BOOKS in REVIEW

BROADWAY'S BEST by John Chapman. (Doubleday, 1960)

Contains summaries of the following plays: The Miracle Worker, by W. Gibson; Fiorello! by J. Weidman and G. Abbott; The Tenth Man, by M. Stewart; Duel of Angles, by J. Giaudoux; The Deadly Game, by J. Yaffe; The Andersonville Trial, by S. Levitt; A Distant Bell, by K. Morrill; The Best Man, by G. Vidal; Five Fingers Exercise, by P. Shaffer; A Loss of Roses, by W. Inge.

THE EDGE OF WAR by James D. Atkinson. (Regnery, 1960)

The author, associate professor of Government at Georgetown University, contends that warfare in today's world is not a question of armed battle between communist and democratic governments but is above all, a battle of the spirit, of ideas, and of the human will. This volume attempts to characterize the nature of this new warfare.

A BIG MAN, A FAST MAN by Benjamin Appel. (Morrow, 1961)

The story of the rise of a labor leader. Billy Lloyd, newly elected president of one of the country's largest unions, was implicated in the murder of Jim Tooker, the union's idealistic vice-president, and the suicide of the former president, Art Kincell. Though he was legally cleared he has hired public relations experts to create a more acceptable public image for him and the story is told in the first person through a series of interviews.

THE FLEET IN THE WINDOW by David Bergamini. (Simon, 1961)

This novel tells the story of sudden transition from childhood to maturity, from a world of innocence and security to a world of war and want in which the survival of his family and that of a small guerrilla band fighting in the hills depends largely on his own courage, strength and ingenuity."

RATTLESNAKE RANGE by Peter Field. (Jefferson House, 1961)

Returning from a stock delivery, Pat, Sam and Ezra find a dead steer that was obviously part of a herd of beef stolen from old Ben Cobb's ranch. They then run into young Russ Cobb, bearing his wounded brother. When a few days later, Russ killed a neighboring rancher in self-defense, a train of crackling events was set off with an ambush, kidnapping, range fire, and stampede capping the climax of this story.

Classes to Start Monday, May 1

On-duty high school classes in general mathematics and English for military personnel will begin at The Infantry Center's Educational Development Section May 1.

The mathematics classes will be held from 1 to 3 p.m. and the English classes from 3 to 5 p.m. Mondays and Wednesdays at the section, Building 2512.

This is the last time these courses will be offered either during on-or off-duty hours until September, according to Leonard S. Ozley, section supervisor.

No enrollment is necessary until class time May 1. Textbooks are provided. The classes end May 31.

Auditions Open With TJC Band

The Infantry Center Band is offering for the first time on-the-job training for Army personnel who meet minimum qualifications in auditioning for positions in the band.

A recent change in Department of the Army policy governing training of bandsmen now permits band leaders to accept musicians for 16 weeks on-the-job training with any Army band, according to CWO Jervis Beebe, director of the Band Center.

The Infantry Center Band presently has vacancies for 19 servicemen in all musical MOSs. Trombone, trumpet, piano and saxophone players are needed in particular, the director said.

Servicemen interested in auditioning for assignment and OJT as bandsmen should telephone CWO Beebe or Sfc Arthur Kollmer, first sergeant, at the Band Center, 5-2902.

Honor Students

Two Fort Benning students have been initiated into the National Honor Society at Columbus High School.

They are Thomas Stephens, 16, son of Lt. Col. and Mrs. Blackburn Stephens, and Carlyle Park, 16, son of Lt. Col. and Mrs. Herman C. Park.

RECRUITING, CIVIL WAR STYLE . . . Although there was no large scale organized Army draft until World War I, many measures were taken to recruit men into the service. Frank Leslie, the famous illustrator, has left this moment of the Civil War.

He Joined in '14, And That's Late?

It's all in the way you look at it.

This was proven by two old soldiers meeting for the first time recently on the post's pistol range.

Checking on his new friend's Army background, MSgt Cornelius Van Zeldden, 74, asked Sfc Robert Campbell, 70, when he entered military service.

"Canadian Army — 1914," replied the holder of a Distinguished Service Cross.

"That late, huh?" was the comeback of Sgt. Van Zeldden, who first donned a military uniform in 1904 and first saw combat with the French Foreign Legion in 1906.

Both soldiers plan to "stack arms" and revert to retired status in May.

Awards Go To Post Boy

Thomas Schroeder, son of Lt. Col. and Mrs. Martin F. Schroeder, received five top honors at the recent annual Federal inspection of the Baker High School ROTC in Columbus.

The 16-year-old junior entered the school in September following a tour in Germany with his family.

Competing as a first - year cadet in Baker's three - year ROTC program, Thomas was named superior junior cadet, best drilled, winner of the Civitan Club Award for scholastic standing in ROTC and winner of the Military Order of the World Wars Award for outstanding cadet, all in the first - year class. He also received the Baker award for highest ROTC scholastic standing in all three classes.

Profile of a Man Doing a Man's Job

Wherever he goes on the job in the 577th Engineer Battalion, Sp5 Merlin J. Dupont is beseiged by various questions, asking advice on all types of vehicles.

At pre-Command Military Inspection time in the battalion, Specialist Dupont made his rounds from jeeps to 2½ ton trucks, five ton dump trucks, D-8 bulldozers and tournadozers, being an expert mechanic on each.

Sp5 Dupont, during the pre-CMI, advised and assisted the drivers of each vehicle on their respective maintenance problems.

Sp5 Dupont has had three overseas tours in Alaska and one in Okinawa. He has also attended the Engineer Equipment Mechanics School at Walters Air Force Base, Texas; the Arctic Survival School at Big Delta, Alaska, and the Leadership School at Fort Richardson, Alaska.

Doing his job with a high degree of skill is nothing new for Sp5 Dupont, as his record indicates. He has been awarded the Good Conduct Medal with three loops during his Army tenure.

By Gen. Eddleman

Recipe For Meeting Red Threat Outlined

Gen. Clyde D. Eddleman, the Army's vice chief of staff, described, as he saw it, "the ingredients of military strength" necessary to meet the Communist challenge of the 1960's in a speech to members of the Military Order of the World Wars at the Main Officers' Open Mess recently.

Speaking on "National Moral and Military Strength," the visiting official said, "In developing a military strategy, our over-all military objective should be to achieve an adequate capability to meet any kind of military threat which might be offered, thus tending to neutralize the effect of military power as an umbrella under which our foes could undertake various moves to extend their power."

Gen. Eddleman stated that, generally, this military posture should have three "indispensable" elements:

"First, a balanced, offensive-defensive combination to deter or respond to thermonuclear attack, composed of secure strategic nuclear strike forces, supported by active and passive defenses necessary to ensure national survival . . .

"Secondly, balanced, dual-capable, land, sea and air forces which could engage and ultimately defeat similar Communist forces in either limited or general war. By dual-capable forces, I mean those organized and equipped to fight in either nuclear or non-nuclear war. A substantial portion of these forces should be stationed overseas at all times.

"Thirdly, strategic air and sea lift to project our military strength abroad, together with means to protect air and sea lines of communication from enemy attack."

The vice chief of staff added supporting and sustaining these three elements are our mobilization potential, industrial capability and ready reserve forces.

Gen. Eddleman said the Army's contribution to national capability in defense of the Continental United States consists of two parts: air defense and planning for participation in civil defense.

In speaking of air defense, he said, "The deployment of ground-to-air NIKE missiles provides protection for a considerable portion of our population, our war industry and our SAC bases. The Army is also developing the NIKE ZEUS system which we are hopeful will provide us a much needed answer to the problem of defense of the Continental United States against enemy missiles."

Concerning the Army's civil defense role, the four-star general said, "Although the Army considers its primary mission to be ready to fight the land war, certainly the Army and the other military services would be called upon to contribute to the recovery effort in the event of a thermonuclear attack on the United States."

Museum Curator Addresses Next Unitarian Meet

The curator of the Columbus Museum of Arts and Crafts, Joseph Mahan, will speak on the "Religion of American Indians" at 7 p.m. Sunday at the 1st Infantry Brigade Chapel.

He will be speaker at a meeting of the Unitarian Fellowship of Fort Benning and Columbus.

Mahan received an A. B. and an M. A. degree from the University of Georgia at Athens. He is completing the requirements for a Ph. D. degree in history and anthropology at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

School Attended By Two Redlegs

A Recent Roster Check Indicates That ISB Names Are for the Byrds

A recent roster check in the Infantry School Battalion, The Student Brigade, came up with some interesting names. Just name it, and the ISB has it. The following actual last names will prove the point.

As an illustration, if you are hungry and are a good WALKER, you can go down the ALLEY to one of the KITCHENS or a soda FOUNTAIN and get a HAMBURGER FRUM the BAKER for a PETTY sum of MONEY, which you can afford on your WAGES, even if you aren't RICH. If you are careful, you won't have to use a BIBB.

If you are a KING, DUKE, or BISHOP living on the HILL in a GREATHOUSE made of GLASS, just PAGE the BUTLER if you want your MONICAL, CAINE, or BARBER. You can call your TAYLOR and get a TWEED suit for a PRICE. If it's wrinkled, call your PRESSMAN. The TOWNS are easily reached in your CARR, which may be a PACKARD, or a TUDOR FORD, whichever has no flat TYRE.

Want to go to MAAS? The ISB has DePRIEST, and a CHURCH.

In the sports field, if you are a DUFFER or a PUTMAN you can put on your DERBY and go out on the GREEN for a game of golf. It's a lot of fun even if you aren't a HOGAN or a SNEED.

Fishing is easy from the FERRY or SHIPP. Just drop your LEADER into the BROOK, POND, or RIVERS and you can catch TROUTT, BASS, or HERRING.

The HUNTER or BOWMAN can go out in the WOODS and FIELDS to HUNT STAGGS, or a WOLF, but when you get that wolf in your SEITZ, you'd better not miss, for when the FLACK starts to fly he'd probably be a very BITTERWOLF and try to LYNCH you.

If you need help to keep the wolf from hanging you, don't call in MARSHALL MASTERSON or a BAILIFF for JUSTICE, just let GEORGE do it — he COPES with anything.

Officer Completes TIS Motor Course

Second Lt. Dennis W. Hickman of Battery A (Honor Guard), 2nd Howitzer Battalion, 10th Artillery, 1st Infantry Brigade, recently completed the nine-week Motor Officer Course. This Infantry School Course is designed to acquaint officers with the principles of supervision in an Army motor pool and includes instruction in both mechanics and administration.

Sp5 Kaisers Problem Column

DEAR VERNON: Yesterday, the first sergeant told me that he had a headache and wanted me to go get him an APC. I did, but got caught driving it out of the motor park and now I'm going to get court-martialed. What can I do?

RECRUIT

DEAR RECRUIT: Next time, try Alka-Seltzer.

DEAR VERNON: I am in an OVUREP outfit, and am alerted for overseas shipment in July of this year. I want to take a delay enroute, and meet my company at the port, but my first sergeant wants me to go on leave and return to Fort Benning. Is there anything I can do?

OVUREP

DEAR OVUREP: No, your first is apparently taking into consideration all aspects of a move of this type, and has his unit's best interest in mind.

DEAR VERNON: I have an 8 year old son who keeps asking to stay up and watch the late show on TV. If I say no, he goes to his mother to get permission. How can I stop my son from doing this?

POOR DAD

DEAR POOR DAD: Put his permission to bed early.

DEAR VERNON: I am a wallflower so to speak, (I don't drink or smoke). I have been invited to an office party. Do you think I should try to impress the man I am with by accepting a drink or cigarette?

WALL FLOWER

DEAR WALLFLOWER: After he has a few drinks he won't need impressing.

DEAR VERNON: I am a clerk, and have been doing the same job for over a year. On different occasions I have tried to get an afternoon off. Every time I ask, I get the same answer. How can I convince my superiors to let me have an afternoon off?

OVERWORKED CLERK

DEAR OVERWORKED CLERK: Finish your work before noon.

Brownie Banquet

Six Brownie troops from the post held a Father-Daughter Banquet last Friday in the Wilbur School auditorium.

Participating in the event were Troops 70, 77, 78, 162, 192 and 217, all from the Custer Terrace and Capehart Housing areas.

Hunt Permits Have Expired

The 1960-61 Georgia Hunting and Fishing Licenses expired at midnight last Tuesday, April 25. Persons who purchased Fish and Game Maintenance Association memberships in through 352 and 1001 through 1097 were given incorrect automobile stickers. The correct stickers are now available and those persons concerned can pick up the new stickers at the Fish and Game office where they purchased their membership.

New YAC Officers

Installation of the new board of governors of the Youth Activities Club was held recently on the post.

Among the officers elected to head the organization for the coming year are, Col. Samuel W. Koster, commander of the 1st Battle Group, 29th Infantry, 1st Infantry Brigade, president; Lt. Col. Terence W. Huck, 2nd Infantry Division Artillery, vice president, and Major Joseph W. Farrell, custodian.

Other members are Major Albert E. Pokorny, Command and Staff Department, The Infantry School; Major Edgar A. Hinton, 2nd Engineer Battalion, 2nd Division, and Sgt. Major Earl F. Wilson, Infantry Center Troop Command.

Col. John J. Pavick, G-1 of The Infantry Center, installed the new board and presented a plaque to outgoing president, Col. Harley T. Marsh, Jr., The Infantry School's Special Subjects Department director, for outstanding service as president.

TSB Tops Quarterly Retention

The Infantry Center's all category quarterly re-enlistment competition has been won by The Student Brigade with an over-all re-enlistment percentage of nearly 60 per cent.

The 428th Medical Battalion took second place with 54 per cent followed by The Infantry Center Troop Command with 38 per cent.

The 428th had the highest number of first term re-enlistees for the January-March period with 29 per cent, followed by The Student Brigade with 5.2 per cent and the 1st Infantry Brigade with 15 per cent.

The high all category percentage for March was held by the 428th with 67 per cent. The Student Brigade and Martin Army Hospital filled the other top slots with 63 and 62 per cent.

Try a Camel

Secretary of War, Jefferson Davis, tried to solve the transportation problem in the southwestern part of the United States in 1856 when he got to Congress to appropriate enough money to ship 30 camels from Asia to the U. S. The humpback animals carried supplies to isolated Army frontier posts until the Civil War halted my further experiments. Following the Civil War, the railroads replaced the unusual beasts as transportation.

Benning Joins in Campaign Supporting Chief of Staff

Gen. Walsh's Infantry School Report

Sound and Visual Aids

In the early days of World War II, the Sound Branch was formed in the Communications Department to operate equipment which amplified actual radio transmitters for the benefit of the students. The "Branch" consisted of one man.

From this small beginning, it has grown steadily to its present strength of 119 men operating a half-million dollars worth of equipment.

Today, practically every phase of Infantry School instruction and other activity is supported by the Sound Branch.

The most up-to-date, best available sound and visual-aids equipment is on hand in the branch, along with the technicians with the "know-how" to install and operate it to its maximum potential.

Three Elements

To accomplish its mission of supporting Infantry School instruction and Infantry Center special projects, the Sound Branch is organized into three principal elements: headquarters, maintenance and supply,

Gen. Harris Calls on All To Cooperate

In announcing May as the Army Chief of Staff's Suggestion Month, Major Gen. Hugh P. Harris, post commander, said "The designation of the month of May by the chief of staff, United States Army, as the Chief of Staff's Suggestion Month should remind us that, as managers of Army activities, we are users of government funds, equipment and supplies.

"As such, we are responsible for their economic use and we must, on a continuing basis, assure that optimum results are obtained in the use of government resources.

"I look upon the military, civilian employee and dependent categories as managers, since they are all either super-

Letter From Gen. Harris

TO: All Military and Civilian Personnel

The Chief of Staff of the United States Army has designated May 1961 as the Chief of Staff's Suggestion Month. During this period, one constructive proposal will be solicited from each civilian and military member of the Army.

The primary objective of this campaign is to focus the creative effort of all personnel upon specific problems relating to their work area. You, who know the work and the problems, are best qualified to recommend improvements.

Only by your wholehearted support of this campaign will this command be able to achieve the desired goal of 100 per cent participation.

$4,400 Saved Annually Through Two Suggestions

Fort Benning is accelerating its continuous program to improve operations and conserve resources as it participates in the Army Chief of Staff's Suggestion Month, an Army-wide campaign to solicit money and time-saving suggestions from all personnel during May.

Recently the Department of Non-Resident Instruction of the Infantry School and Martin Army Hospital effected improvements, which indicate that day-to-day operations can be improved and valuable benefits realized.

Colonel John Bisbing, Director, Department of Non-Resident Instruction, reported substantial monetary benefits from improved methods in processing queries from students enrolled in the Army Extension Course Program.

Approximately 250 to 350 queries are received weekly from students.

Form letters and postal cards have been developed to furnish information requested.

Forms and letters previously used were revised or combined into multi-purpose forms

The Executive Council of the Armed Forces Management Association at its meeting Tuesday pledged full support to the current post drive to implement the Army Chief of Staff's Suggestion Month.

Local Public to See 'Power for Peace'

Citizens of Columbus and the surrounding area will see Fort Benning participate in "Power for Peace" — the slogan for the ninth straight year for Armed Forces Day on May 20—during the week in which the Army joins sister services in dramatically displaying elements of national defense.

Armed Forces Week (May 14-20) will offer opportunities for Americans to inspect the nation's first line of defense. Saturday, May 20, is by Presidential proclamation Armed Forces Day with the primary objective of contributing to public understanding of the Armed Forces.

Local Sponsor

The local observance is sponsored by the Columbus Chapter of Military Order of World Wars, a national organization composed of Reserve and retired officers. Serving on various planning and coordinating committees with civilians are Fort Benning personnel.

Major Gen. Hugh P. Harris, commanding general of The Infantry Center and commandant of The Infantry School, has in a letter urged all members of his command to "unite in this effort to focus public attention on the importance of the Army and its capability to perform its mission."

Officially opening Armed Forces Week will be the Military Searchlight Tattoo, an inspiring ceremony dating back 300 years in military history, and a Massing of the Colors to be presented at the Columbus Municipal Auditorium at 8 p.m. Monday, May 15, and Tuesday, May 16.

Generals Speak

Gen. Harris will be guest speaker during the rededication of the Colors ceremony May 15, and Brig. Gen. William L. Hardick, commanding general of the 2nd Infantry Division, is scheduled to speak May 16.

The Searchlight Tattoo pageant is being co-produced by the MOWW and the Jordan High School Band, recipient in 1959 of an Army Commendation Medal for its performance in the ceremony.

Displays

During Armed Forces Week, displays of military equipment and weapons will line the center parkway of Broadway in Columbus and appear in downtown window displays. Street displays will be set up by three major Fort Benning units, the 1st Infantry Brigade, 151st Engineer Group and

Cut Travel DoD Says-- Until July

WASHINGTON (ANS) — Army travel between stations in the U.S. and between stations in overseas commands for personnel scheduled for transfer during the month of June has been suspended, the Department of Defense recently announced.

The action was taken as an economy measure to permit the Army to stay within its travel fund limitations for Fiscal Year 1961.

The action will not affect permanent change of station travel to and from overseas stations, particularly for those whose shipment was originally scheduled for May but which was deferred to June. Previously the Army had involuntarily extended overseas tours for personnel in the so-called long term areas from June to July in order to save scarce travel funds.

visting or using government resources and facilities.

"I exert all personnel — military, civilian and dependent — to devote their maximum abilities and ingenuity toward effecting economies within their areas of influence.

"I am sure that with everyone's whole-hearted support," Gen. Harris said, "great strides will be made in reducing and keeping costs at a minimum."

The Bayonet will devote stories and photographs to management of government resources. In addition to announcing economies and improvements and giving recognition to those who submit constructive suggestions, it will also carry appropriate articles on economy consciousness and management improvement.

Plans for the expansion of our present Management Improvement Program to encompass the requirements of an all-inclusive economy and cost consciousness drive will be published in the near future. These plans will announce appropriate areas where savings and improvements are required.

and operations. The Headquarters Unit controls the overall operation of the branch, working under the direction of the Editorial and Pictorial Office, and maintaining close liaison with the Operations Office of the School.

The Maintenance and Supply Unit, as its name implies, keeps the equipment of the branch in top-notch working shape and makes certain that the prescribed amounts of tools and spare parts are on hand. Since much of the branch's sound equipment is permanently installed in classrooms scattered throughout the post, a special team makes the rounds performing maintenance on these sets. Other equipment is maintained in the unit's repair shop.

The branch's committments originate when an activity of the school or center requests that the Operations Office furnish it with sound or visual-aid support.

The request is placed on a weekly committment schedule by the Operations Office and forwarded to the Sound Branch. The Operations Unit of the branch then assigns the committment to one of its teams for accomplishment. There are four such teams, each organized and equipped to carry out distinct tasks.

The Field Sound Team has mobile equipment and is prepared to set up and operate sound equipment for regular periods of instruction in the field. Each truck in the team carries an amplifier, six loudspeakers, four microphones and two portable power units. While the team has the normal capability of putting 21 of these mobile units into the field at one time, it can field 100 units given an augmentation in transport.

Recently, experiments with a transistorized public - address system have been completed. This 43-pound set consists of an amplifier and two speakers mounted on a 20- by 40-inch board. The 24 volts needed for operation are provided by a series of dry-cell batteries which have a life of 60 hours.

This set, four of which are now operational and 46 in the process of fabrication, is being used in bleacher-type field instruction. The Sound Branch also has six of them designed for mounting on an automobile roof with the power cable plugged into the cigarette-lighter receptacle. A mobile public address system such as this is invaluable in an emergency situation.

The Building Sound Team specializes in operating installed equipment when speeches or lectures are given by general officers or guest speakers. This team is also capable of performing the same job when such events are held out-of-doors.

Type recordings of guest speaker lectures, various programs, and certain classroom presentations are made by the Recording Team. This team additionally is charged with the operation of a recording studio for the use of school and center instructor personnel.

Overhead projectors, 16mm motion picture projectors, and 35mm slide projectors are the tools-in-trade of the Visual Aids Team. Personnel of this team deliver, set up, and operate motion picture projectors for scheduled periods of instruction. The still projectors are also delivered by the team, but are normally operated by the instructors themselves.

Saved

and new, forms were originated. Maximum use of form replies has resulted in estimated monetary benfits of $2,900 annually in the cost of man-hours previously required to answer queries.

An approved cervical traction apparatus which provides maximum relief and shortens the period of hospitalization was developed by Sgt. O. F. Whiton, Orthopedic Service, Martin Army Hospital. This modified apparatus produces the required direction of traction with a simple adjustment and eliminates use of additional pulleys.

Lt. Col. Philip A. Deffer, Chief, Orthopedic Service, estimates annual benefits of approximately $1,500 in reduction of materials and man-hours formerly required in preparing and adjusting traction apparatus.

This improvement will be considered by the Incentive Awards Committee in accord recognition to Sgt. Whiton. In addition, the improvement will be forwarded to Headquarters Third Army for possible adoption at other hospitals.

Time is one of our most important resources, according to officials. Any saving in man-hours which can be diverted to other essential operations is a significant improvement, they pointed out.

The week will be climaxed with the Armed Forces Day parade in Columbus May 19 beginning at 4 p.m. Selected troops of the 2nd Division will march in the parade, along with The Infantry Center Honor and Color Guard, Infantry Center Band, 26th Infantry Scout Dog Platoon and a platoon of WACs.

Lawson Army Aviation Command will provide a "fly-over" of aircraft, timed to take place as the last parade unit passes the reviewing stand.

Travel

during June will be continued as planned.

Only permanent change of station orders within the U. S. and within the overseas commands will be affected. Not affected are personnel coming into or leaving the Army during June; patient transfers; Special Forces volunteers; operational reassignments; personnel assignment to newly-activated units; including Overseas Unit Replacement; and programed unit moves.

Wins Arizona Rifle Crown

Sgt. Roy O. Ambler, Advanced Marksmanship Unit, won the Arizona State .30 Caliber Rifle Championship at Phoenix April 30.

Sgt. Ambler, a member of the Army Rifle Team which competed in the Arizona event, headed a long list of Army match winners.

MSgt Maxie Fields won the Rapid Fire Match at 200 yards. Sgt. Raymond E. Campbell took the trophy for the Standing Position Match at 200 yards.

The award for the Rapid Fire Match at 300 yards was taken by Capt. Richard G. Hinkle. Army wins continued when Capt. Victor Caledron, teamed with Sfc Robert T. O'Hara, won the Two Man Team Trophy.

The Four Man Team Trophy Match, the final event of the Arizona session, was annexed by the Army "Grey" Team, coached by CWO Warren A. Drake.

Vital Role of One Army Units Stressed to NGOCS Graduates

The increasing importance of the Army National Guard due to its increasingly important assignments in the national defense was stressed by Major Gen. Donald W. McGowan, chief of the National Guard Bureau, Washington, D. C., at graduation ceremonies for The Infantry School's National Guard officer candidate class 1, Tuesday.

Gen. McGowan presented certificates to 182 graduates from Guard units throughout the country. They are now eligible to receive their commissions and the gold bars of a second lieutenant from their home units.

Pvt. Robert A. Schumann, Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 1st Battle Group, 181st Infantry, Illinois National Guard, was named honor graduate of the class.

In addition to a letter of commendation, he also received the Major Gen. Edgar C. Erickson award, named for the former chief of the National Guard Bureau and given annually to the outstanding NG OC graduate.

Junior Officers' Importance

"The future of the Army National Guard as a well trained and mobilization - ready Reserve Component depends to a large extent on young men like yourself who participate in the officer candidate program of our National Guard. Never before has the quality of our junior officers been more important because never before has the National Guard been given such important assignments," the speaker told the class.

He explained that the active Army holds the front line of defense, with military missions in 44 countries of Europe, Asia and South America helping to train some 200 combat divisions of our Free World Allies; protecting us at home on land and in the air, and with a strategic force of six divisions ready to go anywhere in the world.

these committments with less these committments with less than 900,000 men? By maximum and effective use of our Reserve. Components now and in the event of mobilization," Gen. McGowan emphasized.

The two-star general outlined the new role of the Guard under the One-Army concept of shared responsibilities with the active Army and Army Reserve.

Active in Air Defense

"The Guard is an active participant in the air defense of the U. S. It has 32 battalions now manning NIKE sites in industrial areas throughout the nation. Two units guard Hawaii's air defense," he said, adding that units of the NG and USAR constitute a vital part of the Army Strategic Reserve and seven Infantry and seven armored divisions of the Guard are in the Reserve Force.

"In five states there are elite outfits known as Special Forces, trained as parachutists and to conduct guerrilla warfare, in the National Guard," the speaker added.

"Although you go to a small command, the responsibility you assume is in no way small," Gen. McGowan challenged the group. "It is the small unit leader who is always key to success in combat. Final decisions in ground combat will always rest on small unit leaders fighting in ground contact such as you competent gentlemen."

The advised the new graduates to "maintain the high standards which you have been taught at The Infantry School, the cradle of the Infantry, when you return to your units.

Career Just Begun

"The training you have received at Fort Benning is the best obtainable, but I want to emphasize that your military schooling has not ended. It has just begun," he stated, then discussed the additional service schooling which will contribute to advancement to field grade rank.

Gen. McGowan was introduced by Major Gen. High F. Harris, commandant of The Infantry School and commanding general of The Infantry Center.

NATIONAL RECORD . . . Capt. Daniel B. Puckel, a member of the Advanced Marksmanship Unit's International Rifle Team, poses with his 50-meter free rifle after setting a new national record of 441 consecutive "10's" from the kneeling position during the recent Monon Valley Rifle Gallery Rifle Championships at Fairmont, W. Va. He exceeded the old mark by 130 "10's". The 441 .22 caliber bullets passed through a ring about the diameter of a soda straw.

Let Others in on Your Improvements

If you're temporarily stuck for a good suggestion to enter during the Army Chief of Staff's Suggestion Month, try this recipe: First ask yourself if you've been going out of your way, or the long way around, in doing a job just because the guy ahead of you did it that way, or because things "are set up this way." This may point up an area for improvement. Or, come to think of it, have you corrected some common and likely widespread wasteful situation already, within your section or squad, without letting anyone else in on it? If you have, that may solve your suggestion problem, and at the same time aid many others with the same trouble you found and fixed. Being efficient, and having your own operation go smoothly, is great — but why not pass on to the next guy some of the improvements you've made?

This is a serious search for improvements. Look at it this way: If each soldier, service woman and civilian in the defense structure of the nation found a way to save just one dollar a month, we'd save millions each year.

A Word to the Wise

Guest Editorial By 1st Lt. Leon P. Alexander

An oft-quoted expression around any military installation is "Look sharp, soldier!" And most of us do take the pride in our branch of service to wear the uniform with honor.

But, as in all walks of life, there are those among us who give little appreciation to the high standards which we attempt, and quite successfully so, to maintain.

It isn't necessary to be an extremist to be neat. Nor is it expected that a soldier will remain immaculate at all times. A spotless soldier is one who never has to earn his pay. But the first thing in the morning you can differentiate between those in the "soldier class", who begin their day with a good attitude and do their share of the morning chores, and the "Sloppy Joes", who are the pride of the grease pits.

The man who cares has shined his boots, polished his brass, made certain that the uniform he is wearing is presentable, and knows the importance of wearing his unit patch with pride.

"Sloppy Joe" has worn his uniform so many times you can't be sure if it ever has seen the inside of a laundry. A bootmaker would shudder at the sight of his boots, caked with the mud from yesterday's field problem.

Sure, we can all look down at this poor excuse for a soldier, but do we help him? More important, do we ever check in the mirror to find out if we are one?

Assuming that you are "straight," give a hand to someone else who might not have caught the wisdom of the Army world. Let us all be able to have someone say of us, "You look mighty sharp, soldier!"

1st Lt. James Clark of the Advanced Marksmanship Unit, the Army's top shotgunner, was looking for some twine. He saw some fine looking string on the trap range and was happily cutting some into the desired lengths when he was brought up short by a scream from SMaj. Harold Grewe, his shooting partner. Seems that the "fine looking string" was Sgt. Grewe's best fly line . . .

Success of Suggestion Month Depends on YOU

The Army Chief of Staff, General George H. Decker, has designated May, 1961, as Chief of Staff's Suggestion Month. The area for emphasis during this campaign is "Improve Your Own Operations," and this emphasis applies to an organization or an individual.

Every job can be improved; it is every individual's responsibility to improve his own work. By encouraging creative thinking among military and civilian personnel at all echelons, improvement potentials are developed and action is instigated.

The objective of the campaign is to solicit a minimum of one constructive suggestion per individual. If everyone concentrates on improving specific problems relating to his own work area, tangible benefits will result.

Think of new ways to improve methods, processes, work flow, or layout — to eliminate duplication, unnecessary steps, or overlapping functions, — to reduce transportation distances — to reduce waiting time for men, materials, or documents — to increase efficiency, productivity, morale, or safety; at Fort Benning or elsewhere.

This campaign is an Army-wide effort which is being undertaken as a means of encouraging the development of constructive suggestions. Its success, obviously, depends upon the amount of effort which each member of the Army devotes to it. Now is the time to start thinking.

The Judge Says . . .

(This is the last in a series on Georgia income tax, which was interrupted for comment on Law Day USA — Editor)

Through the returns filed this year the authorities can determine whether any taxes have been paid in the past, and if not, why they weren't paid. An individual failing to file anytime back to 1931 may be reached, because there is no statute of limitations shortening the length of the tax collector's arm.

This gives the State of Georgia the prerogative to reach back into these prior years and enforce the back taxes, attaching the penalties mentioned before.

This great power to collect applies only to those returns which were not filed at all during the past years, and does not apply to forms filed incorrectly.

When returns have been filed and are found to be fraudulent for some reason, or if there are 25 per cent more income made than was reported, the State can reach back five years and demand payment therefor with penalties.

But normally the State cannot touch returns further back than the past three years.

If you have failed for some reason to pay your taxes in your home state, or in the state of employment, don't worry about Georgia telling on you. However, there is reciprocity between Georgia and many other states.

In other words, there exists a friendly bond between Georgia and, for example, Florida. This means that if a judgment is decreed by a Georgia tribunal, though Georgia has no jurisdiction to enforce the debt in Florida, through courtesy Florida will reciprocate, if requested, and use her authorities to execute or take action.

This is "comity", or a sort of "Interstate Golden Rule," and Georgia will do the same thing. So the person attempting to escape Georgia taxes by moving to Florida, or to some other state, may not find sanctuary at all, if such reciprocity exists.

This escape has become a rare thing indeed. It is still, at most, a temporary refuge to move, or to fail in payment.

Though it has been left up to one's integrity and conscience in the past in determining personal liability for state taxes, this intangible sanction is today invigorated by state encouragement.

When any question arises with regard to your liability in these matters, i.e., procedural questions of completing returns or Federal returns, technical questions as to deductions and exclusions, matters of residence, or any legal matter you may be concerned with, you are always welcome in our office in Building 5.

Chaplain's Corner

By Chaplain (Major) Arthur J. Estes

It is reported that during an Armed Forces Day observance on a certain Army Post in the Third Army area, a civilian was riding in a jeep, driven by a sergeant.

The civilian, after being jolted and bumped around for fifteen or twenty minutes remarked, "This is really an old vehicle!" The sergeant replied, "Yes, me and this jeep have both been in the Army 17 years".

"Well", said the civilian, "The Army must think a lot of you."

"I don't know about that. Me and this old jeep was both deadlined last week. They sent the jeep to Ordnance but the doc just gave me two APC's".

Sometimes we soldiers begin to think that we mean very little to the Army. There is so much emphasis on things-on weapons, missiles, tanks and planes. Men seem to be secondary.

But this is not true and the Army is now emphasizing the importance of the individual soldier as the ultimate weapon for without us, the nation could not survive.

•I so, a man can easily begin to think that he means nothing to God and that his life doesn't matter. The Psalmist voices the cry of a man with this attitude. "What is man, that thou art mindful of him? And the son of man that thou visitest him?" (Psalm 8:4)

Then David, the Psalmist, answers, "For thou hast made him a little lower than the angels, and hast crowned him with glory and honour. Thou madest him to have dominion over the works of thy hands; thou hast put all things under his feet: all sheep and oxen, yea, and the beasts of the field; the fowl of the air, and the fish of the sea, and whatsoever passeth through the paths of the seas." (Psalm 8:5-8)

In the knowledge of God's high estimation of man he exclaims, "O Lord our Lord, how excellent is thy name in all the earth!" (Psalm 8:9)

Oh, how important you are to God! Of such significance are you and your fellowmen that for you God has created the world for your dwelling place and has placed all of this creation under your command.

In return, He asks that we come to Him in love and faith in order to receive guidance as to how the earth, including our individual lives, is to be used for His glory and our own happiness. Herein lies fulfillment of our destiny and the dawning knowledge of our individual importance in God's eternal plans.

Concert by Band Draws Citizens

Fort Benning's Infantry Center Band presented a concert Wednesday in conjunction with the second phase of the massive polio vaccination campaign in Columbus.

The band played from 11 a.m. to noon at the corner of 12th St. and Broadway as free inoculations were given at the downtown station. A total of 31,153 shots were given three weeks ago during the first phase of the program to make Columbus the best vaccinated city in the nation against polio.

Post P-TA Assn. Sets Election Date of May 9

The Fort Benning Parent-Teacher Association will elect officers for 1961-1962 at its May 9 meeting at 8 p.m. in Faith School auditorium.

A short business session and installation of the new officers by Col. Braxton E. Small, retiring PTA president, will compromise the program for the organization's final meeting of the school year.

Refreshments will be served following the meeting.

Water Safety Programs Being Stressed on Post

As Pools Open

A water safety program to make everyone more conscious of the inherent risks of swimming, scuba diving, boating and other water sports, is being stressed by The Infantry Center's Safety Director's Office.

The office is circulating posters and enlisting the support of unit commanders in the program, which encourages attendance at swimming classes conducted at the post and teaches water safety precautions and oral resuscitation.

According to the Safety Office, only one drowning of a Fort Benning serviceman has occurred during the past calendar year.

Personnel may swim only in the post's four swimming pools where lifeguards are on duty. The buddy - system is recommended at all times. All lakes and ponds on the reservation, as well as the Chattahoochee River and Upatoi Creek, have strong undercurrents. They are off-limits to swimmers except in the cases of authorized training purposes, Safety Office officials emphasized.

Carey, Harmony Church, Sand Hill and the Main Officers' Mess swimming pools open tomorrow. An indoor pool at Briant Wells Field House is open the year-round where swimming classes are conducted nightly from 6 to 8 by Special Services. Personnel are trained periodically at Briant Wells, as the need arises, and qualified by the Red Cross as lifeguards and water safety instructors. These qualified personnel instruct swimming classes at pool pools during the summer and serve as lifeguards.

According to officials, water safety should be emphasized because many Fort Benning personnel participate in water sports along the Gulf and most of them fall in the age group which statistics show to have the most accidents.

Repossession Does Not Lessen Your Obligation

"Repossession is plain, hard, economic calamity."

You may think repossession means only that your creditor takes the merchandise back and that this maneuver relieves you of further responsibility and payment. Not so!

Many items of personal property (autos, household furniture, appliances, etc.) are sold under conditional sales contracts with promissory notes attached.

Under this plan, you take possession of the item, but the ownership or title remains with the seller until you finish all payments.

In most jurisdictions the word conditional indicates the sale is not complete until the debt is paid and that the seller retains the title to the goods as security for the credit he has extended you.

What does this mean? Simply this: If you fail to make a payment when due, the seller (or finance company holding the contract) can take back the item without court action.

Here's the bombshell. In most conditional sales contracts the failure to make a payment when due makes the entire balance payable immediately without notice, and the buyer loses both the goods and what he has paid into it.

When property is repossessed it is often resold. When it is resold whatever the dealer gets is applied against your account — but not until he has deducted interest, costs of the resale and attorney's fees.

True, after all of this juggling you have reduced what you owe, but a sizeable chunk is still due.

You are stuck and here's what has happened. The seller probably got what is called a deficiency judgment against you and under its terms you are obligated and must pay the agreed price of the item in spite of the fact that you no longer own it, or even have it in your possession.

The so-called chattel mortgage is another type of contract to watch.

Unlike the conditional sales contract, if you buy a car under a chattel mortgage, you are the owner of the car which is mortgaged to secure the debt.

But — if the note is not paid, the finance company, through legal procedure, repossesses the car and sells it to pay the loan.

If the car does not bring enough to pay your debt, plus the cost of foreclosing, you may be compelled to pay the balance due.

U. S. Bonds

$14,000 Hatched From Monthly Egg

MSgt Ismael Nazario of San German, Puerto Rico, was counting his U. S. Savings and Defense Bonds last week without a thought of discontinuing, and if he did it publicly a lot of Fort Benning soldiers might imitate his savings plan as the Army's annual Savings Bond Drive begins at the post.

A few days ago Sgt. Nazario got out his bonds, some 176 of them now, worth over $14,000 at the present time in matured value.

He displayed them neatly in rows, the $100, $50, $25 and $10 for a special visitor, Col. John R. Fox, an investment expert from the Office of the Chief of Finance, Department of the Army, who was at Fort Benning to spark the Spring bond drive.

Through the years, Sgt. Nazario has purchased a total of 227 Savings and Defense Bonds, 61 of which he has cashed. The newer, standard-size bonds comprise over half of the number.

The bonds trace the development of the Savings Bond program in the U. S. The sergeant purchased the first ones, rather large, awkward-looking $25 bonds, as far back as 1942, just a year after President Franklin D. Roosevelt purchased the first Defense Bond.

"At that time," Sgt. Nazario said, "you didn't receive the bond itself, but you were given a 'safe-keeping' receipt."

This policy ended in February, 1943.

A new Series E Bond was issued in December 1943, and these 17-year-old bonds are among the bonds in denominations of $10 and $25. This "million size" E Bond was purchased by the sergeant until they were discontinued in August, 1957. As the bonds were changing size, Sgt. Nazario was increasing the amount of his allotment deductions for their purchase.

From 1942 to 1945 he bought $10 and $25 bonds. In April 1945 he began deducting $50 bonds, but this lasted about a year. In July, 1946, he began to save in amounts of $100 which he has continued to the present.

His real pride of the many years' accumulation is a $1,000 bond which was given to him by his mother.

The sergeant and his family reside at No. 2 Court Ave., Benning Park Homes, Columbus. He is personnel sergeant for the 1st Battle Group, 29th Infantry, 1st Infantry Brigade.

He began his military career in the Puerto Rico National Guard in 1926 and entered active duty in 1940. He has served in Korea, the British West Indies and the Caribbean, all the while putting his money on the U. S. Government which will pay him back with interest the day he decides to "cash in."

Nazi Persecution Unitarian Subject

Nazi persecution of the Jews will be discussed at the weekly meeting of the Unitarian Fellowship of Fort Benning and Columbus, Sunday at 7 p.m. at the 1st Infantry Brigade Chapel.

The program will feature a film, "The Nurnberg Trials," showing the brutality of the gas chambers for which Adolph Eichmann is undergoing trial in Israel. The film is not recommended for children. The public is invited.

Children's Fashion Show Highlights TSB Lunch

The ladies of The Student Brigade gathered at the Custer Terrace Officer's Club recently for their April luncheon which featured a children's fashion show.

Program, decoration, invitation, finance and hospitality functions were, respectively, accomplished by wives of the 2d Student Battalion, Headquarters TSB, 4th Student Battalion, Infantry School Battalion, and 5th Student Battalion.

Mrs. Bernard Kitt was special guest of Mrs. Otto R. Koch, Jr., and Mrs. Joan McKelvey was guest of Mrs. Carl Kasemeier.

The ladies attending the luncheon were seated in groups of six at tables gaily decorated with fascinating and unique toys and lovely apparel for children.

Mrs. Vern L. Joseph introduced Mrs. Daisy Kreilick, owner of an Oakland Shopping Center store, who supplied the ready-to-wear and decorations.

Mrs. Richard Delaune introduced each little model and described their attire which ranged from beachwear to dreamland fashions.

The animated little models were: Linda and Lynn Mangold, Linden DeLaune, Casey Kasemeier, Kathy and Patty Nourse.

Mrs. John E. Rogers entertained with piano music for the occasion.

Mrs. Claude Franklin was the recipient of a door prize, a generous gift certificate, donated by Mrs. Kreilick.

Newcomers to the group were Mrs. Everett M. Yon, Jr., and Mrs. Jack M. Williams, Jr.

Pat Ryan's News and Views

The Woman's Club annual art, flower, and ceramics show was attended by between 350 to 400 people last Sunday afternoon at the Benning Country Club. Mrs. Cyril Sterner and Mrs. H. F. McFeely were chairmen for the event which availed itself of the following judges: Mr. Louis Cheney of Auburn's faculty, adult and children's art; Mrs. Robert Lewis, Jr., flower arrangements; Mrs. J. Lee Rentz, and Mr. and Mrs. James E. Silz, ceramics. Mrs. George Walsh and Mrs. Dallas M. Patterson were chairmen for the refreshments, which consisted of fruit punch, sandwiches, and cookies.

The punch table was laid with pink cloth, silver candelabra with pink tapers, and a floral arrangement of stock and Amaryllis lilies in different shades of pink. Ladies from the various boards of the Woman's Club served punch throughout the afternoon.

The best of show winners in the different categories: Adult art: Mrs. Roland Ayotte. Her etching in the graphics arts was a black and white rendition of "The Descent".

Children's art: Melinda Carpenter. The five year old daughter of Captain and Mrs. Robert Carpenter created a red and white fingerpainted version of "Me, by Melinda".

Flower Arrangements: Mrs. William Guinn. Her home - grown pale pink tea roses were fashioned for a centerpiece.

Ceramics: Mrs. Rudolph Ruzick. A glaze-on-glaze "ginger jar" with a turquoise base.

Not Enough Just to Fly; Caribou Face Rigid Test

The Army's largest aircraft, the AC-1 Caribou, is being put through its paces in 46 realistic exercises furnishing a cross section of situations encountered in actual combat.

The problems are the result of months of advance planning and preparation by the Caribou Troop Test Headquarters at this post, which is conducting a two-month long troop test of the twin engine aircraft.

The test will determine the feasability of using 16 Caribou in an Army aviation company following current Army doctrine and organization. The tactical and logistical support capabilities of the Caribou will also be evaluated.

Data concerning training, airfield and logistic requirements will be determined from the tests.

Direct Support

The first part of the two phase test is designed to test the Caribou for use in direct support of an Army corps and the second for use in an Army service area.

Responsible for the troop test of the Caribou is the Test Headquarters at Benning. Major Gen. Hugh P. Harris, post commanding general, is the test director. Deputy director is Col. Willard E. Harrison, the director of the Airborne-Air Mobility Department of The Infantry School. Lt. Col. Edward M. Harrell is the test executive and operations officer.

Test headquarters is composed of the administrative, controller and evaluation sections. Representatives of the other Army service schools including artillery, aviation, quartermaster, signal and armor are members of the evaluation section. Chief evaluator is Lt. Col. Eb W. Smith.

Major Paul H. Schultz is the chief of the administrative section. Chief controller is Lt. Col. O. G. Garrett.

Organized by directive of Headquarters, Continental Army Command, the Caribou Troop Test Headquarters carried out the detailed planning and preparations for the project which began April 17.

The 1st Aviation Company of the Lawson Army Aviation Command at the test unit. The company began a 12 week training program in preparation for the test in October 1960 which included two one week exercises and ended with an Army Training Test from April 3 to 7.

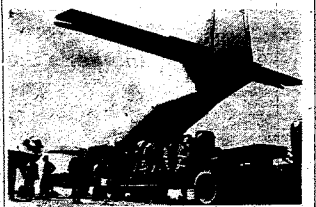
Other units from Fort Benning and posts in the Third Army area will furnish support for various exercises throughout the 60 day test.

For the test the 1st Aviation Company will use four Caribou and eight Otter aircraft.

Fifty-one enlisted men and two officers of the 124th Transportation Company (Terminal Service), from Fort Eustis, Va., are also supporting the troop test. In preparing and loading the cargo in the Caribou the detachment will test the loading techniques for the aircraft.

The detachment, commanded by Capt. William Raymond, arrived here to prepare for the test February 7.

A 20 man detachment of the 612th Quartermaster Company (Aerial Supply) from Fort Bragg, played a supporting role during the first two weeks of the project.



The twin engine Caribou is designed for short take-offs and landings allowing operation from short unimproved air fields in a combat zone.

It can carry 32 combat equipped soldiers or 24 fully equipped paratroopers. The rear-loading craft will accommodate two "jeeps" in its cargo space and carry up to three tons of cargo.

The mission of the Caribou is to augment the combat capability of Army units by providing airlift to combat and supporting elements of a field Army.

The aircraft will be called upon to both air-land and parachute drop supplies and personnel equipment and personnel during the test.

Eight air strips will be used; base field for phase one is McKenna and for phase two, Dekkar. McKenna, Dekkar, Dekkar North and Lawson Army Aviation Command all have both day and night capabilities while Amfreville, Fryar, Fryar, Assault and Concord have daylight capabilities.

Management Improvements Discussed Here At Two Meetings Headed by Col. Jarrett

Management Improvement was the subject of discussion at two meetings attended by all Management Improvement Officers at Fort Benning April 27. Topics covered included Principles of Management, the Management Improvement Plan, and the Work Simplification Program.

The discussions were led by Col. Paul J. Jarrett, Comptroller, The Infantry Center, who stressed the requirement for a dynamic, aggressive and continuing Management Improvement Program on the post.

Col. Jarrett stated that in view of ever-increasing missions without compatible increases in resources, it was incumbent upon all personnel to seek and achieve increased efficiency in all phases of operations.

He also pointed out that recent directives from Lt. Gen. Paul D. Adams, Commanding General, Third Army, and Major Gen. Hugh P. Harris had stressed the necessity for increased economy consciousness.

Savings Return Here

Col. Jarrett indicated that it is the policy of the Army Commander to release funds and personnel spaces saved through Management Improvement efforts to the installation commander to meet other pressing requirements. Since the present post work force is recognized as being inadequate to meet all requirements, no one need fear that he is going to "improve himself out of his job."

Col. Jarrett requested all Management Improvement Officers to insure that personnel in their activities fully understand this fact, and enjoined the Management Improvement Officers to solicit the full and whole-hearted cooperation of all personnel, especially those at the grass roots level.

He stressed that only by getting full participation from the man or woman who actually does the job can maximum benefits be attained.

In concluding his introductory remarks, Col. Jarrett stated that every dollar saved means another dollar available in the Annual Funding Program to meet recognized and pressing requirements.

Following Col. Jarrett's introductory remarks, personnel of the Management Engineering Division, Office of the Comptroller, discussed management principles.

Management was defined as the means by which a commander insures the proper conduct of those continuing actions of planning, organizing, directing, coordinating and controlling the use of men, money and material in order to insure the most efficient accomplishment of missions.

The commander uses his Management Improvement program as a management tool to achieve increased efficiency, economy and effectiveness in the use of resources, and thereby permits the shifting of resources from the support or administrative elements to the fighting elements of the Army.

Management Improvement is, an inherent responsibility, not only of the commander but of all personnel. Management Improvement Officers were urged to be enthusiastic in their approach to Management Improvement in order that their enthusiasm would be communicated to all personnel.

The work Simplification Program was also discussed, and the value of a systematic rather than a haphazard approach to work simplification was brought out.

The five elementary work analysis techniques were reviewed and Management Improvement Officers were requested to review these techniques with all first-line supervisors to insure that these simple but highly effective techniques are being effectively utilized.

At the conclusion of the conference, Management Improvement Officers were congratulated for the enthusiasm they had displayed and for their efforts in bringing the program to its current high level of performance.

Management Improvement Officers Handbooks prepared by the Management Engineering Division, Office of the Comptroller, were distributed to participants to assist in further improving the program.

'Stormy' Walsh Wins Law Day Essay Contest

James (Stormy) Walsh, 17-year-old son of Major and Mrs. George C. Walsh, was winner of the Columbus Law Club's essay contest conducted during the club's observance of Law Day, 96, May 1.

The Baker High School senior received the first prize award of $100 Savings Bond for his essay entitled "Importance of Law in Our Daily Lives." In the essay he noted that there is almost no facet of our daily lives not covered by a law or the subject for a proposed law.

Walsh also won recognition of the editors of The Columbus Ledger who published his essay April 23 in its entirety on the editorial page.

The Surgeon Says

Your Hospital; A Partnership

BY LT. COL. THOMAS LAUGHLIN, MSC

Good health is an intrinsic part of the increasingly higher standard of living we seek for all Americans. The furtherance of that goal is the primary concern of your hospital which provides the health giving services — both curative and preventive — which mean a healthier and longer life for every member of the community.

National Hospital Week is May 7-13 and is a time set aside each year for the nation's hospitals and the communities they serve to become better acquainted. The theme of this year's observance is "Your Hospital—A Community Partnership."

It was chosen to emphasize the reciprocal relationship that exists between the community and the hospital. This article is an attempt to tell you how your hospital helps each of you realize your new heritage of health and to describe the areas in which the hospital depends on your understanding and support.

Admissions Increase

The most important service the hospital provides for its community is, of course, patient care. Hospital admissions have continued to increase over the years because hospitals can do more for people than ever before.

In 1960, we had 12,944 admissions to Martin Army Hospital. Since we estimate that we serve a population of about 80,000 you can see that this is roughly one out of six. We also had over 448,854 outpatient visits to your hospital last year; this means that the average person at Fort Benning visited the hospital about six times during the year.

Forward Strides

This has been a century of scientific miracles. It has brought the most amazing strides in health care ever concentrated into such a brief period. Two decades have been added to the life span. More babies are living to grow up, and more mothers and fathers live to nurture their children to maturity. Almost daily, new weapons give new hope in the continuing attack on disease.

Our new heritage of health is reflected in the dedicated service found in hospitals. Services that were unheard of—even undreamed of—just a few decades ago are now being provided.

Highly developed tests carried out in the modern laboratories shed light on the most obscure problems in diagnosis. Successful treatment is now being extended to many conditions once considered hopeless. Dramatic new equipment, such as the artificial heart and the artificial kidney are capable of maintaining life through periods of illness which were previously always fatal.

The enumeration of new services provided by hospitals does not tell the complete story of the progress of hospital care, for it is continuous and dynamic. Hospitals are constantly challenged to narrow the gap between what is learned through medical research and what they presently provide.

There When Needed

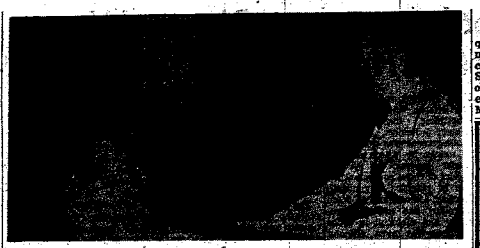
None of us likes to think of our health taking even temporary leave of us and so it is not pleasant to contemplate entering a hospital. But it is comforting to know that the hospital's doors are always open in case of illness, injury, or the birth of a new baby. . . and to know that through those doors are dedicated people ready to apply their knowledge and skills to restore our health.

Your doctor's orders call many trained teams into action. The professional service teams provide the personalized care to nurture the patient back to health. The largest of these is the nursing team, but there are many others. There are the personnel who record the patient's care and progress; the ones who provide the X-ray and laboratory services; those who operate the pharmacy; and those who provide the special services for surgery or the delivery of a baby.

Then there is the dietary team which supplies general and special diets to meet each patient's nutritional needs.

Still others work behind the scenes in the hospital. The janitorial service helps the hospital guard against infections; the hospital linen supply workers provide a constant supply of safe and sterile linens; the engineering team maintains heat, light, and power, and keeps the complicated hospital equipment in constant readiness. Still others are concerned with the administration of the hospital, keeping the services running smoothly and guarding their quality.

Large Employers



In addition to their healing, teaching, and research functions, hospitals deserve mention as an important community industry. A hospital is a large employer. As a group, hospitals employ one and a half million people, more than many of our major manufacturing industries. Almost one thousand persons are engaged in health activities at Fort Benning.

As consumers of goods and purveyors of services, hospitals rank among the largest. They prepare and serve more than two billion meals every year. They consume nearly two and a half billion pounds of ice per year.

Hospitals are concerned, just as you are, with the rising cost of health care. They are self-critical and are constantly searching for areas where greater efficiencies can be effected without lowering their standard of personalized patient care. Hospital people know that they cannot expect the invention of a machine which will care for patients with the dedication and compassion of a nurse.

Because people are so necessary to the hospital, we cannot expect the application of cost-saving techniques to produce a marked reduction in hospital costs. We can expect them to hold costs down to the lowest possible level, and this is what hospitals are trying to do.

But a marked reduction in hospital costs is not possible without a reduction in either the number or the quality of services which people provide. None of us wants that. In fact, we want more and better health services.

11th Greets 1,020 Non-Service Men

Gen. Hardick, Colonel Arthur Give Welcome

By 11th Infantry PIO

The 11th Infantry officially welcomed to its ranks its 1,020 non-prior-service personnel at 9 a.m. last Saturday morning.

Colonel John E. Arthur, battle group commander, introduced Brigadier General William L. Hardick, commanding general, who presented a welcoming address to the trainees.

"I Am The Infantry" was presented by the United States Army Infantry Center.

Colonel Arthur next welcomed the trainees, telling them what was expected of them and what they would be able to expect of him and of his staff. Colonel Arthur explained to the trainees that their status was not that of replacements, but rather one of a group assigned to the battle group, who would train with the battle group, and then participate in the OVEREP program with the battle group.

General Hardick and Colonel Arthur outlined the history of the battle group and the division, and the importance of their applying themselves and being receptive to the training which they will receive.

Ord Men Return From 2-Month Duty in Alaska

A 61-man detachment from the 702nd Ordnance Battalion has returned from a two-month mission at Fort Richardson, Alaska, where they participated in "Operation Willow Freeze."

The detachment's mission was the repair and maintenance of vehicles used in the exercise.

Heading up the 702nd group was Lieutenant Donald E. Hamlee, of Company A.

At Fort Richardson, the division men operated in the recently built Armament Maintenance Shop. The vehicles they repaired during the exercise were drawn from the Army's Reserve Western Stock pool located there.

They departed Fort Benning February 24 and arrived two days later during Fort Richardson's first big snow of the year.

May: Suggestion Month

Officer's 'Poncho' Idea Won 'Searchlight' Prize

By Div PIO

During May, every man in the 2nd Division — and the Army — is being asked to come up with at least one constructive suggestion to make the Army a more efficient and more economical operation.

"Chief of Staff Suggestion Month" is a follow-up to last year's highly-successful Operation Searchlight, in which an idea by an officer, then assigned to the 1st Infantry, earned Army-level acclaim.

Lieutenant Glenn Eure, now in Europe, designed a "poncho covering" salvaged from scrap canvas and constructed at a cost of 37 cents.

This suggestion by Lieutenant Eure was forwarded by Colonel G. Shettle, then commander of the 1st, to the "Incentive Award Committee" and was approved. From the 2nd Division it was sent to USAIC and, from there, to Third U.S. Army.

Lieutenant Eure's suggestion was received by the Research and Development Section of the office of the Quartermaster General, Department of the Army, with recommendations for adoption. In view of this approval, Continental Army Command recommended adoption of this suggestion at Continental Armies.

The poncho covering, measuring approximately 12 by 8 inches, is designed so that it may easily be hooked onto a pistol belt and carried on a combat pack. In this manner, the poncho would be easily accessible to the soldier without going through his entire pack.

"May's "Suggestion Plan," said General G. H. Decker, U.S. Army chief of staff, "is one means of fully utilizing the initiative and ingenuity of civilian and military personnel in improving Army operations.

Brigadier General William L. Hardick, division commanding general, is giving the campaign his full support.

Sergeant Kirk Keeney of the 87th Infantry has been selected Division "Soldier of the Month."

Sgt. Keeney, a veteran of 13 years' service, was selected by a board of senior noncommissioned officers for his "knowledge of military subjects, military bearing and military appearance."

Entering the Army in 1948 at Fort Knox, Ky., Sgt. Keeney has served in France, Germany and Korea in addition to his "state side" tours. His decorations include the Army Occupation Medal, National Defense Medal, Korean Service Medal with four stars, the United Nations Medal and the Good Conduct Medal (second award).

A hobbyist who collects military patches, Sgt. Keeney has approximately 400 patches dating back to World War I. He is married and the father of a son, Edwin, who attends Baker High School.

When asked how he felt about his selection as the Division "Soldier of the Month," Sgt. Keeney stated, "I am really proud to have been selected, and I feel that my selection signifies the spirit and ability of the men of Combat Support Company. Combat Support Company is the finest company I've ever had the opportunity to serve in."

Captain Edwin May, Combat Support Company commander, in congratulating Sgt. Keeney, said, "I felt when I selected you to go before the Battle Group Selection Board that you were capable of winning at Battle Group and Division level. This selection is truly an indication of your leadership and professional ability."

Pet Parade Announced

A special program for the children of 2nd Division members was announced this week by Miss Madeline J. Parks, club director of Service Club Two in the Sand Hill area.

A "Pet Parade" is scheduled for Sunday, May 21, starting at 2:30 in the afternoon at the club.

Gen. Stoughton Sees Men He'll Lead in Korea

By 1st Inf PIO

Major General Tom R. Stoughton, new 7th Division commander and his assistant division commander, Brigadier General William J. Henry, Monday visited OVUREP battle groups at Kelley Hill.

Accompanied by Brigadier General William L. Hardick, 2nd Division commanding general and Colonel Gustav M. Bacharach, division chief of staff, they viewed OVUREP training. In particular, the 1st Infantry briefing stressed that the unit had completed its original mission to be combat-ready by April 30.

Major General James F. Woolnough, assistant deputy chief of staff of operations, Department of the Army, and Colonel Lawrence M. Hilloal of the staff and faculty of the Command and General Staff College, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, toured the division with Generals Stoughton and Henry.

The officers also had observed a proficiency testing of an 87th Infantry company and saw 11th Infantry recruits fire the M-1 rifle for the first time at Malone Trainfire Range.

As 7th Division commander, Gen. Stoughton will command these units in Korea as they complete their combat-ready missions at Fort Benning and are sent to the Far East.

The 1st Infantry reached its combat-ready goal, scoring a superior rating during their ATT despite torrential rains and knee-deep mud. The unit

Reenlistments

Sergeant First Class Thomas Borris, career counselor for the 9th Infantry, signed up six more "Keep Up the Fire" battle group members for a total of 23 additional years in the Army Green.

Three noncommissioned officers from the 9th's Headquarters Company headed the latest list of reenlistments: Staff Sergeant Willie Bixler of Russellville, Arkansas, chose Regular Army unassigned for four years. Sergeant First Class Lavester Spearman of Gary, Indiana, signed for three years for his own vacancy. Sergeant James Jenkins, Alexander, Tennessee, also signed for three years for his own vacancy.

Staff Sergeant Preston Patterson, a member of the 9th's Combat Support Company, reenlisted for four years for his own vacancy. He hails from Blairsville, Georgia. Sergeant First Class Raymond Johnson, Company D, selected a six year term and chose Alaska. Corporal Richard Novak, also from the 9th's Combat Support Company, will head for the 8th U.S. Army in Korea. He reenlisted for three years.

SFC Johnson calls Betetrourt, Virginia, home and Corporal Novak hails from Lorraine, Ohio.

Specialist Four Lewis W. Gray, 17th Artillery, has reenlisted for his own vacancy for six years as the battalion commander's driver.

Specialist Gray, from Roanoke, Virginia, took his basic and advanced training in the 12th Artillery in 1958. After his training he completed a tour of duty with the 9th Artillery in Germany. Specialist Gray Swas assigned to the 17th Artillery in October of 1960.

Sergeant Charles W. Bootle, Headquarters Company, 69th Armor, has reenlisted for a period of six years to fill his own vacancy.

Others at the 69th Armor reenlisting recently included Master Sergeant Samuel Matalone, Company A, who reenlisted for six years for Company G, Infantry School Brigade, and Sergeant First Class Charles D. Evans, Headquarters Company, who reenlisted for six years to fill his own vacancy.

Career Counselor, Sergeant First Class Cebert R. Browning, 3rd Reconnaissance Squadron, 7th Cavalry has reenlisted a total of 125 men for a total of 46 years service during his six month tour of duty as Squadron Career Counselor. This averages approximately 20 men a month he has advised, counselled and reenlisted.

SFC Browning knows a good thing when he sees it because included in the totals above appears his name as he recently signed the dotted line for another six years of service.

SFC Browning is soon to depart the Squadron for assignment in Europe.

Departures

Three men from Company B, 122nd Signal Battalion departed recently for the 7th Special Forces in Fort Bragg. They were Sergeant First Class Heyward Williams, platoon sergeant; Specialist Four Paul Przybylski, radio operator; and Private First Class Raymond Kwiatkowski, power generator repairman.

The following personnel from the 122nd Signal Battalion departed for new assignments in Korea, from Company A, Sergeant Friend Richmond, VHF section team chief; Private First Class Robert De Leo, and Private First Class, radio operators; Private Leo Tinney and Private Jessie Jordon, wireman.

Personnel departing from Headquarters Company include Private First Class Brentone Baughman, teletype repairman; Private First Class William Vogir, navagational equipment repairman; Private First Class Billy Baggett, Private Robert Campbell and Private Pasquale Zinzi, wireman.

Assignments

Lieutenant George C. Dannenberg Jr., a recent graduate of Officer's Orientation Class has joined C Company, of the 57th Infantry. Lieutenant Dannenberg is a graduate of West Virginia University, where he majored in Business Administration.

Lt. Dannenberg, while attending West Virginia, participated in wrestling and football and was a regular on the varsity football squad in 1958 and 1959.

There were two new assignments in the 69th Armor last week. They are Specialist Five Fred B. Mercer, who was assigned to Headquarters Company, and Specialist Five Tobie N. Dodd who was assigned to Company B.

Assignments

Two new officers joined the Ninth Infantry this week. Lt. Lindell Lovellette has been assigned to Company D and Lt. William Wade to Company E.

Recently assigned to the 69th Armor, from Fort Knox, Ky. was Lt. Douglas W. Smith. Lt. Smith, a graduate of Michigan State University, has been assigned to Company B, where he will serve as a platoon leader.

Sergeant First Class Guy Stewart joined the 69th Armor May 1, and was assigned to Company A.

Battery B of the 17th Artillery welcomed three new cadremen recently all of whom possess MOS 140. William R. Dees and William H. Pennington reported from Fort Sill, Okla., where they have just finished Advanced Individual Training in artillery. PFC Theodors J. Crecleur reported from overseas where he was assigned with the 2nd Howitzer Battalion, 34th Artillery.

Departures

The Ninth Infantry lost one officer and four enlisted men this week to other Army installations. Lt. Max Marks, a member of the 9th Infantry instructional team, has departed for the fixed wing flight school at Fort Rucker, Ala. Two men, Sgt. Bennie Adkins and Specialist Four Clarence Fargher of Combat Support Company, have been reassigned to Special Forces at Fort Bragg, N. C.

The other men departing the 9th were SFC Ernest Motley and Specialist Four Adelbert Vanderpool. SFC Motley heads for the Engineer Traning Center at Fort Leonard Wood, Mo. Specialist Vanderpool's next assignment is with the 6th Missile Battalion (HAWK) of the 61st Artillery at Fort Bliss, Texas.

Germany will be the next place of service for SFC Alex Douglas Jr. He is currently enroute to the 2nd Rocket Howitzer Bn., 18th Field Artillery.

SFC Douglas has served with Battery A, 17th Artillery, 17th since it was organized in May 1960. During that time he acted as both a section chief and a platoon leader.

Battery B, 17th Artillery, lost two "old faithfuls" last week as Specialists Four Benedict M. Pacoza and Carl A. Skurdall returned to civilian life. Both soldiers have been with Battery B of the 17th since they completed Advanced Individual Training.

First Sergeant Homer H. Beauchamp will depart the 2nd Engineer Battalion May 17 for the 547th Engineer Battalion in Germany.

Sgt. Beauchamp has an army career that dates back to 1944 and has served previously in Japan, Bremerhaven, Germany, and in the Korean conflict. It was during two tours of combat in Korea that he earned the Korean Service Medal with three bronze stars, the UN Service medal, Combat Infantry Badge, and the Bronze Star.

In a recent letter of recommendation to E-8 grade, Lt. Col. Albro L. Parsons Jr. of the 2nd Engineer Battalion said, "M-Sgt Beauchamp has shown professional competence, resourcefulness, and mature judgment. ... his cooperative manner and his sound judgment in all phases of his job are outstanding."

Sgt. Beauchamp is the father of two sons and two daughters.

The Jig's the Dance For This Irishman

By 15th Arty PIO

If you should see Specialist Four Joseph Verdon suddenly break into an Irish jig, don't be alarmed.

He's Irish, and, what's more, a real champion when it comes to that famous Irish dance.

Before his induction in January 1960, Verdon was a professional dancer in New York and a partner in two Irish dancing schools.

Now a clerk in the 15th Artillery's Headquarters Battery, Verdon's love of dancing dates back to his native Dublin when he was an 11-year old protege with the aspirations of a champion.

Encouraged by his teacher at one of Ireland's most prominent dancing schools, young Verdon began competitive dancing in Dublin and the provincial towns. When he had enough experience under his belt, he was entered in championship class competitions.

'Break'

He earned his first big break in the summer of 1951 when he won a local district championship. He later toured hospitals throughout Dublin, and danced in major theaters and concert houses.

In January 1957, Verdon came to his country to begin his successful dancing in New York competition. One of his "biggest moments" was performing for Robert Briscoe, the then Lord Mayor of Dublin.

After entering the Army, Verdon became an artillery surveyor and was subsequently assigned to the Division's 15th Artillery.

He Pays Return Visit to Unit — After 42 Years

A man who served with 12th Artillery's Battery A during World War I made a return visit to his old unit recently ... and he found at least one familiar sight.

LINGUIST
Ivan Ban

William J. McClanathan of Sherrill, New York, a member of the 12th unit in 1917-1919, stopped off at the unit with his wife and both were given a tour of the battalion area by Lieutenant James L. Covert, battery commander.

Mr. and Mrs. McClanathan ginia, in September 1917.

ate lunch with battery members and were shown numerous old photographs and documents of the period in which he served.

But one photograph stood out prominently. It depicted an old camp site at Fort Myer, Vir-

After some careful screening, Mr. McClanathan located on the photo the very tent in which he slept.

Mr. McClanathan, now retired from his civilian occupation is a member of the 2nd Infantry Division Association.

Rct. Speaks 7 Languages

Yugoslavian, 22, Schooled Himself In Basic Subjects

A 22-year-old trainee with the division's 11th Infantry speaks seven languages, and has a passive knowledge of four others.

Recruit Ivan Ban was born in Yugoslavia, a country of many languages, a fact to which he attributes his linguistic abilities. Deprived of a normal education and forced to attend a trade school, he schooled himself through books in such subjects as psychology, economics, philosophy, geography, history and religion.

At the same time, he attained in the trade school an education considered equal to two to three years of college engineering.

Coming to this country, young Ban worked as a dishwasher, bartender and head waiter in an Oakland, Calif., cafe. As a bartender, he invented and named three cocktails. He became a close friend of several movie stars, among them being Fred MacMurray.

4 Men Reenlist At 13th Trans

Four men of the 13th Transportation Battalion recently reenlisted for a combined total of 15 years.

Heading the list was Sergeant Charles H. Jackson, a squad leader of Company C. He reenlisted for three years and was assigned to Fort Belvoir, Va. Sgt. Jackson, of Burlington, N.J., has over 17 years service.

Sergeant Ronald W. Poteat, a squad leader of Company B, reenlisted for three years and his own vacancy. He is from Danville, Va., and has over eight years service.

Specialist Four Floyd L. Allred of Springdale, Arkansas, reenlisted for six years and was assigned to the 66th Artillery Group, Kansas City, Mo.

Private First Class Clarence L. Johnson, of Xenia, Ohio reenlisted for three years and assignment in Europe.

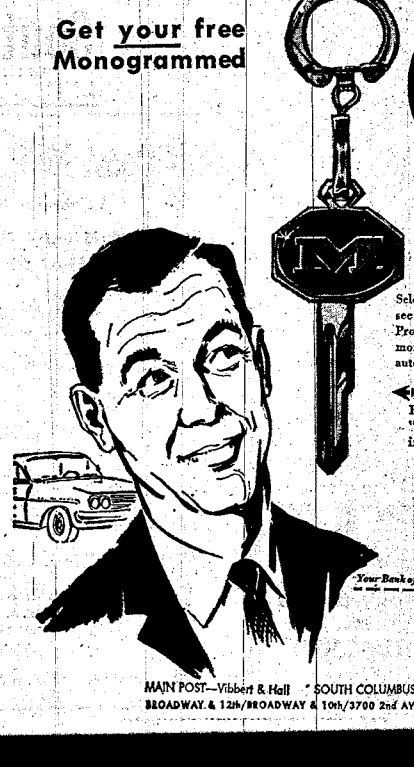
Scout Attended Varied Courses

By Cav PIO

In this day of specialization, it is indeed unusual to find a soldier who makes a practice of generalization.

A soldier in this latter category is Sergeant James R. Bunker, assigned to Troop C, 3rd Reconnaissance Squadron, 7th Cavalry.

Sgt. Bunker, whose home is in Green Bay, Wisconsin, entered the Army in 1952. Since that time, he has attended courses in such diverse subjects as inland waterways navigation, prisoner of war interrogation, aerial photograph interpretation, and skiing school in Alaska; where he was recognized by the Army for skiing 500 miles over variable, rugged terrain.



In addition, Sgt. Bunker was an honor graduate in his class at the 2nd Infantry Division NCO Academy.

The versatility demonstrated by Sgt. Bunker, while not typical, is one of the most desirable characteristics of his military occupational specialty which is military intelligence, or as it is more commonly known, cavalry scouting.

Military specialities are not Sgt. Bunker's only accomplishments. He is also an avid musician who performs professionally on the drums and the steel guitar in his off-duty hours.

'Press Agent'

1st Infantry Trainee Kept Stars Before the Eyes of the Public

PRESS AGENT
Pvt. Ruane

Handled Publicity for Stars Jayne Mansfield, Carmel Quinn

By 1st Inf. PIO

A constant stream of publicity is vital to the career of a show business performer. Even more important is the man behind the star . . . the publicity agent. He is the person who prevents a star from going stale in the public's eyes.

Private Joe Ruane, Company C, 1st Infantry was a "press agent" before entering the service last September. Like the stars he has managed, Ruane didn't become a success overnight.

He began his career while still in high school when a friend got him a job with the Arthur Godfrey show on CBS as a production assistant. A year and a half later, he was elevated to the network's radio press department. He began his schooling in promotion of stars and shows there, with emphasis always on the principle of "free advertising."

This experience netted him a job as researcher on ABC's "Night Beat" starring Mike Wallace. Ruane prepared the questions which made the show a coast to coast sensation.

Soon after, he opened his own publicity office and was fortunate to get some of the top stars as clients. He handled the early publicity for Jayne Mansfield, then appearing on Broadway in "Will Success Spoil Rock Hunter." In quick succession he did publicity for New York disk jockey Art Ford, film star Inger Stevens, singer Frank Parker, fashion model Dovima and singing star Carmel Quinn.

Ruane describes star-publicity as grueling work, compensated by the fees performers will pay for favorable publicity. It is a constant battle to keep a star's face in the newspapers, to have latest records plugged by disk jockeys and have the star's name appear regularly in syndicated gossip columns. All this has to be done with little or no expense to the star.

Ruane was able to overcome one of these publicity problems by receiving free plugs for his clients from columnists in return for gossip items for their columns. He also was a ghost writer for Cindy Adams' gossip column appearing in "The Theatre" magazine.

Until his induction in August, Alderman was a disc jockey-newsman with WTRL in his native Bradenton, Florida, a resort town on the peninsula's west coast. Here, Alderman worked under the trained eye of W. W. Chaplin, the one-time world-famous NBC commentator and foreign correspondent.

Covering a beat that included politics, fast-breaking news events, police and sports, Alderman "button-holed" aspiring gubernatorial candidates, roamed the fairways at golf tournaments and, on one occasion, was the first newsman on the scene at a $1 million fire that reaped national headlines.

During his three years with the Florida station, Alderman also interviewed such well-known personalities as Vaughn Monroe, Al Hibbler and Arty Dunn of the Three Suns.

He Tells Radio-TV Public About 2nd Division Events

By Div PIO

The "voice" of the 2nd Division is a 24-year old Floridian who is as much at home talking with world-famous celebrities as he is with the personalities and news-makers of the "Indianhead" family.

Gordon Alderman, chief of the Information Office's radio-television section, bears the brunt of keeping the civilian community informed, electronically, of the "goings-on" in the "Second to None."

This is carried out, primarily, via two five-minute newscasts per week over a local radio station, WRBL, and on a segment of WTVM's 6:30 p.m. newscast each Friday.

The radio newscasts are recorded in the studio of the Information Office a few hours prior to broadcast, while Alderman's television newscast is "live."

climaxed the tests with a mechanized attack which routed aggressor forces.

Communications played a key role in the tests, with the final counter attack having the appropriate call signs of "flood" and "deluge."

The unit will maintain its combat - ready peak in the months prior to its overseas movement by training each man to perform many jobs within the battle group. More drivers, radio operators and wiremen will be trained, giving added depth to key positions.

Personnel will receive further weapons familiarization and practice firing, as well as instruction on survival in Korean climates.

With the aid of recordings, Korean language instruction will be given to qualified members of the battle group. Nearly one year's training will have been realized when the battle group makes its overseas movement.

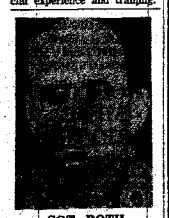
Herpetology 'Interesting, Challenging'

Snake Hobbyist Says Woods Are 'Full of Them'



By 11th Inf PIO

Herpetology is one of the major interests of Sgt. Gary Mosher, a cadre member of Company D, 1st Battle Group of the 11th Infantry.

To most people, this subject—snakes (particularly the poisonous variety) is something to be feared and strictly avoided. But Sgt. Mosher finds it a challenging and interesting specialty. He has learned much of his art under the hand of Capt. Harry N. Ball of the Ranger Attack Committee, a specialist on the subject of snakes.

Since Fort Benning abounds in several varieties of poisonous snakes, and much training is conducted in the field where snakes are a particular hazard, the experience of such cadre members as Sgt. Mosher will be of great value.

Company D, along with its sister companies of the 11th Infantry, has just recently completed its complement of new recruits. During the intensive training in the field which will shortly take place, Sgt. Mosher will be a valuable member of the training cadre, by virtue of his special experience and training.

SGT. ROTH

Roth Promoted To Platoon Sgt. At 'Conquerors'

By 87th Inf PIO

Sergeant First Class Frank L. Roth, Reconnaissance Platoon Sergeant, Combat Support Company 1st Battle Group 87th Infantry, was promoted to Platoon Sergeant on May 1.

Sgt Roth, a veteran of 18 years service, first entered the Army at Ft. Benning in 1941. After completion of basic training, Sgt. Roth was assigned to the 101st Airborne Division at Fort Bragg, North Carolina.

He remained with the 101st throughout the balance of the war. Sgt. Roth jumped at Normandy and in Holland. At the conclusion of hostilities he was discharged in September 1945. He reentered the Army in July of 1947.

After a tour with the 11th Airborne Division in Japan, Sgt. Roth returned to the US. His next assignment was with the 2nd Armored Cavalry Regiment in Germany.

Hat Theme Planned For Wives Club Election Luncheon Meeting

"Les Beaux Chapeaux de Nos Troveaux" (The Hats of Our Work) is the theme of the 2nd Division Officers Wives Club monthly luncheon to be held at 12:30 p.m. on Tuesday, May 9, at the Supper Club.

Each unit within the 2nd Division will make a hat representing one of the projects donated to or carried out by the club during the past year.

The hats will be modeled by representatives of the individual units. Lt. Donald Campbell, a runner-up in the recent Ft. Benning Talent Contest, will sing an appropriate song while each hat is being modeled.

Mrs. Earl R. LeVier, wife of Major LeVier, commanding officer of the 122nd Signal Battalion, is general chairman for the luncheon. Other committee chairmen include menu, Mrs. John W. Mahony and Mrs. John J. Petorock; refreshments, Mrs. Wallace W. Nelson, Mrs. Arnold L. Ross, Mrs. Robert M. Wiggins, Mrs. Fred R. Koerber; reservations, Mrs. Joe L. Hutchins; hostesses, Mrs. Samuel C. Creel and Mrs. Rolle W. Lowery.

This luncheon is the election luncheon. All members of the Wives Club are urged to attend and vote for the candidates of their choice. This is important since the women elected at this time will be the club officers for the coming year.

Cav Group Holds Party At MOOM

The officers and ladies of the 3rd Reconnaissance Squadron, 7th Cavalry recently gathered at the Main Officers Open Mess for a party to bid farewell to three officers and their ladies.

As is a custom in the squadron, a triangular plaque adorned with the armor insignia, 7th Cavalry crest and an engraved plate appropriately stating, "From the officers and ladies of the 3d Recon Sqdn, 7th Cav, to remind you of friends," was presented to those departing.

Receiving these plaques from squadron commander, Lt. Col. Leonard L. Keene, were Lt. and Mrs. William Riddel, Lt. and Mrs. Jimmy D. Allen, and Lt. William F. McGowan.

Lt. and Mrs. Riddel were also presented the traditional "Baby Cup" for their young son born in March. Accompanying this award was the presentation of the "Fathership" award to Lt. Riddel.

Host Dinner

Capt. and Mrs. Dion Johnson entertained several couples for dinner with whom they had been stationed in Alaska at Fort Wainwright (then Ladd AFB) and Elelson AFB when Alaska became the 49th state.

Event of the evening was an imitation of the famous Chena Ice Pool based on the spring break-up in Fairbanks, Alaska. Capt. Johnson suspended a cake of ice on a snow shoe. Mrs. A. Smith was the winner, having guessed closest to the actual time the ice broke.

9th Inf 'E' Ladies Host April Coffee

The ladies of the 9th Infantry, 2nd Battle Group, met on Tuesday, April 25, in the Normandy Room of the Main Officers' Open Mess for their monthly coffee. Hostesses were the ladies of Company E.

Colorful umbrellas and flowers formed a centerpiece on a table overlaid with a white cloth. Ham biscuits, pastries, doughnut centers, assorted fruits, coffee and tea were served.

Mrs. James L. Osgard, wife of the Battle Group Commander, held a short business meeting at which time newcomers were welcomed, including Mrs. Robert K. Gunn, Mrs. Lindell Lovelette, Mrs. Roland Greenwood, Mrs. Douglas C. Morrow, Mrs. Rodney Syczyio, and Mrs. Holland M. Owen.

Farewells were said to Mrs. Max G. Marks. Mrs. William Ledgerwood introduced the other hostesses which included Mrs. Frank R. Young, Mrs. Max G. Marks, Mrs. Frank J. Gundaker, and Mrs. Howard H. Wilson.

Captain James M. Bartosh, 2nd Infantry Division Marksmanship Detachment, gave a brief talk on the .22 caliber pistol and the benefits Army wives would obtain by participating in pistol marksmanship instruction.

He further stated that the 2nd Division was considering initiation of this program providing it receives the enthusiastic support of the division ladies.

The favorable response of all present indicated that the 9th Infantry ladies would give full support to this program.

Artillery Ladies Honor Mrs. C. W. Clapsaddle

Ladies of the 2nd Division Artillery honored Mrs. Clarence W. Clapsaddle Jr. with a tea on Tuesday afternoon April 25, at the Custer Terrace Branch of the Main Officers' Open Mess.

Mrs. Clapsaddle is the wife of Colonel Clarence W. Clapsaddle, Jr., executive officer of Division Artillery, who is being reassigned to Korea. As the ladies arrived they were received by Mrs. William A. Lowe, Mrs. Charles H. White Jr. and Mrs. Clapsaddle.

The tea table was laid with a pink taffeta tablecloth overlaid with cerise nylon tulle gathered at the corners into rosettes with matching satin ribbons. The centerpiece was a five branch silver candelabra filled with tulips, snapdragons and carnations in shades of pink and cerise.

Tea and coffee were served from a silver service and fruit punch from a silver punch bowl. Tea sandwiches, Petits Fours, and pink mints were also served. Ladies who served during the afternoon were, Mrs. Floyd D. Johnson, Jr., Mrs. Francis P. Sheridan, Mrs. Jonathan M. Grant, Mrs. Terence W. Huck, Mrs. Robert J. Craig, Mrs. Donald B. Roof, Mrs. Dillard F. Jones, Mrs. Joseph J. Sokolowski and Mrs. Richard S. Fleming. Guests attending were Mrs. Gustav M. Bachrach and Mrs. Robert E. McGraw.

Mrs. Floyd L. Johnson, Jr. was Chairman of the tea with Mrs. Robert J. Craig as her co-chairman. Other members of the committee were Mrs. John B. Finnegan, Mrs. Francis P. Sheridan, Mrs. Dillard F. Jones and Mrs. Jonathan M. Grant.

ONE ARMY FACT

The unselfish giving on the part of the citizen-soldier is motivated by the memories of men who know the consequences of not being ready. Never have we had such a wealth of experience and devotion in our military establishment. Never have we needed it so much as we do today.

87th Ladies Plan Support Of Orphan

The ladies of the 87th Infantry, at their April coffee, planned to contribute $150 for one year toward the support of some Korean boy or girl in a Korean orphanage.

The action was taken after Mrs. Robert Connor, first lady of the 87th, called on Mrs. F. Hubbard to report on her suggestion of the adoption.

Mrs. Hubbard has contacted the "Save The Children Federation" in Connecticut.

The ladies will receive reports about the child and may correspond with the orphan himself. They also hope that their husbands, who will leave for Korea in January, will be able to visit the child.

"April at Ft. Benning, Showers, Showers", , was the theme by ladies of Company D, hostesses Mmes. G. McKelvine, A. Errickson, R. Finn and R. Villaronga, cleverly demonstrated with the silhouette of a girl poised under a three dimensional umbrella in miniature garden of real flowers.

Cook Of The Week

Our cook this week is Ruby Morales, wife of Mariano Morales, bandmaster of the 2nd Division Band. Ruby has one daughter, Vicki, who is twelve. The Morales family live at 545 A North Valdez in Custer Terrace.

Ruby's main interest centers around her work as president of the Ballet Guild of Columbus and chairman of the 2nd Division Officers Wives Club Dancing School. These activities don't leave her much time for anything else, but she does manage to get in a little bridge and bowling.

Stuffed Cornish Hens

6 (14 to 16 ounce) Rock Cornish Hens
2½ tablespoons salt
2½ cubes of ½" soft bread cubes
2½ teaspoons thyme
2½ teaspoons tarragon
½ teaspoon celery
½ teaspoon pepper
2-3 cup minced onion
1½ cup butter or margarine, melted
½ cup water
Melted butter or shortening for basting

Thoroughly wash and dry Cornish hens, inside and out. Rub inside of cavity of each with ½ tsp. Salt. Combine soft bread cubes, remaining salt, thyme, tarragon, savory, and pepper. Add onions and water to bread mixture and toss together lightly (onions should be sauteed in butter). Stuff cavity of each hen with about 1 cup stuffing. Skewer openings together. Brush outside of hens with melted butter, place on rack set in shallow pan and bake in slow oven (325 F. until tender, or about 1 hour and 15 minutes, brushing with additional butter as needed. Serve with gravy.

Gravy

2 tablespoons butter or margarine
½ cup flour
2½ cups water
½ cup dry white wine
½ (4 ounce can mushrooms (stems and pieces)
2 tablespoons chopped parsley
1 tablespoon chopped onion
½ teaspoon paprika
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 cup creamed sour cream

Melt butter in one quart saucepan. Gradually add flour and blend. Combine water and wine and add to butter mixture, a small amount at a time, stirring constantly. Cook slowly, stirring all the time, until mixture is thick and smooth. Add mushrooms, including juice, parsley, onions, paprika, salt and pepper. Just before serving add sour cream and reheat. Makes 3½ cups gravy.

American Indian Trains With 11th

By 11th Inf PIO

A "full-blooded" American Indian is now undergoing Basic Combat Training with the 11th Infantry.

He is Recruit Charles Jake, born in Pawnee, Oklahoma. A graduate of Arkansas City Junior College, he majored in physical education. He attended this college under a government grant, awarded for his excellent achievements while at the government Indian High School.

After the Army, Jake plans to return to sports, "preferably to coach in the Southwest."

Gunfights Became 'Just Routine' In This Man's Everyday Life

STUNT MAN
Pvt. Pool

By PETER TATISTCHEFF

"I have died in four bar-room scenes, been wounded or killed in at least 100 street scenes, and have been in too many stage fights to mention," says Recruit James R. Pool, stunt man-turned-spidier.

Pool, presently taking advanced training with Battery B, 12th Artillery, had accumulated a long list of achievements connected with television before he enlisted last fall. He began as a ventriloquist, appearing frequently on KMID-TV in Midland, Texas, his home town television station.

One summer he started to get a summer job at Rimrock City, a "western" town and popular Texas tourist attraction. While searching for work as a ventriloquist he witnessed staged gunfights and became interested in the local Fast Draw Club.

He bought himself a .22 pistol and began training. He later returned to the pioneer town for fall and fight training with local stunt men, and soon found himself performing regularly in the exhibitions.

First Chance

Ambition and intensive training finally landed him his first chance at serious work when Edward C. Platte, a versatile actor, became interested in him and brought him to California to witness stunts being filmed.

"I visited sets every day so that people would notice me. I got a chance to show off once by falling backwards off a balcony onto a trampoline. Someone asked me if I could do that again and I did. After that little demonstration they began giving me little parts to play in actual films."

Pool took the name Billy Ward and with the help of Ed Platte, performed in the filming of such shows as Wagon Train, Bonanza and The Rebel. It was in The Rebel that he became most useful, this because of his resemblance to the star of the show.

Stunt Man

"A stunt man is someone who is trained to do nothing but stunts. He makes the action of the scene come out. If the action calls for the star to be picked up and thrown against the wall in a fight, he may throw a few punches but then the cameras are stopped, the star will leave, and I step into his position and get thrown against the wall until the director thinks the action is right. Some actors do their own stunts but usually people like myself have to fill in."

Pool, 18 years old, has been performing stunts for the past four years. He looks forward to a continued career after his hitch with the Army.

"I hope to be able to perform while I'm in the Army. My parents are sending my dummy so that I can practice my ventriloquist act here."

Three Georgia Towns to Utilize Div Men in Armed Forces Day

Men and machines from the 2nd Infantry Division have been scheduled to participate in Armed Forces Day observances of three Georgia cities.

First of the three observances is to be held at Milledgeville, Ga., May 14, where a static display from Division Artillery will be set up.

The display is to consist of a 105mm howitzer from the 37th Artillery and an Honest John missile from the 12th Artillery.

A rifle company from the 1st Infantry, along with a rocket launcher, machine guns, radios and mortars, are to be in an Athens, Ga., observance, May 16.

At the Armed Forces Day parade at Albany, Ga., May 20, a rifle company from the 1st Infantry is scheduled to participate along with the 2nd Infantry Division Band.

9th Initiates TI Class On Army Law, Justice

By 9th Inf. PIO

In order to give its trainees a more thorough understanding of the Army and the Army way of life, the 9th Infantry has initiated a special troop information class on the many aspects of Army law and justice.

Given the first day of each incoming Advanced Individual Training Cycle, the special class is scheduled either during the cycle's first troop information period or during company commander's time. The class is given by Lieutenant Warren Dunnington, the 9th Infantry's Courts and Boards Officer.

The special class covers the Army courts martial system and delves at length into the several different types of discharges and the ramifications of each type of discharge on the individual's receiving them.

The class points out that the trainee should strive to become good soldiers as possible and not get into trouble or absent themselves without proper authority.

Understanding

The 9th Infantry's battle group commander, Colonel James L. Osgard, had the class instituted with the present Combat Support Company cycle. Lieutenant Fred Bauer, a member of the Division Staff Judge Advocate section, presented the first class to the Combat Support group. Colonel Osgard felt such a class would increase the trainee's knowledge of military affairs and his understanding of Army justice.

The class was instituted as a result of the battle group April Character Guidance Council meeting during which trainee problems were investigated and discussed.

NCO Club Team Wins Keglers League Honors

By MP PIO

The 2nd Division NCO Open Mess bowling team has just completed a winning season in the Keglers Handicap League at the Baker Village Bowling Center, capturing first place.

All the members of the team are personnel of the division's Military Police Detachment.

Winners of the first half of league play, the Military Police rolled against the second-half winners, recently to gain the league championship.

The three-game play-off was a rugged battle in which the pin-fall total seesawed back and forth to remain undecided until the tenth frame of the third game when the Military Police sneaked out a four pin victory to become the league champions.

The division NCO club team received the first place team trophy and all team members received first place individual trophies. In addition to these John Nielsen received a trophy for having the league's highest average—183. Richard C. Guscott received the high game trophy for the high game of 246, the best in the Keglers League.

In the three game roll-off, Nielsen rolled a 563 series followed by Guscott with 524; Royal Souther, 489; Robert Schultz, 227; Douglas Newkirk, 286; and George Kenney with a 274, and a handicap total of 239 which accounted for the team's total pin-fall of 2702.

Former Boxer Now Puts Men to Sleep Differently

By 23rd Inf PIO

Warrant Officer Clarence Young Jr., a former boxer who used to put men to sleep by flattening them on the canvas, is now in charge of providing troops with more comfortable and pleasant quarters at the 23rd Infantry.

The personable warrant officer began boxing at his Fayetteville, North Carolina, high school in 1943, when he entered a Golden Gloves contest. His record as a pugilist includes several ring bouts at Fort Benning as well as professional encounters in the lightweight division before he hung up his gloves in 1956.

Mr. Young has 14 years' military service behind him, having entered the Air Force in 1946 and served with the 368th Bomber Squadron until 1949. At that time he left the Air Force and enrolled at Worth's College in Fayetteville, where he studied accounting.

He joined the Army in 1951 and was assigned to the Infantry School Battalion at Fort Benning. From 1956 to 1958 he was attached to G-4 Section of the 8th Army in Korea, then was re-assigned to the Infantry School Battalion.

Mr. Young, a former Master Sergeant, applied for his warrant officer commission in 1960 and was promoted to W-1 on March 20. He was assigned to S-4 of the 23rd Infantry in April. Prior to his promotion and transfer to S-4 Mr. Young's major field was in infantry operations and reconnaissance.

He is married to a Columbus girl, the former Nell Jones.

Rain Out Gives Manchu Squad More Practice

By 9th Inf. PIO

The scheduled opening contest of the season between the 9th Infantry and Division Artillery May 1 fell victim to the elements as rain washed out the initial games of the 2nd Division Softball Tournament.

The 9th Infantry was scheduled against the 87th Infantry in a contest last night at Kelley Hill. The Ninth's coach, Lt. Max Powell, took advantage of the delay and had the 9th's softball squad intensify their practice Tuesday. Lt. Powell expected to start the 9th's fireballing righthander, Lt. Billy White, against the 87th crew.

Top Coach

Bud Wilkinson of Oklahoma has the highest winning percentage of any active college football coach. His teams have won 114, lost 10 and tied three for a .919 percentage.

Softball Tourney Opening Halted Due to Deluge

By Div. PIO

The hot and heavy action predicted in the opening of the 2nd Division Softball Tournament last Monday night turned out to be cool and light as a late afternoon downpour washed out all games—they were cancelled.

The Monday night opening games, a slate of four, were re-scheduled for Wednesday night with the Thursday night's encounters to be played as scheduled, according to the division's Special Services office.

MVP Winners

Stan Musial and Roy Campanella have each won the National league Most Valuable Player Award three times.

Troop 37 Scouts Show Winning Model Campsite

By Dir PIO

At a recent Scouting exposition in the Municipal Auditorium two life scouts from Fort Benning's Troop 37 took first prize with a model campsite.

The model is a recreation of Camp McKenzie where the scouts hold their annual camping trip.

Darrell Fuller, son of Lt. Col. Theodore Fuller of the Infantry School, and Lee Whitcomb, son of Captain Francis Whitcomb of 12th Artillery, spent two months planning and executing this project.

It includes a parking lot, four barracks (complete with bunk beds), a trading post, tents for the staff to sleep in, a mess hall, and a latrine.

Showing the facilities that such camps afford for physical exercise and training in sports, the boys built an obstacle course, an archery range, .22 rifle range, and a lake for swimming, canoeing, and boating.

Competition

Under the careful supervision of Homer Rhoads and his assistant, Sergeant Gregory T. McCabe, the scouts spend a week each summer at such a camp. The boys exercise and live in a spirit of friendly competition.

The winning model campsite, intricately constructed from logs and stones, also was displayed during Boy Scout Week at Kiddieland. It was christened "Camp Cedar Tree."

On two different occasions recently I've heard post fishermen groveling about the treatment received at the hands of pleasure boaters on the backwaters.

According to one group they were the victims of a pilot who deliberately changed his course so as to catch them with his wake — not once but twice.

On the second pass this fellow caused another fisherman to paddle his tiny craft in frantic effort to avoid being capsized and possible loss of all his gear—and his life. All protests were met by a derisive yell from the tormentor.

The second occasion dealt with the actions, unintentional or otherwise, of youthful water skiers who go about their own sport with little or no regard for other boaters.

Consensus of the two groups was that the same controls exercised on our highways should be applied to our waterways as well . . . that the same courtesies which are expected from the careful motorist should be extended by operators of all watercraft.

Some eight million Americans now own boats and are being urged by the National Safety Council to absorb and follow the recommendations of the Coast Guard's "Recreational Boating Guide". This Guide may be procured from the Government Printing Office, Washington, for 40 cents and should be in every boat kit.

Now — let's go back to the unknown fisherman who had to paddle furiously for shore. — Could it have been that his inability to swim lent strength to his churning strokes?

A positive answer to this question is the sort of thing which our post Safety Director, Special Services personnel and our Red Cross officials are trying to eliminate through their joint water safety program which is now under way.

Whether you're a swimmer, diver, skin-diver, water skier, fisherman, boater, devotee of water polo or just an up-to-the-knees wader, you should know how to swim or swim better . . . for your own safety's sake.

Take the man who had the whole transom of his boat fall out, motor and all, for example. Word is that had he not known how to cope with a predicament which happened to a split second the Chattahoochee might have marked up one more. At that, he was more than glad to receive the quick assistance of other fishermen.

We know that the various water sports offer numerous hazards all of which can be licked through know-how available to anyone who wants to learn. The most difficult hazards to beat stem from the human elements — ignorance, inexperience, selfishness, carelessness and, above all, the mental deficiencies of those of the type we mention above — people who'd deliberately endanger others on the water and laugh about it.

Capt. Leaton C. Cofield Was Named Head Coach of Post Football Squad

Capt. Leaton C. Cofield has been named head coach of the Fort Benning Doughboy Football Team for the 1961 season.

He comes to the post from Brooke Army Medical Center at Fort Sam Houston, Texas.

The new Doughboy mentor, for the past three years, has been coach of the Brooke Army Medical Center Comets, who during the 1960 gridiron season climaxed his tour there with an undefeated 9-0 season.

Among the teams his squad defeated were Fort Benning, 27-20, and a host of service and non - service college teams throughout the Southwest.

Sports officials at Brooke Army Medical Center will not field a football squad this fall.

Capt. Cofield is on temporary duty with the Army Medical Service School at Fort Sam Houston, and is expected to arrive here at Fort Benning June 23. He will be assigned to duty with the 2nd Infantry Division.

Coaching the 86th Infantry Crusaders from 1955 to 1957, he directed his team to one European service championship and to the semifinals in the other seasons for a three-year record overseas of 27 wins, one loss and three ties.

The Doughboy mentor has tallied 50 wins, five losses and three ties coaching Army teams.

Capt. Cofield made All-State player while playing high school football for Jet High. He was graduated from Phillips University at Enid, Okla., with a master's degree in physical education.

'Go-Getters' Notch Post Championship in Bowling

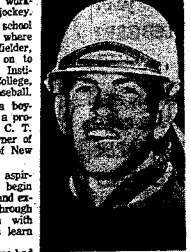
The Go-Getters notched the championship in the Fort Benning NCO Wives Bowling League recently, winning 79 games while dropping only 41.

The Top Hatters took runner-up honors.

Members of the winning team were Helen Pettingill, Dell Andrews, May Harden, Ann Bullard and Wanda Klarner.

Runner-up team members were Mareen Krilling, Maria Hunt, Edith Emerson, Lale Chaffin and Clem Graham.

Awards to the championship team were made last Monday at the Fort Benning Bowling Center.



Clem Graham won the high game without handicap award. Helen Pettingill was high with handicap award winner.

Wanda Klarner collected the trophy for the highest series without handicap. Lois Walding rolled the high series with handicap to cop that class honors.

Maria Hunt was awarded the trophy for the high average. Connie Hatfield was named the Most Improved Bowler in the league.

Seven ladies turned in games of 200 or more. Bowling their way into the elite circle were Dell Andrews, Maria Hunt, Mareen Krilling, Helen Pettingill, Wanda Klarner, Clem Graham and Lois Walding.

PFC SILVERTHORNE

Pfc Bobby R. Silverthorne, Headquarters Company, 1st Infantry Brigade, is no slacker when it comes to horses! The 23 year old 5'2" mighty mite has spent a considerable period of his civilian life working as a professional jockey.

After completing high school in Richmond, Virginia, where he was an all-state outfielder, Pfc Silverthorne went on to Richmond Professional Institute and East Carolina College, where he starred in baseball.

In 1958 he fulfilled a boyhood dream by signing a professional contract with C. T. Chenery, millionaire owner of Meadow Stables Inc., of New York and Virginia.

As is the way of all aspiring jockeys, he had to begin his career by breaking and exercising horses. It is through such close association with horses that all jockeys learn of this demanding sport.

In 1958, Pfc Silverthorne had the distinction of breaking and exercising exclusively, First Landing, the leading two-year-old money winner of that year, whose earnings amounted to over $397,000 — an all-time two-year-old record. The total earnings of Meadow Stables amounted to $900,000.

In May 1959, Silverthorne made his jockey debut at Delaware Park, in Delaware, riding and winning on a horse named Salt Lake. He continued his winning ways, chalking up 16 firsts in his young career, until a tragic accident temporarily halted his racing ambitions.

A two year old fillie named Openview reared and fell while in the starting gate at Delaware Park, crushing him beneath it. This incident cost him six painful months in the hospital.

After recovering from his injuries, he signed with A. F. Allen Warwick Stables of Richmond. He wasted little time regaining his winning form as he accumulated some 25 wins at Charleston and Shenandoah in West Virginia, and Glenmore Park, Deep Run and Camp Town in Virginia.

Tennis Tournament Scheduled for June

The 1961 Infantry Center Tennis Tournament will be conducted at the Main Officers' Open Mess Tennis Courts June 5 to 12.

Deadline for entries is May 29.

All active duty male and female military personnel are eligible to enter the competition, which will be divided into three divisions.

Entries, which will be submitted on an individual basis, may be obtained from the Main Officers' Open Mess Tennis Pro Shop and the Athletic Department in Briant Wells Field House. Completed forms may be returned to either place.

The 1961 U. S. Lawn Tennis Rules will govern play in the three divisions, Men's Open, Men's Senior and Women's Singles and doubles eliminations will be held in each group.

To be eligible for the Men's Senior Division, a participant must be 40 years of age before June 1. Entries over 40 who wish to compete in the Men's Open Division may do so.

Best two out of three sets will highlight the single elimination tournament in preliminary play. The semi-finals and finals in the Men's Open Singles and doubles division will consist of best three of five game sets.

Retired military personnel may enter the tournament as an added entry. Contestants will furnish their own equipment except for the tennis balls, which will be furnished by The Infantry Center Special Services Office.

A meeting of entries will be held in Briant Wells Field House June 1 at 2 p.m.

Post Pools Will Open Tomorrow

Fort Benning's four outdoor swimming pools will officially open tomorrow with brief ceremonies at the new Carey Pool.

Featured in the opening ceremonies will be the official opening of Carey Pool, which will also serve as opening ceremonies for all the outdoor pools and the indoor pool at Briant Wells Field House.

The grand opening will start at 10 a.m. with the cutting of the traditional ribbon and a 20 minute show, which includes a comedy diving exhibition, will be staged.

The four outdoor pools swinging into action for the summer are Carey Pool, Harmony Church Pool, Sand Hill Pool and the Officers' Mess Pool.

Hours of the pools will be from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. daily.

E-8 FAUST

MSgt. Raymond R. Faust, recently promoted to E-8, enlisted in the Army at Fort Benning in February, 1937. After his initial processing, he was transferred to the Panama Canal Zone where he took his basic training, and was then assigned to Company A, 11th Engineers.

In January, 1940, he was assigned to the Station Hospital at Fort Barrancas, Fla. He was operations sergeant at this assignment.

He then went to the Infantry Replacement Battalion, Camp Walters, Texas, as a platoon sergeant in May, 1942. He was promoted to master sergeant on July 5, 1942.

Serving as sergeant major, he then joined the Engineer Replacement Battalion at Camp Claiborne, La., in December, 1942.

Returning to the Zone of Interior in October, 1945, he joined the 82nd Airborne Division at Fort Bragg as first sergeant for Company A, 307th Airborne Engineer Battalion.

In May, 1946, he returned for his first assignment to Fort Benning with the 1290 Engineer Combat Battalion as first sergeant.

June, 1947, saw him transferring to the 9th Infantry Training Division at Fort Dix, where he was division personnel morning report sergeant major until his departure for Europe in June, 1949.

He was assigned to the Purchasing and Contracting Section as chief clerk of the small purchasing section in April, 1958, where he edited and audited an average of 1700 actions a month.

His unit of assignment since his return in April, 1958, has been Company C, 1st Battalion, Infantry Center Troop Command.

Reception Station Is Relocated

Fort Benning's Infantry Center Reception Station moved to new quarters in the Lawson Army Aviation Command area on Hemingway Road near the 151st Engineer Group last weekend.

The new temporary location is adjacent to the facility's permanent buildings, which are being renovated. The headquarters is in Building 2315.

The Reception Station opened last December in the Harmony Church area. It processes inductees and enlistees for the 2nd Infantry Division at the post. They come for initial processing from Georgia, Florida, Alabama and Mississippi, spending an average of three to four days at the activity.

Lt. Col. Howard F. Munford commands the station.

On Amphibious Landings

Marine Demonstrations Slated for TIS Classes

An eight-man team from the Marine Corps Schools, Quantico, Va., will give a presentation May 11 and 12 on amphibious landings to students attending The Infantry School's officer career classes.

Lt. Col. David Cleeland, chief of the Landing Force Instruction Team, will head the visitors. He will be accompanied by Major E. A. Trageton, Jr., Major G. E. Shepherd, Major K. E. Turner, Capt. T. J. Kelly, Sgt. W. I. Patterson, Cpl. J. V. Shaughnessy Jr., and Cpl. John Senamo.

They will speak in the Main Theater from 8 a.m. to noon each of the two days. The discussion will deal with present planning and operational procedures for an amphibious operation in the future, with particular emphasis on employment of helicopterborne forces. The landings considered by the team will be at the regimental combat team-air group level.

The visitors will arrive at the post at 11:30 a.m. May 10. Team officers will be honored at an official luncheon the following day in the Main Officers' Open Mess, hosted by Col. Richard W. Keyes, director of The Infantry School's Command and Staff Department.

They will leave Fort Benning at 2 p.m. May 14.

Lt. Col. Victor A. Kleber Jr., Marine Corps liaison officer at The Infantry School, is in charge of arrangements for the visit.

Four Post Youths To Baker High Student Council

Of the five newly elected officers of Baker High School Student Council in Columbus, three are children of military personnel and the father of a fourth is a civilian employee of the post.

They are Herbert J. Roberts, Jr., son of MSgt and Mrs. Herbert J. Roberts, president; Lloyd Heekin, daughter of Lt. Col. and Mrs. David P. Heekin, secretary; Melba Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William C. Brown, treasurer, and Angie Holley, daughter of WO (Ret.) and Mrs. Charlie L. King, historian.

All are juniors with the exception of Lloyd Heekin. She is the first freshman ever elected to a top position on the Baker Student Council.

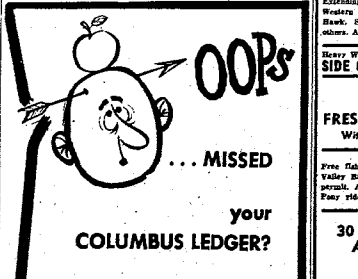
Army States Position on AF Plans

The Department of the Army has officially announced its position on the USAF Airlift modernization program by supporting as realistic and constructive the Fiscal Year '61 and Fiscal Year '62 programs. These programs are aimed at modernizing the strategical and tactical airlift fleets.



The Army supports recent decisions to develop, test and procure the C-141. This aircraft, under development by Lockheed Aircraft Corporation, is a pure jet strategic transport with expected performance characteristics to exceed those of present day "off-the-shelf" aircraft. The Army accepts the determination of the Air Force that the immediate procurement of C-130E(Turboprop) and C-135 (military version of the Boeing 707 pure jet transport) is the most feasible solution to augment our strategic airlift capability at this time.

However, the Army feels that the C-130E more closely meets the requirements for an interim strategic transport that can be procured on an "off-the-shelf" basis as it has good short field characteristics, inter-continental range and wide loading doors that will accomodate heavy equipment and large vehicles.

The Army feels that the C-135 will benefit the military personnel airlift potential because of its comparative passenger payload, speed and range capabilities.

However, the Army is cognizant of the long runway requirements of this aircraft which will restrict its utilization in global military deployments.

The Army supports the Air Force decision to procure additional C-130B tactical transports to modernize the troop carrier squadrons and to replace the C-123 tactical assault aircraft of the Tactical Air Command. The C-130B is an improved version of the C-130A turboprop aircraft with larger engines, a longer fuselage and overall performance advances.

James Tilton Wins Merit Scholarship

James T. Tilton, son of Sfc and Mrs. Keith Tilton of Fort Benning, has been named one of the 19 Georgia high school seniors to receive a National Merit Scholarship.

The 1,000 Merit Scholars selected throughout the country this year will receive four-year scholarships to the college of their choice. They were chosen from nearly 10,000 finalists on the basis of standing on the National Merit examination, College Entrance Board tests and personal records of achievement.

Tilton will major in business administration at Duke University. The scholarships vary from $100 to $1,500 for each of four years. Tilton will receive $1,500 annually.

The 17-year-old student at Baker High School in Columbus, has been the recipient of numerous other honors during the past year.

He will relinquish a Naval Reserve Officers Training Corps Scholarship, valued at $7,500, which was announced earlier this month.

Tilton was named "Boy of the Year" by the Columbus Optimist Club in January. He ranks first in his class and achieved the highest score on the National Merit test of any student in Muscogee County.

He has served as president of the Baker Student Council, Key Club and Junior Class and has been a member of the varsity football, basketball and track teams. Baker Debate Team, Teen-Age Grand Jury, Latin Club, "B" Club, Thespian Society and school annual business staff. He also was the school's "Voice of Democracy" winner.

In the annual school voting, Tilton was named "Best All-Around," "Most Representative Boy" and "Boy Most Likely to Succeed."

In February he was chosen winner of the Student-Teacher Achievement Recognition program at Baker. The STAR awards, sponsored by the Georgia State Chamber of Commerce and local Chamber, are based on the combined scores made on the literary and mathematics sections of the College Board examinations taken by all seniors who plan to enter college.

He has attended Baker since February, 1957, when his father was assigned to Lawson Army Aviation Command. Sfc. Tilton served 13 months in Korea in 1959-1960 while his family remained in Columbus. He is again stationed at Lawson Command, serving as budget NCO of the S-4 Section.

TIS Officer Set To Attend College Under 'Bootstrap'

Capt. Ferdinand Q. Epps is scheduled to depart the post May 15 to attend Mississippi Southern College at Hattiesburg, under the provisions of the Army's Operation Bootstrap.

A member of The Infantry School's Communication Department, Capt. Epps is an instructor on the Tactical Subcommittee of the department's Operations Committee.

Operation Bootstrap is a plan under which officers who lack only a few months study to qualify for an academic degree may spend the time in residence at the school of their choice.

Masquers--Unmasked

Great doings at "The Masquers" these days. "The Girls in 509" has been cast with the following people in the line-up: Aunt Hettie by Cecile M. Stafford; Mimsie, by Kathleen Legare; "Old Jim", by Dwight "Wes" Carr; Ryan of the Daily News, Steve Lebow; Pusey, the professor turned reporter, Dick Weeks; Miss Freud, by Margo Carter; Winthrop Allen by John Hofues; Summers of the Herald Tribune by Douglas Moir; Johnson of the Daily Mirror by Charles Pariso; Rosenthal of the New York Post by Glenn Gray; Francis X. Nella by John Hofues; Aubrey McKittredge by John Olbry; the understudy for Pusey and "Old Jim" will be Elliott Paul.

Elliott Paul, a very talented newcomer to the group, will also act as stage manager. Director for the play is Phyllis Tritsch. The first rehearsal has been called for Monday, May 1, at the Masquers Playhouse.

The Drama Workshop has been gaining in membership since its first meeting last week, with over 25 members participating.

Vincent De Dario is Chairman and instructor for the group. The Workshop will meet two nights a week, alternating with the rehearsals of "The Girls in 509".

There is a great deal of enthusiasm in this shop and also in the radio play group, which will meet once a week.

The Masquers have been given the privilege of giving a play on radio over WMAH every week. Paul Carpenter, president of The Masquers is meeting with the manager of WMAH to set up times and dates. Some of these radio plays will be taped up ahead which is good as the members of The Masquers are working people for the most part during the daytime.

All members of the garrison are eligible to become active members of The Masquers as are civil service employees on post and their dependents.

The Playhouse will be open every evening after 7:30 p.m., so join up in any capacity. Phone number of the Masquers Playhouse is 52468, place is Building 1045 in the Old Hospital Area. Your reporter each week will be Joe Ritchie.

Jim Lesko continues as technical director with Karlis Zobs doing the Lighting.

BOOKS in REVIEW

PEACE WITH JUSTICE by Dwight D. Eisenhower. (Columbia Univ., 1961.)

Principal addresses by Eisenhower in this last decade. Beginning with an address on world peace, delivered at Columbia University in March, 1950, this concludes with the 'Peace through Justice' speech to United Nations in September, 1960.

JAPANESE INN by Oliver Statler, (Random House, 1961)

A mixture of great moments from Japanese history with the special dramatic history of one tradition-laden spot in Japan, an old rural inn, the Misaguchi-ya at Okitsu, 100 miles south of Tokyo. The family story of the generations who have tended the inn since the 6th century is told side by side with the stories of the shift in rule, the pilgrimages, a bloody vendetta (of the 47 ronin), the drawings by a famous artist (Haroshige) and the political intrigues.

HERE, KELLER — TRAIN THIS by George Keller. (Random House, 96)

The author a college professor who had always loved animals, finally broke completely away from education to make his life show business only. This led to divorce, to travel the country over, to Disneyland, vaudeville — and the big time with Ringling Brothers-Barnum and Bailey. Filled with anecdotes of his animal performers, with details about his particular method of training, with dangerous incidents.

Rangers Set For Big Show

"Rangers in Action" will be demonstrated at the Armed Forces Week exhibition of the Military District of Washington May 12 through 14 by a 22-man team from The Infantry School's Ranger Department.

Some 300,000 people, including the President and other high officials, are expected to view the show at Andrews Air Force Base, Va.

Major Stewart C. Moody, instructor in The Infantry School's Command and Staff Department, has been selected to narrate the Army portion of the presentation by all the services.

Chief of the Ranger team will be Major Christopher M. Gooch Jr., chairman of the Ranger Department's Combat Conditioning Committee.

He will be assisted by 1st Lt. John W. Fess and 1st Lt. Robert L. Drudik as narrators, Capt. Harry N. Ball, reptile expert, and 18 enlisted men.

Eighteen special showcases displaying poisonous and non-poisonous varieties of snakes, "Bull," the alligator, turtles and a gallery of pictures showing Ranger training will be open to the public throughout the exhibition. In addition, the Ranger group will present three Ranger shows daily.

The Ranger show will encompass hand-to-hand combat, bayonet and knife disarming, survival methods in jungle, swamp and when waterborne and mountaineering techniques. Utilization of readily available material such as pine branches for food, fuel, shelter and smoking out insects will be explained. Also the reptiles will be displayed and Ranger confidence tests outlined.

The Ranger team will leave Lawson Field in two AC 1 Caribou planes May 10. The aircraft, one from the 1st Aviation Company, Lawson Army Aviation Command, and the other from the Army Aviation Center, Fort Rucker, will be utilized in a fly-by and a static display at the manmoth exhibition. The party will return May 14.

Major Gooch will go to Washington May 8 to coordinate the presentation. Also attending the Ranger demonstration will be Col. Bernard G. Teeters, director of the Ranger Department.

Other participants in the MDW Armed Forces Week celebration will include nine H-1 helicopters from the 2nd Infantry Division Aviation Company as demonstration aircraft and an H-4 helicopter from Lawson in logistical support.

POLLOCK

REID

Mrs. Gayle H. Pollock is a voucher examiner with the Finance Section at main post. She has been with her present job for over four years, and has received two Letters of Application for her work during that time.

The main duties she handles as a voucher examiner include computing travel pay, travel time, checking vouchers and correcting errors on vouchers.

A native of Headland, Ala., Mrs. Pollock is a graduate of Baker High School in Columbus, where she now resides.

Mr. Phillip D. Reid is the supervisor of the ID card branch with the Signal Photo section at Fort Benning.

Before starting to work with the Signal section he worked with The Infantry School's Department of Nonresident Instruction, from 1950-53, and then with the Army Emergency Relief (AER) section, from 1953-55.

As supervisor of the ID card branch, Mr. Reid is in charge of supervising all ID cards for active duty, inactive and civilian personnel in the Fort Benning area.

A native of Columbus and a graduate of Jordan Vocational High School, he served with the Army from April, 1945, to September, 1947.

INSTALLS BOMB SHELTER

Jack Kelly, star of Warner Bros., "Maverick" series on ABC-TV, looked at model bomb shelters over weekend, plans to install one at his home.

Sp5 Kaiser's Problem Column

DEAR VERNON: The other day, I heard my CO say that he had gotten an RBI. I wasn't aware that CO's played baseball. Is this a common practice? RBI

DEAR RBI: Your CO probably wasn't playing baseball.

DEAR VERNON: My proficiency pay test is due next month. I have not performed all phases of my MOS, therefore I do not feel I could pass the test without help. How can I get this help? POTENTIAL PL

DEAR POTENTIAL PL: Even though you have not performed all phases of your MOS, if you will see your first sergeant I'm sure he will see that you get the necessary help you need.

DEAR VERNON: My MOS is 1622.2201 — Band Leader. Am I authorized to wear green tabs? GREEN TABS

DEAR GREEN TABS: Yes — but only on underwear, pajamas or civilian clothes.

DEAR VERNON: I enjoy, and try to play an honest game of golf. However one of my buddies I usually play with, keeps taking off strokes at his convenience. What can I do to stop him of this? GOLFER

DEAR GOLFER: Do unto him what he is doing unto you.

DEAR VERNON: Prior to being drafted, my civilian occupation was a taxi driver. Now that I have completed basic, I have been put in a mess hall as a cook. Is there anything I can do to get out of the mess hall and into the motor pool? EX-TAXI DRIVER

DEAR EX-TAXI DRIVER: No, the Army places men where they are best qualified.

Canadian Briefed

Col. Peter Richard Bingham, director of Infantry, Army Headquarters, Ottawa, Canada, was briefed on new developments at The Infantry School and Infantry Board last week.

