the story, says DOD, points to the troubles of a divided nation and the hostility of the Soviet Union toward a united Germany.

The Civilians You Work With

GLISSON

WARD

Betty Glisson has been working in her present job as secretary to the post billeting officer since August of last year.

Before assuming her present duties, she worked in the Provost Marshal's Office on post.

A native of Columbus, she graduated from Baker High School.

She has been working on post now for nearly a year.

Gilbert A. Ward Jr., is the post fire chief, and has held his present position for the past 12 years. He served for seven years as first assistant fire chief for the post before taking his present job.

He has five fire stations and nearly 80 fire fighters and fire inspectors under his direction, and he was recently commended by the National Fire Prevention Association for his work.

Originally from Waynesboro, Ga., he has resided here on post for the past 20 years.

Norwegian Officers

Major Gen Leif Crawford Rolstad, chief of Trondelag District Command, Norway, observed Ranger training at The Infantry School this week.

He was accompanied by Col. Rolf Rynning Eriksen, chief of staff of Allied Land Forces, Norway. Their U. S. tour director if Major Garmon Aure, temporarily on leave from his duties as commander of the 19th Transportation Company at Benning to escort the Norwegian officers in this country.

The visitors also conferred with Major Gen. Hugh P. Harris, commandant of The Infantry School and commanding general of The Infantry Center, and were honored with an official luncheon.

VA Provides Income Tax Information

Veterans figuring their federal income taxes need not count as income any payments for veterans' benefits since they're completely tax-free.

So reports the Georgia Veterans Service Director, who says the following benefits aren't required to be listed on income tax forms:

All pensions, compensation and other benefits paid by the Veterans Administration to veterans or their families or survivors for service in war or peacetime.

Dividends from GI life insurance (except interest earnings from dividends left on deposit).

Education and training allowances for veterans studying under the Korean Bill.

Death gratuity pay to families of deceased veterans.

Bonuses paid by states.

Prisoner of war benefits to World War II and Koran veterans or their families.

For servicemen on active duty such items as family allowance paid to dependents, basic allowances for quarters and subsistence, per diem in lieu of subsistence, rations to enlisted men and uniform allowances.

Named to Head Lincoln Center

(AFPS) — Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, World War II chief of the famed 101st Abn. Div. and former Army Chief of Staff, is the new president of New York City's mammoth cultural project, the Lincoln Center for the Performing Arts.

Gen. Taylor, who retired in 1959, will lead a fund-raising campaign to finance the $160 million complex of buildings now rising on the West Side of Manhattan. Target date for its completion is the World's Fair in 1964, but the first of its structures, Philharmonic Hall, is scheduled to be occupied late in 1962.

The Surgeon Says

Doctors Offer Marriage Help

Due to the goals and needs of the military forces today, the military family is often moved, and frequently the head of the family is separated from the family. This can easily lead to complications, affecting not only the family concerned, but also the society in which it lives — the military society.

However, these complications can be erased or greatly alleviated if there is a solid marriage, a healthy union between husband and wife. Let us look now at qualities necessary for this type of union.

Marriage is hard work. For example, consider what a wife and mother must be. She must be an inspiring companion to her husband, a housekeeper who has some skill in cooking, sewing and cleaning.

She also must be an economist, able to handle her household budget and to shop efficiently for food, furnishings and clothing; a nurse, a teacher with a working knowledge of child psychology. She must possess many emotional qualities such as patience, understanding and kindness.

The successful husband and father needs similar qualities. To inspire respect for his leadership he should be reasonably competent as a man, head of the family, and a provider for his wife and children.

He must be a source of inspiration to his wife, and encourage her to fulfill her duties as wife and mother. He also must be a teacher, for his example will probably be the most important influence in the development of his childs personality.

Finally, the husband needs insight into the emotional needs of his wife and children and a strong sense of duty and drive to meet these needs.

There must of necessity be a long period of adjustment in marriage. Even if you are married twenty-five years, you will still perceive areas in your relationship which you can improve. Marriage is a process of growth to which you bring proper ideals of heart and mind, a willingness to understand and to sacrifice. Learn as much as you can about each other and adapt yourself to realities.

In homes where people love each other and are considerate, there is open discussion of all major matters and agreements on what or what not to do. However, there are times when conflicts arise and the reason for them, or a way to solve them, cannot be found.

It is understandable that there are problems which a person cannot solve by himself. A third party, one who is not so emotionally involved in the conflict and has had some experience in dealing with such matters, can be helpful.

In the Army some people are helped by Chaplains, others by legal assistance officers, and still others by the social workers, psychologists and psychiatrists. Don't hesitate to call upon them if you are in need of their services.

Hawaii's Only State Without a Namesake

The Navy has stopped naming warships after states, but before it discontinued the custom 49 of our present 50 made the grade, leaving only Hawaii without the honor of having sailed the seas.

Contrary to general belief, not all of the vessels bearing state names were battlewagons. The exceptions are the Alaska, a large cruiser now in mothballs, and the old Montana, described as a "first class armored cruiser."

The Texas and the Maine, commissioned in 1895 as "seagoing double-bottomed armored vessels," could claim the distinction of being the first U. S. battleships, for they later became known as "second class battleships."

But the first real battleship, also commissioned in 1895, was the Indiana. The Massachusetts and the Oregon were her sister ships. After these came the Iowa and the Kearsarge. The latter, named for a mountain in New Hampshire, was the only battleship not to bear a state name.

As for Hawaii, the keel of a large cruiser of that name was laid in 1943; the ship was over 80 per cent complete when construction was suspended in 1947. Montana lost out twice: a battleship of that name was begun in 1920 and cancelled two years later. Another was authorized in 1940, but construction was suspended in 1943.

But if Hawaii remained on the beach, her capital city was honored in 1937 by a light cruiser that was to see Pacific action in WWII. The Honolulu, with the motto of "Mau Lanakila," went into mothballs in 1946.

The Aloha State also has its romantic names on four of the Navy's auxiliary ammunition ships — the Diamond Head and Mauna Loa in the Atlantic, and the Haleakala and the Mauna Kea in the Pacific.

Unit Backs YAC

Headquarters and Headquarters Detachment, 3rd Transportation Battalion, is the first unit in the Lawson Army Aviation Command to attain 100 per cent membership in the Youth Activities Club. Over 90 per cent of the detachment personnel have already joined in the Savings Bond drive. The detachment is commanded by Capt. Don W. Chabot.

Board of Officers to Study One Army Marksmanship Setup

On February 14, a board of officers from post and each of the continental Army areas plus the XVIII Airborne Corps will meet here for the purpose of evaluating rifle marksmanship in the Army.

Established by Major Gen. Hugh P. Harris, Infantry Center commanding general, the board will be headed by Col. C. M. Freudendorf, deputy director of The Infantry School's Weapons Department.

During the meeting, the board will evaluate and review rifle marksmanship in all One Army components.

Areas to be considered include qualification and familiarization standards, trainfire and known distance programs, and competitive marksmanship's impact on each.

Other post officers on the board include Lt. Col. Thomas B. Ross Jr., Lt. Col. Robert A. Guenthner, Major Clifford H. Ford and Major Charles A. Smith of the Weapons Department; Capt. Awbrey G. Norris of the 1st Battle Group, 29th Infantry, 1st Infantry Brigade, and Capt. John R. Walker of the Advanced Marksmanship Unit.

Representing the Continental Armies are: Lt. Col. Otis D. Viall, Third Army; Lt. Col. Wendell W. Lockett, First Army; Lt. Col. Lonnie L. Goolsby, Fourth Army; Major Gerald J. Murray, Fifth Army; Major Clair L. Hess, Second Army; Major Milo P. Foster, Sixth Army, and Major Robert M. Cowherd, XVIII Airborne Corps.

ARMY SAFETY PAYS

The U. S. Army has earned the National Safety Council's highest award, the Award of Honor, 15 times in the last 17 years to become the only federal agency with 50,000 employees or more to have won the award a second time.

Our Lady Of Lourdes Catholic Church

S. Lumpkin Road & Torch Hill Road — Telephone MU 9-5720
COLUMBUS, GA.

February 10, 1961

Dear Friends:

This is an open letter of invitation to all who are not of the Catholic Faith, and who wish some knowledge of Catholic belief and worship.

We cordially invite you to the informal classes held each Monday and Friday evening at 7:30 p.m. at Our Lady of Lourdes School Hall. A new series begins Monday, February 13th. No Registration is necessary and don't worry about missing classes, or even missing the first class. You may attend classes at your convenience.

Each class will be very informal and will be illustrated with full color sound filmstrips on the Life and teachings of Christ. There will be interesting but brief lectures after which your questions will be discussed and answered.

Do Catholics read the Bible? Do Catholics honor Mary? What happens immediately after you die? Why do Catholics confess their sins? From where does the Pope get his authority? Why don't Catholics eat meat on Friday? These and many others questions will be answered.

You will not be obligated in any way by your attendance at these classes. We will be most happy to have you attend as often as you can.

Devotedly yours in Christ,

Father Wm Dowling

"Africa Today"

When most adult Americans of today were studying grade school geography, the vast African continent contained only three independent nations — Liberia, Ethiopia, and South Africa. The African map was then comparatively uncluttered with boundary lines and place names. Great areas were identified mainly by their European owners — French West Africa, French Equatorial Africa, Belgian Congo, Anglo-Egyptian Sudan, Spanish Sahara.

The new map of Africa has hardly any of these old labels. Other names have replaced them — some entirely new, such as Ghana and Mali, others retaining old identities, such as Sudan and Republic of the Congo. Still more new names will appear during the next few years as new African states are born and new regional groupings are established.

These political changes on the "Dark Continent" are the subject of a new Department of the Army Troop Information pamphlet recently placed in distribution. The new pamphlet, published in the "Army Information Program Support Series," contains an up-to-the-minute map of the African continent along with basic facts about the forty-one political sub-divisions.

Noting that, during the past few months, African affairs have commanded the urgent concern and attention of the whole world, the pamphlet lists each country by current political status and, where possible, takes a look at probable future developments.

Other facts listed for most of the countries include population figures, capital city, information on the economy, and political alliances that have bearing on current or future status.

The new pamphlet is available to members of the Army through local publications channels.

CUTTING CORNERS

by Barbara Sue Richards

The skin is the first line of defense against germs, a temperature regulator and a waste-disposal unit all in one!

For 8 out of 10 Americans who are susceptible to poison ivy or poison oak, it is often something else — a real trouble maker!

But the amazing thing about poison ivy susceptibility is not that it's so wide spread. It's the fact that for ages man was unable to find an effective means of protection against it. He tried hard enough.

Cherokee Indians employed diplomacy — called the ivy plant "my friend". Potawatomi tribesmen used its roots as medicine, to open swellings. Oldtime Down Easters vowed it could be caught just by looking at it, especially in wet, foggy weather.

Another trap set by poison ivy is that the plant has many disguises. It can grow as a low bush, as a vine climbing a tree or house, or it can hide itself as a creeper underfoot. All three forms can combine in one plant growth — along the ground, up a fence, then as a bush from the top rail!

And perhaps worst of all for poison ivy sufferers is that, just when they think the season's over, they find it isn't. There's no real end to the poison plant "season". — You can catch a dose of its poison in summer or winter.

Fall and winter activities bring "off beat" ways of catching poison ivy or oak. Those logs collected for firewood, for instance, may be entwined with a piece of the ivy vine. When burned, the oil of the vine vaporizes and is carried by the heat to cause an annoying itch. Poison plants often grow where least expected: You're not even safe when hunting in an area free of underbrush. One of the bushes growing out in the open may be poison ivy.

There are many ways to catch poison ivy or oak, but now at last there is an effective way to protect yourself. There is an ivy tablet on the market which, taken over a six-week period, completely protects you from poison ivy and oak.

If you have a history of skin sensitivity, or like to spend time outdoors, it's best to keep up immunity all year 'round. With the help of simple-to-take pills, the fun of outdoor life — summer or winter — can be enjoyed to the fullest, free from worries of the poison plant family.

Don't ruin a perfectly good make-up application by abruptly ending your foundation make-up at the chin and jawline, thereby defeating the entire purpose of your make-up by leaving a mask-like appearance.

To attain a smooth-skinned, natural look, first of all be sure to choose a shade of foundation make-up that closely matches your natural skin color. Then, after completing your make-up, remember to continue the application of your foundation make-up slightly below the chin and jaw line and also slightly back under the ear. As you do this, diminish the color until it blends into your natural skin tone.

Gen. Walsh's Infantry School Report

Our nation has long realized the need for a strong military reserve and indications are that the reserve program will receive more and more emphasis in the future.

The Department of the Army has been charged with certain responsibilities for the organization, operation, and support of reserve forces. Likewise, The Infantry School has been assigned specific areas of responsibility in support of the reserve programs. One major area of responsibility is the preparation and distribution of instructional material for the Army Reserve Schools.

The USAR Schools Program, which had its inception some twelve years ago in Allentown, Pennsylvania, has met with such success that today there are 161 schools operating Infantry Departments, with an enrollment of 3479 students. Infantry Branch Schools are conducted in Europe, Puerto Rico, and Hawaii, as well as throughout the Continental United States.

The USAR Schools were founded and operate to insure that Army Reserve officers have a means of maintaining their military proficiency. Each school is conducted by reserve officers for reserve officers.

A commandant, his staff, and selected instructors, all reserve officers, administer each school. The schools are organized into departments based

Patterson Award Ceremony Brings Top Officials Here

SECRETARY STAHR PRESENTS AWARD CERTIFICATE
Lt. Mosley Also Receives Pistol, $250 From Mrs. Patterson

Include Army Secretary, Generals, Mrs. Patterson

Second Lt. Howard R. Mosley was awarded the Robert P. Patterson Memorial Award last Saturday by Mrs. Patterson, widow of the late secretary of war, and Secretary of the Army Elvis J. Stahr Jr.

Lt. Mosley, a native of Passaic, N. J., was honored as the outstanding graduate of Infantry Officer Candidate School for Fiscal Year 1960. He received an inscribed service pistol, certificates and $250.

Gen. Clark L. Ruffner, U.S. representative to the Military Committee and Standing Group of NATO, Washington, D. C., was the representative of the Army chief of staff at the program. He presented Lt. Mosley with a miniature of The Infantryman Statue at Eubanks Field, site of the event.

Mrs. Patterson told the group, "My husband had a tremendous appreciation of the task of the Army, of the character of the Army. He felt almost as a prophecy how the job of the Army would be extended through the years."

"It is the Infantry which gets right to the trouble spots which has to cope with them, which has to depend on its individual leadership. My husband felt that the soldier has in him potential leadership which could be invaluable to the officer corps," she continued.

"Leadership takes more than instinct these days. You have to be trained and tried. This award really symbolizes to the Infantryman that if he really wants to be an officer, he will be helped to where he will be given responsibility of command," she continued.

"The award also shows a man that his experience as a soldier is of value to him when he becomes an officer," she said in presenting the pistol and check for $250.

Lt. Mosley expressed "deepest appreciation for the provision of this fine award to add to the incentive of the OCS program."

Secretary Stahr presented the Patterson Award certificate to Lt. Mosley.

He stated that Mosley was

Post Begins Joint Welfare Drive

Brig. Gen. A. D. Surles, Jr., deputy commanding general of The Infantry Center, officially opened the Post Federal Service Campaign for National Health Agencies and Federal Service Joint Crusade Wednesday.

Gen. Surles addressed approximately 350 project officers in Theater 1, who will conduct the post-wide drive from February 20 through April 1.

"This concurrent fund drive is our way of giving support to welfare and research agencies that work in our country and are dedicated to aiding our neighbors around the world. It is important and needs our help," Gen. Surles said.

Drive

success of the campaign rests on you and your key men. All contributions are to be voluntary. This means you must go out and sell the campaign and its objectives.

"The interest of the president of the United States is shared by commanders in all echelons. I am personally interested in our success on post," the general added.

Major Edward L. Whitehead, project officer for the post drive, introduced the guest speakers at the kick-off meeting.

George Gingell, director of public affairs for Radio Station WRBL, Columbus, spoke on behalf of the health agencies. "Fifty per cent of the money collected goes toward research in most cases. The causes and cures of these killers and cripplers are unknown at the moment," he said.

"The other half collected goes to the community wherever it's needed. Every dollar, I assure you, is well spent," he added.

"You, as soldiers, can ally what you're doing in the field of defense to the combat of these diseases, which weaken mankind, and are as formidable an enemy as any other at our doors." Gingell said.

"It's hard to know what it means if you're hale and hearty," he added, in recounting his observation of men in hospitals "trying to get back the use of a single muscle, to get back to normal life, to be a man, husband, father, wage earner."

Gingell suggested the officers and key men appeal to the soldiers on a "man - to - man basis. "They don't have to contribute in the sense they must obey military orders. Mankind would lose something if a person's giving didn't involve a sacrifice. Fort Benning, as a reservation, has responded many times. I, as a citizen of Columbus, am truly grateful," he concluded.

Col. (Ret.) Howard C. Dellert of Atlanta, state chairman for the Federal Service Joint Crusade, presented information on the Crusade for Freedom and Radio Free Europe, which beams broadcasts to 79 million people behind the Iron Curtain. American - Korean Foundation, which trains nurses, doctors and dentists needed in Korea, aids orphans, trains war widows in vocations and concerns itself with other aspects of human life.

CARE is now a household word, the chairman said, and its packages of food, clothing and tools are sent into countries needing help.

It's activities do not duplicate those of the State Department, he said.

A documentary film narrated by Bob Hope was shown in support of the three agencies. The film is available to units and will be shown on two evenings in the future at Theater 1.

Following the meeting, project officers are expected to brief selected key men in their units and staff sections on how the joint drive will be conducted on post.

Each key man will personally contact 25 persons. Enlisted personnel in the sections are asked to donate through key men in their units. Officers and civilians in the sections are asked to turn donations over to key men appointed in the sections.

Award

selected because of his "consistently outstanding performance, demonstrated leadership ability and obvious long-range potential."

"You have every right to be proud of this award. You have been deemed the most worthy after careful study of your record by the commandant of The Infantry School, the Department of the Army and the Patterson Memorial Award Committee. The criteria upon which the award is based are exacting, but you have met them fully," said Secretary Stahr, who was an instructor in The Infantry School's Weapons Department from September, 1942, to April, 1943.

"You have demonstrated many of the sound character traits that marked the like of Robert Patterson. As you further pursue your career as an officer, you can find no better example of dedication to duty and the highest good of the nation than the man who inspired the award you receive today," he added.

Secretary Patterson died in a plane crash in 1952. More than 100 of his friends, including Winthrop Rockefeller and the late Major Gen. Julius Ochs Adler, created a fund in the New York Community Trust from which the Patterson Award has been made annually since 1953.

In addition to Mrs. Patterson, who resides in New York City, Secretary and Mrs. Stahr and Gen. Ruffner, guests of honor for the ceremonies included Lt. Mosley's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Mosley; Undersecretary of the Army Stephen Ailes and Mrs. Ailes, Dr. Allen Albert of Emory University, Atlanta, civilian aide to the secretary of the Army for the State of Georgia; famed aviatrix Jacqueline Cochran of Indio, Calif.; Gen. Herbert B. Powell, commanding general of Continental Army Command, and Mrs. Powell; Lt. Gen. Paul D. Adams, commanding general of Third Army, and Mrs. Adams; Major Gen. G. E. Martin, Office of the Deputy Chief of Staff for Personnel, and Brig. Gen. G. T. Duncan and Col. W. H. Kinard Jr., Office of the Deputy Chief of Staff for Operations, all of Department of the Army, and Col. J. B. Leer, chief of information, Continental Army Command.

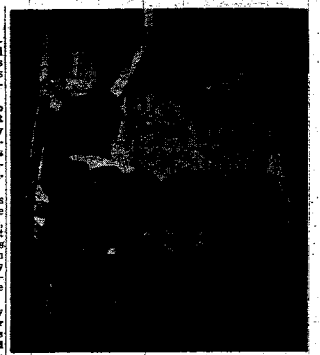
Report

on service branches, with a reserve lieutenant colonel and major assigned as instructors for each branch. Ten students are required to form an Infantry Department.

It's possible for an officer to spend ten years in the USAR School Program. The Infantry Branch offers a five years Career Course which parallels, as closely as possible, the Career Course presented to resident Fort Benning students.

Each year of instruction is divided into two phases — the active duty for training phase, 80 hours, which is conducted at a military installation (students from four Army Areas train on post) and a reserve duty phase, 48 hours, which is conducted in the student's home town.

The officer who successfully completes the Infantry Career Course receives credit for this level of military instruction and may enroll in the five year Command and General Staff College Course.



Everyone assigned to the USAR School is a civilian, which means that the instructor's time is limited. Library facilities are often lacking. It is evident that the instructional material furnished to support the instruction must be complete in every detail.

A USAR School problem usually consists of two parts — an instructor and student set. The problem outlines the subject, time allocation, type of instruction, scope, and special preparation guidance for the instructor and student. To insure that research time is reduced, on the part of the instructor, and a high uniform standard of instruction is maintained throughout the Infantry departments, a complete instructor narrative is included in each problem.

The Department of Non-Resident Instruction, with the assistance of the resident departments, Third Army Training Aids Sub-Center, and the Army Field Printing Plant, prepares and distributes the complete problems required to support the Infantry departments. Supporting material is furnished to each school in the form of transparencies and special and handbooks. The Department of Non - Resident Instruction grades all examinations which are administered to the USAR School student.

The Infantry School can look with pride at the support which it renders to the fruitful USAR Schools Program.

This support, and the resulting contact with the Reserve officers who participate in the program, are outstanding examples of the "One Army concept" in being.

Lawson Units Cited With Annual Awards

Annual awards for unit achievements were presented to Lawson Army Aviation Command organizations recently by Col. Lewis W. Leeney, Lawson commander.

All awards were made based on results of monthly competitions within the command.

Major Charles M. Honour Jr., commander of the 1st Aviation Company, received the Outstanding Transport Fixed Wing Crew Member Award earned by Sp5 Park B. Williams, and the Outstanding Vehicle Operator Award. The driver who qualified for the vehicle award was Sp4 Charles McKenzie.

The 19th Transportation Company, commanded by Major Garmon O. Aure, was presented two awards, the Outstanding Cargo Rotary Wing Crew Member Award for crew chief SP5 Erskine E. Clement, and the Outstanding Supply Room Award. Clement won the monthly crew member award five times during 1960, and the unit won the supply room award four times in earning the permanent annual plaques.

The Outstanding Rotary Wing Crew Member award was won by 31st Transportation Company personnel several times throughout the year, and was permanently awarded to Capt. R. C. Barnes Jr., company commander.

An award for the Outstanding Day Room was conferred on the 94th Transportation Company, and received by its commander, Major William F. Poncavage.

Headquarters and Headquarters Detachment, LAAC, commanded by Capt. Lester F. McSorley, earned the Outstanding Fixed Wing Crew Award, which its personnel took 11 times in the 12-month period.

Engineers Test Turbine Tractor

(AFPS) — Army Engineers at Fort Belvoir are testing a gas turbine-powered tractor, one of the first military applications of turbine-powered earthmoving and construction equipment.

The tractor, a standard rubbertired Caterpillar, has been modified to accomodate the turbine, which weighs about 600 pounds compared to 5,000 pounds for the original diesel engine.

A maximum rating of 200 horsepower has been developed in the engine.

More soldiers may be in for new chevrons during March as a quota for some 17,564 temporary enlisted promotions have gone out Army-wide for hikes in grades E-4 through E-9. This is the largest quota in the past six months, and tops the February allocations by some 2,900. Authorizations by grade are 168 to E-9; 546 to E-8; 671 to E-7; 1,003 to E-6; 4,227 to E-5; and 10,849 to E-4. The March list of overage MOS's, not eligible for promotions, shows little fluctuation with about the same MOS's in the deep freeze as for the past few months.

Aviation School Honored for Development

The Institute of the Aerospace Sciences recently honored the Combat Development Office of the Army Aviation School for its outstanding work in the field of helicopter development. The honor was accepted by the school's commandant during the 29th annual meeting of the IAS in New York.

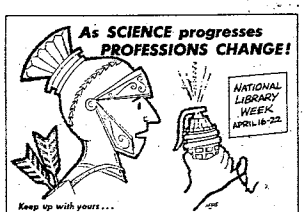
Secretary Asks Military to Cut Dollar Flow

Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara has urged military and civilian dependents overseas to spend $80 per year per person less in "consumer durable goods" as their part in helping to curb the flow of gold dollars into foreign markets. Mr. McNamara said "we estimate that a reduction of approximately $80 per individual per year will accomplish the same savings as the dependency restrictions would have accomplished in the calendar year 1961."

Army Strength is Down Slightly

The Army strength on the last day of December was listed as 876,662 which is a drop of a little over 1,200 from the end of the previous month. The total Armed Forces strength for the end of 1960 was 2,492,708, a decrease of over 7,000 from the end of November figure.

Missile Sales to Hit the 102 Million Mark



Army missiles and missile components, $102,302,000 worth, will be supplied to other than Army "customers" during this fiscal year. The ordnance missile command at Redstone Arsenal has procurement contracts in that amount for the Air Force, Navy, Marine Corps, National Aeronautics and Space Administration, NATO, MAG, and the Defense Atomic Security Agency.

New Deputy Chief of Information Named

Brig. Gen. Frederick C. Weyand has been selected to become the Army's Deputy Chief of Information, effective in April. He is presently serving as Chief of Staff, Communications Zone, USAREUR. Gen. Weyand is a native of California and entered the Army in 1941. During World War II he served in the China-Burma-India Theater and in the Korean conflict he participated in five battle campaigns.

This Week's Column Closer

A WAC colonel and her husband are strictly for the birds! But its all in fun and part of a hobby they took up some five years ago. The original effort amounted to a handful of bread crumbs. Today the backyard of their home near Washington, D.C., is a sanctuary containing a bird feeder equipped with devices to keep out squirrels and rabbits, and a bird bath with a thermostatic control defroster. They claim their birds are probably the only ones in the area that have drinking water and take baths in sub-freezing weather. Seventy-four varieties of birds have been counted since the feeder was installed.

Editorial

Hobbies Offer Much

(AFPS) It's just two centuries ago that the beginnings of the Industrial Revolution in England laid the groundwork for what we call today the American way of life. That life is rooted in our inventive and productive genius. We tell ourselves that Americans never had it so good; we wonder how people 100 years ago got along without the comforts, the gadgets we take for granted.

But the American of 1860 still enjoyed one deep and basic satisfaction that many of us are strangers to—the creative pleasure of making things with our hands. That satisfaction is as old as the human race; you will find it reflected in the handicrafts of the ancients, in the carvings of primitive jungle tribes, in the home-produced furniture and utensils of early America. It is the satisfaction denied the shopper of today who needs only enough money to indulge his every whim. What he can never buy, alas, is the sense of achievement that yesteryear's craftsman felt.

Yet there are encouraging signs in the current "do it yourself" trend that Americans are realizing that something went out of their way of life as mass production took over to provide all their material needs. In this trend, the Armed Forces are decidedly in the swim, for the Hobby Shop programs at military installations is one of the most popular of Special Services recreational activities — especially in the winter months when most outdoor sports are off the calendar.

The man who works with his hands — building furniture, designing in metal or ceramics — is the relaxed man, intent on creating something that will be peculiarly his own. He needn't be an artist at his hobby — a soundly-built barbecue pit in the back yard can give him the same satisfaction that a master craftsman experiences when he completes a unique carving. He — no one else — did it. It can't be bought anywhere; it wasn't fooled up to slide off an assembly line. In this age of outpour, knowing that gives a man fellowship with the resourceful generations who lived full, happy lives without mail order catalogues or department stores.

(Editor's Note: This is the third in a series of articles to be presented in this column concerning Federal Income Tax.)

A tax saving which is sometimes overlooked by the average taxpayer is the sick pay exclusion. The Internal Revenue Code allows a deduction of pay received during periods of sickness or hospitalization, subject to certain limitations.

DEDUCTIBLE PAY

If an individual is sick in quarters, pay received after the first seven days of sickness is deductible, up to $100 a week.

If the individual's absence is due to injury, then all payments for loss of wages (subject to the $100 per week limitation), including those attributable to the first seven days of absence, are exempt from tax whether or not he is hospitalized.

If during the individual's absence, he is hospitalized for more than one day, the entire amount of pay received (subject to the $100 per week limitation) is deductible; including amounts received during the convalescent period.

COMPUTATION

The computation for servicemen is figured on a seven-day week; therefore, the limit of the deduction is $14.28 per day. Any pay received over and above this amount qualifying in all other respects, is fully taxable.

The amount computed is deducted from gross income by entering it on line six of Form 1040, or line three if Form 1040W is used, and subtracting it from W-2 wages. The short Form 1040's cannot be used when a Sick Pay Deduction is claimed. The official instructions for Form 1040 and 1040W require a statement to be attached in support of a claimed exclusion for sick pay.

Fort Benning Form 162, which the soldier may obtain from his personnel section, is recommended for this purpose. The finance office will verify the amount of pay received during the period of sickness. Only taxable pay is subject to exclusion and nontaxable allowances may not be excluded.

The Judge Says...

Chaplain's Corner

By Chaplain (1st Lt.) Mace T. Jett, Jr.

"Then they cried unto the Lord in their trouble, and He saved them out of their Distresses" Psalm 107:28.

In the hour of crisis man calls for God. This is the instinctive cry of the human heart when in any kind of distress or trouble. For in the deepest distresses of our hearts all earthly help fails. On the human level there is no saving help.

As someone has said, "When the outlook is bad, try the uplook." The uplook never fails. Deep down in man's heart there is a place for God and in a time of crisis, this elemental need wells up to the surface.

Of course this is not the ideal state of things. The religion of Jesus Christ is not merely a kind of emergency religion, a kind of agency to answer men's SOS calls.

We need something more than stress and storm to draw us near to God. It is right that we should pray the prayer of John Donne, once Dean of St. Paul's, "From needing danger to be good, deliver us, O Lord." For the goodness that is based upon fear and danger is not the highest good. Rather we love Him because He first loved us.

Out of the crises of life have come to us some of God's choicest gifts. To us all there come days of trouble and sorrow. Dark days come as well as bright. We have all found ourselves in the Valley of Humiliation.

But as we look upon these years we see them with different eyes. We see how those difficult days put more fiber into our being. We see how they deepened our faith in God and made better men and women of us.

Out of the worst comes the best to those who place themselves in God's gracious hands. For in His loving kindness, purposes these experiences unto our good.

Those who place themselves in God's care and keeping can face the crises of life, with a tranquil mind. And surely amidst the ups and downs of our day this is what we need. The tranquil mind is the gift of Christ who said, "My peace I give unto you. Not as the world giveth give I unto you. Let not your heart be troubled; ye believe in God, believe also in me."

A contented mind, a clear conscience, a heart at rest, these are the gifts of God in Christ. And blessed is the man or woman who has them in these troubled days.

Army Delegated Medical Fitness Responsibility

(AFPS)—A revised and uniform set of medical standards for enlistment and retention in the Armed Forces has been announced by the Department of Defense.

The revision is the first major overhaul of medical fitness standards since World War II. It reflects advances in medical science and examination techniques. It is designed to minimize the number of individuals who must be separated for medical reasons during the early part of their military service.

Primary responsibility for administering the new standards has been delegated to the Army.

Tuesday Evening Library Concert

The Stereophonic record concert at the Main Post Library next Tuesday evening will feature "Operatic Highlights for Orchestra 5," and "Great Waltzes — Andre Kostelanetz and his orchestra."

AT THE Movies

FLAMING STAR, Starring Elvis Presley, Barbara Eden, Steve Forrest, Dolores Del Rio, and John McIntire. Playing next Wednesday only, shows will begin at 2, 4, 6:30 and 8:30. The flick reaches a climax when the warring Kiowas ask Elvis and his Indian mother to side with them in the battle against the settlers.

THE MAGNIFICENT SEVEN, Starring Yul Brynner, Steve McQueen, and Eli Wallach. Seven professional gunfighters are hired by the unarmed citizens of a small Mexican village as protection against a marauding band of outlaws. Together they stand off 40 bandits who ride into town unaware of the deadly ambush awaiting them.

THE SINS OF RACHEL CADE, Starring Angie Dickinson and Peter Finch. Angie is a beautiful woman in her mid twenties who should be married and settled down. Instead, she is a spinster missionary in the Belgian Congo. Her desperate struggle between God's work and the weakness of her own flesh provide the thematic material for this film.

Crain Hall Presents Orchestra and Show

NANCY PAREE

DEAN HUDSON

Crain Hall, the Non-Commissioned Officers' Open Mess, is bringing Dean Hudson's orchestra and show to post on March 7.

Hudson, the orchestra leader, plays the trumpet, and comes by that talent naturally. His father was a trumpet player with the John Philip Sousa band and Dean and his two brothers took it up too. The senior Mr. Hudson is now directing a school band in Vienna, Ga.

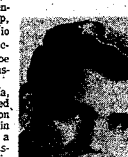
Nancy Paree, a New Hampshire product, started singing with the orchestra two years ago. She was formerly with the Warner Robbins Air Force Band at Warner Robbins Air Force Base.



The bandsmen all wear bright red, with Dean's formal black and white striking a contrasting note. Not only do they play for dancing but dish up a very neat floor show.

Among the offerings are a musical cocktail bubbling with old and new tunes and a take-off of great bands of past and present, rendering the Dean Hudson theme song, 'Moon Over Miami'.

The show features the Hudson Glee Club, The Dixieland Six, The Guest Maestro Contest, Miss Paree, and the Orchestra.

Masquers Names Director For Play, 'Dear Charles'

PFC DEDARIO

The Masquers, Fort Benning's little theatre group, has chosen Pfc Vince DeDario as director for its next production, "Dear Charles," to be given April 7 and 8 at the Masquers Playhouse.

A native of Elkhart, Indiana, Pfc DeDario was employed there by a television station and appeared frequently in summer stock. He spent a summer at the Perry-Mansfield School of the Theater in Colo., where he appeared in "Kismet" and other productions.

He also has three years of study at the Pasadena Playhouse, Calif., where he appeared in more than 30 stage productions as well as movies and on television.

The play which Pfc DeDario will direct is a gay comedy set in contemporary France.

The Masquers Playhouse is located in building 1045 in the old hospital area.

STARS OF 'MERCHANT OF VENICE' Carol Keefe and John Knight Appear Tuesday

At Jordan High

Touring 'Players' Will Perform Here

Players Incorporated, of Washington, D. C., now touring America and Europe for the 12th consecutive year, will give two performances in Columbus February 21 and 22 on the stage of Jordan High School auditorium.

On Tuesday, February 21, the Players will present Shakespeare's "The Merchant of Venice," and the following night, "The Oresteia" of Aeschylus. Curtain time is 8 o'clock both nights. The Players are appearing here for the second year under the sponsorship of Pacelli High School.

One of the most popular and best-loved of Shakespeare's plays, "The Merchant of Venice" is the kind of handsomely costumed, colorfully staged production for which the Players have become famous. Critics have called it "a rollicking production, handsomely mounted with beautiful costumes and brilliantly played by a buoyant young company.

Players Incorporated . . . They never forget the fact that a Shakespeare comedy is meant to be funny."

The Players' version of "The Oresteia," a masterpiece of Greek tragedy, was presented on network television in 1959 by "Omnibus." The three plays of the Oresteian trilogy have been adapted into one brilliant evening of theater by Leo Brady. The trilogy was first produced in the year 458 B.C. It is thought to be the last work of the great tragic poet and is generally ranked in the forefront of Greek tragedy. In addition to its dramatic value, it is remarkable also for the profound theological and moral concepts which inform it.

Brooks Atkinson said of the Players' "Oresteia:" "Since all of the actors have excellent voices and move easily in the grave rhythm of Greek drama, the performance conveys the horror of one of the mightiest stories ever written." Walter Kerr praised the "mesmerizing choral work . . . that rarest of all theatrical birds, a production of Greek tragedy during which you wait eagerly for the chorus to speak."

Tickets are on sale at Kirven's, Metcalf's and Humes Music Company in downtown Columbus and will be sold at the box office the night of performance. There are no reserved seats.

Thursday, March 9 is the date for the Woman's Club bus trip to Atlanta. Mrs. E. Cundiff is taking reservations.

Ever hear about the lady who called long-distance to ask Mr. Goren's secretary in New York a question concerning bridge, then got billed fifty-dollars for professional services rendered? Anyone interested in intermediate or regular bridge lessons, Gorenstyle, may contact Mrs. Donald English. Mrs. James H. Mc Daniel won a silver trophy recently as the outstanding student in beginner bridge. Mrs. Cyril Sterner, vice-president of the Woman's Club, made the presentation. Mr. Duff of New York City came out to post recently to visit the ladies of Ann Roberts' charm course. A hair-stylist, in town for just a short visit, he commented on individual hairdos. Mary Anne Woodyard won the doorprize of free permanent and styling by him.

Other ladies volunteering their time to worthwhile projects are Mrs. Phillip Kaplan, chairman of the sewing and tailoring classes beginning Tuesday, February 28, and Mrs. Don E. Sharp, who will give children's art lessons on Saturday mornings. It might be interesting to see a showing of their art-work someday.

Mrs. John B. Holt is still taking contributions and loans of household items for our Allied visitors. She is always glad to hear from anyone interested in sponsoring any individual visitors, and she thanks those who have already helped.

Basil Rathbone's appearance is the Woman's Club fund-raising project for its welfare program. This program includes scholarships for outstanding high school students, post youth activities, the purchasing of school library books, trophy cases, The Infantry Museum, Army Relief, Distaff Foundation, the pediatric clinic at Martin Army Hospital, free coffee and donuts monthly for ambulatory patients at the hospital, and individual welfare cases, such as the hiring of a speech teacher for a young victim of aphasia in Columbus recently, with successful results.

These and many more projects keep the ladies busy. Now the ladies are busy selling tickets for Basil Rathbone's visit. Tickets will be on sale at Kirven's in Columbus this week, as well as at the Main Officer's Mess, and Post Theatre . . during showtime at the end of the month.

Pat's postcript is about the circus that was in Columbus, which I'm sure many of you witnessed. The attractive feminine cast (by the dozens) led me to believe that Dad enjoyed it as well as Junior!

New Hair Styles Shown at Lunch For Weapons Department Ladies

The Custer Terrace Officers' Annex was turned into a "Valentine for Cinderella" when the ladies of The Infantry School's Weapons Department held their monthly luncheon.

A heart and cupid trimmed tree welcomed each guest; and a lovely arrangement of fresh flowers accented by red styro-foam hearts and cupid invited everyone to enjoy themselves.

Each table featured a red, white and gold carriage with hearts and cupids as centerpieces; and at each place was a red and white Valentine doll.

Mrs. C. W. Harris, manager of the beauty salon in Baker Village, presented the program. The models were Mrs. W. A. Smith, Mrs. William L. Cole, Mrs. Richard M. Gecoma, Mrs. Santiago A. Garcia, Mrs. Wilbur V. Rose, and Mrs. W. B. Parker.

Mrs. Chester M. Freudendorf introduced the honored guests, Mrs. A. D. Surles Jr., and Mrs. Bernard G. Teeters.

Other guests were Mrs. Vincent McCauley, Mrs. C. T. Fleming, and Mrs. Alton Hoyle. The ladies of the Mortar Committee, headed by Mrs. Thomas B. Ross Jr., were hostesses for the luncheon.

Mrs. William D. Guinn and Mrs. Santiago A. Garcia were in charge of decorations.