Ranger Speaker

Major Austin J. Yerks Jr., chairman of the Defense Committee of The Infantry School's Ranger Department, spoke at the May 1 luncheon of the Columbus Optimist Club at the Ralston Hotel. "Ranger Training" was his topic. The presentation included a film portraying highlights of the training tasks tackled by Ranger students.

Sandra Lee Taylor's Report Card . . .

A boy who has a great many claims to fame, and a great deal of personality and versatility is today's "Report Card" subject. Jim Tilton, senior, from Baker High School shines out with a host of honors to his credit, and many awards to embody his four years at Baker.

Chief among Jim's awards is his recently acquired full four-year National Merit Scholarship to Duke University. Jim won this scholarship because of his high test score on the National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test he took in his junior year, and because he met certain other stipulations. Also because he placed high on the NMSQT, Jim was named STAR student for Baker.

Other Honors

Before receiving his scholarship for Duke, Jim was awarded a Naval ROTC scholarship to Vanderbilt University. Another honor well deserved was the fact that Jim was named "Boy of the Year" for Columbus. Congratulations, Jim!

"I believe", Jim stated emphatically, "that in all my years at high school I have benefitted most from my participation in extra-curricular activities.

"I feel that by participation in activities such as these a person gains a lot of experience and many friends, and certainly becomes more well-rounded!"

On this subject, Jim could honestly speak with the "voice of experience," since he has participated in so many extra-curricular activities during his high school years.

Council President

Presently, Jim is serving as president of the BHS Student Council, a post to which he was elected during his junior year.

He is a member of the Key Club, the Baker Hi-Y Club, the National Honor Society, the Thespians Society. Having lettered in football for two years he is also a member of the "B" Club.

As a debater on Baker's Debating Team, Jim and three other seniors recently traveled to Emory University in Atlanta for a series of debates. Out of four debates Jim and his colleagues lost once. At the "Mock Trial" held in observance of "Law Day", Jim served as the defendant. He was selected for this portray-al since he is a member of the Columbus Teen-Age Grand Jury.

Traveled Too

Last summer Jim was a representative to Boy's State in Atlanta. During his junior year, he served his class as president. As a delegate to the Key Club Convention held in Toronto, Canada during his sophomore year, Jim placed third in an impromptu essay contest. Also during his freshman and sophomore year, Jim was a Latin Club member.

Jim and his parents, Sfc and Mrs. Keith Tilton, and his five brothers and sisters, who range in age from 19 years to 15 months, have lived also in Waterloo, Iowa, where Jim was born, Aberdeen, Md., and Germany.

Jim Tilton is one Benning teenager who can see that hard work pays off — with tangible benefits such as his scholarship, and with less tangible benefits in his satisfaction of a job well done. We are all waiting to hear good things from him as he travels to Duke to use his Merit Scholarship next year!

BSA Merit Badge For Safety Won By Dick Casperini

Richard H. Gasperini, son of Lt. Col. and Mrs. Silvio E. Gasperini, Jr., has been awarded the Safety Merit Badge by the Boy Scouts of America.

The 13-year-old Life Scout of Fort Benning's Troop 127, is in the seventh grade at Holy Family School in Columbus.

Gasperini passed the Safety Merit qualifications for the award and has been qualified by The Infantry Center Safety Office. In being recommended by the Safety Office, the youngster completed a theme on safety on the roads, in the home and general situations.

Reserve Training Conference Set

Lt. Col. Edward B. Craney, chief of The Infantry Center's Reserve Component Section, will attend a Reserve training evaluation conference at Third Army Headquarters May 19.

The conference will be held to establish procedures for evaluating the training of Reservists during their two-week summer training.

Representatives attending the meet will be from Third Army posts which will conduct Reserve training this summer.

Army Savings Bond Program 'Ideal Plan'

An investment expert from the Department of the Army, Col. John R. Fox, described the Army's Savings Bond Program as the "ideal" savings plan for military and civilian personnel in a speech here last week.

Sparking a person-to-person canvass to increase participation in the program at the post, Col. Fox, of the Office of the Chief of Finance, told representatives of units and activities who will conduct the canvass, that "too many in the Army forget to remember that you have got to be a saver before you can be an investor. If you're like many, you can't save more than $300 per year, so you had better stick to something secure."

The officer said that Savings Bonds filled ideally the three main reasons people save, according to a recent survey—convenience (just fill out pay allotment or reservation forms or automatic deductions), safety (as long as the U.S. Government stands) and rate of return (3¾ per cent annual interest on Series E Bonds).

The investment expert said that, although the Army couldn't expect personnel to put all their savings in bonds, it would like to feel that everyone was putting aside something bond-wise in this time of cold war.

A thorough knowledge of the stock market and other forms of investing is necessary before parting with hard-earned money and such long-range considerations as the insurance program, building the family home and financing the children's education take priority, he added.

Brig. Gen. A. D. Surles, Jr., deputy commanding general of The Infantry Center, who urged the support of all post personnel in realizing the Department of the Army goal of 65 per cent participation of personnel through the payroll deduction and allotment plans.

FORT BENNING, GEORGIA, HOME OF U.S. ARMY INFANTRY CENTER

VOL. 19, NO. 35 | FRIDAY, MAY 12, 1961 | FORT BENNING, GA. | Price 5c — 32 Pages

Gen. Walsh's Infantry School Report

"Good morning, gentlemen. During the first hour you will view a training film covering troop leading procedures to be followed when your platoon is employed in the attack. Following this, we will move to Buena Hill for a demonstration and practical exercises in which you may utilize these procedures."

Similar introductions are repeated many times throughout The Infantry School year. Though relatively short, they encompass many "behind the scenes" actions by the Operations Office to assure that everything needed to present instruction is available at the proper place and time.

The Operations Office is organized as an academic staff agency of The Infantry School and is charged with responsibilities of scheduling classes and providing instructional support such as demonstration troops and equipment, sound and visual aids, transportation, instructional area preparation, weapons and ammunition, and engineer coordination.

Additionally, school supply planning is coordinated by the Operations Office. The efforts of 16 Officers, 1 Warrant Officer, 180 Enlisted Men, and 38 Civilians are required to fulfill these tasks.

In Four Sections

The four sections of this office — planning, facilities, service, and supply — perform numerous and interrelated functions which include those normally performed in most headquarters by the G3, G4, and comptroller as well as some of the technical services.

Based on guidance from Headquarters, CONARC, and a thorough knowledge of the capacity of student housing, availability of training facilities, terrain and instructors, and the requirements for troop and equipment support, the Planning Section determines the number of classes to be presented each school year and the inclusive dates of each.

Closely related to this, a master schedule board is developed which lists in sequence each instructional period for classes in session.

To support this scheduled instruction, the Planning Section programs and procures annually some 13,000,000 items of ammunition, ranging from small arms to the Honest John rocket, and allocates ranges and

Searchlight Tattoo to Open Armed Forces Week Program

It's Suggestion Month

Initiative and Ingenuity Being Tested During May

At least one constructive suggestion pertaining to daily duty is expected from every military and civilian member of the Army during May, designated as the Chief of Staff's Suggestion Month.

In a letter to unit commanders and section chiefs, along with plans for implementing the campaign at the post, Major Gen. Hugh P. Harris, commanding general of The Infantry Center said:

"The general area for emphasis during this campaign is 'Improve Your Own Operations.' This emphasis applies equally to an organization or an individual. Within this general area of emphasis, I want you to select and identify specific problem areas. Problem areas identified will be those which you feel improvement and are deserving of emphasis."

In announcing the Army-wide campaign, the chief of staff, Gen. George H. Decker, said:

"The Army Suggestion plan is one means of fully utilizing the initiative and ingenuity of civilian and military personnel in improving Army operations. The success of Operation Searchlight, last year's suggestion campaign, is reflected in the sharp increase in the number of submitted and adopted suggestions, both military and civilian, and a total savings substantially in excess of $20 million. Intangible benefits relating to morale, personnel services, safety and health also resulted from many adopted suggestions."

The Infantry Center's Office of the Comptroller has been assigned responsibility for over-all coordination and promotion of the Suggestion Month.

Subcommittees have been formed in all post activities and project officers designated to carry out the campaign. Department of the Army Suggestion Forms have been distributed to all personnel. Ideas are sought that will improve job operations, expedite production, result in better organization, save man-hours, materials, money and property, promote health, increase safety and improve working conditions.

The subcommittees will re-

New Slate For AFMA Appointed

Col. William A. McKee, chief of staff of The Infantry Center, will install new officers of the Fort Benning Armed Forces Management Association at the organization's May 16 meeting at 7 p.m. in the Main Officers' Open Mess.

Danish Army Major Poul H. Glesner, a student in the Infantry School's Officer Career Class 1, will speak on his country.

Also on the program will be the presentation by Brig. Gen. A. D. Surles Jr. of Infantry Center Management Improvement Awards for the third quarter of Fiscal Year 1961 to three post activities. Gen. Surles is deputy post commander.

Reservations for the dinner may be made with Willard F. Swiney, Office of the Comptroller, The Infantry Center, telephone 5-2863.

POOLS OPEN . . . Brig. Gen. A. D. Surles, Jr., deputy post commander, cuts the ribbon officially opening the post swimming pools last Saturday. Opening ceremonies were held at Carey Pool, and included diving acrobatics.

Historic music and fanfare, drill teams, speeches and military protocol will colorfully signal the coming of Armed Forces Week to Columbus and the surrounding area when a Searchlight Tattoo and Massing of the Colors are staged at the Columbus Municipal Auditorium May 15 and 16.

The public is invited to the traditional program, featuring again this year the Jordan Vocational High School Band, to be presented at 8 p.m. on both evenings. There is no admission charge.

Co-sponsoring the ceremony is the Columbus Chapter of the Military Order of the World Wars, a national organization of Reserve and retired officers. Assisting with the production are elements of The Infantry Center and the 2nd Infantry Division.

Dates Back 300 Years

The military tattoo dates back three centuries in British military history. To get the soldiers out of the inns and into their billets, a drummer was stationed in the street to sound the "tattoo," a derivation of the old Dutch expression, "Doe den tap toe," freely translated as "turn off the taps."

In the course of time, a flute

Benning's Management Programs Back Suggestion Month Efforts

Officers who conduct the Army's Management Improvement Program at the post discussed principles and plans of the program and the Work Simplification Program at two recent meetings at the post.

During May the Army's Chief of Staff's Suggestion Month campaign is being coordinated with actions taken under the two programs. Fort Benning's objective in the Army-wide Suggestion Month is to solicit at least one constructive suggestion pertaining to daily duty from all military and civilian personnel.

Col. Paul J. Jarrett, The Infantry Center's comptroller, who has been assigned responsibility for over-all coordination and promotion of the Suggestion Month, asked the officers to encourage full participation of personnel in their activities.

Col. Jarrett indicated that it is the policy of the Army commander to release funds and personnel spaces saved through management improvement efforts to the installation commander to meet other pressing requirements.

However, no one need fear that he is going to "improve himself out of his job," Col. Jarrett emphasized.

Following the colonel's remarks, personnel of the Management Engineering Division, Office of the Comptroller, discussed management principles.

The group defined management as the means by which a commander insures the proper conduct of those continuing actions of planning, organizing, directing, coordinating and controlling the use of men, money and material to insure the most efficient accomplishment of missions.

The Army's Work Simplification Program also was discussed. The officers were requested to review elementary work analysis techniques with all first-line supervisers.

Handbooks prepared by the Management Engineering Division were distributed to the participants.

Benning APC At Canaveral For Space Shot

The Infantry School's Ground Mobility Department helped support the space shot at Cape Canaveral, which sent Navy Commander Alan B. Shepard into space.

An aluminum track vehicle, on loan to NASA, was on hand in a supporting role.

Capt. Harold J. Barbera recently returned from the cape after insuring the vehicle was in top condition. He was accompanied by Mr. Elmer Everidge, Post Ordnance. Sfc Neal R. Gentry, of the vehicle team, is still in Florida.

At the beginning of the 20th Century, display tattoos as a public entertainment were instituted in Great Britain, and after the first World War the Grand Military Searchlight Tattoo came into being, which hundreds of thousands of people witnessed every year.

Award Winning Band

The Jordan High School band, which has won state and national awards, as well as the Army Commendation Medal in 1956 for its performance in the tattoo, is conducted by Robert M. Barr, director of music at Jordan High and chairman for this year's ceremony.

Major Gen. Hugh P. Harris, post commander, will be guest speaker during the rededication of the Colors ceremony May 15, and Brig. Gen. William L. Hardick, commanding general of the 2nd Division, is scheduled to speak the evening of May 16.

The Infantry Center Drill Team from Company C, 1st Battle Group, 29th Infantry, 1st Infantry Brigade, will perform in the program. Also participating will be the nation's champion high school ROTC drill team from Lanier High School, Montgomery, and the Pershing Rifles, a drill team from Auburn University.

A 30-man unit from Company C of the 29th Infantry will take part in the "firing the rifle" episode.

State and territorial flags will be displayed in the auditorium and a display from the Infantry Museum will be in the lobby.

Instructional periods reflect on the master schedule board dictate the actions of the Facilities Section in preparing daily and weekly schedules which list all support requirements, namely classroom or training area location; sound, visual aids and special equipment; student and instructor transportation and detailed training schedules for each class.

Additionally, the Facilities Section distributes all instructional material and coordinates engineer requirements in support of Infantry School instruction.

Service and Supply

The Service Section maintains and operates two large weapons pools which together contain over 12,000 major items of ordnance equipment used in support of Infantry School instruction. In addition to this activity, the Bleacher Branch and Classroom Arrangement Branches of this section are responsible for instructional area preparation, to include the installation of special equipment, and the special arrangement of classrooms in accordance with the desires of instructors.

The Supply Section functions as a central supply and budget agency for The School. This responsibility includes: formulation of supply policies; establishment of authorizations, procurement and accountability for all property; and assistance to all school agencies in matters pertaining to supply procedures and maintenance of supply records.

Further, it coordinates, consolidates, and prepares justification for The School's annual budget and its execution to include distribution of funds, monitoring of expenditures, and maintenance of appropriate fund records.

In addition to functions which are directly related to the presentation of instruction, the Operations Officer is responsible for USAIS emergency and mobilization planning, the School Safety Program, and coordinating the construction of a proposed new academic building.

46 Attend Conference

A two-day mortar conference, attended by 46 civilian and military representatives of all major users and developers of Infantry mortar systems, held at the Infantry Board here, ended last Wednesday.

Purpose of the conference was to give both the users and developers of mortar systems an opportunity to discuss requirements and new developments of Infantry mortars.

It was one of the largest conferences held at the Infantry Board and the first mortar conference since April, 1959.

Under discussion were fire control equipment, ammunition and Fuses, and weapon carriers for medium and heavy mortar systems. The conferees also discussed the development of a new multipurpose close support weapon.

April Re-Up Figures Put TSB on Top

The Student Brigade topped all other Infantry Center commands in re-enlistment percentage for April with 74 per cent, according to figures from the post re-enlistment office.

Infantry Center Troop Command with 60 per cent was second high, followed by the 428th Medical Battalion with 56 per cent.

The Student Brigade also led in the re-enlistment of first-term personnel with 47 per cent. Second and third high places were taken by 428th Medical Battalion and Center Troop Command with 40 and 33 per cent.

The Infantry Center exceeded Third Army objectives in all four categories of re-enlistment in April. Its 45 per cent re-enlistment of first-term Regular Army personnel topped the goal by 12 per cent and 85 per cent retention of career Regular Army personnel exceeded the goal by five per cent.

Seventy-five per cent of The Center's Reserve and National Guard personnel re-upped to better the objective by 50 per cent and the 15 per cent of eligible draftees who re-enlisted topped the goal by eight per cent.

"This is especially noteworthy," Capt. Wilbur Thiel, Infantry Center re-enlistment officer, said, "because these percentage rates were accomplished in spite of the early out program which was in effect during this period."

TOP GRAD . . . Private Robert A. Schumann is honor graduate of The Infantry School's National Guard Officer Candidate Class 1. The Illinois Guardsman is now eligible for gold bars from his parent NG unit. He was presented the Major Gen. Edgar C. Erickson Award, a silver trophy, by Maj. Gen. Donald G. McGowan, chief of the NG Bureau, who was graduation speaker.

Georgia Urges Peacetime Bill For Veterans

Georgia is among five states which have adopted resolutions urging passage of a cold war GI Bill for peacetime veterans.

Pete Wheeler, director of the Georgia Department of Veterans Service, said Senator Ralph Yarborough (D-Tex.) recently told the Senate of a rising tide of determined and informed support of the bill.

Wheeler reports that 37 Senators are sponsors of legislation to provide educational assistance to veterans who entered military service since January 31, 1955.

Other states with resolutions supporting the bill are Arkansas, Kentucky, Hawaii and New Mexico.

One Idea Will Save Over $14,000 Here

The Infantry School's Communications Department has come up with a self developed management improvement project which results in an annual savings in man hours, facilities, communications equipment and transportation costs valued at over $14,000.

Before the management improvement project was put into effect, the sub-committee utilized three large buildings for classrooms, two officers, eleven enlisted men, numerous items of Communications equipment and two sedans and one truck in accomplishing its teaching mission on maintenance and inspection of communications equipment.

By carefully rescheduling all communications classes, with some minor changes, the maintenance and inspection classes could be held in the same classrooms normally required for other teaching missions, thereby releasing three buildings for other purposes.

In addition, communications equipment used in training could be returned from these non-essential building storage areas to the equipment pool where better supervision and required maintenance could be performed while eliminating the necessity for vehicles and travel time to accomplish this.

Overall, this management improvement results in an annual savings of three buildings, 1,500 man hours, three vehicles and numerous items of signal equipment.

It Does Matter What They Think

Opinions carried from this post to all corners of the world by Allied officers and enlisted men can greatly affect the course of the future years, and we are not showing ourselves to best advantage all the time. If our commanders and staff officers have to remind us of such simple courtesies as saluting, be sure the Allied students notice the omission. Many of these students hold or will hold high positions in their own countries within a few years, and who knows how long they may remember little slights, or how important they may be in cementing relations. It isn't only the serviceman overseas who is an ambassador, each of us here at Benning also represent the best of the U. S., and are too quickly seen when we fall short.

Uniforms in Order at Church

The request that all military personnel wear their uniforms to church services May 21 is an excellent example of Army public relations during Armed Forces Week. Many of us have attended a local church off-post for months or even years—always in civilian dress—and may not be known as soldiers to many church acquaintances. One of the strongest representations of Power for Peace is reflected in the sight of military uniforms at religious services, and it's specially significant off-post. This would also be a fine time to attend services for those of us who have "been too busy" lately.

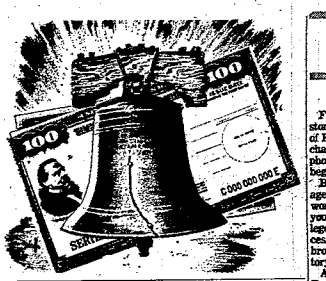
Hope They Don't Issue Fans Like This



Maybe the safety warnings are being heard and heeded, at least among members of the Sound Branch, TIS Operations Office. Seems that four of them were detailed to cut the grass. They checked out the power mower, started 'er up and marched along the tall growth. For some reason the mower couldn't cut, and in line with safety requirements, they made a careful and thorough estimate of the situation. Took a half hour to discover the mower's cutting blade had been left at the warehouse.

On Doing a Man's Job--

The soldiers' job, regardless of grade, requires a man who is physically, educationally and psychologically fit. No other profession or calling places higher demands on the individual than does the military service. Whether the soldier is a member of STRAC and ready to move anywhere in the world on a moment's notice, or working as a laboratory technician, clerk or mechanic, his job is essential.

Without you — and the thousands of men like you who make up our Army — it is not likely that this country could long remain free and independent.

Our freedom has not hung more dangerously in the balance since the precarious days of the American Revolution, when a handful of incredibly dedicated and daring men fought for and won our independence. Just as our Army of today, those soldiers of our small but determined Continental Army came from all walks of life, to defend liberty and freedom.

The freedom won by the Continental Army, and which soldiers of every succeeding generation of Americans have defended, is being threatened today by forces and threats of imperialistic communism, and these threats and forces to this and other nations have generated the "cold war" that exists throughout the world today. It would be more realistic if it were called a "war of survival," for certainly our freedom is at stake.

Your job then is indeed vital to our national security because you are directly in the path of Communist imperialism. Your presence in the Army along with your fellow soldiers contributes immeasurably to our strong world. You are serving your country with honor, which is a man's job; one which must be done; one in which you can take great pride; and one which holds the respect of the general public which recognizes your importance. No one would ask more than that.

Chaplain's Corner

By Chaplain (1st Lt.) John E. Carson

Fulton Oursler once told the story of a man by the name of Frank Dudley whose life was changed by three brief telephone calls. At least the change began that way.

Born in poverty he had managed by sheer willpower and work to put himself and his younger brother through college. Frank became a very successful businessman, and his brother Eddie became a history professor.

After Eddie's marriage, Frank did not feel very closely drawn to Agnes, his sister-in-law. Eventually, Eddie got a college appointment in another town.

It was during a visit to this other town that Frank Dudley had those three telephone calls. First, Frank called Eddie and Agnes to invite them to dinner. Agnes declined, saying that Eddie had a business appointment.

Secondly, Frank called an old friend to issue a similar invitation; but the friend declined, saying that he was going to a party that Eddie and Agnes were giving that evening! Then Eddie called Frank suggesting that they have lunch together the next day!

The next morning Frank visited Agnes to find out just what was going on. "We came to this town to get away from you," she said. "You dominate everything you are the successful big businessman.

The conversation must center on you where ever you are. If Eddie tells a story and you are there, you tell a better one. If he expresses an opinion, you contradict it and make him look foolish.

There is a chance of Eddie's getting a rather important job, and the people who were coming to our party might influence the decision. I wanted Eddie to appear at his best. You ought to get wise to yourself."

"You ought to get wise to yourself." That is advice we all need. Frank Dudley did get wise to himself. He watched himself and found that he did not really listen to other people's stories; he was thinking of a better one to steal the laugh.

He found that he spiced his conversation with gossip, even talked down his friends, felt secretly glad when others had trouble, and actually was sorry when they were successful.

The fact is that no one man can make any spiritual progress until he can get wise to himself.

The Judge Says . . .

U.S. Court of Military Appeals
By 1st Lt. George S. Lyons

An interesting facet of our military judicial system is the existence of a court, composed of civilians, to conduct final appellate review over certain military cases. This tribunal is known as the U. S. Court of Military Appeals.

All officers in the Judge Advocate General's Corps are qualified to appear as an advocate before this court.

The U. S. Court of Military Appeals consists of three judges who are nominated by the President and approved by the Senate. As a separate entity, the court may be compared to the U.S. Supreme Court.

The Judges

An idea of the character and importance of this court may be shown by outlining the qualifications of its members. The chief judge, who is serving a fifteen year term, is Robert E. Quinn, who at the time of his appointment was a superior court judge of Rhode Island and had previously been governor of that State.

A Captain in the Naval Reserve, he had served during World War II as legal officer for the First Naval District.

George W. Latimer, named to a ten year term, had been serving as a justice of the Utah Supreme Court. (His term expires this year.) Previously, he had practiced law in Utah; and, during World War II as an Army colonel, had been chief of staff for an Infantry division in the South Pacific.

Judge Homer Ferguson was appointed in 1956 to succeed Judge Paul W. Brosman who died on December 14, 1955. Judge Ferguson is a former senator from Michigan and at one time served as ambassador to the Philippine government.

From the foregoing brief description of their qualifications, it can be seen that each of our Judges is qualified by experience and training to handle the review of court martial trials.

Uses Records of Trial

In regard to the cases brought before it, the Court of Military Appeals does not hear witnesses but limits itself entirely to the record of trial.

The Court has the power to approve the findings and sentence, and to approve a lesser included offense (in which case the sentence is reassessed by a board of review). It may, further, send the case back to the command for a rehearing before another court-martial, or it may dismiss the charges completely.

As in the case of a general court-martial, The Judge Advocate General provides officer lawyers to represent the accused before the board of review and the Court of Military Appeals.

It is only after a case has first been reviewed by a board of review that it may be considered by the Court of Military Appeals.

The Court reviews all cases in which a death sentence is adjudged or which involves a general or flag officer and cases certified to it by The Judge Advocate General.

The court, in addition, may review cases wherein the accused petitions it to review his case, which must be done within thirty days after the accused receives notice of the action taken in his case by the board of review.

WACs Celebrate Corps' 19th Anniversary Tomorrow

UNITED STATES ARMY
THE CHIEF OF STAFF

TO THE MEMBERS OF THE WOMEN'S ARMY CORPS

On behalf of all members of the Army, I extend congratulations and best wishes to each of you as you celebrate the 19th anniversary of the establishment of the Women's Army Corps on 14 May 1961.

During the years since it was originally established and through two wars, the Women's Army Corps has clearly demonstrated a high degree of professionalism in a variety of military skills, worthy of the highest traditions of the military service. By its dignity, discipline and devotion to duty, the Corps has established itself as an integral part of the United States Army. In the future, modern technological advances and the requirements imposed by new weapons, organization, and concepts will afford the Army even more challenging opportunities. I am confident that in meeting the increasingly complex problems of the Army in this period of rapid and dramatic change, the Women's Army Corps will render many notable and worthwhile achievements.

Speaking for all members of the Army, I express appreciation for the past accomplishments of the Women's Army Corps and confidence that its members will meet the challenges of the future.

G. H. DECKER
General, United States Army
Chief of Staff

Plan Open House on Post

The WAC Company of The Infantry Center Troop Command will hold an open house tomorrow from 2 to 5 p.m. to commemorate the 19th anniversary of the founding of the Women's Army Corps.

All facilities of the company including the billets, recreation areas and orderly room will be open to the public. Refreshments will be served to those attending the event.

Although non-combatant, the primary mission of the Women's Army Corps is the same as the other components of the Army — to assist in the defense of the U.S.

In performing their mission, members of the Fort Benning WAC Company fill responsible positions and perform many vital services.

Occupy 7 Fields

While most of the WAC's are assigned in clerical positions, seven of the ten occupational fields in the Army are open to WAC enlisted personnel and eight to officers.

Performing on-the-job training as an illustrator in the Graphic-Photographic Section of the Editorial and Pictorial Office of The Infantry School is WAC Pvt. Rebecca A. Lerma. Before coming to this post in January of this year she attended a general draftsman course at Fort Leonard Wood, Mo.

The only WAC E-8 on the post, MSgt Stephanie Kiepej is chief clerk in the office of the post dental surgeon. The WAC sergeant has been in the Army Dental Service most of her Army career since entering the WAC's in June 1943.

Also in the Army Dental Service is WAC Sp4 Patricia D. Randall, a dental technician in the dental clinic on the Main Post. She was assigned to the WAC Company in April 1959 after her Army basic training.

18 Year Veteran

A veteran of over 18 years Army service, WAC MSgt Helen L. Spores is the Operations sergeant in the S-3 of Lawson Army Aviation Command. She oversees all of the administrative functions of the section which is responsible for the flight scheduling and training in the command.

In the photographic lab of the Pictorial Services Division of The Infantry Center Signal Section another WAC, Pfc. Diane C. Thomas, will be found. WAC Pvt. Thomas entered the Army in December 1959 and attended a 12 week still photography course at the Army Signal School, Fort Monmouth, N. J.

One of the many WAC's who work in Martin Army Hospital is Pfc. Minnie McKay, a medical technician on the pediatrics ward. Because she likes to work with children she requested this ward when assigned to the hospital in April 1960.

About 30 x-rays a day is average for WAC Spd Lois B. Coleman, an x-ray technician at the hospital. After her basic training at Fort McClellan, Spd Coleman attended the five month long x-ray technician course at Brooke Army Medical Center, Fort Sam Houston.

In the dietician's office of the hospital WAC Pvt. Manuela Torres Ramos is learning all aspects of the kitchen operations as part of her assignment as dieticians helper. Pvt. Ramos entered the Army in August 1960.

At the Quartermaster Clothing Store on post a WAC, Sfc. Edith Bancroft, is in charge of all alterations, boots and shoes and the WAC clothing. The veteran of 12 years service has had overseas assignments in Germany and Okinawa.

Started in 1942

The Women's Army Corps was originally established by act of congress as the Women's Auxiliary Army Corps on May 14, 1942. It was made a component part of the Army and renamed the Women's Army Corps on July 1, 1943.

In March 1943, less than a year after the founding of the corps, the first WAC's arrived at Fort Benning. Within a month a second WAC Company came to the post and by 1945 there were five WAC companies on the post.

With the end of World War II and the resulting demobilization the five WAC companies were consolidated into the present company.

Commanding officer of the WAC Company is Capt. Madeline Barbour.

TO THE MEMBERS OF THE WOMEN'S ARMY CORPS

On behalf of all personnel of the United States Army Infantry Center, I extend congratulations on the 19th anniversary of the establishment of the Women's Army Corps.

The Women's Army Corps has utilized the skills and aptitudes of women in the performance of noncombatant duties to an extent far beyond the fields originally visualized in 1942 and has demonstrated an efficiency and devotion to duty that is a source of pride to every member of the Army. You have established a distinguished record of service and have made material contributions to the successful achievement of the Army's objectives.

I offer best wishes for your continued success. I am confident that you will perform your future missions with the same marked ability you have displayed in the past.

Woman's Club Diary

The Thrift Shop, a project of the Fort Benning Woman's Club, is seeking applicants for the job of bookkeeper-manager. To apply, write to The Woman's Club, P. O. Box 1978, Fort Benning, Ga. Qualifications should include some experience in bookkeeping.

The Pre-Kindergarten School is busy with pint-sized mortar boards for the graduating "seniors" who will step proudly forward to receive their diplomas on Friday morning, May 19, at 10 a.m. at the Pre-Kindergarten School Playground, Building 1182. Mrs. Robert Sine, principal, promises no oratory for the graduates, but a short program by the children is planned. Parents of children now enrolled, as well as those parents who wish to enroll children for the Fall, 1961 term, are invited to attend.

Mrs. John B. Holt, who has spent much time and effort helping our Allied Officers and their families get settled at Fort Benning this year, reminds everyone that she still needs Spanish-speaking sponsors for incoming officers. If you can speak Spanish at all call Mrs. Holt at MU 9-1329. Household articles such as old dishes, linens, furniture, etc. are also welcome.

This is the time of the year when students who have worked hard for the last ten months like to show their parents and friends what those long hours spent in the Old Hospital area buildings have accomplished.

Thus we have the phenomenon known as the Recital. Two of these are planned by students from the Woman's Club Schools. The School of Dance, under the direction of Mrs. Howard K. Wilson, with Mrs. John Bohen as chairman, will present a recital "The Enchanted Forest", on Saturday evening, May 13, at 7:30 p.m. at the Patch School Auditorium.

The School of Music will present a piano recital at the Woman's Club clubhouse, Building 1046, on Monday, May 29, at 7:30 p.m. Mrs. William B. French is the teacher of the School of Music, and Mrs. Cecil Sanders is chairman for the Woman's Club.

Two Skits Head Agenda for Party At Country Club

Officers and ladies of the 181st Transportation Company, Lawson Army Aviation Command, attended a party last week at the post Country Club.

Two humorous skits entitled "The Shotgun Wedding" and "Metrecal and the Flight Surgeon", were presented by members of the 2nd Platoon, which sponsored the party.

Capt. R. C. Barnes, the commanding officer of the 31st Company, presented a farewell gift to Capt. and Mrs. Dan Panageas, who are leaving for Germany. Several newcomers, including CWO and Mrs. Desmond Burnette, CWO and Mrs. John Fuller, CWO and Mrs. John Valaer and CWO Hagemeier were welcomed.

Orchids To Be Presented At Mother's Day Service

Each lady attending the Mother's Day protestant worship service at The Student Brigade Chapel Sunday will be presented an orchid corsage, Student Brigade Chaplain (Major) Arthur J. Estes announced this week.

The Vanda Orchids, imported directly from Hawaii, will be presented to the ladies at the door of the chapel by the Brownie Scouts of the post's Brownie Troop 162.

"These 'orchids,' Chaplain Estes said, "will be given in honor of our nation's mothers who have sacrificed to make our nation so honorable coe."

In addition to presenting the orchids, the Brownie's will give the invocation, benediction, serve as ushers, and take the offeratory. About 20 Brownies will be present in their scouting uniforms. Sponsoring the Brownie part of the services are Capt. and Mrs. Donald F. Kennedy, of The Student Brigade. Mrs. Manfred Kelman is the Brownie troop leader.

The services, which will begin at 9:30 a.m., will feature singing by the 25-voice Student Brigade Chapel Choir, and a magic sermonette entitled "Three Flowers." The traditional Mother's Day sermon, "Honor Thy Mother," will be given by Chaplain Estes.

The public is invited to attend the services.

T'Mistress Charter Is Presented

The Fort Benning-Columbus Toastmistress Club held its charter - installation banquet May 6 at the post Country Club.

George Anderson, president of the Columbus Toastmasters Club, was guest speaker and was introduced by the banquet Toastmistress, Mrs. John Daniel. He spoke on the ideals of the club and its growth in the community.

Mrs. Grace Woolf, founder of the Toastmistress Club of Atlanta, presented the club charter to outgoing president, Mrs. Dion Johnson, who accepted it on behalf of the club.

The benediction was given by Chaplain (Major) Russell Lee.

During the program, the Toastmistress, Mrs. William Collins, called upon several members and guests to speak briefly on an awkward situation and how they faced up to it. The speaker of the term award given to the winner of a recent "speak off" contest was presented by Mrs. Alan Carlisle to the winner, Mrs. David Bear.

Officers installed by Mr. Anderson include Mrs. Richard Evers, president; Miss Avis Gordee, vice president and Mrs. E. E. Passmore, secretary. The Fort Benning Columbus Toastmistress Club was founded last October by Mrs. Bear, Mrs. Evers and Mrs. Johnson.

Mrs. Hiestand Presides Over DUSA Meeting

The Daughters of the United States Army held their monthly luncheon last Tuesday, in the Normandy Room of the Main Officers Open Mess, with Mrs. G. M. Milliner, Jr., serving as hostess and assisted by Mrs. M. J. Lally.

Beginning with a social hour, a luncheon of several kinds of salads, was served followed by a business meeting. The business meeting was presided over by Mrs. H. H. Hiestand, the newly-elected president.

All daughters of Army Officers are eligible to join this organization. If there are any in the area who have not been contacted, and wish to attend these gatherings, they may call Mrs. Alfred Francisco at 5-3497, for information on next month's luncheon.

The Surgeon Says

Public Assured Of Best Care

By Lt. Col. Thomas Laughlin Jr., MSC

To assure the public that our hospitals are providing the highest quality patient care, the program of hospital accreditation was developed. If a hospital is accredited, it means that the care it provides meets certain standards set up by the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals.

The Joint Commission is an independent group sponsored by the American Hospital Association, the American Medical Association, the American College of Surgeons, and the American College of Physicians.

Nearly all community hospitals have achieved this goal; those that have not are earnestly working toward it, for accreditation vouches to the community that the hospital is serving its best interests. Martin Army Hospital, like every other Army Hospital in the United States is fully accredited.

Expanded Efforts

Hospitals have become centers for patient care, for education, and for medical research. With the increasing complexity of health care they can no longer provide optimum health protection while limiting their resources to the skills found inside their walls.

Their responsibilities are expanding to care for the well just as they do for the sick. Hospitals are challenged to become community health centers, to coordinate health care, health education, and health research for the community.

Community hospitals can point to many instances where they are already accepting their expanding responsibilities for the community's health. Preventive medicine has long been a joint responsibility of the hospital and the local health department.

The hospital assists the work of the health department by detecting and reporting communicable diseases; treating patients with tuberculosis and poliomyelitis, and continuing the never-ending fight against hospital practices the principles of material, infant, and child hygiene, and helps in all age groups to educate the patient and his family on matters of health and hygiene.

Prevention Stressed

More hospitals are cooperating with other agencies or are offering educational programs for the community on such aspects of preventive medicine as prenatal, maternal and child care, nutrition, mental hygiene, and detection of serious diseases.

Hospitals are often the site of mass inoculations when a community is threatened with a serious communicable disease. And in the event of a community disaster, the hospital's disaster plan stands ready to go into immediate operation to care for the injured.

These are difficult challenges but hospitals will continue meeting them as long as their communities demand progress in health care.

As individuals, you can actively participate in the community partnership with your hospital by first having an understanding of its purposes and its goals. Become familiar and concerned about the health needs of your community and join others in planning for the provisions of a comprehensive health care program.

The changing composition of the population points to an ever increasing concern with preventive care, with chronic illness, and with rehabilitation. We are now a nation of over 179 million. If the present rate of population increase continues, it is estimated that by 1975 we will exceed 216 million.

It is also predicted that by 1975, ten per cent of the population will be age 65 or over—a tribute to the advances in health care but presenting special problems in caring for an aging population.

Personnel Needed

The second way you can support the hospital is by encouraging young people to enter health careers. The shortage in medical and paramedical personnel is a serious problem for the entire health field.

You have all read of the shortage of nurses and laboratory technologists. In other areas of paramedical work, too, hospitals are finding it increasingly difficult, to secure the personnel they require to provide high quality patient care.

Approximately 2,000 more dieticians are needed in the nation's hospitals. It is estimated that the additional need for pharmacists in hospitals is close to 400 per year and that by 1970 it will be nearly 500 per year.

Te these shortages that already exist add the fact that new hospital services are sure to come and will mean new classifications of personnel. In some hospitals today there are already 200 different classifications of personnel and this number will grow as new services are provided.

Volunteers

The third way you can support the hospital is by volunteering your personal services to the hospital. Volunteers provide many extra touches to patient care and lighten the load for busy hospital personnel. They provide a major link between the hospital and the community in terms of increasing public understanding of the hospital.

It is estimated that there are about two million people doing volunteer work in hospitals and women predominate in these programs. Teen-age volunteer programs in hospitals are also increasing.

Judy & Tracy Harrison's teen talk...

Things are really buzzing now that graduation is near, and everyone here knows what that means—FREEDOM!

While all the schools have many separate plans, there is one event that all the schools will share this Friday. The Georgia Scholastic Press Association will meet at Henry Grady School of Journalism at the Univeristy of Georgia in Atlanta, with delegates from all over the state attending.

COLUMBUS HIGH

The CHS Rifle Team took first place honors at the fourth annual Southeastern Junior ROTC Rifle Matches held at MacDill Air Force Base in Tampa, Fla., recently, with a total score of 1452 points out of a possible 1600.

Participating from Fort Benning was Allen Corrigo. To the whole team we extend our heartiest congratulations.

The CHS winners of the Columbus and Muscogee County Civitan Club essay contest were announced recently, with Susan Bacharach coming in with second place. The title of her essay was "How to Prepare Youth for a Mare Effective Citizenship."

On April 27, the Rutledge Minnex chapter of the Debators Society held their spring debate in the CHS auditorium with Glenn Gardner speaking on the affirmative side. The subject chosen for this year's debate was "Resolved: That NATO should be Changed into a Federation."

The Nunally - Johnson chapter of the "Quill and Scroll", an international honorary society for high school journalists, recently held its spring induction. Among new inductees was George Britton from Benning.

The Future Teachers of America delegates from CHS traveled to Atlanta for the annual GEA-FTA convention. The representatives from CHS included Susan Bacharach and Karen Hansen.

BAKER HIGH

Baker High is presenting "Born Yesterday" tonight at 8 p.m. at their auditorium with Cris Szymanski in the leading female role and Ray Bixler in the leading male role.

Baker's Key Club recently held its elections for next year's officers and Curley Herman was elected president.

Many important dates are coming up at Baker, with the B Club heading for Ida Cason Callaway Gardens and a picnic on May 14, and the Senior Class picnic slated for May 19.

PACELLI HIGH

Student Council elections were recently held at PHS and Mike Wagner was elected vice-president for the coming school year, while Jim Wien was named treasurer.

Pacelli's school picnic was held this week and was again one of the fine projects sponsored by the Student Council.

A carnival and barbeque will be held Saturday to raise money for journalists to take a trip to the Journalism School of the American University in Washington, D. C.

SOCIAL NOTES

On Sunday evening, the Fotlow-Mc-Club will be entertained with a talk given by Major Ray Wilson on "Symbolism in the Church."

The Junior Army Daughters of America will have their monthly luncheon tomorrow morning at the Main Officers' Open Mess, at which time elections for next year will be held.

Also, on Saturday morning, the Panhellenic Club will give a coke party for all high school senior girls planning to attend college this fall. The purpose of this gathering is to introduce the girls to college sororities, rush parties, pledging, and all other phases of college life.

Economy--Theme Of Program

Economy, Key to Readiness, is the theme of a general economy program throughout the Third Army area. This program has been initiated to promote an economy consciousness in all personnel which will result in savings of funds, supplies, material and time.

This is not a new and different program but a concerted effort to reemphasize management improvement and an extension of the Management Improvement Program to encompass all personnel, military civilian employees and dependents stationed, working or occupying quarters at Fort Benning.

Appropriate guidance is to be furnished to dependents, pointing out ways they can assist in economy.

The target is participation in the program by all post personnel, military, civilian and dependents. This attack on waste on the widest possible front is expected to result in real and tangible savings.

The approach to this program will be to channel improvement efforts to particular areas of special interest. General and specific areas for emphasis will be announced at a later date. In addition, operating officials are encouraged to announce and publicize areas within their programs which may stimulate ideas for improvement.

Individuals are encouraged to participate through the suggestion awards and recognition will be accorded individuals who submit suggestions to effect savings.

E-8 MATHEWS

First Sergeant (E-8) John Mathews is first sergeant of Company A, Infantry School Battalion, The Student Brigade. He first entered the Army on May 8, 1935, with the Regimental Machine Gun Company, 29th Infantry, here at Fort Benning.

He remained with that unit until 1941 when he reenlisted for duty with The Infantry School, where he served with the Weapons Department.

In 1945, he was transferred to Korbach, Germany, with the 3rd Infantry Division. Returning to the States in 1946, he was assigned to Fort Campbell. He was re-assigned to the Tactical Department of The Infantry School here later that same year.

He was transferred to Japan with the 97th Infantry Regiment, 2th Infantry Division, in 1949. He left Japan in 1950 for Korea. Later the same year, he was assigned to the Kinki Civil Affairs Section at Osaka, Japan, working with the Japanese Home Defenses.

Returning to the U. S. in 1953, he was assigned to Company F of what was then the Infantry School Detachment (now Battalion) of The Student Brigade.

In August of 1960, Sgt. Mathews was transferred to Company A, Infantry School Battalion, as first sergeant. He was promoted to his present rank in March of this year.

Senior Cadets Visit Benning

Sixty senior ROTC cadets from Opelika High School viewed a varied program of Infantry demonstrations Wednesday.

On their arrival at The Infantry School the group toured the Main Weapons Pool. Then they went to Fryar Field to watch a 25-man airborne class 32 make one of five qualifying jumps.

The cadets ate lunch in the Mess, and witnessed demonstrations and training throughout the early afternoon.

Honoring Retiring Sergeants

Miniature Review Held By The Student Brigade

A miniature review, possibly the first ever held at The Infantry Center, was staged last week on the drill field behind Headquarters, The Student Brigade.

In honor of ten retiring Student Brigade sergeants, the review was composed of officers and enlisted men from each unit of the brigade.

Col. Otto R. Koch Jr., brigade commander, presented the Army Commendation Medal to each of the sergants. The retiring men were SMaj Floyd O. Holmes, MSgt. Edgar W. Houseman, MSgt. Miles E. Johnson, MSgt. Ross D. Killabrew, Sfc George I. Shirley, Sfc William H. Thomas, Sfc George W. Devlaming, MSgt. Broadus E. Beasely, and Sgt. Edward R. Gill.

In Col. Koch's reviewing party, besides himself, were Lt. Col. Richard W. Ulrich, commanding officer, 5th Student Battalion; Lt. Col. Lewis M. Millican, commanding officer, 4th Student Battalion; Lt. Col. Vern L. Joseph, commanding officer, 2nd Student Battalion; Lt. Col. Charles J. Benge, Communications Department; Lt. Col. Francis H. Gregg, Department of Non-Resident Instruction; Lt. Col. Bill Feltman Jr., Ground Mobility Department; Major John H. Ramsburg, commanding officer, Infantry School Battalion, Major Lyman H. Clark, Human Research Unit; and SMaj Welbourn A. Callahan, sergeant major of The Student Brigade.

Commander of the troops, 1st Sgt. Elmer D. McKeehan, Headquarters Company, presented the command to Col. Koch after the sounding of the Adjutant's Call by The Infantry Center Band, directed by CWO J. S. Beebe.

The brigade staff was made up of representatives from each section of brigade headquarters. They were MSgt. Raymond Dupuis, S-1; SSgt. Riley F. Chrestman, S-2; MSgt. George J. Gingras, S-3; and MSgt. John T. Nelson, S-4.

After the presentation of medals, the troops passed in review with a four-man color guard in the lead carrying the Stars and Stripes and The Infantry School colors. In the color guard were Sfc Lawrence Estell, SSgt Sherman Agers, Sgt. Ronald Olson and Sgt. Robert Coldiron, all of Headquarters Company, The Student Brigade.

As the last unit of troops passed the reviewing area, the band struck up "Auld Lang Syne".

Distinguished guests were the officers, enlisted men, and their families of The Student Brigade.

Major Renfrow New Dependent School Officer

Major Arthur C. Renfrow, Jr. has assumed the duties of dependent schools officer for the post.

He came to The Infantry Center in January from Korea and has served as executive officer of the West Point Examining Board in the interim.

A veteran of 19 years' active duty, he was commissioned a second lieutenant in the Infantry after graduating from Officer Candidate School here in December, 1942. During World War II, he served with the 88th Infantry Division in Italy from March, 1943, to July, 1944.

Major Renfrow was secretary of the Main Officers' Open Mess at the post from August, 1958, to January, 1959.

Div Set for Armed Forces Week

Div. Aviation Unit to Participate In Capital's Armed Forces Show

JFK, Other Dignitaries, Expected At Andrews AFB Demonstration

BY DIV PIO

The General Support Platoon of the 2nd Infantry Division's 2nd Aviation Company will participate in the Armed Forces Day observance in Washington, D. C., this weekend.

President John F. Kennedy is expected to attend on one of the two days of the ceremony which is to be held at Andrews Air Force Base in nearby Maryland.

Mission of the division's aviation unit is to furnish an aerial firepower demonstration with H-13 helicopters armed with .30 caliber machine guns. Men and machines from other Armed Forces' units will also participate in the event.

Some 13 officers, 16 enlisted men and 11 helicopters of the Aviation Company have been assigned to this mission. Commander of the platoon is Captain Harry McDaniel.

Captain McDaniel said eight or nine of the H-13s were to be used in the General Support Platoon's share of the Armed Forces Day demonstration and that the remainder were to be held in reserve.

An H-34 from Lawson Army Air Command was to also make the trip to provide "Back-up maintenance" for the division's helicopters.

The general Support Platoon left here at 7 a.m. Sunday and flew to Fort Bragg, N. C., where it was to stop for the night.

Monday the platoon was to fly to Davidson Army Airfield at Fort Belvoir, Va., to report there Tuesday.

Preparations for the platoon's participation in the Armed Forces Day observance were made Wednesday and Thursday, and rehearsals, with other armed forces units, were conducted yesterday and today.

ARSC Capabilities

2nd Aviation's General Support Platoon, which is charged with maintaining the capabilities of the now-deactivated Aerial Reconnaissance and Security Company, is scheduled to return to the Division Monday or Tuesday, Captain McDaniel said.

Gen. Hardick Congratulates Specialist Escalera

Gen. Hardick Weighs 'Our Success' in Talk

BY DIV PIO

What makes our Army so successful? This question was posed by Brigadier General William L. Hardick in his address on Saturday to the graduating class 6 of the Division Noncommissioned Officers Academy.

General Hardick's words to the graduates served also to sum up the activities of the academy on the last day of its existance. There now will be only one NCO Academy in the Third Army area. NCOs will receive their training at Fort Jackson, South Carolina.

The Division Commanding General admitted that we are not a "robot-like military people. We are essentially peaceful." He cited examples of other armies which he said were better trained more fanatically courageous, and which adhered to stricter discipline.

Our success, he said, results from the nature of our mission; "to protect rather than to dominate."

"The quality of our leadership, especially our junior leadership, is our greatest asset." The general noted that, contrary to other armies, ours possessed a chain of command with "depth and initiative. Our leaders are better educated, have more initiative, and do not follow orders blindly."

4 Officers Earn EIBs In Div Tests

By Div PIO

Four 2nd Division officers have earned the coveted Expert Infantryman's Badge.

Successfully completing the tests, held May 4-5, were Lieutenants Cecil Nickeson, Evan Smith and Robert Chenoweth of the 9th Infantry, and Lieutenant William F. McGowan of the 7th Cavalry.

Lieutenant Nickeson, the 9th's communications platoon leader, also holds the senior parachutist's badge. The eight-year Army veteran is a 1959 graduate of Officer Candidate School, Fort Benning, and is a former member of the Army's Special Forces Group.

OCS

Lieutenant Smith, a member of the 9th's battle group instructional team, is a 1960 Officer Candidate School graduate and holds the parachutist's badge.

Lieutenant Chenoweth, assistant S-2 (intelligence) at the 9th, has been on active duty since 1957. He received a degree in agriculture from Purdue University.

Lieutenant McGowan, a former platoon leader in the 7th Cavalry's Troop C, has completed his six-months tour of active duty.

Engrs Send 6 to 'Cape'

By 2nd Engr Bn PIO

Six members of the 2nd Engineer Battalion are scheduled to depart for Cape Canaveral this weekend to assist in "policing up" metal particles interfering with equipment used around the launching pads.

The six, armed with mine detectors, are to fly to neighboring Patrick Air Force Base this week to begin a special duty tour of seven to ten days.

Those making the trip include Sergeant First Class Robert Ahlfs, Sergeant First Class William Broom, Sergeants Edgar Stanaland and Raymond Ewers, Specialist Five John Esley and Specialist Four Frank Mroczka.

'Searchlight Tattoo' Kicks Off Busy Week

BY PETER TATISTCHEFF

The 2nd Division will send troops and equipment into five Georgia cities in an all-out participation in the nation's annual Armed Forces Week celebration.

According to Captain James R. Shelnut, project officer, next week, May 14-20, will see the greatest participation by the division in the history of this "Power for Peace" program. He added that all possible men and machinery will be released for parades and "Static Displays" within the Third U. S. Army area.

The week will open with the traditional Searchlight Tattoo and Massing of the Colors ceremony at Columbus Municipal Auditorium Monday and Tuesday nights. The Division will be represented by color guards and color bearers. Sergeant First Class Clay Lacy of the Division Information Office will serve as narrator.

Brigadier General Charles H. White Jr., assistant division commander, is to attend Tuesday ceremonies at the auditorium, scheduled to begin at 8 p.m. He will speak during the rededication of the colors.

4 Cities

During the week, division units will travel to the Georgia Military Academy at Milledgeville, the University of Georgia in Athens, and to observances at Sylvester and Albany.

The Searchlight Tattoo ceremony, a traditional concert dating back three centuries in British military history, will

Mr. Cook Honored At Review

The awarding of a third oak leaf cluster to the Army Commendation Medal of Chief Warrant Officer Ralph J. Cook, 2nd Administration Company, highlighted Wednesday's Miniature Review.

Mr. Cook was cited for performing "meritorous service during the period March 15, 1960-March 1 while serving as assistant adjutant, 7th Artillery Group (Air Defense) Thule, Greenland."

The citation read: "He performed the major additional duties of public information officer, safety officer, test control officer, education officer, army emergency relief officer, base exchange officer, custodian of classified documents and bond and savings officer. From December 8 until February, he assumed the duties of defense personnel officer."

87th Infantry Holds Review and Awards Ceremony

By 87th Inf PIO

Members of the 87th Infantry held a review and awards ceremony commemorating the completion of basic combat training.

The review, held Saturday, marked the first time the troops had been assembled as a unified battle group since their arrival several months ago.

The presentation of awards was made by Brigadier General William L. Hardick, division commander. Sergeant Jackie H. Dillon of Combat Support Company was named as the battle group "Soldier-of-the-Month." Recruit Michael O. Stearns of Company B won awards for the "Outstanding Soldier Completing Basic Combat Training," and for achieving the highest score on the BCT proficiency test.

Second place on the proficiency test went to Recruit William W. Gurley and Don K. Kimball, both of Company C.

Trainfire

First place award for winning the Master Trainfire Meet was received by Recruit David C. Rodriguez of Combat Support Company. Second place in this event was awarded to Recruit Richard L. Carstens of Company D.

Following the presentations, the troops were addressed by General Hardick, who congratulated them on the manner in which they performed during their training. He stated that the 87th demonstrated superior qualities and were well suited to fill the OVU REP mission.

All of the seven companies participated under the command of Lieutenant Colonel William T. Gordon. They were headed by Headquarters Company under the command of Captain Kenneth Sweeney, followed by Company A, commanded by Captain Alan Horwedel; Company B, Captain Ronald Berkey; Company C, Lieutenant Cicero Wilkinson; Company D, Captain George McKenna; Company E, Captain Charles Rapp, and Combat Support Company, Captain Edwin May.

Tracer of Lost Golfballs

Lucky Pierre Depends On Sniffer, Not Luck

BY DON BAIRD

Zees ees shaggy dog story about Lucky Pierre, who ees a French poodle.

Canines of Lucky Pierre's ancestry might normally be found only in zee haunte monde, chasing after chocolates tossed by ladies of fashion.

But not Lucky Pierre.

He chases after golf balls.

"But it wasn't intended this way," says 16-year old Steve Hall, Lucky Pierre's master.

"We trained him like any normal dog, tossing him sticks and rubber balls to retrieve."

In zees field, Lucky Pierre succeeded. Then, while on zee golf course one day with hees mother, Steve sent Pierre in search of hees father, Captain Walter D. Hall of the division's G-4 section.

Alors! Lucky Pierre come back, and he have mouth full of golf balls, long-lost-and-forgotten in the roughs.

Therein lies the tale of Lucky Pierre's par excellence at golf ball retrieving, which has become something of a tour de force for this brown-coated canine.

"Since then," says Steve, "Lucky has found 150—maybe 200—golf balls. I just take him out on the course. He starts sniffing, and away we go.

"I have to keep him on a leash, though, else he might find balls that aren't lost!"

The Baker High School student says that he has earned "a good bit" of extra spending money, thanks to Lucky Pierre, selling the new-found balls at nominal prices to eager golf fans.

But, thus far, Lucky Pierre hasn't learned to point.

'3rd Generation' Ends Training

Two proud visitors to Company B graduation exercises recently at the 2nd Engineer Battalion were Colonel Karl Larsen (U. S. Army, ret.) and Sergeant Ralph A. Becker.

Among the graduates were Sergeant Becker's son, Recruit James A. Becker, who is Col. Larsen's grandson.

Col. Larsen, whose career spanned 38 years, served under General Douglas MacArthur. Sergeant Becker is a veteran of 30 years' service.

Impersonator, Dancer Slated For NCO Open Mess Sunday

By Cisy Lacy

Ed Sullivan, Liberace, Elvis Presley, James Stewart and a host of other top flight stars of the entertainment world will thrill patrons of the 2nd Division Non-Commissioned Officers Open Mess this Sunday evening . . not in person, but through the tremendously versatile talent of one Max Cooper.

Mr. Cooper appeared before local audiences a little over a year ago, and left Indianhead NCO's, their wives and guests astonished with his fine repertoire of impersonations.

His appearance this Sunday will mark his third visit to the 2nd Division NCO Club and for those who missed his past performances, this author can say truthfully, a real treat is in store for them. In my many years of working in showbusiness, I have yet to find a performer of Mr. Cooper's wide range and depth of talent.

Appearing with Mr. Cooper this Sunday evening starting at 7:30 p.m. will be the renowned band of Tommy Martin and the package show entitled "Summer Frolics." Guest star Hedi Richmond will dance her specialty, an Indian dance with specially created costume that does its own dance under the lights.

'Summer Frolics'

Max Cooper will serve as Master of Ceremonies for the "Summer Frolics" as well as entertain with his own numbers including singing, dancing and impersonations.

Members of the NCO Club and their guests will be given the opportunity during the show to request impersonations of their favorite stars. From seeing his last two shows here at Fort Benning, I've yet to see the star that the amazing Mr. Cooper cannot impersonate.

DANCER . . . Hedi Richmond, international dancer, will be one of the featured acts in Sunday night's "Summer Frolics" at the non-commissioned officers' open mess.

23rd Units 'Police Up' 7-Mile Area at Benning

By 23rd Infantry PIO

Approximately 650 members of the 23rd Infantry participated in a giant police call recently in the wilds of Fort Benning Reservation.

The entire complement of companies, A, C, D and E, prowled the impact areas of Jacelin, Handrich and Ruth ranges and recovered a quantity of both salvageable and unsalvageable ammunition and equipment. The annual policing covered an area almost seven miles long and five wide.

Scrap, 'Duds'

According to Captain Gay F. Baldwin, S-3, some 22,000 blank rounds and 30-caliber brass were recovered as well as two large truckloads of trash and some 500 pounds of scrap. Also found were two "dud" shells which probably were lobbed into the area from nearby Concord artillery range.

The "duds" were marked conspicuously, and the locations were reported to Ordnance in order that defusing experts could find and disarm them.

Officers and men reported spotting an abundance of wildlife in the area including deer, rabbits and some ever-present snakes.

Wear Uniform To Church, Asks Third Army CG

Plans for the celebration of Armed Forces Week for the southeastern area include the wearing of the uniform by all Armed Forces personnel—active and inactive—at church services on Sunday, May 21.

Lieutenant General Paul D. Adams, Third U. S. Army commanding general, said that "it is especially desired that all officers and enlisted personnel residing in civil communities attend the church of their choice on this occasion in uniform, as a means of showing the general public where the military forces are serving and identifying themselves to the church-going people of the communities in which they reside.

"Assuming fair weather, the Army white is the preferable uniform to wear on this occasion. Otherwise, for officers, the Army tan uniform with blouse is appropriate—for enlisted men, either the tropical worsted Army tan uniform or cotton khaki shirt and trousers with tie."

View Preparations

Two members of the staff of the 3rd Reconnaissance Squadron, 7th Cavalry recently returned from a flying visit to Fort Stewart.

Captain Vernon Ison, S-3 and Chaplain Lee A. Smith boarded an L-20 Army aircraft and flew to Stewart to check on the progress of the advance party's preparation for the arrival of the main body of the squadron.

1st Infantry Units Assist in 'Combat Test' of Caribou

By 1st Inf. PIO

Men and vehicles of the 1st Infantry were used to test the AC-1 Caribou aircraft recently under simulated combat conditions.

The Caribou is the largest army aircraft and is undergoing extensive simulated combat tests to determine its effectiveness in tactical and logistical situations.

Included in the test from the battle group were Company D, Company B and the reconnaissance and mortar platoons of Combat Support Company.

Supplies

Company D was flown from Decker Field, Ala. to Amphierville, Ga. in 12 sorties. Five of the company's vehicles were airlifted along with five tons of supplies. While the company was waiting for a Caribou to land, instruction was given in survival, which included reptile and plant orientation.

Two platoons were supplied by Company B and the entire operation took less than 30 minutes. The landing was made at Fryer North landing strip.

The tests demonstrated the ability of the Caribou to make short take-offs and landings from unimproved air strips.

The reconnaissance platoon was used at night to test the aircraft. Nine vehicles were flown from Decker Field to Lawson Field. The mortar platoon was airlifted with all its personnel, vehicles, ammunition and supplies. Six Caribou aircraft were used in the operation which lasted three hours.

Promotion

An unusual event took place aboard one of the aircraft when Pfc. John Kurzeja and Pfc. Tom Frey were promoted to their present rank.

The Georgia Adult Education Council scheduled a discussion on the problem of boredom.

Ex-CBS Employe Trains With 11th

By 11th Inf PIO

A former Columbia Broadcasting System employe is undergoing training with Company E, of the 11th Infantry. He is Recruit Leo Zani, Jr.

Prior to his enlistment he was an advertising artist and script director in the Boston office of CBS. The 24-year-old University of Kentucky graduate holds a B. A. degree in commercial advertising. He began his career in radio, making his jump to television at WLEX-TV in Lexington, Ky.

Track

Zani was born and reared in Revere, Mass., where he attended both parochial and public schools. As a member of the Revere High School track team, he set several records, one of which still stands in Massachusetts. Running the 880 (half mile), he recorded the mark of 1:58; the national high school record is 1:56.

He attended the University of Kentucky on a track scholarship. After graduation from college, he placed third in the world famous Boston Marathon — a 26 mile run.

In school politics Zani held the office of class president and student body president. In college, he held social and political offices. He is a member of Sigma Chi fraternity.

Help Needed In Vacation Bible School

A Vacation Bible School for children of 2nd Infantry Division personnel has been scheduled for June 12 through June 21. Hours of the school are from 8:30 to 11:30 a.m. at the Sand Hill Sunday School.

It will be conducted under the direction of Chaplain James Layne; Mrs. B. B. Little John, division Director of Religous Education; and Specialist Lawrence Libby, chaplain's assistant.

The Bible School has been divided into the following departments:

Nursery — for three and four year olds.

Beginner—for four and five years olds and those who will enter the first grade.

Primary — for pupils who will enter the 2nd, 3rd, and 4th Grades.

Junior — for pupils who will enter the 5th, 6th, and 7th grades.

Young Teens — for pupils who will enter the 8th, 9th, and 10th grades.

There is a need for teachers and assistants who will volunteer to help in the school.

Persons intersted in assisting are urged to call Mrs. Little John, Sand Hill Sunday School LI 4-7306.

Tattoo

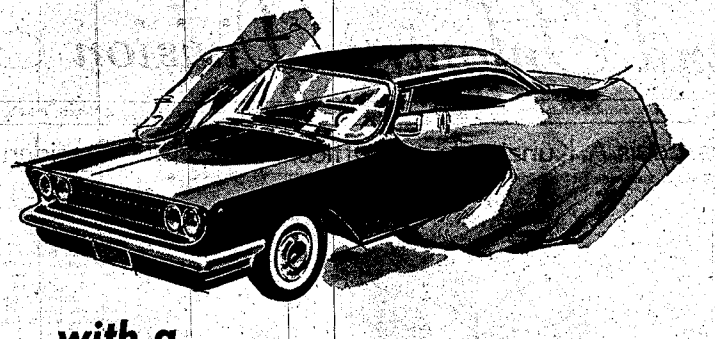
requires the assistance of the combined forces of the 2nd Division and The Infantry Center.

The week will end with a street parade in Columbus next Friday. The Division will participate in the parade in addition to setting displays in windows of shops along the parade route.

Other Georgia cities will observe Division units throughout the week. On Sunday a display furnished by 12th and 27th Artillery will be shown at the Georgia Military Academy. This will include a five-ton wrecker, one "Honest John" Rocket and a 155 millimeter Howitzer with inert ammunition.

One hundred and twenty-two men will parade at the University of Georgia on Tuesday. Accompanying them will be a display including radios, telephones, a medical aid kit, rocket launcher, 81 millimeter mortar with inert ammunition and a .30 caliber machine gun. These are to be supplied by the 1st Infantry.



Band

The same display will then be shown at Albany on May 20, joined by 24 members of the Division Band.

The band will be present at a dedication ceremony in Sylvester, Georgia, on Wednesday. This is to take place at the local Nike missile base.

The observance of Armed Forces Week in the Columbus area is sponsored by the Columbus Chapter of Military Order of World Wars, a national organization composed of Reserve and retired officers. They are combining their efforts with those of Fort Benning officials and residents of Columbus in staging the Armed Forces celebrations.

The public is invited to attend the Searchlight Tattoo ceremonies on Monday and Tuesday at 8 p.m. Admission is free.

23rd Infantry Trainee Finds Irish and U. S. Armies Much Alike

By Max Cearson

How does a former Irish Army corporal like the United States Army? Well, just ask Recruit William G. Cunnane of the 23rd Infantry's Charlie Company.

Cunnane, who hails originally from Persse Park, Ballinasloe, County Galway, Ireland, served almost three years in the Irish Army before coming to the United States in 1958. The 21-year-old Son of the Sod joined the Irish Army when he was only 16, rose to the rank of corporal — the equivalent of sergeant in our army — was a squad leader and a basic training instructor. He enlisted in the United States Army in January of 1961 and plans to go to Airborne school.

Volunteers

Cunnane finds many comparisons between the Irish and United States armies. For one thing, he points out that the Irish Army is more like a Home Guard than an international military force. Also, it is composed entirely of volunteers, since Ireland has no selective service law.

The young Irishman says basic training here differs in some ways from that in his native country.

Irish lads had to shave each morning using cold water, and the latrine at his camp was located on a hilltop near his "billet." Cunnane believes that Irish Army trainees have more rifle drill and go on longer marches than do American recruits.

Keep Rifles

Irish soldiers are issued rifles shortly after joining up and are required to keep their weapon with them during their entire enlistment when they go on leave, furlough and other trips away from camp. Also, on days off, Irish soldiers may draw rounds from the supply room and indulge in some unofficial target practice.

Basic training in the Irish Army lasts approximately eight weeks and includes instruction in firing the Enfield rifle, recoilless rifles and the 30-caliber machine gun, all British-made weapons. Squads are composed of ten men and a squad leader, usually a corporal.

Cunnane has observed several luxuries in our military setup that are absent in the Irish Army, such as post dry cleaners. Each soldier is responsible for the cleaning and care of his uniforms, and this includes highly polishing the brass buttons on the coat and the cap emblem. The Irish soldier also is responsible for washing his fork and cup after each meal rather than leaving them for the KP detail.

Speaking of food, Cunnane enjoys the greater variety of American chow over Irish "grub." The breakfasts are similar, but Irish dinners stress more stews, boiled bacon and cabbage, mutton, and, of course, the Irish potato in its many culinary forms.

The Irish Army also furnishes its soldiers with shoe polish for "boning" their boots, soap and other toilet articles.

Does Cunnane plan to return to the Emerald Isle someday? In 1959 he filed papers declaring his intention to become a United States citizen, and at present he calls Paterson, New Jersey his home, where he has been living with relatives.

And, if he likes the Army well enough at the end of his current enlistment, he may "re-up" for another hitch.

9th Infantry Launches Unit Safety Campaign

By 9th Inf. PIO

The 9th Infantry's officers, cadre, and trainees have swung into the battle group safety campaign with a burst of enthusiasm in an all out "war" against accidents of all types.

With 9th Infantry commander Colonel James L. Osgard as the director, the "Keep Up the Fire" battle group initiated this highly important safety campaign May 4. The object of the campaign is to remind all military and civilian personnel in the 9th Infantry area of the extreme importance of safety.

At the same time the Manchu unit hopes to put as complete a damper as possible on all types of accidents such as those involving automobiles and other vehicles, poisonous snakes, swimming, and poisonous plants.

Wrecked Car

To remind battle group and Division personnel of the impact of safety, the 9th Infantry program involves three features. A totally wrecked civilian-owned auto in which three people met death is located at Third Avenue across from Chapel Four in the Sand Hill area. An appropriate sign is posted and tells the story of the accident in which the auto was involved.

The second feature of the 9th Infantry campaign includes the use of a series of signs located on both sides of Third Avenue in the battle group area. The sign posts are painted bright yellow and include jingles on different aspects of safety. The signs are changed often so as to cover a large number of safety facets.

"Corpse"

The third feature includes a team of litter bearers carrying a "corpse" around the 9th Infantry area as a pungent, vivid safety reminder. The "corpse" on the litter carries an appropriate picture and lettering pertaining to safety.

The all out 9th Infantry safety campaign serves as a reminder to all that safety is everybody's business, whether military or civilian.

7th Cavalry Men Go to Stewart For Tank Firing

By 7th Cav PIO

The main body of Troops from the 3rd Reconnaissance Squadron, 7th Cavalry departed for Fort Stewart, Georgia, last Monday.

The convoy, consisting of 15 vehicles under the command of Captain Samuel H. Epps, arrived at Fort Stewart after a ten-hour overland road march.

Riding in the convoy were the tankers scheduled to commence the Annual Tank Gunnery firing.

The advance party that preceded the main body by seven days has drawn M-41 tanks which the crew members will fire during the next two weeks.

Lt. Col. Leonard L. Keene, squadron commander, also departed by army aircraft Monday and performed column cover during the road march.

Four 9th Officers Assigned to TDY

Four 9th Infantry officers are currently serving on temporary duty.

Captain Thomas A. Austin, the 9th's S-2, heads the list on TDY to Fort Lee, Virginia, for 16 days. Captain Fred Darden, assistant 9th Infantry adjutant, is currently attending the Pathfinder Course on Main Post.

Lieutenant John Foster has been placed on temporary duty with the Third U.S. Army Marksmanship Detachment. He is a member of the 9th's Company A. Lieutenant Ernest Gulledge, a platoon leader with the 9th's S-2, heads the list on ing a CER course at Fort McClellan, Alabama.

QM Officer Plt. Leader At 11th Inf

By 11th Inf PIO

An officer not encountered often in the Infantry is a quartermaster officer.

Company C, 11th Infantry, has such an officer in Lieutenant Thomas B. Arwood.

Serving his two-year obligation with a combat arm of the service, Lt. Arwood is a platoon leader and has the instructional responsibility of training the weapons platoons of the battle group.

Lt. Arwood selected the Infantry as his combat arm so he could learn to understand the problems of the foot soldier in order to try to more adequately support them upon his return to the Quartermaster Corps.

Athlete

He attended Bowling Green College in Ohio, receiving athletic letters in wrestling, football and fencing. Upon graduation as a distinguished military graduate in 1958 he went to work for a department store.

Entering the Army in 1959, Lt. Arwood attended the Quartermaster School at Fort Lee, Va., and was then assigned to Dugway Proving Ground at Dugway, Utah.

At this post he served as commissary officer and deputy quartermaster.

Upon leaving Dugway for The Infantry School, Lt. Arwood received a commendation and letter of achievement from the commandant.

He is married and calls Fostoria, Ohio, his home.

Hands 11th 10-0 Loss

By Nelson Marsh

With righthander Billy White twirling a no-hitter, the 9th Infantry pounded the 11th Infantry crew 10-0 Monday in division softball play at Essebagger Field.

3-0 Record

The triumph was the Manchu's third without a loss, all credited to White. The defeat for the 11th Infantry marked their third venture into the loser's column. White's assortment of fast balls, curves, and knuckleballs completely baffled the 11th's hitters. White fanned 10 of the 17 men he faced in the five-inning contest. He allowed only two baserunners, one reaching via a walk and the other was hit by a pitch.

The 9th Infantry's first two batters reached base safely in the opening inning on successive 11th Infantry errors. The Manchu "nine" used this start as a springboard to launch a six-run rally in the first frame. With centerfielder Waymouth Wyche and third baseman Harry Hall on second and third base respectively, catcher Max Powell rifled a double to center to scroe both runners. Two 9th Infantry singles and a triple by White netted four more runs before the third out of the inning.

After tallying a lone run in the fourth, the Manchus wrapped up the contest with a three-run outburst in the fifth on an error, a base on balls, and White's second triple. White drove in three runs with his pair of triples. Powell collected a double and a single good for a pair of runs batted in. Hall had two singles and he and Wyche each scored twice. Shortstop Bill Sanford and first baseman Robert Hiller each singled once for the 9th's other two safeties.

The 11th Infantry hurler, John Moses, gave up eight hits and two walks. He struck out five, but his mates committed four errors behind him.

No-Hitter

White retired the 11th Infantrymen in order in every inning but the second when he gave up a walk and hit one batter. He settled down after that, however, and whistled a third strike past the next seven batters.

White has gone the distance in each of his three victories. He has fanned 27 batters and walked only three in 18 frames of hurling. In addition White has fired two shutouts and surrendered only four hits and one run in his first three outings. He has aided his own cause with three triples, two singles, and a double good for five runs scored and five rbi's.

Sep Bn Wins . . . and Loses

By 69th Armor PIO

Back in their own stomping ground, Sand Hill, fresh from their Kelley Hill defeat over the 1st Infantry the night before, the Separate Battalions lost to Division Trains May 4.

The final score read Division Trains 5-Separate Battalions 3.

Ira Myers and Manual Zepeda teamed up to allow the Separate Battalions only five hits.

Zepeda started the game, was relieved by Myers in the third inning. Myers was credited with the win.

Home runs figured in most of the scoring. Harold Gaither hit one for the Separate Battalions with none on in the third, and Galen Hawkins hit one in the fourth with one on.

For Division Trains, Vincent Bujan hit one in the fourth with no one on.

Myers helped win his own game with a homer in the fifth with two men aboard.

A dropped third strike and two overthrows in a row allowed Trains' Finley to score on his own strike out.

Chuck Bootle was the losing pitcher.

Shaded 1st

Wednesday night, May 3, on the Kelley Hill diamond, the Separate Battalions knocked off the 1st Infantry by a score of 3-2. Earle Smith as the winning pitcher. It was his first win against no defeats.

Separate Battalions scored one run in the first innings. The 1st Infantry came back with a run in both the fifth and sixth innings. It wasn't until the bottom of the seventh that the Separate Battalions pushed across two runs to wrap the game up.

Luther Portis was tagged with the loss, his first.

23rd Wins Two, Gives Up One

By 23rd Inf PIO

With the 2nd Division Softball Tournament less than two weeks old the 23rd Infantry's sluggers are locked in a four-way tie for second place.

Also occupying the number two spot are the 1st Infantry, Division Trains and Separate Battalions.

The 23rd has won two of its three games, trampling the 87th Infantry 11 to 3, edging the 11th Infantry, 6 to 5, while falling to Separate Battalions, 8 to 0.

Arthur Wilds commanded the mound for the 23rd in two of the games and was credited with the win over the 87th, as well as the loss to Separate Battalions. Juan Mora hurled for the victory over the 11th Infantry.

The 23rd nine are coached by James Searcy, who also holds down first base. Other members of the team are Joseph Galambos, 2nd base; Darrel Lee, 2nd base; William Hart, shortstop; John Ussleman, 3rd base.

Outfielders include Donald Kess; Will Bell; Charles Jenkins; Sylvester Hill; Jimmy Stout.

The 23rd batteries are George Whitton, catcher; Michael Fontana Jr., catchers; Arthur Wilds, pitcher; Gordon Millis, pitcher; and Juan Mora, pitcher.

Cav. Member Wins Bowling Award

By 7th Cav PIO

At a ceremony at the completion of the winter bowling season, the coveted Sportsmanship Award was presented to Staff Sergeant Cebert R. Browning, 7th Cavalry, by the Columbus City Bowling Association.

He was a member of the Sunset Bowling League for the Rands Garage team throughout the winter season.

All members of the league vote for the outstanding member to determine the individual to receive this award. Sgt. Browning's team placed second in the six-team league. His average for the season was 178.

5th Inning Grand Slam Highlights Sep Bns Win

One bit plus six strike-outs and a grand slam home run by Virgil Brown was the combination that gave Separate Battalions' Earl Smith his second win of the division softball tournament as his team downed the 23rd Infantry 8-0 Monday night.

Smith allowed only one hit throughout the game in the bottom of the third inning.

All Separate Battlions' scores came in the third, fourth and fifth frames.

In the third, Gaylor Hawkins got on the base paths with a single and was brought home on a home run by Harold Gaither.

Brown opened the fourth with a single, stole a base and romped home on another hit by Hawkins.

Gaither bounced one off the right field wall for a two-bagger and skipped home on an error in the top of the fifth. Charles Byrd and Leon Steffy each singled and Smith walked to fill the bags.

With the stage thus set, Brown hit his four-bagger to complete the scoring for the evening.

Arthur Weld was the losing pitcher for the 23rd Infantry.

1st Has Two Shutouts, Loss

Two back to back shutouts have rocketed the 1st Infantry into the division softball race. Their loss to Separate Battalions in a 2-2 squeaker marred a one-hit pitching performance by Luther Portis in the season opener.

The team's first win came on a two-hit 9-0 whitewashing of Division Artillery by David Jarrell. He amassed 16 strike-outs in the game which saw Manuel Shockley hit a home run and Haskell Conley have a perfect night at the plate with four hits.

Jarrell turned the tables on Division Trains Monday night as he fashioned another two hit shutout by a 4-0 score. He struck out twelve in this contest.

Wilbert Patterson provided the fireworks with his first four bagger of the season . . a blast over the center field fence at the Sand Hill diamond. The game ended on a sparkling throw from catcher Raymond Villalobos to nail a runner at third on an attempted steal.

In three league games the 1st Infantry has yielded only three runs and five hits.

7th Inning Homer Spoils Shut Out For 9th's White

By 9th Inf. PIO

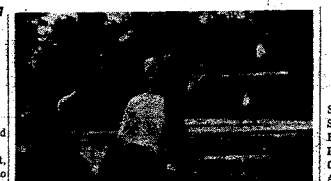
The 9th Infantry raced to its second straight victory in the Division softball tournament with a 9-1 win over the 87th Infantry May 4 at Essebagger Field behind a stunning 15-hit Manchu attack and Billy White's three-hit hurling.

The 87th's first sacker, Harvey Gibson, touched White for a seventh inning home run to spoil the righthander's shutout. Catcher Ronald Guy and second baseman John Bennett managed the other two safeties for the 87th squad.

White and the 9th Infantry centerfielder, Waymouth Wyche, both reached loser John Zimmerman for three hits. White included two singles, a long triple, one run batted in, and two markers scored among his evening's work. On the mound he struck out eight and walked only one. Wyche picked up a double and two singles, two runs scored, and one rbi.

Catcher Max Powell collected a pair of singles and first baseman Robert Hiller belted a double and a triple for the 9th .Hiller knocked in two men and scored once.

The Manchu "nine" scored in every frame but the first and the seventh in running their season mark to two wins and no losses. The 9th downed Division Artillery 10-6 in the opener. The 87th lost its opener 11-2 to the 23rd Infantry.



Chapel Is Aided By Glass Doors

By 9th Inf. PIO

Congregation members of the Division's Chapel Four were pleasantly surprised with the "new look" of the chapel entrance when they arrived for last Sunday's services.

The new look was the replacement of the old chapel doors by new full-length glass doors at the entrance to the chapel. Actually, the new look includes one set of two glass doors. The doors lead directly into the chapel proper. At the entranceway, the doors are flanked on both sides by attractive glass blocks.

Chapel Four is the first chapel in the 2nd Division to have the glass doors installed. Chaplain Mace T. Jett, 9th Infantry chaplain, expressed his approval of the new replacements. He stated that the glass doors are certainly an improvement over the old entranceway which consisted of the usual wooden doors.

Manchu Keglers Win Officers Bowling League

By 9th Inf. PIO

The 9th Infantry's entry in the Fort Benning Officers' Crimson Bowling League captured the league championship last week after a closely-fought play-off with the Tooth Plumbers.

Captained by Captain Matthew Ryan, the 9th Infantry squad named the "Sleepers", outrolled the Tooth Plumbers by a total of 20 pins. The 9th Infantry Sleepers won the officer league's first half of the season with 39 wins and 21 losses. The Tooth Plumbers, a team of post dentists, managed a record of 35½-24½ over the first half.

The Tooth Plumbers rallied in the second-half and bounced back with a 37½-18½ mark, while the 9th Infantry crew followed with a 36-20 slate. The divide in the two half championships forced the league into a playoff for the top honors. The Manchu Sleepers fired a 2,827 to the Tooth Plumbers' 2,807.

Other officers on the 9th Infantry's winning combination included: Captain James George, Lieutenant Billy Powell, Captain James Phillips, Major James Halpin, Major Willie Bloom, Captain William Sanford, and Lieutenant Jerome Poelking.

Powell, Hiller Led Attack to Defeat Cannoneers' 10-1

By 9th Inf. PIO

Brilliant one-hit burling by righthander Billy White sped the 9th Infantry to a opening game 10-0 triump over the Division Artillery "Cannoneers" May 3 at the Sand Hill diamond in Division Softball play.

A clean single to centerfield by the Cannoneer's Roy Place robbed White of a no-hitter. The fireballing righthander, who pitched the 9th Infantry to both the 1960 Fort Benning and Third Army softball championships, fanned nine and walked only one. He hit three batsmen.

Catcher Max Powell and first baseman Robert Hiller led the Manchu attack with three runs batted in each. Powell connected for three singles and a double in four times at bat. Hiller blasted a long home run with one man on and added a sacrifice fly for his third rbi. Centerfielder Waymouth Wyche collected a double and a single, good for one rbi. Wyche and Powell each scored twice.

The Ninth Crew netted four runs in both the second and sixth innings. The other two markers came in the fifth on Hiller's home run shot. Marion Boyd started for the Cannoneers and drew the loss. Jim Richie relieved him.

Major Unit Opener

Two-Niners Win In Final Inning

The opening game of the 1961 Major Unit Baseball League brought a Sunday afternoon crowd of some 600 persons out to see the 1st Battle Group, 29th Infantry, 1st Infantry Brigade team rise up in the final inning to defeat The Infantry Center Troop Command, 5-1, at Gowdy Field.

Col. John J. Pavlek, G-1 of The Infantry Center, tossed out the first ball from the grandstand at 1:45 p.m., beginning the post's 1961 season. The Infantry Center Band and the 29th Infantry Color Guard participated in the traditional pre-game ceremonies.

The season's opener was a pitching duel throughout eight innings, during which both teams scored only once.

Sp4 John Gerald, on the mound for the Two-Niners, achieved four strike-outs and walked on. CTC's Pfc Bruce Barry fanned three players and walked two before he was relieved mid-game by Sp4 Jack Reynolds, who struck out two and walked one.

Pfc Earl Junier scored the first and only run for Troop Command in the bottom of the second inning and his team led 1-0 until 2nd Lt. Bob Whitehead scored for the 29th Infantry on a walk in the top of the fourth, tying the game 1-1 until the final inning of the game.

The deciding plays of the game came in the top of the ninth inning when the Two-Niners scored four runs. Sgt. Bobby Hill led off with a single hit. Lt. Whitehead was put out on a line drive to the pitcher while Hill advanced to second base.

Sp4 Bob Palmer came over for a single which put two on base. Sp4 Al Spencer was an intentional walk, putting three board. Pvt. Herbert Word was put out on a fly to right field.

Pfc Ray Overchuck hit a line drive to third base, bringing in bat 2nd Lt. Guy Schettler, who contributed a double to clear the bases and put the Two-Niners out front 5-1.

The most dramatic moment of the game came in the last minutes when Troop Command failed to score from loaded bases, despite a valiant try.

The league schedule has games set for Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Thursdays at 7:30 p.m., two games on Saturdays at 1:30 and 7:30 p.m., and a single game Sundays at 2 p.m.

Troop Command meets the 2nd Howitzer Battalion, 10th Artillery, 1st Infantry Brigade Saturday at 1:30 p.m. and at 7:30 p.m. The Student Brigade plays the 151st Engineer Group.

Between 1952 and 1955, Sfc Hall held the light middleweight crown at Fort Benning, and during this time he won two out of four fights with Sfc Ed Crook, who is now the 1960 Olympic Gold Medal winner, as well as winner of the Alabama Golden Gloves.

In 1956, he captured the Southwestern Command Championship in Kaiserslauten, Germany.

SFC HALL

During the 1958-59 season, Sfc Hall boxed for the 1st Battle Group, 29th Infantry, going on to win the post Middleweight crown. He was chosen to represent Fort Benning in the Third Army matches and took the middleweight championship there.

In 1960, Sfc Hall copped the Florida State AAU Light-Middleweight Championship, and in 1961 he won the Third Army Championship in the same weight class. He has a total record of 140 fights, with 112 wins and 28 losses.

Sgt. Hall states that the two toughest fights in his boxing career were the Ray Lee and Roscoe Elliott of Fort Jackson, the latter in the 1953 Third Army Finals.

Swimmers In Atlanta Meet

YAC SWIMMER OF THE WEEK . . . Linda Spurlin, who is 11 years old, has been chosen as this weeks YAC swimmer of the week. She has been with YAC team for nearly three years, and is adept at the Butterfly, Breast Stroke, Freestyle and the Backstroke.

The Youth Activities Club Swimming Team traveled to Atlanta last week, participating in a swim meet with teams from East Point, Avondale, and the Boys Club at Atlanta.

Ken Valentine led off as he copped third place in the 11-12 year old's 50 yard breaststroke. Mike Rangel took third place in the same age group in the 50 yard free style.

In the 13-14 year old age group, Abe Valentin copped third place in the individual 200 - yard medley, as Kirk Meaux came in third on the 100-yard free style. Andy Wolfinger also took third place in the 100-yard backstroke in the same age group.

Charlie Robertson came in second in the 100-yard breast stroke in the same age group, as Stewart Moody copped third place in the 100 yard freestyle in the senior age division.

Abe Valentin, Kirk Meaux, Andy Wolfinger, and Steve Simmons teamed up to cop third place in the 200-yard free style relay.

In the girls section of the meet, Roma Eyster took first place in the 25 yard butterfly, Cassy Carrig won third place in the 25-yard free style, and Milenda Differ won second place in the 25 yard breaststroke, all in the eight years old and under age group.

In the nine to 10 year olds, Lorraine Syverson won first place in the 25 yard breast stroke, and Betty Jess took second place in the 25 yard backstroke.

Cathy Austin, Debbie Salmon, Sherry Moody, and Lorraine Syverson won first place in the 100 yard freestyle relay, as Kristin Vassar, Debbie Salmon, Sherry Moody and Claire Hinton took first in the 100 yard medley relay, both in the 9-10 year old group.

In the races for girls 11-12 Carol Freudendorf took first place in the 50 yard free style, Magda Valentin won third place in the 50 yard butterfly, Nancy Woodall copped third place in the 50 yard breaststroke, and Sandra Perkins took second place in the 50 yard back stroke.

Edith Freudendorf won first place in the individual 200 yard medley for girls 13-14 years old, while teammates followed through as Carol Hoffman took third place in the 100 yard freestyle, Debbie Kirk won second place in the 100 yard backstroke and Jean Verks won first place in the 100 yard breaststroke.

Debbie King, Carol Hoffman, Jean Yerks, and Edith Freudendorf teamed up to win first place in the individual medley relay and third place in the freestyle relay, both in the 13-14 age groups.

Keglers Receive Trophies

Trophies have been presented to the six Fort Benning bowlers winning berths on The Infantry Center Bowling Team by Brig. Gen. A. D. Surles, Jr., deputy commanding general of The Infantry Center.

The recipients are Lt. Col. Sam J. Adams Jr., MSgt. David E. Lee, Sfc Monty Kiggins Sfc Ed Burkhart, Sfc Billy Ross, and Sgt. Everett Kern.

The large gold-finish trophies awarded in ceremonies in Gen. Surles' office are ornamented by three figures of keglers and a clock.

In recent Third Army bowling competition at Fort Rucker, Ala., Sgt. Burkhart and Sgt. Kern won the doubles championship.

YAC Biddy League Play Is Started

The Youth Activities Club Biddy League, sponsored by the 1st Battle Group, 29th Infantry, 1st Infantry Brigade, opened its season last week with pre-game ceremonies at Doughboy Field.

Major Gen. Hugh P. Harris, post commander, was on hand to throw out the first ball after an opening address by Col. Samuel W. Koster, commander of the 29th Infantry.

Col. Koster spoke on the importance of good sportsmanship and said, "You have to learn to lose as well as to win."

The Orange Indians, sponsored by Company F., downed Company A's Green Tigers, 7-3, following a one-day delay because of rain.

Pfc Ruben J. Thompson and Pfc Percy Davis coached the winning team. Sgt. Robert Singleton piloted the Company A team. Umpires were Sgt. James F. Lewis and Sgt. Arvil R. Cox, both of Company C.

The 1st Infantry Brigade Drum and Bugle Corps, led by Sgt. Morris Caradine, provided some entertainment during the game.

Change in Baseball Weekly Schedule

Because of the late start in the post Major Unit Baseball League, weekly schedules through June 17 have been readjusted to make up the games at the beginning of the schedule.

The revamping calls for singles games on Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Thursdays at 7:30 p.m., two games on Saturdays at 1:30 and 7:30 p.m. and a single game Sundays at 2 p.m.

Residents of the Columbus-Phenix City-Fort Benning area are invited to attend. There is no admission charge.

Parking facilities are at the chapel parking lot on Hall Street between Brient Wells Field House and Stilwell Field and the area behind the Main Theater.

SP5 Kaiser's Problem Column

DEAR VERNON: I have recently been appointed as custodian of our unofficial company slush fund. Our IG comes up soon, and I want to have the slush fund in good shape. Can you tell me what regulations (AR, SR, etc) will help me?

DEAR NEW CLERK: All funds must be approved by the installation commander. (See Par. 2B, AR 230-5.)

DEAR VERNON: Is it true that the timid confused women who keep slicing sections out of the family garage are disappearing?

SAFE DRIVER

DEAR SAFE DRIVER: No; just the garages.

DEAR VERNON: Last week my platoon sergeant gave me a suggestion blank and told me to fill it out. I think I have some good suggestions, but I am afraid my buddies will laugh at them. What should I do?

SUGGESTION

DEAR SUGGESTION: Submit your suggestion. They probably laughed at Hunt when he invented the safety pin.

DEAR VERNON: My wife keeps trying to go on a diet. She has tried at least six times in the past year and none have done her any good. Is there anything I can do to keep her from being so concerned about her weight?

DIET CONTROL

DEAR DIET CONTROL: No, the moment a women passes 140 pounds her chief interest in life is spotting another woman fatter than she is.

LOOK BEFORE MOWING

Inspect the area to be mowed and remove all loose objects such as stones, sticks, and bits of wire, before starting power mower. Mark small obstructions such as iron stakes, water pipes, and the like, so that you wont run over them and break the rotary blade. Children and pets should also be kept at a safe distance. Cars parked nearby should be moved to avoid breakage of windshields and door glass.

Check Stub Balancing's Easy Compared to Range Statistics

By M-Sgt. Charles A. Quinn

Are you one of those unfortunates whose check stubs never balance?

If so, you can appreciate the woes of two post officers who have to balance more than 500,000 stubs far more complicated than those in your check book.

Capts. Robert I. Farris and John D. Ramsey, of Army March Headquarters, are statistical officers responsible for the tabulation of approximately 500,000 Army competitive marksmanship scores per month.

"We will require some 14 different 'stubs' for complete tabulation of competitors and scores in each match in the next month for example. A total of 25 matches are scheduled," said Capt. Ramsey, pistol statistical officer.

These are individual stubs, or score cards, he added, pointing out that the entry of some 300 expected competitors in the 1961 championships would call for the writing of the name of entrants about 13,000 times. In addition, there would be the writing of the individual's unit, his target number, his relay number and his final score.

All but the actual score is entered before the matches begin. Each of the nearly 350 cards required for each entry in the matches must be exact-by correct before a shot is fired, the officer said.

This work is accomplished by the Pistol Statistics Section, whose staff consists of two officers and six enlisted men and calls for more than a little burning of midnight oil.

"Our real trouble starts, however, when competition opens," Capt. Ramsey said.

He added that each shot fired must be carefully recorded and totaled, checked and rechecked, graded according to the classification of the firer, listed on a "preliminary bulletin," posted on a master control sheet, and finally, printed on the official match bulletin.

"Under normal conditions the section can get out a preliminary bulletin about one hour after the last shot of a match is fired," he said.

Under abnormal conditions, Capt. Ramsey explained, his section really has to work when a number of firers receive "alibis," official permission to re-fire because of some difficulty experienced through no fault of the firers. In this case, the required number of score cards has to be provided immediately.

Capt. Farris said his rifle section, although it didn't usually have the number of matches fired on the pistol range, had the problem of mobility to consider on top of everything else.

"We move up and down the ranges and operate directly behind the firing lines, which requires a constant moving between the 200, 300 and 600-yard ranges, and still keep up with our arithmetic," he added.

In spite of the hectic nature of the statistical requirements in operations governing huge competitive programs, both officers quoted error rates of less than one per cent.

"Yet," Capt. Farris said, "just one error out of thousands of score tabulations if not immediately discovered, could cause long hours of delay, embarrassment, and hard work in rechecking scores from the first to the last shot fired."

"If but one error were permitted to go unnoticed in each match fired," he said, "we'd be firing the championships until Christmas."

Lt. T. Pool Wins Calif. Rifle Crown

First Lt. Tommy G. Pool of the International Rifle Team on post won the Governor of California's International Rifle Trophy at Camp Matthews, Calif.

Lt. Pool, a member of the Advanced Marksmanship Unit, won three out of the four International - type matches scheduled during the 32nd California State Championships to which Army riflemen were invited.

The Governor's Trophy was presented to Lt. Pool for a total of 2,138 out of 2,400 points possible for the first two matches. Both of the matches called for 40-shot strings from the prone, kneeling and standing positions.

The 75 riflemen entries, defeated in all but a single instance by the AAMU marksman, indicate growing interest in the international-type rifle marksmanship among civilian circles.

According to bulletins issued at the California matches, entries had to be restricted to 75 shooters due to space limitations on Camp Matthews' new international range facilities.

Governed by International Shooting Union rules this type of shooting is fired at Olympic and world championships.

BOOKS in REVIEW

THE WHITE VOYAGE by John Cristopher. (Simon, 1961)

When the 'Kreya' was wrecked on the way from Dublin to Amsterdam and drifted to Arctic waters its skipper and crew and its passengers —an unmarried couple, a lonely woman with her child, a beautiful girl with a trained bear — were faced with a desperate fight for survival.

SEND A GUNBOAT by Douglas Reeman. (Putman, 1961)

A story concerning the adventures of a British navy captain who following a court-martial for negligence, proves himself when he sails a decrepit little gunboat to evacuate British nationals from a small island off the coast of China, before the Communists take it over.

MAN'S DESIRING by Menna Gallie. (Harper, 1960)

This novel is a comedy of contrasts (male versus female; Welsh versus English) . . . Griff Rowlands, fresh from a Welsh village —with a new dress suit and his Mam's fruit cake, comes to a Midlands university where he is not only homesick for the simple virtues of his homeland but put off by the chilly climate at Warbeck Hall — and particularly Lydia Kilmartin, highly attractive and destructively clever.

DEAR ONES ALL by Jean Rikoff. (Viking, 1961)

Widowed Lydia Trible and her five married daughters play central roles in this domestic novel set in Springfield, Illinois. Continually alternating between past and present, the story describes in monolithic detail the personalities and many problems of an unhappy and, in some respects, unconventional family group.

THE ENDLESS HOUR by Wallace L. (Norton, 1961)

An Air Force Captain who spent the years from 1953 to 1955 in a Chinese Communist prison in Korea reveals how he fell into enemy hands, was confined and cruelly tormented, and finally . . . was released after a thirty-one month ordeal.

Masquers Conduct Theater Make-Up Classes on Post

The second in a series of classes on theatrical make-up was held Tuesday at The Masquers' Playhouse, Building 1045 in the old hospital area.

This class was the beginning of stage characterizations, the first being juvenile make-up, instructed by Terry Thompson of Columbus, and Pfc Dick Weeks.

Both instructors have professional experience in the field of make-up. The workshop was held in conjunction with the Drama Workshop's regular meeting.

U. S. Firers Are Practicing on Post For 'Running Deer' Rifle Course

By MSgt. Charles A. Quinn

Army riflemen on the post are fast mastering the Running Deer Match course of fire which an American team will shoot in world championships at Oslo, Norway, in June.

Practice and final U. S. team trials will take place at the post from May 5 to 18 under sponsorship of the International Shooting Committee of the National Rifle Association, with cooperation of the Continental Army Command and The Infantry Center.

"Of all matches conducted by the International Shooting Union at world marksmanship levels," 1st Lt. Willis L. Powell said, "the Runnin Deer course is least familiar to our American competitors."

European Favorite

This particular match has been a favorite among shooters of European countries for many years, according to Lt. Powell who heads the Army Advanced Marksmanship Unit's International Running Deer squad, but remained literally unknown to American marksmen until early 1958.

The match consists of firing 100 rifle shots at a target in the life-size shape of a buck deer, which speeds across a opening some 27 yards wide and 100 meters distant. ISU rules reqire that the target be exposed for not less than 2.5 and not more than 4.2 seconds as it makes its runs on a trolley carriage.

A bull's-eye about the size of a saucer is superimposed on the target's "shoulder" and counts five points for each hit. An outer ring, approximately the diameter of a dinner plate, counts four points while less vulnerable parts of the "deer" count three, two and one points.

Fire 100 Shots

"Fifty shots are fired singly by each competitor," Lt. Powell said, "and then 50 are fired in 25 strings of two shots each."

The latter phase requires that each of the two shots be carefully aimed and fired at the scarcely believeable rate of some one and three-quarter seconds, the AAMU officer said.

He added that the course demands the utmost from weapons, ammunition and riflemen and that the AAMU has selected a slide-action rifle in .222 caliber as the weapons best suited to match requirements.

"Right now," he grinned, "the argument is raging in the unit as to whether the conventional rifleman or the shotgunner makes the best Running Deer competitor."

This controversy rose, he said, when the Running Deer riflemen found they had to "lead" the speeding target to place their bullets in the five-ring, a "swing and follow-through" action normal to shotgun shooting at flying targets.

Out to Win

Lt. Powell, a crack rifleman, was non-committal on the subject but he stated his squad was bearing down with the view of winning a share of the Running Deer slots on the American team to shoot in Oslo and of going after world crowns in both individual and team events.

With almost no preparation or practice, America succeeded in winning the individual crown for the doubles event and second place in the team match during world championships at Moscow in 1958.

The USAAMU squad training at Benning, Lt. Powell said, represents the first of its type organized by the unit.

The program, he said, is in consonance with America's objectives in her participation in world shooting events which have been largely dominated by marksmen of the Soviet Union.

The Oslo shoot will see American individuals and teams entered in the three events. In addition to the Running Deer competition, U. S. shooters also will compete in International Skeet and Trapshooting Matches against some 72 countries invited to participate.

Infantry Center Rifle And Pistol Banquet Held

The Infantry Center Rifle and Pistol Team officials' banquet held last week was hosted by The Student Brigade.

Special guests for the occasion were Brig. Gen. A. D. Surles Jr., deputy post commander; Col. William A. McKee, The Infantry Center chief of staff; Col. Otto Koch Jr., brigade commander, Col. Lewis W. Leeney, Lawson Army Aviation Command commander; and Col. Burton C. Boatright, Army Match Executive.

During the match firing in the spring and summer months, the S4 Section of The Student Brigade opens five temporary type mess halls to feed the 1,000 or more men in the Third Army and All-Army Rifle and Pistol competitions. The brigade maintenance shop, under the direction of 2nd Lt. Roy S. O'Neal, makes the necessary repairs and renovation of the buildings.

The brigade's ration-breakdown section, which handles over two million individual meals a year, supports this mission.

MSgt George T. Harrington, assisted by Sfc John G. Mullis, Sp5 Lincoln H. Duncan, Cpl. William P. Keaton, Sp4 James Moore, Pfc Laurent D. Cadd and Pfc Lauren D. Cadd and Pfc Frederick Council, is in charge of the mess supervision and management of this brigade function. Capt. James L. Glass, assistant S4, The Student Brigade, is the officer in charge.

In addition to support of the match firing, The Student Brigade also provides meals for the Boy Scouts, the Youth Activities Club (YAC), Fourth of July Carnival, Special Services banquets and activities, and recently the Third Army Talent Contest.

Unitarians Elect Officers

Major George C. Walsh has been elected president of the Unitarian Fellowship of Fort Benning and Columbus, succeeding 1st Lt. Robert P. Sanches.

Other officers elected include Pfc Allen Cohen, vice president; Mrs. Jane Walsh, wife of Major Walsh, secretary; Capt. Vernon B. Hill, treasurer, and Ben Henry of Tallahassee, librarian.

The fellowship meets each Sunday at 7 p.m. in the 1st Infantry Brigade Chapel.

Armed Forces Day Messages

The President

PROCLAMATION

WHEREAS the survival of our cherished freedoms is dependent in large measure upon the capabilities of our armed forces to discourage totalitarian aggression; and

WHEREAS the armed forces of the United States serve as a unified team, at home and across the seas, in the pursuit of a durable peace and

WHEREAS the strength of our armed forces rests not alone upon their active and reserve members, our industrial productivity, and our human resources, but also upon the an informed American people; and

WHEREAS we seek to acknowledge and to manifest our appreciation for the dedication and self-sacrifice of the members of our armed forces and their families:

NOW, THEREFORE, I, JOHN F. KENNEDY, President of the United States of America and Commander in Chief of the armed forces of the United States, do hereby proclaim the third Saturday of May in 1961 and the third Saturday of May in each succeeding year as Armed Forces Day.

I direct the Secretary of Defense on behalf of the Army, the Navy, the Air Force, and the Marine Corps, and the Secretary of the Treasury on behalf of the Coast Guard, to designate that day each year for appropriate ceremonies, demonstrations, and displays both at armed forces installations and in civilian communities at the invitation of civil authorities. The Secretary

Parade Tops Week-Long Activities

Fort Benning is being represented all over the South during Armed Forces Week with equipment and personnel.

Lawson Army Aviation Command, The Infantry Center Troop Command, 1st Infantry Brigade and units of the 2nd Infantry Division are participating in demonstrations, parades, exhibitions and displays on Air Force bases, Army posts and in cities and towns in North Carolina, South Carolina, Alabama and Georgia.

The majority of the activities are set for tomorrow, which, by Presidential proclamation, is Armed Forces Day 1961.

An impressive line of modern equipment showing the scope of the Army at the post has been displayed in store windows and streets of downtown Columbus throughout the week.

Exhibits of 13 major activities at the post, and the 2nd Division, are on view in some 35 store windows on Broadway and streets intersecting Broadway.

There also are displays by the Navy Reserve Unit, Navy, Air Force and Marine Recruiting Services.

Traveling Displays

Units participating in the Armed Forces Day Parade in Columbus today at 4 p.m. will be The Infantry Center Honor Guard Company; The Infantry Center Band; The 29th Infantry Scout Dog Platoon; WAC Company, Infantry Center Troop Command; and units of the 2nd Infantry Division.

Increase Expected

Awards for Suggestions Go to Nearly 100 Here

Approximately 100 military and civilian personnel of the post will be presented awards for time, money and labor-saving suggestions to the Army during May, which has been designated as the Chief of Staff's Suggestion Month.

The awards are for suggestions submitted during the past several months and will be presented by the chiefs of activities in which they have been adopted, according to J. Frank Spear, executive secretary of the Incentive Awards Committee.

Spear predicts a sharp increase in suggestions as a result of the suggestion month. Every military and civilian member of the Army is expected to submit at least one constructive suggestion pertaining to daily duty by May 31, when the Army-wide campaign ends.

Two members of The Infantry Center Troop Command's WAC Company were presented awards by Lt. Col. Glen Soderstrom, deputy commander of Troop Command, at a ceremoney at the company last Saturday. Sfc Edith M. Allen received a letter of appreciation for devising a card volume counter to be used for comparing transaction codes and dollar amounts on documents processed within The Infantry Center's Finance and Accounting Office. The counter will provide a quick, easy and efficient method of determining accuracy of documents.

Pvt. Marilyn J. Wheable was presented two letters of commendation for proposing utilization of telephone head sets by personnel of the telegraph office at The Infantry Center and for proposing that teletype machines in the office be replaced by the new type Desk-Fax machine which will allow automatic transmissions. Adoption of her suggestions is expected to result in intangible benefits and monetary savings of over $500.

Sgt. Allen and Pvt. Wheable both received $20 awards as a tie in Fort Benning's Monthly Military Suggestion Contest for April.

Among civilian employees slated to receive an award for an outstanding suggestion is William F. Armstrong. Armstrong suggested that maintenance personnel of the Wire Operations Branch of The Infantry Center's Signal Section be authorized to move buzzer systems and that these personnel move the buzzer systems at the same time they move telephones with buzzers.

Adoption of Armstrong's suggestion relieves the Electrical Branch of The Center's Engineer Section of a simple task that requires more time in transportation and paper work than in doing the job itself. Principal savings to the government is in transportation and record-keeping.

Armstrong is employed at the Review and Analysis Branch of The Center's Office of the Comptroller.

The comptroller has over-all responsibility for conducting the Suggestion Month campaign at the post.

Subcommittees have been established in all activities to encourage suggestions such as the ones submitted by Sgt. Allen, Pvt. Wheable and Armstrong.

ARMED FORCES WEEK . . . A combat entrenching machine is shown on display in Columbus, marking Armed Forces Week. The entrenching machine is equipment of the 577th Engineer Battalion, 151st Engineer Group.

Civilian Strength

The 361,000 civilians employed by the Army perform myriad tasks that free military personnel for combat and supporting operations.

Gen. Harris Visits Home State Today For Celebrations

Major Gen. Hugh P. Harris, commandant of The Infantry School and commanding general of The Infantry Center will participate in the Armed Forces Week celebration in Chattanooga today. He will attend a luncheon and program at the Hotel Patten.

Gen. Harris considers Lawrenceburg, Tenn., his home. He attended Lawrenceburg High School and Columbia Military Academy in Columbia, Tenn.

At Municipal Auditorium

Searchlight Tattoo Plays to Full House

Approximately 1,500 persons attended a spectacular Searchlight Tattoo and Massing of the Colors ceremony at the Columbus Municipal Auditorium Monday night.

In officially launching the local observance of Armed Forces Week, the pageantry and outstanding military music of Jordan Vocational High School's nationally recognized Red Jacket Band united the servicemen and civilians present for the first evening's presentation in an appreciation of the meanings and traditions surrounding the flags of free nations.

The program, co-sponsored by the Jordan band and the Columbus Chapter of the Military Order of the World Wars, was presented for the second and final time Tuesday night at the auditorium.

Brig. Gen. A. D. Surles, Jr., deputy commanding general of The Infantry Center, speaking for the commanding general, called for a renewed allegiance to an appreciation of the U.S. Flag.

Gen. Surles enjoined all to "take time out from the daily routine and pay reverence to the flag. We must preserve at all costs the heritage our forefathers passed on to us that it may be passed on to our children."

J. Robert Nelson, commander of the local MOWW, gave a welcoming address and introduced Gen. Surles.

The annual pageant opened with a reville routine and raising of the national Colors by the Jordan bandsmen. The backdrop depicted the administration building of the U. S. Military Academy.

Searchlights of various hues played over the arena as the Jordan Red Jackets performed in more than 40 numbers, ending with the "Stars and Stripes Forever" march.

The band played the national anthems of France, Canada, England and the United States, quick and slow marches, and musical salutes to the Army, Navy, Marine Corps and Air Force.

Appearing for the second year was 18 - year - old Jamie Hefner, a solo piper who is a senior at Glynn Academy, Brunswick.

Allied officers who took the salute as the national anthems of their respective countries were played included Lt. Col. Paul Aussaresses, France; Lt. Col. John Stuart McLaren, England, and Major Gordon Arthur Gunton, Canada.

Taking the salutes for their service branches' hymns were MSgt John E. Barnes, Army; Gunnery Sgt. D. S. Sapp, Marine Corps; SK2 (Storekeeper Second Class) Oran J. Sharp, Navy, and TSgt W. A. Boyken, Air Force.

A drill team from the 29th Infantry, 1st Infantry Brigade, performed with precision, as did two other teams, the Pershing Rifles of Auburn University and the Montgomery Rebels, composed of Montgomery high school ROTC students.

Special tableaux spotlighted included "The Spirit of '76" by members of the Arnold Junior High School Band and "Washington Crossing the Delaware" by members of the Jordan High School ROTC.

The "firing of the riffle" pollution was presented by a detachment from Company C of the 29th Infantry. A dramatic presentation, "I Am The Infantry," was performed by post personnel, including The Infantry Center Band, under the direction of Special Services.

Parade

Platoon to Fort Gordon for demonstrations today and tomorrow and to Georgia Military College, Milledgeville, for a Sunday afternoon performance.

A scout dog squad will also be seen at an open house at Dobbins Air Force Base tomorrow and to Georgia Military the brigade on view at the same time will be the Honest John rocket, SS-10 anti-tank missile, mechanical mule, cargo vehicle, with 106-mm recoilless rifle and 81-mm and 4.2-inch mortars.

The same display, minus the mortars, was set up by the brigade on Leonox Square in Atlanta May 13 and 15.

Lawson Army Aviation Command sent 11-37 helicopters for an open house at Fort Bragg, today and tomorrow; a static display at Show AFB, S.C. over the weekend; a display at Fort McClellan tomorrow and one at Robins AFB, through Sunday.

A UIA Otter aircraft and H-37 and H-34 helicopters from Lawson will participate in a fly over at 11:30 a.m. tomorrow at Albany. One of the helicopters will be on display.

The Infantry Center Band and a Color Guard from the 1st Brigade will participate in a parade at West Point, Ga., at 4:30 p.m. tomorrow.

The General Support Platoon of the 2nd Division's 2nd Aviation Company participated in the Armed Forces Day observance in Washington, D.C., last Saturday and Sunday.

Downtown Columbus

Street displays set up on the center strip on Broadway by the 428th Medical Battalion, 1st Infantry Brigade, 151st Engineer Group and chaplain activities have been manned all week.

The 428th Medical Battalion display, comprising a portion of the 3rd Field Hospital, is housed in four tents between 10th and 11th Sts., showing admission and disposition functions, preoperative care, surgery and medical training aids.

The 2nd Howitzer Battalion, 10th Artillery of the 1st Brigade has displayed Nike and Corporal missiles, towed and self-propelled howitzers and an anti-aircraft carrier between 12th and 13th Sts. Tanks and an armored carrier from the brigade's 1st Armored Rifle Battalion, 58th Infantry, also are on view.

The 151st Engineer Group is displaying equipment organic to an engineer construction battalion and to a float bridge company inthe area between 11th and 12th Sts.

Messages

of defense, as my personal representative, shall assume responsibility for initiating, formulating, and supervising the program contemplated by this proclamation and for soliciting the participation and cooperation in such program by civil authorities and distinguished private citizens.

Invite the Governors of the States, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, and other areas subject to the jurisdiction of the United States, and the Commissioners of the District of Columbia to provide for the observance of Armed Forces Day within their jurisdiction each year in an appropriate manner designed to enhance public understanding and appreciation of the armed forces of the United States as defenders of freedom at home and abroad.

I also ask my fellow Americans, as an expression of support for their armed forces and as a symbol of their unity in devotion to the preservation of our country, to display prominently the Flag of the United States on Armed Forces Day.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Seal of the United States of America to be affixed.

DONE at the City of Washington this eighteenth day of March in the year of our Lord nineteen hundred and sixty-one, and of the Independence of the United States of America the one hundred and eighty-fifth.

JOHN F. KENNEDY

Defense Secretary

National defense, like the continuing search for peace with freedom and justice for all, is "everybody's business." Our investment in this effort, the greatest in our nation's history, reflects our determination to ensure the peace and the future of freedom.

It is a sound investment. As the President has said, "only when our arms are sufficient beyond doubt can we be certain that they will never be employed."

Armed Forces Day is the annual report on this investment, a public presentation designed to give our own people, and the people of other lands who stand with us for peace with freedom and justice, the best possible opportunity to see and understand what we have and why we have it.

Every commander throughout our defense system has a responsibility to invite public attention to Armed Forces Day activities. As Secretary of Defense, I endorse their invitations and urge acceptance by the public.

ROBERT S. McNAMARA

Gen. Harris

The President has proclaimed Saturday, 20 May, as Armed Forces Day, a day set aside to honor the men and women in uniform and further public understanding of the role of the Armed Services in national defense.

On this day the Army joins with the other Services and with its civilian neighbors to display the weapons, ships and planes that our Armed Forces have to deter war and preserve the peace. It is a day on which each member of the Defense Team is given an opportunity to enhance his role as a defender of our nation's liberty.

I urge all members of this command to unite in this effort to focus public attention on the importance of the Army and its capability to perform its mission.

HUGH P. HARRIS
Major General, USA

Chaplain's Board

Almighty and eternal God, we humbly bow in Thy divine presence to lift our hearts in humble gratitude for the bountiful blessings Thou hast so generously bestowed upon us. As we count our blessings, may we not forget the grave responsibility which Thou hast placed upon us: To employ the effective power of the Armed Forces to bring peace in freedom to all mankind.

Help us, O God, to employ our strength and all our material resources to defend the human dignity of every citizen in every land, but may we ever be mindful that human progress and the elimination of fears and intangible anxieties can be achieved only as we, as individuals, make our personal contributions in the realm of moral and spiritual values.

While we conceive and construct the mighty weapons of war to discourage the enemies of freedom, may we walk in the paths of righteousness so that Thy wisdom may be our wisdom and Thy purpose our purpose.

As we search for more effective methods to increase our knowledge, to improve our way of life, and to protect our national and international interests, may we not forget that man's basic, fundamental, and eternal need is God.

As we push back the horizons of knowledge, may we place our hand in the hand of God and seek first His kingdom and His righteousness so that our advances into the storehouse of God's ancient and boundless truths may not overwhelm us but, instead, dispel the darkness that lies within us and bring the warming rays of God's healing power to the souls of all men everywhere.

Post P-TA Announces Donation Elects New Officers at Meeting

Donation of $1,000 to the post children's schools and election of officers highlighted the recent meeting of the Fort Benning Parent-Teacher Association.

The P-TA voted to give $236 for two sets of encyclopedias and $794.50 for audio-visual aids to the post school system.

Col. Sears Y. Coker, commander of the 151st Engineer Group, will serve as president for the coming year. He came to the post last November.

A 1941 graduate of the U.S. Military Academy, he received a master of science degree from Massachusetts Institute of Technology in 1947.

Other new officers of the organization are Lt. Col. Wilbur F. Holland, commander of the 702nd Ordnance Battalion, 2nd Infantry Division, first vice president; Sgt. Major James D. Rogers, 1st Battle Group, 29th Infantry, 1st Infantry Brigade, second vice president, and Mrs. Alexander C. Page, wife of Major Page, Engineer Committee, The Infantry School's Command and Staff Department, secretary.

Mrs. Walter C. Braun, wife of Lt. Col. Braun, Infantry Center G-1 Section, assistant secretary; Sfc Rayford P. Watson, 2nd Administrative Company, 2nd Division, treasurer, and Sfc Lester H. Commander, 15th Finance Section, The Student Brigade, assistant treasurer.

Col. Braxton E. Small, retiring president, installed the new slate in the program in Faith School auditorium.

Mrs. Hazel J. Scudder, superintendent of the Children's Schools, expressed her appreciation for the support and cooperation given the schools by the P-TA througout the past year.

Chaplain (Major) Russell K. Lee, 1st Infantry Brigade chaplain, delivered the invocation and benediction.

Recently Promoted, Gen. Kelly Will Be Assigned Here in June

Col. John E. Kelly, who will come to Fort Benning for assignment next month, has been promoted to the rank of brigadier general.

A 1936 graduate of the U.S. Military Academy at West Point, Gen. Kelly is G-3 of Fourth Army, Fort Sam Houston.

The 49-year-old officer attended The Infantry School's regular officers course in 1939 and tank course the following year. He is a 1953 graduate of the Army War College, Carlisle Barracks, and also is a graduate of the Command and General Staff College and Armed Forces Staff College.

Gen. Kelly received a master of arts degree from the University of Quebec, Canada, in 1941.

Among his decorations are the Distinguished Service Cross, Silver Star and Bronze Star Medal with Oak Leaf Cluster.

Decatur Students To Visit Benning

Seventh grade students of Beacon Elementary School, Decatur, Ga., will visit The Infantry Center May 26.

The youngsters will arrive at the post at 1 p.m. and witness an obedience demonstration by the 29th Infantry Scout Dog Platoon at Bolling Bowl. Then they will tour the Infantry Museum.

Mrs. Sara T. Blackmon, principal of Beacon School, is in charge of arrangements for the trip.

Next Month

Gen. Harris To Visit UK, Germany

Major Gen. Hugh P. Harris, post commander and Infantry School commandant, will be in Europe June 7 to 20 as an official visitor in the United Kingdom and to view U.S. Army activities in Germany.

He will be the guest of Major Gen. K. T. Darling, new director of Infantry of the British Army, at the War Office, Whitehall, London, June 7 to 13. During his stay he also will visit the British School of Infantry at Warminster. Its commandant, Brigadier J. A. J. Read, visited this post last October.

During his week's stay in Germany, the two-star general will visit V. Army Corps at Frankfort; VII Army Corps, Stuttgart; Headquarters, U.S. Army Europe, Heidelberg; Seventh Army, Stuttgart, and the 24th Infantry Division, Augsburg. He will attend a review of the 4th Armored Division in Grafenwohr June 16.

Gen. Harris will leave Fort Benning June 2 to participate in the 30th reunion of the class of 1931 at the U. S. Military Academy and attend graduation ceremonies. He will leave New York June 7.

Capt. G. S. Meloy, aide-de-camp, will accompany Gen. Harris. They will return to Fort Benning June 21.

Gause One of 25 To Attend Course

First reports of a unit, section, department or office reaching 100 per cent membership in the Association of the U.S. Army credit the Combat Developments Office of The Infantry School with the honor. It's 19 officers and four top three graders reached the top with Capt. Richard D. Reish as project officer. The association is continuing a drive aimed at unseating the top two chapters in the nation. It's an ambitious goal, but there are many, many eligible prospects at Benning. The association deserves all our support, and there's no better way than through the local chapter.

Without Counting Life and Limb

Even though we have the best safety program in or out of the Federal Government, Army accidents cost us $88,600,000 last year. And this whopping figure is only the direct cost. Indirect costs, practically impossible to accurately tabulate, are usually calculated to be four times as great. That comes to a staggering $354,400,000.

Burns of Williams College, who ran for Congress, and Former Governor Furcolo.

Journal Says Battalions Returning

The Army-Navy-Air Force Journal expects an official announcement, probably this week, on a new plan for replacing the Pentomic division Structure, according to a page 1 story. As outlined by the Journal, the alteration would restore the battalion, and make use of brigades as combat commands. Four type divisions were mentioned: Infantry, Airborne, Armor and Mechanized.

Slippery Customer . . .

When Sgt. Ollie G. Burton, supply sergeant of the 72nd Engineer Company, 1st Infantry Brigade, saw the visitor crawl out of some recently delivered lumber in his supply room, he didn't even pause to ask for an issue slip or justification before beating a hasty retreat. According to 2nd Lt. Leon F. Alexander, the stranger was a two-foot timber rattler. They called the Ranger Department to come dispose of the snake. We bet anyone making a whirring noise in that supply room in the near future will have trouble getting supplies.

And Here's One For The Book . . .

A young private first class walked up to the circulation desk at The Infantry School's Academic Library, and said: "Maybe you can help me. I'm looking for a book, but I don't know the title or the author's name. All I know is that it has a black cover."

Editorial

Library and Classroom Are Our Launching Pads

There has never been a time in our country's history when ideas played a greater part in determining great events. There has never been a time when more emphasis was put on education. And for service people, most emphatically, there has never been a time when the Armed Forces provided better library facilities and encouraged us to use them.

National Library Week, April 16-22, reminds us of this with its slogan, "For a Richer, Fuller Life—Wake Up and Read." It's true that reading can be a source of enormous pleasure and satisfaction—library doors are open doors to a world of adventure, drama and romance. The more we read, the more we increase our capacity for reading enjoyment. Habit-forming? Most certainly—and most salutary.

But it is important to our growth as thinking members of a complex and highly trained military organization that we push our reading beyond the pleasure principle and make it work for us. On the world scene, political and economic developments occur almost daily with dizzying swiftness. We read in the newspapers about them; we hear about them on the radio; we watch them on television.

Do we, however, understand them—see in them forces and ideologies at work which can in turn produce still other developments—as well as we could? Here's the point at which we can depart from the news media and turn to the library shelves for perspective on history in the making. We can read not for relaxation but to be stimulated and mentally disciplined into a sharper awareness of what is significant and what is merely topical in national and world events.

Many of us have books of our own, collected through the years. But a personal library cannot provide adequately for us if we are to use books for self-advancement. That is the stellar role of our schools and our public libraries, be they military or civilian.

The Judge Says . . .

By Capt. Robt. S. Poydasheff

This is the first article of a two-part series.

Indebtedness is a major concern of this command. Grave h a r dships, embarrassments and terminated Army careers have resulted from improperly used credit. Upon close scrutiny, it has been found that many of the ramifications of improperly used credit have been caused by the wife, who insists upon a standard of living above the means of her soldier husband.

She often makes purchases on credit, which are not, under the law, lawful debts of the husband. At some later date, the husband is notified of the debt and a demand is made upon him by the seller to pay it. Through his own ignorance, he agrees to pay or is advised to pay, and thereafter makes some payments which upset his budget to such a degree that he cannot adequately take care of current bills which accumulate into delinquent accounts. This article will attempt to answer the question: "When is a husband liable for the debts created by a wife?"

In theory, the husband is liable for the debts of his wife only when she is his agent. The law of agency is much too complex to be covered in detail in this short article, but in simplified form agency is of three types () EXPRESSED AGENCY, (2) IMPLIED AGENCY AND (3) AGENCY IMPOSED BY A LAW OR STATUTE. The relation of principal and agent arises whenever one person authorizes another to act for him, or subsequently approves the acts of another in his behalf. The creation of the agency relationship generally arises from the consent of the parties.

An EXPRESSLY CREATED AGENCY — case may be a product of the oral or written contract of the parties. An IMPLIED AGENCY—Case 2 is also an actual agency; it is a fact which is to be proved from deductions and inferences and from other facts and circumstances. For example, an agency may be implied from prior habits or from a course of dealings of a similar nature between the parties especially where the agent has repeatedly been permitted to perform similar acts in the past; but when the agency is implied, the agency must be determined from all the facts and circumstances.

The question in the above-mentioned agencies, i.e., express agency and implied agency is always to determine by the facts whether a party represents another, or is acting for another, and NOT what the parties may have designated their relations to be. Once the agency exists, it will be an agency whether the parties understood the exact nature of the relation or not. Therefore, unless the husband can be said to have made his wife either his express or implied agent, he should not promise to pay or be advised to pay a debt created by his wife.

Chaplain's Corner

A GOOD QUESTION
By Chaplain (Capt.)
Horace Sams, Jr.

Sgt. and Mrs. John Doe and their three children have just been assigned to Fort Benning. The first Sunday after they moved into their quarters, little Susie said at the breakfast table, "Daddy, are we going to Sunday School and Church today?" This is a typical situation and a most important question. How will Daddy answer it?

First, let me say that it is Daddy's responsibility to be personally concerned about this matter, and not leave the leadership in religion entirely up to "Mommy".

These parents could do several things about church attendance. Of course if they so decided, they could say, "Susie, we aren't going anywhere to Sunday School or church." That would leave a serious spiritual vacuum in all of their lives. Or, they could say, "We will send you to Sunday School on the bus, but we are not going to go with you." Then their example would be very poor before the children.

Another alternative would be to say ,"We are going to find a civilian church of our own denomination and we will go there instead of attending any of the religious services or activities in the military chapel program." The family might find some advantages in this course of action, but they might be overlooking the matter of where their Christian witness is needed most.

Another answer Sgt. and Mrs. Doe might give is, "We shall go to Sunday School and Chapel on post, and we shall not bother about any connection with any civilian church of any particular denomination." But then the entire family, and especially the children as they grow up, may feel that they do not have a church home of their own and that they do not quite know just what to believe.

Finally, Sgt. and Mrs. Doe could answer their daughter's question by saying: "We are Christians, and we are all going to Sunday School and worship service somewhere together as a family. God has led us into the military service, and we have both a military and a Christian obligation to support in every possible way the chapel and religious education program of our organization and post.

They need Sunday School teachers, DVBS workers, choir singers, ushers, etc., and your mother and I will help out all we can.

But we will not neglect to affiliate with some church of our own denomination in the civilian community and maintain contact with it and let it supplement the spiritual food we will get from the military chapel program."

Buffet Tonight Honors 44th Year

Medical Service Corps Anniversary Celebrated

COL. LAUGHLIN
Hospital XO

By Ida C. Evans

Approximately 60 Medical Service Corps officers at the post will celebrate the 44th anniversary of their corps at a buffet dinner this evening.

The event scheduled for 6:30 p.m. at the Supper Club of the Main Officers' Open Mess, commemorates the founding of the Army Medical Service Corps on May 18, 1917, the actual founding date of the unit's parent group, the Sanitary Corps.

In duties that range from piloting a helicopter to looking after the administrative details of a hospital, Medical Service Corps officers make a large contribution to the task of maintaining the health of military personnel and dependents on the post, officials have said.

Members of the corps serve in various capacities at Martin Army Hospital, on the Medical Committee of The Infantry School, with the 1st Infantry Brigade, 428th Medical Battalion and its attached units, and with the Second Medical Battalion, 2nd Infantry Division.

Include Pilots

Six MSC officers pilot air-ambulance helicopters to transport patients or evacuate injured personnel. The rotary wing ambulances can land and take off in a 40-square yard area.

Pilots are members of the 45th Medical Air-Ambulance Platoon, attached to the 428th Medical Battalion and based at Lawson Army Aviation Command. The commander of the 428th is a MSC officer, Lt. Col. Raymond J. Caldbeck.

Other MSC officers in the battalion include six members of Col. Caldbeck's staff, three officers of the 50th Medical Clearing Company, three in the 690th Medical Ambulance Company and four at the 3d Field Hospital.

MSC at Hospital

At Martin Army Hospital, the executive officer, Lt. Col. Thomas Laughlin, Jr. is a member of the corps. He directs the administrative services for operating the hospital.

Other administrative MSC officers at the hospital include Lt. Col. Frerick W. Hindley, chief of the Troop Command; Lt. Col. Edward R. Youngs, chief of the Supply and Service Division; Major Frank E. Blasky, chief registrar; Major John E. Ussery, methods improvement officer; Capt. Charles J. Weber, Jr., detachment commander, and 1st Lt. Bobby E. Brandford, adjutant.

Among the MSC officers in scientific and technical fields at the hospital are Col. Hindley, chief of the Clinical Laboratory; Major Robert G. Mayo, optometry officer; Major Vergus T. Monohan, chief of the Psychiatric Social Work Service, and Capt. Lawrence H. Mancini, chief of Pharmacy Service.

Assigned at TIS

There are two MSC officers on the Medical Committee of The Infantry School's Special Subjects Department. They are 1st Lt. Col. Chester H. Davis and Major John F. Davis.

The Medical Service Corps, as such, was established August 4, 1947. The corps traces its history, however, through the old Sanitary Corps and back to the American Revolution and the organization of the Army Medical Corps.

The mission of the corps is to provide scientific, technical and administrative support in the care of the sick and wounded and maintaining the health of the Army.

Traffic Violations

Recognizing that effective traffic law enforcement is necessary to protect the lives and property of the safe driver, the Bayonet will publish periodically the names of persons who have been cited by the Military Police for moving traffic violations on post. The column is printed in furtherance of the continuing Third Army area, and Fort Benning, to reduce the traffic accident rate.

The following military and civil service employees have been cited for violations during the period May 1-5.

Marshall Award Ceremony To Honor Writing Ability

The outstanding military writer in each of the two officer career classes at The Infantry School will receive the Gen. George C. Marshall Awards May 25.

The presentation will highlight graduation ceremonies for officer career classes 1 and 2 at 11 a.m. on Eubanks Field adjacent to The Infantryman Statue.

Brig. Gen. L. A. Walsh Jr., assistant commandant of The Infantry School, will present bronze medallions to the two recipients. Their articles will be purchased for publication in the July-August issue of The Infantry Magazine.

Lt. Gen. (Ret.) Reuben E. Jenkins of Columbus will be the speaker at the graduation exercises. Major Gen. Hugh P. Harris, commandant of The Infantry School, will introduce Gen. Jenkins.

Letters of commendation will be awarded to the honor graduates and second ranking graduates of each class.

The Infantry Center Band will play for the occasion. Also on the program will be "I Am the Infantry," a dramatic portrayal of the Infantryman from the Revolutionary War to the present.

Selection of the Marshall Award winners will be made from professional articles on infantry subjects submitted by the 396 students in the two classes.

The board is composed of Col. Harley T. Marsh Jr., director of cial Subjects Department; Col. Theodore Leonard, chief of the school's Editorial and Pictorial Office, and Lt. Col. James S. Douglas, editor of Infantry Magazine.

The awards were established by The Infantry School last year to help perpetuate the name of the renowned general, secretary of defense, secretary and state and president of the American Red Cross.

At Department Lunch A Hat is a Hat is a Hat

The ladies of The Infantry School's Communication Department held their monthly luncheon May 12 in the Normandy Room of the Main Officers' Open Mess. Hostesses for the occasion were Mesdames Francis O. Nugent, James R. Ruhlin, and Leonard J. Hatfield.

Crazy and beautiful hats, ranging from springtime creations of flowers to a red cabbage covered with net, were worn as each lady modeled a hat of her own creation.

Judges for the hat parade were Capt. Charles H. Scott and Capt. John E. Atkins of the department. Mrs. Glenn H. Gardner gave a descriptive commentary of each hat as the ladies modeled them before the judges.

Winner of the prize for the most original design was "Miss Maine", Mrs. James R. Ruhlin, depicting the Maine seacoast with a lighthouse, sailboat, fish and net. Mrs. David Fleming as "Miss Flower" won the prize for the prettiest hat with a bonnet of pink, aqua and yellow tissue roses covered with white net. The prize for the funniest hat went to Mrs. Sam J. Adams as "Miss Bowler". The hat was made from bowling awards won by Mrs. Adams.

The tables were laid with pink, green and white cloths centered with May poles and pastel colored streamers floating over lovely pink roses. Beside each plate was a beautiful nosegay of spring flowers.

Mrs. Harry Huppert, who was the guest of Mrs. James T. Carter, and Mesdames Moore, Allee, Underwood, Cannon, Block and Fleming, whose husbands are attending communications classes, were welcomed. Goodbyes were said to Mrs. Sam J. Adams, Mrs. James T. Carter, Mrs. Norman G. Miller and Mrs. Ferdinand Q. Epps.

Bessent's Coffee Serves as Monthly Airborne Meeting

The May meeting of the Airborne-Air Mobility Officers' ladies was a coffee held at the home of Mrs. Earl L. Bessent. Mrs. John L. Begley was co-hostess for the occasion.

The serving table was overlaid with a white linen cloth and centered with a lovely arrangement of yellow and white artificial flowers enhanced with dashes of red and orange. It was given as a door prize at the close of the meeting.

Mrs. Donald C. Bowman, a newcomer, was welcomed to the group.

Major R. C. Wilson Is Georgia Power Guest Speaker

Major Raymond C. Wilson, deputy chief of the Instructor Training Section of The School's Office of the Director of Instruction, spoke to the Georgia Power Company Woman's Club May 15. The meeting was held in the Georgia Power Company Service Building on Second Avenue in Columbus. Mrs. J. R. Allen was the program chairman. The presentation was one of a series of talks by post personnel during Armed Forces Week.

Early VBS Enrollment Requested

Registration forms for Vacation Bible School were distributed at four Sunday Schools on post last Sunday.

Parents are urged to complete the forms and return them to the Sunday Schools this Sunday.

Children may be enrolled in the VBS by telephoning Mrs. Marguerite Waldrop at 5-3304. Completed registration forms may be sent to Mrs. Waldrop in care of The Infantry Center Chaplains Section.

Early registration of children planning to attend the VBS, scheduled for the week June 19 to 23, will facilitate plans for obtaining materials, refreshments and adequate transportation for the school.

Choir Program is Set for Sunday

A special program of music by The Infantry Center Choir will be presented at the Main Post Protestant chapel at 9:30 and 11 a.m. Sunday.

Mrs. David L. Buckner, wife of Capt. Buckner will direct the choir. Accompanist will be Donald Carr of Columbus.

Scripture reading and prayers will be led by Chaplain (Capt.) Richard I. Carty.

Musical numbers to be presented by the choir include "The Creation" by Scott, "The Seraphic Story" by Rubinstein and "A Mighty Fortress" by Mueller.

New Officers Installed At Toastmistress Club

Mr. George Anderson, President of Columbus Toastmasters, installed new officers of Fort Benning-Columbus Toastmistress Club at a charter banquet held at the Country Club last week.

The officers are Mrs. Richard E. Evers, president; Miss Avis Gordee, vice - president; Mrs. C. B. Ingram, secretary; Mrs. Edwin E. Passmore, corresponding - secretary; Mrs. William W. Collins, treasurer; and Mrs. John S. McCord, and Mrs. John Passarella, club representatives.

A charter from International Toastmistress Clubs was presented by Mrs. Grace Woolf, founder of the Cocoto Club of Atlanta, to Mrs. Dion Johnson, out-going president. Mrs. Johnson, Mrs. Evers, and Mrs. David Bear founded the Fort Benning - Columbus Toastmistress Club last October.

Mrs. Bear was awarded a silver tray designating her the speaker-of-the-year. She was voted the winner of a speak-off held at the club's last meeting. The next meeting will be held May 25, at 7:30 p.m. Ladies interested in attending may contact Mrs. Johnson at MU 9-6456, or Mrs. Ingram at FA 7-1476.

Toastmistress International, parent organization of the local forensic group, is a worldwide body with more than 17,000 members.

The purpose of the Toastmistress Clubs is to instill poise and self confidence among its members, and to teach them to speak concisely and effectively before audiences, and to develop within each member the ability to listen intelligently and to offer constructive criticism to fellow speakers.

Ladies of ATIO Hold May Coffee

The Normandy Room of the Main Officers' Open Mess was the scene of the monthly Advanced Tactics, Intelligence and Operations Committee, Command and Staff Department, ladies coffee with Mrs. William Krell and Mrs. Loreto Celluci as hostesses.

Pirates, Maps, Provide Flair At 'Treasure Island' Luncheon

As the good ship "Hispanio-la" set sail from the Supper Club of the Main Officers Open Mess last week for Treasure Island, some seventy ladies of the Command & Staff Department and their guests were treated to an unusually different luncheon.

Against a background of palm trees and a pirates' chest, individual maps with directions for finding the treasure were given each lady attending.

Under the direction of First Mate Long John Phillips (Mrs. James H. Phillips) who spoke only in pirate poetry, the assembled party found their respective tables.

Between courses and using their maps, the group continued searching for treasure by changing tables which were appropriately marked with such names as Spy Glass Hill, Rum Cove, Foremast Hill, etc.

In the closing words of the first mate, a treasure means many things: "A treasure to some many be jewels or furs or a chest full of money to spent. But a treasure can be an intangible thing — today have you found a new friend?"

Hostesses for the luncheon were the ladies of the Associate Arms Group. Mrs. Sydney E. Sacerdote, group chairman, was assisted by the following committee heads ladies: Mesdames Albert E. Seifert, Armor Committee, reservation; James E. Echols, Jr., Artillery Committee, invitations; Orville O. Munson, Engineer Committee, decorations and program; Mrs. Norman I. Shapiro, Chemical Committee, name tags.

Mrs. Marion E. Mills had as her guests Mesdames Ed and William Swift of Columbus. Others were Mrs. Glenn H. Gardner, guest of Mrs. Clinton D. Harvey; Mesdames Harold E. Green and Bayard W. Hart, guests of Mrs. Orville Munson; Mrs. Noel Messerly, guest of Mrs. Sydney Sacerdote; Mrs. W. L. Blair, guest of her daughter, Mrs. Richard W. Keyes, and Mrs. Robert Flournoy, also of Columbus, guest of her daughter, Mrs. Steve W. Mulkey, Jr.

As for tangible treasures, the door prize, which was a bracelet and earring set, went to Mrs. Noel Messerly. And the winning of a spangled eye patch made Mrs. Charles Lee the honorary pirate of the event.

40 Attend Post Bridge Tourney

Forty ladies attended the Duplicate Bridge Tournament at the Main Officers' Club on Monday.

Play continued through two sessions, one morning and one afternoon. The first place prize for the entire day's play went to Mrs. Mariano Morales and Mrs. John L. Davis III; while second place went to Mrs. Wayne E. Shaffer and Mrs. Richard G. Ziegler.

Mrs. Cyril D. Sterner, president of the Fort Benning Woman's Club, presented the silver trophies.

In the morning session, Mrs. John P. George an Mrs. Willard G. Fischer placed high; and in the afternoon session, Mrs. Fred L. Hart and Mrs. Richard L. English were high scorers.

Honorable mention went to third place couple Mrs. William D. Hammond and Mrs. Charles J. Hansen.

Mrs. Paul C. Serff, Woman's Club chairman of bridge, was chairman of the tournament. The club will continue to play duplicate bridge each Monday afternoon, beginning at 12:45 at the Main Officers Open Mess. All members of the Woman's Club and their guests are invited to play.

Party Honors DI Office Arrivals and Departures

The Normandy Room of the Main Officers Open Mess and the Supper Club were the locations used for a party last Saturday night for the officers and ladies of the Office of the Director of Instruction, The Infantry School.

Prior to dining and dancing at the Supper Club an informal party was held in the Normandy Room. Col. and Mrs. Julian Martin, were guests. Lt. Col. Thomas S. Arms, Jr. was responsible for the party arrangements.

Col. William H. Birdsong, Director of Instruction, bade farewell and presented appropriate citations to the departing officers; Lt. Col. Walter Todd, to the 2nd Infantry Division; Lt. Col. Arsene P. Bonifas, to Germany by way of the Unviersity of Omaha and Operation "Bootstrap;" Lt. Col. Robert L. Waters, to Naples, Italy; Major Ray C. Wilson to Vietnam and Capt. John K. Gibler to Headquarters, US-CONARC.

Col. Birdsong also introduced newly assigned officers to the assembly. These included; Lt. Col. and Mrs. James Carter; Lt. Col. and Mrs. Charles Walrath and Capt. and Mrs. Alvin Ornstein. Also newly assigned but unable to attend the party was Lt. Col. and Mrs. George Hardgrove.

Academic Staff Officers Ladies Hold Luncheon

The Academic Staff Officers' ladies held their monthly luncheon recently at the Custer Terrace Officers Club. The wives of the Office of the Department of Instruction were hostesses for the event under the direction of Mrs. William Birdsong.

May Day was the theme and the club was decorated with lovely candy striped tablecloths and very colorful maypoles.

Following the luncheon, Mrs. Birdsong, wife of the Director of Instruction, introduced as guest Mrs. Alexander D. Surles. A farewell tribute was made to Mrs. Julian Martin, who is soon to depart for Okinawa.

A most exciting program followed with vocal presentations by Mrs. David Buckner and Major Ray Wilson, both of whom are associated with the Office of the Director of Instruction. They were accompanied on the piano by 1st Lt. William Putnam.

Jan Rose's Woman's Club Diary

Although the "Summer Doldrums" are already crowding the pools and golf courses with our spouses, the women, (commonly referred to as the "weaker sex") are as busy as ever with a myriad of Woman's Club activities continuing through the sultry Georgia summer.

A Piano recital is scheduled by the School of Music on May 29 at the Woman's Club Clubhouse (Building 1046) at 7:30 p.m. Call Mrs. Cecil Sanders at 5-2235 for information.

Mrs. John L. ("Billie") Davis will continue to streamline us into svelte figures in the Slim'N Trim classes. If you have curves where they shouldn't be, enroll now by calling Mrs. Davis at 5-3816.

No classes, but the Ceramics Workshop will be open for those ladies who are really organized and want to start Christmas gifts in July.

You are (gently) reminded that NOW is the time to renew your Woman's Club membership. The new schedule will run from May to May, so get all set to take advantage of the many facilities and activities available to members. Call Mrs. Warren E. Walters, 5-4677 or see your husband's unit commanders's wife for application blanks.

In Retrospect

The Woman's Club presented Gen. Harris a copy of our world - famous cookbook to take to Korea with him this summer. Now we can all be assured that he'll eat well while there.

Gen. Surles has accepted a glass showcase from the club for the Infantry Museum. It will encase momentoes of our Infantry. Drop into the Museum and see it (just across from the Thrift shop).

Speaking of the Thrift Shop: One last Desperate Call for volunteers to help one Tuesday or Thursday. The Thrift Shop is a community service which benefits the whole post. Without help, we cannot continue to operate. Won't you give just four hours of your time one day this month? PLEASE call Mrs. Sterner at 5-3935 today. We are still looking for a bookkeeper-manager. If you are interested in this salaried position, write to the Woman's Club Box 1978, Fort Benning.

Small dance classes and private lessons will continue through the summer months, Mrs. Wilson announced. Children's classes will be held in the mornings, and ladies classes in the evenings beginning about June 5. Any persons interested in summer classes may call Mrs. Wilson at MU 9-6071 before June 1. Both beginners and advanced students will be taught.

Protestant Group Meeting on Post

Fort Benning's Protestant Women - of - the - Chapels will meet at 9:30 a.m. Wednesday, May 24, at the Religious Education Center in Building 2606.

The theme for the program is "Friendship for Christ."

Col. Richard C. Wittman, Mrs. Paul T. Ingle, and Mrs. Louis R. Buckner will be the speakers.

Hostesses will be Mrs. Orville O. Munson and Mrs. Wittman.

Sandra Lee Taylor's Report Card . . .

Two boys who have recently become recipients of scholarship grants are in focus as the "Report Card" subjects for today. Larry Dendy and Calvin Roush, both seniors and both a credit to Fort Benning, are the student personalities of today.

Larry's most recent award is his honor of having been chosen the 1961 winner of the annual Tucker-Wilder Scholarship offered by the Columbus Ledger-Enquirer to the area journalism students who is their choice of most deserving of this honor.

The grant that Larry received covers his tuition fee at the Henry Grady School of Journalism at the University of Georgia for two years. Larry already has his acceptance to the University.

The Tucker-Wilder award is not only on the basis of scholarship, but also on the student's prowess in the field of journalism, his capabilities, and his extra-curricular activities.

Editor at Baker

Larry has had many activities which he has enjoyed during his four years at Baker. Chief of these in his position as managing editor of the Baker High School newspaper, "The Lion's Roar," and his position as co-feature editor of "The Arrowhead," Baker's yearbook.

Another journalistic activity in which Larry has participated was a five week workshop held at Northwestern University in Evanston, Illinois last summer.

In speaking of his award, Larry said, "I think that Baker helped me tremendously in my scholarship, and I owe a lot of it to my teachers."

Among his other interests, Larry lists his post as vice president of Baker's Quill and Scroll Society, and his membership in the Beta Kappa Hi-Y and Junior Civitan Club. He is also a member of Junior Achievement of Columbus, and his company is NOCO, sponsored by the North Columbus Optimist Club. He writes a column about J.A. for the "Tattler" newspaper, and has been nominated for the "Best Public Relations Job" trophy in Junior Achievement.

Larry has also lived in Atlanta, Nashville, Fort Knox, Cheery Point, N.C.; and has had a three year tour in Europe. His parents are Sfc and Mrs. O. S. Dendy. Larry's younger sister, Ivie, is a Baker freshman this year.

Calvin Plans on Navy

Calvin Roush, Jr., is also a senior at Baker High this year who is very versatile and deserving of his awards. He received one of the four $250. scholarships awarded by the Fort Benning Woman's Club.

Calvin, a National Merit Finalist, has also won a Naval ROTC scholarship to Vanderbilt University. After graduation from Vanderbilt, where he plans to major in business administration and economics, Calvin will enter the Navy for four years.

During his four years at Baker, Calvin has accumulated many honors and participated in many clubs and organizations. He is presently captain of the Varsity Debate Team and a member of the Debating Club. He belongs to the Baker High Chapter of the National Honor Society and is a member of the Beta Kappa Hi-Y.

Last year, Calvin completed his third and final year of ROTC at Baker. During that year, he was a captain and served his corps as battle group intelligence officer. Calvin was also commander of the Drill Team, and had the honor to be rated "Superior Junior Cadet" last year. Calvin has previously belonged to Baker's Latin Club.

Another honor to come to him was his selection as one of twelve members of the Teenage Grand Jury from Baker. In connection with this, he served on the mock trial jury during Columbus' observance of Law Day.

On Youth Day, held May 5, when area youth took over the city and county offices of their adult counterparts, Calvin was selected to serve on the County Commission, an experience which he accounts "very enjoyable."

In addition to living at Benning, Calvin has resided in Illinois, Kansas, the Panama Canal Zone, and Des Plains, a suburb of Chicago. He stated he liked Benning best because he has lived here the longest, gone to the same school, and had the opportunity of making many friends. "I like the people," said Calvin in reference to Baker, "because most of them are army kids."

Calvin is the son of Lt. Col. and Mrs. Calvin T. Roush, Sr. He has a younger brother, Stephen, 3, and a sister, Deborah, 10. The Roushes attend the Benning Hills Baptist Church.

We of Benning would like to say "congratulations" to these two deserving teenaged boys and wish them all success as they make use of their recent honors.

FIRST DIPLOMA . . . Cindy Aaron, four, is one of 89 graduates at pre-kindergarten School ceremonies this morning. The school is a project of the Fort Benning Woman's Club, and registrations are now open during week-day mornings (9 to 11) for the Fall term beginning September 5, at Building 1162.

Gen. White

Gen White Speaker At 'Tattoo'

By Peter Tatischeff

Brig. Gen. Charles H. White, commanding general, has told citizens of the Columbus area that "moral strength is the keynote to the success of Democracy in the world."

Speaking to a near-capacity crowd at Tuesday's "Search-light Tattoo" ceremony in the Municipal Auditorium, General White reminded them of the "courage and determined zeal" which has kept our flag flying despite "Massive tyranny and hostile ideologies."

Challenge of the Future

"These are anxious times," he said. "Therefore let us face this challenge with the moral and spiritual strength that our pioneering ancestors displayed when they created this country."

In describing this nation's flag General White suggested that it was not "just a piece of cloth. Neither is it just the official symbol of a government. It is — most importantly — your life and mine, our daily hopes, our achievements, our failures, our successes."

General White called our flag "our greatest ambassador to the world at large."

The general then led the audience in a pledge of their allegiance to the flag.

Other Countries Represented

The evening's ceremony included salutes to the flags of both Canada and Great Britain, represented by Major Gordon Arthur Gunton, Canadian liaison officer and Lieutenant Colonel John S. McLaren, British liaison officer to the United States Army Infantry School.

General White's speech at the rededication to the flag highlighted an evening filled with the pomp of military music and exhibitions of drilling skill, designed to focus attention on military pageantry during the nation's Armed Forces Week.

Exhibits Draw Crowds Along Broadway Route

Units of the 2nd Division, led by Brig. Gen. Charles H. White Jr., commanding general, will be featured in the Armed Forces Day Parade today in downtown Columbus.

Fifteen window displays arranged by Division units have been on exhibit since Monday along the parade route.

The theme for Armed Forces Week, "Power for Peace," has been incorporated in the displays, pointing out that our freedom and security depend on the power which comes from teamwork and national unity.

Parade

The Armed Forces Day parade climaxes the week's activities.

At 4 p.m., General White and his staff will lead the marching units up 13th Street to Broadway. They will be followed by the Division Band, conducted by Chief Warrant Officer Mariano Morales.

Moving south along Broadway, the band will be followed by troops of the 1st Infantry, backed by the division colors and unit colors in massed formation.

The following foot elements will come after the massed colors: 9th Infantry, 23rd Infantry, 87th Infantry, Division Artillery and Division Trains.

Following the Honor Guard, WAC detachment, and Scout Dog Platoon of the United States Army Infantry Center, the 7th Cavalry will lead the Division mounted and motorized elements.

The parade will proceed along Broadway past a reviewing stand to 9th Street where the troops will entruck for their return to Fort Benning. The parade will be narrated from the reviewing stand by Sergeant First Class Clay Lacy of division information office.

The motorized elements of the parade will include mortars, a 106 milimeter Recoilless Rifle, an armored personnel carrier, an M41 light tank, a field ambulance, a 105-mm and 155-mm howitzer, two eight-inch howitzers, and one 762mm "Honest John" rocket.

Displays

The displays on exhibit in Columbus were designed to complete the military picture of Fort Benning. Such titles as "Code of Conduct," "A Man Doing a Man's Job," "The Infantry in OVUREP," and "Surveying Equipment and Communications in Artillery," help the public to understand

Tankers End Qualification At Ft Stewart

CG Visits 69th, 7th Cav Firers

By Div PIO

A visit by Brigadier General William L. Hardick, division commanding general, highlighted annual tank gunnery qualification by elements from two division units at Fort Stewart, Ga.

General Hardick observed members of the 69th Armor and the 7th Cavalry's Troop B during a visit last Thursday at the site of their annual firing.

Accompanied by Lieutenant Colonel Ralph H. Hughett, G-3 (training), General Hardick conferred with Lieutenant Colonel Harry H. Hiestand, 69th Commander and Colonel Leonard L. Keene, commander of the 7th Cavalry.

In addition to observing the

23rd Infantry's Echo Company Army's First to Use New M-60

By Max Courson

The Army's First Advanced Individual Training cycle to receive instruction on the Army's new M-60 machine gun has gone through extensive training for the past two weeks under the guidance of the officers and NCOs of the 23rd Infantry's Company E.

One reason this group of trainees was observed and instructed so carefully was to determine if M-60 machine gun training is feasible at the AIT level, and, according to preliminary results, Company E is ahead of other units training on the old M-1919 A6 machine gun.

Captain Carroll Heape, commanding officer, said his officers and cadre received M-60 training from the Infantry School prior to the trainees' arrival. At the end of this experimental training class, Company E instructors will present reports on the training procedures they used. These reports will supplement the basic instruction program that has been designed for M-60 training. Captain Heape said that because the M-60 is a more simple weapon to operate, it would be easier to give instructions on the gun.

According to Lieutenant Donald B. Whitmarsh, each trainee has fired approximately 2,000 rounds with the M-60 — nearly three times as many as the number fired in 30-caliber machine gun training. "One thing we hope this cycle will determine," he said, "is if this much firing is necessary for M-60 instruction."

The M-60 was produced in order to supply not only a more effective base of fire but also to replace the 30-caliber machine gun and the Browning Automatic Rifle.

The new weapon differs in several ways from the standard 30-caliber machine gun. The M-60 weighs only 23 pounds, some ten pounds lighter than its predecessor. This makes for greater maneuverability, easier handling and use of the gun in the assault from the hip and shoulder as well as the conventional prone position. Although the M-60 has a three man gun crew, its portability enables one man to use the weapon quite effectively.

Fewer Parts

The M-60 contains fewer parts and can be broken down and assembled with greater ease than the 30-caliber gun. Also, the barrel can be switched easily when the old barrel is burned out or otherwise rendered useless. The weapon is gas operated rather than the recoil-gas assist method on the 30-caliber machine gun. Maximum range is 1,100 meters.

The M-60 fires a 7.62 milli-

About 700 2nd Div Men Join AUSA

By Div PIO

Approximately 700 new members recruited in the recently-conducted Association of the United States Army membership drive were men of the 2nd Infantry Division.

According to Sergeant First Class Ira S. Thompson, administrative assistant to the secretary-treasurer, division men on the local chapter's roll numbered some 400 in February.

The 700-man increase from the division places Indianhead membership at slightly more than 1,100 or, roughly, one-third of the Columbus-Phenix City, Fort Benning chapter's membership.

The local drive began March 10 and ended May 10, and resulted in an overall total of ap-

Departures

Six enlisted members of the 9th Infantry have departed the battle group for new assignments. All but one of the men were formerly assigned to the Ninth's Headquarters Company.

Heading the list was Sergeant First Class Levester Spearman who moved over to the 87th Infantry. Staff Sergeant Joseph Jones, supply sergeant for Headquarters Company, will retain his association with the "Keep Up the Fire" battle groups. He joined the 9th Infantry's 1st (Manchu) Battle Group at Fort Wainwright, Alaska.

Staff Sergeant Willie Bixler has reported to his new unit, the 4th Training Regiment at the Army Training Center at Fort Jackson, South Carolina. Specialist Five Gweldon Briggs, chief Headquarters Company cook, has reported to the Engineer Training Center at Fort Belvoir, Virginia.

The other 9th Infantry men leaving the battle group were Specialist Five Charles Beadles and Sergeant Robert May. Beadles is enroute to the 2nd Battle Group, 36th Infantry in Germany. May, a member of the 9th's Company E, is Korea-bound.

Lieutenant Roy A. Wulff has departed the 2nd Aviation Company. Lieutenant Wulff will attend Mohawk School at Fort Rucker before reporting for his new assignment in Europe. Lt. Wulff was assigned to the General Support Platoon of the Aviation Company and he is rated both in fixed wing and rotary wing aircraft.

Captain Heyward W. Riley of the 2nd Aviation Company departed for temporary duty at Fort Knox. Captain Riley will attend the Fixed Wing Instrument school while at Fort Knox.

Promotions

An officer of the 9th Infantry's Battle group Instructional Team, Lieutenant John W. Shepherd, received his silver bar recently, denoting his promotion to first lieutenant. Colonel James L. Osgard, commander of the 9th Infantry, pinned the silver bar on the new first lieutenant.

Captain Heyward W. Riley and First Lieutenant Eugene F. Kappenman, 2nd Aviation Company, recently were promoted to their present rank. They both are assigned to the artillery support section of the company.

Gen Eddleman Sends 23rd 2 Momentoes

By 23rd Inf PIO

General Clyde D. Eddleman, vice chief of staff of the U.S. Army, has presented the 23rd Infantry with an autographed portrait and a photograph of the 23rd company that was his first command.

General Eddleman, on a recent visit to 23rd's Trophy Room, remarked that his first command had been with the 23rd's Company H at Fort Sam Houston, Texas, and that he thought he still had a photograph of his old company in his files.

After returning, Gen. Eddleman forwarded a package containing the photograph and the autographed portrait to the 2nd Division unit.

The group picture, taken in 1931, shows the then-Lieutenant Eddleman flanked by the 59 men in his company. The enlisted men are wearing the pre-World War II Class "A" uniform with the wrap-around leggings.

General Eddleman's portrait is inscribed: "To the 23d, U.S. Infantry, my first regiment. With best wishes, C. D. Eddleman, General, U.S. Army, Vice Chief of Staff."

Division Singer Appears On Local TV Feature

By 9th Inf. PIO

The 9th Infantry's Specialist Four David Csanyi appeared on a special show, "Army Artistry," Saturday on Columbus television station WTVM.

The 30-minute show featured the winners of the Third Army Entertainment Contest competition held in April at Fort Benning.

A professional singer and dancer before his induction into the Army in 1960, Csanyi captured first place in the vocal soloist division of the Third Army contest. The Kent, Pennsylvania, native is assigned to the 9th Infantry's Headquarters Company.

Csanyi and the other Third Army winners will compete next week at Fort Belvoir, Virginia, with the entertainment contest winners from each U.S. Army District. The winners of the Fort Belvoir competition will compose the cast of the 1961 all-Army "Rolling Along" show which tours military and Naval installations throughout the United States and foreign countries.

Hoebee Closes Six-Year Tour With Division

By Div PIO

Sergeant Major John P. Hoebee, a veteran of over six years with the same unit, although there have been three changes in unit designation, was awarded the first Oak Leaf Cluster to the Army Commendation Medal on Monday by Colonel Gustav M. Bacharach, division chief of staff.

Sergeant Hoebee departs the 2nd Infantry Division on May 25 for an assignment in Korea, where he will fill the operations sergeant slot for the 1st Cavalry Division.

With over 6 years' Army service to his credit, Sergeant Hoebee has been serving in operations jobs for the last six years. His position with the Indianhead Division has been as the operations sergeant at division headquarters.

Starting in 1955, the native of Newport, Rhode Island, joined the 10th Infantry Division at Fort Riley, Kansas. He followed the 10th to Europe under Operation "Gyroscope" and served with the 86th Infantry Regiment, the Crusaders, in the regimental operations office.

In 1957, when the Army went pentomic, Sergeant Hoebee remained in the same job, but his unit designation became the 2nd Battle Group, 7th Infantry with headquarters at Schwenfurt, Germany. Upon his return to the United States in 1958, the unit changed once more to become the 1st Battle Group, 11th Infantry.

In February of last year, Sergeant Hoebee transferred to division headquarters and was assigned to his present job as operations sergeant for the division. He was promoted to the highest enlisted rank of Sergeant Major in May 1960.

Sergeant and Mrs. Hoebee have two children, a boy and a girl. Peter is nine years old and Sonja is five. The Hoebee's have resided on the Fort Benning reservation since coming here in 1958.

The versatile non-com received his first Army Commendation Medal in Germany in 1957 for his performance of duty as operations sergeant with the 86th Infantry Regiment. His spare time is spent in two hobbies, photography and fishing.

FAREWELL . . . Sergeant Major John P. Hoebee bids farewell to the 2nd Division after six years.

Col. Dameron Greets New Men

By 23rd Infantry PIO

One hundred and fifty basic combat trainees assigned to the 23rd Infantry were welcomed to the 2nd Infantry Division recently by Deputy Brigade Commander, Colonel Ernest C. Dameron.

The newly-arrived trainees came from all six Army areas and were assigned to Company A of the "We Serve" unit for their eight weeks of training.

Ninety-one per cent of the group are members of the Regular Army. The group also includes 41 prior service men.

Div. Unit Hosts Local Chapter Of Engr Society

By 2nd Engr PIO

The 2nd Infantry Division's 2nd Engineer Battalion hosted the Columbus Chapter of the Georgia Engineer Society yesterday.

Highlight of the day was a demonstration of the organization and capabilities of an engineer battalion company.

Lieutenant Charles M. Richards was moderator and narrator of the demonstration.

Following the demonstration, a dinner was held in the headquarters company mess hall for the 55-member chapter.

Armed Forces Day Message

On May 20, 1961, men and women of the Armed Forces join together to demonstrate to their communities the part they play in America's first line of defense. All over the nation members of the Army, Navy, Air Force and Marine Corps, both active and inactive, celebrate Armed Forces Day with parades and displays of manpower and equipment.

At a time when a large part of the nation's attention is focused on the conquest of space, we of the military family must keep our feet on the ground, planted firmly with the strength that will keep this nation and its allies free.

The theme this year is "Power for Peace," and we of the 2nd Infantry Division have the vital mission of training young men to fill the necessary roles on the "Power for Peace" team. On this occasion I urge each of you to renew your dedication to your country so that it shall continue to be the dominant world power for peace.

Lt Sanderlin Is Promoted

By 122nd Signal PIO

Captain Arnold E. Sanderlin, of Company A, 122d Signal Battalion, recently was promoted to his present rank.

He has over 12 years service—over eight years as an enlisted man. He attained the grade of SFC while assigned to the Army Security Agency, before being called to active duty as a First Lieutenant in 1957.

Captain Sanderlin has attended the Signal Officer's Basic Course and the Associate Signal Officers Career Course at Fort Monmouth. He has spent four years in Hawaii and three years in France where he was Radio Officer for Headquarters Base Section. He also spent a three year tour as an instructor at the Army Security Agency School.

Captain Sanderlin and his wife Audrey reside at 529 B North Valdez Drive with their four boys Wayne, Eric, David, and Brian.

Vacation Bible School Features 'Living By God's Time' As Theme

Sessions to Provide Stimulation For Each Age Group Program

By MRS. B. B. LITTLEJOHN

The theme for this year's Vacation Bible School program, to be held June 12-June 21, for children of 2nd Infantry Division members is "Living By God's Time."

This three dimensional thing called "time" with its past, present and future is more significant than ever before. In past years, men have mapped earth's great masses and charted the seas. Today, they are thrusting out into vast unknown areas of atmosphere.

Tomorrow—who knows?

History is in a hurry. Space scientists are planning to put an atomic space clock into orbit to get more accurate information about the way time functions in the universe. This fantastic clock will "tick 24 billion times a second and will be accurate within three seconds in 3,171 years.

Therefore, in these exciting days of high tension, split-second tempos and daring attempts to explore outer space there is an ever increasing urgency for teachers of the Bible.

They must make the Bible more understandable as a book to live by. And, as a book to help pupils grow, change and become more Christlike; thereby, more interested and intelligent Christians.

Nursery

The three-year-old nursery child does not understand what is meant by "time," yet through this program, the child will become increasingly aware that living by God's time means showing love for Him by loving and pleasing others.

To accomplish this program there will be the Sing Me A Story Time, animated with hand puppets. These are motion songs that are fun to sing and act out.

Also, to reach the youngster's understanding, there will be Handicraft - Recreation time and Activity-Book time. Here the children will touch and do something different each day. By these sessions, the child will be encouraged to be obedient and helpful to parents.

Beginners

In the four and five-year-old group, the Beginners, plus those entering first grade, a program stressing "God's Word in God's World" will be used. These youngsters will use fold-over pages with pasted in activities to dramatize their learning. Songs and a Rhythm Band consisting of students will complete the Beginner's program.

Primary

For the Primary group, the program is quite active with the students transforming their room each day into a different setting such as a church, playroom, beach or schoolroom. In addition they will make real leather caps, fingerprint waves to illustrate Bible stories and enjoy songfests and other recreational pursuits.

Juniors

Practical exercises will also mark the emphasis for the Junior group. They will learn practical ways of dedicating Christian time and talents through music, Bible verses and drills, handicraft projects and gospel - graph stories.

Intermediate

And finally, in the Intermediate classes, a challenging schedule will include acting out skits, purposeful discussions geared to make the students think, quizzes and other sessions tailored to the young inquiring mind.

For each of these groups in the Vacation Bible School the opportunity to work together and watch others participate in projects, and see the theme of "Living By God's Time" emphasized daily, will provide a lasting beneficial education.

For further information on this year's session, contact Mrs. Littlejohn, Sand Hill Sunday School, LI 4-7306.

M-60 Tested by 23rd

meter round, slightly smaller and lighter than the 30-caliber round. This 7.62 round is the same as used in the Army's new M-14 rifle that is to replace the M-1. A special canvas magazine holding 100 rounds can be attached to the M-60 and will be used in the assault. Also, new links for ammunition belts make it easier to break and assemble a belt than before.

Due to the ejection pattern of rounds, no one is allowed to fire the M-60 from the left handed gunner's position. However, other methods of firing are similar to those given in the old machine gun instruction.

Open Bolt

Like the automatic rifle the M-60 will fire from the open bolt position. The new gun's bipod legs are operated by spring action, and an organic shoulder rest is attached to the stock. There are no wooden parts on the M-60, and such non-metal portions as the stock and carrying handle are made of a plastic-rubber compound.

The rear sight is open rather than a round hole. Instructors believe this will enable gunners to lay in on their targets easier than before. The M-60's tripod, however, is a slightly modified version of the one used with the 30-caliber machine gun.

The Echo Company AIT's received a total of 66 hours training on the M-60. Under this new maximum trainee instruction program trainees go to the firing range during their fifth hour, thus making it possible for a man to fire the machine gun during the first day's training. This differs greatly from the 30-caliber machine gun training, where nearly a week was spent in teaching fundamentals before range firing began.

According to Captain Bernard J. Fox of the Infantry School; the present experimental class has fired as well with the M-60 as any Officers Candidate School class he has seen thus far. The Company E group was to fire for record today, making it the first Army AIT cycle to do so with the M-60.

Pets to Parade For Div Children At Service Club

By CLAY LACY

A mammoth menagerie of pets will be displayed Sunday at Service Club Two for all children of 2nd Division members, it was announced by Miss Madeline J. Parks, club director. Showtime is slated at 2:30 p.m. Sunday and admission is free.

The parade of pets will feature a mynah bird, whistling, singing and talking. The amazing bird, resembling the raven, is adept at mimicry and often astonishes patrons of pet shops with its long whistle and shrill cry of "Pretty girl, pretty girl."

Other pets will include skunks, parrots, hamsters, canaries, fish, white rats, parakeets, monkeys, turtles, toy Manchesters, goats, standard poodles, rabbits and many other types of household pets.

Refreshments will be served to the youngsters and a special appearance of "CoCo" the clown will complete the entertainment for them. A local pet shop is furnishing all the pets for display on Sunday's showing.

Trainee, 15-Year Vet, Praises M-60

The instructors at Company E, 23rd Infantry aren't the only automatic weapons experts to praise the Army's new M-60 machine gun.

Corporal Edward Gauna, currently undergoing AIT with Company E, has had 15 years' experience in handling machine guns, both in the Navy and the Air Force. "The M-60 is the best I've ever fired," he said Monday while at Galloway Ranges for target practice with the rest of his unit. "It's more accurate, and it's easier to field strip, too."

the nature of the Army's mission.

Typical of the displays is that furnished by the 2nd Medical Battalion. A detailed chart showing an Army Surgical Section stands beside an operation scene complete with patient, doctor, surgical lights and intravenous set. The chart explains the mission of the Medical Battalion and shows what elements are necessary for the effective medical protection of infantry units.

The displays, coupled with the parading personnel and machinery, will complete the 2nd Division participation in the Armed Forces Week celebrations kicked off by the Searchlight Tattoo ceremonies last Monday.

Applications for membership will be accepted until June 8, officials point out, and it is hoped that when final tabulations are made on June 28 at national headquarters the results will show the Columbus-Phenix City-Fort Benning chapter to be the country's largest.

Ballet Program Set For May 21, 7 P.M.

Div PIO

The Fort Benning Ballet, sponsored by the 2nd Division Officers Wives Club, will present its pupils in a program at Patch School, Sunday May 21 at 7 p.m.

Opening the program will be tap routines danced by pupils of Jean Smith, tap instructor for the school. The first routine entitled "American Patrol" features Kris Kriel, David Tharp and Omar Rodriquez as soldiers.

Bonnie Blackman will follow in a tap-pantomine "I Can't Spell Hippopatamus" and to conclude the tap portion Becky Adams, Gail Echols, Karen Cash, Carol Cash, Pam Price, Anita Looney and Connie Robinson will appear in "Be My Bumblebee."

Guild Numbers

The second portion of the program will consist of selections performed at the Columbus Ballet Guild performance on March 26 at the Royal Theatre.

Advanced pupils of the Fort Benning Ballet are eligible to perform with this group and are featured in the following selections. The first selection will be danced to the music of Symphonic Metamorphosis of Themes by Carl Maria Von Weber and features Vicki Morales as Spring, Illges Starbuck as Summer, Laurie Raymond as Fall and Vivienne Johnson as Winter.

Jazz Themes

Next will be four jazz themes which were also performed at the build performance. These are: "Like Having Fun," "Thinking of Baby," "Deadly Game" and "Pot and Juice" danced by Laurie Raymond, Verna Raymond, Vicki Morales, Glynne Gilmore, Elizabeth Thawaite, Illges Starbuck, Anne Bagley, Barbara Goodman, Lynn Valenteen, Sharon Troutman, Charles Robertson and Vivienne Johnson.

The final and main part of the program will be an adaptation of the ballet "La Boutique Fantasque" with music by Gioacchino Rossini and Ottarino Respighi. The ballet was first produced in London in 1919 with choreography by Massine. The setting is in about 1865.

Pot Luck Supper Held By 69th Wives

The ladies of the 69th Armor, whose husbands have been in Fort Stewart, Georgia, for the past three weeks, met for a pot luck supper Friday evening May 12 at the home of Mrs. Harry H. Hiestand.

A supper of chicken, meat loaf, assorted salads, hot garlic bread, desserts, and coffee were contributed by those attending.

The honored guest of the evening was Mrs. William L. Benton, mother of Mrs. Sidney Britt.

Osgard Party Honors Gen., Mrs. Hardick

Colonel and Mrs. James L. Osgard, 9th Infantry, were hostesses for a farewell party on Thursday evening, May 1, in honor of Brigadier General and Mrs. William L. Hardick.

Special guests were Mrs. Charles H. White, Jr. and Colonel and Mrs. Gustav M. Bacharach. Also attending were all staff officers, company commandeers and their wives of the 9th Infantry.

Sliced roast beef, rolls, pizza, bean dip, assorted raw vegetables with dip, cheese and crackers, chips, and nuts were served from a table overlaid with a white cloth and centered with a silver candelabra featuring a pastel colored floral arrangement and four white candles.

During the latter part of the evening a rectangular shaped chocolate cake with "General and Mrs. Hardick" written in icing on top, was presented to Mrs. Hardick. She in turn, sliced and served it to the group as they sang "Auld Lang Syne" and "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow."

Mrs. Hardick was also presented an arrangement of pink miniature roses.

A Sharp Case Method

Lt. Richard Sharp, 87th Infantry, suggested the following modification to the Case Method during a bridge lesson from Daisy Krellick. Daisy, noted Columbus player and instructor, was impressed with the modification and in favor of its use.

The hands which prompted Lt. Sharp's innovation are the following:

NORTH
♥ K Q 10 8 6
♦ Q 9 7
♣ K 9

WEST
♣ Q 9 7
♦ 6 4 3 2
♠ 10 8 4 3

EAST
♠ 6 5 4 3
♦ K J 8
♣ Q 9 7 6 5

SOUTH
♠ 10 8 2
♥ A J 9 7 5

Lt. Sharp's partner, Mrs. Sharp, north, was dealer and opened the bidding. Using the regular Case Method as described by Mr. Goren the bidding would have been as follows.

North	East	South	West
1 ♥	pass	3 ♥	pass
3 ♠	pass	4 ♣	pass
5 ♣	pass	4 ♦	pass
5 ♠	pass	6 ♥	pass

You can see using the Case Method Lt. Sharp reached the six level locating the aces and two kings . . . and must trust that north has the king of hearts. She could have opened without the ace or king. It occured to Lt. Sharp that the Case Method could be modified for hands with ace distribution like this. The responder could bid three no trump over declarers three spades to show that he held the remaining three aces. The bidding would then be . . .

North	East	South	West
1 ♥	pass	3 ♥	pass
3 ♠	pass	3 NT	pass
4 ♣	pass	4 ♦	pass
5 ♥	all pass

All aces are located at the three level and the missing king at the five level. The confusion of shifting to kings while partner must doggedly trudge through his three aces is illuminated. This modification could be used to show kings also since the Case Method is used only when suit is established and cannot be confused with a true no-trump bid. Any duplicate player interested in using this version of the Case Method would have to list it on his card of conventions as the Modified Case Method and would also be subject to the approval of the director. Lt. Sharp has played bridge for several years but only recently ventured into the special challenge of duplicate.

Recent bridge parties of the 87th resulted in the following winners. The ladies afternoon bridge held at Mrs. R. Connor's home . . . high score Mrs. Dion Johnson, second high Mrs. Dawson Luke. The ladies evening play hostessed by Mrs. James Gritz . . . Mrs. George Thom high score, and Mrs. Frank Spettel second high. Mrs. Gritz won the "bingo" hand. Officers and ladies of the 87th enjoyed party bridge held recently resulting in high score by Mrs. Dawson Luke; second high was Mrs. Richard Sharp. The Bingo Hand was won by Lt. James Searcy.

Div. Trains Shade 'Manchus,' 2-1

By Nelson Marsh

Victories chalked up by the 1st Infantry and Division Trains Monday threw the Division softball tournament into a three-way tie for first place. The 1st Infantry rolled over the 23rd Infantry 11-1 at Kelly Field while Division Trains halted the previously unbeaten 9th Infantry crew 2-1 at Sand Hill.

ed game. Myers went the distance for Trains, allowing four hits and two base on balls. He fanned nine. White struckout 11, gave up four hits, and walked six.

Trains, the 1st Infantry, and the 9th Infantry each have won four and lost one. Trains suffered its only loss to the 1st Infantry. Separate Battalions handed the 1st Infantry its only black mark.

Scores First

The 9th Infantry drew first blood in the third inning when centerfielder Waymon Wyche doubled with one out and rode home on third baseman Harry Hall's double to right center. The other 9th Infantry safelies came on a first frame single by catcher Max Powell and single by left fielder Joe Barnka in the second. After Hall's double, Myers slammed the door on the Manchus for the rest of the contest as he allowed only three runners to reach base via two walks and an error.

Division Trains bounced back in their half of the third with a pair of game-winning tallies. Catcher Ken Parham, first sacker Robert Conklin, and third baseman Vincent Bujan each drew walks to load the bases. Second baseman Miles Finley then drifted a single through second to score Parham and Conklin.

The Trains "nine" threatened again in the fourth when they again loaded the bases with no outs on a pair of singles and shortstop Daune Goldamner's double. However, White worked his way out of trouble without allowing a run.

The three league leaders were scheduled for action last night. The 9th Infantry battled the 23rd Infantry (2-2 record), Division Trains tackled Division Artillery (3-2) and the 1st Infantry contested the 11th Infantry (0-5).

A HIT FOR WHITE . . . Pitcher Billy White takes his lead off first base against Separate Battalions after stroking a single. Holder of a 4-1 pitching record, the 9th Infantry hurler sports a .533 batting average that includes four triples, one double, six runs scored, and seven runs batted in.

9th Inf Team Takes Honors

By 9th Inf PIO

The second 9th Infantry entry in a league of the Fort Benning Bowling Association grabbed top honors recently in the Officers' Blue Bowling League.

The Manchu squad downed the 37th Artillery team in a rolloff for the league crown at the Main Post Alleys. Three of the "Keep Up the Fire" members of the championship 9th Infantry team in the Monday night Officers' Crimson League. The latter entry recently downed the Tooth Plumbers, a team of post dentists, for the Crimson League crown.

A total of seven 9th Infantry officers, all but one of them captains, lent a hand in gaining the Blue League championship accolades for the Manchu battle group. Captained by Capt. Benjamin Hamilton, 9th Infantry S-4, the Ninth squad blitzed the 37th Artillery four games to none in the roll off.

The other officers on the 9th Infantry's number one crew included Capts. Matthew Ryan, Millard Christopher, Meryl Griffiths, William Sanford, James Newbill, and Lt. Jerry Poelking.

Also members of the 9th's Crimson League champs, Capt. Ryan, Capt. Sanford, and Lt. Poelking topped the Blue League winners with averages of 172, 170, and 170, respectively.

Softball Tourney Begins at 9th

The second contest of the first round of the 9th Infantry's company level softball tournament is scheduled for 1 p.m. tomorrow afternoon at Weatherby Field between Company A and Company D.

A game between the 9th's Combat Support Company and Headquarters Company opened the single-elimination tournament yesterday. The result was not available by press time.

The final contest of the initial round is scheduled for May 27 at 1 p.m. between Company E and Company B. Company C drew a bye in the first round.

Lieutenant Max Powell, 9th Infantry Athletic and Recreation Officer, is conducting the tourney and will serve as umpire for the contests.

Casualty Facts

9th Wins: 6-1

Separate Battalions Fails 'To Put Out the Fire'

Ninth Infantry pitcher Billy White's two-run triple and one-hit buring propelled the unbeaten Manchu crew to a 6-1 victory over Separate Battalions Friday in Division softball play at Sand Hill.

The triumph enabled the "Keep Up the Fire" squad to retain first place in the Division softball tournament with a mark of four wins and no losses. The Separate Battalion crew now has a 2-2 record.

White surrendered only a leadoff single to first baseman Virgil Brown in the first frame. Brown reached third base on a two-base error and scored on Gaylor Hawkins's sacrifice fly. White then shut the door on the tankers until the seventh when Separate Battalions loaded the sacks on two walks and an error. White fanned the final batter to end the threat and the game.

The long Separate Battalions run stood up until the fourth when the Manchumen exploded for six runs. The 9th had loaded the bases with one out in the second but failed to score. In the fourth, though, walks to Joe Baruka and Jackie Fannon set the stage for White's crashing triple. White then scored on a wild pitch.

Doubles by Waymouth Wyche and Max Powell, coupled with two walks and three more wild pitches, netted three more runs for the 9th against losing hurler Earl Smith. Shortstop Bill Sanford gathered two singles and two walks for the ninth.

9th Inf Golf Tourney Set For May 22

By 9th Inf. PIO

The 9th Infantry's second golf tourney of 1961 will get underway May 22 at the Fort Benning Country Club with more than 20 golfers participating.

Lieutenant Max Powell, the Ninth's Athletic and Recreation Officer, has signed up battle group golfers from among the officers and the permanent party enlisted men. The upcoming battle group tourney will consist of match play. The tournament will be divided into three flights with the initial 18 holes on May 22 determining the composition of each flight. Match play will then prevail for the remainder of the competition.

A total of 20 golfers entered the 9th's handicap open tournament in April. Also played at the Country Club, the battle group first flight title was earned by Lieutenant Nick Powell. Lieutenant Sheron Weary took the second flight, with Captain Allan J. Francisco winning flight three. All three flight winners of the April "go" are entered in the forthcoming outing.

Foster Makes United States Shooting Team

The 9th Infantry's Lieutenant John Foster fired his way onto the United States 1961 International shooting team May 12 after placing third in the 100 meter running deer eliminations.

Assigned the 9th Infantry's Company A, Lt. Foster piled up a total of 1,719 points out of a possible 1,500 points in the running deer event. Lt. Foster was named to the U.S. team after competing in the three-day finals. Each competitor fired 100 shots per day at a running deer silhouette, exposes for four seconds as it races across a 25-meter opening at a distance of 100 meters.

Lt. Foster, who finished seventh in the 300-meter free fir-le event in the 1960 Rome Olympics, will accompany the U. S. International team to Oslo, Norway next month for the World Championships in the running deer event.

58th Infantry Shuts Out Medics As Redlegs Beat Troop Command

By Sfc Bismarck Stith

The 1st Armored Rifle Battalion, 58th Infantry, 1st Infantry Brigade, handed the 428th Medical Battalion a 7-0 shutout last Friday, the first in major unit baseball competition this season.

Second Lt. Kennedy Allen hurled a four-hitter, chalking up ten strike-outs in collecting the win. Pfc Jimmy Johnson took the loss. The winners scattered seven hits.

In Saturday's action, the 2nd Howitzer Battalion, 10th Artillery, 1st Infantry Brigade Redlegs tabbed their first win by topping the Infantry Center Troop Command, 2-0. Sp4 David Johnson took credit for the win Sp4 Norman Cole rapped out three hits for the losers. In the night game, The Student Brigade defeated the 151st Engineer Group, 21-11.

In Sunday's game, the 1st Battle Group, 29th Infantry, 1st Infantry Brigade, nipped 10th Artillery, 4-3, in the tenth inning.

Second Lt. Jay Mitchell, leading off for the Two-Niners, drew a base on balls. Sgt. Bob Hill also drew a base on balls and 2nd Lt. Bob Whitehead hit a single to right field, loading the bases. Sp4 Bob Palmer hit a long fly to center field, scoring Lt. Mitchell for the first run of the game.

In the sixth inning, the Two-Niners scored their second run when Lt. Whitehead singled to center, bringing up Sp4 Palmer, Lt. Whitehead stole second, Sp4 Elmer grounded out from third to first, and Lt. Whitehead went to third base on a passed ball and stole home on the next pitch to put the Two-Niners ahead, 2-0.

The Two-Niners picked up their third run when 2nd Lt. Guy Schottler got on by the shortstop's error. Second Lt. John Henning sacrificed Lt. Schottler to second and Lt. Mitchell hit a long fly to left field, sending Lt. Schottler to third. Cpl. Joseph Waitsitt hit a single to right field, scoring Lt. Schottler.

The Redlegs started a rally in the ninth, as Sp4 Filbert Penaflor led off with a single over shortstop. Pfc Raymond Young beat out a slow roller down to third, sending Penaflor to second Pvt. Roy Bowers on to relieve Pfc Henning of the Two-Niners.

Sp4 Bob Stewart grounded to shortstop, forcing out Young. Pfc Charles Lumpkin hit a double down the third base line, scoring Penaflor and Stewart. Pfc Lumpkin went to third on a passed ball to the catcher.

Sgt. Charles Daniels singled to left field scoring Lumpkin from third to even the score. The Two-Niners could not get on in the last of the ninth, sending the game into extra innings.

In the last of the tenth, Lt. Whitehead rapped out his third hit of the game to left field. Sp4 Palmer grounded out to shortstop forcing Lt. Whitehead to second. Sp4 David Ples of the Redlegs came on to relieve Winchester with one out and two on base. Pfc Ray Overchuck hit a fly to right field, scoring Palmer with the winning run as Pfc Lumpkin dropped the ball.

Lt. Henning took credit for the win while Pfc Winchester suffered his second loss.

After losing to TSB Saturday night, 21-11, the 151st Engineer Group clobbered the 58th Infantry Tuesday night, 15-4.

The 58th Infantry scored two runs in the first inning when Sfc James Gregory drew a base on balls, and Pvt. Bob Pazo hit a single to center field, sending Sgt. Gregory to third.

Gregory scored when Pvt. Pazo stole second. Pfc Donald O'Toole singled through shortstop, scoring Pazo.

The Engineers came back in the third with three runs when Pfc Bruce Woods drew a base on balls, and Sp4 Enoch Copeland also was walked, sending Woods to second. Sp4 Bobby Rose hit a single over shortstop, scoring Woods. Sgt. James Hill hit a slow roller down the third base line, which Pazo overthrew at first, scoring Copeland and Rose.

In the sixth, the 58th Infantry tried to rally when Pfc O'Toole led off with his third hit, a single down to left field. Pfc Bill McCord followed with a triple scoring O'Toole and Sgt. Bill Carey hit a line drive to shortstop, scoring McCord.

The Engineers put on a rally in the seventh and eighth inning. In the seventh, Sgt. Hill led off with a single to center field, and Pfc Bob Tipton hit a double into left field, scoring Hill. Pfc Bob Borowski of the 58th came in to relieve Sgt. Carey.

Pfc Tipton went to third on a passed ball over second base. Sp4 Black hit a slow roller down the third base line, catching Tipton off base, but Pfc Borowski dropped the ball and Tipton scored.

Pfc McCord overthrew the second base, scoring Black.

In the eighth inning, the Engineers bounced back with a three run attack when Sp4 Donald Shoff singled to left field, Sp4 Copeland got on with a fielder's choice, and Sp4 Rose rapped a double to left field, sending Copeland to third.

Sgt. Hill got on on a fielder's choice, loading the bases. Pfc Brown hit a double to center field, scoring Copeland and Rose. Sgt. Hill scored on a passed ball.

Pfc Bruce Woods clouted his first win while Sgt. Carey was dealt the defeat. Pvt. Pazo and Pfc O'Toole rapped out three hits for the losers.

In the first American League baseball game, played April 24, 1901, Chicago defeated Cleveland, 8-2.

Go-Getters Win Wives' Bowling

The post NCO Wives Club Bowling League climaxed the 1960-61 bowling season with a banquet at the central NCO Open Mess last Saturday.

The festivities began at 7:30 p.m. with a steak dinner served on a table in a bowling motif. All teams were represented. Distinguished guests were Mrs. Raymond R. Faust, vice president of the NCO Wives' Club, and Mary Middleton, secretary-treasurer of the WIBC City Association, who made the introductory speech before the presentation of awards.

Championship trophies were awarded to the "Go Getters"—Helen Pettingill, Dell Andrews, Mary Hardin, Ann Bullard and Wanda Klarner. In addition to the trophies, the winning team also received championship emblems for their bowling shirts.

Members of the runner - up team, the "Top Hatters", including Maureen Krilling, Maria Hunt, Clem Graham, Isle Chaffin, and Edith Emerson; received second place trophies.

Additional awards were made by Mary Middleton for the bowler with the high game without handicap, Clem Graham; bowler with high game with handicap, Helen Pettingill; high average, Marla Hunt; high series with handicap, Lois Walding; high series without handicap, Wanda Klarner; and most improved bowler, Connie Hatfield.

The following bowlers received gold medals for bowling scratch games of 200 or better: Helen Pettingill, Dell Andrews, Maureen Krilling, Maria Hunt, Lois Walding, Wanda Klarner, and Clem Graham.

The last place team received trophies for holding that position for the season.

All bowlers received a coffee mug inscribed with a humerous anecdote as a momento of their participation in the bowling league.

Headquarters Det. Remains Unbeaten In Medics League

Headquarters Detachment, 428th Medical Battalion, chalked up a 7-3 win over the 3rd Field Hospital last week to begin their fourth week of League play unbeaten.

The 50th Medical Clearing Company and the 3rd Field Hospital are tied for second place, each with two wins and one loss, and the fourth team, the 690th Medical (Ambulance) Company, remains in the cellar.

In their only game of the week, the 690th Medical Clearing Company soundly trounced the 690th team 22-4.

On Armed Forces Day

Sport Parachutists Support 'One Army'

Sport parachutists from Fort Benning will be actively supporting the One Army concept as they participate in Armed Forces Day activities from Cheyenne, Wyo., to Albany, Ga., with parachute jumps at Huntington, W. Va., Huntsville, Ala., and Fort McClellan and Maxwell Field, Ala.

A five-man team from the Benning Sport Parachute club will jump as guests of the Army, Army Reserve and Air Force at Francis E. Warren Air Force Base, Wyo. Three others will jump for the West Virginia National Guard at Huntington.

An eight-man team will make three jumps each at Fort McClellan and a three-man team will parachute at Huntsville and then Maxwell Field as guests of the Alabama National Guard and the Air Force.

Finally, a five-man team will journey to Turner Air force Base, Albany, Ga., where they will jump as guests of the Air Force.

Team members represent more Benning units than places they will visit, including the Airborne-Air Mobility Department; 2nd Student Battalion; The Student Brigade; 187th Pathfinder Team; 1st Infantry Brigade; 151st Engineer Group; Lawson Army Aviation Command; Infantry Center Troop Command, Army Advanced Marksmanship Unit, and the 2nd Infantry Division.

Membership in the club is not restricted to those who are Airborne qualified, but is open to all active duty personnel, male and female, stationed here on post. Additional information on club membership may be obtained from Major Dill, 5-4742; Lt. Hare, 5-1677; or Lt. Roe, 5-2252. Training and proficiency jumps are normally conducted each Sunday at Fryar Field, Drop Zone.

The Surgeon Says

A Look at Your Medical Clinic

By Colonel Robert J. Hoagland, MC

The Medical Clinic of Martin Army Hospital is an outpatient facility for adults with diseases classified as "medical."

Among such diseases are acute and chronic diseases of the breathing passages, heart and blood vessels; ulcerative diseases of the stomach, duodenum and colon; diabetes and other diseases of endocrine glands and systemic illnesses caused by bacteria and viruses.

The extent of the medical responsibility of this clinic is realized by few. Although this clinic is primarily for the treatment of dependents many other sick persons are treated —retired members (and their dependents) living nearby, personnel of the hospital detachment, enlisted and officer personnel from the entire post (after morning sick call), and widows and children of deceased members.

Additional Load

In addition, the Medical Clinic is charged with performance of many routine examinations, such as annual physical examinations of female officer and enlisted personnel, examinations of dependents prior to certain overseas assignments, going to high school, college, private camps, scout camps; examinations in connection with: American Red Cross and Social Welfare inquiries, employment as teachers; separation of active duty female personnel; and premarital examinations.

Also members and dependents who have been bitten by any dog or cat, and in some cases when scratched; and Allied officer personnel referred by dispensaries.

Field Units Help

The number of medical officers available for duty in the Medical Clinic has varied considerably. In the old hospital, two civilian physicians were employed to supplement the work of the medical officers. Since the move to Martin Army Hospital in July 1959, the Medical Clinic has operated without civilian physicians.

Several medical officers assigned to the 2nd Infantry Division, and other field units, have given part-time services to the Medical Clinic. Officers assigned to the Medical Service (wards caring for inpatients with "medical" diseases) assist in the afternoons; they are concerned with active duty personnel referred for consultations, and with follow-up examinations of previously hospitalized patients.

When the move to Martin Army Hospital was made, Lt. Col. James Foley was in charge of the Medical Clinic. At present, Capt. Kenneth Kiehl is in charge of the Clinic and Capts. James C. Wells, Sam P. McManus, Henry Fuller, Norbert J. Wegmann and Roth B. Neller are assigned—or contribute their services—to this Clinic.

Patients Increase Each Year

Although the number of medical officers available for clinic duty has been essentially unchanged and civilian physicians have not been replaced, the number of patients cared for has increased every year. During 1960 over 32,000 patients were treated or given routine physical examinations. In addition, about 25,000 treatment injections other than preventive inoculations were given by nursing personnel of the clinic.

To enable medical officers to spend more time with patients, duties which can be performed by nurses or their assistants are undertaken by them.

Patients are scheduled by appointment because a trial of seeing patients with and without appointments resulted in a chaotic situation. On some days one hundred sixty patients were seen by four medical officers — with the result that not enough time could be devoted to any one patient and waiting rooms were crowded with patients.

Emergency Room

Therefore, patients without appointments who cannot wait for an appointment are seen in the Emergency Room. At times, patients have been asked to obtain appointments within twenty-four hours after making a telephone call to the appointment desk. At other times, particularly when medical officers are called away for field exercises and maneuvers, patients have had to wait as long as in days on non-emergency conditions.

It is not widely known that medical officers are allocated on the basis of troop strength —i.e. without any allowance for the numbers of dependents, retired personnel, their dependents, civil service employees, widows and orphans of deceased persons.

The Army Medical Service will do its utmost to provide medical attention to dependents and retired personnel, regardless of lack of officers assigned for these duties, as long as there is no conflict with military requirements.

Education Official Visits HRU

Lee E. Campion of the National Education Association, Washington, D. C., visited the Infantry Human Research Unit May 5 and 16 in connection with an NEA project entitled "Technological Development and the Teaching Profession."

Headquarters of the 18-month project is the School of Education of the University of Southern California under the direction of James D. Finn, professor of education and principal investigator for NEA. Campion heads the Washington office of the project.

He recently served as television consultant for NEA and formerly was audio-visual director for the St. Louis (Mo.) County Schools.

At Fort Benning the visitor conferred with Dr. Carl J. Lange, director of research for HUMRO, and Dr. Harold S. Tate, educational adviser for The Infantry School.

Capt. Albert Poteat, director of operations and training of HUMRO, was the project officer for the visit.

SFC LOCKETT THROWS AN OPPONENT
Head-lock is Used on Sgt James Burton

Sfc Milton Lockett is a member of the demonstration team, Ranger Combat Conditioning Committee, Training Section, of The Infantry School's Ranger Department.

Sfc Lockett has been with the Ranger Department since January of 1958, after being assigned here from Fort Jackson, S.C. He entered the Army in February 1952, at Columbus, Ga., and saw foreign duty in Germany during the Korean Conflict.

As a member of the Ranger Demonstration Team, Sfc Lockett is highly trained in the skills of hand to hand combat, behind enemy lines activities and guerrilla warfare.

A native of College Park, Ga., Sfc Lockett, his wife Ida and their son, now reside in Columbus.

The demonstration personnel perform before visiting dignitaries and for such events as Joint Civilian Orientation Conferences as well as routine class instruction scheduled at The Infantry School.

197 Join AUSA In One Company

The 94th Transportation Company (Helicopter), Lawson Army Aviation Command, is sending all other Lawson units in current AUSA membership with 133 officers and warrant officers and 64 enlisted personnel as active members.

Interest in AUSA membership was fired up when Gen. Mark Clark, (Ret.) spoke to the local chapter at a banquet held on post in the Bryant Wells Field House. The impact of his delivery has been relayed by Major William F. Proncavage, commanding officer of the 94th Transportation Company, and other AUSA members to the officers and enlisted men of the company.

The response and enthusiasm obtained by Major Proncavage and his staff is still showing its effect by the still growing membership.

'ENTAC' System

Replacement For SS-10 Is Selected

WASHINGTON (ANS) — An Army decision to buy the ENTAC guided missile system for use against enemy tanks was recently announced by the Department of Defense.

The word ENTAC is a contraction of the French identifying description, ENgin Teleguided Anti-Char.

Major Gen. August Schomburg, commanding general of the Army Ordnance Missile Command, (AOMC) said the Army Rocket and Guided Missile Agency, an element of AOMC, will be commodity manager of the system.

AOMC will act as weapon system manager. The command is also manager for the SS-10 missile, which the ENTAC will replace.

The ENTAC, a French Army development is small, light, and suitable for use by the Infantry. The missile is directed to the target by an operator who maneuvers a stick to give the appropriate correction command transmitted through fine wires played out from the missile as it flies to the target.

The missile and its launcher weigh 27 pounds; the missile in flight weighs 27 pounds. It carries a shaped charge warhead designed for maximum effectiveness against armor, and utilizes a solid propellant rocket motor.

As ENTAC equipment becomes available, the presently used SS-10 will be phased out.

Selection of ENTAC followed an evaluation of U. S. and NATO anti-tank weapon development programs, and is in consonance with the Army policy of equipping is troops with the best available weapons.

Tests of both the ENTAC and the SS-10 have been conducted by ARGMA's Test, Evaluation and Firing Laboratory at Redstone Arsenal:

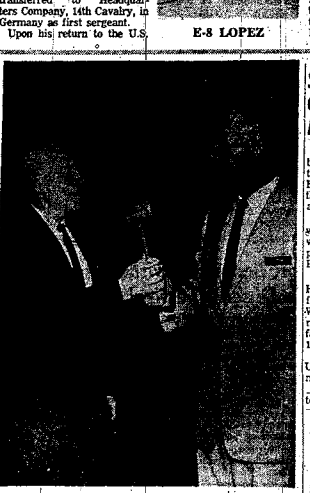
First Sergeant (E-8) Manuel Lopez of Headquarters Company, 1st Infantry Brigade, enlisted in the Army on July 16, 1942 at Fort Buchanan, Puerto Rico.

World War II found him working as chief of the classification and assignment section at Fort Buchanan, where he remained until the outbreak of the Korean conflict.

At that time he was assigned as personnel sergeant major of the 65th Infantry, 3rd Division, in Korea. After the closing of the hostilities there, he returned to his homeland to serve a tour of ROTC duty at the University of Puerto Rico in San Juan. In 1956 he was transferred to Headquarters Company, 14th Cavalry, in Germany as first sergeant.



Upon his return to the U.S. in 1959, he was assigned to the 154th Transportation Company, 1st Infantry Brigade, as first sergeant, and later transferred to Headquarters Company, 1st Infantry Brigade, taking duties there as first sergeant.

E-8 LOPEZ

During his 18 and one half years in the Army, the first sergeant has attended many service schools, including the Adjutant General's School, at which he was an honor student, and the Advanced Enlisted Administration Course.

This career man, who holds a commission of captain (Adjutant General Corps) in the Army Reserves, has many decorations and awards to represent the highlights of his Army record. Among them are the Bronze Star Medal and the Combat Infantryman's Badge.

First 10 Places Fall to Army In Texas Rifle Meet

Army Rifle Team members continued their winning ways in Invitational Matches in the Western states as they captured the first 10 places in the individual aggregate competition of the recent Texas State Highpower Matches at Fort Hood.

Leading the Army competitors was Sfc James L. Tuck with 497-47V out of a possible 500 points.

Second place was captured by Capt. Frank T. Lohmeon, who posted a 493-47V, with third going to Sgt. William D. Carrier, who posted a 493-41V.

Of the remaining seven high men, all Army Rifle Team members, three scored 493 and four 492, but all had fewer of the tie-breaking "V" hits than the three top shooters.

YES, ROUND TRIPS

Last year; Army motor vehicles were driven the equivalent of 2,500 round trips to the moon.

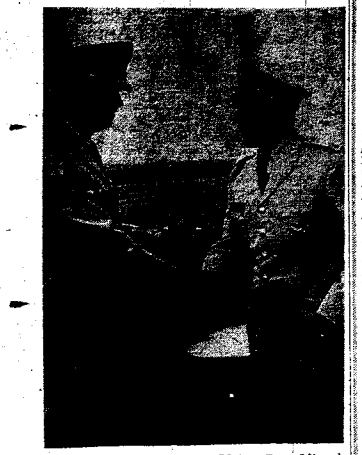
Sunday Subject Of Unitarians Is 'Prejudice'

The nature of prejudice will be discussed at a meeting of the Unitarian Fellowship of Fort Benning and Columbus, at the 1st Infantry Brigade Chapel at 7:15 p.m. Sunday.

Karlis Zobs of Indianapolis, will lead the discussion which will be based upon Gordon Allpol's book, "The Nature of Prejudice."

Zobs is a native of Latvia. He and his family were driven from their home during World War II. After residing in Germany as displaced persons, the family came to the U. S. in 1959.

An A. B. graduate of Butler University in Indianapolis, Zobs majored in sociology.



The public is invited to attend the meeting.

Help Still Needed

Vacation Bible School Superintendents Named

Fort Benning's Vacation Bible School department superintendents have been announced by Mrs. Margurite Waldrop, director of religious education for The Infantry Center.

The superintendents and departments include Mrs. Thomas M. Scovill, Eighth Grade Department; Mrs. Wallace L. Lancaster, Seventh Grade; Mrs. Arthur J. Estes, Sixth Grade, and Mrs. John E. Rogers, Fifth Grade.

Mrs. Horace Sams, Jr., Fourth Grade; Mrs. Louis R. Buckner, Third Grade; Mrs. George T. Britton, Second Grade, and Mrs. George D. Patterson, First Grade.

Mrs. Quincy A. Bearden, Kindergarten-A; Mrs. Wendell O. Doody, Kindergarten-B; Mrs. Paul T. Ingle, Beginner-A; Mrs. Archie E. Carpenter, Beginner-B; Mrs. John T. Colson, Nursery-B, and Mrs. Karl V. Hurdle, Nursery-C.

Nursery-A will provide care for children of VBS teachers too young to participate in the activities of the school.

VBS general officers include Chaplain (Major) Russell K. Lee, project officer; Mrs. Thomas K. Goodman, superintendent, and Mrs. Stuart M. Mitchell, secretary.

Mrs. Roger H. Craddock, registrar; Mrs. John T. Smith, refreshment chairman, and Mrs. Waldrop, director.

Approximately 100 volunteer teachers and workers have signed up the 1961 VBS. An additional 100 workers are needed, according to Mrs. Waldrop.

The school will be held June 19 to 23 with daily sessions from 8:30 to 11 a.m.

Instruction will be provided for children from the age of three years through the eighth grade.

The annual VBS is a joint project of the Main Post, Harmony Church, St. Michael's and Lutheran Sunday Schools on the post.

Further information may be obtained by telephoning 5-3504.

ALL SERVICES — ONE IDEA

The more than one million servicemen and women and civilian employees of the Armed Forces who bought Series E savings bonds regularly in 1960 accounted for $362 million of the $3.5 billion saved through this program.

The Civilians You Work With

Elizabeth Funderburk has been working as a purchasing agent typist for the Contracts Division of The Infantry Center's Purchasing and Contracting Office for the past three years.

She has worked in the same office for nine years, previously as a typist. In 1952-57, she worked as secretary general of the Engineer District in Okinawa, making reports on all land and money given to the Okinawan people.

She also worked as a teletype operator in the Signal Telegraph Office during World War II.

A graduate of Massey Business College in Columbus, she finished high school at Talbotton, Ga., and now resides in Columbus.

Debt Reducing Plan Helps Over-Extended

(Part of an AFPS series)

No one is born with the ability to manage money well. It takes skill to make an income, no matter what size, cover expenses you now have plus those projected into the future.

For the sake of argument we assume you have made the mistake of becoming overobligated.

First, be frank with your creditors. You'll find that nine times out of ten they'll be understanding and give you a chance to prove your solvency.

Establish what legal assistance officers call a debt liquidation schedule.

Under this plan a month-by schedule of payments within your means is established. The cooperation of your creditors is requested so you can make payments within the framework of a workable budget.

A thing to remember, however, is that once such an arrangement is agreed upon, your failure to comply is a positive indication of irresponsibility and a lack of good faith on your part.

Another step would be a visit with your legal assistance officer for advice on a safe, practical solution to your problem.

Beyond doubt he will show you how to set up a balance sheet showing income and outgo.

He may even help you find ways to reduce fixed obligations by turning back merchandise you don't need. This is provided, of course, your creditor will accept them.

Your legal adviser may also suggest you secure a bonafide, low interest loan from a bank, reputable loan company, credit union or by borrowing on your life insurance policy.

In every instance, be will warn you against borrowing from illegal unlicensed loan companies, sometimes called loan sharks.

And he will be the first one to tell you that it's the very high interest and dangerous default provisions in most loan shark agreements that are poison.

Col. Dixon Earns Logistician Title

Col. Dale D. Dixon, G-4 of The Infantry Center, has been awarded a certificate by the Army's deputy chief of staff for logistics designating him a logistician.

The presentation was made by Brig. Gen. A. D. Surles, Jr., deputy commanding general of the post, in ceremonies attended by key staff officers.

The certificate states that Col. Dixon, a member of the Army's logistics officer program, qualified for the title through experience and outstanding performance of duty.

Fort Benning Jewish Personnel To Observe Festival of Shavuot

Jewish personnel at the post will celebrate the Festival of Shavuot (Pentecost) from sundown tomorrow to sundown Monday (May 22).

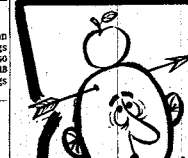
Services will be conducted at the Jewish Center, Building 1071, in the old hospital area at 9 a.m. Sunday and Monday. Yizkor will be said at the Monday morning service.

Jewish personnel of the area are being invited to attend the services.

Shavuot commemorates the handing down of the Ten Commandments to Moses on Mount Sanai.

In Biblical times, the festival was agricultural in nature, celebrating the harvest of grain and the appearance of the first fruits following the spring planting.

The term Pentecost is used to describe the festival because it falls on the 50th day after the beginning of the Passover.



Shavuot is often the occasion for a confirmation service in which young people pledge themselves to live up to the highest ideals of the Jewish faith.

A 1960 TOTAL

Americans bought more than $3.5 billion of Series E savings bonds during 1960. They also purchased an additional $718 million of Series H savings bonds at banks.

AT THE Movies

SWISS FAMILY ROBINSON, Starring John Mills, Dorothy McGuire, James MacArthur and Janet Munro. Shipwrecked on an uncharted island, a family face danger every minute of every day and night. Menaced by the jungle and attacked by ravaging pirates, they defy disaster - with courage, strength, and amazing ingenuity.

DAVID AND GOLIATH, Starring Orson Welles and Ivo Payer. Out of an age of splendor and savagery surges the story of David, the shepherd boy who was destined to become a warrior king, and Goliath, the giant of inhuman strength, who led the army of the Philistines in the assault against the legions of King Saul.

ANGEL BABY, Starring George Hamilton and Salome Jens. When a young and attractive mute girl regains her speech at a revival meeting, she decides to pursue an evangelical career. Believing in her divine calling and her power to heal the sick, she becomes a sensation until later renounced by her followers.

GIDGET GOES HAWAIIAN, Starring James Darren, Michael Callan, and Deborah Walley. Because her boyfriend must remain at home, the surfboard sweetheart of the teenage set is unhappy on her Waikiki vacation. When she changes her mind and decides to enjoy herself, her problems grow and the boys go wild.

Masquers--Unmasked

By Pfc Chuck Pariso

Who has been papering a hotel room with stock certificates for the past 26 years? See the "Girls in 509" for this exciting disclosure!

Rehearsal for the "Girls In 509", the Masquers latest effort, are really rolling along. Rehearsal for the play got off to a fast start last week, with two complete runs-through (with books). The next two meetings, Acts I and II were blocked for the actor's stage positions. From that point on, each scene is to be rehearsed individually.

The entire week of June 5 has been reserved for final rehearsals and preparations. The Saturday prior to the live production of the play will be used to practice any scenes needing extra preparation.

The play will be presented on two consecutive weekends, June 10 and 11 and the following Saturday and Sunday.

Workshop Slates Players

The Drama Workshop, is working very smoothly under the direction of Pfc Vincent DeDario. In this department, two one-act plays have been decided upon for presentation at the Playhouse (Building 1045) at a Masquers barbecue on May 20. The two plays, both comedies, are entitled "Here We Are" and "The Still Alarm." All Masquers and their friends are invited to attend this affair.

Radio Plans

The Radio Workshop, under the guiding assistance of Paul Carpenter, held its second meeting recently. Plans call for a one-half hour radio drama to be presented weekly over WMAH, Martin Army Hospital. At present, the program is being discussed very seriously and it is hoped that the show can be initiated in the near future.

Make-Up Classes

Each Tuesday evening at 7:30, make-up classes are being conducted at the Masquers Building (1045), by Terry Thompson. Those interested in learning this art may contact the Masquers Playhouse. (Phone 5-2468).

BOOKS in REVIEW

PROMENADE IN CHAMPAGNE by David Johnson. (Sloane 1961).

This novel tells the story of General Nivelle's disastrous 1917 campaign along the Aisne River during the European War. In this campaign the French Infantry struggled against a well armed enemy. There were heroes on both sides but few could match the soldiers of the Angevin Regiment of Infantry. This is the story of the men of that regiment as told by one of their officers.

THROUGH THE FIELDS OF CLOVER by Peter De Vries. (Little, 1961)

A satirical novel set in a Massachusetts semi - summer resort, to which Mrs. Marvel summons an ill-assorted family clan to celebrate a fortieth wedding anniversary. On the old New England homestead, therefore, descend her four offspring, whose own marital records must be regarded as a testimonial to something other than permanence.

MEMOIR OF SPRING by Elick Moll. (Putnam, 1961)

A novel which comprises the memories of a Jewish childhood in Brooklyn, Chicago, and the Catskills, as recalled by a successful Hollywood composer. There is no continuous plot and little to connect the incidents except a mood of nostalgia. There are stories of a race between two car rivals and of the kindness of a prostitute, the dreams of adolescence.

THE ACE OF SPADES by Dell Shannon. (Morrow, 1961)

The second case of Lt. Luis Rodriguez Vincente Mendoza, of the L. A. Police force, develops through and over - heroin-ed death, the whereabouts of a vanished treasure of coins and an over-issue of dope pushing.

In Columbus
'Boyfriend' Play Opens Next Week

The Columbus Little Theater will present "The Boyfriend", a musical comedy designed for the whole family, at the Wynnton School Auditorium May 23, 24 and 25, beginning at 8:30 p.m.

"The Boyfriend" is the type of play for the whole family to see as it displays the antics of young American girls who attend a school for girls on the Riveria.

The dancing and singing have been combined under the direction of Charles James, the director of the last Little Theater production "The Rainmaker", for audience enjoyment and production success.

The cast is headed by Nancy Johson, Alice Anderson, Ken Boil and Bill Bowick.

Tickets may be obtained at the box office the night of the performance or by calling FA 7-1275.

Sudanese Officers Visit TIS

Col. Ahmed Mukhtar Mahmoumd, commandant of the Military College of Sudan, is visiting The Infantry School today. He arrived yesterday.

He is accompanied by Lt. Col. Abdullahi Mohammed Adam, commandant of Sudan's Signal School, and Capt. Robert E. Schank, U. S. Department of the Army tour director.

The Allied visitors were briefed on Ranger small unit training, Airborne instruction, Infantry School organization and facilities, instructor training aids. They also viewed demonstrations of a rifle company in defense and retrograde operations, 3.5-inch rocket launcher tank weapon orientation and Infantry School Communication and Ground Mobility Department instruction.

The Sudanese officers conferred with Brig. Gen. L. A. Walsh Jr., assistant commandant of The Infantry School yesterday morning. They were honored with an offical luncheon hosted by Col. William H. Birdsong Jr., Infantry School director of instruction.

Preceding their departure this afternoon, they will visit the Little White House at Warm Springs, vacation home of the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

'Strongest' U. S. Trap Squad Faces International Competition

The strongest trapshooting squad ever to represent the United States in foreign competition was formed here last Saturday, the final day of the U. S. 1961 International Shooting Team trap eliminations.

Air Force Lt. Col. Wyeth C. Everhart blasted through the four-day trials to smash 390 out of 400 clay targets and clinch the first of the six team slots.

A single point behind the 1958 world's championship gold medal winner was Marine Gunnery Sgt. William D. Abbott with 389x400.

Second Place Decided

Abbott fired his second 99x100 to take second place from civilian shooter Frank L. Little of Endicott, N. Y., who posted a 99x100 for the day. The seven target loss gave Little a final score of 383x400 and permitted G. C. McLaughlin of Terre Haute, Ind., to snatch third team slot with 384x400. Army 1st Lt. James R. Clark 1960 Olympic competitor, filled fifth place by listing a 382x400.

By far the highlight of the finals was the winning of the sixth slot by Francis Eisenlauer of Palo Alto, Calif.

The present world's title holder of the International trapshooting crown finished far down the list of competitors the first day because of weapon trouble. He resolved his trouble late in the second round and followed his first day 87 with a 95.

He then began a fabulous exhibition which ended with the 18th shot of his fourth and last 25-bird string of the day. At the end of the first day he held 23rd place, 20th at the end of the second and 16th at the end of the third.

To annex team membership he jumped eight of the nation's top seeded trapshooters by missing only three out of his last 200 targets for a final score of 379x400.

Team alternate slot was won by Army Sgt. Major Harold A. Greene, who had to down national transpoothing champion Dan Orlich of Reno, Neb., in a 25-bird shoot-off.

Grewe smashed his 25 offerings while Orlich, American-type trap champion who had never before fired the rugged International course, dropped his last bird for a 24x25. Both had compiled identical scores of 378x400 over the four days.

Skeet Team Next

Selection of the International trap squad left the International skeet squad open for membership, according to team coach Major Michael Tipa of Unit at Benning. Skeet finals were fired this week.

The team is scheduled to depart for Oslo, Norway, site of the world's championship trap, skeet and Running Deer events June 7-17.

"We have tremendous potential in the team now forming," Col. Peter Agnell, team captain said, "and expect that Soviet and Italian shooters will fast learn that America is well represented at the Oslo shoot."

'Possible' Rifle Score Sparks Win

Sgt. Howard A. Stevens fired a perfect 250 out of 250 points over the National Rifle Match course at Lackland Air Force Base, Texas, to lead his Army team to a strong win over the Air Force Rifle Team May 14.

Sparked by Stevens' "possible", the Blue Team from the Army's Advanced Marksmanship Unit produced a total of 987-97V out of a possible 1,000 points.

Sgt. Henry P. Edwards took second honors in the team match scoring with 247-25V. Sgt Herbert L. Duncan, third with 246-18V, and Sfc James L. Tuck, fourth with 24-30V. Twenty-four of Steven's bull's-eye hits were in the tie-breaking string.

The Texas shoot was conducted by the Air Force as part of the Army-Air Force program of invitational match competition devised for training purposes before the annual national championships

SHOOTING COMPETITION

The annual national shooting competition will be held at Camp Perry, Ohio, July 28-August 27.

OCS Class Shows Its Appreciation

Happy with the way they have been fed during their stay at Infantry Officer Candidate School, the members of the 52nd Company, 5th Student Battalion, The Student Brigade presented a plaque to their mess sergeant in appreciation.

The unprecedented ceremony honoring SSgt John P. Barbagello, mess sergeant, and his crew of cooks, took place recently in the mess hall.

In presenting the plaque, Officer Candidate (now 2nd lieutenant) Frank T. Johnson cited many of the outstanding accomplishments of the mess crew during the 24-week course. He spoke before the entire assembled mess.

Singled out for mention were the "little extras" that make eating a real pleasure; the friendly and interested manner in which Sgt. Barbagello and his cooks operated the mess, and the fine cooking.

Gen. Walsh's Infantry School Report

The presentation of the General George C. Marshall Awards for excellence in military writing marks the culmination of the effective writing program for our career course students. This year the awards went to Captains John G. Pappageorge and James F. Bell.

These men have demonstrated their skill in an area that is assuming ever-increasing importance in our modern Army. Career officers today must be able to write well in order to perform effectively in many command and staff positions.

The Training Committee of the Special Subjects Department, charged with teaching and administering this course, works on the premise that each career course student possesses a degree of ability to write effectively. From this starting point the committee stresses the principles and techniques of good writing and the necessity for much practice—for this is a do-it-yourself course. "Write" and "rewrite" are the key words of the program.

Student reaction to the course at first is varied, for as many reasons as there are students. In the end, however, there is unanimous agreement on one point: anyone who can think logically can write well. Army writing is basically that simple.

The students have ample opportunity for application of the logical thought process. They are required to write several short papers of the variety most staff officers deal with daily. In addition to these, the career officers are assigned two major writing projects. One is to write a staff study of a problem with direct bearing on current Army operations. The other is to turn out an article for publication.

This last project is the high point of the effective writing course and is used as the basis for determining to whom the Marshall Awards will be given. The award-winning articles and many of the runners-up are published in Infantry Magazine, the writers receiving payment for their work.

Both of these major writing projects require considerable research and preparation time. Most students spend an average of 30 hours just in writing the papers, far more is spent in research. Comparing this time to the ten hours of formal instruction, it is apparent

2 Captains Win Marshall Award

Captains John G. Pappageorge and James F. Bell have been awarded the General George C. Marshall Awards. Presented at graduation ceremonies yesterday for 396 officers of The Infantry School's Career Classes 1 and 2, the awards are for outstanding military writing.

Lt. Gen. (Ret.) Reuben E. Jenkins of Columbus spoke at the graduation exercises in Theater 1. The Marshall Awards were presented by Brig. Gen. L. A. Walsh Jr., assistant commandant of The School.

Title of Capt. Pappageorge's article, which will be published in Infantry Magazine, is "Raid and Destroy." He was the winner in class 1.

Capt. Bell, of class 2, was selected for his article, "A Lesson in Nuclear Effects," which will also be published in Infantry Magazine's July-August issue. Both career classes were of 35 weeks duration.

Graduation certificates were presented to the other 394 graduates, including 23 officers from 18 Allied nations.

Bronze Plaques

Bronze plaques were given to the Marshall Award winners. The award was inaugurated last year as an annual commemoration of the famed general, secretary of defense and secretary of state. Selection of the winners was made from professional articles submitted by all career course students.

The graduation speaker, Gen. Jenkins, is a native of Cartersville, Ga. He was president of Army Ground Forces Board 3 (now the Infantry

'Army's Own' AER and ARS Goal Stated

The 1961 fund raising campaign for the "Army's own" emergency charity organizations, the Army Emergency Relief and the Army Relief Society, will begin May 30 for all post commands and units.

Army Chief of Staff Gen. George H. Decker, in a message on the AER and ARS drive, said: "By our support of these two worthy organizations once each year we make it possible for them to continue their important contribution to the morale and welfare of the Army. I urge that you give this campaign your vigorous support."

This year's dollar goal for the post, including the 2nd Infantry Division, is $33,361, established on the basis of 15 per cent of total loans and grants made during the calendar year 1960. All donations made by post personnel remain at the installation to assist in financial emergencies beyond the individual's ability to meet.

The 1960 campaign goal was surpassed and during that year 2,127 loans, totaling $211,760, were extended to soldiers and 69 grants, or $10,647, were given.

AER's largest function is immediate loans to personnel experiencing financial difficulties from late pay and overdue allotment checks created through such actions as overseas returnees which cannot be immediately corrected by action of the unit commander or personnel officer.

Memorial Day To Be Holiday On the Post

Memorial Day, May 30, will be a holiday for military and civilian personnel at Fort Benning, according to Major Gen. Hugh P. Harris, post commander.

All personnel will be excused from duty Tuesday except essential administrative personnel and persons necessary to the operation of the installation.

The Fort Benning Children's Schools also will observe Memorial Day as a holiday, Mrs. Hazel Scudder, superintendent of the post school system, has announced.

COL. SMITH

Col. Smith Is Deputy Chief Of TIC Staff

Lt. Col. Norvin E. Smith, Jr. assumed the duties of deputy chief of staff of The Infantry Center on May 19.

He succeeded Lt. Col. James D. Anders, who has been assigned to the 3rd Infantry Division at Bamberg, Germany.

Col. Smith came to the post in June, 1958. Following a year's tour as deputy G-1 of The Infantry Center, he has commanded the 1st Armored Rifle Battalion, 58th Infantry, 1st Infantry Brigade.

From May, 1957, to April, 1958, he was a member of the U. S. Military Training Mission in Saudi Arabia.

Col. Smith entered the Army in October, 1940. From 1941 through 1945, he served as a platoon leader, battalion adjutant and company executive officer and commander in the 134th Infantry Regiment, participating in the Aleutians, Central Pacific, Leyte, Luzon and Ryukyus campaigns. The next three years he was a battalion commander in the 21st Infantry, 7th Division, in Korea.

Among his decorations are the Silver Star, Bronze Star Medal and Purple Heart with two Oak Leaf Clusters.

Col. Smith was graduated from The Infantry School's officer advanced class in 1950 and completed the Command and General Staff College four years later. He attended the Armor School's senior officer preventive maintenance course this year.

Col. and Mrs. Smith, the former Anne Weeks of Fresno, Calif., have two children, Jeff, 12, and Jeanette, 5.

Set on Post

Fort Benning personnel will honor the Nation's war dead on Memorial Day, Tuesday, May 30. For all except personnel engaged in essential duties, the day will be observed as a legal holiday.

A memorial ceremony will be conducted at 10 a.m. at the Post Cemetery, followed by a flagstaff ceremony at 11:45 a.m. in front of The Infantry School.

The Infantry Center Band will give a 15 minute concert at the cemetery beginning at 9:45 a.m.

Chaplain (1st Lt.) Norton D. Shargel will give the invocation. A Memorial Day address will be presented by Chaplain (Capt.) Frank E. Dease.

Assisted by two Explorer Scouts, Brig. Gen. A. D. Surles Jr., deputy commanding general of The Infantry Center, will place a wreath on a grave.

Firing Squad

A salute of three rifle volleys will be fired by a squad from Company C, 1st Battle Group, 29th Infantry, 1st Infantry Brigade, followed by taps by a bugler from the band.

The benediction will be pronounced by Chaplain (Capt.) James F. Dolan.

The final note in the memorial service will be the National Anthem, played by the band.

An Honor Guard participating in the service at the cemetery will be formed from Company C, 29th Infantry.

Also participating in the service will be Boy and Girl Scout troops of the post.

Move to TIS

From the cemetery, the ceremony will move to the Infantry School where the flag will have been flown at half-staff since reveille, in honor of all who have died in the service of their country.

The Infantry Center Band will play appropriate music from 11:45 a.m. until 12 noon.

A salute of 21 guns will be the signal for a color detail to hoist the flag to full staff. Once more, the band will play the National Anthem.

The salute at the flagstaff will be fired by Battery A, 2nd Howitzer Battalion, 10th Artillery 1st Infantry Brigade. The color detail will be members of Company C, 29th Infantry.

Transportation for scouts will be furnished to and from the cemetery. Buses will lead at Custer Terrace Shopping Center, Chapel parking lot, and Benning Park scout hut in Baker Village.

All buses will depart the loading areas at 9:15 a.m. After the ceremony, buses will return the scouts to the designated areas.

The public is invited to attend the ceremonies.

Suggestion Month In Final Days

The Army Chief of Staff's Suggestion Month has entered its final days. The objective of this campaign is to solicit a minimum of one constructive suggestion from each individual during the month of May, 1961.

A survey of results during the first half of this project reveals that 757 suggestions were submitted during this period. This submission rate exceeds the number submitted during any of the first three quarters of Fiscal Year 1961.

Personnel of Lawson Army Aviation Command have submitted 176 suggestions and lead Infantry Center Units. The Safety Section has achieved 23 per cent participation to lead in the participation rate. Other activities which have reached or exceeded 50 per cent participation are: Comptroller Section, Civilian Personnel Section, Third Army Training Aids Subcenter, Purchasing and Contracting Section, and the Infantry Human Research Unit.

Continued emphasis will be placed on this campaign throughout the final days of May.

training accident and his widow was given $100 financial assistance to pay living expenses before returning to her family. A soldier's wife died at Martin Army Hospital and the soldier was given $745 to pay burial fees. The day before her death, the wife had been loaned $50 to help defray expenses of a trip to join her husband overseas and this amount was written off the books as a grant.

A soldier's wife was given $150 assistance after losing her Class Q Allotment money in Columbus. A soldier, who had retired and received no pay due to indebtedness to the government, was given $150 for travel expenses to his home.

Those are just some of the many examples of the worthwhile work done with the annual AER - ARS donations which proves the slogan, "The Army takes care of its own."

First Lt. Wallace E. Viau, The Infantry Center's personal affairs officer, is post AER custodian, and campaign chairman.

Publicity materials have been sent to units where project officers will be appointed to conduct the campaign, which will encompass three military pay days, ending July 31. The quota of each major subordinate command is based on the assigned military strength as of April 1. It will take slightly more than $1 from each military member to reach Fort Benning's 1961 goal.

Report

that the emphasis is on practice.

The Training Committee is assisted in the program by selected officers drawn from all departments and offices of the School. These officers, known as faculty advisors, in addition to counselling on problems encountered during the course in general, have the special task of evaluating and grading the papers written by their student groups.

One criteria for their selection is, of course, demonstrated ability to write well. Each advisor has approximately ten students to work with. Since the group is small, he is able to give his students criticism and guidance on an individual basis. The faculty advisor is really the key man in the program, because he is not just an evaluator, he is a source of encouragement and example to those students who have difficulty in writing.

At the conclusion of the course, the faculty advisor recommends an appropriate entry for each student's academic report on his ability to express himself in writing. This entry is an important motivating feature of the effective writing program, since it may well have great influence on future assignments to key positions.

The effective writing program as presently conceived has been in being for such a short time that no valid conclusions can be drawn as to its over-all impact on Army writing. In fact, it is doubtful that any such conclusions could ever be drawn, but one thing is certain; namely, our young officers are impressed with the importance of clearly written communication when they leave The Infantry School.

They have learned also that good writing, like other skills, must be practiced continually if proficiency is to be retained. Likewise, they realize that good ideas are often lost because they are poorly written.

Board) at Benning from the fall of 1946 to the end of 1947.

He served under Gen. James Van Fleet on the American Aid Mission to Greece from 1948 until July, 1950, when he became chief of the mission for 11 months. In August, 1952, he went to Korea as commander of the Ninth ROK Army. He was promoted to lieutenant general that year.

Gen. Jenkins was retired in ceremonies at Fort Benning in February, 1954.

The three-star general enlisted in the Army at the outbreak of World War I. He first came to this post in September, 1921, as a student in The Infantry School's company officer course. He remained on the faculty until 1926.

He served in China with the 15th Infantry from 1928 to 1931, then was stationed with the 8th Infantry at Fort Screven, Ga., for three years. After attending the Command and General Staff College at Fort Leavenworth, he rejoined the 8th Infantry, this time at Fort Moultrie, S. C.

Following his graduation from the Army War College in 1938, Gen. Jenkins was on the faculty of the Command and General Staff College for three years.

In 1943 he was awarded the Distinguished Service Medal for outstanding performance with the G1 Division, War Department General Staff. He was one of those responsible for the expansion of the Army officer corps from 80,000 to over 500,000 during the preceding two years.

As a member of Gen. Eisenhower's staff in North Africa, Gen. Jenkins participated in the planning and conduct of the landings at Salerno and Anzio and the campaigns of the Garigliano River.

In July, 1944, he was named G-3 of the Sixth Army Group and held this position until the close of World War II.

From July, 1945, to the following February, he was G-3 of Army Ground Forces (now Continental Army Command), Fort Monroe, then was assigned to the Joint War Plans Committee. He later served in the Plans and Operations Division of the War Department General Staff.

Safe Milage

Last year, Army motor vehicles within the Continental United States were driven some 130,000 miles for each accident reported. By contrast, the better civilian motor fleets reported a record of an average 75,000 miles per accident.

Another Service From The Bayonet

It has been brought to our attention that many enlisted men on this post and throughout the Army do not have a thorough knowledge of the basic personal affairs facts. As we are all vitally affected by procedures and policies pertaining to such matters as transportation, overseas deferments, legal affairs, educational development, religious guidance, financing, financial assistance, insurance, social security, savings, support of dependents, pay and allowances, retirement and other benefits, these subjects will be briefly covered in coming issues. Full particulars covering each subject are available in DA Pamphlet 600-2, which will be used by us in preparing our short articles and fillers. The latest pamphlet available is dated March, 1961, and should be referred to if an article of ours is not complete in all details. Each item printed from the pamphlet will bear reference to the pamphlet.

Public Sees 'Blue Day' OSC Events

The importance of the Infantryman and the caliber of officer training at The Infantry School were signified to the public attending an officer candidate senior status review last Saturday morning, the final event in the local observance of Armed Forces Week 1961.

Citizens, who during the week had an opportunity to observe displays of military might and attend events in Columbus staged by America's defense team, were invited to the senior status review at Sightseeing Field and to observe normal activities at the post.

Brig. Gen. L. A. Walsh, Jr., assistant commandant of The Infantry School, was reviewing officer for the parade, a highlight of the "Blue Day" celebration marking the beginning of the final phase of 23 weeks of training for officer candidates of class 3 of the 50th Company, 5th Student Battalion of The Infantry School's Student Brigade.

When Memorial Day was first observed in 1868, San Juan Hill, Verdum, Dunkerque and Korea still were unfamiliar names to most Americans. They were honoring men who had died in their own land at the hands of their own countrymen in defense of "one nation, indivisible."

What was that first Memorial Day like:

Major Gen. John A. Logan had proclaimed the holiday, according to World Book Encyclopedia. The Grand Army of the Republic which he commanded was leading the tributes with services at Arlington National Cemetery. Just across the river in Washington, D.C., President Andrew Johnson was probably celebrating the end of his impeachment trial four days earlier. He had been acquitted, but his enemies, the Radical Republicans, were firmly in control of Reconstruction and determined to punish the South.

The day was probably greeted with mixed feelings by the four million former slaves. Legally they were still not citizens, but Congress, after celebrating the holiday, would go back to work on passing the Fourteenth Amendment to make them so. The Negroes were trying to adjust to their new freedom, with little help from the newly organized Ku-Klux Klan.

The old Southern aristocracy, too, had to make adjustments. Its land had been ruined, its economy was near collapse and its social traditions had been overturned.

The picture was more cheerful in the North, where Harriet Beecher Stowe, author of Uncle Tom's Cabin, was now writing stories about New England life. While the war had shattered the South, it had brought booming prosperity to the North. Men who financed the Union cause and manufactured its weapons and supplies became millionaires and, at the same time, speeded up the process of industrialization.

There were still echoes of war on that solemn day. While graves were being decorated with flowers, Irish republicans in the U. S. were plotting to take over Canada and hold it as hostage for the freedom of Ireland. Cubans were just beginning a ten-year rebellion against the Spanish that would soon win the official sympathy of the U.S. House of Representatives.

But most Americans had put thoughts of war behind them. They were looking westward to the Great Plains and to the "manifest destiny" of the nation. Miners had started the surge west. Now the Union Pacific and the Central Pacific railways were nearing their meeting at Promontory Point, Utah, which would mark the completion of the first transcontinental railway. The railroads would bring in settlers and equipment. They would carry back to Eastern markets the herds that Texas cattlemen were beginning to drive north. Farmers would follow the cowboys, respectable towns would replace the rowdy camps Bret Harte was immortalizing in such stories as "The Luck of Roaring Camp," and the frontier would disappear.

The stage was set for the emergence of the Union, cemented by the dead who were being memorialized on that May 30, as an industrial giant that would spread its bounty across a continent.

Editorial

Memorial Day 1961 Has an Added Meaning

Memorial Day every year has been a poignant experience for Americans of all races and creeds. It has added meaning for us this year, perhaps, because it was born of the war that began 100 years ago and is now being commemorated by Centennial events.

But May 30 has long since come to be a day of tribute to all of our war dead, when their graves are green with spring and bright with flowers. In Arlington National Cemetery the bugler sounds Taps and it is the pure distillation of the nation's feeling — gratitude to these men who died for what they believed in.

Is this to say that each and every one of them gave his life in a spirit of burning affirmation? Not at all. Most of them were ordinary men and a good many would not have been able to put their beliefs into words. Quite a few were foreign-born; they didn't die for their native land. But they did share with Americans by birth the feeling that America was a place where a man could be 10 feet tall and walk upright.

This feeling is latent in all of us. It goes so deep, it is so basic to our being, that very few of us can attempt to define it without embarrassment: The men we honor on Memorial Day did not go into battle to die; they were not dedicated martyrs burning with a Crusader's passion. They did know, however, that men get killed in battles, and each of them gave plenty of thought to his own chances of coming out alive.

In other words, these men were afraid. But they fought for their country anyhow. They wanted to live. They didn't. But the possibility of dying did not make them swerve from duty, so they were, perhaps, impelled by some spirit of devotion they only dimly sensed. We all have that spirit; we can be proud they had it. For, if they hadn't, would we be its inheritors?

The idea seems to be prevalent in some circles that intelligent, informed, wise and progressive people, those who have achieved desirable prestige and importance in the value and virtue of the Bible.

This is not the case at all. The greatest minds, the greatest characters, and the greatest achievements have been inspired and empowered by the word of God. Those who accept the Bible as God's word and hold to it in simple Faith and strong Devotion are in the highest company.

The Bible does not need the attestation of men to establish its character, for it stands alone — sublime and supreme—a sufficient witness within itself; but the import of cumulative testimony should cause the gravest doubter his doubts, and should strengthen the faith of every believer.

Dwight D. Eisenhower wrote these words on the White House stationery. "In the highest sense the Bible is to us the unique respository of eternal spiritual truths. In the most tangible sense, it is the ultimate and indispensable source of inspiration for America's life in freedom."

J. Edgar Hoover said, "The Bible is the unfailing guide which points the way for men to the perfect life. The lessons of charity, justice, and equality which enrich its pages should be learned well by all men in order that greed, avarice and iniquity can be blotted out."

Former President Herbert Hoover, said, "The whole of the inspirations of our civilization springs from the teachings of Christ and the lessons of the Prophets. To read the Bible for these fundamentals is a necessity of American life."

General Douglas MacArthur, "Believe me, sir, never a night goes by, be I ever so tired, but I read the Word of God before I go to bed."

General William K. Harrison, said, "The Bible is the Word of God, given by His inspiration for our use and benefit. In it we find revealed God's will for us and the only completely true knowledge of man's being and of his relationship to God."

Dr. Charles W. Mayo, once said, "In sickness or in health, one can find comfort and constructive advice in the Bible. Individually and nationally, its moral codes must be our guideposts for daily dealing and living."

The Judge Says . . .

By Capt. Robert S. Paydasheff

This is the concluding article of a series of two.

We now come to the third type of agency — an agency created by law or statute. Such laws or statutes often express the agency so created, in the following: "The husband shall be bound to support and maintain his wife, and his consent shall be presumed to her agency in all purchases of necessaries suitable to her condition and habits of life, made for the use of herself and the family."

Note that the law presumes the agency of the wife. The law permits the agency to be rebutted by proof. The law is further qualified by other laws, which are in effect: If the wife shall be living in adultery with another man, the husband shall not be liable for her support or necessities if she shall voluntarily abandon him without sufficient provocation. Notice by the husband shall relieve him of all liability for necessaries furnished to her; if a court states a certain amount or not amount for temporary alimony pending a bona fide separation by virtue of the said order a husband is relieved of the liability to support his wife. We should note here that a father is never relieved of supporting a minor child except when relieved by court order.

The above agency created by statute does not allow the wife to purchase chattels or service which are above the means of the husband. Luxuries are not necessaries.

In defining necessities or necessaries suitable to her condition and habits of life, we find the term to mean food, shelter, and clothing and things incidental to reasonable enjoyment thereof which are within the purchase power of the husband's income or estate. A house renting for $200 per month is not a necessity for the wife or a husband with a salary of $78.00 per month and no other separate estate. One trip a month to the beauty parlor may be a necessity suitable to the wife's condition and habits of life, but once a week would not be.

It was stated that the presumption of agency could be rebutted. The husband is not liable for rent simply because it constitutes a necessity of life, where it appears that the wife expressly contracted with the landlord to pay rent for the dwelling abode of the family. If the credit is extended to the wife solely and with no intent to hold the husband liable, the husband cannot be held liable for the debt. Further, if the seller has knowledge that the husband has furnished ample allowance to the wife for her needs as it often the case of soldiers' wives (merchandise establishments on and around military installations generally have knowledge of the Class Q allotment) the husband cannot be held liable for debt created by furnishing the necessaries.

The chattels of service purchased by the wife must be used by the wife and family. A purchase of a hat to give to a friend does not bind the husband.

Unless the husband has made the wife his express or implied agent to make or create the debt, he will not be liable for that debt, providing that the debt was not created for necessities suitable to the wife's condition and habits of life, made for the use of herself and the family and were not contracted or expressly with the wife and the seller did not have the knowledge of an ample allowance furnished the wife for necessities.

New Officers Installed and Awards Made by AFMA

IMPROVEMENT AWARDS PRESENTED By Col. McKee (L) to Col. Leeney, Col. Crandall

The presentation of Infantry Center Management Improvement Awards for the third quarter of Fiscal Year 1961 highlighted the May dinner meeting of the Fort Benning Armed Forces Management Association in the Main Officers' Open Mess recently.

Col. William A. McKee, Infantry Center chief of staff, presented certificates to Col. Lewis W. Leeney, commander of Lawson Army Aviation Command, Col. Riel S. Crandall, Infantry Center engineer, and William A. Buzbee, Civilian Personnel Section, for their respective sections.

The awards were made "for outstanding achievement in management which has improved operations and resulted in increased efficiency, effectiveness or economy." Selection was based on number of improvements implemented, participation according to strength and monetary benefits derived from improvements.

New Officers

Col. McKee also installed the new officers of the organization.

They are: Col. Dale D. Dixon, Infantry Center G-4, president; Lemuel E. Johnson, Civilian Personnel Section, first vice president; Lt. Col. Thomas K. Goodman, Dental Section, USAIC, second vice president; WAC Major Jessie L. Hotchkiss, Infantry School Editorial and Pictorial Office, secretary, and Lt. Col. Herman C. Park, finance officer of the 2nd Infantry Division, treasurer.

Speaks on Denmark

Danish Army Major Paul H. Glesner, a student in The Infantry School's Officer Career Class 1, gave a talk entitled "An Introduction to Denmark."

He introduced his country's flag and national anthem, Denmark's flag; dating from 1290 A.D., is the oldest national flag in the world. Its anthem was composed around 700 A.D.

Major Glesner noted that this month commemorates "the 16th anniversary of the liberation of Denmark by British and your (U.S.) forces."

The speaker described Denmark as a gently rolling lowland one-third the size of Georgia with an average coast climate. Its only land border is 40 miles with West Germany, he said. He added that his country is in the same latitude as Canada and Alaska and includes 622 islands.

"Denmark has a population of 4 and a half million with a half million in the capital, Copenhagen. There are 2 and a half million bicycles in my country and many families take bicycle holidays," Major Glesner continued.

A color film of Copenhagen and a variety of color slides portraying the Danish countryside accompanied the Allied officer's talk.

"Thirty-three per cent of Copenhagen's money goes to social welfare," he brought out. He also noted that the city is the largest port in Scandinavia, handling some 80 ships a day.

Col. Stuart M. Mitchell, retiring president of the organization, presided at the meeting.

Mismanaged Finances Result in Bankruptcy

(Part of an AFPS Series)

There are some very distasteful and complicated problems that can easily develop from over-extended credit.

Perhaps the most disastrous is bankruptcy. A personal bankruptcy proceeding is an indication in most instances that you have mismanaged your personal financial affairs to such an extent that you must have Federal Court action for the benefit of unsecured creditors.

In appropriate situations, military personnel like other American citizens, are entitled to take advantage of bankruptcy proceedings to shed themselves of debts and obligations.

Bankruptcy is not recommended. It is a costly, detrimental and degrading proceeding.

But what leads to bankruptcy in the first place?

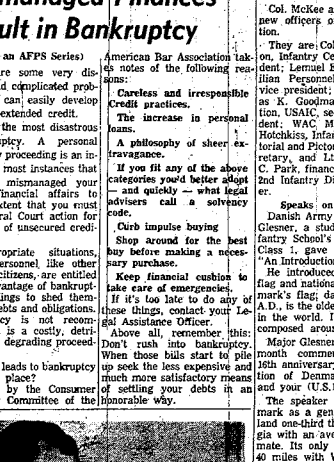
A report by the Consumer Bankruptcy Committee of the American Bar Association takes notes of the following reasons:

Careless and irresponsible Credit practices.