Communications Ladies Hear 'Decorating' Talk

Home decorating was the theme for the February meeting of the Communication Department Officers' wives luncheon. The meeting was held in the Normandy Room at the Main Officers' Open Mess.

Mr. Charles Duck gave a talk on home decorating. He used fabrics, color charts and pictures to assist in his demonstration and stressed the importance of coordinating color and fabrics in home furnishing.

Mr. Duck's presentation was preceded by a social hour and luncheon. In keeping with the program a home decorating theme was used. Tables displayed miniature furniture and ranch houses.

Hostesses for the event were Mrs. H. B. Edwards and Mrs. James Chriss.

"Getting to Know You"—Monthly Lunch Theme

The Command and Staff Department Ladies monthly luncheon was held last week at the Country Club with ladies of the Advanced Tactics, Intelligence and Operations Committee as hostesses, with Mrs. Ralph Whitt in charge.

Mrs. David Hunter made the clever "Getting to Know You" invitations. The ladies were invited to chat and "get to know" one another in place of the regular program.

The tables were decorated with lovely valentine centerpieces made by Mrs. Thomas Scovill and Mrs. Leander Hathaway.

Guests were Mrs. L. A. Walsh Jr.; Mrs. Blair, mother of Mrs. Richard Keyes; Dr. Andrews, mother of Mrs. John McLain, Mrs. Paul Ferguson and Mrs. Eugene Fisk were on the reservations committee.

Serving were Mrs. Francis McArthur and Mrs. Woodrow Laws.

Jenni Johnson on Etiquette

DEAR JENNI: I appreciate your reference to neglected RSVP. Please discuss this further. THANK YOU.

DEAR THANK YOU: I'm shocked at the number of people who think nothing of this breach of etiquette. Anyone who mentions even ever so casually that they expect you at a particular time and place must be given an acceptance or regret. And the sooner the better. To wait 'til the morning of the affair is rude. If you cannot accept positively until later you should decline at once and explain why.

Perhaps your hostess will tell you she can hold her guest list open and to call her as soon as you do know. On the other hand she may have expected you to be the fourth for bridge and of course could not risk a last minute regret. Whatever media is used to extend the invitation is always correct for the response.

A written invitation calls for a written response, unless a phone number is written in under the RSVP. An engraved invitation can be accepted in long hand or by sending your calling card and writing on the card "accept" or "regret."

The Surgeon Says

Parents Cause Of Delinquency

BY CAPT. JACK H. SCOTT

It seems that nowadays almost everyone is interested in the problem of juvenile delinquency. Many studies are being made to learn more about what causes juvenile delinquency and how it can be most effectively dealt with.

The Police Department of Houston, Tex., feels that the relationship between the parent and the child is extremely important. To the parents of each delinquent who runs afoul of the law, the following rules are given:

Begin with infancy to give the child everything he wants. In this way he will grow up believing the world owes him a living. The material gifts may help ease your guilty conscience for not having given the child the love, understanding and support that he really needs.

Go out of your way to praise him in his presence to all the neighbors; show how much smarter he is than the neighbors' children. With the exaggerated idea of his own importance that will follow, he will be well prepared to abuse other peoples' rights.

When he picks up "bad words" or "dirty words," laugh at him. Then that will make him think he is "cute." He will then run off and pick up some other words that will really put him in a class by himself.

Give him all the spending money he wants. Never let him earn his own. His practice of living off other people's money then will be carried on by his thievery.

Satisfy every craving of the child for food, drinks and everything that has to do with the gratifying every essential desire. He will be well prompted to later impose his unwanted desires on others.

Pick Up everything after him, his shoes, his books and his clothes. Do everything for him so that he will be well experienced in throwing burdens on others.

Let him read anything he wants. Have no concern whatsoever for what goes into his mind. Provide him with sterile paper for his lips, but let his brain drink out of any dirty container for words and ideas.

Never give him any spiritual training until he is 21, and then let him decide for himself. By the same logic, never teach him the English language. Maybe when he is old enough he will want to speak Bantu.

Avoid the use of the word wrong. It may develop in the child a guilt complex. This will prepare him to believe that when he is punished later on for stealing cars or assaulting women that "society is against him" and he is being "persecuted."

Take his part against policemen, teachers and neighbors. They are all prejudiced against your child.

When he gets into real trouble always defend yourself and say "I never could do anything with him."

In a more serious vein however, it is gratifying to note that only a very small percentage of American youth ever receive the obnoxious classification of "Juvenile Delinquent."

Unfortunately this small group are the ones that receive most of the publicity and consequently, a "Mack the Knife" type version of the typical American teenager emerges before the public eye.

It certainly behooves every person, especially parents to do everything possible to help prevent and eliminate this terrible blight on our modern society.

Judy & Tracy Harrison's teen talk...

Columbus' annual science fair is being held today and tomorrow at the Municipal Auditorium. Many students from our local high schools will take part in this challenge of 'mind over matter'.

PACELLI

Pacelli High School will again present the Players Incorporated February 21-22. The plays this year will be "The Merchant of Venice" and "Orestein". These famous plays will be presented at Jordan High School and tickets will be sold by Pacellians up to the date of the plays.

Retired; But Pass A Souvenir

(AFPS) — It's a great feeling to be getting all spruced up to go on your first three-day pass. Recently an Air Force officer retired here with a still-vivid memory of that feeling. He never got to use the pass, but he still keeps it as a souvenir of the Pacific war's curtain-raiser.

Major William P. Bonelli's pass is dated to become effective 7:30 a.m., December 7, 1941, and the reason he never used it is that he was then stationed at Hickam Field, Hawaii.

He was in the barracks, elated at his upcoming liberty in Honolulu, when the roar of low-flying planes split the Sunday morning calm.

The pass was forgotten. He spent the day and night on guard duty along with other troops bracing for the expected Japanese invasion of Oahu that never came.

A Mardi Gras Dance was held last week at PHS. A queen and king presided over the gala affair. Nominees from Benning were Carole Bennett and Jean LeVert for queen and Austin Yerkes for king.

Catholic Book Week is to be held at PHS February 19-25. A poster contest will take place with the theme topic of "Unity in Faith through Reading."

Juniors at Pacelli will be measured for their class rings on February 20.

Spring training for football will start next week.

BAKER

With hearts as appropriate decorations, a Valentine Dance was held last Saturday night at the Naval Reserve in Columbus. Kathy King was selected as an attendant to the Court.

BHS will present the Shakespeare classic, "Romeo and Juliet," sometime in March.

In basketball, BHS has scored many wins to add to its previous record. Pep rallies at Baker have added much to the already high school spirit.

COLUMBUS

CHS claims five finalists in the National Merit Scholarship examination. Kathy Durham and Charles Torres were among the group of finalists notified of this earlier this week.

The drama club at CHS will present its first play, the famous three-act comedy, "Tea House of the August Moon." Sam McDowell takes on the part of the humorous 'Sakini'. Tracy Harrison, president of the club, will direct the play.

The CHS Blue Devils conducted the Bi-City championship for the '60-'61 basketball season. Jim McAllister and Jerry Sonich help to make up the team.

SOCIAL NOTES

JADA is planning a talent show in April for funds to support their foster child which they are sponsoring through the Foster Child Plan. Mar-Margaret McGraw, chairman of the project, reports that progress is coming along fine and they are predicting a full-filled production. Tryouts will be held tomorrow.

Career Course Officers Hear Talk on Middle-East Affairs

Edwin M. Wright, head of the Department of Career Studies of the Foreign Service Institute, U. S. Department of State, will address officer career classes at The Infantry School today.

"Psychological, Sociological and Political Situation in the Middle East" will be his topic at 10 a.m. in Theater 1.

Born in Iran of American parents, Wright is a graduate of Wooster (Ohio) College and McCormick Theological Seminary in Chicago. In 1921 he returned to Iran as principal of Presbyterian Missionary High School and, except for completing work for a master's degree from Columbia University in 1930, remained in this position for 16 years.

In 1937 Wright became a lecturer in history for Columbia University and research analyst for the Office of Strategic Services.

He served on active duty in the Army from 1942 to 1946, attaining the rank of lieutenant colonel. During his military service, he attended the American University School of Oriental Studies in Cairo, Egypt, receiving an honorary doctor of humanities degree from the school in 1945.

Wright has been in the State Department since World War II, initially serving as a special assistant for UN affairs. He next was an adviser on Intelligence to the assistant secretary of state for Near Eastern, South Asian and African affairs.

In 1952, he was named officer in charge of Turkish affairs. Three years later he became special assistant to the chief of the Foreign Service Institute. He has held his present position since 1957.

In addition to being the author of several books and articles, Wright is active in organizing the Voice of America broadcasts.

Signal Installs Phone Service At Rifle Range

Telephone service was made available February 9 to eight ranges of the Malone Trainfire Range Complex.

Post Signal of the Infantry Center provided the cable and equipment, and the Wire Cable Section of Headquarters Company 122nd Signal Battalion under Sergeant First Class Curtiss Dills Jr. provided the personnel to install the new dial phone system.

Within a week's time the team installed line poles, five miles of Spiral four cable and eight dial telephones on the range complex.

The telephone service was installed primarily for safety control on the ranges in case an emergency should arise while the range is in use.

Patterson Leads OVUREP Bound 11th to Far East

By 11th Inf PIO

Colonel George D. Patterson assumed command of the Army's first OVUREP unit on 15 February 1960. He left the position of G1 (Personnel), at Main Post, to take command of the "Wanderers."

Colonel Patterson, a veteran of World War II in Europe, where he served with the 30th Infantry Division, has a distinguished military career. A lieutenant Colonel at the end of World War II, he was integrated in the Regular Army in July of 1946. He is a graduate of the United State Army Infantry School basic course and advance course, the Command and General Staff college, and the Army War College.

Colonel Patterson held important command and staff positions in the 30th Infantry Division in World War II, in the 1st Infantry Division in Europe during the period 1948-1951, at Department of the Army in 1952-1954, in the United States Military Assistance Advisory Group in Iran from 1955-1957, and at the United States Army Infantry Center here at Fort Benning prior to his assignment as commander of the 11th Infantry.

A native of North Carolina, from where he entered active service, Colonel Patterson has received, among many decorations and awards, the Army Commendation Ribbon, the Bronze Star Medal, the French Croix De Guerre with palm, and Belgian Fourragere.

11th Marks Changeover Of BG Colors

The end of the United States Army's first OVUREP (Overseas Unit Replacement) stateside training was marked yesterday afternoon in an 11th Infantry change of colors ceremony at Kelley Hill. The ceremony took place at 2 p.m. on Eisenhower Field.

To signify the official changeover, Colonel George D. Patterson, commanding officer of the old 11th Infantry, passed the battle group's colors to Colonel John E. Arthur, who commands the new 11th, the Army's sixth OVUREP cycle.

Reviewing officer at the ceremony was Major General Hugh P. Harris, commanding general, United States Army Infantry Center, Colonel Ernest C. Dameron, deputy brigade commander, of the 2nd Infantry Division, was commander of troops.

Yesterday's ceremony climaxed 33 weeks of various training the 11th Infantry has undertaken as a part of its OVUREP mission. The new 11th Infantry is scheduled to begin its training April 9.

On February 19, Colonel Patterson and personnel of the first OVUREP unit are to depart Fort Benning for Oakland, Calif., where they will embark for Korea.

March 2

Deadline Set For Entering College Course

Students enrolling for the first time in college must file their admission credentials no later than March 2, 1961. Students who are at present attending college may enroll for the Spring Quarter through March 22, 1961 at their convenience in the Kelley Hill Education Center.

Enrollment for new students of the 2nd Infantry Division will be conducted at the Sand Hill Education Center (Bldg. 3323) from 7:30 a.m. through 11:30 a.m. February 20 through March 2, 1961 and at the Kelley Hill Education Center (Bldg. 9010) from 12:30 p.m. through 4:30 p.m. February 20 through March 2, 1961.

Over 1,200 Recruits Participate In Training for 1st OVUREP Unit

By 11th Inf PIO

On April 25, 1960, over twelve hundred recruits began their first day of training which would eventually lead us to our goal—to be combat ready by December 3, 1960. Colonel George D. Patterson, battle group commander, explained to us later that afternoon that after ours was the first Battle Group to participate in the newly devised OVUREP (Overseas Unit Replacement) program. A unit capable of standing beside seasonal soldiers, in any area, in an incredible period of thirty-two weeks.

The records of both the Second Division and the Eleventh Infantry were brought to our attention. There obviously was a tremendous reputation to uphold.

At the completion of each cycle of training (Basic Combat Training, Advanced Individual Training, Basic Unit Training, and Advanced Unit Training), Colonel Patterson gathered us together and told us of our progress.

During BCT we learned the tools with which the Infantryman operates. For some of us the M-1 was the first weapon encountered. The close of Basic Training saw nearly 100 per cent qualify. It was the beginning of a long line of successes for the 11th Infantry. We got our first taste in the use of the map, compass and of

OVUREP Unit Marks History as Eventful

By 11th Inf PIO

The present 11th Infantry of the Regular Army can trace its entity back to the Presidential decree signed by President Lincoln at the beginning of the Civil War in 1861. However, as far back as 1798 and 1812, and 1847, certain regiments of the army bore the designation of 11th Infantry. These organizations, however, were militia or temporary organizations.

Of its Civil War record it is known to have been first a part of the Army of the Ohio and later a part of the Army of the Cumberland, taking part in such battles as Shiloh, The Kentucky Campaign, Chickamauga, Murfreesboro, The March Through Georgia, and the Battle of Atlanta.

Following the Civil War, the 11th became known as the "Wandering" 11th. Between 1866 and 1920 the First and Third Battalion combined changed stations a total of 84 times, thirteen of which were spent on foreign soil. The regimental colors have flown to the breezes under the sun of nine different nations: Cuba, Philippine Islands, Mexico, France, Belgium, Iceland, The British Isles, Germany, and Luxembourg.

The 11th's next important move occurred on April 24, 1918, when the regiment sailed for France, and by May had completed the long hike to Camp Pontanazon near Chaumont, France, where it joined the 5th Division. The 11th then took part in the Vosges Mountains, St. Mihiel, and Meuse-Argonne offensives. In the second phase of the Meuse-Argonne offensive, the regiment forced brilliant crossing of the Meuse River near Dun, under intensive artillery and machine gun fire, gained a bridgehead across the river and started the Germans on the retreat.

Top Div Officers Picked For Service in OVUREP

By 11th Inf PIO

To staff Colonel George D. Patterson's 11th Infantry when it was organized as an OVUREP unit last year, the Second to None Division reached into its own ranks to pick officers with experience and outstanding records of service with the Division.

The "A" cadre included five key staff officers for the new unit. To the 11th Infantry as executive officer went Lieutenant Colonel Charles K. Blum, who had joined the Division overseas in Germany in July of 1957.

To the position of Adjutant (S1) came Major Raymond V. Upton, who moved to the OVUREP unit from an assignmen in the G3 (Operations and Training) office, where he had served for a number of years. Major Upton's service with the Division began in Fort Riley, Kans., prior even to the Division's move to Germany.

Another member of the G3 staff, Major Joseph Hamilton Jr., came to the 11th Infantry as S3. Major Hamilton had also been with the division in its Fort Riley days and had served as S3 of one of its Infantry Regiments in Germany.

Two real old time professional soldiers from the 87th Infantry — Major Joseph H. Paus and Major Fred W. Rief — also moved to staff positions in the 11th Infantry. Major Paus, a veteran airborne officer, became S2 (Intelligence) of the Army's first OVUREP unit. Major Reif became S4 (supply).

CEREMONIES . . . Major General Francis T. Pachler, commanding general of the 7th Infantry Division in Korea, visited Fort Benning during training of the 1st Battle Group, 11th Infantry. The Wanderers conducted their future commanding general on a training inspection tour and then, on June 29, staged a battle group review for him on Essabagger Field, Kelley Hill. Here he is shown inspecting the formation, accompanied by Colonel George D. Patterson, commanding officer of the 11th Infantry

HONORS . . . More than 1000 Infantry men and seven General Officers, including former Third United States Army Commander, Lt. General Herbert B. Powell, joined in the ceremony July 6, 1960 honoring Lt. Ralph A. Hardee. Lt. Hardee was awarded the DSC posthumously for extraordinary heroism in France during WW II. His mother, Mrs. Reba Hardee, was present and unveiled the monument which stands in front of the unit's Headquarters building.

OVUREP System Provides Army Doctrine Support

By 11th Inf. PIO

The Overseas Unit Replacement System (OVUREP) has as its objective the provision of an in-being system which will provide peace time support of the Army doctrine of war time unit replacement.

In concept, OVUREP envisages the manning and training of units in the United States. After reaching a satisfactory state of training, these units will be deployed overseas to replace similar type units. While the Army regulation prescribing this system is broad enough to cover the formation and training of any type unit, currently the system includes five Infantry battle groups— three here at Fort Benning with the 2nd Infantry Division and two with the 1st Infantry Division.

The 1st Battle Group, 11th Infantry, was the first unit organized and trained under the concept of this system. The Wanderers constitute in a very real sense a test of the system.

OVUREP has been likened by some observers to the GYROSCOPE program. Many dissimilarities exist, however. GYROSCOPE units moved to Europe and included units as large as a division. OVUREP units currently in the program will move to the Far East Command and none is larger than an Infantry battle group.

Families of GYROSCOPE unit personnel eligible to move their dependents overseas moved to foreign shores with their sponsors. No dependents will accompany the OVUREP units. GYROSCOPE units initially were programmed to move back and forth between stations in Europe and the United States. The OVUREP unit will have a life of two years; upon return to the United States from the overseas station, regular Army personnel will disperse to many different assignments throughout the nation, while AUS personnel, having finished their two-year obligatory service, will be discharged. A point to be noted is that the two-year life span of an OVUREP unit is geared to the two-year period of service of the AUS man.

3 Awarded EI Badges At 11th Inf.

By 11th Inf PIO

For the first time since the 2nd Infantry Division was reorganized in 1958 it has awarded the Expert Infantry Badge to Division personnel.

The three officers of the 1st Battle Group, 11th Infantry, were presented the badge by Brigadier General William L. Hardick, who has assumed command of the 2nd Division during the temporary absence of Maj. General Gibb.

Receiving the awards were:

Lieutenant Edward W. Nidever, Company C

Lieutenant John D. Purdy, Combat Support Company

Lieutenant Jon N. Schuster of Company C.

In order to receive this badge the men had to pass rigorous physical and mental tests.

Some of the fields they were tested in were First Aid, Military Intelligence, Chemical, Biological and Radiological Warfare, physical fitness and military bearing and courtesy.

The test was administered by the Division proficiency test committee.

Records Set By 11th Inf; Proved Ability

By 11th Inf PIO

Units of the 1st Battle Group, 11th Infantry, established enviable records as they successfully passed Army Training Tests at squad, section, platoon, company and battle group level during the past year.

The 11th Infantry itself obtained a resounding 96.9 score on the Battle Group test. All units, staff sections and commanders performed in a superior manner to contribute to this high over-all score for the unit.

Captain Joseph L. Stallings piloted Company E to a score of 94.7 on the rifle company training test, a score which was high for the five rifle companies. Company E also had the highest rated rifle platoon, when its 1st Platoon, under Lieutenant Lee H. Hall, finished with a 98.4 score.

Company B had the high weapons platoon score. Lt. Thomas W. Cotton's platoon rang up 98.7 per cent when the shooting was over.

The highest score for an 81-mm mortar section was obtained by the men in Company C, who finished with a 93, while the highest score of any 81mm mortar squad in the mortar squad of Company A, with a score of 94.8.

Insignia 'Sings' Of Many Battles Since 1st in '63

The distinctive insignia of the 1st Battle Group, 11th Infantry is the Shield.

The shield is blue, the Infantry color, and carries: (1) the castle from the arms of Spain for the War with Spain; (2) Satanta's "arrow" to show the Indian Wars (the most important Indian campaign of the Regiment was against the Kiowas, Comanches and Cheyenne in 1874). Satanta was a noted Kiowa chief who died just prior to this campaign.

His "arrow" was really a spear with feathers on the end and a handle; (3) crossed kampilan and bolo to show engagements against the Moros of Mindanao and the Filipinos of the Visayas respectively; (4) a chief of honorable augmentation for World War I, bearing the cross of the ancient Lords of Dun to commemorate the crossing of the Meuse River at Dun; (5) the embattled partition, representing the siege of a fortified place, in this case the siege of Chattanooga in 1863; the first engagement of the Regiment (2nd Bn., 15th Inf).

Advance Party Arrives in Korea--Begins Operation

The following transcription was received by the 2nd Infantry Division Information Office Wednesday afternoon.

By PFC Ed Wareman

HQ US 7th INF DIV, KOREA (10) Advance elements of the first unit to arrive in Korea as part of the Overseas Unit Replacement have already begun setting up operations in the 7th Infantry Division.

Arriving at their 2nd Battle Group, 3rd Infantry, Headquarters north of the 38th parallel on February 14, the party of 45 officers and key non-commissioned officer's from the 1st Battle Group, 11th Infantry, 2nd Infantry Division, Fort Benning, Georgia, set about the task of clearing the way for the complete transfer of personnel and equipment within the 3rd Infantry. From now until the arrival of the main body of troops on March 12, this group will become familiar with conditions and problems concerning the new replacements during their initial phase of operation in Korea.

The main administrative burden falls on Lieutenant Colonel James C. Bagley, deputy battle group commander, who will become executive officer of the newly arrived troops. Aiding him is a staff composed of Major Joseph R. Hamilton Jr., plans and operations; Major Fred W. Rief, Logistics, and Captain David J. Schumacher, Intelligence.

These personnel are setting up this first step in a move which will eventually see personnel of every battle group in the "Bayonet" Division replaced by the mass rotation system. The move is not a change of units, but is designed to eliminate the constant change-over of individual personnel in the 7th Infantry Division and to stabilize the Korean tour of duty.

According to Captain David M. Andrews, officer in charge of OVUREP in the 3rd Infantry, one of the major problems is co-ordinating the large scale administrative turnover between the outgoing elements of the present "Old Guard" and the incoming replacements which will fill the 3rd Infantry ranks.

Medical requirements, advance and travel pay, and processing of incoming and outgoing hold baggage are just a few of the many details that have to be taken care of between now and the time that the main body of troops is scheduled to undergo the replacement process, Captain Andrews stated.

Currently the present staff of the 2nd Battle Group, 3rd Infantry, is devoting much of its time to the preparing and reconditioning of vehicles, equipment and billets in preparation for the arrival of the more than 1,000 new troops for the 3rd Infantry.

course the entrenching tool on our first bivouac. We also discovered other "tools", steel wool, wax, the buffer, and found they too had a use in the Army.

Some of our friends left us to start training in various other jobs at the completion of BCT. The jobs they found they were to perform consisted of drivers, radio - telephone operators, tankers, mortar squad members, and 106 squad members—to name a few. Others moved to Headquarters Company and became our clerks, medics and members of the engineer platoon.

Valentine Theme Used For Wives Luncheon

The Officers' Wives Club of the 2nd Infantry Division held its monthly luncheon on Tuesday, February 14 at the Main Officers' Open Mess. Hostesses for the luncheon were the ladies from Division Trains.

The club was decorated on the Valentine theme. The radiators were decorated with three branches hung with paper hearts, arrows and cupids. The head table was centered with a large red heart with pink flowers around it. At either end of the table were hearts made of wire and ruffles. A cupid was suspended from the ceiling over the head table. The hostesses wore name tags made of white doilies and red hearts. Mrs. Benjamin R. Schultze and Mrs. Harris H. Gathey were in charge of the decorations. The name tags were made by Mrs. Mariano Morales.

Mrs. Robert McGraw presided over a short business meeting at which time she introduced the guests Mrs. R. L. Hinson, Mrs. A. H. Dudley Jr., and Mrs. Hazel U. Scudder, who is Superintendent of Schools at the United States Army Infantry Center. Mrs. McGraw then introduced Mrs. Curtis F. Livingston, program chairman, who introduced Mrs. A. H. Dudley Jr.

Mrs. Dudley gave a talk on interior decorating and gave many pointers on making your home more lovely with the added touches. She also told us how to go about buying the right furniture. Mrs. Dudley ended her talk by saying, "Last but not least, good things are always good."

The luncheon next month will be hosted by the ladies from 69th Armor.

NEW STAINED GLASS WINDOW FOR CHAPEL
Created by Chaplain Herbert Garrell

Chaplain Garrell Creates Stained Glass Window

By 87th Inf PIO

A new central stained glass window adorns the altar of Kelley Hill Chapel Number One in the 87th Infantry area.

Created by Battle Group Chaplain Lieutenant Herbert Garrell, the artistic work extends from the altar to the ceiling and is composed of various-sized pieces of colored acetate and wood framing. The narrow strips of wood, painted flat black, simulate the leading in traditional stained glass work.

The window is framed in the altar drapes. An electric spotlight behind the altar brings out the rich colors of the acetate panes, and lends the effect of diffused outdoor light coming through a real window.

Chaplain Garrell was assisted in the work on the new window by Specialist Fourth Class Phillip D. Coberly, chaplain's assistant, who joined the 87th Infantry in January from the 1st Infantry.

Ladies Gather, Have Coffee For February

The ladies of the 122nd Signal Battalion met for their monthly coffee at the Lawson Field Officer' Club on Tuesday, February 7. Hostesses were Mrs. Robert P. Ausman and Mrs. William B. Breeding.

Mrs. Gerald Jennings poured the coffee from a table centered with an arrangement of pink gladiolas. The centerpiece was won by Mrs. Samuel C. Creel.

An election of officers was held for the coming six months. Mrs. Gerald Jennings released her job as Scretary to Mrs. Keith E. Clem. Mrs. Charles Nielsen retained the office of Treasurer. Mrs. Charles W. Lowther assumed the office of Reporter from Mrs. John Petorek. Mrs. James M. Hampton remains the Committee Chairman for the coming six months. Reservation Chairman is Mrs. Joe L. Hutchins.

Mrs. Martin Tinker, Jr. was welcomed into the group.

History

For this action, the 11th has chosen November the 5th as Organization Day and adopted the stirring French "Sambre et Meuse" as its Regimental March.

In 1939, the 11th joined the 5th Division at Fort McClellan, Ala., and in 1942 the "Wandering 11th" was on its way to Iceland.

Outposting and defense of the Kejlavik area in Iceland kept the troops busy for 15 months until the regiment moved to England in August, 1943. Late in October the 11th moved into the bleak, wet hills of northern Ireland, where for eight months they trained for combat, and were pronounced ready for any eventuality. On the eve of the departure for the Normandy Beachhead, the regiment was inspected by General Eisenhower and General Patton. General Patton remarked, "This is the fittest, roughest, readiest outfit that I have ever inspected." At midnight on July 4, 1944, the 11th boarded the Transport Excelsior for the voyage to France, and on the Afternoon of July 6th, dropped anchor off the Coast of Normandy.

On February 14, 1960, the 11th Infantry was formally named an OVUREP (Overseas Unit Replacement) unit. It was the first outfit in Army History to train an entire unit, from Basic Combat Training through Advanced Unit Training, and will replace the 2nd Battle Group, 3rd Infantry, a Unit of the 7th Division, now in Korea, by March 1961.

Trophys

M. Lovato and Hardie Virson Jr. won awards for firing first and second places respectively with the Browning Automatic Rifle.

In his graduation address Col. James H. Hayes expressed the pride that each man should have in his self and in the 1st Infantry with the training they have received and bringing them another step nearer to their mission of being "Combat Ready by 22 April 1961."

In completing AIT, the "Semper Primus" unit established record highs for the 1st Infantry in the 2d Infantry Division AIT proficiency tests. The Battle Group 111 MOS test average was 85.7 per cent, while the 112 MOS test average was 83.7 percent. Further evidence of the high degree of training proficiency achieved was shown in the fact that only 13 personnel of the 700 tested failed the examination.

Company A took top line company honors with a 111 MOS test average 91.6 percent and a 112 MOS test average of 85.5 percent.

On January 22 the Battle Group began the fourth phase of its OVUREP cycle, Basic Unit Training. In this phase the fundamentals acquired in AIT will be applied to squad, platoon, and company training.

Gen Hardick Honors CG Match Winners

BY DIV PIO

First place awards in the Commanding General's Championship Matches were presented last Friday afternoon at a division minature review held at Kelley Hill's Essebagger Field.

Receiving the awards for the 9th Infantry, which took first place in the team matches were: Lieutenant Thomas Ginex, rifle team captain; Captain James Bartosh, pistol team captain and Sergeant Richard Blanton, automatic rifle team captain.

Presenting the awards was Brigadier General William L. Hardick, division commander. He congratulated the 9th Infantry, and stated he was assured there was a great deal of competition in the matches although the 9th Infantry seemed to "walk off" with first place honors.

Individual Awards

Receiving awards in individual competition were: Specialist Fifth Class J. L. Ellis, Headquarters Company, 2nd Medium Tank Battalion, 69th Armor, first open winner, rifle; Captain Joseph Smith, Headquarters Detachment, Division Trains, first new shooter, rifle; Chief Warrant Officer Herman Gano, 702nd Ordnance Battalion, first open winner, pistol; Sergeant Richard Bartels, 3rd Reconnaissance Squadron, 7th Cavalry, first new shooter, pistol.

Other Awards

Master Sergeant Donald E. Hilker, division Marksmanship Detachment, was awarded the Distinguished Rifleman Badge as a result of the firing record he attained in the 1960 National Matches, conducted at Camp Perry, Ohio.

Specialist Fourth Class Louis J. Simmons, Headquarters Battery, 1st Hocket Howitzer Battalion, 12th Artillery, was announced as the 2nd Infantry Division Soldier of the Month for January.

Sergeant First Class Thomas W. Borris, of the 9th Infantry and Sergeant First Class George J. Nupp, 2nd Medium Tank Battalion, 69th Armor, were designated 2nd Infantry division Reenlistment Non-Commissioned Officers of the Month for January. Manchus Cop Div. Basketball Crown

Unbeaten 'Firemen' Edge 'Always First' Hoopsters

BY LT. NELSON MARSH

The Fighting 9th Infantry Manchus smashed back from an eleven-point halftime deficit to bounce the upset minded 1st Infantry 81-79 in a hotly-contested 2nd Division Basketball Tournament game February 13 at the Harmony Church Field House.

DRIBBLER DELUXE . . . The 9th Infantry's star guard, Harry Hall (20) displays his dribbling artistry against the 1st Infantry's Isrel Gafford (center). The 9th won the contest 81-79 to wrap-up the Division basketball championship with six wins and no losses. Forward Eugene Bedard (3), of the 9th looks on as Hall drives for the basket. (Photo by R. Garza)

The triumph, the 9th's six in succession without a loss, wrapped up the Division basketball tourney crown, for the "Keep Up the Fire" crew. The defeat gave the 1st Infantry a mark of three victories and a pair of losses.

The 9th "five", trailing 30-41 at halftime, stormed out of the dressing room with a sizzling hot 51 point come-from-behind second half bombardment. The stunning comeback rally was tactically engineered by the 9th's Rayvaughn Pryear, Paul Askew, Harry Hall, and Jack Dispennett.

High Men

Four 9th Infantry, and three 1st Infantry cagers, cracked the double figures bracket. Forward Askew of the 9th and the 1st Infantry's Albert Branch each canned 21 points, tying for the game high point honors. Askew was making his first start of the campaign for the 9th. Pivotman Pryear swished the cords for 20 markers for the 9th before fouling out with eight minutes remaining.

Guard Sam Young netted 16 tallies and team mate Isrel Gafford connected for 15 for the 1st Infantry. Hall, a guard, bucketed 14 points for the victors. Dispennett, playing forward, brushed the nets for 12 points for the 9th, all pumped in during the second half.

Half Time Lead

The contest lead changed hands often throughout the opening period before a red-hot 1st Infantry streak sped them to their 41-30 halftime margin. Branch and Gafford paced the 1st's spurt, using the fast break to excellent advantage.

In the second 20 minutes, however, the 9th shook the icy chill from their shots and luckily knotted the count at 43—all thanks to consecutive connections by Pryear, Hall, and Askew. Dispennett and Pryear then poured in field goals and charity throws at an ultra-rapid clip, propelling the 9th into a 71-59 lead before the 1st Infantry could recover from the barrage. Branch, Gafford, and Warren McDonald sliced the 9th's lead to just two points when the final horn sounded. Shots by Hall, Dispennett, and Dennis Foy managed to keep the 1st Infantry at bay long enough for the victory.

From the foul line the 1st rammed in 15 of 24 attempts

Elequin Set As 87th Inf A&R Officer

By 87th Infantry PIO

Lieutenant Vincent V. Elequin has been named battle group athletic and recreation officer for the 87th Infantry.

Lieutenant Elequin, who joined Headquarters Company in December as medical platoon leader, was Southern California high school cross-country champion for 1950, 1951 and 1952. The Redando Beach native was in competition for this title with runners from schools in the entire area south of San Francisco, including Sacramento.

He made the varsity cross-country team in his freshman high school year, in track he won the Southern California championship for the 1320 - yard run in 1949. He also ran in the 440-yard, 880 yard and mile runs.

While attending Redando Union, Lieutenant Elequin participated in the 220 - yard, 880 - yard and four - man mile relays. In the field events he entered the broad jump.

He played as an end in varsity football. He also played with the starting basketball squad for three years. He usually played the forward position.

In addition to his high school athletics Lieutenant Elequin helped direct the youth athletic activities in Redando Beach. He was manager and coach for the youth softball and football teams of Guadalupe Roman Catholic Church.

Lieutenant Elequin has five years of naval service behind him. Assigned to the Navy Hospital Corps he was attached for three years to the Marine Corps. During his Navy tour he served at Alamida Naval Air Station, Alamida Island, California; San Diego Naval Station, California; Camp Pendelton, California, and Balboa Naval Hospital, Balboa, California.

While assigned to the support of Navy Scouting Squadron 711 (air) he served aboard the Aircraft Carrier, U.S.S. Valley Forge, and at Los Alaetos Naval Station, Los Alaetos, California.

After separation from the Navy, Lt. Elequin attended El Camino College, Los Angeles, California. He rejoined the Army and graduated from Officers Candidate School in October of 1959.

He was assigned to the Army Medical Service Corps and attend his branch school at Fort Sam Houston, Texas.

Battalion Whips 23rd Infantry

By 69th Armor PIO

Sent two winning games to bed to back and you have a winning streak. That is just what the Separate Battalion has done.

On February 13 the Separate Battalion stretched their winning streak to two games by downing the 23rd Infantry Cavers 60 to 52 at the Harmony Church field house.

It was a nip and tuck game all the way. In the last three minutes the Separate Battalion broke loose.

Erwin Turner with 22 points and Carrie Fleming with 18 points were the high point men for the winners.

Charles Kenning and Paul Arceneaux paced the "We Servers" with 17 and 13 points respectively.

Div Men Vie For Positions On Post Team

By 9th Inf. PIO

Two members of the 9th Infantry's undefeated basketball "five" have been selected to try out for the Main Post basketball squad.

The two 9th Infantrymen, center Rayvaughn Pryear and forward Eugene Bedard, will continue to play for the Manchu squad as well. In the 9th Infantry's six victories in the 2nd Infantry Division tournament, Pryear has counted 128 points for an average of 21.3 markers a contest.

Pryear, who stands 6'-6", also is averaging 20 rebounds a game and eight assists an outing. He is assigned to the 9th's Company C as a cadreman, while Bedard serves with the permanent party of Company A.

Bedard, standing 6'-1", has netted 53 points for the "Keep Up the Fire" squad. He currently holds an average of 10.6 a game.

and added 22 field goals. The 9th dropped in 13 of 26 charity tries in addition to their 34 floor shots.

The 1st Infantry squad committed 19 personal fouls to the 9th's 18 personals. Top man for either crew from the foul line was the 9th's Eugene Bedard with three throws in three tries. He finished the evening with seven points as did his team mate Foy. Guard Robert White chipped in with nine tallies for the 1st Infantry before fouling out late in the contest.

Pryear topped the 9th Infantrymen in scoring in the tourney with 128 points for a 21.3 average. Hall flipped in 91 points, averaging 15.2 a game. Bedard dead-eyed the bucket for 60 points and a 10 point try per outing.

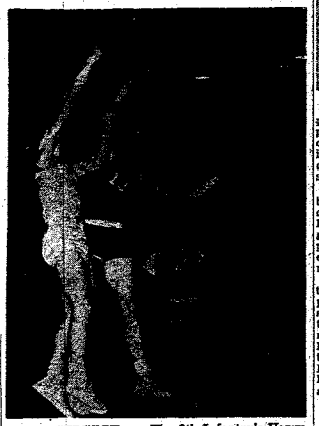
time at the subjects learned earlier and added a few new ones, notably night firing and patrolling. This was Advanced Individual Training.

The first sixteen weeks ended with a parade and the awarding of honors to those who excelled at their various jobs. It was during the parade that we were awarded the crest of the 11th Infantry. We then left for forty-nine states on our first leave.



The start of Basic Unit Training had the squad leaders running their men through drills which would eventually lead to the Army Training Test. The platoon tests then began and at the completion of their ATT our third cycle came to an end. Col Patterson read us the scores of these tests. It was during BUT that we started to see the "big picture". No longer were we individuals, but now, along with the 106 squads, mortars and tanks in support and the Army Personnel Carriers attached we were beginning to take shape as a combat ready unit.

The logical follow-up of the platoon test was the company test, the first phase of Advanced Unit Training.

The last few weeks were devoted to Battle Group problems and then the biggest test of them all — the Battle Group ATT. It was to be the last in a long series of problems and everybody really put out for it.

There was no room for a let down after the intensified schedule because the annual Inspector General Inspection was right around the corner.

On February 7, at 6:00 a.m. twenty members of the Advanced Party departed on the first leg of their trip to Korea. They will be joined by the Main Body early this March. Last Thursday the "new" 11th (OVUREP number 6) was presented with our colors.

Separate Bn. Sports Round Up

The victory-hungry Separate Battalion basketball Squad knocked off the 87th Infantry, 61-30.

The Separate Battalions bumped off to an early lead and were never in danger. At half-time the score board read 25 to 13, with the Separate Battalions holding the long end of the stick.

Myron Poston with 23 points and Carrie Flemming with 18 points paced the winners.

High point men for the 87th were Bankhead and Wilkerson with 8 points apiece.

Volleyball

Action in the Separate Battalion volleyball tournament was centered all in the 122nd Signal Battalion Wednesday, February 8 saw Company A take Company B in 2 straight games. Playing 15 points or 8 minutes limits the Company A team scored 8 to 5 and 10 to 2 victories.

68th Armor will field a team in the Post wide company level volleyball tournament. Last year the tankers finished second. With virtually the same team entered this year, the tankers are looking to repeat or better last year's accomplishment.

Bowling

The action included two intra-family hassels. The Fireball Five took 4 straight games from the Atomic Alpins. Both teams are from the 2nd Engineer Battalion. Over in the 122nd Signal the Whiz Kids whitewashed the Five Amps also 4 games to none.

There were two more shut outs, the Misfits of 122nd Signal took the 7th Cavalry's Sabers 4 to 0 and the Paladins from the 69th Armor blanked the BB's from 122nd also 4 to 0.

The other two games saw the Hilltoppers from 2nd Engineer take a 4 game series 3 games to 1 from the Hurlers of the 68th Armor.

The other tanker team, the Panthers won 3 games to 1 over the Duds from 2nd Engineers.