The increase in personal loans.

A philosophy of sheer extravagance.

If you fit any of the above categories you'd better adopt — and quickly — what legal advisers call a solvency code.



Curb impulse buying

Shop around for the best buy before making a necessary purchase.

Keep financial cushion to take care of emergencies.

If it's too late to do any of these things, contact your Legal Assistance Officer.

Above all, remember this: Don't rush into bankruptcy. When those bills start to pile up seek the less expensive and much more satisfactory means of settling your debts in an honorable way.

SCHWARTZ MAYER EPTON

Three Army Atomic Engineers Get $25,000 Incentive Award

WASHINGTON (ANS) — With the approval of a $25,000 incentive award, three Picatinny Arsenal men — Robert M. Schwartz, Milton E. Epton and the late Irving Mayer — will share the largest cash award that can be made under the Incentive Awards Program for their bold and ingenious research efforts in nuclear weapons development. Their accomplishment successfully paved the way for packaging nuclear weapons small enough and safe enough to put atomic weapons in the hands of the infantryman.

Beginning its work in 1953, Schwartz headed the task force which developed in record time the first atomic shell for the 280-mm gun. Since then the Schwartz team has been responsible for continuous stream of technical developments which have resulted in smaller and smaller atomic weapons that are simple and rugged enough to be used by infantry troops in the field.

Culmination of their imaginative efforts is the DAVY CROCKETT, the infantryman's atomic rifle, which employes principles and techniques discovered by the three imaginative engineers.

The radical engineering ideas and approaches conceived and implemented by these men have resulted in extremely safe and reliable nuclear weapons.

The team has developed atomic adaption kits for the HONEST JOHN and JUPITER missiles. These kits revolutionized the assembly and test procedures for warhead sections; these now take minutes instead of hours and can be done by personnel with limited training.

Schwartz, 49, the driving force behind these revolutionary developments, will receive $15,000 of the total award. He is now chief engineer-scientist for special weapons, Ordnance Special Weapons Command.

Epton, 44, will receive $5,000. As chief of the Special Weapons Development Division at Picatinny, he is responsible for the research and development of the Army's atomic weapons material and serves as technical director of the DAVY CROCKETT program.

An award of $5,000 will also be made to the family of the late Irving Mayer who died in 1959 at the age of 36. Mayer was the original DAVY CROCKETT systems manager starting in 1958 and is credited with the basic groundwork for its conception and design. At the time of his death, Mayer was executive assistant in the office for Special Weapons-Ammunition Operations.

The award will be the third award of $25,000 to be made under the Government Employees' Incentive Act of 1954.

CG to Host Hops Here For Cadets

Cadets from the U.S. Military and Air Force Academies will be entertained at formal dances given by Major Gen. Hugh P. Harris, commandant of The Infantry School, June 9 and 28.

Young ladies from the area between the ages of 17 and 22 who desire to be invited to attend either or both of these functions as "blind dates" may telephone Capt. William C. Torbett or 1st Lt. Robert W. Faulkender, project officers for the events, at 5-4224.

The two hops will be held in the Main Officers' Open Mess. Since the cadets will be transported to and from the occasions, young lady guests must provide their own transportation. Cadet hop managers will introduce cadets to their blind dates upon arrival.

The affairs will be chaperoned by senior military personnel and their wives from the post and tactical officers from the academies.

52nd OC Class Breaks Records In M-14 Firing

The 52nd Officer Candidate Company, The Student Brigade, blasted all previous OC records with the M-14 rifle on Bickford Trainfire Range this month, with a total of 136 men qualifying as experts in a company of 172.

Each man fired a total of 110 rounds at camouflaged "pop-up" targets on a range covered with natural vegetation. To fire expert, a firer must hit 68 of the 110 targets.

Officer Candidate Gregory A. Kew scored 98 hits, surpassing the August, 1960, record of 96. The entire company averaged 72.3 hits, breaking all previous OC records.

Farewell Party Honors Col. Smith

The Main Officers Club was the setting last Saturday evening of a farewell party for the former 58th Infantry Commander, Lt. Col. Norvin E. Smith Jr., and Mrs. Smith.

Col. Smith has assumed the duties of Infantry Center deputy chief of staff. Attending the affair were more than 150 officers ladies and guests of the 1st Armored Rifle Battalion, 58th Infantry, 1st Infantry Brigade.

Special guests included Brig. Gen. A. D. Surles Jr., deputy post commander, and Mrs. Surles; Col. Charles T. Horner Jr., commanding officer of the brigade, and Mrs. Horner; Col. Samuel W. Koster, commander of the 1st Battle Group, 29th Infantry, and Mrs. Koster; Lt. Col. Edgar M. Sinclair, commander of the 2nd Howitzer Battalion, 10th Artillery, and Mrs. Sinclair, and Lt. Col. Charles T. Caprino, newly assigned commander of the 58th Infantry, and Mrs. Caprino.

Prior to dining and dancing, an informal party was held in the Normandy Room of the club. After dinner, Maj. George S. Eyster Jr., executive officer of the 58th Infantry, presented Mrs. Smith an engraved silver serving platter as a gift from the ladies of the 58th Infantry. Col. Smith received a cigarette lighter and an album of photographs taken of him during his assignment with the 58th Infantry from June 1960 until May 1961.

Col. Smith, in his farewell talk, congratulated all officers of the 58th Infantry who served with him, on a job well done.

Capt. Russell M. Brami, 58th Infantry adjutant, and 1st Lt. Neal T. Jaco, assistant adjutant, were in charge of party arrangements.

'Old South' Luncheon Attended By G-4 Ladies

More than 30 ladies of officers assigned to the G-4 section of The Infantry Center attended an "Old South" Luncheon last week at the Custer Terrace Officers Club.

The menu and decorations were in keeping with old South traditions. Mint Julep punch was served with southern fried chicken, grits and lady peas. Grits and lady peas were new to many of the members.

Table decorations were dainty ladies dressed in hoops and lace pantalettes enjoying tea in flower and ivy decked garden spots. The stage was set up as an old fashioned garden with filigreed iron table and chairs.

Mrs. Alexander D. Surles Jr. and Mrs. William C. McKee were the honored guests. Newcomers greeted at this meeting were Mrs. Byron Pickering and Mrs. L. D. Sanchez. Goodbyes were said to Mrs. Charles Richey, E. D. McDonald, H. C. Wiegand, F. C. Jerbi, and Mrs. Willard G. Fischer. Special guest was Mrs. H. F. Sawyer Sr.; mother Col. H. F. Sawyer, Jr.

Speaking in behalf of the Woman's Club activities was Mrs. Braxton Small who told of the many things done with the welfare fund for the benefit and welfare of the community. Scholarships for talented high school seniors ($1,000) and many other things come out of this fund, Mrs. Small pointed out that the Thrift Shop from which most of this money comes is always in need of volunteers in every capacity.

Mrs. Cecil Stafford spoke on the coming play by the Masquers and also the other activities of this group, such as the Drama Workshop and the Radio Workshop which is planning to put on a half hour play every week at Martin Army Hospital. "The Girls in 509" will be presented on June 9, 10 and 17, she said.

The ladies of the Transportation Section were hostesses for this luncheon.

Luncheon Honors Ladies Arriving and Departing

Jenni Johnson on Etiquette

DEAR JENNI: I am new at the job of spit, polish, and press. Have you any tips or hints for the proper care of military uniforms. . .particularly the storage of winter woolens?

MRS. NEWLY WED

DEAR MRS. NEWLY WED: Yes, it is almost June in Georgia, and time to put away the wool uniforms . . . clean, of course. Moths and mold thrive on perspiration, dust or stains. The clothing should be wrapped in old sheets or plastic bags along with some balls of cotton saturated with turpentine or moth flakes. The gold lace should be wrapped in blue or black paper, and cover gold braid with scotch tape. Other kinds of paper contain sulphur which will cause the braid to tarnish and deteriate faster than if it it were not protected at all.

Now for those shining bright buttons. . .keep them that way with ammonia and water, vinegar or a commercial cloth. Never use anything abrasive like powder cleaners because this leaves permanent scratches in the finish. After polishing the buttons wipe off any film with lighter or cleaning fluid and paint on a thin layer of clear nail polish. This will hold up for several weeks before it must be repeated. Caution, protect the area of uniform around the button by taking a square of cardboard, cutting a slit into the center and slipping it under the button. The final test for the success of your efforts is the approval of the CO himself . . . your HUSBAND!

Brightly decorated tables at the Supper Club recently greeted the ladies of the 1st Infantry Brigade, who gathered for their May luncheon, the last of the current season.

Fond farewells were bid members of the group soon to depart and warm welcome given those newly arrived.

The colorful May poles adorning each table were arrangements of pink candles, roses, net tulle, and assorted colored streamers. Before luncheon the ladies were entertained with organ selections rendered by Mrs. Kanemitsu Ito.

Mrs. Charles T. Horner Jr., the brigade's "First Lady," introduced the distinguished guests attending the luncheon: Mrs. Charles H. White, wife of Brig. Gen. White, 2nd Infantry Division; Mrs. William A. McKee, and Mrs. Cyril D. Sterner, president of the Fort Benning Women's Club.

Mrs. Sterner expressed her gratitude for the participation shown by the brigade ladies in volunteering their services at the Thrift Shop during the past year.

The following new members were greeted during the course of the afternoon: Mesdames Kurkoski, Scull, Horner, Eure, Burch, Murray, Truitt, Cagle and Henson. Those members who were soon departing were wished much happiness in the future. Mesdames Smith, Dews, Rich, Hari, Norris and Spivey were the departees.

Mrs. Horner thanked the members of the 1st Armored Rifle Battalion, 58th Infantry wives for hostessing the successful affair. Announcement was made that the next luncheon would be held in September under the supervision of the 2nd Howitzer Battalion, 10th Artillery, ladies.

BRIDGE WINNERS . . . Winners in the Woman's Club Duplicate Bridge Tournament last week are (L to R) Mrs. Richard L. English, Mrs. Willard G. Fischer, Mrs. John L. Davis, III and Mrs. Richard C. Ziegler. Tournaments are planned throughout the summer each Monday at the Main Officers' Open Mess.

WOMAN'S CLUB PRESIDENTS . . . Six past presidents of the Woman's Club of Fort Benning were guests of honor at the group's May breakfast in the Main Officers' Open Mess. They are (L to R) Mrs. Paul C. Serff, 1953; Mrs. Charles W. Ponce 1949; Mrs. Hazel J. Scudder, 1948; Mrs. Marcus B. Bell, 1950; Mrs. Paul J. Jarrett, 1958; and Mrs. Carlton W. Sargent, 1959.

Local Toastmistress Delegation Attends SE Regional Conference

A delegation from the Fort Benning-Columbus Toastmistress Club attended the annual Southeastern Regional Conference luncheon meeting and workshop in Birmingham, Ala., recently.

Members of this delegation were the following: Mrs. Richard E. Evers, Mrs. Dion Johnson, Miss Avis Gordee, Mrs. C. B. Ingram, and Mrs. William Collins. Mrs. Collins is the club's official delegate to the regional conference, and the only member allowed to vote at this meeting.

This conference provided an opportunity to personally meet Miss Patricia Emshoff, president of International Toastmistress Clubs, and many of her officers.

The last regular meeting of the club was held yesterday at the Religious Education Center on post. Mr. Benjamin L. Henry, professor of speech at Columbus College, was the guest general evaluator of the meeting. Ladies interested in attending further meeetings may contact Mrs. Dion Johnson at MU 9-4456.

Farewell Held At Officers Club

The officers and their wives of the 2nd Student Battalion, The Student Brigade, recently gathered at the Custer Terrace Officer's Open Mess to bid farewell to 1st Lt. and Mrs. Paul Wenzel.

Lt. Col. Vern L. Joseph, commander of the 2nd Student Battalion, presented Lt. Wenzel with a memento. Mrs. Wenzel was given a silver butter dish by Mrs. Joseph on behalf of the Cadre ladies.

Last Luncheon of Season Held by Infantry Board

A garden setting at the home of Mrs. Jack B. Mathews provided the truly southern atmosphere for the Infantry Board ladies May luncheon recently.

With magnolia leaves dominating the garden setting, the hostesses, the ladies of Field Equipment and Special Projects Department of the board, created May poles using greenery interspersed with petite white blossoms entwined around the luncheon table umbrellas. Added to the natural garden setting, the magnolia blossoms and May poles created a most effective background.

Bon Voyage and wishes for happy new assignments were said by Mrs. Thomas Clarkin, president of the ladies group, to Mrs. Earl F. Holton who will soon be leaving for Korea where Col. Holton has been assigned and to Mrs. Melvin B. Gustafson, soon bound for Germany. Hellos and welcomes were extended to Mrs. S. W. Koster, a luncheon guest of Mrs. William Summers.

Hostessed by Mrs. Jack B. Mathews, Mrs. David Price, Mrs. Bob Spitzmiller, Mrs. Norman Stephens, Mrs. Marshall L. Mott and Mrs. Thomas Whalen, the delightful garden luncheon climaxed the ladies spring luncheons on the social calendar. Coffee will replace the luncheons during the summer months.

The monthly bridge group met at the Country Club on May 9 for a fun day of bridge and luncheon. Bridge honors were awarded by the hostess, Mrs. Norman Stephens, to Mrs. Leonard R. Daems, Mrs. Gilbert Procter, Jr. and Mrs. Thomas Whalen.

LaCroix, ash tray, Ceramics Division, and Edgar Burroughs, electric glass bottle cutter, Electricity-Electronics Division.

Glenn Vollmar, son of MSgt and Mrs. Glenn Vollmar, earned a third - place ribbon for his two pole electric motor in his Electricity - Electronics Division.

Two honorable mentions were won by Micky Kleber, son of Marine Corps Lt. Col. Victor A. Kleber, Jr. He entered a carved leather barbecue seat and purse in the Leather Division.

All projects were made during classes at Faith School. The post entrants are eighth grade students at Faith School and competed in the seventh-eighth grade classification. W. Herbert Jones is industrial arts instructor at the school.

Applications For Aviation Wanted

Additional applications for aviation training from Infantry officers are being sought by Department of the Army.

The requested applications will help fill Infantry quotas for the first and second quarters of Fiscal Year 1962 at the Aviation School. Applications for rotary wing training are especially needed, according to the Infantry Officers Division, Office of the Deputy Chief of Staff for Personnel, DA.

Quarterly Re-Up Plaque Awarded To Medical Battalion

Brig. Gen. A. D. Surles Jr., deputy commander of The Infantry Center, recently visited Headquarters, 428th Medical Battalion, to present the special Reenlistmentt Award Plaque to the battalion commander, Lt. Col. Raymond J. Caldbeck, who is also the battalion recruiting officer, and Sgt. Nathan Huntly, the battalion career counselor.

The rotating plaque is held by the unit on the post having the highest percentage first term reenlistments for a three month period. This is the third time the medical battalion has held the plaque within the last two years.

Well, school's almost come to an end, and it seems hardly possible that time moves by so quickly.

Colleges are in the minds of many of our outgoing seniors, and speaking of college, let's mention the winners of the Women's Club scholarships. Susan Bacharach, Sandra Taylor, James Tilton and Calvin Roush were the outstanding seniors cited for this award.

BAKER

BHS will hold its annual Junior - Senior Prom tonight. Their theme will be "Sayonara."

The seniors' Class Day will be held on June 2 and following on June 5 the seniors will hold their class picnic at Pine Mountain.

The big event, of course, will be Graduation Day, June 6, at the Columbus Municipal Auditorium.

COLUMBUS

The Georgia Scholastic Press Association Convention selected Sandra Taylor as individual winner of the award for "Best News Story of the Year."

Mr. Tom Buck entertained the CHS National Honor Society at his country home last Tuesday.

Joan Favorite was one of the few students awarded a Florida State University scholarship for music at a recent band assembly.

George Britton was selected as military editor on the new Cohiscan annual staff.

For CHS seniors, big events are happening. Class Day, June 2; the class picnic on the same date, and graduation on June 7.

The Junior-Senior Prom was held last week with an oriental theme at the Municipal Auditorium.

PACELLI

The sophomores will hold their last picnic of the year tomorrow. Class rings are to be presented to the juniors next Thursday at the Holy Family Church. The Ring Dance, sponsored by the sophomores, will be held the following evening.

Ric Carty and his band will play in the background of the theme, "Some Enchanted Evening." A breakfast will follow the dance.

SOCIAL NOTES

JAFA holds its annual Spring Formal tomorrow night, with a South Seas background. Brat Barracks is now undergoing a redecorating program to improve the meeting place for teenage Benningites.

Swimming Lessons Announced

The Main Officers' Open Mess will conduct free swimming instructions for club members and their dependents at the open mess swimming pool this year.

The first class is scheduled to start June 12.

Registrations for the first session will be held from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. June 5 at the pool.

Three sessions will be conducted, the first starting June 12, the second beginning July 10 and the third, Aug. 7. Each session will last four weeks.

There will be three classes in each group, beginners, intermediates and swimmers. Those who have had previous instruction are requested to bring proof, such as certificates of any past accomplishments.

The certificates also will aid instructors in classifying the student and assist in methods of future instruction.

For additional information concerning the lessons, members may telephone 5-3626.

UNITARIAN . . . The Rev. Clifton G. Hoffman of Atlanta will address the Unitarian Fellowship of Fort Benning and Columbus at 7 p.m. this Sunday at the 1st Infantry Brigade Chapel. He is executive secretary and regional director of the southeast council.

New 58th Infantry Commander Is Greeted by Mounted Review

A colorful mounted review, including the new M-60 tanks, was held recently at the 1st Armored Rifle Battalion, 58th Infantry, 1st Infantry Brigade, to mark the arrival of the 58th's new commander.

The ceremonies, held at Todd Field in the Harmony Church Area, saw the battalion colors pass from Lt. Col. Norvin E. Smith to Lt. Col. Charles T. Caprino, newly appointed commander.

Col. Smith departed the 58th for his new assignment as deputy chief of staff of The Infantry Center.

Acting in the capacity of staff members for the change of command were Major George S. Eyster Jr., commander of troops; Capt. William T. Manderson, S-1; 2nd Lt. James H. Weaver, S-2; Capt. Normand A. Ste Marie, S-3; and 1st Lt. Neal T. Jaco, S-4.

Music during the ceremonies was provided by The Infantry Center Band and the Drum and Bugle Corps of the 1st Infantry Brigade.

Among the honored guests attending the review were Col. Charles T. Horner Jr., brigade commander; Major John F. Hare, Brigade S1; Lt. Col. Raymond J. Caldbeck, commander, 428th Medical Battalion; Lt. Col. Edward Curran and Major H. G. Campbell Jr., of the Chaplain's Section; Col. Braxton E. Small, post signal officer; Col. H. F. McFeeley, post transportation officer; Col. John M. Woestenburg, post ordnance officer; Col. Bernard G. Teeters and Lt. Col. John A. Meads Jr., The Infantry School's Ranger Department; Col. William H. Birdsong, Jr., director of instruction, USAIS; and Major William R. Nettles Jr., post G-1 section.

Col. Caprino, who came to the 58th after serving as brigade executive officer possesses an outstanding combat record. Recipient of the Bronze Star Medal with four Oak Leaf Clusters and the Combat Infantryman's Badge (second award), the new 58th commander was elected to the Infantry OCS Hall of Fame in 1959. He has attended the Command and General Staff College, the Armed Forces Staff College and recently received a bachelor's degree from Columbia University in government and public law.

A native of Marion, Ohio, Col. Caprino resides on post with his wife and four children. An avid sports enthusiast he has professionally participated in football and boxing.

22 Weapons Evaluators Visit Here

Twenty-two members of the Department of Defense Weapons Systems Evaluation Group, Washington, D. C., visited The Infantry Center and Infantry School Wednesday.

They were Army Lt. Gen. William P. Ennis, Jr., director of the Evaluation Group, Air Force Major Gen. Gabriel P. Disosway, Army Major Gen. Ralph R. Mace, Dr. Charles A. Boyd, director of research, Dr. Stanley Van Voorhis, assistant director of research, and Dr. Lessing A. Kahn.

Army Brig. Gen. (Ret.) Maddrey A. Solomon, Albert A. Wellings, John Fontaine, Ed. A. Mayer, Samuel P. McCutchen, Dr. Robert H. Adams, John C. McClelland, Benjamin G. Nead, Army Col. William R. Peers, Col. Ferdinand J. Tate and Col. William J. Henry, Air Force Col. Edwin W. Brown and Col. James F. Kirkendall, Navy Capt. Kenneth G. Schacht and Cmdr. James F. Sands, and Army Lt. Col. James H. King.

The scientific and military staff officers arrived at Lawson Field. After being briefed on Infantry Center history and organization, Infantry School organization and mission and utilization of the Fort Benning reservation in support of training, they witnessed a comparison firing demonstration conducted by The Infantry School's Weapons Department on Hook Range. Next they viewed a firing demonstration by the Infantry Board.

Brig. Gen. L. A. Walsh, Jr., assistant commandant of The Infantry School, entertained with an official luncheon for the visitors in the Main Officers' Open Mess.

In the afternoon the party saw presentations on Airborne instruction at Eubanks Field and leaders' reaction testing at Dixie Village.

Also visited by the group were the Army Aviation School, Fort Rucker, May 22, and Army Ordnance Missile Command, Huntsville, May 23.

Profile of a Man Doing a Man's Job

Sp4 Gerald A. Gilcrist, Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 806th Engineer Battalion (Construction) is assigned duty as a switchboard operator in the Communications Section of his unit, part of the 151st Engineer Group.

Long hours in weather both good and bad are one of the many obstacles faced by the field communications man and the field switchboard operator.

Due to his knowledge of his duties and his performance while in the field, Sp4 Gilcrist assisted the units to function and maintain close contact with each other during their Army Training Test (ATT).

His ability to maintain communications during rapid field movements, and knowledge and proficiency in his demanding job aided his unit in attaining a high excellent rating during its recent Army Training Tests.

A native of Cleveland, Texas, and a graduate of Cleveland High School, Sp4 Gilcrist entered the Army in 1958. He received his basic training at Fort Chaffee, Ark., and then attended the Army Signal School at Fort Gordon. After finishing the Signal School he served with the 13th Signal Battalion, in Korea.

Ecuadorian Officers Visit Post

Four key Ecuadorian Army officers are visiting The Infantry School through tomorrow to observe instructional techniques. They arrived yesterday.

They are Lt. Col. Jorge Aguinaga, chief, III Department, Army Headquarters; Lt. Col. Manuel Zurita, commandant of Cavalry Group 1 "Yaguachi"; Lt. Col. Francisco Mejia, professor, War Academy, and Lt. Col. Miguel Rivera, staff officer, IV Department, Army Headquarters.

Capt. Luis F. Hernandez is the U. S. Department of the Army tour director.

The Allied visitors conferred with Brig. Gen. L. A. Walsh Jr., assistant commandant of The Infantry School, yesterday morning.

First Lt. Antonio Aguilar who is assigned to 21st Detachment, 2nd Battalion, The Student Brigade, is the project officer for the visit.

Two Transportation Units Earn Superior Rating in Annual ATTs

The 515th Transportation Company (Lt. Trk), commanded by Capt. Riley R. Johnson, and the 39th Transportation Battalion (Trk) commanded by Lt. Col. Louis J. Maricle, recently took their annual Army Training Tests (ATT) against aggressor forces and simulated combat conditions, in a three day bivouac exercise.

Aggressor forces began to harass the two transportation units at their bivouac site on the first day and continued to strike with air attacks, ambushes and counterattacks during the whole exercise. A simulated gas attack and nuclear attack were also used by the aggressor.

At 9 a.m. on the final day the aggressors were listed as fully routed and the mock war came to an end. A critique was held at 10 a.m. and the umpires pointed out the errors made the the participating units.

Both units were given superior ratings for their activities during the problem.

Division Marches Past Thousands in Downtown Armed Forces Day Parade

Brigadier General Charles H. White Jr., commanding general, leads the 2nd Infantry Division procession down Broadway in Friday's Armed Forces Day Parade in downtown Columbus. In photo at left, General White and Colonel Gustav M. Bacharach, chief of staff, observe the remainder of the proceedings with other VIPs from the reviewing stand. The parade, featuring representatives from 18 division units drew thousands of spectators who braved temperatures in the 80s, and climaxed a week's observance that carried out the theme "Power for Peace." RIFLEMEN GET ASSAULT BOAT FAMILIARIZATION
1st Infantry Men on Upatoi Creek (Photos by O'Connor)

Assault Boat Landings, Crossings Practiced by Div's 1st Infantry

By John O'Connor

The 1st Infantry took to the waters of Upatoi Creek recently to familiarize its personnel with assault boat landings and high speed crossings of pontoon spans.

The engineer platoon conducted the instruction, making use of an armored personnel carrier, seven plastic assault boats and a pontoon span.

Rapid Crossings

After a complete orientation, Company C riflemen donned life jackets and observed several engineers demonstrate rapid crossings of the narrow metal span which rested on 18 pontoons strung across the creek.

When the company had crossed, 12 riflemen and three engineers were assigned to one of the 16-foot crafts. The boats were then carried into the creek, with each man boarding the boat from the water.

During the exercise, absolute noise discipline was in effect. Lieutenant Bruce N. Campbell, engineer platoon commander, gave the reason for this in his briefing to the company. He explained that assault boats aren't too effective in daylight hours. They are primarily used for night crossings of waterways. Because sounds travel greater distances at night, noise discipline is a key factor in the teams' effectiveness.

Each man was given an opportunity to paddle the craft. Lieutenant Campbell made use of a portable loudspeaker to make corrections in the performance of the boat crews.

A rescue boat, powered by an outboard motor patrolled the boating area as a safety measure despite the fact that every man was wearing a bright red life jacket.

When the boats were carried ashore, an armored personnel carrier plunged into the creek and began cruising the area. Lieutenant Campbell pointed out the low silhouette of the vehicle when in water and emphasized its safety even though it rises only inches above the water line.

Each company is slated to receive this assault boat familiarization which will increase the unit's combat readiness prior to its oversea movement.

Brother Replaces Brother at 11th

Recruit Billy W. Smith of Company C, 11th Infantry will be replacing his brother, figuratively speaking, when his unit goes to Korea early next year.

The older brother of Recruit Smith spent his recruit days on Kelley Hill with Company D of the 11th Infantry. He now is with the weapons platoon of Company D, 3rd Infantry at Camp Kaiser in Korea.

Big Armed Forces Week Climaxed by City Parade

'Searchlight Tattoo,' Displays, Mark Inspiring '61 Observances

BY PETER TATISTCHEFF

In a triumph of cooperation and teamwork, members of the 2nd Infantry Division joined their neighbors last week in a multi-faceted celebration of Armed Forces Week.

"Power for Peace" served as slogan for the Army's primary mission—to act as a vital link in the country's defense team.

Because the Army is basically financed by and for the public it was the Division's responsibility to help fellow Americans understand the Army's military might and function in the community.

Military Might

Displays of men and equipment were sent to five Georgia cities. Military and civilian personnel alike joined in producing a massive military ceremony last Monday and Tuesday at the Columbus Municipal Auditorium.

With the cooperation of local business concerns, space was provided in Columbus for displays of rifles, uniforms, medical and engineering equipment to name but a few of the subjects on display.

Friday's gigantic parade of weapons, flashing colors and smartly - uniformed troops rounded out the military picture with breathtaking force.

As was shown here last week Army personnel, during a time of peace, can participate in an almost unlimited number of civic-development areas.

Speakers

Brigadier General Charles H. White's speech at the Searchlight Tattoo ceremony reminded Americans of their "moral and spiritual responsibilities"

Col. Keene

7th Cav's CO To Take New Pentagon Job

By 7th Cav PIO

Lieutenant Colonel Leonard L. Keene, commander of the 7th Cavalry's 3rd Reconnaissance Squadron since August, has been reassigned to the Pentagon.

Colonel Keene, who will assume duties in the office of the Deputy Chief of Staff for personnel, joined the 7th Cavalry August 29.

A veteran of service in both World War II and the Korean War, Colonel Keene entered the U. S. Army in 1940 as an enlisted man. Since then, as an officer, he has attended the Armor Officers Advance Course, Fort Knox, Ky., and the regular course at the Command and General Staff Col-

Team Effort Needed To Curb Div Mishaps, Declares Gen. Hardick

A determined effort to curb the growing accident problem was urged by Brigadier General William L. Hardick in a letter to division units.

"The solution our accident problem," he said, "lies in a concerted team effort."

The general suggested two ways in which men of the division could help solve the problem. First, by having people recently involved in traffic accidents present safety instruction; describing causes, property damage, injuries, and penalties imposed. Second, by taking advantage of the Advance Driver Education Program to improve the traffic offense record.

'Not Punitive'

This plan is not designed as a punitive measure but rather as a serious attempt to tackle a "matter of increasing concern."

Individual care will thus be augmented and supported by group action. General Hardick sees this action as a much

Departures

The 9th Infantry lost three Non-Commissioned officers last week when the men were transferred to other installations. Sergeant First Class James Terrell headed the list. A member of Company A, SFC Terrell's next assignment will place him with the 2nd Battle Group, 21st Infantry stationed a Schofield Barracks, Hawaii.

Sergeant Francis White, the 9th Infantry's training aids NCO, departed for his new post at Fort Devens, Massachusetts. The third noncom to depart, Sergeant Cesar Emmanuelli of Company D, headed for Fort Buchanan, Puerto Rico.

Two 9th Infantry officers departed for other 2nd Division units last week. Major John Swango, who recently returned from the Command and General Staff College at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, was reassigned to the 23rd Infantry as S-4. Lieutenant Clarence Moorer, 9th Infantry motor officer, reported to the 702nd Ordnance Battalion.

Arrivals

Four enlisted men reported in to the 9th Infantry last week. Two of the men, Sergeant Ernest Hayes and Specialist Four Eugene Sankovich, were assigned to Company D. Sergeant Harry Hill joined Combat Support Company and Specialist Four Robert Medhurst went to Company B.

Reenlistments

Staff Sergeant Vladimir Furdeck, personnel section management supervisor for the 9th Infantry, reenlisted Saturday for four years. A veteran of over 12 years service in the Army, the Tewksbury, Massachusetts, native chose Fort Lee, Virginia, as his next assignment.

Pfc Merlin M. Darbonne has reenlisted for three years to fill his own vacancy in Headquarters Troop, 7th Cavalry.

Three men from Headquarters Company, 122nd Signal Battalion, reenlisted during the past week. Sergeant Earl Odom with 14 years' service reenlisted for his own vacancy as Division Signal Supply Sergeant. Specialist Four William Logan, supply clerk in the Division Signal Supply and Maintenance, also reenlisted for his own vacancy. Specialist Five Arthur Boyce, a manual central telephone repairman, reenlisted for Tobyhana Signal Supply Depot at Tobyhana, Pennsylvania.

Four noncommissioned officers joined the 9th Infantry this week. Sergeant First Class Harold Schnetaka has been assigned to Company A, while Sergeant First Class Edward Keefe has been assigned to the 9th's Company B. Sergeant First Class Kenneth Schaefer joined the 9th Infantry's Headquarters Company and Sergeant Charles Joyner has been placed with Company E.

During the past week, three new officers have been assigned to the 2nd Aviation Company.

Lieutenant Robert S. Messer has been assigned to the General Support Platoon. Lt. Messer has just completed Rotary Wing School prior to his assignment to the Aviation Company.

Lieutenant Thomas M. Wilson and Lieutenant John D. Jenks, both having just completed Fixed Wing Aviator School, have been assigned to the Artillery Support Section of the Aviation Company.

Promotions

Captain Marvin Layfield, 9th Infantry on temporary duty while attending the Advanced Infantry Officers Career Course, was recently promoted to his present rank. He was executive officer of the 9th's Company D prior to beginning the advanced course at the Infantry School.

In an impromptuous ceremony held on a tank range at Fort Stewart, Georgia, Captain Robert A. Plant, 69th Armor, was presented the "tracks" signifying the promotion to his present rank.

Captain Plant was the control officer on tank gunnery table VIII A range where the tank crews from the 69th Armor were firing the daylight tank crew proficiency course when the promotion ceremony was held. Lieutenant Colonel Harry H. Hiestand, commanding officer of 69th Armor, pinned on the bars.

Lieutenant James B. Alsip, personnel officer of the 3rd Reconnaissance Squadron, 7th Cavalry, recently traded his gold bars for silver ones. Lt. Col. Leonard L. Keene, commander of the unit pinned the silver bars on Lt. Alsip at an informal ceremony at the Squadron Headquarters.

First Lieutenant Jerry L. Sellentin has been promoted to his present rank at Company A, 1st Infantry. He is platoon leader and training officer for the company which is slated for 13 months of duty in Korea. Lt. Sellentin was formerly the battle group PIO and is a graduate of the University of Nebraska.

Temporary Duty

The 9th Infantry's S-2, Captain Thomas Austin, has returned from temporary duty at the Quartermaster Center at Fort Lee, Virginia. Departing the 9th Infantry for a temporary duty stint of approximately 40 days was Lt. James McKay, a principal instructor on the Battle Group Instructional Team. Lt. McKay's TDY as at the Adjutant General School at Fort Benjamin Harrison, Indiana.

He Knows Camouflage--But She Makes It Pay!

By Max Courson

Lieutenant Edward Lockwood of the 23rd Infantry may know more about the art of camouflage than his wife — but she knows how to make it pay.

Two weeks ago, while the two were vacationing in New York City, Mrs. Lockwood became a contestant on the ABC-TV quiz show, "Camouflage." During her three-day reign as champion she won six prizes valued at approximately $5,100.

When asked about his wife's achievement, Lieutenant Lockwood still seemed slightly amazed by the whole thing.

"We were walking down the street wondering how to kill a couple of hours," he said, "when this man walks up and gives us two tickets to a television quiz show. We decided to go, and while in the audience my wife, Ann, filled out and turned in a card that was handed us as we came in.

"After the show, Ann was asked if she would like to be a contestant on the program later that week, and she said yes."

Mrs. Lockwood won six games while on the show. Lieutenant Lockwood explained that two contestants are pitted against each other in identifying a hidden object "camouflaged" in a picture—the winner receiving a prize and the contest championship.

While she was champ, Mrs. Lockwood won a 15-foot canoe and motor, a stereo record player, a piano, a color-and-sound movie projector, a bar and—according to program officials—the largest known cut amethyst, which now is fashioned into a pendant.

Both Lieutenant Lockwood and his wife are from the New York area.

87th Infantry Sees Expert Pistol Firing

BY 87TH INF PIO

The 87th Infantry recently was treated to a pistol firing exhibition at Kearns Range.

Sergeant First Class James R. Orr demonstrated his proficiency with the .45 caliber pistol, gained while a member of the 2nd Division Marksmanship Detachment.

The exhibition was staged as the 87th Infantry took its preliminary pistol instruction to demonstrate skill based on confidence and what ability can do when combined with the basic principles of marksmanship.

Clay Pigeons

As the men watched, Sgt. Orr took aim 25 meters down range at a group of three-inch clay pigeons nailed to a board. Flipping his wrist, he fired with the pistol upside down. The clay pigeons disintegrated.

With five rounds he smashed a cement block to pieces, showing the shattering power of the .45.

For a "grand finale," as he called it, he suspended two pigeons broadside on either side of the sharp edge of an axe. When he fired, the bullet split on the axe and the fragments splattered the pigeons.

What might have looked like exhibitionism was actually a job that all members of the Marksmanship Detachment are assigned after a year's training.

"I have the ability for precision shooting, Sergeant Orr says, "but haven't mastered it yet." Seventy - eight medals and 16 trophies accumulated during the past three years say that he has come close.

Orr has picked up these awards in events from Jacksonville to Shreveport to Camp Perry, Ohio, and the national matches. He holds an "Expert" ranking among the members of the National Rifle Association.

To remain a crack pistolman, Orr fires the .45 twice weekly at the Pistol Club on Main Post.

Ft. Stewart Hosts Cavalry Tank Firers

By 7th Cav PIO

The tankers of the 7th Cavalry have returned from a successful two weeks at the tank gunnery shoot at Fort Stewart, Georgia. The return trip was conducted over a period of two days and consisted of four overland march units, with one small group returning by air.

The movement to Fort Stewart and the return — some 300 miles in all — was accomplished without incident.

Lieutenant Colonel L. L. Keene, squadron commander, returned by air last Saturday at 1:05 p.m. He commended the tankers for their successful gunnery program. The last tanker increment arrived at 10:25 p.m.

The gunnery program is an extreme test of both tank gunnery and endurance in that the firing was conducted "around-the-clock." The tankers were divided into two groups to allow firing to be accomplished both day and night.

Bible School Dept. Heads Announced

By Div PIO

Department superintendents for the 2nd Division Vacation Bible School have been announced by Mrs. B. B. Littlejohn, director of religious education for the division.

They are:

Mrs. Thomas Valenteen, nursery department; Mrs. Bruce A. Davis, beginner department; Mrs. James L. Webb and Mrs. Robert Young, primary department; Mrs. Robert C. Hallee, junior department; Mrs. Hubert Garell and Mrs. James N. Layne, intermediate department; Mrs. Rayford Watson, refreshment committee, and Mrs. Robert Snead, nursery for children under three.

Daily Sessions

The Vacation Bible School, to be held June 12-21, will have daily sessions from 8:30 a.m. until 11:30 a.m. Bus transportation will be provided for children living in the Capehart, Custer Terrace and Baker Village housing areas.

An assembly will be held each morning for the primary, junior and intermediate departments with a division chaplain in charge of the worship service. Chaplain James N. Layne is in charge of the Vacation Bible School, and Specialist Lawrence Libby serves as registrar.

Mortars Not Mastered in One Day

"One round on the way. Wait."

In just these few short words, the story of mortar training can be told. For, the vast amount of time Advanced Individual Trainees spend in learning the "whys and ways" of the 81 millimeter and 4.2 inch mortars comes sharply to bear after the gunner has slipped the cylindrical - shaped round into the tube of the awesome, death-dealing mortar.

As in the 9th Infantry, if the trainee mortarmen have learned their job well from the instructional team, those first two or three rounds will bring the impending command, "Fire for effect." If the trainee has learned his job well, he will have bracketed his target in preparation for firing for effect.

If the trainee has not paid attention or learned sufficiently during the more than 130 hours of mortar instruction, then his first few rounds will, in all probability, wind up astray of their intended mark. It is the object of Lt. Frank Young and his assistant instructors to see that these mortar rounds are "on the money."

The young trainees first learn the characteristics, general data, equipment, functioning, and the care and cleaning of the mortars. To accomplish this the instructors work closely and diligently with the trainees, taking one step at a time.

After learning the nomenclature and the pertinent data, the trainees then spend many hours under the watchful eye of Lt. Young and his team members in practical work such as mounting and dismounting of the weapon.

Additional hours are carefully devoted to the important M34 sight and the aiming of the mortar through the use of aiming stakes. The trainees also are taught the different types of ammunition available for each weapon.

By the end of these classes each man on the mortar squad will have become proficient in the job of each man on the team such as the gunner, the assistant gunner, the loader, and the ammunition handler.

After actual practice on the 9th Infantry's "miniature mortar range," where the pneumatic firing device is utilized on targets laid out in miniature, the trainee tackles the actual firing of the mortar itself using service ammunition. The recruit later will learn forward observer and fire direction center teachniques, but it is on the range where he puts to use all he has learned about firing the mortar.

Each man must fire familiarization with the 81 millimeter and 4.2 inch mortars as gunner. He then takes a gunner's examination to determine if he has learned his job well. When he passes his exam the trainee mortarman is well on his way to earning his MOS (Military Occupational Specialty) 112 as a heavy weapons Infantryman.

Col. Osgard Cites 14 In 9th Inf Motor Pool

The awarding of mechanic's and driver's badges to 14 9th Infantry enlisted men highlighted the monthly Commander's Conference.

Nine members of the Motor Pool were awarded the mechanic's badge by Colonel James L. Osgard, commander of the "Keep Up the Fire" battle group. Colonel Osgard also presented driver's badges to six other men from the Motor Pool. The six earned the driver's badges by driving at least 8,000 accident-free miles in military vehicles.

Colonel Osgard also presented monthly awards to Headquarters Company, Company C, and Combat Support Company for taking the best safety, best mess, and best maintenance awards, respectively. The maintenance award for Combat Support was the company's second straight. Headquarters Company retired the safety plaque by virtue of winning the award the most times during fiscal year 1961.

Sergeant Winzlo Hannah of Company B received the battle group's soldier of the month award from Colonel Osgard.

The colonel welcomed the newcomers to the battle group and discussed the 9th Infantry's participation in the Savings group safety program, now in Bond drive and the battle progress.

18-Year Veteran Gets Promoted

By Max Courson

Sergeant First Class Lawrence V. Hubbard, S-3 (training and operations), 22rd Infantry, can vouch for the Army's promotion system. Sergeant Hubbard was recently upped to pay grade E-7, his fourth promotion since re-entering the Army five years ago.

A native of Anniston, Alabama, Sergeant Hubbard has almost 18 years of active duty under his belt. He first joined the Army at the beginning of World War II, and was assigned to the 8th Infantry, 4th Division. Sergeant Hubbard was shipped overseas, subsequently serving in England, France, Belgium, Luxembourg and Germany. He saw action in the battles of St. Lo, the Bulge and in the Hurtgen Forest.

Ex-Frogman 23rd's Voorhees, 'Blew Up' Ships in Calif. Harbor

By 22rd Infantry PIO

If anyone told Specialist Four John M. Voorhees of the 22rd Infantry's Company A that he was "all wet," he would not be the least bit insulted — in fact, he'd agree.

Voorhees claims he has been "at, in or near the water" all of his life, but he is most proud of the four years he spent as a Navy frogman, specifically as a member of Underwater Demolition Team Number 14.

Volunteered

A native of Ridgecrest, California, Voorhees first volunteered for frogman duty in 1950. The initial training was an extremely rugged sixteen weeks course at the Coronada Naval Amphibious Base in San Diego, California. Completing training, he then volunteered for "subops", that is, submersible operations. This is a group of very select men who do all their work submerged by use of the aqua-lung.

During his training, Voorhees said he and his class were given "missions" to "blow up" specific ships anchored in San Diego harbor. To accomplish this the frogmen would "tack out," or leave, a submerged submarine, swim into the harbor under water, attach a flare to their objective's hull and swim back to the submarine.

After one or two of these excursions the skippers of the ships began taking a rather dim view of being written up as having been "successfully attacked" so they took to dropping weighted fish nets over the side to snare the frogmen. Voorhees explained that once caught in one of those nets there was nothing a frogman could do but "abandon your lung and surface," and that this was "very embarassing."

Probably the most publicized mission in which Voorhees took part occurred off the coast of North Korea near the Manchurian border in 1952. Called "Operation Fishnet" the plan was designed to reduce the amount of fish available to the Communist troops for food.

The job of Voorhees and the other members of UDT was to swim in near shore, without benefit of a lung, cut the fish nets and render them ineffective. This riled the Communists, who began sending boatloads of soldiers out to guard the nets. Voorhees and company then began tipping over the boats and dragging a few prisoners back with them.

Following the Korean Conflict, Voorhees was discharged from the Navy. He joined the Army and served a hitch with Special Services in the Panama Canal Zone area. He took his discharge from the Army early this year, attended a civilian salvage diving school, then reenlisted again in the Army.

At present, Voorhees is attached to Company A for train-fire instruction. He is extremely anxious to get into Special Forces and has an application pending.

As far as being a frogman is concerned, Voorhees says, "There is really nothing to it; just the ability to keep calm under any and all type of circumstances."

Headaches Are Frequent For Kelley Hill Aidman

By 1st Inf PIO

Headaches are regular occurrences with Private First Class Jose Trujillo, Headquarters Company, 1st Infantry.

There are times when headaches seem to occupy the greater part of the day. He expects them daily now and has hundreds of APCs to combat them.

He dispenses nearly 20,000 APCs monthly in remedying the OVUREP training centers largest and most persistent malady . . . the headache.

Right now, poison ivy is taking its toll of personnel with 100 cases being treated at the Hawks Dispensary each week.

Trujillo took the 2nd Medical Battalion's basic medical training courses before taking on-the-job training in the pharmacy at the dispensary.

He expects to be deluged with hay fever sufferers now that summer is fast approaching.

When the unit sails for Korea in July, Trujillo expects to treat at least ten per cent of the battle group for sea sickness.

Trujillo is certain he will be helping to realize these statistics as he is especially prone to "mal de mar."

Safety

needed "realistic approach."

The division safety officer states that the accident record so far this year has surpassed all reasonable predictions. The extent of injury and damage recorded in recent accident reports, he says, warrants careful consideration of practical action.

Post safety procedures have maintained a low accident rate in the Fort Benning and Columbus area, the Division Safety Officer points out. However, there has been a significant increase in the number of accidents involving privately owned vehicles of people on leave or on pass traveling to and from Fort Benning and the surrounding area.

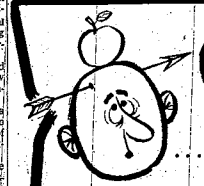
69th's Tankers Honored For Proficiency Scores

BY 69TH ARMOR PIO

In a ceremony held on the 69th Armor's "Tanker Field" Tuesday, awards were presented to the two tank crews scoring the highest on the tank crew proficiency course fired at Fort Stewart, Georgia, last week.

The winning tank crew, which was presented with an engraved trophy, was commanded by Staff Sergeant Clement J. Palko, of Company D. Sgt. Palko and his crew fired a total of 1,935 points out of a possible 2,000. The other members of the winning crew were Specialist Fives Donald L. Allen and Richard Knight, the gunner and driver. Private Jose Castro was the loader.

Lieutenant William M. Spiller of Company B and his crew were presented with certificates for finishing in the runner-up spot. Lt. Spilker trailed Sgt. Palko by only five points finishing the course with a score of 1,930. The other members of his crew were Sergeant First Class William F. Snyder, the gunner, Specialist Four Edward L. Ayers, the loader, and Private First Class Robert Davis, the driver.



The tank crew proficiency course is fired in two phases. Each phase is scored on a possible 1000 points.

Sgt. Palko's crew was the only crew to score the maximum 1,000 points on either phase of the course.

He scored his "max" on the night phase.

FLY THIS FLAG

WHICH WE OFFER AT COST AS A PUBLIC SERVICE

1961 is the 100th Anniversary of the Civil War . . . and the words of the Constitution are more prophetic than the day when they were written: "One Nation, Indivisible, with Liberty and Justice for All." Enemies from without belittle the Spirit of Democracy. We must show them that the North and South are one. . . united in principle 50-States strong from Maine to Hawaii.

We believe every home should fly the flag on every important national holiday . . . of which there are more than 20. With this in mind we make this home flag kit available to all our readers . . . a big 3x5-foot fine cotton flag with durable stitched stripes, 6-foot brass jointed staff, metal window socket and cord halyard . . . everything you need to mount and fly the flag.

The estimated retail value is $6.95 . . . your cost only $3.25. Get your kit now by coming to our office at 17 W. 12th St. or order by mail using coupon at right.

REMEMBER . . .

There are more than 20 nationally important flag holidays. When we fly the flag on our homes, we show the world we stand united in every state!

42 'Conquerors' Finish Basic Driver's Training

The 2nd Infantry Division Drivers Training School, conducted by the 13th Transportation Battalion, graduated 42 men of the 87th Infantry, currently undergoing advanced individual training.

The personnel completed a two week concentrated course of basic driver training designated to meet requirements of OVUREP units for a soldier to be trained not only as an infantryman but also as a military driver.

Lieutenant Colonel C. G. Collins Jr., commanding officer of the 13th Transportation battalion, addressed the graduates and congratulated Recruit Fred C. Kennard of the Combat Support Company, who won recognition as honor graduate.

Col. Collins emphasized the contribution to infantry mobility expected from each driver and the importance of safe driving and proper maintenance in this contribution.

Introduction of guests was by Major Donald W. Alberti, S3 Officer of the 13th Transportation Battalon. Colonel Robert E. Conner, battle group commander of the 87th Infantry, attended the ceremony.

Sgt. Junior Priest and Sgt. Oscar Bergeron, NCOICs of classroom and driving range instruction, respectively, completed the arrangements for the ceremony and awarding of certificates of graduation.

SFC Appointed Warrant Officer

By 87th Inf PIO

Sergeant First Class James V. Burns, a platoon Sergeant at Company A, 87th Infantry, has recently been appointed to the rank of Warrant Officer W-1.

His newly-received assignment will be in the personnel section of the 2nd Division.

In a ceremony attended by his family, Major Donald L. Crandall and Captain Alan T. Horwedel, he was awarded his bars by Colonel Robert E. Connor, Battle Group Commander. His new job will take effect on May 8.

Warrant Officer Burns has had a long and outstanding service record. A veteran of 12 years' active duty, he has been in the 87th since 1954. During this time he has qualified himself as a light weapons infantryman and as a personnel administrative assistant. His overseas duty includes 36 months in Japan and 32 months in Germany.

Warrant Officer Burns' permanent home is in Holton, Kansas. He currently resides in Columbus with his wife Ruth and three children.

Ten Projectionists Complete Training

Ten men were graduated from the Division Projectionist School conducted by the 122nd Signal Battalion.

Honor graduate of the school was Recruit Maurice W. Horne of Headquarters Co., 87th Infantry, who had a perfect score of 100 for the course.

Other graduates of the school were SFC Laverne B. Horton, Company C; Specialist Four Pat L. Nowaky, Company D, and Recruit Robert J. Hines, Headquarters Company, 1st Battle Group 87th Infantry.

Men attending the school from artillery units were Specialist Four James R. McCoy, Battery A, 17th Artillery, Pvt James Rose, Battery A, 12th Artillery, Pvt Washington Sanders, Battery A, 15th Artillery, Pvt Edward Evans, Headquarters Battery, 37th Artillery, and Pvt Duane Kleineick, Headquarters Battery, 38th Artillery.

Attending the school from 2nd Aviation Company was PFC Carl H. Bailey.

Sig Team Back From Exercise

By 122nd Signal PIO

A radio team from Company A, 122nd Signal Battalion has returned after 30 days' TDY to St. George's Island, Florida, for Exercise Lois.

Specialist Four Roger F. Miller and Specialist Four Frank Sutter provided communications with an AN-GRC 9 AM radio between the island and the Florida mainland.

This was a Transportation Corps exercise conducted by the 39th Transportation of Camp Leroy Johnson. St. George's Island is a short distance from Apalachicola, Fla.

'Smith!' . . . And They All Came Running

By 22nd Infantry PIO

It was a bad day for SFC Luther G. Carwell, mess sergeant for Company A, there were countless numbers of hungry recruits to feed, and, to top it all, he had six guys named Smith on KP.

Sergent Carwell could imagine how the day would go. "Smith! Bring me the potatoes!" he yelled, and Gerald E. and Dean L. would come running with a big vat full of spuds.

Matt O. and Thomas R. would dash over to help, and the potatoes would go spilling out all over the floor. Then he would have to call Richard E. and Charles H. from the slit sink to help the other Smiths clean up the mess. What a day this would be!

However, KP at the Company A mess hall passed quite normally mainly because those six guys named Smith had long ago learned to work harmoniously with those of their name-tribe. All six are quite used to being around fellow Smiths. In fact, Thomas R. is one of ten children, and Richard E. was once in the eighth grade with 12 other Smiths.

However, things can get a bit confused with three of the Smiths in one platoon, especially when two of them use the same double decker beds.

Both the North and South are represented in the Company A Smiths, with three from Florida and one each from Georgia, Maryland and Ohio.

Company A First Sergeant Jesse Easterwood says he has never had this many Smiths before at one time. But he adds, "It was almost as bad when I was in Germany. Then, I had an entire squad of Mc's."

Projects Highlighted Mrs. McGraw's Term As Wives Club President

BY MRS. FRANCES LALLEY

We salute this week a woman who has given a year of dedicated service to the 2nd Infantry Division; one who as Mrs. William L. Hardick expressed it recently at the monthly Officer's Wives Club luncheon, "has helped us all be proud of our club, and its accomplishments."

We salute the past president of the 2nd Division Officer's Wives Club, Mrs. Robert McGraw.

Mrs. McGraw was born in Memphis, Tenn., but calls Cheyenne, Wyom., home as she moved there when she was a young girl. She married the now Lieutenant Colonel Robert McGraw in Cheyenne, who is now assigned as the division's 2nd Aviation Company commander.

Experience

Mrs. McGraw has enjoyed past work in various women's clubs, always participating, but never as an elective officer before. She has held offices in various other post activities, with Girl Scout work listed as a favorite project.

Mrs. McGraw speaks modestly of her part in this successful year, although with great pride in the achievements of her various project chairmen and particularly her alternate, and chief "project officer," Mrs. Byrd Sergeant.

Some thirteen projects passed in review in the form of clever hats at the final luncheon of Mrs. McGraw's tenure in office. Mrs. McGraw explained the function of the various projects as "those things which would benefit the people of the 2nd Division as a whole, not singling out one unit, but trying to reach the division personnel as a whole."

Projects

These were planting shrubbery at Kelley Hill; working in the hospital, giving lollipops to the pediatric clinic, donating high chairs to the pediatric ward, refinishing planters, providing staff coffee hours on Friday morning, donating equipment to the psychiatric clinic and giving ward parties; assisting the Sand Hill nursery with a $200 donation; a Christmas collection of canned goods for distribution through the chaplains to needy families; sponsorship of a bowling league and assistance in purchasing of prizes; sponsorship of a dancing group; donations of mirrors and curtains to the dancing school, and joint purchase with the Ladies of the Big Indianhead of a blue dress uniform which was presented to the 2nd Division's Soldier of the Year.

Still in the planning stages is a hoped for club of vacationing college students by which they can get acquainted.

WORTH REPEATING

"We march in the noblest of causes — human freedom. If we make ourselves worthy of America's ideals, if we do not forget that our nation was founded on the premise that all men are created of God's making the world will come to know that it is free men who carry forward the true promise of human progress and dignity."

-Dwight D. Eisenhower

NO IDLE CHANCE

It is by no idle chance in the history of mankind that the course of democracy parallels the importance accorded the individual in the military structure of the Nation.

Mrs. Goers Honored By Ladies

The ladies of the 2nd Battle Group, 1st Infantry were entertained at a farewell brunch in the Normandy Room Main Officers Open Mess.

Co-hostesses for the occasion were Mrs. James H. Hayes, wife of Colonel J. S. Hayes, Battle Group Commander, and Mrs. Thomas Plourde, wife of Lieutenant Colonel Thomas Plourde, battle group executive officer.

The serving table, overlaid with a white cloth was accented by a lovely arrangement of pale pink roses and snapdragons in a porcelain Victorian compote of pink and white. Coffee and tea were poured by Mrs. William C. Goers, special honor guest.

A short business meeting was conducted by Mrs. Hayes, after which, on behalf of the ladies of the battle group, a going away gift was presented to Mrs. William C. Goers, whose husband Lieutenant Colonel Goers, former Deputy Commander of the 1st Infantry, is retiring from the Army.

Guest for the occasion was Mrs. Martin W. Albrecht, sister of Mrs. Hayes.

MOOM Scene Of 23rd Inf. May Coffee

Wives Ballroom Classes Close With Party

The ballroom classes sponsored by the 2nd Division Officers Wives' Club celebrated the end of the season with a party on Monday evening at the dance studio.

The ballroom was gayly decorated with green, orange and white streamers which harmonized with the refreshment table.

The serving table was overlaid with a white tablecloth with mint green candles placed on each end and surrounded with green and white spring flowers. Ginger ale and lime sherbet punch with orange slices and mint leaves floating on top was served from a crystal punch bowl. Cookies and orange sponge cake were also served.

Entertainment was furnished by the Ric Cartey combo.

Artillery Coffees Hosted By Units

Ladies of 2nd Division Artillery held their monthly simultaneous coffee hour last week in their six unit groups.

Mrs. Mike Demeter was hostess to ladies of Division Artillery headquarters on the lawn of her home on Ladd Street in Columbus. Mrs. Edward J. Gardzina was co-hostess. The serving table was centered with an arrangement of red roses. Coffee was served with assorted doughnuts, nutbread, fresh strawberries and sliced bananas with crushed nuts. Mrs. Fred Dunforth of St. Petersburg, Fla., mother of Mrs. Terence W. Huck, attended as a guest.

12th Artillery

Ladies of the 12th Artillery met at the quarters of Mrs. Robert J. Craig on Lumpkin Road. Coffee, iced tea, hot ham biscuits, date-nut bread and cookies were served to the ten ladies present. Mrs. Peter Schultz of St. Louis, Mo., attended the coffee as a guest of her daugher-in-law, Mrs. Kenneth Schultz.

15th Artillery

Mrs. Jonathan M. Grant was hostess to ladies of the 15th Artillery at her home on Rainbow Avenue, with Mrs. Noel D. Gregg assisting as co-hostess. Coffee, iced tea, and doughnuts were served to the twelve ladies present. The ladies surprised Mrs. Grant with a birthday cake in honor of her birthday. Mrs. Warner B. Cole was welcomed to the group as a newcomer. Farewells were said to Mrs. Earl L. Duncan, Mrs. Floyd L. Tomlinson and Mrs. Noel D. Gregg.

17th Artillery

Mrs. Francis P. Sheridan welcomed the ladies of the 17th Artillery at her home on Miller Loop. The living room and dining room were decorated with arrangements of red gladioli. Fruit punch, coffee, crulers and pound cake were served. Guests attending were Mrs. W. E. Jacoby, Miss Gail Jacoby and Mrs. M. G. Munson, house-guests of Mrs. Sheridan. Farewells were said to Mrs. Everett E. Mann.

37th Artillery

Ladies of the 37th Artillery met at the quarters of Mrs. James S. Compton in Custer Terrace. Mrs. Dorsey Morgan was co-hostess. The centerpiece was an arrangement of permanent tulips in shades of red and yellow. The eight ladies present were served coffee, tea, pecan swirls, cherry nut-bread, sausage biscuits and fruit shish-kabobs. Mrs. James W. Simmons attended as a guest of Mrs. Compton.

38th Artillery

Mrs. Richard S. Fleming was hostess to nine ladies of the 38th Artillery at her home on Walker Street in Columbus. Punch, coffee, tea and assorted pastries were served. Mrs. Byron W. Wamble was welcomed to the group as a new member.

Orange Blossoms May Bring Truce To 1st Inf Rivalry

The arch-rival cities of Minneapolis and St. Paul will call a truce in late June long enough for 18 Minneapolis privates to attend the wedding of Private First Class Thomas Hale of St. Paul.

Hale and the group all are members of Company C, 1st Infantry and were complete strangers to one another until they met at the OVUREP unit last September. Even though some of the soldiers attended the same high schools and lived only blocks apart, they never met.

The long months of training at Fort Benning have made them the closest of friends. This is evident in the fact that Hale has arranged for Private First Class Joe Korzeniowski to act as an usher at the wedding.

The group will fly home together on their last leave before shipping out to Korea. Hale will honeymoon with his bride-to-be, Miss Karen Brandl, in Canada.

Lively Instruction Given On Mines by Lt. McKay

By 9th Inf. PIO

Land mine warfare, an important subject taught to both light and heavy weapons Infantrymen trainees in the 9th Infantry, rates certainly as one of the most versatile courses given in Advanced Individual Training.

Presented by the Ninth's Battle Group Instructional Team as an eight-hour block, land mind warfare is given on Main Post at Landon Range to the soldiers striving for either MOS (Military Occupational Specialty) 111 or 112. The advanced trainee first learns the many-faceted principles and techniques of mine warfare.

Next on the agenda appear classes and practical work designed to fully acquaint the young soldiers with the different types and functions of anti-personnel mines, anti-tank mines, booby traps, and trip flares. The instructional team then delves into such aspects as mine fuses and firing devices to include the techniques of arming and disarming mines.

Following this, Lieutenant James McKay, land mine warfare principal instructor, and his assistants school the trainees on how and where mines should be placed. The men are then tutored on how to camouflage the mines and mark them for recognition by friendly troops.

The lively and interesting presentation of the course by the Instructional Team, combined with the abundance of practical work, fuse together to make land mine warfare a most popular subject with the trainees.

Through the use of several comic skits portraying the danger of booby traps and mines, the soldier becomes acutely aware of the multiple ways in which traps can be set by the enemy. Lt. McKay feels that through the use of bits of humor in the classes, the trainees become more alert and interested in the subject at hand.

MINE ORIENTATION . . . Lt. James McKay, of the 9th Infantry Instructional Team, points out the machinations of an anti-tank mine in an anti-mine warfare class.

Trains Takes Tournament Lead

By Div Trains PIO

Division Trains won 15-6 over the 87th Infantry Monday night completing the first half of the 2nd Division Softball Tournament and taking the lead with a 6-1 record.

Before Monday night's game, the 9th Infantry was tied with Trains, both teams having a 5-1 record.

Coach Lou Prolago of Trains started Chief Warrant Officer Robert Magee of the 702nd Ordnance Battalion as his pitcher against the 87th and after the 87th scored three runs, two outs, and bases loaded in the third inning, Prolago sent John Zepeda of 2nd Administration Company to the mound to relieve Magee. "Zip" retired the side.

Starting for Trains was muscular Chico Domonici of 12th Transportation Battalion who hit a home run into deep center field.

Vince Bujan doubled to left field followed by Rocco Siravo who singled to the short stop, getting first base on an error.

Both 2nd Administration Company players were brought home by southpaw swinger First Sergeant Ira Myers who held down first base position. Myers hit the right field fence on a bounce.

With no outs, Miles Finley of 13th Trans ran the circuit with a long drive to left field bringing up catcher Steve Humphries of Division Headquarters Company who singled and teammate Grandy James also of that unit who doubled to center field. 87th changed pitchers bringing in Joe Stevens who easily disposed of the next three batters.

The spotlight for the evening's game went to Chico Domonici who got four hits from five at bats; one homer, two doubles, a single and a walk. Missing the first three games on an injury sustained during practice Chico came up with a four game average of 13 hits in 15 tries.

Sep Bns Blank Conquerors, 6-0

Coupled with the two - hit pitching of Chuck Bootle, Separate Battalions collected seven hits to defeat the 87th Infantry 6 to 0 on the Kelley Hill Diamond Thursday, May 18. The win brings Bootle's record to an even 1 and 1.

The Separate Battalions jumped off to a three run lead in the top of the first inning, when Wardle walked and took second. Virgil Brown's base knock brought Wardle in, Brown taking second on the relay attempt to cut off Wardle.

Gaither popped to left but the fielder dropped the ball and Brown scored. Another 87th Infantry error allowed Gaither to score.

It wasn't until the top of the seventh inning that the Separate Battalions added three more "insurance" runs. These came as a result of Brown's infield single, Gaither's single and a home run by Galen Hawkens, the hard hitting second sacker from Separate Battalions.

Bootle was assisted afield by infield play including three double plays and four fine defensive plays by third sacker Charles Byrd.

Withers was tagged with the loss. His record stands at 1 and 1.

Jarrell Allows One Hit To Defeat Manchus 1-0

BY 9TH INF. PIO

A one-hit, 12-strikeout performance by 1st Infantry pitcher David Jarrell toppled the 9th Infantry from the Division softball tournament lead 1-0 at Kelley Hill Monday night.

The 9th and the 1st are now tied for second place with identical marks of five wins and two losses. Division Trains took sole possession of the top spot in tourney with a crushing 15-6 victory over the 87th Infantry. Trains' win gave them a record of six and one for the first round of seven games.

Jarrell and 9th Infantry hurler Billy White hooked up in an old-fashioned pitcher's duel with the lone run of the contest coming in the second inning following the Manchus' one error of the game. Cleanup hitter Wilbert Patterson reached first safely for the 1st Infantry when 9th Infantry first-baseman Robert Hiller dropped a throw from short.

Only Score

A wild pitch sent Patterson to second base. He then scored on R. C. White's single to right-field. Another single by 1st Infantry catcher Ray Villalabor followed sending R. C. White to third. Billy White ended the threat by fanning Jarrell, his rival mounds-man.

The lone safety for the 9th Infantry came on catcher Max Powell's scratch hit in the fourth inning. Otherwise, except for Robert Given reaching second on a two-base error in the seventh, Jarrell retained complete control of the contest. He fanned 12 and did not walk a batter.

The 9th Infantry's hurler, Billy White, surrendered six hits and walked one. He struck out nine, giving him 62 for the season in seven games. He has gone the route in each of the Ninth's contest and holds a record of 5-2. In 45 innings of pitching.

1st's Robinson Yields Four Hits to Defeat 87th

By 1st Inf. PIO

The red - hot 1st Infantry downed the 87th Infantry for its third straight win in division tournament play by a 7-1 score. The team has yielded only 10 hits and three runs in 28 innings of play.

On the hill for the first time was George Robinson who yielded only four hits to the losers.

While Robinson held the 87th lineup at bay, his teammates began rolling up the score with solid hitting.

Robert Coady sparked a first inning scoring spree with a single to left field. Manual Shockley doubled to left putting runners on second and third. Wilbert Patterson brought them home with a triple to center-field. Vincent Arrel singled him home and crossed the plate himself a moment later, when John Cogburn crashed a home run to right field.

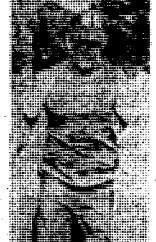
Hq. Cops Fourth Win In Redlegs' Softball

In the Redlegs softball loop of the 1st Infantry Brigade, Headquarters Company, 1st Infantry Brigade, copped its fourth win and remained in first place as they tripped Battery B, 29th Field Artillery, 8-5. Pfc Bobby Silverthorne hurled his fourth straight win for Headquarters Company.

Pfc Louis Introcaso hit his second home run of the season while 2nd Lt. Travis Bowden rapped out a double and a single. Sp5 Alvin Fleming also contributed two hits for the winners.

In the Two-Niners League, the third Chemical Platoon still rules high with a 7-0 record.



Tuesday's Support club had Headquarters Company C and Headquarters their number of wins in line with three.

In the ARB League of the 1st Armored Rifle Battalion, 1st Infantry Brigade, Headquarters Company took a 12-1 win over Company D, and in the return meet, Company D edged Headquarters, 7-3.

Sp4 James Hovermale and Pfc Walter Sheme each hit grand slam homers for the winners in the first game to account for eight runs. Sp4 Doug Davis collected the win while Pfc Arthur Chyba suffered the loss.

In the second game, Pfc Arthur Chyba hurled the win to even the series, with Sp4 Doug Davis taking the defeat. Sp4 Davis smacked a home run for the losing cause.

The 68th Armor shut out Company C 7-0, to remain in first place in the ARB League. Sp4 Melvin Srouse was credited with the win.

Standings In Custer Terrace Baseball Loop

The Custer Terrace Youth Activities Club Baseball League ended last week's play with two teams, 2 and 4, tied for first place, each with six wins and two losses.

Team 3 broke even with four each and the cellar team beat Team 3 to get off the ground after seven losses.

In one of the closest games of the week, Team 4 scored the only run of the game over Team 2 as Bloom hit a double with two on, in the bottom of the sixth inning to win 1-0. He also struck out 12 batters for his team during the game.

In another game, Halpen, pitching for Team 3, drubbed Team 1, 3-1, as Freeman pitched for the losers. Lichtenburger's double against the fence to bring in a run, together with Burns' double and Carrion's triple in the fourth, were too much for Team 1.

Post WACs Begin Play Tomorrow

Fort Benning's Women's Army Corps Softball Team opens the 1961 season tomorrow, hosting the Third Army Headquarters WAC team from Fort McPherson.

The contest is slated for the WAC softball field at 7 p.m.

Tomorrow's encounter opens a revised 10-game schedule which will keep the local WAC team on a steady move until August 19, when they close out the year on the road against the Parris Island, S. C., women Marines.

The Fort Benning WAC team carries a roster of 16 players with most of them occupying the softball positions. Three of the problem areas are at second and third base, and shortstop. Only one player is readily able to fill any of them.

The revised schedule is:

Home Games: May 27, Fort McPherson; June 3, Fort McClellan; June 10, Fort Jackson; July 15, Parris Island; and August 12, Fort Gordon.

Away Game: June 17, Fort Gordon; July 8, Fort McPherson; July 22, Fort Jackson; August 5, Fort McClellan; and August 19, Parris Island.

Hq. Det. Leads Medics League In Softball Play

The 3rd Field Hospital soundly trounced the 50th Medical Clearing Company, 7-0, in the 428th Medical Battalion Softball play last week.

Sp5 John Graves burned them in for the winning team and Sgt. John Fugate pitched for the losers.

In league standings, Headquarters Detachment still holds the leading spot with three wins and no losses and the 3rd Field Hospital and the 50th Medical Company are tied with two wins and two loses for each team. The 680th Medical Ambulance Company is still in the cellar with three losses.

ALL-AMERICAN TAILBACK

West Point's baseball coach Eric M. Tipton was an All-American tailback at Duke in 1938.

In the ARB League of the 1st Armored Rifle Battalion, 1st Infantry Brigade, Headquarters Company took a 12-1 win over Company D, and in the return meet, Company D edged Headquarters, 7-3.

Sp4 James Hovermale and Pfc Walter Sheme each hit grand slam homers for the winners in the first game to account for eight runs. Sp4 Doug Davis collected the win while Pfc Arthur Chyba suffered the loss.

In the second game, Pfc Arthur Chyba hurled the win to even the series, with Sp4 Doug Davis taking the defeat. Sp4 Davis smacked a home run for the losing cause.

The 68th Armor shut out Company C 7-0, to remain in first place in the ARB League. Sp4 Melvin Srouse was credited with the win.

Set for World Meet

International Team Skeet Squad Filled

By MSgt Charles Quinn

Seven of America's crack shooters won places on the 1961 U. S. International Shooting Team last week in final team eliminations here.

Miner Cliett, 17-year-old gunner of Childersburg, Ala., U. S. Champion of Skeet Champions, shattered 391 out of 400 clay targets over The Infantry Center's International skeet course to clinch first place honors.

Cliett tallied strings of 100-98-96-97 in the four-day trials, two "birds" ahead of second place Kenneth Sedlecky, Navy seaman who smashed 389x400 targets.

Sedlecky, American all-gauge champion, stood 14th among 17 competitors at the end of the first day's round with 95-100, eighth at the half-way mark with 192-200 and at the end of the third round he had stepped up to fourth with 291-300.

Army 2nd Lt. Gordon Horner and Major (Ret.) Gene S. Stalcup won third and fourth team slots by breaking twin scores of 388-400.

The Navy won a second team slot when Chief Petty Officer Kenneth Pendergrass blasted out of a tight knot of shooters to take fifth spot with a four-day total of 387-400.

Sixth place was won by the present holder of the world's International skeet crown, Major Oliver R. Davis.

Davis, who had previously posted daily strings of 96-95-98, smashed another 98 birds to equal the 386-400 scored by Army MSgt Henry Shaw. He defeated the Army shotgunner in a 25-bird shoot-off, 25 to 23. Shaw won the team alternate slot.

The U. S. team will compete in world championships at Oslo, Norway, June 7 to 17.

10-Run Rally in Seventh Inning Ties Game at TSB

A spectacular seventh inning rally sparked with two home runs by Pfc Ted Woitovich and Pfc Jerry Phillips brought Company A, Infantry School Battalion, The Student Brigade, 10 runs to put them ahead of Company C, but Company C came back to tie up the game before it was called because of darkness.

Company C scored two runs in the first inning, two in the second, two in the third, five in the fourth and one in the fifth. Company A was scoreless until the third inning when they brought in three runs. In the fourth inning they scored four runs and then rallied in the seventh with 10.

Company C came back with five runs in the bottom of the seventh tying up the game. The runs were scored by MSgt. Al "Tenderfoot" Smith, Sp4 John K. Davis, Sp4 James D. Hetrick and Pfc Peter S. Breese. Home runs for Company C were scored by Sp4 Davis and Pfc Theron Warning.

MSgt Smith pitched the entire game for Company C. Sp5 Al Hill replaced Sp4 Arthur Doyle in the middle of the game for Company A.

The remaining inning of the game will be played at the teams' next meeting.

Team 2 Defeats League Leaders In YAC Baseball

Coached by members of the 680th Medical (Ambulance) Company, 428th Medical Battalion, Team 2 in the Custer Terrace Doughboy League defeated league leading Team 4, 8-7. The game, played at Twin Fields, was highlighted by three home runs.

The first was by George Blooms of Team 2, with two men on base, followed by back-to-back solo clouts by Morgan and Whitesides, both of the losing nine.

Team 3, coached by Sp5 Yacobucci and Sp4 Thiebeau of the 45th Medical Air-Ambulance Company, trounced cellar dwelling Team 1, 8-3.

Major Unit League

TSB Widens Baseball Lead

The Student Brigade moved out into a somewhat comfortable lead in the post Major Unit Baseball League standings last week as a result of its 6-5 triumph over the 2nd Howitzer Battalion, 10th Artillery, 1st Infantry Brigade, in a Sunday game.

TSB has built up a 4-0 worksheet in Major Unit action, followed closely by another undefeated record, 2-0, which is possessed by the 1st Battle Group, 29th Infantry, 1st Infantry Brigade.

Other games last week saw the 151st Engineer Group whip the 1st Armored Rifle Battalion, 58th Infantry, 1st Infantry Brigade, by a 15-4 count; TSB rap the Infantry Center Troop Command, 9-3; and the 151st Engineers trounce the 428th Medical battalion by a 12-5 margin.

A double-header which was scheduled for last Saturday was postponed because of a three-game series which was played with the Florida State University baseball squad from Tallahassee. The games have been rescheduled for today and Sunday.

Next week's action will see the 10th Artillery seeking their second win of the season when they face the 58th Infantry tomorrow afternoon at 1:30 p.m. Tomorrow's action will close out with the 428th Medics hosting the 29th Infantry at 7:30 p.m.

A lone Sunday afternoon game will pit The Student Brigade against the 58th Infantry at 2 p.m.

The 151st Engineers will meet the 29th Infantry Tuesday in a Memorial Day night game slated for 7:30 p.m., and the 10th Artillery will oppose the 428th Medics in Wednesday's game at 7:30 p.m.

In the nightcap Saturday, Billy Darry was awarded the win over Bill Ross. Bishop had two hits for Troop Command.

FSU's Bob Madison banged out four hits, including a double, to aid Jim McHane in winning over Pfc Tommy Piese in the afternoon tilt. Pfc Raymond Young paced the Redlegs with two singles and a double.

Exchange Club Members See Post During Visit

Exchange Club members attending the organization's state convention in Columbus June 8 through 11 will visit The Infantry School the first afternoon of the meeting.

The visitors will arrive at the post at 11:45 a.m. and attend a luncheon at the Reserve Component Section in the Harmony Church area.

Following lunch, they will join second classmen (juniors) from the U. S. Military Academy at West Point, N. Y., in witnessing a demonstration of Ranger training and techniques at Victory Pond.

The presentation will encompass hand-to-hand combat, bayonet and knife disarming, survival methods in jungle, swamp and when waterborne, mountaineering techniques and the Ranger confidence test.

The utilization of readily available material such as pine branches for food, fuel, shelter and smoking out insects will be explained. Poisonous and non-poisonous reptiles which are encountered in the jungle, an alligator named "Old One Eye" and a large snapping turtle will be exhibited.

The capsule look at the Ranger program will include demonstrations of rappeling (descent by rope) by personnel carrying equipment, a litter and a "wounded" soldier.

The series of confidence tests, which is administered to all Ranger students, will be executed by a five-man team. It will be highlighted by the rope drop into the pond and the suspension traverse confidence test with Rangers sliding down 166 feet of rope from a height of 95 feet through a wall of water and demolitions.

Traveling to the post's Underwood Road area, Exchange Club members will view tactics and equipment of the modern, combat - ready Army during an airmobile assault demonstration directed by The Infantry School's Command and Staff Department.

The exhibition will feature a reinforced rifle company and Infantry - tank force in attack, demonstrating tactical use of helicopters to include armed "choppers" in suppressing enemy fires, a helicopterborne rifle company in an assault landing and attack to seize an objective and the use of a wire - laying H-13 helicopter to establish communications.

Lawson Army Aviation Command will provide the aircraft, with the exception of three armed helicopters and an HU-1A helicopter firing an SS-11 anti-tank) assault weapon from the Army Aviation Center, Fort Rucker.

Among the troops furnished by the 1st Infantry Brigade will be two Infantry companies, a tank platoon, three batteries of 105-mm howitzers in direct fire and one battery delivered by sling load.

Fixed - wing U-1A "Otter" and H-21 and H-34 helicopters will be utilized in the problem. The supporting role of Army aviation, particularly resupply of Infantry and artillery units and evacuation of casualties, will be portrayed. Sling delivery and evacuation of casualties, will be portrayed. Sling delivery of an artillery battery will be made by H-21 helicopters.

Climaxing the presentation will be the link-up of a mobile task force of tanks and M-113 armored personnel carriers with the forces delivered by helicopter.

Protocol Officer Named for Allied

Capt. Edgar W. Duskin has been named protocol officer for Allied visitors of The Infantry Center and School.

He succeeds Capt. George H. Benford, who will leave the post June 2 for an assignment with the Army Training Center in Grafenwohr, Germany.

SAFETY IN STORING MOWERS

After using your power lawn mower a safety rule to follow is to cut off the motor, inspect for fuel leaks, and clean machine thoroughly. It is best to drain the fuel from the machine if you store it in a basement or utility room with an ignition source such as the pilot light on a water heater.

Masquers--Unmasked

By Pfc Chuck Pariso

MORE ON '509'—The "Girls in 509", to be presented 9, 10 and 17 June at the Masquers' Playhouse, is the comical plight of two women who are soon to be evicted from the hotel in which they have lived for the last 26 years.

The play should prove highly entertaining with Mrs. Cecile M. Stafford playing the title role of Aunt Hettie. Mrs. Stafford has been active member of the Masquers Group for almost five years. She has directed some of the past Masquers productions and is at present a member of the board.

The Group is really humming with activity at the present time. Before the last performance of the "Girls in 509" rings down the final curtain, the next major production will be cast. This is one not to miss. A very good drama by the author of the "Girls in 509" Howard Teichmann, the play "Miss Lonely Hearts", will be produced by the group during July. The director for the play has not yet been chosen, but it is hoped that Mr. Paul Carpenter, Jr., will do the honors.

RADIO WORKSHOP

The voices of the Masquers may soon be heard over WMAF, Martin Army Hospital radio. The Radio Workshop has chosen two plays to be recorded for presentation. One is a comedy by George S. Kaufman entitled "The Still Alarm" with a cast including Alan Cohen, John Olbrys, Frank Hummel, Tom Botts and Glenn Gray.

The other one - act play is a drama by Dorothy C. Allen called "When the Sun Rises". In the cast are Unis Bar, Peg Teeters, and John Olbrys. The director for the dramas, Helen Voget, has a wide experience in the field of radio. The plays will offer the members of the group an opportunity to broadcast their talents over the air.

All military personnel and Civil Service employees are invited to join the Masquers group. For further information visit the Masquers Playhouse (open 7:30 every evening, Bldg 1045) or phone 5-2468.

The Surgeon Says

Hot Weather--Health Hazards

By Major Robert H. Quinn, MC

The hot weather months hold many hazards to the health of the uninitiated. Here are two important health hazards, their nature and how best to prevent them. They are sunburn and the various types of heat injury.

Sunburn is one of the commonest and potentially serious health hazards. It consists of burning of the tender, sensitive skin. The degree of sunburn depends on the length of exposure, intensity of the sun's rays (ultra violet rays), and amount of natural protective pigment in the skin. Naturally, fair skinned people are most susceptible, while dark skinned people are most resistant to sunburn. Little children tend to burn more rapidly than adults.

Sunburn is a preventable injury!! Prevention is accomplished by avoidance of direct and prolonged exposure. In most people gradual increasing daily exposures habituate the skin and increase tolerance to the sun's rays. This will prevent painful, incapacitating suffering with preventable sunburn. Sun glasses, anti-sunburn oils and creams, light colored well ventilated clothing, and sports head gear all help cut down the degree of exposure, but will not replace the need for gradually seasoning to the sun's rays. The symptoms will not show up immediately, but usually appear from two to four hours after exposure, so care must be taken to prevent over exposure.

The symptoms of mild sunburn—redness of the skin—may be treated with gentle, cool showers. Do not apply soap to sunburned skin. A bland baby powder or mild baby lotion may be applied depending on the dryness of the skin. In cases where the redness is accompanied by a few small blisters the above home treatment may be used.

In cases of sunburn with moderate to severe blisters the individual should be seen by a physician. The associated warmth, burning, and occasional itching may be relieved by taking antihistamine tablets on prescription.

Heat Injury: In the summertime everyone is more or less subject to heat stress when exposed to the sun and engaged in increased physical activity. Energy produces heat which must be expended to maintain bodily temperature within normal limits.

This is accomplished by a device in the body called the heat regulating mechanism, which allows the body to expend heat in many ways. One is by sweating, which results in the loss of body water and salts which must be replaced or else the mild or moderate forms of heat injury ensue, such as heat cramps and heat exhaustion.

The most serious form of heat injury is heat stroke, and is not due to sweating or loss of salt, but to a defect in the body's heat regulating mechanism. Let us consider these injuries from the mildest to the most serious.

Briefly, heat cramps is the simplest and most common heat injury and is due primarily to loss of salt and water. The symptoms usually consist of painful cramps in the legs, thighs, arms and abdominal wall. These symptoms will be relieved by having the victime drink salt water or take salt tablets.

The second type of heat injury and more serious is heat exhaustion and due to a much more profound loss of water and salt. The loss induces a shock like state with the typical symptoms of heat exhaustion—cold and moist skin, profuse sweating, headache, dizziness, weakness, rapid pulse, and a slight to moderate rise of temperature (100-102 F).

As soon as the condition is recognized steps must be taken to replace the lost salt and water. The victim must be made comfortable, loosen or remove outer clothes, elevate the feet, massage the legs and arms to improve circulation, and allow the patient to drink all the water he can with salt.

The lost salt must be replaced by a salt water solution. This is easily made by adding one quarter teaspoon of crushed salt tablets or table salt to a full canteen of water. This will relieve the symptoms, but the victim should be seen by a doctor as soon as is practical.

The heat stroke is the most serious type of heat injury, a peril to life itself, and one that is, fortunately, rarely seen.

This condition is not the result of loss of bodily salt and water, but due to a defective heat regulating mechanism. It is important that everyone know the signs and symptoms in order to be able to recognize sun stroke and the prompt first aid measures to limit the heat injury and preserve life.

Advanced indications of heat stroke are the diminuation or cessation of sweating and frequency of voiding. These symptoms can occur several hours in advance of an acute attack and definitely constitute a warning signal. The individual may or may not have weakness, headache, dizziness, nauseas, increase in body temperature and pulse rate. Muscle cramps may occur.

The onset of the acute attack of heat stroke is sudden and dramatic, with collapse and loss of consciousness. The coma will be deep and convulsions may occur. In the early stages of unconsciousness the skin is usually hot, red, and dry. The body temprature is very high—105 degrees to 110 degrees F. This type of heat injury calls for prompt, vigorous first aid measures, directed at lowering the patient's high temperature to save his life or prevent serious permanent injury. So, carry the patient to a cool shady spot, remove all clothing and effect cooling by, if possible, either immersion of continuous sprinkling and bathing with cold water. Massage the trunk, arms, and legs, towards the heart to restore and assist circulation.

When the patient has improved sufficiently, move in a vehicle with windows open to provide air circulation and ventilation, continuously massaging the body. At the hospital, cooling of the body will be continued by medical teams.

It is important to always remember that heat injury is completely preventable. During hot weather one must be constantly on guard by using these preventive measures: Gradual exposures and seasoning to heat. Common sense periods of physical activity and work. Avoid unnecessary exposure to intense heat. Adequate rest to prevent fatigue. Wear protective, loose fitting, well ventilated clothing. Be sure and drink plenty of water and take required salt.

Take fluids despite absence of thirst or presence of nausea. Salt food plentifully and eat the heavy meal in the cooler periods of the day. Rest in the shade immediately on appearance of mild symptoms. An individual who has recovered from heat injury will be more susceptible to a second attack than one who has never had heat injury. The risk is greater in people who are ill, have fevers and are overweight. While in arduous activities or sports pair off and use the "buddy system" in observing early signs of heat injury. Everyone must be able to recognize early warning signs and be able to initiate first aid measures. All cases of heat injury should be evaluated medically after first aid measures.

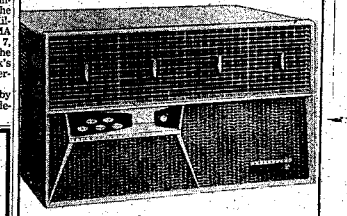
58th Infantry Honors Its First Anniversary

The 1st Armored Rifle Battalion, 58th Infantry, 1st Infantry Brigade, celebrated its first anniversary on May 16 this year. It was activated from the 2nd Battle Group, 14th Infantry and the 154th Transportation Company. Two tank companies, Company D, 69th Armor, and Company C, 66th Armor, were attached to the unit.

Many improvements of the area have been made during the past year, including rebuilding of sidewalks, building a drainage control, complete reworking of all mess halls and day rooms and lighting for all parking lots and the motor pool.



The 58th Infantry took first place in the 1st Infantry Brigade Automatic Rifle competition and had representatives in the post and Third Army rifle, pistol, and automatic rifle competitions.

Lt. Col. Norvin E. Smith, then battalion commander, in a speech on anniversary day, congratulated the officers and the men of the battalion for their accomplishments and achievements during the past year.

Col. Smith stated, "I will be reassigned to another post function, but be assured that my thoughts and best wishes will always be with you; you who have made the 58th Infantry-the top unit that it is today."

Col. Smith, who has been assigned as post deputy chief of staff, turned over his command to Lt. Col. Charles T. Caprino on May 18.

'Follow the Doctor's Orders' Eisenhower Tells Heart Patient

Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower sent a letter with a bit of advice to a heart patient at Martin Army Hospital.

"Follow the doctor's orders," he wrote Sgt. (Ret.) Tom Fields, doorman at the Main Officers' Open Mess.

Written on gold embossed stationery and bearing the famous signature of the former president in the upper right hand corner of the envelope and received Monday, the message from Field's former commander reads,

"Dear Sergeant Fields,

"I have just learned to my great regret that you recently suffered a heart attack and presently are hospitalized at Fort Benning. Since I have been through such an experience I know how difficult things are for you—and I do venture to offer a word of advice. I hope you will implicitly follow the instructions the doctors give you. If you do, I am certain that within a shorter period of time than you now can believe, you will be able to resume your normal routine.

"This note brings to you my best wishes for your complete and speedy recovery and my warm regard.

Sincerely,
Dwight D. Eisenhower."

Sgt. Fields served under Eisenhower, then a major, from 1921 to 1924, when the latter commanded the 1st Battalion, 24th Infantry at Fort Benning.

Retiring in November, 1949, after more than 32 years of service Fields became doorman at the Main Officers' Open Mess.

Sgt. Fields was admitted to Martin Army Hospital May 12 with a heart condition.

'Leg' Medals Available At Sunday Rifle Match

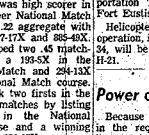
Credit toward the coveted National Distinguished Marksman Badge may be earned on post Sunday, date of the Southeastern Regional Service Rifle Match which is open to any citizen of the U.S. 16 years of age or over.

The match is sponsored by the Fort Benning Rifle and Pistol Club in cooperation with the National Board for the Promotion of Rifle Practice. It is conducted during Southeastern Regional Rifle Championships to be fired at The Infantry Center starting tomorrow.

The course of fire required for credit qualification is traditionally known as the "leg" match because three credits or "legs" must be won before the gold badge may be earned.

A single credit will be awarded competitors who finish in approximately the top 10 per cent of shooters completing the course of fire.

To be eligible for the coming competition a rifle marksman must not have previously fired in any match authorizing such credit during the calendar year.



Entries have been limited to 500 shooters, according to Club Secretary Thomas Kirkman, who said that all registration must be completed by 7:30 a.m. on the day of the match.

The balance of matches to be fired during the three-day program will be official National Rifle Association competition and open only to association members, Kirkman said.

MILITARY AID

"The military aid program should continue to have great significance in the future, in the view of the turbulent world situation. Its contributions in cold war and in limited war activities such as counter-guerrilla warfare should be of increasing importance."
-General Clyde D. Eddleman

Meet Your "Hometown" Newspaper

Your BAYONET is a "civilian enterprise" post newspaper, written and edited by G.I. personnel, assisted and advised by newsroom officials of The Ledger-Enquirer Newspapers. Your BAYONET is published each Friday by the Ledger-Enquirer Newspapers and is 100 per cent free to the military establishment.
It's publication and free distribution is made possible by he advertising merchants of Columbus and Phenix City, and the BAYONET staff sincerely appreciates your first consideration of these firms when you shop in the civilian community.

THE BAYONET

Safest Post Is Bicycle Contest Goal

The Bicycle Safety Program, aimed at making Fort Benning the safest post in the U. S. for bicycle riders, begins June 3. Approximately 400 pedalists are expected to participate.

The program is conducted by the Office of the Provost Marshal, the Georgia State Highway Patrol, Post Safety Section, Post Dependent Schools, and the Youth Activity Club. All dependent children, ages six through 16, are eligible to participate in the safety program.

In Two Parts

The program consists of two parts, a written test and a proficiency test. Written tests are now being administered in the post schools.

For proficiency testing purposes, the children will be divided into two age groups. Lt. Col. James E. Farmer, post provost marshal, said. Participants nine years old and under will be tested at Don C. Faith School. Those ten and over will be tested on Upton Avenue between Edwards and Anderson streets.

Prizes will be awarded by the Youth Activity Club and the Provost Marshal Office to the children who score the highest in each age group. A grand prize will go to the overall winner.

A kickoff meeting will be held for the program at 9 a.m. tomorrow in Theater 1. Sgt. Joe White, a representative of the Georgia State Highway Driver's Education Section, and Norman M. Evans, safety director of the post, will give talks at the meeting. Films on bicycle safety also will be shown.

Registration

The meeting also will be used to register children for the program. Further registration will be held at the sites of the proficiency tests on June 3 prior to 9 a.m.

Those persons in charge of conducting the program are 1st Lt. Allen T. Stunney, 2nd Lt. Thomas R. Hogle, Sfc Noel W. Lott and Cpl. Paul K. Fay.

Two Military Police officers, two Phenix City police officers, and 14 enlisted military police personnel will serve as judges in the bike campaign.

The post Woman's Club and the Non - Commissioned Officers' Wives Club will serve refreshments at the testing.

New Instructor

A new instructor has been assigned to the Communication Department of The Infantry School. Capt. Eugene D. Skaggs who arrived on the post last week, recently completed an associate course at the Command and General Staff College at Fort Leavenworth.

Take Two Aggregates

AMU Pistol Shooters Win 12 Florida Individual Matches

Army pistol marksman Sgt. Floyd D. Thomson became Fiesta of Five Flags individual pistol champion at Hollywood, Fla., recently by posting a grand aggregate score of 2629-135X out of 2,700.

Competing as a member of the Army Advanced Marksmanship Unit's Pistol Team, Thomson won the Fiesta trophy by a single point.

Teammate Sgt. James L. Bratcher recorded a 12-match aggregate of 2628-110X for second place. Sfc William B. Blankenship won third place with 2625-124X.

Of the 12 individual matches fired at the Florida Fiesta, Army marksmen accounted for all 12 first place trophies and two of the three individual aggregate awards.

Blankenship took first place in the .22 Caliber Timed Fire Match with 200-17X, first in the .45 Caliber Rapid Fire Match with 198-10X, second in the .22 Caliber aggregate with 385-49X, in addition to his third high grand aggregate total to capture four individual trophies.

Three Army competitors, MSgt Richard M. Stineman, Sgt. Harold E. Jump and Sfc Alvin J. Moore were double winners.

Stineman was high scorer in the .22 caliber National Match course and 32 aggregate with scores of 297-17X and 385-49X.

Jump copped two .45 matches, posting a 193-5X in the Slow Fire Match and 294-13X in the National Match course.

Moore took two firsts in the center fire matches by listing a 285-11X in the National Match course and a winning aggregate of 579-27X.

The Army's single winners were Sfc Robert L. Jones, who scored 194-7X in the .22 Caliber Slow Fire Match; Sp5 John M. Weihs, who fired 200-12X in the .22 Caliber Rapid Fire Match, and MSgt. Walter E. Schneider, who posted 200-12X in the Center Fire Timed Fire Match.

Other single winners were MSgt James W. Kurts, who shot 199-11X in the Center Fire Rapid Fire Match, and MSgt Mack R. Salmon, who listed 200-17X in the .45 Caliber Timed Fire Match.

Celebrates Anniversary On the Air

In conjunction with the anniversary of the organization of the 2nd Howitzer Battalion, 10th Artillery, 1st Infantry Brigade, a series of television appearances have been arranged to display the various weapons and equipment of the unit.

Through the cooperation of WRBL-TV, members of 10th Artillery will appear live on "The Rozelle Show", aired at 9:30 a.m. on Wednesday, May 31. Viewers will get a camera close-up of some of the nuclear and conventional weapons employed by the unit in support of Infantry School problems at Fort Benning at 6:25 p.m. in a special half hour show on the same channel.

WTVM (Channel 9) is also hosting the 10th Artillery on Friday, June 2, on "Patsy's Playhouse," which is a full hour show from 9 to 10 a.m. Many surprises are planned for the viewers that morning.

20 to Train On Carrier In Atlantic

Eight officers and 12 enlisted men of the 31st Transportation Company, Lawson Army Aviators on a Navy carrier in the Atlantic June 3 to 8.

The group is undergoing three weeks of orientation training in formation flying, rendezvous, simulated launching and landing at Fort Bragg and Camp MacKall, N.C. Marine Corps personnel from MAG-26, New River, N.C., are conducting the training under the direction of the XVIII Airborne Corps.

Capt. Wesley C. Wilson, flight platoon leader in the 31st Company, commands the post representatives.

They took four H-3 helicopters to the exercise.

The local men will return to the post June 14.

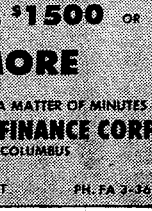
Among the 42 officers and 45 enlisted men receiving instruction are personnel from the 82nd Aviation Battalion, 8th Transportation Company and 48th Medical Company (Helicopter Ambulance), all of Fort Bragg; 101st Aviation Battalion, Fort Campbell, and the Transportation Training Command, Fort Eustis, Va.

Helicopters involved in the operation, in addition to the H-34, will be the HU-1A and the H-21.

Power of Attorney

Because of the differences in the requirements of State law as to form and content and in order to meet properly the needs of military personnel, the power of attorney should be prepared, if possible, under the advice of competent legal counsel familiar with the applicable State law.

Dental Surgeon To Attend Meet



Col. Stuart M. Mitchell, post dental surgeon, will attend a short course in preventive dentistry June 4 to 9 at Walter Reed Army Institute of Research in Washington, D. C. He also will attend a dental surgeon's conference to run concurrently with the course.

To Signal School

Capt. Norman G. Miller, supply officer of The Infantry School's Communication Department, has been selected to attend the Signal School at Fort Monmouth, N. J. He is expected to depart the post in July.

BOOKS in REVIEW

SOMETHING LIGHT by Margery Sharp. (Little, 1960).

This novel tells the story of Mary Datchett, who was fond of men, indiscriminately fond of men, in fact. Men, for their part, seemed to recognize this in her — when they needed listening to, when they needed prescriptions filled, employment found, socks washed, suits fetched from the cleaners, or musical instruments gotten out of hock.

THE COMPLETE DOG BOOK BY AKC. (Garden City Books, 1961).

Everything a dog owner wants to know about pure-bred dogs is included in this revised official publication of the American Kennel Club, Including origin, history, and standard of all 90 breeds admitted to AKC registration; their breeding, handling, feeding; puppy raising; diseases and ailments; first aid and treatment; anatomy, line drawings; and a terminology defining expressions unique to the dog world.

WINNIE ILLE PU by Alexander Lenard. (Dutton, 1961).

A book anyone with even the slightest knowledge of Latin can enjoy. One of the great cultural gaps of the ages has just been plugged by a small book which should compensate, in part, for the burning of the library of Alexandria in 640.

Post Youths Get Academy Appointments

Three Fort Benning youths have received appointments to the U. S. Military Academy at West Point, N. Y.

They are Michael B. Teeters, son of Col. and Mrs. Bernard G. Teeters, John W. McClain, Jr., son of Lt. Col. and Mrs. McClain and James E. Echols III, son of Lt. Col. and Mrs. Echols, Jr.

Teeters, 17, is a senior at Baker High School in Columbus. He received his appointment from Rep. John W. Byrnes of Wisconsin. Col. Teeters, a 1939 graduate of the Military Academy, is director of The Infantry School's Ranger Department.

McClain and Echols, both 18, were graduated from Baker last year. They received appointments through competitive examinations after enlisting in the Army Reserve. They attended the Military Academy Preparatory School at Fort Belvoir this year.

Col. McClain is an instructor on the Advanced Tactics, Intelligence and Operations Committee of The Infantry School's Command and Staff Department. Col. Echols is chairman of the Command and Staff Department's Artillery Committee.

100 Per Cent Participation In U. S. Bonds

The 15th Finance Disbursing Section of The Student Brigade, is leading all other brigade units in the U.S. Savings Bond drive with an overall average of 100 per cent.

In second place is the 2nd Student Battalion with 94 per cent.

Other units, in order of their scores, are: 4th Student Battalion, 69 per cent; 3d Army Rifle and Pistol Teams, 52 per cent; 5th Student Battalion, 48 per cent; 2nd Ranger Company, 44 per cent) The Student Brigade civilians, 42 per cent; Headquarters Co., 31 per cent; 1st Ranger Company, 27 per cent; and Infantry School Battalion, 24 per cent.

WAC Commander Is Civitan Speaker

WAC Capt. Madeline Barbour, commander of The Infantry Center WAC Company, was the speaker at Tuesday's luncheon meeting of the Muscogee Civitan Club.

The event was held in the Black Angus Ranch Restaurant in Columbus.

The program was one of a series being presented by post personnel in conjunction with Armed Forces Week.

ABILITY

American ability to think and produce more is the secret of success.

ROTC Graduates Commissioned By Gen. Walsh

Brig. Gen. L. A. Walsh, Jr., assistant commandant of The Infantry School, presented Army second lieutenant commissions to ROTC graduates of Tuskegee Institute May 22.

The commissioning ceremony was a part of the school's commencement exercises. Dr. L. H. Foster, president of Tuskegee Institute presided at the program.

NEW NAME

On April 21, 1919, the School of Fire at Fort Sill, Okla., was renamed the Field Artillery School.

Engineer SOM

Spc4 Rex E. Parmelee, of Company B, 806th Engineer Battalion, was selected as soldier of the month for the battalion for the month of April.

Voluntary Active Recall Open for Some Officers

Now, under Circular 601-8 and Army Regulation 135 - 210, new opportunities for company grade Reserve commissioned officers are open for active duty.

An objective of the program is the call to active duty primarily of those officers with less than 14 years active Federal service.

Applicants with less than two years active Federal commissioned service selected for active duty with branches other than the Ordnance Corps will be ordered to active duty for three years. The provisions of AR 135-215 will apply to those desiring retention on active duty subsequent to completion of initial active duty tour.

Applicants having served two or more years as commissioned officers in the Active Army will be ordered to active duty for an indefinite period.

Applications will be processed in accordance with paragraph 11, 12, or 13, AR 135-210, as appropriate.

Any officer who meets the requirements for active duty, as announced in specific or current program are eligible to apply.

Those members of the Retired Reserve and of the Inactive Status List if the Standby Reserve and USAR officers, retired from an enlisted status in the Active Army after at least 20 years of active Federal service, having had insufficient commissioned service to be retired as an officer and placed on the AUS retired list are ineligible to apply.

3 Rescued By Helicopter Evacuations

The medical evacuation helicopter, a 24 hour detail for all Lawson Army Aviation Command helicopter pilots, recently made three successful evacuations in the four days between May 8 and 11.

The first "save" was on the night of May 8th. The injured were removed from an auto wreck and were at Martin Army Hospital in 39 minutes. The pilot was CWO Jose Anorga of the 94th Transportation Company, with Sp5 J. E. Kirkley of the 45th Medical Platoon, as the medic on the team.

On the 9th, a call came in from 2nd Armored Division Road that a man was suffering from a gunshot wound. CWO Jesse L. Taylor, 94th Trans. Company, with Medic Sp5 G.E. DeYoung, 45th Platoon, answered the call and made the evacuation to Martin Army Hospital.

At 2:30 p.m., on May 11, a call came in from Warner Range that a tank crew member was unconscious from suspected carbon monoxide poisoning. At 2:54 1st Lt. Gene B. Dill and his crew were on the ramp ready for another mission. The call for receipt of the call to delivery of the patient at Martin Army Hospital was 17 minutes: Sp5 Osbil E. Delacerda revived the patient en route and the man was reported on his feet upon arrival at the hospital.

Medics from the 45th Medical Platoon work with the pilots of Lawson Army Aviation Command during the medical evacuations by helicopter.

Latest Win Gives AMU 3 Records

A new national record was set at Kinston, N. C., recently when the Army Pistol Team, headquarters at Fort Benning, fired a score of 1182-60X over the .22 Caliber National Team Match course during the Mid-Central Regional Pistol Championships hosted by the Kinston Police Department.

The new mark smashed the old record held by the Los Angeles Police Team by a single point to bring all three outdoor pistol team records to the Army Advanced Marksmanship Unit.

The post unit is now officially credited with the .45 Caliber Team Match record of 1173-48X, the Center Fire Team Match record of 1174-52 and the .22 Caliber Team Match record.

The Army's Blue Team which shot the new mark was sparked by the U. S. individual pistol champion, Sfc William B. Blankenship, with Sgt. Floyd D. Thompson Sfc. Floyd D. Oliver, MSgt. Richard M. Stineman, and MSgt Mack R. Salmon, coach.

FORT BENNING, GEORGIA, HOME OF U.S. ARMY INFANTRY CENTER

VOL. 19, NO. 38 | FRIDAY, JUNE 2, 1961 | FORT BENNING, GA | 44 Pages | 5 Cents

First Units Arrive For Training

Approximately 749 Army Reserve personnel from two units will arrive at Fort Benning Sunday, June 4, for two weeks of training.

Commanding the 228 officers, 18 warrant officers and 165 enlisted men of the 87th Maneuver Area Command from Birmingham, is Brig. Gen. Edward M. Friend, Jr. Executive officer of the unit is Brig. Gen. Louis Batillo.

The 86 officers, 6 warrant officers and 254 enlisted men of the Army Garrison from West Palm Beach, Fla., are commanded by Col. George W. Greer.

The mission of the 87th Maneuver Area Command is to test combat type units to determine their combat readiness. After spending the first week preparing and planning, the 87th will receive actual practice during the second week at Benning testing a battle group for combat readiness. The 2nd Battle Group, 1st Infantry, 2nd Infantry Division will go on field maneuvers in support of the reserve unit.

The Army Garrison is a supporting unit which furnishes administrative support for the 87th Maneuver Area Command.

The Infantry Center Reserve Component Section is responsible for the coordination and support of Reserve and National Guard training on the post. Chief of the section is Lt. Col. Edward B. Crane.

The two week summer training is in the tradition of the One Army concept.

Post Drivers Have a Clean Holiday Slate

Fort Benning drivers recorded a clean slate over the Memorial Day holiday.

Norman Evans of Columbus, Infantry Center safety director, reported no personnel of the post were even slightly injured. His one statement summed up the way he felt:

"Fort Benning drivers are just good drivers."

In 1960, the post recorded three injuries although none were killed, which shows a remarkable improvement on the safety record.

Fort Benning's intense campaign against highway accidents has been credited with holding down the accident rate among post military and civilian personnel, and safety programs within each unit will continue these programs throughout the year, safety officials said.

Col. Hacker Gets 10 Post

Lt. Col. William J. Higgins Jr., succeeded Col. John J. Pavick as G-1 of The Infantry Center yesterday, and Lt. Col. William C. Hacker assumed duties as information officer, the post vacated by Col. Higgins. Col. Pavick will depart the post for an assignment with Headquarters, U.S. Army Europe.

Col. Higgins

Col. Higgins came to Fort Benning last June following an assignment with the U.S. Military Assistance Advisory Group on Taiwan where he served as G-3 adviser to the Second Field Army and Kinmen Defense Command of the Republic of China.

Initially Col. Higgins served as chief of the Materiel Section of The Infantry School's Combat Developments Office. He became information officer of The Infantry Center in November.

During World War II, Col. Higgins served with the 13th Airborne Division and the Southern France Airborne Task Force in Europe from July, 1943, until the cessation of hostilities in that theater of operations.

He is a 1958 graduate of the Army War College at Carlisle Barracks.

Col. and Mrs. Higgins, the former Mary Laurence of Highland Falls, have two children, William J. III, 14, and Barbara Ann, 13.

Col. Pavick

Col. Pavick, G-1 since February, 1960, will leave the post June 22 for the assignment with Headquarters, U.S. Army Europe.

He served at The Infantry School the preceding 31 months in successive assignments as

USMA Class Due On Post June 7

Approximately 580 cadets of the U. S. Military Academy Class of 1962 will view demonstrations of tactics and techniques at The Infantry School June 7 to 13.

The visitors will arrive at the post at 5 p.m. June 7. They will be accompanied by Col. Charles J. Barrett, Lt. Col. William T. Call, Jr., Major Harold G. de Moya, Major Maurice D. Roish, Major William C. Norman, Major Charles H. Sunder, Capt. Jerry L. Teague, Capt. Ronald J. Rogers, 1st Lt. Wilford R. Harrell Jr., Sfc R. E. Lewis and Sp5 J. G. Ehrgood, of the Military Academy.

Brig. Gen. A. D. Surles, Jr., deputy commanding general of The Infantry Center, will welcome the cadets June 8 at 8:35 a.m. in the Main Theater. Concluding their schedule that morning will be demonstrations of the role of the Infantry at the Main Theater and Rangers in action at Victory Pond.

That evening (June 8) the visitors will witness a reinforced rifle company in defense on Ruth Range directed by The Infantry School's Command and Staff Department.

During their stay the cadets will undergo leaders' reaction testing at Dixie Village and will participate in the mounted rifle platoon in the attack conducted by The Ranger Department and Airborne-Air Mobility Department instruction in parachute landing falls, swing landing trainer, mock door and 34-foot tower techiques.

They also will see presentations by the Command and Staff Department on firepower and airmobile assault and the Infantry Board on the latest developments in Infantry

QM Laundry Finds Way To Save $6,864

The use of extra clothes presses from a discontinued laundry, and a plan for enabling one individual to operate three presses instead of two, will save the post Quartermaster Laundry $6,864 annually.

An extensive study and experimentation led to the management improvement. Other improvements are under development by The Infantry Center Quartermaster Section.

Since pay of laundry personnel accounts for 85 per cent of total laundry costs, the use of the extra equipment and resultant decrease in the number of pressers assigned is responsible for the annual estimated saving.

One third of the laundry improvement has now been completed, and the project is expected to be completed early during the next Fiscal Year.

With one employee operating three presses instead of two as in the past lay-out, productivity per press will drop from 100 to 78 garments, but the employee-garment ratio will climb from 200 to 235 per day, allowing for the saving in personnel.

The extra presses being put in use from the closed laundry were obtained without cost.

Carnival Planned

The fifth annual Youth Activities Club, Carnival and Parade of Champions, is planned for July 4 at Gowdy Field, Doughboy Stadium and adjacent areas. Proceeds from the day's activities, climaxed with evening fireworks, help support the post's youth activities. Scheduled in the competitive events is the selection of the outstanding unit and individual soldier on the post.

chief of the Intelligence Group, Special Subjects Department; director of the Ground Mobility Department and Secretary of the School.

Commissioned in the Coast Artillery Corps, Col. Pavick transferred to the Infantry five years after his graduation from the U. S. Military Academy at West Point in 1939. He was stationed at Fort Sherman, Canal Zone; Fort Bliss, Texas, and Camp Davis, N.C., before being graduated from the Command and General Staff College at Fort Leavenworth in 1944.

Following a four-year tour as tactical officer at the Military Academy, Col. Pavick served in the G-2 Section of U.S. Forces, Austria in Vienna from 1946 to 1947. The next year he was a member of the Chinese Military Advisory Group in Nanking.

Returning to U.S. Forces, Austria, the 46-year-old officer served three years with headquarters G-2 Section in Salzburg.

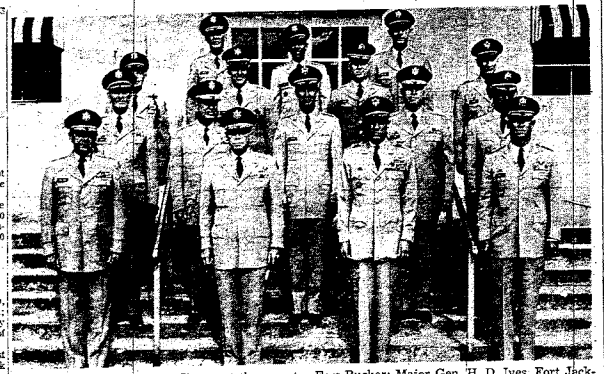
Col. Pavick next was a battalion commander and combat command executive officer in the 1st Armored Division, Fort Hood, for two years. In 1955-1956 he served with the Korean Military Advisory Group, then commanded the 7th Cavalry Regiment in Japan for a year.

Col. Hacker

Col. Hacker became information officer of The Infantry Center yesterday.

Col. Hacker served in the Information Division of Headquarters, U. S. Army Europe in Heidelberg, Germany, from July, 1956, until entering the Command and General Staff College, Fort Leavenworth, last January. The previous two years he was assigned to Headquarters, Seventh Army in Stuttgart, Germany.

A 1943 graduate of Indiana University, Col. Hacker went on active duty in August of that year. He was commissioned a second lieutenant at Fort Benning's Officer Candidate School six months later.



From January, 1944, to April, 1945, he was a tactical officer in the Third Student Training Regiment (now The Student Brigade) at the post.

Col. Hacker served in Korea with the 2nd Logistical Command from August, 1950, to July, 1951. He then served successively as a company commander and commander of the 4th Battalion in the 1st Officer Candidate Regiment at Benning.

Following his graduation from The Infantry School's officer advance course in 1953, Col. Hacker was professor of military science at Northwestern Military Academy, Lake Geneva, Wis., for four years.

He is a 1957 graduate of the German Army Staff College.

Col. and Mrs. Hacker, the former Genoveva Rundstatler of Darmstadt, Germany, have three daughters, Linda Kay, 12, Cheryl, 8, and Jeannine, 7.

Proficiency-in-Arms Tested On Post at Army Championships

Measure of the Army's basic skill will be taken June 5 to 15 when proficiency-in-arms of over 800 Army marksmen will be tested during the Army's annual rifle and pistol championships.

Forty-six matches, including competition with International-type weapons, service rifle and pistol and automatic rifle, have been scheduled as the Army's end-of-course test of advancement in combat skill in the use of small arms.

"The competitive program is the most efficient method of conducting a test of this type and permits analyses of advancement of individual shooting skill," Lt. Col. Burton C. Boatright, match executive officer, said.

Also evaluated will be any new methods of marksmanship training or coaching techniques and any possible advancement of weapons, ammunition or other equipment involved, Col. Boatright added.

Marksmen from the Army's 12 major continental and overseas commands will participate in the championships to be fired over seven Infantry Center ranges.

These men represent a small fraction of those who actually benefited by the competitive program which commenced last October," Col. Boatright stated, adding that the "All-Army" championships were the peak of the cycle which began at company level and progressed through battle group, division or post and Army-area levels.

The marksmen training on post are the best in the world today, according to the match executive, and provide a crack corps of finely trained instructors in event of possible future mobilization.

U. S. Army Europe will enter the competition as defender of two major championships, the service rifle team and automatic rifle team crowns. The Third Army, host for the shoot, will shoot to retain the Infantry Trophy rifle team laurels won in 1960.

Fourth Army, present holder of the service pistol title is planning to smash its own record established in 1960.

Individual title holders, Sfc's William B. Blankenship and Antonio Miranda will be on the firing line in defense of their thrones.

Both members of the Army's advanced marksmanship unit, Blankenship is handgun champion while Sfc Miranda is top service rifle shooter.

Army Reorganization Plans are Outlined In President's Special Talk

WASHINGTON (AFPS)—President John F. Kennedy, in a hard-hitting special message to Congress that touched on all the nation's foreign and domestic problems, outlined his recommendations for building the armed services' nuclear and conventional deterrent power.

In what he called a second State of the Union message, the President specifically suggested that Congress reorganize the Army's divisional structure and increase the strength of the Marine Corps, and that it continue to bolster NATO's capability as a conventional and nuclear deterrent.

More Flexible

Mr. Kennedy stressed the importance of boosting the nation's non-nuclear capacity. But rather than asking for new levies of men, he recommended that our conventional capabilities be made more flexible.

Along with requesting a modernization and reorganization of the Army's divisional makeup, the President asked that its non-nuclear firepower be increased, its mobility and flexibility be insured, its units in Europe be provided with more modern equipment to coordinate with our major allies, and that additional Airborne brigades be established in Europe and the Pacific.

Fewer Men in Division

The new division recommended by the President would average about 15,000 men. This is less than the WWII and Korea division of about 17,500 men, but larger than the present pentomic division, ranging from 11,600 for airborne units to 14,600 for armored.

The message asked Congress for $100 million to equip the Army with new helicopters, armored personnel carriers and howitzers, and other conventional equipment. This added sum brings to just over $2 billion the total requested for modernization of Army equipment.

Existing paramilitary, or guerrilla, forces and special forces would be increased and reoriented. This would include equipping both types of units with men with special skills and foreign language fluency.

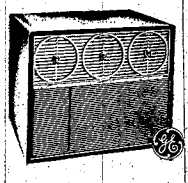
One Army Plans

Under plans now being developed by the Army, a more rapid deployment of highly-trained Reserve forces would be possible. Two combat-ready divisions and their supporting forces, a total of 89,000 men, could be ready for operations on just three weeks' notice and two more divisions on five weeks' notice. Six additional divisions could be deployed with in less than eight weeks.

To Attend School

CWO Robert W. Langston, S-4, 498th Medical Battalion, is scheduled to attend the Medical Maintenance Equipment and Optical School at St. Louis, Missouri, in the near future. CWO Langston entered the Army in 1940 and received his basic training at Fort Benning. He has seen over-seas duty during both the Korean Conflict and World War II. In Korea he served in the Far East with the 6th Army Medical Depot and with the 25th Evacuation Hospital in the European Theater of Operations during WWII.

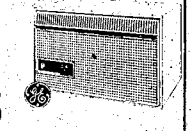
To boost the "already formidable ability of the Marine Corps to respond to limited war emergencies," the President asked Congress for $60 million to add 190,000 men to the Corps. Of these, 4,900 would be added to Fleet Marine ground forces, 4,100 to air units, and the remainder to bring established units up to strength.

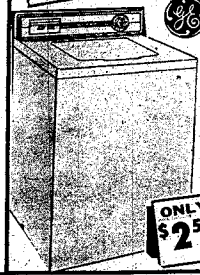


This beefing up would increase the impact and staying power of present divisions, the President said, and provide a trained nucleus for possible further expansion.

In the message, which called for increased economic as well as military foreign aid, the President said that changing conditions of power in the world required increased emphasis on NATO's conventional conditions.

As a means of boosting NATO's nuclear deterrent at the same time, Mr. Kennedy plans to commit five Polaris submarines to NATO as originally proposed by President Eisenhower. He left open the possibility of sending more submarines if they were needed.





Citing the importance of civil defense in the event of nuclear attack, President Kennedy called for the initiation of a national long-range program to provide fall-out shelter in new and existing shelters. He has assigned responsibility for this program to the Secretary of Defense.

Any sort of response at all to the last pay day and final seven days of the campaign for membership in the Columbus-Phenix City-Fort Benning Chapter of the Association of the U. S. Army should bring the chapter to first place in members for the first time.

This area has long had the potential civilian interest and Regular Army personnel to assure the first place position, but too often the annual drive has merely offset attrition due to transfers and other losses. This year, for the first time, due largely to greater education on the workings of the association, membership has exceeded 3,000.

Unofficial figures now show a total of about 3,100 in the local chapter, and further unofficial inquiries indicate that the chapter which was in the top spot—Huntsville, Alabama's Tennessee Valley Chapter—had 2,953 in early May. The chapter which was in number two position over third place Columbus-Phenix City-Fort Benning, the George Washington Chapter at Fairfax, Va., had a total of 2,524 on its roster in January.

The final official tabulation will be made June 30, and the results released soon thereafter.

Former first place chapter, Colorado's Pike's Peak, was in sixth place at the start of the calendar year.

Local chapter representatives say that applications for membership can be received as late as June 8, and still be forwarded to national headquarters in time to count in the annual inventory. A last ditch effort is being made to sign up those only recently informed of the vast work of the association in behalf of the Army.

Proposed Army Reorganization

Basic building blocks for the Army reorganization plans announced by President Kennedy May 25 would be four types of combat maneuver battalions—infantry, tank, mechanical and Airborne. These battalions, ranging from 580 to 850 in strength, would be grouped in varying combinations under three brigade headquarters to form divisions containing from seven to 11 battalions. The division structure could be altered to employ up to 15 combat maneuver battalions. Actual composition of each division would depend on the strategic mission and operational environment, but overall strength of the typical division would be about 11,000. Detailed tables of organization and equipment are not yet completed. However, development of details of organization is underway.