9TH INF GUARDS FOY, HALL ADD 'GO-GO' TO MANCHU DIV CHAMPS

By 9th Inf PIO

A pair of diminutive guards provided the spark which propelled the 9th Infantry Manchus to an undefeated record in the battle for the basketball championship in the 2nd Division tournament.

Playing together on the 9th's battle group squad for the second straight season, guards Harry Hall and Dennis Foy proved the playmakers, sparkplugs, and speedsters deluxe enroute to the 9th's 6-0 win-loss mark.

Hall, the more prolific of the two scoring-wise, recorded 91 points for 15.2 average in the six contests. Hall's specialty, the fast-break, accounted for more than half of his total. He finished second in scoring to the 9th Infantry's center, Raysvaughn Prayer, who tallied 128 points for a 21.3 average.

A native of Lexington, Missouri, the 5'11½" Hall first joined the Army in 1953. He took his basic training with the 18th Infantry Division at Fort Riley, Kansas, and served with the 10th in Germany for 33 months. Hall returned to the U. S. in 1956 with the 10th Division which was redesignated the 2nd Infantry Division. Thus, Hall has served with the same organization for six years and through five name designation changes.

An accomplished athlete in seven sports, Hall has been instrumental in his unit's winning championships both in Germany and at Fort Benning. As a forward, he led his 85th Infantry Regiment squad to the Bamberg Post Championship in 1956.

As a memer of the 9th Infantry, Hall played on the 9th's division softball championship team in 1959, the 9th's Fort Benning, and Third Army softball champions in 1960, the Manchu's division flag football first place squad in 1960, and now the 1961 division basketball champs.

On a company level basis, Hall played on two football plus one volleyball and one basketball teams which won championships. His other active sports include baseball, cross-country running, and golf. Hall played softball and basketball in high school, being named to an all-conference squad in basketball. Hall works in the 9th's weapons pool.

Foy, standing 5'-9", hails from Bound Brook, New Jersey. Basketball remains his first love in the sports field. Breaking into the starting lineup in the 9th's third contest, Foy managed to count 37 points in just five games. In the 9th Infantry's company - level play, Foy dumped in 53 points in five games for a 10.6 average.

Thrice beaten Infantry Center Troop Command, after enjoying the top position at the start of the season, dropped back down to third place Tuesday from a tie for the second place slot with a 77-74 loss to the 428th Medical Battalion.

Last week Troop Command split a pair, losing to the loop pacers, and then coming back to collect a win. The 1st Battle Group, 29th Infantry, 1st Infantry Brigade, in their lone week's encounter last week, lost their third fracas of the season to take over the second place position.

The Troop Command still has a good chance of gaining substantial ground in the league standings this week as a full slate of games will kick off the three remaining weeks of action.

In Tuesday's action, following 428th's win over Troop Command, the 151st Engineer Group dropped a 56-55 decision to the 2nd Howitzer Battalion, 10th Artillery, 1st Infantry Brigade, in the nightcap.

Troop Command met the 1st Armored Rifle Battalion, 58th Infantry, 1st Infantry Brigade in one game Wednesday night and in the 8 p.m. contest, the 29th Infantry quintet faced the 151st Engineers.

Thursday's competiton pitted the 428th Medics against the 10th Artillery in the 6:30 contest. In the nightcap, The Student Brigade battled with the 151st Engineers.

(Results of Wednesday and Thursday's games were unavailable at press time.)

In another battle, the 58th Infantry topped the 151st Engineer Group by a 65-59 tally.

The Student Brigade topped the 10th Artillery by an 87-49 margin in a one-sided contest and the 428th Medics defeated the 58th Infantry by a 76-59 count.

Other action saw the Troop Command quintet return to the win column with a 77-53 decision over the 151st Engineers and The Student Brigade take a 82-51 battle over the 29th Infantry.

The standings in the league following Tuesday night's action are:

WACs Cop First Win Of Season

Fort Benning's WAC Basketball Team defeated the Fort McClellan WAC Team, 44-28, last weekend at the losers' home court.

Pfc Earlene Surles paced the local aggregation to its initial win of the season, scoring 31 of the 44 winning points.

Two games remain on the WAC schedule. Tomorrow the post squad hosts the Fort McPherson WAC team in a return engagement, and February 25 the post WAC sextet goes to Parris Island, S. C., for the season's finale.

Ranges Receive 'Face-Lifting For International Matches

Registrations are already being received for the 1st Annual Armed Forces International Shooting Competition scheduled for March 26 to April 2, according to Lt. Col. Burton C. Boatright, match executive at The Infantry Center.

The entries, from the Air Force, are the first of over 150 expected from crack marksmen from all branches of the Armed Forces. The competition is the first of its type and scale to be held in this country, Col. Boatright said.

All six of The Infantry Center's international - type ranges will be used during the competition sponsored by the Continental Army Command and conducted under International Shooting Union rules.

Operating the huge event will be personnel of the Army Match Headquarters staff under the direction of Col. Boatright.

Preparations are already under way for the Armed Forces event and the Third U. S. Army Rifle and Pistol Championships scheduled to open at Fort Benning April 3.

Easley and McAndrew Ranges, sites of the latter competition are receiving a "face-lifting" by a platoon of engineers.

The 2nd Platoon of Company B, 577th Battalion, 151st Engineer Group, under the command of 2nd Lt. Mann G. Davis, expects to have completed by March 1 work on over a quarter mile of target pits. Protective shorings and sandbags are being strengthened or replaced, metal work sandblasted and painted, and target storage houses repaired. Sfc Frank L. Johnson is assisting Lt. Davis with the project.

The Third Army championships are slated to continue until April 13.

Units Receive Quotas For Lifeguard Program

Major units here have received quotas for The Infantry Center 1961 Lifeguard and Water Safety Instructor Program here.

The 1st Infantry Brigade will provide six lifeguards and four water safety instructors; the 151st Engineer Group, two lifeguards and two instructors; the 428th Medical Battalion, one lifeguard and one instructor; Lawson Army Aviation Command, two lifeguards and one instructor, and Martin Army Hospital, one lifeguard and one instructor.

The Infantry Center Troop Command will provide two lifeguards and two water safety instructors; The Student Brigade, The Infantry School, and the 2nd Infantry Division, 18 lifeguards and 12 water safety instructors.

The quotas were based on troop strength and location of the pools in respect to the units which will use them and lifeguard requirements.

Post quail and rabbit hunters will hang up their shotguns next week when the 1960-61 season will come to a close.

The session has been a fine one and dyed-in-the-wool bird hunters have been able to tally daily limits more often than not. However, even at this late date, there remain numerous coveys which are still unscathed.

Unless post bird dogs find them out in the next 10 days, these fat birds will provide plenty of seed for next fall's crop.

As for long-ears, the cottontail and "cane-cuttin' swamp rabbits have given post beagles plenty to yip about and bramble-scratched hunters plenty of targets to shoot at.

Here again, the annual bag has made no appreciable dent in the post bunny population and unless cycles governing his yearly strengths catch up with him, long-ears will be present in force come next season.

Following the season's close next week, the post's game will get a rest until March 20 when the spring gobbler season is scheduled to open. I haven't heard that the past turkey season was too successful but the old gobblers are here.

Whether the big birds are getting foxier or kills just weren't reported is a matter of question.

As for the fishing on post — the cane pole wielders have had slim pickings from our bream beds. Bitter chill has kept fishing down to a minimum except for the few who've trekked out to Johnson's Pond to try for rainbow trout.

From what I hear, the little pond still has some of the original 1,200 fish left and they're getting wilder as time passes. The artificial lures only rule has prevented wholesale removal of the stocked trout and more people are getting more sport out of the planting.

I'd like to see the trout take hold in that one pond at least, but I guess that's only wishful thinking. It's also a little selfish . . . for we've some fine bass waters with tackle busting lunkers just a'darin' use of 6- and 8-pound test monofilament by anybody but the most experienced anglers.

In fact, John Gause of our Information Section had a big, old mossyback snap a 12-pound line on him out at McMurrin's and J.G. is far from inexperienced.

Harp's produced a five pound-plus bass for him last weekend when he and Sgt. Lonnie Graham were trying their luck, and he tells me that it was full of roe. John predicts early bass bedding this year so if you want to get a big one, you'll have to start wetting lines.

Shiners seem to be the best bet for bait with top-water lures next in order . . . and that's it for this week.

PFC FORENZ

Pfc Harry J. Forenz of Headquarters Battery, 2nd Howitzer Battalion, 10th Artillery, 1st Infantry Brigade, is a confirmed sports enthusiast. This interest, especially in baseball, began years ago when the trooper was hardly old enough to think of holding a baseball bat.

Attending White Plains High School in New York, Pfc Forenz played on the basketball, football, and baseball teams. Not only did he letter in those three sports each year, he also received two gold basketball trophies and two gold football trophies for his outstanding sportsmanship in his junior and senior years.

He was captain of the baseball team in his senior year. His high school basketball team won the area basketball championship each year he played. They were also awarded the revered Globetrotters Trophy for having the most outstanding county team in 1957.

a semi-professional baseball team. This team won the Westchester Baseball Association Championship in 1958.

After completing high school, Pfc Forenz played two seasons with the Valhalla Merchants.

In addition, he has played American Legion ball as well as having played on the Brooklyn Dodgers rookie team in Yonkers, N.Y. He also tried out with the Saint Louis Cardinals and the New York Yankees.

He entered the Army in 1959 at Fort Dix, N.J., took basic there, and was sent on to Fort Sill for advanced training. He was assigned here at Fort Benning in April of last year.

He was a member of the 10th Artillery's "Redlegs" baseball team, which took fourth place in post major unit competition, and he is now playing on the battalion basketball team, which recently gave the Infantry Center Troop Command its first defeat of the season.

After completing high school, Pfc Forenz played two seasons with the Valhalla Merchants,

All-Army Boxing Coach; MSgt Lowenstein Retires

(AFPS) — With 25 years of boxing experience behind him MSgt Balzar "Gunner" Lowenstein has retired from the Army.

Lowenstein and MSgt Pat Nappi have coached every All-Army boxing team since 1955. They guided their fistic teams to World-Wide Inter-Service Championships in 1955, 1956, 1958 and 1959, while placing second in 1960 and third in 1957.

In addition to these teams, they guided the 1955 and 1959 Pan-American Trials and the 1956 and 1960 Olympic Trials. Four members of the 1956 squad earned championships at San Francisco's Cow Palace and went on to take titles in the Olympic competition at Melbourne, Australia.

During his own fistic days, "Gunner" was the 1935-36 North Dakota AAU Middleweight Champ. Later he won the 1941 Hawaiian Islands Army Light Heavyweight crown as well as the 1941 Hawaiian AAU title.

At this point, Lowenstein turned pro and copped the Light-Heavyweight crown in October 1942 with a 6-0 record with four KOs and two decisions.

After seeing action at Guadalcanal, Lowenstein was discharged in 1945. Reenlisting a few months later, he returned to the squared ring. He pocketed the 1948 Trieste and European Light Heavyweight titles and fought in Chicago in that year in the first World-Wide All-Army All-Air Force Championships, losing out in the semi-finals.

Turning over the boxing chores to the younger men, "Gunner" coached the U. S. Constabulary teams in '49 and '50 and joined with Sfc Jimmy Dunderdale to prepare the Army fistic team for the 1950 Britanica Shields.

This annual international competition, held at Wembley Stadium in London, was started in 1946. The American team pocketed the team championship.

Summing up his fistic career, Lowenstein said, "Anything I may have accomplished was due only to the swell guys I worked with." He said he anticipates joining the Riverside, Calif., Parks and Recreation System to work in its youth activity program.

Profile of a Man Doing a Man's Job

SFC LUCE

Sfc John E. Luce is a master jumper, and goes along on jumps with Airborne classes at The Infantry School in his job as an assistant instructor with the Airborne Air Mobility Department. He is assigned to the 41st Company, 4th Student Battalion, The Student Brigade.

Sgt. Luce joined the Army in 1942, and has been giving instruction in the basic paratrooper techniques since 1955.

His own best customer, Sfc Luce believes he has made more jumps than any other person on the post.

With great respect for his job and the Airborne role, he willingly accepts the responsibility involved when students first step into thin air after being prepared by the department's basic instruction.

Even the almost daily classes are not enough to satisfy this master jumper, however, and he has been active in the post's Sport Parachute Club, where members make free-fall jumps of 1,000 feet before opening their chutes.

Five Greek Officers Visit Post

Major Gen. Ioannis Gennimatas, chief of operations of Greece's High War College, and four other key Hellenic Army officers viewed demonstrations of instruction at The Infantry School this week.

Accompanying Gen. Gennimatas were Brig. Gen. Panagiotis Livas, director, Third Staff Office (G-3), Hellenic Army General Staff; Col. Nicholas Parlavantzas, commander, Infantry Heavy Weapons Training Center; Col. Achilles Tagaris, National Defense General Staff; Col. Stratis Karatassos, commander, Second Combat Command, and Major John G. Kamaras, U. S. Army tour director.

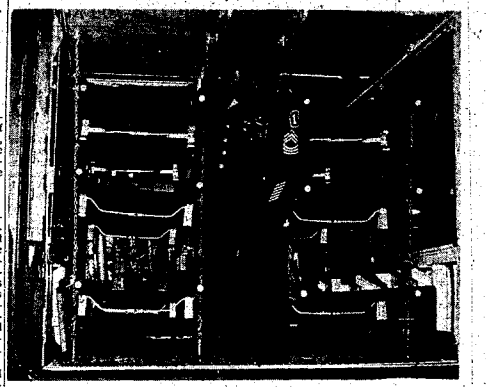
The Greek officers observed demonstrations of hand-to-hand combat, Airborne training, officer candidate activities and the leader's reaction course.



They were honored with an official dinner Tuesday at in the Main Officers' Open Mess.

The visitors left the post Wednesday.

Capt. John C. Royles, who is Training Section, Infantry School Director of Instruction's Officer, was the project officer for their stay.

State Heart Month

"Diseases on the heart and blood vessels continue to claim the lives of more Georgians than all other causes combined," Gov. Ernest Vandiver said this week in proclaiming February as Heart Month in Georgia. Some 17,676 or 52.9 percent of 1959 Georgia deaths were attributed to diseases of the heart and circulatory system.

MEDICAL EVACUATION . . . MSgt George Ottinger, Medical Platoon, 1st Armored Rifle Battalion, 58th Infantry, 1st Infantry Brigade, points to the six stretchers that may be added to the Infantry Personnel Carrier when used to evacuate wounded. The medical platoon personnel, under the direction of Sgt. Ottinger, gave a demonstration last week for students of The Infantry School.

Peruvian Areas Get U. S. Assistance

(ANS)—With help from the U.S. Military Assistance Advisory Group in Peru, projects to improve conditions in two poverty-stricken areas of this capital city have been completed by the Peruvian Army's 6th Engineer Combat Battalion.

The battalion was equipped and trained under the U.S. Military Assistance Program.

The communities of Mirones and Mendocita had asked the Peruvian Minister of War for aid. They also asked the U.S. Army Mission to Peru, which operates with the Army element of the MAAG, to coordinate the planning and work, and to authorize use of the unit's U.S. equipment for the projects.

Mirones, a tenement section of Lima's Rimac area, with a population of 25,000 asked for road into the community, and help in developing an access recreation areas for children.

Pentagon's Heliport Provides Many Uses

(AFPS)—The Pentagon, the world's largest office building, is often called "a city within a city," and no one who has ever visited it would dispute the description.

No U. S. city today is complete without an airport, and the Pentagon meets this measure with its own heliport, a 100 - by - 100 foot concrete pad, complete with control tower. It was intended originally for the evacuation of Pentagon officials in an emergency, but it has been put to a variety of uses, especially by the Army which maintains 41 whirleybirds in the Washington area.

Col. Ralph Smith, the Pentagon Army headquarters commandant who is also Heliport control officer, thinks that when Washington's new Dulles International Airport at Chantilly opens late next summer, the 'copter traffic between the jet-age airport and the Pentagon will boom. As it is, in one year the Army flew 1,240 missions into and out of the heliport.

Many of these flights carried VIPs — "very important people" — and some were courtesy aerial tours of the Washington area for visiting foreign officials. Still others took officers and men of the Pentagon's "chairborne" off for rugged maneuvers in the field.

Only recently when 362 men of the 3rd Infantry from Fort Myer were taking Ranger training at Camp A. P. Hill in that state, the Pentagon Heliport served to dispatch another kind of VIP — a very important payroll of $21,750 for the troops.

The heliport is operational only when visibility is more than half a mile and the ceiling is at least 700 feet. It is used only in the daytime and works on a standby alert basis on weekends. Although it has no regular flight schedule, it must be ready to handle special missions without delay.

In the heliport tower, the radio, manned by two enlisted men, is directed operationally by the National Airport control tower. The Pentagon operators take radio control as the 'copters come in on their final approach according to a strict pattern of descent.

The Civilians You Work With

DAVIS

Louise Davis has worked the past four years as a court reporter for The Infantry Center's Staff Judge Advocate Section. Her primary duty is to record court proceedings at general courts martial here on post.

Before assuming her present duties, she worked as a secretary at The Student Brigade.

A graduate of Jordan High School in Columbus, she also attended the American Business Institute in Macon, and the off-campus branch of the University of Georgia in Columbus.

JOHNSON

Lemuel Johnson, who first started working here on post at the Ordnance Section in 1941, has spent the last four years at the Civilian Personnel Office here.

As civilian training officer for The Infantry Center, he is primarily responsible for the training of supervisors in the field of personnel management.

A resident of Columbus, he was graduated from the Columbus Industrial High School, now known as Jordan.

Mr. Johnson spent 15 months in the Army.

New Army Memorial Plans Set By AUSA

(AFPS) — A memorial museum to honor the American soldier from Lexington to Leyte, Ticondaroga to Tokyo, and from Kings Mountain to Korea is planned by the Association of the U. S. Army.

Site of the museum will be Independence Hall, Philadelphia, Pa., where the Army was founded June 14, 1775.

On display will be colors, regimental flags and other relics to tell the story of the Army during the Revolutionary War.

Funds for the construction of the memorial and maintenance of the commemoration building will be obtained through voluntary contributions from members of the active Army forces, National Guard, Reserve components, auxiliaries, interested civilian organizations and individuals.

The fund-raising campaign is scheduled to begin in June 1961, and coincides with the Army's birthday June 14, 1961.

The Army said contributions could be made as early as May 30, 1961, and that contributions will be accepted beyond that date until the total amount needed is received. It is estimated $500,000 will be required for the building and its furnishings.

It was emphasized that this is definitely not a "pressurized campaign."

Funds collected for the project will be forwarded to the Treasurer, AUSA, 1529 18th St. N. W., Washington 6, D.C.

Know Your Senior NCOs

First Sergeant (E-8) LeRoy J. Bernardini Jr., a native of Erie, Pa., is sergeant major of the 806th Engineer Battalion. He first entered the Army in February, 1936 as a member of the 3rd Cavalry, Fort Myers, Va.

Sgt. Bernardini remained with the cavalry until 1939, when he was discharged.

On reentering the Army, he asked for and was given Airborne training here at Benning, and went to Europe with the 502d Airborne Infantry Regiment, 101st Airborne Division.

He spent almost all of the time from 1945 to 1952 in Germany in assignments including the 5th Constabulary, 9th Infantry Division, and three years as engineer repair and utilities NCO of the Fuessen sub-post. For the latter assignment, where he had full responsibility for the sub-post engineer work, that he was awarded the Army Commendation Medal.

Following a short tour in the states in 1953 and 1954, Sgt. Bernardini was transferred to the other side of the world to serve as utilities foreman with the Support Group, United Nations Command Armistice Commission, Panmunjon, Korea. Though actually based at Munsani during this assignment, he spent almost all his time at the Panmunjon conference site.

He served in this assignment from January, 1955 to April, 1956, at which time he returned to the states.

Back overseas again in 1959 he was appointed to E-8 while stationed at the Army garrison, Poitiers, France, as first sergeant.

Sgt. Bernardini joined the 806th last year on his return from France.

BOOKS in REVIEW

LET US NOW PRAISE FAMOUS MEN by James Agee. (Houghton, 1960)

A report on the life of the southern share-cropper as observed by the author in Alabama in 1936 when he actually lived one month with one share-cropper family.

ANNIE by Gloria Jahoda. (Houghton, 1960)

A romance in which the orphan heroine, a servant engaged at the age of 14, shortly thereafter falls in love with the grandson of the house. She sees the rise and fall of the fortunes of a 17th century English merchant family, and eventually becomes its Lady.

WHERE THE HIGH WINDS BLOW by David Walker. (Houghton, 1960)

The story of a modern buccaneer, Simon Skafe, who finds an outlet for his talents and drive not in piracy but in the exciting, often ruthless world of high finance and big industry. The scene is Canada, from the remote northwest to sophisticated Montreal and a fashionable summer resort in New Brunswick.

THE LAST COMMANDMENT by Harmon George Coxe. (Knopf, 1960)

Kent Murdock sent Jules to take pictures at tycoon Aesop's birthday party, and Jules was murdered. Keeping one jump ahead of the police, Kent used the clues in Jules' photographs to solve not one but two killings.

GOODBYE TO A RIVER by John Graves. (Knopf, 1960)

The author writes of his canoe trip in October, 1957, down the Brazos River in western Texas. Interwoven into the account are stories of the people who lived along the banks and in the valley of the Brazos in the old days — Indians, settlers, and wanderers.

Winston Churchill Will Be Featured On Local Station

"Winston Churchill: The Valiant Years" will be broadcast over the WTVM Television Station, Channel 9, through the ABC Television Network on Thursdays at 10:30 p.m.

The program will be the story of Mr. Churchill and the history he helped to forge in the crucible of war, told in his own words and actions.

The musical score was composed by Richard Rogers. Richard Burton voices Churchill's words and Gary Merrill is the narrator.

Hollywood Lowdown And Inside Briefs. . .

Steve Reeves' sword and fist fight with the villain in "The White Warrior" covers as much territory as some of those mile-long duels of Douglas Fairbanks. . . Kirk Douglas has switched filming of "Montezuma" from Mexico to Hollywood, saying he's convinced there's no better place to make pictures than Hollywood . . . Troy Donahue and Connie Stevens were named "Hottest newcomers of 1960" in a fan magazine poll, and Warners has them teamed in both "Parrish" and "Susan Slade." . . . Jack Lemmon and Lee Remick will star in 20th's "Days of Wine and Roses".

Director Morton DaCosta has three sound stages at Warner Bros. tied up just making tests for "The Music Man".

Eddie Albert has signed for 20th's "The Teddy Bears," about two kids who yearn to turn into teddy bears. . . Angie Dickinson can look glamorous in a nurse's uniform because the Warner star, who plays a missionary nurse in "The Sins of Rachel Cade," will next do a lookout role as a nurse in "Apple Pie Bed". . . Marilyn Monroe has been asked to team with Yves Montand in 20th-Fox's "Lost Girl". . .

Big Clint Walker judges his scripts for their scenery possibilities as well as for their plots — which is why he was enthusiastic about Warners' "Gold of the Seven Saints". . . Cornel Wilde and his wife, Jean Wallace, are planning to film "Lancelot and Guinevere" . . . Actress Leslie Parrish retired after her marriage in 1955, but now she's in the center of things again as star of Warners' "Portrait of a Mobster". . .

The weather has been so warm in Hollywood that Diane McBain is sure the cotton on her Georgia farm set for "Claudelle Inglish" is starting to grow, even though the set is inside a Warner stage. Capucine will likely play a starring role in "A Walk On the Wild Side" once the film deal is set with United Artists. . . Warner Bros. has decided to release "Fanny," its much heralded picture with Maurice Chevalier, Charles Boyer and Leslie Caron, next summer . . . Harold Russell, the armless and legless veteran who won a special Oscar for his portrayal in "The Best Years of Our Lives," is being paged to return to the screen in "The Big D," with Ernest Borgnine.

INFANTRY CREST COLLECTION . . . Displaying their collection of some 500 crests which they began collecting last April are (L to R) 1st Lt.'s Lawrence Anderson and Lawrence Bruscas, 52nd Company, 5th Student Battalion, The Student Brigade. The collection is to become a permanent display in the unit day room with the ultimate goal of including every Infantry crest from the smallest to largest commands. (TSB Photo by Pfc Johnson)

12 Lay Readers Licensed At St. Michaels Service

Twelve lay readers were licensed by the Bishop of the Atlanta Diocese recently in services at St. Michael's Episcopal Mission on post.

Chaplain (Major) Harry G. Campbell Jr., presented the licenses to Col. John J. Pavick, Major George S. Eyster Jr., Major Francis S. McArthur, Capt. Edgar W. Dusion, Capt. Robert S. Poydasheff, Capt. Peter C. Withers, Capt. Richard E. Littlefield, Capt. Robert L. Hunt, Capt. Thomas S. McLean, Capt. John I. Hincke Jr., and 1st Lt. Robert S. Rose and Max Spurlin.

Chaplain Campbell and Major Eyster are conducting a class for lay readers at 9:30 a.m. each Sunday at the mission.

Following the presentation of licenses, new officers of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew were installed including Capt. Duskin, director, Capt. Raymond H Bishop Jr., vice-director, and Lt. Rose, secretary treasurer.

The Brotherhood meets at 6:30 p.m. at the mission on the first Tuesday of each month.

Buck Fever

A male in Montgomery, Ala., asked the missing persons bureau to locate his brother-in-law. The relative disappeared four years ago, he said, to avoid paying a dollar traffic ticket.

A TOM OF ALL TRADES

Thomas Jefferson was perhaps our most versatile president. At various times in his life he had been a lawyer, an architect, a musician, and a farmer.

Hi!
Meet Your "Hometown" Newspaper
Your BAYONET is a "civilian enterprise" post newspaper, written and edited by G.I. personnel, assisted and advised by newsroom officials of The Ledger-Enquirer Newspapers. Your BAYONET is published each Friday by the Ledger-Enquirer Newspapers and is 100 per cent free to the military establishment. It's publication and free distribution is made possible by he advertising merchants of Columbus and Phenix City, and the BAYONET staff sincerely appreciates your first consideration of these firms when you shop in the civilian community.

RE-ENLISTMENT AWARDS . . . Major Gen. Hugh P. Harris, (C), commanding general of The Infantry Center, presents the major unit plaque for the highest overall re-enlistment percentages to Sfc Emory S. Burke (L) of Martin Army Hospital, and for the highest first term retention to Sfc. Joseph I. DeMarco, career Counselor of Lawson Army Aviation Command. Gen. Walsh's Infantry School Report

In the Mechanical Training Committee of the Ground Mobility Department there is a Power Train Section, and in this section the students receive instruction on all of the components that transmit the power from the engine to the road wheels.

Of the various subjects that are taught by this section, the automatic transmission is the most interesting, because it is like a robot.

The basic speed ranges are selected automatically in a hydraulically operated gear box. For instance, if you move the selector lever to low, the transmission stays within a low gear ratio for great pulling power. With the lever in high, the gear box will shift automatically to high whenever the vehicle and engine load permits.

When you step hard on the gas pedal the robot transmission "thinks" you are in a hurry to get places. It responds by forcing the vehicle to accelerate to high speed just as fast as it can. Only when speed is attained does the transmission shift up to higher gear.

When you merely hold a light foot pressure on the accelerator as the vehicle increases in speed the shift point will occur sooner.

In order for the transmission to do this and withstand the punishment it receives in military vehicles, it must be properly maintained. All adjustments should be kept to proper specification and all troubles should be detected and corrected before serious trouble occurs that cannot be corrected by adjustment or simply by adding oil.

The students who receive instruction on automatic transmissions are members of Infantry Motor Transportation, Infantry Automotive Supervision and Infantry Mechanics classes. They receive ten hours of instruction on the operation, maintenance and trouble diagnosis of the transmission.

The first two hours are a conference and demonstration showing the student the basic operation of a planetary gear train and how it is incorporated in the transmission to obtain eight speeds forward and two in reverse. After the students have a thorough knowledge of the planetary gears and their operation, they are shown the hydraulic components and how they are incorporated in the transmission to make it shift to the various

Col. Carter Selected For Hall of Fame

Lt. Col. James T. Carter has been selected to become a member of the Officer Candidate Hall of Fame at Wigle Hall.

The colonel is chief of the Operations Committee of The Infantry School's Communication Department.

His portrait and biography have been added to the gallery of 120 graduates of The Infantry School's officer candidate course similarly honored.

Col. Carter was placed on the honor roll for having displayed outstanding traits of leadership throughout his career as an officer.

Entering the service in 1941, Col. Carter was commissioned at Fort Benning in 1943.

He served as commander of Company C, 1st Battalion, 272nd Regiment, 69th Infantry Division in Europe from 1943 to 1945. He was wounded in action April 7, 1945.

From 1947 to 1948, Col. Carter was commander on Christmas Island.

He was assistant post S-2 S-3 at Fort Sheridan, Ill., from 1949 to 1950.

After two years as chief of the 1st Army Field Training Team with the military mission in Turkey, Col. Carter served from 1953 to 1957 with

GEN. DECKER

Gen. Decker Stops Here During Flight

Army Chief of Staff Gen. George H. Decker spent Monday night on post when inclement weather prevented his plane from landing at Atlanta.

The four-star general arrived at Lawson Field at 7:58 p.m. He toured the post by car Tuesday morning with Major Gen. Hugh P. Harris, commanding general of The Infantry Center, before departing at 9:30 am.

Gen. Decker was accompanied by Mrs. Decker and Lt. Col. Walter Brady, aide-de-camp. They were en route from Ramey Air Force Base, Puerto Rico.

Gen. Decker also visited post last December during the Christmas season to visit his daughter, who resides on post. His visit then was unofficial as he was on leave status at that time.

Prototype Study

Gen. Hewitt to Post

Brig. Gen. Robert A. Hewitt, director of military personnel management, Office of the Deputy Chief of Staff for Personnel, Department of the Army, visited post for two days of briefings and conferences on prototype units recently.

Gen. Hewitt attended a briefing on unit personnel office prototype units presented by Major Paul T. Smith of the Systems Development Branch, Research and Development Division, Department of the Army Adjutant General's Office, and a conference on prototype units at The Infantry Center Troop Command headquarters.

Accompanying Gen. Hewitt and Major Smith from Washington were Lt. Col. Thomas A. Taylor, Office of Military Pay Systems, and Major R. D. Tice, Qualification and Standards Division, both of the Office of the Deputy Chief of Staff for Personnel, Department of the Army.

Lt. Col. Robert J. Bigard Doctrine and Organization Branch, Personnel and Administration Section, and Major Ernest H. Ford, Organization and Training Division, Finance and Accounting Office from the Continental Army Command also attended the meetings.

Project officer for the conference was Capt. Donald P. Hayward, personnel officer, Infantry Center, Troop Command.

PM General; Chilean Class Tour Benning

The newly graduated class of the Chilean War Academy and four officers of the school's staff are visiting instructional activities at The Infantry School. They arrived yesterday and depart tomorrow.

The visitors are Lt. Col. Juan Forch, Lt. Col. Jaime Freer and Lt. Col. Enrique Garin, professors; Major Orlando Jorquera, adjutant of the academy, and 16 students, Major Fernando Gonzalez, Major Sergio Polloni, Capt. Jorge Beroiza, Capt. Mario Stock, Capt. Sergio Covarrubias, Capt. Mario Gonzalez, Capt. Luis J. Ramirez, Capt. Eugenio Rivera, Capt. Manuel Silva, Capt. Victor Contador, Capt. Felipe Geiger, Capt. Odlanier Mena, Capt. Enrique J. Morel, Capt. Hector Orozco, Capt. Juan Toro and Capt. Haracio Toro.

Capt. John W. McFarry, 1st Lt. Simon Y. Rodriquez and 2nd Lt. Gordon T. Gill are the U. S. Army tour directors.

The Allied party was welcomed by Major Gen. Hugh P. Harris, commandant of The Infantry School and commanding general of The Infantry Center, yesterday morning.

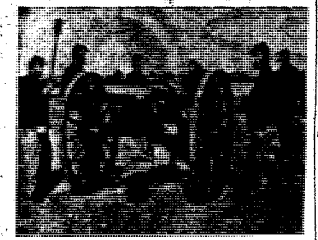
They observed demonstrations of Ranger training, officer candidate activities, recoilless weapons familiarization, 3.5-inch rocket launcher and tank weapons, portable flame thrower and flame mines, Airborne instruction, training aids and rifle platoon in security during movement.

The Chilean officers were guests of honor at an official dinner last night given by Brig. Gen. L. A. Walsh, Jr., assistant commandant of The Infantry School, in the Main Officers' Mess.

Col. Kenneth G. Pavey, Infantry Center chief of staff, hosted a luncheon for the visitors in the Main Officers' Mess.

Capt. Santiago Garcia, Infantry School Weapons Department, and 2nd Lt. Sabin Gianelloni III, Infantry Center Protocol Division, are the project officers for the visit.

Gen. Butchers



Major Gen. Ralph J. Butchers, provost marshal general of the Army, will visit Post February 27 and 28 to observe provost marshal activities on the post and in the adjacent civilian communities.

During his stay, the two-star visitor will confer with Major Gen. Hugh P. Harris, commandant of The Infantry School

Caribou Aircraft

Move to Tactical Strip For Troop Test Practice

The 1st Aviation Company has begun tactical field training for the upcoming Caribou Troop Test, with a move this week from Lawson Army Air field to McKenna Airstrip on the Reservation.

Arriving at McKenna Airstrip by truck convoy and by Caribou and Otter aircraft, the unit was operational within a few hours and training missions were being flown from the strip.

This is the first of several trips to the field, to provide the company with experience in flying, ground handling and loading the Caribou under tactical conditions.

The Caribou and Otters were loaded and unloaded with typical cargo loads by the 124th Transportation Company from Fort Eustis. This terminal service unit is supporting the tests.

Flying pre-selected air routes over Southern Georgia and Alabama, the flight platoons are air-lifting cargo and troops on simulated tactical resupply missions with the new large twin - engined Caribou and eight-transport Otters.

The Company's Airfield Service Section has prepared two runways at McKenna Airstrip, one of which is completely lighted for night flights operations. A "glide-scope" device has been installed for the main runway to provide the pilots with a visual aid for tactical night landings at the Strip.

The Approach Control Section is operating the mobile control tower on the airstrip to control the air traffic in the McKenna area. In addition to the Caribou and Otters flying day and night on simulated tactical missions, the Airstrip has been visited by problem observers arriving in helicopters and Mohawk twin-turboprop aircraft.

A second complete unit move to another field landing-strip is anticipated before the company returns to garrison next week.

Registration For German Course Set

Registration for an eight-week course in beginning German will be held at The Infantry Center's Educational Development Section March 1 at 7 p.m.

Classes will meet on Monday and Wednesday evenings at Building 2514, from 7 to 9. The 32-hour course is open to all military personnel, dependents.

The course will be instructed by Pfc Wolfgang Soblich, a native of Hamburg, Germany, who holds a master of arts degree from Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore.

Sponsored by the Post Woman's Club, the course is aimed at providing a familiarity with contemporary Germany and a basic knowledge in the conversational language. A portion of every class will be devoted to special phrases useful to the American in Germany.

speeds automatically.

The next three hours the students are moved to the shop, where they are placed in four groups and each group has a completely disassembled transmission. Here they are shown in detail each component part, its operation, function and where it is located in the transmission.

This phase of instruction is very important to the student even though he cannot replace the components in the transmission. He must have a thorough knowledge of the components and their operation in order to detect the troubles and have them corrected before they cause serious damage.

The last five hours of instruction is where the students learn the maintenance checks and trouble diagnosis.

The students are moved to four dynamometers that have an operational engine and transmission, to give the students a realistic operation of the engine and transmission under full load.

Here the students start with the primary checks of the transmission such as leaks and damage externally. How to drain and replenish the oil, including the procedures on taking an oil level check, and making an oil pressure test to check the operation of the oil pumps. Then the instructor points out what will happen if they are not correct.

The next phase taught is how to tune the engine with the transmission and the sequence of making all linkage adjustments. Again the instructor points out how the linkage adjustments affects the operation of the transmission.

Each student is required to make an actual linkage adjustment.

For the final phase of instruction the dynamometers are used to give the students a demonstration of the engine and transmission in operation.

Col. Farmer is the project officer for the visit.

Pershing Test Firing Successful February 15

(ANS) — The Army's Pershing ballistic missile roared into the sky on schedule in a successful test firing February 15, the Department of Defense announced.

Brig. Gen. Richard M. Hurst, commander of the Army Ballistic Missile Agency, said all test objectives were met. "We were checking particularly the guidance package," Gen. Hurst said, "and based on preliminary data, it looks as if the system functioned properly."

As in previous tests, the missile was fired from its mobile transporter - erector - launcher. Flares carried in the Pershing's warhead unit were ejected along its trajectory to allow optical tracking of the missile. Pershing is a solid propellant two stage ballistic missile designed to go anywhere in support of the field army. It is expected to replace the Army's "Old Reliable," the Redstone, now operational in Europe.

Observe Engineer Week

Engineer Equipment Shown in Columbus

In observance of National Engineer Week, February 19 to 25, Engineer Corps units from post are displaying equipment in downtown Columbus to better acquaint the people of the community with engineer activities.

Items of equipment displayed during the week are from the 151st Engineer Group, commanded by Col. S. Y. Coker, and its subordinate units, the 577 Engineer Battalion, 586th Engineer Company and the 806th Engineer Battalion.

The 72nd Engineer Company, 1st Infantry Brigade, also has items and personnel on display.

The equipment includes a section of all-purpose float bridge, six sections of an aluminum foot bridge, a 27-foot power boat, a plastic assault boat and model bridges from the 586th.

The 577th demonstrates a motorized trench digger and a trailer mounted woodworking set.

An earth leveler and mover is shown by the 806th, in addition to a bulldozer mounted on its carrying trailer.

The 72nd Company displays 15-man and three-man reconnaissance boats.

Army participation in observing Engineer Week was kicked off earlier this month when Major Albert Pokory spoke to meetings of the Columbus and Phenix City Sertoma Clubs on "The Army Nuclear Power Program," dealing with supplying electrical power to isolated Army bases by use of nuclear power.

Best Mess

Post Entries Finish Close In Army Area

The two Post entries in the 3rd Army Best Mess Contest finished high in the final standings which were announced recently.

In the field unit category, Battery C, 10th Artillery, 1st Infantry Brigade, placed second among nine entries.

Mess 1 of The Student Brigade's 5th Battalion finished third out of eight entries in the garrison unit class.

Including Possible Mobilization

Army's Marksmanship Program Must Include All Possibilities

Any evaluation of the Army's marksmanship program must include consideration of future costs and the best interests of possible military mobilization, Major Gen. Hugh P. Harris, Infantry School commandant, said on post last week.

Speaking before a board of officers charged with review and re-evaluation of present standards and methods of marksmanship training and competition, Gen. Harris asked that the Army's marksmanship program be "viewed from afar" in all its phases and all factors be included for board study.

In commenting upon board objectives, The Infantry School's commandant said that results of the study should be a program which could stand up to all Army requirements.

Directed by the Department of the Army, the study was conducted by the board composed of experts from all major commands of the Continental Army Command.

Major aim of study was correlation of the phases of Army marksmanship training, combat firing, the Army's annual competitive program and the more recently acquired phase, training advanced marksmen for participation in world competition.

The evaluation, which began last week, was conducted under the chairmanship of Col. Chester M. Freedendorf, deputy director of the Weapons Department.

In the nature of a planning session, the study continued throughout the week with the view of presenting a platform upon which final studies may be based before completed board findings and recommendations are presented late next month.