Against Overwhelming Odds

Second Lt. Chris C. Vurlumis, an orientation coure student at The Infantry School, thinks no obstacle is insurmountable. The lieutenant, who plans to take both Ranger and Airborne training, is a violin virtuoso, in spite of fantastic odds. He started studying the violin at the age of four, and then eight years later his musical career seemed doomed when the nerves of his left hand were severed in an accident. Though generally considered hopeless by the medicos, a delicate operation restored some of the sensation and movement to his fingers, and the young man's determination and hard work did the rest. To date he has given about 100 recitals, and was the only amateur in the first violin section of the Oakland, Calif. Symphony. Other accomplishments were his assignment as concert master of the Far Western Music Conference while in high school, and the position as drum major of the University of California marching band. He now is considering making the Army his career. The Army can use such determination, lieutenant.

The Judge Says . . .

By 1st Lt. Bernard E. Burk

A great portion of our tax money goes into the national defense budget, and, from this budget, each of the services receives the money to pay its members and to purchase the equipment, food, and supplies necessary to maintain its organization. It is, therefore, imperative that some individual be responsible at all times for the care and safekeeping of Department of the Army property.

In cases where property of the Army is lost, damaged, or destroyed by causes other than fair wear and tear, a report of survey is initiated to determine the surrounding facts. Relief from property responsibility can be obtained only by report of survey action or an authorized substitute therefor.

Just who will be held responsible for the loss of Army property? To begin with, a person who has signed a receipt for the property is generally held responsible for it, but any individual, regardless of whether he has signed a receipt, may, by reason of possession of property or the scope of his employment or duty, incur responsibility for the care and custody of property.

To be more specific, commissioned officers and warrant officers having supervisory responsibility for Army property may be charged with the value of any loss of such property unless they can prove by sufficient evidence that the property less did not result from their fault.

Military personnel or civilian employes of the Army having personal responsibility for Army property, and enlisted men and civilian employes having supervisory responsibility may be held responsible for loss or damage under a report of survey.

However, military personnel or civilian employees having personal responsibility and enlisted men and civilian employees having supervisory responsibility will be relieved from such responsibility for property loss when evidence developed by the surveying officer, including any furnished by the responsible individual, fails to show that under the circumstances the loss resulted from a failure to exercise a reasonable degree of care.

It should be noted that military personnel or civilian employes of the Army acting within the scope of their employment may be charged for loss of property not in their personal custody or under their supervisory control where such loss was occasioned by their fault or neglect. Therefore, if you are driving your own personal vehicle and run into an Army vehicle, you may be held responsible under a report of survey.

There are many factors which the survey officer will take into consideration before he decides who should be held liable for loss of Army property. Full consideration will be given to the degree of care and resourcefulness which might reasonably be expected of the person concerned, considering his age, experience, and special qualifications.

In cases involving supervisory responsibility, consideration will also be given to the complexity of the management over which supervision was exercised and the extent supervision may have been hampered by other duties imposed by military necessity or lack of qualified assistants.

Military personnel and civilian employes of the Army who have been held responsible for loss or damage to Army property are authorized to request reconsideration or to appeal from the findings of the survey officer.

The term "request for reconsideration" is regarded as an application for further action directed to the same authority who took the initial action. Unless good cause for a greater delay exists, request for reconsideration must be submitted within 60 days of date of acknowledgement of receipt of the notice you have been held liable under a report of survey.

The term "appeal" denotes an application directed to the Secretary of the Army. When ever the word "appeal" is used in a communication protesting a pecuniary charge resulting from a survey action, the appeal is considered by an authority higher than the previous action. The appeal is generally made if a request for reconsideration has received unfavorable action. The appeal must be made within 3 years from the denial of the request for reconsideration.

Greatness of America Is Told In Her Cities

One reason service people have a better appreciation of their country's greatness than many civilians is that over the years they get to do more traveling around it. For them the "purple mountain majesty above the fruitful plain" is much more than a line from a song—it is heartfelt experience intimately bound up with one's feeling of what it means to be an American.

Yes—the country's natural majesty is immense and we are rightly stirred by it. But it was no less majestic when the only Americans were Indians. If today we look for symbols of what almost 200 years of democratic government have wrought we find them in our great cities "from sea to shining sea."

Who of us can look at the towers of lower Manhattan soaring skyward without telling himself, "this man-made miracle is America and I am a part of it." Who can visit the nation's capital —that huge factory of government where free men sent to office by other free men make their laws and defend their liberties—without feeling, almost hearing, the hum of a giant, and knowing that we are in the capital of the free world?

It is this sense of greatness and strength and energy, which we get from our cities and their millions of people, that is embodied in the courage we are privileged to defend. It is a living, pulsing thing; it is a continuation of the revolutionary fire that brought the nation into being. "We dare not forget today that we are the heirs of that first revolution," President Kennedy has said. But how can we forget when the creations of its spirit are all round us?".

Washington, New York, Chicago, San Francisco—the dynamics of these and other cities are the national heartbeat. A people that raised them on islands, hills and prairies is capable of any sacrifice, any exertion, to keep faith with their proud, indomitable spirit. (AFPS)

Chaplain's Corner

By Chaplain (Capt.) G. R. Ristan

"We must re-learn the meaning of love and sacrifice. We must strengthen the ties that bind us to our fellow creatures everywhere. And we must now diligently seek the knowledge of God."

These are the words of Dr. Charles Malik, former president of the General Assembly of the United Nations. (Guideposts, May 1961) Dr. Malik gives us much food for thought.

America today is fighting a "cold war" on two fronts. She faces not only missiles and struggles of international conflicts, but also the inner struggle to preserve in our nation the moral purity and strength, the goodliness, which is the basic foundation of our national strength and our American way of life.

The signs of this inner war of morality are too obvious—and too frequent — for us to ignore: the flood of obscene literature that seems to be swallowed up as fast as it can be put out, the rapid increase of broken homes and divorce, the rising crime rate, the growing obsession for material luxuries at any cost, the increasing philosophy of "What's in it for me?".

Of all the wars our nation has fought, of all the struggles in which we are now involved, this home-front battle is by far the most important and the most dangerous of all. America, with good reason, is very much engaged in the fight against atheistic Communism.

But no matter what the outcome of our international situation may be, if America loses the war of morality and godliness, then she has lost everything. To fight to safeguard our national way of life and our beliefs and our principles is a foolish waste, unless-and-but unless we make certain that we preserve within our nation the things we are trying to safeguard.

There is only one "army" that can win this inner war - we, who are the people of America. Every war, no matter on what scale it may be fought, basically involves individual people doing their individual jobs - doing them right and doing them consistently.

It is the same with our war of morality - the outcome depends on you, on your own personal morality and godliness. It has been said that "what the individual does the nation becomes.".

What will America become, judging by your life?

10th Artillery Marks Its 44th Anniversary

Organization and Mission Make Unit Unique in Army

The organization and mission of the 2nd Howitzer Battalion, 10th Artillery, 1st Infantry Brigade, which celebrates its 44th Anniversary tomorrow with an open house, is one which places the unit in a unique class by itself.

The primary mission is to furnish support to The Infantry School. The unit fulfills many and varied missions, but the ultimate objective it to insure that the students receive the background and terminology necessary for understanding and applying the principal missions of the artillery with those of the Infantry when support fires are needed in combat.

In accomplishing this mission, the battalion is continually engaged in demonstrations such as firing service practice for students; close support to combined-arms actions with fire and manpower; and static displays of conventional and atomic capable weapons.

Moreover, members of the battalion participate in many demonstrations for distinguished visitors, both military and civilian, of this nation and our Allies.

Operating under a normal table of organization and equipment (TO&E) would be insufficient to fulfill its mission. Therefore, the 10th Artillery's normal TO&E has been augmented with a special which adds modern up-to-date artillery pieces capable of rendering firepower greater than that of a division artillery.

With this augmentation, the 10th has 77 artillery pieces which comes with a king-size price tag of $3,663,128.

For a closer look at this battalion's composition, a brief on each battery is necessary. This will show clearly what makes it most unique and the only one of its kind in the Army today.

In Headquarters and Headquarters Battery the S-3 Section plans and schedules the practical work to the battalion to its fullest capabilities. They have the responsibility of coordinating the artillery firepower for such projects as Joint Civilian Orientation Conferences (JCOC), service practice for students at The Infantry School, and obtaining clearances for movement of equipment for static displays. These are but a few of their major responsibilities.

Then there are the S-4 and Ammunition Sections with their responsibilities. The Ammunition Section assures delivery of the right type of projectile and fuse to the right place at the right time. Even the blank ammunition used by Battery A (Honor Guard) in firing reports and salutes is supplied by this 3 man section.

The Radar Section provides the battalion with radar. Primarily built for the purpose of locating hostile weapons, its secondary missions include radar gunnery, plotting unobserved Artillery fires, airplane vectoring, ground observation, and improving firing charts in the separate batteries.

This set (AN-MPQ-10) is not normally found in an organization of this size, but for support purposes, the "Q-10" is a very necessary item of equipment. It is one of the many major pieces of equipment used for static displays by the 10th Artillery for the students at The Infantry School.

The newly added Electronic Ballistic Meteorological Section, commonly call Metro Section, provides the 10th Artillery with its own "weather bureau." Correct weather data received from this section provides for more effective use of artillery weapons.

Battery A, The Infantry Center's Honor Guard Salute Battery, has still a more unique mission within the battalion's mission. Not only do they render direct support to school training problems, they also fire the post retreat cannon daily, fire salutes for visiting dignitaries and at various ceremonies throughout the Third Army Area.

According to Col. (Ret.) Dennis Moore the Honor Guard fired a perfect salute last year at the welcoming ceremony for Major Gen. Hugh P. Harris, commanding general of Fort Benning. Col. Moore is the former commander of the 3rd Infantry Regiment, Fort Meyer, Virginia, from which the honor guards are selected for ceremonies in and around Washington.

In order to accomplish their "mission within a mission" Battery A has enough weapons to provide artillery firepower which is more than double that of a normal 105mm howitzer battery. It is the only one of its kind in the Army.

Battery B adds its heavy artillery pieces to complement the battalions uniqueness. Their equipment has been displayed on TV and numerous other static displays and occasions. This battery's firepower has been demonstrated before hundreds of students during their artillery prase of Infantry training.

This training familiarizes the students with the types of weapons and projectiles available to the Infantry in various situations and conditions.

Battery C also supplies the battalion with heavy artillery pieces plus anti-aircraft weapons. The anti-aircraft weapons are in the form of twin self-propelled 40mm guns. The number and wide variety of weapons in this battery gives it the distinction of also being the only one of its kind. It is capable of rendering from close direct support to far behind the lines nuclear support (using the 8 inch howitzer) plus more than adequate anti-aircraft coverage.

Battery D adds the Honest John Rocket and launcher to the 10th Artillery's arsenal. The Honest John gives this unit its extra nuclear punch because of its greater range. It is one of the many familiar items used on static displays and in Artillery demonstrations.

Battery B, attached to the 10th Artillery from the 29th Field Artillery (Searchlight), plays a vital part in fulfilling the battalion missions. The searchlights can pinpoint a target at more than 10 miles and can illuminate an area at an even farther distance. They are also used in night illumination problems given by the Ranger Department of The Infantry School.

In the missions of the 10th Artillery, the why of it's organization can be seen. The uniqueness is in their missions, the number of weapons per battery, the wide selection of weapons, the firepower capabilities; all of these combined. When batteries, such as the ones aforementioned are combined, a most unique and composite battalion is formed.

The 10th Artillery Crest

Symbolic of its' past history and meritorious service, the 10th Artillery possesses a coat of arms which was designed in 1923. It consists of a red shield with a rock, denoting the "Rock of the Marne" resting on two gold cannons. The upper left-handed segment of the shield shows a winged centaur messenger holding a bent bow and arrow, representing a weapon of the 6th Field Artillery from which the 10th Artillery was formed.

Schedule of Events

Members of the battalion have scheduled Organization Day festivities tomorrow for themselves and their guests, aimed at all ages.

The full day of events will begin with an open house from 8 a.m. to 1 p.m.

A five mile run with six contestants from each battery, competing; plus a physical training (PT) test and grenade throw with one contestant per battery, will be held from 8 to 9 a.m. Following that, from 9 to 9:30, will be a dog show performed by personnel of the 28th Infantry Scout Dog Platoon and their dogs. At 9:30, one 105mm howitzer section per battery offers crew competition for 30 minutes. For 15 minutes thereafter, there will be judging of one contestant per battery on the manual of arms, military knowledge and appearance with the winner being named "Outstanding Soldier."

The pie eating contest, scheduled for 10:15, should be interesting to all. The winner receives . . . yes, a pie.

Other events scheduled for the morning include an M-1 rifle assembly contest between the battery first sergeants; a .45 calibre pistol assembly contest between the battery commanders; a contest between drill teams of each battery; a display of equipment; a driving contest; and jeep rides.

There will be 30 minutes of movies, especially for the children, at 9:30 and 10 a.m. Presentation of awards trophies, and medals from 11:30 to 11:30 will close the mornings festivities.

After lunch in the individual battery mess halls, all will be treated to a baseball game between the 10th Artillery "Redlegs", and the 554th Engineer Group. The game starts at 1:30 and will close the unit's Organization Day celebrations.

History of the 10th Dates Back to 1917

The 10th Field Artillery Regiment was originally formed on June 1, 1917, from elements of the 6th Horsedrawn Field Artillery at Fort Douglas, Arizona.

In November, 1917, the 10th moved to Camp Green, and was attached to the 3rd Infantry Division. Through both World Wars and the Korean Conflict, the 10th Artillery remained an organic part of the 3rd Infantry Division.

In May 1918, the unit entered WW I in support of the 38th Infantry Regiment in the Chateau Thierry sector of Northern France. The 10th faced its first actual combat in helping repulse the infamous "German Peace Offensive" during the night of July 14 and 15, 1918. It was during this action, "The Second Battle of the Marne", that the 3rd Division acquired its title, "Rock of the Marne"; and the 10th Field Artillery Regiment was dubbed "The Rock's Support".

During the same night, Lt. Gen. George P. Hayes (Ret.), then Lt. Hayes, became the 10th's first Medal of Honor holder.

At the close of WWI, the 10th Artillery proudly displayed five campaign streamers and the French Croix de Guerre. Following the war, the unit performed occupation duty in Germany.

In August 1919, it returned home to garrison duty at Fort Lewis, Washington. It was during this period (1922) that the Coat of Arms of the 10th was created. In October, 1940, the 10th Field Artillery Regiment was redesignated the 10th Field Artillery Battalion.

During WWII the battalion provided fire support in all ten of the 3rd Division's campaigns. The 10th participated in four major assault landings and supported five river crossings. These were the Rhine, Doubs, Volturno, Main, and Muerthe.

On February 3, 1945, Cpl. Forrest E. Peden sacrificed his life heroically and became the second member of the unit to be awarded the nation's highest award, The Congressional Medal of Honor. Peden Field, Fort Benning, was named in his honor.

The battalion returned from Europe in August, 1946, and was stationed at Fort Campbell, Kentucky. In June, 1948, it was transferred to Fort Devens, Massachusetts.

In August, 1950, the 3rd Infantry Division was ordered to Korea. Immediately, the 10th Artillery was released from Fort Devens and reassigned to the 3rd Division. During the action in Korea, the 10th rendered direct support to the 7th Infantry Regiment. The battalion participated in five campaigns. At the end of the conflict, the 10th returned to Fort Benning with the 3rd Division.

On May 28, 1957, Battery B, 10th Artillery, was redesignated Headquarters Battery, 2nd Field Artillery Battalion, 10th Artillery. On the same order, Batteries A, B, C, D, and Service, 2nd Field Artillery Battalion (Rocket-Howitzer), 10th Artillery were activated.

The unit was then attached to The Infantry School Troop Command. They remained so assigned until July 8, 1958, at which time the 1st Infantry Brigade, Col. Lloyd B. Ramsey commanding, was activated.

They then became a part of the 1st Brigade which is presently commanded by Col. Charles T. Horner, Jr.

The most recent redesignation of the unit occurred in May of 1960 when the 2nd Field Artillery Battalion, 10th Artillery, 10th Artillery became the 2nd Howitzer Battalion (105mm-155mm), 10th Artillery. There was a change of command at the same time. Lt. Col. Edgar M. Sinclair replaced Lt. Col. James E. Echols, Jr., as battalion commander. He still remains the unit's commander.

Battery B, 29th Artillery (Searchlight), currently attached to the 10th and commanded by 1st Lt. Henry H. Hair, III, was organized in August of 1918 at Camp Funston, Kansas. At that time it was known as Battery B, 29th Field Artillery.

Their present designation was made on June 2, 1958. The unit was last activated on June 21, 1958, at Fort Benning, and at the same time was attached

Dental Tea Welcomes Mrs. Lefler

The post Dental Wives met for their annual farewell tea recently at the home of Mrs. Stuart M. Mitchell. Hostesses assisting Mrs. Mitchell were Mrs. H. Frank Sawyer, Mrs. Walter Bolhat, Mrs. Jerry Beuchum and Mrs. Rodger Berry.

The tea table was covered with a moss green linen cloth and centered with fresh pineapple baskets which held melon balls and assorted fresh fruit.

At one end of the table a miniature farewell banner was centered over replicas of the various modes of transportation that will be used by departing members of the group. Mrs. Frank C. Jerbi served punch from the silver punch-bowl which was placed at the other end of the table.

Corsages were presented to the ladies present who will be departing.

Mrs. Billie B. Lefler was welcomed to the group.

The Ladies of The Student Brigade gathered at the Custer Terrace Officers' Open Mess recently for their last luncheon of the season.

Program, decorations, invitations, finance, and hospitality functions, were accomplished respectively, by the wives of the 4th Student Battalion, 2nd Student Battalion, Infantry School Battalion, 5th Student Battalion, and brigade head quarters.

The ladies were seated at tables centered with lovely potted plants.

Special guests, Mrs. A. D. Surles Jr. and Mrs. Julian H. Martin, were introduced by Mrs. Otto B. Koch Jr. and were each presented with a plant. Mrs. Martin bid the ladies farewell.

After luncheon, the ladies visited and chatted about vacation plans for summer months.

Mrs. Antonio Mendiola was the recipient of the door prize for the occasion, a potted plant.

Dennis O'Neill Review Slated For Crain Hall

Crain Hall will present "The Dennis O'Neill Revue" — a scintillating show direct from Broadway, on Friday, June 9, 1961, at 8 p.m.

The show consists of the MC, Dennis O'Neill, a television personality; Ritchie Case, young comic who has appeared on the Jack Paar show; Julie Taylor, Playboy Bunny Girl, with a showstopping act; Lydia Lane, internationally known artistic dancer, of the Latin Quarter and Palace Theater in New York City; Lisa Carol, delightful 20-year old with a novelty act; and the Ernie Krickett Trio.

Members may call Crain Hall, 5-4910, for reservations.

The Post Womans' Club Schedule Of Activities

While this column is designed primarily to give you a current picture of upcoming activities of the Woman's Club, I am using the space this week to briefly explain what the club is, its aims and activities.

Designed to meet the needs of the wives of the married officers at Fort Benning, the Woman's Club can be divided roughly into three major categories beginning with welfare, which includes everything from providing drinks for children participating in the Bicycle Safety Rodeo, to scholarships, therapy for handicapped children, and donations to needy families.

The second category, and the area where most members participate, is the activity schedule. Classes in cake decorating and conversational French are just two of the variety of informal education-al activities offered by the Woman's Club.

The Pre - Kindergarten School, as well as the School of Dance and Music are activities sponsored by the club for children of post personnel.

Special programs, which include the luncheons, breakfasts, and teas which are open to all members of the club, are the third part of the program which is designed and executed by the Army wives.

Each time you visit the Thrift Shop, you are enjoying a two-fold experience: the shop affords post personnel a center to buy and sell merchandise without exorbitant handling fees, and at the same time, the money raised by the Thrift Shop is poured back in to post homes through welfare projects.

The new board of the Woman's Club is busy preparing for another full year of rewarding, educational and enjoyable activities for not only members, but everyone at Fort Benning.

To Mrs. Clarkin Infantry Board Tea Bids Adieu

The Infantry Board ladies hostessed a farewell tea June 25 honoring Mrs. Thomas R. Clarkin who has been president of the ladies group. The Azzio Room of the Main Officers Open Mess was the scene for the afternoon affair.

The tea table, bolding the silver punch bowl, tea sandwiches and petits fours, was centered with an attractive floral arrangement of a pyramid of mums and set off with silver candelabra.

A farewell gift from the ladies was presented to Mrs. Clarkin by Mrs. Earl F. Holton. Col. and Mrs. Clarkin and family are leaving Fort Benning for a new assignment in Viet Nam.

Pouring for the lovely tea were Mrs. William M. Summers, Mrs. Richard C. Wittmann and Mrs. Jack B. Mathews.

Woman's Club Diary

The Woman's Club of Fort Benning has just installed a brand new board of officers who will be directing, planning, and programming a myriad of activities for the 1962 plus members of the club during the coming year.

Newest of these is an officer who was elected to the board to assist and instruct the president in matters concerning procedure and business. She is the parliamentarian, Mrs. Dion Johnson, author of the Bayonet etiquette column, a regular feature.

Jenni is a native of Valley Forge, Pennsylvania, and a graduate of Penn State, where she majored in art with a minor in speech. Since college, Jenni's life has been full of one activity after another, in such rapid succession that most wives, like myself, suddenly feel very unambitious and drab, by contrast.

Following graduation, Jenni studied the summer in Europe, then enrolled in graduate school at Temple University in Philadelphia. While there, she had a part-time job with station WFIL-TV, but the job soon grew to continuity director, and school was out.

Jenni then met Capt. Johnson, a West Point cadet. The following December she was wed, and traveled to Fort Benning, while her husband attended Ranger and Airborne Schools. Then they were off to Fort Lewis and following that, Fort Wainwright in Alaska.

There Jenni had a radio program, and, "apparently I was in need of help, because the local Toastmistresses in Fairbanks invited me to attend". Obviously not in need of much help, Jenni was soon appointed to an office in the International Toastmistresses Club. However, Capt. Johnson was ordered back to Fort Benning, and Jenni found she couldn't accept the office unless she was a member of a local club.

Finding none here, she founded a club in the Fort Benning-Columbus area. The club just received their charter two weeks ago! Jenni was the first president.

Speech is by no means her only interest. She is an expert in duplicate bridge, as well as the fencing instructor for the Woman's Club. She and her husband have also taught their three children aged two, three and five, to fence.

Capt. Johnson will go to Korea in the latter part of the year, and Jenni and the children will return to his home in Portland, Maine. Perhaps the best description of Jenni came at a recent Toastmistresses meeting, when she was introduced as "The gal who is so full of steam and drive."

TSB Ladies Coffee Closes Out Season At Mrs. Joseph's

The ladies of Headquarters and the battalion commander's wives of The Student Brigade held their last coffee of the season recently at the home of Mrs. Vern L. Joseph. Co-hostess for the occasion was Mrs. John L. Gibbs, Jr.

The table was beautifully decorated in lovely yellow spring flowers. Mrs. Joseph poured coffee for the group in cups of imported Soyma ware.

After a short business discussion, conducted by Mrs. Otto B. Koch, Jr., the ladies adjourned.

Mrs. Benge Holds Communications Monthly Coffee

Orange Tiger Lillies were used in an arrangement at a recent coffee given for the wives of the Communications Department by Mrs. Charles Benge.

Mrs. Glen Gardner welcomed Mrs. Eugene Skaggs and said farewell to Mrs. Norman Miller. Mrs. Gardner also announced that the workers at the Thrift Shop for June would be Mrs. John Atkins and Mrs. Henry Edwards.

Newly appointed officers were Mrs. James Carter, Thrift Shop chairman, and Mrs. Francis Nugent, publicity chairman.

Mrs. James Carter, a recent member, was a guest.

Columbus College Prof. Is Toastmistress Guest

Miss Avis Gordee acted as Toastmistress during the May 25 meeting of the Fort Benning-Columbus Toastmistress Club.

The Topic-mistress, Mrs. Oscar P. Boyles, asked several members to speak extemporaneously on the subject, "What Do You Think is the Most Valuable Possession a Bride Can Have". There were four speakers on the program.

Mrs. W. J. Losee and Mrs. John S. McCord gave their enthusiasm speeches. Mrs. Losee spoke of the contributions to mankind of Dr. Tom Dooley in her speech, "Mexico: The Power of Love," and Mrs. McCord spoke of Texas in her speech, "My Home State."

Mrs. Edwin E. Passmore gave her research speech to the group, "Viet Nam-Battle front." Mrs. Dion Johnson gave a reading of several poems she authored along with her observations. The Speaker-of-the-Evening trophy, a silver goblet, was awarded to Mrs. Johnson.

Mr. Benjamin L. Henry, professor of speech at Columbus College, was the general evaluator for the program and the business meeting.

Mrs. Grace Woolf and Mrs. K. Johnson, previous members of Toastmistress, have recently affiliated with the club. Guests at the May 25 meeting were Mr. and Mrs. Henry, Mrs. A. F. Muscari, Mrs. F. H. Diggin, Mrs. Ernest Condino, Mrs. C. D. Hubbard, and Mrs. Linda LeGallais. Ladies interested in attending the June 8 meeting may contact Mrs. Dion Johnson at MU 9-4456 or Mrs. C. B. Ingram at FA 7-1476.

An Expert Says - Be Colorful

Is it ever right to color the truth?

The answer, if you're a woman, is an emphatic yes! The subtle use of color to enhance good features and disguise flaws is one of the most effective beautifiers known. And what higher compliment than beauty can you pay to the world at large — or to a particular man?

To make the world see you through rose - colored glasses, take this advice from Ruth Daly. She's fashion coordinator for American Cyanamid Company. In the course of her work, Mrs. Daly has come up with many bright ideas like the following:

Jewelry and clothing are cosmetics, and should be worn as such. Palefaces appear less so if pasted shades are worn near the face, more pallid by contrast with a very vivid red, with unrelieved black or white.

If you have any tendency to sallowness, avoid most browns, yellows and yellow - greens. Instead, wear blue or white near your face — a blouse, or just a string of pearls or turquoise-hued beads. Pearls, by the way, are particularly flattering to girls with delicate features.

For a really dramatic touch, wear a dress, neck scarf or blouse that matches your hair color as closely as possible.

Figures as well as face can be flattered in dozens of different ways by the shrewd use of color. Are you petite? Your dress should be a solid color, with contrasting accent touches in the form of jewelry, handbag or collar.

Bold checks or stripes, or blouse and skirt in different colors, make you appear even shorter than you are. If you're tall, spin the color wheel in just the opposite direction.

On the plump side? Give horizontal stripes a wide berth.

Tall and thin? Never nod your head up and down when the sales-girl shows you a costume with vertical stripes.

Not only do dark colors whittle the figure while light or bright colors spotlight excess pounds, but even the way you match your accessories to your costume can make you look slimmer or heavier.

If you tend to be hippy or heavy - legged, avoid matching pocketbook to shoes. Instead, cultivate "high level" interest by matching the color of your bag to a hat or scarf.

The buxom girl, of course, would do just the opposite. Hat, dress and shoes in the same color tend to make the wearer look taller and more slender—but counteract that "monotone" by a vivid splash of necklace and gloves in a different color.

Certain color combinations—black with touches of white, red with gold jewelry — look so "right" that they've become classic. But don't be afraid to experiment with less orthodox blends.

The jewel tones of blue and green, for example, look wonderful together. Combinations of pink and red beautified the paintings of Henri Matisse, acclaimed as one of the 20th century's leading decorative artists.

Avoid other color cliches. Redheads can look wonderful in many shades of red and pink — provided their own complexions aren't too florid. Many blondes steer clear of beige because they feel it washes them out, but clever use of eye shadow and rouge may provide the added color that will enable them to wear even the palest tans. Experiment — don't reject a possible color choice till you've tried the garment on.

Your best color is partly a matter of your own hair and skin coloring, partly a matter of temperament. No one's denying that olive - skinned brunettes are usually stunning in red . . . or that a fair, rosy-cheeked complexion seems even more flower - like against a forest green dress. But it's the hue in which you feel most attractive that enables you to come through with flying colors. Don't be afraid to build your wardrobe around one favorite color. It's a money-saver.

SIMPLE . . . Understated simplicity marks this tunic dress in a green muted plaid "Swing-a-Ling" fabric, designed with the young career girl in mind.

GAY PLAIDS. . . These gay, colorful plaid slacks are both washable and smooth fitting.

BODY MOLD . . . The "pebble crepe", made of a textured ratine acrylic fiber, molds perfectly to the body to make the sweater and pants combination one of sleek comfort.

David Roberts To Represent Baker At Traffic Council

David Roberts, 16, son of 1st Sgt. and Mrs. James Roberts, will represent Baker High School in Columbus at the National Traffic Safety Council this summer.

The meeting is planned to be held in either Honolulu or Phoenix, Ariz. The school was invited to send a delegate when its safety program was judged one of the two best in Georgia for the second consecutive year.

David, a junior, is a member of the Baker Student Council Committee on Traffic Safety, which administers the program.

Catholic Youth Catechetical School Date Set

A Catholic Catechetical School will be conducted at Fort Benning June 19 through 23.

Classes for children in the first through the eighth grades will be held from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. in the Catechism Classrooms in Buildings 1102 and 1103.

They will be taught by Vincentian Sisters of Charity from Mother Mary Mission in Phenix City.

Parents desiring to enroll children in the classes for the first time are requested to go to the office of the Main Post Catholic Chapel to complete application forms.

Children who have attended the classes before may be enrolled by telephoning the chapel. 5-2893. No applications will be accepted after June 11.

Bus transportation to and from the school will be provided.

Over $17,000 Is Saved With Ideas From 16 Taking Management Course

Each month approximately fifteen operation supervisors, officers, enlisted men and civilians, are chosen from the various sections throughout Fort Benning to attend a 10 hour course of management instruction.

The course of instruction is conducted by the Management Engineering Division, Comptroller Section, and is designed to give them the skill to design increased efficiency and decreased operation costs on the job.

Through lectures, discussion periods, laboratory work and films, the students are taught the preparation and analysis of the five basic tools of Work Simplification. These are: the Work Distribution Chart, the Flow Process Chart, Work Count, Motion Economy, and Layout Studies.

One requirement of the Work Simplification Course leading to a certificate of completion is the submission of a report of a management improvement affecting the student's area of responsibility which was implemented as a result of Work Simplification training.

These improvements may involve the elimination of duplication, unnecessary steps, or overlapping functions; the reduction of transportation distances; the reduction of waiting time of men, documents or materials; the increase in efficiency, productivity, morale or safety.

From February 15 to March 15, a class involved 16 supervisors representing the Adjutant General Section, Engineers, Ordnance, Purchasing and Contracting, Chemical, Finance and Accounting Office, Transportation, The Infantry School, and The Student Brigade.

From this group of sixteen students, sixteen ideas for improvement have been implemented of which fifteen have been installed to date. These improvements represent over $17,000.00 in estimated annual benefits in terms of man-hours eliminated, material and equipment released, and transportation distances reduced as well as many other benefits.

OCS Class Sets New Night Mark

The 52nd Officer Candidate Company, 5th Student Battalion, The Student Brigade, has broken the night firing record on Shea Range.

The candidates fired eight rounds of ammunition from the 25 and the 50 meter lines.

At the 25-meter line the company recorded a five plus mark out of a possible eight hits. The previous record was four plus out of a possible eight.

From the 50-meter line the officer candidates chalked up a two plus mark. The old record was one plus out of eight possible.

After the target firing, the range committee conducted a night firing demonstration using the latest techniques and weapons.

TSB REENLISTMENTS . . . Col. Otto R. Koch Jr., (R) director of the Department of Non-Resident Instruction at The Infantry School, accepts the quarterly reenlistment plaque for the school from Brig. Gen. A. D. Surles Jr., (L), deputy commanding general of the Infantry Center. Observing the ceremonies is Sfc Howard Rollins, brigade career counselor.

Col. McKee to Speak at Graduation At Post Children's Schools June 5

Col. William A. McKee, chief of staff of The Infantry Center, will speak at graduation ceremonies at the post Children's School June 5.

Approximately 243 eighth grade students will receive certificates at the 7:30 p.m. program in Faith School Auditorium.

Miss Cynthia Lee Rush, honor graduate, will talk on "My Country, Land of Liberty." She is the daughter of Major and Mrs. Raymond J. Rush. The runner-up for honor graduate, Miss Teri Lynn Fisk, daughter of Major and Mrs. Eugene N. Fisk, will speak on "My Country, Long May Freedom Ring."

Col. John M. King, deputy director of The Infantry School's Command and Staff Department and president of the Post Dependents School Council, will present the graduation certificates.

Engraved loving cups will be awarded to the two honor graduates and the winner of the Don C. Faith Award will be announced by Mrs. Hazel J. Scudder, superintendent of the Children's Schools. The Don C. Faith Award is given annually to the "best all around student" on the basis of leadership, character, scholarship and service.

Among those present for the event will be Brig. Gen. A. D. Surles, Jr., deputy commanding general of The Infantry Center.

The Girls Glee Club will sing "O Brother Man" by Ringwald and "The Sound of Music" by Rodgers. The Infantry Center Band also will play for the occasion.

Major Arthur C. Renfrow, Jr. post dependents school officer, will introduce the speakers of arrangements for the affair.

Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Edward A. Curran, Infantry Center chaplain, will deliver the invocation.

Following the graduation exercises a reception will be held in Faith Auditorium. Mothers of eighth grade students, under the direction of Mrs. William H. Birdsong, Jr., Mrs. Gustav M. Bacharach and Mrs. Cecil M. Sanders, are in charge of arrangements for the affair.

Book Store New Hours

General Gibb Honored at Review

'PASSING IN REVIEW' AT CEREMONY HONORING GEN. GIBB
Gen. Gibb, Right, and Gen. White Salute Colors

'Successor Will Keep Div Second To None,' Gen. Says in Farewell

BY CLAY LACY

The 2nd Infantry Division has said good-bye to Major General Frederick W. Gibb, its commanding general since February 8, 1960.

A division miniature review with personnel from Fort Benning in attendance honored the 52-year-old native of New York Monday afternoon at the 2nd Division's Headquarters parade field.

General Gibb has been assigned, effective Tuesday, to the Medical Holding Detachment of Martin Army Hospital, pending further orders. On hand for the farewell review in his honor were Brigadier Generals William L. Hardick, L. A. Walsh Jr., Charles H. White Jr., A. D. Surles and John E. Kelly.

General White took the review as commanding general of the 2nd Division with General Gibb as reviewing officer.

Behind the two generals stood the division Chief of Staff, Colonel Gustav M. Bacharach, and the general staff heads, Lieutenant Colonels Byrd Sergent, John B. Wine, Ralph H. Hughett, and Gabriel A. Ivan.

Ruffles, Flourishes

As ruffles and flourishes echoed over the green parade ground, a battery of 105-millimeter howitzers blasted a 13 gun salute in honor of General Gibb. Lieutenant Colonel Jack E. Compton, the division adjutant general, read a citation by the Third Army commander, Lieutenant General Paul D. Adams.

The citation from General Adams commended General Gibb for his outstanding leadership as commanding general of the 2nd Infantry Division during the Overseas Unit Replacement Program which already has seen one unit, the 11th Infantry, trained and sent to Korea; his outstanding contributions to the community relations between Fort Benning and the Columbus-Phenix City area, and his exemplary example of personal integrity which has set the model for the officers and men of the Indianhead unit.

A scroll from the major subordinate commanders of the division was presented also to General Gibb noting his fine qualities as a leader and a gentleman. General White paid tribute in a short speech to the departing officer before General Gibb gave his remarks.

'Duty Cannot Live With Selfishness,' Chaplain Tells Memorial Day Audience

". . . the fires of patriotism are kindled and kept aflame by such plain words as duty, sacrifice and honor."

These were the words of Chaplain (Captain) Frank E. Deese Tuesday as Fort Benning—and the nation—paused to honor the war dead at Memorial Day services.

"Eloquent are the silent appeals of these crosses," said the 11th Infantry chaplain at the Post Cemetery services. "Their mute testimonies bid us not to forget. Yet, it is our very nature to pause a moment, pay tribute and then move on with scant thought of the past because we are absorbed in the problems of the present.

'Curious Eyes'

"With duty done, with curious eyes for a moment we observe the resting places, and go on our way without weighing their significance.

"The years come and go. The voice of the prophet is often heard and often unheeded. Yet, do I warn us today that the fires of patriotism are kindled and kept aflame by

Language Program Starts at 1st Infantry

OVUREP Men Hope to Help Future Communication with Korean Citizenry

BY 1ST INF PIO

The 1st Infantry has initiated a large-scale instruction program in the Korean language.

It is hoped that this familiarization will allow personnel to converse with the Korean soldiers and civilians with whom the battle group will come in contact when the OVUREP unit arrives in Korea. The 1st is scheduled to depart next month for Korea to complete the last year of its training cycle.

Conversational

The language instruction is not meant to produce Korean language specialists, says Lieutenant George B. Cross, battle group education officer. It is geared to give personnel a basic understanding of conversational Korean and not formal Korean as taught in universities.

With the aid of language kits containing 25 records keyed to textbooks, personnel have found they not only can recognize Korean words, but can

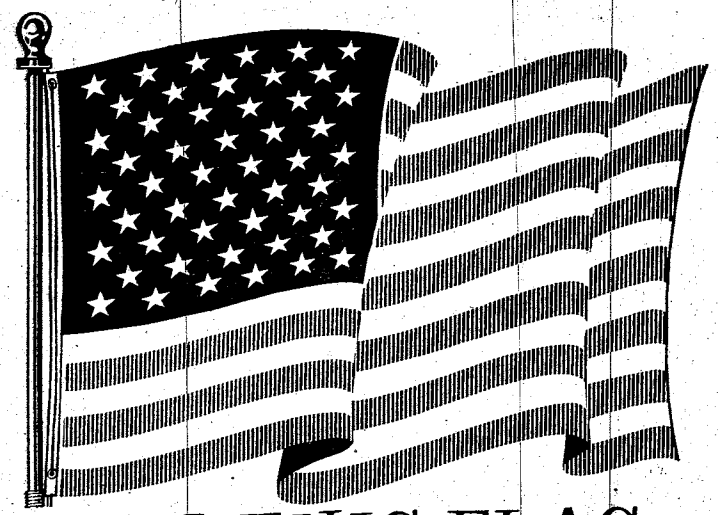
9th Infantry Prepares For Organization Day



By 9th Inf. PIO

The itinerary for the 9th Infantry's 1961 Organization Day will include a military review, a demonstration by the Infantry Center's Scout Dog Platoon and a sky-diving demonstration by members of the Fort Benning Sky Diving Club.

These and many other events are scheduled for the 9th Infantry's 2nd Battle Group Organization Day next week on June 10 beginning at 9 a.m. The annual celebration of the founding of the 9th Infantry will include activities both at Wetherby Field and in the 9th Infantry area.

All friends, members, former members and families of the 9th Infantry are invited to the battle group celebration. The unit, celebrating 106 consecutive years of Army service, was first formed in 1798. The 9th's 2nd Battle Group was constituted in June 1958 when the 2nd Division was reformed after a year's deactivation.

Other events scheduled for the 9th's anniversary celebration include rides for children on military vehicles, a birthday cake contest, a picnic, athletic contests, refreshments, and a weapons and equipment display.

FLY THIS FLAG

WHICH WE OFFER AT COST AS A PUBLIC SERVICE

1961 is the 100th Anniversary of the Civil War . . . and the words of the Constitution are more prophetic than the day when they were written: "One Nation, Indivisible, with Liberty and Justice for All." Enemies from without belittle the Spirit of Democracy. We must show them that the North and South are one. . . united in principle 50-States strong from Maine to Hawaii.

We believe every home should fly the flag on every important national holiday . . . of which there are more than 20. With this in mind we make this home flag kit available to all our readers . . . a big 3x5-foot fine cotton flag with durable stitched stripes, 6-foot brass jointed staff, metal window socket and cord halyard . . . everything you need to mount and fly the flag.

The estimated retail value is $6.95 . . . your cost only $3.25. Get your kit now by coming to our office at 17 W. 12th St. or order by mail using coupon at right.

'Custer's Cavalry' Keeps Aggressiveness In Modern-Day Role of Cunning 'Enemy'

By Peter Talischeff

The Army Training Test, designed to show the preparedness of a platoon, company or battle group for combat situations, demands the presence of an actual enemy unit.

For tests of units preparing for duty in Korea, Troop B of the 7th Cavalry was chosen to provide the simulated battle.

With the help of the Cavalry, commanded by Lieutenant Colonel Leonard L. Keene, division officials were able to appraise the quality of each member of the unit tested.

Aggressor Role

As the aggressors in this series of tests, the 7th Cavalry has proved its effectiveness. According to a member of the testing committee, "cavalrymen think fast and are able to take the initiative all the way down to the squad level. Because of the nature of their mission as a reconnaissance unit, they are well trained in sizing up a situation and reacting. They have been trained in maintaining constant radio contact with one another; a characteristic of primary importance during army training tests."

Having grown used to the role of the enemy, they have developed a wily aggressive manner, often producing an astonishing psychological effect on the soldiers being tested.

Despite the fact that the tests do not constitute a real war, aggressiveness on the part of the cavalrymen has more than once resulted in embarassing scenes of rout and confusion within the ranks of "friendly" units.

Front

During the defensive phase of recent tests, "friendly" troops established a 6,000 meter front. The cavalry set out to investigate the deployment of the units along this front with two jeeps. The purpose of this mission was twofold—to investigate and to report the deployment and its effectiveness, and to allow the friendly troops to detect the presence of an enemy force. The "aggressors" soon were fired upon, at which time the jeeps retreated, their mission fulfilled.

Umpires recorded the reaction of individuals being tested, noting how they reported the presence of aggressors. It is not unheard of that the infantrymen, grown aandius and nervous by their situation, should report a full scale invasiop and proceed to panic.

Should this happen, the cavalrymen are always able to adjust and react accordingly.

Provided that this did not happen, the cavalry prepared to take the initiative again. A simulated nuclear blast was set off on one of the flanks of the 6,000 meter front. The last was effected by $500 worth of explosives piled and arranged in such a manner as to create a mushroom cloud.

'POWs'

The blast established a hole in the front, through which the cavalry launched their first offensive. "POWs" were taken by the friendly forces. These prisoners were instructed to supply false information about the strength of the aggressive force. They also were instructed not to speak a word of English during the capture.

Interrogations conducted by the tested unit have, for example, claimed the capture of various "generals," "company commanders," and military "documents" which were nothing of the kind.

During one of these offensives, the 7th Cavalry was able to sneak a whole "company" through friendly lines under the cover of darkness. Their ability to move jeeps and trucks without lights or any kind of noise has been one of their most effective plays in these "war tests."

The defensive action of the Army Training Test is followed by an offensive section where the cavalrymen are instructed to hold a certain position in preparation for an attack by the tested units.

Recently, during one of the "attacks" the commanders of the "friendly" forces were dismayed at the announcement that they and their command headquarters had been annihilated by cavalrymen who had managed to slip through their lines.

This and similar feats by the men of the 7th Cavalry provide realism and an effective force against which units may be sure to use all the knowledge they have received in basic, advanced and subsequent training.

Cav Chaplain To Take Job At 'New' 1st

By Cav PIO

Chaplain (Lieutenant) Lee A. Smith, squadron chaplain of the 7th Cavalry, has received notification that he will be reassigned to the "new" 1st Infantry OVUREP unit on or about July 1.

Chaplain Smith, in the short time that he has been with the Cav, has marched with the "Troopers" on their end-of-cycle road march, toured the ranges and training areas in the back of the squadron commander's jeep. He also has crawled the infiltration course, and more recently, accompanied the squadron tankers to Fort Stewart for their annual tank gunnery shoot.

Chaplain Smith, his wife Nancy and their two children reside at 5-D, Battle Park.

Signal Platoon Aids School in Problem

By 122nd Sig PIO

A battle group area support platoon from Company B, 122nd Signal Battalion under the command of Lieutenant Francis Kowalski participated in Problem 6435 for The Infantry School recently.

The problem, which is held for students of the Infantry School, gives a detailed look at a battle group command post. Each major group item located at the command post is on display with explanations and demonstrations given on use of the equipment. Lieutenant Kowalski's platoon gave a demonstration on the Radio Wire Integration system plus displays on other equipment in the platoon.

7th Cav's High Scorers Receive Awards Today

By 7th Cav PIO

High individual and crew scorers in the 7th Cavalry's recent annual tank gunnery program conducted at Fort Stewart are scheduled to receive their awards today in a Squadron retreat formation.

Trophys will be awarded for the individuals snooting the highest score on Tables IV and V, and for the highest crew score on tables VIIIA and VIIIb. Tables IV and V consist of firing service ammunition at both stationary and moving targets. Tables VIIIa and VIIIb are combat tank crew courses fired both day and night, utilizing all the tanks weapons.

Four individuals are tied for high score, each with a score of 195 of a possible 200. They include Lieutenant Anthony J. Afano, Troop A, Lieutenant Ronald P. Richards, Troop C, Master Sergeant Cornelius Hobbs and Specialist Four William S. Smith, both of B Troop.

The high tank crew, consisting of Master Sergeant Hobbs, Specialists Four Charles R. Sergeant, Walter Borier and Bob R. Slay, amassed a grand total of 1800 out of a possible 2,000 points.

23rd Trainees Are Introduced To M-14 Rifle

By 23rd Inf PIO

Approximately 150 trainees received an introduction to one of the Army's newest weapons, the M-14 rifle, when Company A, 23rd Infantry, conducted a familiarization course on the rifle this week.

The instruction included disassembly, assembly and functioning as well as a detailed explanation of the new rifle's capabilities.

The familiarization course was tied in with four days of trainfire training.

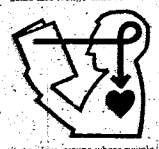
Plush Music Room, Recreational Facilities Make Sand Hill Library 'Cultural Outpost'

By Peter Tatistcheff

A rambling, one-story frame building that once headquartered General George S. Patton Jr., serves today as the 2nd Division's "house of culture."

Sand Hill's Branch Library Two, by helping satisfy the off-duty serviceman's recreational as well as cultural needs, is in effect, more than a library.



Services

Based around a wide selection of books, visitors will find 63 weekly magazines and periodicals, a newspaper from every section of the United States, a music room, television room and reference room for study of encyclopedias, atlases, dictionaries, almanacs and year books. A recent addition to the services is the regular Wednesday evening classical music concert established by the present librarian, Mrs. Patricia Anne Reeves.

The Army library program is established and maintained primarily to provide effective library service to all people of the military community.

Mrs. Reeves has chosen to interpret the words "effective library service" in a wide manner, presenting what is considered by many visitors to be the most attractively furnished and comfortable building on Sand Hill.

In the main reading room, sofas and lounge chairs are set in random groups where people may do serious reading or browse through their favorite magazines.

Reference Room

"In the reference room," says Mrs. Reeves, "the library's resources are utilized to meet specific needs. Most frequently the need is for a particular fact or for an answer to a particular question. As such, a reference room is vital for research." This room is actually the focal point of the library collection. Its study tables are frequently used by students writing term papers and by servicemen preparing for their GED College and High School tests.

A great deal of imagination has gone into the furnishing of the music room. There are approximately 260 records in the collection in stereo and regular hi-fi. The stereo components themselves are the best available.

People may listen to classical music, semi-classical, musical shows, motion picture scores in the air-conditioned room. Music-lovers who have records of their own but no facilities to play them may request that they be played on the library set.

Library History

Branch Library Two has been in its present location since November, 1956. At one time the books were housed in Service Club Two. In 1942, with the help of Mrs. George S. Patton Jr., the present recreational building across from the service club was constructed to serve as a library.

At the time, the surrounding area was undeveloped. Upon the advent of the Sand Hill swimming pool, however, the noise forced the collection to move again.

In 1956 it reached its final home, the building which in the '40s was known as General George S. Patton's headquarters.

The library staff maintains a collection of approximately 13,000 books, from fiction to biography to history and vocational training manuals. A list of current best-selling fiction and non-fiction is posted, showing which new books have been received and which are still on order.

The books on the contemporary military reading list, which are required reading for most careermen are always available.

Arrivals

One officer and five enlisted men joined the 9th Infantry this week. Lt. Ralph Dunn reported to the battle group and assigned to Company A. Two of the enlisted men were assigned to the 9th's Headquarters Company. They were Master Sergeant Clyde Martin and Sergeant Leslie Staley.

Platoon Sergeant Roscoe Huff joined Company E. The remaining two men went to the 9th's Company D. Specialist Five Willa Hollingsworth and Sergeant Ernest Hayes were assigned to Company D.

Sergeant First Class George Smothers recently was assigned to Company A, 122nd Signal Battalion.

Prior to his coming to Company A, Sergeant Smothers was assigned to the 220th Signal Support Company in Boblingen, Germany as a radio platoon sergeant.

Promotions

Two 9th Infantry second lieutenants received their silver bars denoting promotion to first lieutenant. Lt. Nelson L. March, battle group public information and education officer, and Lt. William Viehman, a member of the Battle Group Instruction Team, received their new rank from the battle group commander, Colonel James L. Osgard. The two new first lieutenants have been members of the 9th Infantry since March, 1960.

Promoted to Captain in the 122nd Signal Battalion was Lt. Harry E. Duensing.

The bars were pinned on by Battalion Commander Major Earl LeVier, and Captain John Petorock, assistant division signal officer.

Captain Duensing has been the Division Photo Officer since his arrival in the division in July 1960. He received his commission through ROTC from Iowa State College, where he also was awarded a Bachelor of Science degree in Agriculture.

Captain Duensing has five and one half years of service. He has attended the Signal Officers Basic Course at Ft. Monmouth, N.J., Fixed Wing Aviators Course at Fort Rucker, Ala., and the 7th Army Instrument School in Stuttgart, Germany.

A CAUTIOUS WELCOME . . . Two students of Akido, the art of self-defense, extend the traditional greeting prior to grappling via hits, kicks, blows and throws. Lieutenant Boulas, right, faces PFC Davis as Akido instructor Specialist Five Brown keeps a watchful eye.

TAKE THAT . . . Lieutenant Boulas displays the grace of Akido as he flips the 200-pound PFC Davis, using only a wrist flip in conjunction with body movement. Note the ballet type foot movements of Lieutenant Boulas who has just thrown his opponent completely over his shoulder.

DOES THAT HURT? . . . It very well could, since one blow in Akido is capable of killing an opponent. This hold, as applied by Lieutenant Boulas, right, on PFC Davis, has been used to counter a reverse bear hug and is used to gain movement necessary to throw opponent.

Lieutenant L. A. Boulas Qualifies in Akido

By Clay Lacy

A 2nd Infantry Division officer became the first member of the Indianhead to be awarded a certificate of completion in the ancient art of Akido Monday evening.

Lieutenant Leonard A. Boulas was presented his certificate at Briant Wells Field House by Akido instructor George D. Brown.

To qualify for his certificate Lieutenant Boulas has been training for a three and one-half month period learning the intricacies of this art of self-defense. He was tested by Brown in the six basic Akido steps prior to receiving his certificate.

Nobility

First introduced in Japan in the year 1120, Akido was initially revealed only to the nobility of the Japanese empire. The art of Akido is interpreted as "the spirit that carries the mind, and controls the body." In other words, bringing your movments to fit in with your opponent's movement.

The art is not taught as an offensive weapon, although many of its 2,664 different hits, kicks, and blows may be used offensively. But, primarily, the art is one of self-defense.

The Akido club here at Fort Benning is the only one in the U. S. Army that is recognized by Akido Headquarters in Tokyo, Japan. Specialist Five Brown has studied not only Akido but also many other Japanese arts while stationed in the Orient.

For Lieutenant Boulas, the art of Akido fell right into his rugged schedule of body conditioning and development which began with Officer Candidate School in 1958, followed by Airborne and Ranger training. The 25-year-old native of Elmira, New York, is assigned to Headquarters Company of the 11th Infantry and will go with the 11th to Korea next year under the Overseas Unit Replacement Program.

Exam

For his examination in practical work in Akido, Lieutenant Boulas was matched against another six-footer in fine physical shape, Private First Class Lawrence W. Davies of the 5th Student Battalion has also studied Akido for three months and offered Lieutenant Boulas keen competition.

Akido differs from Judo, in that it is not a sport such as Judo, and each time a hold, kick, throw or blow is to be used in Akido both the man using the offensive and his opponent must know what to expect. When this is not done, accidents will occur since one blow in Akido is capable of killing an opponent.

Thus, Lieutenant Boulas faced Private Davies and announced his first blow. With deft movements, he then parried a forearm smash from Davies and using the leverage and movement of Davies body, forced him to the canvas ready for a death-dealing blow.

Before each of the six Akido basics, Lieutenant Boulas would announce his plan of action and then, in lightning fast, motion, would proceed to floor his opponent. Height of training for Akido students is to be able to handle many opponents simultaneously.

The Akido club meets Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays at 6:30 p.m. each week at the Briant Wells Field House. As instructor Brown points out in his Akido pamphlet: "With the knowledge of Akido, you will be a much bigger man. It is a big man that can walk away from someone that insults him no matter how small in stature he is."

cers; non-commissioned officers and their wives, were hushed as General Gibb stepped to the microphone. In firm voice he told the gathered throng:

"Some have said this is a sad occasion. It is not. After all, we come and we go. I am sure that my successor will keep the 2nd Infantry Division just as I have always tried to keep it, and that is truly 'Second to None.'"

He added, "It is gratifying to know that in my absence these last few months our division has not faltered and those in command have kept it at the same level we all desire—'Second to None.'"

Review

Following General Gibb's speech, the units passed in review with unit sergeant majors taking their place behind the general after their units had marched past. General Gibb shook hands with each of these immediately following the review.

An official reception was staged for General and Mrs. Gibb in the Supper Club of the Main Officers Open Mess following the miniature review at division headquarters.

A 1933 graduate of the Military Academy at West Point, General Gibb saw action in World War II in Europe. His first assignment as a new second lieutenant took him to the 2nd Infantry Division when he was assigned to the 20th Infantry Regiment at Fort Francis E. Warren, Wyoming. Some 20-odd years later he returned to the division, this time as its commanding general.

9th Infantry Dayrooms Revamped

By 9th Inf. PIO

Dayrooms in two 9th Infantry companies underwent complete revamping last week as old furniture and equipment were replaced with new items.

The dayrooms in both Headquarters Company and Company D in the Ninth have taken on a new look with the new furnishings which will do much to strengthen the morale of the members of the two units.

The new items include pool tables, ping pong tables, floor lamps, table lamps, colorful fiber rugs, wrought-iron lounge chairs with foam rubber cushions, coffee tables, bridge tables with chairs, and new television stands. In addition Company D gained a new television set and a new stereo unit.

Captains Sam Younger and John Trickey, commanders of Company D and Headquarters Company respectively, believe that a clean and well-equipped dayroom is an essential for all companies for the morale and welfare of the men.

Promotions Contagious At 23rd Inf?

By 23rd Infantry PIO

If officers begin requesting transfers for duty in the 23rd Infantry's Company C, it's no wonder.

Within a 13-day period the company commander was upped to major, and two first lieutenants received captain bars.

It all began when then-Captain Albert H. Becker left for TDY at Fort Lee, Virginia, and turned the company over to then-First Lieutenant David W. Stallings, the executive officer. Lieutenant Stallings had been in command only a few days, when his promotion to captain came through and he was transferred to the 23rd Infantry's S-3 office.

New Captain

First Lieutenant Michael J. Lally Jr. then took over company operations. While serving in this capacity he received a promotion to captain.

Captain Becker returned shortly thereafter and had hardly become re-settled in his office when he was informed companies for the morale and he had been elevated to the rank of major.

Division Bible School Plans Are Complete

Set June 12-21 At Sunday School

By Div PIO

Plans for the 2nd Infantry Division's Vacation Bible School have been completed, Mrs. B. B. Littlejohn, Director of Christian Education announced.

The school will be held at the Sand Hill Sunday School, June 12 through June 21, with daily sessions from 8:30-11:30 a.m.

A nursery for the children under three years of age will be provided in building 3195.

Bus transportation will be provided for the teachers and pupils who live in the Capehart, Custer Terrace, Upatoi and Benning Park housing areas. Families who live in the Pine Terrace Apartments will also be served by the Sand Hill Bus.

In response to the appeal for workers, Mrs. Littlejohn reports that 88 volunteer workers are busy perfecting plans for the Vacation Bible School program.

However an additional seven persons are needed to help. Volunteers may call the Sand Hill Sunday School, LI 4-7306.

Sunday School pupils have already received registration blanks to be completed by the parents. Registration will also be conducted from 9 a.m. to noon June 6, 7, and 8 in building 3195, Sand Hill Sunday School. Parents are to register for their children.

As a climax to the eight days of Vacation Bible School, there will be a picnic on the afternoon of June 22 for all parents and children of the Sand Hill Sunday School and Vacation Bible School. The picnic will be held on the grounds of the school.

All families are being asked to bring a picnic lunch. The food will be spread on tables that will be arranged on the grounds at the area.

An added attraction will be the Merry-Go-Round that will be furnished by a local bottling company.

Mark the day of June 22 on your calendar. This is an event that you and your children will not want to miss.

Departures

Two 7th Cavalry officers, Captains Norman D. Kelley and Richard H. Schuessler, have received orders to attend the Advanced Armored Officers Course at Fort Knox in August. The course is of nine months duration.

Moving Men and Supplies Is Role of 13th Transportation Battalion

Unit's Mission Includes School, Support With Personnel Carriers

By Div PIO

"To provide transportation for tactical and logistical movement of personnel and cargo of an infantry division" is just part of the mission of the division's 13th Transportation Battalion.

Two truck companies, Alpha and Bravo, have this task as their specific mission, and to carry it out, it is not uncommon to have drivers on call or dispatch from 4 a.m. to well past midnight, says Major Donald W. Alberti, the transportation battalion's S-3.

"Requests for such continuous truck support is not at all unusual," he added.

For one example of its flexibility and maximum utilization, some 85 trucks were employed to meet requirements of 180 vehicles in one day, carrying an Overseas Replacement Unit to an orientation and returning another battle group from the field after taking an Army Training Test.

Milage

It is estimated that the transportation battalion's trucks log some 36,000 miles carrying a company to rifle ranges and other points during eight weeks of Basic Combat Training.

And it is also estimated that 200,000 miles are rolled onto the big "deuce-and-a-halves" speedometers transporting an OVUREP battle group during its stateside tour.

But troop movement and carrying supplies aren't the entire roles of the 13th Transportation Battalion.

Company C, whose mission is "to provide certain combat elements of an infantry division protected mobility with armored personnel carriers capable of operating on roadways or cross country," is responsible for providing these track vehicles for the various battle groups of the division on occasions.

These occasions may be participating in an Army Training Test or to give a river crossing demonstration.

In addition, driver and vehicles may be given temporary duty assignments for demonstration purposes at other posts in the Third Army area.

Maintenance

Due to continual "runs," maintenance commands interest in the battalion and a monthly contest is held to keep up 'esprit.'

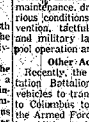
Driver's School

Another function of the 13th Transportation Battalion is the operation of the division Driver's Training School.

Termed the "Truck of the Month contest for which a plaque is awarded to the winning driver and mechanic combination, the competition begins at platoon level and continues through the companies to the battalion contest where the winner is named.

Among the criteria of the contest are first echelon maintenance, a knowledge of loading and lashing and all the road courtesies.

In this school, personnel from the various division units are trained to operate their unit's organic vehicles during a two-week course.



Subjects taken up in this course include first echelon maintenance, driving under various conditions, accident prevention, tactful driving, civil and military laws, and motor pool operation and organization.

Other Activities

Recently, the 13th Transportation Battalion employed 38 vehicles to transport personnel to Columbus to participate in the Armed Forces Day parade, in addition to having 125 men participate in the parade.

However, officers of the Whenever Needed" unit are quick to point out that functions of the battalion's operations, communications and maintenance sections are necessary to keep their vehicles on the move.

Airborne, Ranger, Special Forces Man, He Now Takes AIT With 23rd Infantry

BY 23RD INFANTRY PIO

Private First Class William R. Spratt has had enough training, responsibility and prestige for almost any three other men.

Ranger, airborne and Special Forces qualified, Spratt now is undergoing Advanced Individual Training with 23rd Infantry after a five-year separation from the Army.

Spratt first entered the service in 1953, taking his airborne training at Fort Campbell, Kentucky. Following jump school, he was assigned to the 82nd Airborne unit. He has 92 jumps to his credit.

But Spratt's quest for excitement and adventure didn't stop here. He applied for Ranger school and was assigned to Fort Benning for the grueling eight-and-a-half-week course. During this time, he received mountain training, jungle warfare instruction and desert survival.

Because he ranked in the top ten of his Ranger class, Spratt was eligible to apply for Special Forces training. "At the time," he explained, "only those who qualified at the top of Ranger and airborne classes could go into Special Forces."

Special Forces training took 26 more weeks, and Spratt says it was "much harder" than Ranger school. He learned hand-to-hand combat, map reading, reconnaissance work and how to survive in a wilderness for more than a week with neither food nor weapons. His training as a member of a Special Forces team included being dropped behind "enemy lines" to carry out missions of destruction and harrassment.

Upon completion of the course Spratt was assigned to the 77th Special Forces group at Fort Bragg, North Carolina, and remained there for more than two years. His unit commander was Lieutenant Colonel R. G. Holton Jr., who now is his battle group commander at the 23rd. Spratt was surprised to find that Colonel Holton would be his boss again, and he was even more surprised when the Colonel recognized him at Company E's orientation program at the beginning of the cycle.

Transfer

The highlight of Spratt's initial Army service was his transfer from Fort Bragg to Fort Benning, where he was made a member of a special detachment team. The team was assigned to the XVIII Corps, trained in reconnaissance photography and then departed on a tour of 15 countries to demonstrate the Army's then-new 7-10 parachute.

The 15 man detachment jumped in countries throughout Europe as well as in Australia, Japan, Alaska, Iceland and Greenland. "I'll never forget that Greenland jump," Spratt said. "A company commander there was jump qualified and was going along with us. Despite the cold weather, he told us that we could not wear wool liners and glove inserts. However, when he showed up at the plane he was wearing both the liner and the inserts."

Spratt left the Army in 1956, attended Bowling Green University for two and a half years and worked for Westinghouse in the electric computer department. He re-enlisted in the Army in January 1961, plans to make the service a career and hopes to do work in photography, his favorite hobby.

Benning Chaplains Meet At Sand Hill Chapel Four

By 9th Inf. PIO

More than 30 Fort Benning chaplains conducted their monthly chaplains' meeting at Chapel Four in the 9th Infantry area in Sand Hill May 25.

The primary business of the meeting evolved around discussion of character guidance classes in June for Fort Benning. Brigadier General Charles White, division commander, welcomed the chaplains to Sand Hill while attending the coffee preceding the meeting.

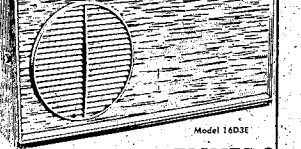
Chaplain (Lieutenant Colonel) Edward Curran, USAIC, presided over the session, which was attended by Colonel Gustav Bacharach, chief of staff; Chaplain (Major) James Fiser, division chaplain; Major George Armstrong, 9th Infantry executive officer, and Captain Thomas Austin, 9th Infantry S-2. Chaplain Curran is the acting post chaplain.

Chaplains (first lieutenants) Robert Harllee and Gerald Ristau, chaplains of the 23rd Infantry and Division Artillery, respectively, addressed the group concerning character guidance for this month.

The 9th Infantry's Chaplain (first lieutenant) Mace T. Jett served as the host for the hour-long conference. Company C of the 9th served the noon meal following the meeting.

Cav Mess Hall, Classroom Get Spring Sprucing

By 7th Cav PIO



Members of the 7th Cavalry recently renovated both the squadron class room and the Troop C mess hall.

The classroom building, originally designed as a recreation hall, has been used for subjects not adaptable for practical work or subjects more suitable for outdoor instruction.

A crew under the direction of Captain Richard O. Edwards, squadron S-3 (training and operations) officer, recently completely repainted the walls and ceiling of the classroom.

During the past two weeks, between Basic Combat Training cycles, Troop C's mess hall has been painted and the entire floor of the dining area has been covered with colorful tile.

Busy Schedule Awaits New Wives' President

BY MRS. FRANCES LALLEY

A busy schedule awaits our new president of the 2nd Division Women's Club for the coming year. Busy wearing many "Hats of Office" around Fort Benning, is our new president, the gracious Mrs. Louis A. Kunzig, wife of Colonel Louis A. Kunzig Jr., currently on duty in Washington, D. C.

Mrs. Kunzig, an Army daughter, was born in Nogales, Ariz. Her father was Colonel T. J. Cassidy, (deceased) of the Dental Corps. Her mother, Mrs. T. J. Cassidy, a frequent visitor at Fort Benning, resides in Tyler, Texas.

As an army daughter, Mrs. Kunzig enjoyed "tours" of Hawaii, Panama, various other states of the United States including Northwestern University at Chicago.

Active Daughter

She attended Brenau College, Gainesville, Ga., was a member of the sorority Alpha Chi Omega. She has been active in many post women's groups since her marriage, with special pleasure derived from the activities of Army Daughters.

She held the office of First vice-president of Army Daughters in the North Virginia Chapter, 1956-57. Currently she is president of the Fort Benning Army Daughters sponsored Tot Town Nursery Fund.

Future Projects

A few of the activities pending for the Women's Club include further planting around Kelley Hill, continuation of the dancing classes and perusal of the college students get - acquainted club idea. Further projects, and the list of committee chairmen will be announced following the next executive board meeting.

Mrs. Kunzig expressed her hope that the "Women's Club be a friendly place for newcomers to the 2nd Division to get acquainted . . . that it be a club for the benefit and enjoyment of all the ladies of the 2nd Division."

Family

Mrs. Kunzig, besides being active in women's activities, has a busy schedule at home with her family. Colonel and Mrs. Kunzig have four children: Louis A. III, age 20, a first year cadet at West Point; Thomas J., 13, graduating this month from the 8th grade, Faith School; Jean, 11 finishing the 6th grade, Faith School; and Robert A. 4, currently in pre-kindergarten.

MRS. KUNZIG

Dinner Guest

Lieutenant Colonel Munezo Kawamura of the Japanese Army was a dinner guest recently of Major and Mrs. Elmer D. Spence of the 15th Artillery. Colonel Kawamura was a classmate of Major Spence at the Associate course of the Command and General Staff college, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

Good-byes Said, Awards Given At Cav Party

By Div PIO

The officers and ladies of the 3rd Reconnaissance Squadron, 7th Cavalry recently gathered at the country club to bid farewell to two officers and their ladies and present the traditional baby cup and the famous Fatherhip Award.

At a brief ceremony Lieutenant Colonel Leonard L. Keene, Squadron Commander presented the typical armored triangular plaques to Captain and Mrs. William Cosgrove and Lt. Ernest E. Lanford Jr.

Following these awards Mrs. Richard H. Schuessler was presented a baby cup for her daughter Susan Carol who was born May 6, 1961.

The ceremony was terminated with the presentation of the Fatherhip award to Captain Schuessler by Lieutenant Frank O. Brown Jr., one of the two bachelors of the squadron.

Mrs. Hardick Receives Gift At Luncheon

The ladies of Headquarters Section, 2nd Infantry Division, met for luncheon at Villulas in Seale, Alabama, recently.

Some 45 ladies attended the event hostessed by Mrs. Byrd Sergent and the women of the G-1 section.

Newcomers welcomed into the group were Mrs. Robert J. Kirk, wife of Major Kirk, assistant G-1; and Mrs. Herman Park, wife of the finance officer for the Division.

Guests included Mrs. J. Grandy, Mrs. Sergeant's aunt; Mrs. F. Tully, mother of Mrs. H. A. Clark; and Mesdames E. E. Reardon, F. J. Spiegelberg and B. F. Parks.

Mrs. G. M. Bacharach presided at a brief meeting, presented Mrs. William L. Hardick with a farewell gift on behalf of the ladies of headquarters, and bade farewells also to Mrs. E. C. Dameron, Mrs. R. H. Luck, Mrs. D. L. Rooks, and Mrs. G. Iwan.

9th's Ladies Hold Coffee At Main Club

17th's Ladies Host Artillery Luncheon

Ladies of 2nd Division Artillery met at the Custer Terrace branch of the Main Officers' Open Mess recently for their monthly luncheon. Hostesses were ladies of the 17th Artillery.

The tables were attractively decorated with center strips of yellow tulle covered with red gladioli, gardenias, pink roses and ivy. The centerpiece on the head table was an arrangement of daisies, gardenias and ivy in a silver bowl centered with a maypole with ribbon streamers.

Mrs. Francis P. Sheridan was chairman of the luncheon and her committee chairmen were Mrs. James T. Harris Jr., Mrs. James R. Jess, Mrs. James R. Gorum, Mrs. Charles R. Lowe, and Mrs. George A. Kiner.

Mrs. Charles H. White Jr. introduced a new member, Mrs. Warner B. Cole, of the 15th Artillery. Farewells were said to Mrs. Vernon N. Wilson, Mrs. Arthur S. Metcalfe, Mrs. Richard S. Fleming, Mrs. Earl L. Duncan and Mrs. Floyd L. Tomlinson.

The program was a demonstration of flower arrangements by Mrs. Lincoln H. Barr, of the post florist. Mrs. Barr created three arrangements with permanent flowers using a brass scale, a spinning wheel and a brandy snifter.

Door prizes were won by Mrs. Jack E. Goodwin, Mrs. William H. Wilson and Mrs. Thomas B. Ponder.

Mrs. White announced that there will be no further luncheons until September.

87th Ladies Hear Details Of Adoption

The ladies of the 87th Infantry heard at a recent coffee that the cost of adopting a Korean orphan for one year will be $2.50 per lady or a total of $140.

The orphan will be selected through the Save the Children Federation of Connecticut.

Mrs. Robert Connor, wife of the battle group commander, announced that the adoption plans would be completed immediately. She also thanked the ladies for their work parties held at Martin Army Hospital.

Other projects of the 87th Infantry Ladies include a Thrift Shop work and plans for a 2nd Division Luncheon program in the fall.

The coffee was arranged by the ladies of Comhat Support Company, under the direction of Mrs. E. May.

Mrs. F. W. Blunk was welcomed to the group as a newcomer and Mrs. R. J. Sharp received congratulations for her two-week old daughter.

Other young "conquerors" born recently incude daughters of Lieutenant and Mrs. W. Jones Jr., and Lieutenant and Mrs. K. Melton, and a son to Captain and Mrs. H. Fuller.

The Normandy Room of the Main Officers Open Mess, scene of the coffee, was decorated with "home-grown" gardenias and roses.

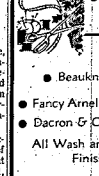
By 23rd Infantry PIO

The Army gained a total of 57 years' future service recently in a re-enlistment ceremony held at the 23rd Infantry trophy room.

Most of the ten men sworn in were Reserves or National Guardsmen on active duty talking trainfire instruction. The group included three sergeants, two specialist fives, four specialist fours and one private.



Four men asked to fill their own vacancies within the 23rd Infantry, two were assigned to Europe while the rest received duty assignments in the United States. Nine of the men joined for six years, and one man enlisted for three years.

87th Inf Men Complete Radio Commo School

Thirty-four men graduated from a Radio Communications School held for the 1st Battle Group, 87th Infantry by the 122nd Signal Battalion.

High man for the class was Recruit Raymond Pepper who had a 97.2 average for the school.

During the school, the men were taught proper radio procedures, tuning and aligning the radios they would use in the battle group. They also were taught how to write messages, how to jam radio frequencies and how to counteract enemy jamming of radio frequencies.

Army Enlisted Management Program Aids Career

By Div PIO

Editor's Note: The following article has been reprinted from the Rolling Review with additions from the 2nd Infantry Division Adjutant General Lieutenant Colonel Jack E. Compton.

To increase the effectiveness of the individual soldier in today's modern Army and to motivate highly qualified and trained personnel to seek the Army as a career are continuing objectives of the Department of the Army.

At the heart of the program is the Enlisted Evaluation System which provides a means for objectively evaluating individual job proficiency against Armywide standards.

WITH HONORS . . . Recruit William Ward, 87th Infantry, who graduated with honors from the 122nd Signal Battalion's radio course, is congratulated by his commanding officer, Colonel Robert Connor.

87th Inf Graduates 68 Communications Experts

By 122nd Signal PIO

Sixty-eight men graduated recently from the wire and radio classes of the OVUREP Communications School for the 87th Infantry conducted by the 122nd Signal Battalion.

Colonel Robert E. Conner, commanding officer of the 87th Infantry delivered the address. He stressed the importance of communications to the unit's mission.

Honor graduates of the two courses were Recruit Raymond L. Pepper with a score of 95.3 in the wire course, and Recruit William Ward with a score of 91 in the radio course.

The Schools

The Communications School consisted of three classes: radio, wire and message center. The radio and wire schools lasted two weeks and the message center school, three weeks. The officer in charge was Captain Martin Tibbet.

Men who attended the wire school, under the direction of Sergeant Howard Lee, were taught the proper technique of laying wire and splicing. They also were taught how to install and operate switchboards.

In the radio school, the men were under the direction of Sergeant Costello Haynes and were taught proper radio procedures, tuning, aligning, message writing, operating radio nets, and proper voice procedures. They were instructed on counteracting enemy radio jamming.

Message Center

During the first two weeks of the message center school the men became familiar with operating teletype machines and how to install them. They were instructed on how to write and route messages.

The third week was spent learning how to use crypto machines and codes.

This school was under the supervision of Sergeant First Class James Attenhoffer.

147 AITs End Training at 9th

By 9th Inf. PIO

The 9th Infantry's Company B, commanded by Captain Walter Ginger, graduated 147 Advanced Individual Trainees May 12 with Military Occupational Specialty 111.

Colonel James L. Osgard, commander of the "Keep Up the Fire" battle group delivered the graduation address to the light Infantry weapons graduates. Top awards were presented by Colonel Osgard to Private Robert Ely. Private Charles Houff and Private Ernest Lambert. Ely was top finisher on the division proficiency test, while Houff and Lambert captured high honors for the automatic rifle and machine gun, respectively.

Following graduation, 75 per cent of the Company B trainees departed for Germany. The remaining group are bound for Fort Campbell, Kentucky, where they will take airborne training.

Reenlistments

Sergeant First Class Thomas W. Borris, career counselor for the 9th Infantry, reenlisted four members of the battle group this week for a total of 21 years more time in the Army.

Specialist Five Robert Kloster, first cook for the 9th's Headquarters Company, reenlisted for three years for Regular Army unassigned. Sergeant Patrick Dillon, a member of the Ninth's Company A, signed up for six years.

The other two noncoms to reenlist are members of the 9th Infantry's Company E. Sergeants Jose Rivera and William Daily signed again for six years each.

Air Observation

Air observation was used when the 17th Artillery's Battery A conducted the second shoot of their current advanced Training Cycle. The air observation capability was provided by the 2nd Aviation company.

Incentives

Proficiency pay provides the more proficient soldiers, as determined by the Enlisted Evaluation System, an opportunity to become eligible for proficiency pay in amounts of $30 (P-1) and $60 (P-2) in selected military occupational specialties (MOS).

The Army's interest in raising the prestige of the noncommissioned officer led to the NCO-Specialist Program. The program identifies the NCO as primarily an enlisted commander of troops and the specialist as an enlisted individual whose technical competence is of primary importance.

E-8 and E-9 pay grades provide an additional recognition for senior enlisted personnel who carry very heavy responsibilities.

The PQS

Permanent promotions in the Regular Army enlisted structure were again authorized; the first time since the Korean War.

The Promotion Qualification Score is an evaluation score which will be announced by Department of the Army to establish eligibility for promotion consideration of enlisted personnel to grades E-5 and above. Use of the promotion qualification score by commanders is not mandatory this year.

The Army Enlisted Management Program is designed not only to select and reward those who excel in their jobs, but also to further their career development by providing opportunities for education and advanced training through the General Education Development Program.

Program Products

By-Name Assignment is another part of the program to identify reward and develop qualified enlisted personnel . . . to make better use of their skills by carefully assignment to positions. There is also an increased equality in selection for overseas tours by Army-wide consideration of eligibility for such duty.

Another area of vital interest to enlisted personnel concerns the program dealing with Stabilizing of Personnel. The purpose of this program is to increase personnel stability Army - wide by eliminating movements not absolutely demanded by military necessity.

Personnel Processing

To provide greater flexibility in enlisted utilization, the system was revised to allow the qualified enlisted man to influence to a considerable extent the management of his career.

A new program dealing with Personnel Processing has been added as a part of the Army Enlisted Management Program. This program gives attention to the entire field of processing and is recognition of the fact that this is an area where improved morale can result.

The Enlisted Classification System and the MOS structure is not a static tool. It is designed to reflect changes in Army organization and operational concepts.

In summary, the Army Enlisted Management Program has been designed to meet the rapidly changing requirements of the Army to man its combat-ready forces. It has contributed to the achievement of an Army with a large and increasing proportion of career soldiers with the highest level of peacetime combat effectiveness in United States history.

It is not a "set" program, but rather a "forward - looking" program to increase the effectiveness of the individual soldier while at the same time enhancing the attractiveness of the Army as a career.

Enlisted Evaluation System

In operation since January 1959, the Enlisted Evaluation System now extends to every corner of the globe where soldiers are stationed.

Basically, the system provides for an objective evaluation on an Army-wide basis of the proficiency of each soldier in his or her primary Military Occupational Specialty (MOS) and specific level or skill in this specialty.

Soldiers in grade E-4 (corporal or specialist 4) and above are evaluated by MOS evaluation tests and by supervisors' ratings recorded on a Commander's Evaluation Report (CER). These two instruments form the basis for composite scores which reflect the soldier's proficiency.

Test Controls

The system is operated under policy and guidance of the Deputy Chief of Staff for Personnel by the Adjutant General through the U.S. Army Enlisted Evaluation Center at Fort Benjamin Harrison, Ind. The center controls development of tests and scores and distributes test materials. Test questions are actually written by the service schools in conjunction with the United States Continental Army Command and the Chief's, Technical and Administrative services of the Army.

Tests are administered by more than 300 test control officers located at installations throughout the world. Test answer sheets and CERs are scored at the Evaluation Center with electronic equipment, and the individual results are reported to the field.

The system was geared to meet proficiency pay requirements in its initial implementation; however, it has been developed within a framework permitting its application in other personnel management areas.

Commencing with February testing, the composite test-CER results will determine each soldier's qualifications in his primary MOS. A score of 70 or above indicates that an individual is qualified and that his MOS has been verified.

Latest Word

Commencing with the May 1961 MOS Evaluation Testing Program the Promotion Qualification Score (PQS) System for use as an enlisted promotion criteria on a permissive basis is in implementation. In implementing this system, the following procedures will apply. Individuals will be tested in their Primary MOS as prescribed in AR 611-201 and current Department of the Army Circulars.

Those individuals who attain an evaluation score equal to or higher than the announced PQS for their grade and MOS will be considered fully MOS qualified for promotions. Attainment of this appointment eligibility requirement supplements but does not replace the criteria contained in paragraph 17a and 17b, AR 624-200. These criteria in AR 624-200 continue to apply.

It is stressed that meeting the criteria does not automatically qualify the individual for appointment to a higher grade. Final authority and responsibility for selection of individuals for promotion rests with the appointing authority.

Mandatory adoption of the Promotion Qualification Score (PQS) system is being withheld pending testing in all MOS and modification of current enlisted Evaluation System Testing procedures.

System Aids

The system aids commanders in identifying the best qualified soldiers in their units and in isolating those individuals who are properly classified. The underlying theme of the system is that it must assist the unit commander in selective personnel actions without being an administrative burden. At the same time, soldiers have been provided the opportunity to demonstrate to their superiors that they are, in fact, qualified to perform duties required of them.

The Enlisted Evaluation System has encouraged the career soldier to improve continually his skills and knowledge through off-duty study, and it provides recognition for the abilities of the well-qualified soldier.

With each quarterly test session, additional MOS are being included in the evaluation program.

17th Drivers Cited

Driver's Badges were awarded to two of Battery A, 17th Artillery's drivers. The awards were earned by Specialist Four Lowell T. Mullins and Specialist Four James W. Sivels. The drivers badge is based upon the performance of the driver who operates a vehicle for a period of 12 months without a traffic violation or accident.

Swimming Meet Set For Division Units

By Clay Lacy

The annual swimming and diving meet will be sponsored by the 2nd Infantry Division Special Services section June 19-22. It was announced this week by Captain Milton Lewis, division special services officer.

The event will be held at the Harmony Church Field House, the site of previous meets.

All major units of the Indianhead Division are eligible to enter teams not to exceed 20 persons including coach or manager. The meet will be the final athletic event to determine the winner of the Commanding General's trophy for sports to be presented in July.

The swimming and diving meet will be governed by the National Collegiate Athletic Association Official Swimming and Division Guide published in 1961, as amended. In the event of inclement wheather the Special Services office will be responsible for rescheduling of events.

Included in the events for this year's meet will be: 50 meter free style; 100 meter free style; 200 meter free style; relay a two-man team event; 100 meter butterfly; 150 meter free style; 200 meter free style; 100 meter back stroke; 300 meter medley relay, a three-man team event; 400 meter free style relay, a four-man team event; one meter diving, and three meter diving event.

The most grueling event will most likely be the long 400 meter free style event which requires contestants to swim the length of the pool four successive times to finish. Last year's meet saw several drop out of this event after partially completing the course.

In the diving competition each competitor will execute five mandatory dives plus one optional dive of their own choosing for each event. This event will be judged by three officials using scoring cards much the same as in the Olympics.

On June 19 and 20, the meet will feature the trials of each event to determine the qualifiers for the finals to be held on June 21 and 22. The final two nights will see each event run and winners in each determined. Trophies and awards will be presented on the final night of the meet.

The special services office urges all division major units to submit their rosters of candidates for the meet prior to June 17. Changes to unit rosters will be allowed up to 24 hours in advance of the meet provided they are submitted to the Special Services office in writing.

9th Defeats 87th Inf 2-0

By 9th Inf. PIO

Ninth Infantry hurler Billy White's three-hit, 16-strikeout performance clipped the 87th Infantry Conquerors 2-0 in Division softball play Monday at the Sand Hill diamond.

The victory retained the 9th's second place tie with the 1st Infantry. The 1st Infantry also applied the whitewash brush 2-0 to Division Artillery. Both the 9th and the 1st hold records of 6 and 2. Division Trains remained on top with an 8-1 win over Separate Battalions.

Monday night's games were those regularly scheduled for that day. Those games scheduled for May 25, cancelled due to rain, are to be played tonight, according to the division Special Service Office.

White bested the 87th's slabman, Field Goodwin. Goodwin surrendered four hits and fanned four. Neither pitcher gave up a base on balls.

The Manchu crew netted a pair of tallies in the second on two singles, a stolen base, and an error. White and shortstop Robert Given singled to open the frame. First baseman Robert Hiller forced Given at second on a fielder's choice, with White scoring. Hiller stole second and reached third on a wild pitch. He scored on an error when the 87th's catcher dropped a throw from third.

The other 9th Infantry safeties were collected by: White and left fielder Robert Griswold. The 87th Infantry singles were hit by John Bennett, Roger Heinen, and the pitcher Goodwin. Otherwise White was in complete control as he fanned 16. He struck out the side four times.

Awards Made In Signal's Mixed League

By 122nd Signal PIO

Trophies were awarded to winners of the 122nd Signal Battalion's Mixed Bowling League at a recent meeting held at the Pizzeria recently.

The first ranking team in the league were the Krazy Kats composed of Mrs. Earl LeVier, Lieutenant Keith Clum and Lt. Paul Kluczuik.

Mrs. Samuel Creel won three trophies in the women's division. They were for high average (147), high three game series with handicap (589) and most improved bowler, 14 pins.

Other trophies awarded by Captain Joe Hutchins, league president, during the evening were: mens' high average, Lt. Edward Colace (167 average); high three game series with handicap, Chief Warrant Officer Charles Lowther (606); most improved bowler, Lt. Arnold Ross; (increase of 13 pins); and sportsmanship trophy, Capt. Joe Hutchins.

Division Trains Holds Slim Lead in Contest

BY CLAY LACY

The Special Services Section of the 2nd Infantry Division this week announced the latest standings in the current Commanding General's Trophy for athletics. Heading the list currently is the Division Trains with a score of 260 points.

Fifteen points behind Trains comes the 9th Infantry with a total of 245 points. Third spot is held by Separate Battalions with 240 while Division Artillery holds fourth place with a 230 point total.

The trophy race ends on June 30 and the large trophy will be presented to the new winner in July. Current holder of the prized possession is the Division Trains who captured it last January.

Sports included in the present race are basketball, volleyball, bowling, softball and swimming and diving.

Sewell Downs Powell

By 9th Inf PIO

Captain William Sewell downed Lieutenant Nick Powell 3-2 in the opening match of the first flight of the 9th Infantry's match play golf tourney last week.

Capt. Sewell had finished second to Lt. Powell in the 9th Infantry's handicap golf tournament in April. Lt. Powell captured first flight honors in the handicap tourney by two strokes over Capt. Sewell.

In the only other match completed thus far, Captain Allan Francisco stopped Major Rocco Barbuto 4 and 3 in a third flight match. The other third flight matches will see Captain Benjamin Hamilton oppose Lieutenant Paul Beecham. Chaplain Mace Jett drew a bye in the first round.

Division Hqs Team Defeats Med. Bn., 13-7

Tight defensive play and powerful hitting provided 2nd Division Headquarters and Headquarters Company with a 13-7 victory over the 2nd Medical Battalion in Trains company level softball last week.

The game was a very close contest in the early innings with "Medics" leading 5 to 4 until the fifth.

Headquarters exploded with seven runs to command the game, 11 to 7.

This was the downfall for the Medical Battalion as none of its players was able to score again.

The Headquarters team scored two more runs in the bottom of the sixth and held the Medics scoreless in the seventh frame.

9th Inf Adds Two Trophies To Collection

By 9th Inf PIO

The 9th Infantry's trophy case added two more sports trophies last week in recognition of a pair of Manchu team championships in the Fort Benning Bowling Association.

The large trophies were presented to Colonel James L. Osgard, the 9th Infantry commander, by the captains of the championship squads, Captain Matthew Ryan made the presentation to Colonel Osgard and the battle group on behalf of the members of the Monday night Officers' Crimson League champs.

Captain Benjamin Hamilton's crew of keglers took the Tuesday night Officers' Blue League crown. Capt. Ryan also was the Blue League champs' high man in averages.

The Crimson League winners toppled the Tooth Plumbers, a team of post dentists, in a roll-off for the top honors. The 9th Infantry Crimson League entry, named the Sleepers, stopped the first half crown while the Tooth Plumbers nabbed the second half leadership. The Sleepers then battered the dentists four to zero in the roll-off for the league accolades.

The Blue League 9th Infantry squad shelled the 27th Artillery 4-0 in the rolloff for the top in the Tuesday night battle for the throne room crown. The top keglers for the winners were Captains Ryan and William Sanford and Lieutenant Jerry Poelking. The three officers posted averages of 170 or better.

Engineers Move Up to Second; TSB Holds Top Slot in Major Unit Baseball League

The 151st Engineer Group made a surprise move in the Major Unit Baseball League standings on Memorial Day in gaining a comfortable two-game margin over former blade holder 1st Battle Group, 29th Infantry, 1st Infantry Brigade. The Engineers are only one half game off the pace set by The Student Brigade.

Tuesday night the 151st Engineers stripped the league-leading Student Brigade by a 4-3 count to move within the half game margin. Meanwhile, the 1st Armored Rifle Battalion, 58th Infantry, 1st Infantry Brigade, took a dive in the listings, being handed an 8-1 shellacking by the front runners on Sunday.

In Saturday games, the cellar-holding 428th Medical Battalion won its first game (of the season, 1-0 over the nose-diving 29th Infantrymen. In the afternoon game, the 2nd Howitzer Battalion, 10th Artillery, 1st Infantry Brigade, solidly whipped the 58th Infantry, 12-2.

Last Thursday (May 25), the 151st Engineers tripped the Infantry Center Troop Command, 3-2, and in Wednesday (May 24) action, the 29th Infantry defeated the 58th Infantry by an 8-6 margin.

Scanning the standings and results midway through the first half of the season, The Student Brigade and the 151st Engineers appear to be the teams to beat in the league.

Both teams have come up with fairly comfortable winning margins. The Student Brigade has turned in scores of 21-11, 9-3 and 8-1, while the 151st Engineers have notched scores such as 15-4, 12-5 and 13-4.

The only game lost by the Engineers was during the first week of action when The Student Brigade ripped through them for a 21-11 win. Since then, the Engineers have yet to be beaten.

But it remains a wide open race and anything can happen. This week, the Engineers get into two contests, facing the 10th Artillery tomorrow afternoon at 1:30 p.m. and an important clash with The Student Brigade Wednesday at 7:30 p.m.

In other games, the surprising 428th Medical Battalion will face The Student Brigade tomorrow night at 7:30 p.m., in an attempt to throw the lead position into a two-way deadlock.

In a Sunday game, Troop Command will oppose the 58th Infantry in a battle to break a three-way tie for fifth place in the standings. Fifth spot is currently wrapped up among Troop Command, the 58th Infantry, and the 428th Medical Battalion. Each sport 1-4 records, and are four games behind the pace.

Troop Command, trying hard to regain a top position in the standings, will swing into action again Tuesday opposing the 10th Artillery. Thursday's encounter will pit the 10th Artillery against the 29th Infantry.

All games are played at Cowdy Field on the Main Post. There is no charge for admission.

Sequel Wood Wins Ladies Tournament

Sequel Wood won the 18-hole division of the Women's Golf Tournament last Thursday, edging runner-up Marge Carter and consolation winner Jerry Hollis in the final four holes at the post Country Club.

Mrs. Wood moved to a 1 up advantage on the 16th hole and increased the margin for a sure win on the 17th hole, winning the hole and gaining a 2-up lead with one-hole to play. She also won the final hole to take the championship flight with a 3-up advantage.

Marger Carter, runner-up in the championship flight, won tournament medalist honors.

In nine-hole competition, Eileen DeLuce won top laurels in the championship flight over runner-up Onie Kaplan and consolation winner Dee Molgomery. The nine-hole division also finished Thursday.

Silver Trophies

Awards to the champions, runners-up, and consolation winners in each of the 18 and nine-hole flights were presented sterling silver trophies in an awards ceremony at the close of the tournament.

Making the presentations was Mrs. A. D. Surles, Jr., wife of Brig. Gen. Surles, deputy commanding general of The Infantry Center. Mrs. Surles also presented the medalist trophy to Mrs. Carter.

Other flight winners in the 18-hole competition were Chinky Sogard, first flight winner; Bobbie Heistand, second flight winner, and Mary Freudendorf, third flight winner.

Doris Samson, Cleone Tate and Cherry Pugh won runner-up honors in each of the three flights. Consolation winners were Stella Cole, Gabe Deffer and Mary Cowan.

First flight winner in the Eileen Miller and runner-up honors were won by Mary Caldbeck. Consolation winner was Jackie Reisa.

The post Women's Golf Tournament started at the close of the Columbus Women's Open Golf Tournament on May 15. In the post tourney, three rounds were played in the 18-hole and nine-hole divisions. The final rounds were completed Thursday.

Sgt. Branshaw Shuts Out The Combat Support '9'

By SFC Bismarck Stith

In the Two-Niners league of the 1st Infantry Brigade Softball Loop, Sgt. Karl Branshaw of the 183rd Chemical Platoon clouted a 11-0 shutout over the Combat Support nine to remain in first place with an 8-0 record.

The 72nd Engineers tripped Company D, 16-4, to stay tied for first place. Pfc Jimmie Dicks tossed the win while 1st Lt. Samuel Eure took the loss.

In the Redleg league of the 10th Artillery Headquarters Company, 1st Infantry Brigade, hammered Battery D for a 14-9 victory. Battery D scored three runs in the first inning when 2nd Lt. Don Turner drew a base on balls. Sgt. Rowe got on by an error on the shortstop, and Sp4 Willie rapped a three run homer to left field.

Headquarters Company picked up three runs in the third, two in the fourth, four in the sixth, and four in the seventh. In the third inning, Pfc Bobby Silverborne led off with a single to left field. 1st Lt. Bob Turpin followed with a single to left field, scoring Pfc Silverthorne, and going to third on an error by the left fielder.

Pfc Louis Introcaso drew a base on balls; Pfc Dick Merchaut hit a fly to deep right field, which scored Lt. Turpin. MSgt. Manuel Lopez' line drive to the pitcher scored Pfc Introcaso.

In the sixth inning Pfc Silverthorne drew a base on balls, Lt. Turpen hit a single to center field, sending Silverthorne to third; and Pfc Introcaso hit a line drive through the shortstop for a single to score both Pfc Silverthorne and Lt. Turpin. Pfc Dick Merchaut smacked a home run to right field, bringing in Pfc Introcaso.

In the seventh inning, Headquarters put on another hitting attack scoring four runs. Pfc Introcaso rapped his third hit, a single, Pfc Silverthorne and Pfc Merchaut contributed a double each, and MSgt. Lopez blasted a two-run triple for the winners.

Tennis Will Open Second Half Of Third Army Sport Calendar

By Pfc Joe Kuchera

The Third Army Tennis Tournament, scheduled for June 19 to 23 at Fort Benning will open the second half of Third Army sports calendar.

Following tennis, there will be the golf tourney in August at Fort Jackson, and in September softball at Fort Jackson and baseball at Fort Bragg.

During the first half of the sports program, Fort Benning fared well in competition, notching a championship and a runner-up trophy in the golf group and company class and two champions in the individual go-rounds.

The post walked away with the Third Army volleyball title. Represented by the men of the 44th Company, 4th Student Battalion, The Infantry School's Student Brigade, Fort Benning went through the double eliminations undefeated.

Basketball

The runner-up berth came during the basketball tournament at Fort Gordon. The host The Provost Marshal General Center squad, tripped the post entry in the finals after handing the Doughboys an earlier defeat.

The Student Brigade, post cage representatives, were undefeated in tournament action until meeting the PMGC Saints in a semi-final contest. The Doughboys bounced back from their 73-71 loss to the Saints with a victory over Fort Jackson, 65-62, to once again earn the right to meet the Saints.

In the final contest, the Saints led by 18 points at the final buzzer, 78-60, after playing teeter-totter ball for 40 minutes.

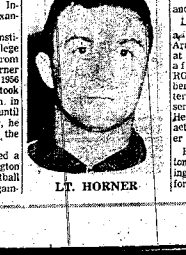
Boxing

Among the individual Fort Benning competitors who are reigning Third Army champions is Sfc Leon Holl of the 1st Battle Group, 29th Infantry, 1st Infantry Brigade, who won the light middleweight crown in the Third Army Boxing Tournament at Fort Campbell.

Last month, The Fort Benning team of Sfc Edward Burkhart and Sgt. William Keen held onto an opening match lead to win the doubles competition of the Third Army Bowling Tournament held at Fort Rucker.

Football

Going to a sport which is the only one without Third Army competition, the Fort Benning football squad notched a 4-4 record during the 1960 season, but the outlook for the post gridmen in 1961 is good.



Capt. Leaton C. Coffeld, who last year, headed the Brooke Army Medical Center (Texas) "Comets", has been named the head mentor of the Doughboys for the coming season.

Today's Sportrait

Today's Sportrait spotlights 2nd Lt. Samuel W. Horner III, of Company A, 1st Battle Group, 29th Infantry, 1st Infantry Brigade, from Alexandria, Va.

At Virginia Military Institute (VMI), he played college football for four years, from 1955 through 1959. Lt. Horner starred at halfback in the 1956 season with VMI and took over the fullback position in 1957 and remaining there until 1959. During his final year, he was elected captain of the squad.

In 1960, Lt. Horner signed a contract with the Washington Redskins professional football team. He played eighteen games with the Redskins during the 1960 season as an offensive halfback and defensive safety and halfback.

LT. HORNER

Lt. Horner was commissioned a second lieutenant in the Army Reserve in July, 1960, at UCLA, Los Angeles, Calif., after participating in the ROTC program. He is a member of the Kappa Alpha fraternity, and entered active service on January 8, 1961. He is currently on six months active duty at a platoon leader with his present unit.

He will rejoin the Washington Redskins for spring training this July at Los Angeles for the 1961-62 football season.

Johnson To Try Comeback

The boxer who flattened world heavyweight championship contender Pete Rademacher in a 1956 All-Army contest, John Johnson, is still swinging leather for an Army pugilistic team.

Now 28, Johnson captured the 1951 Third Army and All-Army championships, and finished second in the Inter-Service heavyweight matches.

In 1955, the brawny Johnson battled his way to win the year's Inter-Service heavyweight championship. The following year he copped the U.S. Army Europe and CISM heavyweight championships.

During the 1956 All - Army matches, he downed Rademacher, but officials ruled one of the knockout blows a foul, and awarded the match to Rademacher. Not giving up, however, Johnson tried the regional AAUs in Kansas City, won the heavyweight title, earned a berth for the Olympic trials.

In the semi-finals of the Olympic trials, Rademacher pasted Johnson so badly that he decided to quit the ring.

Self exile ended for the athlete early this year and now he is again eying the All-Army boxing tourney.

May Coach Neider

Pete Rademacher, Columbus resident and one-time Army Olympic heavyweight, is reportedly considering an offer to manage Bill Neider, former Army track star who was stationed at the Presidio of San Francisco. Neider, an established shotputter, is now swinging leather for pay.

Fresno Halfback

Lyndy Dale Messer, a halfback at Fresno State College where he was chosen the outstanding player for two consecutive years, is now a private at Fort Ord. Messer will report for spring training with the 49ers upon completion of his active duty.

Eight Nations Competed

U. S. Triumphant in Five Worldwide Boxing Bouts

FT. DIX, N.J. (AFPS) — When the smoke cleared from the 14th annual Conseil du Sport Militaire Worldwide Boxing Championships, held here, the United States had won five weight division crowns, Italy three and the United Arab Republic, Iraq, Italy, Tunisia and the United States — battled for honors in this international fistic tourney.

Winners of the three-round bouts were:

Heavyweight—James Johnson, Ft. Campbell, Ky., won a close decision over Italy's Benito Pesma in an action-filled bout.

Light Heavyweight — Italy's Guilio Saraudi outpointed John Hunter, Little Creek Naval Amphibious Base, Va., overcoming Hunter's first-round edge due to effective counter-punching.

Middleweight — James Rossette, NAS Jacksonville, Fla., outbound UAR's Mohamed El Gilaidy by scoring heavily with body punches.

Welterweight—Italy's Luciano Piazza outslugged Ralph McCoy, Hamilton AFB, Calif., to win an easy verdict.

Light Welterweight — America's Quincey Daniels, Lackland AFB, Tex., Bronze Medal winner in the 1960 Rome Olympics, decisioned Italy's Piero Brandi in a hard-fought contest.

Lightweight — Jim Richardson, Lackland AFB, Tex., dished and took terrific punishment to outscore UAR's Ahmed Harfoush.

Featherweight — Roundhouses, uppercuts and stinging left jabs enabled UAR's Hosny Saidahmed to win a close fight over America's Charlie Brown of Camp Pendleton, Calif.

Bantamweight — Bone-shaking right jabs allowed John Cereghrin, Bolling AFB, D.C., to earn a tight decision over UAR's Mahmoud Hammauda Kuar.

Flyweight — The 1960 CISM flyweight champ, UAR's Abdel Moniem El Gaindy, was a repeat winner and got a unanimous decision over Tunisia's Tahar Tahroundi with deadly left-right combinations.

No Comparison

Ret. Oscar Robertson of Fort Jackson, former University of Cincinnati hardcourt star, when asked to compare Bill Russell and Wilt Chamberlain, said, "Both are great, but I'd hesitate to pick one over the other. They play different styles of ball."

WAC Softball Team Defeats McPherson

The Fort Benning Women's Army Corps softball team goes after its second win this season when it hosts the Fort McClellan WAC team in a single game tomorrow.

In the first game of the season, the post WAC sluggers pounded out an 18-7 victory over the Third Army Headquarters Wac team from Fort McPherson last Saturday.

Sp4 Ann Davis was the winning pitcher for the post squad against Fort McPherson. A starter for this Saturday's game has not been announced.

Head coach, Sfc Larry Jones, will probably use the same starting lineup as he did in the first game.

The WAC pitching staff consists of two, Sp4 Davis and Pfc Marilyn Wheable. No doubt to get the starting nod will be Pfc Wheable.

Another adjustment has been made to the WAC schedule. Fort Benning will host the Fort Jackson WAC team on two consecutive days June 10 and 11. Originally a single game was to be played June 10.

On the away slate, the post nine will again battle the Fort Jackson WACs on July 22 and 23, a single game each day.

Team 4 Gets First Place In Baseball

Team 4 defeated Team 3, 7-5, to nail down first place in the Custer Terrace Youth Activities Club Doughboy League last week. Cartwright drove in two runs in the fifth inning on a double to make the difference, even though Burns slammed a homer with no one on in the sixth inning for the losers.

Team 3 came bck to squeeze by Team 2 on a 6-5 count, as Bloom hit two home runs and drove in four men for the losers.

Cellar Team 1, coached by Team 3, 9-3, for their second loss of the week. Bunger got the only double for the winning team, and two doubles were slammed out by Davis and James of the losing team.

Team 1 went out of contest in the fourth inning to get six big runs as nine men came to bat. Farmer pitched for the winners and Davis was charged with the loss.

In standings, Team 4 leads with seven wins and two losses, as Team 2 drops to second place with six wins and four losses. Team 3 has five wins and five losses, and Team 1 holds the cellar with a 2-7 record.

Softball Umpire

George Berry of Fort Hood was a catcher with the All-Service team in the 1955 Amateur Softball Association World Championship Tournament at Clearwater, Fla. Now he has been given a tougher assignment. He will be umping the Women's Softball Tourney at Portland, Oregon, August 25 through September 2.

TWO CONTRACTS

Former Texas Tech All-American center E. J. Holub has signed two contracts, one with Dallas, Texas of the American Football League and the other with the Army for six months of active duty.

Top Ground Gainer

The leading grid ground gainer for West Point last season, fullback Al Rushatz, and tackle Dale Kuhns, both had to miss spring football practice due to injuries received in wrestling competition.

SGT. EDENFIELD (L) GIVES LETTER
And Bolo Trophy to Lt. Giese of 29th Infantry

Original 'Bolo' Presented to Unit By Man Who Brought Phrase to U. S.

The man responsible for the Bolo Trophy belonging to Company C, 1st Battle Group, 29th Infantry, 1st Infantry Brigade, and the Army-wide term "bolo", has kept his retirement promise of writing the trophy's history and presenting it to his former unit.

MSgt (Ret.) Hardie C. Edenfield recently presented an engraved history of the Bolo Trophy, a large, heavy, single edge knife, to the commander of the company, 1st Lt. William Giese.

Sgt. Edenfield initiated the Bolo Trophy in 1936 when he was first sergeant of the company. Originally the term "bolo" referred to a score too low to qualify in the firing of the rifle. Today it has come to apply to the failure to qualify in the firing of any weapon in the Army.

The 75-year-old veteran enlisted in the Army Jan 11, 1907, at $13 a month pay. Thirty years, two months and 18 days later he retired. Edenfield and his wife live in Columbus.

While on a vacation at Camp Joh Hay during a tour of duty in the Philippines, Sgt. Edenfield noticed a number of Philippine Scouts, all of the Igorot tribe of Luzon, wearing small bolos on their uniform.

When Edenfield asked the non-commissioned officer in charge why, he replied, "These men did not qualify with a rifle at the regular target practice, so we issued them a bolo instead of a rifle."

After thinking about the idea, the sergeant decided to put this scheme into practice when he returned to the U.S. On May 13, 1935, Edenfield was assigned to Company C, 29th Infantry at Fort Benning as first sergeant.

In 1936, before the company went on the range for regular target practice, Edenfield told his company commander of his idea and gained approval.

Edenfield cut the bolo from a piece of steel and took it to Atlanta for nickel plating.

He told the men that any who failed to qualify would have to take turns wearing this bolo while the remainder of the company enjoyed a party.

Commenting on the idea, Sgt. Edenfield stated, "It worked."

Vacation Bible School Plans Varied Subjects

Teenagers attending the post Vacation Bible School June 19 to 23 will explore the world of the blind, dabble in magic, try their hands at fencing, learn the secrets of good grooming and enjoy a part of their own planning.

Guidance for these special activities will be provided by recognized experts in the various fields.

A blind teacher, Mrs. Robert M. Staley of Columbus, will visit the Junior High Department of the VBS on "Blind Day," Thursday, June 22.

An hour before the arrival of the teacher, the students will don blindfolds. After an hour's experience in attempting to follow their daily routine without the benefit of sight, the students will hear Mrs. Staley speak, "Why Does God Allow Suffering and Testing" will be her subject.

Magic will be explored Tuesday, June 20, as Chaplain (Major) Arthur J. Estes speaks on "Magical Truths with Biblical Meaning."

"The Christian and Good Grooming" will be discussed Monday, June 19, by Mrs. Eddie Lou Day of Columbus.

Mrs. Day will speak to the teen-age girls, demonstrating good grooming.

An authority in her field, Mrs. Day is the Georgia delegate to the National Hairdressers and Cosmetologists Association and is a member of the Georgia Hair Fashion Committee.

Dr. James W. Rhea of Columbus, a pediatrician, will speak to the teen-age boys Monday, June 19. His subject will be "Men to Man."

Mrs. Dion Johnson will demonstrate fencing during the VBS. Students will be permitted to participate in fencing.

As a climax to the week of study on the rewards of Christian living, Mrs. Thomas M. Scovill will direct the teen-age group in preparing a party table and refreshments. Her theme will be "A Teen-age Snack."

Registration for Vacation Bible School will be conducted from 9 to 12 a.m. June 7, 8 and 9 at the Religious Education Center, Building 2606. Parents are requested to register for their children.

The annual VBS is sponsored by the Main Post, Harmony Church, St. Michael's Episcopal and Lutheran Sunday Schools.

Approximately 1,000 boys and girls from the age of three through the eighth grade are expected to attend the school.

Columbus Group Hears British Liaison Officer

Lt. Col. John Stuart McLaren, British liaison officer at The Infantry School, spoke to the Columbus Branch of the English Speaking Union late last week.

He talked on "British Schools — Public and Not So Public" at the Columbus Museum of Arts and Crafts.

Col. McLaren came to the post last December.

Control Your Money

Finances All Fouled Up? Start a Planned Budget

(Part of an AFPS Series)

If your finances seem all fouled up, ask yourself this simple question. "What caused me to get into this mess in the first place?"

If your answer is—"Because there never is enough money at the right time" — you probably need to establish a realistic budget.

As a serviceman, you are on a fixed salary. You know how much it is and when you will get it. You also know there are certain obligations or payments that roll around regularly that must be paid.

The Legal Assistance Division in the Army's Judge Advocate General's Office points out that millions of Americans regulate their income and outgo with a budget.

The pitfall and attendant money troubles come, officials say, when installment buying is over-extended, and when there is no provision for the future through savings, or failure to allow for unexpected expenses.

Here are some suggestions to help you keep the creditors away from your door:

A budget and record of actual spending should be kept to enable you to know what and how much you can buy.

Buy only what you can really afford. When tempted by the old slogan "buy now, pay later," carefully consider "later," for there may be more important needs for your money at the time.

Read any contract you sign.

Deal with businesses that have a good reputation in the community.

Try to save now for future needs and desired products.

If you do this you can buy for cash, with no interest to worry about. By careful planning your future purchases will cost you far less than if you had to buy on time.

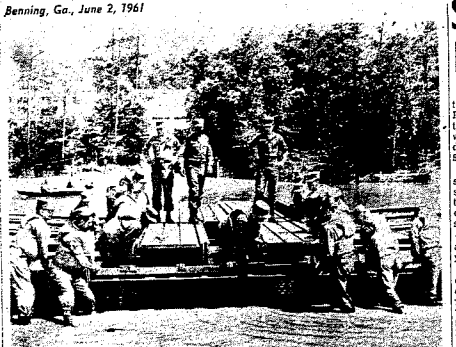
Half of Post Personnel Took Bonds

Approximately half of Fort Benning's assigned military personnel and full-time civilian employees chose one of the Army's withholding plans for buying U. S. Savings Bonds during a recent person-to-person canvass at the post.

The annual drive, which began March 31 and ended May 15, added 6,740 post military personnel, not including those of the 2nd Infantry Division, to the Army ranks of bond-buyers. This is 47.2 per cent of assigned personnel, not counting Reserve Forces Act trainees and foreign students.



More than half, 1,755 or 53.2 per cent, of the post's 3,359 full - time civilian employees signed pay reservation applications for the purchase of bonds through the Army's program, according to the report from the Personal Affairs Branch of The Infantry Center's Adjutant General Section.

The 2nd Division's participation in the bond campaign also was heavy with 5,701 or 47.7 per cent of military personnel investing in this form of savings.

Lawson Army Aviation Command led major units in the participation rate with 67 per cent, or 656 or 984 personnel, buying bonds by May 15.

A number of subordinate units on post which have achieved or exceeded 65 per cent participation of personnel are eligible for the Minuteman Award, a lithograph print in four colors, suitable for framing.

Although the post's person-to-person canvass is in the spring, the Army's Savings Bond program is supported by commanders the year-round.

FIRST AID RACE . . . Boys Scouts of Troop 39 receive a plaque for winning a first aid relay race, during their recent two - day Spring Camporee here. Pfc Morris Randolph (L), camping and activities committeeman of the Boy Scout section of the post's Youth Activities Club, presents the award to (L to R) Jerry Welch, Mike Bishop and Eldred Michael.

HALL OF FAME . . . Lt. Col. Charles Benge has been named to the Infantry Officer Candidate Hall of Fame at Wigle Hall. His selection was based on outstanding leadership displayed throughout his military career. Col. Benge is deputy director of The Infantry School's Communications Department.

Safety Program Hosted by Post

Fort Benning will be the host to the 1961 Champion Spark Plug Company's Highway Safety Program June 28 to 30, which will feature one of the drivers from the Indianapolis 500-mile race.

The program will be presented twice a day for five successive days in the various troop areas and theaters, including the 2nd Infantry Division.

The driver who will make an appearance here has not as yet been named.

During the program film clips from some of the most exciting moments in the Memorial Day race will be shown. The film and program are not to encourage highway speed but to demonstrate "controlled speed," according to officials.

The Champion Highway Safety Program is a precisely arranged three-part presentation, the format of which was developed after consultation with scores of educators, traffic research people and officials of safety organizations.

Three basic rules for highway safety were developed as the framework for the lectures, rules which are emphasized by each of the race drivers throughout the presentation. They are mental alertness, constant courtesy on the highway and good mechanical condition of the car.

After viewing the presentations by some of the drivers, typical comments were received from installation commanders.

Major Gen. W. Paul Johnson, commanding general of the Army Armor Training Center at Fort Knox, said:

"The quality of his (the driver's) presentation and the emphasis which he placed on the need for safe driving held his audiences at a high state of attentiveness."

New Lock Invented

Korea (AFPS) — Since the beginning of civilization one of man's goals has been the design and production of a lock that can't be picked. Now Spc Donald R. Bruso of the 1st Cav. Div here, believes he has solved the problem.

Bruso, a professional locksmith, claims safes have been used for years to guard people's valuables. However, a trained locksmith can open any lock or lock combination in approximately four minutes. With his invention, says Bruso, the only way a person can enter a safe is to blow it apart.

The enterprising soldier, a former consultant on safes and safe testing at the Army's Weapon Center at Pirmasens, Germany, says his invention is based on the principle of the magnet.

He explains that a person couldn't enter a safe equipped with his invention unless he carried a magnetic key. The lock, Bruso relates, is housed deep in the safe's interior and is therefore protected.

Red Carpet Service Goes to Bachelors

Ten bachelor officers put aside sack lunches recently and enjoyed a catered luncheon complete with red carpet service in the field.

The 199-student Infantry School Officer Career Class 2 was engaged in a battle group map maneuver, not allowing for time away from the maneuver buildings for lunch. The Main Officers' Open Mess assisted the bachelor party in setting the example of a noon hour in style.

Charles Judkins, the commanding general's waiter at the main mess, served the party. The banquet table was set on the Protocol Division's red carpets beneath the trees. The sumptious meal included shrimp cocktail.

Married officers and other bachelors in the class looked on from adjacent buildings with undisguised envy and admiration.

Capt. J. H. Anderson was in charge of arrangements for the event.

Other participants were Capt. Francis S. Logan, Capt. John F. Moran, Jr., Capt. Edward P. Cutolo, Capt. Othar J. Shalikashvili, Capt. Frank-lin A. Hart, Capt. Richard C. Baughman, Capt. William C. Dukes, Capt. George H. Patrick, III, and Capt. Frank J. Simmons.

Reaction from the onlookers in the class was undivided.

"That sure shows the way to live!"

"Envy is the only word for it!"

"It costs a few cents more to go first class!"

"There but for our wives go us!"

"It sure would be nice to be a bachelor again!"

"The bachelors are to be commended on their imagination and surplus of money!"

"My lunch was one apple and one banana!"

MPs Cited By Columbus Police Dept.

Fort Benning's Military Police Corps was cited recently by Columbus city officials and numerous civilian and military personnel for services rendered and performance of duty in helping the Columbus Police Department handle the traffic during the Searchlight Tattoo and Massing of the Colors program at the Municipal Auditorium.

In a letter to Lt. Col. James E. Farmer, Infantry Center provost marshal, E. S. Moncrieff, chief of the Columbus police, said:

"Relative to the Searchlight Tattoo program held at the Municipal Auditorium, in Columbus May 15 and 16, 1961, I am pleased at the report Capt. Knox of our Traffic Division made to me.

"He stated that the cooperation and efficiency of the military police was outstanding. He further stated that he was approached by numbers and numbers of civilians and military personnel alike, who commended the manner in which the traffic was handled, and the courtesy and 'know-how' of the military police who participated.

"It is gratifying to know that the military police and this department can work together, and in such complete harmony as was demonstrated at this affair."

Bike Safety

'Cyclists Get Tests Saturday

Today is the last day to register for the Bicycle Safety Program proficiency test to be conducted tomorrow morning by the post Provost Marshal Office.

Parents may register their children from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.; children may register themselves from six o'clock to eight o'clock in the evenings.

There will be six pick-up points on the post where the participants will be met by a military policeman and conducted to the test areas at Faith School and Upton Avenue. The tests begin at 9 a.m., and the children will be met by the military policemen at 8:30.

The contestants will ride their bicycles to the test areas from the pick-up points, except the one at the Post Trailer Park.

The pickup points are Custer Terrace Shopping Center, Arrowhead Road and Baker Street, Baker Street and McGrath Street, PX 95-A at the Post Trailer Park (Children and their bicycles will ride to the test areas in trucks), Lloyd Way and Arrowhead Road, and Texas Drive and Custer Road.

The Fort Benning Woman's Club and NCO's Wives' Club are donating two bicycles and refreshments to the program.

The safety program is open to children ages six through 15. Contestants nine and under will be tested at Faith School. Those 10 and over will be tested on Upton Avenue.

Admin Officer At Japan Prison Now With Med Battalion

CWO Flo Flemming, the one-time Chief Medical Administration Officer of Sugamo Prison Hospital, in Tokyo, Japan, has recently been assigned to the 428th Medical Battalion as the Assistant Battalion Supply Officer, in the S-4 section.

Over two thousand war criminals were kept at Sugamo Prison, ranking from political war crimes prisoners to generals and admirals. On more than one occasion the former Japanese Premier, Shigamitsu was admitted to the hospital for treatment of minor ailments. This former warlord was the man that met with General Douglas MacArthur on board the USS Missouri to arrange the terms of surrender that ended the war with Japan.

The Surgeon Says

Fire Ant Sting Can Be Deadly

By Capt. Neil E. Pennington, Entomologist

Fire ants continue to plague many areas of the post and the surrounding community with their painful and dangerous stings. With the advent of warm weather, increased activity of the ants and outdoor functions by personnel, the danger of receiving ant stings has increased.

Several persons have already reported to Martin Army Hospital for medical treatment from the adverse effects of fire ant stings.

Injury usually occurs when the mound is disturbed. Fire ants are very aggressive and will come bubbling forth by the thousands in an angry attack when the mound is disturbed. A small percentage of persons are allergic to the poison injected by the sting and may have violent reactions such as hives, choking, fainting and coma which could result in death.

Fortunately, most people experience only an initial burning sensation accompanied by local swelling, itching and the formation of a white centered pustule within 24 hours.

It is impossible however to know how the sting will affect any individual and it has been shown that the same individual may react differently to each sting upon separate occasions. Therefore, all persons receiving fire ant stings should report to Martin Army Hospital Emergency Room for treatment regardless of symptoms.

This will allow for prompt treatment in cases involving allergic reactions and also allow treatment to alleviate the burning and itching which accompanies all fire ant stings.

The fire ant is a small, red-dish brown to black ant about one-fourth inch long, and resembles many other ants in looks; however, it acts quite differently and its mound is readily distinguished from the other ant mounds.

The fire ant mound is constructed of loose balls of soil which may become hard and smooth by packing rains. The mound ranges in size from a few inches to one or two feet in diameter.

Unlike other ant hills in this area, the fire ant mound is an inverted cone shape with no visible opening, since the ants normally enter and leave by way of tunnels which radiate to points far removed from the mound.

The fire ant is capable of detecting the slightest movement; usually the jarring of the ground caused by normal foot steps approaching the mound is sufficient to cause alarm and the ants come forth in an attack.

Children should be warned about the ants and not allowed to play in areas infested with them. All personnel should avoid fire ant mounds and should not disturb them unnecessarily.

Eradication

Personnel residing in post housing and discovering fire ant mounds near their homes should call the Preventive Medicine Division (51144) and report it so that it may be destroyed. Personnel residing in off post housing may purchase commercial insecticides especially prepared to kill fire ants at most any hardware, feed and seed or variety store.

Directions on the package should be followed for best results. The city of Columbus has recently entered into the Department of Agriculture's fire ant eradication program and personnel living off post will receive insecticidal treatment of their property via aerial application in the near future.

YMCA Centennial Ball Planned for Tomorrow

A Centennial Ball will be presented by the Armed Services YMCA on Saturday, June 3, the birthday of Jefferson Davis. The occasion will observe the "100 Years of YMCA Service to America's Armed Forces."

During the intermission, the Girl-of-the-Year for 1961, Miss Charlotte Brawner, will be honored by the Girls Service Organization. Miss Brawner was named to the honor at the recent annual meeting of the GSO, having been nominated on the basis of the number of volunteer hours given and the number of service points earned, and elected by the members of GSO.

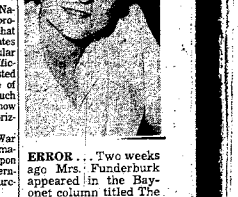
Runners-up for the 1961 honor are Miss Mary Jane Andrews, historian of GSO, and Miss Loretta Parker, president of GSO.

Participating in the ceremonies with these young ladies will be Miss Becky Rainey, Girl-of-the-Year for 1960, who will crown Miss Brawner as the honor is passed on to her.

Escorts for the young ladies will be servicemen from the post wearing the uniforms of Confederate and Union soldiers of the Civil War era. Pfc Anthony Sanderling, Pfc. Ray Turnbull, and Pvt. Leighton O. Haselgrove, and one other, to be announced, will serve as Escorts.

Sp Clifford Warner will be soloist with The Five Shadows Orchestra and will sing lyrics especially written for the occasion to "Tara's Theme" from the movie "Gone With the Wind."

Narrator for the Girl-of-the-Year ceremonies and the centennial pageant will be W. H. Stokes, Jr., executive secretary, and accompanist will be Mrs. Estelle W. Martin, program secretary.



The pageant will begin promptly at 9:30 p.m., and all military personnel and their guests have been invited to attend.

SAFETY WITH LAWN MOWERS

RICHARD

Mrs. Edna R. Peacock is the secretary to the commanding officer and deputy commander of The Student Brigade.

Mrs. Peacock has been with The Student Brigade since January, 1958. For the past 20 months she has been secretary to the commander and deputy commander.

Before coming to Columbus she was with the Signal Supply Section at the Atlanta General Depot. She has also worked in the Employment Office of the Tennessee Valley Authority.

Mrs. Musette M. Richard is a secretary-stenographer with the Combat Developments Office of The Infantry School, with approximately five and a half years of Civil Service at Fort Benning and Columbus.

A native of Columbus, Mrs. Richard first started to work at the post in 1955 with The Student Brigade. In 1958 she went to work for the Social Security Office in Columbus, but later returned to work with the Officer Candidate School until starting her present job with the CDO in February, 1961. Her job is concerned mostly with classified correspondence with the CDO along with other secretarial duties.

Read Faster In 20 Hours

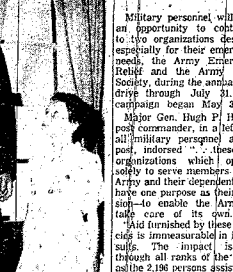
Sixteen more Fort Benning personnel can now read twice as fast as the average American, the result of only 20 hours instruction at The Infantry Center's Educational Development Section.

In April, when the bi-weekly afternoon speedreading classes began, the class was reading on an average, 269 words per minute. By the recent completion of the course the class average, had jumped to 537 and comprehension, on which students were tested, had increased at the same rate.

According to Crawford Thompson, the instructor, the national reading average is 250 words per minute, which is on a fourth grade level of performance. Fifty per cent of Americans read below the fifth grade level, he added.

One-third of all our high school students read poorly, Thompson said. The average American spends 20 or more hours reading per week, and three-fourths of all our books are read by less than five per cent of the total adult population, according to reports.

Col. John J. Pavick, personnel officer of The Infantry Center, presented the certificates to the graduates. Among them were two key officers of The Center, Lt. Col. Kenneth C. Crawford, staff judge advocate, and Lt. Col. Robert F. Galer, inspector general.



The instruction utilized a Perceptoscope which flashed printed pages on a screen which students read at increasing rates of speed.

Civic Club Guests

Sgt. Elmer E. Anderson, 3rd Field Hospital, and Sp4 Frank J. Nemic, 50th Medical Clearing Company, were representatives of the 428th Medical Battalion recently at a weekly civic club luncheon held at the Ralston Hotel. The Rotary, Kiwanis and other clubs invite officers and enlisted men to attend their weekly meetings as guests to better acquaint the military with the civic problems faced by the organizations.

Veterinarian Corps Celebrates Birthday

Veterinarian personnel here belong to an Army service that will be 45 years old tomorrow, the anniversary of the Veterinary Corps.

A branch of Martin Army Hospital, the station has a three-fold mission: food inspection, zoonosis control or control of diseases transmissable from animals to man, and coordination with appropriate staff sections at the post and civilian health agencies on applicable subjects pertaining to public health activities, including potential aspects of chemical, biological and radiological hazards.

More than 14 million pounds of food for messes and commissaries is inspected for acceptable standards of quality and hygiene every month on post, and by military personnel at stations in Moultrie, Ga., and Palmetto, Fla., according to Lt. Col. Glenn M. McFadden, post veterinarian.

The Fort Benning station conducts routine sanitary inspections of some 28 food processing plants which sell to the Army each month.

At the Main Post station there is a small kennel for the three day quarantine and observation of stray dogs found on the post. There have been no cases of rabies at Fort Benning during the past three years, according to Col. McFadden.

First Lt. John R. Anderson is assistant station veterinarian, and Sgt. Donald Vickers is non-commissioned officer-in-charge. Mrs. Lenora Wood is secretary to Col. McFadden and the only civilian employee at the post station.

Gen. Surles To Attend ROTC Event

Brig. Gen. A. D. Surles, Jr., deputy commanding general of The Infantry Center, will participate in ROTC commissioning ceremonies at the University of Mississippi in Oxford June 4.

The program will be held at 2 p.m. during Commencement Sunday at the school.

Gen. Surles will present a saber to the cadet battle group commander, Floyd D. Copeland, at the event. Copeland will enter Oxford University in England next fall as a Rhodes scholar.

Twety-seven ROTC graduates will receive commissions as Army second lieutenants, 11 as Navy ensigns and six as Air Force second lieutenants. Nine of the Army group will be recognized as Distinguished Military Graduates.

Gen. Surles will be a guest of honor at the chancellor's luncheon preceding the ceremonies.

Commanders Praise 'Army's Own' AER

Military personnel will have an opportunity to contribute to two organizations designed especially for their emergency needs, the Army Emergency Relief and the Army Relief Society, during the annual fund drive through July 31. The campaign began May 30.

Major Gen. Hugh P. Harris, post commander, in a letter to all military personnel at the post, indorsed these two organizations which operate solely to serve members of the Army and their dependents and have one purpose as their mission—to enable the Army to take care of its own.

"Aid furnished by these agencies is immeasurable in its results. The impact is felt through all ranks of the Army as the 2,196 persons assisted at this installation during 1960 can testify. The total monetary assistance rendered amounted to $10,047 in the form of outright grants and $211,760 in loans.

"I pledge my personal support and urge all of you to pledge yours to insure that none of 'our own' will go unaided in time of financial stress," the letter concluded.

The 1961 dollar goal for Fort Benning, including the 2nd Infantry Division, is $33,391, established on the basis of 15 per cent of total loans and grants made during the calendar year 1960. All donations made by post personnel remain at the installation to assist in financial emergencies beyond the individual's ability to meet.

According to the Army's chief of staff, Gen. George H. Decker, in a letter to personnel and dependents, AER each year disburses between $4,250,000 and $4,500,000 in rendering financial assistance to some 35,000 members of the Army or their families. An Army-wide goal of $600,000 has been established for the 1961 campaign.

Five AMU Shooters In Mass. Meet

Five members of the International Pistol Team have accepted invitations to compete in the Northeastern International Slow Fire Pistol Match tomorrow and Sunday at Norwood, Mass.

Slated to participate in the New England meet are SSgt Maurice E. Bellsle, Sfc Lloyd Burchett, Sfc Nelson H. Lincoln, Sfc Antonio V. Soza and Capt. Joseph E. Watson, group captain.

Other members of the Advanced Marksmanship Unit who are engaging in off-post marksmanship activities are Capt. Victor M. Calderon and 1st Lt. Tommy G. Pool.

Capt. Calderon is serving as referee for the Air Defense Command High Power Rifle Championships June 2 to 10 at Tyndall Air Force Base, Fla. Lt. Pool will follow to referee the smallbore championships at the Florida base June 11 to 18.

Big Promotion

Notice of promotion on May 24 to the grade of 1st lieutenant came to John T. Avrett of Headquarters Company, 1st Battle Group, 29th Infantry, 1st Infantry Brigade. But, unlike most promotions to 1st lieutenant, his is from the rank of private.

When Lt. Avrett, L.L.B., professional lawyer, and graduate of Mercer University Law School, was drafted into the service, he applied for a direct commission in the Judge Advocate General's Corps.

31 Hospital Volunteers Capped 16 Praised for Hours Donated

MRS. SURLES PINS MRS. DODDS (L) As Chief Nurse Col. Schaupp Looks On

Thirty-one Nurses Aides, Staff Aides and Gray Ladies were capped in recent ceremonies at Martin Army Hospital.

Addressing the graduates, Brig. Gen. A. D. Surles, Jr., deputy commanding general of The Infantry Center, said an increasing responsibility is placed on trained volunteer workers by the growing possibility of mass casualties in time of war.

The general praised the Red Cross Office on the post, which handles from 950 to 1,000 cases per month in addition to the services rendered by its volunteer workers at the hospital.

Lt. Col. Miriam C. Schaupp, chief nurse at the hospital, capped the graduates. Mrs. Surles, honorary chairman of Voluntary Services, presented service pins.

Mrs. E. D. Martin of Columbus, co-chairman of Volunteer Services for the Muscogee County Chapter of the American Red Cross, presented certificates of completion of completion to the graduates.

B. F. Young of Columbus, vice chairman of the Muscogee County Chapter, presented certificates of appreciation to 16 volunteers with more than 200 hours of service for the year. The combined services of the 16 volunteers is 4,947.

Heading the list was Mrs. Archie Bishop, with 883 hours service to her credit this year.

Young also presented service bars to 20 volunteers whose service ranged from one to six years.

A letter of appreciation was presented to Mrs. Lawrence E. Zachow, wife of Lt. Col. (Ret.) Zachow. Mrs. Zachow has served as chairman of Nursing Services and instructor trainer for volunteer Nurse's Aides on the post for the past two years.

Others participating in the ceremony were Col. Bryan C. T. Fenton, hospital commander; Mrs. Mildred Erdman, Red Cross field director at the hospital; Mrs. Robin Montgomery, post chairman of Volunteer Services; Chaplain (Capt.) Lincoln H. Barr, hospital chaplain, and MSgt Frank G. Hardin, organist.

Army Rifle Shooter Wins '61 Regional Championship

An Army rifleman became Southeastern Regional champion May 27 when Sgt. Noah Bailey scored 97 bullseyes out of 100 shots to post a 497-46V score in the annual regional competition here on post ranges.

Sgt. Bailey, a member of the U. S. Army Europe rifle team, won three matches and placed second in another of the seven scheduled in the three - day shoot sponsored by the Fort Benning Rifle and Pistol Club.

In the first match fired, 200 yards standing, Sgt. Bailey fired a 20-shot score of 99-6V for second place.

His score of 100-8V in the 200 yard rapid fire match placed him 8th in a contest which saw 115 riflemen fire perfect 100x100 scores which were decided by highest V-counts.

His first win came in the 600 yard rapid fire match when he posted a second perfect 100X100 with 10 V's.

At 600 yards Sgt. Bailey again put 20 shots through the bullseye, 16 of them in the V-ring, placing him 16th.

In the last match of the championships the Europe command rifleman dropped two points, again at 600 yards for a grand aggregate of 497-46V.

In an aggregate match including scores fired at 200 yards standing and 600 yards prone, Sgt. Bailey's 99-6V and 100-14V gave him the winner's trophy.

Ronald Turner won the first 600 yard slow fire match with 100-18V while the trophy for the second 600 yard tilt was won by the Army Advanced Marksmanship Unit's rifleman, Sp5 Edwin Howell, with 100-18V.

The post's AAMU accounted for a second match win when Sfc Robert E. McCauley fired 0-14V to win the 200 yard rapid fire match.

The 200 yard standing match was won by 1st Lt. William D. Bill of Fort Lewis, Sixth Army team rifleman, with 99-8V.

Over 450 crack marksmen of military and civilian circles competed in the matches which were registered National Rifle Association competition.

WAR GAMES

In the Dictionary of United States Army Terms a war game is defined as a "training exercise in which war is simulated on a map or sand table."

This, today, is somewhat limited definition. It could include the map exercise, map maneuver, command post exercise (CPX), training maneuver, or games which are specifically designed to examine a given concept or activity.

SGT. BURTON DISARMS AN ENEMY
Hand to Hand Combat is Demonstrated

Sgt. James Burton is doing a Man's Job as a member of the Demonstration Team, Ranger Combat Conditioning Committee, Training Section of The Infantry School's Ranger Department.

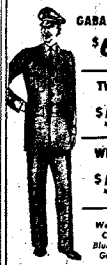
This is Sgt. Burton's second tour of duty with the Ranger Department. He was first assigned as an instructor with the Department after completing the Ranger School in 1956. Sgt. Burton was with the Rangers until 1958 when he was assigned to Iceland as a communications chief. Upon his return from Iceland in 1959, he was again assigned to the Ranger Department.

Sgt. Burton also attended and successfully completed the Demolition School here to become a qualified demolition expert.

A native of Akron, Ohio, he entered the Army in 1952 and received his basic training at Camp Breckinridge, Kentucky. Upon completing his training he spent three years in Germany as an Infantryman with the 1st Infantry Division, before coming to Fort Benning.

Alabama College ROTC Graduates Hear Gen. Harris

Major Gen. Hugh P. Harris, commandant of The Infantry School and commanding general of The Infantry Center was the speaker at commissioning ceremonies at Jacksonville (Ala.) State College last Friday.



The program was held in the ROTC Building. Refreshments were served following the exercises.

Lt. Col. David J. Coleman, professor of military science at the school, administered the oath of office and presented second lieutenant commissions to 14 ROTC graduates.

POWER TERMINATION

It is sometimes advisable to provide in the power of attorney a certain date of termination, generally from three years. Thus the power of attorney is automatically terminated as of that date.

BOOKS in REVIEW

THE FIVE-MINUTE DESSERT by Marie B. Ray. (Doubleday, 1961)

A non-cook book, these desserts require no cooking. A few call for heating or bringing to a boil; or perhaps even popping into the oven for a few minutes, but nothing that could really be called cooking in the full, fussier sense of the word. The right word is combining of ingredients.

RED STAR OVER CUBA by Nathaniel Weyl. (Devin-Adair, 1961)

This is the shocking story of how a People's Republic was born within 90 miles of our frontiers. It is the equally shocking story of the part played by our own State Department in handing Cuba over to the bearded dictator Fidel Castro's despite specific warning from two recent Cuban Ambassadors that Castro's movement was a Communist one, Soviet inspired.

THE FUTURE OF THE HUMAN MIND by Nancy E. Gross. (Dutton, 1961)

"Today the human mind contains resources that most people barely tap. We know, for example, that so-called lightning calculators, who may be simple-minded in other respects, can solve mentally in sounds complex mathematical problems that would take trained mathematicians many times longer to work out even with the aid of calculating machines. Hypnotism can induce a subject to do in ten seconds mental work that would take half an hour in the normal state."

FOR MY GREAT FOLLY by Thomas B. Costain. (Doubleday, 1961)

Re-creates the era of English pirates who waged a private war with Spain in the seventeenth century. These brave sea dogs risked their lives to keep the sea lanes open, and their reward was to be branded "pirate."

THE ATROCITY by Jackson Burgess. (Putnam's, 1961)

This is the story of a powerful and skillfully told story of a young American sergeant in command of a company of men stationed at an ammunition dump behind the lines of combat in Italy. In 1945 the end of the war in the European theater brings idleness and demoralization to the men of his company, his own ability to keep firm but warmly respected command over the men even begins to give way in an atmosphere of restlessness and subtly crumbling morale.

Masquers--Unmasked

Although the spring production has yet to be presented by The Masquers, the summer play has already been selected by a reading committee, a drama by the author of the June play.

"Miss Lonely Hearts" by Howard Teichmann was chosen but no director has been named. Before the final curtain of "The Girls in 509" comes down, the casting for the next play is expected to be complete.

Also selected by the little theater group are two one-act plays scheduled for presentation over Radio Station WMAH in Martin Army Hospital. The plays, a comedy and a drama, will be broadcast live on the theater group are two one-act patients of the hospital.

Selected for the radio program are "The Still Alarm," a comedy by George S. Kaufman, and the drama, "When The Sun Rises" by Dorothy C. Allen.

The cast in the comedy includes five parts and the drama has three. Helen Vogel is director for the radio productions.

Rehearsals for "The Girls in 509" continued this week. The play will be held Saturday and Sunday (June 10, and 11).

SAVINGS BONDS

The Army has set its sights on a 65 per cent rate of participation by its military members and civilian employees. Last year 42 per cent of its military members and 51 per cent of its civilian employees were buying bonds through automatic deductions from their pay. Despite the percentage differences, the Army's military personnel and civilian employees put almost equal amounts into savings bonds — $68,898,000 and $70,248,000 respectively.

OCS Class Is Last To Shoot M-2

The 52nd Officer Candidate Company, 5th Student Battalion, The Student Brigade, was the last class ever to receive instruction on the M-2 carbine.

After receiving both classroom instruction and range firing with this weapon, the men were told that future classes will train with the M-14 rifle, which is rapidly replacing the carbine, M-1 rifle and Browning Automatic Rifle, as the Infantry's basic weapon.

While the carbine is now obsolete, the new replacement weapons are not being mass issued but are being phased into the system; therefore, the carbine will be present in line units for some time.

Coins of 1793 to 1870 Found In Attic by Officer Candidate

Finding a treasure of old coins stashed away in the corner of an attic may sound like a fairy tale, but it actually happened to Officer Candidate Jay P. Reakirt, 52nd Company, 5th Student Battalion, The Student Brigade, at The Infantry School.

Upon the death of his grandfather, Officer Candidate Reakirt became the heir to a coin collection started by his great great grandfather in the early 1850's.

Packed away in a back room of an attic in barrels and boxes, Reakirt found the collection that is virtually complete from 1793 to 1870. There are six coins missing, but they are expected to turn up later as the complete collection has not been examined.

An 1827 proof set containing a half dollar, quarter, and a dime, which is believed to be the only set in existence, was also among the coins.

Officer Candidate Reakirt also has a large collection of early American documents among which is an order from Gen. George Washington to the commander of troops at Bobbs Ferry, dated August 25, 1781. He also has some morning reports of Revolutionary War units, and some personal letters written by Thomas Jefferson and Alexander Hamilton.

His entire coin collection is scheduled to be shown at Atlanta, during the American Numismatic Association Show in August.

Pilot Training Open for Some Army Officers

Washington (AFPS) — A very limited number of Army lieutenant colonels will be trained as aviators during fiscal year 1962.

Officers who wish to apply for this highly competitive program should do so under the provisions of AR 611-110. According to the Deputy Chief of Staff (Personnel), all officers who applied in 1956 or later and who are now lieutenant colonels or promotable majors will be considered automatically unless they have withdrawn their statements of interest.

SAFETY IS FIRST WORD

The operator of a power lawn mower should wear heavy gloves, shoes, and snug fitted clothing. If safety glasses or face shields are available, they should also be worn. Never wear abbreviated clothing or open toed shoes.

AMU Shooters Break Five Records In Sanctioned Indoor Rifle Meet

Five national records were smashed and two tied by Army riflemen on the post April 28 and 29 during the Advanced Marksmanship Unit's annual Tournament of Champions, a series of eight .22 caliber Gallery matches in which firers shot to establish new records.

The first record to fall was that for the Prone and Standing Match, 10 shots from each position at the standard range of 50 feet, toppled by Capt. Daniel B. Puckel, who fired a perfect 200 x 200 and an additional 61 more "10's." Capt. Puckel's match total exceeded the old mark by 29 "10's."

The next four records to fall were those of team events. In the Two Man Iron Sight Match, 10 shots per man from the prone, kneeling and standing positions, five out of seven competing teams surpassed the old mark of 579 out of a possible 600.

The new match record of 589 was shot by 1st Lts. Tommy G. Pool and John R. Foster.

In the Four Man Team Iron Sights Match from the prone and standing positions, the new mark of 1,569 out of 1,600 points went into the record books. The match, 60 shots per man, was won by Capt. Puckel, Lt. Pool, Lt. Foster and 1st Lt. Barry R. Trew.

Lt. Pool and Cpl. Gary Anderson fired a two-man score of 594 out of 600 points to establish a new record for the Two Man Team Any Sights Match. This match called for 10 shots each from the prone, standing and kneeling positions. It saw four out of six team entries shattered the old mark of 589 points out of 600.

The last broken mark was accounted for by the four man team of 1st Lt. Foster and Pool, 2nd Lt. Lonés W. Wigger and Cpl. Anderson. In the Prone and Standing Match permitting any sights, the four riflemen compiled a joint score of 1,573 out of 1,600 possible points, eight over the old mark.

The two records tied were matched by Lt. Pool and Trew. In the Individual Prone and Standing Match calling for iron sights, Lt. Pool had a 198 x 200 to equal to match mark, and the Three Position Any Sights Match mark of 398 x 400 was reached by Lt. Trew.

All firing was sanctioned by the National Rifle Association. The new marks will be officially recorded as national 50-foot Gallery records.

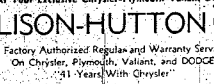
French Writers To Visit Benning

Twenty French journalists will visit Fort Benning June 8 to 10 to observe training and demonstrations for the U. S. Military Academy Class of 1962 at The Infantry School.

The 580-man cadet group will be at the post June 7 to 13.

The journalists will arrive at Lawson Field at 11:30 a.m. June 8 and view presentations on the role of the Infantry Rangers in action and reinforced rifle company, in defense that day.



Brig. Gen. A. D. Surles, Jr., deputy commanding general of The Infantry Center, will host an official luncheon for the French visitors June 9 in the Main Officers' Open Mess.

On June 9 the French newsmen will be given the opportunity to see the USMA cadets participate in mounted rifle platoon in attack, leaders' reaction testing or Airborne instruction in parachute landing, swing landing trainer, mock door and 34-foot tower techniques. That afternoon the cadets and press visitors will witness a demonstration of fire-power and airmobile assault.

Accompanying the journalists will be Capt. Samuel Delfalls, assistant military escort; Joseph Dobrich, interpreter, and Peter F. Brescia of the U.S. Embassy in Paris.

For Soldiers

Concerts Featured At Meals

Twice a week soldiers in mess halls are treated to a concert during their noon meal by The Infantry Center Band which, later in the day, moves to a dependent housing area for an open-air program.

The Monday and Thursday concerts are held from 12:15 to 1 p.m. and from 5:30 to 6:15 p.m. and will continue throughout the summer, according to CWO Jervis Beebe, band director.

On June 5 troops in the 151st Engineer Group and Lawson Army Aviation Command will hear the noon concert and the second one will be at The Infantryman Statue on Eubanks Field.

The bandsmen will play for troops in Company D, 1st Battle Group, 2th Infantry, 1st Infantry Brigade, during their noon hour on June 8. The Capehart Housing area is the site for the late afternoon concert.

Dependents living near "Riverside," the commanding general's quarters, may hear the band which will play on the lawn at 5:30 p.m. June 12. The noon concert that day will be held at the Combat Support Company, 1st Battle Group, 29th Infantry Mess.

21 Drivers Awarded in Medical Bn.

Twenty-one enlisted men of the 429th Medical Battalion were recently awarded Motor Vehicle Safe Drivers Badges by their battalion commander, Lt. Col. Raymond J. Caldbeck, at a retreat review.

The award is made to drivers who have driven 12 consecutive months with neither an accident nor a traffic violation.

The 69th Ambulance Company had the greatest number of men to receive the award with 17 recipients. These include Spt's Joseph J. Hartman, James A. Glover, Horst P. Ruffing, Robert H. Jackson, Charles W. Watts and Ercell Butler, Spt Earl H. Dickerson, Pfc's Edward H. Ambrose, Robert S. Ansel, Jerome P. Boyd, Jerry W. Gleason, Armoked J. Migues, Raymond F. Vanmeter, Roger Whitehead, John A. Williams and Edward Pilolak. Spt Cottrell D. Howell also was awarded the badge.

Two men from the 3rd Field Hospital, Spt Livingston Glenn and Pfc Ray Gonzales, Jr., received the award.

From the Headquarters Detachment Spt's Bobby Copeland and Thomas F. Datema were presented badges.

CITIZENSHIP

If any certificate of citizenship, certificate of naturalization, declaration of intention, or other similar document has been lost or destroyed, application for another one should be made through the nearest Immigration and Naturalization Service office.

PAKISTANI VISITORS . . . Col. Mohammad Ramzan (C), assistant director of medical services, Division Headquarters, Pakistani Army, is presented an Infantry School "Follow Me" pin during a two-day visit on post. Making the presentation is Brig. Gen. A. D. Surles Jr., deputy commanding general of The Infantry Center. Col. Ramzan and Col. Nawabzada Ali Ahmad Khan (R), assistant director of medical services, Line of Communication Sub-Area, Pakistan, also received Honorary Doughboy Certificates.

Volunteers Called For

Washington (AFPS) — The Army is seeking volunteers in virtually every enlisted grade to fill vacancies existing in Airborne and Special Forces units.

A new circular announces the program intended to "fill specific shortages projected during the first quarter of fiscal year 1962."

The circular, 614-6, dated May 3, now being distributed to the field, outlines how enlisted men from E-2 to E-9 inclusive can apply for the training and also the number of vacancies in military occupational specialties (MOS).

Most in demand are light weapons infantryman, medical specialist, medical corpsman and combat engineer.

Complete information on qualifications for Airborne and Special Forces training are also contained in the circular.

Dog Demonstration Set at Key School

The 26th Infantry Scout Dog Platoon, 1st Infantry Brigade, will present a demonstration of Army canines in action at the James B. Key school in Columbus this afternoon.

A squad of scout dogs will show obedience training and dismounted drill at 1 p.m., followed by the introduction of a sentry dog, which is trained to attack. Students in grades two through six will witness the demonstration.

Second Lt. Robert Ferguson, commander of the platoon, will narrate the presentation.

CARE FARM TOOLS . . . A 4-S (like our 4-H) Club member in Guatemala grasps the CARE farm tools that are helping him learn techniques for bigger crops. Agricultural implements, contribution-priced at 10 or 11 dollars per package depending on the country of delivery are given to needy farmers as part of CARE's efforts to feed the hungry and give them tools to help themselves. The regional office, 803 Forsyth Building, Atlanta 3, Ga., will send full information on request. (CARE Photo)

Flag Day June 14

Commander's Message

TO ALL PERSONNEL OF THE THIRD UNITED STATES ARMY:

Wednesday, June 14, 1961, will be a day of double significance since it marks both the 186th anniversary of the founding of the United States Army and the observance of Flag Day.

It is fitting, on this important occasion, that we review not only our history as the nation's senior military service, but also our present missions and responsibilities. The Army was instrumental in giving birth to the United States and many of its traditions. Today it carries on those traditions as an important member of the Defense team, whose primary purpose is to deter aggression, through strength, and to be ready to meet and repel aggression if it should come.

The modern members of our ONE ARMY are ready to defend our way of life at any time, anywhere, and in any manner that may prove necessary. They serve their country and their flag in the same spirit that motivated their forebears and their contributions are as vital as any that have been made since the Minutemen fought at Lexington and Concord.

Our flag is honored on this dual anniversary as the symbol of our country, and the Army as its oldest defender. I ask each of you to join me in resolving that the future shall be no less a source of pride to us as members of the Army than the past has been, and that we shall continue to do what is necessary to insure the perpetuation of the stars and stripes as the symbol of freedom and liberty throughout the world.

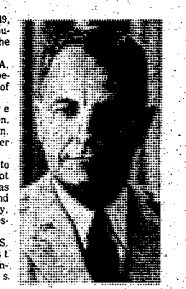
Honors on Chapel Field Welcome New Deputy CG



Brig. Gen. John E. Kelly '49, will assume the duties of deputy commanding general of The Infantry Center tomorrow.

He succeeds Brig. Gen. A. D. Surles, Jr., who will become assistant commandant of The Infantry School.

Arrival ceremonies were held on Chapel Field for Gen. Kelly yesterday morning. Gen. Surles was local commander for the honors.

Gen. Kelly was assigned to Headquarters, Fourth Army at Fort Sam Houston, Texas, as assistant G-3 in July, 1960, and was named G-3 in February. He was promoted to his present rank May 1.

A 1936 graduate of the U.S. Military Academy at West Point, N. Y., Gen. Kelly considers Bismarck, N. D., his home.

GEN. KELLY

WW II Action

He was a battalion commander of the 378th Infantry, 95th Infantry Division in Europe during World War II, participating in four campaigns.

His decorations include the Distinguished Service Cross, Silver Star and Bronze Star Medal

GEN. SURLES

Brig. Gen. A. D. Surles, Jr., deputy commanding general of The Infantry Center, has been named to succeed Brig. Gen. L. A. Walsh, Jr., as assistant commandant of The Infantry School.

Gen. Walsh will leave the post tomorrow for duty in Korea.

Gen. Surles assumed his present position last August. He previously served in the dual capacity of deputy commander and chief of staff of U. S. Army Hawaii and the 25th Infantry Division.

A 1937 graduate of the U. S. Military Academy, he attended the advanced management program of the Graduate School of Business Administration, Harvard University, in with two Oak Leaf Clusters.

Gen. Kelly attended The Infantry School's regular officer course in 1939 and tank course the following year. He received a master of arts degree from the University of Quebec, Canada, in 1941.

The one-star general served two tours as French and Spanish language instructor at the Military Academy from 1940 to 1943 and 1946 to 1948. Assigned to European Command headquarters in 1949, he served as executive officer of the G-3 Division and assistant to the G-3.

Korean Command

After graduating from the Army War College at Carlisle Barracks, Pa., in 1953, Gen. Kelly went to Combat Operations Research Group at Fort Monroe, Va. The following year he was named commander of the 160th Regiment "Grenadiers," 40th Infantry Division in Korea.

Later in 1954 he became senior aide to Gen. J. Lawton Collins, the U. S. representative on the Standing Group of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization in Washington, D. C. The following year he was designated chief of staff of U.S. Element, Standing Group of NATO.

Assigned to Hawaii in 1957, Gen. Kelly commanded a battle group of the 27th Infantry "Wolfhound," for 15 months, then served as G-3 of U.S. Army, Hawaii.

Gen. Kelly and his wife, Jane, have seven children. They are Mrs. Stanley H. Quigg, who resides in Singapore; Cadet Patrick O. Kelly, a second classman at the Military Academy; John E., Jr., 17; Richard A., 12; Maureen, 11; Timothy, 8, and Erin, 4.

Gen. Surles

Boston in 1956.

Preceding World War II Gen. Surles served with the 6th Cavalry Regiment, Fort Bliss, Texas; 12th Cavalry Regiment, Fort Brown, Texas, and the 81st Reconnaissance Battalion, 1st Armored Division, Fort Knox, Ky. He was graduated from the Command and General Staff College, Fort Leavenworth, Kan., in April, 1942.

Following a year's tour as G-3 of the 6th Armored Division, Fort Chaffee, Ark., he became chief of the Training Test Section and later G-3 of II Armored Corps at San Jose, Calif. From October, 1943, to August, 1944, he was G-3 of XVIII Corps.

WWII Action

When XVIII Corps was designated an airborne unit and transferred to Europe in 1944, Gen. Surles continued to serve as its G-3. His combat service with the corps included Belgium and the Rhur Pocket.

Moving to the Pacific with XVIII Corps, he became G-1 of the Luzon Area Command in the Philippines in September, 1945. He was named public relations officer of Eighth Army in Japan a month later.

With the organization of the United Nations, Gen. Surles served on the UN Military Staff Committee from May, 1946, to July, 1948. He then served in the Canal Zone in successive assignments as assistant director of plans and operations, Caribbean Command, and commander of the 45th Mechanized Cavalry Reconnaissance Squadron.

Korea

He went to Korea in February, 1951, as operations officer, G-3 Section of Eighth Army, serving later as deputy secretary of the General Staff, Far East Command, Supreme Command Allied Powers and United Nations Command. From August, 1951, to the following April, he commanded the 5th Regimental Combat Team in Korea.

Returning to the United States in July, 1952, Gen. Surles served for one year as G-3 of the Military District of Washington, then attended the Army War College at Carlisle Barracks, Pa. He returned to Washington in June, 1954, as an assistant secretary and later deputy secretary of the General Staff, Office of the Chief of Staff of the Army.

Hawaii

On completing the four-month Harvard University course, Gen. Surles was assigned to Hawaii in January, 1957, as vice chief of staff, U. S. Army Pacific. That June he became chief of staff and later deputy commander and chief of the U. S. Army Hawaii and the 25th Division.

Among his decorations are the Silver Star, Legion of Merit with Oak Leaf Cluster, Bronze Star Medal and Army Commendation Medal with Oak Leaf Cluster.

Gen. Walsh

evening in the Custer Terrace Branch of the Main Mess. Some 65 department heads of The Infantry School and officers of The Infantry Center General Staff and their wives were invited to the affair.

Gen. Walsh came to the post in September, 1959, and served as deputy commanding general of The Infantry Center until assuming his present duties in August, 1960.

A native of New York City, he was graduated from the U. S. Military Academy at West Point in 1934. For the next five years Gen. Walsh held various Infantry posts in the continental United States and Hawaii.

After attending The Infantry School's regular officer advanced course from August, 1939, to the following January, he remained at Fort Benning with the 29th Infantry Regiment. He attended Parachute School at the post in 1941 and activated and commanded the 517th Parachute Infantry Regiment, 17th Airborne Division, from March, 1943, to June, 1944.

Was in Philippines

Following his tour with the 517th, Gen. Walsh was parachute operations officer for the commander in chief, Pacific. In February, 1945, he jumped with the 511th Parachute Infantry Regiment, 11th Airborne Division, at Tagaytay Ridge, Philippines, later assuming command of the regiment.

On completing the Command and General Staff College, Fort Leavenworth, Kan., in 1945, he attended the post hostilities training course at the University of Michigan in preparation for service as chief of the Army Section, U. S. Military Mission to Colombia from November, 1946, to May, 1959.

He then served in the Far East and Pacific Branch, Operations Division, Office of the Deputy Chief of Staff for Plans and Operations, Department of the Army. He is a 1951 graduate of the Armed Forces Staff College, Norfolk, Va.

Commanded 503rd

In January, 1952, Gen. Walsh began an 18-month tour as commander of the 503rd Airborne Infantry Regimental Combat Team, 11th Airborne Division at Fort Campbell. He was in Korea from August, 1953, to July, 1954, in successive assignments as commander of the 294th Infantry Regiment, 40th Division, and chief of the Operations Division, G-3 Section, and deputy G-3 of Headquarters, Eighth Army.

After attending the National War College, Fort McNair, Washington, D. C., in 1954-1955, he became U. S. member of the Intelligence Committee, Standing Group of NATO in Washington for two years.

Gen. Walsh then was named assistant to the deputy commanding general for Reserve Forces of U. S. Continental Army Command, Fort Monroe, Va. He held this position until, May, 1958, when he went to the Canal Zone as J-4 of Headquarters, Caribbean Command.

Among Gen. Walsh's decorations are the Silver Star, Legion of Merit, Bronze Star Medal with two Oak Leaf Clusters, U. S. Distinguished Unit as well as Philippine and Korean. Presidential Unit Citations and the Cruz de Buyaca of Colombia. He is a Master Parachutist and wears the Combat Infantryman Badge.

Message From Gen. Harris

TO THE MEMBERS OF THE INFANTRY OF THE UNITED STATES ARMY

On the 186th anniversary of the Infantry, I wish to extend congratulations to all Infantrymen at the United States Army Infantry Center.

Almost two centuries ago the United States Army Infantry began a history which is unequaled in self-sacrifice, discipline and readiness to meet any challenge. While the Infantry now gears itself to new weapons and tactics of the future, it is the individual Infantryman with his skill, his courage and his response to leadership who determines success in battle.

I am confident that the Infantry will continue its enviable record of the past. My best wishes go to all Infantrymen who will today join in celebrating this 186th anniversary of their arm.

COLOR GUARD . . . Although the Army flag is only five years old, its design was first approved in 1779, only two years after the U.S. flag was born.

American Flag's Development Parallels Our Nation's History

The story of the origin of our National flag parallels the story of the origin of our country.

As our country received its birthright from the peoples of many lands so did the pattern of the Stars and Stripes rise from several origins back in the mists of time to become emblazoned on the standards of our infant Republic.

The star is a symbol of the heavens and divine goal man has aspired to since the beginning of time. The stripe is symbolic of rays of sunlight. Both themes have long been used on the flags of nations from the banners of the star worshippers of ancient Egypt and Babylon to the striped or starred present patterns on many Asian, African and European flags.

Early Americans' struggles with the wilderness and for independence were typified by beavers, pine trees, rattlesnakes, anchors and mottoes such as "Hope", "Liberty", "Appeal to Heaven" or "Don't Tread On Me" which appeared on banners of the Colonies.

The Grand Union flag often called the "Congress Colors" was the first flag to have any resemblance of our present Stars and Stripes. It has thirteen red and white stripes with a blue field in the upper left corner. The crosses of St. George and St. Andrew, to signify union with the mother country, were placed on the blue field.

The Grand Union flag became the standard of the Continental Army in January, 1776.

On June 14, 1777, Continental Congress passed a resolution that established the Stars and Stripes but did not specify the arrangement of the thirteen stars on the blue union. As a result there were a variety of forms.

The first Army flag, popularly known as the Betsy Ross flag, had the stars arranged in a circle, based on the idea that no colony should take precedence. The Navy arranged the stars in alternate rows of threes and twos.

The resolution establishing the Stars and Stripes has an interesting history. After the Declaration of Independence, colonial vessels flew the flags of the Colonies to which they belonged. It was necessary to provide an authorized national flag for them because England considered armed vessels without such a flag as pirate ships and hanged their crews if they were captured.

Thus the Stars and Stripes came into being; born amid the strife of battle, it became the standard around which a free people struggled to found and preserve a great nation.

Service School May Provide Credit

Attendance at a service school may provide the last credits needed for a degree from a college or university. At last Friday's graduation ceremony at Auburn University, I watched Capt. Gene Livingston of Fort Rucker parade in his cap and gown five years later than he should have — if he had just known it.

He entered the Army four and a half credit hours short of his degree, put in a full tour in Europe and another two years stationed stateside, thinking all the time that he would have to manage to attend classes for those last credit hours. When he finally went to Auburn, his Alma Mater, to inquire into it, he was told his Army flight school would fill the bill.

Incidentally, we sat in the bleachers of the football stadium with his four-year-old daughter for the ceremonies. She looked around, asked about "Daddy" several times, and then in a loud clear voice demanded to know "when does the ball game start?"

Article of Lasting Interest

We often wish the Bayonet had some of the advantages of a magazine so that long reprints could be made available, ones which have a strong meaning and great interest for our readers. If we could run two or three page stories, one would appear here today entitled "One Hundred And Eighty-Six Years."

Written three years ago by Col. James W. Bellah, it appeared in Army Magazine on the 183rd anniversary of the Army, and is the property of the Association of the U.S. Army.

Tracing the history of the Army from those first hectic days in 1775, the article sums up the American fighting spirit and faces frankly and squarely the attitudes of soldiers throughout the years. Those who can find the June, 1958, Army Magazine issue will find a stimulating and refreshing story for their trouble. We highly recommend it.

Will It Fly This Year? Or Is Flying Flag Passe

Fifty years ago almost every home flew the American flag on national holidays. Even 20 years ago it was still family tradition to fly the "Stars and Stripes" on Fourth of July and on June 14th—Flag Day.

As the years have progressed, flying the flag at home has seemingly become passe. Fewer and fewer flags made their appearance until now so few fly at home that the handful displayed in many cases causes comment, "Gee, what is today?"

The symbolic red and white stripes and blue field with white stars appear in many unlikely forms and places these days. Cereal boxes display them. Street lamps are festooned with them for National Pickle Week. TV starlets wear dresses patterned from them.

Why has the tradition of reverent respect fallen away? Has patriotism become something to be given lip-service only?

What now occupies the place of honor on the top shelf of the linen closet? (Remember? That's where the flag was always kept between holidays on the shelf forbidden to the children.)

Will you reverently take the flag from its resting place and, with respectful ceremony, display it June 14th? Or will it lie forgotten on its own 184th anniversary — and the 186th birthday of the United States Army, the army which has defended that same symbol of the nation against "isms" threatening to trample it.

Are you proud of being an American? Display this pride to your neighbors. Fly the American Flag on June 14th!

Gen. Walsh's Influence Will Long Be Felt Here

Brig. Gen. L. A. Walsh, Jr., has served as assistant commandant of The Infantry School since August, 1960. His influence on the future of the famed school will long be felt.

He has demonstrated particular interest and encouragement in the development of young officers attending the Infantry officer orientation course, Officer Candidate School, basic Airborne and Ranger courses.

During his tour at The School, he has directed a complete review of each course of instruction and incorporated major revisions where indicated. In implementing these changes, he gave the utmost consideration to the changing nature of students' previous experience and demands of future conflicts.

Acutely aware of the influence of the family on an officer's performance of duty, Gen. Walsh strongly supported a program to orient wives of newly commissioned officers on their opportunities and responsibilities in the service. It is expected that his program will result in an improved percentage of officers requesting extended service.

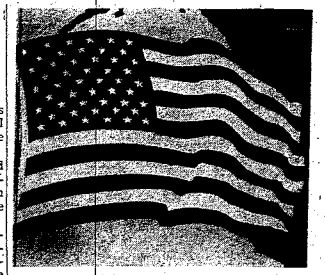
Under the guidance of Gen. Walsh, plans for a modern academic building for The Infantry School are reaching completion. His untiring efforts in behalf of this project through all levels of review resulted in its favorable presentation to Congress.

The Army phase of the Joint Civilian Orientation Conference at Fort Benning last October was planned and supervised by Gen. Walsh. High praise for The Infantry School and the entire Army was evoked by the JCOC presentations for the visiting dignitaries.

Faced with increasing demands for personnel and fiscal reductions coupled with broader instructional and doctrinal missions, Gen. Walsh found practical solutions to these problems. He has given particular attention to combat development activities, including the evaluation of proposed new material to ensure that such items meet the Infantryman's needs.

Gen. Walsh also materially assisted his subordinates in developing their maximum capabilities by close observation of the faculty and staff at briefings, in the classroom and in the field.

In this connection, Gen. Walsh has held weekly meetings with Academic Department directors and other key school personnel to generate ideas beneficial to the school and to Infantrymen everywhere.



He has brought favorable attention to the Infantry on an Army-wide scale. He instituted a program of maintaining personal contact with many prominent Infantrymen throughout the service and has utilized these contacts as well as official correspondence in preparing current and future Infantry doctrine.

Gen. Walsh's marked leadership, enthusiasm and professional competence will be missed. But hundreds of young officers will have grown taller by his having been here.

Flag Day---June 14

Colorful programs commemorating Flag Day will be held at Fort Benning and in Columbus June 14. Post personnel also will participate in Flag Day ceremonies at Third Army Headquarters at Fort McPherson.

Flag Day events at Stilwell Field will be staged from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. and are open to the public. Throughout the period, modern Army weapons will be displayed by The Infantry School's Weapons Department and the 1st Infantry Brigade.

The Continental Congress passed a resolution establishing the Stars and Stripes June 14, 1777. The date also is celebrated as the Army Birthday. On June 14, 1775, Congress voted to raise 10 companies of riflemen in the Continental service and appointed a committee to prepare regulations for the Army. A copy of the Congressional decree establishing the Army will be displayed in a glass case at the weapons display.

The 2nd Infantry Division Band will present a concert from 12:15 to 12:30 p.m. on Stilwell Field. The division will stage a miniature review from 12:30 to 1 p.m. with Brig. Gen. William L. Hardick, commanding general, as the reviewing officer. This will be followed by another 15-minute presentation by the band.

Company-size units of the major commands will hold open house from 1 to 5 p.m. The public is invited.

Among these will be the 539th Ordnance Company, Infantry Center Troop Command; 50th Medical Company, 420th Medical Battalion; 98th Engineer Company, 151st Engineer Group; one company each from the 1st Battle Group, 29th Infantry, 1st Armored Rifle Battalion, 58th Infantry, and the 2nd Howitzer Battalion, 10th Artillery, all of the 1st Infantry Brigade, and companies representing The Student Brigade and Lawson Army Aviation Command.

Lawson Command also will present a display of Army aircraft from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Lawson Field.

Capt. Clair E. Heinbach of The Infantry Center G-3 Section is the project officer.

The Columbus Elks Club is sponsoring Flag Day observances in Columbus. The Infantry Center Band, Honor Guard and a color guard will appear in a parade in Columbus at 4:30 p.m. Cecil Parker is parade chairman.

Forty-seven officers and men from The Infantry School's Ground Mobility Department, 1st Infantry Brigade, 151st Engineer Group and 2nd Division will participate in a Flag Day static display on the parade ground of Fort McPherson from 1 to 5 p.m.

The 26th Infantry Scout Dog Platoon, 1st Infantry Brigade, will present a demonstration of dismounted drill and obedience at the Third Army ceremonies.

Army Flag Says: 'This We'll Defend'

The United States Army flag, in contrast to the 184-year-old American flag, is only five but its heritage and main device date back to 8 March 1779.

This 182-year-old design was originally authorized by the Continental Congress as the seal of the War Office.

Became DA Seal

The War Office gave way to the Department of War in 1789 and so it remained until 1947's National Security Act. It was then redesignated the Department of the Army and the seal became the DA symbol.

Although various elements of the Army have had their colors and identifying flags, the first flag to stand for the US Army as a whole was presented by former Vice President Nixon to former Secretary of the Army Brucker on 13 June 1956. It first flew the next day, 14 June, at Independence Hall in Philadelphia. Appropriately it was both Flag Day and the 181st anniversary of the Army.

White Silk

Utilizing the national colors, the flag is of white silk with the War Office seal in blue over a wide red scroll inscribed with "United States Army". Below the scroll is "1775" in blue, commemorating the year the Army was established. The flag is bordered with yellow fringe.

The central seal is described as: "A cannon in front of a drum with two drumsticks; below the cannon three cannon balls. A mortar on a trunion and below the mortar, two powder flasks.

In the center a Roman breastplate over a jupon (leather jacket). Above the breastplate rises a plane sword with the pommel and guard supporting a Phrygian cap between an espanton (pike) and an organizational color on one side, and a musket with a fixed bayonet and the National Color on the other side.

Above is a rattlesnake holding in its mouth a scroll inscribed "This We'll Defend".

What more fitting motto could ever be found for the United States Army?

Infantry Coffee Held At MOOM

The ladies of the 1st Armored Rifle Battalion, 58th Infantry, 1st Infantry Brigade, held their monthly coffee in the Normandy Room of the Main Officers' Open Mess last Friday.

The event was conducted by Mrs. Christine Caprino, wife of the new battalion commander.

Newcomers to the unit, Mesdames William Burton, William Walsh and Thomas Vining, wives of newly arrived second lieutenants, and Mrs. Ruth Pettit, mother of Capt. Ernest Pettit, commanding officer of Company A, were introduced and welcomed.

The ladies of Company A acted as hostesses. Those were the Mesdames Joseph Prescott, Malcolm Morrow, Reid Greenwood, Darrell Truitt and James Foley.

Wives Hold Reception, Coffee Following Parade

The Blue Day Parade of the 50th Officer Candidate Company took place recently at Sightseeing Field. The parade was reviewed by Brig. Gen. L. A. Walsh Jr., assistant commandant of The Infantry School.

A reception followed in the company's mess hall. Refreshments were served by the hostesses, Marcia Campbell, Kitty Breese, Christina Athanasiou, Rachel Higdon, Betty Puckha-

British Officer Addresses Kiwanis

Lt. Col. John Stuart McLaren, British liaison officer at The Infantry School, addressed the Columbus, Kiwanis Club last week. "British Sport" was the subject of his talk at the luncheon meeting at the Ralston Hotel. Col. McLaren was assigned to Fort Benning last December. He entered the British Army in 1939 and is a member of the Somerset and Cornwall Light Infantry.

"Rainbow" Theme For Gold Bar Club Dinner

"Over the Rainbow" was the theme for the formal dinner dance held recently at the Gold Bar Club by The Student Brigade.

The hall centerpiece was a rainbow from the ceiling to the floor, ending with a pot of gold. The colors of the rainbow signified the different branches of crests found in the pot of gold, denoting numerous Army fields of study. White and aqua carnations were found throughout the scene.

Dinner was followed by entertainment consisting of the "Retreaters", a vocal group of officer candidates, and a combo.

A speech was made by Brig. Gen. L. A. Walsh, Jr., assistant commandant of the Infantry School.

The honored guests included Gen. and Mrs. Walsh, Lt. Col. and Mrs. Otto Koch, Lt. Col. and Mrs. R. W. Ulrich, Capt. and Mrs. C. J. Kusick, Capt. and Mrs. H. R. Lascola, Capt. and Mrs. R. P. The breakfast will be held after the 8 a.m. Mass and Communion at the Main Post Catholic Chapel.

Guest speaker at the meeting will be Lt. Col. Daniel A. Lennon, Jr., deputy staff judge advocate of the Infantry Center.

Ranger Wives Meet For Coffee In Anzio Room

The wives of the Ranger Department met for their monthly luncheon in the Anzio Room of the Main Officers' Open Mess last week.

Each of the tables was decorated with flowers brought by Mesdames Bernard Teeters and John A. Meads Jr.

Mrs. Teeters introduced and welcomed Mrs. Shrader, the mother of Mrs. Christopher Gooch. Mrs. Meads presented Mrs. Alvin Ornstein with a farewell gift, a silver leaf ashtray with the inscription, "Ranger," on the stem.

Col. Teeters, department director, introduced a film on ranger training. The film depicted the training a man must go through to wear the "Ranger Tab". Following the film, Col. Teeters answered questions that were asked about the film and training procedures.

Jewel Johnson on Etiquette

Dear Jenni: Could you list appropriate costumes and the type social event for which they are acceptable?

Dear Mrs. Ward Robe: There are five types of dress worn to social affairs in the Washington, D.C., area, which with a little adaptation, may apply to the Benning-Columbus area. (My reference for this information is "The Complete Guide for the Serviceman's Wife" by Land & Gilmer)

The Day Dress . . . a simple dress or suit suitable for morning coffees and wearing into town. When in town, hat and gloves are worn, making it more formal. (Your favorite cotton skirt and blouse will look special if you add a pair of clean white heels and crisp white gloves, and they do wonders for your moral on a hot Georgia day)

The Important Day Dress . . . more elaborate, probably of silk, rayon or crepe (not taffeta or satin) and is generally worn to invitation luncheons and afternoon teas.

The Cocktail Dress . . . here the material can be taffeta, satin or velvet, the style generally covers the shoulders, and is a little longer and more elaborate style than either of the other two above.

The Short Dinner Dress . . . a substitute for the long dinner dress, is more decollete than the cocktail dress and a trifle longer than the street and cocktail dresses; ballerina, in other words. Earrings and necklace should be worn. (Frequently the cocktail dress is used as a short dinner dress, technically this substitution is in poor taste, however let the style of the honored lady at the affair be your guide and you will not be uncomfortable.)

The Longer Dinner Dress . . . which is floor length and usually decollete. Again, earrings and necklace are generally worn.

Remember, dress down for all affairs held in the morning; dress up for afternoon and evening. The more of you that shows, the more formal the outfit is considered (barring beach and sport clothes of course).

Col. Summers

USAIB Head Has Served Here Before

Col. William M. Summers became president of the Infantry Board last Thursday.

Col. Summers, who has been executive officer of the Infantry Board since July, succeeds Col. Thomas R. Clarkin, who has been assigned to the Army Assistance Advisory Group, Viet Nam in Saigon.

He previously served at Fort Benning from July, 1956, to September, 1957, as commander of the 7th Infantry Regiment of the 3rd Division.

Before returning to the post last July, he was chief of the International Division, Office of the Chief of Research and Development, Department of the Army, Washington.

He entered active military service in 1937 following graduation from the University of Oregon.

During World War II, Col. Summers served in Europe with the 413th Infantry Regiment, becoming regimental commander in March, 1945.

His awards include the Silver Star, Bronze Star Medal with cluster and the French Croix de Guerre.

Col. and Mrs. Summers have two sons, William Jr., and Owen, II.

Youngsters' Awarded At Post Rites

A Fort Benning Children's Schools honors and awards program was held Tuesday in Faith School auditorium.

Major Arthur C. Renfrow Jr., post dependent schools officer, presented the awards.

Students receiving awards were the annual field meet winners in grades five through eight, winners at the regional industrial arts fair, and members of the band, newspaper staff, student council and Safety Patrol.

Also, members of the newly organized French Club were recognized and awards presented to seventh and eighth grade homerooms placing first in the physical education intramurals.

The school band played "Thunder and Blazes March" by Bagley, "Salute to the Armed Forces" by Bennett and "America" during the program.

J. James Shiver Jr., principal of Faith School, served as master of ceremonies.

Profile of a Man Doing a Man's Job

Another example of a man doing a man's job is Sgt. Johnnie R. Sutton, Jr., of Battery C, 2nd Howitzer Battalion, 10th Artillery.

Sgt. Sutton is chief of section of a 8" self-propelled howitzer, M55. Being the chief of this section is a demanding job. It requires continuous work and study to stay abreast of the ever-changing concept of artillery deployment. Sgt. Sutton represents the 10th in displays and demonstrations for visiting dignitaries as well as scheduled classes of instruction for The Infantry School. Having the only self-propelled 8" Howitzer on Fort Benning puts Sgt. Sutton in a unique class by himself.

He is highly trained in the use and handling of nuclear ammunition which is characteristic of the 8" Howitzer. He received his training while serving in Germany with the 3rd Gun Battalion, 84th Artillery.

Since returning from Germany in January 1960, he has served with Battery C.

A native of Fulton, Kentucky, he entered the Army on June 14, 1955, and received his basic training at Fort Chaffee, Arkansas.

Sgt. Sutton, his wife and their daughter now reside in Columbus.

8th Grade Students Hold Picnic

The 243 eighth graders of the Fort Benning Children's Schools were entertained with a picnic and swimming party June 2 at Harmony Church Swimming Pool.

Mrs. Thomas M. Scovill was chairman of the mothers committee in charge of the affair. Mrs. Eugene N. Fisk served as co-chairman.

Special guests invited to the event were Mrs. Hazel Scudder, superintendent of the Children's Schools; Dr. Joseph T. Conforti, director of instruction, and Mrs. Conforti; Miss Ruth Massey, director of guidance; J. James Shiver Jr., principal of Faith School, and Mrs. Shiver; Mrs. Mildred Carter, assistant principal of Faith School, and eighth grade teachers.

Gen. Yeager Addresses Class At Post Graduation Ceremony

Major Gen. Walter B. Yeager, commanding general of XII Army Reserve Corps, Atlanta, spoke at graduation ceremonies for The Infantry School's Associate Officer Career Class 3 Wednesday.

Certificates were awarded to 189 students at the program in the Main Theater.

Gen. Yeager directs Army Reserve and ROTC activities in Georgia, South and North Carolina and Tennessee.

A native of Altoona, Pa., the two-star general served in the Naval Reserve from 1924 to 1928, when he entered the Marine Corps for four years. He participated in the Second Nicaraguan Campaign with the Marines.

After receiving a commission in the Army Reserve in May, 1932, Gen. Yeager was a CCC (Civilian Conservations Corps) company commander and then a district inspector. He attended The Infantry School in 1938.

From November, 1942, to April, 1945, he was a battalion commander in the 349th Infantry and executive officer of the 351st Infantry in the European - African - Mediterranean Theater. He was evacuated to the U. S. in December, 1944, after being wounded on four occasions.

Among his decorations are the Silver Star with Oak Leaf Cluster, Legion of Merit, Bronze Star Medal with Oak Leaf Cluster, Purple Heart with three Oak Leaf Clusters and the Cross of Military Valor of Italy.

In March, 1946, Gen. Yeager went to Peiping, China as an administrative officer of the Marshall Mission. A year later he was assigned to the U. S. Military Government in Korea, where he served in several capacities including chief of staff.

Gen. Yeager came to Fort Benning as an instructor at The Infantry School in April, 1948. He subsequently was G-3 of The Infantry Center. He was graduated from the Armed Forces Staff College in 1951. His next overseas assignment was as G-3 of the Army Section of the Joint U. S. Military Advisory Group in Greece.

A 1954 graduate of the Army War College, Gen. Yeager was promoted to the rank of brigadier general in August of that year and for the next year was senior adviser to the commanding general of the Korean Army Training Command. The following two years he was assistant commander of the 1st Armored Division at Fort Hood, Texas.

In June, 1957, Gen. Yeager received his second star and assumed command of the 10th Infantry Division in Germany. Thirteen months later he was named chief of staff to the commander - in - chief, Allied Land Forces Southern Europe, in Naples, Italy.

Cadets Feted Tonight

The Class of 1962 from the U.S. Military Academy at West Point, N. Y., will be feted at a hop given in Fort Benning's Main Officers' Open Mess tonight.

Approximately 580 cadets will attend the 7:30 p.m. event. The class is visiting the post until June 13. Young ladies from the area between the ages of 17 and 22 also will be guests at the affair.

The two receiving lines will include Brig. Gen. A. D. Surles Jr., deputy commanding general of The Infantry Center, Brig. Gen. William L. Hardick, commanding general of the 2nd Infantry Division, Brig. Gen. John E. Kelly, deputy commanding general-designate of The Infantry Center, Brig. Gen. Charles H. White, Jr., assistant commander of the 2nd Division, and their wives.

Cadet hop managers will introduce the guests to the receiving lines.

The Infantry Center Band will play for the occasion.

Belgian Embassy Officer Here For 10-Day Training

Lt. Col. John E. P. Groven, assistant military attache at the Belgian Embassy in Washington, D. C., has been receiving 10 days of observer training at The Infantry School.

While he is at the post, Col. Groven and his wife are the houseguests of Dr. and Mrs. Lionel G. Barraza of Columbus.

The Belgian officer conferred with Brig. Gen. L. A. Walsh Jr, assistant commandant of The Infantry School, Monday morning. He will leave the post today.

Major Robert G. Miller, Infantry School Allied liaison officer, is project officer for Col. Groven's visit.

Honor Company Seeks Material For Scrapbook

The Honor Guard Company is seeking historical material for a scrapbook and a display in the company area.

Company C, 1st Battle Group, 29th Infantry 1st Infantry Brigade is asking individuals who have served with the company for pictures, newspaper clippings, orders or souvenirs.

Material not used in the display will be returned to the donor.

Formerly designated the 29th Infantry Regiment, the unit was formed in 1813 and first came to Fort Benning in 1919.

It serves as support demonstration unit for The Infantry School.

Personnel who have material on the history of the company may telephone 2nd Lt. James B. Buckbee at 5-1438 or 5-3970.

Major Nettles Assumes Deputy Comptroller Job

Major William R. Nettles, Jr., will become deputy comptroller of The Infantry Center June 9. He succeeds Lt. Col. William J. Ray, who will leave the post for an assignment in Korea.

Major Nettles came to the post in July, 1959, and served initially as S-3 of the 9th Infantry, 2nd Infantry Division. He has been chief of the School's personnel Division, Infantry Center G-1 Section since last October.

The Judge Says . . .

By 1st Lt. Hugh Peterson, Jr.

Although few people know it, a parent can be made to pay for damage done by the negligent operation of the family car by his offspring. This is because of a rule of law which is appropriately known as the "family car" doctrine. Basically, the rule states that a parent who lets his child use the family car is liable for the negligent acts of the child while driving the car. It is in effect in Georgia, as well as other states.

The rule is based on a very ancient precept of law which holds a parent liable for the negligence of his child in the conduct of the parent's business. The Georgia courts have concluded that part of a parent's business is to provide for the comfort, convenience, and pleasure of his family.

One way to do this is to provide a car for the general use of the members of the household. Therefore, any negligent act occuring during the use of the family car by a child for his convenience or pleasure might result in the parents being liable for the damage caused.

The children referred to in the family car doctrine can either be minors or adults so long as they are living at home and have the use of the family car. Georgia courts have drawn the line and not held the father liable for the negligent driving of an adult son who did not live at home and did not depend upon his father for support.

On the other hand, Georgia courts have had that a father who keeps and maintains an automobile for the use, comfort, pleasure and convenience of his family, including his minor son, is responsible even for injuries resulting from the negligence of a third person whom the son permits to drive when the son remains in the automobile and retains control, authority and direction over it. So it is obvious that Car Doctrine is very broad.

This doctrine, however, should not be taken to say that a parent is liable for the negligence of their child no matter whose car the child is driving. The rule only applies to cases where the car belongs to one of the parents, and not where it belongs to the children themselves, or to other persons, including a mother-in-law.

The lesson to be learned from the existence of a rule such as this is that parents are not totally free from financial responsibility for the driving of their children. They have a pecuniary interest in seeing to it that their children are careful drivers, and that they do not create a hazard on the highway.

Sometimes a parent interest such as this can be a greater incentive to parental guidance and control that can a more fundamental moral obligation of the parents along these lines. It should be remembered that this rule, as it exists today, is very broad.

It is based on the notion that when a child uses a parent's automobile with the parent's express or implied consent, and uses it without charge for his pleasure and convenience, then the child is utilizing the car for the general purposes of the family.

It follows, therefore, that the parents should be held responsible for the negligence of the child. It should be pointed out that this rule applies also to personnel living on the Fort Benning reservation.

Celebration Tomorrow Marks 44th Year

58th Infantry Anniversary Recalls Proud Past

58TH TROOPS MAKE ASSAULT
After Helicopter Landing Demonstration

The 1st Armored Rifle Battalion, 58th Infantry, 1st Infantry Brigade, commanded by Lt. Col. Charles T. Caprino, will honor the 44th anniversary of the unit tomorrow with an Organization Day, featuring a full battle dress review and a visit by Brig. Gen. John E. Kelly, Fort Benning's new deputy commander.

The 58th Infantry, then referred to as a Regiment, was organized on June 10, 1917, at Gettysburg National Park, Pa. The regiment drew its personnel from the 4th Infantry Division and accompanied the division to Europe during the latter stages of World War I.

Action in France

Upon arrival in France, the 58th Infantry was assigned to the 8th Brigade, 4th Infantry Division, which served with the American Expeditionary Forces under the command of General John J. Pershing. The regiment saw its first action in combat on July 18, 1918, when elements took part in the Aisne-Marne Campaign by attacking with the French 13th Chasseux.

The 58th Infantry suffered nearly fifty per cent casualties during the service of World War I. As a tribute to the regiment, General Pershing said in his "Memoirs," "The fortitude and courage of the 4th Division, of which the 58th Infantry was a key unit in these operations, was truly inspiring."

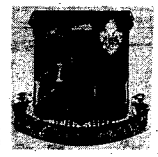
World War II

During World War II the regiment was divided into three separate battalions which served in Europe and the Aleutian Islands earning numerous battle streamers.

The 1st Armored Rifle Battalion, 58th Infantry, was activated on May 16, 1960, with two Armored Companies attached: Company C, 66th Armor, and Company D, 69th Armor. To honor their predecessors the 1st Armored Rifle Battalion will conduct a full battle dress review, which will be mounted and dismounted. The review will take place on Todd Field in the Harmony Church area. The reviewing officer will be Gen. Kelly.

Display

Among the interesting highlights of the day will be a display of the battalion's weapons systems. Included in the event will be three generations of Army Tanks: the M-3 tank, designed in 1939; the M-48 Patton Tanks currently used on Infantry School support problems; and the new M-60 tank, which just recently arrived.



All personnel of Fort Benning are welcomed to attend. The public is also invited.

The 58th Infantry is currently under the command of Col. Caprino. The executive officer is Major George S. Eyster, Jr. The battalion staff includes Capt. Russel M. Brami, S-1; 2nd Lt. James H. Weaver, S-2; Capt. William T. Manderson, S-4; and Major Kanemitsu Ito, S-3.

The 58th Infantry Crest

The broken chevron commemorates the piercing of the German line between Soissons and Rheims, which are represented by the silver and gold fleur-de-lis taken from the arms of those cities respectively.

The motto of the 58th Infantry is "Love of Country".

Chaplain's Corner

By Chaplain (1st Lt.) Lee A. Smith

Walk with me down the long halls of a typical mental institution as I make my daily rounds. Look into the faces of almost 3,000 persons and you will see one great need—for someone to care. In our Mental institutions there are thousands of people who have been left and forgotten by parents, children and relatives.

They can never hope to go home because they have no home. Over and over many of these say, "I could become a useful citizen again if someone would help me." Over and over again they ask, in many ways, "Who cares that I am sick or that I live here?"

You ask, "But what does this have to do with me, a normal citizen living in a military community?" This incident may have nothing to do with you but if you have lived for many years you have asked the same question — "Who cares about me?"

Probably not in the same sense as the mental patient but as a person caught up in a society which thinks in terms of big cities, big armies and big business.

From the beginning of time man has asked, "Who cares?" And every person has tried to answer this question in one way or another.

One person who answered this question wrote in Psalm 139:

"Whither shall I go from thy spirit? or whether shall I flee from thy presence?

If I ascend up into heaven, thou art there: If I make my bed in Sheol, behold, thou art there.

If I take the wings of the morning, and dwell in the uttermost parts of the sea; even there shall thy hand lead me, and thy right hand shall hold me.

If I say surely the darkness shall cover me; even the night shall be light about me."

To me the Psalmist is saying God cares and knows me and my needs more than I can ever understand them. This, to me, is one of the most important teachings in Christianity —that God cares. . .That He cares enough to be concerned. That He is concerned to the degree that He has done something about man's need for fellowship and concern through Christ.

If I understand the teaching of the New Testament it is that God through Christ leads man to know how to live in such a way that humanity will stop and take notice that Someone cares.

Thus the care of God must become the care of Christians. One cannot know of God's care and concern until He is concerned about someone else. It seems to me that Christ said over and over again, "How can you hope for God's concern without first your being concerned about your fellow man?"

Is it too much to expect in a Christian nation that we will show that we care about our fellowman in the little opportunities which come to our way? The many opportunities which we allow to slip by each day would cost us so little. Still we say to the world "I really don't care." Let me change one word in a verse of Scripture—"In as much as you have (cared) for one of the least of these you have cared for me."

The Army Relief Society, which is affiliated with the Army Emergency Relief, is organized to assist needy spouses and orphans of deceased Regular Army personnel. It will aid in securing employment for such beneficiaries, solicit and create scholarships, and supervise educational opportunities for them.

Finance School Instructors Make TIS Visit

Two instructors in the Department of Military Training, Army Finance School at Fort Benjamin Harrison, Ind., visited The Infantry School last Thursday through Monday.

They were Capt. David F. Bird and Capt. Francis J. Sova.

The two officers conferred with officials of the Communications and Command and Staff Departments to obtain current material and insure uniformity of instruction in communications subjects and such command and staff functions as S-1, S-2, S-3 and air-mobile operations.

Get Me Down!

Atomic, one of the 1st Infantry's two alligator mascots, seems to be in quite a predicament high atop the concrete environs of Kelley Hill. And it seems he's getting little help from the landlubbers below. This trick photograph was made by PFC John O'Connor to point up the alligators' need for a home once the OVUREP-bound 1st departs next month for Korea.

Division Teams Support Summer Training Boom

BY PETER TATISTCHEFF

Instruction and demonstration teams from the 2nd Division are scheduled for trips to Fort Stewart, Georgia, and Camp Shelby, Mississippi, as part of the annual support of summer activities throughout the Third U. S. Army area.

In addition, a provisional company has been organized to handle the needs of Fort Benning's Reserve Officers' Training Corps Summer Camp. The camp will be drawing men for assistance and instructional purposes from all units of the division.

Though many plans are still in the formative stage, Lieutenant Colonel Ralph H. Hughett, G-3, says that all division units will eventually be called upon to provide people or equipment, and in some cases both, to the support of National Guard and Reserve unit summer training. Some units have already been called upon to send instruction and demonstration teams to Fort Stewart, Ga., and Camp Shelby, Miss.

An "Honest John" Rocket instruction and demonstration team, comprised of two officers and 27 enlisted men, will be sent for the period June 26 to July 1 to the 48th Armored Division at Fort Stewart. This same team will be training the "Honest John" Battery of the 31st Infantry Division, a National Guard unit training at Camp Shelby, Miss. this summer.

The team will remain with the 31st Division from June 12-16. They will be under the command of Lieutenant Walter C. Parks, 12th Artillery.

The 2nd Infantry Division's 12th Artillery also will send four men as high speed radio experts with two AM radios mounted on three quarter-ton trucks to Camp Shelby to support in the training of the National Guard Division June 12-21.

The 2nd Aviation Company has been called upon to support the summer operations of a reserve aviation company from Mississippi. They will assist with maintenance of seven aircraft during summer training.

Tower Operators

Two control tower operators have been sent to Fort Stewart from the 2nd Aviation Company for support of summer operations. They will remain at Fort Stewart until August.

The 9th Infantry sent Company C, comprised of 169 men under the command of Captain Jerry R. Keebaugh, to support reserve training at Fort Benning. They plan to make 157 men of Company B available for the same purpose during June 17-22. Company B will be commanded by Captain Walter D. Ginger.

Plans are still in the corresponding stage concerning the sending of Armored Personnel Carriers and instructional teams to the 150th Transportation Battalion, a National Guard unit that will be at Camp Shelby this summer. A tentative team of one officer, one noncommissioned officer and three enlisted men will be drawn from the 13th Transportation Battalion.

97th MAC

Twenty Armored Personnel Carriers and six radio operators will be supplied by 13th Transportation on June 12 to aid in a field exercise conducted by the 97th Maneuver Area Command, a reserve unit from Alabama which has ar-

2 'Gators Looking For Home

Atomic, Alpha Will Be Left When 1st Departs for Korea

BY JOHN O'CONNOR

Anybody need an alligator?

Company A, 1st Infantry will be forced to leave its alligator mascots, Atomic and Alfa, at Fort Benning when it leaves for Korea in mid-July.

The Company would like to know that the gruesome twosome are well cared for, so a post-wide search for a home for the OVUREP-orphans has begun.

The alligators were presented to the Company last year by Sergeant First Class Robert Litteker and have since lived in a large aquarium replete with artificial sunlight, heated pool and a small sun porch.

Luxury

The gators have led a life of luxury and are accustomed to only the finest cuts of raw meat. Lately, the pair has gotten unruly and menaces anyone who comes near them. They go for long walks on their own and stay out after bed check.

Alfa has been particularly difficult to manage. He sun-

9th Infantry to Celebrate Anniversary Tomorrow

By 9th Inf. PIO

The 9th Infantry will kick off its annual Organization Day program tomorrow at 9 a.m. with a battle group review commanded entirely by noncommissioned officers.

Sergeant Major Jimmie Farras will command the troops in the review at Wetherby Field in the Sand Hill area.

Just prior to the review, recognition of the 9th Infantry's guests will be made. Guests will include 2nd Division unit commanders, staff officers, members of the Division staff and former members of the 9th Infantry and their dependents.

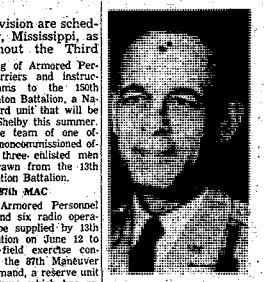
Ushers will be on hand to seat the more than 900 guests who will also number present 9th Infantry members and their dependents and members of the general public. The 2nd Division band will provide music for the review.

During the review, the semi-annual presentation of the Battle Group Commander's Trophy will be made by Colonel James L. Osgard, commander of the 9th. The trophy will go to the outstanding company over the past six months.

Awards will also be given to the top companies in training men in MOSs (Military Occupational Specialty) 111 and 112. An aircraft flyby of three L-19 fixed wing airplanes from the 2nd Aviation Company will conclude the review portion of the program.

Cake Contest

Following the review ceremonies, a break for refreshments will ensue. During this time the judging of the 9th Infantry birthday cake contest will be conducted. The team of judges will be headed by Colonel Gustav Bacharach, Division chief of staff. The winning cake will earn a trophy for its bakers.



From 10 a.m. to 11 a.m. demonstrations will be given by the famed 26th Scout Dog Platoon of the 1st Infantry Brigade and members of the Fort Benning Sport Parachute Club, who will give a sky-diving demonstration.

Athletic events will occupy a 30-minute segment as the 9th's first sergeants will compete in a chariot race contest presided over by Sergeant Ma-

Division Honors Dead of 3 Wars

BY DIV PIO

The men who wear the Indianhead patch honored their war dead Sunday and heard the active division's chief of staff declare: "We continue to be second to none."

In a colorful but solmen memorial service at the Second Division Monument in Washington, past and present 2nd Division men heard Colonel Gustav M. Bacharach, representing the active division, pay tribute to casualties of three conflicts.

Noble Heritage

"Ours is a noble heritage built upon heroic deeds and hard-fought battles," the chief of staff declared. "We cherish this heritage and I can assure you the 2nd Infantry Division is carrying on in the tradition established by the many, soldiers who have been past active members.

"We continue to be second to none."

Colonel Bacharach, speaking for Brigadier General William L. Hardick, commanding general, at the service, pointed out that the 2nd Division suffered more casualties than any other organization in the Army. He then added:

"They may be dead, but their spirit and their deeds live on in the men who wear the patch of the Indianhead."

The chief of staff was followed by Kenneth E. Belieu, assistant secretary of the Navy, principal speaker at this the 30th annual memorial service. His topic: "Things to Cherish."

Wreaths

At the wreath laying ceremonies, Lieutenant General G. C. Thomas (USMC, ret.) placed a wreath honoring the World War I dead. The World War II dead were commemorated by Major General Ralph W. Zwicker (USA, ret.), and the casualties of Korea were honored by a wreath placed by Lt. Gen. Merwin Silverthorne, (USMC, Ret.).

French, Dutch, Turkish and Thai military mission leaders also participated, placing wreathes in honor of the Uni-

Promotions

Captain Theodore Benson, executive officer of the 9th Infantry's Combat Support Company, was promoted to his present rank recently during a command and staff meeting in a surprise ceremony.

Ninth Infantry commander Colonel James L. Osgard pinned the "railroad tracks" on the new captain's collar. A qualified Army aviator, Capt. Benson holds a bachelor's degree from the University of Wyoming. He hails from Moorcroft, Wyoming.

Lieutenant Francis Kowalski of Company B, 122nd Signal Battalion, was promoted to First Lieutenant May 31. Lieutenant Kowalski is a Battle Group Area Support Platoon Leader. He has been with the battalion since April 1960. He obtained his Bachelor of Arts degree in Business Administration from Rutgers University.

Reenlistments

Sergeant First Class Thomas Boris, 9th Infantry career counselor, reenlisted Sergeant Charles Howard of the 9th's Company D. Sergeant Howard signed on for another three-year tour, and chose the Caribbean area.

Sgt. Edward J. Gannon, newly assigned Career Counselor of the 3rd Reconnaissance Squadron, 7th Cavalry, has taken over his duties in a rapid manner and reenlisted three men in his first week of duty. These men have signed the dotted line for a total of 14 years more service.

SFC William G. Wallace, squadron supply sergeant, has reenlisted for five years. Sgt. Richard I. Bartels, Troop B, has signed on for three years. Sgt. Bartels is presently on Temporary Duty with the 2nd Infantry Division Marksmanship Detachment. Specialist Four Denver E. Wilfong, also of B Troop, is going for six years. All three have enlisted to fill their own vacancies.

Departures

The 9th Infantry lost two officers and five noncoms this week in transfers to other Army units or posts. Lieutenant William Barett, Company E, completed his two year Infantry detail and was reassigned to the 13th Transportation Battalion. Lieutenant Harry Wise, assistant S-1, also completed his two-year Infantry detail and joined the 2nd Division's adjutant general's section.

Staff Sergeant Vladimir Furdick of the 9th Infantry's personnel section departed for Fort Lee, Va. Staff Sergeant Ezra Stone, a member of the 9th Infantry's Instructional Team, was sent to Korea as was Sergent Lionel Wallace of Company A.

Company's A's Sergeant Pat Dillon currently is enroute to Fort Devens, Mass., his next post. Sergeant Carl Moore moved to Fort Bragg, N. C., and joined the 7th Special Forces (Airborne). He was a member of the 9th Infantry's Company C.

Nine personnel have recently left or will leave Company B, 122nd Signal Battalion for reassignment.

They were Lieutenant Thomas Baxter, Platoon Leader of Battle Group Area Support Platoon for Samur, France; Sergeant First Class Leland O'Shaughnessey, Battle Group Area Support Platoon Sergeant, for Verdun, France; and Sergeant John Turre, a VHF Radio Team Chief, for Fort Devins, Mass.

The following personnel have been assigned to Germany: Specialist Four William Jackson, VHF radio operator; Specialist Four John Anderson, company clerk, for the 10th Special Forces; Private First Class Jerry Dempsey, senior wireman; Private First Class Edwin Rodriquez-Lugo wireman; and Private First Class Ronald Waddell, switchboard operator. Specialist Four Earl Browne, a motor mechanic for Company B, was assigned to Korea.

Departures from the 23rd Infantry include: Major Albert Becker, to the 2nd Aviation Company; Captain Daniel Stefanowich, to the 2nd Aviation Company; Captain Robert L. Alexander, to Purdue University; 1Lt. Ivor Manderson to 2nd Quartermaster Company; Lt. Douglas C. Haldane, to division M P Detachment; Lt. Alan Hesdorffer, to civilian life; CWO Gordon C. Clark, retiring; and M-Sergeant Madison H. Head, retiring.

Arrivals

The 9th Infantry gained two new officers and three noncoms this week. Captain Frank Whitely, a graduate of the University of Virginia, was assigned as assistant S-3. Lieutenant Richard Morton was assigned as a platoon leader to the 9th's Combat Support Company.

Lt. Karl J. Sydor, a graduate of Norwich University was commissioned in Armor and has just completed the Armor Officers Orientation course at Fort Knox, Ky. Lt. Sydor who hails from Laurence Harbor, N. J., has been assigned to B Troop as platoon leader.

Recent arrivals at the 23rd Infantry are the following officers: Major John Virgil Swango, who is in charge of S-4 operations; Captain Frederick F. Woerner Jr., assistant S-3; Lt. David K. Williams, assigned to Company B; Lt. Clay Norman Mobley, assigned to Company C; Lt. Joe Allen Garner, assigned to Company C; and Lt. Ronald E. Brooks, assigned to Company A.

baths on the company roof while waiting for a unsuspecting private to happen along so he can frighten the wits out of him. His latest escapade took place in the mess hall when the gator, terrorized the mess sergeant into giving him a ham.

Despite the gators' bad habits, the company has hopes of providing the same good treatment for the gators in the style to which they are accustomed.

Anyone may write to the 1st Infantry Public Information Office if they would like to add these happy go lucky reptiles to their family. It is hoped a home can be found for Alfa and Atomic soon.

It might be disconcerting for the company to see the alligators shedding crocodile tears after them, when the unit leaves Fort Benoing.

Sand Hill Pool Cools Hot Indianheads

Bathers Guarded by Alert Crew Headed By 2nd Division NCO

BY CLAY LACY

Summer has been quite elusive of late, what with sudden blasts of cold air from Canada dropping local temperatures into the low 40's. But the warm days and bright sun promise to still bring in the era of the bathing suit once again for division personnel.

At Sand Hill, the swimming pool has been opened since May 6 and is ready to handle its capacity of 400 people each day of the week from 10 a.m. till 8 p.m.

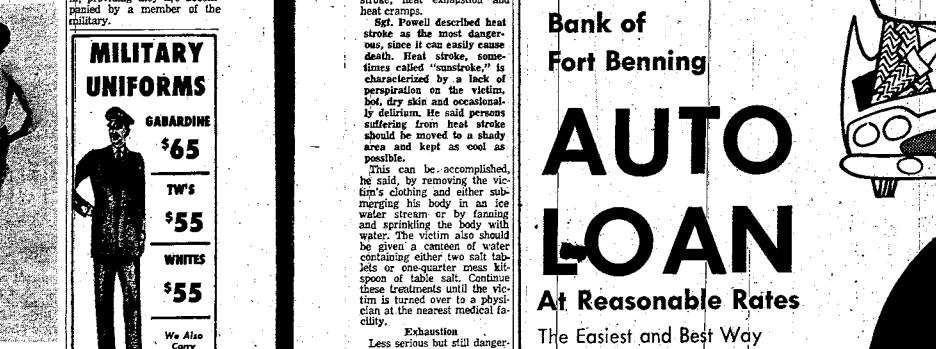
'Protection'

In charge of the Sand Hill pool this year is a ten-year veteran of Army service from Company B, 23rd Infantry. Sergeant James K. Hudson, a native of Reading, Pa., has organized his crew of personnel into two shifts to provide adequate protection for swimmers at the pool.

Assisting Sergeant Hudson is Sergeant Melvin C. Shies of Company E, 23rd Infantry, who supervises the clothing checkin point. Sergeant Shies hails from Kauai, Hawaii, and has almost four years' Army service to his credit.

The Sand Hill pool is under the supervision of the United States Army Infantry Center Special Services section with its crew made up entirely of 2nd Division personnel this year. The pool is 50 meters long and 25 meters wide with a capacity of 500,000 gallons of water.

20,000 Gallons



To protect bathers, water is constantly being replaced by pumps and, on busy days, over 20,000 gallons of water will be added to the pool. Also, chemicals consisting of chlorine and sodash or sodium carbonate are added regularly to the water.

Facilities at the Sand Hill pool include bath houses for male and female,' complete with shower, latrine and dressing room accommodations. A soft drink dispenser provides bathers with refreshments. The pool boasts two diving boards; a one-meter boad for the beginner and a two-meter board for the aquanauts who like to display the latest in the swan and other dives.

Each lifeguard on duty has completed the Red Cross Lifesaving program administered in March and is qualified to make rescues under all conditions. By the use of whistles, the guards warn swimmers of actions which may endanger themselves or other swimmers.

For youngsters learning to swim one end of the pool is only three feet deep. The deep end by the diving boards is ten feet deep.

The pool will remain open throughout the summer and is expected to close late in September. It is open to all military members and their families. Guests may be brought in, providing they are accompanied by a member of the military.

'Ol' Sol' Rains Disaster on Those Who Fail to Show Due Respect

By Max Courson

One of the soldier's most formidable foes at Fort Benning nowadays rises early and leaves late...and we don't mean the drill sergeants.

Ol' Sol, the sun, poses a threat to many who do not follow precautionary measures for heat injuries as the temperature creeps into the high 80s and 90s. Because of this danger, Army personnel are being instructed in methods of preventing heat injuries and in treatment for those suffering from too much sun.

Common Forms

One such class was held Monday for trainees in Company B, 23rd Infantry. Sergeant Harold Powell, Company B medic, warned the trainees of the three most common forms of heat injuries — heat stroke, heat exhaustion and heat cramps.

Sgt. Powell described heat stroke as the most dangerous, since it can easily cause death. Heat stroke, sometimes called "sunstroke," is characterized by a lack of perspiration on the victim, hot, dry skin and occasionally delirium. He said persons suffering from heat stroke should be moved to a shady area and kept as cool as possible.

This can be accomplished, he said, by removing the victim's clothing and either submerging his body in an ice water stream or by fanning and sprinkling the body with water. The victim also should be given a canteen of water containing either two salt tablets or one-quarter mess kit-spoon of table salt. Continue these treatments until the victim is turned over to a physician at the nearest medical facility.

Exhaustion

Less serious but still dangerous is heat exhaustion. Persons suffering from this have damp, clammy skin and feel generally weak. They can be relieved by being placed in the shade, elevating the feet and by drinking as much water as possible, being sure that this water is taken with salt or salt tablets.

The same mixture of salt and water — two tablets or one-quarter mess kit-spoon of table salt — is used in treating these heat injuries. If the victim of heat exhaustion does not improve in 15-30 minutes, he should be seen immediately by a medical officer.

Heat cramps are very painful and compare with cramps suffered by persons in swimming. They are caused primarily from excessive loss of salt from the body. The cramps usually develop in the arms, legs and abdominal muscles and can be relieved promptly by replacing the salt lost from the body. Additional treatment includes placing the person in the shade, elevating his feet, massaging the arms and legs and drinking as much water as possible with the proper salt mixture.

Sergeant Powell emphasized that all three heat injuries are caused by the excessive loss of salt and water from the body in sweat. He pointed out that heat cramps can lead to heat exhaustion, which can lead to heat stroke and, possible, death. For this reason he urged prompt and proper treatment for any persons having symptoms of heat injury.

Who suffers most from heat injuries? Those who have had prior heat injuries, Sgt. Powell says. Also, those who come from cooler climates such as in the north are more prone to have trouble with the heat. However, Sgt. Powell said that the color of one's hair or skin or one's race has little if anything to do with either susceptibility to or immunity from heat injuries.

rived at Fort Benning and will remain here until June 17.

Details are presently being worked out concerning 69th Armor's support of 87th MAC's three-day field training exercise. A composite tank company, commanded by Captain Donald Modica, is being organized for this purpose. Five officers, 98 enlisted men, 17 M-48 tanks, two Armored Personnel Carriers, three quarter-ton trucks and one gas tanker have been assigned to this company.

A provisional company, commanded by Captain James B. Woodall Jr., has been formed for the support of the Fort Benning ROTC Summer Camp. This ROTC Camp Troop Support Company will draw up to 39 officers, 74 noncommissioned officers and 185 enlisted men on a day-to-day basis from various 2nd Infantry Division units. The company will help with planning and coordination of the summer ROTC training.

FLY THIS FLAG

WHICH WE OFFER AT COST AS A PUBLIC SERVICE

1961 is the 100th Anniversary of the Civil War . . . and the words of the Constitution are more prophetic than the day when they were written: "One Nation, Indivisible, with Liberty and Justice for All." Enemies from without belittle the Spirit of Democracy. We must show them that the North and South are one. . . united in principle 50-States strong from Maine to Hawaii.

We believe every home should fly the flag on every important national holiday . . . of which there are more than 20. With this in mind we make this home flag kit available to all our readers . . . a big 3x5-foot fine cotton flag with durable stitched stripes, 6-foot brass jointed staff, metal window socket and cord halyard . . . everything you need to mount and fly the flag.

The estimated retail value is $6.95 . . . your cost only $3.25. Get your kit now by coming to our office at 17 W. 12th St. or order by mail using coupon at right.

Modern Weapons, Equipment Featured at 9th Celebration

BY 9TH INF. PIO

The very latest in Infantry weapons and equipment will be featured during the 9th Infantry's annual Organization Day tomorrow morning at Wetherby Field in the Sand Hill area. Activities get underway at 9 a.m. with a military review.

Placed along the edges of the field on three sides, the equipment will include two aircraft from the 2nd Aviation Company, an Armored Personnel carrier from the 13th Transportation Battalion, thousands of dollars worth of communication equipment and colored plaques denoting each of the 9th's battle streamers.

An M-41 tank from the 9th Infantry's motor pool headlines the list of vehicles that will be on display. Other military vehicles shown will be a quarter-ton truck, a three-quarter ton truck, a two-and-a-half-ton truck, and a two-and-a-half ton wrecker.

The Army's newest light Infantry weapons, the M-14 rifle and the M-60 machine gun, will hold the spotlight among the weapons on display. The Infantry's old standbys including the .30 caliber M-1 rifle, the .30 caliber machine gun, the automatic rifle, and the .45 caliber pistol also will be on hand.

Special Section

A special section of Wetherby Field will be set aside for the children visiting the 9th Infantry tomorrow. This special section will be utilized for giving the youngsters a chance to ride in the mechanical mule, the jeep, and other Army vehicles.

9th Infantry Fought in 8 Wars, 2 Campaigns; First 2nd Division Unit to Hit Korean Soil

By 9th Inf. PIO

As Organization Day 1961 of the 2nd Battle Group, 9th Infantry approaches, the officers and men of the "Keep Up the Fire" unit pause to reflect on the long and glorious hisory of the 9th Infantry.

No less than 47 battle streamers hang on the regimental colors, commemorating honors earned in eight wars and two campaigns.

First organized in 1798 when war with France appeared imminent, the 9th Infantry was subsequently disbanded. The regiment was organized anew for the War of 1812 and the War with Mexico in 1846. The fourth constitution of the 9th dates from March 1855. The year 1961 marks the 106th year of continuous service for the 9th. The second battle group recognizes June 14 as the date of its third birthday, being activated in 1958.

The fight to win the West provided the incentive for organizing the 9th Infantry at Fort Monroe, Virginia, in 1855. From December of that organization year until 1892, a span of 37 long years, the regiment served in the West. In its mission of protecting the settlers and towns of the West, the 9th fought in more than 400 battles and skirmishes against the Indians.

Initially based in the Washington Territory, the 9th Infantry subsequently rendered service in California, Wyoming, Nebraska, Montana, Idaho, Utah, the Dakotas, Oregon, Nevada and Arizona.

Battle Honors

Battle honors from the Civil War accrued to the 9th Infantry in 1869 when the personnel and colors of the old 27th Infantry Regiment were consolidated with the 9th. This consolidation brought streamers earned in campaigns in Tennessee, Georgia, and Kentucky to the 9th Infantry colors.

In 1892 the regiment was transferred to Madison Barracks, New York, for six years of garrison duty. In 1898, however, the regiment fought in the war against Spain. Following the short war, the 9th returned to New York. The following year, though, the 9th embarked for Manila to aid in suppressing Philippine insurgents.

On June 16, 1900, the day after General Macabules, one of the strongest insurgent leaders, surrendered to the 9th, the regiment sailed for action against the fighters in the Chinese Boxer Rebellion.

It was in China that the 9th acquired three of its most valued possessions: the Liscum Bowl (a silver punch bowl trophy valued at $50,000), the "Keep Up the Fire" motto, and the "Manchu Regiment" nickname. In July, 1900, the regiment assaulted Tientsin and lost its commander, Colonel Emerson Liscum. As the Colonel fell before the walled city, his dying words to his command were, "Keep Up the Fire!"

Following the Boxer Rebellion, the 9th returned to the Philippines for more campaigning against the insurrectionists. From 1902-1917 the regiment engaged in "peacetime duties.

Then came the "Great War," World War I, and the 9th sailed for France. Beginning its long period of service with the newly-organized 2nd Infantry Division, the 9th Infantry met and defeated the elite of the German Imperial Army in such battles as Lorraine, Isle de France, St. Mihiel and Meuse Argonne. For its gallant action the "Fighting Ninth" received the Fourragere in the colors of the famed French Croix de Guerre.

After a short tour of occupation duty, the 9th returned to the United States and for the next 23 years served the longest continuous non-combat period in its history as part of the 2nd Division at Fort Sam Houston, Texas.

In World War II, the 9th entered combat in Normandy against the Germans on D-Day plus one. Campaigning in France, Germany and Central Europe, the regiment added many more battle honors to its distinguished record. These included the right to wear the Belgian Fourragere for gallant conduct in the bloody Battle of the Bulge. During the war, 5,818 individual awards were given to 9th Infantrymen, including one Medal of Honor, 11 Distinguished Service Crosses, and 169 Silver Stars.

A short period of peace ensued before the 9th Infantry was again committed to battle with the Indianhead Division in the Korean War. The first 2nd Division unit to land in Korea, the 9th Infantry pushed farther north than any other element of the Indianhead Division.

After three years of fighting in Korea and 10 campaigns, the Ninth returned with the parent division to Fort Lewis, Washington, in 1954. In 1956 the 9th rotated to Alaska under Operation Gyroscope.

In November, 1957, the 9th terminated 40 years of continuous service as part of the 2nd Division when control of the division was passed to Department of the Army. The 9th's 1st Battle Group remained on active duty as part of the Alaska Command.

Old ties were renewed in June 1958 with the reactivation of the 2nd Division at Fort Benning and the establishment of the 2nd Battle Group, 9th Infantry as one of the Indianhead Division's integral units.

Coat of Arms Commemorates Varied Exploits

By 9th Inf PIO

The 9th Infantry's distinctive Regimental Coat of Arms commemorates the varied exploits of the Ninth Infantry and illustrates vividly many of its costly campaigns.

The foundation for the symbol is an Infantry blue shield. Service in China during the Boxer Rebellion is symbolized by the golden imperial dragon inserted on the upper left of the shield. A "Sun in Splendor," denoting the symbol of the Philippine Insurrectors, is implanted in the upper right hand corner.

The white bar curving towards the upper part of the shield stands as a silent memorial of the costly battle at the bloody bend of the San Juan River in Cuba. The 27 years on the Western Frontier fighting the Indians are characterized in the tepee, centered in the lower half of the shield.

Beneath the shield is a scroll on which is engraved a living motto and challenge to the officers and men of the 9th Infantry to "Keep Up the Fire."

Manchu Bowl Silent Memorial To Col. Liscum

By 9th Inf PIO

Standing as one of the most treasured and foremost trophies in the possession of any U. S. Army unit, the 9th Infantry's Liscum Bowl stands as a silent memorial to the valiant Colonel Emerson H. Liscum, former 9th Infantry Regimental Commander, killed in action during the Boxer Rebellion at Tientsin, China, on July 13, 1900.

Valued at more than $50,000, the large sterling silver bowl and its silver cups rest in Alaska with the 9th Infantry's 1st Battle Group. The massive bowl weighs 90 pounds and has a capacity of 14 gallons. The ornate bowl has four handles which consists of the torsos of four imperial dragons peering over the edge of the bowl.

Three Complete High School Test At 38th Arty

Continuing the spirited effort initiated by the battalion commander of the 38th Artillery to raise the educational level of its members, three more members of the unit successfully completed the High School General Educational Level Test.

Those who achieved this distinction are: Specialist Four Estel C. Noe, Specialist Four Bobby F. Masters, and Sergeant First Class Howard E. Hatton.

Lieutenant Colonel John B. Finnegan, 38th Artillery commander, personally congratulated these men and stated that every effort will be made to continue the program of raising the educational levels of the members of the 38th Artillery.

Your Pet Cuddliest? Have the Most Legs? Bring 'em to Pet Show

BY DON BAIRD

Is your canine the dog-about-town type?
Does he have the waggiest tail in the Sand Hill area?
Or the best sense of humor?
Or the most fleas?

If the mutt in your life surpasses all others in these important fields of trait (at least if you think he does) grab your leash and bead for Service Club Two on Sunday Afternoon, June 17.

And if you have any other pets around the house that you think might be the cuddliest, have the most artistic shell or the most expressive tail of anything on four (or 400) legs, bring 'em along, too.

A Pet Show, the brainchild of Service Club Two's Madeline J. Parks and Eleanor Sabota, begins at 2:30 p.m., and is open to all military personnel, dependents and local civilian employes.

Awards will be given to pets in three classes: small breed of dogs, large breed of dogs and pets other than dogs.

The dog classes include such categories as smallest dog, dog with the most feminine charm, dog with the most winning personality, best smelling dog and dog who looks most like his owner.

For pets other than canines, awards will be given for such superlative traits as best mascot, most intelligent, quietest, most legs, cuddliest, best swimmer and, of course, pet that looks most like his master.

Entry blanks, available at Service Club Two, should be turned in by Thursday, June 15.

And if you don't have a pet, borrowed pets may be entered.

BATTLE GROUP'S BEST . . . Recruit Gary M. Rose, Company B, 11th Infantry, receives the high score award from Colonel John E. Arthur, battle group commander, following last Saturday's "shoot off" of top trainee marksmen. (Photo by Cavanaugh)

Rose Takes 'Shoot Off'

Recruit Gary M. Rose of Company B, 11th Infantry is now the battle group's trainfire expert firer and high scorer.

At last Saturday's "shoot off" at Simpson Range, in which the two top firers from each company competed for individual honors, Recruit Rose was high firer for the battle group, Runner-up in the match was Recruit Ralph R. Ash of Company C.

Keen Competition

A glaring sun, unfamiliarity with the range, competitive pressure and heavy undergrowth surrounding the targets made the competition keen.

Colonel John E. Arthur, battle group commander, presented the awards to the winner and runner-up at the conclusion of the match.

Both top firers received a plaque which is to be officially presented to them at the 11th Infantry's basic training graduation on June 17. Colonel Arthur also presented the two winners with a $20 and $10 check, respectively.

The 12 top contestants of the battle group mutually agreed that Simpson Range was considerably more difficult than Malone Range, where they had originally qualified.

In addition to Colonel Arthur, those present included Colonel Gustav M. Bacharach, chief of staff, and Colonel Ernest C. Dameron, deputy brigade commander.

9th Commander's Success Story: Silver Bar to Leaf in 13 Months

BY NELSON MARSH

. . . One of the Army's youngest lieutenant colonels at age 26 in World War II and now a candidate for the Army War College in 1961.

. . . These points mark two highlights in the career of the commander of the 9th Infantry, Colonel James L. Osgard.

A veteran of 19 years' service, the tall (six foot-two inch) colonel will mark his second year as commander of the "Keep Up the Fire" unit next month, shortly before he departs Fort Benning to attend the War College at Carlisle Barracks, Pennsylvania. He took over command of the 9th Infantry's second battle group from Colonel Robert Bessn in July 1959.

A 1941 graduate of the University of North Dakota, Colonel Osgard came on active duty following his graduation. He was assigned to the 30th Infantry Regiment, 3rd Infantry Division, at Fort Lewis, Washington. The 3rd Division received overseas orders in 1942.

Harrowing Episode

Colonel Osgard saw action with the 30th Infantry throughout its hard-fought campaigns in North Africa, Sicily, Italy, Southern France, Germany, and Austria. As a first lieutenant he was the subject of a harrowing episode during the fighting in northern Sicily. Author Jack Belden recorded the fighting in his book "A Time to Live and a Time to Die." The colonel also was mentioned by such famed correspondents as Don Whitehead and Ernie Pyle.

While in the 30th, Colonel Osgard held positions from platoon leader to battalion commander. He was commander of the 30th's 2nd Battalion when the war in Europe ended. He compiled a record of 322 days in combat, missing 20 days because of a wound suffered in Sicily.

Because of his ability to assume command under difficult combat conditions, Colonal Osgard advanced steadily from first lieutenant to lieutenant colonel in just 13 months. He was only 26 when he attained the silver oak leaf.

Civilian

Colonel Osgard returned to civilian life for a short time before joining the Regular Army in 1946. He was married in August 1945, and he and Mrs. Osgard now have two sons and a daughter.

He served with the Army Ground Forces and then spent three years with the Navy Amphibious Forces. For his accomplishments in commanding unloading operations at Inchon in the Korean War, Colonel Osgard was awarded the Navy Bronze Star. He gained three battle stars as a member of the Naval Amphibious Forces.

Colonel Osgard attended the Command and General Staff College at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, in 1951. He then spent a tour at 6th Army Headquarters at the Presidio of San Francisco before a three-year stint in Hawaii.

He was assigned to the Infantry School in 1956 and promoted to colonel in 1958. Colonel Osgard will attend the 10-month war college course beginning in August.

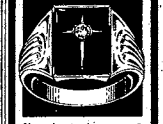
Engrs Begin Job On Midwest Trail

The 2nd Engineer Battalion's Company E is constructing an addition to the Midwest Trail, which runs behind the Malone Trainfire Range Complex.

The project on Midwest Trail — a four - mile long road which links 2nd Armored Division Road to Highway 103 — includes such tasks as clearing trees, grubbing and cutting a new path.

Ditching, grading, hauling sand and gravel and compacting the surface of the new road also are included in this endeavor.

Drainage, the largest problem on the reconstruction job, will be handled by the installation of six culverts.



Trainee Honored

Private Robert D. Griner recently finished his Advanced Individual Training with Battery A, 17th Artillery, and was presented the Outstanding Trainee Award at graduation ceremonies last Saturday.

Pvt. Griner was chosen, by a committee of battery officers and NCO's, for his outstanding leadership, his high grade on the Proficiency Test, and his overall ability.

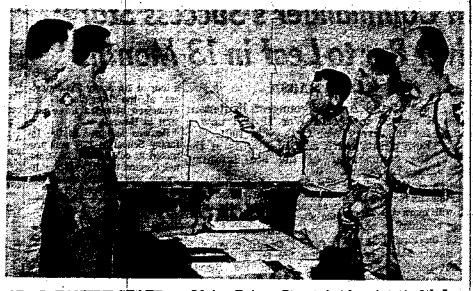
Armstrong Heads Staff At 9th Inf

By 9th Inf PIO

Colonel James L. Osgard's staff in the 9th Infantry includes three majors and a pair of captains, headed by Major George Armstrong, battle group executive officer.



Major Armstrong, who joined the 9th Infantry in January after attending the command and staff college in Uruguay, is a native of Streater, Illinois. He entered the Army in 1937 and saw action in World War II, earning a silver star.

The adjutant of the "Keep Up the Fire" battle group, Major Rocco Barbuto, saw action in Normandy, Northern France, and Central Europe in World War II. He also fought in Korea. He was promoted to major in 1959.

Captain Thomas Austin, the 9th Infantry's S-2, came to the 9th Infantry in February 1960. He graduated from the U. S. Military Academy at West Point in 1956. The 9th's intelligence officer holds the parachutist's badge.

Major Robert Street, the 9th Infantry S-3, calls Gravette, Arkansas, home. He entered the Army as an enlisted man in 1938 and holds the Combat Infantryman's Badge. Both Major Street and Captain Austin will leave for the Command Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, later this summer.

A Korean War veteran with the 45th Infantry Divisioq, Captain Benjamin Hamilton mans the job of the 9th's S-4. He attended Davidson College and hails from Atlanta.

Four Tournament Championships Highlight 9th Inf. Sports Year

BY 9TH INF. PIO

Four tournament championships in three sports have hoisted the 9th Infantry into the forefront of the 2nd Division sports picture since last year's Organization Day in the "Keep Up the Fire" battle group.

The parade of championships began shortly after Lieutenant Max Powell took the reins as the Ninth's Athletic and Recreation Officer. Lt. Powell and Lieutenant Billy White teamed up to lead the Manchus to victory in both the Fort Benning and Third Army softball tournaments. Lt. White pitched four no-hitters enroute to the two coveted crowns and Lt. Powell batted .346.

Football Champs

Lt. Powell then manned the vital tailback position on the 9th Infantry's flag football champs. He completed 142 passes in 284 attempts for 1,660 yards, 22 touchdowns, and 16 extra points enroute to the 9th Infantry record of 11-1. He scored five touchdowns, gained 350 yards rushing and collected six interceptions.

The 9th Infantry then moved to the basketball championship with a mark of six wins and no losses. Center Ray Pryear and guard Harry Hall paced the Manchus to victory. The 6'7" Pryear scored the nets for 128 points, an average of 21.3 per game. Hall scored 91 points and a 15.2 average. The team averaged 73.7 points per contest while holding the opposition to an average of 50.2 points.

Freestyle Relays

The 9th's softball, football, and basketball squads weren't the only Manchu teams racking up headlines for the battle group during the past 12 months. Last August Lieutenants Jerry Poelking and George Cochran teamed up to capture the 100-meter freestyle relays in the division swimming and diving meet. Ninth Infantry swimmers also finished second in two other relays during the same meet.

In volleyball the 9th finished in a tie for third with a respectable 3-3 record. The battle group was represented in the 1960 Rome Olympics by Lieutenants Paul Beacham and John Foster. The 1960 National Kayak Singles Champion, Lt. Beacham paddled his way to fifth place in the Olympics in the 1,000 meters singles competition. Lt. Foster finished seventh in the 300-meter rifle firing.

Trophy Race

In the two races for the 2nd Division Commanding General's Trophy in the past year, the 9th Infantry has more than held its own. The 1960 softball and flag football championships hoisted the 9th to a third place finish for the trophy awarded last December. The 9th stood second to Division Trains at the start of the current softball tournament for the race now in progress for the coveted award. Trains led the 9th 260 to 245 points when the tournament started.

With both Lieutenants White and Powell back for the 1961 season, the 9th is again in the running for a major sports crown. Lt. White has hurled all the 9th's games.

87th Unit Assists 24 Boy Scouts

By 87th Inf PIO

Twenty-four Boy Scouts from the Columbus area are a step closer to their Communication Merit Badges this week after getting an assist from Company B of the 87th Infantry.

The Scouts, members of Troop 98, Edgewood area of Columbus, were introduced to communication procedures in the Bravo classroom by Sergeant Scott F. Messenger, unit communications chief. Sgt. Messenger covered general characteristics of the field phone and radio, call signs and wire splicing.

"The Scouts caught on quickly," said Messenger who turned the phones and radios over to the Scouts for practical work.

The meeting was set up by Sergeant Warner N. Brake of Company B. Sgt. Brake is Scout Master for Troop 98.

Garrell, 87th, Is Promoted

By 87th Inf PIO

Chaplain Hubert Garrell, 87th Infantry, this week carries a little more weight on his shoulders . . . his single silver bars have been exchanged for the new bars of a captain.

Captain Garrell has spent most of his life in North Carolina. In 1946 he joined the Army and was stationed with the 82nd Airborne Division at Fort Bragg, North Carolina. Chaplain Garrell met his wife and they graduated together with the two highest honors from Wake Forest College. From college, Chaplain Garrell made the short trip to South East Baptist Seminary and, after graduation, served as a minister of the Baptist Church at Lake Lure, also in North Carolina.

Active Duty

In July 1958, Chaplain Garrell left his civilian ministry and came on active duty with the 2nd Division at Fort Benning. In December 1960, he moved to Kelley Hill and is now a member of the OVER-UP program with the 87th Infantry.

Chaplain Garrell's face and smile are familiar to the men of the 87th. Besides his regular duties of leading services Sunday morning and evening, giving classes weekdays on character guidance, and personal counseling, he finds time to talk and meet with the men in the field. You can usually find him in the late afternoon playing table tennis with each company's best players.

9th's Top NCO Carried Eight Soldiers to Safety, Was Awarded Silver Star

A combat veteran of two wars and the holder of the Silver Star, the 9th Infantry's Sergeant Major Jimmie Farras holds the distinction of carrying the top enlisted rank in the battle group.

First joining the Army a month before Pearl Harbor plunged the United States into World War II, Farras took his basic training at Camp Roberts, California. He was sent to the Aleutian Islands in 1942 and served as an 81-millimeter mortarman in the battles of Attu and Dutch Harbor against the Japanese.

Rejoined

He returned to the U.S. in 1944 to Camp Roberts, being assigned as an instructor and platoon sergeant for basic trainees. He was discharged in September 1945 and rejoined the Army four years later at Fort Ord, California. He was then assigned to the 2nd Division before returning to Camp Roberts for the third time in his career.

In September 1952, Farras volunteered for duty in Korea and was assigned to the 15th Infantry Regiment, 3rd Infantry Division. It was during this combat duty that he won his Silver Star when he brought back to friendly lines eight wounded soldiers. The operation was carried out under heavy enemy small arms fire.

Since returning to the United States, Farras has participated in Operation Gyroscope with the 10th Infantry Division. He served three years in Germany with the 10th. Farras has been a member of the 9th's 2nd Battle Group since June 1958.

Children's Rides

The day's gala events will be climaxed by a picnic on Wetherby Field served by five company mess halls. For the 9th's younger set there will be special rides in such military vehicles as the Armored Personnel Carrier, a mechanical mule and a fire truck from the Columbus American Legion Post 38. The free picnic will feature cheeseburgers, potato salad, assorted beverages and a slice of birthday cake.

Displays of aircraft, weapons, equipment, vehicles and all state flags will be set up all around Wetherby Field throughout the day. The communications display will include a teletype machine receiving news from United Press International and on another teletype spectators will be allowed to write out a message to friends or relatives anywhere in the United States.

The weapons and vehicles displayed will be the latest Infantry equipment and trained personnel will be stationed with each display to answer questions.

Ample parking space will be available to the public along Custer Road. Military policemen will assist in parking vehicles and to guide spectators to the site of the festivities. Spectators will be provided soft cushions for the day.

11th's Capt. Knowles Promoted

By 11th Inf PIO

Captain Harvey Knowles recently was promoted to his present grade in the office of Colonel John E. Arthur, battle group commander of the 11th Infantry.

Capt. Knowles, who currently is the assistant operations officer for the battle group, has had an extensive and varied airborne career. His present rating as a master parachutist with 130 jumps has taken him many places since he first entered the Army at the age of 15.

After receiving his initial taste of parachute training, Capt. Knowles went to Japan, where for two years he participated in approximately 25 glider landings.

Fort Bragg, North Carolina, was Capt. Knowles' home for the next eight years. The first six years were spent with the 82nd Airborne Division. At the completion of this tour with the 82nd, he was assigned to the XVIII Airborne Corps for another year.

The North Carolinian's next tour was with the United Nations Headquarters in Japan. Then, in 1955, Capt. Knowles returned to the United States to attend the Officer Candidate School at Ft. Benning.

Capt. Knowles joined the 11th Infantry in February after his return from a tour in Germany. He plans to attend the Infantry Officer's Career Course, commencing in January of next year.

'To Sleep Or. . . Not to Sleep?'

By 1st Inf PIO

When the 1st Infantry has field training, two Headquarters Company cooks can never be found lying down on the job. . . or off the job either.

Specialist Five Randolph Carter and Specialist Five John Stevenson have never slept on the ground all through field training as they don't want to find a snake sharing their sleeping bag some morning.

The two cooks can be found in the mess tent each night seated near the gas stove.

They appear to be entirely comfortable although Specialist Carter wears overshoes as an added precaution. They will continue to sleep this way even in Korea.

The post script to the story is the fact that the two mainstain their own guard mount. One sleeps while the other watches.

Major Swango Named S-4 at 23rd Infantry

BY 23RD INFANTRY PIO

The 23rd Infantry has a new supply and logistics officer who served as the last officer in charge of S-4 operations for the 23rd Infantry regiment and the first for the 23rd Infantry as a battle group.

Major John V. Swango headed the supply office for the 23rd in 1956 when it was a single regiment stationed at Fort Lewis, Washington. He remained with the regiment when it shipped out to Alaska, where, shortly afterwards, it was reorganized by the Department of the Army into the 1st Battle Group.

The 2nd Battle Group, formed at Fort Benning in 1958, is a sister organization to the Alaskan unit. The 3rd Battle Group, 23rd Infantry, is a reserve unit located in Harlingen, Texas.

Major Swango entered the Army in 1941 and, during World War II, served with the 7th Division in the Pacific Theater. He was assigned to the 9th Army Special Troops during the Korean Conflict. He has an extensive background in the field of logistics and supply.

Prior to his present assignment to the 23rd Infantry he was with the 9th Infantry. He is a recent graduate of the Command and General Staff College at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas. In his current position, Major Swango is in charge of approximately 60 men and is responsible for furnishing the battle group with supplies, transportation and maintenance.

2 Ordnance Men End CBR School

By 702nd Ord Bn PIO

Two ordnance men recently completed the 80-hour course of instruction presented at the Post Chemical, Biological and Radiological Warfare School.

They are Specialist Five Raleigh D. Fletcher and Specialist Four Ronald D. Frantzen. Both men are members of Company A (Forward Support), 702nd Ordnance Battalion. With the successful completion of the school, these men will become an integral part of the Unit CBR Defense Team.

Common Names Are Rare in 11th Unit

Common last names, such as Smith, Jones, and Brown are a rarity in Company C, 11th Infantry.

In the 176 men complement there is only one Smith, one Jones, and one man named Brown. The more common last names usually found on a roster of this number of men are equally as scarce as those previously mentioned.

However, there are duplications of several fairly uncommon names, such as Ash and Hensley. The company NCO cadre help keep up the national average on common surnames with two men named Smith and two named Jones.

Recruits Itenbach, Strohofer Hinojosa, and Acevedo provide a few more uncommon last names.

Chaplain Young Returns to 87th From NY School

Chaplain (Captain) Robert C. Young recently returned to the division having completed the Career Chaplain's Advanced Course at Fort Slocum, New York.

No newcomer to the division, Chaplain Young was first assigned here in June 1954. His assignments within the division have been with the Artillery and the 9th Infantry, prior to being assigned OVUREP with the 87th.

Chaplain Young represents the Disciples of Christ (Christian Church). He was graduated from Phillips University and attended the seminary in Enid, Okla. He resides on post with his wife Betty and three children, John, Susan, and Lynn.

1st, Trains Tie Tournament Lead

Trains Wins Five Inning Pitching Duel

By Div. Trains PIO

Monday night saw Ira Myers of the 2nd Medical Battalion team up in a tight pitcher's duel with the 23rd Infantry's Arthur Wilds which lasted for five innings before Trains scored two runs in the bottom for the victory.

Single to Center

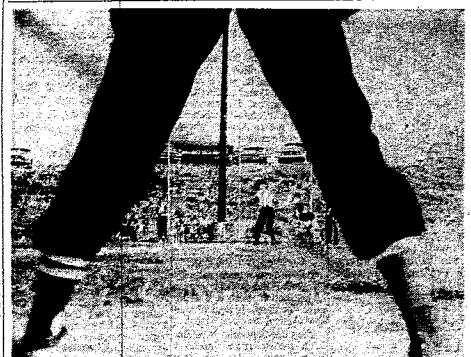
Miles Finley of the 12th Transportation Battalion began the attack with a sharp single to center field and was advanced to second on a perfect bunt by Administration Company's Rocco Siravo. Finley scored on a single to left by Don Conklin, also of Admin Company.

Fred Thomas of the 702nd Ordnance Battalion then rifled one of Wilds' pitches to right, scoring Siravo. Duane Goldammer of the Med. Bn. concluded the brief but effective hitting spree with a single to center.

"Heads-Up"

Both teams played "heads up" ball, with the difference in outcome dependent on Trains putting together four of its six hits in the one inning. 23rd Infantry batsmen were able to solve the slants of Myers for only two hits while he was recording 17 strikeouts. Nine of the strikeouts came in the first three innings. Trains played errorless ball.

With the victory over the 23rd Infantry, Trains remains tied in the race for the division softball championship with the 1st Infantry.



Each team has a record of nine wins, two losses. Both Trains losses have been to the 1st Infantry team.

1st's Jarrell Aids Team Bid With Versatile Pitch

BY JOHN O'CONNOR

David Jarrell, versatile rise and drop pitching artist for the 1st Infantry, has amassed an array of statistics in compiling seven victories without a loss in division softball tournament play.

Jarrell has not been scored upon in 46 innings of play, while allowing only five base hits. Five of his starting assignments include two perfect games and three shutouts.

His strikeout victims average out to nearly two men per inning. While perfect game performances against Division Artillery and Division Trains rocketed the 1st Infantry to a first place tie with Trains.

Jarrell's latest performances were relief efforts which netted him two wins over Separate Battalions and the 87th Infantry. He relieved starting pitcher Ralph Robinson with the score tied at 2-2 against Separate Battalions. He shut the door in the opposition's face and helped to win the ball game with a bases loaded triple and a home run. The final score was 8-2.

He relieved Luther Portis Monday evening in a game with the 87th Infantry. Portis was pitching no-hit ball until he hurt his hand while attempting to spear a vicious line drive in the fourth inning. The stubborn 87th Infantry team took advantage of Portis' injury and scored two quick runs before Jarrell was called in.

With his team behind 2-0 Jarrell began mowing down batter after batter. His teammates evened the score with a run in the fifth inning and a towering homerun in the sixth inning by third baseman, John Cogburn.

Jarrell won his own ball game with a solo home run in the 11th inning for a 3-2 victory over a vastly improved 87th Infantry team.

Jarrell uses only two pitches—a riser and a drop ball. He varies the speeds on each so greatly, that a batter's timing is thrown completely off.

He isn't a newcomer to organized softball. He has been on his state's top softball teams, as he pitched Reliable Manufacturing Co. of High Point, N. C. to the state finals last year.

3 Late Runs Give 9th Win

By 9th Inf. PIO

Rallying for three late inning runs, the second place 9th Infantry Manchus bolted past Separate Battalions 4-2 Monday night in Division softball play at the Sand Hill diamond.

Righthander Robert Given hurled the distance for the 9th Infantry, allowing but two runs and five hits. He fanned four and walked none. Given's opposing moundsman, Charles Bootie, struck out three, walked none, and surrendered four runs and seven hits. The win was Given's first decision of the tournament.

Catcher Max Powell and firstsacker Robert Hiller led the Manchus at the plate with a pair of singles each. Powell, who raised his batting average to .457, scored twice and drove in one run. Hiller collected two rbi's. The two men combined for the 9th's first run when Hiller singled in Powell.

After the tankers tied the score on Harold Gaither's double and K. O. Dean's single, the Separate Battalions crew added another tally on Walt Crowley's single and Virgil Brown's booming triple. Gaither led the losers with a double and a single.

Running their season record to 8-3, the 9th Infantry sewed up the contest in the sixth on five consecutive singles. The outburst netted three runs and the victory. The loss presented the tankers with a worksheet of 4-7.