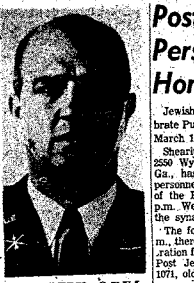
Major Burroughs Is Assigned Here As Assistant IG

Major Edgar S. Burroughs, Jr., has been assigned to The Infantry Center as assistant inspector general.

He succeeds Capt. Wray E. Bradley, who has been reassigned to the Editorial and Pictorial Office of The Infantry School.

Major Burroughs arrived on the post February 19 from an assignment in Thailand as adviser to the Royal Thai Army.

Letters To The Editor



We read so much these days about crime and delinquency that it is refreshing to see an instance which vividly illustrates the principles of honesty and integrity which the Army exists to defend. In fact, I think acts of honesty are occasionally deserving of being singled out for praise, perhaps to counteract the constant repetition of stories in the press about our lack of ethics and honesty.

On Sunday, 8 January, I inadvertently left my wallet in the lounge of the PX Cafeteria. It contained all of my cash, and numerous invaluable personal papers. Noticing the loss, I returned to the place where I recall having left the wallet, but it was missing. I reported the loss at the Provost Marshal's Office, but did not expect to see my wallet again. I was one depressed soldier as I went about my normal Sunday killing-time activities. That evening, I checked by the PM office again, and was overjoyed to find that the wallet had been found and returned, with nothing missing.

My benefactor was Spc Michale Danilich of Headquarters Company, First Infantry Brigade. I do not know him, and in fact, have never seen him. But I want to commend him publicly for his act. It would have been easy to take the cash and dispose of the wallet. This man took the trouble to return it to the proper authorities, and should be commended publicly.

Tomorrow I depart for leave, following which I will go to Korea with my battle group, the 11th Infantry, under the OVUREP program. I don't mind saying that my months at Fort Benning have been hard. But Specialist Danguilch's simple act of honesty has strengthened my opinion of the character of the men with whom I serve. He should be an example to us all.

Post Jewish Personnel Honor Date

Jewish personnel will celebrate Purim, the Feast of Lots, March 1 and 2.

Shearith Israel Synagogue at 2550 Wynnton Rd., Columbus, Ga., has invited post Jewish personnel to attend the reading of the Purim Megilla at 7:15 p.m. Wednesday, March 1, at the synagogue.

The following day at 2:30 p.m., there will be a Purim celebration for children at the Main Post Jewish Center, Building 1071, old hospital area.

Classes for women on the background for Purim were conducted Thursday.

Purim commemorates an episode in ancient Persia in which the Jewish people narrowly escaped massacre by Haman.

For more than a year and a half, Sgt. Ariee C. Grubbs has dedicated this column to you. The Bayonet is published in the interest of the military community, and he has aimed this weekly column at keeping all of you posted on the latest and most interesting events, changes, legislation and directives affecting your career or your family.

Now he has completed 20 years of active duty and is leaving the Information Section. We hate to see him leave the Bayonet staff, because he brought to this newspaper a wealth of experience— and above all else a dedication to the Army and The Infantry Center — which will not be soon or easily replaced.

Sgt. Grubbs has made The Bayonet a paper known for its accuracy, balance and integrity throughout the Army, in his selection of news and features. The Bayonet is a civilian enterprise paper, but as it is directed at the military reader and his family, Sgt. Grubbs has been serving as editor of the military news carried herein.

His first consideration has been accuracy, impartiality, and consistency in reporting for you the events and progress of the post. He has been the first to support Army objectives and publicize you, the soldier, officer, dependent and civilian worker on the post.

Because individuals make the unit and the Army, he has spotlighted soldier and civilian alike in special features such as Know Your Senior NCOs, The Civilians You Work With, and A-Man Doing A Man's Job.

These features will be continued, and many other of Sgt. Grubb's ideas carried on or incorporated into The Bayonet wherever possible in the future.

We shall make every effort to maintain the high standards of coverage set by him, and shall continue to use this column to bring to your attention items of the most timely general interest.

We shall also do all within our power to keep The Bayonet the best weekly publication in its class, anywhere, by keeping your interests and welfare in mind, and presenting news of your units, your activities, your achievements and your goals.

Remember that The Bayonet is your paper, and relies on you and your unit representatives for stories and pictures.

We take this opportunity to publicly thank Sgt. Grubbs for his hard work and long hours on behalf of all Fort Benning personnel, and to wish him success in his future ventures. We know that he will always retain his vital interest in the Army, The Infantry Center, and all of you whom he has known through the years.

Keep us posted, Sgt. Grubbs, and thanks again for setting a good example.

Officers To Depart For Schools

Two members of The Infantry School's Communication Department are expected to depart in May to attend school.

Major William A. Van Dyke will go to the Army Language School at the Presidio of Monterey, Calif. He is plans and operations officer of the department.

First Lt. Samuel E. Holland is scheduled to enroll in an associate advanced course at the Advanced Signal School at Fort Monmouth. Upon graduation, he will be assigned to Okinawa.

Lt. Holland is chairman of the Sets Subcommittee of the department's Radio Maintenance Committee.

Grass Fires Bring Word From Chief

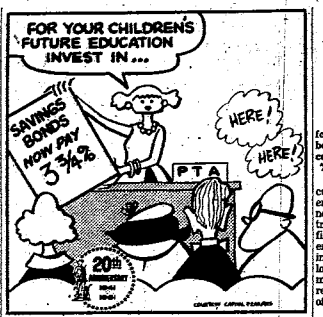
Fort Benning's fire chief, Gilbert A. Ward, Jr., urges military personnel and their dependents to take safety measures to reduce grass and brush fires at the post.

There has been a recent increase of fire calls to troop and family housing areas, he said. Persons should be careful not to throw lighted smoking materials into grassy areas and from vehicles. This has been the cause of most of the small fires, he added.

He also reminds parents that serious injury and loss of property could result from children playing with matches.

New Historical Book Published On World War II

(ANS) — Twenty-three major decisions which helped shape the outcome of World War II are examined in detail in "Command Decisions," a new volume prepared in the Office of the Army Chief of Military History.



Some of the chapter headings reveal the scope of the book: "Japan's Decision for War." "The Decision to Halt at the Elbe." "The Decision to Invade North Africa," and "The Decision to Use the Atomic Bomb."

Pharmacy Hours

Martin Army Hospital has announced new hours of operation for its pharmacy beginning last Wednesday. On Mondays through Fridays the facility will be open from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m., and on Saturdays from 8 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Books Are Vital Part Of World Understanding

(AFPS) — Language is communication, and books are its chief instrument. If all the peoples of the world could get a picture of Americans as we really are, through what we write about ourselves — our history, our habits, our beliefs—the great goal of mutual understanding and friendship would be closer to achievement.

So in books we have a practical means of reaching out to strangers and saying, "Here we are. Get to know us better, will you?" Moreover, books are invaluable aids to betterment—of an individual, a community, even a whole nation such as any one of the emergent African states where people need and crave information about child care, sanitation, cooking, food preservation.

Books, then, are an invaluable part of the People-to-People Program which former President Eisenhower instituted and which President Kennedy has inherited as a potent service to world peace. When we support it by book donations we become active partners in a project of enlightenment. Just as we share our food with the needy peoples of the free world through CARE and other programs to relieve want, so we can share our ideas, skills and experience by contributing to the libaries of schools and other centers of learning overseas.

How to go about it? The Public Relations Committee of the People-to-People Program will be happy to provide that information. Its address is Box 896, Washington 4, D.C.

The Judge Says . . .

(Editor's Note: This is the fourth in a series of articles be presented in this column concerning Federal Income Tax.)

A 1958 modification in the income tax reporting procedure enables most military personnel to account for per diem and travel allowances in a simplified manner. For the past several years all personnel receiving per diem and travel allowance were required to submit an itemized accounting of receipts and expenditures for official travel.

Under the new procedure, those who received allowances of less than $15 per day or 12½ cents per mile are automatically deemed to have submitted an itemized accounting to the government, and need not itemize receipts and expenditures unless they failed to spend all allowances received for authorized purposes or spent more than such allowances and wish to deduct the excess as a loss on the tax return.

Travel Allowances

Certain questions applicable to per diem and travel allowances have been added to the three types of income tax returns. Form 1040A, the "short form" may not be filed by taxpayers who have a travel or per diem gain or a loss which they wish to deduct. In addition, those who received allowances in excess of the figures listed above may not file the short form, but must check the box in item eight to show that they did receive such allowances.

Two questions appear on Form 1040 and Form 1040W, the longer forms, immediately following item 20 on Form 1040 and item 15 on Form 1040W The first, "Did you receive an allowance or reimbursement or charge expenses to your employer?" should be answered, "Yes," by all who received travel and per diem allowances.

Itemized Account

The second question, "Did you submit an itemized accounting of expenses to your employer?" should be answered, "Yes," by all who received allowances of less than $15 per day or 12½ cents per mile. For those who did not show a gain or loss which they wish to deduct, no further action is required.

Any personnel who show a gain or a deductible loss or who received allowances in excess of those listed above should itemize their receipts and expenditures just as in the past, reporting the difference on line five, Form 1040 and line three, Form 1040W. Allowances for travel of dependents are not reportable as income and expenses of travel for dependents are not deductible.

Students Set High Mark Despite Rain

Some one hundred eager officer candidates of the 50th Company, 5th Student Battalion, The Student Brigade, recently braved cold, rain, and ice to rack up an above-average rate of completions on the rigorous Leadership Reaction Course.

The officer candidates, comprising three platoons of the company, finished 43.2 per cent of the problems tackled. Taking into consideration the extremely adverse weather conditions which hampered efforts, the platoons' 43.2 per cent mark is an excellent showing, according to the Leadership Training Committee.

Officer candidate companies negotiating the Dixie Village course average about 41.2 per cent completions. No data is available as to the record rate of problem completions.

The course, which was set up in 1954, is designed to test the initiative, ingenuity, agility, and organizations ability of the prospective combat leader. It is made up of a series of problems simulating problems which would confront the soldier on the battlefield.

Named Chairman

Major Robert H. Hight has been named chairman of the Mechanical Training Committee of The Infantry School's Ground Mobility Department. He has served as an instructor in basic engine subjects on the committee since August, 1958.

Chaplain's Corner

By CHAPLAIN (1st Lt.) WILLIAM R. FRENCH

International Communism has accused religion as being the opiate of the people. Sometimes this has disturbed us for we must admit that many times our religious convictions are merely a sedative that soothes reality.

When a man says, "I believe in God", is that enough? Perhaps our belief is shallow and not really faith at all. Today, with so much emphasis on positive thinking and believing our faith may be mere credulity. It is not the belief or faith that is of first importance but the object of our faith.

Look at the scriptural definition of faith. "Faith is the evidence of things not seen." (Heb 11:1) That is, faith is the proof of something that is not obvious to the senses but already exists.

Our strength is not in our faith but the Object of our faith, God's grace. We read, "by grace on ye saved through faith". (Eph 2:8)

True religion is reliance. When a man has true faith he completely relies in the Object of that faith, the grace of God.

The man of faith is not disturbed by the attack that religion is an opiate to soothe the mind.

His faith is more than a body of ideas but a reliance, a trust in the grace of God that is assured in the person of Christ.

P-TA Group Host Allied Speakers

Speakers from Bolivia, Chile, Republic of China, Denmark, Iran, Portugal and Saudi Arabia discussed education in their countries at a recent meeting of the Post Parent - Teacher Association.

Major Luiz Teran Reque of Bolivia, Major Oscar Bradanovic of Chile, Major Chi - Wu Chang of the Republic of China and Major Poul Holger Glesner of Denmark, students in The Infantry School's Officer Career Class 1; Capt. Daryoosh Azadi of Iran, Capt. Luiz Francisco Carreiro da Camara of Associate Officer Career Class 2, and Mrs. Fadel Elyan, wife of Capt Fadel Elyan of Saudi Arabia, also of Associate Officer Career Class 2, appeared on the program in Faith School Auditorium.

"In 1953, under our present president, a program was initiated in which all literate citizens teach one illiterate person. Also improved farming methods were taught and the Army provided elementary education," the Bolivian officer said.

"Elementary school includes kindergarten through sixth grade in my country. More than 800 finished elementary school in the Army last year. Our soldiers must finish elementary school in civilian life after concluding military service," Major Reque added.

"Education is free, even university tuition. It is supported by taxes of the central government," he stated.

Major Bonilla of Chile said he has three sons in Wilbur and Faith Schools, so he has had first - hand comparison of the two educational systems.

"Similar to Bolivia, Chile has six years in elementary school, six years in high school and five to seven for college and graduate study. All schooling, even the university, is free. A student has to pay only for books," he continued.

I believe our schedule of classes is more comprehensive than in the U. S. An eighth grader has such subjects as chemistry, botany and zoology. The U. S. school has more time to devote to individual subjects. A Chilean teacher can explain something only once; there is usually no time for more. I conclude that your system produces a more even average of students," Major Bonilla stated.

Major Chang of China explained that education in his country is divided into three phases, six years of compulsory primary school, six years of middle school and four years at university level.

"In primary school, no fee or tuition is required. The parents have to furnish only school uniforms, Boy or Girl Scout uniforms. In primary school, the emphasis is on academic subjects," he said.

"Many middle schools have been established by the government, but the entrance exam is very difficult. If the student fails this examination, he can go to a private middle school. Teachers have middle income in my country but are highly respected as we grew up to honor the Confucian tradition of learning," Major Chang stressed.

Major Glesner stated, "Denmark has had scattered education in the monasteries since 800 A. D. The University of Copenhagen was established in 1479. In 1739 the Danish public elementary schools were founded."

"Children start to school at seven in my country," he explained. "From seven to 11 they are in primary school. Then they divide into two groups to complete their education through the age of 15," he said, adding that students in the top half of their class must take an examination at 15 which determines if they may attend three additional years of school. For the 16 to 18-year-old, studies center on classical and modern languages, mathematics and natural sciences. Entrance to university requires passing yet another qualifying exam."

Capt. Azadi of Iran said children start formal schooling in his country at the age of seven.

"The elementary school covers six years. For the first four, students go only to morning classes. High school offers all fields, then another three years during which the student specializes in subjects associated with the career he has selected," he explained.

"High schools are either public or private. The private schools are partially supported by the government in such things as teacher's salaries and purchase of equipment. Boys and girls go to separate high schools, Capt. Azadi pointed out.

Capt. Camara of Portugal said primary school in his country, too, is free and compulsory.

"All students start at seven years and the course is four years long. High school is seven long and is free," he continued.

Mrs. Elyan told the group that the government supports and supervises the schools and universities in Saudi Arabia.

"The elementary school is six years; high school, six years, and university, four to five years. The child enters school at six years," she said.

"Saudi Arabia is the center of the Moslem religion. More than one and one-half million pilgrims visit Mecca each year. Religious instruction is emphasized at all levels of education," she stressed.

Mrs. Koch Attends Initial Student Brigade Lunch

Ladies of The Student Brigade met for their February luncheon at the Custer Terrace Officers' Mess recently. Ladies of the entire Brigade were hostesses for the occasion.

Invitation, decoration, program, finance and hospitality functions were, respectively, accomplished by wives of the Brigade Headquarters, Infantry School Battalion, 5th Student Battalion, 2nd Student Battalion and 4th Student Battalion.

The dining room was gaily decorated with cupids, flowers, valentines and hat boxes, denoting a theme of "Valentines Day".

The ladies attending the luncheon were seated, in groups of four, at 10 tables.

The Program Committee had the unique idea of having each group make a hat from items found in hat boxes placed on each table.

The colorful chapeaux were then modeled.

Mrs. Gene Crislip received a quaint hat as a door prize.

Mrs. Otto R. Koch Jr., attending her first Brigade luncheon, was introduced to the group. Other newcomers attending were Mrs. John Robert Smith, Mrs. Roy G. Ray and Mrs. Betty Ratliff.

Mrs. Robertson Is Hostess For Monthly Coffee

Mrs. Charles C. Robertson Jr. was hostess at her home to the ladies of Company Tactics Committee, Command and Staff, for a recent coffee. Welcomed into the group were Mrs. Woodrow Laws and Mrs. John M. Welch.

Honored guests were Mrs. Richard W. Keyes, her mother, Mrs. W. L. Blair; Mrs. Eugene M. Orton and Col. Orton's mother, Mrs. E. D. Orton; and Mrs. Fred Berlin, mother of Mrs. Lawrence E. Zimmerman.

Joan Bennett To Star In Royal Theater Play

When Joan Bennett comes to the stage of the Royal Theater at 8:30 p.m. tomorrow night in "The Pleasure of His Company," she will be co-starring with Donald Cook for the sixth time.

In 1956-57 they toured the country in Alfred de Liagre's production of the Carolyn Green comedy "Janus." In 1958 they appeared together on Broadway in John G. Fuller's "Love Me Little," and for the past three summers they have trouped the strawhat circuit in "Anniversary Waltz," "Once More With Feeling" and "Kind Sir."

Like her equally famous sister, Constance, Miss Bennett has devoted the better part of her career to Hollywood. Since "Bulldog Drummond," her first picture in 1929, she has been a principal in more than 70 films.

Samuel Goldwyn's talent scouts lured Joan Bennett away from the legitimate theater in 1932. She was making her Broadway debut in "Jarnegan" under the experienced eye of her father, Richard Bennett, star and director of the play. Mr. Bennett, as famous for his acting ability as for his out-spoken views on virtually any topic under the sun, vehemently voiced his low opinion of film acting for beginning performers. Despite her father's diatribe, and with his reluctant blessing, Joan followed Constance — already a screen luminary — to the west coast.

Reminiscing recently, Miss Bennett unconsciously echoes—with less violence — her father's conviction. "Pictures," she said, "have been very good to me. But the stage was my first love, and still is. If I had it to do all over, I think I would have stayed in the legitimate theater. You get much better training in fundamentals —voice projection, timing and ensemble work."

The glamorous Miss Bennett, who once wrote a book called "How to Be Attractive," is one of the best - dressed actresses in America. She will wear fashions from her own wardrobe when she appears here Saturday. Among them are two Hattie Carnegie creations and others by Don Loper, Sophie of Saks Fifth Avenue and Pauline Trigere.

Masquers Give Lead For Comedy

"Children, I'd like you to meet your fathers," and with a sweeping gesture the gay heroine of the Masquers' comedy "Dear Charles" introduces her three children to their long-lost fathers, none of whom, incidentally, is married to their mother.

Playing the leading role of Denise, the mother, is Margo Carter, a veteran trouper by Masquers' standards.

A native of New England, Margo has had wide experience in the theater, both in summer stock and repertory companies. Summer stock experience includes the Old Orchard Beach Players, Maine and the Kennebunkport Players, Maine.

Repertory work includes the Park Players and the Belfry Club in Boston.

Student Wives

Mesdames L. A. Walsh, Jr., Julian H. Martin, Otto R. Koch Jr., and James Donaghey were introduced as special guests by Mrs. Carl E. Kasemeier during a recent coffee of ladies of the Associate Career Course 3, Detachment 2, 2nd Student Battalion. The Student Brigade Mesdames H. J. Winburn, C. R. Ferguson, R. W. Cherry, R. C. Brainard, H. E. Kelley, R. I. Newton and J. A. Simpson were named as hostesses for the March meeting. Mrs. Vern L. Joseph and Mrs. John L. Gibbs attended.

Candidate Wives

Mesdames Joe Zimmers, Norman Davis, Rolf Mijares, Cecil Harris and Louis Testa were hostesses for the recent coffee of the wives of officer candidates of the 52nd Company. The Student Brigade Honor guests were Mesdames L. A. Walsh, Jr., O. R. Koch, Jr., Richard Ulrich, Gene Luthultz, Robert Sage and Kent Elliot.

New Wives Group

The newly organized wives group of the officers of the Infantry Center G-4 Section recently held their first luncheon at the Main Officers' Open Mess. Hostesses were Mesdames D. D. Dixon, J. E. Boothe, C. G. Davis, Jr., E. D. McDonald and J. C. Wein. Farewell was extended to Mrs. W. C. Williamson and guests were Mrs. E. Maude Pendley, mother of Mrs. T. K. Goodman and Mrs. Vera L. Boothe, mother of Col. J. E. Boothe. The group slated their next luncheon for March 21.

Ohio Visitors

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Berlin of Youngstown, Ohio, were recent visitors to Capt. and Mrs. Lawrence E. Zimmerman, their daughter and son-in-law, en route to a Florida vacation. Mrs. Berlin was honored at a coffee given by the ladies of the Company Tactics Committee, Command and Staff Department, The Infantry School.

The Chinese New Years Wives Lunch Theme

The Chinese New Year came in with a delightful luncheon last Wednesday, at the clubrooms of the NCO Wives with some 75 members and guests attending.

Mrs. Cecil Brewer and Mrs. Julian Fritz prepared and served a lovely luncheon of "Kai Chow Mein." Mrs. Brewer said that 'kai' means chicken; 'chow' is a combination of vegetables and 'mein' is noodles.

The ladies were served Chinese fortune cookies for dessert.

Guest of honor for the luncheon was Mrs. Richard Ulrich, who was introduced to the group and who made a brief talk on the new Student Brigade branch of the Protestant Women of the Chapels. Mrs. Ulrich invited all the ladies to attend the meetings.

With the sounds of "going, going, gone", a White Elephant auction began, with Mrs. Robert E. Lamb acting as auctioneer. Proceeds from the acution go into a special fund for the purchase of library books for the post school system libraries.

With the addition of some 35 new members this month, the NCO Wives extend an invitation to all other NCO wives in the area to come out and join the many activities now going on.

Furniture Scratch

If you have any scratches on dark wood furniture you may fix them with iodine. Dab it on with a cotton swab and wipe away the excess. For scratches on light wood, rub in shelled walnut halves.

Chapel Ladies' Coming Events

The February meeting of The Student Brigade Protestant Women of the Chapel was held recently at the Religious Education Center. The featured speaker was Mrs. Arthur J. Estes. Her topic was "Hearts."

Mrs. John E. Rogers, the hostess, sang a solo entitled "The Love of God", following the speaker.

The projects chairman, Mrs. Herman Davis, announced the dates for projected coming events. Included will be a visit to the County Alms House today and a party for a ward at Martin Army Hospital, in March. A fellowship supper is planned for March 5, in the Chaplain's section of The Student Brigade.

Sewing, sewing, sewn! Mrs. Philip Kaplan's pupils have put the last finishing touches on their spring suits, and new classes will be beginning Tuesday night, February 28. And speaking of spring, I'm catching its effects prematurely: a wistfulness for rides in a bare - topped sports car, a picnic on a checkered tablecloth by the river, lazy strolls to nowhere in particular, and maybe a sniff of salt breeze on the Gulf. As it is, my neighbors are moving in and out, and the moving-vans carry on, spring fever or no spring fever. I guess you could say the moving vans and I have a short of kinship.

Peg Teeters and Veronica Lange faced the TV camera on this morning's "At Home With Rozell" show, to talk about Basil Rathbone's appearance at Fort Benning. Veronica has a wide range of knowledge for fine art, extemporaneous speaking, and Sherlock Holmes' author, Sir Arthur Conan Doyle. Doyle, it seems, was irritated that his detective character he created became more famous than his other works of fiction. But, of course, he had compensation . . . he could "cry all the way to the bank!"

MARTIN ARMY HOSPITAL MEDICAL WIVES ARE SEEN AS MODELS
The Ladies Modeled Latest Sports and Street Fashions at Luncheon

Medical Wives Club Luncheon

The Martin Army Hospital Wives Club in conjunction with the Columbus Medical Auxiliary sponsored a luncheon and spring fashion show last week at the Main Officers' Open Mess.

The wives of the Medical Department, who were hostesses for the occasion, decorated the tables with individual black dress forms surrounded by pink and black butterflies and pink carnations. A large black butterfly mobile decorated the model's platform.

The fashions, modeled by sixteen of the hospital wives, were from leading Columbus shops. The shops presented the latest spring sportswear and the newest styles in suits and afternoon and cocktail dresses.

Mr. Jack Shiffman narrated the show and Mrs. Thomas Reading accompanied him on the piano.

NANCY HUDDLESTON

Texas Girl Hospital Sweetheart

A Texas girl has been named "Sweetheart of Martin Army Hospital."

Mrs. Nancy Huddleston, wife of 2nd Lt. Joe D. Huddleston of Fort Worth, was the winner of a sweetheart contest sponsored by the American Red Cross Field Office at the hospital.

Each patient was asked to submit the picture of his wife, daughter, sister or a friend. The pictures were mounted on red cutout hearts and displayed in the wards. A winner for each ward was selected.

Eight ward-winning pictures entered a final contest on Valentine Day. The judging took place during a party staged by the Red Cross.

The American Red Cross is sending a box of candy to the winner.

Mrs. Ornstein Is Hostess To Ranger Ladies

The wives of the Defense Committee of The Infantry School's Ranger Department and guests, Mrs. John Meads and Mrs. Edward Bjorn, gathered at the home of Mrs. Alvin Ornstein on Valentines Day.

A Valentine theme was carried out in the decorations highlighted by a lovely pink gum drop tree centerpiece with Cupid resting on one of the branches.

Mrs. Ornstein served sherry and openfaced sandwiches of Egg salad, Tuna salad, Crab salad, and Cream cheese with nuts in the various shapes of Bells, Diamonds, Bars, and Hearts. Candy dishes were filled with Gum drops and Mint hearts.

State Department Official

Speaker Tells of Oil, Middle East Strategy

The strategic importance of the Middle East cannot be overemphasized, Edwin M. Wright, head of the Department of Career Studies of the Foreign Service Institute, U.S. Department of State, told officer career classes of The Infantry School recently.

Speaking on the critical area touching on the Persian Gulf, Arabian Sea, Red Sea and Eastern Mediterranean, he explained that the Communists seek to control people, movements and ideas coming out of the region.

Born in Iran of American parents, Mr. Wright, was principal of Presbyterian Missionary High School there from 1921 to 1937 and, since World War II has served in the State Department as an expert on Middle Eastern affairs.

"There are 18 chartered airlines and more non-chartered ones, equalling about 30 airlines operating in the Middle East. Their constriction to rather narrow bands because of water and deserts mean they can be easily controlled. This allows a squeeze on channels of communication which are so narrow, and so strategic to the world," he pointed out.

"The Arab world feels highly abandoned because of the support the Western World has given Israel. They have experienced something of imperialism and object to it. They have no sense of Soviet imperialism and consider the Soviets as Boy Scouts in helping other countries," Mr. Wright stressed. He added that the states which live close to the Soviet Union, such as Iran know something of the Russian character.

"Today there is a tremendous glut of oil in the world. This oil is largely the story of the Middle East," Mr. Wright told the group.

He outlined that the strata of the Persian Gulf areas are conducive to cheap production of oil. Located in large amounts, the oil slushes in domes, pressured by hugh reservoirs of gas, and does not even have to be pumped out, he said.

"The average oil well in the U. S. produces about 12 barrels a day. The average for a well in the Middle East is 7,000 barrels a day," the speaker stated. He noted that Iran has a total of 18 wells which produce 800,000 barrels daily. It costs less than 25 cents a barrel to produce.

Mr. Wright also discussed Kuwait, "the oil center of the world." The tiny sheikdom on the Persian Gulf has a population of 250,000 and an oil income in excess of $350 million annually.

"Kuwait's two fields have an estimated 60 billion barrels of oil. A million and one - half barrels a day are shipped out of just one of its ports. Kuwait has enough oil to supply the entire world for 25 years. And it is the cheapest oil in the world, 20 cents a barrel," he continued.

"The total of oil credited in the Persian Gulf area is 175 to 200 billion barrels," he added.

Mr. Wright brought out the problems of boundaries, how to divide and spend oil profits, and means of getting the oil to consumers.

"Boundaries in the Middle East were created by Europeans for the interest of Europeans. This resulted in definite states such as Jordan. The region is basically nomadic and boundaries don't mean anything to nomadic peoples, he said, also noting the Arab nations' desire to share in the tremendous profits from such areas as Kuwait, which is administered by the British.

"At present, 50 per cent of oil profits go to the country. Iran and Iraq have rather good plans for using this money. Iran has a program of expansion including school health improvement and dam construction. It has completed the sixth largest dam in the world and now has the third largest under construction," he commented. He added that Iraq's excellent program is behind schedule due to changes in government, but is being stepped up once more.

"As to the question of how to get the oil out, the obvious answer is pipelines. All the pipelines now run through the United Arab Republic and are therefore vulnerable. Pipelines are the cheapest way, but will not be further developed because of their vulnerability, Mr. Wright said.

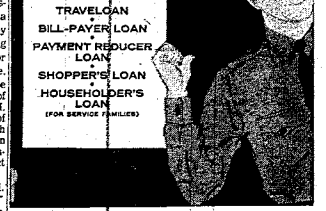
Annual Americanism Contest Starts in Schools Here Today



Preliminaries in the annual Sojourners Americanism contest at the Post Children's Schools will begin today with 246 eighth graders submitting themes on "What America Means to Me."

Outstanding themes from the nine eighth grades will be submitted by the teachers to a panel of judges from the school who will narrow the contestants to five. The finalists will present their themes orally in a special program April 7. They will receive prizes ranging from a $25 bond and $10 for first place to $5 for fifth place.

Preliminary judges will be J. James Shiver, principal of Faith School, Mrs. Mildred H. Carter, assistant principal of the school, and Miss Elizabeth Morris, Mrs. Joyce Jameson and Thomas Chambliss, teachers. The Sojourners will select the judges for the finals.

Chaplain (Capt.) Richard J. Carty, who is assigned to The Infantry Center Chaplain's Section, is the project officer for the event.

The Americanism program has been conducted nationally by the Sojourners for the past 25 years. The Benning program won honorable mention at the national level two years ago, according to Chaplain (Major) James H. Fiser, division chaplain's Section, Sojourners program chairman.

Trans Loses Col Johnson To Mid East

By 12th Trans PIO

More than 300 members of the 12th Transportation Battalion recently attended a farewell ceremony for Lieutenant Colonel Walter R. Johnson at Theatre Number Seven.

Colonel Johnson delivered a farewell message upon his departure from the Division to Iran as chief military advisor on transportation matters to the Iranian government.

In his address, he stated that the 12th Transportation Battalion "is the finest organization that it have served with since launching my military career in 1942." He also stressed the needs of a transportation battalion within an Infantry division.

At the conclusion of his speech, Colonel Johnson thanked members of the 12th "who had done so much in helping achieve such a high standard for the Battalion."

As a climax to his tour with the unit, Colonel Johnson was awarded the Army Commendation Medal. First Oak Leaf Cluster., for service as Battalion Commander and Division Transportation Officer.

NEW MARS EQUIPMENT . . . Specialist Fifth Class John Langford works on a teletype terminal equipment recently installed at the Division's MARS radio station on Kelley Hill.

Div's MARS Station Adds New Facilities

BY 122ND SIGNAL PIO

The 2nd Division MARS station, W4FUL, has now made contact with all 50 states in the United States plus 17 other countries from as close as Canada and Mexico to as far away as Argentina and Union of South Africa.

Recently added to the present facilities of the station located on Kelley Hill has been a new radio teletype terminal equipment. The equipment, which was declared surplus by the Army, replaces home-made equipment previously used and was placed into operation by the station NCOIC, Sergeant First Class James C. Ingram, with the help of Specialist Fifth Class John Langford.

World Wide

MARS is sponsored by the Army and the Air Force with separate facilities, giving world wide coverage. The abbreviation stands for Military Affiliate Radio System and is composed of civilian as well as military radio operators. These operators maintain a radio net that stands ready at any time to maintain a communications capability, in case a disaster knocks out all other types of communications.

In order to maintain proficiency of the operators, messages running from semi-official to unofficial and personal messages are accepted and transmitted to other MARS stations. These messages may run from emergency parts requisitions and Red Cross inquiries to birthday greetings to a man's girl friend or mother.

Amateur

The 2nd Division station has operating hours from 8 a.m. to 11 p.m. Any personel interested in amateur radio and desiring to obtain an amateur license may obtain instruction from Sergeant Ingram and Specialist Langford in learning to use code and how to use the equipment available in the station. Equipment available for use are AM radio transmitters and receivers and radio teletype. Any licensed operators assigned to the Division are encouraged to use the facilities of the station.

9th Inf Has Five in Cast Of 'At War'

By 9th Inf PIO

The cast of Service Club Two's forth-coming production of "At War With The Army" includes no less than five members of the 9th Infantry.

Lieutenant Nelson Marsh, 9th public information officer, is directing James B. Allardice's farce, and the 9th's Chaplain, Lieutenant Mace T. Jett, appears in the role of Lieutenant Terray.

Private First Class David Csayi, whose civilian theatrical career has included numerous stints in summer stock and New York night clubs, plays Sergeant Kreiger. Other roles are handled by Corporal Paul DeWinter and Private First Class Roy Hamby.

Lieutenant Marsh, the director of the Service Club's last August production of "Fistful of Rain," announced that the comedy will play March 19, 26 and 27 at Service Club Two, and April 9 at Fort Rucker, Alabama.

All male members of the cast are assigned to the 2nd Division.

Division's 702nd Ordnance Bn. Boasts Their Superior Sergeant Major Baker

By 702nd Ord Bn PIO

During his campaign and since his election, President Kennedy has consistently emphasized the fact that a citizen must ask himself "what can I do for my country". A soldier citizen must go one step further. The soldier must also, ask himself, "What can I do for the Army?".

Can YOU ask these questions of yourself and be satisfied with the answer you must receive. Sure, you doing something for your country by the mere fact that you are wearing the uniform. But how are you wearing it? With honor, pride and respect for it?

One soldier who can answer these questions honestly and receive a positive answer is Sergeant Major Reno A. Baker, Sergeant Major of the 702nd Ordnance Battalion. A veteran of twenty-one years service, he has performed his duties in an outstanding manner at all times. For his meritorious service, he has been awarded the Army Commendation Medal on three occasions, in addition to enumerous Letters of Commendation.

Upon assignment to the Ordnance Battalion of the 2nd Infantry Division, he was an ordnance soldier for the first time in his career. He remained a soldier. Without complaint, he dug in, studied ordnance procedures, and gained technical

OVUREP Unit Ends Tour Here; Departs

BY GEORGE HORD

A change of colors ceremony and a minature review February 16 climaxed the stateside tour of the 1st Battle Group, 11th Infantry as it prepared to continue its mission as an OVUREP unit (Overseas Unit Replacement) in Korea.

The colorful ceremony took place at Kelley Hill's Essebagger Field where Colonel George D. Patterson presented the battle group colors to Colonel John E. Arthur, who will command the new 11th Infantry.

The 11th Infantry under Colonel Patterson has finished 33 weeks of training. The battle group left Fort Benning February 20 for California from where it was to depart for Korea to become the 2nd Battle Group, 3rd Infantry, 7th Infantry Division.

Major General Hugh P. Harris, commanding general of the United States Army Infantry Center, was the reviewing officer. He was accompanied on the reviewing stand by Brigadier General William L. Hardick, 2nd Infantry Division commanding general. Commander of troops was Colonel Ernest C. Dameron, 2nd Division deputy brigade commander.

General Harris, a former member of the 11th Infantry, extended a thank you for the work the 2nd Division has done in preparing the battle group.

He wished the 11th Infantry a fine trip "best of luck and God speed."

Honored guests for the event were Major General (retired) Charles H. White Sr., father of Brigadier General Charles H. White Jr., commanding general of 2nd Division Artillery, Brigadier General Louis A. Walsh Jr., assistant command-

2nd Division Designates Religious Emphasis Day

Sunday, March 19, 1961, has been designated as the second semi-annual 2nd Infantry Division Religious Emphasis Sunday.

The first occasion, when particular emphasis was given recently at the religious program of the Division, was on October 16, 1960. At that time it was found that division personnel responded very well with increased attendance at chapel services and by availing themselves of the opportunity to become better acquainted with one another under the best possible circumstances.

On this day it is not intended to draw anyone from normal and regular participation in chapel or church services elsewhere. Specifically this is an endeavor to stimulate and develop on a lasting basis those chapel activity potentialities within the bounds of the present program.

Attractive posters, calling the attention of Division personnel to Religious Emphasis Sunday, are being distributed to all units. Various special projects are also developed along unit and area lines.

At present there are fourteen chaplains assigned to the 2nd Infantry Division, eleven Protestant and three Roman Catholic.

Religious services for division personnel are held regularly in the five World War II cantonement-type chapels located at Sand Hill and three-facility-type chapels located in the Kelley Hill area. Jewish personnel are provided with a well-planned program wherein they attend weekly services each Friday evening and special Holy Day observances at the Main Post Jewish religious center.

It is anticipated that present facilities will be expanded, to provide a more effective chapel and chaplain activities program, with the opening of a newly constructed regimental-type chapel in the Kelly Hill area in July 1961.

Arrivals

The 9th Infantry gained two NCO's February 8 as Sergeant Santiago Ibarra joined Company C and Specialist Fifth Class Christopher May was assigned to Company E. Sgt. Ibarra's last assignment was in Germany with the 40th Infantry, while Specialist May was with the Infantry School on Main Post.

Lt. Robert B. Dixon Jr., recently arrived for duty as a Forward Observer in the 17th Artillery. Lieutenant Dixon is a 1960 graduate of Davidson College, Davidson, N. C., where he majored in Business Administration. Lieutenant Dixon resides with his wife, Anne, at 12 Wilson Street, Columbus, Ga.

Lt. Robert G. Slaughter has arrived for duty with the 17th Artillery via Officer Candidate School at Fort Sill, Okla. He is presently attending airborne training, and upon completion he will assume duties as personnel officer. Lieutenant Slaughter resides with his wife, Catherine, at 4554 Sims Street, Columbus, Ga.

MSG Drexel R. Finley joined Company B, 69th Armor last week. MSG Finley came from the 35th Transportation Battalion of the 3rd Infantry Division. A veteran of 13 years services, MSG Finley, was a member of the 3rd Infantry Division when it gyroscoped to Germany from Fort Benning in 1958.

Departures

The 9th Infantry lost one officer and five noncommissioned officers due to reassignment last week.

Lieutenant Charles Bell of the 9th's Company D departed the battle group following the completion of his two-year Infantry detail. The Quartermaster Corps officer will attend the Quartermaster School at Fort Lee, Va. He served as backfield coach for the 1960 Fort Benning Doughboys football squad.

The 9th Infantry's S-3 section lost Sergeant First Class Richard Burnett to the 11th Infantry. SFC Burnett had served with the same unit for seven years under five different unit designation changes.

Joining SFC Burnett in assignment to the 11th Infantry was Sergeant Robert Cunningham of Company B. The U.S. Eighth Army in Korea will receive two of the NCOs in the persons of Sergeant First Class Kenneth Pickett of Company D and Sergeant Arzell Gates of Company C.

Also leaving the 9th Infantry was Sergeant James Young of Headquarters Company. He was reassigned to the Infantry Center at Main Post.

Fourteen men of the 122nd Signal Battalion recently left or are due to leave in the next few days for new assignments.

The men and their assignments are Master Sergeant O. C. Raley, Acting Battalion Sergeant Major, for Germany; Sergeant First Class Barton Lawrence, Battalion Reenlistment NCO, for the Army Pictorial Center, Long Island; Sergeant Max Comstock, Battalion Clerk, for First Army Headquarters Governors Island; and Sergeant Lewis Pippen, Wire Team Chief From Headquarters Company for Korea.