Fiscal Year '62 Project Plans Highlighted at Sports Meeting

the Infantry Center SPORTS

By Pfc Joe Kuchera

Projects planned for the Fiscal Year 1962 and reports on the summer athletic program highlighted a recent meeting of all major unit athletic and recreation officers and non-commissioned officers at Fort Benning.

MSgt William K. Edens, The Infantry Center Athletic NCO, gave representatives an insight into special projects which are being requested for the next fiscal year.

Among the requests are a new gymnasium for the Kelley Hill area, a temporary type gymnasium for the Sand Hill area, construction of handball courts near Briant Wells Field House, repair of Bennett Field and construction of a driving range near the Sand Hill golf course.

Others are the construction of bathhouses at the Sand Hill and Harmony Church swimming pools, repainting and refinishing of the Harmony Church Field House and the construction of rest room facilities at Doughboy Stadium.

Sgt. Edens also announced that the 1961 Fort Benning Doughboy football season begins July 1 as The Infantry Center holds opening drills and registrations.

New Doughboy coach, Capt. Leaton C. Cofield, is expected to arrive at the post June 22.

Designated by Special Services as an assistant coach is Max Spurlin, a Department of the Army civilian who is athletic director for the Youth Activities Club and the post dependent schools.

Spurlin explained to the group that he has been in contact with Capt. Cofield by mail and has received a few tips on how the new Doughboy mentor will handle the team and what kind of a ball club he expects to build.

According to Spurlin, Capt. Cofield operates his teams mainly from the basic split-T offense and favors husky and strong halfbacks who are fast and able to throw a good block.

The Major Unit Baseball League, in the final round of the first half schedule, will return to the original scheduling of games June 17. At that time all the make-up games caused by the late start will be completed and the four-game a week schedule will be resumed.

The second half of the season lists 42 games, when combined with the first half will include 84 games played in the Major Unit League. Each team will have played 24 games.

Final game in the second round will be September 7, after which a play-off will be conducted, if necessary, to determine the Fort Benning representative in the Third Army Baseball Tournament at Fort Bragg, September 25 to 29.

Boxing on the major unit level will start during July, it was reported by Sfc Leary Jones, NCO officer in charge of the post boxing program. Major unit ring competition will continue until September, but the over-all boxing program will last until March at the completion of the third Army Boxing Tournament.

Individual post championships will be conducted at The Infantry Center September 27 to 29 with winners going to the Third Army tournament. Locally, pairings for the weekly matches will be made the week before the scheduled program and will be matched by team coaches.

On the golf scene, the post golf tournament will be conducted at the Country Club July 10, 11 and 12. It will be a 72-hole tournament and no qualifiction round is needed. At the completion of 36 holes, the field vying for spot on the post team will be trimmed to 30.

In softball, the Officers' Slow Pitch Softball League, comprising seven entries, will begin June 12. The schedule and operations of the league will be discussed and arranged at a meeting before the opening date.

The Infantry Center Softball Tournament will be conducted August 14 and the winner of the double elimination action will represent Fort Benning in the Third Army tournament at Fort Jackson, September 11 to 15.

Swimming activity is in full swing with the three outdoor pools and the one indoor pool in operation.

The Infantry Center Swim Championships will be held June 29 and 30. Major commands at the post are urged to enter a team if possible. A trophy will be presented for the high team or the high command in the point finishings. There are 12 events in the swimming and diving meet.

Experienced swimming or diving officials are needed by the Athletic Department for ruling and judging the various events. Anyone interested is asked to telephone Briant Wells Field House, 5-2563 or 5-3604.

TSB Remains Undefeated In Major Unit Baseball

The Student Brigade remains undefeated in Major Unit Baseball League action, playing only one game last week and winning, 8-1, over the 428th Medical Battalion.

The defending post champions have won seven straight games so far in the first half and currently hold a two-game lead over the second place 151st Engineer Group in the standings.

The 151st Engineers hold a 5-2 record, splitting a pair of games last week, defeating the highly touted 1st Battle Group, 29th Infantry, 1st Infantry Brigade, by a 4-3 count, and losing to the 2nd Howitzer Battalion, 10th Artillery, 1st Infantry Brigade, 8-6.

The 10th Artillery, after getting off to a slow start in this year's competition, maintains a 4-3 league worksheet, in a tie for third place with the 29th Infantry. Both teams are three games off the leading pace.

The 29th Infantry has had a stroke of bad luck lately, spoiling what might have been a "King of the Hill" fight between them and The Student Brigade for the loop leadership.

During the first week of the season, the 29th Infantry started off with a close nip and tuck race with the present league leaders but dropped steadily off the pace since being drudged by The Student Brigade, 12-0, in the second week of action.

Last week, the 29th dropped before the 151st Engineers but fought back to nip The Infantry Center Troop Command by a 9-8 margin.

Troop Command, who in past years has been somewhere near the top of the standings, hasn't shown very impressive this season, being defeated by the 29th Infantry and losing another tilt to the 1st Armored Rifle Battalion, 58th Infantry, 1st Infantry Brigade, 5-2.

Including next week's schedule of play, 14 games remain in the first half of the Major Unit League season. The first half concludes June 27 with the second half opening June 28.

The second half schedule runs until September 7 when playoffs, if necessary, will be completed before the Third Army Baseball Tournament opens on September 25 at Fort Bragg.

June 1 Marked Opening Of Grand Strand Rodeo

More than $7,000 in cash prizes went "afloat" along the coast of South Carolina's Grand Strand on June 1.

This date marked the opening of the 1961 Grand Strand Fishing Rodeo. The six-month event will run through Thanksgiving.

Free to all who enter, the rodeo is open to men, women and children. There is separate competition in three divisions: pier, deep sea, and surf or 'small boat'.

Cash prizes totaling more than $7,000 and 2,000 certificate awards are being offered as monthly and grand prizes to the rodeo's top anglers. In addition, special awards will be presented to children under 16 and out-of-state fishermen who don't win regular rodeo prizes.

The Grand Strand Fishing Rodeo covers a 50-mile area of the South Carolina coast extending from the North Carolina line through Pawleys Island.

The rodeo is sponsored by the Greater Myrtle Beach Chamber of Commerce in cooperation with 32 participating fishing piers, deep sea boats, and other businesses that serve as weighing stations.

Thirty-six different classes of fish are listed on the rodeo prize list. First, second and third place monthly prizes will be awarded for the biggest entry for every class of fish in the three divisions.

From a small beginning nine years ago, the Grand Strand rodeo has grown into a major fishing event that attracts anglers from many states. Last year, a record total of 789 prize entries were registered in the rodo.

A 1961 fishing guide and rodeo program and other information about the 50-mile Grand Strand may be obtained from the Greater Myrtle Beach Chamber of Commerce, P. O. Box 1317, Myrtle Beach 83, S.C.

SP4 PALMER

SP4 Robert Palmer of Company B, 1st Battle Group, 29th Infantry, 1st Infantry Brigade is a confirmed sports enthusiast. His interest is not limited to baseball (his favorite) but also includes basketball, golf and soccer.

In high school at Guilford, Connecticut, his hometown, he starred in baseball, basketball and soccer. After high school Sp4 Palmer signed a baseball contract with the Baltimore Orioles farm team in Kingsport, Tenn. He played shortstop with this team during the 1957 season and took spring training with them the following season.

He joined the Army in September, 1958 and went through basic and advance training at Fort Dix. After completing this phase of training he was transferred to U.S. Army Garrison, Fort Kobbe, Canal Zone.

Sp4 Palmer was a regular starter on the post baseball and basketball teams at Fort Kobbe. He played guard on the basketball team that was post runner-up in the 1959 championship playoffs.

He was the regular shortstop on the post baseball team which copped the post championship for the 1959-60 season. Sp4 Palmer was selected to play shortstop on the Panama All-Star team that went to Guatemala for a six game series in 1959. The Panama All-Stars won four games out of six for the 1959 All-Star Championship.

His next opportunity for sports participation came with his arrival to the 29 Infantry. He is currently playing shortstop with the 29th Infantry baseball squad in the Major Unit Baseball league.

On July 4

Five Athletic Contests Lead To YAC Parade of Champions

Five athletic contests open to the public and military competition leading to the Parade of Champions have been scheduled as a portion of the Youth Activities Club Carnival to be held July 4 on post.

The sporting events will include a basketball throw, archery contest, golf chipping accuracy, football throw and a baseball throw contest.

Free-throw accuracy will count in the basketball throw, which is tentatively scheduled to take place in Briant Wells Field House.

Archery, golf, football and baseball contests will be held on Stilwell Field.

The highest target score will determine the winner in the archery contest. Two targets for both age groups will be set up. This year's golf chipping contest is open to both junior and senior divisions.

Football competition will consist of accuracy at various distances and baseball contests will be graded for distance and accuracy.

The military Parade of Champions will include the Fort Benning soldier making the best showing in individual competition and the outstanding unit, determined by performance in seven categories.

The Commanding General's Trophy will go to the winning unit. Last year the rotating trophy was captured by the 1st Battle Group, 29th Infantry, 1st Infantry Brigade. The outstanding soldier is awarded a $500 U.S. Savings Bond and $100 and $50 bonds go to second and third place winners.

Units will compete for the big trophy in seven contests, including a cross-country run, platoon drill, physical fitness, grenade throw, jeep driving, and pistol and rifle competition. The individual soldier will also compete in seven categories, including physical fitness, grenade throw, rifle and pistol competition, military appearance, manual of arms and a general military knowledge test.

Participants in the unit and individual competitions on July 4 will be selected by units in preliminary eliminations before that day, according to Major Frank Zigmund, chairman of military competition for the carnival.

The military competition will begin early the morning of July 4 and continue through late afternoon. Awards will be presented that evening at a ceremony. Most of the military events will be held at Coursen Range, French Field, Blue Field and Training Field 9.

Tickets are now on sale for the annual carnival which raises funds for the support of youth activities on post.

Brigade Boxers Prepare For '61-'62 Ring Season

The 1st Battle Group, 29th Infantry, 1st Infantry Brigade, boxing team is going through a rugged training cycle in preparation for the 1961-62 Major Unit Boxing season.

M-Sgt. John Rivolta, head boxing coach, says the team looks promising so far. He has a total of 14 fighters on the team to date.

Four champions returned from last year's team. They are Sp4 Harold Butler, welterweight; Sp4 Ernest Valdez, lightweight; Pfc Joe Smith, welterweight; and Pfc Robert Simmons, middleweight. Other returnees are Pfc Ernest Cross, Sp4 Amos Waters and Pfc Jimmy Berry.

Sfc Leon Hall, one of Fort Benning's all-time greats, is now engineering the training for the 29th Infantry boxing team.

Sgt. L. A. Eley, head coach of the 1st Armored Rifle Battalion, 58th Infantry, 1st Infantry Brigade, boxing team, says he is satisfied with the progress the team is showing. All team members are working hard to condition themselves for the coming season.

Team members back from last year are Pfc Odis Ward, light welterweight; Sp4 Tibor Gondoc, light welterweight; and Sgt. Booker T. Anderson, welterweight.

Sgt. Willie Young, 1960 USAREUR light middleweight runner-up, is a new member of the squad. Sgt. Young has lost three fights, all to Sfc Ed Crook, who is now the 1960 Olympic Gold Medal winner.

DOOR PRIZE WINNER . . . Mrs. Vivian Kisiel (R) holds the winning ticket for the door prize, which she received from MSgt. Claude C. Irwin, national representative of ARAS at Barracks 113's party last Saturday at Harmony Church.

Sandra Lee Taylor's Report Card . . .

A very friendly senior with a winning smile and an engaging personality is the "Report Card" personality for this week. Glenn Gardner, a tall blond, steps into our student spotlight as a Fort Benning senior who is interested in contributing his share to his school through his many and varied activities.

On the top of Glenn's interests is his membership in the CHS Debator's Club, called the Rutledge-Minner Debator's Society. A great honor came to Glenn this year as his fellow club members elected him to be one of the four debators in the spring debate.

The spring debate is an annual event at Columbus High, and one which the juniors and seniors are invited to attend. At the debate, Glenn was awarded one of four $25 Savings Bonds by Mr. Rutledge Minnix, whose son was an originator of the Society. Glenn is also a member of the R. B. Daniel Hi-Y, a service organization at CHS.

For the past three years, Glenn has participated in the Columbus High ROTC. This year Glenn was a first lieutenant, and served as a platoon leader. In speaking of CHS, Glenn said, "I think the people at Columbus High are very friendly and easy to get along with."

Another great honor was given to Glenn by the junior class. At the Junior-Senior Prom held May 20, the juniors selected him as one of six boys whom they thought best represented the senior class. Congratulations, Glenn!

During the three years that Glenn has lived here, he has come to regard it as the "best post he has ever lived on." Here at Fort Benning, Glenn participates in the "Follow-Me Club" a Protestant Youth fellowship organization. Glenn is past president of Follow-Me Club, and last year he attended the "Youth for Christ" convention held in Atlanta. Glenn is also chief usher for his usher team at the Main Post Protestant Chapel.

Glenn attended Parkersville High School in Parkersville, Ohio, for his freshman year and while there was a member of the freshman choir. He and his family, Col. and Mrs. Glenn H. Gardner; Mark, 12; and Brent, 10, have also lived at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas; Fort Mead, Md.; Stuttgard, Germany; and Athens, Ohio.

This year at Columbus High Glenn stated that his favorite subject was chemistry, because it gave him such a challenge.

During the two previous summers Glenn has been employed at the Officers' Open Mess Swimming Pool. Last summer he was a life guard, and the summer before that he worked as a gate guard and bath house attendant.

Glenn's plans are to attend a preparatory school for West Point at Fort Belvoir after his graduation from CHS. He will first enlist in the Regular Army for eight weeks of basic training, after which he will go to Fort Belvoir for prep work until he takes his college board entrance examinations in June. If his scores are high enough, he will then enter the Military Academy the next fall.

Glenn Gardner is certainly a credit to the post and we want to wish him all the success he needs in his next venture. With his intelligence and responsible attitude we are sure that he will continue to be as successful as in the past.

Swimming Meet

A swimming and diving meet will be held at Fort Benning's new Carey Pool June 24 and 25. Military personnel who are fair divers and swimmers are invited to participate in the competition. Entry forms are available at all the post swimming pools and in the Athletic Office in Briant Wells Field House.

ALL FOR LOVE

A Milwaukee, Wis., resident reported that someone stole a 500-pound statue of Venus from his garden. They didn't leave a footprint.

On Father's Day

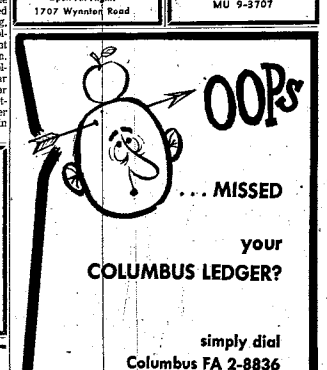
Open Mess To Feature Golf Tourney

The Main Officers' Open Mess will sponsor a Fathers' Day Golf Tournament on June 18 at the post Country Club. Club members may register at the Pro Shop prior to 6 p.m. June 14 in one or more of the established categories.

Golfing categories are Father-Son, Father-Daughter, and Father-Fostered. Fathers may play with children, from ages 10-18 inclusive. The Callaway Handicap system will be used in all scoring.

Eighteen holes will be played in the Father-Son, Father-Fostered categories. A nine hole Scotch foresome will be played in the Father-Daughter category.

The Father-Fostered category will consist of entries made with quasi-adopted children whose fathers are performing duty at a station other than Fort Benning. The entry fee is $1.50 for each category entered and any combination of categories may be entered by a father.



Starting times will be posted at the Pro Shop on June 16. All Main Officers' Open Mess Golfers are invited to enter the tournament.

The Surgeon Says

A Bad Sunburn Can Be Deadly

By Major Robert H. Quinn, MC

On these hot, humid summer days more and more people are taking to the great outdoors seeking relief from the heat. Public parks and beaches as well as the swimming facilities offered on post cater to a multitude of military and their dependents.

Sunshine is beneficial, as we all know, however caution and moderation must be exercised at all times because overexposure can be painful, sometimes crippling and even fatal.

Sunburn, the effect of overexposure, is caused by ultraviolet rays of the sun. It is usually a first degree burn characterized by reddening of the skin. Overexposure of sun causes tiny blood vessels in the skin to dilate; the skin thus becomes red. As the skin is further insulted, injury to tissue begins swelling of the skin occurs, blisters appear and often fever, infection and headache develop.

Severe sunburn causes great discomfort and in many cases complete bed rest is required for days — incapacitating the working man and curtailing summer fun.

Sunburn is a superficial injury, although painful, but will not scar and will heal of its own accord. However, the possibility of infection arises when it is severe enough that blisters appear as a result of damaged tissues. Caution must be used in treatment of blistered skin.

An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure — The moderation — limiting the time of exposure. The first exposure should not exceed a maximum of 15 minutes.

A common set of fallacies is that sunburn can only occur on bright days and that a tan prevents further burning. Ultraviolet light may reach the skin by radiation (direct sunlight) or reflection (skyline water reflection, sand reflection, etc.) Therefore, dull cloudy days, particularly at a beach are deceptively hazardous. Tanning hides helps but does not obviate sunburn.

Some commercial preparations for protection against sunburn are beneficial while others are not. Caution should be shown in purchasing lotions and creams that may cause irritating or allergic reactions. Caution should also be used when buying lotions and creams that contain a dye. Preparations containing free para-aminobenzoic acid are very effective and seldom cause skin allergies.

Treatment

Wash hands thoroughly before applying medication.

Coat the burned area with an antiseptic ointment. This relieves pain and also prevents the damaged skin from drying out and cracking. It will also minimize the possibility of infection. Any ointment so used should be of the type that is readily washed off.

Rubbing alcohol is cooling.

As much fluid should be taken by mouth as the patient can tolerate in order to combat toxemia (poisonous substances in the blood) which a bad sunburn can produce.

Injured area should not be exposed to the sun until healing is completed.

Aspirin or similar medication will be helpful in relieving the general discomfort.

Calamine lotion is recommended but it is very drying to the skin.

Do not apply butter or oleomargarine.

Medicated creams may cause skin allergies.

Remember—It is better to be safe than sorry — Do not subject yourself to long periods of exposure to the sun. When in doubt about prevention or treatment of sunburn, consult your physician.

British Officer To Judge Annual Hound Dog Show

Lt. Col. John S. McLaren, British liaison officer at The Infantry School, will judge the beagle classes at the annual Lithfield County (Conn.) Hound Show today.

The show is jointly sponsored by the National Beagle Club and the American Foxhound Club.

Col. McLaren left the post Wednesday and will return June 17.

The British officer has served as master and huntsman of the Aldershot beagles at the School of Infantry Beagles in England. He also is a member of the Committee of the Masters of Beagles Association of Great Britain, governing body for hunting with beagles in that country.

Great Britain has 65 recognized beagle hunts. They include 20 to 50 hounds and hunt hare. The hunt staff and members follow the hunt on foot. The season lasts from September through March.

Summer Outings Planned For 150 Boys and Girls

Two outings, each a week long, have been arranged for 100 boys and 50 girls, from eight to 15 years of age, all Fort Benning dependents, at Lake Blackshear, near Cordele, Georgia.

The girls are scheduled to attend the camp during the week of June 11-17. Applications will be available at the Provost Marshal Operations Division—from June 5 to 8. A physical examination is scheduled for all girl campers on the 9th of June at 9 a.m., in Building 396, Old Hospital Area.

The boys will have their week of camping from the 6th of August to the 12th. Application for the boys will be available at the Provost Marshal Operations Division, from July 31 to August 3. Physical examinations for the boys are scheduled for August 4, at 9 a.m., in Building 396, Old Hospital Area.

Among the numerous activities at the camp are swimming, softball and hiking. Also included in the campers activities is safety training of all types, taught by members of the Georgia State Patrol.

The cost of attendance is $12.50 per applicant.

SAFETY ADDRESS . . . Georgia State Patrol Sgt. Joe White delivers the main address to children of post military personnel recently during the annual Bicycle Safety Campaign on post. Present were members of the Columbus and Phenix City Police Departments, Col. James E. Farmer, the Infantry Center Provost Marshal and the post assistant safety director, Andrew Baldwin.

BOOKS in REVIEW

THE FAULT OF THE APPLE by Frederic Wakeman. (Simon, 1961)

This is the story of a divorce. It centers on a man in his forties, a successful man who loves his wife and children; who thinks of himself as contented with his life. Suddenly, without warning, he falls in love with another woman in a way he has never loved before and with a passion he cannot resist. He cannot live without her.

THE LAWN BOOK by Robert W. Schery, (MacMillan, 1961)

This is an up to date, authoritative guidebook thoroughly covering every aspect of planning, planting, and caring for a lawn in any climate. Starting with complete descriptions of major lawn grasses and their cultural requirements, Dr. Schery dispels popular misconceptions about lawnkeeping and gives all the information needed for maintaining a beautiful lawn easily and economically.

THE WAX FOUNDATION by Gwen Davenport. (Double day, 1961)

Unpredictable Mrs. Evalina Wagner Wax left six million dollars to establish a foundation where selected applicants for "workshops" could develop their ideas for benefiting mankind. Her nephew, Aaron Wagner, who had expected to be her heir, inherited a small stipend as resident director of the Wax Foundation.

FAR OUT by Damon Knight. (Simon, 1961)

Here are thirteen stories in which Damon Knight, the exploding cigar of science fiction, reveals unsuspected booby traps in the basic situations of tomorrow's literature. Here you will find stories of wonder and imagination written, as James Blish once said of Knight's critical essays, with penetration, enormous wit, beautifully lucid and polished prose.

MOUNTAIN TO MOHAMMED

A minister in England is considering establishing a rock and roll center to give us a chance to meet boys and girls on their own grounds."

Masquers--Unmasked

By Pfc Chuck Pariso

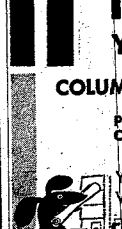
Fort Benning's little theater group, the Masquers, will present the first of three performances of their latest production, the "Girls in 509", tonight at 8:30 at Building 1045.

The second and third performances will be given tomorrow and next Saturday (June 17) evenings also at 8:30. Tickets may be obtained from any member of the group or by house (5-2468). Tickets may also be purchased at the door on the evening of the performance you desire to attend.

The play, a comedy by Howard Teichmann, is about wacky females, Aunt Hettie and her niece, Minsy, who have locked themselves up in a hotel room for 26 years.

As far as the outside world is concerned, these girls are dead & that is until the hotel is to be demolished, then the fun begins——

The title role of Aunt Hettie is portrayed by Mrs. Phyllis Trilsch. Minsy will be played by Kathleen Legare. Others in the cast include: "Wes" Carr as Old Jim; Dick Weeks as Pusey; Margo Cesler as Miss Freud; John Hofues plays the dual role of Winthrop Allen and Francis X. Nella; and John E. Olbrys as Aubrey McKittredge, the Girls' lawyer.



Playing the parts of the reporters will be Steve Lebow (Daily News), Douglas Moir (Herald Tribune), Glenn Gray (New York Post), and Charles Pariso (Journal American). Elliot Paul has directed the play.

Originally scheduled to play the part of Aunt Hettie, Cecile Stafford decided to forego the role because of recurring commitments. However, Mrs. Stafford continues in her position of business manager for the Masquers. She is also a member of the board.

Ballroom Refresher Set at 'Y'

The Armed Services YMCA is offering a free summer refresher course in ballroom dancing, with a professional dance instructor conducting the classes, beginning June 10.

Basic dance steps will be taught, and emphasis will be placed on instruction for beginners. There will also be group instruction for those who wish to take advanced lessons.

Consuela Valentine Roberts, a professional dance instructor in Columbus, will conduct the classes. Mrs. Roberts is a member of the National Association of Dance and Affiliated Artists; she holds the Gold Seal Certificate from the Conservatory for Teachers, the highest recognition available to dance instructors.

This course is being offered by Armed Services YMCA in response to the demand for instruction by qualified and professional teachers. Those who enroll should plan to attend all four sessions; but this will not be required. In case of absence, classes can be made up.

Classes will be held from 7:15 to 8:15 p.m. in the old social hall on the second floor. Girls of the GSO will take the course in order to provide dance partners for the students. Attendance will be limited to those who register for the course. No fees will be charged for the four week course.

BROWNIE SCOUTS . . . The Brownie Scouts of Fort Benning's Troop 162 don their scouting uniforms with white gloves and an orchid for a recent ceremony in which they participated. The girls are (L to R): Bett Vancil, Debby Shelnut, Rosemary Ratcliff, Janice Kennedy, Deborah Faurot, Donna Hammondtree, Christine Drake, Linda Kelman. Second row: Mrs. Ralph Drake assistant troop leader, Sandra Ison, Shiela Sonich, Kathleen Peters, Kristy Murray, Judy Millener, Cathy McClure, Lora Plott, and Mrs. Manfred Kelman the Brownie troop leader. Auburn University Choir Sets Show Here Sunday

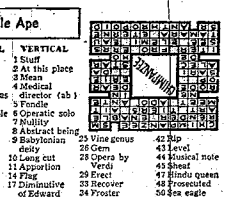
The Auburn University Concert Choir, touring the Third Army area, will present its one-hour show at Fort Benning Sunday, June 11, in the Main Theater at 7 p.m.

Fort Benning is the last stop on the tour which took the choir, under the direction of Martin E. Rice, to Fort Rucker, Fort Stewart and Fort Bragg, Fort McPherson, Fort Campbell, and Fort McClellan.



Only one performance will be given by the mixed group of 10 male and 25 female vocalists. The choir is accompanied on the piano by Elizabeth Johnson.

Selections will include "Gloria," "Eloquence," "Song of the Fisherman," "That's the Idea of Freedom," "While They Were Young," "Free At Last," "Rockin' Jerusalem" and several selections from "The Music Man."

The Civilians You Work With

Ethel D. Moncrieff celebrated her 21st year with the Quartermaster Section of The Infantry Center recently and is presently working in the Financial Inventory Accounting and Stock Fund Unit.

Since starting to work in April, 1940, Mrs. Moncrieff has worked as a clerk in every unit of the section. Her present job is mostly a management assignment, but she also works on the Stock Fund Budget, which runs about $8,000,000 yearly, and analyzes the management report for the QM Section.

A native of Columbus, she graduated from Jordan High School and has taken correspondence courses from the Army Finance School and the University of Georgia.

Betty Ann Langford has been working for the Army for 27 months and is presently assigned in the Combat Developments Office of The Infantry School as a clerk stenographer. Before starting her present job with CDO, Miss Langford worked in the Infantry Center Comptroller's Office.

A native of Manchester, Ga., and graduate of Manchester High School, she completed a nine-month course with the Ferry Business School before coming to work at Benning.

Improvements Unlimited Are Demonstrated Here

Improvements are unlimited in all operations and areas of responsibility in the Army, as is shown by approximately $20,000.00 in monetary benefits between two vastly different organizational elements here.

Approximately one-third of the personnel assigned to the Adjutant General Section of The Infantry Center are civilians while Lawson Army Aviation Command has only eight civilians and over 1100 military.

The primary missions of the Adjutant General Section are administrative in nature while the missions of Lawson Army Aviation Command are related to maintaining operational readiness of Strategic Reserve Army Forces units and supporting The Infantry Center and The Infantry School with aircraft.

These elements with widely different missions have a common area of interest....improvement of operations and reduced cost.

During Fiscal Year 1961 both Lawson and the AG section have saved approximately $20,000.00 with installed improvements.

These improvements vary from consolidating message center runs in the AG section to installing a facsimile recorder for weather forecasting at Lawson; from repair of pilot's seats in UH aircraft at Lawson to increased use of pre-addressed envelopes in the AG Section.

8 Officers Complete 'Bootstrap'

Eight Fort Benning officers were on the graduation list Monday at the University of Omaha, Neb.

They are Lt. Col. Karl W. Volk, Jr., Major Buenaventura Esteves, Major John D. Yarbrough, Capt. Richard C. Cable, Capt. Vincent T. McKelvey, Capt. Jimmy N. Moore, Capt. Richard A. Kupau and 1st Lt. Floyd D. Hoefler.

With the exception of Capt. Kupau, who received a B. S. degree in military science, the officers were awarded the degree of bachelor of general education.

In the graduating class at the university, 111 out of 494 candidates for degrees were military men and women attending the school under the provisions of, "Operation Bootstrap."

Bootstrap is a plan whereby Army officers within 24 credit hours of a degree may attend the college or university of their choice.

Know Your Senior NCOs

MSgt (E-9) Norman D. Mekkelsen, of Company C, 1st Battalion, USAIC Troop Command, is one of the newest E-9's on post with his recent promotion to his present rank.

Working as a chief clerk with the G-3 Section of The Infantry Center, MSgt Mekkelsen is a key figure in the enlisted men's ranks here.

Sgt. Mekkelsen entered the Army on August 26, 1942, with the beginning of World War II, at Camp Blanding, Florida. He was then assigned to Camp Swist, Texas, where he received his basic training. He was later shipped to Europe.

During WWII, Sgt. Mekkelsen saw combat duty with the 303rd Infantry in the European Theatre of Operations and the Central Europe Campaign. In the early 1950's when the Korean Conflict flared up, he again saw action, this time with the 10th Corps. During the time he spent in combat, Sgt. Mekkelsen was an Infantryman.

He has been awarded the Purple Heart and the Bronze Star with Oak Leaf Cluster for his action while defending the freedom of his country and its allies.

One of the high-lights of Sgt. Mekkelsen's Army career was from 1945 to 1957 when he served as a first sergeant in the 29th Infantry, here at Fort Benning.

Other than combat duty, he has also seen foreign duty at Fort Gulick, in the Panama Canal Zone, from 1946 to 1948.

A native of Miami Springs, Fla., Sgt. Mekkelsen entered the Army before graduating from high school but completed his high school education and received his diploma from Arlington High School, in Arlington, Mass.

SGT. MEKKELSEN

GENERAL EDUCATION FOR MILITARY PERSONNEL

The Army provides its military personnel the facilities, incentives, and guidance for resuming and continuing their general education in courses similar to those offered in accredited civilian schools. Except during basic combat and advanced individual training, use of duty time for specific phases of General Educational Development may be authorized. While participation normally is voluntary and during after-duty hours, commanders may prescribe for their units or designated individuals thereof such on duty education as they consider necessary to the need of their units.

Optimists Hear Talk By Capt. Reish

Capt. Richard D. Reish, operations officer of The Infantry School's Combat Developments Office, spoke to the LaGrange Optimist Club June 5.

"Materiel Developments for the Army of the Future" was the topic of his talk at the luncheon meeting in the Colonial Hotel. The presentation was accompanied by color slides.

Capt. Reish came to the post in February, 1959, from a tour in Germany and served with Match Headquarters of The Infantry Center G-3 Section until entering The Infantry School's advanced officer course in September of that year. He has been with the Combat Developments Office since May, 1960.

For Army Championships

Nearly 1,000 Shooters Here

Nearly 1,000 Army marksmen were told Monday that they would prove their combat readiness to the world during the Army Rifle and Pistol Championships which will continue at The Infantry Center until June 15.

Brig. Gen. L. A. Walsh, Jr., assistant commandant of The Infantry School, who delivered the opening address, said that the coming matches would prove the professionalism of all participants.

"You all have a tremendous role to play," Gen. Walsh told his listeners, adding that the Army teams would be targets at the 1961 National Matches.

"We'll win despite all efforts of the other services," he said, "because of the farflung program of marksmanship training promoted by the Army."

Following the close of his address, Gen. Walsh donned his shooting jacket and fired the opening shot of the 1961 matches from the 500-yard firing line.

With the shot, a row of targets appeared emblazoned with the message: "Welcome Shooters."

During the first day consisted of International free pistol competition in which some 90 marksmen were entered.

Automatic rifle, service rifle and pistol opened after a day's final practice.

Individuals and teams from the six continental Armies, the Military District of Washington and the four major overseas commands are entered in the championships.

Today

Exchangites Arrive For 3-Day Meeting

The post is the scene of opening day sessions today of the three-day state convention of the Exchange Club.

Approximately 300 members of the organization will arrive at the post at 11:45 a.m. and have lunch at the Reserve Components Section in the Harmony Church area.

Following luncheon, they will join the 580-man Class of 1962 from the U.S. Military Academy at West Point, N. Y., in witnessing a demonstration of Rangers in action at Victory Pond.

The presentation will feature hand-to-hand combat, bayonet and knife disarming, survival methods, mountaineering techniques and the Ranger confidence test. First Lt. John W. Foss, instructor on the Ranger Department's Combat Conditioning Committee, will be the principal narrator.

The Exchange Club members then will view an airmobile assault demonstration in the Underwood Road area directed by The Infantry School's Command and Staff Department.

Lt. Col. John W. McClain will be the principal instructor and Major Eugene N. Fisk, the principal narrator.

The convention schedule includes business sessions, installation of officers and a visit to Ida Cason Callaway Gardens at Pine Mountain.

State officers are: Arthur Muttall of Cedartown, president; Dr. Paul Terrentine of Buckhead, vice president, and Robert B. McCord Jr., of Dalseville, secretary - treasurer.

Members of the state Board of Control are B. Earl Bowden of Columbus, Douglas W. Strobhern of Savannah, Charles C. Foster Jr., of Albany, Lewis Y. Smith of Macon, Edwin Peavy of Waycross and Alex Crittenden Jr. of Thomasville.

Speaker at the meeting will be James Gray, publisher of The Albany Herald and chairman of the Georgia Democratic Committee, and T. W. Dawson of Minneapolis, manufacturer and past national president of Exchange Clubs.

Vacation Bible School Registration Still Open

Registrations for the post's 1961 Vacation Bible School are still being accepted, according to Mrs. Margurite Waldrop, director of religious education for The Infantry Center.

The school will be conducted from June 19 to 23 at the Religious Education Center (Building 2506.), with daily sessions from 8:30 to 11 a.m.

Vacation Bible School, with a history that spans 63 years, is a fundamental part of the Sunday School. The school is manned by regular Sunday School officers and teachers, with the assistance of other voluntary helpers.

Every year more than a half million volunteer workers participate in the program.

On a basis of 10 pupils per worker, it is estimated that during the 1961 vacation season, approximately five million children will be reached by Vacation Bible Schools.

The curriculum of the school supplements that of the Sunday School, giving emphasis to its teaching and providing more variety than is possible during the brief regular Sunday morning session. All its activities directly or indirectly center around the Bible. The aim however, is to leave impressions and broad concepts of truth, rather than intricate details.

Vacation Bible School was originated by an individual concerned for the welfare of little children who, she felt, needed her help. In this instance, the children were immigrants playing on the streets of New York's East side.

PROTECTIVE COLORATION
New York police had little trouble picking up a robbery suspect. They arrested a man still wearing his gleaming white shoes and orange tie.

Helicopter Logs Over 800 Hours

A H-34C Helicopter, 53-3026, of the 94th Transportation Company recently performed over 800 hours with no major overhauls or modifications, Major William Proncavage, unit commander, announced this week.

Confirmation that this is the fifth engine in the inventory to reach this goal since inclusion of the H-34 Helicopter into the Army Aviation system over six years ago has been received, from the Transportation Material Command at St. Louis, Missouri.

Lt. Col. William B. Dyer, commanding officer; 3d Transportation Battalion, and CWO Francis C. Walsh Jr., of the 94th Transportation Company, reached the 800 hour goal on May 8.

Although the engine is authorized to be flown 800 hours, high commitment rates and the abrasive action of sand and dust take a high toll of the engines well before the 800 hour goal.

Col. Keyes

Col. Keyes commanded the 3rd Battalion, 27th Infantry, 25th Infantry Division from September, 1955, to the following March, then was G-2 of the 25th Division for five months.

Among his decorations are the Distinguished Service Cross, Silver Star with Oak Leaf Cluster, Legion of Merit, Bronze Star Medal with three Oak Leaf Clusters, Purple Heart and British Distinguished Service Order.

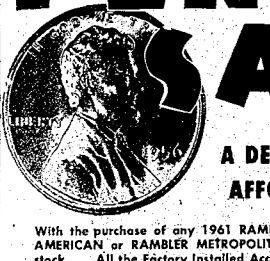
From September, 1963, to August, 1956, Col. Keyes was assigned to the Army War Plans Division, Office of the Deputy Chief of Staff for Operations, Department of the Army, while concurrently serving as a member of the Standing Group of NATO in Washington.

He attended The Infantry School's communication officer course in 1941, division officer course in 1942 and officer refresher course in 1946.

Col. Keyes was a student at the Command and General Staff College, Fort Leavenworth, from February to May, 1943. He is a 1951 graduate of the Armed Forces Staff College at Norfolk, Va., and completed the National War College at Fort McNair, Washington, D. C., six years later.

ARMY EMERGENCY RELIEF

Army Emergency Relief (AER) is an Army sponsored organization dedicated to taking care of members of the Army and their dependents in times of financial stress. AER assistance is immediately available to members of the Army or their dependents through the AER sections at Army installations.



Much of the credit for this feat is given to Sp6 Elmer Howard, helicopter crew chief, and the maintenance personnel of the 94th Company and the 507th Transportation Detachment.

Exercise 'Golden West'

Reservists to Test Tactical Exercises

The 87th Maneuver Area Command of Birmingham, with the support group, the 3220th Army Garrison from West Palm Beach, Fla., has begun its two weeks of active duty at Fort Benning.

The combined strength of the two units is slightly more than 700 officers, enlisted men and women. They are quartered in the Harmony Church area.

The 87th MAC is commanded by Brig. Gen. Edward M. Friend, Jr., and Col. George W. Greer commands the 3220th.

In the One Army concept, the Army Reservists will participate in Exercise Golden West, which begins next week at this post.

The training preceding "Golden West" will consist of section training for specific duties. A school for umpires will be held. On-the-job training for each specialized branch will be emphasized.

"Golden West" will be conducted with troops of the 2nd Battle Group, 1st Infantry, 2nd Infantry Division.

It will consist of typical problems of an Infantry company, particularly in dealing with aggressor forces in river crossings, in defense and other typical situations of combat troops.

Purpose of the maneuver, from the viewpoint of the 87th MAC, is to test the workability of the exercise, according to Capt. Dave Campbell, information officer of the 87th.

The 87th MAC is the largest single component in the Army Reserve program. The mission of the unit is to devise, write, refine, present, umpire and critique exercises and maneuvers with a view to testing the combat readiness of other Army units as large as corps in size.

101st Division Personnel Here For Range Course

A Trainfire course is being conducted by The Infantry School's Weapons Department through tomorrow for personnel of the 101st Airborne Division, Fort Campbell. The Course began June 3.

Fourteen officers and 73 enlisted men representing all units in the division are participating in the course, which will enable them to instruct their units in the utilization of Trainfire ranges newly opened at Fort Campbell.

DETERMINES BENEFITS

Social security benefits are administered by the Bureau of Old-Age and Survivors Insurance, Social Security Administration, Department of Health, Education, and Welfare. Only that agency can make final determination as to the benefits to be received.

Suggestions Total 8,750; More Due In

A partial report on the Army Chief of Staff's Suggestion Month credits Fort Benning military and civilian personnel with approximately 8,750 suggestions with some activities still to report submissions to The Infantry Center's Incentive Awards Committee.

Post personnel have responded heavily in answering the call for time, money and labor-saving suggestions pertaining to daily duty, according to J. Frank Spear, executive secretary of the committee. He expects to have the complete results soon of the month-long campaign, which ended May 31.

Some suggestions already have been adopted by subcommittees of the various activities and the suggestors have been awarded certificates or letters of appreciation by commanders or activity chiefs. The Incentive Awards Committee is reviewing other suggestions for higher-level awards.

Personnel of the 1st Infantry Brigade submitted 3,492 suggestions. Other heavy contributions came from The Infantry School with 2,448 suggestions and Lawson Army Aviation Command, 984.

The Infantry Center's Quartermaster Section reported 524 submissions, Martin Army Hospital, 283, and the Infantry Center Troop Command, 249.

Major Walsh Plans Unitarian Report On '61 Convention

Major George C. Walsh, will speak to the Unitarian Fellowship of Fort Benning and Columbus at 7:30 p.m. Sunday at the 1st Infantry Brigade Chapel.

He will give a report on the 1961 convention of the American Unitarian Association which he attended in May.

22 New Records Are Established At Marksmanship Championships

Sgts. Jordan, Blankenship Crowned Individual Champs

Records fell here again as the 1961 Army Rifle and Pistol Championships ended this week and Army shooters continued to show the world their improvements in this basic area—marksmanship.

Nearly 1,000 competitors, coaches, team captains and supporters were attracted to Benning for the annual windup to the marksmanship cycle.

Results of matches, in the order in which they were fired, were as follows:

Monday, June 5

Major Fremont Burdick, of the Army Advanced Marksmanship Unit, became the first "trophy" winner of the championships when he fired 538 out of a possible 600 points to win the Free Pistol Match. Second place was won by Sfc William Blankenship, AAMU shooter, with 537, while Sfc Floyd D. Oliver, also of AAMU, placed third with 536.

Tuesday, June 6

Three riflemen of the AAMU continued domination of the matches by winning the first three places in the International 50-Meter Free Rifle Match.

Cpl. Gary L. Anderson set a new Army record by shooting a total of 1,137 points out of a possible 1,200 over the three position course.

Second place was won with 1,136 fired by 1st Lt. Tommy G. Pool and third by Capt. Daniel B. Puckel with 1,129. All three marksmen exceeded the old record of 1,123 for the course of 120 shots, 40 shots

(See CHAMPS, Page 18)

Fifteen points over the old record, with a 1136 total, U. S. Army Europe's Grey rifle team out fired all other competing teams to win the Infantry Trophy Team Match Wednesday.

Third Army placed second with 1099 and Fourth Army's Red team came in third with 1095.

According to latest available figures, 22 of the 46 records were broken during the matches.

ROTC Summer Training

1,200 Expected As Camp Opens

More than 1200 ROTC cadets from 33 colleges and universities will hear an address by Brig. Gen. John E. Kelly, deputy commanding general of The Infantry Center, opening the 1961 ROTC Summer Camp. The ceremonies will be at 9 a.m. Monday, June 19 in Theater 1.

The schools represented at this session will be from the states of Florida, Alabama, Mississippi, Georgia, South Carolina, Tennessee and the territory of Puerto Rico. An exception to this state distribution is that Notre Dame and Yale universities will each have one ROTC cadet present.

The following schools will have cadets in attendance: Mississippi Southern, Mississippi State University, University of Mississippi; The Citadel, Clemson College; East Tennessee State College, Middle Tennessee State College, University of Chattanooga, University of Tennessee, Tennessee Polytechnic Institute, Vanderbilt University.

University of Alabama, Florence State College, Jacksonville State College, Spring Hill College, Tuskegee Institute, Marion Institute, Florida A and M College, Florida State University, Florida Southern College, University of Florida,

A Message From The Third Army Commander

On page 5 of this issue of The Bayonet is an article on the Third Army NCO Academy at Fort Jackson, South Carolina:

I urge all personnel to read this article carefully.

It describes a plan, which becomes fully effective next month, to provide professional noncommissioned officer training for men in grades E-5 and above in a course of instruction of six weeks' duration, conducted in the framework of companies, troops, or batteries.

To the noncommissioned officer it shows a way in which he will be able to increase his overall professional competence and knowledge by enhancing his ability as a leader, as an instructor, and as an expert in the fundamentals of his profession, and to prepare himself for promotion.

To commanders it shows a way to increase unit efficiency and proficiency by developing a corps of highly professional noncommissioned officers who are second to none in any Army in the world.

To Soldiers below the grade of E-5 it holds up an objective well worth striving for through self-improvement and by devoting their best efforts in 'doing a man's job.'

I urge commanders and noncommissioned officers of all organizations, units, and installations to avail themselves of this exceptional opportunity to enhance the proficiency of their units; and to prepare noncommissioned officers for higher responsibilities and promotion.

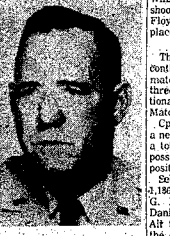
Infantry's Importance Told At USMA Cadet Departure

The 598-man U.S. Military Academy Class of 1962 departed The Infantry School Tuesday morning after a week's training in Airborne concepts, leadership and tactics.

"The skill and spirit you've shown us here in the last few days speaks well of you and the U.S. Military Academy as a whole," Brig. Gen. A. D. Surles, Jr., assistant commandant of The Infantry School, said in closing remarks to the cadets Monday afternoon on Hook Range.

George Kirschenbauer, cadet trip commander, presented an engraved plaque to Gen. Surles for The Infantry School in expressing the class' appreciation for its stay at the post.



"You came here to learn the role the Infantry plays in the fight for victory. You came as close as possible to that objective in the limited time we had," Gen. Surles told the group.

The one-star general said he hoped the cadets had gained a fuller understanding of "the reason why a man wants to be an Infantryman."

"For years men have worked to preclude the Infantryman. With all the fantastic weapons, with all the megatons built into warheads, with all the mobility incorporated into machines, we haven't been able to do that," he emphasized.

"Anything that man invents can be circumvented by man. This is a paradox which confuses the man who wants to invent the ultimate weapon, for man is the ultimate weapon," he stated.

The speaker noted the satisfaction and fulfillment derived from being an Infantry leader.

"Only in front line combat are human values reduced to the common denominator of one man's respect for another," he pointed out.

"It is my sincere hope that your stay at The Infantry School has created or reaffirmed a desire in you to join the Army's basic branch and that you will have an everlasting appreciation of the job that the Infantryman does and the pride he has in doing it," Gen. Surles added.

The cadets' schedule included demonstrations of Rangers in action, reinforced rifle company in defense and firepower and airmobile assault.

The visitors also were honored with a hop last Friday in the Main Officers' Open Mess hosted by Gen. Surles.

Capt. George R. Henderson, Jr. and Capt. David L. Gardner, both assigned to The Infantry Center G-3 Section, were project officers for the cadet visit.

Annual Carnival

YAC Event Aids 3,000 Children

As plans for the annual July 4 Youth Activities Club-sponsored carnival near completion, officials hope to better last year's event, both in attendance and proceeds.

The purpose of the carnival is to raise funds for YAC, an organization which provides a well-rounded recreational program for more than 3,000 children of post personnel.

The $6,600 profit realized from last year's carnival was a material contribution towards the annual YAC budget which calls for expenditures of about $28,000 annually.

According to YAC officials, approximately $7,000 annually is obtained through honorary and regular memberships. The organization is one of the activities aided by the Community Activities Association, which annually conducts a drive at the post.

The YAC program is a far-flung organization with over 3,000 children participating in one or more of its activities. In addition to the various sports, YAC operates 19 playgrounds, the Girl Scouts and Boy Scouts activities, Teen-Age Club (Brat Barracks) and Junior National Rifle Association events.

The $28,000 budgeted annually for YAC operation does not include probably the most costly single item needed to insure success of the program. This is the volunteer help by post personnel which provides the youngsters with good coaching supervision in the many activities.

Parental supervision is always needed and always welcomed, as well as the help of single personnel, who have volunteered a great deal of time, according to YAC officials. These individuals take part because they like children and working with children.

If it were not for this volunteer help, the annual YAC budget would have to be much higher, officials said.

Between $5-7,000 is spent annually for administrative purposes. This includes payment to athletic program directors, office expenditures and supplies, insurance for the youngsters in all sports programs and transportation necessary for participants.

For the Fourth of July celebration $750 is spent on fireworks alone and approximately $2,800 on prizes. The cost of the carnival also would be much higher if it were not for the large corps of volunteer helpers who assist in making the celebration a success.

Since the YAC program is constantly expanding, each year brings about a need for more money to operate the various activities. The Junior NRA program now receives approximately $200 annually for operation while the Girls Scouts receive $3,500 and the Boy Scouts a slightly higher sum. Here, too, volunteer help plays a tremendous part in cutting down the actual expense of the program.

All 19 playgrounds maintained by YAC thoughout the year are operated on a budgeted figure of only $1,700.

All sports activities grouped together operate on less than $10,000 a year. This accentuates the fact that funds raised through events such as the forthcoming carnival are badly needed.

A breakdown on monies spent for various sports during the year shows the following: archery, $342; baseball, $4,185; basketball, $1,380; boxing, $201; football, $2,476; golf, $75; swimming, $300; tennis, $250; bowling, $200, and fencing, $150. Most of this money is spent on providing youngsters with the safest and most practical equipment and necessities.

Drum and Bugle Role at Honors Comes With Just One Year's Work

The drum and bugle corps of the 1st Infantry Brigade has risen from a lowly beginning to become part of The Infantry Center Honor Guard in less than a year.

The corps at first consisted of only four buglers. Today they use six bugles with valves, two bass drums, three tenor drums, five snare drums and a set of cymbals. Their repertoire includes approximately 20 marching pieces and all the official bugle calls.

The leader of the bugle corps is Sgt. Morris Caradine, Jr.

Other members of the corps are: Spc Paul LaTorre, Spc James Glasper, Spc Julius L. Arrington, Pfc Leonard F. Kudela and Pfc Jimmy R. Teague, Pfc William L. Childs, Pfc Maxie C. Williams, Pfc John R. Moses and Pfc Charles T. Campbell.

Also Pfc Donald L. Drinkwater, Pfc Warren I. Wright, Pfc Harris McKay, Pvt. Harold W. Carter and Pvt. Gary H. Ganaway.

17 Editors From France Visit Post

"'Follow Me' exemplifies our idea of the leaders of the Infantry, always out in front," Brig. Gen. A. D. Surles, Jr., now assistant commandant of The Infantry School, told 17 French editors in presenting them Infantry School "Follow Me" pins during their recent visit here.

He was assisted at the ceremonies by Brig. Gen. John E. Kelly, deputy commanding general-designate of The Infantry Center, and Col. William A. McKee, Infantry Center chief of staff.

The journalists were visiting the post last Thursday to Saturday to witness demonstrations of Infantry prowess and tactics.

The speaker noted that he was pleased the journalists could visit The Infantry School at this time of such varied activity.

"You know that we have the U. S. Military Academy cadets here for an orientation tour. You also have seen some of our Reserve training, which we do here during the summer. At the same time we are hosting the All-Army Rifle and Pistol Matches with some 700 competitors," he explained.

Honorary Doughboy Certificates were presented to the editors in recognition of their "having been duly indoctrinated in Infantry tactics and techniques at this institution."

The French group included Claude Baret, editor, France-Soir, Paris; Jean Coche, co-editor, La Resistance De L'Ouest, Nantes; Gabriel Collinet, editor-in-chief, Telegramme De Brest, Brest; Andre Ratras, editor - in - chief, Le Havre Libre, Le Havre; Paul Serin, editor, La Voix Du Nord, Lille, and Isaac Goldman-Foret, editor, Berry Republican, Bourges.

Henry Hausherr, editor, L'Alsace, Mulhouse; Francois Xavier Hufin-Desgrees, secretary general, Ouest France, Rennes; Roger Lemesle, editor, La Nouvelle Republique, Orleans; Alexis Mauhen, editor, Le Meridional - La France, Marseilles, Andra Mazieres, editor, La Depeche Du Midi, Toulouse, and Marcel Gabriel Riviere, editor, Le Progres De Lyon, Lyon.

$1 Per Soldier Average Asked in AER-ARS Drive

Results of the first of three military payday collections on the post for the Army Emergency Relief and the Army Relief Society are being reported to the Personal Affairs Branch of The Infantry Center's Adjutant General Section.

A volunteer contribution of slightly more than $1 is needed from every soldier if the post's 1961 goal of $33,361 is to be reached, according to 1st Lt. Wallace E. Viau, The Infantry Center's personal affairs officer and custodian of the AER fund.

The 1961 goal for the annual post-wide campaign, including the 2nd Infantry Division, was established on the basis of 15 per cent of total loans and grants made during the calendar year 1960. All donations made by post personnel remain at the installation to assist in financial emergencies beyond the individual's ability to meet.

Typical emergency cases in which the AER assists servicemen are due to non-receipt of pay or dependents allotment, loss or theft of pay, acute illness not government facilities for treatment or hospitalization are not available, funeral expenses of dependents, travel expenses due to emergencies and privation of dependents due to any cause.

Each case is carefully considered and financial assistance is given on the basis of need so as to serve the best interests of morale. Assistance is usually given in the form of a loan without interest and repayment normally made by Class E allotment in such small monthly payments as to not cause hardship. If repayment of a loan would cause undue hardship, then assistance is given as an outright grant.

The ARS is established solely to meet the urgent needs of widows and orphans of Regular Army personnel.

Col. Milton G. Schneider, adjutant general of The Infantry Center, is the post's 1961 campaign chairman and Lt. Viau is assistant chairman.

Chairmen of all activities are conducting the drive, which ends July 31.

The quota of each major subordinate command is based on the assigned strength as of April 1.

The fact that basically nothing has changed in 186 years from the standpoint of goals and dedications is restated in letters received at The Infantry Center from commanders throughout the Army on the Army's anniversary. These letters all reaffirm that the individual is still the Ultimate Weapon when he is properly trained and led in a proper cause.

Much was accomplished during anniversary celebrations this week and observances of Army Flag Day, June 14th. Displays, coverage in news media, and talks by military personnel before civic groups all helped put over the fact that the Infantryman is still the same guardian of peace that he was in 1775.

The letters, from such leaders as Gen. G. H. Decker, Army chief of staff; Gen. Herbert B. Powell, commanding general of Continental Army Command; Lt. Gen. Paul D. Adams, Third Army commander and our own commander, Major Gen. H. P. Harris, ring with confidence and pride in the Army.

On the Columbus scene, Flag Day observances sponsored by the Elks Club reflected the close and deep cooperation and understanding between the Army and its civilian brothers in our common dedication to strength for peaceful freedom.

'Unfair' Competition? Not in Trying for Top

It's odd how many men resent a winner. They are the men who, when they were boys back in school, hooted at the brightest kid in the class, the "smarty" who walked away with the prizes. They felt that it was downright unfair of him to apply himself to his studies so diligently.

He is the man now—enlisted or commissioned—who takes to training with healthy zest, accepting it as a challenge to his stamina, his capacity to learn new ways of doing things. If he attends a service school, he's once again the student seeking to advance himself and enlarge his proficiency.

You'll spot this man everywhere in the Army—because he stands out. He's the soldier of the month, the sailor or airman of the year in his command. But while most of us give him the "well done" that certainly is coming to him, there are always a few detractors who resent his superior performance and attribute the praise it brings him to a talent for apple polishing.

The top man on the career ladder is so accustomed to looking up that he hasn't time to worry about the opinions of others. They have a chance to profit by the example he sets and they pass it up. They stay put; he keeps going up until they lose sight of him.

They all started together. The competition was equal. Unfair of him, isn't it? (AFPS)

The Judge Says . . .

BY 1ST LT. BERNARD E. BURK

Paragraph 9, AR 600-10, states in part that, "The Department of the Army does not condone an attitude of irresponsibility or evasiveness by its personnel toward their private indebtedness or financial obligations. Members of the Army are expected to discharge their private indebtedness and financial obligations in an honorable manner. The Department of the Army is without legal authority to require a member to pay a private debt . . .

Army commanders will give careful consideration to the public relations aspect involved in private indebtedness and financial obligations, as well as to indoctrinating members of their commands in the individual's responsibility with respect to private obligations."

As you may well discern, although military personnel are lawfully entitled to take advantage of the federal bankruptcy laws which can result in discharge of some debts and obligations, it can be a costly and degrading proceeding, and it is not recommended.

An adjudication or finding by the court that you have declared yourself bankrupt is a stain on the good reputation of the responsible soldier. It impairs his credit standing if not destroying it entirely. Bankruptcy is no substitute for sound and sensible management.

In order to avoid a complete or straight bankruptcy, the Wage-Earners Plan, which is one section of the Federal Bankruptcy Act, may be used.

To be eligible for this plan, the debtor must show that his principal income is devised from wages, salary or commissions.

In essence, the Wage-Earner Plan allows the debtor to pay off all his debts by inducing the creditors to reduce the monthly payments that were originally agreed upon, and extending the payments over a longer period of time.

The plan is not binding upon creditors until confirmed. Confirmation requires the written acceptance of the plan by a majority in number and amount of all unsecured creditors (that is, creditors to whom the debtor has not pledged either real or personal property as security) who are affected by the plan and and whose claims have been proved and allowed.

Confirmation also requires the acceptance of each secured creditor dealt with by the plan. It should be noted that a plan must include unsecured creditors while the inclusion of each secured creditor is optional.

In practice, therefore, the secured creditor who rejects the plan is simply omitted from consideration. Since the court has the power to enjoin any other legal proceedings against the debtor pending completion of the plan, the secured creditor can realize on his security only through a reclamation proceeding in the bankruptcy court.

However, the debts of secured creditors who have not accepted the plan are not provided for under the plan, and are not discharged upon completion of the plan.

An additional provision in the plan allows a discharge of debts if after three years the debtor has failed to complete payments but such failure must be due to circumstances for which he could not justly be held accountable.

Under certain conditions such as fraud, non-confirmation of the plan, failure to pay fees, or failure to make payments under the plan, the proceedings may be dismissed and an adjudication in bankruptcy entered.

Although the law provides means by which a debtor may discharge some of his obligations, the old saying of "an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure" should be heeded.

The soldier well knows the amount of his next month's pay check, and, in fact, he can predict the amount of each pay check throughout his military career. Therefore, barring unforeseen events such as death in the family or reduction in grade, the soldier should well know what he can and cannot afford to buy.

Chaplain's Corner

By Chaplain (Capt.) Hubert Garrell

There is no emotion that so robs a person of true effectiveness as the attitude of fear. "Be not anxious for your life, what ye shall eat, or what ye shall drink; nor yet for your body, what ye shall put on." Matt. 6:25. These words from sweet to the ear but are not practiced by many persons who hear them.

An anxious fear so puts a person's mind on himself that he can serve no one else. Man cannot effectively serve God or his fellowman if his energies and talents are sapped by a needless anxiety about himself.

Only a faith centered in God can give a man the confidence that he needs in himself to meet the challenges and opportunities of life. By faith a man can reach out beyond himself and be free to put first things first.

Fear in its worst form clouds a man's mind so that he can see no real purpose in life. Life is much like an intricate picture-puzzle that we are continually trying to fit together. Fear causes us to mislay certain pieces of the puzzle so that the outcome may seem in doubt.

Only faith in God can and will save a man from such fear. "O give thanks unto the Lord for he is good." Psalm 118:1. "The Lord is on my side; I will not fear." Psalm 118:6.

Faith or fear —there is no middle ground between these two. Fear imprisons, faith sets free; fear numbs, faith is vital and alive; fear weakens, faith makes strong; fear is incomplete, faith makes whole; fear puts a hopelessness in the heart, faith gives a heart that rejoices in the Lord. "But seek ye first His kingdom and His righteousness, and all these things shall be added unto you." Matt. 6:33.

HIGH PRIORITY AMONG VARIED COURSES
Goes to Tactics, Taught With the Aid of Sand Tables

The Third Army will centralize all noncommissioned officer academy training at the Third Army Noncommissioned Officers' Academy at Fort Jackson, commencing July, 7, where noncommissioned officers have been trained continuously since July, 1950.

The purpose of centralizing training for noncommissioned officers at one facility is to provide a strong professional course of instruction based upon the principle that every noncommissioned officer attending is a professional soldier who is motivated by a strong desire for self-improvement and advancement in the Army.

The academy will conduct six classes during the coming fiscal year. Each class, with quota of 130, will last for six weeks.

In line with the "One Army" concept, classes are open to active duty, reserve, and National Guard personnel. In addition, the Academy will conduct some special two-week courses during the summer for personnel in reserve units which will be taking their annual active duty training at Fort Jackson.

The increasing stature of the Third Army Noncommissioned Officers' Academy may be seen in the fact that the Army Chief of Staff, General George H. Decker, spoke at the graduation exercises on April 14, 1961. The Third Army Commander, Lt. Gen. Paul D. Adams, will address the graduating class on June 10, 1961.

Individuals desiring to attend the school must be in grade E-5 or above; be in a promotable status; have a satisfactory record; have the ability to learn and adapt to the environment of a student; be considered an asset to the Army by their commander; and have a minimum GT score of 90.

Only noncommissioned officers and specialists in grade E-5 and above will be eligible to attend in order that the student body will be men of proven ability who can be counted on to fully benefit from the expanded and improved course of instruction they will receive.

Training at the NCO Academy is designed to be inspiring. Stress is being placed on training at a level and scope that will challenge the student throughout the course, and in turn him to his unit upon graduation prepared to contribute materially to raising his unit's efficiency and proficiency.

The final class to graduate from the Fort Benning NCO Academy held exercises May 6. Brig. Gen. William L. Hardick, 2nd Infantry Division commander, addressed the class and summed up the activities of the local academy.

Vacation Time Theme Featured at 'Brunch'

'Summer Fun' keynoted the Command Staff Department brunch held on June 8 in the Corregidor Room, Main Officers' Open Mess.

Table decor for the occasion emphasized the feeling of a carefree vacation time, featuring sports equipment and gay bouquets of summer flowers. The invitations and name tags were small replicas of suitcases, bedecked with travel stickers and tagged with each lady's name.

Arrangements were made by ladies of the Advanced Tactics, Intelligence, and Operations Committee under the chairmanship of Mrs. Ralph L. Whitt.

After the breakfast buffet, Mrs. John M. King extended welcome to Mrs. Alexander D. Surles, Jr., Mrs. Willard E. Harrison, Mrs. Donald Hilbert, and Mrs. John Rogers.

Mrs. Richard W. Keyes, was bid farewell and presented, by Mrs. King, with an engraved silver tray on behalf of the ladies of the Command and Staff Department.

Other ladies of the Department leaving during the summer include: Mesdames Eugene M. Orton, Ray C. Staley, Arthur J. DeLuca, Eugene M. Donohue, Jack Sampson, Harvey Scott, Flave J. Carpenter, Thomas P. Gannon, Homer E. Rhoads, Leo D. Turner, Harold D. Piney, Charles B. Lee, and Wilbur A. Ross.

A straw handbag, quite appropriate for the summer traveler, was the doorprize, won by Mrs. Kenneth Austin.

The ladies assisting Mrs. Whitt with the brunch were Mrs. Eugene N. Fisk, nametags and reservations; Mrs. Raymond H. Cutler, invitations; and Mesdames Charles H. Heldreth and John R. McRae, decorations. Mrs. Paul F. Ferguson and Mrs. Ralph R. Drake presided over the punch bowl.

Guests for the occasion were Mrs. W. L. Blair, mother of Mrs. Richard W. Keyes, Mrs. J. Schieman, mother of Mrs. John W. McClain, and Mrs. J. A. Burch, mother of Mrs. Thomas M. Scovill. Mrs. W. L. Lestridge was the guest of Mrs. William A. Brown; Mrs. K. E. Dohleman, guest if Mrs. Eugene N. Fisk; and Mrs. S. J. Brantley, guest of Mrs. Lawrence E. Zimmerman.

Woman's Club Diary

Pretty and poised Sallie Starker is the new corresponding secretary of the Woman's Club. A native of Duluth, Minn., Sallie lived there until 1939 when her dad was called into the Army, and the family became "camp followers."

Travelling about the country, Sallie graduated from St. Anne's School in Charlottesville, Va., in 1946, and entered Wellesley College that fall, receiving her B.A. in Sociology in 1950.

Following College, Sallie taught for six months, and then toured Europe, Africa and the Middle East with a group of college friends. She met Capt. Starker, then a Leutenant in Germany, and they were married in Bad Nauheim in 1952.

Following tours in Fort Lee, at the Quartermaster School, and Fort Chaffee, Ark., the Starkers arrived at Fort Benning in 1957. With the exception of Flight School at Fort Rucker, and a tour in Korea for Capt. Starker, they have been here since. The Starker children, Thomas 7, Susan 6 and Sally 5, attend Trinity School in Columbus.

Sally has served several terms as Treasurer of the DUSA Chapter at Fort Benning and is hospitality chairman and a choir member at Saint Michaels' Episcopal Chapel.

Although the local climate rather limits her, Sallie says that skiing is her favorite past time. In lieu of snowy slopes, she's become quite expert on the tennis courts, I'm sure you will enjoy knowing our gal "Sal."

The Surgeon Says

Serving Meals In The Wards

By 1st Lt. Joan S. Bajorinas, AMSC

As indicated by its name, the function of the Ward Food Service Division is to serve food to those patients in the wards at Martin Army Hospital who are unable to take their meals in the mess hall.

Patients who are on regular diets receive the same menu as that served in the mess hall, whereas patients on special diets receive menus which have been modified by the two ward dietitians, 1st Lt.'s Norma Bodie and Joan Bajorinas, and approved by the attending physician.

These two dietitians work under the direction of Major Evelyn Summers, chief of food Service. They, in turn, supervise two shifts of diet kitchen attendants, both civilian and military, who work under Sfc James Henry and Sfc Frederick Conway.

All food is prepared in the main kitchen according to charts compiled from the ward diet census by Sfc Henry Clonts. It is then sent in heated carts to the ward kitchens, where trays containing the cold items have been assembled according to the patients' diet cards which are sent in by the nurses.

The trays are spot-checked for accuracy by the dietitian and then wheeled into the wards where the hot food is served and taken to the patients. This service is observed by the dietieion who then visits patients to answer any questions concerning their diets.

The dietitians work closely with the doctors in establishing diet routines to fit the needs of the individual patient and in following his progress.

When a patient is to leave the hospital and go home on a special diet, the dietitian is notified and she instructs him on the diet he is to follow by giving him a pamphlet listing foods to use and foods to avoid and by explaining it to him so that he need only refer to the pamphlet to refresh his memory.

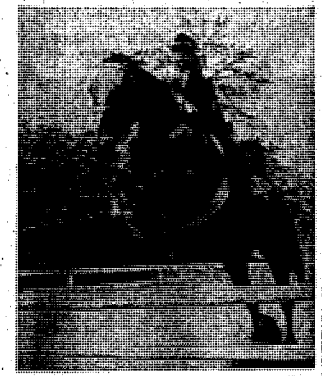
Every effort is made to fit the diet of the patient, rather than the patient to the diet and special tips are given to persons who will be eating in restaurants or mess halls.

The Ward Food Service dietitians give diet instructions six times a week to expectant mothers who are referred to them by the Prenatal Clinic, and their office is always open to any in-patient or out-patient who is interested in diet instruction.

A phone call will bring a dietitian to see any patient who is unable to come to the office, and wishes to discuss his diet.

Equestrian Honors Go To Novices

Two Fort Benning youngsters, Janet Leeney, 10, and Jimmy Woods, 14, recently won the honors from the local equestrian society of Columbus and Phenix City. Both Janet and Jimmy were up against older, and more experienced competitors.



The competition, sponsored by the Claymore Stables, was open to youths under 18 years of age.

Janet Leeney, riding Velvet, owned by the post Hunt Club, started out by taking a 4th place in the Intermediate Equitation class and later returned to capture a second place in the English Pleasure Class. It was her first time to place in competitive riding.

Jimmy Woods, riding Fuzzy, rode off with first place in the Western Pleasure Class. It was the first win for both Jimmy and Fuzzy in competition outside of Fort Benning.

Both Janet and Jimmy gained their riding experience in the Fort Benning Hunt Club. Janet has been riding for 18 months, while Jimmy has had 14 months of experience.

Janet is the daughter of Colonel L. W. Leeney, commanding officer of Lawson Army Aviation Command. Jimmy is the son of Major James R. Woods, executive officer, Lawson Army Aviation Command.

Corps of Engineers Birthday Observed by 151st Today

Engineer personnel at Fort Benning will join their counterparts the world over in marking the 186th anniversary of the Corps of Engineers today. Largest engineer unit at The Infantry Center is the 151st Engineer Group, commanded by Col. S. Y. Coker. The group, with its assigned units, performs construction, maintenance and support missions for The Infantry Center and The Infantry School.

The Corps of Engineers is one of the elements of the Army that has the distinction of serving as both a combat arm and technical service. Since its beginning on June 16, 1775, the corps has established an outstanding record of service to our nation in peace and war.

It was the Corps of Engineers that was first given the responsibility for the organization and operation of the U.S. Military Academy and the corps has developed such outstanding general officers as Robert E. Lee, Douglas MacArthur, Lucius Clay, William Hoge, Bruce C. Clarke, and many others.

World War II brought an unprecedented expansion to the corps which saw the personnel strength reach 700,000 officers and enlisted men with a greater percentage of men serving overseas than any other branch of the service.

During the war the Corps of Engineers handled $10.4 billion of military construction including housing for more than 5,000,000 personnel, roads which would encircle the world almost three times, electric lines which would go around the world, as well as arrangement for military use of 38,000,000 acres of land of 8,000 installations in the U.S. and 3,500 overseas.

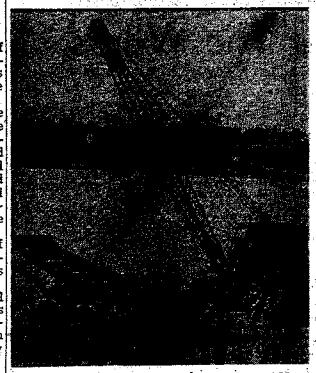
More important is the fact that the engineers compiled outstanding combat records in every theater of action as they fought and made initial landings alongside of the infantry, artillery, and armor.

Again in the Korean Conflict the engineers did an outstanding job of providing support and fighting along with the other combat arms.

COL. COKER

Chief of Staff's Message

"On behalf of all the men and women of the United States Army, I extend congratulations and best wishes to the Corps of Engineers on the occasion of its 186th anniversary on June 16, 1961.



"For almost two centuries, members of the Corps of Engineers have performed a wide range of civil and military duties with great professional competence, technical skill, initiative and imagination. Services to the nation performed by Army Engineers have grown in scope and importance. They span the history of the United States from the early development of our natural resources to today's activities in space for world geodesy.

"The many achievements of the Corps of Engineers, both in war and peace, have contributed significantly to the effectiveness of today's modern Army and to the national welfare.

"In this age of accelerating technological and scientific progress, the Corps of Engineers continues to expand its capabilities and its contributions. The corps may look forward to even greater achievements with accnstomed efficiency and dedication.

"It is a pleasure to join with all other members of the United Army in expressing pride in the past accomplishments of the Corps of Engineers and confidence in its future success.

BRIDGING — THE PRIMARY MISSION
Of the 586th Engineer Company, 151st Group

Message From Gen. Harris

TO: All Members of the Corps of Engineers.

On the occasion of the 186th birthday of the Corps of Engineers, I extend to every Engineer Soldier sincerest congratulations and best wishes on behalf of the men and women of the United States Army Infantry Center and the United States Army Infantry School.

As an Infantryman who looks to you for support, I am fully aware and appreciative of the many essential contributions Engineers make to success in combat. Today the role of the Engineer is more demanding and complex than ever before. New equipment, increased mobility, and changing tactics and doctrine are creating requirements that can only be met by maximum effort on the part of the Corps of Engineers. In truth, the value and impact of many of our modern weapons and machines is dependent to great extent on the Engineers' ability to organize and develop the battlefield. This demands at all times the same high degree of leadership, training and esprit that has consistency characterized the Corps of Engineers since the date of its establishment on 16 June 1775.

The modern Army relies on its Engineers and, whether Active Army, Reserve, or National Guard, they have met every challenge in the past. I am sure they will meet the challenges of the future with assurance. Please accept my congratulations on your 186th birthday and my best wishes for continued success in your every endeavor.

Building, Bridging and Roads Are Some of Groups' Missions

In addition to its normal mission of training and maintaining operational readiness for a combat role, all elements of the 151st Engineer Group have performed many additional duties during assignment to Fort Benning.

Paramount among these missions is construction support for The Infantry Center and Infantry School. The group also provides considerable troop and equipment training support for The School, and the annual summer reserve training program. USAR Engineer units trained each summer and given logistical support average a total of 3000 to 3500 officers and enlisted men.

Engineer units within the group have organized, on a 24-hour basis, teams and units for implementing war plans, support of domestic emergencies, rescue, recovery and other emergencies.

One mission is operating and maintaining the M4T6 Float Bridge across the Chattahoochee River at Bradley's Landing which is located on the access route to the vast training area on the Alabama side of the reservation. This bridge is also open to heavy civilian traffic.

Units comprising the group, and a brief history of each, follow:

151st Engineers

The parent organization of the 151st Engineer Group (Combat) was constituted in December of 1942. Designated the 115th Engineer Combat Group, the units landed on Omaha Beach, June 17, 1944, and earned World War II campaign streamers for Normandy Northern France, Rhineland and Central Europe. The most distinguishing actions were the river crossings at St. Lo, Vire, Seine, the Maas, and the Roer.

Following WW II the battalion was inactivated at Camp Kilmer. It was redesignated the 151st Engineer Group (Combat) and allotted to the Regular Army on June 11, 1954. The 151st was activated at Fort Benning in January 1955, and has served here since.

577th Engineers

The 577th Engineer Battalion (Construction) under the command of Lt. Col Tolly K. Moore, is a member of the 151st and traces its lineage back to 1942.

The parent unit of the present battalion served with distinction in Europe in WW II in the Northern France and Rhineland campaigns. It was inactivated in January, 1946. In August, 1954, it was redesignated the 577th and reactivated at Fort Benning.

The unit motto is the Latin, "Agendo Graviter" which, translated, means "We Mean Business," or as it is accepted "To Work Dilligently."

806th Engineers

The parent unit of this battalion was originally activated in 1941 as an engineer aviation battalion and served in the Pacific Theater during WW II. It earned campaign streamers for the Western Pacific and Ryukyus, campaigns and its members were awarded the Meritorious Unit Streamer.

The battalion, following Air Force duty, returned to Army control and was designated the 806th Engineer Battalion (Heavy Construction) in May, 1956. The battalion came to Fort Benning and its present assignment to the 151st in 1959.

586th Engineers

The 586th Engineer Company (Float Bridge) is another member of the 151st Engineer Group. Its parent unit was activated in Shanghai, China, in September, 1959, and inactivated in China in December of the same year.

After several periods of active and inactive status it was given its present designation in January 1954, when assigned to Fort Benning.

Activities At Benning Scheduled

Opening the two-day observances of the 186th anniversary, officers of the Corps of Engineers on post held a cocktail and dinner party at the Main Officer's Open Mess last night. Attending were all the Engineer officers on post and their guests. Brig. Gen. James B. Lampert, director of military construction, Office of the Chief of Engineers, was guest speaker.

Major Gen. Hugh P. Harris, commanding officer, The Infantry Center; Brig. Gen. A. D. Surles, assistant commandant, The Infantry Center; and Major Gen. Frederick W. Gibbs, commanding general of the 2nd Infantry Division, were among the special guests invited to attend.

This morning at 10 a.m. a massive parade of post engineer units will be staged on French Field honoring the anniversary. Brig. Gens. Surles, Lampert, and C. H. White, Jr. and Major Gen. Gibb have been invited to attend. Brig. Gen. Kelly will be reviewing officer.

This afternoon members of the 151st Engineer Group, under the command of Col. Sears Y. Coker, will be host for anniversary and organizational sports, picnics and other activities.

5 Entered Models In Plane Meet

One officer and four enlisted men of Fort Benning participated in the 1961 Fiesta of Five Flags Florida Model Plane Championships in Pensacola last weekend.

They are 1st Lt. Bill Marden, SSgt Kenneth Huffman, Sfc Ira Algood, MSgt Gordon C. Gould and Sfc David Toms.

Sponsoring the meet was the Warrington Elks Youth Activity and the Fiesta of Five Flags. It was sanctioned by the Academy of Model Aeronautics.

Competition was held in both radio control and control line aviation.

Trophies were awarded in each of the events.

Maj. Gen. C. H. Chase Named CG; Succeeds Gen. Hardick, Retiring

Beginning a Series

General Hardick:

From West Point To Pearl Harbor

Editor's Note:

The commanding general of the 2nd Infantry Division, Brigadier General William L. Hardick, retires this month after more than 30 years of service to his country. During this three decade span, he has seen the U.S. Army change, modify, and re-change.

World War II and the Korean Conflict as well as the trying times of the depression era in the 30's are only part of his career. To tell some of the highlights and many of the human-interest vignettes of his career, the Division Information Office's Sergeant First Class Clay Lacy has compiled a three-part serial beginning in today's issue.

In the serial, Lacy covers the period ranging from cadet to general in this true-life story of General Hardick. The first phase covers the initial decade of the general's career up to the time of World War II.

BY CLAY LACY

The time was 1927. It was the heyday of the flapper and the spiralling climax to the "roaring twenties" era. Charles Lindberg had capped the period in May with his trans-Atlantic flight non-stop from New York to Paris.

A beautiful, warm summer at West Point, New York. There, on July 1, young men from across the nation had arrived to register for the four-year course which offered not only a degree but also a commission as a second lieutenant in the United States Army.

For one cadet, the four-year span seemed awesome, and a challenge to overcome. A native of Rochester, New York, William L. Hardick had received a congressional appointment to the Point from Congressman Archie Sanders of the 39th District of New York.

He had attended and graduated from West High School in Rochester and came to the Point immediately following high school completion. The initiation awaiting him by the upper classmen soon swept the young plebe into a malestrom of activity.

First was the program of studies. There were no elective subjects and all cadets were required to recite in each subject every day. French and Spanish were the two foreign language subjects assigned to each cadet.

Calisthenics, Drill, Manual of Arms . . .

Next came the schedule of activities which loaded the young plebes with tight, full hours each day. Calisthenics, drill, manual of arms, intra-mural sports, and many others added to the prescribed curriculum.

Two New Units Organized in Div

By George Hord

Two provisional units — the 2nd Air Cavalry Troop and the 202nd Transportation Detachment — were added to the 2nd Infantry Division this week by the Department of the Army.

The Air Cavalry Troop is the finished product of the training test conducted by the division's Aerial Reconnaissance Security Company which was disbanded during the latter part of 1960.

Mission

Its mission is to "provide the Infantry division with an increased reconnaissance and observation capability and to provide advance security and flank security in cooperation with infantry ground forces."

According to Captain Harry McDaniel, commanding officer of the new Air Cavalry Troop, men began to arrive at the unit for assignment June 12 and training began yesterday. Personnel of the unit number 156—121 enlisted men and 35 officers.

Outlining its organization, Captain McDaniel said the troop was organized into four platoons with 15 H-13 reconnaissance helicopters and 12 H-34 light cargo helicopters as its means of transportation.

Four Platoons

It is composed of four major platoons that include an aero-scout platoon of the armed H-13s, an aero-infantry-rifle platoon with four H-34s as the prime means of transportation, an aero-weapons platoon of four armed H-34s and a service platoon for supply and maintenance. Its means of transportation is by three of the larger type craft.

Captain McDaniel said there has been some "re-vamping of the ARSC concept," but that the 2nd Air Cavalry Troop has the same mission as ARSC with some slight Table of Organization and Equipment changes.

ARSC was tested here and at other Third Army posts during the almost two years of its

Incoming Commander Arrives in Mid-August

By Div PIO

Major General Charles H. Chase has been named commanding general of the 2nd Infantry Division.

Gen Chase, 50, will assume command of the "Indianhead" division in mid-August, succeeding Brigadier General William L. Hardick, who is retiring after more than 30 years' service.

A 1933 graduate of the United States Military Academy, West Point, Gen. Chase joins the 2nd Division after serving for the past two years as chief of the Military Assistance Advisory Group in Cambodia.

As an officer who has spent most of his 28 Army years in airborne units, the Portland, Maine, native is a former deputy commanding general and chief of staff of the XVIII Airborne Corps (July 1957-May 1959) and a former assistant division commander of the 101st Airborne Division (January 1956-July 1957).

Gen. Chase was promoted to his present rank in November 1960.

In the years before World War II, as a young infantry officer, he served for the most part as company commander of rifle and machine-gun companies in the United States and with the Philippine Scouts. His Philippine tour was for nearly three years, including a period of three months as garrison company commander in the summer of '41 on the peninsula of Bataan.

Parachute Training

In the Fall of 1941, he participated in the Carolina maneuvers and with the outbreak of World War II, volunteered for parachute training, completed jump qualification at Fort Benning in March of 1942, and has spent the majority of

New Positions Are Announced For Three Div Sergeant Majors

By Div PIO

In a triple-barrel change—that began with the transfer of the Division Sergeant Major to Korea—two veteran Sergeant Majors have moved into new jobs within the division.

In an announcement this week by Division Headquarters:

Sergeant Major Robert L. Brown, 23rd Infantry, becomes Division Sergeant Major.

Sergeant Major Lory Bell, Brigade Headquarters, succeeds Sgt. Brown at the 23rd Infantry.

Sgt. Brown, appointed by Brigadier General William L. Hardick, division commanding general, succeeds Sergeant Major Frank K. Nicolas, under orders to Korea, in representing all enlisted men in the division. Sgt. Brown joined the 23rd Infantry in 1959.

Master Jumper

Sergeant Bell, who is presently on leave, will join the 23rd Infantry June 26. He was assigned to Brigade Headquarters in September, 1960. A Master Jumper, Sergeant Bell was with the First Special Force Group in Okinawa until 1959 when he came to Fort Benning to become Sergeant Major in charge of the National Pistol Matches.

Sgt. Brown arrived at Fort Benning in 1959 from the 35th Infantry at Scofield Barracks, Hawaii. His home town is Winchester, Virginia.

Sgt. Brown has been with the Army since 1941. In 1942, he was shipped to Africa. Fighting took him on to Sicily and, his service on airborne duty since that time.

New C-G

(Con'd from P. 9)

In July of 1942, he joined the 101st Airborne Division as executive officer of the 506th Parachute Infantry. During his service with the 101st Airborne Division, which lasted until December, 1945, he performed duty as Division G3 and as regimental commander of the 506th Parachute Infantry.

His combat service with the 101st Airborne Division in Europe included battle jumps in the Normandy and Holland Airborne assaults, and participation in the defense of Bastogne during the Battle of the Bulge. In December 1945, he was transferred to the 82nd Airborne Division serving as regimental commander and executive officer of the 505th Parachute Infantry for about a year.

Student

In January 1947, he began a six-year period of service in the academic world. First came a student tour at the Armed Forces Staff College, followed by a three-year assignment as an instructor with the airborne battalion at the Infantry School, a year as a student at the Army War College, and a two-year faculty assignment at the Naval War college. In the summer of 1953, he arrived in Korea for duty as commander of the 38th Infantry (Cacti), 25th Infantry Division.

In the Spring of 1954 he became G2, Eighth Army, and returned to the United States for duty in the Office of the Joint Chiefs of Staff in October of 1954. After a year of intelligence duty with the Joint Chiefs of Staff, he was assigned as assistant division commander of the 101st Airborne Division, Fort Campbell, Kentucky. The 101st Airborne Division was the test vehicle for the new pentomic division.

In the Summer of 1957, he was transferred to Fort Bragg, N.C., as deputy commander and chief of staff of the XVIII Airborne Corps, where he served for nearly two years. During this period of service, the XVIII Airborne Corps was designated the command agency for the Strategic Assistance Advisory Group in Cambodia for a two-year tour.

He has made more than 100 parachute jumps in his career.

Decoration

His decorations include:

Silver Star Medal, Bronze Star Medal with two Oak Leaf Clusters, Legion of Merit with Oak Leaf Cluster, Army Commendation Medal, Army of Occupation Medal (Germany), World War II Victory Medal, Combat Infantry Badge, European - African - Middle East Campaign Medal with four stars for Normandy, Rhineland, Central Europe, Ardennes - Alsace, with Arrowhead for Normandy and Holland airborne assaults; American Campaign Medal, American Defense Service Medal with Star;

AG Corps Celebrates 186th Anniversary

BY PETER TATETSCHEFF

Today marks the 186th anniversary of the Adjutant General's Corps.

The Corps, organized June 16, 1775, has had many missions through the years, from the dispatching of scouting parties during the Revolutionary War to performing personnel procedures as outlined in the National defense Act of 1916.

Four basic and separate divisions are normally assigned to the Adjutant General's area of responsibility: Administrative Services Division, Military Personnel Division, Special Services Division and Postal Division. Due to the training mission of the 2nd Infantry Division, the addition of the Trainee Personnel Division was necessitated.

Under the leadership of Lieutenant Colonel Jack E. Compton, 2nd Division adjutant general, the section also maintains operational control over the Division Replacement Section, Band, Reenlistment Office, and the Trains Personnel Section.

The Military Personnel Division, headed by Major Daniel L. French, handles people permanently assigned to the 2nd Division. To the 22 officers and enlisted men of this vital section, the Division's strength materializes in the form of literally tons of paperwork.

"Morning Reports"

Daily "morning reports" must be checked and rechecked by the Military Personnel Division before forwarding to Third U. S. Army Headquarters.

Two clerks, Specialist Four Richard Spaulding and Private First Class Robert Conklin, hassle with 88 morning reports daily, which by their very nature must be extremely accurate.

Such items of interest to every Soldier as Officer Candidate School, United States Military Academy, Special Forces and overseas assignments are all processed through the MPD.

"From the cradle to the grave" is replaced by "from assignment to retirement" as the motto of the Military Personnel Division, whose experienced members help 2nd Division Soldiers actualize their military ambitions.

finally to Italy where he was awarded a Bronze Star.

Trials

Following the war, he returned to the United States, only to return to Europe and duty at the Nuremberg Trials.

After having served at Fort McClellan, Alabama, and at Fort Ord, California, first with Infantry Replacement Training, and, finally, as Field First Sergeant in helping re-activate the 4th Division, he sailed for Japan, only to be transferred to Korea at the outbreak of hostilities there.

He was wounded during the United Nations break-through at the Naktong River and evacuated to Japan.

Non-Combat Duty

The longest period of continuous non-combat duty in the 9th Infantry's history occurred between World Wars I and II. The 9th, serving with the 2nd Infantry Division, was garrisoned at Fort Sam Houston, Texas, for 23 years.

In addition to a Bronze Star, Sgt. Brown holds two Purple Hearts and seven Battle Stars.

Most recently, Sergeant Brown had the "most memorable experience" of serving in the honor Gordon at the Presidential Inauguration in Washington last January. He was one of 100 men chosen from the entire U. S. Army for this honor.

Sports

The coordination of sports schedules throughout the year and the maintenance of sports facilities within the Division come under Special Services Division of the Adjutant General's section. Captain Milton T. Lewis, chief, is custodian of the Commanding General's Trophy, awarded twice a year to the units which excel in swimming, diving, tennis, touch football, basketball and bowling.

The diving and swimming competition scheduled for June 19-23 at Carey Pool is another Adjutant General Corps service.

Until May of this year the Special Services Division was a separate staff section of Division Headquarters.

The trainee Personnel Division Chief, Major Charles C. Clark, took on its present mission in January, 1961, when it relieved unit personnel offices of the major portion of trainee personnel matters. The records of Basic Combat Trainees and Advanced Individual Trainees this area held in one building where all the functions of a consolidated personnel office are administered. As of June, the records of 3,140 trainees were on file.

Band

The Division Band is an activity over which the Adjutant General maintains operational control. The Band, headed by Bandmaster Warrant Officer Mariano Morales, provides band and chorus music by participating in military formations, concerts and recreational activities.

Over 100 assignments have been performed by the band since January.

Specialist Four Donald G. McDermott shares with other trumpet players the job of Division bugler at formal military ceremonies. The band, composed of 42 players, solidifies for and augments the U. S. Army Infantry Center Band when required.

The postal services made available to division personnel are an important function of the Adjutant General's section. Lieutenant James B. Edwards and his staff manage all postal activities within the Division. All incoming and outgoing 2nd Division mail passes through the 25 post offices directly controlled by the Postal Division of the Adjutant General's section.

Lt. Edwards states that $1,246,510 in money orders has been collected in a year's time. Some 40,092 money orders have been sold, and $45,350 in stamps circulated since last June alone.

Postal service was first authorized to the Adjutant General Corps in 1827 by Congressional legislation. At that time, letters and packages were posted free of charge. Since then the Postal Division has become a booming "million dollar" service.

Orders

Some 129 Special Orders have been processed since January of this year by the Adjutant General's "Workhorse Outfit," the Administrative Services Division.

Orders are published, authenticated and distributed by the ASD. In addition, the section performs office services to reduce the sometimes devastating routine administrative procedures required by other staff sections.

All Army Regulations are kept up the date and circulated by the ASD. Blank forms and Division publications, headquarters internal communications control and messenger service all come under the daily routine of the Administrative Service Division, Captain Sidney H. Bryant, chief.

The Adjutant General's responsibilities include operational control of the Division Trains Personnel Section, The Division Reenlistment office, and the Replacement Section.

Trains personnel Section handles records, pay and personal actions for the 1,345 officers and enlisted men comprising the many units within Division Trains.

The 1,624 reenlistments reported since July, 1960 by Capt. Ray E. Ball, Division reenlistment officer, are an example of the constant contact maintained with individual soldiers of the 2nd Division.

Throughout almost two centuries the Adjutant General's Corps., in working closely with the individual Soldier, has provided services of professional caliber in both counseling and administration, living up to their creed of "service to the Soldier."

existence. It received field training at Fort Stewart during the fall of 1959 and later conducted two ten-day exercises: during Exercise QUICK-STRIKE at Fort Campbell, Ky. and at Exercise BRIGHT STAR-PINE CONE III at Fort Bragg, N.C.

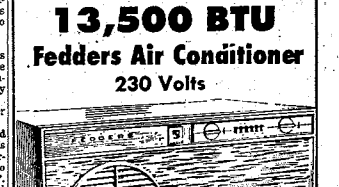
It was retained by the division following the exercises for field training here prior to its being disbanded.

AAM Unit

Captain James W. Grimes is the commanding officer of the 202nd Transportation Detachment, an AAM unit (Army Aircraft Maintenance).

It is composed of one officer and 35 enlisted men.

The mission of the 202nd Transportation Detachment is "to provide third echelon aircraft maintenance support to the 2nd Air Cavalry Troop".



Captain Grimes explained that this mission entails field maintenance, change of major components, structural repairs and sheet metal repair and replacing.

750 VIEW 9TH INF'S ORG. DAY

Non-Com Review Highlights Manchu Birthday Program

By 9th Inf. PIO

Approximately 750 members, former members and guests of the 9th Infantry attended the "Keep Up the Fire" unit's Organization Day, 1961 Saturday at Wetherby Field in the Fort Benning Sand Hill area.

The highlight of the morning's program was the all-noncommissioned officer review commanded by the 9th Infantry sergeant major, Jimmie B. Farras. Brigadier General William L. Hardick, division commanding general, and Colonel James L. Osgard, 9th Infantry commander, reviewed the troops.

Trophy

The top moments in the review came when Colonel Osgard made the semi-annual presentation of the battle group Commander's Trophy. The coveted award was won by Combat Support Company. The commander of Combat Support, Captain William Sewell, accepted the trophy on behalf of his officers and men. Capt. Sewell then joined General Hardick and Colonel Osgard on the reviewing stand.

Sgt. Farras' staff in the review included Master Sergeants Charles Reynolds, Ernest Bumpous, Bramwell Ackermann and Homer Martin. Each of the 9th Infantry units marching past the reviewing stand was commanded by the unit first sergeant. The review concluded with a fly-by of fixed wing aircraft of the 2nd Aviation Company.

Later on in the morning the spectators were treated to a demonstration by the 26th Scout Dog Platoon of the 1st Infantry Brigade. Following the antics of the five German Shepherd police dogs, six members of the Fort Benning Sport Parachute Club thrilled the crowd with a 30-minute sky-diving demonstration.

'Nero Farras'

Athletic events followed the sky-divers as the 9th Infantry returned briefly to the glorious days of the Roman Empire. Using ancient Rome as the theme, the 9th Infantry presented its version of the Roman Games. After a parade of the "gladiators" the games began with Sgt. Farras' acting as "Nero." The highlight of the athletic contests occurred in the chariot races when Master Sergeant Manuel (Little Caesar) Suarez drove Company B's chariot to victory. He and his noble "steeds" were suitably rewarded by "Nero" Farras.

The day's events were capped by a picnic lunch served by five company mess halls of the 9th. For the children, rides were available on a red fire truck, in a Jeep and in an Armored Personnel Carrier.

Displays of military vehicles, weapons and other equipment were expertly laid out for personnel inspection by the many visitors. Refreshments consisting of iced tea, orangeade, lemonade, coffee, cake and cookies were served by the 9th Infantry's Combat Support Company.

LOVELY MISS . . . Ready for an appearance before a local audiences Sunday evening at the 2nd Division NCO Open Mess is beautiful Marie Leslie, part of the "Summer Frolics" troupe. Sammy Graham's orchestra will play with versatile Bob Barrett handling the Master of Ceremonies chores.

Slick Pig to Parade In Coming Pet Show

By Div PIO

Final plans for the upcoming Pet Parade to be staged Saturday afternoon at Service Club Two have been made and many entries have already been filed.

Prizes for pets entered, entertainment and refreshments are all scheduled for members of the Indianhead Division, their dependents and pets.

Late entries to be filed for the competition show a wide variety of pets. From Company B of the 9th Infantry will be the entry of a greased 50-pound pig. This pet, as yet unnamed, was won by the 9th unit at last week's Organization Day activities for the Manchus.

'Most Fleas'

Prizes will be awarded for most every type category imaginable from dogs "having the most fleas" to pets that "look the most like their masters." The entry blanks filed thus far at the Service Club provide many a chuckle and sample of what's in store for Saturday.

One youngster writes in his entry blank describing his pet, "My dog does tricks — when you hit her on the butt, she sits down."

Or this bit of educated canine trickery: "My dog walks around the dinner table when I give her food."

Among the entries filed thus far, there was one warning, according to Miss Madeline J. Parks, club director of Service Club Two. It was a terse note scribbled on the bottom of the entry blank saying:

"My pet is spoiled rotten and she had better win."

All Types

The competition is open to all types of pets from members of the 2nd Division and their households. Judging for the event will be under the direction of Master Sergeant Charles Beck of the division's 69th Armor.

11th Infantry to Mark Century At Organization Day Ceremony

By 11th Inf PIO

The 1st Battle Group, 11th Infantry tomorrow will hold a combined ceremony and parade celebrating its 100th anniversary and the graduation of its Basic Combat Training cycle.

Colonel John E. Arthur, battle group commander, announced that "Although the battle group's Organization Day is Wednesday, June 14, the celebration will be held on Saturday, June 17, in conjunction with the graduation of the basic trainees."

Awards

The celebration will take place at Essebagger Field on Kelley Hill at 8:30 a.m. At this time, Brigadier General William L. Hardick, commanding general of the Division, will be the reviewing officer, and the presentation of awards will take place. Among those awards to be presented is that of the best company of the battle group. This distinction is earned by the training company that has performed most satisfactorily throughout the eight weeks of basic combat training.

Also to be honored are two basic trainees who will be chosen as the most outstanding during the cycle. In addition, engraved plaques will be awarded to Recruits Gary M. Rose and Ralph R. Ash for their expert marksmanship in the battle group "shoot-off" held on Simpson Range June 3rd. Recruits Rose and Ash were among the two top fivers from each company who competed for individual honors. Recruit Rose was the high scorer.

Highlighted in the ceremony will be the presentation of the battle group crest to seven trainees. They will be representing their respective companies within the battle group. The presentation will mark the end of basic combat training, and will symbolize the individual trainees' becoming members of the 11th Infantry.

Following will be a rededication of the battle group's colors, celebrating the 11th Infantry's 100th Anniversary. The 11th Infantry traces its origin back to a Presidential decree signed by Abraham Lincoln in 1861. Its history also dates back to 1798, 1812 and 1847 where militia type regiments of the Army bore the designation of 11th Infantry. June 14th is the official Organization Day, for it was on this day in 1958 when the 1st Battle Group, 11th Infantry was organized as a part of the 2nd Infantry Division at Fort Benning.

The division commander will address the trainees and the combined graduation - Organization Day exercise will then terminate as the battle group passes in review before the General.

Div's 11th Infantry Boasts Long, Colorful History

By 11th Infantry PIO

The present 11th Infantry of the Regular Army can trace its history back to the Presidential decree signed by President Lincoln on May 4, 1861, at the beginning of the Civil War.

The regiment was originally constituted as the 2nd Battalion, 15th Infantry, which in 1866 became the 24th Infantry Regiment. In April 1869, the 24th consolidated with the 29th and was redesignated as the 11th Infantry Regiment.

However, as far back as 1789, and again in 1812 and 1847, certain regiments of the Army bore the designation of the 11th Infantry. These organizations were, however, militia or temporary organizations.

Civil War

Of its Civil War record it is known to have been first a part of the Army of the Ohio and later a part of the Army of the Cumberland, taking part in the campaigns through Kentucky, Tennessee and Georgia. The Regiment fought in such great battles as Shiloh, Murfreesboro, Stones River, Chickamauga, Chattanooga, the March through Georgia and the Battle of Atlanta.

Following the Civil War, the Regiment was occupied with Indian campaigns and with short interims of garrison life until the war with Spain in 1898. The Puerto Rican campaign was light, and in 1900 the 11th left Puerto Rico and a year later arrived in the Philippines. There, it took part in many skirmishes and punitive expeditions against the Moros of Mindanao and the Filipinos of the Visayas.

In 1904, the 11th left the Philippines, and from this time until World War I, the regiment was stationed in the West. Highlights of this period were the work in San Francisco after the earthquake in 1906, the move to Texas City, Texas, for the threatened border trouble with Pancho Villa and his outlaw army, and duty along the Mexican border from 1914 to 1916.

It was during the latter period that the 11th became known as the "Wanderers" between 1898 and 1920, the 1st Battalion made 39 changes of station, including seven years of foreign service. The 3rd Battalion changed stations 56 times, spending six years on foreign soil. The regimental colors have flown in nine different nations: Cuba, Philippine Islands, Mexico, France, Belgium, Iceland, the British Isles, Germany and Luxembourg.

France

The 11th's next important move occurred on April 24, 1918, when the regiment sailed for France. The 11th took part in the Vosges Mountains, St. Mihiel and Meuse-Argonne offensives. In the second phase of the Meuse-Argonne offensive, the regiment forced a brilliant crossing of the Meuse River near Dun, under intense artillery and machine gun fire, gained a bridge-head across the river and started the Germans on the retreat.

After the armistice, the 11th was assigned to occupation duty in Germany and Luxembourg, returning to the United States in 1919.

Three years were spent in Eastern camps, and then the 11th moved to Fort Benjamin Harrison, Indiana, in 1922. The following 17 years of garrison life marked the most tranquil period of its otherwise turbulent history.

But gathering war clouds in Europe in 1939 brought the reactivation of the 5th Division. Shortly thereafter, the 11th Infantry rejoined its wartime division and soon commenced intensive training at Fort Benjamin Harrison and Fort Custer, Michigan. In early 1942 preparations for overseas movement were begun. In April of that year the "Wandering" 11th was on its way to Iceland.

Outposting and defense of the Keflavik area in Iceland kept troops busy for the next 15 months.

England

In August of 1943, the 11th sailed for England to spend the next three months at Tidworth Barracks in the south central portion. Then, in late October, the regiment moved to the bleak, wet hills of Northern Ireland, where for eight months they followed the hard, final preparations for combat. On the eve of their departure for the Normandy Beachhead, the regiment was inspected by Generals Eisenhower and Patton. General Patton remarked, "This is the fittest, toughest, readiest outfit that I've ever inspected."

At midnight on July 4, 1944, the 11th boarded the transport Excelsior for the voyage to France, and, on the afternoon of July 9, disembarked on the sands of Utah Sugar Beach. From Normandy, the 11th swept through Northern France, the Ardenes-Alsace, Central Europe and the Rhineland to aid in the defeat of the Axis powers.

The regiment fought gallantly and successfully through many bitter battles, including St. Lo, Angers, Charles, Fontainbleau, Metz, Saarlouis, the crossing of the Rhine River at Frankfurt, and the Ruhr Pocket area. For their action, all companies of the 2nd Battalion were entitled to a streamer in the colors of the French Croix de Guerre with palm embroidered "Fontainbleau."

By the latter part of July 1945, the 11th was back in the United States after four continuous years of war and occupation.

Peace-Time

From 1947 to 1950 and from March 1951 to September 1953, the 11th performed peace-time duty as a training regiment with the 5th Division at Fort Jackson, South Carolina, and Indiantown Gap, Pennsylvania.

In 1954 European duty was once again assigned to the 11th. The unit performed occupation duty in Germany until the Bonn Treaty was signed, ending the state of war between Germany and the United States. After the signing of the Treaty the 11th remained in Germany with the 5th Division as a member of the NATO forces until March 1956.

Returning to the United States in March 1956, the 11th made Fort Ord, California, its permanent station and once more assumed the role of training.

With the reorganization of the Army's combat structure to meet the requirements of land combat in the atomic age, the 5th Division was withdrawn from the rolls of active organizations. On March 4th, 1958, Company A of the 11th Infantry Regiment was redesignated as Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 1st Battle Group, 11th Infantry and relieved from the 5th Division, and the battle group was activated at Fort Benning, Georgia, on June 14, 1958. From that time until 1960, the battle group conducted replacement and gyroscope packet training.

In 1960, the 1st Battle Group, 11th Infantry became the first battle group to participate in the Overseas Unit Replacement (OVUREP) program. Colonel George D. Patterson was the first OVUREP commander.

11th Inf. CO Held Post Of Chief of Doctrine

By 11th Inf PIO

Colonel John E. Arthur, commanding officer of the 1st Battle Group, 11th Infantry, was born in the Army at Fort Monroe, Va., and attended public schools throughout the country as occasioned by changes of assignment of his father, Colonel (retired) Robert Arthur.

He was graduated from Boston University in 1937 with a bachelor of science degree in business administration and a commission in the Army Reserves.

Colonel Arthur came on active duty in April 1942 and was integrated into the Regular Army in the first integration after World War II.

Military Schools

He has attended military schools that include the basic and advanced courses of the Infantry School, the Engineer School Assault Course, the Air Ground School, the U. S. Army Command and General Staff College, the Armed Forces Staff College, the Strategic Intelligence School and the U.S. Army War College.

Colonel Arthur came to the 11th Infantry from the Command and General Staff College, where he was chief of doctrine. In this capacity he was responsible for overall development and coordination of all doctrine and studies promulgated by the college at division, corps, field Army and larger organizational levels.

One of his primary goals in this assignment was a finished product devoid of the parochialism and vested interests of the many departments, organizations and agencies which contributed to the overall doctrinal effort.

Prior to becoming chief of doctrine, he was a faculty member of the department of staff, teaching various subjects.

Assignments

Colonel's Arthur's post-war assignments were varied, including a command with the 15th Infantry, 3rd Infantry Division here in 1948 to 1950; G-3 of the U. S. Military Mission to Iran in 1950 to 1953 and duty on the Army General Staff as a member of the Office of the Assistant Chief of Staff, Intelligence, 1953 to 1956.

He spent time in the estimates branch of that office, where he was responsible for preparation of national intelligence estimates for use by the National Security Council.

He also served for a period as assistant chief of the production Division responsible for the production of Army strategic intelligence, and later served in the plans and policy branch of the executive office of the assistant chief of staff of intelligence.

During World War II, Colonel Arthur was an instructor at the Infantry School and later served in the Far East with the Sixth Army, participating in the Leyte and Luzon Campaigns.

In August 1945, following the attack of Nagasaki, he entered the island of Kyushu, Japan, with a small detachment to release some 11,000 Allied prisoners of war from camps in that area, prior to the occupation.

He later served in General Headquarters, United States Army Far East in Tokyo before returning to the U. S. and the Command and General Staff College in 1957.

Col. and Mrs. Arthur, the former Katherine Niederpruem, daughter of Colonel (retired) William Niederpruem, reside at 409 Baltzell Avenue.

Big Indianheads Choose Mrs. Harrison President

By Mrs. Lawrence W. Smith

At their regular monthly luncheon - bingo on June 8, at the Sand Hill NCO Club, the Ladies of the Big Indianhead elected Mrs. Robert Harrison as their new president.

Other new officers are Mrs. Walter Hutchko, first vice-president; Mrs. Robert W. Linthicum Jr., second vice-president; Mrs. Warren Ottley; secretary and Mrs. Oral J. Annis, secretary.

Each member of the new executive board has prepared herself for her duties and responsibilities by previous club service. Mrs. Harrison is a past chairman of the Hospital Welfare Committee, Mrs. Hutchko has been a co-chairman of both the Hospitality and the Program Committees, and Mrs. Linthicum has just finished a term as Membership Chairman. Mrs. Ottley is a former Membership Chairman and Mrs. Annis served three months of the last term as Treasurer.

Under the capable leadership of Mrs. John Popik, retiring president, the club has had a successful year, from both a social and a welfare viewpoint.

Welfare

In the field of welfare the club has given financial and assistance to a number of Fort Benning families who suffered misfortune and tragedies. A financial contribution was presented to the Fort Benning P-TA to help sponsor a welcoming party for the teachers last fall. The club also presented a television set to the NCO Academy.

Morning Coffees

The club sponsors regular morning coffees for staff personnel and ambulatory patients and bi-monthly ward parties at the Martin Army Hospital. The coffees are under the direction of the American Red Cross and hostessed by club members as are the ward parties. Monthly bingos with prizes of cigarettes and homemade cakes, are also hostessed by club members at Service Club No. 2 the last Saturday in each month.

To encourage the beautification of quarters and yards in the NCO Capehart Housing, the club sponsored a contest in July, 1960, with first, second, and third prizes.

The good off-post deed chalked up to the club's credit in 1960 was the delivery of a box of the small, assorted toys which children love to the Mother Mary Mission to Colombus.

Joint Project

In conjunction with the Second Infantry Division Officers' Wives Club, lollipops to ease away some of the unpleasantness of shots are furnished the Immunization Ward of the Pediatric Clinic. Also in conjunction with the Second Division Officers Wives Club, a dress blue uniform was awarded to the Career Soldier of the Year, SFC Robert Poteat, as the club's participation in Organization Day on October 26, 1960.

Primary Purposes

One of the club's primary purposes is to foster social contacts between NCO wives and their families. The ladies meet once each month for a business meeting and once each month for a luncheon-bingo. A Halloween costume ball was given for members and their husbands last October. The kiddies were remembered with a traditional Christmas Party in December and an Egg Roll at Easter.

Two Farewell Courtesies Paid Mrs. J. Farras

A luncheon recently touched a series of events being given to honor Mrs. Jimmie S. Farras, who will depart the post in the near future. Others present were Mrs. Stephen J. Regan, Mrs. John Popik, Mrs. Oral J. Annis, Mrs. Thomas V. Ramsey, and Mrs. Lawrence W. Smith.

On June 9th, Mrs. Lawrence W. Smith gave a coffee at her home as another farewell courtesy for Mrs. Farras. Guests were wives of Second Infantry Division personnel, old friends who became acquainted in Camp Polk, Louisiana, in the fall of 1953. The group moved on to Fort Riley, Kansas, in 1954, gyroscoped together to Bamberg, Germany in 1955, and came to Fort Benning in 1958. Present were Mrs. Bilbo Nowell, Mrs. Charles W. Bernakovitz, Mrs. Joseph N. Volker Jr., Mrs. Ismael Rangel, and Mrs. John Kritko.

An arrangement of peck roses and heather centered the lace covered serving table at which Mrs. Nowell served. The guest of honor was presented a gift of silver.

Signal Wives Have Coffee At Petorock's

The officers' wives of the 122nd Signal Battalion met for coffee recently at the home of Mrs. John J. Petorock.

Hostesses for the event were Mrs. Francis Kowalski and Mrs. Petorock. Mrs. C. W. Lowther served from a table decorated with spring flowers and satin ceramic candelabra.

The door prize was won by Mrs. C. F. Nietman. During a brief business meeting, farewells were said to Mrs. J. S. Hutchins, Mrs. W. W. Nelson, and Mrs. Rola W. Lowery.

Mrs. B. J. Nave was welcomed to the group.

Mrs. Hardick Receives Gifts At Club Coffee

A farewell to Mrs. Hardick was the central theme of the first summer coffee held by the 2nd Division Wives Club Tuesday June 13 in the Main Officer's Open Mess.

Mrs. Louis A. Kunzig, Jr. presented a plaque to Mrs. William L. Hardick, honorary president of the 2nd Division Women's Club, in appreciation for her many efforts on behalf of the organization. Also present was a scrapbook of activities since Mrs. Hardick's arrival.

Mrs. Kunzig bade farewell also to Mrs. Jack Looney and Mrs. James Osgard, both members of the executive board.

The hostesses for the event were the ladies of the 2nd Aviation Company with Mrs. Robert McGraw as general chairman and Mrs. Rex Miller in charge of the pastel decorations.

Mrs. Kunzig announced that parents interested in dance instruction for their children may contact Mrs. Mariano Morales MU 9-2497 for registration and additional information. The dancing classes are sponsored by the 2nd Division Women's Club.

Door prizes of floral centerpieces were won by Mrs. Jone Andrews and Mrs. Harvey Wise. Mrs. Frank Gundaker won a summer straw hat as her lucky number prize.

Brig. Gen. Hardick Retires After 30 Years

(Cont'd from Pg. 8)

There was hardly time to get acquainted with some other young men who had chosen West Point and the Army as their career. Curtis J. Herrick, Edwin A. Walker, John E. Ruggles, Miller O. Perry, Edwin J. Messinger, and Hugh P. Harris struggled with Bill Hardick to handle the weighty load of plebe year. First Lieutenant Phillips E. Gallagher (now Major General, retired in Columbus) was one of his tactical officers.

The tradition of West Point, dating back to its founding in 1802, declared that incoming cadets were to be treated with the utmost attention from upperclassmen to assure that they received proper instruction. This hazing, as it was, and is still, called, took on a gruelling aspect to the uninitiated.

Doubletime was the only form of locomotion available to the plebe. And such questions as "What is the time of day?" would bring forth a three-minute dissertation on the position of the earth in relation to the sun as determining to the best of the plebe's knowledge an estimate of the hour.

Another firm instruction to the incoming cadets was that since the automobile was definitely not here to stay, no cadet would be allowed to ride in one of these upstart contraptions. This rule was to be modified during Cadet Hardick's stay at the Point.

The long four-year course got underway. The regimented life of the cadet kept Plebe Hardick busy. Many evenings found him boning up on the coming day's class assignments beyond the regular mandatory study period, but he managed to find time to be on the plebe soccer squad.

With the end of plebe year came the big boost to the upper class ranks and an opportunity to instruct the incoming Class of '32 members. Vacation time for the Class of '31 didn't come until Christmas holiday in their second year.

Strenuous Schedule

This was the first time in a year-and-a-half the cadets had been away from the West Point grounds, except for short trips to football games. Another year and thirdclassman Hardick found time in his strenuous schedule to participate in the Fish and Game Club and the Gun Club.

Between his third and final year, he made the class of '31 field trip to Langley Field, Fort Eustis, Fort Meade and Fort Monroe, Virginia. This summer excursion gave the upcoming officer his first taste of life in the Regular Army. From this trip, he made the decision that he would be a career infantry officer.

Then, it was June 11 of 1931. The big moment had arrived for the 255 cadets in the First Class. A proud and happy Mr. Hardick listened to the graduation address delivered by the Assistant Secretary of War, the Honorable Frederick H. Payne. He stepped smartly to the stage to receive his Bachelor of Science in Military Science and Civil Engineering and a commission as a second lieutenant in the Regular Army United States Army.

Following a brief vacation, Lieutenant Hardick reported to Fort Ontario, N. Y. and was assigned as a platoon leader in Company I, 28th Infantry Regiment of the 1st Division. This was to be a challenge, too, for the new officer. West Point had equipped the soldier for a well-rounded career, but as a green officer there were many specific duties which had to be learned.

The non-commissioned officers of the unit took a hand in the indoctrination of Lieutenant Hardick as they had done with all new officers. The first sergeant, supply sergeant and mess sergeant made up the triumvirate of who's who in the Army Company of 1931.

Their help proved invaluable to Lieutenant Hardick and throughout his many years of duty, he never forgot that a unit must be staffed with competent NCOs if it is to be successful in its mission.

The depression swept across the U.S. in 1932, and caused the Army, to tighten its belt. At Fort Ontario, mules and horses were still the main source of transportation and Lieutenant Hardick learned the rudiments of care and feeding of these footlegged vehicles.

In November of 1932, Lieutenant Hardick returned to his home, Rochester, on leave. While there, he married the girl of his dreams, Miss Augusta Meyer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Meyer of Rochester. It was a home wedding, followed by a trip to the beautiful Adirondack Mountains in upperstate New York.

The newlyweds returned to Fort Ontario and the bride groom found himself in a new assignment as platoon leader with Company M of the 28th Infantry. This was one of the heavy weapons companies of the regiment. First Lieutenant William H. Schaefer (now Colonel, retired in Columbus) was his company commander and instructor in machine gunnery.

August, the month of Leo the Lion, became a happy time for Lieutenant and Mrs. Hardick found time in his strenuous schedule to participate in the Fish and Game Club and the Gun Club.

Between his third and final year, he made the class of '31 field trip to Langley Field, Fort Eustis, Fort Meade and Fort Monroe, Virginia. This summer excursion gave the upcoming officer his first taste of life in the Regular Army. From this trip, he made the decision that he would be a career infantry officer.

Then, it was June 11 of 1931. The big moment had arrived for the 255 cadets in the First Class. A proud and happy Mr. Hardick listened to the graduation address delivered by the Assistant Secretary of War, platoon leader of the machine gun platoon. Later jobs placed him as battalion adjutant and then regimental athletic officer. He served as head coach for the regimental basketball team and assistant coach of the baseball nine.

Chinese Food

The Hardick family lived in a three-bedroom wooden bungalow in Hawaii and learned to enjoy the many styles of food available in the islands. Their taste for Chinese foods, acquired here, was to stay with them through the years.

The first big step up the promotion ladder came in August of 1935, when Lieutenant Hardick donned his silver bar and rank of first lieutenant. The Hardicks celebrated the promotion with a party for friends.

"Into each life a little rain must fall" says the adage and the dark clouds struck the Hardick home in 1936. Augusta was having back trouble and the pains forced her off her feet and into bed. Finally, there was nothing left to do but send her to Walter Reed Hospital in Washington, D.C. for treatment.

Mrs. Hardick was a patient at Walter Reed for a year. During the long twelve months, Lieutenant Hardick was assigned back to the States to the 66th Infantry Regiment at Fort Meade, Maryland. He served as a company commander with the 66th until August 1938.

This unit was the only Infantry light tank regiment in the U. S. Army at the time. It was commanded by Colonel Simon Bolivar Buckner, who as a three star general, was to be killed-in-action in Okinawa during World War II.

Recuperation

Mrs. Hardick had been sent, meanwhile, to Hot Springs, Arkansas, for recuperation after a year of treatment at Walter Reed. Doctors there had diagnosed her ailment as rheumatoid arthritis, with severe damage to her back and hip joints and henceforth she has had to use crutches to get around. This was a harsh blow, but could not thwart the indomitable spirit of Augusta.

And, in 1938, when Lieutenant Hardick was assigned to Fort Benning, Mrs. Hardick and Joanne, now five-years-old, joined him once again.

At Fort Benning, school work confronted Lieutenant Hardick once again, as he was assigned to the Regular Course of the Infantry School at Benning. This ten-month course was energetic, since it had been revised due to the growing tension in Europe. Hitler's German troops had invaded Austria and trouble raged across Spain with the Spanish Civil War.

Following the Regular Course, Lieutenant Hardick remained at Fort Benning with the 24th Infantry Regiment. His new assignment with the 24th didn't look too promising to Lieutenant Hardick. For one thing, he heard through the grapevine that he was going to be assigned to the Logging Detachment at Chiflee in-charge-of forest conservation.

But, upon investigation, he found that the officer-in-charge of the Logging Detachment was a hand-picked individual, and was usually given to upcoming energetic young officers. He accepted the challenge.

Choice Job

It is interesting to note that this particular assignment was indeed a choice one. The two officers who held the position, before Lieutenant Hardick, as well as his successor all continued upwards in their Army careers. All four of these officers later became general officers.

As head of the detachment, Lieutenant Hardick supervised the cutting of timber in the present Victory Pond area and cleared the initial strip which became the main road in this section of Fort Benning.

Mobilization hit the U. S. Army in September of 1939, and he was next assigned to Post Headquarters to supervise preparation and distribution of training aids for the many new units arriving daily on post.

Part of his job was to assign work priorities to five Civilian Conservation Corps Companies which had assembled at Fort Benning to open up newly acquired land for training units being mobilized here.

The pre-World War II pace heightened as it became apparent that the "madman of power," Adolph Hitler, would only be stopped by force. Another promotion came in September of 1940, and now it was Captain William L. Hardick.

December 7, 1941 marked the final straw for the United States with the sneak attack on Pearl Harbor. The next day, President Franklin D. Roosevelt declared war on Japan, Germany and Italy.

Trains Edges 9th 1-0 In 17 Inning Pitching Duel

By 9th Inf and Div Trains PIOs

Some 200 softball fans last week witnessed a 17-inning "pitch-down" in which an unearned run in the last frame snapped a scoreless pitching duel and gave Division Trains a 1-0 win over the third place 9th Infantry.

Opposing each other on the mound in the three-hour long hard fought contest were Billy White of the 9th Infantry and Frank Myers veteran Trains hurler.

New Record

The game was the longest contest recorded in Fort Benning, topping by one inning last year's final playoff game for the post championship in which White went the distance to take the contest.

Myers, of Company B, 2nd Medical Battalion, struck out 24, allowed four hits and one walk while his counterpart White struck out 21 walked three, and hit four batsmen. White also stranded ten batters and gave up five hits in the last and decisive inning.

Decisive 17th

In the 17th inning, left fielder James Pearson reached first base after White conked him with a curve ball. He made it to second on a sacrifice and raced to third on a wild pitch.