Men from Company B are Sergeant Ernest Teschlog, VHF Platoon Sergeant for Fort Dix; and Specialist Four Peter Rourke Jr. for Fort Belvoir. The following men from Company B are all slated for Korea: Sergeant First Class Karl Holloway, VHF School instructor; Sergeant Richard Burton, Training and Reenlistment NCO, Sergeant Roy Carter, Wireman; Sergeant Richard Prunier, Radio Carrier Operator; Specialist Five William Bullock Jr., Carrier Equipment Repairman; Specialist Four Benny Dalrymple, Radio Repairman; and Private First Class James Mastingill and Private John Miller, Communications Center Specialists.

Lieutenant Gerald R. Jennings departed February 3 from his assignment as Command and Operations Platoon Leader of Company A, 122nd Signal Battalion.

He is presently attending Jump School at the Infantry School before departing for his new assignment to Korea.

Graduates

Sergeant William O. Riggs, a member of Company A, (Forward Support), 702nd Ordnance Battalion, graduated recently from the 2nd Infantry Division Noncommissioned Officer Academy.

Recently, two soldiers from Headquarters Battery, 38th Artillery, received a certificate indicating their successful completion of a High School General Education Development Test. Private Jackie R. Barnett and Private First Class Billy F. Stephens were personally congratulated by their battalion commander, Lieutenant Colonel John B. Finnegan.

WELCOME . . . Colonel Ernest C. Dameron, deputy brigade commander, welcomes trainees of the 7th Cavalry to the division and to the unit as they entered into the first phase of Basic Training recently. Members of the staff of the 7th Cavalry listen in during the ceremony which took place at Theater Number 6.

TI Room Built For Personnel At Ordnance

By 702nd Ord Bn PIO

Troop Information, a vital subject in the soldier's everyday life, will receive a boost in the 702nd Ordnance Battalion in the near future. In an effort to interest the individual soldier in this program, a new Troop Information Room is presently undergoing construction.

This was necessitated due to the poor location of the previous site used for Troop Information. Now, it will be centrally located and available to all personnel of the battalion. All materials placed in the TI Room will place particular emphasis on the "Are You Doing A Man's Job", and "What Are You Doing For the Army" projects.

Personnel working conscientiously, utilizing a number of off duty hours, insure completion shortly. Utilizing salvage materials, every effort is being made to make the room comfortable for the soldier. Although primarily established for the transmission of information material, it will also be used as a Reading and Writing Room.

Boasts

knowledge in fields that he had left unexplored before. After getting his feet on the ground technically, Sergeant Major Baker reorganized the administrative activities throughout the battalion. Results of his efforts may be seen in the results of Annual General Inspections conducted during FY 60 and 61. In both cases, the battalion achieved an overall superior administratively.

Sergeant Major Baker has answered the question as to what he can do for the Army and will continue to answer it until his retirement. Reevaluate yourself and determine if you can justify a "Yes" answer to this question. Remember, in doing for the Army, you are doing for your country.

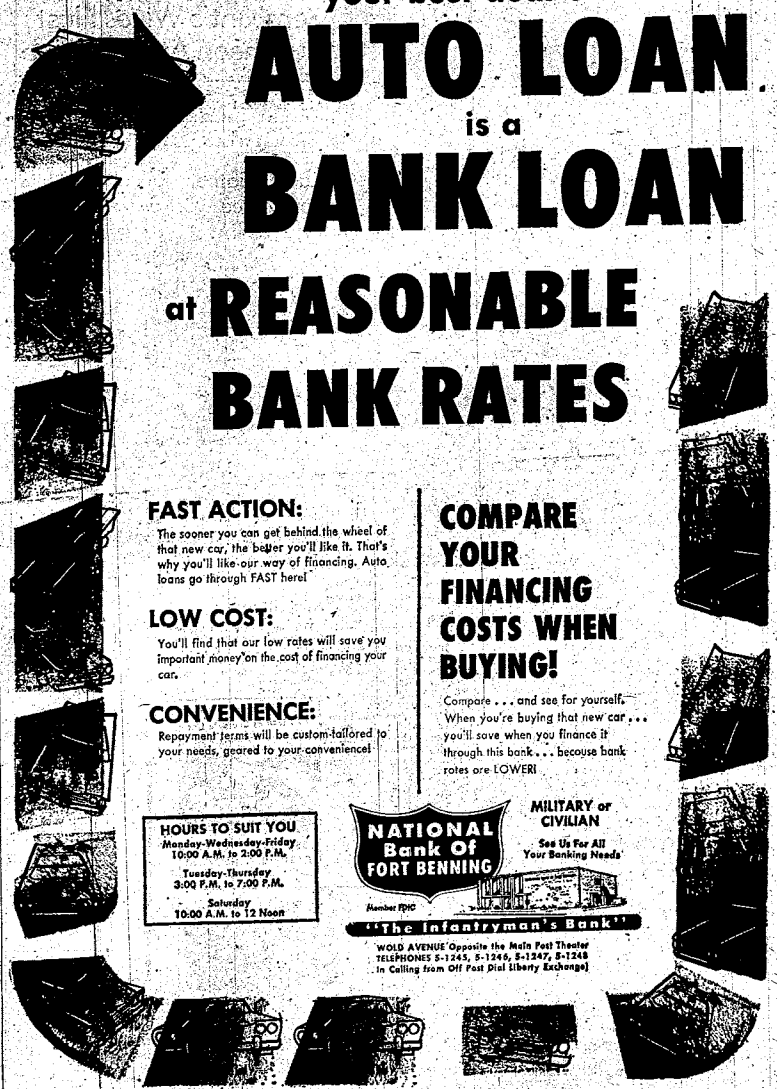
New Instructional Theme Adopted

By MCD Academy PIO

The 2nd Infantry Division Noncommissioned Officer Academy has adopted "New Frontiers" as the theme of its 1961 Program of Instruction, the mission of which is to broaden the professional knowledge of the NCO and instill in him the self-confidence and sense of responsibility required of a capable leader of men.

All lesson plans for the program have been revised and rewritten to include the latest Army doctrines and concepts. Several new subjects have been introduced and previous subjects deemed less desirable to the mission of the academy have been eliminated.

The former policy of giving students an outline of conferences for each hour of instruction has been revised. In keeping with the "New Frontier" theme, the students are issued an outline booklet for each course which is kept in a notebook provided by the student. This allows the student to keep his notes in one notebook in a logical order to facilitate studying for examinations and to provide a ready reference when he returns to his unit.



The new location at Harmony Church has made it possible to give each student more time for study and improved study facilities. Each student has an individual cubicle in the barracks which is provided with a desk and chair. A study period is held each night for two hours with attendance being mandatory during the second week of the four week course. During this study period, all activities, other than study, are halted and a quiet atmosphere is maintained. An instructor is available during this period to provide assistance to any student needing help. Classrooms are also available each night for rehearsals of student presentations. Work details for students, such as cleaning classrooms, are kept to a minimum. However, the students must maintain their barracks personal area and equipment in conformance with the standards required by the academy.

Addition of outside practical work is the major change in the tactics course. Included in the new program are problems in defense, attack, and patrolling. Map reading has also included practical work in its program. Students are required to complete a four hour map and compass course.

The Dismounted Drill and Physical Training Committee has revised its program to allow students more time for rehearsals in preparation for the graded presentations. Results of graded presentations revealed that the majority of students benefited from the change, since the average score for the present class surpassed those of previous classes.

A leader's Reaction Course is the contribution of the Leadership Committee to the "New Frontier." This course was built in the vicinity of the academy by the instructors. Consisting of a series of ten problems, the course is designed to identify the leadership strengths and weaknesses of each student as a basis for self-evaluation and subsequent improvement. Each student is counseled by a leadership instructor at the conclusion of the course. This is a confidential counseling period designed to point out any strengths or weaknesses observed during the course and to give advice on how the student can improve his leadership ability.

Here and There

GATHERING

The ladies of the 2nd Battle Group, 9th Infantry, had their monthly bridge on Wednesday evening, February 15, in the Normandy Room of the Main Officers Open Mess with Mrs. John Ozaki and Mrs. Fred Darden as hostesses. High score for the evening was won by Mrs. James L. Osgard, second high by Mrs. Frank J. Gundaker. Next months hostesses will be Mrs. John V. Swango and Mrs. Sheron Weary.

BRIDGE

Captain and Mrs. Earl A. Patterson, 2nd Battle Group, 9th Infantry, were hostesses for three tables of bridge on Friday evening, February 17. Attending were Captain and Mrs. William P. Sewell, Captain and Mrs. Benjamin M. Hamilton, Captain and Mrs. Thomas J. Towle, Lt. and Mrs. Frank J. Gundaker and Lt. and Mrs. William F. Sanford. Captain Towle was high scorer for the evening. Cherry Pie a la mode was served.

HOUSEGUEST

Lt. and Mrs. James P. Newbill, 2nd Battle Group, 9th Infantry, have as their house guest for two weeks Mrs. Newbills mother, Mrs. Charles Reward, from Geneva, Switzerland. Mrs. Reward will depart via air on February 28.

Wedding Set For Teacher, Lieutenant

Mr. and Mrs. Fred E. Blackledge of Homerville, Georgia, announce the engagement of their daughter, Carolyn Ann, to Lieutenant Daniel William Caprio, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph G. Caprio of Newark, New Jersey.

Miss Blackledge received her Bachelor of Science degree from Valdosta State College, Valdosta, Georgia where she was a member of Zeta Chi sorority. At present she teaches third grade at Wilbur School, Fort Benning.

Lt. Caprio received his BS degree from Florida Southern College, Lakeland, Florida where he was a member of Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity. He is presently assigned to the S-3 section of the 2nd Battle Group, 9th Infantry.

The wedding will take place April 30 at the Main Post Protestant Chapel, Fort Benning.

Candle Use

You may make drawers slide easily by running the edges with the wax from a candle. The same candle will come in handy to stop castors from falling out of furniture legs. Fill the holes with melted wax and insert the castors before the paraffin sets. Let the furniture stand before righting it.

Cook of the Week

Our guest cook of the week is Mrs. Lucile Plourde, wife of Lieutenant Colonel Thomas Plourde, Executive Officer of the 2nd Battle Group, 1st Infantry. Colonel and Mrs. Plourde reside at 1808 Wynnton Road, Columbus, Georgia.

Mrs. Plourde gives us her recipe for Bohemian Rice:

½ stick oleomargarine
1 cup raw rice
1 onion, cut fine
1 scant teaspoon chile powder
½ teaspoon curry powder
1 tablespoon parsley flakes
1 can beef consomme
¾ can water
1 small can mushrooms

Brown raw rice in oleomargarine. Then brown the chopped onion. Mix all ingredients together in casserole. Bake 1½ hours at 350 degrees, stirring occasionally. Serves four to six people.

HELPFUL HINTS

Sauerbraten: A German pot roast of beef which has been marinated, then cooked with diluted vinegar, numerous spices, and vegetables.

Cut stuffed olives in half and place on cocktail picks with a tiny piece of cheese in center.

Combine cream cheese with chopped onion or chives; form in small balls on cocktail picks, and roll in finely chopped dried beef, grated carrot, minced parsley, or finely chopped nuts.

Baba: A yeast raised cake, often flavored with rum, fruit, or fruit juices.

Apple Pie: Add cinnamon to crust.

Glamor Front

Glamorous - looking eyebrows may be achieved with a professional touch if you make sure that the end of your eyebrow pencil is sharpened to a chisel or wedge shape instead of a point. With a razor blade make a flat, broad edge on two sides. Use the flat edges for over-all shaping and for filling in. To sketch in the individual hairs, use the sharp, narrow edge.

9th Inf Clerk Trades Stripes for Silver Bar

BY 9TH INF. PIO

Promotion from Private First Class to First Lieutenant represents quite a large jump. However, such a promotion was received February 14 by the 9th Infantry's courts and boards clerk, PFC William M. Brown.

Brown received a direct commission as a reserve first lieutenant in the Judge Advocate General Corps with an effective active duty date of March 6 as a commissioned officer. On March 6, Brown will report to the 2nd Division Staff Judge Advocate section pursuant to departing for the Army JAG School at the University of Virginia at Charlottesville, Virginia.

Bar

Brown is a fully-qualified lawyer, holding a law degree from George Washington University, Washington, D. C. He also is a member of both the Bars of Law in Maryland and the District of Columbia. Brown gained his Bachelor of Arts degree in 1956 from Duke University in Durham, North Carolina, in English and vocal music. He graduated with his law degree in 1959.

Brown studied for the bar examinations for one year before receiving his call to the Army in March 1960. He took his basic training with the 23rd Infantry before joining the 9th as courts and boards clerk in July. Brown was sworn in as a member of the District of Columbia bar while still a basic trainee with the 23rd Infantry. He was sworn into the Maryland bar while on leave last June.

Singer

Brown has helped foster better community relations by presenting two lectures recently on political science to students at Columbus College as a special guest speaker. He has given his vocal talents each week to the St. Thomas Episcopal Church in Columbus. In addition he sangs the bass lead in the opera "Amahl and the Night Visitors," staged February 24 by the St. Thomas Church.

Prior to the Menotti opera, Brown's last public appearance involving serious music took place last Christmas Eve when he sang in the nationally - televised "Festival of Lessons and Carols" at the National Cathedral Episcopal Church of Mount Saint Alban in Washington. He sang in the National Cathedral choir for four years while attending George Washington University. In addition Brown taught advanced swimming at Duke for two years.

Other than music the native of upper Marlboro, Maryland claims the fox hunt as his favorite pastime.

Following Brown's 11 -week JAG course at Virginia, he will report to Fort Eustis, Virginia, for duty as an Army lawyer.

SHORTER COATS

It's considered chic this year to have a bit of your skirt showing beneath a full, flaring coat. The double-breasted seven-eighths length coat is especially popular.

BG Inspected for Readiness

By 87th Inf PIO

A "Technical Inspection" course is being conducted at the 87th Infantry as part of the OVUREP cadre training program.

The course is designed to acquaint the cadremen with the correct procedures used for inspecting the many types of technical equipment found in a modern infantry battle group.

Instruction by army and civilian experts covered several fields. Quartermaster personnel opened the first period of instruction.

They started with such basic items as individual clothing, pup tents, helmets and foot gear. Kitchen and field mess equipment received particular notice. Ordnance experts covered two vital military fields, weapons and vehicles.

The fine inspection points of the infantryman's basic tool, the M-1 Rifle, as well as the 81 mm mortar, 106 recoilless rifle and other weapons were gone into. The inspection features of the widely known jeep, the workhorse, two and a half ton truck, and other mobile equipment were discussed.

Radios and telephones were the special subject of signal experts. The radiac equipment required for nuclear warfare also came in for special study.

The blocks of instruction comprising the Technical Inspection course covered seven hours. Company officers, senior noncommissioned officers, and other specialists and junior noncommissioned officers attended the classes.

Ex-Navy Man Chosen SOM

By 23rd Inf PIO

An ex-Navy enlisted man was named 23rd Infantry Soldier of the Month last week. Specialist Fourth Class Michael J. Wolk of Company A was chosen by a board of First Sergeants to represent the Battle Group in the Division Soldier of the Month competition. The selection was based upon knowledge of military subjects and military bearing and appearance. Specialist Wolk was awarded a letter of commendation by the Battle Group Commander for his selection.

Specialist Wolk first came in contact with the armed services when he joined the Navy in May, 1954. His principal job in the Navy was that of aerial photographer, and he spent the first part of his hitch assigned to the Photographic Interpretation Center in Washington, D.C. He then served on the aircraft carrier USS Bennington as senior division Petty Officer. His school credits, while in the Navy, include graduating from the Naval Photographers School.

In April, 1959, Specialist Wolk entered the Army and was assigned to the 61st Artillery group as a photographer. He graduated from the 5th Army NCO School, Fort Carson, Colorado, just prior to being assigned to the 23rd Infantry.

The 23rd Infantry Soldier of the Month is married to a former Wave and has two children.

Pvt. Deitz Gets Commendation; Second Letter

By 1st Inf PIO

Private Wallace L. Deitz, Company C, 1st Infantry, was awarded a letter of commendation February 18 for attaining the highest score on the Advanced Individual Training test. The presentation was made by Colonel James H. Hayes, battle group commander.

This is Private Deitz's second commendation letter. He received the first when named the outstanding trainee of the Basic Combat Training phase.

Col. Hayes also awarded the first platoon of Company C with the best platoon plaque for the AIT phase. The platoon scored as the highest platoon, with the top squad, in the AIT proficiency test.

Col. Hayes commended the company on their outstanding performance and record through the BCT and AIT phases, especially for its overall performance.

The day was highlighted with a company party.

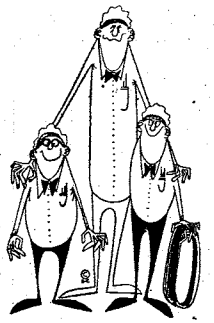
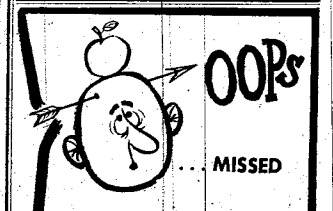
Div Trains Lists Gibson as SOM

By Div Trains PIO

Specialist Fourth Class Ernest F. Gibson, Headquarters and Headquarters Detachment, 2nd Infantry Division Trains, was selected as Soldier of the Month for Division Trains. The 21-year old Floridian was given the nod over his contemporaries for his soldierly appearance and knowledge of military subjects.



Specialist Gibson was presented a $25 Savings Bond and a fountain pen set by Colonel Jack R. Looney, commanding officer of 2nd Infantry Division Trains.



Specialist Gibson entered the Army in July 1958, and served an overseas tour in Korea with the 7th Infantry Division, upon completion of basic training at Fort Benning. Gibson is a clerk-typist in the Division Trains career counseler's office.

Manchus' Statistics Show Top Cage Performance

Compiled by 9th Inf. PIO

The 9th Infantry's 6'-6" pivotman, Rayvaughn Pryear, paced the unbeaten Division basketball champions in scoring and rebounds during the 2nd Division tournament concluded February 20 at the Harmony Church Field House.

Pryear rippled the nets for 128 points for the 9th Infantry cagers and an average of 21.3 points a game. He topped his team mates in field goals with 53 and in rebounds with 115. Pryear added 22 free throws in 34 attempts for a 64.7 per cent average.

Guard Harry Hall poured in 91 points for a 15.2 average per outing. He topped the 9th Infantrymen with 23 charity shots in 46 attempts and added 34 field goals, most of them coming on the fast break. Forward Eugene Bedard finished third in scoring with 60 points and an even 10 point average. He hit 10 of 18 free throw attempts.

Other 9th Infantry scorers included Paul Askew with 48 points in five games, Dennis Foy with 37 points in five contests, Jack Dispennett with 26 markers in three outings, John Delvin with 24 points in five games, and Max Powell with 14 points in five contests. Jackie Fannon wound up with eight points, Gerald Brevard had four, and Robert Mugford had two.

Pryear copped the top two game individual marks with 30 and 27 points against the 23rd Infantry and Division Trains, respectively. He also hit 23 against Division Artillery, 20 against the 1st Infantry and 18 against the 87th Infantry. Hall hit for 20 against Separate Battalions for his top contest. Askew camed 21 against the 1st Infantry and Bedard netted 23 during the 87th Infantry contest.

As a team the 9th Infantry cagers connected for 81 points against the 1st Infantry and 80 against Trains for their two high games. The 9th crew swept in 442 points for an average of 73.7 points per contest and allowed their opposition 299 points and an average of 50.2 markers a game.

9th Honors Unit Cagers At Banquet

By 9th Inf PIO

Some 40 members of the "Keep Up the Fire" 9th Infantry feasted on delicious steak dinners February 17 in a special banquet honoring the 9th's 2nd Division basketball champions.

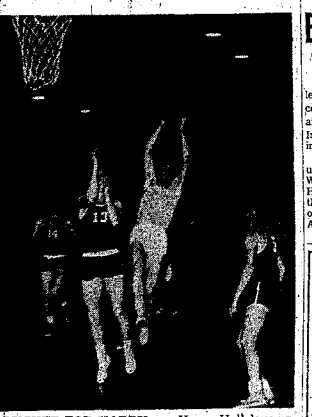
The honorees consisted of the 12 members of the championship squad, coached by Lieutenants Mac Powell and Leonard Katsarsky, Colonel James L. Osgard, 9th Infantry commander, congratulated the cagers on their undefeated record consisting of six victories in succession. The Colonel then presented individual trophies to each of the basketball crew. He was assisted by Lieutenant Powell, the 9th Infantry Athletic and Recreation officer, who introduced the team to the assemblage.

Others attending the gala banquet given in the Company D mess hall included all company commanders, first sergeants, the sergeant major, members of Colonel Osgard's staff, the 9th's public information officer, and a division photographer. The 9ths executive officer, Major George Armstrong, served as toastmaster of the affair.

The dinner was prepared under the supervision of Company D's mess steward, Sergeant First Class Paul A. Phillips.

Tourney Starts Volleyball Play At 13th Trans

By 13th Trans PIO



Believing that "All work and no play" makes dull soldier-drivers in the 13th Transportation Battalion, Lieutenant David R. Cox, battalion athletic and recreation officer remedied the situation by arranging and completing eighteen sets of a Volleyball Tournament.

Second round of the tournament is tentatively scheduled to be underway this week to select an All-Star team composed of players to represent the 13th on a Battalion Level.

Participants in the company level tournament are made up from the officers and enlisted men within the units.

Longest Hit

The greatest recorded hit in baseball is under 600 feet while the greatest recorded drive in golf is 1,425 feet.

BUCKET FOR HARRY . . . Harry Hall lays-up a two-pointer in the 9th's 81-79 victory over the 1st Infantry. Hall netted 15 points for the evening. The 1st Infantry's Israel Gafford (13) defends with team mates Robert White (14) and Warren McDonald (5) closing in to assist.

Battery Ends Volleyball Play

By Div Arty PIO

The Division Artillery Volleyball Tournament has been completed with Headquarters and Headquarters Battery, 2nd Infantry Division Artillery being declared as champions.

In winning the tournament, under the direction of Charles W. Kelley, Headquarters and Headquarters Battery won all their games in competing with other units within the Division Artillery.

The tournament, which could not be determined until the last day of play. The 1st Rocket-Howitzer Battalion, 12th Artillery took the runner-up trophy by winning 4 and losing 1 game.

As a result of this tournament players will be selected to represent the 2nd Infantry Division Artillery in the forthcoming 2nd Infantry Division Tournament to be held during the period March 3-April 6.

Kelley has been selected as the runner-up, was a closer coach for the team.

Two Olympians Assigned To Keep Up the Fire Unit

By 9th Inf PIO

The 9th Infantry now can boast of no less than two 1960 Olympic performers, both being assigned to the 9th's Company A. Lieutenant John R. Foster, recently assigned to the 9th Infantry from the Army Advanced Marksmanship Unit, joined fellow Olympian Lieutenant Paul Beachem as a platoon leader in Captain Paul Osborne's unit.

Lieutenant Foster, holder of the Distinguished Rifle Badge finished seventh in the Olympics at Rome, Italy, in the 300-meter International free rifle competition. Lieutenant Beachem, the National 1960 1,000-meter kayak singles defending champion, earned a fifth place finish in his specialty at Rome.

The two U. S. Army officers first met while living with fellow U. S. athletes in the Olympic Village at Rome. They saw each other again this week for the first time since the Olympics following Lieutenant Beachem's return from a leave to his native Utah.

Lieutenant Foster competed with the Advanced Marksmanship Unit for 24 months following his graduation from the basic Infantry officers' course. Other than the coveted Distinguished Rifle Badge, awarded last December, he has garnered numerous other marksmanship awards.

Lieutenant Foster earned the right to wear the "President's 100" tab awarded annually to the top 100 firers in the President's Match. In addition he fired his way to the National Outdoor Position Championship in 1959 and also was a member of the National Championship Gallery Rifle Team in 1959.

The young Regular Army officer travelled extensively with the AAMU Olympic - bound squad, firing in warmup matches in five European countries. Lieutenant Foster and his team mates fired in practice matches in Finland, Sweden, Germany, Italy, and Switzerland prior to competing in the 1960 Olympics.

Born in Springfield, Ohio, Lieutenant Foster now considers Missoula, Montana his home. He earned his bachelor's degree from Montana State University in Missoula in forestry, graduating in 1958. He entered the Army during the summer of 1958.

Lieutenant Foster did not wait until his assignment to the Army Advanced Marksmanship Unit to begin collecting firing honors. He gathered five state individual rifle crowns in Ohio and Montana before entering the service.

Lieutenant Foster's fellow former Olympian, Lieutenant Beachem, also numbers several laurels among his credits. He first captured the 1,000-meters National Kayak Singles championship in 1954. He earned the Expert Infantryman's Badge while stationed with the 7th Infantry Division in Korea. Lieutenant Beachem also holds the Parachutist Badge.

The assignment of the two lieutenants to the 9th Infantry gives the battle group and Company A a pair of men who have shared in international Olympic splendor, competition, and pageantry. Both hope to add to their existing plaudits and again compete for the United States in the 1964 Summer Olympics in Tokyo, Japan.

CLEAN-UP TIME . . . Lieutenant John Foster, the 9th Infantry's 1960 Olympic rifleman, cleans his favorite match weapon. The custom-made caliber .22 free rifle enabled Lieutenant Foster to place seventh in the tough International Olympic competition at Rome. He holds the Distinguished Rifle Badge and earned the "President's 100" tab in 1960.

Co. C Wins In 9th Inf.

By 9th Inf PIO

The 9th Infantry's Company C blazed to the battle group company-level basketball tournament championship with a wrap-up 64-43 triumph over a fine Headquarters Company "five" in the 9th Infantry area.

The victory easily captured the basketball championship for Captain Jerry Keebaugh's crew, as Company C finished the tourney undefeated with four consecutive victories. Headquarters Company, winner of the loser's bracket in the double-elimination competition, nabbed the runner up slot with three wins and two losses. Both defeats were administered by Company C's champions.

The action was initiated with Company B eliminating Company E, 37-32, in a tight contest. Center Jack Dispennett led the winners with 16 points. Forward George Duncan managed eight markers for Company B which had beaten Company B earlier in the tournament, 45-39.

The Headquarters Company squad then claimed the top rung in the loser's bracket by upending Company B, 53-48, in a contest decided in the final minute of play. High scorer for Headquarters Company was guard Dennis Foy with 24 points, all tallied on his long-range, one-handed jump shot.

Foy's teammate, Charles Brewer also hit double figures with 13 points. Dispennett again topped Company B with 20 points. Company B wound up in third place in the 9th Infantry tournament with a 3 and 2 mark.

In the championship fracas, Company C raced to a 64-43 victory over Headquarters Company. Company C's 6'-0" forward, Paul Askew, poured in 28 points to pace the champions. Center Rayvaughn Pryear, 6'-0", dumped in 18 points and completely controlled both backboards on rebounds. Brewer scored 17 points for Headquarters Company in an effort to turn the tide of victory.

23rd Inf Tromps Div. Trains

By 23rd Inf PIO

The 23rd Infantry hoopsters finally scratched the victory side of the ledger last Monday night at the Harmony Church Field House as they handed Division Trains a 65 to 46 defeat.

In the first two minutes of play, the "We Servers" took the lead and never lost it throughout the contest. No less than four of the five victorious starters reached the double figures in scoring. Tall and lanky center, Charles Kenning hit the mark for 22 points. Paul Arceneaux, the scrappy guard, pumped in 13, while Lester Loomis hit the nets for 14 and Johnny McCaskill sank 11.

Trains High Man

In a far from mediocre performance for the losers, Miles Finley dumped in 17 to lead the cause of the Trains five.

In the final game of the season, both teams missed many scoring opportunities, both from the free throw line and from the court, but Coach Jim Hogan's 23rd "We Servers" were faster on the breaks and, on the whole, scrappier throughout.

With a 1 and 5 record for the season, the only comforting thought the "Totem Polers" have is "Wait 'till next year."

Jumping Mark

One sports highlight of 1960 was when Lt. Irvin "Bo" Roberson of Fort Lee broke Jesse Owen's long standing broad jumping mark by leaping 26 feet, seven and three-eighths inches during the summer Olympics.

Challenge Matches Head Team Training

Competitive shooting teams of The Infantry Center are practicing for the annual matches, the first major event of a three - month program of marksmanship competition to be fired here.

Second Lt. Ivan W. Flowers, team captain of the defending champion 1st Infantry Brigade rifle squad, said his team was bearing down heavily to produce a winning combination in 1961.

"We expect plenty of competition from riflemen from the other commands," he said while watching his team fire from the 600 - yard line at Fiske Range, "and we're depending upon our new shooters to bring us through."

The competition is expected to come from The Infantry Center Troop Command, The Student Brigade, 151st Engineer Group, Army Medical Services, and the Lawson Army Aviation Command teams.

Team training on both the rifle and pistol ranges, has been livened by "challenge matches" among the practicing groups.

Twelve rifle and 12 pistol matches will be fired in the championships. They will open with the firing of the first of three automatic rifle matches.

Unlike the other teams which may draw upon shooters of the several units of their respective organizations, two - man automatic rifle teams must come from individual units which have the automatic rifle as part of their normal arms allowance.

Men of the 1st Battle Group, 29th Infantry, 1st Infantry Brigade, will be the defending champions in these matches. Handgunners of the 1st Infantry Brigade will attempt to ward off all designs for the pistol team trophy which they won in 1960.

The competition will be conducted by Army Match Headquarters, under the direction of Lt. Col. Burton C. Boatright, match executive.

Sfc Hall Is Named Top Boxer

Sfc Leon Hall a member of the post boxing team, won the light middleweight championship in the finals of the 3rd Army Boxing Championships at Fort Campbell last Thursday night.

Sgt. Hall, the lone Benning entry to reach the finals, outpointed Eddie Hunter in the 156-pound slugfest to notch the title.

Tournament host Fort Campbell won the team championship, placing eight on the 10-man team which will advance to the All-Army Boxing Championships.

Champions from the 3rd Army tournament will remain at Fort Campbell to train for the All-Army Boxing Tournament in New York City next month.

New Volleyball Champs for Post

The 44th Company, The Student Brigade won the post Volleyball Championship last Monday night at Briant Wells Field House, defeating the 806th Battalion, 151st Engineer Group, 15-4 and 15-9.

The championship match climaxed 19 tournament pairings. It send the 44th Company to Fort McClellan, for the 3rd Army Volleyball Championships which will begin next Tuesday.

The 3rd Army matches will end March 3, with the outstanding players seeking nomination as possible participants in tryouts for interservice competitions.

Lifeguards, Instructors Needed at Sports Office

Preliminary testing ended last Friday for the first lifeguard training class which opened Monday at Briant Wells Field House.

Forty - eight inquiries have been filed with the Special Services Sports Office at the present time concerning the classes.

Although the number of registrants and inquiries may seem high, many more are needed to fulfill the quota set by regulations governing the safe operation of an outdoor pool, such as the number of lifeguards for a particular size pool and the number of people swimming in the facility.

The training and qualification of lifeguards and water safety instructors will continue through the summer to maintain the active and reserve strength of personnel needed to man the recreational facilities.

Preliminary testing will be held at any time the Briant Wells Field House indoor pool is open, during and after duty hours. The lifeguard on duty will administer the classification test.

The Student Brigade Cagers Almost Assured of League Win

With only one week remaining in The Infantry Center major unit basketball program, The Student Brigade maintains what may be a title-winning lead over the other six teams in the loop.

The Student Brigade, 13-1 for the season, leads second place 1st Battle Group, 29th Infantry, 1st Infantry Brigade, by two games. The 29th Infantry possesses a league worksheet of 10-3. The Infantry Center Troop Command holds third place in the standings with a 9-5 slate.

In Wednesday's action, The Infantry Center Troop Command played the 10th Artillery and The Student Brigade clashed with the 428th Medics.

The 58th Infantry and 29th Infantry collided last night in one contest and the 151st Engineer Group played the 428th Medics.

(Results of this week's action were not available at press time.)

In last week's action, The Student Brigade gained another victory in forging ahead to an almost assured league victory. The league-leading quintet defeated the 151st Engineers by a 93-51 margin Thursday. Other top games last week witnessed the 428th Medics and the 58th Infantry each adding to Troop Command's loss column.

The 428th Medics took the toll of the Troop Command quintet by a 77-74 count Tuesday and the 58th Infantry rippled the Troop Command cagers by a 66-58 margin.

Adding the two losses to the slate, the Troop Command cagers were eliminated from the championship race in the fighting competition. Mathematically, the 29th courtmen still retain a slim chance of taking the crown.

Tuesday the 1st Armored Rifle Battalion, 58th Infantry, 1st Infantry Brigade, met the 2nd Howitzer Battalion, 10th Artillery, 1st Infantry Brigade in the evening's first game, and the 29th Infantry faced the 428th Medical Battalion.

Standings and percentages are:

	w	l	pc
Student Brigade	13	1	.929
29th Infantry	10	3	.769
Troop Command	9	5	.643
428th Medics	8	8	.500
58th Infantry	5	9	.357
10th Artillery	4	10	.286
151st Engineers	2	14	.125

Youth Club Sponsors AAU Swimming Meet

Over 250 entrants from Georgia and Alabama will participate in the Fort Benning Invitation Swimming Championships, which is being hosted by the post Youth Activities Club tomorrow at Briant Wells Field House.

Heats for the four classes of competition start at 9 a.m. They continue all day until the finals, which will be held at the Briant Wells Field House indoor swimming pool at 7 p.m.

To participate in the Amateur Athletic Union sanctioned meet, each child must be AAU registered. The meet will have four classes of competition; eight years old and under, nine and 10-year-olds, 11 and 12-year-old and 13 and 14-year-olds.

Each of the age groups will have different events of competition, with medals and ribbons going to the top six winners in the finals. First through third place will be awarded medals and fourth through sixth will be awarded ribbons.

In the realyevents, only medals will be awarded to the first place winners.

In the relay events, only medals will be awarded to the first place winners.

The Youth Activities Club Swimming Team, coached by Pfc George W. Watkins, a member of the 577th Battalion, 151st Engineer Group, works out daily from 4 to 6 p.m. at Briant Wells Field House pool.

A scratch meeting will be held tomorrow at 7:30 a.m. to set up the program and schedule.

Good Record

According to Col. Emory S. Adams, West Point's athletic director, Army played 345 games during the 1959-60 seasons and of the 215 tilts on the varsity level, the Black Knights had a 155-55-5 record.

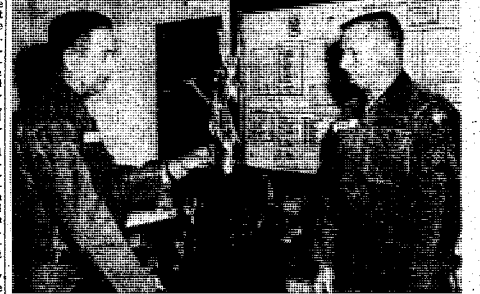
Meanwhile, on the other end of the ladder, the 428th Medics, 29th Artillery, 58th Infantry and 151st Engineers, who for the entire season have proved to be the spoilers for the Troop Command quintet, hold down fourth through seventh places.

Shooters Take Top Trophies

The Army Pistol Team, whose home station is here, recorded its second major victory in four days when it captured the Third Annual Interservice Pistol Team Championship at Lackland Air Force Base, Texas, last week.

The Army "Blue" Team from the Army Advanced Marksmanship Unit posted a scorching grand aggregate score of 2994-153X, 17 points over the best efforts of the second-place Air Force team.

The Army handgunners missed by a scant two points a complete sweep of the three-gun course of team fire when they posted a .45 caliber pistol score of 1189-53X, two points under the contending Air Force team.



The Army pistoleers, however, had previously annexed the .22 and centerfire match crowns, outshooting Air Force handgunners each time, to build up a lead which the flyers could not overcome.

The victorious Army Team was led by SFC William B. Blankenship who had shattered all previous individual grand aggregate records for the matches to take the individual pistol crown the day before.

Third place in the team championships was won by the Marines who posted a 2963-129X for their team grand aggregate.

Heavy rains of the past week have brought fishing almost to a standstill on the post. Roads to some of our better ponds became almost impassable and creeks at flood stage offered little opportunity to fill the frying pan.

These conditions were viewed with sorry thoughts by a lot of us who were waiting to get a lick at the bigger bass which had started to strike just before the rains came.

It won't be long before the largemouth will be "bedding" so it's hoped that we can get a few good days of fishing before the big ones start fanning out their beds.

An old female will sweep away all debris from a sandy spot before depositing her eggs and the male will then fertilize them. From that time until the little fellas are a good size, fishing is poor. A big, old bass might knock the paint off your lure if you cast it near the nest but only to chase it out of there.

A bait minnow, if it gets too near, will be knocked for a loop or actually picked up and carried away from the area — but as for "biting" during this period, a good strike is a rare event.

In states other than the Deep South the "law" would go on during this period in interests of conservation and propagation. Although our bass remain unprotected throughout the year, the sportsman will refrain from disturbing the fish at this time.

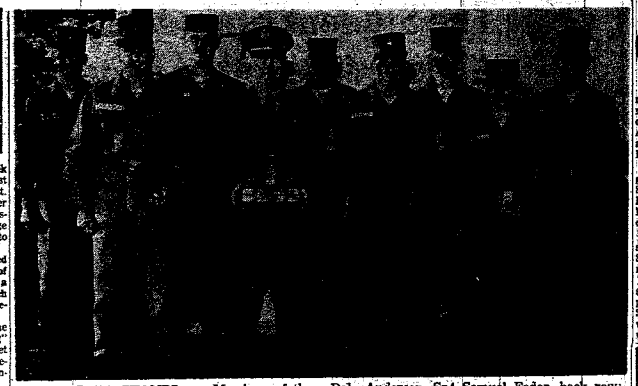
Controlled burning of heavy understory in brushy areas has also been held up by the rains and the cutting of fire lanes and barrowing of game-food patches has slowed but both programs will pick up speed as the weather dries.

Fish and Game Maintenance Association membership buttons for the year 1961-62 are on order and will be available come the end of March. Association membership expires together with the state fishing license and come April 1 we'll have to have the new ones.



At this writing we're hoping to get a lick at the trout in Johnson's Pond . . . but between the possibility of continued rain and the muddy road conditions, chances are that the trout'll be safe for some time to come. Johnson's is out some 20-odd miles and roads are less than ideal if they become the least bit muddy or slick . . . and that's it for February.

WAC Cagers Cancel Games

Two Post sports teams saw no action over the weekend as rain and high winds caused cancellation of a Women's Army Corps basketball game and the postponement of a Doughboy soccer match.

The WAC basketball team's game which was scheduled for Saturday with the Fort McPherson WAC cagerettes at Briant Wells Field House was cancelled due to rain.

Tomorrow, the post WAC sextette goes to Parris Island, S. C., to meet the Women Marines in the season's finale.

Meanwhile, the Doughboy soccer eleven, scheduled to play the Auburn Soccer Club Saturday in the Alabama city, was postponed due to the weather.

Latin American Riflemen Are Instructed By AMU

South American riflemen will receive the benefit of American shooting "know how" through an M-1 rifle clinic to be conducted by crack instructors from the Advanced Marksmanship Unit.

Competitors from 17 Latin American countries in the Pan American Service Rifle Matches to be hosted in the Canal Zone by the U.S. Army's Caribbean Command March 24 to 30 are slated to receive the instruction, according to Capt. Richard G. Hinkle, AMU operations officer.

The clinic will be conducted by five AMU officers and seven enlisted instructors headed by Capt. Victor M. Calderon. Following formal instruction, the U. S. group will fire in the matches not as competitors but as demonstrators of Army methods of competitive firing, Capt. Hinkle said.

The AMU's operations officer said the South American shooters showed an all-consuming interest in all phases of rifle shooting during a trial clinic held in Panama last year by swamping the AMU instructors with questions during the 1960 matches.

"A large number of competitors from Central and South American countries arrived at the 1960 matches armed with manually - operated weapons of European manufacture," Capt. Hinkle said, "and quickly demonstrated that they were not versed in the higher skills of marksmanship as we know it."

The operations officer said some of the South American riflemen were amazed when AMU instructors borrowed their "bolt action" weapons, and proceeded to shoot the U.S. system of rapid firing without moving the butts of the weapons from their shoulders.

"They were also amazed at the extreme accuracy which we gained in shooting from the standing position, a position with which they are apparently entirely unfamiliar," he said.

When not firing as demonstrators, the instructor group is scheduled to act as a cadre of roving coaches. They will circulate throughout the match area answering questions.

The Surgeon Says

Oldest Therapy; New Popularity

BY MAJOR RUTH E. LAWSON

One of the forms of medical treatment becoming more familiar to the public today is physical therapy. Physical therapy may be defined as the science which deals with the treatment of disease and injury by physical means. These agents are light, heat, cold, water, electricity, exercise and massage.

Physical therapy is not a modern treatment or miracle cure by any means. It is no doubt one of the oldest treatments known to man.

The primitive man who crawled into the sunshine to receive the benefit of its warmth started the practice of heat therapy. The first person who bathed a wound in a stream received the benefit of what we know as hydrotherapy. The first man who rubbed and flexed a bruised muscle and tried to maintain normal motion in a joint introduced massage and therapeutic exercise.

The basic aim was to overcome physical limitations and to keep and maintain maximum use of the body.

Physical therapy is one of the recent additions to the medical field because only in the past forty years has it come to be recognized as an important part of regular medicine. Physical therapy is concerned not only with the early stages of medical care as applied to conditions such as poliomyelitis, nerve injuries and chest surgery, but it is essential throughout the recovery period for shortening convalescence and improving ultimate function in the rehabilitation of the disabled.

The Physical Therapist teaches both young and old, military and their dependents, how to walk using crutches, how to walk in casts, how to increase strength and function of weak muscles, how to avoid stiffening of joints and shortening of muscles and how to decrease muscular pain.

The work involved has as its base the firm foundation and knowledge of a normal working body, capable of doing average activities. The treatments are administered and supervised by physical therapists who are graduates of approved schools of physical therapy, and who are commissioned officers of the Army Medical Specialists Corps.

They are assisted by enlisted technicians who have been thoroughly trained in their field, both in Army schools and through "on the job training."

Physical therapy in the hospital today is not an independent element. At Martin Army Hospital it functions under the direct supervision of the Chief, Orthopedic Service.

Profile of a Man Doing a Man's Job

SFC RUSSELL

Sfc Jerry L. Russell of Headquarters Battery, 2nd Howitzer Battalion, 10th Artillery, 1st Infantry Brigade, is a qualified assistant metro chief.

Entering the Army in 1954, he took basic training at Fort Gordon.

In 1958 he was promoted to sergeant, and eleven months later was promoted to his present rank after successfully taking over duties as a metro chief in the 24th Infantry Division.

For his exhibited willingness to learn, and ability to take over a job he had no previous experience in, he was awarded a letter of achievement and his latest promotion.

Sfc Russell also served with the 101st Airborne Division, and has completed a jump master course.

He has qualified on the Trainfire Course, and has completed the metro course at Fort Sill, as well as the Advanced Airborne Course at Fort Bragg.

Metro sections provide artillery with information on weather for ballistic computations, and Sfc Russell also mans displays of metro equipment for classes at The Infantry School and visiting dignitaries.

Entertainment Contest Post Phase Dates Set

During March

The Fort Benning phase of the All-Army Entertainment Contest will be held in three phases during March, it was announced today by the Recreation and Entertainment Branch of The Army Infantry Center Special Services Office.

The recorded phase will be held March 10 at Service Club 1 at 10 a.m. Competition in the unit "live" phase will be held March 7, 8 and 9 at each of the four Service Clubs on post.

Harmony Church personnel will compete for a spot in the post contest at Service Club 3 at 7 p.m. March 7.

Officers and NCO's will conduct preliminary auditions March 8 at 7 p.m., which will include the Main Post and Kelley Hill winners.

Sand Hill personnel will hold unit competition March 9 at Service Club 3 at 7 p.m.

According to the rules by the Department of the Army and The Inantry Center Special Services, entries will be typewritten or printed plainly, giving all the information required on the entry form.

Personnel will compete in tryouts through the Service Club in which their entry was submitted.

AT THE Movies

THE MISFITS, Gable was never better nor Marilyn Monroe more alluring than in this exciting modern story of three men, raw-boned, hard-living cowboys who follow the rodeo trail and one girl, a recent Reno divorcee, who is at loose ends with herself and the world.

BOOKS in REVIEW

THE WASTE MAKERS by Vance Packard. (McKay, 1960)

In this survey of waste in our economic life due to over-production, the author questions the morality and economic validity of a system that in order to exist depends upon artificially shortening the useful life of its products. In his analysis of this philosophy of waste he tells who the waste makers are, how they operate, and what they do to us.

THE JUDAS GUN by Wayne D. Overholser. (Macmillan, (NY) 1960)

Ben Fargo's threat against the self-interested judge and townspeople who sent him (framed him?) to jail becomes a reality when he breaks out and returns to intimidate the town. Only Clint, deputy sheriff, and stupidly honest, is man enough to stand up to Fargo, his confederate and his collaborator, the father of the girl he loves.

DETERRENT OR DEFENSE by B. H. Liddell Hart. (Praeger, 1960)

Professional military men analyze the strategic military situation of the West as it stands today and bring out its meaning and message. Holding that the mutual possession of nuclear weapons tends to nullify the value of possessing them, the author focuses on the problem of the fading deterrent and its replacement.

THE YANKS ARE COMING By Army Times (Periodical) (Putnam, 1960)

TREAT IT GENTLE by Sidney Bechet. (Hill & Wang, 1960)

Among those who helped record and edit the tapes on which this book is based are Joan Reid, Desmond Flower, and John Ciardi. The life of a man who grew up with jazz, from the early days of ragtime and street parades in New Orleans, through his work with one of Duke Ellington's first bands, to playing the blues for royalty in London. Transcribed from tape recordings.

Tuesday Evening Library Concert

The recorded concert at the Main Post Library next Tuesday evening will feature Schubert Trio 2 in E Flat Major.

THE DARK AT THE TOP OF THE STAIRS, The problems of an average family, those of the children as well as the parents, make this an absorbing and tender story.

NO TIME FOR SERGEANTS On the way to the Air Force draftee training camp, Andy Griffith, a native youth from a small backwoods farm, is placed in the not too tender care of Murray Hamilton, who thas had some ROTC. Andy excuses Murray's stuffy behavior in the belief that ROTC is some sort of disease and Murray still has a touch of it. In charge of the barracks is Sergeant Myron McCormick, whose philosophy is that in peace time, the Air Force can be a quiet life, if nobody makes waves to rock the canoe.

BORN YESTERDAY, As a beautiful-but-dumb ex - chorus girl, Judy Holliday develops into a cultured, intelligent young woman whose sole aim in life is to extract mink coats from her rich and rowdy junk dealer boyfriend.

Hollywood Lowdown And Inside Briefs. . .

Now that Connie Stevens has worked herself into a triple-threat star for Warners — records, TV and pictures — she has to work even harder to get time for a rest. . . "X-15," to be filmed by Frank Sinatra's company, will roll as soon as it can be cast in hope of coming out about the time Uncle Sam puts a man into space. . . How does a leap year baby celebrate her birthday? — Sharon Hugueny, star of Warners' "Parrish", says: "I'll pretend February 29 is February 28 and figure I'm 17 that day. . . "Advise and Consent," drama of Washington politics, rolls in September. . . .

Another Asiatic beauty, following in the footsteps of Nancy Kwan, is Carmen Austin, Filipino actress who makes her debut as George Montomgery's lead in Warners' "The Steel Hook". . . Jack Lemmon and Shirley McLaine, stars of "The Apartment," will be teamed again in United Artists' "Irma La Douce". . . Leslie Parrish, starring in Warners' Portrait of a Mobster," changed her name from Marjorie Hellen when cast as Daisy Mae in "Li'l Abner". . . Anthony Perkins has formed his own film company and hopes to produce "Greenvillow," musical he starred in on Broadway. . . The Fertility Dance in "The Sins of Rachel Cade" will help audiences sense the pulse beat of the Congo. . . Alain Delon will play the title role in "Marco Polo," Columbia film starting in fall. . . . Vivien Leigh plans to go to Italy to do final scenes for Warners' "The Roman Spring of Mrs. Stone". . . .

Natalie Wood, who made "Splendor in the Grass" for Warner Bros. in New York, is due to report on the lot in a few weeks for her next assignment. . . "Assault on the Queen," story about an attempt by pirates to hijack the S. S. Queen Mary, is back on Prodacer Ray Stark's schedule, after having been shelved last year as "too improbable". Rosalind Russell is working up something special in costumes, approaching her "Auntie Mame" wardrobe, for her role in Warners' "A Majority of One". . . Peter Ustinov will costar with Robert Kyan and direct and produce "Billy Budd," the Herman Melville sea classic, for Allied Artists.

Congressman Sikes Remarks on One Army

(Editor's Note: The following is a statement by Honorable Robert F. Sikes (D-Fla.) this month on the future of the One Army program.)

"After a conference with Secretary McNamara and other Defense officials, I am convinced that this administration intends to build and support a strong military reserve program.

"Strong reserves are important to the security of this country. With the secretariat including men who are reserve officers and who are experienced both in combat and in peace-time service, I believe we have a team which understands the problem and that they recognize the necessity of maintaining a strong morale as well as strong numerical forces among the reserve components.

"There has been apprehension among members of the reserve components. It is proposed that the title of assistant secretaries for manpower, personnel and reserve would reflect a downgrading in the reserve components. It is proposed instead to create within the Office of the Assistant Secretary of Defense (Manpower), a special division to handle reserve affairs exclusively. Likewise, the Army and the Navy have upgraded to the Office of the Under Secretaries the sole responsibility of reserve affairs, which formerly have been handled as a collateral responsibility at a lower level.

"This in my opinion, affords the reserve components an opportunity for greater recognition than in the previous administration. I recognize that there may be disappointment among some reservists because of the fact that the title of assistant secretary which formerly was associated with reserve activities has been abolished. Nevertheless, it is clear that the new arrangement affords an excellent opportunity for recognition of the vital importance of the reserve components. I trust that the development of the defense program under this administration will bear out this promise."

Elect OC Petrovich Council President

Officer Candidate Joseph F. Petrovich has been elected president of the student council of 50th Company, 5th Student Battalion, The Student Brigade, on February 14. Named vice president of the student council was OC Henry Athanasion. Officer Candidate Cecil D. Jaedicke was elected secretary-treasurer.

The Civilians You Work With

LANSDON

Louise Lansdon has worked for the past four years as a court reporter for The Infantry Center's Staff Judge Advocate Section. Her primary duty is to record court proceedings at general courts martial here on post.

Before assuming her present duties, she worked as a secretary at The Student Brigade.

A graduate of Jordan High School in Columbus, she also attended the American Business Institute in Macon, and the off-campus branch of the University of Georgia in Columbus.

NAPPER

Hubert V. Napper has been employed at The Infantry Center financing and accounting section for the past four years. His main duties are to compute military pay vouchers and to handle the pay of intransit personnel, including the Navy, Marines, and Air Force personnel here on post.

Mr. Napper has been employed on post for nine years, and served with the Army during World War II for three and one half years.

Two New Hawk Battalions

The Army's missile power will be increased with activation of two more Hawk guided missile battalions at Fort Bliss, the Department of Defense announced today.

Activation of the new units will bring to 11 the number of Hawk battalions in the Army.

Scheduled to be activated prior to March 26 are the Sixth Missile Battalion, 60th Artillery, and the Sixth Missile Battalion, 61st Artillery.

The Hawk missile system provides a medium and low-level air defense capability and augments the Nike Hercules high altitude air defense system.

Training Aids Sub Center Gets IG Superior Rating

The 3rd Army Training Aids Sub-center on post has received its fourth consecutive "superior" rating in its annual Inspector General inspection.

The section, headed by Capt. Robert H. Schaffer, prepares and furnishes training aids to all active Army, National Guard, Army Reserve and ROTC units within the West Florida, southern Georgia-Alabama-Mississippi area.

It handles the accounts of some 375 units in the four-state area. Last year nearly 425,000 training aids were sent out to these units. Of this number approximately 6,500 were fabricated in the sub-center here.

The section makes two types of training aids; working models, either enlarged or made smaller to suit classroom instruction, and graphics such as charts and maps or other drawings to aid instruction.

Visitors are welcome at any time to come and look around the newly enlarged display area, acording to Capt. Schaffer.

ROTC Program

The Reserve Officers Training Corps exists to develop enough officers to provide a corps of well educated all round leaders for an Army that would have to expand rapidly in a national emergency. It produces second lieutenants for the Active Army and Army Reserve, and a limited number of distinguished military graduates who are offered commissions in the Regular Army.

Know Your Senior NCOs

E-8 VAUGHT

MSgt. (E-8) Albert L. Vaught, of Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 806th Engineer Battalion (Construction), is the Maintenance Operations NCO for the battalion.

He took his basic training at Dodd Field in November, 1940, at Fort Sam Houston, and was later assigned to Battery A, 37th Artillery Battalion, 2nd Infantry Division. Sgt. Vaught remained with that unit until discharged in 1945.

In 1946, Sgt. Vaught re-entered the Army at Houston, Tex., and served with the 3rd Medical Training Battalion, at Fort Houston, until January of 1948, when he was transferred to 2172st Aviation Engineer Maintenance Company, Fort Francis E. Warren, Wyo. In March of the same year, he traveled with that unit to Alaska.

Sgt. Vaught served with that company until December, 1948, when he transferred to Fort Gordon. Upon his assignment there, he helped set up the 630th Aviation Engineer Maintenance Company. He has served overseas in England, France, and Alaska.

Sgt. Vaught is a veteran of more than 19 years of active service, of which five years were as first sergeant and more than ten years as engineer field maintenance shop foreman. He presently has the duties of battalion operations sergeant, in addition to his regular job.

Sgt. Vaught is the holder of the Bronze Star Medal and Belgian Fourragere.

Sp5 Johnson Best Soldier

Bridge specialist Sp6 John D. Johnson, Support Platoon, 586th Engineer Company, 151st Engineer Group, was selected as group Soldier of the Month.

The award climaxed his selection as runner-up on four occasions since he joined the unit last June.

Johnson was presented a $25 Savings Bond and a three-day pass.

10th Artillery

Battery C Wins Honor Third Time

Battery C, 2nd Howitzer Battalion, 10th Artillery, 1st Infantry Brigade, placed first in the 10th Artillery's monthly Honor Battery Competition Program for the month of January.

This is the third win for the battery which ties with Headquarters Battery in number of wins to date. The other two wins were in August and September of 1960, the first two months that this program was in operation.

Personnel of the winning battery will receive a working day "holiday" and an honor battery streamer will be attached to their guidon.

A permanent trophy will be awarded to the outstanding battery for the year, at the Organization Day festivities in June.

Four to Attend Management Meet

Col. Stuart M. Mitchell, president of the Fort Bening Armed Forces Management Association, and four delegates of the chapter will attend the national convention of the organization February 28 to March 2 in Washington, D. C.

In addition to Col. Mitchell, Infantry Center dental surgeon; Dr. Harold S. Tate, educational adviser at The Infantry School; Col. Braxton E. Small, Infantry Center signal officer; James R. Woolbright, Jr., management engineer, Infantry Center Comptroller's Office, and Willard F. Swiney, Manpower Branch, Comptroller's Office, also will attend the meeting.

Convention sessions will be held at the Shoreham Hotel. Guests will be honored with a reception February 28 at the Army-Navy Town Club and with a banquet March 1 at Bolling Air Force Base Officers' Club.

Some 500 AFMA members will hear speakers representing all the Services, industry, education, Congress and government agencies; Dr. Tate and Woolbright will participate on a panel whose members will outline management improvement practices at their respective locations.

Infantry School Report

The Combat Developments Office of The Infantry School is headed by Col. Cyril D. Sterner and is organized with a Headquarters, Doctrine & Organization Section, Materiel Section, and Administrative Section.

The mission of the Combat Developments Office is the research, development, testing, and early integration into the Army of new doctrine, new organization and new materiel to obtain the greatest combat effectiveness with a minimum of men, money and materiel.

Combat development work is a creative activity requiring imagination and the ability to focus on the future. Instead of applying current doctrine learned in school and practiced in the field, a combat development officer becomes a challenger of current doctrine and an innovator of new concepts.

Although relieved of responsibility for current operational problems he must base his study of the future upon a sound understanding of these problems and of current doctrine.

During the year 1960 the Combat Developments Office conducted approximately 230 briefings and conferences with civilian and military agencies on new materiel items and operational and organizational doctrine. Items are often only artists' concepts, sometimes in their drawing-board stage, and sometimes mockups or prototypes.

Developers are guided to produce an item which the Infantryman needs and can use and maintain. From the smallest transistorized radio to the largest vehicle, the Infantryman's welfare is considered the yardstick by which each new idea is measured.

CDO initiates concepts which are tested at the Combat Development Experimentation Center, Fort Ord, Calif. These experiments are intended to prove whether or not a concept of organization or an operational technique is optimum for the future. Coordination is maintained continually with the Infantry Board, and other combat development agencies.

The Doctrine and Organization Section develops and evaluates new or revised future Infantry, Airborne Infantry and Ranger doctrine, organization, and tactics, including logistical, nuclear and CBR considerations. This section also comments on studies sub-

New Elementary School Construction Date Set

The Infantry Center has received notification from the Housing and Home Finance Agency that a new 11-classroom elementary school has been approved for construction at Fort Benning.

The project will begin in mid-March.

A contract for $309,388 has been awarded to B. F. M., Inc., of Bainbridge, Ga., for construction of the facility and expansion of the combination auditorium-gymnasium cafeteria at Wilbur School.

To be located at 200 First Division Rd., on the Main Post, the new school will be the fifth permanent instruction building in the Post Children's Schools. It will replace the old Hospital Area School, housed in temporary buildings in the old hospital area.

Benning Rifle and Pistol Championships Will Start Tuesday on McAndrew Range

Colorful ceremonies will mark the opening of The Infantry Center's 1961 Rifle and Pistol Championships at McAndrew Range March 7, at 8:30 a.m.

Brig. Gen. A. D. Surles, Jr., deputy commanding general of The Infantry Center, is scheduled to make the opening address to be heard by assembled rifle, pistol and automatic rifle teams from The Infantry Center's major commands.

Nearly 500 top-ranking marksmen will be massed behind their team guidons at the ceremonies which will be conducted under direction of Lt. Col. Burton C. Boatright, match executive.

Immediately following the opening exercises the competing teams will move directly to their assigned ranges to begin a week of competition for the several shooting championships listed on the week-long program.

On Easley Range automatic riflemen will complete their match shooting by firing the Mid Range and 300 yard Rapid Fire Matches. A single match, the 500 yard Rapid Fire Match is scheduled to have been fired on the previous day to ease the tight firing schedule.

Team totals fired in the three matches will provide aggregates which will decide the winner of the USAIC Deputy Commanding General's Automatic Rifle Championship.

A feature of this competition is composition of the two-man teams. Unlike the service rifle and pistol teams which may be made up from men of units from the major commands, the automatic rifle teams must be composed of men from indi-

Career Officers Get Assignments

Brig. Gen. R. J. Tucker III, chief of the Infantry Officer Directorate, Office of the Deputy Chief of Staff for Personnel of Department of the Army, visited Fort Benning February 28 to March 2 to address officer career classes at The Infantry School.

He spoke at 4 p.m. February 28 in the Main Theater.

Accompanying Gen. Tucker were three officers from the Infantry Officer Division, Lt. Col. Beverly M. Read, head of the Assignment Branch; Lt. Col. Raymond D. Barrett who handles assignments of captains, and Major Robert K. Cunningham who handles education, Army aviation and Armed Forces Staff College assignments.

Students attending officer career classes, which will graduate May 25, received cards at noon Tuesday from the student company commanders stating their new assignment. After speaking to the two classes that afternoon, Gen. Tucker and his team interviewed individual students.

Gen. Tucker conferred with Major Gen. Hugh P. Harris, commandant of The Infantry School Wednesday at 10:30 a.m.

The party was scheduled to leave the post at 1:30 p.m. yesterday.

ROTC Cadets Invited Here For Briefing

Approximately 525 ROTC cadets from 11 colleges and universities in four states will visit here during March and April for an orientation.

Major Gen. Hugh P. Harris, commandant of The Infantry School, has invited these students in order that they may acquaint themselves with what they will encounter upon entering the Army for active duty.

The first group consisting of approximately 175 cadets from the Florida Agricultural and Mechanical University, Florida State College, Tallahassee, and John B. Stetson University, De Land, Fla., will visit on March 17.

A second group consisting of about 175 cadets will visit on April 14. They are from the University of Miami, Coral Gables, Fla., Tuskegee Institute, Tuskegee, Ala., Georgia State College of Business Ad-

Jordan Army CinC Visits For Post Tour

The commander in chief of Jordan Armed Forces, Lt. Gen. Habes Majali, was on post Wednesday and Thursday to observe the organization and techniques of The Infantry School.

He was welcomed at Lawson Army Aviation Command at 1 p.m. Wednesday by Major Gen. Hugh P. Harris, commandant of The Infantry School, Col. Emile Jumean and Capt. Mohamoud Shannaili, aides to Gen. Majali, accompanied the Jordanian Army chief.

A 17-gun salute and honor guard formation were given Gen. Majali at 1:15 p.m. on Chapel Field. Gen. Harris was the local commander for the ceremony.

Following an orientation on the scheduling of classes and

A series of eight matches is slated to be fired by Infantry Center riflemen during the course of their annual competition. Each match is named for post adjacent areas.

With the exception of The Infantry School assistant commandant's Match, the Infantry Trophy Match and the Commanding General's Rifle Team Championship, the rifle matches are named for Fort Benning and Columbus localities.

The names of local creeks will grace the pistol match program with the exception of the Commanding General's Pistol Championship and the individual grand aggregate, the Chattahoochee Championship.

In addition to Infantry Center honors to be won during the shoot, the marksmen will also be vying for selection to represent The Infantry Center in the Third Army's annual championships slated at Fort Benning April 3 to 12.

The matches will be conducted by the personnel of Match Headquarters under direction of Col. Boatright.

A third group of 175 cadets will visit on April 21. They are from Wheaton College, Wheaton, Ill., Mercer University, Macon, Ga., and Auburn University, Auburn, Ala.

During their visit here the cadets will be given an orientation on Army aviation and will tour the 1st Infantry Brigade.

They will also be briefed on the "Role of the Infantry" by the Command and Staff Department of The Infantry School and will tour the Infantry Museum.

Arrangements for the visits of the groups of cadets are being handled by The Infantry Center Reserve Components Section.

Gen. Majali was honored at a dinner given by Gen. Harris at 7:30 p.m. in his quarters.

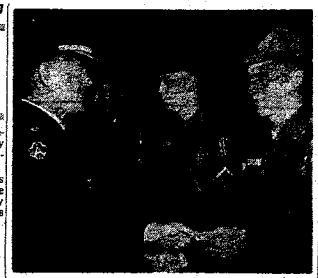
Thursday the Jordan officers was briefed on Army aircraft and made a helicopter tour of the post. They saw presentations on hand-to-hand combat and capabilities of mobility means.

Gen. Harris hosted an official luncheon for the visitors in the Main Officers' Mess. An honor guard ceremony at 2 p.m. on Lawson Field preceded Gen. Majali's departure.

Major John F. Georger, S-2 of the 1st Infantry Brigade, was the project officer for the visit.

Lt. Col. Harold A. Neill was the Department of the Army tour director.

Report



mitted by other combat development agencies throughout the Army.

The Material Section develops and evaluates studies for statements of requirements for new or improved items of material used by Infantry, Airborne Infantry and Rangers. These include weapons, accessories and ammunition, airborne, aviation and aerial delivery material, transportation, communications, surveillance, CBR, mine warfare, fortification and deception material and individual clothing and equipment. Frequent visits are made to the developers and producers of this material.

The Administrative Section is responsible for all administrative problems and maintains 180 linear feet of R&D files. The British and Canadian liaison officers to the School are members of the CDO staff and tripartite matters are coordinated to ensure the nations are aware of each others developments and trends. One officer is on duty with the Combat Developments Experimentation Center, Fort Ord, Calif.

What does the Infantryman of the future require? He will require more firepower, mobility, communications, logistics and, last but not least, the ability to seek out the enemy and destroy him, through the use of surveillance equipment compatible with his weapons systems.

The Combat Developments Office of The Infantry School feels its job is looking to the future for the Infantryman. We, who do so, feel we have a challenge and welcome ideas from every source to meet that challenge.

Japanese General To Visit

General Ichiji Sugita, chief of staff, Japanese ground self defense forces, is scheduled to tour The Infantry School and Center as part of an itinerary covering military installations in the United States, from March 5 to 20.

Other military posts on the General's scheduled tour include The U. S. Military Academy, West Point, N. Y., the Air Force Missile Test Center at Cape Canaveral, North American Air Defense Command at Colorado Springs, Colorado, and many other installations.

Educational Development

Many Take Part In Extra Study

An average of 20 per cent of Fort Benning personnel participated in the Army's education program during the last two quarters, according to The Infantry Center's Educational Development Section.

First among major units in the percentage of personnel engaged in education activities was the 151st Engineer Group. Almost one-fourth of approximately 1,300 engineers were involved in counseling and classes at the section, individual study and college enrollment during the last six months.

Participation percentages and unit strength numbers are based on averages for that period.

The 428th Medical Battalion ranked a close second with over 24 per cent of approximately 449 personnel furthering their education. Over 21 per cent of Lawson Army Aviation Command's average of 978 personnel account for third place.

Twenty-one per cent of 2,585 personnel of The Student Brigade, The Infantry School, fourth, participated in the Army's program. The Infantry Board was fifth with more than 20 per cent of 213 personnel involved.

The 1st Infantry Brigade counted 19½ per cent of 3,357 personnel in the program, placing sixth. The Infantry Center Troop Command, with more than 15 per cent of 3,360 personnel, was seventh. Martin Army Hospital was eighth with over 12 per cent of 550 personnel participating.

Special Forces Volunteers Asked in Call for Six MOSs

The Department of the Army has issued a call for volunteers for Special Forces training and assignment according to a message received by the Adjutant General, The Infantry Center.

Although the message indicated a particular need for specialists in six enlisted occupational fields, enlisted men in all grades and all occupational fields are encouraged to apply for the special training.

The six fields indicated are those of medical specialist, (MOS 911), light weapons Infantryman (MOS 111), heavy weapons Infantryman (MOS 112), Infantry operations and intelligence (MOS 113), combat engineer (MOS 121) and intermediate speed radio operator (MOS 051).

Qualified linguists, in grades E-4 through E-7 are also particularly desired according to the message.

To qualify for the course of training, applicants must have desire for assignment to a Special Forces unit and a willingness to undergo Airborne training.

Additional requisites listed included four months of service, completed interim secret security clearances, and 18 months of service remaining to complete.

For those enlisted personnel with less than 18 months left to serve, certificates of intent to reenlist will be acceptable, the message said.

The communication indicated that applications were to be submitted through normal personnel channels and that those of officer personnel will be processed in accordance with current directives.

Army's Missiles Going 'Great Guns'

In the swarm of satellite news and intercontinental ballistic successes, let's not overlook the ground-pounding advances in Army weapons. Two such recent newsmakers were the Pershing test firing from Cape Canaveral in which all objectives were met in a firing from the mobile transporter - erector - launcher, and the Hawk's successful interception of a Corporal ballistic missile at the White Sands Missile Range. The Hawk now has a record of three different kills involving a Little John, Honest John, and now the Corporal.

And Then, There's Dishwashing

The Pentagon has cleaned up some recent confusion which became rather hot. Noting a "wide divergence" in operating procedures on the subject throughout the Army, a new Circular (40-18) states: "The wash water used in dishwashing machines will have a temperature between 150 and 160 degrees Fahrenheit."

Editorial

The Pentagon Team

The new defense team moved into the Pentagon recently with the words of President Kennedy's inaugural address still echoing through the breadth of the land.

Certain words of the new Commander-in-Chief must have sounded like a mandate: never fear to negotiate but never negotiate through fear; peace —but peace based on strength.

As Secretary of Defense Robert McNamara began his job, those who knew him expected him to move slowly but to move fairly. There were to be no big increases requested in the defense budget, no radical reorganizations of the U.S. defense structure sought in haste.

What were expected, though, were firm, hard decisions -- a renouncement of vacillation Said one member of the immediate defense team:

"You may want to say I'm wrong. You may want to say I'm intellectually stupid. But you'll never be able to say I failed to make decisions when they were needed."

McNamara was expected to organize his defense office along the lines most familiar to him — those of industry. As if the DOD were a corporation, McNamara will be president. Deputy Secretary Roswell L. Gilpatric will be vice president. The Secretaries of Army, Navy and Air Force Elvis J. Stahr, John Connally and Eugene Zuckert — will be managers of divisions.

The new group will start, at least, with an attitude of "Don't try it — do it." There are many Pentagon people, many of them in the higher level posts, who will not fit into the concept McNamara & Co. have of the job to be done. They will not be permitted to linger.

Chaplain's Corner

BY CHAPLAIN (1ST LT.) THOMAS J. TOLENTINO

In America, where most things are measured in terms of their dollar value, a frequent question is this: "Does it pay to be good?" Also a frequent comment is this: "I was good for a long time but what did I get out of it?"

A third attitude is expressed in the words: "Why should I be good, when evil and irreligious people seem to be the ones who prosper?" This calls for clear thinking about the rewards that should be looked for in life.

The only reward with which the true God-loving person should be concerned is that which God has promised them in heaven. That reward is so rich, so wonderful, so unending, so vast, that it is worth the price of any amount of suffering here in this world.

Our Lord promised that there would be suffering for those who want the only perfect reward of heaven. He never promised that being good would make them rich, or spare them from sickness, pain and the other trials of life on earth.

At the same time, however, He did assure them that the sufferings asked of them would never be too much for them to bear, and that peace of heart would always be theirs if they recognized His hand in sending the suffering.

There is such a thing as an earthly reward for those who choose to ignore and reject the reward of heaven by ignoring and rejecting the authority and rights of God. No man is so utterly evil that he does none of the things that are deserving of at least a tiny reward.

Thus it will be noticed that some people have a very smooth and prosperous time of it in this world, even though they are fundamentally irreligious and even scornful of many of God's laws. They are being paid here on earth for whatever good things they have ever done; but heaven is lost to them and they will suffer forever in hell unless there be some complete repentance and reform for their sins before death.

The true God-loving person, therefore should never express jealousy of the good times and prosperous years enjoyed by people who pay little attention to God and His laws.

Such persons are to be pitied and prayed for. They are being paid off in full for the little good they have done in this world; in eternity they will be paid off in full for their evil.

The Judge Says . . .

(Editors Note: This is the fifth in a series of articles to be presented in this column concerning Federal Income Tax.)

Many members of the military and their families have investments in stocks, bonds, and other securities. The proper reporting of the income from these securities or their sale is essential for income tax purposes.

Dividends from stock are reported on Schedule A, Form 1040. Dividends from stock in domestic corporations are reported on line one. A taxpayer is entitled to exclude the first $50 of such dividends. If both the husband and wife received dividends, each is entitled to exclude up to $50 of his or her own dividends, including those from jointly held shares. Dividends from foreign corporations are fully taxable, and should be entered in line five.

TAXPAYERS

Any taxpayer who has taxable dividends from domestic corporations in excess of the $50 exclusion is also entitled to the dividend received credit, computed in Schedule J, From 1040. The amount of taxable dividends shown in line four, Schedule A, is carried forward to Schedule J and a credit of 4 per cent of such amount is allowed to be subtracted from total income tax due.

This credit is subject to certain limitations which are set out in Schedule J. After the credit is computed, it is carried forward to line 13 (a), page 1, Form 1040, and there subtracted from the tax due. The dividend received credit cannot be claimed by those who file short Form 1040A or Form 1040W.

PREMIUM RETURNS

Dividends from mutual insurance companies are really returns of premium and are not reportable. NSLI and USGLI dividends are also excluded. So called "dividends" from federal savings and loan associations are really interest and should be reported as such.

Interest income is reported in Schedule B, From 1040, by those who file the long form. Interest on savings accounts is taxable when credited to the account, regardless of whether this credit is entered in the pass book. Corporate bond interest is reportable in the year of receipt, but interest on US Government bonds need not be reported until the bonds are cashed, unless the taxpayer elects to report same on the accrual basis. State or municipal bond interest is not taxable.

STOCKS OR BONDS

Gains and losses from the sale of corporate stocks or bonds is reported on Separate Schedule D. Losses are fully deductible up to $1,000 per year, and short term gains (securities held less than 6 months) are fully taxable. Long term gains on sale of securities held over 6 months are only 50 per cent taxable.

Army Dental Corps Marks Half Century Today

By IDA C. EVANS

It will be "business as usual" today for post Dental Service personnel as they observe the 50th anniversary of the Army Dental Corps.

The Infantry Center Dental Service is headed by Col. Stuart M. Mitchell, post dental surgeon, with Lt. Col. Thomas K. Goodman as assistant post dental surgeon.

The chief clinicians are Col. Frank C. Yerbi, Dispensary A.; Col. Edward G. Austin, A-14 Dental Clinic; Lt. Col. Robert M. Ziehm, Sand Hill Dental Clinic; Lt. Col. Gordon L. Sanger, Harmony Church Dental Clinic and Major Martin Steiner, Martin Army Hospital Dental Clinic.

The chief of the Dental Laboratory is Major Wallace L. Lancaster. Under his supervision all dental prosthetic appliances used on post are constructed.

The 50-year-old Army Dental Corps has, as its chief, Major Gen. Joseph L. Bernier, a recent visitor here. Accompanied by Col. R. E. Harrisberg, dental surgeon of 3rd Army, Gen. Bernier made a two-day tour of dental facilities.

Although the Army Dental Corps was not established until 1911, the idea originated in 1850 with Dr. Edward Maynard, who is considered the father of the corps.

Dr. Maynard presented his concept of an Army Dental Corps to President Fillmore. In 1901, Congress passed the Otey Bill, authorizing the appointment of one dental surgeon for every 1,000 men in the Army. Positions for 90 dentists were established at that time, apparently the first in the Army. History reveals the organization of the Confederate Army included dentists.

On March 3, 1911, the Army Dental Corps was formally established by law.

During World War I there were approximately 1,400 dental officers on duty. World War II required more than 15,000.

The Army Dental Corps today numbers approximately 18,000 dental officers.

Plans are under way for the building of a new ultra-modern clinic on the post. Construction of the 12-chair clinics is expected to begin within a few weeks.

The new clinic, to be constructed in conjunction with a regimental dispensary in the Kelley Hill area, will be of the latest design. The most modern equipment available will be installed. The psychological effect of pleasing pastel color will be utilized in both the decoration of the clinic and in the color of the equipment.

Two of the present clinics are already provided with ultra-sonic prophylaxis (tooth cleaning equipment). Cleaning teeth with vibrations at the rate of 25,000 per second, the machines have made unpleasant tooth scrapings a thing of the past.

There are 35 air-turbine dental drills on the post. With the speed of more than 200,000 revolutions per minute, these units make the preparation of teeth for restorations simple and less unpleasant. As funds become available, more of the units will be installed until each dental officer has the equipment.

Preventive dentistry is considered an important phase of the work of the Dental Service. Patients are given at least two periods of instruction in the proper practice of oral hygiene procedures. The dental officers conduct the program on an individual basis during dental appointments.

In addition to the instruction in hygiene, a fluoridation program is under way on the post.

A fluoride solution is being applied to the surfaces of teeth of dependent children. The treatment begins at the age of three and is recommended to continue through the teenage years. This program is sponsored by the Community Activities Association and administered by the post dental surgeon.

The water supply on the reservation is fluorinated to deter tooth decay.

Officer and enlisted personnel of the Dental Service keep abreast of the latest developments and techniques in dentistry through a continuing program of professional education.

Dental officers attend professional meetings, maintain close liaison with dental schools in the area, and take courses at Walter Reed Medical Center in Washington, D. C., Brooke Army Medical Center at Fort Sam Houston, Texas, and civilian institutions.

Enlisted personnel attend dental technician and laboratory courses at Brooke.

The post dental surgeon, in affiliation with Martin Army Hospital, conducts a dental intern training program on the post. Four interns are trained each year. They are taught by members of the local staff.

For the benefit of both the interns and the dental officers, eight eminent specialists from the southeastern area of the U. S. visit the post at regular intervals for consultation.

Fort Benning is one of several Army installations conducting dental intern training by provision of the surgeon general of the Army. The program is approved by the American Dental Association's Council on Dental Education.

Georgia On Top In Veteran Aid

Georgia ranks 6th nationally — and 1st percentagewise — in education and training expenditures for veterans.

Georgia Veterans Service Director Pete Wheeler says the Veterans Administration spent $13,368,000 for the veterans education program in this state during 1960.

Only five states — California, Illinois, New York, Pennsylvania and Texas — led Georgia in distribution of federal money for veterans' schooling and they have three to four times as many veterans as this state.

Dentist Of Today Goes Beyond Teeth

During the 50 years that the Army Dental Corps has been functioning, educational standards have been raised and broadened, and with increased knowledge of the relation of diseases of the mouth and teeth to the other diseases of the body, the dentist is sought in consultation by the surgeon and other specialists in medicine. He is a specialist on the diseases of the mouth, and frequently a specialist in surgery of the mouth and face.

Teeth Not Issued With Weapons

Back in Civil War days soldiers tore the cartridges for their muzzle-loaders with their teeth. When their front teeth gave out, they were discharged from the service.

Hospital Praised In Letters

Officials of Martin Army Hospital receive many letters of appreciation from former patients and their families.

Col. Bryan C. T. Fenton, hospital commander, has a file of letters from Allied personnel, Reserve officers, troop commanders, generals, warrant officers, retired military personnel and parents of enlisted men and dependents.

The universal theme of the letters is praise for the staff of the hospital, including doctors, administrators, nurses, therapists, attendants, dieticians, ambulance and emergency crews, Red Cross and volunteer workers.

"The esprit de corps that prevails within the hospital radiates throughout and can be felt by visitors as they enter," stated one writer.

A retired officer wrote, "You made us feel as though we still belong to the Army."

Prevention Is New Byword For Future

As the Army Dental Service reaches its first half century mark, March 3, the watchword of the future is "Prevention." Major Gen. Joseph L. Bernier, new Chief of the Dental Corps, has launched a Corps-wide campaign to maintain the dental health of the Army at an all-time high.

The senator was stumping a rural area seeking reelection. His long-winded speech had been going on and on; punctuated only by occasional stops for gulps of water. During one of these pauses an old farmer in the audience turned to his neighbor and in a loud whisper observed: "First time in my life I ever saw a windmill run by water."

A mountaineer brought in a young man to the town doctor.

"Doc, fix up my son-in-law," said the mountaineer. "I shot him in the leg yesterday and lamed him."