With two outs he crossed the plate on an error by 9th Infantry shortstop Bill Sanford on Duane Goldammer's ground ball.

Retires 19

Winning pitcher Myers retired the first 19 men to face him. Then the 9th's third sacker, Harry Hall, shattered the perfect game with a bunt single. Myers surrendered singles to Waymouth Wyche, Max Powell, and Don Mayo later in the marathon.

Myers collected two hits for himself at bat while his teammates played errorless ball behind him.

Foust Places First in Post Tennis Singles

By Engr. PIO

Lieutenant Arthur Louis Foust of Company C, 2nd Engineer Battalion won the final playoff of the Post Tennis Singles Championship. His winning scores were 6-0, 6-2, and 6-1.

He will represent Fort Benning in the Third Army Championships which are to be played at Fort Benning's Officers' Club courts on June 19-25.

Lt. Foust first started playing tennis at the age of 13. He and his twin sister represented their high school with much success. He went on to win the Texas State School Board Championship along with many others.

At Rice University, he studied Economics, with time out to win the South West Double Championship, Louisiana State Junior Championship, and Houston City Championship.

Lt. Foust has met and beaten Byron Mackay and Sammy Giammalva, both of whom are Davis Cup champions.

Leaders Hold 6-0 Record to Keep CT League Lead

Signal Leaders continue to dominate the Custer Terrace Biddy League, maintaining a record of six wins and no losses.

An all-star team from the league, composed of three players from each team, will play a similar team from Main Post next week in a best out of three series. Time and sites of the games are: June 22-Green Field; June 23—Custer Terrace Field; and June 24—to be decided if a third game is to be played to determine a series winner.

Recent Action

Scores in recently played games are: Signal Leaders 10-Red Raiders 7; Red Raiders 17 - Wagon Trains 5; Conquerors 33 - Blue Devils 12; Black Hawks 17 - Black Eagles 7; Signal Leaders 18 - Benning Hawks 8; Blue Devils 12 - Black Hawks 8; Red Raiders 14 - Black Eagles 4; Conquerors 6 - Benning Hawks 6; Signal Leaders 12 - Wagoo Trains 1.

Third Army

Six Officers Will Represent Benning in Tennis Tournament

Six officers, who gained the semifinals of The Infantry Center Tennis Tournament last week, were selected to represent Fort Benning in the Third Army net tourney which starts at the post Monday.

Open division representatives include Lt. Art Foust, Capt. Paul Young, Lt. Jack Sterling and Capt. Edward Grubbs. Senior Division entries will include Col. Eb W. Smith and Major Gil Proctor.

Of these representatives, only three were winners in the annual post tournament. Lt. Foust and Capt. Young dominated the open class and Major Proctor headed the seniors class.

In the finals of the open singles eliminations last week, at the Main Officers' Open Mess tennis courts, Lt. Foust downed Capt. Young in a best-three-out-of-five match, 6-3, 6-2, and 6-1. In the open doubles final, Lt. Foust and Capt. Young teamed up to defeat the team of Lt. Sterling and Lt. Gerald Ristau in the same number of sets, 6-1, 6-1 and 6-4.

In the seniors class, (for contestants over 40 years of age), Major Proctor defeated Col. Smith in the best-two-out-of-five sets for the singles title 6-4 and 6-3. In the seniors doubles action, Major Proctor and Lt. Col. Robert Galer teamed up to defeat the team of MSgt Charle Pollman and SMaj Archie Hatified, 6-4 and 6-2.

Members of the Fort Benning entry in the Third Army tournament which will be held through June 23 at the General New Garden Courts at the Main Officers' Open Mess, were selected only from the singles division.

In the open class, the four semifinalists will play individually in the singles class and Lt. Foust and Capt. Young will pair off as well as Lt. Sterling pairing off with Capt. Grubbs in the doubles matches.

Major Proctor and Col. Smith will play on the same basis as the open class. In the seniors division, the two will battle for individual honors and will pair up in the doubles elimination.

The Third Army Tennis Tournament will open with a banquet which will be held Sunday at the Post Country Club. The fete will start at 7 p.m.

Benning Golfers To Meet LaGrange

The Fort Benning Country Club golf team will host the LaGrange squad in a return engagement on June 25 at the post fairways. The match will start at 10 a.m. and will conclude with a dinner at the Country Club.

LaGrange was the winner of the first meeting, which was held in the west central Georgia city last month.

Artillery Standings In Bowling

In bowling last week in the 2nd Howitzer Battalion, 10th Artillery, 1st Infantry Brigade, league, the Splitters won two and lost two to the Flickers, Charlie's Century Club won three and lost one to the Pace Setters, the Wood Bees won three and lost one to Battery B, and the King Pins won four over Daddy's Duds.

High series in the league are Rowe, 338; Nipper, 530; Winchester, 527; Von Cloedt, 516; Smith, 496; and DeMedicis, 491.

High games are Raby, 204; Winchester, 199; Von Cloedt, 199; Warney, 195; Nipper, 194, 188; Rowe, 194, 185; Smith, 194 and Seraphin, 189.

Post Hosts Third Army Tennis Go

Seven military installations will enter the 1961 Third Army Tennis Tournament scheduled for June 19 to 23 at the Main Officers' Open Mess Tennis courts here.

They are Fort Rucker, Fort McPherson, Fort Bragg, Fort Jackson, Fort Gordon, Fort McClellan, and tournament host Fort Benning.

According to preliminary correspondence, Fort McClellan and Fort Jackson will be the lone two posts entering female competitors. All others will enter men's open and senior singles and doubles eliminations.

Play in the five-day tournament will be governed by the rules and regulations of the U.S. Lawn Tennis Association.

Drawings and seedings will be held Sunday at 2 p.m. at a scratch meeting in Briant Wells Field House.

Father's Day Golf

Fort Benning's Main Officers' Open Mess will celebrate Father's Day with a gala "Fathers Fiesta" golf tournament and an awards presentation at the post Country Club Sunday, June 18. The golf tournament will begin at 11 a.m.

In Major Unit Baseball

151st Engineers Move Into Tie With Brigade

The 151st Engineer Group pulled a surprise move, aided by the Infantry Center Troop Command, in major Unit Baseball League action, as they handed The Student Brigade its first loss and moved into first place with the help of Troop Command, who also topped TSB.

By winning all three games slated for them last week, the Engineers gained an 8-2 record for a short-lived one-half game advantage over The Student Brigade, who topped the 29th Infantry in Tuesday's encounter.

The Engineers ripped the former league leaders by a 13-12 margin last Wednesday to start their move toward the top spot as Pfc Leicht received credit for the win and Pfc Carroll Emery was tagged with the loss. Troop Command handed The Student Brigade its second loss, 5-3, on Saturday.

With the victory over TSB, Troop Command moved out of a tie for the cellar spot. The 428th Medical Battalion, who dropped a 9-5 game to the 151st Engineers on Sunday are now in sole possession of the bottom rung of the ladder with 1-7 league credentials.

Another squad making its presence known in the post baseball circle is the 2nd Howitzer Battalion, 10th Artillery, 1st Infantry Brigade. The team holds down third place in the standing with a 6-3 record, just a game and a half behind The Student Brigade.

In last week's slate of games, the 10th Artillery whipped Troop Compand, 5-1, and nipped the 1st Battle Group, 29th Infantry, 1st Infantry Brigade, 3-2. It was the lone game for the 29th Infantry nine and its nose-dive in the league is continuing.

Fifth place 1st Armored Rifle Battalion, 58th Infantry played but one game last week, folding before the powerful onslaught of the rampaging 151st Engineers, 18-10. The 58th Infantry maintains a 2-5 league worksheet, four and one-half games behind the pace of the Engineers.

The Student Brigade came back strong Tuesday night and blasted the 29th Infantry to a 11-7 victory and moved in a first place tie with 151st Engineers.

Capt. Charles Murphy was credited with the victory and 2nd Lt. John Henning suffered the defect. Pfc Dave Brewer led the winners at bat with a two-run homer and two singles. Pfc Carroll Emery rapped a double and a single, and Sp4 Elmer Smott added three singles for four trips at the plate for the winners.

Second Lt. Guy Schottler paced the losers with a triple and a double. 2nd Lt. Bob Whitehead rapped out two hit for the Two-Niners.

Post Sluggerettes Split Two Games With Visiting Team

Fort Benning's WAC softball team split a pair of contests with the Fort Jackson, WAC team, winning Saturday by a 23-21 onslaught, and losing Sunday by a 15-9 margin.

Saturday's win was the second for the post WAC team while Sunday's loss was the first. The local sluggerettes now possess a 2-1 season record, also defeating the Fort McPherson WAC team earlier this season, 18-7.

Saturday the Fort Benning WAC team goes after its third win of the season when it travels to Fort Gordon for a single encounter.

each from the prone, standing and kneeling positions.

In the second match completed, SMaj Huelet L. Benner boosted the Army record for the International rapid fire pistol event by two points when he fired 587 points out of a possible 600 in defeating 47 competitors in the event.

Benner gave the First Army its first win of the championships while U.S. Army Europe's Sfc Aubrey E. Smith and the AAMU's MSgt Richard M. Stineman equaled the old record of 585 to win second and third places, respectively.

Course of fire consisted of two 10-shot strings at eight seconds, two strings at six and two at four seconds per string on the International Silhouette target at 25 meters. It is considered to be the most difficult course of its type in existence.

Wednesday, June 7

Cpl Anderson exceeded the world's record for the 300 meter International free rifle course when he fired a score of 1,150 points out of a possible 1,200, three points over the world mark. Because his score was not shot in world competition, it will not be recorded as a new world mark but will go into Army record books.

Runner-up in the 300-meter match was AAMU teammate Lt. Pool with 1,126 points. Third was Capt. Puckel with 1,120. The world record exceeded by Anderson was shot by Puckel in the Pan-American Games in 1959.

Sfc Harold R. Wilson, Third Army Team, fired a 300-22X over the .22 caliber Camp Perry short course, 10 shots each, slow fire, timed fire, and rapid fire at 25 yards. Sgt. Wilson's score equaled the Army record for the course set by Sgt. Blankenship in 1960.

Sgt. Blankenship took runner-up position with 300-18X, while USARPAC's Sfc Andrew N. Jackson won third place with 300-18X. The tie was broken by reverting to Blankenship's higher rapid fire score.

In the second event, Sgt. Blankenship fired a winning 299-22X over the center fire Camp Perry Course followed by Fourth Army's Sgt. James McNally with 299-19X. The AAMU's Sgt. Robert L. Jones shot a 299-13X for third place.

The .45 caliber Camp Perry course was taken by Second Army's MSgt. Fred Schaser with 300-11X. Two AAMU shooters followed with Sgt. Haygood Tatum taking second with 298-17X, and MSgt. Walter E. Schneider third with 296-17X.

The first championship of the competition fell to Army Europe when Sp4 Charles W. Friedman and Sp4 Richard L. Reinbeau brought the 1961 Automatic Rifle Championship to their parent organization, the 1st Battle Group, 28th Infantry, 8th Infantry Division.

The pair blasted out an aggregate of 1,674-131V for three matches fired. Second place was filled by the Third Army's Sp4 Robert Wilson and Pfc Sidney Wharram, 1st Airborne Battle Group, 504rd Infantry, 82nd Airborne Division, with 1,662-136V. Third aggregate award went to the Sixth Army's Sp4 Richard L. Huff and Sp4 William T. Daniels, 1st Battle Group, 12th Infantry, 4th Infantry Division, for their 1,656-128V.

Sixth Army's team of Huff and Daniels opened the automatic rifle competition by winning the 300-yard Rapid Fire Match by posting 582 - 61V. Army Europe's Friedman and Reinbeau fired a second place 580-56V while the Third Army's Sp4 Pedro R. Garcia and Pfc Winfried Arellano, 2nd Airborn Battle Group, 504th Infantry; 3rd Armored Division, take the trophy with 573-61V followed by its Friedman-Reinbeau pair winning second place with 565-61V. Third Army's team of Wilson and Wharren fired a 565-54V for third place.

The third and last event of the automatic rifle championships, the 500-yard match, was taken by Sixth Army's Huff and Daniels with 532-23V while a 529-29V score gave Army Europe's Friedman and Reinbeau second place awards and third was won by Third Army's Wilson and Wharren with 519-20V.

Of the 21 place awards in the three matches, and the aggregate, five teams divided the spoils despite 47 crack team entries.

Thursday, June 8

Sgt. Blankenship smashed all-time records for the .22 caliber pistol course with a score of 895-62X out of 900 points.

The score, an aggregate of four individual matches, is a new Army Record, replacing the old mark of 888- set by SMaj Benner in 1957.

Sgt. Blankenship, in setting the new record, started out by winning the .22 caliber Slow Fire Match, 20 shots at 50 yards. His 196-12X boosted the record for this match by two points.

Sgt. McNally placed second in the slow fire event with 198-7X while third place went to Sgt. Stineman with 195-7X.

The .22 Caliber Time Fire Match, 20 shots at 25 yards, was won by AAMU's Sgt Floyd D. Thomson, a record-breaking 200-18X, exceeding the old record by 2X's. Blankenship fired a 200-16X for second place and Sgt. Stineman took his second third place award with 200-16X, being outranked by Blankenship.

In the .22 Caliber Rapid Fire Match, the AAMU maintained its performance with Sgt. James L. Bratcher lifting the old record by 2X's with a score of 200-14X. Runner-up was the Fourth Army's Capt. John W. Humphreys, followed by the Third Army's Sfc Barry Slack, who shot a 200-12X. In this match, although 17 of his 20 shots landed in the tie-breaking X-ring, Blankenship let one shot slip into the 9-ring for a 199-17X.

In the .22 caliber National Match course, he posted a winning 296-17X for the last event comprising the .22 caliber championship. He was followed by teammate, Sgt. Stineman, who scored a 298-15X for second award. Army Europe's MSgt. John L. S. Davis took third with 297-14X.

Runner-up position in the championship aggregate was occupied by MSgt Stineman with 888-47X and third place by AAMU Sgt Bratcher, with 887-44X.

In establishing hi new record, Sgt. Blankenship fired 90 shots, all but five of which landed in the bulls-eye's 10-ring, little larger than a half-dollar.

On the rifle range, Army Europe won all three matches, led by Sgt. Willie D. Jordan personally accounting for two of the individual events.

In the 200-yard Slow Fire Match, 20 shots from the standing position, Sgt. Jordan fired the top score of 100-9V. Fourth Army's Sfc Leonard W. Willis fired a second place 100-8V and Europe's Sfc Donald M. Dyke took third award with 100-7V.

Jordan's second win came in the 200-yard Rapid Fire Match, 20 shots from the sitting position, when he posted a 100-15V score, a single "V" ahead of Army Pacific's Sfc Chester A. Long. The AAMU's Sfc D. B. Teague took third place with 100-13V.

Europe's Sp4 Loris J. Smith was trophy winner of the 300-yard Rapid Fire Match with 100-13V. Army Air Defense Command's Sfc Richard W. Parker placed second with 100-10V and Sfc Willis of Fourth Army won third award with 100-9V.

Friday, June 9

An Army pistol record which stood for seven years was smashed completely when MSgt Stineman blasted out a score of 887-36X over the Center Fire Pistol course.

Sgt. Stineman exceeded the old mark for the four match aggregate by five full points.

In the first of the four matches fired, Sgt. Stineman also set an individual match record when he won the Center Fire Slow Fire match with a 196-5X, two points over the old mark. AAMU teammate Sfc Henry Weinbrecht placed second in the event with 195-5X and was followed by Alaska Command's Sgt. Paul S. McGiboney with 194-6X.

The Center Fire Timed Fire event was taken by the first Army's Sgt. Santiago Machuca with 200-18X. Second award was won by the AAMU's CWO Oscar Weinmeister with 200-12X, while Pacific's Sfc Frank Lum Lung placed third with 200-8X.

The third pistol match of the day saw its record smashed by Sgt. Blankenship when he fired a 200-11X in the Center Fire Rapid Fire Match, one point over the old mark. Second place was won by Second Army's MSgt. Fred Schaser with 199-9X and third by Air Defense Command's Sgt. Lynal Grassman.

Sgt. Stineman then went on to win the Center Fire National Match Course with 294-12X followed by teammates Sgt. Blankenship with 293-14X and Sfc William Heron with 293-13X.

The record smashing aggregate score by Sgt. Stineman was six points over the 881-45X of runner-up Sfc Jackson while Sgt. Weinbrecht took third aggregate record with 880-35X.

On the rifle range Sgt. Jordan won his third out of five matches fired when he posted a 196-25V total for the 600 Yard Slow Fire Match. AAMU's Sfc Anthony Miranda placed second with 196-29V and teammate Sfc Cecil L. Stevens third with a lower-ranking 19-29V.

The second rifle event scheduled was won by USARPAC marksman Capt. Verle Wright with 149-16V. AAMU's Sp4 Justus J. Allen won second award with a lower-ranking 149-16V while Europe's Sgt. Richard D. Rebidue placed third with 149-15V.

Saturday, June 10

Sfc Blankenship won two out of four .45 caliber pistol matches to win the Service pistol championship. He posted a four-match total of 867-31X to win the match, seven points ahead of Second Army's MSgt. Fred Schaser. His teammate, MSgt Walter E. Schneider, tallied a third place aggregate of 860-27X.

The first match of the day, the .45 caliber Slow Fire Pistol Match, was won by Second Army's Sfc Laudencio P. Jaramillo with 190-2X. Fourth Army's Sgt. McNally took the second award with 189-5X and Third Army's Sgt. Ivy T. Anderson posted 189-5X to win third place.

Sgt. Blankenship then won

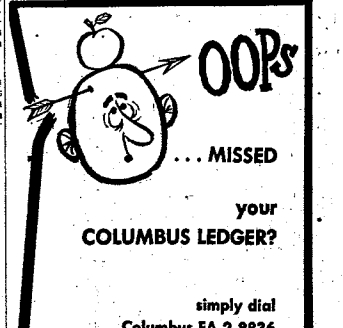
WACs Make Army Finals First Time

By MSgt Charles A. Quinn

Precedent was set at Fort Benning, where not one, but two women fired in the 1961 Rifle and Pistol Championships.

It was the first time in the history of Army marksmanship competition that distaffers reached the pinnacle of Army shooting.

Sp4 Barbara J. Hile and Pfc Kathryn J. Ruff, members of the Women's Army Corps, established a precedent made noteworthy as they entered in rifle rather than pistol competition.



Sp. Hile, of the WAC Detachment, Fort Mason, Calif., is a member of the Sixth Army Rifle Team. She won the position through steady advancement in competitions since last October. This year marks the first successful try for team selection in her six years of service. She won a place among the Sixth Army's top 50 competitive riflemen.

Pfc Ruff of the WAC Detachment, Fort Dix, N. J., has been firing the service rifle only since March and yet qualified for the First Army Rifle Team. According to her team captain, 2nd Lt. Vincent F. Saele, she is keeping competitive pressure on her mark teammates and presently rates in the top 15 per cent of the squad.

Each began to shoot under tutelage of their fathers and parental coaching. They fired in Junior National Rifle Association competition before entering the service.

Champs

the .45 Timed Fire Match with 199-11X, a single X ahead of Sfc Charles O'Fearna, Sixth Army marksman. Sfc Ralph Thompson, Europe, took third place with 199-6X.

In the .45 Caliber Rapid Fire Match, Sgt. Blankenship took the trophy with a 197-6X, two X's in front of teammate Sfc Robert L. Jones and three X's ahead of Sp4 Joseph A. Patterson, Fifth Army.

The .45 Caliber National Match Course was won by Third Army's MSgt Harold Wilson with a score of 289-13X. The AAMU's MSgt. Stineman placed second with 289-11X while teammate Sgt. Haygood Tatum won third award with 289-10X.

The Combined Rapid Rifle Fire Match at 200 and 300 yards was won by AAMU's Sgt. James Fallin with 100-11V. Sgt. Oda L. Casto, Second Army, won second place by a shoot-off with Third Army's Sgt. Bobby Hogue when both posted 100-10V's.

The individual champions were crowned with honors going to Europe's rifleman Sgt. Jordan and the AAMU's Sgt. Blankenship.

Sgt. Jordan scored a total of 990-106V out of a possible 1,000 points, two points away from the all-time record for a course which included seven individual matches and 200 shots with the service rifle.

Sgt. Blankenship fired a total of 2636-113X out of a possible 2,700 points to retain the crown he won in 1960.

In winning the grand aggregate of 12 individual matches calling for 270 shots with weapons of three calibers, Sgt. Blankenship won five matches and both the .22 caliber and .45 caliber championships.

Sgt. Jordan won three of the seven matches in which he competed to take laurels away from AAMU's Sgt. Mills by one point. Sgt. Mills scored 989-93V for runner-up position while his teammate Sgt. Fallin took third aggregate with 988-83V.

The Rifle Grand Aggregate New Shooter Trophy, awarded to the high rifleman among those who had never before fired in All-Army competition, went to Europe's MSgt. Donald E. Bracy for his 979-74V.

Runnerup honors in the pistol aggregate were taken by AAMU's Sgt. Stineman with a tally of 2634-114X. Third award was won by Fourth Army's Sgt. McNally, with 2613-102X, while his teammate Sfc Bobby J. Dudark took the high New Shooter Trophy with 2574-75X.

Fourth Army's Sfc Leonard W. Willis is the new off-hand champion by virtue of his 196-12V. Pacific's Sgt. Jerry V. Llanos placed second with 196-10V. The AAMU's Sgt. Mills filled third place with 196-7V. New shooter honors went to Sfc Jack Ries of Second Army with 196-8V.

The rapid fire championship went to AAMU's Sgt. Herbert Duncan with 399-32V, one V ahead of teammate Sgt. Fallin and two ahead of AAMU Sgt. Robert L. Meeks. High new shooter was Sp4 D. L. Crowell of Army Cloverleafs with 397-25V.

Europe's Sgt. Richard Rebidue is the 1961 long range champion for his 397-46V. Runner-up award went to USARPAC marksman Sgt. John T. Stringer while third was taken by Sgt. Jordan with 395-58V. Sixth Army's Sfc Robert O. Lancaster won the New Shooter Trophy with 394-55V.

Final tabulation of the individual National Rifle Match Course showed the AAMU's Sgt. Howard Stevens fired a perfect 250-29V out of a possible 250 points.

He was followed by teammate Sgt. Bobby G. Tubbs with 249-29V. Third place was taken by USARCARIB's MSgt Lawrence L. Goody with a 249-26V in which a lower score at long range caused loss of the second place award.

Monday June 12

Army Europe's Blue Team accounted for two of the new marks while shooting its way to the Army's Service Pistol Team Championship. The Fourth Army Caisson Team established the third new record.

Sfc Ralph O. Thompson sparked the Europe .22 caliber pistol team to its trophy-winning score of 1167-46X when he fired a 298-18X. The team's total surpassed the old Army record by one point.

Fifth Army's Blue team took second place in the .22 caliber event with 116-44X and Fourth Army's Caissons placed third with 11-58-46X.

In the Center Fire Team Match, the Fourth Army Caissons stepped in to capture the trophy by blasting the match record by 11 points. Pfc William D. Armstrong led his team to the new record, 1168-41X by firing a 297-15X.

Second place in the Center Fire Team Match was taken by Pacific's Blue Team with 1147-42X and third by Fourth Army's Cloverleafs with 1145-40X.

Europe's Blue Team returned to win the Army Service Pistol Team Championship with a score of 1140-40X and bettered the All-Army record for the coveted .45 caliber team crown by seven X's. Sgt. Thompson also fired top score in this event, a 288-12X.

A highlight of the "big team" match was the winning of second place with 1139-33X by the Military District of Washington's entry, a case of a David among the teams downing all but one Goliath. CWO Lucius Frye fired a 289-8X to lead the MDW team to the second award. Third place was won by Europe's Gold Team with 1138-32X.

In the rifle range, the Fourth Army captured two of the three place awards in the Short Range Team Match when its Blue Team fired an 887-48V to win the event and its Red Team an 883-41V for third place. Caribbean claimed second place when MSgt Goody led his Galleons with a perfect 150-5V to a score of 886-39V. Sgt. Jose Roman shot high score for the winning Blue Team, 149-9V.

The long Range Match at 600 yards was won by Sixth Army's Team 2 with a six-man score of 58-368V. Sfc Lancaster was high individual with 100-9V. Fourth Army's Red Team took second place with 583-53V and Europe's Blue fired a 579-55V for third award.

Sixth Army's Sp4 Barbara J. Hile, one of two members of the Women's Army Corps competing in the championships, fired a 244-14V, perhaps the highest score ever fired by a woman in the military service.

She placed 85th in a list of 465 entries by firing 46 off-hand, perfect 50's at 200 and 300 yards rapid fire and 96 at the 600 yard line.

Tuesday, June 13

Fourth Army's Red Team won the Rifle Team Championship with a score of 1,457-117V, bare points away from the all-time record for the match. Sp4 Bobby Davenport scored 247-19V to take high individual honors on the six-man team.

Second place was won by Fourth Army's Blue Team which fired a score of 1,456-109V and third place was won by Alaska's Blue Team with a 1,455-130V to which MSgt. Marvin Fitzpatrick contributed a 247-20V.

Top Bike Safety School Winners Are Bob Garrett, Marsha Zebreski

Bob Garrett won the 10 to 15 age class and Marsha Zebreski took the six to nine age group top awards, new bikes, in the annual Bicycle Safety School held recently on the post.

About 110 children participated in the annual safety campaign for bicycle operators.

Garrett is the son of Lt. Col. an Mrs. O. G. Garrett. Col. Garrett is chairman of the Basic Training Committee of the Airborne-Air Mobility Department, The Infantry School.

Miss Zebreski is the daughter of MSgt and Mrs. John Zebreski. Sgt. Zebreski is assigned to The Infantry Center Central Post Fund Division.

The school, consisting of a written examination, an orientation and safety lecture and the final practical examination of actual riding skill, was conducted by The Infantry Center Provost Marshal Section and the post Safety Office.

Purpose of the school and testing was to "teach bicycle safety, make bicycles riders safety conscious and make Fort Benning the safest military installation for bicycle riders," according to military officials.

Col. Soderstrom Addresses Group

Lt. Col. Glen L. Soderstrom, deputy commander of Infantry Center Troop Command, addressed the June 8 meeting of the Life Underwriters Association in Columbus.

Col. Soderstrom was assigned to the post in May. 1960, and served as assistant secretary of the Main Officers' Mess for seven months before assuming his present duties.

A 1937 journalism graduate of the University of Wichita, he also has a year's graduate work at Northwestern University in advertising.

First prizes in each of the two age groups were donated by the NCO Wives' Club and the Woman's Club of Fort Benning. Additional awards of carrying baskets, head and tail lights were donated by the Youth Activities Club Council.

Approximately 48 children were entered in the six to nine age group and 62 entered competition for top prizes in the 10 to 15 age classification. Over 120 prizes were awarded in both age groups.

The practical examination of riding skill included a balance test on a drawn line, maneuver-control figure eight test, and accuracy-control test and a braking stop test.

BOOKS in REVIEW

THE SONS AND THE DAUGHTERS by Patricia Gallagher. (Messner, 1961)

When Susan Hohenfield journeyed from Chicago to Africa, the scene of her childhood, she was in turn ecstatically happy and filled with apprehension. Married less than a week to a man she adored but scarcely knew, Dirk Hohenfield, she feared the first encounter with her father, for whom she nursed a terrible bitterness in her heart. Niklaas van Pelt loomed in her mind as the ogre who had driven Susan and her mother from his home and later served a term in prison for smuggling diamonds.

LOVE AND MRS. SARGENT by Virginia Rowans. (Farrar, 61)

Sheila Sargent knew all about love. Every morning millions of newspapers readers in hundreds of American cities followed with respect and awe Mrs. Sargent's sane, sage, and witty advice to the lovelorn, the troubled, the oppressed. Her delightfully intelligent books sold in the millions. Her friendly informal letters played to standing room only.

GOLF WITH THE EXPERTS by Tom Scott. (Barnes, 1961)

Since golf is a game that can be played almost from the cradle to the grave, and since, during that time, golfers are primarily interested in reducing their handicaps and improving their golfing proficiency, this book should be the most welcome ever to appear. The foremost golfers of the century provide their expert advice, each on the department of the game for which he is particularly renowned, Ben Hogan, Henry Cotton and Bobby Locke.

THE PSYCHOLOGY OF CRIME by David Abrahamsen, M.D. (Col. Univ. Press)

In this book, Dr. Abrahamsen answers the many perplexing questions that must occur to thoughtful readers of the sensational headlines in today's newspapers. What makes a criminal? What distinguishes him from the law-abiding citizen, other than the fact of his crime?

Parties Slated At MAH

Something new has been added at Martin Army Hospital.

Patients, doctors, nurses, corpsmen, volunteer workers and administrative personnel are honored with birthday parties.

Held once a month in the Red Cross Recreation Hall, there may be as many as 50 honorees at one party.

Everyone connected with the hospital whose birthday falls in the current month receives an individual written invitation to the birthday party. Patients who cannot attend are served later in the wards.

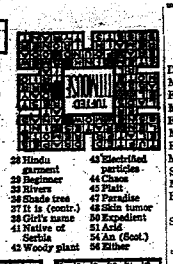
Hostesses for the birthday parties are members of four women's organizations on the post. They are the Woman's Club of Fort Benning, the 2nd Infantry Division Officers' Wives Club, the Lawson Army Aviation Command Ladies and the Ladies of the Big Indianhead.

These four organizations sponsor weekly coffees for hospital personnel in addition to the monthly birthday parties. The coffees and birthday parties are held in the Red Cross Recreation Hall at 10 a.m. on Friday.

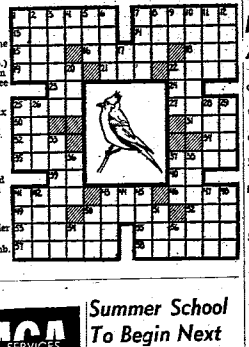
Coordinator for the parties is Mrs. Frances Jones, Red Cross recreation supervisor at the hospital.

Recital Set For Tonight

The 25 piano students of the Woman's Club School of Music will present a recital at the club building near the Pizzaria in the old hospital area, tonight at 7:30 p.m. The program is under the direction of Mrs. William French, the teacher.



Mrs. Cecil Sanders and Mrs. John F. Davis, past and present chairmen of the School of Music, will assist with arrangements. Interested parents and friends are invited to attend.



There is no admission fee, and refreshments will be served following the recital. Piano lessons will continue during the summer. To enroll, call Mrs. J. F. Davis at 5-1745.

CLASS E ALLOTMENT

The voluntary initiation of class E allotments for credit to a savings account with a banking institution or a postal savings accounts is an effective means by which service members may save money.

Summer School To Begin Next Monday on Post

Summer school will be held at the post Children's Schools June 19 through July 21, Mrs. Hazel J. Scudder, superintendent, has announced.

Remedial work in language, arts, social studies and arithmetic will be given at Faith School from 9 to 11:30 a.m. Mondays through Fridays. A special class in study habits for sixth through eighth graders also will be offered.

Registration was held Wednesday in the Home Living Room of Faith School.

Since no funds are furnished for a summer session, tuition is $25, payable at registration. School textbooks will be used. Parents will provide expendable supplies and transportation.

Mrs. Mary Sherrick, principal of Patch School, will be the principal for the summer school.

AER ASSISTANCE

Assistance is given under many varying types of emergencies which cause hardship or distress and are beyond the ability of the soldier to meet. Assistance is extended either as a loan without interest, as an outright grant, or as a combination of a loan and a grant, whichever is considered the most appropriate. Each case is determined on its own merits.

E. S. SMITH

First Sgt. (E-8) Louis E. Smith, first sergeant of Company C, Infantry School Battalion, The Student Brigade, entered the Army on June 11, 1936, at Fort Benning with the 29th Infantry.

He remained with the unit until 1939, when he re-enlisted for Hawaii. While there, he served with the 19th Infantry of the 24th Division.

Returning to the States in 1942, he was assigned to Fort Benning with the Officer Candidate School. Later, he served with the 30th Division at Camp Landon, Fla.

Sgt. Smith was transferred to Camp Forrest, Tenn., in 1943 as a regimental instructor and weapons instructor. Later that year, he shipped out to the China-Burma-India Theater where he helped to train Chinese, Burmese, and Indian soldiers.

In 1945, he returned to the States and was discharged.

He re-enlisted at Fort Benning in 1947 for duty with the machine gun committee of The Infantry School.

In 1952, Sgt. Smith was transferred to Korea with the 25th Division. In 1953, he returned to Fort Benning for duty with the machine gun committee.

January, 1955, saw Sgt. Smith in Berlin, Germany, with the 6th Infantry Regiment.

He returned to Fort Benning in 1958 and served a variety of jobs, including first sergeant of the 52nd Officer Candidate Company, duty with drill and command, first sergeant of Company B, Infantry School Battalion, and in April of this year, First Sgt. Smith was transferred to Company C, Infantry School Battalion, as first sergeant.

He was promoted to his present rank in December of 1960.

Lowest Serial Number Claimed By a Veteran of Three Armies

A photographer in the post Signal Photographic Laboratory claims to have the lowest Regular Army enlisted serial number on active duty. He's SSgt Robert H. Campbell, RA 2345.

This World War I veteran of service with the 1st Infantry Division has recorded a fascinating military career which dates back to 1912.

Sgt. Campbell, who will be 71 this year, was born in St. Mary's, West Va., on December 11, 1890. His military career began with the 52d Royal Canadian Engineers in Winnepeg, Canada, which ran from 1912 to 1916. He entered the U.S. Army at Fort Bliss, Texas, on May 29, 1916, where his first assignment was with the 2d Ambulance Company, 1st Sanitary Trains, 1st Infantry Division.

He remained with the 2d Ambulance Company until February, 1918, when he sailed with the 1st Division to France. Sgt. Campbell participated in some of the more famous campaigns of World War I, among them the engagements in the Sommerville Sector, Montdidier Sector, Soissons Sector, Cantigny, St. Mihiel, Meuse-Argonne, 2d Battle of the Marne, Sedan, Coblentzs Bridge Head and Ansauville Sector.

He also was a part of the Army of occupation. While serving with the 1st Division, he became a member of the "Society of the 1st Division, AEF." The torn and faded card which he carries in his wallet bears the date 5-2-1919.

Sgt. Campbell transferred to the 6th Field Artillery (Battery D), 1st Infantry Brigade of the Division, and served with this outfit from February, 1918, to April, 1920. He was later destined to serve under Brig. Gen. Jonathan M. Holeman, the commander of the 6th at that time.

Following World War I, Sgt. Campbell settled in Australia and in 1936 enlisted in the Australian Army, serving with them in the Tobruk and El Alamein campaigns. In 1942 he returned to Australia and transferred to the U.S. Army. Throughout World War II he served in the South Pacific in Gen. MacArthur's headquarters under Brig. Gen. Holeman, his former commander.

In 1945 he returned to the U. S., only to be reassigned overseas in 1952, this time to LaRochelle, France. A year later he was stationed in Jacksonville, Fla., on recruiting duty, where he makes his home today.

He spent some time in the Far East with an assignment as in the Identification Section of Eighth Army. He was assigned to the 12th Signal Detachment, 304th Signal Battalion, while on his Korea tour.

He arrived at Fort Benning on his current assignment, Company A, 1st Battalion, Infantry Center Troop Command, in February 1961. Prior to this, he had served with the Provost Division of The Infantry Center as Chief Clerk in 1950 to 1952. He is presently working as a Photographer and Laboratory Technician for the Signal Laboratory.

Sgt. Campbell is the holder of the Distinguished Service Cross, Purple Heart and the African Palm, as well as numerous campaign ribbons. He was personally awarded the French Croix de Guerre with Palm by Field Marshal Petain in 1919 for action near Soissons a year earlier.

One interesting historical sidelight related by this veteran of two major conflicts concerned the action in France as the Germans approached the capitol. "With the Germans 40 miles away from Paris, my unit (6th FA) was withdrawing with its horse-drawn weapons.

We came over a rise in the ground and saw the Germans, and we began firing point blank. We didn't even take the time to unlimber the guns." He considers the World War I as being more difficulty because of the hardships the men had to face—the mud and trench warfare.

Expert Infantryman's Badges Received by 21 After Tests

The Expert Infantryman's Badge, symbolic of outstanding proficiency in the Infantry, was presented to 20 officers and enlisted men at ceremonies last Saturday at the 1st Infantry Brigade. EIB class 3 also contained one Artilleryman who was awarded a certificate of completion.

The presentation of the badges was made by Brig. Gen. A. D. Surles, Jr. deputy post commander, assisted by Col. Charles T. Horner, Jr., brigade commander. Honor graduate for this class was Pfc Thomas Manario, Combat Support Company, 29th Infantry, who amassed a total of 1469 points out of a possible 1900.

In second place with 1454 points was 2nd Lt. Clarance Grant, Jr., Company A, 29th Infantry; 2nd Lt. John J. Manolakis, Company E, 29th Infantry, took third place with 1433 points, and in fourth place with 1416 points was 2nd Lt. James Oliver, of Company B.

Others receiving the badge were 1st Lt. Robert S. Rose, Headquarters, United States Army Infantry Center,; 2nd Lieutenants Robert J. McCloy, 24th Detachment, 2nd Student Battalion, The Student Brigade, USAIC, Eliot H. Rich, Company D, 29th Infantry; Robert Whitehead, Headquarters Company, 29th Infantry; Billie C. Burney, Company B, 58th Infantry; Thomas J. Henson, Company C, 58th Infantry 1st Lt. John J. Allen, Company C, 66th Armor, 58th Infantry; Sfc Alvin Taylor, Company A, 29th Infantry; Sergeants Fred Martinez, Company A, 29th Infantry; Robert E. Porter, Company A, 58th Infantry; Vlatko Strmski, Company B, 58th Infantry; Elvis Thomas, Company B, 58th Infantry; Spec Milton Brignac, Company E, 29th Infantry; Johnnie Tate, Company A, 29th Infantry; Valentine Sapikowski Company D, 58th Infantry.

The lone Artilleryman, Sgt. Jose Marquez, Battery C, 10th Artillery, was awarded a certificate of completion for his successful mastery of the course.

Col. Charles T. Horner, Jr., commanding officer, 1st Infantry Brigade, congratulated the officers and enlisted men and expressed his pride in their accomplishment.

Profile of a Man Doing a Man's Job

MSgt George W. Ivy is a member of the Army Rifle Team, a component of the Army Advanced Marksmanship Unit. He works mainly as a shooter and a coach with the team.

At Springfield, Ill., in 1956, Sgt. Ivy won the Memorial Trophy Matches and in 1960, was the team captain and training NCO in charge of the All-Army Infantry Trophy Team, which won the national championship.

Sgt. Ivy holds the distinction of having been the first U.S. Soldier to make an official parachute jump onto foreign soil and the fifth American soldier to successfully make a parachute jump as a member of an Airborne unit.

Sgt. Ivy entered the Army in December 1936, and in early 1941 volunteered for service with the newly-created parachute test platoon here at Fort Benning. Following basic Airborne training, Sgt. Ivy was selected to be the fifth man to actually complete a paratroop drop and later was named as first jumper to drop into the Panama Canal Zone during maneuvers there. He has more than 400 jumps to his credit.

EM Attends School

Spc4 Jewell Tate of Battery B, 2nd Howitzer Battalion, 10th Artillery, 1st Infantry Brigade, has departed for Fort Sill, Oklahoma, to attend the Artillery Communications School. He has been a member of the battery since January of this year. He entered the Army in April, 1959, took basic at Ft. Knox, and served a tour in Korea before coming to the unit.

Legal Assistance Officer Can Give Sound Advice

(Last of an AFPS Series)

Legal Assistance Officers point out that members of the Armed Forces and their dependents can avoid financial problems and legal controversies by obtaining advice from an attorney, and then following it.

Lawyers will agree, they say that it is far easier to advise you how to stay out of trouble than it is to get you out of trouble.

All Legal Assistance Officers in the Armed Forces are graduates of an accredited law school and have been admitted to practice before the highest court in at least one of the 50 states.

One of their regular duties is to provide you with legal assistance.

This may include, but is not limited to, verbal legal advice or preparation of legal documents such as wills, general and special power of attorney, bills of sale and affadavits.

On the other hand, they are limited to a certain degree by regulation.

For instance, they cannot advise you, in their capacity as Legal Assistance Officers, concerning matters which might result in administrative board action or disciplinary action under the Uniform Code of Military Justice.

Their assistance does not include such things as assignments, promotions, demotions or pay problems. They are not permitted to act as a collecting agency for any debt or obligation you may have made.

But they are ready and willing to advise you against unnecessary involvement in many legal matters that plague individuals and families from time to time.

If you will remember the following points, chances are you will not suffer as the result of inexperience in legal matters.

Ask your Legal Assistance Officer for advice before you act. (For example, before you sign a document by which you incur some financial responsibility ask for a full explanation of its contents.)

Talk to your Legal Assistance Officer or your civilian attorney in person.

Take all pertinent letters and documents with you.

Give your Legal Assistance Officer or civilian attorney your complete confidence.

Infantry School Report

Doctrines Progress From Broad Policy To Minute Details

Military doctrine is an expression of principles and concepts developed from experience and theory and exposed to reasoning. It reflects current policy, and within these bounds, doctrine represents guidance. For the initiated, doctrine provides a framework for operations.

Any attempt to use a doctrinal publication as a step-by-step approach to a situation and its solution denies its true talent. Doctrine is dynamic and the tempo of change is gathering momentum. What causes these changes?

Certainly tactical concepts must be altered to meet technological developments, changes in national policy, and new threats to our national security. Troop tests and tactical exercises isolate voids and point up needs.

More often, though, a student at a service school will express an opinion in an unexplored area or letters from the field will isolate a void. Every factor that requires adjustment is isolated and doctrine is expanded or in some cases created.

The proponency responsi

HEADS DNRI . . . Lt. Col. Francis H. Gregg has succeeded Col. John Bisbing as director of The Infantry School's Department of Non - Resident Instruction. Col. Gregg has been on post since October, 1959, in assignments with the Command and Staff Department and as deputy director of DNRI.

1961 YAC Carnival Set July 4

Fireworks, barbeque, refreshments, games and a full round of festivities are expected to attract crowds to Fort Benning's fifth annual Youth Activities Carnival July 4.

Project officers in major units are completing plans for the carnival, which has a dual purpose of raising funds for youth activities at the post and providing a safe holiday for visitors.

A highlight of the day will be the 1961 "Parade of Champions" when trophies are presented during an evening ceremony to the outstanding unit and individual soldier of the post as determined by a series of competitive events scheduled during the day. The winning unit will receive a rotating Commanding General's Trophy. The 1960 recipient was the 1st Battle Group, 29th Infantry, 1st Infantry Brigade.

Concessions

Some 45 concessions will be set up in the area of Stilwell Field, Gowdy Field and Doughboy Stadium. Penny pitches, horseshoes, fish ponds, a nail driving contest, dart throwing and a ducking stool are but a few of the games that will be offered.

The Infantry Center Troop Command and the 2nd Infantry Division will sponsor the concessions and game. Second Lt. Michael Downs, assisted by Sfc Robert D. Belew, both from CTC, and Capt. Joseph J. Radosevich, of the division are in charge of arrangements.

The concession stands are being constructed by personnel of Company B, 577th Engineer Battalion, 161st Engineer Group, under the direction of CWO Frederick E. Dunbar.

The company also assisted The Infantry School's Airborne-Air Mobility Department in erecting junior jump towers on Stilwell Field for the sport of carnival comers. The concessionaires are being constructed in panels so they may be used again in the future.

Ride Fire Trucks

A number of rides will be available for a small admission. Youngsters and adults alike are welcomed to ride on post fire trucks, a merry-go-round, Army mules from the 29th Infantry, a jeep from the 1st Armored Rifle Battalion, 58th Infantry, 1st Infantry Brigade, and ponies loaned by the Fort Benning Hunt Club. The 58th Infantry has responsibility for riding attractions. First Lt. Henry Robinson is project officer.

Five booths will be set up by Lawson Army Aviation Command for the sale of hot dogs and soft drinks. Two trucks will also be on hand for dispensing soft drinks and four wandering vendors will sell ice cream. Lawson personnel will man the booths. First Lt. Paul Lasley is project officer.

The annual event will be climaxed with a gigantic fireworks display at Gordon Field, beginning about 9 p.m. Capt. James E. Barker, 2nd Howitzer Battalion, 10th Artillery, 1st Brigade, is in charge of the exhibition.

Response to Suggestion Month Earns Letter From Gen. Harris

Out of some forty different units, sections and offices participating in the Chief of Staff Suggestion Month, during May, fourteen have records of better than 100 per cent participation with an overall total for the group coming to 66 per cent participation and 10,629 suggestions submitted.

The Safety Section was the highest with 200 per cent participation. With a total strength of six they had 12 suggestions submitted. The G-4 Section was second with 143 per cent, and the Staff Judge Advocate section was third with 132 per cent. Others with 100 per cent or more are: Office of the Commanding General, 130; G-1, 110; Civilian Personnel section, 123; Provost Marshal, 107; G-3, 108; Chemical Section, 100; Supply Center, 102; Comptroller Section, 110; 1st Infantry Brigade, 104; and Lawson Army Aviation Command 125.

In commending the different sections for their response to the Suggestion Month, Major Gen. Hugh P. Harris, commanding general of Fort Benning, said in a letter:

"I desire to express my appreciation for the enthusiastic support given to the Chief of Staff's Suggestion Month. Through aggressive leadership and an outstanding spirit of cooperation, a total of 10,629 suggestions were submitted by the members of this command.

"While the number of suggestions submitted will extend the time required for evaluation, you may be assured that your suggestions will receive full consideration by the appropriate officials.

"The suggestion program is invaluable in promoting improvements and substantial savings. Ingenuity and the creative ability of Army personnel have played a vital role in the Army's progress.

"Your continued support of the Suggestion Program will enhance the capabilities of the Army and insure a sustained program to improve operations."

Report

bility for doctrine currently parallels the service school instructional responsibility. This means that doctrinal publications relating to division and certain elements of higher level are prepared at the Command and General Staff College where these levels are taught.

Similarly, doctrine for the brigade and infantry battle group is produced at The Infantry School where these levels are taught. This arrangement permits the instructor, who teaches the subject and is exposed to reaction of students on a day-to-day basis, to react himself or consult with authors to fill voids or resolve doctrinal conflicts.

The Infantry School produces TOE for Infantry units, reviews material requirements and reviews concepts for employment of other arms and combines arms elements. This permits The School to identify doctrine and to provide the changes required in existing field commander guidance on a timely basis.

Under normal conditions doctrine progresses from broad policies and concepts to details and techniques. Battle group doctrine is based upon that of division, and company doctrine conforms to guidance provided in battle group level publications.

This arrangement permits the user of a higher level statement of doctrine to anticipate to a certain degree, the reaction of a subordinate to his directives. Further, the maximum effort is assured from subordinate elements under concepts and policies of the larger unit.

Doctrine is not just an editorial effort. Every expression is exposed to a critical and objective review. Matters that do not meet the criteria of positive usability are rejected, redeveloped, and again tested.

This review is conducted by men of broad practical experience and extensive military education. Minor points are examined with severe criticality; experts are consulted on technical matters; where special operations or techniques are involved, personnel who have had experience in the field are requested to express their views; and throughout the process usability and comprehension by the user level is stressed.

Once the document satisfied local review, it is forwarded to service schools or agencies of other arms and services for their reaction. Their comments are either satisfied locally or forwarded to higher headquarters for decision.

When the finished product is placed in the hand of the printer, it represents the best available thinking on the subject. This, however, does not represent the end of the process. The finished product is continuously examined to insure that it meets the minor adjustment in organization, weaponry, or thinking.

Field commanders are queried to insure that the need is met. Criticism is invited. Every comment provided is examined, developed, and if determined valid, is satisfied immediately or prepared for integration into a superceding edition.

For the second consecutive year Col. Robin G. Montgomery has been selected by the Army-Navy-Air Force joint sports council to serve as the U. S. chief of the delegation to the Consiel International du Sport Militaire (International Council of Military Sports) shooting competitions.

Col. Montgomery, commander of the Army Advanced Marksmanship Unit, will take the U.S. Shooting Team to Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, in July to compete in the marksmanship phase of the "Military Olympics."

COL. MONTGOMERY

In 1960, the United States won the military shooting competitions in Athens, Greece. The competitans began in 1947. Col. Montgomery headed 10 shooters from the Marksmanship Unit who set new records in both pistol and rifle. This year the United States will defend its championship. Tryouts were held here this week.

The rifle to be fired in Brazil will be the Mauser, the weapon used by the military forces of the host nation. Pistols will be the choice of each competitor.

Courses of fire are along the lines of those fired in the Olympic and Pan American Games. Membership on the team was open to all members of the Armed Forces. Crack marksmen from all branches of the service attended the trials.

Eyewitness to History

An enlisted man stationed here, whose name will remain anonymous because of relatives subject to reprisals, witnessed the 1956 Hungarian Revolution. Only 16 at the time, he did not take an active part in the fight to retain freedom, but saw several of his friends lying dead in the streets and the word pictures he retains are not pretty ones. One impression he got, and still has today, is that many people overestimate the Russian's fighting abilities. He says: "The soldiers who came in the tanks to put down the uprising in Budapest were more frightened than anyone else." He adds that, "they are certainly not invincible and the only reason they have such material strength is that they are willing to concentrate all their manufacturing effort toward whatever they want at a particular time. This method is just not employed in a free country like America.

Stating that there is "just no comparison," between life here and existence under Communist Rule, the young Soldier added, "the people in countries like Hungary are oppressed and would be glad to throw off Communist rule at any time. The people within Russia simply don't know any better, but men's minds can't be enslaved forever."

New Documents and Pamphlets

A bi-monthly announcement from The Infantry School Library lists some interesting unclassified documents and pamphlets which are now available. These deal with such subjects as Chinese paratroops, Arctic conditions, astronautics, an interpretation and analysis of Communism, English composition, foreign relations, internal security, Naval landing operations, peramnship, a French manual on psychological attitudes in Algeria, survival, and unconventional warfare as defined and taught in the French Army.

Just Why Did They Give The Party?

Non-commissioned officers of the 72nd Engineer Company began to wonder just what it was they were planning a party for recently. They originally set it up as a farewell gesture for their first sergeant, Robert E. Stinson, who was alerted to go to Europe. Then Stinson was promoted to sergeant major, pulled off the levy and transferred to the 151st Engineer Group. Well, then it was a promotion party — so okay. Now we hear SMaj Stinson is again on orders for a tour in Europe. Another Party?

Chaplain's Corner

Chaplain (Capt.) Richard L. Carty

When the Grand Central Terminal in New York was being built, traffic was fearfully congested: thousands of trains coming — thousands going — tracks to be laid, space to be found for vast materials — and all the while the din of building, building.

Naturally, trains were delayed. Naturally, passengers were complaining. Naturally, good business was being lost to competing roads.

A survey uncovered a strange fact. Incoming trains were late — five minutes, ten minutes, half an hour and more, on every division but one. On that one division practically every train came in on time. Trainmen were questioned and the answer was always the same, "Nothing was in our way so we got in on schedule."

Further investigation led to the superintendent in charge of that division and produced the answer. He stated, "Why, it's simple enough. You can't bring trains in unless you first send out those that came in ahead of them. I just keep my tracks clear, that's all." And, for keeping his tracks clear this man was made vice president and put in charge of the terminal.

Progress born of experience of the right nature prepares each individual for developing a plan for daily living. Cluttered lives which lack an orderly approach to the solution of daily activities and those who start many projects but complete none, are doomed to failure and many disappointments.

It is impossible to express a cooperative, friendly, courteous and loving nature while harboring envy, resentment, revenge and hatred in our minds and hearts. The latter type of thinking must be displaced in order to clear the way for the former.

Confusion never produced anything other than more confusion and is always accompanied by unhappiness. Whereas, the ability to practice the statement by St. Paul (Phil 4:11)., "I have learned, in whatsoever state I am, therewith to be content.", will enable us to clear the tracks and open the way for good clear sound thinking and actions. The decision is ours — each one individually. Shall we do the best with our present job or invite defeat?

The Judge Says . . .

A WORD OF CAUTON
By Capt. Robert S. Frydashell

The first document involved in buying a house is the sales contract.

This may be called by different names such as "purchase agreement," "escrow agreement," "contract to buy and sell," etc, but in all jurisdictions it has the same general meaning.

It forms the basic agreement between the buyer and seller and sets the pattern for events which follow. Usually a printed form is used for this contract. The form is usually set up to provide the minimum requirements of common law and the law of the state where the land is located.

Special agreements between buyer and seller, if any, must be added. Generally the following should be covered:

Identity of the seller and buyer and their obligations respectively; the purchase price; general description of the property; terms of the sale; the type deed and the kind of title guaranteed (it should be marketable); how taxes, interest, insurance; and rent are to be prorated; the time of conveyance and when possession is to be given; who bears the loss in case of damage after the contract is signed but before settlement date; any special agreement, such as conditioning the sale on an FHA appraisal, a certificate of termite inspection, etc.

Most of these matters cause little or no trouble. There is one area, however, that creates a problem.

This is a matter of settlement date and possession of the premises.

A stock clause used in one locality reads substantially: "The purchaser agrees to comply with the terms of the sale herein within (blank) days from the date of acceptance by owner or as soon thereafter as title can be examined and papers prepared. . ."The seller's obligation is not even mentioned.

When the real estate agent or the seller tells you 60 or 90 days is the usual time for settlement, you automatically think that is more than enough time for everything to be taken care of. The problem arises when you arrive on the 60th day with your family and find you can not get possession for some reason and have to move into an apartment or motel.

This can involve a real hardship. This occurs more often in new construction where the house is not completed by a promised date, but can creep into a transaction involving an existing structure. The whole thing arises usually through a misunderstanding.

To the average person when an act is to take place in 60 days, you start counting and on the 60th day, the act will occur. This is not necessarily so. Unless the contract specifies time is of the essence" either party has "a reasonable time after the time specified to perform his part of the bargain.

It is recommended that making time of the essence in a contract involving new construction always be considered. With an existing house getting actual possession can be handled by specific agreement.

This may involve the purchaser paying rent for the period between possession and settlement, but the amount is normally just sufficient to cover the mortgage payments, insurance, etc.

Don't forget that in a transaction involving real estate the advice and services of a lawyer are usually required and always desirable.

3 Generals At Refresher

"You are a prime example of the One-Army concept in action," Brig. Gen. A. D. Surles, Jr., assistant commandant of The Infantry School, told 128 officers from the Regular Army, National Guard and active and inactive Army Reserve beginning refresher classes 5 and 5-A Monday.

The group includes two major generals, one brigadier general, 30 colonels, 40 lieutenant colonels, 53 majors and two captains who will receive a two-week orientation on the latest Infantry concepts and material.

Gen. Surles commended joint cooperation between the three components of the Army as exemplified in the One-Army concept.

"We believe in it and we teach it here at The Infantry School," he emphasized.

"Yours is the most challenging type of class we teach. You bring us a wide variety of background and experience. We must bring you up to date on our new weapons, equipment and doctrinal concepts behind them," he explained.

The speaker added that regardless of type of organization, "We must move, shoot and communicate. We've made lots of progress in every one of these fields."

He added that the students will be shown demonstrations of this.

Senior officers in the classes are Major Gen. Michael J. Galvin, commanding general, 94th Infantry Division, USAR, Trenton, N. J.; Major Gen. H. F. Harding, commanding general, 83rd Infantry Division, USAR, Columbus, Ohio, and Brig. Gen. Nicholis M. Cummings, 39th Infantry Division, Arkansas National Guard, Fayetteville.

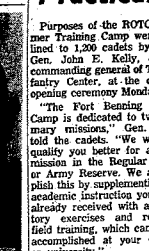
Sgt. Jaffe Gets Essay Bond Award

Sgt. Bernard Jaffe, a member of Company B, 1st Battalion, Infantry Center Troop Command, has been presented a $25 Savings Bond for winning fourth place in the Association of the United States Army essay contest.



The subject for the contest was "One Army — an Essential Force for Freedom." It was open to members of the active Army, Army National Guard, Army Reserve Officers Training Corps and U. S. Military Academy cadets.

Sgt. Jaffe was a member of the 7th Infantry Division in Korea when he wrote his winning essay.

The presentation was made at a meeting of the executive committee of the AUSA held at the Leyte Mess. William J. Schloth, president of the Columbus-Phenix City-Fort Benning Chapter of the association, made the presentation.

ROTC Summer Camp to Stress Practical Work and Leadership

Purposes of the ROTC Summer Training Camp were outlined to 1,200 cadets by Brig. Gen. John E. Kelly, deputy commanding general of The Infantry Center, at the camp's opening ceremony Monday.

"The Fort Benning ROTC Camp is dedicated to two primary missions," Gen. Kelly told the cadets. "We want to qualify you better for a commission in the Regular Army or Army Reserve. We accomplish this by supplementing the academic instruction you have already received with applicatory exercises and realistic field training, which cannot be accomplished at your college or university."

"Secondly," he added, "we want to develop your leadership capabilities in order that you may function effectively in combat operations regardless of what your eventual branch assignment may be. As a matter of fact most of your training during summer camp is designed to develop your capability to lead men in combat."

Gen. Kelly told the cadets, "While the techniques of leadership taught may have particular application to the Army, the principles of leadership are practically the same in all walks of life.

"The development of your capacity to lead men is equally important to you as a civilian or soldier. Principles of good leadership make for good selfmanship, and this is a commodity for which we should all urgently strive."

Gen. Kelly told the cadets they will be carefully observed during the encampment and will be rated on their performance. This rating, be emphasized, will be important in their ranking in the Distinguished Military Student Program. Those designated as Distinguished Military Students can apply for a Regular Army commission.

The colors of the ROTC Camp were presented by Gen. Kelly to Cadet Bobby R. Adams of Buford, Ga., a Distinguished Military Student from North Georgia College, Dahlonega.

Two awards earned last year were presented by Gen. Kelly at the ceremony.

The Honor Company Award of 1960 was presented to Company C and received by Cadet Malcolm S. Kretschner, a student from the University of Mississippi, Oxford.

The Camp Commander's Sports Award for 1960 was presented to Company F and accepted by Cadet Tom M. Reeves, a student from Middle Tennessee State, Murfreesboro.

Col. William J. McCaffrey, deputy commander of the ROTC Summer Camp, presided at the opening ceremonies. Major Gen. Hugh P. Harris, commanding general of The Infantry Center, is camp commander.

Among those present were Lt. Gen. (Ret.) Reuben E. Jenkins; Mayor B. Ed Johnson of Columbus; Brig. Gen. William L. Hardick, commanding general of the 2nd Infantry Division; Brig. Gen. A. D. Surles, Jr., assistant commandant of The Infantry School; Brig. Gen (Ret.) Marcus D. Bell, Brig. Gen. C. W. Pence and Brig. Gen. Winfred G. Skelton.

Research Data Fills Latest Troop Topic

FORT MONROE, Va. —"Environmental Research and Development" is the title of a Troop Topic prepared by Headquarters, Continental Army Command. It has been distributed to the six CONUS Armies and MDW.

This topic illustrates the versatility of the Army by explaining in detail the Army's Environmental Research and Development programs which are designed to insure that the soldier is trained and equipped to meet every contingency of future battle areas.

Stressing that "there are two enemies to be mastered: the military adversary and the environment," the troop topic, by citing sample cases of research in Land Navigation, Quick Language Courses and the Polar Environment, demonstrates the variety of subjects studied, the scope of the environmental problems considered, the amazingly successful results achieved and the depth of the work the Army devotes to insure that the American soldier is ready ANYTIME - ANYPLACE - ANYWAR.

Gen. Herbert B. Powell, commanding general, Continental Army Command, insists that "the soldier is first in Research and Development." For, as he said: "Battles are not fought under the conditions which prevail at Aberdeen or Igloos Education Center. at other such proving grounds. Battles are fought amid conditions of almost indescribable confusion and in locales having the widest extremes of weather, climate and terrain; battlefield equipment is operated and maintained by men who are under the most extreme mental and physical stress."

Included with the troop topic are information sheets on various Environmental Research and Development projects. Designed for use for TI boards and displays and as source material for articles for unit newspapers, they include facts on Instant Bread, Ceramics in Ordnance Weapons, Infectious Diseases in Thailand, Blackout in Arctic Communication, Armed Forces Qualification Test, Night Vision Equipment, Durable Lubricants, Ground Effects Machines and TV Eyes for Tank Driving.

As Gen. Adams Addresses Shooters

Value of Competitive Program Stressed at Award Ceremonies

Competitive military marksmanship skill is meaningless unless it creates a universal understanding of the importance of the American Soldier and advances his skill with his weapon, Lt. Gen. Paul D. Adams, commanding general, Third Army, said at Fort Benning last Thursday.

"We are proud of our winning teams," Gen. Adams said in delivering the closing address of the 1961 Army Rifle and Pistol Championships, "but we must create that understanding of importance down throughout all echelons of commands, down to the last Soldier."

The Third Army's commander said that 984 marksmen competed in the matches just completed at The Infantry Center, 'a figure approximating the strength of a modern battle group.

"There's not a man among you who hasn't been sorely missed by his home unit," Gen. Adams said, "and yet the Army has seen fit to send you here to participate in these championships."

This, he said, was indicative of the Army's estimate of the value of the competitive marksmanship program, adding that every man present should repay the Army by retaining a deep-rooted conviction of the importance of the ability of the Soldier to shoot.

"If you carry this one conviction back to your parent units, you will have paid your way," Gen. Adams said.

In addressing the large group of competitors, Army area representatives and spectators at the awards ceremony, Gen. Adams expressed the congratulations of Gen. Herbert B. Powell, commanding general, Continental Army Command who, he said, had just returned from an extended overseas tour of inspections and was unable to attend the ceremonies in person.

In noting the establishment of some 22 Army records during the championships, the Third Army commander said the new marks were indicative of increased standards in the shooter, in his weapons and in the program of marksmanship training. He added that this last should be the conscious development of marksmanship ability of those of all Army grades.

The Military District of Washington, Alaska and Caribbean teams were singled out for special recognition by Gen. Adams, who said they accounted for themselves despite their comparatively small sizes in comparison with the European, Pacific and Continental Army area squads.

"Without competition, the champion would be an empty shell," Gen. Adams said.

He closed his address with his personal congratulations to all competitors and drew applause when he extended an open invitation for anyone (the ability of services) to try to beat the Army in the National Matches at Camp Perry, Ohio, this summer.

"We're big league shooters," Gen. Adams said, "and we'd welcome other leagues to make the try."

Following his address, Gen. Adams presented 96 trophies and lesser awards won by the marksmen during the matches.

The Third Army commander was introduced by Brig. Gen. William L. Hardick, commanding general of the 2nd Infantry Division, representing Major Gen. Hugh P. Harris, commanding general of The Infantry Center, who said that The Center was justifiably proud of hosting the championships.

Present at the ceremonies were Major Gen. Theodore F. Bogart, commanding general of the Caribbean Command, and Major Gen. Philip H. Dibble, deputy commander, Army Air Defense Command.

Ceremonies were held under the direction of Lt. Col. Burton C. Boatright, 1961 match executive officer.

800 Register For Bible School

More than 800 boys and girls registered for the 1961 Fort Benning Vacation Bible School. Scheduled to open last Monday with daily session from 8:30 to 11 a.m. through today, the school is conducted at the Religious Education Center.

There were 14 departments for children from the age of three years through the eighth grade. Four Sunday schools on post sponsor the annual VBS. They are St. Michael's, Harmony Church, Main Post, and Lutheran.

Pair Test M-14 Against BARs In Army Finals

Pfc Charles F. Rice, Jr. and Pfc Jim M. Ford of Company A, 1st Armored Rifle Battalion, 58th Infantry, 1st Infantry Brigade, were placed on special duty to Match Headquarters to fire the new M14 Rifle with modification during the Army Rifle and Pistol Matches Automatic Rifle events June 5, 6 and 7.

The M14 modified rifle was fired against the Automatic Rifle in an attempt to prove its capabilities and effectiveness in match competition.

Pfc's Rice and Ford fired the AR in the 1961 Third Army Championship and placed 25th. In addition to the Third Army level they also fired in the 2nd Infantry Division Championships and placed 22nd.

This is another phase in the testing of the M14 rifle. Different ranges throughout the reservation are being utilized to prove the effectiveness of this new small arms weapon.

DUSA Meeting

The Daughters of the U. S. Army held their monthly luncheon meeting recently in the Anzio Room at the Main Officers' Open Mess. Hostesses for the occasion were Mrs. T. W. Atwood and Mrs. A. J. DeLuca. Luncheon was followed by a business meeting, at which it was voted to cancel the July luncheon. A guest, Miss Judy Goodall, was introduced. Miss Goodall, a student at the University of Kentucky, was visiting her sister, Mrs. Atwood. Farewells were bid to Mrs. A. J. DeLuca and Mrs. G. S. Eyster, departing members.

Tactics Coffee

Mrs. Max D. Vancil was hostess for the Company Tactics Committee, Command and Staff Department, monthly coffee, held recently in her home. Guests for the occasion were Mrs. Richard W. Keyes, Mrs. W. L. Blair, and Mrs. Mike Phelan. Two new members, Mesdames Donald Hilbert and John Rogers, were introduced.

Mrs. King Is Host

Mrs. John M. King recently hosted a coffee in her home in honor of Mrs. Willard E. Harrison. Attending were ladies of the Command and Staff Department. Hostesses assisting were Mesdames Sydney E. Sacerdote, Eugene M. Orton, Everett V. Mead, Woodrow Laws, Ralph L. Whitt, Albert E. Seifert, Arthur J. DeLuca, John L. Blackwell, and Victor A. Kleber.

HONORARY MEMBER . . . Mrs. Bernard G. Teeters (L) is presented a Toastmistress Club pin by Mrs. Dion Johnson, founder and membership chairman of the Fort Benning-Columbus Chapter of the international organization. Mrs. Teeters is the first honorary member of the local chapter which she encouraged in its formative days last October, and publicized through the Fort Benning Woman's Club.

Air Force Cadets Hop Scheduled For June 28

Cadets of the Air Force Academy Class of 1964 will be entertained at a hop in the Main Officers' Open Mess June 28.

The 613-man class will visit The Infantry School June 27 to July 2 for training in infantry tactics and techniques.

Approximately 440 young ladies from the post and Columbus area will attend the event, which will be held from 7:30 to 11 p.m.

The two receiving lines will include Major Gen. Hugh P. Harris, commandant of The Infantry School; Brig. Gen. A. D. Surles, Jr., assistant commandant of the Infantry School; Mrs. Surles; Brig. Gen. John E. Kelly, deputy commanding general of The Infantry Center, and Mrs. Kelly.

Senior officers of the post and tactical officers from the Air Force Academy also will be guests at the affair.

A combo from The Infantry Center Band will play for dancing.

Mrs. Harrison and Mrs. Greer Bid Farewell at Airborne Lunch

In the Anzio Room of the Main Officer's Open Mess recently, the Airborne-Air Mobility officers wives held a farewell luncheon in honor of Mrs. Willard E. Harrison and Mrs. Harold E. Greer.

Col. Harrison has been appointed director of the Command and Staff Department of The Infantry School and Lt. Col. Greer is retiring from the military service.

Mrs. Harrison spoke a few minutes to bid farewell to the group and to say goodbye for the group to Mrs. John L. Begley and Mrs. Theodore N. Frost. She welcomed as new members Mesdames Joseph Hall, Phillip B. Merrick, and Edwin F. Pater.

Mrs. Greer also spoke to the group to say goodbye. Then Mrs. Louis A. Williams presented the four ladies who are departing with miniature parachutists' wings.

Hostesses for the occasion were Mrs. Donald C. Bowman and Mrs. Robert E. Pavey.

THE WHOLE QUOTE

I am tired and sick of war. Its glory is all moonshine. It is only those who have neither fired a shot nor heard the shrieks and groans of the wounded who cry aloud for blood, more vengeance, more desolation. War is hell. . .Gen. W. T. Sherman.

Ladies Plan For 11th Week OCS Gold Rush Party

Ladies of the 52nd Officer Candidate Company, The Student Brigade, held a meeting last week to welcome new members and discuss plans for an 11th week party at the Gold Bar Club.

The meeting was conducted at the home of Mrs. B. L. Dekeyrel, chairman of the wives club.

Six committees were formed to prepare for the party scheduled for June 24. Theme of the affair will be The Gold Rush, and decorating will begin on the 22nd.

Mrs. Tom Knudizon and Mrs. D. Scott poured iced tea and coffee for the guests at the meeting.

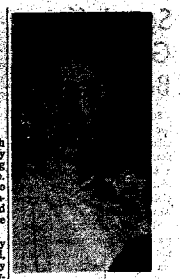
Woman's Club Diary



A native of the lovely British West Indies, who is thoroughly a Yankee now, is the recording secretary of the Woman's Club. Mrs. Raymond T. Carabello was born in Port-of-Spain, Trinidad, and met her husband when he was stationed there during World War II.

After their marriage, they traveled throughout the world, and each station found Betty busy with Woman's Club activities.

In Japan, she was responsible for the Hospitality Committee, a challenging post, for wives who are arriving in the Orient the first time need all the help they can find.

At Fort McNair, she was secretary of the Wives Club. While Lt. Col. Carabello was in Washington, Betty was publicity chairman of the Quartermaster Wives organization.

Besides their tour in Japan, the Carabellos and their two children, Raymond, 16, and Ann, 11, spent a tour in Germany. Col. Carabello's next assignment, starting this Fall, will be overseas to Korea without the family. But we will not lose Betty, because she will be staying here at Benning for that year.

Although it seems that someone as busy as Mrs. Carabello would hardly find time for a hobby, she declares a passion for golf, which she is still "beginning to learn". Her crisp British accent and her pleasant smile are welcome assets to the Woman's Club.

Jenni Johnson on Etiquette

Dear Jenni: I have attended several parades. I was amazed by the variety of costumes worn by dependent spectators. What is proper dress for a parade. Please mention some pointers on correct conduct too.

A Dependent

Dear Dependent: A parade is a dignified ceremony. For the ladies this is a hat and gloves affair. Smoking is in poor taste from the time the first unit marches on the field until the last unit has passed the reviewing officer. Unruly conduct or loud talking is out of order. Children should be kept under control. Pets are not welcome.

All spectators pay homeage to the flag. If the reviewing officer is a general officer, ruffles and flourishes and the General's March will be sounded as he takes his position; all spectators rise during this ceremony and military personnel salute. The "flourish" is a brief trumpet fanfare and the "ruffle" is a roll on the drums played while the trumpets sound the flourish.

The unit colors pass in review as a part of the formation. As they are carried past the spectators each individual should rise and pay homage to the flag facing toward the line of march; render the courtesy when the color guard reaches a point six paces from the front of your position and hold it until the colors have passed six paces.

It would be a gross discourtesy for a citizen to neglect to pay proper courtesies to the colors at any time, and such failures are particularly noticeable when committed during ceremonies. Reviews demand the same respect from spectators as parades. (Reference for the above answer: The Officers Guide)

3 LAAC Soldiers Get AF Medal For Temporary Greenland Duty

Three men from Lawson Army Aviation Command were recently awarded the Air Force Commendation Medal for Meritorious service while conducting Radar Pattern Measurements for the Ballistic Missile Early Warning system near Thule, Greenland.

While working with the Air Force on a temporary duty status, Sp5 Henry T. Statesman, 138th Maintenance Detachment, Sp4 Daniel T. Carroll and Sp4 Richard E. Galten, 94th Transportation Company, achieved an imblemished record of mechanical maintenance.

Despite problems of severe arctic sub-zero weather, shipping damage to aircraft, and limited field and parts support due to being located some 2,000 miles from their supply source, they accomplished their mission with a high standard of efficiency.

The awards were presented by Col. Lewis W. Leeney, commanding officer of Lawson, at a special ceremony.

Servicemen's $50 Free Customs Ending June 30

WASHINGTON (AFPS)— An act of Congress, which for years has permitted members of the Armed Forces to ship bonafide gifts home duty free to the extent of $50, is expected to expire June 30, 1961. The action, passed on to all services by the Defense Department, is in connection with the reduction of personal expenditures overseas.

In a memorandum to the separate services the Defense Department said in part:

"The Office of the Secretary of Defense will . . . take no action to urge the extension of the Act, of December 5, 1942 as amended. This act affords the entry free of customs charges of bonafide gifts from members of the Armed Forces to the extent of $50 in any shipment. After expiration of this Act on June 30, 1961, the $10 free entry for gifts available to tourists will apply. . ."

In messages to all commands, the services said congressional action to extend the act is "not anticipated at this time."

The services also urged that all military personnel be advised that bonafide gifts mailed from overseas and arriving in the U. S. or Puerto Rico after the June 30 deadline will not be authorized entry under the act and will be subject to payment of duty, if duty is applicable.

A joint Army-Air Force message said "this applies irrespective of the fact that the package bearing DD Form 427 is postmarked prior to July 1, 1961."

Man Who Built First High Speed Tank Retires After Serving Army For 37 Years

Ray S. Miller of Columbus, who built the Army's first high speed tank and found a way to launch grenades from the M-1 Rifle, is leaving his position at Fort Benning to retire after more than 37 years of government service.

Recently, as the veteran ordnance designing engineer neared the end of a distinguished 23-year tenure at the post, the Department of the Army bestowed on him its second highest award for civilian employees, a Commendation for Meritorious Civilian Service.

Brig. Gen. A. D. Surles, Jr., assistant commandant of The Infantry School, presented the certificate and sterling silver emblem to Miller at a luncheon gathering of post officials at the Main Officers' Open Mess.

Cites Last Years

The certificate, signed by Lt. Gen. Paul D. Adams, commanding general of Third Army, expressed appreciation for his "exemplary" performance of duties as a mechanical engineer at the Ordnance Section from July, 1956, through December, 1960.

One of Miller's many outstanding achievements during this period was to devise adapters and design a mounting platform enabling the M-60 machine gun to be used with the existing M-2 tripod.

In a letter of appreciation to Miller, Col. Samuel T. McDowell, director of The Infantry School's Weapons Department, said: "By this skilled innovation, you saved our government untold hours of engineering development as well as many millions of dollars required to dispose of the old tripods and produce new ones."

Citations Tell Story

The Department of the Army citation credited Miller with "initiative and technical ability in devising methods of improvement on ordnance weapons to increase safety, effectiveness and economy of operations. . .

"His service has rated the government service has brought great credit to himself and the Department of the Army," the citation concluded.

Today Ray Miller owns a slatebed crammed with citations and commendations and letters of appreciation from high places, all speaking for his years of service.

In 1944, Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson presented Miller the Commendation for Exceptional Civilian Service, the Army's highest civilian award. This award recognized his role in the designing and perfection of a means of launching grenades from the M-1 Rifle.

At that time, Secretary Stimson cited Miller for this achievement "accomplished in the face of seemingly unsurmountable difficulties and severe personal injuries, (which) has eliminated the need for the old-style grenade launcher in combat units and is materially affecting the success of the war effort.

Some 206 Changes

Miller's mechanical genius was responsible for at least 200 improvements and modifications of Army ordnance — weapons, ammunitions and combat vehicles — used in World War II and Korea.

Exactly how much money Ray Miller has saved the government during his long career is incalcuable. He himself modestly estimates something like 100 million dollars. In 1951 alone, the War Department accredited Miller with a $39 million saving through a sub-caliber device for recoilless rifles. The device enabled the weapons to use standard .30 caliber ammunition costing only 9 and a half cents per round instead of conventional rounds costing over $32 each.

Miller's gadgets and inventions in the ordnance line are too numerous and technical to begin to list.

His mechanical genius dates back to early childhood when, at the age of 10, he patented a rail joint that is still used by major American railroads.

His government service actually began when he volunteered as an aviation cadet during World War I. The youthful pilot was grounded, however, when his superiors discovered his yen for mechanics.

"I was always messing with something," he once recalled, "and they caught it right away."

Miller took a job at Fort Meade, Md., in 1919, working for the Army Ordnance Department on the development and testing of tanks. Two years later came the opportunity that high-speed tank. This came about when he was assigned to find the "bugs" in an experiment 22-ton medium tank powered by a 180-horsepower engine.

Worked From Scratch

Miller was granted a request to experiment with the tank on his own and soon removed and discarded the complete power plant. He modified the transmission, secured a 12-cylinder Liberty airplane engine and designed a cooling system. The tank was changed throughout and found to be highly satisfactory when the Ordnance Department tested it. It attained a speed of 57 miles per hour whereas the old tanks had never traveled faster than 14.

In 1938, after several years absence from civil service, Miller came to Fort Benning. Since that time he has held the positions of armament foreman, armament shop superintendent, ordnance design engineer and his present capacity of mechanical engineer.

He has resided at his present Columbus address for more than 20 years. In 1947 he married Amy Hines, and the couple will leave soon for a six-week vacation, returning to Columbus in August.

Military Policy

"The principal objective of our military policy must continue to be deterrence of all wars, world or local, nuclear or conventional, large or small. And to make the deterrent credible, to friend and foe alike, our arms must be sufficient beyond doubt to bring a war — any kind of war — which might be forced upon us to a successful conclusion". — R. L. Gilpatric, deputy secretary of defense.

Div Review to Honor Gen. Hardick

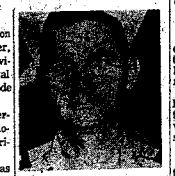
Colonel Dameron Leaves Division

By Div PIO

Colonel Ernest C. Dameron deputy brigade commander, has left the 2nd Infantry Division for duty with the Naval War College, Newport, Rhode Island.

Lieutenant Colonel Byrd Sergent, G-1, has succeeded Colonel Dameron as Deputy Brigade Commander.

Colonel Dameron, who has been with the division since September, 1959, when he was named battle group commander of the 11th Infantry, will join the staff and faculty of the Naval War College. This assignment, which will last approximately three years, will be with the Army element at the college.



Col. Dameron has held the position of Deputy Brigade Commander since December 5, 1960.

Colonel Sergent joined the division in January 1959 as executive officer and deputy commander of the 87th Infantry. He was transferred to G-1 in April, 1960. His new permenent assignment as Deputy Brigade Commander began Tuesday.

Major Robert J. Kirk, Assistant G-1, has succeeded Col Sergent as G-1.

A 1958 graduate of the Command and General Staff College, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, Major Kirk came to the division in November, 1959. He was assigned to the 9th Infantry as battle group S-2. In May, 1960, he became commander of Company C, 9th Infantry.

He later filled the position of battle group S-1, and in April 1961, was called to Division Headquarters to be Assistant G-1. His assignment to head G-1 became effective Tuesday.

Col. Looney to Korea

Col. Durham Named Trains Commander

BY DIV TRAINS PIO

Lieutenant Colonel James T. Durham Saturday assumed command of Division Trains, succeeding Colonel Jack R. Looney, who has been ordered to Korea.

Colonel Durham has served since mid-September as Division Quartermaster, joining the "Second to None" after a tour at United States Continental Army, Fort Monroe, Virginia. At CONARC, Colonel Durham was chief of the plans and doctrine division of the Quartermaster Section.

Colonel Looney, 44, had commanded Trains since July 9, serving previously as commander of the 1st Infantry, Kelley Hill.

Cross-Country Team

An avid sports fan, Colonel Looney was a member of the Trains' cross - country team and, thus, had a personal hand in helping Trains win the Commanding General's Sports Trophy earlier this year.

Colonel Durham entered the ranks of the commissioned in January 1943 after serving 28 months as an enlisted man. He

1,000 Expected to View Farewell Show Saturday

BY PETER TATISTCHEFF

Approximately 1,000 spectators are expected to witness the review set for 9 a.m., tomorrow at Wetherby Field, saluting Brigadier General William L. Hardick on his retirement.

More than 2,000 officers and enlisted men from 2nd Infantry Division units will assemble to honor the division's commanding general.

Upon his arrival at the field, Battery A, 7th Howitzer Battalion, 17th Artillery will provide the traditional eleven-gun salute.

Guests

Special guests invited to attend the review are numbered at 300. Among the guests will be Mayor and Mrs. B. Ed Johnson, of Columbus, Major General Hugh P. Harris, commanding general of the U. S. Army Infantry Center, Brigadier General Alexander D. Surles, Jr., assistant commandant, U. S. Army Infantry School, and Major General E. F. Easterbrook, commanding general of the Army Aviation Center at Fort Rucker, Alabama.

General Hardick's daughter, Mrs. Joanne Wise, and her husband, Robert Wise, of Pennsylvania, have made a special trip here from Scranton, Pa., to attend her father's retirement review. They were to arrive by plane last night. The general's niece and nephew are scheduled to arrive here today.

The troops, accompanied by their appropriate colors, will assemble at 8:45 a.m. to await the general's arrival. They will be led by Colonel Robert E. Conner, commander of the 87th Infantry, who will act as commander of troops.

Colonel Conner will be flanked by the commander of troops staff, composed of Captain Eugene Smallwood, Captain Walter D. Hall, Captain Richard E. Evers and Captain Robert D. Johnson.

As the review begins, General Hardick will be joined n the reviewing stand by Brigadier General Charles H. White Jr., assistant division commander.

'New' 1st Inf Organizes; Lists Col. Todd Commander

BY 1ST INF. PIO

Friday marked the first day of official organizational life of the second cycle of the 2nd Battle Group, 1st Infantry in the Army's OVUREP (Oversea Unit Replacement) Program.

Although a few personnel had arrived earlier, the close of that day found the roster of the new organization containing the names of 32 officers and 218 enlisted men. At present, these have increased to 36 officers and 222 enlisted men.

Commander

The new organization is commanded by Lieutenant Colonel Walter B. Todd, whose promotion to colonel is imminent. Col. Todd reported for duty Monday, having recently completed a tour of duty with the U. S. Army Infantry School, where he was Deputy Director of Instruction.

The Deputy Commander of the new OVUREP Unit is Lieutenant Colonel Charles F. Austin, who has served as executive officer of the 11th Infan-

Captain Hardick Trained Young Officers as WWII Blossomed

By Clay Lacy

The warm December sun brought out many families for a drive. For Captain William L. Hardick it was a perfect day for pecan-gathering over in Alabama. He had already invited two other families to accompany his family of Augusta, his wife, and Joanne, his eight-year-old daughter on the excursion.

Captain Hardick stopped abruptly with the announcement from the radio, "We interrupt this program to bring you a special bulletin. Armed aircraft have attacked the U.S. Naval station at Pearl Harbor." It was Sunday, December 7, 1941.

War

The following day, President Franklin D. Roosevelt asked Congress to declare war on Japan. The United States was faced with world war.

Captain Hardick joined the overnight hustle-and-bustle at Fort Benning as men and units strived desperately to attain a ready status. Transferred to the 26th Infantry at Benning as Supply Officer, S-4, he spent the early days of the war fighting the mounting reams of paperwork necessary to equip men and units.

Captain Hardick made up readiness reports, equipment shortage reports and filed a multitude of requisitions for necessary supplies for the 26th Infantry.

Training in defense against sabotage was incorporated into each unit's training schedules. Rumors were rife and one could hear that the Atlantic Coast was under siege one day and the very next day hear that San Francisco was under prolonged attack.

One of the early war-time programs for the U. S. Army became the distribution of reg-

Pet Show Howling Success As Each Pet Gets Ribbon

By Clay Lacy

All entrants in the Pet Parade staged last Saturday in Service Club Two came away with ribbons awarded for the many categories of the contest.

But judges for the contest, headed by the division adjutant general, Lieutenant Colonel Jack E. Compton, found selecting a dog "with the most fleas" to be a harrowing experience.

So awed by this category were the judges that they forewent the selection of an animal to claim the colorful ribbon marked for this pet. In its place, however, the judges awarded ribbons to dogs, cats, alligators, hamsters, chinchillas, a snake, a monkey and a talking mynah bird.

'CoCo'

"CoCo" the clown entertained the youngsters with some 20 of them assisting him in dancing the "Hokey-Pokey."

Lt. Col. Robert J. Craig, commander of the 12th Artillery of Division Artillery, presented the prize ribbons to the pet owners.

Outstanding awards, only a few of them, were given to Wags, paraded by Debbie Sheldrut, for the "kindest eyes." Fifi, shown by Debbie Torgerson, for the "most trustworthy looking." Dixie, exhibited by Eleanor Sabata, for the "most handsome," and Peanuts, displayed by Peter Osgard, for the "best smelling." There were rumors that Peanuts obtained his title with the help of liberal sprinklings of perfume obtained by Peter Osgard from his mother.

Even "Stumpsane the Snake" the treasured possession of Crissie Kearns won an award and a blue ribbon by being judged the pet with "the most expressive tail."

The two-hour program ended with refreshments of punch, cookies and brownies being served to all in attendance. Miss Parks, club director, termed the affair "highly successful and really entertaining."

Entertainment for the afternoon was furnished by cartoon movies and a selection of dances by the Women's Club of Fort Benning School of Dance. Appearing in dance sequences were Becky Bruce as the "Fairy Godmother," Betty Clark in a variation of "Alice in Wonderland" and Karen Lincoln as the "Silvery Fairy."

planes and ten "bird-dog" observation planes, provided by 2nd Aviation Company. They will attempt to form an "IF" in the sky above Weatherby Field with colored smoke.

The division's newly formed 2nd Air Cavalry Troop will provide the second special event. Captain Harry T. McDaniel, troop commander, states that two H-13 helicopters will carry farewell signs through the air, to be followed by numerous H-13s and H-34 "Choctaw" cargo-helicopters in a general fly-by formation.

Second Infantry Division will be divided into two brigades. The first brigade will be led by Colonel James H. Hayes, flanked by the first brigade staff, Major William C. Harmon, Major Frank Tolocka, Major John W. McKelvey and Captain Sidney Pugh.

The second, brigade staff, headed by Lieutenant Colonel Floyd L. Johnson, will be composed of Major Donald B. Roof, Captain Enah C. Hiatt Jr., Captain Vernon N. Wilson and Captain Dorsey Morgan.

After the troops have been inspected in formation by General Hardick, and following the playing of the National Anthem, both General White and General Hardick will address the gathering.

The units will then pass in review, followed by the aircraft demonstrations.

Cav's Organization Day Scheduled for June 25

By 7th Cav PIO

June 25 has been set for commemoration of 7th Cavalry Organization Day by members of the division's 3rd Reconnaissance Squadron, Lieutenant Colonel Leonard L. Keene announced.

Since July 28, 1866, at which time an Act of Congress established the 7th United States Cavalry, there has been one day set aside as Organization Day.

Three Dates

However, throughout these 95 years the particular date for this occasion has generally been set by the desire of the current commander. The records show the published General Orders have established three different dates — December 22, November 25 and June 25.

The last date was approved by order of the Secretary of War on July 14, 1928 and again confirmed by the Department of the Army in December 1956.

It is a widely established custom that Organization Days are generally set to coincide with some historical event in the unit's history. The 7th Cavalry is no exception in that June 25 is the anniversary date of the Battle of the Little Big Horn, during which the troopers of the 7th and their commander, General George A. Custer, gave their lives in this historic battle on this date in 1876.

Events Scheduled

The program scheduled for this year's Organization Day will include athletic and military events and combat vehicle rides for children of members of the squadron. The evening activities will include a barbeque dinner for the troopers and their dependents.

ficers Training Corps graduate.

Lieutenant William B. Woodson, a native of Tullahoma, Tennessee, was nominated for the honor, known as the annual Ralph D. Mershon Award, by Secretary of the Army Elvis J. Stahr Jr.

Auburn

The 25-year-old Auburn University graduate will receive the award during the convention of the Association of the United States Army September 6-8 in Washington.

Lieutenant Woodson attained the highest composite score in the Senior Division, R.O.T.C., and, according to Major General Hugh P. Harris, commandant of the Army Infantry School, "he is achieving an enviable reputation here."

Colonel Ralph Mershon, an electrical engineer who died in 1952, contributed $220,000 to a fund in the Community Trust during 20 years following 1928 to foster civilian military education. In 1951, General George C. Marshall, then Secretary of Defense, said of the fund: "It has made a substantial contribution to the development of a sound policy of military defense — the more so because of the absence of other effective efforts for a number of years. That foresight is clear today."

23rd's Commo Platoon Earns Defense Citation

BY 23RD INFANTRY PIO

Flawless radio-teletype reception and submission of a perfect copy of an Armed Forces Day message has earned the 23rd Infantry's Communications Platoon a Certificate of Merit from the Department of Defense.

The message — transmitted by Navy Radio Station NSS, Washington, D. C., on May 20 — was from the Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara.

Without Error

The certificate, signed by Secretary McNamara, as well as a congratulatory letter from the commander of the Naval Communication Section that broadcast the message, were received recently by members of the 23rd's Commo Platoon. The certificate cited the platoon for their "unusual proficiency by receiving and transcribing without error" the Armed Forces Day message.

Lieutenant Hal W. Davis, communications platoon leader, said the message was received on the unit's AN-GRC 46 radio-teletype equipment, which is mounted in the back of a three-quarter ton truck. Lt. Davis said the message was received during a practical work phase in the platoon's training program.

He pointed out that such training helps develop and maintain a high degree of proficiency in communications procedures that are involved in the utilization of all organic communications equipment.

Platoon members participating in receiving and transcribing the message were Lt. Hal Davis; Sgt. Donald Wilson, Sgt. Richard Zerbel, Sgt. Wilton Neville and Specialist Four Birl Seagraves.

Third U. S. Army Cites Medical Bn

All companies of the 2nd Medical Battalion received the Third United States Army Special Citation Savings Award in recognition of outstanding participation in the Third United States Army Savings Program.

Headquarters and Headquarters Detachment achieved 83.33 per cent participation in the savings program. Company A and Company B achieved 72.7 per cent and 72.15 per cent, respectively.

The Third Army Commander, Lieutenant General Paul D. Adams, has sent his congratulations to all companies in the battalion upon the achievement of this record.

Seven Complete Signal's School

Seven men were graduated from the Division Projectionist School recently.

Honor graduate was Specialist Five Carl O. Matthews of Headquarters Company, 2nd Engineer Battalion.

Other men attending the course were Master Sergeant Charlie Hall, also of Headquarters Company, 2nd Engineer Battalion; Sergeant Amos Reynolds, Company E, and Private Terry Barnes and Private Joe Dees of Company D of the 2nd Battle Group, 23rd Infantry. Specialist Four James Brown, Company B, 2nd Medical Battalion and Private First Class Henry Smith of Headquarters Company, 2nd Infantry Division also attended the projectionist course.

PROMOTION . . . Brigadier General William L. Hardick, 2nd Division commanding general, pins a gold oak leaf on the collar of newly-promoted Major Aubrey A. Davis.

118 End Training At 23rd's Co D

The 23rd Infantry's Company D, commanded by Captain Edward Bourgeois, graduated 118 new light weapons infantrymen last weekend.

The group of AIT's received their graduation address from Lieutenant Colonel R. G. Holton Jr., battle group commander, who also presented several awards.

Pvt. James Chesterm was cited for placing high in M-1 rifle fire. Pvt. John Maloney ranked second. Pvt. Robert Moses was named Outstanding Trainee of the Cycle.

VBS Draws 374 Children

The 2nd Infantry Division Vacation Bible School closed Wednesday after eight successful days of Bible study, recreation, and handicraft projects that were closely related to the theme of the Bible School program, "Living by God's Time".

The school, which met at the Sand Hill Sunday School, opened Monday June 12 with a record enrollment of 374 children. The average daily attendance was 309.

Leaders

Mrs. B. B. Littlejohn, director of Religious Education, Chaplain James N. Layne and Specialist Lawrence Libby were directly in charge of the school. However, they received the help and cooperation of each chaplain assigned to the division.

Ninety-five teachers and committee members volunteered their time and a free nursery for children of the teachers was conducted by six volunteer helpers.

Graduation exercises were conducted in each department on the last day of the school. Children who had perfect attendance records received certificates with special recognition seals attached.

Highlight of the school was a picnic at the Sand Hill Sunday School yesterday.

All departments of the Vacation Bible School were open so that parents might view the display of work that had been done by the 2nd Division children during the 8-day period.

NCO Calls Modern Army 'Real Challenge'

By CLAY LACY

The non-commissioned officer of today's modern Army contrasts sharply with the NCO pictured so vividly in James Jones' "From Here to Eternity."

The regular soldiers of this pre-World War II era were short on education and long on brawn. Compare this type with a regular of today such as Master Sergeant Ernest Bumpous of the newly-formed 1st Infantry.

A Regular Army non-com with over 11 years' experience behind him, Sergeant Bumpous received promotions from Corporal to Master Sergeant in only 14 months. This was attributed to his leadership ability under combat conditions during the Korean conflict.

A native of Kevil, Kentucky, Sergeant Bumpous graduated from Bandana High School in Bandana, Kentucky, in 1948. He entered the U. S. Army in 1951 and underwent Basic training at Camp Breckinridge in his home state. Upon completion of Basic, he attended Leadership School for eight weeks.

His potential was obvious at Leadership School and upon graduation he was promoted to Corporal and assigned for overseas shipment to Korea. In January of 1952, Corporal Bumpous arrived in "the land of the morning calm" and was sent to the 222nd Infantry Regiment of the 40th Infantry Division.

His first slot with the 222nd was as a squad leader with a rifle squad. For three months he learned first hand the fundamentals necessary to lead men in combat. A promotion to Sergeant and assignment as assistant platoon sergeant came at the end of the three month period.

Only four months later he found himself in charge of the platoon as platoon sergeant and wearing the chevrons of sergeant first class. Then, in March of 1953, the fast-learning non-com was sewing on the three up and three down insignia of a master sergeant.

Cited

In Korea, Sergeant Bumpous received his first Army Commendation Medal, as well as the Korean Service Medal, Korean Presidential Citation, Combat Infantryman's Badge and National Defense Service Medal.

Returning to the United States in June 1953, Sergeant Bumpous was discharged the following month and returned to civilian life. But the Aguilar Army had gotten its hold on the Kentucky native and he returned to the U. S. Army in January of 1954 as a sergeant first class.

Assigned to the 37th Infantry Division at Camp Polk, Louisiana, he started a tour of duty which was to see him stay with group of regulars for seven-and-a-half years.

The 37th travelled to Fort Riley, Kansas, and there became the 10th Infantry Division, earmarked for "Operation Gyroscope," the plan which sent entire divisions overseas as a unit.

While stationed at Fort Riley, Sergeant Bumpous was selected to attend the Advanced NCO School at Fort Benning.

Upon return to the 85th Infantry Regiment of the 10th Division, he was assigned as first sergeant of the 85th's Company L. As first sergeant, he led his unit to Germany in November of 1955 under the "gyroscope" plan.

When the U. S. Army changed into the pentomic concept in 1957, Sergeant Bumpous was assigned as first sergeant of Company B of the 15th Infantry stationed at Bamberg, Germany. He served in this slot until the return of the 10th Division to the States in 1958.

The 10th Division was deactivated in July 1958 at Fort Benning, and the men of the 10th became part of the 3rd Infantry Division which had been at zero strength for over a year.

First Sergeant

Assigned to the 9th Infantry, Sergeant Bumpous headed the Assault Gun Platoon for six months, then became first sergeant of the newly formed Combat Support Company of the 5th. He filled this slot until February of 1960 when he moved into a staff position with the battle group as operations sergeant.

This new position was a challenge to the top-kick, but Sergeant Bumpous proved he could handle the job by successfully passing the proficiency pay test for the operations and intelligence specialist and is currently drawing Proficiency Pay in this new field.

His tour of duty with the 9th Infantry ended in June 1961 for Sergeant Bumpous with an assignment to the 1st Infantry, slated for the Overseas Unit Replacement Program, to go to Korea next year. His new assignment as assistant operations sergeant will furnish Sergeant Bumpous with the opportunity to help train men from basic individual training to advanced unit training.

A 31-year-old bachelor, the Regular Army Non - Commissioned Officer is looking forward to the life of a married man in October of this year. He is also on the recommended list for consideration to promotion to the pay grade of E-8 and has appeared before the selection board earlier this year.

Says Sergeant Bumpous of today's non - coms, "We've learned that to stay abreast of the fast - changing Army we've got to apply ourselves and be adaptable. I, for one, find it a real challenge."

2 Div Men Take Honors In DA Show

Two 2nd Division men —Specialist Four David Csanyi of the 9th Infantry and Private Thomas P. Pugh of the 1st Infantry — have been selected for the world-touring Soldier Show, "Rolling Along."

The men were selected at the Department of the Army grand finals of the All-Army entertainment contest held at Fort Belvoir, Va.

Specialist Csanyi is a vocalist and Pvt. Pugh was a member of a specialty group.

Two Songs

Specialist Csanyi was third in the vocal soloist division of the All-Army contest with his rendition of the two songs he sang here in winning post and Third Army entertainment laurels earlier this year. "I'm Goin' to Live 'Til I Die" and "Tonight."

Pvt. Pugh won third place in a speciality group, under the name of "The Two Tars," which presented a comic sailor routine.

Captain Hardick Trained Young Officers as WWII Blossomed

(Con't from P. 9)

ular officers and non-commissioned officers throughout the Army's ranks. The purpose of this program was to spread the regulars evenly throughout the many units being formed for wartime service.

Challenge

Captain Hardick was assigned in this program as commander of the First Officer Candidate School battalion of the 3rd Student Regiment. This was to be another challenge for the West Point officer. The accelerated OCS program was proving out second lieutenants after only 13 weeks' training.

By the time Captain Hardick took over as a battalion commander, the school was starting one class a day with classes consisting of roughly 200 candidates. The problem for Captain Hardick and the faculty of the Infantry School was to train these candidates as leaders of men who would take charge under combat conditions.

In the rapidly - expanding program, the candidates did well. Many of the officers who graduated from Officer Candidate School during this hectic period serve today in the Army.

One whom Captain Hardick recalls is Candidate Walter R. Johnson. Candidate Johnson served later with Captain Hardick in 1960 when it was Lieutenant Colonel Johnson, commander of the 13th Transportation Battalion, and Brigadier General William L. Hardick, assistant division commander of the 2nd Infantry Division.

In May of 1942, Captain Hardick discarded his silver bars in lieu of gold leaves and became Major Hardick. His position of battalion commander called for full attention. All administrative actions and many leadership activities were handled by the battalion while the Infantry School furnished the faculty for subjects being taught the candidates.

Harmony Church

When the Harmony Church area was built up in the early days of the war, Major Hardick moved his unit there to become the first unit to occupy buildings in this new part of Fort Benning. Another recently built up area of "The Home of the Infantry" was Sand Hill which housed at this time the 10th Armored Division.

In 1943, the United States worked feverishly to overcome a time lag. Defense plants worked around the clock and the word "swingshift" was added to the American vocabulary. Blackouts and air raid alerts were common. And a new song urged all to work even harder. The song, "Let's Remember Pearl Harbor."

In January of 1943, the Hardicks prepared for another move. This time, only Lieutenant Colonel Hardick would go. Promoted to his present rank in November of 1942, Colonel Hardick was assigned in January to the Command and General Staff College at Fort Leavenworth.

Augusta and Joanne would remain behind at Fort Benning so that Joanne would not have to interrupt her school year on post.

Full Load

The course at Fort Leavenworth also was accelerated and a full load of subjects was crammed into a three-month course. Upon completion of this school, Colonel Hardick received orders to report to the 88th Infantry Division at Camp Howze, Texas.

Camp Howze was a hastily-constructed training post made up of tarpaper shacks and dubbed the "Alcatraz of the Southwest" by its men. Located on the Oklahoma border near Gainesville, Texas, it was to become the home of the "Blackhawk" 86th Division.

Lieutenant Colonel Hardick was assigned as G-3 Operations and Training Officer and was responsible for the programs which would train new men into competent soldiers rapidly. The mission for the 88th was to train its own men and units and be ready to assume a position on the battlefield upon completion of training.

Mrs. Hardick and Joanne joined Colonel Hardick in Texas though they were not to see much of the head of the household. Long hours were required in division headquarters to ascertain that the 86th officers and men were receiving the best possible training.

Major Test

In December of 1943 and January of 1944, the unit was ready for its major tactical test. Maneuvers were set at Camp Polk in Louisiana and the 86th moved into the field to show what it had learned. Colonel Hardick observed critically his unit's performance, for maneuvers can give a good indication of a unit's readiness for combat.

The personnel of the 86th Division came through the maneuvers with flying colors. They were ready to take their place in the front lines. Rumors spread and changed constantly during the maneuvers as to where the 86th would be sent.

Colonel Hardick had sent his wife and daughter to Batavia, New York for, though he didn't know the destination of the 86th, he knew that orders would be forthcoming following the maneuvers.

The orders came. Not for the 86th as a unit but for individual infantrymen. War losses of manpower on the battlefronts in Europe and the Pacific had left gaping holes in the front lines. To fill these, all basic Infantrymen of the 86th were shipped overseas as individual replacements.

The "Blackhawk" Division was assigned to Camp Livingston, La., to start again the training cycle it had just completed. Its depleted ranks were filled with incoming draftees. These had to be trained from the ground up.

In January, 1944, new orders came for Colonel Hardick, assigning him to the Operations Division of the War Department General Staff at Washington, D. C.

Ike's CP

Colonel Hardick was assigned as executive officer of the European Staff Section which was the Washington command post for General Eisenhower in Europe. His, section monitored all actions required to furnish operational support for the European Theater. Supplies needed by the Army in Europe would be coordinated at Washington to ascertain that speedy delivery would be made.

The pace was rapid and unceasing. Wartime Washington became a beehive of activity and apartments were filled to capacity. After two months of searching, Colonel Hardick found a vacancy and once again, his family joined him.

But for all the long hours and exasperating delays in obtaining much needed supplies and coordination for the units in Europe, the officers and men of Washington worked with an impatience. An impatience born of the desire to be there themselves in the front lines and contributing "on the spot" to the war effort.

Colonel Hardick's chance came in 1945 when he was assigned in June to the 86th Infantry Division once more. This time he was to serve as Headquarters Commandant and later as the G-3 again. The 86th had been alerted for overseas duty.

Family

Sending his wife and daughter to Edgeworth, Pennsylvania, to stay with Mrs. Hardick's sister, Colonel Hardick rejoined the 86th at Camp Gruber, Oklahoma. The unit was restaging for the invasion of Japan and packed its gear for shipment to Camp Stoneman, the port of debarkation in California.

At Camp Stoneman, the news arrived that the war had ended with the unconditional surrender of the Japanese in August. The 86th was ordered to proceed to the Philippines.

There, outside Manila, the 86th was assigned the mission of rounding up stray Japanese. Later, their job was to assist in training the new Philippine Army.

As part of the Far Eastern forces, the 86th came under the command of General Doug-

MAJOR HALPIN AND CAPT. MARQUIS
Preparing Their Special Sauces

Cooks of the Week

BY JENNI JOHNSON

You've heard that men are the best cooks. The ladies of the 87th Infantry agree, their men proved themselves as mighty fine chefs when they had a cook-out for the ladies recently.

Chicken, beef, lamb, pork, cooked over charcoal fires and for most of the day too. Two of the chefs for the day were persuaded to share their recipes.

Here is Major James M. Halpin's marination of lamb.

Mix:

¼C sauce Bordelaise
¼ Cup sauce Bordelaise
1½ Cup garlic vinegar
2 Tablespoons Worcestershire sauce
½ Teaspoon ketchup
¼ Pound butter
Juice from thawed meat
salt and pepper to taste
garlic powder to taste
2 Teaspoon Major David Marquis Chili.

Place meat in pan and pour mixture over it. Cover meat in pan, leave in refrigeration for 12 to 14 hours, turning frequently. When ready to cook cook slowly over wood and charcoal fire for four to five hours. This recipe is for ten pounds of lamb and can be reduced.

And here is Captain Andrew J. Marquis' Pork Barbeque for Boston Butt. This barbeque is sufficient for four to six pounds of pork

Mix together:

6 Tablespoons fresh lemon juice
2 Cups catsup or tomato sauce
2 Tablespoons black pepper
2 Tablespoons red pepper
2 Tablespoons dry mustard
2 Tablespoons paprika
4 Tablespoons butter
2 Tablespoons wine vinegar
¼ Cup water
2 Tablespoons brown sugar
2 Teaspoon salt

Bring to boil and simmer for one to one and a half hours. This can be brushed onto the meat as it is being barbequed or served separately.

Think About This For Your Next Slam

Ladies of the 87th Infantry bridge group bid the hand below to slam. But went down two doubled! Could you have made the bid? Mrs. Paul Serff, a Senior Master and director of duplicate bridge here at Fort Benning for the Women's Club of Fort Benning as well as at the Columbus Country Club, comments on the play of this hand . . . and she makes the slam.

Opening lead — 2 ♠

Opening lead two spades.

The contract played at 6 NT and went down two doubled. A survey of North and South losing one heart, one diamond, one club.

How can this contract be made?

Deuce of spades lead is taken by South's singleton ace. Next play? Hearts are the longest and strongest suit and despite East's double South must try a heart finesse. South now plays the jack of hearts, finessing for the Q. If west doesn't cover let it ride, then a small heart lead to dummy's 10, and all hearts are good.

However if West covers the jack of hearts with the Q, North takes it with the king on the board and the 9 of hearts also falls. Playing the A and 10 of hearts leaves the possibility of losing the 6 to the 8. The key card in this hand is the 8 of hearts.

Now play a small club and take it with king putting declarer back in the hand. There's danger that East will have the 9 and 8 of hearts, but more likely the suit will be split, 4, 4, 4, 1. Play the 7 of hearts and if not covered let it ride, if covered the rest of the hearts are good.

Now K, Q of spades can be played from the dummy and South discards 2 clubs and 1 diamond out of the hand.

The jack of diamonds is taken with West's king, but the rest are South's for 6NT. Why did East double? Remember face cards are not the only valuable cards.

This hand was one of several challenging ones played at the home of Mrs. Frank Spettel. High for the evening was Mrs. Carl Warren. Second high was Mrs. George Thom.

Mrs. Douglas Syverson was hostess for a recent bridge party that resulted in high for Mrs. Robert Connor and second high for Mrs. Warren.

An evening of couples bridge enjoyed each month gave high score to Mrs. Dawson Luke, and second high was won by Capt. Edwin Passmore. Both were guests of the 87th. Capt. Alan Horwedel held the bingo hand.

Farewell Tea Held to Honor Mrs. Osgard

The ladies of the 9th Infantry honored Mrs. James L. Osgard with a farewell tea recently in the Corregidor Room of the Main Officer's Open Mess.

Mrs. Osgard's husband, Colonel Osgard, commander of the 9th Infantry, is departing to enter the Army War College at Carlisle Barracks, Pennsylvania, in August.

Mrs. Osgard expressed appreciation to the ladies for the sentiment and for their active support to all the 9th Infantry activities.

The Corregidor Room was decorated with Mrs. Osgard's favorite colors, pink and silver. The center table was covered with a pink cloth. A floral arrangement of pink carnations and tinted pink gardenias decorated the center of the table.

Among the special guests who attended the tea was Mrs. John Swango, wife of Major John Swango, formerly of the 9th Infantry.

Captain Hardick Trained Officers in Face of War

(Con't from P. 13)

las MacArthur. Colonel Hardick had the opportunity to meet the officer he had heard so much of at West Point, and at a reception he found "Mac" to be very impressive."

Also, in the 80th at Manilla, Colonel Hardick met another officer with whom he was later to serve in the 2nd Infantry Division. Lieutenant Colonel Jack Looney commanded a battalion in the 80th Division and was to meet Colonel Hardick again when they were both assigned to the Indianhead unit at Fort Benning in 1959.

Tokyo

In November of 1946 a new assignment took Colonel Hardick to Tokyo, Japan and General MacArthur's headquarters in the Secretary of General Staff's office. Here he worked on military government paperwork which handled phases of the establishment of effective government for the Japanese people.

His far eastern tour ended in August, 1947, when he was assigned to the Armed Forces Staff College at Norfolk, Virginia. Upon his departure from Tokyo, he received an autographed picture of General MacArthur which he treasures to this day and has added to his growing collection of Army mementoes.

A happy reunion was held by the Hardicks in Pennsylvania with the return of Colonel Hardick from Japan. The family accompanied him, after a short vacation, to Norfolk for his stay at the Staff College. The five-month course trained him for upcoming key assignments.

His first job after the school was at Fort Knox, Kentucky, with the Universal Military Training Experimental Unit. As an Executive Officer of this unit, Colonel Hardick worked to devise procedures to incorporate UMT on a national basis.

Joanne Hardick attended school on post at Fort Knox and was now a charming young lady in high school, having started the final four years at Norfolk. Her after school hours were spent in normal teen-age activities and doing babysitting occasionally.

Spring '48

Mobilization returned to the United States in the Spring of 1948 and the UMT Experimental Unit was incorporated into the Headquarters of Division Artillery for the 3rd Armored Division.

The mobilization plans were hastened by the Communist blockade of Berlin, which was thwarted by the Allies and the now famous Berlin Airlift.

Four months training at the Strategic Intelligence School in Washington, D. C. preceeded his next assignment to Headquarters of the European Command at Heidleberg, Germany for Colonel Hardick in April of 1949.

This was to be a demanding assignment for Colonel Hardick with work in operational intelligence. Although many aspects of this job are still classified information, Colonel Hardick's job consisted of coordinating the collection of military information throughout Europe.

Vacations

During his stay in Europe, Colonel Hardick was able to travel with his family to the many historic spots of old Europe. Leave time was spent with vacation trips by the family to Switzerland, Vienna, Rome, Florence, Venice, Berlin and Paris.

September 1950, marked another highspot in his career when Colonel Hardick was promoted to colonel and added the eagles to his uniform. Another measureable moment came the following year when Jeanne finished high school.

The graduation ceremony was held in Heidleberg's famed Schloss with John J. McCloy, the High Commissioner for Germany, delivering the graduation address.

One month later, Colonel Hardick received stateside orders, this time to the Army War College at Carlisle Barracks, Pennsylvania. During his pleasureable stay in Europe, he had also met again an old friend who had taught him at West Point. Major General Phillip Gallagher, now retired in Columbus, was on duty in Europe and referred to Colonel Hardick as an old friend by simply calling him, "my son."

Once again on the move, Colonel Hardick reported to the Army War College as trouble and fighting spread across the island of Korea. The United States had already sent troops into the "land of the morning calm" to stop the invasion by the North Koreans into South Korea.

Next Week: Commander—Regiment to Division.

11th Celebrates 100th Anniversary

By 11th Inf PIO

The 11th Infantry Saturday celebrated its 100th Anniversary and the graduation of its Basic Combat Training cycle. The parade and ceremony took place at Essebagger Field on Kelley Hill and commenced with the sounding of Adjutant's Call at 8:00 a.m.

The division commander, Brigadier General William L. Hardick, was the reviewing officer and was accompanied by Colonel John E. Arthur, the battle group commander.

Protest

The first award to be presented by the commanding general of the Division was a plaque to Combat Support Company, which attained the highest average on the Basic Combat Training Proficiency Test.

Recruits Daniel R. Grimes of Company A, George H. Hansen of Company E, and Rudolph W. Moses of Combat Support Company tied for first place as the individual high scorers on the Basic Combat Training Proficiency Test. Each was awarded a plaque.

Recruit Gary M. Rose of Company B was awarded a plaque as the winner of the battle group Trainfire I competition held on Simpson Range.

Presentation of the Battle Group crest to seven trainees, representing their respective companies, symbolized the end of basic combat training and the trainees' becoming members of the 11th Infantry. This highlight was followed by a re-dedication of the battle group's colors, during which General Hardick attached the battle streamers to the regimental flag.

This act commemorated the 11th Infantry's organization 100 years ago when Abraham Lincoln signed a Presidential decree in 1861. June 14th is the official Organization Day for on this day in 1958 the First Battle Group, 11th Infantry became a part of the 2nd Infantry Division here at Fort Benning. General Hardick then addressed the troops, after which the battle group passed in review.

Liberian Officers View OVUREP Training at 11th

By 11th Inf PIO

First Lieutenants Daniel D. Donyen and Joseph F. Dennis of Liberia recently conducted observer training at the 11th Infantry.

After an initial briefing by the operations officer, Major Wiley McGarity, concerning the Overseas Unit Replacement program and the battle group's current stage of training, the two officers then received an initial welcome from the battlegroup commander, Colonel John E. Arthur.

During the next few days the allied officers rotated among several of the companies and observed the training methods and techniques being utilized.

Escort officers from the respective companies explained the problems and techniques of planning, organizing, and conducting training.

1st Downs Trains for Championship

Pulse-Pounding Play-Off Ends With 1-0 Victory

BY JOHN O'CONNOR

The 1st Infantry eked out a pulse-pounding 1-0 play-off victory Monday evening over Division Trains to win the 2nd Division Softball Championship at Kelley Hill's Essebagger Field.

Both teams entered the game with identical 12-2 records in regular season play. Both Trains' losses were against the 1st Infantry's Dave Jarrell who put on a sensational pitchers' duel with Frank Myers of Trains.

Jarrell took the mound against lead-off batter Mike Finley who grounded out to second. Jarrell then threw third strikes past Myers and Don Cattalini to close out the inning. Frank Myers set down the 1st Infantry in order with Stan Rosenberg fouling to third, second sacker Manuel Shockley fanning on three pitches and R. C. White lofting a short fly to centerfielder Charles Pearson.

Line Drive

Trains opened the second with a line drive single to right center by Chico Dononicio. Duane Goldammer popped out in foul territory to first baseman Shockley. Third sacker Rudy Thomas followed with a long drive to left which Rosenberg corralled for the second out. Pearson then fanned on three pitches stranding Dononicci at first.

The 1st Infantry went down in order once again as Myers picked up another strikeout victim in shortstop Frank Matare.

Jarrell fanned Trains catcher Steve Humphries to open the third, only to have Vince Bujan single to deep short. Finley sacrificed Bujan to second but Jarrell closed out the threat striking out Myers for the second time.

Jam

Myers worked himself into a "jam" as he hit batters John Cogburn and Mataro to open the bottom half of the third. Catcher Raymond Villalobos moved both runners up a base on a perfect sacrifice. Myers settled down to get Rosenberg on a pop up and Shockley by the strikeout route.

Jarrell set Trains down in quick succession in the fourth, picking up another strikeout victim in Dominicci.

With one out in the fourth "Pat" Patterson singled up the middle and was moved to second on a bunt by Jarrell. Myers bore down on Paul Arrell and struck out the second baseman on three pitches.

Shuts the Door

Jarrell shut the door in Trains' face in the fifth inning, striking out the side and upping his strikeout total to nine.

The fifth inning proved to be Myers' downfall as he was tagged for a single by Cogburn to open the inning. Mataro popped out to Dominicci in right field for the first out. With Villalobos at bat, Cogburn stole second base. The 1st Infantry catcher grounded out moving Cogburn to third.

Lone Run

Trains' third baseman Thomas booted a ground ball allowing Cogburn to score the lone run of the game. Myers struck out Shockley for the third time to get out of the inning.

Jarrell retired the last six men in order, picking up three strikeouts to give him a total of 12 for the game. It was a heartbreaking game for Myers to lose, and his third loss against lead-off batter Mike Finley who grounded out to second, Jarrell then threw third strikes past Myers and Don Cattalini to close out the inning. Frank Myers set down the 1st Infantry in order with Stan Rosenberg fouling to third, second sacker Manuel Shockley fanning on three pitches and R. C. Trains' third baseman Thomas booted a ground ball allowing Cogburn to score the lone run of the game. Myers struck out Shockley for the third time to get out of the inning.

Jarrell retired the last six men in order, picking up three strikeouts to give him a total of 12 for the game. It was a heartbreaking game for Myers to lose, and his third loss to Jarrell for the season.

All of Jarrell's wins against Trains were shutouts, including an 8-0 perfect game. The 1st Infantry sensation closed out the season with an 11-0 record.

The unit's overseas movement will prevent the 1st Infantry from representing the Division in softball finals at post level.

9th Finishes Tournament In 3rd Place

By 9th Inf. PIO

The 1st Infantry rolled past the 9th Infantry's third-place crew 12-4 June 16 in the final regularly scheduled contest of the Division softball tournament.

First Infantry pitcher David Jarrell hurled the first six innings for the win. The 9th tallied three runs off Jarrell's slants, the first runs scored against him in Division softball play. Jarrell led the 1st Infantry's 12-hit barrage against the 9th's Robert Given with a home run and a double, good for four runs batted in. Jarrell fanned 14 and walked three. He gave up four hits.

Wilbert Patterson chipped in with a home run and a triple for the winners and Manuel Schokley collected three singles and a walk for a perfect night at the bat for the 1st Infantry squad. R. C. White also homered for the victors.

Harry Hall led the 9th Infantry with two singles. Losing moundsman Given, who finished the season with a 2-1 record, belted a long home run for the 9th. The win gave the 1st Infantry a mark of 12-2 and a tie for the Division first place spot with Division Trains. The 9th Infantry finished third with a 9-5 slate.

Lt. Foster Wins Medal in Oslo

By 9th Inf. PIO

A 24-year-old first lieutenant assigned to the 2nd Division's 9th Infantry has captured the first place gold medal in the 1961 world championship in double shot shooting of the mechanical deer.

Lieutenant John Foster, a member of the 9th Infantry's Company A on temporary duty with the Army Advanced Marksmanship Unit, won the crown by firing 225 points in the world championships concluded June 18 in Oslo, Norway.

The Springfield, Ohio, native was competing in Europe for the second time in less than a year. He placed seventh in the 1960 Summer Olympics in Rome, Italy, in competition with the 300-meter free rifle.

Lt. Foster smashed a number of firing records in the April Third Army and Armed Forces International Matches. He won a half-dozen matches and walked off with the coveted Third Army Individual Rifle Championship.

The 9th Infantry officer holds the President's 100 Tab and the highly coveted Distinguished Rifleman's Badge.