Said the Doc: "Shame on you, shooting your own son-in-law."

Said the old fellow: "He warn't my son-in-law when I shot him."

Parents See School Day At Nursery Open House

Over 300 parents attended the post pre-kindergarten nursery open house recently. A colorful circus theme was used to decorate the walls, hallways, and rooms where the three-to-five year old children have their classes.

The parents witnessed a typical school day of play and training for the children. The evening open house consisted of coffee and cookies for visitors, and a teacher in each classroom to talk to the parents about their children's progress.

Books, crayons, scissors, paste and toys were carefully displayed, as well as creative works of art done by the tiny pre-schoolers.

Mrs. Adolph Gondek, principal, and Mrs. Robert Sine, assistant principal, introduced their staff of teachers, consisting of Mesdames Homer Roads, Gregory Brickhouse, Jack H. Murray, Roy Turgeon, James Bukoski, Walter Brooks, Edwin Thompson, Raymond Crowley, John Hicks and James Roberts.

The school is sponsored by the Woman's Club of Fort Benning and is directed by a board of governors with Mrs. Norvin Smith as chairman, Mrs. William Goers, secretary, Mrs. Ronald Ayette, treasurer, and the Mesdames Thomas Aaron, John Tominac and Henry Edwards as members.

The Woman's Club recently donated the playground equipment to the school, which enrolls 180 children annually.

Infantry Board Ladies Hold 'Potluck' Luncheon

A potluck luncheon was the order of the day for the Infantry Board ladies last week at the home of Mrs. Richard C. Wittmann.

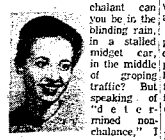
The buffet table was centered with a punch bowl which spouted smoke, giving the colorful buffet table a most effective centerpiece.

With food and favorite recipes being the "food for thought" for the day, the hostesses completed the theme by reading clever recipes on courting, a successful marriage, raising children, and a special recipe on how to keep slim and trim.

The door prize, a recipe box, was won by Mrs. R. A. Gunton, a guest.

Mrs. Thomas R. Clarkin, president of the ladies group, extended her thanks and appreciation to Mrs. Harold M. Maness, retiring chairman, and to the other outgoing officers for their work in the group during their terms of office.

Mrs. Maness gave a brief report on the activities of the ladies group during the past year. She also thanked her outgoing officers for the help they had given to her. These included Mrs. Woodrow H. Myers, treasurer and hospitality chairman and Mrs. James R. Bukoski, publicity chairman.



Present officers of The Infantry Board ladies group in addition to Mrs. Clarkin, president, include Mrs. Earl F. Holton and Mrs. Marshall L. Mott, co-chairmen of hospitality; Mrs. John J. Tominac, secretary-treasurer and Mrs. Gilbert Procter, Jr., publicity chairman.

It was also announced that Mrs. William H. Miller has been appointed chairman of the thrift shop.

Farewells were said to Mrs. R. A. Gunton who has been visiting her son, Major Gordon A. Gunton and family for several months. Mrs. Gunton is soon returning to her home in Montreal, Canada.

Hostessing the potluck luncheon were Mrs. Wittmann, Mrs. John J. Tominac, Mrs. Gilbert Procter, Jr., Mrs. James W. Bricker and Mrs. William H. Miller.

Pat Ryan's News and Views

There are those who could've used a river-going ark or two this past week-end, particularly in Columbus. However, the dauntless Army folk sailed forth to parties with determined nonchalance. But how nonchalant can you be in the blinding rain, in a stalled midget car, in the middle of groping traffic? But speaking of "determined nonchalance," I watched Joan Bennett, stage actress, walk into the Ralston Hotel, a few hours before her professional appearance, with sunglasses, scarf, red coat, trotting black miniature poodle, and a "No-thank-you-no-interviews - I - have - to - go - do-my-hair!"

The Woman's Club announcements for this week include a teen-age modeling school beginning Thursday, March 9 at 7:30 p.m. at the Woman's Club building.

Mrs. George Britton's choral group will begin rehearsals Tuesday, March 7 at 9:30 a.m. at the School of Dance building.

Mrs. Phillip Kaplan's sewing classes for beginner's start Tuesday, March 7. Anyone interested in taking up the thread-and-needle habit, please call her before then.

Mrs. Robert Sine is the pre-kindergarten's new principal. Mrs. Adolph Gondek, past principal, has gone to Fort Niagara with her husband, just back from Korea.

My husband helped time at the AAU children's swimming meet this past weekend. I was amused with his story of wonder at the tiny tots' feats. Seemingly no higher than his knee, they would ask, after a breathless swim, in even tinier voices, "What was my time?" He just couldn't get over how earnestly competitive the characters were, but that's the way the champions are made.

Don't forget that Basil Rathbone will be here next Saturday, and that there will be an open reception for him at the Briant Wells Field House after his performance. But I'm sure this news is "elementary, my dear Watson!"

Spotlighting Personalities

By NORMA SPARACINO

Mrs. Robert E. Lamb is the second vice president of the NCO Wives' Club.

Virginia, who's husband is MSgt (Ret) Lamb, served as president of the group in 1958, was the vice president in 1957, secretary in 1956 and treasurer in 1959.

Virginia received her education in Birmingham, Ala., public schools and makes her home in Columbus. Neida and Judy, her two daughters, live here in Columbus with Sgt. and Mrs. Lamb, while their two sons Robert E. Jr., and Morgan are members of the Air Force.

She became interested in club work early in life and has been associated with community organizations wherever duty assignments have taken her.

Virginia is a Red Cross Nurses Aid and has served many hours at Martin Army Hospital on volunteer time. She is former girl scout leader, cub scout den mother and past P-TA secretary.

Another accomplishment she remembers with great pride is that she was a member of the planning committee which organized "Brat Barracks" here on post in 1957.

Virginia recalls the many trials encountered during those first years when money for the youth activity was almost nonexistent. She served on the adult advisory committee of the group for two years. She recalls there was no YAC at that time and the organization was sponsored by the Chaplain's Section. She and her husband still serve "Brat Barracks" frequently as chaperones.

The Lamb's also co-sponsored the original Youth Fellowship, the parent group of the present "Follow Me Club."

In Germany, Virginia was active in German-American youth work and served as president of the Triangle Woman's Club in Frankfurt.

Among Mrs. Lamb's most prized possessions are two letters of commendation from Gen. Herbert B. Powell, the present commander of the Continental Army Command, when he was commander of The Infantry Center, for her work as president of the post NCO Wives Club.

Her likes are varied, and her dislikes few.

She also is serving as first vice president of the Benning Hills Woman's Club.

Ladies Naminate Officers At Monthly Coffee

Nominations for officers of the 51st Transportation Company's Ladies Club were made at the monthly coffee last week. The door prize was won by Mrs. Allie Campbell and the table centerpiece by Mrs. George Steuhjem.

A company party sponsored by the 1st Platoon was held at the Country Club last Friday evening.

The officers of the 1st Platoon held a "beauty contest" with CWO Edward Reid as Miss Kansas, CWO Frank Roop as Miss California, and CWOs John Langwasser and Riccardo Lombardo as twins from Hawaii.

Capt. R. C. Barnes presented farewell gifts to Capt. and Mrs. Lemuel Thomas and CWO and Mrs. Langwasser; who are departing the unit soon.

Following the presentation of gifts, Capt. Barnes then gave the company's honored guests, Cdl. and Mrs. L. W. Leeney and Lt. Col. and Mrs. William Dyer, greetings from Mrs. Barnes, who is convalescing at Martin Army Hospital.

Wesleyan College To Present Play For Youngsters

The speech and theatre department of the Wesleyan College in Macon, Ga., will present the play, "Peter, Peter, Pumpkin Eater" at the Jordan High School Auditorium at 2:30 p.m. on March 11.

The play, which is mainly for children, is sponsored by the Wynnton Elementary School P-TA.

Mrs. Nett Hosts Rangers' Wives

The wives of the Attack Committee were hostesses to 27 wives of the Ranger Department last week in the home of Mrs. Robert Nett.

The hostesses baked date bars, coffee cakes, cookies, cheese sticks and little cakes. These were highlighted with a large birthday cake honoring all those who celebrated birthdays in February. Coffee and tea were also served.

The table was decorated with silver candelabras holding pink candles and a silver bowl containing white gardenias, carrying through the color scheme of the birthday cake.

Sandra Lee Taylor's Report Card . . .

A young organization which has been very active in the Fort Benning area recently is one which should be of interest to the eligible group of teenagers at the junior high school level.

This active organization is the Crusader's Club, a Protestant Youth fellowship group which meets every Sunday evening from 6-7 p.m. in the eighth grade building of the Main Post Sunday School. The junior high members are full of enthusiasm which can encompass all the activities in which they participate — and their Crusader's Club is no exception.

On the meeting agenda every Sunday evening are sometimes songs, skits, and games, but always a lesson with Christian influence by Lt. Robert J. Whitehead, Crusader's Club sponsor. Mrs. John Waldrop, director of the Main Post Sunday Schools, also helps with the Crusader's Club.

Crusader's Club is a beneficial organization and one to which any Fort Benning teenager could be proud to be a member. Along with his friends and neighbors, he would be crusading for the cause of God, just as surely as did those knights of old, only this time by participation rather than the sword and conquering.

"All Fort Benning teenagers in the junior high age bracket are cordially invited to attend Crusader's Club," said Lt. Whitehead, and continued: "So all you teenagers in this age level, come to the Crusader's Club every Sunday evening for a good time with people your own age!"

Wielding the club president's gavel with efficiency at the present time is Pat Keene, while Charles Taylor serves as vice president. In charge of all records and money matters is Terry Fish, secretary-treasurer.

The social calendar is governed by Bruce Munson, social chairman. Logan Gray and Mike Munson have an interesting job as they act as sergeants-of-arms for the group.

In addition to their regular meetings, the enthusiastic Crusader's Club also holds parties periodically which insert moments of fun into the lives of these fortunate teenagers.

Club Hears Two "Icebreakers"

Mrs. Royce Hunt acted as toastmistress during the February 23 meeting of the Fort Benning - Columbus Toastmistress Club and introduced Mrs. William Collins and Mrs. Edwin Passmore who gave their icebreaker speeches.

Mrs. Collins spoke of the use of color in decorating in her speech, "If You Like Color, Why Not Use It" and Mrs. Passmore told of her thrilling experiences in Rome, including an audience with the Pope in her speech, "A Trip to Rome".

Mrs. Passmore was later voted "speaker of the evening". Mrs. Alan Carlisle was general evaluator of the meeting. Guests included Mrs. G. L. Soderstrom, Mrs. M. R. Hunsucker, and Mrs. J. G. Gritz.

Basil Rathbone Brings Unique One-Man Show

Basil Rathbone will bring his unique one-man presentation, "The Best from My Bookshelf", to Theater 1 on Saturday March 11 at 8:30 p.m. A dramatic presentation of the works of the English-speaking world's great poets, novelists and playwrights, "The Best From My Bookshelf" features selections from Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, Edgar Allen Poe, Housman, Browning, Shakespeare and others.

The evening begins with Mr. Rathbone's reminiscences of his many-faceted career in the theater. He proceeds from stage recollections to a poetry session, and closes the evening with scenes from Shakespeare.

Mr. Rathbone, long a member of the very forefront of all-time acting "greats" has been one of Broadway and Hollywood's busiest performers since he first came to the States in 1921. "The Best From My Bookshelf" tour comes directly on the heels of a triumphant trans-continental trek in "J. B."

Of Mr. Rathbone producer Gilbert Miller once said, "He is the best equipped actor on the English stage". Of his current program, critic Ernest Schlett declared, "The stage was alive with color and beauty . . . an unforgettable evening of Theatre!"

In explaining his dramatic approach to poetry, Mr. Rathbone points out that "Although the poet uses words, he is in many ways a composer, in that his words are more closely related to music than to any other form of literature. With poetry, the essential sense is the ear. In poetry, sound is the vital element. It is not meant for reading, but is designed for a spoken, dramatic presentation. That is what we are trying to do in "The Best From My Bookshelf."

The Woman's Club is sponsoring Mr. Rathbone, and proceeds from the show go to the club's welfare fund program.

People With Vision To Create a Potentially Valuable Estate For Themselves and Their Children!

Most of America's greatest fortunes were built by men who foresaw the limitless opportunities of America and bought LAND. They bought undeveloped land for pennies an acre and held it until development of the area forced land values up. . .and Up . . . and UP until their fortunes were assured. Today . . . RIGHT NOW . . . the same ground floor opportunity is opening up in BRAZIL, country of jet-age progress. With the creation of Brasilia, the new capital district in Brazil's interior, a whole new empire is opening up for development. Cities are springing to life almost overnight . . . roads are being carved out of the wilderness . . . population is exploding into the area.

Just as fortunes were made in the development of the American West 100 years ago, fortunes will be made in the development of the Brazilian interior by those wise enough and far-sighted enough to take advantage of the rock-bottom prices for which choice land is now selling. Land that sells for just a few dollars an acre today can be expected to skyrocket in value in the future. Who knows what choice land will be worth 5, 10, or 20 years from today?

CHOICE LAND BEING BOUGHT FAST

The opportunity being presented in Brazil is attracting wise investors from all over the world. Land in the path of progress is eagerly sought as an investment for the future. The land offered in this ad is most advantageously located. It is high, dry land in an area of pleasant climate and delightful scenery. It has been carefully selected for sale to the public as an outstanding investment opportunity.

USAAMU Rounds Out Five Years Of Shooting Progress, Records

By 1st Lt. C. W. Watson

Five years ago this week, a small group of shooters, coaches and support personnel from Army posts around the world gathered at Fort Benning to establish a new military organization.

The unit those men brought into existence has, in the intervening years, achieved a prominence far beyond their greatest expectations. The United States Army Advanced Marksmanship Unit (USAAMU), this week celebrating its fifth anniversary, has become the hub of Army marksmanship activities and the mecca for serious shooters from every section of the country, military and civilian alike.

By its constant efforts in the field of marksmanship training, weapons research and development and perfection of competitive performance, the AMU has contributed materially to the resurgence of interest in all phases of competitive shooting in this country and has been largely responsible for the comback staged by the U. S. in the international shooting realm.

In recent years, Army teams have influenced every area of the American shooting picture. Soldier shooters have won recognition in the small-bore, service and bolt rifle, pistol, and international fields and have set scores of new records in the process.

The recent Inter-Service Pistol Matches are a good case in point. There, the Army won nine major titles, eight by record scores, and came away with both the individual and team championships. The story in other fields reads the same way.

The picture has not always been so bright, however. Until 1955, the Army lagged so badly in all fields of marksmanship that a Continental Army Command study in that year ended on this gloomy note, "The Army has done very poorly in inter-service shooting competition and the U. S. has made the same type of showing in Olympic and International competition, particularly with the rifle."

With the situation thus defined, Army planners took the first long steps toward the development of a coordinated program of marksmanship training.

Guided by the recommendations of a board of experienced and qualified shooters, CONARC issued orders in February 1956, organizing the AMU.

The unit, as the nucleus of the Army marksmanship effort, was given a manifold mission. It was to select, organize, equip and train shooting teams of the highest quality to represent the Army at the National Matches, Inter-Service Matches and other major competitions within the continental United States, and to represent the U.S. in such international events as the Olympic Games, the World Championships and the Pan American Games.

Subsequently, the mission was broadened and the AMU became responsible for conducting coaching clinics throughout the Army.

Within this field, the unit also furnishes coaches, training assistance and logistical support to regional and major command teams. Likewise, it carries on a continuing program of evaluation and development of weapons and ammunition.

Underlying the printed mission, however, is the broader importance Army-level counterparts within the sphere of the shooting program.

Literally hundreds of pistol and rifle shooters are exposed to, or become a part of, an AMU or area team each year. In time, these men return to their units to instruct new shooters in proper marksmanship methods.

The Army system of competitive shooting is a self-regenerating program which assures itself of a continually increasing group of new shooters to fill the ranks of service teams, as well as a growing riflemen.

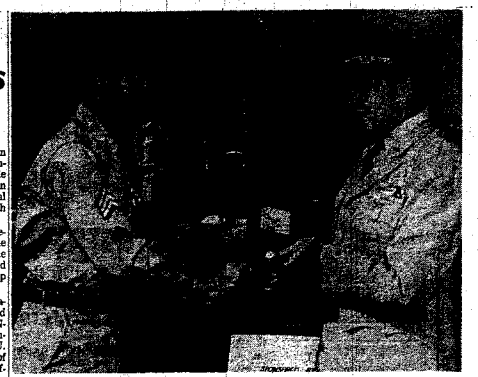
That the marksmanship program promulgated by USAAMU during the past years has borne considerable fruit is demonstrated by some interesting figures.



In June, 1956, a few months after the unit was organized, the All-Army Matches were fired at Benning. The average score of the top twenty-five competitors in the National Match Course Individual Match that year was 238.2 out of 250.

Four years later, in 1960, the average had risen to 247.5, an increase of 9.3 points. Scores for the intervening years reflect a steady increase of about two points per year.

Advanced marksmanship coaching clinics and orientations have extended the influence of the Army shooting program far beyond the limits of Army ranges.

Message on Anniversary By Col. R. G. Montgomery

"Five years ago the Commanding General of Continental Army Command decided that the posture of Army marksmanship was below an acceptable level. Assisted by a determined command support policy Army marksmen commenced their ascendency which has culminated in the domination of service shooting. Maintaining this position has required the philosophy of 'go out to be the best, or don't go'.

"In conjunction with supremacy in the field of inter-service competition has been the establishment of international-type shooting by Army marksmen. The United States had slipped into a subordinate position where international competition was concerned.

"In the past three years however, the Advanced Marksmanship Unit has furnished the foundation upon which America is again bidding for international superiority. Five years plus determined leadership has elevated the Army shooters and Army prestige to "the blue ribbon" rank. To maintain this optimum proficiency and constantly improve the stature of the Army is one of this unit's cardinal missions."

Team Goes To Matches

Thirty members of the Army Advanced Marksmanship Unit Rifle Team left here yesterday for Twentynine Palms, Calif., and the 1961 High Desert Invitational High Power Rifle Matches.

The competition, hosted by the Marine Corps and conducted on the Twentynine Palms Marine Corps Base Ranges, will be fired from March 3 to 5.

Under the direction of veteran Army coach Major Reynold S. Dobak, the soldier-shooters will compete against military and civilian riflemen from throughout the western states.

The Army squad will return home on March 6th.

Simmons Gets SOM Honors For January

By 12th Arty PIO

Specialist Fourth Class Louis J. Simmons of Headquarters Battery, 12th Artillery, was chosen as 2nd Infantry Division Soldier of the Month for the month of January.

This makes the second time Specialist Simmons has been selected as the Division's top soldier of the Month. He previously won the competition for May 1960. The presentation of the award took place in the office Brigadier General William L. Hardick, where the General presented him with a certificate of achievement.

The Division level soldier of the month competition is the final test in a string of previous competitions, to include battalion and Division Artillery levels. The competition tests the individuals neatness, appearance, military knowledge, cost consciousness, as well as the other traits which make an outstanding soldier. The competition is judged by a board of senior Non-commissioned officers.

The presentation of awards was held up for Specialist Simmons who was in the hospital during the original ceremony for monthly awards held in January.

School and Major Soeadi, Commandant of the Indonesian Signal Battalion.

The two officers are on a program sponsored by Department of the Army to the Signal School at Fort Monmouth, N.J. Prior to reporting to Fort Monmouth, the officers are on tour of signal facilities at Fort Benning, Fort Gordon, Ga., and Fort Bragg, N.C.

During their visit with the 2nd Division Col Soehardjono and Major Soeadi met and had lunch with Brigadier General William L. Hardick, division commanding general.

The two officers were briefed on the organization and mission of a division signal battalion by Major Earl R. LeVier, the battalion commander. They then inspected the equipment assigned to a signal battalion and learned of the capabilities of the equipment.

During the afternoon they visited the photo laboratory and division Signal Supply and Maintenance Section to learn of their operation within the Division. They also visited the battalion personnel and Headquarters Company to view the barracks and mess facilities used by the men.

Friday, the two officers visited signal facilities at the Infantry Center before departing Saturday for Fort Gordon.

Captain Tops Twenty Years At Ceremony

By 702nd Ord. Bn. PIO

Captain Robert M. Huntley, Headquarters and Company B, 702nd Ordnance Battalion, was presented with a Certificate of Retirement during a brief ceremony conducted at Battalion Headquarters. Major Benjamin R. Schultze, Battalion Commander, made the presentation.

Captain Huntley ("gyroed" to the United States with the 10th Infantry Division, and was assigned the duties of Division Material Officer. The reactivation of the 2nd Infantry Division found no change in his duty assignment. Because of his vast military and technical knowledge, he was instrumental in lowering the vehicular deadline rate within the division. In addition, Captain Huntley was responsible for maintaining the ordnance budget. Here, he was required to account for monies spent and credits given for repair of ordnance equipment.

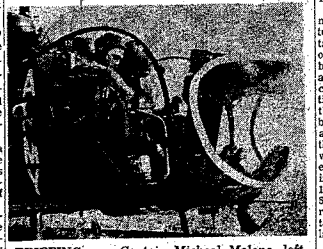
JAG Welcomes New Lieutenants



By Div PIO

Recently assigned to the Division Judge Advocate Section were Lieutenant W. Ronald Groshong and Lieutenant Charles S. Cassis.

Lieutenant Groshong, who holds a bachelor of law degree from the University of Washington, reported to the "Indianhead" Division after completing the three-month special class at the Judge Advocate General's School, Charlottesville, Virginia.

Lieutenant Groshong is a member of the bar of the State of Washington, and also has been admitted to practice before the United States Court of Military Appeals.

Lieutenant Charles S. Cassis joined the Judge Advocate section after completing Airborne training at the Infantry Center. He completed a year and a half of law study at the University of Kentucky, as well as four years of undergraduate work for a bachelor of science degree.

Special Forces Volunteers Requested As Selection Requirements Relaxed

BY GEORGE HORD

A division-wide drive for personnel for training and assignment with Special Forces was launched here this week as word was received that several selection criteria were relaxed to provide a greater source of volunteers, according to Lieutenant Colonel Jack E. Compton, division adjutant general.

Particularly required for Special Forces training and duty are personnel qualified in Military Occupational Specialities 051, 111, 112, 113, 121 and 911 and qualified linguists, in grades E-4 through E-7, messages state.

However, enlisted personnel of all grades and MOS, including those undergoing Basic and Advanced Individual Training are encouraged to apply.

The relaxed requirements state applicants must:

A. Indicate a desire for assignment to a Special Forces unit and a willingness to undergo airborne training.

B. Have completed four months of active military service rather than one year.

C. Have an interim secret security clearance rather than final.

D. Have 18 months remaining in service rather than 33 months. Those enlisted men with insufficient remaining active duty may satisfy this prerequisite by extension of enlistment, reenlistment or certificate of intent to reenlist.

Applications from permanent party personnel are to be submitted, through channels, to the division Adjutant General. Applications from those undergoing Basic and Advanced In-

Rifle Marksman Chosen To Instruct New Soldiers

By 87th Inf PIO

New soldiers of Company E, 87th Infantry, will have a top Army shooter for an instructor during their preliminary rifle training. Sergeant First Class Jessie Arrington, OVUREP leader of the first squad, first platoon, wears the coveted Army Distinguished Marksmanship Badge, the mark of a shooter among men.

The Distinguished Marksmanship Badge is only awarded to shooters who have placed in the upper brackets of competition of three top level rifle matches. Each of these three steps, or credits, to the gold marksmanship badge is known by shooters as "a leg" or "leg match." In order to qualify, at least one of the three legs must be earned at the National Matches, the world's series of civilian and military shooting, held each year at Camp Perry, Ohio.

Sergeant Arrington earned his third and final leg to rank as a Distinguished Shooter during the 1959 National Rifle and Pistol Matches as a member of the First Army Rifle Team.

He has fired at the Camp Perry Matches for the past four years. In 1959 he also fired in the First Army Area Matches held at Fort Dix, New Jersey and the All-Army Matches at Fort Benning, before going to Camp Perry.

Last year Sergeant Arrington fired with the Fort Devens Rifle Team in the Army-Marine Rifle Matches at Camp Lejeune, North Carolina. He fires a 1903 A-3, Springfield, .30 caliber rifle.

Fifteen years ago Sergeant Arrington entered the Army at Fort George G. Meade, Maryland. He took his basic training at Fort McClellan, Alabama. He was assigned as a member of the 82nd Airborne Division for nine years at Fort Bragg, North Carolina. He has also been assigned to Fort Devens, Massachusetts, Fort Hamilton, New York and has served in Germany.

Mutual Benefits Reaped As Armor, 1st Inf Train

By 69th Armor PIO

The end of 2nd Battle Group, 1st Infantry, Basic Unit Training phase of OVUREP is in sight. For the men of 2nd Medium Tank Battalion, 69th Armor, it means the end of a phase of their training. Tank Section and Platoon support will give way to Tank Company support beginning March 13, 1961 when the OVUREP unit commences Advance Unit Training.

The benefits of the past two months training have been mutual as both infantryman and tanker got an opportunity not only to work with each other but to develop new techniques and test old ones. The principles of continued arms operations may sound simple in theory but the application can be quite challenging. For example imagine the dilemma of the rifle company commander who discovers that his attached platoon of tanks upon seizing the objective requires: 100 rounds of 90 millimeter, 5000 rounds of .30 caliber, 200 rounds of .50 caliber ammunition and 1000 gallons of gasoline.

On the other hand, once resupplied, the same tank platoon may be called upon to crush an aggressor out-post, crashing through the enemy main battle position before the enemy can react to the oncoming friendly advance guard.

Only with such training will Armor and Infantry be able to successfully unite and destroy the enemy on any future battlefield.

180 Graduate At 9th Infantry

By 9th Inf PIO

The 9th Infantry's Company E, commanded by Captain William Ledgerwood graduated 180 men recently in Military Occupational Specialty 111—Light Weapons Infantryman.

Colonels James L. Osgard, Commander of the 9th, delivered the graduation address to the Advanced Individual Trainees. Colonel Osgard then made three presentations to individuals of Company E Private Richard Parrino copped the award for scoring the highest mark on the Division proficiency test.

Other awards went to Private Ray Towles, top man on the automatic rifle, and Private Lawrence Gabbert, top firer on the caliber .30 machine gun.

Following their graduation the 9th Infantry troop departed for such posts as Fort Bragg, North Carolina; Fort Campbell, Kentucky; Alaska, Hawaii, and Germany.

CHARMED . . . Pretty Ann Weathington, who plays the Hollywood-crazed young usherette in Service Club Two's "At War With the Army," makes much ado over her introduction to "Capt. Caldwell," played by Private Richard Mitchell, during a recent rehearsal. The farce plays Service Club Two on March 19, 26 and 27.

Cast Named For 'At War With Army'

All 12 male roles in Service Club Two's forthcoming production of "At War with the Army" have been filled by members of the 2nd Division from units located in the Sand Hill area.

The farce, opening March 19 at Service Club Two, will star Corporal Joseph Watcher of the 15th Artillery. Cpl. Watcher appears as First Sergeant Robert Johnson, around whom the comedy revolves. Cpl. Watcher makes his second consecutive starring appearance for the director, Lieutenant Nelson Marsh of the 9th Infantry. Lt. Marsh directed Cpl. Watcher in "A Hatful of Rain" for Service Club Two last August.

Supporting Cpl. Watcher will be a cast of 11 other men and three women, all of them members of Service Club Two's Sand Hill Theater Guild. Private Richard Mitchell of the 13th Transportation Battalion co-stars in the part of Captain Ernest Caldwell.

Other featured players include Private Paul DeWinter of the 9th Infantry, Private First Class David Csanyi of the 9th Infantry, Private Billy Edwards, of Division Trains Headquarters and Mrs. Genie Miller of Columbus.

"At War with the Army" will be staged at Service Club Two March 19, 26, and 27. The cast and crew will travel to Fort Rucker, Ala., on April 8.

WHO, ME? . . . "But, sir, that pains me HERE," declares Private First Class David Csanyi, left, who plays a hard-headed supply sergeant in the forthcoming Service Club Two Production, "At War With the Army." Csanyi, in this rehearsal shot, is questioned by Specialist Fourth Class Charles Digby, portraying "Lieutenant Davenport," as Private First Class Billy P. Edwards, "PFC Hawkins," stands mystified. "At War With the Army," directed by Lieutenant Nelson Marsh, will be presented March 19, 26 and 27 at Service Club Two.

Cook Receives Starbuck's Role In 'Rainmaker'

A 1st Infantry private with a repertoire of Shakespearean parts has been selected for the role of Starbuck in the Columbus Little Theater's production of "The Rainmaker."

Among the roles of Private Charles A. Cook, who has appeared in King Lear, Much Ado About Nothing, and Merchant of Venice, and at the San Diego National Shakespearean Festival in 1959, he was an understudy for roles in Romeo and Juliet, Loves Labor's Lost, and Henry IV, Part I.

He received his bachelor of arts degree in theater from San Jose College in 1959 after spending 12 years in acting and technical work at the Palo Alto Children's Theater, and appearing in the Dark of the Moon and Seventeen with the Palo Alto Community Theater.

At Kansas City University in 1956, he appeared in My Sister Eileen, Murder in the Cathedral and Nurenburg Stove, a children's play. And at San Jose College, he had roles in World Is Round, Sleeping Prince, the Misanthrope, The Flier, Bean Stragetern, Italian Strawhat, and Juno and the Paycock.

Aming his most notable achievements is the winning of the award for best technical achievement as stage manager for Lute Song at the Oregon National Shakespearean Festival in 1958.

7th Cavalry Ends Trainfire Course

By 7th Cavalry PIO

A new "first" was marked recently for the Troopers of the 3d Reconnaissance Squadron, 7th Cavalry. The permanent party personnel assigned to the Squadron completed the Trainfire Course on the recently completed specially designed ranges.

During the breathing period between Basic Combat Training cycles, all personnel armed with the M1 rifle and carbine under went an extensive training program which started January 30, 1961. The cavarymen donned their steel helmets and combat packs and charged on to the ranges with the enthusiasm of a saber charge. Observing the target hits it was reluctantly admitted that the M1 rifle out classes the old cavalry saber.

SOM Goes To 9th Inf 7-Year Vet

By DIV PIO

A seven-year Army veteran, Sergeant Aubrey Walker of the 9th Infantry, has been selected the 2nd Infantry Division Soldier-of-the-Month for February.

Previously picked as the 9th Infantry's top enlisted man and the Division Infantry soldier-of-the-month, Sergeant Walker won the Division award on the basis of his knowledge of military subjects, appearance and military bearing.

Sergeant Walker, an assistant platoon sergeant, first entered the Army in 1953, and has served in Japan, Alaska, and at Fort Jackson, S. C. He joined the "Keep Up the Fire" battle group in May 1960.

Sergeant Walker holds the Good Conduct Medal and is rated as a "first class" gunner on the 4.2 inch mortar. His education includes the one-year college equivalency test, successfully completed through the General Educational Development (GED) program.

The Division's top enlisted man is 24 years old and lives on post with his wife, Thelma Sue.

Twins Provide Confusion--Who's Who?

By 69th Armor PIO

"Doggone it, Zamora, I thought I put you on KP this morning!"

"But, Sarge, that was my brother Arturo."

"Zamora, how did you get into greens so fast? I saw you in fatigues 30 seconds ago.

"No, Sarge that was my brother, Jose."

Conversations such as this, are not uncommon around The Second Platoon, Company C, 69th Armor, where identical twins Arturo R. and Jose R. Zamora are assigned, much to the confusion of Platoon Sergeant Isaac Summerall.

"They are both splendid soldiers," says Sgt. Summerall, "but I sure wish I could tell them apart."

Both Zamoras are Privates First Class. They entered the service from San Antonio, Tex., January 13, 1960.

Arturo is the driver on tank C21 while Jose drives tank C25.

Although they call McAllen, Tex., home, they were working for a produce company in Ontario, Ore., before entering the service.

17th Redecorates Unit TI&E Room

By 17th Arty PIO

The newest project in Headquarters Battery, 17th Artillery Battalion, is the redecoration of the Training and Education Room under the supervision of Sergeant First Class Alvin A. Simmons and Sergeant Robert E. Berrier.

Both Sergeant Simmons and Sergeant Berrier have raised the standards of Training and Education to 100 percent. Many of the personnel in the Battery who have not completed their education, are well on their way to improving themselves.

23rd Trainee Ex-Park Guide Lived With 'Gators, Bears

BY 23RD INFANTRY PIO

The old "bring em' back alive" philosophy of Frank Buck could be applied indirectly to the civilian occupation of Recruit Gary F. Liles, now taking basic training with Company D of the 23rd Infantry.

This does not indicate that Liles is a big game hunter, but he did have a great deal to do with keeping animals alive once they were brought back.

As a combination keeper and guide for "Everglades Wonder Gardens" in Bonita Springs, Fla., Liles had his hands full not only in guiding tourists through the five acres of attractions, but also in assisting the head keeper in feeding and caring for everything ranging from an African lioness to eastern diamondback rattlers, the largest poisonous snakes on the North American continent, and an Andean Condor which, according to Liles, has a wing spread of 11 feet or more, making it the largest flying bird in the world, and has been seen flying at altitudes of 26,000 feet.

Snakes, Bears

Other animals that Recruit Liles has dealt with include alligators, water snakes, South American King Vultures, monkeys, Florida black bears, panthers, deer and flamingoes.

Recruit Liles says one of his most startling experiences came when he was "hosing down" the cage of an African lioness. As he was bending down underneath the cage, the lioness reached down and took a swipe at his hand, which was resting on the floor. One of her claws hooked onto his ring. Liles began to pound on the lioness' foot, but this only made her angrier. The lioness dug her claw into his hand and the pain made Liles cry out. It was this cry that, according to Liles, "saved the day." "It startled the lioness so that she pulled back her foot and released my hand."

Liles says that the Army "is fine" and, contrary to popular belief, he would much rather be chewed out by his platoon Sergeant than by an African lioness.

THE DUCHESS

NOT OBSOLETE

Nuclear explosives have by no means rendered obsolete the so-called "conventional" weapons. Active research and development in this field are principally directed to increased firepower and greater mobility with special emphasis on transportability of weapons by air. Standardization, interchangeability, an ease of manufacture and maintenance are also being stressed.

An Obituary for the Dutchess

Beloved and loyal friend and companion of her mistress and master, Alma and George Thom and beloved playmate of Karen and George Jr., the Duchess of Hardtwald died February 18 at the Veterinarian Clinic at Auburn University, Auburn, Alabama.

The devoted boxer pet of Chief Warrant Officer George B. Thom and family, Ray Court, Custer Terrace was buried at the Fort Benning Small Animal Cemetery. She had been stricken with paralysis and failed to recover.

Born at Fort Lewis, Washington, November 19, 1950, of Alma V. Hardtwald and the Prince of Cranesville, she became a member of the Thom family at the afe of six weeks.

During the decade of her life, she visited most of the United States and many countries of Europe including Germany, France, Switzerland, and Italy, a real ambassador of American Goodwill.

The Duchess of Hardtwald was familiar to all of the 87th Infantry with whom Mr. Thom served five and half years.

Lieutenant Recalls Views Of Two Korean Tours

Hgs., 7th Infantry Division, Korea, (IO) — A soldier's first impression of Korea may be one of surprise when he views the congested living conditions and the standard of living in the Republic of Korea.

But for Lieutenant Joseph Abney, the leader of the second plane load of troops which landed at Kimpo Air Base as part of the second phase of the Bayonet Division's Project OVUREP (Overseas Unit Replacement), the picture is one of vast progress and improvement.

Abney, who will become a communications platoon leader of 2nd Battle Group, 3rd Infantry, is beginning his third tour in Korea and his first as a commissioned officer. He served as a mess sergeant during the war years of 1952 and on his return tour in 1955.

"The American influence in Korea over the past decade has been widespread," Abney related to a Bayonet reporter during the bus trip from Ascom City to Camp Kaiser. There is 80 per cent more business and industry evident here than there was five years ago."

Ascom City, Abney recalled was little more than a collection of tents in the early 50's. It has now mushroomed into a sprawling military installation which serves as the nerve center of personnel shipments in and out of Korea.

Another major change, according to Abney, is the number of American automobiles in Korea, particularly in Seoul. "Back in 1955 it was nothing to see the little one running around bally clothed in the dead of winter."

Abney credits the marked improvements in Korea to the stabilization of the hwan as the medium of national exchange and also cites the amount of construction and industry. Brick and concrete buildings were unknown in the majority of Korean cities in 1955, according to the lieutenant.

Abney was a sergeant first class when he served in Korea with the 2nd Infantry division during 1952 and 1953 as a mess sergeant. He returned in 1959 in the same capacity with the 51st Signal Battalion as a member of I Corps.

Following a tour in Germany, Abney returned to the states and attended Officer Candidate School at Fort Benning.

Trans Gets Ten Drivers From School

By 13th Trans Bn PIO

The 13th Transportation Battalion welcomed 10 newly assigned drivers from the US Army Training Center's Light Vehicle Drivers School at Fort Jackson, S. C. recently.

The new truck operators are: Privates Harry A. Trent, David B. Wall, John E. Miller, Huey P. Kelly, Joe H. Whiteside, Michael S. Park, Ronald L. Mullins, George L. Williams Jr., and Richard N. Kantelis.

After completing an 8-week course at Fort Jackson the graduate licensed drivers have been assigned to Company A and Company B to complete their driver training program.

This training program will include the phases of Basic Unit and Advance Unit Traning. These men will be given instruction and practical work, combining their training received under the basic combat and advanced individual phases.

At the "Whenever Needed" battalion, the primary subjects will be small unit operations to include convoy formation, vehicle administration and maintenance.

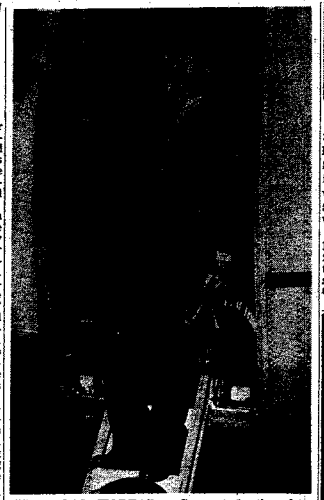
Upon successful completion of the program, the soldier-driver will receive instruction consisting of a requirement to effect a pick-up of a given rifle company at a prescribed time and located at a point designated by grid coordinates.

Formation of a convoy consisting of the required number of trucks, selection of routes and arrival on time represents one of the many unit contributions to the successful accomplishment of the overall division mission.

New CO Named At NCO Academy

Captain James R. Woodall, former Director of Training of the 2nd Infantry Division Noncommissioned Officer Academy, has been named commandant to succeed Captain James W. Phillips.

Captain Phillips has assumed duties in the G-3 section (Training and Operations), Division Headquarters.



Succeeding Captain Woodall as Director of Training is Lieutenant Benjamin Boswell. Lieutenant Robert H. Ratcliff will continue to serve as Student Detachment Commander and Executive Officer of the academy.

Jenkins Cited at Retirement

By 13th Trans PIO

Certificate of Appreciation signed by the Army's Chief of Staff, General George H. Decker was awarded to retiring Chief Warrant Officer Ellsworth R. Jenkins at a recent ceremony held by Headquarters Company of the 13th Transportation Battalion.

Also awarded was a Certificate of Retirement for more than twenty years of faithful service, presented by Major Harrie H. Cathey, Battalion Commander.

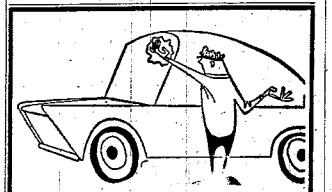
Miss Sharron Jenkins, daughter of CWO Jenkins, acted as guest of honor on behalf of her mother.

Chief Warrant Officer Jenkins has been Supply Officer and assistant S-4 Officer for the 13th Transportation Battalion since June of 1959.

In his farewell address to members of Headquarters Company, CWO Jenkins reminisced on the vast changes made in the United States Army during his career.

Rhodes Scholar

Engr Officer to Study 2 Years in England



By 2nd Engr PIO

Lieutenant Paul L. Miles Jr., 2nd Engineer Battalion, recently was presented with a Rhodes Scholarship for his outstanding academic accomplishments while attending the United States Military Academy at West Point.

In accepting the scholarship, Lieutenant Miles will leave the 2nd Engineer Battalion in September, and start two years of study at Oxford University in Oxfordshire, England.

Lieutenant Miles, who graduated from West Point with the class of 1960, was reared in Metter, Georgia, where he attended Metter High School. After high school, he attended the Citadel, in South Carolina, where he majored in mathematics, for one year.

When he completed his four years at the "Point", Lieutenant Miles attended the basic Airborne Course at Fort Benning, and is currently a member of Class Number 5 of the Ranger Course. He is expected to join the 2nd Engineer Battalion on March 8, 1961.

9th Inf's 'Cadillacs' Save $3,000 Yearly

BY 9TH INF. PIO

Ever on the watch for ways to increase efficiency and cut costs, the 9th Infantry utilizes a system of ration breakdown which saves the government more than $3,000 per year.

The money-saving system involves the use of a procedure known as "company cadillacs" or hand carts. These carts had been used for ration breakdown by various units in the Army for years, but had fallen into disuse due to the easy availability of motor transportation.

The old method of handling ration breakdown involved using at least two or three trucks. After the bulk issue was drawn at the warehouse, its various items were broken down into the required amounts in each of the seven companies. Since this was accomplished in the trucks, it involved keeping the vehicles out for longer periods.

One Truck

The procedure now used involves a separate building set aside for ration breakdown plus the necessary company hand carts. The method now in process is rather simple since one truck is dispatched to the issuing point to draw the bulk rations.

When the rations arrive at the 9th Infantry ration breakdown point, in the battle group area, the rations are unloaded and the truck released.

At this point, Specialist Fourth Class Billy Plummer—9th Infantry ration breakdown NCO—counts, separates and weighs the various items. He then allots the items to the companies in accordance with their requirements as allowed by their ration request. A separate space is provided for each company in the ration breakdown building.

More Efficient

After the rations are broken down, the mess stewards are notified that their rations are ready for pickup. One of the kitchen personnel is then dispatched with his "company cadillac" to bring the rations back to the mess hall.

The system, under the direction of Chief Warrant Officer Frank Goldman (battle group supply officer) of the S-4 section, results in a more efficient operation. One less truck with driver is required, and only one truck and driver is utilized in a fraction of the time consumed under the old method. The kitchen personnel used are those normally on duty.

The $3,000-plus saved annually is based on the estimated upkeep of one 2½-ton truck to include gasoline, oil, grease and maintenance repair.

Teams Compete At 69th Armor For Best Platoon

By 69th Armor PIO

A new team has gained one leg on the Best Barracks Plaque in th daily competition conducted by Headquarters Company, 69th Armor.

The Scout platoon and the tankers of the headquarters tank section joined forces to push the transportation platoon out of the clean up picture for the first week of February.

With the scouts mapping the way and the tankers exploiting the possibilities, the push through was made and the objective captured. The plaque is now hanging proudly in its new home, where the scouts and the tankers may gaze fondly at it while the rest of the company stands reveille.

The transportation platoon, which had won the award several weeks in a row, will be revving up their motors to regain the plaque next week.

The award is given at the end of each week based on the number of times during the week any one platoon won the daily competition.

The idea of the competition was conceived by Captain Arno M. Apel, Company Commander and unit First Sergeant, Charles Smith.

DivArty Ladies Gather For Unit Coffee Hours

Ladies of Second Division Artillery held their monthly coffees simultaneously Tuesday morning, February 21, in their six unit groups.

Mrs. Terence W. Huck was hostess to thirteen ladies from Division Artillery headquarters at her quarters on Austin Loop. Assisting as co - hostess was Mrs. Donald B. Roof, who poured the coffee and tea. The serving table was centered with an arrangement of pink carnations. Sweet rolls, doughnuts and ham biscuits were served. Mrs. Barragy, mother of Chaplain William J. Barragy, was a guest of Mrs. Charles H. White, Jr.

Ladies of the 12th Artillery met at the home of Mrs. Jean P. Bacchus in Benning Hills. Presiding at the silver service was Mrs. Robert H. Cranford, who was co-hostess. Doughnuts, coffee and tea were served. Mrs. Thomas Coulbourne, a new arrival, was welcomed to the group.

Ladies of the 15th Artillery met at the quarters of Mrs. Elmer D. Spence on Arrowhead Road. Mrs. Richard Sandall was co-hostess. The serving table was laid with a crocheted tablecloth and a miniature cherry tree was the centerpiece. A variety of home-made doughnuts was served with coffee and tea. Mrs. Jonathan M. Grant appointed committees to plan the March Division Artillery luncheon when the ladies of the 15th Artillery will be hostesses. Eleven ladies attended the coffee.

Mrs. William H. Wilson was hostess to ladies of the 17th Artillery at her home on Walker Street. Her co-hostess was Mrs. George A. Kiner. Ham biscuits and sweetbreads were served and Mrs. Francis P. Sheridan poured the coffee and tea. Mrs. Charles R. Lowe was welcomed as a new member of the group.

Ladies of the 37th Artillery met at the home of Mrs. Floyd Johnson, 506 First Division Road. The table was decorated with two arrangements of permanent roses and pink candles. Mrs. Thomas W. Valenteen presided at the silver service. Mrs. Grover C. Ferrell, mother of Mrs. Johnson was guest. Newcomer to the group was Mrs. Peter K. Geoca. Farewells were said to Mrs. James Eagle.

Mrs. Anthony C. Rouchon, Jr. was hostess to ladies of the 38th Artillery at her home on Childress Drive. Ten ladies attended the coffee. Newcomers were Mrs. John Cowden and Mrs. Guy Arnal.

Ladies Record Coffee Confab For February

Mrs. Robert Connor, Mrs. William Gordon, Mrs. Douglas Syverson, were hostesses to the ladies of the 87th Infantry at their monthly coffee.

Mrs. Connor decorated her dining room at 209 Lumpkin Rd. for the coffee with large delicate scarlet camelia blooms fastened at random to panels of white window curtains. The vibrant bush of these flowers in the lawn attracted the attention of the ladies and guests as they arrived.

The guests, presented by Mrs. Connor, were Mrs. William Hardick, Mrs. Charles H. White, Mrs. Gustav Bacharach, Mrs. Earnest Dameron, Mrs. Charles Ritchie of Fort Benning was the guest of her daughter Mrs. Richard Sharp. Mrs. Raymond Rush poured.

Short roving reporter type interviews conducted by Mrs. Andrew Errickson and Mrs. Dion Johnson were recorded on tape. The recording was played back and everyone enjoyed recognizing the voices and their comments on "the question," what will be your plans while your husband is in Korea?"

A variety of answers included several who plan to stay here in the Ft. Benning area, one going to Mexico and another who hopes to work in Seoul, Korea.

BY 9TH INF. PIO

If you aspire for a Military Occupational Specialty 112, heavy weapons Infantryman, you have to learn the many tanks.

And if you earn your MOS 112 with the 2nd Infantry Division's 9th Infantry after 6 hours of intensive and thorough training, you will become an excellent tank-killer, proficient with the awesome 106-millimeter recoilless rifle.

One of the training missions of the 9th Infantry consists of conducting Advanced Individual Training courses in infantry heavy weapons, namely the recoilless rifle and the 4.2 inch and 81-millimeter mortars.

The trainees become extremely familiar with their ear-splitting, tank - bursting weapon during the first phase of their 106 instruction. Assembly, disassembly and function firing of both the 106 and its sidekick, the .50 calibre spotting rifle, are taught in detail.

Before the prospective tank killers actually get to fire the 106, they undergo even more "ground phase" instruction. When the trainee first hovers over the sight with his hand resting on the push-pull trigger knob of a loaded recoilless rifle he knows exactly what he is doing.

Hours of instruction in safety, crew drill, immediate action, tracking, and sighting and aiming exercises account for his confidence in himself and the 106 weapons system.

After a long four-hour examination on preliminary training, the MOS 112 candidate finds himself ready to make a little noise with the rifle. Thus, range week at Patton Range begins.

Economy

Silhouettes of both stationary and moving tanks serve as targets in this scaled-down exercise. Ammunition supply economy mandates a subcaliber device be substituted for costly service rounds in all phases of record firing.

However, it would not be right to allow a qualified 106 gunner to earn his MOS 112 diploma without ever experiencing the nerve-shattering shock of detonating service ammunition. At the "graduation exercises" the trainees are allowed to fire one round of 106 ammunition for familiarization.

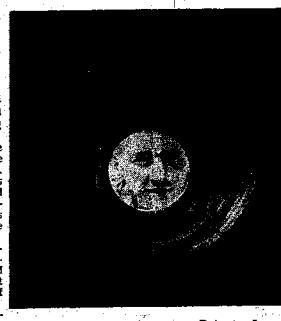
Each gunner takes his place beside the weapon, checks his sight picture, and presses in on the firing knob. When the thundering crack has rolled away and the backblast debris has settled, only a fully-qualified 9th Infantry trained 106 gunner and his trusty recoilless rifle remain.

Tankers Train National Guard In Armor Tactics

By 69th Armor PIO

One example of the close relations which exist between Columbus and Fort Benning is being demonstrated one Sunday of every month from now until May.

Selected members of the 500th Engineer Battalion (Armored Division) Georgia National Guard, located here in Columbus, are receiving their monthly training from the 2nd Medium Tank Battalion (Patton) 69th Armor) The Armor unit is a part of Fort Benning's 2nd Infantry Division.



The Guardsman are the tank crews of the local National Guard Battalion. They are receiving instruction of the different phases of tank gunnery. The climax of the training will come in May when the local guardsmen along with their active Army counterparts move to one of the ranges at Fort Benning to fire the tank mounted 30 caliber machine gun.

Capt Akins New Adjutant at Engr

By 2nd Engr Bn PIO

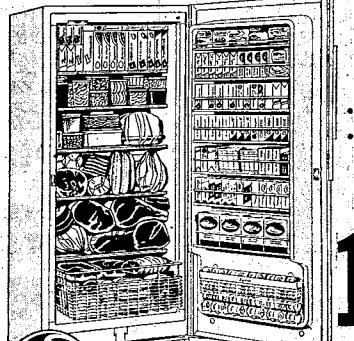
Captain Kossie D. Akins has been assigned duties as adjutant of the 2nd Engineer Battalion, replacing Chief Warrant Officer George A. Babb, who returned to his former duties as personnel officer.

Captain Akins, who came to the Division from the 10th Engineer Battalion in Germany, is no stranger to the 2nd Engineer Battalion, having been assigned here previously with the 10th, and gyroscoping with them in 1958. He has performed such duties as adjutant, engineer advisor to Korean Military Advisory Group units, Army reserve advisor, unit commander and various other duties of an administrative nature.

WHY, HELLO THERE . . . Private Joseph Byrum, 9th Infantry AIT, peers into the breech of his 106-millimeter recoilless rifle to make sure the weapon is clear after firing on Patton Range.

23rd Does It Again--

Breaking records seems to have become commonplace for Combat Support Company of the 23rd Infantry.



The latest victory took place recently when the trainees arrived at the test site to be administered the test by the Division G-3 section. When they finished the test, which included questions on the light machine gun, Browning automatic rifle, squad tactics, patreling, land mine warfare, map reading, and first aid, they had scored a whopping 87.45 per cent average score. This was enough to beat the old record of 86.22 per cent.

Arty Recruit Hits 96 Out of 112

By 17th Artillery PIO

Bravo Battery, 7th Howitzer Battalion, 17th Artillery qualified an outstanding percentage in Trainfire between January 24 and February 11 1961. The 17th Artillery undertook this new concept in marksmanship training for the first time in Division Artillery.

Recruit Wallace E. Mignault qualified with the highest score, 96 out of a possible 112. It is felt that civilian experience with firearms contributed greatly to the unit's degree of success in qualifying.

Visitors to the training included Brigadier General William L. Hardick, Commanding General, 2nd Infantry Division, and Brigadier General Charles H. White, Commanding General, 2nd Infantry Division Artillery.

23rd Graduates Hear Col Kunzig

By 23rd Infantry PIO

One hundred and eighty troops of Company B of the 23rd Infantry heard their battle group commander, Colonel Louis A. Kunzig Jr., deliver the graduation address as they completed eight weeks of advanced individual training last Friday.

Following the address, Colonel Kunzig presented tropies to Private Mark G. Runkel, firing the highest score with the light machine gun, and Private Kenneth McKean, firing the highest score with automatic rifle. Private Jack M. Smith received a Lettter of Commendation for his score of 85 per cent on the proficiency test. The award of "outstanding trainee of the cycle" went to Private Paul M. Mickler.

Following the graduation ceremony the troops left for new assignments in Europe, Alaska, Hawaii, Korea, Fort Bragg and Fort Campbell.

Mortar Sergeant Has Varied Baseball Experience

By 87th Inf. PIO

Master Sergeant Carl D. Smith, six-foot 225-pound mortar platoon leader of Combat Support Company, is a man-sized man doing a man's job with the OVUREP 87th Infantry.

The one-time professional baseball player is the key non-commissioned officer of the largest infantry platoon organization in today's modern Army. The mortar platoon of the battle group counts a total of eight officers and 84 men. Captain John H. Woodyard is the mortar platoon commander of the 87th Infantry.

The mortar platoon is the "heavy artillery" unit of the infantry battle group. Each of the six 4.2 inch mortars in the platoon can hurl a 25-pound shell well over three miles to give direct fire support to the rifleman.

In Sergeant Smith, Captain Woodyard has a highly experienced soldier with a wide background in mortars. He has been in the heavy mortar platoon of the 87th Infantry since the reorganization of the 87th Division to form the reactivated 10th Division at Camp Polk, Louisiana, early in 1954.

He continued to serve with the 87th Infantry at Fort Riley, Kansas; sailed with it to Germany; and returned from overseas to Fort Benning when the battle group joined the 2nd Infantry Division.

A combat veteran of World War II, Sergeant Smith had left the service in 1945. When the Korean conflict broke out in June 1950, he reenlisted in the infantry. Sergeant Smith fought in Korea with the Fifth Regimental Combat Team. There he was Heavy Mortar Platoon Sergeant in the, then, regimental heavy weapons company.

Sergeant Smith went on active Army duty in the fall of 1940 with the 156th Infantry, a part of the 31st National Guard Division, from his home in Alexandria, Louisiana. He underwent basic training at Camp Blanding, Florida. Following training his unit participated in several pre-war maneuvers. After Pearl Harbor Sergeant Smith's unit was moved to guard Savannah Army Airfield, and later he went overseas to the European Theater.

He served in combat with the 12th Infantry of the Fourth Division.

Sergeant Smith played professional baseball in the Southern League before coming on active duty at that time. He had been signed as a pitcher by the New Orleans Pelicans. Previously he had played in the Cotton States League as a pitcher and outfielder. He also was a member of the Alexandria, Louisiana team, and had participated in amateur boxing.

In the Army, Sergeant Smith has played, coached and managed baseball teams here and in Europe. Perhaps his favorite, and most outstanding sports work has been with various youth groups.

In Europe he coached the American Youth Activities baseball, softball and basketball teams. In 1957 his little league baseball team won the Northern Area Command Championship.

The little league baseball team sponsored by the 87th Infantry, and coached by Sergeant Smith, were 1959 and 1960 champions of the Youth Activities Council Doughboy League, here at Fort Benning.

CG Trophy Race Started With 9th Infantry Ahead

BY JOSH HILL

With the termination of the 2nd Division Basketball Tournament, of which the 9th Infantry was crowned champion, the race for the coveted Commanding General's Trophy is well under way.

The Manchus' six consecutive basketball wins not only gave them the division championship, but also put them in front of the field in the CG's Trophy race with 120 points.

The trophy, which is awarded biannually, was last won by Division Trains. The 9th came in third behind Division Artillery's second.

At present DivArty is holding on to second place with 105 points, followed by 1st Infantry who has 80 points.

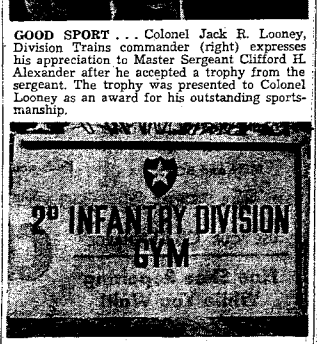
Tied for fourth are the 87th Infantry and Seperate Battalion, both having 60 marks. Another tie exists for fifth place with the 23rd Infantry and Division Trains all knotted up at 55 points each.

Including basketball, there will be five sports in which seven units, including Division Artillery, Division Trains, Seperate Battalion, 1st Infantry, 9th Infantry, 23rd Infantry, and the 87th Infantry, will be represented.

The other sporting events, in which the units will compete, are volleyball, bowling, softball, and swimming and diving.

The volleyball tourney opened yesterday evening at Harmony Church Field House. Tournament games will be played on Monday and Thursday evenings at 6:30 and 7:15.

Bryant Wells Field House at Main Post will host the volleyball games on March 9, 13, and 16.



The CG's Trophy will go to the unit compiling the highest number of points at the end of all the events. The trophy will be awarded in July, the month in which the second half of the trophy race begins.

40 YEARS OF DRIVE

The 1961 Easter Seal Campaign, March 1-April 2, marks 40 years of continuous service to the handicapped by the National Society for Crippled Children and Adults, and 10 years by its affiliate in Georgia, the Georgia Society for Crippled Children and Adults.

9th Releases Team Roster

The 9th Infantry's Athletic and Recreation Officer, Lieutenant Max Powell, released the roster this week of the "Keep Up the Fire" unit's battle group volleyball team which entered Division tournament play March 2 at the Harmony Church Field House against the 1st Infantry.

The 9th Infantry entry includes four officers and six enlisted men. The officers include Captain Paul Burns, and Lieutenants Grady Webster, Warren Dunnington, and Max Powell.

The enlisted men are headed by Sergeant Julian Waleszonia, the 9th's A&R NCO. Other team members are Privates First Class Rayvaughn Pryear, Paul Askew, Harry Hall, Eugene Bedard, and Jack Dispennett.

All of the PFC's plus Lieutenant Powell were members of the 9th Infantry's undefeated 1961 2nd Division basketball champions.

The 9th Infantry batiled the 1st Infantry last night in the opening contest for both squads. The Manchus next tackle the 23rd Infantry at 6:30 p.m. on March 9 at the Bryant Wells Field House on Main Post.

Pryear Awarded MVP

BY DIV PIO

The 2nd Division Special Services Office announced this week that the 9th Infantry's 6'-7" center, Rayvaughn Pryear, has been selected as the Most Valuable Player for his performance during the division basketball tournament.

Seven coaches voted, none could vote for a member of his own team, and five cast ballots for the 9th's top bucket man. Runners-up were Albert Branch of the 1st Infantry and Jack Sanderson, who played with the DivArty "Cannoneers".

Pryear aided the 9th Infantry in capping the division hoop crown with his outstanding rebounding and scoring ability. The lanky Buckeye led the tournament in both of these phases.

For his efforts, Pryear will be awarded a trophy by the Special Services Office.

12 Men Answer Blood Request For 8 Year Old

By 12th Artillery PIO

One of the most pleasant acts in life is that of giving another human being a chance to lead a normal healthy life.

And so it was, when the request for blood for little eight year old Jacqueline Faulk reached the 12th Artillery.

Some time ago Jacqueline was seriously burned, since then she has been required to have several operations at the Medical Center in Columbus to replace damaged tissue. Just recently it was necessary to have another operation and therefore the necessity for a substantial quantity of blood.

It is with a sincere wish that little Jacqueline be granted the road to good health that the following men of the 12th Artillery donated their blood. Specialists Fourth Class, J. L. Poore, Richard Rowe, Michael Reed, Robert A. Lung, Privates First Class Thomas M. Gilbert; Johnny H. Hamilton, and Recruit Timothy Sagoes of Headquarters Battery, Private First Class Kenneth L. Barnes, Private Donald McGowan of Battery A, Master Sergeant Allan Ellington, Sergeant First Class Walter Baker, and Specialist Fourth Class Larry C. Cates of Battery B.

Shotput Champion

Lt. Bill Nieder, world and Olympic shotput champion, now stationed at the Presidio in San Francisco, recently signed a 10-year movie contract. He will eventually portray Jack Dempsey in a film.

Trainee Speaks 3 Languages, Learning Fourth

A 32-year old 1st Infantry recruit, who speaks fluently three languages, joined the U. S. Army to master a fourth —English.

Recruit Alfredo G. Cordero, a native of Havana, Cuba, studied French, Spanish and Italian at Paris' Alliance Francaise language school, and traveled extensively in Europe before coming to this country in June. His love of language initially led him to the University of Havana, where he studied for a year before going to Europe.

Cordero enlisted in the U.S. Army in August with a view toward improving his mastery of English. He has been encouraged, he says, by the results thus far.

Cordero is considering returning to college and becoming an instructor in French, or else remaining with the Army as a language specialist. He intends to make his home in this country because "Americans seem to be happy, friendly and ever optimistic."

E. Freudendorf, S. Spurlin Pace YAC Teammates In Swimming Meet

Two members of the Youth Activities Club of Fort Benning garnered four first place gold medals and one second place award in the Fort Benning Invitational Swimming Championships held here at Briant Wells Field House last Saturday.

Leading a field of over 250 swimmers from 13 Georgia and one Alabama swim club, Edith Freudendorf took the gold medal in the 200 Yard Individual Medley for 13-14 year old girls with a time of 2:55:1; the 100 Yard Breast Stroke in 1:27.8; and second place in the 100 Yard Butterfly with 1:30.3.

Her teammate, Sandy Spurlin turned in a 17.3 seconds time in the 25 Yard Freestyle for girls, eight and under, and a 22.3 time for the 25 Yard Breast Stroke for the same class to cop first place in both events.

Carol Freudendorf also added another silver medal for second place in the 100 Yard Freestyle for girls in the 11-12 age bracket for the YAC team.

Although no team trophies were awarded, the Albany Swim Club turned in a dazzling record of nine first place, 11 second place, and five third place awards for the best team performance of the meet.

In second place behind the Auburn Club was the Cherokee Town and Country Club with eight first place; 11 second place and seven third place medals. Finishing third in team efforts was the Avondale Swim Club with seven first place, two second and two third place honors.

Fort Benning, with no entrants in the boys' meet, managed to gain four first place medals, three second and one third place award.

POST JUDO TEAM . . . The post Judo team copped second place in the South Eastern U.S. Invitational Judo Tourney held in Atlanta last week. In the individual matches, Pfc Takemori Nishi took first place in the 140 pound class, Marcel Carles took first place in the 160 pound division, Capt. Robert Tucker copped second place honors in the 180 pound division, and Capt. M. G. Stafford took third place in the heavyweight class.

Today's Sportrait

Today's Sportrait spotlights Capt. Robert Byrom, of the Infantry School Battalion. The Student Brigade, who won the Georgia Foil Championship last month, making Fort Benning again the dominating factor in the state-wide fencing. This is his second first place for the three years since 1959.

As holder of the Georgia title, Capt. Byrom is eligible to compete for the National Foil Championship in Los Angeles in July.

Besides determining the national champion, a good showing there might lead to a bid for the next Olympic games. These state and national matches are the proving and testing grounds of possible Olympic material for 1964.

Capt. Byrom has been fencing since 1945. He began in high school, winning one letter and continued for the City College of New York, winning two varsity letters. He coached the fencing team at Fort Campbell, which beat the Vanderbilt University team six times in a row. Together the group won a total of 14 medals in Tennessee and Kentucky.

His fencing activities on post are mainly limited to instructing advanced foil classes each Saturday afternoon, at the Briant Wells Field House. Usually he gets most of his practice by giving lessons, but attempts to practice some during occasional spare time.

Proficient with the sabre, Capt. Byrom may enter the state event in Atlanta March 16. He was runner-up in last year's competition and is now practicing for nothing less than a victory this time.

These meets are official Amateur Fencing of America competitions. The League is considered the governing body for American fencers, and dates back to 1891. It is affiliated with the Federation International d'Escrime.

Post Bowling Team Defeats Turner AFB

Fort Benning's Men Traveling Bowling Team has more than a week to maintain a sharp eye for the return engagement with the Turner Air Force Base (Ga.) bowlers, which will be held March 11 at the Fort Benning Bowling Center.

The final of a two-part match, competition is scheduled to get under way at 2 p.m.

Fort Benning leaped to a 352 pin lead over the Turner AFB squad in the first half of the match held at Turner last Saturday (Feb. 25). The post bowlers rolled a 5,007 total pinfall while the Air Force team tripped a 4,655.

The first of a dual-section match with Tyndall Air Force Base (Fla.), which was slated to be held in Florida Saturday (Mar. 4), was cancelled out.

Of the six bowlers rolling for each squad, the five highest game scores were taken for the final tally of total pinfall.

It was a good start for the post team, which now owns a 2-1 season's worksheet. The squad has notched victories over Eglin Air Force Base (Fla.) and Warner Robbins Air Force Base (Ga.) while dropping a close come-from-behind match to Fort McPherson (Ga.).

Capt. Sam Adams was the high series bowler for the Fort Benning keglers last Saturday, rolling a 1067 five-game series on individual games of 227, 226, 224,201 and 189. Second high man was Capt. James Bukoski with a 993 series on games of 223, 216, 194, 190 and 170.

Fred Smith paced the Turner AFB bowlers with a 900 series on games of 237, 235, 182, 175 and 161. Bill Novak was second high man with a 930 series on games of 215, 207, 177, 171 and 160.

Army Cagers To Play In Tournament

Fat rainbow trout have graced the tables of more than a few Fort Benning anglers who've visited Johnson's Pond these last few days.

Nearly 2,500 trout of 8 to 10-inch size have been planted in the little pond since the first of the year and plenty remain to be taken.

Fishing buddy John LeVert, his daughter Jean, and myself, made a trip out there on Washington's Birthday under lowering skies which apparently cut down the number of anglers. We found that early arrivals had had a field day and one little tyke, no bigger than a pint of cider, kept hauling them in in rapid succession. He wasn't any more than five or six at the most, yet he handled a big spinning rod like a veteran.

We found that the fish would strike for about five minutes and then sham all offerings for about an hour when they'd start again. As the day waned, everybody kept eyes cocked on the blackening skies and just when the "evening rise" could be expected, we all headed for home down a precariously muddy Cactus Trail.

High winds and rain threats kept the trout "down" over the week-end and there's some suspicion that a number of them could have gone over the outlet with a rush of high water.

It's strongly advised that you try to take a share of the Johnson trout for experience has proven that warm water will get them if you don't. Recent rains and chill mornings may save them for a while — but let a good lick of Georgia sun hit the pond and the trout have had it.

The Fish and Game Maintenance Association indicates that no further plantings are anticipated for this reason, so if you can get out there is the next few days and fish the middle of the pond, you should connect with some fine eating.

Bass fishermen who've been riding conditions at Harp's have been scoring with some good catches. I've heard of strings headed by seven and eight pound lunkers taken — mostly with black eels.

At this writing, waters are heavy with silt and roads are almost all but washed out but by the time you read this, the ponds and approaches should be back in shape. Old mama bugs are getting ready to fan out their beds so we don't have too much time to get that big fella.

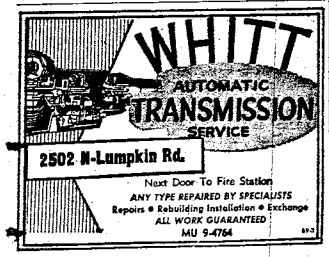
The U. S. Military Academy has accepted an invitation to play in the nation's oldest, the 24th annual National Invitational Basketball Tourney, to be held at Madison Square Garden, March 16.

Ken Norton, head of the NIT selection committee, extended the invitation to Col. Emory S. Adams Jr., West Point athletic director. Although the Black Knights of the Hudson have never played in a post-season cage tilt before, Col. Adams and the school's five-man athletic committee accepted the bid.

Earlier this year, the athletic director expressed an interest in building basketball at the Point. "We're certainly interested in playing tournament ball," Col. Adams said. "We played in the Garden this season and plan to play there again in the future.

"We never had to think about a tournament before because we were never asked. If we were asked, we'd consider it very seriously."

Johansson Patterson

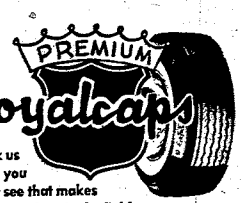


Valley sport fans are showing a lively interest in the March 13 Floyd Patterson-Ingemar Johansson heavyweight title showdown bout which will be telecast live at Columbus Municipal Auditorium.

Fans this year will have a guaranteed reception of the bout as the capacity crowd will be covered by a gate insurance policy underwritten by Lloyds of London to refund all fans should anything happen to the telecast due to mechanical failures.

In case the big showdown fight should end in less than 25 minutes because of an early knockout another fight will be telecast and rumor has it that Rademacher and Harris may be scheduled for the standby fight which may account for the tremendous local interest in the event.

The telecast will be brought to Columbus direct on leased lines from AT&T to the telephone company headquarters and then direct to Auditorium via micro-relay and projected on a huge 12x16 foot beaded screen which will make the fighters approx. 10 foot tall.



The big fight this year will be inside the new Miami Auditorium which will assure no rainout and the very best in lighting and sound conditions for a studio quality telecast.

The Surgeon Says

Poliomyelitis Can Be Beaten

BY MAJOR
ROBERT H. QUINN, MC

We never fail to procrastinate! For years we have sought a preventive polio vaccine and backed up our demands with countless contributions to the March of Dimes.

Now we have the vaccine. When it was still in short supply the demand continued loud and clear, but now that there is ample quantity the demand has dwindled to a whisper.

It is time to seriously evaluate the polio vaccination status of the whole family and if found wanting, take the necessary steps to begin or complete the vaccination series. It is never too early to begin, but it can be too late.

Surveys indicate that adults under 40 years of age as well as school children still lack the required number of shots necessary to assure maximum protection. Many have not yet received their first shot.

Since 1955, it has been proven that this vaccination protects against the crippling effects of paralytic poliomyelitis. This disease cripples, condemns adults and children to iron lungs — and kills! There is no cure for polio, but it can be prevented.

Parents, for the sake of your loved ones and for your own sake, take 60 seconds out of your daily routine and get your polio shots. This 60 seconds can save your life and it is certainly a cheap price to pay for insurance against poliomyelitis. Remember, polio does not respect age!

Polio is still with us. Unfortunately, some will die while others will be crippled for life. The sad part of it is that the majority are children. It is even sadder because paralysis of children can, in many cases, be blamed on parent's lack of foresight. Why do parents allow this tragedy to happen?

Generally speaking, the incidence of this disease is low among military personnel and their dependents, but is considered to be of sufficient military importance to warrant the cost of an expensive voluntary immunization program available to all for whom the Armed Forces normally provides care.

The social - economic problems created by paralytic poliomyelitis in wives and children of members of the Armed Forces often results in the loss of trained military personnel.

Military personnel and dependents susceptible to the greatest risk are those living in family groups in which there are young children; those living in areas where hygiene and sanitation are substandard; and those who may be so unlucky to be exposed to a community outbreak.

Just four shots are needed for full protection. If you haven't had the first one, get it today at the Dependents' Immunization Clinic (Old Hospital, Building 396). Hours of operation are 8 to 11 a.m. and 1 to 4 p.m. hours daily, Monday through Friday.

The first shot takes effect within the first 10 days normally. The second shot should be given not less than four weeks after the first, and the third shot not less than seven months after the second. A booster shot is given 1 year after the third shot.

However, in order to expedite the protection of as many people as possible the surgeon general has approved an accelerated program whereby the basic series of three shots, considered the minimum for full protection, can now be given at one month intervals. Take advantage of this program without delay before the polio season begins.

For complete immunization, one shot is given every four years after the basic series.

How do you and your loved ones stand? Check your individual shot record and be sure.

The means of obtaining immunity from this dread killer, from its horrible crippling, mental anguish and from dread of unemployment is so simple that none should be without it.

Everyone owes it to his family, to his children and to himself to receive this immunity. Act Now! Remember the following points when you are evaluating your family vaccination program:

Polio hits men and women harder than it hits children.

Your neighbor's Salk shots do not protect you.

Your child's Salk shots do not protect you.

Polio shots are virtually painless.

Salk shots are safe.

One shot is better than none.

Two shots are better than one.

Three shots will give you basic protection from paralytic polio.

Four shots give you maximum protection.

Film Produced on Soviet Life

(AFFS)—The Office of Armed Forces Information and Education (OAFIE) has released a new film which examines life in the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics.

Called "A Study of the USSR," the movie covers such areas as the historical background of Russia, the development of the Soviet Bloc since the Revolution, geographical aspects of the nation and its resources, and a detailed review of its economic and industrial growth.

Attention is also given to the past and present culture of the Russian people. The fields of agriculture, educational and scientific development and political philosophy are studied in some depth.

Committee Asks Court Modification

'SERGEANTS' INSTALLATION . . . Carol Ann Josey, Association of Regular Army Sergeants Girl of the Year, will reign as queen at the Barracks 118 Installation Ball at Crane Hall March 9. New association officers with Miss Josey are (L to R) Sfc George L. Brophy, president, MSgt Donald R. Barnes, vice president, and SSgt Robert E. Fishburn of the executive committee. Jimmy E Wilson, national president of ARAS, will be an honor guest at the ball.

Revisions in the military justice system of the Armed Forces were recommended in a recent study made by an Army general officer committee, Department of the Army announced Tuesday.

This study was in line with the provisions of the Uniform Code of Military Justice requirement that it be continuously reviewed. This has been done ever since its enactment.

The committee report is being studied by the Department of Defense.

The committee's recommendations would effect the three types of courts - martial by eliminating summary and special courts-martials and setting up an indeterminate sentence system comparable to that used in many civilian criminal jurisdictions.

Other recommendations would increase membership on the Court of Military Appeals, and establish a sentence control board to determine sentence appropriateness.

Conducted by a committee headed by Gen. Herbert B. Powell, commanding general of Continental Army Command, and composed of other general officers in command and staff positions, the Uniform Code of Military Justice study was ordered in October, 1959, by the Secretary of the Army, who called for a general inquiry into good order and discipline in the Army, including specifically a study of the nine - year old code.

The committee concluded that the code will not work well in wartime. Its findings showed that commanders do not have enough authority to take corrective action without resort to trial by summary or special court - martial, which in many cases places an unwarranted stain upon the record of a soldier.

Some offenses tried now by summary and special courts-martial range from misdemeanors to non - capital felonies. A summary court can adjudge a sentence including confinement for one month and a partial forfeiture of pay for one month.

The maximum sentence that can be imposed by an Army special court - martial is six months confinement and partial forfeiture of pay for the same period. Any offense punishable under the code may be tried by a general court - martial, which may adjudge any punishment authorized by the code including the death penalty.

The committee recommends authorizing corrective action on the part of the commander to handle nearly all disciplinary matters now tried by summary and special courts-martials which would be eliminated.

The committee recommends giving the battle group commander jurisdiction to take corrective action by imposing up to 90 days restriction or 90 days corrective custody, and detention of one-half of four months pay or forfeiture of one - half of three months pay.

Records of command correction would be kept as reference for personnel actions, subsequent correction, and court-martial purposes, but would be destroyed at the end of enlistment or term of service.

The accused, if he refused to accept such punishment under Article 15, could demand a trial by a general court-martial, consisting of one lawyer - officer who would judge him. In this instance, the sentence that could be imposed would be limited to six months confinement and two thirds forfeiture of pay for a like period, if otherwise authorized for the offense.

General court - martial proceedings were cited by the committee as too slow and cumbersome. Pretrial procedures were noted as duplicative, with legal technicalities taking too much of the court members' time.

The committee recommends that if an accused requests and the convening authority approves, a general court-martial for any non-capital offense may be conducted by a law officer only, without any members on the court. The law officer court, except when convened on an accused's demand for trial in lieu of command corrective action, could impose any authorized penalty except death.

They would provide further that any general courtmartial may be convened without the members present to dispose of motions and other purely legal matters. The committee also recommends, where the defense is not complicated and where the offender is readily available that there be only one pretrial investigation. Presently as many as four are conducted.

The committee proposed no floor on sentences in its recommendations. Rather, as quickly as prisoners could be rehabilitated they would be returned to duty. They recommend setting up a sentence control board by the secretary of the Army. The board would examine sentence appropriateness. It would have the power to cut, suspend or otherwise modify sentences but could not increase them.

The board also would perform functions of a clemency and parole board, and could recommend special cases to the U. S. attorney general for treatment under the Youth Correction Act.

To assure stability in military law, the committee would increase membership in the Court of Military Appeals from three to five, with two of these limited to four years service, one to be appointed every two years.

The recommendations grew from the committee's search for fairness, simplicity, speed and stability in the administration of military justice. The committee noted that these objectives can be accomplished, resulting in better discipline, and at the same time improve the protections afforded a soldier.

Sources of information used by the committee in its study included comments and recommendations of all officers with general courts - martial jurisdiction in the Army. Comments of heads of Department of the Army agencies were studied and comments of more than 150 judge advocates and 90 military defense counsels were considered.

In addition, the attitudes and opinions of almost 2,000 enlisted men and 100 company, battalion and battle group commanders were surveyed and considered. The committee also studied the military codes of other countries, including the United Kingdom, Canada, Italy, France and the Netherlands.

Two Special Forces Meetings Called to Recruit Volunteers

An orientation on Special Services for all officers and enlisted men interested in volunteering for that organization will be given tomorrow at 9 a.m. in Theater 1.

Lt. Col. Art Simons of Fort Bragg will give the orientation. His talk will be augmented by a film and slides dealing with training and utilization of Special Forces personnel.

A similar orientation will be held for 2nd Division personnel 10:30 a.m. in Theater No. 7.

TIS Training Aids Section Develops New Methods

BY EDA C. EVANS

Ingenuity and creative ability of employees are the stock - in - trade of The Infantry School's Training Aids Section.

Using issue equipment, bits of wood, cardboard, paint, power tools and a few purchased parts, combined with skill, artistry and hard work, the section provides The Infantry School effective modern training aids at a minimum expense to the government.

For an outlay of $100, the section has built an illuminated terrain map that would cost approximately $5,000 commercially.

A projector valued at $6,000 was built for $122.

Using a technique developed by personnel of the Training Aids Section projection slides of inestimable value are produced with speed and economy of materials.

To make the illuminated terrain map, a sheet of plexiglass was placed over a relief map of the reservation. Fluorescent bulbs hidden in a wooden frame permit light to enter the plexiglass at the flip of a switch.

Unlighted, the relief map is used to study terrain, elevation, critical points, avenues of approach and other features of military significance.

When the switch is turned on, a tactical situation previously drawn on the plexiglass with pastel shades of wax crayon appears with a luminous quality comparable to neon lights.

An instructor teaching tactics can make the situation progressive by wiping off or adding symbols as the presentation continues.
